

Major Elements Already Disclosed

'Bad News' From Ford; Outlines Program

By FRANK COMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Declaring "I've got bad news, and I don't expect any applause," President Ford outlined for Congress today his blueprint for rescuing the slumping economy through tax cuts and higher fuel prices.

Virtually all Ford's specific proposals were disclosed in his television-radio address to the nation Monday or by White House Press Secretary Ron Husen at a news briefing Tuesday.

The major elements of the President's program include:
—A one-time tax cut of 12 per cent in last year's taxes, to be accomplished through rebates to individual taxpayers of up to $1,000.

—A long-term tax reduction starting this year, with the largest reductions going to the poorest taxpayers.

—Proposals to cut corporate income taxes and increase tax credits for businesses that spend money on their plants and equipment.

—Direct federal payments of $80 to each adult American too poor to pay any income taxes.

—An increase in revenue-sharing funds to state and local governments.

—A proposal for a $2-a-barrel tax on crude oil and higher excise taxes on oil, plus total decontrol of all domestic oil prices. The result would be an increase of about 10 cents a gallon for gasoline and home heating oil. White House officials also estimated that the excise-tax increase would cause a one-shot increase of 2 per cent in the Consumer Price Index.

—A request for standby authority to ration gasoline if higher costs fail to meet his objective of reducing oil imports by a million barrels a day this year and two million in 1976.

Ford did disclose a few new proposals in his State of the Union message and a shorter address delivered personally to a joint session of Congress.

Ford did disclose a few new proposals in his broadcast State of the Union address at a joint session of Congress.

Ford revealed he wants to stockpile 1.3 billion barrels of crude oil in tanks and underground caverns over a period of years so the country could cope with any repetition of the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo.

The President also said for the first time that he wants to grant utilities an investment tax credit of 12 percent "to specifically speed the construction of power plants that do not use natural gas or oil." The present tax credit rate for utilities is 4 per cent.

One presidential proposal that could ultimately have a major impact on the average citizen was not mentioned in Ford's text but was spelled out in a White House-prepared fact sheet.

The fact sheet said Ford wants a new law to require labels on all new automobiles and appliances spelling out how much energy they use.

In addition, the fact sheet said he wants agreement within six months from major manufacturers to develop energy efficiency goals that would achieve an average 20 per cent improvement by 1980. These would cover air conditioners, refrigerators and other home appliances.

"If agreement cannot be reached," the document said,
"the President will submit legislation to establish mandatory appliance efficiency standards." The objective for this program alone was fixed at saving half a million barrels of oil a day by 1985.

Calling for congressional action by April 1 to grant individuals 12 per cent cash rebates on 1974 tax payments, with a maximum of $1,000 per return, Ford sketched a rather gloomy picture of current economic conditions.

He said: "I must say to you that the state of the union is not good.

"Millions of Americans are out of work. Recession and inflation are eroding the money of millions more. Prices are too high and sales are too slow.

"This year's federal deficit will be about $30 billion; next year's probably $45 billion. The national debt will rise to over $500 billion.

"Our plant capacity and productivity are not increasing fast enough. We depend on others for essential energy."

"Cutting taxes, now, is essential if we are to turn the economy around," Ford added. "A tax cut offers the best hope of creating more jobs. Unfortunately, it will increase the size of the budget deficit. Therefore, it is more important than ever that we take steps to control the growth of federal expenditures."

Echoing what he said Monday, Ford promised to initiate no new spending programs this year except in the energy field.

"Further, he said, "I will not hesitate to veto any new spending programs adopted by the Congress."

Ford said some Americans
"question their government's ability to make the hard decisions and stick with them."

They expect from Washington
"politics as usual," he said.
Asserting that the nation's plight requires "a new partnership between the Congress, the White House and the people we both represent," Ford said.

"I want to speak very bluntly. I've got bad news and I don't expect any applause. The American people want action and it will take both the Corgress and the President to give them what they want."

In the energy area, Ford said he would propose a 10-year postponement of clean air standards, due to take effect in mid-1975, for power plants that convert from use of oil to coal.
He said this would not sacrifice clean air goals but simply delay their implementation.

The President also called for legislation "to make thermal efficiency standards mandatory for all new buildings in the United States," saying these standards would be set "after

Green And Henley Broadly Outline Assembly Plans

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—Leaders of the Democratic majority outlined in broad terms their 1975 legislative program as the North Carolina General Assembly convened today.

The state of the economy was the major problem on the minds of both Rep. James C.
Green, D-Bladen, the new House speaker and Sen. John T. Henley, D-Cumberland, the Senate majority leader.

They announced the formation of a joint Economics Committee "to examine the state's economic plight and forecast economic conditions and revenues.

But exactly what the Democrats planned to do about the economy was unclear.

Green said the elderly need additional tax benefits and better food, clothing and shelter.
The unemployed must be aided,
he said.

Both promised that the new joint committee would investigate the possible solutions to those problems. But Henley noted that the economic problems were not created in North Carolina and will not be solved without appropriate action by the Federal government.

Both men promised renewed attention to economy in state government.

Henley, whose speech reflected the consensus of the Senate Democratic caucus, went further than Green in promising aid to beleaguered taxpayers.
He said a new Senate committee would conduct a full investigation of the state's public utilities and the ability of the Utilities Commission to regulate them.

"We intend to leave no stone unturned until we are convinced that the people are getting the best price possible," he said.

Henley also promised action to strengthen the state's ability to deal with energy shortages; enact ethics legislation; expedite criminal trials; and to prohibit age discrimination in auto insurance rates.

Democrats have a 111-9 majority in the House and a 49-1 majority in the Senate.

Claims 'Slush Fund'

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) —
A former executive of Southern Bell Telephone Co. says he administered a political slush fund for the company and made cash payments to political candidates of both parties.

"It would be inaccurate to establish any evaluation relationship," John J. Ryan said Tuesday night. "It's just good political judgement since the chief executive of a state has the power to appoint commissioners.
...We had an interest in how that took place and that the one who was chosen by the governor would understand the economies of a utility."

Ryan, however, said he knew of no case where a commissioner was appointed as a direct result of a contribution.

From Dec. 1964 until Sept.
1973, Ryan, 55, was vice president and general manager of Southern Bell's North Carolina operation. The Charlotte Observer, in a copyrighted story for Wednesday's editions, quoted Ryan as saying he maintained the fund with the knowledge of top company officials in Atlanta. Executives contributed to the fund, he said.

Political contributions by corporations, directly or indirectly, are prohibited by state and federal law.

B. Franklin Skinner, Ryan's successor at Southern Bell, declined comment on Ryan's allegations. In a statement released Tuesday, Skinner said the company "on advice of counsel...simply cannot comment on allegations by Mr.
Ryan concerning any of his activities while in the company's employ, or circumstances surrounding his departure."

Ryan has been one of Charlotte's most prominent civic leaders, serving as president of the chamber of commerce in 1972.

According to the Observer,
Ryan said donations were made to several North Carolina candidates in the 1972 election.

The list included:
—$8,500 to Gov. Jim Holshouser, a Republican.

—$10,000 each to Hargrove
"Skipper" Bowles, a Democrat who lost the governorship to Holshouser in 1972, and former Lt. Gov. H. Pat Taylor, a Democrat.

—At least $2,000 to U. S. Sen.
Jesse Helms, a Republican.

Utilities Commission To Plan Further Rate Boost

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Managing Editor

The Utilities Commission will consider rate increases this month to compensate for major increases in wholesale rates which Virginia Electric and Power Co., GUC supplier proposes to put in effect Jan.
22.

Utilities Director Charles Horne said the wholesale increases would increase the base rate GUC pays by 51 percent.

Commissioners last night set a work session for Jan. 22 to consider the retail rate increases. A public hearing was set for Jan. 27 in the council chambers of City Hall at 8 p.m. The new rates will be officially acted upon following the hearing.

VEPCO, has filed for the new rates before the Federal Power Commission. The company proposes to put the rates into effect, under bond, pending hearings and final outcome of the case. VEP-CO's wholesale customers in North Carolina can fight the increase before the FPC, but in the meantime the higher rates must be paid.

$19,313 For Jobs

A federal Emergency Job Program grant of $19,313—providing several jobs—was allocated to Pitt County governmental units at a special meeting Monday morning.

County manager Reginald Gray said the money is part of an expected $62,313 in emergency employment act funds to be received during the year, for allocation to local governmental units.

Gray noted that local officials were told initially that the first grant would total $39,000, but said that figure was amended yesterday to the $19,313.

The county official noted that representatives of the various governmental agencies—including officials of the various municipalities in Pitt—
"vigorously protested" the fact that the county only received $19,313 in grant money. He said the State "held back 50 per cent" of the funds designated for the region "to be spent on state projects."

The commission approved new street light charges to the city as follows: 250 watt sodium vapor lamp, $5.50 per month; 400 watt sodium vapor lamp $7.50 per month and concrete poles, $1.50 per month.

Approved was a $7.50 cut-on charge for electric and gas service.

Other matters taken up Tuesday night:

—Approved making new gas contracts with

Burroughs-Wellcome based on current firm and interruptable rates.

—Accepted an escalation increase of $15,856.34 in Westinghouse contract for switching station equipment.
Price for the station now stands at $311,846.34.

—Approved selling remaining water and sewer bonds to finance water plant site purchase, wells and mains. For sewer, new plant site and west Greenville

Bulletin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices declined in December for the first time in 14 months, the government reported today, providing further indication of slowing inflation.

The Labor Department said declining agricultural prices more than offset a small increase for industrial commodities last month as over-all wholesale prices fell five-tenths of a per cent. It was the first decline since prices fell one-tenth of a per cent in October 1973.

Despite the December decline, wholesale prices for 1974 were up 20.9 per cent, the biggest annual increase since prices rose 31.1 per cent in 1946 following the end of World War II price controls.

The report provided a dose off encouragement for President Ford as he prepared to deliver his State of the Union message to Congress.

Government analysts said the decline in wholesale prices indicated a breaking in the nation's inflationary rate as the effects of the recession spread through the economy.

POLICE ESCORTS DISCONTINUED?

Why can some businesses get police escorts to the banks, when others are refused. My life and money mean just as much to me as the favored ones do to them. C.T.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said escort service is no longer offered by the Police Department. He went before the City Council several months ago and was given the go-ahead to end it.

Asked about two specific instances you cited, those of NCNB's having an escort from its branch to its main office and Mrs. Anna Garris's having an escort, he said he is aware that sometimes one of the policemen on the downtown beat does walk someone carrying money to the bank, but that a vehicle is not involved. Mrs. Garris, local motor vehicle license agent, is a specific case approved by the City Manager, he said. The City feels she should be given protection while she is handling city money in the sale of city license tags. He reiterated that these are the only incidents in which police escorts are provided. Many local businesses are now using security guard services as a deterrent to robberies.

NO LUNCH HOUR

If a person works eight hours, shouldn't he have a lunch hour? Isn't this against the N.C. Wage and Hour Law for a person not to be allowed this seeming necessity. N.N.

The federal law does not require a lunch hour or break, only that a person be paid for all hours worked, according to Susan Comer of the Federal Wage and Hour Office in Raleigh.

Evelyn Crump, secretary to the Deputy Commissioner of Labor for North Carolina, said there is no provision in the N.C. labor laws saying a person is entitled to a lunch hour or rest period, either. It's left to company policy, she said.

By Agreement, He Takes Kids

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "It seems to me it's as reasonable for a man to have the kids after a divorce as a woman," says Michael McFadden, who for the last three years has taken care of his own three young children.

It was "by a kind of mutual agreement" that he and his former wife, Nancy, decided he should be the parent to raise their two daughters and a son, "only 2 and still in diapers when I took him."

"We did the most responsible thing we could do in this situation," explained the curly-haired, 35-year-old McFadden. "I was in a better spot economically and, being a writer, I could arrange my schedule to be home a lot. Besides, I'm very used to doing 10 things at once and I can write and have kids running in and out and it doesn't bother me."

Nevertheless, the easygoing father has learned to organize and take shortcuts in order to manage the house and supervise Tom, now 5, Mary, 8, and Kate, 10.

Some of the knowhow he has acquired he has passed along to others in the same situation in a book, "Bachelor Fatherhood," a result of his own experiences and of interviews with numerous other single fathers and mothers, psychiatrists, child psychologists, divorce lawyers — and children.

"Men are not quite as caught up in some of the traditional housework traps as women. They do things that work rather than what theoretically should be done," he says. "I decided early that the kids were not going to make their beds, so I got them all quilts which they pull up over their beds and that keeps things tidy."

McFadden claims he doesn't make a "big production" out of meals, but he does make sure there are plenty of fruits, raw vegetables and yogurt around for snacks, and refuses to keep sweets in the house.

"When the kids get hungry enough they'll go get a piece of celery," he laughs, adding that anyone undertaking to feed children should buy a book on nutrition rather than a cook book.

What he dislikes most is doing the laundry, admits McFadden, dressed casually in tan corduroy jacket and brown and white checked shirt. "I don't mind washing but hate putting it back together, things like matching socks. The kids are getting so if they don't have clothes in the morning they learn to wash them."

His former wife, "a bright lady," who teaches pottery-making and makes and sells pottery, lives nearby and sees the children regularly. In fact, he pointed out, she was with them while their father was in New York.

"The kids pretty well accept the situation," he notes. "In the county I live in (Orange County, Calif.) there'll be as many divorces this year as marriages. But if you live in a small town where it's a stigma, perhaps you should move. The kid shouldn't feel like he's a second class citizen because he has only one parent."

McFadden finds people are shocked by his situation and he gets more reaction, both positive and negative, from women than from men. "Any way you slice it the man comes out as a hero because nobody can understand why a woman would give up custody. Nobody ever thinks a man may want his kids too."

"I'm not in the market to replace mothers. But when the parents decide between themselves the marriage isn't working and the partnership isn't doing anything, better one contented parent than two bitter ones. In this case my children have two happy parents and it's kind of broadened their view of the adult world."

McFadden sees all kinds of family situations becoming normal. "Like Christopher Columbus without a map, we don't know where we're going to go in the family situation but where we were wasn't good and we have to explore new things, take risks."

One risk he isn't sure he will ever take is getting married again — at least not just because of the children. But he's not against the institution of marriage.

"People who are happily married — God bless them," he says. "But there's a lot of miserable people trying to live up to an idea that doesn't work for them."

Mrs. Boyle Is Speaker

Mrs. Becky Boyle was guest speaker at the meeting of the Arts Department of the Greenville Woman's Club Friday.

Mrs. J. H. Kinnamon, chairman, presided over the business session and presented the speaker.

Mrs. Boyle told of her beginning interest in decorating egg shells of all kinds and that her interest had led to a business. She displayed several of her creations including a music box, Christmas tree ornament, Easter ornament, necklaces, and pins.

A social hour was held with Mrs. J. H. Smith, Mrs. George Clapp, Mrs. R. P. Rogers and Mrs. George Snyder as hostesses.

Mrs. Fran Sullivan and Mrs. Virginia Strickland were introduced as new members.

Homemaker's Haven

Assoc. Home Economics

Q. Depending on where I shop, I see ground beef labeled differently. Sometimes the words "lean" and "extra lean" are used and other times it's "ground chuck," "ground round" and "ground sirloin." Why?

A. The reason is that there are no standardized names for different qualities of ground beef. Therefore, supermarkets label their packages according to their own preferences. As a practical matter, most ground beef is made from trimmings and the less tender, less popular cuts of meat. So, if you want real ground sirloin, buy a sirloin steak or roast and have the butcher grind it for you. Or, grind it yourself at home.

Q. Many people call ground beef "hamburger." Yet I don't often see it labeled that way in the store. Is there a difference?

A. The U. S. Department of Agriculture does distinguish between these two products ground and packaged in a Federal-inspected or State-inspected plant. No distinction is applied to beef ground in a local market.

According to USDA, "hamburger" is ground beef to which seasonings and pieces of beef fat may be added while the meat is being ground. No added water, extenders or binders are permitted, though.

"Ground beef" is just what the name implies. No extra fat, water, extenders or binders are permitted. Seasonings, however, may be added as long as they are identified on the label.

Q. Does USDA set a limit for fat in ground beef?

A. Yes, but only for products ground in Federal-inspected or State-inspected packing plants. The limit for fat is 30 percent. Most ground beef, though, is ground in local supermarkets to maintain freshness. This grinding is NOT subject to Federal inspection regulations on fat content. Some states and cities, however, do set standards for store-packed ground beef.

Q. What kind of meat is ground beef made from?

A. Generally, ground beef is made from the less tender and less popular cuts of beef. Trimmings from higher-priced cuts also may be used. These cuts contain varying amounts of fat and lean. Because ground beef is so popular, many supermarkets and grocery stores cannot get enough meat from a carcass of beef after they have removed the steaks, roasts, and other cuts to fill the demand.

Consequently, they may buy less tender meats or less popular wholesale cuts specifically for grinding into ground beef. Some stores may buy imported frozen boneless beef and grind it after adding trimmed-off fat from their meat cutting operations. While most steaks and roasts come from younger steers or heifers, most ground beef is prepared from the meat of older animals, which is tougher. Grinding tenderizes it and the addition of fat alleviates its dryness.

Q. Why is pre-packaged ground beef often red on the outside and dull, greyish brown on the inside?

A. The red color is due to exposure to air. When exposed to air, a natural pigment in meat combines with oxygen to produce the red color, which is referred to as its "Bloom." The interior of the meat does not have the red color due to lack of enough oxygen to cause the "bloom" to appear.

Q. Are high bacterial counts dangerous in ground beef? What can be done about them?

A. High bacterial counts are not necessarily a hazard to health as long as the meat is thoroughly cooked before eating and proper handling practices are followed. Ground beef, made as it often is from trimmings, has been handled more than other cuts or meat. Grinding exposes more of the meat surface to bacteria normally occurring in the air, on the butcher's hands and on the equipment. These bacteria are not harmful, but they will cause loss of quality and spoilage if the meat is mishandled. To keep bacterial levels low, keep ground beef cold (40 degree F. or lower) during storage and cook it thoroughly. Also, wash your hands thoroughly with soap and hot water immediately before and after handling ground beef—to make sure you don't spread bacteria. Don't re-use any packaging materials or utensils which have come in contact with the raw meat, unless they, too, are washed thoroughly with soap and hot water.

Q. Is there any danger in eating rare or raw ground beef?

A. The U. S. Department of Agriculture strongly recommends against eating either rare or raw ground beef.

What should you look for in buying ground beef; in handling after purchase? How should ground beef be stored, and for how long? What is the best way to thaw ground beef? Why does ground beef sometimes release a lot of "juice" while cooking?

What causes ground beef patties to shrink when cooking? For the answers to these questions, call our office (758-1196) or write to P.O. Box 1427, Greenville, N.C. 27834. We'll be happy to send you the answers free of charge.

MRS. NEWTON CONRAY BYRD

Couple Weds In Saturday Ceremony

FOUNTAIN—The marriage of Parmie Lucille Moore and Newton Conray Byrd was solemnized Saturday at high noon at a ceremony performed at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Marshall Tredway conducted the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John Alton Moore Sr. of Fountain, and Mr. and Mrs. Newton Byrd of Coats.

The bride wore an ivory crepe formal length gown fashioned with a high collar and fitted bodice defined by rhinestone braid trim. The traditional sleeves were designed with matching trim on the cuffs. The gown had a princess design skirt. She carried a single long-stemmed red rose.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Raleigh.

The bride is assistant secretary with Bolton Corp. and the bridegroom is secretary-treasurer with Gas Co. Corp., Raleigh.

A reception followed the ceremony.

Household Hints

By United Press International
When you cook on an electric range, save energy by using pans that cover the heating element entirely. More heat enters the pot and less is lost to surrounding air.

Light colored walls, rugs, draperies and other furnishings help save energy by reducing the amount of artificial light you need indoors.

Frozen vegetables are apt to be a good buy in the weeks ahead. Supplies are about 34 per cent higher than last year.

If scalloped oysters are on your holiday menu, keep them refrigerated or frozen until cooking time. Serve them hot — 140 degrees or higher — and refrigerate leftovers promptly.

Delegates Elected To State Session

Mrs. Allen C. Darden, Miss Elizabeth Lang, Miss Nancy Lewis, Mrs. Arch J. Flanagan, Mrs. Charles H. Carr and Mrs. C. Reynolds Kernan were elected delegates to the 75th state conference of National Society Daughters of the American Revolution of North Carolina.

They were named at the Saturday meeting of Major Benjamin May Chapter at the Woman's Club.

Mrs. Vance Perkins, Mrs. E.L. Baker and Miss Eunice McGee were hostesses.

After refreshments, the Regent, Dr. Emily Farnham, called the meeting to order and introduced Mrs. J.B. Spilman of Greenville as a visitor.

Mrs. Perkins introduced Mrs. Janice Hardison Faulkner as the speaker. Mrs. Faulkner, assistant professor of English, ECU, is active in Democratic Party work in Greenville and Pitt County and chose "Women in Politics" as her speech topic.

The general theme of her talk was the historical background of women in politics. She noted that it took 72 years for women to win the right to vote. At the first woman suffrage convention in the United States held in 1848 in Seneca Falls, N.Y., Elizabeth Cady Stanton read a resolution to the effect that women should be permitted to vote.

Sixty-seven women reluctantly attended this meeting since such action on the part of the female was considered unlady-like. Mrs. Faulkner went on to say that a man had to preside at the first Woman's Rights Convention in 1850 as no woman had been given the opportunity to learn the correct procedure for conducting such a meeting. It was not until August, 1920, that Amendment 19 to the Constitution became law and gave women the right to vote.

Mrs. Faulkner observed that "it took women a long, long time to get the vote and they have come a long, long way since then". She brought out how the influence of women on political life in the United States varied with changes in administrations.

Mrs. Faulkner said that women are, also, winning more elected offices. They are now considered serious contenders and more ran for office in last year's elections than ever before. In these elections, 18 women were sent to the United States Congress and 15 to the North Carolina assembly.

Dr. Farnham gave the President General's message. Mrs. Frederick M. Tripp, National Defense chairman, gave the National Defense report.

Delegates and alternates were elected to the NSDAR State Conference of North Carolina. It will be held March 11-13 in Charlotte. Mrs. Henry Stewart Jones, president general, is to attend. A feature of the conference will center around a display of creative works by North Carolina DAR members.

Mrs. Jack Riley of Raleigh and Mrs. A.D. Holland II of Great Falls, Va., were elected delegate and alternate respectively to NSDAR Continental Congress to be held April 13-19 in Washington, D.C. Dr. Farnham announced that those needing help with their genealogical records should consult the DAR Patriotic Index or write to the National Archives and Records Service concerning information required.

Mrs. Whitehurst Gives Program

Jeanette Whitehurst was the speaker for the meeting of the Cherry Oaks Home and Garden Club Tuesday.

She spoke on her hobby of shellart and showed the members how to use shells found on the coast.

Donna Finney was introduced as a visitor and prospective member of the club.

During the business session, the following members of the Social and Decorations Committees were thanked for their job on the Christmas social: Barbara Stoneman; Maria Keenan; Marion Behlou; Mary McAdams; and Carolyn Medlin. Brenda Edwards reported on the Projects Committee and noted that two needy families were supported at Christmas with groceries, clothing, and toys for the children.

A committee composed of Karen Collier, Marion Behlou, and Frances Mallison was appointed to investigate the possibility of planting various flowering trees in Cherry Oaks to promote community unity.

Carolyn Hibbard and Margie Taggart were co-hostesses for the meeting.

Women Aren't Happy Sitting

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I go dancing quite often with several other couples. We all exchange dances except this one man, who dances only the first dance with his wife—then he sits. He never asks any of the other ladies to dance.

Meanwhile, the wife of this non-dancing man (I'll call her Vera) is asked to dance by all the other husbands as she is very pretty and a good dancer. So while Vera is dancing, one of the other wives has to sit it out.

I think that since all the husbands know that Vera's husband never asks any other woman to dance, they should not ask Vera to dance. After all, if one woman has to be sitting out, shouldn't it be Vera, since it's her husband who is sitting out?

What would you offer as a solution to this problem?

PART-TIME SIT-OUT

DEAR PART: It appears that the men are happy, but their wives aren't. Why not chuck the old tradition that says the woman must wait for the gentleman to ask her to dance? YOU do the asking—and every woman for herself!

DEAR ABBY: I met a man who said he was a top photographer for a famous magazine. He asked me to pose for him, saying I would get $100 for every picture. I agreed, and he came over on Sunday with his camera.

I posed with nothing on but a Santa Claus hat and beard. He also took a lot of pictures of me naked in the shower with the water running. We went outside, and he shot pictures of me picking oranges off a tree. Then we drove to the beach and he got some more shots of me on the beach and in the water. It took the whole day.

About halfway through, he ran out of film and didn't have his wallet, so I advanced him $20 for more film. Later we got hungry, so he borrowed $10 from me to pay for eats. He promised he'd call me after the pictures were developed, but I haven't heard from him. I don't know how to get in touch with him. I want my $30 back but I'm afraid to go to the police because I said I was 21 and I'm only 17, and I don't want to get into trouble for being under age and posing like that. Thanks for any help you can give me.

G. IN LONG BEACH

DEAR G.: My guess is that the photographer is a phony. You could write to the magazine he claimed to work for, but don't be surprised if they've never heard of him. I can't help you get your $30 back, but I have some valuable advice for you: DON'T pose for any more strangers or you could lose a lot more than $30!

DEAR ABBY: I am a very attractive widower, having lost my wife two years ago.

My problem? I have a small fortune stuck in the stock market, and I don't have to tell you what's happened to the market.

How do I go about finding a charming middle-aged widow who could perhaps offset my losses with her gains?

TOOK A BEATING

DEAR TOOK: You appear to be looking for a "trade-off," not a wife. Too bad you didn't give me your address so I could tip off all the charming, middle-aged, well-to-do widows in your area.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem involving tact. I don't drive. Each week I go to a meeting with a neighbor who lives a few doors from me. Her silly chatter and vicious gossip bore me; however, it's convenient to be driven by her and I appreciate it.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Wednesday, January 15, 1975—3

She recently went on a two-month trip, and in her absence another club member offered to drive me, even though it meant going about five minutes out of her way. We have now become good friends.

My problem is how to get around to telling my neighbor that I don't need her transportation any more for these club meetings. My new friend doesn't care for her gossiping tongue either.

I'm afraid if I offend my neighbor, her vicious tongue will lash out on me.

IN A BIND

DEAR IN: Don't be blackmailed. If you prefer to be driven by your new friend, simply tell your neighbor that you have transportation. How can she hurt you? People of quality pay no attention to vicious gossip. And who else matters?

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SICK OF ALL THAT SEX IN YOUR COLUMN": Sorry, but lately, every other letter that lands on my desk has to do with sex. I invite people to write to me about their problems, and these are their problems.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Homemakers Can Make French Pastry

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Many housewives who can turn out the most elaborate dinners quail at the thought of making pastry. But, a veteran pastry chef tells me, an amateur can eventually make all but the most intricate of dainties. A little experience and some imagination can bring eclairs and even Napoleons within reach of the average homemaker.

Few amateurs have mastered the art of sugar and pastry sculpture like Roland Mesnier, pastry chef at one of Bermuda's biggest hotels, who was in New York recently for a food show at the Coliseum.

Mesnier, a youngish-looking man who comes from Besancon, France, began his craft at a local pastry shop and finally wound up as assistant chef at a major hotel in London.

"That's where I mastered the art of pastry sculpture," he said. "It takes about 10 years." He showed us a formidable sugar sculpture he had just completed of Tutankhamon, a ruler of Egypt from about 1366 to 1357 B.C.

"Faces are the hardest thing to do," he said. "It's not easy to get the facial expression down in sugar."

"Sugar sculpture is like glass blowing, and you have to mold your creation as you blow it into being."

The most difficult sculpture Mesnier has done was a cock-fight which won first prize at New York's Coliseum. He won plaudits, too, for a peacock which he displayed in Bermuda.

Mesnier sculpts in pastry as well as sugar and recalled a cake he did for astronaut Frank Borman with a space ship atop.

"I welcome the chance to make something different," he said. "You get pretty tired of turning out all those roses and carnations."

But leave pastry sculpture to the masters. For starters, a housewife might try profiteroles; miniature puffs filled with ice cream and crowned with sauce. Here's a party recipe.

Cream Puff Batter

1 cup water
1 stick butter
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
4 teaspoon salt
4 eggs
2 quarts vanilla ice cream
1 can chocolate fudge sauce (size depends on taste)

Heat water and butter to boiling in medium, heavy saucepan. Add flour and salt, stir vigorously with wooden spoon till batter forms a thick, smooth ball that follows spoon around pan. Remove from heat at once. Beat in eggs, one at a time, till batter is shiny-smooth.

Spoon batter in mounds of one rounded teaspoon each, 2 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in 400-degree oven 25 minutes, till puffed, crisp and golden. Remove carefully from cookie sheets, cool on wire racks.

Split puffs and spoon a tablespoon of ice cream into each, then press tops back into place. Place in shallow serving pan and drizzle with fudgy chocolate sauce which can be brought in jars or cans at supermarkets. Makes 20 servings.

Plant herbs for indoor growing in well-drained soil in a pot with a hole in the bottom and give them plenty of light and some humidity. One way to provide the latter: set the pot on a layer of pebbles in a shallow tray and keep water level with top surface of pebbles.

Fiscal Disaster Not In Sight

The North Carolina General Assembly opened its 1975 session with problems and concerns like the state has not known for some years.

Our state, as the rest of the nation, is locked into a recession with many plant layoffs causing high unemployment. It is well known that this is going to affect the state government's revenues, and consequently the Legislature is not going to have surplus funds to institute new programs.

How severe the economic pinch will be is not known even as the General Assembly goes into session. Observers are predicting a long session as the Legislature more or less waits for an accurate estimate of the revenues which will be available for budget making. Since the law requires state government to operate on a balanced budget it is essential that the budget makers have a good idea of how much income will be available.

It is a time for fiscal caution for the State Legislature. Certainly we want to continue and even expand some present programs, but it is not a time to embark on costly new ventures. Every request for new personnel should be carefully examined to make absolute certain that it is needed. Not only is this desirable in a recessionary period, but it is also a good time to take stock of governmental positions, after several years of major expansion of state government.

All reports indicate that around $40 million is included in the recommended budget for the ECU medical school, and certainly this money should be provided. The ECU medical school issue has been with us for more than ten years and we must have this school functioning as rapidly as possible in view of our critical medical care problems.

There will be complaints that the large medical school expenditure will deny new building projects to other institutions. The legislators, however, can answer that there will soon be a surplus of classroom space throughout the higher education system, but our medical care problems are only going to get worse, if we don't move quickly on the medical school development.

The legislators are already faced with cries for reducing taxes or eliminating the food tax. They should resist all such efforts. We need every penny that the tax structure is now producing and any tax that is removed is going to have to be replaced with taxes in another area. If we need tax reform, the matter should be studied carefully in more stable times to determine what areas should be carrying more taxes. Now is not the time for the Legislature to be stampeded into anything in the way of tax changes.

This can be a good year for the North Carolina Legislature. The law makers will have to be more careful in their budgeting, but nevertheless the revenue drop is no where near disaster proportions. We will have to spend funds that are available in the most strategic places—and we believe the medical school falls in this category—rather than shotgunning so that everybody gets a little. It can be a year of achievement and progress for North Carolina, but the General Assembly will have to watch every dollar carefully.

THIS AFTERNOON

One-Stop State Services

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—City and county officials, often frustrated and confused by state projects and programs and bureaucratic red tape, are finding a friend in Raleigh these days.

North Carolina is blessed with local government people who are dedicated and really care about doing the right thing, Robert S. Ewing believes.

Ewing comes to his state post as director of the community assistance operation from the ranks of locally elected officials. He was on the town council and mayor of Southern Pines, and spent eight years on the Moore County Board of County Commissioners—while publishing a weekly newspaper (The Moore County News) out of Carthage.

His goal, one which he says is at hand, is to make the state community assistance program a "one-stop shopping center for local governments—for any kind of assistance."

Full Service

Ewing's staff operates under the state Department of Natural and Economic Resources, and with field offices located across the state is prepared to help local officials in the gamut of local activities: zoning, planning, recreation, environmental control, economic development.

"I've told my people they are out there to help local officials, and if they need help with something inside Natural and Economic Development, we take them by the hand. If the problem is in any other phase of state government, we lead them to the information and help them find their way."

"I've given standing instructions that any request for aid is to be answered the same day it is received. We don't ever want to hear one of our people tell a local official that he can't help," Ewing said.

One of his first moves was to sign up all the field office representatives in a three-week course in local government taught by the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill. The object: to give state officials a better understanding of problems and priorities of local officials.

Ewing's staff is also preparing a directory of state agencies and services as a guide to local officials, and, recognizing that many localities share problems and ideas, is sponsoring a series of workshops at which local and state officials get together to candidly talk about future directions.

Land Use

Ewing believes that the major item of concern to local governments in coming years will be land use planning and management. "The local commitment to proper land use is on the ascension, but many counties are just now realizing what land use is all about. Emphasis is now going to be on developing a planning capability within each community."

The process is not without its problems. There is considerable resistance in North Carolina to government-imposed zoning, land use regulation, and planning procedures which some regard an invasion of private property rights.

"If local officials are concerned about zoning and land use while a lot of people in that community don't want it, then the easy thing to do is avoid the subject. But that will not answer the problem, and our local officials are learning this fact," Ewing said.

A team of state planners and local citizens was formed to "blitz the problem and seek to outline alternative solutions. The decision will be up to New Bern—but maybe we can help," Ewing said.

The problem, he said, is that a recreation expert would see a park on that tract, a developer would suggest a shopping center or industrial complex, a conservationist might insist on keeping it a wildlife preserve.

"The solution is to outline all possible approaches and the benefits of them, and let the community decide," Ewing said.

"The state community assistance program has helped a number of cities do long-range planning and land use studies, including one in Wilson where a team of planners and architects converged for a three-day study of problems and suggested solutions."

Recently, Ewing's staff was asked by some New Bern city officials for help on what use to make of a 200-acre tract along the Trent River near Tryon Palace.

"The easy thing would have been to say, Gosh, we can't help. But now, the attitude is to say we can help," Ewing said.

No Free Brando Lunch

WASHINGTON—I received a call from Kellerman the other day. I'd heard he lost his job and I expected him to be very unhappy. But he seemed elated.

"Do you know any Indians?" he asked me.

"I don't think so," I said.

"Why?"

"Well, the bank is going to foreclose on my house and I thought I'd give it to the Indians."

"You can't do that," I said.

"Why not? Marlon Brando gave his land to the Indians and it had a $318,000 mortgage on it. My property only has a $46,000 mortgage. They'd be getting a bargain."

"But no Indians are going to take your property if there's a mortgage on it."

"I won't tell them, dummy. I'll just turn over the deed to them and they'll find out later."

"That's not fair to the Indians. After all they've gone through, you can't give them back their land with a mortgage on it."

"I didn't think so either until I saw Marlon on television. I would say that was one of his greatest performances. There he was, looking over the land with all the TV cameras whirling away and the tom-toms beating, and the guy in the feather headdress thanking him for the Indians of America, and all they were really getting was a $318,000 due bill from the bank. You talk about a forked tongue."

"I'm sure Marlon meant well," I said. "Maybe he didn't know there was a mortgage on the land."

"Don't get me wrong. I'm not criticizing him. I just figured if the bank's going to take my house, I'd rather give it to the Indians. That's why I'm calling you. If you could dig up some Indians for me, I could call NBC, CBS and ABC and we could have one helluva ceremony on the lawn. I can use the national exposure more than Brando can, and maybe I could even get a job out of it."

I told Kellerman, "The networks have been burned pretty badly by Brando. It may be a long time before they cover another story about a paleface dominating his land to the Indians. Besides, Kellerman, I don't want to hurt your feelings, but you're not a movie star. Walter Cronkite isn't about to send out a TV crew to cover a guy in Bethesda who is going to give his house away."

"But I can't just give it to Riggs Bank," he shouted. "What the heck fun is that?"

"Don't get excited, Kellerman. Let's think this out. Maybe we could get Jane Fonda to give your house to the Indians. She hasn't been on television recently."

"That's not bad," he agreed. "I could stand next to her and she could say she was giving the land on behalf of both of us. Do you think Marlon would get mad?"

"I don't see why he would. After all, it's your property, isn't it?"

"The Riggs Bank doesn't seem to think so," Kellerman said.

"Well, that's just something the Indians will have to work out with the bank. If they can't handle a mortgage, they shouldn't be in the land-accepting business. Don't forget there is and old Indian saying, 'Abwah kuhwah meetah humbug.'"

What does that mean?"

"There is no such thing as a free Brando lunch."

Other Editors Say The Record Shows

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

For those who still have doubts about the safety benefits derived from lowering the speed limits, here are some figures based on traffic accidents for 1973, the last year in which gasoline shortages did not figure in a major way.

There were 55,800 fatalities caused by highway accidents. There were more than 2 million injuries. The cost of accidents in 1973 has been placed at $20.2 billion.

During 1973, motor-vehicle deaths averaged 158 per day for the entire year. This is a typical figure for most years preceding 1974.

Thus, from 1900 through 1973, motor-vehicle deaths totaled nearly 2 million. Military casualties from 1775 through 1930 totaled 1,155,000 of which 649,250 were battle deaths and 506,300 from disease, accidents, etc., connected with war.

The big thing to remember about traffic fatalities is that drinking is indicated to be a factor in at least half of all fatal traffic studies.

One of the tragic factors in traffic deaths is the large number of below-21 drivers involved. Unfortunately, many states have passed laws making it legal for 18-year-olds to drink liquor and beer. The worn-out phrase, "If they are old enough to bear arms, they are old enough to drink," simply does not hold water.

Any military officer will deny that phrase. The soldier is carefully trained to protect himself. The young drinker is not. Some legislators may consider their own experience and say, "We have been drinking for years and nothing serious has happened."

That isn't correct. We now have 10 million alcoholics and to them and their families it is serious.

Speed and liquor kill. With the energy crisis and the 55 mph speed law, deaths and accidents dropped by a large percentage. But while speed has been reduced, the drinking goes on.

For years there have been educational efforts aimed at the dangers of driving while drinking. Apparently these efforts have not been enough.

After years of such promotion, why does one forget he is safer in traffic if he does not drink and drive?

Detente Suffers A Blow

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The breakdown in U.S.-Soviet trade has destroyed a foundation stone of superpower detente and removed the main American lever for pushing Moscow toward better relations.

According to repeated statements by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, a stable and relaxed Washington-Moscow relationship had to be based on more than mutual military terror.

A major start toward this goal came in June 1972 when Russian and American negotiators signed an agreement that promised to lead to the large and intricate commercial linkage Kissinger wanted.

That promise was left shattered Tuesday when Kissinger announced Moscow's renunciation of the agreement because Congress had insisted on making further trade dependent on Moscow's relaxation of restrictions on Russian Jewish emigration.

Kissinger was careful in his news conference to say that the Soviet statements on the trade breakdown showed no sign of a wider political deterioration.

At the same time, American policy makers clearly were worried in private discussions. They said the United States now had little more than military threats to use if Moscow acted up.

"If we can't offer them larger credits, or threaten to cut back on credits, what are we supposed to do, threaten them with force?" asked one White House source.

Even in his public presentation, Kissinger appeared to move toward a stronger line than he has used recently toward Moscow when speaking of possible tougher Russian behavior.

Should the Soviet rejection of the trade bill "herald a period of intensified pressure ... the United States would resist with great determination," he said.

Kissinger also said he would work to remove the objections that brought Russian ire and "pursue the policy of relaxation of tensions and ... improve relationships leading to a stable peace."

East Carolina Teachers College will get a larger appropriation each year for the next biennium for the present. The announcement came in spite of the fact that the appropriations did not meet the requests of school officials.

The figures sent to the legislature showed that the school will receive more for the coming year than had been spent last year.

The Greenville All-Star Basketball team, recently organized here, will play its first game of the season Wednesday against the Kinston all-star team.

The local team is composed of former players on the college team, including Troy Burnette, "Runt Bostic, Jack Barrett, Tommy Hicks, "Doc" Mathis, Charlie King and Jimmy Wilson.

POLITICS In N.C.

Jenkins Is Very Confident

By JOHN KILGO

Leo Jenkins, the outspoken chancellor of East Carolina University, says he is "extremely confident" the North Carolina Legislature will vote to fund a four-year medical school at ECU.

"I'm very confident the med school will be funded," Dr. Jenkins told me in an hour-long interview, "not because of any politicking on my part, but because the people want this."

The price tag of a four-year medical school at ECU has been knocked around. Those who favor the school say the cost to the state will be $50 million. Those opposed to establishing a degree-granting med school at ECU say the cost will run up to $100 million.

"The $100 million is a scare figure," Dr. Jenkins said. "The scare figure used to be $50 million, but that wasn't frightening enough. It then went to $100 million, and now some people are saying it'll cost $200 million. I feel the cost will keep going up on the editorial pages of some newspapers, but we don't worry about what the newspapers say. We're interested in what the average people of North Carolina are saying, and they're saying they want this med school."

Dr. Jenkins says every poll he has seen, and he says he's seen several, indicates people all over North Carolina favor the establishment of a four-year medical school at ECU.

I asked Dr. Jenkins about studies made during the past few years that said the time is not right to establish a med school at ECU.

"You have to look at this historically," he answered.

"The same voices said they shouldn't expand the med school at UNC in 1946. We could have a hundred more studies and it wouldn't change the fact that we have a critical shortage of doctors in the state. The way to get more doctors in the pipeline is to have this medical school."

Some of the committees who looked into the situation claim there is no assurance that a med school at ECU will increase the number of doctors in the East.

Dr. Jenkins disagrees. He says a med school in Greenville will bring doctors to the area, "because doctors want to be where the action is."

THE WAY OUT

All of us have seen the sign over certain doors in public buildings, "This Way Out." This designation over doors has a figurative as well as literal meaning. All of our lives, but particularly when we are young, we will be going through doors. It can mean opportunity, service, and happiness when the doors lead into something beneficial. In this sense education and religion are doors which open to us new vistas of meaningful living. But there are other doors which lead only to frustration and unhappiness. One of these doors opens the way to quick wealth by dishonest means; another to attractive sensual gratification; another to satisfying revenge. Doors opening the way to experiences of this type are unfortunately much more numerous than those opening upon a happy life.

When we approach a door which we think will lead us to a new dimension of life, we should look up before we pass through. Above many will be the sign, "This Way Out."

Tremendous Push To Inflation

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The President's proposed 12 per cent income tax rebate and his determination to "turn the country in a new direction" probably will relieve the pervasive feeling among Americans that they are economically adrift.

Nobody really knows for certain just what the characters and needs are of varied a people as Americans, but polls show they are upset over what they feel is an inability of leaders to tug hard on the reins.

Now that President Ford has promised to take a firm hold, they have reason to wonder if the horse is to be tugged in the right direction by the tax on imported crude oil.

As does any industrial society, America runs on energy, and to a greater extent than may be evident. It dines on energy, communicates via energy, travels on it, heats with it. Conceivably, the tax could lead to generally higher prices, not just for oil.

Farmers use it to bring crops to market. Retailers use it to light, heat and advertise their stores. Trace any other product to its source and you find the same pattern.

What the tax might do is provide a supportive argument for utilities and others already disposed to use more domestic coal at the expense of clean air and tidy landscapes. It could be a spur to and excuse for the changeover.

While the increased costs to industry would be ameliorated by raising the investment tax credit to 12 per cent from 7 per cent, a question remains about the possible impact on particular industries.

Utilities, for instance, already are suffering sharply higher costs and a reluctance on the part of consumers to approve more rate increases. It remains to be seen if and how they will be helped or hurt by the proposals.

The automotive industry is depressed, and it could become even more depressed by higher prices for gasoline. Americans awakened suddenly this past year to realization of the high cost of running a car. They might be further discouraged.

The total impact really cannot be measured yet. To the extent that higher energy prices discourage frivolous use of energy there'll probably be a gain. But most energy usage is considered essential and probably can't be cut much.

If the program spurs development of domestic supplies it also will be a plus.

But a disquieting factor is the cost of the Ford proposals. A budget deficit of $30 billion is possible for fiscal 1975, to end this June, and an even larger deficit is possible in the following year.

In other words, a tremendous impetus to inflation may be sown with the proposal.

Oil Money Investments Add To Shah's Importance

EDITOR'S NOTE — The oil money is pouring into Iran — and going out again in the form of investments around the world. As a result the Shah of Iran has become one of the most important money men in the world. Here is a report on the situation.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Since oil prices quadrupled, Iran's Imperial Court calendar exudes the excitement of a giant TV give-away game, with the waiting players, back in the hotel lobbies, keeping score on pocket calculators.

Italy's President Giovanni Leone dropped by to see Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi just before Christmas and came away with deals worth $4 billion for joint ventures in steel, shipyards, aluminum, textiles and petrochemicals.

Next in line at the Niavaran Palace in the snowy hills above this capital, Premier Jacques Chirac of France clinched economic agreements reportedly worth nearly $7 billion. They included projects to build a subway in Tehran, install a color TV network, construct nuclear power stations, a steel factory and 200,000 housing units and help finance Eurodif, a French-controlled European consortium that will supply Iran with enriched uranium.

An Indonesian delegation which didn't even get to see the shah, came away with a multi-million-dollar deal for an aluminum plant back home.

The Germans, supplying two atomic reactors and building a half billion barrel-a-day oil refinery at Bushehr, near the Kharj Island supertanker terminal, began the new year by opening an Iran-German Chamber of Commerce to compete with the Iran-American Chamber of Commerce, which already has more than 200 members. Iran's German connection includes a recently acquired 25.4 per cent equity share and management voice in the Krupp steel firm.

The procession of world leaders and finance ministers calling at the Imperial Court resembles the friezes in the ruins of Darius the Great's Palace at Persepolis showing envoys with flower offerings climbing a great staircase to pay homage to the ancient king. It must provide some element of sweet revenge for the current ruler.

Three years ago, before the new oil prices began pumping $2 billion a month into Iran's treasury, the shah invited world leaders to a $100 million birthday party in the ruins of Persepolis to celebrate the 2,500th anniversary of the Persian Empire.

Quite a few of the invited failed to show up. French President Georges Pompidou gave it a miss out of pique at the royal protocol which put him below the salt or at least the Grand Duke of Luxembourg. The Queen of England, who never sits below another monarch, like the since-deposed Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, sent her husband, Prince Philip, instead. President Richard M. Nixon sent Spiro Agnew. Danish newspapers called on King Frederick and Queen Ingrid to develop "a quick case of diplomatic flu." The German president dropped out at the last moment for an eye retina operation.

The Communist bloc, playing a different game from royal chairs, assured detente and a flow of natural gas from Iran by sending along the presidents of the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Romania.

"The shah swallowed his pride, but he never forgot," said an American banker who is convinced that past humiliations, suffered at the hands of the West, provide part of his drive to make Iran not only industrially self-sufficient but the fifth economic power in the world, after Japan, before the oil begins running out in 1990.

"Unlike Kuwait, which has nobody to spend its oil money on, you won't find the shah buying London restaurants and islands off South Carolina. He wants to diversify the economy into mining, big-time agriculture, nuclear energy, textiles and synthetic fibers against the day when the underground bonanza runs dry."

Amid the tumult of the arms dealers, agronomists, bankers, industrialists and representatives from the multinationals waiting around the hotel lobbies for their call to the palace, everything seems to be going on at once from almost everywhere all over Iran.

The United States, Australia, Denmark, India, Britain and other nations are cooperating to bring about "The Great Civilization" which the shah envisages for his 32 million subjects by the end of the century. The projects range from racetracks to space satellites.

Although the $36 billion budget just announced for the new Iranian year beginning March 21 allocates 10 per cent for overseas loans and foreign aid,

Local Student Among Top Ten

WOODBERRY FOREST, Va. — John Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Howard of 2003 Pinecrest Drive, Greenville, N.C. is among the top ten students in his class at Woodberry Forest School.

Emmett W. Wright, Jr., headmaster of Woodberry Forest, announced the top-ranking students in each of the school's four high school grades, at the beginning of the winter term.

Woodberry Forest is a college preparatory school enrolling 350 boys in grades 9-12 from 20 Central Atlantic and Southern states, as well as several foreign countries.

sophisticated industry to this state until we develop good medical care," Dr. Jenkins said. "These industries aren't going to settle in areas that can't offer decent medical help."

I asked Dr. Jenkins what guarantee he would have that students trained at the ECU med school wouldn't leave and return to urban areas to practice.

"First," Dr. Jenkins said, "we're only going to admit North Carolina people. They'll be trained as primary care physicians. And we hope the Legislature will put restrictions that applicants must agree to. This would make it mandatory for graduates to practice in North Carolina for at least four years, or pay back the state the entire cost of their education. We would also hope to give benefits to those who agreed to practice in rural North Carolina. If the applicants don't want to enter into this type of bargain, they should look elsewhere for their medical education. The taxpayers have a right to get this kind of return on their investment, and they're paying for the med school."

Dr. Jenkins says for every seat available at the ECU med school, the institution has 20 applicants.

I asked Dr. Jenkins if he felt the University's Board of Governors, established to take politics out of higher education, was in reality doing that.

"I try to be a realist," he said. "Politics is a part of life. People are put on governing boards because of politics. We are political animals. We would have a very sterile situation if we didn't get to President (William) Friday and tell him our needs. All of us are going to get as close to the Legislature as we can and tell them to keep an eye on our needs."

Dr. Jenkins says he encourages his students to get involved in politics, and urges his professors to seek public office, if they desire.

"How could I urge young people to get involved in politics and then tell them I can't get involved because it's a dirty game and I have to stay above it. They would laugh at me."

Dr. Jenkins says he also thinks the rivalry among state-supported universities is healthy.

"Competition is what made America great," Dr. Jenkins says. "We want to clobber these people in athletics. We want to be stronger than they are academically. We want to have the best institution in the system, and if they want to strike back, then let them. It doesn't hurt anyone."

'Tough' Over Milk-Pricing

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Milk Commission Tuesday voted 4-2 to return to a tough policy of enforcing the state law which forbids stores from selling milk below cost as "loss leaders."

In doing this the commission overrode the wishes of its Republican chairman, Hamilton Horton of Winston-Salem.

The commission voted after a spirited debate between Horton and Herbert C. Hawthorne of Statesville. Hawthorne made the successful motion for return to the policy in effect before the commission voted 4-3 last October to change it.

Horton argued without success that the new policy was working. He pointed out that five out of six stores found using milk as "loss leaders" at Greensboro had raised their prices after receiving warning letters from the commission staff.

The commission's switch in policy was made possible by a switch in voting by Branch Lily of Norwood, a dairy farmer who was appointed to the commission last year by Gov. Jim Holshouser. Lily voted with the majority in October to change the policy.

Holshouser has echoed Horton in calling for repeal of the ban on loss leaders. Led by Horton, the commission has called for repeal of the law.

In other action, the commission voted to use a formula made up of various economic indices as a guide in setting the prices to be paid farmers for milk.

The commission voted unanimously to approve the formula, prepared by a Milk Formula Study Committee headed by consumer advocate Lillian Woo who is a member of the milk commission.

During discussion of the formula it was pointed out the attorney general has ruled that the commission may not use a formula to automatically set the price to be paid farmers for milk. On motion of Mrs. Woo, the commission agreed to use the formula only as a guide in setting the price paid farmers. "It may be the most significant step forward this commission has taken in years," said Horton after the vote.

The formula takes into consideration, the price of dairy feed, other costs paid by farmers, retail and wholesale price indices, average weekly factory earnings in North Carolina plus milk prices in adjoining states.

Under the policy adopted last October for enforcing the ban on loss leaders, the commission staff referred all alleged violators to the milk commission. The commission then authorized the staff to write warning letters to the alleged violators. For those that did not comply immediately, the commission would authorize the staff to write second warning letters before resorting to court action.

Under the old policy which the commission returned to Tuesday, the commission staff would refer cases of alleged violators to the commission attorney who wrote letters warning that court action would be initiated if the alleged violations were not halted.

Horton argued that the policy approved in October was working and that it has resulted in five of six alleged violators in the Greensboro area mending their ways.

But Hawthorne argued that it gave violators "an opportunity to do what they want to do for 30, 60 or 90 days."

"They don't have to do a thing until after the next commission meeting," he added.

Horton said the old policy amounted "assuming someone is guilty before he has had a hearing."

"I don't really think that you, Mrs. Woo, or Mr. (Martin) Pannell want to enforce this law," Hawthorne told Horton during their at times heated discussion.

"I think my dislike of the law is well known, but I'll enforce it," replied Horton. He argued that the loss leader law enables supermarkets with their own house brands to "undersell our own North Carolina milk."

Arrested For Check Forgery

Linda Turner, 17, of Jarvis' Trailer Park in Winterville has been arrested by the Pitt Sheriff's Department and charged with forgery and altering of a check.

Miss Turner, it was reported by Sheriff Ralph Tyson, is charged with changing the amount of a check written to her from $19.59 to $259.59 and cashing the check at The Little Mint here.

Sheriff Tyson said that bond for Miss Turner was set at $500 with a hearing set for Jan. 27 in District Court here.

Charge Driver In Car Mishap

James Ruble Bland of Route 1, Winterville was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 4:10 p.m. mishap here yesterday on Third Street, 90 feet East of the Memorial Drive intersection.

Officers said the car driven by Bland collided with an auto operated by Rae Tilley Bartlett of 2802 Crocket Dr., causing an estimated $600 damage to the Bland car and $800 damage to the Bartlett vehicle.

Gordon Liddy To Danbury Prison

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Convicted Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy is headed for the Federal Correctional Institution here.

A spokesman for the federal Bureau of Prisons said Tuesday that Liddy has been told to report here no later than 2 p.m. Jan. 22. The announcement followed the U.S. Supreme Court's refusal Monday to allow Liddy to remain free on bail pending appeal.

Jaycee Week Is Proclaimed For Jan. 19-25

Mayor Eugene West, in proclaiming the week of Jan. 19-25 as Jaycee Week in Greenville, urged "all citizens of our community to give full regard to the past services of the Greenville Jaycees."

West pointed out that the "civic bodies and service organizations of our community and the departments of local government recognize the great service rendered to this community by the Greenville Jaycees."

The U.S. Jaycees and its affiliated state and local organizations have set aside the period to observe the founding of the Jaycees and to commemorate the founding by the selection of an outstanding young man in the community as the recipient of the Distinguished Service Award, it was noted.

The proclamation asserts that "this organization of young men has contributed materially to the betterment of this community throughout the year."

Legislators In The Dark

RALEIGH (AP) — The 1975 session of the North Carolina General Assembly opened today with many members of the state House wondering where their offices would be and what committees they would serve on.

Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt planned to announce the chairmen and members of each of the Senate's committees later today. But in the House, the process is still in motion.

Speaker James C. Green, D-Bladen, said Tuesday that he would announce a few committee chairmen each day, starting with the Rules Committee and a special Economic Committee.

Green said he had tentatively made up his own mind about most of the other committee posts. But his decisions on several key committee assignments were a guarded secret Tuesday.

A number of early arrivals for the session sat idly in temporary offices or stood in the halls near Green's office, waiting for some word about their assignments. Among those in the dark were several of Green's key supporters in his successful campaign for the Speaker's chair.

Legislative sources were able to disclose — although they did not wish to be quoted — several choice assignments.

Rep. John Stevens, D-Buncombe, will be chairman of the Rules Committee and serve as assistant majority leader under Green's designee for majority leader, Rep. Kitchin Josey, D-Halifax.

Last session's majority leader, Rep. William Watkins, D-Granville, will chair one of the two judiciary committees, ending speculation that he might assume control of the powerful Appropriations Committee.

Rep. Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, will continue as chairman of the Finance Committee, a post he held in 1973-74. His committee controls tax legislation.

That left unanswered the question of who will chair what is perhaps the most powerful committee in the legislature, the House Appropriations Committee. It shapes the state budget.

One hopeful was Rep. Claude DeBruhl, D-Buncombe. Another being mentioned Tuesday was Rep. Jimmy Love, D-Lee.

One source said Green was considering splitting the Appropriations Committee into two groups, one to consider new appropriations requests and a second to examine the base budget, or requests for existing programs.

In the Senate, sources said Hunt would not change the chairmen of either of the two monetary committees in the upper chamber. They are Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson and Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance.

Kirby is a former law partner of Hunt's. Scott is a legislative veteran who worked amicably with Hunt in 1973-74.

OK Special Use Permits

AYDEN—The Ayden Board of Commissioners Monday night approved the issuance of two special use permits for the installation of unattended self-service gasoline stations in Ayden.

The requests came from Bobby Jones of Ayden Sport Shop and Bobby Johnson of Midway Oil Company.

A board of trustees for the Ayden Library was appointed. Members included Robbie Roberson, Josephine Reaves, Leolia Dixon, Mrs. Billy Stokes, J. L. Wilson and Glenn Taylor. Commissioner Robert Harris was named to serve on the board but will have no voting powers.

Ayden Mayor Ross Persinger was appointed to the Mid East Commission as the town's government representative.

Bob's TV and Appliance was given a parking space in front of the Norman Dail building to be used for loading and unloading of merchandise.

Work Displayed By Art Student

Constance Adams, senior student in the East Carolina University School of Art, is displaying examples of her work this week in the gallery of the Baptist Student Union on Tenth St.

Included in the display are presentations of art education processes and techniques; interior design floorplans, elevations, and perspectives, both residential and commercial; and furniture designs.

A candidate for the B. S. degree in art education, Miss Adams is pursuing a minor in interior design. She is currently an intern teacher in Beaufort.

Her plans include teaching, and possibly a return to art studies on the graduate level.

Shaken By State Govm't Buildings Utility Costs

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Reddy Kilowatt dealt a $281,000 shock to the state of North Carolina the last six months of 1974. That's how much the electrical bill for the government buildings in Raleigh increased in comparison to the same period of 1973.

"It's causing us some real budgetary problems," said Jimmy Morris, controller for the state Department of Administration. "I've requested funds from the state budget office to take care of the increased bills."

Morris said the bills from Carolina Power & Light Co. for the state buildings, Executive Mansion and parking lots totaled $666,259.66 for the last half of 1974 compared to $384,811.02 for the same period of 1973.

Although some additional office space and one or two buildings were added to the government complex over the year, most of the increase resulted from CP&L's boost in rates, Morris said.

"It's difficult to cut back in general power usage," he added.

The governor's mansion, where much entertaining is done and visitors pass through the doors daily, had an electrical bill totaling $5,135.49 for the last half of 1974. This was an increase of $1,688.57 over the same period a year earlier. The mansion is heated by steam from the state's central heating plant.

"We try to conserve as much as possible," said Ruth Atkinson, mansion director. "We turn out all the lights that we possibly can, but we have to keep some burning for security reasons. These include about 25 outside lights at night."

The 42-room mansion has a large staff and many appliances, including two washing machines, two dryers, a commercial type dishwasher, five freezers and a walk-in cooler in the basement and one freezer and four refrigerators in the spacious kitchen.

Mrs. Atkinson said a lot of ironing is done daily at the mansion. The colorful chandeliers, which contain many small bulbs, are lighted daily from 10 a. m. to noon for the benefit of visitors.

Broken down, the bill for the government office buildings amounted to $379,276.10 for the last six months of 1973, compared to $656,910.43 for the corresponding period in 1974. The bill for the parking lots during the last half of 1973 totaled $2,088, compared to $2,213.74 for the same period in 1974.

Cites Court Reform Need

GASTONIA, N. C. (AP) — Rep. Carl Stewart of Gastonia says the North Carolina General Assembly should strip the governor of his power to commute death sentences.

In a luncheon address to the Gaston Ministerial Association, the House member said Tuesday he plans to push an 11-point court reform package when the legislature convenes.

Stewart said his package will include bills to reduce juries to as few as six members, and allow a two-thirds majority to return a verdict in a non-capital case.

"I hear all the time from attorneys that our judicial system is not perfect but that it is the best ever devised. Hogwash! That is blind devotion to a system created 200 years ago and that system is in trouble," said Stewart.

Stewart, an attorney himself, added, "The entire system of justice in this country, federal and state, needs to be shaken by the scruff of its neck."

Nine of his proposals would apply statewide and several would require constitutional amendments.

$100,000 Gift For N.C. Zoo

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP)—The Jefferson-Pilot Corp. of Greensboro has approved a $100,000 donation for the N.C. Zoological Park, according to William R. Henderson, chairman of the zoo fund drive.

Henderson said additional proposals for gifts from other large industrial firms were still under consideration.

The Smith Reynolds Foundation has approved a $1 million grant toward construction of the 1,300-acre natural habitat zoo, provided an additional $4 million is raised from other public sources before December 1975. Contributions to the fund drive, launched last November, have been lagging.

Hope To Be Grand Marshal

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope, who was grand marshal of the Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival 26 years ago, will repeat the role May 3.

"You certainly waited long enough to ask me back," Hope said in a letter accepting the position.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets were unchanged Tuesday. Supplies were barely adequate and demand good.

Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs delivered in cartons to nearby outlets: grade A large whites 67.78, medium whites 63.70, small whites 58.43.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—Corn and soybeans were weaker on the state's leading grain markets Tuesday. No. 2 yellow shelled corn was quoted at 3.28 to 3.30 in the Eastern part of the state; and 3.20 to 3.42 in the Piedmont. No. 1 yellow soybeans were 6.46 to 6.52 per bushel. Milo 5.00 to 5.60 per hundred pounds.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market backed down again today amid uneasiness on Wall Street over the complex potential effects of the Ford administration's new economic and energy plans.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off about a point, and losers took a 5-3 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

The primary concern among investors appeared to be that increased energy taxes as set forth by President Ford would rekindle inflation.

Ironically, that worry was raised just as government figures were turning up signs of a possible cooling off of the price spiral.

The Labor Department reported this morning that wholesale prices actually declined in December—the first time that had happened since the autumn of 1973.

Early Big Board volume leaders included Sherwin-Williams, up 1/4 at 36 1/4; MGIC Investment, down 1/4 at 9; British Petroleum, unchanged at 5 1/4, and Lone Star Industries, 1/4 lower at 11.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 5.48 to 648.70.

Losers outdistanced gainers by about a 4-3 margin in turnover of 16.61 million shares on the Big Board.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was off .32 at 38.12.

The American Stock Exchange market value index sank .27 to 67.23.

Rev. James Horton Is Man-Of-Year Winner

WILLIAMSTON—The Rev. James (Jim) Horton, rector of the Church of the Advent in Williamston, on Tuesday night received the Jaycee Man of the Year award.

In the annual award ceremony, Horton was presented the award by Dave Fulghum, the 1974 Man of the Year. Horton, a native of Powson, Md., is a graduate of Washington and Lee University and the Virginia Theological Seminary. Prior to coming to Williamston, he was assistant minister for four years at the Christ Episcopal Church in New Bern. He is married to the former Lucy Duncan of Hopedale, Va.

He is active in the United Fund campaign in Martin County, is a member of the Rotary Club and is also active in other civic affairs in Williamston.

Guest speaker on the occasion was Fred G. Morrison, Jr., Executive Director of the Inmate Grievance Commission in Raleigh.

Morrison spoke on the need for rehabilitation projects, criticizing current conditions where habitual drunkards and drug users were placed in jail along with persons convicted of more serious crimes.

"According to figures recently given to me," Morrison said, "we had the following admissions to our State prison system in 1973 for misdemeanor crimes: 423 habitual drunkenness, 24 public drunkenness and 843 drug possession, users, not pushers."

Morrison is advocating alternatives to prison for such persons, including community detention and treatment centers; special wards in public hospitals; requiring such persons to participate in rehabilitation programs; and a program where some offenders would work in the community by day and spend nights and weekends in facilities.

President Ford . . .

appropriate consultation with architects, builders and labor."

Esponsing a new tax credit of up to $150 for homeowners who install storm windows or other insulation, Ford called for a new federal aid program "to help low-income families purchase insulation supplies." The fact sheet said he would seek supplemental appropriations of $500 million to carry such a program through 1976.

As he stated on Monday, Ford proposed modifying and deferring auto pollution standards for five years "to enable us to improve new automobile gas mileage 40 per cent by 1980" through voluntary means.

The President reiterated his proposal to increase all crude oil prices by imposing a $2-a-barrel excise tax and import fees with the aim of discouraging consumption.

This would be accompanied by deregulation of new natural gas prices and enactment of a natural gas excise tax of 37 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, enactment of a windfall profits tax on oil producers and de-control of the price of domestic crude oil on April 1.

All these steps except decontrol of crude prices require congressional consideration.

"The sooner Congress acts," Ford said, "the more effective the oil conservation program will be and the quicker federal revenues can be returned to our people."

Ford added that he was prepared to "use presidential authority to limit imports as necessary to assure the success of this program."

Ford said he considered and rejected rationing and higher gasoline taxes as alternatives, but the fact sheet stated he will seek, for use in a possible emergency, stand-by authority to ration fuels.

Collectors Club Seats Officers

Officers of the Greenville Collectors Club were installed Monday night during a meeting held at the home of Mickey and Martha Elmore.

Francis Belcik is the new president. Other officers are: Mickey Elmore, vice president; David Pruette, treasurer; and Martha Elmore, secretary.

Plans were made for a trip Jan. 26 to the flea market in Raleigh.

The program was on antique items pertaining to music. The theme for the February meeting will be antique Valentines.

All interested collectors are invited to attend the meetings and may contact any member for information.

Frazier Leads East To Upset Win

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer
PHOENIX (AP) — Walt "Clyde" Frazier, the New York Knicks' imperturbable guard, came out the biggest winner in the 25th National Basketball Association All-Star Game.

Not only did he receive the game's Most Valuable Player award for scoring 30 points and leading the East to a 108-102 upset victory over the West Tuesday night, but he collected $500.25 ... 25 cents more than any other member of the winning team.

The extra quarter was the result of a "fun bet" Frazier had made prior to the game with the East's 12-year-old ballboy.

The youngster thought the West was going to win and he put up his money against Frazier's. And after the game Frazier was just as willing to take it, after some friendly razzing with the youngster.

This was the second of Frazier's two consecutive brilliant games at Veteran's Memorial Coliseum, where a record crowd of 12,885 turned out for the glittering, nationally televised All-Star Game.

Only last Saturday, in the Knicks' final game prior to the All-Star break, Frazier connected for 43 points — one short of his career high — against the Phoenix Suns.

The 30 points against the West, on 10-of-17 shooting from the floor and 10 of 11 from the free throw line, earned him his first MVP honor in his sixth consecutive All-Star start.

Frazier has played on two championship New York teams, in 1970 and 1973.

In the MVP balloting, he received 48½ points, one voter splitting his choice between Frazier and Kansas City-Omaha's Nate Archibald, the West's leading scorer with 27 points. Archibald wound up with 1½ votes and his West teammates Rick Barry of Golden State and Sidney Wicks of Portland had one each.

Barry scored 22 points and had game-high figures of eight steals and eight assists while Wicks, playing more than expected because starter Spencer Haywood was suffering from the flu and was forced to the sidelines early in the third quarter, finished with 16 points.

In addition to the play of Frazier and Boston's John Havlicek, who chipped in with 16 points, the East's ability to contain the West's big men was a major factor in its 16th victory against nine losses in the series.

The West's three centers — 7-foot-3½ Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, 6-11 Bob Lanier and 6-10 Sam Lacey — combined for only 15 points. Lanier, the MVP in last year's 134-123 victory at Seattle, where he scored 24 points, managed only two this time.

Each member of the losing West received $300.

Prior to the game, NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy announced the league would continue with its present line-up of 18 teams for next season instead of expanding to Toronto, as had been planned.

He said, however, the NBA's Board of Governors had decided that when expansion next occurs, Toronto will be the first team admitted.

Ayden-Grifton Tops Firebirds

SPRING HOPE—Ayden-Grifton's Chargers took two of three games from Southern Nash last night. The Chargers won both of the varsity games, taking the boys', 65-56, and the girls' by 37-29.

Southern's only victory came in the junior varsity contest, 83-43.

In the opening varsity game, Ayden-Grifton's girls pulled out into a 10-4 lead. The Firebirds came back, however, with an 11-4 margin in the second frame, and took a 15-14 halftime edge.

Southern held off Ayden-Grifton in the third period, 10-9, to up their lead to 25-23. But in the final period, the Chargerettes came roaring back with a 14-4 scoring advantage, and that carried them to the victory.

Audrey McCarter led the Ayden-Grifton win with 19 points.

Ayden-Grifton edged out into the lead in the boys' game after the first period of play, 17-13. But like the girls' game, the Firebirds came back with a strong second frame, 15-7, and pushed into the lead at the end of the first half, 28-24.

Unlike the girls' game, Ayden-Grifton didn't wait until the final period to regain command. They outthrew the Firebirds, 17-11, and led, 41-39, as the last period opened. The Chargers outthrew Southern, 25-17, in that period to wrap up the game.

Willie Williams led Ayden-Grifton with 19 points, while Willie Forbes added 17 and Bennie King picked up 12. Robert Smith had 17 and William Bridges hit 14 for Southern Nash.

Ayden-Grifton plays host to North Pitt on Friday.

Farmville Central Is Back In Tie For 1st

FARMVILLE—Farmville Central broke its long dry spell last night but the Jaguars had to use an extra period to end their losing string as they beat the Warriors of Eastern Wayne, 63-61, in an Eastern Carolina Conference game.

The Farmville Central jayvees and girls won their games. The J.V.'s won the opener with a 69-57 rout of the Papooses while the Lady Jaguars edged the Squaws, 45-38. The lady Jags moved back into a tie for first as North Pitt beat Southern Wayne (See story elsewhere).

Eastern Wayne slipped in front by a point in the first quarter of the girls' game but fell behind in the second quarter as the Lady Jaguars moved in front taking the period, 12-7.

Eastern Wayne battled back in the third period cutting the margin from the halftime total of 22-18 down to a point's difference, 30-29, at the end of the third quarter. But in the last period, the Farmville Central girls scored 15 points while the Squaws got only nine to put the game out of reach.

Mary Herlihy led the Squaws with 13 and Sandra Johnson had 11. Kathy Suggs led the Lady Jaguars with 13.

The boys' game was tied up, 57-57, when regulation time ran out forcing the extra period. The Jaguars, who have been falling behind most of the time in the early going turned things around and took a 15-10 lead in the opening frame. The Warriors bounced back with a 19-point second quarter to tie the game, 29-29 at halftime.

The Jaguars had inched back in front after the third quarter by one, 41-40, but Eastern Wayne made up that point in the fourth period, 17-16. The Jags had a chance to win the game as Mike Corbett took a last second shot but it did not fall through.

The Jaguars outscored the Warriors, 6-4, in the overtime with two free throws by Danny Nobles making the difference. Keith Naylor hit a shot at the buzzer for the Warriors that made the final gap two points.

Charles McAdoo led the Warriors with 16 and Naylor had 12. Corbett led the Jaguars with 18. Jeff Fields had 17 and Walter Gorham pumped in a season high 14 points.

Durham Rips Pitt Technical

WINTERVILLE—Durham College romped to a 126-79 victory over Pitt Technical Institute last night.

And that was an improvement over the last time the two teams met. At that time, Durham rolled to a 148-55 win—a 91-point margin of victory.

Durham pushed through the first four points of the game for a 4-0 lead, but Pitt Tech closed the gap to 6-5. That was as close as they could get however. Durham began to pull away, and midway through the half, they pushed out by as much as 17. Pitt cut it back, however, and trailed, 51-41, at the end of the half.

In the second half, however, there was no stopping Durham, as they blistered the nets for 75 points, while allowing the Paladins only 38, as they romped away to the victory.

C. Parker led Durham with 25 points, while J. Avery had 22. W. Poythress added 19, while S. Durham had 16. L. Saunders, 12; R. Goodman, 11; and E. Simpson, 10. Pitt Tech was led by Larry Banks with 26, while James Phillips had 16 and Doug Tyson had 14.

The loss dropped the Paladins to 2-7 overall, and 1-4 with conference opposition.

Pitt Tech will play host to Mt. Olive Junior College on Monday.

Bucs Host Mounties

Family Night will be observed tonight at the East Carolina Appalachian State basketball game at Minges Coliseum.

A family of four will be admitted to the game for $4, with each additional family member being admitted for $1.

All-Conference awards for baseball and football will be awarded at the game, along with the annual presentation of football superlatives. Special awards are slated to be made to former Pirate standouts Carlester Crumpler and Carl Summerell.

Presbyterian In The Lead

Presbyterian moved into the lead in the Church Basketball League last night, as Immanuel Baptist suffered its first loss of the year.

The loss came in the first game of the night, with Jarvis nipping Immanuel, 50-49. Jarvis opened a slim 21-18 halftime lead, then held off Immanuel's rally, 31-29, to take the victory. Jarvis was led by Buddy Turnage with 20, and Bill Kuykendall. Drew Rumbley led Immanuel with 14, while Cliff McNeil had 13.

St. James downed Oakmont, 60-49, in the second game. St. James held a slim 33-32 lead at the half, but outscored Oakmont, 27-27, in the second half. Chuck Mohn led St. James with 28, while Mike Board had 12. Bob Lamm had 18 and Bobby Hall had 12 for Oakmont.

In the final game, Presbyterian romped to an 86-41 win over Trinity. Presbyterian held a 38-19 halftime lead, and outthrew Trinity, 48-22 in the second stanza. Richard Holland led Presbyterian with 32, while Mike Aldridge had 14 and Jack Wall had 12. Trinity was led by Mike Whitefield with 11 and Donnie Bowen with 10.

Terpettes Go Big Time; Will Make National TV Appearance

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer
COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Maryland's fifth-ranked basketball team will be joined by a separate but equal partner this month on national television.

The Terps, currently ranked No. 5, have performed on national TV eight times in the past three years under Coach Lefty Driesell. But on Sunday, Jan. 26, the women's team at the university goes public.

The opponent will be Immaculata, the Mighty Macs from the suburbs of Philadelphia who have won three consecutive national championships and show a 74-4 record for the past four seasons.

"There's no way we would have played this game two years ago," said Coach Dottie McKnight of Maryland. "We would have made fools of ourselves."

But the Terpettes, or whatever they're called, have come a long way since then. They've taken on Immaculata the past two years, and played before crowds of 5,000 or more.

Still, Miss McKnight is wary of what effect the television cameras and an expected large turnout in Cole Field House might have on her players.

"I've already told them the pressure will get worse," she said, "so that the best thing to do is to accept it, and forget it."

Miss McKnight, the coordinator of women's athletics at Maryland, is starting her 11th season as coach.

"When I came here," she said at a news conference Tuesday, "women's basketball was called an 'interest group.' The first thing I did was to have it called a team."

Senior guard Monica Rogers recalled that when she started as a freshman, the university supplied only the kilts or skirts, and "we wore our own tops, shoes and socks."

But with eight women's sports now supported by the Athletic Department directed by Jim Kehoe, new uniforms will be worn when the season opens against Bridgewater on Jan. 22. And, they include shorts, not skirts.

Playing 20-minute halves this year instead of eight-minute quarters, the women have paid more attention to their pre-season conditioning.

"We used to shoot all our foul shots, and that provided some rest," Miss McKnight said. "But this year, just like the men, we'll shoot one-shot fouls only in bonus situations."

The women, as in the past, will again play with a 30-second clock, but the coach said not many teams are called for failing to shoot in the required time.

Sounding like Driesell, or any other coach, Miss McKnight said Maryland would worry about Bridgewater before looking ahead to Immaculata, because "we have to take them one at a time."

She changed one thing, however, when it came to describing Maryland's defense. For the women, it's a player-toplayer defense, not man-toman.

Taken aback when a male reporter asked if he'd have visiting rights in the locker room, Miss McKnight recovered and replied: "If you have a press pass, I guess. I'm not used to handling the press at our games."

Two Southern Teams Outside

By The Associated Press
East Carolina's Pirates, whose seven-game winning streak was halted last Saturday night in the finals of the Connecticut Classic, shoot for the Southern Conference basketball title tonight.

The Pirates, tied with William and Mary's Indians for first place at 2-0 in league play, entertain Appalachian State's Mountaineers, who have dropped all three of their conference starts.

East Carolina carries a 7-4 over-all record into the game

By MIKE O'BRIEN
AP Sports Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP) — He kicked a chair. He cajoled his players. He pleaded with the officials. And he had the Milwaukee Arena capacity crowd of 10,938 in an uproar.

But all Coach Al McGuire really had to do was tell his other Marquette University basketball players to feed Bo Ellis.

Ellis poured in 14 of his 21 points in the second half, most of them at crucial junctures, to lead the 12th-ranked Warriors to a 69-60 victory over No. 20 South Carolina Tuesday night and give Al the rubber match in the running battle of the McGuires.

"No, Al didn't show us anything we hadn't seen before. He just has another good team, a very quick one with very good balance and a good bench," said South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire, who coached Al at St. John's, N.Y., University a quarter century ago.

Al McGuire, while no longer a kid, was sufficiently charged by coaching against his former tutor that he leaped to his feet, whirled and kicked his chair. It happened midway through the first half, when the Gamecocks were encroaching on what had been an eight point Marquette lead.

Marquette built its lead to 10 points two minutes before halftime, then saw it cut to 34-32 early in the second half. Ellis, however, countered with five straight points.

The Gamecocks responded with what proved to be their final threat, closing to within 49-48 behind the outside shooting of Nate Davis and the inside work of 6-foot-9 Tommy Boswell.

But Warriors Earl Tatum,

Lloyd Walton and freshman Butch Lee hit successive baskets. A layup and two free throws by Lee, who scored 14 points, made it 61-52 with 5:08 left. Marquette protected its lead by running delay patterns and sinking free throws.

The Marquette-South Carolina game was the highlight of a light college basketball night. No other ranked teams were in action.

Elsewhere, Duquesne beat St. Bonaventure 96-91; North Texas State defeated Bradley 69-64; Princeton whipped Temple 59-48; St. John's, N.Y., downed Rhode Island 100-75; Bucknell ripped Cornell 78-63; the Air Force Academy stopped Southern Colorado State 51-43 and Memphis State routed Buffalo State 138-92. Harvard beat Northeastern 80-67 and Boston College whipped Boston University 86-78 in the first round of the Beanpot Tournament.

Kip McLane poured in 20 points to lead Duquesne to a fast-paced victory over St. Bonaventure. Duquesne, 7-3, led for most of the early going but was overhauled by the Bonnies with 12 minutes to play. St. Bonaventure went ahead on a shot by Greg Sanders, but the Dukes regained the lead for good, 71-70, at the 10:38 mark with a Jesse Hubbard basket.

Terry Bailey and Larry Spruiell led a second-half surge that carried North Texas State University over Bradley. It was Bailey who sank the last two free throws with 31 seconds left in the game that put the victory away for the Mean Green.

Mickey Steuerer and Barnes Hauptfuhrer hit short jumpers early and often as Princeton sank 11 of its first 15 shots and went on to an easy victory over Temple.

Aycock In Two Wins

WILSON—E.B. Aycock Junior High School split a pair of games with Wilson Junior High School yesterday. The Phantoms took the varsity game, 61-29, while the junior varsity suffered a 25-24 setback.

In the varsity game, Aycock shot away to a 21-6 lead after one period of play. They outthrew Wilson, 16-10, in the second quarter, taking a 37-16 lead into the dressing room. Aycock came back with an 11-7 margin in the third period, upping the lead to 48-23. They finished it up with a 13-6 final period for the win.

Greg Guthrie led Aycock with 14 points, while Lorenzo Owens had 12 and Calvin Williams had 10.

In the JV game, Wilson took a 6-2 lead after the third period, but was unable to take the victory as Wilson continued to match them the rest of the way.

Curtis Little led the Phantoms with 10 points, while John Taylor had 11 for Wilson.

Aycock will play host to Rocky Mount on Friday.

Deacons Test North Carolina

By The Associated Press
Wake Forest, which has its best basketball team in more than a decade, broke one long dry spell when it beat Virginia last Wednesday, the first time it had done so since 1971. Tonight it faces a similar situation, meeting North Carolina, a team it has not beaten at home in Winston-Salem in the last four years.

However, the Deacons will have to put on a better performance than they did in last Saturday's 89-73 loss at Maryland. They led 47-42 before going scoreless for eight minutes and 10 seconds while the Terrapins scored 18 points.

"Beating North Carolina would certainly be an undeniable mark in the growth of our program," says Wake Forest coach Bill Tacy. "Our only victory over them (in Tacy's three years as head coach) in the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament two years ago) has been described as a miracle by many people. I hope we are at a point now where no miracles are required."

Wake Forest is 1-2 in the ACC and 8-4 in all games. North Carolina, ranked 14th nationally, is 1-0 and 7-3. "Wake Forest has proven it's an outstanding team," says the North Carolina coach, Dean Smith. "I think it is capable of being their best team since the Len Chappel days (early '60s) when they finished in the nation's final four."

The game will be one of three tonight for ACC teams. In the others, Clemson will be at Duke and Virginia will be home to Penn State.

ACC teams were idle Tuesday night.

The Duke Blue Devils, 7-3 and playing well in the big games, will be hard pressed by Clemson, a team that had North Carolina on the ropes last week. Then Duke travels to Virginia to play Saturday night against a team it hasn't beaten in Charlottesville since 1972.

Duke, under new coach Bill Foster, has raised its scoring average to 85.4, a 10-point increase over last season. Much of the increase has come in the last six games.

Clemson is 6-6 and Virginia 5-5.

The games tonight will set the stage for the important North Carolina State at Maryland game which will be regionally televised Thursday night, and the North Carolina at N.C. State game Saturday afternoon, which will be televised nationally. N.C. State is 10-1 and No. 4 nationally; Maryland is 11-1 and No. 5.

On Saturday night, Duke will be at Virginia, Wake Forest at Clemson, and Maryland will play Navy at Baltimore. ACC teams will be idle Friday.

Bear Grass In Pair Of Wins

BEAR GRASS—Bear Grass High School swept a pair of games from Oak City last night, taking the varsity game, 45-39, and squeaking past 33-32, in the girls.

Oak City started a rally in the second frame, outthitting the Lady Bears, 8-5. That cut their lead to 17-16 at the half.

Bear Grass outthit the Trojanettes, 9-6, in the third frame, to inch out to a 26-22 lead as the final game got underway. Oak City again rallied, but two free throws by Kay Ralws in the final seconds of play put it out of reach, 33-30. One final field goal with two seconds left closed the gap to the final one-point spread.

In the boys' game, Oak City jumped off to a 15-12 lead in the opening quarter. Bear Grass came back with a 9-6 margin in the second frame, leaving it tied at 21-21 at halftime.

Elmhurst Gets Two

Elmhurst II and Elmhurst I both picked up victories in the Elementary Basketball League yesterday.

Elmhurst II downed Wahl-Coates, 27-22, in the varsity game. Scott Johnson led the victory with 14 points, while Dennis West had 12 for Wahl-Coates. Elmhurst also took the junior varsity contest, 19-16.

Elmhurst I beat Eastern in the varsity contest, 12-9, as both teams had trouble finding the basket. James Brewington had all 12 points for Elmhurst. Elmhurst also took the JV game, 17-12.

MACON, Ga. (AP) — Head basketball Coach Joe Dan Gold has resigned his position at Mercer University and has been replaced by his assistant, Bill Bibb, according to athletic director John Mitchell.

Gold, 32, said he was giving up the position to "pursue a business opportunity that has developed for me."

The Bears pulled away in the third period, outscoring the Trojans, 10-4, to move into a 31-25 lead. Both teams pushed through 14 points in the final period.

Randy Stokes led Bear Grass with 19, while Vernell Rodgers hit 10. None of the Trojans managed to break into double figures.

The Bears will host Bath on Friday, while Oak City's next outing will Tuesday, as they entertain Pantego.

Leaders Post Wins

Greenville Utilities and Union Carbide, the individual division leaders in the Industrial Basketball League, both came away with their fifth straight victories last night.

In the opening game, Vermont American took a 68-60 victory over Proctor & Gamble. Union Carbide took a 61-45 win in the second game, while Greenville Utilities finished up the evening with a 49-47 win over Grady White.

Moses Joyner led Vermont-American with 33 points, while Eddie Chance added 28. Eaton was paced by William Rouse with 17, while Tony Rouse hit 14. Garland Warren led Union Carbide with 19, with Tommy Roach adding 16, Marvin Hardy hitting 14 and Jimmy Sutton, 10. Grady-White was led by C. Ball with 16, while F. Brown had 13. GUCo was paced by Alton Harrison with 13, with Ted Gray hitting 11 and Thomas Mullens getting 10.

Denver Posts 23rd In Row

DENVER (AP) — A series of nagging injuries failed to prevent the Denver Nuggets from posting their 23rd straight American Basketball Association victory at home Tuesday night.

The streaking Nuggets, playing without veteran guard Mack Calvin, got standout performances from a pair of youngsters in rolling over the Kentucky Colonels 118-99.

The victory, before a record home crowd of 7,428, gave Denver a 36-6 mark and a commanding 12½-game lead over runner-up San Antonio in the Western Division of the ABA.

No other ABA teams were in action Tuesday night. On Wednesday night, Denver travels to San Diego, Kentucky plays Virginia in Norfolk, St. Louis is at Memphis, New York at Indiana and Utah at San Antonio.

Second-year pro Mike Green tossed in 27 points and rookie Jan van Breda Kolff added a career-high 19 for Denver, which hasn't lost on its home floor all season.

Green, a doubtful starter because of an ankle injury, led both teams in scoring despite playing only 30 minutes.

Calvin, missing from the Denver line-up since Jan. 3 with an injured finger, and reserve Pat McFarland, who has a twisted ankle, did not see action against the Colonels. Byron Beck was hampered by a swollen eye, but still scored 13 points.

Van Breda Kolff, son of New Orleans Jazz Coach Bill van Breda Kolff, had his best night as a pro on both ends of the court.

He scored 11 of his points in the first quarter as Denver spurred to a 29-14 lead late in the period.

"Ever since I've been a pro," the 6-foot-8 rookie from Vanderbilt said, "I've been trying to put everything together — offense, defense, passing. Tonight I felt I accomplished that."

Nuggets' Coach Larry Brown said it was obvious that van Breda Kolff "was doing what we expect of him."

Soviet Union Kills Major U.S. Trade Agreement

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has killed a major trade agreement with the United States and has nullified any understandings to relax restrictions on the emigration of Russian Jews, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger says.

In a hurriedly arranged news conference, Kissinger said Tuesday night that "the Soviet government has now informed us that it cannot accept a trading relationship based on the legislation recently enacted in this country."

The Pentagon also disclosed Tuesday that the Soviet Union had begun installing missiles with multiple warheads. The recent U.S.-Soviet arms pact permits such a step.

Kissinger's mention of legislation referred to the new Trade Bill and Export-Import Bank extension act with their restrictions on credits for Moscow and refusal of equal trading arrangements unless Jews are allowed to leave Russia in greater numbers.

As Kissinger explained, "The Soviet government states that it does not intend to accept a trade status that is discriminatory and subject to political conditions."

Wilbur Mills Is Sworn In While At Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills has been sworn into the 94th Congress at Bethesda Naval Hospital, where he has been confined since Dec. 3.

A Navy spokesman said the Arkansas Democrat, former chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, was sworn in Tuesday by Rep. Joe D. Waggoner Jr., D-La., one of Mills' closest friends in Congress.

Earlier in the day, the House passed a special resolution permitting the ceremony to take place outside of the House chamber.

Mills entered the hospital several days after a trip to Boston, where he appeared on stage with stripper Fanne Foxe.

of his statement to members of Congress, there was no immediate Capitol Hill reaction.

A spokesman for Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the main supporter of the restrictive legislation, said no comment would be forthcoming until a complete study was done on the situation.

The chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major Jewish Organizations, Rabbi Israel Miller, said Tuesday the emigration issue was more than a simple domestic Russian question.

"Emigration is not an internal issue and human rights do not stop at national frontiers," he said, adding that his group will continue its pressure for better treatment of Russian Jews.

In Los Angeles, a spokesman for the Occidental Petroleum Corp. said that its contracts with the Soviets remain in force despite nullification of the trade agreements. Company officials have put the value of the contracts at up to $20 billion.

The Soviet renunciation was of a 1972 agreement in which Moscow said it would pay $722 million to settle its World War II Lend-Lease debt in exchange for American pledges to remove discriminatory trade barriers against commerce with Russia.

When the administration attempted to implement the pledge by asking Congress to extend most favored nation status to Moscow in a new trade reform bill, Jackson attached his now famous amendment despite strenuous warnings by Kissinger that the Soviets would reject it.

Co-sponsored by more than 70 senators with an equally overwhelming majority favoring similar moves in the House, Jackson demanded that the status not be given to any country seriously restricting emigration of minority groups.

He finally compromised with Kissinger and President Ford, agreeing to allow the restrictions to be waived if Ford could give assurances that Soviet emigration restrictions had been eased.

Referring to the Soviet action, Kissinger said "the administration regrets this turn of events. It has regarded and continues to regard an orderly and mutually beneficial trade relationship with the Soviet Union as an important element in the over-all improvement of relations."

Kissinger said he would continue to try for an acceptable U.S.-Soviet trade bill and he refused to be pessimistic about the future of détente.

"We have no reason to believe that the rejection of the provisions of the trade bill has implications beyond" the specific objections raised by Moscow, Kissinger said.

Before the Jackson amendment became an issue, Jewish emigration rose from a trickle to a yearly rate in 1973 of 35,000. According to the Inter-governmental Committee on European Migration in Geneva, the total dropped off 45 per-

In other developments between the Soviets and the United States: —Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said the Soviets have begun deploying missiles capable of carrying multiple warheads which could be aimed at separate targets.

Schlesinger said there is evidence that the Soviets have placed their huge SS18 missiles in silos. The rocket has been tested with as many as eight multiple independently targetable warheads (MIRVs).

—The Defense Department estimates that a limited Soviet nuclear attack on U.S. nuclear weapons bases would kill 6.7 million Americans and injure another 5.1 million.

A massive attack on U.S. urban industrialized areas would kill an estimated 95 million to 100 million, according to information given to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last September by Schlesinger.

A declassified transcript of the testimony was released Tuesday.

Schlesinger told the panel: "I regard the likelihood of a nuclear war getting started between the United States and the Soviet Union as very low."

Tar Heel To Samoa Post

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Earl Ruth of Salisbury, a Republican defeated last fall after three terms as congressman from North Carolina's 8th District, reportedly has been appointed to the $45,000-a-year post as governor of American Samoa.

Such an appointment would be made directly by Rogers Morton, secretary of the Interior. The job does not require action by the White House, or confirmation by the Senate.

The Charlotte Observer said today that Ruth had been named.

He is a 58-year-old former basketball coach at Catawba College in Salisbury.

The Samoan governorship was one of several Interior Department appointive positions he had sought since he was defeated by Democrat Bill Hefner.

American Samoa is a small group of seven islands in the South Pacific that has been a United States possession since 1951. It has fewer than 30,000 inhabitants.

Says Judge 'Coerced'

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — A truckdriver accuses Superior Court Judge Harvey A. Lupton of coercing guilty pleas in drunk-driving cases in violation of a defendant's constitutional rights.

Stoney Lee Moore of Asheboro, a long-distance driver, filed suit against the Judge Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Greensboro. The judge is from Winston-Salem.

Moore said he was tried in Superior Court at Asheboro on a charge of driving while intoxicated, and was found guilty by a jury. He said Judge Lupton ordered suspension of his driving permit for one year, and refused to consider giving him a limited-driving privilege.

Moore alleged that before he entered his plea of innocent, Judge Lupton announced in court "that anyone who pleaded not guilty to a driving under the influence charge and was subsequently found guilty would not be given a limited-driving privilege."

Moore said such a policy "is predicated on intimidation, coercion and duress to bring forth a guilty plea" in violation of his constitutional and civil rights. He termed such a policy "most repugnant to the judicial process." He said it denies the legislative purpose and relief of a state statute that permits judges to consider giving limited-driving privileges to those who are convicted for the first time on drunk driving charges.

Pleasant place to chat: Moscow subway station, embellished with mural.

Whether you actually need to go anywhere is beside the point—the subway with its chandeliers and shining halls is a must in Moscow. It's one of the sights to see, ranking up there with Red Square, the Kremlin and the Bolshoi as one of the best shows in town. How can it miss? It's chockful of art, constant movement and variety and human interest. It is gratifyingly efficient and it costs under seven cents a go.

The subway's first seven miles and 13 stations were opened in 1935. Now it is just over 90 miles long and has 96 stations. The later style is more austere: the earlier stations are those most lavishly built, as ideological showpieces for the Communist regime, their use of marble, gold leaf, ornamental sculpture and mosaic tiles rivaling that of any Tsarist palace.

For all its splendor, Moscow's subway undeniably works. It carries about five million riders a day, the trains are frequent and regular. It is scrubbed nightly after its 1 a.m. closing by an army of cleaners—they even vacuum the tunnels.

One of five million daily riders...

Houston Is Bucking The City Trend

By JIM BARLOW
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Aided by a booming oil business and a state law which permits the city to annex suburbs freely, Houston is growing and prospering while many other cities in the nation face stagnation.

While the country struggles with a 7.1 per cent unemployment rate, the latest figures here show only 4.5 per cent of the city's work force is without jobs.

Alone among major cities, Houston continues to grow while other cities see the tax base eroded as the white, affluent middle class moves to the suburbs.

Fred Hofheinz, 33, the tall, wealthy and handsome lawyer who put together a coalition of labor, minorities and liberals a year ago to grab the mayor's job from the downtown establishment, says the city's present prosperity rests on a simple base — the oil industry and municipal expansion.

"About 35 per cent of the petrochemical production in the United States is produced on the Houston Ship Channel," said Hofheinz, whose speech reflects his doctorate in economics. "While the rest of the world suffers in a very real sense, the city of Houston benefits. We are headquarters for many of the international oil companies. We are fortunate that our basic industry is the international industry."

In the latest figures released in December by the Census Bureau, Houston's standard metropolitan area moved up from 14th place to 13th place while the city itself is generally thought to be the nation's fifth largest, 1 million.

The reason, says Hofheinz, is the state's annexation law that allows cities to annex up to 5 per cent of surrounding territory without a vote of either the city or those being annexed.

"The difference between Houston and Cleveland (which has had a declining population in recent years) is that we capture our suburbs," Hofheinz said. "White flight occurs in Houston as in other places," he said. "It is that we just go out and annex it. The final result is we have a far less rate of decline in our central city because we recapture the tax base."

Between 1968 and 1974, more than 150 companies moved corporate headquarters, subsidiaries, divisions and branch offices to Houston.

But Hofheinz says while these changes account for more jobs here, the real migration pattern shows unskilled and semiskilled persons from the farms and small towns of East Texas and Louisiana coming to Houston to find better jobs.

"The history of American growth is like a tiger chasing its tail," Hofheinz said. "We're still ahead of the game. The people are going to come here to look for jobs and right now those jobs are growing faster than the migration."

"If we stop our growth, we are not going to stop people from coming. All you are going to do is stop the jobs," he said.

Declassifying Documents Is Slow Process

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rumors still persist that the oldest classified document hidden in government files dates to the War of 1812 and that it details funds that Gen. George A. Custer spent on a mistress during the Civil War.

The Pentagon Papers controversy in 1971 produced a side debate over how much government material was classified, and why. It was discovered that newspaper clippings had been stamped secret, and exchanges between two admirals over their servants were classified.

Two years ago, the Nixon administration began cutting the number of officials authorized to classify documents by 63 per cent — to 17,800 persons today — and ordered a review of every document that has been classified for more than 30 years.

Contrary to the War of 1812 rumor, the Defense Department says the oldest secret documents date back to 1917. They describe intelligence-gathering methods and some name sources of some intelligence gathered since World War I. The Army, Navy and Air Force secretaries must decide whether to keep them secret.

The oldest document reviewed and ordered kept under wraps is the Army's 1937 plan for defending the Panama Canal. Although the Pentagon refused to say, it was suspected the document details some of the weaknesses in the canal that troops are supposed to protect.

As for Custer's alleged mistress, the National Archives says a woman named Annie Jones was accused of being a Confederate spy during the Civil War. She claimed to have slept with numerous Union officers, including Custer, but Custer denied it.

The Archives holds a letter from the attorney general of Massachusetts at the time asking the War Department to reimburse his state for expenses it incurred while holding Miss Jones on a federal charge. That presumably is the expense account on which popular rumor is based.

That document is not classified, a spokesman said, and can be photo-copied for a fee.

The Pentagon and the Archives say they have declassified about 95 per cent of the records from World War II and hope to finish the job by the end of 1975. Only a few documents were expected to remain classified, they said.

Bargains Are In U.S.; Not Japan

By ARNOLD DIBBLE
TOKYO (UPI) — The United States is the bargain basement of the world today, but don't try to tell it to the Americans.

Talk about prices in the United States compared with Japan, and your American friends either don't listen or they change the subject. They believe you are either completely daft or you have been away too long.

It certainly seemed as if our family had been away too long when we saw in a supermarket "super-rich" ice-cream priced at 89 cents for a half gallon. We had treated our granddaughter just before we left Japan to a double-dipped ice cream cone in Tokyo that came to a translated $1.10 U.S.

Five pounds of potatoes were advertised for 69 cents. You can't get one good-sized potato for that price in Tokyo.

Of course, the question friends as when we tell them this is, "Well, why do you live there? How do the Japanese live with these prices?"

It's a lot easier to answer the second question than the first. Japanese salaries are high, in some respects higher than American salaries. The Japanese also have priorities—if they want color TV and an automobile and a trip to Guam or Hawaii they give up something. It's usually good housing, which is far beyond their reach.

Why do I live here?
I can't answer anything beyond: I like it. I have always liked it. But I cannot explain why.

America is a country of tremendous vitality. When one has spent the better part of his adulthood in Asia, everyone in the United States seems to be six feet, thirteen inches tall.

Americans are troubled about prices, of course, and particularly those on fixed income (Social Security, company pensions, etc.) see their future in considerable jeopardy. They have good reasons, but consider the problems of Japan.

The American Chamber of Commerce in Japan recently published a price comparison study. We will give you the comparisons between Japan and the small town of Owatonna, Minn., just 20 miles from where I was born and brought up.

In Owatonna, tenderloin filet goes for $4.77 per pound. In Tokyo, the price is the equivalent of $17.60 per pound. For hamburger, the Owatonna price was $1.29 per pound, compared to the Tokyo $3.78. And other price differences go on apace.

At the supermarket checkout counter, American's have their troubles but their troubles, comparatively, are little ones.

A MORALITY PLAY—Robert Stack says when asked about the violence of "The Untouchables" in which he starred for five years, that it was a "morality play, a show about good and evil." (AP Wirephoto)

Violence Of Old 'Untouchables' Poses Question

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Question: Could "The Untouchables," with all its gunsmoke and bullet-riddled bodies, get by a network censor today amid the current flap over whether TV shows contain too much violence? "You're asking me a question nobody has the answer to because nobody knows what the network censor is," replies Robert Stack, who played Eliot Ness in the famous ABC series from 1959 to 1963. "The censor is merely a barometer that says 'where'll we go' and 'let's not lose our (broadcasting) licenses.'"

Stack, who on Monday turned 56 and looks 10 years younger, was in town to drum up some publicity for "The Honorable Sam Houston," an ABC special in which he stars next Wednesday (Jan. 22).

The veteran actor, surprisingly cheerful and animated compared to the grim, stone-faced agent he portrayed on "The Untouchables," avoided giving a direct answer when asked if he felt that show was too violent.

"When it first began, nobody asked that question," he said. "Nobody used that word. This is a word to which you have been conditioned."

"You say violent or refer to machine guns in talking about the show. You use all the outward manifestations of a show which basically is a morality play, a show about good and evil."

"The hope is that the 'good' Eliot Ness will be an emphatic link between the audience and the TV set."

Referring to assertions that some viewers emulate what they see on TV, Stack said that if "people believe in 'monkey-see, monkey-do' — which I don't — then you can say, well, Ness is the good guy."

"And he is taking care of evil."

The series, although cancelled by ABC 12 years ago, still is in syndication and still is rerun on TV in a number of cities.

Stack said he's discussed the show's possible effect on viewers with psychiatrists and civilians alike, and personally believes that it only helps viewers relax from their daily tensions.

Stack, whose last series, "Name of the Game," was axed by CBS about three years ago after a three-season run, may return in a new series next season, playing the captain of a cruise ship.

He said he'll take his maiden voyage as a skipper next month on CBS in "Adventures of the Queen," a possible pilot for the series.

Dr. Urey 'Retired' To Further Studies

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Each weekday at 9 a.m. an 80-year-old with modishly long white hair drives up to the Harold and Frieda Urey Hall at the University of California, San Diego, for another day of work.

Dr. Harold Urey, Nobel laureate whose research contributed to development of the atomic bomb, retired in 1970 but does not act like it.

A nuclear chemist, he won his Nobel in 1934 for the discovery of heavy hydrogen. During World War II, he was one of three program chiefs of the Manhattan Project which produced the bomb.

He joined the San Diego faculty in 1958 as a professor-at-large for the entire university system. In 1971 he was given the specially created title of "university professor."

Urey turned away from nuclear explosives in 1950 for studies of the moon when, he says, "hardly anybody else was interested."

He became a world authority on the moon and origin of the solar system, and a principal consultant to the Space Agency.

Recently he noted the large number of scientific papers now being produced in the field and said, "I would rather work in a field less populated."

"I tell my students to study meteors, not the moon," he said.

Urey advises doctoral students and active faculty members in his office in a modern, seven-story laboratory, Urey Hall, named after him. The building contains a special meeting room full of mementoes of his career — a replica of the Nobel award and something of which he is particularly proud, a high school diploma from Indiana Commerce School, District 9.

More American Women Hitting The Crime Trail

By PATRICIA MC CORMACK
UPI Family Editor

American women, especially young ones, increasingly are invading yet another previously male domain—crime.

In this era of women's lib it is more than a relatively few token females getting into what used to be mainly a male line of work.

And the crimes that women commit increasingly involve violence.

Crime patterns among females emerge from an analysis of Uniform Crime Reports issued by the Federal Bureau of Investigation between 1960 and 1973.

Consider:
—Arrest trends for all offenses for the period 1960 to 1973 show female arrests up 95.3 per cent. During the same period, male arrests increased just 27.8 per cent.

—A five-year arrest trend for the period 1968 to 1973 for young females (those under 18) shows arrests up 35 per cent. Arrests of males for a like period, same age bracket, went up 10 per cent.

—Arrests for the seven big Crime Index offenses, from homicide to armed robbery, during the period 1968 to 1973 shows arrests of males up eight per cent. Significantly, for purposes of this report, arrests of females in the same period, same crime groupings, shot up 52 per cent.

Female holdup artists, murderers and drug pushers have not been major threads in the fabric of American crime, except perhaps gun molls and partners in crime, as Bonnie was to Clyde. And Ma Barker, who ran her own gang.

Of more recent vintage, females in spectacular crimes included Charles Manson's harem that participated in the murder of pregnant Sharon Tate and friends. In the 1960s some Weatherwomen, female arm of the radical Weathermen, were implicated in bombings connected with the anti-Vietnam war movement.

Still unsettled is the case of Patricia Hearst, kidnap victim who allegedly later joined the Symbionese Liberation Army that abducted her. Pictures of her with male and female members of the "army" during a bank holdup show them toting machine guns.

The reasons for more women taking up crime are varied and may possibly include the women's liberation movement, according to some authorities. Also cited are the following influences:

—The narcotics epidemic and the anti-war crusade of the 1960s.

—Inflation and economic problems. A lot of criminals, muggers especially, earn a good living until caught. The same for shoplifting, increasingly a woman's field in stores on both sides of the economic tracks.

—The antiwar crusade led the more radical proponents, male and female, to dare such measures as bombing.

—The narcotics epidemic. To keep up the habit, burglary became attractive, as did pushing drugs for profit.

—Drinking also figures in some arrests, notably driving while under the influence. Women now make up 28 per cent of AA's membership.

"There has been a substantial increase in the number of women members," an AA spokesman said.

On the crime front, meanwhile, following is additional evidence of women's increasing involvement, all from the 1973 Uniform Crime Reports, the latest issue.

It is called "uniform" crime report because it is based on comparable reports from 1,854 cities and 524 counties representing close to 50 per cent of the population.

The reports define violent crimes as murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault. Property crime includes burglary, larceny and auto theft.

The figures show the extent arrests for some crimes have gone up, by sex, since 1960. The tables in the reports include, by sex, breakdowns for those under 18. Just about all along the line, the females are ahead of males in percentage increases.

—CRIMINAL HOMICIDE. Male, up 140.6 per cent; female, up 102 per cent. Under 18, male up 251 per cent; female up 296 per cent.

—MANSLAUGHTER BY NEGLIGENCE. Male, minus seven per cent; female, up 2.7 per cent. Under 18, male up 63 per cent; female up 66 per cent.

—ROBBERY. Male, up 160.1 per cent; female, up 286 per cent. Under 18, male up 289 per cent; female up 476.9 per cent.

—AGGRAVATED ASSAULT. Male, up 115 per cent; female, up 106 per cent. Under 18, male up 190 per cent; female up 350 per cent.

—BURGLARY, BREAKING AND ENTERING. Male, up 76.4 per cent; female, up 193 per cent. Under 18, male up 100 per cent; female up 238.9 per cent.

—WEAPONS CARRYING. Male, up 170.4 per cent; female, up 304 per cent. Under 18, male up 113.4 per cent; female up 321 per cent.

—STOLEN PROPERTY: BUYING, RECEIVING, POSSESSION. Male, up 416 per cent; female, up 526 per cent. Under 18, male up 519 per cent; female up 664 per cent.

—FRAUD AND EMBEZZLEMENT: Male, up 49.6 per cent; female, up 281.3 per cent. Under 18, male up 177.8 per cent; female up 333.8 per cent.

—FORGERY AND COUNTERFEITING: Male, up 15.3 per cent; female, up 116 per cent. Under 18, male up 88.5 per cent; female up 160 per cent.

—NARCOTICS LAWS. Male, up 995.1 per cent; female, up 1,026.6 per cent. Under 18, male up 4,454 per cent; female up 6,045 per cent. (The years of comparison are 1960 versus 1973. It should be noted that the epidemic in narcotics among the young had not taken hold until the mid-1960s.)

—PROSTITUTION AND COMMERCIALIZED VICE. Male, up 49 per cent; female, up 72 per cent. Under 18, male up 243 per cent; female up 303 per cent.

—DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE. Male, up 185.8 per cent; female, up 254.3 per cent. Under 18: male up 391 per cent; female up 588.1 per cent.

The FBI also took a look at the changes between 1972 and 1973 and reported:
"In consideration of the changing arrest patterns for the years 1972 and 1973, the number of females arrested increased most dramatically with a 37.5 per cent increase in the area of embezzlement."

The FBI statistics show that ten per cent of the arrests for violent crime in 1973 involved females. Arrests of women for these violent crimes in 1973 increased eight per cent over 1972.

While this all may be changing crime still is a man's field. In total numbers, male arrests outnumbered female arrests in 1973 by a ratio of six to one.

Avers Hypnosis A Useful Tool

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — A Stanford University psychologist says hypnosis is not merely a game but a real therapeutic tool against pain.

"Hypnosis works," said Prof. Ernest R. Hilgard. "Laboratory research to date allows us to say that with confidence, even as the clinical applications of hypnosis proliferate."

"While there are many unanswered questions about how hypnosis works and whom it will work for, enough evidence is in to support it fully as a therapeutic tool."

Hilgard cited one obstetrician's record of 850 women who gave birth under hypnosis. Only 36 required chemical anesthesia in addition.

'Petro-Armies' Engaged In Dangerous Arms Race

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

As recession-proof as ever, the arms business is going great guns in the Persian Gulf area, and some competent observers contend that long-range it promises to produce highly dangerous instability.

What is going on there now seems only the beginning and only one aspect of a complex of arms races.

Expert projections indicate that at present rates, members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will have a billion dollars to invest in 10 years. So why be stingy with arms? The U.S. State Department says American arms "contribute to stability" in the Middle East, but the buildup has an uncomfortable looking momentum.

Even if Israel and her immediate Arab neighbors manage to avoid a fifth war, an explosion eventually appears all too possible elsewhere in an area where superpowers contest.

Statistics on the burgeoning petro-armies for the last few years are mightily sobering. The world trade in arms is estimated to have hit $18 billion in fiscal 1974, a large share of it in the Middle East.

The United States is the world's biggest arms supplier.

To the sensitive Persian Gulf area alone in the last three years the United States sold $8 billion worth of arms. Apart from Israel, the main American Middle East clients are Iran and Saudi Arabia.

The Soviet Union is the second-ranking supplier of arms to the world. In the Middle East its main clients are Syria, Egypt and Iraq. It evidently has some guerrilla beneficiaries as well.

France has customers all over the Middle East. Others such as West Germany, Britain, Communist Poland and Communist Czechoslovakia clamor for a share in the profits of the trade.

All are able to explain their moves.

The Americans often "maintain the military balance" in the Middle East. French, British and Germans suggest that if they don't supply arms, somebody else will, and anyway they must make up for the painful costs of oil. The Russians and their allies purport to back "oppressed" people against aggression and uphold "fraternal" governments or useful "liberation movements."

Four months ago the Institute of Strategic Services in London noted that since 1970 there had been a jolting upsurge in arms spending by Iran and Saudi Arabia, each eager to amass sophisticated weaponry. The ISS regarded this as promising a "very dangerous" situation of instability.

In the fiscal year that ended July 1, Iran, a nation of 30 million, bought a whopping $3.5 billion worth of American weaponry, a total more than 10 times what the whole world spent on arms in 1952.

The Shah of Iran is often pictured as eager to restore the Persian glory of 25 centuries ago, to build Iran into a ranking world military power in a relatively short time.

The other day Saudi Arabia, a desert nation of 8 million not long ago considered backward and feudal, contracted for an additional $756 million worth of American supersonic jet fighters. In December it contracted with France for $860 million worth of military hardware.

Tiny Kuwait, a sheikdom of only 800,000 and glutted with oil money, thus far has bought only a modest $30 million worth of U.S. arms, but it's reported in the market for a half billion worth. It wants protection from Iraq.

Politically volatile Iraq, an oil nation of 10 million Arabs, is armed with up-to-date Soviet equipment that possibly matches its arch-rival, Iran, in at least some categories.

This staggering array of armed power, concentrated in the area where the history of western civilization began, now has many in that civilization wondering about its meaning for world peace.

What does the desert Saudi nation want with all that hardware? Saudi Arabia says it's to "consolidate the kingdom's ability to defend itself." Against whom and what? Hardly Israel, which has its hands full with its next-door neighbors. Saudi help to the frontline Arabs is only a small corner of the picture.

Saudi Arabia's King Faisal seems far from happy with the Iranian Shah's military goals. Experts say Faisal fears Iran's potential as the dominating power of the Persian Gulf, which Arabs insist on calling the Arabian Gulf. It will be Persian in fact as well as name, though, if the Shah is successful.

If Faisal is suspicious of the bulging muscle built by Iran's super-modern American arms, that is not all that worries him.

A rebel movement in Dhofar on the southeast of the Arabian peninsula is supported from neighboring Yemen and reportedly is equipped with Soviet weapons. Faisal may be far from pleased with the report that Iran has up to 1,500 troops in the peninsula to help the local sultan.

On his northern frontier is Iraq, whose erratic far-left rulers have little sympathy for the institution of monarchy. Iraq has territorial claims on Kuwait, which Faisal must find menacing.

Internally, Faisal has to be preoccupied about how his nation, not long emerged from feudalism, can absorb and cope with its incredible flow of new wealth. It's hardly surprising that Saudi Arabia not only is beefing up her armed forces but has in recent times poured hundreds of millions into modernizing her national guard.

Iraq and Iran trade bullets and epithets on occasion. Both are Moslem and both wallow in oil money. But Iran is non-Arab and now supports the non-Arab Kurds in Iraq who, in armed rebellion, are demanding autonomy in their area.

Iraq is armed by the Russians. Iran relies on the Americans for its highly mobile army of 160,000, an air force of 40,000 men and super-modern planes, and a small but growing navy.

At the confluence of the Tigris and Euphrates on the northern end of the Persian Gulf, Iraq's big port, Basra, is just across from Iran's bustling oil refinery city of Abadan. The Iraqis give the Russians port facilities and get Soviet contributions to a growing naval capability with which to challenge Iran.

As if the Persian Gulf needed more complication, the United States has a 15-year-old understanding with Iran under which it can ask for American help should she feel menaced by the Russians.

The first modern skyscraper was built in St. Louis in 1890.

Publisher's Wife Made 'A Cultural Desert' Bloom

By VERNON SCOTT
LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Mrs. Norman Chandler, the moving force that brought Los Angeles its showcase Music Center, celebrated the Center's 10th anniversary by introducing a plan to insure its future.

She is forming a Los Angeles Music Center Foundation to raise funds from which sufficient interest will flow to support it in perpetuity.

Almost single-handedly Dorothy Chandler raised the $16 million to start the complex which silenced the taunts of those who called Los Angeles a cultural desert. The city can no longer be said to be 79 small towns in search of an identity.

Today, a decade after its completion, the center's Dorothy Chandler Pavilion, Ahmanson and Taper theaters ring with symphony, opera, comedy and drama.

One day recently Mrs. Chandler led the way to a poolside office at her home in Los Angeles' old and stately Hancock Park area.

"It's true," she said. "I am a cultural leader. I believe in the arts, including good architecture to house them. And I am dedicated to good business practices as well."

"Since I've been an adult I've been concerned about civic matters. I think it's my heritage. That's the way I was made. It's a Buffum characteristic."

Mrs. Chandler is a member of the Buffum family which founded a string of department stores in Southern California. Educated at Stanford where she met her late husband, Dorothy Buffum Chandler became active at the Los Angeles Times as assistant to the publisher.

At that time the publisher was her husband, Norman Chandler, who had taken over from his father.

"During World War II I went to the USC journalism school to study copy reading and headline writing. I consulted Norman on policy. Ours was a general partnership. My main interest was with the buildings and facilities. They had gotten shabby. I spruced them up and have kept them that way ever since I joined the Times staff in 1946."

"I'm a motivated person," Mrs. Chandler said, explaining why she had not followed a more domestic path.

"I've always tried to improve things—house, office, family relationships, the newspaper. I guess I could be called one of the first women libbers, although I don't approve of them. I'm never satisfied. When things get better I want them better and still better."

Mrs. Chandler has not been a part of the Times since her husband turned the newspaper over to their son, Otis, in 1960 but she still maintains an office there.

"If I were a conformist my life would have been quite different," she said. "I was Mrs. Norman Chandler and he was the oldest son in the clan. I was the first daughter-in-law. Norman's sisters lived in Pasadena. They wanted me to join their bridge club, the ladies town club and the garden club. All those things. That was supposed to be my role."

"I resisted. I couldn't bring myself to become a part of all that. So I came to Los Angeles to work on other projects."

When the Hollywood Bowl closed in 1951 for lack of funds the county of Los Angeles asked Mrs. Chandler for help. She headed an emergency committee that reopened the Bowl in ten days.

Mrs. Chandler also has been a member of the University of California Board of Regents (14 years), a regent of Occidental College and a score of other organizations and institutions, but the arts always have concerned her most.

She accepted the presidency of the Southern California Symphony-Hollywood Bowl Association and began thinking seriously of a music center.

"In the 1950s I made two commitments to myself," Mrs. Chandler said. "To build a home for music and to get a permanent music director for the symphony."

A Boston research firm surveyed Los Angeles to determine where it should be situated and how it should be financed.

"The county owned the site which was just a bean field on top of a hill," Mrs. Chandler, who chaired the fund-raising committee, recalled.

"On March 17, 1960, St. Patrick's Day, I went before the County Board of Supervisors to ask for a long-term lease of the property for $1 a year."

"Once the county agreed to our Music Center plan I began asking everyone I knew for money—friends, acquaintances, business enterprises, everyone. Of course my name helped open doors. But I took along renderings and architectural plans to show them what we had in mind."

"The smartest thing I did was to go for big money first. It was a new philosophy for fund-raising. I didn't ask anyone for less than $25,000. In the past most people in this community started with $100-$500."

"So I shocked the community. And it wasn't easy. I just believed in the Music Center and my conviction and sincerity helped."

"I spread my wings and read the financial pages, the new society pages. I got names, leads, telephone numbers and some background on the people I was going to talk to. I talked baseball with Nat King Cole and he gave me $25,000. Cary Grant came by for coffee and gave $25,000."

Mrs. Chandler's first year's goal was $4 million for the pavilion.

"I called 50 of the top men in the community to a meeting to tell them I'd raised almost $4 million in less than a year," she said. "I was $250,000 short."

"On the way to the meeting I ran into Ed Pauley and asked him if he would provide half of it if I could get someone else to pledge half. Then I saw Sam Mosher, head of Signal Oil, and told him Ed would give half if he would equal it."

"And Sam said, 'I will, Buff.' So I said, 'Let's walk in together.'"

Dorothy Chandler then inspired her fund raising committee to plunge ahead in a campaign to build two additional theaters for the Music Center, upping the building fund ante to $12 million. Ground was broken in 1961.

"It took faith and vision," Mrs. Chandler said. "I have both. We raised $19 million and then a grand total of $35 million."

"I was the catalyst, and I stayed with it five days a week for four years. The initial fund drive was completed in 1965."

Mrs. Norman Chandler wasn't simply gathering money. She was on the site, watching the buildings rise. She hounded the architect's office, making sure plans and specifications were followed. She okayed blueprints and saw her dreams become a reality.

"Then it was time for my second commitment, a young, forward-looking person to become permanent director of the symphony. I talked to Gregor Platigorsky and Jascha Heifetz, both of whom teach at USC, and to Dr. John Vincent, head of the UCLA music department and others."

"Eventually the decision was made to hire Zubin Mehta. Today the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra is one of the great symphony orchestras of the world, thanks to Zubin."

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: One of your finest days and evenings to take the best from the past and organize it with your hopes and desires for expansion in the future. Show compassion for others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Seek advisers who are efficient at their work; gain their support for your ideas, so you can expand. Find new self-expression.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make new friendships that are worthwhile and stop living such a solitary life. Contribute more to the world. Social affairs can lead to progress.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try to be with bigwigs who can lead you in the path of greater success. Listen well to understand their ideas and follow suggestions.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be alert to those who can help make your future successful. Don't waste time with one who is a hindrance to your advancement.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Use your intuitive faculties wisely so that you make the proper contacts and are more successful in your dealings with others.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Listen to what associates have to say but be sure you come out with your own ideas as well. Reconciliations favored now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Improve surroundings by using your sense of color, ingenuity, neatness. Coordinate efforts with fellow workers. Entertain in p.m.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can communicate satisfactorily with others. Get your talents to the attention of the influential who can help you put them across.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Center your attention on home and family now and know what is expected of you by kin, try to please them. Begin an uptrend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Coordinate efforts. Converse with key persons and handle correspondence. Transportation matters should also be well handled.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan how to add to your regular income. An early talk with an expert can be most helpful. Arrive on time for appointment.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make new friends who can be helpful where your advancement is concerned. Add to present prestige by using right tactics.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she has to be taught early the spiritual and moral tenets that will guide this life in the right direction, otherwise witty and demoralizing influences can easily enter to try to destroy what is innately fine in this nature and take away the natural happiness and fine promise in this chart. The investigative field is excellent, whether male or female, be it in research, police work, or whatever.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

The question of card valuation leads to many arguments at the bridge table. How many times have you heard a player plead, after going down several tricks doubled, "But partner, I had 14 points!" Some of the problems that arise are dealt with in the new book "Goren Settles the Bridge Arguments", published by Hart Publishing Company. One of the points raised in the book is that point count should serve as a guide to accurate bidding, and that players should beware of letting point count become master instead of servant. This principle was overlooked by both the Norwegian and Swedish South players on this hand from their match at the recent European Championships, played in Herzliya, Israel. Not that his decision made much of a difference in this particular match. When the hand was replayed, the Swedish South also reached four hearts, though on a different auction. At this table West elected to make the gambling lead of the king of spades, with disastrous consequences. Declarer took the ace, drew trumps and finessed the ten of spades, thus limiting his losers to two diamonds and a club.

Beginning To Fear About Safety Of Drinking Water

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

BOSTON (AP) — "I don't like to drink this stuff," said the young nurse holding up a glass of slightly murky water.

"I don't like the way it looks or tastes, and now they say it's got a lot of lead in it," she continued. "It's just not what it used to be before all this pollution, and that's true of most of the places I've been lately."

Nora Guest moved to Beacon Hill recently to be close to her hospital job as well as to enjoy some of the quaint charm and elegance that goes with living a few doors away from historic Louisburg Square.

But under the gaslit streets where Boston Brahmins tread lie old lead water pipes that add traces of metal, not quaintness, to the drinking water.

Finding the lead, sometimes at five times the safety level recommended by health officials, shook the confidence of Nora Guest and other Beacon Hill residents in something they had taken for granted for decades — the safety of their drinking water.

Lead, in greater quantities, could cause brain damage. To solve the problem, new copper pipes are to be installed in Beacon Hill and in some other sections of the city. An additive is to be placed in the drinking water early this year to reduce its acid content and thus the lead particles eaten from the pipes.

Boston isn't the only American city with a water problem.

Recent disclosures of chemical contaminants in drinking water in Louisiana, Minnesota, California, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Ohio have millions of persons wondering what's flowing from their taps.

Responding to the alarm, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has just begun a survey of drinking water in 100 cities to pinpoint the problems and what to do about them. The study, to be completed by June, is concerned particularly with cancer-causing substances.

Prior EPA studies have shown that some cities' drinking water systems contain such known cancer-causing substances as asbestos fibers, carbon tetrachloride, chlorinated ether and chloroform. There also are hints that chlorination, a widely used method of killing bacteria in drinking water, may help form some of these cancer-causing substances.

In the suburban South Hills section of Pittsburgh, hundreds of residents became ill, and drinking water polluted with stray chemicals was a suspected cause. People have complained of nausea, diarrhea and other digestive ailments since Nov. 1.

An EPA investigative team found that three steel firms were dumping each day more than a half-ton of poisonous cyanide into the Monongahela River, from which South Hills gets its drinking water.

People in parts of the San Francisco area were disturbed this fall upon learning that EPA investigators had detected microscopic asbestos fibers in some drinking water, possibly from natural mineral deposits.

The fibers, which are not removed by conventional water purification procedures, have been linked to stomach and intestinal cancers.

With each incident, the cry goes out for the authorities to do something about the water. But doing something about the water raises new questions, principally how pure can the drinking water be.

Some water quality experts are concerned that the present uproar will lead people to demand a purity that is technically and economically impractical.

"Water probably was never harmless, even before pollution," says Dr. Francis M.M. Morel of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a water pollution specialist. "People in some areas of the world lived longer and healthier than those elsewhere and some experts said this was because their water quality was better. And the opposite was true in other areas."

Now as technology gets better and scientists learn more about what's in water, deciding what's safe and what isn't becomes more difficult.

For nearly two generations, most Americans had felt secure about their drinking water.

That's because between the Civil War and World War I, community water supplies were developed that could be treated to eliminate infectious bacteria. Filtration equipment and chlorine treatment cleared the water and destroyed known disease-carrying organisms, among them typhoid, dysentery and cholera.

But these systems do little to remove many chemicals, minerals and strange new compounds found today in the nation's drinking water.

James McDermott, director of the EPA's water supply division, says these man-made wastes are entering water supplies at ever-increasing rates from "more than 500 new chemicals developed each year."

Naturally occurring substances in water, long thought safe, also have raised new questions.

Soft water, found naturally in the Northeast and Northwest, contains fewer dissolved mineral particles than hard water. Since soft water works better with soaps and detergents, water softeners, principally sodium, have been added to hard water over the years to reduce its mineral content.

But studies by Dr. Henry A. Schroeder, a physiologist at Dartmouth Medical School, have found that soft water can increase the risks of heart attack and high blood pressure.

Dr. Schroeder said the more acidic soft water corrodes pipes and collects metal traces which can contribute to heart disease. He noted also that excessive sodium long has been known to contribute to hypertension. For this reason people with high blood pressure restrict their diet of salt, which is largely sodium.

"As we pursue our analytical capability and get better and better, we will have to get down to a point of an acceptable risk," says Leland J. McCabe, who is in charge of the health aspects of water quality at the EPA Robert Taft Laboratory in Cincinnati.

The Taft Lab is the main federal center for testing drinking water and will coordinate the nationwide EPA test of 100 representative water systems.

"We as a people will have to decide how far we want to go in cleaning up water," McCabe continues. "We know that viruses are hard to test for, but we've been licking that problem. And we probably are going to find more organic compounds in water and we'll have to find out what they do, too."

"We'll then have to set standards for the maximum total organic and viral content allowable and keep them low to decrease chances of illness. But we won't be able to clean up all of them."

Dr. Ervin Bellack of the EPA's water supply division concurs with McCabe. "We have no intent of eliminating everything in water. It's just not practical and some of the materials in water are beneficial anyway," he says.

"We know, however, that we've got to go after those (man-made) organic compounds we've been finding and put a heavy limit on them. We know their concentrations should be low since they serve no useful purpose and some of them are known to be dangerous. But it is not practical to set standards to get them all out."
