Ford Cautions America Of Unemployment Surge

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is cautioning Americans to brace for a faster-than-forecast surge in unemployment but says the jobless rate will peak at under 10 per cent and gradually head downward before year's end.

The President's personal predictions on the closely watched indicator of the nation's recession came at a Topeka, Kan., news conference Tuesday night after he announced the release of $2 billion in frozen highway funds to spur 125,000 or more jobs in the hard-hit construction industry.

Ford scheduled a late-morning meeting today with his top economic advisers to discuss unemployment and the reaction to his latest two-day trip in search of support for his economic and energy proposals.

Economic questions dominated Ford's second out-of-town news conference in a week, but there were these disclosures on other subjects:

—He believes "the possibility exists for a step-by-step progress in the Middle East" and that if Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger returns from his current Middle East mission "with some encouraging news ... he will probably go back shortly thereafter for what we would hope would be a settlement on a step-by-step basis."

—Ford repeated his warning that unless progress is made "there is a very serious prospect" of another Middle East war and oil embargo.

—The President, asked about the possibility of resigned President Richard M. Nixon returning to the national or diplomatic scene, said: "I see no prospect for any appointment because of his health ..."

—Ford defended his private 45-minute meeting this week with former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, under indictment for perjury and bribery. "I see no conflict whatsoever," Ford said. Until Connally's case is resolved, "I think it is very appropriate for me to meet with him to discuss both domestic and foreign policy."

Ford skirted a direct response when asked whether he agreed with his economic advisers' forecast that unemployment will peak at 8.5 per cent about midsummer. The jobless rate soared to 8.2 per cent last month, the highest figure in more than three decades.

"My own personal feeling is that there may be some increases, but I think the hump will have been reached sooner than some of the experts are forecasting and that the trend will start in the other direction ...," the President said.

At one point, Ford said: "I don't want to get in a numbers game about what the unemployment figure might be at a certain date." But at another point he said AFL-CIO President George Meany "pulled that figure out of the air" when he predicted a 10 per cent jobless rate.

"... We don't foresee a figure as high as that forecast by Mr. Meany," Ford said. He added that with his economic program "the rate of unemployment will gradually go down at the end of 1975 and be improved in 1976."

Extended One Day

There's only four days left for buying North Carolina license plates for 1975. The normal deadline for having new plates is midnight, February 15. However, an announcement was made this morning by the State Department of Public Transportation that an extension of one day, Monday, February 17, has been authorized.

In Greenville, the new red and white five year plates can be purchased from Mrs. Anna Garris, agent for the State Auto License Agency. The agency is located at Home and Auto Supply, 718 Dickinson Street.

Mrs. Garris said operating hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. except for Saturday, when the hours are 9:00 a.m. to 4 p.m.

In addition to state plates, city tags at $1.00 each can also be purchased from Mrs. Garris.

Find Oil, Gas Off Vietnam

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The Mobil Oil Co. has found oil and gas in its first exploratory well off the coast of South Vietnam, oil sources said today.

They said a production test on the well Tuesday found a "flow" of oil and gas at a depth of more than 9,000 feet.

N.C. To Rush Plans To Get Road Fund

RALEIGH (AP)—If state highway officials can get the programs ready to go by July 1, North Carolina could get up to $220 million in federal highway funds.

The windfall came Tuesday as President Ford released $2 billion in impounded highway funds.

"There was a lot of confusion at first on how much we could actually get," said Bob Campbell, a spokesman for the state Department of Transportation.

"We can get up to $220 million if we have to have the programs ready to go by July 1 of this year. We'll be taking priority programs like interstates, projects in areas of high unemployment and safety programs—projects which are already scheduled. But the money will be spent almost entirely on construction.

"We have not decided which projects we will designate but you can believe we'll be working overtime, around the clock, to get these things firmed up," Campbell said.

"We're starting today with a meeting involving nearly everyone who has anything to do with highways," he said early today.

Rights of way have been purchased and environmental impact studies completed for many road projects throughout North Carolina. Because of the July 1 deadline, most if not all the projects for which the state will ask for funding will be lifted directly out of the Highway Improvement Program.

Campbell said it would be nearly impossible because of the time schedule to include projects which were not through the planning stages.

"We'll be taking a good hard look at the highway program statewide and we'll be moving real, real fast. This will actually help bring some projects ahead of schedule," he said.

Gov. Jim Holshouser called the project "a shot in the arm" for the North Carolina's highway construction program, adding that the money and work would provide a needed boost for the Tar Heel economy.

Natural Gas Rate Hiked By Greenville Utilities

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Commission last night approved a rate increase for natural gas customers effective February 17; reduced the rates for propane gas customers, effective March 1, and voted to pass on to customers any increase in fossil fuel charges, without discount.

Commission members approved a rate increase of 18 cents per 1000 cubic feet for natural gas customers, effective February 17.

GUC director Charles Horne told the commission that a rate increase of 6.23 cents per million cubic feet was received from North Carolina Natural Gas effective January 22 and an 11.77 cents per 1000 cubic feet will become effective February 16. He noted that the commission had not been notified of the January increase until after the new rate was in effect.

He said the two NCNG rate hikes were "tracking increases"—rate hikes passed along to customers by NCNG when its rate from Transcontinental Pipe Line Corp. increased its rate to NCNG.

In addition to approving the natural gas rate adjustment, the Commission gave Horne the authority to pass along to GUC customers, any tracking rate increase as soon as possible, with proper notification of customers through the news media.

The commission also gave Horne the authority to hire legal counsel to aid the commission in efforts to prevent NCNG from hiking its rates without proper notification.

According to Horne, "We can't protest these rate increases unless we know they are being proposed. We never had a chance to be heard on it. We must have some right to be heard."

Commissioners approved reduction of five cents per hundred cubic feet in the rate of propane gas. The reduction, effective March 1, follows a 17-cents per hundred cubic feet reduction in rate approved by the commission in December.

The propane gas rate cut was based on the average cost of propane for the past three months, as well as the current cost.

The new rate schedule will maintain the $2.20 minimum charge, for the first 100 cubic feet, but will reflect the 5-cents per 100 cubic feet reduction in the remainder of the rate schedule.

In passing on to customers the fossil fuel adjustment for February the Commission members okayed a 1.224 cents per kilowatt hour fuel charge, effective March 1.

Horne noted that fossil fuel charges by Virginia Electric and Power Co. to GUC are based "not just on the price of coal and oil, but how much they use." He said during December, VEPCO generated more than 98 per cent of its energy with fossil fuel, thus causing the increase in the fossil fuel adjustment.

A five per cent cost of living raise was approved by the Commission last night for employees on the lower end of the GUC pay scale, effective immediately. A similar raise for medium income workers will take effect in March, while top-salaried employees will receive a five per cent increase in April.

The GUC action followed a five per cent cost of living adjustment made by the City Council for municipal employees which was effective February 6. Commission members postponed action on a proposal to revise the underground electric service policy established in May of 1970.

The present policy provides for the installation of underground lines and transformers in new subdivisions. The proposed policy change would still provide for underground lines, but would make above-ground, pad-mounted transformers standard. The new policy would also increase the per-lot charge for installation of underground service in developing subdivisions.

Malcolm Green, assistant director of the commission said the pad-mounted transformer units would be less expensive to install and be more trouble-free than below-ground units.

The commission last night approved procedures for refunding utilities deposits paid prior to January 1, 1955.

Horne said it will require from three to five months to transfer information from old deposit records to individual customer deposit record ledger cards, but indicated such action is necessary to a workable refund program without disruption to present service.

He estimated that some $60,000 in deposits are included in the pre-1955 group to be refunded.

In other business last night, the Commission approved the purchase of a tandem dump truck from Bill Haddock Chrysler-Plymouth-Dodge for $16,405 to be used to haul sludge from the city's waste treatment plant. Commissioners noted, however, that if the truck was not available from the Haddock firm, the next low bid—from International Harvester Co. for $17,970 for a tandem drive dump with tri-axle, be accepted.

A workshop session with the City Council was scheduled for February 27 to discuss a possible cut back in GUC revenue turnover to the city, until expansion projects are complete and the fiscal position of the commission improves.

No Interest In Buying Property

AYDEN—Ayden Commissioners Monday night agreed they were not interested in purchasing the South Ayden School property from the Pitt County Board of Education for the appraisal value of $38,500.

The board of education last month offered the property to the Town of Ayden and stated if the town did not want to purchase the site, the land and building would be put up for public sale.

Town Manager Don Russell was authorized to contact the board of education and report the town was not interested in the property at the price quoted. It was added, however, that the Ayden Recreation Commission would like to purchase a portion of the property for town recreation programs if the price was within its means.

The board conducted a public hearing to discuss curb and gutter improvements on Montague Avenue between Fifth and Sixth Streets.

James Owens and Douglas Worthington expressed opposition to the project while Rudy Robinson said he felt the project would be good for the area.

Owens said his lot runs 186 feet along the proposed project and that the cost would be tremendous. Worthington said he opposed the project because it would be one to two years before the work would be done and with inflation, it would be impossible to know what the project would cost the property owners.

Robinson said the improved drainage the project would give the property and the increase in value would more than offset any cost of the property owners.

The commissioners voted to have the project undertaken as soon as money is available which would probably be one and one-half to two years.

The board adopted two resolutions so the town could apply for Flood Plain Insurance. The adopted resolutions said the town would enforce good land use, building and zoning in the specified areas and that the necessary reports would be made.

Board members made three changes in electric department policies concerning mercury light contracts, temporary service and disconnections and reconstructions.

It was agreed that mercury light contracts must be signed for a two-year period. A $50 deposit will be required for temporary service and the contractor will not be billed for the electricity until the building time has been completed. The amount of electricity used will be deducted from the deposit and a $10 service fee will be returned if the meters and base

SIGNS SAID UNWARRANTED

I go to work at Burroughs-Wellcome every morning and get really irritated at the drivers who stay in the left lane on the bypass. Could some signs saying, 'Slow traffic keep right' be erected? S.M.

"This type of sign is designed primarily for when there is a tendency on the part of the motorist to drive in the left-hand lane below the normal speed of traffic. This is not the case on the bypass," Department of Transportation Division Engineer C.W. Snell said. "We have observed that the traffic on this stretch flows at the speed limit that is posted. And it's not unlawful to pass on the right side on the four-lane road like this either."

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

"WELL SITUATED"

Because of the generosity of their neighbors all over Pitt County, Mrs. Nora Gatlin reports that the Sam and Lillie Bell Carter family of Grimesland is "well-situated," following the loss of their home and all their belongings in a fire in mid-January.

Mrs. Gatline and her mother, Mrs. Willie Mae Hawkins, both of Grimesland, appealed through Hotline on behalf of the family and assisted in the collection of gifts. G. R. Whitfield School served as a collection point. "I really enjoyed the experience," Mrs. Gatlin said. "Everywhere I'd go collecting, people were so nice and so eager to share. It was heartwarming."

SOME RESPONSE

Doug Allen reports he has had some response to his Jan. 27 appeal for prospective members of a racing pigeons club, but still needs more in order to have the seven members needed to form a club and become affiliated with the national association. Anyone interested may call him at either 758-3632 or 752-1409. "It's a great father-and-son sport," he says.

She's Begging For Trouble

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 and work as a secretary in a large office. My boyfriend works there, too. The other evening, we attended the wake of a fellow employee.

First off, my boyfriend became angry when I held on to his hand while we both walked up to the casket. Then a young kid who works at the office came in and kissed me on the lips. I suppose I could have moved my head and given this kid my cheek instead, but it all happened so fast.

Then someone came up to talk to me and I spoke to him before I introduced my boyfriend, which my boyfriend said was very bad manners. After that happened he said: "Let's go," so we did. As soon as we got in his car he said he was ashamed of my behavior, then he punched me in the mouth.

Please tell me how to deal with this hot-headed boyfriend. After he hit me, he didn't even say he was sorry.

PUNCHED

DEAR PUNCHED: If you continue to go with this hot-headed boyfriend, you are begging for trouble. If you're wise, you'll dump this bully—unless you enjoy getting punched in the mouth.

DEAR ABBY: The wife who said her husband smelled because he seldom bathed, reminds me of a story they tell about Samuel Johnson, the noted English lexicographer of the 1700s.

Johnson was a "purist" where words were concerned, but when it came to his personal hygiene, he was a notorious slob.

A woman passenger sitting next to him on a coach train said: "Sir, you smell!" Whereupon Johnson replied: "Madam, you are wrong. YOU smell, I stink."

Perhaps the husband who was accused of "smelling" would like to show this to his wife. A.C.H.: SEATTLE

DEAR A.C.H.: Samuel Johnson was wrong. If he gave off an offensive odor, he "smelled" and stank as well. Or should's Shakespeare's immortal line in Romeo and Juliet have been: "A rose by any other name would 'stink' as sweet?"

DEAR ABBY: Seven years ago, my father died, leaving my mother and six children. I was 15, and the oldest. Four months later, Mom met a man named Jack who was divorced and had custody of two minor children.

Pretty soon Jack and his kids moved into our house. Mom said she and Jack were married "at sea," but I never really believed it. I think she just made that up so we wouldn't think she was terrible for letting Jack share her bed. Anyway, he's good to Mom, she's crazy about him and I wish them both luck, but what's always bugged me is the way Mom has always tried to get us kids to call Jack "Dad." The younger kids did, but I never could. (I call him Jack.)

I'm married and just learned that I am expecting, so when I told Mom yesterday, she ran into the next room and yelled, "Jack, you're going to be a GRANDFATHER!" I exploded and said, "Mom, YOU are going to be a grandmother, but Jack isn't my father, and he is NOT going to be a grandfather! And furthermore, my baby isn't going to call Jack 'Grandpa' if I have anything to say about it."

EXPECTING

DEAR EXPECTING: Yes. Your reluctance to call Jack "Dad" is understandable, but what's to be gained by making an issue of what your yet-to-be-born child will call him? Wait until the baby gets here and starts to talk. Most youngsters come up with their own special names for grandparents—legitimate or otherwise.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

An Old Hand To Take Up Reins

An old hand is returning to City Hall in the person of Harry Hagerty, who will be serving as interim city manager for a time.

Hagerty will be filling in after present City Manager Bill Carstarphen leaves to take a position at Spartanburg, S.C., effective March 10.

Hagerty will serve while a search is underway for a new permanent city manager to take the position. He won't be a stranger to the job since Hagerty was Greenville's city manager for a number of years following his retirement from the army as a colonel.

While he held the job, Hagerty was known as a hard worker and there were few municipal meetings held at which he was not in attendance. He retired from the office for health reasons and was replaced by Carstarphen in October, 1972.

Hagerty knows the ropes at City Hall and with some briefing from the outgoing city manager on the programs now underway in city government, he should be able to perform a valuable service as city manager on an interim basis.

There have been times in years gone by when the periods between city managers have been unsettling, to say the least, for the city government. We are fortunate to have a man of Harry Hagerty's experience to keep things moving, while the city manager search is underway.

Great Accomplishment Is McDonald's Honors

Being named Greenville's Outstanding Young Man is an honor, and being cited on a state level is quite an accomplishment.

Bill McDonald, local insuranceman was one of five men cited at the annual State Jaycee Awards weekend in Raleigh.

He was honored for various civic activities including heading a survey to determine the drug problem extent, leading efforts for barrier-free curbs and heading a drive to raise funds for a Recreation Department bus.

McDonald has also led efforts for Police Club recreation facilities improvements and helped to create "Youth Attention."

Bill McDonald has indeed been active locally and he fully deserves the state wide honor of being named Outstanding Young Man.

Out Of The Salary Cellar

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—North Carolina teachers have climbed out of the cellar in salaries, now ranking among the highest in the nation rather than the lowest.

Figures just compiled by state officials for the current school year put this state first in the Southeast in teacher salaries; 18th in the nation.

That, the experts agree, is a remarkable turnaround for a state which has traditionally hovered near the bottom of the classroom teacher pay scale.

The average salary for classroom teachers—including all sources, state and local plus supplements—stands now at $10,927 per year; based on 10 months of work.

The lowest beginning pay for a regular A certificate teacher is $8,130; the highest pay for a regular classroom teacher is $12,560. Both figures are the state salary alone, minus local supplements.

Supplements Vary
Those supplements vary from zero dollars in 61 school systems, $100 per year in a number, and to a high point in the urban school districts such as Charlotte which pays up to a $2,071 supplement.

North Carolina's track record in teacher pay shows a remarkable turnaround in just five short years. In 1970, the state ranked 38th in the nation; paying an average $7,772 per year.

In the two years previous to this one, the state ranked 27th in the nation, with a salary of $9,162 in 1972-73; and $9,620 in 1973-74.

The average classroom teacher salary in the nation is $11,513 per year, compared to the $10,927 paid in North Carolina.

Alaska ranks highest in the nation, paying $16,387. California ranks highest among continental states, paying $14,529; New York is second at $14,400.

Mississippi, traditionally the lowest ranking state in the nation, continues in that slot with a current teacher pay of $8,057.

North Carolina's number-one rating in the Southeast puts her ahead of Florida and Virginia—the next two highest paying states at $10,286 and $10,397 respectively. South Carolina's average salary is $9,340.

Close Look

The up-to-date figures compiled by the management information services office of the State Department of Public Instruction are for the current school year, and are likely to capture close scrutiny from members of the General Assembly being pressed for hefty teacher pay raises in the coming two budget years. The North Carolina Association of Educators are pushing for a 10 per cent hike in each of the two years, plus a three per cent "makeup" raise for salaries not increased as much as they would have liked for the current year.

The figures are not contained in the most recent booklet of educational statistics released last week by the Department of Public Instruction.

That booklet is widely distributed, but the statistics normally lag a year behind, showing figures for the 1973-74 school year rather than the current one.

North Carolina also ranks among the national leaders in total numbers of instructional staff; 60,732 people, the 12th largest staff in the nation.

Salary figures for the current year also show principals and superintendents continuing to hold their own in increases. The lowest principal salary (state money only) is $14,376; the highest is $20,832. Here, again, local supplements go on top of that, with 81 school systems paying supplements ranging from $100 to a high of $3,047 in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg system.

Superintendents start at $17,532, and range up to $26,796 in state money. A total of 142 of the 149 school systems pay a supplement for superintendents, beginning with a low of $1,200, to a high of $12,000-plus in the Charlotte schools, putting the superintendent of that system in the $39,000 range. Both principals and superintendents are paid on sliding scales affected by numbers of pupils and/or teachers in the system.

After-Dinner Musings

WASHINGTON—I was invited to a state dinner by the White House last Wednesday evening in honor of Prime Minister Bhutto of Pakistan. This was the first time I ever went to the White House officially. The Fords keep inviting strange people to their parties, and the only thing White House dinner watchers can figure out is that they're working from an old Nixon enemies folder which they mistakenly believe was the previous President's social list.

There is always the danger when a newspaperman is asked to break bread with a President and his lovely wife that he can be compromised. How can he partake of the food and wine and still keep his objectivity? This is a problem most White House press people have to deal with. I am happy to say that the Bhutto dinner has not affected my attitude toward the Administration one bit.

I still believe President Ford is the greatest leader this nation has ever known. His economic program is flawless, and his budget is probably the clearest document since the Declaration of Independence.

It is inconceivable that a free-spending Congress would set up roadblocks in the way of the Administration's program. In dealing with the recession and inflation, the President has presented the most comprehensive plan ever worked out by brilliant economists, oil experts and financial advisers. If this program were adopted, prices would go down, employment would go up and America would once again enjoy the prosperity and good life that it so richly deserves.

The problem, as I see it since last Wednesday night, is that Congress refuses to bite the bullet. Instead of joining forces with our great President, they are voting inflationary programs that could break the back of Mr. Ford's efforts to hold down government spending.

By voting day after day to reject the needed legislation to turn this country around, the Democrats are playing politics with the economy of the country.

It is inconceivable to me that our lawmakers would make a partisan issue out of the magnificent effort by the President to solve our temporary woes.

I have always had an open mind on the energy problems the United States faces. But after President Ford explained it to me, while we were drinking coffee, I am now convinced that the only answer to this nation's self-sufficiency is a $3 tariff on imported oil, de-regulation of prices for domestic gas reserves and a postponement of environmental regulations in favor of getting coal and oil out of the ground.

I had the good fortune of talking to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger at the same dinner and it's lucky I did, because I have now concluded it was a mistake to cut off aid to Turkey, refuse arms to South Vietnam and Cambodia and investigate the CIA.

Our foreign policy has been severely wounded by the ambitions of certain Democratic senators who have their eye on the White House in 1976. Congress must leave the President and Kissinger alone if we are to achieve the goals of peace that all of us so desperately pray for.

It was no accident that Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz and I agreed over cognac and a cigar that his farm policies were the only ones that this country should follow. I couldn't believe that this fine man had been

Demo Funds Probe

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate prosecutors are conducting a grand jury investigation of the Democratic party's finances in 1970 and 1971, public records show.

Prosecutors have said they are looking into possible violations of the federal law requiring public disclosure of campaign contributions.

The prosecutors have subpoenaed the party's financial disclosure statements, which are no longer public, for 1970 and 1971. Party Chairman Robert Strauss declined comment on the investigation and refused a reporter's request to view copies of the subpoenaed documents.

A spokesman for the special prosecutor also declined comment.

Strauss was party treasurer during the period under investigation, and it was during that time he received an illegal $50,000 cash donation of corporate funds from Ashland Oil Inc.

Strauss has said he did not disclose the source of the $50,000 in the party's financial statements, even though the law required disclosure of donors of $100 or more.

The Corrupt Practices Act, which was in force at the time, required political committees operating in two or more states to report the names and addresses of all donors of $100 or more.

Strauss said the $50,000 gift was made in cash, and that he reported it as among unitemized, miscellaneous receipts because he felt it was made up of many nonreportable donations of under $100.

The grand jury is looking into possible violation of the section of the Corrupt Practices Act that required public disclosure of large donors, according to the subpoena signed Jan. 30 by Asst. Special Prosecutor Earl Galus.

The subpoena became public a few days ago when the clerk of the House of Representatives

Judge Thomas W. Trenchard was undecided at noon today when he would give the Hauptmann case to the jury.

Attorney General David Wilentz had completed about half of his summation. Apparently the justice plans to wait until the attorney general closed before deciding when to give the charge.

The state asked the Hauptmann murder jury to "put him out of the way" as a "menace."

Wilentz charged that Hauptmann's defense was furnished by "idiots, cranks and fools" and pleaded for no mercy.

He said that the accused should be dubbed "public enemy number one of the world."

Robbers entered the Hadley Filling Station on Fifth Street last night and made away with 75 cents in cash and several packages of cigarettes.

It was the second time in the last few days that the filling station has been entered. The first time the thieves made away with $10 and $15, but the cash drawer was virtually empty last night.

The INSIDE REPORT

Bias In The CIA Probe?

by ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—The probability of bias in the Senate investigation of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) hardened into certainty Tuesday morning when Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, chairman of the select investigating committee, disclosed some plans to the committee's senior Republican, Sen. John Tower of Texas.

Church informed Tower he planned to name as committee staff director a veteran Senate staffer and foreign affairs expert named William G. Miller. Church was telling, not asking. The name was only vaguely familiar to Tower, and he offered no protest.

However, when Tower returned to his office to inform his staff, alarm bells sounded. Miller is unofficial leader of the unofficial group of Senate staffers ("a cabal," say Senate hard-liners) who take a revisionist view of the cold war and push for reduced defense expenditures and a softer foreign policy. The word was sent down Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House, where one senior presidential aide responded with deep distress: "This is an absolute disaster." He and other administration officials wondered how the Republicans let it happen.

In private conversation, Miller has not concealed his opposition to CIA covert operations. Like many fellow members of the "cabal," Miller is a former Foreign Service officer disgruntled with the past generation of American policy. Although some press accounts of his new assignment describe Miller as a "Republican foreign policy analyst," his positions are far closer to the New Left than the GOP.

As aide to then Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky (now ambassador to East Germany), Miller was a key strategist in the 1969 Senate fight against the anti-ballistic missile (ABM) and the 1970 battles to force a unilateral U.S. pullout from Indochina by passing the Cooper-Church amendments.

State Department officials became so frustrated during the ABM fight that they insisted on meeting Cooper without Miller present. One State Department official contends Miller distorted the Senate debate by consistently taking at face value dubious information given him by the Soviet embassy and passing it on to Cooper.

Consequently, there is hope in the administration and among hard-line Senators that Republicans will apply belated pressure on Church for a more even-handed staff director.

But the Republicans are not united. One investigating committee member, Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, relayed word to us that he has no objections to Miller and has heard none from other Senators. That confirms apprehension inside the administration that Baker, who did the CIA great damage a year ago by attempting to saddle it with Watergate sins. Making no secret of his presidential ambitions, Baker is not counted on to restrain chairman Church and chief investigator Miller.

The GOP Spenders

An effort to churn up real opposition to President Ford's $53 billion deficit flopped in Tuesday's weekly luncheon of Republican Senators, a clear signal to the White House that it has much more to fear from confident Democratic spenders than doubtful Republican savers.

Mr. Conservative, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, kicked off the luncheon discussion by asking

Strength For Today

DETERMINATION TO BE HAPPY
Abraham Lincoln once said that a man is just about as happy as he makes up his mind to be.

Lincoln knew what he was talking about. Adverse circumstances had pressed upon him with such insistence through the years that he might have been forgiven if he had resigned himself to despair and had declared that happiness was never meant for him.

But evidently Lincoln made up his mind early in life that he would not allow con-tradition and sorrow to make him hopeless and sour on life. He had periods of despondency, but on the whole he lived a remarkably cheerful life. And that was because he had made up his mind to do so.

Will power has a great deal to do with any human situation. We can be almost anything which we will to be. And in the case of happiness, it depends primarily on whether we have the courage and determination to make up our minds to be happy regardless of how life treats us.

Workers' Real Income Declined

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The distinguishing characteristic of the present recession is that real incomes of workers have declined. In no other recession since World War II has this been so.

Analyzing the phenomenon, Argus Research Corp. observes that consumer expenditures for goods and services account for about two-thirds of the Gross National Product.

Thus, concludes Argus, which supplies much of Wall Street's research, "any sustained turnaround in the economy will require an upturn in real consumer spending power."

That's the problem, and it is fairly safe to say that everyone from the National Association of Manufacturers to the AFL-CIO would agree that the country has to get money into the hands of its people.

Without it, retail sales dry up, bill payments lag, stocks sag. Even money leaders can't do as much business as they want.

Consumer installment credit has taken a nosedive over recent weeks, falling about $1.2 billion, with $814 billion of that occurring in December.

The proposed income tax rebates are designed to get purchasing power into the hands of distressed consumers. But there are indications the consumers won't use it for new purchases.

A survey by the First National City Bank suggests a most people will put the rebate into savings or use it to pay bills. In fact, only 6.7 per cent said they would commit the money to everyday living expenses.

Only 30 per cent of the money, the survey indicated, would go directly back into the economy in the form of investments or would be spent for home improvements, automobile purchases, vacations and the like.

Does this mean that the money will therefore be kept from circulation? No.

When money is saved in a bank, credit union, or savings and loan association it generally is lent out by them to people who do want to spend. Thus the money remains in circulation.

Dr. Benjamin Speaks On Preservation

The meeting of Major Benjamin May Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was held Saturday afternoon at the United Methodist Church here. Members and guests were greeted and served refreshments by the hostesses, Mrs. Gordon Lee, Mrs. Charles H. Carr, and Miss Nancy Darden. They were assisted by Mrs. Lee's daughter, Mrs. Carl Wester of Raleigh.

Dr. Emily Farnham, regent, opened the meeting and introduced Miss Betty Joyner, Mrs. W. A. McAdams, Mrs. C. C. Simpson, Mrs. Pat Ruffin, Mrs. Wester, and Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Benjamin as visitors.

"A Plea for Preserving the Old Architecture in Greenville, N.C." was the program topic, and Mrs. Carr presented Dr. Benjamin as the speaker.

Dr. Benjamin is chairman of the department of art history, ECU. He received a B.A. in art history from Emory University, Atlanta, and a Ph.D. in the same subject from the University of North Carolina. His wife, the former Wieke S. van der Weijden, is a native of the Netherlands, and they have an infant daughter, Saskia Jansje.

Dr. Benjamin stated that there is such a thing as architectural Heritage and that it is the responsibility of individual citizens to see that architectural types of an area are preserved for their own children and grandchildren.

He believes that "architectural imagery" conveys a "tie-in with the past" which aids immeasurably in compiling an overall conception of an era.

Dr. Benjamin went on to say that current and modern plans for redevelopment cover various aspects of living. Planners should consider the fact that a city must be many things to its people. Commercial, residential, recreational, governing, and spiritual needs ought to be thought out in order that a community might be viable and alive.

Dr. Farnham gave the President General's message which told of the DAR efforts to have February permanently designated at American History Month. The National Defense report was read by Mrs. Frederick M. Tripp.

Mrs. Carr read a summation of the current year's activities compiled by Dr. Farnham. This review, along with others from the DAR Chapters in N.C., will make up the "1975 Yearbook of the NSDAR of North Carolina."

The chapter members voted to place a copy of the "DAR Patriot Index" in the Farmville Public Library.

Dr. Farnham reminded members that Feb. 23 will mark the 49th anniversary of the Major Benjamin May Chapter. It was formed in 1926 under the guidance of Mrs. Cora Moore Turnage as organizing regent. Miss Tabitha M. DeVisconti, Mrs. Ellen Lewis Carroll, Mrs. Vernessa S. Townsend and Mrs. T. E. Joyner Sr. of the charter members are presently active.

Mrs. Edward Lee Hill, a member of the DAR magazine and advertising committee, called attention to the current "DAR Magazine," which has a section the 75th anniversary of the NSDAR of N.C. District VIII North Carolina DAR, to which the local chapter belongs, presented a picture and information about Old Trinity Episcopal Church, located north of Scotland Neck.

ECU Students Give Woman's Club Program

Students from the music department of East Carolina University presented the program at the meeting of the Greenville Woman's Club Friday afternoon.

Miss Jean Evans, a freshman and a voice major, sang several selections including "Come Unto Me." She is the recipient of the Woman's Club scholarship. Miss Evans was accompanied by Miss Jean Wonderly. Mrs. W. A. Pollard introduced the musicians.

Mrs. Joseph Kinnaman, Arts, chairman, announced the local Arts Festival has been scheduled for Feb. 22 at the club building. She asked that all arts and crafts be brought to the building on the afternoon of Feb. 20 to be displayed and judged. Music and public speaking will be judged Feb. 22.

Home Life Chairman Miss Alya Ray Taylor reported on the January meeting. Mrs. W. A. Shires, International Affairs chairman, reported on open house at the International Home held recently. She urged members to attend the study group on "Great Decisions of 1975." The class will meet each Monday night at 7:30 at the club building for six classes.

Mrs. Clara Shackell, chairman of Girls Haven, announced a bake sale to be held in March.

Mrs. Preston Cannon gave the devotional. Mrs. George Clapp, vice president presided at the meeting.

Mrs. Nancy Jackson and Mrs. Addie Highsmith were

Rain Beetle Promoted As Orgon State Insect

By GINNY BURDICK
Associated Press Writer
SALEM, Ore. (AP) — What's rugged, harmless and thrives on rain?

Rufus the Rain Beetle.
Rufus may be on his way to becoming the state insect of Oregon, if a group of determined sixth graders have their way. The 35 young rain beetle boosters are members of Peggy Burglund's sixth grade class at North Marion Elementary School in Aurora, Ore.

The House State and Federal Affairs Committee approved a resolution that would declare the rain beetle the state insect after hearing one of the most persuasive lobbying efforts on any issue so far in the month-old legislative session.

"The Oregon rain beetle represents Oregon," said Flinn Fagg, a solemn-faced red-haired boy about five feet tall. "It has to have a cold, wet climate to survive. It has a rugged and tough spirit. It can adjust to almost any climate, therefore it represents Oregonians."

The rain beetle was described as unique to Oregon, having lived in this state for some 25 million years.

What does the rain beetle eat? asked Committee Chairman Bill Grannell.

"It nibbles on different stuff, but it doesn't harm anything," said Julie Bizon of Hubbard.

How does it get around? Grannell asked.

"The boys fly, the girls don't," he was told.

A few adult witnesses tried to persuade the committee to recommend the honeybee as Ore-gon's insect because of its value to agriculture.

But it became evident their case was lost when Chairman Grannell donned a button like the one worn by most of the audience.

It said: "Rufus Rain Beetle for State Bug."

villified by a scandal-mongering media who wouldn't know the truth if it was right in front of their eyes.

As I danced with Mrs. Ford after dinner I decided I was glad I had accepted her invitation to eat at the White House. All my fears about being taken in by the Administration were groundless. One meal cannot change a man's opinion of our President or his gracious First Lady. Not since Dolley Madison . . .

Evans-Novak. .

rhetorically how in the world he could defend the Ford budget. That triggered a more passionate and eloquent attack on the budget by Sen. William Brock of Tennessee. He posed the real danger of the Ford budget putting the Republican party in the position of standing for nothing.

The reaction: silence, boredom and some whispered comments that Bill Brock was starting his 1976 reelection campaign early.

Chewing Tobacco Popularity Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — An old habit is returning to popularity with Americans — chewing tobacco.

In the last five years, the amount of chewing tobacco produced in the U. S. has risen by 16 per cent—to 74 million pounds.

Jackson Col...

tives, to whom it was issued, requested permission from the House to comply with it. The House voted last Thursday not to comply immediately, but to supply certified copies of any documents ruled relevant by U.S. Dist. Judge George L. Hart.

Before April of 1972 national political committees filed their reports with the clerk of the House, who seals all such reports more than two years old. Ashland said it made the illegal $50,000 gift to Strauss sometime between June 1970 and February 1972. The subpoena seeks all reports filed by the Democratic party during 1970 and 1971.

The company was fined $25,000 after admitting $169,364 in illegal contributions to politicians of both parties, including the $50,000 accepted by Strauss. In addition, an Ashland subsidiary was fined $5,000 and Ashland board chairman Orin E. Atkins $1,000 in an illegal $100,000 donation to the 1972 Nixon re-election campaign.

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, the minority leader, started to rise with a defense of the Ford budget but was quietly motioned down by a close ally. The implication: it wasn't worth bothering about.

Goldwater and Brock have a half-dozen or so allies among ultra-conservative Republican Senators—plus, surprisingly, liberal Sen. Robert Packwood of Oregon. On the next day at the weekly meeting of the liberal Republican Wednesday Club, Packwood voiced concern about the deficit. He was greeted by bored silence.

The hard truth is that Republican conservatives seek no political advantage in the Goldwater-Brock-Packwood line. Conservative Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas is attacking the Ford budget not for its deficit but because it spends too much on defense and not enough for "people" programs.

In fact, the ranks of Republican economizers are further thinned when theory turns to practice. On Wednesday, Packwood was one of only eight Senators supporting Mr. Ford's attempt to control the food stamp program (with an absent Goldwater announced in favor of the President). But hard-nosed economizer Brock was among the 76 Senators voting against him.

Cameron Corp. Political Fund Reported By Paper

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—Cameron Financial Corp., including the First Union National Bank, operates an employee-financed political fund that has contributed an estimated $210,000 to candidates since 1969, the Charlotte Observer reports in today's editions.

The newspaper says contributions are solicited from all Cameron Financial executives, numbering an estimated 500, who make at least $10,000 a year.

The newspaper says the money goes into a fund known as "Commonwealth Associates Fund." Although the contributions come from employees, the Observer says the decision on how the money will be used is made by top executives who serve on the financial committee of Commonwealth Associates.

No public accounting of where the money went was made until Commonwealth Associates began complying in 1973 with a 1972 change in federal election laws that required such organizations to file annual reports, according to the Charlotte Observer.

The newspaper says no records were available of political contributions made prior to 1972. However, available records show that the fund contributed $3,250 to U. S. Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., and $2,500 to William Stevens, his Republican opponent in the 1974 general election, according to the newspaper.

The Charlotte Observer says the fund apparently is legal because the money comes from employees rather than directly from the company. Federal and state laws forbid corporate contributions to political candidates.

The newspaper reported, however, that some of the candidates who received money said they gave credit to Cameron Financial and First Union State Rep. Larry Cobb, who received $100 in cash in 1972 and $150 in 1974 from the Commonwealth Fund, said he considered it a "First Union contribution."

Pat Locke, a Charlotte city council member, said of a $100 Commonwealth check in 1974: "I assumed it was a...bank contribution."

The newspaper said Cameron Financial spokesmen responded to its questions in general terms but declined to answer detailed questions about the fund's participation in state and local campaigns prior to 1973.

"We feel that it is neither appropriate nor necessary to provide additional information...other than what has already been discussed with you," the company was quoted as saying.

Pressed for additional answers, the company issued a second statement saying: "We have a deep appreciation and respect for the right of our free press to investigate information regardless of its source to determine if the information is newsworthy, accurate and merits reporting to the general public, subject, of course, to the legal restraints placed on the media by our laws and courts."

"We trust that you recognize our corresponding right to decline to respond to your further inquiries," the company statement said.

The newspaper quoted C. C. Brewer, treasurer of the Commonwealth Fund and a senior vice president of First Union National Bank, as saying the fund permitted bank officers to maintain good relations with local candidates who would regularly ask for campaign contributions.

Brewer and Thomas Grant, retired chief counsel for First Union, told The Charlotte Observer the Commonwealth Fund was established in late 1968 to help a few top First Union executives pay off personal campaign debts left over from the 1968 campaign.

They were quoted as saying it was not reported because of an administrative mixup in which Brewer and Grant each thought the other was listing the fund's existence.

The newspapers said that in contrast, Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. registered its fund, called the National Bi-Partisan Employees Fund Committee, as required on April 7, 1972. The newspaper also quoted a Wachovia spokesman as saying the bank had disbanded its local committees — at one time numbering approximately 28 — because "it wasn't worth all the red tape."

Yo-Yo Business Is Up-And-Down Thing

By LISA BERMAN
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP) —

What goes up and down like a Yo-Yo when business goes down and up?

Why, the Yo-Yo business, of course. And in these times of recession, the nation's largest Yo-Yo company is doing a booming business.

"When times are tight, they don't have the money to buy basketballs, but they do have the money to buy Yo-Yos," explained William Reck, comptroller of Flambeau Products Corp., parent company of Duncan Yo-Yos.

"In relation to the economic statistics of the country, we do know that when the economy is on the decline, sales increase," Flambeau President William Sauey adds, "It's not a craze item. Kids and parents buy more of them in hard times. It offers more play value for the dollar than any other toy." Reck said the company controls about 85 per cent of the U.S. Yo-Yo market, with annual sales of $12 million to $18 million. The firm turns out about 100,000 Yo-Yos a day. He said that during a recession, the company commands even more of the market, "and that's exactly what we're experiencing now."

"We're running about 10 per cent to 12 per cent ahead of our projections. We really weren't expecting the kind of economic slump we're experiencing now."

Duncan Yo-Yos, first produced in the 1920s, now come in 10 colors and seven models ranging in price from 89 cents to $2.50. The $2.50 Yo-Yo lights up as it swings.

Work Displayed By Art Student

Paintings and drawings by Cindy Lovett, senior student in the East Carolina University School of Art, are on display this week in the campus Joyner Library.

The show includes a selection of oil paintings and drawings in the conte crayon and pencil-collage media.

A candidate for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in painting, Miss Lovett is pursuing a minor concentration in textile design.

Interior Design Course Offered

A non-credit evening course in basic interior design will be offered by East Carolina University's Division of Continuing Education on Wednesdays, March 12-April 30.

Instructor for the course will be Ora Shaw, interior designer, now a graduate assistant at the ECU School of Art.

The first blacks to arrive in English America were 20 bound servants landed from a Dutch warship at Jamestown in 1619.

Artist With Early Camera

By TOM HILLSTROM

NEW YORK (UPI) — Edward Weston puzzled over whether his pictures were art until a writer referred to him as an "artist". Then he decided he preferred to be a "photographer" instead.

Now the Museum of Modern Art has mounted a major retrospective show of more than 250 prints from Edward Weston's half-century photographic career. The collection, on display here until March 30, later will travel to several other cities.

Photography was in its adolescence when Weston first picked up a camera at the turn of the century in his home town of Highland Park, Ill., and began shooting pictorials in the parks of nearby Chicago. He later chose the medium as a career and moved West, where he evolved a photographic style simple in structure but profound in statement that startled most of the era's professionals and influenced the art to the present day.

There was no such thing as a 10-second photo in Weston's day. The process of transferring an image to paper was complicated and the equipment bulky. A photo session could exhaust an entire day with two, or perhaps three, workable negatives the result.

"I worked all Sunday with shells—literally all day," Weston wrote in a 1927 entry in his journal. "Only three negatives made and two of them were done as records of movements to repeat again when I can find suitable backgrounds. I wore myself out..."

Through such perseverance, he developed a respect for simplicity and an emphasis on form, light and shadow which became his trademark and influenced such other noted photographers as his friend Ansel Adams.

Weston's prints run the full spectrum of grays from black to white but never settle on either extreme. It is an accomplishment possible only through delicate mastery of both camera controls and darkroom techniques.

His subject matter usually was simple, a small seashell, twisted Cypress trunk, eroded rock, desk or church door. But he also had the vastness of the West as a studio and fog along the Oregon coast, a bayou in Louisiana and California's Big Sur drew his attention as well.

"Life here is intense and dramatic," he wrote upon arriving in Mexico City from his home in Carmel, Calif., in 1923. "There are sunlit walls of fascinating surface textures. And there are clouds! They alone are sufficient to work with for many months and never retire."

Weston died in 1958 at the age of 72 after having suffered for a decade from Parkinson's disease, but the appreciation of his influence continues to grow. And two sons, Brett and Cole Weston, have received critical attention for their own photography.

"For what is the camera best used?" Weston wrote in 1924. "The answer comes always more clearly after seeing a great work of the sculptor or painter...that the camera should be used for a recording of life, for rendering the very substance and quintessence of the thing itself, whether polished steel or palpitating flesh."

The show was assembled through grants provided by the SCM Corp., and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Following its appearance in New York, the Weston show will travel to the Detroit Institute of Arts (July 22), the Des Moines Art Center (Nov. 24), the Denver Art Museum (Jan. 26, 1976) and the Baltimore Museum of Art (April 27, 1976).

Less Innovation By Toy Makers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Toy makers generally plan to stick to the tried-and-true sale items rather than go in for widespread innovation next spring and summer according to Toy and Hobby World. The reason is economic since manufacturers cannot estimate how much disposable income will be at the command of consumers and how they plan to spend it.

Predict Uptrend In Ad Revenues

NEW YORK (UPI) — Newspaper advertising revenues will total a record $7.9 million this year, and the uptrend should continue through the rest of the decade, according to two newspaper industry officials. The bright outlook was made recently to security analysts by Newspaper Advertising Bureau President Jack Kauffman and American Newspaper Publishers Association President Stanford Smith. They said total advertising revenues of U.S. newspapers almost equal those of television, magazines and radio combined.

Because of gold discoveries, Australians are often called diggers. The nickname was also given Australian soldiers during World War II.

How Tar Heel Senators And Representatives Voted

By Roll Call Report
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Jan. 30 through Feb. 5.

HOUSE
FOOD STAMPS — Passed, 374 for and 39 against, a bill prohibiting any increase this year in the cost of food stamps. The measure would thwart the Administration's plan to charge recipients more beginning March 1, thus saving the Treasury about $650 million annually. HR 1589 was subsequently passed by the Senate (below) and sent to the White House where President Ford is weighing a veto.

Food stamps, redeemable at stores, are designed to increase the food-purchasing power of the program's 17 million participants. The average recipient is now required to pay 23 per cent or his or her net income for stamps. Under the Administration plan, all but the poorest participants would pay 30 per cent of net income. President Ford proposed the increase last Fall when inflation was regarded as the chief economic woe.

Supporters of the bill said the higher costs would hurt poor and fixed-income persons who have been hit hardest by recession and inflation. Rep. Louis Stokes (D-Ohio) said the Ford proposal would hardly force recipients to "limit their steak consumption and eat more casseroles" because many of them already are "eating dog food."

Opponents said the food stamp program is participated in by many undeserving persons, such as college students and strikers, and urged support of the President's economic game plan. Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.) said the burden of higher inflation caused by more federal spending for food stamps and other programs hurts "everyone, including food stamp recipients."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

OIL IMPORTS TAX — Passed, 309 for and 114 against, a bill (HR 1767) to stop the Administration from increasing the tariff on imported oil by a total of $3 per barrel by April 1. The bill would rescind the first phase of the hike, a tariff increase of $1, which was imposed on Feb. 1. Also, it would suspend for 90 days the President's power, embodied in the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, to change fees, tariffs and quotas on imported oil. The Democratic-controlled Congress feels the delay would give it time to write its own proposal for reducing domestic consumption of foreign oil. HR 1767 was sent to the Senate.

Many supporters said the higher tariffs would only curtail energy consumption by poor Americans who could not afford the resulting higher oil prices. Rep. Anthony Moffett (D-Conn.) said Congress should consider, in place of Ford's plan, mandatory controls on consumption. He called Ford's approach "price rationing."

Opponents praised the Administration for taking positive action toward achieving

U.S. energy independence. Rep. Don Clausen (R-Calif.) said that a year has passed since the Arab oil embargo but "Congress has done nothing . . . to alleviate the devastating economic impact another embargo could have on our sagging economy."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose and Hefner voted "yea." Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay."

NATIONAL DEBT — Passed, 248 for and 170 against, legislation (HR 2634) raising the debt ceiling for the current fiscal year from $495 billion to $531 billion. The Administration-backed measure, sent to the Senate, would allow the government borrowing authority needed to pay its bills.

One supporter, Rep. Al Ullman (R-Ore.) said voting against the increase is like "a man who refuses to put a sufficient balance in his bank account to cover the checks he has written." One opponent, Rep. John Ashbrook (R-Ohio), said the bill will "put even more pressure on interest rates," and noted that "60 cents out of every $1 being borrowed today is by the federal sector."

Jones, Preyer and Hefner voted "yea."

Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Rose, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay."

SENATE

FOOD STAMPS — Passed, 76 for and eight against, the bill (HR 1589) freezing the price of food stamps for the remainder of 1975 (see House vote above).

Voting against the freeze and thus in favor of President Ford's plan to raise prices were Sens. Harry Byrd (I-Va.), Carl Curtis (R-Neb.), Paul Fannin (R-Ariz.), Clifford Hansen (R-Wyo.), Jesse Helms (R-N.C.), Robert Packwood (R-Ore.), William Scott (R-Va.) and John Stennis (D-Miss.).

Not voting were Sens. Birch Bayh (D-Ind.), Lloyd Bentsen (D-Tex.), Joseph Biden (D-Del.), Howard Cannon (D-Nev.), Alan Cranston (D-Calif.), James Eastland (D-Miss.), Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), Vance Hartke (D-Ind.), Daniel Inouye (D-Hawaii), Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.), Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), James McClure (R-Idaho), Lee Metcalf (D-Mont.), Robert Stafford (R-Vt.) and Robert Taft (R-Ohio).

All other senators voted "yea."

FOOD STAMP STUDY — Rejected, 34 for and 51 against, an amendment to HR 1589 that would have directed the Secretary of Agriculture to propose reforms in the food stamp program. High on the list of abuses concerning senators were reports that many non-poor, such as college drop-outs from wealthy families, have been receiving food stamps.

Although it rejected the amendment, the Senate in separate action adopted a "sense of the Senate" resolution asking Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz to propose legislative reforms by June 30.

One supporter of the amendment, Sen. Jesse Helms (R-N.C.), said the measure would "expedite a clean-up of a program that every senator on this floor knows smells to high heaven."

One opponent, Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.), said the amendment would cause a delay that would "imperil" quick passage of HR 1589. Had the amendment been adopted, the bill would have been returned to the House for concurrence with the additional language. Rejection of the amendment meant that the bill, following final Senate passage, went directly to the President for his signature or veto.

Sens. Robert Morgan (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea."

TERMITES OR ANTS?

Don't be half sure. Call a professional pest control operator for an inspection today. The potential damage to property from termites can exceed the damage from tornadoes, hurricanes and fire. This is why termite protection is as important as a homeowner's insurance policy.

Ervin Supports Rebozo Inquiry

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — The Watergate prosecutor still should investigate Bebe Rebozo's handling of a $100,000 Howard Hughes contribution to Richard Nixon, former Sen. Sam Ervin says.

In addition, Ervin added at a campus lecture Tuesday, there should be further prosecution of Nixon aides who solicited illegal corporate campaign contributions for the former President's 1972 campaign.

The 78-year-old former chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee also said he believes there was abuse of presidential power under Lyndon Johnson as well as Nixon.

The North Carolina Democrat described Johnson as the type of President who, like Nixon, thought "all agencies of government are their political playthings."

He also said there was military intelligence spying on civilians under Johnson.

Asked about President Ford's pardon of Nixon, Ervin said it "was a grave mistake. I think he lost a lot of credibility when he did that."

"There's a fundamental principle that every man should stand equal before the law, and President Ford did damage to that principle," Ervin said.

Answering questions from an audience of about 2,000 persons at a University of California lecture hall, Ervin said he has doubts about Rebozo's testimony on the Hughes contribution.

"I think the special prosecutor should further explore the veracity of Bebe Rebozo, who testified he kept the Hughes contribution in a safety deposit box for three years and never used it," Ervin said.

Ervin received a standing ovation and was cheered for comments on Watergate. But his defense of state's rights on civil rights issues was received with silence and he was booed and hissed when he said:

"In regard to the economic recession, anybody who was willing to do an honest day's work for an honest day's pay can get a job."

Questioned about the Watergate investigations, Ervin said: "Most of the matters involved in Watergate have been fully explored in the release of the tapes, except I think the special prosecutor should investigate further the contributions of illegal corporate funds."

"We've had a good deal of prosecution of the corporations that made the contributions, but there's been virtually no prosecution of the persons who solicited an accepted these contributions."

"The federal statutes make it just as much an offence to solicit or accept illegal contributions. So I think that's an area that needs to be explored further," Ervin said.

Legitimate Safecracker

KENNETH PERRY is a bonded professional safecracker. Here he uses a medical instrument which enables him to peer at right angles at the tumblers. (UPI Photo)

By Edward J. McFall
ESSINGTON, Pa. (UPI) — As the heirs crowded around in eager anticipation, Kenneth J. Perry went to work.

In a matter of minutes Perry, a legitimate professional safecracker, had opened the wall safe of a deceased man. Inside was an electrical fan, still running, and a lampshade.

"His relatives were pretty disappointed," Perry recalled. "The guy had run a cord in through the back of the safe. Why he did it, I'll never know."

Perry, 34, is a self-employed, bonded professional safecracker who has worked at his unusual trade for about 11 years and several weeks ago stunned an area radio station.

As a promotion, the station had placed a $1,000 check in a safe in a suburban shopping mall for anybody who could open the safe.

The station began broadcasting a clue daily and on the second day of the promotion Perry went to the mall and opened the safe in a minute.

"It was easy," he said. The first clue was "the past tense of a hungry verb" and the second "an adverb that can be spelled three different ways". The first number was eight and the second two.

"But the first clue was all I needed," Perry said. "Nobody was there when I took out the check so I just placed my business card in the safe, closed it and left."

Perry later installed a better lock on the safe for the station.

Perry, a welder who injured his back, became a locksmith after taking a course advertised on the back of a matchbook. He worked for two safe companies before going into business for himself about a year ago and has since hired a helper.

Once a firm delivered an old safe by truck to him to be opened and told him there was nothing in it.

"The guys on the truck went to get a cup of coffee when I started working on the safe," Perry said in his home in the Philadelphia suburb of Essington.

"When I opened the safe, there was $37,000 in it. They didn't think anything was in it. I could have retired. I quick got somebody and called the firm's security."

Another time, Perry was called to a nearby jail to

Legislatures Of 49 States Meet

CHICAGO (UPI) — State legislatures will meet in 49 of the 50 states this year, according to the Commerce Clearing House News Bureau. The Kentucky Legislature is the only one not slated to meet in 1975.

Most of the sessions will begin in January. However, some will convene as late as April (Florida and Louisiana) and May (Alabama).

remove the handcuffs of a murder suspect.

"The police got him in his cell and then couldn't get the handcuffs off," Perry said. "And the harder they tried and twisted the cuffs, the tighter they got. They were getting nervous and they were making me nervous."

Perry once was summoned to a National Guard armory to free two soldiers who had been changing locks on a weapons vault and locked themselves in.

"They were damn near crying," he said. "I talked to them through the vault door and opened it in less than five minutes."

Perry, who was getting ready to leave his house to go to a lunch truck firm which had five safes broken in a burglary attempt, always makes sure some representative of the owners of the safes are present when he works.

"I've been in bank vaults with millions of dollars and the people will start to walk away and leave me alone," Perry said. "I get them back there."

Perry, who many times is armed with the combinations, uses various methods to open safes. He is writing a book on the subject, "which will be sold only to legitimate persons," and has invented some safe-cracking tools.

One method he uses is drilling into the safe near the combination. Then he uses a medical instrument called a naso pharyngoscope which has a light on the end of it and enables him to peer at something from a right angle.

He inserts the instrument in the drilled hole and "then I can see the tumblers and their position."

Perry debunks the myths of safecracking, such as sandpapering the fingertips for greater sensitivity.

"All you get when you sandpaper your fingers is a lousy manicure," he said.

Love Conquers Mail Progress

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Love still conquers all, even the progress of the U.S. mail system.

For many years post offices in places like Loveland, Colo., Love, Miss., and Kissimmee, Fla., received sackloads of Valentines before Feb. 14, to be postmarked and forwarded. But though mail nowadays is usually postmarked only with a zip-numbered stamp, mechanization hasn't completely killed the custom of sending romantically marked envelopes.

It is still possible, say Hallmark experts, to have envelopes containing Valentines franked in such places as Loveland, Tex., Eros, La., Valentines, Va., or Sweet, Idaho. Such mail can still be sent to the postmaster of any appropriately named community with a request that it be hand-stamped and forwarded.

ECU Expansion Into 9th Street Area Hits Snags

HOUSE ON THE MOVE... a house is moved from the Eighth and Ninth Street area where the university is

By SUSAN PRICE
Reflector Staff Writer
East Carolina University's expansion into the Ninth Street area has been slowed to a standstill for lack of funds to complete projects there. And ECU's vice-chancellor for Business Affairs, Cliff Moore, says there probably won't be any more money for projects there until July at the earliest.

Future plans for the area include the purchase of all the land on both sides of Ninth Street to Cotanche St. and north on Cotanche to Clement Dorn.

Over the past three years, about 30 lots have been purchased along Ninth Street and the university has removed 90 per cent of the buildings on the lots. At least three more landowners have agreed to sell their property to the university when the money is available.

The land acquired by the university so far has been sold voluntarily. Though the university plans to eventually purchase all the property on the street, Moore said he hopes the state will not have to resort to its right of eminent domain in the acquisition.

"Some of the landowners along Cotanche Street are elderly and don't want to pack up and move, and I can understand that. It will be several years before we can purchase the rest of the property anyway so we'll just wait and see," Moore said.

Most of the land in the area is part of the City of Greenville's urban renewal project.

Joe Laney, executive director of the Greenville Redevelopment Commission and the Housing Authority, said the city has received $420,000 in credits from the federal government for land cleared by the university. That credit will be used as part of the city's share of federal matching funds for the urban renewal project.

"The money for the purchase of property by the university comes from the real property section of the Department of Administration of the university. East Carolina itself does not acquire property; the negotiations are done by that department in Raleigh," Morgan said.

"We never really know how much money ECU gets for property acquisition. They just call from the General Administration department and tell us we have some money coming. They ask how we want it spent and then do the work themselves," he added.

Pending approval and funds for new buildings, the area will be used as parking for university registered vehicles. Eventually, classroom buildings will be constructed in the area. "We have a request for $18-plus million for capital improvement funds in the Legislature, and some money was in that for a new building," he said.

The next classroom buildings to be built will probably be a School of Education and a Language classroom building. "But don't ask me for a timetable on that, because the dates of construction are uncertain," he added.

"In order to put buildings in the Ninth Street area, we would have to ask the city to close some of the streets. To do that, we have to own all the property along the street," Moore explained.

Good Books Are Hard To Find In Soviet Shops

By BARRY JAMES
MOSCOW (UPI) — Tolstoy's "War and Peace" is not available in the House of Books, Moscow's largest bookstore.

Neither is Dostoevsky's "Crime and Punishment."

All the books known to Westerners as classics of Russian literature are hard to find in their homeland.

"Tolstoy," the salesgirl in another bookstore said with a shrug. "Try the second-hand store, comrade."

The Soviet Union claims to hold first place in book production with more than 1.5 billion published each year, or more than four million a day.

But much of what is produced is Communist party propaganda and remains unsold on store shelves.

Handsomely bound copies of speeches by Leonid I. Brezhnev, the party's general secretary, languish unopened at the House of Books next to monumental collections of works by V.I. Lenin and Karl Marx.

A girl at the store said she could not remember ever selling one expensive biography of Marx displayed on the shelf behind her.

One large section of the store is given over to books about World War II. The children's section is well-stocked, but even here many books carry an ideological message.

The sections selling prose and poetry display works mostly by modern Soviet and East European authors.

But, one booklover said, "You can be sure that if a book is worth reading, it won't be on the shelves for long. It is very hard for us to get good fiction. The good new books are sold under the counter."

So hard is it to obtain readable literature that the government has launched a massive waste paper campaign in major cities on the strength of the shortage.

Under the program, a person who takes 44 pounds of waste paper to a collection point receives a token for one book. He still must buy the book. The token offers only a fair chance he will be able to obtain it.

Some of the more popular titles in the special series printed for the waste paper campaign quickly disappear from the stores.

In January, stores offered a Sherlock Holmes mystery, "The Hound of the Baskervilles," for 76 cents plus a token.

Other titles in the special series have included "Queen Margot" by Alexandre Dumas, the Tales of Hans Christian Andersen and a collection of Maigret stories by Georges Simenon.

Oddly enough, some of the books which people cannot find in the stores turn up in the piles of waste paper. A reporter for the newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta said he saw works by Tolstoy, Dostoevsky, Alexander Pushkin and Nikolai Gogol at one reception center.

Despite the presence of gems among the waste, a decent volume of Tolstoy can still fetch $34 on the black market, the existence of which has been admitted in the Soviet press.

A volume of Herodotus, nominally on sale for $4.35 but unavailable on the open market, fetches $13.70 on the black market, the newspaper Izvestia said. A two-volume edition of Georges Sand priced at $5.55 was selling on the black market in Odessa for $102.

"Even the sharks of capitalism have not dreamed of such profits," Izvestia said.

In Moscow, a book black market takes place every Saturday and Sunday around the statue commemorating Ivan Fedorov, Russia's first book publisher, virtually outside the front entrance of the KGB political police headquarters.

The market nucleus is an officially tolerated book-swapping ring that attracts everyone from schoolboys to university professors.

On the fringes of the crowd, the speculators operate. For known and trusted clients, they can find a wanted book or provide a typewritten list of books available. Among the hottest items for sale are the collected works of Mikhail Bulgakov and the poems of Osip Mandelstam, both in disfavor for years and recently published only in limited editions.

Their books now cost $137 and more on the black market, according to Soviet sources.

Even hotter, riskier deals could involve a Bible for at least $165 or a copy of Alexander Solzhenitsyn's "Gulag Archipelago" for $206.

In blood groups, all designated by letters, type O is the commonest.

CP&L Wage Cut Doesn't Match Gains Since 1973

RALEIGH (AP)—Average salaries for employees of Carolina Power and Light Co. have risen 11 per cent since Nov. 1973, despite a 5 per cent reduction in pay put in effect last week, a company official said Tuesday.

Total wage costs for CP&L increased 22.5 per cent from 1973 to 1974, according to figures at the State Utilities Commission. The number of employees increased by 5.5 per cent in the same period.

gain since Nov. 1973 is less than the increase in the cost of living for the period. The pay cuts were made after the State Utilities Commission ordered a 25 per cent rollback in the amount power companies could charge customers under the fuel adjustment clause. CP&L president Shearon Harris said the cuts were necessary for the company to make ends meet.

Ex-Governor Is Given Parole

Company spokesman Albert Morris said the utility had raised salaries by an average 16.5 per cent since Nov. 1973. CP&L reduced the salaries of 16 top executives by 10 per cent in an economy move last week and cut other employees' wages by 5 per cent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former West Virginia Gov. William Wallace Barron has been ordered paroled after serving nearly four years of a 12-year conspiracy sentence.

The U.S. Parole Board took the action Tuesday. It takes effect March 28. Barron, now at the federal prison camp at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., has been in federal custody 46 months and has paid a $50,000 fine.

He was convicted of conspiring to bribe the foreman of a federal grand jury that cleared him in a 1968 case involving alleged kickbacks while he was governor.

Figures at the Utilities Commission show that in 1974, more than 35 per cent of the company's salary expenses went to employees involved in capital construction operations. Several executives who oversee construction programs were also included under that heading. Consumer advocates have complained that the company is building more new plants than it will need. CP&L officials acknowledged this week that growth in electricity consumption has declined. CP&L vice president for finance Edward Lilly said the company now expects electricity sales to increase by about 7 per cent, instead of the 11 per cent originally projected. Many of the additional employees hired between 1973 and 1974 were for administrative positions in fields such as environmental, construction and licensing, Morris said. He also said the company was organizing a construction department to oversee building and expansion of CP&L plants. In the past, much of the work has been done by contractors. The percentage of the company's payroll that went to administrative employees went up slightly in 1974, to 17.5 per cent, compared to 17.31 per cent of the total wages and salaries paid in 1973. The percentage of wages paid to employees working in sales, production, distribution and transmission went down slightly. Morris said salaries were increased so the company's pay scale would be competitive with other utilities in the Southeast.

"We want to pay salaries that compare favorably with other utilities in the Southeast for the same work done and with other industries in our service area," he said. During 1974, CP&L's total payroll amounted to $53.6 million, compared with $43.7 million in 1973.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market managed a slight gain today in sluggish holiday trading, recovering from a shaky start.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead 1.80 at 709.40, and gainers held a 5-to-4 edge over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

"There seems to be more institutional interest now on the buy side," said analyst Newton Zinder of E. F. Hutton in explaining why the market has held up so well in the face of a declining economy.

At the same time, he and others noted that profit taking among higher priced blue-chip issues has colored trading in the last five or so sessions.

"The market is consolidating the gains of the current rally," Zinder said.

Since last December, the Dow index has climbed more than 130 points with hardly a pause.

Investors may also be waiting to see whether interest rates have leveled for the time being, following a length—and encouraging—drop.

Texaco, the Big Board volume leader, added ¼ to 25½, including a 99,900-share block at 24¾.

Promises New Political Look

LONDON (AP) — Margaret Thatcher, the first woman to head a major British political party, is promising a "new look and new sense of direction" for her battered Conservative forces.

Observers predict she will turn the Tories to the right.

The 49-year-old tax specialist and former research chemist was elected Tuesday by the Conservative members of the House of Commons to succeed former Prime Minister Edward Heath. She defeated four men, winning 149 votes to 79 for William Whitelaw, her closest competitor.

Heath, who led the party to defeat in three of the last four general elections, withdrew after Mrs. Thatcher bested him on the first ballot last week.

If Mrs. Thatcher can turn the tide and lead the Conservatives to victory in a general election, she would become the first woman prime minister in British history.

She called in members of the shadow cabinet left her by Heath, asked them to continue to oversee their special fields of interest, and said she would "make haste slowly" to find "a blend of continuity and change."

Whitelaw, the party chairman, announced his full support for the woman who vanquished him.

Disconnection for nonpayment will be made in the mornings while reconnections will be done in the afternoons. No services will be performed at night or on the weekends. It was added, however, if someone moved into town during the weekend and had to have electricity, a $10 charge would be made to pay for the employees working overtime.

The board agreed to continue an electrical rate increase approved in January until some word is received from VEPCO on further increases to the town.

Three town vehicles were declared as surplus and will be sold by sealed bids. Bids for the vehicles, including a 1955 Chevrolet truck, a 1968

Plymouth police vehicle, and a 1969 dump truck, will be opened on Feb. 25 at 2 p.m. Bids may be sent to the Ayden Town Clerk.

A change was made in the town ordinance concerning the Library Board of Trustees. Last month the board changed the board's name from the Ayden Library Commission to Board of Trustees. The ordinance had to be changed to read "board of trustees."

North Lenoir Ousts North Pitt's Girls

SPRING HOPE — North Lenoir eliminated North Pitt from the Eastern Carolina Conference girls' tournament last night, 48-46.

In other action, Southern Nash's seventh place finishers upset second-seeded Southern Wayne, 40-39, while the junior varsity pairings, Southern Wayne ousted Conley, 60-46.

Tonight's action finds North Pitt meeting Greene Central in junior varsity play, while in the girls' pairings, Eastern Wayne takes on Ayden-Grifton in the last first round game, with Farmville Central meeting North Lenoir in the first of the semi-finals.

Semi-final play will continue at Southern Nash on Thursday, with the finals set for Friday.

North Lenoir inched out into a 13-12 lead over the former champs in the opening period. But the Pant-HERS came roaring back in the second place in the Division I standings. Rose is now 13-7 overall and 6-3 within the conference, with one game, a road affair with regular season champion Northeastern. Northern Nash, an 83-75 winner over Rocky Mount, will play host to Bertie Thursday, and should

And should Rose lose the toss, the two would be deadlocked for second, and a coin flip would be needed to determine which team gets the Saturday night bye in the first round of the league tournament.

Despite their slow start, the Rampants shot well, hitting 47.6 per cent of their shots—30 of 63. Wilson hit on just 26 of 72, a poor 36.1 per cent. Wilson controlled the boards in the early minutes of the contest, but Rose came on stronger in the late stages of the first period, and for most of the rest of the game did the better work in getting hold of the loose balls.

They also played a sticky man-to-man defense that caused Wilson a number of turnovers. Rose was plagued by their own turnovers in the early going, as Wilson rolled up an 8-0 lead in the opening minutes of play. Maurice Barnes got the opening basket on a fast break following never could regain the lead. Vickie Vail led North Lenoir with 25 points, while Mary Brown paced North Pitt with 19.

The defeat ended the year for the Pant-HERS.

Chargers Gain Playoff Berth

LITTLEFIELD—Willie Forbes hit a jump shot with seven seconds left last night to give the Ayden-Grifton Chargers a 66-64 win over C. B. Aycock and Chargers against top-seeded Conley in the first round of the district tournament.

The playoffs begin next Tuesday night at D. H. Conley. The Conley Vikings finished the regular season as champs of the Eastern Carolina for the third year in a row. The Vikings have not been able to win a tournament title in those three seasons falling each time to A-G's Chargers. Last year, the Chargers went on to win the state title.

Aycock played a good game against the Chargers despite their low finish in the standings. A-G managed to take a 13-11 lead in the first quarter but the Falcons roared back in the second scoring 20 points while A-G added another 13. The period saw the Chargers fall behind by 31-26.

The five-point lead stood through the third quarter, each team putting an additional 18 points on their sides of the board. Aycock began to falter in the fourth period, however, and when Willie Williams hit a field goal with 5:17 left, the Chargers moved back on top, 54-53.

The Chargers outhit the Falcons, 12-11 in the final five minutes but with less than a minute left, Aycock tied the game at 64-64. Forbes sank his shot with :07 left on the clock to put the Chargers up by two. Aycock called a time out and when play resumed, the Falcons attempted a shot but missed giving the Chargers the victory.

Ed Spencer and Terry Coley each scored 16 for Aycock while Jerry Price hit 15. Forbes had 20 to lead A-G, Williams scored 19 and Bennie King added 12.

V-A Nears Loop Title

Vermont-American took another step toward the Division I title in the Industrial Basketball League last night.

Vermont-American, now 11-1, cut its magic number to four with a 69-52 win over Daniel Construction. The two teams fought neck-and-neck through the first half, which ended in a 30-30 deadlock. But in the second half, Vermont-American pulled away to outhit Daniel, 39-22.

Moses Joyner led V-A with 28 points, while Eddie Harris had 16 and Charlie Jenkins had 10. Lester Wells had 28 and Danny Smith, 12, for Daniel.

Proctor & Gamble downed Grady-White in the other game, 64-54. P&G pulled out to a 33-27 lead in the first half, and outscored the Boatmen, 31-27, in the second.

Jeff Daniels and Phil Rulkman each had 11 and Ron Buie had 10 for Proctor & Gamble. Grady-White was led by F. Brown with 20 and C. Reddick with 16.

Pitt Memorial Hospital got a forfeit over Eaton in other action.

In another tournament on the same format, Mrs. White took low gross honors with a 42. Mabel Blount was second with a 44. In low net, Mrs. Bircher was first with 34, while Putt Carter had a 35.

Bear Grass In Upset Victory

WASHINGTON—Bear Grass pulled off an amazing upset of second-seeded Chocowinity last night as the Bears, who finished seventh in regular season, won by four, 40-36.

Jamesville's girls almost surprised third place Belhaven, but finally bowed, 43-38. In the other boys' game, Bath beat Pantego, 51-49.

No player on either team was in double figures but five hit eight points in the Bear Grass-Chocowinity affair.

The first round play will end tonight with Bath's girls meeting Pantego, while Aurora's boys take on Jamesville. The winners move into Thursday night semifinals against the Belhaven boys and Chocowinity girls. Bear Grass slipped in front in the opening period of the game, 9-6, but lost a point from their lead as Chocowinity took the second quarter, 6-5, to trail, 14-12, at halftime. The Bears put some room between them and their opponents in the third period, 18-10, for a 32-22 advantage. Chocowinity rallied in the last frame, outhitting Bear Grass, 14-8, to cut the margin to four where it remained until the end of the game.

The free throw line proved to be the difference in the win for the Bears. They sank eight attempts while Chocowinity failed to scratch from the stripe.

Belhaven's girls inched out into a 12-8 lead in the first period against Jamesville. The Lady Bullets came back in the second quarter to outhit Belhaven, 11-8. That cut the lead to 10-19 at halftime.

Jamesville pushed into the lead in the third period, posting a 10-7 advantage. That gave the Bears a 29-27 lead. They were unable to hold onto it, however, as Belhaven came back to outhit Jamesville, 16-9, to gain the win.

Rosie Fonville led Belhaven with 15 points, while Rudy Borden had 13. Donna Williams led Jamesville with 17.

Duke, UNC Highlight Hectic ACC Schedule

By The Associated Press
The matchup between Mitch Kupchak of North Carolina and Bob Fleischer of Duke will be a key to tonight's regionally televised Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game.

It will start at 9 p.m. for TV commitments. By that time the night's two other games involving ACC teams will be half over. They will be North Carolina State at Virginia and Clemson at Wake Forest. Conference teams were idle Tuesday.

Both Kupchak and Fleischer are averaging about 18 points and 11 rebounds a game. They are shooting 64 per cent from the floor.

And zone or no zone the two big inside men will feel primarily responsible for each other. Fleischer is 6-8 and Kupchak 6-9.

North Carolina will have the advantage of the home court.

The Duke Blue Devils came out running in a 99-96 overtime victory over the North Carolina Tar Heels in the Big Four Tournament in Greensboro, N.C., the first week in January. However, Duke has been playing deliberately lately and may do so again, since the Tar Heels are quicker at several positions.

The Big Four loss snapped an eight-game winning streak for North Carolina in the series with Duke.

A 30-foot jumper by Walter Davis of North Carolina sent last year's game with Duke at Chapel Hill into overtime. Then North Carolina won 96-92. The Tar Heels had come back to tie after trailing by eight points with 17 seconds left.

An improving Virginia lost by only 86-79 at home to third-ranked Maryland last week, and should give fifth-ranked N.C. State a game. The Cavaliers Wally Walker has begun to play much better after a disappointing first half of the season. And 6-9 freshman Marc Iavaroni could do damage inside.

N.C. State coach Norm Sloan was pleased with the play of freshman guards Craig Davis and Bobo Jackson and sophomore center Bill Lake in last weekend's victories in the North-South Doubleheaders in Charlotte, N.C. Sloan said the victories over Georgia Tech and Furman gave him a chance to look at these three players and they responded with fine basketball. "They'll all see more playing time as we go down the stretch."

Wake Forest, which is home to Clemson, has won its only two ACC victories at home. It has lost eight league games on the road. And the Clemson Tigers have not been a good road team, having won only two ACC away games in almost five seasons.

The Wake Forest Deacons have lost seven of their last nine games. They have changed starting lineups in five consecutive games. The backcourt is stable, with high-scoring Skip Brown and Jerry Schellenberg. But the front court has been in constant flux.

Seven-foot-two Tree Rollins scored 20 points and grabbed 19 rebounds in leading Clemson to an 80-77 home victory over Wake Forest last month. Brown had 24 points and eight assists for Wake Forest.

Clemson Under Recruiting Probe

BALTIMORE (AP) — Clemson University, whose basketball team for the first time in its history is nationally ranked, is reportedly being investigated for possible illegal recruiting tactics in connection with freshman star Skip Wise and other players, the Baltimore Sun said Wednesday.

The newspaper quoted sources close to Dunbar Prep School, where Wise gained prep fame, as saying a National Collegiate Athletic Association official visited there last week and interrogated officials and students for details surrounding Wise's recruitment by Clemson.

According to the paper's sources, the NCAA is investigating the possibility that Clemson helped Wise and four other Clemson players obtain cars. The other players allegedly involved in the probe are freshmen Stan Rome and Colon Abraham, sophomore star Wayne Rollins and senior Jo Jo Bethea, a junior college product from Anderson Junior College in South Carolina.

Wise has a 1974 Cougar that he received in May of last year. His father, however, heatedly denied that Clemson had anything to do with the car.

"It was a high school graduation gift from me," said Alan Wise. "I promised Skip that if he continued to play basketball and went to college, I would buy him a car."

"The problem is, the NCAA doesn't know that Skip Wise has a father who is capable of buying him a car," the elder Wise continued. "They (NCAA) believe that just because Skip comes from the inner city, he is too poor to have a car."

The father said he "works two jobs," which enabled him to purchase the car.

According to the Sun, the NCAA official who visited Dunbar also reportedly made eight or nine trips to Clemson to question Wise before being barred from the campus by Clemson University officials.

The newspaper said the NCAA told it Tuesday that it "can't confirm or deny that we are investigating any school or player because of the possible damage it would cause."

The Sun said it had been unable for the last two days to reach Wise, who is the team's leading scorer and is regarded as one of the top freshman players in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The newspaper said sources close to Wise have quoted him as saying there is absolutely nothing to the allegations, and that he is completely confident that nothing will come of the investigation.

Find Way For Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Marquette Warriors were in foul trouble, but you couldn't tell the difference. As usual, they found a way to beat you. Actually, Al McGuire found the way.

"When Bo Ellis got his third foul, we had problems, so we went to a zone," said the Marquette coach. "Western Carolina is a good club, but they lack perimeter shooting. When we went to the zone, they couldn't handle it."

The result was a 63-53 victory for the nation's ninth-ranked team Tuesday night.

"We don't have a pure shooter on the team," admitted Western Carolina Coach Fred Conley, bowing to McGuire's strategy. "That's our problem. We have to go inside to our big man (Kirby Thurston). That's our offense."

Because of the foul trouble, Ellis was not as dynamic as usual. But Jerry Homan made up for that with 18 rebounds for the Warriors.

Wildcats Top Keydets, 94-93

By The Associated Press
As far as Virginia Military's young but perhaps overzealous Keydets are concerned, Davidson's Wildcats couldn't have picked a worse time to discover how to win basketball games on the road.

The Keydets, apparently headed for their best season in history, seemed to have Davidson on the ropes several times Tuesday night but let the Wildcats get off the hook and escape with a double overtime 94-93 Southern Conference victory.

It was Davidson's first triumph in 11 road games this season and temporarily stalled VMI's bid for a home-court berth in the March 1 opening round of the league's championship tournament. It also kept Davidson's hopes alive for playing at home.

The Keydets haven't won 12 games in a season since 1964 and hadn't beaten Davidson in the same period of time, but they appeared to have things well in hand with a 14-point lead with 13 minutes left and an 11-point margin with less than six minutes remaining.

But the veteran Wildcats pecked away at the VMI lead and sent the game into overtime when All-Southern Greg Dunn hit two pressure free throws with two seconds left after being fouled on a rebound attempt after a missed Keydet free throw.

It was VMI which sent the game into a second overtime, and the Keydets three times built up three-point leads, the last time with less than a minute left.

But Sheldon Parker's only basket of the game, a layup, pulled the Wildcats to within a point and Dunn—who had six points in the second extra period—hit a layup with 23 seconds left to win it.

The overeager Keydets, who had kept themselves in trouble with needless fouls, blew their chance at a victory on an offensive foul with four seconds remaining.

Tom Verlin, one of three Davidson players who fouled out in the second extra period, had a game-high 29 points and Dunn added 20 for the Wildcats. John Krovic led VMI with 28 and Will Bynum had 21.

The victory boosted Davidson to 3-5 in league play and 6-15 over-all. VMI, still third in the conference at 6-4, dropped to 11-9 over-all but has four regular season starts and at least one tourney scrap in which to win 13 games for the first time in history.

It was the only game Tuesday night involving conference teams, and the only one on tonight's schedule has William and Mary's Indians, 12-8, at Virginia Tech to meet the Gobblers, 14-7 and winners of 54 in a row at home against state rivals.

Robersonville Is Eliminated

PINETOPS — Robersonville's offense could not generate, any punch last night and the Eagles closed their season on a losing note as South Edgecombe bumped the Eagles, 60-47, in the Eastern Plains Conference tournament.

South Edgecombe will advance in the tournament to meet North Edgecombe, which beat North Johnston last night, 69-60, on Thursday.

South Edgecombe took the opening lead as Robersonville fell behind by five, 15-10. South Edgecombe opened up some distance in the second period outthumping the Eagles 14-6.

Robersonville put through only eight points in the third period while allowing South Edgecombe to score 21 and run the lead out to 40-24. Robersonville tried to make a game of it in the final frame pumping in 23 points to SE's 10 but the Eagles ran out of time and season.

The loss ended the '74-'75 campaign for Robersonville. Jimmy Stalls and Carl Whitley each scored 10 to lead the Eagles' scoring while Farmer had 17 and Cotten 15 for South Edgecombe.

In the other games last night, Elm City crushed Lee Woodard, 112-49; and Saratoga upset West Edgecombe, 57-53.

The tournament semi-finals will be held tonight and tomorrow night at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson, with the finals Friday night.

Williamston Is Defeated

WILLIAMSTON—Ahoskie High School ended any hopes Williamston had of a district berth last night with a 71-56 victory over the Tigers.

The loss ended the season for Williamston. Edenton moved into the semi-finals against Ahoskie, after downing Tarboro. In the girls' bracket, the semifinalists were decided when Plymouth beat Rocky Mount.

Tonight, Washington takes on Roanoke Rapids in the boys' bracket, while Williamston meets Northern Nash in the girls' game. Thursday semifinals have Edenton and Ahoskie meeting in a boys' game, while Plymouth and Bertie collide in a girls' game. The finals are set for Friday night.

Ahoskie jumped away to an early lead, building up a 20-12 lead by the end of the first period. Williamston put on a rally in the second quarter, outthumping the Indians, 18-12, to cut the lead to 32-30 at halftime.

But Ahoskie pulled away again in the third period, dumping in 18 while limiting the Tigers to only five. That made it 50-35 as the last period got underway. Both teams pushed through 21 in the final frame.

Bernell Morris led Ahoskie with 24, while Clark hit 16, and Vinson and Newsome each had 12. JoJo Purvis had 24 for Williamston.

Jackson Cautions Against Ambiguity In SALT Parleys

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson cautioned U.S. negotiators today to "leave no room for ambiguities" in any new strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union.

Jackson, chairman of the Senate Armed Services subcommittee on arms control and a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, called for lower limits than the 2,400 nuclear warhead delivery vehicles agreed to at Vladivostok in November.

But he agreed with Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger that despite "overkill" on both sides, the extent of the missile race is up to the Russians.

Schlesinger said Tuesday in his annual defense report to Congress that a new generation of Russian missiles "could come to jeopardize the survival of our fixed base (Minuteman) ICBM silos" by the early 1980s.

Schlesinger recommended the United States proceed with improvements begun last year on U.S. ICBM forces.

He urged purchase of another

50 Minuteman III missiles "to preserve the option to deploy more" than the currently planned 550 multiple warhead weapons, and completion of engineering for a more powerful multiple warhead and guidance system refinements.

Speaking of the Russians, Schlesinger said "they currently have the initiative and it is up to them to decide how much additional effort the two sides should put into these programs."

Jackson agreed that "they have the initiative" but he said they also have an incentive for arms control in their desire for "billions of dollars in commercial credits" from the United States.

Jackson's subcommittee began a closed-door hearing Tuesday on what he said is a question whether the Soviet Union is "in full compliance with the letter and the spirit of the 1972 SALT I agreements."

Jackson said published reports allege Soviet construction of new missile silos, enlargement of existing silos, and use of concealment inconsistent with SALT agreements not to interfere with "national technical means" of verification.

Prisons In Sweden Are Near Empty

By DICK SODERLUND
KUMLA, Sweden (AP) — The new Swedish prison system, often described abroad as a crook's "luxury pension" while assailed by inmates for inhumane concrete bunkers, is beset by a new problem — a steadily dwindling number of inmates that is forcing closing of cell blocks and creating employment difficulties for guards.

Late in 1974 this trend even resulted in the closing down for some time of the whole prison in a medium sized city. In another prison Sweden's best-guarded prisoner, a German narcotics kingpin, got a whole empty cell block meant for 20 inmates as his own private "suite."

The Swedish Board of Correction, which runs both maximum security concrete forts like the large central prison at mid-Sweden Kumla as well as some of the world's most advanced experiments in open correction, admits to serious headaches with reassigning some staff. Following a legislative reform last July even fewer people are put before courts and committed to prison.

Although the crime rate is tending to rise in most categories, the number of inmates in Swedish prisons has been on the decline, at a recently accelerating rate, for about 25 years. Prisoners currently average 3,500 or slightly fewer at a time, a very low figure by international comparison for a country of more than eight million people.

Of the 9,963 persons sentenced to imprisonment in 1973, more than 35 per cent were convicted of drunken driving, 22 per cent of larceny, 12 per cent of violent crimes. Only about 3 per cent were convicted of drug offenses, although the number of drug addicts among prison inmates sometimes runs around 20 per cent.

Of newcomers to prison close to 70 per cent were sentenced to less than four months imprisonment and only 3 per cent to more than one year.

Only 310 youths were committed to youth prison, 187 of them first offenders. The daily average of youths in prison during the year was 359, according to statistics released by the board.

On the other hand close to 20,000 persons — conditionally sentenced, parolees and youthful offenders — are on the outside under control of the correction board. This is a trend that will be even further marked in the future, according to prison board director-general Bo Martinsson.

The large central prisons are being reserved almost exclusively for hard-core habitual criminals while practically all first offenders and lesser law-breakers will receive more or less open correctional treatment. There are, however, no special prison institutions for first-timers. The relatively insignificant number of female criminals have their own prison.

The Board of Correction, with an annual budget of around 500 million kronor ($110 million) and a regular staff of about 5,000, currently runs close to 70 institutions. They are with few exceptions small local units, housing 30-50 inmates.

There are only a small number of large central prisons. The largest by far is the top modern maximum security Kumla prison in Central Sweden with room for close to 400 inmates — but with actually only about one third of that number at present.

No more such widely debated "concrete fortresses," surrounded by 23-foot high grey walls, are going to be built.

"Retaliation" is a banished dirty word in the Swedish prison system which has brought such innovations to correction as villas, holiday camps and market wages for felonous convicts, including lifers such as Sweden's most notorious modern traitor ex-Col. Stig Wennerstrom who was released in the summer of 1974 after spending two years in a prison board villa in nearly complete freedom.

CINCINNATI (UPI) — An Ohio firm has found another use for discarded automobile tires. Environmental Products Corp. of Cincinnati turns the tires into shredded rubber and sells the output to gardeners for use as plant mulch.

Encyclopedia Sees History Through Kremlin Eyes

By CHARLES P. WALLACE
MOSCOW (UPI) — Stalin, Khrushchev and Mao Tse-tung have lost their once-glorious place in Soviet annals, but op art and the Wright brothers found a niche.

For the last three years, Kremlin watchers have been carefully following the progress of history, Soviet style, as it unfolds alphabetically in the new edition of the Great Soviet Encyclopedia.

The massive work, the most definitive reference available in the Soviet Union, is undergoing its first updating since the Stalinist era of the 1950s.

In Russian practice, the encyclopedia is being issued volume by volume. It has reached the letter "O", the 18th of an anticipated 30 volumes.

As might be expected the latest edition is less heavy-handed than the encyclopedia that appeared at the height of the Cold War.

Experts agree that many entries, particularly on scientific subjects, have been recast to replace ideology with objective fact. The encyclopedia also shows more tolerance for the arts than before.

But it is the retelling of history that fascinates foreign encyclopedia readers. It is evident that Soviet historians have been hard at work reshaping history as it is now perceived by the Kremlin.

Former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, ousted in 1964, has been omitted from key sections dealing with prominent commissars in World War II and from a list of those buried in Moscow's Novodevichy cemetery.

The full story about Khrushchev and the Kremlin view of him will not be known for some time. His name begins with an "X" in Russian, which comes near the end of the alphabet.

The same is true of the exact status of dictator Josef V. Stalin, who died in 1953. The previous edition of the encyclopedia began appearing before Stalin died but finished after his death. The early volumes lionize him, the later ones vilify his name.

The editors of the latest edition have done their utmost to make Stalin, like Khrushchev, an unperson. So far, he is scarcely mentioned.

In a section about World War II, Stalin is sharply criticized for Soviet lack of preparedness for the 1941 German invasion.

Laurenti P. Beria, the detested chief of Stalin's secret police, has disappeared entirely. After his execution in 1953, the editors sent a note to subscribers advising them to snip out Beria's entry. It has remained out.

Mao Tse-tung, once a favorite of the Soviet leadership, has undergone a drastic overhaul in the latest edition, reflecting the chill in relations between China and the Soviet Union.

The early edition called Mao an "outstanding Chinese political and state figure, prominent Marxist theoretician, experienced leader and author of outstanding philosophical works." Now the aging Chinese Leader has become a "petit-bourgeois nationalistic and left sectarian." Soviet historians also now have discovered that Mao was not merely from a peasant family, as previously reported, but from "a rich peasant family."

The new edition does go to some lengths to correct history in relatively non-ideological areas.

The previous edition listed

A.T. Mozhaitsky, a Russian, as "designer of the world's first airplane." The current edition confesses that Mozhaitsky's 19th Century craft crashed on take-off and credits the Wright brothers with the first successful air flight.

The arts, particularly literature, get a more sympathetic airing in the current edition than in the Stalinist edition.

Ivan A. Bunin, who left Russia after the 1917 revolution and in 1933 won a Nobel prize for literature, was denounced in the early edition as a "cosmopolitan and a traitor who glorified the intervention of the Western poets against the Bolsheviks."

He now has been rehabilitated as a writer whose work "is highly appreciated and thoroughly studied in the USSR."

But exiled author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn and the controversial late novelist Boris Pusternak are missing from the entry about Nobel Prizes.

Abstract and op art remain outside the bounds of acceptable "socialist realism," but the encyclopedia treats them matter-of-factly without railing against their alleged capitalistic decadence.

Sections about the United States are plentiful and show a new line.

Richard M. Nixon and John F. Kennedy are treated charitably. Watergate is mentioned only in passing in the Nixon biography and the Cuban missile crisis is ignored in references to Kennedy.

There are three pages of entries about Washington, including the state, city, the president and the American Negro activist, Booker T.

American astronauts are given warm treatment throughout, and the section about New York is objective and detailed down to the Brooklyn Bridge.

A Few School Bus Accidents Still Too Many

By EDWARD S. LECHTIZIN
DETROIT (UPI) — School bus accidents get a great deal of attention because children are involved, yet statistics show a school bus may be one of the safest places on the road.

In 1972, there were 45,000 accidents involving school buses, compared to 24,500,000 involving cars. There were 50 fatalities aboard school buses, compared to 35,100 deaths in car accidents. But that was 50 deaths too many and auto officials are striving to deal with one major cause—the school bus driver.

Thomas R. Nesbitt, a project engineer in Driver Education at General Motors' Proving Ground, has designed an advanced driver education program for school bus drivers. He said it grew out of similar courses for auto drivers and requests from agencies responsible for school bus safety.

The first step was to find the chief causes of school bus accidents by analyzing information from police accident statistics from various states, research organizations and federally funded research studies.

What Nesbitt found was that school bus driver error was the prevalent factor and that in 59 per cent of violation accidents, the bus driver was ticketed.

"In 10 of the 23 general accident reports, a specific bus driver error, such as inattention at an intersection (where half of the accidents occurred), improper off-road recovery, or poor judgment of bus size was determined," he said.

Maneuvering skills were shown to be important by the number of reported errors relating specifically to the ability to control or maneuver the school bus. Nesbitt said Missouri statistics indicated 30 per cent of the nonvehicle collisions of school buses were related to loss of control or avoiding another vehicle, and 15 per cent to running off the road.

"Mechanical malfunctions, which were not necessarily contributing factors, were reported only 5 per cent of the time," he said. "However, when a mechanical malfunction did occur, improper driver response was shown as a contributing factor from the general accident studies."

GM's analysis showed that the four broad areas of bus driver error that had the highest probability of injury for children were improper negotiation of intersections, inability to control the school bus in a situation demanding maneuvering, inadequate protection of passengers approaching or leaving the bus and inadequate response to mechanically caused emergency situations.

From this study, Nesbitt developed the advanced driver education program which included classroom presentations and behind-the-wheel experience on a driving range. There are five driver range exercises.

Nesbitt presented his new program at the Central Minnesota Traffic Safety Center in St. Cloud, Minn., last month. About 100 public school transportation supervisors were on hand for the demonstration.

Some were given the behind-the-wheel experience GM hopes will pave the way for further courses for their drivers. This included:

—Serpentine Course: This teaches the use of the controls, hand positions, timing of steering, and increases the driver's ability to perceive the spatial relationship of the bus to fixed objects.

—Evasive Exercise: One of the major deficiencies found in the field is lack of awareness of the evasive capability of the bus, Nesbitt said. Many drivers feel the brake is the only available emergency control.

—Skid Control Exercise: The student is taught the proper response to a skid and how to prevent second and third skids.

—Off-Road Recovery: Drivers learn how to return to the roadway without drastically slowing down.

—Straight-line Braking: The driver-student learns how to use the stopping space available without throwing passengers from their seats, and to avoid wheel lock-up to retain the ability to maneuver around an object if necessary.

U.S. Aluminum Output Rising

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The value of shipments of U.S. aluminum, plate and foil producing plants totaled $2.7 billion in 1972, up 65 per cent from the 1967 figure, according to a Commerce Department report. Employment within the industry jumped six per cent in the five years, to 31,200 from 29,400 workers.

The flower columbine is so called because it resembles a group of five perching doves and the latin for dove is Columbus.

Bigger Share Goes To Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The magazine Finance Facts says taxes now take about 15 per cent of personal income, a rise of two per cent from six years ago. The publication of the National Consumer Finance Association also says 16 per cent of the income goes for food, opposed to 17 per cent in 1967; five per cent for savings, against six per cent earlier; and 11 per cent for transportation goods and services, up from 10 per cent in 1967.

His Ambition Is To Be King Of Tiny Timor

By KATE WEBB
DILI, Timor (UPI) — Tomas Maria Ferriera Dias Ximenes took a morning off from his post office job recently in Portugal's smallest remaining colony to officially register his right to be king.

The Portuguese took his argument "under consideration." Authorities told him to his great disappointment his "Monarchist party" also must register.

Ximenes, 33, contends that when Portugal colonized Timor in the 15th Century his ancestors were among 16 warring kings who agreed to stop fighting and split annual taxes in an oath sealed with droughts of wine and blood.

Now, he argues, it's simply a matter of handing power back to the rightful rulers of Timor, which has almost no economic resources. Only 3 per cent of the population of 600,000 can read or write.

"I am quite serious," Ximenes told UPI in an interview by oil lamp in his grass hut on a muddy trail on the outskirts of Dili, the colony's only sizeable town. "Of course I'm serious. You will see. Those others are just opportunists."

His competitors to power include the Apodeti party, advocating union with Indonesia which governs half of Timor island; the Union Democrats, a group of rightist Timorese government officials who want continued union with Portugal; and Fretelin, the left-leaning party that advocates complete independence.

Ximenes has not given up. "The Portuguese were very fair," he said. "They said to call the other kings down from the mountains and show we have some following. Then we can register, and we have to make up a program. But we don't have the money to print it."

"The reason we didn't try before was that the Apodeti said they would restore us as kings, and we joined them. But then I realized that the sultans in Indonesia do not rule the country, so it was probably a false promise."

On the porch of a tidy cement-block government housing unit in town, pro-Portuguese Union Democrat officials, including a major and officers from the dockside customs office, heatedly urged that the United Nations and the U.S. government end what they termed "blatant Indonesian interference" in Timor's internal affairs.

"They broadcast across the border, accusing us of being neo-colonialists, and the Pretelin of being Communists," Major Augusto Cesar Da Costa Mossino said. "That's interference. Doesn't the world care?"

Asked whether uniting with neighboring Indonesia would not be an easier route for the impoverished island, the major replied: "We are Timoreans. We speak Portuguese. This is our country. We realize we are small. We realize that to survive we'll have to cooperate and align our foreign policy with Indonesia and Australia. They have nothing to worry about. Why don't they leave us alone?"

Leftist Independent Party officials call the Union Democrats neo-colonialists, but acknowledge that talk of uniting the two parties has increased since Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik said last November that Indonesia would have to "take action" if the security of the region were threatened.

"Our fear is the same," a Fretelin school teacher said. "Although the Portuguese have promised to stay and help us as long as we need them, Indonesia thinks we are going to go Communist and is afraid our independence will spark secession movements in their own islands. If Indonesia invades, what can Portugal do?"

"Our survival depends on the Portuguese, yet the Portuguese have been talking with the Australians and Indonesians at the United Nations. Diplomatic relations are about to be established between Portugal and Indonesia. We don't want to become another Sikkim. We don't understand why the United Nations hasn't sent observers. The United Nations will be the only ones to help us."

Apodeti party officials insist the only way to settle Timor's problem of self determination is by referendum.

Productivity, Spending Cited

NEW YORK (UPI) — A poll of 2,400 young people from the 50 states made by Junior Achievement Inc. shows they believe increases in productivity and consumer spending are keys to giving the economy a boost and improving living standards. Also, two of every three of the youngsters, whose views were sought at the National Achievers Conference at Bloomington, Ind., feel that big business is making a "reasonable" return on investment.

How To Restore Old Buildings

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the man with lots of spare time, a new book called "How to Rehabilitate Abandoned Buildings" gives the nonprofessional al the information he needs in acquiring an abandoned house, garage or other type of building and getting it back into productive shape. The book says some "dead" buildings are available for as little as a $1 payment.

Where Are The Bolshevik Power Boys These Days?

By GERARD LOUGHRAN
MOSCOW (UPI) — Whatever became of Georgi Malenkov, successor to Stalin? Where now is Nikolai Bulganin, straight man to Nikita Khrushchev's top banana in the "B and K" roadshows of the late 1950s? Is Vyacheslav Molotov still around to growl "Nyet"? What happened to Lazar Kaganovich? Anastas Mikoyan?

According to the latest information available here, they are all alive and mostly well and living in the Soviet Union.

In their 80s or nearing them, the five are among the few remaining members of the Bolshevik Old Guard, survivors of the survivors.

They came unscathed, though in some cases only just, through the last days of czarism, two world wars, the revolution, the civil war, the purges of the 20s, 30s and 40s and Stalin's murderous late-life paranoia.

Most of their revolutionary comrades are long dead, many of a bullet in the brain, as Molotov and Kaganovich particularly have reason to know. These two have written their memoirs. There is no sign of their being published.

All five at one time stood at the pinnacle of power atop the Lenin Mausoleum, members of the tough, tightly knit group of hard-eyed men who rule the Soviet Union. All but Mikoyan left office in disgrace, demoted to jobs of —for them — humiliating triviality, "unpersons" who today are seldom mentioned in the Soviet press and live anonymously on their pensions.

Mikoyan is entering his 80th year. His ability always to back the right horse ensured him an honored old age.

Most westerners remember him as the Groucho Marx of the Marxist system with rampant moustache and hooked nose, but there has not been much to laugh about in his life.

"Stalin held us in his hand," he once said. "Only one escape was left to us — suicide. At the end of Stalin's life, I was about to be executed."

This shrewd Armenian was at Khrushchev's side when the Soviet leader survived a power play in 1957. When Khrushchev fell in 1964, Mikoyan stayed.

Today he appears at the occasional Kremlin reception, an object of reverent awe. He still has a government office and reportedly puts in a few hours a day advising on the economy.

Malenkov, youngest of the Old Guard at 73, was Stalin's heir, which was natural considering he had been his private secretary, alter ego, hatchet man and drinking partner. But the wily Khrushchev outmaneuvered him. When Malenkov led the famed "antiparty group" in counterattack, he quickly found himself director of a hydroelectric plant in Ust-Kamenogorsk on the Chinese border, a cruelly appropriate snub for he was by profession an engineer.

He retired in 1968 and now is seen occasionally in Moscow, where he lives in an apartment on his "unpersons" pension of $390 a month.

Malenkov was stripped of his party membership — which has a significant effect on pension rights — as were Molotov, Kaganovich and Bulganin, his partners in the "coup" attempts.

It could be, however, that Molotov, at 84 the oldest of the Old Guard and conceivably the toughest of them all, is edging back into favor, since he was mentioned favorably recently in an esoteric party publication.

Molotov represented Russia to the outside world for 30 years and John Foster Dulles once described him as "the ablest foreign minister of our time."

Khrushchev, perhaps in sardonic reference to his diplomatic skills, banished Molotov to the post of ambassador to Mongolia. Then he spent a year occupying the Soviet seat at the international Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna.

But it all ended one gray day in 1961 when the little man with the toothbrush moustache, pince-nez and mirthless smile took a train back to Moscow and entered retirement with the wife Stalin once exiled to Siberia. Now gray and fragile and said to be suffering from hypertension, he occupies the apartment one street away from the Kremlin wall where he has lived since anybody could remember.

Khrushchev apparently liked Bulganin and let him dawdle on as premier for a year after the "coup" bid, then sent him packing to the Caucasus to be chairman of a local economic council.

But the courtly Bulganin of the leonine white hair and goatee beard — a secret policeman in early Bolshevik days — lasted only a year. He retired in 1959 to a government-furnished dacha near Moscow and the usual pension.

He was seen chatting happily with Khrushchev at a Kremlin New Year party in 1964, but then dropped out of sight.

Western Kremlin-watchers believe he is still alive, now 80, for otherwise some reference, however oblique, would have been made to his death.

Kaganovich was known as "the iron commissar," a rough-house Jewish peasant who rose to become Stalin's political muscleman, purge-enforcer and Mr. Fix-it. Even the execution of two of his brothers during the repression of the 30s failed to shift his loyalties.

Khrushchev bounced Kaganovich from first deputy premier to manager of a cement factory in the Ural mountains. Like Bulganin, he retired shortly afterward to a government apartment overlooking the Moscow river and the Gorky amusement park.

Apparently he still lives there, now 81 and unrepentant. Shortly after his fall, a UPI correspondent met him on the street and questioned him.

"Look here," said Kaganovich coldly. "I am a Communist and if you think I'm going to give you anything for your bourgeois paper, you're mistaken."

So saying, he walked off to his place in history.

BANK NOTES

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States has 14,200 banks, 5,448 savings and loan institutions, more than 23,000 credit unions and 500 mutual savings banks, according to the American Bankers Association. The banks employ more than one million persons, with more than two of every three a woman.

TRUCK TAXES

The California Wine Institute reports that its latest survey shows the woman of the house now selects wines to be served. In a similar survey, seven years ago, women made the choice only 41 per cent of the time.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Trucking industry vehicles paid more than $6 billion in federal and state highway taxes last year, according to Standard-Thomson Corp. The figure is about 10 times the amount paid by trucks in 1945.

Cher Begins On Promising Note

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Cher (what is her last name?) returns to CBS-TV tonight in a special which sets the stage for the new music-variety series she'll begin for the same network next Sunday.

Tonight's effort — guest-starring Elton John, Bette Midler and Flip Wilson — was to have aired last Sunday. It was rescheduled when ABC decided to complete Sunday by rerunning the movie biggie, "Airport."

CBS is nuts. It should realize there is no "Airport" buff who doesn't already know how the movie came out — John Wayne limped away from the plane whistling a song called "The High and the Mighty."

Ah, well. Tonight's special — Cher's first since she and Sonny Bono split and lost their hit CBS series last spring — is a fairly good solo start for the lady, particularly in musical parts of the show.

And unlike ex-husband Sonny, who started his flop ABC variety series last September with a few gags about the bachelor life, Cher makes no opening remarks alluding to her new single status.

"For those of you who haven't noticed, I've been gone," she simply says. "For those of you who have, I'm back."

Cher's return to music matters is superb, whether she's working alone, with Miss Midler or Elton John, or the two ladies with John, whose flashy stage threads would make a peacock moult with envy.

In comic matters, she's quite nifty in a wild skit about a TV pitchwoman for "Brick-O-Matic," a device used to smash oranges, "foreign and domestic watches" and even an autographed photo of Vic Damone.

On the debit side, she and Wilson (yes, he plays Geraldine again) flop in a high school reunion sketch. There's another thud as Cher & Co. gag it up as aged stars in a performers' retirement home.

And a tasteless bawdy-house setting bloody near ruins an otherwise sprightly segment featuring Cher and Miss Midler in a knockout medley of duets and a sly bit of scat-singing.

Now, if her coming series continues the musical excellence of tonight's show and if the comedy writing greatly improves, Cher will have the same kind of hit series she had when she and Sonny were together.

If not, well, CBS might try running "Airport" on Sunday night.

Governor's Wife Back In College

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Jean Lucey, wife of Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, is back at college studying journalism but says, "I really don't want any publicity on it."

"The kids don't know who I am," she says. "I'm paying full tuition and I'm not getting any special treatment. I'm not an employee of the state. I really feel strongly about my privacy."

Mrs. Lucey is taking classes in journalism and art history at the University of Wisconsin here. Classified now as a junior, she first attended college at the university's Milwaukee branch.

The chief purpose of the 13th amendment to the Constitution of the U.S. was to abolish slavery. It became a law Dec. 18, 1965.

Isabel Peron Goes Far South

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Isabel Peron has traveled to the world's southernmost city, Ushuaia, in her fourth change of location in little more than a month during Argentina's summer.

In a picturesque mountain area on the Beagle Canal, Ushuaia is at the tip of Argentina's continental territory about 1,600 miles south of Buenos Aires.

With Mrs. Peron were her private secretary and social welfare minister, Jose Lopez Rega, other officials, and friends.

Mrs. Peron, 44, left for Ushuaia on Tuesday from a vacation hotel in the Andean mountain city of Bariloche, to which she had flown from Buenos Aires last Friday. In January she spent three weeks at a work-vacation retreat in a tourist complex near Mar Del Plata, 300 miles south of Buenos Aires on the sea.

D.H. Conley HIGHLIGHTS

The normally fast pace of life at Conley was quickened even further this week by a variety of events. On Tuesday, Vikings rallied together in spirit against the North Pitt Panthers at a pep rally. The pep rally was highlighted by skits, chants and a special Spirit Ladder. The ladder was climbed by Clennel Streeter, a star basketball player, and Mrs. Helen McClanahan, a teacher at Conley. They were helped up the ladder by the volume of the students' voices.

The first one to reach the top got it—a whipped cream pie in the face. Of course, we couldn't do that to one of our best players, but Mrs. McClanahan was another matter. The seniors remembered the composition assigned in English by Mrs. Mac, and helped her to get her just reward. It made our day! Also the Drum and Bugle Corps provided musical entertainment. Guys, you were great! Many thanks go to all the students and faculty who helped make the pep rally a success.

IPS Students-of-the-Week are Angelo House, second period; Charles Hanson, fourth period; and Louie Dixon, fifth period. The over-all best student is Walter Clark.

Currently organized by Mr. Ron Braxton, an IPS teacher at Conley, is the Science Honor Seminars. These seminars are for the IPS students who have the highest grade averages and keen interests in science. Students enrolled in these seminars are Jimmy Hines (chairman), Bertha Carter, Walter Clark, Wayne Coward, Jimmy Dixon, Louie Dixon, Jeffery Haddock, Darlene Hines, Robby Hudson, Tim McClanahan, and Donald Ribeiro. These students will visit the science departments of various colleges and different industries located in the area. They will study and discuss current scientific issues, also.

The JROTC at Conley is on the move as usual. The Girls' and Boys' Drill Teams and the Drum and Bugle Corps performed at the A.G. Cox Elementary School on Tuesday. They plan to travel to Chicod and G.R. Whitfield Elementary Schools soon.

The Annual Military Ball is coming up on February 15. It's going to be held at the American Legion Building in Greenville this year. The Dave Bart Five will perform. Planning of the decorations and menu have already begun. This year the JROTC will see a fine ball.

The Cadets of the Month have been chosen. They are Cheryl Patrick, MT I; Kenneth Avery, MT II; and Mike Clendenen, MT III. Frank Nelson has been promoted to the rank of Second Lieutenant, also.

Several cadets have received the National Honor Society Ribbon. They are Kenneth Avery, Mark Berg, Bill Byrd, Mike Clendenen, Gregory Daniels, Trent Knight, and Robert Padgett. Congratulations to these outstanding students.

On February 27, at the Kinston National Guard Armory, a Health Career Day will be held. All seniors interested in going should sign up with their counselor. Every medical field will be represented here.

Felton Bess has been nominated for the Most Valuable Student Award given by the Elks. Many congratulations are in order for that nomination.

Mr. Richard Williams is currently a student intern in the guidance department at Conley. Mr. Williams attends East Carolina University.

Excitement abounded Wednesday morning as students and wrestlers prepared for the Conference Wrestling Tournament held at Conley. The tourney began at 12:00 with the final matches starting at 8:00 p.m. Farmville took first-place honors, but the Conley Vikings ran a close second.

What a week! See you next time for more D.H. Conley highlights!

LICENSES THAT ARE ALSO NEEDED — Sarah Connor, a city employee, holds bicycle license and a dog tag that are required by city ordinance. Both tags are $1 and can be purchased at the city hall. Dog tags can also be purchased at the city animal shelter. Bicycle tags expire on February 15 along with regular auto tags, and your bike will require a new tag for 1975. ## Funeral Home's Music Stolen

CHARLOTTE (AP)—There will be no soothing organ music for the time being during funerals in the chapel of the mausoleum at the Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Someone has stolen the music system and the tapes which played funeral music.

It will take two months to replace the system, valued at $715.

Choir Going To Festival

The Concert Choir of East Carolina University will be among ten church ensembles from eight North Carolina campuses participating in the fourth annual N.C. Collegiate Choral Festival Friday and Saturday at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Dr. Charles W. Moore, chairman of vocal music in the ECU School of Music and Concert Choir director, said the ECU chorus will perform five old American songs arranged by Aaron Copland at 2:30 Friday afternoon.

On Friday evening, the combined 435 singers of all the participating choruses will perform choral excerpts from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" with the N.C. Symphony, conducted by John Gosling. This performance is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. in the Memorial Auditorium in Chapel Hill.

Other participating festival choruses include choirs from Appalachian, Western Carolina and Duke Universities, UNC-Greensboro, UNC-Chapel Hill, Gardner-Webb College and Mars Hill College.

Opening Lead: Queen of ♠.

The same hand, even in the same denomination, might have to be played in different ways, depending on the level of the contract. As an example, consider this hand, which played a critical role in deciding a team championship at a recent Midwest tournament.

At both tables, the final contract was six spades, reached on similar auctions. Once a spade fit was confirmed, both players showed their extra values, then South checked on aces before leaping to slam. At both tables, the opening lead was the queen of diamonds. At one table, declarer won with dummy's ace, crossed to the ace of spades and ruffed a diamond. He returned to his hand with another high trump, and was unpleasantly surprised when West showed out, which meant that he had a certain trump loser. South did the best he could by ruffing another diamond and taking the club finesse, but that lost for down one.

Declarer's line of play was correct if he was playing seven spades, for then he would need a 3-2 trump break to make the hand. The only distribution that could endanger six spades was a bad trump break, and at the other table the declarer protected himself against that possibility.

There, declarer won the opening diamond lead and immediately ducked a round of trumps. East won the seven and took his best shot by shifting to a low club. Declarer rose with the ace, ruffed a diamond, returned to his hand with a trump and ruffed another diamond. All that declarer had to do then was to cross back to his hand with the king of hearts, draw the outstanding trumps and claim the rest of the tricks with dummy's good hearts. This was simply a case of foresight well rewarded.
