

Greeks Give Caramanlis A Landslide

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer
ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Premier Constantine Caramanlis won a landslide victory in Greece's first free election in 10 years and declared today, "democracy has returned to its birthplace."

With almost all votes counted, Caramanlis' New Democracy party took a record 55.5 per cent of the ballots in Sunday's election and was expected to take 214 of the 300 seats in parliament.

At a noonday reception for newsmen, Caramanlis said "certain problems are extremely crucial, among which the national one—the Cyprus tragedy—prevails."

But he said "together with the solidarity of all the Greeks, irrespective of their party preference, the difficulties will be overcome and the problems solved."

In Nicosia, the Greek Cypriot leader, Glafcos Clerides, and the Turkish Cypriot leader, Raouf Denktash, both welcomed Caramanlis' election victory.

But Denktash reiterated his opposition to the return of Archbishop Makarios, the elected president of Cyprus, to the troubled Mediterranean island.

Caramanlis said the triumph of democracy in Greece after 7½ years of dictatorship was a joyful event "for all those who love our country and on whose support we are counting on for the future."

"Without bloodshed, without upheavals, and finally with the free expression of the will of the people, democracy has returned to its birthplace."

Smash-Up Injured Five

FIVE INJURED . . . Five persons were injured when these two cars and a third vehicle collided about 3:25 p.m. Sunday, eight miles south of Greenville on Rural Road 1774. Drivers involved were identified as Elmer Eugene Adams of Route 3, Greenville; O'Neal Goalson of Hopewell, Va., and Guy Dixon Jr. of Route 3, Greenville. The cars, driven by Goalson and Adams collided when the Goalson car apparently swerved across the center line of the road. The

Adams car then collided with a truck driven by Dixon following the initial collision with the Goalson car. Damage was estimated at $800 to the Adams car, $300 to the Goalson car and $600 to the Dixon truck. Adams, Goalson and three passengers in the Goalson car were reported injured. Goalson was charged by investigating Highway Patrolman D.R. Taylor with driving on the wrong side of the road and driving with no operators license. (Photo by Tom Forbes)

Ford Arrives In Tokyo Today

TOKYO (AP) — Some 400 helmeted radicals clashed with armored riot police today as President Ford arrived in Japan and about half of them were arrested. Another 2,000 demonstrators shouted anti-Ford slogans.

The outbursts took place two miles from the airport where Ford landed for the briefest of welcomes and did not mar the ceremonies. Ford then took a helicopter to downtown Tokyo for an overnight rest in a heavily guarded palace.

After a 15-hour flight from Washington across the International Date Line, the first American President to visit Japan scheduled a 17-hour respite to rest up before calling on Emperor Hirohito Tuesday and opening talks with Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka.

To minimize the chance of interference by radical leftists opposed to the President's visit, neither the emperor nor Tanaka went to the airport, and the arrival ceremony there lasted only 11 minutes.

Busloads of carefully screened Japanese waved American and Japanese flags and applauded as Ford left Air Force One and shook hands with U.S. Ambassador James Hodgson, Takeshi Yasukawa, the Japanese ambassador to the United States, and Japanese protocol officials.

Howitzers fired a 21-gun salute required by protocol, and the President waved to the crowd as he was escorted to a waiting helicopter for the 10-minute trip to the Wasakaka Palace in downtown Tokyo. Leftist demonstrations against the President's visit have so far been largely non-violent. But the government threw a massive security screen around the presidential visit, with 25,000

Tokyo police on full alert and another 100,000 on standby orders in other parts of the country.

The threat of demonstrations and the uncertain political future of Prime Minister Tanaka, who is accused of using his official position to profit financially, caused some questioning of the value of Ford's trip. But at a sendoff ceremony on the White House lawn, the President said he was making his "first trip overseas as President with full confidence that this timely undertaking is in the highest national interest of the United States."

"I am deeply conscious of the need to continue the quest for peace," Ford said. "I would rather travel thousands of miles for peace than take a single step toward war."

Making a refueling stop at Anchorage's Elmendorf Air Force Base, Ford sought to balance his desire for peace with his support for strong national defenses. To his largely military audience, he said:

"I want to reassure you today that my administration . . . remains aware that the best insurance for peace is the maintenance of first-class military forces ready for defense."

Mrs. Ford, recuperating from cancer surgery, did not accompany her husband. She flew with him by helicopter Sunday from the White House to Andrews Air Force Base, where the couple embraced warmly and kissed twice before several hundred well-wishers.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who was with Ford, told reporters aboard Air Force One that no decisions are expected to emerge from Ford's four days in Japan. He said the aim is to expand on current good relations and determine how the United States and Japan can "work together on a global basis."

ADDRESS FOR BANGLADESH RELIEF

My daughter and I would like to help feed the people of Bangladesh. Where should we send contributions to know this is where they will be used? Mrs. R.M.T.

Contributions may be sent to Bangladesh Famine Fund, CARE, 2581 Piedmont Road, Room 23-A, Atlanta, Ga. 30324. In answer to our letter, CARE Executive Director Frank L. Goffio says starvations is killing many, especially the very old and the very young, every day in Bangladesh. He said 1,000 tons of wheat, $300,000 worth, have just been sent, placing a heavy strain on CARE's resources in view of the growing need for other emergency program throughout the world. CARE, a non-profit organization incorporated in 1945, has had programs in Bangladesh since 1961.

He explained that besides saving lives, feeding these people is all-important because prolonged malnutrition stunts mental as well as physical development. What chance, he asked, will a country have for a better tomorrow after a generation or two of its young has been retarded?

FIREMEN REPAIR TOYS

Is the Greenville Fire Department still repairing toys for needy children, and if not, is there any person or group who does? W.W.

Greenville fireman, Billy Woolfolk, said the Fire Department does still have the toy repair project, though it's not nearly so large and lengthy as it used to be since so many toys today simply cannot be mended.

"We usually start around Dec. 10, and any toys we're able to fix we turn over to the Salvation Army. Persons who have toys they believe are repairable should take them to the Salvation Army, if they wish to get them out of the way before December 10. They'll be sure we get them," Woolfolk said, explaining that the Fire Department does not have enough storage space to keep the toys in advance of beginning the project.

NOT IN STOCK

I am enclosing a list of choices and alternate choices of records I ordered from Record Club of America a long time ago. Can you get them for me? T. M.

Record Club of America, located in York, Pa., replied to Hotline's inquiry with a refund check of $15.98, saying, "We are sorry. None of your selections are in stock."

South Georgia Area Is Searched For 2 Feared To Have Been Abducted

By BILL HENDRICK
Associated Press Writer
MACON, Ga. (AP) — State

troopers searched a 150-mile section of south Georgia roads today for two missing men believed abducted by Paul John Knowles, who was arrested earlier near McDonough on murder charges.

Knowles allegedly was seen with a Florida highway patrolman and a Delaware man in Lakeland, Ga., but then arrived in the Macon area Saturday night alone, a spokesman for the Georgia State Patrol said.

"No one knows what route he took," said spokesman Bill Wilson. "We've got everybody we can get out looking down side roads and ditches—game and fish rangers, deputies, citizen band volunteers . . ."

Inspector Jim Stanley of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation said a gunbelt that "appeared to be the Florida trooper's" was found in the car abandoned by Knowles after he rammed a roadblock near Stockbridge, Ga. and fled into the woods Sunday.

GBI Director William Beardsley said Knowles is believed to have abducted missing Florida trooper Charles E. Campbell and James E. Meyer, 29, of Wilmington, Del.

"There is no doubt that he took the hostages," Beardsley stated.

However, Knowles refused to answer questions today at the Bibb County jail where he is being held, and insisted on talking to his attorney, Shelton Yavitz of Miami, Fla., said Stanley.

"The guy's not having anything to say. He holds all the cards in that respect," Stanley said. "His attorney is supposed to be driving up from Miami now."

Knowles faces murder charges in the slayings of a Milledgeville man and his daughter earlier this month and is wanted for questioning in two Henry County slayings.

Beardsley said he assumed the two hostages had been abandoned in a remote area between Lakeland and Macon. He said Knowles and two men were spotted by a service station attendant at Lakeland Saturday afternoon.

Area Connection Is Capture Of Knowles

MCDONOUGH, Ga. — A fugitive and ex-convict, being sought for questioning in three murders and who allegedly abducted a Florida Highway Patrolman and a Delaware man Saturday, has been charged with murder in the death of two Milledgeville, Ga. residents November 5.

Paul John Knowles, 28, of Orlando, Fla., was captured near here Sunday in a densely wooded area, but no trace has been found of the Florida state trooper or the Delaware man. Knowles was charged November 6 with murder in connection with the death of Carswell Carr, 45 and Carr's 15-year-old daughter Mandy.

Carr was stabbed to death with a pair of scissors while his daughter, Mandy, was strangled.

Carr was the brother of Dr. Lala Steelman, a member of the History Department faculty at East Carolina University in Greenville. Miss Carr was Dr. Steelman's niece.

Chief Chaplain Is Appointed

RALEIGH (AP)—Rinaldo "Bud" Walker of Durham was named to head the chaplaincy program in the state prison system, Corrections Secretary David Jones announced today.

Jones said Walker will be responsible for setting up a statewide chaplaincy program for the prison system. The 40-year-old Walker was formerly associate director of the Durham Human Relations Commission.

Carrier Number

The carrier service department of The Daily Reflector has a new phone number. Persons who do not receive their newspapers or have other complaints are asked to call 752-3952 between the hours of 6 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. on weekdays and from 8 a.m. until 9 a.m. on Sundays.

According to Bonnie Hardee, circulation manager, subscribers are asked to contact their carrier first. If they are unable to reach the carrier, the customers may call the above number for service.

Mental Health Care Expansion Green's Goal

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — James C. Green, D-Blanden, who is expected to be House speaker in the 1975 General Assembly, says he hopes the lawmakers next year will be able to expend North Carolina's mental health facilities.

In a recent interview, Green said he was not yet ready to reveal details of his mental health proposals.

Green, a 53-year-old Clarkton tobaccoist and Virginia native, is unopposed for the Democratic nomination for speaker. The Democratic nomination is tantamount to election. Green will be serving his seventh term in the House.

Green said he expects the state budget as always to be the major legislative issue.

Even though state tax revenues are expected to be off because of the present business recession and the state's credit balance next June 30 will be smaller than at any time in his legislative experience, Green said he expected there will be enough to provide cost of living pay boosts for teachers and state employees.

Asked if tax cut proposals would be a major issue, Green said, "I haven't heard it discussed enough to believe it will be a major issue."

And when asked if he thought any important tax cuts would be passed, Green said: "I wouldn't think so in face of our economic situation."

Green said he had "noticed by the press" that ratification of the equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution will be an important issue.

The Bladen lawmaker said he hopes the legislature will be able to ferret out state appropriations requests that "don't need to be spent."

"We want to find it and recapture it," he said. Green added the task of making committee assignments for the House members if he is elected speaker will be a difficult job but he hopes to make them soon after the legislature convenes.

"I'll give them some work to do when we convene if I'm put in that position (the speakership). We won't be dragging our feet," he said.

New Brochure Explains Development Program

The city has prepared a brochure explaining local involvement in the new Community Development Program and inviting all individuals, organizations, and neighborhood groups in Greenville to participate.

City Manager Bill Carstarphen said that the city is issuing invitations to over 200 representatives of civic and neighborhood clubs and community leaders to take part in the formulation of a local program.

He reported that the brochures, urging citizens to "Get Involved in Greenville" and containing information on the Community Development Program and Citizen Participating Plan, are being placed in the mail this week.

Brochures contain a detachable, postpaid business reply card for use in requesting additional information about the organization and operation of local government and the CDP.

Carstarphen explained that the brochure represents the first in a series of opportunities which will be provided to citizens to participate in the program. The City Council, meeting in October, approved a four-part program designed to encourage citizen participation.

Objectives of the program include: the identification of neighborhood and civic organizations; the provision of information on the purpose and options of the CDP; the sharing of information on the city's plans with citizen groups; and one or more community-wide public hearings on the proposed programs.

A task force of city department heads is now in the process of gathering information on various elements of the program, the city manager pointed out, and by Jan. 1 will be ready to distribute the information.

Carstarphen said that the "city is committed to a serious effort to involve citizens from throughout the community in this planning process."

The Community Development Program, which received congressional approval in September, provides funds to local governments with the objective of developing better communities through the provision of decent housing, better neighborhoods, and expanded economic opportunities, particularly to persons of low and moderate income.

According to Carstarphen, Greenville expects to receive in excess of $7 million under the program during the next five years.

Greene-Davis Vows Said She Wants To Put Couple Weds Saturday In Ceremony On Sunday Men In A Hairnet

HIGH POINT—The marriage of Cynthia Jane Davis and Larry Eldridge Greene was solemnized Sunday at 2:00 p.m. in the Calvary United Methodist Church here. The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Herman Beck.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Davis Jr. of High Point, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal princess gown of white silk organza and chantilly lace designed with a high collar, fitted lace bodice accented with seed pearls, Victorian sleeves with accents of lace and seed pearls. The full skirt had a border of scalloped lace.

Her three tiered floor length mantilla, edged with chantilly lace, was attached to a Victorian crown. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, blue and white shasta daisies, pom poms and ivy.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Steve Sklavos of Fayetteville. She was dressed in a formal gown of pale pink organza featuring a scoop neckline with a pleated attached caplet, satin bow streamers and a full A-line skirt. She carried a basket of pink roses, blue and white shasta daisies and pom poms and ivy with pastel ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Miss Laura Perryman of High Point, cousin of the bride, Miss Judy Morris of Charlotte and Miss Linda Edmondson of Greenville. They wore formal gowns of powder blue organza styled like that of the matron of honor and carried baskets of pink roses, blue and white shasta daisies, pom poms and ivy with pastel ribbons.

Junior bridesmaids were Miss Terri Ward and Miss Sheri Ward of High Point, cousins of the bride, and Miss Melinda Greene of Greenville, niece of the bridegroom. They were attired in formal length powder blue crepe gowns with a high neckline, empire waistline, puff sleeves and skirt, trimmed with white lace inserted with matching ribbon. They carried a single white mum tied with pastel ribbons.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arland E. Greene of Greenville.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Wayne Greene, brother of the bridegroom, Gene Higson and Lomer Whitehurst Jr., all of Greenville, Randall Davis of High Point, brother of the bride, Steve Sklavos of Fayetteville, and Jimmy Carman of Ayden. Zane Greene of Greenville, nephew of the bridegroom, was junior usher.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Joe Teague, organist, and Miss Verna Beck, soloist. Mrs. John E. Ward Jr., aunt of the bride, was program attendant and Mrs. Wayne Greene, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, presided at the guest register.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride graduated from Ledford High School, Thomasville, and graduated from ECU, where she was a member of Alpha Phi sorority. She now teaches in the Edgecombe County Schools.

The bridegroom graduated from Rose High School, attended ECU and graduated from Lenior County College. He is employed by Fieldcrest Mills, Greenville.

Immediately following the wedding, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall given by the bride's parents.

Guests were greeted by the bridal couple and their parents and registered by Mrs. Wayne Greene.

The tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Holland Davis and Mrs. Carroll Bowen, aunts of the bride. The table was covered with a blue cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink roses, blue and white flowers. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Everett Jordan and Mrs. Charles Pierce, aunts of the bride, Mrs. James E. Schilling Jr., cousin of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Frank Seltz Jr.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Arvel Perryman and Mr. and Mrs. John E. Ward Jr., aunts and uncles of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Arland E. Greene, parents of the bridegroom, honored the bridal couple at rehearsal party Saturday night at the Quail Run Apartments party room, High Point.

Guests included the wedding party, relatives and friends.

The head table was covered with a white cloth and centered with an arrangement of red flowers.

The bridal couple remembered their attendants with gifts.

DEAR ABBY: I work in the kitchen of a restaurant and the law says all WOMEN have to wear hairnets.

Well, we have some men working in the kitchen whose hair is a lot longer than some of the women's and there's no law that makes THEM wear hairnets. I don't think that's fair. I mentioned this to the boss and he just laughed, but I don't think it is any laughing matter. What do you think?

MADDIE

DEAR MADDIE: I think the hairnet law should apply to all professional food handlers with long hair.

DEAR ABBY: Thank God for you. You're the only one I can turn to for help.

My wife and I are separated and will be divorced as soon as we can get the money together. We are still friends.

She thinks she is pregnant. She's been seeing my brother, and she says the odds are that it's his baby. There is a slim chance, however, that it's mine. No one knows she's pregnant but she and I. If the baby is mine, I will accept the responsibility and support it as I do our other children. But if it's my brother's, I intend to disown it.

Is there any way to tell whose baby it is after it's born? If there is no way to tell for sure, I want to do what's best for the baby. What do you suggest?

IN DOUBT

DEAR IN: Blood tests after the baby is born will not determine who the baby's father IS—only who the baby's father ISN'T. Since you and your wife are still married, in the case of doubtful paternity, it would be wise to accept the child as your own.

DEAR ABBY: I need your help to get my wife back. I never realized how much I loved her until I lost her.

Maybe you heard about the anthrax epidemic that hit the cattle in Texas this summer, Abby. I was right in the middle of it. I was near broke and desperate to sell a herd before my section of the state was quarantined. My wife told me it was wrong to sell cattle without waiting to find out if they had anthrax.

I knew she was right, but I needed the money. I told her I was going to sell anyway, and she stood right up to me and said she'd call the authorities if I moved one steer off my land.

That's when I hit her, Abby. I knocked her down on the kitchen floor. I could have cut off my hand the minute it happened, but like a stubborn fool I walked out of the house and left her laying there. I guess I must have walked around for an hour talking to myself. When I came back I was ready to get down on my knees, beg her to forgive me, and promise not to deal the steers, but she was gone. I called her relatives. Nobody knew where she was, or else they wouldn't tell me.

Abby, I can't live without that woman. I've loved her since she was 16. That was the only time I ever raised my hand to her in the 27 years we've been married. She reads your column every day, so maybe she'll read this, wherever she is. Ask her to come back home, Abby?

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: You've done it better than I ever could.

DEAR ABBY: I am planning my wedding and need an opinion from someone outside my family.

My parents are divorced and I have lived with my mother since early childhood. She has been a wonderful mother not only to me but to my brothers and sisters. She always thought of her children first.

My father contributed nothing to my upbringing. Not even the child support the court ordered him to pay. I didn't respect him when I was a child, and I still don't.

Although I think the tradition of the bride's father "giving away" his daughter is beautiful, I want my mother to give me away instead.

What do you think of such an odd switch? Do I dare suggest it?

MAMMA'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: It's your wedding, and I see no reason why your mother shouldn't give you away if that's what you want. Tell whomever will officiate at your wedding about your wishes. It makes sense to me. (P.S. I once attended a lovely wedding where, in response to the clergyman's question, "Who gives this woman in marriage?" the mother and father replied in unison, "We do!")

Miss Sandra Barnes Harrell and Charles Matthew Zadnik were married Saturday at four o'clock in the chapel of Saint James United Methodist Church. The Rev. James Lee officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Harrell Jr. of Scotland Neck. She is a graduate of East Carolina University with a B.S. degree in early childhood education.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Charles Zadnik and the late Mrs. Zadnik of Donora, Pa. He is a senior at East Carolina University.

Wedding music was presented by Ken Woodard, organist.

Mr. Harrell gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a formal length gown of white voile designed with a high neckline encircled with white cluny lace. The bodice featured tucked voile outlined in ruffled lace. The full sheer sleeves were styled with fitted lace cuffs edged in the ruffled cluny lace. Borders of lace accentuated the modified empire waistline and full flared skirt.

She wore a bandeau headpiece of white cluny lace with a tiered illusion veil edged in matching cluny lace. Her bouquet was of stephanotis and phalaenopsis.

Miss Berta Hinton Harrell of Scotland Neck, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor and only attendant.

Mr. Zadnik was his son's best man. Larry Harrell of Scotland Neck and John Lopez of Greenville were ushers.

Following a reception at Tar River Estates, the couple left for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls. They will reside in Greenville.

Elections Brighten ERA Hope

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment say the recent state legislative elections have brightened the chances that five more states will ratify ERA, thus making it part of the Constitution.

The Constitution requires approval by 38 states, and 33 states previously have approved the amendment. The ERA would prohibit discrimination based on sex.

The new optimism among ERA supporters represents a turnaround from the pessimism expressed last summer at a meeting of the National Women's Political Caucus.

Mary Brooks, ERA coordinator for the League of Women Voters, and Pat Keefe of Common Cause had told the caucus that they doubted the ERA would be approved by more than two or three more states this spring.

But the elections changed that forecast.

"I don't know of a state where we haven't picked up pro-ERA strength," said Ms. Brooks, who prefers the designation Ms.

The defeat of anti-ERA incumbents was particularly noticeable in such states as Missouri, Florida, Arizona and South Carolina, she said.

In some contests, the victors were women challenging anti-ERA office holders. In other cases, the winners were men who had the backing of the informal ERA lobby, consisting of the League, the National Women's Political Caucus, Common Cause, the National Organization for Women, the Business and Professional Women and others.

"This will have a tremendous effect on the lobbying power of the women's groups," said Ms. Brooks. "Last year we weren't taken seriously. This year we damn well are going to be."

Diane Sauter of Common Cause said pro-ERA candidates won in the overwhelming majority of races where the ERA was a central issue.

This year's elections were the first to test the political potency of the ERA issue.

"I will be amazed if Illinois, North Dakota, and Missouri don't ratify it next year," Ms. Brooks said. "North Carolina, Oklahoma and Nevada have very good chances. Florida, Indiana and Arizona are going to have some real battles but they have a chance to ratify, too."

Phyllis Schlafly, the Alton, Ill., crusader against the ERA, denied there had been any rout of her supporters from statehouses.

All-American Cities Studied

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Twenty-one cities were under consideration today for the National Municipal League's award as All-American City.

Judging got under way as the league began a three-day symposium here focusing on the importance of competence and credibility in carrying out the affairs of government. About 2,000 delegates were expected to attend.

Guest speakers for the conference include Arkansas Gov.

Dale Bumpers, former U.S. Atty. Gen. Elliott Richardson, public opinion pollster George Gallup and Ruth Clusen, president of the League of Women Voters of the United States.

Judging in the All-American City competition was to be done today and Tuesday. Winners will be selected by a jury in recognition of outstanding progress of their communities through citizen action programs.

The cities being considered are:

Today's Turkey Is Cheaper Than 1973

By The Associated Press
Americans trying to fit holiday celebrations into inflation-tight budgets have at least one thing to be thankful for this year: turkey is cheaper than it was in 1973.

An Associated Press survey showed that while the cost of most of the ingredients of a Thanksgiving dinner has gone up, turkey prices have dropped by about 20 cents a pound to an average of 49 to 69 cents.

Poultry producers said the reason for the decline was an abundant supply and they complained they were losing money on their birds.

"We've been losing up to $2 per bird," said Carl Johnson, head of the Wisconsin Turkey Federation. Poultry producers said it costs about 35 cents a pound to raise a turkey. They're getting only about 28 cents a pound.

The rest of the Thanksgiving dinner is more expensive, however.

A comparison of supermarket advertisements in Montgomery County, Md., for November, 1973 and November, 1974 showed bread, used for stuffing, was up from 30 to 48 cents a loaf; fresh cranberries went from 29 to 39 cents a pound. And, if you get a headache from all the festivities, aspirin went from 59 cents per 100 to 89.

Most Americans said they'd manage a traditional dinner despite inflation, but there were exceptions.

"Usually we have company and we buy more than one meat. This year we are getting a small turkey and that's it," said Yvonne Porter of Detroit. Mrs. Porter and her husband are both out of work — she is on strike from her job at Detroit Optometric Center and he has been laid off from his post as a security guard.

"The holiday we would usually go way out," said Mrs. Porter. "Now we can just barely feed our family."

Will Discuss Equal Rights

"Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any state on account of sex" is to be the subject of discussion at two meetings sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County.

The Tuesday evening meeting will be held at 8:00 at the home of Ilene Blok, 410 W. Fifth Street. The Wednesday morning meeting will be held at 10:00 at the home of Marty Gartman, 2106 Charles St. The public is invited to attend.

The program will begin with a skit, "Are Women Prisoners?", written by Marty Daugherty. Following the skit presentation, there will be a workshop session on the Equal Rights Amendment.

Participating in the skit will be Marian House, Carol Jenduso, Helen Parks, Francine Rees, Rhea Resnik, Johnetta Spilman, Edith Webber, and Irma Worthington. The workshop session will be led by various members of the ERA Coalition.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.
Partly cloudy weather with widely scattered showers is forecast Wednesday through Friday. Low temperatures will reach into the 30s and highs averaging in the 60s.

The Rev. R. M. Stewart, pastor, extends an invitation to the public to attend the services.

Investigating Thefts At House

Greenville police are continuing their investigation today into the theft of two television sets and a stereo outfit from a home at 300 Contentea St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the items were reported stolen at 11:31 p.m. Sunday.

Entry to the home was gained through an unlocked rear door.

Reagan Going Back To Radio

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — When California Gov. Ronald Reagan leaves office in January, he's returning to the career in which he started — broadcasting.

Reagan's press secretary said Sunday the 63-year-old Reagan will tape five-minute commentaries weekly for a series called "The American Viewpoint."

Reagan, who made his name as an actor, got his start in show business in the 1930s as a radio sports announcer for station WHO in Des Moines, Iowa.

Fire Damages Local House

Extensive damage resulted to a bedroom at 714 Vanderbilt Lane here late yesterday afternoon, Fire Department officers reported.

Investigators said a fire erupted in the bedroom of the wood-frame dwelling and fire units were called at 5:36 p.m.

Cause of the fire was listed as undetermined.

Varied Impact From Recession

North Carolinians are going to hear more and more talk about the national recession and how it is affecting the economy of our state.

Financial experts are currently analyzing the situation and their opinions range from depression hysteria to the belief that our state can ride out an economic dip better than most.

Well the recession, if that is what it is going to be called, will have wide ranges as to how it affects each of us individually. To the textile worker who is laid off because demand for the goods he produces has dropped, what we are in is a depression. His income is cut off and perhaps there is no other job in sight. To the business whose profits has dropped, it is certainly a recession.

For most of us, though, the odds are that the current economic troubles will be a problem, but not a disaster. The nation has had a number of economic dips since World War II, and it has been fashionable to term them recessions. Each time the economy has built up a new head of steam and then gone on to new heights.

It is possible that the cycle of boom and mild recession is necessary to allow the economy to "breathe" and thus hold down the dangers of inflation. That, of course, is no comfort at all to the worker who is laid off, except to give him hope that the new cycle will soon take effect and his job will be available again.

Still, we have a diversity in North Carolina which can cushion the effects of a recession, such as is not present in highly industrialized states.

For one thing, we are a big agricultural state, and while farmers have not been without their economic problems, the world demand for food products promises a bright outlook for agriculture.

Our industry is heavy in textiles and furniture. These two fields are hurt quickly when people become cautious in their spending. On the other hand they can recover rapidly as people realize their clothes wear out, and as the housing market recovers.

It is obvious that North Carolina, like the nation, is in a recessionary period. We believe, though, that the results won't be severe in our state.

THIS AFTERNOON

Knowledge As An Industry

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—It is well known that textiles is North Carolina's number one industry. Retail business is second.

The third place enterprise comes as a surprise to most—the knowledge industry is booming and growing in North Carolina far out of proportion to national growth figures.

Now employing more than 200,000 people in this state, the combined fields of knowledge and information perhaps hold the promise of catapulting North Carolina into national prominence, and giving the state a valuable post-industrial economy.

The problem is that most people do not think of knowledge as an industry. It is only in recent years that the whole thing—gathering, storing, retrieving, transmitting, studying, information; and the gamut of machinery and tools involved in such tasks—came into focus as a unified endeavor.

And the challenge is that getting a grasp on the knowledge and information industry, deliberately nurturing it and making it grow, could push North Carolina into the forefront as the Knowledge Center of the Southeast.

A Vision

"It's a vision, but I think we're onto something pretty good, here," said David E. Gillespie, a former newspaper editor who is an executive with the Southern Growth Policies Board lodged at the Research Triangle Park.

Gillespie, wearing one of his several hats, is a member of the Council on State Goals and Policy, a think-tank operation set up by the General Assembly to spell out problems, and recommend some answers, for consideration by the governor and the legislature.

Dr. Dean W. Colvard, chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, worked with Gillespie on a projection of "Growth, Economy, and the People" for the 1975 annual report of the council.

Colvard terms the idea of making this state the knowledge and information capital "a departure from the historical path of growth, but if this idea can stand critical examination...well, we could do this."

Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., who has already outlined in his plans for a 1976 race for governor the suggestion that the state needs additional research park facilities, suggested that a thorough investigation is called for, to test the soundness of the theory.

Gillespie sees the potential for a "quantum jump to a post-industrial economy...bypassing the tradition slow-growth, gradual maturity of labor-intensive industries such as we know from growing up in North Carolina."

Rapid Growth

Figures show the knowledge industry boomed at a 54 per cent growth was by design (research park concept) and some because of the state's prominence in higher education.

There is, Gillespie believes, "a thirst for information...and nobody is really filling this void. Can we...much as Japan seeks to do for the world, keeping the research and development operations at home, while exporting the labor-intensive manufacturing phase?"

North Carolina is now dominated by the nation's three lowest-paying industries (textiles, apparel, furniture). A number of visionary people are trying to look ahead to means of

The Deep Dark Secret

WASHINGTON—Waldermeyer stopped by the office the other day. He seemed terribly nervous.

"Do you think because of the coal strike there's going to be an electric shortage this winter?" he asked me.

"I don't know," I said honestly. "Why do you ask?"

"If I tell you a secret, will you promise not to reveal it to anyone?"

"I promise."

Waldermeyer blushed. "I sleep with a night light."

"That's nothing to be ashamed of. There are hundreds of thousands of people right here in Washington, D.C., who sleep with them."

"But what if, as a conservation measure, they make us give up our night lights?"

"There's no way," I assured Waldermeyer. "The Night Light Lobby is even more powerful than the National Rifle Assn. If the government tried to do away with people's night lights, there'd be a revolution."

"You really think so?" he asked pleadingly.

"I know it. People who use night lights don't talk about it, but if you take their lights away from them they become quite agitated about it."

"I wish I was as sure as you."

"Look, Waldermeyer, the government isn't stupid. There's probably 30 million people in this country who are afraid of the dark."

"There's more than that," he said.

"All right, let's say there are more. If these people can't get any sleep, production will fall off, absenteeism will go up and we could have a serious mental health problem in the country. Believe me, the last thing that will go in this country will be night lights."

"But suppose some bureaucrat in the energy office who never had any use for a night light decides it has to go."

"You don't think they'd leave a decision like that to a bureaucrat, do you? Something that important would have to go to the President himself."

"Do you think Mr. Ford sleeps with a night light?" he asked me.

"I don't know. He probably didn't until he became president."

"What about Henry Kissinger?"

"I don't think Henry Kissinger sleeps."

"I heard J. Edgar Hoover slept with one."

"Waldermeyer, there are lots of famous people who use night lights—senators, representatives and half the Pentagon."

"You're not kidding me, are you?"

"Why would I lie to you? I know all the Watergate defendants sleep with them."

"You know, I tried to give it up last year."

"What happened?"

"The bogymen came and got me."

"Don't you think the government knows that? Do you believe they're going to let the bogymen come and get a quarter of the nation's

Other Editors Say Productivity Key

(Jacksonville Daily News)

The idea of "indexing" our economy to cope with inflation has a magnetic appeal to some economists. Wages, taxes, interest rates and other basic factors in the economic picture would be adjusted automatically to reflect changes in the value of money. The inflation rate would then be no worry.

This is a highly debatable theory, and is often dismissed as only a way of dodging the responsibility to maintain a stable currency. Leaving that debate to the economists, we are beginning to see the results of some of the "indexing" already built in to our economy.

Judging from the now-ended election campaign, we must assume that everyone in public office and everyone seeking it is against tax increases, and some believe taxes should be cut. However, Congress has already "indexed" one tax so that it will increase automatically Jan. 1—an automatic boost in Social Security taxes to cover automatic cost of living increases in Social Security benefits.

Since employers have to match each wage-earner's Social Security deduction, this will add to labor costs which are spiraling upward for other reasons. Among those reasons, in many cases, are "indexed" wage rates which go up automatically when the government reports an increase in the cost of living. The trouble with this kind of wage increase is that it does not always reflect any increase in a worker's productivity—the value of the goods or services he is producing.

The Labor Department has reported another significant decline in the productivity of the U.S. labor force—down 3 per cent on an annual basis. This higher labor cost means employers will either have to increase the prices they charge for their goods or services, or cut back their payrolls. With inflated prices already causing a slump in demand in many areas of the economy, many employers will see no choice but to take the latter course.

For all the protection that "indexing of wages might promise to a worker confronted with inflation, it cannot protect him against losing his job when his employer can no longer afford to keep him on the payroll. This leads back to the warnings by economists that increasing our productivity is vital to any fight against inflation. Declining productivity is a sign we are losing ground against inflation on at least one battle front.

That Unholy Dilemma

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The spectacle of North Carolina's next attorney general being dragged into court to face charges of forgetting to pay his state income tax revives memories of the unholy dilemma faced by the voters in the election two weeks ago.

Many people were undecided about voting for the candidate who didn't know that he should file tax returns or for the candidate whose party decided to start a prosecution against him for it.

Either way, a lot of people didn't feel that they were getting a bargain. The same could be said for many of the races on the ballot.

Out of 3.6 million North Carolinians of voting age, only 1 million went to the polls. And this was regarded as a surprisingly high turnout.

What was the real majority, the 2.6 million who didn't vote, thinking? Many of them were probably like the lady in a Winston, Salem shopping center who met Gov. Holshouser and the Republican candidate and then was asked who she would vote for.

"I don't know that I'll vote," she said. "I just don't know whether I can trust any of them any more."

For people like her, there ought to be a choice as well! The present system provides only one alternative, the cumbersome write-in procedure.

But a write-in vote is not only hard to cast. It does little to allow the disenfranchised to make their voices heard in a unified, effective way.

Suppose there was a third position on each ballot after the names of the two candidates. Suppose it said "Neither One." And suppose the rules were such that if "Neither One" got 50 per cent of the votes, there had to be a new election with new candidates.

The first thing that would happen would be a rush on the courts by aspiring office holders seeking to have their names changed legally to "Neither One." But after

The INSIDE REPORT

A Mogul Of Ambassadors

By ROWLAND EVANS
and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Unpublished evidence collected by the impeachment investigation shows that Peter Flanigan, nominated by President Nixon as ambassador to Spain, was President Nixon's "mogul of ambassadors" intimately involved in finding plush diplomatic posts for generous Republican campaign contributors.

Secret White House correspondence and confidential interviews of Nixon aides by impeachment investigators partially contradict Flanigan's sworn testimony to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; he testified Oct. 2 at the one-day hearing on his nomination that he was not involved in brokering political ambassadorships. The conflicting evidence has since been given the Senate committee, causing even some Republican Senator supporting Flanigan privately to question Mr. Ford's decision to resubmit the nomination to Congress.

Moreover, contrary to Flanigan's claims that he was cleared by the Watergate special prosecutor, he is under active investigation on several fronts. That Mr. Ford is intent on adding a nasty Senate confirmation fight to his heavy burden suggests inadequacies in decision-making that transcend Peter Flanigan.

The most serious charge raised Oct. 2 stemmed from testimony to the House impeachment inquiry by former Nixon attorney Herbert Kalmbach. He was told by Flanigan in 1971, Kalmbach testified, to solicit a $250,000 contribution from Dr. Ruth Farkas who in turn would be named ambassador to Costa Rica (actually, she became ambassador to Luxembourg).

Flanigan denied this. What's more, he told the committee, he repudiated Kalmbach's commitments of European ambassadorial appointments for two other fatcats, J. Fife Symington and Vincent de Roulet. Flanigan swore he told H. R. Haldeman, White House chief of staff, "that this was contrary to the practice and policy of the White House" and that Symington and de Roulet should be offered their money back.

The Senate committee did not then have contradictory material collected by the House Judiciary Committee, including staff interviews with Kalmbach never followed up in the impeachment hearings.

Kalmbach told investigators that, in May or June of 1969, Nixon fundraiser Maurice Stans gave Flanigan a list of contributors to consider as ambassadors. On June 20, 1969, Flanigan met with Symington, a retired millionaire Maryland socialite, to inform him he was being considered as ambassador to Costa Rica or Trinidad. According to Kalmbach, Symington said he wanted a "challenging" post; Flanigan replied Trinidad was a challenge. Set for Trinidad, Symington wrote Flanigan a thank-you letter July 24.

Symington soon tired of Trinidad and asked Kalmbach for a European post (first choice: Spain), promising additional contributions of $100,000. He met with Flanigan in June 1970, writing him afterward he felt "very encouraged that I have your interest and understanding concerning the future."

Flanigan did block a European post for Symington ("a personality thing," Kalmbach testified). But the new evidence scarcely shows him a disinterested party. Flanigan met with Symington on July 9 and July 13, in 1971. Finally, on Sept. 4, he offered

Managerial Traits Identified

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — In 1969 Montgomery Ward & Co. sought to develop a personality profile of individuals with the potential to become store managers. It hired a consultant to make the study.

Felix M. Lopez, who was awarded the contract, set out to gather as much information as he could about 450 managers already heading the big concern's retail outlets.

By examining the traits of those who were managers already he believed he could develop a profile of the person most likely to succeed if given a similarly responsible job.

Tests were given the managers, and their biographies were studied. Some 50 personality traits then were correlated with performance, using 27 criteria, such as earnings as a percentage of volume in a particular store.

Now that all the correlations have been completed, Lopez and his associates find that at least four distinct personality types exist among store managers.

The least successful types are the storekeepers and the controllers.

The storekeeper is a friendly person whose inclination is to act as a custodian of the store rather than a developer of business. Lopez found him mainly in the company's smaller outlets. His record was the poorest.

The controller ranks a step above the storekeeper. "He is unimaginative and inflexible. He obtains results, but mainly by persistence and endurance. He learns procedure. He follows the book to the letter; otherwise he's lost."

A very desirable type is what Lopez calls the leader. "He is people-oriented. He knows how to get along with people and the boss," although he might be found lacking in energy and drive.

The most successful of all, Lopez determined, is the entrepreneur, whose personality traits were found among only 15 per cent of the Montgomery Ward store managers.

Entrepreneurs are self-starters, doers, creators. "They didn't get the highest performance rating from their superiors in the Montgomery Ward study," Lopez said. "Some were born rockers."

And even though many entrepreneurs in the study were found to have very high standards they were also found in some instances to be intolerant of other people's weaknesses.

Nevertheless, Lopez called the entrepreneur the store manager most likely to succeed. He recommended that Montgomery Ward hire such types and give them training in human relations.

But he was forced to issue a warning too. The very qualities that make the entrepreneur a productive store manager sometime impel him to seek a business of his own. His quit rate is the highest of all the types.

Placing Armed Guards Jail Two In In Banks Called Unwise Slaying Case

RALEIGH (AP)—State Banking Commissioner Frank L. Harrelson says he feels it would be unwise to put an armed guard or security officer in North Carolina banks to try to curb increasing holdups.

"It would create conditions where there could be shoot-outs," Harrelson said in an interview Sunday. "The safety of the customers and bank personnel comes first with banking officials."

He said, "Employees are under instructions not to take any chances and not to interfere with a robber."

He pointed out that banks have alarm equipment that can be activated easily and discreetly by employees. They also have automatic cameras that can record holdups.

Harrelson said he has no solution for the increasing number of bank robberies in the state.

"Nobody can stop an impulsive robber," he said. "Most holdups are of that type and are by amateurs who are in trouble financially or on drugs. They obviously feel they can get away with it."

Toll Of Ten In N.C. Accidents

By The Associated Press

Weekend traffic accidents in North Carolina claimed ten lives and a Wilmington man lost his life in a wreck in South Carolina.

The Highway Patrol said the deaths pushed the state's traffic fatality toll for the year to 1,364, compared to 1,686 during the corresponding period of last year.

Two persons died in a single-car crash in Greene County. Robert Lee Williams, 24, of Rt. 3, Wilson, and Louis Joyner, 41, of Stantonsburg were killed three miles west of Walstonburg when a car driven by Williams ran off the road and overturned.

Marvin Lynch, 33, of Rt. 4, Zebulon, was killed early Sunday night when his car ran off N.C. 96 one mile north of Zebulon and hit a tree.

Vernon Vannoy, 23, of Taylorsville was killed in a head-on collision on a rural paved road after his car crossed the center line, the patrol said. The accident occurred .6 mile north of they had been disposed of, it might be a new day in American politics.

It is a common place assumption among politicians that a great many votes cast in any election are not cast for someone. Rather, they are cast against someone else.

For example, many disenchanted Democrats cast votes against George McGovern in 1972. But it's doubtful that many were enthusiastic about giving Richard Nixon a second term.

The "Neither One" system would give these voters a chance to make their true feelings known.

It would also force the political parties to start finding nominees of such caliber that people would want to see them in office.

The system would not be without its difficulties, of course. It might take months, or even years, before either party could come up with a candidate the voters would affirm.

That might make it tough to vote the rascals out, since incumbents would probably have to stay in office until successors were elected. That could take a long time.

But it would probably be for the best. After all, we've been told for a long time that two party government is what's best for the state. Why not take it one step further?

That did not end it. "I trust . . . that you and Peter (Flanigan) are working things out," Haldeman wrote Symington Oct. 26, 1971. Symington replied Nov. 13 that "I feel sure that Peter will work things out in accordance with Herb's (Kalmbach) commitment to me." Haldeman's reply of Nov. 19: "Peter Flanigan reports that you had a pleasant and frank meeting on Oct. 12."

Nor does the new evidence show Flanigan blocking de Roulet, a young New York millionaire credited with Republican contributions of $44,500 in 1968 and $103,500 in WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Two Virginians charged with killing a Georgia service station attendant have been jailed in Winston-Salem, police said.

Carolyn Dale Zirkle, 17, of Harrisonburg, Va., and William Clayton Shifflett, 22, of Pen Laird, Va., were arrested Sunday morning without incident at a roadblock. They were held in the Forsyth County Jail without bond.

Police said they had been charged with fatally shooting William "J.C." Webb last Thursday during a robbery attempt at his service station near Commerce, Ga.

Highway patrolman D. R. Wilkerson reported seeing their automobile about 7 a.m. He notified Winston-Salem police, who set up a roadblock and stopped the vehicle.

A third passenger, Barry Formont of Pine Hill, N.J., was released after police verified his story that the two had given him a ride near Jacksonville, Fla. two days after the shooting.

Zirkle and Shifflett were held for a Nov. 27 hearing, police said.

reached in some areas. As a result, the number of applications for new branches declined 75 per cent in the past year.

Harrelson said North Carolina has at least 1,000 state and national branch banks. Noting that many branch banks are in isolated communities, Harrelson said: "An isolated office gives a robber an easier opportunity to make a getaway. At least he thinks he can get away without being apprehended."

Eric Max Hedrick, 23, of Charlotte died when his car left a Charlotte street and hit a bridge and overturned.

James Lee Morgan, 21, of Rt. 8, Shelby, was killed on N.C. 274 about 11 miles west of Lincolnton when a car overturned.

Benjamin Hicks Bail, 23, of Maxton was killed when the car in which he was a passenger overturned on a Scotland County rural road near Laurinburg.

Vandel Blue, Jr., 13, of Rowland was killed when he was struck by a car while he sat in the road near his home, the patrol said.

Harold Gene Helms, 18, of Monroe died when his car went out of control and struck a utility pole eight miles west of Monroe.

Dennis Gene Vanhook, assigned to the New River Marine Air Station, was killed in a head on collision on N.C. 24 near Swannsboro.

In Darlington, S.C., Lonnie Clayton Murphy, 49, of Wilmington was killed early Sunday night when his car collided with a truck on the U.S. 52 Bypass in the city limits.

1972. Becoming ambassador to Jamaica in 1969, de Roulet was named persona non grata by the Jamaican government in 1973 but wanted a European post (first choices: Italy and Spain).

A memo to Haldeman Sept. 24, 1971, from aide Gordon Strachan quotes Kalmbach as saying Flanigan felt Europe impossible for de Roulet but that Mexico or Malta might be "doable." In fact, nothing was "doable" after Jamaica.

Flanigan's role was adroitly summed up to House investigators by Alex Butterfield, a former White House aide: "Flanigan was the mogul of ambassadors."

"The White House needed someone who had contracts with wealthy individuals," said Butterfield, adding that Flanigan "can talk to the Annenbergs (Walter Annenberg, publishing tycoon named ambassador to Britain since 1969) and the Dudley Swims (the late chairman of National Airlines, designated for an ambassadorial plum but never nominated) and convince them they should become ambassadors."

Since the Foreign Relations Committee staff will surely recommend full hearings on Flanigan, the bad old days in the Nixon White House will be exposed again to public view if the President persists in this nomination. That's why influential Republican Senators privately urge Ford to end his blind and costly loyalty to Nixon men who escaped direct contamination by Watergate.

In George Bledsoe's garden, one season lasts thirty years.

We call it the High Yield Forest.

And really it's no different from your garden.

You just can't sow the seeds and hope for the best.

The same is true in the Weyerhaeuser woods of the South. Where care goes on and on. Year after year.

George Bledsoe is typical of our Southern forest engineers.

His assignment in Oklahoma involves planting carefully selected seedlings (21½ million this year alone).

And fertilization to encourage vigorous growth.

And protecting trees from destruction by wildfire, insects and disease.

During harvest at the end of the season (about 20 to 30 years for a Southern pine tree), George has to make sure as much wood fiber as possible goes into lumber, plywood and pulp.

Care like this can more than double our yield in the South.

And that's enough to make any gardener happy.

See George Bledsoe and other tree-growing people. On NFL Monday Night Football and Saturday NCAA Football, ABC-TV.

(NCDA)—North Carolina f.o.b. dock brokers: Market steady with this week's f.o.b. dock weighted average price at 41.42 cents per pound. Demand good, supplies barely adequate to short. Weights mostly desirable. Estimated slaughter today 771,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, seemingly awash in concern over inflation, the recession and the nationwide coal strike, sank sharply in fairly active trading today.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 14.55 at 633.06, and declines overwhelmed advances by 9 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

In auto stocks, General Motors was down 1 1/2% at 31 1/2%, Chrysler lost 1/2 to 8%, and Ford Motor was down 1 1/2% at 30 1/4.

Among the steels, U.S. Steel slipped 1/2 to 37 1/2, Bethlehem was off 1/4 at 25 1/4, and Republic dropped 3/4 to 24 1/4.

S.S. Kresge declined 1 1/2 to 23 1/2 despite the company's report that third-quarter profits rose to 27 cents a share compared with 25 cents in the like period last year.

Occidental Petroleum, the Big Board volume leader, fell 3/4 to 13 1/2.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite common-stock index was down .90 at 37.24.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index slid .93 to 67.83.

Houston Oil & Minerals, the Amex' most-active issue, was down 2 at 25.

Holiday Ending Today

By EDMOND LeBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is returning to business with many lame ducks among its ranks, a pile of unfinished business and more trials of strength with the executive branch.

Both houses convene today, and will shortly be taking a recess for Thanksgiving.

Six veto messages from President Ford await the House. The Democratic leadership plans to attempt congressional overrides on at least the vetoes of amendments to the Freedom of Information Act and of a bill broadening the vocational rehabilitation program.

The override votes tentatively have been set for Wednesday.

The Senate Rules Committee, which did not meet its goal of completing hearings on the Rockefeller nomination last week, resumes its sessions today. The House Judiciary Committee begins its hearings on Rockefeller on Thursday.

Leaders of both chambers say they expect to dispose of the nomination before adjourning some time in late December.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which has been wrestling with tax revision during most of the present Congress' two-year life, goes to work on a slimmed-down package of changes. Committee members are skeptical about how many tax-law amendments can be pushed through to final enactment before all pending legislation dies with this session of Congress.

The package is expected to include higher taxes on oil companies, some relief for low-income persons and perhaps inducements for saving in institutions that finance mortgages.

The Senate takes up a high priority money measure — an $8.6 billion catch-all appropriation bill to finance educational and other programs for the remainder of the fiscal year that ends June 30.

The measure includes $200,000 for transitional expenses for former President Richard M. Nixon. The House approved the figure, cutting it down from the $850,000 recommended by Ford.

Bank Is Bombed

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A blast early today blew a hole in the side of a branch of the Cape Fear Bank and Trust Co.

Investigators said the explosion apparently was caused by a homemade time bomb because batteries and a clock-type spring were found at the scene.

No one was injured in the 3:45 a.m. explosion.

The blast ripped a hole in the west side of the building at an entrance to administrative offices near several drive-in teller windows.

Authorities said burglary did not appear to be the motive, but they were unable to explain the blast.

Considerable damage was done to the exterior wall and to parts of the interior.

The investigation was turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Officials were waiting until daybreak to continue their investigation.

Fills Vacancy In District Courts

RALEIGH (AP)—David Bryan Sentelle of Charlotte was named today by Gov. Jim Holshouser to fill a vacancy on the state's district court bench.

Sentelle, 31, will take office Dec. 2. He will replace Judge William H. Abernathy in the 26th District, Mecklenburg County. Of the two men nominated for the judgeship by the Bar association in the district, Sentelle had the highest number of votes, Holshouser said.

A native of Haywood County, Sentelle was reared in Asheville and earned his bachelor's and law degrees from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Sentelle now is assistant U.S. attorney in Charlotte.

Protection Of Arafat Costly

NEW YORK (AP) — It cost the city of New York $750,000 to protect Yasir Arafat during his stay here last week, says Mayor Abraham D. Beame.

Beame said Sunday the costs included $696,592 for salaries and overtime payments to more than 1,000 police officers. They were taken from precincts to protect the Palestine Liberation Officer leader when he was here last week to address the United Nations.

Continues Bond On Mrs. Connie Branch

NEW BERN — Superior Court Judge Perry Martin continued a $250,000 appearance bond for Mrs. Connie Hardee Branch today following a hearing here on the question of whether the property bonds signed for her release were of sufficient value.

Mrs. Branch, along with Roy

Lee Sullivan of Kinston, were given life and 10-year prison terms in Pitt County Superior Court several weeks ago after being convicted of conspiracy and accessory charges in connection with the March 29 shooting death of Mrs. Branch's husband, Lynwood N. Branch at their home near Greenville.

Mrs. Branch was released on bond several hours after she was sentenced by Judge Martin, while Sullivan has remained in custody — in Central Prison in Raleigh — pending the outcome of the appeal to the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

On a day when the playoff picture was supposed to become a little bit clearer, the National Football League turned into scrambled eggs Sunday.

In one of the least surprising developments of the day, the defending Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins moved into first place in the American Conference East with a nail-biting 35-28 victory over the Buffalo Bills on Don Nottingham's second touchdown run of the game, a 23-yarder on a draw play with 19 seconds to play.

And in one of the most surprising, the Los Angeles Rams failed to lock up the National Conference West title. All they needed was a tie. What they got was their teeth kicked in as New Orleans' Archie Manning needed them with 175 yards worth of precision passing and the Saints also ran for 146 yards en route to the 20-7 shocker.

And Houston's for-real Oilers, who began their winning streak with a 34-21 stunner over Cincinnati a month ago, shut down the Bengals 20-3 with a fierce defense, Dan Pastorini's pinpoint passing and Willie Rodgers' two touchdown runs.

In Sunday's other games, the Green Bay Packers kicked the Minnesota Vikings 19-7, the Jets edged the New England Patriots 21-16, the Baltimore Colts beat the Atlanta Falcons 17-7, the St. Louis Cardinals turned back the Philadelphia Eagles 13-3, the Washington Redskins burned the Dallas Cowboys 28-21, the Pittsburgh Steelers defeated the Cleveland Browns 26-16, the Detroit Lions nipped the New York Giants 20-19, the San Francisco 49ers smothered the Chicago Bears 34-0 and the Oakland Raiders downed the San Diego Chargers 17-10.

The Raiders, with their victory, clinched a tie for the AFC West title and can win it outright tonight—if the Denver Broncos lose to the Kansas City Chiefs.

Dolphins 35, Bills 28
Nottingham's run was only supposed to set up a tie-breaking field goal — but the Miami line blew out Buffalo's defense and gave Nottingham a clear path to the goal line.

Earlier Nottingham ran for 11 yards to put the Dolphins ahead 28-21 with five minutes to play, a lead wiped out with less than a minute to go when Buffalo's reserve quarterback, Gary Marangi, hit Bob Chandler with a five-yard scoring pass.

It appeared headed for overtime — but not for long. Bob Griese passed for 31 yards to Paul Warfield, then Jim Kiick caught a 12-yard pass and ran for 11 more. That put the ball on the 23, where Nottingham took over.

Saints 20, Rams 7

The surprising Saints shut out Los Angeles until James Harris threw a meaningless fourth-quarter touchdown and slammed the door on Lawrence McCutcheon, league-leading rusher who got just 28 yards against New Orleans.

The meaningful touchdowns were Manning's, a 79-yarder to Bob Newland and a 17-yarder to Joel Parker. Bill McClard kicked in with field goals of 28 and 51 yards.

Oilers 20, Bengals 3
The Oilers, wrecking Ken Anderson's passing game, won their fourth straight for the first time in a dozen years and dropped the Bengals 1½ games back of first-place Pittsburgh in the AFC Central Division.

The Houston defense didn't give any touchdowns — and hasn't in 10 straight quarters. Anderson was intercepted twice and sacked six times.

Packers 19, Vikings 7
Chester Marcol kicked four field goals, then John Hadl teamed with MacArthur Lane on a 68-yard touchdown pass play that sealed Green Bay's victory and detoured Minnesota's run toward the NFL Central title.

Jets 21, Patriots 16
Joe Namath passed for two touchdowns — but it was the defense that made the difference for the Jets. New York picked off four Jim Plunkett passes to drop the Patriots two games back of Miami.

Colts 17, Falcons 7
Lydell Mitchell piled up 151 yards on 33 carries, setting up touchdown runs by Marty Domres and Bill Olds to hand the Falcons their second loss and first at home under Coach Marion Campbell.

Cardinals 13, Eagles 3
The Cardinals, staying a game ahead of runnerup Washington in the NFC East, sacked Philadelphia quarterback Roman Gabriel nine times.

Quarterback Jim Hart scored the only touchdown on a one-yard run and kicker Jim Bakken kicked two fourth-quarter field goals.

Redskins 28, Cowboys 21
The Redskins, with a three-touchdown burst in the second period, roared to a 28-0 half-time lead, then held off the Cowboys.

Joe Theismann, substituting for quarterback Billy Kilmer in a running situation, ran in for a three-yard touchdown in the first period. In the second, Charlie Evans ran in from six yards out, Ken Houston raced 58 yards for a touchdown on a punt return and Kilmer hit Roy Jefferson with a 31-yard scoring strike.

Steelers 26, Browns 16
Pittsburgh ended a 10-year Cleveland Stadium jinx by beating the Browns. There were 13 turnovers, the 12th the big one — Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe's fumble midway in the fourth quarter. Joe Greene recovered it for Pittsburgh, then he latered it to J.T. Thomas, who went 14 yards for the touchdown that broke a 16-16 tie.

Lions 20, Giants 19
Errol Mann kicked a 37-yard field goal with two seconds left to beat the Giants. With 1:58 to play, Bill Munson drove Detroit from its own 20 to the New York 20 to set up Mann's winning kick.

49ers 34, Bears 0
Rookie Tom Owen bombed the Bears for 316 yards and two touchdowns and scored on a short run in a three-touchdown San Francisco burst in the second quarter. "Whew, that's not a bad day," he gulped.

Raiders 17, Chargers 10
Quarterback Ken Stabler threw a 60-yard touchdown pass to Cliff Branch and Cas Banasak swept in from the one, then the Raiders withstood San Diego's fourth-quarter comeback attempt for their victory. The Chargers' touchdown came on rookie running back Don Woods' one-yard dive.

Davidson Is Lacking In Backup Strength

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

DAVIDSON — One observer noted earlier this year that Davidson College might have the best starting five in the Southern Conference, but they might be painfully shy in depth.

Coach Bo Brickles, who moved up from the assistantship when Terry Holland moved to Virginia, might tend to agree — but he's not going to let it stand in his way. He wants to win the Southern title, and in his mind, that's the tournament championship.

"The Southern Conference is strong this year," he says. "Furman has helped this. Richmond has made great strides, and East Carolina has some great people. William & Mary has good youth. The rest are also stronger, and it's really going to be competitive."

In the past, Brickles feels, Davidson hasn't approached some of its games as it should. "We are playing a difficult schedule this year, and we've got to be ready for it. We want our people to be in top mental and physical shape and we've set about to try and do this."

Davidson's schedule may be their undoing. They play Ohio State their second time out, then meet Richmond, Princeton and William & Mary on the road. After that there is a date in Charlotte with N.C. State, the defending national champ. Then it's back on the road for Brigham Young, UCLA and Santa Barbara. Others include Notre Dame and St. John's before mid-January.

To prepare for this, Brickles has put his team through an extensive conditioning drill. "We have run a lot, just about every day. We've also worked hard on a weight circuit and an exercise program. I think four things are important; conditioning, attitude, effort and technique. We did all these things prior to really starting practice. In theory we had played a game before we started to practice each day. We were tired in body but not in mind. We've got to get ready to play 25 great games to be as successful as I want to be."

Brickles feels he's got to rely on three main people. They are 6-7 center Larry Herowitz, 6-5 guard Greg Dunn, and 6-1 guard Jay Powell. "They have got to play 36 to 40 minutes a game for us to be successful," Brickles said.

Brickles further spelled out his philosophy by saying that just being in shape wasn't everything. "You have to have momentum. They want to get this to control the rebounds or control the defense or to control the offense — in that order. You also have to be disciplined. Your kids have to be willing to lay it on the line every time out."

Aside from the previously mentioned three, Brickles looks to Shelton Parker, a 6-8 center to play a lot, moving Horowitz to forward. "He's come a long way this fall." Backing him up is Eppa Rixey, at 6-8, who is actually testing Parker for the starting job.

"Powell has been our most pleasant surprise," Brickles said. "He's just out of sight. You won't get the ball up court against him, and he really sparks the offense. He's a great leader."

The other guard position, however, is uncertain. Junior Tom Verlin, 6-3, has looked good offensively, but no on defense. Steve Gadaire, 6-5, might move him out there. One thing Brickles wants to do is to switch Dunn to a forward spot, so one of these two must come through at guard. "We can't play Dunn at guard and win... because he'd have to rest too often. At forward, he can stay out longer."

Two youngsters, sophomore Sam Avery, 6-5, and freshman Kevin Doherty, 6-3, are also looking good, and will provide some of the badly needed backup strength.

"We really thought we were working hard until we looked around at the rest of the conference," Brickles said. "But everyone else is working just as hard. We're just going to have to ask our people to work even harder."

For the year, Brickles feels Furman will be the team to beat during the regular season. "But I expect us to win the tournament."

But is winning the tournament (and getting the NCAA bid) his goal?

"No, sir!" Brickles said. "My goal is to win our 25 games. You don't practice to lose."

INSTANT SUCCESS

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Four seconds remained on the clock and the score between Westchester College and American International College was tied. Sophomore Steve Cook had never tried a field goal in a college game before. But his clutch kick from 38 yards out won the game, 24-21, giving Westchester its sixth straight win of the season.

The three points followed 15 other final-quarter points for the winners. They trailed 14-0 at the half.

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

For those who missed the East Carolina-William & Mary contest in Williamsburg, Va., you missed the opportunity to see the wishbone offense of ECU Coach Pat Dye come to life.

Now we all know that the Pirates have been able to move the ball on the ground; they were ranked 11th in the nation in rushing going into the game.

But their passing game hadn't clicked. And because of this, it made it harder to get the running game going because defenders would simply put 10 men up on the line and leave one to protest against the threat of a pass.

William & Mary found out, however, that they couldn't do this. The Pirates, behind Mike Weaver, found their passing game, and this really made the wishbone work.

"It was a big win for us," Dye said. "We came out to throw regardless and we got some good breaks. They played for us to run, and we took advantage of it."

The Indians opened the game with ten up on the line, but as Weaver began to pick them apart, the secondary and linebackers began to drift back, opening up the way for the running attack, too. It all worked perfectly.

"We didn't block all that well overall, but sometimes you can make it go without it," Dye noted. "We've executed on the running game better at times, but the combination of running and passing was what really helped. This is what the wishbone is supposed to look like."

Defensively, the Bucs had some problems with the tough Indian offense. Led by quarterback Bill Deery, who can run as well as pass, William & Mary picked up 208 yards in offense in the first half. "But we made some adjustments in the second half. We also had some people, like Billy Hibbs, playing in a new position, and it took a little while to get set up." After the Bucs did get their defense rolling, however, the Indians got only 89 yards in total offense the second half, and most of that came in the final period against the second unit.

"I'm proud of the way our team came back," Dye said. "It's a tribute to them and to our staff in the way they got them ready to play. This week, we're going to have to play the same way (against VMI). We're going to play like we were playing for the title, because for sure VMI is." VMI can win the Southern Conference title by beating ECU, otherwise Appalachian State is the champ.

And Dye doesn't feel that if ASU wins it, the best team will have won. "From looking at the films, and from playing all the others, I think VMI is the best team. Then, too, Appalachian didn't play a full schedule. They played only five games, and one of them was against Davidson, and I can't really feel that they're even in the conference in football. They didn't play either VMI or William & Mary, two of the stronger teams."

William & Mary may or may not be in the conference next year. A study group has recommended that the school either upgrade their overall program to become a nationally prominent power, or de-emphasize and drop out of the league.

Athletic Director Ben Carnevale said Saturday that he had been unable to get any kind of drift from both faculty and students. "There are groups who feel one way and other groups who feel the other. I just don't have any idea how it's going to come out," he said. A decision may come Friday when the report is accepted by the college's ruling powers.

And Coach Jim Root said that it is hard for the team to go out and play when it knows that there are facility and students in the stands pulling against them.

Squires Stole 109-108 Victory

By The Associated Press
"We had one foot in the grave," said Virginia Coach Al Bianchi. "We stole the game — no question about it."

Bianchi's Squires were trailing the Memphis Sounds 108-103 with just 15 seconds left to play Sunday night. But two baskets by George Irvine cut the deficit to one, then rookie center David Vaughn sank a bank shot with one second on the clock to give the Squires a 109-108 victory in American Basketball Association action.

"It was just a shot I took because it was there," said Vaughn of his winning basket. "I got a good pass, I was set — and I hit it."

In other ABA games, the Kentucky Colonels defeated the Indiana Pacers 116-103, the Denver Rockets beat the Utah Stars 114-91 and the New York Nets defeated the San Diego Conquistadors 126-109.

Irvine, who led Virginia with 29 points, scored with 14 seconds to play, then took advantage of a turnover and hit another basket to make it 108-107. Memphis took a time out with 10 seconds to go in order to get organized, but it didn't help as the Sounds threw the ball away on their in-bounds pass. Virginia took over and worked the ball to Vaughn for his winning basket.

Rick Mount of Memphis, led all scorers with 32 points.

Appalachian St. May Win On A Fluke

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

Before the season opened, Appalachian State was picked to finish fifth in the Southern Conference football race, but the Mountaineers can't wind up lower than second and Coach Jim Brakefield says "we'll just sit tight and see what happens."

A 14-13 upset Saturday over Richmond's Spiders in their final game gave the Mountaineers a 6-5 over-all record and, more importantly, a 4-1 mark in conference play.

That tied them for the lead with Virginia Military, which had been picked to finish sixth, but the Keydets have a home game left this Saturday with East Carolina's Pirates and can win the championship with a victory.

"We're looking forward to East Carolina," said VMI Coach Bob Thalman after his Keydets boosted their over-all record to 6-4 with a 31-14 non-league victory Saturday over Colgate that assured the school its first winning season since 1967.

Despite a 31-10 romp over William and Mary's Indians in another league scrap, East Carolina—which had won the title the last two years—saw its slim hopes for a three-way share of the crown go down the drain when Appalachian beat Richmond.

The defeat also knocked Richmond out of the race, although the Spiders and East Carolina could tie for second at 4-2 with VMI—if the Pirates beat the Keydets and the Spiders beat William and Mary this weekend. A VMI defeat or tie would give Appalachian the title.

In still another weekend surprise, The Citadel's Bulldogs—picked to finish seventh—climbed to a tie for fifth with Furman at 2-4 by upending the Paladins for the second straight year, this time 24-0, as Andrew Johnson ran 20 times for 149 yards.

Davidson rode three touchdown passes by David Harper to a 28-20 nonleague victory over Defiance, only the second triumph in seven starts for the Wildcats.

"This was a must-win situation for us and we came through, especially on defense, when we had to," said Brakefield of his team's victory. "Our kids have come a long way this season and we are mighty proud."

The Mountaineers used up 7½ minutes in driving 71 yards with the opening kickoff, Jimmy Dobbins going the last yard. Then Richmond went 67 yards with Harry Knight, who hit 15 of 30 passes for 184 yards, throwing 23 yards to Rickey Brown to tie it.

Late in the third period, the Mountaineers used up 5:55 to go 80 yards with Clinton Bradshaw, who had 86 yards on 17 carries, the workhorse. Phil Coccioletti scored from a yard out.

With 1:47 left, John Palazeti bolted five yards to end an 80-yard Richmond drive and it was 14-13.

"I made up my mind early to go for two if we scored," said Coach Jim Tait of Richmond. "We wanted to win. We teach the kids to play to win—not to tie. We were going for the two points and let next week take care of itself."

But Knight rolled out, couldn't find a receiver and was hit short of the goal by Appalachian's David Webb and Quinton McKinney. The Spiders recovered an onside kick, but Terry Carter missed his third field try—from 47 yards—with six seconds left.

Brakefield said "our defense did the job for us there at the end."

East Carolina, which had completed only 15 of 82 passes for 232 yards in nine games, hit seven of 12 for 193 yards against William and Mary, and one was a 74-yard play from Mike Weaver to Theodore Ashford. Kenny Strayhorn ran 11 times for 58 yards and two scores.

"We threw the ball more than than we have all year," admitted Pirate Coach Pat Dye. "We made up our mind last week (a 28-20 loss to Richmond) when we didn't throw until the fourth quarter."

William and Mary Coach Jim

Root, bothered by possible deemphasis of athletics and by four Indian turnovers, said he wasn't surprised by the passing but was surprised "they were as successful as they were. You can't give them good opportunities like we did."

A pass interception preceded the pass play, and another interception and a fumble recovery set up two Pirate scores in the second half.

In The Citadel's victory, Johnson boosted this year's rushing total to 1,266 yards—just 43 short of the league season record—and Furman Coach Art Baker called him "a great back. I think he is the best we have played against. He runs inside, outside and over you."

Baker was more concerned with "a real poor job on our part. They beat us in every phase of the game. I wish there was a reason you could point to why we play sorry sometimes and good at others."

For Bobby Ross, "this was the biggest win I've had at The Citadel and it was no fluke."

We took it to them. I thought we did a very good job executing our offense, and our kids wanted that shutout. This game could turn our program around."

"Ronnie Norman did another tremendous job for us," said Thalman of VMI's senior tailback, who ran 23 times for 173 yards and one score and set a single-season school record with 938 yards. Sophomore tailback Kim Glidewell had 114 yards and three touchdowns.

"We might have seemed more relaxed because lately we have been playing a lot of close games which have been hard to lose," said Thalman as his team ended a two-game losing streak. "It's been very depressing, but we've put that behind us and we want to finish strong and keep winning."

Scoring throws by Harper of 44 yards to Stan Brown, three yards to Gary Pomeroy and 35 yards to Chris Harris helped Davidson build a 28-6 lead and stand off a last quarter Defiance comeback.

Maryland's Terps Bound For Liberty Bowl

By The Associated Press

Maryland, ranked 13th in the nation, has won its first out-and-out Atlantic Coast Conference football championship and apparently will face either Kentucky or Tennessee in the 16th annual Liberty Bowl.

The Terps embarrassed Duke 56-13 Saturday in 28th annual Oyster Bowl in Norfolk, Va. Maryland and Duke shared the ACC title in 1953 and 1955, when both teams were undefeated in league competition but failed to play each other.

Liberty Bowl officials met behind closed doors and emerged Sunday night to announce that the winner of next Saturday's Kentucky-Tennessee game will be invited to oppose Maryland in the Dec. 16 classic at Memphis.

The Terps upped its record to 7-3 overall and 5-0 in the conference in Saturday's game and could close out the regular season with a perfect 6-0 league mark with a victory over Virginia in this week's game at Charlottesville.

Maryland chalked up its largest score in 20 years at the expense of Duke, now 6-4 and 2-3. The Terps scored on their first three possessions, were held twice, and then added two more touchdowns for a 35-7 halftime lead.

Coach Jerry Claiborne's forces came back in the second half and again scored on their first three possessions, running up a 56-7 score with 5:19 remaining in the third stanza.

"I don't think there is that much difference in the two teams," said Claiborne. "Everything seemed to break our way early in the game."

Duke coach Mike McGee said, "It was a game in which we were two steps behind in everything, particularly in the secondary. We made defensive mistakes, kicking errors and passing mistakes."

Duke will close out against arch-rival North Carolina, 6-4 and 3-2, at Chapel Hill Saturday.

In other games Saturday, 16th ranked North Carolina State stepped outside the conference and scored an impressive 35-14 victory over Arizona State. Clemson humbled Virginia, 28-9, while North Carolina overwhelmed Army, 56-42, and Wake Forest lost to South Carolina, 34-21.

North Carolina State, now 9-2 and 4-2, handed the Sun Devils their fourth worst defeat in the 17-year career of coach Frank Kush. Arizona took an early 7-0 lead on a 61-yard march. But the Wolfpack scored on the next two possessions to take the lead and keep it.

The loss spoiled any hopes Arizona State, now 5-3, had of being invited to a post-season bowl.

While in Tempe, Ariz., N.C. State coach Lou Holtz was confronted with the rumor he will be heading for South Carolina immediately after an appearance in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl against Houston on Dec. 23.

Asked by a reporter if a deal had been signed and sealed for him to succeed Paul Dietzel, Holtz said, "I haven't signed anything." Asked if he would be at State next season, he replied, "I can't make any comment on that right now."

But at breakfast early Sunday, Holtz made references to "our (State's) prospects next year" and declared that "these are the guys who are going to lead our team to a national championship."

Q.1—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ108 ♥A876 ♦5 ♣KQ87
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠
 What action do you take?
 A.—Pass. Though you have a better than minimum hand, there is nothing you can do for the moment. Partner did not have the values to raise clubs or respond in diamonds, and the opponents have bid two of your suits. If you remain silent, they might get themselves into hot water.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ87 ♥KQ5 ♦A52 ♣AK2
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠
 What action do you take?
 A.—Bid one no trump. Despite the fact that you hold 20 points in high cards, there is no need for more drastic action. The very fact that you rebid one no trump in the face of partner's pass and bidding from both opponents, shows that you have a hand that is too strong to open one no trump originally.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ8 ♥52 ♦A104342 ♣K87
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South
 1 NT 2 ♥ ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Bid three no trumps. You don't promise a heart stopper with this bid—partner presumably had one for his no trump opening. There is no other bid available, for a bid of three diamonds would be competitive and not forcing, and your hand is much too strong for that.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ42 ♥5 ♦A1093 ♣K876
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South
 1 NT 2 ♥ ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Cue-bid three hearts. Had East not interfered, you would have employed the Stayman Convention to check on partner's major suit holdings. East's overcall has prevented you from doing that. Now, a cue-bid of the opponents' suit asks partner to bid a four-card major if he has one, otherwise to go on to three no trump.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ1042 ♥A87 ♣KJ87 ♦5
 The bidding has proceeded:

North East South
1 ♥ 2 ♦ ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Bid two spades. While you can certainly expect to beat the opponents at two diamonds, a double might not yield adequate recompense. If partner has spade support, your side could easily have a slam, and you should not abandon that possibility without some investigation. You should be safe for game in either three no trump, four hearts or four spades.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQJ987 ♥K1042 ♦KJ ♣5
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ 2 ♣ Dble. Pass 1 ♠
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Two spades. Low-level penalty doubles are usually cooperative, and partner's penalty double is based in part on the expectation of two or three defensive tricks in your hand. He could be sorely disappointed. Although his double tends to deny support for your suit, your spades are good enough to play even opposite a singleton, and should be rebid in preference to showing your heart suit.

Q.7—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J87 ♥AK42 ♦KQJ87 ♣5
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ 2 ♣ Dble. 2 ♣ ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Pass. Give partner the right of way. If he can double two spades, you should collect a handsome penalty. To double or bid in front of partner could be presumptuous, and might turn a positive score into a loss.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ876 ♥53 ♦AK10987
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ 1 ♥ 1 ♠ 2 ♥
 3 ♥ Pass 3 ♣ Pass 3 ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Five spades. In all likelihood, a slam depends on finding partner with a diamond control to prevent the opponents from cashing two quick tricks in the suit. The way to get this message across is to bid over game. Since you took pains to cue-bid the opponent's suit before jumping to five spades, partner should realize that you are not asking about control of their suit, but rather of the unbid suit.

 Gardening Questions

Q. All of my Irish potatoes go to vine. How do I get them to bear? (R.A., Morrisville)
 A. I assume that you are planting a variety adapted to your area. If so, your problem could be too much fertilizer, especially nitrogen. Or, the plants may be growing in too much shade. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

 Q. How can I get rid of a large wisteria without killing the tree that it has covered? (J.T., Randleman)

A. Cut the vine near the base of the tree. Treat the stump with a solution of 2,4-D in the spring before growth starts or if cut in the summer treat immediately after cutting. The dead vine on the tree will probably decay within a few years. (W.M. Lewis, extension agronomist)
 Q. Are there any cuttings that can be rooted in the winter? (Mrs. W.E., Clinton)

A. November thru February are the months to make hardwood cuttings. Use mature wood, the growth formed during the past growing season. Make cuttings about 12 inches long. Cut on a slant just below a stem joint at the bottom. If your garden has good loam that stays moist, you can set hardwood cuttings directly outdoors. If garden soil does not stay moist during spring and summer, place cuttings in a cool spot along north side of house. Set cuttings 10 inches deep, tops up; and 10 inches apart in the row. Pack soil around cuttings. Hardwood cuttings will root in the spring and begin to grow. Use hardwood cuttings when rooting such shrubs as Abelia, Deutzia, Butterfly Bush, Pyracantha, Golden Bell, Nandina, Ligustrum, Hydrangea, Spirea, Chinese and Japanese hollies. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Physical Therapists In ECU Workshop Series

Fifteen physical therapists from hospitals in the Carolinas and Pennsylvania have begun a series of three workshops at the East Carolina University School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

The workshops are part of a traineeship program, "Orthopedic Assessment: Integration between the Classroom and the Clinic in Physical Therapy Education." The objective of the workshops is to establish a basic level of competence in the assessment and management of patients with joint and soft tissue dysfunction of the spine and extremities.

The first workshop in the series was held Nov. 13 and dealt with anatomical review of the spine and extremities and assessment principles regarding soft tissue and joint problems. The second session is scheduled for Jan. 10-12, 1975, and will emphasize assessment of the cervical spine and upper extremity. The third session, March 21-23, will deal with assessment of the lumbar spine and lower extremity.

The workshop series is funded by a grant from the Bureau of Health Resources Development, U.S. Public Health Service.

Workshop sessions are directed by George F. Hamilton, Dennis C. Davis and Mary Susan Templeton, faculty members of the ECU Department of Physical Therapy, and Sandy Burkhardt of the University of West Virginia.

Names of participants and their hospitals follow:
PITT COUNTY, Greenville: Dr. Evelyn McNeil, ECU School of Medicine, and Gloria Sanders, ECU student.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1974
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
There is another upper air disturbance moving through North Carolina. This one promises to give more rain than the one that moved through Sunday.

Shortly before midnight rain spread over some of the mountains sections and by shortly before daybreak it was moving into the Raleigh-Durham area. It appears that most of North Carolina will get some rain out the 60s over most of the state under mostly sunny skies during the afternoon. There were a few upper 50s and low 70s. Wilmington was the warmest reporting point with a high of 71.

The skies remained clear over the eastern part of the state most of the night while there was an increase in cloudiness over the west. The coldest temperatures were in the northeast where the skies stayed clear the longest with lows around the freezing mark last night. Many places actually warmed during the night after the overcast moved in. Temperatures over the west and south portions of the state just before daybreak were in the low to mid 40s.

CollegeTeaches About 'Okies'
SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — "Okies" have received minority stature in a new course offered at Sonoma State College near here.

Students will study the sociology and "contemporary impact" of the drought that devastated Oklahoma in the 1930s and started migration of thousands from the state westward. Part of the course will include researching the history of the "Okies," literature, music and folklore.

Widespread Cutbacks, Layoffs, Closings In N.C.

More Families Failing Make Home Payments

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Families unable to make loan payments are losing their homes at a rapidly increasing rate in the Southeast, officials say.

Repossession of federally financed homes in the eight southeastern states is booming and bankers, loan officials and housing experts say they are concerned.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development says repossessions of Federal Housing Administration financed houses in the region have increased about 20 per cent in the past year.

A spokesman said the figures reflect the economy of several months ago. "You can imagine what the figures will show three months from now," he added.

HUD said there were more than 10,350 FHA repossessed houses in the region to be resold in September. In addition, more than 17,000 families were late in their payments and in danger of losing homes.

The figures indicate that at least 27,350 families are having serious trouble making house payments in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida, South Carolina, Kentucky, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Although bankers prefer not to talk about evictions, a loan official who asked not to be identified, said:

"This is a good indication of the times we are living in. We have not had this before. It is unusual, because these are people who had to put down at least 5 per cent as a down payment."

James Singleton, assistant administrator for housing management in HUD, said he is concerned about the rising number of repossessions.

"The low-income people are being hit the hardest," he said, noting that 73 per cent of FHA houses being repossessed fall in this category.

"Although we are trying to keep these people from losing their homes, more and more of them are falling by the wayside because of the economy," Singleton said.

He said when FHA houses are repossessed, they are repaired and resold by the government at new appraised values. The average price of FHA repossessions in the Southeast last year was $15,000.

"Since September, we're offering more houses for cash, as is, without making repairs, to try to increase the sales," he said. "We want to get the property back on the market faster."

HUD said the average family which lost its home because of default in payments had an income between $4,000 and $6,500, had three children, and the parents worked in laboring or clerical jobs.

By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer

A bleak holiday season faces thousands of North Carolinians in the wake of widespread industrial layoffs, cutbacks and closings.

Unemployed workers like Sylvia Little of Marshville dislike even to talk about the prospects of Christmas for her three children.

"Rough? Are you kidding? I barely had enough gas even to come up here," Mrs. Little recently told an interviewer at the Union County Employment Security Commission office.

She has been out of work since August, when the Spanco Yarns plant at Marshville shut down.

North Carolina unemployment has risen by nearly five per cent in the last two months and the textile industry alone has hit a 14-year high — 6.9 per cent.

A similar, but somewhat smaller, jump in over-all employment is indicated in reports to be released this week by the state Department of Labor and the Employment Security Commission. And spokesmen for both agencies say a reversal is unlikely in the next few months.

Hardest hit in North Carolina are the textile, furniture, construction and automobile sales industries, according to Lewis R. Holding, president of First Citizens Bank and Trust Co.

Holding told a state legislative study commission last week that "They're already worse off now than they have been in any of the five previous recessionary periods" since 1951.

"Not having been working during the 1930s, it seems like a depression to me," Holding said.

The legislative hearing produced the following reports:

—More than 30,000 North Carolinians have been taken off manufacturing payrolls so far this year, a greater number than was cut during the 1967 and 1970 recessions.

—Plant closings and layoffs in the textile industry have reduced income from jobs by $10 million annually.

—Retail sales volume is off by 5 per cent, thereby reducing state revenues through corporate income and sales taxes.

"It's getting bad, and it's not a seasonal thing. The majority now are temporary layoffs but, when plants start shutting down for a week at a time, it would be easy for it to become a permanent thing," said Ann Yelvington, research director for the Labor Department.

The next seven weeks could be the hardest of all. Several major textile firms already have announced plans to shut down production during all or part of Thanksgiving week or Christmas week. Some will close both weeks.

The Employment Security

Commission said that more than 17,000 textile employees had filed claims for unemployment insurance benefits for the week ending Nov. 9. Estimates of the number of persons affected by cutbacks in the textile industry range from 15,000 to 30,000.

But on the brighter side, spokesmen for the American Textile Manufacturers Institute have indicated they believe relief for the industry may come by next summer.

And president Jim Martin of Textiles Inc. in Gaston County said, "Being an optimist, I feel things are going to be all right. It's going to be a little sluggish for a while, but I have confidence in the future. I'm talking about the next 12 months."

School Inaugurated Read-For-Fun Plan

NEWTON, N. C. (AP) — Children leaving Balls Creek Elementary School know what it means to read. For one thing, that's the only way you can board the bus to go home.

The requirement that you have a reading book in hand before climbing on the bus is part of a special program started this month at Balls Creek, a rural school six miles southeast of Newton.

At 10 a. m. each day, the program really comes alive. A bell rings and, for the next 25 minutes, the 700 pupils, the principal, his secretary, teachers and the custodian all grab a book for fun reading.

Principal Charles R. Estep, who said the program was developed from similar projects being tried at some other schools, is designed to stimulate pupil interest in reading.

The idea is simple: Let the children read what they want, and have plenty of books of all types — there are 2,000 at Balls Creek — on hand to supply those desires.

Balls Creek has added an incentive program for its readers. You get a pencil for five books read, a T-shirt with a reading club patch for 75 books and a jacket for the pupil who reads the most in each class.

The books are available on shelves and racks spread throughout the school, primarily in the corridors. This way a pupil can walk by, see a book he likes and, without missing a stride, pick it up and be on his way.

Estep admits there are some problems. Some pupils may only read half of a book, or say they have read a book that they haven't touched.

But, he said, "The important thing is that the students are reading, and you have to learn to read by reading."

Incident Helped Stripper's Pay

BOSTON (AP) — Annabel Battistella has parlayed the Tidal Basin incident into a more lucrative career as a stripper.

The 38-year-old Argentinian, who police pulled out of the Tidal Basin in Washington after she jumped out of a car carrying Rep. Wilbur Mills, opens tonight at Boston's Pilgrim Theatre under her stage name, Fanne Fox.

She'll be making $3,500 a week. And she'll be billed as "The Washington Tidal Basin Bombshell."

Death Penalty For Tar Heel

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — A North Carolina prison escapee has been sentenced to die for the murder of an Oklahoma City policeman.

Michael Wayne Green, 31, of Charlotte, received the mandatory sentence after being found guilty of murder last week in the fatal shooting of officer James D. Chamblin, 31, at a tavern in Oklahoma City.

Green escaped March 4 near Lexington, N.C. while being transported from Central Prison in Raleigh, N.C. to Gastonia where he was to testify in a trial.

FILTHY RICH—Workmen operate an oil rig in Mexico where oil hunters are fanning out, spurred on by dreams of the sudden or fabulous wealth petroleum can bring poor nations. Mexico nationalized foreign oil interests in 1938 and has made it clear that it plans to develop new discoveries without outside help. New finds just south of the Rio Grande in Baha California could, according to the Mexican government, bring Mexico into the ranks of the world's major petroleum exporters. (AP Wirephoto)

IS DOUBLE CROPPING FOR YOU? The following information may help you decide, or if you're already decided to try it, it can help you do a better job.

Although it's late, you can still plant wheat but try to get it seeded by December 1. Planting this late, you should increase the seeding rate to 2 bushels per acre.

In a double cropping system using wheat, it is important that you plant an early maturing variety. Holley is the only early variety tested in recent trials. It yields good but winter hardness is rated poor. McNair 701 is a medium early variety with good yields and good winter hardness. Abe, Arthur 71, Blueboy II, McNair 1813, Coker 68-15, McNair 1587, and Oasis are medium maturing varieties. McNair 4823 is classified as late maturing.

According to Dr. John Clapp, Extension specialist at N. C. State University, the following practices are necessary for successful double cropping:

1. Be Timely. Harvest the small grain as early as possible and be ready to plant the soybean crop. (On-the-farm grain drying storage or access to a commercial service is essential.)
2. Apply all the phosphorous and potash needed for both crops to the small grain.
3. Use a straw shredder or the combine and the no-tillage system. (No-tillage helps conserve the limited moisture usually available in early summer.)
4. Follow a good weed control program and plant beans in narrow rows. (20 inches seems to be a practical width in no-tillage planting. This spacing shortens the time between planting and complete shading of the ground to retard weeds, conserve moisture and reduce soil temperatures.)
5. Plant good seed of a soybean variety that is best suited for your farm. A late maturing variety should be used, but it should mature before the average first frost date (Nov. 15 in Pitt County).

Budgets prepared by Extension Farm management and agronomy specialists are a guide to what may be expected with double cropping.

Crop	Yield	Price	Value
Wheat & Soybeans	50 bu-A	$3.00-bu.	$150.00
	25 bu-A	4.50-bu.	112.50
Total receipts			$262.50
Total operating cost (for both crops) (using expected cost of production inputs for 1975)			$142.83
Capital and ownership cost (Taxes, insurance, depreciation and interest)			28.71
Labor cost 5.066 hrs. at 2.30-hr.			11.65
Total Cost			$183.19
Net to land, overhead, risk and management			$79.31

This budget is simply a guide which uses an assumed level of production, prices, and cost of inputs. You should develop your own budget based upon your particular situation.

As with any enterprise, double cropping should be compared with the alternatives. In this case, full season corn or full season soybeans should be considered. Another major consideration is how does this enterprise fit into your total farm program. Remember that timing is critical especially the days between harvest of small grain and planting of soybeans.
