Signs With Reluctance The Bill He Terms "Flawed And Potentially Inflationary"

President Ford Signs $24.8 Billion Tax Cut Bill

By RICHARD H. GROWALD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford reluctantly signed the $24.8 billion tax cut bill Saturday, guaranteeing taxpayers a shot of extra spending money soon but warning Congress "I am drawing the line right here" on federal spending.

Ford signed what he called a flawed and potentially inflationary bill in a nationally televised speech, saying Congress had left him in a hopeless "take it or leave it" situation of urgent economic necessity.

"The people of this country need to know, right now, how to plan their financial affairs for the rest of this year...", Ford said. "Our economy needs the stimulus and support of a tax cut and needs it now.

"I have therefore decided to sign this bill so that its economic benefits can begin to work," he said.

Biggest immediate benefit to the ordinary taxpayer will be tax rebate checks which the Internal Revenue Service said will start going into the mails May 12. But the bill also contains many temporary tax break provisions for various categories of taxpayer, and these angered Ford.

So low was his opinion of the bill and its excessive federal spending features, he said, that he would have voted against it were he still a member of the House of Representatives.

"The tax cuts in the bill I have just signed and other changes will bring the estimated fiscal year 1976 (federal) deficit up to approximately $60 billion," he said.

Stepping up to a chart set up in the Oval Office, Ford said Congress was contemplating still more spending that could drive the deficit to the "enormous total of $100 billion." Ford pointed at the $60 billion line on the chart.

"I am drawing the line right here," he said. "This is as far as we dare to go."

"I will resist every attempt by the Congress to add another dollar..."

Ford originally requested a tax cut bill worth $16 billion. The $24.8 billion signed was scaled down from a $33 billion Senate bill.

White House aides had predicted Ford would sign the bill grudgingly, judging that a veto would provoke terrific political backlash and prolong economic hardship for millions.

Immediately after the speech, the President and Mrs. Ford flew to Palm Springs, the California millionaires' playground, for a nine-day working Easter vacation.

Ford Orders U.S. Aid In Beseiged Da Nang

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford ordered American naval transports Saturday to evacuate South Vietnamese refugees trapped by Communist forces on the South Vietnamese coast. He called on all nations with ships in the vicinity to assist in the rescue mission.

"A severe emergency exists in the coastal communities of South Vietnam which are swollen with helpless civilian refugees who have fled the North Vietnamese offensive," Ford said in a statement issued by White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

"They are desperately in need of any assistance we and other nations can provide.

"To help the refugees reach safe haven further south, I have ordered American naval transports and contract vessels to assist in the evacuation of refugees from the coastal seaports."

"I also call upon all nations and corporations that have ships in the vicinity of the South Vietnamese coast to help evacuate refugees to safety in the south," Ford said.

Officials indicated the rescue ships should arrive off Da Nang by sometime Sunday. They said the ships already were sailing into position, awaiting Ford's final order, when the President gave the go-ahead for the operation Saturday afternoon.

Nessen stressed that the Navy amphibious transport ships dispatched to Da Nang on the mercy mission would lie off the coast. He said the refugees would be ferried to them on smaller craft.

"It is anticipated (the U.S. ships) will not be involved in hostilities," Nessen said.

Ford said he has directed that U.S. Government resources "be made available to meet immediate humanitarian needs." He said he has appointed Daniel Parker, administrator of the Agency for International Development, as his special coordinator for disaster relief.

Nessen said Ford made his decision after consulting with diplomatic and military advisers, apparently including Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Defense Secretary James Schlesinger.

Nessen said congressional leaders were being informed of the President's decision.

The White House spokesman referred all queries to the Pentagon and to AID administrator Parker. He did not disclose how many ships were involved in the mission, but other sources said at least four were involved.

Worship In Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Several thousand Christian pilgrims from around the world gathered inside the heavily guarded old walls of the city Saturday to celebrate the last of the Easter Week services prior to today's traditional Easter sunrise mass.

Roman Catholic and Protestant pilgrims gathered at the fortress-like Church of the Holy Sepulchre, a Byzantine structure built on Calvary rock, for the Holy Saturday services, which included the blessing of the new fire.

More than 2,000 pilgrims came here to worship during the week-long Easter celebrations, which also coincide with the Jewish Passover. They were guarded by border police, especially in evidence during the Good Friday processions along the cobblestone path of the Via Dolorosa. The ancient winding street is the traditional path Christ took as he marched to his crucifixion.

Pope Leads Services

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI Saturday led the world's nearly 700 million Roman Catholics in Holy Saturday observances setting the stage for the 1975 Holy Year's Easter Sunday.

The 77-year-old pontiff was presiding at a two-hour Easter Vigil in St. Peter's Basilica that ended at midnight with the first mass of Easter.

During the vigil, Pope Paul was to baptize and confirm 21 adults from Asia and Africa. They included Sapu Kishi, a 39-year-old mechanic from Zaire whose father was a polygamist.

Greek Voting Today

ATHENS (UPI)—Greeks will vote today to elect municipal officials and other local government representatives for the first time in 11 years.

More than 6 million voters will elect about 45,000 local government officials, including mayors and municipal councillors, from 100,000 candidates.

In many towns and villages, opposition parties including Communists have formed cooperation tickets which bear the word "democratic."

Considered Replacing Spiro

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon during his first presidential term considered using the 25th Amendment to replace Spiro Agnew, who was frustrated as vice president and wanted to get into television, former Nixon aide H.R. Haldeman said in an interview made public Saturday.

50 Dead In Train Crash

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (UPI) — Two trains collided head-on about 90 miles north of the Mozambique capital Friday, killing 50 persons and injuring 100 others, police reported Saturday.

Police officials said the northbound passenger train and southbound freight collided with such force that both locomotives and two cars were completely destroyed.

12 Dead In Bus Explosion

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Gas leaking from a bus was ignited and the vehicle blew up killing 12 passengers including some children near San Miguel de Allende, 175 miles north of here, police reported today.

Most of the victims were farm workers headed home for the Easter holidays. Police said 22 persons were seriously injured.

Arabian Reshuffle

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — King Khaled reshuffled the Saudi Arabian government today, making Crown Prince Fahd first deputy premier, Riyadh Radio reported.

The king, who assumed the post Friday night, named Prince Nayef as state minister for interior affairs. Nayef succeeds his full brother, Crown Prince Fahd, in the interior ministry.

Prince Saud al Faisal, son of the assassinated monarch, who was undersecretary of the oil ministry became state minister for foreign affairs.

$4.6 Million Error

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acknowledging a bookkeeping error, the Pentagon says less than $2 million worth of ammunition from a bonus fund remains to be delivered to the embattled Cambodian government.

The Defense Department's admission Friday came after the General Accounting Office reported that the $21.5 million in arms aid originally claimed to have been overlooked and unspent last year actually amounted to $16.9 million.

And, it said, some $15 million of the $16.9 million in aid already had been delivered to Cambodia by last Tuesday.

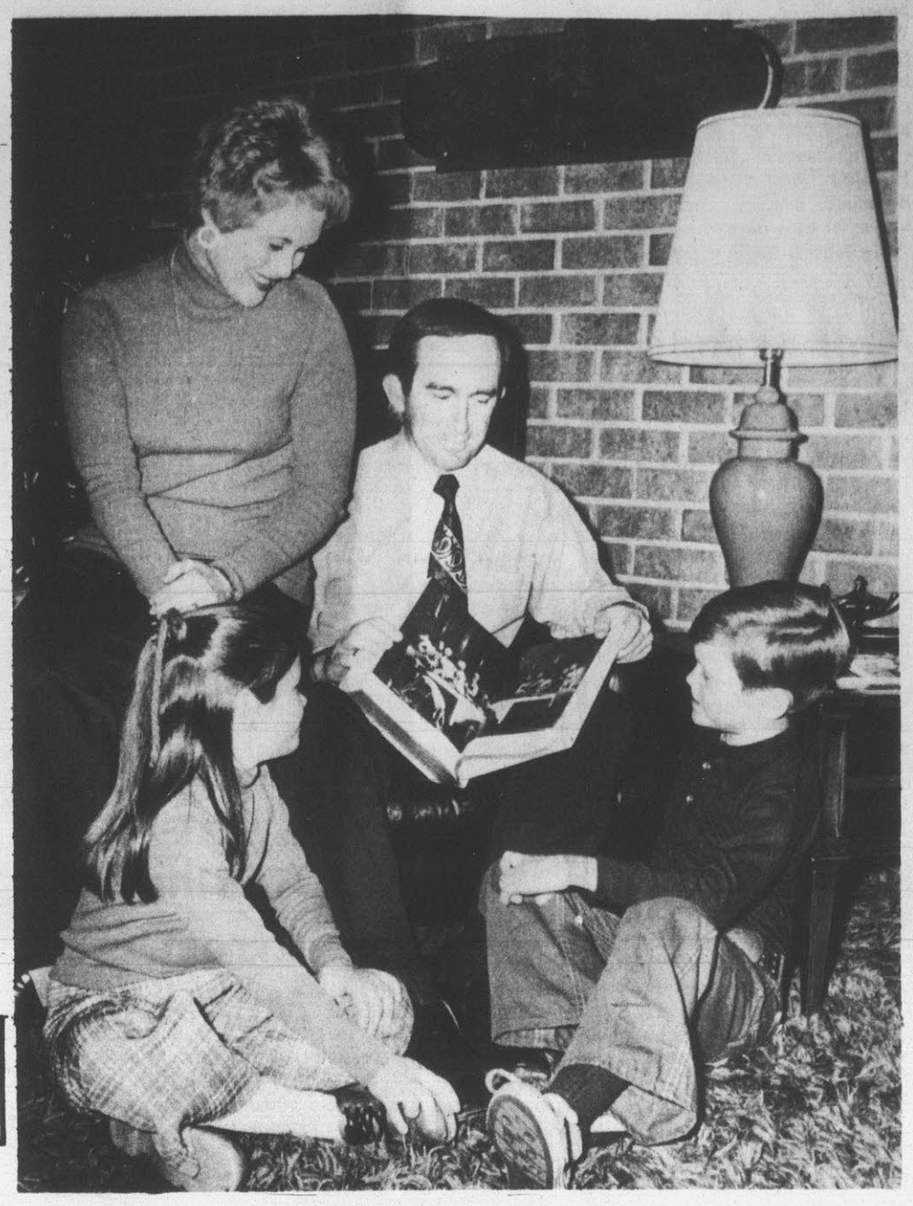

Suez Will Reopen June 5

CAIRO (UPI) — Reversing an earlier position, President Anwar Sadat said Saturday Egypt will reopen the Suez Canal to international shipping on June 5 despite the failure of United States efforts to mediate another Israeli troop withdrawal in the Sinai.

Sadat also said he will agree to a three-month extension of the current mandate of the U.N. Emergency Force, stationed between Egyptian and Israeli forces in the peninsula, beyond its scheduled expiration date of April 24.

May Cut ECU Med School Funds Sharply

Shortfall Predicted For N.C. Revenues

RALEIGH (AP)—Pessimistic state revenue predictions led Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt Friday to call on Gov. Jim Holshouser to advise the legislature on how to cut the state budget proposed by Holshouser in January.

Figures presented to a legislative committee this week indicate that general fund revenues for the biennium will fall short of the Advisory Budget Commission estimates by $225.3 to $362.6 million.

Holshouser predicted earlier in the week that the shortfall would be well in excess of $100 million and called on the General Assembly to begin cutting his proposed budget.

Hunt said that since the governor is director of the budget, he should "come forward with his suggestions as to what should be cut out of his budget in order to balance it."

Hunt indicated that funds for expansion of the East Carolina University medical school might have to be cut sharply. A total of $54 million has been recommended for the proposed four-year school.

"The expansion of the medical school at East Carolina University is going to have to be done on the smallest possible budget," Hunt said, including use of Pitt Memorial Hospital as the teaching hospital.

The current budget proposal includes $20 million for a new teaching hospital. Hunt said the appropriation for ECU could be reduced sharply if Pitt Memorial were used as the teaching hospital.

Hunt said, "Everything now has to be looked at very carefully and we have to take some major things out. Which means capital improvements, salary increases and everything else must be carefully scrutinized."

The proposed capital improvements Hunt mentioned were budgeted at $138.3 million. The 5 per cent pay raise proposed for teachers and state employes would cost $137.5 million.

The estimates of big revenue shortfalls were made this week during meetings of a subcommittee of the joint Committee on the Economy. An economist for North Carolina National Bank said the shortfall might run as much as $340 million in the next biennium.

Lloyd O'Carroll, an analyst for the legislature's Fiscal Research Division, said the shortfall could range from $225.3 million to $362.6 million.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, said, "There is going to have to be some consequential cuts before we have a balanced budget."

Easter In USSR

MOSCOW (UPI) — Police with bullhorns entered Moscow's central synagogue at the end of a Passover service Saturday and ordered several hundred worshippers to disperse, witnesses said.

They said the gray-coated policemen then linked arms and pushed the crowds along the sidewalk of narrow Arkhipova street outside.

The Jews said police used similar tactics to break up worshipers at the end of this year's first Passover service Wednesday night.

Long-time Moscow residents said this year is the first they could recall police actually entering the synagogue.

100,000 At Convention

UNION GROVE, N.C. (UPI) — About 100,000 fans, mostly college age or younger, crowded into a rain-soaked cow pasture Saturday for the 51st annual Old Time Fiddlers' Convention.

About 180 arrests were reported, the majority for drug and alcohol violations, but law enforcement officers said the crowd was generally well-behaved and content to listen to the banjos, guitars and fiddles of 95 bands and scores of individual competitors.

Rain began falling on the crowd about midday, but failed to slow down the proceedings. The fiddling took place under a one-acre tent that seats about 15,000 spectators.

Should Proceed With Vet. Medicine School

RALEIGH (AP)—A veteran state senator said Saturday North Carolina should proceed with plans to develop a school of veterinary medicine at North Carolina State University despite a letter calling for a reassessment.

"I think we should go ahead and let the federal government bring suit and test the decision in courts," said Sen. Vernon White, D-Pitt, in a telephone interview.

White sponsored a bill in the Senate to appropriate $4 million to begin developing a vet school at N.C. State. A similar bill was sponsored in the House by Rep. B.T. Falls, D-Cleveland.

The U. S. Office of Civil Rights has told the state that if it insists on developing the school at N. C. State, it must place a program of "similar stature and attractiveness" at North Carolina A&T State University in Greensboro.

University of North Carolina President William C. Friday said the federal agency has asked the university to "suspend" its decision on the vet school location and to conduct another "racial impact study."

A&T State University is predominantly black and N.C. State predominantly white.

Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt said the development "hurts the chances of getting a vet school in North Carolina."

State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said he was "shocked and disappointed" by the Office of Civil Rights decision.

"I just hope (the federal government) will reconsider the thing," said Graham.

William H. Thomas, director of the Office of Civil Rights within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, called the UNC plan to put the school at N.C. State "defective."

Arkansas Tornado

WARREN, Ark. (UPI) — A Good Friday tornado "took the city and shook it," ripping into houses, stores and the town's only hospital and largest industry, leaving seven dead and 64 injured.

The seventh victim died Saturday from injuries received in the twister that spun out of a heavy spring thunderstorm.

Gov. David H. Pryor surveyed the damage with Mayor John Frazer and P. W. Whitaker from the office of Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., by helicopter and car and estimated damage could amount to $10 million.

Pryor also sent a telegram to President Ford requesting he designate Bradley County a major disaster area, qualifying it for federal disaster assistance. Pryor said his survey showed 200 houses destroyed and 400 damaged, including extensive damage to Potlatch Forest Inc.'s Bradley Mill, which employed more than 600 persons.

"Frankly, the damage could range from $6 milpion to $10 million with $6 million being a minimal figure," Pryor said.

"Well, boys, it wasn't such a Good Friday, was it?" winced Mrs. M.H. Hargrove as rescue workers helped her and other injured townfolk into an ambulance.

About 125 National Guard troops Saturday patrolled the city, helping in rescue and recovery work and protecting against looting.

"It's like someone took the city and shook it," said Maylon Rice, a Henderson State University student home for Easter.

The tornado—skimming along a similar path of a twister that slashed through Warren in 1949, killing 52 persons—tore a mile-and-a-half-long, four-block-wide gash across a residental and busines area from southwest to northeast.

It struck first at 7:55 p.m. at the Potlatch lumber mill, causing heavy damage and killing two men.

National Guardsmen and state police blocked off all 15 roadways leading to the city and no one but residents or those with official business were allowed to pass. Water service was restored with an emergency generator. Half of the city's phones were out of order and most of the rest jammed with incoming calls.

At the Bradley County Memorial Hospital Mrs. Shelton Clark, a registered nurse, was helping care for the injured. Eighteen of the injured were hospitalized. The tornado struck the hospital too.

The El Dorado police department, 55 miles to the southwest reported a tornado, probably the same one, touched down five miles outside of town and tore some roofs off of houses. But there were no injuries

25 Infants Die In Yugoslav Fire

RIJEKA, Yugoslavia (UPI) — A hospital infants ward had been left unattended when a fire set off by faulty wiring swept through the rooms, killing 25 of 28 babies, authorities said Saturday.

After a preliminary investigation, Judge Vladimir Palic said the ward at Dr Zdravko Kucic Hospital was not patrolled by the sister on duty, Jadranka Bolf, at the time of the fire early Friday.

A statement by Palic said that soon after the tragedy the sister went into a trauma and had since been held in a local psychiatric hospital where she was unable to answer questions.

The judge said the fire, which killed 18 boys and seven girls between one and seven days old was caused by a short circuit in the wiring of a wall heater.

Earlier deputy public prosecutor Milan Zatezalo said that while the faulty wiring directly caused the fire, a number of medical staff were also to blame for the tragedy.

"We shall certainly open investigations against some persons," Zatezalo said. "It is indisputable that in this tragedy a certain number of persons bear responsibility."

Ambassador Released

By EDWARD R. GIRARDET

PARIS (UPI) — French Ambassador to Somalia Jean Gueury Saturday thanked the press for its discretion during his six days of captivity by Somali nationalists and said he was looking forward to a rest in the country with his family.

The ambassador, who was kidnaped last Sunday by three Somali guerrillas in Mogadishu and released in exchange for two jailed terrorists and $100,000, stood outside his home and told UPI in an interview:

"Naturally, I am very pleased to be back. And I am now looking forward to a rest in the country with my family.

"Unfortunately, I cannot make any official declarations concerning my experience and I am sorry that I cannot answer questions of a political or personal nature. I am afraid that will have to wait."

Another Arrest Made

Another Greenville man has been arrested on drug-law violation charges stemming from a joint State Bureau of Investigation-Greenville Police Department undercover investigation.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Henry Hardy, 21 of 618B Hudson St. has been charged with possession and sale of heroin. His bond was set at $10,000.

Six other people were arrested here last week in connection with the undercover investigations of illegal drug operations—one of them a local physician.

The violation for which Hardy was charged, according to Cannon, allegedly occurred January 8.

Evacution Flight Is A Nightmare

(Editor's note: UPI correspondent Paul Vogle Saturday flew out on a refugee plane from Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city and the last government outpost in the northern part of the country.)

By PAUL VOGLE

DA NANG, South Vietnam (UPI) — Only the fastest, the strongest and the meanest got out on what may be the last refugee plane from Communist-threatened Da Nang Saturday.

I saw a South Vietnamese soldier kick an old woman in the face to get aboard.

In the movies somebody would have shot the soldier and helped the old lady on the plane. But this was no movie—he flew and the old lady tumbled down the tarmac, her fingers clawing toward the plane that was already rolling.

People fought one another and died trying to get aboard. Others fell thousands of feet to their deaths in the sea because even desperation could no longer keep their fingers welded to the undercarriage.

It was a flight out of hell and only a good tough American pilot and a lot of prayers got us back to Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airbase alive—with the Boeing 727's flaps jammed and the wheels fully extended.

It all started simply enough. I asked World Airways Vice President Charles Patterson if he had anything going to Da Nang. He said, "Get on that truck and you've got yourself a ride."

It was a ride I'll never forget.

World Airways President Ed Daley was aboard. He was angry and tired. Daley said he had been up all night arguing with American and Vietnamese officials for permission to fly into besieged Da Nang to get more refugees out.

Daley finally said to hell with paperwork, clearances and caution and we were on our way.

It seemed peaceful enough as we touched down at the airport, 370 miles northeast of Saigon.

More than a thousand people had been waiting around a Quonset hut several hundred yards away from where we touched down.

Suddenly it was a mob in motion—they roared across the tarmac on motorbikes, jeeps, scooters and on legs speeded by sheer desperation and panic.

Daley and I stood near the bottom of the 727's tailramp. Daley held out his arms while I shouted in Vietnamese, "One at a time—one at a time. There's room for everybody."

There wasn't room for everybody and everybody knew damn well there wasn't.

Daley and I were knocked aside and backward.

If Daley thought he'd get some women and children out of Da Nang he was wrong. The plane was jammed in an instant with troops of the 1st Division's meanest unit, the Hac Bao (Black Panthers).

They literally ripped the clothes right off Daley along with some of his skin. A British television cameraman who flew up with us made the mistake of getting off the plane when we landed to shoot the loading. He could not get back aboard in the pandemonium so he threw his camera with its precious film into the closing door and stood there and watched us take off.

We heard later that an Air America helicopter picked him up and carried him to safety.

As we started rolling, insanity gripped those who had missed their chance. Government troops opened fire on us. Somebody lobbed a hand grenade toward the wing. The explosion jammed the flaps full open and the undercarriage in full extension.

Communist rockets began exploding at a distance.

Our pilot, Ken Healy, 52, of Oakland, Calif., slammed the throttles wide open and lurched into the air from the taxiway. There was no way we could have survived the gunfire and got onto the main runway.

A backup 727 had flown behind us but had been ordered not to land when the panic broke out. The pilot radioed he could see the legs of people hanging down from the undercarriage of our plane.

UPI photographer Lien Huong, who was in the cockpit of that backup plane, saw at least one person lose his grip on life and plummet into the South China Sea below.

There were 268 or more people jammed into the cabin of the little 727 limping down the coast.

Only two women and one baby among them. The rest were soldiers, toughest of the tough, meanest of the mean. They proved it Saturday. They didn't talk to each other or us. They looked at the floor.

I saw one of them had a clip of ammunition and asked him to give it to me. He handed it over. As I walked up the aisle other soldiers started loading my arms with clips of ammunition, pistols, hand grenades. They didn't need them anymore.

There was no more fight left in the Black Panthers this day. They had gone from humans to animals and now they were vegetables.

In the cockpit we wrapped the weapons and ammo in electric tape.

We flew down the coast, the backup plane behind us all the way. Healy circled Phan Rang airbase 165 miles northeast of Saigon, hoping to put down for an emergency landing.

Lien Huong served as interpreter on the backup plane, radioing Phan Rang control tower that our 727 had to land there in an emergency. The reply came back that there was no firefighting equipment at Phan Rang so Healy aimed the plane for Tan Son Nhut.

I heard Healy on the radio telling Tan Son Nhut, "I've got control problems." The backup plane was shepherding us in. Huong told me later when we touched down safe the pilot and cabin crew on his plane pulled off their headphones, some of them crossed themselves, and all thanked God for a small miracle delivered this Easter weekend.

When we touched down the troops who had stormed us were offloaded and put under arrest. They deserved it.

The mangled body of one soldier, M16 rifle stilp strapped to his shoulder, was retrieved from the undercarriage. He got his ride to Saigon but being dead in Saigon is just the same as being dead in Da Nang.

Over a score of others came out of the baggage compartment, cold but alive. Somebody told me that four others crawled out of the wheel wells alive. One died.

The last plane from Da Nang was one hell of a ride. For me. For Ed Daley. For Ken Healy. For the Black Panthers. And for two women and a baby.

But the fact that remains is that of the old woman lying flat on the tarmac seeing hope, seeing life itself, just at the end of her fingertips and rolling the other way.

Engineer Accuses Air Force

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a new book, a former aerospace engineer accuses a unit of the Air Force of engaging in a variety of illegal and unethical activities including death threats, a charge the Air Force denies.

FBI Denies Accusation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department official denied a published report Friday night that FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley had tried to stop an investigation into the alleged bribing of an FBI agent by a reputed member of the Mafia.

The Washington Post reported that Kelley twice made unsuccessful attempts to stop the Justice Department probe. The newspaper said the department's investigation had been started after an initial FBI inquiry into the bribe allegation turned up no evidence against New York FBI agent Joseph Stabile.

Allegations Of Harassment

WASHINGTON (AP) — A six-member panel will investigate allegations that officials of the Food and Drug Administration harassed employes who sought to block certification of drugs they believed to be unsafe.

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Caspar W. Weinberger, who appointed the panel Friday, said he expected it to report back to him by the end of this year on the FDA's drug evaluation process and on charges made by FDA medical officers who review applications from pharmaceutical firms.

Cambodian Retreat

By FREDERICK H. MARKS

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian troops retreated to within five miles of Phnom Penh Saturday and President Lon Nol was reported preparing to leave the country next week.

As the government forces pulled back closer to Phnom Penh, the abandoned trucks, ammunition and armor to Communist led-rebels. But the U.S. supply airlift resumed despite heavily rebel shelling of the airport.

Informed sources said the Cambodian president will leave the capital "in a few days," possibly as early as Tuesday, for visits to Indonesia, Japan and Hawaii. They did not say when or if he would return.

The sources said his trip to Hawaii, where he received medical treatment following a stroke several years ago, could be described as an "unofficial visit."

President Ford will be in California at the time of Lon Nol's reported Hawaiian visit but White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said in Washington Ford had no plans to leave the continental United States.

State Department officials in Washington would not comment on the reports of Lon Nol's trip.

Cheng Heng, who acted as chief of state when Lon Nol was incapacitated by a stroke, left Cambodia for Paris Saturday.

Both Cheng Heng and Lon Nol are on the seven-name death list of persons the Communist Khmer Rouge insurgents have vowed to execute if they come to power.

The American airlift of vital food, fuel and ammunition—the lone source of supply for Phnom Penh—continued Saturday despite at least 30 rounds of artillery and rockets which landed on Pochentong Airport, killing one person and wounding six others.

NC News Briefs

Sentenced To Death Row

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP)-Edward C. Davis, 55-year-old Greenville, S. C., machinist, has become the 70th person under the death sentence in North Carolina, following his conviction of first degree murder.

The verdict was returned Friday by a Buncombe Superior Court jury which deliberated for about two hours Davis was convicted in the slaying last October of two North Carolina highway patrolmen.

Superior Court Judge Frank W. Snepp denied a defense motion for a new trial, and also denied another motion for a stay of execution. He set execution for May 28.

Defense lawyers gave notice of appeal and were given 60 days to complete it.

High Rise Prison Planned

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The state Department of Corrections plans to build a 12-story, medium security prison in Mecklenburg County, officials said.

Walter Kautzky, deputy prison director, said the legislature's Advisory Budget Commission had recommended an appropriation of $9.9 million for the facility.

The prison would accomodate 460 felons, he added. No date was given for the start of construction.

On Record Opposing Doby

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Ports Authority, including the Republican appointees, went on record Friday opposing state Transportation Secretary Troy Doby, an appointee of Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser.

The stand came after Rae Watts, executive director of state Ports Authority, resigned. "With some deep regret I ask you, for personal health reasons, to accept my resignation effective April 15th," Watts told the board. The authority accepted the resignation "with regret."

Watts didn't mention an offer from Doby to be a consultant to the Department of Transportation on ports matters, but authority members knew of it and brought the matter out. The board unanimously went on record opposing Doby's plan.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU SMELL GAS.

Call Greenville Utilities immediately. Anytime day or night. We'll get a serviceman to your home or location to correct the problem.

While you're waiting for him to get there, open a window, make sure you use no electrical switches. Extinguish any open flames and evacuate the area.

If you don't know what natural gas smells like, stop by our office and pick up a scratch and sniff leaflet.

Because even though natural gas contains no poisonous ingredients, a leak can become hazardous if combustible gas pockets are allowed to form. Which makes it important for you to know what natural gas smells like.

No Question Of Tight Budget

If there is any doubt that the state government revenues are feeling the effects of the recession, they should be dispelled by Gov. Holshouser's decision to drop his recommendation for removal of the food tax.

The governor had made a major point of this in his budget address, citing the projected surplus at the end of the biennium as providing the cushion for removal of the tax.

Since then, though, the outlook for funds has become more dismal so now the governor has reached a decision—and we believe sincerely—that the elimination of the food tax is not possible at present.

We feel the governor has taken a responsible position in reversing his field on this matter. It is doubtful that the Legislature would have repealed the food tax this year under any circumstances, but if it had happened the loss of revenues could have been disastrous for state and local governments.

Even without any reduction in the tax base, it appears that considerable trimming will have to be done on the proposed budget to bring it in line with the revenues which are now forseen.

As we have said here before the Legislators will face difficulties in making up this year's budget, which will make budgetary problems of recent years look like a picnic.

What must be done is to cut immediate expenditures in order that the state government may get over the difficult times which are plaguing us now. On the other hand, expansion of long range programs which will benefit the state in the future must be continued, for almost everyone agrees that an economic upturn will not be too far away.

Thus programs such as expansion of the kindergarten system and development of the ECU medical school should be funded if we are to be ready for the problems the state will face in the 1980s. All that will take careful handling by the budget makers, but their reward will be the satisfaction of approving a recession era budget which prepares the state for the better times that are sure to lie ahead.

Blind Assist Blind

By BILL BUCY

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UPI) — It's a case of the blind lending the blind.

Discriminated against for years by banks and other institutions that lend money, a group of blind persons working through the Utah Council of the Blind has decided to do something about it.

They've started their own credit union.

"Of course blind people are discriminated against," said L. Kent Wimmer, who is president of the eredit union, an attorney and completely blind.

"Most people think because you can't see, you can't do other things."

He said many money lending institutions refuse credit to blind people because the jobs they can find often don't pay enough to make the sightless borrower a good credit risk.

"And what the employer doesn't know is that blind people are usually more responsible because they have to be," he said.

The state-licensed credit union was formed two months ago and has "about 45 members at last count," Wimmer said.

"We're getting new members all the time and not all of them are blind," he said.

Officers in the credit union are elected, and the bylaws don't require officers to be blind.

The charter of the Utah Council of the Blind requires the president to be sightless, while other officers may be sighted.

"But since most of our members are blind, you could probably expect most of our officers to be blind as we go along," Wimmer said.

Members join the union by paying their $2 a month dues to the Utah Council. Capital is built up through savings deposited with the union.

"We don't have enough capital yet to start lending

N.C. Parks Looking Ahead

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—With the most ambitious land acquisition program in the state's history underway, the State Parks division is moving into development of facilities and activities as a priority.

After years of hardly any expansion—depending largely on donations and gifts—the parks system received $11.5 million from the General Assembly in 1973, another $5.5 million in 1974, and with other funds put together a total $19 million land acquisition program for expanding existing parks or buying land for new ones.

Looking ahead two years, the parks system is backing off of land acquisition—seeking only $2 million from the General Assembly—but asking $5 million for development of activities in the parks.

Bad Shape

Legislators have received a report from staff investigators based on a 1973 inspection of the parks which says most are not especially well maintained, picnic tables and shelters and other facilities appear dilapidated, trails are eroding, entrances are not clearly marked, and most state parks seem designed more for preserving nature than providing family activities.

Moving to correct the deficiencies, parks officials are now aiming toward developing riding trails, camping facilities, fishing, and swimming spots with major emphasis on parks near heavily populated areas within easy driving distance.

Back To Basics

State School Supt. Craig Phillips is getting his dander up over repeated use of the "Back to basics" term by those urging more public school emphasis on reading, writing, and arithmetic.

"Those in our midst who continue to use so unfairly the phrases, 'get back to basics and cut out the frills and fads,' high-sounding phrases which imply irresponsibly in some way or other, that schools and school people have really left or abandoned the basics.

"These people and their voices do a great and damaging disservice to the vast army of N.C. teachers, administrators, supervisors, and their related colleagues in the 149 school systems, the 2,000 schools, the thousands of classrooms with good people who have never left the basics," Phillips recently told the Senate Education Committee.

The fact is, Phillips argued, that schools have faced problems trying to provide quality education for all youngsters in the state "many of whom have really only moved into the mainstream of the educational scene in the mid-sixties and early seventies. . . . educationally and economically deprived youngsters (who) find new and real hope . . . as professionals and laymen alike made renewed commitments to meet . . . complex educational needs of all students.'

Drivers License Fees

Economy-minded members of the joint Senate-House Commission on Governmental Spending have endorsed a variety of proposals to hike fees in the state's Motor Vehicles Division to cover costs—but drew the line on increasing the cost of a drivers license.

Officials of the motor vehicles operation proposed raising registration fees, charging for a learners permit, and raising the price of getting a drivers license back after it was lost for drunk driving.

The commission went along with the proposals, except for raising the drivers license fee to $5 every four years instead of $3.25. Motorists make up the difference in a lot of other ways—gas taxes, sales tax on cars, tires, etc., commission members felt.

State Rep. Ed Davenport who put the proposals out for discussion said he was not sponsoring the increased license fee, just presenting them for consideration and was not upset by the rejection.

Sunday Morning Notes

The Tar River Estates ducks were the happiest creatures around in the midst of last week's flooding.

The ducks usually confine their swimming to the river when it is in its banks, coming up on the shore line occasionally when they are fed.

As the river rose, though, the ducks swam inland around the apartments' pool, which was covered by the rising waters.

The water never got into the apartments, but it did rise close to some of them nearest the river. The ducks swam almost to the doors of some apartments to beg food.

The most aptly named street in town last week was River Drive which runs parallel to the Tar at Tar River Estates.

As the flood waters rose, they soon covered the street and pretty soon the Tar River was the only thing on River Drive.

There are many apartments built along the river front all the way from the Town Common and on east out of town. As the waters rose they were soon within view of some of the apartment residents closest to the river.

The standing joke was that such apartments would soon rent at a premium. They were water front, you know.

INSIDE REPORT

The CIA's Baker Problem

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The reason why the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) fears a conservative Republican, Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, more than all its liberal critics in the Senate was revealed during a recent political trip by Baker to nurture his presidential ambitions.

One prominent Republican businessman, in private conversation with the Senator, was given the distinct impression that Baker had information which, when released, would put the CIA in a very bad light and possibly link it to the Watergate scandal. The businessman, an unreconstructed Nixonite, took heart from the chat that perhaps Richard M. Nixon was the victim, not the corrupter, of the CIA, despite proof to the contrary provided by the White House tapes.

"I am carrying on no vendetta against the CIA," Baker told us. Nevertheless, as a member of the Senate committee investigating the CIA, he is following the same leads he pursued with conspicuous failure on the Senate Watergate committee. Unable then to implicate the CIA in the Watergate scandal, Baker is trying again now with virtually unlimited access to the agency's documents.

Thus, Baker seems intent on using the current investigation for the self-vindication he apparently considers essential to his presidential ambitions. That is why the CIA's defenders in both the administration and the Senate regard him as far less judicious and far more ominous than chairman Frank Church of Idaho and the other liberal Democrats on the committee.

This is steeped in irony, considering Baker's consistent hard line on foreign policy (including his present courageous support of aid to Vietnam). On the record, he supports the essentiality of the CIA, including its covert activities now under attack. In fact, he says he would have preferred a more discreet congressional watchdog committee to the present investigation.

Moreover, Howard Baker has been regarded as a figure of great ability and greater promise ever since he entered the Senate in 1967 — up to a point. That point is raised by his fierce ambition and tendency toward overcleverness in dealing with sensitive political situations.

For example, while getting national exposure in the televised Watergate hearings as an even-handed investigator, Baker behind the scenes was President Nixon's de facto attorney. That may explain why his eyes visibly lighted up in August 1973 when the committee questioned CIA officials. By tying CIA to Watergate, he could simultaneously be the fearless investigator and loyal Nixon defender.

His investigation of the CIA soon consumed all the time of the Baker-controlled minority staff on the committee. Baker demanded — and was refused — all manner of CIA documents, chilling his relationship with CIA director William Colby. The end product: a report, bitterly resented as unfair by the CIA, which insinuated much and proved nothing.

By hinting revelations that he could not produce, Baker seriously damaged his own credibility. He now concedes erring tactically in those hints, resulting in a nationally distributed political cartoon by Oliphant ridiculing Baker, the sting of which the Senator felt severely.

But Baker will not let the matter rest there. He insists that he ran out of time in his CIA investigation when the Watergate committee closed shop last year — a contention disputed by the committee's other members and staffers.

What's more, he still contends he is on no fishing expedition but has good reason — which he cannot divulge — to believe there is something unrevealed regarding CIA connections with Watergate. That line is so reminiscent of his I've-got-a-secret assertions of Watergate days that CIA

Allsbrook's Arena

(The Raleigh Times)

That takes money. One individual gave $25,000 to the UNC Ram Club to be assured of two $30 tickets to the three-day tournament. Most of the other 15,000 spectators had to donate as much as $3,200 and no less than $300 to their alma maters to gain access to tickets.

Obviously basketball fever in the ACC is hot. But maybe just a little too hot. The spectacle has evolved from a simple sporting event into a social affair with a lot of snob appeal. Thousands of afficionados are turned away at the door either because they can't afford to pay the price of a ticket—or because there isn't enough room.

As a result, Sen. Julian R. Allsbrook (D-Halifax), who couldn't get tickets either, has decided to take the matter in hand. He has introduced a resolution which calls for a $50,000 study the senator hopes will show the feasibility of an indoor arena with at least 25,000 seats somewhere in the Triangle area.

The cons starkly outweigh the pros for such a stadium whose cost would bound far into the millions. It would be an unnecessary burden to the already over burdened taxpayer. The area doesn't have a large enough populace to support such a structure. And to keep the edifice from becoming a losing proposition financially it would have to be in use almost every night.

Sen. McNeill Smith of Greensboro, who no doubt is protecting the Greensboro Coliseum, placed the basketball mania in proper perspective when he articulated his opposition to the measure. "We've got people who can't pay their grocery bills, and here we're starting out on a primrose path that will cost us money."

Sports have become big business, but there is obviously bigger business, the legislators need to be undertaking.

ALVIN TAYLOR

Many boats appeared on the Tar over the weekend as the flood crested.

Despite the swift currents, canoes, rubber rafts and power boats, along with regular river row boats were put into the water, either along the edges of the floor or in the main stream

One resident of Warren Street, whose house was high and dry on the upper levels of that street observed, "Well, I've seen one thing I've never have before. I can stand on my front lawn and watch the boats on the river go by."

It was true, of course. At the Town Common river front walk, the waters are normally ten to 12 feet below the walk level due to the steel piling retaining wall which was installed when the park was developed.

40 Years Ago Today

March 30, 1935

Demands that America make its plans to keep out of any future war among other powers received new emphasis today with disclosure that Chairman Nye of the Senate Munitions Committee is ready to offer tentative bills to that end.

Although Nye did not disclose details of the bills, they were reported to deal with foreign travel by America in war-time trade with belligerents and foreign loans.

The aid is to prevent the United States being drawn into war through such activity.

Rev. R. C. Grady, pastor of the local Presbyterian Church, spoke to the Greenville Kiwanis Club last night on "Peace."

Grady presented his talk on two board topics: "Can the United States keep out of a European War?" and "Is there a way out?"

Grady made the talk in view of Sunday's anniversary of U. S. entry in the World War.

Strength For Today

THE QUALITY OF GOD'S LOVE

Some people think of God as the great punisher whose only interest in us is to pounce down upon us now and again and render us the due reward for our evil deeds.

This is an infantile idea of God. People who think this way have simply not grown up spiritually. They have not caught that beautiful motif of loving kindness and mercy which runs through the Bible.

God only sends punishment upon us when His love can find no other method of correction. As long as He can fill our lives with kindness and mercy, He does so. When we reprove a child and make it do something it does not want to do, our motive is not punishment, but the lasting benefit of the child.

Likewise the things we often look upon as punishments from God are just the denials and deprivations He sends upon us so that our lives may be strengthened, and that we may be prepared to serve Him more perfectly here and hereafter.

Adversity Becomes Advantage

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans have a tradition of turning adversity to advantage, personally and as a nation, and Tyler Hicks thinks some of the unemployed faced with such a situation now.

Many of the jobless have an opportunity in disguise, says Hicks, a man who personifies the entrepreneurial spirit.

The opportunity, he says, is the chance to fulfill those vague dreams of going into business, dreams that never were sharpened into practical moves because the motivation was weak, the opportunity seemingly too distant.

But, says Hicks, who for many years has earned more than $100,000 a year in spare-time businesses, "People get angry when they get laid off. They become innovative. They use their imagination." Some become businessmen.

Hicks has letters from blue collar workers who lost their jobs and then established their own businesses, feel they are succeeding, and are enjoying the experience so much it seems unlikely they'll ever go back to their old jobs.

Which businesses should the jobless consider? "Ones that always have interested them," says Hicks. "People who have been successful in businesses of their own have always done it in areas they know and like."

He especially recommends "paper businesses," which are enterprises requiring little more than stationery as overhead, such as credit and collection agencies, publishing, mail order sales and export-import. He likes real estate too.

It is important, however, to match your desires to the needs of the market place. Because you like to do something isn't sufficient reason to go into business, but if people like what you do, then it might be.

But, Hicks was asked, with little experience and few assets, how does one break into the world of business? Where, for example, does the capital come from? And won't you have to pay very high interest charges?

Hicks' replies: There are many individuals and even professional lenders willing to put up the money, but you have to keep searching them out.

Yes, it is likely you'll have to pay high interest charges, Hicks agrees, but adds: "So what." He maintains that so long as a business generates the income to pay the interest and to provide a paycheck, it's a good loan.

Some businesses can be acquired for no investment but a person's own work. One of the likeliest situations today would involve an institutional lender, such as a bank or loan association that was forced to repossess income property.

"Most of them don't like to admit they have such property," says Hicks, because it reflects on their judgment. But if pressed they might consider an individual taking over the repossessed property for no down payment.

Observations From Editorial Columns

From Days Gone By

We are about to lose our one and only "towering inferno" soon if something is not done to protect it.

The 150-ft. chimney to the coal burning plant beside the laundry will be wiped out, totally obliterated and paved over within a year. As part of a three-phase plan to update the ECU heating system, the landmark will be razed and on its site will be the distribution center for steam lines connecting the university. Some ending for a structure which has towered over our campus for fifty years!

At one time proposals were being voiced to make the chimney into a monument to nature and enjoyment. Why, in 1972 Chancellor Leo Jenkins boasted a proposal to equip the smokestack with a full set of fixed bells and chimes, paint it either purple or gold and turn the near-by arboretum into a shelter with terrace and benches.

Jenkins said he hoped to have the bell tower established as a "campus landmark of both aesthetic and historical value."

Shortly before Jenkins' announcement, Jim Lowry, director of the physical plant stated that the old smokestack was outdated. From its inception in 1924 it remained the sole source of heat until shortly before 1960 when a newer, more modern plant on 14th St. was made operative.

In 1972 Lowry said the old plant was used only occasionally to augment the newer plant in carrying heavy loads, "during periods of real cold weather—say below twenty degrees."

Although it's hard to remember any day this past winter when the mercury in the thermometer dropped that low, the smokestack was put into use a few times and the never ending complaints from conservation and ecologically minded people poured in. But why the polluting cylinder was used in 1974-75 is not to be an issue much longer. What faces us now is the destruction of even more of our historical landmarks.

True, the smokestack has been a nuisance with its billowing black cloud darkening the sunny sky and nearby buildings. But the fact remains that it is one of the oldest constructions remaining on this campus. It has long been a source of attraction to visitors and newcomers alike. It has been a focal point for campus photographs, drawings and brochure covers. It is something which stood strong when two generations past walked the paths we now trod.

There are committees and societies to restore and protect old houses and other historical monuments to days now long gone and forgotten by most of us. Why shouldn't there be one as well to protect the old smokestack which holds onto the diminishing bit of charm at ECU? Because we are modernizing, expanding and looking toward the future there is no reason for us to stand by and view the destruction of interesting objects here.

Take a long look at the old chimney sitting there beside the coal heap in its red brick strength. It stands as one bit of memory of how things used to be done, of how far we have come and what we have forsaken for the sake of modernization. Once the third phase of the heating system update is completed, the chimney will never need to spew unattractive dark smoke again. It will be completely helpless and at the mercy of the unfelling bull dozers, those servants of a cold and callous society that is afraid to maintain any links with the past in fear of doubting their present actions.

Won't you join in the efforts to preserve our last remaining landmark and monument to our past? It need not be a symbol of nostalgic worship, only a reminder of "those days", and able to bring a smile to our lips.

A Conservative View
New Blow By Court For Women's Liberation

The Supreme Court struck a blow the other day for a young widower, and in the process struck a blow for women's liberation. The opinion fits neatly into a rapidly developing pattern of changes in the law as to sexual discrimination.

While the proposed Equal Rights Amendment languishes, waiting upon the ratification of four (or six) more states, the Supreme Court has been busily adapting the purposes of the pending amendment to specific situations. New interpretations of the "equal protection" and "due process" clauses are achieving some of the objects the amendment itself presumably would achieve.

To those who approve of these trends in jurisprudence, the process is known as "interpreting a living Constitution." To those who disapprove, the process is known as "judge-made legislation" or "judicial usurpation." In either event, the changes are taking place with remarkable speed.

The court's decision of March 19 had to do with Stephen C. Wiesenfeld and Paula Polatschek. They were married on November 5, 1970. On June 5, 1972, she died in childbirth, leaving an infant son. As a schoolteacher before and after her marriage, Paula had paid maximum Social Security taxes. Stephen's income was much smaller.

With his wife's death, Wiesenfeld applied for Social Security survivor's benefits for himself and his son. The benefits were approved for the infant, but not for the father. Under Section 402 (g) of the law, such benefits were available only to widows, but not to widowers. If he had been a woman, he would have received the same amount as his son as long as he was not working.

In an opinion by Justice Brennan, the court found that this part of the act is "entirely irrational" and "makes no sense." The effect was to discriminate not only against Stephen but against Paula also: "She not only failed to receive for her family the same protection which a similarly situated male worker would have received, but she also was deprived of a portion of her own earnings in order to contribute to the fund out of which benefits would be paid to others."

As a practical matter, the Wiesenfeld decision may not amount to much. Only a small number of fathers are similarly situated, and the cost to the Social Security Administration has been estimated at only $20 million a year. As a matter of law, the case has considerable significance. Brennan's denunciation of discrimination by reason of sex was just about wholesale.

With only an occasional step backward or sideways, the court has been moving steadily in this direction. Earlier this term, to the dismay of Justice Rehnquist, the court ruled that women may not be systematically excluded from juries; the unsettling effect, as Rehnquist observed, was to overturn an opposite ruling just 14 years ago. The court also has demanded equal perquisites for men and women in the armed services. It has voided an Idaho law that discriminated against women in the settlement of certain estates.

Here and there, to be sure, the court has been hanging back. In cases from Rochester and Philadelphia, the court refused to act upon the exclusion of women from the Junior Chamber of Commerce. It refused to review a Utah Supreme Court decision upholding a presumption in favor of women in child custody situations. It also refused to hear an Indiana case involving women (but not men) who frequent "houses of ill fame." The court has declined to hear a North Carolina case involving massage parlors. It has been sitting since last September, without acting, upon a petition from Georgia that directly challenges the business of alimony for women only.

Even so, the trend is unmistakably clear. Unless the states or the federal government can come up with compelling reasons to justify sexual discrimination, such discrimination cannot survive. And the court is finding these reasons less compelling all the time.

Tobacco Substitute Is More Than 'Nightmare'; Production Is On Way

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Tobacco growers long have lived with the threat that the chemical industry might do to them what it has already done to the cotton farmers—bite out a huge chunk of their market.

Now, the giant Celanese Corporation is advising its shareholders of "encouraging progress" aimed at doing just that. Its annual report for 1974, recently circulated, tells of "commercial" production of a tobacco substitute at a new plant which will get into operation late this year.

There is little or nor liklihood that "eratz" tobacco will replace the real thing in the near future. In fact, the aim has been to develop a "smoking produce" which could be "blended" with tobacco.

Celanses hasn't been the only company conducting experiments in this field. Others, including cigarette manufacturers, have been active in the quest. But even an acceptable blend would mean a gnawing away at the market for tobacco.

The Celanese report attempts no forecast as to the probable size of the market it sees for its "smoking product," named "Cytrel". But the way the product is handled in the report gives the impression that the Corporation attaches a considerable importance to Cytrel. It is described as "a further diversification of our cellulosics business away from textiles."

It is obvious that Celanese is eager to do something to improve the performance of its cellulosics line. In 1974, this operation accounted for more than a quarter billion dollars in sales. But it also cut the corporation's income per share by $1.11.

The new cytrel plant is located at Cumberland, Md. Construction started last year and the plant is to be in operation by late this year. Initial capacity is to be for nine million pounds.

Any such volume is less than peanuts, when measured against tobacco production. But the potential for "smoking products" begins to take on real size when you look at the blend mix used in testing now going on in Europe. The German health ministery "has granted clearance for marketing cigarettes containing up to 25 percent Cytrel," Celanese noted. Two brands now are on sale in Germany and one in Switzerland. Any wide acceptance of a 25 percent blend by smokers could cut deeply into the tobacco market.

Testing abroad, which has been going on in various ways for some years, also includes England; which subjects "smoking products" to the same high taxes it imposes on its tobacco imports. The hope of those pushing the synthetic is that they will be able to come up with findings by health authorities over there that the tobacco substitute reduces the health danger of smoking.

As to testing in this country, very little is known. There is speculation, probably well founded, that tests are going on here to try to measure smoker acceptance of "blends." Most cigarette makers long ago dropped all reference to "content" from packs.

In its search for a tobacco substitute, which began in 1957, Celanese has been able to established a close business tie with cigarette manufacturers, who would become its prime customers. It's a supplier of acetate Cigarette filter to all major cigarette companies in this country and has a large foreign market for this product.

In connection with the "encouraging progress" on "man-made smoking products" Celanese presents in its annual report, it might be well to recall a sensation the corporation caused in tobacco circles a few years back.

On December 22, 1970, the Corporation announced it was building what it called a "semi works" facility at Princeton, W. Va., to supplement its smoking material research operation in Charlotte. This was interpreted as a step close to commercial production. As it developed, this plant was never built.

Media General News Service reported that "Celanese took the unusual precaution to withhold announcement of its plans until after the stock market closed." The company's stock did do well in 1971, but then ran out of steam and is still down.

To the editor:

The large number of dog bites has become a significant public health problem. This is especially true in children who are often bitten about the head or face, and by dogs unknown, or circumstances not clear.

It is therefore imperative that the county have the most adequate Rabies Control Program, and the current Rabies Vaccination Program must be a success. Citizens are urged to take advantage of the neighborhood vaccination clinics underway from March 31 through April 11.

Wimmer said he hoped other persons with handicaps would join the credit union or form one of their own.

"This is an effort to promote the well-being of the blind," he said. "Just because we have a handicap doesn't mean we don't want the same advantages others have."

Wimmer said he hoped the National Council for the Blind would form a national credit union, with branches in every state.

"Each state could be a member and then we could benefit many more people than we can now," he said.

He said similar credit unions are operating in Oklahoma and Arizona and "both are doing well."

defenders are naturally alarmed.

What worries them most is that Baker, bright and resourceful, is not merely seeking newspaper headlines but attempting to defend his own credibility and reputation. That defense becomes crucial to Baker's presidential hopes if he continues to privately hint to Republicans of CIA culpability in Nixon's fall.

Thus, Baker's present course contains the seeds of calamity for all concerned. With its hands full trying to cope with leftish firebrands in the House investigation, the CIA dreads an implacable conservative Republican foe in the Senate. But Baker also could abort his own career and drastically reduce his prospects for leadership in the future if he persists down the dangerous path of self-vindication.

The Torture And Agony Is Something To Share

There are plenty of perpetual dieters in my family. There's my Uncle Jack, who has two wardrobes—his fat wardrobe and his super-fat wardrobe. There's my Uncle Jerry, who lost his appetite for 50 pounds after his little boy asked him if he were pregnant. Then there's my Aunt Nell, who cheats at Weight-Watchers. She starves herself for two days before the meeting; then, after she's weighed in, she treats herself to a banana split. However, since I'm shaped like an inverted screwdriver, I could never fully sympathize with the agony of these dieters until the doctor put me on a diet for a stomach disorder.

He called the diet a "bland" diet. I soon found out that this was a medical euphemism for the most insidious form of torture to be devised since the Spanish Inquisition. The bulk of the diet consists of antacid. I have antacid for breakfast, antacid for lunch, antacid for dinner, and antacid for midnight bathroom break. For in-between-meal snacks I can have boiled egg, cold milk, cream soup, Metamucil, poached egg, warm milk, and cream soup.

Now, the minute that the doctor explained this diet to me, I got an insatiable craving for a corned beef sandwich on rye, with mustard spread on both sides of both pieces of bread. At my ten o-clock, 11 o'clock, and 12 o'clock feedings I would get weak from the imagined smell of corned beef, and I kept catching myself mixing mustard with my antacid. I finally mastered this craving after I saw an Easter ad in the paper. Instead of thinking about corned beef, at my one o'clock, three o'clock, and five o'clock in-between-meal snacks, I kept hallucinating that my boiled eggs were giant jellybeans. By the time Phillip got home from work, I was sitting under the table in a fetal position, chewing my fingernails with imaginary relish.

By the third day of the diet my skin had turned the color of antacid, and my most enjoyable entertainment was cutting recipes out of magazines.

"I can't stand it any more," I whimpered to Phillip as he came walking through the door on the fourth day of the diet.

"What can't you stand?" he asked, exciting my animosity by taking an apple out of the refrigerator and biting into it.

"I can't stand this diet. I'm wasting away. Pretty soon you won't be able to recognize me. I'll melt into a pool of milk."

"Dear, if all else fails, I'll be sure to recognize you by the mouth," he said reassuringly.

"You just don't understand the torture I'm going through," I pouted. "Nobody should have to eat this many eggs. It's against the Geneva Convention."

"Look, if I could go through this for you I would," he sighed. "If for nothing else, just to show you it's not nearly as bad as you think."

"Would you promise that?" I asked. "Would you give me your Easter promise on that?"

"Of course, I would. Now what's for dinner."

"Cream soup," I smirked.

Geo. Wallace Is Top Choice Of Democrats And Independents

By GEORGE GALLUP

(Copyright, 1975, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N.J., March 29—Gov. George Wallace of Alabama is currently the top choice of both Democratic and independent voters for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination.

Wallace is the choice of 22 per cent of Democrats in the latest nationwide Gallup survey, followed by Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota with 16 per cent, Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington with 13 per cent, Sen. George McGovern with 10 per cent and Sen. Edmund Muskie with 9 per cent.

No other person in the survey receives more than 4 per cent of the vote. Sen. Edward Kennedy (Mass.) was accorded a very heavy "write-in" vote, however, despite his disavowal of intention to seek the nomination.

Wallace also heads the field among independents, a large bloc of voters who are numerically stronger than the Republicans, winning 28 per cent followed by Humphrey with 9 per cent and McGovern and Muskie, each with 7 per cent.

To measure the strength of declared and potential candidates, all persons interviewed were handed a card with 13 names and asked which one they would like to see nominated as the Democratic candidate in 1976.

These names were selected from a list used in an earlier survey which measured the strength of 31 persons who have been mentioned as possible Democratic candidates in 1976. The basis for inclusion on the current list was (1) official announcement of candidacy or (2) the receipt of 3 per cent of the vote or more in the previous survey.

Choices of Democrats For 1976 Nomination

Gov. George Wallace	22%
Sen. Hubert Humphrey	16
Sen. Henry Jackson	13
Sen. George McGovern	10
Sen. Edmund Muskie	9
Julian Bond	4
Sen. John Glenn	4
Sen. Adlai Stevenson III	3
Rep. Morris Udall	3
Sen. Lloyd Bentsen	3
John Lindsay	2
Jimmy Carter	1
Fred Harris	1
No Preference-Others	9

To determine how the picture would change if Wallace does not run in 1976, those Democratic voters who chose him were asked to make a second choice.

When the Wallace vote is distributed to the other men on the list, Humphrey emerges with the lead (21 per cent) followed by Jackson with 15 per cent, McGovern with 12 per cent and Muskie with 11 per cent. The others receive 6 per cent or less of the vote.

Where Does HHH Vote Go?

Humphrey's support was also distributed to the other candidates on the basis of second choices.

The new line-up shows Wallace leading with 23 per cent of the support of Democrats to 15 per cent for runner-up Jackson. Next are Muskie and McGovern, each with 12 per cent.

Rundown On Vote Of Independents

All persons classifying themselves as independents were given the same list of Democrats and asked to indicate their first choice. Here are the findings:

Choices of Independents For 1976 Nomination

Wallace	28 %
Jackson	13
Humphrey	9
McGovern	7
Muskie	7
Glenn	5
Lindsay	5
Bond	4
Stevenson	4
Bentsen	2
Udall	2
Carter	1
Harris	x
No Preference-Others	13

(x Less than 1 per cent.)

New Faces Do Not Fare Well

As the current rankings indicate, the new faces on the political scene, while making headway with the party pros, have not made much progress in terms of winning support at the grassroots level.

One of the problems facing political newcomers is that of becoming known to voters. Only 13 persons of the 31 whose name awareness was tested in the previous survey received an awareness score of 50 per cent or more.

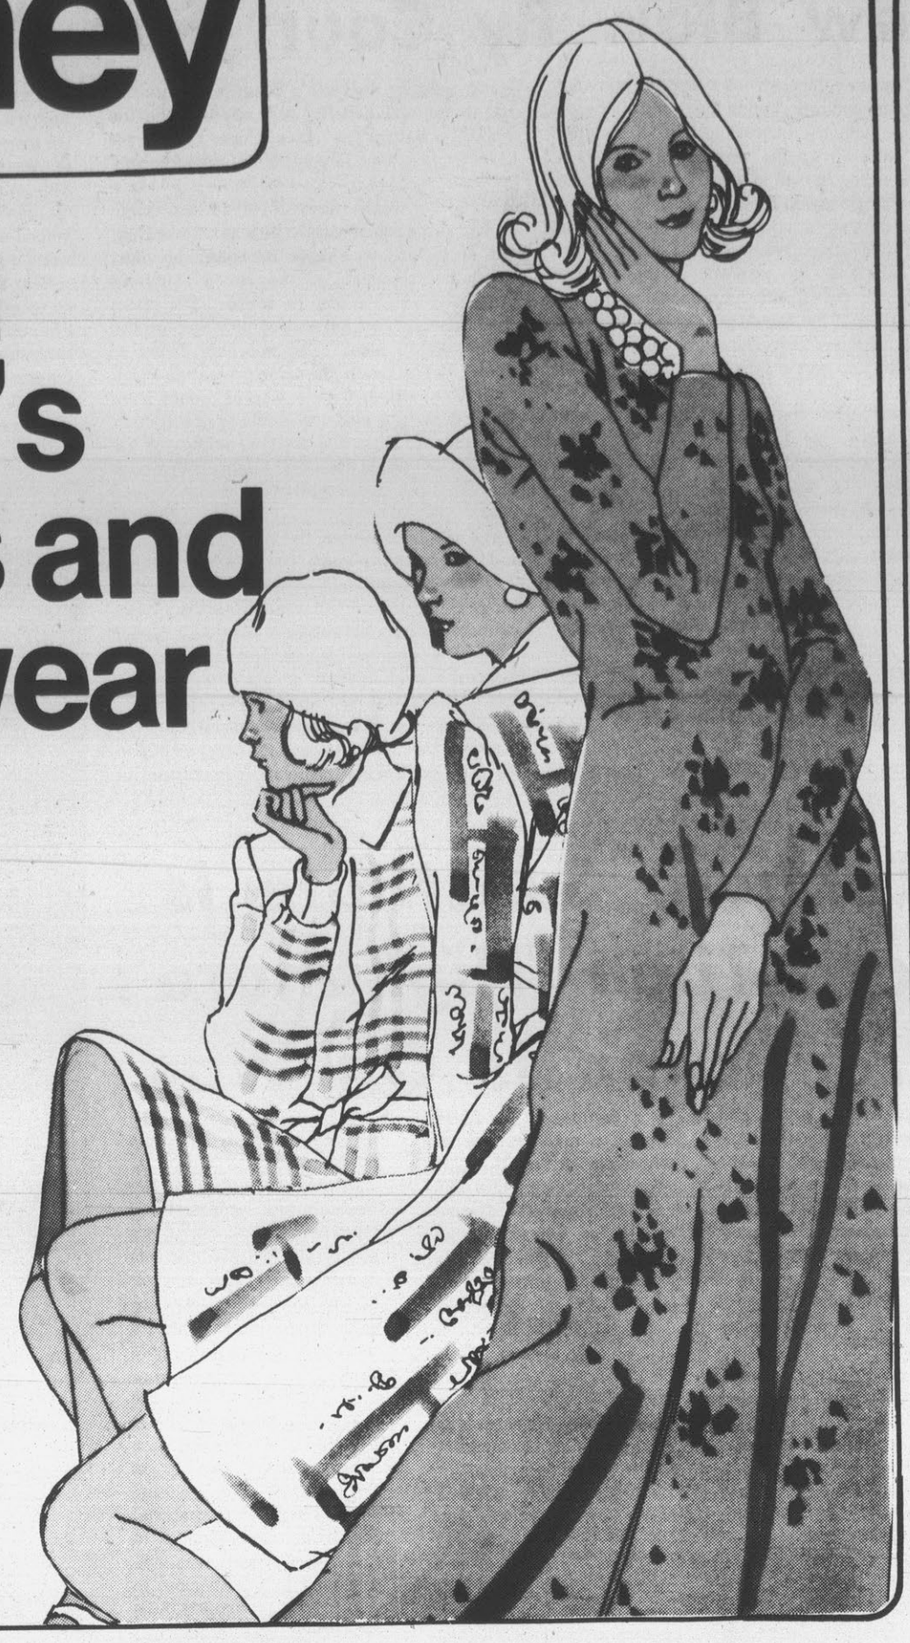

Top Choices for GOP Nomination

The Gallup Poll earlier determined that President Gerald Ford, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona are the top choices of Republican voters nationwide for the 1976 GOP nomination.

Ford wins 34 per cent of the vote, followed by Reagan with 22 per cent and Goldwater with 17 per cent.

Farm Labor Contractors Must Now Register

Local farm labor contractors who intend to recruit and transport workers this season must now register with state and federal authorities, according to local employment office manager Jim Hannan.

He says Congress has amended the Crew Leader Registration Act of 1963 by making it mandatory that any crew leader who works more than 13 weeks during the year or travels beyond a 25-mile radius of his home must register under this federal law. Prior to the amendments, only crew leaders who crossed state lines were required to register. A crew leader is anyone who recruits, solicits, hires, furnishes, or transports farm workers for a fee. Purpose of the registration law is to assure that farm workers receive rights and benefits under various state and federal laws governing wages, transportation, housing, etc.

Local employment officials will furnish forms and information to crew leaders covered by the Act. The Employment Security Commission is not the enforcing agency, however. The registration law is administered by the Wage and Hour Division of the U.S. Labor Department.

In Greenville and Pitt County the ESC rural manpower representative is David Barrow. He takes growers' orders for workers and arranges with crew leaders to have labor available for crop harvest on specific farms at the time crews are needed. Barrow is located at 1002 S. Evans St., Greenville.

Voice Students State Winners

Ten East Carolina University School of Music voice majors were among the state winners at the National Association of Teachers of Singing auditions held March 21-22 at St. Andrew's College in Laurinburg.

Proportionately, ECU students represented half the total state NATS winners.

The 10 winners are now eligible to attend the southeastern regional NATS auditions April 4-5 in Charlotte. The southeastern region is comprised of Maryland, Washington, D.C., Virginia and the Carolinas.

Workshop Rated Superior

The annual review team of the Vocational Rehabilitation Department visited the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop and Vocational Rehabilitation Center, Inc., Thursday.

The Workshop received a superior rating of Level II, achieving 872 out of a possible 911.

Points are derived through administration, evaluation and work adjustment training.

Howard Dawkins, executive director of the workshop, said, "This was accomplished through the cooperative effort of a dedicated staff. Our plans are to continue to develop the best possible program for the community in meeting the needs of handicapped individuals."

Dawkins also commended the cooperation of the Vocational Rehabilitation staff for their efforts to make the program a success.

Tax Cut At A Glance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Major provisions of the tax cut bill at a glance:

Individual Cuts and Payments:

$7.8 billion—1975 tax reductions including an increase in the standard deduction and a new $30 per person tax credit.

(For the average couple with two children, counting both rebates and new cuts, the bill would mean a $300 tax break at $3,000 income, $496 at $5,000, $312 at $8,000, $258 at $10,000, $290 at $15,000 and $320 at $20,000.)

$1.5 billion—Payments up to $400 to working poor families who have children.

$1.7 billion—One-time $50 payment to all recipients of Social Security, Railroad Retirement and Supplemental Security Income.

$600 million—Tax credit up to $2,000 for buyers of newly built homes which were unoccupied or under construction by March 25.

$90 million—Liberalized child care deductions for middle and upper income working parents.

Business Cuts:

$3.4 billion—Increase investment tax credit to 10 per cent for two years.

$1.4 billion—Cuts in corporate tax rates on first $50,000 of income.

Business Incceases:

$1.7 billiob—Scale down oil and gas depletion allowance.

$300 million—Limitation on foreign tax breaks for oil companies and multinational companies.

To Study 4-Lane In East

ROCKY MOUNT—Troy Doby, secretary of the North Carolina Department of Transportation announced at a meeting in Rocky Mount last week that his department will conduct a corridor study to determine the location of a major four-lane highway from U.S. 301 in Rocky Mount-Wilson area eastward to U.S. 17.

A request that the study be made was presented to Doby by government representatives and leaders of a five-county area of Eastern North Carolina.

Recommendations for location of the corridor will be decided by the planning consultants who conduct the study.

Public Interest Research Group To Support Proposed Legislation On Soft Drinks and Beer Bottles

N.C. Students Seek Ban On Disposable Bottles

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—A lobbying effort by a group of college students is to begin next week in support of proposed legislation that would ban the use of disposable cans or bottles for soft drinks and beer in North Carolina.

The North Carolina Public Interest Research Group (PIRG) released Friday findings of a study on the effects of disposable beverage containers. The study said banning such containers would raise the price of soft drinks and beer a penny or two each, but it would save energy and natural resources. PIRG is an organization of college students.

The legislation to ban throwaway containers would require a minimum deposit of five cents unless the container was of standard design and could be used by more than one company. The minimum deposit for standard containers would be two cents.

The legislation calls for markings on the container to designate the amount of deposit and would require wholesalers and retailers to pay refunds for empty containers.

"The annual energy now used nationally to supply beer and soft drinks in throwaway cans and bottles would supply all the electrical needs of Pittsburgh, Boston, Washington, D.C., and San Francisco," Sen. Charles Vickery, D-Orange, said. Vickery introduced the Senate bill. An identical bill was introduced in the House.

Next week legislators will be given a smummary of the study and the organization will begin lobbying for the bills, Finnis Williams, co-author of the study, said.

Orders Insurance Rate Cut

RALEIGH (AP)—Insurance Commissioner John Ingram has ordered a 13 percent reduction in automobile insurance rates in North Carolina which he said would save the state's drivers $30 million.

The reduction would be effective on May 1, however it could be blocked if the insurance industry appeals the order.

Ingram issued a similar order during the energy crisis last year, but it was rejected by the State Court of Appeals after the insurance industry challenged it.

Paul Mize, general manager of the N.C. Automobile Rate Administrative Office, which represents the insurance industry in rate cases, said after the order was issued Friday that the industry had made no decision on what action to take.

To Drop Milk Prices

RALEIGH (AP)—Milk prices will drop sharply at IGA stores in Eastern North Carolina next week, but the company insists it can make the cuts without violating the state law banning below cost milk sales.

A spokesman said the price of a gallon of milk in a plastic container will drop to $1.39, compared to the present price of about $1.65 in Raleigh supermarkets.

The half-gallon container price will drop from 87 cents to 71 cents and the quart price to 39 cents from 49 cents.

Educators Lose Decision Power

CHARLOTTE (AP) — William Poe, chairman of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg board of education, says recent court rulings on desegregation, teacher tenure and student rights "remove educational decisions from the hands of educators."

Poe charged that "aggressive, smart and well-heeled" lawyers were "constantly on the lookout for new ground to break in the broad area we sometimes call individual rights."

Valdosta

CONTEMPORARY DIVIDED INTO TWO DISTINCT LIVING AREAS

SCREENED PORCH CREATES INSECT-FREE OUTDOOR DINING ROOM

By Jerry Bishop

The motion of living in the contemporary "Valdosta" begins with a circular walk leading from the double garage to the entry of this lovely home. The feeling of fluidity is maintained through the angling foyer and by the double fireplace connecting the family and living rooms and providing a free flow of traffic from one room to the next. The family room features also include a breakfast bar, access to a sheltered patio, a separate closet and easy access to the kitchen. To the left of the kitchen is the screened porch, which is delightful for outside dining, and a utility and storage area.

In the utility room is space for washer and dryer, and a half bath with shower also is provided. Included is a separate storage area with outside entrance.

Separated from this free-flow living area is the bedroom wing of the "Valdosta" to the right of the foyer. A full bath with double vanity opens off a hall next to the foyer. The hall then extends to reach four massive bedrooms, all designed with little extra touches.

The front bedroom can serve as a guest room or den, with easy access to the bathroom, and of course a large closet.

The master bedroom has access not only to its own dressing room but also the sheltered patio. A bath with shower also is included.

Two other bedrooms, each with a large closet, complete the sleeping wing.

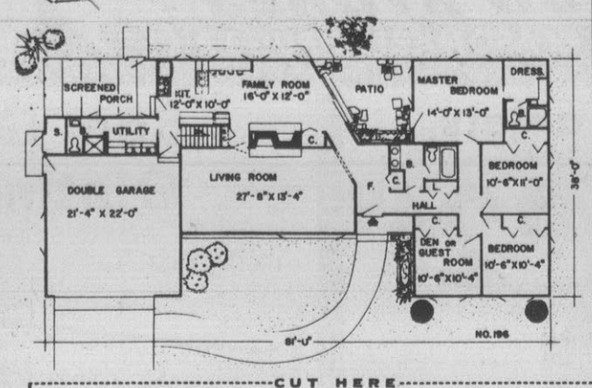

The patio, sheltered between the family room and master bedroom, is reached from either area.

The "Valdosta" has been designed to provide free movement and activity within the home, but to maintain privacy in the sleeping area and protection from noise. The family that dislikes closed-in spaces and arbitrary divisions of rooms will enjoy the free contemporary design.

The exterior of the home is long and low, and free, with a mixture of siding and stone creating accents. The double garage has a decorative door and fits into the design of the living area of the home.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

A column several months ago on the use of solar energy in private homes generated such readership interest that I decided to do even more research on the subject.

In the course of my investigation, I was directed to a house in Connecticut on the shore of Long Island that actually utilizes solar energy. It is a three-bedroom, contemporary-style house with 1,900 square feet of living area. It won an honor award citation in 1974 from the Connecticut Society of Architects. Thomas Watson designed it; engineer Everett Barber handled the solar heating system. Both men are on the faculty at Yale University, where they teach solar technology and energy conservation.

A quick glance at the house offered immediate evidence that solar technology need not result in sterile design. The cedar siding and geometric shape of the house serve to harmonize the exterior with the surrounding elements of sand, sea and sky. The extensive use of both operating and fixed windows facing south affords expansive views of the water and plenty of natural light and ventilation.

About 55 per cent of the home's heating requirements are supplied by solar panels arranged in three rows on the roof. Even though local zoning regulations limited the height of solar panels, its owner expects that the panels which cover about 20 per cent of the home's living area will enable fuel savings to return his investment in solar technology in less than 10 years.

The solar collectors face south at an angle of about 57 degrees. They consist of flat copper plates coated with a selective surface to absorb the sun's heat. Insulation has been installed behind the plates. Transparent glass covers the plates to prevent heat from escaping.

The solar heated plates warm a solution of water and antifreeze circulating through a network of copper tubes attached to the plates. These tubes carry the heated solution to a 2,000-gallon water tank in the basement where the heat is stored for overnight use and for as long as three days of cloudy weather.

From the tank, the heated solution is circulated through a fan coil unit. The fan moves air over the coils, heating it and blowing it through ducts into the house, much the same as a conventional hot-air heating system. A back-up system consisting of an oil-fired water heater and fuel tank provides heat during prolonged spells of cloudy weather.

(Thirty-five home repair problems are handled in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Gardening Questions

Q. I bought more firewood than I needed this winter. How can I best save it for next winter? (G. L., Charlotte)

A. Get it off the ground, preferably where air can circulate under it. Keep it dry. Avoid stacking next to a live tree or next to your house. Protected like this from wood destroying insects and fungi, you can keep firewood indefinitely. (W. T. Huxster, extension forester)

Q. We have purchased two ornamental banana plants for use in urns on our patio for a tropical effect. Can you give me information on the care of bananas? (Mrs. E. W., New Bern)

A. Bananas grown in containers need very rich, well-drained soil, kept evenly moist. But soil must not become saturated. Bananas prefer some shade, such as filtered or "broken" sunlight. Feed with diluted liquid fertilizer every three or four weeks. Since bananas are winter-tender, be sure to move to a protected spot before the first heavy frost this fall. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. How do you get rid of the tents caused by worms in cherry trees? (M. M., Trenton)

A. To get rid of tents, you must first kill the caterpillars. These caterpillars are known as American tent caterpillars. Sometimes the "tents" containing the "worms" may be removed by hand or with a long stick such as a fishing pole. Crush the worms under-foot or dip them in oil once you get them down. Several chemical materials will give satisfactory control if they can be applied to the infested area. Carbaryl (Sevin) 50 per cent wettable powder at two tablespoonfuls per gallon of water, diazinon (Spectracide) 25 per cent emulsifiable concentrate at two teaspoonfuls per gallon of water, or malathion 57 per cent emulsifiable concentrate at one tablespoonful per gallon of water will control the caterpillars. (H. E. Scott, extension entomologist)

Q. I have young peach trees with sap running out of them. What can be done? (E. E., Aberdeen)

A. Sap running out of a peach tree can be from an injury or from borers. In either case, it is difficult to stop the flow. Clear off the sap or gum and if small round holes are present the problem was caused by borers. Run a thin wire in each hole and you may be able to kill the borer if he is still present.

Here's the Answer

Q. — Our bedroom vanity has laminated plastic on the top of it. It is still solidly attached to the vanity and is in good condition, but my wife wants a different color top. She has picked out a design she likes, also in laminated plastic. The problem is whether I have to take off the old plastic, which I would like to avoid, or whether new laminated plastic can be glued right on to the old? Also, if this can be done, what kind of glue should be used?

A. — Yes, the new laminated plastic can be bonded to the old. It is important that the old surface be sanded down to remove any gloss. When this has been done, carefully wipe — or better yet, vacuum — the old plastic to get rid of any pieces of grit. You should use contact cement, being very careful to follow the directions on the container on how long to wait after applying the adhesive. Since this type of cement bonds instantly, be sure you have the new piece of laminated plastic positioned exactly right before placing it on the old surface.

Q. — I am a senior citizen who is interested in learning woodcarving. Is there any place I can contact for information or instructions in this craft?

A. — There must be several places, but the one I am familiar with is the National Carvers Museum, 14960 Woodcarver Rd., Monument, Colo. 80132. Write there for information about learning at home, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Q. — We have a mortise-type lock in one of our doors that is not working smoothly because the inside seems to have been clogged with dirt and grease. What's the best way to clean it?

A. — Wash it in gasoline, but by all means be sure to do it outside the house. The lock set can be removed by taking out the screws in the edge of the door after first taking out the knob and spindle. After the lock has been cleaned and allowed to dry, insert a little very thin grease into the mechanism and replace it in the door.

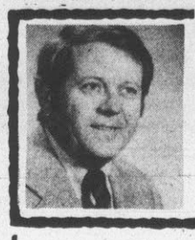

Pipers Invited To Edinburgh

EDINBURGH, Scotland (UPI) — Kilted pipers from bagpipe bands overseas are being invited by the Scottish Tourist Board to play at the Scott monument in Edinburgh. A solo piper plays at the monument at 11 a.m. on summer mornings. The invitation came after the Bermuda Pipe Band wrote to ask whether any of their pipers visiting Scotland could take a turn.

Once Plentiful Bird Reappears

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Conservation Commission has reported the reappearance of a once plentiful bird.

The Commission said a male prairie chicken has taken over an area near the town of Novelty, Mo., in the northwest part of the state.

Real Estate

REALTOR

DECISION FOR NEWLYWEDS

Congratulations! You're engaged to be married. Decision time is coming. Shall the first den of your dreams be a cozy apartment or a comfortable home, large enough to house your projected number of offsprings?

Stop and reflect these alternatives. Apartment rents are climbing as available space lessens. On top of this, the monthly rent checks represent money that is gone forever. On the other hand, mortgage payments are a form of forced savings and actually build an equity for you. Also you can probably look forward to a profit when you eventually sell.

One other consideration is the cost of household moves each time you stairstep to larger quarters. This expense could conceivably cost you every penny you thought you were saving by paying less for smaller quarters.

Either way you decide — have a happy honeymoon!

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at LOUIS CLARK AGENCY, IBM Bldg., 100 Reade St., Greenville. Phone: 752-4173. We're here to help!

Despair And Anguish Among People Of Bangladesh

By VIC VANZI

DACCA (UPI) — Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, hailed as a god-like hero during Bangladesh's war of liberation from Pakistan, has become the object of growing disillusionment among a hungry and shattered people.

On Jan. 25, Mujib changed his country's form of government and assumed absolute authority by declaring himself president and head of a one-party political system.

But the Bengali men in the streets of Dacca are so steeped in despair and anguish that the form of government running Bangladesh is the least of their concerns.

Their typical reaction was that they would welcome the change if it could somehow clothe people and fill their stomachs.

Statistics illustrate why Bangladesh is perhaps the most troubled nation in the world and give some idea of the staggering task Mujib faces in putting the country on its feet.

Bangladesh, about the size of Iowa, has an estimated population of 80 million, making it the world's eighth largest country in terms of people. They occupy three-hundredths of 1 per cent of the world's land. Experts say the young nation is probably the world's most overcrowded—and most underfed.

In the absence of a birth control program, babies are born at the rate of eight every minute. In 30 years, demographers estimate, the population will triple to 240 million persons.

The price of rice, the Bengali staple, has more than doubled in a year. The government estimates it has only three-fourths of the 12 million tons of food needed to feed its people.

Most Bengalis are eating less than before the 1971 independence war, down from an average 15.4 ounces daily to 12.9. Relief officials say nearly half of all Bengalis no longer eat the minimum needed to stay alive.

Ravaged by floods, drought, war, corruption and a painfully inept bureaucracy, Bangladesh has been forced to accept about $2 billion foreign aid since independence. A good chunk of it—no one can estimate how much—has gone into the pockets of corrupt officials.

Because of corruption, food smuggling to neighboring India, and hoarding, the government admits nearly 30,000 persons died of starvation in the last three months of 1974. Per capita income is about $50 a year, the world's lowest.

Among those most aware of the country's plight is the 54-year-old Mujib himself. He spoke of a "second revolution" when he declared himself the all-powerful president, promising improved administration, an end to corruption, and economic self-sufficiency for Bangladesh.

The sheikh already wielded vast power under the old system, through his ruling Awami League which held 308 of the 315 parliamentary seats. Under the new single-party decree, no one in Bangladesh has the right to form or be a member of any other party.

One of the sheikh's opponents, a Dacca newspaper publisher who asked not to be identified, calped the presidential system "a bluff."

"A president should be answerable to a congress. But here, this gentleman is unchallenged. Everyone will be answerable to him and him alone, not to the people, not to the law.

"Under one-party rule," the publisher said, "the whole thing will collapse. Bangladesh will become the tragedy of the whole world. It's not the system, it's the man. He's a soft man, a kind man. But when there's opposition, he could repeat all the tyrannical memories of history.

"The tragedy is that the sheikh does not know how to handle the country's problems. He wants to do miracles for the Bengalis. But he can't translate his feelings into action."

A staunch supporter of the sheikh's decree is Muzaffar Ahmed, leader of the pro-China Bhasani group of the National Awami party. It opposes Mujib's Awami League, which is pro-Moscow.

"Mujib is a very intelligent man," Ahmed said. "He wants concentration of power. Whether you call it Hitler, Mussolini or Ford, we're willing to help him and will join his party because he's a pro-people leader.

"Whether one party will work here depends on the man and how he makes it function. But the form of government is immaterial.

Pirates Take Pair From VMI, 3-2; 17-0

It started out as a lesson in how not to play baseball, but by the time the wet afternoon was over, East Carolina University had turned a doubleheader with Virginia Military Institute into a springboard.

The Bucs slipped past VMI, 3-2, in the first game, then unleashed a 14-hit attack to take a 17-0 win over the Keydets in the second outing, renewing their hopes for a Southern Conference title again this year.

For the Pirates it marked the first time this year that the Bucs have won two games back-to-back—a true oddity for a Pirate team 15 games into the season. It raised their record to 7-8, and left them with a 3-3 Southern Conference record. Everyone but Richmond, which hasn't played a league game, has lost at least once.

Dean Reavis got the victory in the first game, going all the way in a pitching duel with VMI's Danny Darnell. Reavis limited VMI to just six hits over the seven innings, striking out five and walking two. What got him into trouble in the first place was some unalert fielding by his teammates.

Darnell, in losing gave up nine hits, striking out six and walking three.

In the second game, Steve Herring picked up the win, limiting the Keydets to just three hits. He fanned six and walked three. All of the hits and walks came in the final innings of the game after Herring had gone through two long waits in the cool, damp afternoon while his teammates were racking four VMI hurlers.

All of the scoring in the first game came in the first inning. Kavie Thrift opened up with a single into right field. Kimo Wong sacrificed him up, and Billy Young hit a popup into shallow left behind third. Buc third baseman Don Lee appeared not to see the ball, and leftfielder Joe Roenker trotted in to back up the catch, which apparently would be made by shortstop Ken Gentry. But Gentry, too, appeared to lose it, and it fell in, giving Young a cheap hit. Scott Snow followed with a grounder to short, which got Thrift going to third. The runners moved up on a wild pitch.

Bill Hardy then singled to deep short, with Young easily scoring from third. First baseman Ron Staggs, surprised by the safe call at first, looked at the base umpire, and Snow who had never stopped running took advantage of it and slid under the late throw at home, scoring all the way from second on the play.

East Carolina came back with three in their half of the inning. Gentry made up for missing the popup by singling into right, then stealing second. He moved up on Steve Bryant's infield hit and Ron Staggs walked to load them up. Glenn Card singled to right, driving in both Gentry and Bryant to tie it up. Don Lee got a hit to left, scoring Staggs.

VMI had a few other opportunities to score. In the second, Randy Gates walked and stole second. Garland Isaacs laid down a bunt, and Reavis was late with his throw to first after bluffing Gates back to second. Both moved up into scoring position on a sacrifice, but the rally died there. In the third, Snow reached on an error, moved up on an out and was wild pitched to third. Gates singled in the fourth and stole second.

In the fifth, Wong walked and moved to third on a sacrifice and a walk, but was the last Keydet to get that far.

East Carolina got only one more runner as far as second. That came in the fourth when Addison Bass singled and moved up on Bryant's hit.

VMI offered little in the way of offense in the second game. Billy Young doubled for the first hit in the fourth, but died there. Wong singled in the sixth and moved up on a wild pitch, but aside from that, no one got into scoring position. The Bucs also turned two double plays in the late innings to help their cause.

The Pirate bats were anything but silent in the second outing. After being set down in order in the first inning, they went to work in the second.

Card led off with a single and Lee got a base hit off the pitcher's glove. Robert Brinkley was hit by a pitch, loading the bases, and Joe Roenker reached on an error, scoring Card. Bass hit a ground-ruled double to right, allowing Lee and Brinkley to score, and Jack Elkins walked to reload the sacks.

Gentry hit back to third and Roenker was forced at home. But Bryant hit a triple to the opposition field which rolled to the left field corner, and that brought in Bass, courtsey runner Pete Paradossi and Gentry. Staggs followed with a walk and Card's grounder was errored at second, allowing Bryant to score and Staggs to reach second safely. Brinkley then singled to center, scoring Staggs and Card for a 9-0 lead.

East Carolina came right back with six more in the third. Bass led off with a single and Elkins doubled to right. Gentry reached on an error, loading the bases. Bryant singled, and that brought in both Bass and courtsey runner Paradossi. Staggs was hit by a pitch, loading them up, and Lee doubled to right, scoring both Gentry and Bryant.

Then, when catcher Harry Barksdale tossed a pitch back to the mound, he overshot the mark and the ball went into center, allowing both Staggs and Lee to come around before it could be chased down.

That ran the lead out to 15-0.

Suggs Second In Florida 100

GAINSVILLE, Fla. — East Carolina University's Pirates set several school records during participation in the prestigeous Florida Relays Friday and Saturday.

Carter Suggs, the Pirates' premier sprinter, finished second in the University Division 100-yard dash, timed at 9.7. Southeast Louisiana's Ralph Smith took five in 9.5 seconds while Florida's Mike Sharp was third in 9.8.

Friday, the ECU 880-yard relay team of Larry Austin, Maurice Huntley, Robert Franklin and Suggs set a new East Carolina record of 1:24.6, which also was the second fastest time ever recorded by a North Carolina team. But the Bucs finished fifth in the race behind Southwest Louisiana which was timed in 1:23.4. Austin set a new school mark of 20.6 seconds for his split, and Suggs, timed in :20.9, also surpassed the old standard of 21-plus.

The 440-yard relay team of Austin, Suggs, Franklin and Huntley qualified for the nine-team finals in :40.9, surpassing the old school record of :41.4, giving the Bucs the best 440 time recorded in the state this year. But they failed in the top three, as Southeast Louisiana won it in :40.1. Florida State was second in :40.3, and Penn third in :40.5.

Kentucky, UCLA Meet For NCAA Title

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Richard Washington's jump shot with two seconds left in overtime gave UCLA a 75-74 victory over Louisville Saturday in an incredibly close and fiercely fought semifinal game of the NCAA college basketball tournament.

The exciting triumph lifted Coach John Wooden's Bruins into Monday's national championship game for the 10th time in the last 12 years.

No. 1-ranked UCLA faces No. 2 Kentucky, which earlier in the day walloped Syracuse 91-75 as freshman reserve Jack Givens scored 24 points and grabbed 11 rebounds.

But with 57 seconds left, the poised Bruins, 27-3, pulled within one point at 74-73 on two pressure free throws by All-American Dave Meyers, who sank the shots with 15,151 screaming fans on their feet.

Louisville had a chance to put the game away when reserve Terry Howard had a one-and-one foul situation with 20 seconds remaining. Howard, who had hit all 28 of his free throw attempts this year, missed and Washington snared the regound for UCLA, which called a timeout with 13 seconds left to set up the winning shot.

The tensely-fought game, which was tied 17 times, was decided on that play.

UCLA worked the ball outside, then Marques Johnson fed it to Washington on the right side of the lane. His jump shot from seven feet was perfect, and Louisville's last-second attempt at victory failed.

Coach Joe B. Hall's second-ranked Wildcats made it to the final because of their strong bench, which simply wore down Syracuse in a game marked by 61 personal fouls. Givens had 24 points and 11 rebounds and 6-4 guard Jimmy Dan Conner controlled the floor game as Kentucky never trailed.

The second game was far different.

One of the 17 ties in the game came with 37 seconds left in regulation, when UCLA's Johnson tipped in a missed shot to make it 65-65. That basket came after a steal and completed a 15-second run in which UCLA erased a 65-61 Louisville lead.

Then Johnson further troubled Louisville with his waiving arms and the Cardinals threw away the inbounds pass, giving UCLA a shot at victory with 34 seconds left.

The Bruins had a chance to lock it up then, but Andre McCarter's driving shot was partially blocked by Junior Bridgeman. Bridgeman grabbed the rebound and Louisville had the ball with seven seconds remaining in regulation.

After a timeout, the Cardinals moved the ball downcourt and Bridgeman's 18-foot shot from the corner with one second left was wide, sending the game into overtime.

Murphy took charge of the game as the overtime period began, putting Louisville ahead 67-65 with a field goal and then giving his team a 70-67 lead with a three-point play. Murphy also scored his team's next two points on free throws, but missed on two other free throw attempts.

Louisville had a 72-69 lead with 2:20 left in overtime—in fact the Cardinals never trailed in the overtime until the final two seconds—but could not make the critical free throws that would have produced an all-Kentucky final.

UCLA won the exciting struggle despite a huge rebounding deficit. The quick, high-jumping Cardinals outrebounded the Bruins 49-36, but Louisville made critical mistakes when it could least afford them.

Wesley Cox had 16 rebounds and Bridgeman 15 to give the Cardinals the big edge on the boards.

Louisville roared away from the opening tipoff as if it was going to rout the proud Bruins and give Coach Denny Crum a victory over his former boss, Wooden.

After four early ties, Murphy triggered a nine-point Louisville string as the Cardinals opened a 17-8 lead with just over five minutes gone. Most of Louisville's shots in that stretch were from the outside, and the hot-shooting Cardinals threatened to break the game open.

But Louisville was not able to deliver a knockout punch, although the Missouri Valley Conference champions later took three more leads of nine points at 23-14, 25-16 and 27-18.

Refusing to be swamped, UCLA charged back, with guard Pete Trgovich doing much of the damage. Trgovich, who later fouled out, fired in three field goals as the Bruins scored nine of the game's next 11 points to cut the Louisville lead to two at 29-27 with 5:36 remaining in the half.

The teams were then locked in three ties before UCLA took a 33-32 lead on two foul shots by Washington, who scored 26 points to lead his team. But Louisville regained control of the game's flow, the ever-present Murphy hitting two free throws and Bill Bunton scoring three points to give the Cardinals a 37-33 halftime lead.

The second half was as tight and tense as the first.

The biggest lead in the second half was six points, when Murphy connected on a jumper to put Louisville on top 59-53 with 5:03 remaining.

But, as was to happen later, the Cardinals could not hold onto the game's tempo and UCLA rushed back with six straight points to tie the game at 59-59 with 4:23 remaining on baskets by Trgovich, Meyers—who had 16 points—and Washington.

Washington gave the Bruins a 61-59 lead with a field goal before Cox tied it once more with 3:20 to go. Then Louisville had the opportunity to take over the game again, moving out in front 65-61. But UCLA tied it again, setting the stage for the final maneuverings.

From the outset of the first game, it was clear that Kentucky's size was hurting Syracuse, and when the game saw one foul after another whistled by two active officials the Wildcat bench was too much for the Orangemen. There were 61 fouls called and 70 free throws shot.

After a tie at 4-4, Kentucky moved out in front when center Rick Robey hit a layup and two free throws. When starting forward Bob Guyette picked up his third foul after only four minutes, Hall went to his bench.

The man he grabbed was Givens, and that was not good for Syracuse. Altogether, Hall uso 11 players in the first half and 14 over-all.

Syracuse, 23-8, showed poise and determination in the face of Kentucky's obvious power, but the Orangemen had great difficulty breaking the Wildcat's man-to-man defense and Syracuse trailed 44-32 at the half.

Then with Conner, Kevin Grevey and Rick Robey scoring at will, the Wildcats rattled off 10 straight points in the first 4:20 of the second half to open a 54-32 lead. Rudy Hackett then scored for Syracuse and the Orangemen mounted a rally of its own that cut the Wildcats' lead to nine points on one occasion.

But that was as close as Syracuse ever got.

Jim Lee, who led Syracuse with 23 points, sank three straight field goals in the Orangemen's rally. But it was not enough and the rally could not be sustained.

Wooden To Retire After Title Game

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Coach John Wooden, who in 27 seasons at UCLA coached nine national basketball championship teams, said Saturday he would retire after Monday night's NCAA title game with Kentucky.

The 64-year-old "Wizard of Westwood" said his decision was final and that he had asked Athletic Director J.D. Morgan to relieve him of his coaching duties.

Wooden made his announcement just after his Bruins edged Louisville 75-74 in the NCAA semifinal at the San Diego Sports Arena.

"I have said before my most pleasant and satisfying year at UCLA was my first (1949). We were picked to finish last and won 22.

"My last year at UCLA is equally satisfying."

In that quiet manner, the winningest active major college coach in the United States said he would not be back.

Wooden said no successor has been named, nor would he recommend one.

"I'd like to be gone by Oct. 15 when practice starts," he said. "I don't want to be watching over anybody's shoulder."

Asked if he might coach somewhere else, Wooden answered, "No. I'll be 65 on Oct. 14 and I'll never coach anywhere else."

Wooden's 27th season at UCLA was his 40th in coaching, including several years as a high school coach, after winning All-American honors as a player at Purdue. In those 40 years, his teams won 884 and lost 203.

High points of his career would be UCLA's seven consecutive national collegiate titles from 1967-73 and 88 consecutive victories that ended last year.

Wooden said his retirement came for various reasons which he did not care to discuss, but it was believed his health was a major contributing factor.

He suffered a heart attack a couple of years ago.

Pirates In Golf Lead

NAGS HEAD — East Carolina University increased its lead from four to nine strokes in the Seaside Invitational Golf Tournament now underway at Seascape Golf Club here Saturday.

The Bucs jumped into the lead in the three-day, 54-hole tournament on Friday, building a four-stroke lead then increased it by five more during Saturday's round.

Through the 36th hole, the Bucs had a team score of 906, while the University of Virginia was second with 915. Thery were followed by Elon at 937, defending champion Delaware 944; Rhode Island 949; Richmond 951; Georgetown, 987, and the Delaware B team, 997.

Virginia's John Stahr led the individual golfers with an even par 142. East Carolina's Keith Hiller with a 76-70—146, was in second place, while teammate Jim Gantz was third, 73-74—147

The tournament winds up today.

Spring Football Drills Open Wednesday; Defense Is Priority

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Come Wednesday afternoon, Coach Pat Dye will officially begin his second year at the helm of the East Carolina University football team as spring drills open.

And Dye might be excused if he's found looking around for one familiar face—Danny Kepley's. Kepley, however, is gone. He's finished three stellar years as middle linebacker for the Pirates and this summer will be trying to earn a position on the Dallas Cowboys.

"Our first priority," Dye said, "is to rebuild our defensive line. We don't have to worry so much about our secondary, because it returns intact." Kepley, of course, was the key to the defense during his career.

Dye said, too, that he is very happy with the way things have been going in the off-season work of most of his charges. "We have a lot of young players, who've worked hard on weight and conditioning programs to improve themselves. We have more speed right now than we had last year, and this is overall team speed, not individual speed."

Dye also pointed out that last year, there were only a half dozen on the team who could bench press 300 or more pounds. Now there are 25 who can do this, and another 15 who are just under that weight.

"Our off-season weight program has done a terrific job," Dye said. "This doesn't hold true for all our players, however, but for most of them. They've worked hard, and I'm real tickled with this."

The coach said that he hasn't changed his philosophy that to win you have to play good defense. "This is our number one problem area right now. We have ability, but so far we haven't got any football players—people who have been tested and shown that they can do the job. And I hate to think about injuries."

Dye plans to bring his outside linebackers up on the line this year and made true defensive ends out of them. "Based on experience, Steve Mulder and Mike Crusie would appear to be the leading candidates," Dye said "But we also will be looking hard at Jesse Brown, Skip Russell and several walk-ons who are looking good." These include Kent Williford, John Schaffer and Mike Herring. Joe Kiesler will also figure in the picture along with Ed Nelson, moved from safety, and Mike Johnston, moved from the offensive unit.

Kenny Moore and Buddy Lowery were lost at the tackle spots, and this will be another position that has to "find some winners," according to Dye. Willie Bryant, who saw some starting duty, is one of the prime candidates, along with Jake Dove, moved over from offense. "He's a lot stronger, bigger and faster," Dye commented. Others here include Ronnie Byrd, Bob Neff, Tom Holaday and Bob Brandon, along with Tom Gaston.

Cary Godette returns to the middle guard spot after missing last season due to injury. "He's not going to do much contact work this spring," Dye said. "He's just going to spend this spring learning." Those who will play a lot this spring include Dennis Morgan, who played a lo last year, along with Ed Murphy and Newt Simmons.

The secondary returns all four members, Greg Pingston, Reggie Pinkney, Jim Bolding and Ernest Madison. "We're also moving Bobby Myrick over from offense to the strong safety spot as an experiment. He's going to have to win the position to get it," Dye said. At the corners, behind Pinkney and Madison are Terry Brayboy, Paul Bolin and Steve Hale, along with several walkons.

Along with Pingston and Myrick at strong safety are several other walkons. Bolding is backed up at free safety by Drew Fish and Mike Dross.

"I think we have the ability," Dye said. "But we are untested and unproven. Right now we have to say we don't have many players. We'll have to see how fast some of them come along and mature. The injury situation will also play a big role. We do have speed and strength and this is a plus factor. But we really won't have some answers until September when we play someone.

"We also have some freshmen coming in who will help us," Dye added. "But they'll be behind to

Old Dominion Tops Buc Netters

NORFOLK, Va.—Old Dominion University snapped the East Carolina University tennis team's two-game winning streak, handing the Bucs an 8-1 defeat yesterday.

The match was much closer than the score would indicate. Of the eight losses by the Pirates, five came in three set matches. And of those five, three of the Buc losses came on 7-5 or 7-6 scores.

The Bucs will travel to Raleigh to meet N.C. State on Tuesday

Summary:

Bill Hughes (OD) defeated Howard Rambeau, 5-7, 6-1, 7-5.

Benjumea-Engels (OD) defeated Getsinger-Marion, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4.

Johnson Is Champ

CHAPEL HILL—D.H. Conley wrestler James Johnson, a 178 pound junior won the Junior National Wrestling Championship this weekend in a meet sponsored by the United States Wrestling Federation.

Johnson is the first North Carolina wrestler to ever win such a title. He had competition from 17 other states.

Last weekend, two other Conley wrestlers competed in the State AAU Junior Olympics at Smith High School in Greensboro. Lo Carmon placed fourth in the heavyweight division while Barry Purser won the state title at 178.

Kinston Takes Ayden-Grifton Tourney

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD—Kinston batted around in the last of the fourth pushing over eight runs, increasing their total to 11, and the Vikings went on to beat West Craven, 15-5 to win the second annual Ayden-Grifton Invitational Baseball tournament Saturday.

In the consolation game, host Ayden-Grifton roasted Washington, 16-1, getting six-hit pitching from Dennis Cristiano. Chris Riggs and Mike Teachy. The Chargers also batted around once as they came up with seven in the sixth.

In the opener Saturday, A-G's Cristiano started and went four innings. He held the Pam-Pack to two hits, struck out seven and did not walk anyone. Riggs came on in the fifth giving up three hits, one walk and fanned one. Teachy finished the game and got credit for the save.

Cristiano had a perfect game for two-and-two-thirds innings but lost it on a single in the third. Up until them, neither team had been able to put together a serious threat. But in the last of the third, A-G sent the whole line-up to the plate and got five runs in the process.

Stevie Tripp opened it with a single and three straight walks forced him in. An error allowed two more tuns to cross and the Chargers got help from a passed ball and a wild pitch to get the other two.

A-G picked up one more in the fourth as Ned Craft singled, moved to second when Eddie Taylor was hit by a pitch and scored on an error on Cristiano's grounder.

Washington prevented a shutout getting their only run in the fifth. Robbie Kriesher doubled and Chick Gurganus singled him in.

Steve Noble led off the A-G fifth with a hit and walks to Vern Davenport and Tripp loaded the bases. A wild pitch scored Noble and Randy Nelson cleared the bases with a double to left for a 9-1 Charger lead.

A-G picked up seven more in the sixth on just two hits. The Chargers got seven free passes in the inning to help them out.

Furganus led the 'Pack with two hits while Noble had a pair for the Chargers.

The Vikings must have liked the large score in the first game so much that they tried to score more than the Chargers. Kirk Williams went the whole way for Kinston getting the win. He walked four, fanned just two and gave up eight hits, five in the last two innings. Four of the five Eagle runs were earned while Kinston had five earned runs.

Kinston inched into the lead then proceeded to massacre West Craven. The Vikings picked up one in the first and two in the second for a 3-0 lead and then exploded for eight in the fourth for an 11-1 advantage and the Vikes added four more in the fifth. West Craven began to reach Williams in the late innings as the Eagles picked up three in the sixth and two in the seventh but they ran out of innings.

The Vikings banged out 14 hits, four of which were doubles and two were triples. West Craven's leading hitter, Ernie White had two doubles.

An error let two runs score in the second. Duffy Johnson walked and Clarence Hardison and Bud Sano both beat out bunts to load the bases. Reese grounded back to the pitcher who forced Johnson at home but the relay to first flew into right field letting both Hardison and Sano race home.

The Vikings put two runners on with the aid of an error in the third but could not score. They came back in the fourth and did, eight times. The Eagles committed five errors in the frame. Greg Novicki, Hardison and Sano all had run-scoring doubles in the fourth and Sotello Long, Johnson and Williams each drove in runs with hits. Earl Keith sacrificed one across.

West Craven had picked up their first score in the fourth as John Hawkins singled, moved to third on a walk and a bunt and scored on a ground out.

Kinston rounded out their total with four in the fifth. Keith doubled and scored on a triple by Novicki. A single by Long scored Novicki. Long moved up on a passed ball and a triple by Gary Baker brought him around. On the relay to third, the Eagle shortstop threw the ball into the Viking dugout giving Baker the extra base.

The Eagles chipped away at the Kinston lead in the sixth getting three. White, Bill Deans and Johnny Nobles got hits, bringing in one run, an error scored Deans and a second error scored Nobles.

Mike Barrow led off the seventh with a walk and Mike White singled. A walk loaded the bases and a ground rule double by Ernie White added two more runs for the Eagles but the rally ended there as Kinston pulled off a double play and the last batter popped up.

Sano, Hardison, Long, Novicki and Keith each had two hits for the Vikings.

Nicklaus Skies To 74, But Has Share Of Lead In Heritage Golf

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, author of an amazing 63 in Friday's play, blew to a struggling 74 Saturday and saw his once-commanding lead dwindle and vanish in the third round of the $200,000 Heritage Golf Classic.

Nicklaus held a six-stroke margin starting play in mild, hazy, breezy weather, but the combination of his stunning collapse and Tom Weiskopf's three-under-par 68 put them in a tie for the top going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $40,000 first prize.

Nicklaus, a winner his last time out and the leader through the first two rounds here, and Weiskopf finished 54 holes over the treacherous 6,655-yard Harbour Town Golf Links at 203, 10-under-par.

Suddenly, from a runaway, it was a race. Most of it happened on the back nine. And, more than anything else, Nicklaus simply gave it away.

He hit into the water and made double bogey on the 10th. He missed a green and bogeyed the 13th. He bogeyed the 14th after a very poor, weak, uncertain chip.

And Weiskopf tied him momentarily when tall Tom birdied the 16th with a relatively short putt.

Nicklaus, playing in the group behind him, regained the advantage with a 15-18 foot birdie putt on the same hole.

But, moments after the national television cameras had to cut away, Nicklaus bogeyed the long, dangerous 18th and they were tied again.

Tom Kite, who has threatened so often this season, also got into the chase with a 69 for 206, just three off the pace.

Slow-moving veteran Don January was another shot back at 208 after a 69. Hale Irwin, the U.S. Open champion and a two-time winner here, had a 72—209, six shots back.

Gary Player, the South African who holds the Britsh Open and Masters crowns, had a 70 and was at 211 in his first start on the American tour this season.

Lee Trevino went to a 74 and appeared out of contention at 214.

Arnold Palmer had a 71, his best round of the tournament, despite a quadruple-bogey seven on the 14th hole. He hit into the water twice on that par three. He finished three rounds at 220.

Weiskopf, who hasn't won since his banner season of 1973, birdied both of the par fives on the front side and cut one stroke off Nicklaus' impressive margin.

The 10th was a key, Weiskopf said.

Playing just in front of Nicklaus, Weiskopf hit into the water. But he played a three-iron to the green after his drop, then holed a 25-foot putt to save par.

"I turned around and there was Jack looking for his ball in the water," he said. "He made the score (a double-bogey) that I could have made very easily."

And Nicklaus continued to back up.

He had the one little rally with the birdie on the 16th, but three-putted from a great distance on the 18th to fall back into a tie.

"For me to get close," Weiskopf said, "I had to play good and Jack had to play bad. That's just what happened. If he had shot 68, he'd have run away with it.

"I thought when we were warming up that a 66 or 67 might catch him. But you can't say, 'I'm going to go out and shoot 66.' Not on this course.

"I went out with the idea it was going to be a very difficult day."

And it was.

But the difficulty belonged primarily to Nicklaus.

"Every time I made a mistake, I really got nailed for it," Nicklaus said.

Spring...

some extent. We do have a chance to have a super secondary. All have outstanding speed. So if we come up with the type of defense up front that will make some things happen, we could accomplish a lot despite the fact that we won't be as big as some teams we play."

Offensively, Dye feels one of the top problems is to find a tight end. "We were counting on Clay Burnett, but he's injured and will miss the spring. So we're moving some people around." Wilbur Williamson has moved over from split end and is the only athlete on grant here now. Others include Barry Johnson, Ralph Lewis, and possibly some others.

Rick Bennett and Larry Lundy return at tackle, giving this position good strength. "Lundy has improved his speed, so he should be much better. Bennett has been slowed by an injury, however." Behind them are Lewis Morris, Kevin Hill, Marty Barner and Chuck Eller.

Jimbo Walker returns at one guard spot, while Wayne Bolt is at the other, and Dye calls this position solid. Ronnie Ragland and Randy Parrish give the Bucs solid depth, too. Mat Mulholland, Chip Post and several others boost the depth.

Tim Hightower returns at center after missing part of the season due to an injury. Avery Hilliard, John Shallcross and Ricky Holliday also figure here, along with John Grennell, who'll handle the deep snaps.

"Our line isn't going to be great, but good. We have a chance to do a lot, and we should be better than last year."

At split end, three should battle. Theodore Ashford appears to be the leading candidate, due to experience. But Terry Galaher and Mike Umphlett both look good here.

The running backs also look strong. Kenny Strayhorn returns, and he and Willie Hawkins will start here. But Vince Kolanko, Jesse Ingram, Valla Olliver, Bubba French and Wally Davis all have a shot at it.

Tom Daub, back at fullback, will miss part of the spring due to an off-season injury. "We'll look at Raymond Jones here; he's got a lot of speed," Dye said. Others include Al Boudreau, Larry Paul, Donnie Hughes and Dave Bosnick.

Quarterback Mike Weaver is playing baseball, but will be doing some passing work when he can work it in. Five others will be trying to impress the coach, including Pete Conaty, Jimmy Southerland, Marvin Moss, Tim Bundy and Mike McClenden.

"We have some good freshmen coming in here too, but we can't count on them yet."

Dye was questioned why he allowed Weaver to play baseball since he didn't have a good passing year last season. "I don't think it was all his fault," Dye said. "A lot of it was his receivers and the protection he got. But he'll be working when he can, and will work a lot on his own all summer."

Dye also feels that the Pirate kicking game should be as good as it was last year. Gil Job returns as the punter, and Conaty appears to be the leading candidate to replace Jim Woody as the place kicker.

"We're going to work a lot on the kicking game, too," Dye said.

The drills will wind up on April 26 with the annual Purple-Gold game.

The final two runs came in the fourth. Bryant reached on a fielder's choice and Staggs blasted his third homer of the year out down the right field line, giving the Bucs their 17-0 margin.

Brinkley and Bass both singled in the fifth, but nothing came of it.

Staggs, in his day's work, extended several career records. He now holds the mark for most at bats, 278; most bases, 138; most runs batted in, 54; most hits, 87; and most doubles, 16.

He's within striking distance of three others: most homers, 13 (he has 12); most triples, seven (he has four); and most runs, 50 (he has 49).

The Bucs, seeking to raise their record to .500 are scheduled to wind up their busy week of play today at 3 p.m., hosting the University of North Carolina.

They are then off until next Saturday when they host Pembroke Sate University.

John Johnson finished third in the discus throw, setting a new school record. His toss of 152 feet 11 inches, broke the old mark of 148-11.

The two-mile relay team of Jimmy Willett, Jimmy Greene, Mike Cunningham and Charles Avery finished third with a time of 7:53.

The sprint medley team of Bill White, Palmer Lisane, Mel Duckenfield and Willett finished fifth in 3:35.

Bucks Have Chance Left

By The Associated Press

"Detroit's got to lose a game," said Milwaukee Bucks' Coach Larry Costello. "If they do and we win all ours, we're in. If they win them all, we're out. It's that simple."

Detroit plays at Golden State tonight and at home against Chicago next Wednesday. If the Pistons split those two games and Milwaukee wins its last five—including two meetings with the Pistons—both teams would finish with 40-42 records. The Bucks then would earn the wild card playoff berth in the National Basketball Association's Western Conference with a 5-4 edge in the season series.

Friday night, Milwaukee trounced the Portland Trail Blazers 128-105 while Detroit was idle. Elsewhere, the Houston Rockets downed the Cleveland Cavaliers 112-105, the New Orleans Jazz stunned the New York Knicks 111-102, the Boston Celtics defeated the Chicago Bulls 97-92, the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 114-103, the Seattle SuperSonics shaded the Golden State Warriors 96-92 and the Buffalo Braves turned back the Philadelphia 76ers 115-104.

The Bucks were led by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 38 points and Gary Brokaw's 24 in breaking a five-game losing streak and pulling within 3½ games of Detroit.

Rockets 112, Cavaliers 105

Houston pulled into a tie for second place with Cleveland in the Western Division as Calvin Murphy tossed in 28 points.

Jazz 111, Knicks 102

Pete Maravich scored 32 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to lead New Orleans' comeback victory.

Celtics 97, Bulls 92

Lakers 114, Kings 103

Gail Goodrich scored a career-high 53 points, 36 in the second half to lead the Lakers past the Kings.

SuperSonics 96, Warriors 92

Tommy Burleson scored 22 points to lead Seattle

Braves 115, 76ers 104

Bob McAdoo's 27 points paced Buffalo's victory.

New Vaulting Record Is Set

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Dave Roberts, whose youthful pastime was leaping over fenceposts in his backyard, today owns a world pole vault record of 18 feet, 6½ inches.

Roberts, who failed to make the 1972 U.S. Olympic team despite three NCAA titles in 1971-73, soared for the record on his third try at the height Friday in the Florida Relays.

"I saw the whole bar on the way down and I knew I had it...that bar was a beautiful thing to see," Roberts said.

He surpassed the old mark of 18 feet, 5¾ inches set by Bob Seagren at Salem, Ore. on July 2, 1972.

"I've been hoping to become the world's best vaulter and since I've been so consistent of late, I thought I could do it this year. But not today!" he said. "I was as surprised as everyone else.

"I knew it was a possibility in a month or so the way I've been jumping," added Roberts, a graduate in sociology at the University of Florida.

The former Rice university performer who competes with the Florida Track Club drew a one-minute standing ovation from 3,000 spectators at the event.

Roberts, who said he has consistently cleared 17 feet, 6 inches in recent practices, pulled up short twice on his third and final approach for the record attempt.

He admitted nervousness on his first try, adding, "I settled down for the second try and I didn't think about a thing on the last try."

The record ends a series of disappointments for the 6-foot-2, 185-pounder.

Roberts, a Conway, Tex., native, became only the fourth person to clear 18 feet when he won the 1972 AAU competition by clearing 18 feet, one-half inch in Seattle.

Ten days later, he failed to make the Olympic team because he cleared only 17-8½ in tryouts while Steve Smith and Jan Johnson cleared 18-½.

Roberts then had a disappointing AAU tour of Europe and refused to vault in one meet at Garmish-Partenkirchen, West Germany, because the runway was made out of old conveyor belt.

Jamesville Nips Devils

CHOCOWINITY—Jamesville's Bullets took advantage of poor fielding to gain a 3-2 victory over Chocowinity in a make-up game played yesterday.

After four scoreless innings, Jamesville erupted for two runs in the top of the fourth. Eric Martin reached on an error and was replaced by pinch-runner Byron Davis. Chris Hardison singled Davis over, and Hardison was replaced by runner Eric Davis.

Steve McCombs reached on a two-base fielding error to score Byron Davis. Curtis Ange followed with Jamesville's only other base hit, but got Eric Davis thrown out at the plate. Davis got up again and ran for Ange. Danny McCombs reached on the shortstop's error to load the bases, when Larry Pierce reached on an error to drive in the former McCombs.

Chocowinity came back with a run in the bottom half of the inning when with two outs, Danny Deans singled and Dwayne Kellums singled and moved over on an error to score Deans. The other run came in the bottom of the seventh when George Cadwell reached on an error, advanced on a ground ball, and scored on Kellums' second single.

The Bullets scored their eventual winning run in the sixth when Billy Brown walked, stole second, reached third on another infield error and scored on Martin's sacrifice bunt.

Jamesville boosted their record to 3-2 overall and 3-1 in conference action. Their next action is tomorrow afternoon at home against Saratoga Central, a game which was previously scheduled for April 21.

ELIZABETH CITY — Former East Carolina University runner Ed Hereford finished second in a ten-mile road race in Elizabeth City yesterday, allowing him to claim the "Triple Crown."

In the metric mile, Dr. Bob Morrison finished second in a time of 4:41, while Clem Williams was fifth in 5:01, and Larry Nason was 10th in 5:40. All are from the Greenville-Pitt County area.

Duke Tops Pirates In 11 Innings, 5-3

East Carolina University's troubles on the baseball field continued Friday as the Pirates lost their fifth game in six starts since last Sunday 5-3 in an 11-inning game to Duke University.

And like in nearly all of those games the Pirates held the lead at one time only to lose it. Twice the Bucs were out in front 1-0 and 2-1 before having to struggle back in the ninth to tie it up and force extra innings.

Terry Durham was tagged with the loss going the entire distance but giving a fine effort. He scattered 10 hits but Duke managed to bunch seven of those ten into the three innings they scored in. Durham fanned eight batters during the afternoon, and walked just one.

Duke's Kirk Lauderback captured the victory in an equally impressive start moving his record to 1-2 on the year. He too went all the way walking three and striking out just one. But he kept the Bucs off the bases much of the way allowing just seven hits.

Both pitchers, however, saw most of the hits against them in the late innings when they began to tire. Of Duke's ten six came in the final four innings. And East Carolina got five of their seven during that same period.

Duke offered the first threat in the game, moving Steve Kesses as far as second in the second inning. With one down Kesses reached on an error and stole second only to die there.

East Carolina came up with its first run in the bottom of the second. Joe Roenker led off with a grounder to third that was errored on the throw allowing the runner to go on to second. He moved up on Don Lee's infield out then came home when Bobby Harrison hit a sacrifice fly caught right against the fence in left field.

Duke again threatened in the third. Jim Turner got a one-out single also stealing second but waited out the inning there.

In the fourth however Duke tied it up. Wtith two down Kesses singled to center and stole second for the second time. A passed ball allowed him to reach third and he scored when Mark Manuel reached on a hit to deep short.

East Carolina regained the lead 2-1, in the fifth inning. Geoff Beaston reached on another Duke error and Jack Elkins singled him to third. He scored from there on Pete Paradossi's infield grounder, putting the Bucs back ahead.

After Bob Michael reached on an error and stole for a seventh inning threat Duke pushed over two runs to take the lead in the eighth. John Lemen opened the eighth inning with a double off the wall in left field. Robbie Cox a former Rose High School ballplayer singled to right moving Lemon to third. He scored on Hugh Bayliss' sacrifice fly. Cox moved up on the relay home then took third on the second out of the inning. He came home when Kesses reached on another Pirate error.

The Bucs tied it up with one in the ninth, but blew their chance to win it. With one down Roenker beat out a hit to short. Don Lee was safe on an error and Harrison singled to drive in Roenker. Beaston hit an infield grounder getting Harrison at second, but moving Lee on to third but the rally died there and the two teams went into extra innings.

The Pirates also had a chance in the tenth. Paradossi singled to open the inning and was sacrificed to second. Ron Staggs drew an intentional walk, but an infield fly and a ground out ended the frame.

Duke then came up with the inning runs in the top of the 11th. Chal Nunn opened with a single to left and Kesses was safe on an infield hit. Manuel sacrificed them up, and Rick Dixon hit a two-run single to left bringing in Nunn and Kesses for the 5-3 lead.

East Carolina tried to come back as Harrison got a one-out double, but Duke came up with outs against the next two batters ending the game.

The loss dropped the Pirate record to 5-8 overall while Duke evened up its record at 6-6. Duke also gained a 2-1 advantage in the three meetings of the teams this year.

East Carolina, following a scheduled Saturday doubleheader with VMI will play host to the University of North Carolina on Sunday.

Greene Central Grabs 9-1 Win From Hawks

WHEAT SWAMP — Greene Central High School closed out the pre-holiday schedule Friday with a 9-1 Eastern Carolina baseball victory over North Lenoir.

Jeffrey Pridgen hurled a two-hitter at North Lenoir, giving up both of the hits in the first inning. He walked five and struck out five in going the distance.

Pridgen also led the Ram hitting, picking up two hits in three trips, while getting three runs batted in.

North Lenoir got its only run int the first. Pete Avery led off with a single and Tim Aycock walked. Lyman Thorbs walked, loading them up. but Mike Eubanks' infield grounder was played home getting Avery. Mickey Lane singled in both Aycock and Thorbs, but Thorbs was later out on an appeal play at third leaving the Hawks with only one run.

Greene Central tied it up in the second. Thomas Hooker reached on an error and stole second. He scored when Jeffrey Warren reached on an error.

In the fourth the Rams pushed over three to take a 4-1 lead. Hooker walked and Joe Heath was hit by a pitch. Ronnie Whitley walked, and Pridgen singled in Hooker. Donnie Blizzard walked to force in Heath and Jerry Carraway reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Whitley.

Two more crossed in the fifth. Heath singled and Warren reached on an error. Whitley walked and Pridgen reached on an error, scoring Heath. Blizzard's infield fly was dropped, allowing Warren to score.

The final three came in the seventh. Heath walked and Randy Wade singled. Whitley again walked and Pridgen singled in both Heath and Wade. Blizzard reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Whitley.

Whitley, by the way, had made 14 trips to the plate so far this year drawing 11 walks. He was also hit by a pitch putting him on base 12 times without an official trip.

Greene Central will meet Greenville Rose in the first round of the Gaylord Perry Tournament in Williamston next Thursday.

Bear Grass In Fourth Straight

BEAR GRASS — Bear Grass High School won its fourth straight baseball game Friday downing the Williamston "B" team, 4-3.

The win boosted the Bear Grass record to 4-1 on the year. Williamston was losing its firts game in two outings.

Williamston grabbed the lead in the top of the first. Jerry Howell walked and Stevens reached on an error. Ellis reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Howell.

In the fourth the Bears pushed over two to take a 3-1 lead. Danny Rogerson reached on an error and Ray Wynne walked. Keith Williams singled and Ellis got a hit. Both advanced on an error and Leggett walked. Another error let Stevens score.

The Baby Tigers got the tieing run in the top of the seventh. Ellis walked and moved up on an error. Robertson also walked and a hit by Gardner scored Ellis.

Bear Grass pushed in the winning run in the bottom of the frame. Alton Cratt reached on an error and was balked to second. He scored when Danny Peaks singled.

Bear Grass will travel to Chocowinity on Tuesday, April 9, while Williamston "B" team is next in action at Plymouth on April 10.

POOR SET SHOOTERS

DEMING, N.M. (AP) — "Our free throwing cost us the game," said Coach Wendy Dudley. The comment came in reference to the Deming High School girls' basketball team's 43-37 loss to Gadsden.

The coach said her squad made only three of 33 free throws in the defeat.

GEESE SLOW HORSES

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Geese are part of the infield at the Garden State Park racetrack but recently they wandered from their usual habitat and paraded on the track between the half mile and three-eighth poles. One of the thoroughbred races was delayed several minutes while an outrider persuaded the flock of geese they were on the wrong track.

Williamston Gets 10-2 Win

WILLIAMSTON—Williamston High School romped to a 10-2 victory over Roanoke Rapids High School Friday.

Williamston got all they needed in the second inning, scoring seven big runs. Mike Bryant walked and Butch Davis ran for him. George Brown singled and Greg Roberson reached on an error, scoring Davis. Ken Herman walked and Tommy Gardner reached on an error, scoring Brown. Phil Selby singled and an error on the play allowed both Roberson and Herman to score. Gardner stole home, but Selby was thrown out. Roy Lilly got it going again with a walk, and stole second. Eric Godard walked and Davis, running for him, stoke second. Mike Bryant doubled in both Lilly and Davis.

Williamston added two more in the third. Herman walked and stole second. Gardner singled and Lilly's hit brought in Herman. Tim Hardison walked and Godard sacrificed Gardner in.

Roanoke Rapids got both of its runs in the fourth. Bryan Causey singled and Tom Midgett walked. Frank Butts also walked, and a hit by David Butts scored Causey and Midgett.

The final Williamston run came in the fifth. Selby singled, stole second and went to third on an error. He scored on Lilly's hit.

Williamston will play host to the eight-team Gaylord Perry Tournament starting Thursday.

Kinston, West Craven Post A-G Wins

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD—West Craven knocked off host team Ayden-Grifton, 9-4, and Kinston blanked Washington, 4-0 as the two winners gained the finals of the second annual Ayden-Grifton Invitational Baseball tournament, Friday.

The two teams were to meet Saturday for the championship while A-G and Washington were to play a consolation game.

In the opener of the Friday doubleheader, Kinston broke open a scoreless game in the third on a two-run triple and added two more tallies as Craig Hill threw a two-hitter at the Pam-Pack. A-G starting pitcher Mike Teachy ran into serious trouble in the first inning of the afterpiece giving up five runs as the Eagles beat the Chargers, 9-4.

Kinston's Hill had a no-hitter going through the fourth when Eddie Cherry finally broke it with a one out single. Cherry got the only other Washington hit; it came in the sixth. Hill struck out five and walked two. Loser Tommy Drake gave up four Viking hits, fanned four and walked two in the five innings he pitched. Austin Daniels relieved him in the sixth but while holding the Vikings hitless, the Pam-Pack could not make up ground.

Kinston had put its first man on base in the second as Duffy Johnson doubled but could not advance. Then in the third, the Vikings broke the ice with three runs. Bud Sano walked and after moving around on a passed ball and a wild pitch, scored on a single by Earl Keith. Greg Novicki tripeled off the centerfield wall to drive in Keith and a bunt by Bruce Reese scored Novicki.

The Vikings threatened again in the fourth putting a man on second by an error and a sacrifice but they could not score again until the fifth. Keith walked, stole second and scored on an error.

Washingoton's only big threat came in the sixth as Buster Allen was safe on an error. Cherry singled and Daniels reached on a fielder's choice sending Allen to third.

Of Teachy's first five pitches, two were balls and the other three were hit for singles. After he got through the inning, Teachy settled down a little and held West Craven to three runs in the next four frames. He gave up eight hits in five innings. Chris Riggs relieved him in the sixth. Winner John Hawkins walked six Chargers, struck out seven and gave up four hits.

The three lead-off singles loaded the bases in the first for the Eagles. Bill Deans tried to squeeze a run in but lead off batter Mike White was forced at home. The next batter struck out and Teachy seemed to be getting out of the jam when Greg Barrow singled to left driving in two runs. Bruce Wayne was hit by a pitch. Charlie Vendrix singled to center scoring Deans and Barrow and an error on the play let Wayne score.

The Chargers pushed over their first tally in the last of the second. Eddie Taylor led off reaching on an error and he stole second. Three straight walks forced him in.

The Eagles got the run back in the third as Johnny Nobles was hit by a pitch and Barrow singled. A hit by Wayne scored Nobles and a sacrifice fly brought in Barrow.

The Chargers put two on in the third by errors but could not score. They loaded the bases in the fifth on a pair of walks, an error and a fielder's choice but again they went scoreless.

West Craven had picked up another score in the fith as Ernie White doubled and scored on a hit by Barrow. The Eagles pushed in the final run in the seventh. White singled and stole around to third. He scored on a ground out.

The Chargers finally got their act together in the last of the seventh and put together a rally. Paul Setliff walked and Taylor reached on an error. Both scored on a double by Dennis Cristiano. Davis singled in Cristiano. Chris Riggs walked but a pop-up ended the game.

Fisk's Replacement Powers Red Sox Win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The highlight of this story comes to you courtesy of the hero, Bob Montgomery of the Boston Red Sox:

"This reporter drove in six runs with a homer and a triple," he said, telling it like it is.

Montgomery, a journeyman catcher who'll be 31 next month, is faced with the task of filling in for Boston's injury-prone Carlton "Pudge" Fisk for the second year in a row. Friday, he belted a three-run triple off Chicago's Wilbur Wood in the sixth inning and a three-run homer off Jack Kucek in the 10th, leading the Red Sox to a 9-5 exhibition baseball victory over the White Sox.

As usual, Montgomery dropped into the press room at Boston's Winter Haven, Fla., training camp following the game to get the line score and tape a radio show for the folks back home.

"Shucks," he kidded, "days like this only come natural. Just look at the homers I hit and the runs I've driven in in my career."

For the record, Montgomery has 16 homers and 98 RBI in 235 major league games. With Fisk sidelined for lengthy periods last season with groin and knee injuries, he got into 88 games and hit .252 with four homers and 38 RBIs.

This time, Fisk is out until mid-May at least with a broken arm and Montgomery is due for plenty of action. He seems ready with a .371 spring batting average, 13 hits and nine RBIs.

"I don't really give it any thought, other than to feel sorry for Pudge," he said. "In this business, you just go out and do the job."

Montgomery had to share batting laurels Friday with Juan Beniquez, who had two doubles and three singles and doubled home the tying run with two out in the ninth.

Baltimore's hot-hitting Don Baylor is outdoing Montgomery. Baylor slammed a two-run homer, his eighth of the spring, leading the Orioles to a 4-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals. Baylor, who also doubled, boosted his hitting streak to 14 games and raised his home run total to eight and his batting average to .547.

Medich allowed three hits and one run in seven innings as the Yanks beat the Atlanta Braves 4-1. He had allowed only two runs in 28 innings. Bob Oliver's tie-breaking two-run homer was the big blow.

The Yanks got some more good news when outfielder Bobby Bonds' sore shoulder was diagnosed as a strained muscle. The team doctor predicted Bonds would return to full-time duty before the team leaves Florida.

Detroit pummeled Cincinnati's Nolan and two relievers for 18 hits in a 7-4 triumph over the Reds. Horton collected three singles and a solo homer while Johnny Bench accounted for three Cincinnati runs with a pair of homers.

The Houston Astros rocked Jenkins for 11 hits and eight runs in the first three innings and drubbed the Rangers 15-10. The Astros got 22 hits, led by Greg Gross.

Jamesville Tops Pantego

JAMESVILLE—Jamesville used seven hits to run up six runs and take a 6-1 decision over Pantego, Friday. The Bullets won it on a four-run fifth.

Jamesville got on the boards first with a run in the last of the opening frame. Ronnie Padgett reached on an error that let him move around to third. He scored on an interferance call.

The Bullets made it 5-0 in the fifth. Padgett walked and stole second and third. Jerry Ange walked and stole up. A double by Billy Brown drove in the two runners and Brown stole third. A sacrifice scored Brown. Steve McCombs kept it going with a base hit and Clifton Hardison walked. Danny McCombs singled loading the bases and ahit by Duke Stone scored Steve McCombs.

Pantego got one in the sixth as Craddock doubled and scored on hits by Copeland and Booth.

The Bullets added one more in the sixth.

Craddock was the only playerto have two hits.

Colonels Stay In Hot Pursuit

By The Associated Press

Artis Gilmore and Louie Dampier, the long and short of the Kentucky Colonels, are keeping their team in hot pursuit of the front-running New York Nets in the American Basketball Association's Eastern Division race.

The 7-foot-2 Gilmore and 6-foot Dampier combined for 14 points in the third period Friday night as the Colonels broke away from the Virginia Squires en route to a 110-88 victory.

That triumph, combined with the New York Nets' 111-106 loss to the Sounds at Memphis, lifted Kentucky within 1½ games of the Nets—and left them just one game back in the loss column.

In the only other ABA game of the night, the Spirits of St. Louis beat the Indiana Pacers, 125-96.

The defeat was the 64th of the season for the Squires, an ABA record. Two nights earlier the Squires set another record with their 29th home-court loss. Their record is a dismal 15-64.

All of which has led a frustrated Virginia Coach Al Bianchi to remark, "We could take two girls from Immaculata (one of the top women's college basketball teams) and win more than 15 games."

Gilmore had eight points and Dampier six in the third quarter, when Kentucky outscored Virginia 26-16. Gilmore finished with 28 points and 13 rebounds, Dan Issel had 23 points and Dampier 19.

Sounds 111, Nets 106

Mel Daniels was the man who did in the Nets, coming off the bench to score 14 points, grab seven rebounds and block two shots in the final period.

Spirits 125, Pacers 96

Rookie center Maurice Lucas hit on 13 of 14 field goal attempts for 28 points, hauled down a career-high 22 rebounds and handed out six assists for the Spirits.

Bake McBride in 1974, Bill Virdon in 1955 and Wally Moon in 1954 won National League rookie honors as members of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Tigers Defeated

ROANOKE RAPIDS—Roanoke Rapids handed the Williamston High School tennis team its fifth straight loss Friday as the Tigers dropped a 9-0 decision.

The summary:

NORTH CAROLINA MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Highlights of the 1974 operations are as follows:

- Total life insurance in force reached an all time high for any black-managed life insurance company of $2.012 billion, up from $1.729 billion at the close of 1973.
- Premium income increased modestly from $36.1 million in 1973 to $36.3 million in 1974.
- Net investment income grew from $6.2 million in 1973 to $7.3 million in 1974, more than 17.8%.
- Assets increased to a new high of $138.6 million.
- Benefits paid policyowners, since organization, reached $240.9 million with $20.0 million paid in 1974.
- Dividends paid to policyowners have totaled $23.5 million since 1944 . . . up $2.1 million in 1974 . . . thus lowering the net cost of insurance to thousands of North Carolina Mutual policyowners.

Despite the cloudy economic picture for the country presently and in prospect for the rest of 1975, we are confident that North Carolina Mutual will continue to move ahead on its path of sound and steady growth.

Young Missionaries Fullfill Traditional Role

Following a traditional role practiced by members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, two young men from the Western U.S. have been living and working in Greenville for several months as missionaries for their church. The church is also popularly known as the Mormon Church.

Dewey Cook of Craig, Colorado is 20 years old. His fellow missionary, Jerome Duncan, from Joseph City, Arizona, is 19.

Both are taking a vacation from their education to carry out the voluntary missionary work that is the personal goal of many members of the church. Dewey came to Greenville in October, and Jerome arrived in November of 1974.

"Missionary work is for a two year period," Dewey said. "Normally each missionary will serve from three months to six months or longer in one place, then be reassigned to another town or area." Before coming to Greenville. Dewey was in Spartanburg, S.C., and Jerome was in Chapel Hill.

"Expenses for our missionary service is paid for out of our own personal funds," Jerome explained. "However, if a young man or woman has a desire to do missionary work and cannot afford it, the local church to which that person belongs takes care of expenses."

According to Jerome, there are at present "about 19,000 missionaries of the church on mission work, with about 200 in North Carolina now. Young women as well as men volunteer as missionaries. I believe of the 200 in this state, something like 20 are young women."

The two missionaries to Greenville explained that young Mormon men had the advantage over women in that they could go on missionary work at 19, whereas a woman has to wait until she's 21.

"There's no particular upper age limit," Dewey added, "although most do their missionary work when they're young, before they marry."

Dewey and Jerome emphasized that they are not here on a hard-sell conversion effort. "We're not out to convert" Jerome said. "Our approach is to share, to explain to anyone interested in our own feelings. The choice is entirely up to an individual. If someone expresses an interest, then we take the time to go into more detail about the church and it's work."

Brief History

With a current membership of approximately three and one-quarter million, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints was founded in Fayette, N.Y. in 1830 by Joseph Smith. Today, the biggest concentration of membership lies in the western and mid-western states of the U.S. The church's headquarters is located in the well known Temple Square in Salt Lake City, Utah.

"The headquarters includes the temple, the tabernacle and nearby, the church office and visitor center. This is not only the national headquarters, but the international headquarters as well," Dewey said.

Significant changes have taken place in basic tenets of the Mormon Church in the 20th century. "Multi-marriages are no longer a common practice," Jerome said. "This has been out since a law was legislated against it.

"At the time multi-marriages was practiced, it worked out good, it was a practical arrangement because of persecution," Jerome said. "Now there's no longer a need or a justification of that practice."

Family Centered

"One of the outstanding things about our faith," Dewey said, "is that it's family centered. We believe that family ties can be carried over into a family relationship after death. The church has a strong program to keep the family together."

"Some of the ways this is achieved," Jerome added, "is through different auxiliaries. The Relief Society is made up of wives and mothers who get together when there's a problem for an individual or a neighborhood. This work makes them better wives and mothers."

"There's also a number of youth programs," Dewey said, "for early teen-agers and on through the teen years. Through lessons and activities, through dances, the youth are kept together."

Another important part of church work is The Family Home Evening. "Once a week a family will meet and organize activity," Jerome said. Each member of the family has a chance to discuss goals, problems, and the principles of the gospel." To make this a strong program, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints headquarters distributes the "Family Home Manual" to all Mormon homes.

Role of Music

"Music also plays an important part in our services," Dewey said. "Everybody is urged to sing and to participate through song. Personally, I enjoying singing and am never shy when it comes to singing at meetings."

Both missionaries admitted that perhaps the best known adjunct of the church is the internationally famous Mormon Tabernacle Choir, whose albums of music are best sellers year after year.

Services Simple

Mormon worship services, according to the two young men, are relatively simple. Sunday school is held at 10 a.m., with an evening service, a sacrament meeting, held at 6:30 p.m. on Sundays.

"One person alone doesn't occupy the pulpit," Jerome explained. He acknowledged that personally he "outlined, prepared in advance what he was going to say when he spoke. However, I organize my material in a fairly simple manner."

"The idea," Dewey added, "is to let everybody grow within the church by having an opportunity to take part in services."

Unlike some denominations, the Mormon Church does not maintain a theological seminary where a man is specifically trained to become an ordained minister. Emphasis is on having all members share in the ministry of the church. This accounts, in a great measure, for the program of voluntary missionary work.

Motives

Jerome, the younger of the missionaries, is sixth in a family of six brothers and one sister. He attended college for one year in Rexburg, Idaho before making his decision to fulfill missionary duties.

"I grew up in the church," he said, "both my parents are members. From an early age I've been active in church and scout work. Missionary work is something I've looked forward to, always with the expectation it would be a good experience. I knew I wanted eventually to find out for myself what it would be like to share my faith with other people. I'm glad I made the decision."

Dewey, a husky youth standing well over six feet, completed two quarters of studies at Mesa Junior College in Grand Junction, Colorado before deciding he had reached "a time that was good for me to do my missionary work. I too grew up in the church," he said, "and it has always been my goal to go on a mission. Incidentally, my father fulfilled his missionary duties in North Carolina, so I'm glad I've had this chance to come here." Dewey says he may teach physical education.

Volunteers for mission work are not permitted to choose the geographical location to which they are sent. After a member's local church agrees that a candidate is suitable for mission work, there follows a brief period of preparation.

Orientation

"This is a one week orientation course in Salt Lake City," Jerome said. "Primarily this is directed to our health, how to take best care of ourselves. All the other requirements to do with mission work are things we must have learned before, in our church, our home and our community."

"Missionaries are assigned to areas of need," Dewey added. "Since membership in the church is growing rapidly, there's need for us everywhere. In an area like Greenville we always have someone."

Here in Greenville, Jerome and Dewey feel they have had rewarding experiences. They say they have found people warm and receptive to them, whether or not they had a particular interest in their missionary work.

"On campus at East Carolina University there's a Latter-Day Saints Student Association," Dewey said. "This ties in to a national organization in other campuses all over the U.S."

Jerome said that "several persons have indicated serious consideration in becoming members. We're working closely with these people. Since Dewey and I have been here we've had one family to make a definite committment."

Plans are being made to build a Latter-Day Saints church in the Lynndale area of Greenville. This is scheduled to be completed in August.

Explaining the pattern of organization of the Morman Church, Dewey said "Greenville is what we call a ward of branch. Five or six wards or branches comprise a stake. Greenville is part of the Kinston Stake. A Greenville man, Lionel Kendrick, is president of the Kinston Stake."

"The next step up is the temple district," Jerome said. "This area is part of the Washington, D.C. Temple District. From that level it goes to the general church leaders in Salt Lake City."

Impressions

Coming to Greenville as they did in the autumn, neither have yet experienced the well known summer heat wave that envelopes the local area—a factor that most newcomers either relish or look upon as something to be patiently endured.

They have, however, formed definite impressions of the local geography in comparison to their home states of Arizona and Colorado. "It certainly is a lot different," Jerome admitted. "In Arizona you can see forever. Here, there's trees, houses, something to be seen nearby wherever you look. But I do like all the green stuff around here."

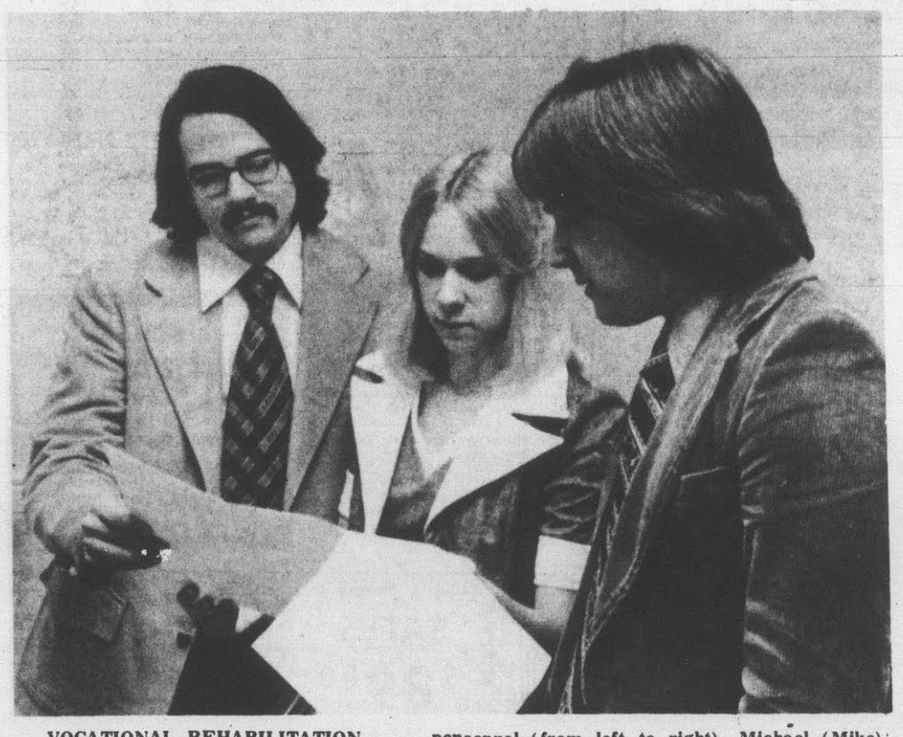

Dewey expressed a similar feeling about the closeness of things in the Greenville area. "Around the town where I live in Colorado a person can see mountains all around. Here, everything is flat around you. You can't see anything at a distance."

Although these two young volunteer missionaries will be leaving soon (and may even have departed by the time of this publication), they are unanimous in agreeing that being in Greenville has been an invaluable experience for them.

"For one thing I feel we've been able to clear up a lot of misconceptions about our church," Dewey said. "There's been a gratifying number of people here who have taken time to listen.

Jerome said, "It has been a time of growth for me personally, and I feel that for myself, for Dewey and for all who serving as missionaries, the best thing about this missionary work is that we're able to share our feelings, our convictions with others."

Assistance Furnished To Area Deaf People

Text And Photograph By Jerry Raynor

Five years ago two young men were assigned as vocation counselors for the deaf in eastern North Carolina. Michael (Mike) Ernest went on the job in February of 1970, followed in June by Earl Elkin. Recently, they have been joined in this work by a third person, Mrs. Martha Bradshaw, a graduate student at East Carolina University majoring in Vocational Rehabilitation.

Officially a part of the North Carolina Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, the office comes under the auspices of the N.C. Department of Human Resources.

Earl, like Mike, is a full time vocational counselor for the deaf. Earl is one of three children of a deaf couple. Prior to coming to work for the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, he served in the Marine Corps. He is now studying at Pitt Technical Institute for an associate degree in the Mental Health Association Program. Both his sister, Janet, and his brother, Barry, work with deaf people; Janet as a teacher for the deaf and Barry in mental health work at Broughton Hospital in Morganton.

"I think it is significant that often you will find that children of a deaf couple go into work to help the deaf," Mike said. "They have a deep understanding of the problems involved in being deaf."

Martha, who will graduate from ECU this spring, is serving her internship with Mike and Earl. "I've got so much to learn," she said, "especially in improving my communications skills. I travel, helping in any way I can. I have special interest in smaller children, however, the work we're doing in this program is for people over 16."

20 County Area

"Ours is a 20 county area," Mike explained, "one that runs roughly from Roanoke Rapids to Wilson and from there to the coast."

A graduate of N.C. State University with a masters degree in audiology from East Carolina University, Mike says "there's a lot of exciting new things beginning to happen in eastern North Carolina that will make a big difference in the lives of the deaf."

Although exact numbers for the area are not available, Mike said "statewide it is estimated that there are about 2,000 persons totally deaf, and a much larger number with some degree of impaired hearing, so you see that in any given area of the state many people are in need of help."

Pointing out that assistance is geared toward practical help, Mike said "our services are more vocational oriented. We try to provide training leading to employment, to sponsor education in some form of basic training.

"Ultimately," he add, "we want to provide the kind of help that will break certain barriers. We are a little behind in the eastern part of the state in this respect."

One of the major problems in working with deaf people is the attitude of families. "The expectations for children who are deaf is so low," Mike said. "Many families expect a deaf child to come back home and live on in a protective environment."

"Overcoming family and community attitudes in what can be expected of the deaf is really one of the toughest problems we face,"

New Technology

New usages of technology promise to play a bigger role as the program in eastern North Carolina grows and expands. "The use of the teletypewriter for the deaf is becoming important," Mike explained. "With a telephone connector, the teletypewriter can be used as a telephone. We're making efforts to try to get a number of teletypewriters distributed in eastern North Carolina for use by the deaf. We plan to get one in our office here."

In Morganton, where the North Carolina School for the Deaf is located, the police department maintains a teletype where the deaf can make emergency calls.

Mike mentioned that all forms of media are becoming increasingly important in the training and in the daily lives of the deaf. "For example," he said, "there's a number of films being made with captions. A beginning in this area is also being made in some television programs.

"Opportunities for the deaf to get together are increasing. This is an encouraging development," Mike said. "There's a club for the deaf in Edenton at the Edenton Baptist Church and one here in Greenville at the Elm Street Recreation Center They meet once a month."

Close Ties

The three workers here maintain close ties with the two existing North Carolina schools for the deaf. "The one at Wilson is for children in kindergarten through the eighth grade," Mike said. "At the age of 16 deaf children transfer to the school in Morganton. This is the only school for the deaf in North Carolina that includes training through the 12th grade."

Mike added that a third school, to be located in Greensboro, will soon be open. Like Wilson, it will be for kindergarten through the eighth grade.

New Outlook

Mike expressed great pleasure in the work being done in North Carolina to expand the horizons of the deaf. Referring to a comprehensive article that appeared recently in the Morganton "New Herald," written by Marilyn Williams, News Information. Director for the N.C. School of the Deaf, he pointed out some of the many innovations and accomplishments that would not have been dreamed of not many years ago. A few excerpts show:

—"education for the deaf is alive and doing well, especially in North Carolina," Ms. Williams reported. "Today a deaf child can begin his education right in his own home town and as early as six months old . . . These services and this education is made possible by the 23 preschool satellite classes that cover the state and aid a total of 164 children under six years old . . ."

Until recently, Ms. Williams noted, a deaf person wanting a college education had to "pack his bags and go to Gallaudet, Washington, D.C. or New Orleans, or New York . . . Today, Central Piedmont Community College in Charlotte has an educational program for both college age students and adults . . ."

And it is not only practical training in making a living that is available to persons who happen to be deaf. "Today on the campus of the N.C. School for the Deaf," Ms. Williams writes, "there is a piano teacher with successful students, a ballet teacher with lovely performing students, guitar classes, and classes in autoharp, recorder, sax, tuba; not to mention classes in drama, and arts and crafts . . ."

Local Emphasis

"You can see," Mike said, "that the picture is brighter for persons who are deaf or have serious hearing impairment. This is one of the points we're trying to get across to families with a deaf person, and to make community people aware of. Naturally, our emphasis is on counseling and assistance, in providing guidance to get deaf persons in contact with services available.

"We're working hard on getting deaf people placed in good jobs, jobs of their own choosing," Mike said. "At one time most deaf people who did work gravitated to work in the printing field. This is changing now, as employees learn that deaf people have varied capabilities."

Mike mentioned two instances that came to mind of deaf people placed in jobs not usually associated with employment for the deaf.

"One I can think of is a mechanic at Phelps Chevrolet in Greenville, and another is an employee at Long Manufacturing in Tarboro. Right now, we're working with a business which is thinking of hiring two deaf persons and two with impaired hearing. We hope this works out. One of our goals is to find rewarding work for any deaf person who wants to work."

Unsung Hero In Carolina Drama

Text By Vinton Taylor, UNC-Chapel Hill

CHAPEL HILL—The name "John W. Parker" may never have been up in lights, but without this man, the future of drama in North Carolina wouldn't be nearly so bright.

"There is no place for a theatre administrator to take a bow," Parker said in a recent interview. "A theatre administrator must have not only the feeling of theatre as a producing art, but he must also provide ways and means for the theatre to exist and subsist."

Parker has been finding "ways and means" for drama in North Carolina most of his life. He retired last month as professor of dramatic art at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

When Parker wasn't teaching theatre students, he was occupied with the actual business of theatre.

He was associate director and business manager of the Carolina Playmakers and executive secretary of the Carolina Dramatic Association for 34 years, beginning in 1936.

Also a director, author and playwright, Parker founded the Junior Playmakers, a summer program for high school students, designed drama courses for North Carolina's public high schools and served as the director of the Bureau of Community Drama of UNC's Extension Division for 28 years.

"John Parker is the unsung hero of North Carolina drama," according to Arthur Housman, chairman of UNC's Department of Dramatic Art. "John has done more for high school dramatics programs than anyone I know," Housman said.

Parker's first students were high schoolers. Before joining the dramatic art staff at UNC in 1934, Parker was drama instructor at Four Oaks High School and High Point High School.

"I don't think drama should be taught just to channel students toward Hollywood or Broadway. Theatre should give people a chance at forming a better rounded personality," said Parker, who has taught the subject for 45 of his 65 years.

"I founded the Junior Playmakers to give high school students a chance to try themselves out," he said. "Most of them found they didn't have what it takes to become professional theatre people. But students discovered drama could expand their viewpoints. A little theatre can provide a wonderful avocation for a doctor, lawyer or president of the Parent-Teacher Association."

Junior Playmakers spent six weeks at Carolina, living in Old East dormitory and performing in Playmakers Theatre. Students were encouraged to study drama at UNC and join the Carolina Playmakers or just become good students, Parker said.

Doses of encouragement are carefully measured by Parker. He said he supported only the best. "I don't believe in over-encouraging," he said. "Maybe it's because I'm a tightwad businessman and only the most exceptional talent is worth the investment."

After high school, Parker attended Wake Forest University but there wasn't enough drama there to satisfy his craving. So he came to the University at Chapel Hill to work with the famous "Proff Koch" and his six-year-old Carolina Playmakers.

With an undergraduate degree in education (the Drama Department wasn't established until 1936), Parker joined the dramatic art staff in 1934 as a Rockeffeller fellow and received his master's in dramatic art in 1936.

To many in the drama department, Parker is referred to as 'Mr. Playmaker,' " Housman noted.

Koch introduced Parker not only to professional but also marital bliss. In June, 1936, the secretary of the drama department, Darice Lee Jackson, became Mrs. John W. Parker. On their honeymoon, the Parkers took a company of Playmakers to Dallas, Tex., to open a theatre on the centennial celebration grounds there.

With the exception of a few summers, the Parker have lived in Chapel Hill since their marriage. Outdoor drama productions took him to Fayetteville the summers of 1939-41 to direct and manage Paul Green's symphonic drama, "The Highland Call." He served as general manager of "The Lost Colony" at Manteo from 1948-51.

During World War II Parker organized entertainers such as Dinah Shore and Edward G. Robinson in USO shows for British and American troops.

Theatre management is not the limit of Parker's theatrical pursuits. He is credited with having written and directed the first black play with an all black cast produced in America, "Itchin' Heel." Other words include plays "Pine Song" and "Sleep on, Lemuel" and numerous articles for theatre periodicals.

Whether writing, directing or managing, John Parker rarely has been onstage. After 40 years of devotion to the Tar Heel State's theatre, John W. Parker should take the bow theatre administrators deserve but rarely get.

Data Gathered On Firms Relative To Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi says the Justice Department is gathering factual information on whether U.S. companies are participating in an Arab boycott of firms with ties to Isarel.

"In my view an agreement among separate firms doing business in the United States not to deal with a third firm would raise serious antiturst questions" he told members of Congress in a letter released Friday.

The letter was in response to a request signed by 137 members of Congress for such an investigation.

The members of Congress, in a letter drafted by Reps. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., and Sidney Yates, D-Ill., said there are reports that a number of U.S. firms have honored Arab demands not to deal with companies dealing with Israel.

The congressional letter cited no examples.

The members of Congress also asked the Justice Department to investigate reports that U.S. agencies, including the State Department and the Army Corps of Engineers, honor Arab countries' demands for assignment discrimination against Jews.

Business Notes

DEPARTMENT HEAD

Burroughs Wellcome Co. announced the appointment of Dr. Gabriel Cipau as department head in the new Scientific Computing Department within the research, development and medical unit of the company.

Cipau, who is working at Research Triangle Park, joined the company in 1970 as a project engineer in the Engineering Department and was promoted to section head, Pilot Plant, Chemical Development Laboratories in Greenville the same year.

NAMED PRESIDENT

William C. Battle, president and chief executive officer of Fieldcrest Mills Inc., announced that Francis X. Larkin has been named president of the Karastan and Laurelcrest carpet marketing divisions of Fieldcrest, effective April 1.

Larkin succeeds Walter B. Guinan, who has returned to retirement from the post of president of the carpet marketing division and a a senior vice president of Fieldcrest Mills.

Larkin, who has been with Fieldcrest since 1956, was appointed executive vice president of the carpet marketing division in June of 1974.

From 1703 to 1875 Connecticut had two state capitals and sessions of the legislature were held alternately at Hartford and New Haven, the home of Yale University.

We Are Not Offering Hype.

No elegant prose on party houses, tennis courts—sexy modern living. We aren't offering those (and that's why maintenance fees will stay remarkably low).

What we are offering is the pure mathematics of a fine investment. For $19,500.00 with very little down and low monthly payments you can own an attractive antique brick home in an unbeatable location. (Across the street from Eastern Elementary School and 4 Public Tennis Courts) With many features not usually associated with a sales price of $19,500.

Easter

A Time to Rejoice
In the New Beginnings
Everywhere Around Us

The earth grows greener, the days grow longer, the winds are whispering promises now... and the rains are washing away the last gray memories of Winter. It's the season of rebirth... in nature, in life, in the human spirit. Let's take the time... to pause and watch the whole world come alive... to be in touch with ourselves and others... and with the miracle of Easter.

Now upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came unto the sepulcher, bringing the spices which they had prepared, and certain others with them. And they found the stone rolled away from the sepulcher. And they entered in, and found not the body of the Lord Jesus. And it came to pass, as they were much perplexed about this, behold two men stood by them, in shining garments; and as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they said unto them, Why seek the living among the dead? He is not here, but is risen! —Matt. 24:1-6.

Christian Science Lecture Thursday

Everybody can learn to accept only "the true, the good of God," Martin N. Heafer, C.S.B., will tell an audience in Greenville Thursday.

"To find continuing good in our lives," he will explain, "we must be willing to live more spiritually, more close to God, as Spirit. This demands that we express the spiritual qualities of love and true spiritual joy, rather than aim for merely material comfort, ease and success."

A Christian Science lecturer and teacher from Houston, Tex., Heafer will speak in the church auditoirum, 400 Meade St., at the invitation of First Church of Christ, Scientists, Greenville at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Lucinda Wright, chairman of the board, will introduce Heafer. The lecture is open to the public without charge. Local arrangements for the event are being coordinated by Gary Fountain, lecture committee chairman.

A native of Dalls, he has a degree in mathematics from Southern Methodist University. He was an executive with a business machine company prior to devoting his full time to the public practice of Christian Science. He became a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship in 1964 and a teacher of Christian Science in 1967.

MARTIN N. HEAFER

Three Appointed As Examiners

Governor Jim Holshouser today reappointed two members and named one new member to the State Board of Refrigeration Examiners.

Dr. Ernie T. Chanlett of Chapel Hill and John C. Lumsden of Raleigh were reappointed. Dr. Chanlett is with the Department of Sciences and Engineering at the University of North Carolina, and Lumsden is with the Division of Health services of the Department of Human Resources. Dr. Chanlett's term expires January 1, 1982, and Chanlett will serve until January 1, 1980.

Francis Henry Worsley of Greenville was named to the Board for a term ending January 1, 1981. A Rocky Mount native, Worsley is vice president of the Commercial Division of Carolina Sales Corporation. He and his wife, Marie, have two sons.

Family Reunion Planned Today

The Laughinghouse-Sneed family reunion committee will meet today at 5 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Esther Laughinghouse, 1222 Davenport St.

Members of the immediate families are invited to attend.

Revival Series Begins Monday

Revival services will be held Monday through Friday of this week at Arlington Street Baptist Church, beginning each evening at 7:30 p.m. with the Rev. Frank R. Ellis, pastor, speaking.

Special music will be presented each night and a nursery will be provided.

Miss Betsy O'Neal Weds On Saturday Afternoon

Miss Betsy O'Neal became the bride of Troy Ray McLawhorn Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in the Faith Pentecostal Holiness Church.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. O'Neal of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood E. McLawhorn of Greenville.

The Rev. Haywood Price, pastor of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony. A program of organ music was presented prior to the ceremony by Mrs. William Lamm of Elm City, aunt of the bride. Jerome Howard, soloist, sang "When God Gave Me You" and "Wedding Prayer" as the benediction. He was accompanied by Mrs. Jerome Howard, organist.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore an empire gown in silk organza and Venise lace. The bodice was fashioned with a high lace neckline and long lace sleeves. The lace bib yoke front and back were accented with lace ruffles and pearls. The skirt was enhanced with a built-in train and lace flounce around the hem, flowing chapel-length.

She wore a three-tiered illusion veil bordered with lace edge and attached to a matching lace headpiece. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of frenched white carnations and a white orchid.

MRS. TROY RAY MCLAWHORN

Mrs. Suzie Hardy of Greenville was matron of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of mint green polyester empire style waist with front lace band, V-neckline and capelet lace trimmed flounce sleeves. She carried a bouquet of long-stemmed yellow roses.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Jerry Ray Spain, cousin of the bride, and Chuck Autry, both of Greenville. Robert O'Neal Jr., brother of the bride, was ring bearer. The rings were imbedded on a white satin pillow edged with lace. Miss Linda O'Neal, sister of the bride, presided at the bride's book.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and is employed at the Greenville Hemodialysis Center. The bridegroom is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School and is employed by his father.

Couple Exchanges Vows In High Noon Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Patricia Page Minges, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ray Donald Minges, and James Houston Tucker Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. James Houston Tucker, all of Greenville, took place at high noon Saturday in the First Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Richard Rhea Gammon, pastor of the church, and Rev. Wilbur Ivan Jackson, uncle of the bridegroom, performed the double ring ceremony. Prior to the ceremony, a nuptial recital was presented by Joseph Goodman, organist, and John McDaniels of Raleigh, who sang "Impossible Dream." Mrs. Richard Lee Tucker, sister-in-law of bridegroom, sang "One Hand, One Heart", and "The Wedding Prayer" as the benediction.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white satin peau with a cathedral length train. The high neckline and bodice were appliqued with imported Brussels lace and seed pearls. Matching lace and pearls were featured on the cuffs of the long-fitted sleeves and empire waistline, on the front panel of the skirt and flowed from the waist into the train.

She wore her family's cathdral length mantilla of illusion and lace from Brussels, which featured the raised rose petals. The bridal carried a tapered, formal cascade bouquet of white butterfly roses, cattleya orchids, and English ivy tied with bridal satin.

Miss Virginia Morrow Minges, sister of bride, of Washington, D.C., was maid of honor. She was dressed in a buttercup yellow gown, with long flowing skirt and halter top bodice accented with a bolero jacket and Venise lace trim. She carried a white basket filled with white dutch iris with yellow tips, yellow and white tulips, and baby's breath tied with buttercup yellow satin bow and long streamers.

Bridemaids were Mrs. Thomas Eugene Minges, sister-in-law of bride, Mrs. Malcolm Jackson, Miss Elizabeth Dare Kittrell, Mrs. Carolyn Tucker Evans, and Mrs. James McDonald Roberts, all of Greenville, Miss Mary Patricia Capehart of Washington, consin of bridegroom, Mrs. Richard Harold Barnes of Kinston, Miss Virginia Tucker Lyon, of St. George, S.C., Miss Mary Stuart Page of Corona del Mar, Calif., and Mrs. Pamela Pridgen Woodard of Wilson. Their dresses were identical to maid of honor but their garden baskets were filled with yellow dutch iris, white tulips, and baby's breath tied with buttercup yellow stain bows.

The honorary attendants were Mrs. Vance Spears Harrington Jr., Mrs. Peter McMillan, Miss Ann Powell Speight, all of Greenville, and Mrs. Madeline C. Ashburn of Jacksonville.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Thomas Eugene Minges and Donald Winston Minges, brothers of the bride from Greenville, Howard Jackson Tucker, of Greenville, and Richard Lee Tucker of Dunn, brothers of the bridegroom, Richard Harold Barnes of Kinston, Joseph Brinson Cox Jr. of Chapel Hill, Luther Steven Dale of Greensboro, John Owen Franklin and Linwood Allen Hahn of Greenville and James Thurman Hale of Raleigh.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents at the Greenville Golf and Country Club. Assisting in receiving and serving during the reception were aunts and uncles of the bride and the bridegroom. Pianist Timothy Mason of Chapel Hill provided music during the reception.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of J. H. Rose High School. The bride is a graduate of ECU and is a kindergarten teacher at Eastern Elementary School. She was presented at the 1967 Terpsichorean Debutante Ball, Raleigh. The bridegroom received his education at UNC-CH and is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He is assistant manager of Holiday Inn and also teaches at Pitt Technical Institute.

An after-rehearsal dinner was held Friday night at the Holiday Inn honoring the wedding party, aunts and uncles of bridal couple, and out-of-town guests. It was given by the bridegroom's parents, Dr. and Mrs. James Houston Tucker, Howard Jackson Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lee Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Charles Tucker, Miss Mae Suetta Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Ashborne Capehart, Mr. and Mrs. Clayborne Lee Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Guy Jackson, Rev. and Mrs. Wilbur Ivan Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. John Clark Noble, and Mr. and Mrs. Max Richard Whitesell.

Following the dinner, Mrs. Martha Minges Bass, Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Alvin Minges, Mr. and Mrs. John Franklin Minges and Mr. and Mrs. Maxel Eugene Minges entertained in the Blue Room of the Candlewick Inn for wedding party, relatives, and out-of-town guests.

Moms Should Urge Children To Be Kind

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.,

DEAR ABBY: I have just finished consoling my very heartbroken little eight-year-old son who came home from school today, very, very upset.

It seems that one of the boys in his class passed out written invitations to his birthday party next Saturday, and my son and three other children were not invited. (The other 41 children in the class were invited.)

My son told me that the children who had been invited taunted those who were not invited.

Abby, there was no question of money involved here—only lack of feelings. I wonder if that boy's mother has any idea of how cruel this was?

I've always insisted that my children invite the whole class when they have a large party, so that nobody is left out. Am I wrong?

WISCONSIN MOM

DEAR MOM: No, you're right. It's terribly humiliating for a youngster to be excluded from a party to which most of his classmates have been invited. At party-giving time, mothers should urge their children to be kind and generous, and allow no child to be hurt by such a cruel omission.

DEAR ABBY: "Made My Plans" insists that she wants to donate her body to medical science, and have the rest cremated. Her daughter, on learning this, said: "No way, Mother. I will not have you cut up and cremated!" And you, Dear Abby, agreed that the mother's wishes should be carried out—"as soon as she was."

I am in sympathy with the daughter. May I ask "Made My Plans" if she has considered the fact that her daughter is the one who has to continue living with the thought, abhorrent to many, that her mother's body was mutilated, then destroyed?

Someone very close to me has given up her wishes for cremation because she knows how strongly I feel about it. I think the mother is very selfish not to realize that her daughter may endure mental suffering if she (the mother) goes through with her plan.

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.

DEAR ST. P.: "Made My Plans" had made provisions to donate her eyes, kidneys (and any other usable parts of her body) to give sight and possibly life to another. The "mutilation" you imagine is no more extensive than some surgery which the living survive. It is because "Made My Plans" has a genuine concern for the living that she made the plans she did. Her daughter should understand and accept this.

You are entitled to your opinion, but I'm with "Made My Plans." (P.S. I've made mine, too.)

Mrs. Cain Is Sorority Speaker Tuesday

Mrs. Myra Cain gave a program on the League of Women Voters at the Alpha Delta Kappa meeting Tuesday.

The purpose stressed was to promote informed and active citizen participation in government. Membership in the League of Women Voters is open to all citizens of voting age, who believe in representative government. Mrs. Cain stressed the idea that each voter makes a difference.

Mrs. Dorothy Johnson reviewed fraternal education.

Four Greensboro chapters of Alpha Delta Kappa invited all Alpha Iota members to a breakfast Friday, April 11, at 7:30 a.m. at the Holiday Inn-Four Seasons. Mrs. Mickie West will represent the sorority.

Mrs. Elizabeth Savage informed members of the state convention at the Great Smokies Hilton, Ashville, April 25-27. All members were urged to make plans to attend.

The althruistic project was discussed by Mrs. Evelyn Blue. The club voted to make a contribution to the Community Ambassador Fund.

President Norma Gray expressed the idea for publicity from State Publicity Chairman, Mrs. Connie W. Cathy. A collage of newspaper clippings will be made for the state convention in April in Ashville. Mrs. Cathy wants all clippings mailed to her immediately.

Mrs. Ramona Tucker discussed the scholarship fund. Alpha Iota annually grants a scholarship to a deserving student.

Chairman Evelyn Blue and Mrs. Virgie Easterling announced a trash and treasure sale in May.

Mrs. Lillah Smith, Mrs. Savage and Mrs. Rachel Crawford will sponsor a used book sale in May.

President Norma Gray presided.

WOTM Enroll New Members

The new members were enrolled at the March business meeting of Greenville Chapter No. 1308, Women of the Moose, held Thursday night at the Moose Temple.

Mrs. Peggy Jamieson, senior regent, presided.

Miss Manning Speaks Vows Friday Evening

SHELMERDINE—In a double ring ceremony Friday at 7:00 p.m., Miss Deborah Manning became the bride of Jesse Harold Peaden in the Shelmerdine Baptist Church.

The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Travis Smith. A program of wedding music was presented by Judy McLawhorn of Ayden, organist, and Jimmy Page of Greenville sang "O Promise Me" and the "Wedding Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. H.J. Manning of Rt. 2, Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Peaden of Rt. 6, Greenville.

The chancel of the church was centered with a fifteen branched candelabra. Tree candelabra filled with gladioli and chrysanthemums were placed on each side with standards of jade greenery. Honor pews were marked with white satin bows. The couple knelt for the benediction on a white prie-dieu.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length white organza gown over white taffeta designed with a high neckline of organza overlaid with re-embroidered scalloped lace. The long fitted sleeves of re-embroidered lace were edged in white Venise lace. The princess line gown featured a bodice of re-embroidered lace which extended to the hemline. A panel of lace was outlined in Venise lace and centered with matching lace threaded with white satin ribbon and beaded with pearls. The hemline and sweep train were edged in Venise lace.

She wore a chapel length mantilla edged in re-embroidered lace attached to a profile cap of matching lace. She carried a bouquet of white miniature carnations, ivy and baby's breath centered with a white cattleya orchid.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Pat Manning of Wilmington, sister-in-law of the bride. She was dressed in a formal gown of mint whip cream fashioned with long fitted sleeves, empire waist and princess style.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Linda Hardee, sister of the bridegroom, Karen Mills and Terry Porter, all of Greenville. They wore long formal gowns of yellow whip cream designed like that of the matron of honor. They carried colonial nosegays of sweetheart daisies and baby's breath and wore matching headbands of flowers in their hair.

The flower girl was Sherry Burroughs of Rocky Mount, niece of the bride. She was dressed in a formal gown of mint green whip cream and carried a basket of miniature nosegays of sweetheart daisies and wore flowers in her hair.

The ring bearer was Timmy Peaden, brother of the bridegroom. He carried a white satin pillow.

Larry Peaden of Greenville was best man. Ushers were Dan Peaden and David Moore, both of Greenville, and Joe Manning of Wilmington, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride selected a dress of baby blue polyester crepe and wore a white cattleya orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore a dress of hot pink chiffon and wore a white cymbidium orchid corsage.

After a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina and Gatlinburg, Tenn., the couple will reside at Rt. 2, Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and is attending Beaufort Technical Institute, Washington. The bridegroom is a graduate of North Pitt High School and is employed at Mannings Produce Farm.

SUGAR EASTER EGGS . . . have been decorated with spring flowers and jelly beans.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

"You are only limited by your own imagination," says Mrs. Eddie Willis of Greenville, "in decorating sugar Easter eggs."

Mrs. Willis has been preparing the eggs for about five years and uses them for special family rememberances or as a decorating centerpiece.

Using plastic Easter eggs in various sizes as a mold, Mrs. Willis fills the inside of each half with a mixture of unbeaten egg whites and granulated sugar. The eggs are then turned over on to wax paper, placed on a table top, to release the egg from the mold.

She allows them to dry for approximately two hours and then "very carefully" picks them up and scoops out the damp sugar until the dry shell is reached. The moist sugar, which is reusable, is stored in an air-tight container in the refrigerator.

The sugar eggs are then allowed to dry thoroughly. Mrs. Willis fills them with paper-covered candies or other special treats before they are sealed.

The other egg half is glued in place with royal icing, which is egg whites mixed with powdered sugar mixed to the consistancy of being spreadable or the texture used for decorating cakes.

Mrs. Willis uses the royal icing when decorating the outside of the eggs. Regular food coloring can be used in the icing to obtain pastel shades and concentrated coloring can be used to obtain vivid shades.

"For a glaze effect, add a teaspoon of cream of tartar to the powdered sugar as you add it to your egg whites," said Mrs. Willis.

The royal icing is rock-like in hardness when dried, therefore making the eggs easier to handle, she pointed out.

Mrs. Willis also advised that a metal cake decorating kit could be used for decorating the outsides of the eggs. "You don't need expensive equipment," she continued.

Artificial flowers in spring colors and jelly beans were used by Mrs. Willis on the outside of the eggs. She also created several clowns and bunny children.

Older Woman Worker Isn't 'Endangered'

CHICAGO (AP) — Older is better.

"And particularly so in the case of many of the 14,481,000 American working women 40 years of age or older."

So declares the financial services arm of Esmark Inc. here in a study of the work history of women.

In 1974, a shade under 45 per cent of all working women in the United States were over 40, "proving that older women are not an endangered species," the study says.

Almost 27 per cent of those involved in the study — more than 1,400 working women over 40 — have worked for the same employer at least three years. Twenty per cent had worked for the same boss three to five years and 9 per cent for 20 years or more.

"The unemployment rate for working women 40 or over during 1974 was just slightly more than half of the rate for all out-of-work women this past year," the study says.

"Employers today are more aware of the value of older women; dependability and serious attitudes are as sought after as experience." Older women have more time to devote to their work, are more conscientious and settled. Many have grown children, therefore, fewer distractions.

Some 47.1 per cent of the women surveyed are married, 24.4 per cent single, 17.5 per cent divorced, 11 per cent widows. Slightly more than 41 per cent have children.

Eleven per cent hold college degrees. Median income for a woman over 40 with some college study was $8,700 in 1974: those with elementary school education earned a median of $4,500, the survey points out. Only 2 per cent of the women earned $15,000 or more.

Clark-White Vows Solemnized

The marriage of Miss Janice Roberson White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Jordan White Jr. of Greenville, and Charles Colie Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Green Clark of Weldon, took place at two-thirty on Friday afternoon in Saint James United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Roderick Randolph, pastor of the church, performed the double ring ceremony. Joseph H. Goodwin, organist, presented a program of nuptial music. Steve Rogers, soloist and guitarist, sang "The Wedding Song," "Wherever You Go," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a sleeveless princess style gown of candlelight peau de soie and English net. The modified square neck was outlined with soutache braid and clusters of seed pearls with crystal trim, which also banded panels of the gown. The full gathered back fell into a short chapel train.

Her full length eandlelight veil of French illusion tulle was bordered with a deep band of reembroidered alencon lace, which was attached to a cap of alencon. She carried a bouquet of pink and white roses laced with stephanotis and baby's breath.

Miss Julie Barnes White, twin sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of pink quiana, desighed with an open squared neckline, long fitted sleeves, and a flared skirt. She wore a pink braid garden hat with matching streamers and carried a nosegay of mixed spring flowers.

Bridesmaids included Nancy Lou White, sister of the bride, Josie White Rawl, cousin of the bride, Donna Kay Barnhill, Carolyn Ann Massey, Polly Fornes, and Donna Grady White, all of Greenville. Their gowns and flowers were identical to those of the honor attendant.

Flower girls were Miss Hannah Hodges Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Maxwell Hill, and Miss Hope Hodges Barwick, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Franklin Barwick, both of Greenville. They wore short pink dresses with white organza pinafores and carried loose spring daisies.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Edwin Green Clark Jr. of Atlanta, Ga., brother of the bridegroom, Robert Caudle of Fayetteville, Julian Jordan White II, brother of the bride, Ricky Lloyd, Ernest Harvey Holt Jr. and Ray Howard, all of Greenville.

For a wedding trip to Hilton Head, S.C., the bride wore a green and white pants outfit. The couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride will receive her degree in Mental Health Technology from Pitt Technical Institute in May. She made her debut in Raleigh in 1973. The bridegroom will continue his education at East Carolina University.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride and bridegroom were honored at a reception at the church by the bride's parents.

Assisting in receiving and serving were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Rawl Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John F. Minges, Mrs. William B. Glenn, Mrs. Sydney Worth Dunn Jr., Mrs. Roy Honeycutt Jr., Mrs. James Harvey Ward Jr., Mrs. Louis E. Clark, Mrs. Clifton H. Edwards Jr., and Mrs. George W. Knight.

Following the rehearsal Thursday night, the Clark-White wedding party and guests were honored by the bridegroom's parents at a champagne dinner at the Ramada Inn. On Friday morning, a wedding breakfast was given by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Rawl Jr., aunt and uncle of the bride, and Mrs. Clara Roberson of Bethel, grandmother of the bride. The breakfast was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rawl.

Couple Weds On Saturday

WILMINGTON—The First Baptist Church here was the setting for the wedding of Miss Sarah Jane Noffsinger to Joseph Shelton Roberson Saturday at 4:00 p.m. The wedding ceremony was officiated by Rev. Randolph Lynn Gregory with M. Arnold Briggs Jr. at the organ.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Godwin Noffsinger Jr. of Wilmington. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hoke Smith Roberson Sr. of Windsor.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Cape Fear Country Club with Mr. and Mrs. Noffsinger as hosts.

The bride wore an original dress designed by Bianchi in ivory maracaine jersey. The gown was fashioned with princess lines with a full cathedral train attached. The scroll embroidery on the bodice, high neckline and long sleeves was accentuated with pearls and gold beading.

Her headdress was a full cathedral length English illusion veil bordered with alencon lace attached to a matching alencon lace bridal capulet. She carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath.

Her bridesmaids wore floor length dresses of dusty rose jersey trimmed in ivory lace and fashioned with an empire waist and princess style skirt and carried a single long-stemmed rose with a cluster of garnet roses and baby's breath in their hair. The honorary attendants carried long-stemmed chrysanthemums.

Mrs. A Thomas Spencer Jr. of Greensboro, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Deborah Roberson, sister of the bridegroom, of Windsor, Miss Annette Perritt of Wilmington, Miss Mary Hazel Monk of Goldsboro, Miss Stephanie Scarborough of Hamlet, and Mrs. Robert Edwin Ringer of Raleigh.

The ring bearer was Hoke Smith Roberson III of Edenton, nephew of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom chose his father as best man and the groomsmen were Hoke S. Roberson Jr. of Edenton, brother of the bridegroom, A. Thomas Spencer Jr. of Greensboro, brother-in-law of the bride, Robert Christopher, of Aurora, William T. Willis Jr. of Franklin, Va., and David Lloyd Humphrey of Tarboro.

Honorary bridesmaids included Miss Helen Skelton of Wrightsville Beach, Miss Nancy Johnson, Miss Lucy Lennon and Miss Susan Shaw, all of Wilmington.

The bride graduated in February from East Carolina University, Greenville, with a B.S. degree in intermediate education. The bridegroom attended East Carolina University and is now general manager of R. & W. Chevrolet, Windsor, and vice president of Hoke Motor Co., Edenton.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Charles M. Hicks of Wilmington.

The bride-elect was entertained at a bridessmaids luncheon in Wilmington Friday at the home of Mrs. Warren B. Walker. Mrs. Leon L. Brogden was assisting hostess.

The parents of the bridegroom honored the couple at a rehearsal dinner party at the Cape Fear Country Club Friday.

Couple Speaks Vows

RICHMOND, Va.—Mrs. James Matthew Slay of Richmond, Va., and Harold Gray Sugg of Roanoke, Va., were married Saturday at the home of the bride. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Brown, pastor of Ginter Park Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Stephen Glen Finkner of Chatham was matron of honor. Hal G. Sugg Jr. of Blacksburg was best man.

She attended Greensboro College and was graduated from Duke University. She was the widow of James M. Slay, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank, Richmond, and a former resident of Greenville.

Sugg is a native of Greenville and son of B. B. Sugg Sr. and the late Mrs. Lillian Sugg. He was graduated from Davidson College and was associated with the newspapers in Norfolk for many years. He was married to the late Mary Jane Nesbitt.

Cooking Is Fun

DINNER FOR TWO
Chicken Fricassee
Mashed Potatoes Broccoli
Fresh Fruit Cheese

CHICKEN FRICASSEE

Chicken parts are used.
1 or 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 broiler-fryer chicken thighs and 2 drumsticks
Medium onion, peeled and cut into thin strips
Clove garlic, minced
8-ounce can tomato sauce
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1-16th teaspoon ground allspice
½ teaspoon brown gravy coloring and seasoning sauce
Pinch of sugar

In a 10-inch skillet over medium heat, heat the butter; add chicken and brown. Add onion and garlic and cook, stirring a few times, for about 5 minutes. Mix together the remaining ingredients and add. Bring to a boil; cover tightly and simmer until chicken is tender — 20 to 30 minutes. Makes 2 servings.

This Year's Easter Bonnet Has No Frills

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The millinery industry is happily singing new lyrics to an old tune, Irving Berlin's classic about the Easter bonnet with the frills upon it.

The hatmakers have changed the words to springtime bonnet, not one for Easter showing-off alone. The frills are gone. And the milliners report a buying boom at a time when other ready-to-wear is in a slump.

"The flowery, overly decorated Easter hat per se is passe," says Burt Champion, spokesman for the Millinery Institute of America, the trade and promotion group for the U.S. industry.

"What's new and being ordered for right now and on into summer is the unadorned hat," he said. "Usually it has a big brim. The straw hat has put us in orbit."

There are straw panamas, straw rollers (brim off the face), straw snap-brims, straw garden-party types with their 10 and 12 inch brims floppy and often face-concealing.

About the only decoration shows in printed or painted-on bands or in "see through" perforations forming patterns in crown and-or brim.

Just occasionally a brimless number creeps in, most often for evening, as in jeweled helmets in crochet or white satin turbans.

The straws mark the big news, but the shopper will find some felts, always in parfait colors, the industry's term for palest pastel blues, apricots, beiges and pinks.

"This industry is enormously healthy," said Champion. "It's ridden out the sad 1960s when milliners would have a couple of months lay off of workers in spring." Those were the days women discarded hats; the bareheaded look was it.

Champion cited recent years' sales figures, based on unit sales from the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers Union. They represent U.S. production and do not include imports.

Some 14 million women's hats were sold in 1972, 16 per cent over 1971, the year the hat revival began. Average wholesale price, he said, was $6 (about $12 retail).

In 1973, units totaled 20 million, still in the same price range. Last year, 28 million were sold and the wholesale average rose to $8.50.

And 1975 looks great, said Champion. He gave several reasons.

"People in an economy crunch won't buy a whole new wardrobe," he said. "But they'll use their basics and add new accessories. So, the hat.

"What I call uniformity helps. The basic untrimmed silhouette framing the face and the overwhelming popularity of straws means the shopper has no big decisions to make. She doesn't have to worry about a certain hat just for a certain costume.

"The industry can get a bigger supply of bodies, at lower price. We are getting more from Ecuador (long a supplier of straws) and now Red China.

Former Mrs. Rockefeller Writes About Experience

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Selfishness — thinking of yourself and not of the person you're married to — is one big cause of divorce, says Anne-Marie Rasmussen, who describes her own divorce as "this horrible experience that I thought was going to ruin me for life."

The first wrong step in their case, she says, was that "We expected to be happy. If we had figured it out when we both were not happy, we might have dealt with it then. When you're young, you're afraid to discuss it." So the unhappiness grew in both, separately.

Miss Rasmussen now uses her maiden name. Her married name was Rockefeller and she is the girl, much written about at the time of her engagement and marriage, who came to the United States from Norway at 18, in 1956, got a job on the household staff in the Nelson Rockefeller home and married a son of the Rockefellers, Steven, in 1959. They were divorced in 1970.

She will be happy if anyone thinking about divorce or recently divorced is helped by a book she has written, "There Was Once a Time," Miss Rasmussen says. But she didn't write it primarily to be helpful, and certainly not out of anger or bitterness, she says.

"I decided to write it in November 1971, after I was married a second time and I realized the second marriage would not work out. What I tried to do then was look back to see what went wrong in the first marriage and perhaps by doing so, I would understand why the second marriage wasn't working.

"I was rather distressed and I thought this would be one good thing to do and not to continue with a psychiatrist. It would be a challenge and keep my mind occupied." She wrote most of it in longhand — it was all more work than she expected — and a friend helped organize it into chapters.

She told Steven Rockefeller that she intended to write the book. "He did not approve. But I've given up on asking for approval. I handled the story in a kind manner. I'm not ashamed of having done it.

"Steven's mother wasn't approving it either. I really don't blame her. She is from the school that says the less publicity the better. I respect that. We have enough things in common that we respect each other."

Rockefeller has not remarried since their divorce and now that her second brief marriage is ended, Miss Rasmussen doesn't intend to remarry either. "The last thing in my mind is to marry again. I said 'never' the first time, so I'm not about to say that again. But marriage is not on my agenda. I'm not out looking for a husband."

Miss Rasmussen lives on five acres in New York state with her three children, Steven Jr., 14, Ingrid, 11, and Jennifer, 10. "One thing that was not a problem and it still isn't. He is an excellent father. The children have pictures of both of us in their rooms. He calls regularly and is welcome in our home anytime. He comes off and on and they visit him, but he lives so far away he can't just drop by."

The decision to divorce was her former husband's, Miss Rasmussen says. "Before I remarried I begged him if we could try again. Even if we didn't get married, could we bring up the children together and I would not consider a second marriage. He said there was no way we were going to get back together and I should go ahead with my life. He said he had experienced a lot of pain and unhappiness, too, and we couldn't continue.

"I wouldn't have been able to look at my children and leave their father. Even if we were unhappy, I thought it was better I'm unhappy and have the children with their father than break everything up. When I saw the children and Steven together, my heart was very soft, no matter how unhappy I was.

"I've had more contentment since the divorce than ever before in my life. Maybe he did me a favor, but I still can't accept it. I still care deeply for him. You don't love someone because he's so marvelous to you and you're so happy. I have even missed our problems. My one big fear would be to fall in love again like I was with Steven."

One reader of "There Was Once a Time" thought that Miss Rasmussen was harder on herself than on her former husband, for example, as she relates her anger at his seeing a psychiatrist.

"I think it's better to say negative things about yourself. I'm writing the story; the other person is really defenseless.

"And I wasn't good. My intentions were good, but I was impulsive and impatient. I felt hopeless, lonely and depressed."

Then this attractive woman, who looks strong and confident, says, "I always felt like I was going to be a loser. It stems from childhood. I felt like a loser then and I continued to feel like a loser during the marriage. The feeling didn't stop because I got married and I was in love."

Her reaction to her former husband's seeing a psychiatrist, she says, "I realize now was wrong, very wrong. Then, I was against anyone at all that would take him away from me. I was possessive of him and this was a threat. I thought it was all right if I go to a psychiatrist, but if a man is going to go for help, this I couldn't cope with. I felt like everything was caving in.

"There's no excuse for my behavior at his decision to seek help for himself. Now I probably would say, 'Good for you.'

"Afterwards, everyone is wise. It's too bad."

The Rockefeller family never interfered between them, Miss Rasmussen says. "And I never thought about Steven as a Rockefeller. If you're married to someone, you're thinking he is your husband.

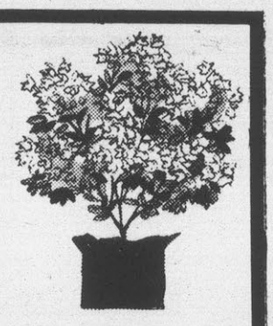

"What he was and what I was is partly due to the past upbringing of childhood. He happened to be born a Rockefeller and I happened to be born a Rasmussen. Without wanting to look at it, that had a big say in it. We really are what our parents bring us up to be. We can alter it later but that is not easy."

("There Was Once A Time" is published by Harcourt Brace.)

"Italian Straw Hat" Opens April 2 At ECU

Laughter will be the keynote in McGinnis Auditorium on Wednesday night, April 2, 1975 when the East Carolina Playhouse opens its fourth production, Eugene Labiche's frolicking comedy, The Italian Straw Hat.

The story, set in 19th century France, revolves around a straw hat that is accidentally eaten by a horse. The hat's owner, Annette, played by Debbie Russo, becomes very upset with the disappearance of her hat and confronts the horse's owner, Ferdinand, played by Rodney Freeze with her dilemma.

She tells him that she must have her hat before she returns home because if she does not, her father will know that she has been in the park with her secret lover. Ferdinand must find her a new one.

Ferdinand's only problem is that the hat is made of very fine Italian straw and one would not be easily found. To compound the problem, he is to be married later that very day to a young woman named Helen, played by Jo Brown.

Chaos and misunderstanding erupts when Ferdinand tries to juggle a wedding party consisting of an irate father-in-law, wedding guests, and a persistant Annette. Fast paced action, outrageous slapstick, and a hilarious chase are combined to promise a fun-filled night for the entire family.

The Italian Straw Hat is directed by Donald Biehn, with setting and lighting designed by Robert T. Williams, Costumes are by Carol H. Beule.

Curtain time will be 8:15 p.m. The show will run from Wednesday, April 2, through Saturday, April 5, with a matinee on Thursday, April 3 at 2:15 p.m. Tickets can be purchased from the box office in McGinnis Auditorium or by calling 758-6390. Tickets are priced at $2.00 each.

Big Circus Coming Here On April 10

For the third time this spring, a circus is coming to town. This time it will be the Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers Circus, billed as the world's largest under canvas show.

Sponsored by the Greenville Jaycettes, the Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers Circus will appear in two performances, at 4:30 and again at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 10, at the Pitt County Fairgrounds.

Proceeds from the one day appearance will be used for civic and charitable activities supported by the Jaycettes. An advanced sale of tickets is now being conducted throughout the Greenville area by members of the Jaycettes.

Among the many arena stars to be seen with this year's edition of the show will be David Hoover, presenting the world-famous mixed group of Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers lions and tigers in the steel arena; the Flying Astros, somersaulting aerialists; Elba and Rita, feats high in the air; the Aerial Glorions, on the high trapeze; Ron and Mitzie, iron-jaw juggling; the Las Verdus Troupe of rolling-globe artists from Germany; the Ferreiras, high atop a balancing pole; the Drougett Troupe, juggling wizards; Kenny Dodd and his small army of clowns and Fred Logan with his three herds of performing elephants plus the antics of three performing baby elephants.

Doors to the circus tent will open one hour prior to each performance.

IRON-JAW JUGGLING ACT . . . Ron and Mitzie do juggling the hard way, with Ron hanging by his teeth while supporting Mitzie with his feet and juggling lighted sticks.

'My Fair Lady" On Board At Rose High

It has been less than a decade ago that theater goers left the opening night of a new Broadway musical humming bright new tunes that soon became and remain public favorites.

The time was 1956 and the event was the introduction to America and the world of My Fair Lady, with music by Frederick Loewe and books and lyrics by Alan Jay Lerne. The original cast starred Julie Andrews and Rex Harrison.

Now, Greenville area people have an opportunity to see a new production of this tuneful and entertaining play when Rose High School students open the curtain on a three day run beginning Thursday and continuing through Saturday. Curtain time for each performance is 8 p.m.

Adopted from Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion, the plot has to do with the efforts of Professor Henry Higgins to transform a wayward flower girl, Eliza Doolittle, into a young lady with all the social attributes of the upper classes. Naturally, considerable complications ensue, not the least of which are comic scenes that involve the proper use of the English language. And of course romance eventually gets the upper hand of the better judgement of the bachelor professor.

Among a good supply of memorable tunes are hits such as The Rain In Spain, On The Street Where You Live, Wouldn't It Be Loverly, I Could Have Danced All Night and With A Little Bit of Luck.

Gail Porter has the role of Mrs. Eynsford-Hill; John Miller is Freddy Enysford-Hill; LuAnn Snowden is Mrs. Pearce and Kim McKinney is cast as Mrs. Higgins.

Claude West is directing the show, with Steve Koch in charge of musical direction and conducting the orchestra. Christina Williams in choreographer, orchestration was prepared by Holladay Worth, and Vicki is stage manager. Debbie Lambeth is piano accompanist.

Advance tickets are now on sale at $1.50 each and are available at Rose High or from any cast member. Tickets will also be available at the door prior to performance at $2.00 each.

Artist Bob Pittman Exhibits In Bank

"I really want to be a regional artist," Robert (Bob) Pittman said in speaking about his new show of paintings now on view in the First Federal Bank on Evans Street.

"I love to paint eastern North Carolina scenes, especially rural things. I am," he added with a smile, "trying to stay away from old tobacco barns, so many people, including myself, have been painting them."

Bob, one of the area's more active Sunday painters, suffers from the restriction of most Sunday painters—not enough time to devote to his avocation. As a vice-president and associate engineer with the firm of Rivers and Associates he keeps pretty active. "At least I'm fortunate in that my work takes me out into the countryside of eastern North Carolina rather frequently," Bob said. "Sometimes I'll see some particularly appealing place and can go back on a weekend or day off to paint it."

Despite the limitations of time, Bob nevertheless manages to keep new works coming along. In his current show are a number of acrylics and watercolors painted in 1974.

This new group includes what is undoubtedly Bob's best work to date. Within the past couple of years his paintings have become much freer, both in conception and in technique. Skies, which in the past seemed to give him problems, are in the new paintings airy and light filled.

Bob still turns to boats, to docks and water scenes for subject matter, but his new show indicates a moving away from these subjects as an almost exclusive concern.

This is a rewarding show, one that shows the fruition of the artist's apprenticeship as a dedicated Sunday painter. And it's one definitely helped by the almost home-like setting of the lobby and offices of the bank.

Edenton Pilgrimage Set For April

The Biennial Pilgrimage of Colonial Edenton and Countryside will be held this year on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 11, 12 and 13.

Block tickets will include all public buildings open the year round, churches, private gardens and seven private homes. Adult tickets will be $5.00 and $2.00 for students. Single tickets for each home ar $1.00 for adults and .50 cents for students.

Tour hours will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. In Friday and Saturday, and Sunday hours are 1 to 5 p.m..

Also on tour for visitors will be North Carolina's only licensed winery, Wine Cellars, Inc.

Private homes on the tour will include Wessington House, circa 1850, listed in National Register of Historic Places and described as the first villa of the Albemarle; Hayes Plantation, the home of Samuel Johnston, a National Historic Landmark; Beverly Hall, circa 1810, former state bank building; Greenfield, 1750, a double galleried house on the Albemarle Sound; The Homestead, 1718, owned by merchants and appears to have been used for business purposes from 1746 to 1777; Shelton Plantation, 1817, owned by Clement Hall, rector of St. Paul's Church from 1744 until his death in 1759, a house built by Baker Hoskins around 1817; the Gate House, home of Samuel Johnston for many years.

Public buildings include the James Iredell House, 1759, home of the first associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court; the Cupola House, 1725, noted for its Jacobean architecture and Georgian interior, the Barker House, 1782, the home of Penelope Barker who, according to tradition, presided at the famed Edenton Tea Party in 1774.

Also on tour will be St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 1736, the second oldest church in the state; the Chowan Courthouse, 1767, considered the finest georgian Courthouse in the South; Yeopim Church, 1767, minutes of the church begin 1775, though the congregation dates farther back. The present building was built after the original church burned in 1850; and St. Ann's Catholic Church, founded in 1857 by three young Edenton ladies.

Edenton's homes (town and country) are noted for authenticity and fine state of preservation, some dating prior to the Revolution. It is preservation, rather than restoration, that makes the Edenton Pilgrimage one of the most outstanding of the home tours.

An Arts and Crafts Fair will be held at the National Guard Armory, Friday and Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. sponsored by the Chowan Arts Council, Local arts and crafts will be for sale.

The Carolina Reader's Theater Company from Chapel Hill will present The Enchanted Tree, by William H. Hardy on Saturday evening, at 8 p.m. at Holmes High School auditorium. Admission is $1.50.

There will be an art exhibit by Jerry Miller at the Shepard-Pruden Library Friday and Saturday featuring original prints of historical sights of North Carlina.

Also there will be a Re-enactment of the Edenton Tea Party on the Courthouse Green Friday and Saturday at 5 p.m.

Another Cone Gift For Weatherspoon

GREENSBORO — Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cone Sr. of Greensboro have given $10,000 to Weatherspoon Art Gallery of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

The gift was announced jointly by Hubert Humphrey, president of the Weatherspoon Gallery Association, and Herbert S. Falk Sr., chairman of the Association's special gifts committee.

In making the announcement Falk said, "This generous gift carries on the tradition of interest in the arts which has been evidenced through the years by the Cone family.

Weatherspoon curator James Tucker remarked that through the years Mr. and Mrs. Cone have been among the most faithful and enthusiastic supporters of the collection which is being built at the gallery.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By JOE STINES

For young adult patrons Sheppard Memorial now has the 1975 John Newbery Medal winner, M.C. Higgins The Great, which was written by Virginia Hamilton and published by Macmillan. Ms. Hamilton is the author of several fiction books and biographies for children, one of which, The Planet Of Junior Brown, was a Newbery Honor Book.

If you desire something out of the ordinary, you must read this compelling, weird and unique book. Mayo Cornelius Higgins sits on his gleaming, forty-foot pole, towering over his home on Sarah's Mountain. M.C. loves the rolling hills and shady valleys which stretch before him, but intuition and bad dreams warn him against a possible threat to his family. Behind him lie the wounds of strip mining, a spoil heap oozing downward, endangering his home.

It is from this forty-foot height, also, that he discovers two strangers who have entered the hills and are making their way toward Sarah's Mountain. One is the "dude," who M.C. imagines will make his mother a singing star and help them all to get away from the menacing spoil heap. The other is Lurhetta, a young wanderer, through whose example M.C. learns that both choice and action lie within his power.

If it's adventure you seek, travel with M.C. and Lurhetta as they explore a secret underwater tunnel. Or follow them into the land of the witchy people where snakes and man live as friendly companions. Visit Ben Killburn's family and discover the "eye of Gawd." Walk along side M.C. as past and present, daydream and reality meet in inevitable conflict. But most important, be a part of the dramatic climax when M.C. realizes that safety for himself and his family will never be found in fleeing the hills.

Virginia Hamilton has created a world that is unusual, haunting and truly amazing and peopled it with a group of unforgettable characters. M.C. Higgins, The Great is powerful and contemporary. Just reading it will give you a natural high.

Madeleine L'Engle, the 1963 John Newbery Award winner and author of such fantastic works as A Wrinkle In Time, A Circle Of Quiet, and A Wind In The Door has recently published a new adult book. It is entitled The Summer Of The Great-Grandmother and it involves an important part of Ms. L'Engle's own life.

A loving daughter has promised her mother that she will never put her in a nursing home. But after her ninetieth birthday, when she arrives in Connecticut to spend the summer with her daughter's family, it becomes quickly apparent that the once-gentle Southern lady will not be able to make the trip home. This is the situation Ms. L'Engle describes in this non-fiction book about the problems, crisis, frustrations, and guilt evolving from her mother's rapid slide into senility.

Although this book views death realistically and unsentimentally, it is, ultimately, a book about life. It is a somewhat unconventional memoir of a dearly loved parent, but it is much more; it is a book concerned with the aged and the dying. The Summer Of The Great-Grandmother is about people—human beings, young, old, loving, grieving, declining, growing, dying—and will speak powerfully to everyone who has, or has lost, an elderly parent.

Last but certainly not least Sheppard Memorial is happy to announce that "Nancy Drew" is back. Yes, after being absent from our shelves for a number of years, the Nancy Drew Mystery Stories written by Carolyn Keene are again available for the entertainment and adventure of our juvenile patrons.

Historic Hillsborough Tour Announced

The Seventh Bi-Annual House and Garden Tour of attractions in the historic town of Hillsborough has been announced. This year the tour will take place on Saturday and Sunday, April 19 and 20.

A total of 16 historic buildings are listed on the tour, a walking one. Five of the buildings are 18th century structures; the other 11 are 19th century buildings, dating from as early as 1830 to as late as 1881.

The seven structures of major interest to be visited are: The Nash-Hooper House 1772, The William Whitted House, 1786, Seven-Hearths, and Patterson-Palmer House, both before 1800, the Nash Law Office, 1768, and the Webb-Patterson House 1881.

Other places on the tour are: Old Town Cemetery, Old Court House and Orange County Museum, 1844, Dickerson Chapel, Baptist Church, Methodist Church, Presbyterian Church, the Masonic Lodge, Norwood Law Office and St. Matthew's Episcopal Church and Grave Yard.

Tickets for the walking tour are being sold only at the Old Court House, King and Churton Streets. Prices are $4.00 for adults and $2.00 for students (grade one through college with I.D. cards).

Two Operas Set For Charlotte

Two spring productions of opera are coming up as the Charlotte Opera Company schedules a double bill of Il Tabarro and Cavalleria Rusticana.

The operas will be performed on Friday, April 4 at 8:00 p.m. and again on Sunday, April 6 at 2:30 p.m. Both productions will be in Ovens Auditorium.

Il Tabarro, a one act dramatic opera by Puccinni, will be sung in English. Mascangi's Cavalleria Rusticana is to be sung in Italian.

Baritone Ryan Edwards and tenor Salvador Novoa will sing the roles of Michele and Luigi in Il Tabarro and the roles of Alfio and Turiddu in Cavalleria. Carol Bayard will sing the role of Georgetta in Il Tabarro and Fredda Rakusin will perform as Frugola in Il Tabarro and as Lucia in Cavalleria.

Others in the cast of the two one-act operas are Barbara Conrad, Grant Wollaber, Sidney Buckley, Steven Haas, Carey Kugler, Jane Griffin, and Elizabeth Kiser.

Tickets to Il Tabarro and Cavalleria Rusticana can be obtained either at the box office at Ovens Auditorium one hour before each performance, or by calling the Charlotte Opera office at 704-372-9664.

Pendered's Blackbeard Book Is Published

Dr. Norman C. Pendered of the East Carolina University faculty is the author of a newly-published biographical booklet, Blackbeard: The Fiercest Pirate of All.

The book is a brief account of the highlights of the bloody career of Edward Teach, known as Blackbeard the pirate, scourge of the Atlantic coast from Florida to Maryland during the heydey of pirating in the early 18th century. Teach was slain in a shipboard battle off Ocracoke, N.C., in November, 1718.

Pendered, professor and chairman of the department of Industrial and Technical Education, has spent several years studying Blackbeard and has drawn from sources obtained from such Blackbeard haunts as Ocracoke, Chocowinity, Bath, Beaufort, Charleston, the Virgin Islands and the Bahamas. Original sources include letters describing Blackbeard in Charleston harbor during his siege of that city in the summer of 1718, and Journals of the House of Burgesses of Virginia, 1712-1714.

The book was published by the Times Printing Co., Inc. Manteo.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Study principles and teachings that best suit your spiritual needs. Quietly help those about you to get along more easily in life. Evening is good for philosophic discussions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Pay heed to your hunches since they are most accurate at this time and can help you in your dealings with others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you get into those duties that will please an associate, you can make big headway now, even if you have to forget pleasure awhile.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Ideal day to help friends who are in trouble and for repaying social obligations. Show loyalty to good supporters.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A day to put your creativity to work and win the approval of higher-ups. Evening favors romance with mate. Be charming.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Stay home and help closest ties handle their problems. Some new venture needs more study before put in action. Pay attention to detail.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Out to places where you can find peace of mind, pleasure with good friends. Study written material that can help you progress faster.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Think prosperity so you can command more of this world's goods. Find varying interests that can add much to the coffers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A more direct approach solves problems. Out to the social and be with persons who are progressive. Get together with kin to resolve misunderstandings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into the philosophical studies that will help you guide your life better. More kind thoughts for mate will do wonders.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget the practical and think about improving your personal life. Plan to see good friends who can help you in future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Good day to get into philanthropic or public work that can stamp you as an excellent citizen. Schedule week's activities.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A higher-up can give you important pointers now on how to get your life operating more successfully and happily.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will brook no interference from anyone, whatever the aim, so be sure to have only the finest influences around or your youngster could use this stubborn quality for bad instead of good. The quality of leadership is here and a fine education is imperative, and one stressing the practical side of life. Religion early to set a pattern for right living. Sports are terrific here.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MAR. 31, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A fine day to advance along conventional lines of expression. Ayoid taking any chances or getting involved in projects where there is muddled thinking. You can handle obligations more efficiently.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your debits and credits well and do what is right about them. Be sure to keep any promises you've made to loved one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You and associate have opposing views regarding a new venture, so try to cooperate more. Tone down your stubborn manner.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle those duties before you with more enthusism than you've shown in the past. A new project needs further study.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you finish important work before you go out for the pleasure you desire. Show more devotion to mate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) First keep any promises made to kin and then get down to regular routines. Engage in civic work that you enjoy so well.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Contact those persons who can give you the data you need for an important project. Correspond with clarity and wisdom.

LIBRA (Sept 23 to Oct. 22) A brief journey may be necessary to settle an important matter. A financial expert can give you valuable information.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Discuss with money experts any financial problems you may have. Better budgeting of assets is important to you now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Analyze your true aims and methods, and find ways and means to gain them more intelligently and quickly. Be wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A good day for making plans, consulting with experts and making the future brighter for yourself. Relax at home tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Sidestep friends who have held you back in the past and makes new ones who can help you to advance. Show gratitude.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Others may ask too much of you now but you have to be firm and do only what is best for you. Don't neglect your bills.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who likes to find out what makes things work. You would be wise to give your progeny as much education as you can and provide a good religious background. There is ability at music here. Teach to be a good sport.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Grave Photo Is Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Families of the dead of World War I and World War II who are buried in U.S. military cemeteries overseas are eligible to receive a photograph of the grave, according to a reminder from Col. William E. Ryan Jr., director of Operations and Finances for the American Battle Monuments Commission.

The picture of the grave, mounted on a large color lithograph of the cemetery, is free and can be obtained by writing to the commission, Washington, D.C. 20314, Colonel Ryan said.

A similar service is available for families of the missing of World War I, World War II and Korea, all of whom are commemorated by name at either a U.S. military cemetery overseas or at one of the commission's three memorials in the United States. These are located at the Presidio of San Francisco, at the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific in Honolulu, and at Battery Park in New York City.

Short Work Week Liked

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The three-day work week is here for some insurance company employes and a sampling of opinion shows that most like the idea, despite having to work 13-hour days.

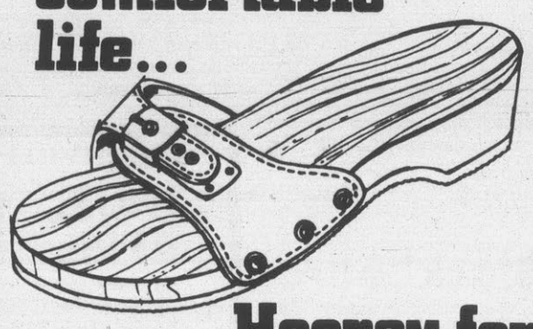

Howard Byrd, of Middletown, has found that working three 13-hour days and then having four days off gives him "more free time to spend with my family. We've rediscovered each other."

Byrd, a computer operator, works the night shift, 6 p.m. to 7 a.m.

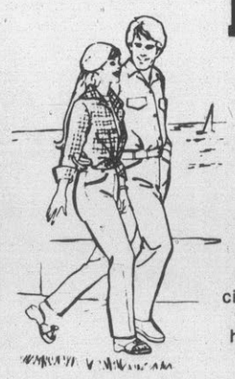

The schedule was initiated at Aetna Life & Casualty to keep the company's large computer operations humming. Company studies show that the 276 employes who are on the three-day week have efficiency ratings comparable to employes on traditional schedules and also have a lower than average absentee rate.

Peter Belanger, who lives in Wethersfield, is a section manager in the short week program. He thinks the night crew is more congenial because "these are the only people you see, and you have to get along."

Easter Basket Is Well-Filled

Television's Easter basket is fairly overflowing with goodies for viewers of all ages and stages of life.

There are brightly decorated eggs with 'Sunday' written on them . . . H. R. Haldeman is interviewed by Mike Wallace about the Nixon years on CBS at 6 o'clock. The network paid Haldeman $25,000 for exclusive interviewing rights covering his years with Nixon, plus the rights to portions of amateur movies that he filmed at the White House and during Prsidential trips. That evening there are two family dramas to choose from . . . "The Easter Story", a splendid 2 hour presentation on "The Waltons" beginning at 7:30 on CBS . . . and the magic land of Oz is revisited when NBC presents "The Wizard of Oz" starring Judy Garland from 6:30 to 8:30. Later, at 9:30, The American Parade Series prssents its sixth historical special when James Earl Jones narrates the story of Sojourner Truth, a liberated slave and abolitionist on CBS.

Monday's 'goodie' is a bunny rabbit dressed in, of all things, a basketball uniform, because the NCAA College Basketball Championship's final game in San Diego, California, will be seen on NBC-TV from 9 to 11 p.m.

The family will thrill to the 90-minute drama on CBS-TV, "The Runaways," starring Dorothy McGuire, Van Williams and John Randolph. This is a heart-warming adventure story about a boy and a leopard whose separate flights to freedom bring them together in a unique friendship. Miss McGuire makes one of her rare television appearances in the role of Angela Lakey, a brusque but heart-of-gold kennel owner who befriends the runaway boy on the special which will air from 8:30 to 10 p.m.

If Thursday's eggs have a cariacature faintly resembling Dick Van Dyke, don't be alarmed . . . that's the way they're supposed to look! This well-known comedian struts, swaggers, jumps and bumps his way through a light-hearted ook at the funny side of fear with guest star Michele Lee and his 20-year-old daughter, Stacy, who will be making her TV debut on the show. "The Confessions of Dick Van Dyke" is the famed actor's first televisions special and airs on ABC-TV from 8 to 9. When you've removed these 'goodies' from your Easter basket it won't be empty . . . not by a long shot . . . because there are many, many other programs to view this week; movies, such as "Flap," "Crime Club," "McCloud" and "Come Die With Me" are all movies of intrigue and spine-tingling mystery.

HAPPY EASTER! — Elizabeth Cheshire, who stars in NBC-TV's new series "Sunshine" (Thursday's, 8-8:30 p.m.) wishes everyone a happy Easter. Elizabeth will be eight years old this spring.

OVER THE RAINBOW — Judy Garland stars as Dorothy, the Kansas farm girl who makes an unexpected journey to the land of Oz, in "The Wizard of Oz," the screen classic to be colorcast as a two-hour special on NBC-TV Easter Sunday, March 30 (6:30-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

'Wizard Of Oz' Returns For Eighth Year Sunday

"The Wizard of Oz," the popular screen classic starring Judy Garland, will be colorcast as a two-hour special for the eighth consecutive year on NBC Easter Sunday, March 30, 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

The perennial film favorite was made when Miss Garland was 17 years old and is among the late star's most celebrated motion pictures.

Viewers will be impressed not only with the Wizard of the film's title, but with the wizardry utilized by Hollywood technicians in constructing the intricate sets for the 1939 MGM classic.

A city of great green bubbles which serve as houses, and fields with giant flowers which move like humans are among the ingenious scenes created by technicians.

Also tributes to the set designers' creativity are the almost-human trees which grasp at Miss Garland, Ray Bolger (the Scarecrow), Jack Haley (the Tin Woodman) and Bert Lahr (the Cowardly Lion). Constructed of rubber, each of 50 trees in the central group was governed by 12 separate wire controls operated by technicians off-stage.

One of the baffling mechanical problems was that of the 'flying monkeys', large enough to pick up actors and fly with them. Men in fantastically colored monkey suits portrayed the animals and with the aid of wires they flew easily through the air.

"The Wizard of Oz" tells the story of Dorothy, the farm girl who is lifted away by a tornado to the magical land of Oz where she has a series of fantastic adventures.

Among the characters she meets are a Scarecrow who wants a brain, a Tin Woodman who wants a heart, and a Cowardly Lion who wants courage.

Loretta Lynn On CBS 'Magazine'

A profile of singer Loretta Lynn, who has been called the Queen of Country Music; a report on the plight of Vladimir Buhkovsky, who was imprisoned in 1970 for having discussed Russian prison life on a CBS News broadcast; and a look at some cats and cat-lovers will be the subjects of "Magazine," the CBS News daytime series of informational topics of particular interest to women.

This last edition of "Magazine" for the season will be broadcast on Wednesday, April 2, 3:30 to 4:30 p.m., on CBS-TV. CBS News Correspondents Sylvia Chase and Hughes Rudd will be the co-anchors.

32-year-old Vladimir Buhkovsky has been in prison most of his life. His first arrest came at 19. He was declared insane and went to Leningrad Prison for 18 months. In 1965, he was arrested a second time and again in 1970. Earlier that same year, Buhkovsky appeared in a film for CBS News in which he told of the Soviet practice of committing political prisoners to mental institutions. It was shown in the U. S. as part of a CBS News Special Report.

In another segment, "Magazine" poses this Quiestion: What kind of woman marries at the age of 13, raises six children, becomes a grandmother at 29, and then amasses by herself a fortune as a singer?

To find the answer — and more — about Loretta Lynn, who has been singing her way to the bank since her first record in 1961, Sylvia Chase followed America's country music queen from Nashville, Tenn. to Macon, Ga.

Elena Lives On Ancestral Land

Elana Verdugo, who portrays Consuelo Lopez, nurse-receptionist on "Marcus Welby, M.D.," is a native of California who made good in her own back yard. She is a descendant of Jose Maria Verdugo, the first man to receive a California land grant from the King of Spain. The tract — some 36,000 acres — is in the San Fernando Valley, where Elano lives and the location of the studio where "Marcus Welby, MD" is filmed.

ENTERTAINMENT CENTER

Whether or not you are famous for your parties and gracious hospitality, you should have an entertainment center. It's worth your consideration. A cheerful, flexible, much-lived-in area will fit into many family needs. This is a very clever way to arrange for the many built-ins that provide the much needed storage space. Whatever your particular family and entertainment requirements, think about a special spot for get togethers.

That special spot for get togethers should be comfortable as well as practical. Be sure that it has complimentary wall to wall carpeting. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale." "Carpet is our Business, Not a Hobby."

Vinnette And Sojourner Are One And The Same

Vinnette Carroll dozes with her bright orange sneakers propped on her dressing-room table. They are covered by the folds of a long-coarse - material dress and clash with the red bandanna wrapped around her neck. She has been catching a few winks during her demanding taping schedule for "Sojourner," in which she repeats the role of Sojourner Truth she introduced to audiences in the television special "We the Women."

"Sojourner," the sixth special in The American Parade series of historical programs, will be seen Sunday, March 30, 9:30 to 10:30 p.m., on CBS-TV and Channel 9-11.

Miss Carroll removes the sneakers to step into character as Sojourner, and peers out from her antique spectacles.

"I'm exactly like her," she says, referring to Sojourner, the late nineteenth-century anti - slavery fighter and protester for the rights of women. "My voice is heavy and manly. I think I've captured her way of looking and of carrying herself. We both have an enormus capacity for work and a loving interest in young people. We both want to have an influence on young lives."

"I've known her all my life," Miss Carroll continues. "My mother was very interested in black history and wanted her children to share the interest. So, stories about Sojourner and other early fighters were constantly fed us.

"Sojourner was a strong woman. Her impact was in her enormus intelligence. She had fire in her belly and a sense that her mission was a God-given challenge.

"She felt dissatisfied, though, with her progress and the size of the problems that she fought. She always felt she might have been more powerful if she had been able to read and write, but her beliefs remained unshaken."

Sojourner's long efforts to influence her times find their echo in the work Miss Carroll is doing with minority groups at the Urban Arts Corps, where she contributes to the lives and careers of young aspiring actors.

"There comes a time when one becomes dissatisfied with the small amount of canvas that the actor can cover," she says. "You want to expand your efforts to include the young. You feel a desire to tune them into their potentials. You feel a need to help them learn to play on their gentler strings."

Miss Carroll stands, stretches, swings her arms and growls deeply from the back of her throat. It's an exercise she does for relaxation before facing the cameras. You don't for a minute doubt the power of her image as Sojourner — or as herself.

RESCUES CHILD — Vinnette Carrol, as Sojourner Truth, a liberated slave and active fighter for human rights, rescues her young son (Michael King) from slavery by using the laws of the land, in "Sojourner," the sixth historical special in THE AMERICAN PARADE series, on CBS-TV, Sunday, March 30 (9:30-10:30 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

McCloud Tangles With Lib

Women's liberation arrives at police headquarters just as three major cases—a bomber terrorizing the city, a kidnapping and a missing baby in need of immediate medical care—require special supervision in "Return to the Alamo," a "McCloud" drama to be color-cast on "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" March 30, 8:30 to 10:30 p.m., on Channel 6-7. Dennis Weaver stars as McCloud; Diana Muldaur, Teri Garr, Larry Storch, Jeanne Cooper and Charles Tyner guest-star.

When Chief Clifford (J.D. Cannon) becomes ill, he appoints Sgt. Joe Broadhurst (Terry Carter) Watch Commander and Sgt. Phyllis Norton (Garr) second in command. But desperate addict Marty Foreman (Robert Weaver, son of Dennis) kidnaps Broadhurst in hopes of springing his kid brother Hoyt (Mark Wheeler) from jail, leaving Norton, who had been relegated to clerical duties, in charge. She suddenly finds herself in a hot bed of police work: looking for a maniacal bomber; aiding Marshal McCloud's search for an infant needing immediate medical attention; and seeking Broadhurst.

Muldaur portrays newspaper reporter Chris Coughlin; Storch appears as a hoodlum named Parkes; Cooper is police clerk Gladys; and Tyner is dope pusher Lang. Motion picture director Don Siegel makes a cameo appearance as a police desk sergeant. Walter Doniger directed executive producer Glen A. Larson's script.

Medical Advisor Is 'Prototype' Gannon

A well-traveled young man, having visited England, Greece, Turkey, Switzerland, Belgium, France, Egypt and Syria, Chad Everett decided on an acting career after he was selected as one of 12 actors to tour India in repertory for the U. S. State Department.

Other than acting, he has worked as a salesman, truck driver, professional model and announcer.

In many segments of "Medical Center," Joe Gannon, M.D., places his career in jeopardy by standing up for and speaking out for his own convictions with such clarity and sincerity that one feels it's for 'real' . . . that this is exactly what Chad Everett himself would do . . . just as Walter Dishell, M. D. would do and has done time and again.

Dischell's and Everett's combined forces have been instrumental in the recent introduction of a bill before the California State Assembly that will ban employment discrimination against former cancer patients.

"Medical Center" producers Frank Glicksman and Al Ward first met Walter Dishell in 1969 when the doctor was chief resident of head and neck surgery at UCLA Medical Center. At the time the producers were researching the movie pilot which eventually gave birth to CBS" "Medical Center" series," seen each Monday evening from 10 to 11.

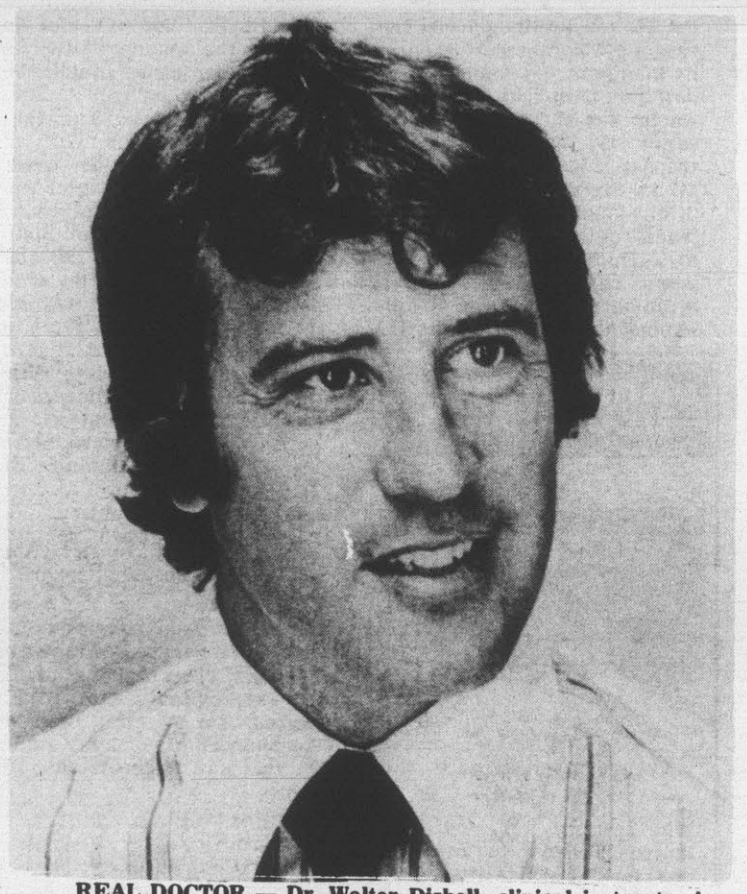

Dr. Dishell, a flamboyant, outspoken, involved surgeon, became their prototype for Dr. Joe Gannon, as well as the series' medical advisor since its inception.

A graduate of the University of Michigan Medical School, Dr. Dishell also serves as technical advisor for CBS' "M-A-S-H" series. He serves on the Board of Directors of the American Cancer Society and is a clinical instructor in head and neck surgery at UCLA Medical Center.

Involved in all medical facets of production for "Medical Center," Dr. Dishell has groomed Chad Everett in the mechanics of surgery and claims that the actor has the natural ability to be a competent surgeon.

Now Chad Everett adeptly plays the role of a 'flamboyant, outspoken surgeon' with considerable ease and with very little effort. Possibly because he and Dishell are so much alike. The two are close friends and, with their wives, are weekend advocates on the tennis court.

In real life, Everett could be classed as flamboyant: He's an accomplished horseman, painter poet, song writer, fencer, and lists clothes as his favorite extravagance. He keeps in shape by doing 100 pushups and 50 situps a day. This regime counteracts the effect of his passion for steak with mushrooms, Indian Shrimp curry and spaghetti.

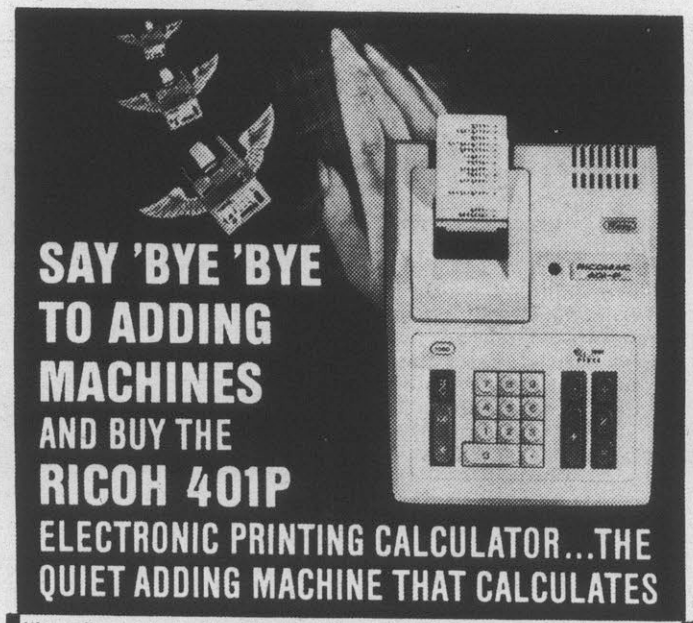

REAL DOCTOR — Dr. Walter Dishell, clinical instructor in head and neck surgery at UCLA Medical Center, serves as technical advisor on the popular CBS series, "Medical Center," (Mondays, 9-10 p.m.). Chad Everett's interpretation of the character, Dr. Joe Gannon, has been based in a great part on the flamboyant and outspoken real-life surgeon.

JFK Book To Be 'Adapted'

"Johnny, We Hardly Knew Ye," the acclaimed best-selling book offering an informative and intimate portrait of John F. Kennedy by two of his trusted aides, will be adapted for presentation as a drama special on the NBC Television Network.

The book was written by Kenneth P. O'Donnell and David F. Powers with Joe McCarthy. O'Donnell and Powers were associated with JFK for 17 eventful years — from the day the wounded World War II hero entered politics in Boston during 1946 to his assassination in Dallas in 1963.

Powers will be consultant for the special. O'Donnell once noted that, "President Kennedy had only one really close friend and that was Dave Powers."

Actress In Rare TV Role

Dorothy McGuire, Van Williams, John Randolph, Neva Patterson and Josh Albee star in "The Runaways," an adventure drama about a boy and a leopard whose separate flights to freedom bring them together in a unique friendship, to be presented as a special 90-minute all-family drama Tuesday, April 1, 8:30 to 10 p.m., on CBS-TV and Ch. 9-11.

Teen-ager Johnny Miles (Albee) runs away from his foster home after he is wrongly accused of theft. Meanwhile, Yarra, a young leopard, escapes from a wild-animal compound when a lightening storm destroys a fence. Friendless and threatened with capture, the two fugitives cross paths through a series of related events, and their mutual needs create a strong bond between them.

Miss McGuire makes one of her rare television appearances in the role of Angela Lakey, a brusque but heart-of-gold kennel owner who befriends the runaway boy. The distinguished actress, who has had starring roles in such films as "Claudia," "The Enchanted Cottage" and "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," was most recently seen in "She Waits" on "The CBS Friday Night Movie."

Van Williams, who has appared in a number of television series, including "The Green Hornet," "Bourbon Street Beat," "Surfside 6" and "Tycoon," plays Joe Ringer, a young man who becomes Johnny's pal and confidant.

Veteran performers Neva Patterson and John Randolph are seen as the Collingwoods, a couple whose ranch home becomes a secret hiding place for Pursued boy and his leopard confederate.

Yarra, the young leopard who also 'stars' in "The Runaways," is — in real life — appropriately named Spot. Born in a zoo, Spot was put up for sale while quite young because he attacked one of the zoo keepers. His purchasers were Ted and Pat Derby, a husband-and-wife team of wild animal handlers who supply movie and television companies with a variety of four-legged actors.

Affected by an ordinance prohibiting ownership of exotic pets by average householders, Spot came under the expert charge of the Derbys while the 'special' was being filmed.

DOROTHY McGUIRE portrays a brusque kennel owner in "The Runaways", a drama special depicting the unique relationship between a runaway boy and a runaway leopard to be broadcast Tuesday, April 1 (8:30-10 p.m.) on channels 3N-9-11.

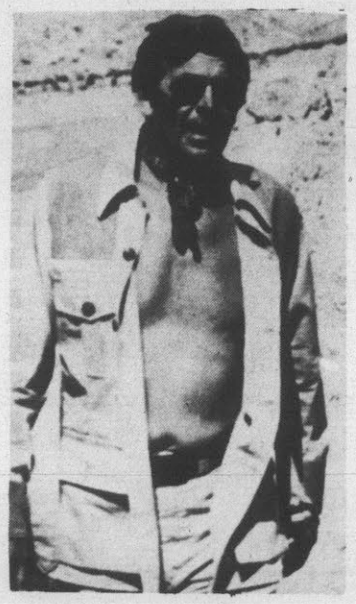

Crime Story For Late Hour

George Maharis stars as Walter Burr, a man who kills his older brother, a wealthy doctor, when he is refused a loan, and then is held in a love bondage by the housekeeper who knows of the crime, in "Come Die With Me," a "Wide World Mystery" on the ABC Television Network's "ABC Wide World of Entertainment," Tuesday, April 1, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., on Ch. 3-5-12.

After the murder of Frank Burr, Mary insists that Walter stay on with her and establishes an alibi for him that appears to be foolproof. Detective Jenkins, however, suspects the pair, but has no evidence of their involvement in the crime.

Walter finally risks Mary's displeasure by returning to his former girlfriend, Suzy, in New York, and then experiences a change of heart. While tracing his whereabouts, Mary goes beserk and brings matters to a shocking conclusion.

DEADLY HUNTER — Andy Griffith is a hunter whose desert prey is another man in "Savages" the ABC-TV's "Tuesday Movie of the Week", April 1 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

A VISIT HOME — Robert Culp (left) stars as a murderous hotel jewel thief who goes home to visit his brother (Glen Campbell) a small-town sheriff, in "Strange Homecoming" to be colorcast on "NBC World Premiere Movie" April 1 (8:30 - 10 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Literary Classics To Be Dramatized

Four novels of adventure, heroism, intrigue and romance which have become literary classic — "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Les Miserables," "The Adventures of the Scarlet Pimpernel" and "The Corsican Brothers" — will be dramatized in TV specials to be produced for future presentation on the NBC Television Network.

The dramas are to be produced in Europe, both in studios and on location.

"The Prisoner of Zenda," by Anthony Hope Hawkins, is a romantic novel with a plot encompassing high political adventure. It calls for an actor to play a dual role — the English hero, Rudolf Rassendyl, and his look-alike, the King of Ruritania. Rassendyl impersonates the King while the latter is held captive in the castel of Zenda. With great effort and at tremendous personal sacrifice, Rassendyl manages to secure the King's release from prison, giving up the crown and Princess Flavia, whom he loves.

Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" has as its central character Jean Valjean, a peasant jailed for stealing a loaf of bread to feed his sister's starving family. His escapes from jail, his attempts to lead an honest life and the constant stalking by the untiring Detective Javert form the fabric of the story.

"The Adventures of the Scarlet Pimpernel," one of the swashbuckling stories of the French Revolution by Baroness Orczy, follows the adventures of the gallant, resourceful and mysterious Pimpernel, posing as a foppish Englishman, who rescues members of the French nobility threatened with execution.

Actor's Name Is Mispelled

Abe Vigoda has had his name mispelled in newspaper columns several times since he's been starring as Detective Fish in "Barney Miller." His name has appeared as Abe Bigoda (cq) and Abe Tigoda.

Funny, they never made that mistake when I played the mob chief, Tessio, in 'The Godfather. I think I'll make an offer they can't refuse."

TELMA HOPKINS (left) and Joyce Vincent Wilson, Tony Orlando's talented singing partners—collectively known as Dawn—display another side of their talent when they portray Lou Effy and Moreen, roommates who disagree on just about everything, on "Tony Orlando and Dawn" Wednesdays (8-9 p.m.) on channels 3N-9-11.

Tony Orlando And Dawn In Familiar Summer 'Format'

Tony Orlando feels as though he has just won the playoffs and now is going into the World Series.

"We were a summer wonder — now we're in the big time," he says of the fact that his mini-series of last July, "Tony Orlando and Dawn," with its cheerful mixture of music and comedy, returns as a regular series on the CBS Television Network, Wednesdays from 8 to 9 p.m.

Orlando and his partners, Thelma Hopkins and Joyce Vincent Wilson (the top recording trio's "Dawn"), plan no startling changes from the format that won them an enthusiastic following in their television debut last summer.

The line-up of guest stars for the new regular series will include top performers of the entertainment world.

"We'll have a lot of good music and a lot of fun," Orlando says. "Thelma and Joyce will be back as Lou Effy and Moreen, the characters they've been doing for years on their own. And we've got some wild takeoffs on glitter rock and calypso."

After the summer series ended, the group went on a tour of state fairs and learned that one of the things people liked most about the show was its feeling of spontaneity. A highlight was Orlando's going into the audience to chat with people and persuade them to sing along with him.

"I'll keep doing that," he says. "I can't explain why it works, but I feel an immediate rapport when I talk to people, and the audience must feel it, too."

"I always thought it was unfair when stars would rush to their cars and ignore the line at the box office. Maybe my concert spot is kind of making up for that. I just know I enjoy coming down off the stage and hanging out with the people."

ON REGULAR BASIS

"WEEKEND, NBC News' widely acclaimed 90-minute magazine program, will be colorcast on the network on the first Saturday of each month during the 1975-76 season, starting in October, is has been announced by Richard Wald, President of NBC News.

Peter Graves 'On The Run'

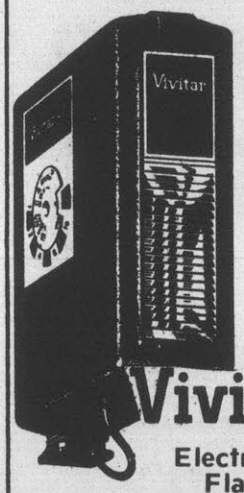

Investigation into the murder of a special agent uncovers a plot to cover up a political assassination in "Dead Man On The Run" the ABC Television Network's "Wednesday Movie of the Week," April 2, 8:30 - 10 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

Peter Graves stars as agent Jim Gideon, sent to New Orleans to head a special Federal Investigative Unit when its former head, Alan Stockton, is murdered.

Working on the theory that a link exists between the murder and the assassination of a Presidential candidate, Gideon creates a stir when he asks for the sealed files in the case.

Evidence that a suspect in the assassination was scheduled to be killed with Stockton confirms Gideon's suspicions of the link.

Delayed Series Is Ready

After two delays, "The Bob Crane Show" is finally airing Thursday evenings on NBC-TV from 8:30 to 9, and the veteran actor is 'happy' about the setbacks, otherwise he wouldn't have done the show.

Originally called "Second Start," the series was wiped off the schedule last fall when the FCC re-instituted its three-hour rule, then postponed again from a January start. Meanwhile, Crane re-did the pilot, changed the theme and tempo and feels better about it.

Can viewers believe in a 40-year-old medical student?

"Listen, I've had so many letters saying 'yes.' A lot of people change at 40. Changes happen in so many people at that age. Take me. I was getting divorced at that age, and starting a new life. The song 'Is That All There Is' simply doesn't apply, because there's more."

Does he see the same success for it as "Hogan's Heroes" because Bob Crane is still Bob Crane?

"Let's say I have hopes for it now. We have gone from the original concept to one that could put us in the top 20 after 14 weeks. If that happens, and we stay on past 14, then I see success for it, because it will grow. We have done 11 of the shows, and I won't be a doctor at the end of 14 because that would mean the show wouldn't continue."

The actor, 46, said he was doing 14 episodes with the idea that no announcement about next season will be made until April 14, and that "Superdad" actually set him up for the TV show.

As a result of Disney releasing the picture at TV pilot time, I suddenly started getting some scripts with strength in them, and three companies that had never approached me after I finished 'Hogan' were included. It's no secret I had been waiting for another series. I don't want to do another talk show — that's going backwards for me — because it doesn't fit into my ideas any longer."

Must he beat "The Waltons" re-runs to come back on the air in the fall?

"Not actually beat them, but hold our own. Frankly, the network will have looked at all the episodes before we're finished, and will have to make up its mind before all 14 have aired, so the accumulated ratings won't have that much bearing."

Movie Basis For A Series

People seek membership in private clubs for any number of reasons; foremost among them being prestige and the opportunity of escaping to a wood-paneled room to enjoy a five-dollar cigar while reading the financial pages.

"The Crime Club" is a private club, but there ends any similarity between it and other coteries. Located in Washington, D.C., its membership is composed of people from various fields: private investigators, lawyers, investigative reporters, mystery writers and technicians, with one common interest and goal — the prevention of crime.

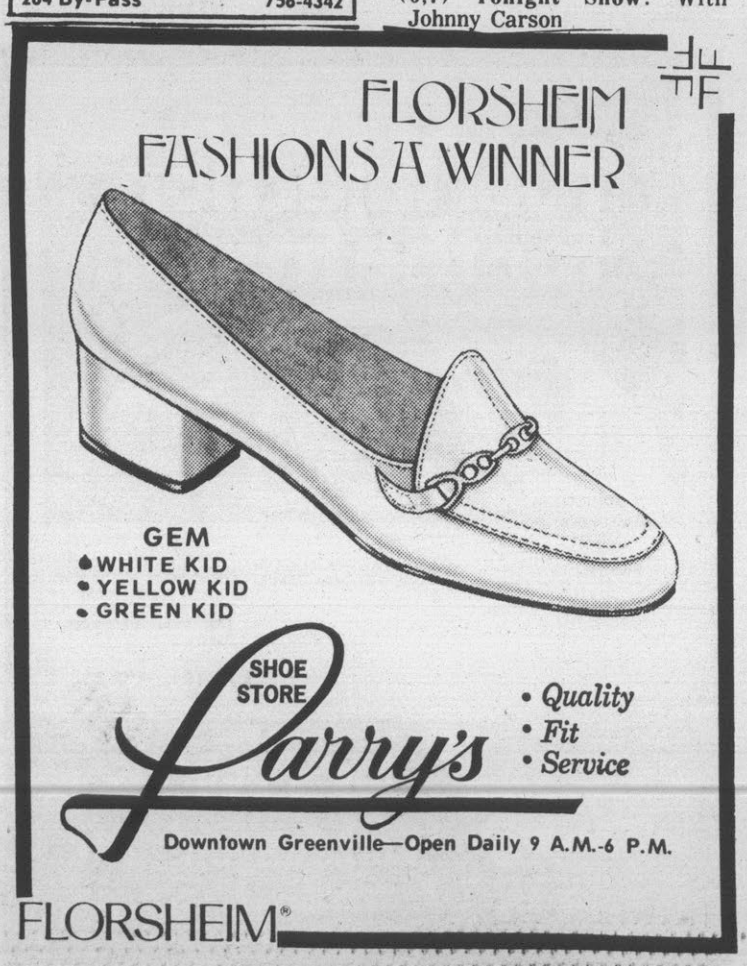

As an "unofficial brotherhood of crime prevention," the "Club" does not accept cases, but its members are free to draw upon the resources of the organization, or individual members, when needed.

Case in point: A distraught woman comes to member John Keesey, a private investigator, for help when her brother confesses to the ice pick murders of several women. Political influence and emotion threaten the 'official' investigation. Crime Club members uncover the truth and prevent a miscarriage of justice.

"The Crime Club," the basis for a projected new series, will air April 3, 9 to 10:30, as the "CBS Thursday Night Movie," on Ch. 9-11.

Starring Scott Thomas, Eugene Roche and Robert Lansing, the film is as unique as the men who take special pride in their membership in the organization.

As distinct as the men of "The Crime Club" are those who bring it to television: Matthew Rapf, executive producer; James McAdams, producer; Gene R. Kearney, writer. This is the same behind - the - scenes team responsible for the studio's successful, award - winning "Kojak" series.

'Midnight Special' Renewed

"The Midnight Special," NBC Television Network's weekly latenight contemporary rock music series, has received a long-term renewal, it was announced recently by Lawrence R. White, Vice President, Programs, NBC-TV.

The 90-minute series pioneered network television programming in the late, late time period on a regular basis when it premiered Feb. 3, 1973. The highly popular show is colorcast from 1 to 2:30 a.m. following the Friday night telecasts of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson."

"This renewal confirms the faith we have had in 'The Midnight Special,' and will make it late-night television's only continuing rock music series," said Dick Ebersol, Director, Late Night Programming, NBC-TV.

"The series is recognized as an extremely efficient buy, because 78 percent of the program's viewers are within the target audience of 12-49 years of age that many of our advertisers are looking for."

'The Other' On Friday Movie

"The Other," starring Uta Hagen in the suspense tale of a boy's compulsion to prey upon his own family, based on Thomas Tryon's best selling novel, will be seen for the first time on television on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday, April 4, 9 to 11 p.m., in color on Channel 9-11.

In a quiet summer town, a young boy, Niles, clings to his twin brother, Holland, for company. Niles also depends on his grandmother, who teaches him the game of concentrating on an object and becoming that thing.

Niles' family seems to be crumbling around him. The people who have contact with him die mysterious and horrible deaths. And his mother seems unable to cope with life since the recent tragic death of her husband.

The 1972 20th Century - Fox release was produced and directed by Robert Mulligan, and written for the screen by novelist Tryon.

'1776' To Have TV Premiere

"1776," the motion picture musical tracing the beginnings of the American Republic and the drafting and signing of the Declaration of Independence, will have its world television premiere on NBC-TV in the 1976-76 season — keyed to America's Bicentennial celebration.

As announced in May, 1974, "Gone With the Wind," the film classic set during the Civil War, will also have its television premiere as part of the NBC-TV Bicentennial programming. It will be colorcast as part of NBC-TV's 1976-77 season.

Soviet-India Production

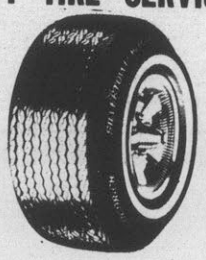

"Black Mountain," a joint Soviet-India production relating the story of a wild elephant captured by villagers who live near his jungle home, will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, April 5, 1:00 to 2:00 p.m., in color on CBS-TV.

A terrible drought visits the jungle, and many of the elephants in Black Mountain's herd suffer and die. One of them goes mad and runs wild through the village. In revenge, the people build a giant trap for the elephants and then teach the captured animals to work for them — all but Black Mountain, who is separated from his mate and calf.

Only a boy, Manu, manages to tame the proud elephant, and they become great friends. When Black Mountain saves the village from another crazed elephant, his own offspring, whom he kills, the villagers set him free.

"Black Mountain" is a co-production of the Tsentrnauchfilm Studio and the Society of Children's Films of India.

Tennis Success 'Mixed Blessing' Avers Chris

TOP MONEY WINNER — Chris Evert - the 20 - year - old top money - winner in Women's Tennis will be at the Women's Tennis Champions Finals in Los Angeles, California, Saturday, April 5 at 3:30 p.m. on CBS-TV. Prizes totaling $150,000 are at stake.

A recent poll among sports fans found 26 percent saying they followed tennis, compared to only 17 percent just a year ago. This places tennis as the fourth most popular sport in America. In 1971, it ranked last among the twelve surveyed sports. Now only football, baseball, and basketball are listed ahead of tennis.

A recent Nielsen survey revealed about 34 million Americans are playing tennis. That accounts for a 68 percent increase over those playing in 1973.

"People - both men and women - can generally relate better to women players," says Miss Chris Evert, one of the top women in tennis. "The game women play is slower, more artistic, with more volleys than in men's tennis. And women seem to put more of their personality and emotions into the game."

That last may seem to be a strange remark, perhaps, from the girl once described as having "a murderous court attitude, ironclad concentration, and groundstrokes that won't quit."

But Miss Evert explains the seeming paradox thus: "I consciously try to keep a poker face while I play. If I show emotion, my opponent could gain the advantage."

Miss Evert, who says she "comes alive" on the courts, admits that being able to play for money has added another dimension to her enjoyment of the game. However, her prime motivation is still "the sheer love of tennis for itself."

Moreover, each time she wins, especially when over as formidable an opponent as "Billie Jean King or a Margaret Court," it still comes as a "shock and a delight," she insists.

What then has been Miss Evert's reaction to what amounts to instant stardom in the boom sport?

"Being a celebrity is a mixed blessing," says the articulate spokeswoman for women's tennis. "You do lose a lot of your private life — but, of course, there are lots of rewards too. It's just something you have to learn to accept."

Steve Forrest, star of ABC's "S.W.A.T.," is the younger brother of actor Dana Andrews. Steve's real name is William Forrest Andrews, but he decided to go by a stage name to avoid any conflict with his older brother.

Lucie Arnez, Jr. may very well find herself starring in her own series next fall. She and ABC executive Gary Putnay appear to be heading for the alter, and Gary's in the position to guide his bride-to-be into a prime time slot on the network.

Dirk Blocker, a son of the late Dan Blocker, is making big strides in following in his father's footsteps. He's now been case for a role in the pilot, "Bridger," which stars James Wainwright.

There's little doubt that this is the last season for "Kung Fu." It continues to be last in the ratings.

Robert Young has been bedridden with flu.

The announcement of next season's renewal should start rapily this month, though each of the network's entire scheduled probably won't be announced until May.

Furnished With Contest Prizes

"My apartment is furnished in early quiz show," says Aldine King, who plays Cissy Peterson, Karen Angelo's roommate on the ABC Television network series, "Karen." While waiting for her acting break, Aldine appeared on numerous television quiz shows and took home many of the prizes that now grace her apartment. "The only problem I ever had," Aldine confides, "was trying to sell one of two refrigerators I won on separate programs.

NBC Signs New Baseball Contract

The 28-year association between the National Broadcasting Company and Major League Baseball will continue through the 1979 season under terms of a new contract announced recently by Carl Lindemann Jr., Vice President, Sports, NBC Television network, and Bowie Kuhn, Commissioner of Baseball.

Under the new agreement, a four-year pact that takes effort following NBC's exclusive coverage of Major League Baseball's 1975 season, NBC-TV will continue its telecasts of the Saturday afternoon Game-of-the Week begun in 1966. Additionally, beginning in 1976 NBC and the American Broadcasting Company will alternate on coverage of the World Series, the All-Star Game and League Championships.

In making the announcement, Lindemann said: "We are delighted that NBC's association with Major League Baseball — the longest such association with any sport by network — will continue."

NBC, which has provided exclusive, live coverage of the world series each year since 1947 and of the All-Star Games every summer since 1950, will present the World Series (including all mid-week games during prime time) in 1976. NBC will also colorcast the Worl Series in 1978, the American and National League Championships and the All-Star Game in 1977 and 1979, and the Saturday Game-of -the-Week during the four years of the contract.

NBC's presentation of the League Championships in 1977 and 1979, starting with weeend daytime coverage, will also include day and night telecasts during the week.

INDIAN QUINN

Anthony Quinn stars as a contemporary Indian who lassos a helicopter and claims the city of Phoenix for his tribe under a treaty of 1853, in "Flap", on the ABC TV network April 5, from 9:00 to 11:00 p.m.

Bruins Boast Records

The amazing Bruins of U.C.L.A. have made it to the final four competition National Collegiate Basketball twelve times in the last fourteen years. Without a doubt, U.C.L.A has developed the most successful basketball program in American under the guidance of John Wooden.

The Uclans had their incredible win streak of 38 straight victories in NCAA tournament play come to an end last season. But the Bruins are still proud of the many records and accomplishments by coach John Wooden and Company in NCAA action, to wit:

Seven championships in a row.

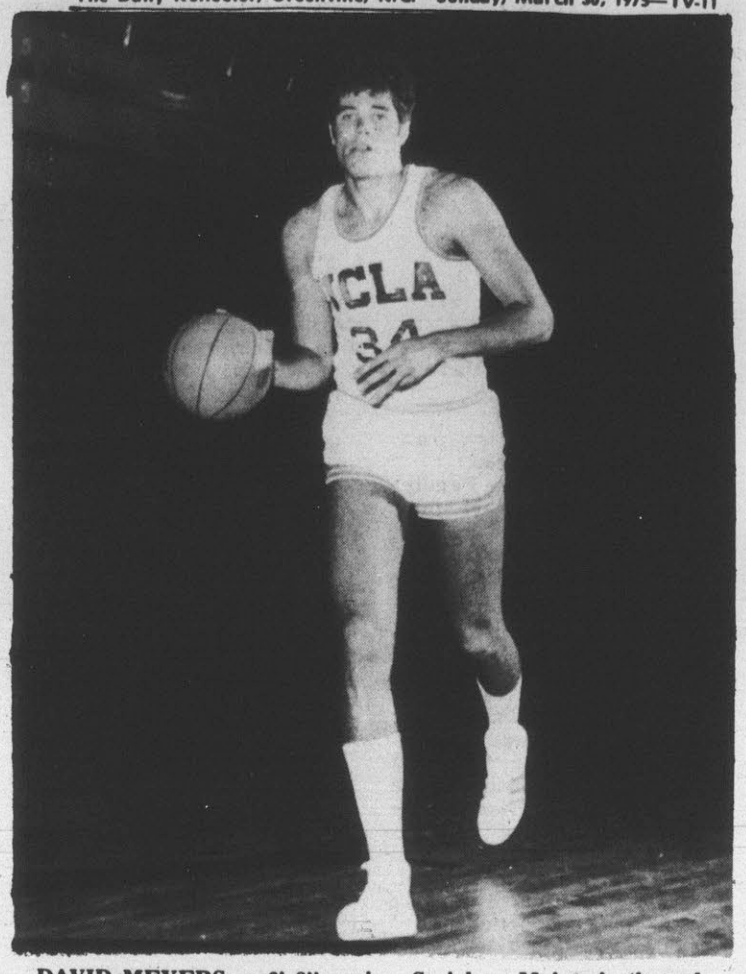

Nine championships in the past 11 years—a record that more than doubles the next most titles!

Played in 13 of the last 14 tourneys.

Won 42 games, lost only 10 in 15 tournament appearances (this year's tournament excluded).

Won seven "Outstanding Player Awards" in title play—the most by any school.

This season's U.C.L.A. team is following in the same winning tradition as they swept to the Western Regional Championships and into the final four with Lousiville, Syracuse, and Kentucky. Monday evening, March 31, on the NBC Television Network when the NCAA tourney comes to a close for 1975, U.C.L.A. will be competing for either their tenth national championship in the past 12 years or they will be in the consolation game vying for the number three ranking in the nation. Win or lose, the Bruins are winners.

DAVID MEYERS, a 6' 8" senior, Sociology Major, is the only returning starter from last year's UCLA team. The Bruins hope to be in the championship event rather than the consolation game on Monday (March 31) when the four finalists UCLA, Louisville, Syracuse, and Kentucky wrap up the NCAA tournament. The tournament finale will be on NBC at 9:00 p.m.

Heroic Challenge For Golfers

Twisting and winding through legions of live oaks draped in graceful Spanish moss and framed by the resilient waters of Calibogue Sound and the powder sands of broad Atlantic beaches lies Sea Pines Harbour Town Links, the site of the Heritage Classic with its $200,000 in prize money.

The five finishing holes of the golf classic will be broadcast on the CBS Television Network Saturday, March 29, 5:00 to 6:00 p.m., and Sunday, March 30, 4:30 to 6:00 p.m.

Requiring the utmost in skill from golfers, Harbour Town's challenge has elevated the Heritage Classic to one of the leading events of the PGA Tour.

BOB NEWHART'S business activities is centered on his at-home office that features such unbusiness like photos as King Kong cradling Fay Wray, Laurel and Hardy eyeing a pretty damsel and Newhart himself as a stern Prussian officer. "The Bob Newhart Show" is televised Saturdays (9:30-10 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Bob Newhart's Monday Evenings Are For Family

It used to be that comedians were pretty wild characters. They seemed to feel the need to be as zany in their private lives as they were when they performed. But Bob Newhart, star of "The Bob Newhart Show," seen Saturdays on CBS-TV from 9:30 to 10:00 p.m., isn't like that.

Off-screen, he's a typical family man. Maybe not typical in his income, of course, but certainly typical in his attitudes and his approach to life. To him, home and his wife and family come first. He has old-fashioned ideas about what constitutes a good life; you might even call him square.

For example, there is a clause in his contract with CBS guaranteeing him the right to go home at 5:30 p.m. every Monday night. Why Monday?

"Well," he says, with a sheepish grin, "that's the night when Ginnie and I and the kids always go out to dinner together."

It isn't anything spectacular. The family — Bob, Ginnie, ten-year-old Bobby, seven-year-old Tim and Three-year-old Jennifer — get together and decide where they will go. They don't like to get dressed up fancy, just put on casual clothes and go out. There is one hamburger place that is a family favorite, and that's where they head most Mondays. Bob says that Bobby especially likes Chinese and Japanese food, and in particular one fancy Japanese restaurant. But that place requires ties on the gentlemen, so they don't go there too often.

But Monday nights are sacred to Bob. Most other nights he may work late but not on Mondays. That's a family affair, and that is paramount in his life.

The family's activities find the kids unimpressed with their dad's pre-eminence in the field of comedy. They much prefer his imitation of a horse or his instruction in the proper method of pulley pulling.

The center of Newhart's business activities is his at-home office that features such unbusiness like photos as King Kong cradling Fay Wray, Laurel and Hardy eyeing a pretty damsel and Newhart, himself, as a stern Prussian officer.

His show is a real success and he hopes it will go five years "because that's the magic number," and he has all the outside nightclub work he wants. (This is in the summer when he can take his family with him.)

Most of all, he has his family. To Bob Hewhart, the old-fashioned man in a new-fangled world, that's the most important thing. That's what counts.

DEEP FREEZE — Jane Fonda and Robert Redford play newlyweds who find the heat off in their new apartment during mid-winter, in "Barefoot in the Park", a comedy based on the Broadway hit, to be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" April 5 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR KATHRYN CROSBY

Is there a generation gap in your home?—B. Greenley, Van Nuys, Calif.

● No. Our children are as comfortable with older people as youngsters. Teenagers who can't communicate that way were never taught how. And, no doubt, their parents had the same problem. Bing's mother died at 92, and when our children spoke to her, they were on the same wavelength. What's more important is that I love them a lot. I don't want to be "popular" or be buddies with them. All I want is to make them good citizens and fine human beings. I listen to them, care for them, let them make mistakes and don't pounce on them like a ton of bricks when they do. And they know this—which is what counts.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

You came out of the "$64,000 Question" very well. What do you think you'd be doing if it hadn't been for your appearance on the show?—D. R. Morrison, Waco, Texas

● The quiz show was fun and I'd do it again, but it really didn't have any effect on my life. It got my husband, Dr. Milton Brothers, to Park Avenue two years faster than he would have otherwise. But I'd still be where I am even if I had never appeared on the show.

FOR KAY BALLARD

Have you ever opened your mouth and put your foot in it? —S. R., Wenatchee, Wash.

● And how! Years ago, I did a command performance for King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. When I was introduced to the young Princess Margaret, I pinched her on the cheek and said—with complete lack of class, imagination and protocol—"I'm nuts about your mom and dad and sister." She smiled and said, "They like you too."

FOR DON RICKLES, comedian

● Sure I worry. But when I get down, I remind myself that this image made me. I do hope that before I'm in my coffin people will realize that it is only a character I've created.

FOR RONA JAFFE, author of "Family Secrets"

Do you stick to any special routine when you write?—S.S., Las Vegas, Nev.

● I call my books my "babies." That's because for me, writing a book is like having a baby. When I work, I don't leave the house for nine months. As no one sees me, I don't care what I look like—so I eat, and by the time the book's finished, I've gained 20 pounds. But as soon as I "deliver" to my publisher, the weight miraculously slips right off—and I'm back to my normal size again.

FOR DR. BENJAMIN SPOCK

Are you distressed that the younger generation doesn't want children?—J.M., Utica, N.Y.

● Not at all. I think it's marvelous that people who don't want children aren't having them.

FOR JIM HARTZ of the "Today" show

It's been reported that Bill Moyers and Tom Brokaw turned down your job because they felt doing commercials would hurt their stature as journalists. How do you feel?—Leo L. Smith, Chicago, Ill.

● Frank McGee did commercials and it didn't hurt him. Barbara Walters does commercials and it hasn't hurt her. I don't think my position will suffer.

FOR LORNA LUFT

Was going into show business your idea or your mother's? —M.L., Los Angeles, Calif.

● Mine. When I was 14 I told Mom. She wasn't thrilled. She remembered what she went through as a child and didn't want that to happen to me. But when she saw she was talking to a brick wall, she backed me all the way. I was born with a voice, but didn't know what to do with it (I either sang flat or sharp, and so did Liza), so Mom sent us to school.

FOR REX REED

I want to be a movie reviewer. How did you get your start? —J.L., Bangor, Maine

● I grew up in a deprived Southern area where, apart from movies, there wasn't much else to do. Movies were the only thing I knew anything about. At LSU, I reviewed for the campus paper. That's where my career "blossomed." After two reviews, however, I was banned from the theater. I began battling with studios, editors and stars—and have been in trouble ever since.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

My evening was ruined when I went out and met someone wearing my dress. Does this happen to famous people? —M. Janus, Nyack, N.Y.

● Certainly! At President Ford's recent dinner for England's Prime Minister Harold Wilson, Nancy Kissinger and Mrs. Cornelius V. Whitney wore the same Oscar de la Renta dress. Anne Meara's attitude? "I'd love to meet anyone with my dress sense!" Dr. Joyce Brothers analyzes: "Years ago, women got satisfaction from clothes. Nowadays clothes are secondary. Women similarly attired should congratulate each other on their good taste and laugh it off." Couturier Lew Prince of Aldrich agrees: "My clients never show up like twins, but if they did, I'd be thrilled the style was so popular." Designer Fontayne says this never happens to her customers: "All my clothes are 'one of a kind.' The style may be the same, but the fabrics are different."

For Easter:
Anita Bryant's Painful Progress Toward God

By Alan Ebert

Anita Bryant has always been regarded as an oddity by those who watched her stare into the face of superstardom, then turn and walk away without a backward glance. How could she, at the height of her recording success, answer an emphatic "No!" to the extravagant money offered by nightclubs? Few could understand why Anita Bryant truly felt the money was meaningless when measured against the values she shared with her husband and manager, Bob Green.

Neither Anita nor her husband smoked, drank or gambled, and the atmosphere in nightclubs conflicted with many of their religious beliefs. And so did the environments of New York and Los Angeles, which the Greens left so they could live in Miami Beach, the city where Green had been a well-known radio personality.

In retrospect, one could borrow that title of the Sinatra song and say Anita Bryant did it "my way." She doesn't agree, however. "It was not my way but that of God. Left to my own devices, my selfish needs would have wrecked my marriage and family. I have always been the ambitious one—not Bob, as many who know us think. Since the age of eight, when I first dedicated my life to Jesus Christ, I also became dedicated to reaching stardom. Over the years, those two dedications frequently came into conflict. You see, since high school, I have always known I could be a Broadway star. But I learned the hard way that Broadway was my ambition, not God's."

"The hard way" took her to stock companies throughout the U.S., where she found all her energies absorbed by the roles she was playing. "Nothing was left over for Bob and the children. Even when I was with them, I'd be detached. Bob resented this, and rightfully so. There were numerous arguments, and suddenly a divorce loomed as large as my name in lights on Broadway. A choice had to be made—marriage or Broadway stardom.

"I am not a simple person, although it is thought by many that I am," says Anita. "To have reached this time in my life where joy is often overwhelming is the result of having worked through years of conflict. It will surprise the many who think of me as one-dimensional to learn my life has not been spent in the warmth of the Florida Sunshine Tree. I've known my depressions and doubts, caused by the many sides of me coming into conflict. I've known pain, anguish even, in the near death of me, my twins, my marriage and—my faith."

Ray Fisher

"Since high school, I have always known I could be a Broadway star. But I learned the hard way that Broadway was my ambition, not God's."

When Anita Bryant is troubled, she turns to prayer. "I see now that God had brought me to a place where I could go forward but not back. A decision had to be made. And for those who think me a simple person, let me admit my decision did not come easily. I agonized over it! It was so hard to give up my ambitions when I was so close to realizing them." But through prayer, she explains, it was revealed to her the price she would pay for her dream. "Although I am many people, I am primarily a home person, a wife and mother. In discovering this, God lifted that ambition from me. I accepted His will, and by doing so, being Mrs. Bob Green and the mother of my children became the most important aspect of my life. Almost immediately thereafter, happily, but not strangely if one believes in the way God works, I became spokeswoman for a TV ad campaign and that gave me a nationwide recognition I might never have attained even as a Broadway star. As I look, I see many such examples of how God often said no to my selfish needs, as He had plans of His own for my life."

Her motherhood she sees as part of God's plan too. Today, Anita has four children—Bobbie, 12; Gloria, 11; and the twins, Billy and Barbara, age six. Now she sits by her swimming pool, and the sun as it sets over Biscayne Bay illuminates her face. She is even more beautiful at 35 than she was at 20, when she was a runner-up in the Miss America Pageant and the bride of Bob Green, and Anita Bryant watches her children at play. "They could never

What Anita Bryant Believes

Anita Bryant is aware that many who hear and witness her religious fervor, her devout, even passionate belief in God, think of her as a fanatic or a religious nut. "It bothered me once. No more. Then, I wanted to please both sides of the fence, the believers and the nonbelievers. Today, my main concern is to be in the will of God. I know who He is and I know who I am. Many of my religious beliefs are unpopular today, particularly with those who are seeking fulfillment as women. In our home, in my life, my husband is the spiritual leader. That is how God ordained it. He instituted the family unit and He placed the husband at its head with the wife as his helpmate. It is clearly written in Ephesians 5:22-24:

'Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord.
For the husband is head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church: and he is the savior of the body.
Therefore as the church is subject unto Christ, so let the wives be to their own husbands in every thing.' "

She takes strong issue with those who insist that one must give to oneself before one can give to another. "No, that is wrong," she says with quiet firmness. "Reaching out and giving to others always results in the giver receiving. But it must begin with each of us giving first. In any relationship, be it marriage or friendship, we must give to our loved ones before we give to ourselves. The love we give out is never lost. It always comes back tenfold."

Thinking back to the woman she once was, she states, "Too much sense of self leads to isolation from others and from God. It creates a terrible loneliness. According to Billy Graham, loneliness is the greatest illness suffered by Americans. And it is an illness that can be so easily cured. We have lost the ability to give, to share. We must find it, recognizing as we search that the most important thing we have to give, to share, is ourselves. I know those who think me 'simple' will find my solution an oversimplification, but honestly, I think what we all need in this country is some good old-fashioned praying."

have been as happy had they been raised in New York," she says, "they are such physical kids, so used to the outdoor living we Greens thrive on. We all play tennis. We all swim. But none of us poses any threat to Billie Jean King or Mark Spitz."

She laughs. Years ago, before attaining financial security, she was frequently forced to travel without her children. Not today. No matter how short the trip, one child goes with her. "That has proven to be a marvelous experience both for us as parents and for the children. Traveling with only one instead of the four has given us a chance to know each other individually, as people, and not as part of a clan. You can't close your ears to a child, or tell him to go out and play when you are in an airplane. You are forced to listen, and as you do, you learn about your child. When we're doing Florida citrus commercials, we do travel as an entire family and that, except for the packing, is delightful."

Her children, although aware their mother is a celebrity and frequently seen on television, don't seem to feel the strain that perpetual limelight imposes on most famous families. Living in Florida has removed that possible trauma. So have the Greens. "Our lives revolve around our home and the church where I teach Sunday school and Bob is a deacon. We have created a nest for our kids that I don't think we could have done in New York or Los Angeles. Yes, Miami has its drug and crime problems but they are not as widespread as in other cities. Here, there is still the chance for an insulated family life."

"It will surprise the many who think of me as one-dimensional to learn my life has not been spent in the warmth of the Florida Sunshine Tree."

She looks at her children, their sun-bleached blond hair haloing their tanned faces, and says softly, "We don't have all the time in the world with those we love. We must always be concerned, day-to-day, with what we give to them. And can we ever give enough?" She pauses and then as though answering: "I wouldn't want my children to follow me into show business. I would want to save them that pain. They, too, are deeply religious and that creates great conflicts when you are a performer. Mine is not always a very Christian-like profession. But, if the Lord says that is to be their way, so be it. But my own dream is that one becomes a minister and one a missionary. Most of all, I want them happy, with themselves and with God."

There are real tears in her eyes and she returns to that fairly recent time when she had to relearn how to be happy with herself and with God. Shortly after she relinquished her Broadway ambitions, she became pregnant. She interpreted that pregnancy as God's sign of the wisdom and joy in her decision to save her marriage and family. But in childbirth, she and the twin babies nearly died. In shock, she needed eight pints of blood to survive the delivery. Upon recovering, she was told the twins probably wouldn't survive, and that if they miraculously did, they would undoubtedly suffer from some kind of brain damage. She lapsed into deep despair.

"There had been other times in my life—like when I was experiencing difficulties in my marriage and in other human relationships—that I felt strongly tempted to sever with God. But something made me hang on. Will my uncertain faith surprise the many who have always thought me so 'sure'? I'm sure it will. If the truth be known, my faith has been far from perfect. There have been times—like when the twins hovered between life and death and I found myself, so deeply anguished, unable to sing—that I felt God had failed me.

"But that truly was not the case," she continues. "Actually, the crises in my life were caused by God. He was trying to get my attention, forcing me to look at my life and at who and what I was. Both the twins and I survived. The doctors called their complete recovery a miracle. They are healthy, beautiful and normal children, and when I see their blond beauty, I see that the rough spots in my life were caused by God to polish me for His use. As a Christian, I believe the purpose of life is to find God's way—and not our own, for His way is so much better than my own. And what a difficult lesson that has been to learn for a stubborn lady like me! But today, I know and understand that being a Christian doesn't mean being removed from life but does mean that in the middle of life's discouragements, heartaches and miseries, the Lord will be there and He will never leave you. Nothing can separate you from His Love and His Love is a constant source of strength."

In Time for a New Season:

Eight Great Baseball Players Talk About Their Own Idols

By Larry Bortstein

Pete Rose: He's put the "hustle" back into baseball.

"I'm looking forward to facing Catfish Hunter. I respect anyone who commands $3.5 million! He must be doing something right."
—Hank Aaron

With the 1975 major-league season slated to get under way on Monday, April 7, FAMILY WEEKLY asked eight major leaguers—seven active players and one (Ralph Kiner) recently elected to the Hall of Fame—to recall the people in baseball they admire the most.

Not surprisingly, Hank Aaron was selected the "most admirable" by two players. Aaron, who begins a new career in the American League this season with the Milwaukee Brewers, after 21 seasons with the Braves in the National League, shattered Babe Ruth's record for lifetime home runs in 1974, when he hammered out 20 to close the season with 733 round trippers. Ruth had 714 in his illustrious career.

HANK AARON

The home-run king is returning to Milwaukee, where he played from 1954-65 before the Braves moved to Atlanta. In addition to his 733 career home runs, Aaron has hit for more total bases than anyone in major-league history.

"Who do I admire? Well, myself, for one. I'm proud of the way things have fallen into place for me the past couple of years, breaking Babe Ruth's record and all. Three years ago I didn't know whether I'd ever make it or not, whether I could play long enough. Now that I'm past all that, I'm looking forward to playing a lot of ball in Milwaukee in front of fans who treated me great when I was there for 12 years with the Braves.

"Three guys I admire are three who I feel have a chance to break my home-run record—Reggie Jackson of Oakland, Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh and Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia. I'll be the first to cheer them on if they ever come close to the record, or if anyone else does. For someone to break the record, he'd have to average between 37-40 homers a year until he's 40 years old, and that makes it very tough.

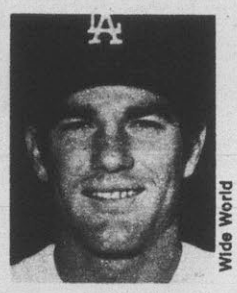

"One of the things I'm really looking forward to in the American League is facing Catfish Hunter. I respect anyone who commands $3.5 million! He must be doing something right. I want to see how he compares with the great National League pitchers I've faced for the past 21 years. I have a feeling he'll compare pretty well.

"While traveling around the country for Magnavox during the past off-season, I learned of the tragic accidental death of Don Wilson, the Houston Astros' pitcher. He was probably the toughest pitcher I ever faced. He had a fast ball that jammed me, and I never learned to hit him. I hit only one home run off him and that one came when he was just coming off a sore arm. He was a classy pitcher and a classy guy, and it's a shame he died so young, at 29."

STEVE GARVEY

The first baseman of the Los Angeles Dodgers led his team to the National League pennant in 1974 with a .312 average, 200 hits, 21 home runs and 111 runs batted in. He was voted the Most Valuable Player in the league by the nation's sportswriters at the end of the year.

"Two guys rank at the top of the list of players I've most admired. One is the late Gil Hodges, and the other is Pete Rose, Cincinnati's great outfield star.

Wide World

"I got a great chance to know Hodges when I was a boy growing up in Florida. My father drove the bus that took the Dodgers, who were then the Brooklyn Dodgers, to and from exhibition games in Vero Beach, which is still the Dodgers' spring-training camp. As I rode that bus, Gil Hodges became my idol. I was only seven or eight years old then, but every time Gil had a chance he'd play catch with me. He was looked up to by every player on the team because he was always a gentleman—on and off the field. I've tried to be like him as far as my personality is concerned—quiet, but strong and giving.

"As far as Pete Rose is concerned, I admire him for some of the same reasons I admired Hodges. Guys like this create good publicity for baseball. Pete's tremendous energy and hustle on the field are great assets for the game. And he does everything well. He plays cleanly and fairly, and takes the game seriously. You have to admire a guy like that."

RALPH GARR

The Atlanta Braves' left fielder led the National League hitters in 1974 with a .353 average. He also led the majors with 17 triples and finished third in the National League in total bases, an unusually high ranking for a man who doesn't hit many home runs; Ralph hit 11 last season.

"I admire ballplayers who do the same things well that I do: hit the ball to all fields, run and hit for a high average. That's why I like Pete Rose and Joe Morgan of Cincinnati, and also Rod Carew of Minnesota. I think Rose and Morgan are more like me than Carew. Rod places the ball more and doesn't get many extra base hits. He lines singles up the middle and gets on with bunts a lot. But when you hit for the averages he does, you're making good contact an awful lot.

"Rose loves to talk hitting with other good hitters. Whenever we play the Reds I make it a point to talk with him for a few minutes. We discuss how different pitchers around the league are doing and if they're throwing any new pitches. Watching the way Pete hustles keeps me hustling, I'll tell you that.

"Anyone who's been a teammate of Hank Aaron since 1968, as I have, has to admire him a lot too. When I joined the Braves, I was a little shy about going over to talk to Hank, but we became kind of close over the years. You know you're never going to beat him out in anything, but having him there makes you try harder to get close."

DICK GREEN

Though he batted only .213 for the Oakland A's in 1974, Green won the Babe Ruth Award as the Most Valuable Player in the World Series classic for his brilliant defensive work at second base.

"I'm a .240 lifetime hitter, so I've made my way in the big leagues with defense. The guy I've most admired at second base is Bobby Richardson. For 12 years, from 1955-1966, he was the regular second baseman for the New York Yankees, and one of the best second basemen who ever played.

"When I came into the majors with the Kansas City A's in 1963, Bobby was easily the best second baseman in the American League. Nearly every other second baseman in the league tried to pattern himself after Bobby. As a kid I was a Yankee fan, and Bobby was my idol when I was still in the minors trying to work my way up to the majors. When I got to know him, he turned out to be as decent a person as he was a great second baseman.

"Whenever the A's would play the Yankees, I would talk to Bobby, and to Tony Kubek, too, their shortstop. Both of them would go out of their way to point out little things I could do to improve myself. The fact that a player of Bobby's stature helped me like he did makes him really admirable in my book."

ROD CAREW

The left-handed-batting second baseman of the Minnesota Twins has won the last three American League batting championships in a row and four bat titles overall.

"Though there's nothing similar about our styles of play, I look up to Hank

Aaron very much, probably more than anyone in baseball. My three home runs last year gave me a lifetime total of 32 for my first eight big-league seasons, and now I'm only 701 homers behind Hank! I'm kidding, obviously. I've never been a home-run hitter and never will be. While I respect Hank for what he's accomplished at the plate, and I'm happy he'll be in the American League this year, I respect him mainly for the way he handled the amazing pressure that was on him last season.

"I pride myself on always giving the fans a fair shake when it comes to signing autographs and making appearances. The fact that Hank could be the same way last year even under unbelievable pressure makes him a guy really worth admiring."

Among the Admired . . .

Wide World

FERGUSON JENKINS

Between 1967-72, Jenkins won 20 or more games for six straight seasons as a member of the Chicago Cubs.

"The guy I've admired most is Juan Marichal. With the San Francisco

Giants, he was the best right-hander in the National League. Until he hurt his back late in his career and ended up with the Boston Red Sox, he was the best right-hander I ever saw.

"The thing I admired most about Marichal was his tremendous stamina. He completed almost every game he pitched. Pitching so many complete games is what I'm most proud of in my career. I started 41 games for the Rangers last year and completed 29, the most in the league. It was the fourth time I led my league in complete games. To me, complete games are the most important pitching statistic. When a pitcher goes nine innings consistently, it means he's almost always keeping his team in contention in a ball game."

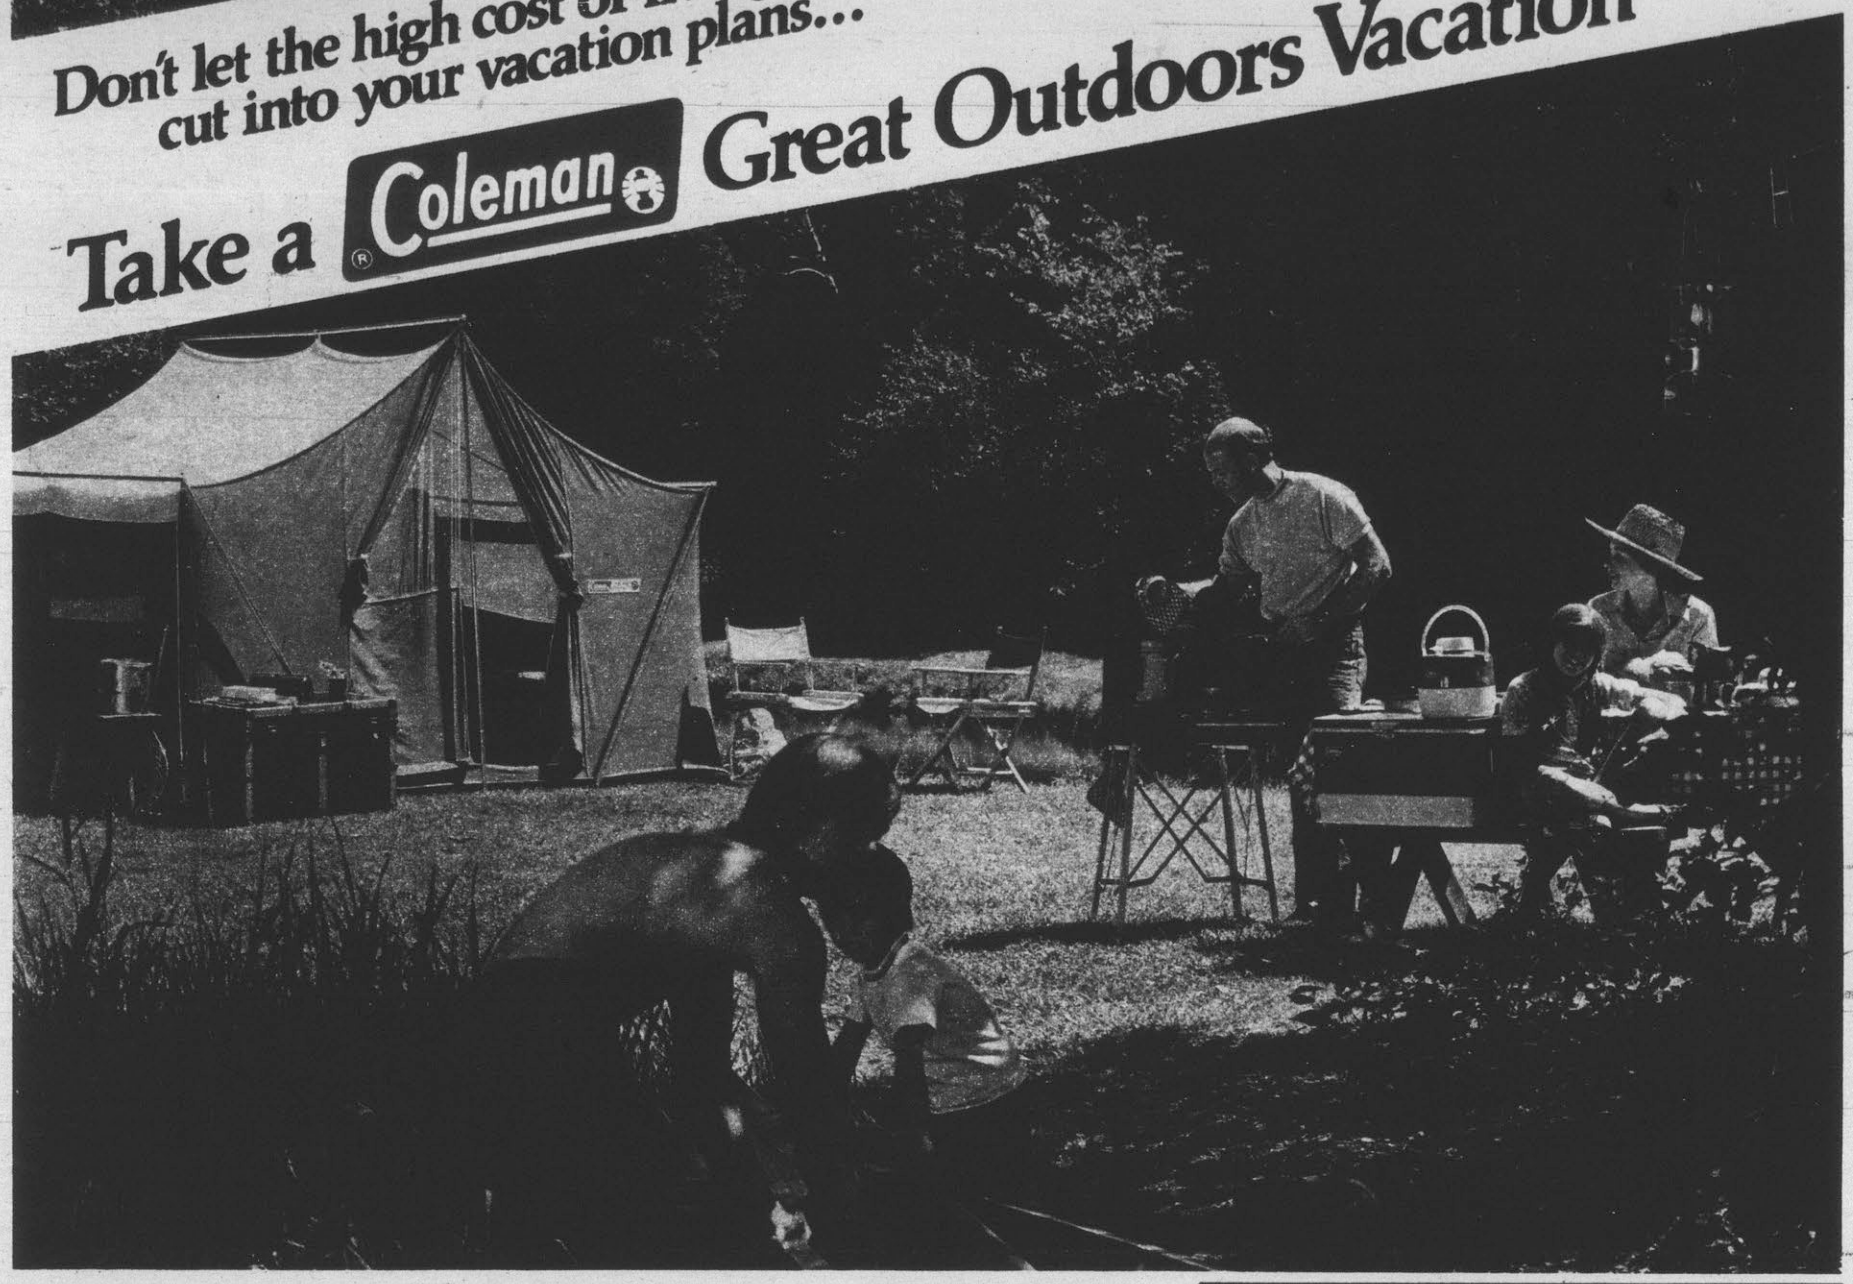

JIM "CATFISH" HUNTER

He had a 25-12 won-lost record in 1974, a 2.49 earned-run average and was voted the Cy Young Award as the league's outstanding pitcher.

"My career has probably depended more on two guys than on anybody else. Those are the guys I would have to say I admire most. Continued on page 13

"One is Clyde Kluttz, a former major-league catcher who scouted for the Kansas City A's in the middle 1960's. I was so impressed by him that he was the big reason I signed with the A's when I was just 18. He now scouts for the Yankees, and his conversations with me about coming to New York were very instrumental in my decision to come to the Yankees.

"Then I would have to say I admire Bill Posedel, the A's former pitching coach. He's working for the San Diego Padres now, but from 1968-72 he was the guy who gave me a tremendous amount of help and encouragement. Bill has a great knack for working with pitchers. He never tries to make you change your style, but works with you to develop the style you're comfortable with. Also, with Bill you never have a bad game. If you have to come out of a game, he tells you to chalk it up as just 'one of those days.' "

RALPH KINER

Kiner, who hit 369 home runs during his ten-year major-league career, 1946-55, was the only player elected to the Hall of Fame this year by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

"The guy I admire most is Hank Greenberg. Without Hank to guide me when I was a kid, I doubt that I would have made a Hall of Famer of myself.

"I was a rookie with the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1946, right after I came out of military service, and I led the National League in homers that year with 23, the first of seven straight years I led the league [a major-league record]. But I was on a club that wasn't dedicated. There were a lot of guys on that team that didn't take the game very seriously. I myself was pretty happy-go-lucky, content to let my natural ability for hitting a baseball carry me.

"Hank's career was just about over after the 1946 season. He had been a great star for years with the Detroit Tigers, one of the top sluggers of all time. The Pirates signed him for 1947 after the Tigers released him, and the Pirate management shortened the fences in left field at old Forbes Field and called them 'Greenberg Gardens,' figuring Hank still could hit a few out there and bring the fans in.

"Hank was pretty successful and popular that year too. But most of all he showed me what it took to become a great ballplayer. Like a lot of young players who start off well in the majors, I thought the game was easy. I thought I didn't need to work hard.

"But after practice one day, when I was all set to go out and enjoy myself, Hank suggested I stay around and do some extra hitting with him. I did, and from then on, he and I took a lot of extra hitting together. He changed my whole approach. I had been content to stand back at the plate, but Hank got me to move up on top of it. I began to realize that I had to work hard to stay a good, consistent and aggressive hitter.

"That 1947 season I started off slowly. I had only three homers through May, but I hit 48 more the last four months of the season and tied Johnny Mize of the Giants for the league championship with 51. I might have taken a real shot at Babe Ruth's record of 60 with a stronger first two months.

"Hank retired for good after his one season in Pittsburgh, but he stayed long enough to help develop me into a Hall of Famer."

What kind of people take Army ROTC?

Their reasons for taking Army ROTC are as diverse as they are themselves.

Some want the personal benefits they'll get from a pure leadership course. Others want the experience they'll get from serving as an Army officer, and the head start it will give them in a civilian career.

Some can use the extra $100 a month they'll get for up to 20 months during the Advanced Course. Others just like the physical and mental challenge.

What kind of people take Army ROTC? People who want to get everything they can out of their college years. People like you.

HOW THE CLUB OPERATES

Simply mail the application, together with check or money order for $1.97 as payment for your first 13 selections.

Every four weeks (13 times a year) you'll receive the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest...plus hundreds of alternates from every field of music. In addition, up to six times a year you may receive offers of Special Selections, usually at a discount off regular Club prices.

If you wish to receive the Selection of the Month or the Special Selection, you need do nothing—it will be shipped automatically. If you prefer an alternate selection, or none at all, simply fill in the response card always provided and mail it by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make your decision. If you ever receive any Selection without having had at least 10 days in which to decide, you may return it at our expense, for full credit.

Your own charge account will be opened...the selections you order will be mailed and billed at regular Club prices: cartridges and cassettes, $6.98 or $7.98; reel tapes, $7.98; records, $5.98 or $6.98—plus processing and postage. (Multiple unit sets and Double Selections may be somewhat higher.)

After completing your enrollment agreement (by buying 9 selections within 3 years), you may cancel membership at any time. If you decide to continue, you'll be eligible for our generous money-saving bonus plan.

So We Want You To Wear These Distinguished Gemfire Simulated Diamond Rings FREE

EACH RING GIFT BOXED

For 30 Days... No Risk... Or Obligation!

IMPORTANT:

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN TELL YOUR GEMFIRE DIAMONDS ARE NOT CHEAP COSTUME JEWELRY.

A. Count the facets. Gemfire stones all have 58 facets — just like expensive diamonds prepared by diamond cutters.

B. Examine your stone in a dimly lighted room. It should sparkle like in daylight. Gemfire stones sparkle even in the moonlight.

C. Study your ring under a powerful magnifying glass to look for flaws. Gemfire stones have clarity — are flawlessly perfect. No specks! No blemishes! No cracks!

EMPRESS

6123 Wh. Mtg. (SS) $16.95

WORDS AND PICTURES

Words and pictures don't begin to show the beauty, brilliance, and fire of these magnificent Gemfire rings. That's why we want you to wear them and judge them on their own merits — not on what we tell you. See if your friends and family can tell them from an expensive "natural" diamond worth 100 times as much. In all probability you can fool them if you want to. Not many people can tell these brilliant Gemfire simulates from the expensive real ones. Yet now you can own these beautiful rings at amazingly low prices.

AN EXCITING GIFT FOR SOMEONE SPECIAL

These Gemfire rings make a much appreciated gift for a special someone in your life. They will last a lifetime. Give for birthdays, anniversaries or just as a wonderful surprise. And even if you choose to tell, your loved one will be amazed and proud that you were clever enough to find such an expensive-looking ring at these remarkably low prices. The difference between it and a natural diamond could make a down payment on a new car, or home, or even a wonderful vacation for just you two!

With Our Guarantee You Take No Risks.

If at the end of 30 days you are not completely satisfied, return by INSURED MAIL for purchase price refund. At any time, or for any reason, and in any condition, you may return your Gemfire simulated diamond by INSURED MAIL for FREE replacement.

LOW PRICE DOESN'T

Mean Low Quality. Gemfire simulated diamonds are not cheap fakes. In fact, Gemfires are carefully cut and polished by skilled craftsmen in the same manner as natural diamonds. They have 58 facets — just like natural diamonds. They are hand set in heavy 18Kt-HGE (heavy gold electroplate), or solid sterling silver by master craftsmen. They shine like a $1,000 diamond — but cost less than $20.00.

EVEN MILLIONAIRES

Wear Simulated Diamonds. Today many wealthy people, TV and movie stars feel unsafe making public appearances wearing expensive jewelry. Oftentimes they keep their diamonds in a safe deposit box and wear these master-crafted Gemfire simulated diamonds and impress your friends!

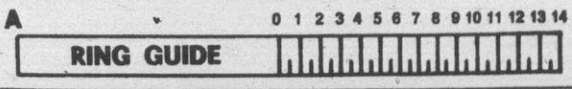

How to Find Your Ring Size

1. Cut a strip of paper 3 inches long and 1/4 inch wide.

2. Wrap the strip around the finger that is to wear the ring. Then place a dot, on the strip where it meets the end.

3. Place the dot on the strip of paper at "A" on the ring guide. The number at the end of the strip is your ring size.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Your Daily Pressures, and the Strange Ways They Affect You

True or False: Stress is something that people should always try to avoid. (See number 1)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Stress is something that people should always try to avoid.
2. If you face a stressful situation—a dreaded ordeal or confrontation with someone who is a threat to you—there is a simple way to reduce the stress and relieve much of the wear and tear on your nerves.
3. One of the best antidotes for stress is leisure.
4. If a father is under stress when his child is conceived, it's likely to be a girl.
5. How much stress a person can take in stride depends to a large extent on his sense of humor.

ANSWERS

1. False. A certain amount of stress is very desirable and serves a useful and valuable purpose. As one university psychologist observes after an extensive study, "Some stress is necessary to bring out the best in us; stress is only a problem when it gets too severe. And it should be remembered that stress can arise when life is too easy as well as when it is too hard." (In fact, the possibility that an easy life—relatively free from stresses and pressures—may shorten the life-span is strongly suggested by a study of over a thousand animals, which showed that those who were subjected to "cares and joys, setbacks and surprises of all kinds" lived longer and were more immune to illness than those who were kept under "ideal conditions.")

2. True. Psychological studies have demonstrated that "the presence of another person in a stressful situation reduces stress, and the presence of a friend reduces stress more than the presence of a stranger." So if there is an ordeal coming up that you're not sure you are capable of facing, take a friend along as a stress-reducer. Or if you can't find a friend, a casual acquaintance will be better than nothing.

3. True. But this doesn't mean idleness, doing nothing or simply "resting." One human-behaviorial specialist defines leisure—the therapeutic variety—succinctly: "Leisure is not the stopping of constructive activity; it is not the time left over after work. Leisure is a state of mind; it is a way of being at peace with oneself and what one is doing. It is doing what one wants to do and what one chooses to do." So if pressure and stresses are getting you down, get some of this special ingredient into your daily activity. It can work wonders—even if you can only spare brief periods of time for it.

4. True—according to studies cited by a team of Washington University scientists. Evidence shows that "the less-stressed parent tends to reproduce its own gender. In other words, if the father is in a less-stressed condition than the mother at the time of conception, there is more chance that the offspring will be a male. Conversely, if the mother is in a less-stressed condition, there is more chance that the offspring will be a female. If both parents are equally non-stressed or equally under stress, and other sex-determinant factors are equal, the male-female offspring ratio will be 50-50." Further studies undertaken by the investigators have provided additional support for this finding.

5. True. Psychiatric studies of men's reactions to extreme stresses and pressures during war have shown that those best able to take stress in their stride tended to share these traits in common: a well-developed sense of humor, an ability to see the funny side of a difficult and threatening situation and an outlook characterized by optimism, self-confidence and faith in their own destinies. On the other hand, men who were lacking in these qualities tended to make the poorest showing under conditions of stress.

I love tobacco. I don't smoke.

Walt Garrison, football and rodeo star.

If I'm a guy who loves tobacco, how come I never take a puff?

Well, because I use "smokeless tobacco."

All it takes is a pinch of "smokeless" in between my cheek and gum. Feels real relaxin' in there. And I get full, rich tobacco pleasure.

Another thing is, "smokeless tobacco" can't tie up my hands. So I can use it no matter what I'm doing.

If you'd like to go "smokeless," here's what you do. Just look for three great brands.

There's Skoal, my favorite, which has a wintergreen taste.

Copenhagen, a straight tobacco.

And Happy Days Mint. All three dated for freshness.

Smokeless tobacco. A pinch is all it takes.

For a free booklet that explains how to get the full enjoyment of "smokeless tobacco" —as well as a few free pinches that you can try for yourself—write to "Smokeless Tobacco," United States Tobacco Company, Dept. E77, Greenwich, Connecticut 06830.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

MY HEEL RUNNETH OVER

My shoes both have run-over heels,
Run over not by autos' wheels,
For which I'm glad, but by my feet—
My new-bought shoes quite soon look beat.

My wife says I "toe out" too much,
Resembling Chaplin just a touch.
I say, "Should I walk pigeon-toed?"
And then I do so, down the road.

"Oh, don't be silly," she reproves me,
So I resume, as it behooves me,
My toed-put walk, left foot and right,
The one she married me despite.

After comparing incomes with a friend he hadn't seen in years, a man asked, "How do you manage on so little?" "Oh, I do all right," the friend replied. "But the wife and kids are having a struggle."—Lane Olinghouse

It's very reassuring to talk to people who keep saying, "You know." Because nine times out of ten, I don't.
—Robert Orben

You'll always stay young if you live honestly, eat slowly, sleep sufficiently, work industriously, worship faithfully —and lie about your age.
—Tom Gallagher

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES
Kids see life differently. Send contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

My nine-year-old niece, when told there would be pink flowers on the bodice of her flower-girl dress, said worriedly to her mother, "Oh, dear, they don't know that I don't have a bodice yet!" —Mrs. Edward Llerewa
Chevy Chase, Md.

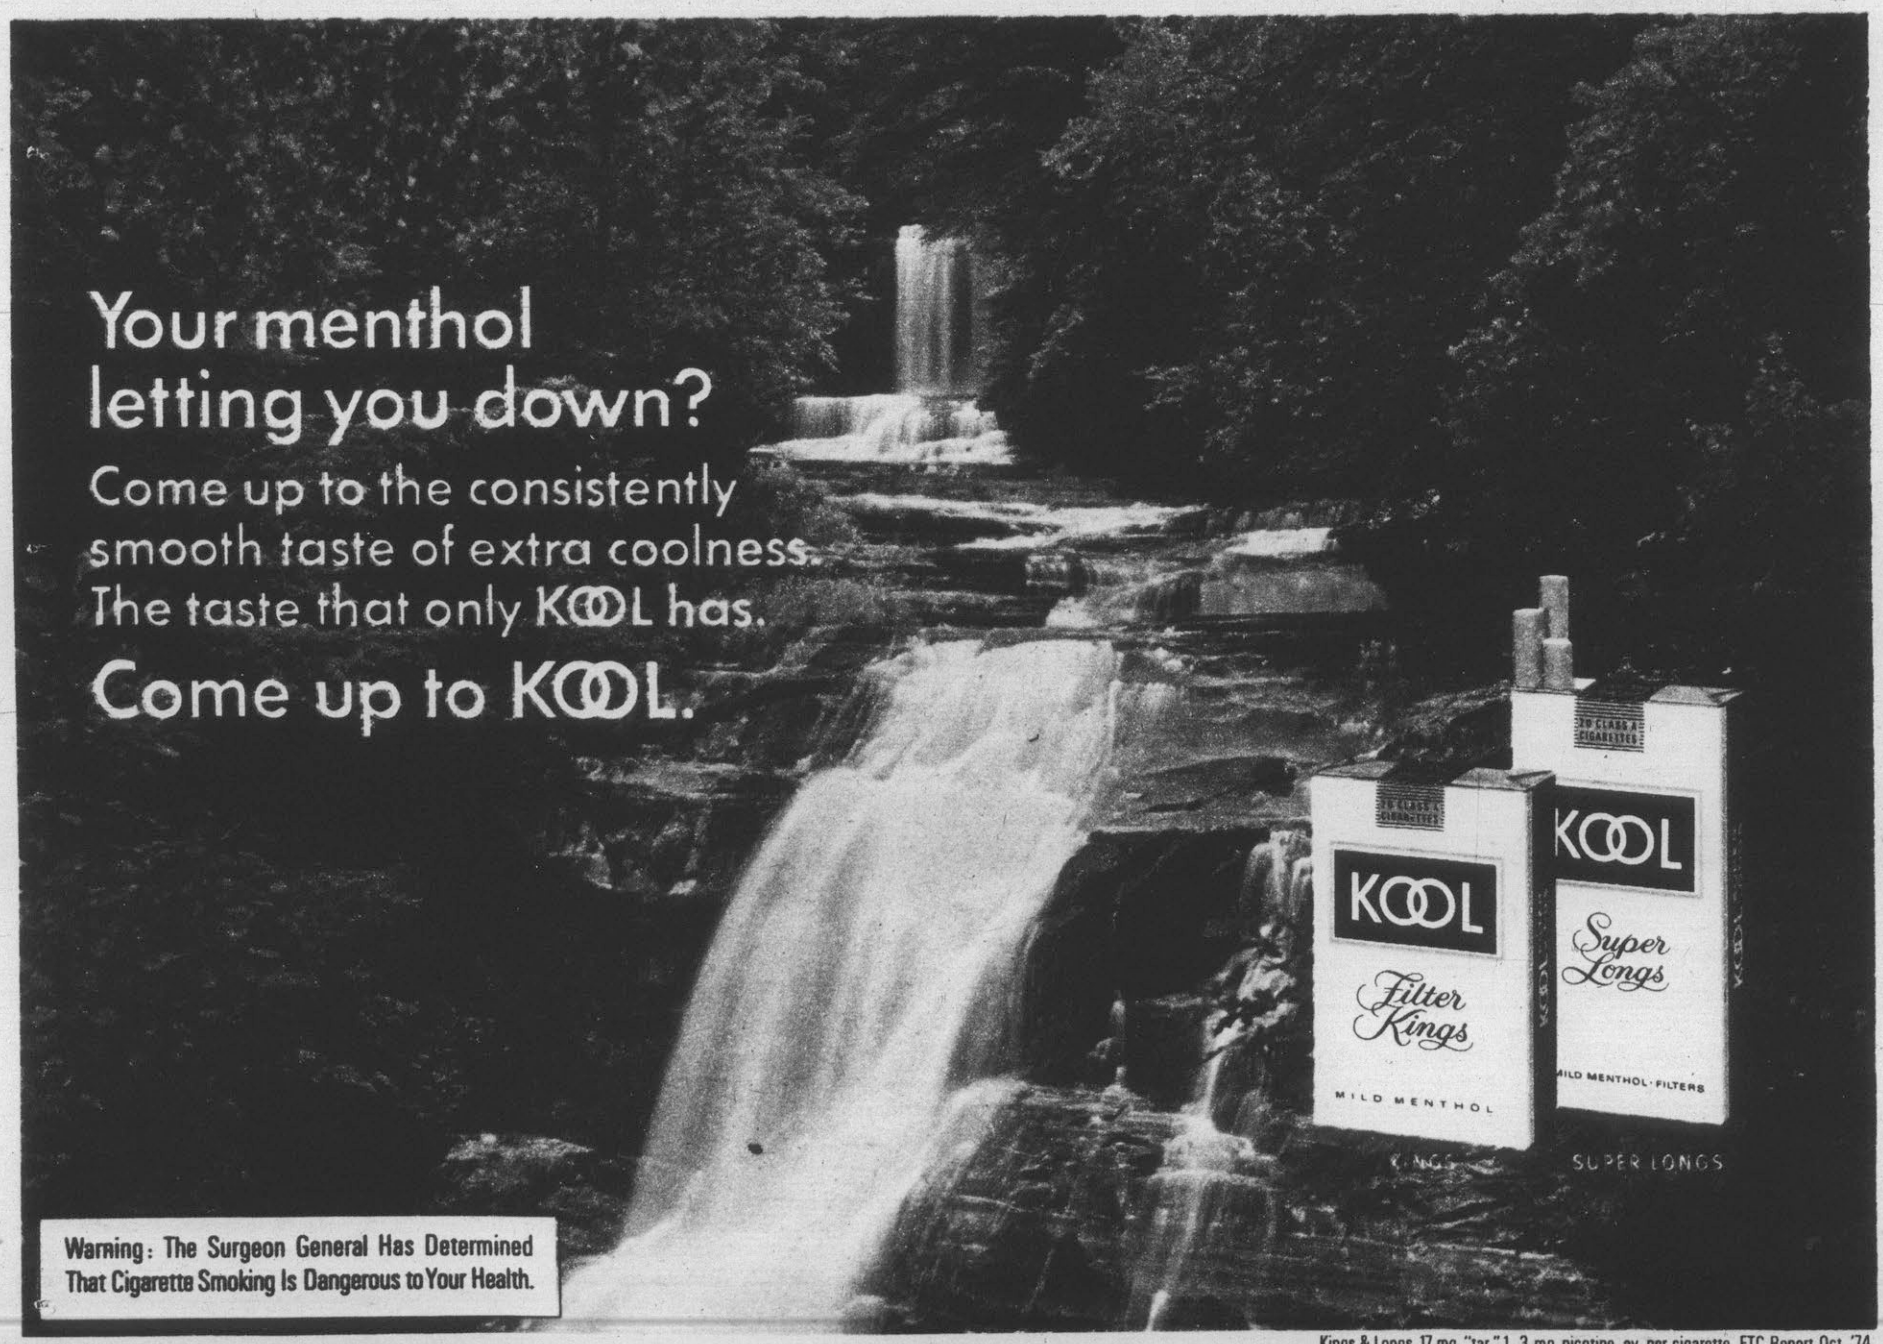

One car dealer in my neighborhood called up the Better Business Bureau and asked them to send him some.

DRIVE ON, JEEVES
A homemade special

The car that Bill Ratcliffe built is 18 feet long, has six doors, can do 90 miles an hour, gets 20 miles to the gallon and "is great fun to drive," says Bill, 28. How did he build it? With secondhand materials and a 2.4 Jaguar engine. Car buffs will also be interested to note that this supermobile has nine seats, a stereo, a radio, disk brakes, a sun roof and an intercom to connect the back-seat passengers with the driver. The question is: How does it corner?

How the rich stay rich: " 'Stinginess' is an occupational disease of the millionaire. The man to whom 'two-fifty' means a quarter of a million dollars is likely to be obsessional about $2.50 or even a quarter. . . . The more retentive the Midas is . . . the more likely he is to last out the long run and to bequeath an intact and inviolate fortune. The historian of wealth must be impressed by the similarities between Rockefeller, Getty, Ford and Hughes: secretive, taciturn men whose grip on their businesses was or is only matched by a firm hold on their privy purses." From "The Common Millionaire," by Robert Heller (Delacorte Press, $8.95).

TINY TIM
Absentee father

When Miss Vicki abandoned her husband and took with her their 3½-year-old daughter Tulip, Tiny vowed never to set eyes on the child until she is 15. "If I visited her, it would only be for short, heartbreaking spells. I'd have to explain why I was leaving and when I'd come back. I couldn't take all those partings. The child would get confused, and I think this kind of relationship would be very destructive emotionally to both of us in the long run. I take care of her with $100 a month, and if things get better, I'll increase the amount. I send birthday and Christmas presents, and as soon as she can read, I'll write. But I'll never see Tulip until she's well into her teens."

Of all the young boys who dream at ten years old of starting their own rock band, Bo Donaldson, now 19, is one who succeeded. Here's how it happened: "I was in the fourth grade when the nuns at my Cincinnati school needed entertainment for a PTA meeting. I put together a six-piece group, and after that we stuck together. When I was 12, we went on the road with Paul Revere and The Raiders. Every night after a concert we'd go to bed early, get up real early in the morning and fly back to Cincinnati, where Mom picked us up at the airport and drove us to school. As soon as school was over, she'd take us back to the airport so we could fly out for our concert that night." Seven years later Bo and The Heywoods hit the "Top Ten" with "Billy, Don't Be a Hero"!
