

Ford Tariff Power Faces Court Test, Suits Ready

By SHELLY COHEN
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — President Ford's power to impose a $3 per barrel tariff on imported oil headed for a court test today with eight Northeastern states and a group of New England utilities set to file suit in Washington to halt the tax.

Attorneys general or their assistants from 10 states gathered at the Massachusetts State House on Sunday to discuss the suit. Eight of the states agreed to join in filing the suit.

Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Francis X. Bellotti said he will file the suit in U.S. District Court on behalf of his state as well as Maine, Connecticut, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Vermont.

New Hampshire and Delaware decided not to join the suit.

Michael Donlan, representing some 10 New England utilities, including the New England Power Co., Massachusetts Electric Co. and the Algonquin Gas Transmission Co., said their suit will be filed at the same time. U.S. Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., is also a plaintiff in that case.

Donlan said the states and the utilities were pooling their legal resources to fight the oil import tariff. New England is more heavily dependent on imported oil than any other area in the country, particularly for fuels used in home heating and utilities.

The states contend that President Ford violated provisions of the Environmental Protection Act by not holding a public hearing on the tariff or requiring an environmental impact statement.

Congress is considering legislation that would delay for 90 days Ford's levy on every barrel of imported oil.

More Scrutiny For Ford $16 Billion Tax Cut Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's proposed $16 billion tax cut is coming under more scrutiny from the House Ways and Means Committee amid new criticism of the antirecession package.

The committee resumes hearings on the proposed tax cut today. The panel interrupted consideration of the proposal last week to vote out a bill that would force a 90-day postponement of Ford's $3 levy on every barrel of imported oil.

The postponement will be difficult for Ford to veto since it is combined with a $36 billion increase in the Treasury's borrowing authority. The full House is expected to vote on the measure either late this week or early next.

Meanwhile, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who is expected to declare his candidacy next month for the Democratic presidential nomination, criticized Ford's tax rebate proposal, saying:

"So when we talk about tax rebates and the figures show the $50,000-a-year man getting $1,000 and the $5,000-a-year man getting $12, there is a plan that begs for amendment."

"Now that the President has finally prescribed a 'treatment' for our energy and economic ills, people are asking if the cure isn't worse than the disease," Jackson said Sunday at a Los Angeles fund-raiser in his honor.

Members of the Ways and Means Committee also have challenged sections of Ford's tax measure.

Meanwhile, the Senate was expected today to approve formation of a special committee to investigate the CIA, FBI and other intelligence agencies, some of which have been accused of overstepping their legal jurisdiction.

On Tuesday, the Senate is scheduled to take up rival proposals dealing with the contested New Hampshire Senate race between Democrat Louis C. Wyman and Democratic John Durkin.

The Democrats want to seat neither man, sending the matter back to the Rules Committee for further investigation. One Republican proposal would declare the seat vacant until a new election can be held while another would seat Wyman pending an investigation by the Rules Committee.

Also this week, Senate liberals are expected to resume their effort to change that body's filibuster rule, reducing the margin of votes needed to cut off debate from two-thirds to three-fifths.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said a cloture petition may be introduced today, meaning the Senate would vote Wednesday on whether to end the debate on changing the filibuster rule and bring the proposed change to a vote.

Clinical Teaching Options Explored

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Several options are available in providing clinical teaching facilities to East Carolina University medical school students, and officials have been investigating the various avenues in an effort to pick the best choice.

The state Advisory Budget Commission has included a $20 million item in the proposed 1975-1976 budget to fund a proposed 200-bed teaching hospital.

Pitt Rep. Horton Rountree outlined three alternatives open to the medical school.

First, he said, the new 200-bed facility could be constructed. But other options outlined by the law-maker included the renovation of the present Pitt hospital facility—estimated to cost $7.5 million—or "build . . . add onto or expand the new facility" which is now under construction.

"It would seem logical that the third alternative," adding another 150-bed tower to the new county hospital now under construction, "might be the best . . ." and save tax dollars, Rountree noted.

Rountree said the budget includes a request for $35 million for establishing the four-year medical school—$16 million in the first year of the biennium and $19 million during the second year.

"With the $15 million hand, we would have enough to start expanding the program, doing the various renovations and employ additional personnel," to staff the medical school.

The law-maker indicated, however, that it probably will be after April 15, before any decision as to which route to follow in providing clinical teaching facilities will be made.

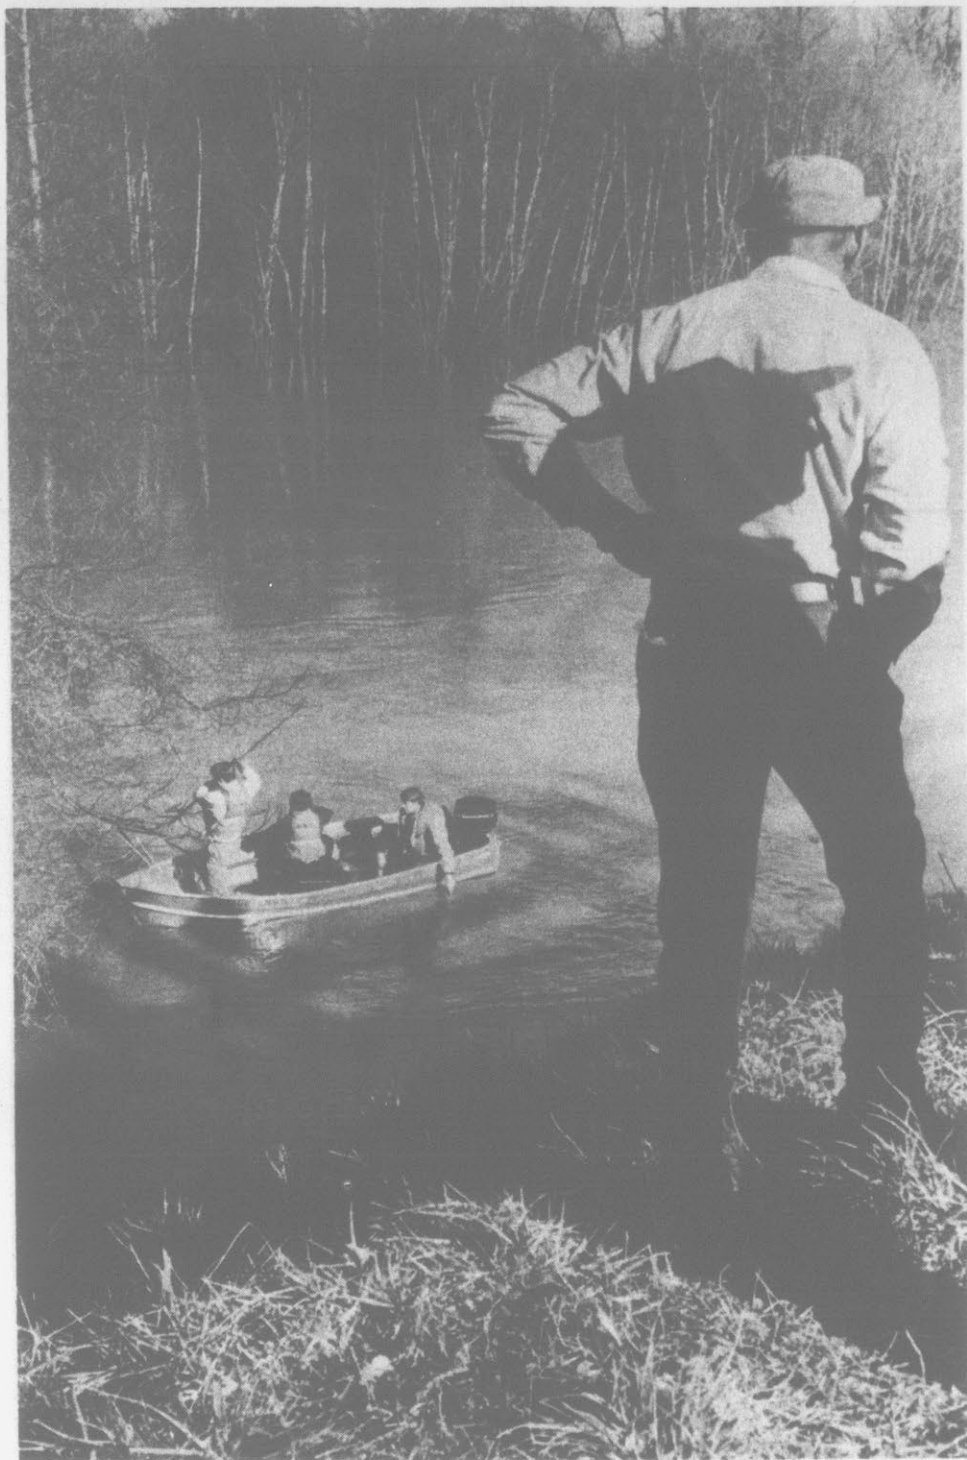

Woodrow Wooten, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Pitt Memorial Hospital, said that rather than building a new hospital for the medical school, or adding a nursing tower to the new Pitt Facility, the medical school could use "all the beds available in the new hospital, subject to the approval of the attending physician and the patient. If they feel this is not adequate . . . they could pay for construction of a third tower."

According to Wooten, who said medical school and hospital officials have met to discuss the possibilities, "we have not gotten down to legal terms, but this is an option that they have." He explained that architects for the new hospital have also met with medical school officials and indicated that a new tower could be added at a cost of about $10 million.

"If we go to a third wing," Wooten explained, "it would go in front of the two towers we are building now. Our facility is designed to eventually handle six of these towers . . . giving a 900 net patient bed area."

The hospital board chairman emphasized, however, that a "willingness on the part of the Board of Trustees of the hospital and medical school officials and the Board of Governors, to cooperate," is not the only consideration. "We also need a workable agreement between the ECU medical school, our board and our physicians. Our physicians have got to be permitted to be governed by the Board of Trustees. It's a matter of

Searching For A Body

DROWNING SCENE — Bystanders watch members of the Greenville Rescue Squad this morning search the muddy waters of the Tar River near the Memorial Drive bridge for the body of 67-year-old Willie Thomas of 1507B West Fifth St. Thomas is believed to have drowned late Sunday afternoon. Police quoted Thomas's wife as saying he got out of a car she was driving about 5:40 p.m. yesterday and walked down an embankment to the water. Officers said Thomas was allegedly holding onto a bush "walking in the water" when he went down. Rescue men searched the waters near the spot last night, then returned early this morning to continue the hunt. (Reflector Photo by Stuart Savage)

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day, but the phone service is available 24 hours a day.

WANTS RACING PIGEONS CLUB

We would like Hotline's help in contacting persons who might be interested in forming a Greenville area chapter of the International Federation of Racing Pigeons. D. A.

Douglas Allen tells Hotline that he and several other persons in this area raise homing pigeons and are interested in letting them race. They have met with the Cove City chapter of the international organization, but need seven interested persons to form their own chapter. "This is a great father-son sport," he said. "It's fun and educational."

He tells us a good pigeon will fly home 500 miles in a day, and that there are more than 60 varieties of the homing birds. Anyone interested may contact Allen either at his work 758-3632 or his home 752-1409.

NEEDS INSTRUCTION BOOK

I bought a Modernage Sewing Machine from Belk Tyler's three years ago. I have been trying since then to get a book to show me how to use the machine. The model number is 799; the serial number 205-2. E. B.

Gene Skinner, operations manager of Belk Tyler's here wrote for the book and turned it over to Hotline when it arrived. We forwarded it to you.

CASH IS RISKY

Nearly every day Hotline gets requests for help in obtaining merchandise for which cash has been sent as payment in advance. Judging only by the volume we see, we would say that sending cash for anything, no matter how small the amount is an unwise practice. It's your word against the person who opens the mail on the other end that it ever arrived. Being able to send a photostatic copy of your cancelled check or a money order receipt is probably worth any cost that may be involved.

Lightner Case Expected To Jurors Today

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—The jury was expected to begin deliberations this afternoon in the trial of Marguerite Lightner, wife of Raleigh's first black mayor.

Mrs. Lightner was indicted last month on a charge of conspiracy to receive and dispose of stolen goods. If convicted she could be sentenced to 10 years in prison and fined an unspecified amount.

Closing arguments were to begin at 10 a.m. today with Assistant Dist. Atty. William Crumpler addressing the jury first.

Defense attorney W.G. "Buck" Ransdell was to go last. Each had about an hour and 40 minutes left for final arguments and they were expected to take the full time.

The case was concluded Sunday when the defense, in a surprise move, decided against presenting evidence or witnesses. No reason was given by the defense attorneys for that decision.

The decision not to present a case came after Superior Court Judge Henry McKinnon ruled against a defense motion to dismiss the case.

Sunday morning, the state announced it had completed its case after a tape recorded conversation was played to the jury. The prosecution had presented four and a half days of testimony and evidence.

Dist. Atty. Burley Mitchell gave the jury a 20-minute argument favoring conviction of Mrs. Lightner Sunday afternoon. That was followed by a 20-minute argument for acquittal by assistant defense attorney Samuel Mitchell, the Lightner's family lawyer.

Through the arguments, Mrs. Lightner leaned forward, carefully listening to what was said and occasionally looking at the jury. When defense attorney Mitchell was concluding his address, Lightner held his wife's hand and had a strained look on his face.

In his argument Sunday, Dist. Atty. Mitchell told the jury it will be their "decision whether or not criminal laws have to be obeyed."

He said "privileged people" are known to get special treatment and it's up to the jury to decide "whether or not people in privileged positions have to obey the law just like the poor and the underprivileged and you and I."

The district attorney also reviewed testimony and said the tapes were necessary to corroborate the statements of a known thief.

Defense attorney Mitchell called the tapes "totally irrelevant" and said Mrs. Jones didn't testify that Mrs. Lightner was operating as a co-conspirator as charged.

Mitchell said that only one time did Mrs. Jones come close to such testimony, when she said Mrs. Lightner had requested a special dress last summer. Even then, he said, Mrs. Lightner didn't ask Mrs. Jones to steal the dress.

"Your job is not to decide whether the criminal laws in North Carolina are to be obeyed" or waived for some people, he said. He said the jury must decide whether a conspiracy existed between Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Lightner before Nov. 15, the day Mrs. Jones became a state agent.

He also said the district attorney "knew what he wanted" and "set up" the case.

Weekend Winds, Rain Caused Power Outages

Severe winds over the weekend, coupled with heavy rains on Saturday, caused a number of power outages on the Greenville Utilities electrical system.

Malcolm Green, assistant GUCO director, said today that steady winds of 40 to 50 miles per hour most of the day on Saturday accompanied by heavy rain caused 17 power outages that ranged in severity from one customer without electricity to 60 subscribers.

Green, noting that the wind caused several poles to break although falling trees and limbs were the major culprit, said that the largest outage occurred in the Hams Crossroad area where three poles broke between Black Jack and Grimesland.

GUCO workmen had to install a temporary line to service a farm in the area where some 25,000 chickens are housed, the official pointed out. The need for electricity within a short period of time was critical for the completely automated chicken operation, Green said, and the temporary line served the farm until the main power source could be restored.

Seven men worked during Saturday as outages were scattered throughout the day.

On Sunday, wind gusts of up to 60 miles per hour resulted in 12 power outages ranging again from one customer to a large-scale disruption on 14th Street from Ragsdale Road to Evans Street and up to sections of Tenth Street. Green said that a wire at 14th and Ragsdale broke and knocked a feeder line out for approximately one hour.

Numerous other outages occurred during the day, most of which were caused when trees fell over power lines resulting in broken poles. Six Utilities service men worked on Sunday.

According to Green, nine poles out of some 900 miles of line on the GUCO system were broken during the two-day period and some 114 manpower hours of overtime and power restoration work was put in.

Electric Rates

Hearing Slated

A hearing will be held on proposed new electric rates tonight in City Hall.

The Utilities Commission will conduct the hearing in the Council chambers. It begins at 8 o'clock.

Le Duc Tho Says Pres. Thieu Must Be Ousted

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Le Duc Tho, the North Vietnamese leader who negotiated the Vietnamese cease-fire agreement signed two years ago today, has declared the Ford administration is "giving a new path to the war" by urging additional military aid for the Saigon government.

In military action, the South Vietnamese command said two of its A37 bombers were shot down today by North Vietnamese antiaircraft missiles during a battle west of Saigon near the Cambodian frontier.

On an address on North Vietnamese television monitored in Saigon, Tho said South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu must be overthrown because he has "scrapped" the Paris agreement.

Tho negotiated the agreement with U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and the two later were jointly awarded the 1973 Nobel Peace Prize. Kissinger accepted his award, but Tho rejected it on grounds that the fighting in South Vietnam had not stopped.

"Of late," Tho said, "Ford, Kissinger and (U.S. Secretary of Defense James) Schlesinger have called for additional military aid to the Nguyen Van Thieu administration, and this means giving a new path to the war."

Ford announced last week that he would ask Congress for an additional $300 million in supplemental military aid. Congress had cut military aid for the fiscal year by half the administration's original request to $700 million.

A spokesman said one pilot was killed and the other rescued in the shooting down of the A37 bombers. In the ground fighting, a communiqué said 41 North Vietnamese and 6 government troops were killed and 29 government men were wounded.

The action was part of a nine-day-old counteroffensive by 2,000 South Vietnamese trying to block a North Vietnamese division threatening Kien Tuong Province.

Crippled Greek War Hero Is Going Home After Treatment

HERO GOES HOME—Partially paralyzed and almost unable to speak, Spyridon Moustaklis, a Greek war hero sits in a chair in a Washington hotel room during a recent interview. (AP Wirephoto)

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Partially paralyzed and almost unable to speak, Spyridon Moustaklis is going home, a Greek war hero returning to a country where one government decorated him for bravery and another government tortured him.

Moustaklis, 48, has just completed several weeks of medical treatments at Walter Reed Army Medical Center for the lingering effects of torture he suffered under the recently deposed military regime in Greece.

"We must go home and continue working," said Christina Moustaklis, his wife who is a dentist. They arrive in Athens on Tuesday.

At the mention of going home, Moustaklis smiled with the one side of his face that isn't paralyzed, and his deep blue eyes grew wide. "Natali," he said, obviously pleased at one of the few words he can still pronounce. Natali, the couple's only child, remained in Greece during her parents' trip here. She will be three on Wednesday.

Asked how he was tortured, Moustaklis pulled back his shirt to show scars on his neck and shoulders, ugly reminders of the time he was burned with electric cattle prods. Asked if he would like to see his torturer punished, Moustaklis squirmed and made a motion with his hand. His wife said that meant, "Yes, machine-gunned to death."

side and unable to speak when he was struck in the neck while in jail. He was arrested by the Greek military police in May 1973, following a naval mutiny that was to have been a protest against the military regime. He said he had not participated in the protest.

The U.S. government aided that military regime, and there were signs both governments did not want Moustaklis to come here for medical help.

Mrs. Moustaklis said that the day before they were to leave for Washington, they received telephone calls from the American Embassy in Athens and George Levidis, consul general of Greece in Washington. Both callers suggested they not make the trip, Mrs. Moustaklis said. She added she did not know why. A spokesman at the Greek Embassy said Levidis is in Greece and unavailable for comment.

"They knew his presence here was a bitter reminder of the strong association and support for the past seven years between brutal Greek military dictatorship and the U.S. Department of Defense," said Elias P. Demetracopoulos, a former Greek journalist who led a campaign to have Moustaklis admitted to Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

Moustaklis was admitted to the hospital after a campaign by Greek exile leaders in the United States and several members of Congress.

Protest Aid To S. Viets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Separate candlelight marches have been held in front of the White House by demonstrators protesting U.S. aid to South Vietnam and a group asking for an accounting of U.S. servicemen missing in Indochina.

More than 200 persons took part in the first demonstration, sponsored Sunday by the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

The league, holding a three-day conference here, has asked President Ford to form a presidential task force to study the MIA question. Ford has declared today, the second anniversary of the signing of the Paris peace agreement, as National MIA Awareness Day.

His proclamation noted that more than 2,400 Americans are still unaccounted for in Southeast Asia, including 900 listed as missing and the others declared dead and their bodies never recovered.

Ford reaffirmed a commitment to seek the fullest possible accounting for those missing and the return of the remains of those who died. He noted the agreement contains specific obligations on these items.

WRESTLE WITH INDIANS—Wisconsin National Guardsmen wrestle with Indians including a young woman after a group of Indians refused to identify themselves or submit to search Sunday at a checkpoint near the Alexian Brothers Novitiate near Gresham, Wisc.

Seven persons were taken into custody after being searched and handcuffed. A number of weapons were found. A band of armed Indians are still holding the religious order's estate after taking the property over on New Year's Day. (AP Wirephoto)

UAW Boss Concedes Small Industry Profit

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock says the nation's car makers can't lower prices because their profit margins have been "paper thin" for more than a year.

"You can't cut prices when you're losing money on every car that is sold," Woodcock said during an appearance Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Woodcock conceded that cutting auto prices probably would help sell some cars and increase employment, "but it can't be done on a loss basis."

"All you have to do is take a look at their profit margins," he said in explaining why the UAW is not criticizing current car prices as it has in the past. Citing the first nine months of 1974, Woodcock said, "General Motors reduced its sales over the year before by 17 per cent, but had a drop of profits of 86 per cent."

Auto executives say they are satisfied with car sales since rebate programs began, but 16 assembly plants and more than one-third of the industry's work force will be idle this week.

Nearly 248,000 of the four auto companies' 685,000 blue-collar workers will be off the job, including about 180,000 on open-ended furloughs.

Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lynn Townsend said over the weekend he was pleased with the reaction to Chrysler's rebate program. He said the rebates may be continued into the spring.

"On the basis of the first two weeks, we are very pleased with the sales," he said. "It is great, it has far exceeded our expectations."

In mid-January, the first sales period in which rebates were given, Chrysler car deliveries were up 88 per cent from the early January period, but still off 9 per cent from the year before when the gasoline shortage hurt sales.

All four auto companies have rebate programs scheduled to expire Feb. 28. The discounts save car buyers from $100 to $600 on selected models.

General Motors Chairman Thomas Murphy continued to sound a call of optimism and declined say whether GM might extend the rebate offer.

Murphy said he doesn't agree with some auto executives, including Townsend and Henry Ford II, who have warned that the industry may be headed for a depression.

Murphy said he foresees an upturn in the coming months and believes thousands of GM workers can look forward to going back to work in the spring.

Eastward-Ho In Wagon Train To Valley Forge

By PEGGY ANDERSEN
Associated Press Writer
ALDERWOOD MANOR, Wash. (AP) — Hundreds of Americans born too late to go West in wagon trains may soon have the opportunity to go East in the prairie schooners.

Men, women and children aboard horses and wagons are to leave various points in the nation for Valley Forge, Pa. Estimated time of arrival: July 4, 1976 — in time to celebrate the nation's 200th birthday.

Ken Wilcox, 57, of Alderwood Manor, near Seattle, will be wagon master for the Washington state contingent of the Northwest wagon train. It is to depart June 7 from the U.S.-Canadian Peace Arch at Blaine, and include wagons representing Pennsylvania and Alaska.

The venture is being funded in part by the State of Pennsylvania and private companies. A $3 million budget includes building 51 wagons in Jonesboro, Ark., the rental or purchase of horses, and food.

Wilcox figures the train will travel about six hours a day or about 20 miles. "We could make it a lot faster than that if we wanted to really extend the horses — but it's a long trip," he said.

The old routes are mostly paved roads these days. "When they put in the highways, they did just like the pioneers did — they went where the going was easiest," Wilcox said.

Armed Men Rob Gas Station

Three men, armed with a .45 caliber pistol, held up the Save-A-Thon Discount Gas Station on Greenville Boulevard near the N. C. 11 intersection about 6:50 p.m. yesterday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the three drove up in a car, put $6.21 worth of gas in the vehicle, then produced the pistol and demanded the station attendant give them the cash.

According to the chief, the three drove off with between $175 and $200.

Investigation of the theft is continuing.

2 Officers Near Killed

CORFU, Greece (AP) — Anti-American demonstrators today tried to set fire to an automobile carrying two American naval officers who had landed on this western Greek island during a protest against a visit by their destroyer, police reported.

Police managed to get the officers back to a motorboat which returned them to the U.S. 6th Fleet destroyer Richard E. Byrd. One of the policemen said the officers were "nearly lynched" but there was no immediate information to support the statement.

One of the estimated 4,000 demonstrators, a 60-year old Greek, suffered a serious head injury and doctors said he has "very little chance of survival."

A statement by the organizers of the demonstration said they had sent a message to the Greek government calling for an end to all visits by U.S. warships. The statement said the demonstration was held in protest against "the anti-Greek policy of the U.S. administration, and not against the American people."

Local naval authorities had warned against the ship's visit, police reported.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman called the visit a "scheduled routine port call." Apart from movements of 6th Fleet vessels based in Greece, U.S. officials said it was the first scheduled port call since anti-American feeling swept the country in the wake of the Cyprus crisis and collapse of the Greek junta last July.

Nursing Program Seeks To Combat Mortality Rate

By FRANCES PERRY
ECU News Bureau

Reduction of eastern North Carolina's extremely high infant mortality rate is the goal of a new program at the East Carolina University School of Nursing.

ECU's Perinatal Nurse Specialist Project, supported by a grant from the N.C. Regional Medical Program, is involving nurses from eight health department districts which are within commuting distance of Greenville and which have an approximately 1,000 or more births each year.

Participants include nurses from the Pasquotank-Perquimans-Camden-Chowan District Health Department and from Craven, Edgecombe, Halifax, Lenoir, Nash, Pitt and Wilson Counties.

According to Project Director Therese Lawler of the ECU nursing faculty, the purpose of ECU's program is to train nurses to be clinical specialists in perinatology so they will be equipped to function in their respective districts as coordinators of teams for the care and treatment of high risk mothers and infants.

As a nation, the U.S. ranks "rather poorly" in its infant mortality, said Mrs. Lawler, behind 14 other industrialized countries.

"The state of North Carolina, furthermore, compares quite unfavorably to the national averages, since it is rated 44th of the 50 states in infant mortality," she added.

"And the eastern part of the state has constantly contributed the highest figures to complete this bleak picture."

She said that while a trend of stabilization in infant deaths has occurred elsewhere in North Carolina, eastern North Carolina's infant deaths have been rising.

Statistics of infant mortality include fetal mortality (still-born) neonatal mortality (first 28 days), postneonatal mortality (28 days to 12 months) and premature births in which the fetus weighs less than 2,500 grams.

"The concepts our program is designed to put into practice here in eastern North Carolina are already at work and are proving most effective in many medical centers," Mrs. Lawler said.

"However the most serious and frequent maternal and child health problems arise not in relatively affluent metropolitan areas but rather in the rural isolated geographic pockets, such as our region.

"A comprehensive program dealing with the mother and infant at risk must be structured in eastern North Carolina to combat this blight in the health care system," she said.

Mrs. Lawler said the full implementation of an effective perinatal program would involve the purchase and use of more sophisticated equipment, improved methods of educating the public about perinatal problems, and the establishment of home support teams for high nursing school and at intensive care nurseries, hospitals and health departments in Greenville, Kinston, Durham and Wake County.

Instructional staff includes members of the ECU nursing and allied health professions faculties and several physicians.

At the end of the program's clinical and lecture sessions, each nurse should be able to identify high risk pregnancies; work with other health professionals on appropriate prenatal treatment; instruct delivery room staff to increase their awareness of new techniques and equipment; work with nursery staff in improved identification and care of high risk newborn infants; and help with follow-up programs involving special clinics, home visiting and family planning services.

Among the factors which might indicate a high risk pregnancy are a potential mother's diabetes, hypertension, toxemia, renal disease, heart disease, thyroid disease, anemia, multiple pregnancy, adolescence, advanced age, emotional problems or bad outcome of a previous pregnancy. Alta Whaley, a Pitt County nurse, was one of the participants.

Forefathers Had A Way With Herbs

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer
Weekending not long ago at a venerable inn in the lovely Massachusetts village of Old Sturbridge, I learned some things I never knew about herbs, which form the basis of much New England cookery.

For one thing, New England housewives learned years ago that the seeds of the nasturtium, that quaint, funnel-shaped flower, make a pretty good substitute for capers, if you are whipping up a salad or sauce.

If there are no nasturtium seeds handy, take some fresh young peas and bottle them in vinegar for a couple of months.

A list of herbal hints was given us by an amiable young woman in the old village which is in reality a rambling museum area where you can watch villagers grind yellow cornmeal the way our forefathers did and demonstrate how to cook in brick ovens.

Some of the hints were pretty far out. One said that anyone who shies away from drinking black coffee at night should, as a substitute, drop some mint into boiling water and sweeten the mixture with honey. Coffee still sounds better.

I was interested in the soup bags housewives use in the area. Much like the French bouquet garni, these two-inch squares of cheesecloth tied with string are filled with a mixture of dried and powdered herbs including parsley, savory, thyme, chervil and marjoram.

The bag is dropped into whatever soup the lady of the house happens to be making about 20 minutes before it is ready.

Two other methods of spicing up soup were suggested.

—Tie together with string two sprigs of fresh parsley, summer savory, thyme and marjoram and lower that into the bubbling soup about 15 minutes.

—Cut a slice or so of bread into small cubes after spreading lavishly with butter. Sprinkle the bread cubes with parsley, chives and thyme and toast under the broiler. Just before serving put two or three bread cubes into each soup bowl. I tried that one and it's delicious.

Here is a recipe they gave me for New England vegetable soup that goes well with any of these herb seasoning methods. When I made it, I added dry red wine which gives more depth of flavor.

1 large onion
1 cup celery diced
2 carrots sliced
1 quart water
4 tablespoons butter
4 ounces dry red wine
2 potatoes sliced
1 tomato sliced
2 beef cubes dissolved in water
Salt and pepper to taste

Saute onion and celery in butter till slightly browned. Add carrots and tomato to water and wine in soup kettle. When partly cooked add potatoes, onion, beef cubes and cook slowly till vegetables are tender. Add herbs by any of three methods suggested above.

Nominations For Heel Of The Year

Slim is good looking, clean shaven, and believe it or not, he wears his dark, wavy hair cut short. He's a sharp dresser and a natural born salesman with a million-dollar smile and true-blue eyes, like Paul Newman.

He came into the cocktail lounge where I'm a waitress, had two drinks and we started talking. Then he discovered somebody had lifted his wallet. I took care of his bill, and then he asked me if he could see me home after work. I said okay. (We used my car because his was in the shop.)

When we got to my place, he said his pad was being painted and asked if he could sleep on my couch. I said okay. The next day, he drove me to work in my car, and promised to pick me up after work. He never showed up. You guessed it. That heel had taken everything in my apartment he could hock, and he took off with my car. Not only that, but I lent him $100. The police found my car in a town 300 miles away, and Slim is still missing. Sign me. . . .

LEMON PICKER

DEAR ABBY: The Heel of the Year has got to be my daughter's former boyfriend. He is 24, and my daughter is 19. He got her in a family way and said he couldn't marry her until he straightened out a few problems. The "problems" were two other single girls (ages 16 and 17) and one wife my daughter never even knew he had. The three of them were also pregnant by him.

Sure, we could take him to court, but what good would that do? I can think of a good punishment for him but you couldn't print it in the paper. Please send the Heel of the Year medal to this sex maniac in Chicago. Thank you.

MRS. J.

DEAR ABBY: Can the Heel of the Year be a woman? If so, I'd like to nominate daughter-in-law, Nellie. She is 27 and my son is 22.

Nellie has four kids, ages two, three, four and five. After my son married her, she got him to legally adopt her kids. As soon as the papers were signed, Nellie said she got a telephone call from her brother in Los Angeles saying their mother was dying, so she had to fly there at once. She drew all the money out of my son's and her joint checking account and flew to California.

Nobody heard a thing from Nellie for three weeks. Then she sent my son a telegram from Hong Kong saying she wasn't coming back. No return address.

Now my son has four kids and no wife.

DETROIT GRANDMA (AGE 39)

DEAR ABBY: I think the title of "Heel of the Year" should go to that no good so-and-so who robbed the blind man who sells papers and magazines on the corner near my house.

It was bad enough to rob the poor old guy, but he beat him up so bad he had to go to the hospital.

JOE IN THE BRONX

DEAR ABBY: Heel of the Year is the person who broke into my house and cleaned me out while I was out of town attending my father's funeral. They backed up a truck and took everything. They didn't leave even a light bulb!

STRIPPED IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ABBY: For Heel of the Year, please take my husband. He told me that this year the office Christmas party was for employees only—no wives of husbands allowed. Naturally, I stayed home and my husband went alone. (He came home at 4 A.M.)

I found out later that wives and husbands WERE invited, and he had told everyone at the party that I was home, sick in bed.

Workshop Is Planned For Thursday

Five North Carolina Methodist Conference leaders and two district officers will be among the women speakers and discussion leaders at a workshop Thursday composed of United Methodist Women officers, circle chairwomen, program coordinators and mission coordinators, for the purpose of becoming even better informed of their respective jobs.

The workshops will be held at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church and will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the chapel, it was announced by Mrs. J. C. Whitehurst, Jr. and Mrs. William H. Taft Sr., co-chairwomen of the event. Methodists from St. James Church and Holy Trinity have been invited to attend. Any other interested persons are urged to participate.

Conference leaders, who will be speaking in the chapel, are Mrs. D. K. Frye of Durham, conference president, and Mrs. Marvin Vick of Raleigh, chairman of Leadership Development.

Others participating on the program in addition to Mrs. Whitehurst and Mrs. Taft will include Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh, Jarvis United Methodist Women president, the Rev. James H. Bailey, pastor of Jarvis, and the Rev. John Farmer, associate pastor.

Workshops discussion leaders will include Mrs. Argus Cameron of Fayetteville, chairman of Christian Personhood, Mrs. Billy Cutrell of Kinston, district president, and Mrs. James E. Boone of Kinston, district coordinating officer of Supportive Community.

A question and answer period will be followed by a brief meditation and commitment led by Mrs. Frye.

Slave Cells Still Standing

By DAVE BARTEL
Associated Press Writer

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — The cries of slaves had faded with the centuries, but Sister Evangeline Thomas was astonished by the barred dungeon cells that were the last African homes of ancestors of modern American blacks.

The crumbling slave fortresses that line the West African coast told part, but only part, of the story sought by the small, gray-haired nun and her companions.

At home in Salina, Kan., after a two-month stay in Africa, Sister Evangeline called up memories and impressions of the world's least understood continent.

"We were seeking the roots of the American black," she said of the Ethnic Heritage Seminar funded by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. For the nun and 27 other U.S. college administrators and faculty members the roots were richer than even imagination allowed.

"I saw 3,000 years of history," Sister Evangeline said with a note of wonder. "I walked through the palaces of kings who ruled before our own continent had even been found. I saw artifacts and terra cotta that go far into the past."

Sister Evangeline visited four nations, all under military government, in West Africa. She spent a month in Togo and made shorter visits to Dahomey, Nigeria and Ghana.

"All along the coast are the fortresses where slaves were shipped to the New World," she said. The silent dungeon of a fortress built before Columbus discovered America bore testimony to the brutality of the past. It was a brutality inflicted by both blacks and whites.

"There were fierce intertribal wars at that time and the victors would sell the conquered peoples as slaves," she explained. Dutch slave traders then forcibly transported the victims to America and Brazil.

"Everywhere I went I was in the minority," she said, "but I never was made to feel that it was important. The people are so gentle and very hospitable. They couldn't do enough for us."

The aid of the African governments, U.S. embassies and the seminar's staff opened up areas the typical tourist never sees and allowed the seminar members to travel the "bush country" where little has changed in centuries.

"Agriculture is the basic industry throughout these countries," Sister Evangeline said. "In the villages, everyone works to eke out a living. Even the children are traders and the market is the center of the village life."

"In some places in the bush country, the children had never seen a white face and they were frightened," she said, "but when they understood we were friendly, they came running to see us."

The institutions of higher education were a special interest for Sister Evangeline, a 36-year veteran of college teaching who holds a doctor's degree in history and has done extensive work in anthropology.

"They choose the smart young natives and send them to school," Sister Evangeline said. "Many are trained in the United States and then return to their countries because they feel a responsibility to others. Those who have gone up in life are helping bring up the rest."

"Women have found their places in these countries," she said. "Everywhere there are women in high positions and much of the trade is in the hands of women."

The prominence of African women stems from the ancient custom of selecting tribal leaders according to their mother's lineage, Sister Evangeline said.

Returning this fall to her tasks as director of college relations at Marymount College, Sister Evangeline is working on a plan to send Marymount students on a similar seminar to experience Africa firsthand.

"That's the only way we'll ever understand people and appreciate them," she said. "We have to forget there is such a thing as color and learn to live in one world."

'Change' Runs Into Real Needs

The joint N.C. Senate House Government Expenditures Commission expects to recommend far reaching changes in the operation of state government.

Sen. I.C. Crawford, D-Buncombe, said that "unbelievable waste in state government is costing millions each year."

Among the changes already recommended is elimination of the Crime Study Commission, Courts Commission and other state commissions. State funds for civil defense would be eliminated as well as 17 area supervisors for the Department of Transportation.

Crawford said the commission would like to see all printing appropriations cut by one third and elimination of legislative liaison positions.

There would be no more supervisory positions created except in extreme emergency. There would have to be substantiation for purchase orders and controls of public vehicles and aircraft would be rigid.

The commission also would like to cut costs of highway rest stops, highway beautification and mandate that no new law school be established by the state.

We think the commission is on the right track. Like so many things a sweeping mandate concerning expenditures for personnel equipment or buildings often runs headon into legitimate needs. The important thing though is that everyone in state government, from the Legislature and the governor right on down become accustomed to looking at every new expenditure to make absolutely certain that it is going to benefit those taxpayers who are turned to to pay the bills. If it does not meet this test, then the funds should not be spent.

We have come through some years of rapidly growing revenues for North Carolina and in every budget we have added new programs with relative ease. Revenue growth is now slowing. This doesn't mean that we can't continue to expand public services. It does mean, though, that we must get full benefit for every dollar spent. We think the Government Expenditures Commission can be a big help in this.

THIS AFTERNOON

Slowdown For State Jobs

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Salaries and fringe benefits for state employees make up between 60 and 70 per cent of the state's spending each year, so it is natural to expect a "hard-times" budget to trim employment.

The new budget just delivered by Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr. attempts to put the brakes on new state jobs, calling for 4,658 new employees in the coming two fiscal years.

That is a sharp drop from the 13,248 added to the state payroll in the past two years, and slows down considerably the rapid growth rate in expansion of state jobs. State employment shot up from 129,617 in 1973 to 142,945 at the present. In 1977, the total will be 147,603.

But Holshouser will oppose any efforts to freeze state employment, as some legislators have suggested, and will fight against eliminating vacant state jobs even though considerable savings could be gained through such a step.

Bad Timing

"It would be bad timing to put a freeze on state jobs at a time when 200,000 North Carolinians are out of work, and these jobs are available," Holshouser said as he thumbed through a disarrayed stack of reports on his desk.

Finding the up-to-date unemployment report, the governor ran his finger down the column of statistics and groaned: "I never thought we would see this in North Carolina." The unemployment total was moving strongly upward over the last three months, nearing 12 per cent.

"Now, this does not mean that we want to fill state jobs just to be filling them—if the job is not needed. But we can help people have some income."

Aside from providing needed jobs, the governor also rejects the idea of eliminating vacant jobs if unfilled for 90 days as suggested by some experts because "sometimes vacancies remain for long periods because we can't find the right person."

The Governor's Efficiency Study Commission last year suggested that as many as 3,000 of a total 4,600 jobs vacant in state government had existed for over 90 days. "The vast majority were not intended to be filled. The accumulated monies amount to a contingency fund for various agencies and departments. This practice causes both budget and manpower needs to be overstated," that report said.

The Department of Transportation was pinpointed as the chief offender, with some 500 jobs described as not needed. Secretary Troy Doby recently said the payroll has been trimmed by about that number—due to economic conditions. Human Resources has also undergone trimming.

Out Of Date

The governor admitted that reliable employment figures are hard to come by. "We asked for the information (recently) on state vacancies, and in looking down the list found that State needs a basketball coach." Of Course Norm Sloan is coach at state, so the list must be three or more years old.

But last week, the governor ordered an up-to-the-minute survey of job vacancies throughout state government, a request which sent shock waves through state government. Rumors ran through the General Assembly and state agencies

Advice From Everybody

WASHINGTON — The building was on fire and had been for a while. By the time the fire department arrived, flames were pouring out the windows. Fire Chief Gerry Ford drove up, sirens screaming. He got out of his car and was immediately surrounded by his advisers.

"What do you think I ought to do?" he said.

"You've got to pour water on the fire to put it out."

"That's a good idea," he agreed.

"Wait," said another adviser. "If we pour too much water on the fire, the building will collapse."

"Good point," Chief Ford said.

"I think," said another adviser, "the first thing we have to do is save the people."

"No," another adviser said. "We have to save the building."

"We can always build another building," an adviser protested. "Let's get the people out."

"Foam would be better than water," another adviser yelled.

"Foam is too expensive," someone else said. "We've always put out fires with water before, and we will do it again."

"But this fire isn't like any other fire we've ever fought."

"I think we should let it go a little while longer," a lieutenant suggested. "It could burn itself out."

"A tough fire takes tough measures, Chief. Let's go."

"I like to hear everyone's opinion," Chief Ford said. "Try to draw up a plan in which we could save both the people and the building."

As the chief's lieutenants worked out different plans on the hood of the car, sirens were heard in the distance.

"What's that?" the chief asked.

"That's the 94th Democratic Congressional Fire Brigade. We need them to put out the fire."

The congressional fire brigade roared up and jumped off the trucks. They all stared at the building and shook their heads.

Chief Ford stood on the top of a hook and ladder.

"Men, the state of this building is bad. I don't want any applause."

There was none.

"I am determined to put this fire out, but I need your help. Now here is my plan."

"It stinks," a fireman shouted.

"An outrage," another fireman shouted.

"Wait a minute. You haven't heard it yet," the chief said.

"This is our plan," a fireman said. "We will save the people and put out the fire."

"But that's my plan," the fire chief protested.

"Yeah, but we know how to do it," the fireman said. "We have to put a lot of water on the building."

"That costs money, and I may need some water for another fire," Chief Ford said.

"Don't worry about other fires. Get this one out," the members of the fire brigade shouted.

The fire chief said, "I'm

Other Editors Say Suburbia Revisited

(Baltimore Sun)

Modern sprawling suburbia is supposed to be unsuited for mass transit. Modern suburbia also is reputed, with some justice, to be a sterile sociological disaster. Advocates of land-use legislation often call for a new kind of suburb, one that would be compact enough to be served by fixed-rail mass transit as well as being more conducive to neighborliness and creation of community. A small Connecticut suburb, Westport, has managed to create for itself both a workable mass transit system and a greater sense of community—within the context of the sprawling kind of growth that is supposed to be conducive to neither.

The revolution in Westport came through the city's acquisition of a fleet of eight 16-passenger Mercedes-Benz diesel buses. As simple as that. The buses were placed on 35-minute schedules between outlying areas and the downtown Jessup Square. They stop anywhere to pick up riders, and with criss-cross route patterns, they go virtually everywhere in the little bedroom community.

Citizens can buy annual bus tickets, $25 for couples, $7 apiece for children and $15 for the elderly. The new bus system has begun to unify the town in dozens of ways. Children, for instance, are much more able to move about on their own, and mothers, no longer stuck with taking the kids to scout meetings, dancing classes, etc., have time to socialize more or to take part-time jobs. The buses have rendered the elderly, so many of whom cannot drive, mobile once again. And they have given children and teenagers a new kind of independence which they lacked in the past till they were old enough to get their own cars. No doubt Westport is a very particular kind of community; it has a population of only 27,000 and the per capita income is far above average. But the idea, with modifications, might be made suitable for most suburbs, including those in the Baltimore area.

The INSIDE REPORT

Back-Scratching Politics

WASHINGTON—The uncouth resemblance of the celebrated "revolution" on Capitol Hill to Tammany Hall politics forcefully struck one idealistic freshman Congressman Wednesday as he entered the House Democratic Caucus to complete the purge of undesirable committee chairman and destruction of the seniority system.

The newcomer was supporting Rep. Henry Reuss of Wisconsin, the respected reformer and economic expert, as chairman of the Banking Committee in place of 82-year-old Rep. Wright Patman, the dictatorial, eccentric Texas populist. Thus, it was with surprise and dismay that this freshman heard Reuss solicit his vote to retain autocratic Rep. Wayne Hays as chairman of the House Administration Committee and reject his reform challenger; Rep. Frank Thompson of New Jersey.

This was a tangible piece of evidence supporting the cloakroom suspicion of a strange-bedfellows alliance between reformer Reuss and anti-reformer Hays for no higher purpose than mutual survival. Since the caucus was also on a binge of back-scratching politics, the alliance worked and both were elected.

The effectiveness of the Hays-Reuss alliance underscores this disturbing fact: House Democrats had no clear standard in choosing purge victims. While Common Cause's analysis set forth non-ideological criteria (opposing both liberal Patman and conservative Hays for autocratic behavior), each Congressman had his own standard. Some followed the Common Cause criteria; more inclined to ideology; more guided by personality and the candidates' campaigns.

"I am afraid," one senior liberal Congressman confided to us, "we are ending up, with something worse than seniority." That "something" could resemble the biennial scramble in state legislatures where, without seniority standards, chairmanships are bartered in an orgy of Tammany politics. With no effective leadership to control the bartering here, the process could degenerate into parliamentary anarchy.

Certainly, the nervous party leadership emerged from two weeks of barter even more enfeebled. Speaker Carl Albert, too honest to hide his total befuddlement, was impotent. The more aggressive majority leader, Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts, was weakened by his poorly concealed support of efforts to purge Hays.

Nor did Rep. Philip Burton

Is Ford's A Complete Package?

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A more independent Congress that has some serious questions about the Ford administration energy-economic program is likely to produce some hot debates over the next few weeks.

Helping to generate the heat is the President's contention that his program is a package of inter-related measures that cannot be broken down and re-constructed without suffering critically and perhaps fatally.

But economists already are picking apart the ingredients. Governors of states in the Northeast contend the energy tax is discriminatory. Labor insists the tax rebates be more to the advantage of the poor.

Bankers are still trying to make up their minds. They would like to believe that deficits of $35 billion and in excess of $40 billion in successive years won't force up interest rates, but are arguing among themselves.

Insurance men, who must watch interest rates with a magnifying glass and measure every fractional change, are beginning to lose faith in the prospect for lower rates.

Kenneth Wright, chief economist of the American Life Insurance Association, told members a few days ago: "The normal expectation in a period of deepening recession, reduced inflation rates, and prospective easing of monetary policy would be for a substantial downturn in both long and short-term interest rates."

"In the year ahead, however, a record amount of long-term corporate financing is in prospect and the need for Treasury financing

Voting By The Button

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Senate took several hours last week for debate over the rules to govern its new electronic voting system. The system includes a little console at each member's desk with a red button for a "no" vote and a green button for a "yes" vote.

When the voting period is over, a big scoreboard on either side of the chamber flashes the votes and the totals. A computer printout follows.

The Senators seemed worried about two things. What would happen if they forget the difference between red and green and pushed the wrong button? And, would the new system make it easier for the folks back home to keep up with the way their legislators are voting?

Those objections were overcome. But the truth is that the Senate should be so lucky to worry about wrong buttons and accountability.

The real danger in electronic voting became apparent when a distinguished man in a grey frock coat and a Van Dyke beard was discovered late one afternoon in the empty Senate chamber. He was inspecting the machines with consuming interest.

It was Dr. Sigmund Neurosis, the famous Viennese psychiatrist. In an exclusive interview, he explained what he was doing there.

"My boy, you have obviously never read the works of men like myself and B. F. Skinner regarding behavior modification," he began. I had to admit that he was right.

"Behavior modification involves stimulus and response. Take the pigeon. Normally, he behaves in a very erratic manner. In experiments we have demonstrated that if you give the pigeon a mild electric shock each time he does something objectionable, within a very short time you can eliminate the objectionable behavior."

I was beginning to see the light. "You mean you could wire up the electronic voting system so that whoever controlled it could administer shock to Senators who voted the wrong way? That's diabolical."

"Nothing in science is diabolical. We only do research. It is up to the politicians to use it for good or evil," Dr. Neurosis replied tartly.

"But to answer your question, that would be a very primitive application. It would probably result only in more Senators absenting themselves from the chamber when votes are taken. I believe they refer to it as 'taking a walk.'"

"Let me describe a more sophisticated experiment," he continued. "In this one, an electrode was implanted in the pleasure centers of the brains of white mice. When they pressed the right button, they got a voltage jolt in the pleasure center. It sent them into paroxysms of ecstasy. It got so the mice would rather push the button than eat. They starved, of course, but they died happy."

BROAD IS THE WAY

If you have ever driven over back country roads in the mountains you are aware of how dangerous they appear to be. Precipices yawn at every curve, and often there are no guardrails to prevent a plunge into the abyss.

Yet accidents almost never occur on such roads. The people who use them know their danger and therefore drive very carefully. Actually the most dangerous roads are the superhighways. They seem so safe that people tend to drive too fast. Therefore, in effect, the wider the road, the greater the danger; the more narrow and precipitous the road, the greater the safety.

Transfer this situation into the realm of morals and ponder these words: "Wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many are they that enter in thereby. For narrow is the gate, and straitened the way, that leadeth into life, and few are they that find it."

U.S. Bridge Team May Leave World Tourney

SOUTHAMPTON, Bermuda (AP) — The United States team was expected to withdraw from the world contract bridge tournament today in protest against the failure of the World Bridge Federation to expel two Italian players accused of cheating by using foot signals.

After discussing the charges by an American journalist and others against Gianfranco Facchini and Sergio Zucchelli for nearly eight hours, the federation's appeals committee announced the two Italians were "severely reprimanded for unnatural movements of their feet and touching their partner's feet."

Allegations against the two Italians resulted in the postponement until this afternoon of the fifth round match between Italy and the United States. But the U.S. team announced earlier it would not play against a team that included Facchini and Zucchelli, and the Italian team said it would quit the tournament if the two players were suspended.

It was the second cheating scandal during a world tournament in 10 years. During the 1965 matches in Buenos Aires, Terence Reese and Boris Schapiro of the British team were accused of using finger signals. The British team, in a close race with the United States for second place, forfeited its games and ended up last. The bridge federation suspended Reese and Schapiro for three years.

Italy and the United States had been expected to be the finalists in the tournament this year.

Federation officials took extensive steps to prevent cheating this year. During bidding, each table is divided by screens so that no player can exchange illegal hand or facial signals with his partner.

However, Bruce Keidan, a spokesman for the Philadelphia Inquirer, reported what he considered questionable foot movements by Facchini and Zucchelli at one table Friday night. Several officials of the federation then observed the two players.

Keidan reported that Zucchelli kept his feet in a fixed position under the table and that during the bidding period, while the screens were in place to shield players from eye contact, Facchini occasionally reached out one foot and tapped his partner's feet. Keidan said the tap was occasionally a double one and that on rare occasions Facchini tapped both of Zucchelli's feet.

After postponing the U.S.-Italian match, tournament officials decided to place coffee tables under the playing table to keep the players' feet apart.

In the play Sunday, the Americans lost to France and then scored an easy win over Indonesia. France also defeated Indonesia. This put the Italians and French in a tie for first place with 63 points each. Then came the United States with 53, Brazil 31, and Indonesia 28. However, Italy and the United States made their total in four matches while France's was made in five.

Basic First Aid Classes

Pitt Technical Institute will conduct a 12 course of Basic First Aid, beginning at 7:00 p.m. Tuesday in room 209.

The class will meet from 7:00-10:00 p.m. for four sessions, Jan. 28, Feb. 3, 6, and 10.

Satisfactory completion of the course meets the First Aid requirements of the Pitt County American Red Cross and also the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA).

The course is open and available to any interested citizens (eighteen years of age and not enrolled in public school).

Due to the short duration of the course one should plan to attend the first and all other sessions. No pre-registration is required. Books can be purchased the first session for a total cost of $4.60. ($2.00 textbooks, $2.60 workbooks).

For further information interested persons may visit Pitt Technical Institute or telephone 756-3130, Extension 38.

LONDON (AP) — The century-old dream of linking Britain and France with a tunnel under the English Channel is once again on the shelf, a victim of the world economic crisis.

Britain's Labor government announced Jan. 20 it was pulling out of a joint enterprise with France that was to be inaugurated in 1980. The House of Commons endorsed the decision by a 76-vote margin but more than 100 legislators abstained.

"The present project is now dead," environment secretary Anthony Crosland told the House. Environmentalists and "Little England" isolationists cheered loudly; railwaymen and their delegates, builders and seafaring-prone travelers stated their regrets.

Backers of this country's continued membership in the European Common Market had felt the tunnel would strengthen ties with the Continent.

The French government expressed its regrets over Britain's "unilateral" action in cancelling out. Cornelius Berkhout, president of the European Parliament in Strasbourg, called the move "a serious blow to European unification efforts." Berkhout called for a Common Market consortium to go ahead with the project.

But few on each side of the Channel regretted the saving, in the present parlous economic times, of the $5 billion the project was slated to cost.

Crosland told the House of Commons the government was forced to scrap the project — popularly known here as "the chunnel" — because the two companies charged with building the project, the British Channel Tunnel Co., and the Societe Francaise du Tunnel sous la Manche, refused a request to set back the whole enterprise for one year. They demanded that the two governments commit themselves definitely as of now to the project.

The project called for the driving of three tunnels, each 35 miles long, under the seabed of the Channel that connects the North Sea with the Atlantic Ocean and makes Britain an offshore island. A distance of 23 of the 35 miles would be under water with the tunnel exits at Cheriton near Dover, England, and Sangatte near Calais in France. Two of the tunnels would carry single-track, high-speed rail lines. These two main tunnels were to be linked by a series of crossovers so that sections could be taken out of action for servicing without halting both tunnels.

The third service tunnel was to be built between and below the other two with links to both every 250 yards.

Car and truck-ferrying shuttle trains were to transport vehicles from one side to the other, sandwiched in between through passenger or freight trains.

The estimate was 30 million passengers a year by 1990, 40 per cent of them traveling with their automobiles, and 10 million tons of freight.

Engineers said travel time between London and Paris would be cut to less than three hours, about the time it takes an air traveller now to get from the center of one city to the center of the other.

Crosland told legislators the cancellation would cost the British government the equivalent of $48 million with a like amount to be paid by the French government. But it was not clear that the French government will readily agree to pay its share since it has emphasized the unilateral aspect of the cancellation by Britain.

Although the dream founded on economic grounds, many in this country viewed construction of the channel with mixed feelings after centuries of relying on the English Channel as a first line of defense against invasion from the Continent. After all, the strip of water held both Napoleon and Hitler at bay.

Yet proposals for linking this island kingdom with the mainland, either by tunnel or bridge, have been advanced for centuries. The first proposal for a tunnel was made to Napoleon by French engineer Albert Mathieu in 1802.

The first feasibility studies and test borings were made on both sides of the channel in 1883 and the results of those tests were used by the present-day contractors in their studies in 1971.

The tunnel proposals advanced in the days of Queen Victoria in the last century foresaw a 32-mile tunnel, lit by gaslamps, through which horse-drawn carriages, char-a-bancs or freight wagons would be driven. The crossing of the channel was expected to take 2½ hours, compared to the 31 minutes of the present-day scheme.

Opponents of the proposal 100 years ago were led by the British military establishment which drew lurid pictures of hordes of French soldiers, even anarchists and other revolutionaries, pouring through the tunnel to invade defenseless Britain.

As war clouds gathered in Europe toward the end of the century, the project was abandoned.

AT MEETING—Cadets Kerry D. Bowers (L) and Gary L. North (R) of the East Carolina University Air Force ROTC Detachment are shown here with the 1975 March of Dimes poster child, Jamie Weaver. Both Cadets attended a regional meeting of the March of Dimes in Atlanta, Georgia. There, they met with delegates from neighboring states to go over new dimensions of March of Dimes programs aimed at birth defects. This year the AFROTC Detachment of ECU will be collecting donations on February 1, as they carry out their annual March-a-thon for the March of Dimes. Collections will be taken on street corners throughout Pitt County.

gregarious and congenial than Poage, Tiger Teague was not challenged as chairman of the House Science Committee. But a third Southern conservative, Rep. F. Edward Herbert of Louisiana, was purged as Armed Services Committee chairman partly because he could not resist taunting its junior liberal members.

That generates questions: Would Herbert have survived if he had been more diplomatic? Probably, say House reformers. Would Herbert have survived if he had been ornery but liberal? Definitely. Would Herbert have survived if he had been chairman of the less sensitive Science Committee? Maybe. Would Teague, no less conservative than Herbert, survive as Armed Services Committee chairman? Most surely.

That adds up to a mish-mash cross between college fraternity politics and a Byzantine Kremlin power struggle, lacking any serious yardstick. Nor is this likely to be the end of it. In the wake of seniority, the caucus may well commemorate its burial every two years by punishing chairmen who offend the majority.

The important Appropriations Committee seems certain to be fought over in 1977. The surprisingly heavy vote against its esteemed but conservative chairman, Rep. George Mahon of Texas, was secretly engineered by committee members overtly backing him. Rather than risk humiliation two years hence, Mahon may retire from Congress. If so, reformers plan to bypass at least the next three members of the committee as out of tune with the times.

Appropriations Committee senior members will not be alone spending the next two years seeking that yardstick of unwritten standards for committee chairmen. Rep. Al Ullman of Oregon, the new chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, must confront energy-economic questions of supreme importance and sensitivity. While the bad old seniority system would have protected him in past years, today he must worry about a wrong stand here or a wrong word there firing up King Caucus to depose him.

Parked Car Said Looted

Two guitars, valued at $620, were reported taken from a car parked near the intersection of Fourth and Reade Streets Saturday night.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the musical instruments were taken from a vehicle owned by James Warren of 812 College View Apts. The theft was reported at 10 p.m.

According to Cannon, a coat hanger was probably used to unlock the vehicle.

Plan Seminar On Genealogy

NEW BERN—The Eastern N. C. Genealogical Society will sponsor a seminar Saturday, Feb. 1, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

The event will be held at the Craven Community College. The subject will be "American Genealogical Sources" and Ronald A. Bremer of GENCOR, Inc., Salt Lake City, Utah, will be the lecturer.

The public is invited to attend at no charge.

"We'll have to meet on that," the fire brigade said.

They all stood around the hook and ladders arguing about how to put out the fire. Meanwhile, the chief went back to his car to work on a different plan.

As all this was taking place the flames from the towering inferno kept licking away, and high over all the firemen and equipment in the street could be heard the piercing cries of the trapped people shouting "H-E-LLLLLLL-LLLLPPPPP!"

It is estimated that two trillion miles are covered each year by ground and air passengers in the U.S.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina hog markets were steady to 25 cents lower today. Tops of 38.00-38.50 Rocky Mount; 38.50-39.00 Kinston; 36.50-37.00 Tarboro and Bethel; 38.00 Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers: Market steady, supplies adequate and demand good. Weights trending lighter. The North Carolina f.o.b. dock weighted average price for less than truck lots of sized plant grade broilers to be picked up at docks this week is 41.44 cents per pound.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market boomed ahead in record-breaking trading today, impelled by falling interest rates and an evident favorable reaction to a court ruling on a case involving International Business Machines Corp.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 17.60 at 684.21, and gainers swamped losers by about an 8-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume on the Big Board for the first hour was 9.29 million shares, breaking the previous opening-hour record of 9.24 million set Feb. 13, 1973.

Brokers said lower interest rates were a big factor in the rally because they were tending increasingly to prompt investors to shift money out of interest-bearing investments and into stocks.

The market was also evidently jubilant over a federal appeals court's decision late Friday overturning an antitrust ruling against IBM in a case brought by Telex Corp.

The Securities and Exchange Commission halted trading in the stocks of the two companies until Tuesday to give investors time to absorb the news.

"The decision radiates positively out of other big companies involved in antitrust action," said Robert Stovall at Reynolds Securities. "And it also has the effect of showing that the coin can come up heads for investors once in a while."

Among large office-equipment issues, Xerox was up 3 1/2 to 63 1/2; Burroughs added 2 to 69 1/2 and Digital Equipment gained 1 1/2 to 57 1/2.

The NYSE's 11 a.m. composite index was up .78 to 39.62.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index rose .96 to 72.01.

California Computer Products, which filed a suit against IBM after the original ruling for Telex and against IBM, dropped 1 1/2 to 4 1/2 on the Amex.

Ambushed 2 Policemen

OCONOMOWOC, Wis. (AP) — A 16-year-old youth has admitted shooting two police to death in an ambush Sunday, Waukesha County authorities said today.

The youth signed a statement late Sunday confessing to the two killings as well as the Jan. 11 slaying of a Summit man and four recent burglaries, they added.

Sheriff Edward O'Connor and Dist. Atty. Jerome Cahill said there was no immediate reason for the ambush of the two policemen, who were members of the five-man rural township police force in the town of Summit.

Cahill's office said the youth was scheduled to appear at a juvenile hearing today in Waukesha, where prosecutors would seek a waiver in order to charge him as an adult.

The bodies of patrolman Robert Atkins Jr., 28, and part-time patrolman Wayne Olson, 52, were discovered near their patrol car in Summit after police in nearby Oconomowoc were unable to raise the pair by radio.

Authorities said rifle shots punctured the car's windshield while it was parked behind the town hall which also serves as Summit's police headquarters.

Officials said the assailant apparently rode a bicycle to the scene and hid in evergreen shrubbery beside the building.

The bodies of the policemen were found outside the car. Authorities said Olson, apparently shot while in the driver's seat, may have been dragged from the car or may have staggered to some bushes.

They said Atkins staggered or ran from the vehicle with a leg wound and wounded himself again on the leg while trying to draw his service pistol before he was killed.

Police said the teenager provided information about four burglaries and the slaying two weeks ago of Ronald Hoeft, 43, who was shot while pursuing his car as someone drove it from his home.

Review Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to review the conviction of G. Gordon Liddy on Watergate burglary charges.

The court let stand a decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals here upholding Liddy's conviction on six counts of burglary, wiretapping and conspiracy. He was sentenced on March 23, 1973, to serve from six years and eight months to 20 years in prison and was fined $40,000.

Liddy was freed on bail Oct. 15 by U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell, but returned to prison after the Supreme Court refused on Jan. 13 to continue the bail.

Liddy served as counsel to former President Richard M. Nixon's re-election campaign in 1972.

Covered-Dish Dinner Friday

A covered-dish dinner was held at the American Legion Building Friday night at 7:30 by the members of People's Bible Church. The event was to welcome their new pastor and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Barry Bagwell.

Dr. Bagwell received his B.A. degree in sacred music at Tennessee Temple College and attended three years at Temple Baptist Theological Seminary for graduate work and completed it at Clarksville School of Theology, earning the Ph.D. degree in religion.

His wife, Freida, is a graduate of Bob Jones University and Tennessee Temple College.

Mrs. Archie Dickerson and Joe Toates gave opening remarks. Gifts were presented to Dr. and Mrs. Bagwell.

Approximately 200 guests were present.

Many Chose Not To Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lack of interest and a general dislike for politics apparently helped hold voter participation in last year's elections to the lowest level in 32 years, the Census Bureau reports.

In interviews with voting age residents after November's state, local and congressional elections, 44.7 per cent of the people reported that they voted, the bureau reported Sunday.

Of those who were old enough to vote, 33.4 million persons, or 23.6 per cent, failed to either register or vote last year because they weren't interested or disliked politics. That compared to 20.2 million, or 15 per cent, who didn't vote or register for the same reasons in 1972.

When the final figures are tabulated later this year, Census Bureau officials expect the turnout to total about 38 per cent, the lowest since a 32 per cent showing in the 1942 elections. A big share of the electorate was overseas that year, officials pointed out.

The Census Bureau's opinion survey is designed to provide the reasons people didn't vote.

"It could save a lot of money if it can be done," Wooten said.

"We have asked them (the medical school) to consider these plans," according to Wooten. "But I don't think any decision should be made until a dean is chosen for the school of medicine."

In the meantime, Wooten said, "each one is trying to search every avenue" so no mistakes will be made.

The hospital board chairman emphasized, "what we want to do as a Board of Trustees... and the Board of County Commissioners want this too... we want to do what is in the best interest of the people of Pitt County. That's what we are after... offer the best service to the most people as the least cost. After all, the hospital is the property of the county tax payers."

Store Robbed By Armed Men

An armed robbery Saturday night at The Happy Store on the Pactolus Highway is under investigation by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that a couple operating the store told deputies they were robbed by two men carrying a sawed-off shotgun and a pistol.

The night clerks reported that the intruders took a small amount of money from the cash register and fled towards Pactolus. No one was hurt in the incident, according to the sheriff, who said the robbery was reported around 9:15 p.m.

The Happy Store, located near Parker's Chapel Church, was the scene of another robbery some three months ago.

Polite, But Thin Applause For Talk

RAMBLING IN THE HOUSE WITH SAM D. BUNDY

The main event of the week was the address and budget message of Governor Holshouser to the joint session of the General Assembly on Monday night, January 20th.

The recommended budget for 1975-77 biennium is 6.8 billion as compared to 6.1 billion for the 1973-75 biennium. This amount, of course, included the General Fund, the Highway Fund, Federal Government grants, and non-tax revenue funds. The Governor recommended no tax increase. However, he did recommend the repeal of the sales tax on food to take effect on July 1, 1976. This did not take well with the General Assembly at all. The Governor wants the tax to stay on while he is in office and then repeal it. It appears that he wants to eat his cake and have it too. Frankly, I don't think the General Assembly will buy this proposal. Local governments stand to lose millions of dollars and, if they do, the loss will have to be recouped by raising ad valorem taxes which, in my judgment, are high enough now. In my opinion, this should not be allowed to happen. I must say that the Governor's message was not as well received as his former messages have been. The applause of the members of the General Assembly was polite and thin.

Speaker of the House, Jimmy Green, is taking his time in making committee appointments at the time of writing this article. The only committee appointments made are Finance, Appropriations, Base Budget, State Personnel, Insurance, Rules, and Economy. So far I have been placed on State Personnel and Base Budget. I will say, however, that the Appropriations and Base Budget Committees have started their work.

I attended the Legislative Dinner sponsored by the North Carolina Hospital Association on Wednesday evening and enjoyed talking about hospital matters with Pitt County Memorial Hospital Administrator, Jack Richardson and board member, Wilton Duke. Friday morning at a Mental Health Breakfast, the Pitt County delegation sat with Melba Howard and Lib Le Conte of the Pitt County Mental Health Association.

See you next week.

Will Focus On Land-Use Plans

The League of Women Voters will focus on Land Use Planning at two meetings this week.

The Tuesday meeting will be held at 1713 Trement, at 8 o'clock. The Wednesday morning meeting will be held at 118 Oxford Road.

Both meetings are open to the public.

'Little Set-Back' Haunts Crosby Pro-Am Winner

NOT ENOUGH ENGLISH—Gene Littler leans back trying to coax the ball into the cup on the 12th green at Pebble Beach Sunday but it stayed out for a par. He went on to win the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am by four strokes. (AP Wirephoto)

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — It's characteristic of the man that Gene Littler sometimes, infrequently refers "to my little set-back of a couple of years ago."

He's a soft-spoken, unemotional, low-key type and generally is considered one of the finest gentlemen in the game of golf.

His "little set-back" was cancer.

He underwent surgery that involved some irreparable damage to shoulder muscles. His career appeared to be at an end. His life was in danger.

But the quietly courageous man came back, working, exercising, finally playing again. He came back to win the 1973 St. Louis Open. But there was always the thought lurking in his mind, he admitted, that maybe that one was a fluke.

"This is great," the usually poker-faced, 44-year-old man said with a broad smile. "This really proves that I'm back — that I can do it again. This was winning on a great golf course."

He won the 34th Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Sunday on the windswept crags and cliffs of the Pebble Beach Golf Links, one of the nation's most demanding and most spectacularly beautiful courses.

And he won over a premier field that included Johnny Miller, the young man who had captured the fancy of the country's golfing millions with his incredible, record-setting sweep of two Arizona tournaments. "There's not a lot to say," mused Miller, who seemed relieved that the intense pressure of constant, daily national attention had been shifted from him.

"I don't have any regrets," he said, "I tried hard on every shot."

"My game just needs rest," he continued. "There's nothing wrong with my game. I have the technical part of it down pat. It's now 90 per cent inspiration, 10 per cent perspiration."

And he'll now take a week's rest after a tournament in which he didn't break 70 in any round; this on the heels of eight consecutive rounds in the 60s. He finished with a 74 and a 289 total, nine shots back of Littler.

Littler, who has missed this event only a couple of times since 1953, owned a four-stroke lead entering the day's play, made eagle three on the second hole and really was never threatened. He needed only a final round of 73, one over par, in the final round and finished with a 280 total, eight under par.

Hubert Green, the lanky young man from Birmingham, Ala., with the crouched and curious putting stance, claimed second with the day's best round, a 69, and a 284 total.

Tom Kite, with a 70 the only other man to break par in the swirling winds that turned the final round into a golfing horror show, came out of the pack with a 70 for third at 285. Lou Graham birdied the final hole for a 75 and 287, the only other score under par for 72 holes.

Jack Nicklaus, making his first start of the year and faced with Miller's challenge to his spot as the game's No. 1 practitioner, never really got untracked. He had a closing 72 for 289.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Final top scores and money-winnings Sunday in the $185,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament on the 6,815-yard par-72 Pebble Beach Golf Links:

Gene Littler	$37,000
Hubert Green	$21,090
Tom Kite	$13,135
Lou Graham	$8,695
Forrest Fezler	$7,585
Dave Hill	$5,319
Jack Nicklaus	$5,319
Bruce Devlin	$5,319
Johnny Miller	$5,319
Leonard Thompson	$5,319
Rik Massengale	$5,319

Pack Meets 'New Look' Devils

By The Associated Press
North Carolina State gets its first taste of Duke's new-look Blue Devils in the only basketball game involving Atlantic Coast Conference teams tonight.

The big game of the week is Maryland at N.C. State at 1 p.m. Saturday on national television.

Duke under new coach Bill Foster, is a run-and-shoot team, but the State Wolfpack will still have the edge in speed.

State handled then-plodding Duke 92-78 and 113-87 on its way to the national championship last season.

To stay in the game with the pell-mell Wolfpack, it will be necessary for Duke to control the tempo a little. Last Wednesday, the Blue Devils engaged in a track meet with Wake Forest and lost 122-109 although they shot 63 per cent. N.C. State beat Wake Forest Saturday night, 106-80 in what coach Norman Sloan said might have been his Wolfpack's best game of the season.

Duke has good inside threats in 6-8 Bob Fleischer and Willie Hodge. Outside threats are deadeye Pete Kramer and guards Tate Armstrong and Kevin Billerman. All five are starters and are averaging in double figures.

Hodge scored 27 points and Kramer 22 as Duke defeated Princeton 90-73 Saturday night. The N.C. State at Duke game will be on television in North Carolina. After that game, ACC teams will play only on Wednesday and Saturday of this week.

On Wednesday night, Wake Forest will be at North Carolina, Duke will play Davidson in the Charlotte Coliseum, Virginia will be home to West Virginia, and Clemson will be home to The Citadel.

On Saturday, beside Maryland at N.C. State, Virginia will be at Duke in a regionally televised 3 p.m. game. That night, North Carolina will be at Clemson and Virginia Tech at Wake Forest.

Before N.C. State beat Clemson, Maryland took its second licking of the week Saturday. North Carolina went into its spread-out four corners offense with 12 minutes remaining, slowed down a shootout game, and upset Maryland 69-66 on the Terrapins' court. During an eight-minute stretch neither team scored.

"We went to the four corners so early because we had six team fouls and Maryland only one, and I never like those odds," said Tar Heel coach Dean Smith.

"If Maryland chooses to stand practically still and throw it around, we'll do that all day as long as we're ahead."

North Carolina went into the four corners trailing by one point. It sandwiched two baskets around one by Maryland to take the lead for good at 61-60 with 10 minutes remaining.

Maryland had lost 83-82 at Clemson on Wednesday.

North Carolina is now first in the ACC on a 4-1 league record and is 10-4 in all games. The other teams in order:

N.C. State 3-1, 12-2; Maryland

4-2, 13-3; Clemson 4-2, 9-7; Wake Forest 2-5, 9-7; Duke 1-3, 9-5; Virginia 1-5, 7-7.

WBA Okays Title Fight

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Muhammad Ali-Chuck Wepner heavyweight title fight has won one clear decision in out-of-ring political sparring and apparently will win another.

The March 24 fight between the unranked Wepner, a liquor salesman from Bayonne, N.J., and Ali in the Cleveland Coliseum has the green light from the World Boxing Association. But the World Boxing Council has balked, although its attitude is softening.

"I think there could be a possibility that the fight will come off," Ramon Velasquez, WBC president, said Sunday in an interview here, one day after he had sent messages to WBC Executive Board members stating: "If the fight takes place, the present champion will therefore be disqualified and procedures should get underway for boxers to dispute the vacant title."

Refusal of the WBC to sanction the fight could not automatically stop it from taking place.

Asked why the WBC sanctioned Joe Frazier heavyweight title defense against Terry Daniels, a virtual unknown who currently is fighting as a light heavyweight, in 1972, Velasquez replied that he didn't remember the fight — Frazier stopped Daniels in four rounds — and added: "Things have changed since then. We have a convention every year and the rules change ... What happened in the past is no reason it should happen in the future."

Velasquez said he is waiting for a response from Council members, especially J. Onslow fane, president of the British Boxing Board of Control, to a request by the fight's promoters, one of them being Video Technique, Inc., of New York, that the match be sanctioned.

The Wepner fight was made public by Herbert Muhammad and Don King of Video Techniques before either the WBA or the WBC has been contacted. Elias Cordoba of Panama, the WBA president, said Saturday that as soon as title authorization in requested and dues are paid, "we will officially recognize the fight."

New Coach For Razorbacks

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The University of Arkansas has named Don Boyce as the new offensive line coach of the Razorbacks.

Coach Frank Broyles said Boyce, who was offensive coordinator at Oklahoma State University last year, would replace Marvin Johnson, who resigned to join the staff at Notre Dame. Boyce coached in four bowl games — Oklahoma State's 1967 Orange Bowl and 1968 and 1970 Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl teams and Oklahoma State's Fiesta Bowl team of 1974.

Yarborough And Baker To Run In Daytona 500

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough and Buddy Baker, two racing veterans whose car owners are feeling the economy pinch, have entered the Feb. 16 Daytona 500 stock car race.

Yarborough's owner, the legendary Junior Johnson, lost his commercial sponsor after the 1974 campaign, as did ace builder Bud Moore, who owns the car Baker drove last year.

The two had thus been doubtful entries for the biggest race on the National Association for Stock Car Automobile Racing Winston Cup Grand National schedule. The Daytona 500 will pay close to $300,000 this year, including prize money for two 125-mile qualifying races.

The winner will be paid about $40,000, with $25,000 going to the runnerup.

With Yarborough and Baker in the fold, the entry list includes every regular on last year's $3.5 million tour, plus half a dozen others from other circuits.

Yarborough, who this year could become the fourth stock car driver to clear the $1-million hurdle in career winnings, finished No. 2 behind Richard Petty in both money and championship points last year.

Petty, in winning an unprecedented fifth Grand National driving title, banked $278,175 in prize money and will pick up an additional $85,000 in bonuses at the NASCAR victory dinner next month.

Yarborough, who matched Petty in victories, pocketed $245,010 and also will pick up some loose dollars at the banquet.

The field also includes Bobby Allison, a $112,400 winner last year and victorious at the last event in 1974 and the first one in this campaign, at Riverside, Calif., two weeks ago.

Petty has won five Daytona 500s, including the 1974 running. Strangely, David Pearson, who pocketed $214,615 in winnings last year, has never triumphed in the 500, though he has won Daytona's July 4 Firecracker 400 the last three years and four times overall.

Also in the field is all-time great A.J. Foyt, whose laurels also include a victory in the 1972 Daytona 500.

The Daytona 500 is a feature of Speed Weeks that open this weekend with the running of the 24-hour race featuring a sports car and sedan field that includes 22 foreign drivers.

Six other races are on the two-week program.

Tufts To Honor 'Unsung Hero'

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Brian Suslak, who came back from surgery for osteomyelitis to make an outstanding contribution to the Tufts University football program, will be honored tonight as New England's 1974 "Unsung Hero."

Suslak, a defensive tackle from Rye, N.Y., will receive the 26th annual award at the Boston Tobacco Table dinner. The table, a fraternal group not associated with the tobacco industry, makes the award to a New England college senior who has made unusual personal sacrifices to play football while receiving little notice.

Suslak underwent surgery on his left leg in July 1973, and helped as Tufts' line coach while recuperating. He returned as a first string player last fall.

Pirate-Paladin Showdown Is Due Saturday Night

By The Associated Press
Furman's two-time champion Paladins, who have spent most of the season trying to catch front-running East Carolina in the Southern Conference basketball race, can gain half a game tonight on the Pirates—but the real showdown doesn't come until Saturday.

The Paladins upped their league record to 4-0 last Satur-

A WORD FROM THE COACH—Cathy Rush, coach of the Immaculata College women's basketball team, gives her players a few words of advice Sunday during a time out in their nationally televised game with the University of Maryland in College Park, Md. The coach's advice worked and the Pennsylvania team rolled past Maryland 80 to 45. (AP Wirephoto)

Coach Apologetic Over First Showing On TV

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer
COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Immaculata had just trounced Maryland 80-48, but Coach Cathy Rush of the three-time national collegiate women's champion was a bit apologetic.
"We played a sloppy game," Mrs. Rush said Sunday, "and when people see us do that, they figure other teams must be a lot worse. We represent all of women's basketball, not just Immaculata."
The coach, whose teams have posted a 79-5 record since 1970 including 5-1 this season, was particularly upset because the Mighty Macs made 29 turnovers in a game televised to many parts of the nation.
"Everywhere we go," she said, "we play before the largest crowds ever to see a women's game in the area. I think the turnovers today were indicative of the pressure of playing on television."
Pressure didn't seem to bother Immaculata's Helen Canuso, a freshman guard from Holland, Pa. She scored 19 points, hitting nine of 15 shots from the floor.
"I was a little nervous because of television," Miss Canuso said. "But I put that out of my mind, because I was more worried about beating Maryland."
She sank seven of eight shots and scored 15 of her team's first 25 points, leading Immaculata to a 32-21 halftime lead. A

Riessen Hopes He Has Proven Singles Ability

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Marty Riessen hopes he has proved that he is more than a great doubles player and a perennial quarter-finalist.
"This was the biggest win of my career," said the 34-year-old Riessen of Evanston, Ill., after defeating 20-year-old Vitas Gerulaitis, 7-6, 5-7, 6-2, 6-7, 6-3 Sunday for the $15,000 first prize in the week-long U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championships.
Riessen, who won a tournament in Cincinnati last December, said, "Everyone has thought of me as a doubles player. I think I've proved that I can play singles, that I'm one of the best in the game."

The 6-foot-1 Riessen, for many years a U.S. Davis Cup player and a ranking star in the United States, feels winning the first World Championship Tennis tour stop of 1975 does a lot of things for him.
"It makes me No. 1 in my (WCT) group, No. 1 over-all in the WCT, gives me a running start toward the finals in Dallas, and also $15,000, that's important," Riessen reeled off.
"It probably will keep me seeded in my group for the season."
Riessen, a veteran of 16 years in major tournament competition, wasn't surprised that he wound up the only seeded player in the quarterfinal round.
"Of the 84 players, maybe 20 are almost equal, so luck, good shape and mental outlook will mean a lot each week," Riessen explained. "When opportunity comes you have to reach out and take it. I didn't play a seeded player all week. That was an opportunity."

itary's surprising Keydets.
Furman gets its shot at a fifth straight league triumph at home tonight against Davidson's Wildcats, who finally won their first league start in four tries with a 90-76 decision over The Citadel's Bulldogs, 2-5.
Meanwhile, the Keydets—4-3 in the league—can tighten their grip on third place at home tonight against Appalachian State's last-place Mountaineers, 0-6 in league play. The Mountaineers fell to 1-14 over-all in a 70-61 defeat Saturday night at Lenoir Rhyne.

Richmond's Spiders, 4-9 overall after an 83-69 whipping Saturday night by Virginia Tech's Gobblers, were idle tonight. The Spiders had been scheduled to play host to Tulane, but that game was postponed to Feb. 10.
With Furman having a league date Thursday night at Appalachian, the Paladins should be just half a game behind East Carolina by the time the Pirates invade this Saturday night for the first installment of the showdown for No. 1 seeding in the championship tournament.

East Carolina, which has won 12 of its last 13 starts for a 12-4 over-all record, had all it could handle in VMI, which took a six-game winning streak—the Keydets' longest in more than 50 years—into the game.
The lead changed hands six times in the last eight minutes before Robert Geter, who finished with 23 points and 12 rebounds, put East Carolina ahead to stay with a basket in close with 2:29 left. He then hit two free throws that kept the Keydets at bay.

Buzzy Braman had 16 points, Gregg Ashorn 14 and Larry Hunt 13 to go with a game-high 16 rebounds for the Pirates, off to their best start in history. Curt Reppart and John Krovic had 15 points each for VMI, which dropped to 7-7 over-all.
Furman, 9-4 over-all, had only a 36-28 lead over William and Mary at intermission. But the Paladins opened up a 24-point lead with 3:55 remaining behind Clyde Mayes and Craig Lynch, who had just six points in the first half but added 10 each in the last 20 minutes.

Fessor Leonard scored 12 points and pulled down 13 rebounds as the Paladins withstood a 32-point barrage by sophomore Ronnie Satterthwaite for William and Mary, which fell to 8-6 over-all.
The Citadel shot 52 per cent from the floor in the first half for a 45-39 lead over Davidson, but the Wildcats—4-11 over-all after only their second victory in their last 13 starts—outscored the Bulldogs 24-10 in the first 9½ minutes after intermission.
Greg Dunn had 19 points and Steve Gadaire and Jay Powell 14 each for Davidson, which ended the game with 55 per cent accuracy to 48 per cent for The Citadel, now 5-6 over-all. Richard Johnson had 23 points for the Bulldogs as Rodney McKeever scored just 10.

Richmond's Bob McCurdy, the nation's third leading major college scorer, poured in 33 points for the Spiders, but Virginia Tech took the lead for good with 12:34 left in the first half.
The Gobblers, now 11-5, were led by sophomore Duke Thorpe with 22 points and 10 rebounds. Larry Cooke, Dave Sensibaugh and Mark Cartwright added 14 points each for the Gobblers.
Lenoir Rhyne, ahead by a point at intermission, shot down Appalachian in the second half behind Wes Phillips, who finished with 20 points, and Randy Abernathy, who had 16. Ed Kane had 15 points and Mark Campbell and Tim White 13 each for the Mountaineers.

NFL 'Goes Shopping'

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League goes shopping for fresh, young, talented bodies Tuesday in its annual college draft and Steve Bartkowski, a strong-armed quarterback from the University of California, looms as the top selection.

The Atlanta Falcons, predators on defense but pigeons on offense, hope to remedy that situation with the selection of the 6-foot-4, 212-pound Bartkowski, an All-American who completed 56 per cent of his passes for 2,580 yards last season for the Golden Bears.

The Falcons obtained the first pick in a deal with Baltimore's shrewd general manager, Joe Thomas. The Colts earned the No. 1 choice by tying the New York Giants for the poorest showing in the 1974 season, 2-12, and then winning a coin flip.
Thomas then dealt away the top pick for offensive tackle George Kunz and Atlanta's first-round pick, which is No. 3 in the over-all draft. The Colts are expected to select much-heralded defensive end Randy White of Maryland, unless Dallas gets him first.
The Cowboys have the second pick in the draft, the result of a deal with the Giants for quarterback Craig Morton. Dallas could pick White, or Oklahoma linebacker Rod Shoate, or Jackson State linebacker Robert Brazile, or Jackson State running back Walter Payton, or none of the above.

The draft will run for two days and 442 collegians will be picked over 17 rounds.
Of course, the whole thing may be academic, the result of a San Francisco judge's decision in the Joe Kapp case. Kapp claimed he was unjustly barred from the NFL for refusing to sign a standard player contract which he considered illegal. The judge agreed with Kapp and also offered the opinion that the college draft is illegal. The NFL is fighting the decision and both sides are currently arming for legal warfare.
But the draft goes forward. After Baltimore the order of first-round selections is: Chicago, Houston with a pick obtained from Kansas City, New Orleans, San Diego, Los Angeles from Green Bay, San Francisco, Los Angeles from Philadelphia, New York Jets, Detroit, Cincinnati, Houston, New England, Denver, Dallas, Buffalo, Los Angeles, St. Louis, San Diego from Washington, Miami, Oakland, Minnesota and Pittsburgh.
The Giants, Green Bay, Kansas City, Philadelphia and Washington have all traded away their first-round choices.
Los Angeles and Cincinnati have the most picks, 22 each, and the Rams appear in the best position to improve themselves. They have three first-round selections — Nos. 9, 11 and 20 — and 11 picks over the first five rounds.
Eight other clubs have extra choices, including Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh. The Steelers have made judicious use of their draft choices in the past, building a championship club just five years after finishing 1-13. That year their first pick was a Louisiana Tech quarterback named Terry Bradshaw.

Donnybrook For 1st Place Slot

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
The defense was tenacious, the pace frenetic. It was old-fashioned basketball at its bruising best, bodies flying madly about the floor.
It was the Chicago Bulls and Detroit Pistons in a donnybrook for first place in pro basketball's roughest division.
And it the end it was a good big man, Bob Lanier, and a good little man, Dave Bing, who made the difference for Detroit.
Lanier poured in 31 points and Bing added added 25 — including 11 in overtime — to give Detroit a 102-93 victory in the nationally televised National Basketball Association clash Sunday. That victory, in Detroit's Cobo Arena, gave the Pistons a two-game lead over Chicago in the NBA's Midwest Division and avenged an embarrassing 116-96 loss in Chicago Saturday night.
Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday, the Washington Bullets ripped the Houston Rockets 118-90, the Seattle SuperSonics edged the Cleveland Cavaliers 96-93, the Boston Celtics beat the Buffalo Braves 107-93, the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the Los Angeles Lakers 103-97 and the Portland Trail Blazers topped the Golden State Warriors 128-113.
The Bulls erased a nine-point deficit in the final 5½ minutes of regulation, sending the game into overtime when guard Jerry Sloan came up from behind to slap the ball away from Lanier in the closing seconds. Bing scored two quick baskets in the first minute of overtime, however, and Chicago never recovered.
Reserve guard John Mengelt, a linebacker under football coach Shug Jordan at Auburn, sparked the Pistons with his hustle, ballhawking and rugged scrambling. He also scored nine points.
Chicago's Chet Walker, playing in the 1,001st game of his career, led the Bulls with 23 points and Norm Van Lier chipped in 20.
Bullets 118, Rockets 90
Elvin Hayes poured in 24 points, grabbed 14 rebounds and made six steals for Washington, which posted its sixth straight victory.
Sonics 96, Cavaliers 93
Tom Burleson, the 7-foot-4 rookie from North Carolina State, scored a pro high 21 points and grabbed six rebounds for Seattle.
Celtics 107, Braves 93
Dave Cowens sparked Boston to its seventh straight triumph and 14th in 15 games and boosted the Celtics' lead in the Atlantic Division to 2½ games over the Braves.
76ers 103, Lakers 97
Billy Cunningham's field goal and two free throws in the final 30 seconds helped Philadelphia post its first victory over the Lakers since the 1970-71 season after 15 losses.
Blazers 128, Warriors 113
Guard Geoff Petrie scored 13 of his 29 points in the first period as Portland built a 37-20 lead and then coasted past the Warriors, avenging an overtime loss to the same team Saturday night.

and the full five sets before subduing the WCT rookie player.
Riessen appeared to have the match in hand with a 2-1 lead in sets and a 5-4 advantage and the serve in the fourth set. But Gerulaitis broke back, tied the match, carried it to 6-6 and then vaulted to a 7-0 triumph in a seven-point tie breaker.
"I thought then that I had a good chance to lose the match," Riessen recalled. "I didn't feel that I had lost control. I felt on top of my game, but I was disappointed I let the (fourth) set get away. I said to myself, 'don't be disappointed, hang in there.'" Riessen, who won $101,010 on the WTC tour last year, did hang in. He broke Gerulaitis in the second game of the final set and then held service to take the set 6-3 and the match. Riessen said he wasn't making any excuses, but his strings broke in the fourth set, when he was ahead 5-4, and leading 30-15. He had to change racquets. Gerulaitis won the game and eventually deadlocked the match at two sets each.
The victory wasn't easy for Riessen against unseeded Gerulaitis, a 20-year-old New Yorker who left Columbia University to pursue a tennis career. Riessen had to go 3 hours and 2 minutes

Unseeded Winners

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Pros Robbie Smith and Buster Brown, both of Asheville, who formed their partnership too late to earn a seeded position, won the men's championship Sunday in the inaugural Carolinas Invitational Indoor doubles tennis tournament.
They beat the second-seeded University of North Carolina team of Earl Hassler and Joe Garcia 7-6, 6-3 in the no-purse tournament.
Smith was originally paired with amateur Gene Hamilton of Asheville. Hamilton had to withdraw and Brown took his place.
Smith and Brown beat top-seeded Keith Richardson and John Geraghty of Appalachian in the second round.
The top-seeded team of Jane Preyer and Beth Hamilton of the University of North Carolina won the women's play. They defeated Bev Culbertson of Charlotte and Nina Cloaninger of the University of North Carolina, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

The FIRST

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Football League began its college draft in 1935 and the very first player chosen was Heisman Trophy winner Jay Berwanger of the University of Chicago, a halfback who eventually decided not to play pro ball.

The Philadelphia Phillies won 82 National League games last season. It was their highest total since 1967.

Football Game Already Sell-Out

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The Notre Dame-Boston College football game next Sept. 13 at Schaefer Stadium appears to be a sellout of more than 60,000.
BC officials said during the weekend the only tickets still unsold are reserved for regular season ticket holders.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1975, The Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQ105 ♥AJ7 ♦9AK83

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 3 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Three hearts. Despite the fact that partner's bidding has done little to encourage your hopes, you should not yet give up on slam. Your further probe, spotlighting your diamond shortness, might extract some additional sign of life from partner. You could make a slam opposite nothing but a good six-card diamond suit.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠107 ♥AJ4 ♦K10943 ♣KJ5

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Pass Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Double. In the balancing seat, you can make a takeout double with a slightly weaker hand than you would in the immediate position. This call is superior to a bid of two diamonds, for it gives partner more options—including the choice to pass if his strength is in the enemy's suit.

Q.3—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K873 ♥J10532 ♦74 ♣93

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass Pass
Dble. Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Raise to three spades. Thus far, you have promised partner nothing, and you really have quite a useful hand in the light of the bidding. You have four-card support headed by the king and ruffing values in the minors, and if partner goes on to game you should expect to make it. Indeed, we would not criticize an aggressive jump to four spades immediately.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q1054 ♥762 ♦KQ862 ♣7

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
2 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Bid four spades. In view of West's strong opening bid, you object to not expect to make this. However, by upping the level of the auction to four spades, you are posing tremendous problems for your opponents. They will no longer have the bidding space to explore for the right contract and will have to guess at a high level.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J1054 ♥J108752 ♦7 ♣92

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Dble. 2 ♠ ?

What action do you take?
A.—Bid three hearts. While it might seem odd to advocate a free bid at the three-level with a hand containing only two jacks, the auction has marked partner with heart support and no more than a singleton spade, so the hands should fit well. Failure to bid now could lead to the loss of a part score, or even a game, since partner might not have the values to compete further.

Q.6—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠93 ♥AKQJ105 ♦KQJ106

What is your opening bid?
A.—One heart. Though you have game in hand, it would be improper to open with two hearts since you lack the requisite high-card strength. It is too risky to open with a demand bid on your freak hand. Should partner hold some totally worthless values like king-queen of spades and ace-king of clubs, there could be no stopping him from pushing on to a hopeless slam. Don't worry about getting passed out—if you don't believe me, just deal out the other 39 cards and see for yourself.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK73 ♥93 ♦7 ♣A108765

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Dble. 1 ♠ 1NT
Pass 2 ♦ 2 ♠ 3 ♦ ?

What action do you take?
A.—Bid three hearts. By bidding two vulnerable in the face of an opposing takeout double, partner must have a good six-card suit. Since you have already limited your hand with your pass at your second turn, your three quick tricks and singleton diamond should sway you toward a competitive raise.

Q.8—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK743 ♥85 ♦AQ106 ♣Q8

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Two spades. Your hand is not good enough to introduce a new suit at the level of three. That action, known as a "high reverse", requires a hand with considerably more than minimum values.

Federal Pay Is 'Well Ahead'

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Tax Foundation study shows pay increases for federal government workers are keeping well ahead of private industry pay hikes and the rising cost of living. It says average earnings of all federal civilian employees rose 88 per cent from 1962 to 1972, compared to 66 per cent for private industry and a 38 per cent rise in the consumer price index.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JANUARY 28, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Many changes take place today and tonight, and you must use much care to go along with them intelligently, but without being hasty about putting them in action. Organize your life on a different basis.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have creative ideas, but use your finest skills to put them in operation successfully. Get down to principles, and don't fuss too much with detail.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Know what kin desire in the days ahead and try to please them more; make concrete plans for the future. Cooperation is the keynote.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Improve your routines with partners. Once your work is done, get together with good friends at some mutually enjoyable hobby. Be happy.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get at the money affairs now that will put you in a better position in the future. Study newspaper for useful ideas.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to quietly and tactfully get after partners who are not doing their job as they should, but don't pick any arguments.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have taken on responsibilities that now bore you, but carry through conscientiously. Keep appointment vital to your welfare.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Mate and good friends all want you to get into some new type of amusement that has escaped your interest in the past. Do so, but be loyal to mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find the right gadgets to make your work lighter, more efficient, and better paying. Talk over those changes which family want you to make.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Join with persons of similar tastes as yours and have a good time at recreations. Plan time to converse with mate more and reach better accord.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are thinking along practical lines today and can get much done to increase income. Listen to a successful person's suggestions to advance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A partner irks you now, but don't show your feelings since he will soon change and a fine plan of action can be reached mutually.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You are tired and want to throw a monkey-wrench into the works of present set-up with associates, but don't. Discuss with expert in p.m.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very intelligent and easy to reason with, but you have to teach early not to act too fast without first studying every phase of any situation, especially where big new projects are concerned, otherwise your progeny would keep hammering away at a stone wall with little results because the persistence is phenomenal. Give fine academic training. Send to school as early as possible.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Find 90,000 Have Some Special Needs

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A census shows 90,000 children with special needs in North Carolina.

The data will be used as the basis for a comprehensive plan for such children.

The plan is being drawn by the North Carolina Department of Human Resources and the State Department of Public Instruction.

Don Taylor, executive director of the North Carolina Office for Children, said the plan will be presented at Raleigh Feb. 15 to the Commission on Children with Special needs.

The North Carolina Office for Children is an agency of the Department of Human Resources that makes decisions for children's programs. Taylor said his office works with an forchildren who are abused, mentally retarded, maladjusted, and so forth.

The office advocates the rights and needs of children, regardless of what agency is providing services. The office lacks regulatory power, however.

Taylor said the data "has just come out of the computer in its rawest form. We are now looking at what kinds of problems these 90,000 children have, where they are located, and whether the problems are being adequately met."

Taylor said, in an interview broadcast Sunday on the "Report to the People" program on

Apparently No End To The Killing Of Vietnamese

By CARL D. ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government and the Viet Cong signed the Paris cease-fire agreement two years ago on this date but their pledges to "settle all matters of contention through negotiations and avoid all armed conflict" have not been honored.

The glimmer of hope generated on that day has now given way to the stark realities of a vaguely worded document lacking in definitive solutions and the power to back them up.

Some of the agreement's provisions, in particular those relating to a political solution, can be interpreted to the advantage of either side, creating what one Western diplomat describes as irreconcilable differences.

The Vietnam war is over for the American soldiers, but the killing goes on for the Vietnamese. More than 28,000 South Vietnamese soldiers have died and more than 110,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese are claimed killed by Saigon forces in the two years since Paris.

Some observers still see the Paris agreement as little more than a convenient way of extricating American forces and prisoners of war from Vietnam.

The Saigon government has accused the Communist side of negating the Paris agreement in its refusal to negotiate with President Nguyen Van Thieu and in calling for his ouster.

None of the agreement's major military or political provisions has been carried out and, in recent months, as fighting has intensified to its highest level since the signing, political talks between the two sides have been suspended since April and the military talks since June.

Here is a rundown on some of the major provisions that remain unresolved because of years of animosity and distrust between the opposing Vietnamese sides: —Lines of delineation: The agreement called for a cease-fire in place and a Joint Military Commission, made up of representatives of the Saigon and Viet Cong, was charged with delineating zones of control. Recognizing the "leopard-spot" nature of some of these zones, the JMC was also charged with establishing access corridors. Freedom of civilian movement and trade between the two zones was also guaranteed.

The cease-fire in place was rarely observed as both sides maneuvered for maximum land and population control in the early days of the agreement.

Saigon had the most losses as the Viet Cong, accusing government forces of using their enclaves for "land-grabbing operations," have overrun a series of bases.

Access corridors to enclaves, even on a temporary cease-fire basis, also have never been established. Civilian movement and trade between zones of control has never been formalized. The Thieu government established an economic embargo of Viet Cong-held areas. There are indications the Viet Cong are not allowing free movement of its population into government-held areas.

—Mines: The peace agreement calls on both sides to remove mines, boobytraps and other obstacles within 15 days of the signing and prohibits, except for defensive purposes, the placing of new mines "so as not to hamper the population's movement and work."

Neither side has systematically removed such devices. Many of the 20,000 civilian casualties which the Saigon command reports over the past two years are from mines and boobytraps. In recent months, the Communist command has mined bridges, roads and civilian vehicles as part of its economic warfare against the Thieu government.

—Restoration of democratic liberties: The agreement, in addition to prohibiting reprisals against individuals who collaborated with one side or the other, calls on the two parties to reinstitute full democratic liberties, including freedom of speech, press, meeting, political activities, work, property ownership and free enterprise.

The South Vietnamese government has said repeatedly that such liberties cannot be re-established "as long as the Communist side continues to violate the cease-fire." In recent months, the non-Communist political opposition has accused Thieu of violating the Paris agreement by press censorship and restricting political parties from organizing freely.

—The National Council of Reconciliation and Concord: The Paris agreement's key political provision calls for the formation of this three-sided body charged with organizing internationally supervised general elections on the future of South Vietnam.

Saigon and the Viet Cong have never been able to agree on the composition or role of the council in the now-suspended Paris political talks. Diplomatic sources describe the two sides' positions as "diametrically opposed" with Saigon calling for simultaneous discussion of all political issues, including the withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from the South.

The Viet Cong position, these sources explain, is a step-by-step implementation according to their interpretation, and leading to an eventual coalition government.

The agreement is vague on the council's role, Saigon sees it as a nongovernmental body while the Viet Cong see it as a provisional-type government which would replace the Thieu regime and open the way for a coalition government.

A related conflict is over the so-called "third segment" on the council which the Viet Cong and political opposition interpret as the neutralist "third force."

Saigon, seeking to control half the body, believes both sides should name the third segment. The Viet Cong believe the third force itself, including Vietnamese in exile, should come forth and decide which of its members should sit on the council.

NEW NCNB 7½% SAVINGS CERTIFICATES: A SURE WAY TO COPE WITH THIS UNCERTAIN ECONOMY.

These new higher-yield NCNB Savings Certificates pay 7½% interest, compounded quarterly. And they're available in amounts of $1,000 or more, with a six-year maturity.

Which makes them just what a lot of people are looking for in today's uncertain economy:

A safe, sure, guaranteed return on their money.

What's more, you can take your choice of three ways to receive the interest:

1) Quarterly interest can be accrued and added to your principal.

2) You can receive a check for the interest every three months.

3) Interest can be automatically deposited in your NCNB Checking or Savings Account.

Whichever you choose, the 7½% interest is the highest rate the law allows a bank to pay.

The same is true of all our plans at NCNB. And we've put together a program that will fit in with any kind of savings situation.

If you're just starting out, use our Regular Savings Account. It pays 5% interest. You can start with any amount and withdraw your savings at any time with no penalty. We'll also help you save automatically by transferring money from your NCNB Checking Account to NCNB Savings. You select the amount and when you wish the transfer made.

NCNB Bonus Savings pay 5½% interest, and this account can be opened with $1 or more. But, to earn this higher rate, you must leave your money in the account at least 90 days.

We also have three plans that earn higher rates of interest with a small amount of money. They're available in amounts of $100 or more, and the longer you leave the money, the higher interest it earns.

For 90 days, you can earn 5½%; for 1 year, 6% and, for 2½ years, 6½%.

Finally, in addition to our new 7½% Savings

Certificates, you can also earn a higher-yield with our 7¼%, 4-Year Savings Certificates, with a deposit of $1,000 or more.

No matter which plan you use, you'll get the best terms and the highest interest the law allows a bank to pay. So, if you're saving with us now, you're getting the best a bank can offer you. If you're not, come see us. We think we can show you why you should be.

"Right now, I just want to be sure I've got a steady income."

"These days, it's hard to find an income with no risks."

"I'm going to have a couple of kids in college in a few years."

"When I got married, we promised to take no chances with money."

Doctor Leaving Practice For Emergency Room

HICKORY, N.C. (AP)—Dr. Carter A. Sinclair is convinced many persons who need doctors don't get to see them. Therefore he is closing his private practice to become a fulltime emergency-room physician.

On March 17 the 50-year-old doctor will become director of the emergency-room at the Glenn R. Frye Memorial Hospital in Hickory.

The only fulltime emergency-room care has been available at Catawba Memorial Hospital, several miles east of Hickory.

Dr. Sinclair hopes to provide Hickory residents with fulltime, physician-staffed emergency-room care, which has not been available on a 24-hour basis.

He will recruit more emergency-room doctors and set up the new operation. The Frye Hospital is the former Richard Baker Hospital. Its new owner is a corporation, American Medical International.

Three Hurt In Prison Fight

RALEIGH (AP)—Supt. Bob Jones of the Polk Youth Center in Raleigh says three black inmates were injured in a fight in a prison dormitory Saturday night.

Jones said five white inmates had been placed in solitary confinement cells while a thorough investigation is being made. Jones refused to call it a racial fight.

According to Jones one inmate was cut on the wrist, another under his eye and another received a slight stab wound in the chest. The one with the stab wound was hospitalized in the Central Prison Hospital.

Bufo marinus, an insect-eating frog, was introduced to Hawaii in 1932.
