

Farm Price Decline Paces Dip In Wholesale Prices

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by a big decline in prices of farm products, wholesale prices fell three-tenths of one per cent in January, the Labor Department reported today.

The report indicated further relief for Americans from the high inflationary trends of the past two years, since declines in wholesale prices generally result in falling consumer prices later on.

In a separate report Thursday, the Federal Reserve Board said the nation's factories, mines and utilities reduced their output by 3.6 per cent last month, the worst such showing since the Depression Era.

The Federal Reserve's industrial-output statistics showed that the downturn extended across the country, with declines posted in autos, consumer goods, business equipment and industrial materials.

The January decline in the Labor Department's Wholesale Price Index marked the second straight monthly decline in overall wholesale prices. The index was down five-tenths of a per cent in December.

The department said prices of farm products fell 2.2 per cent in January, led by lower prices for grains, livestock and oilseed.

Processed foods and feeds dropped one per cent in price, due primarily to lower prices for sugar and confectionery, the department said.

The Labor Department said its Wholesale Price Index in January stood at 171.8 of the 1967 average of 100, which was 17.2 per cent higher than a year earlier.

By contrast, in November, wholesale prices were 23.5 per cent ahead of a year earlier. At 171.8, this meant it cost $171.80 to buy the same goods that $100 purchased in 1967.

The figures were adjusted for seasonal variations, meaning changes were taken into account. On a seasonally unadjusted bases, overall wholesale prices advanced two-tenths of one per cent.

The Federal Reserve's industrial-output index registered its sharpest drop since December 1937, when the output index plummeted by 8.9 per cent. The index had dropped 3.1 per cent in December 1974.

The index now has declined by 9.5 per cent since last September and stands at 113.7 per cent of the 1967 base level.

In other economic and energy developments Thursday:

—Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton said in a Miami interview that President Ford's energy program will increase the price of gasoline by as much as 20 cents a gallon at the pump, compared to the administration's previous estimates of 10 cents a gallon. He predicted the price will start rising in April and reach 70 to 75 cents a gallon by July, going higher still if Ford's planned tariff on imported oil reaches $3 a barrel.

—In a New York speech to securities analysts, Ford said the $52 billion budget deficit he has projected for the next fiscal year can be financed. But he said he couldn't make the same promise if Congress adds to the deficit, and he criticized the House and Senate for inaction on his programs.

—The Labor Department reported that unemployment lines continued to grow late in January as nearly 750,000 more Americans applied for jobless benefits in the week ended Feb. 1. The figure was 8,000 higher than had signed up the previous week.

—The President disclosed that he will allow to become law without his signature a bill to freeze the price of food stamps throughout 1975 at their Jan. 1 level. Ford had wanted prices raised to save the government $650 million, but Congress instead voted by lopsided margins for freeze legislation.

New Trial Of Watergate Conspirators Is Refused

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica today denied requests for new trials from the four men convicted in the Watergate cover-up trial.

Sentencing for the former high-ranking aides to former President Nixon was set for Feb. 21.

Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, White House aides John D. Ehrlichman and H. R.

Haldeman, and ex-Nixon reelection official Robert C. Mardian were convicted New Year's Day of plotting to cover-up the Watergate burglary.

A fifth man, Kenneth W. Parkinson, a lawyer for the 1972 Nixon re-election committee, was acquitted in the three-month long trial.

Mitchell, 61, who also headed Nixon re-election campaign, faces a maximum 25-year prison term and $37,000 fine.

Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman were convicted of conspiracy to obstruct justice, obstruction of justice and various other charges including perjury or lying to grand juries.

Haldeman, 48, former White House chief of staff, could receive up to 25 years in jail and fines totaling $21,000.

Ehrlichman, 49, the former resident's chief domestic adviser, faces a maximum of 20 years imprisonment and $35,000 in fines.

Mardian, 51, who also was a former assistant attorney general, was convicted only of conspiracy to obstruct justice. He could receive five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Lawyers for all four convicted conspirators plan appeals. The defendants are likely to remain free during the appeals process, expected to take at least a year.

Congress Foreign Policy 'Meddling' Charged By Ford

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — President Ford, sharply criticizing Congress for dangerous meddling in foreign policy, has called for an end to partisan politics "that now threaten to bring our successful foreign policy to a standstill."

Ford charged Congress had jeopardized negotiations on Soviet trade, the Turkish-Cyprus negotiations and oil policy by its restrictive amendments.

In a major foreign policy speech Thursday night before a gathering of some 1,700 at a Republican fund-raising salute to Vice President Nelson A.

Rockefeller, Ford called on the Democratic-controlled Congress to give him the same consideration that a fellow Michigan resident, Republican Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, gave Democratic President Harry S. Truman in the post-World War II period.

Vandenberg then said that America's official voice should unite at the water's edge.

"Can't we consult and act rather than pontificate and poke?" Ford asked.

He said that "in this very difficult time, the American people expect responsible conduct from individual members of the Congress and from the Congress as a whole as well as from the President."

Ford charged that congressional insistence on ending military aid to Turkey had caused the breakdown of a scheduled meeting in Brussels this week between the foreign ministers of Greece and Turkey and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

He called this action "a self-inflicted wound." He said it will "seriously impair our relations with a valued ally" and adversely affect Western security "with serious consequences to the strategic situation in the Middle East."

Ford also blamed Congress for withholding tariff preferences from all oil producing and exporting countries, regardless of whether they had joined in last winter's oil embargo against the United States. He said "this indiscriminate and hasty act damaged our relations with Ecuador, Venezuela, Nigeria and Indonesia," countries which did not join in the embargo.

He also cited amendments to the trade agreement with the Soviet Union that he said led the Russians to repudiate 1972 economic accords with the United States.

Ford flew to New York City to continue a barnstorming appeal for his energy and economic policies. He had traveled earlier in the week to Houston, Tex., and Topeka, Kan., with his plea to Congress to act promptly on his proposals in these areas.

Americans Told Leave Capital

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The U.S. Embassy sent out letters today urging all American citizens to leave Phnom Penh "for your own safety and welfare."

The Cambodian capital, under siege by Communist-led insurgents, has been virtually cut off from all land and river supply routes for some time. It is relieved only by a 24-hour U.S. financed airlift from neighboring Thailand, which brings in ammunition for government troops defending the city.

The embassy offered for a limited time to "assist with transportation as far as Bangkok or Saigon." There are no commercial international flights except Air Cambodia into the capital.

The embassy usually has several liaison planes and helicopters leaving each afternoon for Saigon or Bangkok.

Only 42 Pints

Only 42 pints of blood were collected Thursday during the Bloodmobile visit to D. H. Conley High School.

Pitt Blood chairman Billy Ross said that in addition to the units collected, there were 16 persons rejected for various health reasons. Ross expressed his appreciation to the school for sponsoring the visit and also to the Greenville Service League women and volunteer nurses for their help in the school blood drive.

The Bloodmobile was at the Moose Lodge today from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

READ YOUR OWN METER

I'd like to check my utilities bill to see if it is correct. Can you tell me how to read my own meters? R. T.

Greenville Utilities has five men who begin on the first day of the month reading meters throughout the area served by GUC. They finish around the 20th of the month, depending on the weather, vacations, and holidays. The number of days in a customer's billing period is about 30, but may vary some because it is based on the exact time between readings. Only actual meter readings are recorded.

The meter pictured here is an electric meter, but it is similar to a gas meter. The water meter is read like a speedometer, with only the first four digits being recorded and rounding off done to the nearest whole number.

To read the meter pictured, follow these steps: Read the dials from left to right. If the pointer is between two numbers, read the smaller of the two, even if it is near the next higher number. If the pointer appears directly on the number, look at the next dial to the right. If its pointer has passed zero, read the number under the first pointer. If it has not passed zero, read the next lower number from the pointer on the first dial. For example, your meter may have read like picture A in January. It reads 1842. In February it may have read like picture B, 2945. By subtracting the January figure from the February, you can find out what your usage for the month was.

You may then calculate your bill for each service by multiplying by the kwh and other unit rates on each. Of course, you would have to be aware of any rate changes, and would have to add the fuel charge, based on the current percentage.

The above information was provided by George Reel, customer service representative of the GUC. He said he is always delighted when a customer shows interest in reading his own meter, and will be glad to talk to anyone who has checked and feels his meter has not been read correctly.

Utilities Law Reform Slowly Moves Forward

RALEIGH (AP)—Legislation to reform North Carolina's utilities law moved forward Thursday as the House Committee on Public Utilities and Energy gave unanimous approval to a bill repealing the use of the "future test period" for setting electricity rates.

A consensus on a package of utilities legislation began forming as both the Senate and the House utilities committees dealt with the forward test year repeal measure, a bill to repeal the fuel adjustment clause and one to expand the State Utilities Commission.

Utilities Commission Chairman Marvin Wooten warned the Senate committee, however, there was no assurance that any of the measures would lower electricity rates. Wooten said that even if the proposed laws had been in effect the past year, power rates would still have gone up.

He said the basic requirement is that power companies be compensated for their costs and that those costs have been rising.

A bill similar to Buncombe Rep. Herbert Hyde's to repeal the forward test year is expected to win approval from the Senate Utilities Committee. It is part of a package of bills put together by Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt and introduced in the Senate earlier this week. Forty-eight of the 50 senators signed the package.

The future test period bill would repeal a measure passed without public hearings in the last days of the 1974 session. It allows power companies to include plants and capital equipment which will go into operation within a year as part of the total capital investment they are entitled to earn a profit from.

Hyde said the way the bill was passed last year gave the public a bad impression. His measure would restore the traditional method of basing utility rates on their costs and investment at the time the request is made.

Duke Power Co. vice president John Hicks told the House committee Thursday that repeal of the future rate provision would "go against the national trend to include the most current information available and to include plant in construction as part of the rate base."

Hicks said the power companies have to assume costs for a plant from the time they started planning construction, but earn no return on their investment until the plant begins generating electricity.

Consensus also grew Thursday in favor of repeal of the fuel adjustment clause under which power companies pass increased fuel costs directly to their customers. The bills of the average residential customer have nearly doubled in the last year as a result of the fuel adjustment provision.

A Review Somehow Lacks Novel's Vitality

Trying to pinpoint the reasons I find the stage version of Reynolds Price's A Long and Happy Life not the exhilarating experience I had hoped for is an elusive process.

Even in making allowances for the difficult task of transferring from book to stage a precise sense of time, mood, character and action, I still cannot put aside a nagging realization that the human vitality present in the novel does not ever fully register on stage.

There are many admirable things going in favor of the Studio Theater production of A Long and Happy Life. The geographical environment and atmosphere of eastern North Carolina and the blighted economic state of the Mustian family could hardly find a better conveyance than Robert Williams' set and lighting. Generally, the ring of regional dialect is authentic. These provide a rightness of place and sound that firmly establishes a solid framework of reference.

In attempting to compare remembered passages of the book with the stage script, it seems that what is primarily missing is Price's subtly lyrical play on words and inner moods that enrich the novel. The major situations are here—as is the sustaining thread of Rosacoke Mustian's patient waiting for Wesley Beavers to appear in pursuit of her affections.

On stage, however, the waiting process becomes excessive, a little wearying. In the first act it becomes a matter of waiting (and hoping) to see more tangible action develop.

One first act scene that does come alive is the beautifully realized Negro funeral for Mildred at Mount Moriah Church.

In most instances, the cast gives valid interpretations to their roles. Greg Zittel's Milo, while keeping the rough-tender character of Rosacoke's sister in perspective, suffers from the actor's failure to tone down his powerful voice in this intimate production. As Rosacoke, Rosalie Hutchens wavers between moments of true rapport with the suffering girl she portrays and occasional wooden delivery—such as the "I guess" speech in the first act that comes off as a series of memorized hesitations rather than a statement from the heart.

Hazel Stapleton's performance as "Mama" Mustian is consistently excellent, although the actress's superbly trim figure taxes credibility in accepting her as the mother of grown-up children.

As Wesley Beavers, the man around whom the story pivots, Richard Bradner is altogether the young man who must arrive at his own decisions in his own way.

It is in the secondary roles that several cast members give real vibrancy to Price's people. Dottie J. Johnson makes every word, grunt and awkward movement hit the mark as Sissie, Milo's cowed, pregnant wife. Juanda La Joyce as Mary Sutton again reveals a keenly attuned sensitivity to any role assigned her; and Francine Rouleau is delightfully dumb (and shrewd) as the giggly, earthy man-seeking Willie Duke Aycock. Earl Holloway is superb as Rato Mustian, the remote, dreamy young soldier who only wants to be left alone.

The East Carolina University Studio Theater production of A Long and Happy Life has only two more performances—tonight and tomorrow night. (All seats are sold out for both nights). The play opened on February 5, and was originally scheduled to run through February 12, but was extended three days due to popular demand.

The Studio Theater production is the world's premiere of Price's adaptation of his novel. Jerry Raynor

Lollipop Kid Robbed A Bank

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—When a boy about 11 years old demanded money from a bank teller, she offered him a lollipop.

"I want money. Get the manager," said the boy, who was about 5 feet tall, 90 pounds, and was wearing sneakers.

The teller at a branch of the Bankers Trust of South Carolina, Mrs. Pat Rankin, turned to look for the manager.

The boy reached over the counter, scooped up money, and ran out Wednesday.

He got away with $1,916.75. Police aren't sure if he jumped in a waiting car, or on a bicycle, or ran off through the business district.

Hunt Gunmen In Massacre

MONTREAL (AP)—Montreal police combed the city today for three masked gunmen who killed four people and wounded four others in a St. Valentine's Eve massacre in a crowded hotel bar.

It was the second gangland-style mass killing in a month in Montreal, the crime capital of Canada. Police said they believe a settling of underworld accounts was the motive.

Two of the wounded were reported in critical condition.

The three gunmen entered the bar at the Hotel Lapiniere, in suburban Brossard, shortly before midnight Thursday and opened fire. Their target apparently was a group sitting around a table in the center of the bar, police said.

The police were questioning about 60 persons who were in the bar at the time.

Early today, heavily-armed police began raiding houses in the Montreal area in search of the gunmen. A police spokesman said investigators were working on "several leads."

Montreal has been having an average of a murder a day since New Year's Eve. On Jan. 20, gangsters killed 13 persons in another bar, the Gargantua on the city's north side, but there was no indication of any connection between the killings there and those at the Lapiniere.

Declared Legally Dead, Father Returns To Life

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer
MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Iris Winogron and her two daughters had been making funeral arrangements for her husband when the phone call came.

S. William Winogron, 46, declared dead by doctors after a massive heart attack 12 hours earlier, had come back to life.

"It's like a modern day Lazarus," said daughter Ellen, 16, in reference to a biblical figure who rose from the dead.

Winogron suffered his second heart attack in the pre-dawn hours Monday. Despite revival efforts by policeman in his Milwaukee suburb of Whitefish Bay, he was declared legally dead at Columbia Hospital.

"There was no sign of brain activity and his physical life signs were kept going mechanically," a hospital spokesman said.

Mrs. Winogron told doctors to remove her husband's eyes and kidneys for possible transplants.

"I didn't want him to lie around as a vegetable," she said.

But just as surgeons were about to remove the organs, his eyelids fluttered.

They rushed him back to intensive care, and within hours he was moving his limbs and blinking more, this time at his wife when she asked if he could hear her.

He was in critical but stable condition Thursday, but he fed himself and tried to talk to his family.

"He can only whisper, though, because he hurt his throat when he ripped out a tube in his mouth while he was trying to tell my mother he was all right," Ellen said. For dinner he had gelatin, coffee and a fruit-flavored ice on a stick.

Frinks Back In A Prison

SNOW HILL, N.C. (AP)—Because of demonstrations protesting the firing of a black high school band director at Edenton in 1973, Black activist Golden Frinks is back in prison.

Frinks, field coordinator for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, was confined in a Corrections Department reception and diagnostic center near Snow Hill on Feb. 11 to serve a six-month term for blocking traffic during a demonstration at Edenton in 1973. His prison term began after appeals to the state Court of Appeals and the state Supreme Court failed.

Ed Banks, superintendent of the prison unit, said Frinks would be transferred later to another adult prison unit in eastern North Carolina.

Frinks told the Associated Press he was being well treated at the unit. However, he complained of overcrowding. He said he planned to seek his release through a writ of habeas corpus in federal court.

Sheriff Helps Rehabilitation

CHARLOTTE (AP)—An 18-year-old clerk at the Mecklenburg county jail, Carol Ann Pearson, has been charged with stealing blank checks from a business establishment. She had a prior criminal record, but Sheriff Donald Stahl says he hired her last July in an effort to rehabilitate her.

He says she will keep working until she is tried. She is free on bond of $2,000.

Court records show she was prosecuted in 1973 on charges of credit-card fraud and passing a worthless check.

'Seaport' For City In Idaho

LEWISTON, Idaho (AP)—Land-locked Idaho will get its first seaport Saturday when the gates are lowered on the Snake River's newest dam and the West's longest navigable inland waterway is created.

The final link of the waterway opens with completion of the Lower Granite Dam and lock system at Wawawai, Wash., a project that has taken 10 years and $344 million.

Some 32 miles down the Snake from here, it is the last of eight lock and dam systems between Lewiston and the Pacific on the Snake and Columbia rivers. The first dam, Bonneville, was built in the 1930s, but the inland waterway was not envisioned then.

"It sort of blows your mind to think of Lewiston as a seaport," one resident said Thursday.

Businesses in Lewiston, the industrial hub of northern Idaho with an area population of 50,000, have been gearing up for the opening.

—The town's leading motel built a restaurant and named it the Helm.

—The Chicken Roost Restaurant was renamed the Windjammer.

—A retail sail boat firm opened for business.

—Construction is booming by the river with two grain elevators going up and a railroad spur line laid.

—Thirty-eight Montana wheat growers arrive Monday to meet with port officials about shipping their wheat downstream by barge.

It is 464 miles by river from the mouth near Astoria, Ore., to Lewiston, making it the longest inland waterway in the West, the Army Corps of Engineers says.

Most wheat from the region will go the 374 miles to Portland, Ore., where it will be loaded on ocean-going freighters. Produce will go to Astoria and other ports along the way.

No Charges In Auto Accident

No charges were made by police following investigation of a 2:09 a.m. mishap today on Chestnut Street, 105 feet East of the 14th Street intersection.

She Embarrassed Rainbow Officers Installed Host By Leaving

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old widow, not unattractive. A middle-aged physician (divorced) invited me to dinner at his home.

When I arrived, he fixed a cocktail, then the phone rang. I could tell by his conversation it was a woman. And she wasn't a patient. I sat quietly sipping my drink while he talked for 30 minutes! When he finally returned, he resumed the conversation with me, making no apologies for leaving me alone for so long.

About ten minutes later a car drove up in front of his house and stopped. He said: "Let me see who that is." Then he went outside.

When he didn't return in 20 minutes, I took my wrap and purse and went outside to tell my host I was leaving. He was standing by the car, talking to a lady who apparently had come to see him.

I said: Good night, I am going home." The lady immediately drove off. My host insisted that I go back into the house. I did, but only because I wanted to tell him off for his rudeness to me. Before I had a chance to say anything, he told ME off for having "embarrassed" him by coming outside.

Was I wrong? How would you have handled it? MISTREATED

DEAR MISTREATED: You were not wrong. I would have handled it much the same as you. Only I'd have said my goodbyes immediately after my host returned from his 30-minute telephone conversation.

DEAR ABBY: Our whole family is in a turmoil because, after 52 years of marriage, our father has left our mother. They used to have their fights over the years but we never thought it would come to this.

Dad left Mother to go and live with a 53-year-old nurse he met three years ago when he was in the hospital. (Dad has been in a wheelchair for three years.) The nurse came right into the house, packed Dad up and moved him out, and they drove off together.

Now that this has come out, everybody is saying they knew about Dad and this nurse all along. Dad is 74, and Mother is 73. Mother is so humiliated, she hasn't been out of the house since Dad left.

What do you think of this mess? How can we get Dad to come to his senses and go back to Mother? It's the talk of the town. DISGRACED

DEAR DISGRACED: Stay out of it. And you needn't feel "disgraced." A person can disgrace only himself.

DEAR ABBY: I never miss your column. It's a kick to read about some of the stupid problems some of those fools who write to you come up with. I'm amazed at the number of women who write to say they're afraid of losing their husbands to another woman.

That's the last thing I'm worried about. I say: "The woman who steals my husband steals my troubles." Sign me... NOT WORRIED

DEAR NOT: If that's the way you feel about your husband, why don't you just turn him loose, so there will be one less potential thief in the world?

DEAR ABBY: About the woman who always mentions the fact that one of her three children was adopted: One shouldn't be so quick to criticize her. Perhaps she wants to publicly announce the fact that, although she is the mother of three children, she brought only two into the world, and because she adopted the third, she is not guilty of adding to the world's overpopulation. JUST THINKING

DEAR JUST: Thanks for thinking of an angle I didn't think of.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Editors Expose Long-Standing Myths In Their Book On Foods

By JEANNE LESEME
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — It just isn't true that everything one likes is either illegal, immoral or fattening. Expensive, maybe, but many popular foods such as strawberries and asparagus are low in calories. And they are more nutritious than less admired varieties such as eggplant and beets.

A cup of strawberries, for instance, contains only 55 calories and as much iron as one extra large egg; the berries are also an excellent source of vitamin C (90 milligrams per cup), compared with 110 calories and 112 milligrams of vitamin C for the same amount of frozen reconstituted orange juice.

While a cup of cooked diced beets contains only 60 calories, its nutrient content is not particularly impressive. And eggplant's vitamin and mineral content is negligible, not surprising in a vegetable that is four per cent carbohydrate and 95 per cent water.

These and similarly useful facts about food, beverages and eating habits are from "Let's Talk About Food," an American Medical Association book based on a monthly column in the AMA magazine; Today's Health.

In the book, editors Philip L. White and Nancy Selvey expose some long-standing myths and misconceptions. The questions in general came from readers; the answers, from Ms. Selvey and other nutritionists in the AMA's Department of Food and Nutrition, of which White is director.

Asparagus is known to dieters largely as a low-calorie vegetable—35 per cup of cooked, cut spears. Just three spears of green asparagus also contain one milligram of iron and 10 times the vitamin A of white asparagus and are rich in vitamin C. Both green and white have small amounts of many other nutrients.

Many people assume fresh vegetables have greater nutritional value than high-quality canned or frozen ones.

Not necessarily. "Slow-cooking methods used frequently by homemakers often destroy as many vitamins as are lost during the industrial canning process," says the book. "Fresh vegetables which have been poorly stored at the market also may be less nutritious than those freshly picked from a home garden.

But even when there is significant loss of nutritive value in vegetables during home or industrial processing, the loss is more significant to the vegetable than to the consumer, the nutritionists said. As much as 10 to 20 per cent nutrient loss is not necessarily important, they added, if the food still contains very good amounts.

Pizza has a public reputation as snack food of questionable nutritional value. But prepared properly, with lots of meat or sausage, cheese and tomatoes, it is a good source of protein and calcium, and also contains iron, vitamins A and C and the B complex, said the nutritionists.

Head (iceberg) lettuce probably is the most widely consumed salad green in the country, yet cos (romaine) far outstrips it in vitamin content. Cos contains about eight times as much vitamin A and nearly five times as much vitamin C. The outer leaves of this oval-shaped lettuce are heavy and somewhat coarse, with a sweet flavor. The crisp, tender, inner leaves are golden yellow.

Mushrooms are regarded mainly as decorative foods, but in sufficiently large amounts they, too, are a good source of niacin and iron.

Rev. Bailey Gives Program

The Patient Circle of the King's Daughters and Sons had its February meeting at the home of Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell.

Mrs. Shackell introduced the Rev. Jim Bailey, pastor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, who gave a talk on "The Bible." First, he emphasized that Chataqua, N.Y., headquarters of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons, had been a highlight in his life. He expressed gratitude to the Order for having given him the privilege of going there.

He stated that there is a difference in theology and Biblical studies and explained that the Bible is a book dealing with the acts of God in the acts of man. Rev. Bailey will conclude this study at the March meeting.

After the business session, presided over by Mrs. Mary Wells, vice president, refreshments were served by Mrs. Shackell, Mrs. T.I. Moore, and Mrs. Harvey Turnage.

Wedding Invitation

Mr. and Mrs. William Earl Holloman request the honor of your presence at the marriage to their daughter, Debra Jean, to David Hudson tonight at seven o'clock at the Proctor Memorial Church, Grimesland. Reception follows in the fellowship hall. No invitations were mailed.

Marriages Announced

Mrs. Mamie Dail of Ayden announces the marriage of her daughter, Deloris Yvonne, to Kenneth Anthony Curtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Curtis of Bridgeport, Conn. The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. Ben Frank Dail. The Rev. Frederick Barnes performed the ceremony in the Walters Memorial AME Zion Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Forrest of Rt. 2, Ayden, announce the marriage of their daughter, Dianne, to Johnny Gray Crawford, son of Mrs. Ray Crawford of Ballards Crossroads, on Wednesday, Feb. 5.

First Class Air Service Vital

Congressman Walter B. Jones has announced a $24,306 grant from the Federal Aviation Administration for preparing a master plan for the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

These funds will be put to good use if a comprehensive plan for improvements to the airport is forthcoming, and it is implemented.

Pitt-Greenville is a good basic air facility that is used by private aircraft and Wheeler Airlines which provides feeder service to major airports. Even though we cannot expect to see major regular air service at Pitt-Greenville, the airport will be our main link with the air age for the foreseeable future.

We envision a regional airport developing in the East which will be served by several major airlines. Perhaps it will develop around Stallings airport at Kinston, or it could be in some other location. But it will serve all of the cities in this section of the East.

On the other hand, industries, East Carolina University private aircraft and commuter air service will need a first class airport such as Pitt-

Greenville can be, so the facility is going to be an important part of Greenville and Pitt County's future.

For that reason we need to develop plans for financing improving runways and other changes at the airport, and the FAA grant will help fund such planning.

We doubt if it would even be desirable to have big commercial jets landing at Pitt-Greenville Airport, given its proximity to the city. But it can serve very well for smaller aircraft. We already have Wheeler Airlines making use of it and it is possible that regular air freight service might be instituted in future years if industrial demand should grow.

We are fortunate to have the local airport facility, but we must maintain and improve it if we are to have an airport suited to Greenville and Pitt County's particular needs. The master plan should solve many planning problems for the airport.

THIS AFTERNOON

An 'Intolerable' Shortage

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—A severe shortage of specially trained teachers to work with exceptional children in public schools is hamstringing efforts to teach the mentally retarded, handicapped, emotionally disturbed, and gifted—all of whom fall in the special needs category.

Beyond that, the situation is labeled intolerable by a legislative study commission which found the great majority of teachers currently working with exceptional children not specially trained and qualified to do so.

The problem comes down to a simple one, according to the State Department of Public Instruction: "Since there have been no (college) training programs for teachers of the visually handicapped, the physically impaired and the gifted and talented, it is understandable that teachers have not been able to take courses... to become certified."

$4.5 Million

Officials of the University of North Carolina, pressured to provide the training, say it would cost an estimated $4.5 million.

Members of the study commission respond to that suggestion bluntly: "We are asking that they move forward now, as a part of the overall planning cycle."

"They should have done this long ago. If the patriarchy in Chapel Hill have been sitting on their thumbs all these years, they should not come back now and try to get $4.5 million to do the job. This is not the golden egg room," one said. University President William C. Friday confirmed that additional funds, not contained in the regular budget for the university, would be needed.

A New Push The state only lately has pushed teaching exceptional children in the public schools, and only last year passed the law requiring schools to provide such programs.

Meanwhile, the university has been meeting other priorities, Friday said. If the teacher colleges are to "catch up," they will need extra funds. "This is an area close to my heart... we want to provide this... it's the sort of thing we all want to do. But, it will take a special effort," Friday said.

State Senator Lamar Gudger of Asheville, chairman of the Legislative Commission on Children With Special Needs, hopes that a showdown between the university system and the General Assembly can be avoided.

"Certainly the University Board of Governors agree that it would cost $4.5 million to do this all at one time, but I hope that with some redirection of overall planning, and with use of these (regional) centers and in-service training efforts in the schools, we will be able to accomplish what needs to be done," Gudger said.

Research by the commission shows 116,456 exceptional children being served in the public schools; 45,513 on the waiting lists. Of 2,188 special education teachers, 1,343 are not certified in the area in which they teach.

With 450 special education teacher slots available last year, teacher colleges graduated only 218.

A statewide census of children with special needs projects 90,981 kids under six who will enter public schools in the next few years, requiring specially trained teachers. Just to meet the needs of children already on waiting lists would require 1,591 more certified teachers.

The study shows "an incredible 90.6 per cent of the teachers in the very important area of gifted and talented were not certified," and that 72.7 per cent of teachers working with visually handicapped, and 76.7 per cent of those working with the physically handicapped are not certified.

Monopoly By '75 Rules

WASHINGTON—The family was playing Monopoly the other night and in the middle of the game, to make it more exciting, I suggested we update the rules according to 1975 economic conditions. No one was sure this was a good idea until I, as banker, offered to give each player an extra $200 to encourage them to spend more money on their properties. They thought this was great. But then I said, "In order to pay for this I will have to charge you all double if you land on the Electric Co. or the Waterworks which I happen to own."

There were screams of protest from everyone. "What good is the $200 if we have to give it back to you for electricity and water?" my daughter wanted to know. "It will put more money into circulation and stimulate the buying of houses and hotels. I suggest that if you raise the rents on your properties by 50 per cent, it will cover the cost of landing on the Electric Co. When I land on one of your properties you'll get the money back."

"That's true," said my wife, "if you own Park Place or Boardwalk. But I own Baltic and Mediterranean avenues. If I have to pay you double when I land on the Electric Co. or the Waterworks I'll be wiped out." "You can always sell your property," I pointed out. "Have you ever known anyone who wanted to buy Baltic and Mediterranean avenues?" she asked bitterly. "Well, we can't all live in Marvin Gardens," I retorted. "There would be no Monopoly game if everyone could afford everything on the board. Now let's start playing."

Buyers Looking Ahead

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — With its booming rally since the start of the year, the stock market has once again demonstrated a seemingly illogical ability to ignore the world around it.

Unemployment is at its highest level since World War II. Inflation may have slackened a bit, but it's still a painful force. The effects of the recession are spreading from industry to industry.

And the outlook for corporate profits — traditionally the most tangible factor to which stock prices relate — is cloudy at best for at least the first half of this year.

But investors who shunned stocks during the comparatively rosy days of 1973 and early 1974, when many companies were reporting huge profit gains, now are suddenly buying them at a record-breaking pace.

On Tuesday, the rally that began New Year's Eve touched a new peak as volume reached 35.16 million shares, over three million more than had ever been traded in a single session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed up 11.89 at 726.92 — nearly 150 points above its December low.

The standard explanation for the divergence of the stock market and the current state of the economy is actually very simple.

As the late Gerald M. Loeb, a longtime market expert and investment writer, put it in an observation quoted in the Hirsch Organization's Stock Trader's Almanac: "Stocks are bought on expectations, not facts."

"The market is quite frequently a very logical thing," says Raymond F. DeVoe Jr. of Wall Street's Spencer, Trask & Co. "It's just that it looks three to six months ahead rather than at immediate prospects."

The INSIDE REPORT

Ford's Backstage Dilemma

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—A piece of paper wending its way through the labyrinth of the White House bureaucracy toward President Ford's desk restates a question which has repeatedly confronted him during six months in office: how much and how often must he appease the Republican right?

Unless short-circuited before it reaches Mr. Ford, the piece of paper will recommend that the President nominate a young technocrat named Eric R. Zausner as the government's top energy policymaker. But conservative Republicans on the Senate Interior Committee, mainly Westerners, are fussing and fighting to keep his name from ever being submitted to the Senate.

Zausner, a 30-year-old computer whiz out of the Wharton Business School, is being boosted as deputy administrator for policy of the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) by both his boss, administrator Frank Zarb, and Rogers Morton, Secretary of the Interior. But the Western Senators have bluntly informed the White House Zausner is too liberal, too rude, too inexperienced (topped off by unfounded innuendo about his patriotism). What is really wrong with Zausner, however, is that he is too independent of oil interests.

Thus, while publicly indicated by liberal Democrats for being big oil's patsy, Mr. Ford is privately convicted by conservative Republicans for offending the party's old friends. Those oil friends have now cranked up a campaign against Zausner which will be a symbolic test of the industry's influence in the Ford administration.

But beyond energy questions, the Zausner problem underlines Mr. Ford's need to solidify the Republican minority support for him in an overwhelmingly Democratic Congress. Surely, then, the head of a middle-level bureaucrat is not too much to ask in return for the support of Republican Senators on difficult votes to come. But how often shall Mr. Ford have to change policy and decisions to satisfy conservative Republican demands?

A Federal Energy official since the summer of 1973, Zausner is described by one associate as "a workhorse, a driver who kicks tails." A rough gem, Zausner has shown insufficient deference to U.S. Senators in personal contacts.

Nevertheless, precisely what the Senators have against him is not entirely clear—and certainly not always justified. One administration official was recently asked by a Republican Senator: "Do you really want to embarrass Jerry Ford by having him nominate a conscientious objector?"

The "conscientious objector" charge, widely circulated on Capitol Hill, turns out to be a canard. Upon getting his master's degree in 1968, Zausner enlisted in the U.S. Public Health Service, fulfilling his military obligation by two years service there. At no time did he file as a conscientious objector.

More relevant but perhaps just as inaccurate is the charge by one Senate Republican that Zausner is "a regulator who believes in the government stepping in and doing it all." In truth, ardent free marketers inside the administration say Zausner is a team player who follows the Ford line.

What's really wrong with Zausner is found in the senatorial complaint that Zausner is "a computer man" who just doesn't know enough about the oil industry. That means he is not responsive enough to oil. "When an oil lobbyist comes into Eric's office with a problem" one administration official relates, "he runs into hard questions instead of an understanding smile."

Lobbyists do get an "understanding smile" from another young official in FEA, Duke Ligon, 33. Oklahoma Ligon, who left Continental Oil Co., to become then Treasury Secretary John B. Connally's oil adviser, is the industry candidate to be deputy administrator. A petition boosting him for that post began circulating on Capitol Hill last week.

Zausner's visits to senatorial offices the past two weeks, promoted by Morton, did no good. Opposition by Interior Committee Republicans was officially relayed to the White House late Thursday. That means almost certainly President (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say Success Formula

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

There are three avenues open to those who are entertaining thoughts of going to college.

The first two are probably the most popular. First, if you have children ready to go to college, it would help if you are either rich or poor.

If you are rich, you can find the money needed to pay rising tuition, board and room, and other costs without too much difficulty.

Second, if you are poor, government programs and student loans funds are available to help you finance the education.

But if you are in between being rich and being poor, you might not have enough money to pay the bills out of your income, yet you may be too affluent for your youngsters to qualify for aid programs.

So you're caught in the middle. But here is where the third avenue of opportunity is open. Students who don't have adequate cash but who can't qualify as "needy" have another course of action that could be a distinct advantage over either wealth or poverty.

This is to work part-time to supplement what money comes from home. What? Work? True, it's an alien word these days, but believe it or not, there are those who still do it.

Working by students was once a common practice. Working your way through college has its good effect.

Thousands of successful businessmen and women will testify that what they learned while working their way through school was at least as valuable to them as what they learned in the classroom.

Few of them feel that they were disadvantaged by having to work. None of them was disgraced by it. Virtually all benefitted greatly.

Perhaps the strength of the middle class, that great body of Americans who are skinned by the government and foot the bills for the hangers-on, really lies in the fact that they have to work for what they get.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann has been convicted of murder in the Lindbergh kidnaping and murder case, and death has been recommended.

He will be taken to the death house in state prison at Trenton, N.J. on Saturday, according to Sheriff John H. Curtis.

He was sentenced to die March 22.

Edward J. Rielly, chief of the defense staff, said an appeal will be carried to the United States Supreme Court if necessary.

The jurors deliberated for more than eleven hours before returning the verdict.

The Pitt County Health Department held the first in a series of malaria clinics today. The clinics are being conducted along Swift Creek in an effort to determine the extent of illness and to stamp it out.

The health department has been making a concerted effort to get the government to drain mosquito breeding places along the creek, but the request has been turned down until the department can prove that malaria is sufficiently extensive in the area to justify the action.

Expedient Rather Than A Plan

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — President Ford's order releasing as much as $2 billion in highway funds is open to criticism that it is an expedient rather than a plan, and contradictory one at that.

But this is an economy of contradictions.

While urging the nation to cut back on its consumption of energy, Ford is in effect seeing to it that the use of energy is encouraged by building the roads over which the energy-burners operate.

Most people can list a half-dozen socially desirable projects, beginning with mass transit projects that actually would save energy, that could benefit from a similar infusion of funds.

But while oil and other commodities might be in short supply, criticism isn't. Leadership throughout the world is faced today with such a complex of circumstances that nothing seems to satisfy, or even seem logical.

Perhaps the most baffling conflict is the concurrent rise in nationalism and the growing interdependence of nations.

The Arabs, for example, can sell all the oil they can drain from the sands but it won't do them much good if Western industrial nations don't buy it, because then the Arabs couldn't buy Western technology.

Another head-on conflict exists between the rise in consumer expectations throughout the world and the need for energy to turn those expectations into reality. And that reality, in turn, often conflicts with the environment.

There is no end to the list. Even the battle against inflation poses the threat of more recession, and vice versa. The strange times lead to a federal budget deficit in the scores of billions being called conservative.

The entire economic climate is in such a state of change that philosophical ideals clash with what is practiced.

Big business fights its independence from Washington and then, when in trouble, seeks special treatment there. Government regulatory agencies set up to promote fairness and efficiency are accused of being unjust and wasteful.

The climate being what it is, the President's highway building plan doesn't seem out of place. The entire picture must be kept in mind, and not the individual pieces that make up the picture.

But in an economic world in turmoil, that bigger picture is more and more perplexing.

THE BLINDNESS OF SIN

One of the most devastating things about sin is that it blinds one to the best things of life. The Bible often uses the figure of blindness to describe the ravages of sin. For example, the Philistines, after they had captured Samson, put out his eyes. Thus blindness was his fate when his sins, in the form of his victorious enemies, overtook him. Saul on the road to Damascus was struck blind by a vision of the Lord, probably in order that God might show him that up to that time in his life bigotry and intellectual pride had made him blind to the truth. The preacher Phillips Brooks once said, "All true, healthy, inspiring faith—all knowledge that can live by love and open into action, grows dim to the soul, dimmer and ever dimmer as it gives itself up to sin."

The evil of sin consists not only of the wrong things it makes us do, but of the great blessings it shuts out of our lives. It makes us blind—blind to the will of God which can bring us such peace and abiding joy.

A pep rally was held in the gym Friday during sixth period in preparation for the game against Farmville Central that night. The cheerleaders did a pom pom routine and some cheers. The members of the basketball teams were introduced to the students and Donnie Perkins presented a short speech. The Girl's Drill Team presented a routine of precision drill during the pep rally.

During halftime of the boy's basketball game, won by North Pitt, the winners of the 1975 Miss Winter Sports Contest were announced by Rick Harrell.

The candidates were nominated and escorted by the varsity basketball and wrestling teams. The queens were Kathi Manning, and Donna Parker, escorted by Jimmy Barnhill. The candidates walked onto the court and formed a semi-circle facing the North Pitt fans. The queens were presented roses by the 1974-75 Homecoming queens, Brenda Pollard and Bernita Johnson.

After the basketball games, a dance was held in the student commons.

The girl's basketball tournament began Tuesday, February 11 and the boy's tournament begins Tuesday, February 18.

The senior class is sponsoring a Valentine's Dance Friday from 8:00 p.m. to midnight. Disc-jocks from Radio Station WOKN in Goldsboro. Admission is $1.50 and free refreshments will be served.

This week North Pitt Notes features Mrs. Annette MacRae and Mr. John Moore.

Mrs. MacRae, a native of Washington, graduated from Bethel High School. She received her BA degree in English and her MA degree in education from East Carolina University. Mrs. MacRae teaches English at North Pitt.

Mrs. MacRae and her husband, Tom, live in Bethel. Mrs. MacRae enjoys writing and was reflected in the market's drop to a 12-year low last fall. Now the market is saying that an economic recovery is ahead and we aren't going to have anything worse than a recession. Armageddon will be a little late this year.

"So it's quite normal for the market to be rising while the economy is slumping. In the past in situations like this, by the time the economy actually turns around the market is already out of sight."

The whole business isn't quite as simple as that, unfortunately. If it were, legions of Wall Street analysts wouldn't have to struggle a good many times without success trying to gauge what the market is going to do next.

Also, there is always the possibility that the market will make a move, then change its mind and head in the other direction. And there is never any assurance that events will prove the market right.

Evans-Novak

Ford will have to weigh the unpleasant alternatives in the Zausner case that typify the plight of a non-elected President facing a not overly loyal congressional minority of his own party and a factious majority of the opposition.

By overriding the wishes of Republican Senators and nominating an anonymous technocrat lacking political significance or connections, Mr. Ford could jeopardize votes desperately needed for the Senate to sustain his votes. The price for that support is implicitly to recognize regional and industrial review rights over his energy policy. The price, therefore, is high. Nor does anybody at the White House doubt that, even if Zausner is sacrificed, that price will have to be paid again and again.

Church Has Mother-Daughter Big Deficit Banquet By Chapter

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The sagging economy has hit the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. and officials will attempt to reduce spending by 20 per cent this year after announcing a $2 million deficit for 1974.

The church spent $15.1 million on its budget of $12.8 million in 1974, the denomination's General Executive Board meeting here this week disclosed.

"We are still solvent," said Dr. Worth McDougald, of Athens, Ga., chairman of the finance division for the church.

"We have all our reserves," he said. "We did not overspend the budget approved by the General Assembly. We just didn't get in as much money as we anticipated."

McDougald said the board will try to reduce spending in 1975 by 20 per cent. In addition, it put into effect a hiring and projects freeze in most departments.

"If church people are really informed on ministry being done by the church, we will not have a deficit," said Board Chairman Dr. Charles E. S. Kraemer of Richmond.

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Central Chapter of Future Homemakers of America held its fourth annual mother-daughter banquet Monday.

The theme was "Our Gift of Love".

Miss Sue Stoffel, public relations representative of King's College, was the keynote speaker.

She presented new facial tips, clothing hints and personal grooming. She showed how to make 32 different outfits by using a pair of slacks, two skirts, one blouse, scarves and jewelry.

Ivory Ellis, president, made the opening remarks and Kim Tugwell gave the welcome. The invocation was given by Elaine Saunders. Ron Braxton and Emerson Hobgood sang a song of prayer.

A rose ceremony was held at which time each mother was presented a long-stemmed rose by their daughter.

June Suggs summarized the Farmville Central FHA activities during the past months.

Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards, guidance counselor at Farmville Central, was honored for her guidance and devotion to the FHA club.

Closing remarks were given by Leroy Redden, assistant principal at Farmville Central. Other guests recognized during the evening were Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis, Floyd Little, Mrs. Brenda Little, Mrs. Doris Dixon, Mrs. Pauline Anderson, Mrs. Ann King and Miss Connie Laskowski.

Ladies' Table Tennis Tourney

There will be a table tennis tournament for Ladies 3:00 p.m. Saturday, at the West Greenville Recreation Center. All ladies are invited to participate. There is no entry fee and a trophy will be awarded to the winner.

The Men's table tennis tournament held in December was won by Carlos Ebron.

For information concerning the tournament or other activities at the Recreation Center, telephone 752-4137 ext. 252.

Sounds Warning For Dog Owners

WINTERVILLE—Police Chief W. E. Whitehurst today reminded local residents of the town's leash law, saying there has been an increasing number of complaints about dogs running at large in Winterville.

Chief Whitehurst cautioned that owners of dogs running at large face possible court action. He said "citations will be issued" for dog owners who violate the leash law.

Driver Charged With Hit-Run

Roy Francis Choquette Jr. of University Town House Apts. was charged with hit and run driving following investigation of a 4:05 p.m. collision on Fifth Street, 105 feet East of the Elm Street intersection yesterday.

Investigators reported the Choquette car collided with a parked vehicle owned by James Michael Phillips of River Bluff Apts., resulting in an estimated $500 damage to the Phillips car and $600 damage to the Choquette vehicle.

Discuss Old Valentines

The Greenville Collectors Club discussed antique valentines at their meeting this week.

Club President Francis P. Belcik led a discussion on Valentines Day legends and traditions.

St. Valentine was an ancient Christian priest who achieved sainthood because of his generosity to lovers. His name has always been linked with romance and his feast day in the church calendar has been the occasion for romantic greetings for hundreds of years.

Following a short business session, the club members discussed their "finds" on recent antiquing trips to Raleigh and Suffolk, Va.

The members will meet at the home of Bessie Ross, 1406 Dickinson Ave., Saturday at 9:30 a.m. for an all-day shopping trip in the area.

Herndon Named To State Board

RALEIGH—Thomas C. Herndon of Greenville has been named by Governor Jim Holshouser to serve on the board of directors for the North Carolina Schools for the Deaf. An assistant professor of history at East Carolina University, Herndon's term will expire July 17, 1977.

Which CRUMBLES First?

Here stands what remains of a Grecian temple dating to 300 B.C.

Which crumbles first — the civilization or its religion? Do spiritual foundations collapse because a culture is in trouble? Or do cultures deteriorate because their spiritual foundations are collapsing?

To historians it's like the question about the chicken or the egg.

My main concern is our own civilization. This involves my family and the contribution we can make. We have a Bible — we read it! We have a Faith — we try to live it!

My religion makes me conscious of the dangers of today's civilization. Yet, I am an optimist . . . especially on Sunday when my family is at church . . . and when we see your family there too!

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market shrugged off signs of a deepening recession and embarked on another substantial gain in continued active trading today.
The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 6.34 at 733.26. Gainers outpaced losers by a 3-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

The market hesitated at the opening in the wake of the government's report late Thursday that industrial production took its sharpest monthly drop in January since the Depression. But falling interest rates and news of a decline in wholesale prices last month had it on an upward course again by mid-morning.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was up .35 at 76.73.

The favorable news came in two doses. First the government reported that wholesale prices had declined at a seasonally adjusted 0.3 per cent rate last month for their second drop in a row.

And New York's First National City Bank and the First National Bank of Chicago trimmed their prime lending rates—the basic charge on corporate loans—from 9 to 8 1/2 per cent.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .32 to 43.32.

Bitter Greek Meets Mother After 32 Years Protest

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Thousands of students demonstrated in the Greek Cypriot towns of Cyprus today, protesting the proclamation of a Turkish Cypriot state in the northern part of the island, and their government called for an urgent meeting of the United Nations Security Council.

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — "Mom," Navy Radioman I. C. James R. Sebring said, his voice shaking and his hands trembling. It was the first time the 33-year-old sailor had spoken to his mother.

Cortland, N.Y., hotel. "I used to ask my father where my mother was, but he never would say," said Sebring, who now lives in Walled Lake, Mich.

The Greek government announced that Foreign Minister Dimitrios Bitsios had cancelled a meeting in Bonn Sunday with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger because of the Turkish Cypriot action Thursday. They were to have discussed the Cyprus situation.

Sebring returned on Thursday from a three-week training cruise aboard the aircraft carrier Forrestal. To his surprise, the sailor's mother was waiting at Norfolk Naval Station's Pier 12. Sebring hadn't seen her since his father took him away from home when he was only one year old.

At the bottom of the Forrestal's windswept gangway, Sebring and his mother exchanged hugs, kisses and handclaps. "It's like being in heaven," the sailor said. "I've been searching for my mother for a long time. She's been by herself long enough. I thank God that He's answered our prayers."

More than 5,000 students jammed the main square in the Greek Cypriot quarter of Nicosia, chanting, "Give us weapons to fight! No to partition! One unified Cyprus! Refugees to their homes!"

Later, Sebring's efforts to trace his mother were unsuccessful. Nor could Alberta Sebring find her long-lost son.

But the sailor's wife, Terry Sebring, sliced through the years. For an anniversary present and Valentine's Day gift, she gave her husband his mother.

Armed troops and police with clubs guarded the American Embassy and British diplomatic offices, which were attacked when the students last took to the streets, in January.

Terry said she started with her husband's birth certificate and called countless Sebrings in the Syracuse, N.Y., area before she found Mrs. Sebring, 63, in a U.N. sources in New York said the Security Council was expected to meet in the next few days to debate the new developments on the east Mediterranean island where U.N. troops have been stationed since 1964.

Bucs Go After Home Berth; Meet W&M

Jamesville Is Defeated

WASHINGTON — Regular season champion Belhaven downed Jamesville, 60-51, to gain the finals of the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Tournament last night.

Jamesville had earlier upset fourth place Aurora to gain the semifinals of the tournament. In the other game last night, Chocowinity took a 43-27 win over Bath in the girls' game.

Tonight, Aurora and Belhaven meet in a girls' game, with the boys' teams of Bear Grass and Bath colliding. The finals will be held Saturday night.

Jamesville had trouble getting going in the game, as Belhaven held them to only four points in the opening period. Belhaven pushed through 15 of their own during the eight minutes. In the second frame, Belhaven continued to build on its lead, outshooting the Bucs, 20-14. That gave the champs a 35-18 halftime lead. Jamesville outscored Belhaven, 14-12, in the third period, cutting the lead to 47-37. They also held a 19-13 advantage in the last quarter, but could not overcome the first half lead.

Vaughn Topping lead Belhaven with 25 points, while Nathaniel Ebron added 14. Jerry Ange was high for Jamesville with 16 points.

Jamesville is hopeful of a District I-A Tournament berth for next week, but might get nosed out by an independent because of its fifth place finish in the B-H-M league.

DANTLEY CARRIES THE BALL — Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley (44) swerves around St. John's Beaver Smith, left, as he dribbles the ball downcourt at New York's Madison Square Garden Thursday night in the first half of their game. Notre Dame took a 68-67 victory in the contest. (AP Wirephoto)

East Carolina University heads into the home stretch of the Southern Conference basketball race Saturday night, playing William & Mary's Indians in Williamsburg, Va.

The Bucs need to win one of their remaining three Southern Conference games to clinch a home berth for the first round of the league's tournament on March 1. Currently the Bucs hold down second place with an 8-3 record. They could clinch second place by winning two of their remaining three league games.

But the Indians will certainly be out to try and stop the Bucs and at the same time boost their own sagging spirits.

Perhaps the biggest hurdle the Bucs must overcome in the game will be their own depressed hopes of a conference title. But last Monday night, Furman all but wrapped up the title by coming from behind in the final two minutes to take a 71-70 victory in Minges Coliseum. It was a heart-breaking loss for the Pirates, who had played a fine game except for their foul shooting, where they went 0-8—a fatal point in a game that close.

"I can't understand our missing those free throws," Coach Dave Patton said. "It's something that you can never figure out. It probably will never happen again."

Patton said he and assistant coach George Estes went back to the Coliseum later Monday night and watched the video-tape of the game. "We were in control for 38 minutes—but the last two minutes was our undoing. Furman just started doing things right at that point and they took it from us."

Patton added that you cannot make the mistakes the Bucs made along with missing the free throws in a tight game against a good team like Furman. "It's the first time we didn't cash in when our free throws meant the game. You're going to have those nights."

The coach was extremely complimentary of the large, vocal crowd in Minges. "This was what we really needed," he said. "We really appreciate the support. And if we had won the game, the crowd would have been the deciding factor. I'm just sorry that we couldn't have won for them. We should have and could have won it."

"It also proves that when you put two good basketball teams on the floor, people in this area will come to see them," Patton added.

Despite the earlier loss to Appalachian State, Patton termed the Furman loss as the toughest of the year. "We didn't play well at Appalachian, but we did against Furman. We played well enough to win it."

"But who would have ever thought we'd get 0-8 at the line?" Patton looks for the William & Mary game to be a tough one.

"They carried us right to the wire here, and they'll be even tougher at home. They've already beaten some good teams on their floor—Virginia Tech, Wake Forest." Virginia Tech got revenge Wednesday night, however, taking a 101-78 victory over the Indians in Blacksburg.

"The game will be doubly tough since we need it so bad. I don't feel that we'll have a let-down. The players know that if we have one (like at ASU) we'll be in trouble. I think we have more pride."

William & Mary will play a different game than that usually used by the Bucs. They prefer to slow the ball down and wait patiently for the good shots. "They go with their basic five starters," Patton said. These include Mike Enoch, Ron Satterthwaite, Dennis Vail, John Lowenhaupt and Gary Byrd. Matt Cougauge has also seen a lot of action lately, too.

The Indians attack the boards fiercely, leading the conference in rebounding—an area Patton feels is important for the Bucs to do well in to win it.

Gregg Ashorn continues to lead the Pirate scoring with a 14.4 average. Robert Geter is averaging 12.1, while Larry Hunt has an 11.4 mark.

Hunt is the leading rebounder with a 10.3 mark, while Geter is getting 8.3 per game.

Game time for the contest is 8 p.m. in the William & Mary Center. Following that contest, the Pirates will return home for a meeting with Richmond on Wednesday. They close out the Southern Conference race on the following Saturday at The Citadel, and end the regular season on Monday, Feb. 24, playing host to Western Carolina.

Aycock Matmen Defeat Wilson

WILSON—E.B. Aycock used a major decision to gain a slim 22-21 victory over Wilson Junior High School yesterday in a wrestling match.

Aycock, now 4-1-1 overall, won six weight classes, taking one by a pin and five on decisions, one of them a 15-0 romp that awarded the Phantoms four points instead of the customary three for a simple decision.

Wilson, winning five weights, took two on pins to nearly offset the Aycock advantage of one extra win.

Aycock will host Rocky Mount on Wednesday.

Summary:

91: Ray Alexander (A) decisioned Pridgen, 5-3.

101: Hodges (W) pinned Clifton Paige, 1:00.

110: Tim Allen (A) decisioned Pettiford, 7-0.

118: Neal (W) decisioned Jesse Baker, 6-1.

126: David Telfair (A) decisioned Winstead, 13-6.

133: Rodgers (W) decisioned James Jenkins, 7-0.

140: McNeal (W) decisioned Virgil Tyson, 8-4.

148: Ramond Wooten (A) decisioned Johnson, 15-0.

158: Franklin Clark (A) pinned Heath, 3:55.

168: Burney Fleming (A) decisioned Pope, 7-0.

Heavyweight: Edwards (W) pinned James Spell, 1:30.

Eastern Plains

WILSON — The South Edgemore boys and the Elm City girls gained final round berths in the Eastern Plains Conference Tournament being played at Atlantic Christian College.

South Edgemore nipped North Edgemore, 70-69, to move into tonight's last round against regular-season champ Elm City.

In the girls' game, Elm City took a 65-59 double overtime win over South Edgemore. Elm City will meet Saratoga, the first place winner during the season, in the finals.

Oakmont Gets Win

Oakmont handed Black Jack a 61-60 setback in the Church Basketball League last night.

Black Jack, losing only its fourth game in 11 starts, built up a 33-29 lead at the end of the first half. But Oakmont came back with a 32-27 advantage in the second half, and it enabled them to pull out the one-point victory.

Lannie Norris led Oakmont with 16 points, while Don Hall and Bob Lamb each had 10. Bobby Edwards threw in 31 points for Black Jack, while Phil Page hit 13.

Allison Wins, But Gets Little For It

By F.T. MacFEELY
Associated Press Writer
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It's one down and four to go for Bobby Allison in his quest for five victories and nearly $100,000 in prize money in the weekend windup to Speed Weeks at Daytona International Speedway.

"I'm running all these races for prestige and prize money," said Allison Thursday after winning one of a pair of 125-mile heats building up to the $287,375 Daytona 500 on Sunday.

But he complained there wasn't much of either in that race.

"It pays next to nothing and it doesn't even count as a win for us in the NASCAR standings," Allison said. "We had to run it to get a good spot for Sunday."

He will start his Matador in third place in the Daytona 500, just behind his brother Donnie Allison in a Chevrolet and David Pearson in a Mercury.

The front two were guaranteed their positions when they posted the fastest qualifying times last Sunday. They also started at the front of the 125-mile heats.

Donnie Allison dropped out after only nine laps of the 2.5-mile high banked track. He said he developed an oil leak.

Pearson went on to win the other 125-miler, sweeping past Richard Petty's Dodge on the final lap. It was reminiscent of last summer's Firecracker 400, when Pearson shut off Petty and nosed him at the finish.

But Petty has had the last laugh in the richest stock car race, the Daytona 500. He has won it five times, Pearson none. Petty will start in fourth place Sunday.

Allison nipped Richard Brooks' Ford by 1.6 seconds in the first heat. Allison and Pearson each collected $1,500 for their victories. Allison went after $30,000 first prize in the finale of the $200,000 International Race of Champions as well as $7,400 first money in a 200-miler for modified stock cars on today's program. He started fourth in each.

In his own Chevrolet, Bobby Allison will go from the front row in the 300-miler for late model sportsman stock cars Saturday. That one pays $8,900 to the winner.

Jack Ingram, 1974 sportsman champion from Asheville, N.C., has the pole. He qualified his Chevrolet at 177.137 miles an hour compared to Allison's 176.827.

Joe Millikan of Randleman, N.C., who has branched out from a job as engine room worker for Petty into the driving ranks at the age of 24, starts in third place with a Dodge. Beside him is the second row will be Bill Dennis, of Glen Allen, Va., in a Mercury.

The closest anyone came to serious trouble in the 125-mile preliminaries was Buddy Baker. He was dueling Bobby Allison bumper to bumper when he blew a tire and went into a wild spin coming off the second corner 25 miles from the finish.

Baker pitted for a tire change and came home in sixth, earning a seventh row start in the Sunday feature.

Brooks and Cale Yarborough in a Chevrolet made the third row, followed by Lennie Pond in a Chevrolet, Dave Marcis in a Dodge, A.J. Foyt and 19-year-old Richie Panch, both in Chevrolets.

Win Makes Crum Feel Much Better

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Denny Crum got out of a hospital bed and onto a bench without wasting any time. It turned out to be just what the doctor ordered for the Louisville basketball coach.

All the therapy that Crum needed was an 86-66 victory over Drake Thursday night.

Just released Wednesday from a hospital after treatment for an inflamed appendix, Crum appeared to feel much better after his sixth-ranked team broke open the Missouri Valley Conference game with a runaway second half.

"We changed defenses at halftime into a disguised 2-3 zone," said Crum, whose team held a tenuous lead of 40-37 at intermission. "They shot 24 per cent in the second half and got only 29 points so we were playing pretty good defense."

"I don't think we played that much better in the second half but they just weren't hitting the shots they did in the first 20 minutes. In the second half we moved the ball a little better, especially inside to Bill Bunton. It was something we didn't do last week at Tulsa. (Louisville lost 82-77)."

Drake seemed bewitched, bothered and bewildered in the second half, according to Coach Bob Ortegale.

"They wore us down in the second half with defense," said Ortegale. "We got out-rebounded in that second half. We just couldn't get any second shots. We weren't penetrating the way we did in the first half, but that doesn't make any difference when you shoot 24 per cent."

Elsewhere in college basketball, the Air Force Academy stunned No. 15 Pan American 90-66 and No. 16 Notre Dame nipped St. John's, N.Y., 68-67. Jackson State, the nation's No. 1 small college team, walloped New Orleans of Xavier 112-71.

Allen Murphy scored 26 points and Bill Bunton had 14 to lead Louisville's victory. Louisville led only 54-52 with 15 minutes to play, but Drake went cold from the field, scoring only one field goal in the next 12 minutes while the Cardinals built an insurmountable 78-58 lead.

Chris Jones scored a career-high 27 points to lead the Air Force Academy over Pan American. The Falcons took advantage of bad shooting by Pan American, which hit only 22 of 74 shots for 29 per cent, and Air Force built leads up to 19 points in the first half.

The clutch second-half shooting of Toby Knight and a pair of key free throws by Adrian Dantley gave Notre Dame its victory over St. John's. The game was the second of a doubleheader at Madison Square Garden. Manhattan beat Connecticut 77-69 in the opener as George Bucco scored 29 points.

Brothers Eugene and Purvis Jackson combined for 51 points to pace Jackson State's easy triumph.

In other games it was: Wichita State 87, North Texas State 72; Furman 97, Richmond 88; Duquesne 83, Marshall 72; Bradley 92, Tulsa 87; Southern Illinois 79, St. Louis 63 and New Mexico State 73, West Texas State 53.

Maryland Seeks To Snap Chapel Hill Jinx

By The Associated Press
Maryland, which plays Saturday at North Carolina in a nationally televised basketball game, has won only once every 10 years at Chapel Hill since the formation of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

However, the Terps' fortunes in all games against the Big Four in North Carolina have improved since the arrival of coach Lefty Driesell six years ago.

At Chapel Hill, Maryland has won only twice while losing 18 in ACC competition. Before that, it won only five of 18 at North Carolina, for a 7-31 overall record.

The 1954-55 team won 70-60, and the 1964-65 team won 91-80.

Saturday's game between the two nationally ranked teams will start at 6 p.m.

Maryland, No. 3 in the nation on a 17-3 record, is the ACC leader. It has seven league victories against two defeats.

North Carolina, No. 11 nationally, is 15-5 in all games. It is tied for second in the conference at 6-2 with North Carolina State. N.C. State is 17-3 like Maryland, and No. 5 nationally.

The Maryland Terps will be making the trip to Chapel Hill with a week's rest after the most strenuous and successful eight days of the season. On successive Saturdays they defeated North Carolina State 98-97 in Raleigh and Duke 104-80 in Durham. In between, they beat Virginia 86-79 at home and Fordham 65-46 in New York's Madison Square Garden.

During the first 15 years of the ACC, Maryland had won only 10 of 60 games against the North Carolina Big Four of N.C. State, North Carolina, Duke and Wake Forest on their courts. But since coach Lefty Driesell came to College Park, the Terps have captured nine against 12 losses. Including a 64-61 victory at Duke last year, Driesell's Terps now claim a four-game winning streak against the Big Four, and have captured five of their last seven on Tobacco Road.

Maryland is 17-3 for the second time in history. The 1971-72 team also won 17 of its first 20 games. It stretched it to 19-3 and finished the regular season at 21-4.

In other games Saturday involving ACC teams, N.C. State will be at Wake Forest in a regionally televised 3 p.m. game, Duke at Clemson and Virginia at Pitt.

Conference teams did not play Thursday and are idle tonight.

Although Wake Forest is last in the conference at 2-8, it beat N.C. State in the Big Four Tournament in Greensboro early in January. The Deacons are 10-10 in all games. Against State they will be playing on their home court, where they have won their only two league victories.

ELIZABETH CITY — Joseph Eason got a hot hand and led Elizabeth City's Northeastern High School to a 74-71 victory over Rose High School last night, ending the regular season for both teams.

Eason pumped in 35 points, many of them from outside 20 feet, as he was the deciding factor in the game. Rose, however, still nearly pulled off the victory, rallying from as much as 11 down to tie the score in the final two minutes, only to lose it on three foul shots.

The victory allowed Northeastern to run its record to 18-2 on the year, and extend its winning streak to 18, second longest in the state. They finished the conference year with a perfect 10-0 mark.

Rose ended on a 13-8 mark and had a 6-4 conference record, good enough for second place in the league. It marked almost a complete turnaround for the Rampants, who won only two games last year, and just one the year before that. And in both of those years, they failed to win a conference game.

The two teams shot almost equally well. Rose hit on 27 of 60 shots for 45 per cent. Northeastern made good on 30 of 63 for 47.6 per cent.

Rose outrebanded the Eagles, 44-32, but had five more turnovers, 34-29, and that helped to make the difference.

Overall—it was Eason's scoring, and the quickness of the Eagles that turned in a number of steals for easy baskets.

Rose grabbed the early lead, scoring first on Linwood Brown's drive in the first minute of play. Northeastern tied it up at 2-2, and 4-4, but Rose got another basket from Brown, plus two free throws from Mike Brewington. Brown added another two-pointer and Ronnie Barrett tossed one in from the baseline for a 12-4 Rose lead with 4:23 left.

It was then that Eason began his barrage, hitting five straight baskets for the Eagles as they fought back and tied the score at 16-16 with 59 seconds left. Brewington put Rose back out with 26 seconds left, but Lee Pritchard's shot from the corner with four seconds left tied the two again, 18-18.

Rose got the opening basket of the second quarter, but Eason drove in for a layup to tie it again. Ten seconds later, he stole the ball for another basket, putting the Eagles into the lead for the first time, 22-20. Donald Nixon added a free throw for a 23-20.

Rose came back to regain the lead on Lindberg Morris' jumper with 4:15 left, 26-25, but Eason again hit for a 27-25 Eagles edge. He stole the ball for another score, and after the two teams exchanged baskets, Pritchard hit for a 33-28 lead, the biggest margin of the half for Northeastern.

Rose came back on three straight baskets to gain the lead again, 34-33 with Morris hitting, but a basket by Ray Scott just before the end gave Northeastern a 35-34 lead at intermission.

Northeastern hit the first three baskets of the third period to run their lead out to 41-34. The two then exchanged baskets until the Eagles got another spurt, this time going out to a 54-43 lead with 2:04 to go, as Bobby Vaughan hit. Rose cut it back and trailed, 58-51 as the final period began.

Midway through the final period, Rose was still down by 11 points, 71-61, but then put on a rally at the free throw line. Macon Moyer started it with a pair and Tyrone Taft hit two there, then got a basket, and added two more at the line. Then, with 1:30 left, he stole the ball for a layup and a 71-71 tie.

Northeastern went into a freeze to try and get the last shot, but Vaughan was fouled with 35 seconds left, hitting both for a 73-71 lead. Rose turned the ball over on the trip down the court, and with 21 seconds left, Scott hit the first shot of a one-and-one to sew it up for the Eagles.

Besides Eason's total, which included 16 field goals, Vaughan had 14. Rose was led by Brown and Morris with 14 each, while Brewington had 13.

Rose's junior varsity closed out on the short end of a 69-41 score. Northeastern rolled up a 19-12 lead in the first period, but Rose outthrew them, 14-13, in the second period. The Eagles led, 32-26 at the half.

The third period was the decisive one as Northeastern outthrew Rose 17-7. That ran their lead to 49-27. They finished Rose off with a 20-8 margin.

Mike Jones led Northeastern with 14 points, while Curtis Keys had 12 and Randy Pellisero had 11 for Rose.

The Rampants will be back in action Tuesday night as they play host to the winner of the Northern Nash-Rocky Mount game at 7:30 in the Rose High Gym.

Carbide Near Title

The race for the Industrial Basketball League's Division II title boiled down to two teams last night, with Union Carbide needing only two wins or two Wachovia Bank losses to clinch the title.

Wachovia stayed within reach of the Batterymen with a 55-54 win over Pitt Memorial Hospital in the opening game of the evening. The loss eliminated Pitt Memorial. Pitt held a 27-25 lead at halftime, but Wachovia came back to outthrust them, 30-27, to gain the win.

Bill Baggett led Wachovia with 16 points, while Leon Johnson had 15 and Don Harrison had 14. Dan Edwards led Pitt with 19, while Charles Taft had 16 and Clarence Taft had 11. Union Carbide gained a 79-65 win over NCNB in the second game, moving closer to the title. NCNB held a 38-35 lead at intermission, but a 44-27 margin by Union Carbide in the second half overcame that.

Marvin Hardy led the Batterymen with 23 points, while Tommy Roach had 19, Garland Warren had 17 and Jimmy Sutton had 16. For NCNB, Randy Martin had 20, Cliff Barbee had 16, Roy Carawan had 13 and Tony Whitehurst had 12.

E. Wayne In Finals

SPRING HOPE—Eastern Wayne, third-place finisher during the regular season, moved into the finals of the Eastern Carolina Conference girls' tournament last night.

Eastern downed Southern Nash, which had upset second-seeded Southern Wayne earlier. Eastern took a 42-32 victory.

That will send Eastern against regular-season champ Farmville Central in the finals tonight.

In the junior varsity tournament, fifth place Southern Nash upset champ North Lenoir, 40-38, to move into the finals against Southern Wayne. Southern Wayne downed Greene Central, which had been reinstated into the tournament after losing to North Pitt on Wednesday. North Pitt had been declared a forfeit loser in the game due to the use of an eligible player.

No Excuses For Miller

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Johnny Miller declined to take refuge in the handy excuse of ill health and shrugged off a one-over-par 73.

"Just one of those days. One of those rounds. Everybody has 'em — even me, believe it or not."

But Miller, who went over par for only the third time this season, still had his sights set on his fourth victory in five starts in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

"I'm not out of it by any means," said the young man who has been the sensation of the pro golf tour for the past 14 months. "Tomorrow will be a big round for me. I'm looking forward to it. A good round and I'm right back in it."

Miller, fighting what he called a mild case of flu, was seven strokes out of the lead after Thursday's first round.

The lead belonged to 6-foot-5 Peter Oosterhuis, an English import who is playing his first full season on the American tour. Oosterhuis, playing in cloudy, cool and windy weather reminiscent of his homeland, had a six-under-par 66.

The 26-year-old Oosterhuis, for the last four years Europe's leading player, held a one-stroke advantage over John Schroeder, Artie McNickle and Mark Hayes, tied at 67.

Two other British Commonwealth players — Bruce Crampton of Australia and John Lister of New Zealand — were in a group at 68 that also included Lou Graham, Phil Rodgers, Ray Floyd and Bobby Wadkins.

Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player are not competing.

While Miller admittedly was disappointed over his round, Oosterhuis has been disappointed with his season.

The ruddy-cheeked Englishman has led Britain's Order of Merit for the past four years. He's the current French and Italian Open titleholder. He's finished as high as third in the Masters. He lost to Lee Elder in a five-hole sudden-death playoff for the Monsanto Open title at Pensacola, Fla., last year.

But he's had nothing but troubles since gaining his credentials as a full-fledged member of the American tour late last fall. In five starts this season he's won only $2,000 and hasn't finished higher than a tie for 36th.

Washington Didn't Like Pay

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Wide receiver Gene Washington testified Thursday he decided to become a free agent in the National Football League when the Minnesota Vikings offered what he considered a $16,250 pay cut.

That, added Washington, came after he had proved himself in the pro ranks for four years and was named to the Pro Bowl teams of 1969 and 1970.

The 6-foot-3 Washington, a first-round draft choice in 1967 from Michigan State University, was signed to four one-year pacts and an $80,000 bonus totaling $165,000.

This averaged $41,250. But when Washington met with General Manager Jim Finks in 1971, he said, the offer was three one-year contracts calling for $25,000, $27,000 and either $31,000 or $32,000.

"I told him I was surprised and disappointed he would make an offer like that in view of the fact I was All-Pro two years," said Washington, who is one of 16 present or former players suing the NFL to try to overturn the so-called Rozelle Rule.

Washington said Finks told him that all clubs "like to give rookies bonuses, but after that you don't qualify to receive a bonus as such."

He said he expected at least a $50,000 minimum and a three- or four-year contract, but Finks made no counter-offer at that time, shortly before the 1971 training camp began.

Furman Nears Southern Title

By The Associated Press

Furman's two-time defending champion Paladins have moved to within one victory of clinching the top-seeded spot in the season-ending Southern Conference championship basketball tournament.

The Paladins ran their league record to 9-0, with three conference games remaining, with a 97-88 triumph Thursday night over Richmond despite a 40-point barrage by the Spiders' Bob McCurdy, the nation's No. 3 major college scorer.

Either one more Furman victory or one East Carolina defeat will assure the Paladins of the No. 1 spot in the tournament, which determines the league champion and the conference representative in the National Collegiate Athletic Association playoffs.

The first four games of this year's tournament, unlike previous years, will be played Saturday, March 1, on the home court of the four highest seeded teams. The semifinals and finals will be played March 5-6 on Furman's home court at Greenville, S. C.

The Richmond-Furman game was the only one Thursday night involving conference teams, and all league teams are idle tonight.

Furman, 15-6 over-all, took a 42-31 lead at intermission and boosted the margin to 55-37 after with just 2:52 gone in the second half.

The Paladins' leader was Michael Hall with 29 points, 19 in the last 20 minutes as Furman beat back several Richmond comeback attempts. Fessor Leonard had 21 points, Ronnie Smith 18 and Clyde Mays 10 points and 17 rebounds.

Kevin Eastman added 28 points for Richmond, which fell to 5-5 in the conference and 7-13 over-all.

One Way To Stop Barry

By The Associated Press

Bill Fitch says he knows the best way to keep Golden State's Rick Barry from wrecking the rest of the National Basketball Association.

"The way you have to play Barry is to run him at both ends of the court," Cleveland's coach said after his Cavaliers overhauled the Warriors 96-93 in Thursday night's only NBA game.

But there's an even better way. Keep him on the bench. That's where Barry was for most of the fourth period, when the Cavs shot into the lead and pulled away for the victory.

In the American Basketball Association, Indiana nipped Virginia 107-105, Memphis beat St. Louis 120-114 and Denver downed Utah 116-112.

Barry's late-game absence — due to a slight ankle injury — wasn't the only thing that hurt

Golden State. Bad shooting and ball-handling contributed to the downfall.

"We just ran into a very cold spot at the end of the third quarter and it carried over into the fourth," said Warriors' Coach Al Attles, referring to a 6½-minute stretch when the Cavaliers outscored Golden State 19-2. "We turned the ball over four or five times there and they made the shots and put us right out of it."

Jim Clemons led Cleveland with 23 points. Barry and Keith Wilkes had 20 for the Warriors.

Sounds 120, Spirits 114

George Carter scored a game-high 34 points while Center Tom Owens hit 26, including eight in a fourth quarter burst against his former teammates to help Memphis turn back the host Spirits. The spree turned a one-point deficit into a 113-104 lead with 2:11 to play.

Marvin Barnes scored 30 points and Gus Gerard had 29 for St. Louis.

Beltone Unbeaten

The Women's Basketball League concluded its regular season last night, with Beltone completing a sweep of its games.

Beltone downed the Buccaneers, 66-27, to end the year with a perfect 6-0 mark. They held a 34-13 lead at the half, and outthrust Buccaneer, 32-14, in the second half.

Lyn Kearney, P.J. Taylor and Debbie Pollard each had 16 points to lead Beltone, while Vangie Jones added 10. Patricia Hamilton had 11 to pace Buccaneer.

In the other game, Little Mint romped to a 42-8 win over Daniel Construction. Little Mint held a 22-4 lead at the half, and outthrust Daniel, 20-4, in the second half. Leslie Ball led Little Mint with 16, while Carol Manuel had 10. Janice Fisher and Katherine Daniels each had four for Daniel.

The league tournament will begin next Thursday, with Daniel meeting Beltone, and Little Mint taking on Buccaneer. The finals will be held the following Thursday with the two winners meeting.

Northeast Tournament

WILLIAMSTON—Plymouth's girls and Ahsokie's boys moved into the finals of the Northeastern Conference basketball tournament last night.

Ahsokie nipped second-seeded Edenton, 59-58, in a thriller. They will now meet regular-season champ Washington for the title tonight.

Plymouth took a 57-49 win over Bertie in the girls' game. Plymouth will test unbeaten Williamston for the title tonight.

Stokes In Tenth Win

FARMVILLE — Stokes-Pactolus Junior High School closed out the season with the girls achieving a perfect 10-0 record on the year.

Stokes-Pactolus downed Farmville, 22-20 in the last game yesterday to gain the mark. Cynthia Barnes led Sto-Pac with 10 points, while Hart had nine for Farmville.

In the boys' game, Farmville rolled to a 63-39 victory. Tim Corey led Stokes with 16 points, while Tyson had 23 for Farmville. The Stokes boys finished with a 4-6 record.

Rampants Get Tournery Bye

Despite a loss last night, Rose High School's Rampants received the second-place bye in the Division I tournament, which starts Saturday.

Northeastern, 10-0, captured the regular season title, and will also get a bye. Tuesday, the Eagles will play host to the winner of Saturday night's game between Wilson and Bertie, both 4-6 in league play. That game will be played in Wilson.

In the other Saturday game, Northern Nash, 5-5, will play host to Rocky Mount, 1-9. The winner of that will come to Greenville on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. to meet the Rampants, 6-4. The finals of the tournament will be played on Wednesday at the site of the higher seeded team of the two.

Northeastern has already clinched one of the two state tournament berths the league is allowed this year. Should they win the tournament, they will meet the Division IV's second place team, either Richmond County or Terry Sanford. Should Northeastern not win the tournament, they would take the Division V winner, Raleigh Broughton.

Upchurch To Be Speaker

FARMVILLE—Eugene Upchurch, of the North Carolina Museum of History will speak at a meeting of high school science clubs this Friday afternoon at Farmville Central High School. The district meeting is in association with the N.C. Student Academy of Science, sponsored by the Museum.

Over 250 students from schools making up District VII are expected to attend the half-day session which will involve not only Upchurch's talk but, student involvement in discussions relating to current science topics.

Dr. Floyd Read, of the East Carolina Science Education Department said the meeting will give, "Special information of student activities and allow groups to discuss with others these activities."

Policeman For Grifton

GRIFTON—The Grifton Board of Commissioners Tuesday night hired William McCotter as a full-time policeman.

McCotter has been employed by the Grifton Police Department as a part-time policeman since September.

McCotter is a native of Grifton. He served in the U.S. Marine Corps.

He and his wife, Loretta, have one daughter, Leticia, three. They live in Ayden.

The board agreed to install a tree light behind the J.A. Rodgers Furniture Store.

The Grifton Police Department reported 19 arrests were made during the month of January.

Mayor Dave Bosley explained few street lights have been ordered for several sections in Grifton and will be installed by Carolina Power and Light Company as soon as they arrive.

City School Bd. Meets Monday

The regular meeting of the Greenville City Board of Education for February will be at 8 p.m. Monday, February 17 at Eastern Elementary School.

The meeting will take place in the multi-purpose room of the school, which will be opened half an hour prior to the meeting time to permit board members and visitors to visit classrooms.

Among agenda items for the February meeting are: the 1975-76 budget presentation; middle school educational specifications; acquisition of property for Sadie Saulter school; a community development program, adult education class; non-food assistance funds; new food reimbursement rates; and a special board committees report.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: If you try to force conditions to your will now, you are in for unpleasant, delaying conditions, but if you go along with the tide you make rapid, unexpected progress. Listen attentively to what those of different backgrounds suggest.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use your intuition to help yourself today, since conditions are rather difficult. Avoid snide remarks and live by highest principles.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't fail to keep promises made, or you get into trouble. Drive carefully. Try to please loved one more. Steer clear of troublesome person.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Listen to associates' suggestions, since your affairs aren't going as well as you wish. Handle conditions wisely. Help others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get needed work done, though you want to go out for pleasure. Take no chances with one who has a peculiar sense of humor.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get out and have a good time; forget dreary chores. Show more affection for your mate. Avoid a foolish tangent.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Improve conditions at home and forget friends for today, since they are not in a good mood. Avoid arguments. Enjoy solitude.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle outside affairs carefully and put aside some public activity that has not been working out as expected. Be tactful at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get busy on practical matters to increase money and remove worry. Take care of wallet while shopping. Avoid trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't overspend or invest heavily, or you could regret it. Accept some social invitation and listen carefully. Update self on world events.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Not a good day for doing specialized work, since you feel nervous, so take it easy and await a better time for such. Get expert advice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get together with fine friends for recreation and have an excellent time. Being a lone wolf and fretting gets you nowhere fast.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Forget some new interest and concentrate on career and public matters that are important to you. Not a good fun day at all.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be searching for the right philosophy of life to lean upon upon reaching maturity, so be sure to help him or her to find it early by inculcating the right principles, and then this becomes a successful chart, especially where work in foreign lands or in connection with them is concerned, even in the religious field. Teach early to let go of whatever is no longer of use.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Wallace Marks 'Historic Day'

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — Times do change. Gov. George Wallace, whose 1963 battlecry was "segregation ... segregation tomorrow ... segregation forever," is being interviewed on public TV tonight by an all-black panel.

He'll field questions from four newsmen in "Black Perspective on the News," a half-hour series produced by station WHY-TV in Philadelphia. The interview was taped Feb. 6 in Montgomery, Ala.

The Alabama governor was asked to appear on the show as part of its increased effort to "cover as many views that are prominent in national news as we can," says Reginald Bryant, the series' moderator.

However, he conceded, "We also thought it might be something of a coup to have him face four black journalists, as opposed to a mixed bag of blacks and whites or whatever."

Bryant, who co-produces the weekly series, said his staff began trying to arrange the interview last October. In December, he said, Wallace's staff suggested it be held after Wallace's inauguration.

Bryant said he met with no hostility from the governor's staff while trying to set up the interview, despite the delay.

"Quite the contrary," he said. "In fact, his press secretary confided after the taping that they held us off a little bit just to see how much we really wanted to do the interview, and also to take a look at the program to see what kind of show we had on the air."

Did Wallace seem ill at ease because of the all-black panel? "No," Bryant said. "He's kind of a feisty guy and he thinks he can handle anybody. He just took everybody on and vice-versa ... in fact, he was in no hurry to leave when the taping was over."

"He was ready to stay there and trade questions." Did Wallace comment on being interviewed by four black journalists? "Yes, but it was kind of mutual," Bryant said. "He said it was something of a historic day that day."

Holiday weekend viewing: Cher, no longer of Sonny & Cher, kicks off her weekly music-variety series on CBS this Sunday with the help of Wayne "M-A-S-H" Rogers, Tatum O'Neal and Raquel Welch.

Cher's Sunday night opener is in the "maybe" viewing category. But don't miss Perry Como's Monday night CBS special from the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville. It has much good music and little chatter. If country music isn't your bag, try public TV's "At the Top" jazz program Monday night.

Reluctant To Discuss U.S. Defectors In Indochina

By ALAN DAWSON
SAIGON (UPI) — One of America's most closely held and least-discussed secrets of Vietnam has been the subject of defectors to the Viet Cong. U.S. officials said last week they had information that one of the men, Army Corporal Mckinley Nolan, still was on battlefields with Viet Cong forces in Cambodia. Although spokesmen claimed Nolan was the only known defector to the Communists during the Vietnam War, other documented cases exist. American officials have always refused to discuss the defectors, but newsmen have turned up cases other than Nolan's during the past eight years. Rumors of Americans fighting for the Viet Cong had gone the rounds in Saigon for years before 1969, when the case of the "Marine Viet Cong" got wide publicity.

U.S. Marines on patrol near the Demilitarized Zone that year claimed they were ambushed by North Vietnamese troops and an American in a Marine uniform. Members of the patrol said they shot, and apparently killed, the American. U.S. spokesmen first claimed they had no knowledge of the incident, but after a newsman traced one of the patrol members and talked to him, the officials clammed up completely. Another patrol went to try to find the dead defector's body. They found blood trails at the ambush site, but no sign of any Caucasian. Even more mysterious, because of official secrecy, was the case of Salt, Pepper and Pork Chop, three American soldiers who allegedly fought for the Viet Cong for years along the northern and central coast of South Vietnam. The three men, armed with U.S. weapons and always in the company of Communist troops, were spotted dozens of times between 1969 and 1972. During the Communist offensive in 1972, scores of unrelated reports flowed to the U.S. command and newsmen from South Vietnamese soldiers and civilians who said they had seen them. They were seen so often they acquired the nicknames. Salt was white, Pepper was black, and Pork Chop had long, sweeping sideburns. UPI reporter Edward Bassett talked with refugees from northern Binh Dinh Province who said they had seen the three Americans operating with Viet Cong soldiers. U.S. officials to this day have refused all comment on the three. In early 1969, U.S. Marine Pfc. Kon Sweeney of Brooklyn, New York, disappeared from his unit in northern South Vietnam. Listed as a deserter, Sweeney turned up on Vietnamese Communist radio, exhorting GIs to desert. Sweeney returned to the United States via Sweden in 1971, was convicted of being absent without leave, a relatively minor offense, and his case was quickly buried. There have been numerous other rumors of defectors, including a phantom Australian whose voice was recorded by an American Broadcasting Company crew in 1967 as he apparently tried to lure U.S. troops into a Viet Cong ambush. No trace of that "Australian" or other defectors to the Communists has ever been found. Official secrecy and terse "no comments", both from American and Viet Cong spokesmen, have only made newsmen more curious.

Door To 'Dead' Skylab Satellite Not Locked; No Visitors Expected

By RONALD L. LITTLEPAGE
HOUSTON (UPI) — Earth-orbiting Skylab, once a fragile trouble-ridden home away from home for nine astronauts, is dark, cold and almost forgotten.

The big ship was the focal point of NASA bureaucracy and the day-to-day lives of hundreds of men and women in the early 1970s. Three three-man crews lived aboard the $250 million craft for a total of 171 days, each setting space endurance records.

Now the 118-foot long, 200,000-pound piece of space junk is a quiet island in the sky, slowly dropping from its 270-mile high orbit and destined to lose a battle with gravity and plummet to earth in the next decade.

When the last crew crawled through the hatch for the final time a year ago, they left the eight-room workshop which was home for 84 days as tidy as an operating room.

"We went through much like you would if you were leaving a vacation house and cleaned everything up," said Neil Hutchinson, one of the mission's flight directors. "The crew swept the floor and cleaned out the sink and the commode and threw all the garbage and dirty towels out."

"We also turned everything off. It was as if when you left a beachhouse, you went out there and not only did you trip all the circuit breakers in the box but you also cut the wires from the power company."

"It is completely dark in there. We put all the window shades up and all the window covers up. So there's no sunlight shafting into the vehicle at all, anywhere."

Still inside are mementoes such as the astronauts' favorite books and country and western music tapes taken aboard by the first commander, Charles "Pete" Conrad.

NASA scientists left an impromptu time capsule—a gunnysack-size bag filled with items such as rehydratable mashed potatoes, pudding, surgical gloves, fire sensors and teleprinter paper.

"The idea was to get materials and test them for a long duration exposure to a vacuum and space environment," Hutchinson said. "We put them all in this big bag and then tethered the bag right inside the hatch so all you would have to do is dock and go in there and pick them up."

However, it's improbable the items will be recovered before the workshop's orbit grows closer and closer to earth and the craft disintegrates in the atmosphere.

"The only way you could recover them is presupposing you went back," Hutchinson said. "It's highly doubtful we would go back. God only knows we squeezed more out of that thing than it had in it."

It's conceivable spacemen from foreign countries could board Skylab if they had a compatible docking system.

"It would be pretty tough," Hutchinson said. "They would have to go in hard suit because there's no way for them to pressurize the thing. And there's no electricity in there. But it's not out of the realm of possibility."

"There's no lock on the door. You could just open the door and go in."

The Skylab mission was beset with problems ranging from defective solar panels to uncooperative gyroscopes. But in the end, it was one of the space agency's biggest triumphs, operational from May, 1973 to February, 1974.

Hutchinson spent two years of concentrated work on the mission. He seldom thinks of it
