Gift For New Hospital

CHECK PRESENTED FOR NEW HOSPITAL CONSTRUCTION—Eaton Corporation's local plant manager, Rich Licko, left, presents a check to Harry Leslie, chairman of the new Pitt County Memorial Hospital gifts committee, for the amount of $15,000 during ceremonies held at the new plant Tuesday. Looking on is W. W. Wooten, chairman of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees. A spokesman for Eaton said that the money will be used for the father's waiting room, intensive care nursery, and the premature nursery. Eaton's new plant in Greenville is one of a hundred around the world and employs approximately 185 persons. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Energy-Cut Policy Still Under Study

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Government sources say the Ford administration may take steps to boost oil prices $3 a barrel, raising gasoline prices about 7½ cents a gallon, as a way to cut fuel consumption.

And the administration also is taking another look at gasoline coupon-rationing, the sources say. However, rationing probably would be only a standby program to cope with unexpected shortages or the failure of other fuel-saving efforts.

Frank G. Zarb, federal energy administrator and executive director of the Cabinet-level Energy Resources Council, surprised a staff meeting Tuesday by asking for information on the standby rationing program prepared during last winter's Arab oil embargo, these sources said.

But the sources said President Ford and other officials still appeared to oppose rationing as a first-choice method of cutting fuel consumption.

Instead, the administration was leaning toward plans to reduce fuel purchases by artificially raising prices, they said.

Under serious consideration was a proposal to raise the price of imported oil, now around $11 or $12 per barrel, by another $3 per barrel through imposition of a tariff.

The price of oil produced in the United States might be similarly increased through a new tax, raising price-controlled "old oil" from $5.25 to $8.25 per barrel and uncontrolled "new oil" from about $11 to about $14 per barrel.

Such increases would bring the Treasury about $18.6 billion in additional revenue a year. The sources said the oil money would be channeled back into the economy, possibly through income tax reductions or by financing government antirecession programs.

The sources said a high increase in the federal gasoline tax, an approach repeatedly rejected by Ford, appeared to be a dead issue.

The major policy alternative to deliberate economic pressures was a return to the stringent federal allocation of gasoline practiced last winter during the shortages brought on by the Arab oil embargo, the sources said.

Under this alternative the federal government would intentionally create an oil shortage by restricting oil imports.

Allocation could then spread the shortage evenly, but the result would probably be similar to last winter: a return to odd-even-day gasoline sales and long lines at service stations.

Administration officials call that method "rationing by inconvenience" and they don't like it any more than anyone else.

Ask Gas Pipeline Justify Cutback

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Officials of North Carolina state government and its natural gas industry have asked Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp. to justify its latest curtailment of natural gas.

In a telegram sent Tuesday to his company's headquarters in Houston, Transco president W.J. Bowen was asked to come to a meeting in Raleigh Friday to discuss the curtailment. One member of the State Utilities Commission has said the cutback pushes the state's shaky economy to the brink of disaster.

Gov. James E. Holshouser, Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten, commission chairman Marvin Wooten, and the presidents of the state's three largest natural gas distributors jointly signed the telegram.

In Washington, the state's entire Congressional delegation signed a letter asking Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton to aid North Carolina through federal action.

Transco is the sole supplier of natural gas to North Carolina. Twice previously this winter it had decreased the amount of natural gas it was willing to supply to the state's distributors.

Last Friday, Transco informed its distributors it was cutting back by another 15 billion cubic feet of gas for the winter. In a brief explanation, it said maintenance and repair problems at an offshore well in Texas forced the new cutbacks.

Wooten, at a hastily called meeting Tuesday, said Transco has been "negligent, irresponsible, and, to say the least, inept," in its handling of the gas shortage.

Wooten referred openly to speculation that natural gas suppliers are deliberately fostering the shortage to force the federal government to abolish ceilings on wellhead prices.

In the telegram, the North Carolinians complained that the state was being unduly penalized, in comparison to other Transco customers in eastern states.

The latest curtailment has exacerbated an already serious shortage, the commission was told Tuesday.

Housing Aids Are Invoked By Government

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two government institutions have reduced interest rates for potential home buyers and President Ford has signed a bill to help veterans get home loans.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development on Tuesday trimmed rates on a government-backed program from 8¼ to 8 per cent.

The action covered mortgages purchased by federal agencies under the Emergency Home Purchase Act enacted in October. The interest reduction will provide savings of about $6 a month on a $35,000 mortgage repaid over 30 years.

Meanwhile, the Federal National Mortgage Association at its regular auction of commitments to buy home mortgages over the next few months announced prices which constituted the eighth consecutive drop in rates.

The association, also called

Fannie Mae, said the average yield on commitments to buy $31.8 million in government-insured mortgages was 9.471 per cent, compared with 9.52 per cent at the auction two weeks ago.

For the $10.1 million worth of conventionally insured mortgages handled, the average yield was 9.592 per cent, compared with 9.716 per cent at the previous auction.

The rates are a rough indication of the interest rates lenders will be asking from home buyers in the months ahead.

In Vail, Colo., Ford signed a bill allowing the Veterans Administration to guarantee up to $17,500 of a home loan instead of $12,500.

The VA guarantee is not the limit of how expensive a home the veteran may buy. The amount of the loan is up to commercial lenders.

The bill also opens up the VA program more to the purchase of condominiums.

Veterans now cannot buy condominiums unless the development has been approved by the secretary of Housing and Urban Development and at least one unit has been purchased by a loan insured by the Federal Housing Administration. The new law eliminates these restrictions.

Lake Ellsworth Is Annexed By City

Ceremonies marking the first local annexation under the new state Satellite Annexation Law were held Tuesday afternoon with Mayor Eugene West welcoming residents of Lake Ellsworth to the city.

The 209-acre subdivision officially became a part of the city at 12 midnight last night.

City Manager Bill Carstarphen joined West in welcoming the new city residents during the brief 3 p.m. ceremonies which included the installation of a new city limits sign at the subdivision boundary. Developer Bill Dansey was also on hand for the activities.

Approximately 50 homes are currently occupied in Lake Ellsworth. When the subdivision is completely developed, plans call for a total of 400 single-family homes. An estimated 1,400 people will live in the subdivision when it is completed, it was pointed out.

Lake Ellsworth is located approximately 1,200 feet from the present city limits on U. S. 264 Business.

The city officials pointed out that municipal services, which are available in the subdivision, include police and fire protection, full Public Works services including refuse collection and street maintenance, inspection services, city recreation programs, street lighting, and full utility services. As a result of annexation, utility service charges in the subdivision will be reduced by 50 per cent. The recently enacted Satellite Annexation Law, which became effective July 1, 1974, permits municipalities to annex non-contiguous land when 100 per cent of the affected property owners petition for such annexation.

MICROWAVE OVEN AFFECTS PACEMAKER

I have a pacemaker. The other day I walked past the lunch counter in Rose's and my pacemaker stopped momentarily because of the microwave oven there. We always call ahead to a restaurant we're unfamiliar with, or someone goes in first and checks for me to see if there's a microwave oven anywhere near where I might be. However, this time, I didn't even think of there being one anywhere nearby. I think any store or restaurant having a microwave oven should post the information so pacemaker wearers may be warned. Mrs. A. C.

Dr. Eric Fearrington, local heart specialist, said he agrees with you that stores, and even homes having microwave ovens should warn anyone with one of the heartbeat regulating devices of the presence of the oven. "The frequency is such that it stops the pacemaker," Dr. Fearrington said. "This can be quite dangerous and disconcerting for the person involved. He said he believes 20 feet or so would be a safe distance to keep from an oven, though the range probably varies with the oven.

Electric shavers also have a frequency that affects pacemakers, he said, as do some radio and tv station frequencies.

Perhaps the stores in this area should take it on themselves to post a sign on the door or in the front window saying something to this effect: Attention Pacemaker Wearers: We have microwave ovens about six feet behind our lunch counter (or whatever location).

WHEN WILL LIGHTS BE ON?

When are the traffic lights at the intersection of Memorial Drive and the Stantonsburg Road going to be turned on? It's a dangerous intersection. J. T.

Department of Transportation District Engineer C. W. Snell talked with the signal technician, who said that the holdup is loop wire needed to complete the installation. The wire should be arriving very soon, he said, and the lights will be turned on immediately thereafter.

Natural Gas Shortage Not Felt By Greenville

A reduction in natural gas supplies to North Carolina — announced last week by Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp. — will have no effect on gas customers supplied by the Greenville Utilities Commission at the present time, GUC director Charles Horne said this morning.

According to the GUC head, "the recent reduction — they called Friday night — will not affect any of our interruptible customers. They were already cut off. The hospital (Pitt Memorial) and everybody else... interruptible... has been off a month now."

Horne emphasized, "it has not and will not affect our firm industrial customers... not unless further cuts are made."

The utilities official explained that users are categorized in 19 priority groups — from A to R, with A being interruptible industrial users and R being residential and commercial users which... come off last.

He said Friday's cut resulted in customers with priorities through O, being cut off, with P, Q and R customers still being served.

Horne noted that Greenville Utilities serves only two "firm" gas industrial customers — Union Carbide and Fred Webb Grain — with priority ratings of Q.

North Carolina has lost 45.4 per cent of the natural gas contracted for from Transco — the only pipeline supplying natural gas to distributors in the state — since last summer. Friday's was the third cutback announced by Transco.

Author Urges More Funds For Research Program

Suitcase Should Suit Travel Plans

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It's too late to help her son, who died at age 22 of acute leukemia, but Doris Lund still hopes to see us "get our priorities right."
"The amount of money we spend on experimental weapons is out of proportion to medical funds for research on cancer. This," she declares, "is the enemy that can cross any border, pick any lock; you can put an army around the White House and it can get in. There is no defense except research."
One of the few times she recalls seeing her son, Eric, bitter was when she saw a big newspaper headline telling of billions just appropriated by Congress for a new fighter-bomber project, while a smaller headline told of cutbacks in funds for cancer research.

"On Ewing 8 (the chemotherapy ward of the hospital he was in and out of a dozen times) it didn't do you any good to be rich, to have status," Mrs. Lund says. "What mattered was humor, courage, relating."
And these attributes he had plenty of, his mother remembers proudly. Author of eight children's books and many magazine articles, she has now told the story of her son's gallant 4½-year fight against the illness that struck him at age 17 in a book titled simply, "Eric."
"It's a privilege to bear witness to someone who undergoes an experience like this and does it so well, with grace and humor," she explains. "He suffered much but he managed a kind of compression of life, and seemed fulfilled. If you're really on the beam and really appreciate things you can live a lot in a short time."

Just about to start his freshman year when he got sick, Eric eventually did go to college, where he played soccer for three seasons, was elected captain of his team and named to All-New England All Stars.
This while he was being put on one drug after another, fighting nausea, his hair falling out, his face swelling from the drugs' effects. He had six remissions, each harder to achieve and shorter than the previous one. Eric was first told he had anemia, but the need for transfusions and other treatment meant he soon had to know the truth. His parents had been informed at the start that their son had six months to two years to live.
"It was like a lightning bolt had struck," the soft-spoken Mrs. Lund says. "I felt as if my whole body had been split. My instant defense was 'We'll save him somehow.'"
As for her husband, "All he said was 'Oh, really,' but he changed in that moment and I don't think he's ever been the same. People tend to believe the myth that trouble brings people closer together, but it depends on whether they can communicate. Sidney, being a scientist, put his hopes in science and the machinery. I realized sooner than my husband that it might not work out. I was looking at all the people around the chemotherapy ward, learning their names, watching them go."
When she told Eric, she adds, he first got "very sick." Then he said, "It's all right, mom. I can handle it. I'm going to beat it, I'm glad it isn't Mark."
He insisted on being the one to tell his brother Mark, then 14, says Mrs. Lund, who has two other children, daughters Meredith and Lisa.
He also insisted on living a full and active life — traveling, working, running 10 miles a day to keep in shape between hospital stays ranging from a few days to a few months. There everyone — doctors, nurses, lab technicians — became his friends and he put out regular editions of a cartoon comic known as "The Adventures of Ewing 8," a light-hearted look at life in Memorial Hospital.
"He gave a lot, daring to love the other patients and accepting the risk of losing them," his mother says. "The night he died I went around and told everyone he knew. I didn't want them to learn it from anyone else."
"He didn't talk to me about death. By the time he knew he was going to die he had Mary Lou, and they talked about it," she says, referring to the nurse with whom he had a short but happy love affair.
"You never get over it," Mrs. Lund says of her loss. "But you learn to make an emotional detour. I'm stronger for having lived through it. I have more feelings about life being valuable."

NEW YORK (AP) — Paris or the Poconos? Budapest or the beach?
According to the travel industry, more and more Americans are opting for cruises and shorter trips within the United States and to neighboring areas.
Despite these new travel patterns, one fact remains: the choice of luggage to take should always be based on the demands of the trip to be taken, says the Luggage and Leather Goods Manufacturers of America. Its experts point out that garment carriers are ideal for trips by car, since the carriers that fold over can be left open and hung up or placed flat on the rear seat or in the trunk. Or, if the trip is to be taken by train, a lightweight, easy-to-handle suitcase or one on wheels that doesn't require the help of all-too-scarce porters is generally the most convenient choice.
The manufacturers' group suggests these guidelines to follow in choosing luggage for today's travel needs:

Cruises require a wardrobe that ranges from evening wear to bathing suits and tennis outfits. A cruise vacation calls for a 26-or 29-inch suitcase or a jumbo multipurpose garment carrier. It's also wise to take along both a 24-inch suitcase and a shoulder bag or tote for overnights spent ashore, day sightseeing trips and for carrying purchases.
Long trips by air, lasting a week or two, require a 26-or 29-inch bag. A shoulder bag or tote also is necessary for personal articles and reading materials you might want to have during the flight and for items such as lightweight sweater and camera equipment.
Long trips by train and bus require the same size luggage as for long plane trips, but it is especially important that the suitcase be lightweight and have a comfortable, easy-to-grip handle so you can carry it yourself. Remember, too, train and bus limits on baggage size and weight: trains require that any luggage that doesn't fit in the overhead rack or passenger car must go in the baggage car — or wait for a train with a baggage dog. Buses limit each traveler to 50 pounds of luggage.
Short trips, such as a three-or four-day jaunt, call for a 24-inch bag and a tote — no matter what the mode of transportation may be. Men usually find that a men's suiter accommodating two or three suits is a good choice.
Weekend or overnight trips require only a 24-inch bag, a fold-over garment carrier or even a generously-sized carry-on or tote bag.
Those traveling by auto can use these same guidelines as a general reference. Car travel, of course, offers the most flexibility since there are no restrictions as to weight and no worries about carrying luggage through train or bus terminals.
Today's luggage — whether soft-sided or hard — is constructed in a wide variety of styles, sizes, shapes and durable fabrics. The wide assortment of coverings ranges from denim and fiberglass to natural leather and aluminum.

Sports Sweaters Just For Fun

SWEATER NEWS—Wool sweaters cut the liveliest fashion swath wherever there's winter sports fun. The newest look is short and shapely, as in this ribby rugby shirt, left, of soft and bouncy knitted wool. Easy-flexing high-rise ribbing shapes a narrow waistline below the wider body ribbing. Stripes flash unexpectedly inside the collar and on the armbands. How about a wool ski cap to match? Stripes in brilliant sun-rich colors are the action theme of wool sweaters, right. Stripes are confined to the sleeves for bright punctuation in this supple wool crew pullover that has a wide-banded crew neckline and raglan shoulders. 'Government Man' Looks Like A Ringer

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I met a very attractive man at a club and we started dating. When he refused to tell me his last name, I assumed that he was married, but he assures me that he isn't.

Here is his story:

1. He works for the government.
2. He travels a lot.
3. His job is to meet people and get information.
4. When I asked for some identification, he said he didn't carry any, besides, it wouldn't be correct anyway.
5. He is obligated to this job for at least two more years and cannot get married during this time.
6. He is licensed to carry a gun, but does not.
7. He doesn't have an "address," but he does have an answering service.

Abby, if this unbelievable story proves to be true, I would like to continue dating him as he is good company, pleasant and well-mannered. However, if he is lying, I will end the relationship immediately.

How can I find out if he is really employed by the government? And if so, with which agency?

This situation has me stumped. Any information you can give me will be very much appreciated.

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: The F.B.I. and C.I.A. both advise me that all bona fide agents have names which they use in their work. (Some have several. But each agent has credentials in the name he is using.) Since this man refuses to tell you what name he is using, you can consider him a phony. Both departments said that quite a few men tell girls this story to keep from getting involved; however, if they actually impersonate a government agent, they can be prosecuted.

DEAR ABBY: This is to encourage "Flat in N.J." and all the other flat-chested women who read your column.

At 28 years of age, I finally got the courage to have silicone implants performed by a reliable plastic surgeon. Even though I had been married for many years and had children, I always felt inferior and self-conscious due to my flat chest.

The results were thrilling. I wish I had had it done ten years sooner.

FLAT NO MORE

DEAR FLAT: You have more bosom buddies than you know.

DEAR ABBY: I am a schoolteacher who is very tired of being put down. Recently someone called me (and my fellow schoolteachers) "glorified babysitters."

I sat down and calculated exactly what I would earn if I were actually a babysitter.

I have 42 students. If I were to charge 50 cents an hour (which is the very least any babysitter would charge), I would make $21 an hour.

Allowing one hour off for lunch (although teachers seldom get an hour off because they are required to have lunch-supervising duty during their lunch period) I would get $21 times five hours, or $105 a day, times five, or $525 a week. Or on a four-week, 10-month basis, $21,000 per year! Babysitter's fees look awfully good to me.

UNDERPAID SCHOOLTEACHER

DEAR ABBY: In reply to Mrs. M.H., you write, "What you are saying is that the secret of getting your children to listen to you is to listen to THEM."

Abby, I wonder how many people realize that there is a right NOT to listen. The late William Ernest Hocking wrote, "The speaker has no right to compel a hearing; there could be no right of free speech if there were not a corresponding right not to listen. It would hardly do to make free speech free, and listening compulsory, though that might be a speaker's dream!"

For Us, Plus Signs For 1975

A New Year begins today and, more than any year recently, the economy of the nation is clouded.

We are in the midst of what everyone admits now is a recession. Unemployment is higher than it has been for a number of years and at the same time inflation is still a very real threat to every family's budget.

The auto makers in Detroit have idled thousands because cars are not selling as well as expected. The textile industry, which is deeply rooted in our state, has also cut production.

Underlying it all is the exorbitant increase in oil prices which the oil producing nations brought about. There is little likelihood that the price of oil is going to come down and, indeed, it might be sent skyrocketing again by another Mideast war.

The question arises, how is it all going to affect us here in Greenville and Pitt County and the surrounding counties? Will we soon see the soup lines of the 1930s? Will there be widespread unemployment and long lines of people hunting jobs?

Well, there is little we here in Eastern North Carolina can do about the international economic situation. However, we are betting on a recession which will run its course in 1975, leading to an eventual upturn which will be fueled by the pent up demand caused by the recessionary period.

In the meantime we don't think things will be so bad for our local area. So far, we haven't been too hard hit by the industry layoffs that have plagued some areas and, indeed, two major new plants are now moving into production.

We also must remember that we are a tremendous farming area and the growing of food has the prospects of at last coming into its own as a profitable enterprise. The problem in farming no longer is to hold down production, but rather how to increase food production to feed the growing population of the world. Our farmers will share in this food production boom, which may serve to bring our oil dollars back to this country.

Then we are on the verge of seeing the money appropriated for the ECU Medical School construction. It is anticipated that the funds will be included in the 1975 state budget. Construction of the school should have the expected favorable effect on the state's medical care. It also will have a stimulating effect on the local economy.

Anything could happen to the economy this year, but we fully believe the nation will solve its economic problems. We don't see how the future could be any brighter for our area, what with all the positive developments that are currently taking place. There no doubt will be some rough spots ahead, but everything is on the plus side for Greenville, Pitt County and the general area.

"After the Nixon recession of the past year, things will surely be better for us in '75, right Mr. Ford? Mr. Ford . . . ?"

Why Crime Is Soaring

WASHINGTON—For some years now Washington, D. C., has had one of the highest robbery rates of any city in the country.

We always assumed the crimes were committed by the underprivileged, unemployed and disaffected members of the population. So you can imagine our surprise when all of us picked up The New York Times the other day and read that there was some evidence that the CIA had been involved in breaking and entering and other second-story jobs in the capital.

No one knows how many break-ins the CIA were involved in, but it certainly does pose a problem as far as our crime rate is concerned.

My friend, George Washington Custer, called me as soon as he read the story. "Hey, man," he said chortling. "You read where the CIA's been committing all the break-ins in our fair city?"

"The story didn't say that," I warned Custer. "It indicated that there was a possibility that the CIA may have been involved in some break-ins in the name of national security."

"What are they breaking into homes in Washington for? I thought they were supposed to spy on all those Communists in Russia."

"That's the point, Custer. In order to spy on Communists in the Soviet Union, it is sometimes necessary to break into people's homes in the United States. But I'm certain the CIA would not sneak into anybody's house unless they were certain they were friends of our enemies abroad."

"How would they know that?" Custer demanded.

"Because apparently the CIA kept a list of Americans that were suspect. They probably weren't permitted to rob your house unless you were on the list."

"How come the CIA were allowed to do this?"

"They weren't," I said patiently. "But when you work for the CIA you can do a lot of things you are not allowed to do. That's why you operate in secret."

"Well, let me ask you this. (Continued on page 6)

Tourism Rated Second

By KENNETH T. WALSH
Associated Press Writer
AVON, Colo. (AP) — A peaceful valley surrounded by spectacular peaks is the focus of a major struggle symbolizing the growing environmental movement in the Rocky Mountain West.

Six developers want to build the sparsely populated valley into a winter sports complex in an area called Beaver Creek. It would include accommodations for 40,000 persons and a 3,000-acre ski area.

But for the first time, state agencies have joined with environmentalists to oppose the complex in a region where winter sports are the lifeblood of tourism.

"We seem to be embarking on a new age," said Charles Hillestad, an environmental lawyer for the Sierra Club. "Before we make irrevocable multimillion dollar commitments on land use, we must decide what is the best and highest use of the land. This is the first time that a ski area has run into such unified opposition from state agencies."

Phil Schmuck, the Colorado planning director, said at least seven agencies have criticized the development for environmental flaws.

The proposed development is on federal land in the White River National Forest controlled by the U.S. Forest Service.

The largest project is planned by Vail Associates, Inc.

Officials in Eagle County, where the development is planned, have approved the complex. They consider it a prime tourist attraction that will boost the county's economy.

At a hearing before the state Land Use Commission, ski industry representatives said demand for ski slopes is increasing despite the sagging economy.

The commission asked the Forest Service to delay issuing a permit until more environmental studies are completed.

The Forest Service has not (Continued on page 6)

40 Years Ago Today

January 1, 1935
Approximately 1,300 cases were disposed of by Superior court here last year, it was announced today by Clerk of Court J. F. Harrington.

Of that number, 700 were handled in criminal court and 600 in civil court.

About the same number of actions were cleared from the docket during the previous year, Harrington said, with the average per court being about the same.

About 800 cases were handled in county court, probably the largest number in several years.

Violation of prohibition and traffic laws led the list in County court, with larceny taking a close second place. The same was true in criminal Superior court, where scores of defendants were sent to prison or on the roads.

Kids Have A Champion

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Generally easy-going, mild-mannered Dave Flaherty has become a crusader.

The secretary of the state's Department of Human Resources has sewed his heart on his sleeve for North Carolina kids.

They are, he says, our state's number-one resource and his number-one priority from here on out. Privately, he confesses that he has not gotten full administration support for that viewpoint.

Worse yet, he is running into some pretty strong opposition from county health departments across the state, and from other professionals running agencies serving children.

The focal point of the battle is Flaherty's proposal for massive statewide comprehensive screening and testing of all children before they enter public school kindergarten. The purpose: to spot any physical, mental, or emotional problems at an early age so that corrective programs can be zeroed in while they could do more good.

Local Opposition
"You've got some of the local health department people going to their county commissioners and saying they are opposed. They claim they are already doing screening, and they want to keep it local — they're urging local opposition to the statewide screening," Flaherty told a recent meeting of a legislative commission studying children with special needs.

"Those people want things kept just the way they are. They want us to keep on giving them the money and let them spend it anyway they want."

"We want to keep it at the state level—for control—so that we can know that all the kids will be totally screened using competent testing procedures, and that the right labels will be put on, and the right kinds of corrective programs designed."

Flaherty's goal is to hold local units accountable for the dollars spent where presently no accountability exists, and to eliminate duplicate services.

Currently, some agencies actually compete for children to serve in particular specialties—and the funds that go along with numbers of kids—while children with other problems can't find help.

"There are people resisting this effort. They're scared of it. But the risk is worth it, and we need people with guts to back it up."

"Right now we are treating problems as they occur, and often not treating the right problem at all."

Millions of state and federal dollars are already being spent on so-called screening programs carried out in fragmented ways by a host of agencies.

Different Answers

For example, Flaherty pointed to $4.1 million being spent by county health departments on statistics and data gathering. "But, I can't even tell you right now how many kids we need to serve. You talk to four different people on four different days, and you get four different answers—and nobody's lying."

Flaherty has already taken two bold steps in his approach to a solution:

—He has built strong liaison between his department and the Department of Public Instruction, based on the philosophy that public instruction should do all the teaching, while his agency should provide all the corrective and diagnostic services.

—He has merged several fragmented agencies in his own department into an Office for Children, with the man in charge holding assistant secretary rank to give this effort clout.

Now, he faces the legislative battle: an $8.9 million cost over the next two years to start pilot programs aimed at a full screening of all 85,000 four-year-olds in the state before they enter kindergarten. The full program would dovetail with statewide public kindergarten due in 1978. The law will also have to require that parents put their children through the screening process before registering them for kindergarten.

The screening will cost about $50 per child, and will consist of tests administered by trained specialists to uncover potential mental or emotional problems, and examination by a pediatrician.

Flaherty says the money saved by spotting problems early enough and fixing them so children can stay at home and in public school will more than justify the program.

But that, he admits, is not the main point: he believes thousands of lives will be turned into rewarding, productive channels instead of state institutions.

The INSIDE REPORT

Butterfield's Yule Gift

By ROBERT EVANS
and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Alexander Butterfield, whose revelation of Richard Nixon's secret White House taping system ultimately cracked the Watergate cover-up, is being pushed out—with considerable reluctance on his part—as Federal Aviation Administrator.

On the Friday before Christmas, Butterfield was summoned to the office of his superior, lame-duck Secretary of Transportation

Claude Brinegar. Brinegar informed Butterfield he was through as head of the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA). Butterfield shot back that he was a presidential appointee who could be fired only by the President. But it soon became clear that Brinegar was acting as President Ford's agent.

A high-level White House aide informed us that Butterfield's imminent departure is merely part of the gradual replacement of Nixon men by Ford men. But that raises this inevitable question: Why should Mr. Ford retain cabinet members blindly loyal to Nixon until the bitter end while firing Butterfield, a hero of Watergate, in forthrightly revealing the existence of the secret White House tapes?

The answer by one high Transportation Department official is that the White House has wanted to get rid of Butterfield ever since "he blew the whistle on Nixon" but could not until, first, Nixon was gone and, second, there was some excuse for it. The excuse arrived Dec. 1 when a TWA Boeing 727 crashed outside Washington because the FAA had not required a safety device.

One presidential aide snapped, "That's ridiculous," to suggest that Butterfield's sacking might be long distance retribution for his Watergate role. Whatever the reason, the decision came from the White House. Although relations between Brinegar and Butterfield were stormy and they barely spoke at times, Brinegar—his resignation effective on Feb. 1—could not have acted on his own.

A footnote: Brinegar's resignation, beginning the long overdue clean-up of the old Nixon cabinet with its announcement Dec. 18, was forced rather than voluntary. He has grumbled privately that the request for him to quit came not from Mr. Ford but from White House chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld.

Strength For Today

ACCEPTING THE HARD TASKS

There are some men in the world who like nothing so much as the opportunity to confront a difficulty and overcome it.

Caleb was a man of this variety. We are told in the Book of Joshua that when he was an old man, he came to Joshua, leader of the armies of Israel, and requested that in the promised land he be given a mountainous section where dwelt the Anakim, the wildest and most dangerous enemy which Israel had to confront. Caleb was then in his eighties. He was perfectly willing that other distinguished leaders be given fertile valleys where they could live in security. But for himself he wanted the hardest problem that Israel had to confront. "Give me the mountain," he said, "in which the giants dwell. It may be that the Lord will be with me and that I shall drive them out."

There is no more admirable character in the world than the man who covets nothing so much as the opportunity to perform a hard task.

Few Buyers For Gold Bullion

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer
Americans greeted their first chance in 41 years to own gold bullion with only a trickle of buying interest.

While few actually bought gold bullion Tuesday, with the precious metal generally selling at more than $200 per troy ounce — 1.097 regular ounces — many banks and brokers across the country said their phones were busy with questions from the curious.

In Phoenix, Ariz., brokers Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Co. and Paine Weber, Jackson and Curtis said they had handled plenty of questions, but no sales.

"Several persons are definitely interested in buying gold," said John Hemmer, Peoria, Ill., branch manager for E.F. Hutton. "But they're going to wait — probably a few days — until the market settles back down."

The Louisville, Ky., branch of Bache & Co. said there were inquiries early in the morning, but no actual orders.

The Delaware Trust Co., the only bank in that state retailing bullion, said it sold just under 100 ounces for about $208.50 per ounce to about 30 customers by 3 p.m. A spokesman said the bank had about 100 walk-in inquiries and numerous calls from prospective out-of-state buyers.

The Delaware bank has been expecting a lively out-of-state gold business, since the state has no sales tax, generally added to the cost of gold in most states.

A spot check of Wyoming banks showed no buyers. Bob Bryans, a spokesman for First National Bank of Casper, said, "I think people have determined that for the small purchaser — those buying 50 ounces or less — gold prices have to go up at least 20 per cent for that investor to break even when he takes into consideration buying and selling costs."

"And the larger investors are taking a wait-and-see attitude because they feel things are speculative right now because of the high price of gold," he said.

"Sales of gold in this office have been practically nil," Allen Myers, assistant manager of Bache's downtown Boston office, said Tuesday morning. "With all the prepubility, there are very few people who are actually buying it."

Medallion Art Co. of Danbury, Conn. and Franklin Mint of Franklin Center, Pa., vied to see who could mint the first gold coin or medallion as soon as the legal bullion ban was lifted. It must have been a dead heat, with both claiming to have started their presses at precisely one second after midnight Monday.

President Ford told newsmen in Aspen, Colo. he would not buy gold.

"I'm not a speculator," the President said.

With the exception of the nation's commodity exchanges, where trading in contracts for future delivery of gold proceeded briskly most of the day, the advance publicity and early morning hoopla failed to generate heavy gold buying by Americans.

Thomas W. Wolfe, head of the Treasury's Office of Domestic Gold and Silver Operations, said, "The reports we have are that demand was extremely slow and almost nonexistent."

Suppose half the break-ins in Washington were made by the CIA and only half were made by the common robber? How come they never caught the CIA fellows?"

"The CIA crook has much better training for breaking and entering than the average man in the street. For one thing, he's a college graduate."

"Well, let me ask you another question. If the CIA is involved in a breaking-and-entering job, does that make it a street crime or a white-collar crime?"

"That's a good question, Custer. Why do you ask?"

"If it's a white-collar crime and it's been listed as a street crime, then maybe Washington's been taking a bum rap. How do we know the biggest crimes in this city have not been committed by the government?"

"The biggest crimes in any city are always committed by the government, Custer. You should know that."

"It still bothers me. Going into someone's home through a window sounds like something the White House would do—not the CIA."

reacts instantly to what he sees.

Richard M. Nixon took out the triple-screen television installed by Johnson in the Oval Office, and aides have claimed that President Ford does not watch television news programs. But he certainly was watching the evening of Nov. 29 when Martin Agronsky's nightly program over Eastern educational TV discussed the SALT II agreement.

Richard N. Perle, a national security aide to Sen. Henry M. Jackson, criticized the Vladivostok agreement and concluded that "the text time he" (Mr. Ford) would be more careful with foreigners who drink vodka." That produced laughter at the television studio. But Mr. Ford, listening at home in the White House, was not the least amused.

Nixon as President might have quietly put Perle down on a mental "enemies" list. But Mr. Ford, like LBJ would have, reached for the telephone and called Jackson. His aide, the irate President informed the Senator, had accused him of drinking vodka with foreigners in a paraphrase of Rep. Wilbur Mills's explanation of the Tidal Basin incident.

After obtaining a transcript, Jackson informed the President that was not quite what Perle said and succeeded in mollifying him. But the incident showed some fire behind the bland facade of Jerry Ford.

Barkan In Solid

When labor political operative Al Barkan was in Boston the night of Dec. 20 to be named man of the year by a local union, he received a telegram from his boss—AFL-CIO president George Meany—intended as a signal for the whole labor movement.

"In my book, Al Barkan has done a magnificent job in constantly building and strengthening labor's political arm," said Meany, adding that the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE) under Barkan "is far and away the best political operation in America."

That was intended to smother speculation that Barkan, under fire from the reform wing of the labor movement, was about to be fired as COPE director—a report that swept the floor of the recent Kansas City Democratic convention. Barkan's friends blamed his arch-enemy, president Jerry Wurf of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal employees (AFSCME), for starting the rumor at Kansas City.

Barkan did not have to wait till Dec. 20 for resassurance. Upon his return to Washington From Kansas City, Barkan was informed by AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer Lane Kirkland that he had insured keeping his job as long as he wanted it because of the enemies he made at Kansas City in his unsuccessful fight for airtight restrictions against racial quotas. That means an indefinite continuation of the struggle for labor political power between old guard and leftist unions. Copyright 1974 Field Enterprises, Inc.

"Maybe," I said, "but let me ask you this. What would you do if you had all those people working for you out in Virginia and you could only afford to send a certain number of them abroad? Wouldn't you tell them to go out and break into a home in Washington?"

"But why?" he asked. "Practice, Custer, practice."

Tear Gas To Halt Melees

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A two-hour rock-and-bottle-throwing melee involving an estimated 1,500 youths erupted early today at a local beach, and police said they had to use tear gas to end it.

Police said they arrested 42 persons, but no serious injuries or property damage were reported.

Officers said rocks, bottles and weighted beer cans were thrown at police during the disturbance, which began just past midnight.

"A standard order to disperse was broadcast with no compliance and police restored order using a limited amount of tear gas," a police spokesman said.

He said those arrested were charged with various infractions, including resisting arrest, disorderly intoxication and inciting to riot.

Last year, a disturbance involving an estimated 3,000 persons erupted on New Year's Eve. In that disturbance, police reported 27 arrests, 14 injuries and $3,000 in damage to nearby stores.

decided what to do. But many state officials doubt that Colorado could do much to stop the complex if the Forest Service approves it.

The issue goes beyond creation of a ski complex. It symbolizes a strong environmental movement that is sweeping much of the West, especially Colorado.

Colorado voters overwhelmingly defeated a ballot proposal in 1972 to be host to the 1976 Winter Olympics. The Winter Games were portrayed as an overpriced extravaganza that would worsen overcrowding and commercialize the mountains. Beaver Creek was a proposed site for several events.

Richard Lamm was elected governor in November after campaigning as an environmental hard-liner. Lamm has joined the protest against the development.

Lamm, who takes office Jan. 14, wants the Forest Service to withhold a decision on the permit until he reviews the controversy. He also favors a one-year moratorium on all new ski-area development.

Lamm said questions remain about how much air and water pollution will result.

"Vail Associates appear totally cooperative in their effort to plan this development well and to solve any problems which might occur," Lamm said.

"However, while their intentions seem impeccable, they simply may be incapable of assuring mitigation of the serious problems which the various agencies have detailed."

"I have to question even wellplanned developments if they are simply in the wrong place — or if there are too many of them," Lamm added.

Schmuck wants the Forest Service to postpone its decision until the state can formulate a master plan to regulate growth.

Boy Shot In Eye By Air Gun

A 12-year-old Greenville youth was shot in the left eye yesterday as he played with two other young boys in a field in the 700 block of Church Street.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Richard Eugene Hamilton of 507 Church St. was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of the eye injury following the incident, reported at 4:20 p.m.

According to Cannon, Hamilton and one of the other children, a seven-year-old youth, had air rifles in the field and had allegedly been shooting at each other when the accident occurred.

TRADITION — As the new year comes in young Londoners do the traditional thing and jump into the fountains of Trafalgar
Square, to welcome in the new year. (AP Wirephoto)

Talk Extending Of Cease-Fire

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The Irish Republican Army is reported discussing an extension of its Christmas cease-fire following a clemency overture from the British government.

"At the moment it looks as if an extension of the cease-fire is on," said one IRA source. "A statement will be issued shortly."

The 11-day cease-fire had been scheduled to end at midnight Thursday. In declaring it, the IRA's Provisional wing said it hoped for a positive response from the British government to its demands.

Merlyn Rees, the government's Secretary for Northern Ireland, announced Tuesday that he was releasing 20 suspected terrorists who were detained without trial, giving three-day paroles to another 50 detainees over the New Year holiday and recommending that more than 100 prisoners — most of them convicted of political offenses — be freed before their sentences are served.

Rees also indicated that indefinite extension of the cease-fire might result in compliance with two of the IRA's chief demands: withdrawal of the 15,000 British troops in Northern Ireland and an end to detention of suspected guerrillas without trial.

Detention without trial was introduced in 1971 because intimidation of witnesses made it impossible to convict most persons arrested for terrorism. More than 500 detainees are held and another 1,000 have been convicted of terrorist offenses. About 1,200 are Roman Catholics presumed to be IRA members. The rest are from a variety of Protestant terrorist groups.

The Rev. Ian Paisley, the militant Protestant leader, condemned Rees for making concessions to the IRA. He said Northern Ireland's Protestant majority demand "outright victory" over the IRA, not "a false peace based on surrender to the murderers."

CAB Decrees Changing Fares

WASHINGTON (AP) — Airlines are being forced by the Civil Aeronautics Board to raise fares on short distance flights while cutting the price of long-distance travel.

The decision also will require airlines to increase the difference in price between first-class and coach travel and to lower fares passengers pay when their trip requires flights on more than one airline.

The fare changes stem from a board ruling last March that the current system of pricing domestic air fares was unjust and discriminatory because the prices did not accurately reflect the actual cost per mile incurred by the airlines.

An appeal by airlines of the March decision was rejected by the CAB on Monday and it ordered fare changes to begin taking effect after 120 days.

The CAB said short-distance flights have a higher cost per mile than long-distance flights, but this is not reflected in the current fare structure.

The change in first-class fares will be phased in over a two-year period, the board said. Those fares, which now are about 130 per cent of coach fares, will jump to about 137 to 141 per cent of coach fares in four months, depending on the distance traveled, the CAB said.

The fares will be increased by the end of the two years to cover the complete cost of first class service, which runs as much as 163 per cent of coach service on some flights.

Charge Driver In Collision

David Jackson Scott of Wilson was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 4:39 p.m. mishap here yesterday at the intersection of Greenville and Arlington Boulevards.

Officers said the Scott car collided with an auto driven by Sharon Hope Hurdle of Route 1, Belvidere, resulting in an estimated $200 damage to the Hurdle car and $150 damage to the Scott vehicle.

Urged To Give 'Meal A Week'

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Bishop Earl Hunt Jr. has asked the 279,000 Methodist in the Western North Carolina Conference to give up a meal a week. The money saved would be contributed to the world's hungry, through the United Methodist Committee on Relief.

He also directed his churches Tuesday to set up committees to help find jobs for persons laid off during the recession.

DISTURBANCE QUELLED
ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The superintendent of the Craggy state prison unit said there was a disturbance in one of the dormitories early this morning, but it was quickly brought under control.

Probe Theft Of Merchandise

Greenville police are pressing their investigation into the theft of an estimated $1,810 worth of merchandise from the Connor Mobile Homes sales lot at the intersection of U.S. 264 and Hooker Road.

Chief Glenn Cannon, said the theft was reported at 9:05 a.m. yesterday, and the merchandise was taken from six trailers and a warehouse area at the rear of the company office.

The stolen items included three washers, two dryers, a bed, two lamps and two chairs, a dinette set, several bedspreads and pairs of curtains, two night stands, two couches, and two trailer jacks.

London Sees Night Life Bombed Out

By ROBERT MUSEL
UPF Senior Editor
LONDON (UPI) — If there is a combination deadlier to the pcosperity of night life than an economic recession and a wuve of terrorist bombings the worried men who run London's best restaurants and gambling clubs would rather not hear about it.

They were doing quite well until a few weeks ago despite the stock market collapse, the rise in unemployment and the even swifter increase in costs. Then Irish bombers switched their attention to London and a few blasts persuaded those already concerned about prices to take their entertainment at home.

A strange pattern has emerged, according to Robert Mills who manages Les Ambassadeurs, the most famous and elegant of Britain's club-restaurants, and its gambling adjunct, Le Cercle.

"We can usually predict how many lunches dinners, or suppers we will serve on any given day," he said, "but not at the moment. We might do well today or we might not. The state of the economy did not hurt us all that much—diplomats, businessmen, our overseas members, have to eat. But there was a dramatic drop after the first bomb.

"It's picking up for us now but some restaurants and clubs are in for a long, hard winter."

Alex Alexander, an executive of the biggest gambling combine in the country, said his Ladbroke and Hertford Clubs still drew a good number of high-stake Arab, Iranian, Lebanese and Greek players.

"But there is no question," he said, "that the big British gamblers are tightening their belts. It's a fairly recent development. I think the prolonged recession is finally taking hold even at that level."

Alexander said the casinos will not suffer as much as puce eating places because the Middle East and Mediterranean gamblers, who are the biggest players in Europe at the moment, prefer the privacy they are assured in London.

"It's a strict rule in London clubs," he said. "In addition London is more attractive to the serious gambler because it is not in a resort area as most gambling complexes are, and he is not playing among crowds."

A check of other well known London night spots—Annabell's, the Mirabelle, Tramps and Rags—also showed business spotty. None of these have gambling. But the White Elephant Club, which does, said "it was surprised to find itself handling capacity trade.

"The moral seems to be," a restaurateur said with a sigh, "that the appetite for food and gambling is stronger than the appetite for food alone. It takes a lot more to turn off a gambler than it does to discourage a man who simply wants to dine and dance."

Being Replaced By Disc Brakes

DETROIT (UPI) — Disc brakes on cars are replacing drum brakes on the front wheels because they're considered to be safer.

Disc brakes are more resistant to fade because they use a flat, rotating disc against which asbestos-lined pads are pressed by a hydraulic cylinder.

Taiwan And U.S. Links Still Strong

By CHARLES R. SMITH
UPI Senior Editor
HONG KONG (UPI) — American military ties with Taiwan still stand on a solid foundation with no sign of significant erosion in the immediate future.

Except for a troop cutback that is part of a general reduction of U.S. forces in Asia, there has been no basic change in U.S. military relations with Taiwan since former President Richard M. Nixon's visit to China in 1972.

When President Ford recently signed a bill repealing a congressional resolution authorizing the President to intervene militarily in defense of Taiwan some saw it as a move of considerable significance.

The action was far more form than substance. It really changed nothing in terms of U.S.-Taiwan military relations. It merely wiped off the books an almost 20 years old outdated resolution applying to another time and a radically different situation.

U.S. military ties with Taiwan still are based essentially on a mutual defense treaty signed 20 years ago next month and which went into force in March, 1955.

It is an indefinite treaty with a provision that either side can terminate it on one year's notice. So unless one side unilaterally abrogates it or there is mutual agreement to end it, the treaty will remain in effect at least until March, 1976.

If there really has been no basic change in U.S.-Taiwan military relations since the Nixon visit, then is the United States living up to the Shanghai Communiqué he signed with Premier Chou En-lai?

Although some say not, a close reading of the document indicates otherwise.

In the communiqué, both sides stated their position on what China called "the crucial question" in the progress toward full normalization of Sino-American relations — the Taiwan question.

"All U.S. forces and military installations must be withdrawn from Taiwan," the Chinese declared.

The United States promised it would "progressively reduce its forces and military installations on Taiwan as the tension in the area diminishes."

The operative word here is "reduce."

The U.S. has been reducing its Taiwan garrison as the war in Indochina has been winding down, just as U.S. forces in other Asian areas also have been cut.

The United States said its "ultimate objective" was complete withdrawal. But this key statement was more closely linked with "a peaceful settlement" of the Taiwan issue.

Agreeing that "all Chinese on either side of the Taiwan Strait maintain there is but one China and Taiwan is part of China," the key portion said the United States "reaffirms its interest in a peaceful settlement of the Taiwan question by the Chinese themselves."

"With this prospect in mind, it affirms the ultimate objective of the withdrawal of all U.S. forces and military installations on Taiwan as the tension in the area diminishes."

Despite the gradual reduction of forces since the Shanghai Communiqué, other developments underscore the continued close U.S.-Taiwan military ties.

One example is the joint production in Taiwan of American-designed F5E jet fighter planes. Northrop Corp., is the American partner in this venture and the first plane rolled off the assembly line at the end of October. At least 100 will be produced.

Another major project in the works is the sale, expected soon, of an extensive air defense system by a major California-based firm.

Neither of these projects could be done without the blessings of the State and Defense Departments in Washington. And neither is exactly what could be called short-range.

Tank-Led Attack Takes Another S. Viet Town

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Communist forces ushered in 1975 with a tank-led attack that overran another district town in Phuoc Long province.

Officials predicted that the provincial capital would fall within weeks, completing the Communist conquest of the province on the Cambodian border 75 miles north of Saigon.

The district town lost Tuesday, Phuoc Binh, was the fourth in the province given up by the government since Dec. 14 and the 11th in South Vietnam to fall since the cease-fire agreement 23 months ago.

Initial reports from the Phuoc Binh fighting said 42 government troops were missing and six were wounded.

The Saigon command said the remnants of the 300-man garrison retreated to the Van Kiep base camp half a mile to the northeast, and the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong attacked it also.

Heavy attacks also were reported on four government positions around the provincial capital two and a half miles northeast of Phuoc Binh, and radio contact was lost with two of them.

The government claimed Phuoc Binh's defenders knocked out five North Vietnamese medium tanks. The Communists have not captured a provincial capital since they overran Quang Tri, capital of South Vietnam's northernmost province, in the 1972 Easter offensive.

The capital of Phuoc Long is also named Phuoc Binh. A government spokesman said its 25,000 population has been doubled by refugees from the Communist advance, and about half the population of the province are now collected there.

In a year-end report, the South Vietnamese command reported that more than 27,000 of its troops have been killed, more than 110,000 wounded and more than 15,000 reported missing since the cease-fire agreement.

The command claimed that its forces have killed more than 104,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in the same period. But foreign military analysts say this is an estimate

Three Lost Free Meals

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP)—Three mountain counties have failed in a last-ditch effort to save a free-meal program for the elderly.

A busload of elderly people from Ashe, Wilkes and Alleghany counties went to Raleigh Tuesday but couldn't get the state to reconsider.

The state Department of Human Resources let it die with the end of the year.

The mountain people hoped to see the Gov. Jim Holshouser. But they met instead with the head of his Coordinating Council on the Aging.

The head, Robert Q. Beard, said reduced federal funding for 1975 made it necessary to refuse three of the statewide 27 requests under program of free meals for the elderly. Beard said that under federal and state criteria, the Ashe-Wilkes-Watauga program, which fed up to 100 persons a day, was found to be one of the least deserving three.

and most probably an inflated one. The Communists have never announced their casualties.

Cartier's Unlocked

After the store closed early Tuesday, a would-be customer walked in around 4:30 p.m. and found himself alone with glass cases full of precious baubles.

The customer, Gilbert Kerlin, a Wall Street lawyer, called police, who came and searched the six-story building. On the third floor they found the firm's chief engineer, Raymond Sweeney.

Sweeney told police that when he went upstairs, business was still being transacted on the main floor. All the employees were hurrying for the early New Year's Eve closing and apparently there was a mixup about who would lock up, he said.

"It's just one of those foolish things," said Cartier president Alfred Montezinos. "It might have been a faulty lock."

Parrot Missed Cue To Scream

TAMPA, Fla. — One of the few words Achilles knows how to scream loud and clear is "Help!" But he missed his cue at a crucial moment.

Achilles is a two-foot tall Amazon parrot valued at between $300 and $500. The bird was stolen Tuesday along with his cage from a tree at the home of David A. Maney.

And the family didn't hear a squawk.

"He used to sit out in the yard and scream 'Help! Help! Help!'" but he didn't say a thing last night," Maney reported.

Pills Are Seized By FDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has seized 25 million birth control pills worth $1.3 million because of what it calls misleading advertising by a pharmaceutical laboratory.

Calling it the largest seizure of prescription drugs in the agency's history, an FDA spokesman said Tuesday that federal marshals placed a government seal on the pills, called Zorane, at Lederle Laboratories in Pearl River, N.Y., Dec. 20.

The agency cited Lederle advertisements in medical journals describing Zorane as low in estrogen, the female sex hormone. The advertisements said the lowest estrogen combination available tends to reduce oral contraceptive side effects.

The advertisements attributed the statement to "clinical data."

Dr. Peter Rheinstein, director of the FDA's drug advertising division, said "it has been postulated but certainly not proved" that low estrogen birth control pills cut the number of potentially serious oral contraceptive complications.

Such complications include strokes, blood clots in the lungs and phlebitis.

At the FDA's urging, Rheinstein said, Lederle had published ads for a time including corrections.

The corrective ads, he said, plainly stated that "the FDA is not aware of any proof that these Zorane products are free from risk of strokes" and that any implication of direct relationship between Zorane's estrogen level and estrogen-related side effects "is not supported."

Population Gain Holding Steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States began the new year with a population of 213,203,059, the Census Bureau has estimated.

The bureau said Tuesday this was a net gain of 1.6 million people, virtually identical to the net gains in 1972 and 1973.

The rate of gain also is holding steady at seven-tenths of one per cent.

A FRESH NEW YEAR—The year 1974 has ended with all the woes and foes; along with it goes the old tattered and torn calendar, or what's left. Dean Dixon, an employee at the new Eaton plant ported by substantial evidence."

Then, Rheinstein said, the company resumed the unwarranted ads.

"Lederle presents: low-estrogen Zorane ...," the ads say. "For her peace of mind ... and yours ... it would appear prudent to limit estrogen ... Hence, good therapeutics would indicate the use of the lowest effective dose of estrogen that is otherwise acceptable."

The seizure was "a complete surprise," a Lederle spokesman said. It came after months during which the "FDA and Lederle have had a series of discussions" about Zorane ads, the spokesman said.

The company said there were no safety or effectiveness problems with Zorane. "We have not been informed of the specific objections," the spokesman said. He declined further comment.

Dr. Richard Crout, head of the FDA's bureau of drugs, said the pills would not be destroyed.

"It's not like dumping spoiled food," Crout said. "We negotiate, and if we are assured of proper advertising, the seal is removed."

assembled at the Yankee offices in New York that Hunter had been signed to a multi-million dollar five year contract with the team. (AP Wirephoto)

Hunter Inks Yankee Pact

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Catfish Hunter's strong right arm — considered by some to be baseball's best — belongs to the New York Yankees. And Hunter's first use of it was to throw his signature on a contract which The Associated Press learned will total about $3.75 million, making him the highest paid player in the sport.

The Yankees hooked Hunter Tuesday and the 28-year-old pitcher, most celebrated free agent in baseball history for 15 days, came from North Carolina to sign a five-year contract and end one of the most expensive bidding wars ever known in the sport.

"It was always the Yankees and 22 other teams," said Hunter, admitting that the Yankee pinstripes had been his favorite since childhood.

A contract with a 10-page addendum to spell out the complicated details of Hunter's new employment was signed at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Yankees' temporary offices near Shea Stadium — the team's home during the rebuilding of Yankee Stadium, that fabled baseball park known as The House That Babe Ruth Built.

Then the mustachioed Hunter, jauntily wearing a Yankee cap, appeared at a news conference, flanked by Gabe Paul, the club president.

"I'm delighted or I wouldn't be here," said the smiling Hunter, who won 106 games in the last five seasons, more than any other pitcher in baseball.

Hunter, ace of the world champion Oakland A's pitching staff, was ruled a free agent 15 days ago because A's owner Charles O. Finley, it was decided, failed to live up to all the terms of Hunter's 1974 contract.

Yankee President Paul said he hoped the addition of Hunter will return the New York team to its former days of greatness. The Yankees signed another onetime Oakland figure — former A's Manager Dick Williams — a year ago. However, Finley refused to go along with the deal and Williams, after sitting out half the 1974 season, wound up as manager of the California Angels.

Finley vows to battle his latest loss to the Yankees also and said late Tuesday he expects to win — just as he did in the Williams case.

Paul said that when the current Yankee partnership was created, majority owner George Steinbrenner "publicly stated that everything that possibly could be done would be done to provide a winner. He further told me we were not to back off in money deals, and when his unfortunate suspension was invoked, he told me, 'Any time you have the opportunity to buy the contract of a player for cash I want you to go ahead whenever it would be advantageous to the Yankees.'"

The AP learned from highly placed baseball sources that Hunter and his lawyers had sought a deal calling for a five-year playing contract that would total $3.75 million and pay Hunter $2.5 million in salary, bonus and retirement benefits.

The sources said Hunter had asked for a $1-million bonus, a salary of $200,000 a year for five years, attorneys' fees of $200,000, a 10-year retirement plan calling for $50,000 a year, a $1-million life insurance policy on himself and a $25,000 insurance policy on each of his two children. The sources said they believed that is about what the Yankees had to agree to in order to sign Hunter.

Hunter would not disclose the amount he signed for, but said the deciding factor in his decision was he wanted to play in New York.

When asked if the figure was $3.75 million, Hunter quipped: "No, I signed for $10 million."

All Paul would say is: "If he didn't have as much pride as he has, we couldn't have given him a five-year contract."

Hunter said one key reason he chose the Yankees was Clyde Klutz, a New York scout who signed Hunter as a high school bonus player in 1964 for the then-Kansas City A's.

"I signed with him when I started with Kansas City," Hunter said. "He never lied to me then and he never lied to me now. If it hadn't been for him, the Yankees would have had more trouble signing me."

Hunter said the bidding never came down to the point of the Yankees versus one other team. He said as far as he was concerned "it was always the Yankees and 22 other teams."

He said no team had finished second in the bidding.

Asked if there had been a bid higher than the Yankees, he replied, "I believe so."

The final negotiations were held Tuesday in Ashok, N.C., in the law offices of Cherry, Cherry and Flythe, where, for two weeks, major league baseball owners had traveled to woo a pitcher they hoped would take them to the World Series and increase their attendance.

Among the final teams in the bidding were the San Diego Padres, the Kansas City Royals and the Cleveland Indians.

Oakland owner Finley, who lost the historic arbitration case because the panel said he failed to live up to terms of Hunter's contract, is going ahead this Friday in a California court with his appeal of the arbitration ruling. Legal sources, however, have said that Finley has little chance of overturning the ruling.

Finley said Tuesday night, when informed of Hunter's signing with the Yankees: "It is my opinion that Hunter still belongs to the A's... We expect the judge to rule in our favor and if the judge rules in our favor it's a closed issue. If we win in the courts and the Yankees have played him prior to our winning, the Yankees will certainly be in for tremendous damages."

Asked about Finley's appeal at the news conference here, Hunter replied: "We're confident we'll have no trouble at all."

In Oakland, Reggie Jackson, a Hunter teammate still with the A's, said, "With the Cat we are world champions. Without him, we are a question mark... we are not a shoe-in any more."

Catfish To Speak

Jim "Catfish" Hunter, America's newest millionaire, will be the featured speaker for the American Legion Baseball Benefit Dinner to be held Thursday, January 9, at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Hunter, who helped the Oakland Athletics to three straight World Series titles and earned the Cy Young Award for the American League this past year, was declared a free agent because of contractual problems with A's owner Charles O. Finley, and was sought by other teams. Originally, 22 of the 24 teams sought him, and last night he signed a contract with the New York Yankees for nearly $4 million.

Proceeds from the dinner will go to aid the Greenville American Legion Baseball program, and tickets are available for a minimum $5 donation from any Legionaire.

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Rangers will play 30 spring exhibition games in 1975, none in their own American League park, the club says. Three of the games may be scheduled for Mexico City.

General Manager Dan O'Brien is negotiating to play games with the Mexico City Reds and the Mexico City Tigers in early March.

The Rangers will wrap up their exhibition season with three games against the Houston Astros in the Astrodome April 4, 5, and 6 before the season opener against Minnesota April 8 in Arlington Stadium.

Cinderella Baylor Squares Off Against Favored Nittany Lions

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Baylor's cinderella Bears "made their historic debut in the Cotton Bowl today as four-point underdogs against seventh-ranked Penn State.

Both teams were surprised to be in the classic because of the way their seasons started. Our goal this year was to have Baylor's first winning season in 11 years," said Baylor's Grant Teaff, who was named Coach of the Year by the Football Writers Association of America.

He turned a 2-9 team in 1973 into an 8-3 club in 1974 to win the Southwest Conference title. Teaff added "We wanted to go to a bowl even if it was the 'Chili Bowl' because Baylor hadn't been since 1963. We didn't even dream of a Cotton Bowl until we had two games left in the season. Then we won Baylor's first conference title since 1924."

At one time during the 1974 campaign, 12th-ranked Baylor was staring nine consecutive losses in the eye. Baylor lost its last seven games of the 1973 season and the first two against Oklahoma and Missouri this year.

"When you go through nine straight losses, that checks your oil, gas and radiator," Teaff said.

"What helped us turn it around?" he said. "Our kids refused to quit — they believed in themselves. We knocked off Oklahoma State and that started the ball rolling. Suddenly, we were winners. So much of football is psychology. We have proved we can be winners."

Penn State Coach Joe Paterno, unlike his counterpart who is new in the bowl business, had a 6-1-1 postseason record going into the 1:10 p.m., CST, kickoff today. Paterno admitted he was a bit surprised the Nittany Lions made it after a 7-6 early season loss to Navy.

"I didn't think we had a major bowl football team until we beat Maryland," Paterno said. "We certainly didn't think we would be here."

Paterno's team finished 9-2 with a big victory over Pittsburgh Thanksgiving Night on national television.

"The team this year is just as good as the team that beat Texas here 30-6 in 1972," said Penn State fullback Tom Donchez, who played in the '72 game.

While Baylor, paced by quarterback Neal Jeffrey and toy tailback Steve Beaird, wanted to write a happy final chapter for the Bears' storybook year, Penn State hoped to impress a national television audience with its brand of Eastern football.

"It seems like everywhere we go, people don't believe in us," said Donchez, who has teamed with quarterback Tom Shuman to give the Lambert Trophy winners an awesome 1-2 offensive punch. "It seems we have a stigma in the polls because we're from the East. That's why the pressure is on us every game."

Complements Traded By Rose Bowl Coaches

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Ohio State and Southern California met in their third straight Rose Bowl clash today with no trace at all of the old adage that familiarity breeds contempt.

Coaches Woody Hayes of the co-champions of the Big Ten and John McKay of USC's Pacific-8 champs have been most complimentary in assessing the rival teams.

"I think the Ohio State offense is better this year than last," declared McKay on the eve of the battle, "because Cornelius Greene is doing more things and Archie Griffin is better. And the line is better."

"Defensively, they might not be as strong as last year, but we've never played an Ohio State team I didn't think was good on defense."

Hayes termed the Trojans better than last year and a little faster than his Buckeyes. "We know Anthony Davis is a fine back," he commented on the USC runner who was second to Griffin in the Heisman Trophy voting this year.

"And," he added, "we have learned a lot from McKay."

Spurs Bomb Pacer Five

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs exploded for their highest scoring output since moving here from Dallas two years ago as they bombed the Indiana Pacers 140-105 Tuesday night in an American Basketball Association game.

"It was a real emotional thing with all 10 of us in there contributing," said Rich Jones, who contributed 27 points of his own to the Spurs' winning cause.

It was the third victory in 11 games for the Spurs since Bob Bass took over the head coaching chores, and Jones said "the win couldn't have come at a better time."

George Gervin had 27 points for San Antonio and Swen Nater had a super night, grabbing 27 rebounds. The Spurs outfought the Pacers on the boards 61-29.

Five Pacers scored in double figures, led by George McGinnis and Charlie Edge, each with 15 points.

The game was the only contest in pro basketball Tuesday night.

Sports Facts

Rookie Rick Middleton of the New York Rangers was the first National Hockey League player to score four goals in one game this season.

The St. Louis Cardinals will have seven southpaw pitchers in training at St. Petersburg, Fla., next spring.

First baseman John Milner led the New York Mets in home runs last season with 20, one more than hit by Rusty Staub.

Irish, Alabama In Big Rematch

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
MIAMI (AP) — This time, it's not the Game of the Century. It's only the Game of the Year for Alabama and the end of an era for Notre Dame.

Two of college football's biggest names collide tonight in the Orange Bowl. Their only other confrontation occurred in the Sugar Bowl last season with Notre Dame winning a 24-23 thriller and the national championship.

A funny thing happened to Notre Dame en route to the rematch. The Fighting Irish lost to Purdue and Southern California. They did, however, win nine other games and are ranked ninth by The Associated Press.

They also lost a coach when Ara Parseghian, who needed one more year to make a run at Knute Rockne's Notre Dame record of 105 victories, announced his resignation earlier this month.

Alabama has its own coaching legend in Paul "Bear" Bryant, whose teams at Maryland, Kentucky, Texas A&M and Alabama have won 242 games, more than any other coach except Amos Alonzo Stagg and Pop Warner.

Alabama is second in The AP's rankings and appears to be the only team with a shot at overtaking No. 1-ranked Oklahoma, which has completed an 11-0 campaign. 'Bama also is 11-0 and favored by 10 points or so to avenge last year's bitter defeat.

However, the Crimson Tide has come up empty in its last seven bowl trips — six losses, one tie — even though they've won 22 consecutive regular-season games and 43 of their last 44.

"We are in a good position," says Bryant. "This year, like last year, it is up to us. We made a decision to go to the bowl which gave the opportunity to play for the national championship and ended up in the Orange. If we win, we'll be happy. If we lose, it will be because we aren't good enough."

"If we win, though, we'll be the only team in the nation with a 12-0 record and I think we'll deserve the national championship."

Notre Dame has won that crown twice in Parseghian's 11 seasons. This season, they are paying for pride and perhaps for Ara.

"I think the pride our players have in themselves as a team and the respect they hold for Alabama is motivation enough to make them want to finish their collegiate careers on a winning note," says Parseghian.

HIGH STEPPING THROUGH THE GATORS—Nebraska fullback Monte Anthony (49) does a little high stepping through Gator country for a good gain. Giving chase are Florida's Vernon Barber (52), Clint

Field Goal In Final Minutes Lets Cornhuskers Nip Florida

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Kicking specialist Mike Coyle of Nebraska said he thought he had missed his game-winning 39-yard field goal in Tuesday night's Sugar Bowl game, "but it had that famous Coyle hook on it."

"I didn't think the last one was good," said the 171-pound soccer-style kicker. "It looked right but faded over the posts. I've never had two bigger kicks in my life."

Earlier in the final quarter Coyle had booted a 37-yard field goal that enabled the eighth-ranked Cornhuskers to erase a 10-0 Florida lead, and the winning field goal with 1:46 to play gave the Big Eight Conference power a 13-10 triumph.

It saved some of the frustration of second team All-American quarterback Dave Humm, who had four passes intercepted and completed only two of 12 for 16 yards before watching from the sidelines as understudy Terry Luck engineered a 99-yard touchdown drive when the lethargic, mistake-prone Husker offense finally came to life.

"It was the worst game I've ever had," said Humm, son of a Las Vegas casino employee. "Even in Little League baseball I never had a day like that."

The game turned around when Nebraska staged a goal line stand at its own midway through the third period with the 18th-ranked Gators leading 10-0.

Florida Freshman Tony Green, who scored on a 21-yard run in the opening period, appeared to have an 18-yard touchdown run, but he was ruled out of bounds at the five. Florida reached the one in two plays, but failed to score, giving the ball up when James Richards was nailed by Jim Burrow on a pitch to the right side.

Tony Davis of Nebraska, named the game's Most Valuable Player after rambling for 126 yards on 17 carries, sparked the three scoring drives. He had 54 yards in seven trips on the touchdown drive, which ended on Monte Anthony's two-yard run, and then rambled for 20 yards on the first field goal march and erupted 40 yards to the Gator 31 to set up the game-winning kick.

"When we held and went 99 yards, that was it," said Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne, who saw his team equal Georgia Tech's record of six consecutive bowl victories.

Coach Doug Dickey of Florida said, "We let the momentum slip away and then the Nebraska muscle took over. We couldn't capture the strength of the game back again."

Red Wings End Year With Win

By The Associated Press
The Detroit Red Wings finished 1974 on the upbeat Tuesday night, while the California Golden Seals got beat to finish 1974.

The Wings got a late goal from Nick Libett in the third period to quash the upstart Californians — who had battled back to tie three times — and end an eight-game winless string.

The Seals, who had made losing a pattern until last weekend when they defeated the Boston Bruins and Los Angeles Kings, had hoped to carry the streak into the 1975 half of the schedule.

But Libett took a pass from Pierre Jarro and whistled a 45-foot shot past California's Gary Simmons with 4:18 remaining to lift the Red Wings to a 4-3 victory in National Hockey League play.

In Tuesday night's other NHL game, the Kings defeated the Chicago Black Hawks 3-1.

In the World Hockey Association, the Chicago Cougars edged the Cleveland Crusaders 4-3 while the Michigan Stags and Phoenix Roadrunners tied, 1-1.

Danny Grant shot Detroit in front 1-0 at 3:53 of the first period, but Larry Patey evened things 10 minutes later. Newly acquired Phil Roberto put the Wings in front again in the second period, but Joey Johnston scored the equalizer at 6:05. Jarro gave the Wings their third lead of the evening with a blazing 40-foot drive at 11:02, and again the visitors came back when Al MacAdam stole the puck from Detroit forward Bill Lockhead, circled in front of the net, and beat Detroit goalie Jim Rutherford cleanly at 10:13 of the period.

Kings 3, Black Hawks 1
Juh Widing scored two Los Angeles goals and Bob Nevin had the other as Los Angeles topped Chicago. Dick Redmond tallied for the Black Hawks.

Cougars 4, Crusaders 3
Cleveland's loss to Chicago left Crusaders Coach John Hanna with a New Year's request: "I'm going to hope for an eight- or nine-goal game so we can loosen up and start thinking we can score," Hanna said. His team took 21 of its 44 shots on Dave Dryden in the third period and didn't score, then Ralph Backstrom broke a 3-3 tie with 7:59 remaining.

Jan Popiel, Bob Liddington and Pete Mara also scored for Chicago. Wayne Hillman, Ron Ward and Jim Harrison hit for Cleveland.

Stags 1, Roadrunners 1
Michigan's John Miszuk and Phoenix' John Gray traded second-period goals, then the teams traded punches in a brawl that resulted in 102 penalty minutes during the middle session.

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers, who upset the Oakland Raiders Sunday to win the American Conference championship of the National Football League, have been installed as three-point favorites to win Super Bowl IX over the National Conference champion Minnesota Vikings.

The odds for the Jan. 12 classic in New Orleans were posted Tuesday by Harrah's Race and Sports Book.

GRANTVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Penn National Race Course, which ended its current meeting today, will open its first full 1975 session on Friday, Feb. 7.

John J. Shumaker, president and general manager of the Penn National Racing Association, said Tuesday the state horse racing association had awarded 100 racing dates to the track near Harrisburg.

The winter meeting will run through March 16, with the track closed on Mondays and Tuesdays except for Washington's Birthday, Feb. 17, when there will be a 1:30 p.m. matinee card. During that week the track will be dark on Wednesday, Feb. 19.

Shumaker said Penn National's summer meeting will get underway on July 2 and run through Sept. 14.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Football Coach Frank Broyles of the University of Arkansas has signed a new contract that will run through December 1979, Dr. Charles E. Bishop, Arkansas president, said Tuesday.

Broyles, who finished the 1974 season with a 6-4-1 record, had been pressured by some disgruntled fans, including state Rep. Woody Clark of Forrest City, to retire from coaching. His over-all record is 129-51-4 in 17 years at Arkansas.

Clark had circulated a petition asking that Broyles be replaced as head football coach so that Broyles could devote full time to duties as athletic director.

The monetary amount of the contract was not disclosed. Neither Broyles nor Bishop was available at once for further comment.

NASHVILLE (AP) — Grand National stock car drivers David Pearson, Buddy Baker, Cale Yarborough, Bobby Allison and Darrell Waltrip plan to record a country music album.

Pardee Named New Bear Coach

By COLEMAN T. MOBLEY
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Jack Pardee says he has never wanted to do anything else in professional football but coach and that's what he's been chosen to do — to lead the floundering Chicago Bears out of the football doldrums in 1975.

Pardee, who built the World Football League's Florida Blazers into a near-champion team, was named head coach of the Bears of the National Football League on Tuesday by General Manager Jim Finks.

"I'm looking forward to coaching the Bears," Pardee said in a telephone interview from his Orlando, Fla., home. "They have a great football tradition and have an outstanding general manager in Jim Finks."

"Finks said he will handle the business operations. He told me he plans to manage the Bears as he did the Minnesota Vikings and that means allowing the coaches to coach."

Pardee, 38, was the WFL's Coach of the Year after guiding his financially troubled franchise to a 14-6 record and then almost captured the league's championship, losing 22-21 to the Birmingham Americans. He said he will be in Chicago on Friday for a meeting with the press and to begin working on next seasons plans.

Pardee indicated it was too early to say what he'll do with the team but said he would help out the personnel department with the player draft at the end of January.

He said he is familiar with the styles and records of the Bears' quarterbacks, Bobby Douglass and Gary Huff, but he had no comment on who would lead his team.

Pardee said he will have freedom to choose his own staff of assistant coaches and formulating a staff will be one of his first major jobs.

Pardee succeeds Abe Giron, whose three seasons as head coach of the Bears led to a disastrous 12-26-1 record with a 4-10 mark in 1974.

A graduate of Texas A&M, he was a Los Angeles Rams linebacker for 13 years and was called to the Washington Redskins as a player and later as an assistant coach.

Terms of Pardee's contract were not announced.

Sloan Rejects Texas Tech Bid

Connors Beaten

MELBOURNE (AP) — Australian John Newcombe beat top-seeded Jimmy Connors of the United States 7-5, 3-6, 6-4, 7-6 today to win the men's singles final of the Australian Tennis Championships. The match lasted just over three hours.

Newcombe won the tie-breaker 9-7 in the crucial fourth set after leading 4-1 and then allowing Connors to get within 6-5.

Earlier in the set the second-seeded Newcombe broke Connors' service when the defending champion made two bad volleys and one drive floated over the baseline. But Newcombe lost his next serve.

Evonne Goolagong of Australia took only 46 minutes to retain her women's singles title at Kooyong Stadium, beating Czechoslovakia's Martina Navratilova, 6-3, 6-2, in the final.

Playing before a sellout crowd of 12,500, Miss Goolagong was strong with her ground strokes and also played with deadly accuracy at the net.

Miss Navratilova did not attack the net as much as she had in earlier rounds and when she did, she frequently made mistakes.

Miss Goolagong said later it was an easy enough victory but she started to worry in the first set with the way Miss Navratilova was playing.

She said, "After I broke her service the second time, her game fell apart and I was able to get on top."

John Alexander and Phil Dent of Australia won the men's doubles final, downing Allan Stone of Australia and Bob Carmichael of France 6-3, 7-6.

keep their "I Believe in Steve" buttons. Steve Sloan isn't going to Texas Tech after all.

"I am turning down a great coaching job," the popular 30-year-old former All-American quarterback said late Tuesday. "But I think I have a good coaching job ... The people here gave me a chance to be a head football coach."

Sloan had been offered the lucrative coaching post at Texas Tech shortly after his Commodores tied the Red Raiders 6-6 in Saturday's Peach Bowl at Atlanta.

Word that he was considering the offer spread across Nashville Monday after Sloan returned from Lubbock.

"It wasn't an easy decision," said Sloan, who became the nation's youngest head football coach when he took over the Commodore helm. "I prayed about it. And, it just came out this way."

Sloan announced his decision shortly after 10 p.m., CST, about 24 hours after word got out about the Texas Tech offer. "I decided, and I really believe that football at Vanderbilt is not any longer the kind of situation ... where they will be 3-8 or 2-9 ... I think now Vanderbilt has a good chance to always have a winning season," Sloan said.

Sloan, a Cleveland, Tenn., high school star before succeeding Joe Namath as Alabama's quarterback, said money played no part in his decision although it was rumored that the Texas Tech package included a healthy television contract.

Sloan is believed to be earning about $30,000 a year at Vanderbilt plus about $11,000 for television appearances.

New Pastor Is Called To People's Bible Church

Dr. Barry Bagwell of Longview, Tex., has been called by the members of People's Bible Church as pastor. He will be preaching Sunday at 11 a.m. He has served in several churches since entering the ministry including Albuquerque, N.M., Jacksonville, Fla., Charlotte, and Longview, Tex.

Dr. Bagwell received his B.A. degree in sacred music at Tennessee Temple College and attended three years at Temple Baptist Theological Seminary for graduate work and completed it at Clarksville School of Theology, earning the Ph.D. degree in religion.

His wife, Freida, is a graduate of Bob Jones

University and Tennessee Temple College.

Dr. Bagwell was co-founder, vice president and instructor at Longview Bible Institute before coming to Greenville. His background includes bus ministries, seminars, Bible conferences, radio, youth camps and youth programs.

The ECU bus schedule for Sunday morning is: Greene Dorm, 9:20 a.m.; Cotton, 9:30; Scott, 9:40; Umstead, 9:45. The Sunday and Wednesday evening bus schedule is: Greene Dorm, 6:50; Cotton, 7:00; Scott, 7:10; and Umstead, 7:15 p.m.

The public is invited to attend the service.

Conservationists Win Vienna Woods Battle

By ROLAND PRINZ
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA (AP) — Conservationists claim to have won a prestigious victory by barring construction of a colossal highway bridge that would have dwarfed an ancient monastery, an architectural jewel hidden in the Vienna Woods.

The project — it caused an uproar among nature lovers, architects and leading artists and professors — was scheduled to emerge a stone's throw away from the country's oldest Cistercian Monastery of Heiligenkreuz (Saint's Cross). Heiligenkreuz was founded in 1135 A.D. by Leopold III, the Holy, a margrave of the Babenbergs, Austria's first ruling dynasty.

Containing elements of Romanesque architecture in the nave of the collegiate church and examples of other style periods, such as the early Baroque main building, the monastery was well known to Catholic pilgrims and holi-daymakers touring the environs of Vienna.

When newspapers reported in December, 1973, that a large Autobahn bridge was to be built about 400 yards south of the church steeple, reaction was harsh and immediate.

Planners and architects in an institute for location and land use sent an urgent letter to Lower Austria's governor Andreas Maurer.

"Mr. Governor, please do all in your power to avoid such barbarism," the team said.

Leading officials of the Federal Bureau of Monuments and the so-called art senate, a loose group of artists and architects, joined in the protest.

And director Friedrich Hoedlmoser, economic superintendent of the monastery, said he conducted endless negotiations with the planning team to defend the historic place.

"We told them that a monument of such magnitude could not be measured in monetary terms after we learned that the bridge construction near our cloister walls would save a lot of money," Hoedlmoser told the Associated Press.

"The bridge, as originally scheduled, would have done irreparable damage to the monastery and surrounding countryside. It would have belied other efforts to protect the environment.

"And we also made it clear that in case our resistance was fruitless we would use every possible legal means to block construction, including an appeal to the Supreme Court," Hoedlmoser said.

The wave of protests apparently made federal and local government agencies reconsider immediately, and in a relatively short time the planning team readied another blueprint that is now at the Ministry of Construction for review.

The rerouted bridge under consideration now runs 700 yards north of Heiligenkreuz, well away from it and out of sight. And construction costs will reportedly increase by 60 million Schilling to a total of some 240 million Schilling ($12 million).

Home Furnishings Course Is Planned

A 10-week college credit course, Home 400 f, Seminar in Home Furnishings, will be offered in Greenville beginning Thursday, January 16, by the Division of Continuing Education of East Carolina University.

It will be taught in three-hour sessions on the E.C.U. Campus at the School of Home Economics Building, Room 230, each Thursday evening through March 20, 1975. Each session will meet from 2:00-5:00 p.m.

Dr. Patricia Hurley will be the instructor for the course.

Pre-registration for the course is not necessary. Students may register at 2:00 p.m. on the afternoon of the first class meeting.

Home 400f carries three quarter hours of college credit which may be used toward teacher certificate renewal or for degree credit if the course fits into the student's degree program.

For further information you may contact the Division of Continuing Education, Box 2727, East Carolina University, Greenville, North Carolina 27834, or telephone: Greenville 758-6109.

Taryn Doesn't Remember Dad

TARYN POWER, about to make her American acting debut, reflects on stories she has been told about her father, Tyrone Power. (AP Wirephoto)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — She was born the daughter of a movie idol, and when she visited his Hollywood grave recently she tried to remember him. But Taryn Power, now 21, cannot summon a single recollection of her father, Tyrone.
"People tell me that I look like him," says the dark-haired, blue-eyed Taryn, who makes her American acting debut Jan. 10 in the NBC-TV special, "The Count of Monte Cristo."

sion. It seemed such an important thing being a professional something. Then I realized that acting was the only thing I really knew."
Taryn and her older sister, Romina, were raised in Rome, the city where their parents were married.
"I think my mother wanted us to live there because she had nostalgia for Daddy," Taryn said.
Three years ago she took her first professional role, starring in "Maria," a movie made in Colombia. Acting in Spanish didn't bother her; she is fluent in four languages and "gets along" in three others. She appeared in a second film last year in Argentina, then visited her mother who lives in Marbell, Spain, where she has become a painter. When Taryn returned to Rome, she was greeted with an offer — the role in "The Count of Monte Cristo."
Taryn, who portrays Valentine, daughter of de Villefort, costars with such luminaries as Richard Chamberlain, Trevor Howard, Donald Pleasance, Tony Curtis and Louis Jourdan, who plays her father. The TV special, which was filmed in Italy, will be released as a feature film in Europe.

Sets Record On The Ice

DECATUR, Ala. (AP) — Weak knees may stop some people from ice skating. But not Robert Howell.
The 18-year-old youth sliced his way through nearly 83 hours of continuous ice skating ending Tuesday evening, setting a record.
The earlier record, 82½ hours, was set by Tony Hocking, a 19-year-old Australian.
After completing the marathon skating exhibition, Howell was taken to the Decatur General Hospital where he was treated and released.
Howell had written a letter to Hocking, who said that he was on crutches for six months after setting his record.
Late at night Howell skated alone. But during the skating rink's operating hours, sliding over the ice wasn't as easy. He had to dodge other skaters and an occasional hockey puck.
The high school senior had tried to play football and basketball, but he said his "weak knees" kept him from making the teams.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.
When this hand was played recently in a tournament in England, a contract of four hearts proved too much for most declarers. One, however, succeeded in bringing home the contract by utilizing an almost unnoticeable asset in dummy.
Despite his wealth of high cards, no opening bid other than one heart should even be considered by South. The hand contains five losers, and unless North can respond to an opening bid of one, it is unlikely that game can be made. South needed no more than a sign of life from his partner to go on to game.
After the opening lead of the king of diamonds, almost every declarer won the ace, drew trumps and then relied on a 3-2 club division. This will occur about two times in three, but on that particular day South's luck was out. As a result, the defenders collected two clubs tricks, a diamond and a spade for down one.

The successful declarer improved those odds somewhat. After winning the ace of diamonds, he cashed the ace and queen of hearts. When he saw that the suit split 3-2, he temporarily abandoned trumps and shifted to the seven of diamonds. This forced West to win the jack. Just in case declarer was playing for a squeeze in the black suits, West returned the king of spades to take out dummy's entry. Declarer won the ace and made the fine play of leading the ten of diamonds and discarding the losing spade from his hand!
East was forced to win this trick with the queen of diamonds, but since the nine-eight of the suit had fallen, dummy's six now became the master card in the suit. The king of hearts was still in dummy as an entry, and eventually declarer discarded one of his losing clubs on the high diamond. Thus, declarer lost only two diamonds and a club.
Declarer was rather lucky to find such a favorable distribution in the diamond suit, and in addition, finding the hand short in diamonds holding only two trumps. However, his line of play did give him an extra chance—at no cost. Had declarer not succeeded in setting up a diamond trick in dummy, he could still have fallen back on a 3-2 club break for his contract.

Mislabeled As Aspirin

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — An estimated 150,000 capsules of a prescription drug for treatment of epilepsy have been mislabeled as aspirin and shipped to Connecticut for use in prisons, hospitals and other state institutions, according to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. A state official says the drug is not harmful unless taken excessively.
Arthur J. Beebe, Region 1 director of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, said Kasar Laboratories of Illinois shipped the drug to Con-

Mexico Plans Quake Network

By ALFONSO CHARDY
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico plans to install a new seismological network to pinpoint the centers of earthquakes five minutes after they occur anywhere in North and Central America and the Caribbean.

Julian Adem Chajn, director of the National University's Geophysical Institute said in a recent speech:

"Mexico will be the first country in the world to establish a continental seismological network..." His speech, to the annual Mexican Geophysics Conference here, was reproduced in the University Gazette.

He said once the network is installed, probably in the next two years, seismologists in Mexico will be able to detect an earthquake over an area estimated at nearly half a million square miles, including Alaska, Canada, the United States, Mexico, Central America and the Caribbean.

The current seismological office in Mexico covers only about 100,000 square miles, officials said.

"We have estimated that with the new network we will be able to obtain in less than five minutes the exact epicenter of any earthquake over 4 degrees on the Richter Scale in Mexico and surrounding territorial seas," Chajn said.

He said that the epicenters of earthquakes measuring more than 5 degrees in North and Central America as well as the Caribbean will also be detected in less than five minutes.

At present the seismological office here, with two monitors operating, requires 15 to 20 minutes to detect an epicenter because of insufficient equipment, officials at the office said.

The Richter scale measures the ground's motion in a tremor. A tremor of 4 or 5 degrees is considered mild. One of 6 is deemed severe and one of 7 can cause widespread damage. The San Francisco quake of 1906 registered 8.3 degrees on the scale.

Hundreds of small to mild to strong earthquakes hit Mexico and Central America and the Caribbean every year, officials said. Some of these earthquakes' epicenters cannot be determined.

The worst earthquake to hit the region in recent history was the Dec. 23, 1972, tremor that devastated Managua, Nicaragua, killing an estimated 10,000 people. An earthquake that hit south-central Mexico Aug. 28, 1973, leveled scores of towns and left upwards of 700 people dead.

Chain, the university's geophysical expert, said the projected network would consist of four "trunk lines" or monitor stations around the nation that would gather data when a quake hits and send it through electronic equipment to two already existing reception centers in Mexico City.

With the data gathered by the monitors outside the Mexican capital, the two stations here will pinpoint the quake's epicenter through a system of coordinates. He said the system will not be able to predict an earthquake before it hits.

Some officials said the system would be comparable to the Boulder, Colo., seismological station which can detect quakes around the world. But the Mexican version will be smaller and only regional, they said.

The network will also be able to detect quakes out at sea and pinpoint epicenters there to see if tidal waves could affect land in the region that the system will cover, Chajn added.

He said two of these earthquake monitors would be set up in the Mexican ports of Mazatlan and Acapulco on the west coast.

"We will be able to send information to Mexican ports and also to Hawaii and Japan so they can take precautions," he said.

The network may also be used to detect volcanic activity in Mexico and Central America. As a bonus, it will also be constantly used to examine the subsoil of Mexico to find out its structure, Chajn said. He added that such knowledge will help in the search for mineral and oil wealth as well as the discovery of geothermic vapor sources.

The network will be managed by the university and the plans have already been drafted by the Mexican Federal Communications Ministry and the Science and Technology Council.

Must Cover Up In Using Sauna

CANBERRA (UPI)—Australian politicians must be covered if they want to share Parliament House's sauna bath. Previously, the bath was restricted to men.

But Parliament's governing body, the Joint House Committee, has bowed to popular demand and issued a new ruling that both men and women MP's and senators may use the bath together if they are suitably dressed.

Urges Wishes Of Juan Peron

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — President Maria Estela (Isabel) Peron has directed public officials in Argentina not to name streets, plazas, buildings or other public places after her late husband, Juan D. Peron. Mrs. Peron asked officials throughout the country to respect the wishes of Peron, who died July 1, "who said publicly on numerous occasions that such homage does not contribute to national unity."

Watergate Jurors See A Spartan Lifestyle

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The jurors in the Watergate cover-up trial began the new year under Spartan living conditions which they must endure until their deliberations are complete.

Before beginning their third day of deliberations on the guilt or innocence of the five defendants today, the jury spent a quiet New Year's Eve at a Washington hotel.

There was no celebration, not even a cocktail for the nine women and three men on the panel. The jurors deliberated all day Tuesday, including 2½ hours of listening to four key White House tapes.

The jury has deliberated a total of about ten hours since being instructed Monday by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

The five defendants — John N. Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson — and lawyers in the case have been waiting in the courthouse for the verdict.

Through most of the three-month-long trial, the jurors have been allowed two drinks at their own expense before dinner at the Sheraton Park Hotel, where they are sequestered.

Television, phone calls, radio and newspapers were permitted in their off hours, with diversionary trips out of town or to local dinner theaters over the weekends.

All that is over now. Horace Webb, spokesman for the U.S. Marshal's office, said, "The idea is to keep their minds on the important case they are deciding."

The jurors Tuesday afternoon heard tapes of presidential conversations of June 23, 1972, and March 21, 1973.

On the first of three June 23 tapes, Haldeman is heard urging former President Richard M. Nixon to have the Central Intelligence Agency persuade the FBI to limit its investigation into the June 17 Watergate break-in.

Nixon agreed to Haldeman's proposal, according to the tapes. Later the same morning, according to testimony at the trial, Haldeman and Ehrlichman met with CIA officials who were ordered by Haldeman to meet with top-ranking officials of the FBI.

Watergate prosecutors estimate the original Watergate investigation was delayed by at least a week as a result of the idea suggested to Nixon by Haldeman.

Haldeman's defense lawyers argued that the White House had been genuinely concerned that CIA operations in Mexico might be jeopardized by a full-blown FBI probe.

Mild Quake Greenville Man Conservation Winner

PALMER, Alaska (AP) — A moderate earthquake has jolted an area 40 miles north of Anchorage, rattling windows and shaking shelves. But authorities said there were no reports of injuries or major damage.

A spokesman for the National Weather Service's Palmer Observatory said the quake late Tuesday registered 5.3 on the Richter Scale. The location was roughly the same as earthquakes Dec. 29 and Dec. 30. Those measured 4.8.

"We had some problems with the telephone service for a while," said Corp. Wayne Starr of the Alaska State Police. "But that was caused primarily by overloading of circuits — everybody was trying to call everybody else."

The Richter Scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. A reading of 5.0 reflects a quake 10 times stronger than one of 4.0.

Would Accept Chancellorship

RALEIGH (AP)—Former North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott says he will not actively seek the job of chancellor at his alma mater. But he would, if it is offered, regard it as a challenging opportunity.

Scott, an alumnus of North Carolina State University, is one of 130 people under consideration to replace retiring Chancellor Dr. John Caldwell.

A former state senator, George Wood of Camden, confirmed Tuesday that he had nominated Scott to a search committee.

Noah T. Hardee of Greenville, was recently designated one of the award-winning conservationists from across the nation. Hardee was the only winner of this Goodyear sponsored competition from North Carolina. The award is given for conservation practices applied to farm land.

As a result of being an award winner, Hardee and one other person from Pitt County were provided a tour of a reef being constructed by the Deltona Corporation in association with the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company.

Making the trip with Hardee was Robert G. Little of Grimesland, Chairman of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District.

A total of 106 people were declared winners in the 27th annual Goodyear Conservation Awards.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JANUARY 2, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Be poised and calm as you perform small tasks necessary to build a better set of conditions for yourself in 1975. Otherwise, you find you become too nervous, upset, with possible arguments.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get into the details of any matters awaiting your attention. Plan to rest some after the hubbub of the holidays.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Charm others into doing what you desire, since you have right ideas. Help loved one overcome fears. Have more confidence.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Home requires your attention, so if away from it on business give it at least some thought. Don't take kin for granted.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Drive carefully to get business attended to without trouble. Don't lose wallet, important papers.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be economical; watch budget. Use own good judgment and you get along well, but stay away from that adviser who has own problems now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Use perfect control and don't change from one thing to another. Say little, but listen much. Show courtesy to all.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Instead of trying to squirm out of promises made, keep them honorably and all is well for you in the future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't criticize your friends, but praise them. Don't be so anxious to get some personal aim which might be wrong for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Avoid tangents. Follow every regulation. A higher-up may be in a bad mood, so keep out of his or her way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study new ideas before acting on them. A newcomer may seem to be very informed, but you had better check for accuracy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle responsibilities conscientiously. You have good hunches, but only for the near future. Show spunk with a troublemaker in p.m.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Have talks with partners but remain objective, impersonal. Then all works out fine. Avoid one who opposes you, could cause trouble.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want everything in apple-pie order, so teach early to make allowances for human error. Then your fine progeny can do much to make the lives of others better, as well as make his or her own satisfying and profitable. One who will always make an intelligent plan first, then carry through with every detail in a painstaking way. A fine leader.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Terrorist Boasts Social Repercussion

MIAMI (AP) — The leader of the Nicaraguan terrorist group which flew to Cuba says the mass kidnapping of a dozen Nicaraguan officials was "a political action of profound social repercussion," Havana Radio reports.

The chief of the guerrilla Sandinista group was identified only as "Comrade Marcos" in the broadcast monitored Tuesday in Miami. He was said to be 29 years old.

Marcos and 12 other members of the Command of the Sandinista National Liberation Front arrived in the Cuban capital Monday aboard a Nicaraguan airliner. They were accompanied by 14 political prisoners exacted as ransom for 12 prominent Nicaraguan government officials and other hostages held in a 60-hour siege in a luxurious Managua home.

Havana Radio said the guerrilla group was composed of three women and 10 men, one of them wounded in the chest in a shootout with police when the rebels took over the house Friday night.

There was no mention by Havana Radio of the ransom money also demanded by the terrorists. They had asked for $5 million, but Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza said the government paid less than $500,000.

There was no explanation for the discrepancy in the number of guerrillas reported by the Nicaraguan government and Radio Havana. Nicaraguan officials said there were eight terrorists. None beside Marcos were identified.

989 Slain In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — A record 988 homicides were committed in Chicago in 1974, and within two hours after the new year began, four more persons were dead of gunshot wounds.

Homicide investigators speculated New Year's Eve that the city's death toll by violence could reach 1,100 for 1975.

Two of those killed after the new year began were teen-age girls slain in a South Side tavern, apparently during a New Year's Eve celebration, police reported. Dead were Linda Goodrum, 19, and Sharon Donaldson, 18.

Police said the last murder victim of 1974 was typical of many which made up the year's toll: Glen Bladen, 23, a drifter with a minor arrest record, found shot to death for no known reason in a South Side alley Dec. 30.

The previous record for homicides in Chicago was 864 in 1973.

Clinton Quartet To Be Featured

The Hunnicutt Quartet of Clinton will be the featured singers Saturday night at the Grindle Creek Church of God.

Local singers will also take part in the first sing of the year. The Rev. James B. Morris is the pastor.

FROGMEN CALLED IN
TOKYO (AP)—Frogmen searched a frigid mountain lake in central Japan today for 22 skiers police said were missing after their crowded bus plunged off a narrow road and into the lake.

Precautions In Flu Epidemic

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Because of an outbreak of flu in the Charlotte area, hospitals are limiting visitors to immediate family.

The precaution was adopted to reduce the exposure of patients to virus infection.

It was adopted Tuesday and is effective for 10 days.

It applies to Charlotte's three main hospitals—Memorial, Mercy and Presbyterian. It also applies to the Charlotte Rehabilitation Hospital, the Community Hospital, and the hospital in nearby Huntersville.

The flu has not been identified as a particular strain.

Several small businesses in the city have closed temporarily because employees are out with the virus. Other firms are reporting a high rate of absenteeism.

Shopper Is Theft Victim

RALEIGH (AP)—Burglars have stolen $640 worth of clothing from the home of Raleigh's most famous convicted shoplifter.

Police said Tuesday someone had entered the home of Linda S. Jones and stolen the women's clothing.

Mrs. Jones recently worked with police after her conviction for shoplifting in the investigation that resulted in the indictment of Mrs. Marguerite Lightner, wife of Raleigh's mayor, on charges of receiving stolen goods.

Prescription For Botulism

CHICAGO (UPI) — To avoid botulism, an Illinois Institute of Technology microbiologist, Dr. Nicholas Grecz, suggests:

—Never eat or taste foods which are known or suspected of being spoiled.

—Do not throw away swollen cans or spoiled foods which may be retrieved or consumed. Return them to store managers.

—If in doubt, heat the suspected food to the boiling point. Heating will destroy any toxin which may have developed, although it will not kill the botulism spores.

—Always refrigerate leftovers.

—Never attempt to do home canning without a pressure cooker. Heating should be at 250 degrees F. for 20 minutes.
