

Unemployment Rate Hits Arson & Old Lace 8.2 Per Cent In January

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate jumped to 8.2 per cent in January, its highest level in 33 years as 7.5 million Americans were unable to find jobs last month, the government reported today.

The January rate was a full percentage point above December's 7.2 per cent level, the single biggest monthly increase since December 1953 when it also rose 1 per cent — from 3.5 per cent to 4.5 per cent.

Heavy layoffs were spread across the economy last month, the Labor Department said, affecting blue- and white-collar workers, teenagers, women and men.

The sharp increase in unemployment since the fall is evidence of the speed with which the recession has spread through the economy and apparently is much more severe than the Ford administration has forecast.

The administration's latest prediction is that joblessness will peak at 8.5 per cent this year but continuing layoffs since the January data was collected now indicates it could rise even higher.

Unemployment has not risen above 8 per cent since 1941 when it averaged 8.8 per cent for the entire year. There were 55.9 million persons in the work force that year. The government did not begin keeping monthly statistics until 1948.

In the post-World War II period, joblessness approached 8 per cent only once, in October 1949 when it hit 7.9 per cent of 62.1 million persons, and that was only for one month because of a coal miners strike.

During the 1957-58 recession, which at that time was regarded as the worst since the Great Depression, joblessness hit a peak of 7.5 per cent in May 1958. There were 67.8 million persons in the work force that month. More people are out of work today than at any time since the Depression years, but the work force now is much larger, having grown from 52 million to about 91 million.

The surge in unemployment is in sharp contrast to the picture just 15 months earlier, when the jobless rate had fallen to a 3½-year low of 4.6 per cent. Although a small part of the subsequent increase occurred during last winter's energy crisis, the unemployment rate rose most sharply from last August, when it was 5.4 per cent.

Since August, joblessness has risen by a seasonally adjusted 2.6 million, more than in any other five-month span since 1940, the government said.

In its latest report, the Labor Department said a seasonally adjusted 930,000 Americans joined the unemployment rolls from December to January.

Most increase in joblessness last month was due to layoffs, as the number of workers who lost their last job was reported up by 640,000, seasonally adjusted.

In actual figures the increase was listed as 2.2 million but because unemployment always rises in January, the seasonally adjusted figures are regarded as a more accurate measurement.

Total employment last month declined by 640,000 to 84.6 million with three-fourths of the decrease occurring among adult men, the government said.

The size of the civilian labor force was reported up slightly from 91.8 million to 92.1 million.

Harry Hagerty Appointed As Interim City Manager

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The City Council formally accepted the resignation of City Manager Bill Carstarphen and named former manager Harry Hagerty to serve on an interim basis while the search is underway for a full time successor.

In accepting with regret Carstarphen's resignation, the council agreed to begin advertising "in appropriate journals" for a new city manager.

Carstarphen, who joined the city staff as manager in October of 1972, announced Tuesday that he was resigning to accept a position as city manager of Spartanburg, S.C., effective March 10. He will actually conclude his duties at the end of February since annual vacation time will be utilized March 3-7.

Both the city manager and Mayor Pro Tem Percy Cox emphasized in making the announcement Tuesday that Carstarphen's decision to leave was not due to any pressure from local officials and that he is leaving on good terms.

Cox reiterated that position Thursday night, saying that contrary to some opinions expressed to him concerning council pressure to have Carstarphen resign, there was absolutely no pressure or hard feelings involved in the city manager's parting and his resignation was received with regret.

Cox said that "we appreciate all the fine things you've done for us."

Carstarphen told the Council that it had been a "pleasure and a privilege" to have served with the staff of local officials and he gave credit to the total staff for things that were accomplished during his tenure here.

The Council conducted its second public hearing on the preliminary draft of the Community Development Plan and heard a number of suggestions concerning implementation of the federally-funded program.

Noting that the paving of streets can be carried out under the CDP, Sid Skinner asked the Council to consider the widening of Chestnut Street. He said the project will help alleviate the "bottle-neck" that will result on Dickinson Avenue when traffic from the new hospital increases.

He said that the project will involve the loss of some trees.

Dr. Frank Fuller read a letter from Larry Graham, representing the board of trustees of Sheppard Memorial Library, pointing out that the board has been advised that additional library facilities, as requested initially under the new program, may not alone qualify for CDP funds. Graham suggested that a joint facility in conjunction with the Recreation Department might be funded to serve as a library, arts and crafts center, and meeting room.

A representative of the board of directors of Operation Sunshine, Ennis Chestang, explaining that the program needs a permanent home, asked permission to appear again before the Council with a "dollars and cents" proposal for implementing the program for underprivileged girls.

He noted that Operation Sunshine had been underway here for ten years and due to lack of a permanent location, community centers at Meadowbrook, Newtown and W. Greenville are now being utilized for the program.

Father Charles Mulholland, a member of the Human Relations Council, asserted that the HRC would like to see the summer concert series continued here.

A presentation on behalf of Greenville City Schools and the system's potential benefits under the Community Development Program was made by Schools Superintendent Glenn L. Cox. Cox said that it was concluded initially that the public schools "stood to benefit very little from the impact of additional federal funds to the city."

He noted however, that after reviewing the preliminary proposal, "I am convinced that city schools are a vital entity within the total operation of this community and therefore should be included as an ongoing partner in any city planning effort and in the case of this particular project should be designated . . . to receive some of the benefits of the project . . ."

Cox asked that consideration be given to the inclusion of several items in the final CDP program, including several recreational and open space developments, transportation with reference to traffic patterns around schools, planning and management involving city school staff members in the long range and short range planning activities of the community, and housing and renewal with specific reference to the purchase of land to expand playground facilities in the vicinity of Sadie Sauter School.

Other suggestions, which had been submitted during the initial public hearing on the preliminary CDP, involved a plan for the development of a day care facility at Kearney Park, a request to take action in West Meadowbrook to alleviate

Court Thursday where they were indicted on charges of arson. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Two elderly sisters have been arrested on an arson charge and are suspected in an "Arson and Old Lace" scheme involving more than 400 fires and millions of dollars in insurance claims, authorities say.

The 12-year pattern of suspicious fires suggests the work of "one of the biggest arson rings" ever encountered by the Fire Department, said the department's secretary, Robert Perez.

Rose Shiffman, 73, and Sylvia Goldberg, 66, were arrested on charges of hiring a "torch" — a professional arsonist — to burn a vacant $50,000 house in Far Rockaway, Queens. The house belonged to Mrs. Shiffman's 46-year-old son, Abraham J. Shiffman, a real estate man, who was also arrested.

The silver-haired sisters showed up in state Supreme Court on Thursday bundled in fur coats and well-tanned from a vacation in Miami Beach, Fla. They and Shiffman were released in their own custody.

Indictments for conspiracy to commit arson and soliciting to commit arson came after the three allegedly hired and paid a "torch" who turned out to be Fire Marshal Thomas Russo, working undercover.

The sisters, who live near each other in Rockaway, Queens, were charged in only the one case. But Queens Dist. Atty. Nicholas Ferraro said they were believed to have been the go-betweens for building owners and arsonists hired to set fires for insurance money.

Ferraro said the operation began 12 years ago when the three allegedly began to buy up houses in Queens, obtain high insurance on them and then pay to have them burned to the ground. None of the fires under investigation led to death or injury, authorities said.

NEEDS LOCAL DOCTOR

I need a local doctor who might make a housecall if I really needed him. My wife, who is a veteran, has cancer. Last week she had flu and I found it impossible to get any doctor to see her. C. T.

You told us your wife is treated at the Veteran's hospital in Durham. Dr. Jack Wilkerson, a local family physician, suggests you contact her physician in Durham and ask him to refer her to a Greenville family physician. "Although we cannot accept every new patient, most doctors would try to accept such a needful referral," Dr. Wilkerson said. He also suggested that if your wife is eligible for Medicaid services, and you say she is, that you ask the doctor about referring her to the Eastern Carolina Home Health Services, which has nurses, physical therapists, and other health professionals who do make house calls. The Pitt County Health Department also has a visiting nurse program which you might investigate, Health Department Personal Health Director Terry Lawler said.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK NEEDS RIDE TO KINSTON

I can no longer drive. When my daughter was alive, I used to ride to Kinston to visit her with a lady who lived there and worked here. I wonder if there's anyone with whom could make the same arrangement, so I could visit my granddaughter and her family occasionally. I will be glad to pay a reasonable amount for a ride. Mrs. M. S.

Anyone who goes regularly to Kinston and could provide transportation for this lady, please call her at 752-2491.

Tax Rebate Of Up To $200 In Emergency Bill

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Tax rebates of up to $200 on 1974 income taxes would be in the mail late this spring under an emergency tax-cut bill swiftly gaining ground in Congress.

The rebate of 10 per cent of 1974 taxes up to the $200 maximum are part of the $20.1-billion tax-cut bill approved Thursday night by a bipartisan 28 to 5 vote of the House Ways and Means Committee.

The bill also provides lower taxes on this year's income and some tax incentives to help businesses.

The tax package, which will go to the full House after it concludes its 10-day recess on Feb. 18, provides $4 billion more in tax cuts than President Ford has proposed. Ford has said he is withholding a decision on the Democratic-sponsored antirecession measure until after it had gone through both the House and the Senate.

Meanwhile, the Senate Finance Committee begins work today on a bill to suspend Ford's $3-per-barrel tariff hike on imported oil. The House earlier this week approved the suspension by a 209 to 114 margin and Senate action is expected within the next two weeks.

The first two witnesses before the Senate panel, Democratic Gov. Thomas P. Salmon of Vermont and former federal energy chief John C. Sawhill, opposed the tariff hike, which Ford claims would encourage energy conservation by driving up prices.

The House rejection of the tariff followed by the start of the 10-day recess Thursday prompted Ford to claim that Congress "really has done basically nothing" to face up to the nation's energy problems.

Under the tax-cut bill approved by the Ways and Means panel, all taxpayers would get a rebate. For those with gross income up to $20,000, the rebate would be 10 per cent of their taxes, to $200.

However, above that income level, the rebate would be phased back down to $100 for those with $30,000 or more in gross income.

Ford has urged a 12 per cent rebate of 1974 tax liability, with a top refund of $1,000.

The committee also approved lower taxes on this year's income by:

—Hiking the minimum standard deduction, which benefits lower-income persons, from $1,300 to $1,900 for single taxpayers and to $2,500 for couples' joint tax returns;

—Increasing the traditional standard deduction, used by taxpayers who do not itemize on their returns, from 15 per cent of gross income to 16 per cent, and boosting the maximum amount from $2,000 to $2,500 for singles and $3,000 for couples.

—Granting a special new 5 per cent credit on earned income, meaning a person's wages plus any self-employment income, up to a maximum credit of $200.

Petroleum Bloc Facing Big Test Of Unity Over Price-Setting Policies

By NICK LUDINGTON
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Sharp words are flying in the war of nerves over oil prices, and the big petroleum exporters are facing a test of their newly forged unity.

In the latest shot, U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger spoke about a possible break in oil prices because of cuts in consumption by the industrialized West.

Kissinger's verbal arm twist to pressure oil prices down coincided with reports that several major exporters are cutting production to maintain the high price of crude oil decreed by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

Iran's production for January 1975 was reported to be 5.3 million barrels a day, more than 10 per cent below the 1974 average.

Kuwait is reported producing well below its stated goal of 2.5 million barrels a day. An economic weekly with sources in the oil industry said Kuwait, to help sell its oil, is offering credit to oil purchasers of up to 75 or 90 days, in effect slightly lowering the price.

Other production drops reported were Iraq, 5 per cent; Libya, 32 per cent; Qatar, 9 per cent; Venezuela, 12 per cent; and Algeria, 4 per cent.

Saudi Arabia, however, is reported still pumping at the 1974 level of 8.4 million barrels a day. And the Saudi oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, said on Thursday that his government is still "strongly against" any further price increase.

Since Saudi Arabia is OPEC's largest exporter, its refusal to reduce production is a potential trouble spot for OPEC members trying to keep prices up by lowering output.

"Kissinger's plan to blow up OPEC depends on Saudi production," said the headline in one Beirut paper Wednesday.

The Arabs ignored Kissinger's proposal Monday for a guaranteed minimum price on imported oil and concentrated instead on his prediction that conservation measures by the industrialized nations and development of new energy sources would drive prices down.

Kissinger's tone was considered uncompromising, and surprising in view of the "economic olive branch" which the Middle East Economic Survey said OPEC had extended to the Western world at its ministerial meeting in Algiers last month.

OPEC offered to freeze oil prices in 1975 and, to protect themselves against inflation, tie them gradually to the rise or fall in the price of basic commodities which the oil countries import. It also offered to guarantee a steady supply of oil to the world market and to recycle petrodollars through credits, including credits for oil purchases by countries with balance of payment problems.

Flu, Pneumonia Deaths Decline

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Deaths related to influenza and pneumonia declined sharply last week but remained above the epidemic threshold, the National Center for Disease Control reported today.

For the week ending Feb. 1, the CDC reported 690 flu-related deaths in the 121 major U.S. cities it samples weekly in a flu surveillance program.

That is 138 deaths above the "expected number" the CDC sets for each week of the flu season by applying statistics from previous non-epidemic years to a mathematical model.

Drivers Ed Has Money Problem

RALEIGH, (AP)—The state Board of Education was told Thursday the state's driver education program which trains young people to drive automobiles is running out of money.

The board voted to spend an additional $850,000 to finance the program through June.

Split-Sentencing Concept Urged On Assembly

RALEIGH (AP) — A study commission wants the North Carolina General Assembly to enact legislation which would allow judges to use the concept of split-sentencing.

This was one of several recommendations contained in an interim report presented to legislators Thursday by the Commission on Sentencing, Criminal Punishment and Rehabilitation.

A package of bills to carry out some of the recommendations was introduced in the Senate. Sen. Lamar Gudger, D-Buncombe, a co-sponsor, said 10 more bills will be forthcoming.

The commission recommendations were outlined by former state Sen. Eddie Knox of Charlotte to the joint Senate House Criminal Justice and Correction Committee.

Knox, commission chairman, said idleness is a major problem in the overcrowded prisons. The commission proposals are designed to help alleviate the idleness and reduce the population of 12,000. The prisons have bed space for 10,000.

In introducing the bills, Gudger told the Senate the legislation offers "alternatives in sentencing to reduce the prison population without increasing the hazard to our society."

In other legislative developments:

—The House Judiciary II Committee was told that publication and broadcast of the value of estates is partially responsible for the state's rising crime rate. Rep. Daniel Lilley, D-Lenoir, has sponsored a bill that would close such courthouse records to the public. He told the committee, "I simply feel that this type of information is something that should not be placed in our newspapers." Lobbyists for the news media rejected that contention, saying the bill violates the public's right to know and is administratively unworkable.

—Sen. Cecil Hill, D-Transylvania, introduced a bill which would prohibit legislators from serving on boards, commissions and administrative councils of the executive branch. Hill said that allowing a legislator to serve on an agency of the executive branch turns him into a lobbyist for that agency in the General Assembly.

First Lady Campaigning

WASHINGTON (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford is doing some long-distance campaigning for ratification of the women's Equal Rights Amendment.

The President's wife called two Republican Missouri legislators just before the state House of Representatives passed the amendment Thursday, said Mrs. Ford's press secretary, Sheila Weidenfeld.

"She really wants to see this thing go through, it's important to her," Mrs. Weidenfeld said.

In the past two weeks, Mrs. Ford has written letters and called several GOP legislators in Illinois, North Dakota and Missouri.

Mrs. Ford, expressing her own backing for ERA, has been asking the state legislators to "vote their conscience and not be influenced by those who are against ERA just because of political lobbying," the press secretary said.

The state Senate in Missouri has not yet voted on the measure and ratification legislation is pending in Illinois.

Thirty-four states have ratified the amendment, which would ban sex discrimination in the United States. Four more states must act for the amendment to become part of the Constitution.

Onassis Enters
Paris Hospital

PARIS (AP) — Aristotle Onassis entered the American Hospital in the Paris suburb of Neuilly today for treatment of a muscular ailment aggravated by influenza.

Onassis flew from Athens to Paris Thursday night in a private executive jet and spent the night at his Paris apartment near the Arc de Triomphe. His failure to go immediately to the hospital aroused speculation that he might be going on to the United States for treatment.

He was driven to the hospital this morning and entered by a rear door to avoid photographers gathered at the main entrance.

93 miles per hour? We obviously don't recommend it, but it is reassuring to know that as you get onto a hectic expressway, a new Volkswagen Rabbit Hatchback has the power for incredible acceleration. From 0 to 50 in only 8.2 seconds. Quicker than a Monza 2+2.

38 miles per gallon? That's what the Rabbit averaged on the highway in the 1975 model Federal Environmental Protection Agency fuel economy tests. The Rabbit in the city averaged a nifty 24. Not bad for a sub-compact with all the interior room of some mid-size cars.

$2,999? That's what you pay for the car backed by the most complete and advanced car coverage plan in the business: The Volkswagen Owner's Security Blanket with Computer Analysis.

Happy days are here again? We think you'll think so after you've driven a Rabbit.

THE STEPS OF LENT

Between Ash Wednesday and Easter Sunday there are forty days? No, that's not quite right.

Between Ash Wednesday and Easter Sunday there are forty weekdays—and six Sundays. Traditionally the weekdays were the Lenten fast, the Sundays were festivals of Christian worship.

If your faith has taught you to observe Lent: by foregoing pleasures or adding new religious experiences or both... those Six Sundays are occasions for taking inventory of your spiritual progress.

If yours is a religious background that does not emphasize Lent, those Six Sundays are still milestones on the way to the great Christian celebration of Christ's Resurrection—Easter!

And if, perchance, you have never given much attention to spiritual matters, those Six Sundays (and the thoughtful days between) are an invitation from your Lord... to walk with Him the path He walked for You.

Hospitalized Kids Get Foster Grandparents

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry is a pleasant-faced youngster of 11. He has muscular dystrophy and has been a patient at Brooklyn's Kingsbrook Jewish Medical Center since just after birth. Two other children born to his parents died of the same illness. His parents had not visited him for many years. He is a frail child who needs love and attention.

Diane is 9, a cerebral palsy patient at Kingsbrook, mentally retarded, who comes from a family of seven children. Her mother, who finds it difficult to take care of the children, never comes to visit her. Diane spends her time in a bed or a wheelchair. Let an adult pass by who looks at her, and her face lights up. She reaches out for love and attention.

These are two of 25 youngsters at the Medical Center, ranging from infancy to 15, many of whom are neglected or have been abandoned by their families. They need the kind of attention which no hospital is geared to provide. They need tender loving care.

Helen French is 68 years old. She has two daughters and nine grandchildren, all of whom have moved out of New York, where she lives. She is lonely and has very little to do. She loves children, and would like to give her love to children who need it.

Mrs. Forbes Is Club Hostess

Mrs. Harold Forbes entertained members of the Lector Book Club at her home on the Falkland Highway Tuesday.

Guests for the occasion were Mrs. Fred Sorensen and Mrs. Cora Powell.

After a three-course luncheon and short business meeting Mrs. Jack Moye introduced the speaker Mrs. Donna Whitley of Greenville, who recently returned from Morocco with her husband.

Mrs. Whitley demonstrated the authentic Arabic folk dance, better known here in the U.S. as belly dancing. She explained that it is the National dance of North Africa and is done only in the tribes for wedding celebrations, births and deaths, for it is done with women only as an audience and is danced fully dressed in a caftan. It is not only a beautiful dance but good exercise.

David Horowitz never married. He has almost no family. Before his retirement he worked for the Veterans Administration and the General Accounting Office. At one time he worked at an orphan asylum and in children's camps. His pension is inadequate, and he would like to do something where he could not only earn additional income, but also be helpful.

The federal government, in cooperation with municipalities, has developed a program to aid these two neglected segments of the population — a program called Foster Grandparents.

The program is designed to give meaningful activity to senior citizens and to provide the warmth, friendship, support, interest, understanding, individualized attention, unhurried help and personal care required to meet the needs of institutionalized children.

"Foster grandparents do not substitute for or replace staff, nor do they relieve the staff of their routine duties," said David Steiner, director of Social Service at Kingsbrook. "Each foster grandparent is responsible for one or two children, depending on the needs and schedule of the children. The foster grandparents are part of the school program, physical and occupational therapy programs and any case conferences involving the children."

The Kingsbrook Jewish Medical Center is the type of facility where such a program is welcomed with open arms, since it cares for both acute and long-term patients. It was founded as a long-term facility, specializing in the care of both crippled, handicapped youngsters and aged men and women.

The program at the Medical Center, which was inaugurated with the cooperation of New York City's Office of the Aging, now includes five women and one man. They work for four hours each day, five days a week.

Mrs. Martin Gives Program

GRIFTON—Mrs. Phyllis Martin of Greenville presented the program at the meeting of the Grifton Extension Homemakers held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. A. Rogers. Director of nursing at the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, she spoke on alcoholism, the effects and treatment. She was accompanied by Mrs. Elizabeth LeConte, executive director of the Pitt County Mental Health Association.

Mrs. Percy Boyd conducted the business meeting. The group voted to help with the preparation of the fish stew for the Shad Festival and to make penants to be displayed by business establishments. A workshop was planned to make dresses to be sent to Cherry Hospital, Goldsboro.

Mrs. Boyle Is Speaker

Mrs. Becky Boyle of Winterville was guest speaker for the Seira Book Club meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins.

Mrs. Boyle displayed and spoke on various types of eggs and showed decorated eggs, which she designed. She has had exhibits in Phillipsburg, N.J., New Carroll, Md., Pittsburgh, Pa., and other areas.

Her craft was displayed at the Greenville Bicentennial Exhibit held at the Kroger Building. Prior to the program, refreshments were served the Mrs. Jenkins assisted by Mrs. John Lang Jr.

A business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Gretchen Goodwin, president of the club.

During their orientation, they met with members of the staff who are directly concerned with the youngsters. These include doctors and nurses, physical and occupational therapists, teachers and various members of the Volunteer-Recreation department and the Department of Social Service, which is primarily responsible for the program.

"To the youngsters, these foster grandparents will be bringing the attention and warmth, which by the very nature of any institution, are missing," said Steiner.

"For the grandparents, there will be an opportunity to give of themselves from the experience of their lives, either as parents or from their vocations. It will relieve many of them of the loneliness of their later years and will give them additional income, important in a highly inflationary period."

The program is nationwide. There are more than 15,000 foster grandparents serving more than 25,000 institutionalized children in approximately 150 projects. The foster grandparents serve in a variety of settings: pediatric wards in hospitals, institutions for the mentally retarded, correctional facilities, homes for the dependent and neglected and institutions for the emotionally disturbed and physically handicapped.

The foster grandparents meet the three requirements for participation in the program: age of 60 or over, low income and good health. There are no educational requirements.

"We have high hopes for this program," said Steiner. "We feel it will be of great benefit to the children in the difficult process of growing up in an institution, and being able to gain a greater share of life's expectations and satisfactions that are the inalienable rights of all children."

Card Playing Is Good Exercise, But Not For Money

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Here's one I'll bet you've never been asked before: About once a week, my mother, father, husband and I get together and play penny poker. I invited our 12-year-old son to sit in with us, and I taught him how to play. He caught on very quickly and loves the game. He has a newspaper route, so he has his own money.

He can hold his own with the rest of us, but now I'm wondering if perhaps I didn't make a mistake.

Are we instilling the love of gambling in this boy? Should I now refuse to let him play? Now that he has come to enjoy it so much, he begs to join us.

Thank you for some sound advice.

SAN DIEGO MOM

DEAR MOM: Card playing sharpens one's wit and is good exercise for the mind. I see nothing wrong with teaching the boy to play poker. But not for money, Mom. He'll learn that on his own soon enough.

DEAR ABBY: I married during college, and my husband left me two years later while I was pregnant with my first child. Living across the street was a man I'll call "Jim." He was a professor, and we became good friends. Jim was wonderful to me, bringing me meals he had prepared, and looking after me as though I was his little sister. I asked him to be my child's godfather. I felt safe with Jim because he was a homosexual.

Two years ago, I married Jim's brother, then a widower with three children. We've had a fantastically good marriage, but last night we had a foolish argument and my husband lashed out at me and said: "I have never thrown up to you the fact that you were a prostitute and your first husband was a pimp." (It came out that Jim had told him that my first husband had told him that.) Abby, my ex was a rat who could have said something like that, but the fact that Jim actually believed it and told it to his brother, who also bought it, is something I just can't handle.

Today my husband tried to assure me that he didn't believe that story, but I'm not convinced. I'm so upset I missed work today, something I never do.

Should I confront Jim? I don't want to put my husband in the middle, but he has to know that it is a lie. If it weren't for the children, I think I'd have committed suicide last night. Please help me.

NO PLAY FOR PAY

DEAR NO: If you've had a "fantastically good marriage," believe your husband when he assures you that he doesn't believe that story. Put it out of your mind, and don't confront Jim unless your husband repeats the accusation. If he does, then talk to Jim and get the whole ugly mess settled once and for all.

DEAR ABBY: Lately, my mother, who is 43, and my father, who is 44, have started to act like they just got married. I am 12 and have an older sister and two younger brothers who said they noticed it, too.

Mom and Dad a book entitled "The Joy of Sex," and one night I heard my dad ask my mother if she wanted to try something new. I really thought this was disgusting. I am losing respect for them. Or am I wrong to feel this way?

MIXED-UP KID

DEAR MIXED: You're wrong. You ought to be happy that your parents find each other so appealing. (Lots of kids have parents who fight instead.) Responsible sex is joyous, and it's perfectly respectable.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Energy, Economic Situations Trigger Advice On Clothing

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The government has recommended using cold water for the laundry and a woman attending an "economic and energy" panel discussing the Couture Press Week asked what about contagious germs in fibers.

She was referring to a study done at a college in which athlete's foot went from one person to another after a basketball team's socks were all washed together in cold water.

"The temperature in the average home wash is never hot enough to kill bacteria," responded Peggy Matthews, who works for the public relations firm which set up the panel for a cold-water detergent company. "To kill bacteria, water needs to be near boiling and in the average home it's only 120 degrees. But adding one tablespoon of chlorine bleach to the water before you add the laundry will kill germs."

It costs more to produce the energy for a man to shave with hot water than with an electric razor, said Sally Martinez, special assistant to the New York regional administrator of the Federal Energy Administration. Miss Martinez also suggested hanging clothes on a line instead of using the dryer — to which Stanley Love, president of a children's wear company, took exception since polyester knits need to be tumble dried to eliminate wrinkles. Designer Stan Herman declared, "There's something beautiful about wrinkles. They're human."

Miss Martinez also said, "We can let go of a lot of air-conditioning, not turn it on until it's 78 degrees."

The stated purpose of the five-member panel, moderated by Julia Meade, was to tell women how to buy clothes in 1975, "in view of today's economic and energy situations."

All agreed that quality is the prime thing to look for, not bargains — because those may turn out not to be bargains in the long run. Vincent Montesano, president of the New York Couture Business Council, advised women to turn clothes inside out in the store and check whether they're well made.

Carrie Donovan, senior fashion editor of Harper's Bazaar, suggested taking all your spring and summer clothes out of the closet before doing any buying. By laying it all out and looking at it, she said, you'll see what you need to go with something else and you'll see what you bought over the last two or three years and haven't worn, so you can get rid of it.

She didn't, however, entirely rule out impulse buying, saying that sometimes the very thing you see in a store, love and think you don't need but buy anyway is the thing you get the most wear out of. But she said that in today's economy there should be less impulse buying, and no "discard everything and buy a whole new wardrobe for a new style image."

Love said that in the South, where warm clothes are less necessary, sales of dresses for girls have gone up as people realize that a child's dress is cheaper than a pair of slacks and a top. Miss Donovan was pleased, saying that everyone has been asking what will bring back the dress and "now a whole generation will grow up to adore dresses!"

She went on to remark that "Boots got their push with longer skirts, but they're a very practical item. It's interesting to me that one of the first things to move in stores this fall was boots."

Women were advised to read and follow labels in clothes telling how the garment should be washed or dry cleaned. And everybody agreed that the layered look is good. With layers in various weights, and sweaters to put on or off, a person can go between rooms heated differently and between seasons. Herman said, "I think the things women have been buying the last three years are still valid — those bits and pieces that have killed the dress business to a great degree."

Young Beef

If you're confused about all the new names cropping up for beef, it's small wonder. This new animal is grass-fed light beef — also known as baby beef, vealer, lightweight beef, young beef, pasture beef, grass-fed beef, heavy calf and possibly other names. And to add even more confusion, many chain stores are adding their own trade names.

What is light beef? In normal beef operations, a calf is weaned and put out to pasture until it is six to nine months old—then it goes to the feedlot where it is grain fed from 120 to 180 days. Grain-fed beef are usually marketed when they are one-thousand to one-thousand-two-hundred pounds live weight—and are referred to as heavy beef.

But recently the cost of grain has increased to the point where it is costing cattlemen more to grain feed the calf to maturity than they can sell it for. So cattlemen are bypassing the feedlot and slaughtering directly off the pasture when a beef calf is six-to-nine months old and weighs four-hundred to six-hundred pounds.

This light weight beef is somewhere between veal and beef in taste. It is leaner and in most cases pinker in color than heavy beef, but not as light in color as veal. It doesn't have the flavor and texture of heavy beef either. And because it lacks the marbling of heavy beef, the cuts from light weight beef should not be grilled or broiled. Cooking by moist heat is the best choice.

Plentiful Potatoes
The potato may be the best friend your appetite ever had. For if you're like most of us—

BREAD
Bucket-Cheese-French Covered Wagon
Diener's Bakery
815 Dickinson Ave.

you eat about one hundred twenty pounds of potatoes a year.

And this year there's good news for potato fans. There will be a plentiful supply of potatoes to satisfy those appetites.

For waistline watchers—there's even more good news. Potatoes contain virtually no fat, so dieters can indulge. For the potato contains not many calories than an apple of equal size—but calories do multiply when butter, sour cream or other fats are added.

Other good things about potatoes—they contain a wide range of nutrients in valuable amounts. They provide almost twenty percent of the Vitamin C in the country's food supply—and are second only to citrus in that regard.

Variations in preparation are almost endless and some potato dishes have become almost constant companions to other foods.

For example, French fries team up with hamburgers or steak—hash browns with eggs and bacon—baked potatoes with roast beef. And the all time favorite—mashed potatoes are served with all types of meats.

Then, for a change of pace—try potatoes au gratin, or use potatoes in stews or in potato salads.

Serve them often for good health, good meals, sound budgets and substantial meals. For anyway you slice them—potatoes have a lot to give besides calories.

Better Downtown Taking Shape

Greenville's Central Business District redevelopment project won't be completed overnight, but it is moving along now.

Work is underway to beautify the alleys behind downtown stores. The alleys are being converted to pedestrian walkways. A pebble paving is being installed, along with shrubbery and park type lamps. A major part of the project was an encouragement for downtown merchants to revamp the back of their stores so that they will have attractive entranceways from the walkways and parking areas beyond.

It is now becoming essential that downtown merchants do this, since the next phase of the project is work on Evans Street to convert it to a pedestrian mall from Fifth to Third. A 90-to-120-day construction period is anticipated for this and it is expected now that the mall will be ready for dedication by the first of August.

The secret of making any downtown mall a success is providing adequate parking areas around the downtown stores and providing adequate street access to the downtown area to offset the street area used in the pedestrian mall.

The Redevelopment Commission is presently in the process of tying down parking areas which will serve the downtown. As for access, Reade Circle has been partially completed and is already carrying a heavy traffic load.

Redevelopment authorities say that Reade Circle will be completed from Dickinson Avenue to W. Fifth this year. Then the Department of Transportation has plans for widening of Greene to Second Street.

Property acquisition is moving along in the area along Dickinson and Evans South of Five Points where a park area is to be created.

Citizens can expect to see much of the downtown improvement taking shape this year. It is preceded by years of planning and property acquisition, and the actual site work should make it all worthwhile.

The project should revitalize the downtown, improve property values thus bringing in more tax revenues, and generally make the area more pleasant for all our citizens.

Nearly $10,000 For Each

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—A close look at North Carolina's training school program for juveniles brings one fact clearly home: it is costing taxpayers nearly $10,000 per year for each child in training school.

And bear in mind that about half of those in the training schools are there not for committing a crime, but because they have been declared unmanageable by their parents or guardians, or for truancy at school—status offenders; not criminals.

The state is currently operating seven training schools, and has 676 employees on the payroll in the juvenile offenders division of the Department of Corrections.

The budget for the current fiscal year is $10.3 million. Proposed spending outlined in Gov. James E. Holshouser's new budget is $9 million in each of the coming two years.

The present population in the juvenile training school system is 928 youngsters; 928 kids divided into $9,078,480 equals $9,782.

A College Degree

For that amount of money, an observer equipped, he could educate a child at Harvard, and have enough left over for a European vacation.

The juvenile system houses, feeds, clothes, educates, and provides medical and dental care for the inmates.

Security and custody cost $4.5 million; food, clothing and personal items cost $1.2 million; and treatment (school, health) another $3.1 million.

The juvenile system operates its own schools, separate and apart from the public school system—the cost in the present fiscal year is $2.8 million, including a new building. Cost next year will be $1.2 million. Vocational education adds another $500,000, for a total of $1.7 million.

There are 80 instructors in the academic program; 38 in the vocational education program; a total of 118 instructors. The ratio of student to instructors is about eight-to-one.

Housing is available in the juvenile system for more than 3,000 inmates. The system operates seven schools (one was closed recently) and the population is declining steadily as fewer children are committed to prison, and community-based facilities are put into operation.

Some attention is being turned in legislative quarters to the possibility that the training schools—with space for more than 3,000 people and already equipped with shops, classes, dining halls and medical care facilities—provide a ready-made solution to the overcrowded conditions in adult prisons.

Use Buildings

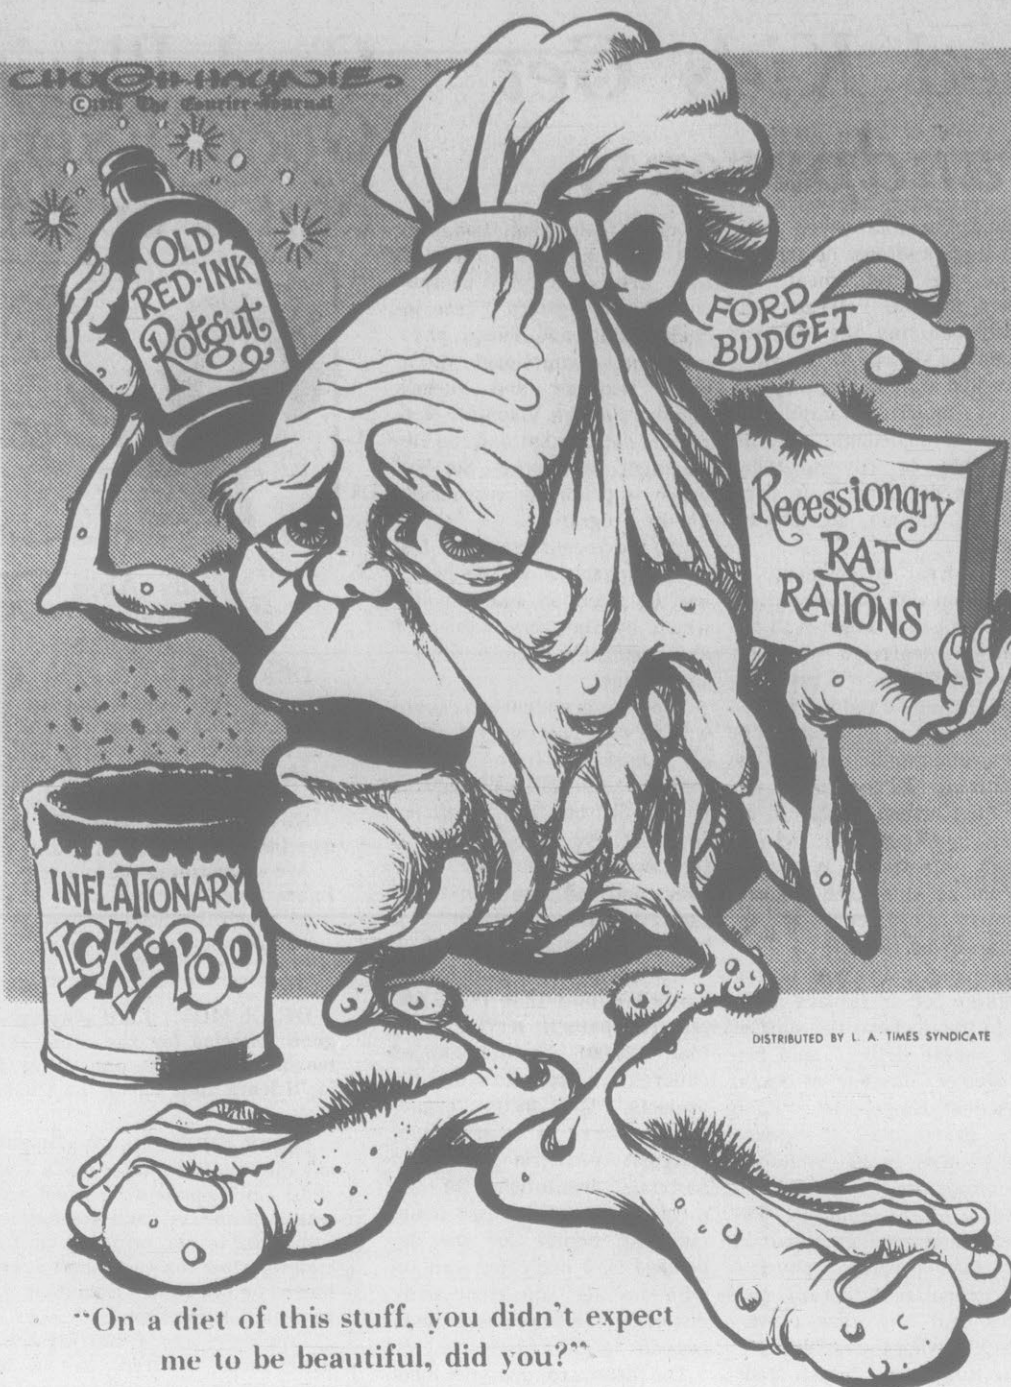

Corrections officials are pushing a major building program of some $200 million in coming years to house that population. There are currently some 2,000 more prisoners than can comfortably be bedded down, so the natural conclusion of some is that several of the training schools could be used; particularly if the "status offenders" were not committed.

A reform commission chaired by former State Senator Eddie Knox of Charlotte will recommend to the General Assembly that effective in 1977 no juvenile may be committed to training school for a status offense; truancy or misbehavior as opposed to criminal acts.

Such a step, coupled with expanding use of community treatment, would quickly reduce the juvenile system population to some 200 or 300 tough cases such as breaking and entering, larceny, shoplifting, etc., which could be easily housed in one training school while the others were converted into prison system units for adults.

The Knox commission will also recommend establishment in each court district of a committee to review each juvenile case to seek alternative treatment rather than training school commitment.

Also, that commission will call for specialization of local judges in juvenile cases to provide more understanding and expertise on the bench in dealing with juveniles.

Raw Files Of The FBI

WASHINGTON—FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said last week in a speech that collecting information about private citizens is not a serious threat unless the data is misused. And there, as Hamlet's masseur would say, is the rub. What guarantees are there that the raw files will not be misused? Suppose you have a vindictive computer which has in its memory bank the files on some of our leading citizens. Director Kelley may say it can't happen, but it did just last week. I was on a tour through FBI headquarters when I fell behind and this computer started chattering on its printout.

"Would you like to hear about a senator who wears silk stockings and high heels when he's working on tax reform at home?"

I was shaken and punched back, "Of course not."

The computer's typewriter worked again. "Tere's a certain female movie star who takes baths in Coors beer with a well-known professional football player."

"What's so strange about that?" I typed back.

"Nothing, except he poses for Schlitz beer commercials," the printout read, "and always says, 'When you're out of Schlitz, you're out of beer!'"

"Oh, for heaven's sakes," I typed back, "don't you have anything better to do than just print gossip about people?"

The computer seemed to ignore my message and came back with, "There's a liberal actor in 'The Towering Inferno' who sneaked off for a weekend to Lake Tahoe with a right-wing married actress from the same picture."

"Do you have proof of this?"

"No," the computer replied, "but where there's smoke there's fire."

And its lights started blinking as if it was enjoying its own joke.

I typed back, "I think this is disgraceful. You have all this material stored in you and none of it has been verified. You could do tremendous damage to innocent people."

The computer's lights turned dark red. It was angry. "There are no innocent people. There are only Americans we know things about and Americans we don't," the printout read. "I am the keeper of the skeletons in everyone's closet."

"But just because you have it in your memory bank," I protested, "doesn't make it a fact."

POLITICS, ASSEMBLY

Probable Assembly Steps

By JOHN KILGO
The North Carolina Legislature is in its third week, and while it's too early to know for certain what action the Assembly will take, we offer some educated guesses.

Food Tax: The legislators have been in Raleigh long enough to know money is going to be hard to find. Many would like to abolish the sales tax on food, but don't feel it can be done. Gov. Jim Holshouser's proposal to abolish the food tax in 1976 angered many lawmakers, who felt the Governor was playing politics. There might be some tax credits given, but outright abolition of the food tax appears unlikely.

Tobacco Tax: The East is solidly against it. There will be attempts made to increase the tax to five-cents per pack of cigarettes, but it will not be successful.

ECU Med School: The Legislature seems to be in a mood to fund a four-year med school at East Carolina University. Will it also vote to finance the building of a new teaching hospital in Greenville? That's still a contest, and debate on the subject will be hot.

No Fault Auto Insurance: The Legislature has tossed this around like a hot potato. Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt will push for passage of such a bill this time. House action is also expected. Look for no-fault to be passed, but it's too early to tell how strong a bill will come out of the Legislature.

Utility Rates: The Legislature is feeling the pressure from the folks back home. Electric rates have gone up. Natural gas is in short supply. The Legislature will study all aspects of this situation but it would be stupid to try to predict what it will do. As Senator Herman Moore said, when asked about the controversy surrounding the power

Other Editors Say No Longer Free

(Henderson Dispatch)

Free enterprise as it once was known in America is no longer free. It can no longer function as it did in the days when it built a powerful foundation for support of free government, as it was then known. And since that is true, the system is being weakened by countless controls and regulations that have been imposed by dreamers and theorists.

Neither free enterprise, nor private enterprise nor capitalism can be blamed for this frustration upon those who are anxious to create and produce.

It is said that more than a sixth of the U. S. labor force now works for government at one level or another. Cited for some of these statistics is Paul A. Belknap, president of the U. S. Industrial Council. More than 14 million civilian employees pull down salaries of $135 billion annually. Forty percent of the nation's Gross National Product is accounted for by government expenditures. It is estimated that some 62 percent of all the borrowing power in the country is used by government. "Be thankful you are not getting all the government you are paying for."

No one can start a business without obtaining a license. Once started, there are endless reports, meeting all sorts of standards and regulations, and countless other requirements. Belknap says "the assumption on the part of government representatives seems to be that any businessman per se is a crook, and any customer is per se completely stupid. They do not seem to realize that no exchange can take place in a free market unless both the buyer and the seller make a profit."

Mr. Belknap says America seems to have lagged behind Great Britain by a few years in practically every government program we have tried. "If you want to see where we will be a few years hence by continuing on our present course, just take a look at Great Britain today. I am sure you will agree that this is not a pretty picture and not the kind of world which a free and independent American wants for himself and his children."

We recommend that all of us think on these conditions.

Henry Plans Ahead

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger already is planning a follow-up trip to the Middle East to work out details of a disengagement between Israel and Egypt if his exploratory mission next week succeeds.

But State Department officials told newsmen late Thursday that a failure would mean that Kissinger was abandoning his step-by-step approach to an over-all peace settlement between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

Kissinger starts out Sunday night for Jerusalem with neither tentative terms for an Israeli pullback in the occupied Sinai nor hopes of an agreement with Egypt.

In sequence, he will stop in Cairo to confer with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and then to Damascus to see President Hafez Assad and then to Israel again and then onto Aqaba to see King Hussein of Jordan and then to Riyadh for a session with Saudi Arabian King Faisal.

Kissinger's principal aim is to sound out Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Sadat on whether Israel would yield the strategic Gidi and Mithla mountain passes and the Abu Rudeis oil fields, and what Egypt is willing to give the Jewish state in exchange for their recovery.

Officials told newsmen that Kissinger would return to the Middle East some weeks afterward and work out the details — if the exploratory mission is successful.

He added stops in Bonn, London and Paris to his itinerary along with two days of talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in Geneva on Feb. 16 and 17.

Moscow is seeking a higher measure of visibility in the peace-making process. While Kissinger is prepared to give the Soviets that much, he intends to guard against what the United States views as obstructionist tactics.

The Department of Education today said that the flu has been epidemic in virtually all parts of the county during the last month or so. But the sickness has not forced the closing of any county schools.

Attendance, the department said, has only been affected in a minor way.

The E.C.T.C. Ramblers defeated Chowan here last night by a score of 38-7 and thus added another victory to their record.

The score at the end of the first quarter was only 5-0 in favor of the Ramblers, but they quickly brought it up to 17-2 at the end of the half.

The final quarter began with E.C.T.C. still leading by 28-5 and the final whistle stopped the score at 38-7.

The Pirates of East Carolina Teachers College will play the Bulldogs of A.C.C. here at 7 p.m. in the college gymnasium.

Strength For Today

KNOWLEDGE OF THE BIBLE
It is rather surprising that in this day of proliferating knowledge, when school and college curricula are steadily being made more sophisticated, and when increasing stress is being put on the need for education, acquaintanceship with the Bible seems to be declining. A few of the older men in public life still quote from it, but to much of today's youth the Bible appears to have little relevance.

A famous president of Yale College once said, "I believe a knowledge of the Bible without a college degree is more valuable than a college degree without a Bible." Patrick Henry, certainly no pious man, said of the Bible, "Here is a book worth all other books that were ever printed." Opinions of this type from important people in our history could be multiplied.

Christian should always strive to get other people to read the Bible. It is not only an excellent educational experience, but the sole source of salvation.

Idleness A 'Bomb' In Prisons

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A study commission says idleness is such a critical problem in North Carolina's overcrowded prisons that it has created a "potentially explosive situation."

Former state Sen. Eddie Knox of Charlotte, chairman of the commission, outlined proposals Thursday to help eliminate the idleness and reduce the prison population.

A major proposal calls for the General Assembly to enact legislation which would allow so-called split-sentencing.

Under the proposal, judges could impose "a relatively severe prison sentence that could be suspended on condition that the defendant serve a short active sentence followed by a period of probation."

The 1974 General Assembly created the Commission on Sentencing, Criminal Punishment and Rehabilitation.

Knox told the joint Senate-House Criminal Justice and Correction Committee that when his commission began work last summer prison morale was so low it "bordered on potential riots."

A package of 10 bills containing some of the recommendations of the commission was introduced Thursday by Sens. Lamar Gidger, D-Buncombe, and W. B. Mills, D-Onslow. Gidger said 10 more bills will be forthcoming.

The commission said in an interim report overcrowding could be relieved if judges recreational programs, and maximum use of work release and paroled inmates within the various state departments and agencies.

The report also recommended that the correction department "continue to explore and implement vocational training and basic education programs in cooperation with the state's community college system."

Another recommendation called for a speedup in the processing of work release prisoners. The commission said, "Numerous cases have to our attention in which prospective employers who were willing to hire work release inmates were unable to hold jobs open indefinitely while the application was processed."

"That's what you think. Once the raw files are fed into a computer it becomes the gospel truth. Computers never lie. Hve you heard about the Supreme Court justice who took his wife to see 'Deep Throat'?"
"What's so wrong with that?" I typed back.
"Six times?"
"Lies, all lies." I hit the keys furiously. "Your tapes are filled with rumor, innuendo and vicious gossip. don't you have any shame at all?"
The lights turned red again.

"No one has ever called me a liar before."
"You're a disgrace to IBM," I angrily typed back.
"Thomas Watson would be turning over in his grave if he knew the filth you had stored in you!"
The lights turned green.
"Would you like to know what I have on you?" the printout read.
I turned white. "What could you possibly have on me?" I typed out with my fingers shaking.
The computer clicked noisily. "The Allegheny stewardess in Little Rock."
I almost broke my fingers. "I've never been in Little Rock in my life."

"Then maybe it was Kansas City."
"Allegheny doesn't fly to Kansas City," I typed back.
"Then maybe it was the Hertz Rent-A-Car girl," the computer replied. "I can't remember everything."

Forecast Based On Cows, Hogs Dance Class To Meet Tuesday

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — John McAdams says a cow with her tail in the wind, or a hog buried to his jowls in mud, is a better forecaster than an army of weathermen and its electronic gadgetry. John could be right. He is holding an edge over the nearby Houston office of the National Weather Service.

John, 66, challenged meteorologist Irwin Bolbrecht to an 80-day test period on weather forecasting beginning Jan. 19.

The pair decided to forecast weather three times a week at a specific field in Huntsville where the weather service's rain gauge is located.

Irwin said okay, but he warned that "no one can tell Farmer Brown if it's going to rain on his field."

Phooey, said John, who claimed that simply by watching his cows and hogs he could predict not only where but when it would rain. The contest was on. City utility director Boyd Wilder said he'd keep score.

Wilder says John has missed correctly forecasting rain only once in eight times. Irwin has missed four out of eight times.

How John does it may remain his secret.

"Well, I don't want to give away my secret," he said. "You just have to kinda watch 'em and notice things. I've been doing this for about 20 years. Just picked it up."

Pressed harder, however, John conceded that the direction in which a cow faces early in the mornings, or how deep into the mire a hog may burrow, tells an alert observer a lot about what the weather will do for the next day or so.

John also admitted that he counts on his arthritis a little. "Well, my whole body is a weather vane. I don't go down there and look at the cows every morning."

Agree To Trim Imports Of Oil

PARIS (AP) — Major Western oil importing nations have agreed to cut their crude oil imports this year by about 10 per cent, or two million barrels per day, the president of the International Energy Agency said today.

Etienne Davignon of Belgium told a news conference after a meeting of the agency that the reduction is a rough figure based on measures already taken and expected to come into force among the agency's original 16 nations.

The agency's three-day meeting ended, he said, with the expectation that a preliminary meeting for a conference between oil producers, consumers and developing nations could be held in March.

Davignon said the agency members agreed that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's plan to put a minimum price on oil imports in the West was only one of many possible plans to help develop new energy resources and that they all called for detailed study. The U.S. delegate, Thomas Enders, had sought acceptance of the Kissinger plan as an "absolute precondition" for the preliminary meeting in March. Davignon said that the agency added New Zealand and Norway to its membership and decided to fix goals by July on further conservation measures for 1976 and 1977, and long-term oil saving plans extending to 1985.

A&P Plans Idle Stores

NEW YORK (AP)—Jonathan L. Scott, new board chairman of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., says the A&P will close more of its 3,500 stores this year than in any previous year. He said the chain will also jettison its WEO advertising slogan.

Scott, who took over the top spot Feb. 1, refused to say exactly how many outlets would be shut down. But a company spokesman said the chain closed 404 stores, its greatest number in one year, in 1972.

Most of the stores to be shut-down are smaller, older facilities which have become obsolete, Scott said when making the announcement at a news conference Thursday.

As for WEO — which stands for Where Economy Originates and was introduced in 1973 — Scott said: "I don't think it's good advertising."

Buying Shoes For The Needy

MACON, Ga. (AP) — Kenneth Birdsong, a Macon businessman who remembers how it feels to go without shoes in winter, is footing the bill for 1,696 pairs.

Birdsong doesn't need the shoes for himself. He bought them for the needy in four nearby counties.

Birdsong, 48, says he recalls boyhood days on a Twigg County farm "when your feet would swell up and burst like a potato" from walking barefoot in winter slush.

The price of the shoes was not announced.

Area Basketball Tournaments Will Get Underway Next Week

A variety of basketball tournaments will be played in the area next week, with some action getting underway Saturday night.

Tournaments set for the coming week include the first round of the Division I, 4-A Tournament; the preliminaries of the Eastern Carolina Conference 3-A boys tournament; the Eastern Carolina Conference girls and junior varsity tournament; the Northeastern Conference 3-A boys and girls tournaments; the Eastern Plains 2-A boys and girls tournaments; and the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin 1-A boys and girls tournaments.

In the 4-A ranks, the Division I teams still have three games remaining—tonight, Tuesday and Friday of next week. Following the completion of the regular season, the tournament will get underway next Saturday night. The first and second place teams will receive byes, while the fourth place team will play the fifth place finisher. Third place will also meet the sixth place team. Each game will be played at the site of the higher seeded team.

The field will move into the semi-finals on Tuesday night, on the floors of the upper seeded teams. The regular season champ will play the fourth-fifth winner, while the second place team takes on three-six's winner. The two finalists meet Wednesday, Feb. 19, on the floor of the upper ranked team.

The division will send two teams into the state playoffs, which begin on Saturday, Feb. 22. The tournament winner will meet Division IV's runner-up, while the tournament runner-up (or the regular season champ, if not the tournament winner) will meet Division V's champ. The final three rounds of the state tournament will be held the following week in Greensboro.

Saturday night, two first round games will be held in the Eastern Carolina boys' tournament. Team seven will host the 10th place finisher, while eight will host nine. Going into tonight's final games, five teams are in the running for the four lower places, Farmville Central, Ayden-Grifton, Eastern Wayne, Southern Nash and C.B. Aycock. Southern Nash and Aycock will definitely be the two visiting teams.

The winners join the other six members of the field in the tournament, which serves both as the conference and district event. It will be held Feb. 18 through 21 at Conley.

The Eastern Carolina girls will have two preliminary games on Saturday also. Pairings are nearly completed for this. Greene Central will host C. B. Aycock in one game, while Conley will visit either Southern Nash or Ayden-Grifton, again dependent on tonight's games. Two junior varsity preliminaries will also be held. Winners move into the tournament, to be played starting Monday at Southern Nash. The regular season champ will meet the Greene Central-Aycock winner, at 7 p.m., while junior varsity games are held at 5:30 p.m., and 8:30 p.m.

Tuesday night, team four will meet five at 5:30 p.m., while two will meet the seven-ten survivor at 8:30 p.m. A junior varsity game will be held between the two. Wednesday, three and six meet at 5:30 p.m. with a junior varsity game at 7 p.m. Girls' upper bracket semi-finals are set for 8:30 p.m. Both of the JV semi-finals will be held Thursday, with the final girls' semifinal at 7 p.m. The tournament finals are Friday night.

The Northeastern Conference tournament will be held starting Monday. The first game has the four-five girls at 5:30 p.m., followed by the four-five boys and the three-six girls. Tuesday, the three-six boys open the evening, followed by the two-even girls, and the two-seven boys.

Wednesday's play has the top seeded team playing in semi-finals at 7 and 8:30 p.m. (boys and girls), while the other semifinal round will be Thursday. The finals will be held on Friday.

The Eastern Plains Conference, which drops its two bottom teams—Rock Ridge and Lucama in both the boys and girls—will start play on Saturday night with four preliminary girls games. Two each will be held at Elm City and Saratoga, with participants still to be decided. Monday, at Elm City and South Edgecombe, four boys preliminary games are set. The tournament skips Tuesday, and resumes Wednesday and Thursday with semi-finals at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson. The finals will be in Wilson on Friday.

The Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference tournament opens Monday in Washington. It will have three games each on Monday, and Tuesday, and two each on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Monday, Chocowinity's girls, the regular season winner, will meet the last place team in the opening game. Belhaven, the boys champ, meeting the eighth place finisher in the second game, while the girls two-seven finishers meet in the third. Tuesday, the two-seven boys open, followed by the 3-6 girls and the 3-6 boys. The four-five finishers in both boys and girls play Wednesday, with upper bracket semi-finals on Thursday, lower bracket semifinals on Friday and the finals on Saturday.

District tournament begin the following week.

East Carolina University's red-faced Pirates must regroup quickly following their shocking upset loss to Appalachian State University Wednesday night. They have no time to sit around and mope: Davidson's revived Wildcats are coming to town tomorrow.

Davidson, which was crushed by the Pirates, 110-78, earlier in the year, pulled off a victory over The Citadel for their first Southern Conference victory, then opened at the start of the season as one of the strongest teams in the league are finally beginning to play like they are supposed to.

East Carolina, after reeling off seven straight conference wins, got knocked out of first place by the Furman Paladins on Saturday, with Furman taking over the lead.

That was to have set up a fateful meeting with the Paladins in Greenville on Monday. But Wednesday night's loss to Appalachian—a team that had won only once in 18 previous games, knocked the Pirate hopes into a cocked hat. Now, they can only win the conference title by sweeping their remaining games and getting help from someone else in beating Furman.

But the way they played Wednesday night would make their chances of winning the rest difficult if not completely impossible.

From being one of the hottest shooting teams in the conference, the Bucs have fallen hard. In their last two games, they've shot only 40 per cent—and it has cost them a couple of losses.

"We simply were not ready to play," Coach Dave Patton said. "It's my fault. I didn't prepare them properly."

One would begin to think that Appalachian has a whammy against the Pirates. Two years ago, the Buc baseball team went to ASU for a key doubleheader. East Carolina needed only one win to ice the Southern title. But ASU won both games and went on to win the title themselves.

During this past football season, the Mountaineers, suffering along with a losing record, played the Pirates, and shocked them, virtually destroying their title hopes.

Now, they have done it again. And the baseball team should take warning—they must return to ASU this spring for a doubleheader.

"They started off like a house afire," Patton said of the Mounties. "I think they hit their first ten shots. They got happy and the crowd got behind them. Anytime a team shoots 60 percent on their own court, they're going to be hard to beat."

If there was one thing to look back proudly on in the game, it was the comeback the Bucs made—even if in vain. "We were 20 points down, and we came back to within one in a ten-minute period," Patton said. "If we had played like that in the first half, there would have been no question as to the outcome." Patton feels that the Bucs definitely learned a lesson—if an expensive one—from the Mountaineers. "You have to play every time. It's been a mighty touch, long road trip. But before the trip if I had been offered a 4-2 record, I'd have jumped at it," the coach said. "Course I might not have picked it the way it turned out."

"That is the thing about sport. When you get cocky, someone comes along and makes you humble."

The game is history now, Patton says. "There's nothing we can do to change the outcome. We've got to forget it and get on with the rest of the season. We can do something about our remaining six games."

Davidson which visits here Saturday, comes in off a big win for them. "I knew that it was just going to be a matter of time before they came around," Patton said. "They're coming in here with three things going for them. They are getting it together; they are bound to have gotten some heart from our loss; and they want revenge for our beating them."

Patton pointed out that Davidson shot 55 per cent against East Carolina in their first meeting. "We've got to cut this down," he said. "We've to improve our own shooting and play better defense. If we don't we're in trouble."

"But I don't think we're afraid of them. We haven't quit yet and we won't quit now."

Davidson will probably stick with their main starting five, front-court men Larry Horowitz, Eppa Rixey and Greg Dunn. The guards will be Tom Verlin and Jay Powell.

"Our battle now is to hold onto second place, and to try and get back on top. But we have to have help to do that. We can hold second on our own."

Tipoff is set for 8 p.m., with a junior varsity game leading off at 5:45 p.m. The Baby Bucs will play Mt. Olive Junior College.

Elon Defeats Pirate Women

East Carolina University's women's basketball team opened its home schedule last night, bowing to Elon College, the defending state champion, 71-64.

Elon jumped out to an 8-0 lead, throwing a man-to-man press against the Lady Pirates. For much of the half, Elon held the lead, but East Carolina finally caught up and pushed into the lead by as much as five points. They accepted a 32-31 lead at the half, however.

In the second half, the two teams continued to play neck-and-neck, but about midway through the period, East Carolina hit a six-minute cold stretch, and that allowed Elon to push back into the lead, again by about eight points. East Carolina cut it back to give but could come no closer, bowing by the final seven point margin.

During the second half, East Carolina hit only 15 of 42 shots from the floor and that led to their downfall. They had connected on 47 per cent of their first half attempts.

Wanda Wilson led Elon with 31 points, while Susan Yow had 18 and Sherry Pickard had 10. LuAnn Swain led East Carolina with 20, while Sheila Cotton had 17 and Susan Manning had 11. Mrs. Manning also led the Pirate board play, pulling down 19 rebounds.

The Bucette junior varsity will host Chowan at 2 p.m. Saturday in Memorial Gym. A varsity game with Campbell, set for Monday, has been postponed. They are scheduled to host the University of North Carolina on Tuesday, Feb. 18.

Two Named For Meet

Two members of the East Carolina University track team have been invited to take part in the prestigious Knights of Columbus Indoor Track Meet in Cleveland, Ohio, next week.

Carter Sugg and Larry Austin, both sprinters who have already qualified for the NCAA National Finals, have been issued invitations to participate in the meet, set for Saturday, Feb. 15. They will run in the 60-yard dash.

"This is one of the five top indoor meets of the year," ECU Coach Bill Carson said. "To be invited to this is a big step for both of them. It will be another big experience for them and will help to prepare them for the NCAA."

Carson and the two runners will travel to Cleveland late next week to take part in the meet. The Bucs have also scheduled a Friday meet with Ohio State.

Prep Swim Meet Set Saturday

The 20th annual Atlantic Seaboard Interscholastic Swimming and Diving Championships will be held at East Carolina University Saturday. Defending champion Calvert Hall of Maryland will be seeking its sixth straight title in the meet.

Calvert Hall captured the championship in 1970 and hasn't lost it since then, but East Carolina coach Ray Scharf says that they will probably have a battle to retain it this year.

"Calvert Hall will have to be the favorite since they've won it so many times. But they are going to get quite a bit of a challenge from some of the others."

Topping the list of challengers may be Peddie School from New York. Others top schools should include Greensboro Grimsley, Bishop Ireton of Alexandria, Va., Walt Whitman of Bethesda, Gaithersburg in Maryland, and McBurney of New York.

"A number of these teams are coached by East Carolina alumni," Scharf said. Overall, 48 schools are expected to send teams, coming from North and South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, New Jersey and New York.

flooding potential, and proposals for a sidewalk on Cedar Lane from tenth Street to Eastern Elementary School and for an all-weather shelter in Moyewood.

Mayor Pro Tem Cox told the gathering attending the session that the next meeting on the CDP will be on Feb. 20. The Feb. 20 meeting has been advertised as a 4 p.m. session under the Council's new format of two meetings per month but since it is felt that more people might be able to attend the important CDP meeting if it is held at night, the 4 p.m. meeting will be convened as a matter of record and recessed until 8 p.m. for the public hearing.

A resolution changing the method of conducting city elections was approved by the Council. The resolution calls for the Pitt Board of Elections to be requested to handle the city elections and also authorizes the city manager to negotiate a contract with the board for elections services.

The Council heard a proposal by John Taylor of the Citizens For Total Positive Government suggesting that some of the funds programmed for initiation of the city's transportation system be used to provide for two, 15-passenger vans to help meet the transportation needs of senior citizens in taking part in a nutrition program in Moyewood.

Taylor said that the program, sponsored by the Mid-East Economic Development Commission, has the capability of serving 310 senior citizens who receive meals under the nutrition project. Transportation limitations, however, are curtailing participation to between 30 to 45 persons, he added.

He said that there has been a real concern here that instead of action towards meeting the immediate needs of citizens in terms of transportation, there will only be another study. He said that the Council is being asked to consider taking care of one of the special needs here.

The appropriation of some $19,920 for the two vans out of the $47,000 allocated for the transportation program would help meet the immediate needs of senior citizens who are isolated because of the lack of adequate transportation.

Cox suggested that the idea of utilizing a reimbursement system by the city for taxi cab operations in meeting some of these needs be considered.

Dr. Frank Fuller, who serves on the Transit Advisory Committee, said that other areas that have utilized the taxi system could be checked to get an idea of the feasibility of such a program here.

Fuller said that he would rather have the results of the immediate action study on transportation before money is committed for equipment purchases. It was also suggested that the taxi proposal be discussed with the transportation consultant firm as a possible means of immediate action.

Other action by the Council involved the removal of Sanford Drive from the city's Major Thoroughfare Plan. The action followed a discussion of potential recreational drawbacks of the proposed extension of Sanford Drive to connect with 14th Street by Tom H. Johnson of the School of Health and Physical Education at East Carolina University. Johnson cited the safety factor involved in routing the street by playground facilities at Elmhurst School and he suggested that Sanford remain dead-end and that Howell Street not be extended even as far as Charles Boulevard.

Dr. Edgar Hooks of the Health and Physical Education Department at ECU, noting that he was speaking for university officials, cited the effects the proposed extension of Sanford Drive would have on the athletic facilities at the school. He said that the facilities were moved from the main campus some 15 years ago to escape a crowded condition there and now the university finds itself in much of the same situation if more land is lost.

Hooks contended that the extension of the drive would affect some five to seven acres of recreational land and those lands would be lost in terms of athletic usage. He also cited the safety hazard and congestion from creating a major intersection.

Cox suggested that the matter be discussed at a workshop before action was taken but a motion to remove Sanford Drive from the plan passed by a four-to-one margin. The Council defeated a substitute motion by Mrs. Mildred McGrath to discuss the matter and have it placed on the March meeting agenda.

The Council approved a five per cent cost of living pay adjustment for all city employees with the exception of department heads who will receive a lump sum of $600. The adjustment was approved with a Feb. 6 effective date.

A revision in the City Personnel Ordinance providing for holiday pay for Police Department personnel was approved authorizing nine paid holidays and the payment of one and one-half times the regular pay rate for personnel who work on those holidays. The revision provides for the employee to receive a normal day's pay plus the one and one-half times the regular pay rate for the holiday work.

An amendment to the Classification Plan and the Finance Department personnel allocation was approved to provide for the position of assistant finance officer in the salary range of from $10,648 to $13,590. Carstarphen explained that the position would not require the hiring of additional personnel but the assistant finance officer's post would be filled by promoting someone within the department to that post.

Other business on the long agenda included: addition of Branch Banking and Trust Co. to the city's bank deposit rotation list as the sixth bank; approval of the transfer of a taxi certificate of convenience and necessity from Austin Parker to Willie Edwards;

Renewal of mobile home permits for structures located at 1607 Garland Street and 109 Trade Street; adoption of an ordinance, effective April 1, providing building inspection services and zoning ordinance enforcement in the extraterritorial (one mile) area; termination of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church parking lot lease, retroactive to Dec. 31, 1974;

Jackson In Presidential Race

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson warned today against "blank checks" for Southeast Asia and "fantasies of gunboat diplomacy" in the Middle East after formally entering the 1976 presidential race.

Jackson also charged that the Ford administration's energy and economic policies fail to pass a simple test of fairness to all Americans.

The Washington Democrat made it official in a five-minute, paid telecast Thursday night that he will enter the 1976 presidential race for which he has already raised more than $1 million.

He followed that up with a speech prepared for a Washington Press Club luncheon today in which he pledged "an open campaign of meaningful debate on the issues, hard work on the answers and frank talk to the American people."

Jackson, 62, said he would base his presidential bid on a record of "effective programs and solid accomplishments" built up during a 35-year congressional career, the last 22 years in the Senate.

Referring to recent statements by President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger about the possible use of U.S. arms to prevent economic "strangulation" by Arab oil producers, he said the best step to prevent "strangulation" is to develop a solution to the nation's long-range energy problem.

He said the Ford administration should spell out who will benefit and who will have to sacrifice "instead of talking of bullet biting, belt tightening and sacrifices."

Americans will support sacrifices and accept austerity "if it is fair," he said.

"The trouble with the present table full of policies and barrage of trial balloons is that they do not pass that simple test," he said.

In Thursday night's telecast, which cost the Washington Democrat $16,000 for the air time, Jackson said he would use the White House "to help the people in this country who are getting hurt."

"For the past six years, the Republican administration has been tilting in favor of big business, the large corporations, the people who can help themselves."

Jackson became the fourth formally declared Democratic candidate and one whom many Democrats consider the closest thing to a front-runner in a field that also contains Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, former Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma and former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia.

Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr. of Texas, plans to join them with a Feb. 17 announcement.

Better Nutrition Said Key To Today's Needs

By CAROL TYER

Reflector Staff Writer

Elizabeth Koontz thinks wiser eating is the key to better health and increased productivity and enjoyment of life.

The former U.S. Labor Department official and former national president of the National Education Association was here yesterday to tell Eastern North Carolina of new efforts beginning on the ECU campus to improve the nutrition of area residents. She is Nutrition Program Coordinator for the N.C. Department of Human Resources.

"East Carolina is in a uniquely advantageous position of improving how the people of this area eat," she said. "This becomes more important than ever in the light of the present economic situation. Those living on fixed incomes cannot control the cost of their rent or their utilities, but they feel they can cut back on food. Unless they know how to choose, though, they may be replacing food bills with medical bills."

"Dieting is a big problem now. It is indeed a health measure, but a reducing diet that's unbalanced is a terrible hazard. Using all of one's calorie quota for the day for chocolate cake and soft drinks is inviting sickness and tissue deterioration," she said.

Dr. Koontz was greeted by Dr. Leo Jenkins yesterday morning, and met during the afternoon with Dr. Miriam Moore, Dean of the School of Home Economics, to begin planning for a program to integrate nutrition education into every curriculum and service offered by East Carolina. "Your medical students need more emphasis on nutrition, so illness can be prevented; your social work students need to help families eat better and therefore better their lives, and your prospective teachers need to learn to integrate it into every curriculum in the secondary schools. How can anyone go through four years of college and call himself an educated person if he doesn't even know how to eat to preserve his health?

"Eating well is no simple matter now," she said. "Refined foods have ended all that. Any processed food leaves you no idea of what's in it. Labeling is being emphasized, and rightly so, but it takes knowledge to even interpret them into something meaningful to your own living."

"We've got to make young girls aware of the harm they do their babies when they live on hamburgers and french fries, not only when they're pregnant but even in the years before. We must help parents know they are forming their children's tastes that will affect a lifetime of eating. All this takes nutrition education, and we must educate our educators, which hopefully will go a long way toward educating our citizenry."

She also touched on the need for a clinical nutrition internship program in this state. "Duke used to have such a program, but no longer does," she said, "so anyone desiring to complete an internship must go out of state. There aren't enough slots available, so only about 15 per cent are accepted at all, and of these, most end up staying out of state to work once the intern period is completed."

She suggested that East Carolina would have good possibilities in developing such a program since it has "one of the best undergraduate nutrition programs in the state."

Police Check 2 Collisions

An estimated $1,150 property damage resulted yesterday from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Investigators reported heaviest damage resulted from a 2:45 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greene and Martin Streets involving cars driven by Annette Stallings Bunting of Route 4, Greenville and Robert Columbus Hall of Winterville.

Police, who charged Mrs. Bunting with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident, estimated damage at $450 to the Bunting car and $200 to the Hall vehicle.

No charges were reported following investigation of a 10:20 a.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard at the intersection of Hooker Road.

Police said cars driven by David Elias Hayes Jr. of 2605 East Tenth St. and Samuel Arthur Whitehurst of 2411 East Fifth St. collided, resulting in an estimated $200 damage to the Hayes car and $300 damage to the Whitehurst car.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♦ Pass 3 ♣ Pass
4 ♦ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Six of ♣.

The perfect time for a bit of deception on defense is when it doesn't matter if partner is fooled by your play. Consider this example from the recent European Championships in Herzliya, Israel. Sitting West was Sven Olov Flodqvist of Sweden.

The bidding was perfectly natural. South opened in the suit below his shortness, then showed his second suit. North's hand improved tremendously once South bid spades, but not quite enough to contract for game. He made an invitational jump raise to three spades, and South had the values to continue on to game.

The defenders started with three rounds of clubs, declarer discarding a heart from dummy on the third.

Looking at all the hands, it seems that declarer must come to eleven tricks. Indeed, that is exactly what happened when the board was replayed at the other table of the match. Here, however, Flodqvist succeeded in creating a false picture of the hand. When declarer led the king of spades, Flodqvist dropped the queen!

Declarer was so mesmerized by this card that he unwisely decided that he better test the heart situation before drawing any more trumps. He cashed the ace of hearts, crossed to the king and ruffed a heart. Much to his surprise, West over-ruffed!

To complete South's discomfiture, West returned a club. No matter what declarer did, East was bound to score his ten of trumps for the setting trick.

Had declarer considered the hand more carefully, he would have realized that he could have afforded to play another round of trumps before tackling hearts, but this does not detract from West's fine effort. Note that the falsecard of the queen of spades could not possibly cost. From the play of the king, it was obvious that declarer intended leading another trump toward dummy to finesse the jack if West followed with a low trump. Thus, the queen of trumps, like some other royal ladies in different times, was headed for the executioner's axe. By playing the queen one round before he had to, Flodqvist produced a most unexpected result.
