

Economic Planks Already Soft-Pedaled

Demo Party Now Has First Constitution

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
KANSAS CITY (AP) —
With ringing declarations of restored brotherhood, Democrats have sent their leaders back to Washington or home states to make good on promises to attack the nation's problems.

But two of the party's leading presidential possibilities already were soft-pedaling the key plank in an economic program adopted by the unprecedented Democratic miniconvention — strong economic controls.

Sens. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr. of Texas and Birch Bayh of Indiana said in television appearances Sunday they considered wage-price controls a "last resort" in the economic battle.

Meanwhile, back at the convention hall, Rep. Richard Fulton, D-Tenn., chairman of an economic panel, said delegates were agreed that "some form of price and perhaps wage controls are necessary."

The return to the practical side of politics followed a euphoric finale to the miniconvention which adopted a party charter, endorsed an economic platform for the Democratic Congress and showed more unity than the Democrats have exhibited since the days of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The economic package adopted Friday night was based on speeches by Democratic leaders from Capitol Hill. It called for controls on prices and all forms of income, tax reform, strict energy conservation, credit rationing, national health insurance and public service jobs.

The charter banished the quota system which had divided the party bitterly in 1972. It was replaced with a mandatory recruiting program called "affirmative action" to bring women, minorities and other traditionally under-represented groups into the party.

The first constitution ever adopted by an American political party also bans discrimination, outlaws winner-take-all primaries, reforms delegate selection procedures for national conventions, opens all party meetings to the public and makes the national party supreme over state parties.

The real test of the new affirmative action substitute for quotas will come when the Compliance Review Commission rules on state programs and spells out what programs will satisfy the new rules.

The commission also will have to determine just what is meant when the new charter says the reforms extend to "all party affairs." Some party regulars have complained that having to recruit women, blacks, youths and others every time a local committee wanted to conduct a fund-raising drive would be taking it too far.

Meanwhile, Terry Sanford, president of Duke University and former governor of North Carolina, said he has just about made up his mind to announce his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"In my own mind I have doubts ranging anywhere from 2 to 3 per cent," Sanford told reporters Sunday at Kansas City. He said those doubts were decreasing "as time goes on."

Sanford has not held an elective office since he left the governorship in 1964. He made a brief bid for the presidential nomination in 1972, but was soundly defeated by Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in the North Carolina primary, ending his campaign.

And Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, poised on the threshold of an announcement of his candidacy, said he was pleased with his reception at the miniconvention.

Carter's official announcement will come later this week.

Energy Hearings To Provide Forum For Many Views

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public hearings are going to provide a forum for business and consumer groups to give their ideas on U.S. energy policy as President Ford's advisers prepared to huddle at Camp David to weigh some strict fuel-saving proposals.

Dozens of witnesses at the three-day hearings beginning today were scheduled to comment on the "Project Independence" study submitted last month by the Federal Energy Administration and to discuss the complex issues involved with energy policies.

Consumer concerns and business concerns were the topics at today's hearings.

The hearings precede a policy session of the cabinet-level Energy Resources Council,

Six Charged

LONDON (AP) — A teenage girl, a woman and four men were charged today with murder in the Guildford pub bombings last October that killed 5 persons and wounded 60.

The arraignments brought to 13 the number of persons charged in the Guildford bombings.

The Guildford blasts on Oct. 5 were blamed on the Irish Republican Army, which has been waging a campaign of bombs and bullets in Northern Ireland since 1969.

whose 20 members are to bring their recommendations to President Ford in time for presentation to Congress in January.

The ERC has scheduled a meeting this Saturday at Camp David, a top-security presidential retreat in the wooded Catoctin Mountains some 90 minutes' drive from downtown Washington.

There have been increasing indications lately that the top energy and economic officials invited to Camp David may be cooking up the "tough turkey" that President Ford has warned about: some form of mandatory measures to reduce energy consumption.

Ford has established a goal of cutting oil imports one million barrels a day by the end of 1975.

He hoped to accomplish this with voluntary public cooperation, warning that tougher measures were the alternative.

The White House now has begun admitting that voluntary fuel-saving has not been working very well.

John C. Sawhill, the departing head of the Federal Energy Administration, has been saying for weeks that voluntary efforts would not work. Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton, who takes credit for ousting Sawhill, has recently begun to agree with him.

Sawhill and Treasury Secretary William E. Simon have long urged consideration of a higher gasoline tax to discourage consumption. Ford has said publicly he opposes such a step.

Morton has also suggested other possibilities such as a return of tight fuel allocations similar to those of last winter. Other possibilities being mentioned include a quota on the amount or value of oil imports, taxes on crude oil or automobile horsepower and direct gasoline rationing.

The hearings Tuesday deal with resource development while Wednesday's session deals with the environment, conservation and relations among federal, state and local governments.

REFLECTOR

HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

WANTS UNICEF CARDS

We have a baby due next week and would love to have some UNICEF birth announcements. Do you know where I can get some? Mrs. I. B.

Hotline did a lot of inquiring about a local source before we learned that the League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County sells UNICEF cards. Mrs. Barbara Zicheran, who is in charge of the project, said the League makes no profit, but does this as a service to area citizens. She said her supply of cards is low now, but she will be glad to order any anyone may want, though she is doubtful of getting any in time for Christmas.

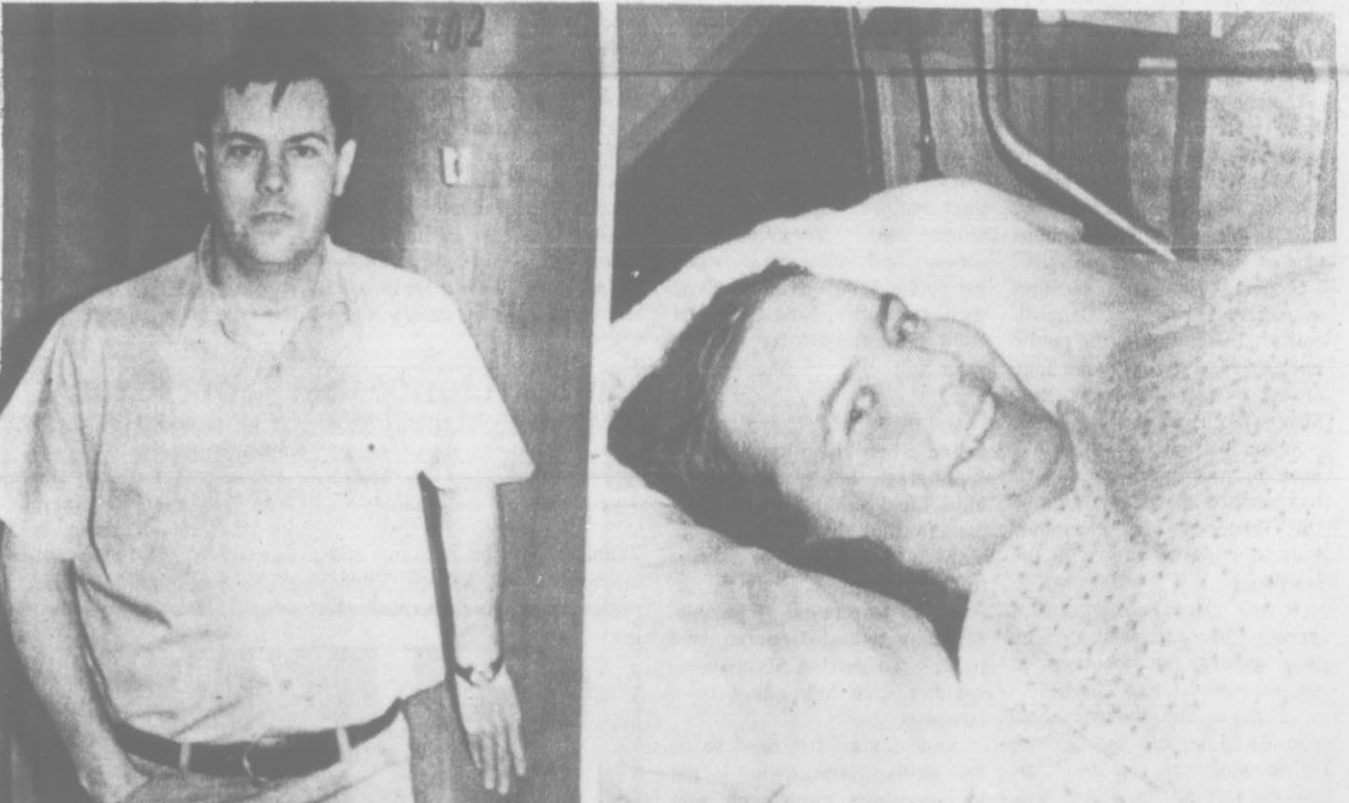

Catalogs of cards for all occasions, as well as engagement calendars, books, and games are available from the U.S. Committee for UNICEF, 331 E. 38th St., New York, N.Y. 10016. The good you're doing is spelled out with each type of purchase. For instance, a box of 25 note cards with 30 "mix and match" greetings and envelopes costs you $5 and buys a stethoscope, a syringe, and three medicine droppers for a mother and child health center somewhere in the world.

A U.S. Committee spokesman told Hotline she has the names of a store each in Durham, Charlotte, Asheville, and a few other N.C. cities which carry UNICEF cards. Perhaps some Greenville area store would like to contact the address given above about doing the same.

MY HAIR SMELLS BAD

I got a Perfect Touch permanent wave at a beauty salon here in Fayetteville Oct. 29. It left an odor in my hair I can't get out. Other beauty shops I've visited since then tell me it was put in incorrectly. I believe this because I've had the same wave with no problem. I called Honeycutt Beauty Supply Company in Greenville, which sold my beauty salon the permanent, to see if they would give me some advice, but the man said only, "Use tomato juice," which I'd already tried unsuccessfully. Would you see if Honeycutt will give you any suggestions? J.M.

Hotline asked Honeycutt for the address of the jobber from which the permanent was bought. We then called Turner-Hall Corporation in Great Neck, N.Y. The Customer Service person there said a product called Cream Float, put out by Turner-Hall, should remove any permanent wave solution residue from your hair. We relayed this information to you. A week later you told us this product worked better than anything you've tried so far, that most of the odor is gone and you believe one more treatment will let you be rid of it completely.

Some Pitt Demo Spokesmen Hint Sanford Support

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Several Democratic leaders in Pitt County have indicated they might support former governor Terry Sanford in a bid for the presidential nomination but most feel he has a long way to go before he will be a national contender.

Sanford, who presided over the charter debate at the Democratic mini-convention in Kansas City, Mo. this weekend, left few doubting that he will campaign for the 1976 presidential nod.

"His having chaired the convention in Kansas City and its very successful outcome would certainly enhance any national aspirations he may have," commented Farmville attorney John B. Lewis Jr. today.

Lewis, acknowledging that Sanford's performance at the political convention would "stand him in good stead," asserted, however, that the Duke University president has a "real rough road to hoe" in making himself known throughout the nation, not only in the south.

He added that if Sanford decided to run, "I would certainly support him."

Pitt Democratic chairman Henry Oglesby of Grifton said that the election is still two years away and "I wouldn't want to commit myself at this stage." Oglesby said that it is "too early for me to comment and guess about what will happen."

Janice Hardison Faulkner of Greenville said that, "I don't think any one candidate has clearly emerged as the favorite."

She added, "I think his chances are as good as any at this time," pointing also to the fact that Sen. Edward Kennedy has apparently ruled out any possibility of running for the presidency.

Mrs. Faulkner, saying that, "I do think he is well qualified," said that Sanford has quite a ways to go to make his name prominent. "Even his work in the convention... didn't attract as much attention... as one might think," she pointed out.

The president of the Pitt Democratic Women, Mary Faye Shires, commented that, "I have never heard anything but good things about him. Personally, I think he is as well qualified as anyone in the picture."

Mrs. Shires, noting that she would like to see Sanford run for president, said she believes "everyone will be willing to put forth a lot of effort for him."

"We haven't had a president from the south in a long time and although it seems difficult for us to do that, there is no reason to think that we couldn't do it," she added.

Jack Spain, long time aide to Sen. Sam Ervin before retiring several years ago, said that he has not had time to think about Sanford's race and he had "no comment at all."

Common Market Leaders Gather On Oil Plan

By ELIAS ANTAR
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Common Market leaders gathered today for a two-day summit conference. A key question was whether France was ready to join the others in accepting the United States proposal for a common front against the oil exporting countries.

The other eight members of the European Economic Community have generally endorsed Washington's proposal that the major oil consumers unite for eventual price negotiations with the Arabs and other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

France has refused to join such a consumers' club, seeks separate deals with the oil states and urges holding an immediate conference of consumers, producers and developing nations.

French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues told newsmen Sunday he thought the conference "will not discuss the energy question at length" because "the differences are between the French and American points of view," and this would be dealt with fully when President Ford meets French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing in Martinique next Saturday.

Sauvagnargues spoke to newsmen after West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt returned from Washington and talked by telephone with Giscard. The fact that the French were not going to press their European partners for support was taken by some diplomats to indicate that Schmidt may have worked out a compromise.

The energy question is just one of the tough problems that the Market leaders face in Paris.

The nine — Britain, France, West Germany, Ireland, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and Denmark — are expected also to consider more frequent meetings and a pledge to work more closely on economic matters.

The agenda does not include Britain's bid for cheaper membership terms in the Market, but conference sources said Prime Minister Harold Wilson is determined to bring up the subject. France and some of the other members are against any change.

Couple Exchanges Vows In Ceremony On Sunday

of the bride, pianist. The church was decorated with a basket of pink gladioli and long-stemmed red roses and two seven branch candelabra holding white cathedral tapers. Pews were marked with pink gladioli and pink satin ribbons. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Bundy Jr. of Rt. 1, Walstonburg, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown of light blue polyester shantung fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and empire waist accented with embroidered lace in a swirl leaf design. The angel sleeves were of imported illusion trimmed with matching lace. Her mantilla was of imported illusion edged with lace to match her gown. She carried a prayer book centered with red roses. She wore a pearl necklace, a gift of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Melford Walston of Rt. 1, Walstonburg. The matron of honor and only attendant was Mrs. Judy Walston of Rt. 1, Walstonburg, sister of the bride. She wore a formal gown of light yellow textured polyester designed with a sweetheart neckline, empire waist with pearl button trim and short tucked sleeves. She carried a single long-stemmed red rose. The best man was Ronald D. Moye of Saratoga. Ushers were Sammy C. Smith of Fountain, brother-in-law of the bride, and David Brodhead of Snow Hill, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride selected a navy plaid dress with a matching coat and wore a corsage of white carnations. The mother of the bridegroom selected a royal blue polyester dress and a corsage of white carnations. For traveling, the bride changed into a three-piece navy pants suit and wore the red roses lifted from her bridal bouquet. The couple will reside in Farmville.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville High School and is employed by Wickes Lumber Co. The bridegroom is a graduate of Greene Central High School and is now engaged in farming. Mrs. Peggy Brann of Farmville directed the wedding. The church register was presided over by Mrs. Janie Smith, sister of the bride. Following the rehearsal Saturday, the couple was entertained at a cake cutting at the church fellowship hall given by Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Smith and Mrs. Judy Walston, sisters of the bride.

Teenager Then Wants A P.S. To Her Letter

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Will you do me (and countless thousands of teen-aged girls) a tremendous favor and re-run the letter and your reply from your column of September 6, 1968? I wrote it, and now I want to write a "P.S." Thank you, "D"

DEAR "D": With pleasure:

"DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl and my problem is my mother. I hate her. It may sound terrible to you, but I really hate her. I used to think I would get over it, but I know now I never will.

Sometimes I think I will go out of my mind if she doesn't quit picking on me. I never do anything to suit her. She doesn't like my clothes, my hair, my friends or anything. My friends are not bums, either. They are good kids and they aren't wild or on pot or anything like that, but my mother says they look like hippies, and they aren't. Please help me, Abby, before I run away from home. I cry myself to sleep at night because my mother is so hateful. If I babysit, she makes me put the money in the bank. Other girls can buy records or do whatever they want with the money they earn.

Don't tell me to talk to my father. He's always on her side. And don't tell me my mother "loves" me and is only doing things for my own good. If you print my letter, don't sign name or I'll get killed."

MISERABLE IN PHOENIX

"DEAR MISERABLE: Your letter doesn't shock me at all. I receive many such letters each week. Almost every normal teen-ager alternately loves and hates his parents. It's not easy to be criticized, restricted, corrected, and disciplined day in and day out. But parents who really love their children, prove it by consistently letting their children know what is expected of them. Parents who are "soft" and permissive rear confused, insecure children.

I don't expect you to agree with me today, but keep this letter and read it again three years from now, and then you'll understand it perfectly. Good luck, dear. You're lucky. You are loved."

DEAR ABBY: Now, for my "P.S." I am no longer "Miserable." I am grateful. I am 20 years old, Abby, and I just found that clipping tucked away in my 1968 diary. (I am "cleaning out my closets" because I am going to be married next June, and I'll be moving.)

You were so right. My parents were stricter than the parents of my friends, but now I realize that they set extra high standards for me because they loved me and wanted me to be proud of myself.

I am saving a copy of that clipping to show my daughter if I am ever lucky enough to have one, because I intend to raise my daughter just like my mother raised me, and she may "hate" me for the same reasons I "hated" my mother.

I am graduating from college in June, and marrying a wonderful young man on the following Saturday.

How can I thank you? "D" IN PHOENIX

DEAR "D": You already have. Thanks for writing, Honey, and may all life's blessings be yours.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Phone Company Makes Pleasant Connection

By BOB COOPER
Associated Press Writer
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — What once was "Number please," and later became "Operator," now has become, "Good morning. This is Peggy. May I help you?"

The change, a complete about face, was made by General Telephone Co. of Kentucky "to make it just a little more pleasant for both the operator and the customer," C.W. Stephens said.

Stephens, operator services manager here for General, said, "The only thing the public has to judge us by is the tone of voice and the words they hear. They can't see us."

Since the new greeting has been in use, operators say, it has soothed the angry, calmed the flustered and chastened kids who like to play with the telephone.

It has also confused a few people, like the woman who was looking for donations of carpet samples to a charity.

"I guess she thought she'd completed her call, but because of an equipment problem, she got me instead," operator Peggy Lund said. "She went through her whole spiel because I'm not allowed to interrupt."

Neither Miss Lund nor Ramona Smith, another operator, were much in favor of the idea when it was first announced because they thought it would encourage male customers to get a little too chummy.

But it hasn't worked that way at all, they said. "They still keep their distance," Miss Lund said, "but it makes them think of us more as human beings and I've noticed they slow down a little when they read off their credit card numbers."

Irate customers seem to hold their tempers more, too, Miss Smith said. "They used to scream and holler at us when we couldn't do anything about their problems. Now they just calm down and ask for a supervisor."

And the kids? "They hang up faster when they know it's a real person they're talking to," Miss Lund said. "I guess they used to think they were playing with a recording or something."

In a traditional telephone company policy, General used to have a rule that an operator couldn't give her name to a customer.

"One guy said it used to be like pulling teeth, trying to get an operator's name and now she gives it to him right off the bat," Miss Lund said.

The idea behind the change, public relations director Robert Starkweather said, is to put a smile in the voice of the operator "and you can't be gruff when you're saying your own name."

N.C. Food Tax Again Attacked

ANNUAL PRODUCTS SALE — Roy Jones and Jerry Tester, hold products made by the North Carolina Blind Craftsmen, that will be sold at Pitt Plaza by the Greenville Lions Club, beginning this week. The non-profit sale will be manned by about 30 local Lions club members with all proceeds going to the North Carolina Commission for the Blind. The shop hours will be, Tuesday through Friday, 4-9:30 p.m., and Saturday, 10-10 p.m. (Reflector Staff Photo)

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—A legislator has called for repeal of the state's sales tax on food because it places a heavier burden on North Carolina's poor than on the more affluent.

In a talk to editorial writers for North Carolina newspapers Saturday, state Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, said the state's tax structure is "regressive" as it taxes the poor more heavily than the affluent.

Smith, a member of the legislature's tax study commission, said the sales tax on food takes 1.5 per cent of a poor person's money while it takes less than a half of a per cent from middle income citizens.

An economist who also addressed the writers agreed with Smith that the only major tax in North Carolina that isn't regressive is the personal income tax.

James Wilde, an economist at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and an assistant to the tax study commission, said families and individuals making less than $1,150 a year pay about 13 per cent of their income on state taxes while those making between $17,250 and $28,750 pay 9 per cent of their income in state taxes.

The corporate income tax that is eventually passed on to the consumer also is more expensive for the poor, Wilde said.

In another address Saturday, Jerry Hancock of Charlotte, a legislative lobbyist for Common Cause, told the editorial writers that Common Cause will try to get the legislature to pass the Equal Rights Amendment, strong ethics legislation, stronger campaign finance laws and lobbying disclosure laws. Common Cause is a citizens lobby group.

Also during the meeting, the writers heard of a proposal that would strip the University of North Carolina board of governors of its budget writing power. The proposal is under consideration by a legislative study committee.

State Rep. Herbert Hyde, D-Buncombe, said the proposal would remove the board's power to set spending priorities based on educational values and leave the priority setting to the legislature. Studying the proposal is the legislature's Commission to Study the Elimination of Waste in State Government.

One source on the study commission said the proposal is an outgrowth of the 1974 legislature's battle with the board of governors over expanding the medical school at East Carolina University. The General Assembly went against the recommendation of the board to not expand the school.

UNC President William Friday said Sunday he hopes the board of governors will be allowed to complete its plan for higher education in the state without having its power curtailed.

"When the restructuring act setting up the UNC system was passed it was stated that three to five years would be required to implement successfully the statutory requirements enacted by the General Assembly," Friday said.

The board is in its third year, he said, adding that he believed the effort has been "successful and accountable" so far.

In another address before the editorial writers, Mecklenburg County Dist. Atty. Thomas Moore said the governor's law and order committee is considering coordination of criminal records among state agencies. He said it would improve the criminal justice system in North Carolina.

The program would be an expansion of the current Police Information Network and be called the Criminal Justice Information System (CJIS). Moore said it would allow immediate access to a criminal's history by authorized persons across the state.

The plan won't be ready to submit for legislative approval until 1977, he said, adding that if the plan is adopted, 90 per cent of the funds for it would be provided by the federal government.

Moore said the CJIS would provide information on a criminal arrest, the charge against the person and the result of the case in court. He said it could also provide information on a person's location when free on bond and where a prisoner is in the prison system.

Crime Costs In Business

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's businesses will lose an estimated $20.3 billion because of crimes this year, equal to $137 for every adult in the country, the Commerce Department reported today.

The total loss last year was $15.7 billion.

The total includes losses from such crimes as shoplifting, burglary, vandalism, bad checks and employe theft.

It also includes the cost of crime prevention measures by business, estimated at $3.9 billion.

But the Commerce Department pointed out in a special report on business crime that most businesses absorb little of their crime losses, passing them along instead as higher prices for their goods.

Retailers, especially department and clothing stores, will suffer the biggest crime loss this year, an estimated $5.8 billion.

The report said shoplifting was a major crime, especially for retail stores, but indicated that theft by employes is an underestimated problem.

It cited problems from such employe crimes as under-recording prices on cash registers by sales, personnel favors given to friends, theft from shipping departments, padded payrolls and accounting fraud, and kickbacks to buyers.

Escapee Simply Walked Away

ROXBORO, N.C. (AP)—An honor prisoner escaped Sunday by simply walking off the grounds of the prison system's Person County unit at Roxboro, prison officials reported.

Officials said Matthew Turrentine, 24, of Durham walked off the grounds of the Person County prison unit in Roxboro about 3:30 p.m. He was serving three to five years on conviction of heroin possession and theft. He began serving his term Jan. 7, 1974.

Canada's View Understandable

We doubt if President Ford really expected any reversal from Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau of its announced policy of phasing out oil sales to the United States.

It didn't hurt to try, though, and the president can point to the efforts when the government really gets serious about conserving our petroleum supplies.

Trudeau told the president that the Canadian policy would not be changed. It calls for phasing out oil exports to the U.S. by 1982. We are now buying 900,000 barrels of oil from Canada and this will be cut to 650,000 barrels per day by next July.

Trudeau said, "We won't have enough for ourselves in the next seven or eight years." Given our own petroleum problems that is not difficult to believe.

Trudeau described Ford as understanding. "He realized the United States itself has a project independence and wants to be self-sufficient some day, and is not surprised Canada wants to be self-sufficient itself."

So now the United States must go on and develop the Alaska oil reserves, if we want to solve our energy problem. We must search for new reserves in the continental United States and for new sources of energy.

Most important, however, we must develop measures for conserving fuels. Sloganism won't do it. We must develop governmental policies which make it prohibitive to operate autos that are heavy on gas consumption. We must make builders of homes and office buildings recognize the value of better insulation to save fuels and our industries must find more efficient ways to use energy.

In short we must get tough with ourselves and find ways to cut out the waste of fuels that has so long characterized our way of life. As fuel costs increase, we suspect these things are going to be done simply because economics require it. But we may have to move faster than that if we are to avoid another fuel crunch.

Slashing 'Bathroom' Costs

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—State highway officials have promised to cut the cost of roadside rest stops as much as 30 to 35 per cent, but a legislative spending committee is still not satisfied that this is enough.

Members of State Senator I.C. Crawford's spending watchdog committee were up in arms over the million-dollar-plus price tag they found on each of the rest stops being built along Interstate highways, and ordered measures to cut back.

The money, they reasoned, could be spent better for roads and it seemed to the lawmakers entirely reasonable that $250,000 to $300,000 would be enough to build a suitable rest stop.

A total of 52 rest areas, including eight combination welcome center and rest areas, were planned on the Interstate system in North Carolina. Thirty-five of those have already been built.

A particular installation in Davie County between Winston-Salem and Statesville captured the attention of Crawford's group: it cost $1,230,747.25—a plushness which angered the legislators.

Can Cut State Highway

Administrator Billy Rose has responded to the committee suggestion that the cost be trimmed, saying it "will be possible to achieve significant cost reductions through modifications and/or elimination of certain features that were included. . . . Overall initial construction cost savings on the border of 30-35 per cent can and will be achieved," Rose stated.

He said rest area buildings and fixtures can be designed less expensively; the size of paved parking areas can be reduced, and asphalt used rather than concrete; reduction of landscaping, sidewalks, picnic area, drinking fountains, etc., can be made; and reduction in outdoor lighting can be done. Rose also promised to include the grading and paving in original roadway contracts.

Additionally, Rose said a study of the 17 remaining rest areas indicates that six of those can be eliminated, and that further study is being made to see if any other future rest stops can be trimmed.

"With the elimination of the six rest areas, the distance between rest areas . . . will average about 56 miles . . . compared with the average spacing of approximately 30 miles between rest areas with the originally planned 52 rest areas," Rose said.

Still, Rose argued, it "does not appear practical" to cut the cost to the level suggested by Crawford's committee: $250,000 to $300,000 each.

The original 30-mile distance between rest areas had prompted some legislators to suggest they could walk that far between trips to the bathroom, and Crawford—still piqued with the Davie County facility—insists that a sprawling parking lot able to handle 400 vehicles per hour is not needed at the average rest stop.

Not Enough Crawford said he thinks further cuts can be made. "We don't accept this . . . they've gone part of the way with us, but we don't feel this is enough, and we will look further into it."

State Rep. Liston B. Ramsey thinks the plushness of the rest stops is just too much. "They're lit up like Times Square, with floodlights . . . and they have the air conditioning running and a hot water tank going. "We don't need all that for just five minutes to go to the bathroom," Ramsey said.

Transportation Secretary Troy Doby concedes that the cost is high, but noted that lights are needed for security, picnic tables are demanded by local garden clubs, parking is required by federal officials, the water and sewer installations demanded by the Environmental Protection Agency, and that 90 per cent of the cost comes from federal rather than state funds.

Still, he agrees that the money could be used to build roads rather than rest stops, and feels that the "only major savings decision is whether or not to build the rest areas" in light of the various requirements.

The primary purpose is to provide a bathroom, and the two buildings alone cost $185,000 at the Davie County site. Other costs included $730,347 for side walks, driveways, parking, fencing; $49,102 for lights and power; $78,068 for sewage treatment system; $55,760 for well water storage and treatment; $70,383 for picnic facilities; and $42,992 for landscaping.

Each rest stop also requires three fulltime state employees at about $50,000 per year—a total of $2.3 million annually.

Ugly Is Now Beautiful

WASHINGTON—There is good news in the fashion world. If you really want to be a well-dressed woman this year, you can either go to Dior, Halston, Givenchy, Cardin, Bill Blass or Goodwill Industries.

If you don't find what you want at Saks Fifth Avenue, I recommend the Salvation Army. What was going through the minds of the fashion designers this year is anybody's guess, but ugly is now beautiful.

I'm not certain how all these great minds arrived at the same tawdry clothes, but if they don't sell this year you can't blame it on the recession. In the best of times no woman in her right mind would spend $350 for a dress when there is one exactly like it in her grandmother's trunk.

I am speaking from personal experience. The other day my wife came home with a box. In it was a dress I had seen in "War and Peace" (the war part), a hat from "Bonnie and Clyde" and boots that were worn in "Doctor Zhivago."

After she put them on she said, "What do you think?"

"Don't tell me. You got a job as a scrubwoman at the Pentagon."

"This," she said haughtily, "is 'the droop look.' It is a la mode for the winter."

"You could have fooled me. Are you sure the Russians aren't paying us back in clothes for all the wheat they bought from us?"

"I don't expect you to understand the fashion. The designers are sending us a message."

"The same one we sent Custer?"

"There is no sense in being surly about it. If you don't like the outfit, just tell me."

"It's fine, except that they forgot to sew the hem. It's down to your calves."

"That's where the hem is supposed to be."

"Well, your boots are falling down."

"They're not falling down. They're rumpled. They're squashed boots. They're supposed to look that way. You see, the shoe designers, when they heard the length of the skirt was going down so far, had to come up with a boot that would meet it. A regular boot would have gone to my knee. This one looks like it's falling, but it isn't."

"Bully for the boot people. Would you like to tell me what that long scarf is doing wrapped around your neck?"

"It goes with the dress. If I

Secret Meet? Never!

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Followers of the north Carolina Milk Commission should be disabused of a mistaken notion that emerged from last week's session.

That was not a "secret meeting" that chairman Hamilton Horton, Mrs. Lillian Woo and Branch Lilly held prior to the regular meeting. It was, Horton is at pains to say, just a friendly little informal get-together over coffee.

What happened was that Horton's car heater wasn't working that morning and he was cold when he arrived at the commission office a few minutes after the scheduled 10 a.m. starting time for the regular meeting.

Horton wanted a cup of coffee and a chance to dit down and drink it before taking up the gavel. As Horton would have it, Mrs. Woo and Mrs. Lilly were chatting in an office near the meeting room. Horton walked in and shut the door. The door remained shut for 45 minutes.

Meanwhile, dairy representatives were passing out paper cups of eggnog to the reporters and interested observers who were waiting for the meeting to start.

But reporters, being by and large an ungrateful and cynical lot, were not content to sip holiday cheer. They clustered suspiciously around the closed door.

Some of them were so misanthropic as to press their ears to the door and listen to what was being said.

"This is going to be a hard blow for the governor," said a male voice. The reporters perked up. They knew that Gov. Jim Holshouser, who appointed Horton, Mrs. Woo and Lilly, is a staunch foe of rising milk prices.

Then, Horton was heard to ask Mrs. Woo, "Well, can you live with a 50 cent hike? Mrs. Woo, the consumer crusader, allowed as how she could.

Shortly afterwards, at the open meeting Horton suggested that maybe a 50 cent hike would be a good compromise figure for the commission to settle on — reasonable for the farmers but small enough so that the processors and retailers wouldn't need to hike their prices.

Mrs. Woo thought that was such a good idea that she made a motion to that effect. Lilly seconded it. Marvin Pannell, the fourth Holshouser appointee, said he'd go along. The three remaining Democrats on the commission did some lightning fast mental calculations deduced that four people could outvote three people, and capitulated.

In a better world, that would have been the end of it. But, unfortunately for the milk commission, the world is populated, in part, by reporters. And everyone knows the proclivity of reporters to distort the facts then they aren't just plain making things up.

A lot of the reporters present wrote that there a secret meeting held prior to the regular meeting at which the real decision was made.

They said the opening meeting itself was a prearranged performance and that the commissioners had violated the spirit (through not the letter) of the state's open meetings law.

A few of them even wondered

The INSIDE REPORT

Scepter Passed To Burton

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The dramatic and profound power realignment in the House of Representatives was symbolized the day before Thanksgiving when Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas sidled up to Rep. Philip Burton of California in the well of the House while debate droned on a few feet away.

Mills advised Burton he now was most agreeable to increasing the membership of his Ways and Means Committee, long fixed at a mystically immutable 25, with six new members. Just such discreet whispers and eleventh-hour compromises retreating from publicly fixed positions were commonplace during Mills' reign as the most dominant force in Congress.

But this time, it was poignantly different. Burton was no sceptered baron in the congressional feudal system dominated by Mills, but rather a relatively junior, 10-year Congressman with no position at all in the House Democratic hierarchy. Nor was this one of Mills' masterfully timed retreats. Burton and other reformers had decided to expand Ways and Means by 12 members, not six, to break Mills' power as chairman. Mills had offered too little too late.

Still, in that brief whispered conversation in the well of the House, Mills showed some old form as a congressional power broker. In approaching Burton, Mills was displaying his instinct for power, fully aware that Burton would not only be elected chairman of the Democratic Caucus for the new Congress but would become its dominant figure and perhaps the next Speaker. In offering to add six new seats to his committee, Mills was simply flashing his old pragmatic realism.

At that point, his tragically ludicrous appearance on the stage of a Boston burlesque house was only three days hence. Nobody—probably not Wilbur Mills himself—knows whether his eleventh-hour failure to preserve at least a modicum of his power contributed to that humiliating act of self-destruction.

Now, Mills' days as Ways and Means chairman are probably ended, perhaps by his resignation to avoid caucus punishment. But even before his futile conversation with Burton and his inexcusable Boston trip, Mills' reign had ended.

Contrary to mutterings within the dwindling band of Southern conservative Democrats that Mills made possible liberal reforms by his high life, the truth is that this week's caucus resolution was assured by the election of 75 overwhelmingly liberal freshman Democrats. That guaranteed ending Mills' reign and the long dominance of his committee.

Also assured was the election of Burton as caucus chairman over moderate Rep. B.F. Sisk of California, a transplanted Texan close to Mills and other Southerners. "The loser wasn't Bernie Sisk," commented one senior House Democrat. "It was Tip O'Neill." Burton, not majority leader Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts, now becomes the potential successor—probably within four years—to Speaker Carl Albert, fatigued and unhappy with leadership burdens at age 66.

Indeed, Burton is the true successor to Mills as uncrowned king of the House. Unlike Albert and O'Neill, he is trusted by the new generation of leftist Democratic Congressmen and would have been easily elected majority whip in 1973 had not O'Neill kept that post appointive. Unlike many reformers, he is a highly effective politician who tirelessly cultivates personal alliances with moderate-to-conservative Congressmen.

Burton is hardly the fire-eater sent to Congress from San Francisco in 1964 as a passionate dove even before Vietnam convulsed the nation. He has staunchly

Other Editors Say Coal, At A Price

(Henderson Dispatch)

A contract between coal operators and miners has been agreed to at the top level and must be endorsed on down the line, as it is expected to be. So there will be coal, but at what a price! United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller said the packages provides a 64 percent increase in wages and fringe benefits. He said it was "the fattest labor settlement in this decade," and the can say that again.

Management will not pay this fabulous increase to the miners. Nearly everybody will pay. Industry which must accept higher prices for coal will simply pass it along to customers. It will reflect in power company rates, since most of their plants operate on coal. Their charges, which are already at record prices, will go still higher.

The miners are not to be blamed for wanting reasonable pay. It's a hazardous occupation at best. They now earn $40 to $50 a day, and it has not been indicated what it will be with this huge increase. Actual wage raises are said to be only ten percent. It's the fringe benefits that will dig. Extra paid holidays are provided, along with other benefits.

Whatever the cost, the country cannot get along without coal. It is being turned to in even larger volume since the crunch in oil supplies. Nuclear power plants might offer some relief, but cost of erecting them is out of this world.

And so it goes. Inflation is not even halted but is mounting steadily, nor is there much indication of anything being done to check it.

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Big business quite likely will find itself in direct opposition to many proposals in the Democratic party's "economic recovery" program, enunciated in Kansas City last week.

On some issues the cleavage never seemed wider.

The Democrats declared themselves in favor of wage-price controls. Corporate officials not only are opposed to such measures but believe they might worsen economic troubles.

At the annual meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers last week, controls were termed an economic perversion by some executives, an intrusion into the decision-making process by many, and a cause of marketplace distortions by almost all.

The Democrats spoke of "excessive, and sometimes windfall, profits." While big business cannot deny that many profits were very high this year, they argue that great misunderstandings exist about corporate finances.

Profits, the executives argue, were distorted by inflation, aren't likely to continue two years in a row, and are actually depressed in terms of the return on investment.

Big business is especially disturbed about what it feels is a failure of the public to understand the role of profits. They say that while return on sales might be high, return on investment is shrinking.

Because of this, they claim it is increasingly difficult to attract investment capital. And without that capital, they say, industry cannot fulfill the production demands made upon it.

Referring to his frustration in conveying the message, Harold Shaub, chief executive of Campbell Soup Co., told newsmen: "We in industry have done a lousy job in explaining it." He asked the newsmen to help.

The Democratic program states: "For too long our people have suffered the inequities of a tax system that needs reform." But they were referring to injustices to individuals. Big business feels it is the group treated unjustly.

The Democrats referred to the "worst recession since the Great Depression and the most serious inflation ever experienced in peacetime." Big business might agree with the latter, but many of its members fear the recession will be cut short before inflation is licked.

Big Business Fears Demo Plans

Businessmen at the NAM meeting felt the administration and probably the Federal Reserve would begin anti-recession moves too quickly, bowing to short-term complaints and risking more inflation in 1975 and 1976.

Reading between the lines of the Democrats' resolution, the impression emerges that the ordinary people of America — consumers, householders — are the offended. Many in big business feel they are.

The Democrats would seem to call on the spending powers of the Federal government to insure the security of the populace in the face of what could be referred to, when reviewed in years to come, as a depression.

Big business feels Federal spending, particularly in excess of revenues, is what gets us into these periodic economic messes.

REBIRTH
Nothing ever happens to a man or woman spiritually until it happens on the inside of their lives. In the same way, nothing ever happens to a church until that mysterious thing called rebirth lays hold on people under the power of the Holy Spirit.

Physical birth has a long period of gestation and an agonizing period of labor, and for most people spiritual rebirth comes in the same way. But on this fact the Church of Jesus Christ is built—there is no religious life until God definitely does something to the soul of man that man cannot do for himself.

The church has become too much an organization and too little a family of redeemed souls. It was intended in the beginning that it should be the latter. Redemption in the sense of change from the inside was the salient characteristic of the early Christian church. Religion is a matter of inner being rather than of outer organization.

Fierce Battles In S. Vietnam

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON, South Vietnam
(AP) — The Saigon command reported a fourth straight day of fierce fighting and shelling attacks today in the southern half of South Vietnam and along the border with Cambodia.

The command said casualties in the fighting had risen to more than 2,600 on both sides. It reported 248 government troops killed, 990 wounded and 210 missing and claimed 1,180 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops killed, many by air and artillery strikes.

Military officials acknowledged that security had deteriorated in the fertile Mekong Delta south of Saigon, where the bulk of the attacks were concentrated, and in Tay Ninh province bordering Cambodia to the northwest of the capital. But the officials claimed the Viet Cong had taken a heavy beating.

Tay Ninh, the provincial capital 55 miles northwest of Saigon, came under sporadic rocket attack and the curfew there was extended. Reports from the area said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces had stepped up their pressure on government positions northeast of Tay Ninh and about 3,500 refugees had fled into the city.

Reports reaching Saigon indicated the Communist troops would intensify their attacks in Tay Ninh province and might try to make an infantry assault on the city.

The Saigon command claimed nearly 900 violations of the cease-fire during the current wave of fighting. It was the largest number since the peace agreement nearly two years ago.

Opines U.S. Still Leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau of Canada says the United States has suffered "a decline of moral leadership," but remains in a predominant position of leadership among nations.

"I mean that the mood in the world over the past few years has been one of less acceptance of the overwhelming moral and political and economic leadership of the United States," Trudeau said in a copyrighted interview with U.S. News & World Report. He added that "the period of uncertainty over the past year or so in the United States has also resulted in a decline of moral leadership."

But Trudeau said the decline has not been enough to produce "a great vacuum" and is not necessarily dangerous.

He also said he didn't expect a trade war between Canada and the United States. "We can't win a war with the United States, whether it be trade or economic or military, or any other kind. So we don't want a war with the United States," he said.

supported the centrist Democratic national chairman Robert Strauss, and deplores Strauss's left-wing critics. Although he intends a neutral course concerning the 1976 presidential nomination, it is no secret he inclines to Sen. Henry M. Jackson, a hawkish bogeyman for many liberals. Most important, Burton wants no confrontation with either Albert or O'Neill, preferring to nudge them leftward quietly.

Moreover, Burton never had thirsted to bring down Mills. They collaborated on welfare reform legislation, and Burton has always respected Mills's legendary legislative skill. When some militant young Congressmen-elect urged Burton to purge Mills as Ways and Means chairman before his Boston jaunt, he demurred, promising that Mills would adjust to the new climate by pushing liberal legislation. Even now, Burton resists caucus humiliation of the fallen giant.

But for all his centrist connections, Burton remains rigidly left on most issues. Washington business lobbyists who fear him as a skilled tactician in Mills's class expect no goodies from him as the man to see next year.

There is one additional difference. As master of Ways and Means, Mills held a measure of autonomy enabling him to hand Presidents legislative success (John F. Kennedy) or humble them (Lyndon B. Johnson on the surtax) without full dependence on his Capitol Hill constituency. But Burton is the agent of the newly powerful caucus, required to reflect its views. So the new uncrowned king of the House begins as more a constitutional monarch than his predecessor.

Israeli May Offer New Concessions On Desert

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is meeting with Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Alon, who is reported ready to offer Israeli concessions on withdrawing from the Sinai desert.

Allon also was scheduled to meet with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today in a new phase of diplomacy on the Middle East.

Progress toward peace "may be overdue already," Allon said Sunday on his arrival at Washington's National Airport, where he was met by Kissinger.

His visit came amid reports of new flexibility on Israel's part as well as some criticism in that country of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin for what critics called betrayal of Israel's negotiating position toward Egypt.

"Of course I'm backing my prime minister's statements," Allon told reporters when asked if recent statements by Rabin had made his negotiating chores more difficult.

Rabin said in an Israeli newspaper interview that Israel should be ready for additional military withdrawals in the Sinai, even if Egypt does not make political concessions.

He also said Israel no longer demands a declaration of non-belligerency from Egypt and is not concerned about what label is put on a new pact.

Two newspapers in Jerusalem reported that Allon carried plans for more withdrawals in the Sinai desert. The Jerusalem Post set the proposed pullback at 30 miles or less, depending on Egypt's reciprocal offer.

Maariv said Allon would suggest a withdrawal of about six miles from the lines put in effect last January by Kissinger's disengagement agreement that eased a confrontation left after the October 1973 war.

The Israeli Foreign Ministry would not confirm the newspaper reports. "Allon is not carrying any maps with him to Washington," a spokesman said.

Listerine's Claims Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Federal Trade Commission official declared today that Listerine may kill germs by the millions but the largest selling U.S. mouthwash does not relieve colds or sore throats.

Administrative law judge Alvin L. Berman, who presided over a two-year-old case stemming from a commission complaint that Listerine had been falsely advertised, issued an order requiring Listerine's manufacturer to refrain from cold relief claims for the mouthwash and to include a disclaimer in any Listerine ad for two years.

The disclaimer would say: "Contrary to prior advertising of Listerine, Listerine will not prevent or cure colds or sore throats, and Listerine will not be beneficial in the treatment of cold symptoms or sore throats."

Berman's order is not final, however. It can be appealed to the full five-member commission. Warner-Lambert Co., the manufacturer, said it would appeal even to the courts if necessary.

Churchman Sentenced

JERUSALEM (AP) — An Israeli court convicted the Greek Catholic archbishop of Jerusalem today of smuggling arms for Arab terrorists in Israel and sentenced him to 12 years in prison.

Msgr. Hilarion Capudji, a Syrian-born Arab and the spiritual leader of about 4,000 Christians in the Holy Land, was convicted on charges of carrying arms and explosives from Lebanon for the Al Fatah and Black September organizations.

Legal sources said Israel might expel the bearded prelate and deport him to an Arab country before he served out his 12-year sentence. He faced a maximum of 35 years' imprisonment on the charges.

The Jerusalem District Court convicted the 49-year-old prelate on three counts: making contact with a foreign agent, the military commander of the Palestine Liberation Organization; carrying and possessing illegal weapons, and working for an illegal organization.

During the three-month trial, Israeli security officers testified that the archbishop brought three suitcases full of grenades, explosives, sub-machine guns and rockets from Lebanon to Israel in May and hid them in the bathroom of a Jerusalem school.

Israeli police seized Msgr. Capudji's limousine in August as he was returning from another trip to Beirut and said the car was loaded with pistols, automatic rifles, ammunition, grenades and explosives to be used in making bombs.

The archbishop, an outspoken foe of the Jewish state, pleaded innocent to the charges. He contended that he was entitled to diplomatic immunity and that Israel had no right to try him.

persons living in areas in Griffon and Winterville that have just been annexed into the town limits are eligible to vote in the Tuesday election. About 300 eligible voters have been added to the books in Griffon and about 25 in Winterville.

There are 1,659 registered voters in Ayden, 906 in Griffon (plus 100 in Griffon who live in Lenoir County), and 692 in Winterville.

The regional sewerage district is a "must" according to officials in the three areas which are under government orders to upgrade or construct new facilities to meet the required standards set forth by the North Carolina Division of Environmental Management.

The most recent estimate of the regional system is $6.5 million.

The federal share of the project would be 75 percent of the eligible cost and the state share will be 12.5 percent with the district's share being the remaining 12.5 percent.

Suggest Fischer Avoiding Match

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass is speculating that Bobby Fischer may defend his world chess championship by playing Brazilian grandmaster Henrique Mecking rather than Anatoly Karpov, a Soviet player.

The Soviet news agency Saturday night called Mecking's challenge ludicrous because he lost to Viktor Korchnoi of the Soviet Union in quarterfinal competition.

Korchnoi lost to Karpov last month in the chess challengers finals.

"Fischer probably is far from being convinced, as some would like to think, of his victory over the young Soviet grandmaster, if he chooses Mecking as a rival," Tass said in a commentary entitled "Would Robert Fischer Like a Weaker Rival?"

Fischer, an American, has not replied yet to Mecking's request for a match in January.

Solzhentzys Meets Graham

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Alexander Solzhentzys has met here with American evangelist Billy Graham, who says they talked about the "need for a religious awakening throughout the world."

Graham said Sunday the exiled Soviet writer's "grasp of both history and theology is amazing," and Solzhentzys "has the kind of intellect and moral courage that the world so desperately needs today."

Solzhentzys was here to accept the Nobel Prize for Literature awarded him four years ago, when he would not leave the Soviet Union for fear he would be barred from returning. Last February he was deported.

Graham said Sunday the exiled Soviet writer's "grasp of both history and theology is amazing," and Solzhentzys "has the kind of intellect and moral courage that the world so desperately needs today."

"How did they know that last spring when they designed the clothes?"

"What about the hat?"

"I like the hat, but I can't see your face."

"You're not supposed to see my face."

"That's good. Hey, you know I've been trying to think who you look like?"

"And whom do I look like?"

"Bess Truman—Harry's wife."

"Then I take it you want me to return the outfit?"

"Heavens no. You never can tell when we're going to be invited to an Albanian wedding."

Traditional Visit By Pope

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul VI has paid a traditional visit to the Monument of Mary near the Spanish Steps in Rome to mark the Feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Virgin.

The Pope rode to the monument Sunday in an open limousine, waved to a crowd of several thousand, then prayed there.

how Horton and Mrs. Woo, who always sought to have things done openly at the legislature, could have engaged in such a meeting.

But, as Horton says, the facts of the matter are that it was just a friendly little get-together over coffee. The reporters were just amking wild assumptions and inaccurate deductions.

Bicentennial Planners Are Hunting Private Funds

Sanford Feels 'Near Certain'

RALEIGH (AP) — Terry Sanford, president of Duke University and former governor of North Carolina, says he has just about made up his mind to announce his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"In my own mind I have doubts ranging anywhere from 2 to 3 per cent," Sanford told reporters Sunday at Kansas City, where he was attending the party miniconvention.

He said those doubts were decreasing "as time goes on."

Sanford, who has not held an elective office since 1964, said he had begun field work in New Hampshire "and two or three other states" and expected to enter several primaries if he decided to seek the nomination.

Although he has been out of public office for more than 10 years, Sanford has kept active in party politics and was chairman of the Democratic charter commission.

In 1968 he headed the citizens committee for Democratic presidential nominee Hubert Humphrey.

Sanford made a brief bid for the nomination in 1972, but was soundly defeated by Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in the North Carolina primary, ending his campaign.

Brushing aside the humiliating loss to Wallace, a Sanford aide said, "Our present plans are to take on Wallace in his own home state this time."

Alabama's primary precedes North Carolina's.

Sanford is one of at least four Southerners considering a bid for the presidency. Others are Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, and Wallace.

Aides said a fund raising dinner is planned for Tuesday in Southern Pines.

As governor, Sanford was known as a moderate and best remembered for his programs to improve the quality of secondary education.

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Revolution Bicentennial Administration is beating the bushes for private money to finance programs that the federal government has failed to fund.

"The next six months will be crucial," one bicentennial official said. "We know these programs will work to give the country a bicentennial it can be proud of. But we need the money for them."

While many private concerns, including J.C. Penney, IBM, American Express and others, already have aided other projects, the bicentennial administration still has about $50 million worth of plans which need funding.

It hopes to get at least half of that amount in time for the nation's 200th birthday celebration.

Planning for the bicentennial began under a 50-member commission in 1967. That commission was replaced by the bicentennial administration earlier this year.

Congress started a $10-million-a-year funding program to carry the project through 1976, but that covers only administrative costs, grants to the states and planning and development money.

The original commission, after failing to provide a national bicentennial focal point through a world's fair, designated Philadelphia, Boston, Washington and Miami as official bicentennial cities, but no special money has been voted for them to pay for preparations.

The focus of the celebration planned by the bicentennial administration is a series of individual events and programs that would cover the country, providing activities convenient to all parts of the nation.

Most are in the advanced planning stages and need only sponsorship and money to get on the road.

Although the bicentennial agency has been criticized by groups who say the celebration is becoming too commercial, the organization says it has no other way to put on the show.

But, similar to educational television, there are no commercials. The sponsor can brag all he wants about what he is doing, but the product itself doesn't carry his label.

The bicentennial administration works from a list of projects which it considers significant and in need of funding and looks for sponsors among corporations, trade and professional associations, religious groups, service clubs and labor unions.

Despite the generally depressed economy, officials say the initial response has been good.

The biggest so far was announced Dec. 2, when the J.C. Penney Co. unveiled a program to create a collection of American music and present a complete set of scores to every high school band and choral group in the country. The price tag was reported at $2 million.

Already American Express, working through the U.S. Park Service, has paid $120,000 for refurbishing the Statue of Liberty.

The first Bicentennial project emanating from Washington to reach the launching stage is a traveling exhibition on U.S. origins as seen through the lives of Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson. It opens in Paris Jan. 10 with the support of $500,000 from IBM.

State and local agencies, long ago despaired of help from Washington, have been using the same system with success. The Boston Bicentennial alone has raised $1 million from private sources.

The Salada Tea Co. paid for a full-size replica of a ship from the Boston Tea Party, and the John Hancock Insurance Co. is financing an information center.

The Ethan Allen furniture company is supporting the major activity of the Vermont observance, a $100,000 mobile unit which carries the state Bicentennial headquarters and exhibits about the state.

In Mississippi, the Masonite Corp. is funding a three-year program to take the Johnny Horizon cleanup and conservation program into every elementary school classroom in the state.

Pennsylvania Bell telephone system is financing pagents at Carpenter's Hall during summer months re-enacting life and events in Philadelphia at the time of American independence.

But other programs wait in the wings, where they are likely to remain unless private corporations agree to pay the fare.

The project to restore the South Street Seaport in New York City to its original state still needs another million dollars. A project to bring a flotilla of sailing ships for the Bicentennial needs $411,000.

The bicentennial administration is looking for $10 million for a light and sound program for the U.S. Capitol. It wants $162,000 for a world conference on religious liberty and $48,000 for an Eagle Scout encampment.

The Smithsonian Institution, a government organization with federal funds, still needs another $1.2 million in private money for its series of traveling exhibitions.

The National Park Service is improving many Revolutionary sites, including long-neglected battlefields, for the Bicentennial but needs private money to finish the job.

Private funding is sought to provide living history programs in the parks, such as replicas of revolutionary military encampments with soldiers in uniforms, guns and tents.

The Bicentennial begins in just four months when Boston commemorates the midnight ride of Paul Revere and the start of the Revolution. The major emphasis concludes on July 6, 1976, the 200th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The good price received for soybeans in 1974 has made many growers the objective of increasing net profit. One practice which probably needs as much attention as any other is weed control. Soybean losses due to weeds range all the way from none to complete crop loss, with over 75 per cent of soybean fields in the Southeast having some loss attributed to weeds, the average cost per acre due to weeds is around $30.00—and that is $30.00 of pure profit.

If soybean growers are going to overcome the great loss caused by weeds, they are going to have to accept the challenge and fight weeds with the entire arsenal of control tools available to them. Such tools as good crop rotations, crop competition cultivation, and herbicides all must be used to ensure a successful program.

Crop Rotations: A good crop rotation alone is not enough for weed control, but used in conjunction with proper weed control practices it can help a great deal. Certain broadleaf weeds such as cocklebur and morningglory are much easier to control in grass crops such as corn than soybeans. In a situation such as this a corn-soybean rotation would help because the population of broadleaf weeds could be decreased while growing corn, making it easier on the following soybean crop.

Crop Competition: Crop competition may be one of the least utilized tools for weed control. In most cases, growers can depend on chemicals to control weeds early in the season. However, most soybean herbicides break down by mid-season, and shade from the soybean plant must be utilized to keep weed growth down. One of the best and cheapest weed control tools available to growers is the canopy formed by a growing crop of soybeans.

Herbicides: Herbicides are the newest, most popular and most efficient tools for controlling weeds in soybeans. However, herbicides are not magic, and such being the case, an intelligent decision must be made regarding their use.

Before choosing a particular herbicide for soybeans, the grower must be fully aware of at least three things: the weed species present, the soil type and organic matter, and the herbicide capabilities.

Coastal Oil Reserves Battle Near End

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — With rich oil reserves off the Atlantic Coast as the prize, state and federal governments are nearing the climax of a years-long battle in the Supreme Court.

The government has until the end of the year to file its defense of a court-appointed judge's report, sharply attacked by the states, recommending federal dominion over the offshore oil.

The court is expected to set the dispute for oral argument and decision early next year. The outcome could be crucial to the Ford administration's plans for oil leasing next year in Atlantic Seaboard waters, where drilling has never been undertaken.

The case has been on file in the Supreme Court for more than five years and it is not the first time the court has grappled with the question of offshore drilling. In a series of decisions in 1947 and 1950, involving Gulf Coast states and California, the court held that the federal government controlled drilling within three miles of shore.

This reversed what had been the prevailing doctrine, and an outcry resulted. In 1953, Congress returned control of submerged lands within the three-mile limit to the states. The federal government contends this leaves it with authority over the outer continental shelf, more than three miles out. It has been granting oil leases in the Gulf of Mexico on that basis for 20 years.

In 1969, however, Maine announced plans to grant leases for drilling under outer continental shelf waters. On April 1 of that year, the federal government asked the Supreme Court to affirm federal control over such lands.

Report Three Countries Buying U.S.-Made Jets

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Norway, Denmark and the Netherlands have decided to buy American jet fighters built by General Dynamics to replace their aging U.S.-made F104 Starfighters, the Oslo daily Morgenbladet said today.

The paper said Belgium, which had joined the three governments in selecting a new plane for their air forces, had not made up its mind but would probably also buy the $5-million YF16.

Belgian and Dutch government spokesmen expressed surprise at the Oslo report. A Belgian Foreign Ministry spokesman said in Brussels he had not heard of any decision and did not expect any until next month.

The Dutch Defense Ministry called the reports "completely premature" and said research reports on competing American, French and Swedish jets were not expected until the third week of December.

The four North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies earlier this year set up a joint study group headed by Norway's Fostervoll to coordinate the giant aviation deal. The four countries plan to buy 350 new jets with options to buy 250 later.

A basic question is whether these monarchies had that much ocean bottom to give away.

Maris, in a report submitted Aug. 27, said they did not.

"I conclude that when in 1776 the American colonies achieved independence and when in 1783 the Treaty of Paris was concluded, neither the British crown nor the colonies individually had any right of ownership of the seaboard of the sea adjacent to the American coast," Maris wrote.

Among authorities he cited was no less a personage than Queen Elizabeth I of England.

In 1580, the queen wrote to the Spanish ambassador that "the use of the sea and air is common to all; neither can any title to the ocean belong to any Break out the overcoats. Another blast of cold air is due in North Carolina today.

Cold high pressure and circulation around a low pressure system over New England will combine to bring brisk winds and low temperatures to the Tar Heel State.

Highs will reach only the upper 30s in the mountains, where some snow flurries or snow showers are expected. Elsewhere, highs will range from the low 40s to the low 50s.

As the high pressure system moves in from the midwest, skies will clear.

Small craft advisories remain in effect for the sounds and ocean waters for strong west to northwest winds.

Last night, lows dipped into the 30s over the west and into the mid and upper 40s along the coast.

OPERATION AWARE

The President says that inflation is Domestic Enemy Number One. And here's how A & P is going to help you fight it. We started a new consumer program called Operation Aware. Because we're aware of the problems every consumer is facing today. These are the first steps we're taking to fight them.

1. AN EARLY WARNING SYSTEM ON PRICE INCREASES: THE AWARE LIST.

Every week we will voluntarily post a list of price increases such as those received from manufacturers a full seven days before we actually change our price. That gives you one week to purchase at the old price—subject, of course, to product availability. You'll also find "Be Aware" shelf tags on many frequently purchased items, with the day of the price increase right on the tag. Of course, the Aware List won't include perishables like meat, eggs or fresh fruit and vegetables, where markets fluctuate daily; items controlled by law; or advertised specials. So before you plan your next week's shopping list, check this week's Aware List.

2. A PRICE FREEZE ON A&P PRIVATE LABELS.

A & P voluntarily puts a ceiling on over 1000 A & P Products. (Smaller stores may not regularly stock all items, but a list is available in all stores.) That means prices will go no higher at least until the end of the year, on many products that you use everyday... bread, cheese, pasta, coffee, non-fat dry milk, frozen dinners and canned peas and corn. Advertised specials below the freeze prices will still be offered. We've put the freeze on our private labels because they represent the best values in our stores. And we'll hold down the prices, even if our ingredient costs go up.

3. OUR 13 POINT CONSUMER PROTECTION POLICY.

It's our continuing commitment to making you an Aware shopper by reminding you of what every A & P store owes you and by informing you of ways to get the most for your money. Look for the signs going up inside A & P stores spelling out all the protection A & P gives you:

1. Guaranteed Satisfaction
2. Exceptional Value

Nobody's Conceding Basketball Title To Furman Front-Runners

By The Associated Press
Everybody started out laughing when it was suggested the Southern Conference football race could be tighter than anticipated, but they stopped when Virginia Military's Keydets came from nowhere to win the title East Carolina's Pirates had claimed the two previous years.

Furman's Paladins have gotten off to a winning start in their quest for a third successive basketball title—which is supposed to be theirs for the taking—but nobody's conceding it to them yet.

Despite running up a lead of as much as 13 points in the first half and as much as 18 points after intermission, the Paladins went without field goal the last 4:50 Saturday night and used free throws to put away Richmond's Spiders 84-77.

And William and Mary's Indians put an end to The Citadel's unbeaten status by knocking off the Bulldogs 82-73 despite a 26-point performance by sophomore Rodney McKeever that gave him 100 points in his first three games.

That left Furman, 1-1 overall; William and Mary, 3-1; and VMI, idle with its 1-1 mark, tied for the lead at 1-0 in conference play. The defeats dropped Richmond to 0-3 overall and The Citadel to 2-1.

Davidson's Wildcats were left alone in the unbeaten category as they came from 15 points down in the second half for an 88-80 victory over Ohio State in their second start.

Both Appalachian State and East Carolina fell to 0-3, the Mountaineers taking a 103-57 bombing at Clemson and the Pirates falling to 11th-ranked Alabama 99-86.

Tonight's only action has Appalachian at home for a non-league test against UNC-Asheville.

"That's the first time one of our teams has looked that good this early in the year," said Furman Coach Joe Williams of a six-minute span in which the Paladins ran up a 72-54 lead over Richmond.

And Williams said "there were two reasons we didn't hold it. One was Richmond. They just kept hutting, scrapping. And two, we're young and didn't do a good enough job of staying in control of the game."

Richmond Coach Carl Stone admitted the Spiders seemed to play harder when farther behind "but we made some mental mistakes... took a few bad shots."

The Spiders were done in by 6-foot-9 Clyde Mayes and 7-foot-1 Fessor Leonard, Furman's pair of two-time All-Southern choices. Mayes had 25 points and 15 rebounds, Leonard 19 points and 16 rebounds.

Bob McCurdy had 26 points and 13 rebounds for Richmond, while Eric Gray scored 20 points and Kevin Eastman got 19 as he hit eight of 13 floor shots.

Down by seven points at half-time, William and Mary rallied behind sophomore Ronnie Satterthwaite, who scored 19 points and sent the Indians ahead for good with a jumper with 13:54 left.

Senior Gary Byrd and freshman John Lowenhaupt added 17 points each for the Indians, and Byrd had 13 rebounds.

Davidson went to a full court press with 12:37 left while trailing 64-49 and forced numerous turnovers and fouls by Ohio State. The Buckeyes' Bill Andreas fouled out with eight minutes left after having scored 26 points.

The Wildcats then went on a 27-9 tear the rest of the way. Larry Horowitz had 25 points and 15 rebounds for Davidson, while Greg Dunn scored 22 points and Jay Powell 20.

East Carolina trailed Alabama only 41-37 at the half, but the Crimson Tide quickly ran up a 65-47 lead. Leon Douglas had 29 points and T. R. Dunn 23 for Alabama. The Pirates were led by Robert Geter with 17 and Larry Hunt with 16.

Reserves played the last 10 minutes for Clemson after the Tigers bolted to a 61-37 lead five minutes into the second half. Skip Wise had 19 points for Clemson, Steve Nenadovich 16 for Appalachian.

Redskins Tonight Bid For Bowl Playoff Slot

By JACK STEVENSON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Washington's Redskins battle for the only remaining spot in the National Football League Super Bowl playoffs tonight facing the Los Angeles Rams who already are set to go in the postseason event.

Coach George Allen, a familiar figure at the Coliseum, brings his Redskins to town with an 8-4 record in the NFC East and just one-half game behind leading St. Louis.

A victory over the favored Rams would guarantee Washington a spot in the playoffs, but as of now, three teams are in contention — the Redskins, Dallas and Detroit.

Despite winning the Western title and boasting a 9-3 record, Coach Chuck Knox of the Rams declared, "We don't plan to do any coasting. We're not where we want to be yet. We want to continue to grow."

The kickoff for the nationally televised game is slated for 6 p.m., PST, at the same Coliseum where Allen was head coach of the Rams for five seasons, compiling a 49-17-4 record with that club from 1966 through 1970. This time a crowd of about 85,000 is expected with the game blacked out locally.

When he returned with the Redskins in 1971 for a Monday night game, Allen's club won 38-2 to grab a playoff spot and eliminate the Rams that year.

Washington quarterback Bill Kilmer can be expected to give the young Los Angeles secondary a big test. He and Sonny Jurgensen have completed 60 per cent of their passes this season.

Washington could go into a tie with St. Louis in the Eastern Division with a victory meaning that one of those two would reach the playoffs as a champion the following week and the other as the wild card with the best record among second-place finishers.

Dallas has posted an 8-5 record and Detroit 7-6 with both still in the running for the wild card spot should Washington lose. All then would depend on results of the final Sunday of the regular season.

Knox has his troops in good physical shape and plans no changes in his starting alignments although admitting he will continue giving reserves added playing time to strengthen the club for playoff competition.

The starting backfield will have James Harris at quarterback and Lawrence McCutcheon and Jim Bertelsen at running back. McCutcheon leads all NFC rushers with 1,004 yards.

Statistically, the two clubs are close. The Rams are rated as three-point favorites.

On offense, the Rams are fourth in the NFC — second in rushing and sixth in passing. The Redskins are fifth — 12th in rushing and second in passing.

The teams rank 1-2 in NFC defense with Los Angeles best in rushing defense and sixth in pass defense. Washington rates third in both pass and rush defense.

Since Knox arrived in Los Angeles, following two years for the team under Tommy Prothro, his Rams have not been defeated in 12 outings at the Coliseum. They are 5-0 there this season and 4-3 on the road.

In the Rams-Redskins series, Washington holds a 4-3-1 edge.

Miami Again Conference Champions

By BEN THOMAS
AP Sports Writer

Don Shula kept the faith and Franco Harris accepted the challenge. So the Miami Dolphins — shooting for their third straight Super Bowl crown — and the Pittsburgh Steelers — longing for their first one — each won division championships in the National Football League Sunday.

And the Detroit Lions didn't fold, so one of the four National Conference representatives for the playoffs two weeks hence is still undecided—with three teams still in the running as the NFL heads into the final week of regular season play.

What it boils down to is that Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Miami, Oakland, St. Louis, Washington and Minnesota have qualified for the playoffs. The remaining team will be either Washington, Dallas or Detroit.

"It's been a strange year," said Dolphin Coach Shula after Miami edged Baltimore 17-16 to win its fourth straight American Conference East title. "At one time we were in third place in our own division but I never doubted we'd win it. I've always kept the faith."

Franco Harris ground out 136 yards against New England as the Steelers won 21-17 and captured the AFC Central crown. "I expected it would be a real grind-out game," said Harris. "It was a real challenge."

Detroit, meanwhile, beat Cincinnati 23-19, winning in the final 29 seconds, and this is how the playoff picture stands:

American Conference
Buffalo at Pittsburgh.
Miami at Oakland.

National Conference
St. Louis or Washington at Minnesota.

St. Louis or Washington or Dallas or Detroit at Los Angeles.

The Cardinals are in the playoffs, regardless of what the other three teams do. Tonight's nationally televised game — Washington at Los Angeles — could clear up the NFC situation.

A Washington victory eliminates both Detroit and Dallas and the Redskins and Cardinals could do that old vaudeville routine, with a slightly new twist — "Who's on first, what's on second and who cares about third."

St. Louis needs either a victory or a Washington loss to win the NFC East title and a trip to Minnesota on Dec. 21. Otherwise, the Cardinals go to Los Angeles. Washington has to lose both of its remaining games and Dallas must beat Oakland next Saturday to get the NFC wild-card. Detroit needs a victory over Philadelphia plus losses by both Washington and Dallas for a chance.

Two playoff-bound teams lost Sunday. The New York Jets, with Joe Namath making what may be his last home appearance, upset Buffalo 20-10 and the New Orleans Saints shocked the Cardinals 14-0.

Elsewhere Sunday, it was Oakland 7, Kansas City 6; Denver 37, Houston 14; San Diego 28, Chicago 21; San Francisco 7, Green Bay 6; and Philadelphia 20, New York Giants 10.

On Saturday, Dallas beat Cleveland 41-17 to keep its playoff hopes flickering and Minnesota whipped Atlanta 23-10.

Dolphins 17, Colts 16
Bob Griese passed four yards to Howard Twilley and Larry Csonka scored on a one-yard run to give the Dolphins a 14-0 lead. Garo Yepremian tacked on a field goal which proved the difference as Baltimore got three field goals from Toni Linhart and a two-yard, fourth-quarter scoring pass from Bert Jones to Bill Olds.

Steelers 21, Patriots 17
"The yardage really surprises me, I can't believe I got that much," said Harris of the 29 carries that netted him 136 yards and a TD for the Steelers.

Pittsburgh's clinching score, however, was a seven-yard pass from Terry Bradshaw to Lynn Swann in the third period.

Lions 23, Bengals 19

"It only was supposed to be a short gainer," said Detroit's Ron Jessie of the 45-yard Greg Landry pass he caught to set up the Lions' winning touchdown. The play carried to the Cincinnati eight, from where Landry threw the game-winner to Charlie Sanders.

Jets 20, Bills 10

The Jets won their fifth in a row by beating the Bills. Playing on a muddy and sloppy field, New York went ahead in the fourth quarter on a 36-yard pass from Namath to Jerome Barkum. Linebacker Ralph Baker clinched it with a 67-yard scoring run with a stolen Buffalo pass.

Saints 14, Cardinals 0

All New Orleans needed to beat the Cardinals was a 67-yard gallop in the first quarter by rookie Alvin Maxson. But Paul Seal, also a rookie, added an insurance TD for the Saints in the final period on a seven-yard end-around play.

Raiders 7, Chiefs 6

Ageless George Blanda kicked the extra point that gave Oakland its victory over the Chiefs. Another Oakland veteran, quarterback Daryle Lamonica, who had played in only one previous series all season, got the Raiders a touchdown on a 10-yard pass to Cliff Branch.

Broncos 37, Oilers 14

West Squad Is Finally Chosen

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The West team for the 50th East-West Shrine football game was completed Sunday with the addition of eight players, including tight end Wayne Hoffman of top-ranked Oklahoma.

The all-star game is scheduled Dec. 28 at Stanford Stadium.

Others named to the West squad were running back Jim Upchurch of Arizona, receivers Bob Farr of Air Force, Morris Owens of Arizona State and Oscar Roan of Southern Methodist, placekicker Tom Goedjen of Iowa State and offensive guards Al Simpson of Colorado State and Harvey Goodman of Colorado.

Graduation Losses Can Affect Greene Central

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

SNOW HILL—In the past few seasons, Greene Central High School has come up with some tough basketball teams, but this year, as a result of graduation losses, they may not be the high calibre team they have been.

The Rams have only one starter, Tim Butts, back from last year. They have six others returning with experience. They also have a number of players who have moved up from the jayvees.

"We feel we have a decent club," said Coach Jim Fulghum. "They know what we expect from them. We hope to be a contender; we hope we can be a contender."

Butts was a forward last year and is starting there again this year. Opposite him is Albert Barron. Barron was the Rams' first substitute last year and has taken a starting role this time around.

At a forward slot is Thomas Jones. Walter Swinson is starting at center for the Rams. The guards are Jerry Carraway, a returnee who came on strong towards the latter part of the season last year and Pete Moore, a rookie from the JV team. Lindy Pridgen has come off the bench to fill in at guard.

The Rams have Tim Conley backing Swinson up at center. Others that are working from time to time are Marvin Rouse, Melvin Briggs, Nelson Edwards and Melvin Darden. The Rams have two seniors who made the team for the first time, David Yelverton and Quinton Sauls.

The Rams were a good scoring team last year and Coach Fulghum hopes the team would be better this year with the seven back. "We felt we would have better shooting and in all but the North Pitt game, not taking anything away from North Pitt (which beat Greene Central, 45-38, Friday night) we have shot better." Fulghum said that while the Rams did not get very many good shots, neither did North Pitt but what the Panthers got, they made better use of.

Fulghum's Rams had to play three of the tougher teams in the loop in their first games of the year and he said that if the team could look respectable after those three, they would do alright. They lost to D. H. Conley along with North Pitt but beat Southern Wayne.

There have been two contrasting results in the three games. "Our rebounding was weak but against North Pitt we did the best job. The defense was better than we anticipated," Fulghum said. "The boys worked real hard on defense."

The Rams have worked on defensive rebounds first and have been getting their share of offensive rebounds. They use a one-point guard trying to get outside. If they can't get in, they take the jumper from the perimeter. The Rams like run "when we get the opportunity. We run when it's there."

Defensively, the Rams go with a man-to-man, 95 percent of the time.

So far the Rams have seven players that have seen the most action. Butts, Barron, Swinson, Carraway and Rouse have been starting with Moore and Jones subbing. "Moore is doing a real good job at guard. Jones is doing real good," said Fulghum. "We have a lot of confidence in them. They are our first seven."

The Rams, having played two of the top teams have a good idea what they are up against this year. "Conley, North Lenoir, North Pitt... will be the teams to beat. Farmville Central will be better and Ayden-Grifton—we have a lot of respect for them. Ayden-Grifton will get competitive. You have to be ready every time you play in this league," Fulghum said.

The Rams are trying to have a good year. "They've given everything and that's the purpose of playing."

Map Another Drive For Tax-Exempt Revenue Bonds

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Despite three resounding failures, the Holshouser administration is laying plans to try again to obtain authorization for financing industrial projects through tax-exempt revenue bonds.

Officials of the North Carolina Department of Natural and Economic Resources say they plan to ask the 1975 legislature to pass a slightly modified version of the constitutional amendment proposition rejected last month by the voters.

In 1969 and 1971, the industry hunters in the department persuaded the legislature to pass bills permitting the bond use. Both times, the state Supreme Court ruled them unconstitutional.

So, in 1973, the department presented a bill that would have amended the constitution. The legislature passed it, but the voters turned it down last month by 376,000 to 317,000.

Director Robert E. Leak of the department's industry hunting program is undeterred. He said the vote does not change the need for bonds to attract industry to undeveloped rural areas and to help existing industries pay for pollution abatement equipment.

Secretary of Natural and Economic Resources James Harrington agrees.

Harrington said he would recommend that Gov. James E. Holshouser include the bill in his legislative program. Asked what major changes would be made, Harrington replied, "We need to explain it to people better."

Backers of the revenue bonds feel that the "campaign" to win voter approval was mishandled. "People got confused and suspicious," Leak said.

Leak said the wording of the ballot proposition "was so favorable that it made people think we were trying to railroad the thing through." During a court suit on the wording, Judge James H. Pou Bailey said it was highly misleading. His remarks got wide publicity.

Wide publicity also went to the reservations of State Treasurer Edwin Gill, who felt the bonds would put too much strain on North Carolina's ability to finance its current bond programs. "Mr. Gill is a revered individual, and people believe what he says," Leak said.

Finally, and most damaging, Duke Power Co. and Carolina Power and Light Co. announced that they intended to try to use the bonds to finance pollution controls that would cost hundreds of millions of dollars.

Duke did not consult with the state before making the announcement, Leak recalled. "And we didn't think the bill would permit power companies to use the bonds."

But when Duke made its intentions known, "the people who oppose nuclear power came out of the woodwork against us," Leak said.

"Things went from bad to worse. I could hear the hammers nailing out coffins shut." A month after the debacle, Leak still finds it hard to believe. "All across the state, we had lots of important people—bankers and builders—working for it." He rejects any notion that North Carolinians—except those in a few urban counties—want to stop rather than promote industrial growth.

Had the referendum carried, counties would have been able to set up semi-autonomous revenue bond authorities. The authorities would have been able to issue tax exempt bonds to finance pollution abatement equipment or to—with a limit of $5 million—to finance new manufacturing plants.

The state and local governments would lease the facilities to the industry, which would be obligated to pay the bondholders. The credit of the state was not involved.

Leak said 49 other states have such programs and North Carolina is losing industrial prospects to those states.

"We have to compete with our sister states, and it's tough without this means of financing," he said.

Leak said the proposal would probably be changed to specifically exclude power companies from the bonds. No other major changes are planned now.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Poj
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

It appears that 1974 will go down in the books as a fairly good year for Tar Heel farmers who specialized in crops rather than livestock.

North Carolina generally had a wet, cold spring that was followed by dry weather in early summer, but it was spared a major drought like the one experienced in the Midwest. August brought abundant rains that benefited many crops but caused disease, insect and grass problems for others, especially cotton and peanuts.

Harvest weather in October was favorable and prospects are moderately favorable for most crops, even though very few yield records will be broken this year.

The average yield for the state's big flue-cured tobacco crop is estimated by the N. C. Crop Reporting Service at 2,075 pounds, down 36 pounds from last year. Acreage harvested was larger because of a quota increase, and total production is indicated at 828 million pounds, the largest in several years.

Small grain crops—wheat, oats, barley and rye—all showed yield increases. Irish potato yields remained steady, and a slight increase is indicated in per-acre output of sweet potatoes.

No change is forecast in the soybean yield of 24 bushels per acre. But, as expected, a drop is foreseen in peanut yields. The 1973 crop, a record-breaker, averaged 2,810 pounds to the acre. The 1974 forecast calls for 2,600 pounds.

The Crop Reporting Service expects a 10-bushel drop in the per-acre corn yield, from 82 bushels to 72. But a boost in acreage will keep total production at 113 million bushels, close to last year's harvest of 115 million.

Newly released figures show that North Carolina ranks among the top 10 states in the production of nearly one-half the major farm commodities grown in the United States.

Based on cash receipts from commodity sales in 1973, the Tar Heel state continues to rank far ahead of second-place Kentucky as a producer of tobacco. It is also first in sales of sweet potatoes and forest products.

In dollars received for commercially grown peanuts, North Carolina is second only to Georgia, and in turkeys it ranks third.

In both eggs and broilers, it holds fourth place. In apples it ranks eighth; in corn, ninth; and in both soybeans and grapes, it holds 10th place.

Last year North Carolina moved up into the "Big Ten" among the 50 states in cash receipts from all farm commodities. It edged out dairy-oriented Wisconsin for the No. 10 spot. Although the state ranked 10th in cash receipts from all crops, it was 18th in livestock. For hogs, its ranking was 11th.

According to the N. C. Crop Reporting Service, Tar Heel farmers received $2.38 billion—an all time record—for commodities marketed in 1973. Of the total, crops accounted for 59 percent, and livestock and livestock products, 41 percent. Tobacco was the leading commodity, accounting for $719 million or 30 percent of the total.

'Harmless'

WALHALLA, S.C. (AP)—The little 4-year-old boy was terrified by the sight of a gun. His uncle, Ralph Owens, 28, wanted to show him there was nothing dangerous about an unloaded weapon.

Owens ejected the bullets from the cylinder, put the .22 caliber revolver to his head and pulled the trigger.

There was one bullet in the chamber of the weapon.

Owens, married and the father of two children, died Saturday night in the Oconee County Memorial Hospital of a bullet wound in the head.

Tear Gas Halts Jail Disturbance

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—A disturbance in the Gaston County jail was brought under control by tear gas Sunday after prisoners began fighting and then set fire to their blankets.

Only a minimum amount of gas was used and only after other efforts to quiet the prisoners had failed, said Sheriff C.L. Waldret.

The incident began around 2:30 p.m. when a fight broke out among 14 prisoners being held on felony charges.

After spraying the cell block with tear gas, officers wearing gas masks led the prisoners out of the area and placed them in separate cells, Waldret said.

He said the men were apparently "high" on drugs of some kind, which may have been smuggled in during visiting hours Saturday.

Q. My aunt says that a couple of aspirin (in the water) will prolong the life of a live Christmas tree. Is this correct? (R.P., Kannapolis)

A. Aspirin, sugar, molasses—a hundred home remedies have been suggested for prolonging the life of a Christmas tree, and none work. In fact, they may harm the tree by interfering with the uptake of water. There are commercial chemical preparations available, however, that will stimulate the uptake of water. (Fred Whitfield, extension forester)

Q. The roots on my turnips are discolored. They are brownish to blackish and the leaves are bronze. (Mrs. E.W., Carthage)

A. You have described the typical boron deficiency that occurs in root crops, and particularly in turnips. You can't help this year's turnip crop, but you can help next year's crop by adding boron to the fertilizer. Use 8 to 10 ounces of common table borax to 1,000 square feet of garden area. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. Some of the Christmas trees that I see look old. How do I tell a fresh one? (R.V., Charlotte)

A. Pick up the tree. The heavier it is (according to its size) the more water it contains. Bend the needles. Fresh needles will not break. Jar the tree on a hard surface. Fresh trees will not shed their needles. (Fred Whitfield, extension forester)

Q. I have seen the initials "EC" used in conjunction with a pesticide. What does it mean? (Mrs. L. U., Charlotte)

Worry Clinic Freedom Also Involves Rules

Note Prof. Clark's remarks about freedom! For those who think being "free" means breaking the rules, are actually slaves of many hidden taskmasters in this world and to Satan in the next!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
CASE C-618: A.W. Clark, aged 65, was a former school principal at Hammond, Indiana.

Last fall he taught an adult Bible Class and discussed the matter of freedom.

"There really is no true freedom," he added, "unless one is abiding by the established rules of the game."

"For example, as a licensed driver, I am free to operate my auto anywhere in the U.S.A."

"But that presupposes that I stay within the recently established speed limit of 55 miles per hour."

"And that I stick to the right lane of 2-lane highways, as well as observing the other standard rules of auto driving."

What Is Freedom?

Prof. Clark's excellent view of freedom needs to be far more widely discussed among teenagers, both at the high school and college levels.

For many young people (and some oldsters) get the strange notion that being "free" means flaunting the approved codes or rules of the game.

Not so!

Even on the baseball diamond, a player is free to compete only within the established rules!

Otherwise, he may be "thumbed" out of the game or sent to the bench.

Same is true in football and all other sports, including modern boxing where "rabbit" punches are taboo and a fighter is not "free" to hit a man who is down.

If you likewise abide by the law and don't pilfer or shoplift, you are free to shop at your leisure; otherwise, you are a hunted person, afraid of being apprehended by policemen or store guards.

So discuss this matter of "freedom" in Sunday School tomorrow and let the students see that true freedom exists ONLY while we remain within the standard rules for any game or civilian action.

Children who think they are "free" when they play truant from school, are constantly worried lest a truant officer pick them up, so they are still psychological slaves to fear.

A husband who thinks he is free to violate his marriage vows and have trysts with a paramour, is no more free than an escaped convict.

For such a husband must be constantly apprehensive lest somebody report his illicit behavior to his wife.

Or that she may sue for divorce.

And that he may become infected with venereal disease.

Oldtime medics had this slogan to show the lifelong slavery to venereal disease:

"One night with Venus and a lifetime with mercury."

The mercury referred to his treatment for syphilis!

Actually, the only free people are those who obey the rules, for then they can work or play with a clear conscience, not dreading police or tattle tales, or venereal infection or even Hades.

The so-called "free" people, like the misguided members of the California Symbionese Liberation Army, are constantly hounded by the police and the FBI, rattled on by spying neighbors, likely to be sold out by disgruntled associates, and subject to guilt twinges when they think about their parents or siblings.

And, if they believe the Bible, they will also be prisoners of Satan for all eternity!

Suspect Vandals Set School Fire

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A fire believed set by vandals heavily damaged three offices Sunday at the Coulwood Junior High School, the fire department said.

Firemen said the blaze was reported about 3:15 p.m. at the northwest Charlotte school. There were no injuries and damage was estimated at $25,000.

School officials said classes would be held today although some classrooms sustained minor smoke damage.

Prior to that, filed as a legal motion, CBS newsman Fred Graham and his NBC and CBS colleagues informally had asked the trial's presiding judge, John J. Sirica, for permission to air tapes played at the trial.

Sirica informally denied permission after seeking guidance from Judge George H. Hart Jr., head of the federal district court in Washington, who gave Sirica consensus of opinion by the court's judges.

Hart, in a memo to Sirica, said the judges felt verbatim tape transcripts provided the press "appear to constitute more than adequate disclosure" to the public of the tapes' contents.

No 'Precedent' On Tape-Playing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Two network news presidents say they're delighted by a federal judge's memorandum that may pave the way for broadcast of White House tapes played during the Watergate cover-up trial.

But Richard S. Salant of CBS and Richard Wald of NBC agree it sets no legal precedent for eventually permitting live or delayed broadcast coverage of federal court cases they'd like to cover electronically.

"I don't think it goes that far," Salant said of U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell's memo, which last week indicated the tapes probably will be released for broadcast after the cover-up trial ends.

"He was exceedingly clear that it doesn't set that kind of precedent," said Wald, emphasizing that this wasn't the intent of the broadcasters who sought court permission to air the tapes.

Bill Sheehan, ABC News president, was in Hawaii on business and couldn't be reached for comment.

His network, NBC, CBS, the Public Broadcasting Service, the Radio and Television News Directors Association and record firms had asked the U.S. District Court in Washington if they could copy the tapes.

Prior to that, filed as a legal motion, CBS newsman Fred Graham and his NBC and CBS colleagues informally had asked the trial's presiding judge, John J. Sirica, for permission to air tapes played at the trial.

Sirica informally denied permission after seeking guidance from Judge George H. Hart Jr., head of the federal district court in Washington, who gave Sirica consensus of opinion by the court's judges.

Hart, in a memo to Sirica, said the judges felt verbatim tape transcripts provided the press "appear to constitute more than adequate disclosure" to the public of the tapes' contents.

In a key passage, he also noted the judges were concerned that release of the tapes for broadcast might prove a crack in the court's long-standing ban against any broadcast of court proceedings.

"In a sense, if we allow replay of what occurred in court," he said, referring to the playing of the tapes in court, "it will be very difficult to explain why we will not let a tape recorder be used by a court reporter to replay the entire proceedings."

NBC's Wald, reiterating his belief the Gesell memo isn't even a small step towards broadcast coverage of federal trials, says it nonetheless is a "very wholesome advance in the general concept of what evidence can be released from a trial."

As far as broadcast coverage of federal trials, both he and Salant say that still is something their networks would like to do.

"We think we can do it unobtrusively and we think that the courts will agree with us in the future," Wald said. "But this case has nothing to do with that."

Charged On Two Counts

Walter Clark Gray Jr. of 202 Greenbrier Dr. was charged with careless and reckless driving Saturday when he wrecked his car on Deck Street near its intersection with McClellan St. Damages to Gray's car were estimated at $2,500.

Processors also cited increased costs of transportation, cartons and sugar to justify their increases.

The directors said, "It is time for the processors and other middlemen to stop using the dairy farmer as their justification for gouging the public with high milk prices."

Processors also cited increased costs of transportation, cartons and sugar to justify their increases.

Hamilton Horton, milk commission chairman, had said that widespread increases in retail and wholesale prices might lead the commission to freeze milk prices.

Processors announcing increases were Pine State Creamery, Pet, Sealtest, Coble, Hunter and Long Meadow.

Ask Boycott Over Boosts

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Expressing outrage at recently announced milk price increases, the directors of the North Carolina Consumers Council have called for a boycott of milk processors who raise their prices.

The directors issued a statement Saturday urging consumers to take note of the companies that implement increases in the next few weeks.

Last Friday six major processors said they planned to raise their prices, although most did not state the amount or the effective date.

The action followed approval by the North Carolina Milk Commission of a 50 cent per hundredweight increase in the price the processors must pay the farmers for raw milk.

Under the law, the minimum price paid to farmers is set by the commission. However, the wholesale and retail price for dairy products is not set.

The directors said, "It is time for the processors and other middlemen to stop using the dairy farmer as their justification for gouging the public with high milk prices."

Processors also cited increased costs of transportation, cartons and sugar to justify their increases.

Hamilton Horton, milk commission chairman, had said that widespread increases in retail and wholesale prices might lead the commission to freeze milk prices.

"He keeps talking about retirement, but I think it'll come as a giant anticlimax!"

What do you bid now?
A.—Two hearts. While you have a good hand, your singleton spade is not necessarily an asset—in fact, it might prove to be a liability, since it suggests the possibility of a misfit. Thus, for the moment we suggest you go along quietly. If partner passes two hearts, you are unlikely to have missed anything.

1♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Pass. You have a weak hand and should get out of the auction as quickly as possible, once you have found a playable spot. North's rebid was not forcing, so there is no need for you to bid again. You should not give a preference to two clubs, for that would raise the level of the contract.

What do you bid now?
A.—Two spades. Though you are not compelled to bid, you should give preference to partner's first-bid suit. As a general rule, you should presume that partner's first suit is the longer, so despite the fact that your hearts are stronger than your spades, it is your duty to return to his first-bid suit if you can do so without raising the level of the contract.

A.—Three hearts. Now that you have found a fit, there is no point in jump rebidding your diamond suit. That action would not be forcing, and runs the risk that partner might pass when your side has game in hearts. While a jump raise to three hearts is also not forcing, the knowledge that

Seven Units Of Apartment Burn
CHARLOTTE (AP) — An early morning fire at an apartment complex Sunday has left 19 persons temporarily homeless.
The fire heavily damaged seven units at the Bordeaux Apartments in the southeastern part of the city. There were no serious injuries but an apartment superintendent said the families lost nearly all their furniture and clothing.
Firemen believe the fire may have started from a cigarette left burning in a living room.
The Ervin Co., which manages the apartments, said no damage estimate had been made.

Ten People Die In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
A Siler City policeman killed Saturday when his police car crashed into the vehicle he was pursuing was among the 10 persons who lost their lives this weekend in traffic accidents in North Carolina.

The officer, James Albert Perry, 21, was a passenger in the car driven by his partner when the accident occurred.

With the latest fatalities, North Carolina's highway death toll for the year stands at 1,448, compared with 1,780 by this time last year.

The highway patrol attributes the decline to slower highway speeds and a reduction in traffic.

A single-car accident in Charlotte early Saturday claimed the life of Curtis Caldwell Johnson, 23, of Charlotte. Police said Johnson's car hit a median, crossed over two lanes of traffic and rammed into a utility pole.

Danny E. Hess, 21, of Fayetteville died when his car crashed head-on into another vehicle in Cumberland County.

Nelson Ashburn, 41, of High Point was killed when his car collided with a freight train at a crossing in High Point.

Charles Richard Partin, 20, of Taylorsville died when his car ran off N.C. 16 and struck a tree in Alexander County.

Carl Ray Adams, 36, of Bedford, Ky., was hit by a car on Interstate 40 in McDowell County.

Avery Phillips Blackwell Jr., 23, of Dudley was killed when a truck slammed into his motorcycle four miles south of Goldsboro.

Sally Cline, 82, of Maiden, was struck and killed by a car in Catawba County.

Edgar Lee White, 60, of Fayetteville, lost his life when his car rammed into another vehicle at a stoplight on U.S. 401 south of Fayetteville.

Marie L. Simpson, 23, of Greensboro, was hit by a car on U.S. 74 east of Charlotte.

Howard Lee Said Planning Bid For Lt. Gov.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—The man who said he hopes to be North Carolina's first black lieutenant governor told a Raleigh newspaper he plans to run without race being the central issue.

Howard Lee, the three-term black mayor of Chapel Hill, told The News and Observer he will announce his candidacy for lieutenant governor just after the first of the year.

In today's editions, the newspaper reported that Lee said in an interview that he will form an advisory committee after the holidays and test the political waters around the state.

Lee said he would have a broad campaign and ethnic considerations would not be central. As to finances, Lee said he could run a successful campaign based on small contributions.

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Searching is to continue today for a 25-year old New Hanover County man who apparently fell from his boat and drowned in the Cape Fear River near Castle Hayne.

Authorities said David Kimball was duck hunting with a companion Saturday when he left the friend on an island and was to return to shore for some items they had forgotten. The boat was found running in circles a short time later.

Estimated slaughter today totals 1,002,000.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was mixed and quiet today after an early rally attempt petered out.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.65 at 575.95, and gainers and losers were about even over all in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow rebounded about 3 points in today's first half-hour from the 12-year closing low it reached on Friday. Brokers traced the upswing to the Federal Reserve's discount rate reduction from 8 to 7.75 per cent at two of its regional facilities Friday evening.

The discount rate, the rate charged on loans from the central bank to commercial banks, often exerts a strong influence on general money rate trends. Friday's move was taken by many as a signal of a slight further easing in the Fed's monetary policy.

But some investors worried about the economic slump evidently seized on the occasion of some seemingly bullish news to do some selling.

When it became apparent that the rally was not going very far, trading quieted down, and prices began to drift downward.

S.S. Kresge was the most-active NYSE issue, up 1/4 at 19 1/2.

Most other issues also posted only fractional changes.

Pacific Savings & Loan climbed a point to 25 1/2 on the American Stock on the final day of a tender offer for the company's stock by California Federal Savings & Loan Association.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks was up .01 at 34.46.

The Amex market value index lost .43 to 58.70 in the first hour.

An estimated $950 damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police Saturday night.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 9 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Pine and Dunn Streets and involved a parked car owned by Elizabeth Posey Whitfield of 216 Pine St. and a car driven by Jimmy Earl Daniels of 2613 Calvin Way.

Officers, who estimated damage to the Whitfield car at $550 and placed damage to the Daniels auto at $100, charged Daniels with leaving the scene of an accident.

No charges were reported in the second mishap, which involved cars driven by Victoria Ann Ellis of Smithfield and James Gowen Turcotte of 134 East Longmeadow Rd.

Officers said the collision occurred about 10 p.m. at the intersection of Fifth and Elm Streets and placed damage at $200 to the Ellis car and $100 to the Turcotte vehicle.

Greece Rejects Return Of King

By PAUL ANASTASSIADES Associated Press Writer ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The Greeks by a vote of more than two to one have rejected the monarchy for the third time in this century, and the government announced today that parliament will probably elect a provisional president this week.

The final official count from Sunday's plebiscite was 3,236,345, or 69.2 per cent, in favor of a republic and 1,443,804 votes, or 30.8 per cent, for the return of the monarchy. Twenty-five per cent of the eligible voters did not vote.

The leading candidate for the provisional presidency, a largely figurehead post, is former premier Panayiotis Canellis, 72.

comment on the outcome of the plebiscite from ex-King Constantine, who fled from Greece in 1967 after an abortive attempt to overthrow the military junta that had seized power eight months before. He said before the vote that he wanted to return to "the home of my forefathers whatever the result."

But Caramanlis said Sunday night: "I don't think it would be wise for him to attempt to return in the near future."

Other government sources said the former king would have to accept the verdict of the plebiscite and relinquish all his royal titles and claims before his return could be considered.

Employee Safety Said More Thoroughly Met

The safety and health needs of employees in North Carolina's large industries are being met more thoroughly now than ever before, Lenwood Smith of the North Carolina Department of Labor told members of the Pitt County Safety Council last week.

Smith, speaking at the council's regular monthly meeting Thursday, said many plants employ full-time safety directors and spend large amounts of money on improving working conditions and organized safety and health programs.

Some 4,000 plants are being inspected each year by state Occupational Safety and Health Act safety officers, Smith indicated.

The speaker noted, however, that small plants and businesses—88 per cent of all establishments in the state have fewer than 100 employees—are meeting the needs of their employees through a practical program of voluntary compliance.

Smith said Labor Department inspectors, checking for compliance with minimum wage, over time and child labor laws, also serve as safety and health consultants in thousands of small establishments they visit each year. "They work with small employers helping them to develop safety programs and set up safety committees," Smith indicated.

He noted too, that employers may request this consultant service by contacting the Raleigh office of the Labor Department.

The Safety Council endorsed the concept of New Directions, a non-profit organization established in Greenville recently, devoted to the care of pre-delinquent and delinquent adolescents.

The council also endorsed the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U. S. Constitutions, which will come before the North Carolina General Assembly for ratification in 1975.

Paul Jewett, Safety Council president presided at the meeting and announced the January meeting of the Council will be held on January 9 at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Hostage Of Four Women

LOWELL, Fla. (AP) — A statewide search was under way today for four women armed with knives who took a switchboard operator hostage and escaped in a prison van from the Florida Correctional Institution.

Prison officials said the women gained access to the control room in the administration building Sunday night, where they took Elizabeth Peeler, 54, hostage.

Two of the escapees were serving life terms at the prison for first degree murder and additional time for previous prison escapes, officials said. All four were called dangerous by Rex Newman, spokesman for the Department of Corrections in Tallahassee.

State prison officials said they were trying to determine how the women obtained the weapons and entered the control room of the prison in north central Florida, near the Ocala National Forest.

The escapes were identified as Judith Sikes, 30, of Manatee County; Barbara Ann Baker, 33, of Dade County; Carol Janet Yeomans, 33, of Hillsborough County; and Louise Hunter, 32, of Alachua County.

Prison spokesmen said Judith Sikes and Barbara Ann Baker were serving life terms for first-degree murder.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — If engineers can solve a problem in a Titan Centaur rocket, West Germany's Helios spacecraft will be fired towards an orbit around the sun at 2:11 a.m. EST Tuesday.
