

N.C. Seeks Bigger Share Of Road Funds

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina is likely to get more than its share of $2 billion in impounded federal highway funds that were released by President Ford.

T.J. Morawski of the U.S. Department of Transportation said North Carolina normally would get less than $50 million, but because the Tar Heel state is in position to take advantage of the program and many other state aren't, the state will get much more. State Transportation Secretary Troy Doby said North Carolina will get at least $100 million, possibly more than $200 million.

The state Board of Transportation planning committee gave its approval Monday to Doby's request that a list of projects totaling $145 million be quickly prepared for awarding contracts.

The list was drawn up by Department of Transportation staff and its projects they believe can be brought into the program. The list included some projects that had been planned for as late as 1980.

Also, an attempt will be made to bring another $88 million worth of previously approved maintenance projects into the federal program.

Ford released the $2 billion to help provide jobs for construction workers. States were given until June 30 to have contracts awarded to qualify for the funds.

Also, states must provide matching funds of 10 per cent for interstate and safety projects and 30 per cent for other projects. Morawski told the committee that some states don't have the matching funds or they don't have projects far enough along for contracts to be awarded so quickly.

Doby predicted that the windfall funds will push the state's seven year road program ahead by "a year-and-a-half or two years." Doby said he and Gov. Jim Holshouser were to meet with federal transportation officials today.

To have the projects qualify for the federal money, Doby said it would take "a major effort" on the part of his staff. The board approved overtime for workweeks of 60 to 65 hours so the project proposals could be completed quickly.

Because of the windfall, North Carolina is qualified for $226.4 million in federal road funds. Normally the state would get about $26 million, Doby said. To get the maximum federal money the department still needs to come up with $63 million in projects, he said, adding that it could be done if an extension in the June 30 deadline is granted.

In the programs where there is a 90 per cent or better chance of meeting the federal deadline, $96.6 million would be in interstate projects, $31 million would be in rural primary roads, $5 million would be in safety projects while the rest would be divided among other projects.

The federal program allows states to use as much as 20 per cent of the funds they get for acquiring right of way. The proposed North Carolina plan would use slightly more than 10 per cent to buy land.

Doby said the list presented Monday is only a working list and likely will be modified. He said some projects probably will be dropped and others added because of unexpected developments.

$3,058,606 City School Budget Presented Board

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A total budget of $3,058,606 has been recommended for the Greenville City School system for school year 1975-76. The new budget was presented at the monthly board meeting Monday night by Superintendent of City Schools Glenn Cox.

At this early stage, the budget proposals are figures developed by the administrative staff of the school system and must undergo the scrutiny of the school board in a series of workshop meetings prior to presentation of the budget to the County Commissioners.

Broken down into the two major categories, the proposed budget shows $2,031,106 recommended for current expenses; and $1,027,500 for capital outlay. This is an increase of $603,124 over the 1974-75 current expenses budget; and an increase of $620,000 over the 1974-75 capital outlay budget.

The single biggest increase recommended is $500,000 for new buildings and fees in the capital outlay budget. Cox noted this is the first time in several years that money has been requested for new buildings, and is reserve funds needed for a new school building. (This would be a new elementary school scheduled in long range plans).

Members of the school board will meet on February 24, March 3 and March 10 in budget workshop sessions prior to the regular March 17 school board meeting and will also meet for a final workshop session on March 24 if an additional meeting is necessary.

After a brief presentation by Dr. Martin Lutz of a city wide PTA Council list of safety needs for all the schools, the board dwelt at length on possible action to take. The outcome of the discussions was approval of a motion to endorse the concept of a 24 hour leash law for dogs. This matter is coming up for action soon before the City Council. In other safety recommendations, board members asked Cox to make a report to show status of actions taken and actions needed to be taken.

Endorsement of a leash law is based on extensive problems in all of the schools — with verified reports of children being bitten by dogs and frightened by dogs roaming the school grounds and in some instances coming into school buildings.

On planning stages for the development of educational specifications for the middle school, a proposal for forming various committees was approved. The recommended plan includes four consultants — from the Division of School Planning of the State Department of Public Instruction and the School of Education, East Carolina University; the design firm of Dudley and Shoe, Architects; and three major committees encompassing 17 sub-committees.

Under this plan, school staff, including principals, will head committees and sub-committees with membership made up of school staff, parents and teachers. Meetings will be held on February 20, 25, 27, with two meetings are scheduled for March 12.

Cox reported that he has been in contact with property owners of land adjacent to Sadie Sauter Elementary School and that progress is being made in plans for acquiring land.

Robert Stewart, Director of Administrative Services, reported that under the Community Development Program, a total of $7,280 had been allocated by the city for assistance to the school system. These funds, Stewart said, are providing salary money for an electrician, a painter and a laborer for a six month period that ends July 20.

Stewart also reported that under a new rate schedule for reimbursement of lunch monies, the food services will now be getting approximately five cents more per plate in reimbursement.

In yet another funding report, Cox mentioned that Title I federal funds (which are based on student census and poverty levels), have been established at 27.45 per cent of available funds for the Greenville City Schools and 72.55 per cent for the Pitt County Schools. This represents a minor increase in percentage of three-one hundredths of one percent and was accepted by the board members as the approved pro-rate breakdown figure. Mrs. Audrey Whitehurst, Director of Secondary Education, reported that the recent annual overview meeting relative to vocational education had been highly successful. Last year 25 community people were in attendance, and 50 to 60 were expected this year. However, the turn out amounted to approximately 150 people from the community.

Director of Elementary Education Charles Ross reported the receipt of an additional allotment of $10,344 from ESEA Title I funds which are to be used to supplement existing programs in the elementary grades.

Representatives of the British Broadcasting Company were in Greenville yesterday and today, filming sequences to be used in an hour-long documentary on Edward R. Murrow, to be aired in England on April 27, the tenth anniversary of Murrow's death.

Murrow, a native of Guilford County, was affiliated with the Columbia Broadcasting system for 26 years, and when Hitler began his move in Europe, was the first person to make an official broadcast of the war.

He visited Greenville as part of his duties as head of the U.S. Information Agency, the parent organization of the Voice of America in the early 1960's.

The documentary's producer-director Peter Foges, and Frank Gillard—a noted English correspondent who worked with Murrow during World War II and is script writer and narrator for the BBC production—interviewed a number of local residents yesterday on their recollections of Murrow.

"What does the name Ed Murrow mean to you? What broadcasts do you remember? This is the kind of thing we want," Foges said.

Murrow's wartime broadcasts began "This is London." Dr. C. Sylvester Green, one of those filmed yesterday, told Gillard in the interview that Murrow was "one of the great idols of my life," and that he heard the "first of his great series of war broadcasts September 12, 1938." Murrow, according to Green, began this program, "There is little optimism in London tonight."

Green, an articulate speaker himself, said he admired Murrow's "voice and vocabulary" and remembered other of his programs, such as Person to Person, See It Now, and CBS Reports.

NOT LAWFUL

Is it lawful for an apartment complex manager to hold your furniture when you're moving for non-payment of rent? M.M.

It is not lawful, according to local attorney, Louis Gaylor. He would not have a lien on your personal property, unless you were to leave it in the apartment for more than 60 days without paying for tenancy.

NO LICENSE NEEDED

Would I have to buy a license to tutor in order to charge for the service? How much should I charge if it is okay? B.C.

According to E.R. Carraway of the N.C. Department of Revenue office here, a license is not needed. City Schools superintendent Glenn Cox said there are no restrictions on tutoring and that it would be up to the person for whom you're working as to whether you're qualified and between the two of you as to what you should be paid.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

STILL IN HOSPITAL

Hotline has had numerous inquiries about the health of year-old Tera Flood, written in Hotline Jan. 22.

Tera sustained serious brain injury Dec. 14 when her brain cells were deprived of oxygen while her windpipe was blocked by a piece of wiener. Hotline was appealing for a place and persons to care for her after she is released from the hospital. Her grandmother, Mrs. Abner Miller, said the family is appreciative of the response received, but that no plans have been made because Tera has had flu and pneumonia since the appeal was run and continues to need hospital care at present.

The Floods live at 121-B Lakeview Terrace Apartments, Greenville.

Retaliation By Procrastinators

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Procrastinator's Club of America was angered by the early celebration of George Washington's birthday.

So the club picked Monday to celebrate the birthday of Millard Fillmore, the nation's 13th president, who was born Jan. 7, 1800.

"We wouldn't mind if Lincoln's Birthday were celebrated Feb. 17 (he was born on Feb. 12), but we resent the idea of celebrating Washington's birthday ahead of time," said chapter president Les Waas.

Rockets Hit Town On Phnom Penh's Outskirts

By MATT FRANJOLA
Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Khmer Rouge insurgents fired two rockets into a village near Phnom Penh's airport today, killing at least five persons and wounding 12, according to reports from the scene. Most of the victims were children.

The village is two miles west of downtown Phnom Penh. A third round of rockets fell on a nearby military helicopter landing pad, causing no casualties, the reports said.

Three other rounds struck the airport area earlier but there were no casualties.

Phnom Penh has been under daily rocket and artillery attack since New Year's Day when the insurgents began their current offensive. Military sources say 100 persons, mostly civilians, have been killed and nearly 250 wounded.

In northwestern Cambodia, government forces launched a drive to retake a district town and rice depot, the Cambodian military command said.

The government gave no details of the new military operation to recapture Mong Russei, 150 miles northwest of Phnom Penh. But a delayed report said the insurgents who occupied the town early Monday burned more than 100 houses, the Phnom Penh military command said.

Earlier reports said the Khmer Rouge rebels captured 125,000 sacks of unhusked rice, the equivalent of 2,000 tons of milled grain.

The town had a population of 10,000, but casualties were not known.

The South Vietnamese military command reported one of the heaviest shelling attacks in months in the An Loc region 60 miles north of Saigon. It said more than 500 mortar rounds and rocket grenades were fired at three government positions, but the only casualties were two militiamen wounded.

An Loc, the capital of Binh

Long province, is the only major position still held by the government in the province.

Li. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the Saigon command, claimed that government air strikes destroyed 32 North Vietnamese trucks and damaged seven others in a 60-truck convoy in the central highlands near the Laotian border about 245 miles northeast of Saigon.

Omitted In 'Priorities'

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

A committee of the State Board of Transportation yesterday failed to include any local projects in its list of priorities expected to be funded from $2 million in federal highway money released by President Gerald Ford.

Bill Ingram of the Project Management office of the Department of Transportation, said this morning that projects in the Pitt County area were not far enough advanced to meet the June 30 bid-letting deadline.

Ingram said the Department of Transportation is currently acquiring rights-of-way along the proposed project to four-lane U.S. 264 from Bailey to tie in with I-95 on the west side of Wilson. Bids will be taken on that portion of the project early in 1976.

Ingram said a section of U.S. 264 from Zebulon to Bailey is under contract.

Ingram said a section of U.S. 264 from Zebulon to Bailey is under contract.

Ingram said the Department of Transportation plans to take bids in April on the four laning of N.C. 11-U.S. 13 from Memorial Drive to the intersection of Highway 903 (Stokes). Bids will also be taken, hopefully in April, for the Spring Hope bypass (U.S. 64 from Nashville and N.C. 231).

Ingram said the State Board of Transportation was trying to get as many projects as possible included in the special funding. "The main project is the completion of I-95 from Kenly in Johnston County to Goldrock in Nash County," Ingram said. "This project includes 36 miles and will cost an estimated $61 million."

Final approval of the proposed priorities is expected to come from the full board at their meeting on March 7.

The list of projects was compiled by Division of Highways staff members during the past week.

Projects selected were those that were nearly completed in planning, right-of-way acquisition, environmental statements and public hearings.

Secrecy Upheld

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—A request by the Gastonia Gazette for a temporary injunction to stop an executive session of the Gastonia City Council planned for today was denied Monday afternoon by Superior Court Judge Ken Griffin.

Judge Griffin of Charlotte ruled that city plans for a secret session are legal.

The session was scheduled for a discussion of Asst. City Attorney James Boyce Garland's claims that the city owes him $30,000 in backlogged legal fees.

The judge refused to block the secret meeting and in a surprise move, extended his ruling to prohibit any discussion of the meeting.

The gag rule applies to all city officials and the news media.

Collecting Those United Way Pledges Is Hard Part

By RICHARD WATERS
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — Despite the recession, North Carolina United Way officials say they have received pledges amounting to 98 per cent of the statewide goal.

Now comes the hard part: collecting. "The biggest problem now is not in having reached a goal so much as it is in collections," said Dwyer Sump, executive director of the state United Way. "The economy has continued to be at a low ebb and naturally as people are unemployed, there's no way in the world and no effort to make collections on pledges made."

Sump said the United Way, which coordinates fund-raising efforts for many charities and services, has been affected by the economic downturn like everyone else.

First, the economic squeeze has made it more difficult to raise money. And second, local and state agencies are having to reduce staffs and operating expenses.

"There is a lot of talk in United Way leadership circles today as to how the voluntary agencies and the United Way themselves can respond to the situation we're in and still help people," he said. "If it means reordering some priorities, we're looking at it."

Because of the recession, Sump said it has taken longer to complete most fund drives this year. As of last Thursday, 36 of the 77 community fund drives had not met their goals.

Overall, the 77 drives had collected pledges for $18.83 million of the state's $19.21 million goal, he said.

"In the smaller communities, the impact has been felt the greatest," Sump said. "Where you've got towns built primarily around textiles and textiles being hit as hard as they are, the entire economy of the town has been affected."

He also said communities that waited until October to begin their drives were having more problems than those which had begun collections in August or September.

Of the large cities, Sump said Charlotte and Winston-Salem reached their goals, although Winston-Salem had to extend its collection period. Greensboro and Raleigh failed to meet their goals, although they raised as much money as they did the previous year, he explained.

"They picked the wrong year to increase their goals," he said.

Despite the problems, Sump said he thought there would be no major curtailment of service because of the collection problem.

"There's a concept of sharing and sharing alike," he said. "If you raise 98 or 99 per cent of the goal, the amount of loss is insignificant to a small agency and can be absorbed by a large agency."

In order to hold down costs, he said, his staff of four had been cut to three after one employee left and the position was not filled.

"Other agencies...are holding back on either filling staff positions or implementing new programs to maintain basic service," he said.

Although the future is uncertain, Sump thought the downturn might have one silver lining. In the past, some funds had found it difficult to collect all their payroll deduction pledges because many persons changed jobs frequently.

"We're not leaving this job to go to another one for 10 cents an hour. So there is...some thought that the pledges we received are as firm as those we received in prior years," he said.

Courts' Adversary System Said Poor Place To Define Abortion

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON (AP) — The adversary system of the criminal courts is not the place to define abortion, say 225 members of the Association of Professors of Gynecology and Obstetrics. The resolution expressing support for the Supreme Court's 1973 decision legalizing most abortions was approved at New Orleans on Monday, two days after the Boston manslaughter conviction of Dr. Kenneth C. Edelin in the death of an fetus during a legal abortion.

The resolution also says the criminal courts are not the place to "define viability, or to define the moral issues of abortion."

The resolution was authored by Dr. Kenneth J. Ryan, chief of staff of Boston Hospital for Women and chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Harvard Medical School.

Edelin, an obstetrician at Boston City Hospital, was convicted Saturday in the death of a 20-to 2-week-old fetus he aborted in October 1973. The prosecution charged he held the fetus inside the mother's womb for three minutes to insure it would not live.

In St. Louis, Edelin's attorney, Frank Susman, said the alleged use of racial slurs by jurors will be part of the black doctor's appeal.

Susman said he had received reports that some jurors made derogatory race references during the six-week trial.

Meanwhile, Dist. Atty. Denis Dillon of New York's Nassau County said he will investigate a complaint that a fetus aborted at the Nassau Medical Center on Jan. 19 was a victim of "infanticide."

Dillon said the complaint was filed by the Long Island Coalition for Life, an antiabortion group. It charged that the fetus survived the abortion for eight hours but was denied life support systems such as an incubator and intravenous feeding.

The medical personnel involved in the incident were not identified.

In Detroit, the Hutzel Hospital said the Edelin conviction was a "major factor" in a decision halt abortions on women more than 16 weeks pregnant.

Dr. Robert E. Mack, president of the hospital, said, "Obviously, it (the conviction) puts our staff in jeopardy."

He indicated that reversal of the conviction on appeal might cause the hospital to resume abortions on women up to 20 weeks pregnant.

Latest Soviet Jets Are Being Shipped To Egypt

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia has started sending Egypt some of the latest Soviet jet fighters, the first such shipment of advanced weapons since the 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

U.S. intelligence sources said six supersonic MIG23 "Flogger" fighters reached Alexandria recently aboard a Soviet freighter.

Although the number is small, delivery of the MIG23s could suggest a Soviet effort to mollify Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. The Egyptian chief repeatedly has accused the Soviets of winking on promises to improve Egypt's air force and army.

The MIG23s are the first significant new Soviet weapons to reach Egypt since Russia abruptly stopped sending equipment there last April. Previous deliveries had included earlier model MIG21 fighters and older Russian-made arms.

The only Soviet military deliveries to Egypt between last April and the arrival of the MIG23s this month were four shiploads of ammunition and spare parts.

U.S. intelligence analysts are inclined to doubt that the appearance of the MIG23s signals a major increase in movement of Russian arms to Egypt, but they acknowledge they do not yet have enough information for a firm judgment.

The MIG23, capable of a top speed of nearly 2,000 miles an hour, is designed to strike ground targets deep inside enemy territory, as well as to intercept attacking warplanes.

Israelis are expected to use the arrival of the MIG23s in Egypt to support their bid for advanced U.S. fighters, principally the Air Force's F15 Eagle.

U.S. experts say they see little danger of a dramatic tipping of the military balance against Israel in the foreseeable future, even with Egypt's acquisition of new French-built Mirage jet fighters and more MIG23s than have been already delivered.

"There is still a problem of the ability of Egyptian pilots," said one analyst. "The Egyptians did better in 1973 than in 1967, but they still have a long way to go."

"The MIG23 in particular is a highly sophisticated plane and at best it will be a while before the Egyptians are proficient in flying it."

Clubs Share Two Wrecks On Monday Graduation

WASHINGTON—The Tar River Twirlers of Greenville and the Washington Squares Dance Clubs held a joint dance class graduation Friday night here.

Graduates of each club had completed a series of square dance lessons.

New members of the Tar River Twirlers are Roger and Sandra Phipps, Bob and Nancy Mayberry, Pat Sturtevant and Ken Morey of Greenville, Charles and Brownie McLawhorn of Winterville, Joe and Mabel Laughter of Ayden. The Washington Squares had 15 new members joining.

The square dance clubs in eastern North Carolina were in attendance. Jerry Powell of Greenville, Ralph Ritter of New Bern, Bob Rawlins of Jacksonville, and Bob Dominique of Morehead were callers for the event.

The hall was decorated throughout with Valentines and square dance silhouettes. The Tar River Twirlers are sponsoring a new square dance class on Monday nights.

An estimated $1,650 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 10:47 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Dickinson and Line Avenues when cars driven by Wilbur Adam Ballenger of Carriage House Apts, and James A. Moore of 1221 Davenport St. collided.

Investigators said the Moore car traveled 150 feet following the impact with the Ballenger car, struck an oil stand at Carrwan Oil Co., then came to rest against an above-ground petroleum storage tank at the oil firm.

Fire Departments units were called to the scene as a precautionary measure, but officers said no damage resulted to the storage tank.

Damage was estimated at $450 to the Ballenger car, $800 to the Moore auto and $50 to the oil stand. Moore, who was reported injured, was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

No charges were made in the second collision, which occurred at 9:30 p.m. at the intersection of Charles Street and Greenville Boulevard.

Cars driven by Janice Lavine Winslow of Route 2, Hertford and Debra Leigh Wynn of Route 2, Williamston were involved in that mishap, according to police, who estimated damage at $200 to the Winslow car and $150 to the Wynn auto.

Pace Is Picking Up In General Assembly

By SAM D. BUNDY

The pace in the General Assembly is gradually picking up. The number of bills introduced in the House has reached 200, which is much below the record of 1973 and 1974. Our sessions are now lasting an hour or more. The committees are really bearing down in search for flaws and errors in pending bills. The money committees are giving the recommended budget more of a thorough going-over than in my two previous sessions and are searching for any "fat" that they can find. The emphasis, for the present, at least, is on the economy, utilities, insurance and the budget. Many local bills are being handled, so that in a week or two we can really bear down on public legislation.

The situation on the highway fund seems to have improved some. Gas tax collections are not dropping as fast as once was anticipated, and it appears that road construction costs, believe it or not, have gone down somewhat. President Ford has released $2 billion in impounded funds, of which North Carolina is due to receive $220 million.

It would appear that the funds for East Carolina Medical School are intact and that a start will be made on a Veterinary School of Medicine at North Carolina State University in Raleigh.

On Monday night it was my privilege to speak to the Edenton Street Methodist Men's Ladies' Night, and on Tuesday morning I spoke to the Raleigh Lions Breakfast Club.

See you next week.

COLD DAYS AHEAD

ON THESE COLD DAYS it's no fun to be out in the weather so your carrier is taking special care to have your newspaper delivered in good condition. At times our carriers may be a bit late when the going is rough, but they do the best they can to keep all of their customers satisfied.

THE MOST DISCOURAGING part of a newspaper carrier's job is not bad weather. It's having to come back two or three times to collect for the newspaper. The carrier knows that almost all customers intend to pay for the paper but making trip after trip and coming away without being paid can be mighty discouraging to a young person in business.

NEXT TIME YOUR CARRIER comes to collect, won't you remember those cold days when it was so nice to have your paper home-delivered? Your carrier tries to collect on schedule. Why not be ready with your payment the first time? It will make up for those cold days.

THANK YOU.

Garment Manufacturer Tells Of Drop In Taste To Blow Whistle After 10 Years

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It's a volatile and dangerous business — unpredictable, with a surprise every day, says Vincent de Paul Draddy, chief executive of the oldest manufacturing firm in New York's garment industry.

"It's a screwy business, full of wonderful excitement, fast-moving, stimulating, and I can truly say I've never had a dull day in it," adds the chairman of the board of David Crystal Inc., who joined the 70-year-old firm 40 years ago.

Draddy, who looks more like a benign Irish priest than the industrialist, sportsman and philanthropist that he is, recently received a citation from Mayor Abraham Beame in appreciation of his contribution to the city's economy.

In a business where "day after day, the surprises never end and a crystal ball would be most welcome," Draddy has seen his share of changes in his four decades on Seventh Avenue.

"The most drastic is the shift from small, privately owned family firms to conglomerates," says the blue-eyed, sandy-gray-haired Draddy, conservatively dressed in a dark suit, hounds-tooth-check tie and white shirt with gold-ball cufflinks.

Other major changes he cites are the switch from natural to synthetic fabrics and the fact that where once all buyers came to New York there are now fashion showings in big cities all over the country.

"The so-called traditional type of clothing has disappeared," Draddy continues. "Now it's put-togethers, pieces a woman can buy that she can mix up to suit herself."

And sometimes, he suggests, this new consumer attitude toward fashion can be disastrous, especially in the mix-and-match department.

"Now women don't give a damn what anyone tells them to wear. They'll buy a pair of pants that doesn't go with the sweater that doesn't go with the blouse that doesn't go with the coat," he laments. "It would be much better if they let the manufacturer put it together."

"Young people don't understand good clothes, good workmanship, good fabric. What's sad is they don't care. They buy expensive stuff but it doesn't look good. Even on the best taste level people have changed. Everybody's sloppy today."

Draddy says five factors must be present in order for a manufacturer to get a good "run" of 25,000 to 30,000 on a garment: fabric, style, color, price and fit. But fabric, he insists, is most important.

"You can have the best-looking dress, in the right style, right color, right price, right fit. If it's the wrong fabric you won't sell it."

Draddy has practiced what he preaches, one of his major innovations being the use of women's dress fabrics in men's shirts, a successful new concept that startled the men's fashion world in 1947. He also introduced the alligator status insignia on the Lacoste sports shirt.

"The fad stuff has got to come and go, but a classic such as the shirtwaist dress has been here for 40 years and I see no reason why it won't be here the next 40, with variations of course," he says.

As for women's penchant for pants, he says, "I think it's a fine fashion idea and one that will be here forever."

Draddy, a rugged-looking six-footer who was captain of the football team at Manhattan College, sold carbide in the Pennsylvania coal mines during the Depression, "good training since it was almost impossible to get a guy to talk to you, let alone buy from you. Looking back at his 40 years in the fashion field he sees evolution rather than revolution. "It takes a long time for dresses to get up and a long time for them to go down. The change has to come naturally rather than be manufactured," says Draddy, who was one of the few to refuse to produce the disastrous "longuette." "That failed because it was pushing fashion and I don't think you can do that."

price and fit. But fabric, he insists, is most important.

"You can have the best-looking dress, in the right style, right color, right price, right fit. If it's the wrong fabric you won't sell it."

Draddy has practiced what he preaches, one of his major innovations being the use of women's dress fabrics in men's shirts, a successful new concept that startled the men's fashion world in 1947. He also introduced the alligator status insignia on the Lacoste sports shirt.

"The fad stuff has got to come and go, but a classic such as the shirtwaist dress has been here for 40 years and I see no reason why it won't be here the next 40, with variations of course," he says.

Employees Are Ready To Blow Whistle After 10 Years

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My co-workers and I have worked in this variety store for nearly 35 years. It's a multi-million dollar chain operation which is well known from coast to coast.

For the last ten years, we have had a manager who we think has a screw loose. First of all, he breaks all the company rules. He should work from 8 to 5:30 P.M. but he leaves the store every day at noon and doesn't come back until the next morning. We don't know where he goes, but he tells everyone that if there are any phone calls for him, we should say he "stepped out for a minute" and will call them back. We're supposed to get their names and numbers and he returns their calls the following day.

He is very abusive to those under him. We have gotten together and decided that ten years of taking his abuse and covering up for him is enough, and we want to blow the whistle on him by reporting his absenteeism to the executive office. But who should do this? No one wants to write the letter and sign his name to it. We've been battling this for years.

Some of us would even quit but we are so close to retirement and pensions we hate to do it. Answer please?
WORKING STIFF

DEAR STIFF: If you're telling it like it is (and I believe you are), no one person should write the letter. ALL of you should write it—and sign your names.

DEAR ABBY: I just returned from a meeting. It was open to the public. A Protestant Minister offered a prayer, and in it he said, "I ask this in the name of our Lord, Jesus Christ."

Abby, I am all for prayer, but I am not of the Christian faith, and I was not the only person there who wasn't. Don't you think it's time that some clergymen realize that Christianity is not the only faith in the world? I know I am not alone in my feelings. I happen to live in a small town where there are many non-Christian people who are devout in their own religions.

I don't mean any disrespect to anyone, Abby, but this may open the eyes of some clergymen who go out of their churches and into the community and thoughtlessly assume that Christianity is the only religion in the world.
SMALL TOWN, MO.

DEAR SMALL TOWN: You make a good point.

DEAR ABBY: Two months ago, I got full custody of my four-year-old son. His mother gave him up because her social life was more important.

When I got custody, it was understood that all visitation rights would go to my ex-wife's parents, since she didn't care if she ever saw the boy again. NOW she says maybe she will see him next month, or in six months from now—she isn't "sure."

I called her yesterday to ask if my present wife could adopt the boy. She said she would never consent to that because she didn't want to give up her "motherhood." Now, if you can make any sense out of that, you're a lot smarter than I think you are, and I think you're pretty smart.

The boy has fully accepted my wife as his "mommy" and doesn't miss his former mother at all, mainly because he hardly ever saw her.

I've talked to a lawyer about this and he said he didn't think my wife could adopt the boy without my ex's consent but he didn't know much about it because he had never handled a case like that before. Can you help us? PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: I am not qualified to give legal advice, and from what you tell me, neither is your lawyer. Get another lawyer, and let him advise you.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HOT AND BOTHERED IN MILLERSBURG": Did that letter really come from the Millersburg, Ohio Fire Department? Or is somebody trying to make an ash out of you?

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Major Development in Women's Haircoloring.

Get Rid Of Gray Hair Some Of It Or All Of It

Time-lapse photographs show how gradual action of Lady Grecian Formula lets you control just how much gray you slowly get rid of—some of it or all of it.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (Special)—Thousands of women all over the country are discovering a remarkable new product specially developed and tested for women's hair. It not only takes the guesswork out of hair coloring but also eliminates the gray roots problem that has for years been a thorn in the side of all women who color their hair. Lady Grecian Formula is not a dark messy dye. It is a colorless liquid as easy to use as water. There is no mess, no complicated instructions, no strand tests, no clock watching. Simply brush Lady Grecian Formula through your hair every day and you will see the gray slowly "fade away." You are in complete control. You can get rid of as much gray as you want—some of it, or all of it. When your hair reaches just the lovely natural-looking color you want, weekly use thereafter is all that's necessary to keep your hair just the way you want it with no gray roots problem ever. Lady Grecian Formula is available now at:

Sex Roles Change In Schools' Occupational Education

What do you expect to see when you walk into a high school auto mechanics class? Why, boys, of course! And when you visit the home economics class, you expect to see all girls! Right?

Not necessarily so in North Carolina which ranks second in the nation in occupational education enrollment, according to Amanda Smith, director of the Department of Public Instruction's "New Pioneers" project. The project, unique to the nation, is aimed at opening traditionally male classes such as auto mechanics and bricklaying to female students and opening traditionally female classes such as home economics and fashion merchandising to male students.

Led by 10 pilot projects, every school unit in the State is working to encourage all students to consider all options, said Ms. Smith. The ten pilot units, which include McDowell, Davidson, Richmond, Sampson, Halifax, and Wilkes County Schools and Shelby, Greenville, Durham, and North Wilkesboro City Schools, are developing specific practical strategies for eliminating the barriers which act as auto mechanics and bricklaying to female students

No one got too choked up about it as the first car wasn't invented until 1769.

Wahl's harmless little discovery has done for marriages what Ironside has done for wheelchairs.

I contend the two-car garage was never meant to hold two cars. My husband says that's what they are for. Thus, every evening, we go through the garage number.

"You've done it again," he announces storming into the kitchen.

"Done what?" I ask.

"Parked over too far for me to get my car in the garage."

Congressmen Run All The Time

It has been said that Congressmen run all the time and with the two-year terms that members of the House of Representatives serve, that is not far from wrong.

Congressman Walter Jones had hardly been sworn in for his present term before he announced for re-election in 1976.

Circumstances brought about the announcement even earlier than usual. Jones said he was making the announcement early "in order to dispel all rumors regarding the state of my health. I want to assure my friends that I have completely recovered from a foot infection."

The congressman was hospitalized at Bethesda Naval Medical Center for treatment of the foot infection. He has appeared at a number of functions recently and reportedly is looking fit.

During the time of his hospitalization there had been speculation as to whether he would seek another term, even though this one still has most of the two years to run. Jones is moving quickly to dispel such speculation.

The announcement sent reporters to see D. Livingstone Stallings, State Senator from New Bern, and Horton Rountree, Pitt representative, for their reaction.

Both said they had no plans to oppose Jones in 1976. Rountree said he would be interested in the post, but that he "would never run against Walter."

"Walter and I have been too close too long for me to ever run against him."

At any rate, Jones is again making public appearances around the district and he has made it clear that he will be a candidate for re-election in 1976.

There's plenty of time for opponents to come forth between now and 1976, and Rep. Jones knows this. A congressman who wants to be re-elected has to run all the time and we would anticipate Walter Jones to be quite active in the First Congressional District in the months ahead.

Freshman Opens Dispute

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The issue of whether prisoners ought to be working on the roads is not a dead one—it has only been dozing for a couple of years. A freshman lawmaker has re-opened the issue in the North Carolina General Assembly which only two years ago passed a law taking road gangs off the highways.

Certain to stir a strong clash between progressive prison reform legislators and lawmakers who think prison ought to be punishment, the bill introduced by State Rep. John Jordan would repeal the law banning prison road gangs, and call for active, aggressive use of prisoners to build and maintain state roads.

Though a freshman on his first foray into political jungles, Jordan carries a well-known name in Democratic politics in North Carolina. He is the son of the late U.S. Sen. B. Everett Jordan, and resides in the Alamance County town of Saxapahaw, working in the family textile and farm operations.

In Tune

And being a newcomer who had to get out and hustle for his votes to win this first election to public office—plus his night and day contact with workers in the family enterprises—give him an ear close to what the people are thinking, Jordan says.

"And basically what a lot of people are thinking is that our courts have been letting criminals off too easy. They've been catching them and turning them loose," said the 39-year-old, whose shock of gray hair, gold-rimmed spectacles and well-known Jordan nose combine to give a look beyond his years.

Jordan said the idea is widely afoot among people much worried about crime that the prisons have a country club atmosphere with a lot of prisoners sitting about with nothing to do.

"People disapprove of these prisoners doing nothing. They are convicted criminals, and they owe society." He proposes that prisoners be required to work a "constructive 40-hours each week," and that prison officials seek first to put the prisoners on work release in private industry if possible or in prison industry work or on state farms.

Finally, after as many prisoners as possible are occupied in work release or prison industry jobs, those not working should go back to road work.

Roads Rundown

The roads, he reasons, are in bad shape, much in need of litter collection, weed cutting, patching and pothole fixing, etc. And the prisoners are in need of exercise and work: "They would literally eat better, sleep better, and feel better... we all would." Lack of work has been a central complaint lodged by inmates who are suffering overcrowded conditions in prisons across the state. Statistics generally show a population of some 12,000 in a system designed to house 10,000.

Prisoners have told reporters, prison officials and visitors they want to work, and in some units honor grade prisoners compete to land in-prison jobs simply to occupy their time and minds. Still, the previous action of the legislature was a sign of dissatisfaction with prison road gangs working under armed guards, and the feeling that such activity is demeaning to the state and the prisoners.

In 1974 the legislature approved a measure which allowed prisoners to work on the roads, but under regular work release rules and at regular minimum wages. Prison officials aimed for putting 1,000 prisoners back on the roads—without guards and on salary—but the plan never worked out. So far about 300 men are in the program.

Jordan does not propose that the prisoners be paid regular minimum wages, but that the Corrections Department and Transportation Department work out the numbers of prisoners required for road work, and the amount to be paid for that labor supply.

Won't his proposal to put prisoners back on the roads under the gun bring criticism to bear on him, Jordan was asked, "Yes, but that's all right. The people of this state want that."

The INSIDE REPORT

Iraq's Cautions Emergence

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

BAGHDAD—The dispatch of foreign minister Saadoun Hammadi last month for a diplomatic probe in the oil-rich Persian Gulf states, politically far to the right of super-nationalistic Iraq, marked the beginning of Baghdad's cautious emergence from Jingoistic isolation toward a more active role in Arab-world politics.

Hammadi's purpose was limited: to line up such conservative, royalist Arab states as Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf emirates against the growing military power of the Shah of Iran ("not against Iran," the powerful minister of information, Tarik Azziz, told us, "but against the ambitions of the Shah").

The mere attempt to forge a common Persian Gulf policy between Iraq's left-wing Ba'ath dictatorship and the right-wing monarchies to the south marks a vivid departure. Moreover, such anti-Soviet Arab states as Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Lebanon are now engaged in secret meditation between Iraq and Iran. Their object: to end the Baghdad-Tehran confrontation in the northern Kurdish regions of Iraq and prevent full-scale war from breaking out next spring when the snows melt.

Add to this the new commercial alliance between Iraq and France, which includes the sale of late-model French arms, together with Iraq's aggressive search for Western technology, and Baghdad's emergence from an almost paranoiac xenophobia becomes more clear. Considering its potential wealth in agriculture and industry, plus oil reserves second only to Saudi Arabia, the new Iraq can no longer be treated as the outcast of the Arab world.

Indeed, behind the outrageous anti-American propaganda which dominates the controlled press in a society still fearful of any contact with foreigners, the beginnings of a less frenzied dialogue are being heard. Thus, while discussing Iraq's extremist demand on Palestine (a single, non-sectarian Arab-Jewish state for all Palestine), information minister Azziz, one of the half-dozen top advisers of strong man Saddam Hussein, suddenly dropped the rhetoric and told us: "We understand that the Palestine question is a special problem for the U.S. because of your internal politics."

Such concessions to reality are being heard somewhat more frequently these days. More important is the pragmatic push from the top for commercial deals with the U.S. and a willingness to sacrifice the principle of "anti-Zionist" economic boycott to the practicalities of Iraq's development needs.

One of Boeing's biggest single deals ever was signed two weeks ago when Iraq agreed to pay more than $200 million for at least six and possibly eight large jets, including up to four jumbo jets (convertible to cargo use), plus spare parts, hangars and technicians.

Likewise, Sheraton Hotels signed a contract on Jan. 28 to build and operate two new hotels, one here, one in Basra. U.S. exports to Iraq have boomed from $20 million in 1972 to nearly $300 million last year, with the upward trend certain to continue this year. All are financed by Iraqi oil.

Chief economic policymaker Adnan Hamdani, whose political influence ranks on a par with Azziz and who, like Vice President Saddam Hussein, is only in his 30s, told us the U.S. turned down another huge aircraft deal, this one for six Lockheed 130s, because of military reasons. Hamdani was philosophical about that. It would not affect Iraq's policy of offering American industry equal bidding rights on booming development projects.

The growth of imports, mainly from Western Europe, Japan and the U.S., has been phenomenal: from $50 million in 1968 before nationalization of the Iraqi Petroleum Company to nearly $6 billion last year.

The foreign trade minister told us that future potential for American export would be "limitless"—if the U.S. were not "tied to Israel."

Ture or not, the exchange of U.S. and other Western technology for Iraq's brimming oil income is gradually changing the face

Strength For Today

THE EGOTIST

We are at often at a loss to know whether to laugh at the egotist or to despise him. Three things mar his life. In the first place, he is a burden to himself. He is so completely on his own mind that the smallest collision with adverse circumstances makes him miserable. In the second place, he never learns anything. Filled with an unabated confidence in his own powers, he disdains to accept advice. Last of all, he leaves a great deal of misery in his wake. Egotists in positions of great power have wrecked civilizations, but the average egotist leaves behind him the miserable little ruins of wrecked friendships, wrecked homes, and badly wounded sensibilities.

The egotist lives without purpose and dies without mourning, fulfilling in his life the droll statement of Benjamin Franklin that he who falls in love with himself has no rivals.

Historical Histrionics
Washington attempting to hurl the Dollar across the Recessionary River

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Truckers' Lobby Victory

New York's Congressman Edward I. Koch introduced a little bill the other day that merits the support of those who cling to the old ideal of government "of the people, by the people, and for the people." That democratic proposition is so indifferently respected these days that Koch's bill probably will fail, but he deserves an A for effort anyhow.

The bill would repeal the permissible increase in truck load limits approved by Congress in December. If it had not been for a piece of parliamentary razzledazzle superbly executed by friends of the truckers' lobby, American motorists might not be faced with the grim prospect of 40-ton monsters grinding down the interstate highways. The taxpayers might not be faced with providing billions of dollars for the additional repairs and maintenance the higher limits may demand.

What happened in this affair was a stroke of oneupmanship in the grand tradition. A majority of the House was outwitted and outflanked. Those who favored the higher limits won their war without really engaging in battle.

Consider the sequence of events. The Senate early last year approved a transportation bill authorizing an increase of 2,000 pounds in permissible single and tandem axle weights, and an increase from 73,280 to 90,000 pounds in the maximum gross weight. On August 20, the House had an opportunity to vote directly and specifically on that proposition. The vote was overwhelmingly against it, 252 to 159. This was an emphatic expression, if you please, of the "will of the House." It was as clear a manifestation as one could ask of government of the people and by the people.

The vote was a reflection, moreover, of convincing arguments "for the people." The higher limits were opposed by ordinary motorists and by professional engineers alike. It was the truckers' position that because of lower speed limits and higher operating costs, they could not operate profitably without the increased loads approved by the Senate. Koch and others contended, to the contrary, that the truckers already had been assured compensating hikes in income. The Senate increases in weight were struck from the bill.

That should have ended the matter. But on December 16, in the last whirlwind hours of the 93rd Congress, the transportation act returned to the floor of the House under suspension of rules. The parliamentary question turned on the instructions to

To the editor:

Why does the N.C. Civil Liberties Union believe that The Motorist's Prayer should be removed from the official North Carolina map?

Mr. R. W. King's letter posing the question is clear and direct, but he assumes that all religion is embodied in denominations of Christianity. Mr. King sees no grounds for the suit to remove the prayer, since "It is not a denominational prayer and it does not conflict with the Bill of Rights Article one."

The issue here is the separation of Church and State. The applicable part of Amendment One reads, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion..." Article IV, Section 2, of the Constitution makes the provision binding upon the states also.

In filing its suit, the Civil Liberties Union was acting on the complaint of a citizen who felt his civil rights were infringed by the use of state money to publish and distribute a prayer. The fact that many members of the N.C. Civil Liberties Union probably like that prayer at least as much as Mr. King clear is irrelevant. If the laws are to protect the majority from official petitions addressed to Lord Buddha or Our Heavenly Mother (Ishtar), they must protect the minorities from such petitions to Our Heavenly Father (Jehovah).

Signals Of Hope For Economy

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Everyone detects it but almost nobody knows how to evaluate it. There is hope in the economic picture now, still hard to spot and not to be trusted fully. But it exists; it is there.

Wholesale prices are falling, and that means some consumer prices might actually decline — not merely slow their rate of increase — over the next month or two. The wholesale price decline is no fluke — it is now two months along.

It isn't likely, however, that all the decline will be passed on to consumers. Those maligned middlemen claim they've been operating on thin margins, despite many contrary opinions, and they might be looking for an even larger share.

Interest rates are falling. You could almost say they're plunging, but that term is one you don't like to use when times are bad. But the prime lending rate is under 9 per cent now, and banks that weeks ago were rationing credit are looking for borrowers.

Hope also radiates from plans of Congress and the administration to put more money into the hands of consumers, who have lost not only their willingness to spend but to some extent their ability also.

A tax rebate is of even greater consequence than at first glance it appears to be. More than just putting money into circulation, it also demonstrates that this big, sometimes unresponsive government is sensitive and is able to move in an emergency.

The stock market is rising and that is another sign of hope. Rebates on car purchases have spurred sales and, among other things, showed that American business has the ingenuity and will to fight back.

And there are signs of spring, just five weeks away. This usually means a pickup in economic activity — more jobs, more cars sold, plans made for vacations, paint up-fix up the house. The spring pickup might be weak this year, but it will be better than now.

There are thanks to be expressed also for what didn't happen. Some banks did collapse, but there were fears at one time, even in the Federal Reserve, that many more would end in ruin. And no depositors lost money.

Nevertheless, these signs don't form a pattern. The negative news still buries the positive. Joblessness still is rising, and almost nobody outside the administration thinks it will peak at 8.5 per

Reform Effort Stalled

By BROOKS JACKSON

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate-spawned law to prevent future campaign financial scandals is being stalled by the inaction of President Ford and Congress.

Nearly four months have passed since the law was signed Oct. 15. Yet there is no commission to enforce it, no staff has been hired and no regulations have been written.

Congress has not yet appropriated so much as a dime in pay for enforcement, and Ford is seeking a fraction of the amount Congress originally envisioned.

No date has been set for Senate or House hearings on the qualifications of the persons nominated as election commissioner. Congress finished selecting its four nominees late last month but Ford still has not picked his two nominees.

Technically, the new law took effect New Year's Day.

Meanwhile, presidential and congressional candidates are operating in a partial vacuum, forced to make their own interpretations of the new law's provisions, some of which are complicated and vague.

Several candidates and potential candidates already are raising money for the 1976 presidential election. A special congressional election was held last month in Louisiana, and a special congressional primary is set for April 5 in Chicago.

Many past candidates have debts from last year's congressional races and even the 1972 presidential campaigns.

In the eyes of some proponents of the bill, the situation is becoming dangerous.

"Unless this turns around, we're on our way to one hell of a mess, and a hell of a scandal before we even get started," said Fred Wertheimer, vice president of Common Cause, the lobbying group that pushed to get the new law enacted.

"If people don't feel the law is going to be enforced, they're going to go back to the old ways. The danger signs are all

The argument before the Supreme court, in four separate cases, involves the right of the government to prohibit payment of contracts in gold, despite agreements to pay in that metal.

The plaintiffs are seeking its payment in gold or in its equivalent in money.

The gold reserve act of 1934 provided that the entire stock of monetary gold in the United States should be vested in the government.

The Thomas amendment to the farm relief act provided that the weight of gold in the dollar be fixed by the President at not more than 60 per cent nor less than 50 per cent of its weight.

The president's proclamation on January 31, 1934, set forth the conditions under which gold must be turned over to the treasury and devalued the dollar to 59.06 per cent of its former value.

Governors Fear Loss Of Funds

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Many governors gathering here to discuss the nation's economic crisis say their states can't afford President Ford's budget cuts and generally disapprove of his energy program.

In a survey of governors arriving for the midwinter meeting of the National Governors Conference, a big majority said their states could not pay for programs where federal support was being trimmed or held constant in the face of rising costs.

The governors meet in various committees today and with congressional and administration leaders Wednesday and Thursday.

With about half the 50 governors responding to an Associated Press survey, most said they could not support Ford's energy program. Virtually every Democrat opposed the Ford energy plans while Republicans were divided.

Many of the responding governors, representing a regional and political cross-section of the state chief executives, said they were being forced to raise taxes in the face of federal aid reductions and that programs in the fields of health care, education and welfare would have to be cut back or dropped.

The Ford administration has proposed a 20 per cent cut in the federal share of a number of programs such as neighborhood health centers, maternal and child health centers, drug abuse centers, rat control and lead-based paint poisoning programs.

Also proposed are reductions in federal matching funds for some welfare and social services by as much as 65 to 75 per cent.

"It would be impossible for the state of Maryland to assume the financial obligation of added costs for health and education programs proposed in President Ford's rob-the-poor budget," Maryland's Democratic Gov. Marvin Mandel said.

Gov. Wendell R. Anderson of Minnesota, chairman of the Democratic Governors Conference, said the Ford budget would mean "local tax increases or reductions in essential services."

"The President's budget proposal robs essential domestic programs to pay $10 billion more for defense and $300 million more for space, and he wants another $300 million for South Vietnam," Anderson said. "Three more combat divisions and the space shuttle and South Vietnam can wait while we take care of Americans who are out of work and out of money and running out of hope."

Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken, a Republican who survived a close election last fall, said his state "has been hit hardest by the combined impact of the energy crisis and the recession and would be hard-put now to assume added costs for anything."

Missouri's Christopher S. Bond, chairman of the Republican governors, said his state's elderly could not afford some of Ford's proposals.

The closest thing to firm support for Ford came from Democrat David Boren of Oklahoma, who approved the President's efforts to hold down federal spending but conceded, "Oklahoma is in much better financial condition than most states."

Delivery Outside Doctor's Office

Peaked At Near Christmas Day

LATTA, S.C. (AP)—Mrs. LeRoy Abrams gave birth to a seven-pound, two-ounce girl in an ambulance parked outside a Marion doctor's office Saturday. Two ambulance attendants delivered the child as a midwife stood outside giving instructions.

A faucet was the only source of water during labor.

The attendants had driven Mrs. Abrams from one doctor to another and to a hospital for seven hours before the baby came. They were unable to get medical assistance.

Finally the wife of one of the attendants and Marion Community Action Agency director Mary Kate Butler located a midwife who gave advice.

Mrs. Don Jewel, whose husband participated in the delivery, said the baby should be named Faith, "because it took a lot of faith from all of us to deliver her."

The co-administrator of Marion County Hospital, Bobby Phillips, said Mrs. Abrams could not be admitted without a doctor's order. He added that obstetrics is not considered an emergency because pregnant women have nine months to plan for the birth.

Mrs. Abrams had been a patient of Dr. Dan Mooror of Latta. He said she failed to live up to a contract calling for full payment for prenatal care by the seventh month of pregnancy. He said he declined to sign an order giving a midwife permission to aid Mrs. Abrams because, "If I signed and anything went wrong, it became my responsibility." He said he advised her to go to the county health department to get free care.

Mrs. Butler said Marion doctors would not see the mother because they said Dr. Mooror's permission was needed.

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — The high volume of visitors to Florida during the 1974 holiday season reached its peak just prior to Christmas Day, according to the state's Department of Commerce.

The 1-75 Florida Welcome Station at Jennings, which usually records the heaviest flow of southbound traffic, registered a record 12,428 out-of-state visitors on Dec. 22 and 12,703 on Dec. 23.

(Continued from page 4) be given a committee of conference. Koch struggled vainly for an opportunity to let the House vote once again, up or down, on the issue of load limits. He never had a chance.

Under the rules of the House, the committee in charge of a bill has the right to move for the instruction of conferees. Republican William H. Harsha of Ohio, ranking minority member of the Public Works Committee, showed the form of a Superbowl star in a two-minute drill. By making a pre-emptive motion to instruct the conferees on an innocuous point, he flattened the opposition. Koch said he felt as if he'd been hit by a Mack truck. That was about the size of it.

In the end, the conferees agreed on an increase to 80,000 pounds, instead of 90,000 pounds. President Ford could not have vetoed the higher load limits without vetoing the bill as a whole, and there were sound reasons for enacting the rest of the bill. The jubilant truckers now have a clear shot at pressuring the state legislatures into falling in line.

Meeting in Tucson a month ago, the National Society of Professional Engineers, through its board of directors, urged repeal of the higher limits. Heavier trucks, said the NSPE, will create problems of safety, road and bridge repair, and "an earlier obsolescence of the highway system with increased ultimate cost to the consuming public." The higher but intangible cost lies in the damage done to responsible government. The House in August expressed its will. The House in December saw that will destroyed.

Former Rep. Robert O. Tierman, D-R.I., who has been nominated by the House to serve on the election commission, said in a telephone interview that he doesn't like the delays either.

"The law went into effect in January, and we're going to have an awful time getting rules and regulations promulgated," he said. "... I think we should be moving very fast, but you know it's up to the President to send up the nominees, and the House is going to have to move" on financing bills and confirmation of its commission nominees.

When the new commission gets started it may face a severe budget problem. Congress initially authorized up to $5 million for the commission's first fiscal year, which ends June 30. President Ford's budget seeks $500,000 for that period, and $2 million for 1976, when the presidential campaign will be in full swing. The actual money available to the commission will depend on how much Congress eventually appropriates.

Want 'More'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill increasing travel expenses for senators and their staffs is being debated by the House amid a congressional lobbying effort for rejection of the measure.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said the measure would allow senators and their aides to collect an additional $35 a day while traveling in their home states, even during campaigns.

He circulated letters to all House members urging defeat of the bill.

The main purpose of the bill is to increase daily travel allowances for all federal employees on official business from $25 to $35.

However, another provision would alter a single phrase in Senate rules, which now limit home-state travel reimbursements for senators to "actual transportation expenses."

With a change in the phrase to "travel expenses," senators and their assistants could be paid a $35 per diem allowance as well as their transportation costs.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices showed only a small loss today after unfavorable news about some large companies sent prices into an early slump.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down about 6 points in the first hour, came back at 11:30 a.m. to 732.87, down 1.33. Advances trailed declines by a narrow margin and trading continued at its recent active pace.

Brokers said forces behind this morning's weak market performance included a dividend cut by DuPont Co. over the weekend, sharply lower earnings reported by Chrysler Corp., and an announcement by Corning Glass Works, which makes lenses for Polaroid, that it will stop making the SX-70 lens because demand has fallen so much.

The recent uptrend in the market was bolstered by further prime rate cuts by several major banks including a half-point cut by New York's Chemical Bank to a new low of 8.50 per cent.

"The Chrysler loss was surprising because of the magnitude of the loss, and the DuPont dividend cut was a bit of a surprise, especially after they just raised the dividend late last year," said Robert Colin of Faulkner, Dawkins & Sullivan, a Wall Street brokerage firm. Chrysler, the market's most active stock, fell 5/8 to 9 1/2. Chrysler said its fourth quarter loss totaled $73.5 million, largest in its history. Kraftco Corp. fell 1/8 to 39 1/2. Citicorp lost 3/8 to 32, and Southern Co., a southeast electric utility, slipped 1/8 to 10 1/2.

DuPont Co. snapped back from an early 1.75-point drop and was up 3/4 from Friday's close at 100 1/2.

Pan American World Airways, Inc., was delayed in opening due to an influx of orders. The Civil Aeronautics Board is reviewing Iran's bid to buy a major portion of Pan Am stock.

The NYSE composite index was off .26 to 42.95 at 11 a.m. and the American Stock Exchange market-value index was down .25 at 76.54.

Court Overrules Funds Impoundment

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President Richard M. Nixon exceeded his authority in withholding $9 billion authorized by Congress for pollution control, the Supreme Court declared unanimously today. It was the first time the Supreme Court has ruled on a presidential impoundment of funds, although numerous impoundments were struck down by lower federal courts during the Nixon administration. Congress has since passed legislation giving itself power to control such impoundments. Speaking through Justice Byron R. White, the Supreme Court said the act under which the pollution-control money was appropriated "was intended to provide a firm commitment of substantial sums within the relatively limited period of time in an effort to achieve an early solution of what was deemed an urgent problem." "We cannot believe that Congress at the last minute scuttled the entire effort by providing the executive with the seemingly limitless power to withhold funds from allotment and obligation," White said. Seven of the justices joined in White's opinion. Justice William O. Douglas, who is recovering from a stroke, concurred in the result. In 1972, Congress authorized the appropriations not to exceed $5 billion for fiscal year 1973, $6 billion for fiscal 1974 and $7 billion for fiscal 1975 for sewage treatment grants. Russell Train, then administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, acting on Nixon's orders, allotted $2 billion for 1973, $3 billion for 1974 and $4 billion for 1975. The City of New York challenged the Nixon administration's failure to allocate the full amount. The bill authorizing the funds was passed over Nixon's veto. The Supreme Court's decision upheld a ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington that the administration was obligated to allocate the full amount. The government contended that the impoundments were authorized under a 1972 amendment inserting the words "not to exceed" in the legislation under which the funds were authorized. The court said, however, this language "reflects the realistic possibility that approved applications for grants from funds already allotted would not total the maximum amount authorized to be appropriated." The language did not, the court said, excuse the administration from allotting the full amount. At the same time, in an unsigned opinion, the court set a similar challenge of impoundment back to the U.S. Circuit Court in Richmond, Va., to be reconsidered in light of today's decision in the New York case. The Richmond court, acting on a challenge by a Virginia environmental group called Campaign Clean Water, Inc., had ruled that the administration did have the power to control or delay allotments.

Dr. James H. Bearden, said Murrow news programs, "were a way of life in my family," and said Murrow, "never scraped the tar off his heels. He felt very close to North Carolina people."

In addition to the local interviews, Foges said the documentary will include scenes filmed at the Voice of America relay facilities here—the Edward R. Murrow Transmitting Station—and other picturesque locations in the county, a lengthy interview with Murrow's widow, Jannet Murrow; footage of Murrow during World War II, and excerpts from his McCarthy program; as well as interviews with Fred Friendly (the producer of Murrow's show, See It Now), Henry Loomis (director of VOA when Murrow was president of the Public Broadcasting System), and CBS commentator Charles Collingwood.

Collingwood, during a program at Murrow's death termed the noted newsmen "the best man I ever knew." The end piece for the BBC production—with Gillard speaking—was filmed at VOA transmitting site A. Gillard said "the memory of Ed Murrow remains fresh in so many ways... in the minds and memories of so many Americans... what he stood for." Asked weather the program would be aired in the United States, Foges said an interest has been shown, "but... I like your phrase... 'It hasn't been bought yet.'"

Frinks Is Starting New Hunger Strike

MAURY—Jesse Daniels of Greenville, a member of the Pitt County Chapter of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and state field director for the SCLC said yesterday that civil rights leader Golden Frinks has gone on a hunger strike.

Frinks was confined at the Maury prison unit February 11 to begin serving a six-month sentence for blocking traffic during a demonstration in Edenton in 1973. Frinks is state field secretary for the SCLC.

Daniels said Frinks "has been retained unjustly by the State of North Carolina..." and is "fasting and will continue to fast because of this decision and the bad food conditions and overcrowding..." at the Maury prison unit.

Find Two Dead Of Gun Wounds

KINSTON—A Farmville man and Kinston woman were found dead in an apartment here Monday. Both had been shot.

Spokesmen for the Lenoir County Sheriff's Department identified the victims as William Bailey Thomas, 54 of Farmville, and 52-year-old Hazel Grand Miller, in whose apartment the bodies were found.

A maintenance supervisor at the Heritage Court Apartments discovered the bodies about 9:40 a.m. Monday after receiving a call from Thomas' daughter asking for information about her father.

Sheriff's department spokesmen said the couple had been dead for several days and indicated that both had been shot with a pistol.

Investigation of the deaths is continuing.

Tourney Tickets Placed On Sale

Tickets for the first round game between East Carolina and one of the other Southern Conference teams in the league's tournament will go on sale Wednesday at 8 a.m., it was announced today.

East Carolina clinched a home-court berth by downing William & Mary Saturday, 68-66 in a double overtime. Under the format used this year in the league, the four upper ranked teams will play host to the four lower teams on Saturday, March 1. The four winners move on to Greenville, S.C. for the finals on Wednesday and Thursday, March 5-6.

It appears at this point that the Pirates will play host to The Citadel in the playoff game. The Bucs are currently in second place and need only one win to wrap up that spot. The Citadel seems assured of a seventh place finish.

Tickets for the game will be $2.50 for adults, and $1.50 for students. East Carolina students will be required to show their ID and activity cards to purchase these tickets, and to use them. IDs will not be required for below college age students.

"Season tickets and activity cards will not be used for this game since it is a tournament game," Business Manager of Athletics Mrs. Earlene Leggett said. "Everyone will have to buy a ticket."

Furman has already locked up one of the homecourt berths, icing first place in the seedings. East Carolina is the only other team assured of a home-court spot. Richmond, VMI and William & Mary are battling for the other two positions.

East Carolina is assured of no worse than a third place tie in the league, and can sew up second place with one win in their last two league starts this week, a Wednesday home date with Richmond and a road game against The Citadel.

The tickets will remain on sale through game time, or until sold out.

TWENTY-FIFTH VICTORY—Top-ranked Indiana's Tom Abernethy, a 6-7 reserve forward, drives against Bill Pearson of Wisconsin in the Hoosiers' 93-58 Big Ten college basketball victory Monday night. Abernethy, held scoreless in the contest, was one of many Indiana reserves brought into the game after the Hoosiers jumped out to a 48-28 lead at the half. (AP Wirephoto)

City Leaders Post Victories

Jock's and Stewart's, the two teams battling for the Division II Championship in the City Basketball League both picked up victories last night.

In the opening game, Book Exchange took an 83-40 win over Eaton. The Exchange rolled up a 29-16 lead in the first period, then swamped Eaton, 54-24, in the second half.

Chris Parisher led the Exchange with 22 points, while Allan Jackson and Phil Duffy each had 20 and Mike Jackson and Adonis Grant each had 10. Sam McDonald and Willard Jackson each had 10 for Eaton.

Jock's gained a 97-72 win over Hyman's in the second game. During the first half, Jock's inched out into a 40-33 lead at halftime. They outthrew Hyman's, 57-39, in the second half to win going away.

Charles Whitehurst led Jock's with 26 points, while Gene Rackley had 20, Gary James had 18 and Bob Doubet had 13. Hyman's was led by Linwood Hyman with 24 and Cleveland Johnson with 16.

In the final game, Stewart's gained a 61-58 win over Art & Camera. Stewart's moved to a 32-24 lead at the half, but then had to hold off an A&C rally, 34-30, before winning.

Bobby Parker led Stewart's with 17 points, while Vaughn Bozman had 12 and Tommy Jordan had 10. Don Edwards led A&C with 26, while Mike Harrington had 16.

Elementary Tournament

The Elementary Basketball League opened its post-season tournament yesterday with two junior varsity games.

In the opening game, Wahl-Coates downed Elmhurst I, 19-12. Ryner Bullock led Wahl-Coates with 10, while Chip Cayton had four to pace Elmhurst.

The second game saw Elmhurst II take a 23-12 win over Eastern. Mike Tucker led Elmhurst with 10, while Jeff Fisher had six for Eastern. Wahl-Coates will play South Greenville on Wednesday with the winner meeting Elmhurst II on Friday.

In the varsity playoffs, Elmhurst I takes on Wahl-Coates and Elmhurst II meets Eastern in games this afternoon. Play will continue Wednesday and Friday.

Rose, Others Opening Tourney Play Tonight

Nine area basketball teams will open play tonight and Wednesday in the first round of district tournaments, covering 4-A, 3-A, 1-A and girls' competition.

Rose High School, D. H. Conley, North Pitt, Ayden-Grifton, Farmville Central, Greene Central and Jamesville will be involved in boys' play, while Farmville Central and Williamston are in girls' action.

The Rampants will be playing in the 4-A District One Tournament. The Rampants will play host to Northern Nash at 7:30 p.m. in the Rampant gym.

Rose, which finished in second place in the Division I standings, received a bye into the semifinals of the tournament. Northern Nash, which finished third, defeated Rocky Mount, 65-55, Saturday, to gain the meeting with the Rampants.

The two teams split during the regular season, each winning on the other's court.

Elsewhere, Northeastern, the regular season winner, will take on Wilson, a 55-45 winner over Bertie Saturday night.

The two winners will meet at the home of the higher seeded team on Wednesday for the title. Northeastern has already been assured of a playoff berth, while the league's number two berth is still up for grabs and will go either to the tournament winner or runner-up, depending on what Northeastern does.

In 3-A competition, the District Two tournament will be held at Conley, with the top eight teams in the Eastern Carolina Conference taking part.

Tonight at 7 p.m., regular season champ Conley, which went unbeaten in the league and lost only one game all year, will host Ayden-Grifton, the defending tournament and state champion. The second game sends Eastern Wayne against second-seeded North Pitt.

Wednesday night, Southern Wayne and Farmville Central meet at 7 p.m., followed by Greene Central and North Lenoir.

Thursday's semifinals have the Viking-Charger winner meeting the Ram-Hawk survivor at 7 p.m., with the other winners playing in the second game. The finals will be Friday at 7:30 p.m., with the winner moving into the State Tournament.

Jamesville will be in action in the District One, 1-A event at Williamston. Tonight's games

First year head Coach Dave Patton has achieved goal number one for this season—a home court berth in the Southern Conference's first round of tournament play. Now, the Bucs take another step toward the second goal—one that may bring on one of the third goals first.

The second goal for the Bucs is for them to win as many as they could. Currently 15-7, they need only one more win to equal the most victories of any Pirate team during a regular season as a major college team. They need just two to equal the most wins during the entire season (including tournament play), and they still have an excellent shot at something that no other East Carolina team has had—a 20-game winner.

"We have said all along," Patton said, "that we want our players to perform to their full ability and winning and losing will take care of itself. For the most part we've done this, and this was one of our goals."

The third goal for this year's team was a post-season tournament berth—and it would appear that the Pirates have four chances to gain one. They could win the tournament and become the NCAA representative, or they could also be chosen as an at-large entry into the NCAA field. The Southern this year also has an automatic berth into the Commissioners' Tournament in Louisville, so that is another possibility. "And I don't see how the NIT could overlook a 20-game winner," Patton added.

The Bucs, however, must win the rest of their regular season games and also gain the finals of the Southern Tournament to win 20 games. "We're certainly not counting that as a positive thing," the coach said.

Richmond, which visits Minges Coliseum Wednesday night at 8 p.m., might have a lot to say about that too.

The Spiders, for instance, bring in the number two scorer in the country is Bob McCurdy, hitting 30 points an outing.

The Bucs clinched their home court seeding and no worse than a tie for third place in a heart-shaking 68-66 double overtime win over William & Mary Saturday. It took some heroics and a miracle shot to get the victory for the Pirates.

Playing a somewhat sluggish game, the Bucs had to fight back from seven points down late in the regulation time, and even then the Indians could have sewed it up with a one-and-one with four seconds left and a one-point lead. They made one, and the Bucs' Gregg Ashorn hit a 45-footer at the horn to tie it up.

The Bucs then held a two-point lead, and had forced a jump ball at the Indian end of the court with two seconds left in the first overtime. W&M's Ron Satterthwaite got control of the tap, however, pushing it in at the horn for another tie. Larry Hunt then swished a 25-footer at the buzzer ending the second overtime to give the Pirates the win.

Both teams had chances, and the Bucs cashed in on only 18 of 34 shots at the foul line as they continued their jitters which started last Monday when they went 0 for 8 against Furman.

"Foul shooting is a mental thing," Patton said. "The misses against William & Mary was just a left over from the Furman game. It was also a road game and a very crucial one for us. It's a rough place to play and win as Wake Forest and Virginia Tech found out."

"But when Gregg hit that shot, I knew that we were going to win eventually. He was fouled on the shot, too, and should have been on the line with a chance to win it without going into overtime."

In the second overtime with the score tied, the Bucs set it up for Donnie Owens to bring the ball down, get a screen and get off the last shot. "But he got trapped, and Larry was the only one open. He just got off a good shot."

Patton sees the Richmond game as a very important one for the Spiders. "They are certainly going to be up for it. They want a home-court berth, and they need a victory over us to help clinch it."

"They are playing much better than they were and they are a better team than the one we beat in Richmond (101-80). They've built up a little more depth now too."

McCurdy is not the only potent Spider. Sophomore guard Kevin Eastman has come on strong lately, and is becoming a strong scorer. "He hit 20 against us, and has been a real good one for them. We just can't depend on trying to stop one player," Patton said.

But just because it's important for Richmond doesn't mean the Bucs will lay down for them. "We've got our homecourt berth, but we're not going to rest on that. We're out to win every one we can, so that we can finish as high as we can. Richmond is certainly going to have a lot of incentive, but the pressure should be on them, rather than us."

Patton looks for a game similar to the earlier one played except for the wide margin at the end. "They ran with us up there, and they've been doing it in other games. I don't look for them to change against us. We just have to find a man to do a job against McCurdy."

The Bucs continue to have three men in double figures. Ashorn, Robert Geter and Hunt. Ashorn has a 14.4 mark, while Geter is at 11.8, and Hunt has an 11.6 mark.

Hunt leads the rebounders with 10.2, while Geter is pulling off 8.3 per game.

Following the Richmond game, the Bucs have only two regular season games left, a Saturday road contest against The Citadel, and a home game Monday against Western Carolina. They will then be home on the following Saturday, probably against The Citadel.

A junior varsity game between the Baby Bucs and Chowan starts out tomorrow's affair at 5:45 p.m.

Bucettes Down Campbell Five

East Carolina University's women's basketball team romped to an 85-64 victory over Campbell College last night.

The Pirate lassies had little trouble with the Lady Camels, spotting them a 4-0 lead at the start, then taking the lead for good and pulling steadily away.

By halftime, the Bucettes had worked up a 49-31 lead. They continued to pull away, out-scoring Campbell, 36-33, in the second half.

"We played real good defense," Coach Catherine Bolton said afterwards as the Bucettes built their record to 11-5 on the season.

East Carolina shot a fine 51 per cent in the first half, but dropped off to 43 per cent for the game as the bench was cleared as the margin continued to build in the second half.

Lu Ann Swaim led the Bucette scoring with 23 points, and also was the leading rebounder, pulling down 13. Sheila Cotton had 16 points and 11 rebounders. Debbie Freeman added 19 points, while Terry Jones had 10.

Connie Hall led the Campbell scoring with 25 points, with Carolyn Brooks adding 11.

The Lady Pirates will play host to the University of North Carolina tonight at 7 p.m. in Memorial Gymnasium.

Highwaymen In Industrial Upset

The race for Division I in the Industrial Basketball League tightened a little last night as State Highway upset Vermont-American. V-A still leads the league, but only by one game over Greenville Utilities.

In the opening game, Grady-White took a 60-53 win over Daniel Construction. Grady-White held only a 28-27 lead at halftime, but outthit Daniel by 32-26 in the second half to wrap it up.

Frank Brown led Grady-White with 24, while Ned Garris had 15 and Clifton Reddick had 13. Michael Lepors led Daniel with 17, while Lester Wells added 13.

In the second game, State Highway pulled off its 74-68 upset of Vermont-American. The Highwaymen built up a 38-26 lead in the first half, then held off a V-A rally, 42-36, for the win.

Fred Mills hit 38 to pace State Highway, while Clyde Elks had 26. Moses Joyner led Vermont-American with 22, while Charlie Jenkins had 20, Eddie Chance had 14 and Joe Crandall had 10.

In the final game, Greenville Utilities dunced Procter & Gamble, 67-51. GUCo held only a 31-28 lead at intermission, but outthit P&G, 36-23, to record the win, in the second half.

Thomas Mullens had 26 points, while Charles Jordan had 20 and James Ward had 16 for GUCo. P&G was led by Norm Finley with 16, while John Monroe had 11 and Ron Brie had 10.

Tip-In Wins For Indiana

By The Associated Press
Two plus two equals a lousy period for George McGinnis but it also equals one victory for the Indiana Pacers.

The Pacers blew all but one point of a 19-point bulge but beat the Spirits of St. Louis 100-99 Monday on a late tip-in by McGinnis, the American Basketball Association's leading scorer.

Elsewhere, the New York Nets drubbed the Virginia Squires 120-104 and the Utah Stars trimmed the Memphis Sounds 114-100.

The muscular 6-foot-8 McGinnis, who led the Pacers with 29 points, had only two in the final period until he tipped in Don Buse's missed shot to withstand a late basket by the Spirits' Marvin Barnes.

"I guess it wasn't what you'd call one of my better halves," McGinnis conceded after packing 19 points into the first half. "But they were coming at us. Anybody who doesn't think the Spirits' front line is tough doesn't know what he's talking about."

Barnes scored 14 of his 35 points during the final 12 minutes to lead all scorers while teammate Maurice Lucas had 29. But in controlling the decisive rebound, McGinnis hurtled his powerful frame beyond that of the 6-9 Lucas and tipped in the winning two points.

"I thought I had the ball; I know I should've had it," Lucas insisted. Barnes had some words of consolation for his fellow rookie.

"When McGinnis makes up his mind he wants to do something on offense, there's no way of stopping him," Barnes said.

Nets 120, Squires 104

New York's front line of Julius Erving, Larry Kenon and Billy Paulz combined for 67 points, enabling the Nets to take a half-game lead over idle Kentucky in the Eastern Division scramble. It was the Nets 27th triumph in 29 games against eastern rivals, including nine straight against Virginia.

Erving, who put the Nets ahead to stay 11-10 with a jump shot at the four-minute mark, led all scorers with 25 points while Kenon had 22 and Paulz 20.

Get Rid of Gray Hair Some of it or all of it

Time-lapse photographs show how gradual action of Grecian Formula 16 lets you control just how much gray you slowly get rid of - some of it or all of it.

White Plains, N.Y. — Hundreds of thousands of men all over the country are now using a remarkable product to control just how much gray they slowly get rid of. It is called Grecian Formula 16 and the results are simply amazing. Grecian Formula 16 is a practically clear liquid, as easy to use as hair tonic. This remarkable formula works for any color hair because it combines with the natural chemistry of the hair to recreate natural-looking color. There is no mess and no rub-off. You simply use it every day for two or three weeks until you slowly get rid of Bob McCurdy Hits 46 As Spiders Top W. Va.

By The Associated Press
Richmond's Bob McCurdy has celebrated his selection for the second time as Southern Conference basketball player of the week with a school-record performance, and Davidson's major college scoring leader, poured in a single-game Richmond record 46 points and set another school mark with 21 field goals as the Spiders edged West Virginia's Mountaineers 86-84 Monday night in overtime.

Davidson, closing out its conference season with a 4-6 mark that won't be good enough to earn the Wildcats a seeded berth for the championship tournament, rallied for a 99-89 decision over Appalachian, 1-10 in the league with just one game left.

They were the only Monday night games involving league teams, and tonight's only action has Furman's two-time defending champion Paladins, 10-0, at home against The Citadel's Bulldogs, 2-9 and the only team in danger of falling to Appalachian's level.

Furman, 16-6 over-all, already has clinched the No. 1 seeded spot for the tournament, which opens March 1 on the home courts of the four teams with the best records. The Citadel is 5-11 over-all.

McCurdy, named Monday the conference player for last week when he scored 117 points in three games, boosted his season average to 32.1 with his Monday night barrage, which included 21 of 33 from the floor. He also grabbed a game-high 12 rebounds.

But it was sophomore Kevin Eastman, who had 15 points, who actually won for the Spiders, hitting a 10-foot jumper from the lane with four seconds left in the extra period.

McCurdy scored Richmond's first 13 points as the Spiders took an early lead, then scored nine of their last 17 as they overcame a 71-59 deficit with 7:14 left in regulation.

West Virginia failed to score after building a 76-72 lead with 2:10 left, and John Campbell's outside jumper sent the game into overtime for Richmond, now 9-13 over-all, with 18 seconds left. Stan Boskovich had 18 points and Warren Baker 14 for the Mountaineers, 12-9.

Lowly Appalachian led Davidson 43-41 at intermission, but the Wildcats rallied behind Larry Horowitz, who scored 23 of his career-high 32 points in the second half.

Horowitz scored four of seven straight points that sent Davidson ahead midway the second half and the Mountaineers never got closer than four points after that.

Greg Dunn had 17 points and Tom Verlin 16 for Davidson, which shot 63 per cent in the second half in upping its overall record to 7-16. The Mountaineers, 3-22 against all opposition, were led by Don Stringfellow with 19 points and Mark Campbell with 16.

Indiana Holds To Poll's Lead

The Hoosiers, who mauled Minnesota 69-54 and nailed Northwestern 82-58 last weekend to raise their record to 24-0, once again remained first in the hearts and ballots of the national panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Indiana received all 45 first-place votes for 900 points.

UCLA's Bruins, who made short work of Oregon 95-66 and Oregon State 74-62 for a 19-2 mark, stayed No. 2 with 800 points and Maryland held third with 716 following a 96-74 clubbing of North Carolina that put the Terps' record at 18-3.

North Carolina State, 18-3, jumped up a spot to fourth with 576 points after beating Virginia and Wake Forest while

Lefty Wants Last Two ACC Wins To Impress

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer
"I finally got 'em! I finally got 'em."

That was the cry of a jubilant Coach Lefty Driesell after his Maryland basketball team clobbered North Carolina last Saturday night in a meeting of nationally ranked Atlantic Coast Conference rivals.

Maryland's 96-74 romp, as decisive as the score indicates, was significant for several reasons.

First, it pushed Maryland's ACC leading record to 8-2, avenging a home court loss to the Tar Heels, who dropped to fourth place at 6-3.

The victory was Driesell's first ever at Chapel Hill, N.C., in six years of coaching at Maryland. And it was the first there for a Maryland team in 10 years.

It came just a week after Maryland had walloped Duke at Durham, N.C., 104-80, marking the first time a visiting team hit the century mark on the Duke court.

It also gave Maryland a 4-0 sweep on the road this season against North Carolina's Big Four of N.C. State, North Carolina, Duke and Wake Forest.

Before Driesell's arrival, Maryland was 10-50 in 15 years on Big Four courts. Under Driesell, the record is 10-14, including five straight and six of the last eight on dangerous Tobacco Row.

Driesell said recently he was especially anxious to finish first in the regular season this year, although the champion of the conference will be determined by the winner of the March 6-8 tournament at Greensboro.

Lefty figures that by finishing first in a 12-game span in the ACC over three other nationally ranked teams, Maryland will impress NCAA tourney officials sufficiently to earn a bid to the nationals, regardless of how it fares in the tournament at Greensboro.

This year the NCAA has changed its rules, allowing for more than one team from a conference. One of Driesell's darkest moments followed the 103-100 overtime loss to N.C. State in last year's ACC finals.

The State Wolfpack went on to win the national title, but for Maryland there was no NCAA chance. The bitterly disappointed Terps turned down a bid the next day to play in the National Invitation Tournament in New York. It was NCAA or nothing.

Maryland has only two conference games remaining, against three for runnerup N.C. State and two for third-place Clemson.

Maryland plays at Virginia Wednesday night and winds up regular season conference play at home against Clemson on Wednesday of next week.

N.C. State is host to Duke Wednesday, plays at Clemson Saturday afternoon, and at North Carolina next Tuesday night.

Should Maryland and N.C. State sweep their remaining games to finish tied at 10-2, the first-round bye in the seven-team tournament would go to Maryland because the Terps have beaten N.C. State twice.

If more than two teams tie for first place a draw will be held for tournament positions, regardless of the outcome of regular-season games.

All conference teams are idle tonight and only North Carolina was in action Monday night. The Tar Heels overcame Virginia Tech 87-75 at Backsburg, Va., behind the 24-point scoring of Mitch Kupchak. North Carolina led by only eight points with just over 10 minutes but went into its four corners stall to keep Tech from catching up.

Hoosiers Ice Big Ten Tie

By KEN RAPPOPORT

When Indiana's Hoosiers beat you, they make sure you don't get up. And Wisconsin's basketball team has the marks to prove it.

The top-ranked Hoosiers continued their reign of terror in the Big Ten Conference with a 93-58 rout of the Badgers Monday night that clinched a tie for the league title.

"Indiana has great flow defensively," said Wisconsin Coach John Powliss. "They double back well and cut off penetration. We were forced to take a fall-away jumper or take the ball back outside."

Indiana's brutes forced Wisconsin into 29 turnovers and Scott May carried the offensive load for the winners, scoring 23 points.

The victory was the 28th straight for the Hoosiers. They can clinch the Big Ten championship outright by beating runnerup Purdue this Saturday.

Elsewhere in college basketball, fifth-ranked Alabama defeated LSU 80-76; No. 7 Kentucky smashed Mississippi 108-89; ninth-ranked Marquette stopped Butler 77-55; No. 11 Notre Dame hammered St. Joseph's (Ind.) 97-81; 13th-rated North Carolina trimmed Virginia Tech 87-75 and No. 14 Creighton routed St. Thomas (Minn.) 90-54.

Indiana, which had trouble with Wisconsin in the past at home, had no difficulty Monday night. The hotshot Hoosiers broke open the game with an 18-2 spurt midway through the first half.

May scored 18 of his points in the first half, when Indiana led 48-28. Kent Benson added 16 points and 10 rebounds for Indiana while Bruce Buckner scored 12. Bruce McCauley and Tim Paterick had 10 points apiece for the losers.

Alabama's Leon Douglas scored 25 points and Charles Cleveland 20 to provide a Southeastern Conference victory over LSU. Alabama led the entire contest, but LSU made a couple of strong efforts to gain the lead.

The 31-year-old Kupec is originally from Ossining, New York. He attended the University of Connecticut where he played four years of football in the Yankee Conference. Kupec holds a Masters Degree from the University of Virginia.

Head coach Pat Dye said, "We are real happy to get Richard back. He comes highly recommended by former people he's worked with and by our local citizens. "Based on his past experiences, I'm sure Richard will add a great deal to our coaching staff. You know Richard was the offensive line coach here when the Pirates won their first Southern Conference championship in 1972."

'Caribe' Script Has Weak Start

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It is said that television eats up huge amounts of material. So have your TV set checked immediately for ptomaine if it was tuned to "Caribe" last night.

The new ABC series stars Stacy Keach and Carl Franklin as a two-man "Caribbean Force" attached to the Miami police department. They work the Caribbean turf, fighting American baddies toiling there.

The scheduled opening show had them chasing down a "plastic connection" by which exiled thugs were returning to the United States from the Bahamas after plastic surgery to give them new faces and fresh starts.

A script lift, not a facelift, should have been ordered for this show, which began at a Miami seaplane terminal with the arrival of a well-dressed man bearing a briefcase.

He got out of the plane, walked to a waiting cab and was surprised to find a villain in the back seat. The villain said hello, pulled out a switchblade and threw a hard right jab.

"They're trying to cut down on TV violence nowadays, so we just saw the victim wince. Later dialogue explained he'd been stabbed 26 times in the throat, chest and back and for some reason had expired.

"Keach and Franklin were called in on the case by a police commissioner (Robert Mandan) whom Keach referred to as "your eminence" or "your majesty" at two points in the show. It was a nice sardonic touch.

The commissioner had heard through the grapevine that a "syndicate rebut" had been ordered for the deceased because he was a double-crossing hood. He also knew the guy had been through the "plastic connection" and ordered Keach to infiltrate same.

Whereupon Keach put on a black wig, a mustache and an evil air — Eau de Mafia, I believe it was — and set off for the Bahamas posing as a Cincinnati hood who had dropped out of sight after involvement in a money-skimming operation at a Nevada casino.

After a certain amount of tomfoolery too laborious to describe, the mufti hood got in contact with the plastic connection, satisfied that he was a genuine thug and went to their Bahamas hideout.

This was the good part of the show because Ray Danton, whom late movie fans will recall once put on a great Legs Diamond imitation, showed up as the connection's executive vice-villain.

He played a great meanie in this episode and was the only believable thing about it. The rest of the hour was spent in routine growling, threatening, bashing, chasing and shooting.

Oh yes, the Mr. Big behind the plastic connection was caught.

Keach, a gifted stage actor, didn't show much of his talent in this edition of "Caribe," although the script was so wretched he may have decided to just lay back and enjoy the tropical sun.

Can't blame him. But if succeeding episodes are as bad as this one, he'd best go hide out in a cabana until "Caribe" blows over.

Nixon Tapes Are Offered

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Mail order advertisements are appearing in newspapers around the country offering the reader his own personal copy of the "Nixon tapes" for just $10.

But police in this coastal community where former President Richard M. Nixon makes his home say that instead of getting a recording of oval office conversations, respondents receive a 30-minute tape of old Nixon speeches.

"But there's nothing we can do," said Det. Sgt. Arden Saunders following an investigation into the matter for possible mail fraud. The ad gives a San Clemente post office box and the probe was prompted by complaints to local police from around the country.

Saunders said they are Nixon tapes, even though they aren't the famed Watergate tapes that eventually led to Nixon's resignation last August.

Band Boosters Sponsor Concert

A rock concert featuring "Glass Moon" will be presented Friday at Farmville Central High School under the sponsorship of the Farmville Band Boosters.

A spokesman for the booster club, noting that profit from the concert will be used to buy band uniforms, said that the concert will be held at the school gymnasium from 8 p.m. until 11:30 p.m.

Tickets for the event are now on sale, the spokesman said, at $1.50 or they may be purchased at the door for $2.

Glitter Belies Gloom In Italy

EDITOR'S NOTE — Italy is grappling with its greatest economic crisis since the end of World War II. Inflation is rampant, unemployment is rising, and the prospect is no brighter for the future. But there is still a surface glitter that belies the gloom. Following is the first of three reports on Italy in Crisis.

By JULIE FLINT
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — A casual stroll along Via Condotti, one of Europe's smartest shopping streets, does not show the rot. Diamonds pave the windows of Bulgari, the leather gleams at Gucci and the famous Caffè Greco is packed.

Via Condotti seems a pleasant place to be, a traffic-free oasis in the million-car chaos of Rome. There are no sciaciatori — motorcycle hoodlums — to snatch purses, no "hey, meess" men to disturb the sauntering ladies.

In the shops, deep in their 17th century frames, it's business as usual.

Yet Italy, like a beaten prize fighter, is on the canvass, bruised and bankrupt.

In the down-at-heel villages surrounding Rome, the poor struggle to make ends meet. In the swanky bars of residential suburbs, the young rich parade their status symbols.

Inflation in the nation tops 25 per cent annually. The foreign trade deficit increases by a billion dollars a month in a Gross National Product of $127.5 billion. Unemployment and short-time work affect 8 per cent of the work force of nearly 20 million.

But while the bright names of Via Condotti are holding their own, Italy's industrial giants are seeing their grip slip.

Top jeweler Gianni Bulgari commented: "Italians are basically slow to react to crisis. They go on spending to the bitter end."

A manufacturing nation with no raw materials of its own, Italy took the recent spiral in oil prices harder than its European neighbors. Oil supplies 80 per cent of Italy's energy needs, 66 per cent of France's.

In November, hard hit by widespread strikes for higher pay and pensions, industrial production plummeted 12.1 per cent from November 1973 — by government reckoning one of the worst slumps since the war.

Rippling poverty and rising prices sent crime spiralling, to a 13 per cent over-all increase in 1974. Robbery with violence, once rare in Italy, jumped 55 per cent.

Despairing of effective police action — since 74 per cent of Italy's criminals go unpunished — many shop owners have armed their staffs. Pistol sales rose 43 per cent between January and August last year as shopkeepers in working class districts organized vigilante night patrols and private citizens took measures for their own defense.

Police reported that motorcycle hoodlums attacked more than 3,000 visitors to Rome in the second half of 1974.

In an analysis of the crime boom, Rome's right-wing Il Tempo wrote: "Roman society produces idlers who think of nothing but crowding luxury shops. Their extravagant spending is not even justified by good taste ...

"The most affluent classes set a deplorable example of egoism and greed."

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, FEB. 19, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An early morning feeling of fatigue can be relieved by a more cheerful attitude on your part. You have good ideas now and can logically arrange for future expressions. Good time for communications.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Visiting with friends and allies can be most productive today. Make and keep those important business appointments.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Engage in important financial matters today and forget personal affairs that can be done later. Consult a business expert.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be direct in going after important aims. Don't neglect health treatments. Show more devotion to mate and increase harmony.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Restlessness makes you want to get out of responsibilities you have assumed. Be wise and attend to your duties.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to contact good friends and to state your aims. The social side of life can be most interesting now. Be poised.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Steer clear of a gossipy person early in the day. A new idea given you can improve your career considerably. Be logical.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Once your work is done, you are able to go out for the amusements and relieve tensions. Avoid one who is a troublemaker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Keep plugging away at whatever has to do with your career and get good benefits therefrom. Strive for more happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 Dec. 21) Avoid a family tie who is not in a good mood early in the day. Take steps to handle an outside problem wisely. Be clever.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Use extreme caution early in the day and steer clear of any possible accident. Give greater attention to your health.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get together with those persons whose sense of humor is akin to yours. Express your talents. Don't be too extravagant.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Stop fretting about something you can do little about. Some light entertaining at home tonight could prove delightful.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those brilliant young people who will require a fine education in order to use this quality to fullest advantage. Teach to finish whatever is started. But don't try to break the will here, which is great. Give ethical training.

Chrysler Corp. Lining Up Credit Agreements

By MARTIN HIRSCHMAN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. hit by a fourth-quarter 1974 deficit of $73.5 million to cap its worst year ever, has arranged a cushion of new credit of more than $1 billion.
For the year, Chrysler posted a loss of $52 million, compared with a $29.6 million loss in the recession year of 1958. Sales of $11 billion last year were off 7.2 per cent from $11.8 billion in 1973.
Chrysler said its sales in the fourth quarter of 1974 plummeted 27 per cent to $2.5 billion, from $3.4 billion in the same period a year earlier.

In 1973, Chrysler had profits of $255 million, including $74.4 million in the fourth quarter.
To meet growing debts, Chrysler officials said Monday they have lined up credit agreements with about 200 banks for $1.075 billion. The firm lists total assets of $6.7 billion.
Chrysler Chairman Lynn Townsend said the financing was necessary to "assure the continued availability of needed financial reserves."
Although all four major U.S. auto makers confronted essentially the same problems of gasoline shortages, inflation and recession in 1974, the only loss was expected at Chrysler.
Financial analysts say Chrysler can be expected to lose another $25 million to $50 million this quarter and may operate in the red for the entire year.
General Motors' profits fell to $950 million from $2.4 billion the year before. Ford Motor Co. reports later this week. American Motors earned $27 million in its fiscal year, which ended Oct. 30.

Townsend and Chrysler President John Riccardo blamed the general economic decline and government efforts to control inflation for the dramatic sales slump of the fourth quarter.
"Even though the gasoline shortage soon eased, auto sales continued to lag because of political uncertainty, high interest rates, severe inflation, and weakening consumer confidence," they said.
Critics of the firm say Chrysler failed to move quickly enough to cut production when it became apparent that 1975 model cars weren't selling. At one point Chrysler had a 140-day inventory of unsold cars, double what is considered ample.

Chrysler has 59,550 of its 114,000 hourly workers on layoff, compared with 39 per cent for the industry as a whole. In addition, half of Chrysler's 39,000 white collar workers have been on brief or indefinite layoff since Thanksgiving. The firm has been offering early retirement to some salaried workers over the age of 55.

Celebrated ERA Defeat

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The downfall of the Equal Rights Amendment in the Georgia General Assembly led women opponents of the proposal to hug and kiss senators who helped defeat the resolution.
Monday's vote was 33 to 22.
The amendment would ban sex discrimination. It has been passed by 34 states and must be approved by four more to become part of the U.S. Constitution.
The Georgia branch of the National Organization for Women (NOW) conceded the fight to ratify ERA "is probably over in Georgia."
The Utah House of Representatives votes on the amendment late today. Surveys indicate it will be turned down by a wide margin.
Proponents' hopes for passage faded when the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) opposed the amendment, expressing fear it would lead to a breakdown of families.
FARM PONDS
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Conservation Commission has been stocking Missouri farm ponds free with bass, bluegill and channel catfish for more than 32 years.

McPherson Will Speak

Charles McPherson, marketing manager for IBM Corp. here, will be the guest speaker for the Wednesday dinner meeting of the Eastern Carolina Chapter of the National Association of Accountants.

McPherson, a graduate of the University of South Carolina with a B.S. degree in business administration, joined IBM in Columbia, S.C. in 1963 as a sales trainee. In 1964, he transferred to Augusta, Ga. as a sales representative.

He moved to Greenville in October of 1974 and assumed his present position, in which he is responsible for marketing and support of the General Systems Division products and services to 29 counties in Eastern North Carolina.

The Eastern Carolina Chapter of the NAA was chartered on Feb. 1, 1953 with a chapter service area covering a greater portion of 19 eastern counties.
The NAA meeting will be held at 6:30 p.m. at the Candlewick Inn.

Trapper Keeps Tradition Alive

YOUNG TRAPPER — Dave Scadden, 18, fleshes out a beaver pelt he trapped in the best tradition of the Old West. (AP Wirephoto)

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Dave Scadden, at 18, makes one 20th century concession to his job. He takes a snowmobile to work.
Scadden is a trapper, one of the youngest in Utah and described by Lee Robertson of the Utah Division of Wildlife Resources as "authentic down to his shoelaces."
The youth dresses his slim frame in hand-tanned buckskins and a beaver pelt hat.
He's spent much of this winter criss-crossing the mountains of northern Utah, hunting mainly for beaver, but also taking coyotes and bobcats.
It's a time-consuming job, requiring stamina for hours of hiking. He rides a snowmobile up into the mountains, then sets out on snowshoes.
"You can't just set your lines and come back a week later," he said. "They've got to be checked every 36 hours. When I'm out I usually try to check them once a day. If you've picked a good spot, you'll have them full by then."

Scadden said he finds trapping "pretty much a full-time job, off and on, depending on the weather. That's about all I've done."
He judges the best catches in Utah are beaver and muskrats, and when people criticize him for trapping the animals, he justifies the hunt by saying, "The animals don't suffer much. With the beavers, death occurs within minutes."
A beaver pelt sells for $12 to a fur dealer, Scadden said. But for that amount, he spends about 25 hours trapping and preparing the pelt. He can get $30 for a coyote hide and a bobcat can bring $95.

Scadden, a high school graduate, said he doesn't make much — "just enough to get by" — but doesn't have any plans for further schooling and some day would like a more permanent outdoors job.
He said he cannot recall when he began trapping, he just picked it up over the years.
"It just becomes a part of you," he said. "It's something I've got to do, breathe new life in something that's almost died out."

Fix Blame On Auto Emission

NEW YORK (UPI) — Automobile exhaust pollution kills about 4,000 Americans yearly and accounts for worker absences totaling four million days a year.

National Academy of Sciences researchers blame auto emissions for causing and aggravating fatal cases of bronchitis, emphysema and asthma.

Of the total health hazard posed by air pollution from all sources, about one-tenth to one-fourth can be traced to auto exhaust fumes say the experts.

Amtrak Basic Fare Reduced

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) — Amtrak has announced a $10 reduction—from $30 to $20—in the minimum basic fare to qualify travelers for family discount plans. Under the plan, one adult pays full fare, spouse and children 12 to 21 years 75 per cent, children 2 through 11 years, 37.5 per cent. The plan is good for coach and first class travel on all trains with the exception of Metroliners.

Thornsby...

"Prices will go up and you'll be out of work. But take heart, Washington will send you a 37¢ refund!"

Expired Plates Foil Escape

CLAYTON, N.C. (AP)—Three youths were arrested at 12:52 a.m. today because the 1974 license plates on their van had expired two minutes before.

Police found they had escaped two and a half hours before from a juvenile detention center at Goldsboro, 35 miles southeast of Clayton.
They were identified as David Allen Stuart, Earl Burlison and Jeffrey Rivenback.

Revival Series Begins Sunday

SIMPSON — Revival services will begin at the Salem United Methodist Church Sunday and will continue through Friday, Feb. 28.
The guest speaker will be the Rev. Dan Powers. Services will be held nightly at 7:30.
The public is invited.

"IT'S REALLY MINE!"

Serious Rift Apparent In N.C. Republican Ranks

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Leading North Carolina Republicans are at pains these days to deny that a serious rift between moderates and conservatives is growing within their party.

But if what has been said and done in the past few days is an indication of amity and cooperation within the GOP, the Republicans don't need enemies from without.

Most outside observers agree that there are two loose factions within the party. One is led by Gov. Jim Holshouser, and the other by Sen. Jesse Helms.

Partly because of the requirements and pressures of executive leadership, the Holshouser group tends toward moderate pragmatism in its policies. Reflecting the beliefs of its leader, the Helms wing tends toward dogmatic conservatism. There has never been much love lost between the two since Holshouser and Helms emerged victorious from the party's 1972 primaries and went their largely separate ways toward election victory. Things got worse in 1973 when Holshouser sought successfully to remove conservative Frank Rouse from the party chairmanship and replace him with Thomas Bennett. They got still worse in 1974 when Helms' office got involved with and helped to publicize a federal investigation into the activities of Holshouser's assistant for minority affairs, Dr. Larnie Horton. Nor were things improved when Helms was lukewarm to Republican Senate candidate William Stevens. There was much bitterness on both sides when the statewide GOP ticket, largely Holshouser's creation, was crushed in the November election.

In the past few days: —Rouse has bitterly attacked Holshouser's leadership in a letter to state party members. And, he has alleged that he participated in influence peddling with Holshouser's state party organization.

Rouse says he offered a $5,000 campaign contribution to party functionary William Russo in return for favors for a Rouse business associate who was having troubles with the state Highway Department.

Russo was managing the campaign of former Atty. Gen. James Carson, a Holshouser appointee. Although Russo has acknowledged that the $77,000 penalty against Rouse's friend was reviewed, he and Carson deny there was a deal along the lines Rouse has suggested.

Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten, a Democrat, has announced plans to fully investigate Rouse's charges. He will start the probe at a meeting in the Justice Department today.

—Helms suggested in Washington last weekend that disgruntled conservatives should prepare themselves to launch a third party movement in case the national Republican party continues what Helms sees as a leftward drift.

In Raleigh Monday, Helms' 1972 campaign strategist, attorney Tom Ellis, applied that doctrine at the state level. Ellis told some reporters that under Holshouser, the state GOP has "drifted into the middle and hoped that hair and teeth will attract voters. He has not articulated conservative principles, which I believe the majority of North Carolinians believe in."

Ellis said it would be difficult to start a third party movement in North Carolina, but he did not rule it out. He said it would not bother him if Helms forsakes the GOP to run as an independent in 1978.

—Helms has also added to Holshouser's political headaches by prompting Edmisten to launch another investigation into a close Holshouser ally.

This one involves a charge that the governor's legislative counsel, George Rountree, advised a local sewer authority that to get state and federal funding, it ought to hire the engineering firm of Troy Doby, Holshouser's Secretary of Transportation.

Behind the overt salvos is a staunch belief on the part of both sides that the other will ruin the GOP if it is given its head.

The Holshouser faction believes it is easy for the conservative to espouse ideological principles when they are not faced with the daily problems of running the executive branch, both at the state and national levels.

They feel that an ideological party would have a base so narrow that the Republicans could never win election except in freakish circumstances.

The conservatives believe that the moderates are offering the electorate little more than an echo of the Democrats' social programs.

The philosophical argument can engage the minds of political scientists from now to eternity. But in the meantime, it is clear that the real beneficiaries of the division are the Democrats. Their own house is hardly unified, but they at least have the advantage of hunger in their drive to regain the White House and the executive mansion in 1978.

Supper Planned For Church's Family Night

In connection with the denominational Season of Christian Witness, the First Presbyterian Church will hold a family night covered-dish supper Wednesday, at 6:15 p.m.

Guest speaker for the occasion will be Dr. John Knox Miller, for 25 years a medical missionary in Zaire (formerly Belgian Congo), Africa.

Dr. Miller was graduated from Davidson College in 1941 and received his medical training at Tulane University Medical School. His parents were also missionaries in Africa and he spent his boyhood in the nation that is now Zaire.

Dr. Miller will show slides and tell of the special work he and his fellow workers are doing in the field of child nutrition. Members of the congregation and interested friends are invited to attend. Nursery facilities will be provided for younger children.

On Sunday morning, Feb. 23, the First Presbyterian Church will receive a special offering for the work of international missions.

$6,000 Contributed To Hospital Gifts Group

The new Pitt County Memorial Hospital Gifts Committee, which is currently involved in a campaign to raise during the next four years the one million dollars needed to equip the new Pitt County Memorial Hospital, recently received a donation of $6,000 from the James and Annie Long Memorial Funds.

Hospital Administrator, Jack Richardson, said that the gift would be used to construct a garden in the patio area off the Intensive Care Unit (ICU) and to purchase equipment for the ICU. The memorial honoring the Longs will be established in the patio area.

G. E. Trevathan, trustee for the fund which has been in existence since 1960, said the fund is a medical trust. Money from the fund is to be spent for medical care where needed.

According to Trevathan, when Annie Long died she left a significant amount of real estate in the city of Greenville. It was her desire that the income from these properties be used as a fund to pay certain medical expenses for people of Pitt County unable to pay their medical bills.

Annie Long had numerous medical expenses of her own during her lifetime, including a large sum for hospitalization and surgery when she had to have a leg amputated. This time of adversity was probably foremost on her mind when she decided to create the trust, Trevathan said.

Eritrea Plans For Self-Rule

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Eritrean Liberation Front today rejected a cease-fire with the Ethiopian army and said it will soon unilaterally proclaim an independent republic in Eritrea.

Osman Saleh Sabbi, secretary-general of the ELF Popular Liberation forces, in a news conference here also appealed to the United States to embargo arms shipments to Ethiopia "as long as the independence war is under way."

The United States "should take no sides in the current war," Sabbi said. "We hope the U.S. government will turn down the fresh Ethiopian request for ammunition and military equipment."

He said rebel field commands "are confident they can beat the Ethiopian army on the battlefield. That's why we refuse altogether the cease-fire proposals made recently by Sudan."

Sabbi said the ELF planned to make its declaration of independence in Asmara, the capital of Eritrea, where most of the recent fighting raged. He said the Eritrean republic would be a "parliamentary democracy that will follow moderate policies designed to promote friendship with all other nations."

"Our forces are now in full control of parts of Asmara," Sabbi claimed. "The independence declaration will come in a matter of weeks."

Reports from Addis Ababa said Asmara was under army control Monday and rebel attacks on the city of 200,000 had died down. But Sabbi claimed an estimated 12,000 Ethiopian troops were "virtually encircled by the rebels in Asmara and other major towns."

Ford Plans Visit China And Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will step up his foreign travel schedule later this year with trips to Europe and China, White House sources say.

Ford is likely to visit Europe around September and probably will make his planned trip to Peking in October or November, a source said Monday.

The President hopes to time his European trip so that he can participate in a projected Helsinki summit conference on European security and be on hand to sign any agreement resulting from the meeting. However, that would depend on progress in current 35-nation talks on a new security system for Europe.

Ford already has accepted in principle invitations to visit Britain, West Germany and Yugoslavia and is considering an invitation to travel to Romania.

Other capitals likely to be on his itinerary are Rome and perhaps Paris and others, as well as the Brussels headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance and European Common Market.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen flatly denied a published report that Ford would travel to Europe in April. It was understood a spring trip was considered but was dropped about a month ago because the work of European security negotiators was not close enough to being completed.

The chief purpose of the European trip would be to try to spur trans-Atlantic cooperation in trade, energy and monetary matters. The China trip is intended to build on the results of former President Richard M. Nixon's 1972 journey to Peking that began a process of "normalization of relations" between the two countries.

Two Collisions Here Sunday

An estimated $1,425 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated here Sunday by Greenville police.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 10:45 p.m. mishap on Dickinson Avenue, 30 feet North of the Center Street intersection involving cars driven by Charlie Edward McRoy of 1008 Chestnut St. and Wilbert Fred Cobb of Norfolk, Va.

Damage was estimated at $25 to the McRoy car and $1,000 to the Cobb auto by officers who charged McRoy with following to close.

Willie Andrew Fonville of Kinston was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 6:02 p.m. mishap on Dickinson Avenue 100 feet East of the Memorial Drive intersection.

Police said the Fonville car collided with a vehicle operated by Donald Ray Waters of Route 1, Pantego, causing an estimated $150 damage to the Fonville car and $250 to the Waters vehicle.

TERMITES OR ANTS?
Don't be half sure. Call a professional pest control operator for an inspection today.
The potential damage to property from termites can exceed the damage from tornadoes, hurricanes and fire. This is why termite protection is as important as a homeowner's insurance policy.
