Guerilla Band Held Hotel Hostages

One Terrorist Survives Attack

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli soldiers captured an eighth Arab terrorist and saved him from an angry mob today hours after he and his comrades blew up part of a small Tel Aviv hotel, killing at least nine other persons, the Israeli command said.

Seven hours after troops stormed the seafront Savoy Hotel near the U.S. Embassy and killed seven guerrillas, soldiers searching through the explosion debris flushed out the eighth terrorist and seized him after a brief exchange of gunfire.

A mob of Israelis enraged over the latest terrorist attack, the biggest ever in the heart of a major Israeli city, tried to break in the doors of the ambulance to get at the captured guerrilla, but the vehicle sped away.

The latest shooting flared minutes before Premier Yitzhak Rabin inspected the hotel, where Israeli troops stormed the building before dawn following a six-hour siege. Two of the dead were reported to be Israeli soldiers. There was still no identification of any foreign casualties.

The guerrillas had held at least 30 hostages in the hotel, but it was not known if there were any Americans among them.

"I saw two men on a rooftop about 150 yards from the hotel, shooting into the street," said a woman who had been looking out of her kitchen window before the second outburst of gunfire broke out. "One of them was wearing a khaki shirt, like a military shirt."

The Israeli cabinet said in a communique that the guerrilla attack, mounted by Yasir Arafat's Al Fatah, was aimed at damaging Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's Middle East peace efforts.

"This murderous terrorist infiltration was synchronized for a political purpose to foil any chance of progress toward reaching a political settlement through negotiations," the communique said.

But it said the terrorist action would not deter Israel and "it will not move the Israeli government from its policy, which combines the safeguarding of its citizens with its political efforts toward peace."

Kissinger, in London, condemned the raid as "a senseless act of violence."

"We hope that we can continue," he said when asked how the terrorist assault might affect his mission. He added that it underlined the importance of making progress toward peace in the Middle East.

Abu Iyad, the No. 2 man in Al Fatah, asked to comment on the raid, said in Beirut, Lebanon, "The only comment I have is that there can be no peace in the Middle East without the Palestinians. This is what Kissinger should fully realize."

Farm Prices Lead Decline In February

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by lower prices for farm products, wholesale prices declined in February for the third straight month, the government reported today.

The Labor Department's Wholesale Price Index for last month was eight-tenths of one per cent below January, the biggest monthly drop in the decline that started in December.

The February report provided additional evidence of a cooling off of the nation's inflation rate at the wholesale level, although wholesale prices in February still were 14.6 per cent above a year earlier.

The index was released as Congress considered President Ford's latest proposal to spur employment. An additional 760,000 youths could get summer jobs and up to 310,000 adults could get six month's more work if Congress approves the Ford proposal.

Ford asked Congress Wednesday for $2 billion to fund the summer job program for youths and extend the public service job program for adults beyond its scheduled Dec. 31 expiration.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford acted after the Labor Department advised him it would have to begin phasing out public service jobs on July 1 in order to terminate the program by the end of the year.

The February decline in the Wholesale Price Index was led by a 4.6 per cent drop in prices of farm products and a 2.8 per cent drop in prices of processed foods and feeds. The over-all index stood at 171.3 per cent of the 1967 average of 100, meaning it cost $171.30 to buy a statistical set of goods that cost $100 at wholesale in 1967.

The decline in wholesale prices has yet to be reflected in lower consumer prices. Administration economists are hopeful that lower prices for farm products will begin showing up at the supermarket in weeks and months ahead.

Pitt School Bd. To Ask New School Land Money

TO BE REPLACED . . . These wooden frame buildings on the Stokes Elementary campus will be replaced by modular classroom units. The buildings were being used to house a trainable school program and other new programs in the area. (Reflector Photo by Blanche Hardee)

The Pitt County Board of Education Tuesday afternoon after meeting in executive session agreed to ask the Pitt County Board of Commissioners to approve an expenditure of $100,000 for the purchase of the Davis property in Farmville which would be used for a new Farmville Middle School.

The board already has $90,000 budgeted for the project and will ask the commissioners to appropriate an additional $10,000.

Pitt County Schools Supt. Ott Alford said the board felt the price being asked for the property is a fair one and that the land, approximately 25 acres, was appraised at a value of $100,000.

The land is located between the Sam Bundy Primary School and Farmville Central High School and is within the Farmville town limits.

The board also approved the immediate purchase of the equivalent of nine classrooms spaces in the form of modular classroom units to be placed on the Stokes Elementary School campus.

"The new classrooms will eliminate probably the most intolerable situation that exists in the county in terms of school facilities," Alford told the board. The new units will replace several wood frame buildings on the campus.

Alford said the board of education had hoped to phase out these facilities soon but a trainable school program and several other new programs at the school have forced the board to continue using the school.

The board will request $94,000 in new money from the Pitt County Commissioners for the classroom units to be added to a sum of $21,000 to be transferred from current funds, provided the commissioners approve.

Alford said the $21,000 comes from a change in the formula used by the stated in funding certain occupational programs. Earlier the percentage of state support was to be 72 percent and the budget request was based on that figure. Within the past month, the board received word that certain programs were funded at 90 percent state support and the 18 percent difference will result in the $21,000 savings to the county.

The board instructed a committee named earlier to continue with negotiations with the Town of Farmville for the sale of the present Farmville Athletic Field to the town.

Kissinger Faces Hostile Crowd In Wales Visit

CARDIFF, Wales (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger ran into a hostile demonstration by jeering Cypriots today during a side trip to this Welsh coal port. The secretary is in Britain on the way to the Middle East, where he hopes to arrange a broad Israeli withdrawal in the Sinai peninsula.

About 400 demonstrators carrying banners reading "Kissinger-warmonger" and "Kissinger — Hands off Cyprus" shouted obscenities at him and his wife Nancy as they left ceremonies honoring British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan at the City Hall.

Officials said the demonstrators were mainly young Marxists and Cypriots who blame the United States for the plight of their divided island.

Security officials kept the demonstrators far from the official party.

On Friday, Kissinger planned to meet Greek Foreign Minister Dimitrios Bitsios in Brussels seeking a way to reopen negotiations between the Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

Then he flies to Egypt, guardedly optimistic that he will be able to arrange terms for a broad Israeli withdrawal in the Sinai Desert. However, U.S. officials in Kissinger's party stressed that neither Israel nor Egypt has given him a formal position.

CHARGED BACK

I am receiving $50-a-month payments for some land I have sold. One payment check, instead of being added to my bank account, seems to have been deducted from it. I want to know how and why this was done. G.B.

W.B. Chalk Jr. at Planters Bank said you deposited the $50 check you received in payment on your land to your account, but the funds of the man buying the land were insufficient, so it was charged back to your account. You redeposited the check, he said, and it was insufficient a second time and charged back a second time. When you got your checking account statement, it contained two pink slips, which were the charge-back forms in the amount of $50 each and your balance showed $50 less than you thought you had, since you had already added the deposit to your balance in your check register. It did look as if the bank had deducted too much, since you were unfamiliar with the charge-back forms and what they meant. After Hotline's call, Chalk talked to you personally and you say you now understand and are satisfied, though the person who's buying your land is still behind on his payments.

Abzug Given CIA File Concerning Activities

By DAVID C. MARTIN
A sociated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A CIA file turned over by the agency to Rep. Bella S. Abzug is the first concrete evidence of what Director William E. Colby has acknowledged were improper activities.

The file detailed Rep. Abzug's antiwar activities during the late 1960s and early 1970s and contained information stretching back to 1953. Some of the file's data had been obtained by opening her mail.

"A considerable amount of material in your file should not be in there," Colby admitted to Rep. Abzug at a House subcommittee hearing Wednesday.

"This is the kind of activity that has to be eliminated on the part of the CIA," Rep. Abzug said, waving a copy of the file above her head.

Rep. Abzug, a New York Democrat, was one of four members of Congress whose names appear in the CIA's counterintelligence files as a result of their antiwar activities, Colby said. He has acknowledged that the agency's counterintelligence unit kept files on 10,000 Americans in an effort to determine whether there was any foreign influence behind civil unrest at home.

In response to questions, Colby said he did not know how many files the agency kept on other Americans. "It's impossible to make an estimate as to how many American names we have."

Colby defended most of the agency's files on U.S. citizens as necessary and proper but added that the agency had decided to destroy various lists of people considered to be possible security threats.

The file on Rep. Abzug listed her contacts with Viet Cong representatives in Paris along with her appearances at antiwar gatherings, including the minutes of a private meeting of leaders of the Women's Strike for Peace.

But she said the file also contained information dating back to 1953 when as a private attorney she represented various entertainers before the House Un-American Activities Committee. It was during this period that her mail was opened and copied, Rep. Abzug indicated.

Colby said the mail surveillance was part of an agency program to monitor mail between the United States and various Communist countries and had been terminated in 1973.

The Abzug file also contained names of U.S. lawyers appearing on the mailing list of the World Council of Peace. The list of names was marked as having been received from a sensitive source and Colby said that parts of Rep. Abzug's file would remain secret to keep from revealing other sensitive sources.

"I'd like to have an opportunity to see the complete invasion of my privacy," she said.

NCNB Lowering Its Prime Rate

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina National Bank, the state's largest bank, today announced it will lower its prime interest rate from 8½ to 8 per cent Monday.

"The reduction is unsual in that it reflects a half a per cent rather than a quarter," NCNB spokesman John Jamison said.

The reduction "reflects as the prime rate always does the cost of money to us in the short term market and that cost has been declining for some time," Jamison said.

No injuries were reported in the early morning incident.

According to the spokesman, the fire will not affect the plant's starting operations, scheduled for late summer.

Weatherington-Hinson Vows Spoken Saturday

In a candlelight ceremony Saturday in Saint Paul's Episcopal Church, Miss LaVeta Hinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brantley Hinson of Mount Olive, became the bride of Clifton Edward Weatherington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cliffie Wesley Weatherington of Aurora.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 7:30 in the evening by the Rev. Lawrence P. Houston Jr., the rector at Saint Paul's.

Mrs. Sharon Irwin, organist, presented a program of wedding music prior to the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the alter by her father. She wore a white formal gown of meracaine and Venice lace. Venice lace appliques and bridal pearl trims adorned the bodice accenting the scooped neckline and the empire waistline. Venice lace, accented the long fitted sleeves. The skirt, embellished with lace appliques, fell into a chapel length train.

She wore a fingertip veil of white illusion, adorned with lace appliques, attached to a Juliet cap covered with Venice lace and bridal pearl trim, matching her gown. The bride's only ornament was an antique gold engraved locket belonging to her mother. The bride carried a lace and satin covered prayerbook and a colonial bouquet of yellow roses, baby's breath and white daisies with white satin streamers.

MRS. CLIFTON EDWARD WEATHERINGTON

Mrs. Regina Strickland of Mount Olive, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She was attired in a formal gown of apple green peau de soie. The gown, styled with a scooped neckline, was accented with embroidered lace trim at the empire waistline and at the cuffs of the long sleeves. Her headpiece was of embroidered lace and green illusion. She carried a bridal lite surrounded by a semi-colonial bouquet of yellow and white daisies, baby's breath and miniature carnations tied with daffodil yellow satin streamers.

Miss Valerie Hinson of Mount Olive, sister of the bride, Mrs. Ann Weatherington of Elizabeth City, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, Miss Rosemary Morton of Alexandria, Va., and Mrs. Martha Andrews of Greenville, were bridesmaids. They wore identical formal gowns of daffodil yellow peau de soie. Their gowns and bouquets were similar to that of the honor attendant.

Miss April Rose Strickland of Mount Olive, niece of the bride, and Miss Crystal Ann Blake of Kinston served as junior bridesmaids. They wore identical formal gowns of daffodil yellow peau de soie, fashioned with a round neckline and puffed sleeves. Their bouquets were similar to the bridesmaids.

Miss Joel Carol Strickland of Mount Olive, niece of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a formal gown of yellow peau de soie styled identical to the junior bridesmaids. She carried a white basket of yellow and white daisies. John Strickland of Mount Olive, nephew of the bride, served as ringbearer.

Randy Nichols of Greenville served as best man. Ushers were Wesley Weatherington of Elizabeth City, brother of the bridegroom, and Johnny Letchworth, C. B. Landreth, and Greg McLaughlin, all of Greenville. Charles Hinson of Mount Olive, brother of the bride, served as junior usher.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Riggs of Raleigh presided at the registry.

The bride is a graduate of Southern Wayne High School and East Carolina University. She is currently teaching art at E. B. Aycock Junior High School, Greenville, and is a graduate studies at ECU. The bridegroom is a graduate of Aurora High School and the police science program at Pitt Technical Institute. He is employed by the Greenville Police Department.

Ms. Inez Fridley of Greenville, directed the wedding.

Following the ceremony, wedding guests were entertained at a reception at the Woman's Club.

A color scheme of bridal white, daffodil yellow, and apple green was used throughout the room. The gift table was decorated with a yellow rose tree surrounded by rice bags which were presented to guests by April Rose Strickland, Crystal Ann Blake, Wendy Carol Kelly, and Joel Carol Strickland.

Mr. Judith Ann Blake of Kinston, served the three tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Shirley Kelly, aunt of the bride, poured punch.

Natural parchment scrolls inscribed in silver with a wedding thought held by miniature silver wedding bands were given to guests by Cynthia Blake of Kinston and Phyllis Kelly of Mount Olive.

On Friday evening following the rehearsal, the wedding party and guests were entertained at a rehearsal party at the church.

The bridal theme was carried out in the decorations in the bridal colors of daffodil yellow, apple green, and bridal white.

Don't Try To Change Him

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I met a man about a year and a half ago, and I really think he is the man for me. The only problem is that he is very set in his ways, and one of his faults is always being late. If he says he is going to call me at 6 PM, he doesn't call until 7 PM. And if he says he is coming over at 8 PM, he never gets here until 9 PM. He is always about an hour late.

I have talked to him about this, and he says he's always been that way. It really infuriates me. I want to marry him, but I'd like to break him of this habit first.

He treats me very well, and he is the nicest man I've ever met, but his constantly running an hour late all the time is something I can't stand. How can I change him?

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Don't try. In the future, when you want him to come over at 8 PM, ask him to come at 7 PM. Just set everything up for an hour earlier, and when he's an hour late, he'll be on time.

DEAR ABBY: An incident happened about two months ago, and I can't seem to get it out of my mind. In fact, when I think of it, it still repulses me, and I'd like to know if you think I'm wrong to feel this way.

My mom and I were eating lunch during the rush hour at a fairly nice restaurant. A man and a young boy entered together. The man had no arms, just stumps, hanging in full view of all. They sat near us, and ordered their lunch. The man's plate was placed in front of him, and he proceeded to knock it into eating position with his stumps. Then he put his face down into the plate and proceeded to eat just like a dog. I was so nauseated, I couldn't finish my lunch.

I honestly felt sorry for the man, but I also felt that he should not have exposed the people to that kind of scene. Please tell me how you honestly feel about it. It bothers me how much his looks and eating habits repulsed me. Thank you very much.

NO NAME OR PLACE

DEAR NO: You ask: "Am I wrong to feel this way?" Consider this: The armless man had to overcome his self-consciousness and learn how to handle the stares and looks of revulsion from strangers in order to eat in public. (A major victory for him!)

It takes a mature and compassionate person to handle unesthetic situations with grace. I hope you learn to do so because you will need it to deal with life realistically. And if you don't, it will be YOUR problem.

DEAR ABBY: There is this guy who is a year older than me, and a whole lot bigger. The other day he gave me a black eye. I would like to get back at him, but I don't know how to do it.

Have you any ideas?

BLACK EYE

DEAR BLACK EYE: Stay out of his way, or you might end up with a matched pair.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I drove by my favorite furniture store yesterday and got the shock of my life. A large sign covered the entire display window. "CLOSED!!! POOR HEALTH!"

I've known Fred for years. There hasn't been a month that he hasn't gone out of business . . . but never anything so dramatic in March.

You can mark your calendar by Fred's exit from the furniture business. Every April his homemade signs proclaim, "GOING OUT OF BUSINESS! ALL SALES FINAL!" In May, these are torn down and up go his "INVENTORY. MUST SACRIFICE" banners.

In June, he wheels out an old truck and tapes to his window the picture of a man with a red face (who slightly resembles Fred) and a confession alongside it reading, "OOPS! IS MY FACE RED! I'M OVERSTOCKED!"

Four weeks later, with a miraculous recovery from terminal embarrassment, a new sign goes up which reads, "BANKRUPTCY, NO OFFER TOO RIDICULOUS."

Fred milks this one for two months by pasting little notices over it from time to time reading, "EVERYTHING MUST GO," PRICES SLASHED" and "LAST THREE DAYS."

In September, for some strange reason, Fred stages his "BACK TO SCHOOL FURNITURE SALE," followed in October by his "AFTER CHRISTMAS SALE" which he says gets a running start on his competition.

Every November, Fred tacks up his "WE HAD THE FIRE. YOU GET THE BARGAINS" sale. Despite the fact that his "fire" was an incinerator that got a little out of hand, his sign shows smoke rolling out of a building that equals The Director Enthused By Family Practice Study

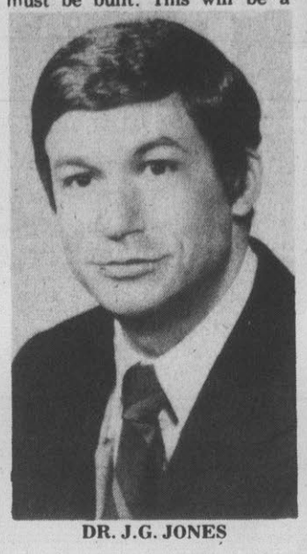
"So far, we've been finding out what resources are available for developing a residency program here," Dr. James G. Jones, director of the family practice program for the Eastern Area Health Education Center, said.

Dr. Jones, who was a family physician in Jacksonville before coming here, began work Feb. 10 and has an office in the Education Building of Pitt Memorial Hospital. It is up to him and his staff to have an application for accreditation of a family parctice residency program ready to submit to the Residency Review Committee of the American Medical Association in May. It is hoped to have an approved program begun by July, 1976, with at least six students in each of the three years as soon as possible. A Family Practice Center also must be built. This will be a place where area people may go to be seen by a family practice resident under the supervision of a family physician. Thus, it will increase the availability of general health care in this area as soon as it is opened.



DR. J.G. JONES

"I'm excited about my job," Dr. Jones said, "because I see it as the best way to get some new doctors into this area in the least amount of time. Asked if the residents would come from the UNC School of Medicine at first, he said, "Most would probably be from UNC, but there could be some from any medical school in the nation."

Three years' residency in family practice is now required, just as it is for any medical specialty.

A Pembroke native, Dr. Jones graduated from Wake Forest University and Bowman Gray School of Medicine. He was a resident at Grady Memorial Hospital in Atlanta and served as a Navy Medical Office at Camp Lejeune before going to Jacksonville. He will be a professor of family medicine at ECU, in addition to his AHEC duties.

Assassination Probe Ordered

DALLAS (AP) — The Justice Department has asked an assistant U.S. attorney to examine quietly any new information on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the Dallas Morning News said in its Thursday editions.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Kenneth Mighell said he was told to forward anything he considers "new evidence" to Washington, but he said he has not sent anything yet.

Among the items Mighell has received from citizens are films of the assassination shot Nov. 22, 1963, by Abraham Zapruder and others, which are scheduled to be shown shortly after midnight Thursday on the American Broadcasting Co.'s "Wide World of Entertainment" program.

The film's narrator, Robert Groden, says his film proves "there is no question that at least one shot came from in front of Kennedy."

Groden claims the film negates the finding of the Warren Commission that Lee Harvey Oswald was the only one shooting at Kennedy's car.

Mighell is skeptical of Groden's claims, however.

"Somebody could take those films and make anything they wanted out of them. And he (Groden) has doctored them with his time framing, (so) how do we know he didn't doctor them up by putting a figure (a second gunman) in the background?" the newspaper quoted Mighell as saying.

Incorporation Can Be Helpful

It has been a number of years since Simpson was an incorporated community, but the Eastern Pitt County area may soon again be an incorporated village.

A Municipal Board of Control public hearing was held Tuesday afternoon on Simpson's petition to establish itself as an incorporated village.

Plans were announced locally some time ago to seek incorporation for Simpson.

The benefits of incorporation are obvious. Municipalities in Pitt County are eligible for state Powell Bill (street improvement) funds, a share of the one percent sales tax from the county and possibly federal revenue sharing.

Of course, the move will also mean that a governing board and mayor must be elected and probably some municipal taxes will be levied.

In return, citizens will get improved streets, better street lighting. They can develop water and sewer systems, provide police and fire protection and refuse collection.

Simpson has been an incorporated community in years gone by, but at that time funds such as Powell Bill and a share of the sales tax were not available.

It would seem that there are adequate advantages to the incorporation of Simpson and we wouldn't be surprised to see the little Pitt community electing its first officials in the near future.

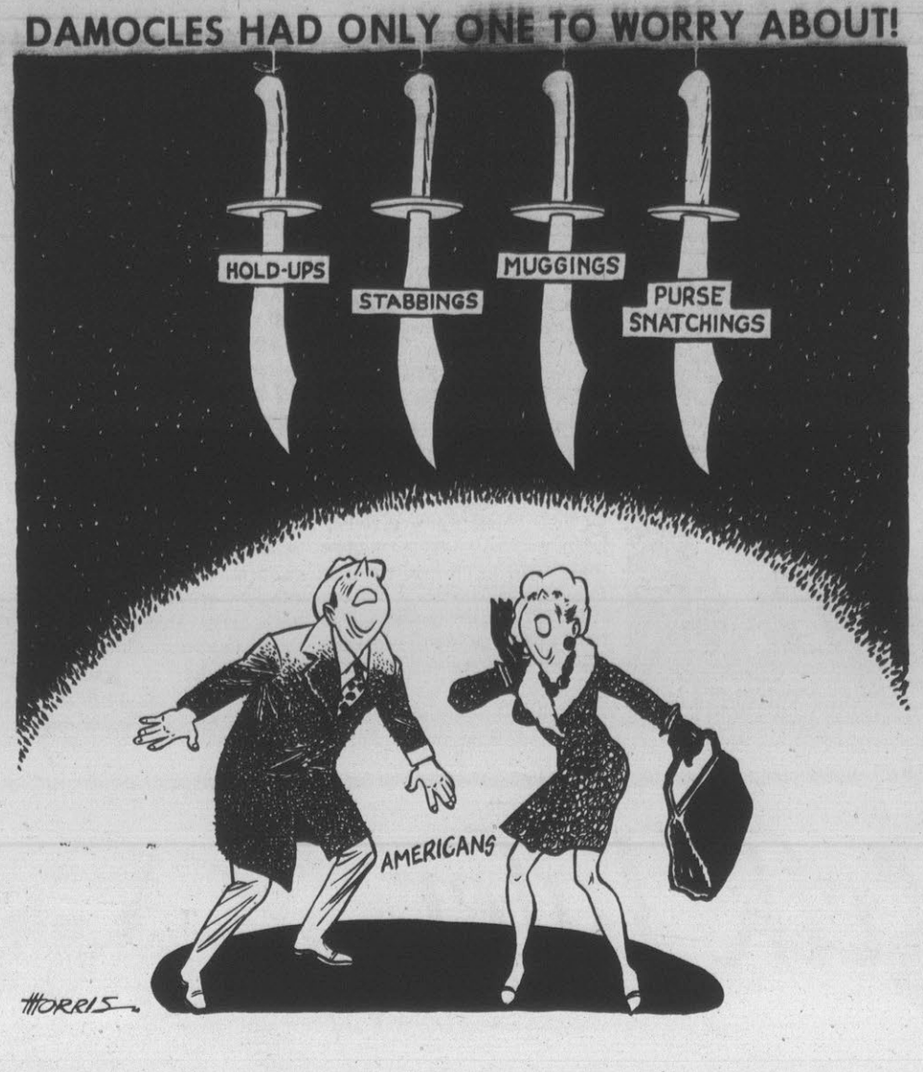
Important Assignment For Pitt Lawmaker

Rep. Sam Bundy of Pitt County has been appointed to the powerful Advisory Budget Commission by House Speaker Jimmy Green.

The Commission prepares the budget which is recommended to the General Assembly and forms the basis for the final budget which the legislators approve.

It also has other powers which it exercises in budgetary matters in the absence of the General Assembly.

It is a very prestigous and important assignment for Rep. Bundy, and we are fortunate that the Pitt and Green representatives has been named to the Advisory Budget Commission.



Voting Rights Ignored

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is threatening legal action throughout the South and in scattered localities elsewhere to combat widespread disregard of the federal Voting Rights Act.

Assistant Atty. Gen. J. Stanley Pottinger told Congress on Wednesday that department lawyers are examining legislation enacted in nine states during the past five years in search of federal violations.

The federal voting rights law prevents six states and parts of 12 others from changing voting districts, polling places and other election rules without the department's prior approval. The department must determine whether the proposal would have the effect of stripping blacks and other minorities of the right to vote.

The department has asked the FBI to search for similar violations in the legislation passed by hundreds of cities and counties, he added.

"Where such changes have been made, we intend to seek ... compliance where necessary," said Pottinger, head of the department's civil rights division. The department could seek a court order requiring compliance with the law.

Although the law has been on the books for 10 years, many state and local officials still ignore it, Pottinger said.

"We have undertaken a number of programs to uncover such changes and to obtain their submission," Pottinger told the House civil rights subcommittee. The panel is conducting hearings on whether the voting rights act should be extended past its Aug. 6 expiration date.

In a review of Alabama statutes enacted in 1971, the department last year uncovered 161 voting changes implemented without department approval, he said.

None Happy With 'Census'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The long overdue census results from last October's statewide Count the Children drive are at last ready for study—but none of the officials involved are happy with the results.

The four-month lag between counting and reporting has been largely due to foulups in the reporting system.

Some of the local reports funneled to Raleigh counted the same child two or three times; some missed children known to have problems; and in 13 cases the figures showed pre-school "persons" handicapped by pregnancies.

The object of the census was to find out something which has not been known before: how many kids with what kinds of special problems—mental, emotional, physical—are there in the state; and what kinds of special programs in public schools and through the Department of Human Resources will be required to help them.

Preliminary study of the census returns show 90,981 children with special needs under age 6 in the state who will likely enter public schools shortly, or otherwise need state services.

Currently tthere are over 116,000 public school students enrolled in special public school programs, while over 45,000 are on waiting lists because programs or specially trained teachers are not available locally.

So difficult was the task of figuring out what the county reports meant that the raw data was turned over to research specialists at the Research Triangle Institute for help in deciphering.

Theodore R. Drain, director of the division for exceptional children at state school headquarters, placed the major problem on lack of time and money to properly carry out the survey.

Originally asking for $250,000 from the General Assembly, the program was trimmed to $100,000, and finally depended on volunteer efforts in the 100 counties, with parents asked through local publicity to come to the schools and register kids with special needs.

Some few local school units declined to participate at all, pleading lack of clerical personnel to handle such a project.

State officials now confess that for an accurate census professional people will have to dig in and do the job: only trained specialists, they say, can accurately spot the problems and reliably fill in the forms to provide solid information.

The children's census was supposed to produce reliable information on numbers of kids now in school or coming along later who will need special kinds of teaching. It was a joint project of the State Department of Public Instruction, and Human Resources.

Some of the volunteers involved in the census debate the argument from state officials that much of the failure of the drive should be placed at the doorsteps of volunteer agencies.

They blame lack of proper planning and timing by state officials who at the last minute called on volunteer groups for help in order to carry off the census.

Late Effort

The 1974 General Assembly authorized the Count the Children drive and set up the money to conduct it. The census was slated for October, but little actual planning and organization was done until mid-summer, critics contend.

Volunteers with the Parents and Professionals for Handicapped Children finally huddled with state officials and hammered out a plan—but both sides considered it too little and too late.

That plan hinged ultimately on volunteer public participation—a situation requiring massive publicity to instruct parents on when, where and how to go about registering.

Results of the census will be used for whatever value the figures have, but the professionals are now looking ahead to a proposal before the General Assembly to provide statewide screening of all pre-kindergarten children by specialists, which they say will provide solid information on the scope of children with special needs in the state.

Deadly Danger In Debt

William E. Simon, Secretary of the Treasury, has the most cheerful executive office in Washington. In winter an open fire blazes away beneath a portrait of Hamilton. In spring and summer, the big windows open onto a fine view of the White House. Bright draperies and colorful furnishings lift the spirit. But these days, sad to say, you will not find a more pessimistic place in town.

"The government is out of control." That is Simon's terse appraisal of the fiscal situation the Treasury confronts. The next few months are critical. If Congress exhibits a sense of restraint, the crisis may be surmounted. But if Congress orders massive new spending programs, the higher deficits "would erode the very foundations of our economy and evenutally lead us to social ruin."

From this possibility of "social ruin" Simon does not exclude the prospect of literal revolution. He foresees a kind of tip point, at which a free society no longer can survive. If present trends continue, government will act as a leech upon the body politic, sucking away its life-sustaining blood. Staggering under unmanageable debt, the economy finally will break down all together. Beyond that point, Simon's prophesies falter: He does not know who will pick up the pieces, or how.

These are grim visions. It should be emphasized that many reputable economists do not accept them. An entire school of thought insists that Simon is too timid, too conservative, too fearful of imaginery disasters. The current newsletter of Americans for Democratic Action, for example, says "the administration would be well advised to stop worrying so much about the size of the deficit." George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, is demanding greater tax rebates and larger social spending.

In my own view, for whatever it may be worth, Simon's warnings carry the bell-like ring of truth. The crucial figures have to do with the impact of federal borrowing upon the total capital market. In the current calendar year, the Treasury will be coming into the market for at least $70 billion in net new financing. Federally sponsored agencies may account for another $10 billion. As Simon recently told the House Ways and Means Committee, "This is an enormous sum."

To that enormous sum must be added the debt requirements of state and local governments, and of the entire private sector. If total government borrowing demands 80 percent of the capital market, only 20 percent remains for everything else. Some sectors, says Simon, will get crowded out—and the first of these may be housing. Yet a recovery of the housing industry is vital.

Simon makes certain assumptions as he looks to the future. He assumes that payments to individuals will grow in real terms at an annual rate of 8.8 percent. He assumes a 4 percent real increase in defense spending. He projects an increase in

Public Forum

To the Editor:

For the past year I have periodically asked my friends, both male and female, "What do you think of the Equal Rights amendment?" Usually I received a prompt answer of "I'm for it", or "I'm against it". Then to my question, "Why?" the answer was always that they felt women should have equal pay for equal work. They had not looked into the other aspects of the amendment and were not aware that the Equal Employment Opportunity Act and other laws already guarantee women that right.

Personally, I don't like being all for or against anything unless I know something about it. The more I study ERA the more frightening it becomes. I feel that I, as a woman, would lose much more than anyone would gain.

Do you know that ERA will:

1. Wipe out a woman's present freedom of choice to take a paying job or to be a fulltime wife and mother supported by her husband as she will be legally responsible to provide 50 percent of the financial support of her family.
2. Wipe out many protective labor laws which benefit women.
3. Will knock out present laws protecting women from sex crimes such as statutory rape and forced prostitution.
4. Eliminate the preferential Social Security benefits women now enjoy.
5. Will make women subject to draft and combat duty.

Senator Ervin says, "If ERA is approved, I believe that the Supreme Court will reach the conclusion that the ERA annuls every existing federal and state law making any distinction between men and women however reasonable, and forever robs the Congress and the legislatures of the 50 states of the Constitutional power to enact any such laws at any time in the future".

ERA is dangerously close to being approved—four more states needed. Let's not let North Carolina be one.

The N.C. SCENE

Planning For Tight Money

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH—The co-chairmen of the General Assembly's joint committee on the economy say state government will have to be very conservative in fiscal matters, at least for the next few months.

The two men also agree on another point—that now isn't the time to raise any taxes in North Carolina.

Senator Billy Mills of Swansboro and Rep. Craig Lawing of Charlotte co-chair the Economy Committee, which has been called one of the most important in the current legislature by Lt. Govenor Jim Hunt and House Speaker Jimmy Green.

On April 1 the committee will present a report on economic conditions to the full General Assembly. That report is expected to to have great influence on the shaping of the state budget.

"We're fishing a very large pond," Senator Mills says of the committee's work. "We're trying to figure out what figures we're going to accept in adopting the budget."

Rep. Lawing says the committee has already been successful in sending out messages to department heads and state agencies that money is tight this year, and departmental budgets will have to be, too.

"We're trying to take a close look at everything," Lawing says. "The task of adopting a budget this year is going to be tough, because there is absolutely no money available to do some of the things all of us would want to do."

Sen. Mills, who has been in the Legislature since 1965, says this is the tightest money year he's seen in state government.

"There is no way, as I see it," Mills says, "to put any new or extra taxes on this time. With the economy the way it is now, the people are looking for tax relief as soon as possible, not new taxes. I think all of us hold an optimistic view for the future, but for right now we've got to look at the current revenue picture and see what we can do."

The Economy Committee, as Rep. Lawing said, is making it clear to all departments that every penny must be justified. And the committee is also recommending ways to cut fat out of the budget, and Lawing and Mills say there is some fat in it.

"I think we'll be wise to be conservative for the next two or three months," Sen. Mills said, "then if the economic picture improves, we can go back and do some of the things we might have to leave out initially."

The Economy Committee is also faced with the fact that unemployment has high levels in North Carolina, and these people out of work are expecting help from their state government. Helping the unemployed will take state funds, and further cut into prospects for expanding other state programs.

"Usually the Legislature hears the Governor's message on the state of the economy and his recommendations for expenditures," Sen. Mills said, "and then folks start fighting for the money that left over. Well, this year, we don't have to worry about the part left over, because it isn't there."

Strength For Today

JESUS CHRIST IS LORD

The teaching with which the early apostles went forth to turn the world upside down was so simple that it could be expressed in four words—Jesus Christ is Lord.

When we plumb our faith at its deepest depth, we find that these four words constitute the most simple and at the same time the most profound declaration of Christian belief.

Jesus Christ is Lord. That is, he is our revelation. He is the coming of all God's supernatural power into life. He is the source of that salvation which comes through the forgiveness of sins. He is the incarnation of those moral standards by which we must live. Right at this present moment as a living and vital personality he is keeping alive between ourselves and God that spiritual relationship without which our lives would be darkness.

Where Christ is, God is; and where God is, there is everything that the soul of man can desire.

Leaders Off In All Directions

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Time after time the nation's leaders have called for unity in the battle against the economic demons, but if anyone is listening, apparently they can't do much about reaching agreement.

Perhaps it signifies the momentous size of the problems that must be resolved. Maybe there's a real need to discuss and comment and argue about issues that are little understood. But things aren't coming to a head.

The country still doesn't know whether it really wants foreigners, notably the Arabs, to buy into the American economy. A Senate bill would empower the President to block such investments. The President doesn't like the idea.

Does the country really know whether it's still in love with automobiles? The car is denounced as a terrible waste of money that could better be used elsewhere. It is a polluter. It is a maker of urban congestion. An energy waster.

But now that the industry is hurting, it seems to have become necessary again. Cars mean jobs. It is patriotic to encourage automobile sales. Federal highway funds are released, and private enterprises offer bonuses to car buyers.

Should the federal government run the railroads? That issue is still as open as it was 20 years ago.

What about energy? Should the country seek to be self-sufficient? Can it become so? Should imported fuel be taxed?

And the so-called central market place that the Securities and Exchange Commission has been seeking for so many years? Will there ever be a central market for stocks? Will stock market officials cooperate in merging their separate identities into a national exchange? It's still unresolved.

For the moment, all these disputes fade into the background. The big dispute now is over the Federal Reserve Board.

Should the Fed, or more precisely its chairman, Arthur F. Burns, retain the independence of decision it now enjoys? Or, in behalf of the national good, should the Fed be made more responsive to its creator, the Congress?

Perhaps no one person has more power over the condition of the economy than Burns, who often is described as a devoted public servant, but a servant who sets his own standards on how the household should be run.

Congressmen, labor leaders, economists and businessmen have been highly critical of what they feel has been an autocratic, misguided monetary policy over the past few years.

They blame Burns for having operated an inflationary policy until late last summer and then a highly deflationary policy thereafter, starving the economy for funds and driving up interest rates.

While criticisms differ, there is a prevailing feeling that Burns should be more responsive to Congress and what Congress determines is the national interest, the national goal, rather than what Burns interprets the need to be. But Burns feels that monetary integrity demands he protect the independence of the Fed.

Like other disputes, this too seems destined to be put to rest unresolved rather than fought to a verdict.

Split-Sentencing Bill Is Given Senate Approval

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Senate has passed and sent to the House a bill to permit judges to use split sentences in criminal cases.

In other legislative activity Wednesday, the Senate gave tentative approval to a measure that would dilute the power of the governor over the state Milk Commission. The bill, which terminates the terms of the present milk commission, was up for final Senate action today.

Strong opposition to the split sentence bill evaporated Wednesday when Sen. Harold Hardison, D—Lenoir, hitherto an opponent, offered an amendment under which the measure would given a two-year trial run. It would terminate in two years unless the General Assembly voted to continue it.

The bill would allow judges in cases where the maximum permissable sentence is not over 10 years, to give defendants up to six months of active prison sentence to be followed by a period on probation.

The idea of split sentence is to give a person who has gotten in trouble a "quick taste" of prison life in the hope that it will make him mend his ways. It was recommended by a legislative study commission.

The milk bill would replace the seven-member milk commission, all of whom are appointed by the governor, with an eight-member commission on which only two would be appointed by the governor.

The lieutenant governor, House speaker and commissioner of agriculture also would appoint two members each.

The Senate approved the bill after a debate during which it defeated 39-7 an amendment by Sen. Lawrence Davis, D—Forsyth. The Davis amendment would have delayed the effective date of the measure until Jan. 1, 1977, when a new governor will be taking office.

Opposing the amendment were two members of the milk study commission, which recommended the reorganization measure, Sens. Bobby L. Barker, D—Wake, and Vernon White, D—Pitt. Barker, chairman of the study group and sponsor of the bill, said it was needed to "remove the milk commission from the political arena...and needed now."

In other legislative action Wednesday, some legislators were "dumbfounded" when the state Department of Natural and Economic Resources proposed a budget for 1975-76 that is $4.1 million less than its current budget.

The department proposed $30.3 million for operations and capital expenditures for 1975-76, compared to $34.4 million for 1974-75.

The budget request was outlined to a Senate appropriations subcommittee by James E. Harrington, secretary of natural and economic resources.

"I'm almost dumbfounded with all thse decreases," said Sen. James Garrison, D-Stanly. "You're the only man that's done that."

New legislative proposals included:

—A bill by Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, to amend the state constitution to require that all judges of state courts be licensed attorneys.

—A bill by Rep. Mark Short, D-Guilford, to provide when youths between the ages of 12 and 14 are charged with rape their capacity to commit rape can be established in court by competent medical testimony. The law now holds that youths under 14 are incapable of committing rape.

—A bill by Sen. Fred Alexander, D-Mecklenburg, to require election registrars to take registrations in the public high schools.

—A bill by Rep. Patricia Hunt, D-Orange, to reduce the franchise tax on electric power companies from 6 to 4 per cent.

Towering Inferno.

Every December, Fred has his annual LIQUIDATION sale with a small illustration of a man sitting under an umbrella in Florida enjoying retirement. This is followed in February by his "I QUIT!" declaration which caught my attention for five years. (Fred later explained he quit smoking.)

That's why I was stunned to see his new sign this March preempting his usual "END OF MY LEASE" sale.

So, it has finally happened. The man who cried wolf so many times was finally closing. As I turned to drive on, I saw Fred unlock his door and go inside. He turned the "Out To Lunch" sign the other way and yelled, "I feel better now that I've eaten."

Somehow, it made sense to a woman who through the years had purchased 14 coffee tables, two dinettes, three sofas, a lamp of a Viking with a light switch in the navel and a hassock shaped like a mushroom . . . all on sale.

Tax Sentence Given Tar Heel Soldier

TRENTON, N.C. (AP) — An Air Force master sergeant accused of failing to report income from a bar and alleged prostitution operation in Bangkok, Thailand, was convicted Wednesday of attempting to evade his 1969 income tax, the Internal Revenue Service says.

M. Sgt. Leslie Atkinson, 49, of Goldsboro, N.C., was given a five-year suspended sentence and fined $10,000 plus court costs by U.S. Dist. Court Judge John D. Larkins. A condition of the probation was that Atkinson, who pleaded no contest to the charges, pay all his 1969 taxes, the IRS said.

An IRS special agent testified that Atkinson failed to produce any books or record of income for 1969, and that through that year he received income from the ownership of a bar and restaurant and a large call girl operation in Bangkok.

The agent said Atkinson understated his taxable income for that year by $34,937.63, and that he owed $11,421.38 in additional taxes for that year.

Atkinson's income was determined by the bank deposit-cash expenditure method, testimony revealed. The IRS agent said that while the defendant's bank deposits totaled only $4,744.09 for 1969, his cash expenditure exceeded $88,000.

In addition to the criminal tax liability, the government contends that Atkinson is liable for civil taxes and penalties of $115,000 for 1968 through 1971.

The department now is reviewing 1970-74 legislation enacted in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Virginia, New York, North Carolina and Arizona.

Pottinger said the current probe already has turned up 158 voting changes passed by the Georgia legislature without department clearance.

Georgia officials were notified of the findings on Feb. 25 "and appropriate letters are now being prepared to the other eight states involved," Pottinger said without elaboration.

In Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Virginia, any voting change affecting the state as a whole or any part of it is subject to department review. The federal law applies only to certain parts of the other three states, so only the legislation affecting voting in those parts would be involved.

Pottinger said there is ample evidence that many proposed changes are "clearly discriminatory."

He cited a proposed district change in Orleans Parish, Louisiana, which turned out to be a "racial gerrymander resulting in an extraordinarily shaped 19-sided figure that narrows at one point to the width of an intersection, contains portions of three present districts, and suggests a design to consolidate in one district as many black residents as possible."

other budget outlays of 2.5 percent. There are highly conservative assumptions. This is where they would take us:

The deficit for fiscal '76 would come to $63.6 billion, the deficit for fiscal '77 to $57.7 billion. The next three years would see deficits averaging $67.3 billion. In a span of just six years, the cumulative federal deficit would amount to $357.6 billion.

Simon's critics are fond of demanding that the secretary keep things in perspective. The ADA newsletter points out that in 1959, under Eisenhower, the nation saw a deficit of $12.9 billion, about 2.7 percent of the Gross National Product. This year's deficit of $35 billion is only 2.4 percent. What's to worry about?

Simon responds by noting that the deficit of 1959 was followed by a surplus in 1960, just as the alarming deficit of 1968 was followed by a surplus in 1969. No such surpluses are now in sight. On the contrary, under the best of circumstances that may be realistically foreseen, we may expect recurring mountainous deficits for years to come. These are seas of red ink. Either we patch up the ship of state, says Simon, or one of these days we sink.

Mayors Claim $412 Million For Jobs Isn't Enough

By The Associated Press

Big city mayors seeking more federal money for summer jobs for young people are pleased with President Ford's announcement that he will ask Congress for additional funds. But they say the $412.7 million Ford is requesting is not enough.

"Ford's figure is too little and will cause problems when we line up people for jobs," said Mayor Kenneth A. Gibson of Newark, N.J., a Democrat. "There won't be enough jobs to go around."

"It isn't as much as we asked for but it's a step in the right direction," said Mayor Lee Alexander of Syracuse, N.Y., also a Democrat and co-chairman of the legislative committee of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

Gibson, Alexander and other members of the committee met in Washington, D.C., earlier this week and urged an additional appropriation of $706 million to provide employment for young people this summer.

Several mayors, including Abraham Beame of New York City, warned that failure to provide jobs could lead to increased crime among the young.

The House Democratic leadership said Tuesday that it will try to push through Congress this month a special $5.9 billion appropriation designed to create up to 2 billion jobs in a variety of areas.

Ford said Wednesday he will seek an extra $2 billion to extend the public service jobs program and provide more employment for young people this summer.

John Gunther, executive director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, said the cities got $385 million for summer jobs last year. He said he welcomed the announcement by the Ford adminstration, but added: "The only problem is they're not acting big enough."

Gunther said a survey by the conference showed the cities need $706 million to provide more than 1.2 million summer jobs.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, president of the conference, said the mayors were pleased with the proposals by Ford and the House Democratic leadership but said they don't "move far enough and fast enough. I ask them to reexamine the whole question in light of the urgent and increased needs for public service jobs and the program of summer jobs for the young."

A spokesman for Jersey City Mayor Paul T. Jordan, a Democrat, said the mayor was "ery disappointed" with Ford's proposal.

"Especially coming from a city with 40 per cent unemployment among youths aged 16 to 22," the spokesman added. "With summer coming and kids getting out of school, this figure will get worse."

St. Paul, Minn., Mayor Lawrence Cohen agreed.

"I find the President underestimating the needs in this area all the time," the Democratic mayor said.

In Savannah, Ga., Mayor John Rousakis said Ford's request "falls short of our estimates of what is needed, but it's an effort and we appreciate that."

Sue Herbst, manpower planing director for Madison, Wis., said she was elated that Ford had backed the summer youth job program.

"We thought we would have only enough money this year for 400 or 500 jobs, but now maybe we can provide jobs for 800 or more," she said.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Kay Obergfel is serving caviar mousse instead of straight caviar. Jeannie Levitt sends spring flowers instead of orchids with thank-you notes. And Nancy Ittleson has canceled her summer suite at the Hotel De Paris in Monte Carlo.

The recession has come to Palm Springs.

True, there are no breadlines beneath the immaculately trimmed palms and no apple sellers outside Bergdorf's or Saks on Canon Drive. But, to hear the residents of this desert spa tell it, things are tight.

For instance, Rosalie Hearst, widow of publisher George Randolph Hearst Sr., recently moved into a house half the size of her old one.

"The other house (of 10,000 square feet) was just too big for one person to rattle around in," she explains.

Nancy Holmes, who has apartments here and in New York, a chateau in Switzerland, a flat in London and an island off Turkey, says she used to lease the residences she wasn't using.

"But now no one wants them," she complains. "They're too expensive and I'm stuck with the upkeep."

Palm Springs caterers say the trend is away from large dinner parties to intimate gatherings of as few as 12.

At a recent dinner party for Greek artist Vassilis Lambrinos, Kay Obergfel, whose husband owns a pharmaceutical firm, told the caterer to skip the New York steak in favor of beef stew.

"Instead of serving caviar with cocktails, I now serve caviar mousse," she adds.

In another corner-cutter, Mrs. Obergfel had a full-length evening coat made, but added badger collar and cuffs that she already had.

"The coat cost me about $450," she says. "Had I bought a new, fur-trimmed evening coat, the cost would have been over $1,000."

If the severity of all this has still failed to touch a responsive chord, consider the story told by Greek yacht broker Constantine Nicoloudis.

He says three Palm Springs couples contacted him in Athens recently about chartering an 80-foot yacht for a summer cruise through the Aegean.

"The cost I quoted them for the yacht was $1,400 a day with a crew of six," he added. "They immediately wanted to know what they would save if the crew were reduced to four and they shared in the work."

OUT OF PRISON— Martha Tranquilli, who spent 7½ months in the federal prison at Terminal Island for being convicted of Tax fraud, sits in her son's Sacramento home and discusses her imprisonment. The 64-year-old grandmother said she received a nine month sentence because she refused to pay taxes to support the Vietnam war. Regarding her imprisonment, Mrs. Tranquilli said, "I learned to crochet, met a lot of wonderful people and had a high school course in crime." (AP Wirephoto)

Ford Holding Press Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will hold a news conference at 7:30 EDT tonight in the auditorium of the Executive Office Building.

The session, his 11th since taking office last August, will be broadcast live on radio and television by ABC, CBS and NBC, network spokesmen said.

In a public appearance Wednesday night, Ford reaffirmed his intention to run for another term in the White House in 1976.

He told an audience of the annual congressional dinner of the Univerity of Michigan Club of Washington that he wants to go back to Michigan, but "I would like to do it in 1981."

Ford, a 1935 graduate of the university, joked about his college days and recalled that he washed dishes to earn money in his sophomore and junior years. "I was the only athlete who ever had a football knee and dishpan hands at the same time," he said.

Williamston Man In Navy Band Concert

Navy Musician First Class Juran F. Greene, a member of the United States Navy Band's "Sea Chanters", participated in a concert celebrating the 50th anniversary of the band's formation on Tuesday, March 4, at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D. C.

JURAN F. GREENE

Highlighting the concert was Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, guest conductor for the evenings festivities.

Petty Officer Greene is the son of Mrs. Betty E. Greene of 109 White Street, Williamston. An accomplished vocalist, Petty Officer Greene has been singing with the Navy Band since September 1972.

In addition to Fiedler, Lt. Comdr. Ned Muffley, Band leader, invited several former Navy Band soloists to perform in the anniversary concert.

ERA Given Deadly Blow

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A rule adopted by the Illinois Senate has dealt a major setback for the Equal Rights Amendment in Illinois, ERA supporters say.

By a 31-26 vote, the Senate approved a new rule Wednesday requiring a three-fifths vote to ratify the proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Approval by a simple majority of the 59-member Senate was needed for adding the rule.

Supporters of the ERA, which bans discrimination on the basis of sex, had hoped Senate President Cecil A. Partee would declare, in the absence of a specific rule, that only a simple majority of members elected would be required.

Consideration of ERA was postponed Tuesday because its chief sponsor, Sen. Esther Saperstein, D-Chicago, said she didn't have the 30 votes necessary for passage under a simple majority.

"There is no way we can get three-fifths," said Sen. Dawn Clark Netsch of Chicago, an ERA proponent. "We barely have a majority. Practically speaking, ERA is dead."

The proposed amendment must win the ratification of 38 states before March 1979 to become a part of the Constitution. Thirty-four states have already ratified it, but two — Tennessee and Nebraska — subsequently approved legislation rescinding ratification. Legality of the rescinding actions will be subject to court rulings.

Indians Rally To Give Bucs The Boot

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

REENVILLE, S.C. — East olina University's Pirates ed up an 11-point lead five utes into the second half, then proceeded to blow it as William & Mary rallied and went on to a 69-66 win over the Bucs, dashing their hopes of a Southern Conference Tournament title last night.

The Pirates, seemingly in complete control of the game with 14:51 left, held a 44-33 lead, but William & Mary refused to wilt, and East Carolina continued to let them take the lead in the tempo of the game and that was one of the deciding factors.

Another was the foul-shooting in the clutch of both teams. In the last 10 minutes of the game, when the going got tough, East Carolina made only two of six at the line, and that could have made the difference. William & Mary made good on eight of 10, all in the final minute of the game when they had taken a one-point lead, and eventually stretched it out to as much as five.

Ron Satterthwaite and John Lowenhaupt made the victory William & Mary's. Satterthwaite constantly drove the lane for short jumpers, hitting 17 points in the game, 12 of them in the climactic 14 minutes of the contest. Lowenhaupt hit 21 (11 of 16 from the floor) and 19 of those came during the same period.

In the other contest, Furman rolled to a 94-81 win over VMI, despite a late Keydet rally that cut the lead from 20 to seven.

Turnovers played a big role in the game. East Carolina had 19, while the Indians had but 12. William & Mary also blocked seven shots, and that took a lot of steam from the Pirates.

Oddly enough, it was the second straight tournament victory for the Indians over the Pirates, since they eliminated the Bucs last season. In both years, East Carolina had won both of the regular season games.

W&M led much of the early part of the game. East Carolina got an 8-7 lead on a jumper by Gregg Ashorn with 16:41 left, but Dannis Vail hit to return the lead to the Indians, who held it until Buzzy Braman hit a three-pointer with 11:26 left for an 18-17 Pirate lead.

The lead changed hands three more times before Ashorn's jumper put the Pirates into a 22-21 advantage. Geter followed that up with a jumper and Ashorn scored off a fast break, then made two free throws for a 28-21 lead with 7:10 to go.

Then, disaster struck, and in retrospect, it would have been the real killing blow. For the rest of the half, the Bucs didn't score. The Indians, fighting back, chipped away at the lead as the Bucs missed shot after shot. Satterthwaite's shot from the lane put the Indians ahead, 29-28 with 2:01 showing, and neither team scored the rest of the way.

East Carolina finally regained the lead on two free throws by Geter at 34-33. The Bucs ran off 10 more points without an Indian answer after than, making it 44-33, and it looked like that would be it.

But instead of continuing to play their game, the Bucs fell back into the Indians slow brand of ball, and that was all William & Mary needed. They ran off 14 points in the next six minutes, while the Bucs got only two, taking a 47-46 lead on Lowenhaupt's turnaround jumper with 3:56 left.

East Carolina regained the lead and moved out to a 54-49 lead with 5:11 left, but still was unable to hold onto the edge. Lowenhaupt hit three in a row, tieing it at 59-59 with 1:52 to play. Donnie Owens hit one at the line for a 60-59 lead with 1:50 left, but Satterthwaite hit from the lane, giving the Indians the lead, 61-60, and they never trailed again.

East Carolina missed on its next shot, and Lowenhaupt picked up two free throws to pad the lead to 63-60. Matt Courage got one and Lowenhaupt another to make it 65-60 with just 20 seconds left. Hunt got a score on a drive and was fouled, giving him a chance to cut it to two, and giving the Bucs a chance at a tie, but his shot missed, and W&M got the rebound and with it the game.

Hunt led the Pirate scoring with 14, while Ashorn and Geter each had 12. Al Edwards picked up 10.

VMI and Furman traded baskets for the first nine minutes of the game. But Craig Lynch, who had been injured when he came down on a ball during warmups, played hurt, put the Paladins ahead for good at 14-12.

After a 16-15 edge, Furman shot through 12 in a row, running their lead out to 28-15. They continued to pull away with the shooting of Clyde Mayes and Lynch to take a 42-28 halftime lead.

In the second half, Furman built it to 69-49 with 8:38 left when John Cottingham hit a jumper. But VMI struggled back with a pressing defense and finally trimmed it to 82-75 with 2:23 left on Loill Bynum's basket. VMI couldn't keep it up, however, and Furman moved into the finals.

Mayes led Furman with 26, while Lynch had 25 and Michael Hall had 12. Bynum had 18, Curt Reppart had 14 and John Drovis had 12, with Ron Carter adding 13 for VMI.

Furman and William & Mary meet tonight at 8 p.m. for the title, and the league's NCAA Tournament berth.

Pirate Thinclads Move Outdoors

A note of optimism surrounds the opening of the East Carolina University outdoor track season this Saturday at Columbia, S. C., when the Pirates face the Gamecocks and Eastern Kentucky.

Coach Bill Carson said, "I feel we have the greatest talent ever assembled here at East Carolina. This season should be very bright for us and we should have a much better chance at winning the Southern Conference. "We will have a number of events that should be ranked in the top 10 or 15 in the country. And we should qualify some people for the nationals."

The focal point of this year's team will be the 440-relay, with Larry Austin, Carter Suggs, Robert Franklin and Maurice Huntley, with Ariah Johnson as the backup. Carson feels this group could be nationally ranked in the top 10. The same group will handle the 880-relay, which again has a shot at national ranking. The Florida Relays should tell a great deal about how strong both events will be.

The most excitement should surround the 100-yard dash. With the names of Suggs and Austin, little need be said. Both should rank in the top 10 in the country in this event.

The 220 run will feature Suggs, Austin, and Franklin with a top 15 spot possible.

Suggs and Franklin will join Huntley and Johnson to run the one-mile relay and try to qualify for the nationals. It will take a time of 3:11 or better, but Carson feels that is very possible.

Another strong event will be the quarter-mile, with Palmer Lisane, Franklin, Johnson and Charlie Moss. As a team, five or six runners could be under the :49 mark.

Ben and Mel Duckenfield, along with Sam Phillips, will run the intermediate hurdles and could make a bid for the conference championship Phillips should be a national qualifier in running the high hurdles.

The group of Charles Avery, Jim Willett, James Green and Scott Chance will make up a young half-mile and two-mile relay unit. Carson feels this could be the best in school history for the two-mile, but it could also be the most competitive event in the conference.

The distance events will hurt East Carolina. Only one runner, Al Kalameja, can be classed as a distance performer and he will run the steeplechase. While distance events will be the big weakness, the sprint events will be the main strength. In conference action, no team should touch the Pirate sprinters.

The weight events will be a strong point. Tom Watson, Ronnie Ragland, Kenny Moore, John Johnson, Mike Carter and Lafon Forbes will handle the shot, hammer, javelin and discuss. Carson feels the group will dominate the conference as they did indoors.

The field events (long jump, triple jump, pole vault) should be strong enough to hold their own in dual meets. Willie Harvey still has a hamstring problem and is a question mark; he's the top long jumper. Art Miller will handle the pole vault.

Overall, the picture is very good for outdoor track. The team could be slow in the early going, especially if the weather is not real warm. But by season's end, East Carolina should be making a name in outdoor tract.

Rose Opening Baseball Season On The Road

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School will open its 1975 baseball season on Friday, traveling to Goldsboro, and despite the loss of a number of starters off last year's team, Coach Ronald Vincent is optimistic.

"We've been looking pretty good so far, although the weather has been hampering us. The pitchers have done a lot of work and it's showing."

Gone from last year's team are six who started at one time or another, but 14 lettermen are back, giving the Rampants a good deal of experience.

Last year, pitching was the main problem of the Rampants, and this year, with all of the veterans back, it could be one of the strong points. "The staff is much more experienced," Vincent said. "We've returned everyone who pitched at all. Our hitting is also somewhat better, despite our losses. That coupled with our experience should help us a lot."

If there are weaknesses on the team, they might be having to replace some of the losses, principally Jerry Griffin behind the plate and Robert Brinkley at first. "Not that we don't have competent people. Experience here is the key," the coach said. Speed, especially in the outfield might be a problem, too.

Five pitchers return, and the way Kelly Heath is looking now could make him the ace of the staff. The right-hander is put on weight and "has a real good attitude," according to Vincent. "He's throwing real hard, really blazing it." Joining him in starting roles will probably be Chris Manning and Wesley Deal, also right-handers. Jimmy Averette will be used in long relief, while Mike Belton, the lone lefthander, will see duty both as a starter and in relief.

"Right now, all of them are throwing well, although, Chris is bothered a little by a sore arm," Vincent said.

Eddie Connolly has moved into the catching position vacated by Griffin. "He's been very pleasing so far, and I think he's going to do a fine job for us." Steve Manning is the main back-up man.

At first, Mike Brewington, who

Pirates Relaxed Letting W & M Come From Behind

GREENVILLE, S.C. — A dejected Dave Patton watched as his East Carolina Pirates dropped an 11-point lead with under 15 minutes to play, then lose to William & Mary in last night's Southern Conference Tournament semifinals.

"They just whipped us," he sadly said. "They played real good defense and took us out of our offense. We had some bad shot selections, but I've got to give all the credit in the world to their defense."

Patton admitted that the Bucs had William & Mary on the ropes and let them get back in the game. "You can't do this," he said. "When we got ahead, we stood around and weren't patient with our offense. We let them come back on us.

He discounted any thoughts that the Bucs were looking ahead to Furman in the finals. "We knew William & Mary was tough after our first two games with them," he said. "We knew that we had to play, but we just didn't play well on offense."

Asked why he didn't doubleteam W&M's Ron Satterthwaite late in the game when he did an outstanding job of scoring one-on-one, Patton said it wouldn't have done any good. "He'd have passed off to (John) Lowenhaupt, and what would we have gained."

Patton was also asked if he hoped the Pirates would receive the Southern's bid to the Commissioners' Tournament in Louisville next week, and said he hoped the Pirates would get it. "I don't like to go out like this, I'd like to have another chance." A meeting was to be held today to decide the league's choice, should Furman win the tournament. (If they lose they would automatically gain the Commissioners' bid.) While selection committee members would not say so outright, it was felt that despite the loss, the Bucs would receive the bid.

"We've had a great year," Patton said, "and I'm proud of our kids. They've done some great things for ECU basketball."

Winning coach Beorge Balanis felt that the difference was that his players didn't quit when they fell back by 11. "We missed a lot of easy shots, or that would have never happened," he said. "But this team is so young that they just won't quit. They want to win."

"I'm so happy to be in the finals. It's been over 10 years since a William & Mary team has gotten this far. We've been looked down on, and we're going to have a good program. We're getting our students behind us (over half of them attend our games) and we're getting some support in town now too."

Balanis also complemented East Carolina. "Patton has done a heck of a job. Anytime you win 19, you've done a good job."

Bill Blair of VMI also had praise for his young team after it came back on Furman to as close as seven after being down 20. "We're young and we played young in the first half. They made us do things we didn't want to do. We also shot badly in the first half (30 per cent) and we didn't hustle on defense. We did a lot better in the second half, and even though we had plenty of chances to fold we didn't."

Winner Joe Williams got a scare just before the game started. Craig Lynch, warming up, went up for a shot and came down on a loose basketball, twisting his ankle. For a while it looked like he might not play, and he didn't start. But he came off the bench to score 25 points, including most of Furman's final points when the Keydets were putting the rush on the Paladins.

"We did a great job. He gave us composure—a steadying influence. I also think Baron Hill did a fine job for filling in for Ronnie Smith (did not play because of ankle injury). And our inside man played well as usual."

Legalized Betting Would Hurt Sports

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Horse racing, in the fashion of the professional sports of football, basketball and baseball and collegiate athletics, doesn't want federal intervention in its activity.

The other sports told the National Gambling Commission two weeks ago they could live with illegal betting as it exists today but legalization of sports wagering would be disastrous. Likewise, horse racing's comments.

For two days, representatives of the horse-racing industry told the commission that they were aware of illegal gambling on their sports but that legalization of interstate off-track betting would prove to be disastrous to their sport.

"The general feeling among the witnesses was that there was no necessity for federal involvement," James Ritchie, commission executive director, said Wednesday at the close of the hearings.

"But the arguments they make against it, clearly indicates that if the industry, through the various states, does not take steps to eliminate what appears to be disturbing economical problems, federal involvement may be necessary."

The Commission on the Review of the National Policy Toward Gambling has been holding hearings on betting in the United States and must make a report to the President and Congress by October 1976.

The 15-member panel, which was down to two commissioners by the end of the day Wednesday after starting with eight, held hearings on lotteries last fall and on sports gambling two weeks ago.

The commission will travel to Boston April 9-10-11 for hearings on organized crime, return to Washington May 6-7 for testimony on off-track betting and then go to Philadelphia May 21-22-23 for more hearings on organized crime and its relationship to gambling.

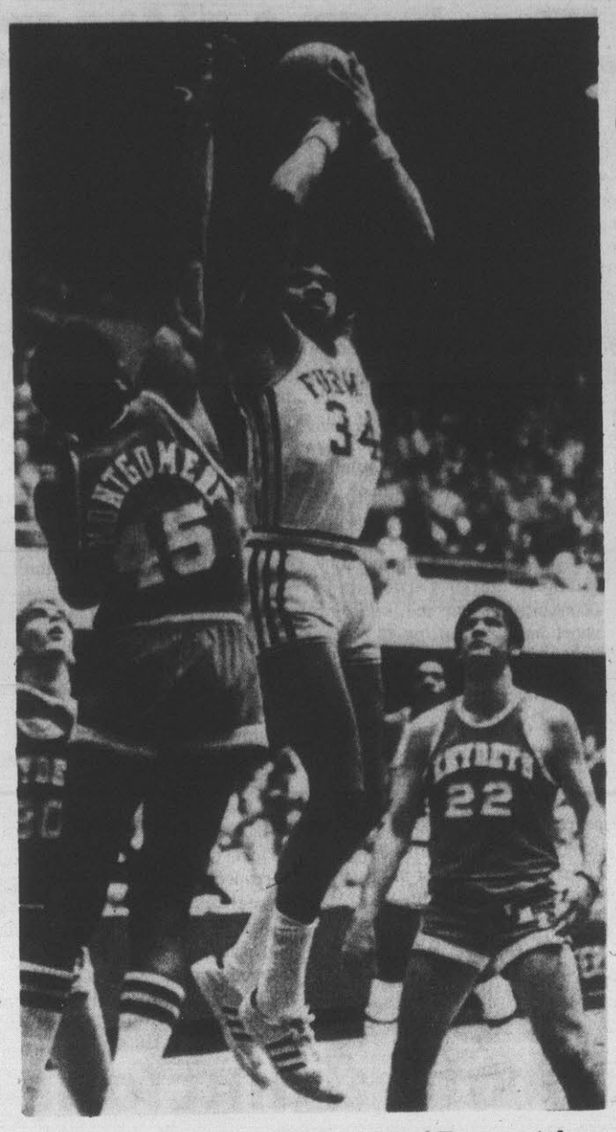
It also plans trips to Detroit, Chicago, Arizona, California, Florida and Nevada.

Ritchie also said the commission plans to hold further hearings on horse racing. Attempts will be made to bring in persons who bet to learn what they think of the sport's integrity and the effect of off-track wagering and tax surcharges, he said.

Thirteen witnesses and their associates testified during the two days of hearings with little difference in their basic arguments — anti-federal intervention, anti-off-track betting and anti-state taxation, or at last further taxation.

Most witnesses opposed federal regulation because, they testified, it would surely lead to a federal tax on horse racing.

Opposition to legalization of off-track betting stems from the belief that it would reduce attendance and thus lessen revenues from concessions and parking and also from the fact that the tracks would receive no proceeds from the OTB parlors.



TAKING AIM—Clyde Mayes (34) of Furman takes a jump shot as Dave Montgomery (35) of VMI tries to block it in last night's game. Looking on are Will Bynum (30) and John Krovic (22) of VMI. The Paladins won the game, 94-81. (AP Wirephoto)

ABC To Get Share Of Monday Games

By BEN THOMAS
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball has been married to the National Broadcasting Co. for years. Now the sport also is going to set up housekeeping with the American Broadcasting Co.—and NBC is going to have to share its loaf.

The Associated Press learned Wednesday that Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has reached an agreement with the American Broadcasting Co. for ABC to televise Monday night baseball games starting in 1976. ABC also will alternate with NBC—starting the same season on the World Series and All-Star Game, just as NBC and the Columbia Broadcasting System do with pro football's Super Bowl.

There's one hitch, but apparently not a major obstacle.

NBC, so industry sources in both New York and Los Angeles say, hasn't reached a new agreement with Kuhn. Some network brass are upset about the baseball commisioner offering half the loaf to ABC.

But NBC, so these sources say, isn't ticked off enough to tell baseball to pack its bags and move out.

The network will accept half the loaf, if it has to, and the only thing holding up a new contract is money.

Kuhn, it was learned, initiated talks with Roone Arledge, president of ABC Sports. The commissioner, so it was said, told Arledge that ABC could have the Monday night games and a share of the World Series and All-Star telecasts for a certain amount of money.

There was no haggling. Arledge accepted the deal.

Just how much money is involved could not be learned, but the knowledgeable guessing among television insiders Wednesday night was "it's got to be at least $10 million a year."

NBC had no comment about the situation Wednesday night. Kuhn wasn't reachable for comment, nor was Arledge.

NBC's present contract with baseball, which ends after this season, gives the network both the Saturday and Monday national telecasts of baseball plus the World Series and All-Star Games. This pact is believed to pay $18 million annually. NBC has telecast the Monday night games since their inception five years ago and always has had the World Series and All-Star Game.

Kuhn's cutting of the loaf calls for NBC to continue to televise its Game of the Week on Saturdays, plus the World Series one year and the All-Star Game the next.

"When you figure that ABC is getting about half of what NBC had, and then throw in inflation, Arledge's deal has got to be for at least $10 million, and probably more," said one television insider.

Kuhn apparently is trying to get the same amount from NBC for the rest of the loaf. If so, that would mean at least a $2 million boost in baseball's income from network television starting in 1976.

Marquette Almost Sure To Get NCAA Invitation

By The Associated Press

Al McGuire and his Marquette Warriors await an almost certain bid today to the National Collegiate Athletic Association's basketball playoffs. For everyone else, it's nervous time.

The nation's fifth-ranked team is an obvious choice for the annual playoffs, but other selections won't be that easy for the NCAA.

The field has been expanded from 25 to 32, 16 of them independents, and for the first time in history, the NCAA will be able to invite conference also rans as at-large teams.

After Marquette gets its invitation, there'll be 15 at-large berths available. Four of them will be filled by winners of the Eastern College Athletic Conference playoffs this week in New York City, Springfield, Mass.; Buffalo, N.Y. and Morgantown, W.Va.

The NCAA will extend invitations to a fistful of teams today, probably leaving room for runnersup from the Atlantic Coast Conference and Southeastern Conference.

The ACC boasts four nationally-ranked teams—No. 2 Maryland; No. 8 North Carolina State; No. 12 North Carolina and No. 14 Clemson. The SEC is blessed with two ranked clubs—No. 6 Kentucky and No. 7 Alabama. It's virtually certain that two teams from each of those leagues will go to the NCAA's post-season party.

The remaining independent berths will be filled by such national powerhouses as No. 13 Creighton, No. 16 Notre Dame and Cincinnati, a team of stature if not ranking.

Other teams under probable consideration include: Memphis State, Stetson, Utah State, Oral Roberts, South Carolina and Southern Illinois.

Conference champions who have already automatically qualified for the NCAA playoffs include: No. 1-ranked Indiana in the Big Ten; Penn in the Ivy League; Louisville in the Missouri Valley; Arizona State in the Western Athletic Conference; Nevada-Las Vegas in the West Coast Athletic Conference and Montana in the Big Sky. San Diego State will represent the Pacific Coast Athletic Conference since champion Long Beach State is on probation and cannot play in post-season competition.

The ACC, Ohio Valley and Southern Conference are holding playoffs this week to determine champions.

Furman and William and Mary will play tonight for the Southern Conference championship and an NCAA berth.

Make Finals

Union Carbide and State Highway moved into tonight's Industrial League tournament finals.

Union Carbide knocked off Wachovia, 55-54, while State Highway stopped Vermont American, 74-68.

In the opener, Vermont American had taken a six-point lead in the first half, 38-32, but the St. Highway outscored them in the second half to win.

Fred Mills led St. Highway with 26, Smith Worthington and Leon Jenkins added 14 each. Moses Jones and Charlie Jenkins led VA with 21 each, Eddie Chance and Joe Crandells had 10 each.

Post Victories

One close win and one shellacking were posted in the South Greenville Basketball League last night as the Burners and the Rockets won over the Nets and the Bullets.

The Burners slipped past the Nets in the opening game. The Burners had led at halftime, 29-26. Mike Adams led the winners with 20 while James Barrett had 11. The Nets were led by Ronnie Taylor with 16 and H. Stevenson had 12.

The Rockets blasted the Bullets, 73-50, in the second game. The Rockets were in front at halftime, 37-29.

David Tyson had 23 for the Nets while Ronnie Jarmon led the Bullets with 25.

The Rockets and the Burners are tied for the league lead with 5-2 records. The Nets are second at 2-4 and the Bullets are 1-5.

Greenville Takes Win

Greenville took a 31-28 basketball victory last night over Washington in a special olympic game.

Washington had taken the first quarter lead but Greenville battled back to tie the game at halftime 13-13.

Greenville outhit Washington 11-7 in the third period to provide the winning margin.

William Overton led Greenville with 15. Glenwood Whitehead led Washington with 10.

missed last spring due to an injury appears to be set for the job, although Joe Godette is pushing him. Griff Garner also could be used here if needed.

Jack Jenkins is down for the second baseman's job with Jay Chenier backing him up.

At shortstop, Vincent opened practice very worried. When not on the mound, Heath will take this position. "But I was afraid that we'd be hurting when he was pitching," Vincent said. "But I've had a pleasant surprise there. Both Wright Hooks and Keith Jones had looked good at the spot, and we fill in well for Heath.

Meanwhile, Jones looks set for third, with Hooks and Lee Shearin as backup.

Greg Sasser will be the chief utility player in the infield.

The outfield appears set with Garner returning to left, Macon Moye moving to center and Ron Hunt back to take over right. David Dixon will be the chief utility man in the outfield.

"We should have good hitting from Garner, Moye, Hunt, Heath and Jones," Vincent said. "All of them can hit for power, too.

"Defensively, we won't be as fast in the outfield, but at home we'll be helped since there is now a permanent fence at Guy Smith. A lot of course will depend on the pitching."

Vincent looks for a tough battle in the Division I races. "Rocky Mount should be the favorite, I guess. And Wilson will be strong as always. Bertie and Northern Nash should also be improved," Vincent said.

"But I expect us to be right in the thick of the race. We'll learn a lot Friday.

Angels Charging For Player Fat

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Just when the price of beef was supposed to be going down, along come the California Angels, charging the inflationary rate of $100 a pound.

That may be good news for the Angels' treasury, but it puts a dent in the economy of catcher Tom Egan and pitcher Andy Hassler.

Dick Williams, manager of the Angels' consumer affairs bureau, announced during the winter that the cost of easy living was going up and any overweight player would be assessed at the rate of $100 for each excess pound.

So when the Angels, who often were called butchers when they finished last in the American League West in 1974, held their first full spring training workout Wednesday, there was Williams testing for excess fat. He found three pounds of it on Egan—$300 worth—and one pound on Hassler—$100.

Then, Williams put the Angels through a 3½-hour drill which stressed fundamentals and conditioning.

"We're gonna make sure you're in shape," he told the players.

Williams might have quite a job if George Scott were an Angel. The Milwaukee Brewers didn't consider Scott an angel when the big first baseman, listed on the roster at 210 pounds, reported at a big, BIG, 230.

Manager Del Crandall socked it to Scott's wallet but the amount of the fine was not disclosed.

The Angels continued their fine start by slapping catcher Ellie Rodriguez an undisclosed amount for being five days late. AWOL pitchers Horacio Pina and Barry Raziano also face fines unless they have a good explanation for being among the missing, Williams said.

In another development, one-time slugger Tony Conigliaro, attempting a comeback with the Boston Red Sox after being out of baseball for 3½ years, was signed to a minor league contract with Pawtucket of the International League.

The contract means little. If the 30-year-old Conigliaro can do the job, he'll be in Boston in 1975. Conigliaro, who led the American League with 32 home runs when only 20 years old, was nearly blinded when hit on the left cheek by a pitch from California's Jack Hamilton Aug. 18, 1967.

In the Cleveland Indians' camp, Manager Frank Robinson and pitcher Gaylord Perry buried the hatchet...again.

"Everything is fine as far as I'm concerned," Perry said. "Sure, I wasn't happy about certain things, but I wasn't trying to cause any trouble for Frank."

On Tuesday, Robinson had urged Perry to work harder and set a better example for the team's younger players.

ACC Tourney Opens Tonight

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)— For N.C. State's defending national basketball champions, the road back to the mountaintop starts tonight.

The eighth-ranked Wolfpack, 20-5 on the year, meets unranked Virginia, 12-12, in the last first round game of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

Despite a record that most teams would be proud to own, this has not been a pleasant season for David Thompson, coach Norm Sloan, and their cohorts.

The five losses is four more than the team suffered in the previous two seasons. They have sparked criticism of Sloan and his players, as well as rumors of dissension. "You'd think we were 5-20 instead of 20-5," Sloan has said.

State faces a formidable task as it seeks to return to last year's eminence. Waiting for the winner of tonight's game is top-seeded Maryland, which got the bye into the semifinals for winning the regular season title.

The winner of that semifinal will face another difficult game in the finals against the survivor of a bracket that includes both North Carolina and Clemson.

Sloan has said that the Wolfpack must put together three days of superb performances to win the tournament and guarantee itself a berth in the NCAA regionals.

His players say they're looking forward to the challenge. "I think we will play our best basketball in the tournament. It won't be a one man or two-man show," said David Thompson.

"I think now that we have played State twice, we realize they are human. We were intimidated by them in our first game and then again somewhat in the second meeting in Charlottesville. Our players won't let that happen again."

At least one tournament will end tonight. State has beaten Virginia eight straight times in the past tournaments. But the Cavaliers have reached the semifinals in the past five consecutive years, more than any other ACC school.

State's first round opponent has an inferior record on paper. But the regular season has left a much better taste in the mouths of Virginia's Cavaliers.

Before the season, they were generally picked for last place in the conference. But under first-year coach Terry Holland, they came through with a 12-12 record and finished fifth in the league with a 4 8 record.

The Cavaliers play a slow, deliberate game, which State has handled successfully twice this season. But Holland is optimistic.

Wins Title

Azalea took a 92-74 decision over Jock's last night to claim the City Basketball League Tournament championship.

Azalea had rolled up a 45-28 lead by intermission.

Lenny Blackley led the winners with 25, Dave Franklin had 17, Edward Johnson had 15 and Robert Carraway had 12.

Terry Tolda had 22 for the Jocks while Charles Whitehurst and Gary James both scored 13, Jack Warner had 12 and Gene Rackley 10.

Warm Spring Held Possibility

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists say there is a 60 per cent chance that the weather will be warmer than usual this spring in most of the country as farmers turn to planting corn, soybeans and other crops for the 1975 harvests.

Cold, wet weather and severe storms in many areas hampered plantings last spring, causing 1974 crop production to drop severely from early expectations. The delay in planting last spring was followed by summer drought in parts of the Midwest, and early frosts last fall cut yields further by killing some corn and soybeans before they had time to mature.

"The spring outlook for the period March through May calls for above-normal temperatures across the eastern two-thirds of the nation except for the northern tier of states," the weather watchers said.

The 1975 outlook was included in a weekly report issued Wednesday by the Agriculture Department in cooperation with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

"Above-normal temperatures will push the early development of wheat and encourage early field work in the Corn Belt, provided moisture does not become a problem," the report said.

The report included a chart illustrating the outlook for warmer weather this spring. It showed there is a 60 per cent chance, based on current indications and historical records, that temperatures will be above normal in March, April and May when spring-planted crops are seeded and when winter wheat planted last fall will do much of its growing.

Although the USDA has not made official estimates of 1975 crop production, officials have said that an all-out planting surge by farmers could produce record harvests of wheat and corn if they have favorable weather. Those commodities are most important as food builders and for export.

Department economists say an abundant 1975 harvest will do much to stimulate the sluggish livestock sector and eventually dampen retail food price increases.

The USDA-NOAA report did not venture beyond March-June in its forecast, but it did discuss generally the importance of weather trends on U.S. crop production and how prospects in other parts of the world also fit in.

"Production around the world has a significant impact on the supply and price situation in the United States," the report said. "As the new crop year gets under way, it is important to watch these aeas as well as weather in the United States."

Hal Holbrook's House Burned

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Hal Holbrook lost his new house in the Pacific Palisades before he had a chance to move into it.

Fire tore through the empty house early Wednesday, causing damage estimated at $100,000.

Holbrook, who now lives on Long Island in New York State, had planned to move into the California house later this month.

The 20 Maya-speaking groups which comprise the Indians of Guatemala, make up half the country's 5.5 million population.

Evaluation Is Defended

RALEIGH (AP)—Dr. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction, has denied allegations that an evaluation of the state's public kindergarten program was manipulated to enhance its image.

The allegations touched off a heated exchange Wednesday night by supporters of Phillips and Dallas Herring, chairman of the state Board of Education. The action came at a board meeting. Phillips said an independent investigation initiated by Herring was "the most serious issue since I've been here."

Phillips said he was appalled at the efforts of some people to discredit him. Herring replied that he was only seeking the truth.

Phillips said earlier, "No report that I have ever dealt with has been tampered with in any form."

The board reached a concensus that a kindergarten assessment report prepared by Phillips' department should be sent to independent experts for evaluation, but it was not resolved whether the statistics included in the report support its conclusion.

The report, released in December, was part of the department's statewide assessment of the educational progress of public school students.

Rhode Island, the nation's smallest state, has 15 colleges and universities.

Four-Legged Actor Draws London Raves

By RONALD THOMSON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Applause rolls over the footlights night after night for the latest recruit to Britain's classical theater, an unknown cockney amateur who has picked up the scent of stardom.

There's even talk of nominating him for the actor of the year award for his stage debut in a role created by William Shakespeare.

Don't bark up the wrong tree. This thespian has four legs, a hangdog expression and uses his paws for effect.

Flicka, a 7-year-old wire-haired fox terrier from a broken London home, has won notices that would not be disdained by two-legged actors such as Laurence Oliver. He plays the part of Crab the Dog in Shakespeare's "Two Gentlemen of Verona."

Reviewers complimented the Young Vic company's production but saved their superlatives for the pooch.

"An inspired animal," trumpeted the London Times, describing Flicka as possessing "an unerring instinct for timing heartless yawns and uncourtly barks."

The Guardian said flatly: "The show is stolen by the dog."

"Glory" was the word chosen for Flicka by the Sunday Telegraph, which said his "virtuoso performance, with its astonishing repertoire of growls, yawns, tail-wagging, meaningful looks, and sudden changes of posture, made him the star of the evening."

Praise on this scale can go to a dog's head, but this canine cockney is unspoiled by success.

Nor is he troubled by misfortune. He grew up with a couple living in a flat near the Young Vic Theater, but two years ago his owners separated and divorced.

Flicka stayed with his mistress in the apartment but liked to go out evenings looking for his former boss in such Waterloo district taverns as The Windmill and The Anchor. That's how he came to find fame.

Alfred Lynch, who acts with Flicka in the play, said their first meeting was in The Windmill. He was having a drink when the door opened and the terrier strolled in.

"He walked across to the bar and looked at the barman," Lynch recalled in an interview. "The barman said 'your boss isn't here, he's probably at The Anchor,' and the dog turned round and walked out. The barman told me that was Flicka looking for his old man."

Jeremy James Taylor, director of "Two Gentlemen," also dropped into The Windmill while mulling over the problems of staging this early Shakespeare comedy.

"When Flicka walked into the pub I had the feeling I'd found the dog I needed," Taylor said. "It turned out to be the most perfect piece of casting.

"He has a most extraordinary mind. He seems to pick up what to do without having to work at it. He knows all his cues and rarely misses a trick."

Off-stage Flicka is as serene as he is lively in front of an audience.

What of Flicka's future?

Well, there aren't too many other Shakespearean parts he can play. But Taylor and London columnist Angus McGill both insist they'll be nominating the mutt as Britain's best actor of 1975.

Lively Premise Has Obstacles

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — If you are to believe the ads, "Love Among the Ruins," a two-hour romantic comedy on ABC tonight, is one of the season's major tube happenings.

It co-stars two major talents, Katherine Hepburn and Laurence Olivier, was written by Emmy award-winner James Costigan and is the first TV drama guided by veteran Hollywood director George Cukor.

It has a lively premise. A wealthy old retired actress, sued by a young former suitor for breach of promise, hires a distinguished lawyer she'd had a fling with 50 years earlier and then forgotten.

And there is much to be said for Olivier's portrayal of the barrister and Miss Hepburn's depiction of the aged actress. He handles his role with relish, while she provides the ham.

Alas, neither quite overcomes Costigan's tendency to write baggy drama in which scenes go on interminably amid cries of, "The next nuance leaves in two minutes."

The result is a static comedy of manners, set in the year 1911 in the city of London. Things commence with Olivier dashing from court to office to greet his new client with lawyerly harrumphs.

There is opening small talk. "May I offer you some sherry?" asks he. "You may, but I shan't drink it," says she. It soon is established that the elderly tort-monger has a severe crush on the lady.

We also learn that this high-spirited, aristocratic damsel gave up her acting career while young to marry a wealthy, middle aged businessman who died 40 years after saying, "I do."

Her young suitor, an impoverished ship's purser, claims in his 50,000 pound suit she promised to marry him and then reneged.

"Do I look like the sort of woman who seduces and destroys young boys as the newspapers imply?" she asks learned counsel as he sighs and sighs at memories of his own youthful days with her.

He finally tells her they met in Toronto years ago. He was a starving law student, she was an actress in a repertory company. They had three beautiful days together, then she moved on and married.

She doesn't remember, of course. Or does she?

The love-struck lawyer devises a unique strategy — destroy his client's reputation to save her — but its execution doesn't save the show.

It's a pity, because Olivier turns in a superbly-acted closing court argument and Miss Hepburn is equally brilliant in a mock (as it turns out) rage which prompts the judge to give her the old heave-ho.

Hepburn and Olivier fanciers no doubt will rave about "Love Among the Ruins." But they'd rave even if the stars did a Yellow Pages reading, which probably would be far livelier than tonight's script.

FCC Chairman Proud Of Protecting Young

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard E. Wiley is completing his first year as chairman of the Federal Communications Commission proudest of what the agency was able to avoid doing.

It was able to get the broadcast industry to move toward protecting children from sex and violence on television by establishing a 7 to 9 p.m. EDT "Family Viewing Period" without any new FCC rules or asking Congress for new laws.

And it was able to get the industry to reduce advertising on children's TV shows without any new rules, only a document called "a policy statement" which made suggestions.

Wiley, 40 and the father of three young children, set the pace, although he was backed by the other commissioners, in prodding broadcast executives in public speeches and in private meetings. He reluctantly concedes this was "jawboning." Some broadcasters privately complained it was "browbeating."

In a speech last week before the Association of National Advertisers in New York, Wiley laid out his philosophy:

"It is my personal view that many of the problems which you have encountered with the federal government in recent years would disappear or at least be greatly diminished by the exercise of vigorous and meaningful self-regulation ... What you do to keep your own house in order will dictate, to a large extent, what we in government need not review."

The only move toward regulation taken by the FCC in this area was to ask Congress last week to clarify that the law which allows the commission to bar "depiction of obscene or indecent material" on radio also applies to television.

When Wiley became chairman of the commission, it was difficult to get FCC decisions on important issues because the agency had so many vacancies

He set out to make the FCC staff more efficient. He delegated authority to bureaus and set a deadline for everything.

He said in an interview he believes he has achieved many of his goals.

The chairman has driven the other commissioners and staff to clear up much of the gigantic backlog that had piled up.

The commission meets at least three days a week — sometimes four or five — to make decisions instead of the traditional one day a week. Wiley concedes there has been some grumbling about the drive but the meetings have been well attended despite other required duties, such as speechmaking.

Despite putting in about 14 to 15 hours a day himself, Wiley said he still has time for his favorite hobby, helping his 13-year-old son Dave's Little League football, basketball and baseball teams. The Wileys also have two daughters, Pam 10, a Little League cheerleader, and Kim 3.

He tries to do as much work as possible at home or on planes during speechmaking trips "so I can make my self available to the staff" of the FCC in the daytime.

South	West	North	East

Opening lead: Ten of ♣.

Have you ever noticed that Dame Fortune usually favors the better players? If you have not, you might consider this hand from a team-of-four match in New York, then determine for yourself just how "unlucky the unsuccessful South player was.

Both teams reached six no trump with the North-South cards in quick time. After South's perfect two no trump opening bid, North simply added his 12 points to his partner's maximum of 24, saw that the grand slam was odds against, and closed the auction with a leap to slam.

Both Wests led the ten of clubs. One declarer won in dummy and tested diamonds to see if the suit would split evenly. Unfortunately, it followed the odds and divided 4-2, and East discarded a heart on the third round. Declarer could count eleven tricks, so he tried the spade finesse for his twelfth trick. No luck. Down one. "Unlucky", moaned South.

The other declarer did things a little differently. He too won the first trick in dummy, but before tackling diamonds he cleared the club suit, discarding a spade from dummy. Now he tried three rounds of diamonds, and discovered that West had the suit stopped. However, he was in no hurry to take the spade finesse. First, he cashed the king and queen of hearts, and then crossed to the ace.

When West discarded a spade on the third heart, the contract suddenly became a sure thing. West's three remaining cards were two spades and a diamond, and declarer didn't much care which two spades West held. He simply played dummy's remaining diamond and discarded a spade from his hand. West won the diamond, but was forced to lead a spade away from the king into declarer's ace-queen tenace.

Wasn't South lucky to make his slam?

Ask Investigation Of Soul City Federal Outlays

RALEIGH (AP)—Two federal agencies allowed Soul City to draw funds without determining whether part of the costs had been paid by the other agency, the (Raleigh) News and Observer reported in this morning's editions.

Soul City is the Warren County, N.C., town being developed by Floyd McKissick, founder and former head of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

One of the agencies that had backed funds for Soul City was the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the other was the Office of Minority Business Enterprise.

Meanwhile, two of North Carolina's congressional delegation requested Wednesday that the General Accounting Office investigate federal spending at Soul City.

The requests were made by Sen. Jesse Helms, a Republican, and Rep. L.H. Fountain, a Democrat whose district includes Soul City. A spokesman said if the GAO investigation turned up any criminal evidence, it would be turned over to the Department of Justice.

Soul City has been the subject of a series of copyrighted articles in the (Raleigh) News and Observer. In the final installment in today's editions, the newspaper said that the two federal agencies each allowed Soul City to draw funds without determining whether part of the costs had been paid by the other agency.

The newspaper said the enterprise office gave the Soul City project a contract worth $274,000 June 25, 1973, to cover fees for attorneys, architects, engineers and other predevelopment expenses. Last year, HUD allowed Soul City to draw funds from more than $1 million in loans to pay predevelopment costs, the News and Observer said.

McKissick was the founder and former head of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

He told the newspaper that he didn't think funds from two federal agencies were used for the same work.

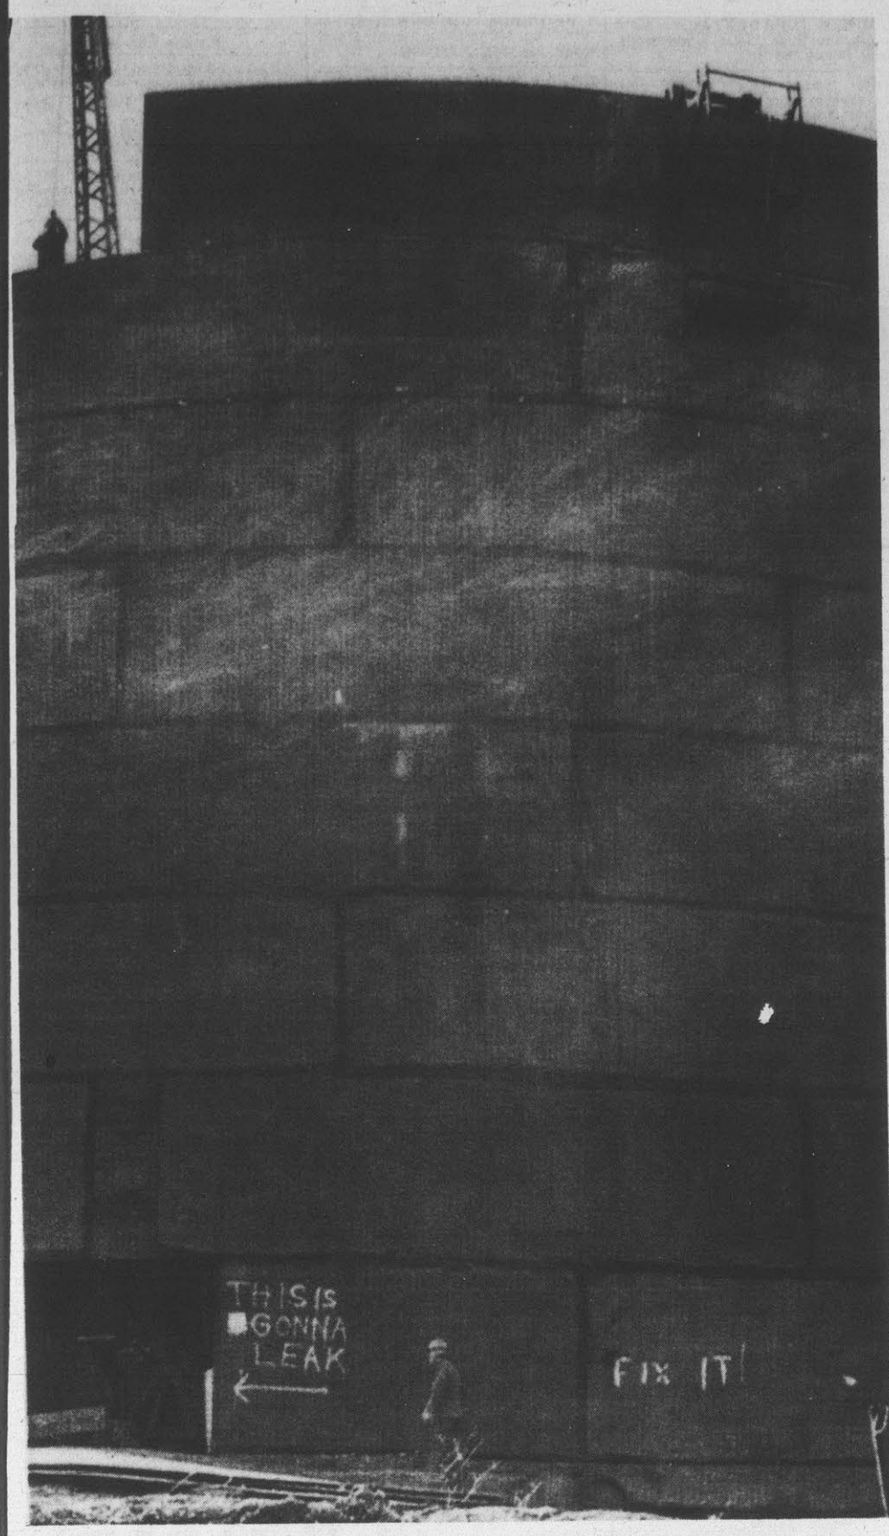
The newspaper quoted a HUD official as saying that "somebody's going to jail" if Soul City's reimbursement for predevelopment funds covered items already paid for through the contract with Office of Minority Business Enterprise.

Also, the News and Observer said HUD valued Soul City's predevelopment documents owned by a partnership member, McKissick S.C. Associates, at $500,000 and allowed Soul City to count the documents as assets.

The newspaper said HUD officials admitted not knowing the identity of the documents, who prepared them, the cost or who paid for them.

Earlier in the series of articles, the News and Observer said $19.5 million in aid has been made available by various federal agencies to McKissick's rural real estate development. Most of the funds came after McKissick switched to the Republican party and supported former President Nixon's reelection in 1972, the newspaper said.

After six years and more than $5 million in government backed loans, grants and contracts, Soul City is still a dream, the News and Observer said. There are no industries and no shops and the few inhabitants live in trailers, the paper reported.



JUST A REMINDER — So workmen don't forget to fill a six-foot "hole" in this 85-foot water storage tank on the campus of Indiana University in Bloomington, a "helper" left a message. The four-million gallon tank was opposed by students living nearby. The hole was left for workmen to get inside. (AP Wirephoto)

Death Sentence For Murderer, Armed Robber

CARTHAGE, N. C. (AP) — A 24-year old man sentenced to death for first degree murder has become the 66th occupant of North Carolina's death row.

A Moore County Superior Court jury deliberated for half an hour Wednesday before convicting Willie Edward McZorn, 24, of Southern Pines of murder and armed robbery.

Judge Robert Gavin sentenced McZorn to die in the state's gas chamber for the Jan. 6 fatal shooting of John McCaskill, a West End storekeeper. A 30-year prison sentence was imposed on the armed robbery conviction.

No date was set for McZorn's execution. However, appeal is automatic under such a sentence.

Joseph Cauthen, 23, also of Southern Pines, was charged with McZorn in the incident and is awaiting trial.

Volunteers Will Take Donations

The Greenville Jaycees, members of the Student Council for Exceptional Children at East Carolina University, and other volunteers will be distributing Special Olympic buttons and accepting donations this weekend.

The volunteers, it was noted, will be in the Pitt Plaza and downtown areas of the city on Friday and Saturday.

The Special Olympics is sponsored nationally by the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation. The program, which began with a single meet in 1968 for 1,000 children, has grown into a program serving over 300,000 special children in thousands of U.S. cities.

The program provides year round athletic training and competition for mentally handicapped individuals. In the Special Olympics, young athletes compete for medals in running, throwing, jumping, swimming and other sports.

This is the second year that Greenville has participated in the program, it was explained. Last year, the Greenville program sent 35 athletes to Raleigh to participate in the state meet.

According to Alice Keene, local coordinator, this year's goal is for 100 persons to participate in the local competition.

Donations received for the buttons will be used to fund the local program and supplement the state program. David Turnage of the Greenville Jaycees explained that contributions are tax deductable and can be sent to Special Olympics, Box 202, Greenville.

Turnage said that Greenville Olympics will host the Eastern Section Basketball Tournament on March 15 at Elm Street Gym. Track and field competition will be held April 11 at the ECU track.

Reenacting A Delivery

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — A young salesman dressed in Colonial costume will ride horseback 500 miles to Philadelphia in a reenactment of the delivery of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence to the Continental Congress.

Local historians claim patriots in Charlotte and Mecklenburg County declared independence from England on May 20, 1775, more than a year before the July 4, 1976, Declaration. The Mecklenburg Declaration is supposed to have been lost later in a fire in the courthouse in Charlotte.

James Jack, a captain in the Mecklenburg Militia, is supposed to have delivered a copy to the Continental Congress. The latter day Capt. Jack will be Jerry Linker, 22, who will set out in June and ride about 25 miles a day, in time to reach Philadelphia for its week-long July 4 extravaganza.

He will ride a golden-brown Arabian stallion named Sharek. A second horse will be available in a trailer, if needed.

The ride will be part of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Bicentennial.

Linker will stay overnight at the home of 4-H Club members along the route. He was chosen Wednesday from among 72 applicants.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, buoyed by favorable inflation news from the government, pulled out of an early tailspin and turned mixed in active trading today.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead 1.95 at 754.77, after being more than four points lower in the opening hour.

Declines maintained a 5 to 4 lead over advances on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analyst Bud Simons of Weeden & Co. said the profit taking mood that has colored trading for the past two sessions apparently spilled into today's early action.

But traders began to respond favorably to news from the government that wholesale prices in February declined 0.8 per cent, the third monthly drop in a row.

The NYSE's composite stock index was off 0.14 at 43.64.

Leading the actives, Southern Co. dropped ⅛ at 10, including a 111,000-share block at that price.

Some chemical issues which had sharp gains in recent weeks gave in to profit taking. Allied Chemical fell 1⅜ at 35½ and Du Pont 1¼ at 100¾.

Oil and oil related issues also gave ground, with Atlantic Richfield off 2 to 76, and Getty Oil, Kerr-McGee, Halliburton and Schlumberger all point-sized losers.

On the American Exchange, the market-value index was off 0.22 at 76.67.

Rockets Interrupt Phnom Penh Airlift

By CARL ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The American airlift to Phnom Penh was delayed for several hours today after rocket fire damaged one of the cargo planes. But this was expected to reduce the day's delivery of ammunition and rice only slightly.

Meanwhile, the Cambodian army sent about 1,000 troops and 70 armored vehicles into a three-prong operation against the insurgents' positions, from which they have been shelling the airport.

The airlift was suspended late Wednesday after shrapnel from a 105mm artillery shell hit a World Airways DC8 as it was unloading rice from Saigon. The plane was slightly damaged and returned to Saigon for repairs.

It was the first airlift plane hit since the operation started.

Although a day-long barrage of more than 50 rockets and artillery rounds hit the airport area Wednesday, there were 44 airlift flights, only two less than the average on Monday and Tuesday.

A U.S. military spokesman in Bangkok said 560 tons of ammunition and military supplies was delivered Wednesday, about the same as Tuesday's delivery, but the rice shipment dropped from 600 tons to about 475.

Only seven rounds from the captured American 105's were fired at the airfield this morning.

Initial reports indicated that the Cambodian troops and armor were encountering only slight resistance in their drive against the Khmer Rouge "rocket belt" in the Kambol area about five miles northwest of the airport. Military sources said the purpose of the operation was to push the insurgents' guns and rocket launchers out of range of the American airlift planes.

A U.S. diplomat in Phnom Penh said that the helicopters and Marines aboard the helicopter carrier Okinawa, which is now cruising off the Cambodian coast, would only be sent into Phnom Penh "at the 11th hour to protect the evacuation of American citizens."

He said the Marines were a "safety valve" and recalled they were put on a similar alert in August 1973 and January 1974 when the situation around the city was gloomy.

In South Vietnam, the Saigon military command said North Vietnamese forces kept up their attacks in the central highlands for the third straight day and cut a second major highway from the coast.

The command said saboteurs blew up a span of a bridge on Highway 21 between Nha Trang, on the coast, and Ban Me Thuot, in the highlands.

Heavy shelling attacks were reported farther north, below Da Nang. The command said North Vietnamese troops fired 600 rounds into goverment positions, killing one soldier and wounding 10. The government claimed its forces killed 46 North Vietnamese in a clash south of Da Nang and said only one government man was wounded.

False Alarms Plus 2 Fires

Greenville firefighters were plagued last night by two suspicious fires and three false alarms in just over two hours.

Fire officers reported police investigators were called to assist in investigation of fires at a storage warehouse in the 100 block of South Pitt St. and a tobacco barn fire near the Third and Hickory Street intersection.

Firemen were called to the South Pitt Street blaze at 8:15 p.m. Officers said a fire of "suspicious origin" had been started under the building—a storage facility for Bostic-Sugg Furniture Co.

No damage resulted to the wood-frame building, officers reported.

Two false alarms—one at 9:30 p.m. from a box at the intersection of Brookgreen and Longmeadow Roads and one at 9:51 from an alarm box at the Library—Willow Street intersection—were followed by a 10:20 tobacco barn fire.

The fire in the wood-frame barn, officers said, originated on the inside under what they termed "suspicious" circumstances.

The barn fire was followed by the third false alarm—from an alarm box at the intersection of Church and Allen Streets at 10:40 p.m.

Investigation of the incidents is under way.

Hospital Care Bill $33,000

RALEIGH (AP)—A Wilson County woman has been billed $33,000 for her brother's upkeep as a patient in Cherry Hospital at Goldsboro for the past 10 years.

Harold Goss, reimbursement officer for the hospital, said the bill was sent to Bettie Hogge of Lucama because she was appointed legal guardian for her brother, Stephen Parker.

Goss said a paper filed by Mrs. Hogge with the clerk of court in Wilson county listed her brother's cash assets at $23,777.71.

"What we're trying to do is to get her into my office so we can compromise for part of the assets she has against the $33,000 bill. She hasn't contacted us at all."

Parker was accused of attacking his brother-in law 40 years ago. He was subsequently sentenced to prison for five years after the victim died. Parker was 22 then. He is 62 now.

Goss said "somewhere along the line he was adjudged incompetent by the court and sent to a state hospital."

Parker was at Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh for 26 years before being transferred to Cherry Hospital.

Goss said the $33,000 bill does not cover the years at Dorothea Dix Hospital.

David Flaherty, secretary of human resources and mental health, said the reimbursement program "has never hurt anyone" in that debts usually are settled for a fraction of the original bill. "We try to settle all of them happily."

UF Meeting

The Pitt County United Fund will hold its annual business luncheon on March 14 at 12:30 p.m. at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

The nomination and election of new officers and recognition of past leadership and service will highlight the program, according to Ed. N. Warren, president.

The Pitt United Fund has its most successful year in 1974-75, surpassing the overall goal by some $10,561.71 in reaching a record campaign total of $207,204.71.

Hugh Bazemore headed the recent drive as campaign chairman.

N. Pitt Student Appointed To Be Pagette

Nancy Elizabeth Fuchs, sophomore at North Pitt High School, has been appointed by Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt to serve as a pagette in the North Carolina General Assembly March 10-14. She is sponsored by Senator Vernon White.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Fuchs of Stokes, Miss Fuch served as a member of the freshman and sophomore councils, the Future Homemakers of America, the GWA and the Teen Dem Club.

She is a reporter for the sophomore class. She is a piano student and has been a member of the cast in the Summer Theatre at East Carolina University.

She is a member of the Stokes United Methodist Church.

To Examine Motorboats

The U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary (Greenville Flotilla 16-5), will conduct courtesy motorboat examinations at Elmhurst School Saturday and Sunday, from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m.

Spokesmen for the Coast Guard Auxiliary said boat owners may have their trailerable boats checked to see if they meet the principles of safety, in addition to all legal requirements for boats.

The Greenville Flotilla has three qualified vessel examination officers who are authorized by the U.S. Coast Guard to conduct courtesy examinations. The checks are free, and there is no obligation on the part of the boat owners. If deficiencies are found, no report will be made to any law enforcement agency.

The vessel examiner will advise the owner of the craft if deficiencies do exist so they may be corrected.

The Auxiliary's official courtesy motorboat examination decal, "The Seal of Safety" is awarded to boats which pass the examination.

Environmentalists Hosted At Session

North Carolina coastal areas of environmental concern were discussed by Dr. Arthur Cooper of the N.C. Dept. of Natural and Economic Resources at a conference on coastal development at East Carolina University Wednesday.

Dr. Cooper was one of 14 coastal and marine experts addressing the gathering of about 75 elected local officials, municipal and county planners, members of the Coastal Zone Council, scientists, state environmentalists, and interested lay persons.

The conference was sponsored by the UNC Sea Grant Advisory Services.

Among the coastal areas cited and detailed in Dr. Cooper's discussion were coastal wetlands, estuarine waters, renewable resource areas, fragile or historic areas, public trust waters, natural hazard areas, and areas for key facilities, such as possible energy-generating sites of national significance.

The Coastal Resources Commission is empowered by state statute to designate any and all of these areas as "of environmental concern," thereby protecting them from destruction by commercial development or natural disasters, he said.

Other speakers focused on the possible critical areas in depth. They included: Dr. David Phelps of ECU.

Arrested In Theft Probe

Two more arrests have been made by the Pitt Sheriff's Department following investigation of recent gun thefts from area residence.

Alvin Ray Daniels, 20, of Rt. 2, Box 192, Greenville, and Steve Bazemore, 20 of 209 Mumford Road, were arrested by Pitt deputies and charged with the Sunday night breaking, entering and larceny at the home of Woodrow Heath on Port Terminal Road.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that officers recovered four shotguns and one rifle, allegedly stolen from the Heath home while the owner was away at church.
