

FBI Task Force Assigned Terror Bombers Hunted

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

A intensive FBI hunt is under way for members of the radical Weather Underground in the bombing of the State Department in Washington and the attempted bombing of a federal building in Oakland, Calif.

"A special task force is carrying out an intensive investigation under the direction of high-level personnel," a federal investigator said early today.

The investigator, who declined use of his name, refused to say how many agents were assigned to the task force. But he said it included "a substantial part of the Washington field office and agents across the country."

The FBI has said the Weather Underground, which has claimed responsibility for a number of bombings since 1970, is believed to have less than 30 members.

Authorities think the radical group is comprised mainly of college-educated whites from upper middle-class families.

The organization, originally known as the Weathermen, went underground after indictments in 1970.

After the bomb hidden in a bathroom caused $350,000 in damage to the State Department early Wednesday, there was a rash of bomb scares in Washington and elsewhere around the country.

The threats caused evacuation of the Interior and Treasury departments as well as the Alfred E. Smith Building near the New York State Capitol in Albany and the Prince George's County Courthouse in Upper Marlboro, Md.

Anonymous callers also said bombs were hidden in the Agriculture Department and Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

The only search that yielded a bomb was in Oakland, where officials found a device in the George P. Miller Federal Building and exploded it harmlessly.

Callers identifying themselves as members of the Weather Underground told The Associated Press and several newspapers in advance about the bombs at the State Department and in Oakland. The callers said the bombs were in protest of U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia.

Federal investigators believe the bomb hoaxes were not the work of the Weather Underground. "The Weathermen have earned a reputation of playing for real," one said.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley issued a statement saying: "In midsummer of 1974 this underground issued a 185-page publication entitled 'Prairie Fire' which calls for the unification of all revolutionary forces in this country with the ultimate aim to overthrow the United States government." Kelley said the publication stated the underground "will continue to stay in its underground status and will continue strategic bombings whenever and wherever necessary."

Fire, Fog And Smoke

CHALMETTE, La. (AP) — A collision between a string of oil barges and a freighter turned the Mississippi River below New Orleans into a cauldron of flames, fog and smoke.

There were no reports of serious injuries. It took firefighters four hours to bring the flames under control Wednesday night.

A spokesman for the Coast Guard said it was not known how much oil had spilled into the river.

Coast Guard spokesman Dave Cipra gave this account of the incident: The tug Mama Lere, with three oil barges in tow, was headed upriver in heavy fog when it collided with the empty grain freighter American Wheat.

The collision touched off an explosion. Burning oil showered over a half-mile-wide area and spread over the river's surface.

The Mama Lere and the American Wheat were grounded. The tug was barely scratched, but the American Wheat caught fire, was ripped open and started taking on water.

Meanwhile, the three oil barges—two of them burning—broke loose from "Mama Lere." One was taken in tow fairly quickly, but the two burning barges drifted downstream.

They passed through a major anchorage, where about 10 boats were moored, without incident.

A few miles farther, however, they slammed into five other barges and knocked them loose from their moorings. Four were recovered without incident. One, loaded with grain, caught fire.

Later, the Coast Guard said the barges had all been secured and that the fires were under control.

U.S. 264 Patrol

Drivers traveling U.S. 264 in Pitt County Friday night will be watched by members of the North Carolina Highway Patrol participating in a special all-night patrol of the highway.

First Sgt. Titus M. Martin said the all-night patrol will involve two Patrolmen—in addition to the Troopers who might ride that road in performance of their regular duties—being assigned to patrol only on U.S. 264.

The two officers assigned to the all-night patrol, Sgt. Martin explained, will remain on duty on the highway until 8 a.m. Saturday.

He said the troopers will be equipped with radar units to electronically check the speed of cars moving along the roadway.

The officer said the all-night patrol is being staged because of an increasing number of complaints about speeding and racing taking pace on the highway.

Temporary Tax Cut Has FRB Chairman's OK; Sees Benefit In Haste

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board said today he opposes permanent tax reductions but hopes Congress will act quickly to approve a temporary tax cut.

"I believe the magnitude of tax reduction suggested by the President is reasonable, a temporary cut is reasonable, and a quick tax cut is highly desirable," Burns told the House Ways and Means Committee.

Burns said that instead of dealing with "problems of income distribution and income redistribution, I would push a flat percentage cut for individuals" and a "quick tax cut would be more beneficial than one that comes along later on."

In response to questions at a hearing on tax-cut legislation, Burns said he is against a permanent tax cut now because it would be "dangerous to reduce taxes permanently and thereby erode the tax base of this country."

Burns said the Federal Reserve system will allow a moderate expansion of the country's money supply to meet heavy deficit spending by the federal government.

But Burns said the Federal Reserve would not contribute to a new round of inflation. "You can expect from the Federal Reserve system, as long as I'm there, that we will not release a new wave of inflation on this country," Burns told the House Ways and Means Committee.

Making clear that he feels inflation remains the nation's most serious threat, Burns urged Congress to reduce federal spending below what President Ford has proposed.

Despite high interest rates, Burns said there is no shortage in the supply of money in the United States.

"The important thing for the economy is not the supply of money — this country is awash with liquidity — what it lacks is confidence and the willingness to use the money that has already been created and is lying around," he said.

Asked by committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., whether the Federal Reserve system would make sufficient new money available to finance the proposed $35 billion and $50 billion budget deficits in 1975 and 1976, Burns said the system would try to expand the money supply and bank credit at a moderate rate.

Commission OKs Health Care Zone

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The creation of a new Health Care zone and the expansion of permitted and special uses within the present Medical Arts zone received the approval of the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission.

The purposes of the new Health Care district, according to the report approved Wednesday night, "shall be to provide areas where the institutionalized care of physically or mentally ill people can be provided and where governmental or private agencies of institutions can provide services of a medical, para-medical or social service nature."

The new zone definition stipulates that, "It shall also be the purpose of this district to provide for a healthful environment that is conducive to the care and convalescing of ill people."

Uses that would be permitted under the Health Care zone include: care home, nursing home, or convalescent home; hospital; medical school or other health or medically related educational center; outpatient clinic or care facility; sanatorium; emotional or physical rehabilitation center; research laboratory; and social service facility, including but not limited to aid to the poor, blind or aged.

A special use designated under Health Care zoning would be a governmental institution or agency.

The joint board also adopted a schedule of development programs for the Health Care zone, calling for a minimum lot size of 90,000 square feet, minimum front setback of 100 feet, minimum side setback of 50 feet, minimum rear setback of 50 feet, and maximum lot coverage of 50 per cent.

An amendment to the parking regulations pertaining to off-street spaces was approved, allowing for one and one-half parking spaces for every two teaching or administrative personnel and one parking space for every four students, as pertaining to medical school or related facilities. Required parking spaces for outpatient clinics or care facilities, sanatoriums or emotional or physical rehabilitation centers are one space for each bed, plus one and one-half spaces for each two employees, plus one space for each staff or visiting doctor.

Permitted uses within the Medical Arts zone, as adopted by the board, included: apothecary, prescription center or drugstore where a licensed pharmacist is employed in the practice of preparing and filling medical and dental prescriptions; medical or dental clinic; physician's, surgeon's, chiropractor's, optometrist's, osteopath's or dentist's office; principal use sign; temporary sign; outpatient clinic or care facility; governmental institutional or agency; book store; church; flower or gift shop; care home or nursing home; and medically related offices.

Special uses allowed in the medical district include: related health service; restaurant, excluding drive; retail sales of products for doctors, hospitals and other health care institutions; manufacture and or distribution of medical supplies or products; bank or savings and loan facilities; motel; and accessory storage buildings.

The expanded scope of the Medical Arts zone included several additions proposed by the Jesse Rountree and Novella H. Moye heirs, represented by Frank M. Wooten Jr.

City Planner John Schofield explained to persons attending the board meeting that the expanded zone and new health district is not a "frozen plan" and he asserted that, "this is only the first step" in the process. He asserted that is "better to take a first step now and be able to correct our mistakes..."

The joint planning board, in approving the new zone and expanded uses under the current medical district, will recommend the adoption of the plan to the City Council. The matter will be scheduled for the council meeting on Feb. 6 and a public hearing will probably be set for the March council session.

In other business last night, the board approved by a four to two vote a rezoning request of Blount property located on the

Edmisten Asks Power Rate Hike Moratorium

RALEIGH (AP) — Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten asked today that the State Utilities Commission declare an immediate 60-90 day moratorium on power company rate increases and collection of fuel adjustment charges.

Edmisten estimated that if the utilities commission agreed with his request, it would cause a 30 per cent reduction in power bills during the moratorium.

He said that in his opinion, there is no clear statutory authority for allowing the escalator clauses.

Edmisten said he realized that some rate adjustment would be necessary to make up the revenues the companies would lose without the fuel adjustment charges. But he said he did not think the companies needed as much money as they are now taking in.

He said the fuel adjustment clause hindered good business practices in the purchase of coal.

The clause allows power companies to automatically pass on to the consumers some of the price they are paying for fuel.

Under the system, electric companies can pass along increases in coal prices above 50 cents per one million British Thermal Units, the price in effect in late 1973.

Edmisten said he wanted the companies to get all their revenues from general rate increases granted after extensive investigation and public hearings.

"The utility companies would probably not be able to keep themselves in the manner to which they are accustomed," Edmisten said. But he suggested they could layoff some of their "high priced executives" if their profits declined.

Edmisten also suggested that the General Assembly pass legislation repealing the 1974 statute which enabled utilities to base their rate requests on projected costs for the upcoming year.

Funds Appropriation Is Med School Priority

RALEIGH—East Carolina University Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins says assurance of a recommended $35.2 million capital improvements appropriation by the 1975 General Assembly is of "first priority" in meeting accreditation for a new four-year school of medicine at ECU.

"We are optimistic," Jenkins told a blue-ribbon Chancellor's Advisory Committee on Medical Education at a meeting Wednesday night here. "We agree with President Friday, the Board of Governors and the Advisory Budget Commission" that the full amount included in the 1975-77 appropriations bill is needed for the ECU medical school.

The $35.2 million, Jenkins said, is based on "their considered judgment" and consultation with experts. He said the funds recommended for teaching hospital facilities "are absolutely necessary."

"Our decisions will be made with a first priority of meeting accreditation requirements," he said. He said accreditation now for a four year school beginning in 1975 is not possible because as yet there is no appropriated budget for the four year school.

"The accrediting people must have assurance that the money is available. Accreditation will be sought after funding (by the 1975 General Assembly) is assured," Jenkins added. He said ECU looks forward confidently to its first class in the four-year school in 1976.

"The accrediting people understand our position and advised us to follow our present course of action," Jenkins said.

Jenkins and a team of resource experts in medical and allied health education fields were on hand to report on ECU medical school progress and to receive suggestions and input from the Advisory Committee members.

Jenkins told the advisory group "we will call on you collectively and as individuals" for advice; to help establish "two-way communications instead of letting the state press do it;" and for help in setting "goals for the medical school and insure aid in reaching them."

The ECU Chancellor also expressed optimism about the possibility of securing federal aid to help fund the four-year medical school.

N.C. No Longer Can Claim Lowest Rates

RALEIGH (AP) — Utilities Commission Chairman Marvin Wooten says that as a result of recent rate increases, North Carolina no longer can boast of the lowest electric power rates in the Southeast.

"On the average we are on a par with other states in the Southeast, some higher and some lower," Wooten told the House Public Utilities Committee Wednesday.

He added that North Carolina's electric rates still "are considerably lower than the Northeast."

Wooten made the comment in answer to questions from legislators fearful that the state no longer is competitive in power rates.

Meanwhile, Deputy Atty. Gen. I. Beverly Lake Jr. urged the committee to rewrite North Carolina's public utility laws. He said the laws are "inadequate, improperly applied," and "no longer working properly."

Lake, who said he is preparing a rewrite of the utility laws for consideration by the committee, told the legislators the present laws "do not adequately protect the public" and do not operate "in the best interest of the utility companies themselves."

Lake, whose duty is to represent the state and the public in matters before the Utilities Commission, said he meant no reflection on the commission. He said differences between him and the commission reflected only disagreement over the interpretation law which reasonable men could make.

Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, chairman of the committee, urged the legislators "not to act in hysteria" on power rates even though "we have all heard from over the state complaints of high utility rates."

Sen. Wesley D. Webster, D-Rockingham, chairman of the Senate Public Utilities and Energy Committee, announced that his group would hold a joint public hearing next Tuesday to hear the presidents of Duke Power Co., Carolina Power & Light Co. and Virginia Electric and Power Co.

Webster told newsmen the two committees "want to ask them a lot of questions and hear their side and see if they have any ideas to help us get these rates down."

Meanwhile, spokesmen for several utilities said they would comply willingly with Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten's request that they refile annual financial statements, this time under oath.

Edmisten made the request earlier this week. He said the law required utilities to file their reports under oath, but spokesmen for both the companies and the Utilities Commission disagreed.

They pointed out that another provision of the same law allows utilities to file a copy of their federal reports with the state commission. It says nothing about whether they should be filed under oath.

Warehouses Filled With Sugar

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Sugar warehouses across the nation are full and sales have been so slow some refineries have been forced to shut down.

It is a sharp comedown for sugar, which rose 400 per cent in price last year to join oil as a symbol of shortage and inflation.

Raw sugar has fallen $24 since it topped out at $64.50 per 100 pounds last Nov. 20.

The world's largest refinery, the C&H plant in San Francisco, called a five-day layoff. The second largest, Amstar's refinery here, has just reopened after a week's shutdown.

"Other refineries indicated they, too, were shutting down," said Saul Kolodny, a spokesman for Amstar Corp. in New York City. "I would characterize it as a temporary oversupply in the market."

This is the industry's slack season and part of the slump is normal, he added. But there was nothing routine about the accompanying sag in prices.

Amstar's wholesale list price for a five-pound sack of sugar has taken five steps down from a peak of $3.74 last Nov. 25. The latest, effective Friday, is $2.48.

Kolodny said supermarket prices often reflect the higher wholesale price of sugar that was in the supply pipeline and hasn't been depleted.

During the week ending Nov. 23, a time when sugar was reported in short supply and people were stocking up, the nation's refineries shipped 217,877 tons a week, compared with 173,067 tons for the same week a year earlier.

On Nov. 20, the market price broke downward.

With cheaper sugar looming, supermarket orders slacked off. For the week ending Jan. 18, shipments were down to 108,816 tons.

"When the price of sugar was going up, people figured they better buy today because tomorrow the price will be higher," said Nick Kominus at the U.S. Cane Sugar Refiners' Association in Washington.

"Now you've got the reverse situation. Instead of buying, people are eating up their inventory. At some point the market will correct itself, but when that will be, who knows."

Meanwhile, the Hawaii Sugar Planters Association said soaring sugar prices resulted in a tripling of the 1974 gross revenues for Hawaii's cane sugar industry — $740 million in total revenues last year compared with $232 million in 1973. The rise came despite an 8 per cent drop in total sugar production in the islands.

DEAR ABBY: Is it unmannerly for a girl to wear a hat or a knitted covering on her head when she's inside a building? Our principal always asks the girls and boys both to remove their hats when they are in school.

He said that someone should write to DEAR ABBY and ask about it, and if you said it was all right, he would ask the boys only to remove their hats when they're inside the building.

He said he didn't believe that anyone would write to you and ask. Well, I'm writing. OKLAHOMA STUDENT

DEAR STUDENT: Customs, rules and traditions are made up by those in authority, and they differ drastically. (In some houses of worship it's considered disrespectful to wear a hat. In others, the head must be covered. In some schools, all that's required of the students is that they come with the HEADS on . . . and what's ON their heads is no consequence.)

Your principal should know the rules of your school—and so should you. Obey the rules. If they're unfair or pointless—change the rules.

DEAR ABBY: I have been living with Don for two years. I am 22 and he is 25.

I hear girls at the office talking about bringing covered dishes to family gatherings, going to his folks' or hers for dinner, or for the weekend, or the holidays, and I get more heartsick every day.

I've begun to realize what marriage is all about. It's really belonging to someone who loves you enough to want to make you a member of his family.

Don is always telling me what a wonderful arrangement we have, and how much he loves me.

The past several months, I've been asking myself: "If it's so wonderful and he loves me so much, why do we lie, sneak around and let people assume we are married?"

Why doesn't he ask me to marry him, and become a member of his family? They don't even know I exist. HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: Because he doesn't want a legal commitment. And if he is able to get all the benefits of marriage with none of the responsibilities, who can blame him? I am assuming he didn't kidnap you. You agreed to live with him without marriage. You walked into it of your own free will, and you're free to walk out. Why don't you? I think you're ready.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, but never thought I'd be writing to you.

Now, my problem: A close relative of mine was recently married. The wedding was out of state so we didn't attend, but we sent a wedding present that cost over $100.

Today, I received a letter from the bride's mother. Along with it, she sent five pictures of the wedding. She wrote, "The pictures are $1 each. You can square it with us later."

In other words, "pay up." Abby, I think this is in very poor taste. In fact, I have never heard of "selling" wedding pictures to close relatives. Should I return the pictures? (I don't really want them.) Or should I keep the pictures and send her five dollars? Or just keep the pictures and not send anything? STUNNED

DEAR STUNNED: Return the pictures with a note thanking her for "sharing" them with you.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "RED": You're right. I was unfair to redheads. I should have said, "Never tell a redhead OR A BLONDE, OR A BRUNETTE that you love her unless you intend to marry her." (And you can throw in those ladies with the new, two-tone jobs, too.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Grand Chancellor Visiting Here

Women of the Moose, Greenville Chapter No. 1308, will honor Miss Kay Cancie, grand chancellor, at an enrollment ceremony tonight at eight o'clock at the Moose Temple.

Miss Cancie, who holds the order's top executive post, is from Mooseheart, Ill., a town for children operated by the Loyal Order of Moose and headquarters of the Supreme Lodge.

For the past week Miss Cancie has visited WOTM chapters in North Carolina. She was accompanied by Miss Ada Jones, a member of the Greenville chapter and deputy grand regent for North and South Carolina. Together they visited chapters in Charlotte, Winston-Salem, Burlington, and Fayetteville.

Miss Cancie arrived in Greenville Thursday morning and conferred with chapter officers during the day. She will be guest of honor at a dinner for chapter WOTM officers and officers of Greenville Moose Lodge No. 885 at seven o'clock.

Mrs. Peggy Jamieson, senior regent, who will preside at the special enrollment, said that friends and relatives of WOTM members are invited to attend, marking the first time a chapter enrollment ceremony has been opened to others than members. Miss Cancie, who holds a BS degree from Northwestern University, joined the Mooseheart staff in 1937, serving as physical education and recreation director for Mooseheart High School.

In 1951, she was made director of chapter activities for the Women of the Moose and held this post until she was promoted to grand recorder in 1964. Miss Cancie was elevated to grand chancellor Jan. 1, 1968.

Mrs. Jamieson said that WOTM members from neighboring chapters have been invited to participate in the enrollment honoring Miss Cancie. Visitors are expected from Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Washington, Kinston, Goldsboro, New Bern, Snow Hill, Wilson and other eastern North Carolina communities.

The guest list will include Mrs. Lulu Miller, a past grand regent of the WOTM, and Mrs. Ann Devites, presently deputy grand regent for the state of Virginia.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Appliances tend to dominate me.

Not only am I a weak person, but buzzers, bells, hissing, and asthmatic sweeper bags tend to intimidate me. I will drop whatever I am doing, rush to their side, and promise them anything (short of cleaning) if only they will not die on me.

My family knows of my relationship with things electrical and recently they all chipped in and bought me the perfect companion . . . a ceramic pot to cook in.

"All the mothers who work have them," said my daughter. "But we bought you one anyway."

I fingered the cord reverently. "What do I do with it?"

"That's the point," said my son. "Nothing. You just dump your meal into it in the morning, plug it in and let it alone. When you come back you have this neat meal all ready to eat."

"What happens if I forget? The cord turns into a coral snake and bites me. Right?"

"Nope."

"A bell goes off? A siren? A recording pages me within a radius of five miles?"

"Nothing," he shrugged. "It doesn't matter. The meal will stay warm until you are ready for it."

I looked at the little pot with its spindly little legs and wondered if there really was an appliance that made no demands on you whatsoever. I patted its lid. "Tomorrow you're the cook. We're having corned beef and cabbage."

At 3 a.m. my husband found me running cold water over a brisket of corned beef. "What are you doing? Running cold water over corned beef?"

"No, this is a message parlor for briskets. What do you think I am doing? My manual said the meat for the pot should be thawed and I forgot."

At 5:30, he staggered into the kitchen again. "Now what?"

"I'm putting on my corned beef. The manual said 12 hours. If I want to eat at 6 that means I have to get off my brisket by 6 a.m. But from here on in, I'm home free."

And I was. No nagging. No smoke curling up over the pot. No wheezing. No jangling of the lid. No whistles. No red lights whirling around. At 6 p.m. I gathered the family around with their plates and took off the lid. The corned beef and the cabbage were as raw as they had been in the morning. I had forgotten to plug in the pot.

"You could have said something," I said smacking it right across the lid.

The Feeling Of Helplessness

Greenville utilities commissioners held a public hearing prior to enacting an interim electric rate increase Monday night. One thing that was apparent was a feeling of helplessness among customers in combatting soaring electric costs.

Many of those who spoke recognized that the local Utilities Commission is merely passing on an increase that the Federal Power Commission is allowing Virginia Electric and Power Co., and they wanted to know what could be done to hold down the rapidly increasing cost of power.

There weren't really any good answers. Commission officials explained what most folks know, that the fuel charge which shows up on the electric bill every month is merely collected and passed on to VEPCO. The private power company maintains it must have it to offset soaring fuel charges. The VEPCO wholesale increase will cost Greenville Utilities $2,471,000 annually, but the increase in retail rates will only bring in $2,238,000.

There will be further adjustments in local rates when the FPC rules permanently on the VEPCO wholesale increase, and unless the FPC disallows part of the increase, it is likely there will be still further increase in the local retail rates.

Of course, commission officials explained that attorneys and rate experts are to fight the increase before the FPC. Efforts are also being made to switch over to Carolina Power and Light as a supplier, an unlikely prospect at present. Finally the municipally-owned electric cities are making efforts to develop their own power generating sources. This will require enabling legislation by the General Assembly this year, something that those attending the hearing heartily endorsed.

Still the officials could offer those attending the hearing little hope for any easing in electric power bills. Energy cost seems to be up to stay because of price fixing by the oil producing nations and a corresponding rise in coal, gas and other fuel prices. Nuclear power offers some hope but problems still remain in this area.

"It wasn't said at the hearing, but it is possible that cutting back on new projects and the lower interest rates might take some of the pressure off the private utilities, but that could be temporary and we could be back in the inflation cycle within a year.

About the only recourse for the user is conservation of electricity and even that is self defeating to some extent since the more power that is used the cheaper it is. A customer using 5,000 kwh in a month would get ten times the electricity that the 500 kwh customer receives; however this bill would be $127.10 compared to the 500 kwh bill of $21.46—only six times as much.

Still using less electricity is the only immediate way to cut the monthly bill, and that is what all of us will have to do. Beyond that we can let congressmen and legislators know that they must order the regulatory agencies to see that the utilities find more efficient ways to operate. Rates that discourage use of power during peak hours might be one way to do this, and we are certain that there are others.

For the immediate future, though, there is little choice but to pay more for what power we use. It is a national and international problem that is not going to go away soon.

Non-Teachers Gain Right

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—There are a number of uniquely qualified people who might enjoy teaching—and who might benefit the students—but who up till now have been barred from the classrooms by strict teacher certification measures.

A change is being proposed to the State Board of education which would open the classroom doors in both public and private schools to individuals who want to teach, but have not taken the required educational courses at a teacher training college.

The proposal outlined by a legislative Commission on Public and Private schools will be presented to the school board Feb. 6.

Basically, the change will mean that a person who is going to teach in either a public or private school can do so without having completed a teacher education program. Previously, to get a job, the individual had to either already have a state teaching certificate, or take a job on a temporary basis until such requirements were completed.

This process kept out of teaching a number of people highly qualified in specialty areas such as languages, music, art, and others.

Private Schools
It also meant that many private schools—largely those operated by fundamentalist religious groups—were hard pressed to employ teachers who had graduated from the Bible schools from which they preferred to draw their staff.

The legislative study group, chaired by State Senator Thomas E. Strickland of Wayne County conducted public hearings in the summer and fall in efforts to revise the certification process.

The heart of the problem was this: the smaller, religious oriented private schools did not want to employ teachers who had come through the state's teacher education process because they believe that process "liberalized" the teachers with a "humanist" philosophy.

Those schools wanted graduates from such colleges as Bob Jones University who would embrace fundamental religious beliefs and Biblical doctrines in their classroom work. Additionally, the private schools objected to the state requiring their "temporary" teachers to be exposed to the teacher training process in order to continue teaching.

The commission also found that private and public schools alike often could benefit from the experience of special individuals—some even holding doctorates, but without teacher training—who might become teachers given the opportunity.

Arthur Taylor, chief of the state's certification program, said he believes the change is not one which would lower teacher standards, and his department generally supports the recommendation.

Some Eliminated
State officials last year proposed even stiffer certification procedures which would have effectively eliminated Bible school graduates from teacher ranks. Taylor said that move "would have made it extremely difficult for the Christian schools to find staff."

Under the recommended system, teacher college graduates would continue to be certified just as they are now, whether or not the individual planned to teach in this state.

But for those not completing a teacher college program, certification would be given only for those who are to be employed in a public or private school, on application by the employer—not the prospective teacher.

That safeguard, Taylor said, is to avoid issuing a "general job hunting license, but to facilitate certification for those who have been sought out for employment." The applicant must have at least 90 semester hours toward a college degree at an approved school.

A temporary Class B teaching certificate would be granted those who went to Bible college rather than an accredited college, but the temporary status would be removed at the end of a year, if the school's headmaster approved the work.

Full certification could be achieved later based on experience and completion of required courses over a period of time.

Taylor said the major shift is toward putting the burden of successful teaching on the teacher and the school involved, rather than having the state determine whether or not a teacher is competent.

NOT ACCORDING TO PLAN!

Handwriting On A Wall

The dust has settled now on Capitol Hill, but only for the time being. In the wake of an explosive fortnight, the possibility of wholesale political realignment no longer seems as remote as it was.

The seniority system in the House, undermined and weakened two years ago, collapsed altogether in the January demolition. Three chairmen have been toppled. New liberal leadership has emerged. As a part of the fallout, a lifelong Democrat, John Jarman of Oklahoma, has emerged overnight, in a manner of speaking, as dean of House Republicans.

On the Senate side, the revolution has been less visible, but it is nonetheless significant. Here Sen. Edward Kennedy skillfully engineered committee assignments so as to punish conservative Democrats—notably James B. Allen of Alabama—and to reward his liberal colleagues.

Meanwhile, in Chicago, state Republican chairmen got the grim news: The Republican "image," according to a respected public opinion pollster, is even worse than pessimistic observers had believed. A study by Robert Teeter found that only 18 percent of American voters still regard themselves as Republicans. Probing into political attitudes and opinions, Teeter found the GOP generally viewed as untrustworthy, incompetent, and closely allied with big business.

Jarman's decision has particular interest. It is no longer a novelty, of course, for a Southern Democrat to abandon his old party label. One thinks of John Connally in Texas, Mills Godwin in Virginia, and Strom Thurmond in South Carolina. Jarman doubtless was motivated in part by instincts of political survival: He narrowly defeated Republican Mickey Edwards last November, and might well have lost a rematch as a Democrat in 1976.

But Jarman gave up 24 years of seniority as a Democrat for two principal reasons: He could read the handwriting on the wall of the House; he knew he was about to be ousted as chairman of his subcommittee. And he had passed a point of no return in his discomfort with Democratic ideology.

In talking with the Daily Oklahoman's Allan Cromley, however, Jarman gave little indication of a partisan enthusiasm for the Republican party as such. Jarman's key word was "conservative." He noted that he represents a "conservative district" in Oklahoma City; he remarked that Oklahoma is "basically a conservative state." He recalled that from the beginning of his service in the House he had voted "a very conservative vote." He hoped that "other conservatives in the House, wrestling with this same kind of conflict," should consider a change of affiliation also.

Two general observations come to mind. The first is that the 94th Congress is gearing up for a new kind of party-line liberalism, in which party loyalty and party discipline will play far more important roles. The second is that these Democratic forces probably will impel mavericks in both parties to give long and serious thought to following the Jarman flag.

We will not see much in this Congress of the "conservative coalition," that alliance of Southern Democrats and Northern Republicans that mobilized in one vote out of four last year. Leaders of the House Democratic Caucus have made it icily clear that Democrats will be expected to stay generally in line with caucus decisions. The message to Jarman, that he would never have a chance at becoming chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, was a message any man could read. It was a message for such conservative Democrats as Dave Satterfield and W.C. Daniel of Virginia, Joe Waggoner of Louisiana, and G.V. Montgomery of Mississippi. Under the rules of the new revolution, they are outcasts.

A sweeping political reorganization is not yet in sight. We are not on the verge of seeing the discredited Republican party absorbed

Illegal Gold Profit

By LOUIS NEVIN
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP)—Americans dealing in gold illegally were among the speculators who made fat profits in the European gold rush late last year, according to some London bullion dealers.

The speculators cashed in their profits Dec. 30, the day before the U.S. government lifted its 41-year ban on Americans owning gold.

The price that day reached an all-time high of $198 an ounce, but heavy selling drove it back to $192.50. It fell another $20 in the next two trading days as apparent American lack of interest in owning bullion spurred more heavy selling.

London dealers said the speculators included Americans, businessmen from Europe and Latin America, Arab sheiks, hoarders from France and other countries and the financial directors of some international corporations.

Charles F. Stahl, editor of Green's Commodity Market Comments in the United States, estimated that Americans last year bought more than half of the 21 million ounces of gold snatched up by world speculators. At the peak price of $198 an ounce, that amount would have fetched over $4 billion.

Stahl also said total holdings of Americans could have been as much as 138 million ounces, worth nearly $25 billion at the peak.

Americans could hold gold in Switzerland without fear of detection. Gold purchases there were not reported to the U.S. government, and there was no practical way for American authorities to check numbered

40 Years Ago Today

January 30, 1935
Two witnesses—one his wife—today supported Bruno Richard Hauptmann's alibi for the night baby Charles Lindbergh Jr. was kidnapped and slain.

Elvaert Calstrom, a carpenter, said he remembered because it was his birthday that Hauptmann was in the Bronx at 8:30 p.m. on March 1, 1932.

Mrs. Hauptmann testified that her husband had called for her at her place of employment that evening and went home with her about 10 p.m. The Lindbergh baby was stolen more than 60 miles away, between 7 and 10 p.m. Mrs. Hauptmann offered an alibi to Hauptmann's story for every important date connected with the case.

Pitt County people will put on their best tonight and attend the Roosevelt Birthday Ball at the campus building of East Carolina Teachers College at 9 p.m. Preparations for the annual attraction were completed yesterday and attendance is expected to be much larger than last year.

On the basis of ticket sales, both dancers and spectators will outnumber the first dance given in honor of the President of the United States.

In addition to the ball, a colorful floor show will be presented by the Hod Williams broadcasting orchestra of Charlotte.

Kissinger's Double Lever

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—The swift build-up of Israel's military power from the wreckage of the October 1973 war to by far its greatest strength ever has now become one of the two flimsy levers for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's imminent resumption of shuttle diplomacy.

The other lever is the promise of manifold economic goodies for Egypt—if a new Israeli-Egyptian agreement is reached.

Kissinger's strategy the past year was to give Israel the confidence of maximum military security by reorganizing and rebuilding its military machine, a long and costly process that is nearing completion.

The confidence of maximum military superiority would then be used, so the Kissinger thesis goes, to make it possible for Israel to start major withdrawals from the Arab lands seized in 1967, on grounds that continued possession of these lands as Israel's security cushion would no longer be needed. Israel, in short, could find her security in armed superiority, not occupied Arab territories.

The rearming of Israel to achieve that purpose following the 1973 war has radically transformed and strengthened Israel's military might.

High-level Pentagon specialists say that Israel now possesses a more powerful arsenal of sophisticated air munitions than any country in the world except the Soviet Union and the U.S. Its strategic and tactical mobility, built on a force of 16 giant C-130

Lockheed Hercules transports, with another eight soon to arrive, dwarfs the meager transport available before the 1973 war.

More important, U. S. Army advisers have helped Israel integrate its brilliantly commanded armored units with its mechanized ground divisions, discarding for good the old British system of completely separate commands.

Still being held in reserve by President Ford, despite ardent appeals from Israel, is the dreaded laser-guided bomb. But the betting here is that sooner or later Israel will be given that, too. One other super-modern American weapon, the short-range, nuclear-capable Lance missile which is just now

Public Forum

To the editor:
I think Sunday's, January's 26th, editorial, "Keep School Planning Flexible", was unfair to the Greenville City School Board.

There were several vital omissions in this editorial. First there was no mention that the elementary schools presently have the kindergarten level. This has caused mobile units to be placed at the elementary schools to provide classrooms space. I think the majority of the parents and educators think it is best for the kindergarten to be placed with the elementary schools as they are now.

No mention was made about Mr. Waldrop's statement that "the Greenville City Schools would have a democratic arrangement where all sixth and seventh graders would attend one school". In plainer terms there would be no school districts problems. Two junior highs would cause school district problems.

The parents I have talked with are delighted with the idea of a school containing the 6th and 7th grades. They are delighted because they think all children can get the best quality of education in this type of school.

As far as being flexible, this Board is flexible. They changed this school from being a 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th school—the original plan—to being a 6th and 7th grade school.

I believe the Greenville City School Board has taken a giant step forward for better education when they made this decision.

Losing Health Insurance, Too

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Many thousands of jobless workers already have lost or soon will lose their protection against medical expenses because of termination clauses in their health insurance contracts.

Although some large national Blue Cross plans, such as in the steel, automotive, telephone and oil industries, continue protection from four months to a year, the majority of plans protect the jobless worker for only 30 days.

The situation, which has gone relatively unnoticed, could cause severe personal hardship for the families of the unemployed as well as for many financially strained hospitals.

Already, said Alex McMahon, president of the American Hospital Association, medical institutions are preparing "get sick now, pay later" plans. Some hospitals will be badly pinched, he said.

The problem is worsened by the tendency of individuals to get sick more often during times of recession and unemployment, according to a study made by Blue Cross.

McMahon said the hospital industry as a whole could meet the challenge, but said many institutions will have to borrow, postpone improvements, and reduce research and community activities.

There could be some deterioration in the quality of care, he said.

"We already have told hospitals to be very careful about committing their money," McMahon said. "We can't manufacture it." While inequitable, he said some hospitals might have to raise charges for patients able to pay.

The failure to protect laid-off workers during a time of financial stress seems to be a serious oversight on the part of unions, legislators and insurance officials, although most proposals for a national health insurance program contain remedies.

At the moment, however, three alternatives are open to the worker threatened with loss of hospital and medical insurance: 1. He or she can convert from company group coverage to nongroup individual coverage.

A Blue Cross study of 74 Blue Cross plans showed 38 offer a laid-off worker a conversion policy with the same benefits. In 36 plans the workers obtain less comprehensive coverage.

2. The jobless worker can apply for Medicaid. Eligibility varies from state to state, as do benefits.

3. If unable to qualify either for insurance or Medicaid, a jobless worker and his family can use the emergency rooms, clinics and outpatient departments of voluntary and municipal hospitals.

$5,000 Grant For ECU School Raymond Battle Named Outstanding Citizen

DUPONT AWARD—A grant of $5,000 to the East Carolina University School of Business has been presented by the E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Co. In ceremonies at ECU, Henry Groseclose, personnel superintendent of the Kinston Du Pont plant, makes the check presentation to Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins (right) and Dr. James Bearden, Dean of the School of Business (left). (ECU News Bureau Photo.)

E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and Co. has awarded a $5,000 grant to the School of Business, East Carolina University, to strengthen its instructional and research programs.

A check for the full amount of the grant was presented by Henry C. Groseclose III, personnel superintendent of Du Pont's textile fibers plant at Kinston, N.C., to ECU Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins and Dean James C. Bearden of the ECU School of Business.

"Du Pont appreciates this opportunity to continue its support of the School of Business at East Carolina University," Groseclose said. He said the grant was a "method of recognition" of the university's contributions to the overall development of this region.

Dr. Jenkins said that "through the year the Du Pont company has been outstanding as a good neighbor and active participant in projects which benefit this community of Eastern North Carolina. He said the continued support of ECU "is further example of good corporate citizenship by this great company."

Dean Bearden said the ECU School of Business is "most appreciative of the support and encouragement received from E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and Co."

"It is assistance of this sort which enables the School of Business at East Carolina to provide a margin of excellence in its activities," Bearden said.

He said that over the past two years Du Pont grants totaling $7,500 have been and will be put "to most useful and beneficial purposes" in enhancing instruction in business.

Halt Arabian Plea For Lower Shares Sale MacDonald Bond

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The First National Bank of San Jose has withdrawn plans to sell 650,000 special shares to a Saudi Arabian multimillionaire for $14.1 million.

The announcement was made Wednesday, two days prior to a shareholders meeting at which a vote was to have been taken on issuance and sale of the shares to Adnan M. Khashoggi, 39-year-old head of the multinational Triad Holding Corp.

In Beirut, Lebanon, Khashoggi confirmed he was abandoning his bid to buy a one-third share of a California bank.

Acceptance of Khashoggi's offer was recommended by a majority of the bank's board of directors. But the minority and others led a vigorous campaign against the sale, and opposition to it built up in San Jose.

It was the second setback this week for Arab businessmen trying to invest in American banking.

Beirut oil broker Ahmad C. Sarakbi said Tuesday he had given up his effort to buy control of the Community National Bank of Pontiac, Mich., after the Teamsters' union withdrew its commitment for a $9 million loan.

Khashoggi investor bought Rep. Portney H. "Pete" Stark's Walnut Creek bank in 1973. Stark, D-Calif., introduced legislation Jan. 22 to restrict foreign control over U.S. banks.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two police officers have sided with an attorney's arguments that bail should be reduced from $500,000 to only $5,000 for Dr. Jeffrey R. MacDonald, the ex-Army Green Beret awaiting extradition on a charge of murdering his family.

MacDonald, whose new life has taken him to the directorship of emergency services at a nearby Long Beach hospital, faces an extradition hearing next Monday.

The Army filed murder charges against MacDonald in 1970 but dropped them a few months later. The case was reopened last year by a federal grand jury in Raleigh, N.C., at the request of MacDonald's father-in-law. The jury returned the new murder indictment last Friday.

MacDonald's attorney, Bernard Segal, produced so many witnesses and argued at such length Wednesday that the bail reduction hearing was continued until today.

The point of his attorney's bail reduction request is to enable MacDonald, 31, to raise a relatively easy amount of money. But at the same time the attorney has been arguing at length that the charges themselves are unfair.

MacDonald has maintained that hippies invaded his apartment at Ft. Bragg, N.C., and killed his pregnant wife and two daughters. MacDonald himself sustained knife slashes.

Two area police officers, a hospital administrator and two fellow doctors were among those testifying Wednesday as to MacDonald's good character and reliability on bail.

"I have a gut feeling that if released on bail, Dr. MacDonald would not shrink any responsibilities in North Carolina," said Lt. Joe Kinder of the Los Angeles Police Department.

"He's a fine man, a gentleman," said Lt. Harris Taylor of the Long Beach police force.

"He has a fantastic reputation within the police department. I think he's a trustworthy man and I'm sure he would appear anywhere."

No Longer Require Week Of Waiting For Eligibility

Manager Jim Hannan of the Employment Security Commission office here Wednesday announced that effective Wednesday, jobless workers filing their first claim for unemployment insurance benefits will no longer be required to wait one week before they become eligible for payments. The effect of the change in the law is not retroactive, however.

The General Assembly Wednesday ratified a bill which eliminates the one-week waiting period from the State unemployment insurance law. Under the old law, jobless workers received payments beginning with their second week of unemployment. The new provision does not mean workers are entitled to an extra payment.

A person entitled to 26 weeks of benefits will still receive a maximum of 26 regular payments. The bill essentially means payments will begin one week earlier. Eligible unemployed workers establish their benefit year as of the date they file their initial claims for benefits. Workers still attached to payrolls establish benefit years as of the first day of the new payroll week.

The one-week waiting period became State law several years ago because most unemployed workers returned to a job within their first week of unemployment.

Rep. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, who steered the bill through the House, said the current economic situation requires that the waiting period be eliminated.

Jim Hannan reiterated that initial claims for unemployment insurance received on and after Wednesday will not be subject to the waiting period.

Tour Awaits Six Mayors

NEW YORK (AP) — The CBS television network has refused to sell time to the Republican party for three half-hour shows the GOP had hoped to show this spring to help polish the party's image.

A spokesman for the network said the Republican application was rejected because of CBS's policy of selling air time for political broadcasts only to political candidates.

Spokesmen for the NBC and ABC television networks said their companies had made no decision as of Wednesday on the Republican's request to buy air time.

Republican national chairwoman Mary Louise Smith said last weekend the shows were designed to rebuild confidence in the GOP following Watergate and last November's elections.

The Democratic National Committee said it had no plans for similar broadcasts.

1st BUS LINE

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The first bus line set up in Texas was in 1907 and ran 28 miles from Colorado City to Snyder.

They will tour Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon and Iran, the Houston Chronicle says.

The date for the trip was not given. It is being financed by private donations.

The mayors will be from Raleigh, Washington, D.C.; Atlanta; Mound Bayou, Miss.; Prairie View, Tex.; and Pritchard, Ala. They will present development proposals for their cities and for other black communities in the United States. They will be accompanied by economists, advisers, executives and businessmen from their cities.

The tour is being sponsored by the Southern Conference of Black Mayors, an organization of 70 mayors from 15 states.

Monroe Gardner Rites Friday

RALEIGH (AP) — Funeral services will be held Friday for Monroe Evans Gardner, a distinguished horticulturalist and professor emeritus at North Carolina State University.

Gardner died Wednesday at the age of 78. As an educator, scientist and administrator, Gardner was active in the development of the state's horticultural industry for nearly 50 years. He headed N.C. State's Department of Horticultural Science for 25 years.

The M.E. Gardner Arberetum on the N.C. State campus was dedicated in his honor in April 1973.

The Blacksburg, Va., native is survived by two sons, three grandchildren and one great grandchild. Services will be held at 3 p.m. at Pullen Memorial Baptist Church in Raleigh. Burial will be at Montlawn Cemetery.

Ten Male Students Pledging Sorority

OLIVET, Mich. (AP) — Ten male students are pledging the Alpha Lambda Epsilon sorority at Olivet College.

"We thought we needed some drastic changes and that's about as drastic as you can get," says sorority president Noel Diehl, a 21-year-old junior from Mount Clemens, Mich.

Miss Diehl says several of the men were tired of the hazing and purely social activities of the campus's three fraternities and offered to join service-oriented Alpha Lambda Epsilon.

One, Tom Mayo, a 19-year-old sophomore from Hastings, Mich., said the possibility that Alpha Lambda Epsilon wouldn't be able to keep up payments on its house was what first attracted him and four friends to the sorority. Seven of sorority's 12 active members graduate in the spring.

Under college rules governing all student residences, the men won't be able to live in the house and can't stay past 11 p.m. on weekdays or 2 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.

Sharon Panchuk, a 19-year-old freshman from Detroit, said the men seemed to be pledging Alpha Lambda Epsilon for the same reason she is — because the group is making a concerted effort to return to following its charter as a literary and service group.

"I really don't have any apprehensions at all," she said. "The guys have to be strong because naturally they're going to get a lot of flak from others. None of them did it as a joke. They wanted to be part of the society because they believed in its charter."

Names 7 House Committees

RALEIGH (AP)—House Speaker James C. Green today announced the appointment of seven more House committees.

Their chairmen are: Higher Education, Rep. J. P. Huskins, D-Iredell; Banks and Banking, Rep. T. J. Baker, D-Duplin; Natural and Economic Resources, Rep. Ronald E. Mason, D-Carteret; Corrections, Rep. Foyle Hightower, D-Anson; Local Government 1, Rep. P. C. Collins, D-Alleghany; Local Government 2, Vernon James, D-Pasquotank; Military and Veterans Affairs, Rep. Barney Paul Woodard, D-Johnston.

Two Elaborate Clinics In Small Mining Town

By BOB COOPER
Associated Press Writer
HINDMAN, Ky. (AP) — Health care facilities for this tiny (pop. 808) Eastern Kentucky mining town in the past two years have gone from almost nothing to almost everything.

Slightly less than two years ago, health care here was administered by two doctors, nurses at the county health department and a dentist who visited two days a week.

Now the county boasts of two elaborate clinics, four doctors, two dentists, 12 nurses, two lab technicians, two x-ray technicians, two pharmacists and other supportive personnel totaling 52 people.

The change came about through extension of an Appalachian Regional Hospital at Hazard, 20 winding miles away, with federal funding on the one hand, and the privately funded efforts of two local men on the other.

The Appalachian Regional Commission came up with most of the funding for the clinic where ARH is employed as administration and the community did the rest.

"We worked for five years, getting the 20 per cent local funds to build the ARH clinic. We didn't know those other fellows were planning one, too," County Judge Sid Williams said.

The "other fellows" are Benny Bailey and Dr. Grady Stumbo, once classmates at nearby Alice Lloyd College, who have fulfilled a longtime dream of improved health care for their native Knott County.

They didn't talk to others about their plan much until both had attended graduate school — Bailey getting a doctorate in administration and Stumbo a medical doctor's degree.

By that time, the machinery had been set in motion for 80 per cent federal financing of a clinic here.

Bailey and Dr. Stumbo offered to staff the clinic, but only if they could put their revolutionary health care practices into the operation and be free to administer it themselves.

But government financing doesn't allow changes in policies along the way, so they were turned down. That refusal turned out to be the best thing for Hindman.

Bailey and Dr. Stumbo, using donations from friends, foundations and anywhere else they could find them, built a $1-million clinic about two miles from Hindman.

"We bought some swampy land, drained it and started building," Bailey said. "We just wanted to do our own thing — an idea we had about total health care."

Patients at the East Kentucky Health Services Center, as the clinic is called, undergo a battery of tests as a matter of course.

"We've had patients in here for such things as a broken arm, and found out they have some disease they didn't even know about. That's the whole idea of our program," Bailey said. "We always felt that, especially in this area of the mountains, where doctors are overworked, the obvious symptom is treated and the patient is sent home. We just wanted to change that."

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Thursday, January 30, 1975—7

The staff at the clinic that Bailey administers totals 20, including two doctors, a dentist, technicians and other supporting personnel.

About three miles away, on the opposite side of Hindman, the ARH clinic opened this fall. It is named for Mrs. June Buchanan, an administrative staff member at Alice Lloyd College who donated the land where it was constructed.

The two doctors, who had been operating out of offices in Hindman, were moved into the clinic. A fulltime dentist, two registered nurses, four practical nurses and other personnel totaling 32 were added.

"It's changed our whole practice," Dr. Gen Watts, one of the doctors at the new clinic, said. "It's much more convenient for the patients and easier for us."

Dr. Watts and Dr. Denzil Barker once saw some 60 to 70 patients a day, with any laboratory work referred to the hospital at Hazard, some other clinic in the area or the University of Kentucky at Lexington.

"But the patients had to travel to wherever they could have the tests done and that was an inconvenience," Dr. Watts said.

Now, the four doctors in Hindman have their own laboratories.

Conley Nips North Pitt

BETHEL — D.H. Conley took advantage of two forfeits to slip past North Pitt last night in an Eastern Carolina Conference wrestling match, 34-31.

North Pitt had built up a 25-16 lead going into the final four matches. The Panthers got one by a forfeit to run their total to 31, but had to forfeit two of the remaining three. They lost the other match on a pin, and that allowed Conley to take the victory.

Overall, Conley won six weight classes, two by the forfeits, three by pins, and one by a superior decision. North Pitt won more weights, seven, but got only two pins, plus the forfeit, and the difference in points between falls and pins made the difference.

North Pitt travels to Wilmington Hoggard Friday, while both will be in action on Wednesday in the conference tournament at Conley.

Summary:

100: Donald Ribiero (C) decisioned Clayton Pilgreen, 20-4.

107: Bobby Clemson (NP) decisioned Ronald Harris, 12-7. 114: Ronnie Massenberg (NP) pinned Linwood Hines, 5:32.

Excitement Is Almost Absent

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It started with excitement and anticipation when Atlanta selected quarterback Steve Bartkowski as the No. 1 choice in the National Football League's 40th annual collegiate draft.

It ended with a whimper, 20 hours, 58 minutes later with crumpled coffee cups as weary club representatives recorded Pittsburgh's selection of Nebraska guard Stan Hegener as the 442nd and final choice in the 1974 draft.

In between there were two days of drafting, 17 rounds, a number of important trades, and always the ominous shadow of Judge William T. Sweigert's remark that the whole exercise was "illegal and unreasonable."

Judge Sweigert delivered that opinion last month in his decision on Joe Kapp's suit against the NFL. Commissioner Pete Rozelle might have had that in mind when he began the draft by saying, "Order in the court."

By the time the draft had reached its conclusion, Southern California had set a record with 14 players selected, one more than the number picked from Ohio State. Nebraska was next with 12 picks followed by Maryland's 11 and 10 each by Oklahoma, Penn State and Notre Dame.

There were 244 offensive players chosen, 186 defensive selections and 12 punters or place kickers. Runners were the most prominent picks with 75 selected followed by 66 defensive backs, 54 linebacks and 48 wide receivers.

Bartkowski's selection by Atlanta came as the result of one of 18 trades involving established players. The Falcons had surrendered tackle George Kunz to Baltimore for the draft's No. 1 selection.

In later deals, New Orleans swapped defensive end Billy Newsome to the New York Jets for their No. 1 choice, and Chicago picked up running back Cid Edwards from San Diego and tight end Greg Latta, a World Football League player who belonged to Baltimore, in exchange for a pair of third-round picks.

Washington, which doesn't care much for draft picks anyway, swapped a couple of them to Baltimore for guard Glen Ressler and wide receiver Cotton Speyrer. New England acquired running back Leon Crosswhite from Detroit and sent wide receiver Reggie Rucker to Cleveland in deals involving draft picks.

What it all came down to was a body count, especially after the first seven rounds which were completed on Wednesday.

Rose To Add Sports

Rose High School will add three girls' sports to its list of varsity activities, starting this spring.

Athletic Director Bud Phillips announced yesterday that the school would start a girls' softball program this spring. Gwen Waller, who coached the girls' tennis team during the fall, will handle the coaching duties. This will give the Rampants two women's sports during the spring. They already have a girls' track program in operation.

The second sport will be added next fall, with volleyball being started. The third, girls' basketball, will be added to the program starting next winter. Phillips said no coaches have been designated for the two sports to be started next school term.

The sports will bring to six the total of girls' activities at the school. They will join tennis, swimming and track. The school sponsors eight boys' sports, cross-country, football, swimming, basketball, wrestling, baseball, track and tennis.

One Desire Has Eluded Monroe

East Carolina wrestling coach John Welborn could sit all day in his office in Minges Coliseum and go over the accolades that Danny Monroe has garnered during his career at East Carolina.

Probably the most amazing fact about all of Monroe's accomplishments is that he has never finished worst than fourth place in a tournament in his entire collegiate wrestling career and has never recorded a losing season in dual matches.

Monroe, who wrestles in the 126 pound weight class has captured first place trophies three times in the Southern Conference Tourney, three championships in the prestigious Maryland Federation Tournament, along with being named the tourney's MVP in 1971, and three N.C. Collegiate titles. Add single tournament wins in the First Colonies, Thanksgiving, and Wilkes Tournaments as well as an overall record of 106-16 and you have quite an impressive list of wrestling achievements.

Still, one tournament victory has eluded his grasp during his career and it's the biggest one of them all—an NCAA championship which he has failed to attain for the past three years.

"I just hate to get beat twice in one tournament and I have only finished in fourth place one time since I got here," said Danny. "I still haven't done anything in the NCAA and that's where I really want to do well this year."

Monroe separated his shoulder last year at the beginning of the season and had to sit out the rest of the year which Danny feels accounted for his poor performance at the start of this season.

"Last year was really a tough season because I was really looking forward to having a great year and doing something in the NCAA," recalled Monroe. "Then I got hurt and it was really hard to sit out the year. I think I had a very poor attitude starting this season plus the fact my shoulder was still bothering me a little although it's a lot better now."

Monroe then suffered quite a blow to his pride when he was beaten twice in the East Stroudsburg Tournament and would up in fourth place.

"That was the first time I had ever finished that poorly in a tournament," said Monroe. "That tournament snapped me out of it and I have been wrestling real well ever since then."

After the East Stroudsburg, Danny went on to win titles at the N.C. Collegiate, the Maryland Federation and now boasts a 2-1 record in dual matches this season.

Danny, who is jokingly referred to as "Munchkin" by his teammates because of his resemblance to the characters on the "Wizard Of Oz" has been impressed throughout his career with the fine job Coach Welborn has done with the successful Pirate wrestling program.

"Coach Welborn has done a fantastic job since I have been down here, stated the Warners, N.Y., native." He has created a lot of enthusiasm with the student body. The crowds this year have really been great at home which I hope continues throughout the rest of the year.

So practically the only goal left for Monroe is that elusive NCAA championship. The finals will be held in March which Monroe is really pointing to, although there is still the Southern Conference Championships which he has to get by. "I've been to the finals for three years and have really gotten no where. I guess if I can finish in the top five that would be a great end to my career but I sure would like to win the whole thing."

Robersonville Captures Win

ROBERSONVILLE — Robersonville's Golden Eagles gained a 64-52 victory over Rock Ridge last night, but the Rock Ridge lasses upset the Eagles, 47-45.

In the girls' game, Rock Ridge, winner of only two other games this year, found themselves down, 13-9, after one period. Robersonville continued to pull away in the second quarter, 16-6, for a 29-15 lead at the half.

But Rock Ridge got fired up during intermission and came back to pour in 21 points, while holding the Eagles to just eight. That cut the lead to 37-36. Rock Ridge then took the lead with an 11-8 margin in the final period. Robersonville's effort to tie it up at the horn was off the mark.

Wanda Hyman led Rock Ridge with 21 points, while Beatrice Forrest hit 17 for Robersonville and Phyllis McNeal added 12. Robersonville's boys moved out into a 17-10 lead after one period, but Rock Ridge rallied in the second. They outthit the

East Carolina Playing Host To Tar Heels In Key Mat Matchup

Competition for the East Carolina University wrestling team is beginning to become hard to find these days but chances are things will change this Friday night in Minges Coliseum when the Pirates host North Carolina in a non-conference match.

The Pirate grapplers ranked 13th in the nation this week by the latest Amateur Wrestling News poll probably face their stiffest challenge of the season in dual match competition. Although the Pirates easily outdistanced the Tar Heels in the team standings at the N.C. Collegiate Tournament earlier this season, head coach John Welborn anticipates a tough match for his team.

"Our team is looking forward to playing North Carolina," said Welborn. "They have built a tremendous program and they're rapidly becoming an outstanding team in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Bill Lam has really upgraded their program and they're playing a real good schedule."

Lam, a former three-time All-American while at Oklahoma University has guided the Tar Heels to a fine 5-2 overall record this season. The Heels have several outstanding wrestlers that have performed quite well this year. Scott Konkright has been defeated only once this year in dual matches and pinned the Pirates Jim Blair to take the 118 pound championship in the N.C. Collegiate Tournament. North Carolina's other outstanding performers have been Steve Breece (126), Jeff Reintgen, and Carl Hoffman (177), an ACC champion back from last year.

The Pirates blasted South Carolina 52-0 and Southern Conference for Richmond 47-0 last week to run their overall record to 5-0 for the year and 2-0 in the Southern Conference.

Welborn basically went with his second string lineup against South Carolina although he used his number one lineup against Richmond and will do the same against North Carolina.

"Yes, sir, we will definitely go with all our top wrestlers against Carolina," said Welborn. "Besides Cal Poly and West Chester they are the toughest competition we will probably face this year."

One of the more interesting matchups Friday night will be in the 150 pound weight class where East Carolina's Paul Thorp will face Jeff Reintgen of North Carolina. Thorp defeated Reintgen in the finals of the North Carolina Collegiate Tournament earlier this season. Another interesting matchup could be between Scott Konkright of UNC and Jim Blair of East Carolina in the 118 pound weight class. Konkright has only been defeated once in dual matches this year and beat Blair for the first place trophy in the finals of the N.C. Collegiate. Blair has been experiencing weight problems and may not be wrestling.

Freshmen Jeff Curtis or Brad Middleton will wrestle in the 118 pound class.

Other top performers for the Pirates this season that will be in the lineup against Carolina will be Danny Monroe (126), Paul Osman or Clay Scott (134), Tom Marriott (142), Roger Burns (158), Ron Whitcomb (167), Jim Cox or Jud Larrimore (177), Mike Radford (190), and Willie Bryant (HVW).

JV Women Bow, 66-64

WILMINGTON — The University of North Carolina-Wilmington took a 66-64 victory over the East Carolina University women's junior varsity basketball team yesterday. It took an overtime to do it, however.

The two teams played down to the wire with Mary Bryan Carlyle tying it up for East Carolina at the end of regulation play. She hit with just two seconds left for a 58-58 tie.

But Wilmington came back, and after the two had worked up a 64-64 deadlock, the Lady Seahawks hit with five seconds left to win it.

Western Kentucky Upsets LaSalle Five

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The home court advantage was no advantage for the LaSalle basketball team Wednesday night. And the officials were no help, either.

The home town fans didn't especially inspire the nation's seventh-ranked club and the referees burdened the Explorers with a load of costly fouls.

The result was a 91-87 upset victory by unheralded Western Kentucky.

"At times we seemed ready to blow it open, but Western Kentucky kept hanging in and hanging in," said LaSalle Coach Paul Westhead. "We couldn't put them away."

The Explorers, an impossible team to beat at home this season, had an 11-point lead with less than seven minutes left. But three of their starters were saddled with four fouls each — and Hilltopper star Mike Odemns took advantage of the situation at the end.

The 6-foot-5, 235-pound brute barged inside for many of his game-leading 33 points to help the Hilltoppers get off the floor and knock out the heavily-favored home team.

"Undoubtedly some of the fouls hurt us," said Westhead.

With LaSalle's Joe Bryant, Donn Wilber and Billy Taylor in foul trouble, Odemns was clearly the difference between the teams. He not only connected on 14 of 18 shots from the field but picked off 13 rebounds.

In other college basketball games, 10th-ranked North Carolina whipped Wake Forest 101-91; No. 13 Marquette stopped Xavier 73-55 and No. 20 Kansas breezed past Colorado 81-59.

LaSalle's 11-game winning streak went out the window when Wilson James scored a field goal with 1:13 remaining to send Western Kentucky ahead 87-85. Odemns scored with 25 seconds to go, but LaSalle's Charlie Wise came right back to cut the margin to two again with 16 seconds left.

With nine seconds left, LaSalle got a break when Odemns was called for traveling, but Western Kentucky stole the in-bounds pass and Johnny Britt dribbled in for the final field goal.

LaSalle, which was up 46-38 at halftime, was led by Taylor and Bryant, each with 22 points.

Brad Hoffman hit a career high of 21 points and Mitch Kupchak also scored 21 to lead North Carolina over Wake Forest in an Atlantic Coast Conference game. Hoffman scored 15 of his points during the second half as the Tar Heels pulled away after twice trailing by seven points in the first half. The Tar Heels had a 49-48 edge at the half.

The Demon Deacons got a 32-point performance from sophomore Skip Brown, 22 of those in the first half.

Lloyd Walton sparked a late first-half spurt and finished with 20 points to lead Marquette over Xavier. Walton scored six points in the final four minutes of the first half when the Warriors, 12-3, snapped a 26-26 tie and pulled to a 10-point halftime lead.

Donnie Von Moore scored 17 points as Kansas whipped outmanned Colorado. The victory left the defending Big Eight champion Jayhawks at 3-1 in the conference, one-half game behind Nebraska, 4-0.

The Jayhawks coasted to a 49-31 halftime lead and enjoyed several 30-point advantages down the stretch. Kansas made liberal use of substitutions. Kansas' Dale Greenlee added 15 points, and Danny Knight had 10. Greg Mueller was high for Colorado with 14 and Brad Hunt had 13.

Elsewhere, Southern Illinois clobbered Illinois State 91-61 behind Mike Glenn's career-high 29 points. The Southern Illinois guard, called the best at the school since Walt Frazier played there several years ago, helped the Salukis pull away from a 32-32 halftime tie.

In other games, it was George Washington 80, Navy 5; Jacksonville 66, Richmond 58; Boston College 85, Providence 77; Niagara 71, Cornell 70 in overtime; Pittsburgh 70, Temple 61 in overtime; Miami of Ohio 74, Dayton 62; Kent State 52, Toledo 48; Penn State 88, Syracuse 84; Clemson 106, The Citadel 75; St. Joseph's 61, Hofstra 60 in overtime; Delaware 80, Gettysburg 68; Nebraska 73, Oklahoma State 58; Missouri 77, Oklahoma 66; Paul 96; Ohio U. 75, Bowling Duke 113, Davidson 76; St. Green 69 and Fort Lewis 73, Bonaventure 108, St. Francis Air Force 62.

Furman Warms Up For Bucs Against Mounties

By The Associated Press

Furman's Paladins can move to within one-half game of league-leading East Carolina tonight with a victory over hapless Appalachian State in a Southern Conference basketball game.

The Paladins are 5-0 in the conference and a victory would put them in good shape for their home-court showdown with the Pirates, 7-0, Saturday night.

Appalachian, meanwhile, has lost 13 straight and isn't expected to put any crimp in Furman's plans to tighten the league race.

Virginia Military travels to Shepherd in the only other game involving a conference team tonight. Three league teams ventured into unsafe waters Wednesday night, and, as is wont to happen, all three lost.

Clemson blasted The Citadel 106-75, Duke romped past Davidson 113-76 and Jacksonville dumped Richmond 66-58.

Clemson shot a blistering 82.8 per cent from the field in the second half in its victory over the Bulldogs.

Skip Wise led the Tigers with 25 points while Wayne "Tree" Rollins added 15 and grabbed 20 rebounds.

The Citadel's Rodney McKeever led all scorers with 32 points.

Guard Kevin Billerman scored 22 points, hitting 10 of 15 floor shots, in the Blue Devils' easy victory over Davidson.

Karras Has Weakness

By HAL BOCK

AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Take away Alex Karras' glasses and the erudite ex-tackle resembles Samson without his hair — powerless.

Karras is very blunt about his eyes. "I'm blind," he says simply.

Really now, Alex, what is your vision? "Zero-Zero."

During his All-Pro National Football League career with the Detroit Lions, Karras wasn't terribly concerned about his eyes. After all, seeing where you're going isn't what's important to a defensive lineman. Getting there is what counts.

Once, the Lions figured that if Karras was an All-Pro without being able to see anything, he'd be even better if they fitted him with contact lenses.

It seemed like a good idea but it didn't work.

It was an entirely different type of game," said Karras, when he put on the contacts and saw what was going on around him.

Karras had become used to chasing shadows and locating the ball carrier by the flow of the play.

Consumer Pays Higher Price For Name-Brand Drug

By LYLE EDWARDS
Gastonia Gazette Writer
Written for The AP
GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — You've got high blood pressure, so your doctor prescribes a drug to control it.

You take your prescription to the drug store and pay $6 for 100 tablets of Raudixin.

If you had known the truth, your pressure really would have shot up. You could have bought the same drug under its generic, or family, name for $3 if your doctor had prescribed it that way.

It happens every day to hundreds of people buying prescription drugs. Name brands cost more than generics, and most doctors writing prescriptions write them by name brands instead of generics.

For my Medicare and Medicaid patients with high blood pressure, I prescribe Raudixin.

The government is paying for their prescriptions, so I let them get the trade-name drugs," one doctor said.

"For my other patients with high blood pressure, I prescribe raumolfia. It's exactly the same drug, but it's cheaper.

"It's up to the doctor," said Jesse Putnam, a Bessemer City druggist. "About 60 per cent prescribe drugs by trade name, 40 per cent by the generic name. In some instances, there's not a whole lot of difference in price."

Putnam said there is a fairly wide range of prices for identical drugs. Some drugs are manufactured and sold by several companies, under different brand names, at different prices.

"The drug companies are constantly researching, and bringing out new drugs. When they bring out a new drug, they price it fairly high to get their money back," Putnam said.

"That drug will be patented, and no other company may duplicate it without the manufacturer's permission for 17 years. It is the exclusive property of the developer.

"When the patent runs out after 17 years, other companies start making it generically under their own brand label."

Dr. Joe Smith, a Gastonia general practitioner, said he writes nearly all of his prescriptions by brand name. He has confidence in the companies that make the drugs he prescribes. He prefers to rely on them rather than to depend on unfamiliar generic drugs.

"The most commonly used antibiotic is tetracycline hydrochloride, he said. "But it comes in many trade names. You can buy it under the name Tetrex, or Retet, or Panmycin, or Tetracylin, or Sumycin."

Pharmacist Ben Lamm of Gastonia said his store sells 40 capsules of Sumycin for $1.97. In the same quantity, Tetrex costs $7.80, Retet costs $3.44, Panmycin cost $3.25 and Tetracylin costs $2.97.

"If you come in here with a prescription for tetracycline hydrochloride, I'm going to sell you Sumycin unless you specify something else," Lamm said.

"For one thing, it's cheaper than the others. For another, it's made by Squibb and I know the reputation of that company."

Lamm added, "If your doctor prescribes by brand name, we druggists have no choice. We have to select the drug he prescribed. If the prescription is generically written, the selection is left to the pharmacist and the customer."

He said doctors sometimes write by force of habit, using familiar names, and some go for short names.

"If a doctor sent someone to the drug store to ask for acetaminophen, that person would have trouble remembering. If the doctor told him to get Tylenol, it wouldn't be a problem," Lamm said.

Acetaminophen and Tylenol are pain relievers. You can buy 100 tablets of acetaminophen for $1.49. The same quantity of Tylenol tablets costs $3.02.

Buying habits of a drug store also affect the price, Lamm said. "For example, I'm buying Sumycin by the thousands and get a better price on it. That's why I can afford to sell it for less than Retet or Tetracylin, which are the same drugs," he said.

Doctors are divided on the best way to write prescriptions. Dr. Harry Riddle is a strict disciple of brand names. He doesn't trust some of the generic drugs, contending they "might not come up to the standards that our American drug companies maintain."

Dr. James Neal, whose patients mostly have low incomes, write more generic prescriptions than trade-name ones.

"I think that prescription writing is second nature with doctors," Dr. Neal said. "It depends on how the doctor was trained. In my case, I write more generics because I see a lot of patients who can't afford high prices."

Promotion by the drug companies also is a factor.

Each year, the prescription drug industry spends more than a billion dollars on advertising and sales promotions. There are 200,000 doctors in the United States, and the companies spend an average of $5,000 on each one to persuade him to prescribe brand-name products.

WINTER FREELOADERS—Some of the migratory water birds jam the pool at Brookfield Zoo, west of Chicago. Zoo officials say they are invaded by over 3,000 migratory birds that are spending the winter freeload at the zoo. It costs about $500 a week to feed the visitors. Pens in the left background are used to trap the birds and move them to the Rock River where they are released. Normal population at the pond is about 75-100 birds. (AP Wirephoto)

Wants Legislature To Re-Write Utility Laws

RALEIGH (AP) — Deputy Atty. Gen. I. Beverly Lake wants the General Assembly to rewrite North Carolina law dealing with regulation of public utilities.

Lake, whose job is to represent the state and the public before the Utilities Commission, told the House Public Utility Committee Wednesday that present utility laws are "inadequate," are "improperly applied," and are "no longer working properly."

Lake said he is preparing a rewrite of the utility laws for consideration by the committee.

Meanwhile, Utilities Commission Chairman Marvin Wooten told the committee that as a result of recent rate increases, North Carolina can no longer boast of the lowest electric power rates in the Southeast.

"On the average we are on a par with other states in the Southeast, some higher and some lower," Wooten told the Committee. He stated that North Carolina's electric rates still "are considerably lower than the Northeast."

"Wooten made the comment in answer to questions from legislators fearful that the state no longer is competitive in power rates.

Meanwhile, Sen. Bobby L. Barker, D-Wake, said he is drafting a no fault insurance bill and that he "will probably have the bill ready for introduction next week."

Barker, chairman of the Senate Insurance Committee, would reveal no details of his measure except that it will be modeled after the Florida no-fault insurance law. He said the Florida law is considered something of a model.

Meanwhile, Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Haywood, chairman of the House Insurance Committee, said he will name a subcommittee to draft a no-fault measure if none is introduced in the House in the next couple of weeks.

A push continued on legislation to abolish age classifications in fixing automobile insurance rates.

Insurance Commissioner John Ingram urged Messer's committee to enact legislation that would base automobile insurance rates on a motorist's driving records, eliminating age and sex as criteria for rate making. Rep. Foyle Hightower, D-Anson, has introduced such a bill in the House and Sen. George Marion, D-Surry, has sponsored an identical measure in the Senate.

Richard Brantley, executive vice president of the Independent Insurance Agents of North Carolina, said the measure placed too great a burden on drivers classified as "bad." He said the changes are so far reaching that the cure is worse than the evil.

"You're going to set in motion a scramble by the citizenry of this state to avoid being labeled a bad driver," Brantley said.

Court Stays By Tradition

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A 29-year-old sailor has been convicted by court martial of refusing to make coffee for Navy officers.

The court martial at the 5th Naval District Law Center is believed to be the first in which the enlisted man's long-presumed duty to make coffee for officers has been challenged.

The sailor charged with refusing to follow "the system" was Legalman 2.C. Garrett W. Gosnell of Mableton, Ga., who is assigned to the law center.

Gosnell refused to make coffee for Lt. B.W. Van Rensler and senior Chief Legalman H.O. Talbert when they told him to.

The government prosecutor, Lt. Edward W. Remsburg, argued apparently persuasively that coffee is "part of the tradition of the Navy...Without it, morale would be affected."

The defense said coffee is a convenience and not a necessity.

Not so, said Remsburg. The government "contends that coffee is part of the tradition of the Navy," he said. "It does supply a benefit."

The four-member jury of two enlisted men, a chief warrant officer and a junior grade lieutenant debated for two hours Tuesday before returning guilty verdicts on three separate charges against Gosnell.

After the verdict, Gosnell fired his Navy defense counsel because, he said, they differed on "defense strategy."

The court martial's final stage, known as "extenuation and mitigation," will be held Feb. 11, prior to the jury's decision on an appropriate sentence for Gosnell.

Commended On Immunization

The Pitt County Schools have been commended by Mrs. Jean T. Lassiter, regional director with the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, for its compliance with the North Carolina immunization law.

The summary report of immunization status of children for Pitt County shows that during the first 30 days of this school year the first grades had 98.3 percent and the kindergarten classes were 94.8 percent in compliance.

Only 51 children out of a total enrollment of 1,591 were not in compliance at the start of the school year.

"These percentages were impressive alone, but the fact that you have since obtained 100 percent and have a system to maintain 100 percent by accounting for new students entering during the year is admirable," Mrs. Lassiter said. "The Pitt County schools have done a superb job this year."

She commended Assistant Superintendent Jamie Keeter for a job well done during the past two years on the immunization surveys and his follow-up of delinquent children.

"The success of this program in Pitt County sets a fine example that should be followed by other school units throughout the state," Mrs. Lassiter said.

Adding No New Croplands

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — No new cropland will be added in Texas during 1975, but 1.1 million acres of former reserve cropland will be returned to production, says Charles Baker, marketing economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

He predicted shifts in acreage of major crops, causing an increase in planting of sorghum, wheat and corn and a decrease in cotton acreage. He said pork production may be down 10-15 per cent from 1974 levels and commercial sheep and lamb slaughter will fall seven per cent.

More Leisure For Japanese

NEW YORK (UPI) — Leisure time of Japanese will be almost double by 1985, according to Fuji Bank Ltd. The bank says a research report shows that annual holidays in Japan by then will soar to 155 from 80 this year while the country's national income will rise about 100 per cent.

Eight experts submitted tips for the Bols Bridge Tips Competition and it looks as if the advice will be as varied as the liquors made by the Dutch liquor firm.

The second tip is from Rixi Markus of Great Britain, the only woman among the 32 Grand Masters accredited by the World Bridge Federation and the only woman invited to enter the competition.

Mrs. Markus suggests that, when attacking a suit in which you have to lead from a doubleton honor, you should not always make the near-automatic lead of the high card. At times, there is a possible advantage to leading the low card when partner is marked with length and entries. As an example, she cites this hand from a recent rubber bridge game.

South opened with a weak no trump, and North's decision to use the Stayman

Convention is, at least, open to question. Had he simply raised to three no trump, the contract would probably have rolled home, for West would never have considered the only lead to cause de-clarer any embarrassment. North's action backfired when South decided to remove the double of two spades, which would have been profitable, to three hearts, and North converted to three no trump.

Had West led the queen of spades, the contract would have been impregnable. After winning the king, dummy would still have two stoppers left in the suit, and declarer would be able to set up his diamonds before the defenders could get spades going. The opening lead, however, gave declarer no chance.

Dummy's king won the first trick. Declarer crossed to his hand with a club and lost the diamond finesse. A spade to the queen was ducked, but West put East on lead with the ace of hearts to force out the ace of spades. East still had the ace of diamonds as an entry to the good spades, so declarer could make no more than eight tricks.

Now it is time to play a little game. Let's make East's hearts K-J-9 and give declarer A-Q-8-5. To make up for this, we'll bolster East's hand by adding the ten of spades, giving North the lowly four. Now, the lead of the two of spades allows declarer to make the contract, because East has one less entry, but the lead of the queen beats the contract.

Beware that the tip you get is not the tip of a poisoned arrow!

TVA Now A Big Conglomerate

By BYRON DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—The Tennessee Valley Authority, created during the depths of the Great Depression to produce cheap electric power, has become a huge conglomerate industry with projects ranging from buying coal mines to collecting junked cars.

And the federal utility is under growing criticism. The latest move by TVA that generated complaints was the nearly $1 billion offer to buy one of the nation's largest coal producers, Peabody Coal Co. The offer is pending, but opponents say TVA is intruding yet further into the private enterprise economy.

In the past few years, environmentalists and land owners have filed suits against TVA to block construction of dams. Its proposed nuclear power plants have been called unsafe. Pollution from coal fired generating plants is another problem. In 1970 the average customer in the seven states TVA serves paid $14.61 for 1,000 kilowatts of electricity; now he pays $20.51—an increase of about 40 per cent.

"TVA right now is under nobody," said Sen. Bill Brock, R-Tenn. "It's a federal agency, but yet it's not responsive to the people."

With an estimated payroll this year of $363.5 million for 26,500 workers, TVA is one of the largest employers in the area it serves.

TVA was created in 1933 "in the interest of national defense and for agricultural and industrial development, and to improve navigation in the Tennessee River and control destructive flood waters in the Tennessee River and Mississippi River basins."

TVA has interpreted the charter broadly. One of the first projects was a fertilizer development center near Muscle Shoals, Ala. Then came electric power production from dams on the Tennessee River and its tributaries, and a variety of industrial and social projects ranging from the creation of two towns to stocking waterfowl.

There always has been criticism of TVA. In its early years, some called it socialistic and others accused it of being an inhuman giant. But in recent years the criticism has become more specific.

The Duck River Preservation Association sued to stop construction of the Normandy and Columbia dams saying the loss caused by the two dams would outweigh benefits. DRPA said TVA's environmental impact statement did not include agricultural losses, reduced production in flooded areas, relocation of residents and wage losses to farm workers.

Robert Brandt, DRPA lawyer, said farm-dependent businesses would lose $3.3 million annually and farm production losses would bring total loss to $4.6 million.

John Meldorf, former TVA researcher, said he knew of at least 10 instances where information unfavorable to the dam projects had either been changed or omitted from the environmental impact statement TVA filed with the EPA. TVA General Manager Lynn Seiber said he deleted information from the environmental impact statement on the dams. "I felt the draft was entirely too negative. It seemed to talk too much about the 'bad' about the project and not enough about the 'good,'" he said.

Last year the federal courts ruled construction of the dams could resume. Two years of legal action by Environmental Defense Fund to stop the Tellico Dam ended when U.S. Dist. Court Judge Robert Taylor, Knoxville, ruled TVA met environmental standards for the $69 million dam on the Little Tennessee River. Gov. Winfield Dunn reiterated his "opposition to the continued plans to impound this beautiful body of water."

Environmentalists said dam would flood farmland and ancient Cherokee villages and threaten the extinction of a tiny, three-inch long fish called the snail darter.

TVA says it is planning a model city on the shores of the new reservoir. But the agency admits that the city will consume more power than the dam can generate.

The first city built by TVA in Tennessee was the town of Norris.

When the Environmental Defense Fund first filed its suit it contended the TVA should make environmental impact statements to the Environmental Protection Agency. TVA said it was exempt as a federal agency and was overruled.

TVA also has tried its hand at public education, by offering to build a vocational school for two counties.

"Let me tell you how that vocational school got started," TVA board chairman Aubrey Wagner said. "This was one of the tributary programs we have to help areas develop their resources. As a part of that, an analysis showed that high school graduates in Sequatchie and Bledsoe counties could not compete for jobs in nearby Chattanooga with Chattanooga graduates."

TVA and the Appalachian Regional Commission offered to build the $1.5 million school, then turn it over to local school districts.

The project failed when one in Sequatchie County withdrew. Until then TVA was paying teachers in the counties an average supplement of $1,200 a year.

TVA has seven nuclear power plants planned and one unit of the three-unit Browns Ferry nuclear plant is in operation. One of the leaders of the fight against the plants, Mrs. William R. Young Jr., says the Sequoyah plant near Chattanooga will be on a fault and subject to earthquakes. TVA said the plant is earthquake proof.

In pollution, the EPA chided TVA, saying the agency has dragged its heels on pollution controls. EPA told TVA it should act as a leader in the field of pollution control and accept experiment. The EPA statement came after TVA refused to install smogstack scrubbers.

Seventy-five per cent of TVA's electricity comes from coal fired steam generating plants, and TVA is the nation's largest single coal user.

Wagner says the offer to purchase Peabody, which Kennecott was ordered by the federal government to sell, was made to insure TVA had an adequate supply of coal on hand. If TVA's bid is accepted, the purchase would have been approved by the Federal Trade Commission and Congress.

It would not be the first time TVA has owned coal mines. Wagner said TVA already owns 4 million to 5 million tons of coal reserves.

A suit has been filed by Davis Coal Inc. of Nashville to force TVA to disclose the details of the offer to Kennecott.

Wagner said he is aware of the federal public image of TVA. "I found people whom I thought had confidence in us were beginning to question what we were doing. We've got to rebuild that kind of confidence," he said.

Partly as a result, for the first time in the 41-year history of TVA, its three-member board of directors held a public meeting.

The meeting dealt mainly with routine corporate matters. The major item on the meeting's agenda, a wage boost for blue collar workers, was deferred. Two weeks later the wage hike was approved without a public meeting.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market built up another sharp advance but then ran into some late-morning profit taking today in continued heavy trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up about 7 points at its high point, was ahead only 2.66 at 708.62 at 11:30 a.m.

Gainers maintained a lead of better than 3 to 1 over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

First-hour volume on the NYSE reached 9.48 million shares and it appeared very likely that the exchange's weekly record of 110.62 million shares, set in February 1971, would be broken before the day was out—with Friday's trading still to come.

The early jump in prices appeared to draw its inspiration from a half-point cut in the prime rate, to 9 per cent, by Chase Manhattan Bank of New York.

But as the morning wore on, some traders who had been looking for a sharp drop in the basic rate on corporate loans chose to cash in on profits once the news was out.

Louisiana Land & Exploration, the Big Board volume leader, slipped 1/4 to 27 1/2 in a 119,700-share block trade.

Browning-Ferris lost 1 1/4 to 6. The company reported that its earnings for the quarter ended Dec. 31 slipped to 13 cents a share from 23 cents in the like period a year earlier.

Farah Manufacturing, which said it expected to show a widened loss for the quarter that ends Friday, gave up 3/4 to 4 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index was up .39 at 41.42 after the first hour.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index gained .47 to 74.46. Champion Home Builders, the Amex's most-active issue, added 1/8 to 37 1/2.

Tar Road north of Coastal Chemical Corp. and southwest of Pinewood Forest Subdivision from RA-20 to Highway Commercial.

Schofield, after discussing an engineering traffic study concerning the impact of future commercial development of the property, asserted that he felt the area did not meet Highway Commercial requirements from a development standpoint. In recommending that the rezoning request not be approved, he said that Highway Commercial zoning comprises some 12 per cent of the land zoned here.

Collice Moore, who reported that he was working on a fee basis for Judson Blount, said that it was "obvious" the area is not suitable for residential use. He pointed out that the property is bounded by a railroad.

Schofield said that one of his main objections to the rezoning is that the property, which contains some 50 acres, does not abut a major highway system and is "quite a distance" from a major road.

Although pointing out that no specific development plans have been made for the property at this time, Moore contended that the property owner should be allowed some uses of the land other than farming.

Board member C.D. Langston recommended that the request be approved and following a second to Lanston's motion by John Moye, the request gained approval with J.C. Parker and Ernest R. Carraway joining Langston and Moye in casting affirmative votes. Voting against approval were Mrs. Ruth Trevathan and Ernest H. Eaton while Jack Wall abstained.

A request for rezoning Pinegrove of Greenville, located opposite Pinewood Forest Subdivision on the Tar Road from R-9 to R-6 was also approved. A request for rezoning the area to R-9 for apartment construction was approved.

several months ago, it was explained, but the property owners have not expressed an interest in developing the tract with a 32-unit condominium complex. The property contains some 3.6 acres.

The board denied a request for rezoning of Lakeview Terrace to include a convenience store in an R-6 zoning district.

A spokesman for the apartment complex pointed out that approximately 35 per cent of the residents of Lakeview Terrace are disabled and he said that there is a need for a convenience store to serve people who are not able to get to facilities in the area.

Mrs. Trevathan said that she was sympathetic with the need of the disabled citizens but she noted that once a special use is permitted in the residential zone, "there is no stopping."

The matter was presented before the City Council at the December meeting but the council decided that it had no jurisdiction to grant the rezoning request.

Board members agreed to set a workshop for discussion of the Greenville Boulevard Northeast

Defend Planned Price Increase In Food Stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department today defended its planned March 1 hike in the price of food stamps as an unpopular but necessary part of President Ford's program to stem the growth of the federal budget.

The new regulations specify that all stamp recipients must pay 30 per cent of their net income for the stamps. But department projections show that the higher price actually will equal only 16 per cent of the household's gross income, including other welfare aid.

Administrator Edward J. Heckman of the Food and Nutrition Service made that case to an unsympathetic House Agriculture Committee, which the day before voted to speed-up hearings on a measure to block the higher prices.
