Expect New Economic Decline

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans face further erosion of their standard of living, higher unemployment and perpetually higher energy costs, President Ford's economic report to Congress said today.

"The American economy was built on the basis of low-cost energy... this era has now come to an end," Ford said in a message accompanying the report.

The report also said the decline in the nation's economy was so steep in the fourth quarter of last year that the administration cannot promise a quick rebound in the nation's economy this year.

But the President's Council of Economic Advisers, which prepared the report, still expects the economy will "move on to the road to recovery" in the second half of 1975, following another steep decline with high unemployment and high inflation in the first half.

"The most pressing concern of policy is to halt the decline in production and employment so that growth of output can resume and unemployment can be reduced," they said.

But the report left no doubt that the Ford administration has given up hope of bringing world oil prices anywhere near the lower prices of just 18 months ago. In fact, Ford said most domestic oil is at "artificially low prices" that must be raised.

His advisers said some protection must be established to keep domestic prices high enough to protect new investment in other costly energy sources.

The consequences of the higher energy prices will mean further hardship for Americans, the report said.

"A reduction in standards of living and potential output compared to what we would otherwise enjoy is inevitable..." the report said, although it added that the economic and energy program is designed to hold such effects to a minimum.

Like Ford's $349 billion fiscal 1976 budget that was submitted to Congress Monday, the 384-page economic report painted a gloomy outlook for the economy.

Ford, who refused to recognize the economy was in a recession until two months ago, said in the first words of his message, "The economy is in a severe recession. Unemployment is too high and will rise higher."

Unemployment is expected to rise to an average 8 per cent in 1975, up from an average 5.6 per cent in 1974. Ford said despite this, the nation must live with higher unemployment than it would like because of the danger of inflation.

"It is vital that we look beyond the unemployment problem to the need to achieve a reduction in inflation not only in 1975 but also in 1976 and beyond," Ford said.

Ford's advisers also predicted:

—A decline in real economic output — as measured by the Gross National Product — of about 3 per cent on top of the 2.2 per cent decline last year.

—Inflation, as measured by the GNP, of 11 per cent, although declining from a midyear high to a rate of about 7 per cent in the fourth quarter.

Apartment Arsonist?

Carstarphen Gives Resignation

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

W. H. Carstarphen, who has served as city manager here since October of 1972, tendered his resignation today, effective

March 10, in order to accept the city manager's post with the city of Spartanburg, S.C.

In a letter to the mayor and City Council, Carstarphen said that he was submitting his resignation "with regret that I will no longer be a part of the good things which are underway in Greenville and its city organization."

The city manager said today that his decision to resign was a "difficult one" and he expressed regret that he will be leaving before some of the goals he established are accomplished.

Carstarphen said that he informed Mayor Eugene West and the City Council last week that he had been offered the position with the Spartanburg city government but he indicated at that time that no final decision had been made on his part.

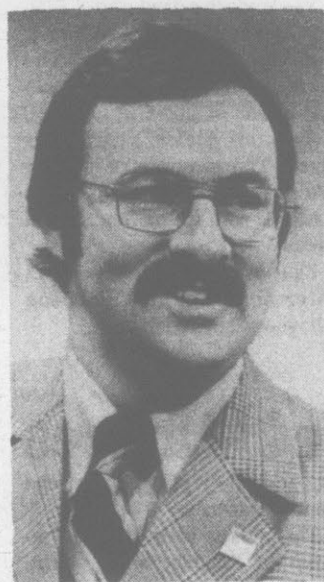

Since that time, he reported, discussions have taken place with officials of the South Carolina city and the opportunity to assume the post of city manager there is a "good one" and "one which I feel I must take advantage of and accept."

Speaking on behalf of West, who is on vacation in Florida and who has not been officially notified of Carstarphen's decision, Mayor Pro Tem Percy Cox said that "we regret very much to see Bill leave. When he first came here, he brought in a lot of new ideas and the mayor and myself had some differences of opinion with him. I guess they came from being able to work so closely with the previous city manager."

Cox, noting with Carstarphen that those differences of opinion were overcome and smoothed out, said that Carstarphen had made "tremendous contributions to the growth of the city" and his departure is on very friendly terms.

Carstarphen emphasized that

Firm Errs In Bid On Pitt Facility

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday afternoon approved awarding contracts — totaling $383,926 — to low bidders for construction of a new mental health center for the county.

There was some question, however, whether the low bidder for the general construction contract — Kinsey Construction Company of Charlotte — would follow through with its bid of $264,847.

Hoyt S. Kinsey, representing the construction firm, met with commissioners before they approved awarding the contracts and told the board that his firm had erred in its bid.

"I'm pleading for some type of mercy," Kinsey said as he explained to Commissioners that an error of $53,178 had been made in his firm's proposal. Their bid should have been $318,025, he said.

"If you enforce this contract," Kinsey said, "you are getting $53,178 worth of work you are not paying for."

Commissioners, were told, however, by County Attorney W. W. Speight and Cameron Dudley of the firm of Dudley and Shoe — architects for the proposed 12,000 square foot facility — that under North Carolina law, they had no other choice than to accept the low bid as originally presented.

If the Kinsey firm fails to execute the contract within 10 days, a bid bond of five per cent of the bid — $13,242 — will be forfeited and the contract can be awarded to the next low bidder; M. E. Perry Construction Co.

The Perry firm submitted a bid of $325,000.

Other low bids approved for the project yesterday included: mechanical construction, Electricon, Inc., $64,000; electrical construction, Edwards Electric Co., $30,132; and plumbing construction, Brewer Plumbing Co., $24,947.

Total cost of the project, if the Kinsey firm follows through with its bid, will amount to $428,417 — including construction, architect's fees, contingency and moveable equipment. If the Kinsey firm forfeits its bid, and the Perry firm receives the contract, total costs will amount to $492,772.

The new mental health facility — to be built with federal Revenue Sharing and State grant funds — will be located on a site near the new Pitt Memorial Hospital now under construction.

Commissioners also approved a contract with Dudley and Shoe Architects — at a 7.8 per cent fee — for design work on renovations and additions to the Health Department expansion project. The additions and renovations will be made to the present Health Department and mental health facilities to house the health department when mental health moves into its new quarters.

Commissioners yesterday heard a recommendation from the Planning Board that a landfill program be instituted in the county, and agreed to study the plan.

Cost Requires Dropping Five Of Proposed 122 Housing Project Units

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Five of the proposed 122 units for the N.C. 22-5 housing project in Meadowbrook will have to be removed from the development plan in order to meet budget requirements.

Joe Laney, executive director of the Housing Authority, reported Monday night that word has been received from the Department of Housing and Urban Development that the annual contributions contract for 17 of the units, approved and executed in 1966, can not be increased and therefore, those units would have to be built under 1966 price guidelines.

Laney said this means that the number of units proposed for construction will have to be reduced in order to meet the budget approved under the original annual contributions contract.

The Housing Authority had sought a consolidated annual contributions contract for all 122 units, including the original 17, but HUD regulations do not permit an increase in the ACC once it has been executed.

According to Laney, the development plan for the 117 units will have to be modified to take into account the loss of the five units. The new plan will be submitted to HUD by the end of the week, he said, and HUD officials have indicated that the Authority should have no problems in getting the new ACC approved under the modified arrangement.

The 17 units have been a bone of contention here since the original contract was executed. The units were proposed for construction in Meadowbrook but a problem arose that prohibited that move and later attempts to build the units in Southside also hit a snag.

The N. C. 22-5 project is planned for development on property located in the vicinity of the present Meadowbrook housing site.

According to Mrs. Sallye C. Streeter, director of tenant affairs, two vacancies due to deaths occurred in the units operated by the Authority in January as 529 units were occupied.

Mrs. Streeter said that rent in N. C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook) averaged $49.80 during January while residents in N. C. 22-2 (Kearney Park) paid an average of $55.11 in rent. Rent in N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood) averaged $55.33, Mrs. Streeter said, and N. C. 22-4 (Moyewood) residents paid some $53.28 in average rent. N. C. 22-6 (Newton) rent averaged $49.69.

The housing staff visited tenants during the month, she said, and counseled them in reference to housekeeping and repairs. Annual unit inspections begin on Feb. 10.

Commissioners authorized Laney to submit the Authority's annual operations report to the major and city council. Laney said that the annual report will include a check to the city for the Authority's payment in lieu of taxes in the amount of $15,178.05.

The annual report also points out that the Authority now has 531 units under management with 48 per cent of the units occupied by elderly persons, widows or disabled citizens, and 33 per cent occupied by full time working families who receive no public assistance.

The letter, which will be signed by Housing Authority chairman Jimmy Sutton, points out that the commission was solvent during 1974.

Laney said that the Authority hosted a maintenance workshop on Jan. 21 and 22 that was attended by over 50 persons. He said that 22 housing authorities were represented at the session as well as 20 HUD Officials from Washington, D. C., Atlanta, Ga., and Greensboro.

Ford Budget Faces Fight

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The heavily Democratic Congress has taken the first step to cut income taxes while serving notice to President Ford that his budget proposals will undergo substantial modification.

The House Ways and Means Committee voted Monday night in favor of a $8.4 billion tax cut for individuals this year and was scheduled today to take up various proposals for a rebate of 1974 taxes that Americans now are calculating on their Form 1040s.

The tax cut voted by the panel would primarily benefit families earning less than $20,000 a year.

Before approving the tax-cut, the committee rejected a modified version of Ford's requested tax cut plan in yet another demonstration of the Democratic majority's disapproval of the President's economic-energy program.

While the Ways and Means panel hammered out the tax cut bill, lawmakers were studying Ford's $349 billion budget that he submitted Monday for the next fiscal year.

The clear consensus emerged that the budget would be re-ordered to provide more funding for social programs while slashing defense and foreign assistance spending.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., while commending the President for facing up to the "gloomy picture" of inflation and unemployment, said he would oppose Ford's proposal to place a 5 per cent ceiling on Social Security benefit increases. He also called for at least $7.8 billion in public service job funding, as compared to the $1.3 billion in Ford's budget.

Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., drew almost unanimous agreement from other Democratic leaders that the Social Security ceiling would be scrapped.

Chairman Melvin Price, D-Ill. of the House Armed Services Committee said it is unlikely his panel would go along with Ford's requested $8.8 billion boost in defense spending.

Conservatives, such as House Appropriations Committee Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., expressed concern that Ford's planned budget deficit of $51.9 billion was actually understated, although the President's own estimate would make it the largest deficit in peacetime history.

Mahon said the national debt actually would climb $107 billion in the next fiscal year.

Pay Is Cut By CP&L

RALEIGH (AP) — Carolina Power and Light Co. said today its top executive are taking a 10 per cent cut in pay and the remainder of its 4,600 employees will have their pay checks reduced by 5 per cent.

Don Anderson, CP&L director of communications, said the pay cuts were designed to offset anticipated losses due to a state-ordered rollback in the amount of fuel costs that can be passed on to consumers.

Anderson also said the company was halting all construction.

The wage cuts are effective immediately and will run indefinitely, Anderson said. The company indicated 30 to 40 top executives would be involved in the 10 per cent pay cut.

The state Utilities Commission issued an order Monday requiring electric companies in North Carolina to reduce their fuel adjustment costs passed on to residential consumers by 25 per cent. The utilities were allowed to retain the privilege of passing on the full fuel costs to commercial and industrial users.

First State Bank Stockholders Hear Reports

WINTERVILLE — C. D. Langston, president of First State Bank, formerly Bank of Winterville, reported to stockholders Friday night that 1974 was a year of significant progress for the bank.

Langston reported during the 69th annual stockholders meeting that total resources, as of Dec. 31, 1974, were $14,310,002.67, an increase of $3,489,240.14 over the previous year-end resources of $10,820,762.53.

The president attributed the growth of the locally-owned bank to its acceptance by individuals and businesses in Pitt County. Plans were related for the opening within the next few months of the bank's new northwest branch on S. Memorial Drive here.

Langston reported significant increases in the bank's income as well as contributions to the community through interest paid to depositors, and in salaries and employee benefits.

Interest paid to depositors, he pointed out, totaled $287,327.53, while salaries and employee benefits amounted to $204,372.67. Both figures are record amounts, it was noted.

Net earnings, per share, after taxes were $1.41 in 1974 compared to 68 cents the previous year, Langston told stockholders. He advised them that the annual dividend was increased from 25 cents to 30 cents per share.

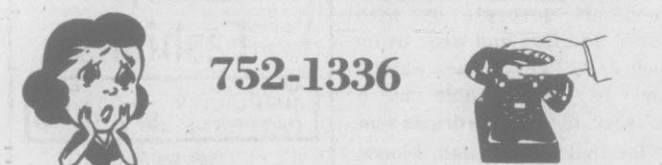

Directors who were elected to serve during 1975 are Langston, Sen. Vernon White, W. A.

Weathington Sr., John Milton May, W.M. Scales Jr., J. Curtis Hendrix, Clinton R. Prewett, Syd W. Dunn, John F. Minges, Kenneth K. Dews, John R. Farley, and William C. Glidewell Jr.

The stockholders recognized the many years of service of director W. J. Bullock and elected him as director emeritus.

Officers elected at the directors meeting immediately following the annual stockholders session include: Langston, president and chairman of the board; White, vice president; Glidewell, executive vice president; Hendrix, executive vice president; Tommy Langston, cashier; and Grace Adams, assistant cashier.

Carraway- Dixon Vows Exchanged On Friday

Miss Lydia Rose Dixon and David Leroy Carraway were united in marriage Friday at high noon in a ceremony performed at the home of the bridegroom.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Stewart Humphrey. Kim Carraway, sister of the bridegroom, played piano music for the wedding.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Henry Dixon of Rt. 3, Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white formal length gown of organza with a high neckline. It was fashioned with a natural waistline enhanced with brocade lace and bishop sleeves. She wore a fingertip veil of white illusion attached to a headband of lace. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white roses, pom poms and baby's breath tied with white satin streamers.

The parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Carraway of Belvoir.

The maid of honor was Lisa Carraway of Belvoir, sister of the bridegroom. She wore a floor length gown of floral print and carried a nosegay bouquet of spring flowers with pink streamers.

In the living room, an altar was improvised with a background of greenery, candleabra and bouquets of white mums and pom poms. The bride and bridegroom knelt for the closing prayer and benediction on a decorated prie-dieu.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Tal Dixon, brother of the bride, and Tony Carraway, brother of the bridegroom.

The grandmothers were remembered with white carnation corsages.

After a wedding trip to the mountains, the couple will reside in Falkland. For traveling, the bride chose a pink knit pants suit and wore her mother's corsage.

Mrs. Marie Cox of Greenville directed the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of D.H. Conley and attended Lenoir Community College. The bridegroom is a senior at North Pitt and is engaged in farming.

An after-rehearsal party was given Thursday night by the bride's parents. The table was centered with spring flowers and candles.

The bridegroom's parents entertained at a luncheon following the wedding.

They Came To Dinner But Their Hosts Didn't

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a construction worker. George rarely meets a man on his job with whom he cares to socialize, so I was quite surprised when he told me he had become friendly with a co-worker who wanted us to come to his home for dinner on Saturday night.

I told George that I thought a dinner invitation ought to come from the man's wife, so he mentioned it to the man, and his wife called me and made it official for 7 o'clock.

George and I arrived promptly. They live in a lovely new home, nicely furnished. She served a cocktail, then ushered us into the dining room where the table was beautifully set—for TWO!

I couldn't believe my eyes, so I asked: "Aren't you people eating, too?" She said: "Oh, no, we always eat at 6 and are in bed by 10."

She served my husband and me while her husband sat in the other room. I've never felt so uncomfortable in all my life.

After dinner, we all had an after-dinner drink and talked. I kept my eye on my watch, remembering their 10 o'clock curfew.

At 9:30 we said our goodbyes, thanking them for the lovely evening.

My question: Should I return the dinner invitation, and, knowing they eat at 6, should I specify that time? And if so, should I serve them separately and have a late lunch ourselves? Or should we all eat together?

DUMB ME

DEAR DUMB: Reciprocate with a 6 o'clock dinner. Eat together, and be sure you don't forget their 10 o'clock curfew. After you reciprocate, you should know whether you and your husband have enough in common with this couple to want to see them again.

DEAR ABBY: Can anyone possibly have too many friends? We are both near 80, and have a big house because we raised a big family. We dearly love to have our children and grandchildren come back to visit, and we'd be lonesome if they didn't, but our relatives bring their friends, and our friends bring their relatives and I'm lucky if I get a chance to change the sheets before another crowd appears.

We have a good garden but I have to give away the surplus because all this company never gives me a chance to can.

We do love them, Abby, but I am dreadfully tired from all that marketing, housekeeping and cooking. Is there a tactful way to slow down their visits without stepping them completely?

TIRED IN VERMONT

DEAR TIRED: Your problem isn't the number of guests you have, it's the number of non-contributing guests. Tell them you dearly love their visits, but they will have to pitch in and help with the marketing, cooking and housekeeping. And anyone who's there during canning season can expect to help with the canning, too!

DEAR ABBY: This is in reply to "TORN," who resisted accepting her husband's 12-year-old son into the second-time-around family. (His real mother didn't want him because he was a problem.)

Although I've never been asked to accept a stepson, I've been a foster mother, and have taken several "problem" adolescent "sons" into my home to mingle with my own teen-agers. It can work out well for everyone, but it takes a lot of love, love, and more love.

I mean the kind of love that makes a boy know that he is a worthwhile person—not just a problem kid who had come to be "reformed" by us. We are even more patient with a foster child because we realize that he's been through a lot of unhappiness for his young years. (Otherwise why would he need a home?) But we let him know that we think he's got the stuff to overcome the problems of his past.

You can bet there is always plenty of jealousy and in-fighting among the children, but we apply the same rules to our "new" sons as we apply to our own. When foster children gain confidence and security it does wonders for their behavior.

I hope "TORN" reads this, and opens up her heart to her problem stepson.

BEEN THERE IN GEORGIA

DEAR BEEN: So do I. You're a real Georgia peach!

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Youthful Seamstress Recycles One Garment Into Another

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Resourceful young girls are expanding their wardrobes without denting meager clothes allowances. They are turning old nightgowns into evening dresses, evening dresses into bathing suits and jeans into skirts. It's a time when nothing is thrown out by youthful seamstresses if there is a scrap of fabric left that can be turned into something new.

Any old dress, suit or gown may be lived with new trimmings or remodeling, and new gadgets are making it easier. There is a new fastener that helps stamp rhinestones to a garment. It can help spell out one's name on a T-shirt or put a shimmering design on a blouse.

A new book, "Gladraggs," may prove helpful to teen-agers who want to learn how to redesign old garments. It tells how to redesign, remake and refit old clothes. For example, old pants and a sleeveless top may be turned into a short jumpsuit with cuffed pants and sleeves. It's all done with scissors, thread and needle.

The idea of the book, insist authors Delia Brock and Lorraine Bodger, is not only to add a bit of rick-rack or lace to change a costume, but to disguise it completely. Restyling a garment, dyeing the fabric and adding buttons or fringe or braid are stylish ways to do it. Turning a long sweater into a short one involves cutting off the bottom of the sweater, shortening the sleeves and altering the neckline. Add buttons and a wide-tie closing, and challenge your best friend to tell you whether she has seen the garment before.

Other ideas suggested in the book for recycling a sweater into a stylish mode include these:

A pullover sweater with crew or turtle neckline may get a new look by making it shorter, snuggler and using satin ribbon, metallic braid, embroidery thread, star studs, spangles, sequins and glass, shiny or iridescent seed beads.

A middy sweater can be made from an old turtleneck by refashioning the neckline and adding a collar and cuffs made from handkerchiefs or cloth napkins. Six buttons are used below the neckline and four are put on pants to unify the outfit.

As for blouses, the authors suggest dyeing faded blouses a bright new color and stained blouses a darker color (when the stain color is lighter than the blouse color). Using embroidery designs to revitalize an old blouse can be a real budget stretcher. Embroidered borders may be used, too, around sleeves, neckline and the bottom of a blouse.

Smocking, the use of embroidery to shirr an area in decorative fashion, can be attractive and change the look of something old even as it tapers a big fit, a good trick for the girl who has lost weight or has inherited a blouse from big sis.

Turning old pants into fancy pants may have some appeal for home sewers. There are instructions for inserting fabric after opening leg seams, for adding pocket and cuff trims, decorations and so on. One attractive change that can be made with jeans is turning them into short or long skirts with the addition of a V-shape piece of fabric. Properly done, it can be a chic look. Blue and white or red and white ticking provides a nice transition.

An estimated one-half yard is needed to convert jeans to a medium-size skirt, more if one is turning jeans into a long skirt.

The crotch seam is opened, front and back, for a few inches. Fabric is turned under until it is smooth. It should be pinned down and tried on to see if it lies flat, which may be the most tedious part of the insert. After ironing flat, cut off the excess fabric, leaving a one-half-inch seam allowance. The seam at the top of the opening should be reinforced with hand stitches. After that you estimate the amount of fabric needed, allowing an inch for a seam, pinning it to the opening to see if it lies flat and smooth before you cut it.

The book's appeal may be mainly to the young teen-ager, but older girls can apply their own inspiration to fashion using the techniques and directions in the book and observing the many illustrations, which should be very helpful.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My friend, Marilyn, and I have just lost a combined total of 27 pounds.

Don't write and ask how we did it. I'll tell you. It took us two months of discipline, dedication, and terminal famine.

But frankly, it was worth it. We have more energy, we look better and I can't tell you what it's done for our appetites.

As I was saying the other day, "I can hardly wait for hot weather so I can cross my legs. It's something I've always wanted to do."

"I know," said Marilyn, "I just threw away all my pantyhose for a woman 7' 2" or over."

"The question now is how far do we want to go with it."

"What do you mean?" asked Marilyn.

"Right now, we are borderline sex symbols. A few pounds could tilt us either way. Do we want truck drivers whistling at us like springer spaniels when we walk down the street? Do we want Marilyn? I'm talking to you."

"I'm thinking."

"Do we want to have our husbands decorate us with gowns and furs and wear us on their arms like a Timex watch? And be at a table in a restaurant and have drinks sent to the table from a tall, blonde stranger at the bar? Are these questions getting too hard for you, Marilyn?"

"Give me a minute."

"Do we want to go through life being alienated by women because we wear a size eight dress? And have their husbands surround us at parties? What kind of life would it be to wear a bathing suit without a floor-length towel? To turn in a 24-hour girdle with eight hours left on it?"

"I suppose we'd have to get used to panting phone calls, door-to-door salesmen asking if our mothers were at home, and husbands crazy out of their minds with jealousy," mused Marilyn.

"But most of all, Marilyn," I said, "and consider this carefully, we would never see gray again."

Marilyn shook her head slowly, "I didn't lose 25 pounds to stop living."

"How many times do I have to tell you," I snarled, "that it sounds better to say we've lost a combined total of 27 pounds!"

Nora And Ted Create Dances

By TIM WHITE

NEW YORK (AP) — Like small, white birds, enthusiastic, inquisitive, dancer Nora Guthrie's pale hands flutter about her wifish face as she talks.

"Ted and I like to capture the audience with spectacular technique," says she with a laugh and a comic trill of her fingers. "Then, while they're enjoying themselves, we sneak in some food for thought."

"We read the papers," explains Ted Rotante as he reaches across a table to touch his partner's now-quiet palms, "and assimilate what goes on around us."

Beginning another day in their loft-studio in Manhattan's West Village, Nora Guthrie and Rotante discuss their burgeoning career as the Guthrie-Rotante Dance Company.

Miss Guthrie, diminutive and deceptively frail-looking, is the daughter of the late, legendary balladeer Woody Guthrie and sister to country-folk singer Arlo Guthrie. Rotante is the son of a business machine technician from New England. Both in their mid-20s, they met some seven years ago, while students at the New York University School of the Arts.

"We were part of the six-member NYU Dance Ensemble," says the sinewy Rotante. "As that group broke up, Nora and I got closer. The experience taught how to run a company and get bookings." Bookings are no longer a problem. The Guthrie-Rotante company is on the way to becoming one of the more popular in the country, drawing rave reviews that contain such adjectives as "zany," "quirky" and "remarkable."

Their dance routines are topical in an era of male-female liberation.

Through them, they explore various man-woman alliances and the related development of individual personalities, but always with a good-humored cleverness that makes their artistry accessible to people

Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev has not made an officially confirmed public appearance in six weeks, and speculation about his health and welfare has been rampant. The mystery may be cleared up next week.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson arrives Feb. 13 for an official visit. If the head of the Soviet Communist party doesn't receive him, "something is really wrong," one British official commented. Explanations would have to be made to the British, and the explanations undoubtedly would leak out.

At least three times in recent weeks, reliable Western diplomats or newsmen have reported seeing Brezhnev speeding through Moscow in his black limousine, apparently on the way to his offices in the Kremlin.

But despite this apparent return to at least partial activity in the Kremlin, there has been no confirmation in the official Soviet press — no familiar announcement that the "General Secretary of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union today received ..." or "today attended ..."

The general opinion in the Western colony and among non-official Russians is still that the 68-year-old party chief withdrew from the public scene late in December because of fatigue or illness brought on by a heavy official schedule in the closing months of 1974. But there the agreement ends.

Some Western diplomats who have kept close tabs on the Brezhnev mystery say there is no evidence he has been seriously ill. But the cocktail-dinner circuit still buzzes, with speculation that Brezhnev suffered a heart attack, has some grave respiratory disorder or has cancer.

No one remembers a "disappearance" of similar length during Brezhnev's decade in power.

At first, some sources believed Brezhnev's power base might have slipped, but there appears to be no solid evidence of this.

Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko is touring the Middle East, and Defense Minister Andrei A. Grechko will make an official visit to India this month. It is doubtful that two such key Politburo members would leave the country if a leadership struggle was going on.

No schedule has been published for Brezhnev in the coming months. Official Soviet sources speak of only one planned trip, to the United States for a second summit meeting with President Ford. No firm dates have been set, but American sources say plans are being made for May or June.

Health Care Of Prime Concern

A five year plan presented to the UNC Board of Governors for ECU's development, shows there will be heavy emphasis on health care.

The plan was presented by Chancellor Leo Jenkins last week. It comes as little surprise that health care will be of prime concern at ECU. Since the School of Nursing was established, there has been a steady increase in programs having to do with health care. The flourishing School of Allied Health Professions is illustrative of this.

Now, at long last, the university is moving into the development of a full four-year School of Medicine and certainly this assures that ECU will move into quite a major role in producing health care trained personnel.

Jenkins also said there will be growth in other academic areas with particular attention being paid to adult education programs. Several master's degree programs are being proposed and the university hopes to move into several six year programs which will carry work beyond the master's level.

The chancellor sees continued growth for the school as it serves its role in a developing region. He foresees the need for building the basic sciences program to provide academic support for the Medical School and other health programs.

Development of the School of Medicine is going to be an exciting process at East Carolina University during the rest of this decade. Other things will be going on on the campus, too, however. The presence of the Medical School will call for building sound undergraduate, graduate and research programs in many fields because of their interrelation with the health fields.

In addition the arts and humanities cannot be neglected if East Carolina University is to carry out its role of service to the people of North Carolina. We hope that the Board of Governors will be sympathetic to the financial needs of ECU.

Investment In Health Care

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — While the eyes of the nation were on Catfish Hunter as he snared a multi-million dollar deal, the folks in far northeastern North Carolina were celebrating another successful deal.

The ace pitcher got a reported $3.75 million for his good right arm; the New York Yankees picking up the tab.

Ahoskie and the surrounding four-county area lying between the Roanoke and Chowan rivers celebrated an investment in health care representing about the same investment that the Yankees made in Catfish—and the area people are almost as proud of one as the other.

Several hundred people stood for more than an hour on a raw and rainy Sunday afternoon to dedicate an addition to the Roanoke-Chowan Hospital which serves Hertford, Bertie, Gates and Northampton counties.

The addition put into service 50 new beds, new operating rooms, a new emergency room, an X-ray lab, and a 10-bed intensive care coronary unit.

A Fine History

Holt McPherson, chairman of the North Carolina Medical Care Commission, recalls that the Roanoke-Chowan Hospital, when opened in 1948, was the first hospital project in the state to receive the federal Hill-Burton funds for medical care facilities. Since that beginning, almost $4 million in state and federal funds have gone into the hospital at Ahoskie, including the recent expansion costing over $2 million.

McPherson, former editor of the High Point Enterprise, spoke at the dedication ceremony and in his regular column in his hometown newspaper reported on that occasion, and the significance of it.

"Of course there is, too, a lot of excitement yet about Jim (Catfish) Hunter's lucrative conversion into a Yankee pitcher, at a reputed $3.75 million price, after breaking clear of Charles O. Finley's odd-ball Oakland baseball menagerie."

McPherson writes.

Everybody's talking about the country lad who has become the golden boy of Madison Avenue "where he's likely to add considerable more shekels endorsing everything from chewing tobacco to fishing lures," McPherson reported.

But the new hospital representing about the same investment was the center of McPherson's attention and this accomplishment signified a major push all across North Carolina for better local health care.

The state's Medical Care Commission has pumped more than $600 million in Hill-Burton money and state funds into construction, expansion, improvements, and establishment of health care facilities throughout the state, and the Duke Endowment has added $250 million.

Much Improvement

"That... establishes North Carolina as one of, if not the most effective of the states in improvement of hospital and health care services and facilities among the 50 states.

"Of course, this state had a long way to go, and is not through yet by any means, but we've also made tremendous progress that bespeaks further sacrifices to carry through the great objectives of adequate health facilities to every citizen of this state," McPherson said.

"Anything less would be as unacceptable as it would be tragic," McPherson believes. The new hospital stands as a symbol of the dedication and sacrifice of the people of the remote upper Albemarle area, McPherson said, which is "an entirely different world from most of North Carolina; where is friendly, self-reliant people reflect the nature of this state's earliest settlers and live the good life while concerned with betterment of its people through better living."

The hospital "exemplified eloquently the spirit of a whole area appreciative of the work and sacrifice that went into provision of a facility that had become overloaded and cried for the kind of expansion that has followed," he said.

The INSIDE REPORT

Isolating Ford From CIA

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Efforts to politically insulate President Ford from the spreading congressional investigations of the Central Intelligence Agency reached a ludicrous peak when Ambassador Richard Helms, former CIA director, was invited in for an Oval Office chat with Mr. Ford two weeks ago.

Without the President's knowledge, top White House aides quietly took Helms aside before he entered the Oval Office to warn him that the President was "the nation's highest law enforcement officer." Translated, that meant Helms should fully understand that anything he told the President about CIA activities during the time he ran the nation's intelligence operations could be used against him.

Conveyor of that incredible warning, White House aides have confirmed to us, was the President's chief counsel, Philip Buchen. But other senior presidential aides fully supported Buchen's position.

The reason goes to their fear that, in the wake of sensational Watergate exposures of cover-up by President Nixon, Mr. Ford could be vulnerable to charges that he learned about questionable intelligence activities and tried to conceal his knowledge—a new "cover-up."

Inside the CIA, the State Department and the Pentagon, this effort to insulate the President from the vacs and to place him, in effect, in an advisory role to the CIA at its time of maximum political danger is viewed as an outrage.

At one point White House aides actually considered not allowing Helms to see the President at all on his return from his ambassadorial post in Iran to face congressional inquisitors. That extreme position did not carry, but the warning to Helms did.

The warning dramatizes the post-Watergate mood of fear and recrimination which many top officials feel is undermining the CIA and other intelligence-gathering organizations as the politicians run for cover. The fact is that the CIA, both during and before Helms's directorship, seldom if ever strayed from the secret policy and operational directives laid down right from the Oval Office.

No Thanks, Dick

When the story broke Wednesday morning that Richard M. Nixon is looking forward to getting back in politics, a Republican leader in one big Midwestern state received telephone calls from two substantial financial contributors who delivered identical messages: if Nixon is back in the picture, you can count me out.

Furthermore, the party leader told us that any political activity by Nixon would mean "a total dry-up of Republican party money overnight. It would be disastrous in my state."

Not only is that view widely shared in Republican circles, but Sen. Barry Goldwater is blamed for making the revelation to the press based on his luncheon visit with Nixon at San Clemente. One Southern Republican leader, a stalwart Nixon defender even at the worst of Watergate, feels Nixon as party spokesman "would be outrageous" and was not happy about Goldwater. "Barry ought to have more sense than that," he said.

If such conservatives complain about this mere mention of a Nixon comeback, Goldwater's "thought" that the party would readmit Nixon to a position as prominent party spokesman may be one of his all-time worst forecasts.

Candidate Church?

A delegation of leftist big-money men from California secretly visited Sen. Frank Church of Idaho at the Capitol Tuesday to ask him to run for President and came away with a no that is being interpreted as, "No, not now, but come back later."

Several rich militant liberals, led by veteran anti-war activists Harold Wilens and Stanley Sheinbaum, have been conferring with possible presidential candidates (including Church) and came to the conclusion that Church ought to be the one. What's more, Church had seemed more than willing.

But besides meeting with the Wilens-Sheinbaum group Tuesday, Church that day was named chairman of the Senate CIA investigating committee. He could not mix that with presidential (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

GOLF AND LIFE

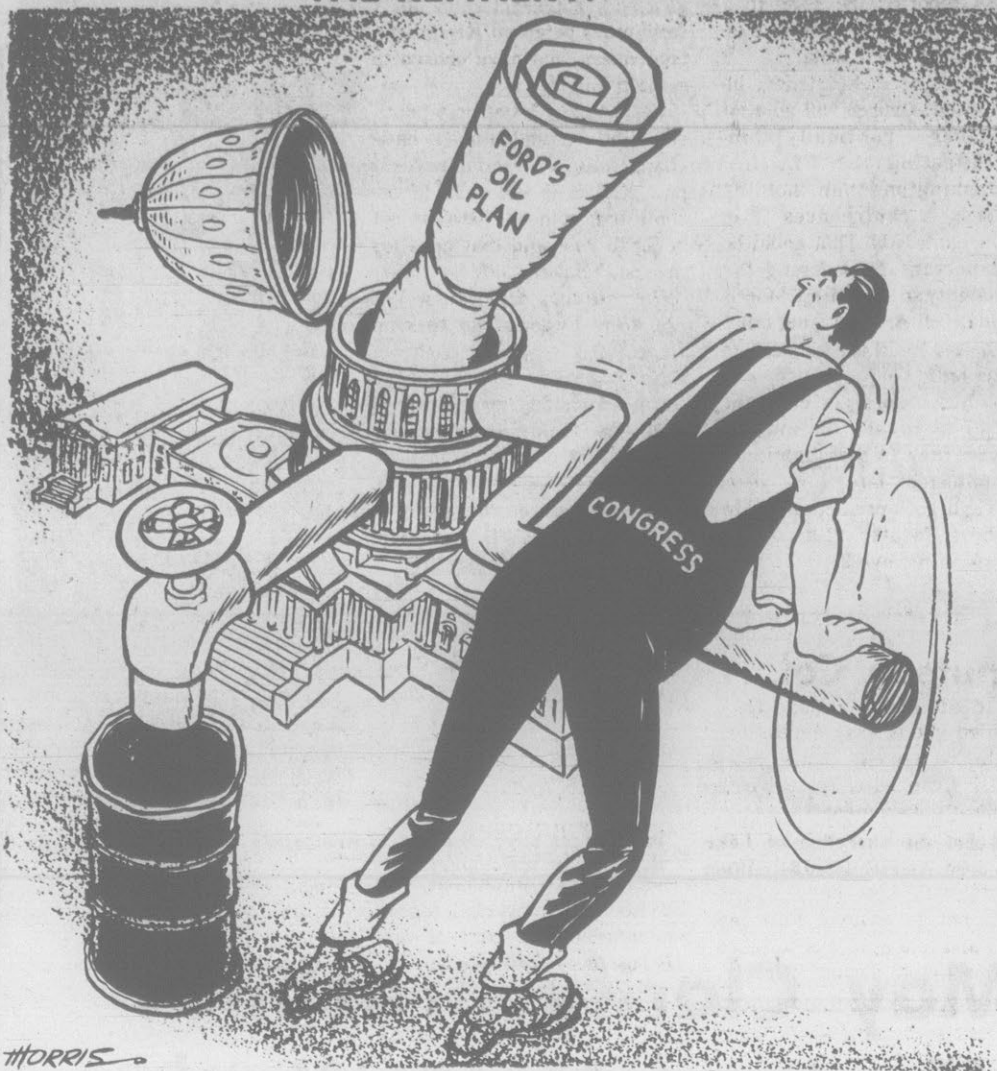

Every golfer has learned to his dismay that it isn't the long drives that pull his score down but the way he approaches the green and putts thereon. All the advantages of a 225-yard drive can be lost by the failure of a short approach shot and the inability to sink an eighteen-inch put.

One reason why golf is such an entrancing game is because it presents in symbolic fashion a picture of our progress through life with a succession of achievements, exhilarations, disappointments, and failures. One of the game's greatest lessons is that life is made or unmade by little things. What we consider, as we pass through them, to be the great crises of our life seldom prove to be so. Our careers have, for the most part, turned upon some little event for which, as often as not, we are unprepared. One moment of carelessness on the short approach, and we have blown the advantage of the magnificent drive that got us off to such a promising start.

Tired? Let Freedom Go

WASHINGTON — President Ford has asked Congress to provide supplementary arms aid for South Vietnam, and the word on Capitol Hill is that Congress won't agree. If that pessimistic prediction is accurate, it is bad news not only for South Vietnam but for the whole of the free world as well.

Mike Mansfield, Senate majority leader, expressed his own opposition a couple of weeks ago: "Additional aid means more killing, more fighting. This has got to stop sometime. It is up to these people to settle their differences in their own way." It is an oversimplification, though not a gross one, to say that the agonizing conflict in Vietnam is at bottom a struggle between freedom and slavery. What Mansfield is saying is: Let the chance for freedom go. The Senator is tired. Let it go.

This is a failure of will, the most melancholy of all failures. We are not asked to send men. We are asked to provide money only — money in the form of arms, ammunition, aviation fuel. We are asked only to provide the people of South Vietnam with the means for fighting back.

Observers in Saigon agree that if such aid is not forthcoming — if it is not forthcoming now, within the next six weeks — the Communist invasion will succeed.

But the Senator is tired. He finds "more fighting" abhorrent.

There is no such failure of will on the Communist side. In the two years since the Paris agreement was signed, Moscow and Peking have redoubled their aid to Hanoi. The North Vietnamese, in contemptuous violation of the truce, have infiltrated the South with 170,000 troops. The Communist forces are armed with new artillery, rockets, and antiaircraft weapons. The Communists are not tired.

In my own view, at least, the arguments in favor of providing the requested arms are compelling. We are not talking of "aid to President Thieu," or of "propping up the corrupt Thieu administration." This is straw-man stuff. In the continuing struggle between freedom and slavery, Thieu is one poor, weak, mortal man. He does not matter. We are talking, rather, of the people of South Vietnam, and of the faint, flickering candle they have fought so valiantly to keep alive. What do we say to these people? Let the candle go out?

Every American knows of the sacrifice the United States has made already: 55,000 dead, more than $100 billion spent. The sacrifice of the people of South Vietnam is not so widely understood. A better idea may be gained by using a factor of ten. In recent weeks, the South Vietnamese army has suffered one hundred casualties a day. It is as if an American army were losing a thousand. Upwards of two million South Vietnamese are directly involved in their war effort. It is as if we had mobilized 20 million.

It is conceivable that the Vietnamese people would keep fighting if it were only for the honor and glory of "a corrupt little dictator." This is nonsense. If the Thieu government did not command a large measure of popular support, it would

Baker Talks Entry

By LAWRENCE L. KNUSTON

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. says he is exploring the possibility of seeking the Republican presidential nomination in 1976 even though President Ford has said he intends to run himself.

Baker said he has based a series of "casual" political conversations with about 30 fellow Republican senators and GOP politicians on the assumption that Ford may change his mind and drop out of the race.

Ford's popularity has hit a new low, with 60 per cent of the American people rating him negatively, the Harris Poll said Monday.

In an interview, the Tennessee senator said the ground rules of national politics have been changed and the power of an incumbent president diminished by passage of the new campaign financing law.

Baker, the former vice chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, voted against the public financing provisions of that law. But he said that if he decides to run he will take advantage of them.

Perhaps as many as 20 to 25 other Republican party figures now are pondering a possible run "for the GOP nomination based essentially on the provision permitting payment of up to half the primary election expenses of eligible candidates, Baker said.

"The situation has changed," he said. "You don't have a giant juggernaut that's chugging along, scooping up money and enlisting foot soldiers. What

40 Years Ago Today

February 4, 1935

A woman restaurant proprietor testified in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann today that she saw the suicided Violet Sharpe carrying a gray blanket on the evening on which baby Lindbergh was kidnapped.

Mrs. Anna Bonsteel said the girl came into her restaurant near the ferry at Yonkers, N.Y., which connected with Alpine, N.J. at 7:30 p.m. on the night of the kidnapping.

Mrs. Bonsteel was the second defense witness to cast suspicion off Hauptmann and onto a gang which included someone inside the Lindbergh and Morrow households. Violet Sharpe was a maid in the Morrow home. She committed suicide as police were to question her for a fourth time.

Peter H. Sommer said he saw two men cross the Hudson river ferry and assist a woman with a blonde baby into a street car. He identified the dead Isidor Fisch as one of the men and said Violet Sharpe resembled the woman.

A New York painter said that Isidor Fisch had offered to sell him "hot money three months after the Lindbergh kidnapping."

The local relief committee started its annual drive today to provide the necessities of life for the poor of the community.

'Bullet-Biting' Time At Hand

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Despite its highly publicized tax cut feature, the administration budget proposal is a grim document that warns Americans of a tough economic haul ahead.

They will have to bite the bullet, as has been said so often, and they will be asked to buy bullets too. They are called upon to make sacrifices, and they are called upon to finance a $94-billion Defense Department budget.

The jobless rate is foreseen averaging 8.1 per cent for the year, which means it will top that figure — it is close to it now — before reaching a lower level.

The cost of living, which Americans were beginning to believe had ceased rising so sharply, is expected to jump 11.3 per cent over the previous year's inflated prices. Remember, oil prices will be higher.

The Gross National Product, or the total output of goods and services, is expected to decline 3.3 per cent, a contracting through which this generation has never lived.

The budget is controversial as well as harsh. Within it are packaged the ammunition for enough arguments to keep Congress busy and the public excited for an entire year. The fuses are there for disputes about peace-war, rich-poor, liberal-conservative.

While those who collect Social Security or use food stamps are asked to sacrifice, the Defense Department is offered $8.7 billion to replace old hardware and develop the new, and simply to keep pace with wageprice increases.

The red flag has been sent aloft over the federal establishment, and conservative spenders, as President Ford himself alleges to be, are worried sick. A $32-billion deficit is foreseen for fiscal 1976, which begins July 1.

A debt of this magnitude, which combined with the anticipated 1975 debt totals $86.5 billion, is unheard of, especially in the context of conservatism. Almost certainly it will cause headaches in the future.

The defense of deficits is that they spur a lagging economy. The adverse criticism of them is that they spur inflation too, if not kept within limits. And judging from past experience, nobody really knows what those limits are or how to keep within them.

The government hopes to take in $349.4 billion in the year beginning July 1. It hopes to obtain $297.5 billion in receipts. If you did that with your personal finances you'd have to borrow — if you could get it.

With the federal government there's little chance of it being refused the money. The Federal Reserve Board, while technically free to make such borrowing difficult, isn't likely to do so, and for good reasons.

If it keeps too tight a grip on the formation of money it will inevitably force interest rates higher again. If it doesn't respond to the big demand for borrowed money it could effectively destroy the economy.

Kilpatrick...

(Continued from page 4) have been toppled long ago. What, then, could impel the people to resist? Why has their will not failed? Tired as they are, they are not as tired as old senators. They do not regard the triumph of the Communists as inevitable. They ask only: Give us arms! And they will fight on.

Of course the requested aid should be provided — quickly, generously, unstintingly. Simultaneously, every possible diplomatic pressure should be applied to Peking and Moscow. If there is such a thing as "world opinion," that opinion should be marshalled against the North Vietnamese aggressors. Are we too tired even to provide arms in a desperate hour for a small and valiant ally? If so, the cause of human freedom creeps closer to that deep sleep from which no traveler returns.

group left Church downcast and reported the news to a shrewd political operative on the party's left wing.

Don't be disheartened, he advised; Church will go a lot further politically investigating the CIA in Washington than holding press conferences in Durham, N.H. That could be important considering the inability so far of Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona and other liberals to fill the vacuum on the left.

Church does not close the door as to what he may do when the CIA investigation is completed late this year. "He'll go," predicts a fellow liberal Senator. "I know that look in his eye."

Baker said those who have discussed 1976 political prospects with him have advised him not to assume Ford will run and told him "not to be coy about this, to discuss it freely."

He said he has taken this advice and that it sets him apart from other potential Republican contenders who have chosen to remain silent.

"A year and a half is a political lifetime and things have changed so swiftly in the recent past that it is not safe to assume that someone is or is not going to run, and that goes for me too," Baker said.

He said his exploration has not gone beyond the talking stage.

No committees have been formed, no study groups organized, no fund-raising efforts opened and no overtures have been made to party figures in New Hampshire, the state in which the nation's first political primary will take place, Baker said.

And he said he has not discussed his political future and possible intentions with President Ford.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The National Automobile Club advises that an overinflated tire is vulnerable to external wear because it can bruise easily.

Student Center Will Be Dedicated February 9

The new student center building at East Carolina University will be formally dedicated to the late Cynthia Anne Mendenhall in ceremonies scheduled for 3:30 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 9.

Miss Mendenhall was Director of Student Union Activities at ECU from 1954 until her death in February, 1972.

Featured speaker at the ceremony will be C. Shaw Smith, president of the Association of College Unions-International. ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins will welcome those in attendance.

A portrait of Miss Mendenhall will be unveiled by her sister Martha Mendenhall of Alexandria, Va. and will be accepted by Ashley B. Futrell of Washington, vice-chairman of the ECU Board of Trustees.

The Rev. Christian White of the First Methodist Church of Rocky Mount will offer a prayer of dedication. The choir of St. James's United Methodist Church of Greenville will perform "Sine Nomine" by Ralph Vaughn Williams.

CYNTHIA MENDENHALL

The center's facilities include a film and lecture theatre, an eight-lane bowling alley, table games facilities including 12 billiards tables and six table-tennis tables, a crafts center, a coffee house, a television lounge, ten conference rooms, a snack bar, a student bank and four music listening rooms.

Dedication ceremonies will be held in the theatre, followed by a reception in the multi-purpose room. After the dedication, visitors will be conducted on a tour of the building.

Cynthia Mendenhall was born in Fort Knox, Kentucky, to James Edward and Cora Redding Mendenhall of Randolph County. She was the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Redding of Elizabeth City.

She held degrees from UNC-Greensboro and UNC-Chapel Hill and did additional study at the University of Colorado and the University of Wisconsin.

Before joining the ECU staff, she taught business education at Fayetteville High School.

Suffer Loss In Tourist Deficit

GENEVA (UPI) — The Lake Geneva Steamship Co. has asked the Swiss government for a loan to cover last year's losses due to the sharp drop in tourists. The company said it had a 1974 deficit of about $250,000.

Switzerland's tourist industry, the country's fourth largest business, suffered a severe setback with British visitors down by 45 per cent and Americans down by 25 per cent.

NATURE TRIPS

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (UPI) — Papillon Tours will offer 11-day nature trips into the hinterlands of Trinidad and French Guiana next summer. The tours, to be operated between July and November, include visits to the Asa Wright Nature Center in Trinidad and Ile Royale of French Guiana.

Pirates Close Road Trip Against ASU

Buc Matmen To Host Wolfpack

The East Carolina wrestling team will go after its seventh straight dual match victory of the season Wednesday night when the Pirates host ACC rival N. C. State. The match will begin at 8 p.m.

ECU edged North Carolina Friday night, 23-18, to run its overall record to 6-0. The win extended the Pirates' winning streak in dual matches to 34. The Pirate grapplers have not been defeated since the 1971-72 season.

Head coach John Welborn isn't taking anyone lightly after escaping defeat against North Carolina. "I'm very tickled that we came away with a win against North Carolina," said Welborn. "I don't think some of them took Carolina seriously. We may have been looking by them, but I don't think that will be the case against N.C. State." The Wolfpack upset ACC powerhouse Maryland Sunday and should provide the Pirates with one of their toughest matches of the season. "N.C. State has vastly upgraded its wrestling program this year," said Welborn. "They started slowly at the beginning of the season, but they're really coming on now. And with that big upset over Maryland, I know they're going to be tough to handle."

A most interesting match Wednesday night will be in the heavyweight division where Willie Bryant of ECU will race the Wolfpack's Tom Higgins. Bryant is undefeated in dual matches this season, sporting a 5-0 record. Higgins is also rated as one of the top heavyweights in the state.

East Carolina travels to Williamsburg, Virginia, Saturday to face William & Mary, Old Dominion, and the Quantico Marines in a tri-meet.

Conley Hosts Wrestling Event

HOLLYWOOD—The Eastern Carolina Conference wrestling tournament will be held Wednesday at D. H. Conley High School with no clear-cut favorite this year.

Six teams will be vying for the title, and Conley coach Milt Sherman feels that five of them have a chance to take the crown.

Only Southern Nash among the teams in the league that field wrestling teams is counted out of the race for the title. And that is due to their inexperience. This is the first year the Firebirds have had a wrestling team.

Meanwhile, Farmville Central, Southern Wayne, Ayden-Grifton, North Pitt and hosting Conley are all seen as definite threats. Conley is the defending champion.

First round action will get underway at noon Wednesday, with semi-finals scheduled for 2 p.m. Consolation semifinals will be held at 4 p.m., with the consolation finals getting underway at 7 p.m.

The finals will start at approximately 8 p.m., following the consolation.

Sherman said that perhaps Farmville Central could be considered the favorite. "They tied with us for the regular season title, but they finished quite strong. But there are a lot of good wrestlers around, and I expect each of the schools to win some titles. Even Southern Nash, with their youth, has one wrestler who is capable of winning his class. Ayden-Grifton and North Pitt haven't posted the best records, but they too have some outstanding individuals who will probably win titles.

"It all boils down to a real hard battle for the title," he said.

The University of Arizona football team won seven of nine games in 1974, best record in the school's history.

In two years of coaching football at the University of Arizona, Jim Young has a 17 and 5 record.

DOUBLE TEAMING ON KUPCHAK—Mitch Kupchak (white shirt), North Carolina center, goes up for a shot at the basket while being guarded front

State Hosts Clemson; Cavs Are At Maryland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Clemson, the only Atlantic Coast Conference basketball leader with a losing record on the road, will have a tough time getting to the .500 mark in that category tonight.

The Tigers, 1-2 in away games, are at N.C. State, defending national champion.

Clemson has won its last five games. It is tied for first place in the ACC at 5-2 with North Carolina and Maryland. N.C. State is right behind at 4-2.

Clemson's 6-5 freshman Stan Rome will try to stop N.C. State's All-American David Thompson, who scored 38 points although the Wolfpack lost 98-97 at home to Maryland last Saturday night.

Clemson's 6-4 freshman guard Skip Wise, who scored 27 points in the 80-72 victory at home against North Carolina Saturday night, has been chosen as the ACC rookie of the week for the second time this season. He also scored 25 points in the 106-75 triumph over The Citadel the previous Wednesday.

There also is one other game tonight for ACC teams, Virginia at Maryland. The Virginia Cavaliers beat Duke 92-85 in overtime Saturday night for their second victory of the season over the Blue Devils. Virginia is 9-7 in all games against 14-3 for Maryland.

North Carolina overcame surprising pesky South Florida 79-72 at home in Monday night's only game for an ACC team. Twice in the second period the Tar Heels had to reel off six straight points to keep the visitors at bay. North Carolina led by only 73-72 with 2:48 remaining.

Maryland guard Maurice (Mo) Howard is the ACC player of the week on the basis of his performance in the victory over N.C. State.

The 6-3 Philadelphia junior scored 29 points, his high for the year, as the Terps beat the defending national champions for the second time this season. It was also the first home court loss for the Wolfpack in 37 games, since Maryland won by 66-65 on Jan. 31, 1972.

Howard entered the game with a .581 field goal shooting percentage. He raised the figure to .602 on his 12-for-14. He also hit on five of six free throw attempts.

His only miss in the first half was a driving layup. But he rebounded the shot and passed off to teammate Brad Davis for a basket.

Howard is scoring at a 15.6 clip. He ranks among the ACC leaders in both field goal and free throw shooting percentages.

East Carolina University's Pirates will try and get back on the winning track tomorrow night, but it might prove to be surprisingly difficult.

The Bucs will be traveling to Appalachian State University for the game—a place where most conference members have had little trouble.

Saturday night, Furman University snapped the Bucs seven-game Southern Conference winning streak, and moved past the Pirates into first place in the league. Furman is now 7-0, while the Pirates are 7-1.

The Bucs could still claim the title outright by winning the rest of their games. East Carolina plays a complete double-round robin in the league—14 games—while Furman plays only 12 games. Thus, the Bucs, at 13-1, could have the better record by splitting with Furman, which could then only have an 11-1 record at best.

The Pirates, in bowing to Furman, 86-76, had one of the weaker shooting nights of the year. At first, it was announced that the Bucs had hit 47 per cent in the game, but a later check of the statistics revised the figure down to 41 per cent.

"Their defense had something to do with it," Coach Dave Patton said. "But we got too high for the game and as a result, we were too tight. We took some bad shots too."

Patton said he thought that the middle of the first half was a decisive part of the game. Furman outthit the Bucs 27-10 during that period to forge a big lead. "They got hot, and we didn't answer them at the other end of the court," the coach said.

"Turnovers also hurt us. It wasn't that we had too many, it was when we had them. Our free throw shooting was also poor. We had the chance twice to cut it to seven points at the line and failed."

Patton said he would have to take credit for the loss, referring back to some quotes attributed to him by the Associated Press following the Richmond game. At the time, Patton was quoted as saying "Them big mothers are going to have to run 94 feet all night long," referring to 7-1 Fessor Leonard and 6-9 Clyde Mayes. "I don't believe I put it quite in those words," Patton said. "But it helps to fire them up. They had a packed house and they were all yelling for our blood."

Prior to the Furman game, Patton said he was more worried about Appalachian State than Furman. "I still feel that way. Furman was supposed to beat us there and they did. But we're supposed to win at Appalachian, and it may be quite hard."

Patton pointed out that just prior to the first meeting of the two, ASU Coach Press Maravich resigned. "That fired them up, and we beat them only 78-68 down here. Now, they've hired a new coach (Bobby Cremins, former Southern Carolina star) and he'll be coaching his first game for them Wednesday—so they'll be fired up again."

Besides, Patton added, ASU normally is up for the Bucs, playing them down to the wire. "Our job is to make our players see how important this game is. If we lose this one and the one Saturday (with Davidson) the game with Furman won't mean much."

The Pirates, too, are tired and road-weary, as they aim for their sixth game in less than three weeks. "Even so, I wish we were playing tonight, so we'd have one more day to rest before Davidson and Furman," he said. While Appalachian hasn't been burning the nets up, they still could provide trouble for the Bucs should they not be in the right frame of mind.

Gregg Ashorn continues to lead the Pirate scoring with a 14.1 average. Larry Hunt, 12.1, and Robert Geter, 11.8, also are in double figures. Hunt is the leading rebounder with 10.7 per contest.

Tickets For Games

East Carolina University students wishing to attend the East Carolina-Furman basketball game Monday must get their tickets in advance, it was announced by Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich.

Students must present their ID cards and activity card to get this pass. They may be picked up at Minges Coliseum's Athletic Ticket Office, or at the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Center. The pass, along with the activity card and ID card must be shown to gain admission for the Furman game.

Passes will be on a first-come, first-served basis, and will be available from 8:30 a.m. Thursday until Monday at noon.

Students will not have to have additional passes for Saturday night's game with Davidson, but Business Manager of Athletics Earline Leggett said tickets for the general public are going quickly.

There are no reserved seat tickets left for either game, and only around 1,000 general admission tickets remain. All those wishing to attend either of these games are urged to get their tickets as soon as possible.

Jock's Upset, But Holds Lead

City Basketball League Division II leader Jock's suffered an upset at the hands of the Buccaneer last night, but still held onto its lead.

The Buccaneer downed Jock's, 53-52, in the opening game of the night. The Buc moved out into a 29-22 lead in the first half. They had to hold off a Jock's rally, 30-24, but it was not quite enough to catch up.

Dennis Wilkerson led the Buc with 14 points, while Robbie Wooten hit 12. Terry Tolda had 21 and Gene Rackley had 10 for Jock's.

Azalea Mobile Homes rolled to an 87-67 win over Hyman's in the second game. Azalea moved out to a 40-22 lead in the first half. They outthit Hyman's, 47-45, in the second half to wrap it up.

Tommy Williams led Azalea with 22, while Edward Johnson and Robert Carraway each had 17, John Lutz and Dave Franklin each had 12 and Robert Kear had 10. Wayne Brown led Hyman's with 30, and Cleveland Johnson added 18.

In the final game of the night, Stewart's took a 62-57 win over Book Exchange. The Exchange held a 29-25 lead at halftime, but Stewart's came back with a 37-28 margin in the second half, and it was enough to pull off the win.

Bobby Parker led Stewart's with 32 points. Phil Duffy had 15, Billy Edwards, 14, and Mike Jackson, 10, for the Exchange.

Get Rid of Gray Hair Some of it or all of it

Time-lapse photographs show how gradual action of Grecian Formula 16 lets you control just how much gray you slowly get rid of—some of it or all of it.

White Plains, N.Y. — Hundreds of thousands of men all over the country are now using a remarkable product to control just how much gray they slowly get rid of. It is called Grecian Formula 16 and the results are simply amazing. Grecian Formula 16 is a practically clear liquid, as easy to use as hair tonic. This remarkable formula works for any color hair because it combines with the natural chemistry of the hair to recreate natural-looking color. There is no mess and no rub-off. You simply use it every day for two or three weeks until you slowly get rid of just as much gray as you want. Some of it, most of it or all of it. You can stop where you like. You are in complete control of how much gray goes or stays. Once you get rid of as much gray as you want, simply use Grecian Formula once a week or so to keep it that way. Since Grecian Formula 16 works gradually over a period of time, even close friends won't notice the change happening. The resulting color is so completely natural that the hair definitely does not have a dyed look. Grecian Formula 16 is available at

UCLA Moves Into Hot Spot As State Tumbles

NEW YORK (AP) — Every-one knows who's No. 1 in the college basketball poll. It's unbeaten, untied and unafraid Indiana.

But who's No. 2? Seems like everytime someone sneaks into the second position they promptly get whipped and fall back.

Take North Carolina State, for example, which is just what Maryland did. No sooner did the Wolfpack move back into the No. 2 position than they dropped a one-point decision to the Terrapins.

This week's poll finds UCLA in the No. 2 spot, replacing North Carolina State which tumbled all the way to sixth. The Bruins, 15-2, collected 838 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters on the strength of a victory over arch-rival Southern California. They were fourth last week. Indiana, 20-0 through last week, was a unanimous choice for the top spot. The Hoosiers polled all 50 first-place votes for a neat 1,000 points after beating Illinois and Ohio State. Louisville, 15-1, remained in the No. 3 position after beating New Mexico State and North Texas State. The Cardinals picked up 800 points.

Maryland, up from eighth following its victory over N.C. State, was fourth with a 14-3 record and 651 points. Kentucky, 15-2, held the No. 5 spot. The Wildcats collected 623 points after trimming Vanderbilt and Mississippi State.

North Carolina State, 13-3, headed up the second five. Alabama, 15-2, was up two spots to seventh. Southern California, 13-3, dropped two places to eighth. Oregon, 15-2, jumped from 11th to ninth. And Arizona

State, 17-2, advanced from 12th to 10th.

Marquette, 13-3, was 11th, followed by North Carolina, 11-5; La Salle, 16-3; Notre Dame, 11-6; Tennessee, 13-3; Clemson, 11-7; Arizona, 14-4; Creighton, 15-4; Rutgers, 14-4; and Penn, 14-4.

Rule Gets Court Test

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
Associated Press Writer
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — John Mackey, a former pro football player trying to overthrow some of the sport's cherished rules, was pictured Monday as the beneficiary of lavish salary and other benefits.

Mackey, 33-year-old one-time tight end with the Baltimore Colts and San Diego Chargers, said that National Football League regulations hurt his chances for going to another team when he got disenchanted with the Colts.

He is one of 16 plaintiffs joined by the NFL Players Association in challenging the Rozelle rule, named after NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

It gives Rozelle the right to name players or draft choices to be yielded by a team when two clubs can't agree on a trade to compensate for signing of player who plays out his option.

The suit opened Monday before U.S. District Court Judge Earl Larson with the expectation it may take several weeks.

Mackey testified he played nine seasons with the Colts after signing a two-year bonus contract for 1963-64. He said the Colts waived him after a blow-up and that he finished out his career with San Diego in 1972.

Paul Tagliabue, attorney for Rozelle and the league, reviewed Mackey's years with the Colts including contracts that brought as much as some $69,000 in 1970.

"Do you also recall a 1966-67 contract in which it states the player has the privilege of re-opening this contract but the Colts have no right to do so?" asked Tagliabue. The hefty expert said he did but couldn't remember having negotiated with the Colts in the second year.

Mackey complained that when he was picked in the college draft he had "no choice" but to go with Baltimore because of restrictive NFL rules.

Clemson Out To Keep 1st Place

By ED ROWLAND
Associated Press Writer
CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Clemson's Cinderella basketball team attempts to keep the clock from striking midnight tonight as the Tigers tackle North Carolina State in its Raleigh den.

A Clemson win will solidify the team's hold on first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference and, more importantly, prove to players and fans alike that power in the league now includes a South Carolina team.

Tates Locke, the Tiger coach, said Monday before leaving for Raleigh, "We still have to win a big one on the road."

The Wolfpack of State is always tough at home and in fact was unbeaten there in a two-year span until Saturday when Maryland eked out a one-point victory. But Clemson followers and Locke and the players know: 1. They beat Maryland. 2. They beat North Carolina. And 3. They have licked Virginia on the road.

Not since the 1963-64 season, however, has Clemson won at Raleigh.

But Clemson is setting new standards with every tipoff these days following a disastrous start in which they won only six of 13 games. The five straight wins since are the most for a Tiger squad in eight years.

Locke said the December schedule was rough, "the toughest of anybody in the league. When we lost a couple of close ones everybody panicked—everybody but the ballplayers and myself."

He added that the experience was invaluable in getting the team ready for ACC competition.

"They're not really grown up yet, there's a lot of improvement to do, we need more consistency," he warned.

Try to tell that to North Carolina. The Tar Heels were 15 points down at Clemson last Saturday, then pulled to within two in the second half. The Tigers didn't fold under the pressure and won going away, 80-72.

Or tell that to Maryland. The Terps fell by a point 10 days earlier.

Clemson doesn't have a superstar—yet. Its 7-1 sophomore center, Wayne "Tree" Rollins, may become one, but right now he's getting the job done in unspectacular fashion.

Against the Tar Heels he grabbed 17 rebounds. Senior Wayne Croft played for the first time in a week on a broken foot and scored 10 points.

Freshman Skip Wise poured in 27 points.

Locke said he didn't give up in the early going: "We were playing some pretty good people." He referred to Pennsylvania and LaSalle, among others.

"We have a good, physical club. They're young. I don't think they realized if we had been playing easy people we'd have been stunned by reality (of ACC competition). They've started growing up—but they're not grown up yet."

McNeill Happy With His Game

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
Larry McNeill went wild against the Philadelphia 76ers, hitting career highs in scoring and rebounding. But he was more impressed with what happened on the other end of the court.

"No question this was my best game," the National Basketball Association sophomore said after leading the Kings to a 100-87 victory over the 76ers. "But I'm more satisfied with my defense. That's what I've been working on."

In the only other NBA game Monday, the Boston Celtics ripped the Detroit Pistons 114-100.

In the American Basketball Association, Virginia defeated San Diego 107-92 and Utah clipped the New York Nets 111-106.

McNeill played his college ball at Marquette for Coach Al McGuire, which explains his defensive outlook. Last year, Kings Coach Phil Johnson would bring McNeill off the bench to harass an opponent attempting to pass the ball in-bounds.

Monday, it was the 76ers who were looking for somebody to harass McNeill. The search was unsuccessful.

Against Philadelphia, he scored 26 points and hauled in 18 rebounds as the Kings posted their first victory over the 76ers in four meetings this season.

With McNeill working the inside and Nate Archibald driving through and shooting over the 76ers, Kansas City-Omaha jumped out to a 20-15 first-period lead. The Kings outscored the 76ers 8-2 to open the second quarter and never trailed. Doug Collins led Philadelphia with 24 points.

Celtics 114, Pistons 100
JoJo White scored 29 points as the Celtics ran off their 10th consecutive victory and their 20th on the road against only three losses. The loss snapped Detroit's seven-game home winning streak.

Don Nelson added 19 to the Boston total, including the 10,000th point of his career, while Bob Lanier had 27 and Dave Bing 26 for the Pistons.

Squires 107, Q's 92
With George Irvine pumping in nine straight field goals, the Squires pulled away from San Diego in the second half for an easy victory.

Irvine finished with 18 points while David Vaughn and Mike Jackson led the Squires with 23 and 22 points, respectively. High for the Q's were Bo Lamar with 22 and George Adams with 20.

The victory was Virginia's third straight after losing 15 in a row.

Stars 111, Nets 106
Utah, behind Ron Boone and rookie Moses Malone, broke a three-game losing streak despite a 40-point performance by New York's Julius Erving.

Boone scored 30 points and Malone added 29 while pulling down 18 rebounds.

Seeding Factor As Spiders, Cats Meet

By The Associated Press
Richmond's Spiders invade Davidson tonight to meet the Wildcats in a game that's crucial to both teams as far as the first round of the Southern Conference championship basketball tournament is concerned.

Under this year's tournament format, the four top teams in the regular season will play first-round games on their home courts on Saturday, March 1, the four winners then moving on to the semifinals and finals March 5-6 at Greenville, S. C.

Davidson, a perennial conference power, is on the verge of being eliminated from any hope of a first division finish. The Wildcats have won just once in five conference starts and stand 4-14 over-all with 14 defeats in their last 16 starts.

The Spiders now hold down fourth place in the standings at 4-3 but have only a 5-10 over-all record. Although Richmond's Bob McCurdy leads the conference in scoring, the Spiders' No. 2 scorer and rebounder, Eric Gray, was an academic casualty.

The Richmond-Davidson clash is the only one scheduled tonight for conference teams, but William and Mary's Indians moved to within half a game of Richmond with an 81-53 romp Monday night over The Citadel's Bulldogs.

The triumph boosted the Indians to 3-3 in league play and 10-7 over-all, while the Bulldogs fell to 2-7 in the conference and 5-9 against all opposition.

Furman's two-time league champion Paladins ran their winning streak to seven and their record to 13-4 with a 92-90 nonconference squeeze over Jacksonville, but Virginia Military's Keydets fell to 9-8 in a 90-79 defeat at George Washington.

John Lowenhaupt scored 20 points, Matt Courage 16 and Ronnie Satterthwaite 14 as William and Mary pulled away from The Citadel in the second half with 60 per cent accuracy from the floor.

Leading by 10 points with 11:38 left, the Indians scored nine straight points, and the Bulldogs never threatened again. Rodney McKeever had 13 points and Mike Ange 12 for The Citadel.

Clyde Mayes hit a jumper with one second left that gave Furman its victory over Jacksonville. The Paladins had a 58-47 lead with 13:39 left, but Jacksonville roared back to go ahead 90-86 with 1:10 remaining before Mayes and Fessor Leonard scored to tie it.

Leonard finished with 33 points and Mayes added 20. Between them they grabbed 27 rebounds.

After missing his first four shots, Pat Tallent hit 17 of his next 18 and scored 38 points as he led George Washington past VMI. Will Bynum had 18 points for the Keydets, who lost for only the second time in their last 10 starts.

Top Conference Could Supply Both Finalists

By The Associated Press
It's possible for a major conference with nationally ranked teams, such as the Atlantic Coast, Pacific 8 or Southeastern conferences, to supply both finalists for the national college basketball championship March 31 at San Diego.

The NCAA tournament, under a new format, probably will go to 32 teams and may invite more than one from a conference.

The change was given impetus by the fate of Maryland last season. The Terrapins, ranked No. 4 nationally, were 23-5. But their season ended when they lost the Atlantic Coast Conference title game, 103-100 in overtime, to N.C. State, which went on to win the national championship.

Dr. Tom Scott, former Davidson College athletic director who heads the NCAA tournament committee, explained Monday that the tournament most likely will have a 32-team field for the first time.

Fifteen berths automatically go to major conference champions. The other 17 will be at-large teams, including four from the four regional tournaments of the huge Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Previously, only nine at-large teams were picked and none from a conference that supplied its champion as an automatic qualifier.

Scott said coaches recommended that in a case where two teams from the same conference are invited they be placed in opposite brackets, making it impossible for them to meet in the NCAA tourney until the final round.

In the case of the Atlantic Coast Conference, defending national champion N.C. State, Maryland and North Carolina all have been nationally ranked for weeks and now Clemson is knocking on the door.

The winner of the ACC championship tournament at Greensboro, N.C., next month will move into the first round of the Eastern Regionals March 15 at Charlotte against an at-large team.

Also, on the same program, the Southern Conference winner will play an at-large team. Both winners will move to the Eastern semifinals and finals

March 20 and 22 at Providence, R.I., along with winners of two March 15 first round games at Philadelphia.

The providence survivor will join three other regional champs at San Diego for the last two rounds March 29 and 31.

Things Looking Up For Palmer

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — Arnie's down. But he ain't out. Not by a long shot.

The disappointment of still another victory that escaped — and this one was so tantalizingly close — is forgotten.

His head is up, his game is in gear, his confidence is building and growing and Arnold Palmer is seeking his next title just as eagerly, just as anxiously, just as confidently as ever.

"I've had disappointments before," the 45-year-old Palmer said after he had charged into a late tie for the top, then let obscure Gary Groh escape with the title Monday in the $220,000 Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament.

"I'm not gonna quit or give up just because I lost a golf tournament," Palmer continued, "I've lost a lot of golf tournaments. And I've had my disappointments before. I've had lots of disappointments in my life.

"But that's history now. "But I'm playing better now than I have in two years, maybe three or four years. That's encouraging.

"But that's past. Now I'm looking forward to Wednesday. I'll be ready."

That's the start of the 90-hole, five-day Bob Hope Desert Classic in Palm Springs, Calif. It's the last title Palmer won, two years ago, a tournament he has won five times and one he admits holds a special attraction

Coach Angered After Defeat

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer
"We should have won," declared angry Tennessee Coach Ray Mears, who had already had enough aggravation for one day.

"Auburn just has to be lucky. Kentucky came in here with one of the finest teams in the U.S. and didn't win ... but we should have won."

Mears was fuming after his 15th-ranked Volunteers, playing without freshman star Bernard King, dropped a 62-59 decision at Auburn. School officials ordered King out of action earlier in the day after questions were raised about his junior high school academic records.

The former New York school-boy star was averaging almost 28 points a game — tops in the Southeastern Conference.

"We should have won without King," Mears insisted. "We played a superior ballgame. When you're outweighed by 20 pounds and out-heighted by three inches ... we just couldn't play any better."

Asked about the situation with King, Mears snapped, "We were told at one o'clock this afternoon not to use him. That's all. We were just told not to use him."

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 1 Indiana romped past Michigan 74-48, No. 5 Kentucky slipped by Louisiana State 77-76, No. 7 Alabama defeated Vanderbilt 86-72, No. 12 North Carolina beat South Florida and No. 19 Rutgers trimmed Gettysburg 97-67. Tennessee held a five-point lead, 55-50, with 6½ minutes left against Auburn. The Vols went into a stall but reserve Danny Cox scored six straight points in the waning minutes to pull it out for the Tigers. Cox, filling in for injured star Eddie Johnson, wound up with 14 points, while Ernie Grunfeld led the Vols with 22.

"The loss of King was very damaging," admitted Auburn Coach Bob Davis. "This was a game Tennessee needed to win. They would have been in good position in the SEC race, but now it's just wide open."

Williamston Bd. Votes Not To Suspend Chief

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston's Chief of Police, John Swain, will remain on duty until the outcome of his forthcoming trial is known. This action was taken in a resolution, passed by a 3-2 vote, at the January meeting of the Williamston Town Board. Chief Swain was indicted in Raleigh on January 20 on a count of conspiring with nine other members of the Williamston Police Department to defraud the government.

The resolution followed a discussion period in which pro and con comments for suspending or not suspending the police chief were heard.

The first of two public hearings for citizen input for use of $1,580,000 over the next five years in funds earmarked for the Martin County Development program resulted in a number of citizen proposals.

Several of these related to requests for the construction of a recreation center and the hiring of a full time recreation director. This idea was supported by the Rotary club and by different individuals making appearances before the board.

Senior citizen programs were also the subject of two separate requests. One, made by Mrs. Doris Wallace of the Martin County Community Action, seeks $330,905 for a comprehensive program and series of services to the elderly. The other, offered by Mrs. Betty Griffin, director of the Martin County Senior Citizens Program, seeks $67,875 for a passenger bus and driver for use by senior citizens.

Other input ideas for the community development fund use included a plan to convert the old Hays school to a multi-purpose recreation center; and creating small parks along a natural ravine that encircles Williamston.

A report made by John Boykin reveals that Williamston may qualify for funds by June 30 for the town's proposed sewage treatment. The possibility of funds exist as other towns higher on the priority list have not met plans and specifications requirements, which may move Williamston up in line. The Williamston plans are ready for initiation on receipt of funds.

Town administrator J. B. Godwin notified the board that the women's Club has offered to sell a lot in their possession to the town. Located a block from Main Street, a purchase price of $12,225 is being sought by the club for the lot.

Radio WGNL Has 'Modified' Format

Officials of radio station WGNL have announced modifications of the format for the locally based radio facility.

"Actually, we look at it as an extension rather than a change," WGNL news director Bill Allen said. Allen and program director Johnny West, said the changes took effect Monday.

"We feel that since we signed on the air last June, WGNL has been the recognized leader in terms of total daily minutes devoted to local news, sports and public affairs here in Pitt County," Allen said.

The format modifications, according to Allen, expand this programming.

As of February 3, the news programming lineup for WGNL will include a three-minute farm and consumer news show, beginning at 6:25 a.m.; a 10-minute local newscast featuring state, county and local news at 6:50 a.m. and 7:50 a.m. and at 12 noon; a five-minute local sports show, featuring ECU sports and sports commentary — the Bill Allen Sports Show — at 7:25 a.m.; "Weatherwatch", two-minute capsule summaries of forecasts and conditions for North Carolina and Pitt County, at 6:45 a.m. and 9:45 a.m.; and an hour-long local daily public affairs program featuring local guests discussing local problems and topics of interest — "Close-Up '75", beginning at 1 p.m.

In addition, according to West, WGNL features hourly reports from the Associated Press Radio Network as well as local headline summaries on the hour.

Allen said the station will continue its strong commitment to minority programming, featuring the county's only black disc jockey, "Little Willie" Edwards with daily shows from 2 p.m. until 5 o'clock and from 12 Noon to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

Also, according to Allen, "Search for Truth," the county's only minority radio public affairs program, has been expanded to one hour, from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. on Sundays.

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's poor pay a greater share of their incomes to taxes than do the rich, a state Senate study has concluded.

The study said that those earning less than $1,150 per year paid 19.7 per cent of their incomes in various state and local taxes. Those earning $57,500 or more paid 8.6 per cent in the model year, 1971.

The study said the regressive tax structure is the result of heavy reliance on sales and property taxes in the state.

It was adopted Monday by a special Senate Commission on Revenue Laws, composed of legislators and laymen, which studied state taxation for more than six months.

The commission recommended that the legislature enact a package of six reforms that would tend to make the tax burden more proportionate. But it shied away from recommending major structural changes in the tax laws.

The six recommendations include:

- Elimination of the exemption from personal income taxes given to dividends paid by North Carolina corporations.
- Extension of the $3,000 personal income tax exemption to all retirees with incomes of less than $7,000, coupled with new limits on the tax exemptions of state government and military pensioners.
- Addition of child care expenses to the list of allowable personal deductions.
- Elimination of the $120 sales tax ceiling on cars, boats and airplanes and elimination of the $80 ceiling on some types of industrial equipment.
- Doubling the inheritance tax exemption for widows and surviving children.
- Elimination of some minor sales tax exemptions such as film leases.

The commission's staff expert, Dr. James Wilde, said the tax reductions in the package would balance out the tax increases, leaving little or no net change in state revenues.

The commission merely reported the facts on several more controversial tax proposals, including the repeal of the food tax, increases in the personal income tax for the upper brackets, increases in the personal exemption for the poor, and higher excise taxes on liquor and tobacco.

Nonetheless, Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, said he was encouraged by the report. Smith has been a major backer of a plan to eliminate the sales tax on food and replace some of the lost revenue with higher income taxes for the wealthy.

Smith said the information in the report was as important as the recommendations, since it demonstrated what he has consistently maintained: that the state's tax burden is unfairly distributed.

Smith's plan would raise income taxes from 7 to as much as 10 per cent for those with incomes of $25,000 or more. His figures indicate that only the wealthiest 3 per cent of the state's citizens would suffer a net tax increase.

But another influential legislator, Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, said that while he liked Smith's proposal, he did not see much support for it. Scott, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, met with reporters several hours before the commission report was adopted.

He said that he did not think the legislature would go along with an increase in income taxes. He noted that most of the people he has talked to oppose Smith's idea.

"But maybe, that's because the people who are hurt most by the food tax aren't the types who write letters," he said.

According to the study, the people who suffer most from the sales tax on food are those with the lowest incomes. People making less than $1,150 pay 1.5 per cent of their income in food sales tax. The percentages decline for the various income brackets until the wealthiest citizens pay only .03 per cent of their incomes for that tax.

Based on the entire state tax structure, the poor also pay the highest percentage. People with median incomes—from $4,600 to $28,000—pay a generally proportionate share of about 9.5 per cent. The percentage figures go up for the very poor and decline for the wealthy.

Claims Helms Ordered Silence

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A former CIA official has testified that then-director Richard M. Helms ordered him in the weeks following the Watergate burglary not to tell the FBI about CIA disguises given burlar E. Howard Hunt.

Howard Osborn, former CIA security director, testified last year that Helms first had ordered that past CIA contacts

House Committee Assignments Made

RAMBLING IN THE HOUSE WITH
SAM D. BUNDY
Speaker James C. Green has completed his appointment of committees in the House. I have been placed on five committees which are Base Budget, State Personnel, Constitutional Amendments, Education (Vice-Chairman), and Alcoholic Beverage Control (Vice-Chairman). Committees are now meeting to discuss and hold hearings on the bills that have been introduced. It will not be long before floor action will start and the fur will begin to fly.

The hottest thing at this point in the General Assembly is Public Utilities and, particularly, the power companies. A public hearing on Tuesday and another on Thursday drew a large number of consumers who are fed up on the sharp rise in their electric bills. And rightly so. Four bills have been introduced in an effort to get at the situation. They are (1) to rescind the regulation of the Utilities Commission allowing automatic fuel cost adjustment, (2) Rescind legislation giving authority to Utilities Commission to base rates on future projected costs, (3) Not to permit a power company to place in effect interim rates, and (4) To enlarge the Utilities Commission to nine members and hold hearings in groups of three. I can support the first three; however, I would need more facts on number four.

Tuesday night the Raleigh Hot Stove League at its annual meeting with 500 present specifically honored Jim "Catfish" Hunter. Chancellor Leo Jenkins made a special presentation to Chancellor John Caldwell who is retiring this June. Jim Woods of WNCT-TV received Sports News Media Award for his work with sports on television. For the third straight year I was the "clean-up" speaker at the conclusion of the program. A fine event.

See you next week.

with the Watergate burglars be determined and turned over to the FBI — but then later telephoned to make an exception.

Osborn quoted Helms as telling him: "About (censored), you forget about that, I will handle that. You take care of the rest of it."

The censored phrase was cut out of a transcript of the testimony to the House intelligence subcommittee last May 24 with a razor blade. It was short, such as someone's name.

Osborn testified he had not known at the time what Helms was talking about but said he learned later "it was the business of the wig, the recorder and the whole bit."

Hunt secured the wig and other disguises from the CIA and used them for several White House "plumbers" operations including the burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office in 1971.

Osborn testified about Helms' order on disguises at the same time he disclosed that Helms had ordered him not to turn over to the FBI a letter the CIA received from Watergate burglar James McCord.

The order not to turn over the McCord letter was reported by the New York Times over the weekend.

The transcript shows that former CIA legal counsel Lawrence R. Houston testified he advised Helms not to turn the letter over to the FBI.

That testimony drew heavy fire from the subcommittee, including a conclusion by Chairman Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., that it appeared to be suppression of evidence.

McCord's letter warned the CIA that a move was under way for Watergate defendants to blame the CIA for the Watergate burglary. McCord later made this claim in public testimony but defense lawyers denied they ever planned to lay the blame on the CIA.

Meanwhile, the Ford administration's special commission investigating the CIA may ask for additional time beyond its scheduled April termination

Approve Closing Of Two Schools

WILLIAMSTON—Approval to close the Robersonville and Oak City Schools upon opening of the new Roanoke High School was made by the Martin County School Board at its February meeting Monday night.

The approval followed a required public hearing, at which no objections from the public were voiced. Two spokesmen from the Division of School Planning of the State Department of Instruction were on hand for the hearing.

The bill that will expand the Martin County School Board from a six to a seven member board was reported to have been introduced into the state legislature and action is expected soon on this issue. When approved, the seventh member (to be an at-large member) will be appointed by the board for the first four year term, and after that will be elected.

The board approved red, gold and white as school colors for the new Roanoke School, and an Indian as the school's mascot. A delegation from the NAACP was on hand to ask questions about teacher certification methods, and how teacher evaluation was supervised.

At the short meeting, the audit of the school budget was approved, and an announcement made that board chairman George McRorie and board member Macon Holiday would attend the National School Board Association annual meeting in Miami in April.

The bidding:
North East South West
2NT Pass 3♦ Pass
4♦ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♦.

Good defense does not necessarily involve brilliant or unusual plays. Logical inferences from the play of the cards and putting those deductions into practice can produce spectacular results. Consider this hand from a recent team tournament in Amsterdam, Netherlands.

South might have passed his partner's two no trump opening bid. However, he thought his hand would be near trickless in no trump, while at a spade contract it could produce two or three tricks. So he bid his five-card suit, and North raised to game.

West led the king of diamonds, and declarer took his best shot when he captured the monarch and turned a diamond to West's queen. West continued with a diamond to the jack. Declarer then led a low heart from dummy.

East paused to take stock. The fact that declarer had played on diamonds before touching trumps, risking a ruff, was significant. Apparently he was having some difficulty drawing trumps, for obviously entries to his hand were at a premium. East, therefore, concluded that declarer was trying to reach his hand in hearts. So despite the saying that aces were made to capture kings, East rose with the ace of hearts and locked declarer in dummy by returning a heart.

Declarer did the best he could by leading ace and another spade. However, West played his remaining diamond after winning the king of spades, and East scored his jack of spades en passant. Down one.

Had East unthinkingly followed low to the first round of hearts, declarer could have made his contract. After winning the queen of hearts, he finesse the queen of spades and concedes a heart. When he next gains the lead, declarer draws a second round of trumps and maneuvers a heart ruff in dummy, and the only other trick for the defense is the high trump.

Notice that it would not have helped for declarer to lead the king of hearts off dummy. East ducks the first round, wins the second and returns a club, again marooning declarer in dummy, just where he doesn't want to be.

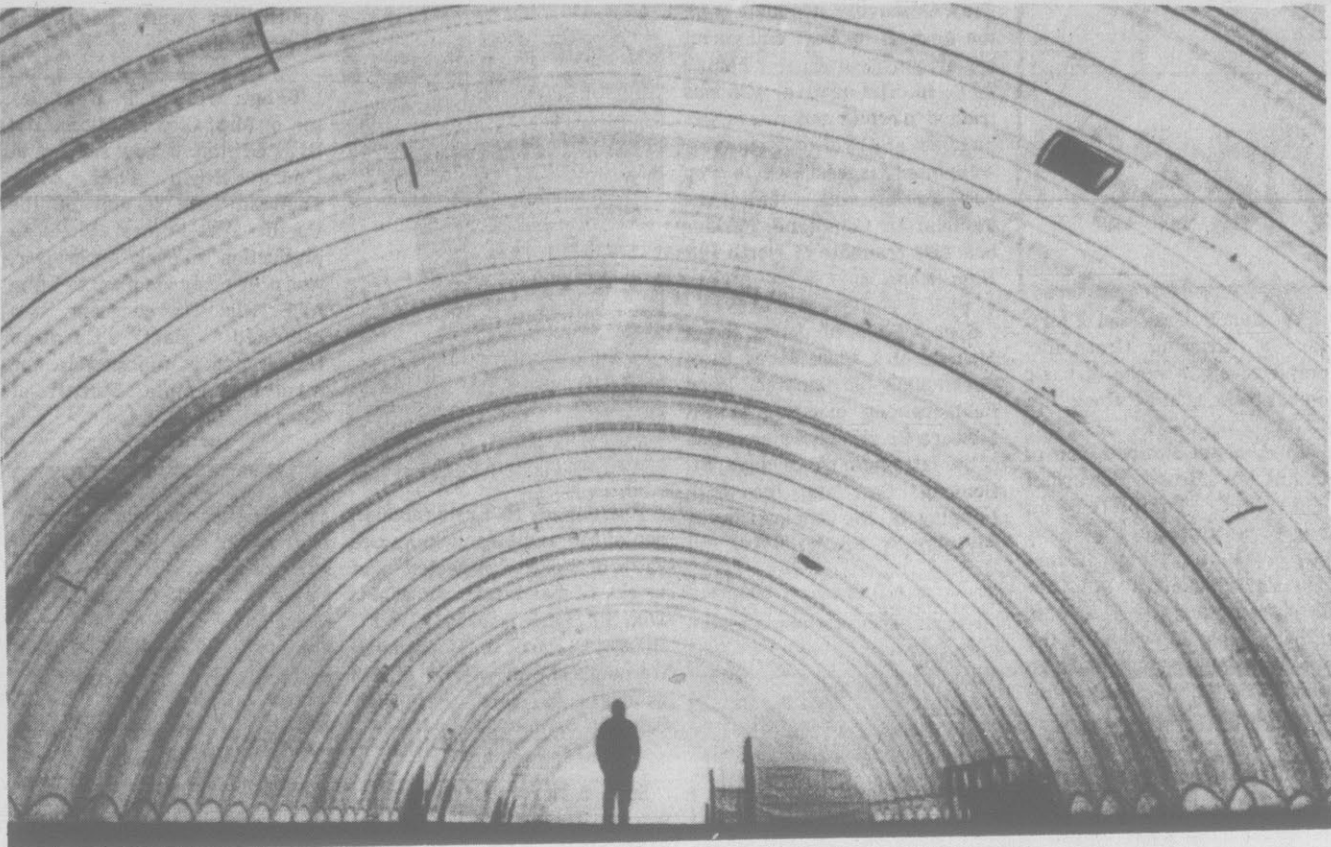

Standards For The Deputies

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Prospective sheriff's deputies in Cumberland County: grow that mustache now. Once you're hired, it's too late.

"Only those employees hired with a mustache will be permitted to wear a mustache," say the new regulations put in effect by the sheriff's department.

Goatees and "other extreme facial-type beards" are prohibited.

The standards, signed by Majors Charles Smith and Richard Washburn, also require that hair be "well groomed, tapered on the back and sides, with sideburns no longer than the ear lobe; i.e., medium businessman's haircut."

'The Plan' Baffles Americans, But Russian People Live By It

By GERARD LOUGHNAN
MOSCOW (UPI) — The American tourist stood outside Moscow's Rossiya Hotel, an expression of baffled rage and frustration on his face, as taxi after taxi roared past empty.

At some Moscow restaurants late last month, it was impossible to make a dinner reservation, though many tables stood empty.

The reason, as cynical Muscovites well know, is "The Plan."

The Plan dominates the Soviet economy and, through it, the social and domestic life of the people.

There are daily, weekly, monthly, annual, five-year and 10-year plans. They are even planning a 15-year plan.

The Soviet Union has just embarked on the crucial final year of its ninth five-year plan.

Each plan details production targets in advance. The trouble is that forecasts are not always accurate, and incentives are so unattractive that when many workers have fulfilled their quota for the day or the month, they are not prepared to work further.

Thus the taxi driver who has completed his allotted journeys or reached his fare total is not interested in stopping and picking up new passengers. He cruises out the rest of his day.

And the restaurant that fulfills its quota early in the month puts off prospective diners, since there is no capitalist-type incentive to increase the take.

As one Western economist explained it, "Cash incentives are no good because the few consumer goods available are of poor quality, and the reason they are of poor quality is that the worker has no incentive to improve them."

The emphasis in Soviet planning has traditionally been on quantity.

The factory manager who meets or exceeds his target is usually assured of a comfortable office, good housing, and perhaps a Volga automobile.

What is more, plans are laws, and the official who under-produces is breaking the law. In Stalin's day, slack managers were labeled "wreckers" and often sent before a firing squad. Today a persistently unsuccessful producer can lose his job.

Whether products are of good or bad quality may be irrelevant to a factory manager primarily concerned with numbers.

"The system is not efficient," the economist said. "Long-term planning cannot take into account such things as the vagaries of weather, changing economic conditions, fluctuating demands."

Plans must be loosely structured and frequently revised. So why bother with them? "Because Marxism is an economic theory and centralized planning is an outgrowth of ideology," he said.

There have been attempts in the past to ease the centralized stranglehold, but the hard men in the Kremlin have always won out.

Far from seeing a diminution of planning, many economists forecast ever-tightening control.

The 15-year-plan, which goes into operation Jan. 1, 1976 concurrently with the 10th five-year plan, is the Soviet Union's, and almost certainly the world's, first of its kind.

How can anybody make plans for 1990?

"It is not so much a detailed plan as a road-map," the Western economist said. "It outlines long-term, high-investment projects such as the new Baikal-Amur trans-Siberian railroad. Unlike the five-year plans, it is not written into law, but the fact it is being drawn GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be more cooperative with associates and cement better relations. Do whatever will improve your image. Strive for happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make out a better schedule early and then handle all your activities in a businesslike way. Take it easy tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Day is best time for recreation with good friends but the evening is not good for the social side of life. Dress in good taste.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Home and family should be given first consideration today and tonight. Make plans to improve your surroundings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you handle routine matters efficiently, you can then have time to enjoy some hobby with congenials. Take health treatments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find the right method for easing financial pressures. Because of the inflationary process, try to save more and spend less.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle personal matters during the day that will bring you the results you want. Don't neglect important social activities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Analyze the distance you have come to gain important aims and see if improvements can be made. Show devotion to mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Communicate with persons you want to play a major role in your life in the future. State your aims in precise terms.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan how to make improvements where career matters are concerned. Take in only light social activities in the evening.

NEW YORK (A) — The stock market declined broadly in continued heavy trading today, running into profit taking after more than a month of sharp gains.

Analysts said concern over the gloomy inflation and unemployment forecasts in President Ford's budget message to Congress Monday appeared to have prompted investors to cash in some profits and reduce their positions in the market.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials as off 8.06 at 703.38, and losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 3-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

"There may be some delayed reaction to the President's budget message, which projected a higher rate of inflation than had been expected," said Sual Smerling at Standard & Poor's Corp.

"But above all else I think it's a bout of profit taking that could have been expected at any time."

The Dow dropped more than 11 points after a steady slide at the outset, and then recovered a bit as the morning wore on.

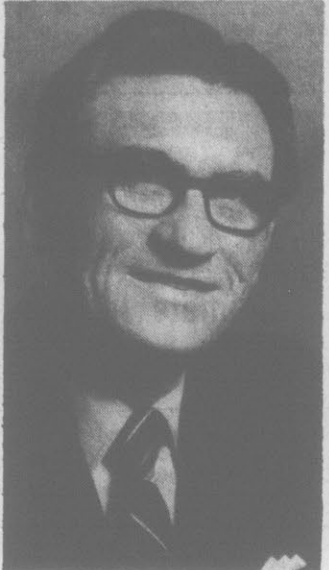

An additional piece of negative news facing the market was General Motors' reduction of its dividend to 60 cents a share from 85 cents quarterly last year.

GM shares were delayed in opening because of an influx of orders.

J.L. Tripp Will Open Warehouse

Jasper L. Tripp announced that he has leased Carolina Warehouse No. 2 on S. Charles Boulevard here from the McGowan heirs and will operate the facility under the house of Growers Warehouse.

JASPER L. TRIPP

Tripp said that the warehouse, located next to Minges Coliseum will be completely renovated prior to the opening of the 1975 tobacco season.

He pointed out that the facility, which has some 90,000 square feet of floor space, will be outfitted with new equipment, including scales and unloading system. In addition, new offices will be added and the warehouse will have a new roof.

Tripp said that the tentative dates for warehouse designation are March 3 through April 4. He added that the official designation period will be set on Feb. 10.

The new Greenville warehouseman, born and raised in the Pictou community of Pitt County, has had some 22 years experience in the tobacco warehouse business. He has operated warehouses in Kentucky, Valdosta, Ga., and Wendel, as well as in Greenville where he was one of the original founders of Farmer's Warehouse on N. Greene Street.

Tripp, who has been living in Raleigh for the past 15 years, is residing in Greenville at 401 Laurel Street.

Under the Planning Board proposal, 19 bulk containers — with 40-cubic yard capacity would be located at various spots throughout the county for residential waste disposal. The containers would then be hauled to the county landfill for dumping.

In other business yesterday, Commissioners were given a report on the Grand Jury inspection of the jail. That report said the jail was in "good shape" but said individual prisoners complained of being "treated roughly" and suggested inmates be allowed to make more telephone calls. The report also said no sheets or pillows were provided for cell beds and suggested more attendants be assigned to the jail.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson told the board that two additional employees have been hired — including one matron and an assistant jailer — and indicated another individual is being considered for a matron's position.

The sheriff also it might be possible to install telephone jacks in the detention area of the jail and allow inmates an opportunity to make possibly one telephone call per day.

State jail inspector Harold Leary also attended the commissioners meeting.

Leary, who said he had conducted an inspection of the jail during the morning, indicated that the Pitt jail has been upgraded over the past two years. "Overall it's a pretty good outfit right now," he told the board, and described the facility as "above average right now" for other jails in Eastern North Carolina.

Commenting on the Grand Jury notation about sheets for fail banks, Leary told commissioners that in cases where mattress covers are used — such as in the Pitt County jail — sheets are not required. He noted that pillows are not required either.

A native of Baltimore, Md., Austin came to Greenville in 1909 when his father was hired as a professor at East Carolina University. The Austin Building on the ECU campus was named for his father (Herbert E. Austin).

Austin, who has been living in Greenville for 65 years, has been very active in the Masonic orders. Since receiving his first degree in December, 1926, he has added to his achievements such degrees as the Royal Arch, Council Commandery, the Knight of York Cross of Honor and the Scottish Rite honorary K.C.C.H. Degree.

He was active in the fund-raising campaign to build the present Masonic Temple, located at the corner of Charles and 12th Streets. He has been custodian of the Temple since it was occupied.

Last night's meeting was attended by wives of the masons and a few masons from New Bern and Washington.

Special guests at the meeting included Austin's daughter, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Yancey of Oxford.

Robert L. Pugh of New Bern, Potentate of the Sudan Shrine Temple and secretary of the New Bern Consistory of Scottish Rite, presented a prayer.

Jimmy Brewer of Greenville presented Austin with two checks, one for $200 from Masonic friends in New Bern and one for $800 from local Masons.

Brewer, past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina and current treasurer of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina, presented Austin's record as a Mason.

Leslie Turner, Master of Greenville Lodge No. 284, presented Austin a certificate of appreciation for being past secretary of the Greenville Lodge.

Austin will be moving to Oxford because of health reasons. He and his wife will be living next door to their daughter, Mrs. Yancey.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Americans stationed in Asmara began leaving the beleaguered capital of Eritrea today and taking refuge in Addis Ababa.

U.S. officials in the Ethiopian capital refused to confirm that an evacuation had been ordered or was under way. But local hotels reported the arrival of some of the 300 Americans that had been trapped by the fighting between government forces and Eritrean insurgents.

Foreign observers viewed the amnesty offer as an attempt to reduce the ELF's strength by weaning away Eritreans who joined the guerrilla army recently to escape punishment for common crimes.

The government also proposed a "peaceful dialogue to solve the Eritrean problem."

MacDonald To Return

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jeffrey MacDonald, 31, has been ordered to return to Raleigh, N.C. for arraignment Feb. 18 on charges of murdering his wife and two children at Ft. Bragg in 1970.

U.S. Magistrate James J. Penne ruled Monday that there was enough evidence to hold the former Army doctor for trial.

MacDonald, now director of emergency services for a Long Beach hospital, was arrested Jan. 24 at Huntington Beach, Calif., under three indictments issued by a federal grand jury in Raleigh.

He is free on $100,000 bond. MacDonald was accused of the murders in 1970, but after an extensive hearing the Army dropped all charges.

Last August, the grand jury reopened the case on the insistence of MacDonald's former in-laws.

He claims four hippies invaded his quarters at Ft. Bragg on Feb. 17, 1970, knocked him unconscious and killed his wife and two daughters.

The government maintains evidence not available in 1970 links MacDonald with the killings.

Include Exhausts In Inspections

RALEIGH (AP)—A sharply divided Senate Judiciary 2 Committee approved a bill today that would add automobile exhaust systems to the list of automobile equipment which must pass safety inspections. The bill now goes to the full Senate.

The committee voted after a lengthy discussion during which Dr. Page Hudson, chief state medical examiner, told the legislators that exhaust system defects now result in 10 to 20 deaths a year from carbon monoxide poisoning. He estimated that at least half of these lives would be saved if the bill became law.
