

Ford Said Reconsidering Whole Idea Of Tax Cut

By CARL N. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican leader of the House, after talking with President Ford, predicts that Ford will veto the $24.8-billion, tax cut package and indicates that the President is reconsidering the whole idea of a tax cut.

The leader, Rep. John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., made his prediction late Wednesday after Congress approved one of the largest tax cuts in U.S. history. The package was designed to fight the recession by giving taxpayers more money.

Rebate checks for 1974 taxes would begin arriving 45 days after the bill was signed into law and reduced payroll withholding to reflect 1975 tax cuts would begin May 1.

The House approved the bill 287 to 125 and the Senate followed shortly before midnight EDT with a 45-16 vote to send it on to the White House. Congress then began a 10-day Easter recess, a fact that contributed to the fairly light attendance in the Senate.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said earlier that Ford would make no decision for at least several days on whether to veto the bill. Another White House spokesman said today the President did not expect to take any action on the tax bill today.

The spokesman said the President received a copy of the bill late Wednesday night with several handwritten comments in the margins and that he was awaiting a full clean copy of the bill sometime today.

However, after talking with Ford late Wednesday, Rhodes predicted a veto and said: "I imagine the President is reconsidering not only any tax cut bill but the whole idea of a tax cut in this frame of the economy."

It was not immediately clear what Rhodes meant by "this frame of the economy." Democrats warned Ford that a veto would be a mistake. Ford and administration officials have said congressional tax cut proposals are too large and thus might fuel inflation. And they have opposed provisions which repeal part of the oil depletion allowance.

The final $24.8-billion bill hammered out earlier Wednesday by a House-Senate conference committee, is substantially higher than the $16.2-billion plan put forth by Ford. The final package represents a compromise between a $34.3-billion Senate proposal and a $19.8-billion House plan.

The bill sent to the White House includes the following:

—Rebates on 1974 taxes averaging 10 per cent up to a maximum of $200.5

—A $30 credit on 1975 taxes for every taxpayer and each member of his family.

—A $50 one-time payment for every Social Security recipient, and certain other pensioners and welfare recipients.

—Credit, up to $2,000, on 1975 taxes of five per cent of the purchase price of a home not previously occupied. The new home must be the buyer's principal residence; purchased between March 12 and next Jan. 1; occupied by Jan. 1, 1977, and one on which construction began or was completed by March 26.

Oil Imports Down; Trade Balance Up

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharp drop in oil imports gave the United States its biggest monthly foreign trade surplus on record in February, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said its international trade account figures showed total imports slipped 18.2 per cent, overcoming by a wide margin a 6.6 per cent drop in exports.

The result was a $917 million trade surplus. The figure marked a sharp reversal in January's $210.5 million deficit. January's sharp rise in oil imports to a record 285 million barrels, attributed to importers' eagerness to beat a Feb. 1 increase in import tariffs by $1 a barrel, was the primary factor in that deficit.

The drop in February imports to 156 million barrels was an apparent response to the buildup of stocks in January.

The trade balance surplus was some of the best news in months for the beleaguered U.S. dollar, which had been eroding steadily in foreign markets. Speculation that trade performance figures would show improvement today had pushed the dollar up on some international markets Wednesday.

A trade surplus means more money is being spent on the nation's domestic goods and thus means less money is being siphoned out of its recession-plagued economy overseas.

Despite February's improvement, the balance for the first two months of the year still lags behind the same period last year when the surplus was $885.1 million. The nation concluded last year with its second worst trade deficit on record and a worse deficit is expected by the end of this year.

The February surplus was computed on a new basis initiated last month. Comparable figures go back one year. But Commerce said, even figuring the surplus on its old basis, which goes back to the turn of the century, the $879.3 million total surpasses the previous high of $878 million in March of 1965.

By the old method, imports were computed on the basis of their declared customs value. The new method bases the computation on a so-called transaction value.

Since a large volume of imports involve transaction at bargain prices between U.S. corporations and their overseas subsidiaries, the new method deflates the value of imports.

Power Service Bombed

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A series of plastic devices exploded at midnight at a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. substation, destroying three banks of transformers, disrupting service to 35,000 homes, and shaking houses two miles away, authorities said.

About 2½ hours later a bomb exploded in a building that houses the FBI office in Berkeley, about 50 miles to the north, the FBI said. A group calling itself the Red Guerrilla Family claimed responsibility for the bomb that exploded in a women's restroom one floor above the FBI office.

Firemen in Berkeley said there was "substantial damage" to the 10th and 11th floors. The bomb went off on the 11th floor, and the FBI office is on the 10th.

Authorities said there were no injuries reported as a result of either incident and it was not known if there was any connection between the blasts.

In San Jose, four explosions went off at 11:55 p.m. Wednesday, and a fifth device exploded minutes later at the Hicks Substation.

In His Azalea Bed

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Bill Humelsine caught a 25-pound carp Wednesday in his azalea bed. A neighbor captured a nine-pounder near the fence around his home and across the street another neighbor moaned about a big one that got away.

This fish story is true. Humelsine and his neighbors live in the Riverview mobile home park, just off the flooding Neuse River.

Humelsine's yard was under four feet of water Wednesday. When the big carp became entangled in an azalea bush, two of Humelsine's neighbors speared it for him.

The river, which crested at 24.3 feet Tuesday, stood at 23 feet this morning.

About a dozen Goldsboro families were forced from their homes by the flooding rainswollen stream.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

THE BABY'S BETTER

Tera Flood, for whom Hotline appealed for special care Jan. 22, has improved enough to be kept at home by her parents and grandparents.

Her grandfather, Abner Miller, said she was brought home from the hospital two weeks ago. A babysitter cares for her during the hours her mother, Mrs. Marsha Flood, is attending high school. She has a tube surgically inserted into her stomach, through which she is fed diluted milk and baby food.

"She is still drawn and for the most part unresponsive," her grandmother, Mrs. Margie Miller, said, "but we think we see her look directly at one of us sometimes and there's a difference in her you can sense when she's cuddled. The doctor has told us to go ahead and take her anywhere we want to, and we've already had her out some. We think God spared this child for a purpose and we're going to do the best we can to take care of her."

"We appreciate her good care the nearly three months she was in the hospital and all the concern people have shown for her and us."

Tera, whose first birthday was only days away, had her windpipe blocked by a portion of weiner Dec. 14, and sustained brain damage as a result. The family lives at 1917-B Norcott Circle, Greenville.

DIXON FAMILY OK

Social Services Worker Becky Starkey reports that the William and Pearlene Dixon family has received ample gifts to enable them to resume housekeeping and clothe their family of eight children. Hotline appealed on behalf of the Bell Arthur family after their home and all their belongings were consumed by fire Saturday, March 22. "We just cannot thank everyone enough," Dixon said.

Preliminary Plat Of Condominium System Has Commission's OK

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
A preliminary plat of University Condominiums on Golden Road gained the approval of the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission last night.

The plat, it was pointed out, is somewhat unique in that it does not involve the construction of a new project but deals with the conversion of the existing University Townhouses to condominiums.

David Sledge, agent representing University Condominiums, explained that in complying with the policy statement of the planning board, the plat was submitted on the existing units and approval of the play by the commission is actually an acknowledgement that the apartments exist.

Some members of the board expressed reservations about approving the condominium concept even in a preliminary stage since a committee appointed to study the condominium issue is still looking at various ways to deal with the new residential concept. Recommendations from the committee are expected soon, it was pointed out.

Discussing the operation of University Condominiums, Sledge said that 48 units are involved and each condominium owner would have a one-48th interest that would insure his access to all services. The interest would also make the owner a liable and viable member of the condominium association.

The commission recently approved a condominium project on N.C. 43 and that project involves new construction. The Golden Road (Continued On Page 12)

Early Transplanting

GETTING TOBACCO CROP STARTED EARLY—Roger Simmons drives the tractor as a crew transplants tobacco on the Bruce Hart farm, Rt. 5, Greenville, yesterday. Simmons' father, Roy, who leases the farm from Hart, said he was transplanting the tobacco yesterday because the plants were getting large and had to be either transplanted or pulled and thrown away. He planned to transplant about 3½ acres yesterday. Although the temperatures are a little cold for planting, Simmons said he hoped the crop would survive. If not, he will replant the land in about two weeks. (Reflector Photo By Blanche Hardee)

Further Advances In Red Offensive

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The Communist offensive advanced east and south along the central coast of South Vietnam today with a series of heavy attacks in Binh Dinh province that cost President Nguyen Van Thieu's government another district capital.

As the Saigon government's military situation continued to worsen, the big U.S. airlift of refugees from threatened Da Nang got under way.

In Saigon, police arrested at least seven opponents of the president in the wake of an anti-Thieu meeting held Wednesday by former Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky. There was no word of any action against Ky, who is protected by his own security force.

There was no improvement in the outlook for the Cambodian government, either. The Khmer Rouge moved American 105mm howitzers they captured from the Cambodian army back into range of the Phnom Penh airport, and rockets and artillery rounds killed 13 Cambodians and wounded 25 at the field today. It was the first time in more than 10 days that the insurgents used artillery as well as rockets, but the U.S. airlift of rice, fuel and ammunition continued.

The Saigon command said Tam Quan, a district capital on the coast of Binh Dinh 120 miles southeast of Da Nang, was lost after a seven-hour assault.

Much of Binh Dinh is already under Communist control, and the command reported heavy attacks on at least three other government positions in the province. They included Binh Khe, a district capital 25 miles inland from Qui Nhon, which is South Vietnam's third largest city and a major port. Binh Khe was hit by 600 artillery and rocket rounds that destroyed 50 homes but wounded only five persons, the command said.

With the Central Highlands and the five provinces in the northern quarter of the country under their control, the Communists now appear to be opening a new front on the central coastal strip, the last remaining government territory in the upper half of the country. It includes the cities of Qui Nhon, 50 miles south of Tam Quan; Nha Trang, Phan Rang, Tuy Hoa and Cam Ranh.

The Viet Cong announced that it had raised its flag over Hue, the former imperial capital which the government abandoned Tuesday.

May Not Accept More Prisoners

RALEIGH (AP)—State Secretary of Correction David L. Jones says he is on the verge of refusing to accept any additional inmates into North Carolina's overcrowded prison system.

Jones said in an interview Wednesday that legislative approval of a one million dollar appropriation might avert such an action. The allocation would provide for additional personnel and the conversion of four minimum custody field units to house incoming felons and transfers from central prison.

Three More Arrested Here In N.C. Drug Roundup

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Three persons were taken into custody here last night on drug law violation charges by Greenville Police and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation.

Chief Glenn Cannon said those arrested last night were picked up by the team of officers serving warrants that resulted from an undercover investigation by the SBI and local police which began in November 1974.

Those arrested last night, according to Cannon, included: Charles Alvin Allen Jr., 21 of 115 South Woodlawn Ave.; Billy Charles Barrett, 30, of 302A Watuga Ave.; and Dallas Staton, 24 of 403 Darden Dr.

Staton, Cannon said, was charged with possession and sale of LSD—an hallucinogenic—and placed under a $10,000 bond, while Barrett was charged with conspiracy to sell cocaine. His bond was set at $5,000.

Allen was charged with sale of heroin and placed under a $5,000 bond.

Chief Cannon said officers are holding six warrants—three charging possession of heroin and three charging sale of heroin—for Alvin Ray Daniels of Greenville. He explained that Daniels is currently in custody on an unrelated charge, indicating that the warrants will be served on him in the near future.

Local police and SBI agents yesterday arrested Dr. Andrew A. Best on a half-dozen charges of sale of drugs. Dr. Best, a former member of the University of North Carolina board of governors and currently a member of the board of trustees of East Carolina University and of the N.C. Human Relations Council was taken into custody at his office late yesterday morning and placed under a $15,000 bond.

Yesterday's arrests here were part of a state-wide crackdown on alleged illicit drug distribution that netted about 100 persons state-wide, including a half-dozen physicians.

The physicians, including Dr. Best, were charged with illegally dispensing prescription drugs.

According to SBI Director Charles Dunn, the charges against the physicians are not related to those against the alleged hard drug distributors.

He explained that charges against the doctors were developed by an SBI squad funded by the U.S. Department of Justice's Drug Enforcement Administration. "In these cases," Dunn said, "There was no doctor-patient relationship established."

Other physicians arrested yesterday included doctors in Oxford, Hillsborough, Lexington, and Winston-Salem.

Dunn said there will be more arrests made state-wide in connection with the crackdown, including "one or two more doctors."

Preliminary hearings for those persons arrested here yesterday have been set for District Court April 15.

Local Men And Women Give Opinions On ERA

By SUSAN PRICE
Reflector Staff Writer

What do the men in the Greenville area think of the Equal Rights Amendment? According to a Daily Reflector sampling, most have mixed feelings about the proposal. And most think women will lose more than they'll gain if the amendment is ratified.

A few indicated strong support for the amendment, but several gave favorable, but somewhat indifferent, opinions. Some said they had not given the ERA much thought and one man said he opposed the amendment completely.

Local attorney Dave Reid says he has mixed feelings about the amendment. "I tend to feel the objectives of the ERA have already been achieved through federal legislation. I have heard all the legal ramifications and with reservation as to the ultimate conclusion, I would be in favor of it. I do feel that women should have equal rights," Reid said.

Another local attorney strongly favors the amendment. He notes that though

Senator Ervin's reasoning about the amendment impresses him, he feels more progress would be made by the amendment and the judicial process.

He says "it took 100 years to bring blacks to legal equality under the 14th amendment and I'm afraid it would take another 100 years for women."

DAVID REID

City manager Harry Hagerty says he hasn't given the ERA much thought. "As far as city employment is concerned, I'm sure we give equal employment rights. I have no other opinion than that. I'm not really qualified to comment, but it appears to me that the ladies are doing well enough as it is," Hagerty said.

Dr. William Stephenson of the English Department at East Carolina University says he supports the amendment, but made no other comment.

Another local man says he has no objection to the amendment as such, "but I'm wondering if women would be better off in the long run without it. I think they'd lose a lot of rights if it passed. I'll bet some men will be glad to see it come about in some of these non-support cases."

Dr. Oral Parks of the ECU Political Science Department, usually labeled by associates as liberal, is against the ERA. "I'm not against equal rights, but I think the amendment itself is unnecessary," Dr. Parks said.

He added, "The amendment might change some specifics, but we have everything we need now to make changes through the Congress. I really think the fewer times the Constitution is amended the more viable a document it is."

ECU Economics professor Dr. Louis H. Zincon said he's in favor of the amendment. "I mainly feel that the women are going to lose more than they're going to gain. I think the women supporting it are misguided."

The director of Equal Employment at ECU, David Stevens, said the question of equal opportunity and equal rights for women is adequately covered in federal laws passed within the existing power of Congress.

"Through proper enforcement," Stevens said, "the legislative authority already vested in Congress is entirely adequate to satisfy equal rights for all citizens, irrespective of sex, and I don't think we need an amendment to the constitution to insure equal rights for women."

DAR Exhibit Opened Yesterday

RALEIGH—"Seventy-five years of service to North Carolina" is the theme of a new exhibit in the Museum of History. Memorabilia of years of work of the Daughters of the American Revolution opened yesterday with a tea in the Archives and History-State Library Building.

Sponsored by the DAR and the Department of Cultural Resources, the opening festivities was represented by Mrs. Grace J. Rohrer, secretary of the Department of Cultural Resources, as well as state officials of the DAR.

The exhibit, which will be on display through the summer months, will include service pins, ribbons and awards, depicting three-quarters of a century of service.

Also in the exhibit are photographs and other memorabilia, especially focusing on Miss Gertrude Carroway of New Bern, North Carolina's only president general, as well as several North Carolina members who served as vice presidents-general. A map pinpoints the 98 active chapters of the DAR in North Carolina.

Among activities of the 75 year old organization are providing markers and commemorative plaques; supporting educational institutions and providing scholarships, publishing historical publications and other types of pamphlets; promoting special week observances, including "Constitution Week;" maintaining museums, genealogical record collections; and support of youth organizations.

decade." Equal rights clauses in the U.S. Constitution originally referred to white men, Mrs. Crisp said. In the 1860's black men were included under equal rights laws. Women are now seeking equal rights protection in the Constitution, according to Mrs. Crisp.

"The ERA would assure women a place in the Constitution and laws against women would be repealed and no more could be passed," Mrs. Crisp said.

"The ivory tower theorists who are advocating defeat are not in tune with the realities of our day-to-day plight. The fact is that protective work statutes have served to keep us out of high-paying jobs and husbands can be and have been awarded support from wives by N.C. judges in some instances," Mrs. Crisp added.

Other women who support the ERA also feel the present laws are inadequate for giving women equal protection. Charleen Tyer said she believes the amendment will "make things change faster. I don't think it will have any effect on the social wives. The people who are afraid it will destroy the social system should sit down and think about it more calmly," Mrs. Tyer said.

Elizabeth Savage disagrees. "I am afraid of it, I think it is a dangerous situation. It takes away from the man being the head of the family. I like my husband being the head of the family and I like being a woman and being treated special. I don't think it's the right thing to do," Mrs. Savage said.

She added that there are physical and possibly psychological differences between the sexes and these differences "complement each other. I hope our country won't commit a grievous error like this," Mrs. Savage said.

Mary Alice Yarbrough said she is not "100 per cent for it because women are covered under the Fourteenth Amendment." She added that civil rights laws already forbid employment discrimination on the basis of sex. However, she said, "This does not mean that I am not for it, it might make woman's position more equal."

Francine Rees is "100 per cent in favor of it. I think it is long overdue. It will have important legal and psychological effects on women as individual persons," Mrs. Rees said.

Liz Whalen is also for the ERA. "I don't think it will mean integrated rest rooms or woman's (military) draft," Mrs. Whalen said. She added that it would be up to the U.S. Supreme Court to interpret the amendment.

Rosie Griffin believes the amendment will "give states the impetus for progress in women's legislation."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Generally speaking, mothers list five occasions that demand "new underwear" for their children.

They are: the first day of school, vacations, camp, sister's wedding and Easter.

The first four have always had logical explanations. Face it, for the first two years of school, a child's feet never touch the floor. They hang upside down on a parallel bar like a sloth, stand on their heads in the sandbox, or stuff the hems of their dresses into their mouths an inch at a time. Therefore, why shouldn't a mother put the money where it shows?

New underwear on a vacation is a must considering the accident risk factor. What mother has not been tormented by the nightmare of a police officer yelling into the darkness, "Hey, Frank, I got one kid with a pin in his shorts with a broken arm, and a pair of pink tights with enough runs to account for overexposure." To which Frank replies, "Give me more light."

I've got a dingy T-shirt you're going to have to see to believe."

I never send one of my children off to camp without borrowing a national slogan. "The quality goes in before the name (tag) goes on." Granted, a child never changes underwear the entire two weeks he is in camp, but counselors talk. I have the feeling they sit around a campfire and discuss what kind of home would produce a child whose wardrobe consisted of faded pink shorts.

My mother felt very strongly about new underwear at weddings, especially those in the family. She once went so far as to question the legality of the marriage vows if someone in the wedding party was not wearing new.

The only occasion that still puzzles me is Easter. I have never figured out what the Second Coming has to do with new underwear. When I asked my mother she clapped her hand over my mouth and said, "Just pray the Good Lord didn't hear you say that."

With the new underwear on this special day always went the pink and lavender Easter outfit and the patent cutout shoes. One year when Easter fell early, I remember Mama saying, "Tie the lavender ribbons on your bonnet under your chin." And I answered, "Those aren't ribbons, Mama, they're my ears."

Yesterday, as I laid out new underwear for the kids one asked, "Why do you have to wear new underwear for Easter?" I clapped my hand over his mouth and said, "Just pray the Good Lord didn't hear you say that . . . or if He did, pay attention to the answer."

Determine The Correct Way Before Drawing

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: An organization of which I am a member conducted a raffle to raise funds. The first prize was a $6,500 automobile. The second prize was a TV-stereo-radio combination, which sells for around $3,500, and the third prize was a trip for two, which would have cost around $2,000.

When the drawing was held, the holder of the first number won the trip, which was really the third prize. The second ticket holder won the $3,500 prize, and the last ticket holder won the first prize. This surely did not seem fair to me.

In a drawing of this kind, shouldn't the first ticket drawn be the first prize, and so on?

All members have agreed to accept your decision as to which way is correct.

CONFUSION IN GA.

DEAR CONFUSION: There is no "correct" way. Prior to the event, you should have decided in which order the numbers would be drawn for the prizes.

When the third prize is given first, the suspense builds with each successive drawing—which adds to the excitement of the occasion.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old woman (old enough to know better) and my husband is 43. We were both married before. I never had children, but my husband has one son, Junior, who is 20.

About a year ago, my step-son and I began to get playfully affectionate, and to make a long story short, before we knew it, Junior and I ended up in bed together. We have a tremendously strong physical attraction for each other which we can't seem to control. We take advantage of every opportunity to be together—sometimes two and three times a day. Junior goes to college and lives at home, so it's ideal.

We know it's wrong, but we can't stay away from each other. My husband doesn't suspect anything, but he's already commented on the marked change in our sex life. (I'm "too tired" much of the time.)

I can't afford to go to a psychiatrist, and our minister is my husband's drinking buddy, who can't keep his mouth shut when he's half lit. I don't think anyone can help me, but I keep hoping. What's the solution, Abby?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: You need professional counseling, and so does Junior. Your local Mental Health Association can help you. In the meantime, Junior should move out of the house, and you should do some volunteer work if your household duties aren't keeping you sufficiently busy. You are on a collision course with disaster. Detour, before it's too late.

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago, my husband and I and a friend were walking our dog in the woods near our house. We all saw, but pretended not to see, a young couple making love in the bushes.

Although we weren't close enough to recognize the youngsters, they couldn't have been more than 16 years old. Ever since then, I've been perplexed about what I should have done. Of course it's too late now, but the best I have been able to come up with would be to have said: "Okay, kids, break it up. We will close our eyes and count to 50, and then you had better be gone."

What would you have done?

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: I'd have counted to 100, and then recited the Lord's Prayer.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

In The Spring, Thoughts Turn To Grifton Shad Festival

In the spring a young man's fancy may turn to thoughts of love, but the gourmet's fancy turns to thoughts of shad. This fish and spring go together like bees and flowers, and boys with kites. In fact, shad is a springtime delicacy that has a festival dedicated to it alone. What other fish can make such a claim to fame?

Grifton is celebrating its Fifth Annual Grifton Shad Festival April 4-6. Smallness doesn't necessarily make a community take a back seat in activities and community spirit. Grifton abounds in these qualities and because the residents work so well together in making "The Family Town" a better place to live, they achieved The Governor's Award in 1971. Grifton was declared by the Federal Census to be the fastest growing town percentage-wise in North Carolina during 1950-1960. The Shad Festival is the result of cooperation between the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations who work together in GRIP or the Grifton Resources Improvement Program. They say that there will be something for everyone at this year's festival and "You all come and join with us in the fun and feasting. The fun is great, the hospitality is warm, and the food is delightful—but probably most important is seeing what can be accomplished when people work together toward a better town."

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Agricultural researchers have developed a device to measure the firmness of fruits and vegetables without squeezing them.

The experimental machine uses sound waves to sort produce for ripeness and internal defects, says the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. It permits sorting of fresh fruits and vegetables as they ripen in storage and helps eliminate spoilage.

Potentially Awesome Moment

In another world tragedy, King Faisal of Saudi Arabia has been assassinated by a gunman.

The king, labeled as a staunch friend of the United States in the Arab world, was shot to death by a nephew who was described as deranged.

It is one of those awesome moments in history that could lead to world shaking consequences. One has only to recall that World War I was started with an assassination. In our own nation the course of events have been changed a number of times with the killing of a president.

Things might have been different for us if Abraham Lincoln had not died from an assassin's bullet. Certainly our nation would be different today if John F. Kennedy had not been slaughtered in Dallas a decade past.

In the Middle East, King Faisal was considered a stabilizing influence in a region that is seething over the Israeli question. He was as anti-Israel as anyone but was considered conservative and favorable to the United States, excepting our Israel position.

Just this week the peace talks being conducted by Sec. of State Henry Kissinger between Egypt and Israel collapsed. The last thing that was needed in the Middle East was the tragedy of the Faisal assassination.

The Crown Prince, Khaled Ibn Abdul Aziz was quickly proclaimed king and a brother Prince Fahd was named new crown prince. But the United States will now be dealing with unknown new personalities in Saudi Arabia, and this at a time when we need all the understanding and friendship we can get in the Middle East.

The dark times in the Middle East appear even darker now with King Faisal removed from the scene by an assassin. We can only hope that skillful diplomacy will prevail in bringing about peace to this troubled region.

Studies Reveal Interest

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
College students across the country are crowding economics classes these days to learn more about recession and improve their chances of finding a job after graduation.

An Associated Press spot check showed enrollment in economics and business-related courses had more than doubled at some colleges. A few schools reported an upsurge of interest by part-time, adult students seeking help in making money go further.

Dr. David Kamerschen of the University of Georgia said 1,097 students are taking economics courses this year, a 155 per cent increase over last year's enrollment of 431.

"We've had a phenomenal increase, primarily because of the general economic conditions in the nation," said Kamerschen.

Enrollment in economics courses has increased 40 per cent in two years at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst. "Students are concerned about their own economic security when they get out," said George Trez, a professor at the school. "They are turning to economics as a more practical, career-oriented course..."

Robert F. Wallace, chairman of the economics department at Washington State University in Pullman, agreed. "University students aren't really looking for answers, they're looking for jobs," he said. "That's why business administration has grown so much."

"Just as the protests of the late 1960s leveled off, people began thinking about where they would get their jobs. Areas of study less likely to lead to solid employment have been a loser and we have grown."

Registration in general economics courses at Northwestern University in Chicago has increased about 50 per cent since the 1971-72 school year. The enrollment in the money (Continued on page 5)

Linton Found New Frontier

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—North Carolina's veteran champion of sound, careful development of coastal lands has found a new frontier to tackle—Australia's southernmost state, Victoria.

Dr. Thomas L. Linton, director of the state's Marine Affairs Division, and former head of commercial fisheries, will leave in April for the post of Director of Environmental Studies with the Ministry for Conservation in Melbourne.

A prime factor in the long battle to gain a Coastal Land Management law for eastern North Carolina, Linton says he is leaving with the satisfaction of knowing that this state has moved out front in protecting coastal environment.

"We caught the problem way ahead of people further north where the problem is much worse, and in some cases hasn't even been tackled," Linton said.

Policy Is Critical

Land use planning and development policy not only for the coastal counties, but statewide are critical to the state's future, Linton believes. "Operating by the seat of your pants is courting disaster. Like it or not, there have got to be rules and policies for development in North Carolina. Look at what the absence of a policy has meant in the national energy situation."

Establishing rules for growth and development does not stop growth, Linton said; the rule of thumb is, "Don't give it away, trade it away... make them come in on our terms."

He finds things in eastern North Carolina in pretty good shape, and feels that developments such as the sprawling agricultural operations now being built, the mining, future offshore gas or oil drilling, and strong prospects for a deep-water port offshore compatible with sensible development.

"I grew up on the Texas Gulf coast—in a petrochemical area—and I know the technology is available to get oil out of the ground without fouling everything under the sun."

"You just have to make them do that right. Don't buckle under to the pressures of the need for fuel or new jobs, and let them come in any old way; only let them in on the state's terms."

"And the firms will respond to that, they want to know the rules and will abide by them... North Carolina's land use plan provides the mechanism, it's running, and if it doesn't bog down, we can use the resources we have in a reasonable, sensible way," Linton said.

Linton also cautioned against letting the recession panic officials into relaxing environmental controls to woo industrial prospects. That would be making matters worse in future years, he said.

Keep Control

The prospects for a deepwater port look promising for North Carolina due to the depth of water, onshore land sites for processing operations, and available inland transportation facilities. He also believes offshore oil and gas drilling is coming, along with undersea mining on the Continental shelf—none of which means the world is caving in for Eastern North Carolina if controls are enforced, Linton said.

Linton's work in Australia will take him away from the largely marine concerns of his career here, and at the University of Georgia Marine Institute before coming to North Carolina seven years ago.

"There my concerns will be the whole environment," in a state which ranges from mountains to desert to a seashore facing Antarctica, Linton said. The area has gas, oil, and coal deposits.

Linton said Victoria has a deep concern for the environment, supported politically, and funded well, and is moving into development of a coastal zone management law.

One aspect of Australia which especially appeals to him is a land mass essentially the same as this country's, but with only eight million people. "Our problems mostly result from too many people... and in Australia, they are just starting. It's the last frontier, and Texans like that sort of stuff, you know."

Linton answered an advertisement in a professional magazine, and landed the job after interviews in Washington and Melbourne.

He will take his wife and two young sons along, but leave behind the family dog because of a $1,000 import fee and a required 16-month quarantine.

Love And Boondoggles

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The National Science Foundation, which has led a charmed and sheltered life these many years, suddenly is feeling some chilly winds off Capitol Hill. An appropriate moment may have arrived for Congress to take a careful and critical look at the NSF. Maybe this outfit is doing great things; and then again, maybe not.

Senator William Proxmire got off a couple of shots at the NSF for the funding of grants to study, of all things, love. On the House side, representatives Olin Teague and John B. Conlan are attacking the Foundation for its role in subsidizing "Man: A Course of Study." Their concern is not merely with the waste of public funds, but with questions of basic policy as well.

It is high time these questions were asked. The National Science Foundation came into existence in 1950, but attracted little notice until the Russians lofted their first Sputnik in the fall of 1957. Over night science education became the in thing. Congress reacted so generously that the NSF now has a budget of $700 million a year.

In the beginning, for the benefit of the few sticklers who demand a constitutional justification, the Foundation's expenditures were justified in terms of the Congressional power to raise armies and to support a navy. The key piece of legislation, indeed, was known as the National Defense Education Act of 1958. But like the lady in the cigarette ads, the Foundation has come a long way. Defense has been left behind.

That was Proxmire's complaint—and a well-founded complaint it was. To his astonishment, the Wisconsin Senator discovered that the NSF has funded one grant of $84,000 for a study of why people fall in love, and another grant of $260,000 for a study of "passionate love." His cries of outrage delighted the nation's editorial writers, a great bunch of kidders, who stand constantly in need of something silly to write about.

Now that the snickering has stopped, it may be possible to inquire quite seriously: How in the name of the Founding Fathers did these grants become a proper subject for the use of public funds? The short answer is that the grants are not proper. They amount to a reckless and irresponsible rip-off of the taxpayers. They reflect the extravagance and the elegance of an agency with too much money to spend, and not enough supervision over the spending of it. Still more serious considerations are involved in "Man: A Course of Study." This is a bizarre piece of business. Known for short as "MACOS," this social studies course for fifth and sixth graders is an elaborate aggregation of booklets, films, records, games, maps and teachers' guides. The course was developed by Dr. Jerome Bruner, an experimental psychologist with the assistance of various social anthropologists and other scholars. Since 1963 the taxpayers have put $6.5 million into development subsidies, teachers' conferences, and other outlays. Some 470 school districts have bought the course.

According to Teague and Conlan, MACOS is a subtle and skillful exercise in behavioral manipulation. At seminars intended to train teachers in using the course materials, the promoters ridicule the idea of "brave aggressive masculinity," and speak of "the necessity to redefine the concepts of 'a real man' and 'a true woman' if we are not to destroy ourselves completely." Teachers are encouraged to accept the "value systems and sex roles" of "youth international, leading on to a 'Brotherhood of man.'"

The INSIDE REPORT

Ruins Confront UNESCO

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The outraged reaction of intellectuals last winter when Israel was suddenly barred from all UNESCO aid programs is now subtly spreading into American commercial and business interests, raising this serious question: will the politicization of UNESCO destroy it?

Without any announcement, the prestigious Bankers Trust Company of New York has now quietly cancelled an agreement worked out after months of consultation with officials of UNESCO, the United Nations Economic, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

Under terms of the now-discarded agreement, Bankers Trust was to have been a principal sales agent for UNESCO to market a commemorative medal (marking the 500th anniversary of Michelangelo's birth). Selling from $11 (for bronze) up to $66 (for gold), the medals are supposed to finance a major program for young artists, particularly in underdeveloped countries.

Since sales in the U.S. would undoubtedly raise far more cash for the artists' project than sales anywhere else in the world, this loss of the U.S. market gravely impairs the whole project.

Publicly, UNESCO operatives at the East River headquarters of the United Nations are saying only that "the medal is not going to be sold in the United States." All further inquiries are directed to UNESCO's office in Paris, and no explanations are offered.

The real reason for the sudden switch in signals was a last-minute decision at Bankers Trust not to market the medal in the lucrative New York area. Bankers Trust has 122 branches. Under the original deal, agreed to on Feb. 18, the bank would have distributed brochures at all its branches explaining the purpose of the medal, with a coupon to be clipped and sent in to UNESCO for the medal.

But the bank smelled trouble from depositors, many of whom would be repelled by such a helping hand from the organization that, on the votes of Communist-bloc and third-world members, has imposed what amounts to political sanctions against Israel. That vote resulted from complaints that the Israeli government is "altering the historic features" of the city of Jerusalem.

There is no disputing the great physical changes in Jerusalem since Israel seized the Arab section of the city in the 1967 war. But only once before—against Portugal in 1955—has UNESCO ever imposed sanctions against a member state for alleged deprivations of human rights or any other political act.

It is this unique singling out of Israel for special political punishment in a highly controversial situation which has so aroused the intellectual West, and now spilled over into the actions of a leading New York bank.

The future of the international agency is obscure. Congress has passed a law cutting off the entire American contribution to UNESCO, now running at approximately $20 million a year, until the anti-Israel sanctions are removed. Considering the fact that the U.S. contribution regularly equals about 25 per cent of UNESCO's budget, that congressional retaliation is no small punishment. In addition, both France and Switzerland have reduced their own contributions to UNESCO's two-year, $170 million current budget.

But that is only the beginning of what some experts fear is turning into an anti-UNESCO campaign in the West which could spell its doom. Consider the following:

Item: Fargee, the New York cosmetic house, has cancelled a $5,000 prize for a UNESCO art exhibit and is dropping its sponsorship of the whole project.

Item: A UNESCO conference on literacy scheduled to be held at Harvard University was cancelled on demand of the faculty after a protest by Dean Paul N. Ylvisaker of the graduate school of education. Yet, perhaps UNESCO's most important work is trying to raise the level of literacy in a world in which one-quarter of the total population still

To the editor: Discrimination based on sex does not apply only to women, and it is not the purpose of the Equal Rights Amendment to correct only the wrongs made against women.

Men gained equal rights from an unanimous Supreme Court decision last week that it is unconstitutional for the Government to provide survivors benefits to the widow of a deceased worker with children, but deny them to a widower in the same position. The Court further stated that female workers required to pay social security taxes are entitled to the same protection for their families as male workers paying the same taxes.

This decision against discrimination based on sex is a big step towards equality for all.

Spring Brings Spirit Of Hope

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — In spring you want to put the barren winter behind you and dream of the warm breezes breathing life and color into the fields again.

Financial men sometimes are that way too. While dutifully concerned about all the red ink spilled about, and all the gray statistics littered everywhere, they manage to see the bright colors of the rainbow too.

Says Morgan Guaranty Trust: The economy is still in the throes of a broadly diffused decline. Big dips will be shown in key indicators for the first quarter. Unemployment, it is evident, will climb still more.

That's the wintry look. Now the perspective of spring: "The first signs of the preconditions necessary for a reinvigorated economy later this year" are already sprouting in the economic soil.

The monthly economic review by Morgan cites key preconditions to recovery that are beginning to be met.

1. The slowing of inflation, which it says has two stems—it is helping to end the erosion of workers' buying power, and it is a psychological dividend as well.

2. The prospect of a tax reduction, which would provide further strengthening of consumer buying potential.

3. The working down, by $2 billion since last October, of the total of installment debt outstanding.

4. The decline in business inventories, which in January had their sharpest drop in 14 years. The banks economists say "the brunt of the inventory adjustment may very well already have been experienced in terms of 3s impact on output rates."

5. Increased availability and lower cost of mortgage money, providing a basis for recovery in the housing industry.

The news about housing, says Morgan, "no longer is unrelievedly grim." Interest rates on short-term securities have fallen, leading investors to return funds to the thrift institutions, which in turn can invest in mortgages.

Not everyone shares the bank's view, and it should be remembered that these five little sprouts are courageously intruding into a larger perspective that is really quite stark.

All over town you can find forecasts of storm clouds. Many people say interest rates will begin rising again late this year because of big corporate and government financing.

The National Association of Home Builders foresees a delay in the housing recovery.

Forecasts of a return of inflation in the double-digit category by 1976 are not uncommon.

But there is hope. Spring is here, and that colors even forecasts.

Strength For Today

GOD IN THE PRESENT

Very often people who profess to be religious have no faith in a God here and now. They believe in the God of Isaac and Jacob, and looking ahead they declare their trust in that Almighty Being who on the last great day will judge the living and the dead. But they have no God in the present.

God to them is largely a theory. The presence of a Being in the world manifested in the routine of daily tasks, guiding the believer in making the decisions about the secular things of life, drawing members of a family together in love and understanding—for many people God does not move in these realms at all. The message of the Bible is that God is in this world, manifested in all things, great and small. And to this God men and women are invited to turn, not only in time of distress that they may be delivered, but every day in order that they may be sustained.

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—A bill to abolish North Carolina's presidential preference primary comes up for a final House vote today after winning an overwhelming nod of approval Wednesday.
The House showed its distaste for the state's once-tried experiment with the presidential primary by voting 71-43 to approve the bill after more than an hour of debate.
If approved by the House again today as expected, the measure will go to the Senate. Rep. George Breece, D-Cumberland, sponsor of the bill, said he feels it will have a good chance in the Senate.
Breece said Sen. John Hensley, D-Cumberland, the Senate majority leader "has told me he supports the bill. I intend to work with him" in lining up Senate support.
In approving the bill, the House disregarded the wishes of House Speaker James C. Green and of state Democratic Chairman James Sugg. Green told newsmen Tuesday he favors keeping the presidential primary and Sugg urged legislators last week to retain it. Sugg explained that new delegate selection rules make it preferable to have a presidential primary.

But the House members listened to the arguments of Breece and others that the 1972 presidential primary was a failure because it failed to attract the major contenders for the Democratic nomination and "that it was a "disaster" to the Democratic Party.
Although some observers feel that eliminating the primary would be to the advantage of former Gov. Terry Sanford who is expected to try again for the Democratic presidential nomination next year, Breece said his bill is "not a Terry Sanford bill," and "I don't think there was a Sanford block in the House working to pass this bill."
Sanford, now president of Duke University, was decisively defeated in the 1972 presidential primary by Alabama Gov. George Wallace.
Rep. Chris Barker, D-Craven, a Sanford supporter, said he contacted the former governor about the measure recently and was told it made no difference to Sanford. Barker voted against the bill.
One of the House's four black members, Rep. Joy Johnson, D-Robeson, voted for the bill. He explained that he did so because he figured that if another presidential primary were held, Wallace would emerge the winner.
Breece told the House the presidential primary had promoted disunity and was a "disaster to our party." He said it locks the state's national convention delegates into position and gives them no opportunity to maneuver at the convention for political advantage.
Rep. Worth Gentry, D-Stokes, chairman of the House Elections Committee which sent the bill to the House floor with no recommendation either for or against it, told the House he was "disappointed" in the outcome of the 1972 primary, but felt it "should be given a second chance."
Rep. E. Graham Bell, D-Gaston, said he had originally favored the presidential primary, but "I don't feel we in North Carolina have need of a presidential primary any longer."
He said the primary robs other candidates and other issues of the people's interest.
Rep. Robert Jones, D-Rutherford, a co-sponsor of the bill, sought to destroy the argument of those who said the presidential primary was good for business because it would bring presidential candidates into the state to spend their money.
Jones said the presidential candidates would seek to raise-in North Carolina the money they spend here and they "would be coming in here competing with us for money. And money is going to be mighty tight in 1976."

Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Haywood, said he once opposed the presidential primary but that he now favors it because "it gives the people the only chance to have a say about their presidential candidate."
"The people of North Carolina are mighty jealous of this right they have to vote and if you take it away from them, you'll hear from them," Messer declared.
Breece said he had conferred with Gov. Jim Holshouser and found the governor in favor of keeping the primary. Breece said he was convinced he (Holshouser) would be a favorite son candidate for president in 1976 as a preliminary to being a candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1978.

Loyola University, also in Chicago, started a new economic course program for arts and science students who "wanted to take a look into certain parts of our economy."
At Ohio State University, enrollment in the basic economics principles course is up 15 to 20 per cent from last year. "This definitely reflects attitudes on the part of students," said department chairman John Cunningham. "They want to study things relevant to the job market. It used to be they wanted to study things relevant to life."

Item: A UNESCO cultural conference scheduled for St. Louis next November was written off in February because the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra served notice it would cancel its performance on the day of the conference.
There are many more such items, although by no means has every single UNESCO project in the U.S. been killed over the Israel issue. For example, a UNESCO-sponsored international women's year conference will proceed on schedule in 1976 at Smith College.
But the creeping boycott is getting worse, not better. What that suggests for the future is inexorable pressure for UNESCO to rescind its own boycott of Israel.

NEW POST?—Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton is expected to be named commerce secretary today by President Ford. (AP Wirephoto)

New Post For Morton Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is expected to name Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton, an old friend and political associate, to be commerce secretary.

An aide to Senate Commerce Committee Chairman Warren G. Magnuson said early today, "The committee was notified last night that the announcement was imminent."

"Unless there is a last-minute change from what the White House said, it sounds like the public announcement will be made today," said the aide.

Norman D. Dicks, Morton, a former congressman from Maryland and Republican national chairman, was named Interior Secretary by former President Richard M. Nixon. After Ford became President he gave Morton an enlarged role in development of energy policy.

Morton would replace Frederick B. Dent, commerce secretary since 1972, who was sworn in Wednesday as Ford's special representative for trade negotiations.

Series Of 3 Auto Mishaps Yesterday

An estimated $800 property damage resulted yesterday from a series of three traffic collisions investigated by local police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Reade Streets involving cars operated by Susan Carol Ford of 108 Dallas St. and Norman Benjamin Stocks of 110 East Eighth St.

Investigators, who estimated damage at $250 to the Ford car and $150 to the Stocks auto, charged Stocks with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Gary Ray Smith of 1708 East Fourth St. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 8:55 a.m. collision at the intersection of Myrtle and Columbia Avenues.

Officers identified drivers of the two other cars involved in the mishap as Barbara Moore Tripp of 1103 Myrtle Ave. and Robert David Miles of 1805 Spruce St.

Damage was set at $50 to the Tripp car and $150 to the Miles auto. No damage resulted to the Smith car, according to police.

No charges were reported following investigation of a 5:55 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Maxwell Street.

Drivers involved in the collision were identified as Helen Campbell McArthur of Greenville, and Eddie Dean Leggett of 1601 Willow St.

Damage was estimated at $100 to the McArthur car and $150 to the Leggett vehicle.

Condolences Sent Embassy

In a telegram dispatched at 9:45 a.m. Wednesday, East Carolina University Chancellor Leo Jenkins sent a message of condolence to the U.S. Saudi Arabian Ambassador for the death of King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, who was assassinated Tuesday by a member of the Saudi Arabian royal family.

ECU currently has eight Saudi Arabian students enrolled. On Wednesday afternoon, Dr. Jenkins met with them to personally express sympathy for the death of King Faisal, who was noted for his pro-Western policies in recent crises over the Arabian nations' oil resources.

Speedy Trial For Faisal's Assassin

Phillip Claims Funds Needed

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — North Carolina's superintendent of public instruction says the state will have to put far more money into public school budgets if it is to meet new challenges in education.

Dr. A. Craig Phillips, whose department has asked the General Assembly for $585 million for new school projects over the next two years, says the figure will only meet some of the needs of the schools.

Phillips made the comments Wednesday night in an address before several hundred school administrators, architects and school board members meeting in Winston-Salem.

The two-day school conference, which winds up today, is aimed particularly at new construction practices in schools. Several speakers noted that school boards will have to be increasingly conscious of energy in their planning.

One recent ruling of the state Board of Education will require local school boards to analyze the energy that will be needed to run any new school they propose.

Phillips said that some $225 million of his department's $585-million request would be solely for cost of living salary increases for teachers.

Evangelism Rally

BETHEL—The Evangelism Rally of the Greenville, Williamston, and Tarboro District of the Pentecostal Holiness Church will be held at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church here Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Guest speaker will be the Rev. T. E. Long Jr., pastor of the First Pentecostal Holiness Church of Lumberton. The Rev. Paul C. Jackson, District director, invites the public.

A SELLING JOB
NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Officials from the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce and possibly the city's mayor will fly to Paris this weekend in an effort to convince the French president's daughter to participate in the entire Azalea Festival here next month.

The base budget of the Department of Public Instruction and the state Board of Education is about $1.1 billion.

Phillips said his department is going to have to start dealing soon with issues such as day care that do not appear in current budgets.

He said his department also will have to start considering year-round schooling, and he said he would like to see schools tie in more often with community recreation programs.

Revenue Office Closing Monday

E. R. Carraway, local revenue officer for the N. C. Dept. of Revenue, advises that the state office will be closed Monday, March 31, but will be open Tuesday, April 1 from 8:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. to assist in the preparation of State Income Tax and Intangible tax returns.

The office will also be open Monday, April 7 and 14 and Tuesday, April 15th.

The office hours for each of these days will be 8:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m.

Set Briefing On Air Service

An information session, concerning the North Carolina Airport System plan will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in the Lenoir Community College auditorium at Kinston.

The purpose of the meeting is to summarize the findings of the plan as it relates to airline service in the Eastern part of the state.

The meeting is sponsored jointly by the Neuse River Council of Governments and the N.C. Department of Transportation and Highway Safety.

Persons interested in airline service in Eastern North Carolina are invited to attend the session.

MEET POSTPONED
BETHEL — The Bethel Town Commissioners' meeting will be postponed to Tuesday, Apr. 8 at 8 p.m.

The meeting is usually held the first Tuesday of each month.

Will Open Bids On Four-Laning

RALEIGH—Bids to four lane a portion of U.S. 13-N.C. 11 will be opened during the regular monthly bid letting of the North Carolina Department of Transportation in Raleigh on April 22.

Included in the project will be 4.6 miles of adding lanes and improving the existing lanes of U.S. 13-N.C. 11 from approximately 618 feet southwest of W. Third Street, thence northeast to approximately 200 feet northeast of Pinewood Court Drive (west of the 903 intersection). Grading, ABC, bituminous concrete binder and surface, culverts and structures will be included in the bidding.

Saudi Arabian prince accused of assassinating his uncle, King Faisal.

Saudi informants said the 27-year-old accused killer, Prince Faisal Ibn Musaed, was being questioned. Although the official radio announcement of Faisal's murder Tuesday said the prince was mentally deranged, the editor of the Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar reported that doctors found him sane, and the authorities had decided to try him.

"If he is found to be sane, justice will be harsh," said one Saudi source. "A guilty verdict under the stern Moslem law enforced here could lead to public beheading in Riyadh's main square after the principal weekly prayer session Friday."

Al Akhbar's editor, Galal Hamamsy, who is in Riyadh, said King Khaled, the new Saudi ruler, and Crown Prince Fahd were supervising the investigation personally.

Hamamsy reported that King Faisal was assassinated in his office and not during a public audience being held in the Monarchy Council Chamber as previously reported.

The Egyptian editor gave this account of the assassination:

The Kuwaiti and Saudi oil ministers were with the king when young Prince Faisal came to the door. The king's bodyguards asked him to wait until the meeting ended, but the prince pushed past them and went up to his uncle.

The king bowed his head so the young man could kiss his nose, a traditional Saudi greeting. Instead the prince pulled out a pistol and fired at the king, hitting him in the head.

The king raised his head and the prince fired a second shot into his neck. Palace authorities prevented the bodyguard from killing the assassin.

Hamamsy said a Saudi television crew was present for the king's meeting with the oil ministers and filmed the assassination.

The dead king was buried privately at sundown Wednesday in an unmarked grave in accordance with the tenets of his Wahhabi Moslem sect, after thousands of mourners wailed, wept and passed the coffin from shoulder to shoulder.

"Where goes our knight? Where goes our protector against confusion and poverty?" mourners called out as the coffin was brought from the El Eid Mosque.

"Faisal is with us. He is not leaving us," said a weeping broadcaster. "You will see him in King Khaled, in Prince Fahd, in every faithful son of Islam."

King Khaled, Faisal's 62-year-old brother, wept as he prayed over the body. He was flanked by kings, presidents and premiers of 16 other nations, by his 53-year-old brother, Crown Prince Fahd, and other princes of the large royal family.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market turned in another strong showing today with a boost from news of a record U.S. trade surplus in February.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 6.26 at 772.45 on the heels of Wednesday's 18.30-point jump. Gainers outstripped losers by more than a 2-1 margin in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

At the opening the Commerce Department reported a $917 million surplus of exports over imports for the nation in February, aided by a sharp dropoff in high-priced oil imports.

Brokers also noted some evident buying by investing institutions putting the last touches on their portfolios before the end-of-quarter reporting date next Monday.

The markets are to be closed for Good Friday.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .29 to 44.60 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index was up .14 at 80.04.

VISITING SCENE
SILOAM, N. C. (AP) — Troy Doby, the state transportation secretary, and key members of the Senate Transportation Committee will visit the collapsed Yadkin River bridge late today.

Storm Damage

RALEIGH (AP)—State officials place the loss from Monday's tornadoes, wind and rainstorm at nearly $1.8 million. They said the damage wasn't extensive enough to qualify North Carolina for federal disaster money.

There was damage in more than 30 counties, a great deal of it to commercial property. Several persons were injured in damaged or overturned trailers, but there were no deaths.

Apparent Low Bidder On Work

RALEIGH—Barrus Construction Company of Kinston was named the apparent low bidder for road construction work involving Pitt and Beaufort Counties.

The bid totaled $382,353.75 and final completion date has been set as September 1.

The project includes surfacing two sections of secondary roads and resurfacing six sections of primary roads and five sections of secondary roads. A total of 27.49 miles of work will be done on the following roads: U.S. 13-N.C. 11; U.S. 264A; U.S. 264-N.C. 33; and N.C. 43.

Represented At National Meet

The East Carolina University School of Technology will send three of its members to the national convention of the American Industrial Arts Association being held this year in Cincinnati, Ohio, April 23-28. Dr. Thomas Haigwood, Dean of the School, Dr. Norman Pendered, Chairman of the Industrial and Technical Education Department, and Dr. Robert Leith will attend.

Tar River Level Continues Drop

The Tar River level was reported at 16.8 feet and falling this morning, according to the National Weather Service in Raleigh. The river level Wednesday at 8 a.m. was 17.6 feet and the figure for Tuesday morning was 18.1 feet.

The high temperature for Wednesday was 57 degrees while the low for that day was 41. The temperature today at 8 a.m. was 36 degrees and by 10:30 a.m. had risen to 41 degrees.

Zoning Meet...

project involves conversion. Currently the property on Golden Road is zoned RA-20. The commission also accepted a revised preliminary plat of Lake Ellsworth Subdivision and agreed that the Recreation Commission should be contacted for discussion on whether or not it might be interested in taking options on land in subdivisions for recreational use.

Under the development format, a final plat will be presented to the commission for each section of the subdivision as it is planned for development. Sections I and II have already been developed in Lake Ellsworth and a third section is being planned.

City Engineer Charles Holliday reported that the property under consideration was included in the annexation to the city several months ago under provisions of the Satellite Annexation Law.

A matter involving possible expansion of the definition of a "public utility" was tabled pending a decision in court on the question of whether or not a fire station is considered a public utility.

The city has proposed to build a fire station on two lots located just north of the intersection of Greenwood Drive and Memorial Drive and citizens in the area have objected to the location of the structure in a residential area.

It was decided that action on the matter should be postponed until some decision is reached in court on the interpretation of the ordinance.

City Planner John Schofield was instructed to begin working on a preliminary course of action concerning the much discussed Comprehensive Plan for the City.

Commission members discussed the involvement of local citizens in the Comprehensive Plan process and Schofield explained that the program is at a point where "we need to start laying the groundwork" for the plan.

Developer Phil Carroll told the board that he is in favor of the people becoming as informed as they want to become but he noted that personally, he was not in favor of educating the populace through the planning commission.

"I do not feel the City Council has empowered this board to get into education," Carroll contended.

Schofield said that in every rezoning case that has come before the commission, people have reacted when they did not understand the issue. He said that "you can't educate those who don't want to be educated" on planning functions but he asserted that "this would provide the opportunity for people who want to learn to do so."

Commission member Karl Faser said that, "We should make an attempt to educate them and that's about as far as we can go."

Mrs. Ruth Trevathan, a member of the planning board, commented, "I wonder how many really want to know?"

Board member John Moyer said that he does not feel the plan to involve the public in the process will "get the benefits we are after. The people who are interested will attend the meetings and others won't."

Moyer said that "we are not going to build a Utopia around Greenville and . . . you are not going to get all . . . citizens involved."

Eddie Howell, commission chairman, contended that the planning board is going to have the responsibility of educating the public on planning and "we need to get the public interest generated."

Faser said that he felt an approach to the overall plan for Greenville along the same lines as the recent presentation of the medical plan might be feasible with the Comprehensive Plan taken in sections.

A five-year plan is under consideration in lieu of a 20-year concept as has adopted in the past. Under the five-year plan, an annual review could be scheduled to provide a status check on what has been accomplished each year.

Set Aside Their Church Charges

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Charges against four Episcopal bishops who ordained 11 women as priests last summer have been set aside by a Church board of inquiry on grounds that doctrinal issues involved were beyond its jurisdiction.

The finding Wednesday left the matter up to the Church's House of Bishops for action, if any, and the extensive requirements for the bishops to initiate a trial for breach of doctrine made such a course appear doubtful.

Since mid-December, the inquiry board has conducted hearings, somewhat like a grand jury proceeding, on charges that the four bishops violated Church canons, or laws, in ordaining the women.

Arrest Suspect In 2 Break-Ins

Greenville police yesterday arrested Samuel Simms, 21, of 612 South Pitt St. on two counts of breaking, entering and larceny.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Simms was charged in connection with a Sunday afternoon break-in at Discount Jewelers on Evans Street, and with a break-in at Perkins Oil Company on 14th Street yesterday.

Simms was placed under a $1,000 bond on each of the two counts, according to the chief.

Cannon said a half-dozen rings allegedly taken from the jewelry store were recovered as well as a radio and television reported stolen from the oil firm.

AID FOR TURKEY

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill lifting the congressional ban on military aid to Turkey has been approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by the narrow margin of 9-7.

preliminary plat of North River Estates was approved allowing the developer to change the name of a street proposed in the development from North Circle Drive to Trent Circle. A Circle Drive already exists in Greenville.

Soul City Developers Ask $4 Million More

RALEIGH (AP)—Developers of Soul City in rural Warren County have applied for an additional $4 million grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for construction of roads and other facilities in the planned new town.

The Soul City Co. sent the request for the new grant to the HUD area office in Greensboro on March 17. HUD's New Communities Administration in Washington will decide whether to award the grant.

Earlier this month it was revealed that the federal government had contributed $19.5 million in grants, contracts, loans and loan guarantees to the project. Over $5 million of that money has been spent, but there are no houses, no shops and no industries in the community, planned for 13,000 residents.

Committee To Ask Thieu Step Aside

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP)—A group of opposition politicians, including former Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, today announced the formation of a committee to request President Nguyen Van Thieu to relinquish his powers.

The formation of the committee, worked out in two days of meetings with Ky and known as the "Action Committee for National Salvation" was announced by the Rev. Tran Huu Thanh, leader of the predominantly Roman Catholic Anti-Corruption Movement which has repeatedly called for Thieu's resignation in recent months.

"We request President Thieu delegate full powers to a new government of new personalities for the national salvation," Father Thanh said. "This government should be clean, effective and have the support of the army and people."

The formation of the committee followed the government's arrest earlier today of seven politicians affiliated with Ky's group and the accusation they were plotting to overthrow the Thieu government.

Ky spoke to newsmen before Father Thanh announced the committee's formation and strongly denied allegations he was planning a coup against Thieu, his long-time rival.

"A military coup is sure to profit the Communists and as a military man, I see this as the biggest danger. We must try by all means for a dialogue among the various movements," Ky said.

Two Arrested In Forgery Case

The 17-year-olds were arrested yesterday in connection with a forgery case by Greenville Police.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, Marshall Craig Smith of 1105 East Fifth St. was charged with two counts of forgery, while Evelyn Angelo Maurakis of 301 Greenwood Dr. was charged with two counts of aiding and abetting in forgery.

Cannon said the two were charged after an alleged forged check was cashed at the Wachovia Bank on Tenth Street about 1:30 p.m. and another check was cashed at the Wachovia Bank on North Green Street about 3:10 p.m.

Bond for the two was set at $500 on each of the counts.

Break-In And Theft Reported

PACTOLUS—Pitt County deputies are investigating a break-in and larceny that was reported early today at Midway Service Station on N.C. 33 here.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that the incident, reported at 6:46 a.m., resulted in the theft of a television set and an assortment of merchandise with a total value of approximately $1,000.

Sheriff Tyson said entrance to the business was gained after removing an air conditioning unit from a window.

The break-in occurred sometime after 8 p.m. Wednesday night, the sheriff said. Midway is operated by Gene Toler.

Pirates, Warriors Split Doubleheader

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
East Carolina University snapped its three-game losing streak with a 5-4 extra inning victory in the first game of a doubleheader with Eastern Connecticut State University yesterday. But the Warriors came back to capture the second game, 2-1.

The split left East Carolina with a 5-7 overall record on the season, while Eastern Connecticut's mark moved to 7-3 on the year.

The Bucs got some clutch play in the first game as they lost the lead, struggled back to tie it up in the bottom of the seventh, then won it in the eighth.

But in the second game, the Pirates were unable to take advantage of their own six hits, plus four errors made by the Warriors. Eastern took advantage of all they got, however, pushing over two runs, one of them unearned, to gain the split.

East Carolina did get good pitching from its staff in the two games. Joe Heavner started the first game, going five and a third innings before giving way to Steve Herring, who got the win. Heavner gave up eight hits to the Warriors, but scattered them, one in each of the first five innings, before he was tagged for three in a row in the sixth, and that spelled his downfall.

Herring, in relief, was shaky at first, but then settled down to retire the final six men he faced. Mike Weaver took the second game loss, going all the way. He, too, had troubles during the early part of the game, walking four in the first three innings. But after that, he settled down and didn't give up any more free passes. He scattered five hits, but three of them, one a controversial one, came in one inning when the winning run scored.

Ron Staggs continued his pace with the bat hitting two doubles and the game-winning single in the first contest. He got two more hits in the second game, oddly enough both infield tags.

East Carolina scratched first in the opening game, scoring an unearned run in the third. Bobby Harrison walked to open the inning, and became the first Buc runner. He stole second and moved to third on Howard McCullough's hit to right. Pete Paradossi came on as a runner for McCullough and stole second. On the throw down, the ball got away into centerfield, and Harrison trotted home for a 1-0 lead.

Glenn Gullidge captured first place in the annual Jamie Lang Memorial Golf Tournament held at the Ayden Golf and Country Club. He had a net score of 130 for 36 holes.

Second place went to Ralph Wingate with a 136, while Dean Wingate, Dallas Jackson and Jeff McAllister tied for third with 139. Adrian Waters took sixth with a 142.

Richard Stevens picked up a hole-in-one on the ninth hole, a 175-yard par three. He used a four-wood for the shot.

The annual Ayden Four-Ball Invitational is scheduled for April 26-27 at the club. Interested golfers can obtain entry blanks by contacting Clarence Alexander at the pro shop.

Farmville

A new course record was established at the Farmville Golf and Country Club recently. Jimmy Hillard shot a 64 from the blue tees, a total distance of 6,329 yards.

The annual Member-Guest tournament has been scheduled for April 19-20 at the Farmville club. Members may sign up to participate in the pro shop.

Greenville

Ed Tipton picked up a hole-in-one at the Greenville Golf and Country Club. He got the ace on the eighth hole while playing with Dr. Joe Murad, Reg Akin and Bill Batchelor.

A Better Ball of Pair with Handicap Tournament was held during the last Ladies Day at the club. First place went to the team of Mable Blount and Irene Bircher with a net 29. Second was Jan Woodworth and Betty Akin with a 31. Also shooting a 31, but taking third after card comparison was the team of Gay Waldrop and Joan Hooper.

The Men's Club Championship will be held on April 26 and 27 at the club, over 36 holes of stroke play. All male members and their sons, 16 and over, are eligible to compete. Flighting will be done according to handicap. Those wishing to play are urged to sign up in the club house as soon as possible.

Six clinics are planned for the month of April, and signups are now underway. All are free of charge. A Beginner Ladies clinic will be held on Tuesday, April 15 from 9 to 10 a.m. This is open to ladies who have not established a handicap, or have a handicap of 36. It is restricted to the first 20 to sign up.

An advanced ladies clinic will be held the same day from 1 to 2 p.m. It is open to any woman with a handicap of less than 36, and is also restricted to the first 20.

A men's clinic will be held the same day from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., and is limited to the first 15 to sign up.

A Pre-school children's clinic will be held on Thursday, April 10, from 9 to 10 a.m. This is open to those three to six years old. A junior girls and boys clinic for those 6 to 12 years old, will be held on Saturday, April 12, from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m., while another, for those 13-18, will be held from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. There is no limit to the number that will be taken for these clinics.

Grifton

The Grifton Golf and Country Club, which hosted the Pitt Country Golf Association's "Dog Fight" today, has a couple of other tournaments coming up.

Friday, they'll play host to the annual DuPont Tournament. That event is limited to DuPont employees.

Then, on April 5-6, the club will hold the annual Shad Festival Tournament. This is an open event, but is limited to the first 44 two man teams to sign up. Entry blanks can be obtained from pro Joe Bullins or from tournament chairman Cecil Lilley.

Warriors had come up with four in the sixth. Up to that time, Eastern hadn't put a man past first base. But with one out, Bill Hickey reached on an infield hit and Tom Lynn singled into right. Steve Krajewski followed with another hit, and that loaded the bases and spelled the end for Heavner.

Herring, however, hit Bob Nicoletti on the foot, forcing in Hickey. Jim Deschaine ran for Nicoletti after his injury. Bill Asel followed with a single to right, driving in both Lynn and Krajewski, giving the Warriors the lead. Deschaine then scored on a wild pitch, making it 4-1.

East Carolina came back with two in the sixth. Staggs doubled down the right field line, and Glenn Card walked. Walks to Lee and Bass brought in Staggs, and Card scored when Harrison grounded out.

The Bucs tied it up in the seventh. Geoff Beaton reached by beating out a grounder to third and Staggs doubled him to third. Card got an intentional pass and Lee grounded back to short, allowing Beaton to score.

The winning run came in the eighth. With one down, Joe Roenker beat out another infield looper. Steve Bryant beat out another to the infield, and Beaton walked to load them up. Staggs hit into the gap between first and second, easily scoring Roenker with the game-ending run.

Eastern came back to take the second game, however. They threatened in the first and second as Weaver walked the first man in each inning and both of them moved as far as third.

In the third frame, however, Eastern got its first run. Rob DeLucia walked and stole second, moving to third when the ball was thrown away in the attempt to get him. He scored on Tom Lynn's sacrifice fly. The other Warrior run came in the fourth. Don Fusari beat out an infield hit. The umpire at first called him out, then changed it to safe. Fusari stole second and moved to third on an infield out. Scot Budnar singled to drive him in with what proved to be the winning run. Eastern threatened again in the fifth and sixth inning, putting a runner as far as second.

East Carolina, after failing to score in the first when Beaton reached on an error, took second on a passed ball, then stole third, threatened again in the second when Roenker tripled to deep center with two away. Another threat in the third failed after Beaton reached on an error and Staggs singled to deep second.

The Bucs got their only run in the fourth. With one down, Roenker singled and moved up on Jack Elkins' out. He scored on Pete Paradossi's single to right. The Bucs put Bryant as far as third in the fifth when he reached on an error, moved up on a sacrifice and got to third when Staggs singled off Fusari's foot at the mound. But it all came to naught, and the Bucs didn't threaten again.

East Carolina plays host to Duke on Friday at 3 p.m.

Four East Carolina Tankers To Nationals

East Carolina University swimming coach Ray Scharf has talked about new records all year long. In fact, at times one would have thought Scharf was a broken record that constantly repeated itself about new records.

This weekend, a number of those records will come into play; the biggest one being that four ECU swimmers are off the the NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships in Cleveland, Ohio. The four in number is a record, in that never before has East Carolina had over three swimmers to qualify for the NCAA Finals.

The competition begins tonight and continues through Saturday night.

Freshman John McCauley from Charlotte qualified for three events at the Eastern Regionals two weeks ago. McCauley will swim in the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events, while joining three others in the 400-freestyle relay. The tall, strong, first-year man is ranked seventh nationally in the 50 event and 10th nationally in the 100 event.

McCauley has had a taste of such calibre competition and knows a bit of what to expect. "I went to the National Junior Olympics in Nebraska last summer," explained McCauley, "and it will be the same in Cleveland. You don't know anyone or really just what they can do for times. I think that will add some pressure to us all, but particularly for me in the individual events."

These joining McCauley on the 400-free relay team are all from Greensboro. They are senior Bobby Vail, sophomore Ross Bohlken and freshman Billy Thorne.

Only as a result of three new school records did these young men attain the nationals. McCauley's record in the 50 was 21.04, while the national qualifying time was 21.40. In the 100, McCauley needed 47.0 to qualify and did so with a record 46.2.

The relay team broke the old school record by five seconds, hitting a 3:08.9, to topple the old mark of 3:14.0. In order to make the nationals, the team needed a time of 3:10.0.

"I'm just very pleased that these young men are going to the finals," said Scharf. "Our ultimate goal each year is to go to the NCAA finals. Our team performance in the Eastern Regionals was the best ever in finishing fifth, but more important, in that our individual performances and times were somewhat phenomenal."

"It's great to see that all these swimmers are from North Carolina. You know, this state loses so many swimmers to other areas. But I hope this is the beginning of a change. I seriously doubt that four native North Carolinians have ever gone to the nationals at one time."

Scharf is obviously pleased, but certainly no more so than the swimmers themselves. None had expected such a thrilling finish for this season.

"What a way to end my career at East Carolina," said Vail. "It's just a great honor and another chance for me. I was sick during the regionals and did not swim well at all, which was a big disappointment for me, since we put so much emphasis all year on the regionals. I hope I will show just what I can do this weekend."

The other veteran, Ross Bohlken, added, "One can say the nationals are the ultimate in any athletic career. It's definitely the most outstanding thing I've done or accomplished. There's no doubt in my mind that some of the world's greatest swimmers will be there. To be among the stars is a great feeling. And to be among the low percentage of swimmers to make the nationals should be an inspiration to the team."

For the young Thorne, it's a great achievement in the words of Scharf. "Billy came here with no scholarship and not near the credentials of others. He just wanted to make the traveling squad. He did that but much more. He cut 5-6 seconds off his 100-yard event times, which is fantastic."

Said Thorne, "I never gave the idea of going to the nationals any thought at all until after Christmas. All I was trying to do was cut down my times this year. It's a big privilege to be associated with the calibre of swimmers up there."

Indeed a privilege. But one earned by all four with Scharf's favorite line this season—another new record.

Lee Woodard Rallies To Win

BLACK CREEK—Lee Woodard rallied in the bottom of the seventh to hand Robersonville its second Eastern Plains Conference loss yesterday, 9-8.

The Eagles had grabbed an early lead, lost then, then struggled back to take an 8-6 lead into the bottom of the final inning, only to lose it and the game.

The lost left Robersonville with a 2-2 league mark and a 2-4 overall record.

Robersonville grabbed the lead in the first inning, scoring a pair of runs. Reid Bullock walked and Neno Hayes reached on a fielder's choice, with Ricky Spruill running for him. Carl Bullock then doubled, driving in Reid Bullock and Hayes.

Lee Woodard came up with one in the second. Michael Pearson reached on a two-base error and Fred Yelverton walked. Ricky Batts also walked, to load the bases.

Another walk, to Randy Hooks, forced over Pearson.

Robersonville picked up its third run in the fourth. Robin Fowler reached on a two base error and Charlie Smith was safe on another miscue. Warren singled and a hit by Carl Bullock scored Fowler.

Lee Woodard rallied for five big runs in the bottom of the fourth to take a 6-3 lead. Pearson doubled and Yelverton got a hit. Batts singled, driving in Pearson. Hooks followed with another hit, loading the bases.

Tim Bardin walked, forcing in Yelverton. Jim Lewis reached on an error, and Batts came in. Jimmy Williams was safe on another error, scoring both Hooks and Bardin.

Pearson singled in Crocker with the tying run, and Yelverton reached on an error, letting Pearson score the game-winning run.

Prices range from $35 for a $24 set to more than $100 a set. "I've got four sets of tickets and I've been offered $250," said one scalper. "I'd like to get $1,000, but I know I'll get at least $300."

The Syracuse, Louisville and Kentucky squads arrive today with John Wooden's Bruins arriving a day later. They won't find things at a fever pitch, but the excitement has been building, in low key, for weeks.

For the last several days, the spring training of the San Diego Padres has had to share top billing on the sport pages of the largest area newspapers with stories about the basketball finals. This week, it threatens to be overwhelmed completely as local sports writers take almost whole pages to discuss the relative strengths and weaknesses of the four basketball finalists.

Farmville Tops Hawks By 7-5

WHEAT SWAMP — Farmville Central held off a North Lenoir rally in the fourth inning yesterday and came away with a 7-5 victory over the Hawks.

The win was the fourth this year for the Jaguars, who have lost once. In Eastern Carolina Conference play, the victory raised the Farmville Central record to 3-1.

Farmville pushed over two runs in the first inning to take the lead. Mike Jenkins singled and stole second. Tommy Cobb singled, driving in Jenkins, but Cobb later went down. Bobby Wooten singled and came around to score on David Rigby's hit.

In the third, Farmville added another run. Cobb singled and moved up on Wooten's hit. Rigby doubled, driving in Cobb for a 3-0 lead.

The Jaguars pushed over another run in the top of the fourth for a 4-0 lead. Ricky Smith singled and Arthur Barnes ran for him. Jenkins reached on an error, and Barnes raced home with the run.

But North Lenoir turned in a five-run rally in the bottom of the fourth to push into a 5-4 lead. Mike Eubanks singled and Herman Spence got a hit. Jeff Daniels followed with another, scoring Eubanks. Pete Avery singled, scoring Spence. Tim Aycock doubled in Daniels, but Avery was put out. Mike Jones walked and stole second. Linwood Forbes then singled, driving in both Aycock and Jones.

Farmville put its own rally together in the sixth, scoring three runs to go back ahead, this time for good. Ricky Shreve doubled and David Winborn's hit moved him to third. Winborn stole second. Scott Evans sacrificed in Shreve, and Ricky Smith sacrificed in Winborn. Mike Jenkins then provided insurance by hitting a solo home run.

Familiar Names May Be Missing

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The names are familiar: Ron Hunt, Juan Pizarro, Mel Stottlemire, Dick Allen. None could be around this season.

The St. Louis Cardinals placed veteran infielder Ron Hunt on waivers Wednesday to give him his unconditional release. Hunt, 34, broke into the majors with the New York Mets in 1963 and was one of the first stars of the expansion club, batting .303 in 1964.

After stints with Los Angeles, San Francisco and Montreal, Hunt was traded to the Cardinals last September, batting .174 in 12 games.

Pizarro, who broke into the majors with the Milwaukee Braves in 1957, was sent to the Pittsburgh minor league camp along with pitcher John Moran, who made 39 relief appearances for the Pirates last season. It was not immediately known if Pizarro would accept the demotion.

Stottlemire, the former New York Yankee ace pitcher, hurt his shoulder last year, missing most of the season. Wednesday, he tried throwing again, but without much success.

"Will you be ready for opening day?" Stottlemire was asked.

"Yeah," he dejectedly answered, "but for what?" Yankee Manager Bill Virdon is expected to make a decision on Stottlemire next week when he expects to be down to the 25-man limit each club is allowed to carry during the regular season.

Then there's Dick Allen. "I'm available," he said.

The question is, is there anyone who wants him, despite his long-ball hitting power?

Traded by the Chicago White Sox to the Atlanta Braves last fall, Allen says he does not want to play in Atlanta and refuses to beg for a job.

But he also said: "Baseball I like, and I'd like to play."

In Wednesday's exhibition games, the Detroit Tigers took it on the chin twice, losing to Kansas City 5-1 and to the Boston Red Sox 3-2.

In other games, San Francisco blanked Milwaukee 4-0, Philadelphia stopped Minnesota 3-1, Pittsburgh whitewashed St. Louis 4-0, Texas edged Atlanta 3-2, Los Angeles nipped Cincinnati 10-9, the New York Mets topped the New York Yankees 5-2, Baltimore clipped the Chicago White Sox 8-5, and Montreal squeezed by Houston 4-3.

Prices range from $35 for a $24 set to more than $100 a set. "I've got four sets of tickets and I've been offered $250," said one scalper. "I'd like to get $1,000, but I know I'll get at least $300."

The Syracuse, Louisville and Kentucky squads arrive today with John Wooden's Bruins arriving a day later. They won't find things at a fever pitch, but the excitement has been building, in low key, for weeks.

For the last several days, the spring training of the San Diego Padres has had to share top billing on the sport pages of the largest area newspapers with stories about the basketball finals. This week, it threatens to be overwhelmed completely as local sports writers take almost whole pages to discuss the relative strengths and weaknesses of the four basketball finalists.

Greenville Boys Choir Is Learning And Rehearsing

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
They're getting to know each other and are learning to sing together. About 40 young area boys, most of them from Greenville, on Monday night completed their third weekly period of rehearsal at the A.J. Fletcher

Music Building on campus at East Carolina University.

The boys, all between the ages of nine and 12, are members of the newly formed Greenville Boys' Choir. David Burns directs the choir, and Mrs. Karen Hause is accompanist.

The idea of forming a boys' choir in Greenville has been in the mill for some time. It gained impetus last spring when local boys were recruited for the performance of Bernstein's Mass on campus.

A number of interested citizens continued to keep the idea alive, and several months ago moved to form a committee to formulate concrete plans. Seven persons were named to the committee—Mrs. Frances Cain, Mrs. Karen Hause, Mrs. Janice Buck, Dr. E. Robert Irwin, Dr. Everett Pittman, Dr. Charles Moore and Larry Talbert. Mrs. Hause was elected chairman.

"We worked on getting support," Mrs. Hause said, "and when Mrs. Buck in December contributed $2,500 we were able to immediately move ahead with plans to hold auditions and look for a director."

During January and February public auditions were held followed by auditions in the Greenville schools. From these try-outs, Burns was able to get the number of boys needed to form a beginning choir.

Burns, a 1970 graduate of the School of Music, ECU, taught music in the Kinston school system after graduation. Later he was Minister of Music at the First Presbyterian Church in Washington. He still directs the Washington County Choral Society.

"I auditioned about 300 boys, and from that number drew 41," David said. "We plan to keep the membership at about 40." David plans to build the group slowly, "one step at a time to build a solid foundation."

"We're meeting every Monday now, but when summer comes we'll most likely meet every other Monday. I hope within the next month or so to have the boys appear in public, perhaps singing at a church. This will give them exposure to the people, and will give them a chance to perform what they've learned."

David said the two compositions they have started working on are British Grenadier and I Vow To Thee My Country. "The latter will be a good number to perform during American Bicentennial celebrations," David noted.

Mrs. Hause is busy now completing forms to send to the North Carolina Council of the Arts. "We hope to be able to get a matching grant," she said. "The committee is still seeking public support and welcomes any assistance. "All contributions are tax deductible," she added "since we're a registered non-profit organization."

Mrs. Hause expressed appreciation to officials at ECU "who have been most helpful in letting us use their facilities."

REHEARSAL . . . is held every Monday night for the 40 young area boys making up the newly formed Greenville Boys' Choir. Here director David Burns conducts a rehearsal. Some of the young

New Economic Outlook By 'Calamity Janeway'

By EDWARD CRAIG
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Eliot Janeway may not have all the answers to the country's economic problems, but it isn't for lack of trying.

In his varied roles of author, lecturer and columnist, Janeway for years has been preaching a brand of economic liberalism — "not irresponsibility" — that has won him countless admirers and adherents.

"Basically, I deal and act on facts. And the way to get facts is simply by asking the right questions."

For instance? "How do we get out of the oil-price mess we're now in, thanks largely to (Secretary of State Henry) Kissinger?"

"Answer —break up OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries)."

The fact is, Kaneway says, "all we have to do is simply refuse to give the Arabs what we have if they refuse to put their oil within a reasonable price range. We have food. They need food . . . spare parts for their planes and other equipment. We should say to them, 'We'll deal with you on a barter basis, our quid for your quo.'"

"And they won't refuse. They might squeal a little bit, but they'll give in. They're cheating on one another right now anyway, despite the bold front they seem to be putting on."

Janeway's distaste for Kissinger is no secret and he dismisses the secretary as simply a "public relations man."

Janeway and his wife, author Elizabeth Janeway, live and work in a town house off Fifth Avenue just east of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Janeway's working quarters are on the fourth floor, his wife's on the third, with the rest of the house given over to dining, sleeping and office space. A switchboard is just inside the entrance to the gray stone structure, and a full-time operator attends it for the "mini-corporation" housed within. An automatic elevator connects the floors.

The Janeways, both New Yorkers and now in their early 60s, met at a party while she was a college senior and he was newly arrived from the London School of Economics. He wrote for magazines until the mid 1950s when he started a newsletter service. Mrs. Janeway is the author of six novels (Daisy Kenyon probably the most famous) and four children's books. They have two children: Michael, managing editor of the Atlantic, and William, an economist. The children visit often.

When their parents are not too busy, that is, Janeway says he finds his relaxation in "work."

"We're busy here —motioning a hand to his book-lined study —"from morning to night." Weekends, too. They fit lectures into the busy schedule; he was the first to venture on the lecture circuit, she followed, and now they combine appearances when possible. Mrs. Janeway is an ardent feminist (a term she detests) and she and her husband are a socio-economic package of particular appeal these days.

Aside from the financial benefits all this labor produces (their town house alone reportedly is worth more than a half million dollars), Janeway says he gets satisfaction in seeing his ideas and his predictions become reality.

For instance, he forecast the 1962 and 1970 drops in the stock market and sees the current market going into a tailspin this year. He smiles when reminded

SELF-SERVICE

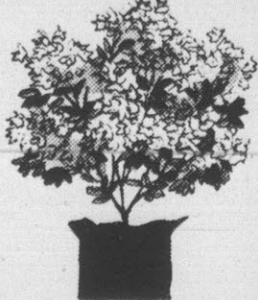

ROME (UPI) — The Italian State Railways is planning to introduce 20 self-service dining cars during 1975, to replace the traditional full-service dining car on various runs. Travelers will be able to buy hot and cold meals at modest prices in the new cars. The old-type full-service cars will be maintained on TEE trains and some other international expresses.

Feet 'Clue' To Diabetes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Feet often give off the first clues about diabetes.

Dr. Edward Stamm, president of the Podiatry Society of New York, said the telltale signs may include any of the following.

1. Lack of pulses in the feet. When pulses are difficult to detect at the instep or behind the inner ankle, it could mean hardening of the arteries and the presence of diabetes.

The pulse can be taken in two places in the foot —using the second and third fingers. One pulse point is behind and just inside of the ankle bone; the second is high on the instep, in the area between the first and second toes.

The pulse that is taken in the foot will have exactly the same count as when it is taken on the wrist: both are determined by the beat of the heart.

2. Dry, brittle skin and nails, the result of inadequate blood supply.

3. A burning tingling sensation in the toes. This results when the sugar level in the blood is abnormally high.

4. A slowness in the healing of cuts and bruises on the foot. Diabetics do not heal as quickly as nondiabetics.

Dr. Stamm said once diabetes is discovered, the patient must pay particular attention to his feet —since the slightest nick or abrasion can lead to serious disability.

KENYA GETS GRANT
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The European Economic Community is to make a $6-million grant to Kenya to offset the effects of inflation aggravated by spiraling oil prices, it was announced here.

Kenya is one of 17 developing nations to benefit from a fund channeled through the U.N. Emergency Program. The EEC contributed about $73 million to the program, of which $30 million will remain in the U.N. Special Fund.

How Tar Heel Representatives And Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 13 through March 19.

House
STRIP MINING Passed, 333 for and 86 against, a bill (HR 25) setting stricter federal controls on the strip mining of coal. HR 25 now goes to conference with the Senate. President Ford vetoed similar legislation last December, but there is no indication yet that he will also veto HR 25.

The legislation seeks to minimize environmental damage caused by strip mining, notably in Appalachia, at a time when strip mining has been intensified to meet energy demands. The bill has provisions to reclaim old strip mining sites through a tax on current mine operators, prevent water contamination, return future strip-mined land to its approximate original condition, and prevent strip mining in national parks and on land which cannot be reclaimed.

Supporters said there is an urgent need to prevent the "environmental devastation" caused by irresponsible strip mining. They said long-term destruction of healthy land and water is too high a price to pay for short-term energy gains, since coal obtainable through strip mining is a small portion of the nation's total coal reserves.

Many opponents agreed with Rep. Sam Steiger (R-Ariz.) who criticized his colleagues for "prattling about saving the earth's surfaces." He said retail utility costs would rise an estimated 15 percent if the legislation were enacted. Rep. Ken Hechler (D-W.Va.), a vocal foe of strip mining, opposed the bill as being too weak.

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3) Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Ross (D-7), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

MOUNTAIN MINING Rejected, 136 for and 262 against, an amendment to phase-out strip mining for coal on steeply sloped land. Under the amendment, no new strip mining permits would have been issued for slopes with a steepness of 20 degrees or more, and in three years a ban on such strip mining would have taken effect. The pro-environment amendment was proposed to HR 25 (above).

Supporters cited a Stanford University study which said strip mining on slopes steeper than 20 degrees drastically increases flooding, mud slides, landslides, water pollution and acid drainage. Rep. Glays Spellman (D-Md.), the sponsor, said the amendment would reduce the nation's available coal reserves by only one percent and encourage revitalization of many deep mining operations which have been "put out of business by the more profitable strip mining."

Opponents said the amendment amounted to "environmental overkill" because its parent bill adequately provides for the reclamation of all strip-mined land. Rep. Morris Udall (D-Ariz.) said it would set an "arbitrary standard" which would lessen the bill's chances of becoming law.

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Neal, Preyer, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay."

Andrews and Rose did not vote.

ELECTION COMMISSION Confirmed, 366 for and 43 against, the nomination of Neil Staebler to be one of six members of the new Federal Elections Commission. The other five were confirmed by voice vote. A conservative faction demanded a roll call vote on Staebler, a former Democratic congressman from Michigan who had been nominated to the commission by President Ford. The Federal Elections Commission has been formed to administer the 1974 Federal Election Campaign Act, the post-Watergate reform law regulating campaign finances. Members of the commission are to serve staggered terms of six years. A resolution (H Res 314) subsequently was passed by voice vote to confirm Neil Staebler, Joan Aikens, Robert Tiernan, Thomas Harris, Vernon Thomsen and Thomas Curtis and was sent to the Senate.

One supporter, Rep. Wayne Hays (D-Ohio), said all six nominees would "do a good job" because "they have not spent their lifetimes in ivory towers wondering why the government did not function better; they got out and tried to improve the system by getting involved in the political process."

One opponent, Rep. William Dickinson (R-Ala.), questioned Staebler's "soundness of judgment" on the basis of the nominee's "ultraliberal" background. He cited Staebler's affiliations with the Unitarian Church, the National Municipal League, the American Political Science Association, the United Conference of Christians and Jews, the American Civil Liberties Union, the American Economic Association, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and Common Cause.

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea." Martin did not vote.

Senate
DEPLETION ALLOWANCE Passed, 47 for and 41 against, an amendment ending the 22 percent depletion allowance for companies producing more than 3,000 barrels of oil and 18 million cubic feet of natural gas a day. Smaller producers ("independents") would still receive the tax break, which is designed to compensate a producer for diminishing reserves and encourage exploration for new resources.

The move to repeal originated in the House, where the controversial allowance was ended for all producers, small ones as well as large ones. The amendment was attached to emergency "anti-recession" legislation (HR 2166).

One supporter, Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Montana), said that the nation's gas and oil exploration, now done mostly by smaller companies, would falter if the House's blanket repeal were enacted. Like Mansfield, most supporters favored ending the allowance for major companies but not for the smaller "independents."

Opponents were of several minds. Some favored the House language while others opposed any repeal. Sen. Ernest Hollings (D-S.C.) said the independents received the same recent windfall profits as the major oil companies, and hardly deserved "endangered species" treatment.

Sens. Robert Morgan (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea." AID TO INDOCHINA Rejected, 30 for and 65 against, an amendment to increase the fiscal 1975 appropriations for postwar reconstruction aid to Indochina from $440 million to $449 million. Vietnam is the primary recipient of the funds which are earmarked chiefly for agricultural and industrial purposes. The amendment was proposed to a foreign aid appropriations bill (HR 4592), subsequently passed and sent to conference with the House.

Supporters noted that $440 million was appropriated earlier by Congress, and said the $9 million increment was needed to meet obligations during the final quarter of the fiscal year. Sen. Daniel Inouye (D-Hawaii) reminded his colleagues that the Administration originally requested $939.8 million in fiscal 1975 Indochina aid.

Opponents said increasing aid to Vietnam would encourage the fighting and delay implementation of the Paris peace agreement. Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.) said, "It is a kind of misnomer to refer to Indochina postwar reconstruction in the middle of a war."

Morgan voted "yea." Helms voted "nay."

FOOD AID Adopted, 53 for and 41 against, an amendment to increase the fiscal 1975 appropriation for food and nutrition programs in foreign countries from $350 million to $450 million. The amendment was attached to the foreign aid appropriations bill (HR 4592 above).

Supporters said the higher appropriation was needed to combat the heightened worldwide food and energy crisis, and to meet U.S. commitments made at the world food conference held last year in Rome. Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.), the sponsor, said, "If we close our eyes to the severity of the food crisis, we will be doing it at our peril."

One opponent, Sen. Daniel Inouye (D-Hawaii), said it was imprudent to appropriate more funds because "three-quarters of the fiscal year have already expired." He said money spent so far has not advanced the objective of making "poor countries self-sufficient" and "able to feed themselves." Morgan voted "yea." Helms voted "nay."

Death By Kidney Disease Less Certain, But Limited Victory

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Only 10 years ago, chronic kidney disease still meant a tragic march to blood poisoning, kidney failure and death.

Now death is being cheated in two major ways.

One is with the artificial kidney, purifying the blood in a special machine. The second is by borrowing and transplanting a kidney from a relative or some deceased person.

But these victories are limited. Prolonging human life with an artificial kidney, called dialysis, costs $7,000 to $30,000 annually. Soon there may be 50,000 to 60,000 Americans depending on these machines, instead of the 15,000 dependent now. And the supply of donated kidneys is small, only 2,500 to 3,000 a year available now. The transplants do not always take.

So a third salvation is being sought — how to prevent kidney failure in the first place. Here the main roadblock is the same as in some other stalled diseases. Something happens to make the body's immunity or defense system turn against itself, to destroy its own tissues or organs rather than to protect them.

And this is the cause of 50 to 60 per cent of serious or fatal kidney disease. Kidney failure kills 60,000 Americans annually.

It's the fifth leading cause of death, after heart disease, cancer, stroke, and accidents.

"We need basic research badly to solve the problems," says Dr. Benjamin T. Burton. "Otherwise we will wind up with expensive treatments. We would have had to keep thousands of people in iron lungs if polio vaccines hadn't been found."

Dr. Burton is chief of the artificial kidney program of the National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic and Digestive Diseases here.

The kidney is a remarkable jack-of-many trades. It doesn't only purify the blood and form urine. It is a biochemical thermostat. It plays a role in forming red blood cells, in regulating the balance of salts and electrolytes in the blood, in governing blood pressure, in regulating the amount of water in blood and tissues and in balancing the body's acidity and alkalinity.

In 24 hours, a pair of kidneys filters 180 to 200 quarts of fluids, excreting two as urine. The kidneys excrete about as much solid waste matter as does the colon.

And all this is done by an organ about the size of an adult's hand. The average kidney is 4½ inches long, 2½ inches wide, and 1½ inches thick.

A pair of kidneys contain two million structural units called nephrons, consisting of a microscopic tuft of blood vessels, the glomerulus, encased in a tiny bowl that opens into a small tubule, with two million tubules stretching 140 miles. This is the filtration plant removing impurities from blood and putting some needed chemicals back in.

Half of all the nephrons can be knocked out of action, but the kidneys still can function. Serious disease can exist with no obvious symptoms at all. By one estimate, two to three million Americans have kidney ailments and don't know it.

While more than half of serious disease is blamed on a haywire immune system, "we don't know the basic cause," Dr. Burton says. "The only thing we can do right now is to try to calm it down, put it to sleep with drugs such as steroids."

Certain strains of germs causing "strep" sore throats are believed to be one cause of the faulty immune response, he adds. One protein material in streptococcal germs is very similar to a protein in the walls of the kidney's glomeruli. So antibodies formed against the strep germs also attack the kidney tissue.

After a second or third strep infection, the kidneys may fail. In 90 per cent of these cases, the damage is overcome but in others the initial damage is severe enough to lead to kidney failure, says Dr. Ira Greifer, medical director of the National Kidney Foundation and director of pediatrics at the Hospital of Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York City.

Viruses may be involved in the assaults on the kidneys, but no one is quite sure yet how, or why many people recover while others don't.

About five per cent of all kidney disease is due to congenital malformations. Better surgery is helping to overcome some such defects.

Curiously, one hereditary disease, polycystic kidney disease, shows no signs of trouble until people are over 30, an age at which they probably have produced children likely to inherit the same disease. The kidney tubules become obstructed, and urine backs up, leaning to cysts that destroy kidney tissue.

Dr. Greifer and associates are using a computer to classify various forms of kidney disease, to identify those best treated with what drug, to develop the story of who gets kidney diseases, why, and how to treat them.

"There's lots of research on the basic level now. Maybe we will turn up bonuses that contribute to progress in cancer research, or in arthritis. Maybe findings from cancer research will help us."

The borrowing of kidneys to save lives began 20 years ago, and now nearly 12,000 Americans have received transplanted kidneys, and the world total is nearly 19,000, says the National Kidney Foundation.

But there is a major shortage of kidneys donated after death, or given during life to someone else in a family. And transplants can fail.

"We are still stalled on the problem of tissue rejection," says Dr. Greifer. "But many specialists are trying to solve various aspects of the problem, looking for better typing and matching of tissues, more effective drugs to prevent rejection, or infections leading to complications or infections."

As for dialysis, "We are getting a new group of 10,000 suitable patients a year," Dr. Burton reports. Dialysis patients have their blood purified two to three times a week, in hookups lasting six to 10 hours as blood flows from a vein through the machine and back into the patient.

The federal government now pays about 80 per cent of the costs of both dialysis and kidney transplantation. Many specialists are urging more rapid development of home treatments, which is less expensive than going to specialized centers. Family members are trained to operate and clean the dialysis machines.

Veto Threat Hangs Over Emergency Farm Aid Bill

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The threat of a presidential veto hangs over an emergency farm-aid bill which the Agriculture Department says will raise the price of dairy products. The bill is headed for a House-Senate compromise.

stating that the measure is contrary to the administration's goal of a free market, has said he would recommend that President Ford veto the measure.

The bill goes to a House-Senate conference to resolve differences with a House-passed bill that offered lower support levels.

The Senate version also bans the import of foreign-bred beef temporarily in an attempt to increase the level of support that dairy producers and most other farmers can expect from the government if farm prices fall.

The Agriculture Department has said the bill's support level is too high and could bring about a milk price increase of 10 cents a gallon within one year. Secretary Earl L. Butz, portation, advertising and labor costs.

Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., said the bill was needed to protect the agriculture industry from "an economic situation as hopeless as the Great Depression."

He said production costs have increased an average of 35 per cent over the past two years, while weakened demand and increased production are reducing prices paid for agricultural products.

The Senate bill would raise the level of parity for the dairy industry from 80 per cent to 85 per cent; increase the target price for cotton; add a higher parity level for tobacco production, and extend the life of the bill from one year to three years — all of which the Agriculture Department said would increase costs to the government and consumers.

The bill's supporters argued that inflation would bear primary responsibility for any increases, not the higher level of government support.

Parity is a price level set by the Agriculture Department at which a farmer should be able to make a profit on his product.

Establishment of an 85 per cent parity level means that if the market price of the product falls below 85 per cent of the theoretical parity price the government begins buying up the product to force the market price up to the 85 per cent level.

The target price involves a government guarantee to producers that if the free market price for a commodity falls below a target price set by law, the government will make up the difference to the producers.

Press Cites 3 'Motives'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Beirut newspapers today offered three possible motives for Tuesday's assassination of King Faisal of Saudi Arabia by his nephew, Prince Faisal Ibn Musaed.

An Nahar reported that the prince was engaged to marry a daughter of the late King Saud, Faisal's older brother, who was dethroned in 1964.

The paper said the prince and Princess Sitta Bint Saud were to be married in Riyadh, the Saudi capital, later this week.

An Nahar also reported that Prince Faisal had frequently written to his uncle complaining that his $3,500 monthly allowance from the Saudi treasury was insufficient, "but his repeated requests for a raise were ignored."

Another newspaper, Al Bayrak, quoted informed Saudi sources as saying the Saudi government had banned Prince Faisal from leaving the country because his "excessive drinking and eccentric behavior might hurt the kingdom's reputation abroad."

Investigators are acting on the theory that the assassination may have been in retaliation for the ban, the paper added.

Drill Team Placed 2nd

D. H. Conley High School's JROTC Drill Teams placed second in overall competition in an invitational drill meet at Campbell College Saturday.

The meeting was conducted by the members of the Campbell College Pershing Rifles group.

The Boys' Drill Team, commanded by Cadet Capt. Cleveland Edwards, placed second in the regulation platoon drill with weapons and second in fancy squad drill with weapons. The Girls' Drill Team, commanded by Cadet 1st Lt. Evelyn Mitchell, took third in the fancy platoon drill without weapons and second in the overall competition for girls.

In individual drill, Cadet Sgt. M. Mike McClanahan placed second in the fancy individual with weapon competition and Cadet Major Mike Clendenen placed fourth in the individual regulation drill competition.

Fifty Pints Of Blood Donated

LITTLEFIELD—Fifty pints of blood were collected here Wednesday during the Bloodmobile visit to Ayden-Grifton High School.

Pitt Blood chairman Billy Ross said the visit resulted in good student participation with 34 giving blood but the small turnout of residents in the Ayden and Grifton areas kept the total from climbing.

He said that in addition to the 34 students, nine teachers donated blood and seven residents of the community turned out in support of the school blood drive. There were also 14 persons rejected during the visit for various health reasons, it was noted.

Yesterday's donors included 18 students in the 17-year-old age category and 16 in the 18-year-old bracket. Ross said that he was "pleased with the student turnout."

He noted that the Ayden-Grifton visit was hampered in much the same way as Tuesday's drive at Farmville Central as many students were involved in sports and were not able to donate. Ross said that he hoped to schedule later visits at a time when a major sport is not in season at the school.

Ross thanked principal Bill Wiggins for providing the facilities for the visit and he also expressed his appreciation to the volunteer nurses and others who assisted in the blood drive. The visit was sponsored by the school Task Force.

DENTIN NEW POST—Former Secretary of Commerce Frederick B. Dent was sworn in Wednesday as special representative of the President for trade negotiations in a White House ceremony.

Bus Making A Comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) — The humble but handy bus, long eclipsed in commuting supremacy by agile autos, is making a dramatic comeback, reports the Road Information Program.

One cause of the bus's new popularity is a federal program that pays 80 per cent of the purchase costs. Signs of the bus's resurgence are everywhere. Minibuses, cheaper and more maneuverable than the standard 40-footers, already are fixtures in downtown Washington and in many suburban communities. Extra-long "articulated" buses that bend in the middle are being test-driven around the country.

Some cities, such as New York, Chicago and Detroit, are casting a nostalgic eye back to double-decker buses that were popular until about 25 years ago. Other innovations in bus travel include dial-a-ride.

Pvt. John E. Ebron, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Ebron of Rt. 1, Greenville, participated in an Arbor Day ceremony at Ft. Benning, Ga. He and other members of the 197th Infantry Brigade planted 7,000 evergreen trees as part of the activities. Ebron is a rifleman in the brigade.

Top Security For Art Cargo

DETROIT, Mich. (UPI) — Top security blanketed the six flights that transported 150 art treasures here from the Louvre in Paris for the "Age of Revolution" exhibition which will be at the Detroit Museum of Art until May 4th.

The $55-million insurance contract stipulated that no more than one-sixth of the canvases could be flown across the Atlantic at one time.

The exhibition spans French history from 1773 to 1830 and includes paintings on loan from 96 public and private collections. Among the artists represented are neoclassicist Jacques-Louis David and Eugene Delacroix.

Nor Preventive Neither Cure

CHICAGO (UPI) — Vitamin C will not prevent or cure the common cold. Further, it has not been proved that massive doses of vitamin C are safe. And even if vitamin C did prevent or reduce the discomfort of colds, it would be necessary to take two capsules or tablets three times a day for the rest of one's life to make it work.

These are the conclusions of two reports in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

my in the event South did not hold the ace of diamonds. To prevent this from happening, West shifted to a trump at trick two. The jack was played from the board and East duly "covered an honor with an honor", his queen losing to declarer's king. A heart was led to the ace, and West did the best he could by continuing another trump, in the hope that East had a trump higher than dummy's eight. Unfortunately this was not the case, and when the hearts divided evenly declarer was able to discard both his diamonds, thus making an over-trick.

West is to be congratulated for an enterprising defense. Had he not shifted to a trump at trick two, declarer could have set up the queen of hearts and then reached dummy by ruffing one of his club winners to obtain a discard on the queen of hearts. It was East who fell from grace when he instinctively covered dummy's jack of spades at trick two.

There was nothing to gain by covering the first spade. However, withholding the queen might, as was the case here, prevent declarer from using his second spade as an entry to dummy. Had East followed low, declarer would have been helpless. He can cross to his hand with the ace of clubs and lead another heart, but West would win the ace and continue a trump. Now East's queen would force declarer to win in his hand. Left to his own devices, declarer would have to lose two diamond tricks and the contract.

We all tend to be creatures of habit. East fell victim to a simple reflex action on this hand and allowed South to get away with an unmakeable four spade contract.

In terms of trick-taking ability, South's hand was close to a demand bid. However, the high-card count was considerably short of that, so South contented himself with an opening bid of one spade. When North could do no more than respond one no trump, South gave up all thoughts of slam and simply bid what he thought he might make.

West led the king of hearts, and when the queen appeared in dummy, he paused to consider his next action. There was a real possibility that declarer could use the queen of hearts for a discard, with a club ruff serving as an entry to dum-

Archaeological Puzzle In Peru Damaged By Careless Tourists

By STEPHEN MORROW
LIMA (UPI) — Careless tourists have destroyed large sections of the Nazca lines, perhaps the most baffling legacy of the pre-Columbian Indians of Peru.

away surface rocks and exposed the yellowish subsoil in furrows less than one foot deep.

In recent years, sightseers by the thousands have passed through the Nazca plain, which lies right off the PanAmerican highway. Car tracks and footprints have obliterated parts of the best known figures and some tourists have added their own "lines" to the 1,500-year-old figures.

The Peruvian government's National Institute of Culture recently began a protection program. Plans include fulltime guards, licensed guides, an observation tower and an Precisely proportioned designs of animals and birds range up to 300 yards in diameter. They can be seen in their entirety only from an airplane or a helicopter.

Narrow rectangles and triangles stretch more than a mile, inspiring one imaginative writer to speculate they were landing strips for extra-terrestrial visitors. Lines up to six miles long criss-cross the plain, so straight that modern measuring equipment can detect no deviation.

The wind-swept plain, a few miles from the Pacific, is covered with millions of reddish stones and rocks. The drawers of the lines simply scooped perfect proportion.

She and some archaeologists think the lines were constructed by scholar priests of a sun and star worshipping culture to point to the horizons where the heavenly bodies rose and set. Some of the drawings may represent constellations, according to this theory.

Computer analysis shows only a random correspondence between the lines and the position of sun, moon and stars in the years before 500 A.D. However, no thorough computer study can be made until a complete aerial map is made of the Nazca lines.

At the National Institute of Culture, officials say that the expenses of saving and studying the Nazca Lines may go beyond the slim resources that their poor nation can give to the task. They would welcome help from other nations and private individuals.

Some assistance is already on the way. A German foundation is funding "The International Association to Save the Nazca Lines," and Mrs. Remi Messer, wife of the director of New York's Guggenheim Museum, is organizing a benefit tour of the archaeological sites of Peru to raise money to protect the lines.

Elected, And He Likes The Work

By JENNIFER KERR
Associated Press Writer
SPENCER, W. Va. (AP) — Robey Jack Knight was 25 and roaming from job to job when he nonchalantly allowed his name to be put on the Democratic ballot for sheriff "just to fill the ticket" in overwhelmingly Republican Roane County.

after he was elected, he has changed the three-person department's focus from tax collection to law enforcement and says he can't imagine not being a sheriff.

When he was a child, he never dreamed of police work, he said. "I wanted to be a coach."

A Roane County native, he did play football and baseball for Spencer High School, and joined the Army upon graduation. After he got out in 1969, he briefly tried college. He sold insurance in Oak Hill for four months, then moved back to Spencer to help his mother with her grocery store in nearby Left Hand until the May 1973 primary.

Troublesome Problems Await Return Of Congress

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When it reconvenes April 7 after a 10-day recess, Congress will face troublesome problems on energy, military aid for Southeast Asia and further measures to counter the recession.

The recess began today after the legislators met late Wednesday night to approve a $24.8 billion tax cut measure designed to stimulate the economy.

So far the 94th Congress has been far busier than is normally the case in the first session of a new Congress. And the frenetic activity appears likely to continue after the recess.

Soon after the new Congress convened in January, Ford confronted the lawmakers with far-reaching proposals on the economy and on energy.

The legislators agreed fully with him on the need for a big tax cut, though the tax-cut bill finally passed Wednesday night was larger than what Ford had asked for.

But on energy policy there were sharp differences between the administration and the legislators and among the legislators.

The President proposed to cut down on oil imports by raising tariffs in three steps and freeing domestic oil from price controls.

Congressional leaders denounced this plan as highly inflationary and undertook to draft their own conservation proposals.

Finally Ford agreed to postpone the last two tariff hikes and to try to work out a compromise with Congress.

The House Ways and Means Committee already has started work on such a compromise bill and plans to resume its drafting soon after the recess.

Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., is pushing a plan for a 37-cent increase in the gasoline tax, now 4 cents a gallon, to try to reduce consumption. A portion of this would be rebated to consumers. However, there is strong opposition to this plan in the House, and some observers say that Ullman's hopes for quick action may be over-optimistic. Ford is pressing Congress to provide additional military aid for Cambodia and South Vietnam, but the prospects are highly uncertain because of substantial sentiment among the majority Democrats against further aid, particularly for Cambodia. Some Republican members of Congress have criticized the Democrats for failing to act on Ford's Indochina aid request before the recess. Soon after the recess, the Senate is to debate a bill to provide $82.5 million for Cambodia, much less than the $222 million asked by the President. The House Committee on International Relations has opposed that bill but may reconsider. The President's request for $300 million extra for South Vietnam has so far received no consideration.
