

Big Da Nang Airlift Of Refugees Begun

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The United States today began a massive refugee airlift from threatened Da Nang and also evacuated some American officials from the consulate shortly after Viet Cong rockets smashed into the air base. U.S. officials said a World Airways Boeing 727 made two runs between Da Nang and Saigon to start the evacuation of 350,000 to 500,000 refugees from the northern city. At last count there were more than 300 Americans in Da Nang, 380 miles northeast of Saigon. It was expected that a second plane, a Flying Tiger Boeing 747 jumbo jet, would be put into service Thursday. Officials said it can carry between 1,200 and 1,600 persons. The bulk of refugees will be flown to Cam Ranh Bay, 250 miles south of Da Nang.

The Saigon command said the Viet Cong blasted the area around the large Da Nang air base with 14 122mm rockets in a pre-dawn attack that killed six civilians and wounded 36. It was the first rocket attack in the area since South Vietnamese provinces began falling to the Communists three weeks ago.

In other major Indochina developments: —President Nguyen Van Thieu, his political and military position weakened by the loss of more than half of South Vietnam's territory to the Communists, pledged in a nationwide radio address to mount a counteroffensive. He vowed to stay in office. —Former Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky, one of Thieu's bitterest rivals and harshest critics, emerged from political retirement to lead a meeting of military officers and politicians opposed to Thieu.

Race Recess On Tax Bill

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — With Congress ready to recess for Easter, Senate and House negotiators drafting a compromise tax-cut bill are at odds over a tax credit for home buyers and the oil depletion allowance.

Members of the Senate-House conference committee were to try again today in a closed-door meeting to hammer out a compromise that could win quick approval of both chambers and be sent to President Ford.

The conferees agreed Tuesday that the final bill will include a general 10 per cent rebate of last year's taxes up to a $200 maximum. There would be a minimum $100 rebate, except that anybody who paid under $100 last year would just get all of it back.

Under pressure from Ford to reduce the tax cut size, the conferees also began to trim the $34.4 billion tax bill voted by the Senate.

Ford said the final figure must be held down, lest Congress make the bill "so bad it's easy to veto." If Ford vetoes the bill, he might call Congress into special session next week, forcing the lawmakers to give up their own recess. The White House indicated Ford might skip his planned Easter vacation in California to stay in Washington until Congress finishes work on a tax cut.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the conference committee, said the panel would "hopefully finish in time so that Congress can act" on the bill later in the day and then begin a 10-day Easter recess.

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., another conferee, was skeptical. "We're stuck on oil and housing," he said.

The Senate conferees are reportedly holding out for a tax break for house buyers that allows a buyer to subtract 5 per cent of the cost of a new house, up to a maximum of $2,000, from his 1975 tax bill.

The oil depletion allowance, which now allows oil and gas producers to avoid taxation on 22 per cent of their income, also is a point of disagreement. House conferees want it eventually ended for all oil and gas producers; the Senate wants it retained for small producers.

In areas of agreement, the conferees:

—Accepted a $1.5 billion program of special tax cuts for poor working families.

—Settled on a $3.35-billion tax cut for businesses as an incentive to buy machinery and equipment and thus promote expansion and creation of more jobs. They also agreed on a $1.4 billion tax cut aimed chiefly at small businesses.

—Chopped $6.6 billion from the $34.3 billion Senate's package of tax cuts and increased spending.

Also accepted by the conferees was a $200 million Senate provision authorizing an extra 13 weeks of federal unemployment compensation benefits for jobless persons whose one-year of benefits has been exhausted.

ERA Hopes Dealt Blow In N.C. House Committee

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—A North Carolina House committee today rejected by 10-6 a bill calling for a statewide vote on whether the people favor an equal rights amendment for women.

Before voting it down, the House Constitutional Amendments Committee rejected a substitute motion 10-6 that the measure be sent to the floor of the House "without prejudice." This meant the committee was taking no stand for or against the proposal.

Rep. H.M. Michaux, D-Durham, made the motion to give the bill an unfavorable report. The substitute motion to send it to the floor was offered by Rep. John Ed Davenport, D-Nash.

Rep. W.S. Harris Jr., D-Alamance, told the committee the members would be "ducking their responsibility and chickening out" if they voted for the bill. He argued along with several others that it was an issue to be decided by the lawmakers instead of the people.

Veteran Rep. Sam Bundy, D-Pitt, said he resented Harris' statement that "if I vote for this bill I would be chickening out...If you put it to a vote of the people it will be defeated."

Freshman Rep. Ralph Prestwood, D-Caldwell, sponsored the bill calling for a vote of the people on the issue in the 1976 general election.

Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, said, "As I see this proposal it is a cop out. We should get on with the issue."

Rep. Fred S. Hutchins Jr., R-Forsyth, was one of those supporting Prestwood's bill. He termed the ERA "one of the most important issues to come to us in our life time."

Earlier, the committee chairman, Rep. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson, set up two subcommittees to study the effects of legislation calling for the ratification of an equal rights amendment for women.

One committee will determine the impact of ERA on North Carolina statutes. The other will look at its effects on equal employment practices in state government.

Rep. Huskins was appointed chairman of the panel to study the effects on state government. Others named on it were Reps. Davenport; Carl Stewart, D-Gaston; Hector Ray, D-Cumberland, and Wade Smith, D-Wake.

The other subcommittee will be headed by Rep. Bob Jones, D-Rutherford. The other four members are Reps. Michaux, Hutchins, Bundy and Judson D. DeRamus, D-Forsyth.

Area Legislators Opine Med School Funding Is 'Safe' Despite Cutbacks

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Legislators representing Pitt County in the General Assembly predicted today that the East Carolina University School of Medicine will be funded, even if the proposed state budget has to be cut to conform with expected revenues.

The legislators comments were made in light of an announcement by Gov. James E. Holshouser yesterday that he could no longer support repeal of the state sales tax on food.

Holshouser, who had supported a move to have the food tax abolished — effective June 30, 1976 — said the decline in employment and production is likely to have an "adverse effect on the state revenue picture." Based on this, the Governor noted "I do not believe that the General Assembly at this time can give serious consideration to the repeal of the food tax."

He noted, too, that it would be necessary to "cut more than $50 million out" of the proposed state budget in order to provide a balanced budget, based on projected revenues.

Rep. Sam Bundy said this morning, "I never understood his stand (on the food tax issue) to start with. He wanted it repealed effective June 30, 1976, which meant he wanted to have his cake and eat it too.

"I just think he's seen the handwriting on the wall. He saw the General Assembly was not going to follow his recommendations... and in light of declining revenues, I think he just decided to use the better part of valor and withdraw his push for it (a food tax repeal). I'm quite sure he saw it had no chance of passing this General Assembly."

Asked how a reduction in the proposed budget might affect the ECU medical school appropriation, Bundy said "Frankly, I don't know, but I'm certainly hoping it will not affect the medical school funds."

"With $15 million already set aside... the General Assembly approved it, the Board of Governors approved it... I'm very hopeful we are going to be able to keep it in the budget."

According to Sen. Vernon White, "At this point, I would say funds for the establishment of the medical school will be forthcoming. I've not seen any change in the attitude of members of the General Assembly in regard to that."

On the food-tax question, White said "I don't see how the General Assembly can find itself in a position to remove the sales tax," noting that the legislature has been "placed in a position of having to find even more money... in order to come away with a balanced budget."

Rep. Horton Roundtree said of the decline in revenue, "of course this is the thing we've been worried about all along," but emphasized, "I think the medical school will be funded."

Roundtree noted the General Assembly "might be able to cut enough across-the-board to hold the (medical school) budget where it is. We are talking in terms of a five percent cut in personnel, printing, travel, consultants fees... particularly on large agencies. Just how much this will save, I don't know."

He explained, "We really can't get a reading on this thing until the first of May."

As far as Gov. Holshouser "coming off the food tax", Roundtree explained, "I think the pressure from the people got to him... and the budget itself."

CHANGE OF ADDRESS NOT NOTED

My parents have had to borrow money to pay their rent and utilities for the past two months, because their disability and Social Security checks have not come. I've contacted the Social Security office several times and they tell me they're working on it, but in the meantime my parents are worried to death about getting behind in their drug and other bills. C.R.

Hotline called Social Security for you. As usual, they told us they could give us no information, but asked that you contact them. It was found then that a change of address for your parents, which you say you told the office about in person had not been noted, and that January and February checks had been sent back to Birmingham, Ala., address unknown. A call to Birmingham from a Social Security Office worker straightened out the matter. The checks were reissued and you called a few days later to say your parents have received them.

Water Hazard?

Pitt County Environmental Health Director Willie Pate emphasized today that everyone having private water supplies in flooded areas should have their water tested before it's used for human consumption.

He said Environmental Health Division staff members will be glad to go out and test water and help with disinfecting it if the persons involved will call them at 752-4141.

Anyone living in a flooded area not getting "city water" probably has a pollution problem, he said. Water from septic tanks and privies has no doubt gotten into the drinking water supply, and of course, river water is quite polluted, too.

Until tested to prove the germs in the water have been removed, all water should be boiled or taken from the hot water supply of the home. Water heated to 140 degrees over an extended period, as is true in most water heaters, is safe, he said.

Intestinal borne diseases like diarrhea, dysentery, and typhoid may be contracted from consuming such polluted water, Pate said.

Tar Dropping

The Tar River level was reported at 17.6 feet in the Greenville area this morning, according to the National Weather Service in Raleigh.

Weather service officials reported the river level has been dropping since the Tar reached its crest of 18.9 feet Sunday. The river level was reported at 18.1 feet Tuesday at 10:30 a.m.

The Tar River has not been this high since it reached a height of 22.2 feet on Aug. 22, 1940. Many of the streets in Greenville were closed then because of the high water and possible washout of some streets.

The Greenville Utilities Commission weather station reported the high temperature for Tuesday was 70 degrees while the low was reported as 55 degrees. The temperature at 8 a.m. was 44 degrees and has risen to 48 degrees by 11 a.m.

Senate Appropriations Committee, said the shortage may rule out a 5 per cent pay raise for teachers and state employees which Holshouser and the Advisory Budget Commission had recommended.

"I'd rather rule out a 5 per cent raise than cut off jobs now," Scott said.

Repeal of the food tab had been a major Holshouser legislative goal, but Democratic leaders had opposed it from the first. They said it was unwise because of the condition of the economy.

Holshouser told a news conference that new revenue estimates made last week "make it clear that we can expect a serious reduction in our estimates of revenue for the next biennium-well in excess of $100 million and that we face some hard choices."

The figures, Holshouser said, show that the General Assembly can not "at this time give serious consideration to the repeal of the food tax."

"I urge the legislature to begin now to trim the budget in contemplation of reduced revenue estimates" expected in 40 to 50 days, he said.

The governor based his changed stance on February revenue collection figures which showed an increase of about 8 per cent over the February, 1974, figures for the general fund. The governor had expected an increase of more than 10 per cent when he made his budget recommendations last January.

Democratic leaders chided the governor for waiting so long to change his position. "It took him a long time to find it out," Scott commented, and Green said that as early as December he had expected state tax collections to be below estimates.

He said he was not surprised at the governor changing his position. "My astonishment was back in January when he said he was going to urge repeal of the sales tax on food."

"We've been working on this assumption for months," was the reaction of Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt to Holshouser's decision that now is not the time to repeal the food tax.

"He's just saying that we've been right all along," said Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Rep. Liston Ramsey, D-

Madison, chairman of the House Finance Committee said Holshouser's statement was "pretty responsible."

Rep. Jimmy Love, D-Lee, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the governor's statement "resolves the question and debate on whether there is going to be a $100 million shortage... and we can start looking for places to cut."

The governor did not completely rule out repeal of the food tax eventually. He said if revenue prospects improved greatly in the coming year, he would support repeal by the legislature in 1976.

Holshouser Drops Support Of Food Tax Repeal

It Looks Better To Hit Niece

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: With reference to the reason an aunt cannot marry her nephew, but an uncle can marry his niece: It originated in Jewish law.

The principle of consanguinity (close blood relationships) forbids sexual relationships between very near kin. An aunt would be in close blood ties with one's father, therefore a sex relationship would be forbidden according to this logic.

On the other hand, a niece is a step down in the blood lines, and therefore not as close—therefore sex with her would be permitted. This is why a man may not marry his aunt, but he may marry his niece!

Incidentally, while Judaism is a patriarchal society, all blood lines go through the mother. For example, in an intermarriage, the religion of the offspring is determined by the religion of the mother. Therefore, in all blood line relationships, the closeness of the woman determines the decisions.

When I was at the Seminary we used to remember the law through the following joke. It is well-known that often couples quarrel and a man may be moved to strike his wife. If he hit his niece, it is not so bad. But, how would it look if he hit his aunt?

RABBI BERNARD S. RASKUS

DEAR RABBI: Thank you for the explanation. Frankly, I don't think it would "look" any better for a man to hit his niece than it would to hit his aunt. And with Women's Lib gaining muscle, a man who hits any female had better look out for himself.

DEAR ABBY: I have waited for too long to write this letter, but I am finally going to get this off my chest.

I am sick of listening to people complain about plumber's rates. No other professional earns his money working in such damp, unsanitary and uncomfortable conditions. A plumber has no set hours. He works from early morning until late at night, and when he finally does get home, his clothes are black, his boots are soaking wet, and he smells like a sewer.

A plumber is called upon to unstop stopped up toilets, dirty, greasy sinks, and he has to crawl under houses where snakes, spiders and rodents lurk.

Why does everyone think that a plumber is overpaid?
PLUMBER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: After reading your letter, I'm going to give my plumber a bonus next time I see him.

DEAR ABBY: The letter in your column about the woman who prepared so well for her husband's death that she ended up with a lover while her husband continued to live, reminded me of something that happened over 50 years ago. I knew the people involved.

A woman we knew well became very sick. The doctor said she couldn't possibly live, so her husband gave away all her clothes.

Well, she recovered, bought all new clothes and outlived her husband by 20 years.

TRUE STORY

DEAR STORY: There's a common moral in both those stories: "If you don't want it to rain—always carry an umbrella."

DEAR ABBY: What's a nice girl like you doing writing a column when you can belt out a song like you did on Dinah Shore's program?

JUDY S. IN BEVERLY HILLS

DEAR JUDY: Just lucky, I guess.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

VETS CATCH UP

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Veterans Administration says more than half a million Vietnam veterans who dropped out of high school to enter military service have used the GI bill for "catch-up" training. The VA said about 580,000 persons with fewer than four years of high school have used some form of the GI bill since 1966. Of these, 202,000 have qualified for "free entitlement" by taking high-school-level refresher or deficiency courses necessary to qualify them for higher education. The remainder have taken some form of vocational training.

Legislators Meet People At Coffee Hour

State Senator Vernon White and State Representative Horton Rountree met local supporters of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment at an informal coffee hour Saturday morning given, by Mrs. J. B. Spilman at her home.

Approximately 100 persons, attended the "Equal Rights coffee," which was co-sponsored by the Pitt County Women's Political Caucus.

The gathering included Henry Oglesby, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Party and other political leaders, business, civic and professional people; teachers; ministers and representatives of the local broadcast media. Upon entering, each guest was given an Equal Rights Amendment lapel button.

Assisting Mrs. Spilman with serving refreshments were Mrs. S. M. Crisp, Dr. D. D. Gross, Mrs. Virginia Spencer and Charles Cain. Guests were greeted by Judith Donnalley, chairperson of the Pitt County Women's Political Caucus, and Tennala Gross, coordinator of the regional Equal Rights Amendment Coalition.

The Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution was passed by Congress in 1972 and has since been ratified by 34 states. Four more states must vote to ratify the ERA before it can become law.

North Carolina's General Assembly is considering ERA ratification this session. At present the amendment is under study by the legislature's Constitutional Amendments Committee, chaired by Rep. A. Hartwell Campbell of Wilson.

Guests Honored By Sorority

Mrs. Jeannette Clapp was hostess for a formal social of Alpha Nu sorority honoring special guests Thursday evening.

Mrs. Ann Byrd greeted guests at the door.

Mrs. Cotten Smith poured tea. The table was covered with an eyelet lace linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink camellias.

Guests of Alpha Nu included Mrs. J. B. Spilman, Mrs. Glenda Carawan, Mrs. Leila Heath, Mrs. Patsy James, Mrs. Joann Leith, Mrs. Betsy Reid, Mrs. Althea Weathington, and Mrs. Barbara Wilson.

Disaster On One More Front

Disaster appears to be shaping up for American diplomacy on almost every front these days. The latest bad news is Sec. of State Henry Kissinger's announced failure to achieve a permanent peace settlement in the Middle East. The secretary of state had been shuttling back and forth between Egypt and Israel in an effort to arrange an agreement. The peace talks were said to have collapsed over the inability to obtain an agreement on how far Israel would withdraw from captured Arab territories. So now things look bad, indeed, in the Middle East. It was a personal failure for Henry Kissinger and a national failure for the United States. The collapse of the talks was followed by statements from President Ford expressing regret and pledging continued efforts toward obtaining a permanent peace. A spokesman said Ford, "reaffirms the commitment of the United States to continue its efforts to assist the parties in reaching a just and lasting peace." There is little to be hopeful about right at this point. The collapse of the talks represents a major failure for Kissinger diplomacy and opens the way for another Middle East War. Then the United States will have to decide whether or not to fully support Israel with military supplies and risk another oil boycott by the Arab countries. The most hopeful thing seems to be that Egypt is in no hurry to go to war, since its foe may not be able to get stronger militarily. There is plenty of time for Egypt to play a waiting game. Maybe through some miracle the talks could be revived, if not through Kissinger, then in some other forum. It is possible the problems still may be settled without war. At this point, though, the prospects for peaceful settlement of the Middle East's differences does not seem to be bright.

THIS AFTERNOON

Group Home Idea Opposed

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—It seems most everybody is for the idea that people with mental, emotional, or physical problems are better off being cared for and treated in a community setting rather than in a big impersonal institution. The advantages are many: it costs about $10,000 a year to keep a person in a formal institution, compared to about $4,000 in a group home; there's a sense of family belonging in a group home; there's the opportunity to keep the client close to home, friends, and family instead of way off somewhere; and the experts say an even bigger plus is the opportunity to work with the client in his own surroundings instead of treating him in an "idyllic setting; then dumping him back into the community later to cope with the pressures. Further, group home activities can call on community resources—churches, social and civic clubs, schools, existing mental health and other human resources agencies—for help. Official Goal So overwhelming are the arguments in favor of community treatment that the concept has developed into official state policy, backed by regulations removing people from the big, forbidding mental hospitals and mental retardation centers, and legislative action pumping millions of dollars into group home development. "It seems that everybody is for doing all you can to provide that kind of community treatment group home," says State Rep. David M. Blackwell, D-Rockingham County, "until you talk about putting one in their community, and then all those good intentions fly out the window." Blackwell's legislative proposal which would stop the community resistance to such group homes is running into a buzz-saw of opposition from a number of city officials across the state. His proposal now making its way through the General Assembly is that group homes licensed by the State Department of Human Resources—facilities used for the retarded, the mentally or emotionally disturbed, the elderly, or foster children—cannot be kept out of a community by the whims of local zoning and building code interpretations. Single family dwellings destined for group home use must meet strict requirements under state law for licensing—including safety and health provisions—but some communities have blocked them by labeling them boarding homes or institutions rather than homes, and some have applied stricter building and safety codes to such facilities than to other structures in the community. Many Fights The results are well known around the state as one community after another has gone through the group home battle. Duncraig Manor in Southern Pines is perhaps the best known case, but there are other fights recorded in Charlotte, Greensboro, Roxboro, Reidsville, Mebane and elsewhere. The state currently has 24 established, licensed group homes, and between 15 and 20 now in the works. "Some municipalities will search and comb the codes and regulations to find anything to keep them out... there must be uniformity. No municipality should be allowed to thwart the intent of this General Assembly by using zoning ordinances, building codes, or other regulations to exclude these homes," Blackwell said. Blackwell's proposal applies only to those group homes which provide full-time residency programs, and not to centers established only for counseling services or day-care. He has carefully avoided extending his proposal to community treatment homes for the state's corrections system pre-release programs for adult and juvenile offenders. Opposition would be even stiffer if the proposal embraced those additional uses. The bill would establish the definition of a single-family dwelling licensed as a group home, and permit them in residential areas under the same standards applied to other houses in the area. For those municipal officials who argue that the proposed state law interferes in local zoning affairs, Blackwell says state law originally gave cities the power to enforce ordinances, and has the duty to oversee local operations.

To the editor: I think it is a shame that intelligent people cannot understand how annoying dogs are to us who do not want to be bothered with them. People should have a right to have a dog or dogs only if they don't bother others. Others would rather have a clean yard, and don't we have that right? I get the distinct impression that some members of the Humane Society think that people who don't like dog droppings in their yards are cruel and evil and don't miss a chance to do a dog in. I, for one, do not believe in cruelty to animals, but I don't believe in cruelty to human beings either. God in His wisdom gave man dominion over animals. To the editor: With the recent change in our weather in Eastern North Carolina, it seems we have been reading and hearing more about tornadoes. As chairman of the Safety Committee for The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women, I would like to stress some important facts about tornadoes and what to do about them. A tornado begins with a funnel-shaped cloud that forms high in the air and then roars down to the ground. In the center of the funnel, air is moving up at high speed, sometimes as fast as five hundred miles an hour. The center of this upward-rushing air makes the tornado act like a giant vacuum cleaner. It can pick up a house or truck as easily as an ordinary vacuum cleaner picks up pieces of paper or dust. Because it sucks up large amounts of dust from the ground it crosses, the funnel of a tornado is dark and can be seen miles away. Knowing what to do when a tornado is approaching may mean the difference between life or death. If you are near a tornado cellar, go to it if time permits. When in open country, move at right angles to the tornado's path. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in the nearest ditch or ravine. At home, the corner of the basement toward the tornado usually offers the greatest safety. If you do not have a basement, you can get protection by taking cover under heavy furniture against inside walls. Doors and windows on the sides of the house away from the tornado may be opened to help reduce damage to the building. Whatever you do, keep calm. It will not help to get excited. People have been killed by running into the streets and by turning back into the path of the tornado. Keep listening to your radio or television for the latest tornado advisory information. Do not call the Weather Bureau, except to report a tornado. This may tie up the telephone lines urgently needed for special reports to relay to radio and television stations. Mrs. Joyce King

Easier Credit Today

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The crippled housing market has seen interest rates decline recently. Mortgage lending institutions report more and more money is available for home buyers. But the market's still waiting for the buyers. While the number of starts on new houses remains about 40 per cent below a year ago and the mood of home buyers remains cautious, officials are encouraged by the developments in the lending markets. The latest encouragement for home buyers, home builders and the economy in general came Tuesday in the Federal Home Loan Bank Board's report that in February people deposited $3.1 billion more than they withdrew at savings and loan institutions for the second month in a row. A third $3 billion month is expected for March. As recently as last September deposits were shrinking by $1 billion a month, drying up what is the industry's largest source of loans. The flood of new money now means easier credit for buyers and builders. But the Federal Home Loan Bank Board report showed that the new money has not prompted a rush of home buyers eager to get loans. The volume of loans for February was up only $122 million over January and still $201 million below a year ago. The small number on loans means "the consumer just isn't in the home-buying mood," said Kenneth J. Thygeson, an economist for the U.S. League of Savings and Loan Associations. "Our people are actively promoting loans. We're willing and able to lend the money," Thygeson said. "But we still have an awful lot of uncertainty in this economy." Thygeson said he was encouraged by the increase in February of nearly $1 billion in loan offers by savings and loan associations. It was the first significant increase in loan commitments since April. But he said consumers still

The INSIDE REPORT

Hartmann A Highwayman

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Although some politicians have written him off as a White House power, presidential counselor Robert Hartmann retains enough influence to override President Ford's other senior aides on a step of dubious political and economic wisdom: expanded highway construction to fight the recession. Hartmann was Mr. Ford's top aide during his nine years as House minority leader, but he has not fitted easily into the more formal, tightly organized world of the Ford White House. Although he is assigned top political responsibility as cabinet-level presidential counselor, administration insiders consider him largely eclipsed by White House chief Donald Rumsfeld as Mr. Ford's principal political adviser. But the President's decision to release $2 billion in impounded highway funds, announced Feb. 12 at Topeka, Kans., reveals that disorganized Bob Hartmann still can be tuned closer than super-organized Don Rumsfeld to Mr. Ford's own political mentality. For weeks prior to Topeka, the President was under intense pressure from "the highwaymen"—builders, construction unions, auto men and, especially, state governors—to release the road money. That coalition, having given highway-building top priority among all public works for the past generation, remains potent. But "the highwaymen" were running into trouble inside the White House. Their opponents included such top brass as Rumsfeld, Treasury Secretary William Simon and chief economic adviser Alan Greenspan, an opposition that would ordinarily doom any proposal, particularly when buttressed by impressive political and economic arguments.

Politically, it was argued, spending another $2 billion hardly eased Mr. Ford's herculean task of controlling outlays voted by the overwhelmingly Democratic Congress. Economically, it was argued, the trouble with all public works spending to combat recession, highways included, is the time lag of spending the money. Of the $2 billion released by Mr. Ford, only $50 million will be spent by June 30. Another $1 billion will be spent in the next fiscal year, with the remaining $950 million spent after June 30, 1976, presumably long after the economic upturn when inflation is likely to be the major economic issue. Finally, there is wide consensus inside the administration that, given the need to conserve energy and the deplorable inattention to mass transit, highway building should now have much lower priority. Using road construction as a primary anti-recession weapon contradicts that consensus. But Mr. Ford, himself a "highwayman" during 25 years in Congress, was susceptible to arguments of the governors—and Counselor Hartmann. Hartmann, who deplores government-by-memorandum, wrote no tightly reasoned argument for highway spending. Nor did he have much to say in meetings, which did not amount to much (with anti-spender Simon absent because of congressional hearings). Rather, Hartmann's influence on the President was exerted privately and personally. "I got the idea the President's mind was made up before the meetings began," one official told us. If so, a far-from-dead Bob Hartmann was largely responsible. The Samoan Question The left-right split in the Republican party has reduced its thimbleful of governors to haggling over this esoteric question: can the appointed governor of American Samoa vote in the caucus of Republican governors? Or is he a civil servant barred from such political activity by the Hatch Act? The answer could decide the surprisingly intense struggle over the next chairman of the National Governors' Conference, rotating to the Republicans this year. The 13 elected Republican governors are split between two highly regarded figures in the party, the conservatives backing Gov. James Holshouser of North Carolina and the liberals supporting Gov. No Pressure From The People

By JOHN KILGO
Senator McNeill Smith of Greensboro, a strong advocate of food tax repeal, says it's going to take some prodding from the people back home before the tax is killed. "The leadership of the Senate and the House aren't urging them to get those bills out of committee," Sen. Smith says. "They must feel it's safer for them to let the people keep on paying the tax." Smith says he feels the public wants the food tax repealed. "Gov. (Jim) Holshouser has certainly made an issue out of it," Smith said. "But the Governor has no power, he has no green stamps left. He must, however, have some polls indicating that the tax is unpopular with the people." Gov. Holshouser's people are circulating petitions which ask for the repeal of the food tax. However, Smith says the petitions are misleading, because they don't say anything about repealing the tax in 1976, which Gov. Holshouser earlier had suggested. "The food tax can be repealed right now," Sen. Smith said. "There are other ways to raise the revenue, like a change in the income tax, an increase of the tobacco tax and other ways." Sen. Smith feels the opponents of food tax repeal have been successful in clouding the issue. "They offer all kinds of excuses," he says. "They say maybe because of the economy we shouldn't repeal the tax now. They say they don't know where the money would come from to make up the money lost from repealing the tax. If this thing is to be repealed, the people are going to have to write the legislators in their own districts and tell them they want it off. That's the only reason Nixon resigned as president—because the guy in the street said he'd done wrong and the country was going to have to get rid of him." Smith favors repealing the three per cent sales tax on food that goes to the state, and also an additional one per cent that goes to local governments. He says the total money involved would be about $90 million a year. Sen. Smith says some legislators have crawfished on the food tax issue, while others say they'll support repeal "if you can show us where we can make up the money." "But some who campaigned on no new taxes," Smith says, "aren't doing anything to get this tax off the books. We've had all the debate on the subject that is needed, because nothing suits opponents of repeal better than more debate."

Strength For Today

UNUSUAL DEVOTIONAL
Five business men living in a small town in northern New Jersey car-pool into New York City every weekday morning when they work. What is unusual about this arrangement is the fact that every morning as they ride into the city they hold an informal devotional service. One man each day assumes the responsibility of reading a portion of scripture and commenting upon it. Then they all discuss it at length. After this all the men except the driver—and he probably to the extent that it is possible—use the rest of the time for quiet meditation and prayer. There is a lot of devilry in the world today, and sometimes we are led to believe that humanity is in a pretty desperate situation. But as long as there are praying groups of men and women, here and there, acting as salt to savor human life, there will still be considerable hope. —by Elisha Douglass correct, we have no choice but to give them the money."

"What money?"
Glockstern said. "We don't have any funds to give them, unless Congress appropriates more."

"I don't think we should bother Congress about a measly $21 million. They have a lot of important things on their mind. I believe it's up to us to find $21 million so we can square our debt," the Air Force general said.

"Okay," said Glockstern. "What do you suggest?"
"It seems to me," said the admiral, "an overrun on an aircraft carrier of $21 million would not be out of line."

"That's fine with me," said Glockstern, "as long as it doesn't go on my books."
"But it has to go on your books," the Army general said. "We can't give the money to the Cambodians unless we announce that you made a $21 million error. Otherwise Congress will have our butts."

"You have to do it for your country," the Marine general said.

"Glockstern," the Air Force general said gently. "How would you like to be secretary of the treasury?"
"I wouldn't mind if it didn't hurt my pension," Glockstern replied.
"Then you're willing to admit you made a mistake on the Cambodian account?"
"Yes," said Glockstern, "but it wasn't my fault. The battery in my pocket calculator went dead."

Robert Ray of Iowa.

That's where the Samoan question intrudes. Earl Ruth, a conservative defeated for reelection to Congress from North Carolina last year, was recently appointed governor of American Samoa as part of President Ford's hiring program for unemployed Republican politicians. Naturally, he supports fellow Carolinian Holshouser.

But Ray's allies say the Hatch Act prohibits Ruth from voting in the caucus of Republican governors when it decides between Holshouser and Ray during the National Governors' Conference at New Orleans in June. Administration officials contend the Hatch Act is mute on the point.

Hatch Act or not, liberal governors tried to vote Ruth out of the Republican caucus during the recent midwinter governors' conference in Washington. With several conservatives absent, there were enough votes to eliminate Ruth, but Holshouser quietly left the meeting, preventing a vote for lack of a quorum.

appear reluctant to take on sizable new obligations because inflation has reduced the spending power of their take-home pay by 5 per cent over the last year.

And the 10 per-cent-a-year inflation in new home prices over the last two years also has dampened the housing market.

But Thygeson said he expects builders to react with stripped-down, lower-priced houses this year.

Erosion Control System Installed

A complete erosion control system has been installed on the banks and berms of the Highsmith Canal where it passes through the B. B. Tetterton farms on the Staton Mill Road south of Bethel.

According to Roy Beck of the Soil Conservation Service, the bottom of the canal was cleaned out by dragline. Tetterton then smoothed the berms and shaped a low diversion to keep field water from overflowing the banks.

Tetterton installed drop chutes of tin roofing to carry field water safely into the canal.

"The chutes were placed at low places about every 200 feet along the canal on both sides. They were also placed at all four corners where a new farm path crosses an aluminum culvert in the canal," Beck explained. "Sand-cement bag headwalls were built on both ends of the road crossing."

Beck said a wide, smoothed grass berm has been limed, fertilized and seeded to tall fescue grass along both sides of the canal. He said the field borders are necessary as turn rows for machinery.

Finally, an intensive trapping program was carried out to reduce the muskrat population in an effort to eliminate destructive holes in the canal banks.

Tetterton is conducting a complete conservation program in cooperation with the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District.

Auxiliary To Donate Book

In annual observance of Doctor's Day, which falls on March 30 each year, members of

The Auxiliary to The Pitt County Medical Society will donate a book to the ECU Medical Library located in the Allied Health Building.

In making the announcement, Mrs. Alice Bost recalled that the March 30 date was chosen to honor Dr. Crawford Williamson Long of Georgia, who successfully administered anaesthesia on March 30, 1842.

The book being given this year is The Battered Child, dealing with the subject of child abuse. In addition to the gift of the book, Mrs. Bost said the wives and husbands of the local doctors were treating their spouses to a performance of The Italian Straw Hat on Saturday, April 5, on the ECU campus. Following the show, they will take part in a wine tasting party.

Flea Market Draws Crowds

By HILMI TOROS
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — "Signori, Signori," 14-year-old merchant Carlo de Rosa screamed as Rome's big flea market for small spenders swung into action on a recent Sunday.

"There is no better bargain than this." He was selling tiny chicks — at 15 cents a head — with a plea: "You grow them in your terrace or backyard and make yourself a chicken dinner a month later."

In a carnival atmosphere, he sold them by the dozens with bargain hunters in these austere times not questioning the cost of raising the chickens for a month.

And a few yards away, German shepherd puppies went for 15,000 lire, or $25, with the shrewd slogan that "this is your best burglar alarm," as Romans were told that over 90 per cent of burglaries in the city go unsolved.

Come rain or shine, bitter cold as this winter or steaming heat in the summer, Romans and tourists by the thousands begin to flock at dawn to the Porta Portese Flea Market on the banks of the Tiber, still a miracle mile of bargain hunting for anything and everything.

Rugs advertised as Persian but probably made in a Naples suburb go for under $100. Pure silver silverware, origin untold, is equally cheap.

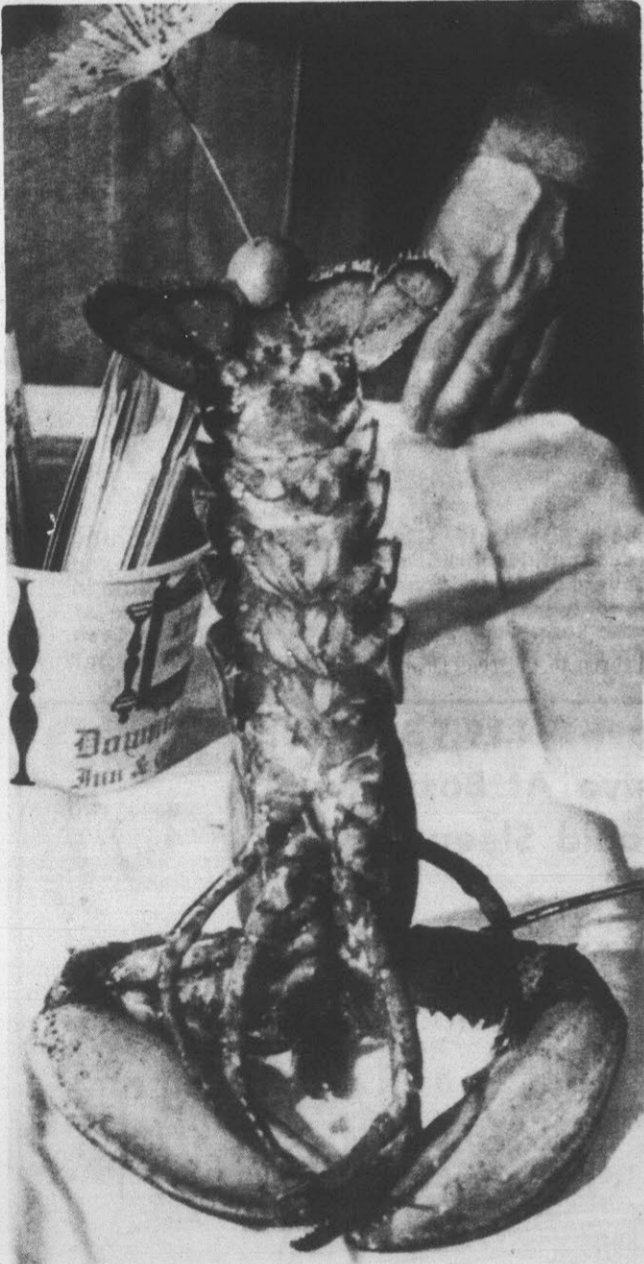

A Sunday outing to the open-air flea market is becoming as much a Roman tradition as going to mass, picnic or the soccer game.

The market boomed during the war years with the sale of goods smuggled or stolen during the week, and some say it is still the chief outlet for thieves trying to unload their goods in a hurry. But burglary victims searching for their jewels will never find them. "If something is stolen in Rome, it will never be sold in the Rome market," says a Roman.

More than 90 per cent of items offered — from clothing to birds — are new, enabling some Rome shops and boutiques to enjoy an extra day of selling since shops are closed on Sundays and many consider their week day sales insufficient.

Antiques are aplenty, too. "If you collect art items, you can't beat this," remarked one salesman, offering what he says was a bust of a 4th-century Etruscan figure for $35. "Don't ask how I got it," he says, "just buy it."

But if you buy it outright, he would probably be disappointed — at not having the chance to bargain a bit. Ready acceptance would mean that the merchant of Rome, although getting what he wants, would miss the chance to display the convincing argument he has practiced all week.

Mini-World In A Living Room

COTTAGE CITY, Md. (AP) — William Waters has the Magic Kingdom right in his living room.

Waters, a 54-year-old art reproduction worker, has built a 23-by-14-foot scale model of Walt Disney World in the living room of his apartment in this tiny suburb of Washington, D.C.

The layout boasts nine working rides, 40 illuminated buildings, a spunky little railroad and a landscape that includes jungles, rivers, waterfalls and mountains.

"Kids who have come to see it are speechless," says Waters, an employee of International Multifoods Co.

Incredibly, Waters has never been to the real Disney World in Orlando, Fla., although he says he'd love to make the trip. He built the entire model from drawings and photos on a tourist map given to him by a friend.

"I just studied the map and built the way things are depicted," he says.

Reorganize Milk Commission

RALEIGH (AP) — A law reorganizing North Carolina's Milk Commission will take effect in a month, but what the new board's duties will be is still being considered by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

The state Senate approved Tuesday House amendments to the bill expanding the commission to 10 members and taking away much of the governor's control over the board. Earlier, the agriculture committee continued hearings on a bill that would require the commission to regulate wholesale and retail milk prices, but a vote may be two weeks or more away.

The Milk Commission is now composed of seven members appointed by the governor. Under the new law, the governor and commissioner of agriculture will each appoint three members and the speaker of the House and lieutenant governor will each name two commission members.

Another difference on the new commission will be the even split between consumers and industry representatives. Now, five of the seven commissioners have no financial interest in the dairy business.

The bill was to be ratified into law today. It will take effect in 30 days.

Martin Pannell, a consumer member of the current commission, criticized the legislature for passing the reorganization bill. He said the new law shows that the General Assembly said "loud and clear that the consumer in North Carolina can 'be damned.'"

Pannell, of Newton, said "firing the old Milk Commission and setting up a new Milk Commission marks another infamous day in the history of the North Carolina legislature."

"This action is one more example, on top of many, of the North Carolina legislature letting the industry being regulated write its own laws," he said in a statement.

The Senate Agriculture Committee began hearing from supporters of a bill that would require the Milk Commission to regulate wholesale and retail fresh milk prices. Opponents of the measure have testified over the past several weeks with the final opponent being heard Tuesday.

Raleigh grocer Larry Zieverink told the committee he believed the state should allow grocers to sell milk below cost if they want. State law now forbids below cost sales of milk.

Zieverink said retail milk prices would drop if competition were allowed to run free. If prices are regulated, prices will be driven up, he said.

The Milk Commission now has the power to regulate retail and wholesale prices, but hasn't exercised it. It controls only the price farmers are paid for raw milk.

Charles Hunter, president of Hunter Jersey Farms of Charlotte and representing the North Carolina Dairy Products Association, supported the price control bill. He said it would benefit the industry because "we know that in the long run, the consumer will benefit by honest pricing, thus affording some degree of stability to the dairy farmer."

Also supporting the bill was Charles Colvard of the North Carolina Milk Producers Association. He said controls would provide market stability needed by farmers who must invest an average of $3,000 per cow.

Sen. Vernon White, D-Pitt, committee chairman, said he won't push the committee to vote on the bill. He said it may take another two weeks before the measure is ready for a vote, but that would be up to the committee members.

In other legislative action Tuesday, a proposal to put medical malpractice insurance in a reinsurance exchange was called unconstitutional and unfair.

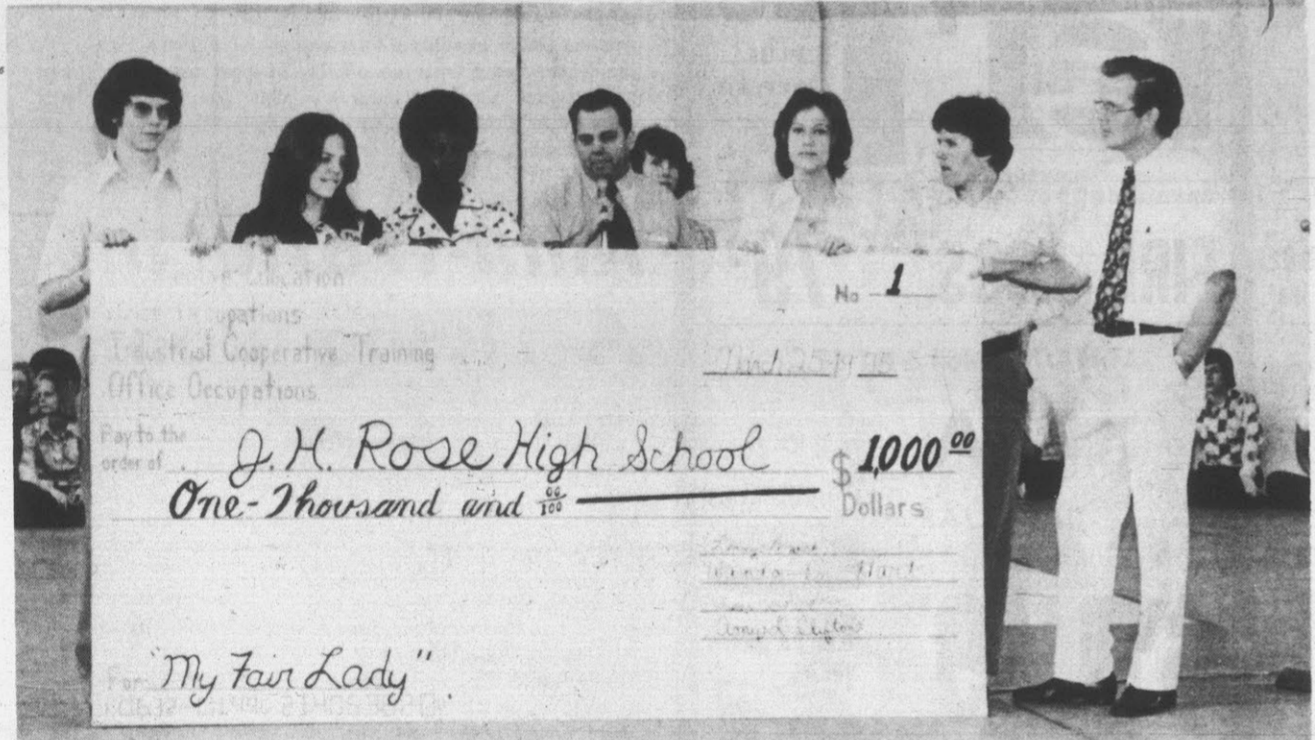

State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram had proposed that all insurance companies doing business in the state be required to share the risk in providing medical malpractice coverage.

Insurance spokesmen told the House Insurance Committee that Ingram's plan would force insurance companies who don't offer malpractice coverage to subsidize any losses that occur through such coverage.

FOR "MY FAIR LADY" . . . A super size check in the amount of $1,000 was presented Tuesday in ceremonies held in the gym of Rose High School. Leavy Brock, Jr., president of the Distributive Education (DE) Club at Rose High, made the presentation to principal Robert Alligood and Steve Koch, music director of "My Fair Lady." A total of 210 DE students collected $3,300 from 102 businesses and 100 patrons in a project to finance the annual Rose High musical through sale of advertising space in the play's program. In addition to the $1,000 check, DE students also gave a new spotlight that cost $350. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Collided With Police Vehicle

Alfred C. Evans of Winterville picked the wrong car to run into here last night.

The Evans vehicle collided with a Greenville Police Department patrol car in a parking lot behind buildings in the 200 block of East Fifth Street about 11:15 p.m. yesterday.

Investigators, who said the police vehicle was driven by officer J. M. Simonowich, charged Evans with driving under the influence and driving after his license had been revoked.

Damage was estimated at $150 to the police department car and $50 to the Evans auto.

Craven Grand Jury Plans Hearing On Allegations

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP)—The Craven County grand jury will hear testimony from several women next month on alleged sexual abuses in the county jail.

Five women, who claim to be victims or witnesses of sexual abuse in the jail, will testify before the grand jury on April 7, according to New Bern attorney Reginald Frazier.

Frazier said Tuesday that the women are expected to describe several incidents of alleged sexual abuse in the jail last year. He said the women contend that three jailers and three trustees have had sexual intercourse with female inmates and have mistreated some women who refused. Craven County Sheriff Bruce Edwards and other county officials have denied the allegations. After an initial investigation last year, the grand jury said it had found no complaints among prisoners, but recommended that matrons be hired. Since then it has recommended that a new jail be built and other improvements be made for female inmates. Local officials authorized the hiring of the matrons as recommended. Frazier said the U.S. Justice Department has declined to investigate allegations of mistreatment in the jail.

Damages In 2 Collisions

An estimated $5,850 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 6:35 p.m. collision on Colonial Avenue 300 feet East of the Tysda Street intersection.

Police said a car driven by Marilyn Elaine Brown of Route 8, Greenville, collided with a parked car owned by Augusta Hopkins of 1107 Colonial Ave. causing an estimated $1,500 damage to the Brown car and $3,000 damage to the Hopkins vehicle.

Miss Brown was charged with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident.

Barbara Smith White of 525 Longmeadow Rd. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 4 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fourth and Ford Streets.

Investigators reported the White car collided with an auto operated by Selina Langhorne Davenport of 1407 West Fourth St. resulting in an estimated $700 damage to the White car, $600 damage to the Davenport vehicle and $50 damage to a street sign.

Don't Mush Around Much On Dogsleds

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (UPI) — Walt Conant and his one-bus transit system are back on the road again, thanks to the students at the University of Alaska.

Three months ago Conant's clunker finally gave up the ghost and the bushy bearded operator of Golden Transit, Inc., announced that he would have to go out of business.

Uncle Sam may be doling out millions of dollars to keep mass transit systems in the big cities alive, but his privately owned system, Conant figured, wouldn't have a chance for a government subsidy.

The shutdown of Golden Transit left most of the students out in the cold — about 40 degrees below zero, in fact. Contrary to popular opinion in the "lower 48," dogsleds really don't mush around much in these parts anymore and slogging the five miles to town from the campus can be hazardous to one's health.

Calling a cab to make the round trip can be downright fatal to the pocketbook.

So, the students decided they had to get Conant back in business.

Conant and Student Body President Ric Davidge discussed the problem and Davidge took it to the governing board of a trust fund set up when the Associated Students organization dissolved its corporate status several years ago.

The board agreed with Davidge that helping Conant fell within the established purpose of the fund "to create and develop new programs for students." And it was agreed that Conant would be granted a two-year loan of $3,500 at six per cent interest.

Conant scrounged up another $1,000 and purchased a used bus from a tour company in Fairbanks. Now he is "back on the road again."

It is no secret that Conant for years has been extending "credit" to students short of cash or broke and the loan of student funds is repayment of a kind. But the students who ride with Conant have gone one step further. They have formed a fund-raising committee to absorb the interest on the loan, which will amount to about $600.

The fund raisers call themselves the S.O.B.s — Save Our Bus committee.

April Fool Pranks Have A History

NEW YORK (AP) — "Mr. Fish, please," or "May I speak to Mr. Lion?" or "Is Mr. Parrot in?"

These are typical of the telephone pranks played on aquarium and zoo employees on April Fool's Day. A call from the "Internal Revenue Service" announcing an audit is another of the tricks played on the unwary on that date.

There are many explanations offered for the custom of playing practical jokes on the first of April, but there is agreement on none, according to the editors of the Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia.

Some sources ascribe the day's doings to an old Roman custom that supposedly existed during the early days of the city when a group of young eligible Romans, unable to meet marriageable maidens, instituted a Roman festival of games at the beginning of April.

All the families in the vicinity attended these games, bringing with them as a matter of course their marriageable daughters. The girls, filled with admiration at the skills exhibited by the men, were easily persuaded to marry their heroes.

Others attributed the origin of pranks to a tale from Roman mythology. According to the legend Jupiter, king of the gods, and Ceres, goddess of agriculture, had a daughter, Proserpina. One day while she was gathering daffodils in the Elysian meadows in preparation for the Roman Ceriala, a festival held at the beginning of April, she was carried off screaming to the lower depths by Pluto, god of the underworld.

Ceres, too late to save her daughter, heard only the echo of the screams and went in search of the voice but the search was like a fool's errand, for it's impossible to find an echo.

Ceres became so enraged over the abduction that she withdrew her blessing from the earth, which became barren and dreary. To save the world from famine, Jupiter commanded Pluto to release his daughter.

Proserpina had, however, eaten a pomegranate, the food of the dead, and so was forced to return to the underworld each winter. The spring season, in which the earth puts forth its abundant fruits and flowers, was believed to be the result of Ceres' yearly joy at being reunited with her daughter.

Whatever the origin of this fool's day, F & W researchers believe that it had something to do with both the spring equinox and the fact that the word "April" probably comes from the word "aperire" — to open — as the buds begin to open at this time of year. This preview of spring produces a light-headed, frivolous state of mind — given to merriment and jester-like pranks.

Another story which lends credence to the seasonal theory is the legend of an ancient land in Asia Minor, called Phrygia, which incidentally is the country of the famous King Midas. This legend states that each year the Phrygians held a solemn autumn festival because they believed that the gods went to sleep in winter and woke in the spring. At the spring equinox, they roused the gods with music, dancing and all kinds of tricks and devilment so that they'd be wide awake for summer.

Whatever the explanation, records of April fool-making which date back to the beginning of the 18th century prove that it is a custom that has been widely observed throughout Europe.

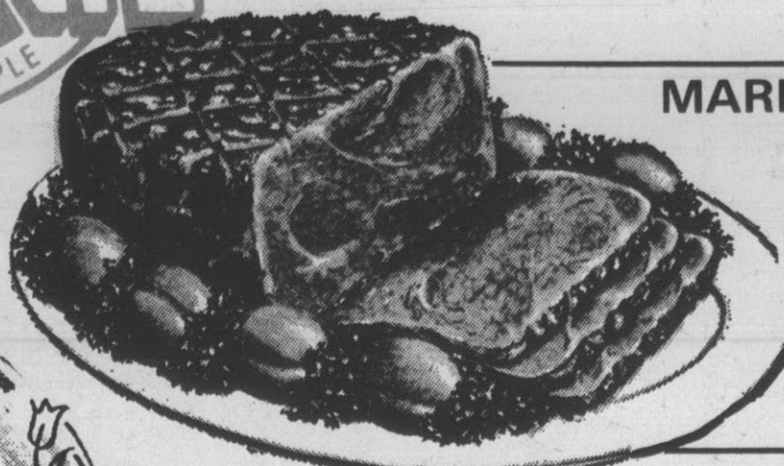

It is generally thought to have come to England and Germany from France where one who is the victim of such jokes is called "un poisson d'avril" — April fish, which may allude to the age of the fish in spring; an April fish would be young and therefore easily caught. In Scotland the term for fool is Gowk or cuckoo; in Spain it's "tonto de abril"; while in Germany they say "April Scherz." Here in the U.S., it is simply April fool.

NEW YORK (AP)—Signs that Congress and President Ford are nearing agreement on a tax cut package helped stock prices rally strongly today.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 11.11 to 759.00, and issues gaining in price outnumbered losers by a four to one margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

There was growing optimism on Wall Street that a hoped-for tax cut bill being considered by a Senate-House conference committee could pass both houses before the Easter break, and that changes being made in the measure would prevent a threatened Presidential veto.

The strength in the glamor and blue chip sectors of the market gave a concrete sign both Tuesday and today that institutional traders were buying more aggressively.

Avco Corp., the most active Big Board stock, added 1/8 to 4 3/4, including a 105,900-share block at 4 1/4. The company reported first quarter earnings of 3 cents a share, compared with 41 cents the same time a year ago.

In the rallying glamor sector, Burroughs was up 2 1/2 at 91 1/2, Halliburton 2 1/2 at 140 1/2, Polaroid 6 3/4 at 25 and Walt Disney 1 1/2 at 44 1/2.

Among active blue chips, Union Carbide gained 1 1/2 at 56 1/2 and U.S. Steel 1 1/2 at 57 1/2.

The NYSE's composite stock index rose 0.48 at 44.06, and the American Exchange's market-value index climbed 0.34 at 49.51.

Heath's Homer Powers Rose To 6-1 Win

SPORT LINE

This year, as in several consecutive previous years, the Men's tennis team at ECU is showing the nation why it is considered to be the worst team in the U.S. and probably the world of any college with 10,000 or more enrollment.

With 9-0 losses to both William & Mary and Richmond, the locals are well on their way to another dismal showing against teams that will show few wins this spring. Neither William & Mary (who promptly lost their next match after they beat ECU 18 sets to zilch) nor Richmond figure to be much of a threat regionally in tennis this spring. As in previous years, it will be one humiliation after another for ECU until the season is mercifully over.

Are all the players at ECU completely inept? I don't think so. Some of them, at least, come with a fair amount of tennis savvy, but with absolutely no program by competent tennis coaches, this slim talent begins to fall by the wayside, and "what the hell" attitude begins to take over.

Admittedly, tennis recruiting at ECU is worse than zero, and to win big in college you must have an astute tennis coach who moves around to all high school tournaments and presents his college's possibilities. I feel that if some effort to ruin what talent that shows as walk-ons wasn't manifested, the team wouldn't be so horrendous.

Coaching tennis, whether men's or women's (and ECU has a fine women's team) is a ten month a year job. Eleven weeks of practice in the fall, plus a weight program for three months prior to March 1 are a must. For a coach to be spoken of as a "nice guy" may or may not be fine. It certainly hasn't helped much this year or any years lately.

Could I do the job? Certainly I'd earn my keep teaching mathematics, and give ECU a winner my first year, and a second place finish in 1977. Not only that, but if I wasn't the coach, I could recommend someone who could take them out of the junior high category, and make them a self respecting winner. I'm not suggesting that any of the present team is contemplating suicide right now, but it is very doubtful that any of the guys would tell their girl friends they play on ECU's tennis team without running the risk of being laughed out of the place. There's got to be a better way, and it starts with organization by someone who knows something about winning tennis.

May the present team R.I.P.:

The Reflector also received a letter from Jack Morrow of Greenville, berating the sports staff for running a picture last week with a cutline that identified the baseball player sliding in home as Johnny Bench, while another player is shown in the picture, a member of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The error occurred when a compositor, during the plating operation, picked up the wrong picture and placed it in the wrong spot, just prior to the running of the press. The sports staff was in no way responsible for the error, as Mr. Morrow suggests.

Southern Nash Tops Panthers

SPRING HOPE—Southern Nash High School gained a 4-0 victory over North Pitt yesterday in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game.

The Panthers were unable to put together much of a threat during the afternoon, but twice put runners as far as third. Bedworth reached that base in the third, while Vernelson got there in the fourth, but neither were able to cross the plate.

The game stayed a scoreless deadlock until the fifth inning when the Firebirds finally were able to come up with a run. Cooper singled and moved up on an out. Henley then singled, driving Cooper over for the 1-0 lead.

The Firebirds got their other three runs in the sixth inning. Perry, Hicks and Matthews all walked, loading the bases. Finch's single brought in both Perry and Hicks. Cooper walked to reload the sacks, and a hit by Harrison scored Matthews with the final run.

The Panthers play host to C. B. Aycock on Tuesday.

 PITTSBURGH (UPI) — All but five starters for the Pittsburgh Steelers, winners in Super Bowl IX last Jan. 12, were obtained as shrewd choices in the NFL's college draft.  Kelly Heath's two-run homer in the last of the third broke a 1-1 deadlock and the Rose High Rampants added three more runs in the sixth to defeat Bertie, 6-1, yesterday.
 Heath's blast cleared the centerfield fence at the 340 mark and came with one out. Griff Garner had walked just ahead of Heath.
 Both teams had put their second batter on in the first and scored them and it stayed 1-1 until the third. The Rampants are now 3-1 overall and 1-0 in the conference.

Mike Belton got the win for the Rampants going the full seven innings. He struck out 13 including the last three men he faced. Belton gave up one earned run and eight hits.

Loser Billy Davis gave up an equal number of hits to the Rampants while walking three, fanning two and all tallies were earned.

After the first inning, it looked as if the game would be a high scoring affair but it changed into a pitching battle. Belton got the upper hand after Heath's home run.

Gary Baker opened the Bertie hitting with a single to center, moved to second on an out and scored on a triple by Ben Pillman for Bertie's only run.

The Rampants got it back in the bottom of the frame as Garner doubled, and came around on a single by Macon Moye.

Ronald Pierce led off the second with a double for Bertie but Belton struck out the side. Rose also got their lead-off man on in the second by a walk but he was caught in a force play. Belton almost got in a jam in the third as he gave up a pair of hits but again, a strike out saved a run.

Then in the trailing half of the inning, Rose took the lead.

Garner walked and swiped second. He kept right on moving as Heath slammed a pitch out, the third to clear the new fence at Guy Smith stadium this year. Moye singled and stole up but was left at second.

The Rampants had a pair of singles in the sixth leading to two runs. Moye drew a walk and Mike Brewington singled back up the middle. Keith Jones hit a long single into center to score Moye and Brewington. On the relay to home, Jones moved to third. Eddie Connolly seemed to

Has Boxing Reached Wrestling's Level?

By WICK TEMPLE
AP Sports Editor

CLEVELAND (AP) — If heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali had taken his fight against Chuck Wepner seriously, he probably could have ended it in a few rounds. But winning as expeditiously as possible no longer is the name of the game in boxing.

The name of the game Monday night was putting on as much of a machismo show as possible for people who for some reason want to pay a lot of money to watch it on theater television.

Wepner, who showed an awesome amount of courage for his $100,000 moment in the limelight, probably illuminated the situation when he said after the fight that Ali only fought 30 to 40 seconds a round.

Ali leaned on the ropes, covered up, allowed himself to be pummeled with body blows that did no damage. He ran out the string.

Without suggesting that the fight was fixed, one has to wonder how close the heavyweight boxing championship came to professional wrestling.

Not until Ali went down in the ninth round did he get mad and start fighting. Whether it was a real knockdown or whether Wepner was standing on Ali's foot, Muhammad still was down with a look of amazement in his eyes.

At that point, he began taking himself seriously and cut Wepner to pieces. In the 15th round, Ali used the challenger as a punching bag, and suddenly it was over with Wepner a battered hulk.

In the old days, the champion would pad his record and his pocketbook by taking on fellows of questionable ability. But in those days the champ usually dispatched the chump as quickly as possible.

Wepner, for all his courage, was used as a toy for the machismo machine. Ali played with him the way a cat plays with a mouse before killing it. He hit Wepner, and hit him hard, whenever he pleased. His lefts were devastating. It was not a plea ant sight and it did not qualify as sport. It was a show, purely and simply—a method of making money.

The whole pre-fight promotion pointed to the kind of travesty witnessed by two-thirds of a full house at Cleveland Coliseum. At the weigh-in ceremony Sunday, Ali came into the room before the live network telecast began and warmed up his act. He got into the racism bit and the machismo bit and the joking bit.

After the fight, Ali returned to his routine of trying to whip up a racial frenzy. This time he used referee Tony Perez. It was unhandy that Perez was Puerto Rican, so Ali said Perez was trying to act like a white man by not stopping Wepner from rabbit punching.

Ali said he wanted to fight Joe Bugner of England in about eight weeks. He said he would give Frazier a chance at the title for $10 million or George Foreman a rematch for $8 million. No mention was made of the fact that Ali had announced in New York several weeks ago his winnings from now on would go to charity.

By Tuesday, the tune had changed and Ali indicated he might go next for a big fight with Foreman or Frazier.

Promoter Don King said after it was over: "I'm so thankful people got their money's worth." If that is what they were paying for—a machismo show and an exercise in butchery—then they did get their money's worth.

So do spectators at a pro wrestling match.

Thompson Again Named Player Of The Year

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — David Thompson of North Carolina State was named The Associated Press college basketball Player of the Year today for the second straight season.

The 6-foot-4 forward with incredible jumping ability won in a landslide, collecting 188 votes from the nation's sports writers

Rumors Flying

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Home runs are flying out of spring baseball camps even faster than rumors about Dick Allen. And that's fast.

The controversial slugger emerged Tuesday at a race-track in Pennsylvania and announced: "I'm available and I want to play baseball."

Traded in the off-season from the Chicago White Sox to the Atlanta Braves, Allen, last season's American League home run king, said he still considers himself the property of the White Sox. In a statement, Braves vice president Eddie Robinson disagreed with Allen and said "there is no question that his contract belongs to the Braves."

While Allen was explaining for the first time his "retirement" before the season ended last year, the barrage of home runs in exhibition games this spring continued.

Dave Kingman's eighth round tripper in 15 games, this one with two mates aboard, and Gene Clines' two-run blast lifted the New York Mets to an 8-0 blanking of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Kingman also added two singles, driving in another run, in three trips to the plate and lifted his spring average to .361.

Outfielder George Foster's homer led the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-3 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles. Baltimore's Don Baylor continued his hot hitting, blasting his sixth home run in his last six games.

Montreal rookie Gary Carter's ninth-inning home run broke a 1-1 tie and the Expos went on to a 3-1 victory over the Texas Rangers. The homer was Carter's third in four games against Texas this spring. The Rangers' lone run came when Cesar Tovar stole home.

Harmon Killebrew slammed his first homer for Kansas City, but the Royals needed a ninth-inning rally to edge the Boston Red Sox 5-4.

The Chicago Cubs hit three home runs, including two by Rick Monday, but suffered their fifth successive spring defeat, losing to the California Angels 8-5.

and broadcasters to outdistance Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley, who had 51.

In winning the award, Thompson becomes the second player to win it back-to-back in the past four years. UCLA's Bill Walton was the AP's Player of the Year in 1972 and 1973.

Senior forward David Meyers of UCLA finished third with 21 votes. Kevin Grevey, Kentucky's standout forward, was the only other player with more than four votes. He had 10.

Thompson, called by pros scouts "the most devastating player in the college game today," was one of the nation's highest scorers—but his contribution soared beyond his 29.9 average.

He was a darling of the fans—and a pest to his opponents—with a patented "Alley Oop" shot, leaping high above the basket rim to take a lob pass for an easy two points.

His ability to spring for rebounds is a record at North Carolina State—an amazing 42-inch vertical leap from a standing position.

The 11th son of a poor North Carolina family, Thompson turned down a reported $2 million to join the pros last year after his junior year. He's sure to be either the first or second pick in this year's draft.

Thompson became the leading all-time scorer in the Atlantic Coast Conference, with a total 2,309 points, eclipsing Buzz Wilkinson's longtime record at Virginia. At the end of this season, North Carolina State retired Thompson's uniform, the first time that's been done in the school's history.

Cubans In Exile Are Unwelcome

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The 800,000 Cubans who fled the regime of Prime Minister Fidel Castro are not welcome to return, the Communist leader says. But exile spokesmen here say they couldn't care less, as long as Castro is in power.

"The Cubans who left Cuba did it of their own free will. It was their decision," Castro said in an interview published today in the Miami Herald. "Now, if they wish to return to Cuba in large numbers, we do not have the necessary conditions to receive them."

"There is only one Cuban people, the people who live here," Castro told John Harbron, a Canadian newsman who accompanied a recent trade mission to Cuba.

Exile leaders say they have no desire to return to a Castro-run Cuba.

"The condition of (being) Cubans was not granted to us by Fidel Castro, so therefore, Fidel Castro cannot take it away from us," said one, Jose M. Vidana, president of the Cuban Rotary Club in Exile.

"The conditions in which Cuba finds itself are the same or worse than the conditions that existed when we decided to leave," Vidana said. "So there is absolutely ... absolutely ... no reason why we should wish to return now."

82 Pints Of Blood Donated

FARMVILLE — Tuesday's Bloodmobile visit to Farmville Central High School resulted in the collection of 82 pints of blood, according to Pitt Blood chairman Billy Ross.

In addition to the units collected, there were 24 rejections for various health reasons, Ross reported.

The chairman said that the visit gained support from citizens of Farmville who turned out to help increase the collection total and he expressed his appreciation to those people, as well as the students, who donated blood.

Adding that he was pleased with the overall turnout, Ross said that one factor that possibly kept the total from being even better was the number of students participating in sports who were not able to give blood. He said that another visit in between sports seasons may result in a higher total.

Ross thanked Farmville Central principal Russ Cotton for his help in coordinating the visit and thanks were also expressed to the Junior Woman's Club, volunteer nurses and other volunteer help.

Another visit was scheduled today at Ayden-Grifton High School.

Mizell Assumes Commerce Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former congressman Wilmer Mizell was sworn in Tuesday as assistant secretary of commerce for economic development.

The North Carolina Republican will preside over the activities of the Economic Development Administration.

His salary is $38,000 a year.

Roundup Of Physicians

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—About 25 physicians across North Carolina are to be arrested today for illegally dispensing drugs, the Winston-Salem Journal says.

It is believed this will be the first mass arrest of its kind in North Carolina. The arrests were to be made by agents of the State Bureau of Investigation.

The newspaper quotes its sources as saying the warrants will be against physicians who sell valid drug prescriptions for insufficient medical reasons. The sources say that among the drugs commonly distributed in this way are amphetamines and barbiturates.

The Journal says the doctors will be charged with the same offense as street drug pushers—possession and sale of narcotics.

The roundup reportedly will be part of a nationwide drive against the illegal dispensing of drugs.

Increase In Donations

By The Associated Press
Voluntary donations to North Carolina colleges and universities increased from $52.4 million in 1972-1973 to $61 million in 1973-1974, according to a survey conducted recently by a New York firm.

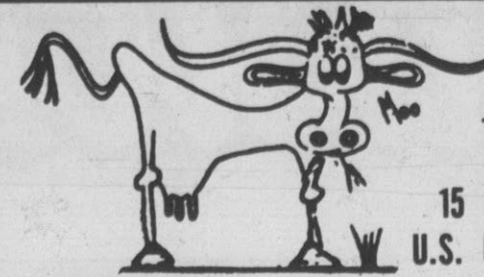

Duke University drew the most money, receiving nearly three times as much in contributions last year as any other North Carolina college or university.

The study, conducted by the Council for Financial Aid to Education Inc., said Duke received $17.6 million in voluntary contributions, compared with $6.6 million received by the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Wake Forest received $5.6 million, N.C. State University $4.2 million, and Davidson College $3.1 million.

The appearance of two state supported schools in the top five contradicted the national pattern, in which private schools received 75 per cent of the voluntary donations.

Contributions in North Carolina were small compared with gifts to the nation's top private schools. Harvard University remained first in the survey of 1,000 colleges and universities, with $56.8 million in donations. Yale was second with $44 million.

Most bridge players wouldn't dream of doubling an opposing part-score contract without two sure trump tricks in their own hand. This is especially true if they are doubling the opponents into game. We wish we had a small share of the millions of points that are lost each year because of the failure to apply a penalty double.

Quite often, doubling should be done simply on an arithmetical basis. Add the number of tricks you expect to take to what you have reason to expect from partner, allow one trick for a margin of error and, if the result says the opponent are going down, pull the trigger! Naturally, partner must cooperate. If his hand is going to be a disappointment defensively, he should not leave in the double. In other words, doubles of low-level contracts should be a cooperative venture. Since he was a point short of a one no trump opening bid, East opened with a convenient bid of one club. South naturally overcalled one spade and West was a little strong for his raise to two clubs. However, his hand consisted mostly of queens and was not nearly as good as its point count indicated. With at best a doubtful spade stopper, East decided that game for his side was unlikely, so he decided to pass. The only excuse we can find for South's decision to reopen the bidding after he had already shown his hand was that it was his turn!

Now West made a good decision to pass. He felt that he had told his story with his free raise, and his queen of spades was a doubtful asset. Besides, his partner still had a turn to bid.

On the surface, it may seem that East's penalty double of two spades was a highly speculative gamble. Actually, with an intelligent partner it involved a minimum of risk. East had already limited his hand by passing at his second turn, and he couldn't have too many values in spades, for he had failed to bid two no trump. Therefore, West would need sound defensive values to let the double stand. If his raise had been largely distributional, he was free to return to three clubs.

East's judgment was vindicated when South could score only five tricks—four trumps and the ace of hearts—and East-West gained 500 points on a hand that they were going to play in a partial.

Much Caffeine Has Its Effects

CHICAGO (UPI) — If you are feeling anxious, not sleeping well and your hands shake slightly, you may be suffering from common nervousness — or you may just be drinking too much coffee and soda pop.

That, at least, is a theory advanced by Dr. John F. Greden at a recent meeting of the American Psychiatric Association. A report of Dr. Greden's research appeared recently in the Medical News section of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

There is some clinical basis for Dr. Greden's findings. And, when you consider the amount of caffeine in a cup of coffee or a bottle of soda pop, there appears to be sound basis for his thinking.

Coffee and soft drinks are not the only things which contain caffeine in substantial amounts. Many headache preparations buffer aspirin with caffeine, and cocoa also contains the substance.

Physicians agreed that more than 250 milligrams of caffeine a day constitutes a large amount. But, consider a "normal" person who, in one day, consumes three cups of coffee, takes two "headache tablets" and one soft drink. That person has ingested about 500 milligrams of caffeine.

Dr. Greden says that the central nervous system's responses to too much caffeine — call caffeineism — strongly resemble those of an anxiety attack. Symptoms include nervousness, irritability, lethargy, insomnia and headache.

The central nervous system is not the only part of the body which is affected by caffeineism. Too much caffeine can also cause heart palpitations, premature heartbeats, irregular heartbeats and skin flushing. In the gastro-intestinal tract, too much caffeine can produce nausea, diarrhea, vomiting and pain.

Those symptoms can easily be defined as nervousness, but they can just as easily be the result of too much caffeine, according to Dr. Greden's report.

Associate professor of psychiatric medicine at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Dr. Greden said he became interested in caffeineism when a young nurse came to him for treatment. Married to an Army physician, who said she had been light-headed for three weeks, her hands were shaking and she was short of breath. She also was suffering from headaches, and he discovered an irregular heartbeat.

The woman told Dr. Vreden that she had started making coffee by a different method which she found to be better, and subsequently had been drinking more — 10 to 12 cups per day. That totaled more than 1,000 milligrams of caffeine. Within 36 hours after she stopped drinking coffee, her symptoms disappeared.

Another case, involving an army officer who drank eight to 14 cups of coffee, four soft drinks and a cup of cocoa at bedtime also cleared up when he cut down on the caffeine-containing liquids.

In both cases, Dr. Greden reported, the patients suffered recurrence of symptoms when they were given large doses of caffeine following periods of abstinence.

Dr. Greden's report suggests that physicians question their patients about use of coffee and soda pop when the patients complain of anxiety and nervousness.

Can Look Back On Six Good Decades

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — "I won't say I've loved every day on the force," remarked Albany patrolman John "Jack" Reohr as he retired after nearly 59 years of active duty. "I'll go beyond that. I've loved every minute of it," the 88-year-old policeman added.

Reohr, who had a police "beat" until relatively recently, when he became an attendant at Albany Police Court, joined the force during World War I. He took part in raids on a half dozen stills during the Prohibition era and once, in the late 1920s, was pistol-whipped and punched by three men he came upon as they were holding up a restaurant.

In that incident, Reohr says, a gunman pushed his pistol into the policeman's mouth and pulled the trigger. The gun misfired. Before the trio was arrested by other officers, Reohr suffered a broken nose and scalp cuts requiring eight stitches.

"I learned then and there that one cop can't handle three men at once," he muses.

Reohr came to know dozens of residents of Albany's South End during his years on the street, especially children. One was an infant girl, one of 11 children in her family, who was born with a damaged eye.

Reohr saw to it she was taken to a hospital, where the eye was removed. As soon as she was old enough, he purchased the first of nearly a dozen glass eyes for her.

At Christmas time, Reohr and his late wife, Beatrice, would load the family car with toys and clothing and deposit presents at homes on the South End.

"I never had children of my own," he says, "yet I was blessed to do something for so many others."

Reohr plans to remain in retirement at his home here, where he has lived for a half-century.

You've been looking around Greenville for a house to buy. Not a big house . . . two large bedrooms and 1 1/2 baths perhaps. And you definitely want modern conveniences: central air conditioning and heating, wall-to-wall carpet, appliances. Also you'd like to be in a desirable neighborhood, close to town, schools, church, the University.

Now you've looked around and found a few homes that meet your specifications. The problem is that those homes are priced from $25,000.00 and up and require large down payments. You're afraid that you may have to rent even though you know that $170.00 worth of rent is $170.00 worth of loss.

UNIVERSITY CONDOMINIUMS is the answer you're looking for. For many reasons:

- Excellent location close to everything and across the street from a fine elementary school.
- Wall-to-wall carpet, central heating, air conditioning, dishwasher, range, refrigerator, private patio.
- Swimming pool.
- Sales price far below comparable single-family dwellings.
- Low down payment with 95 per cent financing at lowest interest rate available.
- Architecturally varied design in attractive antique brick with all the low maintenance costs that brick affords.
- $160.00 yearly estimated maintenance fee.
- All the conveniences of condominium living (You never have to mow the grass.)

We Are Not Offering Hype.

No elegant prose on party houses, tennis courts—sexy modern living. We aren't offering those (and that's why maintenance fees will stay remarkably low).

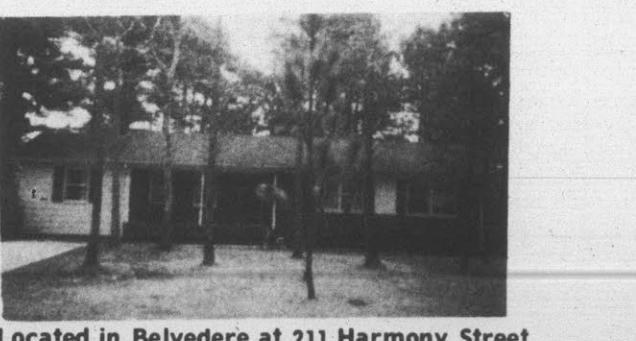

What we are offering is the pure mathematics of a fine investment. For $19,500.00 with very little down and low monthly payments you can own an attractive antique brick home in an unbeatable location.
