New Commission Bldg. Honors Fifty-Year Utilities Veteran

"When I first started working at Greenville Utilities, we had a big disbursements journal. My first thought was that I'd never be there long enough to fill that book up.

"But looking back, after I did stay and worked there for 50 years, the entire span of time seems about as thick as a piece of tissue paper.

"We have the capacity to think of eternity, and compared to it, our own lives seem so small. That's when you can be thankful for something else. Forever's a long time.

So says Larry Brown, retired business manager for the Greenville Utilities Commission. He saw the commission emerge from a small operation with about 100 customers in 1921 to the computerized system that operates in Greenville today.

The Commission dedicated its new facility on the corner of Fifth and Washington Streets in Brown's honor yesterday.

A modest man, Brown said he would never have been able to get through the 50 years without the help of loyal and devoted employees.

"Greenville had its own generating plant back when I started working for what was then called the Water and Light Commission. I had finished school at Eastman Business College in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. in September and started working in October, 1921.

"Back then, you didn't ask for a position — you asked for a job. I was the entire office force at the commission," says Brown.

In those days, there weren't specific jobs for each person. You just did what had to be done. I wrote out all the bills and paid the ones we had. I even washed the windows."

As the utilities business grew, so did Brown's position with the company. When safety programs were implemented, he headed those. With the coming of personnel departments, he was put in charge of those operations. He retired as comptroller on January 1, 1972.

The commission produced part of its own electricity until Virginia Electric and Power Company took over entirely furnishing power on a wholesale basis. "It probably cost us twice or three times as much to produce part of the electricity than it cost us to buy it from VEPCO," Brown said.

A Pitt County native, Brown said he plays around with gardening some since his retirement in 1972. He is a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

Brown notes that he is grateful that Charles Horne recommended that the Utilities Building be dedicated in his honor. "And I'd like to express appreciation to the members of the official board for their approval."

Dedication ceremonies Sunday at the Greenville Utilities' building were held in conjunction with open house activities at the GUCO facility and at city hall.

Welcoming the public to the dedication was Mayor S. Eugene West while Dr. Ray Minges, vice chairman of the Utilities Commission, introduced special guests and made brief remarks concerning the dedication.

Bruce Sugg Jr. offered the dedicatory address, commenting on Brown's service to the commission.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

LOSSES TO WILD DOGS

Wild dogs have been killing our livestock. First they killed some of our hogs, and now they've attacked our mule. There's a large pack, with several grown dogs and many puppies. R.C.

The Pitt County Rabies Control Officer promised to work with you in trying to get rid of these dogs. These dogs are wily, of course, but the radio operator in the Health Department Rabies Control section says she will alert one of the officers whenever you call and say these dogs have been sighted.

Hotline checked on an old law that provided for the County to pay anyone who lost livestock to wild dogs. This measure was repealed by the 1973 legislature, however, with Pitt County's being exempted from the state law even before the effective date of Feb. 1, 1974. When it was in force, dog licensing revenue went to pay for the losses, with the part not used going in the School Fund. Now dog licensing funds go into the County general fund, County Attorney W. W. Speight said.

WANTS 1931 TAG

I've searched everywhere for a 1931 Greenville license tag to go on the front of a car I've refurbished. I wonder of Hotline could locate one for me? T.B.

We wonder, too. We're asking our readers.

REFUND PROMISED

I sent two dresses I'd ordered back to Brown and Stone Studios in New York City, having been assured I'd have my payment refunded if I could not use them. I have my canceled check for $148, but can't seem to get the refund. Mrs. J.L.H.

First Hotline wrote, and then after a reasonable time we called. Ms. Coyle in Customer Service checked and later let us know the dresses had, indeed, been returned by you. She promised a refund would be processed immediately. You now have your $148.

Parade Slated Dec. 3

The Greenville Jaycees will sponsor its fifth annual Christmas Parade Dec. 3 beginning at 5 p.m.

Parade project co-chairman Connally Branch said that the Jaycees are expecting from 18 to 20 floats to be entered in this year's event with approximately 12 of them being professional floats leased by local merchants.

Branch explained that the remaining seven or eight floats will be constructed locally and he urged persons who are interested in entering a float in the parade to contact him at 752-7662.

In addition to the floats, the co-chairman said that seven or eight band and marching units are expected to be entered in the Christmas event.

He said that first and second place awards will be presented for the best band and best float entered in the parade.

The same route utilized for the bicentennial parade will be followed in December, according to Branch, with parade units starting at Ninth and Dickinson Avanue, progressing down Dickinson to Five Points, and north along Evans to the First'Second Street area where the parade will terminate.

Local merchants and the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association are helping to back the parade, it was noted.

Branch pointed out, "We expect this to be the best parade that the Jaycees have ever sponsored."

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Ford Returns With Arms Cutback Pact

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford returned from his Soviet summit meeting with an arms-reduction pact that an aide called "one of the most significant agreements since World War II."

The pact reached between the President and Soviet Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in Vladivostok placed a numerical limit on the number of U.S. and Soviet intercontinental ballistic missiles and submarine-launched missiles carrying multiple independently targeted warheads.

The agreement includes bombers for the first time.

It's understood that Ford is awaiting a written Soviet statement detailing the exact terms of the verbal agreement before announcing publicly the numbers of warheads and missiles systems involved.

"Ceilings on the strategic forces of both nations have been accepted," Ford told an airport welcoming audience Sunday night. "A good agreement that will serve the interests of the United States and the Soviet Union is within our grasp."

Ford will brief Democratic and Republican congressional leaders Tuesday and other members of Congress later in the week. One official indicated the President might reveal details of the agreement in a nationwide television address within a week.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, who praised the agreement as one of the most significant since World War II, predicted that the summit would produce a SALT agreement that almost certainly will be signed next year.

Former President Richard M. Nixon "could not achieve this in five years" but Ford "achieved it in three months," Nessen said.

The agreement was called a breakthrough in strategic arms negotiations by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. Kissinger told reporters in Vladivostok that the total number of Soviet missiles, bombers and other delivery systems would be below current Soviet strength. U.S. missiles in place in Europe would not be counted against the American total, he said.

The Soviet Union has more and larger missiles, while the United States has more multiple warheads and intercontinental bombers.

In a joint communique signed by Ford and Brezhnev in Vladivostok, a Soviet port city on the eastern coast, the two nations said a long-term nuclear weapons agreement "would be a significant contribution to improving relations between the United States and the U.S.S.R., to reducing the danger of war and to enhancing world peace."

The communique also expressed the leaders' concern about "the dangerous situation" in the Middle East and reaffirmed an intention to bring about "a just and lasting peace." It called for resumption of the Geneva peace conference as soon as possible.

Ford was greeted upon arrival at Andrews Air Force Base by his wife, who did not accompany him on the journey because she is recovering from breast cancer surgery, and one of his daughters, Susan, who brought along the family's dog, Liberty.

DuPont Plans A Further Cutback

KINSTON—Du Pont here announced a further limited reduction in its employee staff by Dec. 31 of about 250 employees, according to a plant spokesman.

The spokesman said that the reduction, the plant's third layoff since October, results from the continuing need to adjust plant production to the general market conditions.

The Dec. 31 lay-off will bring the total number of employee reductions to some 398.

Kissinger Assures Chinese Leaders

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

PEKING, China (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew into China today, called on Premier Chou En-lai and reassured Chinese leaders later at a dinner that a "normalization" of relations is a fixed principle of U.S. foreign policy.

"In the last years the relations between our two countries have moved ahead steadily," Kissinger said in a toast. "I am here to continue this process and I am confident it will succeed."

Kissinger, who is staying in China until Friday, is prepared to discuss further progress toward normalizing relations between the two countries and brief the Chinese on the new U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms understanding.

A senior American official emphasized that the visit, the seventh by Kissinger and first in a little over a year, was arranged long before the just-completed summit between President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in Vladivostok. The official said no major announcement was expected.

On the way to the Great Hall of the People on Monday night, the secretary of state stopped off at a rest home for a 30-minute visit with Chou, who is 76 and ailin. Kissinger described his partner in detente as bright and alert.

With Kissinger are his wife Nancy and children from his former marriage, Elizabeth, 15, and David, 13. Mrs. Kissinger missed the dinner — her husband said she had an upset stomach — but Elizabeth and David were with him at the head table, sipping Mao Tai, a potent Chinese brandy.

"Ganbei,"—or Bottoms Up in English—Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua said to the boy. David smiled and sipped some more.

Chiao, recently named foreign minister, will conduct most of the conversations with Kissinger. Chiao, who has been chairman of the Chinese delegation to the annual U.N. General Assembly since 1971, is understood to be following the line of Premier Chou in warming relations with Washington.

The 1972 Shanghai communique provides for such normalization after almost a quarter century of unfriendly relations.

Justices Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court declined today to decide whether a school system where white pupils are the minority can transfer all whites to a single, integrated school.

The case originated in Wilcox County, Ala., where 3,733 black and 109 white pupils were enrolled last year in the public schools.

Ninety per cent of the whites have left the public schools since they were first integrated in 1965 and all but four whites were enrolled in one school with 466 blacks.

Because of that, the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans ruled in 1972 that the schools must seek further integration.

A U.S. District Court had ruled earlier that the "only practical workable plan for the present is the establishment of one school to which the small minority of whites may go, so long as they remain in the minority."

Tunisia Seizes Hijackers; Say No Agreement

By ELIAS ANTAR
Associated Press Writer

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Tunisian officials today arrested four Palestinian hijackers who abandoned their threat to blow up a British airliner and its three crew members in return for a promise of asylum.

The four left the plane with seven other terrorists who had been flown to Tunis from Egypt and the Netherlands as ransom for the plane, its three-crew and more than 40 passengers.

The guerrillas used as shields the three flight crew members, the last of the hostages, as they left the plane. They later turned them over unharmed to Tunisian officials.

Asked under what conditions the government arrested the hijackers after promising asylum, Foreign Minister Habib Chatti said his government had only "verbally accepted the (hijackers') conditions.

"There was no agreement, even less any written conditions or a commitment," Chatti said.

It was not clear what would happen to the seven ransomed terrorists. "They are in a safe place," Chatti said. "A decision on what to do with them will be taken later in consultation with the other Arab governments and the Palestine Liberation Organization."

He said it was premature to say whether the hijackers would be placed on trial for murdering a German passenger on Saturday.

Chatti paid a special tribute to the role played in the tense negotiations by Salah Khalaf, reputed leader of the Black September terrorist group and second in command of the Al Fatah organization. Khalaf was sent to Tunis on Friday by PLO leader Yasir Arafat to help with negotiations.

RECUPERATING

TOKYO (AP)—Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, who reportedly suffered a heart attack last May, is still recuperating in a Peking hospital, China's official Hsinhua news agency says.

Operate Again On 'Happy'

NEW YORK (AP) — Happy Rockefeller underwent surgery today to have her right breast removed, only five weeks after losing her cancerous left breast in a similar operation.

A hospital spokesman said the surgical team began the operation at 8:23 a.m.

Shortly after she entered Memorial Hospital on Sunday her husband, Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller, said at a news conference that her frame of mind was "pretty good."

"She has total confidence in the nurses, doctors and the whole atmosphere in this hospital," Rockefeller said.

The former governor of New York added that his own frame of mind "is to thank God that this was found out prior to the spread of it to the rest of her body."

Mrs. Rockefeller's left breast was removed Oct. 17.

Court-Appointed Medical Team Checking Nixon

By RICHARD SALTUS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A court-appointed medical team today checks whether former President Richard M. Nixon is well enough to testify at the Watergate cover-up trial.

The first steps are to meet with Nixon's surgeon and to examine medical reports, Dr. Charles Hufnagel, head of the three-man team, said after arrival here under order of the Watergate trial judge.

If a study of Nixon's medical records indicates a physical examination might cause excessive stress, "we would so state and not proceed," Hufnagel said.

Hufnagel said the three physicians would meet with Nixon's surgeon, Dr. Eldon Hickman, at Memorial Hospital Medical Center of Long Beach at 9 a.m. PST today. If medical records are favorable, the trio will examine Nixon at his San Clemente estate, probably sometime today.

Their report on whether Nixon is healthy enough to give testimony is to be made by Friday to Judge John J. Sirica of the U.S. District Court in Washington.

"We would like to spare Mr. Nixon all the stress possible," Hufnagel told an airport news conference in Los Angeles Sunday.

Hufnagel said the physicians would arrive at their opinion much as they would determine if a disabled employe could return to work.

Nixon underwent surgery Oct. 29 to prevent blood clots from breaking loose in his phlebitis-stricken left leg and travelling to his heart and lungs, where they could be fatal.

The 61-year-old former chief executive was in critical condition for six days after the operation and later had reports of unexplained jumps in his blood pressure at times of physical or mental stress. He returned to his San Clemente home Nov. 14.

Hufnagel, chief of surgery at Georgetown University Hospital in Washington, was selected by Judge Sirica to head the panel. The other doctors are Dr. John J. Spitell Jr., 49, of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., and Dr. Richard Starr Ross, 50, of Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md.

Nixon has been subpoenaed by both the defense and the prosecution in the Washington cover-up trial, at which some of his former top aides are defendants.

Miss Sallie Jenkins Weds Sunday Afternoon

MRS. RICHARD GRAHAM PERSON

Miss Sallie Jean Jenkins of Greenville became the bride of Richard Graham Person at four o'clock in the afternoon Sunday in a double ring ceremony performed at Saint James United Methodist Church.

Dr. Robert L. Holt, vice chancellor and dean of East Carolina University, was the officiating clergyman assisted by the Rev. Rodrick Randolph, pastor.

The church altar held a massive arrangement of white chrysanthemums and pom pons flanked by single altar candles and tall standards of emerald greenery. Preceeding the altar were two 20 tiered candelabra holding bouquets of white chrysanthemums and pom pons. Pews were marked with white satin ribbon bows with greenery.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Francis Cain. Soloists were Paula Flake, Mike Roberts and Sam Roberts and Steve Rogers were guitarist. "Ave Maria," "We Are Going" and "All I Know" were sung.

The bride and bridegroom lighted one candle each before the ceremony. After the ceremony, using the candle bouquet they lighted a center candle together, extinguishing the two outside candles symbolizing their union.

Miss Jenkins was given in marriage by her father, Dr. Leo Warren Jenkins, chancellor of East Carolina University. She wore a formal length gown of candlelight nylon peau taffeta with empire bodice featuring a lace front trim and high band neckline. The bishop sleeves were deep cuffed with a triple border of Venise lace and the semi-full skirt swept into a full length lace edged train. The triple layered silk illusion elbow length veil was attached to a lace and pearl covered cap and she carried a formal cascade bouquet of gardenias tied with gardenia ribbons.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Suzanne Jenkins Lodge, of Virginia Beach, Va., was matron of honor. Miss Patty Jenkins, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mada Jenkins of Chesapeake, Va., niece of the bride, Marsha Person of Louisburg, sister of the bridegroom, Deborah Hudson and Terry Taylor of Greenville.

The honor attendants wore formal length rust colored gowns of polyester interlock knit trimmed with cluny lace. The high rise bodice, covered with lace bib, had a ruffled high banded neckline. The long sleeves were deep cuffed with lace ruffles, and the back swept into an easy skirt. They wore floral headpieces that matched their semi-colonial bouquets of dried wheat, daisies, yellow and bronze pom pons, ivory and rust carnations, tied with rust and green ribbons.

The bridesmaids gowns were styled identical to the honor attendants and their semi-colonial bouquets were tied with rust ribbons matching their gowns.

The mother of the bride wore a forest green empire styled formal length gown accented with lace bib and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Person, mother of the bridegroom, chose a hot pink formal gown with short cape of self-material and a white orchid.

Mrs. Warren Jenkins of Elizabeth, N.J., grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. R. G. Person of Louisburg, grandmother of the bridegroom, each wore a white orchid corsage.

R. G. Person, Jr. attended his son as best man.

Ushers were Charles Drum of Rocky Mount, Allen and William Person, brothers of the bridegroom, Jack Jenkins, brother of the bride, and Aaron Spain of Greenville.

Mrs. Marie Cox was church hostess.

The bride made her debut at the Debutante Ball of the Terpsichorean Club, Raleigh, in 1973. She has attended UNC-Chapel Hill and is a student at East Carolina University.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R.G. Person Jr. of Louisburg. The bridegroom is a graduate of the UNC-Chapel Hill School of Pharmacy and is employed as a research and development scientist for Burroughs Wellcome Corp.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Person will make their home in Greenville.

Abby Shares Her Favorite Recipes

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR READERS: If you want to treat your family to a marvelous dessert for Thanksgiving, this column is for you. Otherwise, skip DEAR ABBY today.

Nearly 15 years ago, I was honored at a dinner party at the Phoenix Hotel in Lexington, Kentucky. Pecan pie was served for dessert. But what pecan pie! Never had I tasted anything so delicious. After dinner I went to the kitchen to congratulate the pastry chef. He was so pleased, he gave me the recipe.

I tried it at home. Mine was every bit as good as his. And it was so easy to make that I wrote and asked permission to share the recipe with my readers. He cooperated, and I published it.

Notes came by the thousands saying, "That was the best pecan pie my family has every tasted." So here is the recipe:

KENTUCKY PECAN PIE

1 cup white corn syrup
1 cup dark brown sugar
1/3 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup melted butter (or margarine)
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 whole eggs (slightly beaten)
1 heaping cup shelled whole pecans

Combine syrup, sugar, salt, butter, vanilla and mix well. Add slightly beaten eggs. Pour into a 9 inch UNBAKED pie shell. Sprinkle pecans over all. Bake in pre-heated 350° oven for approximately 45 minutes. When cool, you may top with whipped cream or ice cream...but nothing tops this!

You don't care for pecan pie? Too rich? Well, here's an alternative for you. If you like cheesecake, you'll love this. It's super. But it requires a spring form pan.

ABBY'S CHEESECAKE

Crust: 1/3 cup powdered sugar
1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
1/4 pound butter or margarine

Melt butter and add to graham cracker crumbs and sugar. Line the bottom of a spring form pan, packing firmly.

Mix well: 1 cup granulated sugar
3 eight-ounce packages Philadelphia cream cheese
1 generous teaspoon vanilla flavoring
4 eggs

Pour above ingredients into spring form pan (the crust is as yet unbaked) and bake in preheated oven at 350° for appproximately 50 minutes. Do not turn off oven. Remove cheesecake and top with one pint commercial sour cream and return to oven for another five minutes. Let cake cool. Top with one can (21 oz.) prepared pie filling or topping. (Take your choice of blueberry, cherry or strawberry.) Chill overnight.

Please let me know how your cheesecake and/or pecan pie turned out.

P.S. And don't forget to have one of the children say the blessing. (Or say it yourself.) Here is mine:

"Oh, heavenly Father, we thank Thee for food and remember the hungry. We thank Thee for health, and remember the sick. We thank Thee for friends, and remember the friendless. We thank Thee for freedom, and remember the enslaved. May these remembrances stir us to service—that Thy gifts to us may be used for others. Amen."

Have a wonderful Thanksgiving, and may God bless you and yours.

LOVE,

ABBY

Couple Speaks Vows Sunday

MRS. JAMES MARVIN HARRIS

WILSON—Miss Marla Jane Whitley, daughter of Mrs. Charles Wilson Whitley Sr. of Wilson, and the late Mr. Whitley, became the bride of James Marvin Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burney James Harris of Greenville, Sunday at 4:00 p.m.

The Rev. William R. Bussey conducted the double ring ceremony in the First Baptist Church. A program of wedding mucic was rendered by Clyde Patterson, organist, and Mrs. James C. Pfohl sang "Love Never Faileth," "The Wedding Prayer" and "Wedding Hymn."

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Charles Wilson Whitley Jr., wore a candlelight formal gown of alencon lace on English net designed on the empire silhouette. The bodice featured a low front wedding ring collar and scalloped elbow length sleeves. Lace appliques and scalloped edging formed a front panel and border on the skirt. The border extended around the chapel train.

She wore a full length veil of French illusion appliqued with matching lace and carried a cascading bouquet of pixie carnations, white sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

The maid of honor was Mona Gray Whitley, sister of the bride, and the matron of honor was Mrs. Charles Wilson Whitley Jr., both of Wilson. They wore formal gowns fashioned on empire lines. The short sleeved bodice of gold velvet topped a circular skirt of chiffon in autumn hues. They carried nosegays of golden bronze pom pons and yellow sweetheart roses.

Bridesmaids were Miss Maggie Virginia Harris and Miss Janie Ellen Harris of Greenville, sisters of the bridegroom. They were dressed like the honor attendants.

The flower girl was Miss Laurie Ann Harris of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom. Her dress featured a gold velvet bodice and full gold sheer skirt. She carried a yellow basket filled with yellow cushions and sweetheart roses.

The ring bearer was David Mark Whitley of Wilson, nephew of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Marion L. Pridgen and Richard B. Hinnant, both of Wilson, Keith Vance and Walter B. Harris, both of Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Ralph L. Fike High School and will graduate from ECU in December. The bridegroom is a graduate of Rose High School and is a senior at ECU. He is employed by Sunnyside Eggs Inc., Greenville.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the fellowship hall. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Willie Wheeler.

The refreshment tables were covered with cutwork cloths centered with arrangements of fall flowers flanked by burning rapers. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Steve Sheppard, Mrs. Calvin Whitley, Mrs. William Gray Whitley, Mrs. Edward Whitley, Mrs. Wallace Whitley, Mrs. Douglas Whitley, Mrs. Alma Richards and Mrs. Marion Pridgen.

Mrs. Mary W. Barnes presided at the guest register. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ingram and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Adams.

An after-rehearsal dinner was held in the Crown Room at the Heart of Wilson given by the parents of the bridegroom for the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

The bride was presented a corsage to complement her green dress.

Arrangements of fall flowers were placed in silver containers on the dining table. Burning yellow tapers flanked the arrangements.

Gifts were presented to the honor attendants by the bridal couple.

John Franklin Gives Program

John Franklin, of A. B. Whitley Co., presented the program at the meeting of the Home Life Department of the Greenville Woman's Club held Tuesday at the club house.

He showed a variety of materials which can be used in homes to cover furniture, for drapes, pillows or as wall coverings. He stated that the trend for decorating today is informal and that most designs in patterns are "Country French."

Miss Alya Ray Taylor, program chairman, introduced the speaker, who is a native of Grifton.

Mrs. Clevie Wallace, chairman, presided at the meeting. The devotion was given by Mrs. Eula Mae Cannon.

Mrs. Ethel Ricks gave a report on the shut-ins and Mrs. Cotten Smith gave the financial report on the bridge-luncheon held Nov. 16.

Mrs. Elizabeth Savage announced that the Christmas show and bazaar will be held at the club house Friday, Nov. 29, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and on Sunday from 1-6 p.m.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Thelma Lanier, Miss Virginia Spencer, Mrs. Nell Moore, Mrs. Thelma Harris, Mrs. Eva Corbett and Mrs. Mary Cole.

Lehmann-Mozingo Vows Spoken

FARMVILLE—The Farmville United Methodist Church was the scene of the Sunday wedding of Miss Donna Dale Mozingo and Charles Jefferson Lehmann at three o'clock in the afternoon.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Kermit Wheeler. A program of wedding music was presented by Barbara Lang of Farmville, organist. Kenny Cobb of Farmville sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Wesley Mozingo of Rt. 2, Farmville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal length gown of maracaine jersey designed by Pandora featuring a high rolled neckline and long full sleeves styled with fitted cuffs. Pearl clusters outlined the empire bodice in a bolero effect and encircled the waistline. The gathered skirt extended into a chapel train. She wore an elbow length bouffant illusion veil attached to a Camelot headpiece of maracaine jersey edged in pearls. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of georgianna orchids and lily-of-the-valley.

MRS. CHARLES JEFFERSON LEHMANN

The wedding scene featured two lighted candelabra with greenery and an altar arrangement of yellow mums and gladioli. A candelabra was placed by the kneeling bench where the couple knelt for the benediction.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Andrew Lehmann of Farmville.

Mrs. Margaret M. Stephenson of Garner, sister of the bride, was honor attendant. She was dressed in a formal length gown of woodland green nyesta knit designed with an open V-neckline and long full sleeves with fitted cuffs. A belt of self-fabric accentuated the empire waistline and tied with long streamers that extended down the gown back. She wore a large brim hat of imported swiss braid in matching green and carried a nosegay of yellow pom pons and greenery.

Bridesmaids were Carolyn Mozingo of Raleigh, sister of the bride, Connie Mozingo, sister-in-law of the bride, Lorraine Moore, sister of the bridegroom and Phyllis Lewis, all of Farmville. They were dressed like the honor attendant.

The bridegroom's father was best man and ushers were Garland Mozingo, brother of the bride, I.W. Stephenson of Garner, brother-in-law of the bride, Kindall Moore of Farmville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Simon Cox of Maury.

Mrs. Linwood Smith of Greenville directed the wedding.

The mother of the bride selected a street length dress of coral crepe chiara designed with an empire waist and jewel neckline. The mother of the bridegroom wore a two-piece ensemble featuring a solid knit dress with a sleeveless coat of matching turquoise boucle lace edged in turquoise Venise lace. Both mothers wore corsages of white mums.

For a wedding trip to the mountains, the bride changed into a green and white two-piece ensemble with green accessories and an orchid lifted from her bouquet.

The couple will reside at Rt. 2, Farmville.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and is presently attending Lenoir Community College, Kinston. The bridegroom is a graduate of Farmville High School and attended Pitt Technical Institute. He is now a sanitarian technician with the Pitt County Health Department.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was given by the parents of the bride, in the church reception hall.

The refreshment table was covered with a white cloth and centered with a candelabra with yellow tapers enhanced by yellow fuji mums. The three tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Elsie Mozingo, aunt of the bride. Punch was poured by Mrs. Miriam Mozingo, aunt of the bride. The first slice of cake was cut by the bride and bridegroom.

A rehearsal dinner was given Saturday night at Carraway's Restaurant, Farmville, by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kindall Moore, sister and brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Verna Jones, grandmother of the bridegroom.

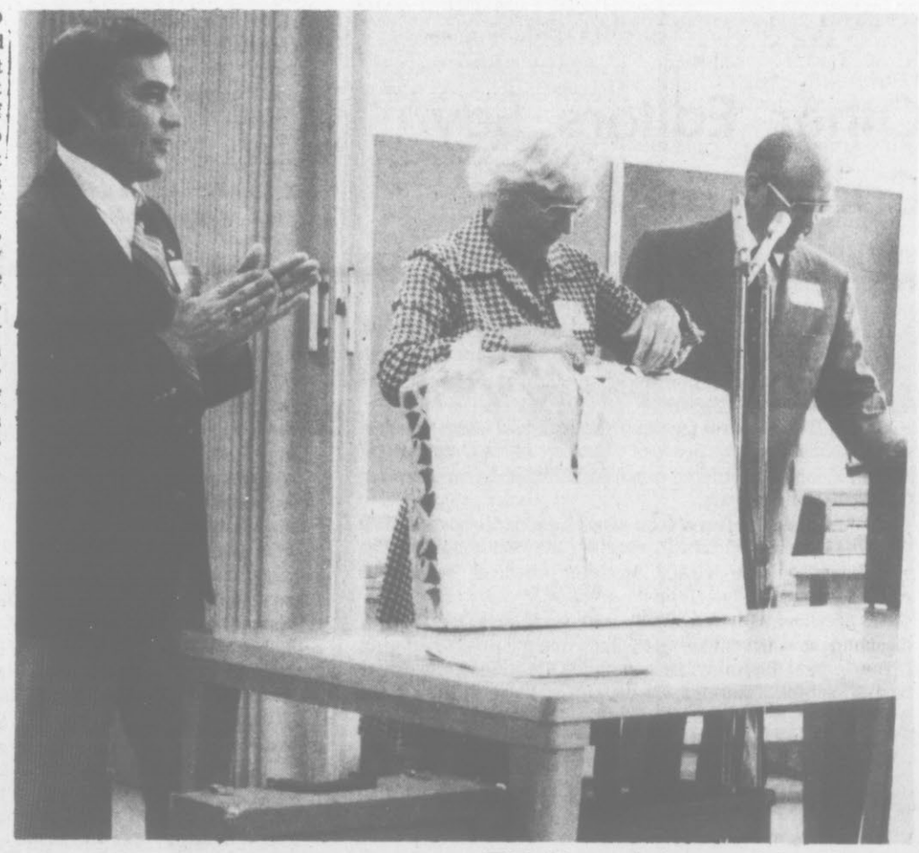

Mrs. McCray Retires At Boys Homes

"All I did, really, was to help my husband in whatever needed to be done." This is what Hester McCray had to say about her 16 years with Boys Homes of North Carolina. What needed to be done turned out to be almost every phase of the Boys Homes program. "I actually went through a 'second parenthood' ", was the assessment of the lady who, along with her late husband, R.N. "Rube" McCray, helped build a home for hundreds of unfortunate boys from across North Carolina. She saw the campus of Boys Homes of North Carolina grow to 100 boys and the addition of another campus at Huntersville, N.C. giving Boys Homes of N.C. a total of 142 boys.

When the McCrays came from Williamsburg, Va. to the Lake Waccamaw campus in June, 1958, there were only 5 boys, though the number grew to 16 with the opening of the first cottage in July. Mrs. McCray helped them with their school work, working in the study hall and helping boys learn to read with the aid of special reading equipment. Because Boys Home boys were in the high school band, she became a "Band Parent". She began to work with the PTA and was active in all school activities.

Mrs. McCray likes music and she knew some of the boys liked to sing, so she began having informal "sing-a-longs" with the boys. From this beginning came the Boys Homes Choirs which have performed before thousands of people throughout North Carolina. There are now three choirs totaling thirty-three boys. Last year the choirs gave over 100 performances before civic groups and on television. Upon the death of her husband in November, 1972, Mrs. McCray became Acting Director of Boys Homes and held that position until, May 1973, when Les Craft took up the reins. She remained on the staff as Administrative Assistant until her recent returement.

Mrs. McCray once said, "I would rather wear out than rust out". Her busy schedule left no time for rust. In addition to her Boys Home activities, she became involved in her church and community because, she said, "If something needs to be done, I want to help".

She began to help by getting involved. She helped get the Columbus County Mental Health Center started while she was president of the Mental Health Association. She is now a member of the Board of the N.C. Mental Health Association. Although not now as actively involved in the local mental health work, she is "staying close by and available."

Mrs. McCray saw that the 1960 census indicated that 54 per cent of the population of Columbus County was below the poverty level. She also saw that there were many people with a lot of spare time. So she, together with representatives from the state and county Agricultural Extension Services and Southeastern Community College, helped set up SENC-Crafts, Inc., an organization that would enable people in eight counties not only to learn craft skills but also provide them a market place for their wares. SENC-Crafts has now become the Southeastern North Carolina Arts Council and has grown tremendously as evidenced by the large exhibition at the Crafts Festival held each spring on the Boys Homes campus and the number of items for sale at the Crafts Shop at Lake Waccamaw.

What is she going to do now that she has "officially" retired? She says, "I'm going to keep on doing the same things I've been doing—working for the Mental Health Association, the Arts Council, and Boys Homes. Some of the boys have been asking when I was going to do some work out on the campus, so I'll be back at that soon. I have a new house that will keep me busy and I plan to travel and take more time for my friends."

Mr. Craft says he's not going to let her rust out.

City Made Good Arrangement

Open house was held yesterday for the Greenville Utilities building and the newly remodeled City Hall.

Only a short while back, both the Utilities and city offices were together in the old City Hall building, which was built during the 1930s.

As both the Utilities and the city government grew it was becoming obvious that additional space would be needed. Both the Utilities and the city considered constructing new buildings. Then the Utilities had the opportunity to purchase the old Wachovia building across the street from City Hall for $325,000, less two year's rent, for a net cost of $260,000.

Since the old Wachovia building is modern, the price was a real bargain for the Utilities. The Utilities spent around $65,000 for remodeling and moved into the building after Wachovia moved into its new quarters on the same block. Now the city has completed remodeling of City Hall for use by municipal offices.

We think the arrangement was a good one for the city. For a comparatively modest cost, both the city and the Utilities now have adequate quarters.

We also think it was a fitting honor that the Utilities building was dedicated to Larry Brown, who served as the Utilities Commission business manager for many years.

The city and the Utilities Commission now have usable facilities directly across the street from each other. The offices can easily be found by citizens and patrons, and as our downtown street system is developed good access will be available.

Best of all, we have developed the needed office space without going out and constructing an entirely new building in these times of soaring construction costs.

Dropouts Back Into School

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—After years of unsuccessfully trying to drag school dropouts kicking and screaming back into the same classrooms they hated, North Carolina public schools are taking a new approach with some early signs of success.

Spreading rapidly across the state, from its beginning a couple of years ago in Wilmington, the extended day—or optional—school idea is catching on: at this time there are 2,036 students enrolled in 25 school systems, and two programs set to go the first of the year.

For a new activity barely a year old in most school districts, the education experts consider this phenomenal success.

The heart of the new approach is flexibility and individual attention. The schools operate at night, permitting the student to work during the day. Traditional courses are tailored to the ability and speed of the pupils, along with vocational subjects to help a student get and hold a job.

Back To School

Early returns from the Wilmington effort demonstrate the effectiveness of this approach: of 400 students served, one half were actual dropouts, and nearly 90 per cent of the other half said they were getting ready to drop out till the optional school program came along.

There is an apparent direct link between those who drop out of school and those who go through life earning low wages, living on welfare, getting into trouble with the law, and ending up in jail.

That is not to say that most dropouts end up in prison, but youngsters admitted to the North Carolina youthful offenders system in 1973 had an educational level at the sixth grade. Approximately 75 per cent of the 1,803 committed were not high school graduates.

The extent of the dropout problem can be seen from studies which show that 31,886 students left North Carolina high schools in the school year 1972-73 for various reasons; over 17,000 of those simply quit upon reaching 16 years of age.

The percentage of dropouts has been consistent over the years, and educators acknowledge that the traditional approach of trying to change the students' attitudes toward school is a failure.

The simple fact is, says Ed Alderman, a career education consultant with the Department of Public Instruction, that lots of kids are leaving school because "school may interfere with their education."

No Relevancy

Many of the dropouts come from a different social setting and have different interests. "They see no relevancy in Shakespeare," Alderman said.

A lot of the youngsters have to work to help support a family, and the rigid public school schedule and system make that impossible. Yet, most recognize that a diploma will open a lot of doors in the future and are anxious to get one, Alderman said.

Alderman believes the key to the growing popularity of the program is the scheduling flexibility with classes operated at all hours, and the individual treatment.

The approach is also success-oriented. "School people don't mean to be negative, but when a student gets a paper back, it's the wrong things that are marked. In this program, we stress the positive."

Modern lifestyles also play a role in the need for change in the public schools. It used to be that kids were brought up chopping wood, milking cows, doing household chores and generally learning things of value.

"But these days, mom and dad don't want the kids to have to live the way they did . . . People almost consider it hazardous to let a child do anything; this makes their experience base practically zero . . . they have no sense of what their effort is worth, no sense of values as to what they can do."

Learning that work has value, and that there are many valuable jobs to be done, will give the youngsters not only self-esteem, but a better shot at a better job, Alderman thinks.

INSIDE REPORT

Concern About Kissinger

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's assurances to European diplomats here that the Arab summit in Rabat last month would follow his grand design came in the face of oblique but persistent intelligence warnings that a disaster might be in the making.

Kissinger based his confidence on one comforting pseudo-fact: The repeated pledge of Egyptain President Anwar Sadat that the Rabat conference would not undermine Jordan's King Hussein and hence Kissinger's salami tactics in pressing intransigent Israel to make successive small withdrawals from Arab land seized in 1967. That policy went bankrupt the moment Hussein lost his authority to negotiate with Israel on the West Bank.

Kissinger flatly informed the Western European allies of the U.S.—most of which long since have split from Washington on Middle East policy—that Sadat had given him a "pledge" on the outcome of the fatal Rabat conference. U.S. ignorance of the inability of Sadat to deliver on that pledge is now being widely but privately cited as one more piece of evidence that Kissinger is overextended in singlehandedly conducting every aspect of American foreign policy.

The cataclysmic setback for the U.S. resulting from the Arab decision to bypass Hussein and designate Yasir Arafat as Israel's bargaining partner on the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan is a showcase example.

Despite the veiled intelligence warnings that Rabat might not come out roses for the U.S., the State Department never conducted a single, serious, advance appraisal of the political forces arrayed against Sadat. Middle-level experts at State never attempted to analyze whether Sadat could really hold the Kissinger line. No papers were drafted, no discussions held.

The reason for that startling omission was that middle-level diplomats do not know what Kissinger himself knows, or one-quarter of it, about their own areas of responsibility. Many U.S. ambassadors find themselves in the same boat. Since they are not privy to Kissinger's private talks with heads of state, they are not equipped to make serious estimates based on their own foreign sources.

U.S. displomats who regularly tap opinion at the United Nations, for example, were not surprised by the pro-Arafat hard line that came thundering out of Rabat. But since U.S. policy toward Rabat was being handled secretly at the top, their opinion—along with the opinion of middle-level State Department officials—seemed superfluous.

A different and less serious crisis of diplomacy stemmed from Kissinger's monolithic grip on policy was the inability of the U.S. delegation to the world food conference to define the administration's anti-famine plan before Kissinger touched down at Rome to announce it—in his speech. Indeed, Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz was so angered at what he regarded as being upstaged by Kissinger that his wife boycotted Kissinger's speech and went shopping.

"There were 20 Congressmen in Rome for that conference," one U.S. official told us, "but they had no idea what our policy would

OPENING TO THE BEST

"Open the window eastward."

These words come from a picturesque little story found in 2 Kings 13.

The prophet Elisha is about to die, and King Joash, fearful that Israel's enemies may overwhelm the kingdom after Elisha's death, hastens to his bedside for reassurance. Gazing on the troubled monarch, the prophet instructs him to take a bow and shoot an arrow through a window opened to the East. As the king follows these instructions Elisha says, "This is the arrow of the Lord's deliverance. . ."

Symbolically it was the prophet's way of saying that the king need have no fear if he opened the window toard the dawning of a new day, and not backward toward the remenbrance of past defeats. So as we begin let up open the window eastward the dawn of new hope and opportunities, and not westward toward the twilight of past failures, remorse, and bitterness.

Come Get Me, Copper

WASHINGTON—As each day passes by, the automobile dealers are getting more desperate to move their 1975 cars. They've tried almost everything under the sun to no avail—well, almost everything.

"Attention all cars—attention all cars—go to Overview Terrace—a family is being held as hostage by a madman."

"Zipkind, we know you're in there. Throw your weapon out the window and come out with your hands up and you won't get hurt."

"Not unless the Friedkins agree to my terms."

"What are your terms?"

"They buy a new four-door Buccaneer station wagon with genuine leather seats, power steering, air conditioning and white-wall tires. I'll throw in the radial tires for free."

"Zipkind, that is no way to sell an automobile."

"I've tried everything else, copper. I begged them to come into the showroom. I promised the greatest trade-in of their lives. I offered them financing over 48 months. But they just laughed at me. Well, now it's my turn to laugh. else. . ."

"Listen to us, Zipkind. We'll talk about it later. Just let the hostages go. We'll find you somebody else who might want to buy a station wagon."

"Don't kid me. Nobody wants to buy a station wagon now. The only thing the consumer understands is force. No one leaves this house unless I have a signed contract in my hand."

"Let me speak to Friedkin."

"Friedkin, are you willing to give in to Zipkind's demands?"

"I'd like to, commissioner, but I don't have the money. Who can afford a new car these days?"

"He's stalling, copper. He's got the money; he just won't part with it. All right, if he can't afford a station wagon, what about a four-door 1975 Whiplash with vinyl bucket seats, disc brakes and a rear-window defroster?"

"Zipkind, we can't negotiate with you for a new car until you release the hostages."

"Fie on you, copper. I'm going to move those cars off the lot one way or another."

"Zipkind, here is your wife Esmerelda."

"Horace, please come out of the house. Even if you sell the Friedkins a car, you can't keep holding people as hostages every time you want to make a sale."

"No dice, Esmerelda. If I don't sell any '75 cars, they'll take my dealership away from me. I have to think of us. I warned Friedkin something like this would happen if he kept stalling on the new models."

"Zipkind, we're losing patience with you. You either come out or we're coming in after you."

"All right, copper, I'm

Committed

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

To those who have dreamed of a medical school at East Carolina University, the goal had never been a one-year school or a two year school.

The goal was a four-year medical school which they are convinced will generate and retain more doctors for North Carolina and particularly for the eastern part of the state where they are in such short supply.

In the last General Assembly legislators overturned a recommendation of the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina and ordered expansion of the one-year school at Greenville to two years.

Now the Board of Governors, which had vigorously opposed the two-year medical school—even the one-year program, has recommended that a full four-year medical school be established.

The decision, as it turned out, was a relatively simple one, though made with reluctance by many members of the Board.

The General Assembly had committed the state to a two-year medical school. Following the dictates of the Legislature, the Board of Governors and UNC President William Friday began working toward that end.

They found that a two-year program was impractical. If ECU was to have a medical school, all factors indicated that it should be a full four-year program.

The cost: some $50 million.

Traditional opponents of the medical school at ECU have seized on that price tag as being more than the state can afford.

They argue that it is grounds for reopening the debate over whether the medical school should be established.

They are not opposed to the medical school at ECU because of the cost, they are opposed to the medical school at ECU—period.

They would attempt now to start a fight in a war they lost last April. It was then that the General Assembly set the course that brought the Board of Governors to the conclusion it has now reached.

The decision to provide a medical school at Greenville was not predicated on the presumption that it would be cheap.

It was based on the very clear evidence that it is needed.

That need is no less today than it was last April.

The General Assembly has made a commitment to meet that need. And from that commitment there should be no retreat.

Bitter Tea For Russia

By CHARLES R. SMITH
UPI Senior Editor

HONG KONG (UPI) — Five years of border talks between China and the Soviet Union have produced nothing.

Despite occasional rumors floating in diplomatic circles that each side has softened its tough stand, the fact is that the negotiators really have not even agreed on an agenda.

Prospects for any change soon are dark indeed.

Nobody expected any rapid progress when the two Communist giants agreed to stop shooting along their long, disputed border and resume formal negotiations that had been broken off in 1964.

The present series of talks resumed on Oct. 20, 1969, in Peking, at the level of deputy foreign ministers. The stage was sat for these talks by a meeting the previous month at Peking airport between Chinese Premier Chou En-lai and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, who was returning to Moscow from Hanoi.

Chou's version of that meeting was that they agreed on a three-point formula providing for maintaining the status quo until a formal border agreement could be reached, demilitarizing the immediate border areas to avoid clashes and opening new negotiations.

The Chou-Kosygin meeting had been preceded by a series of bloody border clashes, the worst of which came in March, 1969, on an island in the Ussuri River in the extreme northeast region of China.

Shortly before the present talks began, the Chinese foreign Ministry issued a position paper. One of the key points amounted to a demand that the Soviet Union admit that more than 900,000 square miles of present Soviet territory was stolen from a weak and helpless China by the Russian czars of old.

The Chinese said they did not expect the return of all that territory, acquired by what they call "unequal treaties" imposed on Imperial China. They said they would consider the "actual conditions" at present and take the treaties as the basis for an over-all settlement.

The Soviets have indicated they never would accept the principle of "unequal treaties," particularly as a basis for present negotiations.

On their part, the Chinese claim that the Soviets not only have refused to disengage militarily but have actually reinforced border units.

Considering the hardened attitudes, it's a case of an irrestible object meeting an immovable force.

So, it's little wonder that the negotiators have not even bothered to talk, except perhaps once for tea, in more than a year.

Loan Delinquencies Watched

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While families have shown recently a tendency to resist purchases of big ticket items and to reduce their debts, many of them still have a heavy burden of bills as the economy drifts into recession.

Most financial analysts still maintain there is no great danger in the big bills owed by households, but there isn't one of them who isn't watching closely the statistics on loan delinquencies.

Fear does exist among some bankers, for example, about the ability of the most overburdened families to pay their creditors, especially as the jobless figures rise and overtime is eliminated.

In the fiscal year that ended June 30, there were 168,787 personal bankruptcy cases. Indications are that in the present fiscal year the rate is higher, probably near 1967's record of 191,729.

A check of court records in various large cities by Business Week magazine, showed more cases filed in the first 10 months of this calendar year than in all of last year.

The Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. notes in the current issue of its "Survey" that the amount of consumer debt, including mortgage loans, increased by 42 per cent between the end of 1970 and the middle of 1974.

While that figure seems large in itself, the significance is that after-tax personal income in the same period rose by only 37 per cent. It commented: "A bigger share than in the past of people's incomes is already committed just to make payments on past purchases."

Much of the American public, it appears, not only attempted to raise their style of living in spite of inflation but, when frustrated in doing so, took out loans to pay the bills.

Now, when repayment ability is weak, these bills are coming due.

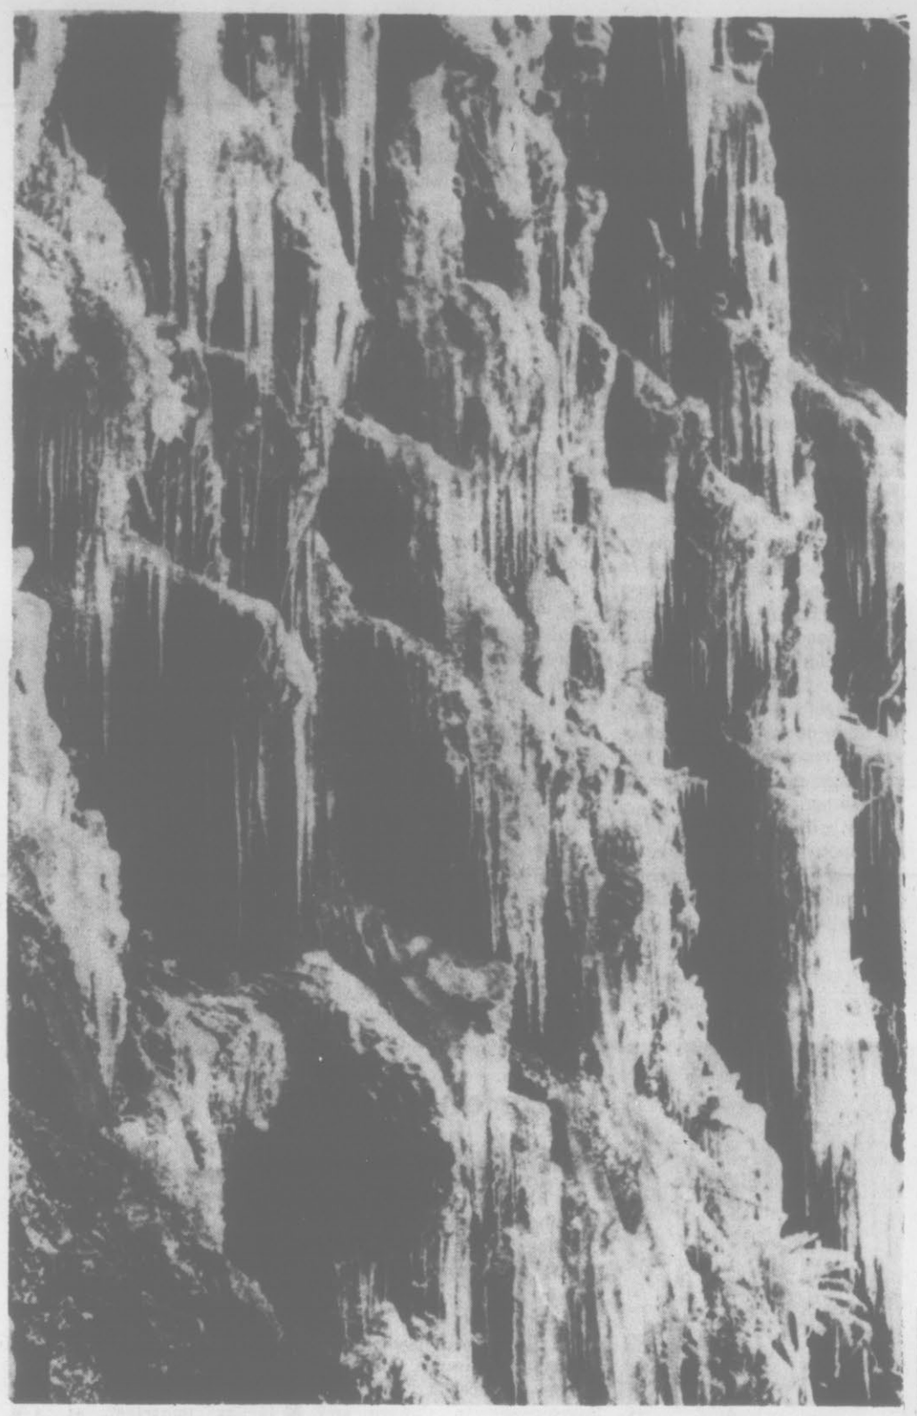

Morgan observes that delinquency rates for both installment loans and mortgage loans have risen over the past year.

In mid-1974 about 2.63 per cent of installment loans — the kind that are repaid in weekly or monthly installments — were listed as delinquent, or 30 or more days behind in payments. That rate compares with 2 per cent a year earlier and is the highest since 1950.

The delinquency rate among mortgage loans at midyear was 4 per cent, up from 3.8 per cent a year earlier and from a rate of 3 per cent in the mid-1960s. Foreclosures, according to Morgan, are running around 136,000 a year.

In all, American households now owe $577.3 billion, or had owed that much at midyear. This compares with only $23.4 billion in 1945 and $406.1 billion as recently as 1970.

The rise in debt formation now seems to be slowing for both business and individuals, but with combined inflation-recession eroding the ability to repay, delinquency ratios are now being watched as closely as the jobless rate.

No Bonanza For Sugar Farmers

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

WINDSOR, Colo. (AP) — If you think the current price of sugar is a ripoff, don't take your gripe to a sugar farmer unless you're ready to listen to his money problems, too.

The domestic farmers who grow sugar beets and sugar cane are the original source for nearly half the sugar consumed in the United States.

As greater worldwide demand and weather disasters around the globe push sugar prices far beyond levels of a year ago, the payments and potential payments to farmers are jumping up, too.

But sugar beet growers like Manuel Pineda and Jack Boegel of this northern Colorado farm area will tell you that burgeoning prices for fuel, equipment and fertilizer are eating away at their seeming bonanza.

And for diversified farmers like these men, some of the sugar money is just an offset for their recent losses in the cattle business.

Fuel costs have doubled in the past year, pushing up the cost of operating tractors, harvesters and other implements in the $75,000 fleet of specialized equipment that Boegel uses on his 199 acres of sugar beets.

"Damned fertilizer," Pineda grimaced at another expense. "When we were a quarter of the way through this year, we were already up to all of last year's fertilizer bill."

Many in the sugar growing business say costs are changing so rapidly that growers' traditional accounting-analysis figures can't keep up. But they estimate it's taking a market sugar price of about 30 cents a pound just to break even.

With sugar now past 50 cents a pound, that means good profits for farmers and processors.

But it also means that year-ago sugar prices of 16 or 17 cents a pound aren't likely to return.

Despite profits running as high as 20 times those of a year earlier, sugar processing firms say their previous earnings were so low that a big jump is not unconscionable.

They'll have a chance to make their case to the government this week at hearings on sugar prices called in Washington by the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

They're also expected to have their say at congressional hearings next week when the House Agriculture Committee inquires into soaring sugar prices.

In the wake of this year's weather-devastated cane and beet crop, there seems no prospect for improved supplies until the next crop comes in next year.

Bigger supplies in relation to demand could ease prices.

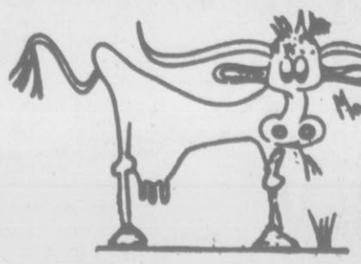

But sugar men, from farmers to financial experts, don't predict any big rush to increase U.S. production until they see whether prices will hold at or near the current levels.

With those fuel, fertilizer and equipment costs going up for farmers like Pineda and Boegel, and with four years lead time needed to build a big sugar mill, forecasts remain wary despite current good times.

be because Henry was traveling in Asia." The Kissinger speech was exteremely well-received by the Congressmen, but as soon as he left Butz took over as champion of U.S. farmers and the game plan changed.

With Richard Nixon in the White House, centralization of foreign policy worked well, sometimes miraculously. But that has changed. When Kissinger returned from his long trip to Asia, Europe and the Middle East, he had to plunge into double-digit hours of Oval Office cram talks to prepare an untutored President Ford for Japan, South Korea and Vladivostok. He sandwiched in a major policy-setting speech in Chicago on how the oil-consuming nations could escape bankruptcy.

Serious politicians who watched the earlier and brilliant Kissinger triumps with some envy now watch the Kissinger setbacks with a mixture of alarm and anger. They are alarmed because they fear Kissinger has too much influence with a President lacking strong foreign policy convictions of his own or an independent national security staff in the White House. They are angry because they think the Secretary of State, strong man of a weak cabinet, has become too much a one-man show, without a President or a bureaucracy capable of double-checking his decisions.

Turkey Shoot By Rec. Dept.

The Greenville Recreation Department will hold a Basketball Turkey Shoot tomorrow evening — Tuesday, at 6:45 p.m.

It will be held at two locations — South Greenville Gym and Elm Street Gym. The contest is based on the best of ten foul shots. An entry fee of 50 cents will be charged. This entry fee allows a person to shoot ten shots. Additional chances to shoot are 25 cents each.

Turkeys will be given in each of these age groups providing there is enough participation. Age groups are grades 1-3, grades 4-6, grades 7-9, grades 10-12 and adults.

Annual 'Gold Rush' Is Held By Cubs Saturday

The East Carolina Council, Pitt District, held its annual Cub Scout "Gold Rush" Saturday morning at Green Springs Park here.

The "Gold Rush," hosted by Pack 385 of St. James Methodist Church, drew participation from eight of the 11 packs in the county as some 170 Cubs and friends of scouting attended.

Judges for the event were the Rev. Ron Randolph, Owen Kingsbury, J. T. Manning (Boy Scouts of America district chairman), the Rev. Jim Lee, and Charles Snell.

Following the "Gold Rush" activities, trophies and ribbons were awarded in various categories. Pack 385 won first price for attendance with Pack 24 of Mt. Pleasant Church and Pack 200 of the Moose Lodge receiving second and third place awards, respectively.

Leaders recognized for the most original costumes were: Mildred Stallings of Den Three, Pack 2000, first prize; Nancy Moore, Den Two of Pack 385, second place; and Linda McKeel, Pack 24, third prize.

Cubs receiving prizes for the most original costumes included: Richard Moore, Den Two of Pack 385, first prize; Albert Tien, second prize; and Mark Campbell, Den Four of Pack 385, third prize.

Barrett's term will run til July 2, 1977.

Two Collisions Saturday Night

An estimated $1,100 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated here Saturday night.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 9:25 p.m. mishap on VanDyke Street 75 feet South of the Mumford Road intersection involving a car driven by Virginia Daniels Hardy of Route 5, Greenville, and a parked vehicle owned by David Scott of 1206 VanDyke St.

Damage was set at $500 to the Hardy car and $300 to the Scott auto.

Mrs. Hardy was charged with careless and reckless driving.

No charges were reported following investigation of an 8 p.m. mishap at the intersection of 14th and Greene Streets involving cars driven by Ammie Jones Williams of 1307 Allen St. and Joseph Hugh Williams of 1807 Norcott Cir.

Damage was estimated at $50 to the Ammie Jones Williams car and $250 to the Joseph Williams' auto.

Seize Youth In Break-In Try

A 17-year-old Greenville youth was taken into custody by officers last night after allegedly attempting to break into the Little Mint on North Creene St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Roger Clemmons of 111 Dudley St. allegedly attempted to break into the building while an employee was inside cleaning the business.

Clemmons was charged with attempted breaking and entering and with resisting arrest.

The incident occurred about 11:50 p.m.

Watergate Money Flow Traced

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A graphic picture tracing the flow of some $450,000 in cash to the original Watergate defendants goes before the jury in the Watergate cover-up trial.

As one of their last witnesses, Watergate prosecutors today were scheduled to call Anthony J. Passeretti, an Internal Revenue Service agent for 30 years.

Passeretti has been working for the special prosecutor's office since May to piece together the complicated web of raising, delivering and receiving the cash, which the prosecution contends was to pay the defendants for their silence.

Passeretti is scheduled to display a chart that outlines the flow of money.

The prosecution, which originally had hoped to wind up its case Friday, also was to recall former White House aide Egil "Bud" Krogh.

Krogh testified Friday that defendant John D. Ehrlichman, his former White House boss, drew him into the Watergate cover-up to keep secret the 1971 break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Before lawyers for the five defendants begin the defense, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica was to hear arguments for separate trials or directed verdicts of acquittal from two defendants, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson.

Sirica is to receive by Friday a confidential report from three court-appointed doctors recommending whether former President Richard M. Nixon may be able to testify at the trial.

The three physicians, led by Dr. Charles A. Hufnagel, a surgeon from Georgetown University Medical School, arrived at Long Beach, Calif., Sunday. The panel will study hospital records and possibly examine Nixon before reporting back to Sirica.

Hufnagel's spokesman said the three doctors would draft a written report for Sirica who must then decide a number of various options.

They include taking a written deposition from the former president, moving the trial to California, or taking no testimony at all.

Nixon has been subpoenaed by Ehrlichman, who says the former president betrayed him by concealing the real reasons for the cover-up.

Also on trial in the case are former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

The jury will hear Mitchell's defense first. His lawyers have said they will call only five or six witnesses.

Find Body Of Slain Woman

LILLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The body of a young woman missing since her school bus was found abandoned near her Harnett County home last December has been in a wooded area, authorities said today.

The Harnett County Sheriff's Department said the body of Phyllis Bradford, 18, was found Saturday by a woman who was walking through the woods near a trailer park in the Spring Lake area.

The State Medical Examiner's Office in Chapel Hill made positive identification Sunday night from dental records and a high school ring found on the body, they said.

Miss Bradford's family said she left home on the morning of Dec. 19 on her regular school bus route. The bus was found later that morning about 100 yards from her home. Her books and purse were in the vehicle but there was no sign of the young woman.

Officers said the body, which was unburied, was found off N.C. 210 about six miles from her home.

She had been shot in the head, they reported.

No arrests have been made in the case.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace held firm Sunday saying he hasn't decided about running for the presidency in 1976.

Wallace said: "I haven't made up my mind.

"I don't know whether I'm going to run or not," he added. "And I haven't made any plans to run in any primaries."

The governor was responding to published reports that quoted unidentified aides as saying Wallace would probably enter all of the major primaries in the race.

RALPH CAPONE DIES

HURLEY, Wis. (AP)—Ralph "Bottles" Capone, 80, brother of the late Al Capone, died Friday in a nursing home here. Capone operated a tavern in Mercer, Wis., until retiring several years ago. During Prohibition he sold chasers for liquor.

PROVES THE POINT—The Rev. David Finestead holds his daughter, Kathie, 3, after Sunday morning services at the Lake Lotawana (Kans.) United Methodist Church. Last September the minister put $1,000 of his own money in the collection plates that were passed among the congregation, telling them to take what they wanted and to use the money in work for the Lord. This Sunday's collection amounted to $3,160 to prove the Biblical parable of the talents in which a rich man gave money to three servants. (AP Wirephoto)

Jamie Surprised His Pictures Wanted

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP
UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — When hundreds of persons flock every day to one of Manhattan's 450 art galleries—where the normal visitor count is a few score—you can be sure there is an exhibit of extraordinary public interest.

The Coe Kerr Gallery currently has such a show—the work of a member of that celebrated American art dynasty, the Wyeths. It is the second exhibition of paintings by James Wyeth, son of Andrew Wyeth who enjoys the sobriquet of "America's favorite painter."

"Jamie" Wyeth, 28, burst on the art world with a debutant exhibition in New York in 1966 and has not shown his work since, despite the five-figure prices his paintings brought when he was only 20.

Wyeth explains that he has a "drive" to paint and money is a secondary consideration. He would paint whether he sold or not. In the current show, almost every work sold in the first two days.

"Shows have nothing to do with producing paintings, although the money gives me the freedom I need, of course," said the personable artist-farmer from Chadd's Ford, Pa., whose oils command $25,000 to $30,000 and watercolors $7,500. "But I always think it is extraordinary that people want to buy my paintings—to shell out real jack for them."

His realistic paintings, which are emotionally charged in spite of a surface serenity, are often compared with his famous father's.

Both artists draw their inspiration from the landscape, structures and people of the Brandywine country around Chadd's Ford and of Maine (young Wyeth summers on Monhegan Island), but their vision is divergent and Jamie prefers oil to his father's egg tempera. Jamie Wyeth depicts his share of seaside rocks, bailed hay, and lightning-riven trees, but is more interested in portraiture—both human and animal—than his father.

"I only paint my friends, even the animals I paint are my friends," he said with one of his quick, flashing smiles. "They'd have to be my friends to put up with it because I follow them around for months. In case of people, I become the person, even speak like him. And I don't like to have my animal portraits called animal pictures—they're just like portraits of people."

The Coe Kerr show offers a Wyeth menagerie—his Newfoundland dog, Bobo, in a sinister pose against a darkling sea, his pinkish pig, Denden, presented lifesize with an enigmatic expreusion on her face, a neighbor's elegant sheep, a menacing herd of Angus cattle, and a killer shark. He studied sharks from the safety of a steel shark cage submerged in the Caribbean on one of his rare excursions outside the Chadd's Ford, New York, Monhegan triangle.

Wyeth is developing into one of the great American portraitists. His painting of Paul Mellon, the millionaire art connoisuaur, is a tour de force depiction of a shy personality achieved through use of fugitive color and unorthodox composition. He has caught his father, Andrew, in a contemplative pose with all the sureness of Thomas Eakins. For his Self-portrait, the artist put a Jack O'Lantern over his head.

"It was Halloween on Monhegan and I put on this pumpkin head," he recalled. "It freaked me out. You get into these funny psyches. I say now, 'What in the hell possessed me to paint that.' I'm always asking that when I look at my paintings."

Wyeth's grandfather was N. C. Wyeth, a painter and popular illustrator of children's classics. His aunt is painter Henriette Wyeth, whose husband is the Western painter Peter Hurd. Another aunt, Caroline Wyeth, is the least known painter of the clan and was Jamie Wyeth's only teacher. With such a background, the technical aspects of paintings could be expected to come easy to the third generation.

"But they did not," Wyeth said emphatically. "I am not a good technician, but I am getting more comfortable with oils. The more and more I paint, the more application of paint becomes unconscious. That's one of the changes in my work in the past eight years. My scale is getting larger, too, and I'm getting closer to things. Not every blade of grass, mind you. I'm just seeing more."

Oil Lending Fund Faces Questioning

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon faces questions from the Joint Congressional Economic Committee about United States participation in a new $25 billion international lending fund to help countries caught in the energy crunch.

Simon's appearance before the committee today follows Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's statement earlier this month that the $25 billion would be for 1975 alone and that the U.S. contribution would be $8 billion.

The fund would be financed by the world's industrialized nations to help participating countries cope with problems caused by the steep price rise in oil imports. Italy is regarded as one of the first beneficiaries of such a plan.

Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the House subcommittee on international economics, said he wanted to know why the fund was so large, how the United States will raise its share and what will be done to require nations receiving the loans to curb their oil import needs.

Reuss said in a statement he also wanted to know if the proposal would go into effect before Congress approved U.S. participation in the planned International Energy Agency, which was launched in Paris Nov. 18.

Simon's testimony will be followed Wednesday by that of Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns. The committee also has invited Thomas O. Enders, the State Department's economic and business chief, to appear later.

Kissinger said in a speech Nov. 14 in Chicago that the loan facility would be used to redistribute among the industrialized nations the billions of dollars being reinvested in the West by the oil-rich nations.

He said this should be accompanied by a speedup in national programs to conserve energy to cut dependence on oil imports to no more than one-fifth of the industrialized world's total energy consumption.

Hopeful Syria Will Go Along

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

PEKING, China (AP) — After a week of hard negotiating, the United States is now optimistic and confident that Syria will agree to an extension of the U.N. disengagement observer force on the Golan Heights, a senior American official said today.

The life of the 1,250-man contingent, which has been keeping the peace between Syria and Israel, was due to expire Nov. 30. Its dissolution would have removed a barrier to renewed warfare between the hostile neighbors.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger conducted the negotiations by cable to the U.S. Embassy in Damascus and through the Syrian Embassy in Washington while traveling in the Far East with President Ford. Some of this work was done aboard the Spirit of '76.

The understanding was reached before Ford and Kissinger arrived in Vladivostok last weekend for a minisummit with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, newsmen were told.

This timing eliminated a major source of Mideast tension from the Ford-Brezhnev meeting.

The Soviets have been rearming Syria, their client state, since the October 1973 war while the United States pumps arms into Israel.

Kissinger concluded his tour of the Middle East last month without word from Syria on whether it would permit the United Nations to extend the observer force.

Israel has since charged substantial movement of military equipment by Syria on the Syrian side of the demilitarized zone on the Golan Heights. Israel mobilized several thousand troops on its side.

Loessin Work Favorably Cited

Edgar R. Loessin, director of the East Carolina University Playhouse and the ECU Summer Theatre, has received a favorable review from the New York Times for his direction of a current off-Broadway production.

Loessin is directing Holy Ghosts a new play by Romulus Linney which recieved its premiere performance at ECU in December 1971.

The play concerns a cult of revivalist Christians who handle poisonous snakes to prove the strength of their faith, and its characters consist of an assortment of social misfits who find hope and joy in the cult—until its preacher dies of snakebite.

Times critic Lawrence Van Gelder said the production's characters "are sharply sketched," and that "each emerges as a distinct personality type; all are credible, some are moving, and everyone in the cast merits praise for performance."

Of Loessin's directing, he said:

"The philosophy of this particular worship is advanced with intelligence, understated persuasiveness and respect, and Edgar Loessin's direction has orchestrated the outlawed climax of the service into awe and ecstasy."

Van Gelder's review appeared in the Sunday, Nov. 17, edition of the New York Times.

One of the chief roles is being performed by Beth Grant, former ECU drama student of Kenansville, who is also one of the show's co-producers. She created the role of Nancy Shedman in ECU's production.

Holy Ghosts is being performed Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays at the Garrick Theatre in Greenwich Village.

During this quarter, Loessin has been on leave of absence from ECU in order to be in New York for the play's rehearsals.

Charges Failure To Meet Obligations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nonprofit Southern Regional Council charged today that Southern hospitals and nursing homes built under the federal Hill-Burton program are not meeting their legal obligations to provide free medical services to the poor.

In testimony prepared for delivery to the U.S. Senate health subcommittee, Alan Crimm said a study of 44 medical facilities in Southern states showed widespread abuse of federal regulations.

The medical consultant said the administrator of a facility in Winston-Salem, N.C., admitted that bad debts are used to meet the requirements for free service, despite a federal regulation banning that practice.

Crimm said few facilities in Alabama, Georgia and Arkansas separate free service from bad debts in their financial statements.

No facility in the Southeast has been audited to verify the expenses it is charging as free service, and Georgia, Tennessee and Virginia have failed to submit annual reports required by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Crimm said.

He also said that of the 44 facilities visited only one, the University of Virginia Medical Center, has a conspicuous notice that free service is available.

Under the Hill-Burton program, federal funds are provided to build medical facilities which agree to provide some free services for the poor.

Arrest Suspect For Break-In

William Maceo Harris, 27, of Newark, N.J. was arrested in Kinston Saturday on charges of breaking, entering, and larceny in connection with an October 28 break-in at Discount Jewelers at 407 Evans St. here.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Harris was one of three men who allegedly broke open a window at the jewelers and took a quantity of merchandise from the display.

Two other men were arrested by officers shortly after the incident.

NEW YORK (AP) — Recession worries kept a lid on the stock market today, leaving prices mixed despite the encouraging news of a new tentative coal industry contract settlement.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.64 at 613.66, although gainers maintained a 5-to-3 advantage over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was light.

The Dow edged up about 2 points in the early going, with brokers crediting increased hopes for an end to the coal strike shortly in the wake of Sunday night's new contract agreement.

But it soon became evident that the market wasn't going to get far. Analysts noted that investors were faced with a broad range of developments reflecting the economic slump, from new auto indsutry cutbacks to a continued decline in machine tool orders in October.

Great Western United preferred, the most-active issue on the Big Board, rose ¼ to 16 in trading that included a 111,300-share block at 16¼.

W.T. Grant, which reported a widened quarterly loss on Friday, slipped ⅛ to 2 in active trading.

In coal stocks North American Coal was up ⅞ at 25½ and Pittston inched up ⅛ to 35.

Auto issues were generally unchanged.

The Big Board's 11 a.m. composite common-stock index was up .08 at 36.67.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index rose .07 to 63.90.

Snytex, the Amex volume elader, slid 1¼ to 38⅜. Brokers said the quarterly-earnings gain reported by the company apparently fell short of some investors' expectations.

Prof Shows Voltswagen

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Jim Chisman, an engineering professor at Clemson University, has unveiled his "voltswagen," an electric car built from a Volkswagen body and powered by a 120-volt aircraft starter-generator.

Chisman said he got the idea for the car after waiting in line for gasoline last winter. Using a car body found in a junk yard, he rigged up an 11-battery power unit to a standard transmission system at a cost of about $1,500.

"I'm going to drive it to and from work every day, about 20 miles" he said. "If I drive it the full range, it will take seven or eight hours for the batteries to recharge to full strength."

Chisman said his car batteries can be recharged every night by plugging them into an outlet in his carport.

He estimated his operating expenses at about one-half cents per mile, including replacing the batteries every two years.

The car has a top speed of 55 miles an hour and a range of about 30 miles at that speed, he said.

"I'm still a little leery of it," he confessed.

Miss Sophia Knight, the 1973 Queen, crowned Miss Jenkins. First runner up was Miss Taurana Wilkins of Bethel Light Court No. 622. Miss Lillis Stancil of St. John Baptist Church in Falkland was second runner up.

The contest, a Freedom Fund Project, was arranged by Mrs. Lynette Little, chairman.

K-of-C Council Attends Meet In Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE—Approximately 40 members of the John Ivey Smith Council No. 6600, Knights of Columbus attended third degree ceremonies here Saturday.

The ceremony was hosted by the Jacksonville Council. Twenty-five members of the Greenville Council received the third degree.

In a presentation ceremony, Milton Jenkins Jr. of Greenville was declared "Knight of the Month" of the J. I. Smith Council. The honor is given to a Knights of Columbus member for some outstanding work in some phase of community service programs in which the K-of-C are involved.

Jenkins was honored for his work in the recent Operation Lamb and was selected by his fellow Knights. Grand Knight Thomas Hanifer of Greenville made the presentation.

Arrest Duo On Drug Charges

Charles Elton Hardy, 20, and William Harris Williams, 20, both of 2709 East Third St. were arrested by Greenville Police Friday on charges of possession of marijuana.

The two men were arrested, Chief Glenn Cannon said, after officers, found three pounds of marijuana, valued at $600, during a 10:45 a.m. search of their Third Street apartment.

Bond for each man was set at $2,500.

Chief Cannon noted that a warrant has been issued for a third man on similar charges in connection with the case.

Found With Stolen Goods

Wilbur Adam Ballenger, 17, of 43 Carriage House Apts. was charged with receiving stolen goods by police Saturday and placed under a $500 bond pending hearing of the case in court.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Ballenger was charged with receiving goods allegedly taken from 1101 Colonial Ave. during a break-in November 18.

A stereo, speakers and electric guitar were reported taken from the dwelling.

Manager Injured In Store Robbery

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — A supermarket manager was listed in good condition today after receiving severe cuts during a robbery Saturday, authorities said.

Police reported that Robert Meyers, assistant manager of the S&R supermarket, was accosted by the robber when he opened the store at 7 a.m.

The robber cut Meyers on the shoulder and face before forcing him to open the safe, police said. The thief fled with an undisclosed amount of cash and food stamps.

Police had made no arrests by late Sunday.

Pickets Are Out Today

Four picketers were marching this morning at the Big Star store at Pitt Plaza, seeking support for increased wages for striking meat cutters.

State AFL-CIO president Wilbur Hobby and John Russell of Asheville, president of Local 525 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters Union, were arrested Friday by police on charges of picketing without a permit. Their cases are scheduled to be heard in District Court here December 3.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a picketing permit was issued to the meat cutters at 8 a.m. this morning. The permit was applied for last week, Cannon explained.

The Greenville City code provides for a 72-hour waiting period from the time of application before a picketing or parade permit can be issued. Hobby said Friday that the city's picketing ordinance was unconstitutional and that the AFL-CIO would challenge it in the courts.

Jail Man In Rape, Theft

Sammy Crystal Perkins, 21, of 805 West Fifth St. was jailed here last night on multiple charges—including rape—following a 6:30 p.m. incident in Northwest Greenville.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Perkins allegedly raped a 42-year-old woman in her home, then took her car. He was apprehended following a collision with the vehicle.

Perkins, Chief Cannon said, was charged with rape, auto larceny, damage to personal property and hit and run driving.

Chief Cannon said Perkins allegedly forced the victim of the alleged raped into the bedroom of her home after threatening to kill her and striking her in the face with his hands, forced her to undress, then assaulted the woman. The victim escaped from the house after going to the kitchen of her home to get some ice to apply to her swollen face.

Pitt Woman Killed In Shooting Incident

A 31 year-old woman was killed and another wounded in a shooting incident a mile West of Greenville on N.C. 43 Sunday.

Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E. W. Harvey identified the dead women as Mary Harrington Betts of Route 1, Greenville. He said she was shot three times with a .22 caliber pistol.

One of the bullets was found in her clothing—it had not penetrated her skin. However, she was wounded fatally by two other bullets — once in the lower chest and once in the back.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said Fred Dixie Wilson of Greenville has been charged with murder, in connection with her death.

Tyson said Wilson went to the Betts home and shot Mrs. Betts and his wife — from whom he was separated — Mrs. Rose Wilson, 38, following an argument outside the Betts home.

Mrs. Wilson, according to officers, was wounded in the left arm and abdomen.

Wilson then left the scene and was taken into custody by Greenville Police officers at the Meadowbrook Pentecostal Holiness Church on Mumford Road where he went following the 12 noon shooting.

Women Face Theft Count

Four Baltimore, Md., women were charged with larceny by Greenville Police yesterday in connection with the alleged theft of clothes from Belk-Tyer Company and Blount Harvey Co. here Saturday.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, Lucy Mae Williams, 54; Joyce M. Fisher, 46; Emma Sue Wright, 55; and Christine Williams Morgan, 46, were stopped by Farmville Police Sunday, in connection with an investigation of the theft of $1.90 worth of merchandise from a Farmville store.

Officers found an estimated $5,000 worth of clothing in the women's car, part of it allegedly taken from Belks and Blount-Harvey Co. in Greemville, Saturday.

Bond for Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Fisher and Mrs. Morgan was set at $2,000 each, while bond for Mrs. Fisher was placed at $4,000.

FOXX'S GIFT

TAFT, Okla. (AP)—Actor-comedian Redd Foxx has turned over $10,000 to this tiny eastern Oklahoma community for a start on a swimming pool so the children "won't have to go 10 or 12 miles to go swimming in the summer."

Farmville Store Owner Drowns

BLOUNT'S CREEK—Farmville department store owner Frank Dupree III died in the Pamlico River near here yesterday.

Members of his boating party told the Beaufort County Sheriff Department Dupree, 43, jumped overboard and was attempting to swim ashore. When they realized he was in trouble, they tried to rescue him, but were unable to. His body was pulled from the water by an unidentified man, the Sheriff Department said, adding that attempts by the Beaufort County Rescue Squad to revive him were not successful.

Dupree owned and operated Dupree's Department Store in Farmville.

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

The end of the 1974 football season Saturday at Lexington, Va., was not a happy one for East Carolina University. We do feel, however, that Virginia Military Institute was a more deserving champion that would have been Appalachian State.

But we do not feel that VMI was the best in the league — they just had the best record. East Carolina had the potential to have won it all. They should not have lost to Appalachian State; they should not have lost to Richmond; and they should not have lost to VMI.

What the problem was, we do not pretend to know. It could be a number of things. In nearly all situations where there is a coaching change there is a period of adjustment. Sometimes this causes a team's record to go up; sometimes to go down.

The Pirates will lose some top players this year to graduation, most of them on defense. It will take an effort to rebuild the defense, but it can be done.

The offense will not be as badly hurt. Most key personnel return or replacements are on hand. The most pressing need during the off-season is for quarterback Mike Weaver to regain his passing touch which he had as a high-schooler. Many were down on Weaver this year because of his lack of passing ability — but remember that Carl Summerell was booed as a sophomore too. Experience and maturity can help to solve many problems.

Recuriting this fall will be critical. The Bucs need to come up with a good backup quarterback. They will need some more running backs to keep the stable full. They will need some good receivers, but mostly linemen for both the offense and defense.

But probably what they need most of all is a continuance of faith in the program. This year was a winning one, despite the fact that the Bucs didn't win the Southern Conference title.

There are some fair-weather friends who won't buy season tickets next fall, or who won't join the Pirates Club. We feel that these are not friends at all of the program.

This season should be thought of as a period of adjustment. There may be some more needed next year — but the Pirates will be back up on top soon. Just don't give up on them now.

This year didn't produce as many broken records as did last year's team — but it was a different sort of team, one designed not to break as many records.

Ken Strayhorn tied the school and conference marks for most touchdowns with four against Dayton. He also tied the point record for the school of 24 in that game.

Danny Kepley, who deserves to be the Player of the Year in the conference, set a new interception career record of 196 yards. The old record of 163 was held by Todd Hicks, who finished in 1967.

Jim Bolding snapped Bill Cline's career record of 36 punts returned. He has 37 and still has two years left. He should also break Bobby Ellis' 382 yards in returns.

Jim Woody broke Peter Kriz' 47 PAT kick career mark, kicking 65. He also holds the field goal record of 14 in a career. He opened the year just one short of Ricky McLester's mark of nine.

The team also rushed for 3,015 yards, nearly 100 more than last year's record of 2,918. And the punting average of 39.3 yards broke the 1966 mark of 39.0.

The team broke the fumble mark of 44 set in 1970 with 47, but they did not snap the fumbles lost mark of 26.

Prior to losing to ASU, the Bucs extended their conference win string to 16, and they have continued their mark of consecutive conference games scored in to 26.

Tough Road For Thalman And Keydets

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

Having had a day to savor Virginia Military's first Southern Conference football championship since 1962, Keydet Coach Bob Thalman said "it's even more satisfying when the road up there was so tough, so rough."

Thalman was referring to the fact that when he took over the VMI coaching job before the 1971 season, the Keydets' record the three previous years had been 3-29. Thalman went 1-10 his first year, 2-9 his second and 3-8 last season.

"To survive all that and get up there makes it feel a lot more beautiful," said Thalman.

VMI's 13-3 victory Saturday over East Carolina's Pirates—the first time the 1972 and 1973 league champions had gone without a touchdown since their 1971 opener—not only gave the Keydets the league title with a 5-1 record but a 7-4 over-all season, their best since 1960.

But Thalman wasn't the only happy coach around the league Saturday.

"I don't think President (Thomas A.) Graves realized how quickly we would implement Program 2 (for athletic re-emphasis)," said William and Mary Coach Jim Root after his Indians, with Bill Deery getting 256 yards in total offense, routed Richmond's Spiders 54-12.

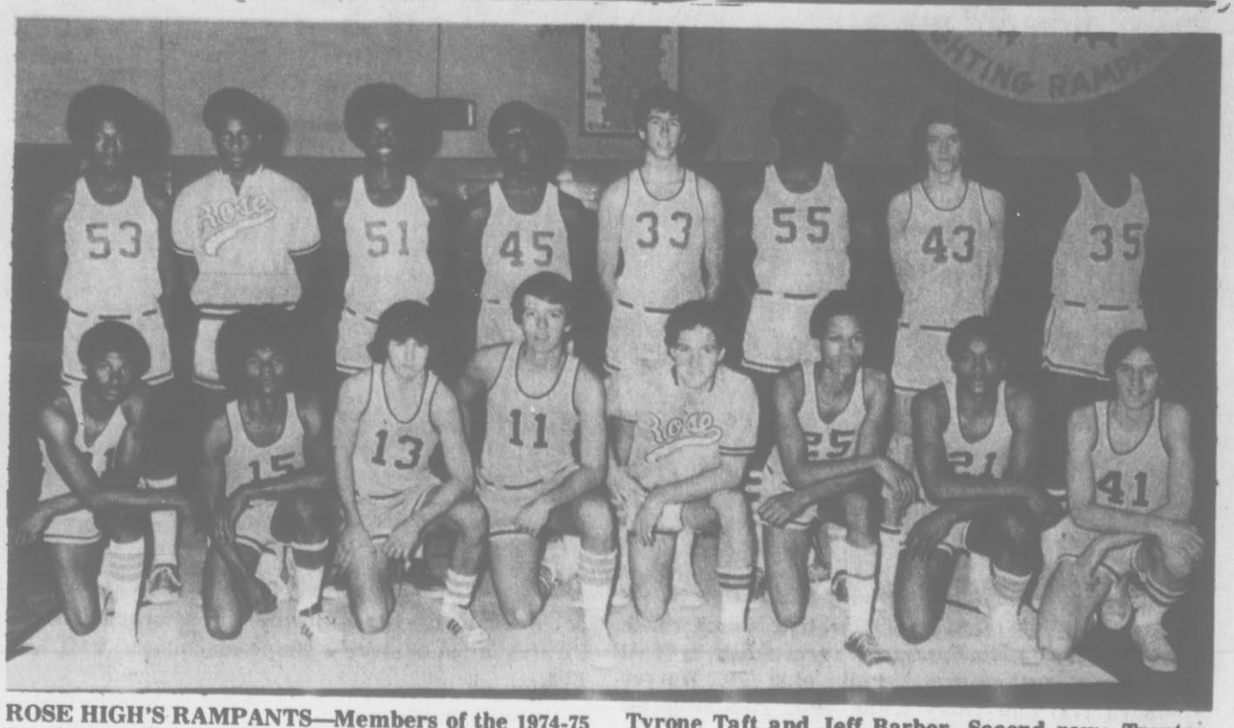

"We faced a lot of adversity this year, but our kids stayed together and now I think we have our program on solid footing," said Coach Bobby Ross after The Citadel's Bulldogs drubbed Davidson's Wildcats 56-21 with Andrew Johnson setting a league rushing record.

But it was a disappointing day for Appalachian State Coach Jim Brakefield, whose Mountaineers had finished 4-1 in the league and needed an East Carolina victory for the title, and Furman Coach Art Baker, whose Paladins were 16-10 victims of Wake Forest.

No one knew it, but VMI put the title away the second time it had the ball, moving 64 yards in 13 plays. Tony Farry ran twice for 20 yards and hit Allen Morgan on a 13-yard pass. Punter Ron Bongiovanni then threw a 15-yarder to Tom Mihalik on fourth down at the ECU 32.

WE'RE NO. 1 . . . shouts VMI cheerleader Mary Love Young. If the out stretched arm does not tell her jubilant expresson most certainly does as her team won the Southern Conference Championship by defeating ECU 13-3. VMI being an all male school tells you that Miss Young is definitely not a student. Miss Young is a student at Southern Seminary Junior College and hails from the state of Alabama. Rampant Basketballers Launch Season Tomorrow

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

The Rampants of Rose High School will open the 1974-75 basketball season tomorrow night in Jacksonville, and second-year Coach Wilson McDowell has hopes for a much improved team.

Last year, the Rampants managed only two victories in 21 games, but that was double the victory total of the previous season. This year, the Rampants are still lacking somewhat in height, but they hope to make up for it by playing a good defense and coming up with a clicking fast break.

"Practice has been going right well," McDowell said. "We've got a lot of enthusiasm, and we've been working very hard on defense, especially the zone press."

Since the Rampants don't have outstandin height, McDowell feels the team must offset it by running as much as possible. "We have a little more height than we usually have, but we still don't have the real big man," Key big men include Mike Brewmington, Macon Moye, Donnie Shields and Ronnie Barrett, all around 6-3 and 6-4. "We're not completely outclassed as we have been in the past," the coach said.

The Rampants have been badly beaten on the boards in recent years, but McDowell feels that this may improve, too. "We did an adequate job in the scrimmage game we held. W'eve mixed up our lineups, trying to find out who wants to play and who wants to get the job done."

The coach feels that the Rampants can pull off some surprises this year. "Our shooting is adequate to above, and if our defense can do the, job, I look for a lot of improvement."

There is speed, as McDowell feels there are six guards who are as quick as any around. "Our big men don't have great speed, just average, but if they can get it out to the guards, we can run the break well."

Six players only joined the team a week ago, due to the length of the football season, and they still have to make the switchover in timing and the line. "But our first conference game isn't until January 16, and this helps." Because of the late start, too. McDowell hasn't made cuts yet, with 17 still on the varsity unit.

Top candidates for the point guard position are Randy Pellisero, Griff Garner, Eddie Smith and Harry Pair. Pellisero is likely to get the nod for the opener.

At the wing position, Tyrone Taft, Linwood Brown, Moye, Lindberg Morris, Dana Kendrick, Gerald Holloway, Ray Barnes and Jeff Barber are all working. Taft and Brown will probably start tomorrow.

Then, at the posts, Barrett, Brewington, Trenton Blount and Shields are contesting, with Shields and Barrett probables to start.

"The football players who are just out will play a lot and some of them may probably work up to starting roles when they get ready," McDowell said.

The coach feels that he has good experience, with six lettermen returning, all of whom played a lot last year. "Our depth is going to be right good, and the players are pretty evenly matched, too."

In the Division I race, McDowell looks to Bertie Central to be the team to beat, with Northern Nash right behind. "Then, I think the rest of us will be bunched together." Second place this year is important, since the conference gets two state playoff berths.

"I'm not going to make any predictions, but I do expect us to do better than win just a handful," McDowell said. "I'm not going to be satisfied to double our wins again."

And with last year 2-19 overall and 1-9 conference record, a reversal would be more in line with McDowell's desires.

ECU Grapplers 2nd In Tourney

The East Carolina wrestling team battled their way to a second place finish this weekend in the East Stroudsburg Collegiate Wrestling Tournament.

Athletes in Action captured the overall team championship with 151 points, while the Pirates were in second place with 94.5 points followed by the New York Athletic Club with 71 points.

Tom Marriott, a junior from Herkimer, New York won the only individual championship for the Pirates in the 150 pound weight class. Jim Blair (118) and Bucky Baker (142) both finished in third place.

Danny Monrow (126), Mike Radford (190), and freshman Clay Scott (177) all captured fourth place trophies.

Head coach John Welborn was quite pleased with the team's performance and felt they did even better than he had anticipated, "Overall, I think our team did a tremendous job. All of our wrestlers did a lot better than I thought they would," said Welborn." I was just extremely pleased with the overall effort of our team."

The Pirate grapplers will travel to Norfolk, Virginia next weekend to participate in the Thanksgiving Open.

Stan Smith And Net Star Wed

LOCUST VALLEY, N.Y. (AP) — Marjorie Logan Gengler, the top-ranked women's tennis player in the East last year, and Stan Smith, former U.S. Open singles champion and 1972 Wimbledon champion, were married Saturday at St. John's of Latingtown Epsicopal Church.

Mrs. Smith, a 1973 graduate of Princeton University, was captain of its women's tennis team in 1972. Her husband, a 1969 graduate of the University of Southern California, is a former member of the U.S. Davis Cup team.

Belgian Wins Motocross Race

LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP) — Three time world champion Roger DeCoster of Belgium pulled out in the last eight laps on Sunday to win the American Motorcycle Association motocross race at Carnegie Cycle Park.

DeCoster covered the mile and a half track in 1:43, just two seconds ahead of German Willi Bauer. In third place was Adolf Weil, Germany; in fourth place Mike Runyard, Pasadena, Calif., and in fifth place Gerrit Wolsink, Holland.

WFL Summit Apparently Hammers Out Remedy

MEMPHIS (AP)—An emergency World Football League summit conference has apparently hammered out a remedy to stop the infant league from going broke and an agreement to end public bickering.

"We're no longer dealing in fantasies, but in true realities of football," said Christopher B. Hemmeter, the newly-named WFL president.

The two-day summit talks, which started on Friday and ended on Saturday night, had their genesis in the previous weekend's nationwide debate over the first World Bowl playoff format.

Eight teams were originally to have taken part, somebody announced only three would be eligible and a compromise was reached at six.

Hemmeter, who will divest himself of his interest in the Hawaiians, is a successful real estate developer. Officials said he clinched the president's job because of his credibility in financial circles.

Hemmeter said the owners of the 10 WFL franchises have agreed on a financial reorganization plan which will ensure "stability, longevity and growth" of the league.

Details of the plan will probably be released in February or early March when the league announces its lineup of cities for the 1975 season, he said.

Hemmeter said he expects the league to clear up all its financial problems, including the nonpayment of players, before the beginning of next season.

The owners also met with about 20 prospective franchise owners and investors at the summit. Although none was identified, sources said the men came from San Antonio, Tex., Louisville, Ky., Tulsa, Oka., New York, Jacksonville, Fla., and the Canadian cities of Montreal and Toronto.

"The purpose of the meeting was not to sell franchises," Hemmeter said, describing the visitors' interest as "very heartening."

"The purpose was to explore the new concept of the WFL and to explore their interest and to get their reaction," he said.

Hemmeter said the next step will be to pursue the interest of the prospective investors and to solve the financial problems of existing franchises.

WFL general counsel, Don Regan, said the conference decided that World Bowl players will receive 70 per cent of the receipts. Winning players will receive 60 per cent and the losers will get 40 per cent of the receipts, he said.

The World Bowl will be held on Dec. 5.

An unexpected guest at the summit conference was the vice president of CBS sports, Bob Wussler. He did not make any statements to newsmen, however.

This year, an independent network, TVS, televised all the WFL games and has a one-year renewal option.

While most officials were tight-lipped over Wussler's visit, Ed Keating business manager for future Memphis Southmen signees Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield, said, "CBS is not trying to do anything."

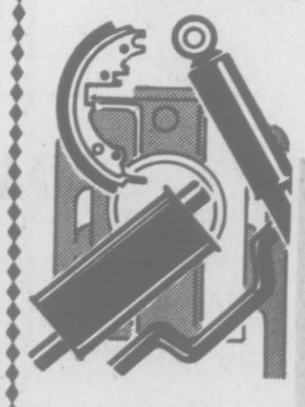

"Any major network that has any degree of competitiveness certainly is going to look hard at any successful sport," Keating said.

NO WHERE TO GO—East Carolina Quarterback Mike Weaver (9) finds himself surrounded by VMI defenders Greg Arnett (44), Phil Upton (75), Warren Goddard (73) and Terry White (80). This situation occurred many times during the afternoon as the Pirates failed to score a single touchdown. VMI won 13-3.

Ohio State Again Chosen For New Year's Classic

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Coach Woody Hayes of Rose Bowl-bound Ohio State thinks the Big Ten must change its procedure for selecting its representative to the New Year's Day classic.

"The selection now has become more important than the game," Hayes said Sunday before learning the Buckeyes were the Big Ten's choice in a secret Rose Bowl vote by conference athletic directors.

"We're going to have to change this thing. It's not right," he said.

Hayes suggested the Big Ten adopt a plan such as the Pacific-8 uses in selecting its Rose Bowl team. The West Conference follows a predetermined set of guidelines rather than resorting to secret balloting.

Southern California will face the Buckeyes again in this year's Rose Bowl.

Hayes should draw strong support for his views from Michigan, again barred from a postseason appearance despite the nation's best record over the past three years, 30-2-1. Ohio State is 29-3-1 in that span.

One of the Wolverines' defeats was inflicted Saturday 12-10 by Ohio State, leaving both national powers with identical 10-1-0 records overall and 7-1-0 conference marks.

Bo Schembechler, under a two-year probation from Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke for chastising the 1974 Rose Bowl vote, refused even a "no comment" this time.

Some Big Ten coaches feel other conference teams besides the champion should be allowed to play in bowls.

"I don't care to go to another bowl game," Hayes said, "but if the league is in favor of it, I'm not opposed to it.

"I always felt the Rose Bowl is the greatest and that's where we should go," he added. "We got it (the Rose Bowl vote) because we earned it. Our kicking game was the difference Saturday."

He was referring to a school record four field goals by Czechoslovakian immigrant Tom Klaban and 45.2-yard punting by Tom Skladany, who broke a Big Ten single season record with his average of 45 yards per punt.

However, if Michigan's Mike Lantry had made his 33-yard field goal try in the closing seconds, the athletic directors' vote would have been a formality.

The Wolverines would have won 13-12 and been the undisputed conference champion with an 8-0 record.

Hayes and some of his key players were hardly blase about making a third straight trip to the Pasadena classic against Southern Cal.

"The excitement is greater every year I go to the Rose Bowl. The time it isn't, that's when I quit coaching,' said Hayes, 61, who has taken six previous teams to the oldest of the bowls.

Hayes predicted the 1975 Rose Bowl game would be the greatest New Year's Day contest.

"John McKay is a great coach," Hayes said. "His Southern Cal team must be hot as a firecracker now. I think they are a team developing late."

Steelers Match Defense Against Saints' Offense

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — If the Pittsburgh Steelers aren't frightened by the New Orleans Saints, at least they admit they are interested.

Tonight's national television clash sends the splendid defense of the Steelers against a blossoming New Orleans offense in a contest that could bear heavily on Pittsburgh's Super Bowl hopes.

Though a definite underdog, the Saints have the momentum and health — except for a couple of aching kickers slightly damaged in a minor traffic accident Sunday while en route to practice.

Punter Tom Blanchard came out of it with a bruised ankle and field goal specialist Bill McClard had a bruised kicking leg. Both were scheduled to play.

New Orleans doesn't exactly boast a 4-6 record, but the Steelers don't want to be deceived. Last Sunday, the Saints suddenly put together an offense that trampled another championship contender, Los Angeles 20-7.

"We have seen film on the Saints' offense and it presents some interesting situations," said linebacker Andy Russell, Pittsburgh's defensive captain. "But we can adjust."

Russell was talking about a new Saints offensive formation last week that used four wide receivers, just one running back and no tight end.

But the rejuvenated Saints offensive line still must deal with a Pittsburgh line that leads the National Football League in takeaways with 20 interceptions and 18 fumble recoveries. It also tops the NFL in quarterback sacks with 40, and in total defense.

"But our front four will have to be aware of Archie Manning's scrambling ability," said Russell. "Sometimes you can do a good job initially and then the scramble kills you."

Terry Bradshaw was chosen to start, ending speculation about who Coach Chuck Noll would choose from his trio of quarterbacks this week. His rotating quarterbacks system has upset some Steeler fans but it's a problem other coaches might envy.

"I think having three quarterbacks is a bonus, not a problem," Russell said. "We don't use the rotating quarterback system by design — it's just that none of the three has really taken over enough to win the job."

The game will be televised nationally by ABC beginning at 9 p.m., EST.

Cut Cloth To Fit The Figure

Did Clark get the job or was it awarded to the psychology graduate student from the University of Chicago? Clark was a student in my psychology courses, so he used "Horse Sense" instead of braintruster methods!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE C-604: Clark B., aged 31, was one of my psychology students at Northwestern University.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I saw an ad in the Chicago TRIBUNE for a sales executive, at a salary of $25,000 per year.

"So I wrote a letter of application and was soon called into the office for an interview.

"The employer said he had received many replies to his ad, but had narrowed the number down to just 2, which included a graduate student at the University of Chicago and myself.

"But he now wanted us to visit a woman character analyst in the Hyde Park area near the University of Chicago.

"She was to make the final decision by use of facial features and the bumps on one's skull.

"Apparently, she is what you call a physiognomist and phrenologist.

"So what should I do, for I want the job, if possible?"

Psychology Applied

So I told Clark to be very respectful and courteous, but NOT to argue with her!

Remember, there is a time and a place for all things, but when your prospective boss firmly believes in a system for picking employees, even if his system is unscientific, that's not the time to quibble or debate.

Well, the 2 applicants went to see this character analyst.

The graduate student in psychology from the U. of Chicago was examined first.

He held an M.A. degree and began to argue with the woman as to the folly of her phony system of character analysis.

The debate grew rather heated.

My student, however, was courteous and cooperated by letting her measure his facial features and also feel all the bumps and depressions in his skull.

Whom do you readers think this woman recommended for that $25,000 position?

She picked my student who applied his psychology deftly, even though he didn't believe in physiognomy or phrenology!

And this case dramatizes the difference between braintruster psychology and the very practical or "Horse Sense" variety that I always taught and now include in my college textbook, "Psychology Applied."

It also demonstrates the contrast between academic or textbook theories vs. practical situations in real life.

You housewives thus understand the truth of the old adage:

"You must cut the cloth to fit the figure; not the pattern!"

For a pattern, like an engineer's blueprint, is not elastic so it doesn't stretch to meet changing conditions in external reality.

But human figures vary, so a smart seamstress will adapt the pattern somewhat by taking in a tuck here or inserting a gore there till the customer is smartly fitted and happy.

A number of cloistered psychology professors sneer at this column because they say:

"That awful Dr. Crane is belittling the dignity of college psychology by using 2-syllable words.

"He makes things too simple!"

But that is the art of true teaching, for those "ivory tower" critics "obfuscate their propositions with polysyllabic circumlocutions!"

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Greyhound Strike Ends; Buses Back On Routes

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Greyhound buses idled by a one-week nationwide strike were back on the road again today after tentative agreement on a new contract which a union official said provides a 16 per cent increase in wages and benefits over three years.

"It's approximately a 6 per cent increase over the board, including pension benefits and everything else, retroactive to Nov. 1," said William H. Brummitt, president and business agent for Amalgamated Transit Union Local 1233 here.

The tentative agreement, reached Sunday, also provides an over-all raise of 5 per cent in 1975 and again in 1976, he said.

Some 16,000 drivers and related employes, who walked out Nov. 18, began reporting to work within hours of the accord. Ratification votes by 31 union locals across the country were expected to be completed in about three weeks.

The strike had shut down regularly scheduled routes for the bus company, which serves an average 190,000 passengers each day.

Buses first began moving again in Buffalo, N.Y., Greyhound officials said. A check of terminals here and in other parts of the country revealed that some of the first runs were made without passengers.

All scheduled coaches were to be back in operation today, company officials said.

Drivers had been paid about $5.35 an hour or 21.8 cents a mile, whichever was greater, under a contract which expired Oct. 31, Brummitt said. An earlier reported figure of $5.76 an hour was in error, he added.

Hourly wages for drivers would increase by 11 cents the first year and 10 cents each of the following two years, he said. However, Brummitt explained that most drivers are paid by the mile and would be affected more by a first-year raise of 5.5 miles (a little over one-half cent) provided by the tentative pact.

The agreement also calls for mileage raises of 4 miles the second year and 3 miles the third, he said.

The largest hourly raise, 35 cents this year, 30 cents next year and 26 cents in 1976, would go to mechanics who "have been underpaid as skilled laborers," said Brummitt.

Mechanics reportedly had been paid slightly less than bus drivers under the old contract, while the pay for some baggage department employes was around $5 an hour.

"We're never really satisfied with a contract, but I don't expect any major problems getting ratification," said Ellis B. Franklin, chairman of the union council.

One-Hour Study For 'Monsters'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Would everyone in the room who doesn't believe in the Loch Ness monster, Bigfoot or the Abominable Snowman please stand up? Thank you, sir. The rest of you kindly watch CBS tonight.

The network is airing an excellent one-hour study of these beasties in a Smithsonian Institution special called, "Monsters! Mysteries or Myths?" A warning: Monster buffs won't appreciate its conclusions.

Nevertheless, the show, narrated by Rod Serling, is valuable in that it puts the pros and cons of the three highly publicized monsters in one arena in which viewers:

—Can inspect purported film footage of Bigfoot, a Northwest version of Nepal's Abominable Snowman, and of Scotland's Loch Ness monster. (Alas, they'll only get photos of purported Snowman tracks.)

—Hear accounts of claimed sightings of the beasts direct from the purported eyewitnesses and learn what the infidels — scholarly types who haven't seen the monsters and have doubts about them — have to say.

The show also has an illuminating segment about a major hazard for lay monster-hunters — the hoaxster. One such citizen in Washington state periodically makes bogus Bigfoot tracks.

Why?

It's not to fool the scientists, Serling notes, but rather the monster-hunters. The hoaxer involved says he began doing this after some hunters asked if he'd seen a Bigfoot lately.

He told them he didn't believe in such things. Whereupon, he adds, "one gentleman said, 'Well, you hicks around here probably wouldn't.'"

That was a grave mistake. As the special shows, the hick promptly made some false Bigfoot feet from wood, attached them to his boots and romped gaily through the snow in the wooded search area.

"By the time the day was over," he gleefully recalls, "there was seven, eight hundred people lookin' at the tracks, from all over the country."

But most of the show is devoted to the pursuit of truth, not flim-flam. It painstakingly trots out the alleged evidence, consults the scientific experts and makes fairly convincing arguments against the existence of the Snowman and Bigfoot.

After inspecting the Loch Ness segment, which includes a 1972 exorcism of whatever evil lurks on those chilly waters, I'm still not convinced the whole thing is balderdash.

Serling, in closing, notes that despite the tantalizing monster tales, the Smithsonian scientists, in the absence of hard evidence, "do not endorse the reality of such creatures as Bigfoot, the Abominable Snowman or the Loch Ness monster."

I'll agree on the first two beasts. As for the one at Loch Ness, the only truly scientific way to prove anything is to fish that lake with a 20-ton test line and a Hula-Popper lure. At dawn, of course.

Ethiopia Goes On Alert After Sixty 'Executed'

By GHION HAGOS
Associated Press Writer

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Ethiopia's military rulers put the country's armed forces and police on full alert today after the execution of 60 aristocrats and former officials. There was no unusual deployment of troops on the streets of Addis Ababa, however.

Those executed included members of the deposed royal family and the general who led the overthrow of former Emperor Haile Selassie. Residents of the capital expressed shock at the speed and extent of the violent removal of so many prominent people, but there was no evidence of unrest.

Radio Ethiopia announced the executions early Sunday, then resumed normal programing. By nightfall, there were only a few pedestrians and motorists on the streets of the capital.

The executions, at midnight Saturday, were ordered by the 120-member military council, now headed by 36-year-old Maj. Mengistu Haile Miriam, a little-known officer.

The council called the executions "an act of justice" against persons who had sought to disrupt the country's popular movement, abuse authority or enrich themselves while this East African nation of 27 million was racked by famine and poverty.

The executed included Gen. Aman M. Andom, chairman of the council since it took over from the 82-year-old emperor two months ago. There was no word on the fate of Selassie himself.

Selassie's son, Crown Prince Asfa Wossen, 58, designated by the military leaders as a future ceremonial king of Ethiopia, refused comment. He has lived in Geneva since suffering a stroke last year.

Aman was relieved of his post just hours before he was shot. A moderate who frequently clashed with council radicals over the pace and scope of reforms, Aman was accused of acting dictatorially and trying to show discord between the armed forces and the council.

Machine-gun fire was heard near Aman's home as the radio announced his dismissal.

Other victims included two members of the military council; two former prime ministers, Aklilou Habte Wold and Endalkachew Makonnen; most of the cabinet ministers in Aklilou's administration; 18 generals; and a former navy commander, Rear Adm. Alexander Desta, who was the emperor's grandson.

Radio Ethiopia said the executed men had been buried. Relatives and friends were told not to ask for their remains but paid traditional house calls on grieving families.

Farm Scene

Farmers with hired workers need to understand legislation that affects their labor program. A new Agricultural Extension publication, Your Responsibility as a Farm Employer, will provide a checklist of various laws under which farm employers may have an obligation, outlines the provisions of each program and cites the administrative agency where additional details may be learned.

Among the topics covered are Minimum Wages (Federal), Child Labor, Occupational Safety and Health Act, Social Security Taxes and Withholding Employee's Income Tax. All these will be of interest to producers.

Tax Publication

The 1975 edition of the Farmers Tax Guide, published by the Department of the Treasury, Internal Revenue Service, is now available to producers at the Agricultural Extension Office. This publication provides information for filing your 1974 farm income taxes.

Corn Production Mechanized

Corn production in the Coastal Plain of North Carolina has been almost totally mechanized over the past two decades. During the past few years, many farmers have speeded up operations more by broadcasting all their fertilizer before planting. With complete broadcast fertilization, however, corn growth during May and early June is often slow and irregular, particularly on poorly drained soils. This condition raises the question of not applying any banded starter fertilizer. A new publication, Higher Corn Yields With Starter Fertilizers should answer all questions area farmers have as to the advantages of this practice.

These are only three of the many publications available at the Agricultural Extension Office, 203 W. Third Street, Greenville. Stop by and look over our pamphlets, or if you would like us to send you one of the three named above, just call 758-1196.

D.H. Conley

HIGHLIGHTS

D.H Conley was the scene of the November fellowship meeting of the area devotional groups. The 75 people who attended represented six schools. The day-long meeting featured games, skits, singing—both special and group, and Bible study. A spaghetti dinner was provided for all who attended. Thanks go to both Coca-Cola and Pepsi for donating drinks. The meeting was deemed a success.

This year's wrestling team will strive hard again. With the loss of Coach Steve Morgan and several outstanding wrestlers, the team will have to work harder to achieve their goals. When there is a new coach, both the coach and the team have to get used to each other. But with Coach Milton Sherman's experience, hard work, and team effort, the grapplers will still be a threat.

Varsity boys basketball is well underway. The team has been selected and consists of Clennel Streeter, Gerry Mobley, Melvin Williams, Robert Harris, Keith Gould, Charles Keys, Joey Baggett, Calvin Hawkins, Johnny Streeter, Mike Nobles, and Dale Bailey. According to Coach Marsh, the teams strong points are quickness and team spirit. Their weakest point seems to be in rebounding. Good Luck, Vikings, as you take on North Pitt Monday night.

Students were selected as student of the week in IPS in each class. Congratulations Al Darden, Donald Ribeirs, Danny Coward, and Nathan Boyd for being chosen.

Anyone who wishes to contribute to the "Friends Page" of our yearbook should contact a student in the publications class. Contributions from $1 to $9 are welcome and the patron's name is printed on the page.

Have a Happy Thanksgiving!!

Tape Player And Pistol Stolen

A tape player and .22 caliber pistol were reported taken in a break-in at Lancaster Paint and Wallpaper Co. at 310 Pennsylvania Ave. last night.

Officers said entrance to the building was gained through a rear window.

Investigation of the case is continuing, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

Jail-Hanging Is Ruled Suicide

JEFFERSON, Ga. (AP) — Jackson County authorities have ruled a suicide the hanging death of a 22-year-old Virginia man who was arrested last week in North Carolina on charges of murder and armed robbery.

A spokesman for the sheriff said William Clayton Shiflet of Pen Laird, Va., hanged himself with a blanket in his cell Saturday night. His body was discovered early Sunday, the spokesman said.

Shiflet and Carolyn Dale Zirkle, 17, of Harrisonburg, Va., were arrested last week in Winston-Salem, N.C., in connection with the fatal shooting two weeks ago of William Webb at his service station in nearby Commerce.

Shiflet and Miss Zirkle were transported to Jefferson last Thursday, the spokesman said.

Edmisten Denies Saying He Wrote To Tax Office

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Atty. Gen.-elect Rufus Edmisten denied Sunday afternoon that he told a Raleigh newspaper he wrote the state revenue department about his tax status, and stood behind his court testimony last week.

The (Raleigh) News and Observer reported in today's editions that Edmisten told several of its editors during an Oct. 8 interview that he had written revenue officials. Sunday, Edmisten told a reporter for the News and Observer that he was confused during the interview and didn't mean he had actually written to revenue officials about his tax status.

Edmisten was convicted in Wake County district court Friday on failing to file state income taxes on time in 1972 and 1973. He was living in Virginia for 10 years while working in Washington for Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C. He paid Virginia income taxes but didn't pay in North Carolina though he claimed Tar Heel residency, owned property and voted in Watauga County.

Edmisten was sentenced to pay back taxes without protest and to pay court costs. His attorneys said they would appeal the decision.

The charges were misdemeanors and won't prevent Edmisten being sworn into office Tuesday.

The case against Edmisten was largely built on the testimony of three longtime Revenue Department employes. They said Edmisten had been informed of his North Carolina tax liabilities in response to a letter he had written in 1972. They said such letters are destroyed every year as part of department housekeeping.

Edmisten told the court he never wrote such a letter.

The News and Observer reported that Edmisten was interviewed by several editors Oct. 8 during his campaign for attorney general and this question was asked:

"Because of the fact that you were voting in the state, maintaining a legal residence here, the question arises as to whether or not you ever communicated with the revenue department to find out whether you should pay state income taxes of file income taxes. Did you ever communicate with them?"

The newspaper said Edmisten replied: "I recall one time writing a letter about that. I don't know where it is and I think I'm in the same boat as Luther Shaw, who's Roy Taylor's aide. He said he wrote one time and never got anything back."

The News and Observer said a transcript of the interview was made by a court reporter for the North Carolina Industrial Commission.

Edmisten's failure to file income taxes was a major issue during the campaign. After it was raised, he filed back tax forms and haggling began between his attorneys and the revenue department as to how much back tax he should pay.

In the Nov. 5 election, Edmisten defeated Republican interim Atty. Gen. James Carson with a 61 per cent majority.

During Friday's trial the three revenue department employes said Edmisten wrote the agency in 1972 saying he wanted to clear up his tax status because he planned to run for public office in North Carolina.

Edmisten denied writing the letter and said the only communication he could recall with the department was an inquiry on behalf of a friend who was too ill to sign tax returns. He said he may have received a letter or call from the department about that case.

During the Sunday afternoon interview, Edmisten told the News and Observer he didn't communicate with the revenue department on his tax status. "I did not, in any matter, refer up to there," he said pointing to the initial portion of the question in the transcript. "I was referring to any communication I might have made."

The newspaper quoted Edmisten as saying "I was very confused" at the time of the Oct. 8 interview and he "had not checked any files."

The N&O reported Edmisten told them Sunday that he said he wrote the department just in case he had written revenue officials on any subject.

Deadline Set On Scholarships

Col. Earl D. Bruton, Jr., East Carolina University Professor of Aerospace Studies, has announced that the deadline for making application for an Air Force ROTC four-year college scholarship is Dec. 31, 1974.

Thirty-two ECU students are currently on AFROTC Scholarship.

Interested students who feel that they can meet the qualifications for the scholarships may apply by writing to AFROTC-SDSF, Maxwell AFB, AL 36112 or apply in person to Lt. Col. Ronald F. Henderson, 110 Whichard Annex, on the ECU Campus.

Area Students Are In 1974-75 Volume

Thirty-nine students at East Carolina University will be cited in the 1974-75 awards volume, Who's Who Among Students In American Universities And Colleges.

They were nominated for citation by campus committees composed of students, faculty members and administrators on the basis of individual achievement in academics and extracurricular activities.

Among the ECU Who's Who students are seniors and graduate students from 19 North Carolina counties and from California, Connecticut, Delaware, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Virginia.

Area students include:

PITT COUNTY, Greenville—Walter Thomas Calhoun, senior biology major, son of Walter T. Calhoun, 1620 Longwood Drive, and 1971 graduate of Rose High School; Ann Wilkes Fleming, senior biology major, daughter of Robert O. Fleming, 1707 S. Elm St., and 1971 graduate of Rose High School; Christopher Hay, senior political science major, son of Chiyoko Hay, 415 Ash St., and 1960 graduate of Ellenville High School, Ellenville, N.Y.; and Debra Lynn Stocks, graduate mathmetics students, daughter of Mrs. Linwood D. Stocks, Route 8, and 1971 graduate of G. H. Garrett High School, Charleston Heights, S.C.

Winterville—David Mayo Bullock, son of Katherine Bullock; and Leo Paul Franke, senior French major, son of Robert H. Franke, Route 1, and 1971 graduate of D. H. Conley High School.

N.C. Bar To Push Merit Selection For Judgeships

By The Associated Press

A proposal for merit selection of judges will be pushed by the North Carolina Bar Association in the 1975 General Assembly, according to association president Walter F. Brinkley, a Lexington attorney.

The proposal is aimed at removing selection of the state's judges from partisan politics and assuring that judges have legal training and experience. The plan would establish a statewide committee to make judgeship recommendations to the governor, who would appoint from the list of recommended candidates.

Supporters of the plan hope the recent general election kindled the spirit for judicial reform in the legislature. In that contest Williamston fire equipment salesman James Newcomb was the Republican nominee for chief justice of the state Supreme Court.

Newcomb was defeated by Associate Justice Susie Sharp, but the prospect of a person with no legal training holding the state's highest court post deeply disturbed North Carolina attorneys.

J. Ruffin Bailey, chairman of the N.C. Courts Commission and sponsor of the merit selection proposal, rates the measure's chances for passage this year as "good." The bill failed by six votes in the last legislative session.

Bailey said Sunday that substantially the same merit selection proposal would face legislators in the upcoming session. The plan would establish a selection panel of eight lawyers and eight laymen, with one member of the North Carolina Supreme Court as chairman. The chairman would only vote to break ties.

The committee would recommend to the governor three names of qualified candidates for any vacant judgeship. Under the plan the appointed judge would be required to run against his own record after 12 months in office in order to win a full term. If he failed to get a majority vote of confidence, he would be replaced by another appointee.

Terms for judges would remain at four years for district and superior court judges and eight for appellate court judges.

Brinkley said he appointed a 60-member committee of lawyers, including two from each judicial district, to work for the plan's enactment. He predicted the measure would be approved.

Burt Montague of the state courts administration said three new lay judges were elected to district court posts in this month's election. He said 10 out of 118 district court judgeships are held by non-lawyers.

In the judicial district composed of Wayne, Greene and Lenoir Counties, three out of five district judges are non-lawyers.

Brinkley said, "I wouldn't be critical of any of these judges. They're all fine people as far as I know."

He added that the concept of non-professional jurists is out of date under the present court system. "It is necessary to have legal training to carry out your responsibilities," the bar association president said.

Brinkley also said he feels partisan elections rob the state's benches of many qualified candidates.

"It is just not dignified for judges to have to get out and campaign, to have to raise money, and then maybe have people who supported them or worked against them come before them for judgment."

Bailey said the merit proposal also has the support of the League of Women Voters, the N.C. State Bar and the Christian Action League.

Freed Prisoner Is Re-Arrested

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Charlotte man released from the Mecklenburg county jail last week in an effort to ease overcrowding has been arrested on a housebreaking charge, police said Sunday.

The charge was the same under which Charles Lee Suswell, 27, was being held originally, police said.

Suswell was first arrested Oct. 3 after a breakin at a local apartment.

On Nov. 15 Superior Court Judge Frank Snepp ordered 35 prisoners released to reduce overcrowding. All were freed without bond under the pretrial release program.

Lt. Jack Sloop said Suswell was arrested last Thursday near the scene of another housebreaking.

Driver Charged In Car Mishap

Barbara Heath Foskey of Route 1, Greenville, was charged with following too close following investigation of a 6:30 p.m. collision yesterday at the intersection of N.C. 11 and the Belvoir Road.

Police reported the Foskey car collided with a vehicle driven by Billy Ray Brewer of Route 6, Greenville causing an estimated $350 damage to the Brewer car and $200 damage to the Foskey auto.

One passenger in the Foskey car was reported injured.

Together They Make A Whole Person

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "To put it rather coldly," said Mrs. Lynne Scroggins, "I supply the brains and Margie supplies the muscles. We're a team. Between us, we make a whole person."

To begin to understand how this was accomplished it is necessary to go back about 3½ years to the first day a girl named Margie arrived at the suburban home of Mr. and Mrs. John Scroggins.

"She just stood there," said Mrs. Scroggins. "Her toes were pointed in together. She didn't have any front teeth. She was scraggly haired and frightened. She had a speech defect. She wouldn't talk. She wouldn't go to the bathroom or tell you she was hungry. She just stood there looking frightened. I got sort of scared myself."

Who is Margie?

A severely retarded young woman who for more than seven years had been a ward in state institutions and had just come from a state school and hospital. She had an estimated IQ of 32 and now is 27 years old.

And who is Lynne Scroggins?

A brilliant and restless young woman in a wheel chair who by all rights should be dead by now of a creeping, irreversible form of muscular dystrophy. She is 29.

Margie had come to the Scroggins house because Lynne's doctor told her that her husband, more than twice her age, was killing himself trying to hold down a job and take care of her.

At that time 3½ years ago, there was one word for both women: "Hopeless."

"At the end of a week, Margie was helping to bathe me, dress me, put me off and on the bed pan and clean me up," Mrs. Scroggins recalls.

With financial help from the state, Margie was able to have front teeth and new clothes. She began to speak in sentences. She had her own room and learned to take care of it immaculately.

"Margie must have a very big heart," Mrs. Scroggins says. "She began to do these things for me with great pride in herself and with great compassion for me. We have learned to manage completely, taking care of each other, along with all the house chores and cooking all the meals together."

Mrs. Scroggins won a cooking contest last spring.

"I am well aware if it weren't for Margie I wouldn't be able to cook at all, and if it weren't for me, Margie wouldn't be able to eat — which is her favorite pastime," Mrs. Scroggins said.

Margie gave Mrs. Scroggins one of the pills she must take at precise times. Had Margie ever wanted to return to the school?

"I'd die first," she said softly.

"My doctor says I should already be dead," Mrs. Scroggins resumes. "He seems to think my aggressive attitude has kept me alive. I have to be thinking every moment. Dealing with Margie calls for extra explanations that another person wouldn't require. I have to use a lot of descriptive words. If I want a carrot or some celery, I have to clearly indicate which I want because Margie gets them mixed up."

Mrs. Scroggins worries about what will happen to Margie if she dies.

"Our friends come over to visit, and they hug Margie, they kiss her and make a big deal out of her. But if we ask them to look out for her for even a couple of hours, they're always too busy."

As Mrs. Scroggins told of Margie and their interdependent lives, Margie was in her room much of the time. She came when summoned, or when Mrs. Scroggins was supposed to take one of her pills. She sat beside Mrs. Scroggins some of the time.

She knew she was being talked about. Her eyes flicked from face to face, she frowned sometimes, smiled, giggled, blushed. When she was asked about the school, she buried her head in her arms. She mostly looked at Mrs. Scroggins.

"I plan to live to be a hundred," Mrs. Scroggins said. "Margie and I will probably end up in a nursing home together."

Mrs. Scroggins and Margie teach a cooking class together each Thursday night. One of the members of the class is a retarded boy.

"They had their first date the other day," Mrs. Scroggins said. "They danced. They rode bikes. They went shopping."

Margie giggled and blushed.

Six Died In N. C. Traffic

By The Associated Press

A 15-year-old cyclist was struck and killed by a car in Iredell County on Sunday, becoming the sixth traffic fatality in North Carolina over the weekend.

The Highway Patrol said Steven Vinson McKinley, 15, a student at Barium Springs, N.C. School for Boys, was killed on U.S. 70 near Statesville.

Two other cyclists were injured in the accident, the patrol said.

The latest traffic deaths brought the state's highway death toll to 1,377 for the year. By this time last year, 1,726 persons had lost their lives in North Carolina traffic accidents.

Also killed in weekend traffic accidents were:

—Betty Jean Almond, 48, of Hendersonville, who died Saturday in a headon collision on U.S. 64 in Henderson County.

—Abner Keys, 38, of Rt. 1, Blount Creek, who was killed when his car slammed into a tree in Beaufort County.

—Elsie Rose West, 19, of Zebulon, who was struck and killed by a car while hitchhiking on U.S. 64 east of Raleigh.

—Richard Mark Phileman, 18, of Norwood, who was killed Saturday when his car struck a culvert on N.C. 731 near Norwood.

Spotlight On The Missing

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)— "Adoption" of American soldiers missing in fighting in Southeast Asia was urged by North Carolina Jaycees in their annual mid-year meeting in Winston-Salem Saturday.

The Jaycees urged North Carolina organizations and individuals to support efforts to get an accounting of 1,300 military men missing from fighting in Southeast Asia. Waynesville Jaycees began the statewide effort by adopting Capt. Fred Hall of Waynesville who has been missing and unaccounted for since 1969.

The adoption program is an effort to increase public awareness that 1,300 American servicemen are listed as missing and are unaccounted for by North Vietnam's government. A Jaycee spokesman said public awareness could force the U.S. government to make stronger efforts at trying to get search and rescue teams into North Vietnam territory to account for missing American soldiers.

The Jaycees adopted the resolution at the request of the National League of Families of Prisoners and Missing Men in Southeast Asia.

In other action Saturday, the Jaycees planned a jelly sale in January. Funds from the sale will go to setting up a burn center at the medical school in Chapel Hill.

Lake Nakuru in Kenya was the first national park to be set up in Africa primarily for birds. A million or more Lesser Flamingoes crowd together in a shimmering pink mass on its waters.

PUBLIC NOTICES

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S RESALE OF PROPERTY
State of North Carolina
County of Pitt

WHEREAS, the undersigned, acting as Substituted Trustee, in a certain deed of trust, executed by C. W. Ward & Company and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, North Carolina, in Book k40, Page 218, foreclosed and offered for sale the land herein after described; and whereas within the time allowed by law an advanced bid was filed with the Clerk of Superior Court and an Order issued directing the Substituted Trustee to resell said land upon an opening bid of $10,550.00.

NOW, THEREFORE, under and by virtue of said Order of the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County, and the power of sale contained in said deed of trust, the undersigned Substituted Trustee will offer for sale upon said opening bid at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the door of the County Courthouse, Pitt County, Greenville, North Carolina at 11:00 A.M. on the 5th day of December, 1974, the following described property located in Pitt County, North Carolina:
