

House Votes To Cut Taxes $21.3 Billion

By CARL C. CRAFT Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to cut taxes by $21.3 billion, mostly for those with income under $20,000. It also approved repeal of the oil depletion allowance, which might slow the tax bill's progress in the Senate.

The tax cut bill, approved 317 to 97, provides rebates on 1974 taxes and lower 1975 taxes through decreased withholding rates. The Democratic-sponsored measure is designed to put more spending money in the pockets of consumers and thus stimulate the slumping economy.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee which will hold hearings on the bill, promised prompt action by his panel. He predicted the Senate will approve a bill that would result in tax cuts at least as high as those approved by the House.

However, some senators have warned that supporters of the depletion allowance may filibuster against a tax cut bill containing a repealer of the allowance. The petroleum industry saves an estimated $2.5 billion in taxes annually from the allowance.

The bill provides $16.21 billion in relief to individual taxpayers and $5.07 billion in benefits for businesses. About 89 per cent of the individual tax benefits would go to persons earning $20,000 a year or less.

Just before approving the measure, the House rejected 251 to 160 a Republican-backed proposal that would have provided $12.2 billion in 1974 tax rebates.

The successful bill provides 1974 tax rebates of around $8 billion. The rebates generally amount to 10 per cent and would be refunded starting in May. The top rebate would be $200 and the minimum would be $100, but anyone who paid less than $100 in taxes would get all of the tax back.

The successful bill also provided for about $8 billion in lower 1975 taxes through lower withholding rates beginning May 1. The lower rates would reflect these changes:

—The minimum standard deduction, also known as the low-income allowance, would increase from $1,300 to $1,900 for singles and $2,500 for couples filing a joint return.

—The standard deduction, which is used by taxpayers who do not itemize their deductions, would increase from 15 per cent to 16 per cent of gross income.

—The maximum standard deduction would increase from $2,000 to $2,500 for singles and $3,000 for couples filing a joint return.

The bill also grants a special new 5 per cent tax credit on earned income, meaning wages and any self-employment income, with a maximum $200 credit. This credit would go only to low-income persons and would start being reduced at the $4,000 income level. It would fully phase out at $6,000 of income.

The special credit also would make cash payments to persons who are too poor to be required to file income tax returns. This cash payment feature is believed to be the first time the federal government would go through the tax system this way in making payments to poor persons.

For businesses, the package includes 1975 and 1976 investment tax credit changes as an incentive for machinery and equipment purchases.

Cancel Wheat Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — The People's Republic of China now has no U.S. wheat on order for delivery after the 1975 crop is harvested, following cancellation of a 14-million-bushel purchase.

Cancellation of the order, which would have been worth $8 million at current prices, was disclosed Thursday in a weekly report of export listings with the Agriculture Department.

Department officials said they did not know the reason for the cancellation and said they could not disclose which export firms lost the business.

Earlier this year, the Chinese canceled orders for 22 million bushels of wheat for delivery through next August by Cook Industries Inc. of Memphis, Tenn.

The export report indicated that China still had on order 53 million bushels of U.S. wheat that is scheduled for delivery before the current crop year ends June 30.

An official of the department's Foreign Agriculture Service said the Chinese cancellation was "very unimportant" in terms of U.S. wheat exports. They are expected to total 1.1 billion bushels worth some $5.25 billion in the fiscal year ending June 30.

13 Dead In Rail Wreck

By NOEL HUGHES Associated Press Writer LONDON (AP) — A packed subway train crashed through the protective buffers of a station in London's financial district at the height of the morning rush hour today and slammed into a tunnel wall, killing at least 13 persons and injuring 68, officials and witnesses said. It was London's worst subway wreck.

Firemen used acetylene torches to cut through one of the twisted coaches to reach trapped victims. Some rescue workers had to crawl on their hands and knees.

About 50 persons were trapped in three coaches that were badly smashed, a spokesman for the London Fire Brigade said. "Two of the coaches are concentrated in an area where one coach would normally go," said Police Commander Ernest Bright.

Authorities said they feared the death toll would rise. London's worst previous subway wreck occurred in 1953 when 12 persons were killed and 45 were injured. Authorities said it was not immediately known what caused the crash of the six-coach train today.

The crash occurred at 8:58 a.m. at Moorgate Station in London's financial district, where hundreds of thousands of commuters work.

London cabs were commandeered to rush nurses through the city. Office workers lined up outside the station and volunteered to give blood.

Shortly after the wreck, about 100 workmen began fighting their way through the tangled wreckage with metal-cutting equipment to reach trapped passengers.

A police spokesman said the train overran the platform and went into a blind tunnel. "Two coaches are in that tunnel and the third coach has ridden up on the back of the second," he said.

Vote Required Teaching Free Enterprise System

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Senate today passed and sent to the House a bill requiring public high schools to teach students about the free enterprise system.

The bill, after adoption of two minor amendments, won final approval by a 36-5 vote.

The measure would require the schools to include "instruction in the free enterprise system, as characterized by private or corporate ownership of capital goods, by investments that are determined by private decision rather than state control, and by prices, production and the distribution of goods that are determined in a free manner."

The measure was suggested by Gov. Jim Holshouser, and its sponsors were two Democrats, Sen. William Mauney of Cleveland and Rep. Joe Foster of Mecklenburg.

Mauney told the Senate that "Businessmen are concerned that our young people are not familiar with the free enterprise system and what it accomplishes for us."

In other legislative action Thursday, the Senate Committee on Criminal Justice and Corrections amended and sent back to the Senate floor a bill authorizing judges in North Carolina courts to use split sentences. The bill would permit judges to give defendants an active prison sentence of up to six months plus an extended period on probation. The idea of the measure is to give a person a brief taste of prison life in the hope that it will persuade him to mend his ways.

In order to keep judges from giving split sentences to habitual criminals, the bill was amended to provide that it could not be used where a defendant had served a prison term within five years.

There was no opposition as the House Finance Committee held a public hearing on a measure to provide a uniform budget and fiscal control act for the state's public school systems.

Rep. Lane Brown, D-Stanly, sponsor of the measure, told the committee it will replace a "hodge podge" of statewide and local measures dealing with school budgets and fiscal control of the schools.

Those speaking in favor of the measure included Dr. Raleigh E. Dingman, executive secretary of the North Carolina Schools Boards Association; Waverly Akins, president of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners; A.C. Davis, controller of the state Board of Education; Harlan Broyles, deputy state treasurer representing the Local Government Commission; and Reid Ross, representing the Superintendents Division of the North Carolina Association of Educators.

ARE BRIDGES INSPECTED?

I read in the paper this week about a bridge's collapsing in North Carolina. I wonder if the Department of Transportation makes periodic checks on all the bridges on our highway system. W.H.

Max Collins, head of the Bridge Maintenance Division of the State Department of Transportation, said his division is required by federal law to inspect every bridge in the state at least every two years. Teams are assigned to certain areas and each is responsible for checking all the bridges in its area. The local Bridge Maintenance Office is concerned mainly with building rather than inspecting or repairing, a spokesman for the local office said.

The Greenville Boulevard gate will continue to be locked, however. It goes without saying that football cleats, bicycles, and motorcycles are banned from the track, because they damage it.

Pocketbooks Affected

RALEIGH (AP)—Two bills that would affect the pocketbooks of nearly every North Carolinian were introduced in the General Assembly today.

One, sponsored by Sen. William G. Smith, D-New Hanover, would repeal the sales tax on food by increasing taxes on high incomes, cigarettes, and automobiles.

The other, by Rep. Daniel Lilley, D-Lenoir, would extend for two more years the suspension of the state's eight per cent ceiling on home mortgage loan interest.

Smith's bill would replace the completely the approximately $75 million lost by repeal of the three per cent sales tax on food.

It would increase income taxes to an upper limit of 10 per cent on incomes in excess of $40,000.

Cigarette taxes would rise from two cents to six cents per pack this July and to nine cents in July, 1976.

The present two per cent sales tax ceiling on autos would be repealed, placing autos under the general three per cent sales tax. There would also be an additional two per cent road use tax levies on autos.

Lilley's bill would allow the mortgage interest rate to float for two more years. Prior to 1974, North Carolina had a limit of eight per cent on interest rates.

Last year, the ban was lifted because banking institutions said they could not afford to loan money at eight per cent.

Two Cambodian Monday Outposts Taken By Insurgents

By CARL ROBINSON Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Cambodian army abandoned two key positions today five miles northeast and 12 miles west of Phnom Penh after heavy shelling and ground attacks, military sources and field reports said.

Government troops fled from Tuol Leap, 12 miles west of the Cambodian capital, and Prek Luong, five miles northeast of the city on the other side of the Mekong river.

Both positions have been isolated for months. But military analysts said the fall of Tuol Leap opened the way for the Khmer Rouge insurgents to push closer to Phnom Penh's airport, west of the city, where a U.S. airlift is delivering the only sizable shipments of ammunition and rice to reach the besieged city.

Field reports said the rebels also attacked three besieged outposts 15 miles west of Phnom Penh.

Rocket and artillery attacks on Phnom Penh and the airport dropped off slightly, with 12 rounds fired during the night. One person was killed and six were wounded, military sources said.

About 500 government troops pulled out of Prek Luong after heavy attacks that began during the night and continued today. Some swam the river and others were picked up by navy boats.

It was the closest fighting to Phnom Penh since the early days of the insurgents' dry season offensive that began Jan. 1.

The insurgents broke through the government lines during the night.

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. at the Pitt County Court House.

Included on the board's agenda for the session are consideration of appointments to the Sheppard Memorial Library Board and Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees; a request from the Town of Grifton and recommendations from the State Division of Highways that nine state-maintained streets in Grifton be deleted from the state secondary road system so they can be included in the street system of the town; and reports from various county departments and agencies.

The agenda also calls for an executive session to discuss the purchase of property for the location of proposed school, as well as the purchase of other property by the county.

Pitt Group Begins Planning For Bicentennial

Civic, business, and Educational leaders from throughout Pitt County met Thursday night to begin planning for the county's celebration of the American Revolution Bicentennial. The meeting at Parker's Barbecue Restaurant was attended by a cross-section of county leaders who constituted an informal Bicentennial Community Council.

Dr. Hebert R. Paschal, chairman of the Department of History at ECU and a North Carolina Bicentennial Commission member, presided over the meeting. After reviewing some of the national and state plans for celebrating the bicentennial, Dr. Paschal described efforts being made on the local level.

He announced that Pitt County Commissioners have appropriated $3,000 for the current year to help finance the celebration. The responsibility for organizing the county's effort has been placed upon the Pitt County Historical Society, which sponsored the meeting, to help formulate a county-wide organization.

In keeping with the national Bicentennial theme of "Heritage, Festival, and Horizons," Dr. Paschal urged organizations throughout the county to sponsor projects to commemorate the nation's founding, celebrate its birthday, and improve the county for the future.

It was announced that the Pitt County Historical Society is already planning a scholarly county history to be published in 1976 as its contribution to the celebration.

Ideas for possible projects which were discussed included the development of mini-parks, construction of bicycle trails, historical restorations, planting of trees, and the marking of historical buildings such as early churches.

An organization chart was presented to the group which calls for a Bicentennial Steering Committee to be responsible for overall planning. An executive director will be appointed to coordinate the establishment of local working committees directly responsible for planning projects, procuring finances, and publicizing events.

Upon motion of Dr. Charles L. Price, it was decided that the steering committee should consist of 12 members who would have the power to increase their number if the need developed.

Frank M. Wooten moved that the president of the Pitt County Historical Society, the chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, the president of the Pitt County Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and Dr. Herbert Paschal be empowered to appoint the steering committee. This motion passed unanimously.

Women's Cooperative Galley In Chicago Is Showing Men's Art

By C.G. McDANIEL
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — "Women Choose Men" in a reverse liberation art show at a women's cooperative gallery in Chicago.

The 20 women artists who operate the membership-run ARC Gallery selected 20 men artists whose work to exhibit included painting, drawing, sculpture, photography and ceramics.

ARC, which stands for Artists, Residents of Chicago, opened as a nonprofit gallery in September 1973 to display the work of the women who belong to it.

Jan Miller, a member, said in an interview that the gallery has been successful and offered opportunities for women. "We're very happy, very pleased," she said. "This is what we wanted."

The members decided they should give some men artists a chance to exhibit their work in a gallery other than the standard ones, she said.

All of the men but one, Richard H. Knowles of Memphis, Tenn., State University, come from Illinois, most of them from the Chicago area.

Knowles is represented by two of the most striking pieces in the show. He has two abstract oil canvases of bright accents against brown.

Emilio Cruz of Chicago contributed a huge abstract canvas, "Inflections of Innuendoes in Violet Air." It is bold but subtle with color themes stated in horizontal bands in red, green, yellow and violet shaded with white.

The most unusual piece is "Movement Westward" by Chicagoan John Laluya, consisting of a prairie theme stated in flat ceramics with clouds above made of stuffed cloth, all done in brown tones.

Andy Pawlan of Chicago crocheted two stuffed fantastical figures.

CHET HANDELMAN is one of the male artists whose work was exhibited in January at Chicago's ARC Gallery, which was begun in 1973 to display the work of the women who run it. Handelman's work, shown on the lawn instead of inside the gallery, is "Space Flow," and it's made of plexiglas and cast aluminum.

Four different color interpretations of the same picture, "Chicken Unlimited," were done by Mark Kirk of Chicago. In each a large hen overshadows a cluster of people and mountains.

A contemporary subject stated in contemporary materials is the sculptural contribution of Chet Handelman of Evanston. Titled "Space Flow," it consists of an upright sheet of plexiglas on which are mounted a fender and exhaust vent made of cast aluminum. The show opened Jan. 7 and closed Feb. 1.

Other men represented were: Martin Hurlig of Evanston; Bob Evans of Springfield; Robert Enkey of Wilmette; Thomas Walsh of Southern Illinois University, Carbondale; Robert Lossman of Mundelein and Chicagoans Elwood C. Howell, Ruyell Ho, Art Kleinman, Michael Brice, Mel Theobald, Dan Ramirez, Ronald Reed, P. Michael O'Sullivan and Ted Gall.

You Can't Build Happiness By Hurting Others

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am still in love with the man I was in love with 42 years ago, when I was 16.

We both married different people. I had a very unhappy life being married to the wrong man for 41 years. Two months ago, my husband died. That's when I started to think about Benny again. I finally located him through his relatives, and I called him up. (He lives 600 miles from here.) When I told him who I was he nearly dropped dead. He couldn't talk much because his wife was there, so we made arrangements for him to call me from work. Now he calls me almost every day. We talked about old times and all the fun we used to have, and said he never stopped loving me.

His problem is his wife. They have been married for 40 years, and he doesn't know how to tell her that he doesn't love her, and he wants to be free to marry me. He said she is a sickly woman, she can't work, and he hates to hurt her. Can you help us?
STILL IN LOVE

DEAR STILL: I know of no way for a man to tell his wife of 40 years that he wants to be free to marry his childhood sweetheart.

I think that you and Benny are trying to relive the past. It can't be done. Besides, Benny is very much married, and therefore unavailable. So do Benny, his family, and yourself a big favor, and get out of his life. You can't build happiness on the broken hearts of others.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 22-year-old daughter who is living with her boyfriend in a nearby town. My friends and relatives don't know this and they are constantly asking me where she is. I get upset and start to cry and don't know what to say.

I raised this girl the best I could and I can't accept the fact that she turned out this way. How can I learn to live with this?
A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You can tell yourself that a 22-year-old daughter is responsible for her own lifestyle. If you raised her "the best you could," you needn't be ashamed. It's not necessary to say that she is living with her boyfriend. You can say that she is no longer living at home. It's true.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has always been a heavy smoker. (Four packs a day for the last 30 years.) Al had a heart attack last year, and the doctor gave him some orders. Quit smoking (which he did, believe it or not) and avoid all excitement. (He was more specific; absolutely no fooling around with young girls unless he wanted to die in bed.)

Now Al tells me he's nervous and restless. He says he has to lead a more "normal" life and can't give up everything he enjoys. He's asked me if I would rather have him go back to smoking again, or fooling around with young girls. Isn't that a choice for you?

How should I answer him? With all his faults, I love him and don't want to be a widow. But which is worse, lung cancer or a heart attack?
AL'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: It's a draw. But with a choice like that you'd probably worry less if you saw Al smoking. (P.S. Your Al certainly is a shrewd trader.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Usage Of Peanuts Is Growing

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

You can make a peanut butter sandwich for less than a dime, says John L. Currier, in a statement that can be applied to few, if any, other high protein foods.

Currier is president of the National Peanut Council, a trade organization representing the nation's goober growers.

Peanut butter sales alone grew 12 per cent between the summer of 1972 and the end of 1974, he said. But peanuts are used more than 75 different American-made products, ranging from candy, confectionery and snacks, to salad and cooking oils, cosmetics, antibiotics, and bird and livestock feed.

Peanut shells go into fuel, fertilizers, mulch for gardening and farming, cattle feed, poultry-house litter, abrasives for polishing metals, insulation for farm buildings and crowns for beverage bottles.

A record crop last year has pushed stockpiles of the nuts up 15 per cent, which should help keep prices reasonable.

As supplementary protein in all kinds of food, peanuts and products made from them add nutrients at modest cost.

If, like many families these days, you are reducing the size of servings of high-ticket, high-protein meat and seafood, try some of these nutty ideas for getting enough high-quality protein into your meals: Blend peanut butter into sauces to serve with meat. Good cooks in Africa and Southeast Asia have done this for years.

Garnish salads and hot vegetables with chopped, roasted or salted peanuts, for texture contrast as well as food value.

Use peanut butter instead of dairy butter or margarine on baked sweet potatoes or yams. Save crumbs from peanut brittle for ice cream and pudding toppings; or mix the crumbs or chopped raw or roasted nuts into cookie dough or sprinkle on cupcake batter before baking.

Bake a peanut butter pie. Make fruit and peanut butter sandwiches with unpeeled apples or pears, sliced or cut into wedges.

Add nuts to salad or sandwich fillings made from leftover ham and-or chicken or ground leftover meat for stuffing green peppers or other vegetables. Winter squash with meat and nut stuffing makes a delicious, inexpensive main dish meal, to be served with a light salad and fresh fruit for dessert. Add ground peanuts to meat loaf and meat balls mixtures or to the sauce served with them.

Save money by making your own dry-roasted peanuts from raw nuts, bought in the shell. Skin them by water or dry blanching:

Shell the nuts. Either place them in a pan, add boiling water and let stand three to four minutes, or until skins can be slipped off by hand; drain, skin and roast, as in following directions;

Or place shelled nuts one or two layers deep on a cookie sheet in a 350 degree oven. Roast 15 to 20 minutes, stirring often to cook evenly. Skins usually can be slipped off after the first three to five minutes, or you can skin them after roasting is finished. In either case, sprinkle nuts while still warm with plain or seasoned salt or curry powder or chili powder. Cool, and store in a tightly covered container.

Different Scenes On Walls To Accommodate Your Moods

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Walls may bring you joy and serenity or they may be dismal barriers. So says David Winfield Willson of San Francisco and New York, who hopes to provide other alternatives with a projection system that will make it possible to have different scenes on the walls to accommodate changing moods.

"Most projector equipment is impractical for this purpose because it must be used as a straight image. We have been working on a ceiling-mounted projector that is relatively close to the wall, just a few feet away so the picture may be projected without distortion. The most difficult part is providing proper perspective," he explained.

The first projector will be on the market this year, he says.

TIME TO BRUSH—In a program to determine the best kind of material for tooth implants, Linda Ledford, of Hepziba, Ga., has the chore of brushing teeth of dogs that have artificial tooth roots imbedded in their jaw. (AP Wirephoto)

Has Fulltime Job In Brushing Of Dogs' Artificial Teeth

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Linda Ledford is a 20-year-old future dental student who became interested in the profession—by brushing artificial teeth—on dogs.

She is one of the participants in a three-year program by the Medical College of Georgia and Clemson University that is intended to determine the best kind of material for tooth implants. Miss Ledford's duty is periodically to brush the teeth of dogs that have artificial tooth roots imbedded in their jaws.

It's a fulltime job; there were about 70 dogs involved and now about 35.

The Hepziba, Ga., native and former University of Georgia biology major says she came to Augusta just over a year ago to work for a while before finishing work toward her degree and now intends to enroll at the medical school. "I've enjoyed the work," she says.

Her tasks have been varied but have resulted in an interest in dentistry as a career.

Miss Ledford finds brushing dogs' teeth not at all difficult and says the mongrels are well cared for in other respects.

Her supervisor is Dr. Larry J. Peterson, an oral surgeon at the Augusta institution who is in charge of the clinical portion of the experiment.

Peterson takes the teeth formed at Clemson from different types of plastic, ceramic and metal and inserts them in the dogs' mouths. It involves removing natural teeth and drilling into the bone to ensure a proper fit.

Miss Ledford's thrice-weekly brush work is most needed in the first two months, Peterson said, because the dogs are on soft diets. There is a resultant build-up of plaque and the like which must be removed.

Peterson observed, "At this point it's too early to say what's happening. My clinical impression is, 'Boy, these look great.' The scientist part of me says 'Wait a minute.'"

The Clemson portion of the program, funded by a $235,000 contract with the National Institute of Dental Research is supervised by Dr. Jerome Clawitter in the school's division of interdisciplinary studies. Bioengineer Clawitter said the way different kinds of material are received by the dog's tissues "may give a sense of direction in designing implants for humans."

He said the metallurgy and other engineering work on the materials is done at Clemson with the implants' design done in conjunction with the Medical College. All that have been constructed have now been implanted, he said, but the analysis that comes at the end of the experiment is yet to come.

Clawitter said after the dogs are sacrificed the tissue adjacent to the implant is removed and checked.

He and Peterson emphasized one thing: the implants don't look like teeth. Rather, they appear to be small studs and would serve as the base for a bridge or other dental devices.

Airline Talks 'Bargain Fair'

MIAMI (AP) — If you don't mind carrying your lunch or paying 25 cents for a cup of coffee, you soon may be able to fly cross-country for less than it would cost by train or bus.

National Airlines proposed a bargain-price plan Thursday that would segregate participating passengers in the rear section of the airline's jumbo jets and save them 35 per cent of the day-coach fare.

The proposal, which National will implement for all of its jumbo jets on an experimental basis on April 14, has to be approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

But tickets will go on sale Monday — with full refunds to passengers if the board rejects the idea.

Under the plan, passengers would not be served meals or alcoholic beverages, but could buy coffee and soft drinks. Passengers would be permitted to bring aboard their own food for longer flights, a spokesman said.

If the three-class service is approved, the one-way day coach fare for "no-frill" service from Miami to New York would be $61, instead of the current $98. A Miami-Los Angeles seat would drop from $183 to $112.

Bus fare is $63.05 from Miami to New York and $113.90 from Miami to Los Angeles. A Miami-New York train ticket is $72 and a Miami-Los Angeles train fare is $178.

Tickets for the special service would have to be bought seven days in advance, National said. Telephone reservations would not be accepted and cancellations would be subject to a $10 service charge or 10 per cent of the ticket, whichever is greater.

Travel days would be Monday through Thursday and children accompanied by adults could fly for two-thirds the ticket price.

National said the new service would be offered for its East Coast runs and on flights between Florida and New Orleans, Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Las Vegas.

OK Buying Local Home

RALEIGH—The Comprehensive Health Planning Section of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources has approved a proposal by the Community Care Corporation of North Carolina to purchase the Greenville Nursing Home.

Prior to the approval, given February 19, the proposed purchase was reviewed by the Department of Human Resources' Division of Facility Services and by the Mid-East Health Planning Council.

Review of the project was conducted under the authority of federal law on the basis of plans, criteria and standards adopted by the planning agencies involved.

These standards are used to determine if a health facility project is needed, can be staffed, can be operated at a reasonable cost, and incorporates cost-saving features. Coordination of State and regional planning, as it affects federal program requirements, is carried out by the Comprehensive Health Planning Section.

Firms Are On Blacklist

By The Associated Press
Seven Carolina firms are on a 1970 Saudi Arabian blacklist.

The State Department has announced that more than 1,500 U.S. firms are being boycotted by Arab nations, which believe they do business with Israel.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has made the list public. It includes:

Burlington Industries of Greensboro, N.C., the nation's largest textile firm. A spokesman noted the list is several years old, and he didn't know why Burlington was on it.

Ro-Search of Waynesville, N.C., which supplies equipment for shoe manufacturing, and whose parent firm is Welco, Inc.

Bohmer Spring Hinge Co. of Landrum, S.C., which said it knows of no reason why it should be on the blacklist.

Street Bros., 9 Mid-Atlantic Wharf, Charleston, S.C., which represents an Israeli shipping firm, Zim Lines Inc.

Republic Steel Co. of Charlotte.

Leven Bros Glass Co. of Durham.

Pitt Nominee District Choice

Mrs. Mary B. Little, Pitt County nominee for the Human Relations Award to be awarded by the North Carolina Association of Educators, has been named to represent District 15 in the event.

The award, to be presented for the first time this year, is designed to encourage good human relations between educators, students and parents.

The Human Relations Award will be presented April 13 at the annual NCAE convention in the Greensboro Coliseum. The winner will be picked from the 15 district finalists by the Human Relations Commission.

Mrs. Little is a guidance counselor in the occupational exploration program at G.R. Whitfield School, Grimesland.

Municipal Electric Facility?

A bill was introduced in the State Legislature which could have an important effect on citizens of Pitt County who are served by municipally owned electrical systems.

The bill would allow municipalities to band together and construct power generating facilities. The facilities would be primarily to serve the needs of the participating municipalities. Surplus electricity, however, could be sold first to other municipalities, then to co-ops and finally to private companies.

The bill was explained by Louis Meyer, Wilson attorney, at a meeting attended by the four Pitt legislators last week.

It is the feeling of the sponsors of the bill that the municipalities can construct the facilities cheaper than the private utilities because of more favorable financing and the non-profit status the municipally-owned facility would enjoy.

But even overriding that, according to Meyer, it is possible that in a few years the electricity will not be available at any price. This is true because the private utilities are cutting back on their construction projects due to their financial problems and reduced growth in the electric consumption rate. Electric consumption could swing upward again quite dramatically, however, and then we would be in for a real energy crunch.

If the municipal electrics have constructed their own plants—and several would have to join together to make it feasible—they could be ready to furnish the needed power when it is needed.

Most North Carolina municipalities got into the electric business years ago because the private companies were not ready to serve them. Generally the municipalities built generating plants which served their needs for many years. It became inefficient to operate such small plants, however, and the municipals turned to the private companies to purchase power.

Now the tide may be turning again, except this time the municipals would have to join together to construct plants large enough to be efficient.

That is what last week's bill is all about. Since it is merely permissive legislation, there is no doubt in our minds that the bill should be approved. We need to keep all the avenues possible open as we explore ways to meet our electric needs in the cheapest possible way.

How Recessions Start

WASHINGTON—The recession hit so fast that nobody knows exactly how it happened. One day we were the land of milk and honey and the next day we were the land of sour cream and food stamps. This is one explanation. Hofberger, the Chevy salesman in Tomcat, Va., a suburb of Washington, called up Littleton, of Littleton menswear & Haberdashery, and said, "Good news, the '75 Impalas have just come in and I've put one aside for you and your wife." Littleton said, "I can't Hofberger. My wife and I are getting a divorce." Hofberger said, "That's too bad. Then take the car for yourself. I'll give you $100 extra on a trade-in because of the divorce."

Public Forum

To the editor: It was astonishing to read your editorial that blithely stated that controlling loose dogs (by rope? — Chain? — pen?) would take care of Greenville's dog problem. At a recent convention of mayors, 539 of those present admitted that dogs were the No. 1 problem in their cities. Obviously these men could not find a solution and it is doubtful that the simple solution given in your editorial will be the answer either. As a member of five humane societies over a span of many years, I have read much literature on the pet problems, and in the final analysis those who are guilty are the animal owners who permit their animals to continue to breed twice a year for the almighty dollar, or through lack of care, and end up shifting the burden of six to eight puppies on friends and children, or dumping them at the animal shelter to be adopted out to continue the cycle of excess litters. In addition to the individual breeders, our pet shops bring in crates of puppies obtained from "puppy mills" and attract the public by emphasizing "Thoroughbreds" although there is no difference when there is an excess of dogs. There is only one method of animal control that works and that is to control the actual breeding of dogs by instituting a special tax for unspayed female dogs. However, most city officials shy away from this believing it unpopular and let the evil of over-saturation of dogs continue. Greenville is no miracle city any more than the 539 cities at the convention, and a leash law in all probability would not be followed any more than the laws against speeding, shop-lifting or breaking & entering that are broken almost daily in this area as attested to in your newspaper. If the owners of dogs will not control their dogs we need to control the dog owners. E. Beasley Greenville, N.C.

"I changed my mind," said Hofberger. "I'm not going to paint the house." "But I ordered the paint," Bedcheck said. "Why did you change your mind?" "Because Littleton is getting a divorce and he can't afford a new car." That evening when Bedcheck came home his wife said, "The new color television set arrive from Gladstone's TV Shop." "Take it back," Bedcheck told his wife. "Why?" she demanded. "Because Hofberger isn't going to have his house painted now that the Littletons are getting a divorce." The next day Mrs. Bedcheck dragged the TV set in its carton back to Gladstone. "We don't want it." Gladstone's face dropped. He immediately called his travel agent, Sandstorm. "You know that trip you had scheduled for me to the Virgin Islands?" "Right, the tickets are all written up." "Cancel it. I can't go. Bedcheck just sent back the color TV set because Hofberger didn't sell a car to (Continued on page 5)

Dollar Decline Impact

By JOSH FITZHUGH AP Business Writer NEW YORK (AP) — The decline in the value of the dollar in overseas exchange markets is both good news and bad news for the American consumer. Though the dollar's drop this week to new lows against other currencies is a psychological blow to America's prestige abroad, it can lead to some benefits here, like increased foreign demand for American goods, made cheaper by the dollar's decline. That can mean more jobs than if the dollar were strong. Economists also say because of the recession, the inflationary impact of the dollar's depreciation is almost insignificant now. Still the cheaper dollar means costlier imports, and money leaving the country which had previously rested in the usually-strong currency. Since November, the dollar's exchange rate has fallen markedly in European markets, coinciding with the worsening of the economic climate here and the downturn in interest rates. According to Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, which compiles a yearly chart of the dollar's exchange value against 14 other currencies, in November the dollar was 15.72 per cent below its average rate of June 1970. On Thursday, Morgan placed the dollar down 20.06 per cent. Since Dec. 2 the British pound has risen 4.5 per cent against the dollar, the French franc 12 per cent, the Swiss franc 13 per cent, the German mark 8.5 per cent and the Italian lira 6 per cent. William Schwartz, economist with New York's Manufacturers Hanover Trust, says that what's primarily responsible is that U.S. interest rates have (Continued on page 5)

THIS AFTERNOON Secrecy For School Report

By BILL NOBLITT RALEIGH — A legislative cloak of secrecy was kept securely around a report on North Carolina public schools which Board of Education Chairman Dallas Herring found "shocking." For 15 days after delivery on Feb. 10 to certain legislators and other outside the General Assembly, the report was withheld from the public—with the results of the three-month probe of public education finally put on public display this week. But before the public got a look at the contents of the report which calls for major revisions in public education, members of the Legislative Services Commission—which authorized the study—and top school officials had a chance to study the recommendations. This is a rare occurrence since most governmental bodies operate under state open meeting laws. But the Legislative Services Commission is specifically excluded from that law. Thus, the school report was effectively squelched by co-chairmen John Henley, president pro tem of the senate; and James C. Green, speaker of the House. Closed Session By its exemption from the open meeting law, the Legislative Services Commission not only can sit on such reports, but can exclude the public from its meetings—which if did one day last week when discussing the school report. Reporters were ejected from the session. Normally engaged in routine daily operations of the General Assembly—who gets which office and parking space, assignment of secretaries and other manudane aspects of operation—the Legislative Services Commission is made up of the most powerful leadership in both houses of the legislature. Now, for the first time, that commission has moved beyond routine chores and commissioned a major watchdog style probe of a state agency. In an October, 1974, memorandum ordering that investigation it was noted that the report was to be delivered back to the commission members alone, and that this was the first of many future studies of state agencies carried out by the assembly's own staff—the Fiscal Research Division. Thus the structure of the commission, its power under law to operate secretly, and its actions in recent weeks in suppressing the school report has raised several key questions about this incident, and the handling of such future reports as the commission may decide to order. Observers of the process note that the commission will be able to call for investigations secretly, determining which agencies will be pinpointed, and receive reports without ever having to make public the results. In the case of the school report, it was made public—but 15 days after members first got copies. It is possible, observers note, that editing of the contents could take place in similar circumstances. On February 10, members of the commission were hand-delivered the report; along with copies to State School Supt. A Craig Phillips, Controller A.C. Davis, and Chairman Herring. No Comments Phillips would not comment on the contents, saying he would do so if legislation were introduced. Davis would not comment saying it affected his job. Herring would not comment, but did ask the legislative leaders to give copies of the report to his fellow school board members before release was made publicly, so they might prepare themselves for the "shocking" nature of the contents, avoiding the likelihood that members would react angrily if asked for comment on short notice. Normally, once a governmental document is handed to a public official, it becomes public and access is easy. In this case, however, some legislators who had copies in their possession denied that the report was finished, and staff members were ordered not to release any details of the probe. While the Legislative Services Commission is exempt from the open meetings law, it has in the past held open meetings, going into executive session only to discuss personnel or real estate matters—as required by the law. However, the commission has met many times without posting a notice of the session, and on some occasions has gone into executive session only to remain closed for hours while discussing other business. The commission is the only legislative body permitted secrecy under the law. State Rep. Carl Stewart, chief sponsor of the open meeting law, said the exemption for the commission was not written into his bill originally, but was inserted by the assembly leadership itself as a key to getting the bill passed.

The INSIDE REPORT Israel's Rabin Frustrated

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK JERUSALEM — The growing frustration that besets non-political Yitzhak Rabin, Prime Minister of Israel at her moment of deepest dilemma over Arab peace negotiations was revealed here last week when he returned from a long day up north in the dangerous border country of Galilee. "The spirit of those people," he suddenly burst out. "They can withstand anything. That is where the inspiration for Israel is and to see it among those Kurdish Jews who have fought so many times for Israel is to know the real spirit of Israel." But Rabin, the six-day war hero thrust into the world's hottest political seat only eight months ago, has little time to gain inspiration from the Kurdish Jews in the Moshavs of Upper Galilee. Pressing on the non-politician Prime Minister is this acute problem, to be solved only in the plain government rooms of Jerusalem: how to establish a political consensus and persuade his government and country to break out of the cycle of war at the most propitious mement since Israel's statehood. Rabin's political foundation is dangerously weak. His Labor party, through no fault of his, is fragmented and torn by dissension, trying unsuccessfully to find a new mould in the generational decay of long years under Golda Meir. The party can deliver nothing for Rabin. Deeply in debt and with no clear view of the future, it is useless as a weapon for the political organization work Rabin desperately needs to prepare his country for the risks of a second-stage withdrawal from the Egyptian Sinai. But worse, there is no evidence yet that Rabin has a clear idea of how far he himself will go to meet American pressures for substantial Israeli risk-taking in the Egyptian negotiations. He is not leading, but rather reacting to the overwhelmingly hard-line positions of other politicians protecting their flanks against future accusations of sellout. "Yitzhak is a loner," a long-time admirer told us. "He is between himself and his God, doing the soul-searching." There are sinister indications that the strong man in Rabin's cabinet, defense minister Shimon Peres, is not making things easy. Published charges both here and in the U.S. claim that Peres warned Rabin he would resign and bring down the cabinet if he decides Rabin is yielding too much to the Egyptians. In fact, it can be stated categorically that Peres never did deliver such a warning to Rabin, leading to one of two conclusions. Either the charges were wrong, or a fabrication was deliberately leaked to em-

Hope In 'Enormous Capability'

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — In the opinion of Henry Ford II, Americans bit off more than they could chew, "unrealistically set out to do too much, too fast," but now can proceed to tackle their problems with great resources and "a little humility." "What's right about America is that although we have a mess of problems, we have great capacity — intellect and resources — to do something about them," the chairman of the nation's third largest industrial company said. In the midst of economic travails this country hasn't experienced since the 1930s, symbolized by acres of new but unsold cars and soaring unemployment in the automotive industry, Ford was asked for a statement on what remains right with the country. The intellectual, spiritual and physical resources to deal with problems still exist in the American character, Ford indicated. But he added that we must avoid impossible attempts to resolve all the world's conflicts. "The fact that we do have an enormous capability with which to deal with our problems is a great blessing," said Ford. "It may even be a mixed blessing." Americans, he said "have been accustomed to jumping to the conclusions that just about anything can be accomplished. I think we've gone overboard in that direction." As America emerged from World War II, he said, "We thought for a long time we could prevent aggression, stimulate economic growth and build democracy throughout the world. "And in our own country, we set out to eliminate racial prejudice, rebuild cities, provide decent housing for everyone, and at the same time send men to the moon. "Except for the moon exploration, none of these goals has been fully achieved. I believe a large part of the reason for the shortfall is that we unrealistically set out to do too much, too fast." Ironically, that same comment has been made about the U.S. automotive industry, which has been the epitome of mass production, intensive selling, shrewd marketing and the stimulation of demand through polished promotion. Partly because of this effort, the automobile came to symbolize the upward mobility of Americans. A car became the manifestation of individual taste and economic status. Sometimes it took two or more cars to press home the point. "We," said Ford, speaking of Americans in general, "failed to comprehend the dimensions of the problems and as a result we didn't notice all the obstacles in the way." But immediately he added to his statement: "We should not feel ashamed or defeated because we failed to accomplish the impossible." Ford said "We have begun to realize that while we do have a great capacity to solve problems, we really do not have resources that can be wasted. We are beginning to realize that we can accomplish more at less cost and with less damage to national pride if we set out to right the wrongs of the world and our own with a little humility." He continued: "One of the great resources that has pulled us through dark days before has been a sense (Continued on page 5)

CASTING FLOWERS A missionary in India was riding in a small boat one day on the Ganges river with some of his students who had become Christians. The boys began to skip flat stones over the water, as boys probably do all over the world. In India, however, this inoffensive pastime is considered sacrilege when done on the Ganges, for the river is considered sacred by those who espouse the Hindu religion. An aged Hindu who was standing on the bank throwing flowers into the river was gravely offended by what the boys were doing and shouted to them reprovingly, "I cast flowers on the sacred Ganges and you throw stones into it." The missionary was impressed. "Give me some of those flowers," he said, "and I will cast them on the Ganges with you in deep reverence for India and her ancient culture." We need more people in this world who in reverence for alien traditions and cultures will cast flowers and not stones. —by Elisha Douglas

Marriage Rate In U.S. Saw A Drop-Off In '74

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The American marriage rate dropped in 1974 for the first time in 16 years while the divorce rate rose for the 12th consecutive year, the government reported today.
At the same time, the decline in the U.S. fertility rate slowed and began leveling off last year, the national Center for Health Statistics said.
The center, an arm of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said provisional 1974 statistics show that both the total number of marriages and the marriage rate decreased for the first time since 1958.

There were 2,223,000 marriages performed last year, 54,000 or 2.4 per cent fewer than in 1973. The marriage rate decreased 3.7 per cent, to 10.5 per 1,000 population.

The report said the marriage decline occurred in every region of the country except the West South Central region encompassing Texas, which was one of 14 states with modest increases.

The number of divorces totaled 970,000 last year, up 57,000 or 6.2 per cent over 1973 and 13.5 per cent higher than in 1962, which was the last year before the upward trend began. The 1974 divorce rate of 4.6 per 1,000 population represented a record high 4.5 per cent increase over the previous year and a 109 per cent increase over 1962.

The center's provisional report said only six states — Arkansas, Missouri, New Jersey, Ohio, Vermont and Wisconsin — had fewer divorces in 1974 than in 1973 and those differences were minor in most instances.

The latest annual fertility rate of 68.4 births per 1,000 women between the child-bearing ages of 15 and 44 years was only 1 per cent lower than in 1973, compared with the previous three-year decline averaging 7 per cent, the report said.

The nation's fertility rate has been dropping, with some ups and downs, since 1957. The trend has been steadily downward at varying speeds except for small increases between 1968 and 1970.

barrass Rabin and advertise Peres as the dominant force in the cabinet.

When we asked Peres, the ablest politician in Israel today, to confirm or deny the report, he refused to do either. Some students of Peres, the protege of David Ben-Gurion and the political brain of Moshe Dayan, doubt Peres would play such dangerous games. Indeed, he may simply be posing as a hard-liner to avoid trouble with Dayan. He may well be found side by side with Rabin when the moment of truth comes in the next months on the Sinai withdrawal.

But Rabin's few real intimates are deeply disconcerted by Peres, by his singular political skills and by his ambition to become prime minister. Such rancid cabinet in-fighting scarcely helps Rabin.

In addition, Rabin lost the cabinet services of his close friend, Aharon Yariv, last month when Yariv resigned as minister of information on grounds the government was chaotically organized, leaving him nothing to do. Yariv had been Rabin's ally, quietly pushing for major Israeli concessions on the Sinai, but he is now out of it.

Accordingly, Rabin's frustrations are understandable. Communing with the Israeli pioneers in the beautiful Galilee is part of his job, but it is no substitute for the delicate task of weaning his Spartan country and its political leadership away from a state of mind that has paralyzed Israeli diplomacy ever since the 1967 war.

Sandstorm tore up the airline tickets and went over to see his banker, Gripsholm. "I can't pay back the loan this month because Gladstone isn't going to the Virgin Islands."

Gripsholm was furious. When Rudemaker came in to borrow money for a new kitchen he needed for his restaurant, Gripsholm turned him down cold. "How can I loan you money when Sandstorm hasn't repaid the money he borrowed?"

Rudemaker called up the contractor, Eagleton, and said he couldn't put in a new kitchen. Eagleton laid off eight men.

Meanwhile, General Motors announced it was giving a rebate on its '75 models. Hofberger called up Littleton immediately. "Good news," he said, "even if you are getting a divorce, you can afford a new car."

"I'm not getting a divorce," Littleton said. "It was all a misunderstanding and we've made up."

"That's great," Hofberger said. "Now you can buy the Impala."

"No way," said Littleton. "My business has been so lousy I don't know why I keep the doors open."

"I didn't know that," Hofberger said.

"Do you realize I haven't seen Bedcheck, Gladstone, Sandstorm, Gripsholm, Rudemaker or Eagleton for more than a month? How can I stay in business if they don't patronize my store?"

national unity. We need it desperately today; we need an infusion of political harmony....

"This is a time to avoid recrimination and to repress the use of every platform for political gains. This is a time to work together and put our great problem-solving capacities in full gear. This is a time for confidence that these proven capacities once again will get the job done."

Commission Role Upheld

RALEIGH (AP)—U.S. District Judge John Larkins Jr. has dismissed a lawsuit by several prison inmates challenging the constitutionality of the North Carolina Inmate Grievance Commission.

The General Assembly created the commission last year to consider prisoner complaints. The inmates contended that creation of the Grievance Commission violated due process by denying them direct access to the courts for hearing of grievances. Larkins said establishment of the commission does not deny prisoners access to the courts, but often helps settle problems without clogging court dockets.

Under state law, all administrative remedies must be exhausted before an inmate may go to court for relief.

In his order, Larkins said the North Carolina General Assembly "took an innovative approach to correctional problems" when it established the Inmate Grievance Commission.

The oldest state prison still in operation in the United States is at Windsor, Vt. It was constructed in 1809.

Some Seminarians Learn How It Is To Be Poor

By GEORGE CORNELL
A man, approaching the checkout counter in a grocery store, discovered he had more items than he could pay for, and handed some of them to his young son to return to the shelves. A sympathetic stranger, overhearing their conversation, insisted the pair keep the food, and proceeded to pay for it.
That incident, along with the embarrassment of becoming an object of charity, is the sort of experience some seminary students are going through to give them a direct sense of what it's like to be poor and do without.
"It's a simple exercise to bring home at the first-person emotional level a small part of what it means to be, if not starving, at least deprived," says the Rev. Dr. Richard A. Hoehn, a professor at Brite Divinity School, Texas Christian University, in Fort Worth, Tex.

With many church people now undertaking various symbolic Lenten gestures, such as skipping a meal on a day or two each week, to turn attention and savings to needs of the world's underfed, he suggests a genuine sense of identification with their life can be gained through the method used for his students.

It involves living for two weeks on a weekly budget of $8 for a single person, $10 for a couple, $12.50 for a family of three, and $2.50 for each additional family member. The amount, which must cover all food and beverage for the family, was set to reflect the budgets of many poor people, and to trigger feelings matching theirs.
"It's quite possible to get by on that kind of budget and no one starves, but the food you can get is very dull, and it's a trying experience for many students," he said in a telephone interview. "They gain some new insights, though."

In the process, surviving on the pinched resources, some persons become hostile, he noted. Occasionally one will relate later that he stole small items, such as a doughnut, but with pangs of conscience, went back and paid for it. Some couples, during the period, say they spanked their child in anger, because of tensions caused by lack of usual cookies or treats.
He says the contemporary phenomenon of starvation, although a widely recognized fact, seems especially remote to middle-class Americans who have never personally faced it, but the exercise immediately sensitizes them to the reality. He says the exercise can also be used in local parishes.
Writing about it in the ecumenical weekly, the Christian Century, he says:
"The leader should point out to the group that the hunger exercise covers only one area of the poverty experience — the food budget — while actual poverty applies to every aspect of life: housing, transportation, clothing, medical care."

EMERGENCY SERVICE—Telephone company workers in foreground try to tie in emergency lines as heavy smoke pours from burning New York Telephone Co. building, right background during five-alarm blaze in lower Manhattan Thursday. Compensation If No Summer Job

RALEIGH (AP)—Fifty thousand North Carolina public school teachers and aides will be eligible for unemployment compensation if they can't find jobs this summer.
The North Carolina Employment Security Commission has decided that teachers and other school employees who work 10 months a year are covered by new federal legislation. The legislation provides unemployment pay for state, municipal, domestic and farm workers. Most states have interpreted this to include teachers.
In North Carolina, unemployment compensation for teachers would range from $75 to $90 a week.

Win Honors In Bible Contest

Students from the Greenville Christian Academy won second place in Bible memorizing for the month of February.
The announcement was made by Mrs. Joy Stiver of Children's Bible Mission. The seventh and eighth graders were commended for memorizing the scriptures so well.

A MAN WHO IS NOT ALONE

Prayer has always been a mystery. But through the centuries millions have turned to it, believed in it, and been strengthened by it.
Prayer doesn't solve our problems . . . it helps us find right solutions. It doesn't make trouble go away . . . it gives us courage to face our trials. Prayer is never a "safe conduct" through the lines of danger . . . it simply gives a man the bold assurance that he is not alone in his crucial hour.
You don't have to go to church in order to pray. You do have to want to be with God.
Worship and Christian education have long been the mainstays of continuous communication with God. Families who build their home and happiness on a spiritual foundation find Sundays in church the natural expression of their faith and fervor.
A man who cherishes the bold assurance that he is not alone makes being with God a way of life—not a last resort.

Associated Press Writer
WILLIAMSBURG, Va.
(AP)—Ex-convict Leroy Mason, whose participation in an anti-drug abuse program won him a gubernatorial pardon, has been sentenced to 80 years in prison after being convicted of the murders of a North Carolina grocer and his wife.

Mason, 35, wearing a gray suit, stared directly ahead, his face expressionless, as a Charles City County Circuit Court jury of seven men and five women found him guilty Thursday of two counts of first-degree murder.

He had been charged with the slayings of Mr. and Mrs. J. William Shay of Roanoke Rapids, N. C. Their mangled bodies, apparently run over by their own car, were found Sept. 9, 1973, in a remote Charles City County gravel pit.

The jury deliberated for about 3½ hours before finding Mason guilty of both killings and sentencing him to 40 years in prison on each count. The prosecution had asked for life sentences.

Circuit Court Judge Robert T. Armistead told the jurors he agreed with their decision, then turned to Mason and said, "I fix your term in the State Penitentiary at 80 years."

Armistead told Mason that his sentences were to run consecutively and they would not be affected by any additional sentences. Mason still faces federal kidnaping charges in North Carolina in connection with the abduction of the Shays from their Roanoke Rapids home the night of Sept. 8, 1973.

Defense attorney JeRoyd X Greene asked that the jury be polled and each juror at the call of his name stood and agreed the verdict was guilty.

Greene then asked Armistead to delay execution of the sentence until he could appeal to the Virginia Supreme Court but the judge refused. He ordered that Mason, who has been in custody for nine months, be taken as quickly as possible to the state prison in Richmond. Security was tight during the trial and more than a dozen state policemen ringed the crowded courtroom when the verdict was read. Spectators had been thoroughly searched before being allowed in the courtroom.

Armistead had warned the spectators that he would allow no disturbance at the reading of the verdict and he said that any outburst from the crowd would be dealt with severely. At the reading of the verdict several women seated around Mason's estranged wife at the front of the courtroom muffled sobs and leaned forward with their faces in their hands.

Mrs. Mason's expression did not waver; but as she left the courtroom tears rolled down her cheeks.

The jury had heard three days of testimony in the case.

The key prosecution witness was Elaine Renee Cobbs, 22, who has pleaded guilty to being an accessory in the murders of the Shays. She also faces kidnap charges in North Carolina. Mrs. Cobbs told the jury she saw Mason kidnap the Shays from their home and followed him in his car as he drove the Shays in their car to the gravel pit. But she said she did not actually see the murders and did not fear the Shays had been killed until she read it in Richmond newspapers a few days later.

Mason testified that he had been in Roanoke Rapids the day of the abduction but he said he had gone there with Mrs. Cobbs to go fishing. He told the jury he spent the evening of the abduction in Richmond seeking a reconciliation with his wife and then spent the rest of the night with a girl friend.

The girl friend, Joanne Jones, told the court Mason had been with her at precisely the time the prosecution contended the Shays were killed. The only physical evidence in the case was the presentation of two guns found in Mason's home. The .22-caliber rifle and a shotgun were found in Mason's closet by FBI agents.

Testimony showed that both guns had belonged to Shay and had been prominently displayed in a cabinet in his home. Mason had told the jury that Mrs. Cobbs had brought the guns to his home about three months after the murders, told him they belonged to her father and asked him to keep them for her.

Mason began his antidrug abuse work in prison, won a parole and later received a pardon from former Gov. Linwood Holton mainly because of his antidrug work. The pardon came in Jan. 1974, about four months after the Shay murders.

At the time of his arrest last spring he was employed by Rubicon, an antidrug organization and had been working primarily with prison inmates. He had also been the host of a Richmond television program.

Tied Up By Board Approved Three Special Use Requests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate remains bogged down in dispute after the leading opponent of a proposal to make it easier to cut off filibusters rejected a compromise. The Senate meets again today in an effort to iron out differences.

But Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., leader of the fight to retain a rule requiring a two-thirds majority of senators voting to halt a filibuster, said Thursday the issue was "far from being decided."

He said he wanted to fight on and called the various compromise proposals "like chopping off a dog's tail an inch at a time."

The compromises center around proposals for cutting off debate by a three-fifths majority of the Senate membership.

With 100 senators, this would mean a minimum of 60 votes, in contrast to the original proposal of a bipartisan bloc to permit debate cutoff by a three-fifths majority of those senators present for a vote on ending a filibuster.

SPEAKS SATURDAY
GRIFTON—The Rev. Jeffrey Dudley of Goldsboro will speak at New Covenant Holiness Church here Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

The Greenville Board of Adjustments denied a request for a special use permit by Peggy's Hair Styling last night and granted three other special use requests following public hearings.

Action on the request by Peggy's Hair Styling, which sought to operate a beauty shop in the structure located at 1301 Cotten Road, followed a show of opposition to the request by some 15 members of the Coghill Courts section.

The special use permit for the beauty shop, classified as a home occupation, would be necessary since the property is zoned for R-9 (residential) usage.

The board granted a request by Mrs. Frances Leggett for a special use permit in order to operate a beauty shop in the structure located at 200 N. Summit Street. The property is zoned for R-6 usage. No opposition to the request was expressed during the hearing.

A request by W.P. Lancaster for a special use permit in order to operate an auto repair service at 1211 S. Evans Street was granted. The property is zoned for Downtown Commercial Fringe usage. No opposition was voiced during the public hearing.

The board heard no opposition to a request by E.L. Clark for a special use permit in order to operate a service station with self-service gasoline pumps at 400 N. Greene Street. Clark also requested a special use permit in order to place a mobile home at the location for use as residential quarters for a resident manager. The property is zoned Highway Commercial. Both requests received board approval.

The City-County Board of Adjustments, after holding a public hearing during which there was no opposition to a request by Mrs. Willette Darden for a special use permit and variance in order to place a mobile home on the lot located approximately 700 feet south of 264 Business on State Road 1135 for use as a beauty shop, granted the request. Bicycle Fee Is Actually $1

A news story published in Wednesday's edition of The Daily Reflector, urging local bicycle owners to have their bicycles licensed as required by the Greenville City Code, incorrectly stated that the registration fee for bicycles licenses is 50-cents.

Actually the fee is $1. The increase in the fee became effective January 1.

Bicycle license stickers can be obtained during regular working hours from City Hall. The Police Department, which in the past has issued the bicycle registrations, no longer handles the licensing program.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned downward today amid some disappointment among investors over signs of continued sluggishness in the nation's money supply.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 1.64 at 729.51, and losers held about a 6-5 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was quiet. Wall Street's expectations of a further decline in the bank prime lending rate were fulfilled at the opening when New York's First National City Bank cut the basic rate on corporate loans from 8½ to 8¼ per cent.

But there was less encouraging evidence on the subject of availability of money to fuel a possible economic upturn.

After Thursday's close the Federal Reserve's weekly economic figures showed a slight decline in the money supply despite the declining costs of borrowing.

Polaroid was the active issue on the NYSE, slipping ¾ to 20¾.

Reserve Oil & Gas, which reported lower fourth quarter earnings, was down ¾ at 7¼ in active trading.

Carbon Industries, among the actives on the American Stock Exchange, rose 1½ to 20¾. The company reported fourth quarter profits of $1.62 a share, compared with 40 cents in the like period a year earlier.

DID YOU EVER NOTICE HOW MOST BANKS ARE CLOSED JUST WHEN YOU NEED CASH THE MOST?

If you think about it, most banks are open during the times when you're too busy earning money to be spending any. Then nights and weekends roll around, and what happens? Right. Your bank closes. But not NCNB 24. It lets you get cash any time, by pushing a few buttons.

It's open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. It's about as hard to operate as a candy machine. And, unlike a candy machine, it won't cost you even a penny to use. So try NCNB 24. It's the bank that lets you get to your money when you're ready to spend it.

Bucs Open Tourney Play Against Citadel

After the most successful regular season since the Pirates entered the major college ranks, East Carolina University embarks on the path it hopes will lead to the Southern Conference tournament championship Saturday night.

The Bucs will be hosting The Citadel in an 8 p.m. game in Minges Coliseum. This year, under a new format being tried by the conference, the top four teams are hosting the bottom four in first round action. The four winners will then travel to Greenville, S.C., for the semifinals on Wednesday and the finals on Thursday.

East Carolina, by finishing second, meets The Citadel, which ended up in seventh place. Elsewhere, regular season champion Furman hosts last place Appalachian State; William & Mary, third, will entertain Davidson, sixth, while Richmond, in fourth place, takes on VMI, in fifth.

The winner of the tournament will automatically gain a berth in the NCAA tournament, meeting an at-large team in the first round of the Eastern Regionals at Charlotte the following week.

Also at stake will be a berth in the Commissioners' Tournament, March 13-16 at Louisville. This year, the Southern has an automatic berth in the tournament. Furman, should it lose the tournament would get the berth. But if the Paladins come out on top, the Pirates would be the likely choice.

The Bucs will be shooting for their 19th victory of the year against seven defeats in the Saturday game. They still have a shot at 20 wins, and they could pick that up on Wednesday in the semifinals should they get by The Citadel.

The Bulldogs come into the tournament with a 5-14 overall record after finishing 2-11 in the Southern Conference mark. Despite their mark, they have one of the best players in the league in first team All-Southern selection Rodney McKeever. McKeever was the second leading scorer in the league, hitting 22.8 points per game during the year.

Another member of the team, Richard Johnson leads the conference in field goal shooting, putting in 60.6 per cent of his shots. And Don Server is the fifth leading free throw shooter, hitting 83 per cent.

Overall, The Citadel is averaging 81.2 points per game, but allowing 88.2, third and eighth in the conference, respectively. They stand sixth in field goal shooting with 46.2 per cent, and are seventh at the line at 67.2 per cent. They are seventh in rebounding, pulling in just 45 per cent of the loose balls.

In contrast, East Carolina leads the league in scoring, 85.1 points per game, and is third in defense, allowing 78.5 per cent.

The Bucs are second in field goal percentage, 49.1 percent, but are just fifth in free throws, 67.4 per cent. They are third in rebounding with a 52 per cent mark. Gregg Ashorn leads the Bucs in scoring with a 14.8 average, but that isn't good enough for a top ten berth. Two others are in double figures, Robert Geter at 11.7, and Larry Hunt at 11.3, while Donnie Owens is just under 10 with a 9.8 mark.

Hunt trails Johnson as a field goal shooter, hitting 58.7 per cent, second best in the league. He's also the number three rebounder with 10.0 per game.

Kenny Edmonds is second in the league in free throws, 84.2 per cent.

Despite all these pluses for the Pirates, Coach Dave Patton expects The Citadel to be a tough nut to crack. "It's always tough to beat a team three times in a year," he said. "But if you are going to be a good team, you have to do well in pressure situations and play in games like this."

The Bucs rolled to a 111-81 over The Citadel in their first meeting, in December, but just last Saturday, down in Charleston, just escaped with an 87-84 win. "I don't care who you are, you'll have trouble winning at The Citadel," Patton said. "Furman only got away with a one-point win, and they got that on a free throw after time had run out."

"All we're looking to do," The coach said, "is playing like we are capable of playing."

Patton did express the hope that The Citadel won't shoot at the pace it did in their last meeting, 59.7 per cent. "We helped them a lot in the first half. We kept dropping off two people on McKeever, and that left someone open. They got a lot of points that way. In the second half, we made an adjustment that cut down on this"

This time, Patton expects to play more head-to-head basketball, with only one man trying to stop McKeever.

The Bucs are going through a trying period now—as they always do during tournament time. It always falls during spring exams at the university. "This bothers me," Patton admitted. "The players are up late studying, and they're going to be mentally tired on Saturday.

They really have no time to relax and get ready for the game. Some of them even have exams on Monday to think about. And just because most of them have been through it before makes it no easier."

Patton does expect a tough game from the Bulldogs. "They have nothing to lose, so they'll be going all out. They're not supposed to win, everybody tells them, so the can just come out and play without any pressure. They've always been tough in the tournament."

Hunt, Ashorn, Geter Make All-Conference

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The nation's major college scoring leader, two seniors honored for the third straight year and two sophomores were named today to the All-Southern Conference basketball team.

Chosen for the third year in a row were two-time league champion Furman's dynamic inside duo of 6-foot-9 Clyde Mayes and 7-foot-1 Fessor "Moose" Leonard.

They are joined on the team by Richmond senior Bob McCurdy, whose 32.8-point average is tops among the nation's major college players, and sophomore guards Rodney McKeever of The Citadel and Ronnie Satterthwaite of William & Mary.

In voting by the league's eight coaches and members of the Southern Conference Media Association, Mayes—the league player of the year last season and the most valuable player of the 1973 tournament—was a unanimous choice on the 74 ballots cast for 148 points.

On the basis of two points for a first-team vote and one point for a second-team vote, McCurdy received 140 points, McKeever 116, Leonard 99 and Satterthwaite 97. McCurdy and Satterthwaite tied for second place in the voting by the coaches.

The closest challenger to the top five was sophomore Larry Hunt of East Carolina with 70 points.

Mayes, who scored in double figures in every game as Furman went 12-0 in the league and 19-6 over-all, tallied 527 points for a 21.1-point average and averaged 13.5 rebounds per game. Both were above his career average.

He hit 52.9 per cent of his floor shots and had his best game against defending national champion North Carolina State with 24 points and 25 rebounds.

Leonard, referred to by many coaches as "the intimidator," scored 408 points for a 16.3 average and hauled down an average of 9.6 rebounds per game. He shot 50.6 per cent from the floor and 80 per cent from the foul line. His biggest game was against Jacksonville, when he scored 35 points and grabbed 21 rebounds.

After twice earlier breaking the school single-game record, McCurdy wound up the regular season with a 53-point barrage against Appalachian State that eclipsed his own mark again. He finished the regular season with school records for points, average, field goals and free throws.

McCurdy scored 823 points in the Spiders' 25 games, was in double figures every time and was held under 20 points just once. He hit 54.5 per cent from the floor and averaged 9.4 rebounds per game.

The 6-foot McKeever, a second-team choice last year, was second in the conference in scoring with 432 points in 19 games for a 22.7 average. He set a school record for the season with 93 assists and shot 51.6 per cent from the floor. He also set a school record for one game with 39 points against UNC-Wilmington.

Satterthwaite scored 430 points in 25 games for a 17.2 average, grabbed 104 rebounds and had 101 assists. He led the Indians in steals, assists and points and hit 48 per cent of his floor shots.

Bucette Top Appalachian

BOONE — East Carolina University's women eased past hosting Appalachian State University to move into the semifinals of the State "A" class Women's Basketball Tournament, 82-74.

The victory automatically qualified the Bucettes for the regional tournament to be held next week at Elon College. The state is allowed three entries, with Elon receiving an automatic bid as the host team. The three winners last night, which included Elon, Western Carolina and Wake Forest take the other three berths.

The contest was close just about all the way, with neither team able to open up much of a gap despite the fact that the Lady Pirates were controlling the boards and outshooting Appalachian in percentage. By halftime, East Carolina held only a slim 40-38 margin.

In the second half, it continued much the same for most of the second half. East Carolina finally was able to open up a little more breathing room, outshooting Appalachian, 42-36, during the half.

East Carolina connected on 54 per cent of their shots from the floor and made half of their free throws. Appalachian made only 37 per cent of their field goal attempts, but did just a little better at the line than did the Bucettes, hitting 54 per cent.

East Carolina outrebounced the Appalachian lassies, 39-35. Debbie Freeman led the Bucettes with 11, while Lu Ann Swaim was close behind with 11.

Sheila Cotton led the scoring for the Bucettes with 19 points. Miss Swaim added 16, while Marie Chamblee had 12, Susan Manning added 11 and Miss Freeman made 10.

Appalachian was paced by Janet Gordon with 18, Jayn Cox with 16, Linda Murphy with 12 and Fran Allen with 10.

In the other games, Elon beat High Points, 100-69; Wake Forest downed Mars Hill, 75-74, in overtime, and Western Carolina downed UNC-Greensboro.

East Carolina takes on Western Carolina in the semifinals tonight at 7 p.m., with Elon, the defending state champ, meeting Wake Forest in the other game. The finals will be played Saturday afternoon.

Appalachian State—Albright 8, Allen 10, Murphy 12, Gordon 18, Cox 16, Moore 4, Crisp 2, Plestrak 2, Benson 2.
East Carolina—Jones, Garrison 8, M. Chamblee 12, Layton 2, Manning 11, G. Chamblee 2, Swaim 16, Cotton 19, Dail Freeman 10, Swenholt 2, Bryuns.
Appalachian State 38 34-74
East Carolina 40 42-82

Conley Captures First Round Victory

Forham, Manhattan Meeting Was A Typical Battle Of The Bronx

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Whenever Manhattan meets Fordham in basketball, it isn't a contest — it's a collision.

The volatile New York rivals usually throw off sparks, and Thursday night staged another of their typical battles of the Bronx.

Fordham won a fight or two, but Manhattan won the war — an 81-75 decision at Madison Square Garden before 6,648 raving fans, some of them throwing objects on the court.

"Any time we play Fordham, you know it's going to be a rough game," said Manhattan Coach Jack Powers. "This is the longest and toughest rivalry in the city."

Things became serious right away. Both teams came out with blood in their eyes and at one point early in the game, Fordham's Peter Carlesimo punched Manhattan's George Bucci in the chin. The referees didn't see it, but the respective coaches did — and pulled the combatants from the game before things got out of hand.

The game was punctuated by heavy body contact and at one point later, Manhattan's Bill Campion and Fordham's Darryl Brown both hit the deck hard under the basket. One of the referees held up the game while he calmed down the two centers and restored some sanity to the affair.

Tom Lockhart scored 22 points and George Bucci added 20 as Manhattan kept alive its hopes of competing in the NCAA playoffs. The Jaspers, with a 12-10 record, would have to win their last two games to make next week's NCAA qualifying tournament at Madison Square Garden.

Three other teams — Seton Hall, Rutgers and St. John's — appear to have the other three berths locked up for the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Association's four-team playoff for an NCAA spot from the metropolitan area.

The Manhattan-Fordham game was the first of a double-header.

Stanton After First U.S. Win

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — The pressure won't bother barfroot Bob Stanton, now the leader but never a winner in nine long years on the American pro golf tour.

"I've never won in this country," said Stanton, an Australian native now living in Biloxi, Miss.

"But I've won big tournaments in Europe and Australia. In this country, I've been beaten by one stroke five times. It just as well could have been five wins.

"I've been in this position before. It won't bother me. I'll just play the best I can. If I can win, fine. If my best isn't good enough, someone else will win."

Stanton took a three-stroke lead in Thursday's first round of the $260,000 Jackie Gleason Golf Classic, shooting a brilliant, eight-under-par 64 while tramping the fairways of the 7,128-yard Inverrary Country Club course with one shoe off and one shoe on.

"I've got a calcium deposit in my right foot," said the slender, 29-year-old Stanton. "I didn't know if I'd be able to play."

"When my foot started hurting, I'd take my shoe off and walk to the next shot. I'd put the shoe on to hit the shot, then take off again when I had to start walking."

Jack Nacklaus birdied his first three holes and his last two — the final one with a 40-foot putt — to join a group of seven others tied for second at 67.

Also at that figure were Miller Barber, Joe Porter, Terry Diehl, rookie Bill Rogers and three more walking wounded: Doug Sanders (recovering from hand operation), Lou Graham (bad back) and Eddie Pearce (bad back).

Delighted Arnold Palmer, who said he may have regained the lost putting touch that has kept him from victory for two years, headed a group at 68, four under par and four back of the leader.

"I think I've got it," he said. "I think I've found what I was looking for."

Lee Trevino rallied for a 70 and was six shots back. U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, who has played strongly in the last few tournaments, had a 69.

Johnny Miller, the sensation of the tour over the last year or so, is not competing in this event, the richest on the tour this season.

Tampa Drops Football Team

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The University of Tampa, which three years ago provided the National Football League with No. 1 draft pick John Matuszak, has suddenly dropped the sport because of rising deficits and NFL expansion into the city.

Tampa's board of directors, which earlier announced it was considering dropping football in 1976, unexpectedly voted 16-9 Thursday to immediately end the program.

Directors cited a deficit of $170,000 for football last year, an expected $226,000 loss this fall and up to $400,000 to $500,000 from 1976 on, after the NFL fields its Tampa Buccaneers.

"There is no alternative but to preserve the financial stability of the university and to direct its efforts toward meeting the requirements and demands which best perpetuate the university's primary functions," the board said in a statement.

They said the school could not continue its "development of a landmark-of-learning status with a glum financial picture."

The decision left freshmen players on one-year scholarships out in the cold. With them were seven assistant coaches, as well as 11 schools that had games scheduled with Tampa this fall.

The schools are the University of Miami, North Texas State, Tennessee-Chattanooga, Cincinnati, Houston, Northern Michigan, Toledo, Florida A&M, Louisville, Louisiana

Tech and Arkansas State. "There will probably be more football recruiters in Tampa the next few days than in any place in the country," predicted Harold Wilkes, athletic director at Tennessee-Chattanooga.

Recruiters can not only shoot at freshmen losing their scholarships, but also at high-school seniors signed for next year and upperclassmen under four-year scholarships who might want to transfer to continue their playing careers.

Despite being a private school of only 2,000 students, Tampa had a rich 41-year history of football.

It reached major-team status in the late 1960s and had become a top recruiting ground for the pros.

Matuszak was drafted first by the Houston Oilers in 1973. The Miami Dolphins made lineman Darryl Carlton and quarterback Fred Solomon their 1-2 picks this year.

Quarterback Jim Del Gaizo and running back Leon McQuay are among other players who have gone to the pros from Tampa.

Dr. B.D. Owens, president of the school, praised the decision as one which would let the school realize its educational goals.

Owens said that dropping football would allow the school to put "greater emphasis and expenditures in the field of intramural sports and recreational programs as well as other intercollegiate sports for both men and women."

ball Wednesday night, St. Louis University beat New Mexico State 78-60; Bradley defeated West Texas State 75-72; Drake whipped Wichita State 79-74.

NFL Looking At WFL Players

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rozelle has opened the floodgates, and the World Football League is likely to get swamped again.

Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, gave his league's 26 teams the go-ahead Thursday to sign any WFL player whose contract has been breached. If missing a pay day amounts to a breach of contract, many WFL players may be looking for new jobs.

Several NFL teams were quick to announce they weren't interested in many WFL players, but previous studies indicate that 60 or 70 players in the infant, debt-ridden league could help most NFL teams.

It is doubtful that the WFL, which has not signed a single college senior this year, can afford to lose many name players. At a time when it was beginning to look as if the league will attempt to play a second season, Rozelle's announcement can do the WFL no good.

Rozelle said the NFL would honor "valid WFL claims to player services." But he said any WFL player whose contract has not been honored may sign with an NFL team. According to sports attorneys, there are a considerable number of WFL players who qualify.

Rozelle said any NFL team seeking to sign a player must submit his WFL contract to Rozelle's office. In addition, the player must submit an affidavit outlining the reasons he believes his WFL contract was breached and he must obtain, from an attorney, a legal opinion supporting his belief.

If the lords of the NFL are satisfied they are on safe legal ground, permission will be given.

Immanuel In A Win

Immanuel Baptist took a giant step toward winning the Church Basketball League's regular season title with a 50-48 victory over St. James Methodist last night.

The win left Immanuel with a 12-2 record in the league, while everyone else has lost at least five games. They need only two wins, in their next four games to wrap up the title.

St. James threatened to pull out the victory, gaining a 23-17 lead by the end of the half. But Immanuel rallied for a 33-25 advantage, and that proved to be just enough for the victory.

Dick Evans led Immanuel with 13 points, while Drew Rumbley had 10. Church Mohr had 21 and Cleve Branch had 17 for St. James.

DURHAM—D.H. Conley's vikings held off a stern challenge by Hendersonville High School to move into the State 3-A Basketball Tournament's semifinals.

The Vikings came out on top in the first round game, 67-60. This is the first trip to the state tournament by Conley, while Hendersonville was making its sixth appearance in the past seven years.

In the other game, West Brunswick downed Bandys, 80-75, after rallying from 15 points down. Conley will meet West Brunswick tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the second game. Washington and Graham meet in the 7 p.m. contest. The finals and consolation will be held Saturday night.

Throughout the game, neither team was able to get much of an advantage over the other one. Conley led most of the way, but was never able to pull away until the closing minutes of the game.

Conley attacked the inside defense of Hendersonville, and it paid off. "We were able to get the ball inside," Coach Shelly Marsh said. "When we did, we were able to score or to draw the foul. And we hit on 19 of our 20 attempts at the line."

Conley inched out into the early lead, building up a 14-10 lead by the end of the first period. The Bearcats wouldn't let them pull away and fought back, outshooting the Vikings, 21-17, to leave it knotted at 31-31 at the half.

Hendersonville managed to gain the lead by two points late in the second quarter, but Clennel Streeter's jumper at the horn tied it up.

In the second half, Hendersonville again took a two-point lead, but Conley again overcame it and slipped back into the lead. They outthit the Bearcats, 18-14, and built their lead out to 49-45. Gerry Mobley, completely recovered from the leg injury he suffered early in the year, sparked Conley through that period, hitting 14 of their 18 points.

Streeter took over the hero's job in the final period, hitting eight points. Melvin Williams also tossed in eight, but Streeter's ballhandling added to his value. With two minutes left to play, Hendersonville had closed the gap to only a point, 59-58, but Streeter tossed in four free throws while Williams and Robert Harris both got baskets.

During that period, Hendersonville could answer only one of the baskets, and that pushed Conley into a 67-60 lead, which stood up for the rest of the night.

"We didn't click on defense as well as we could have," Marsh said, "but we played much better inside in the second half."

"We think Streeter may be the most underrated guard in the state. Despite his size and lack of publicity, he's a fine shooter and ballhandler, and he's very good under pressure. During the game he drove the lane constantly for points or passed off when they doubleteamed him to let another teammate score."

Conley, despite having to give up a little height, was able to control the boards. "There were very few times when they were able to get a second shot," Marsh said. "We did an outstanding job on the defensive boards."

Gerry Mobley led the Conley scoring with 20 points, while Streeter had 17. Williams had 14 and Rick Mobley had 10.

Wheleton led Hendersonville with 23, while Wilkins had 11 and Rivers added 10.

Guard Booker Brown and running backs James McAlister and Kermit Johnson — the WFL's most prized rookies last year — have already won their freedom from the WFL's Southern California Sun. Brown was drafted by Houston, McAlister by Oakland and Johnson by San Francisco.

Some players who might be contacted include current NFL players who have signed future WFL contracts. Some of them, such as Green Bay's Ted Hendricks and Miami's Bob Kuechenberg and Tim Foley, have previously claimed their contracts were not being honored.

Three players who do not fit that category are Larry Csonka, Paul Warfield and Jim Kiick. Their contracts have been honored, and more and more they are becoming the WFL's claim to big league status.

gain the lead by two points late in the second quarter, but Clennel Streeter's jumper at the horn tied it up.

In the second half, Hendersonville again took a two-point lead, but Conley again overcame it and slipped back into the lead. They outthit the Bearcats, 18-14, and built their lead out to 49-45. Gerry Mobley, completely recovered from the leg injury he suffered early in the year, sparked Conley through that period, hitting 14 of their 18 points.

Streeter took over the hero's job in the final period, hitting eight points. Melvin Williams also tossed in eight, but Streeter's ballhandling added to his value. With two minutes left to play, Hendersonville had closed the gap to only a point, 59-58, but Streeter tossed in four free throws while Williams and Robert Harris both got baskets.

During that period, Hendersonville could answer only one of the baskets, and that pushed Conley into a 67-60 lead, which stood up for the rest of the night.

"We didn't click on defense as well as we could have," Marsh said, "but we played much better inside in the second half."

"We think Streeter may be the most underrated guard in the state. Despite his size and lack of publicity, he's a fine shooter and ballhandler, and he's very good under pressure. During the game he drove the lane constantly for points or passed off when they doubleteamed him to let another teammate score."

Beltone Gets Win

Beltone moved into the finals of the Women's Basketball League's post-season tournament, and Daniel Construction was ousted from the double-elimination field.

In the losers' bracket, Buccaneer took a 35-9 win over Daniel. By the end of the first half, The Buc had built up a 20-4 lead. They outthit Daniel again, 15-5, in the second half to win handily.

Sandra Spivey led Buccaneer with 11 points, while Leslie Job had three to pace Daniel.

In the winners' bracket game, Beltone, the regular season champ, took a 58-30 win over Little Mint. Beltone held a 23-16 half-time lead, and extended that with a 35-14 margin in the second half.

Vangie Jones led Beltone with 24 points, while Lollie Edwards had 14 and P.J. Taylor had 12. Suzanne Manning led Little Mint with 12 points.

Next Thursday, Little Mint takes on Buccaneer, with the winner meeting Beltone for the title the following week.

Foard Free Throws Cut Williamston From Field

CAMERON — Fred T. Foard High School of Newton ousted previously unbeaten Williamston from the State Girls' Basketball Tournament last night, cruising to a 72-52 victory.

The game was won on the foul line by Foard, which cashed in on 36 of 56 shots at the charity stripe. A total of 33 fouls were called against the Williamston five, causing four of their starters to foul out: Fran Hardison, Sissy Taylor, Bet Brandon and Nancy Williams.

In contrast, only 17 fouls were called against Foard, allowing Williamston to hit just eight of 15 tries. None of the Foard players were banned on fouls.

Overall, Williamston outthit their foe from the floor, 44 points to 36, but they could not overcome the problems at the foul line.

Orderly Growth Process Goal

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
"We need enough industries to keep us progressive, but not enough to make us another Piedmont," State Senator Monk Harrington of Lewiston told a gathering of Coastal Plain Development Association members in Williamston Thursday night. "Whatever growth we have has got to be orderly growth."

Harrington, guest speaker at the meeting of representatives from ten counties, spoke off the cuff on a number of topics of major concern to the present and future of eastern North Carolina. He said it was his belief that eastern North Carolina generally had not been hit as hard by unemployment as the more industrial Piedmont region with its heavy concentration of textile workers.

"For one thing," he noted, "despite his many problems, the farmer is in a pretty good position. There's a tobacco shortage, and the demand for peanuts is growing all the time. Farming is still the backbone of many eastern counties."

Referring to recent development on the Medical School for East Carolina University, Harrington said it gave him pleasure that "Friday (UNC President William Friday) finally said the thing I've always wanted to hear him say, that is, 'I'm for the medical school.'" Harrington added "This has been the darndest fight I've ever seen." The senator remarked that he is convinced there's already a shift of emphasis among eastern residents in seeking medical treatment. "It was not long ago that our people went mostly to Duke, to Chapel Hill and to Norfolk. Now most go to Greenville for treatment."

In response to questions about the current legislature, Harrington expressed his personal opinions and attitudes on several issues:

—He favors an annual session of the General Assembly, preferably 120 days for the years budgets are in preparation and 90 days for other years.

—On the Equal Rights

Amendment, Harrington says he will vote against it, partially as a result of mail he has received expressing a ten to one ratio of opposition. "And practically all the mail comes from women, not men," he noted.

—About public utilities, Harrington said in the past "the General Assembly has been lax with the power companies . . . right now we're looking down their throats, but we must be reasonable. We've got to find out where the happy medium is, and this will take time." Harrington said he is convinced the days of cheap electricity have gone, and that the high cost of utilities is "an issue now in front of everybody's eyes."

—"It is my feeling that the current mood of the General Assembly on prisoners is not a liberal one. The rise in the number of bank robberies, the high incidence of people killed in cold blood has created a mood that is definitely not in favor of the prisoner," Harrington said.

Addressing some remarks to programs being carried on by the six committees of the Coastal Plain Development Association, Harrington said "I think you're doing a greater job for eastern North Carolina than you realize, or than the public realizes."

Series Of Four Auto Collisions

An estimated $1,225 property damage resulted from a series of four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported two of the collisions occurred near the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and 14th Street—one at 7:18 p.m. and the other at 10:15 p.m.

Drivers of the vehicles involved in the earlier mishap were identified as Frances Mayo Shirley of 122 North Library St. and Christine Mills Manning of 1604 East Wright Rd.

Police, who charged Mrs. Shirley with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $250 to the Shirley car and $100 to the Manning auto.

The second collision involved cars driven by Carolyn Beaman Crisp of 408 Arbor St. and Johnnie May Jr. of 200B Hudson St. officers said.

No charges were placed, and damage was set at $175 to the Crisp auto and $75 to the May auto.

Linwood Cornell Edwards of Route 3, Greenville was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 11:20 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Farmville Boulevard.

Police estimated damage to the Edwards car at $250 and placed damage to the second auto, driven by Linda Tyer Hardee of Route 9, Greenville, at $100.

Cars driven by Charles Quinerly of 102 Ashberry Rd. and Marie Harris Hardee of Route 4, Greenville were involved in an 11:17 p.m. collision at West End Circle, according to investigators.

Like Everything Else, It Costs More If Sued

By JOSEPH R. TYBOR
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Like everything else these days, it costs more if you're sued and lose.

There is no central book-keeper who tallies the figures, but lawyers who specialize in damage suits agree that juries are awarding higher amounts.

One study shows that jury awards given in serious personal injury cases have increased nearly 28 per cent since 1970 and are still headed upward. Before 1970, the increase averaged about 2 per cent a year, the study indicated.

Most large suits are usually filed against big-name corporations and, increasingly, against doctors.

But almost everyone will get socked eventually by passed-along increases in insurance premiums paid by persons more likely to be sued.

"It's not unusual for verdicts to be higher in times of inflation," says Philip Corboy, former head of the Chicago Bar Association, who has specialized in personal injury cases for more than 25 years.

Rising medical costs and wages account for the biggest increases in personal injury awards, say lawyers.

"If a man was in a hospital for a month it used to cost $900; now it costs $2,700," says Corboy. "We used to represent railroad employees who made $200 a week; now they're making $400."

Awards are usually made to cover the victim's care and his unrealized lifetime earnings, said Leonard Ring, another Chicago lawyer specializing in injury suits.

There are other factors besides inflation.

They include increased reliance on expert testimony, including doctors who, contrary to past practice, now testify against their peers; more educated jurors and their awareness to publicity given previous, large settlements; and growing interest in consumer protection.

Juries also have been increasing punitive damages.

While compensatory damages usually are awarded for physical disability, punitive damages are aimed at punishing a wrongdoer and setting an example as a deterrent to similar acts in the future, Ring said.

"The right to punitive damages has been recognized since time immemorial but the amount and frequency has been increasing lately," he said. And one of the reasons for this is the consumer movement, he said.

In line with juries assessing punitive damages more frequently is the increase in product liability cases.

"Consumerism is definitely making a difference," says Philip Hermann, a Cleveland trial lawyer and founder of Jury Verdict Research Inc.

"Jurors are more conversant with consumerism and want to penalize the company that is not putting out as safe a product as it knows it could," Herman said.

He said his company's research shows that malpractice suits against doctors are notably on the rise.

A primary reason, said lawyers Corboy and Ring, is that doctors seem to have broken "the conspiracy of silence."

"For a long while it was impossible to win these cases," Ring said. "It was impossible to get a doctor to testify against another doctor or a hospital."

That's changed over the past five years, Corboy said.

"It probably pertains to the social attitudes by today's doctors," he said. "Doctors are no longer in awe of doctors. They no longer feel restrained against testifying against one of their cohorts."

Today's greater number of malpractice suits, however, point out a significant problem with jury awards.

Malpractice insurance premiums are rapidly rising for doctors and because of the higher risk for insurance companies some medical officials believe doctors could be faced with the loss of such insurance.

Jazz Festival

The combos tune up in Lincoln Center, the horns inside outblow those in the Manhattan streets, the ivories tinkle lustily in Carnegie Hall and the fans are stompin' once more at the Newport Jazz Festival-New York. The beat and the razza-matazz spill around the city, a "Big Apple Jam" and a "Jam Session for Diana (Ross)" rousing two midnights at Radio City Music Hall, a "Big Band Ball" swirling through Roseland Ballroom. These lullabies of Broadway don't send no one to sleep, baby. There are cool sessions and hot sessions and even a Hudson River Boat ride when jazz takes to the water aboard the Staten Island ferry. That's the picture for 1974, with 800 to 900 musicians playing their hearts out at 30 events between June 28 and July 7. These pictures were taken in the swing of things at the 1973 Festival.

James Earl Ray Threatens To 'Tell All'

LOOKING HIGH AND LOW — Two of the National Zoo's black swans sit in a line which gives the illusion of one bird with two heads at the zoo in Washington. Mild temperatures and sunshine made for a good day to watch the birds. (AP Wirephoto)

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Writer
MEMPHIS (AP)—James Earl Ray will tell "the names of the other people involved" if he loses an appeal of a federal judge's rejection of his demand for a trial in the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Ray's brother said Thursday.

"He told me personally that, if he did not win an appeal, he would reveal the names of everyone involved," said Jerry Ray after U. S. District Court Judge Robert M. McRae Jr. refused Thursday to approve a state court trial.

"There seems to be a lot of people who don't want his story to get out, but they are not going to hush him up," the brother said.

Ray's attorneys said they would appeal immediately to the 6th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals the ruling by McRae that Ray "coolly and deliberately" admitted to the slaying when he pleaded guilty March 10, 1969. Ray is serving a 99-year sentence in the state prison.

McRae said in a 38-page opinion that he found no violations of Ray's constitutional rights that would merit a full trial on charges in the April 4, 1968, sniper slaying in Memphis of King, who won the Nobel Prize for peace in leading the civil rights movement of the 1960s.

Ray had sought a trial chiefly on grounds that his former attorneys didn't prepare an adequate defense and that he was pressured into the plea, but hinted at an eight-day hearing before McRae last fall that he was the unwitting participant in a conspiracy to kill King.

McRae said in his ruling that Ray had told his former attorneys, Arthur Hanes Sr., Birmingham, Ala., and Percy Foreman, Houston, Tex., and author William Bradford Huie "of his acting upon the direction of others, but none of them could corroborate Ray's version of other participants in spite of an extensive investigation in this regard."

"In spite of attempts by his lawyers to explain to Ray that he was mistaken, Ray apparently operated on the assumption that he was not guilty of murder if it could be established that he was not the sole participant," McRae said. "This concept is a thread that runs through the entire account by Ray."

The judge rejected Ray's claim that Foreman coerced the plea.

"Ray carefully considered and partially amended the lengthy stipulation of facts that formed the basis for accepting his guilty plea, and Ray coolly and deliberately entered the plea in an open court where he spoke to correct the record as he thought appropriate," McRae said.

The judge also rejected Ray's allegation that Foreman and Hanes were more interested in pursuing royalties under contracts with Huie, who was writing about the case, than in preparing a defense. McRae said the lawyers' pretrial investigations were "well above the minimum standards required of attorneys."

The judge said some conduct by the attorneys should have been different—he said Foreman was sometimes "arrogant and overbearing"—but that "the total circumstances do not reflect a violation of the constitutional rights applicable to one who voluntarily pleaded guilty on advice of competent counsel of his own choosing."

Hanes was Ray's first attorney and was replaced by Foreman, who negotiated the plea.

In Atlanta, King's successor as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, said the ruling was "most regrettable."

"This is not to say that James Earl Ray may not have been the man who pulled the trigger, but I firmly believe that there were more people involved, some of them in very high places and positions of leadership in this country," he said. "I think the trial of James Earl Ray would bring all of this out in the open."

Ray had challenged the thoroughness of his former attorneys' investigation into weaknesses in the state's case against him. Among them, according to Ray's claim in last year's hearing, was the lack of credibility of a state witness who said he saw Ray running from a boarding house bathroom from which the fatal shot allegedly was fired and the lack of more conclusive ballistics proof on the bullet that killed King.

"The proof shows that Hanes and Foreman also knew of these weaknesses, but they were by no means of the sensational nature which would explode the state's case, particularly in light of the substantial incriminating evidence of Ray's presence in Memphis on April 4, 1968, and his carefully contrived concealment and flight,"

McRae said. The judge said Ray had "attempted to second-guess those with whom he had contact" after this arrest in London more than two months after the assassination, sometimes withholding information and "he sometimes lied."

McRae also did not accept Ray's claim that the conditions of his solitary confinement and monitoring of his cell and correspondence while awaiting trial in the Shelby County Jail violated his rights.

Set Program In Farmville

FARMVILLE—The Farmville Recreation Department, along with the local schools, is co-sponsoring for the first time a Special Olympics program here.

This program is designed to offer an activity for children who have certain mental and physical handicaps. The event will consist of a variety of track and field events ranging from a 440 relay to the standing broad jump.

Community support for this project has been encouraging, with several local citizens and civic clubs offering time and money. The Farmville Junior Women's Club has already committed itself for $100 and plans to issue a challenge for other clubs to do the same. Local Kiwanians were given a program last Monday night about Special Olympics, and the project is under advisement with one of their committees at this time.

A sample of the community response to the program is best summed up by the make-up of the executive committee. . . several teachers, recreation leaders, and civic club representatives, along with a representative from the medical and the ministerial professions make up this committee. The date for the local meet will be set at the next Executive Committee meeting.

Chess Team To Play Goldsboro

Having determined its top five players in a four month intra-school tournament, the Rose High Chess Team will play Goldsboro tonight in what is believed to be Greenville's first high school chess match in history.

Scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the Rose High library, the match will consist of five games, with each member of the team playing one each. One point will be awarded for a win and one-half for a draw.

Despite the lack of chess teams in the area, Rose is striving to play one high school per week. The team will host J.T. Hoggard of Wilmington in an afternoon contest a week from Saturday and will soon confirm tentative dates for matches with Kinston and Ayden-Grifton.

The public is invited to attend the event tonight free of charge.

Plan Sentencing Mitchell Friend

WASHINGTON (AP)—Frederick C. LaRue, a close associate of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, will be sentenced March 7 for his part in the Watergate cover-up.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica set the date Thursday for the sentencing. LaRue, of Jackson, Miss., pleaded guilty to conspiracy charges June 27, 1973.

LaRue, 46, could receive up to five years in prison, although a lesser sentence is likely.

"Pitt County's Home Newspaper"

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 1, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Judgment is not likely to be good, and some unusual conditions may test your power of control, so avoid unwise decisions. Be highly objective, studying whatever arises and avoiding commitments.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have assumed responsibilities that you are not certain about now, so weed out those that are not practical. Avoid a quarrel.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take it easy with a partner or a big argument could ensue, which is best avoided right now. Spend money with wisdom.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle work efficiently and don't fall down on promises made. Rebuild your vitality, which may be waning now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Put those creative activities aside for awhile so that you can work them out more intelligently later. Be friendly with all.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Avoid arguments at home which could bring about a pretty sad state of affairs. Get rid of situations that have long been troublesome.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Much caution in motion of all kinds is imperative to avoid real trouble. Study for any possible errors in writings and correct.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Not a good day to handle those important financial matters, but fine for planning how to do so wisely. Happy p.m. with family.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't make radical changes because of discontented mood. Go out and have a good time, and then all looks fine again.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study into situations that do not meet with your approval and do something constructive about improving them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be of greater help to your friends instead of expecting the reverse, for a change. Steer clear of socials where arguments could come up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle career matters cleverly. Avoid rate higher-ups. Make sure your bills are paid on time, and avoid extra expense.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You want to get into some new interest but this is not the right time for such and could run into big trouble if you force matters.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... others will want to spoil him or her, so teach early to earn whatever is desired by working for it, and thereby to avoid trouble. Any kind of trouble-shooting profession is fine here, whether male or female, since there is much persistence in this nature and the ability to ferret things out. Teach early not to be so self-opinionated so that more can be learned from others.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Terence Reese of London has the reputation of being one of the great player-writers of all time. He was a member of the British team that won the 1955 World Team Championship, and several of his books are considered classics.

As is to be expected, Reese's entry in the Bols Liquor Bridge Tips Competition is sage advice for every bridge player. Reese maintains that a study of the early discards that a defender makes can be most revealing, if declarer draws the correct inferences. Declarer should ask himself: From what holding would the defender most readily have made those discards? The answer can often help solve a critical guess, as was the case in this hand.

North-South reached a reasonable four spade contract. When South jump rebid his suit to show interest in game, North decided that his ace, king and three trumps were enough to accept, despite the fact that his hand was perfectly balanced.

West led a low club. East won the ace and returned the suit to his partner's king, and West continued with a third club, which declarer ruffed. It is obvious that the contract hinges on a heart guess, but South should delay making a critical decision just yet. First he should draw four rounds of trumps.

West discards a card from each minor suit, and declarer should discard diamond rather than a heart from dummy. (It is good technique to keep dummy's heart holding intact.) East stuffs a club and a heart. Now, declarer leads a heart and West follows with the eight. Should declarer finesse the jack?

Yes, because of East's heart discard! Holding A-x-x-x in hearts, East knows that the contract must depend on a heart guess, so there is no reason for him to keep all four hearts. However, if he held Q-x-x-x he could not afford to let go a heart, for if declarer had A-x of hearts, he could set up the jack by playing ace-king of hearts and ruffing a heart.

The discard tells the story.

The students of North Pitt began registering Monday so they will be eligible to vote in the spring Student Government Association and class elections.

Freshmen who registered in the fall do not have to register again.

The fourth six-week period test will be concluded next week. They will be given March 5-7 and the following Monday will be a teacher workday and student holiday.

The deadline for mailing applications for the April SAT was Feb. 27. There is an additional $4 late registration fee for all applications received after that date.

North Pitt Notes features Roger Ingalls and Hubert Leggett this week.

A Greenville native, Leggett received his B. S. degree in industrial arts at East Carolina University.

He enjoys dirt bike riding and hunting. He teaches drafting at North Pitt.

Ingalls, a native of New York, received his B. S. degree in health and physical education at East Carolina University.

His duties at North Pitt include teaching physical education, coaching the wrestling and girls' track teams and serving as assistant coach of the varsity football team.

He and his wife, Sandy, have one son, Ben, age two. He enjoys wrestling, golf, bicycling and camping.

University School of Medicine will be ready for approval or disapproval by the Hospital Board of Trustees at its next regular meeting, Hospital Administrator Jack Richardson said.

"There's no definite timetable," Richardson said, "but we're meeting quite often to try to work out the details." He said he has been asked by the physicians and ECU representatives on the medical education liaison committee not to discuss any aspect of the plans being developed.

Asserts 'Older People' Were 1776 Firebrands

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Remember all those young, radical firebrands who were said to have sparked the American Revolution?

Well, Dr. John Schutz, chairman of the History Department at the University of Southern California, says to forget it, it's all myth.

Completing a detailed computer study of the Massachusetts leaders of the Revolution, Schutz said, "It was the older, wiser, more sophisticated people who brought on the Revolution."

If anything, they viewed the English government as radical. He said the average leader was in his mid-50s, a family man and usually a doctor, minister, businessman or Harvard professor.

"The Massachusetts people wanted to conserve their heritage," he said. "The Revolution was a preserving process, not radical revolt against the English nation."
Dr. Schutz said he chose Massachusetts because it was a center of the revolutionary movement. He fed millions of facts about the leaders and legislators from 1725-1776 into the computer for a statistical picture of the average revolutionary. In all, more than 2,200 leaders were studied.

One of the first things he discovered was that as the Revolution drew near, the ages of the legislators became older. They were established, conservative community leaders.

"Basically, these were people who wished to preserve American liberty from English radicalism," he said. "They feared English radicalism would destroy the colonies. They wanted the right to govern themselves."

"They saw the English government as a force that would destroy home rule and introduce foreign elements."
Schutz, 50, a native of Los Angeles and a graduate of UCLA, said he will publish his findings when he completes the research. He said he had been studying the people and leaders of Massachusetts for a number of years.

Pine Beetle Is At Work

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Roger Anderson of the Duke University Forestry school says the Southern pine beetle roused by unseasonably warm weather, has resumed killing North Carolina's pine trees.

"It threatens havoc this spring and summer in suburban areas, the entomologist warns. "I expect it to be bad," he said. "The beetles are moving from tree to tree, and that's unusual in the wintertime."

Anderson said the insect, brownish and about an eighth of an inch long, normally is dormant in cool weather. The beetles are expected to "cause havoc in suburban areas" this spring and summer as they move out of presently infested areas to untouched trees, he said.

Anderson said North Carolina is the hardest hit of the Southern states this fiscal year, losing 41 million board feet of saw timber and 7.7 cubic feet of pulpwood since July 1.

South Carolina has lost only a fourth as much and Virginia perhaps a third as much, he said.

Trees attacked by the beetle begin to turn fiery red in most cases, and then fade into brown, Anderson noted.

New Annex For Morehead Planetarium Complex

By NAN FRIEND
CHAPEL HILL—A copper dome rising 80 feet above the trees of the Chapel Hill campus tops the $3 million addition to the Morehead Planetarium Building at the University of North Carolina. The annex, with its 24-inch telescope in the observatory and four floors of handsomely decorated rooms and offices, is the most recent in a succession of gifts to the University from the late industrialist-philanthropist John Motley Morehead through the Morehead Foundation. The $6 million Morehead Observatory and Planetarium has been called the best astronomy laboratory at any university in the country. From the shade of the bricks to the shape of the windows, the new wing balances and matches the original building, completed in 1949, in every way.

Almost doubling the size of the original structure, the addition will have as many uses as the parent building with its planetarium, Genevieve B. Morehead Art Gallery displaying a collection of 17th and 18th century paintings, and special purpose rooms.

Under the dome is the observatory with a 24-inch telescope which UNC astronomers students and faculty will use to explore and study the heavens over "the Southern part of heaven." Laboratories, seminar rooms, and observation terraces on the third floor will be used primarily by astronomy students.

Overnight guest rooms, a lounge, living room and board room occupy the second floor. These rooms will be used by visiting Morehead scholar alumni and Foundation and University guests.

The elegant high-ceilinged banquet hall on the first floor will seat up to 500 persons and will be utilized for official University galas. Morehead Foundation officials occupy spacious new offices on the ground floor.

"This is not just a new building," emphasized Foundation Executive Director Mebane Pritchett '57, "but the expansion of an existing facility and program to further Mr. Morehead's original intention in setting up the Foundation."

The new section is beautifully wedded to the 1949 building with special bricks approved by the University Buildings and Grounds Committee. Several brands of bricks were considered for the addition built by McDevitt and Street Co. of Charlotte. The process of selection took several months, according to Pritchett.

Architect Archie Royal Davis of Durham has created a distinctive columned portico which extends across the Franklin St. side of the building facing the Sundial and Rose Garden. Designed to resemble a Greek walkway, the portico will shelter the thousands of school children who attend the Planetarium every year.

The appearance of the east side of the building with its tall arched windows facing the Arboretum has been altered only slightly.

Elevators and ramps inside and outside the building facilitate use by the handicapped. The observatory is one of the first in the world with an elevator opening into the observing room.

Under the observatory dome which rotates to any horizontal position to allow observation of the entire sky, is a 24-inch Boller and Chivens Cassegrain reflector. The telescope has light-gathering power 10,000 times greater than the human eye and magnifying powers up to 1,000 times that of the unaided eye. Other equipment include: a spectrograph, an instrument which analyzes starlight to determine temperatures, composition, densities, velocities and rotation of stars. The telescope also will be used to study planetary and satellite phenomena in the solar system. The telescope is designed for eventual computer input and output capabilities.

Laboratories, class and seminar rooms, library, reading room and a dark room for developing photographic plates taken through the telescope are located on the third floor. Astronomy students attend night classes on the rooftop terraces extending north and south from the third floor. Here they use smaller telescopes in addition to the 24-inch one to observe celestial objects.

The new telescope is not the first to be located in Chapel Hill. Actually, UNC was one of the first universities in America to establish an observatory although it did not last long.

University President Joseph Caldwell visited

Europe in 1824 and purchased several pieces of astronomical equipment. An observatory, a tiny box-like building, was built in 1830-31 on the site of the present varsity tennis courts. But by 1835, the roof leaked so badly that all the instruments were removed and three years later a student prank sent the building up in flames, according to an article by R. S. Knapp, Planetarium Chairman, and Dr. Wayne Christiansen of the Physics and Astronomy Department in "Sky and Telescope."

Astronomy and Morehead are two words nearly synonymous at Chapel Hill. Mr. Morehead's dream to bring a knowledge of the astronomy to the people of North Carolina and the University is realized in the observatory and planetarium, a gift to UNC totalling nearly $7 million. Because of this support and large student enrollments — over 500 undergraduates in astronomy classes each semester — the astronomy program is growing.

If the prominent astronomer Harlow Shapley of Harvard University had not called North Carolinians "the most astronomically ignorant people in all America," back in the mid-1940s, the planetarium and observatory might never have been built in Chapel Hill.

"Your state needs cosmic awakening," Shapley told Mr. Morehead. The astronomer's friendly insult gave the multi-millionaire industrialist the idea he had been searching for. He had long wanted to give his alma mater a gift in the form of a building but had not decided what sort of facility it would be. He knew only that he wanted it to be something that would not ordinarily be built by the taxpayers of the State anyway.

"Amend your statement, Dr. Shapley," Mrs. Morehead retorted, "to read, 'of all the people in America, North Carolinians are the most ignorant of astronomical matters,' and we'll build a planetarium."

The statement was amended and work on the planetarium began in 1947.

Morehead presented the building to the University in 1949.

More than 2,300 people, most of them North Carolinians, have been "cosmically awakened" since the Morehead Planetarium opened its skies in 1949.

When the stars first twinkled under the big dome, the Morehead Planetarium was the first planetarium in the South, the sixth in the United States and the only one in the world owned and operated on a college or university campus, according to planetarium building director Anthony Jenzano.

The planetarium is equipped with a quarter million dollar Carl Zeiss Model VI projector purchased by the Morehead Foundation and installed in 1969. This most advanced planetarium instrument is one of only five in the United States today.

Since 1960, U.S. astronauts have studied celestial navigation at the Planetarium. Astronauts Alan Shepard Jr., Neil Armstrong, Alan Bean and all the others have collectively spent thousands of hours in the planetarium chamber. Separate programs of instruction were designed for the astronauts on the Mercury, Gemini, Apollo, Skylab, and Apollo-Soyuz space projects, the latter to "fly" in 1975.

Its role as "astronomical brain of the American space program" has brought worldwide attention to the Morehead Planetarium.

Mr. Morehead was a chemist, investor, engineer, industrialist, and later, a diplomat and public servant. Born in Rockingham County, he was the 11th member of his family to be graduated from the University. His grandfather, John Motley Morehead, twice governor of the State, was the first Morehead at Chapel Hill.

Mr. Morehead's fondness for the State and the University are evident in this statement to the University Trustees in 1946 shortly after he established the Morehead Foundation: "I have lived in four states and, as Minister to Sweden, in one foreign country, but always my heart and deepest interests have been in North Carolina, where my forebears lived before North Carolina was a state." These feelings were represented in his first gift to the University—the Morehead-Patterson Memorial Bell Tower and Chimes presented with his brother-in-law, Rufus Lenoir Patterson, in 1931. Another gift, the Sundial and Rose Garden, was given to the University in 1956.

When he created the John Motley Morehead Foundation in 1945, Mr. Morehead gave his trustees two tasks: build a planetarium and establish a scholarship program at Chapel Hill.

The first Morehead Awards for study at UNC were presented in 1951.

Described as the largest and most lucrative scholarship program for undergraduates at any American college or university, the Morehead Awards are merit scholarships granted on the basis of leadership and scholarship.

A fellowship program for graduates and professional students was established in 1966.

Through June 30, 1973, approximately $7 million has been awarded in scholarships and fellowships by the Morehead Foundation.

The Morehead Scholarship program is unique because it was created by one man for one purpose: the man, John Motley Morehead; the purpose, to attract to the University at Chapel Hill outstanding individuals who would add to the distinction of the University while students and who, as alumni, would reflect credit on the University and the State.

It has been said of John Motley Morehead: "Few North Carolinians ever lived such a distinguished and worthwhile life... no North Carolinian ever loved his State and his University more... No man ever dreamed greater dreams—spiritual, cultural and economic dreams—for his State and his 'neighbors'... And few men have ever done as much as John Motley Morehead to make their dreams come true..."

Joanne Still In Seclusion

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Joanne Little was reported resting in seclusion Thursday after her release the day before on a $115,000 bond raised through a nationwide campaign by civil rights and women's rights groups.

A spokesman at the office of Miss Little's Durham, N.C., attorneys said, "At this point she is just resting and getting readjusted after more than six months in jail. She's taking it very easy."

Miss Little, a 20-year-old black, is scheduled to go on trial in Washington, N.C., on April 14 for the slaying of a white Beaufort County jailer.

Her attorneys, Jerry Paul and Karen Galloway, will not say where Miss Little is staying, but said she would take a job out of state while awaiting trial. They said there have been threats on her life.

Miss Little is expected to make several public appearances before her trial, but no dates have been set. She burst into hysterical sobs as she left Women's Prison on Wednesday and her attorneys said she was too upset to talk to reporters.

Miss Little is charged with first degree murder in the icepick slaying last Aug. 27 of Clarence Allgood, 62. Allgood was found stabbed to death in Miss Little's empty cell. He was naked from the waist down.

Miss Little, who says Allgood was trying to rape her and that she acted in self defense, turned herself in eight days later to state authorities.

Connecticut's state motto is, "Qui transtulit sustinet," Latin for "He who transplanted will sustain."
