Near 100 Die In First 747 Crash

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A German jumbo jetliner crashed and burned today on take off from Nairobi airport in the first fatal plunge of a Boeing 747. Officials reported heavy loss of life.

Kenya's Communications Minister Omolo Okero said 97 bodies had been counted in the smoldering wreckage of the Lufthansa jet. He said there were 50 to 60 survivors, seven of whom were hospitalized while others were taken to a Nairobi hotel.

Other reports gave varying numbers of survivors and no firm toll was immediately available. Lufthansa said the jet was about half full, with 140 passengers and 17 crew members aboard.

Witnesses said the plane apparently lost power shortly after take off on the final leg of a Frankfurt to Johannesburg, South Africa, flight and its tail section struck an embankment, breaking the plane into a dozen pieces.

A policeman said the Lufthansa pilot emerged from the cockpit saying: "It has happened." He said a stewardess in shock kept tearing her hair and screaming. Official sources said five members of the crew survived, including the pilot and copilot.

Associated Press reporter Alfred Araujo said the smell of burned flesh hung heavy over the crumpled fuselage. He said money, letters, handbags, dolls and human limbs were scattered on the muddy plain, spewed from the wreckage.

R. S. Virdee, a Lufthansa employe who saw the crash, said, "The plane reached an altitude of not more than 200 feet when it appeared to lose altitude. It started sinking and fell to the ground.

"It hit a large embankment and went plowing through the field. The tail section came apart and burst into flames. The rest of the plane was totally disintegrated."

A survivor, 36-year-old Horst Hackbadth of Cape Town, South Africa, said he was sitting in the middle section.

"The plane started to drop," Hackbadth said. "It then just fell to the ground. I really don't know what happened next. The next thing I knew I was lying in the grass in the field."

The West German Foreign Ministry said its embassy in Nairobi reported that 30 of the survivors were unhurt. Lufthansa's Cologne headquarters said it had received word that 44 survived and hoped more survivors would be reported.

A Lufthansa official in Johannesburg said there were 90 survivors, 70 of them uninjured.

There have been a number of minor incidents involving the 747, but today's disaster was the first major crash of the giant plane.

Retaliation By Israel Awaited

By The Associated Press

Israel and the Palestinian guerrillas traded threats of new attacks on each other in the wake of the terrorist suicide raid on the Israeli town of Beit Shean in which four Israelis and the three Arab raiders died.

"We are determined to remove the guerrilla policy with force wherever and whenever we can find the terrorists ... in Israel, in the Arab states and all over the world," Israeli Information Minister Aharon Yariv told a news conference in Jerusalem.

The Marxist Popular Democratic Front, which announced in Damascus that it was responsible for the raid on Beit Shean, said it would continue to attack "where the enemy least expects until Israel recognizes our rights and existence, and until a secular democratic Palestine state is established."

"We still hold the olive branch," said a spokesman for the guerrilla group, "but we find it inevitable to use the rifle which we also hold with the other hand."

Israeli gunboats were reported cruising off the coast of southern Lebanon, where they have made two attacks in the past three weeks. The Lebanese Defense Ministry put its army on the alert, and the Palestinian gerrillas throughout Lebanon were also alerted.

"The casualties of Beit Shean are an example of the peace and harmony projected for this country by Arafat and his band of killers," said an Israeli spokesman.

But a PLO spokesman at the United Nations said he felt no embarrassment because of the raid. He said the fact that the Israeli troops did not negotiate with the guerrillas before storming the apartment building they had seized proved Israel's "addiction to violence," and the raid should be an embarrassment to Israel.

He also expressed the PLO's "deep sense of sorrow for the innocent victims who fell in the crossfire after Israeli authorities decided to storm the building."

The U.S. State Department condemned the "tragic spectacle of a terrorist attack on innocent civilians."

Resignation By Chairman

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Hospital Board Chairman Ed N. Warren submitted his resignation to the Board last night, as he must do in order to assume his elected office of County Commissioner.

Woodrow Wooten, a former chairman and long-time Board member, will fill out the remainder of Warren's term, which expires in March, 1975. As Board chairman, Wooten will automatically be a member of the Gifts and Building Committees. The County Commissioners will appoint a new Board member.

Site Engineer Ralph Hall reported on the exceptionally good progress made on the construction of the new Pitt Memorial Hospital this past month. He said there are only 65 of the 980 foundations to be done, and that the steel work for one nursing tower is complete, with the other expected to be done by the end of this week. The north wing's steel work and roof is completed and floors should be poured soon. This done, work can be continued here even if the weather is bad. Most of the drainage and curb and gutter work has been done. Some $3 million has been paid out, with the contractors storing much material in order to beat inflation. He showed slides and invited the Board members to visit the site or the Building Committee, which meets each Wednesday at lunch.

Hospital Administrator Jack Richardson said there is a possibility of the Service League's contracting with Bus Terminal Restaurants to operate the hospital snack shop for much longer hours, a matter in which the hospital employees have been quite interested. If the Service League gives up its volunteer work in the snack shop, they will devote more time to actual patient services, Richardson said leaders of the organization have indicated.

Dr. Al Ferguson presented the Board with tentative plans for the Kidney Transplant Center here. Any hospital which has neurologists and thus attracts a large number of serious accidental injuries is ideal for such a center, he said, because young otherwise healthy persons are the best potential donors of kidneys. Kidney transplants are badly needed. There are more than 300 people in North Carolina right now living only because they are dialyzed several times a week. This procedure is expensive and hampering to the patient, and living with a transplanted kidney would be much preferred. "It's just a shame to put two perfectly good kidneys in the ground when there are living people needing them so much," he said.

The hospital is investigating several possibilities for improved emergency room coverage, Richardson said, including the Robert Wood Johnson grant to be given to several hospitals in the nation next year.

The Board approved the turning over of data to the Northeastern North Carolina Medical Peer Review Organization, as was suggested by Dr. John Wooten, chairman of the medical staff. "We doctors don't all like it, he said, but it's the law, so it's best to go along," he said.

Cooperating In Oil Pinch

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — President Ford and Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka agreed today on the need to enhance cooperation among the oil-consuming nations while seeking to maintain harmony in their relations with the oil-exporting countries.

In a joint communique issued after two days of talks between Ford and top Japanese officials, the President and the prime minister said:

"The United States and Japan recognize the need for a more efficient and rational utilization and distribution of world resources. Realizing the importance of stable supplies of energy at reasonable prices, they will seek, in a manner suitable to their economies, to expand and diversify energy supplies, develop new energy sources and conserve on the use of scarce fuels."

The communique said that both countries "attach great importance to enhancing cooperation among consuming countries, and they intend, in concert with other nations, to pursue harmonious relations with producing nations. Both countries agree that further international cooperative efforts are necessary to forestall an economic and financial crisis."

The pledge of cooperative action appeared to represent a concession by the Japanese, who are 99 per cent dependent on imported oil and in the past seemed ready to go it alone in dealing with the Arab nations.

But the communique stopped far short of Japanese acceptance of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's proposal last week that Japan, the United States, Canada and Western Europe forge a common front before dealing with the oil-exporting countries on price and supply questions.

The communique also declared that Japan and the United States "remain committed to their international pledges to avoid actions which adversely affect the economies of other nations.

Sidestepping the touchy politicaw question here of U.S. Navy ships visiting Japanese ports without unloading their nuclear weapons, the communique said:

"The United States and Japan recognize the need for dedicated efforts by all countries to pursue additional arms limitation and arms reduction measures, in particular controls over nuclear armaments ..."

One of Ford's major objectives in his meeting with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in Vladivostok later this week will be to clear the way for progress in American-Soviet arms limitation negotiations.

Ford flies to the ancient imperial capital of Kyoto on Thursday and will fly from there to Seoul, South Korea, Friday for a day's stay before going to Vladivostok.

After a final morning meeting with Tanaka and other senior Japanese officials, Ford addressed the Japanese people in a nationally televised address at a luncheon sponsored by the Japan National Press Club.

The President said he sees the United States and Japan as "permanent friends" who must work together to help solve the world's economic ills and preserve peace.

Reunion For Son

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 16-year-old Filipino youth who was sent to the United States after his father held the Philippine ambassador at gunpoint was reunited with his family today.

Appearing tired but calm, Napoleon Lechoco Jr. was embraced by his mother at suburban Dulles International Airport as he completed a 10,000-mile trip across the Pacific.

"I'm very happy to be here," the teen-ager said. His mother, saying "My son is so tired," put her arm around him and led him to a waiting car. An attorney for the family said they would try to have the boy see his father as soon as possible.

The boy's father threw down his gun and surrendered to police early Tuesday at the Philippine Embassy chancery after Manila authorities agreed to send the youth to his family.

NEEDS BUSINESS ADVICE

I would like to open a clothing shop for teenagers. My father would build the building for me, but I need capital to stock it. J.R.S.

Hotline can't give business advice. However, we would direct you to the Small Business Administration. Mrs. Angelene Venters, clerk in the Greenville office, said you should come to the SBA if you have first tried to obtain a loan from your banker or another private source. The SBA provides loans for construction, expansion, and conversion of small businesses and can give you invaluable advice on running what appears to be your first business venture. The SBA Office is at 319 S. Evans Street, Greenville; phone, 752-3798. Good luck.

HOLDING BAD CHECK

I took a check which turned out to be bad from a woman from Edenton. My boss has taken the amount out of my pay. Is there any way I can collect myself, without its costing so much? H.S.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said to come down and swear out a warrant for the person, and it will be served on her by the sheriff of her county. She will have to pay all the costs in addition to reimbursing you.

HOW MUCH AND WHEN?

I am a married veteran with two children enrolled in Shaw University at the "Seminary without Walls." I've sent my enrollment certification to the Veterans' Administration, but have heard nothing. I'm wondering how much my benefits will be and when they will started. Rev. R. A.

Hotline learned from local Veterans' Representative Ron Brown that Charles P. Greyer is the Veterans' Rep for Shaw and several other Raleigh area educational institutions. We gave you the day and hours he will be at Shaw and where he'll be other days, plus phone numbers for each place. He should be able to find out about your VA benefits quickly.

Greyhound Lines Still On Leash

By the Associated Press

Drivers and other employes were reported waiting today for Greyhound Bus Lines to initiate another round of talks in Phoenix, Ariz., aimed at settling a three-day nationwide walkout.

Meanwhile, travelers struggled to find other means of transportation. Adding to the congestion was the throng of college students preparing to go home for the Thanksgiving holidays.

Greyhound and its 16,000 employes who belong to the AFL-CIO Amalgamated Transit Union have met sporadically since the strike began, at the urging of federal mediator Guy Parent. However, no progress was reported after the latest session, a 2½-hour meeting Tuesday.

The strike began Monday after negotiators failed to produce a new contract to replace the one that expired Oct. 31.

The union has demanded an 18-month contract providing a 60-cent hourly wage increase to drivers now making about $5.76 an hour.

Greyhound has offered a 30-month contract, a union spokesman said.

Continental Trailways bus lines and Amtrak were honoring Greyhound tickets and said adequate transportation would be available during the holidays. Some airlines reported increased demands for reservations.

In Los Angeles, a Trailways spokesman said business had "practically doubled." Some passengers delays were reported but no cases of anyone's being stranded.

In Seattle, an Amtrak spokesman said it was getting a few more passengers, "but not enough to give you a percentage."

In Washington, Amtrak, whose Washington-New York-Boston high-speed run is extremely popular, said its requests for reservations was heavier than usual, with 65,000 coming in on Tuesday.

Buddy Poppy Report Given

A report on the Buddy Poppy sale was given at the meeting of the VFW Auxiliary Thursday night. Mrs. Merle Austin, chairman of the sale, gave the report.

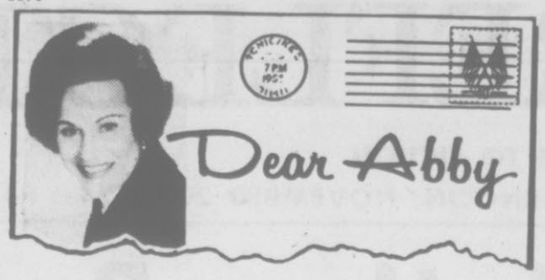

Mrs. Hattie Manning told of the birthday party held recently at the Veterans Hospital, Fayeteville. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Leon Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Oakley, Elbert Bullock, Marjorie Angstadt, Carrie West and Hattie Manning.

A donation fund is sent to the Veterans Hospital, Fayetteville, to be used by a patient in case of an emergency. Dolls were dressed by members and gifts and donations will be sent to the children at O'Berry Center for Christmas.

The Post and Auxiliary members will hold their Christmas party Friday night, Dec. 13, at the Post Home.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Ruth Evans, Mrs. Maggie McLawhorn, Mrs. Sallie Musselwhite and Mrs. Doris Oakley.

Some Men Like To Gamble

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this open letter to a nosy man: Today I got into an elevator in a large building where I work. An old man (in his 50's) was on the elevator when I got on.

He smiled at me and asked, "Is that red hair natural?"

I was stunned. All I could think of to say was, "That's none of your business."

He replied, "I'm sorry. I was just trying to be friendly."

Abby, if a man wants to start a conversation with a total stranger, he should comment on the weather, local sports, or something less personal than whether a girl's hair color is natural.

Please tell men who want to be friendly in elevators to use some common sense. UNFRIENDLY IN PHILLY

DEAR UN: Natural red-heads would have been pleased and answered, yes. Dyed red-heads would have been annoyed. "Old men" who ask such questions can expect to lose some and win some. And some men "in their 50's" like to gamble.

DEAR ABBY: Here's my story: Career girl, age 44, marries man same age. First marriage for both. Girl owns beautiful home and earns twice as much as man.

On wedding night, husband watches old movies on TV until bride falls asleep. After one year, bride still a virgin!

Nobody would believe it, but it's true. He has absolutely no interest in me as a woman. But he must have an interest in sex because he never misses an X-rated movie. He can see the same one three times. Figure that one out!

I pay all the bills, including taxes, insurance, groceries and clothes for both of us. Trips, too. (We went to Europe in July.) He has a job but I never see a dime of his money. I even cut his hair, and when we go anywhere I drive because he's too "tired."

Today is our first wedding anniversary and he forgot it. I don't know what I ever saw in this man. He is a big nothing. My problem is I can't seem to bring myself to tell him that we don't have a marriage so he should clear out. Can you help me? GUTLESS IN N.Y.

DEAR GUTLESS: If you are waiting for someone to say, "Unload the bum," I'll volunteer. And if he's still around when the snow flies, face it, you're either awfully lonesome or you desperately need to "do" for somebody.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THE QUIET ONE" IN K.C.: Don't ever feel that you must apologize for being quiet. Look at it this way: There's no point in talking unless you can improve the silence.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Churchill celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary Sunday afternoon at a reception at the Hooker Memorial Christian fellowship building.

Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. James Churchill and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis E. May.

Mrs. Churchill wore a blue dress complimented with a corsage of red roses.

The refreshment table was covered with a white linen and lace cloth. The centerpiece was white chrysanthemums flanked with four white candles, white bells and silver ribbons.

The tiered cake was served by Mrs. Fran Churchill after the honored couple cut the first slice. Mrs. Hazel Coggins poured punch.

Mrs. Margaret Roberts and Mrs. Barbara Jean Williamson displayed gifts. Mrs. Annie May and Mrs. Gail Barrow assisted in serving.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bond said the good-byes and Mr. and Mrs. Mac Churchill presided at the guest register.

Substantial Tax Cut Dimming

More and more the thought of any substantial tax cuts for North Carolinians in 1975 seems to be fading away.

Each time the Legislature has met in recent years the reducing of taxes has been proposed. It was done, however, with a backdrop of a huge surplus and prospects for continuing increases in state revenues.

This year, though, it is becoming obvious that the surplus is not going to be so huge and the outlook for increasing revenues is clouded by the economic picture.

The state revenue increase is slowing down as industry powers down in face of a national recession. James C. Green, D-Bladen, who is expected to be the House speaker sees the state budget as the major legislative issue. This is not unusual, of course. It always is, but this time the restrained revenue outlook will cause additional concern.

In light of the economic outlook Green doesn't feel that the tax cut proposals will be a major issue. Rather it will be a question of meeting needs with present revenues.

Still Green thinks there will be enough to provide cost of living increases for teachers and state employees.

He wants the Legislature to look for appropriations requests that don't need to be spent."

Well, we hope that the Legislature will take a hard look at all expenditures in the upcoming session to cut out any fat and waste. In these recessionary times, most businesses are having to review their spending to eliminate extravagances and most families are having to do the same thing. We who pay the taxes have every right to expect government to look for waste and extravagance during these times so that government spending can be held in check.

Textbooks Do Shape Lives

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—A committee of citizens is looking into school textbooks in North Carolina with an eye to insuring a more honest education for the students.

Called the Ad-Hoc Committee for the Improvement of the North Carolina Textbook Process, the group is zeroing in on the fact that students spend 75 per cent of their school time with textbooks—and that will shape a lot of ideas and opinions throughout life.

Helen Pratt of the N.C. League of Women Voters, and John Hawes, director of the Learning Institute of North Carolina, are jointly chairing the study group.

Represented on the committee are the N.C. Association of Educators, the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the AFL-CIO, and the National Organization of Women.

Changes Studied

Plans are now being hammered out for any proposed changes in the state law on selection of textbooks, with sentiment running strongly toward more participation in that process by parents, teachers, and minority groups including women, Negroes, and Indians.

The state currently spends about $9 million yearly on textbooks, with members of a commission appointed by the governor making the selections for elementary schools, and listing recommended books for the upper grades to choose from.

One of the principal areas of concern to the textbook study groups is bias in textbooks.

At a recent seminar, a discussion took place of the different ways in which textbooks in use in North Carolina schools were found to contain bias, which participants believe can mold attitudes and philosophies for the students using them.

The group determined that the many examples of outright bias against blacks, and women, are not nearly so serious a problem as the attitudes which are hidden.

For instance, one committee member noted that history texts invariably credit "great men, great leaders" with solving the numerous problems besetting America along the way. Nowhere do the books appear to credit social involvement by citizens, especially minorities, with bringing about desirable change.

Sit Back

The conclusion is that people should not get involved in working for social change—both because it is undesirable, and ineffective, if the hidden message of the textbooks is believed.

An Indian participant noted that as a native American he is distressed to find most history texts present history of the Indians as though it originated with the coming of the Europeans to this country, omitting any discussion of the Indian nations prior to that time.

As to the treatment given women, several participants traced textbook problems through most of the school grades.

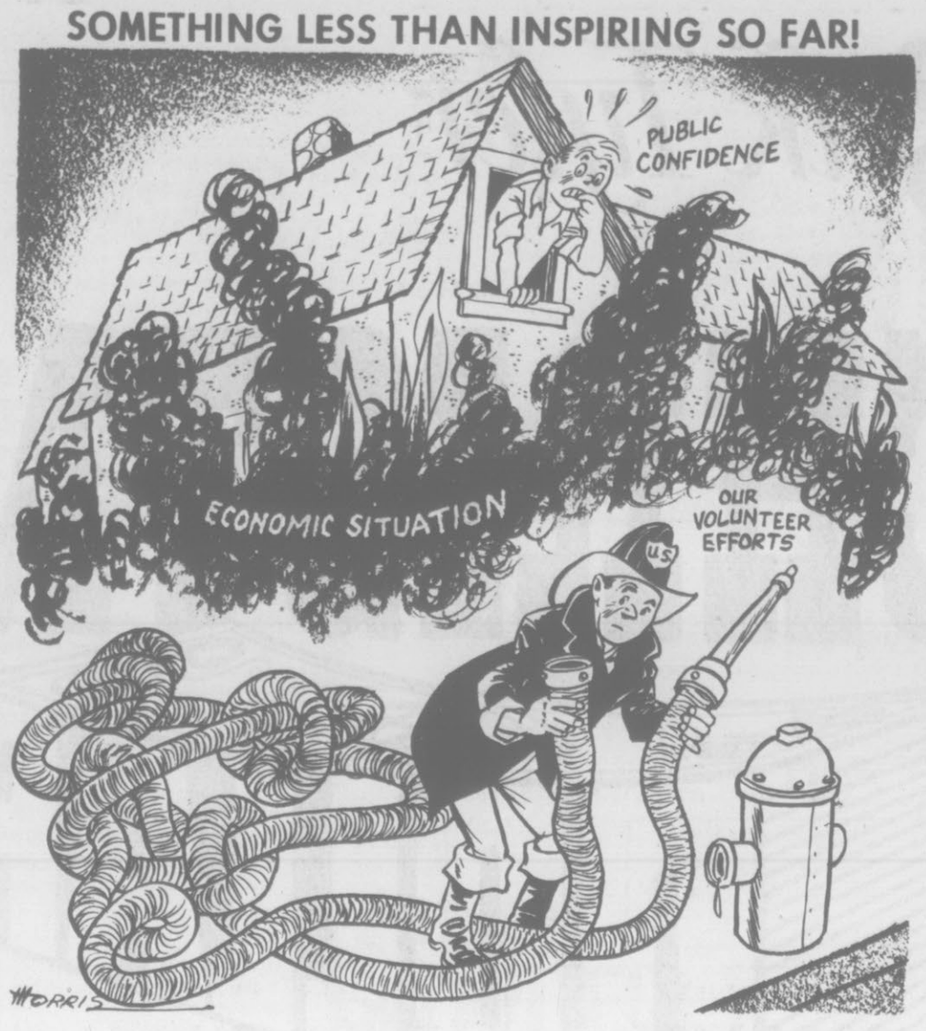

The books invariably show little girls playing "safe" games all dolled up in pretty clothes while the boys have all the fun; boys outnumber girls in pictures; women are usually portrayed as "smiling moms" doling out band-aids and cookies, secretaries, or nurses; and one put it, pointing to pictures in elementary school reads, "even the animals are predominately male."

Other work groups during the recent daylong seminar studied any suggested changes in the selection process, and some system for measuring the effectiveness of books through "learner verification."

While those participating agreed that much progress has been made in improving books in recent years—especially in removing the outright bias often found in older books—much remains to be done in attempting to present a balanced picture of life.

Numerous references were pointed out to show that most history books portray social advances as being the work of white men, and even if women and other minorities were not openly put down in the books, the message still remains that the "great white gods" are given 95 per cent of the credit for human advances.

SOMETHING LESS THAN INSPIRING SO FAR!

Nothing Seems To Help

WASHINGTON — Everywhere I travel in this great land I am asked the same question about the economy: "Why doesn't the government do something?" The answer, as everyone in Washington knows, is that the government doesn't know what to do.

I was talking to my friend Baradash, a high government official, the other day.

"The price of meat should go down next month," he said.

"That's good."

"No, that's bad. If meat goes down, the cattlemen are going to get sore and shoot their calves. You see, they're paying more for everything and getting less for what they sell."

"That's bad," I said.

"It could be good if we could hold the line on meat so wages in other industries would not go up. The real problem is fertilizer. There's a shortage of fertilizer because there is a shortage of oil. Of course. Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates cut the price of their oil last week."

"That's good."

"Not really. At the same time they cut the price of oil they raised taxes on the oil companies, and it may cost us more for oil now than it did before."

"That's bad."

"And when we can't forget the coal strike in this country, can we?"

"You're really a joy to talk to, Baradash."

"Things aren't all that bad," he said. "Interest rates are going down."

"That's good." I brightened up.

"It won't solve our inflation problem, though. If money is easier to get, prices will probably go up again."

"That's bad."

"The important thing is that this country has been consuming too much. We've got to get people to conserve and not spend as if there were no tomorrow."

"It would be a good thing if they did," I agreed.

"It also could be a bad thing. If Americans don't spend as if there were no tomorrow, people will lose their jobs, and then they won't be able to buy new automobiles. If we don't sell any automobiles in this country, we're going to have a real recession, and then we'll have to raise taxes to take care of all the people who are out of work."

"That's bad."

"It could be good if we taxed gasoline because that would be the best way to cut down on our oil imports. If we could cut down on oil imports, we could have a better chance for a favorable balance of trade."

"That would be good," I said.

"It would be, but no one has any money to buy our exports, except possibly food. If we export our food, prices in the supermarkets will go soaring and we'll have a revolution at home."

"Baradash, you represent the government. Isn't there anything you people can do to stave off disaster?"

"Well, I'm wearing my WIN button, aren't I?" he said.

"That's good," I said.

"No," he replied. "That's bad. The damn thing cost me a buck, and it keeps making holes in my suits."

Resume Price Battle

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The battle over meat prices has begun again and consumers can't be blamed for feeling confused over the claims, counter-claims and statistics about where their money is going. What does it all mean?

Farmers are losing money. High grain prices have forced many ranchers to sell their animals at a loss rather than buy expensive feed.

Supermarket profits are up over last year and the Agriculture Department says that for the first nine months of this year, higher markups by middlemen have accounted for 84 per cent of the increase in the annual cost of a marketbasket of food.

The supermarkets traditionally have been reluctant to break down their expenses and profits, department by department. They say it's virtually impossible to allocate things like utility costs to one department or another. They also say they don't want to let competitors know too much about how they operate.

At the same time, however, they claim their meat departments traditionally return a low profit. They argue that labor costs are high — a butcher cutting meat gets a higher salary than a stock room boy stacking cans. One source estimated that 14 per cent of the gross margin on meat goes for labor.

John J. Cairns Jr., vice president for merchandising of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. — A&P — provided a few clues to store profits at a House subcommittee hearing Tuesday in Washington.

He said that gross margin for the meat department for the first nine months of 1974 was 21.89 per cent, the highest since at least 1968. He said that meat department expenses were the highest since 1971 and equaled 19.09 per cent of sales during the second quarter of 1974.

The supermarkets dispute U.S. Department of Agriculture statistics on where the money you spend on beef is going.

The latest department figures, for example, show that

The INSIDE REPORT

Fiasco Of Andrew Gibson

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A nasty little civil war has broken out in the White House between Nixon holdovers and President Ford's personal aides over the fiasco of Andrew Gibson's aborted nomination as Federal Energy Administrator.

The Ford men say failure to spot Gibson's apparent conflict-of-interest before announcing his appointment revealed weaknesses of the Nixon-style staff system adopted by the new President. Nixon holdovers privately claim Mr. Ford never gave the system a chance. But all implicitly agree the root cause was the President's uncharacteristic and intemperate haste in naming a replacement for John Sawhill at the Federal Energy Administration (FEA).

The fault is clearly not Gibson's. He was interviewed by William Walker and Richard Chaney, two trusted aides of chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld. Gibson has told friends these staffers had in hand the essence of his extraordinary $88,000-a-year, 10-year separation agreement from the Interstate Oil Transport Co. after his 16 months' employment; White House sources claim the full extent of the agreement was not known.

But intimate Ford advisers are sure there was more than enough information about Gibson's arrangement for any savvy political hand to know he should never be nominated. The shortcoming of Rumsfeld's staff, they say, is that the Gibson appointment was never considered by those old hands around Mr. Ford.

Not so, say several White House staffers (particularly holdovers). The reason Gibson was not disqualified was because Mr. Ford in his haste short-circuited the staff system, just as he did in the damaging nomination of Peter Flanigan as ambassador to Spain. The President, they say, refused to take time for full staff clearance of either Gibson or Flanigan.

Everyone agrees Mr. Ford was frantic to remove Sawhill because of his public disagreements with administration policy. While tolerant of incompetents in his inherited cabinet, Mr. Ford could not abide one more day of Sawhill.

A footnote: The angry reaction by some presidential aides that Gibson was the victin of "post-Watergate morality" conjures up echoes of the Nixon White House. Even Ford insiders admit that Gibson's deal would have ruled him out for the federal post long before Watergate.

Ford's Western Adviser

Prospects for a new welfare reform being proposed by President Ford in 1975 were not helped by his secret conference with Gov. Ronald Reagan of California in Los Angeles Oct. 30.

Reagan pressed the President not to resurrect the old "Moynihan plan" for welfare — a reference to the 1969 family assistance plan (FAP) promoted by Daniel P. Moynihan, now ambassador to India, as a Nixon aide. Mr. Ford replied that no decision had been taken but that he would keep Reagan's views in mind.

Indeed, with Mrs. Ford eager to appease the party's Reagan-led right wing, Reagan's views could well prove compelling. Reagan would never accept the welfare reform option given Mr. Ford by the Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Department. The President has instructed HEW Secretary Casper Weinberger to draft a more conservative scheme, but influential presidential aides would just as soon forget welfare reform for 1975.

Democrat Wallace

With Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama scheduled to be in Washington last week, an aide telephoned Democratic national chairman Robert Strauss to arrange a meeting between them at Democratic national headquarters — a

The Little League

(Wall Street Journal)

During a recent briefing with Taiwan's economics minister Y. S. Sun, a U.S. journalist waited until the economic, political and diplomatic issues were out of the way before broaching the important question about relations between the two governments: What must America do, he asked, to win the Little League world series?

Mr. Sun appreciated that the question was asked in jest, in recognition of Taiwan's prowess in winning five of the last six Little League world series. Nevertheless, he explained that his Little League countrymen were not necessarily better baseball players. It was just that they have fewer distractions than American children, therefore they are able to concentrate more of their efforts on baseball.

But Little League officials have now decided that U. S. Little League champions can no longer continue losing to foreigners, so they have taken a unique approach to the hazards of competition by barring the Taiwan Little Leaguers from the series. In order for their xenophobia to appear impartial, they have barred other foreign teams as well, which will have the added benefit of precluding teams from Japan and Mexico, each of which won the series twice.

So much for international understanding and fair play. So much also for the American belief that the way to win is simply to work harder than your opponent. The new creed, at least at Little League headquarters in Williamsport, Pa., seems to be if you can't beat them, refuse to play them.

That may spare U. S. Little Leaguers the anguish of defeat, but it seems an odd way to teach the values of sportsmanship and competition that athletics are supposed to impart. If the sponsors stick to their decision not to allow foreign competition, we trust they will at least have the decency not to bill the U.S. playoffs as the "world series."

The Greenville tobacco market will remain open until area tobacco growers have completely disposed of their crop.

Supervisor of sales K. W. Cobb said today that no definite date has been set for the closing of the market and sales will continue.

He advised growers to get their tobacco in shape and to market it as quickly as possible so operations will not be retarded by cold weather.

Only a third of the marketing cards held by Pitt County farmers taking part in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's production control campaign have been turned in to the farm department.

Holders of the cards will receive no benefit payments from the government until the cards have been okayed by the local office.

HALF SOLDIER: HALF CLERGYMAN

Cecil Rhodes, the great British empire builder in Africa during the late nineteenth century, late in life said that as a young man he had intended to become either a soldier or a clergyman. As circumstances ultimately turned out, he became something of both.

Whatever might have been his original intention, the soldier predominated — at least until Rhodes reached the height of his career. Immensely rich and powerful, he at that time professed a contempt for religion.

Then a unique event changed his life. He happened to be riding on a train in Africa with the aged General Booth, founder of the Salvation Army. After Rhodes had made some disparaging remarks about religion, the General got down on his knees in the aisle and prayed fervently for Rhodes' soul. To the surprise of onlookers, Rhodes suddenly joined the old man. When someone asked him why he did this, he said, "I suddenly realized how unhappy I was. I would give anything to possess what General Booth has.

Inflation Hits Ski Vacations

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The snow doesn't cost any more, but the heated pool, ski lift passes and the hot buttered rum are all more expensive.

Skiers with visions of a vacation in the Alps or the Rockies this winter had better check their pocketbooks first. Like everything else, a piece of winter paradise is going up in price.

A New Yorker will find an airline package tour to the old mining town of Aspen, Colo., including round-trip air fare to Denver, inexpensive lodging in Aspen and ski tickets, will cost about $310, up 13 per cent from last year. Transportation between Denver and Aspen costs extra. So does eating.

Should he prefer instead a week in Austria's Kitzbuhel, a package tour that includes air fare, lodging breakfast, and ski pass costs $535, up 30 per cent.

But the skiers aren't the only ones fighting the economic battle. The lodge and restaurant owners are having their problems, too.

"Our costs for breakfast are up about 12 per cent," said Lieselott Nopper, owner of a cozy, 12-bedroom chalet in Gstaad, Switzerland. "For many years we have been able to put some money aside. Now that is over."

Don Ballenger, general manager of the Valhalla and Christiania lodges near the center of Vail, Colo., said his own labor costs have increased 20 to 25 per cent. The cost of chemicals for his heated pool has almost doubled.

"It also used to cost $100 a month to heat the pool. Now it costs $125," he said. "We're dropping the temperature from 82 degrees to 78."

Another lodge owner said toilet paper has increased from $12 a case to $30, a 150-per cent increase.

Despite their own money problems, lodge owners said they're trying to keep their prices down to lure prospective skiers.

"The name of the game is fill it up, not how much can you get for a room," said Peter Cramerus, owner of the Wedel Inn at Vail, where a couple can rent a room for $24 a night, the same as last year.

But at Sun Valley, a deluxe room is up 7 per cent this season. At Snowbird, a suite that sleeps up to four people costs $75 a night, about 5 per cent more than last year. A bedroom for two is $21.

A skier taking one airline's package trip to St. Anton this February will find the cheapest lodging price at $105 per week, up 6 per cent. In Kitzbuhel, a double hotel room with bath that cost $115 per person last February will go up 8 per cent to $124 by this February.

The price of food and drink have gone up worldwide and ski resorts are no exception. Several restaurant owners who cater to skiers in the Rockies estimated their prices will be up 5 to 30 per cent.

Phil Gillis, a bartender in Idaho's Sun Valley, said skiers who want to relax with a cup of hot buttered rum after a day on the slopes may find it costing $1.50 this year, up 20 per cent.

Doubt Raised Two Hostages Are Still Alive

MACON, Ga. (AP)—"We have little hope of finding them alive," says Col. Herman Cofer, state director of public safety, who is leading a 500-man search for a missing Florida trooper and a Delaware man.

State authorities say the two men were abducted by Florida parolee Paul John Knowles, who is charged with two slayings and wanted for questioning in several others.

Meanwhile, Knowles' attorney Sheldon Yavitz of Miami, Fla., was scheduled to appear at a 9 a.m. hearing today in U.S. District Court in Macon. Yavitz was arrested Tuesday after refusing to honor a federal subpoena to turn over a taped diary which his client had given him.

The Georgia State Patrol said it is concentrating its search around Abbeville. The patrol said a service station operator in Abbeville claimed a car with Knowles and two men stopped there for gasoline about 4 p.m. Saturday.

The patrol said it believes the two men were Florida trooper Charles E. Campbell, 35, and Wilmington, Del., businessman James E. Meyer, 29, and that they were being held hostage by Knowles.

Knowles, 28, is charged with murder in two Milledgeville, Ga., slayings earlier this month. He remained in the Bibb County jail in Macon.

The attorney said Knowles would plead innocent in Baldwin Superior Court to the Nov. 6 stabbing and strangulation deaths of Carswell Carr and his 15-year-old daughter, Mandy.

The patrol established a special search command post at Perry, 20 miles south of Macon.

Troopers, game and fish rangers and volunteers all joined in as the search narrowed to a 70-mile strip between Abbeville and Macon.

Until Tuesday afternoon the search extended between Macon and Lakeland, Ga., near the Florida line where a service station attendant said Knowles had stopped with two men sitting upright and motionless in the back seat.

Cofer said that at the Abbeville station, Knowles purchased 13 gallons of gasoline and paid for it with a $10 bill.

Cofer added that Knowles used the missing trooper's credit card to purchase clothing at a Macon department store before the store closed at 9 p.m. Saturday.

Officers said the ex-convict registered at the Ambassador motel in Macon at 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

He was arrested Sunday after ramming a car through a police roadblock and fleeing into the woods near McDonough, in Henry County. The car was rented to Meyer in Florida. Inside, police found the trooper's gunbelt and hat along with Knowles' will.

Investigators said Knowles' will stated that he had sent the tapes to Yavitz. They said it also contained instructions that the tapes not be released until after Knowles' death.

Knowles spent most of Tuesday with his attorney. Yavitz was later issued a subpoena to relinquish the tapes.

After a 30-minute hearing behind closed doors before Judge Wilbur Owens, Yavitz was led away in the custody of U.S. marshals.

Federal officials refused to comment on whether Yavitz had been charged.

"liberal" bastion never before visited by Wallace.

The meeting never took place because Wallace's trip to Washington was cancelled. But the call to Strauss suggested two short-range developments: (1) whatever his long-range intentions, Wallace will now work within the Democratic party rather than go third-party; (2) his warm-and-cold relationship with Strauss is warm again

Wallace watched Strauss on NBC's "Meet the Press" Nov. 3 and was gratified when the chairman flatly said he could support a Democratic ticket with Wallace as President or Vice President — a pledge most Democratic politicians refuse to make. "I would like for Gov. Wallace to stay in our party," said Strauss, again in contrast to many Democrats.

A footnote: Strauss nourished a budding relationship with another powerful Southern Democrat, Rep. Joe Waggoner of Louisiana, by speaking at Waggoner's political rally in Shreveport last week. As a pro-Nixon Congressman, Waggoner was once expected to cross over to the Republicans. But his is now working with Strauss in hopes of a more moderate national Democratic party.

the average price of a pound of beef at the retail level in the week ended Nov. 2 was $1.358, just about the same as in April 1973.

The USDA says the carcass price — the amount the supermarket pays — was 93.3 cents per pound of usable beef during the week ended Nov. 2 and the farm price per pound of usable beef was 81.9 cents.

That works out to a difference of 42.5 cents between the amount the supermarket pays for the meat and the amount it sells it for.

The supermarkets use a different set of figures. A spokesman for Jewel Supermarkets, a Midwestern chain, said that for the first 32 weeks of 1974, the store paid an average of 74 cents a pound for a 600-pound carcass of beef.

He said that carcass included 180 pounds of bone and fat that the store sells to industrial users for about 10 cents per pound.

If you take into account the amount the store sells for 10 cents a pound, the average selling price of the entire carcass is only 92 cents per pound even though you pay more for the actual meat, the Jewell spokesman argued. That works out to a difference of about 18 cents, instead of 42.5 cents.

See Crippling Blow In Nat'l Gas Plan

RALEIGH (AP)—Officials of the State Utilities Commission say North Carolina industry would be dealt a crippling blow under a natural gas distribution plan proposed by the Federal Power Commission for the East Coast.

The state commission has filed an appeal which will be heard Thursday by the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

Marvin Wooten, chairman of the utilities commission, said in an interview that under the FPC plan, Tar Heel industries could be virtually without natural gas between now and next April 15 and businesses could face stiff gas cutbacks.

Gas used for heating homes would not be affected.

Another member of the utilities commission, George Clark, said, "If this FPC plan goes into effect it will be a tragedy for North Carolina."

The plan would mean an overall 43 per cent cutback in the natural gas supplied to North Carolina distributing companies from Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp.

North Carolina received cutbacks averaging 16 per cent last winter and was bracing for a 31 per cent curtailment this winter.

The Tar Heel brick industry, which uses substantial amounts of gas, would be hard hit along with the state's textile industry. and hospitals also would face the possibility of being left without natural gas.

Zoo Money Drive Begun

RALEIGH (AP)—Plans for a $4 million fund-raising campaign for the North Carolina Zoo were outlined at a kick-off meeting Tuesday.

Gov. Jim Holshouser, Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt and more than 30 executives representing the state's largest corporations attended. They heard zoo officials describe the initial 300-acre African section of the unique natural-habitat zoo located near Asheboro.

The goal for corporate contributions in the campaign is $3 million by early January. A general statewide fund drive will begin in early March.

Campaign chairman William R. Henderson of High Point said the $4 million is needed by December 1975 to meet requirements of a challenge $1 million grant offered by the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation.

Boston built the first practical subway in the United States in 1897.

Roughly $16,000 Raised In DU Conservation Role

Waterfowl conservation took another step forward last night as area members of Ducks Unlimited gathered to raise funds in support of the national DU organization.

Attending the Greenville area Ducks Unlimited annual meeting, members joined forces to raise approximately $16,000 in the local chapter's most successful effort to date.

This year's session, held at the Greenville Golf and County Club, was attended by approximately 210 DU members and represented the largest membership gathering recorded by the area organization.

The 1973 meeting, attended by some 150 members, raised roughly $11,000 in support of the non-profit membership organization.

Local sportsmen had an opportunity to bid on a variety of items last night, including several limited edition waterfowl prints, a locally made decoy, an original painting by a Greenville artist, and a special edition commemorative shotgun manufactured for Ducks Unlimited by Remington, in addition to numerous other sports oriented attractions.

Coastal sponsor chairman Dr. Ray Minges recognized the 34 area DU sponsors who pledge a minimum of $200 annually to the work of Ducks Unlimited. Minges told the group that Greenville ranked only behind Greensboro, which has 36 sponsors on record this year, in sponsor total in the state.

Late in the meeting, Minges reported that five more persons had added their names to the local list for a total of 39 sponsors.

Master of Ceremonies Jack Whichard recognized a new group of DU members during the meeting. Young sportsmen 16-years-old and under can now be registered as "Green Wings", Whichard reported, and a large number of the new DU segment was on hand.

Whichard also recognized Greenville members John Farley, Roger Collins, III and Eddie Smith, Jr., who hold DU offices as national trustee, N.C. area vice chairman, and area chairman, respectively. Visiting members were on hand from several towns, including Wilson, Raleigh, Burlington, and Washington.

"Decisions", one of the popular Ducks Unlimited feature films, was shown during the session.

All funds raised locally by DU members are channeled directly into the national Ducks Unlimited pot for continued work aimed at improving waterfowl breeding grounds in the northern regions.

Subsidy Is OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed an $11.8 billion mass transit subsidy bill that could help hold down fares of local transit systems.

The bill, approved Tuesday by a 64-17 vote, would for the first time make federal funds available to subsidize the operations of subways, commuter rail lines and bus systems.

The measure, which is supported by President Ford and most of the nation's mayors, now goes to the House, where a procedural wrangle kept it from coming to the floor earlier in the session.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., principal sponsor of the bill, said a massive federal operating subsidy is essential if many mass transit systems are to avoid bankruptcy.

Another supporter, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said the bill could help New York City save its 35-cent fare. He called the vote "a victory for the big cities of the country ... and a victory that has taken months of work and bipartisan effort to achieve."

The bill would provide $3.9 billion in operating subsidy funds over the 1975-80 period.

The other $7.9 billion in the bill would continue for six years the present mass transit capital grant program. This money can be used to buy buses, rail cars, track and other items to improve transit systems.

The bill earmarks $500 million of the capital grant money for rural areas.

Man Arrested During Break-In

Willie Davis Spellman, 37, of 1705 West 14th St. was charged with breaking and entering after Greenville Police caught the suspect inside the Salvation Army Citadel on Dickinson Ave. last night.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Spellman was taken into custody about 8 p.m. and placed under a $500 bond.

Entrance to the building, Cannon said, was made through a rear door.

Large Turnout Here At Pitt-Greene Ass'n Meet

More than 800 persons attended the annual stockholders meeting of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Assocation held here last night.

North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham was the featured speaker for the session.

Graham, a firm backer of the tobacco stabilization program, emphasized the need for farmers to continue to support the tobacco program.

"Sources of capital will completely dry up if the tobacco quota system is abandoned by the administration," Graham said, emphasizing that, "credit is basic in our economy and a vital tool of the industry of agriculture in North Carolina."

Saying inflation has resulted in increased capital needs of farmers, Graham noted "virtually every segment of the industry of agriculture in the state is operating at or below the break-even point, and our producers have cut costs to the very bone. The only salvation now, is an increase in farm prices."

Graham noted, "credit is necessary to agriculture and it is tied closely to the quota programs for tobacco and peanuts. We must continue to have credit and we must continue to have the support of these programs."

Frank Little, president of the Pitt-Greene PCA reported on the financial status of the organization, saying the PCA is five times larger than it was five years ago.

He noted that the PCA sold over $15 million worth of credit life insurance during the past year and $5.5 million worth of hail insurance.

Total membership of the Pitt-Greene PCA, Little said, is 1,856 members.

David Harold Smith of Ayden and Charles Harper of Snow Hill were re-elected to three-year terms as directors of the organization at last night's session.

Entertainment for the meeting included songs by the Hart Family Singers of Snow Hill and the Green Grass Cloggers and the Flat Land Family Band from Greenville.

Arrest Man On Robbery Charge

Booker T. Darden, 41, of 904 Taylor St. was arrested by Greenville Police yesterday on robbery charges, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

The chief said the charges stemmed from a strong-armed robbery of the In and Out Grocery on North Greene St. October 23, when an estimated $7 in cash was taken from a clerk in the store.

Darden was arrested about 9 a.m. yesterday and bond was set at $1,000.

'Orphan Platoons' Repulse Attacks By Insurgents

By MATT FRANJOLA
Associated Press Writer

KOMPONG SPEU, Cambodia (AP) — The "orphan platoons" defend three mud walled forts and guard a three-quarter mile long section of the defense perimeter of this provincial town 30 miles west of Phnom Penh, the capital.

The 123 boys range in age from 10 to 14. Their families have been killed in the 4½-year-old war between government forces and Communist-led insurgents or remain in Cambodian rebel territory. They are in a volunteer unit supported by the government commander, Brig. Gen. Chantarangsei, a prince and cousin of deposed leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Armed with a varied assortment of vintage World War II weapons and captured insurgent arms, the boy soldiers have repulsed seven insurgent attacks in the past year.

Four of the boys were killed last month when they triggered a mine while going out on an ambush patrol. These have been the only casualties reported.

The company of troops is split into three 40-man platoons based in triangular mud walled defensive posts that measure 50 yards on a side.

Recently outlying patrols of one of the camps has fought skirmishes with insurgent troops whose main line is only a half mile away.

The crackle of gunfire broke out and a few bullets stung the air overhead. The boys, many dressed in dirty shorts, took their bunkerline holes behind machineguns or rifles.

One patrol had run into a rebel squad only 500 yards from one post. The firing died down after a few minutes.

The unit is watched over by 23 older soldiers and three officers. The commander is called "papa" and he calls the troops "my sons".

One boy said, "We don't mind living like this. We have no families and no place to go. The general is the only one who cares for us."

The boys are paid two dollars a month each out of the general's pocket but they are provided a normal soldier's rice and ammunition ration.

General Chantarangsei is attempting to get the troops on the regular army roll so they will be able to draw normal pay. They are defensive forces, not assault troops.

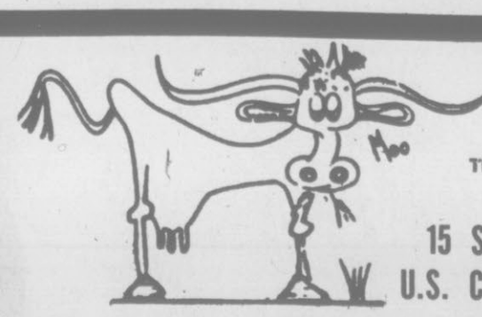

As the war drags on in Cambodia, more young boys are found in line units on both sides. Their fathers and older brothers have already been killed.

As family and society breaks down young boys move into the army which at least provides them with security—identity—a place to belong to—home.

LINEUP FOR INSPECTION—Members of an "orphan platoon" line up for inspection at their mud-walled fort in the province town of Kompong Speu, Cambodia. The platoons consist of 123 boys ranging in age from 10 to 14. (AP Wirephoto)

Building Code For Solar Heat

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — The City Council here is looking to the future for a building code designed for the simplest form of solar heating.

If approved it would require new home builders to equip the structures with light-colored roofs, more windows facing south and natural ventilation using outside air.

It is estimated such energy-saving features could cut $80 to $100 a year from electricity bills.

The proposed building code was based on the studies of a team of researchers from the University of California at Davis.

'Outsiders' Cause Country Music Rift

By CHRISTOPHER CABOT
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—"Our gripe, if we have one, is that these people want to come in and take our music away," said Bill Anderson, in one sentence summing up a week of dissension and controversy in country music.

Anderson and about 50 of the more traditional country music artists are the founders of the Association of Country Entertainers (ACE), formed last week to protest the influx of "these people" into country music.

Chairman Anderson and other ACE members were never really specific about who "these people" were. But one thing was certain, they weren't truly country.

Three days after the ACE was formed last week, two of its members were elected officers of the Country Music Association.

Not that the voices of Porter Wagoner and Tammy Wynette can change the CMA, but their election shows how seriously the music industry regarded to events which led up to ACE's stormy beginning last Tuesday night.

The artists indicated that they were fed up with a series of so called progressive changes in the industry. They weren't happy with where country music was going. And, although few admitted it publicly, some were afraid they were being left behind.

Entertainer Billy Walker expressed the frustrations of a country music stalwart in a world where upstarts and foreigners have the hit songs.

"Country music is a way of life," he said. "Most of us in this group have been in this town (Nashville) for years. We have fought the road to take the music industry where it is today.

"Then others want to take it over...."

By others Walker meant "people from California and the East Coast."

"This used to be a very simple, trustworthy town," he said. "Then these people came in and prostituted our business and watered down our music. This was done by big money on the East and West Coast.

"Now, it's a cliquish, political town."

This year's Country Music Association awards were, as Anderson said, "the straw that broke the camel's back."

Whereas in the past, a goodly share of the top CMA awards went to such unabashedly country entertainers as Johnny Cash, Charley Pride, Loretta Lynn and Roy Clark, two of the top 1974 awards went to artists with major "cross-over" hits.

Charlie Rich, who some say isn't really country, was named entertainer of the year. His recent hits, including "Most Beautiful Girl" and "Behind Closed Doors," were two of the biggest cross over successes ever. Both went to the top of country and pop charts.

Likewise, Australian Olivia Newton-John, CMA female vocalist of the year, crossed from pop into country with her songs, "I Honestly Love You" and "If You Love Me."

This is what stuck in the traditionalists' craw—to win a CMA award you have to be a cross-over artist.

"When Olivia Newton-John has gone on network television, she has denied being a country music artist," Anderson said.

"We'd rather see a Tammy Wynette or a Loretta Lynn or an anybody who would say 'Yes, I'm country.'

"Olivia Newton-John's people have said they don't want her working personal appearances with the likes of Porter Wagoner, Tammy Wynette and George Jones."

The election of Wagoner and Miss Wynette to CMA posts Friday fulfilled Anderson's promise to get "more of a voice for artists in the Country Music Association."

During ACE's first week, the entertainers were not sure what it was they hoped to do, except to define country music as music performed by an artist who says he's country—a move to exclude artists from crossing over from pop and taking country music awards.

CMA officers do not, however, have a voice in CMA policy making, the preserve of the board of directors, which was elected earlier this year. Also, the CMA awards are voted by the organization's 4,000-plus membership. Therefore, ACE can have little effect on who is chosen for awards.

Nevertheless, new CMA president Jerry Bradley, hinted that some big changes may be considered.

"Whoever gives the awards out has got to put themselves in jeopardy, and the CMA is a trade organization," he said. "They're out for the good of RCA, Columbia, all the record labels, all the artists, and all the publishing companies.

"To sum it up, I think the artists did things right. They let the CMA know they were unhappy, and the CMA responded."

RALEIGH (AP)-(NCDA)-North Carolina egg markets were stronger Tuesday. Supplies were barely adequate and demand good.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market leveled off today, with bargain-hunting checking the sharp slide of the past three sessions.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 5-3 margin a few minutes after the opening on the New York Stock Exchange, but the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up a fraction.

Analysts saw little other than internal forces within the market to stimulate buying.

On the negative side, they pointed to reports that sentiment in the United Mine Workers' bargaining council was against approving a tentative contract agreement reached by negotiators last week.

That tended to raise fears of a protracted coal strike with potentially aggravating effects on the nation's already troubled economy.

Today's prices included Frank B. Hall, up ¼ at 11; Cities Service, unchanged at 41; Xerox, down ¼ at 58, and Howard Johnson, steady at 5.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average declined 10.87 to 614.05 — about 30 points above the 12-year closing low it reached Oct. 4.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 4-1 margin on the NYSE in turnover of 15.72 million shares.

The Big Board's composite common-stock index lost .57 to 36.19.

Some Markets Restrict Sugar

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Several Charlotte area supermarkets have begun restricting the amount of sugar customers can purchase.

A spokesman for the Harris-Teeter chain said his stories invoked the limitation because of panic buying by customers, not because there was a shortage.

W. M. Harris, division manager of 82 Winn-Dixie stores in North Carolina and South Carolina, said his chain is restricting sales to one bag, regardless of size, per customer.

"If we can reduce the movement of sugar by making the shipment last longer, we can resist the price increases better," Harris said.

The family will be at the home of Rev. and Mrs. T.L. Byrd on Highway 264 By-pass behind the Evangelistic Tabernacle Church.

Life Prolonged By Emergency Actions

WASHINGTON—An East Carolina University student trainer was credited with prolonging the life of a Washington man last night after he suffered a heart attack.

John Smith later died in the intensive care unit of the Beaufort County Hospital after a series of cardiac arrests.

Smith was officiating the scrimmage of the Washington High School basketball team, which preceeded a scrimmage by the East Carolina basketball squad. At halftime of the first game, Smith collasped in the dressing room.

The ECU coaching staff notified student trainer Kirby Patterson, who came to Smith's aid. According to Rod Compton, Director of Sports Medicine at East Carolina, Smith's heartbeat was irregular when Patterson got to him, and then he quit breathing. Patterson began to administer mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, but then Smith's heart stopped.

Patterson then began external heart massage, and despite two further arrests, he kept Smith alive until the Washington emergency squad arrived and rushed him to the hospital.

Smith died around 2:30 this morning, however, after three more cardiac arrests.

Half-Dozen Wrecks In City Yesterday

A half-dozen traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police yesterday resulted in an estimated $2,850 property damage.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 1:10 p.m. collision on Third Street, 35 feet West of the Harding Street intersection, officers reported.

Cars driven by Sally Lewis Rogers of Charlottesville, Va., and Mable Galloway Turnage of 1007 East Third St. collided there, causing an estimated $350 damage to each of the cars.

Mrs. Rogers was charged with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident.

An estimated $500 damage resulted to a car driven by Bryan Richard Doherty of River Bluff Apts. when the vehicle collided with a tree about 11:55 p.m. on Evans Street, 91 feet South of the Commerce Street intersection.

Doherty was charged with driving under the influence and careless and reckless driving.

No charges were reported following investigation of a 9 p.m. mishap when a car operated by Ted Horace Powell of Hillsborough collided with a tree on Fifth Street, 50 feet West of the Rotary Avenue intersection.

Police set damage to the Powell car at $500.

Christopher Michael Sekeraic of Piney Creek was charged with exceeding a safe speed following investigation of an 11 p.m. collision at the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche Streets.

Investigators said the Sekeraic vehicle collided with a car driven by Dan Fondwell Denton Jr. of 507B Watauga Ave. causing an estimated $300 damage to the Denton car and $250 damage to the Sekeraic vehicle.

Cars driven by Darlene Taylor Buck of Glendale Court and Mary Elizabeth Story of 1900 South Charles St. were involved in a 5:15 p.m. mishap on Cotanche Street, 350 feet East of the Fifth Street intersection.

Police, who estimated damage to the Story car at $175 and set damage to the Buck auto at $200, charged Miss Story with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

David Martin Frye of Kannapolis was charged by police with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 6:04 p.m. collision on Tenth Street, 50 feet West of the Lawrence Street intersection.

Investigators said the Frye car collided with an auto driven by Charlotte Frances Jordan of New Bern, causing an estimated $200 damage to the Jordan car and $25 damage to the Frye auto.

No injuries were reported in the series of wrecks.

Hospital Upheld In Hoke Suit

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A jury of four women and eight men found Tuesday that Presbyterian Hospital did not act improperly in delaying abortionist Harold R. Hoke as a staff physician.

The jury held that the hospital had not caused an unreasonable delay and had not acted unconstitionally.

Dr. Hoke, 48, who established North Carolina's first legal abortion clinic, had sued the hospital contended it had delayed his bid for staff priviledges unconstitionally because the hospital required him to join the county medical society and to obtain a letter of recommendation from an active staff member.

Henkel Again Leads Pirates

WASHINGTON—East Carolina University's basketball Pirates went on public display again last night, holding a scrimmage at the Washington High School gymnasium. The Pam Pack's team also held a scrimmage prior to the Pirates' workout.

During the game, players were interchanged on the two teams, but the Purple took a 69-60 game. Time was not stopped during the contest except for fouls.

Wade Henkel, the Bucs' freshman standout, led the scoring with 18 points, while Tom Marsh finished with 15. Erwin Durden, Greg Ashorn, Al Edwards and Robert Geter all finished the contest with 12 each.

"The scrimmage was not quite as good as our first one (held in New Bern)," Coach Dave Patton said. "Our defense looked fairly good, but we were not quite as sharp with our passing and rebounding."

The workout was the last public display of the Pirates prior to their opening basketball game on Saturday, November 30, in Raleigh against the defending national champion N. C. State Wolfpack.

Wrestling Set At North Pitt

BETHEL — North Pitt High School will play host to a pre-seasonal Invitational Wrestling Tournament on Thursday, involving eight different teams.

The hosting Panthers will entertain New Bern, Wilmington New Hanover, Wilmington Hoggard, Southern Alamance, Farmville Central, Rocky Mount and D. H. Conley.

Southern Alamance was the third place finisher in the state last year, while D. H. Conley has been the defending champion in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

The tournament, to be a double elimination affair, will get underway at 11 a.m. Thursday, with consolation finals set for 7 p.m. The finals will get underway at 8 p.m. Three mats will be used for most of the competition.

Trophies will be awarded to the first and second place teams, and to the Outstanding Wrestler, and the wrestler with the Most Falls in the Least Time. In addition, plaques will be awarded to the winners in each weight class, along with medals for second and third place finishers.

Admission to the tournament will be $1 for adults and 75 cents for students.

Price Right For Milwaukee

By The Associated Press

The Milwaukee Bucks have been paying the price this season for the absence of superstar Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, but Tuesday night they had the right "price" — Jim Price — and made the Phoenix Suns pay for it.

Price, recently acquired in a trade with the Los Angeles Lakers, fired in 43 points, his career high in the National Basketball Association, as the Bucks beat the Suns 122-108 and ended an 11-game losing streak, the longest in their seven-year history.

The shots were falling for the Bucks against Phoenix. The 122 points were their season high and only the second time in 15 games — 13 of them losses — that the Bucks had surpassed the 100-point mark. They had scored 101 in their opening game against Houston.

With Abdul-Jabbar in the lineup the past five years, the Bucks usually had no difficulty in bettering 100 points. But the 7-foot-2 center has not played since suffering a broken hand and a lacerated eye during an exhibition game Oct. 5. He is expected to rejoin the Bucks Thursday night for part-time duty against Kansas City-Omaha.

Elsewhere in the NBA Tuesday night, Buffalo rallied for a 111-106 victory over Golden State, Houston upended Cleveland 94-85, New York edged Washington 86-85, Atlanta trimmed Seattle 122-113, Kansas City-Omaha downed Detroit 97-87, and Portland outlasted Chicago 98-92 in overtime.

In the only American Basketball Association game, Utah topped St. Louis 99-93.

Bob Dandridge, normally a forward, was switched to guard, and added 27 points for the Bucks while holding Phoenix' Dick Van Arsdale to one basket and 10 points. Charlie Scott led Phoenix with 32 points.

Buffalo, in extending its winning streak to eight, a team record, rallied from a 17-point halftime deficit to beat Golden State. Bob McAdoo paced Buffalo with 43 points, 28 in the second half, and 19 rebounds.

Houston stretched its winning string to four and moved within one game of first-place Washington in the Central Division by defeating Cleveland with the help of Mike Newlin's 24 points.

New York, which trailed Washington for more than three quarters, nipped the Bullets on Walt Frazier's layup with one second remaining. Frazier finished with 17 points and a career-high 16 rebounds. Earl Monroe topped New York with 22 points.

Rookie John Drew's 34 points helped Atlanta rally from a 20-point deficit and overtake Seattle.

Kansas City-Omaha used balanced scoring, with Jimmy Walker collecting 23 points, Nate Archibald 22 and Nate Williams 20, in downing Detroit.

Sidney Wicks tallied 25 points and John Johnson 24, lifting Portland — minus injured Bill Walton, its star rookie center — past Chicago for the Trail Blazers' fourth straight victory.

Ron Boone pumped in 30 points and Jim Eakins added 24, sparking Utah's victory over St. Louis. Utah's Moses Malone outscored the Spirits' Marvin Barnes 15-13 in a battle of highly touted rookies, Malone holding Barnes scoreless in the first half.

BIG FAN—No, it's not the world's largest football, but a cement-mixing truck painted to resemble one with the name of the Washington Redskins on it. The Redskins, with a 7-3 record, are the leading contenders for the National Conference's wild-card berth. (AP Wirephoto)

Memphis Players Feel WFL Okay; Rest Of League In Not So Sure

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
AP Sports Writer

Some World Football League players called reporters together in Memphis, Tenn., to voice confidence in the future of their league and their team.

The only difficulty was that the players were all members of the Memphis Southmen, probably the most solid franchise in the shaky league and one certain to improve when it picks up the likes of Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield next year.

John Huarte, quarterback of the Southmen, whose 17-3 record is the league's best, said on Tuesday the money problems hitting the WFL were not affecting the Southmen, whose principal owner is Toronto millionaire John Bassett.

"We've come in with a first-class operation and put a first-class team out there," said co-captain Don Highsmith.

Huarte said "there will be a strong future for the WFL." He said he was confident owners would solve the league's problems in the coming months and put the weaker franchises in stronger hands.

An example of the league's problems is that Memphis has lost about $700,000 this year, $200,000 more than it expected to lose. An Associated Press survey shows that overall the league has lost about $20 million and several franchises.

Those mounting money problems will be the subject this Friday and Saturday when WFL owners and prospective investors meet in Memphis to seek new dollars and new direction.

Meanwhile, league playoffs will be under way. The Hawaiians visit Southern California and Philadelphia plays at Florida in first-round games Thursday night. The winners play Memphis and Birmingham in the semifinals, with the championship game — called the World Bowl — scheduled Dec. 5.

But more important to this league than finishing its first year is how it will begin its second. Before it can, numerous problems must be solved.

The Birmingham franchise, which lost its offices because it didn't pay the bills and had its assets attached in court for back taxes, is seekng $1.5 million in local financing. Players haven't been paid in several weeks, and tax liens of about $500,000 have been filed against the club and its owner.

The Jacksonville franchise hasn't played in eight weeks and the league is looking for someone to buy it. The Florida Blazers haven't paid their players in 11 weeks and a buyer is being sought.

Efforts to prop up the Shreveport and Charlotte franchises — both moved from other cities and both heavily in debt — with local investors have not yet met success.

WFL officials are in Portland this week trying to find local investors to buy out a Canadian millionaire so the team can stay in the Oregon city. A local banker said he had $400,000 of the $1 million he needs to pay off the current owner's debts.

The Hawaiians, who lost $3 million this year, reportedly may move to Chicago. In that city, the Fire quit the last week of the season. Owner Tom Origer, $800,000 in debt with his football team, is seeking to sell the franchise to some other city.

Indians Have Youthful Team

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

WILLIAMSBURG, Va.— William & Mary switched horses in the middle of the stream last year when Coach Ed Ashnault suddenly resigned. Assistant George Balanis was named interim coach, then following the Southern Conference basketball tournament, he was awarded the job for the coming season.

But not long afterwards, Balanis had the ceiling fall in on him when the number one scorer, Mike Arizin, a rising junior, decided not to continue at William & Mary. Then, not long afterwards, the number three scorer, Rod Musselman, flunked out of school.

"We have only one senior on the team," Balanis said, "Gary Byrd, a 6-6 forward. "And we have only 11 on scholarship, nine of whom are freshmen or sophomores."

Balanis moaned that three years ago, it looked like the Indians were on their way. They had come through with a good recruiting year, which included Arizin, 6-11 Matt Courage, and guard Tom Pfingst. But Pfingst also bit the dust, dropping out of school, to return following Ashnault's resignation. He won't be eligible this year, however.

One of the reasons the Indians have had so much trouble is grades. For this reason, Balanis is pushing the Indians to study as much as possible to make good grades. "We have a study system, and if the players don't participate, they find themselves running laps—lot of laps. If they don't study, they won't be around to play when they're needed."

Last year, there were a number of personal problems on the team including clashes between players and the former coach, but Balanis feels this year's team has an excellent attitude. "We're spending 80 per cent of our time on defense. We want to force turnovers, playing man-to-man. We're going to be a very controlled offensive team; we'll only run for a layup. And we don't want to dribble much, so we're putting a lot of emphasis on the pass."

There has been one big problem during early pre-season practice, however, a rash of pulled groin muscles, and Balanis is unsure why they are occuring.

"We are going to play 10 people since we are so balanced," the coach said. "But I'm unsure who'll be starting for us."

One who definitely will be is 6-3 sophomore guard Ron Satterthwaite, the number two scorer last year with an 11.2 average. "He's our only real standout," the coach said. "We have a lot of people who could gain starting slots."

One thing Balanis wants to do is to switch Courage to forward, and play 6-10 Dennis Vail at center. "Courage is making progress at forward, but he's having trouble adjusting to the defense out there."

Balanis, however, can't be sure about much else. Byrd will probably get the other forward spot, but he's completely unsure about the other guard post.

"One thing is for sure," he said. "We're playing more like a team. And I'm not thinking about the future. We want to win now. We can't saw we're three years ago. If we do, why should our players want to put out now?"

Crash Memory Still Lingers

(Editor's Note: The 1970 Marshall football team was returning from Greenville after playing in a 17-14 loss to East Carolina University when its plane crashed, killing all aboard.)

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Four years have passed since that rainy November night when a plane crash at nearby Tri-state Airport wiped out the Marshall University football team and coaching staff.

The memory of that night — which traumatized an entire town — has begun to fade here in Huntington. But it is far from forgotten.

However, the business of living these past four years has worn off the sharp edges of the grief that gripped the city. Most of the students who were here the night of Nov. 14, 1970, have gone and the school has since had two presidents. The last of the handful of players who missed that fatal flight finished their careers last fall.

On the first anniversy of the crash, the city and university staged a huge memorial service at a Marshall football game. Last Thursday's fourth anniversary came and went with only a quiet memorial service and passing mention in the city's newspapers.

Jack Lengyel, who came from the College of Wooster in Ohio to try to rebuild the Thundering Herd football program, says he makes it a point not to dwell on the crash. He said he feels it would only cheapen the lives of those who died if he tried to capitalize on the deaths of the 37 Marshall players and the five coaches.

"In fact," he said, "the biggest fear I had when I came here was that every game would turn into a wake. But it never happened."

Lengyel leaned back and let his memory drift.

"I came here on March 17, 1971. It was St. Patrick's Day. We had only one experienced player and a few freshmen. The town was still in mourning."

By the next fall, he had put together a team composed of walk-ons, basketball players and just about anybody who wanted to play. The NCAA allowed Marshall to use freshmen that year.

"We played at Morehead our first game," Lengyel said. "We got beat but we scored against them. And then came the Xavier game the next week here in Huntington."

The "Young Herd," as the team was called in those days, gave the 15,000 fans at Fairfield Stadium an unforgettable thrill beating Xavier 15-13 on a last-second pass.

"They never even let us kick the extra point," Lengyel said with a misty smile.

Marshall won another game that year, beating Bowling Green 12-10 in a stunning upset.

The next two years were full of optimism and promise. Marshall turned in another 2-8 record in 1972 and then came up with a 4-7 mark last year.

"The boys were all excited this spring," he said. "They were talking about winning and deep down we felt we had a real shot at a winning season."

But by mid-season, a winning season was beyond reach. Going into Saturday's finale at Ohio University, Marshall is burdened by a 1-9 record.

Marshall opened with an upset loss to Morehead — after missing on a last second try for a two point conversion. The Thundering Herd bounced back the next week with a victory over Akron, only to fall into its current eight-game tailspin.

Tourney Results From Greenville

Two ladies clinics were held last week at the Greenville Golf and Country Club with contests following.

In the beginners clinic, contests were held in chipping and driving. Winning in the novice chipping class were Letha Raper, followed by Audrey Thiele and Barbara Bonds. In the intermediate beginners group, Frances Dudley took first place in chipping, while Ann Wade was second and Rae Daniels was third.

In the driving contest for novices, first place went to Mary Lou Crouch, while Mrs. F. L. Blount Sr. took second. In the intermediate group, Frances Dudley was first and Blanche Forbes second.

Harriette White took first place in the chipping contest for advanced golfers, while Dorothy Doyle was second. Nancy Monroe finished third, with Barbara Ellis fourth.

Men's Appreciation Day was held during the week, sponsored by pro Gordon Fulp. A net tournament was held, with Carl Pierce taking first place with a 70. Second went to Smug Respess at 71, while Mike Bell and Cliff Everett Sr. tied for third with 73. Fourth went to Paul Julian at 75, while Dr. A. M. Mumford and Jesse Moye tied for fifth with 76. Gift certificates for these winners may be picked up in the pro shop.

The M. B. Massey Fall Junior Championship is nearly completed. In the junior (13 and under) division, Henry Wooten took the title in a two-and-one victory over Jack Mann. The senior division has reached the finals. In semi-final matches Karl Thurber beat Connor Merritt III, 3-and-2, while Stuart Flanagan downed Molt Massey III, 1-up on the 19th hole.

This Friday, the final Ladies Day of the year will be held, with each lady asked to bring a new participant. A Captain's Choice Tournament will be held with a 9:30 a.m. shotgun start. A "Punch and Lunch" will follow, along with the annual business meeting.

Ernest Holt recorded a hole-in-one last week. He got the ace on the eighth hole, a 188-yard par three.

Cowboys Gain Playoff Finals

The Cowboys gained the finals in the Recreation Department's tag football playoffs yesterday with a 13-6 win over the Eagles. At the same time, the Green gained a share of the tackle championship with a 34-0 win over the White.

In the tag game, the two played to a scoreless first half. But in the second half, the Eagles grabbed the lead on an eight-yard run by Mont Carter.

The Cowboys came back to tie it up on a 38-yard pass from Billy Dough to Mark Douglas. Then, they took the lead when Dough hit Roger Williams on a 31-yard bomb. Scott Southerland ran over the PAT.

The Cowboys will meet the winner of the Redskins-Dolphins game for the title.

In the tackle game, the Green had little trouble in gaining its victory. The win tied it with the Blue team for the title, both with 5-1 records.

Green scored twice in the first half, on runs of one and 40 yards by Danny Carmon. Following the last touchdown, Ron Butler ran over the extra points for a 14-0 lead.

Willie Jones took a 39-yard pass from Stuart Motsinger in the third period. Then, Motsinger hit Willie Frizzell on a 56-yard pass for the fourth touchdown. Mark Saieed ran in the conversion. The final score was a 10-yard pass from Mike Williams to Carmon.

Saturday, a group of All-Stars from the four tackle teams will meet a team from Mt. Olive at 1 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

Wichita Still Battling To Win

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Four years after a tragic airplane crash wiped out half of Wichita State University's starting football team the school is still struggling on the gridiron.

Since that day — Oct. 2, 1970 — when 31 persons were killed in the crash of a chartered airliner near Silver Plume, Colo., Wichita State has had two football coaches, two athletic directors and three losing seasons.

The plane that crashed carried 40 persons, including the team's top 22 players. It was one of two charters carrying the team, school officials and boosters to Logan, Utah, for a game against Utah State.

Among the dead were 14 first-string players, head football Coach Ben Wilson and Athletic Director Bert Katzenmeyer.

Since then, football has had its ups and downs here, but mostly it's been down. From the 1971 3-8 season through last Saturday's game with Fresno State, the Shockers have compiled a 14-28-1 record.

If the 1970 winless season is included, the over-all record drops to 14-37-1. Six games in that 0-9 season were played after hope for a winning season died on a Rocky Mountain slope.

For a brief moment in the span of four seasons that have passed it appeared that Wichita State might be on the road to full recovery.

In 1972, under Bob Seaman, the young assistant coach who picked up the pieces following the crash, the team had a 6-5 season. But the recovery was shortlived.

The following year the Shockers dropped to 4-7, and Seaman lost his job. Ted Bredehoft, the athletic director who took over from Cecil Coleman, fired the young head coach and his staff. Coleman, now at the University of Illinois, had replaced Katzenmeyer.

This year, the coaching job went to 38-year-old Jim Wright, a former assistant coach at the University of Tennessee. He is finding the road back even tougher than his predecessor.

The Shockers now hold a 1-8-1 record and are assured of finishing in the cellar of the Missouri Valley Conference. They finish the season Saturday when they play strong Memphis State at Memphis.

Wright is optimistic, although he knows he faces a tough task in rebuilding a program that still suffers from the 1970 crash.

"The thing most noticeable," he said, "was the lack of size, speed and facilities. As an end result of losing so many players, our program is low on numbers of players out for football.

"Since I've been here, with the help of (WSU president) Dr. (Clark) Ahlberg, Ted Bredehoft and the great people of Wichita, we have added more meeting rooms, coaches' offices, a dormitory and weight room to improve our facilities.

"We are certainly going to recruit players of quality, with size and speed needed for a major college program. Our stadium (31,500-seat Cessna Stadium, which was expanded the year before the crash) is tremendous and certainly impressive for recruiting.

"We must get stable athletes to compete in the schedule we've inherited. We've done so many good things in improving facilities and now we're striving to go first class."

Burroughs Is American MVP

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jeff Burroughs, the Texas Rangers' fence-breaking outfielder, was named the American League's Most Valuable Player today.

Burroughs, a 23-year-old who played only his second year in the big leagues in 1974, won handily over Oakland outfielder Joe Rudi to become the first player from an expansion club to win the coveted award.

The beefy slugger, who batted in a league-leading total of 118 runs, hit 25 homers and fashioned a .301 batting average, was the only player named on all 24 ballots by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The writers, consisting of two in each of the American League cities, gave Burroughs 10 first-place votes and a total of 248 points. Rudi had 5½ votes for first and 161½ points overall.

Two of Rudi's teammates at Oakland followed in the voting as third baseman Sal Bando had 143½ points for third place and outfielder Reggie Jackson 119 for fourth.

In fifth place was pitcher Ferguson Jenkins of the Texas Rangers with 118 points. "Catfish" Hunter, the A's Cy Young winner this season, was sixth with 107 points, giving the 1-2 teams in the American League West a sweep of the top six positions.

A total of 34 players were nominated by the BBWA. Points were tabulated for 10 places on a basis of 14 for first, then 9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 for the remainder.

One writer was unable to decide between Rudi and Bando for MVP and voted a tie for the two for first place. This is not unprecedented. In 1959, four writers cast first-place tie votes for Nelson Fox and Luis Aparico of the Chicago White Sox.

The presence of so many outstanding ballplayers with the World Champion A's apparently prevented any of them from winning. Of the 24 first-place votes, Oakland players collected 11. But with Jenkins claiming three votes for first, Texas players had 13.

Only three players from the American League East finished in the Top Ten. Elliott Maddox of the second-place New York Yankees was eighth with 59 points while Baltimore infielder Bobby Grich had 49 for ninth place and Oriole left-hander Mike Cuellar had 42 for 10th.

Winning the MVP in only his second year in the majors put Burroughs in a special class. Only two others have won it in their sophomore season — Stan Musial with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1943 and Vida Blue with Oakland in 1971.

Rudi hit .293 with 22 home runs and 99 RBI this past season. Bando knocked in 103 runs and hit 22 homers.

Kupec Can Be Happy

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — After two years of frustration, North Carolina quarterback Chris Kupec can revel in the thought that his coach "wouldn't trade him for any quarterback in the country," said Coach Bill Dooley. "His passing has just been incredible."

For his outstanding performance in the 56-42 victory over Army, Kupec was selected as The Associated Press College Back of the Week.

The 22-year-old senior from Syosset, N.Y., threw four touchdown passes, scored on a five-yard run and set up another with a pass. He completed 10 of 12 passes for 214 yards.

As a sophomore, Kupec was second string quarterback to Nick Vidnovic and saw little action. He was out during the 1973 season with a broken collarbone.

But this season he has been amazing. He leads the nation with an overall passing percentage of 72.2. In all, he has hit on 98 of 136 passes and only one toss has been intercepted.

Wingback Jimmy Jerome, target of many of Kupec's tosses, said, "I've never seen a quarterback that throws the ball as well as Kupec ... Some quarterbacks will zing the ball to you. He throws a soft ball, very easy to catch."

Quarterbacks Battle For All-ACC

By The Associated Press

It's Chris Kupec week in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The North Carolina quarterback, who leads the nation in passing, has been named Associated Press college back of the week and ACC offensive player of the week for leading the Tar Heels to a 56-42 bombing of Army last Saturday.

The 22-year-old senior from Syosset, N.Y., passed for four touchdowns, ran for another and set up a sixth. He hit on 10 of 12 passes for 214 yards and ran five times for 20 yards.

"I do believe this was my best game of the season," Kupec said when informed of the AP honor. He attributed his success to his teammates: "I think we definitely have some of the best blockers on any college team in the country."

Kupec has completed 98 out of 136 passes this season for a percentage of 72.2 and he threatens to break a record of 68.7 per sent set by Tulsa's Jerry Rhome 10 years ago.

Tar Heel coach Bill Dooley says, "Kupec is the league's best. He has been an outstanding quarterback for us all season. I wouldn't swap him for any quarterback in the country."

Kupec now becomes a prime contender for the quarterback slot on the ACC allstar team. However, Dave Buckley of North Carolina State is expected to give Kupec a close race for the allstar squad. State coach says, "Buckley is the finest quarterback I've ever seen in person."

Kupec will lead North Carolina against arch-rival Duke in Chapel Hill Saturday as both teams close out their regular season. The Sun Bowl-bound Tar Heels, 6-4 overall, need a win to tie Clemson and North Carolina State for second place in the final ACC standings.

Clemson and State are 4-2 and have completed their league games while North Carolina is 3-2. Duke is 6-4 and 2-3 and takes a great deal of pleasure in upsetting the Tar Heels in the grand finale.

In other ACC developements, Maryland and North Carolina State have moved up in the latest AP football poll. Maryland, which has won the ACC crown, is ranked 11th this week, moving up from 13th and State climbed from 16th to 13th.

The Atlantic Coast Conference is closing out its best season in its 20 year history. When the final horn sounds Saturday, five of the seven ACC teams will find themselves with winning records. In 1955, 1957, 1960 and 1963, four teams had winning seasons.

Plus, this year three teams, North Carolina, North Carolina State and Maryland, have been invited to post season bowl games and a fourth, Clemson, is being considered for the Tangerine Bowl.

State, which has finished the regular season, is 9-2. Maryland is 7-3 going into Saturday's game at Virginia and Clemson, North Carolina and Duke are 6-4, each with one game left.

Only Virginia, 4-6, and Wake Forest, 0-10, will end up with losing records.

In other games Saturday, Wake Forest, with the longest losing streak in the nation, will host Furman of the Southern Conference Saturday and Clemson will entertain South Carolina this weekend.

Tapes Reveal Mitchell Refused Blame

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate cover-up trial jury is set for the next chapter in a continuing saga: how John N. Mitchell refuses to take the blame for Watergate, despite presidential pressure that he do so.

The jurors were to be transported back in time again today through reels of tape to April 14, 1973, when Domestic Affairs Advisor John D. Ehrlichman reported how Mitchell relayed Richard M. Nixon's suggestion that he take the Watergate heat.

"He lobbed mudballs at the White House at every opportunity," Ehrlichman is heard telling Nixon after unsuccessfully urging Mitchell to confess to U.S. attorneys.

"He said if I'm indicted it is going to be very hard," Ehrlichman reports to the President. "He said 'I can't let people get away with this kind of thing ... I am just going to have to defend myself every way I can.'"

The jury trying Ehrlichman, Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson on cover-up conspiracy charges spent Tuesday listening to earlier April 14 conversations among Nixon, Haldeman and Ehrlichman.

The discussions were to the effect that Mitchell was to be summoned to Washington and be told by Ehrlichman that he should take the blame to protect the presidency.

The jury heard Nixon tell Ehrlichman to inform Mitchell that Nixon "just can't bring himself to talk to you about it. Just can't do it."

Later that day, a Saturday, Ehrlichman reported back to Nixon and Haldeman about his talk with Mitchell, who had been one of Nixon's closest friends, twice his campaign manager and a former law partner.

"I tried to play him with kid gloves," Ehrlichman is heard on the tape, which had been made public previously in transcript form by the White House.

The tape opens with Nixon asking, "All finished?"

Ehrlichman: "Yes, sir. All finished. He is an innocent man in his heart and in his mind, and he does not intend to move off that position. He appreciated the message of that good feeling between you and him."

Ehrlichman said Mitchell told him that the Watergate burglars "pulled this thing without my knowledge" and that "I didn't know what they were up to ... nobody was more surprised than I was."

Ehrlichman relayed that Mitchell said that Jeb Stuart Magruder, who was his deputy at the campaign committee, had been prompted by John W. Dean III into lying to the Watergate grand jury and therefore "Magruder's got a problem."

Nixon exclaimed: "My God, Mitchell was there."

Ehrlichman: "Yep."

At one point Nixon commented about Mitchell's reaction: "His throwing it off on the White House isn't going to help him one damn bit."

Ehrlichman: "Yeah, I think so. I can't guarantee it, but I would be amazed once Magruder goes in there.

Nixon: "But that's only one man."

Ehrlichman: "Ah, that's plenty."

Driver Charged In Auto Wreck

Janet Lynne Radford of 1204 East Third St was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 12:15 p.m. collision here Monday at the intersection of N.C. 30 and Memorial Drive.

Investigators reported the Radford car collided with a vehicle operated by Russell Dewitt Roberton Jr. of Henderson, causing an estimated $1,500 damage to the Roberton car and $800 damage to the Radford auto.

No injuries were reported.

Police Car In Early Mishap

An estimated $900 damage resulted to a Greenville Police car early this morning when the vehicle skidded out of control at the intersection of Tenth Street and Grande Avenue about 1:40 a.m.

Investigators identified the driver of the car as Kenneth Earl Thompson.

Officers said Ptl. Thompson was responding to a call for assistance from officers investigating a cutting incident at the time of the mishap.

Man Charged In Cutting Case

Billy Steinbeck of 509 Perkins St. was charged with assault with a deadly weapon following investigation of a 1:24 a.m. incident here this morning.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Steinbeck allegedly cut Linsy Earl Smith, 53, of 1201-B Ford St twice across the forehead with a knife at the Riggs House Restaurant on Dickinson Ave.

Steinbeck was placed under a $500 bond pending hearing of the case in District Court.

Sue IRS Over Tax Deduction

NEW YORK (AP) — Angela Lansbury and her husband, Peter Shaw, have sued the Internal Revenue Service for $14,968, charging they overpaid that sum in taxes because the IRS disallowed a legitimate deduction.

The deduction in question involved traveling expenses in 1966 and 1967, while Miss Lansbury was starring on Broadway in the musical 'Mame.'

The suit, filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court, Manhattan, claimed they had a right to the deduction because they maintained a home in Malibu, Calif., and also had to maintain a New York residence for the run of the play.

Subtle Changes In Moscow From 6 Years Ago

By GEORGE A. KRIMSKY
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — I felt a momentary sinking sensation and wondered if it was more than the effect of a descending airplane.

The lumbering TU-154 pierced a floor of clouds so thick that we braced for a thud, but the windows just went gray. The clouds then shut behind us, and when the windows cleared, we caught the first glimpse of our new home — Soviet Russia, emerging below as a green quilt of fields and forests.

This was my second glimpse, for I had visited Russia as a tourist in the fall of 1968. But my wife — clutching the arm rests — had no prior experience to lean on, and uncommon anxiety showed on her face.

"I wondered if I was breaking some law against spying when I was looking out the window," she confessed later. Laughable, perhaps, if we hadn't been warned that it was forbidden to take pictures from the plane while flying over Soviet territory.

From the moment our Aeroflot jet landed at Sheremeteyvo Airport on the outskirts of Moscow, I sought comparisons with what I had seen six years ago. Then, the first Soviet I saw was a soldier carrying a submachine gun.

Sure enough, at the bottom of the ramp stood a soldier — but this one, besides appearing younger, was unarmed. None of the soldiers standing around the terminal was armed, as many were last time.

It all became clear later when, after a quick whisk through customs, we were greeted by a large red billboard outside the airport. It read, "We are for peace — lasting, just and in the interest of all people."

But military presence remains a feature of this capital city.

The tobacco-brown uniforms of army officers and the cinched-belt tan dress of soldiers dot the sidewalks. Olive drab trucks, looking like U.S. vintage from World War II, chu along the streets. In vacant parking lots, squads practice marching and stand inspection.

Add to this the blue uniform of city police and the blue-gray suits and red neckershiefs of "Young Pioneers," and a stranger might wonder if this is an occupied city.

But the most striking difference from six years ago is the increase in automobiles. The wide avenues of Moscow, once drawing a meager population of vehicles, now are fulfilling their destiny with a gusto reminiscent of Rome or Paris. Volgas, Moskvichs, Chaikas and the Zhigulis — a Russian Fiat — now vie for open stretches of city street. Occasionally a black, curtained ZIL carrying an official comes by, and all traffic comes to a halt.

The look of the city is more colorful, but compared with the West, a sameness of brown and gray clothing predominates.

Street advertising has not arrived in the colorful western fashion, except for exhortations on bridges and atop buildings to build communism. Stores usually do not have names, just numbers or the announcement of their function — "Milk" or "Shoe Repair."

Queues in stores and outside vegetable or fruit stands are still here, but they seem shorter. A line was even eliminated in a neighborhood bread store. Once there were three — one to order bread, one to pay for it and a third to pick it up. Now you pick up the bread when you order it.

We are told more goods are available in the stores.

It is easy to make generalization about this city of seven million people, but they seldom are accurate. Just as I was inclined to believe all Muscovites wary of foreigners, an old babushka (grandmother) gave me five kopeks when I couldn't find change for the bus, and chatted amiably with me until I got off.

As a tourist, I didn't feel the grip of government controls as I do now. Foreign residents are huddled in compounds guarded by police "mili-men" who keep track of comings and goings.

If a foreign resident has a domestic matter that needs attention, he must contact a central government agency known as "UPDK" — Service Administration for the Diplomatic Corps. It assigns tutors or maids, rents a piano, fixes the plumbing or sends an exterminator for the cockroaches.

It is widely assumed that activities of foreign residents are closely monitored here. One American who scoffed at this "melodrama" had his apartment swept for listening devices to placate his wife. No fewer than 28 bugs were located, he said.

Details of living here take on unaccustomed importance. As a tourist, I was issued coupons for breakfast, got good theater tickets on request and had a map to guide me back to the hotel.

Without constant attendance of Intourist officials, however, residents learn that there is a certain way to do things, often circuitous. You cannot, for instance, flag down a taxi. You must go instead to a designated taxi stand, where a debate might ensue as to which driver wants to go in your direction.

NEW TAX PLANNED

CARACAS (UPI) — The Venezuelan government plans to abolish the $18.60 departure tax for residents and institute a $4.65 tax on all travelers over 12 years of age, says Gen. Gregorio Lopez, director of the Maiquetia International Airport Authority.

Opening lead: King of ♥.

Declarer tackled the right suit in his attempt to set up the ninth trick in his contract of three no trump, but his method of doing so left something to be desired.

The auction was neat and precise. South's jump rebid of two no trump showed a hand of some 19-20 points and, since North was not the least bit ashamed of his one diamond response, he carried on to game.

West led the king of hearts, and declarer remarked sagely about the advantages of a hold-up play as he ducked the first two rounds of the suit. After winning the ace, South who could count eight fast tricks, decided to establish a second diamond trick for his contract. He crossed to dummy's queen of clubs and led a diamond to his queen. West won the king, cashed his good heart and exited with a spade. Suddenly, declarer realized his predicament—if he rose with the ace of spades, he would be unable to clear the ace of diamonds from his hand and then return to dummy to cash the jack of diamonds. South had no alternative but to hope that West had led away from the king of spades, so he played low from dummy. Unfortunately, East produced the king, and that spelled down one.

By holding up the ace of hearts until the third round, declarer discovered that the suit split 4-3. Thus, he could lose no more than three heart tricks, and could afford to lose a trick in diamonds. What he could not afford was to squander one of dummy's entries for a needless finesse.

After winning the ace of hearts, declarer should have made sure of a second diamond trick by playing the ace and queen from his hand. Now, the contract is safe against any distribution. West can win the king, cash his heart and shift to a spade as before, but now declarer can afford to rise with the ace, cash the jack of diamonds and run for home with nine tricks.

Town Looking Forward To Tribe's Last Payday

By JOE FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (AP) — The "last payday" is near for the remaining members of the Klamath Indian tribe.

When it comes, probably in December, $49 million in federal funds will be passed out to about 620 Klamaths.

What will happen to the money is cause for some speculation in this Southern Oregon lumber and farming town.

The Klamath reservation was among several dissolved by Congress in 1954, and most of the Indians opted then to turn over their lands and Indian status for individual payments of about $43,000 each. Those who will be paid in December left their lands in trust.

When the Indians who sold earlier were finally paid in 1961 it triggered a spending spree they still talk about in Klamath County.

In bars and barbershops, everybody who remembers has an Indian story to tell.

Ted Conn, a Lakeview lawyer who has practiced in the area for 40 years, remembers it well:

"Before the lands were sold, per capita payments from timber sales were made quarterly to the Indians. Many of the Indians felt the payments were like the buffalo: they'd always be there."

But with the lump sum, the quarterly payments stopped.

Conn recalled months of drunken brawls and of auto dealers getting plump from Klamaths who would buy new cars, wreck them and pay cash for replacements.

"The Indians were reckless with their money because they never had any before," said J. M. "Red" Britton, who has been sheriff of Klamath County 23 years. "I think the remaining members will be more careful."

Within a few months the money was gone and so were the benefit checks the Indians had been getting all their lives. They returned to poverty, where most remain. A few did well with their money, investing in ranches or stocks. Those who did generally moved out of Klamath County, away from conservative Southern Oregon.

The Klamaths who voted to leave their land in trust continued to receive per capita payments, but voted in 1969 to dissolve the trust and sell the lands. The 135,000 acres will be added to the Winema National Forest.

There are 473 shares in the trust, each worth about $120,000. Some of the shares have been divided among survivors of the original owners.

The money, probably tax free, will be distributed by the trust holder, the U.S. National Bank of Oregon, in a lump sum. But the white community, and the Indians, too, say things will be different this time.

Most Klamaths who took the first payment were older and had lived on the reservation all their ljves. They lacked the financial sophistication needed to deal with a huge chunk of money.

The remaining members have more experience with money. Most have jobs in addition to their timber payments, although good jobs for Indians are hard to find in Klamath County.

The school dropout rate for Klamaths, at a high for decades, is improving since special education programs were added and more Indian teachers and counselors were hired.

There is currently on the market a solar cooker which uses only the sun's rays to cook a meal in minutes. It weighs one pound and can be used on a boat, at a backyard barbecue or on the trail.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Avoid anything that could affect your health or relations with important persons until midafternoon, but after that some unusual and unexpected condition can arise that gives you the chance to enjoy yourself or engage in constructive projects.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Avoid that pal who is overly sensitive and go out on the town with those who are more congenial. Plan business expansion later.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Contact a bigwig who can give you added backing and then get right down to the business of the day. Be accurate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Prepare carefully for that new project that has you so enthusiastic, or you could ruin your chances of success with it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You feel confused about duties in a.m., but if you start on the most important, by afternoon you're ahead. Relieve tensions.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A partner is acting somewhat strangely, but keep silent and by afternoon you know how to handle the situation. Take care of civic matter.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) More courtesy directed toward co-workers brings fine results now and you'd do well to cement better relations with others, also.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get into the creative work that appeals to you in a.m., then later enjoy pleasurable activities. Be cheerful with mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more thoughtful of kin today and respect their wishes more than you have in the past. Study basic situation early.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to get closer to regular allies and have better results in the future. Be more interested in their personal lives.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't invest money in a.m., but later get advice from experts about this. Avoid a commitment that ties you down for a long time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Put personal aims on a more firm basis, then show appreciation to persons who have been helpful to you. Social matters favored in p.m.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan to be of greater service to others. Don't discuss your views with those who could profit from them instead of you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will want to learn and will ask a million questions. Be sure you are well informed and give the right answer to start your brilliant child off on the right foot, then give the best education you can afford so the success possible in this chart will be realized. Honesty is the keynote in this horoscope, through which will come fame and prosperity. Sports are a natural.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Blind Jose Is Playing Roles

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Can a blind man be an actor? Jose Feliciano thinks so, and he already has two performances on his record.

The Puerto Rico-born guitarist-singer-composer first played a role in the television series "MacMillan and Wife," portraying a man whose knowledge of tobacco helps solve a crime.

Now he is appearing in a "Kung Fu" segment as a Western drifter.

In both roles Feliciano portrays a blind man, but he sees no reason to limit himself to such roles.

"I think it's no more of a challenge for a blind actor to play a sighted person than it is for a sighted person to portray a character who is blind," he remarked.

"I'm sure that any actor who plays a blind role must spend a lot of time studying what it is like not to see.

"Well, I could do the same in reverse. I don't think sight is necessary for an actor."

Feliciano has been beating the odds for all of his 29 years. He was born blind in the Puerto Rican village of Larez, here his father was a farmer. The family emigrated to New York City, settling in a three-room apartment in Spanish Harlem. In time there were 12 sons. Three died in childhood.

Jose spent most of his days listening to music on the radio, began playing chords on an accordion, started with guitar at 9.

As a teen-ager he played and sang in Manhattan coffee houses. With "Light My Fire" he became a record star, and for the past eight years he has been collecting gold records and top salaries for concerts and club dates in the United States and abroad.

That wasn't enough. Six months ago, he decided he wanted to act.

"I had never acted before — except when I sing," he remarked.

"There's a lot of acting in singing. It's really like a movie, but you have only two minutes to put across a dramatic point.

"You've got to be convincing in a very brief time, or else the audience won't buy it."

Feliciano prepared himself with dramatic lessons from actor-coach Jeff Corey. When the guitarist switched agencies to William Morris, he told his new agents of his ambition. The castings in "MacMillan and Wife" and "Kung Fu" resulted.

He's The Only Black Buyer For Leaf Firm

SCOTLAND NECK — Joe Louis Daniels, 38, has the destinction of being the only black tobacco buyer for a major company.

A Greenville native, Daniels is the first black in the nation to become a buyer for a major company — R. J. Reynolds — and Ahoskie is where he made his first purchase for the giant tobacco firm.

"It's been a dream all my life to be a buyer," Daniels said. "I've always worked around a warehouse. . ." and "I got my big break in Hughesville, Md., when I began handling tickets."

J. L. DANIELS

He said, "I bought my first pile of tobacco in Statesboro, Ga.," where he began as an independent buyer, purchasing leaf for himself and reselling to major companies.

"I was the first Negro to buy tobacco in Windsor, as an independent, and then in Ahoskie, for a major tobacco company," Daniels explained.

The black buyer has handled about two million pounds of tobacco for the Reynolds firm this year.

According to the buyer, he met some resistance in Windsor when he began as an independant buyer.

"The farmers didn't mind a black buyer, but it seems the warehouses did," Daniels noted.

Daniels, who has missed only three days of work in the 15 years he has been working with warehouses, has a brother, Jessie Lee Daniels Jr. of Greenville, who is an auctioneer.

The people at R. J. Reynolds, "treat me as a man, not a black man," Daniels noted.

Daniels is married to the former Medessa McDaniel of Scotland Neck and the couple has four children. He is the son of Mrs. Magnolia Cooper Daniels of Greenville and the late Jessie Lee Daniels Sr.

Extended

..The Greenville Jaycees have extended their residential light bulb sale for one additional night, according to project co-chairman Bill Price.

Price said that the chapter found that it was unable to cover all areas of the city during the Nov. 12, 13, and 14 residential canvass so the additional sale will be this Thursday from 6 p.m. until 9:30 p.m.

He cited the growth of the residential areas of the city as necessitating the additional sales night. The Jaycees will be covering sections that were not reached last week, the co-chairman added.

Price noted also that the business sale has been extended through this Friday in order to cover segments of the business community that were not contacted during the scheduled sale period.

HEALTH EXAMS

CHICAGO (UPI) — Most physicians believe that four or five thorough health examinations are sufficient to keep youngsters healthy throughout the school years.

The American Medical Association recommends examinations at the start of the school years, about the fourth grade, about the seventh grade, at the ninth or tenth grade and on graduation.

Doughnuts Now, Tacos Later, For The Belgian

By PATRICIA MCCARTY

RHODE ST. GENESE, Belgium (UPI) — Down the road from the battlefield at Waterloo where Napoleon was upended, Pat McNall has opened Belgium's first, and so far only, doughnut shop.

Le Beignet (The Fritter) opened last month. By the time the first few thousand doughnuts were sold, the former pub has become a gathering spot for the many Americans living in the Waterloo area just south of Brussels. Mrs. McNall's doughnuts sell for 96 frances (about $2.40) a dozen.

The steady stream of customers also includes Belgians, Japanese and Peruvians.

Mrs. McNall, from Palo Alto, Calif., admires the Belgian habit of lingering at the tables for an hour or two chatting. But, she says, they're always surprised to find no beer is sold.

Understandably so, and not just because of the Belgian taste for beer. Le Beignet still looks like the pub it was built to be 64 years ago. When the owner died in 1945, it was boarded up and virtually forgotten until Mrs. McNall bought it this year.

Now on the same dark wood bar that once held beer glasses sit four wicker baskets, full of assorted doughnuts homemade each morning, and a coffee pot. Overhead there's a Tiffany lamp bought in Pasadena, Calif., shining down on a coal stove against one wall, six marble-topped tables and plank floors.

Mrs. McNall's original idea was for a "red, white and blue, American-style doughnut shop," but she scrapped plans for a modern shop and opted to maintain the turn-of-the-century atmosphere already built-in.

"It takes an American to lay it on the line like this," she said. "A Belgian wouldn't have touched this place. It had been closed up for 29 years. There was a lot of work to be done, the road out front is going to be widened, the electricity wasn't adequate.

"But when I saw it, I wanted to keep it '1910.' I think the Americans are getting tired of plastic and steel. Now we want to go back to the old ambiance.

Telephone Girls Kept Temper

LONDON (AP) — Telephone girls working for the Legal and General insurance company had their courtesy checked in a "spy" survey by a retired executive. He was paid 150 pounds ($360) plus expenses to ring the company's 93 offices and report on politeness, speed and efficiency from the switchboard operators.

The company was pleased with the survey. It said that very little bad temper was uncovered despite the calls being made at the busiest times. Three girls who ranked highly for their responses are to share a 75 pounds ($180) prize.

The battle of the Alamo lasted 12 days and ended with every one of the less than 200 Texas defenders slain by the 3,000 member army of Mexican Gen. Lopez de Santa Ana.

Bankruptcy Said Facing The Theater In Britain

By GREGORY JENSEN

LONDON (UPI) — That gurgling sound you hear is the British theater going under.

"The British theater faces bankruptcy," said Trevor Nunn, artistic director of the Royal Shakespeare Company and a man not given to mincing words.

"Costs have risen astronomically just at the time when audiences can least afford to pay economic prices," Nunn said. "Inflation has hit everyone in this country, but it has devastated the theater."

Legitimate theater in both London and New York suffers economic crises as regularly as summer follows spring. But this time British theater men are crying "wolf" because the wolf actually is at the door.

Prices here are rising more than 17 per cent a year. Some theater costs are skyrocketing much faster than that—heating, cloth for costumes, paper for programs, wood for sets.

This year, too, the number of American tourists has dropped 20 per cent, and Americans are staunch patrons of Britain's stage. A tax on tickets is another millstone weighing down a drowning theater, although legitimate theater in London is a lot cheaper than on Broadway.

For these reasons all theater has gone off the deep end, not just the heavily subsidized giants.

"A substantial number" of out-of-London theaters "will ba in deficit at the end of the year to such an extent that it will not be possible for the Arts Council to bail them out," said Sir Hugh Willatt, general secretary of the subsidy-giving Arts Council.

On the commercial stage, a London version of the Broadway musical "A Little Night Music," due to open this month, was scrapped because no one would gamble its $350,000 cost. "It would have been madness to proceed in this economic climate," producer Richard Pilbrow said. Other plans for lavish musicals are in doubt.

"Successful shows are doing very well," said John Gale, president of the Society of West End Theater Managers. "But the middle shows are struggping. Ticket prices aren't up all that much, but the cost of an evening out—the whole package—is up astronomically."

Peter Hall's topflight National Theater, another of the giants, is bewildered and reeling from an unalloyed disaster. "We're back to square one," a spokesman said.

Hall expected a massive deficit this year, hoping to make it up next year when the National moved from the small Old Vic to its multimillion dollar, three auditorium building next April.

Now the opening of the new building has been delayed. No one knows when it will be ready.
