

Patches Of Blue Seen On U.S. Economic Horizon

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government economic experts say there now is firm evidence that the nation's deep recession is nearing an end, but they are not yet sure how strong the economic recovery will be.

The nation's economy should get a substantial boost from the 1974 income tax rebates that the Internal Revenue Service said Tuesday it will begin mailing to taxpayers on May 9. All of an estimated 78 million rebate checks will have been sent by June 30, the IRS said.

But even without the tax rebates, the economy would soon be on the road to recovery, government officials say.

"Every recession carries the seeds of its own recovery, and this one is no exception," Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said in an interview Tuesday.

Government economists say the recession will officially end when it hits its low point and the economic recovery begins. One key economist at the Federal Reserve Board said the low point may already have been reached.

"The economy is showing signs of bottoming out in the last few weeks even without a tax cut," said this economist, who did not want to be quoted by name. He said an economic recovery in the second half of the year "is assured, and it likely will be quite vigorous."

James L. Pate, assistant commerce secretary for economic affairs, said he also sees "encouraging signs" that the recession is approaching the bottom.

He said the recession in the first quarter has been a little worse than expected and that the upturn could come before midyear. The drop in the economy for 1975 likely will be closer to 3.5 per cent than the 3.3 per cent estimated by the administration earlier, he added.

Simon said he is sticking with his earlier predictions for an end to the recession at midyear, with a resumption of positive economic growth in the fourth quarter.

"Anybody who thinks he has a clear outlook for the future is kidding himself," Simon said.

He also said the positive indications of an economic upturn are unlikely to be seen in the unemployment statistics for some months. He said he still estimates that the jobless rate will peak at near 9 per cent — up from 8.2 per cent in February — in the months ahead.

He said unemployment should start easing by the fourth quarter.

Ask New Leadership As Cities Fall S. Viet Senate Urges 'Change'

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The South Vietnamese Senate called unanimously today for a new leadership to end the war as President Nguyen Van Thieu's government gave up the last of its enclaves in the central part of the country without a fight.

Anarchy and panic gripped five cities in the region, including Cam Ranh, now among the three-quarters of South Vietnam under North Vietnamese and Viet Cong control. In a flight from possible turmoil in Saigon, a World Airways DC8 left for the United States carrying 60 Vietnamese orphan babies.

The head of the airline, Ed Daly, said the South Vietnamese approved the evacuation of 500 other orphan babies but that the U.S. Embassy prevented their departure because it felt his plane was unsafe.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy today denied that it had blocked the departure of the 500 babies, saying the Friends of All Children, a charitable organization helping Americans adopt children, made the decision.

Thieu summoned Premier Tran Thien Khiem, his cabinet and the top military commanders to a meeting and there was speculation that a new cabinet would be announced. In a radio address, Khiem pledged to hold onto remaining government-controlled areas and "from there work toward retaking control of the entire country."

Thieu also had a meeting with U.S. Army Chief of Staff Frederick Weyand who has been in South Vietnam for a week on a fact-finding trip ordered by President Ford.

In Phnom Penh, the U.S. Embassy made plans to temporarily evacuate 15 per cent of its 200 American staff members to Thailand as rebel forces marched on the second largest city of Battambang and swept over Neak Luong, the government's last stronghold on the Mekong River.

In its first open break with Thieu, the previously pro-government Senate charged the president with "counting exclusively on a military solution ... in solving a war with many political characteristics." It said he was guilty of "an abuse of power, corruption and social injustice."

The Senate, regarded as little more than a rubber-stamp body since pro-Thieu candidates took control of it nearly two years ago, passed the resolution by a vote of 41 to 0. The vote does not have any binding effect, however.

The Senate also charged the United States with failure to respect its commitments to South Vietnam. The charge was echoed in Washington, where South Vietnamese Ambassador Tran Kim Phuong said in a television interview the United States had not lived up to the Paris cease-fire and the world probably would conclude it is safer to be an ally of the Communists than the Americans.

State Accreditation For County Schools Approved

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education yesterday accepted a comprehensive planning study on the Pitt County Schools and approved a recommendation that the county schools receive State Accreditation.

According to John McKnight, chairman of the Pitt County Planning Team, the local school unit was visited recently by a team from the State Board of Education and that word was received on March 21 that the Pitt County Schools were one of four school units out of 149 that had been approved for state accreditation.

Prior to the team's visit, McKnight explained that a county planning committee, composed of central office staff members and principals of the 22 county schools, had worked hard getting ideas and program objectives for county schools accreditation.

A recommendation will be made at the meeting of the State Board of Education Thursday that the Pitt County Schools be accorded state accreditation.

Mrs. Kathryn Lewis reported to the board that the 18 elementary schools in the county have been involved in the self-study process this school year for Southern Association Accreditation.

She explained that each of the schools had completed the initial self-study. For the remainder of this school year and the beginning of the fall of 1975, the schools will be involved with rewriting that information into the final self-study book.

"It is my feeling that this has been a tremendously successful project to date," Mrs. Lewis said. "The faculties have cooperated very well and have been honest in setting forth their strengths and weaknesses, and have already corrected a number of the weaknesses which was in their power to do."

"The principals and the chairpersons of the steering committees are to be congratulated on the fine job they have done."

"In almost every instance the self-study thus far has created a greater awareness of the total school program and a greater faculty rapport," Mrs. Lewis emphasized.

Mrs. Lewis also discussed the elementary counseling program which is being held in five schools, including Farmville Middle, Ayden Grammar, A.G. Cox, Chicod and Grifton. She explained the counselors have been involved in staff development and have worked toward developing the students' ability and growth in social skills (such as how to cope with anger, how to understand one's feelings, and how to get along in the group).

The elementary counselor does crises counseling when it is necessary but tries hard to work at a preventive developmental kind of program rather than crisis intervention.

Mrs. Lewis said the Training for Living and Learning Centers operating at Ayden Grammar and Farmville Middle School have progressed well this year.

The project objectives center around a decrease in the need for disciplinary action, a decrease in referrals to the court system, a decrease in absenteeism and a decrease in poor school attitudes on the part of the students. On the part of the teachers, the project centers around an increased awareness of alternative methods of instruction and of dealing with middle school students.

Mrs. Lewis presented a list of regulations concerning the Family Privacy Act for the handling of school records to the board members. The regulations will be studied and adoption of the rules is expected at the May board meeting.

Carl Toot, occupational education director for Pitt County Schools presented a plan to the board to eliminate sex discrimination and sex bias in occupational education.

Toot said the Division of Occupational Education is trying to make all occupational programs available to all students. Toot said that classes for boys and classes for girls will be eliminated. Students of either sex may enroll in any occupational program they desire. Boys may participate in home economics and girls may enroll in carpentry or welding, etc., if they desire. The student's sex will not be considered when he is enrolling for classes.

Toot said that in most cases, Pitt County schools were already doing this and that students have been allowed to enroll in the occupational classes they preferred—that sex was not considered.

The board of education accepted the request from the Division of Occupational Education that sex discrimination be eliminated.

Board members accepted a safety plan which was developed to ensure the safest possible working conditions for the employees of the Pitt County Schools.

The responsibility to coordinate safety activities was assigned to Carl Toot. He will serve as chairman of the county safety committee and coordinate the activities and efforts of principals and department heads in their compliance with the requirements of the safety plan.

Toot explained that the Occupational Safety and Health Act requires that a safety plan be developed to protect all employees of the Pitt County Schools.

Don Parrott, Chet Emerson and Etsil Gordon of the Boys' Club of Pitt County appeared before the board to request permission to rent an activity bus during the summer months to transport boys from Ayden, Farmville, Bethel and Winterville to participate in activities in Greenville.

Parrott, president of the Boys' Club, told the board that the program had been expanded for the past several years to involve boys living outside Greenville but that transportation is a problem.

Mrs. Gordon said she felt the summer program enhanced the public school program and that the two groups could work together for the betterment of the schools.

"We do not have the funds nor the buildings to have programs in various parts of the county," Mrs. Gordon said. "Therefore, we would like to bring the boys to Greenville where we do have a building. Our program is

HOW APPOINTED?

I would like to know how certain positions such as the trustees of Pitt Memorial Hospital are filled. It seems to be just a closed corporation type of thing. Mrs. L.M.

Appointments to most positions in the county are made by the County Commissioners. County Commissioner Charles Gaskins said, "Since you mentioned the Hospital Board specifically and these were the last appointments made, the County Commissioners asked the hospital trustees themselves to give us suggestions of several persons to fill each vacated position. We then chose one. At the prompting of the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters, we filled one of the positions with a woman. (Mrs. Helen Moseley of Greenville). With the Planning Board, it's even more difficult, we have to look at each of the townships and try to find someone with an interest who will attend the meetings regularly."

Gaskins said the Commissioners would welcome suggestions from anyone in the county about appointments to various commissions and committees. Letters or phone calls may be directed to any of the Commissioners or to the County Manager's office.

About 250 Rally To Protest Drug Violation Arrest

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

An estimated 250 persons gathered at the Pitt County Court House yesterday afternoon to protest the arrest of Greenville physician Dr. Andrew A. Best here last week on drug-law violation charges.

A black doctor, Best was arrested by State Bureau of Investigation agents and Greenville police on six counts of illegally dispensing drugs. The charges resulted from an undercover investigation—part of a state-wide crackdown on alleged illegal drug trafficking—that resulted in the arrest of nine physicians throughout the state, including another Greenville doctor, W.S. Dawson, who was charged yesterday with eight counts of illegally dispensing drugs.

The rally at the court house followed a march down Fifth and Washington Streets by about 125 persons, carrying signs reading, "Stop Harassing Black Leaders," "Support Our Dr. Best and Justice For All."

The Rev. Albert Williams, speaking at the rally, said "Why are we here? To protest the unnecessary behavior" of the SBI, "... the harassment of one of our finest citizens."

Criticizing the news media for what he said were magnified and distorted reports of the case, Williams said "we are here to support the entire medical profession."

"Stand up. Tell Greenville ... Pitt County we are one. Together we stand. Divided we fall."

The Rev. B.B. Felder, who also spoke at the rally charged Best was "being investigated because he's a black man."

"We must remember, if one goes, let's all go."

"Let me warn you. It's one man now. Another tomorrow ... another the next day."

Best, a former member of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors, is currently a member of the Board of Trustees of East Carolina University and a member of the state Human Relations Commission.

N.C. Budget Cut Required

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina legislators were told today that because of the recession the state's general fund budget for the next two fiscal years should be cut $224.2 million below the recommendations of Gov. Jim Holshouser and the Advisory Budget Commission.

The Joint Committee on the Economy also was told that highway fund revenues for the coming biennium are expected to be down by $109.3 million from budget estimates.

The committee voted to relay the figures to the legislative appropriations committees as information.

The committee acted after receiving reports from three subcommittees—general fund, highway fund and depressed industries.

The subcommittee on the general fund came up with its $224.2 shortfall after receiving gloomy revenue estimates by Kenneth Howard, state budget officer.

Howard told the legislators that none of the state revenue estimates made in December accurately forecast the depth of the state's economic slide.

In its report to the Economy Committee, the general fund subcommittee said the state "seems likely to be in the midst of the most severe recession since the 1930s." It added that "the economy will probably reach bottom in the latter part of 1975 with gradual recovery in 1976 and 1977."

The report said that although state revenues still are rising "they are rising at a rate that does not seem to be sufficient to meet the 1975-77 expenditures in the recommended budget."

The subcommittee on the highway fund said it was basing its estimate on $109.3 million highway fund shortfall on the assumption that congress will adopt some form of energy program that will result in a reduction in gasoline sales.

Tipsy Rats Help Prove A Nutrition Viewpoint

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Family Health Editor

Once upon a time some tipsy rats helped prove a point about alcoholism.

The point: No one who follows good nutritional practices ever becomes an alcoholic.

Another part of the lesson goes like this: Malnutrition contributes to the development of alcoholism.

The now classic tale of the tipsy rats and some quite sober ones was recalled in an interview with Dr. Emanuel Cheraskin, a professor at the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

The professor and chairman of the University's Department of Oral Medicine maintains that persons often develop diseases—including alcoholism—when they do not eat properly.

"Just as improper eating can make one sick, proper nutrition can make one well," he said.

He calls his theory "psychodietetics."

The research involving the tipsy rats was done by the senior elder of contemporary nutritionists, Dr. Roger Williams, a Texan. It was duplicated at Loma Linda University in California by investigators who induced a craving for alcohol in rats by feeding them a diet high in refined carbohydrates, low in vitamins, minerals and proteins.

"The rats were not psychologically stressed," Dr. Cheraskin said. "They were not raised by 'mean parents.'"

"But they turned eagerly to drink when deprived of a proper diet."

Thirty rats were divided into three groups for the 16-week study. One group stayed on a high carbohydrate diet; another group ate the same diet plus vitamins and minerals; a third group consumed a balanced diet.

All the rats were given a choice between plain drinking water and whiskey. The balanced diet group generally preferred water.

The high carbohydrate rats went to the whiskey, drinking the equivalent of what would be a quart of 100-proof whiskey a day. And the rats on the poor diet plus vitamins and minerals drank only one-third as much booze as the alcoholic rodents.

Dr. Cheraskin in a new book also tells about proper diet and vitamins as the keys to good health. It is called "Psychodietetics" (Stein and Day). The co-authors are Dr. W.N. Ringsdorf Jr., also from the University of Alabama, and Arline Brecher.

"Psychodietetics," Dr. Cheraskin said, "shows how food therapy has already helped thousands of afflicted persons to overcome so-called mental problems that aren't mental at all."

The theory behind psychodietetics is controversial but it is gaining many followers, according to the professor. His book is based on 25 years of clinical experience showing that many problems, especially emotional disorders, actually have their roots in improper diet.

"The wrong food can even make you blue," Dr. Cheraskin said.

In the book he described the optimal diet—including vitamins and minerals. He is among those scientists who believe the recommended daily allowances of certain vitamins and minerals are far too low.

"And depending on your lifestyle," Dr. Cheraskin said, "You should take special vitamins."

Say you are a woman taking oral contraceptives. "The pills interfere with the absorption of certain vitamins," Dr. Cheraskin said.

"These include vitamin C, vitamin B-12, vitamin B-6, and folic acid."

"If you're staying on the pill, you should take more of these."

"The vitamin deficiency can make one nervous, jittery and sleepless."

Another case of a lifestyle or habit influencing your intake of vitamins is smoking cigarettes.

Dr. Cheraskin said research has shown that every cigarette destroys 25 milligrams of vitamin C a day.

"As a result," he said, "smokers need larger doses of vitamin C daily—from 200 to 300 milligrams."

Understood properly and practiced prudently, Dr. Cheraskin believes psychodietetics could lead to food control over moods.

Dr. Cheraskin's optimal diet plan includes foods to eat liberally, foods to eat sparingly and foods to avoid.

"The optimal diet" is not a diet in the old sense. There are no menus to follow, no calories or carbohydrates to count, no need to measure or weigh portions of food.

Dr. Cheraskin belongs to nine professional organizations, including the American Medical Association and the New York Academy of Sciences.

He has published over 220 research reports in scientific and medical journals.

"Psychodietetics" is his first book for laymen. Before that one he wrote a dozen books for the scientific community.

Too many bills? Not enough money? Wondering how you're going to make your rent or mortgage payment? Are your car payments overdue? Working all you can and still can't make ends meet? Out of a job?

You're not alone! Economic conditions are causing problems for many people in North Carolina. Some communities have industries that are not affected by the current recession. But in other areas of the state, the rate of unemployment is very high.

Many families have postponed purchasing decisions, especially if they are planning to buy a home or new car. Uncertainty of income makes most of us hesitate about taking on new debt.

What can you do about the debt you already have, if your income is now reduced? Stretching a reduced income often seems an impossibility, but if you still have some income, although reduced in amount, here are some suggestions:

—Each pay period, make sure you pay your debts before making any other purchases, as much as possible. It is important not only to protect your credit rating, but to make sure that items you are buying on credit are not re-possessed.

—If you cannot pay all of your fixed debts—rent or home mortgage, car payment or other installment credit, go to the creditor and explain your situation. Never miss a payment without making some explanation to the creditor. Most creditors will try to help you work out a plan to keep what you are buying on credit.

—Especially if you cannot make your house payments, go to the lender and explain your situation. Some lenders have special emergency plans that will give you temporary relief. They may be able to re-write your loan at a lower rate of interest, or spread the loan over a longer period of time, both of which will make your monthly payments lower. Don't risk losing your home, because you have to live someplace! If you have good reasons for buying the home, you should try to keep it for the very same reasons. Only if your financial situation has changed drastically and there is no hope for improvement should you consider selling the home and looking for less expensive housing. If the housing market is depressed in your area, you will probably take a loss in selling the home now.

—Do not expect old debts or past due payments to be forgiven, unless you go into bankruptcy. Missed payments must still be paid (and the interest due on them) but they will be incorporated into a new payment plan if you can refinance.

—Never hide from a bill collector! Most of us are embarrassed if we cannot pay our debts and don't like to talk about them. A frank discussion of your income situation may bring about a solution. After all, most lenders do not want your car or home. They would rather have money and will do what seems best for you and them so that you can pay off the debt. Reduced payments are often more acceptable than no payments.

Furniture Bargains: Make Them Or Buy Them

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Living Editor
Hada Lugo-Pagan de Slosser speaks from experience when she advises consumers on furniture and clothing bargains.

Mrs. Slosser, an associate in consumer education for Cornell University's Extension Service, is busily outfitting a Manhattan apartment and a suburban house with secondhand and homemade furniture and antiques.

In an interview, she said she and her dentist husband, Jonathan, have made a lot of the furniture for the apartment themselves. They have built bookcases, and she herself put up a double shelf in the bathroom to serve as a bureau-dressing table. She also made curtain rods from wooden dowels for their nearly 100-year-old house on Deer Island, Litchfield, Conn.

Mrs. Slosser said the rods cost 15 cents apiece and the brackets were free, made from scraps of wood left over from other projects. She traced the bracket pattern from a $1.25 set she saw in a gift shop.

Mrs. Slosser, a native of San German, Puerto Rico, said they are cutting corners in their city apartment to have money enough for antiques for the country house.

"The antiques are an investment. If you put money in the bank, you have to pay taxes on the interest. It's better to buy something we will enjoy that will increase in value," she said.

At work, her duties include a five-day-a-week consumer message on a Spanish-speaking radio station (WADO) in Manhattan and articles about wise shopping in a monthly publication the extension service distributes to news media. She is currently on leave to work on her doctoral dissertation, a study in East Harpem of the cultural significance of Puerto Rican food habits.

For people with the time and skill to make their own furniture, Mrs. Slosser suggests open bookcases because they can also be used as bed headboards or room partitions.

You can always use a staple gun or curtain rods to attach backing made from pretty printed sheets, she added.

But what if you're not handy with a hammer?

"Look in junky shops and watch the bulletin boards in supermarkets for articles on sale."

"Secondhand furniture doesn't have to be in perfect shape. Look for potential: can you replace missing screws? You can paint it if you don't like the color.

"You can tighten screws (to steady a piece of furniture) but not nails; the holes may be too big."

Mrs. Slosser usually advises professional removal of old paint from large pieces of furniture. Stripping it at home is risky, especially if there are children or pets around, because stripper fumes are flammable and dangerous to inhale.

"Feel foam-filled furniture. If it is lumpy, it is in poor condition.

"Avoid furniture that is glued together. Look for smooth wood, and look at the joints of drawers and doors to make sure they're not warped," she said. If drawers or doors stick, you can always wax, soap or sandpaper the runners.

"Know the height of a table before you buy chairs to go with it. Look underneath to make sure there is leg room.

"Sit in the chairs. The back is very important. It must be wide enough to be comfortable. Some people like straight-backed chairs and some like slanted ones."

Mrs. Slosser suggests mixing different styles and periods, not just for appearances but because you spend less at one time and may, in the long run, save money.

Have Father Contact Bank

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My father is 59, and a retired coal miner on disability.

He bought U.S. Savings Bonds years ago through the payroll office, and kept them at home. Our house burned down 25 years ago, and all the bonds were destroyed. Dad never had copies of the bond numbers.

Is there any way he can trace these numbers? Everyone we talked to says we should forget it.

MRS. P.

DEAR MRS. P.: Don't forget it. Your father should contact his local bank, or the nearest Federal Reserve Bank, and request Form PD 1048.

He should then contact his former employer to help in filling out this form, as sometimes the payroll offices keep records of the serial numbers and dates. Your father should fill out the form in duplicate, keep one copy for himself and send the other to the Bureau of Public Debt (the address is on the form).

It may take a while, but eventually your father will get his bonds.

DEAR ABBY: Paul (not his real name) and I have been married for 22 years, and I must say he has been an ideal husband and father. He is loving, sober, generous, and considerate.

About a year ago, Paul started going out every Wednesday night—"with the boys"—or so he says. He never mentions any of the "boys" by name, and I know of no one in our circle of friends who goes with him.

My problem is that Paul refuses to say where he goes—and with whom.

We can never make any plans for Wednesday night, because that is Paul's night out.

Abby, this not knowing where he goes is slowly driving me to distraction. My demands that he tell me, or to cease going, have gotten me nowhere.

I am seriously considering hiring a private detective to follow him, but wonder what harm it could do to our marriage if Paul is innocent of any wrong-doing, and learns that I've had him followed.

What is your advice?

DOUBTING DODO

DEAR DOUBTING: Grow up. You don't have to know where your husband is every minute of his life. Isn't an adult man (or woman) entitled to some real personal freedom without being held accountable for his time 24 hours a day? And wouldn't the hiring of a private detective be the ultimate assault on that freedom, and an insult as well?

If you want to ruin your ideal marriage, just continue to "demand" that your otherwise perfect husband give you an hourly accounting of his time. Or have him followed.

DEAR ABBY:

The saying, "live and let live" is a tolerant point of view. But Abby, Live and HELP live is exactly what you do.

Your wisdom, wit and humor is a blessed inspiration. For 19 years of pleasure, My sincere appreciation!

Reason For Positive Thinking

"Operation Accentuate the Positive" has been launched by the local Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association.

The Chamber, working in cooperation with various organizations and local businesses, says Operation A.T.P. is designed to inform the public about the positive side of the local economy.

"Greenville is fortunate that its economy is comparatively good during these days when the nation has serious economic problems," Chamber Manager Harold Creech said.

Operation A.T.P. hopefully will dispel gloom and stimulate the economy through wise spending.

We won't have to look very hard to find positive aspects of our local economy. We feel that local citizens have been fully informed that the future is bright as it can be for Greenville, Pitt County and surrounding areas. It is well known that new industries are opening or are in the process of being constructed which will furnish additional employment for our citizens. With world food needs rising, the prospects for farming are bright and even with the economic problems which our state government faces, we think that the ECU Medical School will be funded this year.

We are currently constructing a new hospital which, in all probability, will be used in conjunction with the new Medical School.

This month, bids will be taken for a major road construction project to dual lane Memorial Drive north from Third Street to beyond the Stokes Highway, as The Daily Reflector recently reported.

Just last week President Ford signed a tax bill which will mean a tax rebate for every Pitt County taxpayer and a $50 bonus payment to all Social Security recipients. This will furnish additional buying power on the local scene.

In Greenville and Pitt County we have every reason to Accentuate the Positive. Most indicators of the local economy are positive and that can only mean a sound economy for our area and a better life ahead for all of our citizens.

"But all I wanted was a simple, li'l ol' Boy-Scout knife!"

'Peace' And A Terror

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — For some Vietnamese, there is peace in their land for the first time in almost a generation. For hundreds of thousands of others, there is terror and flight and, perhaps, death. The Communist-led offensive virtually has ended the war in the central highlands — if not for the first time since the partition of Vietnam in 1954, than at least since 1960.

"Do not worry, we are soon going to have peace," said a group of peasants hiding in a pagoda in Da Nang last week to British Quaker Paul Jee. "The others are coming now. We will have peace."

"The others" have shown little charity to some of the refugees. Communist shelling and an ambush halted a column of an estimated 150,000 refugees fleeing Pleiku and Kontum in the early days of the offensive two weeks ago. About one-fifth of the refugees managed to reach safety. The fate of many of the others still is unknown.

The Communists have shelled the Da Nang beaches from which military refugees sought to swim to rescue ships. They effectively halted the exodus of civilians in small boats trying to reach large American freighters waiting off Da Nang to haul them south.

Deputy Premier Phan Quang Dan has claimed the Communists have imposed a 24-hour curfew in Da Nang. Chaos reigned there for five days between the flight of South Vietnamese officials and the arrival of the Communists to raise their flag and consolidate their power.

There have been no reports of mass killings of the sort reported after the fierce fighting and takeover in Hue in the Tet offensive early in 1968. Government authorities said they found mass graves of 5,000

Back Roads Keep 'Flavor'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—North Carolina's back country roads have a tradition of colorful, history-laden—even occasionally salty-names.

And they'll keep those names, as tradition yields hard to efficiency. After all, it's a lot easier to remember Snow Creek Church than to recite trippingly State Road 1437.

Efficiency and uniformity would indicate that a statewide numbering system for the 60,000 and more miles of rural road would be desirable. There are a lot of road name similarities and conflicts: local squabbles over what a road will be called, single stretches of road changing names two or three times; and unconnected pieces of road bearing the same names.

So the word went out from Raleigh: phase out the road names in favor of numbers. As sign lettering faded and posts fell or were knocked down, the numbers went up in place.

"The divisions had instructions a year or so ago to replace the names with numbers, but that has been reversed. We are not gonna continue to do that," says

Jack Murdock, secondary roads officer with the State Department of Transportation.

Backlash

"We have not been systematically taking down the road name signs... and we are not going to be taking down those signs; public opinion won't let us," Murdock said.

But in some locations around the state, the bureaucratic game of which rule is in effect seems to be holding forth; there are scattered complaints from people saying sign names are being replaced by numbers.

"We are not wholesale replacing names with numbers, and if we are, we can stop it," says Murdock, who admits that some highway division officials may still be following an old policy.

"Just tell the people that if there was a name sign on their road and it has been replaced by a number, write me a letter and we will take care of it," Murdock said. (That's Jack Murdock, Secondary Roads Officer, State Department of Transportation, Highway Building, Raleigh).

Even so, there may be a few places where state officials will unofficially buck replacing a name sign once removed: there are some awfully off-color road names about, Murdock said. He would like to see such names as Pigen or Dirty Ankle phased out.

Even new roads can be known by name rather than number, and the state has a policy on that.

"It's a local situation, and involves the local Boards of County Commissioners. If the people can get together on a name for a bridge or road, and the county commissioners will go along, we will.

"The only time we buck the local name is when a particular road name is required as part of a right-of-way agreement between a property owner and the state," Murdock said.

Part Of Deal

That happens on occasion when a property owner donates the land for a road and insists that the name be a particular one.

"On any new road, we just put up a number sign... but if we get a request to put up a name on the signpole, we will. But it has to come through the county board," Murdock said.

"Otherwise, there can be so much controversy that we just don't want to be in the middle of half the people wanting one name, half another." The same rule applies to changing an existing road name.

The road numbering system has been used since the 1950s, and for official purposes the numbers are put on maps and work orders in the Department of Transportation.

But as local folk cling to the familiar names, Murdock admits that a "bunch of controversies" have meant the policy reversal.

Cabarrus County, in the meantime, made a sweeping revision of all state roads; renaming them and installing green signs atop slender, round poles instead of the familiar black letters on white which the state uses.

Cabarrus also changed the designation State Road to Rural Road. The change violated state law regarding road names, numbers, design of signs, and procedures. "We would have called their hands in Cabarrus County if they had asked us before they did it," Murdock said. "But they didn't, so the new system will stay."

Does Hughes Own CIA?

WASHINGTON—Minderman knocked on the door at 11 o'clock at night.

"I had to talk to you," he apologized. "Something has been driving me nuts."

"What is it, Minderman?" "It's about the Russian submarine the CIA tried to raise from the Pacific Ocean."

Minderman tends to be slightly paranoid, but since most of his paranoia in the past has turned out to be true I have to take him seriously. "Well," he said, "it turns out that according to all the stories the CIA was using Howard Hughes as a cover for their operations." "That's only reasonable," I said. "Howard Hughes is a perfect front for the CIA."

"Okay," said Minderman nervously. "But suppose it's just the opposite. Suppose the CIA is really a cover for Howard Hughes. Suppose Howard Hughes owns the CIA?"

I whistled. "Wow, I never thought of that. That would make a lot more sense than what is going on right now. But why would Howard Hughes want to raise a Russian submarine?" "He didn't want to raise a Russian submarine. He just had that story leaked to hide the reason why he built a $350 million boat. What he really wanted the ship for was to search for rare minerals on the ocean floor."

"But that is what they announced when they first launched the ship," I said.

"Aha," said Minderman, "that is how clever Howard Hughes really is. He announced he built the boat to search for high-grade ore. Everyone pooh-poohed it, which is what he was counting on. They all assumed the real reason he invested all that money was to raise an M-68 Russian submarine which is what Howard wanted them to think in the first place."

"I believe I'm just about to lose you, Minderman," I said. "Even the Soviets were taken in by it. They assumed from the start that Howard was after their code machine and atomic missiles. In the meantime, Hughes was raking in all kinds of minerals off the ocean floor."

"But the Soviets aren't stupid. Surely they knew that if we let the story out about raising the sub they would have to figure something else was going on."

"It was a desperation move on the part of Howard. He probably called up Colby and chewed him out, and told him to go to all the newspaper offices and warn everyone if they printed the sub story national security would be endangered. Howard was certain Jack Anderson would break it."

"Which he did," I said. "But do you have anything more concrete to support your belief that the CIA is

The movement looking to a nine-month school term for Greenville received additional impetus here last night when two parent-teacher organizations voted in favor of the proposal.

The endorsement follows favorable action by the local post of the American Legion and the Kiwanis Clubs and other organizations appreciating the value of a nine month school to the children of the city are expected to take similar action in the near future.

Plans are nearing completion for the Boy Scout Jubilee in recognition of the 25th Anniversary of Scouting to be held in connection with the North Carolina Dogwood Festival April 25th through 28th. Over 100 scouts from the East Carolina Council will attend.

The Jubilee will be held in Chapel Hill, and will be highlighted by a giant scout pageant in Kenan Stadium Saturday.

The INSIDE REPORT

Warning By Phil Burton

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Rep. Phillip Burton of California, powerful chairman of the House Democratic caucus, personally warned Vice President Nelson Rockefeller last week that he "had the votes" to roll over presidential vetoes of anti-recession spending bills then moving through the overwhelmingly Democratic Congress.

The setting for the unpublishable Rockefeller-Burton conversation was Rockefeller's rambling mansion on Foxhall Road here. With Rockefeller butlers padding quietly to serve a three-course candelier dinner, street-tough Phil Burton made an impassioned plea for White House "cooperation" with Congress.

Without it, he said darkly, President Ford would be devastated by Democrats on Capitol Hill and the country seriously damaged by ferocious partisan politics. Though Burton was unusually restrained, his warning was clear: go along with what we want—or else.

Three other House Democrats and four House Republicans, plus Rockefeller's top two aides on the Domestic Council, did more listening than talking at the Vice President's stag party March 19, which grew out of a long conversation between Rockefeller and Burton at a British embassy reception several weeks earlier.

Rockefeller's building his first intimate political dinner party around Burton shows where the power is on Capitol Hill. Burton picked the other three Democrats (Abner Mikva of Illinois, Thomas Foley of Washington and Don Fraser of Minnesota). Burton also suggested that Rockefeller invite Republican Rep. Al Quie of Minnesota and ask Quie to suggest the other Republicans: John Anderson of Illinois, Robert Michel of Illinois and Barber Conable of New York.

After small talk, Rockefeller pledged that under his command the Domestic Council would work with "and not confront" the Democratic majority—a view subject to dispute at the White House. Then Burton started in.

There was far too much talk in the White House, Burton said, blaming the Democrats for runaway deficit spending when Mr. Ford's own budget showed a $51.9 billion deficit. The new Congress, he said, will never swallow whole the President's program but is determined to assert its highly independent spirit.

Moreover, said Burton, the administration had better understand that votes taken in his caucus accurately reflect real opinion and are not manipulated for political effect.

There were no fireworks and argumentation was gently muted. Indeed, the other Congressmen present said it was worthwhile and informative.

Nevertheless, the surprising little party underlined the dilemma faced by Mr. Ford: heed Burton's warning at the cost of principle and lose conservative Republicans, or join one of the fiercest, bloodiest veto battles in history.

New York

Next Summer? Democratic national chairman Robert Strauss is giving serious consideration to New York City for the 1976 Democratic national convention, a stunning move with important political implications.

Strauss's liberal rivals in the party, who want Los Angeles, think Strauss is pushing Chicago as a favor to his ally, Mayor Richard J. Daley. On the contrary, Daley doesn't particularly want the Democrats back in Chicago, and neither does Strauss.

Other Editors Say Apply It Elsewhere

(Laurinburg Exchange)

What's good for the goose may be good for the gander. The new state act which limits the percentage of supervisors in the State Highway Patrol may in principle be applied satisfactorily to other state agencies. Maybe the overall state government.

Recently the State Department of Transportation sought to promote a host of troopers to senior sergeant positions. Plans for such mass promotion, and the implication it leaves taking more men off the road and putting them behind desks, hasn't registered well with Democrat watchdogs in the House and Senate.

Maybe a bill to prevent the patrol from getting top heavy with officers has been in the works. But this recent action spurred on lawmakers who oppose the idea of too many chiefs in this vital state law enforcement organization.

Last week the Senate adopted and made law the measure which limits patrol supervisors to 18 percent of the total membership. Now with 1,100 men in the organization, the patrol is permitted no more than 216 officers.

This is one of those bills that enjoys a lot of grass roots support. A waste conscious public is obviously more sensitive to what goes on in the Highway Patrol than in some of the more obscure state agencies. The house and Senate apparently read the public pulse very well in this incidence, for they voted overwhelmingly to contain the top echelon in the patrol.

Recycling Runs Into Obstacles

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Because nature's resources are limited, most people recognize the need to recycle waste products into something usable instead of simply burying or burning or otherwise destroying them.

But recognition of the necessity doesn't lead automatically to the accomplishment, as dealers in recycled paper products are learning today. Some are in a desperate way, their warehouses filled, their order books blank.

Despite the recognition of the need, the industry has closed 18 huge paper-making machines since late last year. Some of these machines were mills in themselves. Altogether, nine or 10 recycling plants have closed.

While the problem has become worse in recent months, it isn't a short-term phenomenon. Since 1968, between 60 and 70 machines have fallen idle. Recycled paper is more than shirt boards and corrugated boxes. It's newsprint, packaging of items from soaps to hardware, bathroom and facial tissues, gypsum wallboard facings, furniture backings—even fine writing papers.

Thirty years ago, when the word ecology was barely recognized, about 35 per cent of all paper consumed by Americans was recycled. Today, only 22 per cent comes from that source, although tonnage is higher.

The most recent part of the downturn is an understandable consequence of recession. Bales of waste paper, the raw material of recycling plants, piled up as demand fell. Prices plummeted.

Recycling, says J. Rodney Edwards of the American Paper Institute, has serious weaknesses, not the least of which is the undependability of its suppliers, many of whom are volunteers.

The paper industry maintains it has exhibited a social conscience and that it has made great efforts to "clean up our mess," but they are not totally free of blame or responsibility.

The fact is that in today's capital-strapped economy, the expenditure for a recycling plant is about one-half that of a virgin pulp facility. That in itself is one incentive for promoting recycling.

But, explains an institute spokesman, the industry's major customers—packers, manufacturers, builders—generally are not specifying the recycled product. There is another reason for the dilemma of recycling: The paper makers themselves prefer to deal with virgin fibers.

In the post-World War II years the biggest capital expenditures were put into forestland mills. Major production facilities were built at the source of supply, for obvious economic reasons.

At the same time, technological developments greatly changed the industry. The old paper making company evolved into the forest products complex, which produced a variety of products of which paper was only one.

Many companies, therefore, find themselves with an overwhelming capital commitment to virgin fibers that conflicts with their realization that the recycled end of the industry must be further developed.

Strength For Today

A SIMPLE CREED

Many years ago some one wrote the English man of letters, John Galsworthy, asking him to state his creed. In reply Galsworthy quoted some lines written by another English author, Adam Lindsay Gordon:

"Life is mostly froth and bubble, Two things stand like stone, Kindness in another's trouble, Courage in your own."

From the theological point of view this is scarcely an adequate creed, but it is certainly sound and robust advice for daily living. In the midst of a life which appears like froth and bubble, kindness and courage do stand like the eternal granite hills. They are correlatives. A man who is kind to others will endure his own troubles without grumbling; and conversely, a man who makes the best of things in the midst of trouble will have a deep understanding of the agony others suffer when they have been struck by misfortune.

Probe Milk Price Cuts

RALEIGH (AP)—The executive secretary of the North Carolina Milk Commission says an investigation will be made to determine if a milk price war in the Raleigh area is violating state law.

Grady Cooper said Tuesday that if the prices are below cost, the stores will be notified they are violating the law. If the companies don't comply, an injunction will be sought, Cooper said.

The price war caused several chain stores in the Raleigh area to cut their prices 30 cents a gallon.

The price reduction was touched off last week when the Independent Grocer Association (IGA) announced milk prices were being cut to $1.39 a gallon in 50 of its stores in eastern North Carolina.

Colonial and Big Star reduced prices Monday from $1.65 to $1.35 a gallon. A&P and Winn-Dixie followed suit Tuesday.

IGA said it had reduced its markup and that it was not selling milk below cost. The other four chains did not say whether they were selling below cost.

Meanwhile, Winn-Dixie at Charlotte reported milk was selling at $1.59 per gallon at its stores there, $1.49 in Lexington and $1.50 in Asheboro.

A bill pending in the General assembly would require the milk commission to regulate minimum and maximum milk prices at the retail and wholesale levels. At present, the commission regulates only the price farmers are paid for raw milk.

(Continued from page 4) people killed by the Communists during their brief occupation of the old imperial capital, which once again was emptied of much of its population two weeks ago.

According to the South Vietnamese government, at least 2 million Vietnamese, including 1 million in Da Nang, have been uprooted in the offensive. The Communists have gained control of provinces in which 4 million South Vietnamese lived.

In the light of events following the Communist occupation of the central highlands provincial capital of Ban Me Thuot, the Viet Cong scenario reads something like this:

Party cadres and administrators move in as soon as the South Vietnamese officials depart.

By the second day of occupation, the All Vietnam Confederation of Workers, a Communist union, collects the workers to hear speeches from their new leadership.

Then the new authority gathers citizens to tell them about the discipline.

Beame of New York and Patrick Cunningham, the Bronx party leader and New York state Democratic chairman, have been pressing Strauss hard for New York. Moreover, they have convinced Gov. Hugh Carey, who also is pushing for the city's first national Democratic convention since 1924, when delegates sweltered through 103 ballots before nominating Wall Street lawyer John W. Davis.

New York City does not match Los Angeles as a mecca for demonstrators, and Strauss believes major demonstrations could be better controlled in confined Manhattan streets than on Southern California freeways.

More important is the political environment. Carey, Beame and Cunningham are all strong supporters of Strauss. In contrast, his relations with their California counterparts—Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr., Mayor Tom Bradley and state chairman Charles Manatt—are usually cool and sometimes downright chilly. Thus, Strauss's control over arrangements would be far more secure in New York than in Los Angeles.

A third possibility seriously considered by Strauss is the new Capital Centre in Washington's Maryland suburbs. But the bicentennial celebration threatens to close off hotel space in the capital.

A footnote: Many Democratic politicians prefer a Southern site, leading to possible consideration of New Orleans (where hotel space also poses a problem). An outside prospect is a return to Miami Beach, scene of the 1972 McGovernite turnover.

Buchwald . . .

"It figures," Minderman said. "The CIA is supposed to be the Secret Service in this country and it is always in the news. No matter where you go in Washington you run into Bill Colby. How many people ever run into Howard Hughes? Believe me, if the records are ever opened they'll find the CIA is part of the Hughes Holding Co., which owns half of Las Vegas."

"This certainly puts a new light on things."

"I'm only telling you all this," Minderman said, "in case anything happens to me. The CIA is going to be pretty mad when they discover I know they work for Howard Hughes. Look what they did to Clifford Irving."

"Do you think Irving knew Howard owned the CIA?"

"Of course he knew. Why else did they send him to jail?"

Rupture In April, 1775

By DR. H. G. JONES, Curator
North Carolina Collection For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL (AP) — The journal entry of April 8, 1775, simply reads, "His Excellency the Governor by Proclamation was pleased to dissolve the Assembly." With those words two hundred years ago the last royal legislature went home. Governor Josiah Martin had closed the door to conciliation between North Carolinians and the British government.

This final break between the royal governor and the representatives of the people came after nearly a week of drama in the town of New Bern. The governor had called the General Assembly to meet there on April 4. On the day before the legislature was to meet, however, delegates arrived for the meeting of the Second Provincial Congress (or, as they called it, Convention). Under the gavel of John Harvey, the convention consisted of 69 delegates, more than 50 of whom were also members of the General Assembly. After the assembly convened on April 4, therefore, the convention met at nine o'clock and then adjourned in time for the legislative body to convene at ten o'clock in the same room of the courthouse.

Governor Martin had attempted to prevent the meeting of the convention, calling it "highly offensive to the King and dishonourable to the General Assembly." Ignoring the governor, the convention proceeded with its business. It endorsed the Continental Association; reelected Richard Caswell, Joseph Hewes, and William Hooper to the Continental Congress and called on delegates to collect 20 pounds proclama-tion money each to help the three delegates defray their expenses; and proposed the payment of premiums to citizens who made outstanding contributions in increasing "Arts, Manufactures, Agriculture, and every kind of economy."

Only one member—Thomas Macknight of Currituck—voted against these actions, and upon his withdrawal from the convention, the other delegates resolved to "hold him up as a proper object of Contempt in this Continent..."

Relations between the General Assembly and the governor, chilly from the start, deteriorated from the moment the delegates elected John Harvey as speaker. Harvey, in Martin's eyes, was a dangerous agitator. Nevertheless, the governor summoned the assembly to the Government House (Tryon Palace) where he delivered an impassioned speech expressing his "extremest horror and concern" over the "violent and unjustifiable proceedings" taking place in the colonies. He called for an end of "illegal meetings into which the innocent people have been betrayed, and the unlawful establishments and appointments they have been led to give their sanction to. The assembly refused to be badgered into a hasty reply. Instead, it resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider the governor's hardline speech. On April 7, the delegates answered him.

Far from being disloyal to the king, they said, they were exercising the undeniable rights of Englishmen to petition the king for a redress of grievances. They criticized "unconstitutional invasions of their just rights and privileges" by the British parliament, accused the governor of interfering with the legislature by "frequent and unexpected prorogations of the Assembly," and defended the convention from "the injurious epithet of an illegal meetings." They reaffirmed the "highest sense of their allegiance to the King of Great Britain."

The actions of the convention were endorsed, and the legislators pledged themselves to "strictly adhere" to the proposals of the Continental Congress. Thus both the legislature and the convention took firm stands against British policies while reaffirming their allegiance to the crown.

Martin angrily dissolved the assembly. Almost simultaneously he wrote the Earl of Dartmouth, "... Government is here as absolutely prostrate as impotent, and that nothing but a shadow of it is left."

He was right. He considered calling for new elections, but the council recommended that he wait until June, hoping for passions to cool. By that time, however, the governor had spiked the cannons at the palace and fled, leaving the government in the hands of the elected representatives of the people.

Foundation Asks Donate Assets

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Richard Nixon Foundation, which announced dissolution several months ago, has asked Superior Court for permission to donate its assets, including written materials and oral interviews, to Whittier College.

The foundation, which has no financial assets, was set up in 1969 to develop a Nixon presidential library but never engaged in fund raising and did not select a site or design for the library.

Dissolution of the foundation was announced two months ago following approval by the 25 trustees at the suggestion of president Leonard K. Firestone, Patricia Reilly Hitt, and others.

No current financial estimate of the documents is available.

Tax Credit Considered By Senators

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolinians who must pay for care of dependents in order to work fulltime would get a break on state income taxes if a bill being considered by the Senate wins approval.
The income tax credit would follow federal guidelines for such a deduction to make it easier for the taxpayer to claim it, Sen. J. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, said. The bill is scheduled for final consideration Thursday.
Kirby said the change would cost the state between $8 million and $10 million a year, but part of that loss would be made up by a provision of the bill. Also, the bill is part of a total tax reform package aimed at better equalizing taxes without any income loss to the state.

The bill would allow workers to claim an itemized deduction up to $400 a month for dependent care—$100 for each dependent with a maximum of $400.
But, there's a limit of $18,000 adjusted gross income for the worker to fully qualify. After $18,000, the credit would be disallowed at a rate of 50 cents for each additional $1 income. No credit would be allowed for incomes of $27,600 or more, Kirby

Picking Jury For Connally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twelve jurors and six alternates will be chosen from a group of 44 persons in the bribery trial of former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.
The final selection beginning today follows the initial screening Tuesday that reduced a pool of 75 prospective jurors to 44. The group consists of 30 women and 14 men.
Connally told newsmen Tuesday that he has put himself under a gag rule and won't talk about his trial. He is accused by Watergate prosecutors of taking two $5,000 bribes from Associated Milk Producers Inc. in 1971 in return for his efforts to persuade President Richard M. Nixon to raise milk prices.
During the initial screening, lawyers asked prospective jurors a few questions in public but then went behind closed doors the return giving the name, address, social security number and amount paid each recipient. Kirby said that provision will ensure that those being paid for child care include the income on their returns.

Also, if married, the couple claiming the child care deduction would have to file a combined return. North Carolina doesn't have joint returns for husband and wife, but has combined forms that allow each to file separately on the same sheet.
To qualify for the deduction, the dependent must be a child under the age of 15 or be disabled. The taxpayer's disabled spouse would also qualify as a dependent under the bill.

The bill would strictly limit the deduction to situations where the care of the dependent is required for the taxpayer to hold a fulltime job.
If unmarried, the taxpayer would be qualified only if he pays more than half the household expenses. For married couples, the deduction would be allowed only for the person not maintaining the household.
Essentially, that means that if a husband earned $10,000 and the wife earned $6,000 for the taxable year, only the wife could claim the deduction.

The bill also excludes payments to relatives for child care if the relative lives with the taxpayer.
In addition, the deduction could be reduced if a disabled child earns an income or is given disability benefits of more than $1,000 a year. The deduction would be reduced by the amount of the child's income or the amount in excess of $1,000 in disability payments.
For disabled spouses, the deduction would be reduced by the amount of disability income the spouse is given.

No Easing Of N.C. Law Seen On Marijuana

ON MARIJUANA—Keith Stroup Tuesday told a North Carolina Senate committee that marijuana has not been shown to be as dangerous as using alcohol and cigarettes. At right is Sen. Marshall Rauch, of Gastonia. (AP Wirephoto)

RALEIGH (AP) — The chairman of the state Senate Law Enforcement and Crime Control Committee said it is unlikely that legislation will be introduced in the current legislative session to ease North Carolina's marijuana laws.

Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, said his committee "received exceptionally well" a spokesman for liberalized marijuana laws who addressed the panel Tuesday, but that the political climate in North Carolina is not ripe for a change in the law.

The 1973 General Assembly liberalized the marijuana law to make possession of less than one ounce of the weed a misdemeanor. Rauch's committee has no bill on marijuana laws before it now and committee members agreed with Rauch that it was not likely that one would be offered.

Keith Stroup, director of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML) told the committee, "Marijuana is not a harmless drug," but those who use it should not be considered criminals.

Stroup, a 31-year-old Washington attorney, provided the committee with background on the pro-marijuana side. Rauch said opponents of liberalized laws would also be heard.

Stroup argued that "well-informed individuals" should be allowed to make the choice on whether to use marijuana. He used statistics to argue that there has been no epidemic of marijuana use, that use has remained at about 8 per cent of the adult population since 1972.

He said heavy criminal penalties have been shown to be ineffective in stopping marijuana use. Stroup told the committee that use of marijuana did not increase in the first year Oregon decriminalized it. Possession of marijuana became a civil, rather than criminal offense in that state in 1972.

Stroup said the goal should be to eliminate drug abuse, not drug use. He compared the danger of marijuana to alcohol and cigarettes and said numerous studies have shown that marijuana is not as dangerous as either.

"Even if marijuana could be shown to be as harmful as alcohol—and it won't—it shouldn't be a crime" to use it, he said.

Stroup said the government has a responsibility to try to keep drugs and alcohol out of the reach of children. He said because marijuana is sold on the black market, a child can get it as easily as an adult.

He said the best solution would be to have the state control distribution of marijuana as it does liquor, to put the black market out of business.

How Tar Heel Representatives And Senators Voted

By Roll Call Report
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 20 through March 26.

HOUSE
HOMES Passed, 259 for and 106 against, a bill (HR 4485) to stimulate the housing industry by encouraging middle income families to buy homes. Families earning up to 120 percent of the median income for their localities would qualify. The anti-recession bill would authorize the Department of Housing and Urban Development to subsidize home mortgage interest rates for eligible families. HR 4485 now goes to the Senate.

Supporters noted the housing industry's "multiplier" effect on the economy. "... this Nation will be unable to beat back the forces of recession without a quick and strong recovery of our housing industry," said Rep. Stewart McKinney (R-Conn.).
One opponent, Rep. John

Rousselot (R-Cal.), said interest rates have started to fall on their own, thus giving "reason to believe that the 'emergency' in housing will ease before this bill passes." Others said the bill was inflationary and ignored inner-city housing needs. "Are we going to be asked next week to subsidize the purchase of cars? Of refrigerators? Of yachts?" asked Rep. Robert Lagomarsino (R-Cal.).

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), W. G. Hefner (D-8) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. James Maretin (R-9) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted "nay."

TAX REDUCTION Failed, 197 for and 214 against, to send back to committee the conference report on the anti-recession tax-cut bill (HR 2166). The conference report was later accepted by both House and Senate, and sent to President Ford. The move to recommit, though unsuccessful, indicates there may be enough House votes to sustain any presidential veto.

The tax relief package, which would cost the Treasury an estimated $22.8 billion, provided for 1974 income tax rebates, a $50 bonus for each Social Security recipient, repeal of the 22 percent depletion allowance for large oil and gas companies, and other tax breaks to encourage individuals and corporations to spend money.

Advocates of sending the bill back to committee were generally Republicans and fiscal conservative who felt the bill contained too many tax breads and was too inflationary. Opponents said the $22.8 billion outlay was needed to revitalize the economy, even though it exceeds by $3 billion Ford's projected ceiling for such legislation.

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

Preyer and Rose voted "nay."

FARM BILL, 259 for and 162 against, a bill (HR 4296)

providing higher price support levels for one year for cotton, grain and dairy producers who otherwise might have to reduce production as a result of the recession. The bill authorizes $470 million for higher government payments via the "target price" and "loan rate" support mechanisms. About $350 million would be authorized for cotton growers, $70 million for grain producers and $50 million for dairy producers in an effort to keep production up and stabilize the market. HR 4296 was subsequently passed by the Senate and sent to conference.

Supporters said a continued high level of agricultural production would assure ample supplies for exporting, which eases the federal deficit and helps the U. S. meet its commitments to fight world famine. Rep. Keith Sebelius (R-Kan.) said the bill would "prevent today's food price problems from becoming tomorrow's food shortage problems."

Opponents said the bill would reverse the healthy trend away from federal controls on agriculture. Rep. Millicent Fenwick (R-N.J.) said it is anti-consumer where it should be anti-middleman. The farmer should be helped instead by closing "the enormous gap between what the farmer received and what the consumer pays," she said.

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Marting and Taylor voted "yea."

Broyhill did not vote.

SENATE

TOBACCO Rejected, 26 for and 55 against, an amendment to stop federal price supports for tobacco. It was proposed to a farm bill (HR 4296, above) which was later passed and sent to conference.

Sen. Frank Moss (D-Utah), the sponsor, said Congress demonstrated "schizophrenia" by subsidizing the tobacco industry at the same time it requires health warnings on cigarette packages and advertising. "...we continue to spend millions and millions of dollars to support the growth, export, advertising, promotion, and grading of a deadly plant which will result in the death of more than 50,000 of our countrymen during the next year from lung cancer." He said this money could be better spent to feed and house needy Americans.

Opponents said tobacco is economically important to the U. S., providing jobs and increasing exports. Sen. Wendell Ford (D-Ky.) said, "Pure logic indicates that one way or another the use of tobacco will continue. The only question is whether or not tobacco will be produced by Americans in America or growers in other countries."

Sens. Robert Morgan (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

ENERGY Adopted, 64 for and 32 against, an amendment to encourage the installation of heating insulation in existing homes and the use of solar energy for residential heating and cooling. Homeowners making such improvements during the amendment's effective period, Dec. 31, 1974 through Jan. 1, 1980, would receive substantial tax credits. The amendment was attached to a tax-cut legislation (HR 2166) which was subsequently passed by Congress and sent to President Ford.

Supporters said the amendment would reduce energy consumption as well as generate a need for labor and materials. Sen. Paul Fannin (R-Ariz.) said spreading "the story of solar energy throughout the U.S." could result in millions of saved dollars. Opponents did not state their views during floor debate. Morgan and Helms voted "nay."

CHILD CARE Adopted, 56 for and 39 against, an amendment making it easier for individuals with an income less than $10,000 to take tax deductions for child care expenses. Instead of the personal income tax deduction now permitted for child care, an individual would be able to write off child care as a business expense. Or, a tax credit could be claimed equal to one half the cost of child care, but not higher than $50 monthly. The amendment was attached to a subsequently-passed tax reform bill (HR 2166, above).

As the law now stands, individuals must itemize their personal deductions if they want to write off child care costs. However, 68 per cent of the $10,000 and under income group takes the standard deduction and therefore does not benefit.

Supporters said the amendment would make honest work more profitable than accepting welfare. Sen. John Tunney (D-Cal.), the sponsor, said, "If a businessman is able to write off his secretary as a business expense... a mother who is head of a household" should be able to do the same for a babysitter.

Sen. Carl Curtis (R-Neb.) opposed the amendment's tax-credit option. He said that if all worthy causes receive tax credits "we may not have any revenue left."

Helms voted "yea." Morgan voted "nay."

Successfully Take Technician's Exam

More than 70 persons—most of them Pitt County rescue squad members—have successfully completed the first part of a two-part practical-written examination leading to certification as Emergency Medical Technicians.

The practical examination—conducted Monday and Tuesday nights—involved the use of simulated casualties "suffering" from a wide range of injuries. The written examination—a 200-question three-hour long test—will be given next week.

This week's practical was the first time simulated casualties—persons "injured" with em-balmers wax, putty, food coloring, and in some cases actually "bleeding"—have been used in Pitt for such an exam.

George Reich, Region Q Emergency Medical Services Coordinator said the use of such simulated casualties "adds great realism" and provides a fairer and more thorough means of testing students. "It makes a great difference when a student can actually see the injury and then treat it," he explained.

Volunteers, including Girl and Boy Scouts, were made up as "victims" of various accidents with injuries ranging from compound fractures and third degree burns to spinal injuries, to amputated fingers.

Girl Scouts participating Monday night included Wendy Mills, Jackie Brown, Sandra Hudson, Virginia Baker, Coleen Lemnah and Pam Evans from Cadette Troop 528.

Last night's victims included Stuart Bowman and Tom Proctor from Boy Scout Troop 30; Eric Kingsbury from Troop 340; Keith Holley from Troop 452; Alan Jones from Troop 205 and Roy Carlton from Troop 124 and Ken Waters.

High bid for parcel number one came from Durward Harris and totaled $25,000. An upset bid of 26,300 has been received since the March 21 sale.

Parcel Number Two bid came from the First Baptist Church of Bethel for the amount of $7,000. The board agreed to sell parcel number two provided there are no legal complications. The other portion of property will be readvertised for sale.

Craft reported an increase in value of the insurance coverage on school property. Craft said the coverage for 1975-76 had been increased by $3,449,000, and that the additional premium would be approximately $5,000. The policy date runs from Jan. 25, 1975, to Jan. 25, 1976.

Although the board would be paying a year's premium, coverage would begin April 1. The board would be paying for three months that they would not have coverage.

Board members instructed Craft to ask that the contract be rewritten to run from April 1, 1975, to April 1, 1976, or that the premium be readjusted for the remainder of this year.

Ott Alford's contract as superintendent of the county schools was renewed for another four-year term. The board also approved four years contracts for Tom Craft, associate superintendent; Jack Edwards, assistant superintendent in charge of instruction; and J.L. Keeter, assistant superintendent in charge of federal programs.

The board denied a request from Rick Cagan, Project REACH coordinator for Pitt County, that he be allowed to distribute literature about the Food Stamp Program to all students and employees; that he receive assistance in printing information concerning subsequent activities of REACH and that he be allowed to set up tables in the high schools on April 17, for the purpose of providing additional information about food stamps and to recruit volunteers to work with Project REACH.

The board approved a recommendation from the Bethel Advisory Council that the present Bethel Middle School be named the Bethel Elementary School beginning with the 1975-76 school year since the school now houses grades one through eight.

Letters of appreciation were received from the Bethel and Stokes Advisory Councils concerning recent action taken by the board in support of facilities improvement at Bethel Middle School and Stokes Elementary School.

The board approved the work-day of the secretary at Bethel Middle School to run from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day because the secretary has to assume supervisory duties during her lunch period. This will be in effect through the current school year. The workday normally ends at 4:30 p.m.

The board approved a substitute teacher's list and granted maternity leave to four teachers. Tenure was approved for several teachers.

President Truman on April 11, 1951, called Gen. Douglas MacArthur home from Korea and fired him.

Prohibition became a law in the United States on Jan. 16, 1920.

President Ford's proclamation Saturday directing the action by Selective Service came after criticism in Congress that it is a waste of money for Selective Service to continue operating since nobody is being drafted.

Pepitone said the registration period probably will be in January, with the details probably announced late this year.

After that nobody will register until 1977, when those who reach age 18 during 1976 will register.

Pepitone said the new system will not change the practice of having an annual lottery to determine draft numbers each March.

School Bd. . . . Revise Draft Registrations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Men feaching age 18 during the rest of this year must wait until a time period is set up for them next year to register for the draft.

Before Selective Service announced the change on Tuesday, men were required to register during a period from 30 days before to 30 days after their 18th birthday.

Draft Director Byron V. Pepitone said the decision to confine registration to a few days each year is in part an economy move by the agency, which has not drafted anyone since Jan. 1, 1973.

Young men are still obligated to register for the draft after they reach 18. However, the number of boards have been reduced from 2,700 to 600 and the boards are not meeting as often.

Gets Prison For Slaying Husband

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP)—A 43-year-old woman from Otway in Cartaret County has been sentenced to 16 to 18 years in the slaying of her husband.

Mrs. Beth Ann Gilliken originally was charged with first-degree murder. But just before the trial opened Tuesday, the prosecution said it would accept a plea of second-degree murder.

She so pleaded in the death of 27-year-old Ivey Gilliken, a service station operator. He was fatally shot at their mobile home last Oct. 29.

He was her second husband. It was testified that she had children his age.

It was on April 7, 1966, that a lost U.S. hydrogen bomb was recovered from Mediterranean waters off the Spanish coast.

Lifting Ceiling On Home Loan Interest Supported

By CATHY STEELE ROCHE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina House was expected to give final consideration today to a bill to remove the state's ceiling on home loan interest rates for another two years.

banking and savings and loan interests.

Honor Society Meets Thursday

There will be a meeting of Phi Sigma Iota, national Romance language honor society, on Thursday, at 7:30 in the home of Mrs. Francoise Papalas, 954 Shady Lane.

Lilley told the House that the bill was needed to attract home loan money to North Carolina from out of state.

Will Be Host To Bible Study

Bible study will be held at the home of Mrs. Al Haley, 1804-A Kennedy Circle, Thursday at 7:30 p.m. repealed the 8 per cent ceiling on home loans for a one-year trial period which ends June 30. Financial interests convinced the legislature that money could not be made available for home loans if the ceiling were maintained.

Lilley's bill extends the period until June 30, 1977. He has indicated that he would like to have the ceiling removed permanently, but thought a two-year extension stood a better chance of passing.

Lilley conceded that repeal of the ceiling had not produced an upward swing in the state's housing industry, but blamed a general economic slump rather than high interest rates.

Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, told the House that, in fact, home loans had declined by 32 per cent in 1974 after the ceiling was removed. Interest rates went as high as 10 1/2 per cent.

The House turned down an amendment by Rep. James Long, D-Alamance to write a 9 per cent ceiling into the bill. Long and Rep. Henry Oxendine, D-Robeson, said savings and loans institutions in their districts had indicated they could live with a 9 per cent ceiling.

Lilley argued, "We will find ourselves out of the money market" with a 9 per cent ceiling. He said home loans in North Carolina are now being made at about 8 1/2 per cent, but predicted that interest rates would soon rise.

Awards Given PTA Officers

Four P. T. A. officers at Sadie Sautler School received awards recently. They were M. E. Whitehurst, L. W. Rhodes, former P. T. A. presidents; Edward Carter, present P. T. A. president, and Mrs. Carrie Taylor, secretary.

These officers were cited for support and foresight as P.T. A. officers. The awards were presented by Alton Harris, a P. T. A. member.

The House also rejected an amendment by Rep. Mickey Michaux, D-Durham, to prohibit prepayment penalties on loans. The bill provided for such penalties on loans of more than $50,000. An amendment to allow the penalties only on loans over $100,000 was adopted.

Legislators who objected to the prepayment penalties said they restricted borrowers from renegotiating loans to get the best possible rate.

Lilley argued that the penalties are needed in order to attract large loans for apartments and condominiums.

RENOUNCED—Guru Maharaj, 17-year-old head of a religious movement called the Divine Light Mission, was renounced by his mother Tuesday. She accused him of being a playboy and said she was removing him as head of the movement which his father founded. He was last reported living in a mansion in Malibu, Calif., with his American wife. Rescind Ban On Integon

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The insurance commissioner of Pennsylvania has announced withdrawal of an order which suspended operations in the state by the Integon Life Insurance Corp. based in Winston-Salem, N. C.

The commissioner, William J. Sheppard, said the suspension order, announced Monday, was based on an administrative error by the Pennsylvania Insurance Department in analyzing the company's recently submitted annual statement.

"We have apologized to the company for the inconvenience caused by our suspension order and we wish to emphatically state for the record that integon presently fulfills all capital and other legal requirements for doing business in Pennsylvania," said Sheppard.

He announced Tuesday that he had rescinded the suspension order after conferring with company officials.

Sheppard's order Monday said Integon was one of three companies suspended during March from operating in Pennsylvania because of alleged failure to meet minimum financial requirements.

Rabies Serum Was Flown In

CHARLOTTE (A)—A 4-year-old girl, Christen Whitley, was playing dolls in her backyard. A black and white dog knocked her down and bit her on the right ear.

She received Tuesday night injections of a serum that provides temporary immunization from rabies. If the dog isn't found in a couple of days, Christen's doctor will have to undergo a painful series of 14 rabies shots.

None of the temporary serum was available in Charlotte. It had to be flown in from Dallas, Tex.

Opryland Plans Reopen April 19

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Opryland, a country music theme park here, has been scheduled to reopen April 19. Severe flooding last month caused more than $1 million damages to the park and prevented its scheduled reopening this weekend.

The park will be open only on weekends until Memorial Day, May 26. Officials said several new attractions scheduled to open then will be delayed another two weeks because of the flood damages.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market took an upward bounce today in a strong late-morning rally that surprised a good many Wall Streeters. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down more than a point in the early going, was up 5.94 at 767.52 by 11:30 a.m. Gainers took a 3-2 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange after trailing by as much as a 4-3 margin earlier. Trading volume, slow in the first hour, picked up as the buying began.

Brokers noted no visible spark in the economic news to ignite the upswing. It appeared, they said, that the buyers were reacting to the market's relative resistance to declines Monday and Tuesday in the face of bad news from several directions—including the Southeast Asia situation and concern over mounting federal budget deficits.

There were some optimistic economic forecasters from such government officials as Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, as well as New York's First National City Bank. But most brokers agreed the market had already taken the prospect of an economic upturn later in the year into account with its steep gain through the first three months of 1975.

Electronics and data processing issues showed some of the strongest gains. Brokers noted that one company in the group, Data General, had reported a strong quarterly earnings gain on Tuesday. Data General shares, which rose 2 1/2% Tuesday, were up another 3/4% at 24 1/2% today. Digital Equipment jumped

Lanier's Knee May Hold Key

By The Associated Press
Bob Lanier, the Detroit Pistons' hulking center, was examining his chronically ailing left knee, which may prevent him from playing against the Chicago Bulls in tonight's critical National Basketball Association game.

"The knee is extremely sore," he said. "They may have to go without me."

If the Pistons have to play without their high-scoring center, it would greatly jeopardize their chances of making the playoffs. At present, Detroit is in third place in the Midwest Division, 2½ games ahead of Milwaukee. The Pistons have two games remaining, against Chicago tonight and against Milwaukee Saturday night. Milwaukee has three games left.

One more Detroit victory or one more Milwaukee loss would put the Pistons into the playoffs and eliminate the Bucks for the first time since their expansion season of 1968-69.

The Bucks kept alive their slim playoff hopes Tuesday night, beating the Pistons 98-91.

In other NBA games, Chicago defeated the Buffalo Braves 98-93, the New York Knicks downed the Philadelphia 76ers 99-95, the Houston Rockets topped the Atlanta Hawks 113-104, the Washington Bullets beat the New Orleans Jazz 110-101, and the Portland Trail Blazers whipped the Los Angeles Lakers 124-106.

Lanier played 45 minutes against the Bucks and led Detroit with 19 points, but he was outscored by Milwaukee center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had 27 points. Reserve George Thompson added 18 points for the Bucks and another substi-

Final Poll Has Little Meaning After UCLA Has Captured Crown

By DAN BERGER
AP Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Wooden didn't have to be told UCLA was the champion again. He already knew his Bruins had come out on top two ways. UCLA was named No. 1 in

The Associated Press' final poll of the 1974-75 season Tuesday, almost an anticlimax after it had captured the national championship Monday night with a 92-85 triumph over Kentucky in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament in San Diego.

The bespectacled 64-year-old former coach of the Bruins has repeatedly said that's the important championship. "Still, I am pleased that we are officially No. 1," said Wooden, echoing what he'd said two years ago when UCLA topped the tourney and the poll after that season ended.

"I don't think the polls mean as much in basketball as they do in football. In football, there is no way to determine a national champion on the field, but in basketball there is," Wooden said then. He acknowledged, however, that if a poll meant anything, it should be taken after the regular season.

The Bruins, however, were not unanimous choices.

Of 49 sports writers and broadcasters who cast ballots, 45 of them name the Bruins No. 1. One ballot contained half a vote each for UCLA and Indiana, which compiled the best record among major colleges. Two other ballots were cast for Indiana as No. 1 and another balloter, Hubert Mizell, sports editor of The St. Petersburg Times, voted Syracuse first in protest.

Mizell listed as his choices, in order, Syracuse, Louisville, Kentucky and UCLA, the reverse order of finish of the NCAA tournament. He said he did it "in protest over The AP's holding a ballot after the legitimate championship tournament."

The Bruins, 28-3, wound up with 969 points on the poll compared to No. 2 Kentucky, 26-5,

LOOK, UP IN THE SKY . . . New York Knicks' Hawthorne Wingo (43), Leroy Ellis (25) of the Philadelphia 76ers, and referee Richie Powers all seem to be pointing at something up above, but it's not quite what it seems to be. Wingo is signaling prior to an inbounds play, while Ellis is arguing that a pass hit the backboard, giving it to the 76ers. Powers ruled for the Knicks, however, and they went on to take a 99-95 victory. (AP Wirephoto)

A Thank You Message From The Owners And Operators Of The Raynor-Forbes & Clark Tobacco Warehouse

"We wish to express our sincere thanks for the splendid cooperation we have received from so many since the tornado damaged our warehouse on Monday, March 24th."

The Greenville Utilities quickly extinguished the danger of a tragic fire; the Greenville Police Department's cooperation in rendering additional surveillance to the premises; the many tobacco growers and other friends who came immediately to the warehouse to give aid in moving materials or any other aid needed; to the owners of other tobacco warehouses who came offering assistance; to the members of the building and roofing trades who gave us immediate help, and for the quick response from the insurance companies involved; and to so many for their calls and expressions of support.

As a result of the above mentioned cooperation we began repairing the warehouse on Thursday, March 27th and will be ready in plenty of time for the 1975 tobacco selling season.

Our sincere gratitude to each of you.

Catfish Sparkles For Yankees Despite Loss

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The Oakland A's are ready, even the one who is no longer in Oakland.

Catfish Hunter, the baseball pitcher A's owner Charles O. Finley let get away, sparkled again for the New York Yankees even though the Yanks suffered a 4-1 defeat to the Atlanta Braves.

And the A's acted Tuesday as if they didn't even need Hunter, who led them to three consecutive World Series championships.

Mike Norris, Rollie Fingers and Blue Moon Odom combined to pitch a one-hitter against Milwaukee while Reggie Jackson slammed four hits to pace the A's 9-1 exhibition baseball rout of the Brewers. Milwaukee's only hit was an infield single in the second inning.

Hunter has pitched 33 innings this spring, posting an earned run average of 1.64. The only run Atlanta scored against him Tuesday was unearned.

Hunter gave up four hits and struck out five in his seven-inning stint against the Braves.

Atlanta won the game in the eighth inning when Dusty Baker slammed a three-run double with two outs.

In other games, Cincinnati beat the New York Mets 8-2, Houston edged St. Louis 3-2, Montreal stopped Minnesota 9-5, Baltimore nipped Texas 4-3, Los Angeles out-slugged San Francisco 11-7, San Diego defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-2, Boston crushed Detroit 9-0, and the Chicago White Sox and Pittsburgh split a doubleheader, Chicago winning the first game 4-1 and the Pirates taking the nightcap 6-3.

The University of Arizona shocked the Cleveland Indians when sophomore Pete Van Horne lined a bases-loaded double in the ninth to give the Wildcats a 6-5 victory.

Willie McCovey smashed a two-run homer, and Ron Davis did the rest as San Diego defeated the Chicago Cubs, who marked their ninth loss in their last 10 games.

Houston edged the Cardinals as Jose Cruz hit a two-run homer in the seventh to knot the score, then tallied the winning run in the ninth on Ken Boswell's single.

Home runs by Ed Armbrister and Tony Perez powered Cincinnati's 19-hit assault to crush the Mets.

A home run and a double by rookie Gary Carter drove in three runs to lead the Montreal Expos over Minnesota.

A hit batter, a single to center and a bad-hop single by Bobby Grich gave Baltimore an 11-inning victory over Texas.

Texas tied the game in the ninth when Joe Lovitto singled home Tom Grieve.

Two triples by Dave Lopes, one coming in a three-run third, lifted Los Angeles past San Francisco.

The Chicago White Sox snapped a six-game losing streak behind Wilbur Wood's five-hit pitching in the first game of an exhibition doubleheader. But Pittsburgh won the nightcap as pitcher Wayne Simpson doubled home three runs and Rennie Stennett stroked a triple in the six-run second inning.

Exploding for 13 hits, the Boston Red Sox blanked Detroit. Bernie Carbo and Rick Miller blasted three-run homers and three Boston pitchers, Bill Lee, Diego Segui and Dick Pole, fashioned a six-hit shutout, snapping Detroit's four-game winning streak.

McAdoo Named Most Valuable

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob McAdoo of the Buffalo Braves, the National Basketball Association's leading scorer, was named the league's Most Valuable Player for 1974-75, the NBA announced today.

The 6-foot-10 center, runnerup to Milwaukee Bucks center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in last year's voting, polled 81 first-place votes and 547 points in running away with the Podoloff Trophy balloting by NBA players.

Boston Celtics center Dave Cowens was second this time with 310 points, Elvin Hayes of the Washington Bullets was third at 289, Golden State's Rick Barry was fourth with 254 points and Abdul-Jabbar rounded out the top five with 161.

"I'm really happy. I can't believe it. It seems like a dream," said McAdoo, an overwhelming choice for Rookie of the Year honors as a forward in 1972-73.

In his rookie year, he averaged 18 points and 9.1 rebounds per game. That was just a warmup for a sophomore season in which he led the league in scoring with 30.8 points per game, had the top shooting percentage with 54.7 and was third in rebounding with 15.1.

The 23-year-old McAdoo passed up his senior year at North Carolina, becoming eligible to turn professional under the NBA's hardship rule. He was the second selection in the player draft, behind LaRue Martin of the Portland Trail Blazers.

Entering Tuesday night's game against the Chicago Bulls, McAdoo topped league scorers with 34.6 points per game, was third in rebounding with 14.2 and led the league in minutes played with 3,370.

"What makes winning the MVP so hard to believe is that I was a high school and college kid just a few years ago," McAdoo said. "Now, all the players I heard about and read about think I'm the best. And that's an honor, man!"

Miller In GGO Field

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A last-moment change of plans — prompted, at least partially, by Jack Nicklaus' recent success — has put Johnny Miller in the field for the $225,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

Miller, along with Tom Weiskopf, filed surprise, late entries for the 72-hole test that begins Thursday on the hilly, 7,021-yard, par-71 Sedgefield Country Club course.

"Jack's going into the Masters a winner. I don't want to go in a loser," said Miller, who originally had planned to skip this tournament to concentrate on preparations for next week's Masters, the first of the year's four major events.

But the combination of Nicklaus' record victory in the Heritage Classic at Hilton Head Island, S.C. Sunday, plus Miller's poorest showing in two seasons contributed to a shift in plans.

Beaston Honored

Three-year starter for the East Carolina University baseball team, Geoff Beaston of High Point, N.C., has been named an Outstanding College Athlete of America.

Beaston will be listed in the annual awards volume with numerous other athletes across the country.

Announcement of Beaston's selection was made by the Board of Advisors of Outstanding College Athletes of America. Sports information directors and athletic directors from colleges and universities across the nation selected the winning athletes on the basis of their abilities—not only in athletics, but in community service and campus activities as well.

Criteria for those selected includes leadership, service, scholarship and outstanding athletic achievement.

Beaston, a junior, has played three infield positions for the Pirates: second base, shortstop and third base. He was named second-team All-Southern Conference as a sophomore.

The 20-year-old Beaston is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Beaston of 3508 Woodview Drive, High Point. He is majoring in General Business.

Beaston is the second East Carolina Athlete from High Point to be awarded this honor. In 1974, football player Jim Bolding of High Point was selected.

Late Falcons Run By Panthers

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL — Remember the old saying, "Better late than never?" Well, North Pitt is probably wishing C. B. Aycock had never shown up instead a half-an-hour late.

The Falcons had bus problems and were delayed arriving at North Pitt for the start of their 3:30 game yesterday with the Panthers. And five innings and 18 runs later, the Panthers were sorry they had made it.

Aycock had a first inning rally choked off by a double play but they came back in the second to push over six runs and then exploded for 122 in the third. North Pitt managed to get single runs in the fourth and fifth frames. The game was ended after the fifth as the ten-run rule was put into effect.

North Pitt started Rick Harrell but Harrell, who had been sick over the Easter Holidays was not effective. He gave up 11 earned runs, five hits, five walks and struck out two. Jay Bedsworth came on in the third and was even less able to stop the Falcons. He gave up the other seven runs; two were earned. Aubrey Wynne finished the game for North Pitt.

Falcon curly Summerlin went all the way for Aycock striking out seven walking five and giving up three hits.

In the first inning, Harrell got into a jam hitting one batter and walking a second but a double play got him out of it. The jam he got into in the second he barely did get out of and did not make it away from the one in the third.

Aycock started the second with two walks, to Summerlin and Randy Pittman. A bunt single loaded the bases and a third walk by Harrell forced in Summerlin. Gary Davis tried to bunt but the ball, relayed to home, was thrown to the backstop letting Pittman score and kept the bases full. Jay Edgerton doubled in two more runs and Edwin Finch singled in Davis. Edgerton stole home.

North Pitt had a chance to score in the second as Ken Perry walked and tried to score from first on Bedsworth's double. Perry was cut down at home.

Pittman opened the disastrous third reaching on an infield error. Randy Taylor was safe on an outfield error that scored Pittman who had moved around on a steal and a passed ball. Two walks loaded the bases and Edgerton brought two runs in with a hit to left. Bedsworth hit one and walked on to reload the sacks. Joe Durham singled in two tallies and passed balls accounted for another pair. A wild pitch scored Durham and Summerlins worked his way around after reaching on an error, to steal home. The Falcons had rolled up an 18-0 advantage by the time they were finally arrived.

Wynne held Aycock off in the fourth and fifth allowing two hits and no more scores.

The Panthers prevented a shutout with a run in the fourth. Eddie Hemingway was safe on an error that moved him to second. He moved to third on a grounder and scored on a throwing error on Bedsworth's grounder to short.

Lee Andrews walked in the last of the fifth moved to third on a hit and a fielder's choice and was forced in when Perry walked.

Durham led the Falcons with three hits and Edgerton had two.

The Panthers will be hosting Eastern Wayne on Friday at 3:30 p.m.

Many See S. Vietnam Down Drain In 60-120 Days

Two Men Arrested In Shooting Of Four

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — Four young men are dead and two men are in jail charged with their murder in the aftermath of an argument over an $85 drug debt, police report.

Officers said each of the victims had been shot at least twice at close range during a brief struggle in the living room of a five-room duplex.

A short time after the slayings early Tuesday, officers arrested Michael Berry, 18, and his brother Donzell, 26. Each was charged with four counts of murder. Both were held without bond at the St. Clair County Jail.

"Robbery was not a motive,"

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Many key U.S. military officers believe South Vietnam may go down the drain in 60 to 120 days if the North Vietnamese army sustains its momentum.

They think the North Vietnamese could concentrate their striking forces in that length of time in sufficient strength to strike the final blow in the Saigon region.

However, these officers hold out the possibility that the North Vietnamese may have been surprised at the rapid collapse of South Vietnam's resistance in two-thirds of the country and may be unprepared to move into the final attack for some time.

The North Vietnamese also are faced with the new situation of administering those places they have overrun.

Although the prevailing mood is one of deep pessimism, there are some officers who still say there is a basis for hope that the South Vietnamese Army will regain its balance and establish an effective defense of the remaining government-held areas in the Saigon region and the Mekong River delta.

Meanwhile, there were these related developments:

—Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met for three hours Monday afternoon with 12 foreign policy experts, many of whom helped shape U.S. policy in Southeast Asia in prior administrations.

Participants indicated that it was the first time Kissinger had sought the views of such a large group, but they denied that the meeting was convened because of any emergency.

—"Modest quantities" of military equipment from National Guard units in the United States are being rushed to Vietnam for emergency resupply of Vietnamese forces, officials said.

—Some 700 Marines were sent to protect U.S. Navy ships while they evacuate civilian refugees from South Vietnam, Pentagon officials announced.

—At the United Nations, U.S. Ambassador John A. Scali called on Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to appeal to all parties not to interfere with the evacuation of the refugees.

—Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen reported, and later retracted, that the United States is engaged in "continuing diplomatic initiatives" to obtain a negotiated settlement of the war.

—Assistant Secretary of State Philip Habib said he "anticipates" that President Ford will ask Congress to vote "substantial funds" for aid to South Vietnam, if Ford decides that the South Vietnamese government has the capacity to "stabilize the military situation."

—Two Democratic senators differed with statements by President Ford and other officials blaming Congress for the military reverses.

Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana said, "Hue and Da Nang were not abandoned because South Vietnamese troops did not have the ammunition and equipment to fight. They were abandoned because of a disastrous failure of leadership and loss of the will to fight."

Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas said the Communist offensive is a test of will and leadership in Saigon, not Washington. "So far that leadership has not met the test," Bentsen said.

Late In Turning In State Fees

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Two resigned Mecklenburg County magistrates pleaded guilty Tuesday to failing to turn in on time some state fees for performing marriages. The magistrates, Robert W. House and J.P. Eatmon Jr., are to be sentenced Friday.

House pleaded guilty to failing to pay only $128, and they were not turned in because of negligence, not criminal intent.

WILL PARTICIPATE

Dr. M. W. Aldridge, Greenville periodontist, will participate in the annual sessions of the House of Delegates of the N.C. Dental Society in Raleigh next weekend. He is a delegate to the American Dental Association.

Farmville Bd. Approves Outlays

By CAROL TYER
 Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners last night approved the expenditure of $5,300 for the installation of shrubbery, a brick wall, and a brick walk for the new municipal parking lot at the corner of Wilson and Contentnea Streets here.

The lot is part of the town's Downtown Improvement project. The downtown Improvement Committee had planned to have the bricklaying done at considerable savings to the townspeople by the Farmville Central High School bricklaying class, but has learned now that the class will not get to the project this school year. The costs are approximate because bids have not yet been taken on the brick work.

Pernell Burnette was appointed to the Planning Board to serve as an extraterritorial member. The Administrator was asked to request that the Department of Transportation delineate the path of a proposed 258 bypass of Farmville. An updating of the town's zoning maps was asked for.

Building inspector H.P. Norman requested a resolution for the condemnation of a house owned by Charles Hopkins at 410 S. George Street. This was granted. Commissioner Leroy Redden asked why a number of other substandard houses in Farmville have not been either brought up to par or condemned as this one is. He indicated that he believes certain property owners are being favored by the Inspections Department.

The Commissioners were issued a special invitation to the dedication of the Mewborn Building Sunday at 3 p.m. The public is also invited, they were told. The building houses the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic at and the Farmville Child Development Clinic.

Approval was given for the payment of $1,800 on the water tank to Pittsburgh Company. The tank is complete except for chlorination, Town engineer Jack McDavid said.

Clearing Roads In Yellowstone

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — Snowplows have started clearing tons of snow from roads at Yellowstone National Park, the nation's oldest and largest park.

Park officials expect the mammoth job probably will take until around mid-April to complete.

Although the park remains open to winter recreation, mostly snowmobiling and cross-country skiing, those activities are being phased out as the park reopens for the summer tourist season.

Approval was given for the opening of driveways on Grimmsburg Street at the site of the proposed Farmville Middle School between Bundy and Farmville Central Schools.

Alex Allen appeared questioning a paving assessment on South Contentnea Street Extension. There is a 10-foot alleyway in question and the Board said they will consider closing the alley, with the public's approval, and called for an on-site inspection of the area and a remeasurement of the footage involved in the curbing and guttering assessment.

Commissioner Sarah Albritton reported on possibilities concerning the purchase of the school athletic field property. The Board is considering purchasing the field if they can buy it with a federal matching grant that must be applied for by May 1. They are dicker with the county over the value of a fence on the property. The schools may move the fence if their price is not met.

The Commissioners approved the purchase of new bookkeeping and billing equipment for the town office.

Survey Grifton Flood Problem

A detailed survey of the flooding problem in Grifton is being conducted by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

The Grifton Board of Commissioners filed an application for federal technical and cost-sharing assistance for flood control protection with the Mid-East Resource Conservation and Development Council last August.

The Mid-East Project covers Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford, Martin and Pitt Counties.

Trade-in value of the old equipment will be between $2,500 and $3,000, Administrator W.A. Martin said.

An audit contract with local CPA Vance Taylor was renewed. Mrs. Virginia Reid appeared asking that a wooded area adjacent to her house be cleaned up. The Commissioners said this is the old East Carolina right of way owned by the Davis heirs and asked the Administrator to contact the owners again about taking care of the matter.

NO TEARS, ONLY JOY—After 20 years of trying, Mexican-American Freddie Fender gave up. But a song, "Before The Next Teardrop Falls," changed all that. Almost overnight the record has made Fender, 37, a big success. (AP Wirephoto)

One Hit Meant Musical Success

By BRENT PROCTER
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—
After 20 luckless years on the club and beer hall circuit, Freddy Fender hung up his guitar and, in despair, became an auto mechanic. But it only took one country song, "Before The Next Teardrop Falls," to change all that.

"I felt there's no great American dream for this ex-Chicano migrant farm worker," said Fender. "I'd picked too many crops and too many strings."

Fender, 37, had had his chances. Like in early 1960 when he cut a hard rock single, "Crazy, Crazy, Baby." It went to the top of the pop charts in Texas and was looking good elsewhere.

"Everything went beautifully until May 13, 1960, a Friday," said Fender. He was busted for grass in Baton Rouge, La.

"I'm not bitter, but if friends ask I still say the three years I had to spend in Angola State Prison was a long time for a little mistake."

Fender, of Corpus Christi, Tex., is a Mexican-American whose real name is Baldemar Huerta. Throughout the bad times, music was his only comfort.

No stranger to a recording studio, a friend introduced him to producer Huey Meaux in Houston, Tex., late last year. Meaux, something of a maverick in the music business and the man responsible for B.J. Thomas and Joe Berry, put Freddy through his paces.

"He liked my material, what I had written and my singing," said Fender. "Then he suggested I do a country number, 'Before The Next Teardrop Falls.'"

The improbable happened. "Before The Next Teardrop Falls" was released on Meaux's Crazy Cajun label in September. It climbed to the top of the Texas charts—and has been climbing, climbing ever since.

"Teardrop" stayed two weeks at No. 1 on the national country charts, sold more than half a million copies, and is now crossing over to the more lucrative pop market.

"The Old Man upstairs rolled a seven on me," said Fender. "I hope he keeps it up."

Fender, still in a state of disbelief, has been the fortunate witness of a success story—his own.

"I was working as a mechanic, doing dates in the weekends, and taking college credits at night. That was six months ago. I'd hung up my gloves, so to speak."

"I figured I knew a lot about life, so I wanted to become a sociologist. I wanted something steady for myself and my family."

"Teardrop," a mellow country song with a verse that Freddie sings in Spanish, has made him the instant success 20 hard years failed to do.

"My first appearance after the song came out was at Las Vegas with Leroy Van Dyke. I couldn't believe I was there. Just before I went on stage the first time, somebody said a lot of celebrities were in the audience. I was trembling with fright."

That was in early February. His next date was at Disney World opposite Tammy Wynette. A recent appearance was at Oklahoma City, Okla., with Roy Clark. In between, Fender was a guest—"it felt like a command performance"—at Nashville's Grand Ole Opry.

While "Teardrop" has raised him from near poverty to near star status, he hasn't become a materialist. Fender still lives in the same $15,000 house and drives the same family car, a '62 Chevy Impala. His favorite recreation remains surf fishing with his wife, Evangeline, and their three children.

"I guess I feel like Lee Trevino when he won his first golf tournament after so many years of hacking away," Fender said.

Warn Job-Limit For Astronomers

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Aspiring professional astronomers: Beware, the universe may be infinite but the job market isn't.

That's the message of the National Academy of Sciences, which has drafted a form letter for the University of Arizona to use in warning applicants for graduate studies in astronomy to reconsider their plans for the future.

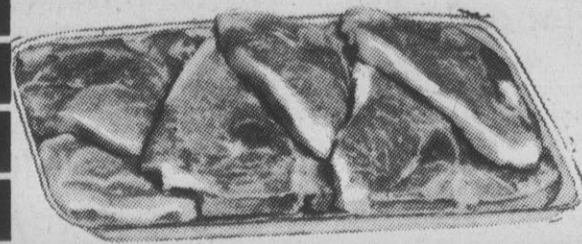

"You should now seriously consider whether your interest in the field is so great that you wish to devote five more years of hard study to astronomy," the letter says in part.

The Academy estimates that over the next five years there will be at least 600 new astronomers with doctorates competing for only 50 to 100 jobs.

Castle For Kentuckian

By J. R. KIMMINS
VERSAILLES, Ky. (UPI) — Louie XIV would have had someone's head. The kindly King Arthur wouldn't even have stood for it.

But plain old Rex Martin, a native of the eastern Kentucky coalfields, has had to put up with fire, floods and a lack of stone masons in his efforts to build a real castle.

The unfinished structure anchors a hill three miles west of this Woodford County seat, which ironically bears the same name as the famous palace outside Paris, France.

It's an object of curiosity, a bit of the Middle Ages, or perhaps fairyland, smack in the middle of this bluegrass country of stately homes and thoroughbred horse farms encaused in traditional white fences.

"I'm going to finish it. I hope to get it finished this spring," promised Martin in a rare interview.

Martin, a Lexington construction executive, has been reluctant to talk about the castle since he broke ground for the battlement walls about five years ago.

"I'm not saying it's a work of art," he said in explaining his hesitancy to discuss the project. "But if you were an artist, you would much rather a painting be finished rather than unveiled before completed."

Rain has stained the once-brilliant white walls of the castle. Weeds have overgrown what could be a bluegrass-covered field leading up to the double wooden doors which open onto the court yard.

Most travelers slow down as they pass this Camelot setting some 300 yards north of U.S. 60, one of the busiest highways in central Kentucky. Children press their faces to the windows, wondering who lives in the castle on the hill.

It has been over a year since workmen labored on the two-story living quarters, hidden by the 15-foot-high walls on all four sides.

Tar paper covers the frame inside the walls, prompting one neighbor to call it an "eyesore" and wishing Martin would finish what he has started.

Martin said he would like nothing more than to do just that.

"I guess it's just been my sad year," he added, noting that a shopping center he was building burned and a flood destroyed some apartments he had built.

"Another problem I have had was getting stone masons," Martin said. "I can get bricklayers but stone laying is a dying trade. Most of the masons are old and they don't want to get on something tall when they can work on farm fences."

What got Martin interested in building a castle? He said he came up with the idea during a trip to Europe.

However, he said he doesn't really like to refer to the structure as a castle, even if it does resemble a movie set constructed for a King-Arthur-and-his roundtable flick.

"It's basically utilitarian," he said. "The towers will be guests' apartments, through one will be a cabana for the swimming pool. It's basically a home with Gothic architecture."

Though Martin has not wanted publicity about the castle, it's hard to ignore.

"There's not a day that goes by that somebody doesn't ask me about it," said Bobby Gould, manager of a service station within site of the castle.

"The first thing they want to know is 'is that a castle?' And then they want to know who is building it," he said.

State Rep. Vic Hellard, Versailles, said as soon as somebody finds out he is from Versailles "they want to know about the castle first and then about Happy Chandler."

Happy Chandler, former baseball commissioner and two-term Kentucky governor from Versailles, said he likes to "envision the castle with a moat in front of it and knights in armor."

Rex Martin, however, said he merely wants to think of it as a home. "And I am going to finish it," he repeated a third time.

On July 16, 1918, revolutionaries shot Czar Nicholas II of Russia and his family.

Mechanized Farm Plans For Swedes

By HANS NORRBOM STOCKHOLM (AP) — Bjoern Ericsson and his wife Barbro are an energetic young couple determined to make their fortune on the family farm, inspired by recent brighter prospects for Swedish agriculture.

The Ericssons, together with Bjoern's father, could serve as an example of modern capital consuming, medium sized farming in Sweden. On their leased farm in a wooded area some 30 miles north of Stockholm, they cultivate 140 acres of arable soil and 62 acres grazing area. In addition they take care of 35 milking cows, 35 heifers and a number of calves.

"We enjoy our work and intend to stay here our lifetime," Bjoern, 32, tall and heavy, says, and gets a nodding response from his wife.

They have reason to be proud of the results of their work. He recently installed a device to wind up grain to a cold air crop dryer on the top floor of the barn. From there he intends to introduce an automatic feeding mixer to be piped directly to the cows. With that in mind, he has installed an automatic out-manuring system which, together with sophisticated milking machines, minimizes handling of the animals.

The Ericssons' capital consuming enterprise is by no means an exception in today's Sweden. Farmers have been forced to adjust their production methods to the need for labor saving, high-mechanized farming as a consequence of the government pricing policy and other measures.

Some 5-6 per cent of Sweden's working population are employed in agriculture (crop and livestock). At the same time, however, the volume of agricultural production in this country is much the same as it was in 1940, when 25 per cent of the working population were employed in agriculture.

Farming is often combined with forestry and 78 per cent of the farms have their own forestland. Thus, of the country's 55 million acres of forest, about half is owned by the farmers.

The annual increase in labor productivity for agriculture during the 1960s amounted to 6 per cent, compared to 4 per cent for industry.

The annual value of farm produce exports is around 700 million crowns ($160 million), while the corresponding import figure is roughly 1,000 million ($230 million).

Postwar agricultural policy in Sweden was defined by the fact that the agricultural sector was lagging behind other branches of the national economy in efficiency. Considering this, high international prices on farm products created a negative political attitude toward farmers' interests and deteriorating individual profits. During the period 1964-1967 seven per cent of the arable land was either transformed into grazing areas or planted with trees.

Since then the authorities' attitude toward agriculture has changed dramatically as a result partly of higher world prices but also with a view to the energy crisis and the need to insure resources for a certain degree of self-sufficiency.

The Swedish farmers got better price contracts with the state, especially for milk. Milk prices were in a slump during the '60s, which provoked noisy protests from the farmers and caused them to drastically lower their cow stocks. In the early '70s milk prices went up again and the cow stocks had increased in 1973 by 24,000 animals to reach a total of 756,000. Consequently, milk production also rose, for the first time since the '40s.

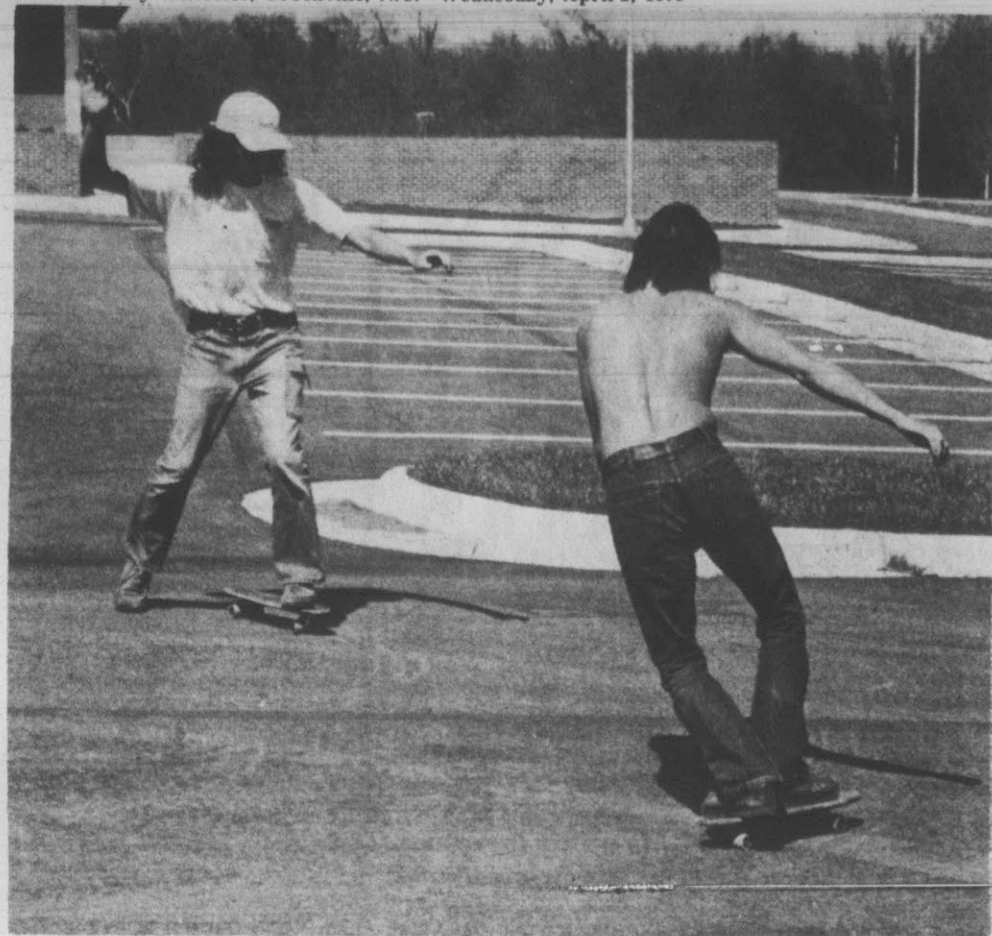

The more positive government view toward agriculture is also based on the principle that all land which can be utilized in a rational way be allocated for agricultural purposes, especially for grain production.

Begin Mailing Of Tax Rebate Checks In May

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says taxpayers will begin to receive their tax rebate checks in May with all 78 million checks in the mail by the end of June.

The rebates are being provided under the tax cut bill passed by Congress and signed by President Ford last month.

Following are questions and answers, as prepared by the Internal Revenue Service, about the tax rebates:

Q. What is a rebate?
A. A rebate is the return of a portion of your 1974 tax authorized by the tax reduction act of 1975.

Q. What is the base for the IRS computation of rebates?

A. Generally, the law provides 10 per cent of 1974 tax as a base for computing rebates but establishes $200 as the maximum rebate.

Q. I had no federal tax liability in 1974. Am I eligible for a rebate?

A. No, the rebate is based on liability for tax for 1974.

Q. What is the minimum rebate?

A. The law established $100 as the minimum rebate unless the taxpayer's 1974 tax was less than $100, in which event the entire amount of tax would be returned in the form of a rebate.

Q. Will I receive any type of explanation with my rebate check?

A. Yes, each check will include an explanatory stuffer.

Q. If my wife and I file separately, will we get a bigger rebate?

A. No, the maximum rebate for a married individual filing separately is $100.

Q. I owe money on my 1974 tax. Do I have to pay it before I get my rebate?

A. Yes, you should pay any amount of tax due. Otherwise, if you owe any money on your current year's or any prior year's tax returns, your rebate will be credited to your account. If your rebate is greater than the amount you owe, the difference will be sent to you.

Q. I haven't received my refund. Will this delay my rebate check?

A. No. Rebate checks will be issued quickly and in most instances by June 15, 1975. If you have not yet received your refund, it may be included in the same check. If the check has the words "ref and reb" on it, this means that the amount of the check includes both the regular refund and the rebate. If it is for the rebate only it will have "tax rebate" printed on it.

Q. I have received my refund. When will I receive my rebate?

A. We are processing these as quickly as possible. However, there are about 78 million checks involving rebates and it will take some time for Treasury disbursing to process them all. It is anticipated that all rebates will be issued before the end of June.

Q. My adjusted gross income for 1974 exceeded $20,000. Will this affect the amount of my rebate?

A. Yes, the maximum rebate is reduced proportionally for those with incomes over $20,000. Taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes over $30,000 will receive a maximum $100 rebate.

Hopes Get ERA Action

RALEIGH (AP)—Rep. Herbert Hyde, D-Buncombe, said he will address the House on a point of personal privilege today in reaction to a delay in committee consideration of his bill to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment.

Hyde informed representatives of his intentions Tuesday after Rep. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson, announced that Wednesday's meeting of his House Constitutional Amendments Committee was canceled.

Proponents of the amendment have accused Campbell of stalling a vote on ERA in the committee, hoping that support in the full House will erode.

Campbell said today's committee meeting was canceled because two subcommittees considering the impact of ERA on state laws and on state government were not finished with their work. He named the subcommittees last week and said he hoped they could be ready with their reports by Wednesday.

Hyde said he hoped his remarks would encourage the subcommittees, chaired by Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, and Rep. Bob Jones, D-Rutherford, to speed up their work.

Opening lead: Four of ♠

One of the most exhilarating sights at the bridge table is watching an expert defender duel an accomplished declarer. When this hand was played in a national team championship, Lew Mathe of Los Angeles, one of the world's great players and current president of the American Contract Bridge League, was at the helm with the South cards. Sitting West was William Grieve of New York, who has represented the U.S. in international competition.

Despite West's opening bid, North-South reached their optimum spot of three no trump with little difficulty. Grieve made his normal lead of his fourth best heart, dummy's king won as East followed with the three and a diamond was led to the jack and West's king.

East's play of the three of hearts at trick one marked declarer with both the ace and queen of the suit, so Grieve decided that there was little future in hearts. Since the auction indicated strongly that declarer held the king of clubs, West could count ten tricks for North-South once his remaining diamond stopper was forced out. Obviously, the only hope for the defense was to take three spade tricks quickly. To be able to accomplish this, East had to hold the jack of spades.

That alone wasn't enough. If Grieve attacked the suit by leading the ace and then the queen, Mathe could thwart the attempt by holding up the king of spades, to the third round. In an effort to induce declarer to win his spade trick early, Grieve made the fine play to shifting to the queen of spades!

Note that if declarer plays the king of spades, the defenders will be able to score three spade tricks after West wins the ace of diamonds. But Mathe was aware of what was happening, and followed with a low spade from dummy. Grieve had yet another surprise up his sleeve. He continued with his low spade, trying to tempt Mathe into ducking in dummy a second time. However, he was marked with the ace of spades for his opening bid, so declarer put up dummy's king. Another diamond forced out West's ace, and the best Grieve could do was to cash the ace of spades and hold Mathe to his contract.

STRAWBERRIES
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—California strawberry growers increased their production last year to a record 382 million pounds, 17 per cent above 1973. A total of 277 million pounds were marketed fresh, and the rest went to processors.

Fuel-Dump Was Cheaper

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The aircraft carrier Independence dumped about 9,000 gallons of aviation fuel at sea because it was more efficient, safer and cheaper than unloading it at the ship's home port here, a Navy spokesman says.

The Independence was en route from the Caribbean to Norfolk when the fuel was dumped about 150 miles off the South Carolina coast, the Navy said Tuesday.

The Navy said the fuel was expected to evaporate without causing any pollution problems.

The fuel was valued at about $4,000, but a Navy spokesman said it might have cost as much as $20,000 to unload it at the Norfolk port.

Spokesmen said when carriers dump their aviation fuel tanks, salt water is pumped in to cleanse them.

The Navy said that if the operation had been performed at pierside, bottom silt and debris would have flowed into the tanks and possibly caused costly damage to the ship's piping system.

Navy officials also said the fuel would have posed a fire hazard while the Independence underwent maintenance work at Norfolk Naval Shipyard.
