Congress Rushes To Reach Adjournment

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of recession jobs for the unemployed and a foreign aid bill renewing funds for Turkey appear headed for the approval of Congress as it pushes for adjournment late this week.

House and Senate conferees agreed on legislation authorizing $5.5 billion for up to 330,000 public service jobs in local government and for jobless benefits to millions of people who are not now eligible. A companion bill would extend unemployment benefits for 52 weeks.

President Ford asked Congress to appropriate $4 billion of the new aid right away for 110,000 public service jobs and extended unemployment compensation benefits. A House committee approved that appropriation Tuesday night.

A $2.7 billion foreign aid bill appears headed for clear sailing as a result of a compromise worked out by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and influential House members to renew military aid for Turkey until Feb. 5.

The only other major business facing Congress is confirmation of Nelson A. Rockefeller as vice president.

Rockefeller's confirmation is scheduled for final House approval late Thursday, and he is to be sworn in as vice president an hour later in the Senate chamber. The Senate has approved live television coverage of the swearing-in, the first Senate television coverage ever.

Congress previously had cut off all U.S. military aid to Turkey as of Dec. 10 because of Turkey's occupation of Cyprus. The new foreign aid bill would renew the assistance until Feb. 5. Aid then would be cut off until there is "substantial progress" on negotiations toward a Cyprus settlement, if such progress has not already been made by then.

House opponents of Turkish aid agreed to the compromise after Kissinger told them he believes progress on Cyprus can be made by the cutoff date.

A continuing resolution will be put through Congress to fund foreign aid on a stop-gap basis until next Feb. 28, by which time the new Congress should approve an appropriation for it.

In other congressional developments:

—The Senate passed and sent to President Ford a bill committing the United States to a $20-billion, 10-year research program on non-nuclear energy. Coal, oil shale and solar energy development are the goals of the bill.

—The Senate blocked efforts to impose additional taxes on oil companies. The move for higher taxes, sponsored by Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., would have levied an additional $400 million on foreign business conducted by the oil firms. The measure failed by a 67-25 vote.

—Congressional conferees on a $3 billion military appropriation bill deleted funds for expanding the U.S. station on the British-owned island of Diego Garcia in the Indian Ocean. Opponents argued the $18.1 million expansion would have provoked a new arms race with Russia in the area.

A passenger in the plane, Steven Kerr, of Scott Air Force Base in Illinois, died of injuries. The pilot, Michael W. Brown, was critically injured. Brown, 21, received his pilot's license last Friday. Israeli, Arab Raiders Trade Swift Strikes

By The Associated Press

Israeli and Arab raiders crisscrossed the Lebanese border early today. The Israeli command said its troops blew up six houses in southern Lebanon and took two Arab prisoners, while Arabs infiltrated a kibbutz and set off half a dozen grenades.

In Lebanon the Israeli commandos crossed the border by helicopter at 2:30 a.m. and attacked the village of Majdel Zoun, six miles from the frontier. The defense ministry said they blew up six houses, kidnaped four villagers and fled before a Lebanese patrol arrived.

Beirut said one child was critically injured in the attack.

The Israeli command said the demolished houses had been used as terrorist bases. A communique said the raiders brought back two villagers suspected of collaborating with terrorists.

Israeli commandos struck the same village last Nov. 5, blowing up one house and taking the village headman and his son captive.

Less than three hours after the Israeli raid, a band of Arabs slipped past guards at the Hanita kibbutz, threw half a dozen grenades at a house and escaped back into Lebanon, the Israeli command said. The kibbutz is four miles from the border.

No casualties were reported.

The command reported first that Hanita was hit by Katyusha rockets fired from across the border. Later it said the rockets were bazooka shells, indicating they came from a shorter distance. And still later it said the bazooka report was also incorrect.

The Beirut newspaper Al Yom said Palestinian guerrillas are preparing an operation to free Archbishop Hilarion Capudji, the Greek Catholic prelate of East Jerusalem jailed by Israel for smuggling arms to guerrillas. The plan has been given the code name Operation Other Christ, the newspaper said.

Meanwhile, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat told ABC-TV he is hopeful concentrated peace efforts in the next few months can avert a new Arab-Israeli war. But a leading Egyptian newspaper commentator urged all Arabs to fight now before Israel "takes us by surprise."

Behind By $5,000

Salvation Army Lt. John R. Jones said today that the Army's Christmas appeal program is about $5,000 behind its goal for this year.

According to the officer, about $6,000 has been raised so far to support the Army's Christmas acitivities. "We still need nearly $5,000," in order to finance the program of aid to needy families at Christmas.

According to Jones, 304 families have registered for aid this year as compaired with about 250 families last Christmas.

"Prices are up, money tighter, and we're trying to help more people," Lt. Jones said.

The Salvation Army planned to distribute food baskets and toys for Christmas to families today and Thursday. And gifts packets will be distributed to patients at Pitt Memorial Hospital and nursing homes in the county for Christmas.

"We need more donations to support these programs," Jones said.

WON'T RELEASE INFORMATION

I would like to know about the new federal law that prohibits the releasing of the names and addresses of students. It seems we need some way to get in touch with one another. J.F.

Hotline checked with the ECU Registrar's office and found what you say is true. The federal Family Education Right to Privacy Act went into effect Nov. 19. No information about a student can be released now without the written consent of the student. We find it inconvenient, too, but appreciate the ideal behind the Act.

RECEIVED AFTER A YEAR

I ordered a "arm blaster" from Weider Health and Fitness in Woodland Hill, Calif, last December. I have my canceled check for $20. I'd like either the merchandise or a refund. R.S.

Hotline wrote the company Nov. 20, and you report that you received your weight-lifting equipment last week.

NO REFUND

I enrolled at Ballet Arts Studios here and paid $30 in advance. I found later that I could not fit dance lessons into my schedule at ECU. Now Mrs. Christina Williams, who owns the studio, will not refund my money. S.F.

Mrs. Williams said she realizes that you did not get anything for your money, but that she refuses to return it. She said you caused her to lose money because she has a waiting list and could have been teaching someone else during the time assigned to you. She said she has a stated rule against giving refunds, of which she believes you were aware.

Layoffs Soaring

RALEIGH (AP)—Total mass layoffs in North Carolina during the last week in November rose to the highest figure of the calendar year, according to state Employment Security Commission.

Unemployment rose to 6.3 per cent Thanksgiving week, commission statistics showed this week.

This means 108,768 workers covered by the state unemployment insurance program filed claims.

The 6.3 per cent figure does not include about 500,000 other workers whose jobs are not covered by unemployment benefits.

A breakdown of the unemployed included 203 plants, affecting 43,293 workers.

The textile industry is the hardest hit with 93 plants furloughing 23,539 workers.

Other layoff include:

—37 funiture plants, affecting 8,571

—34 apparel plants, affecting 5,527

—10 metal and machinery plants, affecting 1,450

—9 hosiery plants, affecting 968

Musical Family Robbed Store

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP)—A family which entered a music store in the Southgate Mall only pretended to have a musical Christmas on its mind.

The parents started talking to a clerk about an organ. One of the two boys played a guitar loudly.

And the other boy opened the cash register and ran. So did the others.

Brinegar Quitting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Transportation Claude S. Brinegar today announced he will resign effective Feb. 1, 1975.

No mention was made of a successor.

Brinegar was the second member of Ford's Cabinet to resign. Atty. Gen. William Saxbe stepped down last week to become ambassador to India.

They, as well as the other Cabinet members, were holdovers from the Richard M. Nixon administration.

Brinegar said felt "now is the time for me to return to the private sector.

He said he had no plans for a new job at this point but would make a decision after the first of the year. Brinegar was a senior vice president of Union Oil Co. before taking the transportation post.

President Ford praised Brinegar's service as secretary and credited Brinegar with the articulation of a national transportation policy, the first such policy ever developed.

CONFIRM MARSHAL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Senate has confirmed the nomination of James R. Durham of Raleigh to be U.S. marshal for the eastern district of North Carolina.

VEPCO Wins Permission Begin Interim Rate Hike

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Utilities Commission Tuesday gave Virginia Electric and Power Co. (Vepco) permission to put into effect Jan. 1 a 7.24 per cent interim rate hike on its customers in northeastern North Carolina.

For an average customer using 950 kilowatt hours of electricity, the increase would boost the basic monthly bill from $19.61 to $22.53. Extra costs added to cover increases in the cost of fossil fuel would tack about $9 a month to the bill, the commission estimated.

Vepco had notified the commission Dec. 13 that on Jan. 1 it would raise its rates. The company can do so legally because it has been more than six months since it first applied for a rate increase. After six months passes without action by the commission, state law allows a company to automaticlly place a rate hike of up to 20 per cent into effect provided it agrees to repay with interest any amount of the increase that the commission later disallows.

The company first asked for a 17 per cent increase last May. Because of a crowded docket, the commission set the case for hearing next Feb. 4.

In September, the commission approved for the company an emergency rate hike of 12.8 per cent. Then the company amended its original request, asking for what amounts to an average 35 per cent increase, and a 38 per cent boost for residential customers. That is the full case the commission will hear beginning Feb. 4.

The full increase would bring Vepco an additional $9 million a year from its 63,000 North Carolina customers.

Skiing Holiday For Ford Family

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says he and his family will fly to Colorado Sunday for their annual skiing vacation.

Ford said his son Jack is in Aspen, Colo., and reports "there is skiing."

The President had originally hope to leave for the resort town of Vail today or Thursday, but had to postpone the departure because of the continuing congressional session.

Hospital Cash Position Concerns Board; Sums Payable Sharply Up

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Hospital Board members, meeting last night, expressed distress over the hospital's cash position.

Unexpected expenditures, patients' increased financial hardship, and slowed third party payment seem to account for the problem, Assistant Administrator for Financial Affairs Buck Sitterson told the Board. Accounts receivable a year ago were not quite $700,000, he said. Now they total about $1,121,000.

The Executive Committee of the Board agreed to study the problem and come up with some suggestions for dealing with it.

A plaque of appreciation was presented to Dr. John Wooten, who has served two years as chief of staff of the Hospital. Dr. Eric Fearrington, the new chief of staff was introduced.

Tentative approval of the medical staff for the coming year was given.

Copies of a new booklet to be given to each person who enters the hospital as a patient were presented the Board members. The cover shows the new hospital and the contents include facts about admission, financial arrangements, visiting privileges, services, staff and facilities, health career, opportunities to give memorial gifts, checking out, and other information of interest.

Tentative approval was given for a contract between the Greenville Service League and Bus Terminal Restaurants to begin operating the hospital snack shop on a 24-hour basis Jan. 6.

New Hospital Construction Engineer Ralph Hall showed an aerial photograph of the hospital site. Work is progressing well, he said, and the site is beginning to resemble renderings of the building now, he said. He pointed out that Pitt County is fortunate to have begun its hospital when it did. "This hospital is costing approximately $42 a square foot," he said. "Hospitals being started now are running as high as $65 to $70 a square foot."

Oil Refinery Strike Looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — A union representing about 60,000 oil refinery workers is not making much progress in contract talks with the petroleum industry and chances of a strike next month are "very great," says the head of the union.

A. F. Grospiron, president of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, said Tuesday that management's response to his union's wage demands has been "stingy" despite the industry's record profits.

Oil companies "are not indicating any hope of a peaceful, honorable settlement," Grospiron said.

He declined to say whether the union would strike the entire industry or selected companies, saying that was part of the bargaining strategy. Grospiron estimated that a nationwide strike would curtail total production of refined petroleum products, including gasoline, by 35 to 50 per cent.

The union is negotiating more than 400 separate contracts with companies producing 70 per cent of the nation's petroleum refining capacity. Current contracts begin expiring Jan. 7.

Grospiron said the union is seeking pay increases that would boost the average refinery workers' current wage of $5.95 an hour to $10.95 per hour in the third year of new three-year contracts. He said the union also is demanding escalator clauses tying wages to increases in the cost-of-living, plus other fringe benefits.

Texaco has offered a first-year wage hike of 10.5 per cent and 7 per cent more in the second year, he said, while Shell Oil Co. offered 6 per cent initially and an additional 5 per cent six months later. He called the offers unsatisfactory.

Pitt Blood Deficit Is Helped By Visit

KINSTON—Pitt County's annual Bloodmobile visit to Du Pont here Monday resulted in the collection of 237 pints of blood and helped reduce Pitt's overall quota.

According to Mrs. Ruth Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt Chapter of the American Red Cross, there were 16 persons rejected during the visit, in addition to the 237 donors.

Mrs. Taylor said that Alex Warren of Grifton, a Du Pont employee, was in charge of the Pitt visit and help was provided by the Greenville Service League Women as well as volunteer nurses from Ayden and Kinston.

"This will help our quota," she pointed out, but noting that the county's overall blood status is still down from the established quota.

Pitt County has one visit each year at Du Pont with all blood donations credited toward the county goal. Lenoir County conducts two visits per year at Du Pont.

Friends Should Level With Friends

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are often invited to dinner at our friends' homes. We have no children; most of our friends do.

More often than not, our friends' pre-school children are still up when we arrive. They are fed at the same table with the guests, and remain present long afterwards.

The problem is that it is difficult, if not impossible, to carry on an adult conversation with children interrupting every few minutes, running through the rooom and whatever.

Abby, we have nothing against children, but we feel that children should be seen and heard briefly when adults gather. One might say that if we had children, we'd understand. However, we consider this to be a poor excuse for parents' failure to discipline their children. What do you think? And what's the solution? FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: I think you're right on target. And the solution is to level with your friends. You may lose a few, but you might educate a few others.

DEAR ABBY: The best answer I have ever heard in response to an impolite question was given by my daughter, aged four.

A rude person asked her, "Who do you love more, your mother or your father?"

She replied with a courteous smile, "Why do you want to know? R.B.

DEAR ABBY: From a woman's standpoint, would it be better to marry a man who loves you more than you love him, or to marry a man whom you love more than he loves you? In other words, is it better to love than to be loved? M.

DEAR M.: Since all women are individuals, it isn't possible to speak for all women. For some women, the greatest joy is in giving love. For others, the ultimate pleasure is in being loved.

Basically, one's generosity is motivated by selfishness, for one loves in order to be loved. But why specify "a woman's" standpoint? The same holds true for a man.

Couple Speaks Vows Saturday

STANTONSBURG—Miss Alice Lillian Beddingfield of Chapel Hill and William Dean Moss Jr. of Pomfret, Conn., were united in marriage at 12 noon Saturday in the Stantonsburg United Methodist Church. Officiating at the double ring ceremony was the Rev. Roderick Randolph.

A bustle and cathedral length train were features of the full skirt.

The bride's cathedral length veil of imported French illusion was bordered with chantilly lace and attached to a coronet of seed pearls. She wore a gold bracelet centered with a diamond which belonged to the bridegroom's paternal grandparents, and she carried a colonial bouquet of white roses and miniature carnations centered with a white orchid. The bouquet was identical to the one carried by the bride's mother on her wedding day.

Marketing Isn't Their Thing

The Journal of the American Medical Association, in an article, called for ending the tobacco subsidy program.

Well, it is the AMA's business to be concerned about the health aspects of tobacco, but the opposition to the tobacco subsidy program shows a lack of understanding of orderly marketing procedures.

Tobacco is grown in this country, completely legally. Export of tobacco brings dollars back to our nation, and this is increasingly important in this time when higher oil prices are draining dollars from the American economy.

Elimination of the tobacco program would mean complete chaos for tobacco farming and the tobacco industry. Since there would be no controls over acreage, more tobacco would be planted. The effect, would be to glut the market with tobacco and send the price plunging. This would ruin many farmers and bring a declining amount of dollars from foreign markets back to the United States.

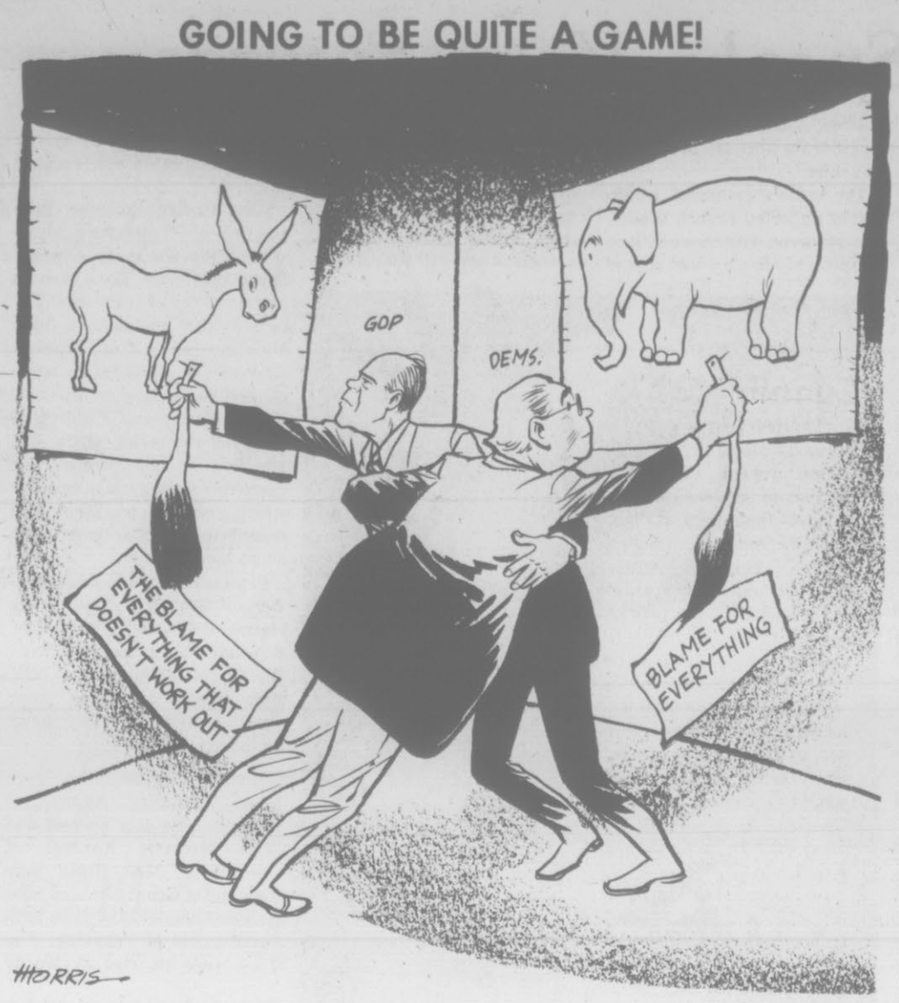
The main effect of the tobacco program is, not to subsidize something the AMA considers evil, but to maintain order and a quality product for an essential part of our farm economy and export market. To tamper with the program in any major way could mean disaster for an important part of our economy.

Fortunately Congressman Walter Jones' office doesn't think there is any immediate threat to the tobacco program. Charles McCleese, legislative assistant to Jones, says the threat is of no particular concern at present.

The tobacco program is permanent legislation and it is necessary to produce the quality product that U.S. tobacco is noted for, McCleese said.

"Mr. Jones is a strong supporter of the current program and he doesn't forsee any alternatives being introduced," he said.

It is good that there is no immediate threat to the tobacco program. This is one government farm program which has worked and worked well and it should be left intact.



Hiding Food Profit?

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's food chains appear to be using misleading figures to cover up huge increases in profits, congressional economic experts say.

The staff of the Joint Economic Committee said "comparison of quarterly profitability in 1973 with 1974 raises serious questions, including possible profiteering."

The staff memo to the committee stresses the preliminary nature of its conclusions and urges rigorous, fundamental questioning. The committee concludes hearings on food-pricing practices Thursday with testimony from three food chain executives.

Food chains, in explaining a 15 per cent increase in grocery prices for the second straight year, have pointed to profits in terms of a percentage of sales.

On Tuesday W.S. Mitchell, president of the industry-leading Safeway Stores Inc., said the major food chains received net profits this year of about 0.9 per cent of sales, up from last year's controls-affected 0.7 per cent.

That still is below the "penny for the grocer" — or 1.1 per cent of sales — that is traditional for the supermarkets on that index, he noted. He said Safeway's profits for the first 36 weeks of 1974 amount to 1.4 per cent of sales, which is also its 1964-1974 average net profit.

But the staff memo prepared for the committee members' use during questioning at the hearings concludes that "rate of return on equity is the more valid indicator of retail food chain performance."

And, the staff memo said, the food chains' explanation of their profits "appear to be intentionally misleading and designed to cover up the recent explosion in the profitability of these firms."

In Safeway's case, Mitchell agreed under questioning by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., vice chairman and principal instigator of the investigation, the return to investors this year has risen substantially.

Eyes On Continental Shelf

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—There is—just east of North Carolina—a vast unspoiled wilderness land potentially rich in minerals and foodstuffs.

The wilderness area covers about 14,000 square miles—larger than the state of Maryland—and some view this territory in much the same way pioneer Americans looked to the West.

In those days, nobody thought about controlling land use, or zoning, or environmental protection — there was enough land, it would never run out, our ancestory said.

The fallacy of that is now evident. Just as evident, say a team of marine scientists at several North Carolina universities, is the need for immediate steps to control development of the Continental Shelf which lies underwater to a maximum depth of 300 feet, and reaches into the Atlantic at a width varying from 10 to 50 miles.

Conquer The Land

The scientists fear that many people today are looking at the continental shelf as a vast waste land to be conquered.

Indeed, there are several signs that such is the case:

In its recent report on The Future of the South, the Southern Growth Policies Board predicts that current actions will have "profound significance for the coastal states."

Mentioned as possibilities are oil drilling offshore; superports to receive deep draft oil tankers; undersea mining for chemicals; mariculture (farming)—"are considered highly probably developments in the not-too-distant future." The point is made that the impact on fisheries is not known, while dangers of oil spills and blowouts are well known.

Further, that report calls attention to related onshore implications now "barely perceived" but including location of pipelines, refineries, and process facilities.

The team of marine scientists reached similar conclusions independently, and has called on Gov. James E. Holshouser to move at once into land use management for the offshore lands.

In a letter written by Dr. Orrin H. Pilkey, a marine geologist at Duke University, the group of 21 scientists (representing Duke, N.C. State, East Carolina, and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill) predicts that continental shelf development will begin rapidly in the next 25 years.

Development Set

"Off North Carolina we can expect construction of nuclear power plants, deep water ports, and perhaps a variety of petroleum gathering and refining plants.

"Mining of sand and drilling for oil and perhaps mining of heavy mineral placers and phosphate will begin within five years.

"As sanitary landfill sites become scarce and expensive or as special specialized chemical industries expand in our state, offshore dumping must begin. Sewage outfalls will soon be installed at sea," the team reports.

No state has yet taken over management of the continental shelf and there is some debate over who has jurisdiction. The federal government has claimed some rights, and granted oil-drilling permission in the absence of state regulation.

Already, Pilkey warns, conflicting things are happening off North Carolina's shore: a deep water port site has been picked without sufficient study of on-shore impact; artificial fishing reefs are being created by sinking old ships, while permits are being given to destroy old wrecks for salvage purposes; mining sites are being planned without regard for nuclear power plant locations. The pressure will mount in coming years.

The scientists recommended to the governor that a study of continental shelf resources and likely future uses is needed; a land use plan map of the shelf should be made; fragile, unusual, or heavily used recreation areas should be immediately declared wilderness areas or marine sanctuaries for protection; and a state agency identified to oversee planning and development on the shelf.

The Gold Fever Strikes

WASHINGTON—Muhlenberg dashed into my office yelling, "GOLD! GOLD. I've discovered gold!"

"Take it easy, Muhlenberg," I said. "You mean you've hit a gold mine?"

"No, you fool," he shouted, his eyes blazing. "On Dec. 31 we're going to be allowed to buy gold. We'll all be rich."

"How can we be rich if we have to buy the gold?"

"Haven't you read the advertisements in the newspapers? Gold is going to go up to $400 an ounce. If we buy it at $190, we'll more than double our money."

"But, Muhlenberg, there is no guarantee that gold is going to go up. Suppose it goes down?"

"It can't go down," Muhlenberg cried. "Everybody wants gold. Now we can get our hands on it and stuff it in our mattresses and no one can touch us."

"You've really got the gold fever, Muhlenberg. But I think I better warn you. Owning gold isn't what it's cracked up to be. It breaks up friendships and marriages. It turns man against man, and woman against woman. If someone knows you have gold in your mattress they'll do anything to get it—including pillage and rape."

"Rape?"

"I read that somewhere. In any case, gold turns people into animals. Is this what you want to become—an animal?"

"Don't worry about me," he protested. "When I get my gold I'm not going to change. I'll still be the Muhlenberg you knew before. I may not go out as much because I'm going to have to stay home at night to weigh it and count it to make sure I've got all of it. But outside of that you won't even know I have the stuff."

"I've read articles about this crazy gold-buying thing," I said, "and they indicate the only ones who stand to make money on gold are the dealers who sell it, the insurance companies who insure it and the banks who store it. Also the Mafia seems to be into it and a lot of gold bars may turn out to be brass. I would be very careful if I were you before I got into this business."

ART BUCHWALD

Muhlenberg snarled like Humphrey Bogart. "I might have known it. You're just saying this because you want to drive down the price of gold so you can buy my gold cheap. You're all alike. Everyone's after my gold. Well, you're going to have to kill me first before you get it."

"Muhlenberg, will you please put that gun down. No one is after your gold. You can buy all of it you want to. It's yours to do with what you want."

"Then why did you bring up the pillage and rape?"

"I was just trying to warn you that people have done it in the past to get their hands on gold. Perhaps this time they won't. After all Americans are much more civilized than most peoples. You're a perfect example of someone who hasn't lost his cool because his government is going to allow him to buy gold."

Muhlenberg put his gun back in his belt. "Well, there are other things in life besides gold. I'll tell you what. Because you were in on this with me from the beginning, I'm going to let you in on a good thing. There's this guy in Florida who just discovered a cache of gold coins on a sunken Spanish galleon and for $10,000 . . ."

The INSIDE REPORT

Angered, But No Firing Yet

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Although his deeper purpose was concealed in the rhetoric, President Ford sent a red-hot message to his own top advisers in his speech to the Business Council here Wednesday evening.

The message: Stop committing the President to energy and economic programs that he hasn't personally approved.

Particularly annoying to Mr. Ford was a day-long banner headline in the Washington Star-News on Dec. 10 committing the President to a "bigger job plan" and indicating that he had decided to junk the "trigger" (6 per cent unemployment for three months) in his jobs program.

That headline grew out of a television interview with Secretary of the Treasury William Simon on Monday night, in which Simon said the administration was plotting an unemployment program "that deals with the economy and with unemployment the way it exists today, not the way it was forecast."

Politicians of both parties were highly gratified by that Simon statement, particularly Republicans growing more disenchanted every day with bland statements from the President which they feel vastly understate the economic crisis.

But Mr. Ford was angry. He reacted with similar anger on several occasions the last two months when his energy aides, most recently Interior Secretary Rogers Morton, repeatedly talked of a new federal gasoline tax to conserve energy.

The key phrase in Wednesday evening's speech tipping the hand of presidential annoyance when he is taken unaware went this way:

"For a start let me say this: do not believe I have made any economic decisions unless you hear those decisions from me personally. There can be only one person that makes those decisions and when I make them I'll announce them."

Despite this barely concealed warning to Simon, Morton and other high-level offenders, Mr. Ford has no intention of replacing either Simon or Morton in his cabinet. Indeed, Simon was conspicuously invited by Mr. Ford to sit at the presidential table at the Symphony Ball on Dec. 6. Behind that select invitation was the President's desire to undercut harshly critical press forecasts that Simon's departure was only a matter of time.

But Mr. Ford's intention to keep Simon as his chief economic spokesman does not exempt him from presidential anger when Mr. Ford feels he is being preempted.

A footnote: A principal purpose of the Wednesday speech—which fell on disgruntled Republican politicians with a thud, not a bang — was to stem the alarming loss of business confidence as the recession deepens. To his old colleagues in Congress, the prescription needed is not misplaced confidence in the economy but confidence that Gerald Ford understands how bad the situation is and will act fast to start curing it.

Rocky's Bounce

The long televised hearings into Nelson Rockefeller's personal and political past, far from doing him damage, increased his standing to the point of persuading one right-wing Republican member of the House Judiciary Committee to change his mind and vote to confirm him as Vice President.

Rep. Trent Lott of Mississippi confided to high-level Republican party operatives three months ago, soon after Mr. Ford nominated the super-rich Rockefeller, that he seriously doubted he could ever vote to confirm him as Vice President.

Rockefeller's performance under fire in both the House committee and the Senate Rules Committee, however, changed his mind. Just before the vote in the House Judiciary Committee, Lott said he would support Rockefeller because nothing in the hearings clearly made him unfit for the office

Public Forum

To the editor:

One of the best speeches I've ever read was the one given by Fred Morrison to the North Central Jaycees at the Triangle Correctional Center in Raleigh, As you know, there are now Jaycee chapters in our prisons in which inmates can join, thus performing a service while improving their lives.

Mr. Morrison called on the inmates "to become an active part of the solution rather than a part of the problem in our penal system."

Meaningful and effective change may not come from without the system. Change must begin to come from within.

Morrison challenged them to not ask "What have you done for me lately?" but rather ask "What have I done for myself lately." The Jaycee inmates were encouraged to help clean up their environment within the system and to take pride in themselves as individuals.

The speaker hit the nail on the head several times in rapid succession when he called on those in prison because of drugs to never use them again and for those with an alcoholic problem to resolve to solve the problem by their own self-discipline and determination. Prisoners need to be encouraged to use their time constructively while preparing to return to society with a new outlook and sense of self-purpose.

North Carolinians support reasonable prison reform, for they realize we don't need to simply lock people up and forget them. The next General Assembly should proceed with our state's progressive approach in making our prison system more humane so that the inmates can indeed return to society as useful citizens.

In encouraging prisoners to better themselves and asking the legislature to continue reasonable reform, Fred Morrison has performed a valuable service.

40 Years Ago Today

December 18, 1934

Santa Claus rode into Greenville last night and thrilled hundreds of children and grownups as he paraded down the main business streets of the city distributing candy, apples and toys.

Abandoning his reindeer several miles from town, St. Nicholas made his entrance into Greenville in a wagon pulled by two mules. He had to abandon his reindeer and sleigh at House Station because of a change in the weather conditions. He said the weather was too warm for the reindeer to continue their furious pace.

But regardless of the lack of sleigh and reindeer, Santa received a warm welcome from his admirers here, especially from the children.

St. Nick was brought to Greenville under the auspices of the merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce and his arrival ushered in the opening of the stores at night to take care of holiday shoppers.

Strength For Today

IN TUNE WITH GOD'S PURPOSES

God is trying to get something done in his universe, but he makes it plain to us in a multitude of ways that he can never get it done unless he gets it done through us. The worst sin a man can commit is to be indifferent to God's great purposes. Year by year, century by century, the great purposes of God sweep on to their consummation, and woe be to that man who has not contributed to their fulfillment.

An old church in London bears this inscription: "Christ alone can save the world, but he cannot save it alone." Which means that in the last analysis the purposes of God depend upon the extent to which he can use men as instruments in his hands. The God who could make the world perfect tomorrow is not going to do so until men's hearts so thirst for perfection that they will use the gifts of God aright when he gives them. Salvation is a dual process. God reaches down to man, but nothing happens until man then reaches up to God.

Community Association Boom

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As a consequence of the condominium concept, in which a resident owns his particular unit and shares in common areas, a form of government called the community association is developing rapidly.

It really isn't new. In 1831, residents of New York formed an association in Gramercy Park. But its growth in the past decade exceeds that of the previous century.

An association sets regulations, standards, fees — call them taxes — just as any other local government. It decides on improvements and architectural changes. It attempts to resolve disputes, as other governments do.

And, like other developing concepts it is often entangled in confusion, uncertainty and even scandal. Its officers and directors, being amateurs, sometimes don't know what they're doing. Insurers and accountants and lawyers sometimes don't know how to serve.

In more than one instances the directors decided to close the swimming pool during evenings in order to save electricity, and were sued by members who claimed they were deprived of rights they had paid for.

When a thief hacks away your door, who is responsible for replacing it? Your insurer might agree he is responsible for the inside of the door but insist the condo's insurer of common properties must pay for the outside.

Where does your property, and therefore your responsibility, end? At the rear of the paint? Or does it extend midway into the concrete or plaster? How should the accountants handle depreciation?

Newly formed by builders, lenders and associations, the Community Associations Institute, hopes to come up with some answers. Its goal is to keep managements informed and educated about planning, maintenance and management.

Quite often, the first problem encountered by the community association concerns the transfer of ownership.

It comes about this way: An automatic community association is created by a real estate developer of a condo, planned unit development or similar venture. The bylaws are essentially part of the developer's sales package.

As homes in the venture are sold, however, the developer's interest in the automatic community association diminishes and participation by the individual unit owners increases.

Governing power for the community thus is transferred from the developer to the home owners. The time span for this transfer of power is governed by the original community as-

Privately, he expressed strong if grudging admiration. "The dang guy is just as tough as nails," he said, adding that Rockefeller's ability to keep his temper and his disposition during the often-outrageous questioning by the anti-Rockefeller left and right was "amazing."

Many conservative Republican leaders agreed. Although fearful of a Rockefeller presidential bid in 1976 should Mr. Ford change his mind about running, they conceded he emerged from the confirmation ordeal strengthened, not weakened as so many Democrats had hoped.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., also said that Safeway's profits rose from 13.4 per cent of equity for all of 1973 to 14.5 per cent in the first quarter of this year to 17.2 per cent in the second and 19.6 per cent in the third.

Historically, the staff memo said, such rates "have not been inadequately low" and profit for the food industry, supermarkets included, have followed the trends of all industries.

sociation's bylaws.

One problem, however, is that some builders just can't let go of their creation. Some are slow to relinquish control, others retain common facilities and lease them to the association, more tie up the association in long-term contracts.

While the institute, formed with the aid of builders, lenders and owners, hasn't yet adopted a position on when the turnover of control should be completed, James Dowden, its executive vice president, believes it soon might.

In the simplest situations, he believes builders "should be turning over control when their project is 50 per cent sold, and be out by 75-80 per cent." The institute, he said, might consider adopting such a policy.

Dowden, 31, hopes to develop the Washington-based institute swiftly as "an independent, nonprofit, research and educational organization." The need, he believes, is great and growing.

In 1962, he notes, there were about-545 community associations. Now, he estimates, there are "something in excess of 20,000." At least five million homeowners and eight million to 10 million people are involved, along with property valued at $2 billion.

And Dowden refers to a government estimate that 50 per cent of Americans will live in condominiums by 1980.

The American submarine Nautilus under Cmdr. William Anderson on Aug. 3, 1958, became the first ship to cross the North Pole under the Arctic ice.

N.C. Senate Electronic Voting System Installed

RALEIGH (AP)—The way for the North Carolina State Senate to vote electronically was cleared Tuesday when workmen completed installation of the electric voting equipment.

The new equipment will clear the way for more open government, some observers said, because big display boards will make it easier for the public to know how each senator votes. The House has not yet authorized the installation of electronic voting equipment.

The new system is supposed to speed up voting and make it more accurate as well as making it easier to tell how each senator voted.

In the past, about one out of every 10 Senate votes was taken by the slow process of calling each senator's name in turn. Other votes were taken by the senators shouting "aye" or "no" in unison or by standing up while heads were counted. No offical record was kept of these votes.

Under the new system, each of the 50 senators will have a green "aye" button and red "no" button on his desk in the Senate chamber. When a vote is called, he or she will simply press the appropriate button.

After the voting is completed, the display boards will show the results and how each senator voted. None of the votes will be shown until all the senators present have voted.

The Senate still has several procedural rules involving the system to decide, including how long to allow for voting and long to leave the display of a vote up.

But, most important, it has to decide exactly when it will use the system.

The assumption is the electronic voting will replace all of the slow roll call votes. The question is how many of the other votes will be done electronically.

The main proponents of the new system were Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt and Sen. Thomas Strickland, D-Wayne. Both argued that it would provide a better record of how the Senate votes.

After the votes are displayed, for example, the system will print out a sheet showing how each senator voted. The sheets will be available to news media representatives.

Three Accidents In Greenville Tuesday

An estimated $850 property damage resulted yesterday from a series of traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 8:20 a.m. collision on Hooker Road .2 mile south of the Fairlane Road intersection and involved cars driven by Mark Horton Flanagan of Route 8, Greenville and Earl Wayne Wilson of Route 1, Grimesland.

Damage to the cars was set at $175 each by officers who charged Flanagan with failing to give a turn signal and charged Wilson with failing to give an audible signal.

No charges were placed following investigation of a 3:37 p.m. mishap on U. S. 264, 100 feet West of the Charles Street intersection.

Cars operated by June Gale Atkins of 409A Eastbrook and Jensina Steinbeck of 2503 East Fifth St. were involved in the mishap, which caused an estimated $200 damage to the Atkins car and $100 damage to the Steinbeck vehicle.

An estimated $100 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 10:02 a.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Meade Streets.

Investigators identified the drivers of the cars as Christopher James Porter of Route 2, Washington and Phillip Hurst Hewett of New Bern.

No charges were made.

Exploring For Natural Gas Said Disouraged By 'Ridiculous' Prices

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The nation's natural gas shortage will not ease until prices increase, a director of the American Petroleum Institute has said.

But a Tennessee congressman says he will co-sponsor legislation to prevent the Ford administration from decontrolling oil and natural gas prices.

Robert E. Thomas, president of MAPCO, Inc., a Tulsa, Okla., natural gas firm, said government regulations on interstate gas prices are discouraging exploration needed to bolster fading supplies.

Rep. Richard Fulton, a Nashville Democrat, said, however, decontrolling natural gas would cost the consumer about $55 billion during the first five years.

"I'm not taking our money and looking for gas that we might have to sell at interstate prices," Thomas said Tuesday after meeting with a group of Nashville securities analysts.

Consumers are paying a "ridiculously low" price for a "Cadillac type fuel," Thomas said.

Thomas said the price of natural gas should be higher than oil, but gas prices average about 30 per cent less than the $1.75 per million BTUs oil producers receive.

"The at-well price of gas should be at least 25-50 cents higher than oil because it is a Cadillac-type fuel," he declared.

Thomas pointed out that there is a relatively plentiful supply of gas in intrastate lines which are not regulated by the Federal Power Commission.

But gas sent through interstate lines is in short supply, he added.

Portions of East and Middle Tennessee have been hit by natural gas shortages in recent weeks. One supplier has reduced supplies by about 50 per cent, forcing several large industries to shut down or cut back production.

"The government just can't do things efficiently," Thomas said. "Maybe there's something better than private enterprise, but to my way of thinking, nobody in the world has devised it yet."

Fulton said, however, the ceilings on both oil and natural gas should be retained.

The Ford administration has called for deregulation of natural gas and removal of the ceiling on domestic oil from wells completed before price controls were imposed.

"Old" oil is sold at $5.25 per barrel while newly discovered oil is selling for more than $10.

Fulton said decontrolling the price would result in a sharp jump in consumer prices, and he said it would not encourage development of new supplies as the petroleum industry claims.

Files Arguments For Ending Death Penalty In U.S.

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—Lawyers for Jesse T. Fowler have filed arguments with the U.S. Supreme Court they hope will prompt the court to outlaw the death penalty.

Fowler, a 26-year-old Raleigh black, was sentenced to die last year for the slaying of an acquaintance after a fight that started in a dice game.

The brief, nearly 300 pages long, was filed with the U.S. Supreme Court last week. One of Fowler's attorneys, Charles Becton of Chapel Hill, made a copy available Tuesday. The arguments against the death penalty were compiled by Becton, lawyers for the Legal Defense Fund, Inc., in New York, and Stanford University law professor Anthony Amsterdam.

They say, in essence, that the death penalty as imposed in north Carolina and 29 other states, violates the eighth and 14th amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

They said that despite the mandatory form of the death penalty in North Carolina, "the procedure for processing capital cases involves a series of uncontrolled discretionary judgments that operate to spare the lives of some defendants while others in similar circumstances are sentenced to die."

The brief also contended that the sentence "violates the eighth amendment because it is excessive and affronts the principle of human worth embodied in the amendment's prohibition of cruel and unusual punishment."

No one has been executed in the United States since 1967 or in North Carolina since 1961. The Supreme Court decision in the Fowler case could result in an end to the death penalty or a new wave of executions.

In 1972, the Supreme Court ruled that all of those under a death sentence at that time should be resentenced to life imprisonment. The court said that the death penalty, as administered then, was imposed capriciously.

The reason for this was that a jury could find a defendant guilty of a capital crime and then spare his life with a recommendation of mercy.

The North Carolina Supreme Court, in its 1973 State vs. Waddell decision, interpreted the high court's ruling to mean that only jury clemency was unconstitutional. It said the rest of the state's death penalty statute was valid.

That meant that death was the only possible sentence for first degree murder, rape, first degree burglary and arson.

Fowler was the seventh of 52 persons sentenced to die under the Waddell ruling. Last April the General Assembly changed the law to make death the mandatory penalty for first degree murder and aggravated rape. Seventeen people have been sentenced to death under that law.

Office Adds 2 New Personnel

Two new personnel, both replacements for outgoing employees, have been added to the staff of the local Employment Security Commission office headed by Jim Hannan.

Darrell Johnson, a native of Lumberton, is an Interviewer II and a Job Placement Supervisor. He replaces Miss Judy Long, who has accepted a position with the Employment Security Commission office in Raleigh.

A graduate of Pembroke State University with a major in business administration, Johnson is a bachelor and comes to the Greenville office from Charlotte. Prior to going with the Employment Security Commission in 1972, he spent two years in the U. S. Army (1970-72).

The second new employee, Mrs. Mary B. Cox is a native of the Wheat Swamp Section of Lenoir County. She will be working as a Stenographer II and also as a key tape operator.

A 1970 graduate of Lenoir Community College, Mrs. Cox has an Associate and Applied Science Degree in Reporting Stenographer. Before coming to Greenville, she worked for three and one half years as County Extension Secretary for the Lenoir County Extension Service

Hannan noted that the work load of the local Employment Security Commission continues to accelerate. "It's now about 300 per cent over what it was at this time last year," he said.

The employment office will be open for the holidays with the exception of December 24, 25 and 26, and New Year's day, January 1.

Johann Sebastian Bach came from a family in which 53 members are known to have been musicians.

PICASSO SHOWING—Marina Picasso, center, displays one of the vases she designed and which are being shown at a Paris art gallery. Marina says she hopes her work would not be compared with that of her grandfather, Pablo Piscasso. At left is Marie-Therese Walther, mother of one of Picasso's acknowledged children, and at right is Marina's mother, Emilieene. The 24-inch high vases designed by Marina are for sale at $900 each. NEW YORK (AP) — After a brief burst at the opening today, the stock market pulled back a bit but remained ahead in brisk trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 5.95 at 603.49 at 11:30 a.m., carrying through on Tuesday's late-session rally which took the Dow over 10 points higher. In early trading today, the index was up over 8 points.

"You can't put your finger on any one thing behind the rise," said Ralph Acampora of Harris, Upham & Co.

Acampora says the market's ability to withstand a lot of bad news recently has helped set the stage for what he believes is the traditional yearend rally.

Other brokers cited lower commodity prices and indications the Federal Reserve was pumping money into the monetary system as factors in the rise.

On the New York Stock Exchange, the tape ran up to three minutes late in early trading. At 11 a.m. gainers held a commanding 763 to 297 lead over declines among the 1,499 issues traded.

In the news the Commerce Department reported the nation posted it second-worst three-month balance of payments deficit in the third quarter.

The Big Board's most-active stocks included Hospital Corp. of America, up ⅛ at 7¾; Fannie Mae, ahead ⅜ at 18; and Data General, up ¼ at 13¼. A 190,000-share block of Hospital Corp. traded at 7, off ⅝, while a 56,700-share block of Data General moved at 13, unchanged.

U.S. Steel, which was criticized by President Ford Tuesday for its latest price increase, rose ⅞ to 38⅛. The company said today its price hike was "fully justified."

Groups showing strength included drugs, retailing, farm implements, metals, chemicals, coals, oils, and oil service. Among the glamors, Digital Equipment rose 1⅛ to 57, Xerox gained ⅞ to 52⅞, and Burroughs rose 1¼ to 77¼. IBM advanced ⅜ to 172, and Bauch & Lomb fell 1¾ to 21.

Getty Oil, which spurted ⅞ Tuesday, rose 3 more today to 142. The company is drilling an Alabama well.

On the American Stock Exchange, the 1111 a.m. market-value index was up .40 at 60.32. The most-active issue was Champion Homes Builders, up ¼ at 2¼, a 272,000-share block traded at 2⅛, up ⅛.

The NYSE broad-based index of all its listed common stocks was up .34 at 35.92.

ESC Office Holidays Set

The Employment Security Commission office here will observe Christmas holidays December 23-25 but will stay open Monday and Friday of that week to process unemployment insurance claims.

An announcement from the Governor's office recently stated that all State agencies not providing essential service would close down the entire Christmas week to conserve energy with State workers taking annual leave for the extra holidays.

But the Employment Security Commission was given permission to keep its statewide offices open because of high unemployment rates.

Local Manager James Hannan explains that persons filing claims for unemployment insurance are assigned a specific day of the week to file. If that day falls on a holiday, they have to wait one week before they can file again, thus delaying their payments and doubling the claimsload.

"By staying open," he reports, "we can process those payments which are so vitally needed by the unemployed, and also lessen the claimsload during the following week."

Currently, the Greenville employment office is processing about 1,100 claims each week.

Eligible jobless workers can file claims for unemployment insurance benefits ranging from $15 to $90 a week.

Grifton Man Is Charged With Break-In

Pitt County deputies and Ayden Police officers arrested a Grifton man Monday and charged him with the break-in and larceny of a television set from a Rt. 3, Ayden home.

Melvin Earl Chapman, 27, of Box 802, Grifton, was arrested around 6:30 p.m., according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, and charged with breaking into the home of Clarence Burroughs earlier Monday and taking a television set.

Sheriff Tyson, who noted that the incident was reported at 4 p.m. Monday, said that entrance to the house was gained by forcing open the front door.

Chapman, who was placed under $500 bond, is scheduled for a hearing in Ayden District Court on Jan. 2.

Arresting officers recovered a television set, it was noted.

Day Of Two Bank Thefts

By The Associated Press

Three men robbed a North Carolina National Bank branch in Henderson and two men held up a Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. branch in Laurinburg Tuesday, pushing to 84 the number of bank robberies in North Carolina this year.

Two South Carolina men were arrested and charged in the Laurinburg holdup shortly after the bank was robbed. Police identified them as Albert Welford White Jr., 31, and James Earl Edwards, 26, both of Hartsville.

Laurinburg police said a squad car arrived at the bank after an alarm was given and a car was spotted driving into an apartment complex, where the two Hartsville men were arrested.

Meanwhile, a third man has been arrested in a Monday holdup at a savings and loan office in Harrisburg, near Charlotte. Two other men were arrested earlier.

Police said Willie James Giles Sr., 49, was taken into custody at his Charlotte home.

Giles' son, Dolphus Giles, 29, and Eddie Tate were arrested Monday on a bank robbery charge after a high speed chase and shootout with a highway patrolman.

Armed Robbery At Kwik Pik

Pitt County deputies and Greenville police are investigating an early morning armed robbery today at the Kwik-Pik Market on U.S. 264 East near the city limits.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the store's night clerk told officers a man armed with a pistol and wearing a ski mask over his face entered the business around 12:50 a.m. and demanded the money from the cash register and safe.

The clerk, Sheriff Tyson said, reported that she put approximately $200 from the cash register in a paper bag and the robber fled with the money on foot.

The sheriff said that the night clerk was not injured in the robbery.

Caddo Lake, near Shreveport, covers 32,700 acres and is located mostly in Louisiana, according to the Louisiana Tourist Commission.

Concerned Over Livestock Cuts

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Earl Butz, secretary of agriculture, says he is concerned because some farmers are earning enough money from grain production and are dropping livestock raising.

In an interview with the Des Moines Register, Butz said he was not happy with farmers selling their cattle to feedlots rather than raising them on the farm.

"I want to keep this business in farmer hands," he said.

Butz said grain raisers are earning enough to take vacations during the winter months at plush tropical resorts.

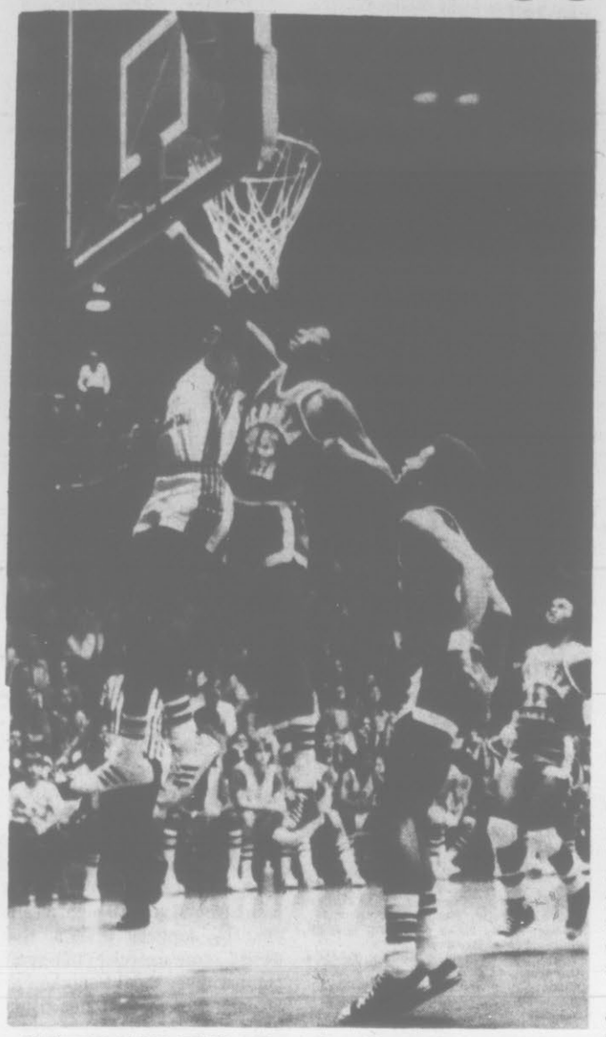
Cold Bucs Ice Win Over Georgia State



GETER FOR TWO—East Carolina's Robert Geter goes up for a pair of points despite the efforts of Georgia State's Robert Pierson (45), as an unidentified Panther looks on at right. Geter hit 20 points to lead the icey Pirates to an 88-79 victory over Georgia State, giving the Pirates a 3-3 record on the year. (Reflector Photo by Craig Faulkner)

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Coach Dave Patton said afterwards that his East Carolina University Pirates didn't do anything right except win . . . as they took an 88-79 victory over Georgia State last night.

The Bucs shot only 34.1 per cent in the first half of the game, and still held a 39-37 lead at the half, and were behind only once, by one point.

For if the Pirates were having their troubles, Georgia State had even more. They turned the ball over 12 more times in the game, committed 13 more fouls, and in those two departments, the fate of the game was set.

The Bucs made three less field goals than did the Panthers, 33 of 71, as compared to 36 of 80 in the game. But at the line, the Pirates made good on 22 of 31, while Georgia State hit just seven of 13.

Not that the Pirates didn't have a chance to shoot better. The number of shots they missed from five feet and less was high.

For a while, after it began, it looked like it would be a 2-2 tie at the end of the first half. Both teams scored in the first minute of play. Then, the Pirates went into a nearly five minute icey streak, while Georgia State couldn't hit for over seven minutes.

It was truly a comedy of errors as the play was sloppy throughout the game.

East Carolina had several chances to blow the game wide open during the second half, when they rolled out to a 12-point lead in the first eight minutes of the period. But Georgia State wouldn't let them get away—and they wouldn't let themselves get away either.

East Carolina got the opening basket, as Robert Geter hit, but the Panthers tied it up on an Alley Oop type shot by Robert Pierson.

Then, the two teams spent the next five minutes running up and down the court, missing shots, throwing the ball away, and then stealing it back. Easy shots were missed by both teams—each of whom had ample opportunity to blow the game wide open.

Reggie Lee finally broke the ice for the Pirates with 14:53 showing on the clock as he hit off a rebound. Wade Henkel tossed in another for the Bucs, and Geter hit a jumper with 12:38 left for an 8-2 lead.

Georgia State finally found the range with 12:04 left as Eddie Young hit a baseline jumper. James Atkinson followed with another jumper to cut it to two.

The Panthers finally tied it up on Atkinson's drive at 10:30 at 10-10, but he fouled Gregg Ashorn on the play, and he put in two free throws to put the Bucs back up. Georgia State tied it again at 12-12, then took the lead on a three-point play by Atkinson with nine minutes left, 15-14.

The Pirates got the lead back after a free throw by Lee, and a tap-in by Geter with 8:38 left, put the Bucs back up, 17-15.

They moved back out by six on baskets by Ashorn and Geter, but Georgia came back to tie it up again at 29-29 and then again at 33-33.

Henkel hit a jumper with 1:18 left to return the Pirates to the lead, and they never lost it again. Both teams hit four points in the remaining minute of play, giving the Bucs a 39-37 lead at intermission.

Ashorn hit a jumper in the first minute of play and Owens hit another in the second minute to run the lead back out to six. Georgia State trimmed it back to three, but the Bucs again pulled out by six, as Tom Marsh made a free throw and Ashorn hit a jumper. Lee hit a jumper with 13:49 left for an eight point spread, 52-44, and 40 seconds later, Larry Hunt made a shot to run the lead out to 10, 56-46.

It climbed to 12 at 60-48 when Ken Edmonds hit, and hung there for a few minutes before Georgia State put on another rally behind baskets by Charles Powers and Atkinson to cut it to 64-58 with 8:03 left.

But the Bucs pulled back out again by 12, 72-60, but still couldn't blow it open. They hung on, however, finally taking the 88-79 victory.

When it was all over, East Carolina had won on free throws and turnovers. The Bucs threw it away only 21 times, while Georgia State had 33 throwaways.

And probably one fact that was lost in the whole game was despite how poorly the Pirates had looked, they had scored 86 points in 35 minutes.

Geter led the Pirate scoring with 20 points, while Ashorn hit 18. Henkel pushed through 10. Hunt led the Pirate rebounding with 13, while Geter added 12, but the Bucs were outrebounded overall, 55-51.

For the Panthers, Eddie Young finished with 23, Henry Myrick had 16, Atkinson had 13 and Powers and Pierson each had 10.

Pierson was their leading rebounder with 12.

The victory did raise the Pirate record to 3-3 for the season, and was their third straight victory, all at home.

The Bucs will close out their pre-holiday schedule on Saturday, playing host to Mercer, another strong "no-name" team, with tipoff set for 8 p.m.

Conley Keeps Streak Alive

WHEAT SWAMP — D. H. Conley's Vikings remained unbeaten in the Eastern Carolina Conference with a 56-46 victory over North Lenoir last night.

The North Lenoir junior varsity won its game, however, 61-34, and the Lady Hawks took the Valkyries, 46-17.

In the girls' game, North Lenoir zipped out to a 12-4 lead in the first period of the game. They continued to romp away from Conley, dumping in 13 more points in the second period. The Valkyries could add only two, and trailed, 25-6, at the end of the half.

Things got little better for Conley in the third quarter as they were outhit, 12-7, and North Lenoir polished them off with a 9-4 margin in the final quarter of the game.

Beverly Faison led the North Lenoir scoring with 19 points, while Vickie Vail added 13.

In the boy's contest, North Lenoir eased out into a 12-10 lead over the Vikings after one period of play. But the Vikes came roaring back with a 14-4 margin in the second period. That boosted them into a 24-16 halftime advantage.

Conley continued to pull away in the third period, outshooting the Hawks, 16-11. That gave them a 40-27 cushion as the final period opened. North Lenoir managed to outhit them, 19-16, in the frame, but it wasn't enough.

Melvin Williams led the Conley effort with 18 points and 13 rebounds. Gerry Mobley added 15 points, while Charlie Keys had 13 points. Clennel Streeter had 10 assists in the game.

North Lenoir was led by Joseph Pearcill with 13 and Clarence Wiggins with 10.

The Vikings will be home to Southern Nash on Thursday.

Fuller To Leave ECU

Head football coach Pat Dye has announced the resignation of offensive line coach Jim Fuller. Fuller's resignation is effective January 1, 1975.

Fuller is returning to Jacksonville State University in Jacksonville, Alabama, to become the offensive coordinator. A year ago, Fuller left Jacksonville to join the East Carolina staff, and was at that time the line coach in Jacksonville.

On leaving, Fuller said, "I wouldn't do it if I didn't think it was good for me. It gives me a chance to accept more responsibility and make decisions I can't as offensive line coach only. I came to East Carolina because of Pat Dye. He's like a father to me and I just regret having to leave him."

Coach Dye said, "Jim has done an excellent job here. We are fortunate to have had him, and the fact our team finished first in rushing offense this year in the Southern Conference speaks highly of Coach Fuller's ability."

A search is currently underway for a replacement for Fuller.

New Pact For Perry

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (AP) — Pitcher Gaylord Perry was expected to sign a new two-year contract with the Cleveland Indians today.

The former Cy Young award winner, who chalked up a 21-17 record this year, announced his intentions at his home Tuesday.

Terms of the new pact were not disclosed but Perry was reminded by a reporter that he had said in the past he would not sign unless he got $1 more than Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson.

Perry responded, "This is a contract I can live with."

Gaylord, who won 15 straight games in the 1974 season, and his brother, Jim, were named co-men of the year with the Indians this season. Jim had a record of 17-12.

Both have won Cy Young Awards as the best pitcher in the American league.

Baby Pirates In Second Win

East Carolina University's junior varsity recorded its second straight victory last night, taking a 94-76 win over Southeastern Community College.

The Pirates, trailing much of the first half, came back to take the lead with 6:40 left to play and they never trailed again.

During the early minutes of the game, the Baby Bucs had pushed out to a three point lead, 18-15, but they lost it to Southeastern as they came back to take the lead, their third, at 18-18, and move out by as much as four points. They held it for the lead time at 30-28, but the Bucs tied it there on a shot by Clay Windley, then took the lead on a steal by Billy Furey for a 32-30 lead.

After that, the Bucs worked up a 50-41 lead by the end of the half.

In the second frame, the Pirates never led by less than seven points, and by that only in the early minutes. They moved out by 11 at 56-46, then boosted it on to 20 on a three-point play by Carl Cutler at 72-52. From there they coasted on in for the victory.

The win left the Baby Bucs with a 2-1 record.

Erwin Durden led the Baby Bucs with 22 points, while Windley and Ken Kellstrom each had 20.

Joseph Chatman led Southeastern with 27, while Lester Bromell had 18 and Lee Woodard had 12. Marcus Clark added 10.

Jaguars Nip Ayden-Grifton

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's Danny Nobles sank a field goal with two seconds left on the clock to give the Jaguars a 55-53 win over the Ayden-Grifton Chargers, last night.

In the two earlier games, the Farmville Baby Jaguars beat A-G's jayvees, 61-49, the Farmville Central girls crushed the Lady Chargers, 50-32.

The Lady Jaguars got off to a good start taking an 11-6 lead after the first period. They took the second period with a score of 16-6 for a 27-12 halftime advantage.

The Farmville Central girls held their edge in the third period, 12-10 and added a point to the gap, 11-10, in the last period.

Julia Moye led the Lady Jaguars with 21 and Kathy Suggs had 12 points. Tena Smith led the Lady Chargers with 14.

The boys' game was a lot closer. A-G struggled to a four-point, 12-8 first quarter led but the Jaguars fought back to tie it up at halftime, 27-27.

Farmville Central inched in front with a 15-12 third period, 42-39. The Chargers ralleid in the last period but with 13 seconds left and the score tied, 53-53, A-G's Willie Forbers missed a shot that would have given the Chargers the lead. Farmville Central got the rebound and went downcourt getting the basket by Nobles.

Willie Williams led the Chargers with 16, Forber had 13 and Twendie Simpson had 12. Mike Corbett had 15 for the Jaguars.

Brewington's Shot Wins For Rampants

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Mike Brewington dropped in a lay-up with seven seconds to play giving the Rose High Rampants a shakey 59-58 victory over the New Bern Bears last night.

For the Rampants, it was an off-and-on type of game the whole way. They led only once in the first half and that was on the last point of the second period, a free throw by Tyrone Taft. The Rampants took a 27-26 lead on their first bucket of the third period and promptly lost it. They regained a one-point advantage at 45-44 but again New Bern slipped in front.

The lead changed hands five times in the last minute but the Rampants got the ball to Brewington on a feed under the basket and Mike beat his man for the score.

The Bears, however, had seemed to win it on a basket by Starlin Beatty with three seconds left but the bucket did not count as Beatty had walked before he shot.

New Bern won the first game of the night as the Bear Cubs dumped the Rampant J.V.'s 64-46.

The Rampants put themselves in a hole at the outset making bad passes and not being able to get their shots to drop. In the first half, they shot only 16 percent as compared to 30 percent for the Bears. Both teams' shooting picked up in the second half with the Rampants finishing the game with a percentage of 29 while the Bears hit a good 46 percent.

New Bern jumped out to an 8-0 lead before the Rampants scratched. Robert Spivey opened the Bear scoring with a shot from the corner and Robert McClellan added a pair of field goals. Ronald Scott made it 8-0 halfway through the opening frame.

Brewington finally put the Rampants on the boards with a pair of free shots but they were a third of the six points the Rampants scored in the first quarter. New Bern added seven points for a 15-6 lead at the end of the period.

Brewington sank two free shots with 5:57 left in the half to start a Rampant rally that pulled Rose within two. Ronnie Barrett added two free throws and Macon Moye and Taft sank field goals to cut the lead to 18-16 with 3:11 left. The Bears put through a three-point play but the Rampant rally continued on two charity shots by Linberg Morris and one by Taft and a fast break lay-up by Taft tied the score, 21-21, with a minute to go.

Daryl Barnes hit from 25 feet to put New Bern back up by two but Brewington's follow-up shot retied the score. William Boone got a point for the Bears, 24-23. His missed second shot let Rose take the lead 25-24, on Taft's free shots.

The lead changed hands at the beginning of the third quarter with New Bern finally taking control at 28-27 with just under seven minutes on the clock. Brewington scored on a drive cutting the lead to one to get the Rampants as close as they were to come for the next few minutes.

New Bern reeled off four field goals to sneak out by 38-29 but then the Rampants got hot dumping in three from the floor and a pair of charity shots. The Bears stayed either one or three points ahead for the rest of the period and took a 44-41 lead into the final frame.

Barret sole the ball on the tip-off in the fourth quarter and scored an easy lay-up and Brewington hit from underneath to lift the Rampants in front, 45-44. This time Rose hung on to it, staying up mostly by one point. Their biggest lead was three, 49-46.

Boone's basket from the stripe put the Bears back on top, 54-53, only to have the Rampants' Donnie Shields slip through two free throws as Rose went back in front. Boone hit two jumpers around a tap-in by Shields to give New Bern a 58-57 advantage with :21 left.

Rose made a good effort to pull the Bears away from the basket and it enabled Brewington to get under the boards for the winning basket.

Beatty led the Bears with 17, Scott had 14 and McClellan had 11. Brewington led the Rampants with 16, Taft had 13 and Barrett 12.

New Bern had a tough first period with the Rampant J.V.'s inching out to an 11-10 lead. New Bern warmed up in the second period getting 22 points while the Rampants struggled to match their first quarter output of ten.

New bern again held the Rampant Cubs to ten points as they pumped in 17 third quarter points. The Rampants took the final frame, 16-14, but they were already defeated.

Jackie Payton led the Rampants with 13 and Derek Brewington had 10. Bobby Hill and Earl George both scored 10 for New Bern.

Williamston Seeking New Basketball View

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

WILLIAMSTON—Last year, Williamston High School managed but one victory on the basketball court, while they came out on the short end of the score 19 times.

Things are already improving for the Tigers, however, as they recorded three wins in their first six starts, and new Coach John Hardison feels that they could have done even better.

Hardison, a veteran of three years coaching the junior varsity, was elevated to the varsity position this year, so he is well-acquainted with his players. He's made some changes too. While several starters from last year's team are back, he is only starting one of them this time out.

"I think we've gotten off to a good start," Hardison said. "We were doing real well until we went over to play Roanoke Rapids. We didn't play like we are capable of playing against them, but we really did a good job against Bertie, which we upset."

So there definitely will be some improvements in the Tigers, although Hardison isn't predicting a Northeastern Conference title.

The lone man back whom Hardison is starting is 6-0 swingman JoJo Purvis, who was the team's leading scorer, 13.4, through the first five games. The other starting positions currently belong to 6-2 center Barry Wallace, guards John Mason and Butch Davis, both 5-8, and 5-11 forward George Brown.

"We just don't have any height at all," Hardison moaned. "Wallace is our tallest player, and we're probably the shortest team around. We're probably going to have trouble rebounding against most of the bigger teams, but through our first five games, we've held our own and been about even with them."

Because of the height problems, Hardison feels that one of his team's weaknesses is the inside scoring, although Wallace is the only other starter in double figures with a 10.6 average. Davis is the third leading scorer with a 9.6 mark.

"We've also got somewhat of a defeatist attitude that has come from the last couple of seasons," he said. "We need to overcome that, and I think we are—slowly but surely. We're gaining confidence, and I think we will come around. Beating Bertie helped us a lot. We just have to turn the attitude around."

Looking to his strengths, Hardison feels that the team's quickness and ball controlling ability will help them. "I don't think anybody will be able to press us successfully," he said. "And our shooting has been good except for the Roanoke Rapids game. Our guards are hitting fairly well from the outside, up around 40 to 45 per cent. But it's been hard to get the ball inside when people play us in a zone."

Hardison feels that the Tiger defense has improved over last year, but still has a ways to go. "I think it will be a strong point before the year is over. We can use a man-to-man and we can press because of our quickness."

The coach is also pleased with his depth. "We have four or five others we can play, and we do play them a lot. Really, I'm still looking for a good combination to start." Others who have played a lot so far include Wayne Hodges, James William, Dwayne Bell, Eric Godard and Roy Lilley.

"I think we can be competitive because of our quickness and hustle," Hardison said. "The kids are working hard to improve. It's going to take time, of course, but I believe we can have a winner here."

This year, however, it won't be the Tigers. Hardison looks to Washington to be the league's power, with Tarboro and Ahoskie challenging. For the Tigers, it's a look to the future.

Belhaven Tops Bear Grass

BELHAVEN—Belhaven swept a three game set from the Bear Grass Bears last night taking the J.V. game, 70-57, the girls' game, 58-21, and the varsity boys' 63-42.

In the girls' game, Belhaven took a 12-6 first period lead and padded it to 25-14 in the second quarter. The Lady Bears were held to a free throw as the Belhaven girls put up 16 points. Belhaven added seven points to their lead in the fourth period for the final 58-21 margin.

Rosita Fonville led the winners with 15 and both Rubbie Borden and Bernita Whitfield scored 10.

The Bears were in their game through the first quarter trailing by three, 15-12 going into the second period. But in the second quarter, Belhaven dropped in 22 points to Bear Grass's 10 for a halftime lead of 37-22.

Belhaven continued to pull away in the third period, 12-8, and added two more points to the spread in the fourth, 14-12.

Randy Stokes led the Bears with 11 and Vaughn Topping led Belhaven with 16. Michael Credle had 10 points for Belhaven.

The Bears will host Mattamuskeet, Friday.

Trojans Fall To Chocowinity

OAK CITY — Chocowinity High School swept a three-game series from Chocowinity last night. They won the varsity game, 72-44, took the girls' contest, 49-24, and the junior varsity, 35-28.

In the girls' game, Chocowinity ran out to an 11-6 lead in the opening stanza. They came back with a 13-6 margin in the second quarter, building their lead to 24-12 by halftime.

The Chocowinity scoring slowed in the third period, but they still outhit the Trojanettes, 9-7, for a 33-19 lead. They finished off Oak City, 16-5, in the final period.

R. Thompson led the Chocowinity scoring with 16 points.

The Chocowinity boys also jumped out to an early lead, taking a 17-11 lead after one period of play. They hit 17 again in the second frame, but Oak City managed two more than their first effort, 13, That left the Chocowinity five out, 34-24.

The third period was fatal for the Trojans, however, as they were outhit, 12-4. That left them down, 46-28. They were outhit again, 26-16, going to the wire.

W. McCuller led the Chocowinity scoring with 28 points, while H. Pearce had 14 and H. Windley had 12. For the Trojans, Paul Jones led with 12.

Oak City will play host to Bath on Friday.

Indians Slip By Davidson

By The Associated Press

William and Mary Coach George Balanis, his Indians sitting atop the Southern Conference basketball standings with a 2-0 record, says "they laughed at us for playing Pace and Haverford and Wagner," all of whom they defeated.

But "now we've beaten The Citadel on the road and Davidson at home," Balanis added after the Indians upended Davidson 76-75 in overtime Tuesday night to take over the league lead and hand the Wildcats their second straight conference defeat.

The victory moved William and Mary half a game ahead of Furman's two-time defending champion Paladins and East Carolina's Pirates, both 1-0 in the conference and both winners in Tuesday night action against outside opposition.

Furman pulled even at 2-2 over-all with an 86-65 romp over Florida, and East Carolina won its third in a row—after three opening losses—by turning back Georgia State 88-79.

All conference teams are idle tonight.

The William and Mary triumph was one of streaks. Davidson scored the game's first six points, then the Indians ran off 10 in a row. The last tie—until the end of the game—was at 12-12.

At one stage of the second half the Indians led by 12 points, and the margin still was seven with three minutes left. But Jay Powell, who scored 14 of the Wildcats' last 16 points, pulled Davidson even with jumpers with 38 and six seconds left.

Ronnie Satterthwaite hit two jumpers and Mike Enoch a basket and a free throw to put William and Mary—now 5-2 over-all—up by 70-63 in the extra period, but Satterthwaite fouled out with 2:59 left.

"It would have been so easy for our guys to give up, they're so young. . . And then they lost their leader," said Balanis. "But they didn't quit."

A goal-tending call on Gary Byrd's layup with 13 seconds left gave the Indians enough room to withstand a six-point barrage by Powell, who finished with 22 points.

But the Wildcats' Greg Dunn hit just two of 10 shots for four points and Larry Horowitz was two of 12 for five.

Satterthwaite, a sophomore, led the Indians with a gamehigh 24, and another sophomore, Dennis Vail, had 16 points and 11 rebounds.

Clyde Mayes' hook shot with 14:52 left in the first half sent Furman ahead of Florida, and the Paladins' lead in the second half was never less than 12 points. Mayes scored 25 points and grabbed 19 rebounds and Fessor Leonard had 20 points, 10 rebounds and four blocked shots.

East Carolina led Georgia State all the way, but Pirate Coach said his players "should have had to pay to get in. I have never witnessed a game like that in my life."

Robert Geter had 20 points and 12 rebounds and Greg Ashorn added 18 points for the Pirates in a game filled with fouls, turnovers and missed shots.

Plymouth Nips Tigers, 65-62

PLYMOUTH—Plymouth High School held off Williamston's Tigers last night to take a 65-62 victory in a Northeastern Conference contest.

In the junior varsity preliminary, Plymouth won, 58-45.

Williamston eased out into an 18-13 lead after the first quarter of the varsity game, but couldn't hang onto it. Plymouth came back with a 19-12 advantage in the second frame, pushing into a 32-30 lead at the half.

Williamston managed to stay close the rest of the way, but could never regain the lead. They were outhit, 16-14, by Plymouth in the third period, and trailed 48-44 at the horn. They outscored their hosts, 18-17, in the final period, but it fell short.

Raymond Styons and Albert Lewis led Plymouth with 17 points each, while Roy Pittman added 11. For the Tigers, Barry Wallace had 15, JoJo Purvis had 15 and Eric Godard had 11.

The Tigers will play host to Tarboro on Thursday.

Rams Top Saints By 69-48

SNOW HILL — Greene Central's Rams rolled to a 69-48 victory over the Warriors of Eastern Wayne High School last night. The Eastern Wayne girls, however, spoiled a sweep, taking a 36-29 victory, while the Baby Rams took a 48-40 win in the junior varsity game.

In the girls' contest, Eastern Wayne managed to inch into a 7-5 lead after one period of play. Greene Central came back with an 11-9 advantage in the second frame, knotting the score at 16-16 at halftime.

But in the third period, Eastern Wayne doubled the Ewe output, 8-4, and pushed ahead by 24-20. They finished off the victory parade with a 13-9 final period margin, good enough for the win.

Gwen Scott led Eastern Wayne with 16 points, while Vickie Shingleton led Greene Central with 13.

In the boys' game, Greene Central managed to build up a slim 11-7 lead after the first eight minutes of play. They were unable to shake the Warriors in the second period, hitting only one more point, 14-13, and settled for a 25-20 halftime lead.

But the third period made the night for the Rams. They dumped in 23 points while holding Eastern to just 16. That ran their lead out to 48-36. They finished it up with a runaway 21-12 final quarter to claim the victory.

Albert Barron led the Rams with 16 points, while Tim Butts had 13, Jerry Carraway had 12 and Melvin Rouse had 10. Eastern was paced by Keith Naylor with 24, while Chuck McAdoo added 10.

ACC Teams Play In Tourneys

By The Associated Press

Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams are in eight tournaments over the next three weekends.

The conference, with N.C. State, Maryland and North Carolina in the top 10, has lost only 2 of the 24 games it has played against outsiders this season.

To pave the way for the tournament engagements, Clemson is the only team playing tonight. The teams will be idle Thursday, and then Clemson and Duke start the tournament activity Friday night.

Clemson, 3-1, comes off a 10-day break by playing tonight at Louisville, 3-0, which is in the tough Missouri Valley Conference, and is rated No. 4 nationally. The only previous meeting of the schools was last year, when Louisville won 74-70.

The Clemson Tigers, who opened their season last month by finishing runnerup to Penn in Clemson's IPTAY Tournament, play LaSalle at 7 p.m. Friday in the opening game of the Dayton, Ohio, Tournament. Host Dayton meets Texas Tech in the second game. The losers play in Saturday night's opener.

Duke travels to Columbia, S.C., for the inaugural Carolina Classic, meeting LSU at 9 p.m. Friday. Host South Carolina, ranked 14th nationally, meets Princeton in the 7 p.m. opener. The third place game opens the Saturday program at 7 p.m.

North Carolina, No. 10, will spend Christmas week in Madrid, Spain, seeking to win a four-team international round-robin tournament it captured on a similar holiday excursion three years ago. Pairings haven't been announced, but doubleheaders are scheduled daily.

Wake Forest travels to Portland for the Dec. 25-30 Far West Classic. The Deacons do not play until Dec. 27, when they face Washington State in the opener, set for 10 p.m., EST. Oregon State plays Iowa in the second game.

The tournament starts Dec. 26 with Boston College playing Arizona State and Oregon meeting Creighton. The tourney winds up with games Dec. 28 and 30, with Sunday, the 29th, open. First round losers will play afternoon games the final two days.

Clemson plays its third tournament of the young season, the Dec. 27-28 Pillsbury Classic at Minneapolis. The Tigers meet Auburn in the 8 p.m., EST, opener. Navy Meets Minnesota in the second contest. The losers play the first game Dec. 28.

Maryland, ranked No. 5, opens its Dec. 27-28 Invitational at College Park, Md., with a 7 p.m. game against Georgia Tech. UCLA plays St. Bonaventure at 9 p.m. If the expected happens, Maryland and UCLA will play the title game the 28th.

Virginia is in the Milwaukee Classic, playing Wisconsin in the 10 p.m., EST, game Dec. 27 after Georgia and Marquette open the program. Again, the losers play the first game the next night.

Defending national champion, top-ranked North Carolina State, makes its tourney debut in the Big Four Tournament at Greensboro, N.C., meeting Wake Forest at 7 p.m. Jan. 3. Duke and North Carolina play at 9 p.m. The first round losers open the Jan 4 schedule at 7 p.m.

Who Can Afford Catfish?

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Who wouldn't want Catfish Hunter on his team? A club would be nuts not to want him."

That opinion from one of baseball's general managers is shared by many, but the point is, who can afford him? Jim "Catfish" Hunter may find out today.

Hunter is in a luxurious position — one most men just dream about all their lives. The fine right-handed pitcher has been given the okay to sell his services to the highest bidder, an unprecedented situation in baseball.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn opened the "Catfish" season at 9 a.m., EST, this morning, clearing the way for the 24 major league teams — including Hunter's old Oakland A's — to make a pitch for the pitcher.The commissioner notified the teams Tuesday that they could approach Hunter starting today and could sign him anytime after midnight, EST, Sunday, Dec. 22.

An attorney for Charles O. Finley, Hunter's former boss at Oakland, said that the owner would file suit today in California in an attempt to block the pitcher from signing with another team. But Hunter's lawyers didn't think it would hold up in court.

Chances are, Hunter won't bite right away, but will sit back and digest the bait, which many believe could mount to a million dollars or more.

Since Kuhn announced Tuesday that he had lifted a ban on bidding for the free agent, several baseball teams have announced that they will jump into the pool for Catfish. One of the most passionate interests was expressed by Ewing Kauffman, owner of the Kansas City Royals.

'We will pursue Hunter vigorously," said Kauffman. "We will go as far and as fast as we can. We realize that a lot of clubs will be bidding for Hunter's services. He could make the difference in winning and losing. I would imagine that Hunter wants to go with a contender, and I certainly hope he would consider us in that category."

The speculation is that only a handful of teams can afford the extraordinary pitcher, who has won 106 games in the last five seasons for the A's, including 25 last season when he won the American League's Cy Young Award.

The New York Yankees, New York Mets, Boston Red Sox and Los Angeles Dodgers are among teams that could possibly afford Hunter easier than others. Recognized as among the richest in the game, they would appear to have the inside track to the pitcher with the golden arm.

The Dodgers, already with one of the best pitching staffs in baseball, are the only ones among the four that refuse to comment on the situation. The others, on the other hand, have shown a lively interest.

Although obviously desired by many, Hunter has yet to indicate a team preference. He's even hinted that he would return to the A's for a good offer. "Finley's money is as good as anyone else's," he's been heard to say.

Sports Briefs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers say 5,000 tickets remain unsold for Sunday's National Football League playoff game with the Buffalo Bills.

As a matter of NFL policy, the game will not be televised in the Pittsburgh area unless the remaining seats are sold by 72 hours before game time, or 1 p.m. Thursday.

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — The Atlantic Coast Conference has hired a former Federal Bureau of Investigation Agent as its first director of investigations.

Commissioner Bob Janes announced Tuesday that Harry J. Nickels, 55, who retired on Oct. 11 after more than 34 years with the FBI, will join the conference immediately on a part-time basis.

"The addition of Mr. Nickels to our staff will enable us to provide a service to our schools that has not existed in the past," James said.

The major college rushing record for three years is held by Ed Marinaro of Cornell.

Outrage Voiced By Lauren Bacall

SHE'S ANGRY—Lauren Bacall, pictured while preparing for an appearance on a taped television show, is furious with people who are trying to commercialize her late husband, Humphrey Bogart, with t-shirts, posters, jigsaw puzzles and the like. (AP Wirephoto)

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — The widow Bogart was in a rage, her words ricocheting off the walls of her hotel suite.

"Every s.o.b. and his brother is trying to make a buck from Bogie," Lauren Bacall declared. "They use his face on T-shirts, face masks, posters, jigsaw puzzles, coasters. He was a man who hated commercialization all his life. But he's dead and he can't fight back."

Her tirade had been set off by news that a onetime friend was writing a biography of Humphrey Bogart. Miss Bacall had some choice words for the nature of the "friendship," but she admitted she was powerless to stop the book.

"My lawyer tells me I have no rights in this matter," the 50-year-old actress said. "Nor have I been able to do anything to stop the vulgar use of Bogie to sell products.

"It's atrocious. Everybody uses actors. They use us to promote every charity in the world. And then they tell us we have no rights. We are public figures, so anything they write or say or use about us is okay. You'd think that a man's widow and his children would be able to have some control over how he is exploited after his death. But no."

Among the targets of Miss Bacall's wrath was a Canada Dry commercial which uses the familiar Bogart lisp.

Bacall was back in town to visit old pals like Nunnally Johnson and Katharine Hepburn, to appear on the Dinah Shore and Johnny Carson shows and talk about the new movie, "Murder on the Orient Express." That's the old Agatha Christie whodunit with a supercast including Albert Finney, Sean Connery, Wendy Hiller, Vanessa Redgrave, Richard Widmark, Michael York, John Gielgud, Jacqueline Bisset, etc.

Naturally she was asked if such a high-powered cast struck sparks with each other.

"Are you kidding?" she replied. "Who would be temperamental in that group? Albie? An absolute dream. Sean? A complete dear. Wendy? Perfectly wonderful. The entire picture was a delight from beginning to end.

"Good actors never throw their weight around; they don't have to. It's the poor actors who make waves."

REAL Appeal Is Still Short

REAL Crisis Intervention Center needs 489 more in local contributions to match funds to be provided by the State.

A 57-43 grant from the N.C. Drug Authority must be met in order for the Crisis Intervention Center here to continue operation. "We must have received these contributions by Jan. 2," REAL Director Marge Baney said. She reminded that REAL is a non-profit organization, and therefore, donations to it are tax-deductible.

State Offices To Be Closed

Visitors to state museums and state offices will not be able this year to make the rounds of many places this Christmas season due to a conservation measure.

The N. C. Department of Cultural Resources has announced that as an energy conservation measure all State offices, to include the N.C. Museum of History and the N.C. Museum of Art, will be closed from December 21 through December 29.

Persons desiring information on the open or closed status of other specific places can call Raleigh (area code 919) telephone 829-5722.

Scholar Clement C. Moore Improved Santa's Image

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — It was on a snowy December night 152 years ago that Santa Claus became the jolly figure Americans recognize today—"dressed all in fur from his head to his foot...and a round little belly, like a bowl full of jelly."

On that wind whipped evening a serious scholar named Clement C. Moore sat down at his desk in his snug, candlelit study to compose a verse he had promised to recite to his children on Christmas Eve.

Its title was "A Visit from St. Nicholas."

Moore wrote his poem in New York City in 1822, but he later moved to Newport with his wife and nine children and it will be read there again this year in a ceremony that has become tradition.

Each Christmas season for the past 20 years Newporters have recognized Moore's accomplishment with a reading of the poem. At first it was read to neighborhood children before the fireplace in Moore's old home on Catherine Street.

Now the home has been turned into apartments and this year the reading will take place at the Van Alen Theater on the Saturday before Christmas.

The man who has portrayed Moore for most of the readings is James H. Van Alen, one of Newport's most noted citizens and the founder of the National Lawn Tennis Hall of Fame. Up to a thousand children this year are expected to hear Van Alen read:

"Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house, not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse."

The words, by some unexplained inspiration, came to Moore with great ease.

Today it is difficult to think of Santa Claus except as Moore described him, but the figure originated in Europe hundreds of years ago as a withered old man in white robes astride a horse and carrying a bag full of toys for good children and a birch rod for the nasty ones.

Santa Claus, as Moore envisioned him, is thought to have been based on a beloved Dutch servant employed by the author.

Moore and the servant had recently been out for a sleigh ride during which Yule presents were delivered to friends and relatives.

Moore sat beside the servant as they rode through the night: "the stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth, and the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath ... he was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf."

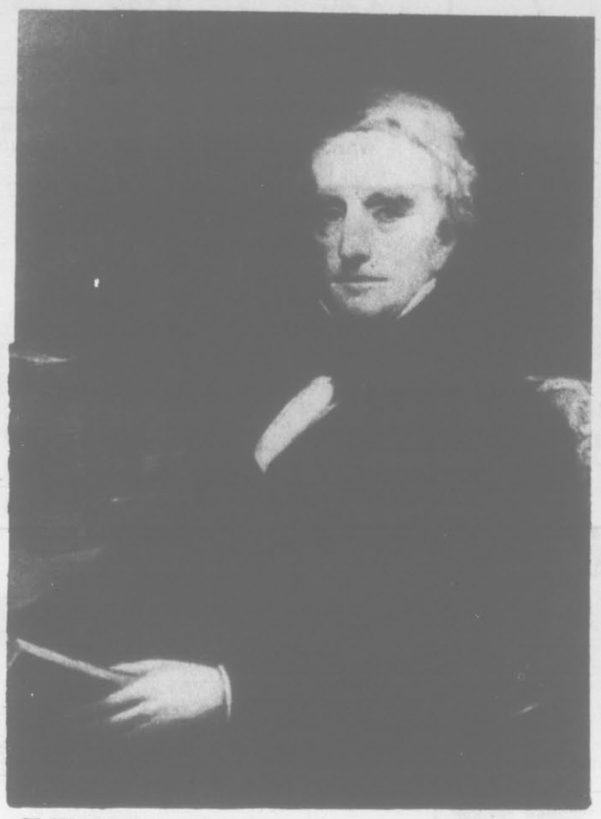
It also is likely that during this evening out, Moore had wished his sleigh could fly through the air so he could get home faster and out of the cold: "when, what to my wondering eyes should appear, But a miniature sleigh, and eight tiny reindeer, More rapid than eagles his coursers they came, And he whistled, and shouted and called them by name."

Moore, a scholar whose field was ancient languages and who wrote books such as "A Compendious Lexicon of the Hebrew Language" and a biography of King Castriot of Albania, never meant his poem to be made public.

But a friend of the family copied it down and had it published in the Troy, N.Y., Sentinel. In fact, Moore often denied he was the author. But his attitude softened when he saw that the poem was becoming a children's favorite.

A magazine article written after Moore's death in 1863 said: "Santa Claus as we know him, and as the world knows him, is almost 100 per cent American. Not until St. Nicholas passed through the crucible of Dr. Clement Clarke Moore's imagination did the patron saint of childhood ever ride a sleigh, or have eight tiny reindeer with bells to convey him over rooftops."

The article was entitled: "Is Santa Claus An American?"



CLEMENT C. MOORE, a serious scholar of 152 years ago, wrote the poem "A Visit From St. Nicholas". (UPI Telephoto)

Former Lineman Today Calls Business Signals On The Board Of Trade

By NICK GREGORY

CHICAGO (UPI) — George Seals listened to quarterbacks call signals for 10 years while playing as a lineman in the National Football League. Today he calls his own plays as a trader on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Seals became the first black to trade on the 126-year-old CBOT, world's largest commodity exchange. He bought a $40,000 membership last February, along with a $10,000 seat on the CBOT's Options Exchange.

"I thought for a while I'd be back with the Kansas City Chiefs for this season, possibly a few more, when I left after last season," said Seals, 32, a 6-foot-3 260-pounder.

"But I changed my mind. I didn't want to get to a point where I'd have to play football to survive—you know, hang around too long, then make a desperation decision. I'm in good shape now and I feel I'm leaving while at the top of my game."

Seals, a one time All-Big Eight lineman from the University of Missouri, admitted the move from the brawny, banging, physical atmosphere of the gridiron to the business world of split-second decision-making didn't come easq.

"There are a lot of expressions that are used in both places, like 'going along,' 'going short,' 'spreading,' 'charting'—but they have different meanings," Seals said. "In this business it means you're usually making a big bet on the direction a commodity will move. If you guess right, you profit. Hit it wrong, you lose."

Seals is what the trade calls a "scalper." "That means I make lots of trades, one right after another. All the action is quick. I must make hundreds of trades daily. The action is unbelievable. I'm hooked. I love this better than football."

The physical shoving around might be over for Seals, but the fatigue from the trading pits is more severe, he said, than it was on the football field.

"It's no accident that trading lasts only four hours and 15 minues," the articulate former athlete said. "The pace is too exhausting to go beyond that. Eight hours daily would kill a guy well before his time."

For Seals each trading day is like the day of a football game. "You got to be 'up' every day. It's like having a kickoff every day, instead of only once a week as it was in the NFL.

"A big difference here is that you've got to generate the enthusiasm on your own. There's no coach prodding you, trying to get you emotionally charged for the pit."

Seals' coaching came from Hank Shatkin, president of a trading company bearing his name.

"Shatkin hung over me like a shadow, getting me started," Seals said. "He guided me through the early days, and stipl counsels me almost daily. Without his help, I'd have a lot more difficulty."

One thing Shatkin taught Seals is that the market often acts inconsistently "so when I get in the pit, the important thing is to be ready to move when the opening bell sounds, just like in football. Because the market does not discriminate. There's no character about it."

But for Seals, who knows what trading means, having been shuttled from the New York Giants to the Washington Redskins to the Chicago Bears and finally the Chiefs, one trade he wouldn't make is the action around the wheat pit for the action of the gridiron.

GEORGE SEALS, who listened to quarterbacks call signals for 10 years while playing as a lineman in the NFL, now calls his own plays as a trader on the Chicago Board of Trade. (UPI Telephoto)

Early Bronx Zoo Times Recalled By Curator

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures

NEW YORK (AP) — "The giant pandas were always the most popular exhibits, simply because they were cute. The rarest thing we ever had was the duckbill platypus and there were lines a city block long waiting to see it — not that there was much to see but the fact that they are egg-laying mammals caught everyone's attention.

"Then there was the little girl who came crying to say that an elephant had taken her purse with 75 cents in it. We refunded her 75 cents and everybody was happy."

William Bridges was reminiscing in an interview about his 31 years with the New York Zoological Park, better known as the Bronx Zoo, where he served as curator of publications from 1935 to 1966.

Both the zoo and zookeeping have changed dramatically since it opened on Nov. 8, 1899, says the 73-year-old Bridges, who has written a book to commemorate the 75th anniversary, "Gathering of Animals."

"The style in the early days was to exhibit as many kinds of animals as you possibly could and put them in barren cages," he explains. "The emphasis was putting the animal on exhibit, and its small but so important requirements weren't given the attention we've learned to give them."

In addition to a better understanding of food and habitat needs, one of the lessons learned is a respect for the psychology of animals, the silver-haired, pipesmoking author points out.

"We know now that you can keep baby gorillas if you give them in earliest infancy the kind of care you give a human baby, playing with them, cuddling them, giving them food by hand. In the early days we lost them very quickly — we had no idea they were little hairy people, really. There are two little gorillas right now in the Great Apes house, and a woman stays in there eight hours a day just to play with them and give them tender loving care."

In writing the history, Bridges worked from extensive files of the New York Zoological Society, forgotten for half a century until he discovered them in dust-covered boxes in the basement of the administration building. The Bronx Zoo, he learned, was ahead of its time in the conservation field.

"We published a summary of the destruction of animals in this country even before the zoo was opened," he says. "Concerned people all over the country sent in reports about what was happening to wildlife."

Bridges believes the whole relationship of people to wild animals has changed drastically. Where sportsmen once went out hunting to bag trophies, now naturalists go out to observe animals in the wild, and the findings have led to better management of animals in zoos.

"For instance," he elaborates, "in the wild the sea lion born on shore makes short excursions in the shallow water with his mother, who carries him out if he gets in over his depth. We didn't know they have to learn how to swim and in the old days we had baby sea lions drown in the pool if their mother's attention was distracted. Now we have shallow steps going down in the water."

Another innovation at the Bronx Zoo is the World of Darkness building, where nocturnal animals' activities have been switched by using red fluorescent light to create artificial night, and flooding the cages at night with white light to simulate daytime.

"These animals normally sleep by day and all the visitor would see of a kinkajou, for instance, was a little furry ball curled up in a corner," Bridges says. "Now he is active when people are around and he's a little furry ball when there's nobody there but the night watchman."

Another important change, Bridges notes, is that nowadays most specimens, with the exception of large animals such as elephants or giraffes, are shipped by air instead of arriving in poor condition after weeks aboard ship.

While some animals are already displayed without cages by the use of moats, the former curator predicts that sooner or later all bars will be done away with.

One thing he thinks will never change, though, is the public feeding the animals.

"In the '40s we encouraged it and actually built in our own shops vending machines to sell bags of food. In more recent years virtually all zoos have tried to discourage this but you can't stop it entirely," he insists.

"You'll never stop an elephant from begging. And I see nothing wrong with it. It's an authentic thrill to have that great trunk come out and take something out of your hand.

"Even if sometimes it's your pocketbook."

'Old North State' Was Written By Top Jurist

By Dr. H. G. JONES
Written for the AP

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — William Gaston is probably best remembered by North Carolinans as the author of the words to "The Old North State." Actually, he was one of the state's most illustrious jurists.

Born in New Bern in 1773, William Gaston was only three years old when the Tories killed his father. Dr. Alexander Gaston, who had come to that town from Ireland to practice medicine. William was brought up by his mother, a Roman Catholic.

At the age of 13 William became the first student to enroll in Georgetown, a new college in Washington, D.C. He remained there two years, but at the age of 16 he entered Princeton College from which he graduated with first honors in 1796.

Returning to New Bern, young Gaston studied law and was soon admitted to the bar. In 1800, at the age of 22, he was elected to the State Senate for one term.

From 1807 to 1809 he represented the borough of New Bern in the House of Representatives, serving as speaker in the middle year. He subsequently served three additional terms in the Senate and five in the House. In 1818 he was chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee and was primarily responsible for drafting the legislation creating the State Supreme Court.

From 1813 to 1817 Gaston served in Congress and made an indelible impression upon men who later were to hold high positions in the national government. He voluntarily returned to North Carolina.

When a vacancy occurred on the Supreme Court in 1833, the position was urged upon Gaston. He accepted only after agonizing consideration, partly because of his religion and partly because of his debts.

By this time Gaston had attracted attention as a congressman, statesman, and attorney. Three universities—Pennsylvania, Columbia, and Harvard—had already conferred upon him honorary decrees.

What made his career so remarkable was that his fellow citizens repeatedly elected him to office despite the state's constitutional restriction of office-holding to those who professed the "Protestant" religion. Gaston became a symbol of contradiction between the letter of the Constitution and the will of the people.

When the convention of 1835 met in Raleigh to consider amendments to the state's original Constitution, William Gaston was there representing New Bern. His moving addresses for religious tolerance, coming from one who had seen his father killed in defense of American liberty, were effective. The convention voted to change the religious qualification for office holding from "Protestant" to "Christian."

4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

The standard safety plays and deceptive stratagems can all be found in the many books on the play of the hand. However, the books cannot always teach when to apply these tactics. On this hand, South learned that the poet was right when he said that "a little learning is a dangerous thing".

It did not take long for North-South to reach a reasonable four heart contract. Once North boosted hearts, South's hand revalued to 20 points, so it was a formality to jump to game.

West led the jack of spades, and many declarers would find no problem with the hand. They would force an entry to dummy in the club suit take the heart finesse. When that succeeded and trumps split 2-2, they would make their contract no matter what developed in the other suits.

However, declarer's trump combination permits a a standard safety play to maximize the chances of holding the losers in the suit to one. It is to cash the ace, then enter dummy and lead toward the queen. Since declarer was a well-read fellow, this was the line he chose. After cashing the ace of hearts, he led a club toward dummy. West grabbed the ace and shifted to a low diamond. Declarer guessed wrong, playing the jack, and ended up losing three tricks in the minor suits in addition to a trump.

Safety plays are a sensible precaution—if you can afford to lose a trick. Declarer erred in taking the safety play before he knew whether he could afford to surrender a trump trick. Best technique is for South to tackle diamonds before he plays trumps. If he takes the right position in diamonds, or if West grabs the ace, then declarer can avail himself of a safety play in trumps, for that would greatly increase his chances for the contract. However, if declarer loses two diamonds in addition to the ace of clubs, he must bring in the trump suit without loss to make his contract. The only hope then is that East holds a doubleton king of hearts, which allows declarer to pick up the whole suit with a finesse.

U.S. Gearing Up For Public Sale Of Gold Bullion

Editor's Note: Americans are being bombarded by advertisements for gold bullion and some economists are predicting U.S. consumers will spend $5 billion on the precious metal in the first few months of 1975. Here, in the first of two articles, is a look at the mechanics of gold buying.

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Retailers, refiners, bankers and brokers are gearing up for what could be a billion-dollar business boom: the first legal sale of gold bullion to Americans in 41 years.

Starting Dec. 31, U.S. citizens will be able to buy, sell and trade gold, not only in the form of jewelry or industrial products, but also as shiny gold bars.

Some economists predict Americans will spend up to $5 billion on gold — now worth between $170 and $180 an ounce — in the first few months of 1975. That would be a little less than a sixth of what consumers will spend on automobiles in all of 1974.

Government planners are more cautious. They estimate that Americans will buy about $900 million worth of gold next year.

There are no federal standards on the purity of gold offered for sale or on just who can sell it. Nor is there any federal agency to regulate gold trading or license sellers.

However, banks already under regulation by the Federal Reserve Board, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC), are bound by certain rules. The three agencies announced recently that savings and loan associations will not be allowed to deal in gold.

The agencies also attempted to discourage commercial banks from dealing in gold. The Federal Reserve Board said gold cannot be used to satisfy its requirements for reserves which banks must keep to back up deposits; it said it would not assay or store gold for member banks; and it announced it would not accept gold as collateral for loans to member banks.

Stock brokerages, which also are planning to sell gold, are under regulation by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Here are some questions and answers about the basic mechanics:

Q. Where can I buy gold?

A. All over the country. Retail stores, banks, stock brokerages and some mail-order houses will be selling gold. Refiners like Engelhard Minerals & Chemical Corp. and Handy and Harman will be selling gold ingots, or bars, through a variety of outlets; coin dealers and jewelry stores also have made plans to market the metal.

Several department stores said earlier they would sell the metal, but most have now dropped out because of problems getting insurance for stocks of gold. In addition, the United States will sell two million ounces of gold from government-held reserves at a public auction Jan. 6. Anyone who wants to buy must submit a bid to the General Services Administration. The minimum purchase will be 400 ounces — about $70,000 worth at current prices.

Q. How much will it cost me?

A. That depends on the price of gold on major European markets and on the size of the gold you buy. The basic price at which gold is to be traded is set in London at what are called "fixings" which are held twice a day — at about 10 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. London time or 5 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. EST. Representatives of the world's four major bullion dealers gather at the office of a fifth, N.M. Rothschild & Sons, and, based on information from their clients about supply and demand, agree on a basic price level.

Most of the U.S. dealers planning to sell gold have said they will link their price to one of the daily London fixings. Then they will add charges for things like transportation, storage, processing, sales taxes and profit. Some sources say this could add as much as 20 per cent to the basic price you pay. The smaller the piece of gold you buy, the higher the per-ounce cost because of expenses involved in breaking down a 400-ounce bar — the standard size for large-scale dealings and the size of the ingots the government is selling.

Reminder: Gold is weighed in troy ounces and one troy ounce equals 1.097 regular ounces.

Q. Will I make money?

A. Not necessarily. Recent gold price rises have misled a lot of people into thinking the metal automatically will go up in value. They assume that gold is always safer than paper money and less vulnerable to inflation. The recent boosts, however, have not always been steady. Since the end of last year, for example, the price has gone from about $110 an ounce up to $170, then down to about $140. In addition, gold does not pay interest or dividends,, and to make a profit you will have to wait for the basic price of gold to increase enough to cover things like storage fees, the commission you paid the dealer, sales taxes and other costs. You also have to pay a tax on any profit you make.

Q. Is there a minimum purchase?

A. No. Gold ingots will be marketed in sizes starting at half an ounce. A spokesman for Engelhard, the nation's largest refiner, said the half-ounce ingot will really be a wafer about an inch long and half an inch wide. The largest size generally marketed in retail stores will be 100 ounces and the bar will be about 5 inches long, 3 inches wide and 1½ inches deep.

Q. How do I know I am really getting gold?

A. You don't, unless you have it assayed. This can cost anywhere from $30 to $100. Your best assurance is to go to a reliable dealer. Beware of anyone not willing to provide proof of an assay of the gold or someone who offers a fantastic bargain. Most of the refiners making gold for sale are stamping the gold with their company's name, the gold's weight, its purity and a registered serial number traceable to an assay on file with the manufacturer. Generally, you should look for a stamp that says something like 999.5. That means the gold is 99.95 per cent pure and is generally equivalent to what is marketed as 24-carat gold for jewelry.

Q. Can I keep my gold in my home?

A. If you want to. But remember the three of burglary. It seems impractical perhaps except for very small amounts. Brokers and banks will store the gold for you for a fee that will vary from a few dollars on up, depending on the amount of gold and the length of time.

Five commodity exchanges in New York and Chicago will trade gold futures — contracts for later delivery. Generally, the minimum contract is for 100 ounces — $17,000 to $18,000 at current prices.

Q. What about selling the gold later?

A. If your gold is stored with a bank, broker or other financial institution, you can simply sell your holding through a telephone call or letter to the dealer.

'Godfather' Making Room For New Crime Chiefs

By KENNETH J. BRADDICK

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The godfather is on his way out of organized crime. So is the "family."

In his place at the top of an organized crime syndicate is someone who could probably pass as head of a legitimate corporation and who uses the same business school management techniques and instant electronic communications to control his global empire of evil.

But, according to United Nations reports on the new criminals, instead of peddling soap or ships, today's version of the mobster deals in drugs, white slavery, prostitution, pornography, counterfeiting, stock fraud and other lucrative illicit business.

"While traditional forms of organized crime seemed to be receding, different kinds of organized crime were emerging," said one report of a U.N. committee looking into crime prevention and control.

"Crime as business has adapted to technological progress and adopted modern management techniques to expand and streamline their activities," it said.

A paper prepared in the name of Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said that in this age of instant communication, rapid change and increasing mobility, the opportunity for criminals who pay no heed to national frontiers "is enormously expanded and its effectiveness greatly increased."

Modern techniques make the traveling criminal of old even harder to catch because he can operate rings by the latest communications, the report said.

"Countries are far behind in adopting the kind of measures which are required to ensure even minimal law enforcement action against the traveling offender," Waldheim's report said.

"Moreover, the widening scope of his operation encompasses different political and legal systems so that sometimes his actions are criminal in one area and not in another or, if criminal in both, then jurisdiction is limited so that the offender can move between the areas of legal liability."

The dealings of the international crook, or transnational criminal as the U.N. calls him, are also linked to corruption which the reports calls "a phenomenon invading the political and economic sectors in many parts of the world."

The criminal study committee said corruption in some countries "permeated the entire social structure, constituting a threat to democracy and public welfare.

"International and transnational criminality generated and reinforced the corruption of politicians and administrators, and this made the task of fighting corruption at the national level more formidable."

Both Waldheim and the committee urged more far-reaching measures to deal with corruption and the boundary-hopping criminal.

Criminal justice systems should be reviewed to extend jurisdiction and improve cooperation, they said. Rather than another international convention, they suggested more studies of the problems and exchanges of information.

East Europe Feels Pinch In New Homes Shortage

By BARRY WATERS

BELGRADE (UPI) — The housing shortage has been a major problem in Eastern Europe since World War II and even today few governments claim they are approaching a solution.

Broken marriages, falling birth rates and conflict between generations all are blamed in part on the cramped, inadequate living conditions.

In Prague you may have to wait up to 15 years for an apartment at current building rates. In Belgrade the frustration of many families has led them to occupy vacant apartments illegally, sometimes taking over whole blocks, to dramatize their plight. In Sofia the government began negotiations to import Arab construction workers, an exceptional step for a Communist country even with a labor shortage.

The problem stems from the urban devastation of World War II which severely depleted housing stock, and the postwar priority given to building up industry rather than constructing homes.

The siutation was made worse by the mass migration of peasants to the towns and cities as much of Eastern Europe moved from the rural to the industrialized age in little more than a decade.

"It is a question of too little, too late," said Milorad Pusic, construction manager of a Belgrade firm. "Our industry simply does not have the capacity to meet the demand."

Yugoslav officials said there is no short-term solution and estimated that Belgrade, with its one million population, is short about 80,000 apartments while in the nation as a whole, with its 20 million population, the shortfall is about 800,000.

Dusan Stojic, 38, a bakery worker who broke into a new and vacant apartment and lived there for 15 months with his wife and two children, said, "There was no other way for me to obtain a flat for my family even though I was breaking the law.

"I have been with the bakery firm for six years and one of the managers told me they would be unable to provide a flat for me in the next 10 years."

Some countries, however, have made significant progress in the housing. The Soviet Union is carrying out an intensive nationwide program which in a decade has reduced the percentage of families lifing communally or sharing an apartment from 50 to 25 per cent.

The prefabricated apartment buildings are sterile in their uniformity and often shoddy in construction but they provide as much housing as quickly and cheaply as possible.

The newspaper Sotsialstiches-kaya Industria estimated that a total of 100 million persons, about 40 per cent of the population, moved to new apartments or improved their housing conditions between 1960 and 1970.

Poland also has boosted its building program, stepping up production of building materials, buying factories for prefabricated housing from the Soviet Union and East Germany and importing some Western technology. The planners aim to install a house factory in each of Poland's 17 administrative areas and say the shortage of flats will be solved by 1982.

At present, however, about one million Poles are waiting for new apartments with the waiting period averaging from three to six years.

As in the rest of Eastern Europe, priority on a waiting list depends on a variety of factors—age, number of dependents, demand in the area for a particular skill.

Although not officially acknowledged, standing in or with the Communist party also can be a factor and many complain that widespread bribery and influence is used to obtain priority on the waiting list.

There are other forms of corruption and profiteering. In Hungary, for example, a room in an apartment can be sublet for about $40 a month, an extortionate sum set against the average monthly income of $100.

The quality of much construction creates a constant demand for repair work, putting householders at the mercy of construction workers who agree to work "privately" at a "special" rate. The problem is notorious in Bulgaria where direct application to a state construction company for repair work can mean a wait of months or even years.

Throughout Eustern Europe, however, the housing shortage is a problem faced by the big cities rather than the medium-sized towns.

In Hungary more than half of those on the national waiting list live in Budapest—80 per cent of them currently without a flat of their own.

Hungarian officials have turned over the complexities of working out what to do, to whom, and when, to a computer.

Women Likelier Than Men To Show Emotions

By ELAINE HOOKER
Associated Press Writer

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — Women are more likely to give away their emotions in facial expressions but men generally keep their emotions "all bottled up," according to a psychologist who has conducted an experiment on the subject.

"I would guess it would be healthier" to express one's emotions, said University of Connecticut Prof. Ross Buck. "But I'm not going to make a value judgment."

The experiment involved 64 students — 32 women and 32 men — who were shown pictures that would evoke strong emotions. They didn't know it, but researchers were studying their facial expressions over closed-circuit television and trying to guess what type of picture the subjects were being shown.

The "emotionally loaded" slides were scenic; sexual; pleasant, such as happy children; unpleasant, such as a patient with severe burns; or unusual, such as a double-exposed photograph.

The researchers found it much easier to tell from the women's facial expression what the picture topic was, Dr. Buck said.

He said men are "internalizers," who have been taught by society not to express emotions.

The result is that the men in the experiment reacted with a faster heart beat or increased activity in the sweat glands much more frequency than the women. These are considered reliable measurements of internalized emotions, he said.

Dr. Buck also said he has found that preschool children react differently to pictures, but not on the basis of sex. Their reactions are strictly a matter of individual personality, he said.

That means that during the process of growing up men are conditioned not to express their feelings, he said. But he doesn't know when this occurs and hopes to discover that within the next two years.

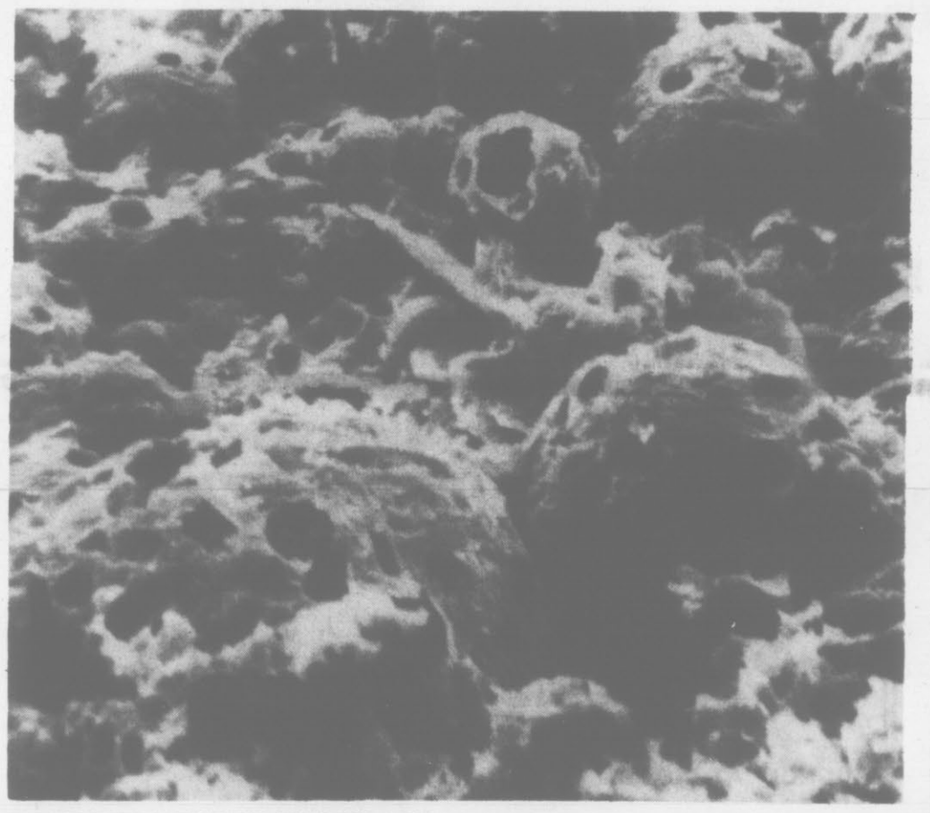
Get Together In Fishing Plan

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Argentina and Poland have agreed to form a joint enterprise for deep-sea fishing.

A government announcement said the joint operation will catch and process 750,000 tons of fish in factories to be installed near the seaport of Puerto Deseado in southern Argentina.

HYPERTENSION

CHICAGO (UPI) — In at least 90 per cent of people with high blood pressure, no underlying disorder can be found, the American Medical Association says. These people are said to have "essential hypertension."



FALLOUT FROM BURNING FUEL OIL—This photo made by an electron microscope shows a colony of cenospheres, which are ingredients of fallout from burning of fuel oil with a high sulfur content. The photo was made by the Los Angeles coroner's office for the county's Air Pollution Control District to demonstrate how bits of pollution can be identified in the battle against smog. New Animation Process Tells Story Of Jesus

By ERIK MOELLMANN
Associated Press Writer

COPENHAGEN (AP) — A pioneering animation technique and an unorthodox financial deal with a Swedish backer have launched a Danish film editor and film cutter into a mammoth project — telling the story of Jesus Christ from birth to resurrection in a series of color cartoons.

The cartoon is primarily meant for the youngest grades in schools all over the Christian world, but will be offered to television stations as well.

It is a three-year, $100,000 project, and it is largely a one-woman operation with Mrs. Ida Schneekloth, 50, filling the multiple role of script writer, director, stage manager, producer, cameraman, film cutter and editor in a modest, rented studio here.

In her version of the life of Jesus Christ all characters including Christ are cardboard figures — tens of thousands of them — animated in a technique that is neither traditional cartoon nor traditional puppet film, but rather a kind of filmed children's toy theater.

The project is Mrs. Schneekloth's own brainchild, born out of a sense that there was an unanswered need for a film telling young children the whole, true-to-the-bible life-story of Jesus — and out of a conviction that it would be next to impossible for anyone but a uniquely gifted director to do it in a real movie.

"No actor who believes in Christ could play him and be objective about it, and a non-believer certainly could not," explains Mrs. Schneekloth, herself a believer.

The project, to be completed by 1976, involves ten films of 10-15 minutes each. The first three installments include: a child is born, the crossroads (passion and crucifixion) and the resurrection.

In Mrs. Schneekloth's technique a film camera is placed in front of a three-dimensional toy theater with one-dimensional characters cut in heavy cardboard.

The filming is in one-frame shots, and the animation effect comes from replacing, between shots, a character with an identical character which is only slightly changed into the next phase of the movement desired.

This means that to film one character going through just one relatively simple movement calls for the use of a succession of more than a dozen cardboard figures. Even if many figures may be used more than once for different scenes Mrs. Schneekloth expects to use tens of thousands of figures.

Mrs. Schneekloth, who worked as a film cutter for Danish and Swedish television stations for 20 years, had to overcome some skepticism about her idea.

But she took it to Czechoslovakia and to Antonin Horak, the father of the Czech puppet film tradition. He considered it workable and offered a few pieces of advice. Now she plans to patent her technique worldwide.

There was even more skepticism about Mrs. Schneekloth's financial ideas, however. Several European television companies, otherwise enthusiastic, declined any financial involvement when they heard her terms, and so did Denmark's ministries of education, churches and culture, she recalls.

Only after several years of search did she find a backer: Haakon Ohlson Ltd., a publishing house in Lund, Sweden, which specializes in educational books, school material and equipment.

They accepted MRS. Schneekloth's highly unusual demand that all revenue be automatically split three ways — one third going into church-directed aid to developing countries, one third into a foundation for the production of religious films and one third into covering production costs of the Jesus cartoon.

Mrs. Schneekloth, who is married to a lawyer, admits these terms, in fact, mean that the film must gross three times the $100,000 production investment before the Swedish backer begins to make a profit on it. The Swedish publishing house plans to produce text books and color slides to go with the cartoons.

Urological Data Bank Helpful

VIENNA (AP) — The electronic data processing unit of the city has added a urological data bank.

This medical documentation center contains more than 15,000 case histories, which were fed into the computers by the Urology Departments of Vienna's hospitals.

The new data bank will help doctors in diagnosing new cases and choosing the most successful form of treatment, thus shortening hospital stays of patients.

Pigskin For Burn Victims

CHICAGO (AP) — Pigskin may soon be as popular in hospitals as it is on the football field. Prairie Farmer magazine reports that a burn treatment center in Arizona is processing fresh pigskins into topical dressings for burn victims. It says interest in pigskin as a biologic dressing was stimulated by its ready availability and similarity to human skin.

To date, some 200,000 square feet of pigskin dressings have been applied to some 40,000 burn victims, with excellent results. The skin, used as a temporary dressing, decreases pain, limits bacterial growth and facilitates movement of joints.

Purse-Snatching And Larceny From Cars Rising

An increase in the number of purse snatchings and the larceny of purses from parked cars recently has prompted Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon to list several measures local women can take to protect their property.

According to Police Department records, during the past month, four purse snatching incidents have been reported. And since December 1, 19 pocket books have been taken from parked cars while one has been stolen from a building.

"Don't be an easy target for a purse snatcher," Cannon said. "Avoid carrying large sums of money," he suggested, "but if you have to carry money, carry it somewhere other than your purse."

Loosely carried hand bags invite purse snatchers. "Hold your bag tightly, and plan your route to avoid short cuts in deserted areas, vacant lots and alleys. Walk only on well lighted streets with plenty of traffic," he emphasized.

"Be alert and be prepared to run if you are followed," he said.

The Chief suggested that if you are attacked, "scream as loud as you can," but said women should not strongly resist an offender. "He may strike back."

The chief noted, too, that when cashing checks, women should look for any suspicious-looking persons that may be watching. "If you feel someone is watching, don't leave the store by yourself."

Cannon said persons should never leave hand bags, or any merchandise, for that matter, in a car whether the car is locked or unlocked. "Purses and packages, in plain sight of passers-by, invite thefts," he said. Packages, if left in cars, should be locked in trunks out of sight of would-be thieves, he said, and "purses should be taken with you, or locked in trunks, also."

He said most hand-bags are taken from unlocked cars, "where the lady left her purse in the vehicle 'for just a minute,' while running into a store or office."

He suggested, too, that office workers and store employees place their hand-bags in secure places, not easily accessable to other persons, preferable in a locked file cabinet or locker, "certainly not under counters or desks easily accessable to would-be thieves."

Cannon noted that in the event of a purse snatching or theft, victims should try to obtain a good description of the offender, "obtain the year and make of car used if the offender flees in a car, along with its license number," and call the Police Department immediately.

The chief urged too, that anyone seeing a possible theft or having any information concerning persons wanted in connection with a purse snatching or other theft, notify the Police Department by calling 752-3141.

Late Hours See More Drinking

NEW YORK (UPI) — One out of every four American drivers on the road between 10 p.m. and 3 a.m. has been drinking, reports the National Enquirer.

Researchers from the University of Michigan recently stopped over 3,600 motorists during the five-hour period and found that one out of four drivers had been drinking and that one out of eight drivers had drunk enough to impair his driving ability.

The word hippopotamus means "river horse," indicating the areas in which the animal lives.

Caracas Chosen For 1977 Meet

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — The XII Inter-American Travel Congress concluded Nov. 27 with the selection of Caracas, Venezuela, as the site of its next meeting in 1977.

The 23 participating delegations elected the following nations to serve on its permanent steering committee: Panama, Venezuela, Honduras, Mexico, Chile and the United States.

Jose Rogelio Arias, Jr., general manager of the Panamanian Tourism Institute was elected chairman of the steering committee until the Caracas Congress.

WON'T MOVE IN

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn. (AP) — Governor-Elect Ella Grasso says she plans to keep on living in her modest home when she takes office Jan. 8. She says she will use the mansion in Hartford for official business only.

Canada Imposes Airport Tax

OTTAWA (UPI) — Beginning Dec. 1, air travelers in Canada began paying a new airport tax that a Ministry of Transport spokesman said is aimed at raising about $36 million a year to help pay the cost of running the nation's airports.

The new tax provides for a five per cent charge up to a maximum of $5 on all air tickets sold in Canada for domestic travel and on tickets for flights to the mainland United States. A straight tax of $5 will be imposed on all other international flights, including Hawaii.

Russia's Rise In Auto Production Also Sees Accident-Rate Growth

By BARRY JAMES

MOSCOW (UPI) — Along with a rapid rise in automobile production in the Soviet Union has come an inevitable consequence—a big increase in the number of traffic accidents.

The Soviet Union has never been forthcoming about its bad news, including accident statistics. But a nationwide accident prevention month has just given some idea about the gravity of the traffic problem.

Boris Shumilin, deputy interior minister, said on television that the accident rate this year has increased 85.5 per cent over previous years.

The home-produced Zhiguli automobile, the Fiat 124 made under license, now is reaching the market in large numbers. The government newspaper Izvestia said at least 40,000 of the 1.5 million Zhigulis produced have been involved in accidents so far this year.

According to Shumilin, 300 persons died and 2,000 were injured in 2,000 accidents in the Novosibirsk region during the first eight months of this year. In Azerbaijan, 350 persons died during the same period, he said.

If the figures for sparsely populated areas in Siberia and central Asia are so high, the accident rates in population centers such as Moscow and Leningrad may well be appalling. Shumilin did not give details.

Moscow has 7.5 million inhabitants and about 250,000 automobiles, a small proportion of cars to people compared to Western cities. Despite the relatively sparse traffic, driving in Moscow can be hazardous.

Streets are badly lit, badly posted and often potholed. Cars weave from lane to lane at 50 or 60 miles an hour without signaling. Passing on the right is frequent. Visibility in winter is poor and roads often are iced over. Drivers make U-turns in the middle of the busiest highways and often don't use headlights.

Traffic in Moscow is slowed by convoys of battered trucks. Taxis, which generally seem badly maintained and often recklessly driven, are involved in many of the city's accidents. Lack of service and inspection facilities makes the roadworthiness of all automobiles suspect.

Outside the city, conditions are worse. Traffic craqls along two-lane highways that lack both passing lanes and hard verges. Half the time rear lights are obscured by mud and even at night drivers often use only parking lights.

To make things worse, this is a nation of brand-new drivers.

Driver training in Russia stresses theory and mechanics, but not roadmanship. The National Automobile Society said last year that only a third of Soviet drivers have been properly trained.

The weekly Literaturnaya Gazeta several months ago blamed the characteristics of the Zhiguli for many accidents. It is a relatively fast car and peppier than most Soviet automobiles, such as the lumbering but solid old-model Volga.

Most automobiles lack basic safety features such as collapsible steering columns and seat belts. According to law, automobiles are supposed to come equipped with seat belts. Few do, apparently because of a bureaucratic mixup in the Ministry of Light Industry. Soviet sources said factories have produced an excess of seat belt buckles, but not enough webbing to make the belts themselves.

Pedestrians cause many accidents. Moskovsky Komsomolets said pedestrians were involved in more than half of Moscow's accidents in September. It said police that month stopped nearly 60,000 pedestrians for violating traffic rules and fined 56,515 of them on the spot. Moscow drivers all tell of narrowly missing, or hitting, pedestrians weaving across darkened streets under the influence of vodka.

So different and dangerous is Moscow driving that the American embassy warns new arrivals to drive defensively.

It particularly warns drivers not to play king-of-the-road with lane-hopping Soviet drivers.

"The chances are that the other driver has paid nothing for the car he is driving," the embassy says in an information bulletin. "It probably belongs to his organization. His car if and when it collides with yours will display some of the characteristics of a tank, and will probably come out of the competition less damaged than yours. Finally, even if his company car is damaged, the local driver is not likely to be greatly inconvenienced or financially penalized."

Millions Visit Napoleon Tomb

PARIS (UPI) — Napoleon's Grande Armee was always too big for the Little Corporal to review it all at one time. But every year three times the number of soldiers in that redoutable army file past Napoleon's tomb under the dome of the Invalides.

A million and a half visitors annually, 3,000 to 4,000 daily in the height of the tourist season, view the enormous sarcophagus made of green granite and red porphyry.

The monument is open every day of the year with four exceptions: Nov. 1, Christmas Day, New Year's Day and May.1. The Invalides ranks third on any list of sightseer "musts," behind the Eiffel Tower and the Louvre museum.

OPERATION AWARE

IN A LETTER TO A & P PRESIDENT FORD WROTE:

"Your effort to hold the line on prices and help consumers with an early warning system is a real contribution to fighting inflation. Americans need the encouragement such a program offers. It will give them hope inflation can be conquered if we all work toward that goal. Stabilizing the American economy will take time. But, it can be done if each one does what he can. A&P is to be congratulated on its program."

Maybe we started something. Other food stores have followed A&P with programs of their own. And we invite all our competitors to do the same.

We're trying to win a fight against inflation and inflation is everybody's battle.

Here are the first steps we're taking to fight it.

1. AN EARLY WARNING SYSTEM ON PRICE INCREASES: THE AWARE LIST.

Every week we will voluntarily post a list of price increases such as those received from manufacturers a full seven days before we actually change our price. That gives you one week to purchase at the old price—subject, of course, to product availability. You'll also find "Be Aware" shelf tags on many frequently purchased items, with the day of the price increase right on the tag. Of course, the Aware List won't include perishables like meat, eggs or fresh fruit and vegetables, where markets fluctuate daily; items controlled by law; or advertised specials. So before you plan your next week's shopping list, check this week's Aware List.

2. A PRICE FREEZE ON A&P PRIVATE LABELS.

A & P voluntarily has put a ceiling on over 1000 A & P Products. (Smaller stores may not regularly stock all items, but a list is available in all stores.) That means prices will go no higher at least until the end of the year, on many products that you use everyday... bread, cheese, pasta, coffee, non-fat dry milk, frozen potatoes, rice, tuna fish, fruit cocktail, frozen dinners and canned peas and corn. Advertised specials below the freeze prices will still be offered. We've put the freeze on our private labels because they represent the best values in our stores. And we'll hold down the prices, even if our ingredient costs go up.

3. OUR 13 POINT CONSUMER PROTECTION POLICY.

It's our continuing commitment to making you an Aware shopper by reminding you of what every A & P store owes you and by informing you of ways to get the most for your money. Look for the signs going up inside A & P stores spelling out all the protection A & P gives you:
1. Guaranteed Satisfaction 2. Exceptional Value 3. Low Price With Absolutely No Compromise in Quality 4. Rain Check-Product Availability 5. Product Freshness Through Open Dating 6. Consumer Information 7. Courteous Service 8. Cleanliness 9. Safe And Healthy Products 10. Shopping Convenience 11. The Butcher's Pledge 12. Variety of Choice and 13. People To People Communication.

WE OWE YOU MORE THAN JUST FOOD.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT

WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Dec. 5 through Dec. 11.

House

STRIP MINING Failed, 212 for and 150 against, to achieve the two-thirds majority needed to suspend House rules and thus pass a strip mining bill (S 425) conference report. Nearly all of those voting "yea" favored the bill and nearly all of those voting "nay" opposed it. Following this vote, plans were made to vote again under normal parliamentary procedure which requires only a majority vote for passage. The short-cut "suspension of the rules" route had been taken because of the lateness of the congressional session.

The bill represents the toughest federal effort to regulate strip mining of federal and privately-owned lands. It sets demanding federal standards governing mining and environmental reclamation, and states not setting strict regulations of their own would be subjected to the federal requirements.

Most environmental groups, the AFL-CIO, United Mine Workers and the National Farmers Organization support S 425. Among opponents are the National Coal Association and the Administration.

Rep. Morris Udall (D-Ariz.), the sponsor, said the bill would stop strip mining's "continuing legacy of environmental degredation." One opponent, Rep. William Ketchum (R-Calif.), said that by making strip mining more difficult the legislation would aggravate the energy crisis. An unlikely opponent was Rep. Ken Hechler (D-W. Va.), who said he opposes all strip mining and called the bill too weak.

Reps. L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. Wilmer Mizell (R-5) and Earl Ruth (R-8) voted "nay."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1) and Ike Andrews (D-4) did not vote.

FOREIGN AID Passed, 201 for and 190 against, the fiscal 1975 foreign aid bill (HR 17234) authorizing $2.7 billion in U.S. military and economic assistance to other nations.

Among its many provisions, the bill penalizes Turkey for its conduct in Cyprus by witholding military aid, contains a total of $1 billion in military and economic aid to Israel, Egypt, Jordan and Syria, provides relief funds for Cypriot refugees, and witholds money for South Korea in response to that government's repressive human rights policies. The bill now goes to conference with the Senate.

Most supporters viewed the legislation as a satisfactory, though imperfect, legislative instrument for fulfilling the United States' international responsibilities and putting financial leverage behind the nation's foreign policy.

Many opponents were traditional foes of U.S. foreign aid. Other opponents voted "nay" to express their dislike for specific provisions such as the ban on military aid to Turkey.

Preyer voted "yea."

Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Mizell, Rose, Ruth, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay."

Jones did not vote.

AID TO TURKEY Adopted, 297 for and 98 against, an amendment extending the present ban on military aid to Turkey until next June 30, unless substantial diplomatic progress is made toward negotiating the withdrawal of Turkish forces from Cyprus. The current ban took effect Dec. 10. The amendment was proposed to HR 17234 (above).

Supporters generally rejected the Administration's argument that the ban undercuts ongoing U.S. negotiations with Cyprus. "The dismal record of this Administration with respect to solving the Cyprus crisis speaks for itself. Their time is up—we must tell them so today," said Rep. Mario Biaggi (D-N.Y.).

Opponents said the Administration's argument is valid because Turkey today has only a caretaker government which is unable to negotiate seriously. Rep. Sam Stratton (D-N.Y.) said, "How can Mr. Kissinger get anybody to agree, if (Turkey) does not even have a government?"

Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Mizell, Rose, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

Preyer and Ruth voted "nay."

Jones did not vote.

Senate

FISHING RIGHTS Passed, 68 for and 27 against, a bill to extend U.S. fishing-rights limits from 12 to 200 miles offshore, allowing foreign fishing within that territory only when domestic yields have been satisfied.

The bill is intended as an interim measure pending the signing of new international fishing agreements. The bill is opposed by President Ford and the House has no action planned on it before adjournment.

Supporters argued that American fishermen are economically suffering from foreign competition near the U.S. coastline. "They come in here from all over the world. They just sweep up all our fish. There is nothing left," said Sen. John Pastore (D-R.I.).

Opponents argued that the bill would increase the likelihood of "gunboat wars" over fishing, and that it would harm foreign relations while long-term international fishing talks are continuing. Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Cal.) said, "Its sole effect would be to sabotage existing talks."

Sens. Sam Ervin (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea."

COMMUNITY SERVICES Rejected, 21 for and 69 against, an amendment to the Community Services Act of 1974 which would have ended the federal government's anti-poverty programs after a transitiion year during which communities wishing to continue some programs could seek local funding.

"I see little which can improve this legislation, because its basic concept is awry," said Sen. Jesse Helms (R-N.C.), sponsor of the amendment to the bill continuing with some changes the federal anti-poverty effort. Helms said the most responsible move that could be taken to help the poor "is for the federal government to get out of the poverty action field, period."

Opponents agreed that anti-poverty programs could be more effective, but opposed their complete abolition. "While our bill would permit change through reorganization procedures, this amendment would go at the program with a meat axe," Sen. Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.) said.

Ervin and Helms voted "yea."
