Millions Of Aliens Creating Problems

News Briefs

By DONALD E. MULLEN United Press International At least 4.5 million illegal aliens are living in the United States and more are streaming into the country in such numbers they have virtually crippled the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Attorney General William Saxbe says these gate crashers constitute "a severe national crisis." On Jan. 6, President Ford appointed a cabinet-level panel headed by the attorney general to study the problem and recommend a solution.

In many parts of the country officials neither have the money to detain illegal aliens nor the money to send them home.

Southern California has the largest concentration—an estimated 1.5 million—followed by Texas and the New York City metropolitan area with about 1 million each. The Chicago metropolitan area has an estimated 500,000.

The rest are scattered from Florida to Washington and from Arizona to Maine.

They aren't just working at stoop labor in the Florida and California lettuce fields, nor as house maids in Manhattan. They are meat cutters in Chicago, and welders and auto mechanics in New Jersey. They tend bar in Miami Beach resort hotels and drive taxis in Los Angeles.

Floods Hit Southern Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Floods in southern Thailand have killed 131 people and destroyed many rubber plantations and mining facilities in southern Thailand, the Interior Ministry said today.

Floodwaters reached 10 feet above normal during the week making more than 10,000 people homeless in six provinces.

The government set up a special relief fund of $18.3 million but long-term reconstruction may cost hundreds of millions and will probably take more than a year, the ministry said.

Wants Israeli Withdrawal

CAIRO (UPI) — Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of Iran joined Egypt Saturday in calling for Israel's total withdrawal from occupied Arab lands and affirming the "right of the Palestinian people to their homeland and the Arab character of Jerusalem."

In a statement distributed by the Middle East News Agency, Egyptian Premier Abdel Aziz Higazi said the Shah and President Anwar Sadat reached "full agreement" in their talks which began Thursday and were continued during a sightseeing trip to the ancient monuments of Luxor and Aswan.

Tornado Damage Extensive

McCOMB, Miss. (UPI) — A survey of the tornado-battered McComb area Saturday showed 88 homes and 110 apartment units destroyed or badly damaged, and officials said repairs may run as high as $15-million.

Seven persons were killed in Mississippi and another died in Alabama Friday when clusters of tornadoes dropped out of the skies and raked parts of seven states. In addition to Mississippi and Alabama, states hit included Florida, Louisiana, Arkansas, Kentucky and Indiana.

No More New Towns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Housing and Urban Development is shutting down the program to provide federal aid to developers of planned "new towns," The Washington Post reported Friday night.

The Post story said HUD has notified developers it will not accept further applications for construction loan guarantees or other federal new town assistance.

Wants Pueblo Story Known

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The second highest officer on the spy ship Pueblo has called upon the government to release what he says is the true story of the capture and detention of the ship by North Korea.

Former Navy Lt. Edward R. Murphy Jr. said Friday he wanted the government to "quit releasing only the sanitized Bucher version" so "the public can know why first of all we lost the ship Jan. 23 and also why we lost again in regard to the Oct. 11 (1968) repatriation."

The Navy denied knowledge Friday of any offer by the North Koreans to release the ship and its 83-man crew more than two months before their actual release on Dec. 22, 1968.

Damages For Surveillance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has been ordered for the first time to pay damages growing out of illegal surveillance.

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey ruled Friday that the Justice Department must pay $903,232 to Fred B. Black Jr., a former Washington lobbyist and one-time business associate of Robert G. "Bobby" Baker, former secretary of the Senate.

The damages were awarded because the FBI placed an illegal microphone in a wall of Black's suite at a Washington hotel Feb. 7, 1963. It was in operation for 2½ months.

Americans Spied On?

LONDON (AP) — The London Times published an article today by a self-identified former CIA agent who suggested that in the age of the computer readout it can fairly be said that the Central Intelligence Agency spies on as many as 100 million Americans.

Decisions To Be Announced Wednesday Will Propose Tax Cut

By RICHARD LERNER WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford told Republican congressional leaders Saturday he will propose a tax cut in the State of the Union speech he will deliver to a joint session of Congress at 1 p.m. EST Wednesday.

Administration sources said the President may suggest a flat 10 per cent rebate on taxes due April 15 for 1974 earnings, plus a new cut for this year in a double-barreled attempt to fight the current recession.

The 1975 reduction is expected to total between $10 and $15 billion.

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen declined to give any additional clues to Ford's economic plans or the new energy-saving program which also will be announced in Ford's first State of the Union address. But he said: "The decisions are all made."

Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and his counterpart in the House, Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona, met with Ford a little more than an hour and confirmed that the President said he would be recommending some kind of tax break. Scott said the proposal for a rebate on some 1974 taxes was discussed.

"There will be, if the Congress enacts the legislation which the President will propose, more money in the hands of the American public to spend," Rhodes said.

The two leaders, speaking outside the White House after Ford previewed his new economic program for them privately, said they were in agreement with Ford's policies but could not elaborate on the President's decisions. Scott said "those specifics are strictly within the preview of the President."

Democratic congressional leaders have announced plans to spell out their own remedies for the economy, including a tax cut, Monday morning and both Scott and Rhodes said they, as well as the President, hope the White House and Capitol Hill will resolve their differences quickly so the necessary legislation can be enacted within a couple of months.

"What the public wants is some action from the President—they'll get it—and from the Congress and they should get it there," Scott said.

The Republican senator said "the important thing is to give the people some relief from their present concern—that will be the President's intention." He added that "whenever Congress really wants to act in the public interest, in a sense of urgency, they can."

To Pray For Rain

ALGIERS (UPI) — Minister of Religion Mouloud Kassim Saturday asked citizens of this drought-stricken country to pray for rain on Algeria's New Year's holiday Tuesday.

Ministry officials said spring crops are likely to fail unless the country is drenched with rain within six weeks. Algeria's usual heavy rainfall at the end of the year did not occur.

One Year Med School At ECU To Be Closed

By SUSAN QUINN Reflector Staff Writer East Carolina University will close its one year medical school and delay by one year expansion of the school to a four-year program, University of North Carolina President William Friday announced Friday.

Friday told the university system's board of governors that the delay is aimed at giving ECU additional time to build a faculty and prepare for expansion to a full four-year medical college.

The decision for the delay was suggested by ECU officials, according to Dr. Leo Jenkins, Chancellor at ECU.

"We want to be sure of everything before we get started, Jenkins said Saturday. "The fact that we haven't been guaranteed the money by the legislature is also one reason for the delay," he added.

"We feel that it is a wise decision to give us time to develop our faculty and to hire a dean," Jenkins said. "No one will know for sure about the money until about June when the legislators approve their appropriations budget for the next year," he added.

To make up for ECU not having its one-year program next year, the medical school at UNC in Chapel Hill will be expanded by 30 to 140 so the students who would have attended ECU won't be shut out, Friday said.

According to Jenkins, the students applying to ECU next year will have their applications forwarded to the UNC Chapel Hill medical school.

The board of Governor's request of the legislature for $35.2 million to set up the school and another $3.7 million for operation will not be affected by the delay, according to Friday. In November the UNC board approved the expansion of the ECU program to a full, four-year medical school and set a tight timetable that called for accreditation in 1975.

The board also approved Friday's recommendation that the ECU students be transferred to UNC if ECU failed to meet the schedule. Friday had announced earlier to the accreditation board that this would be the last year for the one-year medical school and upon the announcement of the proposed delay of the medical school to the board of governors he suggested that no change be made in dissolving the one-year program this year, although some of the ECU officials were willing to continue the one-year program for another year and have students on the campus during the period of planning for further expansion.

According to Dr. Edwin Monroe, Vice-Chancellor for Health Affairs, a committee is presently considering recommendations for the dean of the expanded medical school and selecting faculty. The process of selection of the staff will take at least two more months," Monroe said.

Issues Facing 1975 General Assembly Discussed

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

The North Carolina General Assembly will begin its 1975 session Wednesday. Senators and House members representing Pitt County, last week, voiced their views on what they expect to be the major issues facing the Legislature. "We have a much smaller surplus than we had the past two or three years, and with the declining economy, Julian Allsbrook all agree that we are not going to be able to do the budget . . . the question of everything everybody wants. money . . . will be the number one issue this year as it was during the 1974 session."

"The budget will be the big item," Rountree said. "Nobody knows exactly how far this economy situation is going down. When you have several thousand people unemployed, it effects your income tax and sales tax take."

"There's no question we are going to be short of money for new programs, and might even have a problem with continuing existing programs," he said. "The question of a tax cut,"

Rountree theorized, "is not going to be looked on too favorably by the General Assembly, because that would cut the services to the people," the Representative noted.

"There's no question but what money will be one of the main issues this go-around," Bundy agreed. "We have a much smaller surplus than we had the past two or three years, and with the declining economy, we are not going to be able to do the budget . . . the question of everything everybody wants. money . . . will be the number one issue this year as it was during the 1974 session."

White emphasized, "tight money makes it necessary that the General Assembly take a very close look at all appropriations, whether it be funding of present services and programs, or new services and programs . . . and attempt to cut out all unnecessary . . ." spending.

"I am sure," he continued, "that there are many worthwhile and needy programs, but due to the lack of money, it will be impossible to fund them."

As for Allsbrook, "the real question is money," he said.

The Legislature, Allsbrook said, will have to determine "those things that are absolutely necessary for the government to operate and function . . . then what can be cut out without seriously undermining the basic structure."

According to Allsbrook, "the State has to tighten its belt and require of itself the same type of cutbacks and reduction of expenses the average man or woman is required to face. That's the feeling I have about it."

"I feel there will be serious efforts made to hold to a minimum, if not eliminate, new programs which have not been funded, except in the fields of health—such as the East Carolina University Medical School—welfare and security of the people," according to Allsbrook.

"For the four-year ECU Medical School, all four lawmakers believe it will be funded. "It will certainly be funded as an absolute necessity, if funds can be found, without seriously influencing absolutely necessary functions of the State government," Allsbrook commented.

"I cannot conceive of any appropriation that is more greatly needed than the activation of the East Carolina medical school."

"Money for the establishment of the four-year ECU medical school is most important, and I predict that it will be funded," White emphasized.

According to Rountree, "as far as the medical school situation is concerned, there is now $35.2 million in the budget, plus the $15 million which is now being held for the expansion (appropriated by the 1974 General Assembly)."

"I'm reasonably sure that we will get almost all of the $35.2 million, or at least a goodly portion of it, barring any unforeseen difficulties, which I don't envision at this time."

Rountree noted, "It appears that the State of North Carolina might very easily work with the Pitt County Memorial Hospital board in adding a new tower to the new hospital in order to get the additional bed space for the medical school, and a real possibility that they might proceed within a year to build the basic medical science building."

Bundy noted, "My understanding is that the Advisory Budget Commission has included it (the $35.2 million for the medical school) in the

Sen. Vernon White

Rep. Sam Bundy

Sen. Julian Allsbrook

Rep. Horton Roundtree

budget. With the overwhelming vote that the General Assembly gave it (medical school expansion) last year, and now that the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina has come around (authorizing the four-year school) I feel fairly certain that it will be funded. And if all of the requested funds are not appropriated this year, it will be funded when it's needed.

"I think it's in the groove now, and it will come on through . . . we're over the hump on this thing. There might be a speech or two made against it for hometown consumption, but I can't see any concerted effort to derail it," Bundy commented.

Employee salaries take the largest share of State funds, the Legislators noted, and this is one area that the General Assembly will be looking at closely, to see where savings can be made.

None of the four lawmakers see massive lay-off of state employees, but they feel the addition of new personnel is highly unlikely.

Family Seige Of Chateau Ended

MONTAUBAN, France (AP)—Police stormed a 30-room chateau early today, ending a two-year-old siege by the former owner's family.

The former owner's son, Baron Jean-Louis de Portal, 22, was injured in the armed assault and was taken to a hospital, police reported.

His mother, Baroness Anna-Marie de Portal, 50, and his sister, Marie-Agnes, 23, were arrested and charged with armed resistance.

Armed with telescopic rifles and gas masks but living in isolation and poverty, the family kept the new owner and his employees away from the building, threatening to shoot anyone who approached.

They claimed they were unjustly deprived of ownership of the estate in a tangled series of lawsuits preceding Baron Leonce's death.

As debts and tax claims piled up, the estate was sold to a local farmer at an auction in 1972 for about $54,000 dollars — one-eighth of what was believed to be its true value.

The De Portal family challenged the sale in a long series of court actions, all of which they lost. In April, a Toulouse court reiterated its eviction order, but the De Portals remained in the chateau and occasionally took potshots at employees of the new owner working in the nearby fields.

They found new hope when an anonymous American sympathizer sent them $15,000 and in gratitude they raised the Stars and Stripes from the chateau flagpole.

But the sum was too small to buy back the estate, and, in any case, the new owner was unwilling to sell.

Two Accidents Friday

Two traffic accidents were reported by the Greenville Police Department Friday afternoon.

A vehicle operated by Jimmy Wayne Harris of Winterville collided with a vehicle operated by Frank Moyer of 702 Cherry St. at 4:20 p.m., according to police reports. Damages were listed as $225 to the Harris vehicle, with minor damage to the Moyer vehicle. No charges were made.

James Edward Jackson, Jr. of Dunn reported to police that while his car was parked in the parking lot of River Bluff Apts. Friday afternoon another vehicle collided with it. Damages were listed at $200 and no charges were made by Greenville police.

Charged With Assault

James Carlton Ross of 1311 S. Cotanche St. was charged with assault on a female by Greenville Police Saturday at 1:06 a.m. Ross's bond was set at $200.

Investigating Robbery

Grifton Police are investigating the breaking and entering of the J.A. Rogers Furniture Store. Police reported that the store was entered by force between 2-4 a.m. Saturday and the following items were listed as known to be missing: ten televisions, four pieces of luggage, two car stereo tape players; one portable tape player, one office adding machine and $50 small change.

Texas Firm To Build Planes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force has picked General Dynamics Corp. to build its new lightweight jet fighter, making the Texas firm the probable winner in one of the biggest and most hotly contested contract battles ever, Defense Department sources said Saturday.

General Dynamics, which in past years has produced such planes as the F111 swing-wing fighter and the B24 of World War II fame, has been competing with California-based Northrop Corp. for the new multi-billion dollar contract.

Sources said, however, the Air Force choice still must be approved by top civilian Pentagon officials including Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger and Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements.

If the selection is approved as expected, they said, the Air Force plans to announce the contract award on Monday or Tuesday.

The prize for which General Dynamics and Northrop were competing was the development and production of some 650 new Air Force jets worth an estimated $3 billion over the next few years, plus potential sales of several hundred more fighters to the Navy and to Western European nations.

In all, defense experts say, sales of the relatively low-cost fighters could total 3,000 planes worth substantially more than $15 billion.

Rare Stamp Found In $10 Box

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A box filled with comic books may turn into a bargain hunter's delight for three partners in a Cincinnati stamp and coin shop.

The men bought the box for $10 at an auction barn in Covington, Ky. Buried in the box was a collector's album which contained a stamp that one partner said may be worth as much as $1.7 million.

The find is a four-pence English stamp of 1887-1892 general issue.

$55 Million Suit Filed

HOUSTON (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union has filed a $55 million suit in federal court in the wake of reports that police intelligence officers compiled dossiers on citizens not suspected of criminal activity.

The suit filed Friday alleges information collected in the dossiers ranged from the political and social associations of the citizens to matters concerning their sexual habits.

Defendants in the class action suit are former Mayor Louie Welch; former Police Chief Herman Short, J.L. Singleton, former head of the police intelligence division; Mayor Fred Hofheinz, and two other police officials.

Wife To Keep New Husband

TAITUNG, Taipei (UPI) — Former Japanese army private Lee Kuang-huei said Saturday his wife should continue living with her second husband although she is legally still married to him. His wife did not object.

"Although I was lucky to come back safely, I would not break their marriage," Lee said. "They have been married for 21 years and they should stay together."

Wants To Join Investigation

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Virginia attorney general's office has asked the Federal Power Commission for permission to participate in an FPC investigation of natural gas curtailments by Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp.

Transco has cut Danville's natural gas supply by 55 per cent, raising the specter of some 10,000 persons losing their jobs in the city of 47,000.

The Transco cutback was "taken without notice or regard to impact upon major industrial users of natural gas for process needs and the employment of approximately 10,000 persons," the state said Friday in a petition to intervene in the FPC probe.

The FPC has been conducting hearings in Washington on natural gas curtailments by Transco and other companies to Virginia and other states.

The petition said Transco's curtailment has jeopardized the operation of the Farmer's Chemical & Fertilizer Co. in Tunis, N.C., which supplies a large percentage of fertilizer used by Virginia farmers.

New GE Plant Announced

SALISBURY, N. C. (AP) — The General Electric Co. has announced plans to open a plant in Salisbury later this year to manufacture component parts.

James R. Aldridge of Bridgeport, Conn., GE employ relations manager, told Salisbury and Rowan County officials Friday the plant will have about 100 workers.

An exact date for the plant opening was not announced. It will be GE's eighth plant in North Carolina.

Port Authority Change OK'd

RALEIGH (AP) — A proposal to make the state Ports Authority independent of the Department of Transportation was endorsed Friday by the authority.

The resolution was the result of state Transportation Secretary Troy Doby's Nov. 1 decision to control port operations and personnel. Doby said he was pleased with the board's action.

Doby said his effort to control the ports and personnel was aimed at forcing legislative clarification of who actually has the control. He said state laws appear to give the transportation secretary and the Ports Authority identical, but conflicting, authority.

No Civilian Hiring

Spokesmen at the Camp Lejeune Marine base and Cherry Point Marine Air Station say that no more civilian employees will be hired until economic conditions improve.

They said jobs that become open because of attrition will not be filled. At Ft. Bragg, an Army installation, a spokesman said the base had no plans for a freeze on hiring civilians.

At Camp Lejeune, Lt. Col. H.N. Owens said the freeze is temporary and none of the 2,200 civilians at the base will be laid off.

There are 1,400 civilians at the Cherry Point base.

N.C. GOP In Debt

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Republican Chairman Thomas S. Bennett says the state party is about $100,000 in debt and has cut its headquarters staff to three persons.

Bennett said in an interview that part of the party's business this year will be a fundraising effort to pay off the debt. He said the debt includes $55,000 incurred during the 1974 campaign and $45,000 held over from the administration of former party chairman Frank Rouse of Kinston.

Stable Oil Prices To Hinge On U. S. Policy

By United Press International

The oil producing states will offer the West stable oil prices if the United States abandons its "policy of confrontation," the authoritative Middle East Economic Survey said Saturday.

The Beirut weekly said oil producers would give "assurances that adequate supplies of oil will be forthcoming at reasonably predictable prices," if the United States stops its pressure campaign that was given a new dimension last week when Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned of possible military intervention, it said.

"U.S. military intervention in the Middle East would be not only catastrophic," the magazine said. "Its result could only be to exacerbate the disease it was designed to cure—lack of oil."

"It is just one element in a whole gamut of threatening U.S. postures towards the oil producers which, taken together, amount to a hard-nosed stance that could without exaggeration be termed a policy of confrontation," it said.

"There are the makings of a deal here provided the whole delicate process is not torpedoed by war and calamity."

The official Algerian newspaper El Moudjahid urged oil producing countries to demand that oil prices be adjusted to meet inflation.

"Oil producing countries are certainly not going to be satisfied with devalued means of payment for their oil exports," the newspaper said. It urged oil producing nations to defend their purchasing power at an International Monetary Fund meeting in Washington and the Jan. 24 Algiers session of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

May Need State Taxes Increased

RALEIGH (UPI) — It will likely take until mid-May for state officials to provide the 1975 General Assembly with a firm picture of the state's economy, and if the forecast is too gloomy, legislators may have to consider a tax increase, according to Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr.

unless some other major state service or function was in jeopardy because of falling state revenues.

Tar Heel Unemployment Reaches 7.4 Per Cent

RALEIGH (AP) — The state's highest insured unemployment rate in 11 years was recorded in the last week of 1974, the North Carolina Employment Security Commission reported Friday.

There were 128,208 North Carolinians who filed for unemployment benefits during the last week in December, bringing the unemployment rate to 7.4 per cent, the ESC reported.

In contrast, the insured unemployment rate was 2 per cent at the end of 1973, the commission reported.

The highest unemployment rate was among hoisery workers where it reached 19.5 per cent. Textile unemployment was 17.7 per cent; apparel workers, 15.6 per cent; tobacco, 13 per cent; lumber and wood, 12.2 per cent; construction, 11 per cent; and furniture, 9.6 per cent.

First time claims for unemployment insurance increased 222 per cent during the last week of 1974 compared with the previous week, the commission said.

Employment officials blamed the high unemployment rate in the textile industry on reduced demand combined with high inventories. The depressed economy forced the cutback in construction, the ESC said.

In mass layoffs during the week, 26,693 persons were put out of work by 116 companies, the ESC said.

Tug Found

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C. (AP) — A 144-ton tug was found 50 miles off the North Carolina coast Saturday afternoon by Coast Guard teams that had launched a search when the vessel's radio contact was broken.

The Coast Guard said the tug, identified only as the "Tracey D," had reported it was running low on fuel and was dropping its tow on a 275-foot decommissioned destroyer-escort.

Five hours later the tug re-established radio contact and was then spotted by a rescue aircraft, the Coast Guard said.

Critical Of Prisons

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — State Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, called Saturday for better management of the North Carolina prisons system and said any state tax relief or tax increase the next biennium "is out of the question."

Scott was sharply critical of Secretary of Correction David L. Jones, saying that under Jones' administration "we have seen one of the best prison systems in the country slide steadily down hill."

Scott made his comments in a prepared talk to the Political Action Committee for Education (PACE).

He said the prisons were only "warehousing" people, not rehabilitating them. He added rehabilitation had become a thing of the past.

"If David Jones is a prison administrator, I'm a nuclear scientist," Scott told the group. "It will take some time to improve our prison facilities, but we could get some good management out there right now if the governor would just do it."

Jones was not immediately available for comment.

Wants Female Bishops, OK On Homosexuals

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A group of 300 Methodist clergywomen has urged that the United Methodist Church elect female bishops and accept homosexuals in the church.

"We asked the church to take a new look at the concept of homosexuality," said Thelma Stevens, a retired staff member of the Methodist Board of Global Ministries, "and allow the homosexual to become a full person in the church."

"We want them to be recognized as equal persons with the same rights to serve the church and the community where they can and want to serve."

She said the resolution concerning homosexuals was "not related to any small group—not to women or to men, not to minorities of a majority group—but to all homosexual persons."

Also adopted during the week-long National Consultation of Ordained Women in the United Methodist Church was a resolution "to work for the election of one woman bishop in each of three jurisdictions in 1976 and to ensure the appointment of at least 10 women district superintendents in each jurisdiction by 1976."

Mrs. Betsy Warren Receives Jaycee Young Educator Award

Mrs. Betsy Warren, reading resource teacher at Agnes Fullilove School here, has been named recipient of the Jaycees' annual Outstanding Young Educator Award.

Mrs. Warren received the 1974-75 OYE award Thursday night from Superintendent of City Schools Glenn Cox during the Jaycees' regular meeting.

A native of Concord, Mrs. Warren graduated from Concord High School in 1962 and then attended St. Mary's Junior College where she earned an Associate of Arts degree in 1964. She graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill with an A.B. degree in education and earned her master's degree in education in 1972 from UNC.

From 1966 to 1969, the educator taught in the Chapel Hill Schools system and during the spring of 1972 she served as a graduate assistant at UNC-Chapel Hill in an Elementary Language Arts Methods course.

During the summer of 1972, she managed and taught at the Burlington branch of the Chapel Hill Reading Clinic and the 1972-73 school year was spent teaching language arts to the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades in the Chatham County Schools. She taught reading resources at E.B. Aycock Junior High School here in 1973-74 before moving to Agnes Fullilove in 1974.

Discussing her role in teaching reading resources, she pointed out that in an effort to provide an atmosphere that encourages learning, several avenues of approach are used. They include: providing many opportunities for success, so students can avoid continued failure; teaching through the strength of a child to overcome his weaknesses; making students feel important and secure; demonstrating to students that mistakes are acceptable ways to learn and are not punishable by death; lessening negative pressures; and providing students with materials that are educationally sound but are also fun and interesting.

The young educator said that she has tried to increase her own effectiveness through course work, in-service conferences and workshops reading professional journals, and self-evaluation.

"I also try to think of and employ new ways of teaching reading, to reach the underachiever and the unmotivated student," she pointed out.

Mrs. Warren is a member of the National Council for Teachers of English, the International Reading Association, the National Education Association, the Association of Classroom Teachers, and the North Carolina Association of Educators.

The new OYE winner and her husband Dan, are the parents of a daughter, Elizabeth, who is five and a half years old.

Runner-up for this year's award, which was presented "in recognition of exceptional progress in the field of education and contributions to the community," was Richard Wilkerson, who teaches at Elmhurst School.

Doug Hill served as chairman of the OYE project for the Jaycees while members of the panel of judges included Dr. Davis Stevens, Dr. Tom Haigwood, and Cox.

Brought Problem Out In Open

Farmville citizens are obviously concerned about the problem of drugs among their young people, so much so that many of them attended a Farmville Board of Commissioners meeting last week to express that concern.

After a number of citizens were heard, Mayor Will Joyner appointed Vassar Field, Bob Fields, Mrs. Don Wrought and Jack Lewis to a committee. They are charged with advising the commissioners and the police on ways to cope with the drug problem in Farmville. The committee can be expanded and the commission indicated that it would report on ideas for action at the February meeting.

There was a time not so many years past when drugs were a far-off problem for our area. It was something we knew was dealt with in the city ghettos but there was relatively little of it here.

Now we know that it is a very definite problem in North Carolina. Drugs are certainly circulating in Greenville and the surrounding rural areas, and apparently they have become a problem in other municipalities of the county, too.

It would be the easiest thing in the world for responsible citizens to throw up their hands, declare that nothing can be done and go on about their business. It is likely, though that something can be done if a citizenry becomes aroused enough.

It appears that there are citizens in Farmville who want to meet the problem head on, and are willing to give of their time and efforts to do so.

We don't know the answers as to how a community can deal with the problem of drugs being sold illicitly, and we are sure that neither the committee nor the Farmville Board of Commissioners has all the answers right now either.

We have to start looking for answers, however. We have to find ways to get to the source of illegal drugs and cut them off. We have to educate our young people to the horrors of drug use and we must make parents aware that they have to be alert to drug use among their children.

Farmville has brought the problem out into the open where it can best be dealt with. A citizens' committee has gone to work looking for answers, and we think that is commendable.

"Behold! I bring unto you the true, the only word . . . !"

Cut Paperwork, Spending

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Government paperwork has long been cursed by both those doing the job, and those on the other side of the desk.

Now comes some statistics to prove the nettlesome nature of paperwork: printing and paper costs to state government are in the ranks of the top four items for spending state dollars.

In the last fiscal year, the state spent $13 million on paper and printing—surpassed only by purchase of cars and trucks ($14 million), gasoline ($15 million), and other fuels ($16 million).

How to cut down? A directive has gone out from the Department of Administration suggesting a simple technique: use both sides of the paper, and cut down on the numbers of copies. Already some governmental memoranda and reports are showing up typed or printed on both sides. That simple technique could cut in half the paper expenditures, if followed closely.

Other top items for spending are $8 million for school buses, $10 million for construction equipment, and whopping $12 million for stone, sand and cement, and another $7 million for asphalt materials, all used in road work primarily.

Upper Or Lower
State Sen. McNeill Smith of Greensboro—longtime champion of the repeal of a sales tax on food—is embracing another major cause as well in the upcoming General Assembly session.

In recent remarks to the American Association of University Professors gathered at Guilford College, Smith came out against increased state aid to private colleges.

The professors—on their own home court—heard Smith deliver a lengthy and scholarly review of the history of public versus private education in North Carolina.

Concluding, Smith thinks that "until we do better by our public schools—the lower grades—we should not increase the college subsidies . . . We can't afford to scatter our shots. If all our young people are short-changed, it won't help us much to put more in colleges for the 20 per cent of our people who do get to college."

Smith believes the state should reduce public school class size further, especially in the first three grades; make sure pupils can read before promoting them; use early childhood screening and correction techniques to battle learning disabilities to "save money and grief later on."

Teach Basics
"You can have all the college degrees, Ph.D.'s, and all the rest, but if our young people in the very early years don't learn how to read and write, do arithmetic, and get a taste of what fun using the mind can be, they have no chance in life," he said. Given a good foundation, they will go on to college if they want to.

Smith raises a question likely to be heard many times and related to many different issues before the 1975 General Assembly adjourns: does North Carolina need (a veterinarian school, another law school, more prisons, etc.) or better public school education?

Think Twice
State employees had best stop and think before they run downtown to buy a box of pencils or paper clips—they might be taking them back for a refund.

The tendency has been to go ahead and buy such little items instead of waiting for purchases to clear through the central purchasing operation.

Oh, well, the reasoning goes, it's such a little thing this won't matter.

Purchasing chief Herb Carter did a rundown on such practices across the state for a two-month period from late September through mid-November, calling for reports from all agencies, colleges, etc.

The state spent $7,302.09 more than it needed for the routine office items (or drugs in several cases for hospitals) which were available under a contract price rather than retail.

Carter is telling state employees to plan ahead and get their supplies through normal channels and cut out that projected $42,500 over-spending per year.

Other Editors Say All Of A Sudden

(Washington Daily News)

North Carolinians are just being called upon to understand too much too quickly.

We cannot figure out exactly why our state and its people so suddenly are hit with a big gas shortage. We understand some of it but not all of it. And from what we have read, Gas company officials played an excellent game of "cat and mouse" in not revealing complete answers to North Carolina officials.

It appears to us that almost overnight North Carolina loses at least a third of its natural gas supply. And the impact of this loss will be felt in a great many places. Unless some changes are made, the state says that around 46,000 North Carolinians will lose their jobs.

N.C. Attorney General Rufus Edmisten was quoted as saying that North Carolina has sustained almost half the curtailment for the entire Transco Gas system.

Any cutback is bad, but if North Carolinians are being treated unfairly as Mr. Edmisten seems to be saying, then legal steps should be taken immediately. All states should be fed out of the same spoon, and North Carolina should not be cut 39 per cent while another state is cut only five per cent.

Some people strongly hint that all of this sudden shortage is created in order to get a big increase in the retail price of natural gas. If exactly that happens, then the federal government ought to find out why.

We suspect very honestly that the price of natural gas will go up immediately. How much it will go up will tell a big story. If supply itself is not the big reason for the sudden shortage and price is the reason, then government itself ought to take appropriate steps.

Of course North Carolina is not as dependent upon natural gas as it is upon electricity. But let us not forget that industrial plants depending on gas, individuals using gas in their homes, and small businesses needing gas for their operations all could be in emergency situations.

There is a story of price. There is a story of supply and demand. And there is a big story about the suddenness of what has happened in our state.

The sudden shortage of natural gas cannot be glossed over lightly.

Proof Of An Aura?

By J. THOMAS FAILLA

Associated Press Writer

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP)—

The faith healer's aura may be more than a phenomenon perceived only by those who believe in his power, says a Connecticut College psychology professor.

Dr. Bernard Murstein says he has found physical proof that humans emit auras related to their feelings.

Through an electro-photographic process Murstein and graduate student Serge Hadjilian have found that people who like one another emit strong auras and those disliking one another have no emissions. "Here is a measure that seems to go beyond any verbal disguises," Murstein said in an interview. "It might be of help in determining how much people are attracted to one another. Sometimes people are confused whether or not they really like someone."

Murstein said his work could have a direct application in selecting personnel for projects where people are involved in constant and long-term contact.

In experiments, Murstein has paired subjects place their finger tips on a photographic plate and passes an electrical current through the plate.

If the subjects liked one another as determined in a pre-experimental questionnaire, bright and wide rings appeared around the fingerprint imprint on the developed picture, Murstein said. In cases where the subjects disliked one another the converse was true, he said.

"It must be some kind of feeling of relaxation or comfort that might be analogous to a cat purring. The body knows when it feels comfortable and reacts accordingly," the professor said.

Murstein said he believes the auras are formed by the body's response to the buzzing electrical discharge from the photographic plate but he has no proof of this.

"Nobody knows what in particular causes it. We do know it

INSIDE REPORT

Ford's Crisis In Vietnam

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The Ford administration decided Tuesday to seek desperately needed arms from a hostile Congress for beleaguered South Vietnam based on this secret warning from Ambassador Graham Martin in Saigon: if weapons continue to be rationed at the present parsimonious rate for another three months, the result will be catastrophic.

Thus, policymakers meeting at the State Department decided on an all-out effort for an immediate $300 million in arms. Most critically needed to stem the dangerous through still localized Communist offensive is ammunition, particularly for Saigon's ample supply of big guns. These guns are now starved for shells to fire. Also in critical short supply is aviation fuel, which has partially grounded Saigon's small air force.

These shortages of both ammunition and aviation fuel contributed to Hanoi's conquest of Phuoc Binh city, a provincial capital only 75 miles north of Saigon, in the Communists' most glittering military victory since the 1972 offensive. The latest triumph flowed directly from anti-Saigon animus in Congress; other military disasters could follow.

Seeking military aid for Saigon is a formidable first challenge for President Ford in facing the new Congress, overwhelmingly liberal and Democratic. The difficulty was apparent to the emergency session Tuesday of Mr. Ford's top officials, including Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, CIA director William Colby and Deputy Defense Secretary William Clements. Their decision, concurred in by the President: Mr. Ford himself will take the leading role in persuading Congress.

They were left no choice by Martin's stringent warning that shortages of ammunition and fuel were trapping Saigon's forces in a series of predictable and ugly defeats against the enemy's lavishly-equipped tank brigades.

Martin's message was terse: high battlefield casualties to South Vietnamese troops defending strongpoints, including district capitals in the highlands, were causing severe morale problems. A large percentage of those casualties, he reported, are directly due to limitations imposed on the firing of weapons to conserve dwindling stocks of ammunition. The stocks have been dwindling because of the Pentagon's allocation of scarce supplies in compliance with restricted congressional funding.

The first crack at Congress will seek an immediate $300 million appropriation to finance conventional ammunition and fuel from the Pentagon's domestic stocks, both of which are in plentiful supply. The last Congress actually authorized $1 billion for military aid to Saigon but only appropriated $700 million; so, the $300 million sought needs clearance for floor action only by the House and Senate Appropriations Committees, traditionally more friendly toward South Vietnam than the dovish Foreign Affairs and Foreign Relations Committees.

Despite that slender advantage, Mr. Ford's aides have no illusions about the congressional quagmire they are entering with this week's decision to reopen the inflammatory congressional debate over Vietnam. Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, Chairman of the Armed Services Committee, has agreed to help. But other senior Democrats have not yet been contracted for help in an uphill battle in each house. To line up other leaders of both parties, President Ford is planning

Strength For Today

CREATIVE PEOPLE
We sometimes talk about creative people as if they are a type of mankind apart from the rest of us. And when we think of creative work we think of art or music or literature—imaginative productions of which the great majority of us are completely incapable.

Yet, as a matter of fact, the creative impulse is an attitude of mind and heart. In anything we do, no matter how humble, we become creative when we strike a spark in someone else so that this person for a brief moment sees or understands something he did not comprehend before. We may also become creative in simple tasks. A man may make a chair, or sell goods, or run a turret lathe, or manage a business—all in a creative fashion. Sometimes this person does some little task just a bit differently than it has been done before; sometimes he sees a little different application to which the task can be put.

In the broadest sense, therefore, all of us can sometime be creative and enjoy the sense of fulfillment it brings.

A Season To Correct Excesses

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Austerity is the keynote now. Mayors, governors and the President of the United States espouse it. Individuals practice it, and so do corporations.

If there is anything good that can be said of recession it is that it corrects excesses that creep into practice during easier days. It forces a return to the old virtues, if only temporarily.

Newly elected officials throughout the country are calling for less waste. Individuals are cutting back sharply on their use of credit. Corporations are cutting plans to spend on plants and equipment.

While all these practices will be seen as further evidence of a deterioration in the economy, all of them seem to be periodically necessary in order to bring a disarranged state of finances into better order.

Cities had been overspending their tax bases, many state governments were overloaded with help, and the federal government budget was habitually exceeding revenues by billions of dollars.

Individuals, too, were exceeding their budgets, sometimes merely to buy the things of life but too often because easy credit paved the way. That credit burden is now being reduced.

Corporations were producing goods designed to maintain the high rate of consumer spending, knowing all the while it really couldn't go on forever. Detroit discovered that.

As more austerity is practiced, the rise in consumer prices is almost certain to slow, although actual price cuts are far less likely. Interest rates already are dropping as loan demand recedes.

But, as Americans remember from other periodic recessions, austerity also can be a painful corrective. Unemployment in December exceeded 7 per cent and is almost certain to approach 8 per cent this spring.

Some economists are revising their forecasts made just a few weeks ago, and almost all the revisions are downward. Some suspect that the consensus of an upturn by late summer may be too optimistic.

The anticipated decline in plant and equipment spending, for example, is seen by some, including James Pate, assistant secretary of commerce, as bad news for the second half of the year. Inevitably, questions are arising about the necessity of such a violent whipsawing of the economy, from peak to valley. Who is responsible?

Could greater stability be assured by more effective government policies? The role of the Federal Reserve Board is likely to get attention from Congress. Did the Fed, in its fear of rearing inflation, clamp down too strongly on the availability of money? There are few experts on economic matters, if you judge by the disagreements among the so-called experts.

Somehow, stability remains the most elusive economic quality. Leaders can produce excess or austerity, as they have regularly in the past decade and are likely to continue doing.

Share Gloom As To Peace

(Copyright 1975, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—The pessimistic view of Americans regarding the economy is matched by their gloomy view of the prospects for peace in the world during 1975. Six in 10 Americans (61 per cent) in a recent Gallup International Survey predict a "troubled year with much international discord," compared to 29 per cent who think 1975 will be a "peaceful year, more or less free of international disputes."

In the nine nation survey, only the British are found to be more pessimistic than the Americans. As many as seven in ten in that nation think the next 12 months will be marked by international disputes.

In Canada a smaller proportion, but still a clear majority of 56 per cent, share this outlook. In Spain, also, the weight of opinion is solidly on the side that 1975 will be a troubled year.

In the remaining five nations surveyed, however, opinion is either closely divided on the outlook for peace or else is predominantly optimistic. These nations are Sweden, Uruguay, Switzerland, France and India.

Economic Outlook Also Found Bleak

As reported earlier, few rays of hope are found in the overall economic outlook of Americans or in the outlook of people in the other key nations surveyed.

Nearly nine in 10 Americans (87 per cent) think the number of unemployed will rise, while 75 per cent think prices will continue to climb and 63 per cent believe 1975 will be a year of strikes and industrial disputes.

Large majorities in most of the other nations surveyed also predict both growing unemployment and rising prices. In addition, the weight of opinion in most of these nations is that we are in for a year of strikes and industrial disputes.

Details Of Survey

During the last weeks of 1974, Gallup-affiliated organizations in 10 nations conducted surveys of representative samples of the public in each nation. In the U.S., a total of 1,517 adults were interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities nationwide during the period Dec. 6-9.

Here are the questions which have been asked at regular intervals since the late 1950s by Gallup International, and the results:

"Which of these do you think is likely to be true of 1975: a peaceful year, more or less free of international disputes, or a troubled year with much international discord?"

Following are the results for the nine nations that participated, ranked from most pessimistic to least:

Peaceful Year—Or Troubled Year?

	Troubled	Peaceful	No Opin.
Great Britain	69%	14%	17%
U.S.A.	61	29	10
Canada	56	30	14
Spain	45	19	36
Sweden	41	42	17
Uruguay	38	37	25
Switzerland	36	52	12
France	31	42	27
India	26	41	33

Little Difference Among Groups In U.S.

Analysis of U.S. results reveals few differences on the basis of background characteristics. Women hold views similar to men. Little difference is also found on the basis of educational background, political party affiliation or region of the country.

Some differences emerge, however, on the basis of age groups, with young adults, 18 to 29, somewhat less inclined than older adults to predict a troubled year ahead.

A Conservative View Further Thoughts On The Republican Outlook

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

An attractive young gentleman from Princeton dropped by the other day, eager to talk about his term paper in political science. His topic: "What Lies Ahead for the Republican Party?"

The honest answer—the answer to every such question—is, "It depends." That adds up to a pretty short term paper.

The party's future depends, in my own view, largely on the answer to this question: How quickly, and how convincingly, can the Republican party identify itself as the party of responsible conservatism? If the party has a future, under the Republican label, it lies in such identification. If the GOP foolishly tries to be all things to all people, in an effort to "broaden its base," the party will go the way of the Whigs a century ago.

My young friend from Princeton had taken a year from his studies in order to work in several Republican campaigns. It proved a discouraging task: All his candidates lost. He found it hard to attract volunteer workers; he found it hard to raise money. He had good candidates to work for, but in 1974 they were tainted candidates:

They were Republican candidates. It was the label that killed them. It was like vichyssoise by Bon Vivant.

Well, I said, this was understandable. Unfair, perhaps, but understandable. As the November elections approached, how were "Republicans" generally identified? These were the wonderful folks who gave us Nixon and Agnew. Even before the verdicts were rendered in the cover-up trial, the party was seen as the party of corruption. If the voter wanted one dismal picture, frozen ineradicably upon his eye, he could envision Spiro Agnew, the apostle of law and order, sitting at his vice presidential desk, saying good morning to the bagman. Or he could take a frame of a summer film clip: Charles Sandman, the gentleman from New Jersey, abrasively defending his duplicitous chief.

In the popular view, the Republicans were seen not merely as the principals of Watergate; they were also the architects of recession, inflation, unemployment, and no gas today. They were the party of the wheat deal; they were the party of Harrold Carswell, who was to represent mediocrity on the high court. The image was terrible.

Yes, the image was distorted, imbalanced, unfair. Among thousands of Republicans in public life, only a handful actually were involved in Watergate. In any rational view, the Democrats who dominated Congress must bear much of the blame for our economic ills. Worldwide forces contributed heavily to inflation. Nixon's accomplishments in foreign affairs ought to be remembered. In November none of these things counted for much. The voters took dead aim on the Republican party. They left the poor old elephant bleeding from a hundred wounds.

Are the wounds fatal? That is the term paper question. No one ever named me the team doctor, but I suggest that the GOP's best hope for survival lies in the public opinion polls that find the American people predominantly "conservative" in their own sense of political identity. It is a curious thing. When the pollsters set out to measure affiliations and attitudes, they find Republicanism never has been lower or conservatism higher. Plainly, the two are not identified with each other.

What do the people mean when they tell Dr. Gallup they are "conservative"? My young friend suggested that the people are not speaking politically, but personally. In their own everyday lives, they fear excessive debt; they want safe streets, well-disciplined schools, competent public services, freedom from governmental harassment. They want honest work for honest dollars, and they don't want to be hassled around.

The Republicans' problem is to understand these concerns, and to translate them into positive political action. The Republicans have to have an affirmative program—something better than mere nay-saying, something more than "me, too." If such a program is seen as a conservative program, maybe the elephant will get on his feet and recover. If not, the graveyard yawns.

Congress Can Serve Us Well By Not Plunging Recklessly Into Action

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

A new Congress is about to take over in Washington and, according to advance billing, is in a mood to plunge right in and swiftly solve the nation's economic ills.

Taken at face value, this is reassuring and, no doubt, is so intended. Certainly, a display of responsibility by the national legislature could do much to lift a public confidence which has dropped so low under the twin pressures of inflation and recession.

Looked at in political terms, there can be no doubt that Congress has the power to act, even to the extent of forcing unwanted legislation on the White House. The Watergate-induced landslide of last fall gave the Democrats top-heavy majorities in both the House and Senate. Congress is in a position to set policy.

But when you come right down to it, there is no real reason to expect Congress to do much in the way of problem solving. Sure, a great deal will be made of patching up here and there, just as in the past. The thing that is missing from what we read and hear from Congress is any real concern for stabilizing the dollar.

The heart of all the proposals being floated out of Congress in the name of the Democratic majority is a huge shot of deficit financing, coupled with a re-inflation of credit at low interest rates. This, of course, has been the inflation fuel of the past.

Coupled with this dose of stimulants is the notion that if another inflation spiral results, then it can be dealt with by direct controls. This, of course, is simply a sham.

The major differences in this approach and those of past efforts to stimulate a lagging economy is that the deficit jolt would flow from tax cuts, rather than another spurt in spending. And the difference is significant, in that millions of individual taxpayers would decide where this "extra" spending goes. Washington's economy managers would be left out of it.

When President Ford unveils his new economic program, it, too, is expected to propose a tax cut to stimulate spending.

But Ford, unlike the Democrats, is expected to give more weight to keeping a brake on inflation. He would hold stimulants to low doses like the economic trend becomes easier to read.

It is worth noting, while Washington mills about, that more and more lofty prices are beginning to show cracks. The upward march in industrial commodities has lost some of its zing. And, more and more, producers are simply trying to pass along cost increases, not raise profits margins. Recession is having an impact.

A prime example is the way Chrysler is cutting prices on its autos. This recognizes that the auto makers have simply priced themselves out of a market. But it is worth noting that Chrysler used a customer refund gimmick, rather than a cut in listed prices.

The reason, of course, is the threat of future price control. There has been a suspicion that price increases of the recent past have been made with an eye to the possibility of ceilings in the future. This threat has become an actual prop under prices.

Thus, any Washington course which carries with it the prospects of a new inflation fire will make the price outlook even worse.

Congress would do well to drop the notion that it has a mandate to act swiftly. It should keep its actions within the bounds of prudence. There's still plenty of time to play politics, with 1976 in mind.

The past few weeks, with its bad economic news and great political clamor, have provided a significant test of President Ford. He has refused to be stamped into hasty action. He knows it will be hard for the system to survive more Washington mistakes.

Evans-Novak.

At first glance, the prospects for getting the 94th Congress to help South Vietnam help itself seem grim. The freshman liberal Democrats have emerged from an atmosphere of shame and anger over the American role in Vietnam. They have come to Washington to battle recession and inflation, not meddle in the blood feuds of Indochina.

But Ford administration officials by no means feel helpless. The case to be made for this first instalment of emergency aid, on its face, is that Saigon has displayed surprising resilience and military skill. Government troops have been holding their own against North Vietnamese regulars supplied by Moscow and Peking with tanks, heavy artillery and other sophisticated arms moved south from Hanoi since the cease fire-in contravention of the 1973 Paris agreement.

If Saigon is given the means to use its guns and planes, these officials insist, South Vietnam will not be overrun. In three months without help, a final countdown will start with its tragic climax quite predictable. That is the choice President Ford is putting before the 94th Congress.

Bill Of Rights Missed A Housewifely Freedom

The Bill of Rights guarantees all U.S. citizens freedom of speech and freedom of press, but, alas, our founding fathers overlooked one crucial freedom—the freedom to buy rubber gloves on Sunday.

I realized that I lacked this freedom when I walked into a local drugstore about two weeks before Christmas and attempted to buy myself a pair of these passports to chap-free dishwashing.

"I'm sorry," the clerk said. "But I can't sell you these living gloves on Sunday."

"Well, I'm not particular," I answered. "You can sell me dead gloves, and I'll be satisfied."

"That's not the point, ma'am. The Blue Laws prevent me from selling these gloves on Sunday."

"Blue Laws?" I asked. "That sounds like a violation of my Civil Rights."

"What do you mean?" the clerk asked cautiously.

"The Civil Rights Bill states unequivocally that you're not supposed to discriminate on the basis of color. But, if you want me to, I'll go back and exchange this pair for some yellow ones."

"I'm afraid you don't understand," the clerk said patiently as she checked out a lady buying a Baby Burpeeze doll. "The Blue Laws prevent stores from selling non-essential items on Sunday."

"Non-essential?!" I gasped. "Do you realize that I have sensitive skin and that I can't wash the dishes, they'll sit around and breed germs for the next twenty-four hours? And that those germs might be responsible for an outbreak of cholera in my neighborhood? And if that happens, let it be on YOUR head."

The clerk turned the color of stale noodles. "Don't blame it on me," she gulped. "Talk to that policeman over there."

"What policeman?"

"The one who's sitting at the lunch counter watching us."

"Do you mean to tell me that a policeman sits around here all day drinking coffee just to keep me from buying a pair of rubber gloves?" I asked incredulously. I was beginning to develop a persecution complex.

"Don't take it personally," the clerk pleaded as she checked out a man buying three packages of Christmas tree lights and a Rudolph-the-Red-Nosed-Reindeer Lantern. "He wouldn't let the governor of North Carolina buy a pair of rubber gloves."

GAIL MICHAELS

"So what. How many governors wash dishes?" I grumbled. "And you know our governor doesn't wash dishes, because if he did, he'd get this dumb law changed."

"Yeah, I guess you're right."

"Well," I sighed, "I guess I'll just have to go home and do something essential."

"Like what?" the clerk asked.

"Oh, like stringing Christmas lights on my bushes, or dressing my Barbie Doll, or writing a letter to my legislator by the light of my Rudolph lantern."

"I sure hope you don't get cholera," the clerk said.

"Oh, what do I care about cholera?" I replied. "After today my main worry should be high blood pressure."

Economics, Enforcers Take Thunder Out Of White Lightning

Spotlight By RON HARRIST Associated Press Writer

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Economics, enforcement and education have taken the thunder out of white lightning in the Southeast.

Riley Oxley of the U.S. Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division's Jackson office says illegal whisky production has dropped so much that his Mississippi agents can concentrate more on other duties.

"There's no doubt about it. Moonshining is down tremendously," Oxley said. "We virtually don't have it any more."

The director of Mississippi's Alcoholic Beverage Control Division, Uree Garner, agreed— "Until eight months ago, we were catching 3% stills a week on an average. That average has dropped tremendously."

Garner said people once bought moonshine because it was cheap. "But with the rising cost of sugar and other ingredients, people are finding they can get bonded whisky for the same price."

Dave Barrineau, an analyst at the ATF's Jackson office, said that in 1967, moonshine was selling for about $4 to $5 per gallon in the Southeast.

"Today it's going from $12 to $14 a gallon," Barrineau said. "We don't think people are going to drink moonshine when they can pay the same price for legal whisky."

The ATF said that in 1967, state and federal authorities closed 402 stills and seized 398,356 gallons of mash in Mississippi. In 1974 the figures were 69 stills and 26,615 gallons of mash.

Mississippi's revenue from legalized liquor, which the legislature approved in 1966, climbed from $10.1 million in 1967 to $21.8 million in 1974.

Don Jones of the ATF regional office in Atlanta, said that while Mississippi has had "one of the more drastic declines," illegal liquor traffic is down throughout the Southeast.

Jones said enforcement campaigns in South Carolina and Georgia have played a part in the decline of moonshine, although Georgia continues to lead the region in illegal production.

Garner said law enforcement has had a big part in discouraging moonshiners. He said moonshiners are more conscious than ever about the financial loss they face when caught.

"Everything costs more," he said. "The price of making the vats and other things that go into a still are much more expensive. The cost of copper has gone out of sight."

Garner said that five years ago, state and federal agents often found stills with capacities of 50 barrels but that now most stills "are from two to five barrels."

When moonshiners are raided, the still is destroyed and properties seized. Garner said agents try to raid stills while they are operating, so they can catch the producers and destroy the equipment.

"We surround the still pretty well and most of the time we get the personnel, but they've got a lot of rabbit in them and they take off in all directions," Garner said.

"The bootlegger is like a varmit. When you catch him in one place he's going to move somewhere else."

Alan Krohn, an ATF special agent, said his agency is continually trying to educate the public on the dangers of drinking moonshine.

"We have found that better than 9 per cent of all the illegal whisky we have tested contains lead salt poison," he said.

"We have found in the past that stillbin the Mississippi Delta have used unwashed containers previously used for farm insecticides...not just one still, but hundreds of them.

"These people cut corners in the past, and now they will stoop to anything," he said.

Garner said his Mississippi agents have found rats, mice, roaches and other vermin in moonshine barrels.

"Some of these boys just don't give a tinker's damn," he said, "and if the people buying it could see some of these stills we found, they wouldn't drink any of it."

Oxley said his agents have found stills buried under chicken houses, in hog pens and in other unsanitary places.

get this," he said. "If an animal stumbles into the hole, they simply pull it out and go ahead and distill anyway."

Krohn said once his agents caught a moonshiner "who was using a laundry bleach to try to clear up cloudy whisky. Why, you could smell it in some of the bottled whisky. They'll do anything."

The agents agreed that in addition to economics, enforcement and education, another development has helped stop moonshining. As Oxley put it, "The courts have taken a more serious look at this problem. The sentences have been stiffer."

All Rome Prepared For The Holy Year

By WILBORN HAMPTON
ROME (UPI) — Down around the small streets near the Vatican there is a booming business selling bricks from the holy doors at St. Peter's Basilica.

Counterfeiters are selling free passes to Roman and Italian museums and discount vouchers for city transport. Pickpockets are buying special tickets on the 64 bus line.

In Rome, it's the Holy Year. The only problems with the aforementioned bargains are that the holy door is not made of brick and neither the Rome bus company nor the Fine Arts department have granted any permission for special passes for pilgrims. Before Christmas, 1975, when the Holy Year ends, an estimated six to eight million persons are expected to make a pilgrimage to the Eternal City.

The Jubilees, traditionally celebrated every 25 years, are a bonanza for Rome. The influx of pious pilgrims represents an untapped market for the profit-minded profane.

Souvenirs, especially of a religious nature, suddenly double in price and sell quickly. Favorites are plaster copies of Michelangelo's Pieta and ashtrays fashioned in a replica of St. Peter's Basilica.

Basement factories have been turning out such kitsch curios night and day for the past six months, awaiting their eager buyers. The Vatican view has been to ignore the charlatans on the principle that the crooks shall be with us always, but the church and state have cooperated on a number of things to help guide and assist the pilgrim in Rome.

The very presence of millions of visitors creates a formidable problem of housing and feeding, not to mention the sheer space they occupy.

The Holy Year central committee has taken a poll of religious institutes, pensions and small hotels and said last May that pilgrims could obtain food and lodging for between $10.50 and $12 per day.

The city of Rome has made plans to set up tent cities on the periphery of the city during the heavy tourist periods, especially in August when gypsies from all over Europe plan to make a special pilgrimage. The No. 64 bus line, which runs from Rome's main railway station to St. Peter's, is adding extra buses and workmen have widened from 13 to 20 feet the gate of Sant'Anna in anticipation of increased Holy Year traffic.

Traffic will be one of the major headaches of the 1975 Jubilee, as it has been for almost every Jubilee since the first one in 1300.

Dante, who was one of the first Holy Year's pilgrims, was so impressed with the pedestrian traffic regulation he wrote about it in "The Inferno":

"As the Romans, because of the great crowd
"In the Jubilee year, devised a way
"To have the people pass over the bridge,
"That on one side all have their faces turned "Toward the Castle (Sant'Angelo) and go toward St. Peter's

"On the other side they go toward the Hill..."

For the current Holy Year, city officials have closed to private traffic the main street leading from the Tiber to the Vatican as well as adjacent streets around St. Peter's Basilica.

The entire area around the Vatican will become a virtual pedestrian island for the duration of Holy Year with only buses, taxis and cars with special passes for residents in the zone allowed to drive there.

Another problem of concern to both the Pope and the city is that of dirt and filth in Rome during Holy Year, whether it is moral or physical.

Pope Paul hinted broadly to the mayor of Rome in January, 1973 he would not call a Holy Year unless the city cleaned up its slums and the "provocation of immorality."

The Pope referred to the uninhibited movie advertising on the streets that often is quite explicit about sex and that also pokes fun at the church. Vatican officials said he also had in mind the problem of hundreds of prostitutes who solicit customers without compunction on the major streets of the capital.

Another flap developed when a group of ecologists, led by a former ecology adviser to the government, warned that Holy Year pilgrims might bring diseases with them.

The Health Department responded by guaranteeing more stringent health controls at airports and ports. The city also is setting up special information centers on the Holy Year at Leonardo da Vinci airport and the hotel association is cooperating with the Jubilee central committee to help find rooms.

Flexible Hours Pass 'Test In One Big Firm

By DAN HALL
Associated Press Writer
STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Allowing clerical workers to set their own work hours each week improves morale and reduces absenteeism, says a large firm who has tried it.

Pitney Bowes, a manufacturer of business equipment, experimented with the concept among more than 250 of its employees late last year and now plans to expand the program.

"It's destroyed the old image that people don't work if you don't watch them carefully," said Jerome Perrone, manager of policies and practices who directed the experiment.

The program, which is rare in Connecticut but is winning some acceptance elsewhere, is working out so well at Pitney Bowes it probably will be extended to two or three times the current 250 participants, according to James L. Turrentine, vice president for employee relations.

"I see this as part of a general trend business is coming to," he said. "It is one way of acknowledging that employees are grown up."

A three-month test of the flexible-time program produced an "overwhelmingly positive" acceptance by employees and supervisors alike, Perrone said.

Flexible time allows employees considerable freedom in setting their schedules from day to day during the regular five-day work week.

They may start any time after 7 a.m. and may work up to 6 p.m. The only time they must be on the job is during the so-called "come period" of each day, that busy time when each department needs its full staff.

Flexible time allows employees to put in more than the regular 7½ hours one day and have the corresponding time off another day to shop, go fishing, tend children at home or anything else.

"Lateness with this kind of program literally becomes nonexistent," Perrone said.

Each employee merely begins his or her workday on arrival by using a personal plastic "key" to start a clock-like timing device designed for the program by a New Jersey firm.

The desktop device records only the amount of time the person puts in during the week, not the daily amount.

During the trial period, Pitney Bowes found participants were absent less often, on the average of one hour per employe each month.

At that rate, extending the program to 2,000 employees earning the hourly average wage of $4.15 would save the company nearly $100,000 in three months, Perrone said.

A survey of participants showed 98 of them used schedule changes for leisure time, 92 to attend to personal business, 46 to avoid rush-hour congestion and 32 to spend more time with their families.

"Most people, believe it or not, will work their regular schedules anyway," Perrone said, adding that the important factor is their freedom to rearrange their schedule if they wish.

County Schools Lunch Menus

Lunchroom menus for the coming week in Pitt County schools have been announced as follows:

Monday—turkey and pastry, sweet potatoes, seasoned collards, cranberry sauce, hush-puppies, milk;

Tuesday—cheeseburger, french fries, cole slaw, chocolate pudding with topping, milk;

Wednesday—pizza, tossed salad, barbecue beans, apple wedge, milk;

Thursday—meat loaf, mashed potatoes, green beans, hot rolls, cookie milk;

Friday—vegetable-beef soup with crackers, grilled cheese sandwich, fruit shortcake, milk.

Band Boosters Meet Tuesday

The Rose High School Band Boosters Club will meet Tuesday, Jan. 14 at 8 p.m. in the band room at Rose High School.

Plans to promote more community awareness of the band will be discussed. Activities for the month of January involving the booster parents will be announced. All members and other interested persons are encouraged to attend.

Tuna Industry's Seines Threaten Pacific Dolphin

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Among all the shortages rapidly emerging another: the dolphin crisis. plagues the world, there is Roughly 10 years ago, the tuna industry switched from a hook and line bait to an enormous net, or "purse seine" device. The seine, which is approximately three-quarters of a mile in diameter with a depth of 350 feet, is pulled together at the top like a handbag. The tuna catch is prolific, but fishermen also inadvertently capture and kill thousands of dolphins that swim with the yellowfin tuna in the eastern Pacific.

The dolphin tragedy attracted the attention of Stan Minasian of San Francisco, who took a leave of absence three years ago as a marine biology student at the University of California, Berkeley, to do something about it. He founded the "Save the Dolphin League," with the purpose of alerting the public to the problem. Minasian has been responsible for distributing material, including a comic book entitled "Net Profit," and he has also taken on the federal government in a lawsuit to force release of a film made by the Marine Fisheries Service which shows the fate of dolphins caught in a tuna catch. The government has kept the film under wraps on grounds that trade secrets of the tuna industry might be jeopardized. The captain of the tuna boat on which the film was made gave his approval on condition that the film would not be released. Minasian has been aided in his efforts by passage in 1972 of the Marine Mammal Protection Act, which made it illegal to kill or capture a porpoise without a permit. The tuna industry was given a two-year period to find alternative methods. So far it has been able to come up with only marginal improvements, and has asked for a two-year extension. Minasian also hopes to regain a $3 million program which was vetoed by President Nixon for "Project Porpoise," a study of dolphin and porpoise populations in the Pacific. The Commerce Department currently is studying complaints about the Marine Mammals Protection Act. Minasian called "Project Porpoise" a "big joke compared to what should have happened" and said his feelings were supported by testimony before a recent United Nations hearing on the dolphin plight. In the meantime, the Sierra Club has announced its intention to boycott purchase of light meat tuna until the dolphin killing is "significantly reduced."

Veterans' Van Here Tuesday

On-the-spot help for veterans of U.S. military service will be available in Greenville on Tuesday with the arrival of a National Assistance for Veterans mobile van.

The red, white and blue van will be staffed by two Veterans Administration benefit counselors ready to file claims, answer questions and provide information on the range of government benefits available to veterans and dependents, according to H. W. Johnson, director of the VA regional office in Winston-Salem.

Johnson said the van will be located in the municipal parking lot at Fourth and Evans Street and will be open for business from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

The purpose of the mobile van tour, he pointed out, is to reach veterans who have not made full use of their benefits and other services of the government. Johnson said the tour is part of the Agency's continuing outreach effort to "take the VA to the veteran."

Among the van's other stops in this area will be Kinston on Jan. 15, Goldsboro on Jan. 16, Wilson on Jan. 17, and Rocky Mount on Jan. 20.

Give An Ear--But Make It Right One

NEW YORK (AP) — A research psychologist has some good advice for all of those who, at a party, are more interested in the conversation next to them than their own.

You will probably hear that conversation better if you listen with your right ear, says John Andreassi of Baruch College in New York City.

Dr. Andreassi, an Associate Professor of Psychology, has found that because of the crossover effect within the brain, sounds coming in the right ear stimulate more strongly the left hemisphere of the brain, the area which usually contains the language processing center.

The real object of Dr. Andreassi's work, however, is not pioneering scientific breakthroughs for frustrated eavesdroppers. Under a grant from the U.S. Navy, Dr. Andreassi is conducting a wide range of studies at Baruch College inquiring into the relationship between the brain's electrical activity and its ability to process information. In the process he has discovered some interesting things about the way the brain works.

On Dean's List At Mt. Olive

MOUNT OLIVE—Teresa Legget, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Leggett of Greenville, was named to the dean's list at Mount Olive college for the fall semester.

To qualify for the dean's list, a student must attend the college on a full-time basis, must have achieved a quality point average of 3.2 or higher in the subjects of the semester and must have not received a grade below "C" in any subject for the semester.

More Chewing Tobacco In '74

NEW YORK (UPI) — According to government and industry estimates, the combined production of smokeless, or chewing, tobacco and snuff for 1974 will be 107 million pounds, an increase of seven per cent over the 1973 total.

Chewing tobacco will likely total 82 million pounds, its highest level in 20 years. Snuff output for 1974 is estimated at 25 million pounds. All but less than one per cent of U.S. snuffs are taken in the same way as chewing tobacco, that is, tasted rather than sniffed.

These figures are based on U.S. Department of Agriculture figures for the first nine months of 1974.

Dr. Andreassi, an Associate Professor of Psychology, has found that because of the crossover effect within the brain, sounds coming in the right ear stimulate more strongly the left hemisphere of the brain, the area which usually contains the language processing center.

OLD CUSTOM

WHITBY, England (UPI) — On "Plough Monday" in January villagers dressed in pink or blue uniforms and carrying long steel swords dance through the village. The dances were brought to Yorkshire coastal settlements more than 1,000 years ago by Scandinavian invaders. Young ploughmen danced once a year for alms. —

Wm. C. Heymann Is Accepted Diplomat

William C. Heymann, M.D., has been advised by the American Board of Internal Medicine that he has fulfilled the comprehensive educational requirements, passed the certifying examinations, and been selected as a Diplomate in Internal Medicine.

Dr. Heymann is a graduate of the Galeton High School, Galeton, Pa., and The Pennsylvania State University. He received his M.D. degree from the Medical College of Ohio, and completed an internal medicine residency and cardiology fellowship at the same institution. Included in his training was hospital work in the City Hospital, Wuppertal, Germany, Clinica Americana, La Paz, Bolivia, and the University Hospital, Basel, Switzerland.

Before starting a practice in internal medicine, Dr. Heymann is serving as a ship's physician and internal medicine consultant with the Norwegian Caribbean Lines in Miami, Fla. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Heymann of Greenville.

Horses Of St. Mark's To Survive Pollution Plague

TREASURES MAY SURVIVE—The four famous bronze horses atop St. Mark's Basilica may outlast us all. One of the four was removed to a nearby room to

By PETER J. SHAW
VENICE (UPI) — The four famous bronze horses atop St. Mark's Basilica, believed threatened by a sort of "bronze cancer," may survive us all.

The 2,000-year-old horses are in excellent hands and money to preserve them is not a problem. "I believe the walls of this basilica will have crumbled to the ground before anything happens to those horses," one qualified restoration expert told Venetian friends recently.

Three of the four horses, the only existing example of an ancient quadriga or team of four abreast, remain on the basilica's loggia under partial cover of wooden scaffolding. They will stay where they are.

The fourth was removed to a nearby room 11 months ago to begin a long-debated attempt to find out how badly they were threatened by modern pollution and the attrition of age.

Some experts feared sulfur dioxide was eating into them like a "bronze cancer."

Venetians and foreigners privy to the continuing studies of the fourth horse said preliminary conclusions are positive. There apparently is no "bronze cancer" as such, perhaps because the horses are less bronze than first believed and might be almost entirely copper with a surface layer of gold.

"The question the experts are pursuing is exactly what type of protection will be best for the horses, given present outdoor conditions and their current state of preservation," one source said. "It might be a coating of some chemical mixture or even a simple periodic washing with plain water."

The sources said a final decision could take two years. Basilica officials are wary of talking about the horses until the experts have finished their work.

"No, I do not want to tell you anything about the horses. I will say nothing," engineer Antonino Rusconi said in his office within the basilica. He paused, then smiled and said in English: "Top secret."

Rusconi, a tall, spare man in his middle 70s, heads the basilica's technical office and as such is the godfather of the bronze horses.

Was it true the horses were determine how badly they were threatened by modern pollution and age. The head was removed during the study. (UPI Photo) in no serious danger? Rusconi harrumphed gently, then said: "The horses are well."

The horses are not the direct concern of Francesco Valconover, Venice's Superintendent of Fine Arts, but he is following the studies closely. He said it was "not a matter of money or a lack of interest. The interest is great. We are still seeking the proper technique" to protect them.

The horses, brought to Venice from Constantinople by the Venetian Doges after the great fire in 1204, have long symbolized the grandeur of the lagoon city which four centuries ago commanded a vast empire. Today the horses are a rallying point for action to prevent pollution from further eroding Venice's unique art patrimony.

Believed to be either Greek or Roman in origin, the horses were carried off as booty to Paris by Napoleon. After Napoleon's fall they were returned to Venice, surviving a shipwreck en route, by Emperor Franz I of Austria.

Some specialists believe they were forged on the Greek island of Chios around 200 B.C. Others think they were made by a Roman and cite an incision in the eyes as being of a particular Roman style. Some historians say they first stood on the triumphal arches of Nero and Trajan in Rome, then went to Byzantium for centuries.

Home Repair Course Set

A 60-hour course in handyman home repairs will begin Monday at 7 p.m. in room 142 at Rose High School. The course in being sponsored jointly by Pitt Technical Institute and Rose High School.

The course, meeting each Monday and Thursday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., will feature tips concerning electrical, plumbing, and woodworking repairs which the homeowner or any other interested adult may learn to do and save dollars in home repairs.

Several of the areas covered include: door repairs, proper fittings, weather stripping, hinges, locks and storm doors; furniture repairs, sanding, gluing, varnishing; cabinet repairs, shelves, hinges and finishes; electrical repairs; plumbing repairs; picture and mirror repair; proper tools for home repair; fundamentals of estimates and measurements for home repairs; and floor repairs.

The registration fee is $2.

Slight Delay In New Year Start

NEW YORK (UPI) — Astronomers at The American Museum-Hayden Planetarium report that the year 1974 was 365 days and one second long. The extra "leap-second" was added by our nation's timekeepers, The National Bureau of Standards, to keep our clocks in step with planet earth.

Astronomical time is based on the rotation of the earth, but our basic timekeeping is by atomic clock. Our planet is slowing down, at an irregular rate, and so periodically we must add an extra second to our year.

The leap-second was inserted at the end of December 31. Thus the start of 1975 A.D. was delayed by that one second.

TERMITES OR ANTS?

Don't be half sure. Call a professional pest control operator for an inspection today.

The potential damage to property from termites can exceed the damage from tornadoes, hurricanes and fire. This is why termite protection is as important as a homeowner's insurance policy.

Selections he has listed for his program are: Sonata No. 6 in G Minor by Antonio Vivaldi; Two Pieces, Allyn Reilly; Beau Soir, Claude Debussy; and Sonata for Tenor Saxophone and Piano, by Cristian Grainger.

Keysville, Va. native Owen is a student of George Knight. He will be accompanied by Karen Keating, pianist; and assisted by Rie Davis, flute, John Goodall, oboe, Vince Pitt, bassoon, and Steve Skillman, horn. Compositions scheduled for his program are: Fantasy Pieces by Schumann; Leonard Bernstein's Sonata; Sonata, John Cage; and Hindemith's Kleine Kammermusik for funf Blaser (for woodwind quintet).

4 Rasch Films

School of Art faculty member Bob Rasch will be showing four short films to the public on Tuesday, January 14, beginning at 8 p.m. in the theater of the Mendenhall Student Center.

The four films, all in color, are original creations of the artist. Two have as subject matter the work of two well known N.C. artists: "N.C. Craftsman—Paul Minnis," and "American Craftsman—John Satterfield."

A third film, "Waterland—Our Changing Outer Banks" was made with the assistance of Sea Grant funds. "This film is a history of the geological formation of the Outer Banks," Rasch said, "with primary concern on the recent history of the dune project and the results of erosion in the area." THE PRINCE OF MOROCCO... portrayed by Warren Hansen, discovers his fate in love as Michele Frankenberg and Marilyn Hickey stand by in the National Shakespeare Company's production of "The Merchant of Venice" coming to ECU on Thursday, January 16 for a matinee and an evening performance.

One of Shakespeare's most controversial plays The Merchant Of Venice will be presented at East Carolina University on Thursday, January 16, 1975 by the National Shakespeare Company. The company, under the direction of Philip Meister, will be featured in two performances, a matinee at 2:15 p.m. and the evening at 8:00 p.m.

The play is a romantic comedy and an allegory, but it also contains the tragic figure of Shylock. It has proved to be one of the most effective theatre pieces ever written, but Shylock's role in it produces heated discussion in every generation. The play is composed of several fables or allegorical tales, which were popular at the time, about 1596. The basic story of the pound of flesh is very old, and has been retold in many versions. No less a dramatist than Marlowe has presented a persecuted Jew who fights his enemies and reveals their hypocrisy in his high spirited The Jew of Malta. The parable of the three caskets, the romance of Jessica's elopement and the humorous anecdote of the rings were also told before, but the narrative unfolds with clarity and mounting excitement in Shakespeare's version.

Tickets for the production may be obtained from the E.C.U. Central Ticket Office located in the Mendenhall Student Center. Public tickets are priced at $3.00 for the matinee and $4.00 for the evening performance.

There is also a special group rate for area high school students. For more details contact the Central Ticket Office, Box 2731, Greenville, N.C. 27834. Phone: (919) 758-6611, ext. 266.

Carolina Today

The coming week on "Carolina Today" starts off Monday with a flourish of music and precision drill, and will feature the first session of an early morning physical fitness series.

WNCT-TV's (Channel 9) morning program is heard from 6 to 8:30 a.m. Monday through Friday. Special guests appearing as indicated below will go on the air at 7:30 a.m. unless otherwise noted.

Monday, January 13—Two guest groups, members of the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra and members of the D. H. Conley Junior ROTC Drill Team will be Monday's guests. Several members of the state's symphony will explain something about the orchestra's makeup and play a few brief passages. The young military people from Conley will show their expertise in close-order drill.

Tuesday, January 14—Leon Le Blond, a specialist in the power of suggestion, will talk about hypnosis.

Wednesday, January 15—Joe Sturz of "Starting Point," an anti-drug ministry, will be joined by Herb Lee in a discussion on drugs.

Thursday, January 16—"Exercise," a physical fitness program, makes its initial appearance in a series that will run for five weeks on Thursdays. This program begins at 7 a.m. and will be headed by Dr. Edgar Hooks of the ECU Physical Education Department. He will be assisted by a physical ed major in demonstration of exercises.

Friday, January 17—John Ball of East Carolina University will be Friday's guest. His subject will be crime.

Clarkin Organ Recital

Miss Johnee Clarkin of Hamlet, a student of the School of Music, East Carolina University, will appear in a concert of organ music at 3:15 p.m. Sunday, January 19 in the Memorial Baptist Church in Greenville. Miss Clarkin is a student of Dr. E. Robert Irwin.

For her Sunday program, Miss Clarkin has listed the following selections: Bohm's Prelude and Fugue in C Major; Fantasia in E Flat Major; Pachelbel; the "Allegro" from Bach's Trio Sonata No. 5; three chorale preludes by Brahms—O Welt, ich muss dich lassen; Schmuecke dich, O liebe Seele; and Herzliebster Jesu; and two movements—"Improvisation" and "Prelude" from Jean Langlais' Suite Medievale.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend the concert at Memorial Baptist Church.

"Road Show" Opens January 20

"Road Show" an Alcoholism Awareness program featuring Don Newcombe, former National League baseball pitching star, will open its five day North Carolina tour with an appearance in Greenville on Monday, January 20.

The Greenville "Road Show" event will be held in Wright Auditorium on the East Carolina University campus beginning at 7:30 p.m., and will end about 9:30 p.m.

"Road Show" had two purposes—"to point out how everyone can be involved in helping combat alcoholism" in North Carolina; and to provide entertainment." Dr. R. J. Blackley, Deputy Director of North Carolina Alcoholism Services, N.C. Division of Mental Health Services, said. He further noted, "The objective of the 'Road Show' is to help make the general public more aware of the alcohol problem in North Carolina and the effects it has on all of our people when excessive and abusive use of alcohol is practiced by anyone."

In addition to Newcombe, "Road Show" will have on hand Clyde King, manager of the Atlanta Braves; and Miss Chauncey Douglas, Miss Black Teenage World; among others.

Newcombe is currently associated with the National Clearinghouse on Alcohol Information as a consultant as well as being associated with the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism. He was the first Cy Young Award winner in 1956, which designates the most valuable pitcher each year. Newcombe was also named the National League's Most Valuable Player in 1956. He pitched with the Dodgers both in Brooklyn and in Los Angeles. Newcombe was one of the first three Blacks to break into Major League baseball.

Following the Greenville opening event of "Road Show" the show will then go to Fayetteville, January 21; Burlington, January 22; Morganton, January 23; and end of Asheville on January 24.

Wade H. Williams, Jr., Eastern Region Alcoholism Services Director and a former actor and television personality, will emcee all five "Road Shows" across North Carolina.

The public is invited to attend the "Road Show" at Wright on January 20. There is no charge for admission.

Michael Campbell Concert

Michael Campbell, pianist and instructor of music at Mary Baldwin College in Staunton, Virginia, is to be guest artist in a performance at 8:15 p.m. Monday, January 13 at the Recital Hall in the A.J. Fletcher School of Music.

Campbell, native of San Francisco, graduated magna cum laude from Amherst College in 1967, majoring in music. After graduating from Amherst, Campbell served a three year tour of duty with the U.S. Naval Academy Band. It was during his Navy tour that he began study with Leon Fleisher, which he continued as a graduate student at Peabody Conservatory. In 1972 Campbell received the Master of Music degree at Peabody. He is now a candidate for the Doctor of Musical Arts at Peabody.

The young pianist has been heard in numerous concerts along the East Coast, including performances as soloist with the Annapolis Symphony and as representative of Peabody at the Festival of American Piano Music at Saratoga Springs, New York. He has also played in the Baltimore Symphony and was organist for the Baltimore Bullets basketball games.

Prior to joining the Mary Baldwin faculty, Campbell was on the faculty of Duke University and Catonsville Community College.

Glenn Eure Exhibition On View At Martin Tech

ECU School of Art graduate printmaker major Glenn Eure, native of Honolulu and a retired U.S. Army major, is having a one-man show at Martin Technical Institute in Kehukee Park near Willamston.

The exhibit, which has just recently been installed, is scheduled to be on view through February 6, and can be seen daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

This exhibit follows a one-man show by Eure last year at the Greenville Art Center. At Martin Tech Eure is exhibiting about 35 items—constructions, paintings, prints in both color and black and white—ranging in style from realistic to abstraction.

His central theme is a nautical one, with sand, sky, sea and old wood predominating. For some of the woodblock prints, Eure has used sea dried planks

Claude Howell Retrospective

A retrospective exhibition of paintings by Claude Howell will open at the North Carolina Museum of Art on Sunday, January 19.

A public reception will be held honoring the Wilmington artist from 4 to 5 p.m. The exhibit will remain at NCMA through February 16.

found on the beach—utilizing the natural grain of the surface, at places adding cuts of his own.

For two summers, 1973 and 1974, Eure was one of a group of ECU students participating in the "Artists In The Parks" program sponsored by the National Parks Service.

After graduating from ECU, Eure plans to work in his own studio, which he is now constructing in his adopted home town, Swansboro.

Personnel at Martin Tech invites the public to come by at any hour mentioned above to view the show. There is no admission charge. The Eure show will be on the walls of the large entrance foyer.

Reception Today At Art Center

A reception is being held at the Greenville Art Center this afternoon from 3 to 5 p.m. honoring Robert Lewis, whose exhibit goes on view today at the center.

Lewis, a faculty member of Lenoir Community College, is showing drawings, paintings and constructions.

The public is invited to attend and refreshments will be served.

Norman Macleod Student Show At The Art Center

There's again a fine small show in the upstairs gallery of the Greenville Art Center. Graduate student Norman Macleod, majoring in sculpture, is exhibiting about a dozen items—sculpture, a painting and some drawings.

Within this small selection, Norman provides interesting indications of possible approaches a young artist at the crossroads stage between student and early maturing artist can take. He, himself, says "I'm trying to bring everything together into some kind of cohesion. I'm in the air right now about where I'll go."

Despite his acknowledged indecision, there's already discernible a tendency toward interesting structural composition and surface details in his smaller pieces. In two larger sculptures, one in limestone, another in wood (see photograph) there's an awkwardness not found in the pleasing proportions and shapes of the smaller pieces.

The drawings, mostly a combination of pencil, some color and good use of blank white space, are appealing; and the self portrait, a painting, reveals innovative use of color as does one small wooden sculpture with painted areas.

A native of Albuquerque, New Mexico, Norman attended the University of New Mexico and Pembroke State College before coming to ECU.

Norman's father, now writer-in-residence at Pembroke State College, at one time traveled extensively. "Because of that I've lived and traveled in many places, California, Colorado, Mexico, Alberta, Canada and in Baghdad, Iraq," Norman said. "So right now I'm not too much interested in traveling. I'll probably teach when I get my degree," he noted.

Norman Macleod's show will remain on view several more days at the Greenville Art Center. It's a show to be enjoyed; one helped by the light and airiness of the upstairs gallery.

—Jerry Raynor

A WOODEN SCULPTURE... by Norman Macleod, one of the about 12 items the graduate student has on view in the upstairs gallery of the Greenville Art Center.

A CROSS SECTION OF UTILITIES... services in Greenville are shown in this two panel mural in the Greenville Utilities Building. The large work, which hangs on a wall behind the payments sections on the ground floor of the building at the corner of Fifth and Washington Streets, was painted by ECU art student Hank Wilhite on a commission from the utilities department.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By WILLIE MAE GIBBS

Taylor Caldwell, author of the recent bestseller Captains And Kings has written a new novel called Glory And The Lightning. In this novel set in Ancient Persia and Greece, she tells a story which demonstrates the problems women face in a man's world. Aspasia, the heroine in Ms. Caldwell's book, is the beautiful and intelligent courtesan who eventually became the companion to Pericles, ruler of Athens. Trained since childhood in the arts of beauty and seduction, she is by no means an ordinary woman. By nature, she is passionate, restless, and fiercely independent. Compelled to pursue her destiny wherever it may lead, she finds herself increasingly in rebellion against the helpless position of women in ancient society. Although Glory And The Lightning is a novel of the ancient world, Taylor Caldwell's readers will feel at the center of women's conflict, no matter what time in history.

In a timely, action-packed, saga called Oil, Jonathan Black takes his readers behind tomorrow's energy crisis headlines, where he reveals the secret world of the men who run the world's richest and most powerful business. Introducing his novel, he writes "Oil is wealth and power. It can mean peace—or war. Above all, oil and oilmen are a law unto themselves." And so it is with James Northcutt, a self-made billionaire who directs Nipea, one of the world's largest independent oil companies. As the story opens he is returning to his estates, having just completed an eight-billion-dollar deal with China. There he learns from his closest advisor that the deal has infuriated the Majors and that they plan to destroy him. In his ultimate battle for survival, Jim's allies include his daughter Kathy, deeply devoted to her father; rugged Mark Radford, chief lieutenant in Nipea's great battles with the Majors; and Verna Fletcher, a girl Jim met in his early wildcating days who is now a movie star. As enemies he can count the corporate might of the huge oil companies, the chief advisor to the President of the United States, the new secretary to the U.S. Department of Energy Resources, and Barbara Wallace, Jim's beautiful former mistress. Pitted against each other, allies and enemies form in Oil, a story filled with action, passion and excitement. Although this novel is a work of fiction, Mr. Black has relied heavily on historical fact to provide a true picture of how the world's petroleum industry actually operates.

Charity Art Auction

The annual charity "Art for Life" auction, sponsored by the Wake County Cystic Fibrosis Branch, will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, February 1. The auction will take place on the lower level of the North Hills Shopping Mall in Raleigh.

Artists throughout North Carolina are being invited to contribute a work of art to be auctioned. To stimulate interest, cash prizes are being awarded to half a dozen entries adjudged to be the best in several categories. Judges will be potter Paul Minnis, artist Jill Flink, and Ben Williams, curator of the N.C. Museum of Art. Judging will be at 2 p.m. Monday, January 27.

Cash prizes will be: $100 for best in show (any medium); and $35 each for best watercolor graphic, painting, sculpture or craft, and mixed media.

Donations may be left at, or mailed to: Winner Realty, Inc., Garner Professional Center, Garner N.C. 27529. Contributions should be received prior to January 27. Proceeds from the "Art for Life" auction will go to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and for research at the Duke University Cystic Fibrosis Center.

James Eure's First Novel Extolls Old Fashioned Virtues Of Life

The Swamp Angel. By James Bruce Eure. Jericho, New York, Exposition Press. 1974. 187 pps, $6.00.

It is somewhat remarkable that a man in his late 70's (born 1894) should decide to write a first novel.

James Bruce Eure, native of Spring Hope, graduate of Atlantic Christian College and Wake Forest University, is currently a member of the law firm of Eure and Lambert in the town of Whiteville.

In his long, active career, Eure has served as Recorder's Court, president of the Coastal Plains Baseball League, District Governor of Rotary International and District Deputy Grand Master of Masons.

The Swamp Angel is an old fashioned novel, virtuous, uncomplicated—with a predictably happy ending for everyone involved, except for the jilted suitor, the less handsome of two suitors.

Eure's story line is well structured, with possibilities for suspense that are never fully realized. Basically, it is the story of young attorney Mark Carey, sent to live in the wilds of a Carolina Swamp to recover from the threat of tuberculosis. Not only does Mark recover, but he becomes exceedingly strong physically, develops an abiding love for the great woods in its natural state and comes to the rescue of an even younger man, Mort Foulk, a fugitive hiding from the law after being falsely accused of being a murderer. He befriends the youthful fugitive, fights his case and wins, and falls in love with Violet, Mort's sister.

The second episode deals with a big monopolistic lumber company's efforts to crush Mark into compliance in selling a valuable tract of timber which he has purchased, not for the low motive of speculative profit, but for the noble idea of conserving the area in its natural wild state. Mark again becomes the triumphant hero, outfoxing the crafty Mr. Golden (from the "North").

With a more naturalistic dialogue and a tougher, realistic stance, Eure's story could have been a first-rate adventure.

But the author has fallen into traps snaring many first novelists—stilted, formal dialogue unlike any kind of real life spoken speech; and repetitious summations through set speeches of action already shown earlier.

Despite these serious faults, The Swamp Angel is refreshing reading—a rare case of almost total innocence, where even the villains are not by intention, but only by circumstance, vile creatures.

Since this is a book published by a so-called "vanity" press, any reader wanting a copy will need to order directly from the Exposition Press, Inc., Jericho, N.Y. 11753 or from Eure in Whiteville, 28472.

Scott's Papers Published

Addresses and Public Papers of Robert W. Scott, Governor of North Carolina, 1969-1973. Edited by Memory F. Mitchell. 1974. Raleigh, Division of Archives and History, Department of Cultural Resources, 770 pps, illustrated. (Not for sale).

A short time after the conclusion of World War I, the state of North Carolina published the messages of Governor Thomas Walter Brickett in official book form.

This series has been continued since, with selected speeches and statements printed, along with a preface and a brief biographical sketch. The publication on each governor has normally appeared within a relatively brief time following each governor's term of office.

Until 1971, each volume was compiled and published as a matter of tradition. Beginning that year however, publication has become a requirement under a legislative law, with financing from the Contingency and Emergency Fund.

Selection of material to be incorporated into these "official" state publications are, under law, made by a "skilled and competent editor."

Mrs. Editor Mitchell has obviously given much consideration to the material chosen from a tremendous amount available. In a number of instances she has provided summaries of longer speeches, directly quoting highlight thoughts and passages. This permits a comprehensive coverage of Governor Scott's speeches and statements without omitting significant material, but still keeping the book within manageable proportions. Scott's correspondence is not printed in this book.

The extent of Governor Bob Scott's travels and speech making during his four years as governor comes home forcible. Often as many as five or six speeches in a week's time were given by the governor. It is noteworthy too that Governor Scott "delivered in person an unprecedented nine messages to the General Assembly."

Another policy for this series of governor's books is that each governor is permitted to choose the writer of the introductory biographical sketch that is limited to 20 pages. This sketch is not considered an official part of the documentary book, but is included as a supplement.

Governor Scott chose Russel T. Clay, a longtime newspaperman who served as special assistant to the governor during his administration.

While not any means a critical biography, Clay's homespun account in its own way provides a significant insight into the background and environment that helped shape Scott—the son of former Governor W. Kerr Scott. A few photographs show the governor as a boy and later as governor.

Since it is an official document, Addresses and Public Papers of Robert W. Scott, contains a chronological listing of all speeches made but not noted in the public addresses and summaries section. There's also other chapters—ones covering Executive Orders, Proclamations and Directives; Statements; a list of the governor's office staff; a list of persons appointed to various offices (the size of this will undoubtedly surprise many); and a thorough index covering more than 70 pages.

Addresses and Public Papers of Robert W. Scott, Governor of North Carolina, 1969-1973 is not for sale. It has, however, been distributed free to libraries, schools and community colleges throughout the state. If any copies are left after these official requirements are met, a request for a copy can be made by groups such as historical societies through the Archives and History Department.

Decorative Arts Survey Underway

The Museum of Early Southern Decorative Arts in Winston-Salem is presently involved in an extensive program of research in Pitt County. The purpose of the program is to encourage the study and preservation of the decorative arts (furniture, silver, paintings, ceramics, and textiles) made in the South prior to 1820.

Miss Elizabeth Dahill, field representative, will be studying local collections of antiques in coming weeks. She will search out and record surviving examples of Southern decorative arts, particularly those with long family histories. The information obtained will be filed by geographic origin at MESDA, where it will be made available, not to the public, but to qualified scholars in the field of Southern history and culture.

A student of art history at the University of Delaware, Miss Dahill has been working in 7 northeastern North Carolina during the past six months, and most recently in Edgecomb, Nash, and Wilson Counties. She is presently living at 1210 Main St. in Tarboro, 27886, and welcomes any information on the decorative arts of this area.

Seeks Miller Plane And Funds

By MICHAEL DENNIGAN LONDON (UPI) — What really did happen to the plane carrying Glenn Miller one cold, foggy day in December 30 years ago?

John Edwards, a 34-year-old Englishman, believes he knows the answer.

He is trying to raise 15,000 pounds ($36,000) to prove his theory that the swing-era bandleader perished as the result of a flying accident over the English Channel.

The other theory on Miller's disappearance in the closing months of World War II is that his unarmed plane was shot down by an Allied fighter by mistake and that the affair was officially hushed up.

Edwards, a globe-traveling engineering salesman, is an amateur flier and member of the London-based Glenn Miller Society. The group has about 2,000 members world-wide devoted to keeping Miller's music and memory alive.

After several years of patient detective work, Edwards says he has located an aircraft wreck in the English Channel that could be the plane that vanished with Miller aboard Dec. 15, 1944.

Now all he needs is the money to pay for lifting the wreck. He has failed so far to find a sponsor in England but says a book he is writing about his quest may help him meet the scheduled recovery date of next June 14.

If the wrecked plane 12 1-2 miles southeast of the coastal town of Dymchurch turns out to be Miller's, its recovery could sweep away three decades of mystery and speculation on Miller's fate.

Miller, one of America's top bandleaders at the time, disappeared with two others on a flight from England to France where he was due to arrange a Christmas Day concert of his 68-man American Air Force Orchestra for the GIs who liberated Paris.

In the 1930s Miller, a trombonist, and his band had swept to fame with his arrangements of dance tunes. The Miller sound in tunes such as "In the Mood," "American Patrol," "String of Pearls," "Tuxedo Junction," "Little Brown Jug" and his signature tune, "Moonlight Serenade," still are played by fans and radio stations around the world.

When Miller's disappearance was announced on Christmas Eve, 10 days after his last flight, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, then Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, said that next to a letter from home Miller's music was the biggest morale booster for GIs overseas.

Because of the circumstances of the flight there have been frequent charges that Miller's plane was shot down by a U.S. fighter by mistake and the matter hidden by the authorities.

Edwards rejects this theory in advance. He believes the plane came down because of engine failure caused by icing in the carburetor.

He says official records show only one aerial dogfight over the Channel that day. It involved a U.S. P61 fighter of the Black Widow squadron and a twin-engined Junkers 88 of the German Luftwaffe.

Edwards says that even in the fog and low cloud prevailing that day it was impossible for a pilot to confuse a Junkers 88 and a single-engined Norseman of the type Miller was in.

Edwards says sonar photographs of the wreck 200 feet underwater off Dymchurch "answer the description of Miller's Norseman and it is in the right position."

Some of Miller's fans have held onto the hope that if the bandleader's plane were found, it might contain hitherto unknown Miller arrangements. Edwards says even if the Dymchurch plane turns out to be Miller's any documents would be pulp by now and he has little hope of any new music turning up.

ARTS FESTIVAL BERGEN, Norway (UPI) — The 23rd annual Bergen International Festival of music, drama, folklore and ballet will be held from May 21 to June 4 in 1975. The first festival was held in Bergen, "capital" of Norway's Ford country, in 1952.

Bricklaying Class Begun

Pitt Technical Institute, in cooperation with Rose High School, has begun a 60 hour course in home handyman bricklaying.

The course will meet each Monday and Thursday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in room 140 at Rose High. The course is designed for anyone who desires to make do-it-yourself handyman bricklaying repairs around the house.

The course is open to all adults 18 years of age and over who are not enrolled in public school.

The course includes instruction in brick walk construction, barbecue pits, patios, flower planters, retaining walls and other small bricklaying jobs.

Registration fee is $2. Adults are expected to furnish their own supplies.

Connecticut Holds Off Pirate Rally

STORRS, Conn.—The University of Connecticut held off East Carolina University in the final minutes of the game to take a 79-77 victory in the finals of the Connecticut Classic last night.

Eastern Michigan downed Baylor, 71-69, in the consolation contest.

The Pirates, who had been down by as much as five points late in the game, cut the lead to one point with seven seconds left.

But a controversial call resulted in a technical foul on the Pirate bench, and that sealed the fate of the Bucs, who saw their seven game winning streak come to an end with the defeat.

East Carolina is now 7-4 overall, while the Huskies built their record to 7-2 before their home-town crowd.

The game was a nip-and-tuck affair all the way, with neither team able to pull away from the other. Connecticut jumped off to a 4-0 lead, but wasn't able to hold onto it.

They moved out by that margin again at 19-15 with 8:59 left in the first period as Tony Hanson hit a free throw.

The Bucs cut the lead back to one or two points, but couldn't take the lead until Robert Geter hit a layup for a 28-26 lead with 5:02 to play in the half.

The Bucs led again at 30-28, but lost it at 34-32 on Lee Otis Wilson's 10-footer with 2:39 to go.

The Pirates took it back at 41-40 as Gregg Ashorn tossed in a missed shot at the horn.

Connecticut grabbed the lead back at the start of the second half on John Thomas's shot, but East Carolina got it back at 43-41.

The lead changed hands several times again with Wade Henkel giving the Bucs a 49-48 lead before Connecticut got it at 50-49.

The Huskies held the lead until Reggie Lee hit a 20-footer with 9:01 left for a 61-60 lead. Again, it bounced back and forth, until Henkel put the Bucs up again, 67-66, with a 20-footer with 7:02 left.

That was to be the last Pirate lead, however.

With 3:31, Connecticut had worked up a 76-71 lead, but the Bucs cut it back to 76-75 with 1:08 showing on Ashorn's 15-footer.

Connecticut scored again, but Donnie Owens scored on a jumper to again cut the lead to one, this time at 78-77 with seven seconds left.

As Connecticut moved back down the court, Ashorn set up to take a charge in front of the Pirate bench. The official ruled it blocking, fouling out Ashorn, and giving Thomas a 1-and-1 chance.

At the same time, a member of the Pirate bench was charged with a technical foul.

Thomas missed on his free throws, but Joe Whelton hit the technical, giving the Huskies a 79-77 lead with three seconds left.

Henkel gave us a lot of offense and had his best all-around game of the year.

Ashorn and (Earl) Garner also played well and Owens did a fine job in the final five minutes when we needed it.

"We outbit them from the floor and outrebounced them. But the blocking call on Gregg was crucial."

"I'm pleased with the continued team effort we are getting. Everyone has played super on this trip, and the team has shown a lot of character. Eastern Carolina can be proud of them, as I am."

The Pirates come back home on Wednesday night, resuming their Southern Conference play, as they take on Appalachian State University at 8 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

Connecticut 40 39-79

CHAPEL HILL—East Carolina built up a strong lead through the first seven events but after the swimmers of the University of North Carolina won the 100 freestyle, the meet turned around and the Tar Heels edged the Pirates, 59-54.

The Pirates had taken the lead winning first places in four of the opening seven events but UNC turned the meet around by winning the 100 free, according to ECU coach Ray Scharf.

Scharf said that had the Pirates been able to do better in that event, the Pirates could have held onto the match. Now the Bucs are 4-1 in dual meets.

ECU set records in the first and last events, the 400 medley relay and the 400 free relay. In the 400 medley, the team of Gary Pabst, David Kirkman, Mike Redding and John McCauley won with a time of 3:38.2.

In the 400 free, McCauley, Bobby Vail, Billy Thorne and Ross Bohlken won with a record time of 3:13.4. Pabst set freshman records in the 200 individual medley and the 200 backstroke while Tomas Palmgren, in finishing second, set a record in the 1000 freestyle, and in the 500 free.

The summary:

North Carolina Rips Howard By 109-67

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Mitch Kupchak scored 20 points to lead 15th ranked North Carolina to an easy 109-67 victory over Howard Saturday night in college basketball.

The Tar Heels, now 7-3, fell behind 8-0 in the first 2½ minutes, then struggled for next seven minutes to reach a tie with Howard 28 all. Kupchak, aided chiefly by sophomore Tommy LaGarde, pushed the Tar Heels to a 13-point lead at halftime, 55-42.

The Bisons came to within nine points of North Carolina in the second half, but the Tar Heels methodically used the fast break and a sticky defense to pull out of reach of Howard. LaGarde, with 18 points, tied for second highest scorer in the game with teammate Ed Stahl. North Carolina's Walter Davis put 17 points on the board. Jeff Taylor, with 14 points, was Howard's top scorer while Vadnay Cotton and Gerald Clover each scored 10 points.

Mike Ange had 13 points for the Bulldogs and Kinney Baughman had 19 points to lead Appalachian. Junior center Donnie Stringfellow added 17 and guard Tim White tossed in 16 for the Mountaineers.

Appalachian is 1-10 while The Citadel moved their record to 5-3.

Richmond, Va. (AP)—Virginia Military's Keydets shot 61.9 per cent from the floor Saturday night and shocked Richmond 98-95 in a Southern Conference basketball game despite a school-record 44 points by the Spiders' Bob McCurdy.

The Keydets, breaking a five-game losing streak, hit 66.7 per cent in the second half but still almost blew a 20-point lead as the Spiders twice got to within a point.

With nine seconds left, however, McCurdy missed the front end of a one-and-one free throw situation that could have pulled the Spiders back to within a point again.

Curt Reppart had 20 points, John Krovic 17 and Will Bynum 16 for the Keydets, now 2-2 in the conference and 2-6 over-all. Reppart hit seven of eight from the floor. Krovic scored 11 and Bynum eight of 12.

McCurdy, who had tied the school record Wednesday night with 42 points against Duquesne, hit 19 of 30 from the floor and added 11 rebounds for Richmond, now 22 in the conference and 3-6 over-all.

It was the first time VMI has beaten the Spiders at Richmond since Feb. 19, 1963.

Bucs Set Mile Mark

COLLEGE PARK, Md.—East Carolina's indoor track competed in the Catholic Youth Organization track meet here this weekend and came away with a new school record.

The mile relay team of Arian Johnson, Robert Franklin, Maurice Huntley and Palmer Lisane, in finishing second in a non-championship heat, recorded a time of 3:28.2 for a new school mark in that event.

Freshman Carter Suggs finished fourth in the 60 yard dash coming in with a time of :06.2. Larry Austin was sixth for the Bucs in the 60 at :06.3.

The Pirates will run next at Richmond this Friday and Saturday.

Second Half Gives Terps Win

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Fifth-ranked Maryland scored 18 points while holding Wake Forest scoreless for more than eight minutes of the second half and scored an 89-73 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory Saturday, despite a 32-point performance by Skip Brown of the 19th-ranked losers.

The regionally-televised game was enlivened by a fight with three minutes remaining, and officials ejected Cal Stamp of Wake Forest and Owen Brown of Maryland.

The Terps, now 11-1, had trouble with the Wake Forest zone and fell behind 47-42 three minutes into the second half.

But, with John Lucas penetrating the zone and the Terps passing off along the baseline when their fast break didn't work, Maryland ran off its hot strike to go ahead 60-47 before Mike Parrish scored with 8:57 remaining.

Maryland, now 3-0 in the ACC, sank 57 per cent of its shots in the first half and then connected on nine of its first 16 after intermission. The Deacons were five-for-20 during their cold spell.

The Terps got 51 points from their three guards, who sometimes all played at once. Mo Howard scored 19, Brad Davis 17 and Lucas 15.

Brown, who sat out the second half with an injury when Maryland defeated Wake Forest in the second game of the season, pumped in 15 field goals while directing Wake's offense. Stamp had 13 points and Brown 12 before they were ejected for fighting.

Wake Forest, which upset then top ranked North Carolina State last week, is now 8-4 including 1-2 in the ACC.

Steelers Favored In Super Bowl Renewal

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Despite the loss of one of their defense line regulars, the aggressive young Pittsburgh Steelers continued to rank as favorites over the more experienced Minnesota Vikings in the ninth Super Bowl football game.

With defensive tackle Mean Joe Greene heading their stingy defense, the Steelers were rated from 3-4½ points better than the Vikings, who hope quarterback Fran Tarkenton can lead them to the pro football championship in their third try.

The Steelers had opened as three-point favorites according to Las Vegas oddsmakers and then lost defensive end Dwight White because of a viral infection.

White was hospitalized for four days, released on Thursday but then re-admitted 24 hours later. He was released again Saturday morning but still was listed as doubtful for the game. Steve Furness is expected to replace him.

But Pittsburgh picked up a point or so late in the week when Vikings Coach Bud Grant casually mentioned that Tarkenton was suffering from a sore arm. It hardly seemed a serious injury to either the coach or quarterback, but the trivial always is magnified during Super Bowl week.

A sellout crowd of more than 80,000 was expected to jam rickety, old Tulane Stadium for the game, which has become an American sports classic comparable to baseball's World Series. An estimated 70 million people in this country and 50 million more around the world will watch and listen to television and radio coverage.

The teams battled an annoying series of aches and pains during their week here. The most serious, of course, was White's viral infection, then there was Viking offensive tackle Charles Goodrum's pulled calf muscle, a twisted ankle suffered by Minnesota center Mick Tingelhoff and a 24-hour virus that cost Viking linebacker Wally Hilgenberg a day of practice. All except White were expected to start the game.

The annual Greenville Football Coaching Clinic will be held on Saturday and Sunday, January 25-26, it was announced today.

This year marks the first time the clinic has been expanded to a two-day affair. It will be held at the Ramada Inn on Greenville Blvd.

The chief speaker for the event will be N.C. State head football coach Lou Holtz, who will make a presentation on Saturday. The public will be admitted to hear Holtz, with a small admission charge.

Other top speakers include Richard Kemp, now an assistant at N.C. State, who coached this year's 3-A state champion Ragsdale; Gerald Wisenhunt of Goldsboro, Division III-A champion; Bill Parrish of White Oak, Eastern 2-A finalist; and John Matlock, an assistant at the University of North Carolina.

Coaches wishing to register in advance for the clinic are asked to contact Dave Bumgarner at Rose High School.

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—Steve Mike-Mayer of Maryland kicked a 22-yard field goal with 25 seconds remaining Saturday, giving the South all-stars a 17-17 deadlock with the North in the nationally televised Senior Bowl football game.

DUKE DUMPS SOUTH FLORIDA CLINIC IS SCHEDULED

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Duke's Pete Kramer pumped in 26 points while teammate Bob Fleischer added 19 and grabbed 18 rebounds Saturday night as the Blue Devils struggled to a 95-86 victory over South Florida in college basketball.

Duke was helped by South Florida's poor 32 per cent shooting average in the first half that was improved to 58 per cent in the final half. Duke, now 7-3 for the season, had a game shooting average of 58 per cent.

South Florida's 5-foot-9 guard Leon Smith was the top scorer for the Golden Brahms with 24 points. He hit on eight of 13 field goal attempts in the second half.

Duke's 30 turnovers to 16 for South Florida was one of the reasons Blue Devil Coach Bill Foster commented after the game that he "was just not satisfied" by his team's performance. "It looked like our first day of practice," he said.

After the first three minutes, Duke never lost the lead though, it was cut to one at one point in the first half and cut to four several times in the second half.

Duke led by as much as 14 points, but the Golden Brahms struggled to cut the lead by nine at game's end.

KINSTON—For the second time in two nights, Ayden-Grifton's Chargers suffered a disastrous loss. This time it was the Kinston Vikings that smashed A-G, 78-35, in a non-conference game, last night.

Friday night, the Chargers were bombed by D.H. Conley, 71-36. Last night, Kinston inched out to a 16-10 lead in the first period and began to pile the points on with a 22-4 second quarter. That gave them a 38-14 lead at halftime.

The Vikings kept up the pace in the third period, 15-6, and further increased the margin with a 25-15 fourth frame.

Willie Williams led the Chargers with 15. Avery Dawson had 13, Mark Dail had 12 and Burney had 11.

RAMPANTS TAKE SWIM VICTORY

Rose High School took the final relay event to capture its opening swimming meet of the season, 48-38 over Ravenscroft of Raleigh. The meet was held at Minges Natatorium.

The Rampants had trailed in the early part of the meet, but then came back to sweep first and second place in the 100-yard freestyle to move into the lead. It remained close, with the final event deciding it.

The two teams split the relays, with Rose winning four individual events, while Ravenscroft also took four. Rose picked up enough seconds and thirds, however, to make the difference in the event.

The Rampants will next face Durham Jordan on Saturday, January 25, at Memorial Gymnasium's pool.

Pirates Trim Baylor, 73-57

STORRS, Conn.—East Carolina University's Pirates vaulted into the finals of the Connecticut Classic Friday night, easily handling Baylor University, 73-57.

The victory was the seventh in a row for the charging Bucs, and that win set a new modern record for consecutive wins. Several times since records have been faithfully kept since 1961, the Bucs have put together six-game streaks.

Saturday night, they try for an eight in a row, and a first non-conference tournament championship when they meet hosting Connecticut in the finals. (See page B-1)

Connecticut pushed past Eastern Michigan, 76-60, to gain the finals against the Pirates. Eastern was to face Baylor for the consolation crown.

For the Bucs, it was another warm shooting night, as they put through 51.6 per cent of their field goal attempts. They also were red hot from the foul line, dumping in nine of ten charity attempts, a blistering 90 per cent.

At the same time, the Pirates made things difficult for Baylor, which slipped to 4-7 overall with the loss. The Bears could manage only 40.7 per cent against the Bucs, and hit only 60 per cent of their free throws.

The Pirates also controlled the boards, despite being out-manned in height. East Carolina collected 44 loose balls, while the Bears found the handle for 36.

Larry Hunt and Robert Geter each picked up nine for the Bucs, while Arthur Edwards pulled in eight to pace Baylor.

The Bears' leading rebounder, 6-10 Tony Rufus was held well below his 10 per game average.

The Pirates jumped off to a 6-0 lead before the Bears could find the range on the basket. With 14:33 left, the Bucs had upped that to an eight-point spread, 12-4, and with 9:25 showing, moved out by a nine-point lead, their biggest of the first half. That came at 20-11 when Buzzy Bramer, who was four-for-four in the half, hit.

During the next two minutes, Baylor outhit the Pirates, 9-2 and cut the lead back to 22-20. For the rest of the half, it was quite close, although the Bucs were never headed, and worked up a 35-30 halftime lead.

In the first five minutes of the second half, the Pirates pulled away again, this time to an 11-point margin, 45-34. That came on a 15-footer by Donnie Owens. It held at that margin until Baylor got a rally going and chopped it to 51-47 with 9:31 left to play.

At that point, the Pirates took the Bears by the throat and went for the kill. They outhit the Bears, 10-0 during the next four minutes, to run out to a 61-47 lead with 5:25 showing. Gregg Ashorn hit seven of the 10 points in leading the charge away.

From there, it was just a question of margin as the Bucs moved out by 16 at 65-49 and then held their biggest lead with 1:16 left at 71-53.

During those final 10 minutes of play, the Bucs had outhit Baylor, 22-10, and that made the big difference.

"For the second straight night in a row," Coach Dave Patton said afterwards, "I think our defense turned the game around for us in the second half. This is a team that does what it needs to do to win."

One reporter asked Patton about the involvement of his bench during the game, with many players shuffling in and out, and a lot of vocal encouragement coming from those waiting on the sidelines. "We play a lot of people," the coach answered, "and everyone is a part of it all the time."

Patton didn't think the Pirates played real good defense in the first half, nor did they hustle as they should. But they were on target in the second. "The tempo was a factor in the game," he said. "Baylor came out in a zone, and we had to slow our offense down. Still we showed that we can play when we're not running. We're not just a running team."

Patton also expressed pleasure in the Pirates' rebounding, noting that Baylor is one of the biggest teams the Bucs will play this year.

He also had words of praise for Ashorn, who was the team's leading scorer in the game with 16 points. "He had two bad games prior to this one. But this was a good one for him and should get him going again."

Besides Ashorn's 16, Bramer added 12, while Hunt and Geter each had 10. Baylor was led by Jeff Miller with 17, while Rufus had 16 and Edwards had 10.

"The people of East Carolina and those of the eastern part of the state should be proud of these players for the way they had played and conducted themselves," Patton added.

He also noted that going into the St. Peter's game on Wednesday, the Bucs had ranked as the number 12 team in scoring offense at just under 90 points a game.

Miller Pads Phoenix Open Lead With A 68

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Johnny Miller expanded his bulging lead to seven strokes Saturday with a three-under-par 68 in the third round of the $150,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

Miller, the 1974 Player of the Year and author of an incredible 61 in Friday's second round, put together a 54-hole total of 196, the best three-round total on the pro tour in at least three years.

His 17-under-par total on the 6,725-yard Phoenix Country Club course all but clinched the title and the $30,000 first prize, and made Sunday's final round little more than a chase for second place.

Miller's seven-stroke lead was the biggest three-round advantage in any event on the American tour since 1973.

"I think this was my bad round of the tournament," Miller said. "It was not a very well played round at all."

"I kind of wanted to get this round behind me. Now I want to go out and shoot a good round tomorrow and break the tournament record. I want to hold on to that seven-stroke lead and just watch the holes run out on everybody else," Miller said.

Only Mike Hill could keep Miller in sight. Hill, usually a very poor performer early in the year, had a 69 and was a distant second at 203, 10-under-par.

Hill appeared to have the only chance of catching Miller —and it would take a super effort for him to do it. If Miller can match par-71 in Sunday's final round, it would take a 64 by Hill to tie him.

It was another three strokes behind Hill to Roy Pace who was alone in third with a 69-206, 10 shots behind the leader. Everyone else was 11 strokes or more behind.

U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin had the best round of the mild, sunny day, a 65 for a 210 total. PGA titleholder Lee Trevino took a 72 and was at 215.

Tigers In 56-45 Loss

WILLIAMSTON—Williamston High School split a pair of basketball games with Ahsokie Friday night taking the junior varsity game, 48-35 but losing the varsity game, 56-45, there was no girls game.

Ahsokie took a three-point edge in the first quarter of the boys' game and in the second quarter, as the Tigers cooled off, Ahsokie did too but managed to add two points to their lead for a 28-23 halftime lead.

Ahsokie took the third quarter, 12-8, to increase the lead by four to 40-31 and they also outshot Williamston in the final frame, 16-14, for the 11-point difference at the close of the game.

Ken Vincent led Ahsokie with 14, Alonzo Clark had 13 and Sam Harrell scored 12. John Mason led Williamston with 12.

North Pitt Wins

BETHEL—North Pitt defeated Tarboro, 51-18, in a wrestling match on Friday night.

Black Jack Loses 1st

Presbyterian handed Black Jack its first loss in the Church Basketball League, while Jarvis got its first win in games Friday night.

Jarvis took Trinity, 59-26, in the first of the two games. Jarvis moved out to a 27-10 lead at the half, then coasted home with a 32-16 second half advantage.

Bill Kuykendall led Jarvis with 23 points, while Bill Landreth had 12.

In the second game, Presbyterian nipped Black Jack, 54-53, in a overtime game. Black Jack held a slim 23-21 lead at the end of the half, but Presbyterian came back with a 29-27 margin in the second for a 50-50 tie at the end of regulation time. Presbyterian got field goals from Larry Graham and Richard Holloman during the overtime, while Black Jack got one field goal and one free throw, and that meant the game.

Jack Wall led Presbyterian with 18, while Mike Aldridge had 10. Tal Adams led Black Jack with 17, with Bobby Edwards hitting 11.

Greene Central Tops S. Nash

SNOW HILL—Greene Central won the last of three games with Southern Nash Friday night taking a 64-40 victory in the boys' game to prevent a sweep by the Firebirds.

The 'Birds won two earlier games taking the J.V. game, 44-41, and the girls', 50-28.

In the girls' match-up, the Lady Firebirds rolled up a 13-3 first period lead. Southern Nash held the Ewes to just two points in the second quarter while adding 12 upping the lead to 25-5 at the end of the half.

Greene Central knocked some off the lead in the third period taking the frame, 13-7, but Southern came back with an 18-10 fourth period for the final 22-point margin.

Shirley Hall led the Lady Firebirds with 18 and Loraine Riley had 15.

In the boys' game, the scoring was a complete turnaround. The Rams slipped out by five, 12-7, in the opening frame and added another 12 in the second for a 24-12 advantage at the half.

Greene Central didn't let up in the third quarter adding an additional 18 while Southern scored eight. The Firebirds took the final frame, 20-12.

Strickland led the 'Birds with 12 and Joyner had 11. Marvin Rouse paced the Rams with 12 and Jerry Carraway had 11.

Vikings Nip Jaguar Matmen

FARMVILLE—D.H. Conley won the last match of the night to slip past Farmville Central's wrestling team, 32-29, Friday night.

The lead had changed hands frequently during the match with the Jaguars taking a 29-26 edge on Jerry Flanagan's pin of Harvey Smith in the 197-pound class. Lo Carmon pulled it out for the Vikings pinning Farmville Central's Randy Jackson in the unlimited class in 3:55 for six points and the Conley win.

The Jaguars won two of the first three matches but then Conley won three, two by falls and one by decision to go in front, 20-8. Things turned towards the Jaguars as they won the next four by decisions to go ahead 23-20.

The quickest pin of the night came as Conley's Ricky Phillips, 169, pinned Angelo Harris in 24 seconds.

The summary:
100: Nate Fields (F) drew Donald Ribero, 7-7.
107: Ronald Harris (C) decisioned Willy White, 15-13.
114: Hoarce Williams (F) pinned Ken Daughtry, :49.

Rampants Defeat Goldsboro

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

GOLDSBORO—After both Rose High School and Goldsboro had blown healthy leads, the Rampants finally outlasted the Cougars to snap a two-game losing streak, 86-80, Friday night.

The Rampants rode the 31-point scoring barrage put up by Ronnie Barrett to rally from as far back as 10 points in the second period. But they also blew a nine-point lead late in the game before riding the foul line to victory.

The win was the seventh of the season for the Rampants, who ended their non-conference games with this contest. From here on in, the Rose five will be playing strictly conference games. They are 7-4 at this point.

Both teams shot poorly, with Goldsboro getting off to a very cold start, then warming up before turning cold again. They missed on their first seven shots from the floor, but still stayed close as Rose didn't do much better, making only three of their first 10.

Rose got the opening lead on Donnie Shields' toss-back, and they upped that to 4-1 after Tyrone Taft hit after a Goldsboro free throw. Goldsboro got another at the charity line, followed by Barrett's corner shot, making it 6-2.

But Goldsboro battled back and finally tied it up on a rebounding shot by Bruce McCoy with 1:50 left. Rose went back out, 10-8, but again was tied.

This time, Ben Uzzell hit from underneath, giving the Cougars the lead, 12-10, with 27 seconds left. Rose tied it, but a jumper by Arthur Dawson with five seconds showing gave the Cougars a 14-12 lead at the horn.

Rose tied it up on two Barrett free throws, then took the lead on a drive by Lindberg Morris, 16-14. But Goldsboro tied it again, and pushed back ahead on a drive by William Morrissey.

Rose knotted it again at 18-18, and again at 20-20 before Dawson put in a jumper with 5:31 left for a 22-20 lead. Morrissey got another for a four-point lead, and after an exchange, Uzzell got two free throws, and Morrissey and McCoy both hit to run the lead out to 32-23. With 2:54 left, Dawson drove to score and give the Cougars their biggest lead, 36-26.

But after that, Rose cut it back. In the remaining time, they outhit the Cougars, 14-7, to trim the lead back to 43-40 at the half. William Brewington, and Shields each hit two baskets during the rally.

Rose scored first in the second half to cut the lead to one, 43-42, but Goldsboro pulled backout by five on two quick baskets.

Rose came back with three in a row, however, by Brewington, Taft and Barrett and that put Rose ahead, 48-47 with 5:54 left.

They slowly pulled it out to five, 55-50, and eventually to nine, at 61-52 with 2:10 left on Brewington shot. But two free throws by Morrissey in the remaining time cut it to 61-54 by the end of the period.

Goldsboro kept their rally going in the opening minutes of the final period, and finally tied it up and then took the lead on two free throws by Ron Broadhurst with 5:57 left, 66-65.

The lead didn't last long, however. Rose got it back as Barrett hit two from the line, then Linwood Brown added a basket for a three-point lead, 69-66. That proved a big difference, as the two headed down to the wire exchanging baskets. Rose opened it up a little more as they spread it out and Goldsboro was forced to foul. Of the final 11 points, seven came at the line in the final 3:23.

Besides Barrett's 31,

Brewington added 17, while Shields had 13.

Goldsboro was led by Morrissey with 21, while Uzzell had 20, Dawson had 19 and Broadhurst had 11.

In the junior varsity game, Goldsboro took a 90-69 victory. The Baby Cougars ran out to a 20-12 lead and never trailed again. They worked up a 40-33 lead at the half.

The Cougars continued to run away, outhitting Rose, 23-16, to up it to 63-49. They finished it up with a 27-20 final period.

Hobart Simms led Goldsboro with 27, while Warren Alston and Tony Outlaw each had 14, Jeff Dudley had 11 and Reggie McLarin had 10. Rose was led by Mike Adams with 20, while Derek Brewington had 18 and Herb Oliver had 10.

Rose plays host to Rocky Mount on Tuesday, opening their Division I play.

East Carolina Swims Past Spiders, 80-26

East Carolina University's swimming team continued its winning tradition in the Southern Conference, storming past the University of Richmond Friday afternoon, 80-26, in Minges Natatorium.

The Bucs had little trouble in disposing of the Spiders, as they captured first place in 10 of the 13 events. Richmond took one of the diving events, the 200-yard breaststroke and the final 400-yard freestyle relay.

Several meet records were set during the afternoon. Gary Pabst set a new mark in the 200-yard freestyle, coming in in 1:52.11 while fellow Pirate Tomas Palmgren won the 200-yard individual medley in 2:02.19.

Richmond diver Keith Kopecky took the one-meter diving piling up 235.45 points to set a new mark.

Pirate Ricky Prince also set a new meet mark in the 200-yard backstroke in 2:09.57. Diver Jim Burden took the 3-meter diving with a record 290.40 points.

The Pirates, following a meet Saturday with the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, travel to the University of Maryland next Saturday.

Saintes Topple Jaguar Lassies

DUDLEY—Farmville Central's girls' basketball team had been tied for first place in the ladies division of the Eastern Carolina Conference with the Lady Saints of Southern Wayne but Friday night, Southern Wayne knocked the Lady Jags out of the tie with a 39-31 win.

Farmville Central also lost both boys games dropping the jayvee contest by 52-40, and the varsity lost its sixth in a row, 64-48.

In the girls' game, Southern Wayne commandeered a six-point lead in the first period and increased it to 20-11 at halftime. Earlier in the year, the Lady Jaguars beat the Saints for Southern's only loss so far.

Farmville Central cut the lead to eight, 30-22 in the third quarter but could not make up the difference in the last frame as both teams scored nine points.

Jennifer Counterman led the Lady Jaguars with 10 while Cheryl Armwood led the Lady Saints with 13.

In the night cap, Southern

Wayne rolled over an eight point, 19-11, lead over the Jaguars in the opening period and added ten to it in the second period as the Saints took a 39-21 advantage into the dressing room at the half. Neither team could gain on the other in the third as both dropped in 11 points. The Jaguars managed to cut two off in the last quarter, 16-14, but could not make up any more.

Both Farmville teams had two key players injured. Skeeter Suggs, the girls' teams' best ballhandler, was hampered by a leg injury and Mike Corbett was injured during the boys' game. Corbett did get 11 and Jeff Fields scored 12 for the Jaguars. Anthony Williams led the Saints with 24 and Michael Oliver had 15.

Conley Roars Past Ayden-Grifton, 71-36

By Chip Lambeth
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD—Melvin Williams pumped in 23 points and hauled down 21 rebounds in leading the D.H. Conley Vikings to their eleventh straight Eastern Carolina Conference win, beating Ayden-Grifton, 71-36, Friday night.

The A-G Charges salvaged only one win out of the three games played taking the girls' contest, 34-17. The Conley J.V.'s got a five point rally in the last 30 seconds of their game to take the

A-G Baby Chargers, 56-48. The Vikings remain on top of the ECC boys standings with a 10-0 record. The Chargers, last year's 3-A state champions fall off to 2-8 in the loop.

Despite the score, the boys' game was the violently contested game that has been expected when these two teams get together. The Vikings won the first meeting of the two this year, 59-44, on December 10. They controlled the rebounding as well as the scoring. The Vikings pulled down 36 while A-G grabbed off 20. Rick Mobley had nine rebounds and Johnny Streeter six for the Vikings while Willie Forbes had 10 for the Chargers.

The game started out with the lead bouncing around as much as the ball. The Vikings opened it up late in the first quarter as Williams got hot and after that, Conley did what they wanted.

The Vikings dropped in 28 of 68 shots from the floor for 41 percent while the Chargers hit 27 percent, 15 of 55. Conley made 14 of 22 free throws while the Chargers hit six on nine trips to the line.

The Chargers opened the scoring on a field goal by Willie Williams but Conley took the lead on buckets by Rick Mobley and Calvin Hawkins. Vern Davenport gave the lead back to A-G on a 20 footer but Williams camed his first bucket to lift Conley back on top, 6-4. The game was tied once more, on a lay-up by Bennie King but that was the last time A-G was even close.

Williams scored seven of the next nine Conley points as the Vikings roared out to a 15-6 lead as the quarter ended.

Charlie Keyes and Mobley opened the second period with field goals for the Vikings as Conley outscored the Chargers by ten, 18-8, in the frame sailing out to a 33-14 lead at halftime.

By the time the third period had ended, the Chargers had fallen back by 30, 50-20. Williams carried the Vikings through the third quarter scoring eight points. Williams led the Chargers getting all six of their points in the period.

The scoring opened up in the last period as the Vikings added 21 and the Chargers 16 to their totals as both benches saw action in the quarter.

In addition to Williams's 23, Mobley scored 18 and Streeter had 10. Williams had 14 for the Chargers.

In the girls' game, Conley got the first and last basket of the opening period. In the time between the two scores, A-G dumped in nine points getting the lead on a shot from the corner by Audrey McCarter with 1:38 gone in the game. The Lady Chargers took 10, 12 and finally 13-points leads in the second period leading 20-7 at intermission. Neither team could

North Lenoir Surprises Panther Five With 51-47 Upset Victory

WHEAT SWAMP—North Lenoir surprised North Pitt's Panthers, 51-47, Friday night, handing the Panthers only their second Eastern Carolina Conference win.

That enabled the Conley Vikings to breathe a little easier in the conference race, since the Panthers had been breathing hot on the heels of the Vikings.

The North Lenoir girls also came away with a victory, 48-45.

In the varsity game, North Lenoir and North Pitt fought a close game all the way. The Hawks slipped out into an 11-10 lead at the end of the first period. In the second, North Lenoir continued to inch away, outshooting the Panthers, 13-11, to take a 24-21 lead into the dressing room.

North Pitt came back a little stronger in the third period, pushing through 18 points, while holding the Hawks to just 14. That pushed the Panthers into a 39-38 lead as the final quarter got underway. In that, however, the Hawks put the screws to the Panthers, holding them to only eight points, while North Lenoir got 13. And that was enough for the victory.

Clarence Wiggins led the Hawks with 21 points, while Joseph Pearce led 12. North Pitt was paced by Donnie Perkins with 19, while Vincent Barnhill had 13.

In the girls' game, North Pitt slipped out into a 16-14 lead after one period, but the Lady Hawks came back with a 13-8 margin in the second frame. That gave North Lenoir a 27-24 lead at the half.

They continued to pull away from the Pant-HERS in the second half, outshooting them, 13-8, in the third stanza. That gave them a 40-32 lead. North Pitt came back with a 13-8 final period advantage, but couldn't quite pull it out.

Kathi Manning led North Pitt with 19, while Mary Brown had 10. Vickie Vail led the Hawks with 17, while Denise Beachman had 14 and Beverly Faishan had 10.

The Panthers play host to Southern Wayne on Tuesday.

Chargers Upset Southern Wayne

LITTLEFIELD—Ayden-Grifton High School pulled off its second wrestling victory of the year Friday night, and it couldn't have come at a better time.

The Chargers were playing host to unbeaten Southern Wayne, and when it was over they had handed the Saints a 41-30 defeat.

Ayden-Grifton won seven individual weight classes, including six by pins. Southern Wayne picked up five wins, including the final three, four by pins. One match ended in a draw.

The Chargers piled up points in the middle weight classes to put the match on ice, running up a 41-12 lead prior to the final three—and by then it was too late for any Southern rally.

The win brought the Ayden-Grifton record to 2-5-1 on the year.

Pantego Takes Two From Bears

PANTEGO—Mark Gardner scored 14 points in the fourth period for Bear Grass but could not lift the Bears to a victory over Pantego as the Bears lost their ninth game of the season, 57-54.

Pantego made it a sweep taking the J.V. game, 68-30 and the girls' 44-30.

Gardner finished the game with 19 for the Bears and Randy Stokes had 14 while Davis Price scored 10. The Bears fell behind, 16-11, in the first period and Pantego picked up another point in the second period, 11-10 for a 27-20 intermission advantage.

The Bears fell further behind in the third quarter as Pantego scored 17 to Bear Grass' 10. But in the fourth period, Gardner got hot and his shooting helped the Bears cut the lead from 44-30 down to a three-point spread. The Bears failed to knock off the remaining three points as time ran out.

Anthony Bryant led the winners with 20, Ralph Whitney had 13 and James Harris 10.

Pantego jumped off to an early lead in the girls' game, running it to 11-2 lead in the first period. After that, it was just a question of time. Both teams pushed in 11 in the second frame, making it 22-13 at the half.

Pantego outshot Bear Grass, 9-6, in the third period, and finished up with a 13-11 final period advantage.

Valerid McDaniels led Pantego with 15, while Beverly Harvey added 11. Patricia Taylor had 13 for Bear Grass.

Clarence Wiggins led the Hawks with 21 points, while Joseph Pearce led 12. North Pitt was paced by Donnie Perkins with 19, while Vincent Barnhill had 13.

Robersonville Defeated, 67-65

ROBERSONVILLE—Robersonville's girls won their third straight basketball game Friday night, but the Eagle boys continued their down hill slide, 67-65. The girls won, 42-24, while the junior varsity also claimed a win over visiting North Edgecombe, 66-50.

In the girls' contest, Robersonville shot away to a 15-4 lead during the first period. They built that out to 25-11 in the second frame, holding a 10-7 scoring advantage.

North Edgecombe came back with an 8-6 margin in the third frame, but was still far back, 31-19. Robersonville outthit them to the wire, 11-5, to wrap it up.

Beatrice Forrest and Yvette Modica led Robersonville with 13 each, while Gwen Best was credited with 24 rebounds.

For the Eagles, things turned sour in the boys' game as their rally from behind fell just short. North Edgecombe pushed out into a 17-9 lead in the first quarter of the game. Robersonville outthit them by two, 17-15, and trailed by 32-26, as the half came to an end.

In the third frame, North Edgecombe again built their lead, 19-13, as they upped it to 51-39. Robersonville put on their last rally in the final period, outthitting Edgecombe, 26-16, but it fell two points short of catching up.

Kinston Tops EBA

KINSTON—Kinston Junior High School handed E.B. Aycock its first loss in three starts Friday afternoon, taking a 65-45 victory. Kinston also won the junior varsity game, 50-25.

In the varsity affair, Kinston shot away to a 21-10 lead after one period, and Aycock never was able to catch up. Kinston outthit the Panthers, 14-10, in the second frame for a 35-20 half-time lead.

Kinston continued to pull away in the third period, 18-10, runing their lead to 53-30. Aycock came back with a 15-9 final period, but they were too far back to rally.

Larry Powell led Kinston with 16, while Bill Jones had 13. Greg Guthrie led Greenville with 12 points.

On Wednesday, January 8, at 8 p.m., the Annual Faculty Show of faculty members of the School of Art, East Carolina University, opened.

Scheduled to be on view through February 4, the show is located in the Kate Lewis Gallery, the downstairs hallway of the Whichard Building on campus.

This year, there's some exciting things for viewers, whatever one's preference—crafts, prints, drawings, ceramics, sculpture, water colors, constructions, and paintings.

Interest And Vitality In The ECU Faculty Show

... pen and ink drawing, Ray Elmore

The annual School of Art faculty show at the Kate Lewis Gallery on the East Carolina University campus is an auspicious start for the calendar year 1975.

Last year and the year before the show was marred by inclusion of several art works previously seen—in a few instances more than once before. This year, it's a much happier situation. And there's a liberal number of exciting works that proves conclusively that people who teach art can also create as well, often with excellent results.

One of the surprises in this year's annual show is a couple of superb black and white photographs by painter Betty Petteway. Her portrait of a young Negro girl, seated with knees drawn up, captures a personal private moment in which young girls dream their secret dreams. Betty's photograph of the branches of a Mimosa tree in leaf is a photograph of natural beauty, a play of sunlight on lacy leaves.

Dorothy Satterfield shows a rough textured wall tapestry suggesting an aged, ravelled saddle. Big and strong in concept, the use of rich dark and medium browns with gray and natural fibers are just the right colors for the overall rugged design of this piece.

Another woman faculty member, Betsy Ross, continues to delight with delicate drawings in meticulous detail. Hers is a light, misty gray and white use of pencil, touched by pale colors as clear as the dawn sky. Betsy uses formal arrangements, where the stronger pictorial elements unobtrusively frame central details. There's not many around who can match the magic of her pencil drawings. Old and young alike will love her pale green rabbit set against an egg shell blue sky. Another drawing of a single egg has a half arch cut out showing four birds in geometric flight.

Norman Keller's Zip-zap construction will amuse some, infuriate others. A sculptor with a non-stop imagination, he has fashioned an altar like construction entitled "Monument To Southern Cooking." Resting at eye level on a stand, the sculpture incorporates oddly mated objects (some obviously rescued from throw-outs). These include fruit jars of canned vegetables (spoiled?), a white Bible with plastic carnations encased in a glass block, an old electrical transformer, a pair of sturdy balusters, beer bottles, etc. Glaring neon signs, top and bottom, proclaim "Open". Not by any means one of Keller's finer works, it's certainly provocative.

Two faculty printmakers, Gerald Johnson and Donald Sexauer, judging from examples in this show, are developing more and more into lighter colors and more open space. Johnson's print, revealing a further move into simplification, is divided into rectangular areas of color contrasted with two small snow white areas. As usual, this print shows Johnson's control of balance when dealing with angular forms.

The Sexauer prints are splendid achievements in print making. Gone are the dark, somber Rembrandtish backgrounds. In these prints, he shows a heightened awareness of lighter colors without any loss of lyrical mood evoked by his half-sad people. Tan and pink peach tones, straw and light blues and blue grays suggest an early summer atmosphere without a tinge of prettiness.

Ray Elmore is another faculty member who demonstrates the poetic beauty that can be achieved with simple means. In a large pencil and ink drawing, Elmore has drawn a leafy weed-filled pasture with a single cow. The background sky is dominated by the curious addition of a commercial type ad touting Cott ginger-ale. Somehow this half Wyeth, half "Saturday-Evening Post" 30's ad combination comes off without jarring.

Marilyn Gordley shows a painting of zinnias — one of many she has devoted to that hardy Southern flower. Mrs. Gordley is probably one of the finest painters of zinnias anywhere. The colors are summer ripe luscious — just as zinnias in nature are. I feel the addition of two seashells in this composition is unfortunate, giving it an artsy touch not in keeping with the rest of this fine painting.

Dr. Francis Speight, senior faculty member of the School of Art, is represented in this show by a lovely landscape, "Old Smoke Houses." Two silvered barns, leaning against each other for support, are enclosed by the green and gold of summer trees and sun. This is a gentle painting, typical of Dr. Speight's reverence for the rural landscapes of eastern North Carolina.

Wes Crawley is represented by two small works — a drawing of a resting nude, and a cast stone sculpture of a young woman. Both underline Crawley's understanding of the nude as subject matter, and his ability to deal with the figure in the best classic tradition couched in this own personal interpretation.

John Satterfield apparently is having lots of fun with titles for his magnificently crafted metal work. There's the tongue-in-cheek "Ad-Lib — Panty Whose?" sculptured figure only a few inches in height. A slender stand supports a gold egg opened at the halfway point, from which protrudes the hips and up-raised legs of a woman attired in panty hose. The hips rest on red satin. Among other objects crafted by Satterfield is a padlock with key and small vase holding feathers, fetchingly entitled "Frolicking Feather Fetish." All these are as ornately detailed as the finest Moroccan metalcraft, and display the artist's mastering of both technique and form.

Extending the range of experiments with repetitive details (dots on graph paper and variations of this medium), Mel Stanforth has produced a small, intense work of tiny details in colored inks overlaid with black writing that resembles both Persian script or vaguely familiar hieroglyphics.

Other School of Art faculty members represented in this annual show include Henry Stindt with an interesting construction based on the results of an attempt to give away free baseball bats downtown Greenville on December 31, 1974; Tran Grodley with a painting and 2 or 3 drawings; Dr. Emily Farnham, who shows a coastal watercolor in a loose abstract style; and Tom Evans, who has a small black and white sculpture resembling a stylized bird.

Also, Ed Reep shows two watercolors — one of an astonishingly purple and lavender standing female nude with an elongated face reminiscent of Modigliani's women; Janet Fischer exhibits a silver necklace decorated with ebony and a small wall piece of copper and bright wool in an Indian motif. Sculptor Robert Edmiston has a polished shoulder high sculpture — "Steel Plug For Bronze;" and his wife, Sara Edmiston, shows pieces of cloisonne and plique en jour on rosewood.

Finally, there's a wall weaving in green lightened by touches of peach gold and pink made by Joe Buske; a couple of Francis Neel paintings; a ceramic candelabra in the form of a peacock's spread tail and a hand mirror by Charles Chamberlain; a couple of paintings by William Holley; and a vase and a collection of ceramic forms by Art Haney.

This show will be up during January and into early February. For all who enjoy a sampling of a varied range of art, much of it interesting, some of it vital, this should be one of the best bets in 1975.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the General Assembly will look into those positions that have not been filled by the departments of State government, and cause that money to revert to the State and to look at those positions, which, due to death or retirement, are not filled. This would be a tremendous savings to the state . . . to the tune of $10 million to $15 million," Rountree said.

According to White, "the General Assembly will attempt to cut out all unnecessary jobs . . . where these positions can be determined not to cripple services rendered to the people of North Carolina."

"There is a 'strong possibility' of a hiring freeze, in Bundy's view.

"The biggest part of the budget is personnel . . . paying of people. I think there will be some kind of freeze put on. This is one of the main ways we can hold the budget in line, or keep it from rising.

"Some positions are not absolutely necessary," Bundy commented, "and ought to be frozen. But there is not going to be wholesale firing. If positions are vacant; we will need to take a good look at whether they need to be filled."

Any freeze on hiring, in Allbrook's view, "will be only to the extent of eliminating those burdens heaped upon them," Allbrook emphasized.

"The real problem, today, is being able to retain a job to enable a man to maintain his home, family and the necessities of life," according to Allbrook.

Advices Animal Studies To Understand Man

By DALE SINGER
ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Dr. Michael W. Fox says you have to look at the dog, the cat and the wolf to understand man.

Fox is a psychologist, a veterinarian and a member of the Psychology Department at Washington University. His books, lectures and experiments are aimed at helping man rediscover his animal nature, integrate it with his human intelligence and finally use his power to control his environment to make the world better for all creatures.

To accomplish this he has studied animal behavior, keeps a family of wolves deep in the recesses of Eads Hall at the university, and has written books for pet lovers and for children to help them get inside the minds of animals.

"People behave like animals," Fox said, "and we really shouldn't be surprised when they do because they are animals. Hopefully my books allow both children and adults to rediscover their kinship with animals."

Sitting in his cluttered office, surrounded by two stuffed dogs, pictures of animals and a box of computer cards labeled "wolf" in large letters, Fox talked about how his experiments with animals help him understand man.

"We watch the family of wolves and see how the behavior of the various members interacts," he said. "How does the removal of one member of the family affect the rest? What happens when the one who was removed is brought back? What happens when a stranger is introduced?"

"There is a very close affinity between wolf-the-hunter and man-the-hunter. Man was a hunter for at least a million years and he has a tremendous ancestral heritage of being a hunter. There are many affinities between men and wolves. In many ways these social hunting animals are much closer to man than are chimpanzees.

"We tend to look at a person in terms of how we might use him or, in the extremes, how we might manipulate him to our best advantage. We see the wildness, an animal, a tree or a woman in the same way. It's a rather warped way of looking at things."

To try to change this perspective, Fox has written two kinds of books. In his three works of children's fiction he weaves his story around an animal's behavior and its environment and how it reacts with the men in its life, whether they are ranchers or hunters.

In his books for pet owners—"Understanding Your Dog" and the newly published "Understanding Your Cat"—he tries to get owners to understand the natural tendencies of their pets.

To begin with, he said, dogs and cats appeal to different types of owners.

The successful owner of a cat is more likely to be inner directed, he said, a "do-your-own-thing" type of person, because a cat is a more independent type of animal. Dogs are more sociable, tend to be more dependent, and would be more suitable for an outgoing owner.

A dog's higher degree of dependence also makes it easier to train a dog than a cat, Fox said.

"It's not intelligence and trainability that go together," he said. "It's dependence."

Raising an animal is similar to raising a child, Fox said. "You're not going to make a little girl into a boy," Fox said, "and you're not going to raise a kitten to be a dog. But if you relate openly, without prior expectations, you'll have a much different creature when it grows up than if you treat it like you expect it should be treated."

He said the theory is similar to the belief of the women's liberation movement, that little girls shouldn't be forced to fit certain roles just because those roles have traditionally been filled by women.

Of course, things don't always go right, and Fox said he meets many of the same psychological problems in pets that are found in children—jealousy, sibling rivalry, frank disobedience, depression, paranoia, eating problems and power struggles within the family.

Fox cited the case of a Pekingese that had long been the sole object of affection of a childless couple. Then they had a baby. The dog suddenly developed a hysterical paralysis of the hind legs. The solution, he said, was similar to what the solution would be if the patient were a person—either give the dog more affection or give it to a childless couple.

"Freud said basic human nature is basically rotten," Fox said, "but human nature and animal nature are really beautiful. Modern man has to rediscover his true nature as a highly sociable, loving creature—like the wolf."

Complain Over Who Who Drive

By TOM FENTON
Associated Press Writer
CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — It wasn't street or traffic conditions that caused the recent stir over an Eddy County residential road just north of Carlsbad. It was the name.

Some of those who live on or near it complained that Who Who Drive isn't a proper name for a street.

H. W. Gilbert, who lives on Who Who Drive, is plenty sore about the name.

"It's not funny. It's devalued my property," Gilbert, 61, told the Eddy County Commission in a bid to get the name changed. "Two guys got together and just rammed this down our throats," Gilbert said in a telephone interview. "The first I knew about it was when they put up the sign. Nobody was consulted in picking the name. A real estate agent couldn't show my property without laughing."

His feelings were echoed in a letter to the Carlsbad Current-Argus by Carole Walterscheid, 13, who lives on nearby Sandy Lane. "Who Who Drive is a silly name and ought to be changed," wrote Miss Walterscheid.

Attorney Mike Mc Cormick, who represented Gilbert at the commission meeting, said he found it "hard to be serious since the name of the street does not lend itself to seriousness."

"In fact, the name Who Who Drive doesn't lend itself to anything," McCormick told the commission.

The man who picked the name Who Who Drive said he did it because he once saw a street by that name in Texas and got a chuckle out of it.

Besides, "If you were to canvass people of Deep Drive you would find that three-quarters of them don't like that name either. A lot of people don't even like the name their parents gave them," he told the commission.

"In this day and time it doesn't hurt anyone to slow down and smile a little," he added.

Commissioners apparently bought the argument. They declined to offer a motion to change the name of the street.

Gilbert's wife, Katharine, has a partial solution to the situation. "I don't use the name of the street," she said. "I just use my post office box number."

Crochet Class Saved A Life

The Greenville Recreation Department announces classes in the art of crocheting.

Classes will be held at the Elm Street Recreation Center beginning on Tuesday, January 14 in two hour sessions at 9:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m., and 3:30 p.m. A two and one half hour session will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday lessons will be given from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m.

Classes in beginner's crochet will be held at Moyewood Center beginning Thursday, January 16 from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m.

There is no instruction cost involved. Participants, however are required to bring four-ply wool for practice and a crochet needle size F-5, G-6, or H-8. For further information contact Lucille Summrell, 752-4137 ext. 251.

Saved A Life Ramming Car

LARGO, Fla. (AP) — An Eagle Scout's training drove him into a rear-end collision that helped save a life.

William B. Davis was driving his 10-year-old car when the vehicle ahead of him stalled on the railroad tracks at an unguarded crossing near here. He saw the young woman driver desperately trying to restart her automobile as a freight train bore down on her. The 17-year-old Scout quickly rammed the car ahead of him, forcing it forward. The locomotive hit the rear of the first car and the front end of the Scout's auto, damaging both extensively, but both Mrs. Deborah Roberson and Davis escaped serious injury.

For his act of heroism and quick thinking in an emergency, Davis was awarded the highest award in Scouting — the Boy Scout Honor Medal with crossed palms.

Says Care Isn't For Doctor Only

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A Carnegie-Mellon University economics professor says medical care should not be left solely to doctors.

"Current medical care comes from the interaction of many health professionals in many settings," says Lester B. Lave, who is investigating health care coordination under a series of grants from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"Medical care is too complex to be left to the doctors," he says. "An individual working with only his tools and personal knowledge is as out of date as the horse and buggy."

Lave proposes increased use of paramedics and community or satellite health clinics.

Old Custom In A Free-For-All

HAXEY, England (UPI) — On January 6, Lincolnshire sportsmen turn out to play a free-for-all rugby game called the Haxby Hood Game. The match is supervised by quaintly dressed "boggans", a "king", and a "fool." Then its every man for himself trying to get the leather ball, or "hood," to the local bar for free drinks.

The custom originated in the 13th century when Lady de Mowbray lost her hood while riding. She donated land to 12 laborers—who retrieved her headgear.

SALES

You can earn $20,000-$30,000 per year in repeat selling

We are a major division of a NYSE listed corporation and recognized as one of the fastest growing and most successful industrial corporations in America today.

Of real importance to you is the fact that our company will continue to grow because the incomes and personal opportunities of our salesmen continue to grow.

Our total commitment to success has helped our salespeople to average $22,000 in earned commissions their first year, and they are backed by a liberal drawing account of up to $300.00 per week vs. high commission structure, plus an excellent benefit program for family security.

You should possess a solid business background with good sales experience, and/or outstanding sales potential. But even more important, is your potential for leadership.

Your starting point will be selling in the field to successfully prove yourself in the day to day selling of our industrial specialty chemicals. Thereafter, the opportunity for management responsibility will be as fast as your capabilities allow.

Excellent loan assumption on this charming rustic ranch in Greenbriar. Four thousand dollars down will get you a 7 per cent FHA loan with total monthly payments of only $151.56 a month. This home has three bedrooms with hardwood floors and one bath with ceramic tile and wallpaper. In addition to low monthly payments you'll also have low utility bills. Electric baseboard heat gives you a thermostat in every room and 100 per cent utilization of heat when you need it.

Want to buy a four bedroom home with three ceramic baths, a tremendous den, formal living and dining area, a cozy fireplace, a kitchen with solid knotty pine cabinets, a double carport with plenty of storage and a spacious wooded lot not to mention a location in an excellent neighborhood? Want to buy in a location where most of the homes within a quarter of a mile up and down the street are valued and are selling for in excess of $45,000. Want to buy the above mentioned home with 2,243 square feet for less than $45,000? Would you like to do a minimum amount of decorating (paint and wallpaper) and increase the value of your property by 20 per cent. Sounds like a good deal doesn't it? Call us and see.

$43,000 assumable mortgage at 8 per cent with principal and interest payments of $315.00 per month. Do you know how much more your payments per month would be if this loan were 9 per cent; over $40.00 per month! Have you been holding off on that new larger home because interest rates have driven the payments out of sight! We have available immediately a four bedroom, 2 1/2 bath home, living room, dining room, breakfast room, and large family room with a fireplace and built-in book shelves. Also a double garage that will accommodate two large cars. Located on wooded lot in one of Greenville's choicest locations. Priced at $67,500.

Priced at less than $7.00 (SEVEN DOLLARS) a square foot and in good condition too. This rambling home with 4 bedrooms, 2 baths, living room, dining room and den with a basement has 3,740 square feet of heated area in it. It's ready and waiting for some smart young couple to make a super investment out of it and soon. FHA & VA financing available. Call for an appointment and you won't believe our eyes.

Custom home in Brook Valley. Must see interior to appreciate the styling and workmanship. Four bedrooms, two full baths, massive family room with fireplace and elegant living and dining room. Beautiful breakfast room with bay window. This home has a tremendous attic with windows already installed and was planned so that the attic could be converted into a second story. Let us show you how to double the space and the value with half the cost. Call us today. Priced at $67,500.

Good buy in Oakmont. The new 3 bedroom, two bath was built by a builder for a builder. Excellent construction coupled with a beautiful lot makes this lovely home. $43,000.

Want a really low monthly payment and not have a utility bill that burns you up every month? Come look at this three bedroom, two bath home with storm windows and a lot of insulation. Total utility bill, summer and winter never more than $50.00 a month. 1500 square feet of heated area, fenced back yard with garden plot, single car garage with storage and possible 7 per cent loan assumption with $5,000 down and monthly payment of $198.00.

TWO ROOM, BATH WING ADDS LIVING SPACE

By Jerry Bishop

Imagine a cozy family room brightened by a blazing log fire and lined with built-in bookshelves. Add a 12 by 10-ft. bedroom, double closets, and full bath. Now, envision how this expansion would improve your home.

Current rising costs and the tight money situation have made building or buying a new home more difficult, yet families continue to find their present homes becoming too small for their needs.

If your family requires more space for sleeping, playing, or simply living, an addition such as this may prove a solution. And, changing your home to accommodate larger rooms and additional space can also be a sound investment, since it increases the home's resale value.

Adaptable to all styles of homes, this 448-sq. ft. addition offers more space and a luxurious family activity area at a fraction of the cost of building or buying a new home. Its most outstanding feature is flexibility; for example, the carpeted family room can be adjusted to provide a generously proportioned master bedroom, with or without the fireplace. Or, the entire addition can be geared to entertaining and contain a large, firelit living room, formal dining room, and full bath. Closets may be added or omitted as desired, brick siding may be substituted for wood, and minor changes can be made so that the expanded area will blend effectively with the existing home.

Well-windowed and conveniently arranged, this addition living space can be attached at right angles as shown in the drawing or can be joined to the home in any other way compatible with its design and the shape of the present home.

With more space as its chief goal, the illustrated expansion measures a full 28 by 16 feet and answers one of the most common space problems by including a sizable bedroom and full bath. It also offers the possibility of a zoned area for parties or informal activities apart from the main body of the home.

Should auxiliary storage space be needed, the plan shows access to an attic that might be incorporated into the expansion if desired.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q—I have always read that varnish should be used just as it comes from the can and not thinned. In fact, the can of varnish I bought the other day says that thinning is not necessary. But now I have just read a book that recommends thinning varnish with one part of turpentine to five parts of varnish. Which is correct?

A.—In all aspects of wood finishing, there are differences of opinion as to what constitutes the proper mixtures and which method of application is best. Generally, varnish performs satisfactorily when it is used right from the container, but there are some wood finishers who always put a little turpentine in it.

My own opinion is that the only time thinning is required is when you are putting more than one coat on raw wood. Thus, the first coat serves as a kind of sealer or undercoat. But if the varnish is to be applied over any other finishing material, then it should be used full strength. In all cases, however, I would first check the instructions, since there are so many kinds of varnishes these days that some may require special treatment.

Q—I intend to make a coffee table for our living room, but I plan on buying precut legs. Is there a standard height for coffee tables or is it a matter of preference?

A.—There is no such thing as a standard height, but designers have figured out that certain heights are either impractical or displeasing to the eye. Most will tell you that a coffee table top should be no higher than and preferably a bit lower than the seat of the sofa adjacent to it. The so-called "safe" area for a coffee table is between 14 and 18 inches from the floor.

Q.—In finishing our basement, which I expect to do within the next couple of months, I plan to put up a partition below the basement ceiling. I know that I have to attach horizontal 2 by 4s along the bottom side of the girder. But how do I attach them?

A.—Since it is obvious that attachment would be simple if you were talking about a wood girder, I will assume that you are referring to a steel girder. You will have to bolt the 2 by 4s to the flange of the girder with 3/8th-inch cap screws or machine bolts 3 1/2 inches long. This means you'll have to drill holes into the flange, requiring an electric drill and the proper bit, which can be obtained from a hardware store, lumber yard or building supply dealer. The flange is the rim that runs along the girder.

You can get either of Andy Lang's booklets, "Wood Finishing in the Home" or "Installing Resilient Floor Tiles" by sending 30 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Building a vacation dream house can be an experience. But it is doubtful whether anyone had the variety of bizarre adventures that beset Denny and Jack Smith when they decided to have a second home constructed in Lower California on the Mexican side of the border.

The hazardous but hilarious enterprise began one weekend when Smith a columnist for the Los Angeles Times and his wife left their home and drove south to meet Romulo Gomez, a man who owned some land on the Baja peninsula along the Pacific Coast. Before they were hardly aware of it, the Smiths had agreed to lease a piece of the Gomez territory and to permit their stranger-friend to be the contractor for their vacation house.

What happened to the Smiths from that historic weekend on is detailed humorously by Smith in a delightful new book called "God and Mr. Gomez." Thanks to Mr. Gomez—casual, philosophic, logically illogical, aggravating and lovable—I read it nonstop. The title came from the time the Smiths asked the Mexican landowner where the water would come from for their new house and, after being given a succession of vague answers, were told "the water comes from God," a reply made with such intensity that the couple decided not to pursue the subject.

Gomez continued to place a stamp of finality on all his decisions. There was the time the Smiths discovered, on a return visit to the area, that their lot had been "moved," simply because Gomez had decided that it had a better view than the one originally agreed on. It didn't matter that the new location was in the middle of a road; Gomez merely cut a detour around the house to bypass the road.

Each time the Smiths asked when the house would be finished, Gomez replied: "In three months." It never was, of course. But, finally the umpteenth time the question was asked, Gomez said: "In two months." Smith knew that some progress had been made, if not actually, then conversationally.

When the house eventually was completed, there were a few matters that had to be straightened out, like a toilet tank that sent only hot water into the bowl; a refrigerator that froze everything solid no matter how its thermostat was set; and a fireplace that always sent smoke into the house, a development that Gomez insisted was impossible because the interior of the fireplace had been imported from the United States.

By the time the Smiths were able to spend some time in the house, they had come to accept one of the tenets of the Gomez philosophy—that all practical problems can be solved with a little time and a little tequila.

GARDEN CLINIC

N.C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. How can I control aphids or plant lice on mustard greens? (D.D., Wilmington)

A. Try malathion. Be sure to choose a day when the temperature will remain 65 degrees or above for several hours after application. Repeat treatments may be necessary. Do not eat the greens for seven days after application. You are limited in handling this problem by what is effective, practical, economical and safe. (H.E. Scott, extension entomologist)

Q. We received several Christmas plants as gifts. Please advise how we should care for them. (Mrs. W.T., Charlotte)

A. Most homes generally have a hot, dry atmosphere which hastens plant decline. Holiday plants do better in a cooler temperature (65-68 degrees). The warmer the temperatures, the shorter the period of bloom and the faster the plant "goes down hill." It is advisable to remove foil pot wrap for drainage purposes. Also remove any broken leaves, branches or flowers. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

THE BEST ADVERTISING

Selling your home? Then your first thought will, no doubt, be advertising it. You may start by planting a "For Sale By Owner" sign in your front lawn. But will this be seen by enough—or any—prospective buyers?

Then—newspaper advertising. This can become more costly and less effective than you think if done improperly. It could lead to over-exposure of the house to the point where, if you should decide later to consult a Realtor, good prospects already will have seen the property and, having failed to buy, will be harder to interest a second time.

The basic reason for advertising is to attract interested prospects who are ready, willing, and financially able to buy. There's a more effective and faster way. List with a Realtor! He has prospects already in the market for homes realistically priced. One of them may be looking for just such a home as yours.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at LOUIS CLARK AGENCY, 315 Evans Street, Greenville. Phone: 752-4173. We're here to help!

Tradition Of Hand-Crafted Furniture Lives

By GAIL MICHAELS

Although furniture is being increasingly mass-produced, at least one person in Pitt County keeps the tradition of hand-crafted furniture alive. At his shop, the Homestead, on the Kinston Highway, Curtis Elks designs, makes, and sells antique reproductions of American country furniture.

Elks first became interested in making furniture when he was working in a cabinet shop. "I found that I enjoyed woodwork. That's what led me to try some of my own on the side as a hobby. I got a wood lathe and started building small things—craft items."

Elks still makes and sells small craft items, such as ship wheels and candle holders, but he intends to devote his talents exclusively to furniture building in the near future.

In explaining his reasons for this decision, he said, "The furniture I make sells better than the smaller items. I've found you've got to make something useful. People seem to be getting away from buying things just to look at. You've got to make things for a purpose."

Elks has also noticed that the furniture he makes sells better if it looks antique rather than new. Although he has a well-equipped shop, he makes his best-selling piece, the fireside bench, using only a hatchet and a handplane. "That's the only way you can make it look old. If you use a machine, it looks new."

Like any good craftsman, Elks spends long hours working on each piece of furniture. "It usually takes at least three or four days to make a fireside bench because of the processes and finishes. I use linseed oil a lot as a finish, and it's slow drying." He estimates that his corner cabinet would take a week's uninterrupted work to complete.

Elk's description of the process by which he makes his furniture reveals his belief that each piece is not just a potential sale but a work of art. "The first thing I do when I make anything is to draw a picture of it. I design my own pieces, sometimes using a country furniture catalogue to give me ideas. Then I try to use the best construction method that I can. For instance, the corner cabinet is mortised and pegged, not glued like a lot of modern furniture."

"I use all solid wood—pine, maple, walnut, and some cherry. I don't use veneers or plywoods. It would be easy to put plywood bottoms on my cradles, but the old people didn't do it. I think if you're going to build antique reproductions, you ought to build them as close to the original as possible. For instance, on my fireside bench, I drive the legs down into the seat. Then I saw down some into the leg. That gives me a split, into which I drive a hardwood wedge. The wedge forces the leg out against the hole in the bench so that the leg won't fall out. This is one of the oldest methods of putting things together. There are no nails or screws, or anything but wood."

Elks sells some of his furniture at the Homestead, a small rustic cabin that he built especially to fit into its picturesque, wooded setting. He also sells some of his furniture in several area antique shops. However, he finds that he makes his best sales at craft shows.

Each craft show has a selection committee which reviews each of the craftsmen's work before the craftsman is allowed to enter. The work must conform to strict standards before the craftsman is allowed to enter the show. Many of the craftsmen are allowed to demonstrate the process by which they make the items on sale. Although there are no prizes, the craft shows provide a profitable market for the craftsman. The shows are well-advertised, and people from many different areas come to view the displays.

Elk's first craft show was the Elizabeth City Craft Show. "I entered four years ago when I was building just small things. 'I've entered every year since. For the past two years, I've also entered the North Hills Craft Show at the North Hills Shopping Center in Raleigh. This show is held at Christmastime. That's where I make my best sales. I sell more there than anywhere."

Schweitzer's Daughter, An Atlanta Grandmother, Carries On

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP
UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A world more keenly aware than ever of Albert Schweitzer's guiding principle, "reverence for life," will celebrate in 1975 the centennial of his birth with symposiums, lectures, books, film, ceremonies and musical concerts.

The year-long observance in more than a score of countries will start Jan. 14, the date of his birth in what was then German Alsace, with a gala concert at Carnegie Hall devoted to the music of Bach. Schweitzer was better known as a philosopher, theologian, mission doctor, and humanitarian, but to the world of music he was the supreme performer, analyst and editor of Bach's organ works.

"Music was the great joy of my father's life," said Schweitzer's only child, Rhena Schweitzer Miller, who was born on Schweitzer's 44th birthday. "The only leisure he allowed himself was to listen to records every Saturday night in Lambarene (his hospital village in the African Republic of Gabon). I can still see him sitting in the light of a kerosene lamp, his face reflecting the greatest intensity."

Few men live as intensely as did Albert Schweitzer, who was named in a 1974 Gallup-type European poll as the most influential man of the 20th Century. In an interview at the Albert Schweitzer Fellowship's New York headquarters, Mrs. Miller emphasized that her father was just as capable of constructing buildings with his own hands as he was at writing revolutionary treatises on Christianity.

"Lambarene was important to him because it was the concrete realization of an idea," said the 55-year-old grandmother from Atlanta, Ga. "Others talked and wrote, but he went out and did. And what he did influenced many lives. Not superficially. He influenced people's choice of careers. The essence of Schweitzer was not so much what he did for others but what others did using Schweitzer as an example."

Schweitzer's views on the interdependence of all living beings and the interdependence of man and nature have never seemed more timely than today, 10 years after his death. When he first voiced his famous ethic of "reverence for life" in 1915, the world was not ecology minded and there was no energy, food or population crisis.

"In 1915, the world thought technical progress was the answer to every problem, but my father did not share that optimism because he saw that technological advances were not accompanied by spiritual growth," Mrs. Miller said.

"The younger generation was the first to realize where technical progress has gotten us. In their disappointment they have been the most open to Schweitzer's ideas, which are now universally accepted. The centennial is designed to remind the world of these ideas, not glorify the man."

The chief U.S. observance will take place in Atlanta April 4-12, with lectures, forums and exhibits planned by Emory University, Atlanta University Center, Memorial Arts Center and the Center for Disease Control, where Mrs. Miller's husband, Dr. David C. Miller, is nutrition epidemiologist. Churches and musical organizations plan special programs.

One of the Atlanta musical events will be a piano recital by Mrs. Miller's daughter, Christiane Eckert, who is following in her grandfather's footsteps as a practicing physician and a concert musician of international note. Mrs. Miller's other daughters are a housewife and an economist specializing in developing nations. Her son is an organ builder.

UNESCO is planning a Schweitzer centennial convocation in Paris. Tubingen, a German center of learning, has scheduled a weeklong observance, and Oslo, where Schweitzer received the Nobel Peace Prize in 1953, will hold a commemorative service Jan. 14. Among American universities sponsoring Schweitzer programs are Princeton, Puget Sound, Washington, Yale, and New York State. Festivals and award ceremonies will be held in cities from Washington to Los Angeles.

Asked why Schweitzer chose Africa for his experiment in living, she did not repeat the usual story that he was influenced by a Biblical parable. She said he had the idea of practicing medicine in the jungle long before he enrolled in medical school in 1905.

"I think he first got the idea from a monument in the Alsatian city of Colmar," she said. "It portrayed a black slave and the expression of suffering mankind impressed my father very much. The sculpture was by Frederic Bartholdy, who sculpted the Statue of Liberty for New York harbor."

Mrs. Miller spends several hours a day working for the success of Lambarene where she lived and worked with her father from 1960 to 1965.

Dr. Rene Kopp, who succeeded Schweitzer, died last October and in January the directorship will be assumed by Dr. Holm Habicht, a German with experience in two other African countries.

She reported that $1 million in U.S. foreign aid funds will make possible new surgical facilities to replace the unit built by Schweitzer in 1927. Gabon's inflation rate of about 40 per cent a year has forced reduction of Lambarene's services but the staff of six doctors, 10 European nurses and a growing number of African personnel still can handle 200 hospitalized patients and a larger number of outpatients.

"We now have an independent pediatric clinic, a dental clinic and a new building for x-rays," Mrs. Miller said. "We plan to add a new polyclinic and a new maternity building. The government of Gabon is setting up a foundation in Lambarene and has promised a $100,000 a year for new construction. Donations come in from all over the world but we hope Gabon will eventually take on more and more of the costs."

Miss Lois Jeanne Spach Weds Saturday Afternoon

WINSTON-SALEM—Miss became the bride of Roy Lois Jeanne Spach, daughter of Theodore Cox, son of Mrs. Boyce Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kenneth Vernon Cox Sr. of Winterville, Spach of Winston-Salem, and the late Mr. Cox, Saturday at 2:00 p.m.

Dr. W. Randall Lolley performed the double ring ceremony in the First Baptist Church. A program of wedding music was presented by Dr. John Mueller.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of ivory organza designed with a mandarin neckline, capped sleeves and empire waist of beaded peau d'ange lace. The A-line skirt was appliqued with beaded lace motifs and featured a court train.

Her full length mantilla was of peau d'ange lace. The bride carried a bouquet of white butterfly roses and summertime gardenias backed with French tulle.

Miss Anne Margaret Spach was her sister's maid of honor. Mrs. Ralph Kenneth Klumpp of Limerick, Pa., was matron of honor. Attendants were Mrs. Boyce Vernon Cox Jr. of Charleston, S.C., Mrs. John Barry Mehalik of Woodbridge, Va., Mrs. Evelyn Godwin Early of Roanoke Rapids, Miss Cheryl Jane Heedick of Alexandria, Va., Miss Lee Anne Stuart and Mrs. Leon Ross Daniels Jr. of Winston-Salem.

The attendants wore pine velvet gowns fashioned with ivory lace at the neckline and cuffs. Their Camelot headpieces were of pine velvet with attached veils. They carried cascade bouquets of mixed colors of yellow and orange Jack Straw poms, carnations, roses and baby's breath.

Boyce Vernon Cox Jr. of Charleston, S.C., was best man for his brother. Ushers were Charles Kenneth Spach Jr. of Winston-Salem, brother of the bride, Arthur Woodrow Tayloe Jr. and James Godsey Early II of Aulander, Harroll Hudson Weaver of Raleigh, Richard Nelson Hunsucker of Greenville, John Roland Carroll of Winterville, and Richard W. Baldrée of Albany, Ga.

The mother of the bride wore an aqua gown of nylon chiffon with a pleated skirt and cowl neckline. The bridegroom's mother chose a rose chiffon gown with beading and rhinestone bodice and cuffs. Both mothers wore white cymbidium orchids.

Following the ceremony, a reception, given by the bride's parents, was held in the Brown Memorial Room of the church. An after-rehearsal dinner was held Friday night at the Hyatt House. Host and hostesses were Mrs. Boyce Vernon Cox Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Boyce Vernon Cox Jr.

The bride is a graduate of Meredith College and teaches in the Pitt County Schools. The bridegroom is a graduate of Sandhills Community College and is a sales representative for Winterville Machine Works, Inc. After a wedding trip, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Engagement Announced

MISS VIRGINIA BURWELL BASS, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles White Bass of Jackson, who announce her engagement to Frank Wendell Saunders Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wendell Saunders of Greenville. The wedding will take place Feb. 15.

Daughter Will Have To Learn

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our beautiful and intelligent 22-year-old daughter is ruining her life, and I am helpless to stop her. She says she is in love with a married man who plans to divorce his wife and marry her.

Abby, the man is 53 (ten years older than her father!) and he has five children.

I rang up his wife and she said she had no idea that her husband was planning to divorce her. Then I called the man and he told me a different story.

I am so afraid my daughter will get mixed up in an ugly scandal. I can't talk any sense into her head. I thought I taught her right from wrong, but somewhere I must have failed. My daughter lives in an apartment with two other girls and she feels that just because she supports herself, she can live her own life without any interference from me. What can I do?

HEARTBROKEN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: A 22-year-old self-supporting woman can't be controlled by her mother or anyone else. If you taught her right from wrong, you haven't failed. SHE has. Some people have to learn life's lessons the hard way.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to help "Little Guy" who wants information on "Little People of America." If he had called the Reference Department of any Public Library, he could have saved a lot of time.

Briefly, it was founded in 1957, has 2,000 members and is divided geographically into 12 districts.

Its members are persons of the proportionate or disproportionate dwarf types, and others 4 feet 11 inches or under; it includes children in these classifications, who are known as "Little Littles."

Purpose: To provide fellowship, interchange of ideas, solutions to common problems of little people, and to promote fair dealings and a better understanding between members and normal-sized people. Aids in exchange of information on housing, jobs, clothes, shoes, sports, education, etc.

Annual convention. Motto: "Think Big."

SINCERELY,
A REFERENCE LIBRARIAN
MARY ANN ELLIS (MRS. JOHN H.)
ARNOLD, MISSOURI

DEAR MARY ANN: Many thanks! I have used the reference department of my public library for years. Readers, why don't you? You pay for that service with your taxes, and it's available for the asking.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old married woman who has a very good marriage.

I've been reading a lot lately about the art of making love and was happy to learn that having fantasies during lovemaking is considered normal, because I fantasize a lot, and it sure helps.

My problem: My husband and I have always been completely honest with each other and I feel a little guilty about these fantasies because none of them includes him. Should I tell him about my fantasies? I'm afraid he might ask me who the men in my fantasies are, and if I told him he would be very jealous of some of his best friends.

What should I do?
FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING: There's no need to feel guilty. You have a right to some privacy, which includes your fantasies. (P.S. Let me put it this way: Would YOU want to know who your husband imagines YOU are during your most intimate moments?)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Mothers' March Workers Honored At Reception

RALEIGH—Over 100 Mothers' March chairmen and community workers from North Carolina attended a reception at the Governor's Mansion here Tuesday at the invitation of North Carolina's First Lady, Mrs. Pat Holshouser.

Special guests at the coffee, which launched the annual March of Dimes Campaign each year, included Greg Bradley, 1975 State March of Dimes poster child, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bobby Bradley of Tarboro, Sheila Boykin, poster child from Randolph County, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William (Sonny) Boykin of Asheboro.

Lee Tillery, former Wake County poster child, and her mother, Mrs. James E. Tillery, Raleigh, and Dr. Archie Johnson, a March of Dimes grantee at Wake Hospital Hospital, Raleigh.

Dignitaries in the receiving line were Mrs. Holshouser, Mrs. Robert Newcomb Jr., Spring Hope, Mrs. Robert Renegar, Wilmington; Mrs. Sharon Carter, Winston-Salem, volunteer advisors for the March of Dimes, Dewey W. Chapple Jr., state March of Dimes chairman, Winston-Salem, Steve Webb, national youth chairman, Winston-Salem, and Robert W. Wilkinson, regional director for the March of Dimes, Atlanta, Ga.

Mothers' March leaders who assisted in receiving and registration were Mrs. Hazel Stephens, Mrs. Reba Bullard, Fayetteville, and Mrs. Gail Hawks, Raleigh.

Representatives attending from Greenville were Mrs. Shelley Basnight, Mrs. Leslie Pressel and Mrs. Diane White.

WOTM Hear Program By Social Worker

Mrs. Kate F. Grady, social worker for the Pitt County Department of Social Services, was guest speaker at a meeting of Greenville Chapter No. 1308, Women of the Moose, Thursday night.

Mrs. Grady described the foster home program for neglected children operated by the county agency. She cited the continuing need for foster homes and asked anyone interested in becoming foster parents to contact her at the Department of Social Services.

Mrs. Peggy Jamieson, senior regent, announced ritual practices for officers and committee chairman Jan. 14 and Jan. 21, at 7 p.m., and on Jan. 23, at 8 p.m. These sessions, she explained, are in preparation for the visit of Miss Kay Cancie, WOTM grand chancellor, on Jan. 30.

Mrs. Jamieson read letters of appreciation from the Salvation Army, thanking WOTM members for their help at the SA kettles during the Christmas season, from the Pitt County Department of Social Services, in appreciation of the chapter's contribution to the department's Christmas fund, and from Edwin Baldree, secretary of the Greenville Moose Lodge, expressing appreciation for the Christmas party staged by the WOTM chapter.

Mrs. Janet Umphlett, chairman of the Child Care committee, arranged the program for the Thursday night meeting and introduced Mrs. Grady. Refreshments followed the meeting.

Plans are again underway for the 11th annual Charity Ball, sponsored by the membership of the Greenville Service League.

The profit from this project in its entirety will go for the support of the Charles O'Hagan Laughinghouse Fund. This fund, dedicated to Dr. Laughinghouse, an early Pitt County doctor and father of Mrs. Richard Stokes and the league's first president, was originated in the second year of the league's existence (1940).

The fund's purpose is to help pay the hospital bills of needy patients who have no other source of revenue.

Continuing the tradition of volunteer community service, the sustaining members of the Service League are assisting regular members in preparation for the ball by making silk flowers for the tables.

The sustaining members, having rendered the required 10 years of active service, regularly assist on projects when needed. Lil Bost and Polly Little recall with others of their group, the early years when project funding efforts included selling summer flowers in front of Pender's Store during one summer with a net profit of $11.20.

On The Young Side

By MARY CHARLES STEVENS

Highlighting this week at Rose are the up-coming NHS inductions. Nineteen seniors were tapped Friday morning and will be inducted into the National Honor Society Monday night.

These students were selected for this honor because of outstanding grade point averages and involvement in school-related activities.

Inductees include Mary Ann Burnette, Amy Clifton, Leslie Dickens, Kelly Gardiner, Ed Garvin, Richard Gray, Debbie Goodson, Charlene Harper, Jack Jenkins, Katherine Kittrell, Kim McKinney, Gail Porter, Becky Rice, Robin Smith, Peggy Shea, Ernie Stine, Rose Mary Stocks, Carol Tate, and Pat Taylor.

Present members formed committees to prepare for the inductions. Griff Garner, John Miller, Eddie Smith and Don Sullivan are in charge of setting up the gym. Brenda Peterson and Mark Boudreaux are responsible for flowers.

On the refreshment committee are Kathy McConnell, Cassie Deyton, Helen Fleming and Mary Charles Stevens. Instructing inductees are Art Klose, Pat Hernan, Kim Knight and Kathy Still. Each of the officers, Joey Howell, Gail Shaw, Gail Molic and Billy Billica will give a short speech.

FBLA Activities

Future Business Leaders of America members have been active this year. Weeks were spent in preparation for their very successful bizarre and bake sale that took place the first of December. Another project was addressing cards for the Salvation Army. Before Christmas members sent cards to the patients in the Greenville Convalescent Home and sang carols for them. The FBLA provided a family with food and decorations for Christmas and played Santa Claus for the children. Members ended their December projects with a night of ice skating and refreshments.

Officers of the FBLA include President, Amy Clifton, Vice President, Angela Langley, Treasurer, Lynette Owens and Secretary, Charlene Harper. Mrs. Clara

Author Speaks Out On Family

By SANDRA GITTENS
NEW YORK (AP)—The traditional family is breaking down, and for good reasons, says noted novelist Rona Jaffe. Author of the best selling novel, "The Best of Everything," Miss Jaffe has now published her eighth book, "Family Secrets." All in a period of 14 years ... "which is not bad," she said as she perched on a couch in her Manhattan apartment.

"The actual writing was not long. It was a book that I wanted to do for the last 14 years, but I wasn't ready because I didn't have the right perspective to write about all the relationships and all the different people. I was also too young and too involved in my own interpretations of things. Now seemed like the right time because I felt I had the compassion and the understanding to look at people from all sides," she says.

"Smiling broadly over the fact that this, her 'latest,' is also being considered for a movie, Miss Jaffe goes right to the point when expressing her views on the modern family in America.

"What I wanted to do was to write about the American family and I wanted to show why the family is falling apart, or at least falling into the situation that it has, which is different from what it used to be," she says, explaining why "Family Secrets" includes four generations and spans over 70 years.

"This is the first time I have written on a subject which spans a great deal of time. It has the present, but I wanted to show why certain characters developed in a particular way. And I wanted to start with the founding father."

The idea, she said, was to show how an adventurous young man came to America and because of his "wanderlust" became rich and successful.

"I thought it interesting that all these pioneers who had such a need to find new frontiers later proceeded to settle down and squelch their children. To think they were doing the best by them by forcing them in the mold of 'You will go into my business,' or 'You will go to this college and study what I want you to study,' and 'You will marry whom I want you to marry.' What they forgot is that if they hadn't been mavericks, we would all still be living in poverty back where they came from," she says.

Miss Jaffe, who is decidedly single, beams when she speaks about "today."

"I think women's lib is terrific," she declares.

"In the old days, and I don't mean the 1900s, I mean in the '50s when I got out of college and everybody was trying to get a husband, I used to sit around with my girlfriends and we used to talk about all the guys we knew. About what rats they were because they wouldn't marry us, or call us or whatever it was. We never used our minds to discuss the important interesting things that we knew. We could have had such an interesting time. And today that's all changed," she said.

Comparing the '50s to today,

Miss Jaffe feels channels are opening up for women in a positive way. She no longer sees women having to give up their "dreams" when they get married, nor men having to give up their goals in order to support a wife and children.

Miss Jaffe picked March 1902 to begin her book by going through old New York Times editions on microfilm in the library. Finding that there had been a heavy rain storm during that time, she thought it a good opening for her novel.

"I found the project exciting because I'm interested in the past and the changes in social attitudes this country is going through. I feel we could use our older people more for remembering history as it was really lived," she says. "Right now, I'm old enough to be a part of history. When someone says 'Pearl Harbor,' I can say 'I remember that,' which is nice because it brings back memories and it all comes alive for you again when you remember."

Mrs. Shires Is Club Speaker

Mrs. William A. Shires was the guest speaker for the Seira Book Club's first meeting of the new year.

Mrs. J. O. Derrick, hostess, introduced the speaker and stated that Mrs. Shires is one of two women to serve in both the House of Representatives and Senate of the N.C. Legislature. She was the first woman to serve as chairman of a N.C. Legislature Committee. At the present time, she is president of Pitt County Democratic Women.

In Greenville, though the Woman's Club, Mrs. Shires is a leader in work with international students. She is attending ECU as a graduate student in literature and creative writing. Recently, one of her poems was published in "Tar River Poets Anthology."

Mrs. Shire's program topic was "Queen Elizabeth The Great." She illustrated her talk by showing pictures of Queen Elizabeth.

Mrs. Gretchen Goodwin, president, conducted a business session and welcomed the following guests; Mrs. Larry Berry, Mrs. James F. Davenport, Mrs. Wendell Smiley and Mrs. Gordon Hanson of Savannah, Ga.

Mrs. Smiley and Mrs. Davenport assisted the hostess in serving refreshments.

ECU Woman's Club To Meet

Ms. Donna Whitley will be the speaker at the meeting of the ECU Woman's Club Monday at 8 p.m.

The meeting will be held in room 244, Mendenhall Student Union.

Ms. Whitley will give a demonstration and lecture on the history of Arabic dance.

Husbands of members are invited to attend.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

You probably won't believe this but I never used to be a suspicious person. Once I even called the Welcome Wagon lady and asked her to recommend a surgeon.

But the last few years it seems like we've gone through an integrity recession ... a time when faith was overpriced, trust was bullish, and morals were going at face value.

All I know is I've had to set up my own yardstick for measuring trust.

1. Never go to a doctor whose office plants have died.

2. If your bank has "temporary offices" on a flatbed truck, wait until the permanent building is finished and there is a tree planted in the lobby.

3. Never frequent beauty shops that don't have mirrors. They have something to hide.

4. Make sure your used car salesman sings in your church choir, has a son running for political office, a wife who is a homeroom mother, and doesn't flinch when you suggest taping the entire sales pitch.

5. Do not trust a school teacher who owns a brand new car unless you saw him win it on Hollywood Squares.

6. Exercise caution at a restaurant that features a yellow bug lamp over the pastry, a dog asleep in the first booth, and stomach cramps from reading the menu.

7. Be wary of an investment broker with a McGovern sticker on his bumper who smokes Havana cigars.

8. Check out a vet who examines your dog and says, "We'll take good care of her" ... and your dog's name is Sam.

9. Have misgivings about a speaker who doesn't put a watch on the podium ... but a calendar.

10. Exert caution in inviting a urologist with a sense of humor to a party.

11. Never trust an optometrist who won't look you in the eye.

12. Only an optimist with teeth marks on his leg believes that when a dog shows his teeth he is smiling.

I walked into the living room the other night and twirled about in a new dress. "Whatya think?" I asked my husband.

"You are an incredibly beautiful woman," he said. "And I think you will devastate every man in the room when you walk in wearing that dress."

He had not looked up from his paper.

What the heck. You have to trust somebody.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JAN. 12, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening for you to show practical appreciation to those who have been loyal to you in the past. You are now able to pay off old debts and express goodwill to others. Express happiness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Now that you know the direction in which you are headed, make plans that can assure success. Take health treatments.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Ideal day to make some needed change or to put a new plan in operation. A new acquaintance can give the information you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Listen to the voice of your intuition for ideas that will be helpful to you. Control your temper and keep out of trouble.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Good day to get together with associates and discuss old and new projects. Use diplomacy in handling an opponent.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good time to make long-range plans for the future so you can derive more benefits. Think in a logical manner. Be alert.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Once your duties are out of the way, get together with good friends for the amusements you enjoy. A good time for meditation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Fine day for giving thought and attention to your home and family. Prepare yourself well for a new interest you have in mind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Talk over with associates new ways to be more productive in the future. Show that you are a practical person. Relax tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make financial and property arrangements now that are important. Plan to add to your savings. Show that you are discreet.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show your affection for good friends who have done many favors for you in the past. Think constructively. Be calm.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure you help good friends who may be in trouble and need your advice. A business expert can give the advice you need.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put that plan to work that will help you gain the affection of one you like but seems unapproachable. Show that you have poise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to return any favors that have been extended, and thereby be able to make and keep friends. A fine chart for organizational work of great magnitude. The dedication to duty is very pronounced in this chart. Give ethical training early.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A wonderful day and evening to get together with good friends, interesting acquaintances to build a greater rapport. Clarify your personal aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Show appreciation to that individual who gives you backing and good advice, and you insure your position with this person in the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Try to get at the core of vocational matters so they become a big, instead of a small, success. Avoid tiffs with others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Contact persons with backgrounds different from yours to learn much. Arrange now for that important trip or change you want to make.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have been neglecting payments, but get at them right away now. Come to a real agreement with mate where money is concerned.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Cement better relations with a partner whose thoughts and actions are radically different from yours. Get rid of opposition quietly and expertly.

MA Available By Mail Course

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — If some Long Beach residents want to earn a master's degree without ever setting foot on a campus they can do it through a mail-order degree operating out of Bishop, Calif.

It's a way airline pilots, elderly persons, shut-ins and residents in far-away places can earn master's degrees from the California State University and college system.

The degree program operated by Dominguez Hills State College is an MA in humanities, including courses in music, art and philosophy. It is designed to give students a broad humanities background while allowing them to specialize in topics that interest them.

Dental Reform In Sweden Decaying

By BARBRO V. LARSON STOCKHOLM (UPI) — A shortage of dentists, government bureaucracy and a recently instituted national dental medical plan, have put Sweden into a dental crisis in which it can take up to two years to get a date with the drill.

In 1973 the government decided to help with the nation's dental bills. That created a mass rush to the nation's already overworked dentists. Many, their patient lists bulging, refuse to take on any more.

In emergency cases some hospitals have dental clinics to which a patient can turn, but regular checkups at a private dentist can be hard to get, especially if you are new in the country, or have not needed a dentist before.

Immediate solutions to the problem are few. Doctors and dental hygienists stress brushing teeth regularly to prevent cavities, and one leading dental professor even advocates that tooth polishers share premises with hair dressers so people can have a trim and teeth cleaned at the same time.

"It takes up to two years to get a dentist appointment unless you have your own personal dentist," said Prof. Axel Bergenholdt of Stockholm's Dental College.

Bergenholdt, who is chairman of the parodontological section of the Dental College, said the ideal situation would be to give dental nurses five weeks extra training in tooth polishing.

"They could share premises with hair dressers, for instance, which would make it natural for people to get their teeth cleaned maybe twice a month at the same time they get their hair cut," he suggested.

Last year the government instituted a dental reform package providing cheap dental care for everybody. Under the system, the government pays half of the costs for small repairs and three quarters of bills exceeding 1,000 kronor ($232).

"This means that people who want to get all kinds of extensive work done at once go and people with smaller problems have to wait," Bergenholdt said.

Many dentists, especially private ones, have criticized the dental reform law on other grounds. They say it means more work and less money because of an increase in paperwork. A recent survey showed dentists and assistants spent 11 per cent of their time filling in government forms.

The government package also included a prohibition against establishing new private clinics or practices because of the current shortage of dentists in the state-run dental service.

"The prohibition of private establishments will most likely be eased next year," said Rune Carlstrom, chairman of the Dental Federation. "Dentists who retire or die will get successors, which is impossible under the present rules."

According to Bergenholdt, "the politicians who make the decisions have not realized that the important thing is to provide against dental decay and inflamed gums."

He said nearly one third of all 50-year-old Swedes have lost all their teeth and almost 100 per cent of seven-year-olds suffer from some form of inflamed gums, called gingivitis.

"When they are 15, half of them have affected tooth bones which means that by the age of 30, their teeth will start to fall out," he said.

Except for tooth polishers, Bergenholdt's suggestion on how to solve the problem is to train more dental hygienists—dental nurses with a year of special training—to remove tartar, polish teeth and instruct patients how to clean their teeth.

"At present we get between 350 and 500 dentists every year which is extremely expensive since their education takes five years," the professor said. "At the same cost we could train a great number of hygienists, who would receive every patient maybe four times a year and thus prevent decay."

Draft Horses For Horsepower

MALLORY CREEK, Ore. (AP) — Harold Benson and Ray Melvin are finding it profitable to switch from gasoline as their "fuel" source for a Potlatch Corp. logging contract.

They are using draft horses to remove remnants of a previous stand of old trees which tower over a thick new crop of young trees.

According to James Thiemen, Potlatch area forester, many of these old stands do not attract contract loggers who have invested in modern mechanical equipment. Horse logging can be economically practical with lower volumes and has the added advantage of not extensively damaging young trees. Only one horse is used to drag a tree.

There are currently about 160 hygienists assisting dentists around the nation, mainly in the larger cities, and statistics show regular visits to them cut down drastically on cavities and gingivitis.

done by the patient himself, said Gunilla Lindenfeldt, a Stockholm hygienist. "Perfectly clean teeth hardly ever decay."

TV SHOWTIME

For The Week Of January 12, 1975

The Daily Reflector

Biggest Of Them All

The NBC Television Network will provide, from Tulane Stadium in New Orleans, exclusive, live coverage of Super Bowl IX. This event is expected to attract the largest total viewing audience in the Continental United States for a televised event.

NBC-TV has the distinction of televising the event, watched, to date, by the largest number of people ever to witness a sports-cast — the 74,360,000 figure registered by Super Bowl VII in 1973. However, NBC Research has projected more than 75,000,000 viewers for Super Bowl IX.

Concomitant with that audience estimate, NBC Sports is geared to provide those viewers with in-depth coverage of this ninth renewal of the National Football League's championship spectacular. For an event of this magnitude, NBC has programmed 13 color cameras for coverage of both instant replay and stop-action techniques. Additionally, a radio-connected mini-camera will roam throughout the stadium providing different views and looks at the game.

NBC's exclusive, live coverage of Super Bowl IX, to be seen in Venezuela for the first time in television history, will also be carried throughout the Continental U. S., Canada, Mexico, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and (via delayed tape) in Great Britain.

All told, 225 U. S. and 265 Canadian TV stations will air the contest between the champions of the American and National Football Conferences. Three-hundred-twenty stateside radio stations will also carry the game, which — in association with the American Forces Radio and Television Service — will be fed to military installations in Europe, Latin America, the Pacific and the Far East. A short wave service will use voice cable circuits to send the broadcast to Vietnam, Korea, Japan, the Aleutians, and Island bases in the Pacific.

AFRTS will also show the contest, via satellite, to the Philippines, Korea, Panama and Ramstein Air Force Base in West Germany. In total, Super Bowl IX will be fed to 350 military radio outlets, 100 television stations, and as many as 50 million people watching and listening throughout the world.

Super Bowl — one of the key presentations in the NBC Television Network's year-long schedule of sports programming, is the most extensive undertaken by any network. NBC, "Number One in Live Coverage of Major Sports Events All Year 'Round," will colorcast 365 hours of live sports programming in 1975 — far more than any other network.

The magnitude of the undertaking is made all the more impressive when one keeps in mind the basic fact that the American Football League Championship Game presented by NBC ten years ago was seen only in the United States... and by an estimated 25,000,000 viewers.

Smothers Brothers Replace The Lions

When NBC first announced plans to replace "Born Free" with "The Smothers Brothers Show" one Hollywood columnist summed it up succinctly!

"The Christians," he wrote, "have replaced the lions."

Five years have passed since the Smothers' comedy hour was felled by CBS' executive axe — very long years by their own admission. Now, with a moral and financial victory handed down by the courts they are primed to premiere a new, hour-long NBC comedy-variety show starting Monday evening, January 13, from 8:00 to 9:00 on Channels 6-7.

"It was the only network we hadn't tried," deadpans Tommy.

While enrolled in San Jose State College Dick and Tommy Smothers devised the basis for their musical comedy act. The act was broken in at a San Jose nightclub, then a booking in San Francisco's well known Purple Onion was arranged. It was there they recorded their first of nine albums, five of which are gold.

During the three seasons on the CBS Television Network with their precedent-smashing "Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour," the show became the most controversial series on television. It was abruptly cancelled in the spring of 1969 when the Brothers balked at CBS' insistence on censoring their frank, topical satire.

The Brothers later starred in an ABC special and a short-lived "Smothers Brothers "Summer Show" on ABC. But their special genius for humor was essentially muffled.

A suit was filed against CBS charging breach of contract and then the embittered Brothers split up. Dick deserted show business and concentrated on racing cars in such circuits as LaMans and Sebring, aerobatics, skiing and sailing his boat. Tom meanwhile, chose to hibernate in thought, breaking out occasionally to support one cause or another.

The Brothers were reunited in late January of 1973, but in court instead of on stage. An eight week trial in U.S. District Court ended in victory over CBS.

Both went their separate ways again but were united six months later. Since then, they've been performing in nightclubs, on college campuses and television. Their humor still manifests acute political and social consciousness, as well as the good natured give and take between siblings at any age, and audiences greet them as though they had never been away.

When "The Smothers Brothers Show" premieres, their guest stars will be Redd Foxx, Alice Cooper, Johnny Carson and George Burns.

Oddly enough, the Brothers will again find themselves facing an established western "Gun-smoke," as their formidable competition. On CBS-TV they made their debut against "Bonanza" — NBC's Sunday night heavyweight attraction.

MUSIC AND COMEDY—The Smothers Brothers, Dick (left) and Tom, will host their own music and variety program when "The Smothers Brothers Show" premieres on NBC-TV Monday, Jan. 13 (8-9 p.m. on channels 6-7.

He Commutes To Do 'Blank Check'

NBC-TV's exciting new game show, "Blank Check," premiered earlier this month and stars Art James as host. The show is seen Monday thru Friday from 12:30 to 12:55 on NBC-TV.

Art is commuting between his home in New York and the NBC Color Studios in Burbank, California, to tape the segments. "Blank Check" is a fast-paced ESP word game in which six contestants compete for the opportunity to win $50,000 or more in cash and valuable prizes.

The object of the game is to successfully complete a four-digit check from five numbers selected at random, thereby winning that amount. To play, one contestant is designated as the check-writer after correctly answering a toss-up question. The other five contestants vie for the opportunity to replace him by first answering correctly a riddle-like question, and then guessing which of five numbers the check-writer; if incorrect, the check-writer adds the number to his check.

A check-writer completing three digits on his check is then challenged by a number of the studio audience — for valuable prizes — before he can play for the fourth check figure. If the check-writer is unsuccessful in out-guessing the audience challenger, a new check-writer is selected and the game continues until a contestant can complete the four-figure check.

A grand prize is awarded to the contestant who writes the single highest check amount of the week.

Censor Still Their Friend

One of the guests on hand for the taping of the Smothers Brothers first show which premieres January 13 on NBC-TV was Charles Pettijohn — the CBS censor who went head-to-head with the boys at the rival network.

They have remained friends throughout the years and, as Tommy explains, "He was just doing a job — like The Godfather."

CALLEY SWORN IN — Charged with murder of My Lai civilians, Lt. William Calley (Tony Musante) is sworn in to testify in his own defense in the gripping "ABC Theatre" presentation, "Judgment: The Court-Martial of Lt. William Calley," to be aired on ABC-TV Sunday, January 12 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

Court Martial Of Lt. Calley On 'Judgement'

"Judgment: The Court-Martial of Lt. William Calley," an ABC Theatre presentation based on the longest and most controversial courtmartial trials in American military history, will be presented on the ABC Television Network, Sunday evening, January 12, from 8:30 to 10:30.

Stanley Kramer, producer and director of the program, also serves as narrator.

"We are enormously pleased by the dramatic quality of this telecast, but particularly by its topicality; it is current history, the drama behind today's headlines," said Martin Starger, President of ABC Entertainment.

"Also, we are happy to have a man of the stature and talent of Stanley Kramer to produce and direct this important and timely program."

Tony Musante stars as the young Lt. William Calley, Jr., who last Nov. 9 was released from jail on personal bond. Calley's involvement in the 1968 My Lai massacre in South Vietnam was the issue in the trial that began in Fort Benning, Ga., in 1970.

"I've immersed myself in the trial and in Calley's background so that I can think as I imagined he did," says Musante. "I wasn't interested in just doing a surface portrayal."

Musante accepted the part immediately when producer-director Kramer called his agent, Don Wolfe, and asked if he would be interested in it.

The deal was set over the telephone. Both the producer and the performer decided it would be best if Musante did not meet with Calley to study his mannerisms and personality.

"I didn't want to do a physical impression," says the actor. "I wanted to show the inner man. I've read almost everything available about him and I feel I know why he acted as he did. Not that I'm condoning his actions, of course," he added.

The New York actor is supported by a large cast, including veteran performer Richard Basehart, who portrays George Latimer, Calley's defense attorney. Others are Bo Hopkins as Captain Aubrey Daniel, the brilliant young prosecutor, G. D. Spradlin as the military judge, and Linda Hayes as the girl who stood by Calley throughout the trial.

Also prominent in the cast of more than 40 actors are Bill Lucking as Calley's captain and Fredd (cq) Wayne as assistant counsel.

The teleplay by Henry Denker is based on the charges against Calley, growing out of the murder of 102 civilians on March 16, 1968, when a company of American soldiers entered the hamlet of My Lai 4 in South Vietnam.

Calley was brought to trial by the U. S. Army and charged with specifications of premeditated murder under the Code of Military Justice.

Relaxation To Don Ameche Is A TV Role

Don Ameche has a unique way of unwinding from a grinding tour of the country in a musical-comedy production. He takes on a TV role.

Ameche, who spent the summer on tour with Ruby Keeler in "No, No Nanette," decided to take it easy by appearing in "The Man With the Golden Hat," a "McCloud" segment of NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" to be broadcast on January 12 (8:30-10:30 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

The role required seven days of work including two nights of shooting. He plays the head of a ballet company badly in need of funds who plans a million dollar conspiracy to save it.

"I don't have to work now," says the actor, "but I'm recuperating from the tour. Stage work is so grueling. You work very hard and on your day off you're traveling. It's good fun, but very tiring."

The veteran actor started his career on the stage and it remains his first love, but he admits, "I'm not really for going on the road."

COLOR CUE

A splash of bright-colored paint will do wonders for a Plane-Jane room. Even an amateur brush wielder can spruce up dull surroundings by painting a drab piece of furniture an unexpected shade. The shock value of painted accent pieces is the decorator's trick that adds sparkle to a quiet room. For color cues, seek some professional assistance. Color in unusual places is another idea.

Special color treatment with floor coverings can add a special sparkle to a room. See our wide variety of carpeting in every shade and type. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville, 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale."

Liza In Tuesday Movie

Liza Minelli stars as the desperately loving Pookie Adams in the television premiere of "The Sterile Cuckoo," the film that brought her first Academy Award nomination, on the ABC Television Network's "The ABC Monday Night Movie," January 13, from 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

Film critic Charles Champlin, writing in the Los Angeles Times, called Miss Minelli's performance "one of the year's most memorable and affecting star turns," adding that "as the sad-kooky, serious-funny, warm, lonely, touching and beguiling central figure of Alan J. Pakula's remarkable movie, Miss Minelli emerges full-blown as a major acting talent . . . Alvin Sargent wrote the excellent script (based on the novel by John Nichols) and Alan Pakula, directing his first movie, evoked this sensitive and indelible performance."

The story of first love and first loss matches Pookie, a wild and eccentric college girl with an irrepressible wit and an uncontrollable hunger for life, and a sensitive, quiet college boy (Wendell Burton) who finds the emotional price of loving Pookie too great a cost.

"The Sterile Cuckoo" is an Alan J. Pakula-Broadwalk Production for Paramount Pictures. David Lange was executive producer and Pakula produced and directed. The song, "Come Saturday Morning," is sung by the Sandpipers and written by Fred Karlin (music) and Dory Previn (lyrics).

PARTNERS— Burt Lancaster (left) and Jorge Luke portray a pair of scouts who form a partnership to track down 10 Apache Indians missing from a United States reservation, in "Ulzana's Raid" on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies," January 13 (9-11 p.m.) on Channels 6-7.

Desi Jr. And Coco Will Star

Desi Arnaz Jr. and James Coco will guest star in "The Rip-Off," an episode now filming for CBS-TV's "Medical Center," currently seen Monday evenings from 10:00 to 11:00.

Arnaz portrays a rock star who needs surgery to prevent deafness, but refuses to let Gannon (played by the series' star, Chad Everett) operate. Coco plays his business manager who offers a young woman money if she can convince his client to have the operation.

No stranger to television, Arnaz appeared for many years on "The Lucille Ball Show" and scored high ratings in the ABC Movie of the Week "She Lives" and "Mr. and Mrs. Bobo Jones." His feature film credits include "Marco Polo," a musical filmed in Japan, and "Billy Two Hats."

CAUGHT IN TRIANGLE — Kim Novak (l.) stars as the only survivor of a shipwreck in the dangerous waters around Bermuda and Doug McClure stars as her rescuer — doomed to a hideous fate himself — in "Satan's Triangle," a horror story inspired by frightening facts on the ABC-TV's "Tuesday Movie of the Week" Tuesday, January 14 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

Actor Is Intrigued By Mysterious Triangle

Once in a while a movie comes along that intrigues an actor for reasons other than the role he is to play. Such was the case for Jim Davis in "Satan's Triangle," an ABC Television Network "Tuesday Movie of the Week," airing January 14, 8:30 to 10 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

"In first reading the scrip I liked my role of a sports fisherman with Kim Novak as my girlfriend," said Davis, who is familiar to TV audiences as the rugged-visaged star of such series as "Tales of the 20th Century," "Rescue 8" and most recently, ABC's "The Cowboys."

"But what began to interest me was the constant reference to the 'Devil's Triangle,' where the story takes place. I had heard about it, the strange things that were supposed to have happened there, but just brushed it off."

The place Jim refers to is a body of water stretching northeast from Miami to Bermuda, southeast to the Virgin Islands and eastward to the Florida coast. Through the years, over 1,000 people and more than 100 ships and planes have disappeared in this area without a trace.

"Sounds like something out of science fiction," continues Davis, who, in the film, meets a strange death when a mysterious storm comes up killing all aboard his boat except Miss Novak. "But I began to read everything on the subject before the movie started. I still can't believe some of the things I've read, but then again, all the disappearances are documented."

"In 1945, an incident made the headlines around the world when five Navy Avenger dive bombers and one Mariner flying boat disappeared without a trace in one day. Airliners have been completely swallowed up. Large ships, like the Navy tanker Cyclops of World War I, have entered the Triangle. They were never heard from again."

Fashion Awards Set In March

"The 1975 Fashion Awards," a glittering 90-minute entertainment special honoring American designers in the fields of fashion and show business and featuring the beautiful people of both worlds, will be presented on the ABC Television Network in March.

In announcing the program, Edwin T. Vane of ABC Entertainment stated: "Fashion is a dynamic force in America today and designers make an important contribution to the world of show business. We are privileged to provide the stage upon which to honor the fine artists of this field."

CHARGED—Howard Duff portrays an off-duty police sergeant who faces a departmental trial when he is accused of indecent exposure in "Headhunter" to be colorcast on NBC-TV's "Police Story" Tuesday, Jan. 14 (10-11) on channels 6-7.

'Sound Of Music' Slated This Season

"The Sound of Music," the movie that won five Academy Awards and quickly became one of the most popular box office hits in history, will be a Special Motion Picture Presentation on the ABC Television Network during the 1975-76 season.

Matin Starger, President of ABC Entertainment, says, "The Sound of Music" was one of the most successful shows in Broadway history, and most definitely the most successful movie ever made. The ABC Television Network again takes pride in presenting one of the world's most important movies on television for the first time."

Julie Andrews stars as the governess who passes on her own love of life to her young charges against the background of the breathtaking beauty of the Tyrolean Alps. Critic Judith Crist asked "Does anyone at this point have to be told that Julie Andrews is the most enchanting and complete performer to come to the screen in years?" Miss Andrews won an Academy Award nomination as Best Actress.

The film became a box office phenomenon in a year when it was widely believed that musicals were no longer popular.

When the Oscars were awarded, "The Sound of Music" racked up an extraordinary total, winning the award as Best Picture of the Year and earning a personal award for Robert Wise (Best Director), and technical awards for Best Sound, Best Scoring of Music, and Best Film Editing. Peggy Wood was nominated as Best Supporting Actress.

Twentieth Century-Fox released the Robert Wise Production (1965) which has a screenplay by Ernest Lehman based on the musical play written by Howard Lindsay and Russell Cruse.

Producers For Movie Special

Norman Felton and Stanley Rubin have been signed as executive producers for WOMAN OF THE YEAR, a two-hour movie special for CBS directed by Gene Kelly and starring Renee Taylor and Joe Bologna, who co-wrote the project with Bernie Kahn.

Production is slated to begin in mid-January on the social satire about an elegant woman journalist who falls for a viril newspaper sportswriter.

Changes Are Made At Truman High

The segment of "Lucas Tanner" which will be seen Wednesday evening, January 15, from 9:00 to 10:00 on Channel 6-7, is titled "Pay The Man Two Dollars." It could well have been entitled "Changing Times" because two big changes in the highly popular NBC-TV show will be taking place in this particular segment.

First, Lucas—played by star David Hartman—gets a new job: the popular teacher at Truman High School in Webster Groves, Mo., becomes a student advisor. David feels the change broadens his role:

"As an advisor, I'll be teaching on a one-to-one basis. Instead of being restricted to a 50-minute fragment of a student's life, I'll have the opportunity to deal with the whole child.

Johnny Carson with guest star David Jassen. (90 min)

But it gives him a broader base from which to work with the students, an added franchise."

Hartman emphasizes that the series is still about Lucas Tanner, the man, not merely the teacher. The same values as those demonstrated in previous segments will be retained, such as his sometimes quite poignant relationship with Glendon, the 10-year-old youngster next door, played by Robbie Rist.

Then change no. 2 comes in the role of John Hamilton, the new principal of Truman High, to be portrayed by John Randolph.

A veteran actor with numerous film, stage and television credits, Randolph has guest-starred in such television series as "Police Story," "Columbo," "Hawaii Five-O" and such special dramas as "Pueblo" and "Tell Me Where It Hurts."

Lovers Spark A Mountain Feud

Two young people who would rather make love than war spark a savage conflict between their families that explodes into the most famous feud in American history — the mountain war of "The Hatfields and the McCoys," an ABC Television Network "Wednesday Movie of the Week" airing January 15, from 8:30 to 10:00 p.m., on Channels 3-5-12. Jack Palance and Steve Forrest star.

The Hatfields and the McCoys fought each other during the Civil War, but later became friendly, if wary, enemies. When both families attend a dance, Johnse Hatfield and Rose Ann McCoy meet and fall in love. This, plus the fact that the roast pigs provided by the Hatfields were really stolen from the McCoys, starts the feud to simmer.

Monte Towe Is Hero Of The Little People

(Watch the Maryland vs. N. C. State basketball game Thursday evening, January 16, at 9 on Channel 5-6-7.

While signing autographs outside the locker room, Monte Towe, the 5-5½ guard for the North Carolina State Wolfpack, said, "The taller people go to David (Thompson) and Tim (Stoddard). I get the 12-13 year-olds, they all identify with me more than the guy 6-4 and 6-7, because they can really talk to me on an eye to eye basis. For that reason, for that reason alone, they like me ... not because I'm white, or I'm a basketball player, or I go to N. C.

State. I'm just their size, and that goes for adults also."

This little guard has proven he is a phenomenal basketball player. Having been selected to the 'all tournament team' at the Sugar Bowl, NCAA Eastern Regional and the NCAA finals, Towe averaged 12.8 points a game and hit 51.7 percent of his shots, most of which were long range.

Towe's success is attributed to the tremendous amount of desire that is packed into his small frame. Coach Sloan tells of an incident that is typical Towe:

"Up at Virginia, Wally Walker's knee caught Monte in the nose. It didn't just break his nose, it wiped the nose out ... it was just pumping blood like you're pumping gas. Our trainer ran out there and came back and said; 'I think he's hurt.' And he was right, so we took him out, and the trainer was messing around with his nose, poking gauze up in it, tears just streaming down Monte's cheeks.

"So the game goes on, and I hear this voice down on the bench, through a stopped-up nose, you know: 'Put me in, coach.' He did that about four times, and it irritated me because I was trying to concentrate on the game. So I turned to our trainer and said: 'Herman, can he play?' I was expecting Herman to say 'no,' but he told me Monte couldn't hurt it any more than he already had. I said, 'All right, get in there.' So, Monte reports in. Now in one of the things we've worked out with Monte, we try to eliminate the 50 foot jump shot. We just feel like percentage wise, we're a little better off if he gets a little closer in. Monte doesn't agree with this necessarily.

"He ran in the game, took the inbounds pass. Now, this is a close ball game ... it's at Va. I can see, the way he's dribbling, he's going this way at mid court, and I'm screaming, 'No, Monte, no ... that's a baby, Monte.' That little devil cut one loose, tears streaming out of his eyes, nose all plugged up ... from midcourt ... and it just cut the bottom out."

biggest names in the field of TV game shows recall great moments from their past programs. (90 min)

(6,7) Tonight Show: Starring Johnny Carson as host with guest Paul Williams. (90 min)

"THE LITTLE WONDER" of the N.C. State Wolfpack, Monte Towe, is a fiery leader with the ability to be incredible game after game in a sport where size is important. At 5-7, 150, Towe has proven himself a giant on the court and a key factor in State's sweep to the national championship last season.

Action Series Begins Friday

ABC-TV presents its new hour-long action series, "Baretta," Friday evening January 17, from 10 to 11 on Channel 3-5-12.

In the world of television detectives, Tony Baretta is unique in that he knows how the criminal mind works because he grew up in the same environment ... the Hell's kitchen neighborhood of a major east coast city. While not a criminal himself, Baretta's father was on the fringe area of crime. Nevertheless, he instilled in his son a respect for the law.

Tony Baretta is multi-faceted and complex. He's on the side of the establishment in his hatred of criminals. He has seen countless lives destroyed by drugs: he's seen the raped and the victimized.

On the other hand, Baretta does not like authority. He literally thrives on the freedom of tracking down a criminal in his own way without following a set of rules, and he is continually at odds with his superiors over his unorthodox methods. Although those above him would like to fire him, they never will because Baretta is the man who gets more convictions from his arrests than anyone else in the department.

The world of Baretta is not populated with people who can be categorized as good or bad. There are cops with weak characters and there are addicts who have courage. The supporting characters in every "Baretta" episode will be three-dimensional and well shaped.

"Baretta" may be drama, but it will have the flavor of reality.

Starring in the featured role is Robert Blake, who began his acting career at the age of two. A native of Nutley, New Jersey, Blake comes by his sombre looks from his Italian parents.

Although as a child he appeared in the "Red Ryder" motion picture series, such films as "Humoresque" (which starred the late John Garfield, an actor he admires tremendously), "Mokey," and "Treasure of Sierra Madre," Blake prefers talking about the more recent years of his career during which he has scored major successes in such movies as "In Cold Blood," "Electra Glide in Blue," "Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here," and "Busting."

Like Baretta, Robert Blake is a dynamic rebel. If he thinks authority is wrong, he defies it. Although he has been in show business since childhood, there have been hard times during which he performed manual labor in order to survive, and he can easily identify with ditch diggers, plumbers, bartenders, etc. Blake has been there and, like Baretta, he is a man of the people.

When he's asked about the "terrible grind" of being a TV series star, he replies: "It sure beats the hell out of working for a living."

GARAGE OWNER — Jack Albertson stars as Ed Brown, the feisty garage owner whose eyesight becomes questionable in this week's episode "Out of Sight" on "Chico and the Man". Televised on NBC-TV Fridays, 8:30 - 9:00 p.m.

Suspense Story On Children's Film Festival

A boy is trapped underground with an unexploded World War II German mine in the suspense-adventure film from England, "Countdown to Danger," which will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, January 18, 1:00 to 2:00 p.m.

While on holiday on the island of Aldernay, the boy accidentally falls through a rotting roof into an old German mine which begins to tick ominously. When his young friends learn of his plight, they try to locate a bomb-disposal officer, who, unfortunately, is vacationing on the island of Guernsey.

When the officer eventually arrives, he opts to let the boy disarm the mine himself. Success appears to be achieved until a critical situation is encountered, and a desperate gamble must be undertaken.

"Countdown to Danger" was written and directed by Peter Seabourne for Wallace Productions, Ltd.

ON 'BANDSTAND' — Anson Williams is Potsie Weber, who, as a teenager, shares the predicaments of his peers during the fabulous '50's, in the comedy series "Happy Days", and will be Dick Clark's special guest on American Bandstand Saturday, January 18 at 12:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

World Series Of Racing Returns

The popular program series, "World Series of Auto Racing," featuring the "International Race of Champions," returns for its second year on the ABC Television Network during the first quarter of 1975.

Airdates and times for the events in this second annual series are to be determined and will be announced. The telecasts will be seen as a part of the award-winning "ABC's Wide World of Sports," which airs Saturdays and Sundays during the first quarter and Saturdays throughout the year.

The featured event on ABC's "World Series of Auto Racing" is the "International Race of Champions," which is comprised of a series of four match races among twelve of the world's leading drivers representing all major forms of auto racing.

The format is designed to produce a world-class championship based as strictly as possible on driver skills. The cars — identical and identically prepared Camaros — are provided by the series' organizers and the drivers are not allowed to make any mechanical adjustments.

For this second annual telecasting of the "World Series of Auto Racing," the "International Race of Champions" events are held on two oval tracks — Michigan International Speedway and Daytona International Speedway — and one road course (with two separate races), Riverside International Raceway.

Nine Golfers For The Triple Crown

Judy Rankin, Sandra Post, Mary Mills, JoAnn Prentice, Betsy Cullen, Murle Breer, Chako Higuchi, Margie Masters and Kathy Whitworth will comprise the field of contestants for the Triple Crown LPGA Championship, a 36-hole $50,000 golf tournament to be broadcast on the CBS Television Network Saturday, January 18, 5:00 to 6:00 p.m., and Sunday, January 19, 4:30 to 6:00 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Jack Whitaker, Ken Venturi, former U.S. Open champion, and Jane Chastain will be the commentators for the broadcasts, which will cover play over the four finishing holes of the Blue

Martial Arts On 'Go' Show

Black Belt Master Richard Bowe and his class of youngsters will be joined by Art Fleming for demonstrations of karate, judo, kung fu and aikido on the "Go" show to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Saturday, January 18, 12:30 - 1:00 p.m., on Channels 6-7. Fleming, star of "Jeopardy!" and a longtime enthusiast of the Oriental martial arts, hosts this edition of "Go".

Bowe will show the differences between karate, with its kick and chops; judo, with its throws; and aikido and kung fu which combine elements of the first two. His class of young boys will demonstrate the physical exercises which are a necessary prelude to any of the techniques. Emphasis is placed on the idea that the techniques are for defense, not for offense.

Fleming and Bowe also demonstrate the breaking of a board with the side of the hand and explains how it is done. They are joined by some of Bowe's adult pupils. Phyllis Ronchi, Paul Mauer and Nico Ventura to show how the techniques are applied in practical cases. Miss Ronchi, a slight young girl, throws Master Bowe in a demonstration of the wheel throw.

This segment of "GO" was produced, written and directed by Rift Fournier. It was taped in a specially created dojo (instruction area) in the NBC studios.

Will Salute Grand Ole Opry

The ABC Television Network has entered into an agreement with The Grand Ole Opry to present a special honoring this famed country music institution as it celebrates its 50th anniversary in November of 1975.

The 90-minute program will salute the Opry and its many performers over the 50 years. The anniversary festivities will be held on a date to be announced in the new Grand Ole Opry House, the world's largest broadcasting studio. Virtually every major country music star is expected to attend.

Greene Can't Be Average

When opposing coaches prepare for the Pittsburgh Steelers, their biggest problem is big, mean Joe Greene. At 6-4, 275 pounds, he has the grace of a big cat and the inertia of a freight train at full throttle. With Joe's 4.8 speed in the forty, he is literally all over the field and most of the time in the opposition's backfield.

Mean Joe Greene doesn't think he is 'mean.' "The image that the name portrays doesn't really fit," said Joe. "I don't think that I've been mean, but because of it, I have received a lot of undue publicity."

If Joe is not mean, then he's just extremely rough. It should be noted that the people who play in front of him labeled him mean, while his coaches consider him a very easy going, coachable young man.

When discussing Greene's impact on a game, Oakland Raider Head Coach John Madden said, "He can completely dominate a football game. He's one in a thousand, a big strong guy with speed who just happens to hustle like hell."

"I have not proven to myself the potential I think I have," said Joe. "I'm not satisfied and I don't believe I will be until I'm the best there is. I guess I'm something of a perfectionist in that respect. I know what I want but I feel that I won't be happy until I'm completely satisfied. And anything sort of perfect is average."

When it comes to football, mean Joe Greene couldn't be average if he tried, but with his determination and enthusiasm he just may achieve the degree of perfection he is seeking and be, without a doubt, the best defensive tackle there is.

MEAN JOE — Big. No. 75, Mean Joe Greene, has been the foundation upon which the Pittsburgh Steelers under coach Chuck Knoll have built the meanest and stingiest defense in pro football. The Steelers will be making their Super Bowl debut against the Minnesota Vikings on Sunday, January 12 at 3:00 p.m. on NBC-TV. Needless to say, Fran Tarkenton had better wear his finest pair of "scramblin shoes" if he is to avoid the hot pursuit of Mean Joe Greene.

Ted Lindsay Today Is 'Moonlighting'

National Hockey League Hall of Famer Ted Lindsay, who along with Tim Ryan and Brian McFarlane provides the commentary for NBC-TV's NHL coverage which began earlier this month, has added to his busy schedule the job of unpaid interim coach of the Hillsdale (Mich.) College hockey team.

When he took the post earlier this month, has added to his busy schedule the job of unpaid interim coach of the Hillsdale (Mich.) College hockey team.

When he took the post earlier this year at the behest of son Blake, a member of the team, Lindsay approached the task as possibly a half-season thing. But now, with Hillsdale on its holiday break and the squad having played below .500 the first two months of the season, Lindsay is looking forward to the remainder of the schedule.

As he put it recently, "Most of our players have very little schooling in hockey fundamentals, but we're coming along."

Lindsay didn't even hesitate when he took the Hillsdale job, largely because, as he says, "I'm interested in the American youngster. I've got players on this team from Massachusetts, Ohio, Connecticut, Wisconsin, New Jersey, Illinois, Michigan... only one is a Canadian."

"Terrible Ted," as he was known during his NHL glory days that resulted in 365 goals and a league record 1,808 penalty minutes in regular-season play, is the antithesis of his reputation as a player when it comes to working with youngsters.

Lindsay, who says "hockey is the greatest equalizer in the world," has operated a hockey camp in Port Huron, Michigan, for more than a decade. "With our mistakes we learn," he says, adding quickly that his Hillsdale players have done a lot of learning.

A NEW LOOK?

Industrial designers have completed a survey of "The NBC Look" and have begun to implement their suggestions.

This could mean fresh graphics and design from the on-air peacock to the company stationery.

Brodie Has A Pet Project

John Brodie, who signed with NBC Sports as a football commentator after retiring from active competition following the 1973 season, is busier with football this past season than he ever was before. But he still manages to squeeze in time — and speaking engagements — on behalf of his pet project: drug abuse rehabilitation. Brodie founded an office of Narconon, a national drug abuse rehabilitation organization, in Palo Alto, California.

According to the former San Francisco 49er quarterback, who earlier starred at Stanford, Narconon exposes to the former drug addict "the alternatives to drugs and the reasons he was involved" with them.

'Entertainer Of Year' Awards Due This Week

When the American Guild of Variety Artists presents its "Entertainer of the Year Awards" on Saturday evening, January 18, from 10:00 to 11:30 on CBS-TV and seen on Channels 9-11, it will do so in the form of 'Georgies.'

Honoring George M. Cohan, the American stage's legendary actor-dancer-author-composer, the 'Georgie' is a miniature replica of the eclectic Cohan (1878-1942). As if to underscore Cohan's inherent Americanism, he was born on July 4.

Jackie Gleason will host this fifth annual awards special saluting the entertainment industry's top performers. Hosted in previous years by the late Ed Sullivan, the 90-minute program was taped in Las Vegas. In hosting the show, Gleason appeared on a Las Vegas stage for the first time in his career.

AGVA's 10,000 members — show business' largest union — select the performer-of-the-year in 12 categories of entertainment, as well as "The Entertainer of the Year." Carol Burnett will be honored as Comedienne of the Year for the fifth consecutive year.

Cohan wrote 21 musical plays. They may seem old-fashioned by today's standards, but they have joyous vitality that transcends their age. Audiences still hum his tunes and mouth his slangy phrases as if they had been newly coined.

The versatile showman's music was heard most recently on Broadway in the 1968 hit, "George M!," in which Joel Grey starred as the young Cohan.

An unusual highlight of Cohan's career occurred when he wrote and produced the drama "The Tavern" in 1920. (In addition to musicals, he wrote numerous straight plays.) The newspaper critics panned it, but three rising young magazine critics — Robert Sherwood, Dorothy Parker and Robert Benchley — found the play a brilliant, wildly entertaining burlesque, and said the newspaper reviewers were dunderheads. Today, "The Tavern" is regarded as one of the better American farces.

HOSTS AWARDS — Jackie Gleason, here with the "Georgie" Award (named after George M. Cohan), will host the fifth annual American Guild of Variety Artists "Entertainer of the Year Awards," a 90-minute musical-variety special saluting the industry's top performers, Saturday, January 18 (10-11:30 p.m.) on Channels 9-11.

Espionage Drama Saturday

Burt Lancaster stars as an aging CIA agent suspected of selling national secrets to the Russians in "Scorpio," an espionage drama on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" January 18, 9:00 to 11:15, on Channels 6-7. Alain Delon and Paul Scofield also star in the 1973 United Artists release.

Set in Paris, Vienna and Washington, D.C., the drama pits Cross (Lancaster) against his boss, McLeod (John Colicos), who has put out a contract on the veteran espionage agent.

Delon portrays Laurier, the hired assassin. Joanne Linville appears as Sarah, Cross's wife, and Gayle Hunnicutt plays Susan, girl-friend of Laurier.

"Good Times" star Jimmie Walker has insisted that he's single and intends to remain that way, but a lot of eye brows were raised when Jimmie guested on "Tattletales," CBS' daytime show, and the lady sitting next to Walker was introduced as his wife!

With 1975 upon us, speculation continues to mount on the future of "All In The Family." Carroll O'Connor, who has had a long-running dispute with the show's producers, says all is peaceful there now, but adds with a smile that he's on a diet, commenting, "Maybe I can diet myself off the show."

David McCallum of "The Man From U.N.C.L.E." fame stars in a pilot for NBC called "The Invisible Man," which Universal Studios says will be a contemporary version of the 1933 H. G. Wells classic novel.

Speaking of coming back, Guy Madison, who was TV's "Wild Bill Hickok," stars in "Hatcher Bodine," another pilot, one of the co-stars is Alvy Moore, the county agent on "Green Acres."

There's little doubt left that NBC's "Adam-12" has made its last emergency call. Martin Milner has signed to star in an ABC pilot called, "Swiss Family Robinson," saying in reference to the one-time hit police show, "I certainly think it's over."

SUSPECTED OF TREASON—Burt Lancaster stars as Cross, an aging CIA agent, who is suspected of selling secrets to a Communist country, in "Scorpio," an espionage drama on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" Jan. 18 (9-11:15 p.m.) on channels 6-7.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR LYNN REDGRAVE

Have your children shown any signs of following in your family's acting footsteps?—J. C., Asbury Park, N.J.

● Kelly, at five, hasn't, but six-and-a-half-year-old Benjy has. He's more fascinated by the stage itself though than by what one has to do to get on it. After a matinee, he begged me to let him go onstage. He stood for a few minutes, then burst into tears and said: "Standing on the stage is easy, but I don't know how to act proper." He's very sensitive—which can be a drawback in show business! When we visited JFK's grave at Arlington, I explained to the children about the assassination. Another tourist behind was laughing—apparently at a private joke. Benjy turned to her and reprimanded: "The President's dead, and it's not funny!"

FOR ROBERTA FLACK

Did you originally plan to be an opera singer?—B. K. Hing, Salina, Kan.

● No. I entered Howard University at 15 and graduated three years later with a bachelors in music education. After six months of graduate study, I taught in the Washington, D.C., school system for three years. Then the urge to take a stab at the other side of music became too much. In May, 1967, I started singing at Mr. Henry's in Washington. I knew I'd never give it up when I signed a contract with Atlantic Records.

FOR TOM BEER,

former football star and author of "Sunday's Fools"

The novels on pro football lead us to believe that all players have glamorous women lined up waiting for them in every city. True?—John Carter, Sacramento, Calif.

● No way. The sex life of professional athletes—and football players in particular—has been exaggerated. Most of the players I was associated with managed to drive the decent girls away. Those who stayed around looked like Secretariat.

FOR ED McMAHON

It wears me out just hearing about your appearances around the country. Doesn't that hectic schedule ever get to you?—Madeline Banks, Rockland, Mass.

● It's hectic, but I love it and wouldn't have it any other way. Maybe it's because I'm a gypsy at heart. I meet a lot of people, and people are my business. And it's a great way to keep in shape.

FOR JEANE DIXON

What do you predict is going to happen to the economy within the next year?—Sandi Pasorski, Melbourne, Fla.

● I feel that it will become worse in 1975, and that we will have both a recession and a depression, and rising inflation. The stock market will not crash. However, it will continue to fluctuate and go down a little more.

FOR EVA GABOR

What's your secret for preserving your good looks?—M. B., Salem, Ore.

● I try to look happy all the time, even if I'm not, because a happy expression is a beautiful one. Then I make sure I get lots of sleep—if I sleep well, then I feel right and look good. But, most of all, I'm hung up on wigs. I've got so many, I've lost count. If my hair isn't right, I look and feel a mess. I sometimes wear two or three wigs a day—and I've got them in different colors.

FOR ART FLEMING, host of NBC-TV's "Jeopardy"

Why do you talk so fast on the show? Were you ever an auctioneer?—C. Busch, East Grand Forks, Minn.

● If I kept the dialogue at the same pace all the time, it would be boring. I vary it according to the contestant—for overconfident ones, I go slow. If a contestant is panic-stricken, I have to quicken the tempo and move the game along. If the show goes evenly, that's the way I talk. To keep my tongue in tip-top shape, I run through four sets of tongue twisters before I go on the air—and no, I never was an auctioneer!

FOR TAYLOR CALDWELL

You are more against Women's Liberation than anyone I know. I am surprised you haven't suggested that females be disenfranchised. Or is that going too far, even for you?—Jane Rogers, Austin, Texas

● I certainly do believe that women should not be allowed to vote in local, state or national elections. To show I mean what I say, I have disenfranchised myself. I did not vote in November, and I will never vote again.

FOR SEN. DANIEL K. INOUE (D-Hawaii)

We plan to go to Hawaii, but after watching "Hawaii Five-O," it seems the Islands are crime-ridden. How do they compare to the other states?—D. P., Danville, Ill.

● Hawaii is faced with a fairly high crime rate for serious crimes. It's the ninth highest in the country. However, although the Islands rank high in property crime, they're low in violent crime. Ironically, the crimes featured in the TV show are much less frequent in the Islands than in the other states.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Is there an "inside" story why Tiny Tim's marriage failed?—T. Stroms, Easton, Pa.

● When Tiny married Vicki Rudinger in December, 1969, he told her: "When you feel the pangs of marriage, you'll leave me." They first separated in 1972. In January, 1974, Miss Vicki walked out "forever." Tiny says that his being older wasn't the cause: "She just got bored with me and marriage." He admits he's hard to live with. He bores easily and he's fickle. (During their engagement, he proposed to three other women!) As for Vicki, Tiny was shattered when she became involved with other men during their marriage and separation. At Jimmy's nightclub in New York, where Tiny began his "comeback," he said his door is still open to Miss Vicki, but that his house is a holy one and she must live in it according to the Scriptures.

TV Mother Michael Learned: Is She At All Like Mrs. Walton?

"I've never been happier," says Michael Learned. "I feel I'm just coming into my own."

Ellen Graham

"People think of me as Olivia. They don't know me. I've had women run up, throw their arms around me and cry."

Olivia Walton, mother of "The Waltons," may be 40 and dowdy, but Michael Learned is a vivacious 35-year-old actress who lives in a charming hideaway home in the Hollywood Hills. Our talk was sporadically interrupted by her housekeeper, the carpenter who was completing a new addition, and her three handsome sons—Caleb, 17, Christopher, 16, and Lucas, 11.

FAMILY WEEKLY: You are the only actress I know who included her true birth date in her official biography. Do you have any qualms about admitting you are 35?

MICHAEL: I thought about not putting down my age, but then I figured, why not? I've never been happier than now. I've only really had a career for the past two years, and I feel I'm just coming into my own. I am so excited about the rest of my life, and I want other women to feel this way too.

FW: Didn't you recently remarry?

MICHAEL: Yes. Last October, to Glenn Chadwick. It was the nicest wedding I've ever attended.

FW: How did you meet?

MICHAEL: I've known Glenn a long time. He's a master carpenter for the American Conservatory Theatre in San Francisco, and that's where I worked when I was still married to Peter [Canadian-born actor Peter Donat, nephew of British actor Robert Donat] before I came to Los Angeles to test for "The Waltons." Our friendship didn't turn into anything serious until two years after my divorce.

FW: Did you have any misgivings about accepting the role of Olivia Walton?

MICHAEL: When I was approached for the part, I knew I'd play an older woman, and it didn't matter to me. That's my job. I'm an actress. But I didn't realize what it would mean to be in a successful series. None of us thought the show would go.

FW: What does it mean to be in a successful series?

MICHAEL: People think of me as Olivia. They don't know me. I've had women run up, throw their arms around me and cry. They really identify with Olivia.

FW: Do you?

MICHAEL: We have a lot in common. I spent a good many years when my husband and children came first, before all else. I do love kids, and I know about large families: I'm the eldest of six girls, and was raised on a farm in Connecticut. Also, I'm very domestic. I know how to keep house and I love to cook. That's what I do with my time off. Unfortunately, cooking leads to eating, and that's not so good for the figure.

FW: The Waltons are a Depression era family. Have you knowna hard times?

MICHAEL: When I was a youngster, things were tight, but we always had money. And in the early years of my marriage to Peter, when we had two children and were making $80 a week between us, it was tight. But not horrifying. We never had the fear of where the next meal would come from.

FW: Are your parents still living?

MICHAEL: Yes, but they divorced after 25 years of marriage. My mother lives in London, and my father is in Tunisia. He finally has the son he's always wanted.

FW: What did your father do?

MICHAEL: We were never really sure what he was doing. Theoretically he was a writer, but actually he was with the State Department, which is how we came to go to Europe to live.

FW: How did you meet your first husband, Peter?

MICHAEL: When I was 15, my parents sent me to drama school in Stamford, Conn., and that's where I met Peter and fell in love. My parents thought I was too young to get married, and there was too big an age gap between Peter and me. He was 26. They said if I still felt the same way at 17, they'd okay my marriage. They sent me to England. The first thing I did when I got back was run from the plane to a telephone booth and call Peter. When I heard his voice on the other end, I started laughing. We laughed and laughed. My mother told me later that when she saw me through the booth window, laughing like that, she said to herself, "That's it. Even if she's only 17, Peter's the right one."

FW: Why did you and Peter divorce?

MICHAEL: I never really got a chance to think out my own identity until I was 28. I was the only one of my family married, so I never had anyone to take my problems to. I tried to put on a front—to be brave—but one day it caught up with me.

FW: What happened?

MICHAEL: I freaked out. Frankly, I tried to run in front of a bunch of cars. Fortunately, I tripped and fell on the curb. I wouldn't advise this as a solution for anyone.

FW: What happened then?

MICHAEL: I was lucky to find a good psychoanalyst. He taught me that I am not my brother's keeper. He made me realize you can't always give and give. Eventually you are empty.

FW: Do you feel your marriage was a failure?

MICHAEL: At first I felt it was, but a friend said it was one of the most successful marriages he knew. When I asked him how that was possible, he said, "That's like saying your life is a failure because you died." He's right.

FW: What did you do after you decided to get a divorce?

MICHAEL: I knew I had to make decisions, face changes, get to work. My agent had been after me to try out for the mother's part in "The Waltons." I finally gave in, with great trepidation. I didn't expect anything to happen because I didn't look the part at all. I had very short blond hair, looked awful because I'd only had two hours sleep and had just stepped off the plane. When the producer saw me, he said, "Oh, you're so young!"

FW: How have you adjusted your life to working in a series?

MICHAEL: I've learned that fatigue is a woman's biggest problem. Now if I am tired when I go home, I go to bed. I don't try to do everything for everyone. I'll close the door to my room and tell the boys I simply need some time alone. They understand.

FW: Why did your parents name you Michael?

MICHAEL: Simply because they liked the name. My sisters have unreal names, too, except for Suzy. Gretl is head of an acupuncture clinic in New York. Susan has a grocery store in New Hampshire. Then comes Sabra, who also lives in New Hampshire; Dorit, who lives in a caboose in Concord, Mich.; and Philippa, the youngest, who is in London with my mother. Also, my five-year-old half brother's name is Tarquin.

FW: Have you ever wanted to be something other than an actress?

MICHAEL: Yes—a ballerina.

FW: Why didn't you become one?

MICHAEL: I wasn't any good.

Death and Human Choice:

Do the Dying Have The Right to Decide Their Fate?

By John Kelly

One evening two years ago, four men and three women gathered on the second floor of New York's St. Luke's Hospital. Outwardly, they were indistinguishable from any other middle-aged people. But they were different. Terminal-cancer patients, they were attending the first session of the hospital's new counseling program for the dying.

"They all had a sense of unreality," recalls Dr. Samuel C. Klagsbrun, the psychiatrist who conducted the meetings. "Here they were, still able to get around on their own, to go to the movies, visit friends, drive a car—and each of them knew that in a few months he would be dead." Obviously, no therapy could completely calm their anxieties. But by the end of the 16-week program, says Dr. Klagsbrun, "Each had come to terms with himself and was prepared to release his grip on life with grace and dignity."

Few of the two million other Americans who die each year are lucky enough to get that chance. Whether confined to fluorescent-lit nursing homes or lying amid the muffled whirs and bleeps of an Intensive Care Unit, at the moment of death a shockingly large number find themselves alone and ignored. "Nearly all our old and two-thirds of our terminally ill now die away from family and friends in hospitals and nursing homes," says Dr. Robert Fulton, director of the University of Minnesota's Center for Death Education and Research. "Death doesn't touch relatives or the community the way it used to. It's become too remote, too removed from our daily existence."

Even more distressing is the mechanization of how we die. Medical advances of the last two decades have given doctors miraculous powers. Drugged into semiconsciousness, their hearts and lungs plugged into machines, thousands of the terminally ill are forced to live out their last days in a dazed stupor. One man, a 69-year-old heart patient, was revived mechanically 153 times before doctors relented and permitted him to die!

Not surprisingly, this dehumanization of what should be one of life's most humane moments has triggered a bitter public outcry. "We are starting to question seriously the value of prolonging life when there's no real hope of recovery," says Arnold Larsen, director of the American Medical Association's Council on Medicine and Religion. Rev. Robert B. Reeves, chaplain at the prestigious Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center, puts it more forcefully. "People," he says, "are rebelling against having their loved ones live out their days as human vegetables."

The counseling program at St. Luke's is one encouraging sign of Reverend Reeves' revolution. Here are some of the other innovations that promise to restore a measure of dignity and humanity to the act of death:

THE LIVING WILL

"If there is no reasonable expectation of my recovery from physical, mental or spiritual disability, I [name] request that I be allowed to die and not be kept alive by artificial or heroic means."

This is the language of a new kind of document—something called a "living will." Addressed to "My Family, My Physician, My Clergyman, My Lawyer," the will requests that "drugs be mercifully administered to me for terminal suffering even if they hasten the moment of death." The will has no legal standing and is not binding, but it is a measure of how dramatically attitudes toward death have changed that a reference to the document in a "Dear Abby" column brought its sponsor, The Euthanasia Council (250 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019), 40,000 requests for copies.

"We believe a person has the right to tell his doctor 'Enough,'" says Elizabeth Halsey, director of the Council. "Those who have watched a parent or grandparent needlessly put through the tortures of resuscitation usually come away resolved not to let that happen to them. The will allows them at least to make that decision clear to their physicians."

H. Armstrong Roberts

A NEW KIND OF HOSPITAL

Though most of us are likely to die in a hospital, experts agree that a hospital is the last place we should die. "Its whole orientation is toward healing," says Dr. Klagsbrun. "Its staff doesn't have time or training to minister to the dying."

The "hospice" is a somewhat tardy solution to this dilemma. The 54-bed St. Christopher's of London was the first such institution. It is restricted to the terminally ill and it exists for only one purpose: to provide a good death.

Hospice patients are administered pain-killers, but never sedated into a stupor. The guiding philosophy is that a dying person's last days should be given over to family and friends. Everybody, including pets and children, is encouraged to visit. Patients are even permitted to share a sociable drink with visitors.

Now hospices are catching on in the U.S. The first hospice was organized in New Haven, Conn. A home-care program—staffed by two registered nurses, a practical nurse, a chaplain, physician and pharmacologist (to supply pain-killers)—began working several years ago. Construction of the hospice itself is due to begin in 1975.

TO DIE IN LIFE

Many regular hospitals have begun counseling programs for the dying. One of the oldest and still most effective of these is at the University of Chicago Hospitals and Clinics. Staffed by a rotating group of theological students and full-time ministers, the program also has access to the hospital's psychiatrists, social workers and psychologists.

Rev. Shirley Herman, acting director of the service, considers honest communication between family and patient essential. But she is also adamant about allowing the patient time to himself. "After a certain point," she says, "the dying begin to withdraw into themselves. It's a normal and essential step, but often families misinterpret it."

Thus, the two daughters of a man who had reached this stage became so upset they organized the rest of the family into shifts to sit with him. "For almost a week that poor man was never alone," says Reverend Herman. "Day and night there was someone at his bedside trying to cheer him up. Finally, we had to step in and explain to the family that the father had already said his good-byes and was now trying to prepare himself for death."

Experts in this area all agree on one goal: to give patients the opportunity to die in life. The meaning of this bitter-sweet contradiction is eloquently stated in a letter psychiatrist Elizabeth Kubler-Ross received from a young mother:

"We had a wonderful Christmas. It has been almost two years since the diagnosis, and I am thankful I feel as good as I do. Trying to keep up with five boys wears me down real fast. But you get a little less particular about the dust in the corners. My husband and I have gone through so much, but we have lived life fuller and enjoyed it more than some people do in a whole lifetime. Nobody but the Lord knows what is going to happen, so I am going to enjoy life right now."

Now, for people who don't have "luck" with most house plants—the amazing SIX-IN-ONE

Can You Size Up People by Just "Looking"?

By John E. Gibson

True or False: There is a psychological reason why some people are poker-faced. (See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. You can judge most people by their looks.
2. You can often judge people's character better without seeing them.
3. People whose looks are deceptive often have a difficult time.
4. There is a psychological reason why some people are poker-faced.
5. When people look the way they are, they don't have to explain themselves—their appearance conveys the picture to everyone.

ANSWERS

1. False. If you judge people by their looks, and your insight and perception are in good working order, you may score a lot of bull's-eyes—but you'll also be wrong a lot of the time. Psychological studies show that while some people do look the way they are, others very definitely do not. It's pointed out that "If everyone looked like he is," con men would be out of business.
2. True. A person's voice alone—such as in a phone conversation—often provides more clues to his character than his face. In tests at the University of Michigan, subjects were able to judge character and personality tendencies more accurately when they listened to a person's voice without seeing him, than in a face-to-face interview!
3. True—in many cases. People whose looks are not representative of their character are the most misunderstood. The banker who looks like a fugitive from a floating crap game obviously has to work harder to earn the trust and confidence of the people he deals with. And the lady with conservative tastes and life-style finds it disconcerting and annoying to be mistaken for a femme fatale.
4. True. A team of University of California behavioral specialists has made a study of this matter. It finds that, as a result of upbringing and environment, an individual may actually block facial expression and become poker-faced, never letting his feelings show.
5. False. To some, all people seem much alike; they lack the ability to distinguish one type of person from another, regardless of how obvious the clues. Such individuals form their impressions of others largely from such superficial considerations as "He was so polite," or "His folks came from my hometown, so I felt he must be all right." The art of sizing up people by their looks, even when they "look the way they are," is far from an exact science.

Can you spot the Camel Filters smoker?

©1974 R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

Local Rock Concert is about to begin... and almost everyone has a gimmick. Find the one who doesn't.

1. No. He's Phil O. Dendron. Gimmick: Talks with plants. Plant he's holding just told him it's poison ivy.
2. He's Sy Cole Delic. Wears outfit so wild, he gets fan mail from neon signs. Gimmick: Plays along with band. He does to music what termites do to an old barn.
3. Nope. She's Bertha D. Blues, Groupie. Gimmick: Records everything. Has 12 cassettes of chickens tap dancing. Once lit a charcoal-filtered cigarette...and it made four carbons of her lips.
4. Wrong. She's Rhoda Dendron (no relation to #1 above).
5. Right! He's there for the show, not to show off. Wants his cigarette honest and natural, too. Camel Filters. No nonsense. All flavor.
6. & 7. They're two guys trying to see better—or an unfinished totem pole.
8. The Invisible Man, streaking.

HOW THE CLUB OPERATES

Simply mail the application, together with check or money order for $1.69 as payment for your first 11 selections.

Every four weeks (13 times a year) you'll receive the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest... plus hundreds of alternates from every field of music. In addition, up to six times a year you may receive offers of Special Selections, usually at a discount off regular Club prices.

If you wish to receive the Selection of the Month or the Special Selection, you need do nothing—it will be shipped automatically. If you prefer an alternate selection, or none at all, simply fill in the response card always provided and mail it by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make your decision. If you ever receive any Selection without having had at least 10 days in which to decide, you may return it at our expense, for full credit.

Your own charge account will be opened... the selections you order will be mailed and billed at regular Club prices: cartridges and cassettes, $6.98 or $7.98; reel tapes, $7.98; records, $5.98 or $6.98—plus processing and postage. (Multiple unit sets and Double Selections may be somewhat higher.)

After completing your enrollment agreement (by buying 8 selections within 3 years), you may cancel membership at any time. If you decide to continue, you'll be eligible for our generous money-saving bonus plan.

CAN YOU QUIT SMOKING? READ THE EVIDENCE

Bantron No. 1 in Sales! In Clinical Tests it worked for 4 out of 5!

In the past twenty years thousands of people all over the world have stopped smoking with the aid of Bantron®. In actual clinical tests among smokers who wanted to quit, more than 4 out of 5 did so easily and pleasantly with its help. Meanwhile less effective smoking deterrents have disappeared from the drug store. If you have been disappointed by one of these, do not let this keep you from trying Bantron. Bantron's long record of success is your assurance that it can help you. Bantron is not habit forming and does not affect the taste in any way. It works by acting as a substitute for the nicotine in your system. Get it at any drug store without a prescription.

Smart Cooking For Special Occasions

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen serves Hot Mulled Port in front of a blazing fire. "This easy recipe is a festive cup for a lazy Sunday afternoon."

Hot Mulled Port: A Fireside Favorite

Hot Mulled Port is a welcome warmer on cold winter nights.

HOT MULLED* PORT

- 3 cups clear apple juice or cider
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 3 cinnamon sticks
- 6 whole allspice
- 1 small orange, thinly sliced
- Whole cloves
- 1 bottle (1/2 qt.) Tinta Cream Port
- 3/4 cup brandy
- Cinnamon-stick stirrers, optional

1. In large saucepan combine apple juice, corn syrup, 3 cinnamon sticks and allspice. Heat to boiling, stirring. Reduce heat and simmer covered 5 minutes.
2. Stud orange slices with cloves. Add orange slices, port and brandy to apple-juice mixture and heat to simmering.
3. Serve hot in heat-proof glasses or mugs with cinnamon sticks for stirrers.

Makes 1 1/4 qts.

AN EXPERT ANSWERS YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT MUSCLES

Our files show that thousands of readers like yourself want to build bulging muscles and achieve real physical power like their favorite athletic champions. How to go about it? We decided to ask an expert, Dave Prowse, 3-times British Weightlifting champion and leading fitness expert. Here are his answers.

Q. What does it take to build muscles?

A. Basically, it takes exercise. Almost any exercise will help to develop at least some of your muscles if you keep at it long enough and hard enough.

Q. Isn't there an easier way?

A. Yes. There is one outstandingly effective training method that is also fast and easy—the one I use and recommend—the new Bullworker system.

Q. What's that?

A. The Bullworker is a revolutionary new muscle-building exerciser based on Isometrics, the science that increases strength up to four times faster than conventional methods. In my opinion, it's the most advanced training system in the world today. Many leading athletes use it: World-famous Heavyweight Boxer Muhammad Ali, World Heavyweight Judo Champion Wim Ruska, and Cycling Champion Eddy Merckx, to name only a few.

Q. How long does Bullworker training take?

A. Bullworker provides absolutely the fastest kind of exercise possible. In fact, an introduction training program takes only 70 seconds a day. No other system—weightlifting, pulleys, or strenuous calisthenics—can give you results so quickly and easily. On the contrary, many old-fashioned methods take hours of sweaty, boring work each day...and it's often months before you begin to see improvements. Busy professional athletes and champions don't have time for that. Nobody does.

Q. How long does it take before you begin getting results?

Jack Barclay, Junior Mr. Europe shows the kind of results he achieved with Isometric Bullworker training.

Dave Prowse, 3-time British Weightlifting champion, demonstrates a super-effective 7-second exercise for building powerful biceps... using the new Bullworker with built-in powermeter.

A. With the Bullworker, you can actually begin to see and measure the positive results right from the very first day! Thanks to a built-in measuring device called the Powermeter. After every exercise you just check the reading to see exactly how much your strength has increased from the day before. There's no guesswork involved. Isometric Bullworker training can increase your power at the amazing rate of up to 4% per week! That means a 50% increase in strength in the first three months alone. And I've known many young men who have gone on to double and even triple their strength.

Q. What do those figures mean in visual terms?

A. They mean that in as little as 14 days you can actually begin to see muscle growth in a mirror and verify it with a tape measure. Every week thereafter brings ever faster growth.

Q. But to get such impressive results, don't you have to work very hard?

A. Absolutely not. That's the outstanding advantage of Isometric training... it's so amazingly easy! Each "Static-power" Isometric exercise takes only 7 seconds, and you barely have to move. It's not even necessary to disrobe. The Bullworker is so light and compact, it can be used at home, in the office, anywhere... even while watching TV! It's a great improvement over bulky, expensive weights, bicycle machines, pulleys, etc.

Q. Can Bullworker training even develop bodies which are weak and skinny, or fat and flabby?

A. Definitely! It's been proven by thousands of men of every shape, size and age all over the world. Bullworker training helps transform weak, thin arms into rippling, muscular pillars of strength, build broad, powerful shoulders, turn flat, shallow chests into deep, manly ones, forge loose stomach flab into steel-hard, well-defined muscle... build that "V" shape of a real athlete, develop sturdy, contoured thighs and calves... And all this in record time!

What's more, I've known skinny, shy fellows who, after just a few short weeks with Bullworker, turned into real go-getters... every inch a man... bowling girls over with their dynamism, confidence, and new found power! You really have to see the remarkable effects of Bullworker for yourself to believe them!

Q. How can our readers find out more about the Bullworker, perhaps actually try it for themselves?

A. I understand that the Bullworker distributor in the USA is now making it available—free—on a two week home-trial basis in order to introduce it to the general public. If your readers are interested in developing their bodies, in building muscles and strength faster than ever before possible, I suggest that they contact the US distributor for full details.

What in the World!

HAROLD AND DANIEL MACMILLAN
Who looks like whom?

Daniel Macmillan greets the world with a grimace—perhaps because he has just learned about the famous ancestry he has to live up to. His great-grandfather is former Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, and Daniel is named after the man who founded the famous British publishing firm in Cambridge, England, in the 19th century. That's a lot to contemplate when you are only a few days old. Daniel is the Prime Minister's fourth great-grandson, but he's the first to bear the family name.

QUOTE: "The son of a very rich man faces a massive obstacle to the successful working through of his normal Oedipal complex, in that it may appear impossible to do better than his father. Paul Getty says that one of his main motives for making a great deal of money was to show his father that he could do it; since his father had made millions, he had to make a billion. But some sons just give up and spend their father's money, which results in a failure to fully establish their own adult selves. They can never throw off the feeling of living off Daddy, which is disastrous to their development." From "The Money Motive," by Thomas Wiseman (Random House, $7.95). UNQUOTE.

PLATFORM TENNIS
A sport you can beat your husband at?

How to be Billie Jean King—and make him look like Bobby Riggs! That's what women are discovering about platform, or paddle, tennis, a winter sport that has been growing by leaps and bounds in this country for the last ten years. Unlike conventional tennis—or, indeed, most other sports—platform tennis neutralizes the built-in advantages of the bigger, stronger player. Scoring is the same as tennis, but just one serve is allowed, and the ball may be played off the screens after it has bounced in the court. Accuracy is more important than power on the serve because there is no second chance. And it's hard to put a shot away with an overhead smash because an opponent can simply step aside and play the ball as it caroms gently off the screen. There are now 300,000 players in the U.S., according to Richard J. Reilly, Jr., Inc., a Danbury, Conn., firm that builds courts all over the country. And the ranks are growing at the rate of 25 percent a year.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY By Richard Armour

TV, I HEAR YOU!

My doctor says I'm growing deaf,
He's checked me, ear to ear.
And yet, no strain at all, TV
Commercials are quite clear.

In fact, and I am proud of this,
And smugly smile, not frown,
I sometimes have to leave my chair
And turn the volume down.

Commercials are the best things made
To prove I need no hearing aid.

A lady married four times. The first man was rich; the second was an actor; the third was a doctor; and the fourth was an undertaker. It reminds us of the children's chant: One for the money, two for the show, three to get ready, and four to go. —Mrs. Louis Landwehr

A few years ago, we took my four-year-old nephew through Lincoln's home in Springfield, Ill., at an hour when we happened to be the only visitors. Famous Scandinavian Design Scissors

The Scissors that are molded to your hand

- Cushion plastic handles with contour finger grip gives you more comfort and cutting freedom than you've ever experienced before.
- Stainless steel blades
- Cut paper in . . . patterns . . . fabrics with incredible ease.

Some time ago those inventive Scandinavians introduced an entirely new concept in scissors. It was a scissors with a special cushioned handle anatomically designed to fit your hand. The comfort was incredible. You could cut through the most intricate curve, cut all kinds of materials, cut free hand into all kinds of designs or slip the scissors along the table for an even straight line cut. People who were used to the old-fashioned kind of scissors couldn't imagine a pair of scissors working so efficiently and so effortlessly as this new design. Seamstresses and anyone who needed them knew they had discovered a secret. But originally these scissors cost much, much more. In fact, even today you can find this design selling for $8.00 or more in fine stores. But now we've created this same design at a fantastically low price. "Shear Joy"! It's got the familiar orange, cushion soft, plastic handle, the stainless steel blades, weighs only 3 ounces, and they're 8 1/4" long. If you thought there was nothing glamorous about a pair of scissors then wait until you've tried these. At this new low price you can't afford to be without them. Order now. If they are not shear joy, simply return for full money back.

GENUINE JIFFY POTS

at low, low prices!

START YOUR SEEDS AND CUTTINGS IN JIFFY POTS for the best plants you've ever grown! Get fatter, juicier tomatoes; see your chrysanthemums bloom weeks earlier than your neighbor's. The 2 1/4" Jiffy Pots have plant food right in the walls. When it comes time to move the plants outdoors, you just plant the pot! Transplanting shock is virtually eliminated and your plants are off to a faster, more vigorous start. Use Jiffy Pots for any seeds or cuttings you'd ordinarily start in flats.

Just plant the pot!

Here's why you get better growth with Jiffy Pots:

- Porous construction allows pot to breathe.
- Improved aeration brings faster, heavier growth with less water.
- Roots quickly penetrate sidewalls as well as bottom of pot.
- Jiffy Pots are made of long-fiber highest-grade peat moss and virgin wood-fiber — no newsprint binder!

Now only $129 per pkg. of 40 pots

I'M WORKING ON A CURE FOR THE COMMON COLD

I'M MIXING THIS ICE CREAM WITH THESE COOKIES...

THEN I MIX IN SOME PEANUT BUTTER, AND...

SOME RASPBERRY JELLY...

ON TOP, SOME CHOPPED NUTS, AND OVER EVERYTHING I PUT WHIPPED CREAM!

THAT'LL NEVER CURE THE COMMON COLD

WELL, MAYBE IT WON'T...

BUT... BOY, IS IT TASTY!

Prince Valiant

by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT CONTINUES HIS TALE: "BELOW US THE ENEMY HAD READIED THEIR BATTERING RAM. WE HAD TO SALLY OUT AND TAKE OUR CHANCE, FOR WE WERE TOO FEW TO DEFEND BOTH THE PARAPET AND THE GATE."

"THEN WE HEARD THE GATE OPEN AND CLOSE. 'BY THE GODS! TO THE RESCUE!' YELLED GAWAIN. BUT I SEIZED HIS ARM AND SAID, NO, WAIT, LOOK!"

GASOLINE ALLEY

by Bill Perry

Pop, if you must know, Slim comes here to get warm.

To what?!

He freezes in that room he rents. There's no heat in it.

Don't I pay him enough so he can afford a decent room?

Why doesn't he live with his folks, like he used to?

He doesn't want to. He likes living alone.

Anyway, it's late, Clovia. Aren't you going to bed?

No, Pop, I can't.

I've got to wait up till Slim comes back.

He's coming back? What for?!!

He fills his hot water bottle when he comes by, but tonight he forgot it!

WHAT'S BUGGING HER?

HI, SUE! WHY THE LONG FACE?

I'VE GOT A PROBLEM

I HAD A DATE LAST NIGHT WITH ARNIE HOBBS!

BUT HE'S THE CUTEST BOY IN THE SENIOR CLASS!

I KNOW... AND THAT'S THE PROBLEM!

EVERYWHERE WE WENT GIRLS FLIRTED WITH HIM!

IT WAS TERRIBLE

AT THE PIZZAPARLOR KAREN CONNERS TRIED TO SIT IN HIS LAP!

TWO OTHER GIRLS WHISTLED AT HIM!

I'M GLAD YOU TOLD ME... IT MAKES ME FEEL GOOD!

WHAT?

WELL, WITH DONALD I DON'T HAVE THOSE PROBLEMS!
