Not Guilty Plea By Edmisten At Trial

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—Atty. Gen.-elect Rufus Edmisten today pleaded not guilty to charges that he failed to file 1972 and 1973 North Carolina State income tax returns on time.

Edmisten's attorneys moved to quash the charges against him on constitutional grounds, presumably those of arbitrary and discriminatory enforcement against him. District Court Judge Edwin S. Preston took the motion under advisement.

Edmisten entered the courtroom 10 minutes before the start of the trial with his wife, Jane. He and his attorneys offered at the outset to concede that he had been a resident of North Carolina for the two years involved in the charges.

Special prosecutor Howard Manning, a Raleigh attorney, began presenting his case by calling the chairman of the Watauga County Board of Elections and the secretary of the North Carolina State Bar to testify about Edmisten's voting record and bar membership.

Manning said his questioning would establish Edmisten's long standing intent to participate in public affairs in North Carolina.

Manning then called two officials of the Department of Revenue, including B.W. Brown, director of the individual income tax division.

Their testimony indicated that Edmisten wrote to the department in 1972 inquiring about his tax status, and that the letter has since been routinely destroyed. Edmisten's attorneys worked to keep the contents of the letter, as the officials remembered it, from being introduced as evidence.

Edmisten plans to take the oath of office as attorney general next Tuesday. A misdemeanor conviction would not have made him ineligible to serve.

Today's trial culminated a public ordeal that began for Edmisten in September, during a campaign debate with Republican Atty. Gen. James Carson.

He was asked by a Carson campaign worker where he had filed state income tax returns during the 10 years he worked in Washington for Sen. Sam J.

Ervin Jr.

Edmisten acknowledged that he had paid state income taxes to Virginia, where he had an apartment. Throughout the period, he kept his legal residence in Watauga County.

The failure to file became a major campaign issue. During the last week of the campaign, the Holshouser administration turned its file on the case over to Wake County Dist. Atty. Burley B. Mitchell Jr.

Grifton Is Again 10-County Winner

The town of Grifton was again top winner this year in the ten county wide Coastal Plain Development Association competition for Community Development Awards. Grifton won in the Villages and Small Towns category.

At the 11th Annual meeting and Awards Banquet of the Coastal Plain Development Association held Thursday night at the Moose Lodge, awards were presented for Community Development, Industrial Relations, Beautification and Anti-Litter, and gardening. Special awards were also presented to county extension chairmen.

In addition to Grifton, other Community Development Award winners in the Villages and Small Towns category were: G.H.W.R.L. (a development community), Martin County, second place; and Greenwood Heights, Edgecombe County, third place.

Other Category Winners are: Rural, more than 60 families category — Uniontown-Darden, Martin County, first place; St. Paul, Nash County, second place; and Simpson, Pitt County, third place.

Rural, less than 60 families category — Cross Roads, Wilson County, first place; Swift Creek, Nash County, second place; and Dunbar, Edgecombe County, third place.

In annual awards given communities for outstanding work in beautification and anti-litter, the winners are: Villages and towns — Greenwood Heights, Edgecombe County, first place; Washington, Beaufort County, second place; and Coffield, Hertford County, third place.

Rural, less than 60 families — Leggett, Edgecombe County, first place. Rural, more than 60 families — Rock Ridge, Wilson County, first place; Middlesex, Nash County, second place; and Easonburg, Nash County, third place.

Awards for the GIFE (Gardening Is For Everybody) category were given on a county instead of a community basis. Recognition for counties encouraging programs of home gardening went to Wilson County, first place; Northampton County, second place; and Nash County, third place.

Each year awards are given to industries throughout the ten county area for outstanding programs based on a number of factors; employer-employee relationships, community assistance and support and other factor.

More than 500 industries in the ten county area, large and small industries, are considered annually for these awards. This year, 12 industries were chosen as recipients for Coastal Plain Development Association Industrial Relations Awards.

For this award, there is no designation of ranking.

The 12 winners are: Weldon

Approve Rocky

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rules Committee voted unanimously today to recommend the approval of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president.

The 9 to 0 vote sends the nomination to the Senate floor. The full senate is expected to vote after Congress returns from its brief Thanksgiving recess.

Ford Sees Biggest Crowd Of His Life In S. Korea

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Ford saw the biggest crowd of his life in South Korea's capital today, then traveled close to the frontier with Communist North Korea to visit enthusiastic American troops. The Korean national police estimated about 2 million flag-waving, confetti-throwing Koreans turned out for the American President's arrival. American newsmen estimated the crowd at a million or more, roughly equivalent to the turnout for President Johnson in 1966.

President Chung Hee Park mobilized a heavy security guard to prevent opponents of his dictatorship making trouble during Ford's visit. But twice during the 10-mile drive from the airport into Seoul, Ford emerged from Park's armored limousine with his host in tow

Perhaps some of our readers will tell us if they consider plates of certain years of particular value.

NEED FOOD

My daughter and her husband have a two-week old baby and an older child and they've got no food in the house and are keeping warm by a gas cookstove. She's been to Social Services, but they don't want to help. Her daddy and I are old. We help what we can, but can't hardly feed ourselves. Her husband can't find a job. Mrs. W.P.

Until your son-in-law and daughter can find jobs, they would probably be eligible for food stamps. Mrs. Betty Rouse of the Pitt County Food Stamp Program said they came in and received an emergency supply of stamps just a while before the baby was born, but apparently did not understand that they were to go back and apply for stamps on a monthly basis. They probably could get emergency stamps again to feed the children and themselves until a monthly program can be worked out, she said.

Pentagon Cutting Back On Bases, Headquarters And Civilian Employees

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon today announced a coast-to-coast reshuffling and reduction of military bases and headquarters that will eliminate about 11,600 civilian jobs and transfer 11,500 Army and Air Force personnel over the next 2½ years.

The moves are aimed chiefly at shifting about $300 million a year from support functions to increased combat capability. The uniformed personnel will be switched to combat and combat-related assignments.

The 110 "base realignment actions," as the Pentagon called them, will affect dozens of installations.

But only two major bases were ordered closed — the Army's Frankford Arsenal in Philadelphia and Ellington Air Force Base, Houston, Tex.

One congressional source said about half of the civilian employees offered transfers could be expected to quit their defense jobs rather than relocate.

Many Army, Air Force and Defense Supply Agency depots, laboratories and offices will lose manpower and womanpower, but some will gain.

Net losses will range from about 2,000 civilian jobs at the Frankford Arsenal to as few as a dozen in some small offices, officials said.

Besides the Frankford Arsenal, the biggest losers will be Ellington, Pueblo Army Depot, Colo.; Blue Grass Army Depot, Lexington, Ky.; Griffiss Air Force Base, Rome, N.Y.; and Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base near Kansas City, Mo. Officials said civilian jobs will be reduced by a net of at least 1,000 at each base.

The Navy is unaffected in this first significant round of base reductions since April 1973.

Advance word of the base cuts already has brought worried delegations to Washington. There always is opposition to base reductions, but concern appears sharper this time because of the nation's economic troubles.

To alleviate the problem, the Pentagon pledged that "every effort will be made to assist displaced civilian employees in obtaining other acceptable employment" in the federal government or private industry. Many career employees will be eligible for up to a year of severance pay.

In any event, many of the installations will not start to feel the effects until next summer and some of the actions will not be completed until mid-1977.

Guerrillas Threaten Execute Airliner Passengers

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Three Arab guerrillas holding 47 persons on a hijacked British jetliner in Tunisia threatened to execute one passenger every two hours today unless 13 comrades jailed in Rome and Khartoum are freed, two newsmen allowed aboard reported.

But a Palestinian splinter group in Beirut identifying itself as the hijackers' command said its men sought the release of two comrades jailed in Holland, and unless it got them every Dutch, Belgian and Luxembourg hostage aboard the plane would be killed.

There was no immediate explanation for the difference between the demands.

The hijacking was attacked by the main Palestinian group, the Palestine Liberation Organization, which called it "a desperate attempt to defame the struggle of the Palestinian people and their armed revolution."

In Rome, officials said there were no Palestinians held in Italian jails for terrorist attacks.

Three Palestinians seized the plane in the Persian Gulf sheikdom of Dubai late Thursday, then forced it to fly to Tripoli, Libya where it refueled. From Tripoli they diverted the flight to Tunis.

A stewardess and a porter were wounded when the hijacking began in Dubai, and there were reports two other persons were wounded during the flight from Tripoli to Tunis.

The hijackers' command, in Beirut, Lebanon, said, "We want our comrades Adnan Ahmad Nuri and Houssein Tamimah freed at once by the Dutch government. Otherwise we shall kill every Dutch, Belgian and Luxembourg hostage on the hijacked plane."

The command did not say how many such hostages were aboard the plane, which Dubai officials said carried 27 passengers, 10 crew members, seven cleaning men and three airport caterers.

"Our heroes must be released at once. They are to be flown to the Tunis airport. Otherwise the Dutch government will bear the responsibility for what will happen to the European hostages," the command added. Nuri and Tamimah are serving a five-year jail term in Holland for hijacking another British airways VC10 jetliner last March and blowing it up at Amsterdam airport.

Nuri and three other convicts took over a prison chapel in the Hague last month and threatened to kill 22 hostages unless Tamimah was freed. Dutch marines finally broke the siege and Nuri, Tamimah and the others were jailed again.

The latest hijacking began when the three Palestinians stormed onto the British VC10 firing submachine guns at Dubai. Officials said an Indian stewardess and a Pakistani porter were wounded and hospitalized in Dubai.

National Group On Children's Rights

PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Family Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — When his parents were divorced the judge ordered Timmy, 9, to spend weekends with his Dad.

Every Saturday, the boy kicks and cries and tries to stay in his home when his father comes to take Timmy for the weekend.

Does Timmy, have a right to disobey the judge's order? Children's rights, a much neglected topic, came into focus at the First National Symposium on Child Advocacy in New York early this month.

If Timmy, for example, has a right to the best emotional climate for his development, should he be subjected each weekend to the trauma of leaving his mother, his toys, his playmates, his room, a place in which he feels secure? And what about a child's right to good health care? Do the 5.8 million preschool children who have not been immunized against possibly crippling and fatal diseases have a right to such protection? Shirley Camper Soman, chairperson of the Child Advocacy Symposium, in an interview pointed to those gaps in protection for children.

She also said children aren't guaranteed an adequate education, proper nutrition, and a lot of other things necessary to achieve goals stated in the Bill of Rights.

Mrs. Soman, an author and social worker with a master's from Smith College, called for the formation of a National Organization on Children's Rights.

"Actually," she said, "I have been beating the drums for an amendment to the constitution that would guarantee children rights they do not have now but need for survival and proper development."

Mrs. Soman, a member of the Academy of Certified Social Workers, was a family life consultant for the Family Service Association of America for many years and worked for the Bureau of Child Guidance, New York City Board of Education.

"Let's Stop Destroying Our Children" is the title of a book in which she details all the ways society shortchanges children.

Other participants in the Child Advocacy Symposium included Dr. Lee Salk, the psychologist and children's rights advocate. He wrote "Preparing for Parenthood."

Also: Nat Hentoff, social critic and author of "Our Children are Dying"; and Barbara Seaman, the feminist and author of "Free and Female."

Participants reported that a large scale movement for a children's rights organization has been growing over the years. One of the first steps involves defining what children have a right to.

"One of the things the organization would do is list these rights and that would help set a floor below which a child would have recourse in the courts," Mrs. Soman said.

"For example, a child has a right not to be beaten, to ample food." She said if the definitions are set, then society can move forward to provide the tools to deliver the things in the list of rights.

"Take health care," she said. "If society does not provide easy access to immunizations for the pre-school child, the most susceptible to childhood diseases, then is it the parents who are irresponsible — or society?"

Mrs. Soman said government agencies often abuse children — as in the case of court orders that set visitation situations in divorces or in the way children are moved around in foster care.

"I feel you cannot get adequate advocacy for children inside government and that is why I am calling for some agency outside government — some agency full of trained persons who can look at the child welfare agencies independently and the home scene and say the child is or isn't getting what he's entitled to."

The child advocacy symposium was held during the Annual Conference of the American Educational Studies Association — a group involved in policy research and basic educational issues at schools of education.

Mrs. Soman said the Bill of Rights she advocates as part of a constitutional amendment might include the following:

—Any and every child has a right to a family who wants him.

—Any child has a right to the kind of physical safety and health care that insures the best growth and development.

—Any child has a right to learn, to be educated about himself, the human race and the world in order to find ways for self-protection, self-support and ways to live with others.

—Any child has a right to enjoyment, a right to play, a right to laugh.

—Any child has a right to a community that cares for him and his family.

—Any handicapped child has a right to professional help for himself and his family to enable the family to stay and grow together.

—Any child has a right to a government that protects him from neglect, cruelty and exploitation of any kind and yet recognizes a child's needs for independence as well as dependence.

—Any child, whatever his condition has a right to understanding, tolerance, acceptance on the part of all adults.

—Any child, born alive, has the right to live.

Candidate For Heel Of The Year

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to nominate my ex-husband for "Heel of the Year." I divorced him 15 years ago, so he could marry another woman. At the time we had a five-year-old son and a three-year-old daughter.

After the first year he forgot all about child support. I had a good job, so I never hounded him.

Last year, our son enlisted in the Air Force. Five months later he was killed in a training accident.

Abby, that boy saw his father maybe a dozen times in the last 15 years. His father never remembered his son on his birthday or Christmas either.

Guess who showed up at our son's funeral? His father! Now for the unbelievable part: my ex-husband told me at the funeral that he was "entitled" to half our son's G.I. insurance. (The insurance was made out to me.) I told him where to go, and he said he plans to sue me. And he probably will.

Have you ever heard anything to equal that?
SHOCKED IN CHICAGO

DEAR SHOCKED: No. But if any of my readers have, they'll probably let me know. Does anyone else care to nominate a candidate for "Heel of the Year?"

DEAR ABBY: My brother and his wife are secretly married. My husband and I stood up for them. Brother is 31, and Ellen (made up name) is 27.

Brother and Ellen do not live together. She lives with her parents and he has his own apartment.

Ellen has not yet told her parents that she is married, and she has given my brother orders not to give away the secret. I think she is ashamed of him, which really upsets me because he is a super guy.

They finally told my parents. Abby, they've been married a year. Last week my parents had a little anniversary celebration party for them. Her folks weren't invited because they still haven't been told about the marriage. It was all so one-sided and weird.

I cannot understand why Ellen won't tell her folks. Neither she nor brother has been married before, there is no racial or religious conflict and my brother doesn't have two heads. In fact, he is very handsome. What do you make of this?
"B" IN SAN MATEO

DEAR "B": I don't know Ellen's reason for keeping her marriage a secret, but whatever it is, it's not your problem. It's hers and your brother's.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you because although I am on good terms with my doctor and have known him for years I am ashamed to ask him this question.

Ten years ago my husband died. Last year I fell in love again, and the gentlemen is five years younger than I am. I am 83.

For the last 30 years I have had no menstruation, having had my menopause completed at age 53. Can you please tell me if there is any possibility of my becoming pregnant now? I am in good health and do not look anywhere near my age. (I'm told I look about 60.) Do not use my name or location please.
WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: No danger.

DEAR ABBY: What can you do for a guy whose new wife suddenly gets hung up on country and western music to the point where she won't listen to any other kind? She knows I hate it. Every radio in the house is tuned to those hillbilly singers. I've been going down to the corner tavern to hear some decent music on the jukebox.
LASSOED

DEAR LASSOED: Get yourself a pair of pick-toed boots, jeans, a yoked shirt, a roll-brim hat, and do-si-do and away you go!

Welcome Wagon Evening Group Hears Speakers

Mrs. Tillie Cullipher and Miss Sylvia Kruger were keynote speakers at the meeting of the Welcome Wagon Club evening group Tuesday.

Mrs. Cullipher is associated with the Pitt County Health Department as a nurse while Miss Kruger is with the Mideast Commission Family Planning Program.

They spoke on female cancer and gave information on pap smears and breast self-examination.

During a business session conducted by Mrs. Lisa Kannen, members decided to hold a dinner meeting on Dec. 17 at the Ramada Inn beginning at 7:30 p.m. The annual gift exchange will take place and a program of Christmas music will be presented by Miss Sheila Marlowe. Reservations will be necessary for the dinner.

Members were reminded of the Harvest Ball which will be held tonight at the Greenville Golf And Country Club beginning at seven o'clock with a social hour. Music for dancing will be provided by Barry Shank and the Highlighters.

It was announced that the evening meetings will be starting at 7:30 p.m. beginning next month.

Mrs. Pat Ayers was a guest for the meeting.

Miss Gore Speaks To Opti-Mrs. Club

A program on making economical Christmas decorations highlighted the meeting of the Opti-Mrs. Club of Greenville Tuesday night.

Miss Addie Gore, home economics extension agent for Pitt County, gave the program demonstration and displayed various decorations which she had made. Program Chairman Thyra Stephenson introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Ellen Rosse, president, conducted the business session. The club's Christmas dinner party, with husbands as guests, will be held Dec. 15 beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Peggy Johnson.

Members will decorate for the Optimist Club Christmas party on Saturday, Dec. 14, at Tom's Restaurant.

Mrs. Faye Howell gave a report on the club's needy family for Christmas. Gifts were brought for Operation Santa Claus and will be delivered by Mrs. Ross.

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Jack E. James, of Rt. 1, Greenville, were honored on their 40th wedding anniversary Sunday at a surprise party.

Hostesses were Mrs. Lois J. Parker and Mrs. Jean James. The honoree was remembered with a corsage of pom poms mums by her children.

The refreshment table was covered with a gold cloth trimmed in lace and centered with an arrangement of pom poms mums.

Approximately 60 guests called during the afternoon.

Meatless Dish From Indonesia

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

"When you have an engineer husband you're likely to live many places — all over the world," says Eda Bollo in explanation of her adventurous cooking, which ranges from Japanese to German.

When we heard about Eda's Vegetables and Eggs with Peanut Sauce, adapted from Indonesian cuisine, we begged the recipe. Why track down this particular main dish? Because it's meatless and that's what readers have been asking us for. When we tried it, we found it interesting and delicious.

Thanks to the eggs and peanut butter included, it offers high-quality and low-cost protein.

At present Eda is in Korea. Her engineer husband, now retired, was called there to do a special consulting job. But in a few months the Bollos will be back in Houston, where they now make their home. If you like this dish of Eda's, let me know and I'll ask her to pass along the best budget recipe she finds in Korea.

VEGETABLES AND EGGS WITH PEANUT SAUCE

- 4 eggs
- 2 tablespoons peanut oil
- Medium onion, cut in thin strips
- 2 large ribs celery, thinly sliced on the diagonal
- Medium green pepper, cut in thin strips
- 6 medium mushrooms, sliced (1 cup)
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- Pinch of cayenne pepper
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 10 1/2-ounce can condensed chicken broth, undiluted
- 1/2 cup water chestnuts, sliced (from an 8-ounce can)
- 1-3rd cup raisins
- 1-3rd cup creamy or chunky

peanut butter

1 tablespoon cornstarch combined with 1/2 cup cold water

Hard-cook eggs and let stand in cooking water off heat but in a warm place. In a 10-inch skillet over moderate heat, heat oil; add onion, celery, green pepper and mushrooms; cook stirring, just until onion begins to wilt — a minute or so. Stir in curry powder, garlic powder and cayenne; then soy sauce, chicken broth, water chestnuts and raisins; simmer about 5 minutes. Stir in peanut butter until blended then cornstarch mixture; cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Shell and quarter eggs. Turn vegetable mixture into a serving dish; surround with eggs. Serve with rice and chutney. Makes 4 servings.

General Motors And Ford Co. Announce Layoffs

'Tis the season to mail early.

Before Dec. 10 for packages, before Dec. 15 for cards.

DETROIT (AP) — At least 145,000 blue collar auto workers and thousands more white collar employees will be out of work part or all of next month because of mounting production cutbacks in the faltering automobile industry.

General Motors said Thursday it will shut nine car assembly plants for one or two weeks in December and lay off 30,000 workers because of declining sales.

Meanwhile, Ford Motor Co. said it is furloughing 3,000 white collar workers Dec. 1. Chrysler Corp. revealed plans to lay off white collar workers soon, but would not confirm reports that the number would be as high as 15,000.

Dr. Hill and Dr. F. Glenn Boseman of Temple University presented a co-authored paper, "Environmental Factors in Mexico," at a meeting session on international and comparative management.

Also appearing on the session's program were Professors A. J. Strickland and C. Roman of the University of Alabama, who discussed the Hill-Boseman paper.

the industry's hourly work force of about 700,000 will be jobless next month, about 80,000 of them indefinitely. "An additional 20,000 workers have been scheduled for temporary layoffs this month only.

Blue collar layoffs next month currently are estimated at 64,200 at Chrysler, 49,000 at Ford and 31,000 at General Motors.

GM, which currently has nearly 40,000 hourly workers on indefinite layoff, said workers temporarily furloughed next month will receive full holiday pay for the normal Christmas-to-New Years shutdown.

In other developments Thursday: —Ford announced it has cut $66 off the base price of its subcompact two-door Pinto, which suffered a 37 per cent sales decline in early November.

Ford said the Pinto will now carry a base price of $2,769, making it the lowest priced American-made car. Ford also said it is using less expensive tires as standard equipment, reducing prices another $84.

—Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A.

announced in Torrance, Calif., that its 1975 Corona and Celica models will be priced between $440 and $615 higher than comparable 1974 models.

Toyota said the increases, which range from 12.5 to 16.6 per cent, are the result of inflated production costs and the addition of new or improved standard equipment.

The Chrysler and GM production cutbacks come in the face of a 30 per cent drop in new model sales.

GM said its plants in North Tarrytown, N.Y.; Van Nuys and Southgate, Calif., will be closed for two weeks starting Dec. 2. Plants at Fairfax, Kan., and Willow Run, Mich., will be shut for the weeks of Dec. 2 and Dec. 16.

One-week shutdowns beginning Dec. 16 are scheduled for plants at Lordstown, Ohio; Janesville, Wis.; St. Louis, Mo., and Wilmington, Del.

The Lordstown, Willow Run, Van Nuys and Tarrytown plants are shut this week, and Lordstown and Willow Run will remain shut next week, as well.

Erosion Control Class Dec. 3

A class on how to prepare erosion control plans will be held December 3 at 10 a.m. at the Town and Country Restaurant in Williamston.

The State Sedimentation Control Commission is conducting eight classes across the state to explain how the plans should be prepared. After March 1, 1975, prior to starting up, any land disturbing project in North Carolina must have an erosion control plan approved either by the State or by those local governments with erosion control ordinances. The classes are free and open to anyone interested.

Thoughts Of Many Are Needed

Greenville, like most United States cities, is going to come into some federal money under the Community Development Program.

Greenville can expect to receive $1.9 million for three years starting next year and the program will be continued in future years in decreasing amounts.

The funds are to be used by the municipalities to improve the quality of life of the community. Attention will be paid to decent housing, better neighborhoods and expanded economic opportunities, with particular attention being paid to individuals of low and moderate income.

Greenville must come up with a three-year Community Development Plan in which it identifies development needs, shows how these needs can be met and specifies community development objectives.

Because the funds are available and a plan is required, the city has turned to its citizens for ideas on how the objectives of the Community Development Program can be carried out. It is calling for citizen participation in the planning. Local civic groups are being asked for their thoughts on the plan and representatives are being asked to appear at a City Council meeting Dec. 12.

The amount of federal funds which is going to be available to Greenville for this project represents considerable money. It should be spent to the best advantage of the city as a whole. This can only be done if the city planners have the thoughts of the most possible citizens on how the program should be developed. Now is the time to make suggestions, for after the plan is developed and work begins it will be too late.

N.C. Should Battle Natural Gas Cutback

A Federal Power Commission plan, which would cut back natural gas by 43 percent in North Carolina this winter, should be fought in every way our state can.

Such a drastic cut-back could cripple our industries and cause further unemployment in North Carolina.

The FPC must come up with a more equitable distribution plan for natural gas. It should be one which does not work an undue hardship on our state.

Cooling Trend Blurred

By R. GREGORY NOKES

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The slowdown in the nation's economy seems finally to be cooling the rate of inflation, the latest government figures show.

Although most prices continue to rise, there is a definite easing in the rate of price increases for industrial commodities and non-food consumer items. And some other prices actually show signs of declining.

However, public perception of this phenomenon may be blurred somewhat by a decrease in the individual's real spending power.

The government's Consumer Price Index released Thursday showed that prices of non-food consumer goods increased six-tenths of one per cent in October, the second consecutive monthly slowdown in the rate of rise and the lowest increase since last December.

There were actual declines during the month—on a seasonally adjusted basis—in prices of women's and girl's apparel and in gasoline and motor oil.

The Wholesale Price Index last week showed a 1.1 per cent increase in wholesale prices of industrial commodities during October, which was less than half the rate of increase during most of the previous nine months.

All this does not mean a general decline in prices is around the corner, but government economists say future increases will be smaller and less painful to consumers.

One economist with the President's Council of Economic Advisers also cautioned Thursday that the rate of increase could pick up again in months ahead. But there was general agreement the size of price rises will be down.

The cost of this slight improvement in inflation has been high, especially in terms of lost jobs.

Virtually everybody, including President Ford, says the nation either is in a recession or entering one. The nation's economy is still in a recession or entering one. The nation's economy is still in a recession or entering one.

Prisons Obey The Judges

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Wrestling with prisoners sleeping in showers, on the floors or "wherever we can put them," Corrections Secretary David Jones says, "We have no choice. . . what the courts send us, we have to take."

It is not, Jones said, a question of philosophy, but of law, and until the public and members of the General Assembly come to grips with the situation "our only course is to plan and budget by the law."

Up to one-third of the prison population (4,540 admissions during 1973, of a total 12,783) served time for offenses which did not pose an immediate threat to the community, were not predatory in nature. . . or dangerous either to persons or property, Prisons Chief Ralph Edwards said. These so-called victimless crimes are adding to the prison glut, and the prisoner generally is only there long enough to get an education in crime. Edwards believes.

Growth Seen

Faced with outspoken criticism of his proposal to spend some $100 million for new prisons (and revamping old ones) over the next two years, Jones is not proud of his projection that the current prison population of 12,065 will top 17,000 in just seven years.

But, he figures, as long as the judges send the people to prison, they have to be housed.

Jones agrees with the prison reform study group chaired by former State Senator Eddie Knox of Charlotte that some other answers must be enough prisons in the country to hold everybody."

But even with major changes in the law regarding who is sent to prison, and how long they stay there, Jones believes a major part of the prison construction program will be essential.

With conditions as they are at the prisons—especially at the 90-year-old Central Prison in Raleigh—"rehabilitation is not working. . . it can not work. . . it will not work. If you try to tell me you can get a rehabilitation program working in Central Prison you're dreaming," Jones said. The old buildings have got to be replaced with new ones designed to house modern programs, he said. Still, Edwards and Jones agree that the numbers of prisoners could be effectively trimmed if the law regarding victimless crimes are changed.

No Success

Edwards is particularly concerned with those short-term inmates who often are launched on a life of crime by their exposure to prison: "We do nearly, absolutely, nothing with short-terms. . . but the mood of the General Assembly and the general public to a great extent will control what happens, and the mood has not been shorter sentences. . . to the contrary."

Jones is outspoken in his criticism of present practice, summarizing it this way: "I can not understand why we take an alcoholic, recognized nationally as a disease, and put him in prison.

"We should not put him in prison, we should help him," Jones said.

Edwards has presented a report to the prison reform commission pin-pointing the numbers of prisoners serving time for victimless crimes. In that report, the commissioner of prisons noted that locking these people up is really ineffective and enormously costly. . . in excess of the expected outcome."

He is also concerned that local police spend a great deal of time involved in such cases, resulting in a decrease in police responsiveness to crimes "that are a real menace to life and property."

Alternatives such as community treatment, use of local jails for work release programs, split sentencing, etc., are suggested.

The 1973 admissions figures show the following categories of victimless crimes, and numbers of prisoners committed: Traffic (not driving drunk)—830; abandonment, non-support—507; habitual drunkenness—423; worthless checks—232; trespassing—140; drug possession—843; and miscellaneous—1,541. A total of 2,176 prisoners fell in the short-term classification, with sentences less than six months.

INSIDE REPORT

Ford's Crisis Is Growing

By ROWLAND EVANS

WASHINGTON — The crisis beginning to envelop President Ford following his disappointing first hundred days was symbolized last week when a top White House aide privately confided to another adviser his own "mystification" at the President's failure to make even a start at building a Ford-style administration.

That presidential aide has literally spent hour after hour in conversation with Mr. Ford. But the question of a long overdue housecleaning of what is still essentially the Nixon administration was never mentioned.

It is the President's tragic failure that he has not replaced cabinet members hired by his repudiated predecessor only as administrators, while real power was held in Nixon's White House staff. The aide suffering "mystification" is not the only high-level Ford man who deeply feels this failure. "I can think of no higher political imperative than getting a new cabinet," says one senior White House aide, adding that the process has not begun.

Far from redesigning the cabinets, Mr. Ford has not finished cleansing hardcore Nixonites from the White House staff.

Lawrence Higby, personal henchman of H.R. Haldeman who was privy to the secret of Nixon's Oval Office taping as early as the summer of 1970, is drawing $33,000 a year as a "special assistant" in the Office of Management and Budget (OMB).

The President may not know it, but powerful Republicans are infuriated by retention of hardcore Nixonite Higby, a fury having nothing to do with Higby performance but everything to do with the President's political sagacity. Mr. Ford's seeming inability to put his own presidency ahead of fanciful obligations to the tarnished Nixon legacy is now casting doubt about his basic political judgment.

His decision to travel to Japan is a case in point. With the lame duck 93rd Congress back in session this week, Mr. Ford's departure for Tokyo, Seoul and Vladivostok one day before the session convened, astonished and angered old cronies on Capitol Hill. There is far more worry in Congress over the President's strategy for handling the economic crisis than in abetting Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's stage-setting for another trip to Peking.

Yet, bowing to the Kissinger timetable, Mr. Ford made his decision "with not one word of serious strategy talks about the alternative," according to a White House insider. To one Republican Senator, Mr. Ford was mindlessly following the scenario of the Nixon presidency's most successful policy, inap-

Rockefeller Books, Inc.

WASHINGTON—"Gov. Rockefeller, there's a man outside and he says he has a book he'd like you to publish."

"I can't see anyone right now."

"He's been here three days and says he won't leave."

"All right, send him in."

"Mr. Rockefeller, my name's Lasky, and I'd like to do a biography of Harold Stassen. I thought you might publish it."

"I'm not in publishing any more. I lost a bundle on the Arthur Goldberg book."

"But Mr. Rockefeller, this is better than a Goldberg biography. Harold Stassen is one of the greatest men in the country. Everyone wants to read about him. You could sell a hundred thousand copies with your eyes closed."

"That's what they told me about the Goldberg book. They promised me that the Book-of-the-Month Club would take anything about a former justice of the Supreme Court. So I called up my brother, Laurence, and told him we were onto a good thing and asked him to go in on it with me. Now Laurence is sore as hell. He hates to lose money in a business deal."

"But Mr. Rockefeller, you can't just quit publishing because you had one flop. My book could put your company in the black."

"I don't know. It's not easy for a Rockefeller to have an investment that goes sour. We thought we had a sure thing with Goldberg. After all, he was a labor lawyer, a Supreme Court justice and an ambassador to the United Nations. You would have thought people would break down the bookstore doors to buy the book. We were even hoping to sell it to movies with Robert Redford playing Goldberg. But after the lousy sales, Redford didn't want to touch it. I don't know how we could have been so wrong as to what the reading public would go for."

"But my book has more excitement than Goldberg's. Harold Stassen is a legend in America. He was governor of Pennsylvania, president of a university and a presidential candidate four times. Redford would give his eyeteeth to play him in a movie."

"Well, I'll ask my brother. . . Miss Jones, get me Laurence. . . Laurence, Nelson here. . . Listen, I have a fellow in my office that wants to write a book on Harold Stassen. . . Don't hang up on me, Laurence! . . . I know you lost your shirt on the Goldberg book, but this seems to have more potential. . . Stassen has a lot more sex appeal than Goldberg. . . Laurence, will you stop shouting at me? I know I told you you'd double your money with a book on Goldberg, but how did I know the timing was wrong? So he wasn't as big a personality as we thought? Does that mean we should stay out of the publishing business? . . . Please Laurence, this could be our big break. We could become rich. I heard Robert Redford wants to play him in

Other Editors Say Dragon Slayer

(Tulsa Tribune)

One of America's favorite pastimes is to rail at government bureaucracy, but the growth in Civil Service employment indicates that the fun is becoming not only too expensive but also dangerous.

In a special study this week, U.S. News & World Report outlines the continuing trend toward ever fattening government payrolls and ever diminishing quality service. One worker in six occupies a government job, and many who have studied the pattern closely are saying the real rulers of the country may be the 14.5 million bureaucrats who are on the public payrolls.

Salaries and benefits for federal employees, alone add up to more than $41 billion a year. State and local costs are more than $100 billion annually.

The costs of supporting such an industry, one which doesn't have to show a profit, are staggering, but even more frightening is the fact that nobody knows how to control it.

Reform? Adm. Hyman Rickover, who made legions of enemies with his acerbic criticisms of waste in the Defense Department, said that would be "like asking a whale to fly."

"Only Congress can reduce the system's size and bring some order out of chaos. . ." he told a congressional committee.

One bureaucrat offered this advice: "If you want to reduce the size of the bureaucracy, the thing to do is cut back the number of government programs. The time has come to call a moratorium on the creation of public agencies."

The time indeed has come, but not simply for economic reasons. As U.S. News & World Report noted, about 1.7 million federal workers now belong to unions and, while strikes have been few, the potential, added to the reality of public employe strikes at state and municipal levels, suggests the kind of bureaucratic power that goes far beyond the capacity to frustrate the public.

The monster should be harnessed before it realizes its own strength. What this country needs is some professional dragon slayers in Congress.

Strength For Today

PREDESTINATION

Early in the history of the Reformed churches it was orthodox belief that certain men and women were born to be saved, others were just as surely born to be damned. This was called the doctrine of predestination, and it was a theological burden upon all who believed it.

But perhaps the worst aspect of predestination was that it is not Biblical. The Bible makes it plain that salvation is freely offered in the gospel to all people. Whosoever believeth in Christ is to be saved. That word "whosoever" is perhaps the most hopeful word in the whole scripture. It means you and me, whether we are black, white, or yellow; rich or poor, well-educated or ignorant; sick or well.

Although mankind must strive to live a good life, he achieves salvation not through this means but through faith. Fullness of life comes when a person turns from the unsatisfying things of the world and seeks his destiny in the perfect and eternal satisfactions which come from God.

Advice In Tight-Money Times

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Businessmen long ago found that one way of surviving lean times is to use somebody's else's money, mainly that of a supplier. Just delay the payment a month or so and you benefit from an interest-free loan.

Some of the best names in American industry have become slow payers when pinched. Some people claim Uncle Sam does the same thing. And based on relatively high delinquency figures on loans, individuals are aware of the practice.

The art or science of conserving and using money wisely during a combined inflation-recession-tight money period is far more complex than using other people's funds, however, as is indicated by an advisory to clients this month by Coopers & Lybrand, an accounting firm.

The firm lists three goals that cash-conscious companies should seek these days: acceleration of cash receipts, the accumulation and wise investment of cash for growth and yield, and a delay in cash payouts.

To accelerate cash receipts it suggested to clients that most businesses can benefit from the use of automatic transfer accounts, bank wire systems and electronic transfer arrangements to speed transactions.

In addition, it advised:

- Review the need of cashiers at various office and plant sites.
- Tighten due dates for all sales, and strengthen credit collections.
- Reconsider the effectiveness and rate of cash discounts to induce early payment.
- Tighten up on errors in billing which slow collections.
- Reduce delays in filling orders so that the bill will arrive sooner.
- Provide preaddressed return envelopes with invoices to encourage quick payment.
- Re-evaluate customer and product mix so as to emphasize sales with fastest cash conversion.
- These are some tactics recommended for delaying cash payouts and increasing payables:
- Curtail product lines; avoid replenishing slow-moving, high-cost items.
- Use the supplier's inventory instead of your own. Buy only what you need immediately, if that is feasible.
- Negotiate better terms on purchases, especially where delivery or construction delays are anticipated.
- Review tax options that will permit you to defer tax payouts; that is, through possible changes in inventory accounting and depreciation schedules.
- Review insurance coverage, including the timing of premium payments and the possible availability of loans.
- Provide employees in executive and employe compensation plans with non-cash, deferred benefits, instead of immediate cash payouts.
- As for obtaining cash and keeping it invested while still available for sudden needs, the accounting firm suggested:
- Invest short-term cash in money market institutions that permit unrestricted investment and withdrawal. Mutual funds which invest in bank certificates of deposit and high-grade commercial paper are possibilities.
- Offer new or Treasury shares to stockholders instead of dividends.

40 Years Ago Today

November 22, 1934

The annual Thanksgiving Day service, sponsored by the Greenville Ministerial Association, will be held at 10:30 a.m. Thursday with Rev. W.A. Ryan of the Eighth Street Christian congregation delivering the message.

The churches sponsoring this year's service are the Methodist, Presbyterian, Immanuel, Memorial Baptist and the Christian Church.

The Little Theatre Guild of Greenville will meet tonight to hear a reading of the first draft of the Christmas Festival to be presented December 21 at the high school.

The production is a series of playlets written by members of the Guild, and depicts the celebration of Christmas during the early days in Eastern North Carolina.

Eaton Corporation 'Toured' At Business Meeting

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Persons attending the Fall membership meeting of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association last night were given a tour through the "World of Eaton" by Alan Bethell, general manager of marketing for Eaton Corporation.

The presentation of the Citizen-of-the-Year Award, given annually by the Chamber of Commerce and scheduled for last night, was postponed. Chamber manager Harold Creech, explaining that the name of the recipient of the appropriate though it might be today.

All this is causing some agonizing reappraisal of Donald Rumsfeld, Mr. Ford's chief of staff. Rumsfeld gets high marks for constructing a staff system that has divided power among half a dozen aides, ending the centralized, dictatorial system established by Haldeman.

But Rumsfeld is bitterly blamed by some experienced Republican politicians for being "too nice" to his boss and failing to push unpleasant alternatives to what he thinks the President wants.

Moreover, Rumsfeld's systematizing of the White House staff has had the inadvertent result of reducing the President's time for informal political strategy talk in his office, particularly with Robert Hartmann, Mr. Ford's closest aide.

As it was told us by an insider: "Bob used to hover over the President, and most of it was damn helpful to Jerry. Now he doesn't get nearly as much time."

Indeed, except for Kissinger, the President is now spending more time with OMB director Roy Ash than any other single adviser, and that, too, is bad news for his old pals in Congress.

Ash, whose chilly personality and political clumsiness typified the later Nixon years, had been ticketed for quick exit from the administration than in boldy striking out for new faces and policies essential to give it a uniquely Fordian quality. Some discerning friends of the President view this failing as the syndrome of a longtime leader of a weak Republican House minority who, as President, has not yet come to grips with his vast new powers, or how to use them.

That might help explain Mr. Ford's misguided obedience to his disgraced predecessor, but it alarms the President's political friends and well-wishers. With recession deepening at home and war threatening again in the Middle East, they are demanding a show of authority and skill in the Oval Office sadly lacking today.

award is kept secret until the presentation, said this year's winner was out of town last night.

Eaton announced plans 18 months ago to construct a facility here to manufacture Yale electric industrial trucks. Construction of the plant, now is all but complete and production here is approaching 200 lift trucks a month, according to Robert R. Dahl, general manager of operations for materials handling group of Eaton, who introduced Bethell.

"Greenville has proved to be everything we'd hoped it would be," Dahl commented.

Dahl announced, too, that the dedication of the new production facility is scheduled for May 29. Bethell, a Harold, England native and a World War II British Army veteran, said "Greenville must be proud of its progress" over the past 200 years, but added, "we bring to Greenville a tradition of our own."

Saying Eaton is "the biggest company you've ever heard of," Bethell conducted the "tour" of Eaton by showing pictures of the company's manufacturing facilities and dealerships tion's jobless rate hit 6 per cent in October and is certain to rise higher because of widespread layoffs in the auto industry and the adverse economic impact of the coal strike.

In addition, food prices have shown little slowdown and are unlikely to because of poor crops. The increase in food prices during October was 1.3 per cent.

The overall increase in October consumer prices, including both food and non-food items, was nine-tenths of one per cent, down from 1.2 per cent in September and 1.3 per cent in August.

Simply put, the economic slowdown is working to restrain inflation because people are buying less, either because they are discouraged by the already high prices.

The overall increase in the cost of living during the first 10 months of this year is 10.6 per cent compared with an 8.8 per cent increase during all of 1973.

A worker's real spending earnings — which are earnings after taxes and after compensating for inflation — were down three-tenths of one per cent in October, and 4.9 per cent in the past year.

throughout the world, as well as many of the corporation's products.

Saying Eaton has 128 manufacturing plants in 22 countries, with $2 billion in sales this year, Bethell explained that the company is one of the nation's leading suppliers of automotive parts — producing such items as tire valves, fasteners, engine valves, and auto speed controls.

Eaton, too, is a major producer of hydrostatic transmissions for garden tractors, drive axles, power steering and cab air conditioners for large trucks and produces 80 per cent of the transmissions used in large trucks.

Yale locks, sliding doors, electronic eye card key systems, beverage dispensers, golf club grips (80 per cent of them), hoists, cranes, loaders, tree harvesters, log skidders and Yale lift trucks, are among Eaton's products.

Bethell noted that 30 per cent of the costs in manufacturing today are tied to materials handling. He noted that lift trucks produced by Eaton, help make more efficient use of manpower and thus reduce materials handling costs.

Yale industrial trucks, he noted, include hand trucks (both manual and electric powered) narrow aisle trucks, electric rider trucks (produced in Greenville) and gas rider models.

Yale trucks are sold in 130 countries in the world and produced in 10 plants worldwide. Greenville, presently with 172 employees, was Eaton's tenth Yale industrial truck facility. An estimated 550 persons are expected to be employed here when production reaches its peak.

"We play an important roll in improving productivity," Bethell emphasized.

William E. "Bill" McDonald, Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association president presided at the meeting.

Cash Flows In Winston-Salem

By ROBERT H. REID

a movie . . . You will do it? Thanks a lot, Laurance . . . Believe me, you won't be sorry . . . Goodbye.

"Okay, Mr. Lasky, you can go ahead with the project. How much of an advance do you want?"

"Ten thousand dollars."

"All right, now this is what I want you to do. Go to a telephone booth on Third Avenue and 59th Street at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon. A man will pick you up and take you to Grand Central Station and give you a key to a locker. In the locker you will find the name of a lawyer in Los Angeles. You're to fly out to L.A., and this lawyer will give you a check on a bank in St. Louis, Mo. You can fly to St. Louis and cash the check."

"Why can't you just give me a check now?"

"What? And have the public know the Rockefellers are back in the publishing business?"

The money flowed in after R. J. Reynolds Industries, a major cigarette manufacturer, paid off most of its employee profit-sharing plan last week. Although the company will not reveal the exact figure, a spokesman said the amount was at least $45 million and possibly as high as $100 million.

The money bolstered sales at a time when business was slumping.

"It's been a fantastic boost," said Ed Kelly, an appliance and television dealer. "It happened when sales were down and brought us back up to last year's level."

Reynolds instituted the profit-sharing plan in 1956 but terminated it in 1969. The money credited to employees who have remained with the company stayed in their accounts until Reynolds received a ruling from the Internal Revenue Service last week on how to close them out.

Employees who had joined the plan before 1969 were given four choices: take the money in cash, use the money to buy an annuity, take a combination of stock and cash or continue the full share in the profit sharing trust.

A company spokesman would

Await Violence Over Makarios

By ALEX EFTY
Associated Press Writer

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Archbishop Makarios' decision to return to Cyprus in the next two weeks raises the threat of new attacks by the 2,000 gunmen of the EOKA-B underground who helped to drive him from the presidency of Cyprus four months ago.

Acting President Glafcos Clerides conferred with Makarios in London Thursday and tried to convince him that he should delay his return. But the archbishop announced that he would come home by Dec. 7 "holding an olive branch to work for the unity of the people."

Makarios fled in July after narrowly escaping assassination by EOKA-B after the Greek officers of the Greek Cypriot National Guard overthrew his government. When the Greeks installed EOKA leader Nicos Sampson as president, the Turkish army invaded the island and occupied the northern third.

Clerides, Makarios' constitutional successor who replaced Sampson when the military dictatorship in Athens collapsed, warned before he went to London that pro-and anti-Makarios factions were preparing for armed action if the archbishop came back. He said this civil war among the Greek Cypriots "will lead Cyprus to complete destruction."

The EOKA men hate Makarios because he abandoned their goal of enosis, the union of Cyprus with Greece. British and American diplomats in Nicosia also openly oppose the archbishop's return because they believe he would be far more intransigent than Clerides in negotiations with the Turkish Cypriot.

Clerides has conceded that the Greek Cypriots must accept the division of Cyprus into federated Greek and Turkish Cypriot states. Makarios says he will never agree to this because it would mean partition of the island and eventual annexation of the Turkish Cypriot state by Turkey.

Burlington To Close 3 Plants

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Officials of Burlington Industries Inc. said Thursday that three plants in the Fayetteville area will close Thanksgiving week.

A company spokesman declined to specify how many workers would be affected, but indicated it would be several hundred.

Surplus inventories and a generally poor textile market were cited as the reason for the one-week closings.

The affected plants are Fayetteville, St. Pauls and Lake Dale.

Britons Urged Cool Anger Over Terrorist Bombing

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Home Secretary Roy Jenkins today pledged an all-out campaign against Irish terrorists after bombs killed 19 persons and fanned anti-Irish feeling in this second largest English city.

Grants Are Increased

RALEIGH (AP)—Gastonia will receive a $1.4 million increase in a federal grant and $1.1 million state grant for planning and construction of sewage treatment facilities.

The grants were among several approved Thursday by the state Environmental Management Commission.

Other increases were $442,000 to Kings Mountain; 5,000 to Cleveland County; $11,250 to Richmond County, and $11,250 to Brevard. The increases were needed because original estimates of costs were too low or the projects were expanded from original designs.

A state grant of $172,046 went to Spindale. Others included $72,925 for Valdese and $9,726 for Buncombe County.

Sewage treatment planning grants went to Denton, $25,500; Western Warren County, $15,000; Greater Washington, $63,750; Greater Albemarle, $75,000; Snow Hill, $30,000; Franklin, $22,500; Haywood County, $82,500; Hertford, $26,250; and Old Fort, $7,500.

The bomb explosions in two crowded bars Thursday night also injured 184.

In London Jenkins told the House of Commons that emergency laws may soon be introduced to combat terrorism in Britain, but he gave no details. He said he will make a further statement to Parliament Monday.

"There is no question of us submitting to a victory for terrorism and we are determined to demonstrate the will to win," declared Jenkins, who represents a Birmingham district in Parliament.

Countering fears that the Birmingham bombings could trigger a wave of vengeance attacks against Britain's Irish communities, Jenkins appealed to Britons to keep their tempers.

The public blamed the Irish Republican Army, whose if they take the law into their own hands, he warned, "the damage will be still greater and the victory for extremists and terrorists would be greater."

Big Family Invites Six Join Holiday Dinner

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — Joe Kappler's apartment may be a little crowded Thanksgiving Day with six of his seven children and the six senior citizens he's invited for a holiday dinner.

Kappler, 51, is on welfare disability for a back injury. He figures that what he can do for others, the 50 state gov-bombs have killed at least 30 other persons in England in the past two years. The death toll was the heaviest in any bombing in England or Northern Ireland since the war between Roman Catholic and Protestant extremists began in Ulster five years ago.

Gangs of youths took to the streets of Birmingham, shouting "Irish bastards" and "We hate the Irish!" A gasoline bomb was thrown through the window of a Catholic priest's house.

Mayor James Eames said the terrorist attack would undoubtedly build up hate and prejudice against Birmingham's sizeable Irish population.

"The Irish war has finally come to England," said John Stokes, a Conservative member of the House of Commons. He called for the death penalty "for the perpetrators of these appalling crimes."

There was speculation that the Birmingham Post said it received a telephone warning at 8:11 p.m. that bombs had been planted in the city. About 15 minutes later — between 8:20 and 8:30 — explosions devastated the crowded Mulberry Bush pub and the nearby Tavern in the Town, located in the Rotunda, a shopping and office center in the heart of Birmingham.

"In my many years of experience I have never seen anything like this," said a surgeon at one of three hospitals to which victims were taken. "We have got here every injury in the book."

"My pub has been completely destroyed," said Dick Lorne, proprietor of the Tavern in the Town. "There were about 200 people in it when the bomb went off and there may still be people buried in the rubble."

Police said they found two other bombs that failed to explode. One was on top of a 2,000-gallon oil tank at a hotel. Its detonator fired, but the explosive failed to go off, the police said.

Police said they found two other bombs that failed to explode. One was on top of a 2,000-gallon oil tank at a hotel. Its detonator fired, but the explosive failed to go off, the police said.

There was speculation that the Birmingham Post said it received a telephone warning at 8:11 p.m. that bombs had been planted in the city. About 15 minutes later — between 8:20 and 8:30 — explosions devastated the crowded Mulberry Bush pub and the nearby Tavern in the Town, located in the Rotunda, a shopping and office center in the heart of Birmingham.

"In my many years of experience I have never seen anything like this," said a surgeon at one of three hospitals to which victims were taken. "We have got here every injury in the book."

Congress Overturns Two Vetos By President Ford

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Overturning President Ford's vetoes, Congress has continued aid to the handicapped and cur-bed the government's power to keep secrets.

The Senate overrode the two vetoes Thursday, voting 65-27 to reject Ford's objections to the Freedom of Information Act amendments and 90-1 on the vocational rehabilitation measure.

The House overrode the same two vetoes Wednesday by votes of 371-31 and 398-7, respectively. A two-thirds vote is required in each chamber.

Ford now has been overridden on three of his 13 vetoes since he became President Aug. 9. The other was on a railroad retirement bill.

The Senate vote on the information bill enacted it into law. Ford had his strongest support in the Senate on this one because of objections to the measure from defense, intelligence and law enforcement agencies.

However, Senate sponsors insisted there was an overriding need to end government secrecy which they said had contributed to Watergate and the war in Vietnam.

The legislation would authorize federal judges upon request to examine documents to decide whether they should be made public and fix a 10-day limit for agency decisions on whether to supply information. The bill also would set a 30-day limit for the government to reply to freedom of information lawsuits; narrow the power of agencies to withhold law enforcement investigatory files, and require the keeping of an index of documents available to the public.

The vocational rehabilitation bill would change the way the Department of Health, Education and Welfare administers the 54-year-old program of job training for handicapped persons.

The measure would put the program in a new separate office directly under the HEW secretary, and Ford had objected to this as creating "new, unnecessary bureaucracies."

OK 2 Special Use Permits

The Board of Adjustments last night granted two requests for special use permits and one for a variance and denied a request for an administrative review.

A request by Mrs. Violet Stocks for a special use permit in order to operate a flea market in the structure located at the Pitt Fairgrounds was granted for a one-year period. The structure, located on the southeast corner of Airport Road and Memorial Drive, is on property zoned for Unoffensive Industry usage.

The board also granted a request by A & B Auto Service for a special use permit in order to operate a service station at 103 W. Ninth Street on property zoned for Downtown Commercial Fringe usage. The permit was granted with the provision that the business be operated as a service station and not as a junked-used car station.

William L. Johnson's request for a variance in order to construct an accessory building at 103 Kenilworth Road was granted. The property is currently zoned for R-15 (residential) usage.

The board upheld a decision by the building inspector denying a request by Burnest Griffin to repair the structure at 902 N. Clark Street and turned down Griffin's request for an administrative review. The board also granted a request by Mrs. Violet Stocks for a special use permit in order to operate a flea market in the structure located at the Pitt Fairgrounds was granted for a one-year period.

The board also granted a request by A & B Auto Service for a special use permit in order to operate a service station at 103 W. Ninth Street on property zoned for Downtown Commercial Fringe usage.

It is reported that some kinds of fish have developed a strong sense of smell to help them find food. Strangely enough, catfish are pleased by smells other fish and animals find objectionable.

property is located in an area zoned for Flood Plain usage.

Public hearings were conducted on all of the requests.

In one final matter, board members voted to cancel the December meeting and not have a session during the month. The regular meeting date of the board would have fallen on Dec. 26.

Agnew Said Prospering

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is reportedly making $100,000 a year from one business venture and might have another six-figure income from commissions, but he is still unhappy over Watergate.

"I'm bitter," Agnew is quoted as saying in the December issue of McCall's magazine.

"I'll never get over the distortions and inaccuracies in the press. I don't like 90 per cent of the press. I don't need the press," Agnew adds in the article.

Following his conviction on a tax evasion charge and resignation as vice president, Agnew began a career as a business broker. Now he "could be well on his way to becoming a millionaire," says Nick Thimmesch, author of the article.

According to the magazine story:

—Agnew has used an unspecified advance on an uncompleted novel to finance Pathlite Inc., a land-owning, managing and consulting firm.

—He also has a four-year contract with Midwest land developer Walter Dilbeck that pays $100,000 annually, plus one third of profits.

—He is negotiating a potential $5 or $6 million deal for the rich Kuwait International Investment Co. that could bring in a six-figure commission for the former vice president.

Service League In Grifton Asks Contributions

GRIFTON—The Grifton Service League needs donations of clothing for its clothing closet and thrift shop.

Mrs. Linwood Thomas and Mrs. Glenn Caraway, thrift shop chairman, stated used clothing are always needed for their projects, especially during the holiday season.

Baby clothes, children's clothes, shoes and items of any size for any age are welcome.

The Thrift Shop, located behind the Grifton Gas Company, is open Saturday afternoons from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. The clothing closet at the Grifton School is stocked with a complete size range of clothing which is loaned in case of clothing accidents at the school or given in case of need.

Catholic Bishops Urge U.S. Food Aid Increase

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Roman Catholic bishops have called for major increases in United States aid to poor nations and for two days of fasting a week by this country's 48.5 million Catholics.

"We also urge resistance to advertising and other forms of social pressure which promote affluent and wasteful eating habits," the bishops declared Thursday in a pastoral plan to help meet the world food crisis. Fasting generally means eating only one full meal a day. "We urge the whole Catholic community — priests, religious and laity — to join with us in observing at least two days a week as days of fast," the bishops said.

The plan, drawn up by a committee headed by Terence Cardinal Cooke of New York, asked the United States to act immediately to boost allocations of food to hungry areas without regard to political or strategic motives.

The National Conference of Catholic Bishops also urged trade preferences for poor nations and changes in the free market system whenever it "stands in the way of justice."

In other action, the bishops for the first time took a national stand against the death penalty.

Their action came in the midst of efforts in a number of states to restore the death penalty.

After wrestling with the question for three days, the bishops adopted a one-sentence statement putting them on record in opposition to capital punish-

WILL TRY TO SHOW A PROFIT — Arnell Beckman of Coon Rapids, Minn., poses with the calf he will feed for the next 18 months in an effort to show a profit and prove National Farmers Organization members wrong in their recent slaughter of more than 600 calves in Wisconsin to protest dwindling profits. Beckman ended up with the calf when he wrote an angry letter to farmer Orville Voeltz of Emerald, Wis. after the NFO slaughter with the challenge that he'd take one of the calves and raise it for profit. Voeltz accepted the challenge and delivered the two-week old Holstein calf to Beckman, who is now raising it in his back yard. (AP Wirephoto)

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP)(NCDA)—Hog market steady to 50 cents higher Friday. Tops 38.25-38.75 Rocky Mount; 36.50-37.00 Tarboro and Bethel; 39.50 Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Elizabethtown, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourn, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson; 37.50 Salisbury.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market put on its first show of strength in nearly two weeks today with a broad technical rally sparked by another prime rate cut at New York's First National City Bank.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 7.12 at 615.69, and gainers outpaced losers by more than 4 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was fairly active after a 15-minute delay at the start because of a fire drill at the NYSE.

Brokers ascribed the buying partly to Citibank's reduction of its prime from 10 1/4 to 10 percent—a full 2 percentage points below the peak it reached this past summer.

They also noted several favorable technical factors, including encouragement at the market's relative steadiness Thursday while it absorbed the news of the Justice Department's antitrust suit against American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

AT&T shares rebounded 3/4 to 43 1/2 from their 3-point decline Thursday.

In the glamor group, McDonald's was ahead a point at 33 1/2, Avon Products rose 1 to 28 1/2, Digital Equipment 1 1/2 to 59 1/2, and Merck 1 1/2 to 64 1/2.

GD, Searle, the most-active issue on the Big Board, was off 1/2 at 15 1/2. A 190,000-share block traded at 15 1/2.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite common-stock index as of 47 at 36.67.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index inched up .02 to 64.11.

Houston Oil & Minerals, the Amex volume leader, climbed 3/4 to 26 1/2.

Earth Shock In S.C.

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—An earthquake measuring 4.5 on the Richter scale shook a wide area around Charleston early today but apparently caused no major damage and no injuries.

There were reports of dormitory evacuations in Charleston but spokesmen for Baptist College and Charleston said this morning the accounts were unfounded.

The shock was recorded by the Earthquake Information Service at Boulder, Colo., at 12:25 a.m.

Residents in a wide area of the state—from Conway in the northeast to Edgefield and Saluda in the southwest, including Columbia—reported feeling the earth shake. Many said it sounded like a muffled explosion.

First reports of the shock came from the Charleston and Summerville areas. Then residents of surrounding counties began besieging radio stations, newspapers and law enforcement officials with calls.

A three to four-foot crack in a wall at Baptist College was one of the more serious effects of the earthquake. Students there also said cracks appeared in bathroom walls around plumbing fixtures.

A resident of Edgefield County on the South Carolina-Georgia border said the tremor "shook my house real good."

A Columbia woman said, "It shook the whole house. If that was a slight tremor, I don't want to feel a big one."

The shocks were the third in three months in South Carolina. One measuring 3 on the Richter scale was recorded Oct. 29 at Edgefield, while a 4.5 earthquake occurred Aug. 2 in western South Carolina and northern Georgia.

Charleston was the center of one of the nation's most disastrous earthquakes nearly a century ago. On Aug. 31, 1886, an earthquake extensively damaged the city and resulted in 92 deaths.

Cover-Up Defense Will Begin Monday

By MIKE SHANAHAN Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — After 6 1/2 weeks of hearing 26 witnesses and more than 20 hours of White House tapes, the prosecution in the Watergate cover-up trial is ready to rest its case.

Four final prosecution witnesses, including former White House aide Egil "Bud" Krogh, are scheduled to testify today before the defense begins its case, probably on Monday.

In White House tapes presented Thursday, former President Richard M. Nixon was heard at least five times expressing worry that former White House counsel John W. Dean III may have secretly carried a tape recorder under his armpit during a March 21, 1973 meeting. Dean and Nixon talked at that meeting about paying money to the original Watergate defendants.

Concerned because Dean had begun cooperating with Watergate investigators in early April 1973, Nixon asked cover-up defendant H.R. Haldeman on the evening of April 25 if there was any way Dean "might have walked in there (to the White House Oval office) with a recorder on him?"

Haldeman dismisses the likelihood, but Nixon persists in examining the possibility because he was curious about what Dean may have told prosecutors about the March 21 discussion of $1 million in potential hush money requirements. Nixon presses Haldeman on how a tape recorder might be hidden and not be seen.

"I'd think that it's a little, it's, it's, even the smallest ones are bulky enough that you mean, with a fellow like Dean you'd sort of see that, wouldn't you? Where do you carry them, in your hip pocket or your breast pocket?"

Haldeman: "Oh, under your arm, you know, where they carry a pistol holster or something."

Nixon, who had earlier described a possible Dean tape recording as "a real bomb," went on to speculate how Dean's word would stand up against that of a president's.

Haldeman said if Dean had only his own records of the March 21 meeting to rely on, "there's no check."

Nixon: "Oh well, on that we'll destroy him (Dean)."

On another of the four tapes heard by the jury Thursday, Nixon speculates, "I just wonder if the son-of-a-bitch had a recorder on him. I didn't notice any but I wasn't looking."

Haldeman guesses in that conversation again that Dean carried no secret recorder, if only because the former White House counsel had no reason to believe that Nixon would say, as he did, that money for the original seven Watergate defendants could easily be raised.

"He had no thought that you were going to say anything like this," said Haldeman, who had just listened to the March 21 tape and was giving Nixon an account of the meeting.

Haldeman: "Oh, under your arm, you know, where they carry a pistol holster or something."

Pres. Ford...

Asked at one stop if he had ever seen anything like the Korean welcome in Grand Rapids, Mich., his home town, Ford jokingly replied: "Yes, but on a smaller scale."

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger responded for the first time to critics of the visit who argue that Ford's presence lends moral support to Park's dictatorial government.

Kissinger told newsmen aboard Air Force One that Ford in his meeting with Park undoubtedly would "call attention to the impact of Korea's domestic politics" on American opinion. He added, however, that the U.S. government has only a "very limited capacity" to effect political changes in South Korea.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford had no intention of meeting with any leaders of the anti-Park movement.

After his tumultuous welcome, Ford flew to Camp Casey, an American base manned by some of the 38,000 U.S. troops in Korea. He ate fried chicken with the enlisted men and watched part of a rough game of football and an exhibition of taekwondo, a Korean form of karate.

Ford spent less than two hours at Camp Casey, then donned a red and black Korean jacket presented to him by an enlisted man and stood up in an open jeep as he rode to his helicopter.

Returning to Seoul, he met with President Park.

His schedule also included a reception and state dinner.

No major announcements were expected from Ford's visit. It was considered to be mainly a reaffirmation of the U.S. defense commitment to South Korea.

The overnight stop in Seoul followed a four-day visit to Japan, the first by a U.S. president. Ford and Kissinger leave South Korea Saturday morning and after a refueling stop in Japan go on to Vladivostok, the Soviet Union's chief Far Eastern port, for a summit conference with Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Christine Hemby Tatum of the home; one son, Ronnie Tatum of Norfolk, Va.; one daughter, Ruby Jean of New Haven, Conn.; one stepdaughter, Mrs. Delois Crandall of Baltimore, Md.; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Tatum of Greenville; five brothers, James and William C. Tatum, both of Greenville, Thomas Tatum of Norfolk, Va.; Leroy and Frank Tatum, both of Newark, N.J.; five sisters, Mrs. Blanche Hopkins of Greenville, Mrs. Sistles Gaines and Mrs. Mary Smith, both of Norfolk, Va.; and Mrs. Verna Langley of Germany; five grandchildren; one foster brother, Jolly Atkinson of Greenville.

Title On Line As Bucs Face Keydets

VMI Might Be On The Rise

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

LEXINGTON, Va. — Virginia Military Institute graduated five seniors off last year's team, and to many coaches that might seem like there are trouble ahead.

But for VMI's Bill Blair, it's not quite as bad as it might seem. "At the end of the year last winter, we were playing four freshmen a great deal. So we're going to be young in one sense, but we do have a lot of experience back."

In fact, there is only one senior on the VMI roster for this year, 6-7 forward Steve Chapin. There are also only two juniors, 6-1 guard Curt Reppart and 6-6 forward Tom Watjen. Everyone else is either a sophomore (three lettermen, one non-letterman) or a freshman (four).

"We did lose a great deal of quickness, but we didn't lose a lot of real schooling ability and scoring punch. We hope to show improvement in both our shooting ability and our offense."

Blair feels that he has a solid pair of guards in sophomore John Krovic (6-4) and Reppart. Krovic at 14.4 was the leading scorer on the team last year, in fact, he was the only one in double figures. Reppart, however, at 8.3 was regarded as the type who could blossom at any moment. "These two fellows can play with anyone," Blair said.

Chapin will be moving to a forward spot after being in the post last year. "He's a strong kid," Blair said, "and he should rebound well for us."

"But, Blair is still unsure about who he'll be starting in the center slot. He has several candidates for the job, including 6-9 freshman Drew Stone, 6-6 freshman Dave Montgomery, and 6-7 sophomore George Borojevich. Also back is 6-6 Will Bynum, who'll probably see a lot of action both as a forward and a center. "He's good at a lot of things, and he's a great defensive player. We'll probably have him on our opponent's top scorer in the front court."

Watjen is looked for to provide depth in the forward position, while Ron Carter, a 6-3 freshman will probably see a lot of play. "He's going to be good," Blair said. "And Montgomery has a lot of raw talent."

The Keydets last year, and for several years back, have been a slow-moving, deliberate team, but Blair expects them to be more of a running team this year. "We want to shoot more, and we feel we can score more. I think this will bring us further. We were the 13th most improved team in the nation last year, and we lost a lot of close ones. We think a different offensive approach could improve us even more."

"I think we can play with anyone in our league—and this is what we want—to be competitive in the conference," Blair said.

VMI's football team this year has provided a lot of difference in the attitude toward the basketball program. Last year, VMI's top recruit left school due to the hazing of the upperclassmen. But this year, Blair notes, a lot of that has changed. "We've found out that we can win in athletics at VMI."

It's helped our attitude in basketball, and we're out to get into the important top four positions. And I think it would be a mistake to overlook us."

One writer questioned Blair over the lack of "class" teams on VMI's schedule—as is usual. "Well," the coach said, "we want our kids to get a winning background. You can't do this by playing the top people unless you're in their class. Our schedule will be upgraded again next year, and the year after. But we're learning to win this year."

Buc Wrestlers Opening Season

The East Carolina wrestling team will open its 1974-75 season this weekend when the Pirates travel to East Stroudsburg, to participate in the East Stroudsburg Open.

The East Stroudsburg Open is recognized as one of the toughest collegiate wrestling tournaments in the country with more than 200 team and individual wrestlers competing for championships. East Carolina

Oilers-Cowboys Game Sold Out

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers, riding a four-game National Football League winning streak, announced Thursday their game this Sunday in the Astrodome against the Dallas Cowboys was a sellout and would be televised in Houston.

It was the first regular season sellout for the Oilers since 1972. The Oilers have also sold about 3,000 of the 5,000 standing room spaces at the Astrodome.

Astos' Opener Against Braves

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros are to open their 1975 National League baseball season April 7 in the Astrodome against the Atlanta Braves.

Spec Richardson, the Astros' general manager, also said the league opener will be preceded by three home exhibition games against Texas of the American League on April 4-6.

The initial league home stand includes three games against the Braves and three with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

For the past two football seasons the East Carolina University Pirates have been the champions of the Southern Conference.

But their two year reign has come to an end. There is no way they can capture the title this year, having lost twice, to Appalachian State University and to Richmond.

They can, however, decide whether Appalachian State, or this Saturday's foe, Virginia Military Institute, will be the champs.

At 1:30 p.m. in Lexington, Virginia, the Pirates will meet the Keydets, and for VMI, the title will definitely be on the line. Currently, VMI and ASU are tied for first place in the league with 4-1 records. VMI can win outright with a victory, making them 5-1, since Appalachian has concluded its year. But a loss would give the title to the Mountaineers.

The Pirates, who still think that they are the best team in the league, will be out to prove that contention, by downing the Keydets and more or less handing the title to Appalachian State—and at least keeping the crown within North Carolina.

Coach Bob Thalman's Keydets surprised the entire Southern Conference by taking a 7-0 victory over pre-season top challenger Furman University in the first game of the season. It looked even better when Furman went on to beat Richmond and William & Mary back to back, and then take East Carolina down to the wire, winning in all but the final score.

The victory apparently boosted the Keydet morale. Late last spring, when quarterback Tom Schultze quit school, the Keydets were assigned to the cellar in the league in all the pre-season polls. Well, not really to the cellar. They were already there. They were just pushed deeper into it.

But Thalman went out and found a quarterback in senior Tony Farry, and he's done the trick for the Keydets. They've made the switch from a pass-oriented team to a ground game one, and behind the sprinting of tailback Ronnie Norman and fullback Kim Glidewell, they have done the trick.

Not that the Keydets can't pass. They can when they want to, which isn't really all that necessary. They still have one of the league's top receivers in Ronnie Moore.

Moore is also the deep man on kicks and is dangerous in both. He stands second in the conference in both kickoff and punt returns.

But strangely enough, the Keydets haven't put the statistics on the boards. They are in the bottom half of the league in total offense, total defense, rushing offense, passing offense and pass defense. They stand only fourth in rushing defense.

But they are second in scoring and third in score defense—one statistic that can be overlooked.

For East Carolina, it will be quite a test. The Bucs after being miserable at the pass all year, finally got their passing game going against William & Mary last week, and it proved to be a key factor in the game.

But in Lexington, passing may be next to impossible, as a very cold afternoon is expected. Cold fingers make ball catching next to impossible.

"We've got to go up there and win physically," Coach Pat Dye said. "We're not going to be able to outstart or outpace them. And I think the weather will play a key role in the outcome."

Because he expects it to be so cold, Dye isn't looking to put the ball into the air as much as he did last week against the Indians. "It would be foolish in such weather—just to put it up to see it flying through the air—only to be dropped." So the Bucs, Dye plans, will stick to their grind-em-out ground game.

"We are going to try and play the best defense we can, and be very conservative. We want to keep the ball as long as we can, and at the same time prevent them from forcing us into mistakes—something they've been very good at this year against other teams."

VMI will attack the Pirates out of the I-formation, sometimes, lining up all three backs behind the quarterback in a full-house I. "They like to run straight at you," Dye said. "They have a huge line, well over 220 a man, and they run both behind their All-Conference lineman, Andy Dearman, and behind Jerry Codutti, on the other side. They also like to run power sweeps, sprints and leads. Farry will keep the ball every now and then, too, just to fake you. But they haven't worked the option much this year."

There is no question that the Keydets will be ready for the game. "I feel we'll be ready, too," Dye said. "We've tried to approach the game just as if we were playing for the title too. We have a lot of pride and our seniors want to finish winners."

Hunt, Lee Are Back On Team

East Carolina University Basketball coach Dave Patton has reinstated two members of his team that he had earlier placed on probation, allowing them to rejoin the team for practice yesterday.

Patton has suspended sophomore guard Reggie Lee, the leading returning scorer from last year's team, along with sophomore Larry Hunt, who was slated in pre-season to fill the center spot, two weeks ago for "violation of training rules."

The two had not been allowed to practice with the team until Patton lifted the suspension yesterday. "They will continue to be under probation for the remainder of this season," he said.

"I feel that as a basketball coach, part of my job is to help the students who work under me. This is what I feel I must do for these two young men, and I think that allowing them to rejoin the team will be in their best interests now."

The Pirates have just over a week of practice left prior to their season opener next Saturday in Raleigh against the N.C. State Wolfpack, the defending national champions.

Final Week Has Baines In Lead

Joe Jenkins strikes again!
Joe struggled through the early weeks of the season, battling to keep his head above the .500 mark. But these last few weeks, he's come on strong.

Oh, he's still in last place, but he's come on strong. Again this past week, he was the leader—at least he shared the lead. He and Diane Allen both came through with 9-3 weeks, while the rest of us struggled to an 8-4 outcome.

There were not as many upsets this past week, and that might have had an effect on us.

By staying even with the rest of us, Tom Baines held his lead, and it looks like he's going to be the champ for this year, since this is the final pick week of the year. He's going down to the wire with an 83-37 record. George Holland is four games back with a 79-14 record, while this writer is one behind him at 78-42. Next comes Diane Allen with a 74-46 mark, Jack Whichard at 72-48 (last year's champ), and Joe Jenkins at 69-51.

Our high school season for this year is over. The only team still playing is Robersonville, and we've incorporated them into this week's panel picks. So our individual record for high school games ended up with 53 right out of 63 picks during the season, a percentage of 84.1 per cent.

As we said, Robersonville, on the path to a 2-A State Championship, is playing host to Hallsboro tonight. The Eagles have been flying high, rolling over everyone they've played in 2-A ranks. Hallsboro will probably be their toughest opponent to date, but our panel, many of them trying to figure out what a Hallsboro is, instead of where it is, (It's down near Lake Waccamaw) have finally settled on a decision. We pick Robersonville to win.

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

East Carolina University, its chances of a Southern Conference title shot, will be trying to determine who will win it. The Bucs go to VMI Saturday. If VMI wins the game, they'll be the conference champions in one of the biggest surprises of the century. If the Pirates win, Appalachian State will take the title. Our own personal opinion is still that the Pirates are the best team in the league and should have won it outright.

Nevertheless, I'm the lone member of the panel that is picking VMI to win it. Hope I'm wrong, but playing up there against a hostile crowd and a team that is going to be sky-high. . . . Anyway the panel makes the Pirates a 5-1 choice.

In other consensus picks, it's The Citadel over Davidson; Wake Forest to snap the nation's longest current losing streak by beating Furman; Clemson to top South Carolina in Death Valley; Maryland to top Virginia, ending Sonny Randle's first year with the Cavaliers; Penn State to beat Pittsburgh for the Pennsylvania state title; Harvard to down Yale for the Ivy League title; Richmond to beat William & Mary in the annual Sonny Randle Memorial Losers' Bowl; North Carolina to outscore Duke; Southern California to take the Rose Bowl bid over UCLA, and Virginia Tech to down West Virginia in a game to round out the list.

VMI Worked For Honors

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

Coach Bob Thalman says Virginia Military's football Keydets "have worked a long time to be No. 1" in the Southern Conference and "this Saturday we'll have the opportunity to do just that. I'm confident we'll be ready."

The Keydets, 4-1 in the league and already assured their first winning season since 1967 with a 6-4 over-all record, play host to East Carolina's Pirates, 7-3 over-all and out of contention for their third straight league crown with a 3-2 record.

A victory will give VMI its first conference championship since 1962 and its finest over-all record since the 1960 team went 7-2-1. A tie or an East Carolina triumph will hand the league title to Appalachian State's Mountaineers, who have completed a 4-1 conference season.

Two other league games are on the Saturday afternoon schedule.

Richmond's Spiders, 3-2 in the league and 5-4 over-all, play host to William and Mary's Indians, 1-3 and 3-7, and The Citadel's Bulldogs, 2-4 and 3-7, shooting for fifth place in the standings at home against Davidson's Wildcats, 0-2 and 2-6.

In the lone nonconference affair, Furman's Paladins—a disappointment with a 5-5 over-all record—go after their second straight winning season at winless Wake Forest of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Should both East Carolina and Richmond win, they and VMI would wind up in a three-way tie for second place.

East Carolina leads the conference in rushing with an average of 283.2 yards per game, while VMI—with Ronnie Norman having run for 938 yards and Kim Glidewell for 705—is averaging 210.8 yards per game on the ground.

But the Pirates, who rarely had thrown the ball in their first nine starts, went to the air last week to beat William and Mary, and Coach Pat Dye says, "We'll throw against VMI win, lose or draw. The pass has been there all year, but something always went wrong. . . ."

Because Appalachian did not play VMI or William and Mary, "two of the league's better clubs, we just have to beat those two for them," says Dye. "We are going to help win the title for Appalachian."

Thalman says "no one could have known that the season would work out this way and the scheduling would put all the marbles on the line right here in Lexington."

"We are excited about being in position to win the championship but especially being able to do it right here in our own back yard."

Speaking of the controversy over the future of William and Mary athletics, on which an announcement was due late today, Coach Jim Root says, "We've got to get some kind of reward for sticking together through all this mess."

Whether that means a victory over Richmond remains to be seen.

The Indians' Bill Deery, averaging 166.8 yards per game, and the Spiders' Harry Knight, averaging 159.3, will settle the league title in total offense. Deery has averaged 86.4 yards per game rushing, Knight 158.7 passing, in which he leads the conference. "This is an important game to our program," says Coach Bobby Ross of The Citadel about the Bulldogs' scrap with Davidson. "We must win if our game last weekend against Furman (a 24-0 victory) is to mean anything. Davidson has an exceptional passing game. . . ."

The Bulldogs' Andrew Johnson has rushed for 1,266 yards and needs just 44 to break the conference one-season record of 1,309 set two years ago by East Carolina's Carlester Crumpler. Furman, rated a darkhorse contender for the league title before the season, has been hurt by turnovers. At times, the Paladins have looked like the league's best team. At other times, they've looked like the worst.

For the last four weeks, the performance has alternated. This is the week the Paladins are due to be on their best behavior.

S. Alamanace Wins Mat Title

BETHEL — Southern Alamanace High School, which finished third in the state last year, captured first place in the North Pitt Invitational Wrestling Tournament held yesterday at North Pitt.

Southern Alamanace finished the event with 118½ points, just edging out New Bern, which finished second with 112½.

Wilmington's Hoggard High School finished third with 91, while D. H. Conley had 64 and North Pitt had 51. Two other teams which had been scheduled to participate, Farmville Central and Rocky Mount, withdrew.

While Southern took the team trophy, New Bern walked away with both the individual honors, winning both the Most Outstanding Wrestler trophy, and the Most Falls-Least Time trophy. The first went to Terry Weaver, who won the 105-pound class, while the second went to Alex Shelton, who was the 126-pound class winner.

Overall, Southern Alamanace won seven individual weight classes, while New Bern took four. Hoggard and Conley each won one title.

VMI Stats Not That Good

Looking at the statistics of the Southern Conference, one would never guess that Virginia Military Institute is battling for the Southern Conference championship this Saturday.

The Keydets, as a team, rate in the upper division of the league in only one category in offense and defense. That's in rushing defense, where they are fourth ranked.

But somehow or another, they are getting the points and stopping their opponents. They rank second in scoring and fourth in score defense.

East Carolina, which plays VMI on Saturday afternoon in Lexington, leads the league in both offense and defense when it comes to the rush, and is also the scoring leader.

In total offense, The Citadel has moved into the lead with a 327.8 average per game. East Carolina ranks second at 325.7, with William & Mary just a hair back at 325.6. Furman and Richmond both are picking up over 300 yards each with 320.3 and 303.4 marks, respectively. VMI ranks sixth with a 279.8 average.

The Pirates are on top in rushing offense, picking up 283.2 yards a game. William & Mary is second with a 241.1 mark, while Furman is averaging 230.1, The Citadel 224.0 and VMI, 210.8.

Swim Meet Saturday

Greenville Swim Club, under head coach Tom Adams will meet the Kinston Swim Club on Saturday, at 11 a.m. at Minges Natatorium.

This age group meet involves children 6 through 18 years of age. The public is invited to attend without charge.

All children interested in learning more about the competitive swim program in Greenville, are urged to attend.

Redskins In Finals

The Redskins gained a berth in the finals of the Recreation Department's tag football playoffs yesterday with a 7-6 win over the Dolphins.

The Redskins scored first, getting their only touchdown in the first half of the game. Tom Brown took it in from seven yards out, then carried over the decisive PAT.

The Dolphins came back in the second half, scoring with 48 seconds left to play. The score came on a 15-yard pass from Leroy Harris to Demarris Edwards. The PAT attempt that would have tied it up, however, failed.

The Redskins will meet the Cowboys this afternoon for the title.

The Recreation Department will also sponsor a tackle All-Star game between a Greenville team and a team from Mt. Olive on Saturday at Ficklen Stadium. Kickoff is set for 1 p.m.

At Union Carbide we mine or process the alloying metals that make possible this special steel and hundreds of others.

We produce over 60 different alloys and alloying metals.

Manganese, tungsten, silicon, chromium, vanadium.

Not exactly household words. But — combined with iron, aluminum and other metals — they have transformed the world we live in.

If it weren't for alloys there would be no high-strength steels for buildings and bridges.

Deer Hunters Find Bodies Of Two Kidnap Victims In Ga.

MACON, Ga. (AP) — A lawyer for Paul John Knowles has agreed to reveal the location of a tape-recorded diary which police believe may reveal a trail of violent crime.

Attorney Sheldon Yavitz of Miami, Fla., who previously had refused to lead authorities to the tapes, appeared Thursday at a hearing in West Palm Beach, Fla. He handed over a list of the tapes and their locations to Circuit Judge Russell McIntosh.

The judge read the list, then ordered it sealed.

An FBI agent also testified at the Florida hearing that Yavitz had asked Knowles to make the tapes because the lawyer did not want to become a party to crimes to which Knowles had confessed.

Agent Eugene Flynn of Miami testified that Knowles hired Yavitz on Oct. 26 to represent him "in any future arrests in the United States."

"He (Knowles) began to relate crimes of violence up to a point where Mr. Yavitz didn't want to hear any more—didn't want to be a party to the crimes," Flynn said.

After the hearing, Yavitz was returned to Macon where he and his wife were being held on contempt of court charges for refusing to tell a federal grand jury the location of Knowles' diary.

Earlier in the day, two deer hunters discovered the bodies of two men whom Knowles had been charged with kidnaping.

The bodies of Florida State Trooper Charles E. Campbell, 35, and James E. Meyer, 29, of Wilmington, Del., were found lying head-to-head in an isolated wooded area about 30 miles south of Macon. Police said each man had been shot once in the back of the head about five days before.

The discovery ended an intensive search of central Georgia by hundreds of officers and volunteers. The search began Saturday when Campbell and Meyer were reported to have been kidnaped.

Authorities said they would continue a more limited search of the Macon area for Debbie Griffin, 20, who was believed to have been hitchhiking earlier this month with Edward A. Hilliard of Gainesville, Fla. Hilliard was found shot to death in the Macon area.

Knowles, paroled from a Florida prison last spring, has been charged with murder in the Nov. 6 deaths of Carswell Carr and his 15-year-old daughter, Mandy, of Milledgeville—30 miles northeast of Macon.

Knowles also was charged with kidnaping Campbell and Meyer and with attempted rape in West Palm Beach, the charge which was before Judge McIntosh.

Police say authorities in five states—Georgia, Florida, Ohio, Alabama and New Mexico—have asked to question Knowles in connection with recent slayings.

Knowles, 28, was being held in the Monroe County jail in nearby Forsyth. The Georgia Bureau of Investigation ordered him transferred from Macon Wednesday "because of the publicity and distractions of the Bibb County jail," a spokesman said.

Three Florida state troopers were killed in the line of duty last year, including Claude Baker, described as Campbell's best friend. After Baker's death, his wife asked Campbell to carry Baker's gun and Campbell had it with him Saturday when he was abducted.

Part Of Loot Under Cement

CHICAGO (AP) — The FBI has disclosed that about $2.2 million of the $4.3 million stolen Oct. 20 in the largest cash burglary in U.S. history has been found under fresh cement in a West Side basement.

Federal and local officials said Thursday night the money was found in the basement of a bungalow, buried in a seven-foot hole and covered with five inches of fresh cement.

Most of the money was in small bills of $10 and $20 denominations, authorities said.

The house belonged to Dorothy Marrera, the grandmother of one of the six men charged in connection with the robbery.

Officials said Mrs. Marrera has been ill and was living with her daughter. Her grandson, Ralph Marrera, was the guard on duty at the Purolator Security, Inc., vault the night the money was taken.

U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson praised the cooperation of law enforcement agencies which helped in the recovery.

He refused, however, to say who tipped off authorities.

Thompson said the money was found by agent Maureen Higgins.

The six men were arrested within 10 days of the burglary and charged with bank larceny, bank burglary and illegal use of explosives. They are being held in lieu of bond.

Authorities believe a large part of the balance still missing may be in banks in the Bahamas, where two of those charged were arrested. The banks of the Bahamas, which operate under the Swiss rules of secrecy, have refused to divulge how much was deposited by the men arrested.

Charged in the theft in addition to Marrera are James Mantiatis, 53, of Worth; Peter J. Gushi, 47, of Oak Lawn; Pasquale Charles Marzano 42, of Cicero; William Anthony Marzano, 31, his cousin, and Luigi M. Difonzo, 27.

Public Offers Solutions For Transit Need

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A bus propelled by passengers pumping on a set of pedals. Put commuters into capsules and shoot them onto passing trains. Cushions on top of the trains would soften the landings.

A string of electromagnets to propel vehicles.

How do these ideas grab you as solutions to the mass transit problem?

They are among more than 12,000 responses to a nationwide advertising campaign by Atlantic Richfield Co. of Los Angeles, asking for ideas on public transportation.

Some are fantastic suggestions from children and others are seriously thought out proposals by business and professional people.

"There is some junk," said George V. Kriste, an Arco attorney who heads the team handling the mail. "But the percentage who take it seriously is very high—70 per cent to 80 per cent or more. The ideas may be obsolete, or far-fetched, but most are serious."

Arco says it will publicize some ideas and pass others on to appropriate government agencies.

A team of readers throws out ideas which are obviously impractical or already in use. Ideas that seem to have a glimmer of hope are forwarded to a second review board composed of graduate students in transportation and urban planning.

The ideas that survive the second screening go on to a panel of professors of urban planning, architecture and transportation.

Not all of the ideas are new.

Robert E. Spaulding, a retired architect of Mount Prospect, Ill., sent in a drawing he did in 1930 when he was fresh out of college with no job. The drawing shows rail cars traveling between alternate sides and carried downtown.

One man suggested that commuters use single-seat, wedge-shaped cars that could be rolled onto railroad flatcars from alternate sides and carried downtown.

A woman suggested that buses be built so the seats were quickly removable, turning the bus into a cargo delivery vehicle when rush hour was over.

Some letter writers are mainly interested in financing rapid transit. One suggestion was to use state lotteries to raise cash, while another was for the government to issue federal transit loans.

A number of letters contained no suggestions at all. They were from government officials in California, Oregon, Arizona, New York and Washington, D.C., asking to see the ideas the public has come up with.

Greyhound Considering

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Greyhound officials are studying a counterproposal offered by the striking Amalgamated Transit Union in an effort to end a nationwide strike which has idled an estimated 16,000 bus company workers.

The firm spent most of Thursday studying the union's proposal. Details of the package were not revealed.

Negotiations broke off early Thursday to permit the company time to consider the union proposal.

Federal mediators met with each side individually during the day. Mediator Guy Parent said he remains optimistic that a quick end to the strike is possible.

The union members walked off the job Monday after 48 hours of nearly continuous bargaining failed to bring about a tentative agreement.

Union officials said before the strike began they wanted an across-the-board 60 cents an hour pay raise and a one-cent per mile increase.

The expired contract paid drivers an average of $5.75 an hour or 21.8 cents a mile, whichever was greater.

Wounded In A Shoot-Out

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A shoot-out Thursday left wounded two Wayne County deputy sheriffs and a man on whom they were serving commitment papers.

Deputy Kenneth Pennington and Joseph Lemiah Adams of Best Station were hospitalized and Deputy Leroy Locklear was treated and released at Wayne Memorial Hospital. Pennington was reported in satisfactory condition with a leg wound. Adams was in serious condition with arm and chest wounds.

The deputies said went to the home of Adams near LeGrange to serve commitments papers to admit him to Cherry mental hospital in Goldsboro. They said he grabbed a pistol and began firing at them.

Pennington and Locklear returned the fire and Adams was struck in the left arm and the bullet lodged in his chest.

Locklear said he dragged Pennington, who was hit in the leg, out of the line of fire and radioed for help. Pennington was initially treated and released, but was hospitalized for observation Thursday night after his wound began bleeding, authorities said.

Arrest Actor On Morals Count

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor George Maharis and a male hairdresser have been arrested for investigation of sexual perversion, police said.

Maharis, who starred in the defunct television series "Route 66," and Perfecto Telles were arrested at a service station Tuesday afternoon, police said Thursday. Maharis was observed by officers who had staked out the station's restroom, police said.

Ballet Couple Visiting U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Valery and Galina Panov, the ballet dancers who emigrated to Israel after a two-year struggle to leave the Soviet Union, have arrived here for a dance tour of the United States.

"We are filled with admiration and delight at being in this country," Panov said Thursday night as he and his wife received a warm welcome at Kennedy Airport.

Panov, a Jew, was dismissed from Leningrad's Kirov Ballet after he applied for permission to emigrate to Israel in 1972. Galina, who is not Jewish, was demoted and eventually dropped from the company.

Kudirka Invited To Visit Vessel

MIDDLETOWN TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Lithuanian-born Simas Kudirka has been invited to visit the U.S. Coast Guard cutter where he made a desperate bid for freedom that got him 45 months in Soviet prisons.

Kudirka and his family, who were allowed to leave the Soviet Union on Nov. 5, has been living here with the family of Dr. Roland D. Paegle.

Kudirka plans to accept the invitation to visit the cutter Vigilant in New Bedford, Mass., on Saturday, the fourth anniversary of his request for political asylum.

Kudirka spent 6½ hours aboard the boat on Nov. 23, 1970, after leaping to its deck from a Soviet fishing trawler.

The gift for Christmas Future.

Christmas presents are usually just gifts for "now." Before you know it, they've gotten too small, or they're out of style.

Truth is, people are always growing somehow. So it makes sense to give the gift that grows with them. U.S. Savings Bonds. A gift of Bonds says more than "Merry Christmas." It says, "I have the greatest hopes in you." It says, "I believe in your dreams." It says, "Whatever you become, I'm with you." That's called love. And that's real giving.

Take stock in America. Give U.S. Savings Bonds.

ALASKAN OLYMPICS

The twentieth century is bringing change to Alaska. Airplanes are replacing dog sleds, automobiles outdating snowshoes. But each year the finest athletes, musicians and domestic artists of Indian and Eskimo villages still come together with their counterparts from the rest of Alaska to compete with one another in games organized to keep the old ways alive.

The 1974 Eskimo-Indian Olympics were held during July in Fairbanks, at the University of Alaska's Patty Gymnasium. Some 10,000 spectators came to the three-day festival celebrating ancient traditions and the life style that still survives in remote areas. The Olympics were founded in 1961, and the proceeds go to the Tundra Times, Alaska's Eskimo, Indian and Aleut newspaper which since 1970 has sponsored the festival.

N.C. Argues Against Gas Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina, which is already functioning under a 31 per cent cut-back of natural gas supplies, argued in federal court Thursday against a 44.6 per cent curtailment of natural gas allocations by the Federal Power Commission.

Morton L. Simons, a spokesman for the state of more than 5 million persons, told a three-judge court of appeals that a further reduction would be "devastating" and would force the closing of several textile and brick plants in the state.

He said North Carolina, the nation's 12th largest state, depends on a lone pipeline for its natural gas supplies compared to states which have several pipelines.

During severe curtailments those states usually have an easier time of finding natural gas for industrial use.

The FPC recently announced that shortages of natural gas this winter means there will be over 80 per cent less gas than was available to the nation last year.

Simons said that while there may be plans for alternate sources of energy for some industries, there has been no relief fashioned for finding jobs for people forced out of work by the natural gas shortage.

He urged the court to keep in force current allocations and challenged the FPC's authority to implement a plan without findings.

The FPC plan prompted a suit more than a year ago. At that time, the court of appeals issued a stay blocking the plan.

The FPC has been holding hearings on the proposal since then.

Simons said he agrees with an alternate plan suggested by natural gas users which would affect a gas company like Piedmont with a total curtailment of 38 per cent instead of 44.6 per cent as under the FPC proposal.

FPC spokesman George McHenry told the court it is "obvious we do not" have an easy solution. He said the federal agency has not had the time to study the volumes of testimony it has taken on the gas situation.

McHenry said the FPC is attempting to distribute the effects of the curtailment in such a way that there will not be much harm.

He asked the court to remove the stay so the FPC can make a final decision.

Edward B. Hipp, a lawyer for the North Carolina Utilities Commission, said after the court session that under the alternate plan, each gas distribution company would be hit with a different curtailment. He said it would allow a continuation of gas to textile plants, but under the FPC proposal that flow would halt.

Residential users of natural gas would not have their home heating supplies curtailed under any of the plans.

The hearing was resumed today.

Snow Blankets New England

By The Associated Press
Heavy snow blanketed upper New England today and gale warnings flew along the northern and Middle Atlantic coast as a moisture-laden autumn storm spun out of the Northeast.

Up to 15 inches of snow piled on much of the northern two-thirds of Maine and parts of Vermont from the region's first snowstorm of the season. Ten inch snows covered northern New Hampshire.

Power failures were attributed to the storm in Middlebury and Vergennes, Vt.

The snow trailed southwest into the upper Ohio Valley and was mixed with rain farther south in New England.

In the West, a storm that hit the Pacific Northwest with rain, wind and snow Wednesday night and Thursday abated. Rain and snow lingered in the northern Rockies, the Great Basin and the Sierras, but the storm lost much of its punch.

High-wind warnings remained in effect for eastern Oregon.

Clear skies dominated most of the southern half of the country from the southern Plateau into the Southeast. But cooler weather moving in behind the Northeastern storm dropped temperatures into the lower 30s as far south as northern Florida overnight.

Unseasonably mild weather favored the middle and upper Missouri Valley. Billings, Mont., remained in the 50s through most of the night.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 8 at Gunnison, Colo., to 68 at Key West, Fla.

UMW Prexy Says Some Changes Will Be Needed

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller believes the union's 120,000 bituminous coal miners will ratify a proposed contract if a few changes can be made during renewed negotiations with coal producers.

"It's the very best contract that's ever been negotiated in the labor movement," Miller said. The 39-member UMW Bargaining Council recommended the contract undergo "some minor adjustments" before being submitted to striking miners for ratification.

The chief negotiator for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, Guy Farmer, said the operators do not intend to reopen the talks. Miller said he hasn't been officially informed of that decision.

While not rejecting the contract outright, the Bargaining Council's decision to withhold it from member ratification means the nationwide strike will probably continue into a fourth week. Miller said areas needing revision include vacations, jurisdiction, work rules and a wage package.

Miller added that some miners believe a right to strike clause should be included, but he said it wasn't needed.

"I think there is considerable interest because of the way grievances were handled in the past," Miller said, but added "we've got a streamlined grievance procedure" that negates the need for a right to strike clause.

While negotiations continue, companies which depend on the fossil fuel are reportedly running short of coal and threaten another series of employe layoffs.

Government estimates say a four-week strike would mean about 400,000 layoffs in coal-related occupations.

With national coal production presently 75 per cent below normal, a Bureau of Mines report indicates electric utilities and steelmakers are running low on coal.

Attend Political Science Retreat

Twenty-six political science students at East Carolina University were participants in the annual ECU Political Science Departmental Retreat at Atlantic Beach.

Five faculty and staff members of the ECU political science department served as resource persons at the retreat. They were Dr. Hans H. Indorff, Diane Hankins, Dr. Lawrence Hough, Thomas Eamon, and Dr. William F. Troutman, department chairman.

The retreat consisted of recreational activities and serious discussions regarding the improvement of academic and professional services of the department to its students.

Among discussion topics were career alternatives in political science, practical politics, international studies in undergraduate education, student self-government, course offerings and interdisciplinary studies.

According to Dr. Troutman, the retreat is designed to further student-faculty communications by providing an environment "as free as possible from the locational and academic constraints imposed by campus surroundings."

Most of the expenses of the retreat were provided by a grant from the ECU Student Government Association.

Names, parents' names and hometown addresses of the 26 student participants include:

PITT COUNTY, Farmville—Connie Moore Nanney, wife of John W. Nanney and graduate of Farmville Central High School; Greenville—Nancy Ellen Troutman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Troutman, 1723 Circle Drive and 1970 graduate of Rose High School.

IRAN, Tehran—Papuin Jafari, daughter of Major Gen. F. Jafari of Tehran Police Department, and 1972 graduate of Tehran International School.

Don't Lose A Job By Arguing

Dorothy's prospective boss thinks character and business skills can be determined by your nose or chin or the bumps on your skull. That's malarkey, but don't lose a good job by arguing.

"This puzzles me, for the job doesn't involve TV or any modeling of clothes or appearance in a movie. "So why this special emphasis on a girl's head and face?"

By George W. Crane Ph.D., M.D.
CASE C-602: Dorothy D., aged 20, is soon to graduate from a Business College.
"Dr. Crane," she said, "I am applying for a secretarial position with a prominent local firm.
"But in its advertisement, I see it requests applicants to send in 2 pictures of themselves.
"One is to be a profile view and the other a full front photo.

Physiognomy
Some otherwise successful business heads still use an outmoded system for picking employees, so don't argue with them!
It depends on physiognomy (facial features) and phrenology (bumps on your skull).
Both of these have been shown to lack scientific validity, but their devotees will not listen to logic.
So Dorothy's prospective boss wants to measure the length of her nose, plus the width of her eyes, the type of chin she has, etc.

Regarding the chin, for example, physiognomists say that a bull dog, jutting chin indicates aggressiveness, while a receding chin means weakness or cowardice.
That's malarkey!
For cowards often have jutting chins.
And many of our bravest people have receding chins.
Furthermore, we have no scientific justification for deciding thick lips mean you are sexually sensuous.
Nor do beady eyes indicate you are sly and untrustworthy.
Yet these notions have been passed along for generations by the staunch advocates of physiognomy.
Moreover, the bumps on your skull do not denote special skills or talents.
The phrenologists make 2 glaring errors when they think a bulging skull means the brain cells underneath have been unusually well developed and thus may denote musical talent vs. mathematical skill.
Or artistic ability vs. mechanical genius.
And here's why:
(1) The brain, like a modern computer machine, functions as a whole and not just in localized spots!
True enough, there are certain incoming sensory areas for vision, hearing, touch, taste, smell, etc.

But your visual center works equally often whether you are an artist or a mechanic, a musician or a taxicab driver.
Same is true for your hearing center and the other sensory spots, for the brain functions as a whole in all types of work.
(2) The other fallacy in phrenology consists of thinking a bulging spot on the skull means the underlying nerves have bulged outward by extra use.
But nerves are like telephone wires, which obviously don't grow thicker as more nerve currents traverse them!
Besides, then neurons (nerve cells) of the brain are thinner than tissue paper, so how could such a microscopic layer bulge the bones of the skull?
Besides, the brain is bathed in fluid and any pressure would be transmitted simultaneously, as in a steam boiler, to all walls of the container or "boiler."
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Full Access Is Not Spelled Out

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Although a House subcommittee has approved a Senate bill which in part requires public access to Watergate-related White House tapes, it's uncertain if this includes broadcasting of the tapes.
"Frankly, this was a matter that just didn't come up," says Rep. John Brademus, D-Ind., chairman of a House Administration subcommittee which approved the measure this week.
The bill is intended to nullify a Sept. 6 agreement between former President Richard M. Nixon and the government concerning control by Nixon of his presidential tapes and papers.
It specifically requires access to provide the public "the full truth, at the earliest reasonable date, of the abuses of governmental power popularly identified under the generic term Watergate."
But it doesn't spell out what public access means, although Brademus has said in a statement it would open Nixon's tapes and papers to "examination by scholars, journalists and the public."
The congressman, asked later by phone if this means broadcast journalists could record the tapes for airing on radio and TV, said no one even had posed that question of him until now.
"The bill provides that regulations (on access to the tapes and papers) be made by the General Services Administration, subject to congressional veto," he said.

"In my view, it wouldn't be wise to try to spell out every regulation in the bill. But I think its language is broad enough to allow the GSA to propose regulations that would permit the broadcasting of the tapes."
Brademus, who said the measure would be considered next week by the full House Administration Committee, said he would have no objections to allowing the broadcast of the Watergate tapes.

And, he said, "I don't think most members of the Congress would have any objection to the broadcasting of these particular tapes."

No Presidential Race By Sen. Mondale Thornsby...

STILL GOING LIKE SIXTY—Frederick Lusk of Cincinnati spends his Saturdays on the sidelines of University of Cincinnati's Nippert Stadium as one of the nation's old cheerleaders. "People my age just don't do enough to support their college", said the balding bachelor. "The girls take real good care of me. They make sure I don't get hurt", said the 60-year-old football fan. A former cheerleader at Northwestern, Lusk said Otto Graham was his roommate in college. (AP Wirephoto)

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Walter F. Mondale has become the second drop-out of the 1976 Democratic presidential race, leaving liberal Democrats at least temporarily without a well-known contender.

Mondale announced his withdrawal Thursday just a few hours after Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who has strong support from party regulars and organized labor, disclosed he has hired a key party organizer for his anticipated candidacy.

The Jackson recruit was Robert J. Keefe, 40-year-old executive director of the Democratic National Committee. He will become political director of the still unofficial Jackson campaign Dec. 1.

That will enable him to take charge of the Washington senator's effort at the party's Dec. 6 mini-convention in Kansas City. Candidates and potential candidates will display their wares in Kansas City for some 3,000 top Democrats, many of them likely 1976 convention delegates.

after the September withdrawal of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Mondale's surprise decision left Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona as the most visible, current liberal candidate against Jackson when the presidential primaries begin 16 months from now.

In fact, Udall's progress in snaring support of key liberals in New Hampshire, the traditional opening primary, was reported to be one factor in Mondale's decision. However, the Minnesota senator insisted, "This is a personal decision on my part and had nothing to do with any other candidate."

Udall is expected to formally declare himself in the presidential race in New Hampshire this weekend. He would be the first official entrant in what will likely be a large Democratic field by early 1976.

Both Jackson and Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia are expected to announce their candidacies next month. Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas is another likely candidate, former Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma has spent considerable time in New Hampshire, and Mayor Kevin White of Boston may run there too.

And Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama has made no secret of his plans for a fourth presidential bid.

The Harris poll reported Thursday that Wallace is the most familiar Democratic prospect and the first choice by a slender margin. A poll of 1,265 potential Democratic and independent voters found 93 per cent knew of Wallace and he was the first choice of 19 per cent. He was followed by 1972 contenders Sens. George McGovern of South Dakota and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine. Mondale, too, had been considered a likely contender, ever since his Minnesota colleague, Hubert H. Humphrey, proclaimed him a future candidate as Mondale swept to re-election in 1972.

But he disclosed at his news conference that as he proceeded his doubts grew. "I found I did not have the overwhelming desire to be President which is essential for the kind of campaign that is required," Mondale said.

Kennedy said he thought "the nation is poorer for the decision he has made." Humphrey said that he had encouraged Mondale to stay in the race and that he regretted Mondale's decision.

Grifton C-of-C Officers Named For New Year

GRIFTON—Roger Davenport was elected president of the Grifton Chamber of Commerce for the coming year at the group's meeting Thursday night.

Other officers named include: Steve Rogers, vice president; Linda Horton, secretary; Catherine Condon, treasurer; Gene Haywood and Jimmy Rose, two year directors; Clifton Gentry, Walter Murphy and Archie Rogers, one year directors. The new slate of officers will be installed in January.

Jack Hankins pointed out that the "welcome to Grifton" sign outside the town limits was in need of repainting. It was reported that someone had been contacted about repainting the sign.

The next meeting will be held Thursday, Dec. 12, at 8 p.m. at the Grifton Library.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1974

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A wonderful day, evening to organize a campaign which will enable you to bring about successful outcomes to your projects. Think in terms of long-range, not just temporary, success.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get suggestions for your advancement from the most powerful persons you know. Evening is ideal for fun with romantic tie.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Discuss future with good friends and have a good time as well. Accept some invitation for evening, or entertain.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Contact the powerful persons you know and get them to give you the support you need of whatever kind. Get into civic matters.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study new ideas, conditions to know what is best to do, then full speed ahead. Meet new associates of different experience.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Come to better terms with both debtors and creditors and then study into more up-to-date methods to become more efficient.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Making appointments with all who can help you to greater success in the future is wise now. Take everything in your stride.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Find the right articles to add to your home that will make it colorful, charming. Add to personal wardrobe, also, within budget.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Good day for enjoying yourself at whatever outlets most appeal to you. Reach a better accord with mate for greater harmony.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Jan. 20) Try to please kin more, understand their desires. Extend invitations to bigwigs and entertain them on a royal basis.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Travel wherever you will be able to get the data vital to your wellbeing in the future, in business or personal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study ways to improve your financial position. Have repairs made to property. Stick to practical approach and all is fine.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Exchange ideas, favors with all you contact today for satisfying time. Any amusement outlets will meet with real success.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a born engineer and will do well in anything attempted in life because of the ability to plan well first, then carry through in steadfast fashion to the minutest detail. There is a desire to help humanity at large, so slant education for some connection with the government. Much success in this chart and happiness in marriage.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

"It tastes like real whole milk."

An independent research firm recently asked 100 women if they could taste the difference between Maola's low-fat Great Shape and two leading brands of regular whole milk.

Most of the women who usually drink regular milk couldn't tell the difference. We don't think you'll be able to, either.

Give up calories without giving up taste.

North Pitt School News

By GENEVA HOLDER

The band program at North Pitt is doing very well. The schedule for the theory program has been set up and students will soon have their instruments for practice. There will be a small instrumental band for sports events soon.

This week North Pitt Notes features Mr. Pat Smith and Mr. Leroy Morris.

Mr. Morris was born in Belvoir and attended Belvoir-Falkland High School. At East Carolina University, he received a BS degree in social studies.

Mr. Morris and his wife, Annette, live in Greenville with their daughters, ages 9 and 13. Mr. Morris enjoys fishing, hunting, reading, and watching television. He teaches social studies.

Mr. Pat Smith, North Pitt's football coach, was born in Robersonville and attended Robersonville High School. He attended East Carolina University as a health and physical education major.

Coach Smith and his wife, Libby, live in Greenville with their son, Pat, Jr., age 15 months.

The results of the Freshman Class elections are as follows: Presidents: Kim Dupree, Cathy Snead; Vice-presidents: Gloria Nell Tyson, Virginia Vines; Secretaries: Dora Summerlin, Brenda Redmond; Treasurers: Betty Summerlin, Daine Langley; and Reporters: Ann Clark, Roslyn Teel.

Army Drill Team At North Pitt

The Fort Eustis Honor Guard Drill Team visited North Pitt Thursday. The seventeen man team performed in the gym during an assembly at which the entire school was present.

The performance was sponsored by the Greenville Army Recruiting Station. The local Army recruiter is Staff Sergeant Haddock.

The drill team, completely volunteer, creates a good many of their own routines, many of which have no names. Of those that have names, a few that the team went through are: the Queen Anne Salute, the Countermarch, the Half-Step, and two that the students particularly enjoyed, the Shift and the Ready-Shift.

The members were First Lt. Fred Watson, SSG Nathaniel Colter, SP5 Ignacio Soler, PFC Larry Davis, SP5 David Horne, SP5 Donald Livingston, Sgt. Bobby Randel, SP4 Gary Cassidy, SP4 Ruben Mancias, PFC Antonio Cosme, PFC Glen Purcell, PFC Daniel Robinson, PFC Randy Anderson, PFC Joseph Beldo, PFC Johnnie Boderick, PV2 James Harris, and PV2 Bruce Justice.

The drill performed at four high schools in this area. They may be returning in the spring. North Pitt's students will be glad to see them again.

 Editor's Note: Dr. Pendered is chairman of the Industrial and Technical Department, East Carolina University. He admits to a long fascination with Blackbeard and is in the process of writing a full length book on the pirate's life.

Today marks a special anniversary for eastern North Carolina. It is just 256 years ago—November 22, 1718 that Captain Edward Teach, better known as Blackbeard the pirate, met his death in bloody hand-to-hand combat at lonely Ocracoke on the Outer Banks. With Blackbeard's death the golden age of piracy in the New World came to an end. Although his career as a pirate was short-lived, in 27 months Blackbeard earned immortality in the annals of crime as one of the most ferocious pirate kings of all time. He is considered to be "the fiercest pirate of all."

Wherever Blackbeard went "a-pyrating" he left frightened men and screaming women and children in his wake. Mere mention of his name would strike immediate terror in the hearts of stout colonists, sailors, merchant captains, and even royal Governors from the West Indies to New England. Many a ship's captain surrendered without resistance when he learned that the approaching ship flying the bloody flag at her masthead was commanded by none other than the fearsome Blackbeard himself. At the siege of Charles Town horror-stricken citizens stampeded through the streets in panic when it became known that Blackbeard was off the bar aboard the infamous Queen Anne's Revenge and threatened to attack the town with his ship's cannon. For reasons more than one, this brute of a man "frightened America more than any Comet that has appeared there in a long time."

Blackbeard was not a native North Carolinian, but he did make his headquarters at Bath. After taking the King's pardon by surrendering to Governor Eden the pirate king settled down to lead an honest life. He built a home at Bath and shortly afterwards married a 16-year old beauty, Mary Ormond, the daughter of Wyat Ormond, owner of a nearby plantation. Some say that Governor Eden himself performed the marriage ceremony. Town gossip had it that Mary was Blackbeard's fourteenth wife. This was bad news for the new bride, but it was also whispered that twelve of his wives were still living scattered along the wake of his pirate flagship from the West Indies to Maine. The pirate's good intentions did not last long. As his supply of gold dwindled, the urge to go "on the account" rose strongly within him. Soon Blackbeard was back at his old trade with his favorite henchmen.

Blackbeard's plundering and robbing so angered eastern North Carolina plantation owners that one day they sent a secret delegation to Governor Spotswood for help. They knew it was no use to ask Governor Eden for many thought he protected the pirate in return for a share of the contraband cargo.

The beginning of Blackbeard's end began on Friday evening, November 21 when the expedition sent by Governor Spotswood arrived at Ocracoke where Teach was believed hiding. Lieutenant Maynard and 54 of the King's men anchored that night in sight of the pirate ship. At dawn the next day Maynard and his men began to row toward the pirate vessel to board her. After a Homeric salute Blackbeard fired a broadside from his eight cannon that killed or wounded 20 of the King's men. The pirate cut his anchor cable and made a running fight of it, but soon his Adventure ran aground in shallow water. The Lieutenant's craft continued to move slowly toward the pirate ship. As the sloops came together, the pirates threw grenades onto Maynard's deck. These bottles were filled with powder and small shot; they were highly effective in killing personnel and in creating panic among the survivors.

Because the grenades caused such devastation, Blackbeard thought all the King's men were dead, so he and 14 of his men boarded Maynard's sloop. At that moment the Lieutenant stepped forward to discharge his pistol at Blackbeard. The ball struck home, but the pirate king lunged forward. They fought fiercely with swords till a powerful smash of the pirate's cutlass broke the Lieutenant's sword in two. As Maynard stepped back to cock his pistol, Blackbeard moved in for the kill—swinging his cutlass. The blade sought Maynard's throat but just then a seaman slashed Blackbeard's face with his broadsword. Blood streamed down the pirate's chest onto the deck. Maynard fired his pistol again, but still Blackbeard stood his ground. Another of the King's men swung wildly with his sword and hacked a horrible hole in Blackbeard's throat. Despite this mortal wound the mighty Blackbeard kept his feet, roaring at the top of his voice, fighting on with fury. Then Blackbeard cocked his pistol for the last time. Before he could fire, he fell dead on the bloody deck. He had suffered 25 wounds including five pistol balls in his body before he perished.

Lieutenant Maynard knew he needed proof of Blackbeard's death to collect the rewards posted by King George I and Governor Spotswood. So he severed the pirate's head from his body and hung it on the bowsprit of his sloop. The King's men watched in fascination as blood slowly oozed and dripped from the massive head to redden the waters of the Pamlico.

After attending to the dead and wounded as best they could, Lieutenant Maynard and his survivors sailed to Bath to lick their wounds before beginning the long sail home to Virginia. At last eastern North Carolina was rid of one of the most notorious cutthroat bands of pirates that ever sailed the seas.

Blackbeard was a product of the perilous times into which he was born. Illegitimate, uneducated, and untrained in the ways of honest men, he earned his living by the only means he knew—stealing from others. Though his career of crime was brief, Captain Edward Teach achieved infamy as one of the most fearsome robbers the world has ever known. More than 250 years have passed since mighty Blackbeard, "the fiercest pirate of all," sailed aboard the Queen Anne's Revenge, yet his daring exploits live on today, tomorrow, and perhaps forever.

Scholarship Recipient

DURHAM—James Waverly Rainey of Durham has been named the first recipient of the William Kellon Quick Scholarship at Pfeiffer College.

Rainey, a 1974 graduate of Northern High School in Durham, entered the freshman class at Pfeiffer in August.

The scholarship was set up in 1971 to honor the Rev. William K. Quick, pastor of Trinity United Methodist Church in Durham. Quick was a 1952 graduate of Pfeiffer College where he was president of the Student Government Association and was a member of the Order of the Sun Dial, campus leadership fraternity.

The Rev. Quick is presently pastor of the largest Methodist Church in Detroit, Mich. He is a former pastor of St. James United Methodist Church in Greenville.

Rainey plans to major in religion and minor in music at Pfeiffer College.

Hooks Honored By State Group

Dr. Edgar W. Hooks Jr., chairman of the East Carolina University Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, is one of two recipients of 1974 Honor Award Citations from a state professional group.

Dr. Hooks and Clarence E. Gaines Sr. of Winston-Salem were honored by the N.C. Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation at its recent meeting in Charlotte.

Dr. Hooks is a past president of the NCAHPER and has been active in other professional groups on the national and regional levels.

Journalism Schools Say Their Enrollments At Record Level

By FRANK L. SPENCER CHICAGO (UPI) — The nation's journalism schools are at flood tide and this news is both good and bad.

Enrollments are at record levels, up more than 300 per cent from 1964, with no letup in sight, as thousands of young Americans turn toward news careers. Many have been attracted by the glamorous aura that has hovered over the news corps covering Watergate and other important events.

Their sheer numbers comes as good news for readers and viewers, and for journalism in general, because those who hire them will have a wider selection to choose from, or as expressed by Wayne Danielson, dean of the University of Texas school of journalism, "We're delivering more of the best."

But it's bad news for the young men and women who must compete for news jobs. One student who has found it tough is Helene Morrison of Milwaukee, who attends Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism.

"I'm getting out in December," Miss Morrison said. "I've sent applications to 85 newspapers all over the country. I've heard nothing encouraging from any of them. Some don't even bother to say they're sorry."

Miss Morrison, interviewed in the newsroom of the Daily Northwestern, thinks the glamor of news is attracting young people. Danielson, speaking from his office in Austin, agreed that glamor is one ingredient "but there's another important factor—it's been discovered that journalism provides a good basic education."

Not all journalism students, Danielson said, plan to pound keyboards in newsrooms or shout penetrating questions at smiling senators, but nobody knows how many nonjournalists may be hovering around journalism classrooms. In the United States about 233 colleges and universities offer four years of journalism. The American Council on Education for Journalism has accredited 69 of these. There also are several hundred others that teach less than four years of journalism.

Paul Peterson of the Ohio State University school of journalism works long hours as a volunteer trying to collect journalism school data.

It was Peterson's figures that showed enrollments totaled 48,327 in September, 1973—up from 14,624 in 10 years.

Peterson told UPI the slowly arriving 1974 figures indicate "some leveling off," but the total probably will still represent an increase. He said 50,000 would be a good estimate.

Danielson and other heads of journalism schools say there's no way so many news jobs can become available within the next few years. They point out journalism enrollments include young people interested in advertising, public relations and other fields.

Peterson said that according to the schools reporting to him, the 1973 journalism crop totaled 10,811 graduates, including 1,114 with master or doctorate degrees, and he estimated that 6,000 of these were interested in news careers.

According to the U. S.

Department of Labor there are about 40,000 reporters and editors working in the nation's newsrooms. It has been estimated that there is room in the field for from 5,000 to 8,000 newcomers each year. That sounds good, except that the journalism school graduates comprise only a portion of those seeking journalism jobs.

The journalism deans and some of their students are deeply concerned about how to bring enrollments into closer touch with the reality of job demand without stiffening requirements too much.

Ralph Otwell, magin editor of the Chicago Sun-Times and national president of Sigma Delta Chi, a professional journalism society, looks with a slightly jaundiced eye at big journalism school enrollments.

Otwell told UPI that journalism schools have been getting "some marginal people."
