

Airlift From Da Nang Is Halted By Panicky Mobs

Tax Decision A 'Tough Call' For President

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Da Nang's military commander ordered his men today to shoot to kill anyone causing disturbances in the threatened northern city as rioting mobs forced the suspension of the American airlift of refugees. The U.S. consulate in Da Nang also closed.

Some shots were fired in the isolated city, but there was no information on any casualties.

The Saigon command said its forces repulsed a North Vietnamese tank attack on Da Nang's southern defense perimeter, about 25 miles south of the city. Elsewhere, the Communists succeeded in capturing Lam Dong Province, in the lower central highlands 90 miles northeast of Saigon, overran a former U.S. base camp on the central coastal plain and threatened another district capital there.

Lam Dong is the 12th of South Vietnam's 44 provinces lost to the Communists since the start of the year. These plus areas in a number of other provinces give the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong control of more than half of South Vietnam's territory of 66,263 square miles, including all the northern provinces except the city of Da Nang and all the central part of the country except the coastal strip.

In Cambodia, the U.S. airlift to the besieged capital of Phnom Penh was suspended temporarily after the heaviest rebel shelling attack at the airport in two weeks killed two persons and wounded five, officials said. None of the American planes was hit.

On the Cambodian political front, several hundred students staged the sharpest antigovernment demonstration in months, equating American aid with the continuing war and demanding a change of government in Phnom Penh. The rally came shortly after the government shut all schools in Phnom Penh on security grounds.

The U.S. Embassy in Saigon was reported not receiving any reports from Da Nang because the consulate was closed.

Sources said the consul general, Al Francis, was safe and in the Da Nang area with a handful of other consular officials.

The informants said more than 300 Americans, including about 85 officials assigned to the consulate, had been evacuated during the past two days in anticipation either of a North Vietnamese attack or a complete breakdown of law and order in Da Nang.

Despite the suspension of the airlift from Da Nang, sources said the CIA airline, Air America, flew three planes into an airstrip on the coast about four miles east of the main Da Nang airport, and lifted out about 300

Vietnamese and Americans. They said Air Vietnam also flew refugees from Da Nang to Saigon, but it was not known how many people it carried out.

An American sealfit involving three U.S. vessels able to carry 26,000 persons was set to begin soon.

In Saigon, Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, the U.S. Army chief of staff, arrived from Washington during the night and conferred with President Nguyen Van Thieu for more than an hour shortly after daybreak. Weyand, who was the last American commander in Vietnam, is on a mission for President Ford to assess the military situation in South Vietnam and determine what additional help might be needed.

Initial reaction at the White House indicated unhappiness with the bill because of the size of the tax cut, repeal of the oil depletion allowance and what administration officials say is the possibility of a $100-billion budget deficit for fiscal 1976.

The President called a morning meeting today with his economic and energy advisers to study the tax cut bill. He was asked by a reporter at Good Friday church services whether he intended to sign it. But the President did not respond.

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says his decision on whether to sign or veto the $24.8 billion tax cut bill is "a tough call" because he has found "some good and some very bad things" in it.

Ford had planned an Easter trip to Palm Springs, Calif., which was to start Saturday, but Nessen said Thursday that plans for the trip were "completely up in the air" as Ford pondered the possibility of a veto.

The tax-cut measure calls for:

- A 10 per cent rebate on 1974 taxes, up to a maximum of $200.
- A special $50 payment to all recipients of Social Security, railroad retirement and certain other welfare programs for the aged, blind and disabled.
- Repeal of the 22 per cent oil depletion allowance for large oil and gas producers.

—Increases in the maximum standard deduction, which is used by taxpayers who do not itemize their deductions.

Ford is known to oppose the repeal of the oil depletion allowance and the over-all size of the tax cut. He had asked for reductions of $16.2 billion. During the congressional debate on the depletion allowance, supporters of the allowance said its repeal might add 10 cents to the retail price of gasoline. Supporters of repeal said the cost would be less than two cents a gallon.

NCSU Veterinary School Plan Hits HEW-Posed Snag

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has told University of North Carolina president William C. Friday that if the UNC Board of Governors locates a school of veterinary medicine at N.C. State University in Raleigh, it "must award a program of similar stature and attractiveness" to North Carolina A&T State University at Greensboro.

The HEW position was outlined to Friday in a letter from William H. Thomas, director of HEW's office for Civil Rights for the Atlanta regional office, dated March 25.

The Board of Governors, last November, authorized the establishment of a veterinary school, but delayed selecting the site for such a program until a racial impact study was completed. The study was considered necessary to comply with the state higher education desegregation plan.

Following completion of the plan, the Board of Governors, in mid-December chose to locate the veterinary medical school at N.C. State.

In his letter, Thomas charged that the Board of Governor's action in establishing the school has raised "serious questions" about the state plan "and the manner in which it is being implemented."

He said, first of all, that the impact study should have been part of the overall planning process, and secondly, "the contents of the racial impact study and the assumptions upon which it was based, indicate some fundamental differences between us."

According to Thomas, "The study appears to justify the continued inequality between predominantly black and predominantly white institutions and fails to take into account actions promised in the plan to enhance the predominately black institutions."

"We believe the evidence submitted by the Board in support of its decision... is tainted by reliance on factors caused by past discrimination. Many of the unfavorable comparisons of North Carolina A&T to North Carolina State, Thomas charged, "were based on qualitative differences in the two institutions stemming from the past neglect of A&T because of its predominately black character."

Thomas said "in sum, the process which you employed to determine the location of the School of Veterinary Medicine is defective."

"Accordingly, we are requesting you to suspend your decision to award the School of Veterinary Medicine to North Carolina State pending the conduct of a racial impact study in conformance with the objectives and commitments of the North Carolina State Plan."

"If, as a result of that study," Thomas continued, "you decide to place the School of Veterinary Medicine at North Carolina State, before proceeding to establish this school, you must award a program of similar stature and attractiveness to North Carolina A&T."

Thomas concluded by saying that the development of a facility or activity at the Greensboro campus that would complement the veterinary school at N.C. State "does not appear to be the kind of proposal which would satisfy this requirement."

Monday Holiday

All city, county, state and federal offices will be closed Monday in observance of the Easter holiday.

Local banks will also be closed Monday but most stores will be open. The Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association will be open.

The Pitt County Schools closed after school Wednesday and will resume their normal schedule Tuesday. The Greenville City Schools began their Easter holiday at the close of school Wednesday and will reopen on Wednesday for normal operations.

East Carolina University students and Pitt Technical Institute students will observe today and Monday as holidays.

The town office in Winterville, Ayden and Grifton will also be closed Monday.

The Sanitation Department of the City of Greenville will be working on Easter Monday. They always work on Monday because of the excess garbage from the weekend, according to Mayo Allen, public works director.

The Sanitation Department will be closed on Wednesday for the holiday observance.

Watts Plans Resign

RALEIGH (AP)—Rae Watts was to resign today as director of the State Ports Authority, the Associated Press learned.

A member of the SPA who asked not to be quoted said Watts would submit his resignation at the end of the authority's meeting, sometime this afternoon. The source said Watts would take a position with the State Department of Transportation as a consultant.

There was no word on a replacement for Watts on the SPA. The position pays $31,000 a year.

Arrest 2 More On Drug Counts

Two more persons were arrested here yesterday on drug-law violation charges as the result of a joint State Bureau of Investigation—Greenville Police Department undercover investigation begun here last November.

Brenda Joy Credle, 18, of Raleigh surrendered herself to officers yesterday, Chief Glenn Cannon reported, and was charged with sale of heroin here on January 8. She was placed under a $5,000 bond.

Cannon identified the second person arrested yesterday as Franklin Douglas Anderson, 19, of 510 Battle St. The chief said Anderson was charged with possession of cocaine and sale of cocaine and placed under a $10,000 bond.

The offenses for which Anderson was charged, according to Cannon, allegedly occurred December 19, 1974.

A Greenville physician was arrested here Tuesday on charges of selling drugs illegally, while three persons were arrested by Greenville Police and SBI agents Wednesday. Cannon said officers are holding warrants charging another defendant—already in custody in connection with an unrelated case—with possession and sale of heroin.

Scholarship Award To Jos. Lee Howell

DURHAM—Joseph Lee Howell, son of Dr. and Mrs. John M. Howell of Greenville, has been awarded an Angier B. Duke Scholarship to study at Duke University.

Joseph is one of 39 high school seniors to receive a scholarship. The winners were picked from 118 finalists who visited the Duke campus last week for competition that included interviews by a student-faculty selection board.

The scholarships are worth from $500 to $4,500 a year, depending on need. They include an eight-week summer session at Oxford University in England, or $1,000 for self-designed summer learning experiences.

The scholarships may be renewed for an undergraduate's full four-year course of study at Duke.

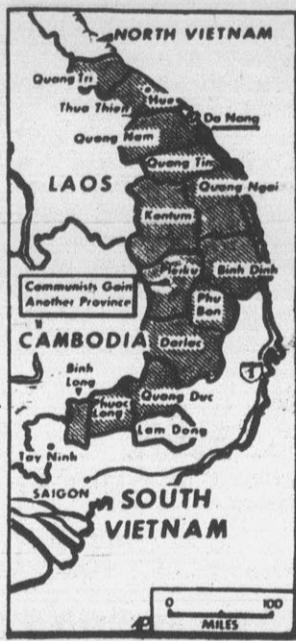

Joseph, a senior at Rose High School, is vice president of the Rose chapter of the National Honor Society and is president of the French Club. He has been a guitarist in the Rose Stage Band and was a marshal last year.

A brother, David, a 1972 graduate of Rose High, is also the recipient of an Angier B. Duke Scholarship and is now a student at Duke.

WANTS HYPNOTIZING DENTIST

I have an abscessed tooth and am in desperate need of dental care, yet I simply cannot tolerate Novocaine. I have had dental work done while in a hypnotic state several times before and it works marvelously for me, but this was in a faraway city. Is there a dentist in this area who uses hypnosis? S. H.

Hotline found a local dentist, who said he has used hypnosis as analgesia, but not recently. He said, if you are willing to pay for his time, he is willing to try it, and may supplement with nitrous oxide (laughing gas) with your permission. However, he also provided the name of a dentist in a not-too-distant town who uses hypnosis on a regular basis for his patients who cannot tolerate Novocaine.

In order not to come into conflict with the Dental Ethics Committee, Hotline will not publish the name of either dentist, but will be glad to give either or both to you if you will call us. We also have found a dentist who has been successful in using acupuncture as an analgesia, but you say you prefer hypnosis, since you know it works for you.

FINDS TRASH OFFENSIVE

One of my neighbors has a yard in awful shape. Ours is a nice neighborhood, otherwise, but he has trash all over the front and back yards. What can I do? J. P.

Greenville does have an ordinance about keeping yards neat and clean and free from health hazards. Sgt. Red Ross is the man who works most directly with this effort. If you sincerely believe there is a health hazard, you also might check with the Environmental Health Division of the County Health Department. Any buildings constructed without permits could be reported to the City Building Inspector's office.

Catch Another 'Most Wanted' Radical

Public Clinics For Dog Vaccinations Arranged In County

Evening dog vaccination clinics will be offered by the Pitt County Health Department for the first time this year.

County veterinarians will go to every area of the county, but will have fewer stops than in years past and will stay longer in each place, Environmental Health Director Willie Pate said.

The vaccination fee at these public clinics will be $3 per dog, as opposed to $4 per dog when vaccinated at a veterinary hospital.

This is the schedule, with the veterinarians staying 30 minutes each place: Monday, March 31—Turner's Store at Belvoir at 6:15; Falkland Police Department at 7 p.m.; and Fountain Police Department at 7:45. Tuesday—First Federal Savings in Farmville at 6:15; and the Bell Arthur Post Office at 7:30. Wednesday—the Bethel Police Department at 6:15 and Roebuck & Parker's Store in Stokes at 7:30. Thursday—Davenport's Store in Pactolus at 6:15 and the Grimesland Post Office at 7:15; Friday—King's Department Store in Greenville at 6:15; Monday, Apr. 7—the Ayden Police Department at 6:15 and the Grifton Police Department at 7:30; Tuesday—Venters Crossroads at 6:15 and Stokes & Lane Store at Gardenersville at 7 o'clock; Wednesday—the Winterville Town Hall at 6:15 and Bailey's Store at Black Jack at 7:30; Thursday—the Simpson Post Office at 6:15 and Ham's Crossroads at 7:15; and Friday—Meadowbrook Recreation Center at 6:15 and Earl's 66 Station, The Pines at 7:30.

All dogs four months old or over must be vaccinated for rabies according to the General Statutes of N.C., and must have their vaccination tags displayed at all time. This tag can be used to identify a lost dog by checking the number with the Health Department Rabies Control Section. Dogs vaccinated in 1975 will need to be vaccinated again in 1978. Those vaccinated in 1972 are due this year.

"We are most grateful to the veterinarians of the county for joining us in this preventive program," said Roger Barnaby, Director of the Health Department.

Currently Improving

The North Carolina Department of Transportation is currently removing excess dirt from the center island at West End Circle. After the dirt is removed from West End Circle to the north end of the median island, maintenance crews will reseed the area.

According to C. W. Snell, district engineer with the Department of Transportation, said the center islands built up with dirt and it is necessary to remove the dirt and reseed the islands occasionally.

Snell said the maintenance crews are also planning to improve the turning radius at West End Circle.

Another project under way is the lengthening of the storage lane for the northbound traffic at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Stantonburg Road.

Snell explained there is already a storage turn lane at the intersection but that it is a short one. Highway crews are in the process of lengthening the turning lane.

For five years, they seemed almost immune from capture, those 1960s New Left radicals who often seemed so proud of making their way onto the FBI's 10 Most Wanted list. But part of the facade is cracking.

In the latest in a series of such arrests, FBI agents Thursday night picked up Susan Edith Saxe, wanted since 1970 on charges of interstate flight to avoid prosecution for the murder of a Boston police officer shot following a bank robbery.

She was the fourth political radical taken into custody since last Nov. 14 after five years in which only one major radical fugitive had been arrested.

Miss Saxe, 26, of Albany, N.Y., was captured on a downtown Philadelphia street after a policeman recognized her from photographs and a description that had been reissued Thursday by the FBI. Authorities said Miss Saxe was believed to be in the area and that is why the new photos had been released.

Police said she was unarmed and did not resist arrest, although she "was quivering, she was nervous as hell."

Law enforcement authorities and underground reports indicate that in five years, there has been considerable change in a number of the fugitives, most of whom were middle class whites radicalized by the war in Vietnam. Some have given up radical activities altogether and some of the women have turned to feminism.

The nucleus of the fugitive left — the Weather Underground — remains at large, and has, in fact, become more vocal. From all accounts, it is a highly disciplined, highly organized underground group that has been impossible for authorities to infiltrate.

In recent months, it has claimed responsibility for a number of bombings; it has been reported helping other political fugitives; it has released the first issue of what it says will become a quarterly magazine.

For a long time, the only major radical arrested had been Karleton L. Armstrong, one of four men sought in a fatal bombing at the University of Wisconsin. He was convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to 23 years in prison.

But lately, there have been these developments:

—Jane Alpert, 27, who jumped bail after being charged in a series of bombings in New York City in 1969 and 1970, turned herself in on Nov. 14. She pleaded guilty to conspiracy and bail jumping and was sentenced to 27 months in prison.

—Patricia Swinton, 33, alleged to be a member of the same bomb ring, was arrested March 12 in the Brattleboro, Vt., health food store where she worked as a clerk. She was released in $200,000 bail and has returned to Vermont.

—Cameron D. Bishop, the first identifiable radical to be placed on the 10 Most Wanted List, was arrested March 12 in East Greenwich, R.I., in a car which police said contained a small arsenal of weapons. He had been sought since April, 1969 on charges of dynamiting four transmission towers in Colorado that supplied power to defense plants.

ERA Referendum Bill Is Defeated In House

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—Backers of the Equal Rights for Women Amendment won a victory of sorts in the North Carolina House Thursday.

This came when the House refused to bring to the floor for debate a measure which would have submitted ERA ratification to a vote of the people. The vote was 67-44.

The House thus backed up its Constitutional Amendments Committee which voted 10-6 Wednesday to kill the referendum bill. Backers of the measure then sought to bring it to the House floor with a minority report.

By voting against the minority report, the House killed the referendum measure which was sponsored by Rep. Ralph Prestwood, D-Caldwell.

The action leaves the question of North Carolina's ratification of ERA before the Constitutional Amendments Committee where a vote may come next Wednesday.

The referendum called for in the Prestwood bill would not have been binding on the legislature. However, if it had passed, it would have delayed for two years the legislature's consideration of ERA ratification.

The House refusal to consider the referendum measure via a minority report was definitely a limited victory for the ERA

Would Replace Food Stamps With Money

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—The secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Caspar W. Weinberger, says food stamps should be replaced by cash grants to the poor.

The federal food stamp program has become "the largest growth industry in Washington" and many persons receiving the stamps "aren't near the poverty level," he said Thursday.

Overhead costs of the program are three times those of many other assistance programs, he said at a news conference at Duke University. He blamed much of such costs on state and local governments.

The program was begun several years ago to dispose of surplus agricultural commodities at a cost of $60 million a year and now costs $6 billion a year, Weinberger said. He was at Duke University to speak to students at the law school.

To Test N.C. Death Law

RALEIGH (AP)—Oral arguments will be presented before the U.S. Supreme Court on April 21 on the constitutionality of North Carolina's death penalty in the murder conviction of Jesse Thurman Fowler of Raleigh.

The court set the date for the hearing Thursday.

The Fowler case will be the Supreme Court's first ruling on the death penalty in about three years. At that time the court ruled the death penalty unconstitutional when there was discretion in its application.

North Carolina responded to that decision by making the death penalty mandatory for certain crimes, including first degree murder.

Fowler, a 27-year-old former truck driver, was convicted of first degree murder in Wake Superior Court in September 1973. He was convicted of shooting a former roommate, John Griffin, in a street argument that arose from a dice game.

Smoke Damage In Building Fire

Greenville firemen were called to the Lakeview Terrace Apartments' office and laundromat last night when fire erupted in the building.

Officers, who responded to the 9:10 p.m. alarm, said the fire apparently started in a waste basket.

Fire damage to the one-story structure—separated from the dwelling units at the apartment complex—was reported light, while smoke damage was reported heavy.

Abby's Hopes Are High For Shoplifter

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A little of the light has gone out of my life. My heart is heavy and I can't seem to turn my thoughts to anything else for very long.

I've just discovered that my lovely, 14-year-old daughter is a shoplifter, and has been for some time. Abby, it's as though I have two daughters. One I know, and the other is a stranger to me.

I have always tried to keep the lines of communication open. My husband and I have always tried to teach our children to be honest and law-abiding. I can't understand what went wrong. What would cause a girl who never wanted for anything, and was raised in a good Christian home to go into a store and steal? Where could she have gotten her criminal tendencies? She is going for counseling today as she refuses to talk to me about it. I pray she can be helped. I want her to grow into a beautiful young woman—inside as well as out.

Have you any words of comfort for me?
DESPAIRING MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Don't despair. Your daughter won't talk to you about it because she is too ashamed. She knows how deeply she has disappointed you. Young shoplifters do not necessarily have "criminal tendencies." They sometimes steal for the "thrill" of getting away with something, or to impress their peers with their "courage." Professional counselors are trained to help children understand their anti-social behavior, and many young shoplifters have matured into respectable, law-abiding citizens.

DEAR ABBY: Our grandson had to marry his high school sweetheart. They had a beautiful, hurry-up church wedding. We gave them a $25 check for a wedding present. Six months later they had a baby boy. Everything went along fine for about a year. Then they got a divorce.

A year later, our grandson married a divorced woman who had two small children. That was also a large church wedding. Everything was pale pink. We gave them a $25 check for a wedding gift. That lasted only seven months.

After being single for two years, this same grandson is going to get married again, this time to a young widow who has a small child. We are hoping for the best.

My question is, do we have to give them a wedding present, too? We are living on Social Security, and it is not easy.

GRANDPARENTS

DEAR GRANDPARENTS: Gift giving (even to grandchildren) is never compulsory. Give them your best wishes now, and wait a while to see if it takes. If it lasts a year, give them an anniversary present.

Mrs. Sue May Is Speaker

The Home Life Department held its March meeting at the Woman's Club Building. Mrs. Sue May, home economics agent of Pitt County, was the speaker. She was introduced by Mrs. Ethel Ricks, vice-chairman.

Mrs. May's topic was "The House That Reason Built." She showed slides of a home built for a couple, who is retired pointing out special safety features usable if and when one should become disabled.

Ideas were shown on the placing of furniture, labor saving ideas for cleaning one's home and properly designed windows to admit more light thus saving electricity. A question and answer period followed.

The business session was conducted by the chairman, Miss Alya Ray Taylor. The meeting for next month will be at the Greenville Nursing and Convalescent Center April 15.

examples of building a profile: A for awareness—only through a thorough understanding of ourselves, of the people with whom we have contact and the world around us, will we become a better person.

"B" is for beauty. The old adage of beauty is as beauty does still holds true. The image

we see in our mirror has many variances, depending upon our awareness, attitude and health. "C" is for chronometry. Using awareness as our measurement instrument, time, life's greatest gift, and the secret key to the fulfillment of our desires and enjoyment of life, he said.

The Mood Is Of Resignation

Things look ever darker in Vietnam and Cambodia with the communist forces apparently well supplied and gradually closing in on the beleaguered non-communist governments of the two nations.

The mood in the United States, which has been involved in one way or another in Southeast Asia for a quarter of a century, now seems to be one of resignation to the ultimate collapse of the two governments.

Not only are we ready for it, but we appear to be desirous of hastening the day by cutting off the military supplies which are essential if the fight against the communist is to continue.

We have every reason to be weary of the fight. Not only has it dominated our foreign policy for so long, but we have actually sacrificed our young men and huge sums of money in an attempt to keep South Vietnam and Cambodia from communist hands.

We are not capable of providing answers to the dilemma. We would oppose committing ground troops ever again to Southeast Asia; yet the day we cut off arms to these two allies we are telling the world that there is a possibility we won't back our friends to the final degree. That is a sad judgment to make of the United States after we have sacrificed so much on behalf of Vietnam, but it is a fact that we must live with.

So we can be sure that the fall of Vietnam is going to be another severe blow to American diplomacy. Perhaps we can overcome it later with other diplomatic successes, but for awhile it is going to make our allies uneasy.

The domino theory of the 1950s had fallen into disrepute until recently when Pres. Ford revived it. There was another expression of that time which hasn't been heard much recently that also may be revived. It is the "paper tiger" reference to the United States. Soon our enemies and some of our friends may wonder if the "paper tiger" label does not again apply to the United States. It is in a situation like that with international miscalculations occur.

THIS AFTERNOON

Shelby Enterprise Course

By BILL NOBLITT

SHELBY—Long before the North Carolina General Assembly got wrapped up in defining free enterprise and wrestling with whether it should be taught in the public schools, Shelby High School students were getting daily inside information direct from the mouths of the people who make our system tick. Operating without charts, graphs, textbooks, or dull lectures, the class on economics has become a free-wheeling, daily give and take session between the students and a representative of the business community which makes up Shelby.

Now in its fourth year, the students have responded with enthusiasm; enrollment has grown from 38 the first year to 60 this year—and the course is an elective, not required.

"The students really enjoy it, and the growth of interest shows that," says Mrs. Sue Smith, who along with Mrs. Melba Graham, oversees the program.

Teacher Role

Teacher time is not given to preparing lectures or work plans, but to planning and coordinating the subjects to be covered, lining up speakers, arranging field trips, and evaluating student progress.

The speakers' roster reads like a Who's Who in Cleveland County—city and county officials, doctors and bankers, textile manufacturers, insurance and real estate agents, etc.

State Rep. Jack Hunt dropped in on the class during the days when free enterprise debate was hot in Raleigh.

"They are really enthusiastic, having a free interchange of ideas and debate on the subject. I find my friends in the business community surprised at the depth of questions asked, and the interest shown by the students," Hunt said later.

Equally important, Hunt added, is the close relationship developing between the schools and the business world because the speakers are brought into the classroom.

The key advantage to bringing businessmen into the classroom is that speakers have deep insight into each area, each approach is different and interesting, and the questions can be handled with more knowledge, Mrs. Smith said.

"When people take time from important work at Fiber Industries or Pittsburgh Plate Glass or Dover Textiles to come talk with us, the students can really believe in what they say.

"And we look at both sides of the coin... we talk about credit cards, and what they can do for you, but what trouble they can get you into as well," she said.

Educate, Not Sell
"The object is to educate, not to sell the students on something," she said.

The most heated discussions and pointed questions invariably center around profits. Most students, Mrs. Smith explained, come in with the misconstrued idea that business profits run normally in excess of 50 per cent.

Students are amazed when finally convinced that profits generally run from three to five per cent, and "finish this program with a wholesome attitude toward profit-making," Mrs. Smith said.

Topics explored during the course include free enterprise, finance (with discussions of how money is loaned, invested, etc.), insurance, investments, taxation, and government programs (social security, corrections, utilities, etc.).

Talking with the visitors and visiting the business firms as part of their study shows them firsthand what free enterprise is all about, the students feel.

"I've learned more than I could have found in a textbook. What these people tell us from actual experience is real... they tell it like it is," students say.

"... Hang in there, Henry...!"

An AP NEWS ANALYSIS

This Time It's Worse

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

AP Special Correspondent Americans today find South Vietnam's politics grimly familiar, but this time the crisis may be the worst since the confusion began less than 12 years ago with the fall of Ngo Dinh Diem.

The politicians now are grappling for only a fraction of what the country was when Diem fell, because the northern Communists are gobbling territory in the most determined offensive since peace was supposed to have broken out two years ago.

President Nguyen Van Thieu's regime is South Vietnam's tenth since the end of 1963 and his eight years is an endurance record. But the regime seems to be staggering now and Thieu's former close ally poses a threat to his rule.

It's always been like that and much of this sounds like where the Americans came in. Again there is a committee for "national salvation," again a cry for democracy and clean government, again talk of a military coup, although one more could prove the coup de grace for South Vietnamese independence.

Again in the picture is the figure of Nguyen Cao Ky, who made his entrance on the political stage along with Thieu in an early 1964 crisis. Before then both were obscure officers.

When the autocratic President Diem was toppled and slain in November 1963 at the height of wild political turmoil—sparked in part by a Buddhist opposition—an incoming junta headed by Lt. Gen. Duong Van Minh (Big Minh) promised "democracy with discipline."

South Vietnam never got either. For three years thereafter Saigon was a bewildering merry-go-round of coups and counter-coups.

Jan. 30, 1964—Big Minh was overthrown by Gen. Nguyen Khanh, commander of the 4th Corps stationed in the Mekong Delta. Khanh became chairman of a ruling military committee pledged to frustrate "neutrality" allegedly seeking to negotiate an end to the war. He promised elections in six months—depending on security conditions.

August, 1964—Tumultuous Buddhist demonstrations triggered a confused crisis. Khanh resigned. For exactly four days Nguyen Xuan Oanh was acting premier. Then Khanh returned with his troops and took over again.

September, 1964—While Khanh was in Dalat, officers and troops from the Mekong Delta occupied the premier's office and key Saigon installations. Khanh broadcast a plea for support and at this stage Ky, then an air commodore, and Thieu, then a lieutenant-general, entered the political picture. Their support helped Khanh turn the tables once again.

October, 1964—The High National Council named Phan Khac Suu chief of state and Tran Van Huong premier, and Khanh resigned the premiership to become armed forces commander-in-chief. Buddhists, students and press chorused condemnation of the new arrangement.

Profile Of Tax Relief

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The broadest help in the new tax bill goes to lower-income persons, but the biggest individual dollar winners would be a few upper-middle class taxpayers who qualify for two narrowly drawn benefits.

The profile of the tax-cut sweepstakes champion looks like this, assuming President Ford signs the tax cut bill approved by Congress:

Family income between $27,600 and $35,000. Both parents work, necessitating $4,800 in child care expenses. Purchasers of a new $40,000 home during the rest of this year.

If you fit this profile, the tax savings could total nearly $4,000 compared with 1974.

The purchaser of a new home will receive a tax credit of 5 per cent of the purchase price up to a credit ceiling of $2,000. That ceiling is reached when the purchase price hits $40,000. A tax credit is subtracted directly from the tax bill.

Liberalization of the child care deduction extends this benefit well up the income ladder. Currently, $4,800 in such expenses can be deducted if family income is $18,000 or less, and a decreasing portion of such expense can be deducted as income increases to $27,600.

Under the tax cut bill, the full $4,800 could be deducted until income reached $35,000. A decreasing portion could be deducted until income hit $44,600.

Thus, for a family earning between $27,600 and $35,000, a $4,800 deduction from gross income that couldn't be taken at all in the past is now fully available. The tax saving could reach $1,600 depending on other facets of the tax return.

Like every other taxpayer, these winning families will get a new tax credit of $30 for every dependent. That's worth $120 for a family of four regardless of income.

The INSIDE REPORT

Ford's Anger At Israel

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Despite publicly refusing to assess blame for the collapse of mediation efforts in the Middle East, President Ford's private reaction of hurt and anger at Israel now threatens relations between the U. S. and Israel more seriously than at any time during 27 years of unique friendship.

This spontaneous response inside the Oval Office to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's failure may not last. But President Ford's private bitterness must now be reckoned a wholly new, wholly unexpected factor as Israel faces overwhelming world pressure (at the forthcoming Geneva conference) to get off conquered Arab lands.

Rightly or wrongly, Mr. Ford now feels that the government of Prime Minister Yikzhak Rabin treated him, personally, "with contempt" at a time of American decline in the world by allowing Kissinger's mediation effort to collapse.

That explains Mr. Ford's assertion, in his now celebrated letter to Rabin, that he is reassessing U. S. policy toward Israel, with obvious implications for Israel's requested $2.59 billion in new U. S. aid. The president's letter and anger could be contrived pressure to force greater Israeli concessions. But it also poses for Israel a dangerous new arm's-length relationship with its only ally while facing a hostile Geneva conference packed with enemies.

Presidential aides with precise knowledge of Oval Office thinking have sketched a scenario of Israel's political plans for the immediate future which deepens the American gloom of fallen world power in Vietnam, Cambodia, Turkey, Portugal and Cyprus.

The White House scenario: Israel sees the American presidency in a state of decline and dares not risk its own security by withdrawing from Egypt's Sinai Peninsula, as President Ford wants, without commitments Egypt refuses to give. Hence, the Israeli government made a conscious decision to retain the Sinai passes and oil fields and instead make an end run: take its fight directly to the overwhelmingly Democratic Congress and American public opinion, thereby warding off White House pressure through reduced U. S. aid to Israel.

Whether Kissinger himself subscribes to that scenario is not known today. What is known is that Gerald Ford believes in it, holding that view with tenacity. He feels, according to one close observer during the latest Kissinger shuttle diplomacy, that Israel treated him "with contempt" at a moment he could ill afford it.

"Jerry Ford is not one to get angry easily," one insider told us, "but he is angry now."

That anger was obvious Monday morning when Mr. Ford bluntly informed the bipartisan congressional leaders that U. S. aid to Israel was being reappraised as part of a massive Mideast policy reassessment. Possibly because of that anger, not one question was asked—even from such friends of Israel as Rep. Philip Burton of California, a powerful boss of the House Democratic caucus, and New Jersey's liberal Republican Sen. Clifford P. Case.

Such silence is unlikely to persist, however. Rather, there are early indications of the Israeli end-run around the White House to Congress, via the potent pro-Israeli U. S. lobby, forecast by Mr. Ford. When the talks collapsed in Jerusalem Saturday, Israel's ambassador to the U. S., Simcha Dinitz, flew directly to New York City.

Moreover, within hours of publication by the Israeli press of Mr. Ford's tough letter to Rabin, its text was demanded from the White House by a top aide of Sen. Henry M. Jackson, Israel's most active ally in the Senate.

Responsibility for the confrontation between the White House and the Rabin government at the moment of Israel's gravest need for American help does not lie wholly in Jerusalem. Some friends of Israel here can provide persuasive documentation that the President's letter to Rabin boomeranged, causing the Israeli cabinet to stiffen under the implied threat.

But such "who struck John" formulations serve little purpose today. The hard fact is that President Ford privately blames Israel far more than Egypt for Kissinger's latest failure, a personal affront which threatens new difficulties for both Israel and the United States at a time when neither nation can afford them.

Other Editors Say Special Monday

(The Chapel Hill Newspaper)

You can tell a non-North Carolinian easy. He can't tell you why we have Easter Monday holiday. He will argue that it is a Southern indulgence.

He doesn't know that we in North Carolina believe in observing Easter with more than a flourish of Easter services, flowers and finery.

He doesn't know that the State Legislature ratified it April 19, 1935—making it absolutely legal. He doesn't realize that Easter is as important to the church year as Christmas and so since it falls on a Sunday, the following Monday is most suitable for celebration.

He doesn't know that given fine weather the Easter weekend is dandy for the first trip to the beach.

Nor does he realize that Easter Sunday is too hurried with families scurrying off to Easter services or reunions to really savor Easter egg hunting. Takes an extra day for the Easter bunny to get all those dyed hen eggs hidden in the new spring grass.

He doesn't realize that mamas need a day to collapse after fussing over the whole family assembled home from school and from feasting the in-laws.

He doesn't appreciate that papas need a day to relax, readying their fishing gear, or have a morning tennis match, a golf game, a test run of the outboard motor, a trial sail, or maybe just a leisurely surveying of the stand of garden peas, while they pull an early radish and admire the spring onions.

But chances are the Easter Monday holiday habit will grow on him, and he'll complain bitterly if he ever leaves the old North State.

Fired Presidents Can Get Job

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP)—While millions of unemployed workers seek jobs futilely, there is one worker who can usually find another job—the corporation president who was fired.

The probability is 6 in 10 that the fired president of one of the 500 largest corporations will become president of another company within one year, says Prof. Eugene E. Jennings.

In two years the likelihood rises to 80 per cent and within three years 90 per cent, Jennings found after analyzing the phenomenon as part of a continuing study of executive mobility that began in 1948.

"In America we believe everyone deserves a second chance," he observes, "but a fired president can almost always get three or four chances." He believes that some of the best presidents have been "fired."

The situation is far different from that which existed in the 1950s, when the expansionary dreams and rising profits of American enterprise permitted companies to boot executives into jobs with big titles and minor duties. Running a tight operation today forbids that practice. Instead, the executive is fired.

Moreover, Jennings believes, "We have too few people who visibly qualify for presidencies, and that is why the fired boss succeeds." This might not be so if industry had a bullpen of talent. But it hasn't, he states.

Studies by Jennings, who is a management professor at Michigan State University, personal consultant to many corporation chiefs, and a prolific author, shows that a fired president is much preferred for a top job over a talented vice president.

A vice president with one of the top 500 corporations has only one chance in 10 of becoming president of a company, his own or another, Jennings found.

The reasons? For one thing, the fired president benefits from a greater presence and prestige, simply because he has already been "the boss" and because of media attention given to the top man. "The VP is obscured by the status of a president," Jennings says.

But there are other reasons too.

"The vast number of corporations are very conservative in the sense they would rather hire a fired president than an untested vice president. They 'hink they're minimizing the risk,'" says Jennings, adding: "The fired president learns a lot and doesn't make mistakes the untested vice president has yet to learn."

Moreover, corporations have cycles. Sometimes a president is fired merely because his talents are a mismatch for corporate needs. But this doesn't mean he won't be a good match with another company.

Strength For Today

THE ENEMY: FEAR

Fear is life's worst enemy. A large proportion of the people we come in contact with every day are held in the bondage of some fear. Some fear disease; others poverty; other's rejection by their friends. Some people are in constant fear of an employer. The worst and most devastating fear in the world is the fear of fear.

Jesus said that there's only one thing to fear, namely, that we may lose our souls through sin. He warned men to fear God, but opposite every other situation in life

Jesus pronounced the words, "Fear not." Just as he believed in stopping sin at its source, so he believed in stopping fear at its source by banishing anxiety from the mind.

Because God is in control of His world and we are in His hands, we have nothing to fear. The circumstances of life may assail us, but if we have fellowship with God and trust in His might, these circumstances can never damage that real life which exists in the recesses of our hearts.

Only Pretrial Motions April 14 In Little's Case

By CATHY STEELE ROCHE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP)—
Superior Court Judge Henry McKinnon ruled Thursday that only pretrial motions will be heard in the Joanne Little murder case on April 14 and that Miss Little will not be required to appear.

McKinnon said the trial, originally scheduled to begin April 14 in Beaufort County Superior Court in Washington, "may be set to begin on or after April 28."

Miss Little, a 20-year-old black, is charged with first-degree murder in the icepick
slaying of a white Beaufort County jailer. She claims the jailer was trying to rape her and that she acted in self-defense.

Defense attorneys sought to delay her trial on the grounds that she is too ill to appear in court. McKinnon said Thursday he may order Miss Little to submit to an independent medical examination.

Miss Little's attorneys, Jerry Paul and Karen Galloway, filed several motions in Washington on Thursday, including one asking that the trial be moved to Raleigh.

Another motion sought to quash the indictment of Miss Little on the grounds that a relative of the jailer was on the grand jury.

In his order, McKinnon referred to widespread publicity about the case and cited guidelines of the N.C. Bar Association that limit the activity of the state and defense concerning public statements.

Meanwhile the Board of Directors of the Joanne Little Defense Fund Inc., created to raise money for the defense, held a news conference in Durham on Thursday to discuss handling of the funds.

At the same time civil rights activist Golden Frinks, who accused the Defense Fund of mis-handling the money, began erecting a tent encampment
in Washington, N.C. to draw attention to the case.

Yvonne Davis, secretary of the Defense Fund, said money raised for Miss Little's defense had been used for that purpose and had in no way been misapplied. She said that total contributions received through the fund had reached nearly $60,000 by the middle of March. Of that money, $30,000 was raised by the Southern Poverty Law Center in Montgomery, Ala., and about $30,000 was raised by the defense fund, Miss Davis said. She said defense expenses had reached nearly $50,000 at that time.

Frinks filed suit in U.S. District Court in New Bern last week seeking an injunction to block further expenditures for Miss Little's defense until a full accounting of funds is given.

Frinks claims he had an agreement with defense attorney Jerry Paul that he would receive 30 per cent of all money raised to conduct protest activities to publicize the case.
Paul has denied the existence of such an agreement and the Board of Directors of the Defense Fund repeated the denial Thursday.

Despite his brawls with her attorneys, Frinks began Thursday to put up what he is calling "Resurrection City III" after earlier tent encampments set up by civil rights groups in Washington D.C. and Miami.
Frinks, who is field coordinator for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said the seven small tents were the first of 47 that would be erected in Washington to house Miss Little's supporters before and during her trial.

He said as many as 1500 persons may gather in the encampment.

The Defense Fund directors
also predicted that many supporters would gather in the Beaufort County town when Miss Little goes on trial. They said they expected groups from across North Carolina and from Washington D.C., Pittsburgh and Boston.

Defense attorney Jim Rowan, who answered questions at the news conference, defended the publicity sought in the case. "It is important to us that the people in North Carolina be alerted to the kind of situation faced by Joanne," Rowan said.

LOOP THE LOOP—A long Western Pacific freight train overlaps the entire circle of Williams Loop, which measures nearly a mile in circumference and is located a few miles east of Quincy, Calif. Hal Wright, editor and publisher of the Sierra Booster in Loyalton, Calif., says he waited 20 years for just the right moment and conditions—snow on the ground and the long train overlapping—to shoot this picture from a plane. The loop was built about 66 years ago to maintain a one percent grade and make it easier for freight trains to get over the mountain. (AP Wirephoto)

CP&L Nuclear Unit Is Nearer Operation

RALEIGH—The first nuclear unit at Carolina Power & Light Company's Brunswick plant near Southport, N. C., has achieved criticality, according to N. B. Bessac, manager — nuclear generation.

The plant reached criticality (a sustained chain reaction in the nuclear reactor) at 4:55 p.m. on March 20. It is one of several steps necessary before the plant goes into commercial operation in the summer.

Bessac said that within a few weeks, the company expected to put steam into the turbine and then synchronize it with the CP&L system so that it can begin

Policy Covers The Alcoholics

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP)—
A recent survey of 17 insurance companies writing group disability insurance in the United States shows all of them will cover loss of income resulting from alcoholism.

The survey was made by the Health Insurance Institute. But, says J. F. Follmann Jr., consultant of the institute, there is this proviso:

The alcoholic's condition should be medically recognized and the alcoholic must be placed under medical supervision. In line with this, the insurance policies state that disability benefits are not forthcoming until the alcoholic has agreed to undergo treatment to overcome his problem.

Once the benefits begin they continue as long as the insured continues rehabilitation treatment.
If he stops, benefits stop.

Ruthless martial law was invoked against new waves of rioting, but the turbulence persisted past the turn of the year.

Jan., 1965 — Gen. Khanh's
Armed Forces Council overthrew
the government and reinstated Khanh. A new government was set up Feb. 16 with Phan Huy Quat as premier. Three days later a new coup erupted, but Khanh, Ky and others slipped out of the coup leaders' grasp. Ky threatened to bomb the Saigon airport where, by then, 7,000 U.S. troops were stationed. The Americans talked him out of it.
But Ky's parachute troops
swooped into Saigon and ousted the coup leaders. All these developments were gradually pushing both Ky and Thieu up the political ladder.

May, 1965 — The Quat government resigned under military pressure. Ky now headed a three-man ruling junta, supported by a 10-man committee of generals under Thieu. Ky formed the ninth cabinet since the Diem days and became premier.
All this, too, was highly unpopular. Despite ups and downs, wild antigovernment and anti-American outbreaks and constant political turmoil,
the new arrangement lasted until after a new constitution was promulgated. In 1967, elections were held and more than 80 per cent of the people under the Saigon regime's control voted, defying Viet Cong sabotage by terror.

Thieu emerged with the most votes and became president.
Ky became vice president.
This combination lasted into 1971 and the waning months of Thieu's term of office.

After Ky announced his candidacy for the presidency
in 1971, Thieu had him
disqualified. Later he reinstated Ky, but the vice president spurned the move. Thieu's regime claimed he got well over 90 per cent of the votes cast, a phenomenon that caused some to suggest it had been an electoral farce.

For a while, Ky vanished from the political scene. Now he has come back.

The rebate of 1974 taxes tails off for these upper middle class families, but is still worth at least $100 and perhaps a few dollars more.

The rebate plan gives every taxpayer at least $100 back if he or she paid $100 in taxes.
The maximum rebate is $200
for those whose 1974 tax bill was at least $2,000 and whose family income did not exceed $20,000.

Lower income persons whose tax bill was less than $100 will get all they paid back.

Lower income families with children will get a tax credit of 10 per cent of their total income if their earnings did not exceed $4,000. Those in the $4,000 to $8,000 bracket will get a progressively smaller credit.

Changes in the minimum and maximum standard deductions will help low income families, and many middle income families who don't itemize tax deductions.

Single persons will be able to earn $300 more than previously and couples $600 more than before without having to pay any taxes at all.

Clemency Plan Ends Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Signup for President Ford's clemency program will be halted on schedule Monday night after two monthly extensions with probably about 23,000 of the nearly 120,000 eligible persons joining.

There were about 6,000 signups in each of the monthly extensions — in February and March.

Chairman Charles E. Goodell of the Presidential Clemency Board told newsmen Thursday that Ford "has done all he can do" in view of a September congressional deadline for processing all applicants.

"There has to be some finality," Goodell said.

He said any further extensions would be up to Congress, noting there are bills to extend the program. Goodell said he was personally in favor of an extension of the program another year or two but as board chairman would not recommend it.

The former New York senator said he will ask Ford to double the membership of the board to 18 so applicants can be processed more rapidly to meet the September congressional deadline.

Of the three parts of the clemency program, the board is by far the largest, with more than 100,000 eligible persons — men who served prison terms for draft evasion or were punished for desertion.

About 12,500 military men unopposed for desertion are eligible to sign up at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., in another part of the program. In the third, 4,400 unopposed draft evaders are eligible to sign up with any U.S. attorney.

Goodell said 16,500 men have signed up with the board, including 5,500 in March and 5,910 in February. He predicted the total would end with a surge to between 17,000 and 18,000.

The military program has signed up 5,233, including 377 this month. The Justice Department attorneys have signed up 588, including 88 this month.

Food Specialist Urges Common Sense

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
TARBORO—Dr. Nadine F. Tope, Food Information and Preparation Specialist, at North Carolina State University, Raleigh, was guest speaker Thursday night at the March meeting of the ten-county

Common Plain Development Association. Concentrating on the battle of charges and counter charges between advocates of "natural" foods and foods containing additives, Dr. Tope called on consumers "to realize we all need to take a reasonable look at the entire situation, not just the claims of faddists or ones who stand to make money from certain claims."

"We should and must continue efforts to identify the contents of our food supplies," she said,

"but we must understand the whole program."

Dr. Tope pointed out that if labeling packages, boxes or cans of food required including the "natural" contents of each particular food, the public would be in for some surprises.

She cited, for example that the common Irish potato contained a powerful toxic element. "Since the average American eats 120 pounds of potatoes each year, they consume an amount of this element sufficient to kill a full grown horse if consumed at one time."

Another example was that of lima beans, which contains 40 milligrams of hydrogen cyanide per 1.8 pounds. This is the same element as the lethal gas used to execute prisoners. "The point here," she said, "is not to eat 1.8 pounds of lima beans at one time."

Dr. Tope emphasized that examples she cited were to show that all foods consumed by human, whether in the natural state or with additives, contained certain toxic elements inherent from nature. The human body, however, has mechanisms that can safely absorb these elements, so that the real concern is not whether food is natural or foods with additives. Rather, she stressed, the major need is for balanced, non-excessive intake of foods.

One danger she warned about is that of a possible continued rise in the incidence of botulism as more people again turn to home canning. Botulism occurs when the micro-organism clostridium botulinum gets into improperly canned food, particularly vegetables. "This is such a deadly substance," Dr. Tope noted, that one ounce would be sufficient to kill every person in North Carolina.

"In other words," she added, "one little green bean can do you in."

One recent case of agonizing deaths due to food poisoning Dr. Tope cited involved two Eskimo women. "The source of contaminated food was traced to a fermented beaver tail eaten by the women. Eskimos have been eating fermented beaver tails for no one knows how long," she said, "but in this particular case the women had prepared it in a new modern product, a plastic bag."

Mrs. Janice Buck of Greenville, recipient of the Greenville Citizen of the Year Award, was a special guest at the meeting.

Approved 4 Pleas For Special Use Permits

Public hearings on five requests for special use permits were conducted last night by the Greenville Board of Adjustments and four of the five requests were granted.

The board approved a request by Allied Petroleum Corp. for a permit to utilize the structure located at 101 E. Greenville Boulevard as a service station. The property is currently zoned for Highway Commercial usage.

A request for a special use permit by AAA Sales in order to operate an automobile and trailer sales and service on the lot located at the corner of Highway 13 and Airport Road was also granted. The property is zoned for Unoffensive Industry usage.

The board granted a request for a permit by Willie T. Adams in order to operate an upholstery shop at 100 W. Fourth Street (R-6 zone) and a request by Johnny Stokes for a permit to operate a fi-fi repair service at 2534 Sunset Avenue (R-6 zone) was approved with the provision that the repair service room be lined with acoustical tile and that the license shall be revoked immediately if in the opinion of the building inspector the repair service becomes a nuisance to the neighborhood.

A request by Gerard Fritz for a permit in order to operate a mail order photography business in Apartment 6, Village

Green Apartments, was denied on the grounds that the City Code stipulates that home occupations shall be permitted only in a single family dwelling.

A request for a permit by Jeffrey J. Lockett was tabled.

Stolen Documents Link Hughes, CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Documents detailing Howard Hughes' contacts with the CIA and with at least one organized crime figure were among items taken during a burglary at the billionaire's Los Angeles offices last June 5, The Washington Post says.

The same burglary resulted in public disclosure that a Hughes firm, Summa Corp., had received a contract from the intelligence agency to raise a sunken Soviet submarine last summer.

A Hughes spokesman declined comment on what was stolen, saying the case "is still under investigation and no arrests have been made."

But in its Thursday editions, the Post said the loot from the burglary included:

—Documents showing that Hughes operations around the world had been used to dispense cash for CIA activities.

—Papers detailing Hughes' relations with some political figures, the Nevada Gaming Commission and at least one organized crime figure.

—$250,000 in cash, a rare butterfly collection, digital watches and valuable Oriental vases.

The Post quoted a former television script writer, Leo V. Gordon, as saying he took part in an elaborate plan to recover the documents, including those involving the Glomar Explorer, the ship used in the submarine recovery.

Gordon was reported to have told investigators he gave Donald R. Woolbright at least $3,500 in partial payment for recovery of the documents. Woolbright has been indicted for possession of stolen property in the case but remains at large.

Investigated Three Accidents Thursday

An estimated $1,375 property damage resulted yesterday from a series of three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 10:07 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Second and Cotanche Streets where cars driven by Emma C. Powell and Barbara S. Farmer, both of Greenville, collided, causing an estimated $350 damage to each of the two cars. Mrs. Farmer was charged by investigators with failing to stop for a stop sign.

No charges were reported following investigation of a 10:45 a.m. mishap at the intersection of South and East Wright Roads.

Investigators identified drivers involved in that mishap as Alice Theresa McCarthy of 1406 Polk Ave. and Lonnie Aukue Lilley of Washington.

Damage was estimated at $100 to the Lilley truck and $300 to the McCarthy car.

George Benjamin James of 211 North Oak St. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 12:05 p.m. mishap on River Road, 200 feet East of the Elm Street intersection.

Police reported the James car collided with an auto operated by Joe David Mills of Route 2, Chocowinity.

Damage was placed at $75 to the James Car and $200 to the Mills auto.

Late Gryphon Rally Tops Rampants, 3-1

ROSE IN THE SPRING—Cincinnati Reds' Pete Rose glides toward home plate as New York Yankees catcher Rick Dempsey blocks the plate, then tags Rose out in the seventh inning of Thursday's game. Rose had tried to score from first base on John Bench's hit to left field. (AP Wirephoto)

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

For six innings, Rose High School had unbeaten Rocky Mount, the favorite in the Division I race, on the ropes. But in the seventh, the Gryphons took advantage of three walks to load the bases, and a three-run double to take a 3-1 victory.

Rose High School hurler Kelly Heath tossed a two-hitter at the Gryphons, but one of the hits was all the winners needed after Heath lost his control in the closing frame. Rose tagged winning pitcher Doug Henley for three hits, and the run off him was unearned.

Both teams had other opportunities to score, but couldn't make them pay off as they battled right down to the final out.

The loss dropped the Rampants to a 3-2 record on the season. They also have a 1-1 Division I record. For Rocky Mount, it was their fifth straight victory and their second in a row in conference play.

Rocky Mount had come into the game having scored 51 runs in their first four games, and allowing just six.

The Gryphons offered a threat in the first inning off the first hit off Heath. Tommy Crocker singled, then stole second with two away, but Heath struck out the next batter to end the frame.

It was the first of seven strikeouts for Heath.

Jack Jenkins opened the Rose half of the frame with the first Rampants hit, but he went down in a double play, ending that threat.

Rocky Mount got off another threat in the second. Larry Joyner led off, reaching on an error. He advanced on a sacrifice, and took third on a fielder's choice. But again Rose was able to get out of trouble without damage.

The Rampants got their lone run in the bottom of the second. Mike Brewington opened with a single to right. He stole second and came around to score when Ron Hunt's grounder to short was booted, both literally and figuratively. Hunt later moved on to second on a passed ball, but died there.

Rose threatened in the fourth when Brewington walked, stole second and then gained third on an error on the pickoff attempt. In the fifth, Eddie Connolly singled, and courtesy runner David Dixon stole second and took third on a wild pitch. Then, in the final inning, Brewington again walked and stole second, but it was all in vain.

Rocky Mount got off another threat in the third when Crocker reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. He was the last man to reach that base until the seventh, however.

Heath, who had walked only two in the first six innings, couldn't find the mark often enough after fanning the first batter in the seventh. Curt Fulcher and Marvin Dancy drew another free trip, loading the bases. The Rampants got the second out on a foul fly, but Crocker hit a line drive to left that took a weird bounce past Griff Garner and went all the way to the fence. Braswell, Kearney and Dancy all came around to score while the ball was being chased down.

For the Rampants, that was it. They were unable to rally.

Henley, in getting the win, struck out nine and walked two.

The Rampants will be taking part in the Gaylord Perry Tournament in Williamston next week. It gets underway on Thursday.

Robersonville Finally Tops Williamston, 4-3

ROBERSONVILLE—Robersonville High School gained revenge for an earlier defeat at the hands of Williamston yesterday, but it took 13 innings for the Eagles to pull off the 4-3 win.

Williamston pushed out into a 3-0 lead after two innings, but they were unable to score again during the next 11 innings.

The first run came in the opening frame. Roy Lilley tripled, then scored when Tim Hardison grounded out.

The Tigers pushed over their other two runs in the second. Greg Rodgers doubled and Kirby Rodgers walked. A pickoff attempt was errored, and Roberson scored. Lilly then singled in Rodgers for a 3-0 lead.

Robersonville got its first run in the second frame. Ricky Griffin singled and moved up on an out and a passed ball. Reid Bullock's ground out brought in Griffin.

In the fourth, the Eagles added another run. Ken Gurganus walked as did Jeff Warren. Robin Fowler reached on a fielder's choice, loading the bases. Jimmy Stalls hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Gurganus.

The tying run came over for Robersonville in the sixth. Neno Hayes singled and Ricky Spruill ran for him. He stole second and scored when Jimmy Stalls singled.

It stayed that way for the next six innings, although both of the teams had opportunities to put the game away and failed. Finally, in the 13th, Robersonville got the winning run.

St. James Is Champ

St. James Methodist Church captured its first Church League Basketball League Tournament Championship last night, downing regular season winner, 60-52, in the first game of the night.

A second game, needed if Immanuel had won, was not played.

St. James, which went through the double elimination tournament without a loss, held only a 27-25 lead at halftime. Immanuel, playing its third game in as many nights, ran out of gas in the second half, however, as St. James outthrew them, 33-27, to pull away and win.

Chuck Mohn led St. James with 20 points, while Mike Board had 16 and Guy Howell added 10. David Hahn paced Immanuel with 19 points with Drew Rumbley hitting 10.

The game wound up the 1974-75 Church League season.

Rocky Mount Tops Netters

Rocky Mount handed Rose High School's tennis team a 5-4 defeat yesterday, but the victory wasn't an untarnished one.

The match was hard fought, with two of the matches going three sets. But Rose was hampered by having to forfeit its number one singles because the number one player did not report to the match in time.

Rocky Mount went on to win three of the remaining five singles matches, but lost the first two doubles to tie it up. But the Gryphons won the final doubles match to eek out the win.

The Rams matched that with another of their own in the fourth. Blizzard singled, stole second and took third on a wild pitch. Joe Heath brought him home with a sacrifice fly.

The Warriors picked up their second run in the sixth. Graham reached on an error, stole

Book Is Right About Williams

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The book on Billy Williams is that he's a natural hitter. The book is right.

"I didn't even have any batting practice before the game," the Oakland A's designated hitter said. "They just told me to go out there, tee it up and hit."

Thursday was the first time Williams has seen action since the opening exhibition game March 13 because of a sore ankle. He wasn't even allowed to put on a uniform for two weeks.

Because Thursday's game between the A's and the California Angels started so early, there was no time for batting practice. Williams got his in the game.

The former Chicago Cubs star, acquired by Oakland during the off-season, singled in the third inning and smashed a two-run homer in the eighth, leading the A's to a 7-1 victory. The single was "embarrassing," he said.

The ball hit high off the right-field screen and Williams was thrown out by going into second by 20 feet.

"I thought it was a home run," he said, "and I really couldn't stretch it out running. I thought for a second about sliding into second but then I remembered the doctor told me not to risk it" because of the injured ankle.

"I hit a 3-2 fastball for the homer (to right) and lined out to right field once."

Still, the left-handed hitter with the .297 lifetime batting average wasn't satisfied.

"It will take a little more time to get my timing down and to strengthen my arms," he said. "I felt kind of like I was on the defensive side hitting today...but I don't think the pitchers are throwing as hard as they can yet."

One pitcher who's ready is Steve Busby of the Kansas City Royals. Busby, who has pitched two no-hitters in his brief career, held Houston hitless for seven innings as the Royals defeated the Astros 2-0.

Greg Gross, who led off the first with a walk, was the only base runner against Busby. Gross moved to second on a balk and advanced to third on a wild pickoff throw. But Busby struck out the other three Astros he faced in the opening frame and fanned six Houston batters in all.

"I was getting on top of the ball for the first time," Busby said. "That's the key for me. When I stay on top of the ball my fastball moves and my slider breaks down."

"I probably could have pitched another inning, maybe two. But what's the use? We come down here to get ready for the season."

An experimental baseball with fewer and wider stitches was used for the first time in a game that saw the New York Mets outslug the St. Louis Cardinals 14-9. The Mets had 18 hits while the Cards had 11. St. Louis scored six runs in the fourth and the Mets retaliated with a seven-run fifth.

Ted Simmons hit three consecutive home runs and Ron Fairly had one for St. Louis while John Milner and Rich Puig hit homers for the Mets.

In other games Thursday, it was Boston 6, Chicago 1; Pittsburgh 5, Detroit 2; Baltimore 10, Philadelphia 1; Los Angeles 4, Minnesota 3; Texas 6, Atlanta 2; Cincinnati 4, New York Yankees 0; San Diego 2, Milwaukee 1, and Cleveland 8, San Francisco 6 in 10 innings. The Angels, who lost to Oakland in a morning game, defeated the Chicago Cubs 8-3 in an afternoon contest.

Staggs Glad To Hit In Front Of Family

By WILLIE PATRICK
Special To The Reflector

Two very proud parents watched history in the making at Harrington Field Wednesday, while a third member of the family was content to grab a bat and scurry to the safety of the Pirate dugout.

A fourth member of the family, Ron Staggs, the East Carolina University first-baseman, had just singled to tie a Pirate career hitting record for runs batted in. Earlier in the same contest, Staggs had belted a pair of doubles to break the Pirate career records for total bases, doubles and hits. But what was important to Staggs at the time of the single was that his hit meant a win for the Pirates, stopping a three-game losing streak.

Mr. and Mrs. Bucky Staggs, and son Scott, have been in Greenville all week to watch their son (and brother) in action during the Pirates' home stand. Staggs' hit helped the team get back on the winning track, and he is glad to do it.

"I was thrilled to death that I was able to break the records," said Staggs. "It makes me feel like I have made a definite contribution to the team and I am just very happy I could do it."

Staggs didn't know about the records until prior to the games against East Connecticut State University, the Wednesday opponents. In breaking the records, though, Staggs has felt a definite sense of accomplishment.

"It was just a matter of proving to myself that I could do something I had worked hard to do," said Staggs. "It all goes back to last summer in the Valley League—I set a goal then of continuing now what I started then."

Staggs hit .417, 10 home runs and was the only unanimous all-star choice in the league, another honor added to the list of honors gained in his baseball career. It was no coincidence that Staggs' parents some of his greatest feats during the summer, either.

"Dad came down to see me play one weekend in the Valley," said Staggs. "And I don't know what it is, but whenever my parents come to see me play, I just want to try harder. And when I do, it seems like everything falls into place."

The Pirates have had some hitting problems this season, but Staggs thinks the problems may be subsiding.

"The pitching and defense has been good this year," said Staggs. "Individually, I know some players on the team have had some problems. I know they can work it out though, and when they do, we will have the team we have been touted to be."

The Pirates have lost some tight games this season, and one observer noted that the team has not been getting the breaks necessary for having a championship team. Staggs, however, said this is no fault of the team's.

"We never quit when down," said Staggs. "We have been down but we know the hitting will come around, just like I found out something would come around when my dad came to see me play in the Valley."

During that weekend, Staggs belted a home run off N.C. State pitcher Tom Hayes, which was one of two hit during the two games the elder Staggs was in attendance in Waynesboro, Va., where his son played.

"I belted one pretty good off Hayes, so I figured my parents must give me some good luck," said Staggs. "I'm glad they will be around during the weekend, when we play Duke, VMI and Carolina."

Staggs is glad they will be around. And if you would put the question to George Williams, the Pirate head coach, he would probably be in favor of the visitors staying.

All season long.

Rupp Says He's Proud Of His Successor, Hall

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Adolph Rupp, the man who made University of Kentucky basketball famous, arrived with the club for the National Collegiate Athletic Association finals in San Diego.

But this was a team that someone else built.

Rupp, now 73, was forced into retirement three years ago when he didn't want to quit. Joe B. Hall, one of his former players, assumed the reins the school took from the Baron when he reached 70.

The current team, with its 25-4 record, came via recruiting by Hall. This is his team, without the influence of Rupp, whose clubs in the past won four NCAA titles, 27 Southeast Conference crowns and two score All-Americans.

"I'm very, very proud of Coach Hall," now says Rupp, who wasn't happy to greet any successor. "He's done a great job. I think this is the strongest Kentucky team since 1948-49 and I'd be disappointed if they don't win it all."

Kentucky ranks as the No. 2 choice behind UCLA, which seeks its 10th NCAA title under Coach John Wooden since 1964. In that long span, the Bruins have only lost twice—the latest to last year's eventual champion, North Carolina State, which didn't qualify for this tournament.

The physically powerful Wildcats of Kentucky open Saturday against surprising Syracuse at 12:10 p.m. PDT, followed by the UCLA-Louisville battle at 2:10. The winners tangle for the national title on Monday with all games at the already sold-out San Diego Sports Arena.

Hall's Kentucky team won No. 2 rating in The Associated Press poll behind UCLA after the regional tournaments. The Wildcats handed the previous No. 1, Indiana, its only loss of the season 92-90.

"Needless to say," commented Hall, "we're mighty glad to be here."

Victory over Indiana marked the high point for Hall and Kentucky hasn't won the NCAA tournament since 1958, well before the advent of the Wooden championship era at UCLA.

Although the Wildcats are favored over Syracuse, at least one member of the coaching staff publicly worries.

"We're not bouncing back," said assistant coach Dick Parsons. "That Indiana game must have drained the players. We haven't got anything done all week. We've got work to do to catch up."

Carner Holds To Her Promise

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Keeping up to her vow of a day earlier that she "better get with it," JoAnne Carner holds a three-stroke lead going into today's second round of the $70,000 LPGA Golf Classic.

Mrs. Carner shot a five-under-par 67 on Thursday's first round of the 6,000-yard, par 72, Camelback Country Club course, in a cold, blustery wind.

Wednesday, Mrs. Carner, who played collegiate golf at nearby Arizona State University several years ago, acknowledged she was well down on the Ladies Professional Golf Association money list this year, and "had better get with it."

Only seven other golfers topped par as temperatures reached only 59 degrees during the day. Winds of 15 miles an hour and higher whipped over the course.

Finishing the round three strokes off the pace at two-under 70 were Betty Burfeindt, who played in Mrs. Carner's threesome, Kathy Ahern, Sally Little, Sharon Miller and Jane Blalock.

One shot back at 71 were Joyce Kazmierski and Pam Higgins, while the even-par shooters were Debbie Austin, Carole Jo Skala and Sandra Post.

"It was really fun out there today," said Mrs. Carner, whose garb for the day was topped off with a knit stocking cap.

Nicklaus Happy With Round-66

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus considered the question carefully. He pursed his lips, stared into the middle distance and mused.

He'd just been asked if his first-round 66 in the $200,000 Heritage Golf Classic ranked among his best efforts of the last couple of years.

"Well," he said, "I've had some pretty good rounds but, yes considering the conditions, that was a good round of golf. I'm pleased."

But, while Nicklaus was delighted with his leading effort, some of the game's other glamor names were considerably less than enchanted after Thursday's play on the 6,655 yard, par-71 Harbour Town Golf Links.

"Terrible," muttered Arnold Palmer, his mouth a tight, grim line. He'd three-putted four times and lost four strokes to par on his last three holes on his way to a 74.

"What can I say?" asked Johnny Miller. "I just played lousy. I did everything bad." The young man who has dominated the game in recent months blew to a fat 78 in the chilly, gusty, blustery winds that swept this millionaires' playground off the coast of South Carolina.

Lee Trevino shot 41 on his last nine, had a 73 and wasn't at all bothered about it. "This is the toughest golf course in the world," he said. "I played good. I'm not at all unhappy. I'm satisfied with the way I'm hitting the ball."

Nicklaus, a winner his last time out, made seven birdies despite the severity of the course, the adverse playing conditions and a nagging earache that prompted him to seek medical attention before and after his round.

He was three strokes ahead of Australian Bruce Crampton, veteran Don January, Andy North, Tom Kite and U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, tied for second at 69.

John Mahaffey and Tom Weiskopf were the only others in the elite field of 102 to break par. They were at 70. South African Gary Player, the British Open and Masters champion, shot 71 in his first American start of the season.

McGee Gets New Pact

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Duke University athletic director Carl James said Thursday that the university is pleased with the progress of the football team and has renewed the contract of head coach Mike McGee.

James said McGee and his staff have had a successful recruiting season and that the Blue Devils will be ready to face a tough 1975 season.

That season will open Sept. 12 against Rose Bowl champion Southern California in Los Angeles.

McGee, an All-American football player at Duke in 1959, has coached the Blue Devils since 1970 and last year guided Duke to a 6-5 record.

James said, "We are pleased with the progress Coach McGee, his staff and the football players made last season."

Pilot Likes The Cockpit Camera

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Gillen, an airline captain by trade, doesn't think of himself as a TV star. But he is, in a way, whenever he sits at the controls of the American Airlines DC10 jetliners he flies.

The reason: a cockpit TV camera which lets passengers watch him, some instruments and the runway on take offs and landings. They also hear him talk with the airport tower and air traffic controllers.

Gillen, 51, likes the idea. He says it's sort of an electronic throwback to the days he flew propeller-driven DC3s, "when we used to invite people up in the cockpit to see what we do there."

"We have to keep the door locked now," he adds, referring to federal laws intended to thwart would-be skyjackers.

American says it first tested its cockpit camera on a DC10 in June 1974. It says passenger response was so favorable it began equipping all 25 of its DC10s with the camera five months later.

It says the fixed-focus camera, peering over the captain's right shoulder, transmits a black-and-white picture to three 25-inch TV screens also used for showing inflight movies to passengers.

Doesn't cockpit-watching further alarm the white-knuckle segment of airline passengers? "Well, this is what we wanted to find out when we first tried it," an American spokesman says. "But we haven't had any bad experiences. They're fascinated by it, frankly."

Gillen, a 30,000-hour pilot, agrees: "I think this really gives them more confidence because we do a good job up there, do everything in a professional manner.

"I think letting the passengers see how calm we are helps."

American which says its other types of jets won't get the cockpit camera because they lack the type of inflight movie system used on the DC10, says use of the camera isn't mandatory.

That's left to the discretion of the captain.

But Gillen says he likes to use it as often as possible because it gives passengers an insight into the work of the cockpit crew and also because "it's wonderful from a public relations viewpoint."

The Allied Pilots Association, which represents American pilots in contract talks with the airline, says it doesn't object to the cockpit camera as long as captains retain the right to turn it on or off.

West led the king of spades, and South was reasonably satisfied when dummy came down. It appeared that the success of the contract hinged on one of two minor-suit finesses.

The odds were 3:1 in his favor, but declarer decided that he would buck the odds in view of West's preempt. There was a strong possibility that neither finesse would succeed, so declarer searched for a line that would bring in the contract if East held both the queen of diamonds and king of clubs.

He won the ace of spades, crossed to dummy with the ten of trumps and ruffed a spade. Dummy was reentered with the king of trumps and the last spade was ruffed. The ace of hearts picked up the remaining trump, and the moment of truth was at hand.

East had now been stripped of all his major-suit cards. Declarer continued with a diamond to the king, a diamond to the ace and a third diamond. East won the queen, but because the suit split 3-3, he was endplayed. He was forced to lead a club away from the king. Declarer won the ten of clubs, entered dummy with the ace of clubs, and discarded his last club on the thirteenth diamond.

What if the diamonds had split 4-2 and East had been able to exit with a diamond after winning the third round? Declarer would have been little worse off than had he relied on two finesses. He would have ruffed the diamond and tried the club finesse for his contract.

West's preemptive overcall did prevent his opponents from an investigative auction. North was under considerable pressure when he went to four hearts with only three-card support, but that was all South needed to hear. His hand revalued to 23 points once hearts were supported, so he elected to gamble it out by contracting for a small slam.

 And DREAMS DO COME TRUE. We've got proof. Do you dream of coming home to a stately nineteenth century home set back in beautiful shrubbery and trees? Can you see yourself wandering around in the elegance of 17 rooms — 7 bedrooms, 3 baths, living room, drawing room, glassed in sun room with bookcases, huge kitchen with cabinets galore, spacious dining room. This lovely old home offers this and lots more. All for $50,000. It's in good structural shape, has a good slate roof, has 364 front feet and is 366 feet deep. Two other houses go along with the property. This is a dream come true for a family that wants elegance and doesn't mind a little hard work to get it. See it today.

You've been looking around Greenville for a house to buy. Not a big house... two large bedrooms and 1 1/2 baths perhaps. And you definitely want modern conveniences: central air conditioning and heating, wall-to-wall carpet, appliances. Also you'd like to be in a desirable neighborhood, close to town, schools, church, the University.
 Now you've looked around and found a few homes that meet your specifications. The problem is that those homes are priced from $25,000.00 and up and require large down payments. You're afraid that you may have to rent even though you know that $170.00 worth of rent is $170.00 worth of loss.
UNIVERSITY CONDOMINIUMS is the answer you're looking for. For many reasons:
 • Excellent location close to everything and across the street from a fine elementary school.
 • Wall-to-wall carpet, central heating, air conditioning, dishwasher, range, refrigerator, private patio.
 • Swimming pool.
 • Sales price far below comparable single-family dwellings.
 • Low down payment with 95 per cent financing at lowest interest rate available.
 • Architecturally varied design in attractive antique brick with all the low maintenance costs that brick affords.
 • $160.00 yearly estimated maintenance fee.
 • All the conveniences of condominium living (You never have to mow the grass.)

No Mere Myth Behind A Phenomenon

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Modern textbooks of ancient history, in dealing with Jesus, usually give a condensed account of his life and relate that he was crucified on orders of Pontius Pilate. But they shun dealing with the Easter phenomenon — the Resurrection.

They generally simply pass over it in silence or with qualifications, shifting at once to the growth of the early church in Jerusalem and elsewhere, with scarcely a clue to explain what actually fired that sudden extraordinary growth.
Dr. Paul L. Maier, professor of ancient history at Western Michigan University, suggests that secular histories may be ignoring some valid and objective evidence that sheds light on the case.

Noting that it generally is assumed that the Resurrection can be approached only in faith and not through the discipline of history, he says this is not entirely so, especially in regard to supporting details such as the empty tomb.
"Nor is all the evidence for the Easter phenomenon confined to the New Testament, as so many Christians and non-Christians alike seem to assume," he writes in the weekly, Christianity Today. "The science of history can penetrate at least to the outer peripheries of the events of the first Easter, and that it detects at these fringes is extraordinary."
He says "any ancient historian would have to admit that a profound religious explosion occurred in Jerusalem shortly after Christ's crucifixion, since the repercussions shook distant Rome with incredible speed."

In that imperial capital, only 31 years after the crucifixion, the Roman historian Tacitus, who detested Christianity, records that a "great number" of its followers so strongly believed in Christ's resurrection that they gave up their lives in Nero's persecution of 64 A.D., Maier points out.

"For a philosophy or teaching to spread that far that fast is absolutely unparalleled in the ancient world, and historians have not devoted enough attention to the implications here," he says.
He cites other secondary evidence, what he terms "fallout" of the Easter event, including the striking psychological change that transformed the frightened, hiding apostles into bold spokesmen for the faith at the risk of death.

"Myths do not make martyrs," Maier observes.
Recounting various other "telling evidence for a mighty launching" of the faith, he says this "peripheral evidence" ordinarily would be sufficient to establish the Resurrection historically, but historians don't stamp it historical fact for one simple reason — because it "involves the supernatural."
Maier, a Lutheran and author of several works on ancient times, including "First Easter" put out by Harper & Row, says historians "have long overlooked" an important clue to Easter — the empty tomb.
It is reported not only in the gospels, he says, but in other ancient sources, including those opposed to Christianity.

Will Not Negotiate With Inmates Union

RALEIGH (AP)—Correction Secretary David Jones told a correction conference Thursday that he and Gov. Jim Holshouser agreed that they would never recognize or negotiate with an inmates' union.

Jones said some might call his position "hardline." He added, "I call it responsible administration."

An organization was formed last year that claims to represent some inmates at Central Prison and in the field units of the state system. At least one of the North Carolina Prisoners' Union organizers was in the conference audience when Jones made the statement.

"The people who are incarcerated have broken the law and they will not dictate to us. There will be no negotiations, no facilities used for meetings, no solicitations," Jones said. The conference included 350 criminal justice employes and officials and representatives of volunteer organizations.

Jones told the group that he was concerned that organizers might prompt inmates to take action that would lead to disciplinary action against them.

"I would not want the inmate population to be misled that they have artificial support on the outside," Jones said.

Jones repeated a statement he made a day earlier that he might soon have to refuse to accept additional prisoners into the state prison system because of overcrowding.

Prison Brawls Are Confirmed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The warden of Central Prison, Sam Garrison, has confirmed that 11 inmates were treated at the prison hospital early last month after two separate disturbances.

He said the incidents weren't reported to the news media at the time because he didn't consider them significant or newsworthy. He denied that officials were attempting to keep the disturbances secret.

They came to light when the Greensboro Daily News published a story about them in Thursday's editions.

The prison system has a formal policy requiring its officials to report to the news media "unusual incidents," including "serious disruptions of prison routine."

Triumphant Hour

I arose early today for a quiet walk in my garden.
Faraway, church bells in the valley glorified the morning. Suddenly, it seemed I saw another garden, another woman.

She stood crying by an empty tomb. The beauties of the morn meant nothing to her, for he, who had given meaning to her life, had died on Calvary. Weeping, she turned, "tell me where thou hast laid him..."
"Mary." By one single word joy was reborn. "Master!" she said, and knew her Lord lived.
Now, the tumultuous triumph of that hour rang across the centuries and swelled within me! The Lord is risen.
Come join the mighty chorus. Attend your church — learn the joyous promise of God's love.
