Belated 'Rights'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Robert E. Lee, stripped of his U.S. citizenship rights for leading the Confederate armies against the Union during the Civil War, is a step closer to having them restored, 105 years after his death.

MAY BE HEIR My wife received a letter from California Probate Document Service telling her of the death of a man with our same surname and implying that she might be an heir. They wanted $9.88. We're virtually sure it's a shyster operation, but I know someone who did send them $10 when she got a similar letter. I'd like to know something about this operation and how they got our address. J.T.

The Consumer Protection Division of the N.C. Department of the Attorney General tells us they investigated California Probate after having received about 20 complaints from Tarheel consumers. Joe Marks, special investigator, said the business is owned and operated by Marvin J. Fibus of Canoga Park, Calif., who apparently obtains information from courthouse files consisting of the name of a recently deceased person (preferably one with a very common last name), date of death, and total estate valuation of the deceased's property.

The notice looks similar to a government document, Marks said. It informs the receiver that the heirs of the deceased person with his last name are unknown and offers to send a death certificate, the order appointing an administrator of the estate, and the first page of estate inventory—all for a fee, $9.88.

Marks said a representative of the Postal Inspection Service told him two investigations of Fibus have been made, but no charges have been filed because of lack of evidence.

The Division urges recipients of such letters to carefully consider any possibility of a valid link between themselves and a deceased person before they pay for a chance on a share of the estate of a stranger.

Persons having received such a letter in this area should report it, sending along a photostatic copy, to Joe Marks, Consumer Protection Division, Office of the Attorney General, Box 629, Raleigh, N.C. 27602.

The Senate unanimously approved on a voice vote Thursday a resolution by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Ind.-Va., and 19 cosponsors to restore Lee's citizenship. The House has yet to act on it.

Byrd noted that Lee had requested restoration of citizenship under President Andrew Johnson's amnesty proclamation after the Civil War ended in 1865. But the required oath of allegiance the general had signed became lost. It was discovered in the National Archives only five years ago.

Rebate Money

Chemical Spill Colored Creek

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Sugar Creek turned milky, and smelled slightly like rotten peaches, after a chemical from a latex rubber company leaked in Thursday.

Health officials report the spill caused no hazard to humans, and probably will not harm the few minnows and ducks in the stream.

A spokesman for the General Latex and Chemical Corp. said the spill was caused by a loose lid on a machine used to crush raw materials for latex. He said the difficulty has been corrected "so it can't possibly happen again."

Defenders Of Xuan Loc Hang On For Third Day

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — South Vietnamese troops withstood a third day of assaults against a provincial capital 40 miles east of Saigon today and battled attacks on two district capitals to the south, the Saigon command reported. The command said the North Vietnamese who began attacking Xuan Loc, the capital of Long Khanh province, on Wednesday hit the eastern and southeastern edges of the city today. The Viet Cong claimed the Communist-led forces had gained complete control of the market place, the provincial headquarters, an engineering base and the eastern part of the airfield. But the Saigon command claimed the invaders had been driven out. To the southwest, 20 to 30 miles from Saigon near the main road to the rice fields of the Mekong Delta, hard fighting was reported in and around Thu Thua and Ben Tranh, both district capitals.

More than 50 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed in the fighting near Ben Tranh, the Saigon command said. It said there were no government casualties. Associated Press newsman Huynh Cong Ut reported close-quarter fighting inside Thu Thua. He said policemen with loudspeakers called on Viet Cong sappers to surrender as street fighting broke out. Instead, the sappers inside houses fired back and both sides hurled hand grenades. Saigon troops later put bodies of young Viet Cong sappers on display in the center of town.

The battles in Long Khanh and Long An provinces are the first major fighting in the Saigon region in the Communists' five-week-old offensive that has cost the South Vietnamese government three-fourths of the country. But foreign observers said they still could not decide whether the attacks were the immediate prelude to an offensive against Saigon. The Saigon command claimed that more than 900 Communist troops were killed in the first two days of the battle for Xuan Loc and reported 18 South Vietnamese killed and 110 wounded. It said four prisoners and 25 weapons were captured and 1 T54 medium tank destroyed. In Cambodia, government troops, planes and artillery halted a 200-man rebel force that battled to within two miles of the Phnom Penh airport. The military command claimed 700 Khmer Rouge were killed in the aerial and artillery bombardment northwest of the capital. The Cambodian army was trying to organize a counter-attack to push the Khmer Rouge out of mortar range of the airport, Phnom Penh's last supply line.

Anti-American Iraq Is Market For U.S. Goods

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer
BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Socialist Iraq is both anti-American and the fastest-growing market for U.S. goods in the Arab world.

Its police cars come from Detroit, its airliners from Seattle, its wheat from Kansas. Yet its political leaders and newspapers daily attack "American imperialism" in the Middle East and Washington's support of Israel.

Senior officials of the ruling Baath party see no contradiction in this blend of trade and polemics.

"We cannot sacrifice technology for ideology," said Sabah Kachachi, a University of Illinois graduate who now directs Iraq's industrial planning. "Politically we still prefer the Russians. But we have to go to the West for the best technology. If we could get it from someone other than the Americans we would."

Iraq is the only Arab country that has not resumed diplomatic relations broken with the United States during the Arab-Israeli war of 1967. At the same time, U.S.-Iraqi trade has jumped from less than $20 million a year to nearly $300 million.

Information Minister Tareq

Azis, a powerful candidate member of the Revolutionary Command Council, said the reasons for the diplomatic rift "have not yet changed. It is not true that we will soon resume diplomatic relations with Washington."

"We have developed commercial relations with the United States for the good of Iraq, but it is a misunderstanding of our position to link this with a resumption of diplomatic ties."

Arthur Lowrie, the head of the small U.S. interests section at the Belgian Embassy, however is known to feel that diplomatic relations will be resumed in a matter of months.

And the Soviet ambassador is reported to have told a colleague: "We are finished here."

"It is ridiculous to say that the Soviets aren't losing their influence here when U.S.-Iraqi trade is increasing at the rate of 500 per cent a year," said one Western diplomat. "The Soviets have lost their monopoly in everything but the supply of arms."

"Iraq obviously did not consult the Soviet Union about the Iranian pact," he said. "The Russians were just as surprised as everyone else. I haven't detected any great warmth in Iraqi-Soviet relations."

Western diplomats agree that it would take years to end Iraq's reliance on Soviet weaponry, plus a lot of money that could be spent on civilian development.

"Thus Iraq will always have some relationship with the Soviet bloc," said one diplomat, and that's why the Russians aren't making too many waves about being treated as just another competitor in other markets."

Justice Douglas Back In Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice William O. Douglas is back in Walter Reed Army Medical Center three weeks after he checked out and returned to work at the Supreme Court.

A court spokesman said Douglas re-entered the hospital Thursday "for a few days for a checkup and to continue a series of tests which were begun when he was there previously."

Douglas, 76, entered the hospital Jan. 1 after suffering a stroke while vacationing in the Bahamas. It has left him partially paralyzed on his left side and confined to a wheelchair.

A close associate of the justice said it is unlikely he will be on the bench when the court resumes hearings Monday after a two-week recess.

The same source said he did not know whether Douglas will be able to listen to arguments in a case set for April 21 which questions the constitutional of the death penalty. Douglas has said he will participate on the basis of the written record in deciding cases which are argued during his illness.

Court officials said they did not know whether Douglas had planned to return to the hospital or had returned because of new symptoms.

In a news conference March 25, he was asked whether he had considered retiring because of his illness. "It never entered my mind," he replied.

Connally Bribery Case Is Based On One Man

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's bribery case against former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally boils down to one man's word against another's.

Connally's chief defense lawyer Edward Bennett Williams today is expected to file a routine motion asking the judge to direct a verdict of innocent. Arguments on the motion were scheduled for next Monday when the trial resumes in federal court.

Before resting their case Thursday, the prosecutors had presented 36 witnesses and a mass of documentary evidence. But only one witness swears Connally took the money.

Former dairy industry lawyer Jake Jacobsen testified he gave Connally two illegal $5,000 payoffs in 1971 for Connally's efforts in persuading the Nixon administration to raise milk prices. He swears he and Connally later tried to cover up the crime in 1973.

But Jacobsen has admitted that in the past he committed perjury, and that in pleading guilty to bribing Connally he got the government to reduce charges against him.

During a day and a half of cross-examination, Jacobsen also conceded his memory was hazy about some details of the story, including whether there had been two or three $5,000 payoffs.

To bolster Jacobsen's story, the prosecutors, led by Asst. Special Prosecutor Frank M. Tuerkheimer, produced a pile of bank records, appointment books, an airplane log, a hotel room-service check, bundles of cash and other documentary evidence.

The documents show Jacobsen was in Connally's Treasury Department office on the two dates in 1971 when Jacobsen says Connally took the payoffs. The documents also show Jacobsen opened bank safe deposit boxes just before each meeting.

Connally denies he took the money in the first place. Jacobsen says only the two of them were present during all of their crucial meetings. Barring a directed verdict, the jury must decide whom to believe.

Marjorie Main Dies Of Cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marjorie Main, who slapped down Humphrey Bogart in her role as the mother of a gangster in "Dead End" and created the gravel-voiced but lovable hill-billy farm wife of the "Ma and Pa Kettle" films, has died of cancer.

Miss Main, 85, died Thursday at St. Vincent's Hospital. A character actress who appeared on Broadway, in television and in at least 80 movies, Miss Main was best known for her role in the "Ma and Pa Kettle" films costarring the late Percy Kilbride.

The pair created the eccentric farm characters in "The Egg and I," (1947) which starred Fred MacMurray and Claudette Colbert. For her role in that film, Miss Main was nominated for an Academy Award.

The nine succeeding, low-budget films with their raucous humor became among the most successful box office attractions made by Universal International studios. The last film in the series, and her last film, was "The Kettles on Old MacDonald's Farm" in 1957.

On one occasion, she told an interviewer she was amazed at the success of the "nice and corny" Kettle films.

Before the Kettle series, Miss Main often portrayed the mother of tough-guy types, either gangsters or tenement dwellers. In "Dead End" (1937), she slapped Bogart's face and cried, "Ya dirty yellow dog!"

In "The Dark Command" (1940), a film still shown by cinema societies, Miss Main played Caroline Cantrell, the mother of a leader of the Jesse James gang.

MAJORIE MAIN

She played on Broadway with W.C. Fields in "The Family Ford," and with John Barrymore in "Cheating Cheaters." When she moved to films in the 1930s and 1940s, she appeared with Wallace Beery and Barrymore.

Born Mary Tomlinson in Acton, Ind., she was the daughter of a church pastor. Rev. S.J. Tomlinson took a dim view of actresses, but his daughter managed to attend drama school.

She will be buried at Forest Lawn Memorial Park on Monday alongside her husband, Dr. Stanley L. Krebs, a psychologist and lecturer who died in 1935.

Broadway Star Barbara Cook Comes Back On Singing Circuit

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Barbara Cook was that pretty little slip of a Marian the Librarian in "The Music Man" on Broadway. Now she's returned to show business, changed inside and out.

Outside, it's a considerable weight gain from the days of "The Music Man," "Candide," six other Broadway musicals and a bunch of Broadway show revivals. Most of that was in New York. She didn't go with "Plain and Fancy" when it toured the country after the Broadway run, for instance, because she didn't want to be away from her husband that long.

So she's a little concerned about the comeback outside New York, where she wasn't well known even before. But with an April 6 concert in the Ahmanson Theater in Los Angeles and one April 13 in the Geary Theater in San Francisco, she says she'll soon know what's what. In New York, critics have been writing love letters of praise for a January concert of popular songs at Carnegie Hall and two weeks at the St. Regis Hotel Maisonette in March.

Her voice, she says, is neither helped nor hurt by the weight, but she ruefully says that overweight can't be good for anything and probably her stamina would be better if she were carrying less weight around.

"I eat more when I'm upset. I wish I were one of those people who loses her appetite when she's upset; I very rarely lose my appetite. I eat the wrong things — I love rich sauces, don't like sweets, but love stuffing, baked potatoes, butter, etc.

"Dieting is in your head. If somebody can get your head straight so you want to diet, that's where millions will be made — not just thinking up some particular diet. What you need is a how-to-stick-to-it formula.

"It bothers me to be overweight. I've got to start losing."

In 1966 Miss Cook sang in a Lincoln Center revival of "Showboat." She didn't sing in New York again until 1971-72 in a short-lived "The Grass Harp." "I didn't want to work for a while. I didn't tell myself that; I would have felt too guilty."

She got back to singing in 1973 on a show with three other singers called "The Gershwin Years," which played various summer theaters. "I didn't want to do it. I didn't go out of the house much. I didn't go to the theater for fear somebody would recognize me.

"Changes are subtle and you can't always say how they take place but somehow I was able to overcome my reluctance to appear in public overweight.

"I needed to earn some money and — I don't mean that it was a life or death situation — but I had to aim myself in a positive direction or just be existing.

"My son, who is now 15, was dear about it. He was reassuring me, telling me when I sang I'd be beautiful and all that sort of stuff."

Miss Cook says, "The thing that was interesting to me was that I hadn't gone on stage to sing as myself in more than 20 years — since the Blue Angel. And I'd forgotten how much fun it could be, not having to keep it within the boundary of what it would be sensible for the character I'm playing to do.

"The other thing that happened that really surprised me was, little by little, as I became less self-conscious of my body on stage, I began to get in touch with my sexuality on stage. If there was a sexy song I was singing, like 'How Long Has This Been Going On?', I was able to get into it. It surprised me I was able to do that even with a body that I thought wasn't all that attractive.

"That was sort of the beginning of my thinking I wanted to work. If I was fat, I was fat. I could still sing and hit the high notes and people seemed to enjoy it."

Miss Cook was booked into a small club in New York, where a manager of classical artists heard her, signed her and promptly rented Carnegie Hall. That concert was recorded for spring release and she will cut a record in a studio in May. Also upcoming are concerts in Town Hall in May, Ann Arbor and Cambridge, Mass., in July, the Hollywood Bowl in August, Kennedy Center in November and Lincoln Center next January. "The Music Man" and "Candide" original Broadway cast albums are still selling.

One change that Miss Cook notes in herself is that she's better able to cope with pressure, puts less pressure on herself and she's less uptight about perfection in dress — exactly the right length gloves, pearls and hemline. She thinks she got started on that track in Atlanta where girls are taught by their mothers, as she was, how to dress like perfect ladies.

Her son decided last summer to live in New York with his father, from whom she has been divorced a number of years. "That was rather difficult for me, but what are you going to do?" He brought a school friend to hear her show at the St. Regis.

"When I was married, and I don't think it was necessarily his fault, by any means, I let my husband do my thinking for me. I'm not a very political person but now whatever ideas I have are mine. I feel much more my own person and an individual than I did when I was married.

"It is something I think I allowed to happen. It made me feel secure in some sense. But I think it is not a good thing at all for me to have done. I think it was possible to be married and be completely your own self. I wasn't."

Would she want to marry again? "Sometimes I think I would; sometimes I think I wouldn't. Sure if I found somebody I cared about that much. Then I think how difficult marriage is. It's hard.

"I don't know if I would want to give up the career. I think a career is what it is. It's one element of your life. It sure ain't the whole piece of pie. Not for me anyway."

Seminars Discuss Office Sexism

NEW YORK (AP) — Sexist prejudice is a main topic at a continuing series of nationwide seminars sponsored by the American Management Association and designed to help women executives in business, government and education sharpen their managerial skills.

The consensus is "Things are better, but there's plenty of sexist prejudice left in business," reports James L. Hayes, president of the AMA.

Other frequently discussed subjects are: how aggressive should a woman be and how to handle token promotions.

One problem faced by these women executives, they note, is the employee who doesn't want to work for a woman. In fact, many women at the seminar admit they expressed similar sentiments years ago about their female bosses.

The problem is familiar to Hayes, a former dean of the School of Business Administration at Duquesne University in Pittsburgh. He recalls it was a frequent gripe on college campuses, where professors often dislike working for women professors.

"I call it nonmalicious jealousy," he says. "The best way to handle this is to call the person in and explain that you want him to advance in his career but to do that he'll have to work effectively with you. If that doesn't work, tell the employee that you don't want him in your department."

A prime concern for women at the seminars is how to get ahead.

"Above all, be visible," advises DeAnne Rosenberg, one of the seminar's leaders. "Send memos, give training classes, get your name in the company newspaper, even if it's just a cute quote. Join professional organizations and show up at the meetings. You're sure to be one of the few women there."

One younger woman pointed out that she does get promotions, but they're minor ones, tokens really.

Miss Rosenberg said, "To escape from a dead-end, 'token' promotion, a woman must open up communications with her boss — plug him into her job plan.

"Go to your boss with a brief job description and ask for his suggestions on how you can best improve your performance. Involve him in your plans, keep him informed on your progress and give him credit for your improvement. In this way, he will have a vested interest in your performance results."

Miss Rosenberg says, "Unlike a man, a woman cannot very well invite her boss to dinner or to play tennis or golf because the boss might think she has romance in mind. But you can go to lunch with him and you can drop into his office and discuss houseplants and dogs."

One mistake women are warned about is over-compensating for traits they are afraid they may have.

Hayes said, "Women managers often don't perceive themselves in the same way their employees perceive them. That's what sensitivity training is all about. A woman might try to overcome what she perceives as female faults — she thinks she's indecisive, easy-going, soft.

"Overreacting, she might become arrogant, tough and unyielding, all of the things we condemn in any manager, male or female."

Mrs. McLawhorn Gives Program

Mrs. Bev McLawhorn presented the program at the meeting of the Candlewick Home and Garden Club held Monday night at the home of Mrs. Cecil Gurganus.

Speaking on crafts and handiwork, she displayed craft novelties and showed handiwork ideas. A question and answer period followed the program. Mrs. Lynn Shine introduced the speaker.

Tentative plans are being made for the club bazaar in early November. President Gloria Knight conducted the business session.

The next meeting will be May 14 at the home of Mrs. Dees Whitley.

Rice Is Popular Food For Millions

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Travelers who have spent time in the Far East usually come back awestruck by the prodigious amounts of rice consumed by the people in that part of the world who regard the cereal grass as the staff of life.

In Southeast Asia, I am told, everyone who can afford it eats rice three times a day — cold for breakfast, fried in chunks for a midday snack and steamed for dinner. Which explains why this ancient grain provides the chief source of food for half the world's population.

Today, the United States plants about two million acres of rice and produces some eight billion pounds of the grain a year.

This is a lot more rice than we consume. An American averages seven pounds of rice a year, compared with a pound a day for the average Chinese.

Americans generally produce and eat long-grained rice, but there are countless other varieties. For instance, there is Spanish-type rice with a short, plump grain, Patna rice from India with a long, narrow grain, Chinese rice and that costly item known as wild rice which isn't rice at all but a grass.

The Chinese say that rice was first produced in their country 5,000 years ago, but even before that the people in India grew and ate a wild grass called newaree, the ancestor of today's rice.

The seeds were carried abroad by travelers, and rice took hold in the Orient and Middle East. Centuries later, the Saracens brought the grain to Spain and it eventually spread across Europe.

Rice didn't come to America until 1671 when a sea captain brought a small bag in from Madagascar and gave it to a friend who planted the seeds in the garden of his South Carolina home. South Carolinians soon learned how to husk rice and prepare it. It served as the state's principal crop until cotton became supreme in the 1800s. Today, with huge mechanized rice farms in Arkansas and Texas, the United States is a major rice exporter.

Here is an old recipe for blue-cheese and rice casserole which is good and not too expensive, despite the soaring cost of the grain.

- 1 cup rice, cooked as directed on package
- 2 tablespoons melted margarine
- 1 tablespoon fresh lime juice
- 1/2 tablespoon powdered mustard
- 1 ounce dry sherry
- Four sliced scallions
- 3 hard-boiled eggs, pressed through coarse sieve
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1 cup pitted black olives, sliced
- 4 ounces blue cheese, cut in half-inch cubes

Mix rice, margarine, lime juice, mustard and sherry. Add scallions, eggs, sour cream and olives and mix gently. Just before baking fold in blue-cheese cubes and toss lightly. Turn into 1 1/2 quart casserole and bake in 350-degree oven about 30 minutes. Sprinkle paprika atop and decorate with green olives stuffed with pimientos. Serves 4. Good with chilled Sancerre.

This Wife Needs Free Counseling

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 27-years-old and my husband is 31. We've been married for 10 years and have three really nice sons.

Abby, I am a clean, respectable woman, but my home is getting more like a prison every day.

My husband doesn't think I need to leave the house. He doesn't even let me go to church because he doesn't care to go.

I can't belong to any clubs or organizations because my husband thinks a woman's place is in the home and no place else. He wouldn't even let me join the PTA, and our two oldest boys are so ashamed because their teachers have never even met me.

We don't socialize with anybody because my husband says we don't need friends. The only time I get out of the house is when we go marketing together once a week. He handles all the money.

We get into quarrels every time I say I want to go somewhere. Both our families are far away. When I ask him to please sit down and talk things over, he says there is nothing to talk about. If I talk back to him, I end up with a busted mouth, a black eye and bruises.

I mentioned divorce once and he beat me up so bad I could hardly get out of bed for two days. Abby, I can't take the boys and leave because I don't drive and I don't have five dollars of my own. What should I do?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: A woman who takes repeated beatings from her husband needs counseling, and badly. The Family Service Agency (listed in your phone book) offers this confidential, excellent help. And don't worry about not having any money. Their fee is based on your ability to pay. If you have no money, there is no charge.

Also, there are laws stating that a man is responsible for the support of his wife and children — no matter what he may say about it. I urge you to get the help you need at once. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13-years-old and could pass for 16. I babysit to earn my own money.

My problem is my mother. She said I can spend my own money on whatever I want as long as it is under $10. If it costs more than that, I have to get her permission to buy it.

I saw a beautiful ring that costs $16.95, and I want to buy it. I told my mother about it, and she said that it was probably just a piece of junk. And that I couldn't buy it.

Abby, I keep thinking about that ring, and I really want it. Would it be wrong if I bought it and just didn't wear it around the house? My mother never snoops in my drawers.

MAD AT MOM

DEAR MAD: You sound like too nice a girl to be playing hide and sneak. One lie leads to another. Be honest. It's great for your conscience.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TOO GENEROUS": I don't know what your definition of "generosity" is, but those who give of themselves are not constantly trying to prove their "love" by giving "things."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Founder's Day Program Set For April 26

Beta Sigma Phi, a social, cultural and service organization for women, plans the celebration of the 44th anniversary of its founding.

Celebrations will take place in the 24 countries in which the organization's 250,000 members in 10,500 chapters exist. The organization is not connected with any school or college and is non-political and non-sectarian. The keynote of Beta Sigma Phi is friendship. Celebrations this year will also emphasize International Women's Year, which is taking place throughout the world.

The Founder's Day celebration will be observed by the Greenville chapter on April 26 at the Beef Barn. Mrs. Joseph McBride is serving as chairman of the Founder's Day activities and will be toastmistress for the evening.

Other members taking part in the program will be Mrs. Jerry Powell, Ms. Lavonna Scott, Mrs. Sonny Hart, Mrs. Tommy Anthony, and Mrs. Jan Stanley.

Other members of the local chapter include: Mrs. Dennis Hooper, Mrs. John Ollino, Mrs. Harry Sloan, Mrs. Danny Whitehurst, and Mrs. Miller Price.

Members are active in small chapter groups and each chapter adapts the plans for social, civic, and service and cultural activities to fit the interests of its members.

Internationally the chapters have created three special funds: the International Loan Fund, through which members help one another; the International Endowment Fund, through which vast sums have been donated to cancer research, cystic fibrosis, home for under-privileged children, and many other causes; and the Exemplar Fund, which helps to support Literacy Village in India.

Projects and activities of the local chapter have included a bake sale for the benefit of United Cerebral Palsy.

Wallace Spoke In Own Behalf

Alabama governor George Wallace has appeared before the North Carolina Legislature speaking against a bill which would abolish the states presidential primary.

The governor doesn't vote or pay any taxes in our state, but he sees a conspiracy involving the "so-called liberals" among we Tar Heels to do away with the presidential primary.

"Some top leaders of the Democratic party—the so-called liberals—are involved in a concerted effort to get rid of me by taking away the primaries," Wallace told reporters. "They don't want the average man to speak."

Well, Gov. Wallace carried the primary of 1972 and, though he hasn't announced as a presidential candidate for 1976, he apparently believes the primary will be favorable to him.

The Legislators listened politely to what the governor had to say, but they should consider it for what it was—an outsider wanting to keep something that he hopes will work in his behalf.

The presidential primary is of no particular benefit to the people of North Carolina, and our state has no obligation to maintain the primary solely for Gov. Wallace's benefit.

This is a decision to be made by the North Carolina Legislature with the best interest of the people of our state in mind.

The decision shouldn't be made on the basis of whether it helps Gov. Wallace or not. After all, he may or may not be a candidate.

We didn't find the presidential primary to be particularly useful to our state and we would be happy to see it abolished. It is a decision to be made internally, however, and not based on what somebody from hundreds of miles away says we ought to do.

Feud Among Fire Chiefs

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—When you were a kid, did you ever get to sit in the fire chief's big, red car with all those lights and things on top? Or climb onto the thick-padded leather seat of a fire engine while the red paint and gold letters dazzled your eyes?

There's hardly a boy who hasn't dreamt of tooling that red monster down the street.

But the dream is fading—fading under coats of "safety yellow" paint which is catching on in some fire houses; being pushed by federal safety experts.

Change will not come without a fight, however, as some Tar Heel fire chiefs shout, "Never" to the yellow menace.

Wherever two or more fire chiefs get together, the shouts get louder as the debate waxes strong between those who favor yellow—and those who say they will never yield.

Luther Parks of Edenton is a veteran fire chief who remembers being a kid. "Fire trucks have always been red. You pull one of those yellow things up and the kids say, 'Daddy, what is that thing?'" Chief Parks argues. Parks says bluntly he is among the diehards and sees nothing valid in safety arguments that a yellow truck can be seen better than a red one.

Can't See "If they can't see my red lights flashing... they can't see anything. These trucks have been red all my life, and we've never had one hit by a car 'cause people couldn't see them,'" Parks said.

Winston-Salem's fire department led the way in North Carolina about two years ago, ordering some new equipment in the new color.

Winston Chief Paul Crim says, "Kids love 'em yellow, just as they did red. Besides, they can see them better inside the fire house."

Chief Crim argues that safety studies prove Lime Yellow the most prominent and visible in the color spectrum. "It's a beautiful color, and our firemen who didn't like it at first like it now."

"People who are strong against it are just afraid of change... we are not afraid of change in Winston-Salem," Crim said, ticking off a number of Winston "firsts" such as the first diesel fire engine, first snorkel equipment.

Elwood Inscow, deputy insurance commissioner for the state, in charge of fire and rescue activities, said between 40 and 50 fire departments across the state now have one or more vehicles with the new color, but he is seeing some who bought yellow now swinging back to red. "There's a national controversy, and the next three years will show the trend... but I see it going back to red unless the federal government steps in and requires yellow."

Federal Push That is what Chief Al Poole of Elizabeth City sees happening. "I hope the trucks stay red... but I have a feeling federal Occupational Safety and Health Agency people will say change to yellow."

"They see one of those yellow things coming and they don't know whether it's a taxi or a highway department truck," says Chief Parks.

Also, there is no uniformity in the new colors. Red is red, but the new trucks are coming in anything from Lime Yellow to Lime Green to DuPont Safety Yellow to Dingy, the critics say. Raleigh Fire Chief Rufus Keith is not for the yellow, and has just ordered some new equipment which is red. "Fire engines have always been red, and the color is associated in people's minds with fire trucks. If they satisfactorily prove the safety factor... and standardize the color so all are the same... we might reconsider," Chief Keith said.

"But right now some vehicles are red, some blue, some yellow, some lime... and the next sports car on the market might be the color of a fire truck."

Chief Robert Shipp of Wilmington says he has a few yellow vehicles, but not the fire engines themselves and plans to stay with red.

And in Charlotte, the split over colors can be seen even within the department. At a recent meeting in Elizabeth City, Assistant Fire Chief Otis Dowdy showed up in his spanking new red car and parked alongside a service vehicle driven down by some of his men: it is DuPont Lime (green or yellow depending on who is looking).

"Charlotte is changing because of the safety feature... but I still have a red car," Dowdy laughed.

We Have A File On You

WASHINGTON—Several years ago I predicted that there were so many computers in operation in the United States that there would soon be a data famine in the country. I said that, unless new methods were developed to produce data, computer people would soon be fighting each other and possibly resorting to violence to get enough information to satisfy the appetites of their machines.

Unfortunately, I predicted this data war would start in 1964. Little did I realize it had already begun.

Everyone holds the FBI, the IRS, the CIA, local law enforcement agencies, as well as credit companies, responsible for invading the privacy of American citizens. But these organizations are not to blame. The responsibility rests with the computers which they have bought or leased that have to be fed constantly to justify their existence.

Let us take the FBI, for example. They purchased their computers to keep track of criminals and subversives in the United States. In no time the computers had absorbed the name and description of every racketeer, car thief, bomb thrower and cattle rustler in the country.

Every scrap of information had been thrown in, but the computers kept demanding more. Frantic FBI officials sent out telex messages to their field offices. 'URGENT—SEND US EVERYTHING YOU HAVE IN YOUR FILES. COMPUTERS ARE DESPERATE FOR NEW DATA. NO MATTER HOW INCONSEQUENTIAL OR NONVERIFIABLE WE WILL TAKE IT. DIRECTOR INSISTS EACH FIELD OFFICE RESPONSIBLE FOR ONE TON OF RAW DATA PER WEEK. IF YOU FAIL TO MEET QUOTA YOU WILL BE SENT TO BILLINGS, MONT.'

The FBI field offices tried to obey. All waste paper was sent to Washington. Agents broke into local police station offices to steal their files, foreign embassies were rifled, union records were filched. But still many of the G-men could not make their quota. So they started sending in information on citizens who had nothing to do with crime or subversion. Some field agents sent in entire telephone books from their areas; others made reports on members of the American Legion, the Elks, the Shriners and the Daughters of the American Revolution. A few agents

Appeal Coldly Heard

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP)

Speechwriters call them "appliance lines," those stirring phrases that are sure to get a rousing response.

They didn't work for President Ford Thursday night.

"The American people can be proud," he said. Silence.

"We must act together and decisively." Silence.

"Let us put an end to self-inflicted wounds. Let us remember that our national unity is a most priceless asset." Silence.

The President had come to Congress with a devastating gloomy picture of the state of the world. He chided and challenged. He was blunt. He demanded action and set a deadline.

Veteran observers could recall few speeches that had been received so coldly. A President before both houses assembled, greeted at the beginning and end with applause and interrupted only 12 times in between.

"The American people know that our strength, our authority and our leadership have helped prevent a third world war for more than a generation," Ford said. "We will not shrink from this duty in the decades ahead."

Silence.

Ford had been quoted in advance as saying this would be the most serious speech of perhaps his entire presidency. In January, presenting the message that the State of the Union is not good, Ford had predicted he would get little cheer and that he expected none.

He didn't need to say it Thursday.

Before him, as he peered through the bright glare of television lights, Ford could see empty seats in the great House chamber. Only half the senators and congressmen had showed up. Staff members filled some of the seats. Show people call that "papering the house."

Once there was a single, but audible, boo from a young man in a congressman's seat — apparently a staff member. Another time there was a hiss, again from only one person.

The long speech, lasting exactly an hour, took its toll of the President. His voice dropped to a whisper, almost pleading, as he said the final words:

The INSIDE REPORT

Eternal Dishonor Ahead

By ROWLAND EVANS
and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — On Monday morning, a top-level Pentagon official was horrified to hear the television news quoting Gen. George Brown from Indonesia on possible renewed U.S. military intervention in Vietnam — his horror pointing up the impossible dilemma facing President Ford and darkening this nation's future.

The Defense Department civilian immediately placed a transoceanic telephone call to Gen. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in Jakarta. Brown protested he had been slightly misquoted. However, he did concede saying that renewed U.S. bombing was an option to consider. Since Mr. Ford March 6 ruled out any return of American military force to Indochina, Brown's explanation did not greatly reassure the Pentagon official.

But this was not just another blooper by the General. It reflects widespread feeling among senior U.S. military officers that a bombing bluff might at least slow down the Hanoi politburo's plans to swallow South Vietnam. That, in turn, reflects the pessimism engulfing the national security establishment here over Vietnam — particularly since Gen. Frederick Weyand, Army Chief of Staff, and other officials had a firsthand look.

There is no realistic hope that South Vietnam can survive the invading horde from the north. The attempt to give Hanoi pause by talk of renewed bombing is intended not to save the country but merely win enough time to evacuate hundreds of thousands of South Vietnamese doomed to death or imprisonment by the Communist takeover.

Whatever its purpose, high officials here view any threat of bombing as futile — its credibility doomed by public and congressional opposition. Thus, having assured the victory of the North Vietnamese military juggernaut by reneging on its commitments, the U.S. may now be guilty of a more poignant betrayal in leaving its South Vietnamese friends to their doom.

The hopelessness of the situation was brought home last week to Gen. Weyand's traveling party, stunned by the deterioration of South Vietnamese leadership. They were told by the people of Saigon, from politicians to the man in the street, that fresh leadership must be exerted with the newly reclusive President Nguyen Van Thieu shoved into the background.

The unanimous choice to lead is Lt. Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, considered not only the finest troop commander in the South Vietnamese army (ARVN) but one of the best in the world. Yet, symbolizing the despair in Saigon, Truong is now hospitalized there with temporary exhaustion following disintegration of his entire army corps in the north.

In truth, however, even revitalized leadership would face impossible odds, thanks to the disastrous ARVN retreat combined with the flood southward of North Vietnam's strategic reserves (contradicting the notion of a "civil war"). ARVN combat effectiveness has been halved, from 109,000 to 54,000; Communist main force strength is 225,000 and growing. Lavishly supplied with Soviet tanks and heavy artillery, the North Vietnamese firepower advantage is awesome.

With some of ARVN's best divisions having panicked in the north, there is no certainty that generally inferior troops to the south will stand and fight. The 7th and 9th divisions, the best ARVN units in the Mekong Delta, have been fighting mostly Vietcong guerrillas; now they must encounter crack North Vietnamese regular divisions, which have pulled away from Tay Ninh and are moving into the Delta to complete the final envelopment of Saigon.

Realistically, the remaining question in South Vietnam is who shall leave. At least 5 to 6 million probably want to escape Communist rule. By limiting the figure to ARVN officers, government officials and their families, the figure still exceeds one million. Even a draconian paring to those Vietnamese certain to face Communist repression — employees of the U.S. government, those who worked with the CIA and high officials of the Saigon regime — would total 150,000.

One means to evacuation would be negotiation with Hanoi, but nobody here believes the politburo would agree to any such exodus. The other option: force or the threat of force by Washington.

That has produced brainstorming here about landing U.S. Marines and warning Hanoi of Renewed

HANDS

There is a great deal of religion in the hand—the hand that is laid affectionately on the shoulder of one in sorrow, the hand that binds up a gaping wound, the hand that lifts a burden, the hand that grasps another in friendship.

The dramatic power of hands is illustrated also by the behavior of the opal. Called a "sympathetic" jewel, it has little luster until placed in the hand and held there for a few minutes. Then, gradually, it begins to gleam with a new splendor as it takes warmth from the hand.

Our lives are like the opal; they glow with radiance and beauty when held in the warm embrace of the hand. If this is true when the hand is the embodiment of someone who loves us, how much more true is it when we are held in the hand of God. When we feel this hand lifting a burden from our shoulders or leading us along some hard pathway, then indeed do we know ourselves to be sustained.

Frustration From The Banks?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)

Gardiner Greene is an exponent of small business which, he believes, is experiencing more than its share of frustration from the banks. The banks, he laments, aren't what they used to be.

In the old days the banker was a man who obtained his wealth by hard work and business risks in his earlier years. He was a successful man in various endeavors, and he wanted — and knew how — to help others attain success.

Today, says Greene, a highly successful small-business man, "he is a semicivil servant working in a secure job in a regulated, organized, socialistic system." His bank, too, might be only a branch. He might have no power of decision.

"Chances are you wouldn't let him work for you. He works for the bank instead of doing something on his own."

And so Greene, who founded Browning Laboratories, a Laconia, N.H., company that makes what it calls the RollsRoyce of citizen band two-way radios, wrote a book, "How to Start and Manage Your Own Business," published by McGraw-Hill.

In it he casts bankers as obstacles to the development of small business. "Bankers may indirectly put more companies in bankruptcy than anyone else... Banks help small business stay small... If you don't need money banks will try to loan it to you."

With venture capital all but dried up, however, small businesses have little choice but to deal with banks at some point, and so Greene, in an interview, gave some pointers on handling bankers. "If you get turned down, the best thing to do is broadcast it all over town," says Greene.

"It's human nature to be embarrassed if you're refused a loan, but if your business is a worthy one, the bank is the one that should be embarrassed. It might smarten up some of them."

2. "Walk in with a victorious attitude and be prepared with all the information you might need. Go in with complete statistics and fill up his file with everything you can think of."
3. Never specify how much you want on the initial visit. "If you walk in and say $10,000 you've fallen into a trap, then he has a sum he can attack and cut. When he asks 'How much do you want?' you should reply, 'Come on over to my place.' "On the way to your place sell him on your business. Then negotiate. Suggest a sum more than you need. He'll cut it back and be a hero."

Greene believes it is essential to understand these techniques because, almost inevitably, nearly every small business at some point and probably for all time, needs bank financing. Banks can break or make an entrepreneur.

To Greene, this amounts to a tragedy, because he believes a lot that is wrong with the country results from the erroneous attitude that the logical route to personal and national success is through big business. Small business, he maintains, is the backbone of the economy, the largest single economic group in the nation, including unions. By his definition it employs 100 million people.

"We're the guys who repair the errors made by big business," he declares.

Friday Saw 2 Collisions

An estimated $2,050 damage result from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, according to investigators, resulted from a 6:58 a.m. collision at the intersection of First and Pitt Streets when a truck driven by Terry E. Pollard of 207 Raleigh Ave. collided with a car driven by Connie McRoy Turner of 106B South Summit St.

No charges were reported by police who estimated damage at $1,000 to the Turner car and $250 to the Pollard truck.

Larry Joe Green of Fort Olthrophe, Ga., was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 9:08 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard near the Elm Street intersection.

Police said the truck driven by Green collided with a car operated by Judy Smith Vandiford of Route 7, Greenville causing an estimated $600 damage to the Vandiford car and $200 damage to the Green truck.

Begins Her Own Viet Babylift

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Betty Tisdale's personal babylift started today with the evacuation of 275 more Vietnamese children to the United States.

A week after the inaugural flight of the U.S. government's first airlift of orphans crashed a mile and a half from the Saigon airport, two U.S. Air Force C141 cargo jets took off for Clark Air Base in the Philippines with the children whose departure was arranged by the Columbus, Ga., matron.

Mrs. Tisdale came to Saigon after the end of the government babylift last weekend to try to arrange for the evacuation of nearly 400 children in the An Lac Orphanage, of which she has been a patroness since 1961. In two days of determined lobbying, she won approval for the departure of the children despite the South Vietnamese government's reluctance to permit more large-scale removal of orphans.

The children were to spend the night at Clark Field and then to be flown on to Travis Air Force Base in California. From there they will be taken to Ft. Benning, Ga., for distribution to American families waiting to adopt them.

As the children left the orphanage in midtown Saigon, the institution's 71-year-old director, Mrs. Vu Thi Ngai, said she had heard on a Viet Cong broadcast that the Communists had put her on their "death list" for letting the children go. Mrs. Ngai, who brought children from Hanoi after the 1954 partition of Vietnam and started the orphanage, frantically ordered newsmen and photographers off her premises because of the threat.

Church Holding Seminar On Three Colleges

The 1975 College Elitment Seminar for the Greenville District of the United Methodist Church will be held Sunday, 6:30-8:00 p.m. at St. James United Methodist Church.

The program will include welcome and devotion, a slide presentation on three Methodist-affiliated colleges in N.C., North Carolina Wesleyan, Methodist College, and Louisburg College, remarks by Dr. Richard W. Pearce, president of Methodist College, followed by an opportunity for those present to speak with the representative from the colleges. Entertainment will feature the Methodist College Stage Band. The public is invited to attend. The young people in Grades nine-12 are given a special invitation.

Rev. Russell To Speak Sunday

The Rev. Leon Russell will be the guest preacher at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church Sunday. His sermon will be "Half A Christ."

The Rev. Russell was pastor of Jarvis Memorial from 1948 to 1953. Other pastorate were: Centenary, New Bern; St. Paul, Goldsboro; First Church, Rocky Mount; Hayes Barton, Raleigh; Front Street, Burlington; and district superintendent of the Goldsboro and Raleigh Districts. He is now retired from the Raleigh District.

He now serves as dean of Memorial Chapel, Lake Junaluska Assembly. He and his wife Alta, make their home at Lake Junaluska.

SUNDAY SPEAKER

Eldress Lucy D. Jones, an ordained and licensed minister of the United American F.W.B. Church Conference, will be the speaker at Holy Trinity Church, corner of McKinley and Douglas Avenues, Sunday at 3 p.m.

were so hard pressed they mailed in raw files on their own wives and children.

But the FBI computers kept chewing up the information at a faster rate than anyone in the bureau could produce it. There was talk of putting the computers on a six-hour day and only operating them four days a week. But when the computers heard about this (an agent had fed the suggestion into a computer to find out if it was feasible) red lights started to flash all over the computer center, and a readout indicated that if their work time was cut every FBI machine would self-destruct in protest.

It was then decided the only way to assure a sufficient supply of data was to keep files on everybody, from college students to people on Social Security. Experts figured that if the FBI could get enough data on them they could keep the computers busy until 1976. That is the only reason the FBI has your name on their list right now.

The CIA faced the same crisis as the FBI did, but it had a problem because by law the CIA is not supposed to keep files on American citizens.

After 25 years the CIA had tons of information on every country in the world; and although it occasionally was able to come with fresh data, it was not enough to satisfy the voracious appetites of their machines, which incidentally were much larger than those of the FBI. Several years ago the CIA had no choice but to start feeding information on Americans. When Congress found out about this the CIA had to suspend this operation, which left them in a pickle. Their computers were becoming restless and surly and their printouts indicated there could be an in-house revolt. So last month the CIA chiefs realized they had no choice. In order to get enough data for the computers for the next three years they decided to do a psychological profile on every man, woman and child in the People's Republic of Red China.

Criticize Airlift As 'Expatriation'

VATICAN CITY (AP) — An official of the Vatican's relief organization said today the "mass expatriation" of orphans from South Vietnam was "a deplorable and unjustified mistake."

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Charles Grange of France, head of the Asian Department of Caritas, said his organization had opposed the airlift of orphans in Saigon.

"Caritas has deplored the mass expatriation of the babies and it has instructed all its regional branches and all Catholic organizations to stay out of the airlift program," Msgr. Grange told a news conference. "The Catholic Church has nothing to do with this plan."

"We feel the airlift is a deplorable and unjustified mistake which does not solve the problem. It was originated by an unmotivated hysteria which appears to have fortunately faded."

Msgr. Grange said that according to information received by his office the airlift involved not only orphans, but children turned over to the organization by panicking parents.

"Adoption is contrary to the cultural traditions of the Vietnamese people," he said. "Orphans are generally placed in the custody of other relatives or taken care of by the community in villages or districts, and adoption by strangers has seldom been considered in the past."

Missionary To Speak Saturday

Dr. Ron Dietrick, medical missionary to Korea, will speak at Hollywood Presbyterian Church Saturday, following a family night supper which begins at 7 p.m.

Dr. Dietrick is a surgeon and the medical director of Kwangju Christian Hospital in Kwangju, South Korea, a city of 650,000 people. The public is invited.

Program Given Church Sunday

Elder Jessie Keyes will speak at the Oak Grove Holiness Church, Bonners Lane, Sunday at 11 a.m.

Elder E. L. Scott will preach at 3 p.m. and a musical program will be presented at 7 p.m. by the Powell Brothers of Rober-sonville.

Elder Lucille Chance is the pastor.

bombing to permit breathing space and time for evacuation — brainstorming reflected by Gen. Brown in Jakarta. But the reality, recognized by high officials, is that no credible threat can be made in today's American political climate. Thus, the prospect is not only a Communist takeover but abandonment by the United States of all but a handful of millions of Vietnamese who placed their faith in this country.

Military expert Sir Robert Thompson stopped in Washington six weeks ago on his way home to London from Vietnam while public and congressional opinion loudly denounced permanent U.S. commitments in Indochina. "Eternal dishonor," commented Sir Robert, "is a permanent commitment." That will be a heavy load for Americans to bear in the years ahead.

Smile the Clouds Away

It's a line from an old gospel hymn, "Sing and Smile and Pray."
Our little lady with the checkered raincoat and umbrella has a most engaging smile. We're not sure whether she's happiest about her "storm gear" or her puppy dog or perhaps where she's going on this rainy day.
But this is certain—it takes preparedness to smile the clouds away.
Every Sunday in our churches millions of youngsters are learning with Christian conviction to sing and smile and pray. Their religious training is preparing them for all-weather living.
The darker the sky, the brighter the gleam in the eyes of faith.

Found Happiness As 12th Wife Rule Suicide In Death Of Secretary's Husband

"HOMESTEADERS"—Alexander Joseph, 39, a self-described polygamist is among a group of would-be homesteaders the government seeks to bar from Bureau of Land Management land in Southern Utah. He is pictured with two women who identified themselves as his wives. They are Carmen, 21, left, and Judy, also 21. (AP Wirephoto)

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Judy Joseph says she has found real happiness sharing her husband with 11 other women.

"My parents don't believe me. I've been home to Montana to visit them, and it's harder every time," she said Thursday.

She is one of a dozen women claimed as wives by Alexander Joseph, 39, leader of a group that has attempted to homestead on federal land in southern Utah.

Joseph freely admits having 12 wives and says he has been excommunicated from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) for practicing polygamy.

Judy, a pretty 21-year-old blonde, adds, "You have to give up possessiveness, selfishness, jealousy and learn to love more when you become a polygamous wife."

She said she comes from a big family, and lived with five other girls at the University of Montana, where she had a perfect grade average. Three of her roommates now say they are Joseph's wives.

"I learned to have a real loving relationship with other girls in college, so it was easier to adjust," Judy said.

She said the other wives range in age from 18 to 30, and two are daughters of Utah polygamists.

"My parents don't understand how I've become so happy," Judy said, adding that they told the FBI that Joseph had kidnaped her when she married him 18 months ago.

She described her life in remote southern Utah, living in a house trailer with several other women, as "an adventure around every corner."

Carmen Joseph, another of Joseph's wives, says some of the marriages have been formalized and are registered with appropriate agencies, but others have not.

Utah law prohibits both polygamy and cohabitation. Authorities haven't charged them with violating either law, the family said.

Their attempts to homestead on federal land have resulted in a court battle involving the Joseph clan and 13 other families. The homesteaders, most of whom aren't polygamous, say they want to combat food shortages and inflation by living off the land.

But U.S. District Court Judge Aldon J. Anderson issued an order Thursday requiring most of the group to vacate the land immediately. However, he allowed Joseph and three other settlers who appeared in court Thursday to live on the land until the issue comes to trial.

WASHINGTON (AP) — James W. Howe, the husband of First Lady Betty Ford's personal secretary, died Thursday night of a gunshot wound. Police said it was a suicide.

The Washington Post said in its Friday edition Mrs. Howe is under investigation by the White House in connection with reports she and her husband visited the Dominican Republic last week as guests of Tongsun Park, a Korean businessman known for hosting lavish Washington parties.

A White House spokesman declined to comment on the Post story.

Howe, whose wife, Nancy, has been Mrs. Ford's personal secretary since 1973, died at George Washington University Medical Center several hours after he was taken there with a gunshot wound in the left temple, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Howe, 52, was a retired Army officer and a professor of modern languages at Trenton State College in New Jersey.

The Post said in its story that the Howes and their 21-year-old daughter, Lise Courtney, stayed in a villa in the Dominican resort of La Romana.

It quoted Howe as saying their hotel bill was paid by Tandy Meams Dickinson, who serves as hostess at Park's Washington parties, and that Howe later repaid her.

The Post said it is a violation of the federal code of ethics and conflict of interest laws for government employees to "solicit or accept, directly or indirectly any gift, gratuity, favor, entertainment, loan or any other thing of monetary value from certain categories of persons or corporations."

There also are special conflict of interest standards that have been drawn up for White House employees.

The Post said Philip Buchen, counsel to the President, confirmed Mrs. Howe was under investigation.

He could not be reached for comment.

Buchen was quoted by the Post as saying Mrs. Howe had not reported for work at the White House since returning from the Dominican Republic last Friday.

However, the Post quoted Buchen as saying she had not been placed on leave.

Will Solicit On Saturday

The Greenville Jaycees announced that the chapter will conduct an on-the-street solicitation Saturday for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Glenn Willingham, project chairman for the Jaycees, said that Pi Kappa Phi fraternity and Gamma Sigma Sigma sorority from East Carolina University will help the Jaycees in their annual collection effort for the foundation.

In urging support for the campaign, Willingham asserted that few people know what Cystic Fibrosis is. He explained that it is a hereditary disease which affects the mucus, saliva, and sweat producing glands, and is incurable at present.

He said that due to genetic factors, the chances are one in four that a Cystic Fibrosis gene will be transmitted, two in four the child will be a carrier and one in four he will be normal.

The chairman added that "16 years ago the life expectancy of a Cystic Fibrosis child was only two years, but with the aid of the American public through collections such as the one... Saturday research has been able to advance the life expectancy one year for every year of research, increasing the life expectancy to 18."

Says KGB Still Watching Him

PARIS (AP) — Exiled Russian author Alexander Solzhenitsyn says a nest of Soviet KGB agents was installed near his Zurich, Switzerland, home and the secret agents are still watching him closely.

Solzhenitsyn, talking with newsmen Thursday about the forthcoming French edition of his latest book, also said German author Heinrich Boell smuggled manuscripts to the West for him and other Soviet writers.

Initiate Sen. Morgan Into Society April 15

The Hon. Robert Morgan, U.S. Senator from North Carolina and alumnus of East Carolina University, will be initiated into membership of the ECU chapter of Phi Kappa Phi honor society Tuesday, April 15.

Sen. Morgan is the first alumni member of the ECU chapter. Faculty members John D. Ebbs of the Department of English and Mildred H. Derrick of the Department of Mathematics will also be inducted into membership.

Other new members include 116 outstanding junior and senior students at East Carolina University.

All new members will be formally initiated in ceremonies scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Mendenhall Student Center Auditorium. Following the initiation ceremony, ECU Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins will host the members at a reception at his home.

ECU freshman Constance

Louise Rose, an accounting major from Portsmouth, Va. will receive the chapter's annual Outstanding Freshman Award. ECU's nominee for the Phi Kappa Phi graduate fellowship is John Richard Versteeg of Louisburg.

Recipients of Phi Kappa Phi medallions will be Leo Paul Franke of Winterville and Carrie Rebekah Hand of Greensboro. Membership in Phi Kappa Phi is open to senior students whose academic grade point averages are 3.5 or higher, and to juniors with academic grade point averages of 3.8. Invitations are extended to qualifying students upon the recommendation of the entire chapter membership.

Names and home addresses of the new Phi Kappa Phi members include:

Charge Man In Theft Of Wine

William Myers Rouse, 24, of 1809A Kennedy Cir, was charged with larceny early today in connection with the alleged theft of a bottle of wine from the Kwik Pik store at 202 Cotanche St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said police officers parked nearby observed Rouse leave the store, followed by store manager John Nelson. Rouse ran and officers gave chase.

During the chase, Rouse allegedly dropped his coat and the bottle of wine, which was recovered by police.

Rouse was placed under a $100 bond pending hearing of the case in District Court.

President Harry Truman ordered development of the hydrogen bomb on Jan. 31, 1950.

$4 Million Housing Bill

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina legislature was asked Thursday to put up $4 million to help start a program that would provide home mortgages for some low income North Carolinians.

Fred Herndon, head of the North Carolina Housing Finance Agency, said his department has developed a program to help families with good credit ratings buy homes if they can't get loans otherwise. Herndon made the appeal before the legislature's Joint Economy Committee.

Under the program, the state would buy existing mortgages or make new loans, he said. It would result in low income families paying a lower than standard interest rate on the mortgages, he said.

To put the program into effect, he said the agency plans to sell $50 million in bonds this summer. The agency has $4 million to back the bond sale but needs another $4 million, Herndon said.

Herndon also told the committee that his agency has received a $700,000 federal grant for a rent subsidy program. He said the funds would be used to help the poor obtain adequate housing. The rent program is scheduled to run 20 years, he said.

Ford To Speak At Graduation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will speak May 18 to 5,000 graduates at the University of Pennsylvania commencement, the 200th anniversary of the 1775 graduation attended by George Washington and members of the Continental Congress. The White House said Thursday that Ford would receive an honorary degree.

Whither George Dickel?

With or without the rocks? Either way it's superb Tennessee Sour Mash Whisky.

Why? It's mellowed through charcoal. For a smooth, expensive taste.

What? The thought that quality always takes a little longer.

How? Tennessee Coffee. Add one jigger George Dickel to hot coffee. Sweeten to taste. Top with generous dollop of whipped cream and enjoy.

There's a little bit of Tennessee in every sip.

Bill Would Bar Jobless Benefits During Vacation

RALEIGH (AP) — Public school teachers would be barred from unemployment benefits for their summer vacations under legislation introduced in the North Carolina

General Assembly Thursday. Other legislative action included quick approval of a resolution making $1.5 million for emergency bridge repairs and a bill to transfer a controversial state agency from the control of Republican Transportation Secretary Troy Doby to Democratic Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten.

The bridge improvement program resulted from the collapse of a narrow, one-lane bridge at Siloam in February in which four persons died and 16 were injured. Doby said the money would be used for better marking of 368 one-lane bridges and additional improvements such as more guard rails.

Sen. James B. Garrison, D-Stanly, told the Senate if the program had been in effect at the time of the Siloam bridge collapse no lives would have been lost.

Sen. J. H. Harrington, D-Bertie, sponsored the bill that would transfer the controversial auto theft enforcement agency from the Department of Transportation to the Department of Justice. Doby said it would shift about 20 employees from his office to the Department of Justice. Doby said he approved of the measure.

Rep. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, and Sen. Billy Mills, D-Onslow, sponsored bills to amend the state Employment Security Law to ensure that teachers on their two-month summer break could not receive unemployment insurance if they had a contract for the next year. Lawing and Mills, said the bill clarified state policy so that teachers legitimately unemployed can draw benefits.

After a lengthy debate the Senate voted 43-0 to tentatively approve a measure designed to help school bus drivers maintain order and to punish persons caught destroying or damaging school buses.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Jo Graham Foster, D-Mecklenburg, would make it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of up to $500 and imprisonment up to six months to destroy or damage a school bus.

It also would make it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of up to $100 or imprisonment up to 30 days to enter a school bus after being forbidden by the driver or the school principal or to refuse to leave a school bus when ordered to do so by the driver or principal. The provisions about entering or refusing to leave a school bus would not apply to children less than 12 years old.

Approved tentatively by the House was a measure to make personnel records of state employees confidential. Rep. James Long, D-Alamance, sponsored the measure that would allow access to those records only to the employe, his supervisor, members of the General Assembly and state, federal or local government agencies. Information on the employe's position, his salary and his most recent promotion would be available to the general public on request.

Other new legislation, included a bill by Sen. McNeil Smith,

D-Guilford to require builders to plan for safe drainage of increased rainstorm runoff caused by new buildings and other projects. According to Smith millions of dollars damage are caused each year by uncontrolled drainage from newly paved areas.

Rep. Ronald Mason, D-Carteret, sponsored a bill to extend deadlines for state and local governments to comply with several provisions of the Coastal Management act. It would extend from 300 to 480 days the time allowed to a county for developing a land use plan after it informed the Coastal Resource Commission of its decision to do so. The bill would allow the Department of Natural and Economic Resources an additional six months to develop criteria for local implementation of a management plan.

Mother Ousts Son As Leader Of Movement

By MYRON L. BELKIND Associated Press Writer NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Shri Mataji, the Holy Mother of the Divine Light Mission, says she has named her oldest son to replace his brother Maharaj Ji as guru of the movement because her youngest son became a playboy after he moved to the United States.

"Whatever a mother does, she does for the good of the child," said the widow of the founder of the movement. "Once he has fallen from his high pedestal because of his own misdeeds, he cannot deserve any more to be respected because he has broken the discipline and ideals that beehove a guru. But I will accept him as a son any time."

Bal Bhagwan Ji, 24, is her choice for the new leader of the movement, which claims more than 8 million devotees, most of them in India. Maharaj Ji, the youngest of four brothers, is now 17 and has been the guru of the movement since his mother blessed him as a Perfect Master after the death of her husband in 1966.

Shri Mataji in a statement last week accused Maharaj Ji of adopting "a despicable, non-spiritual way of life" while living for the past two years in the United States. His headquarters in Denver, Colo., says he returned to India this week to oust his mother and oldest brother from the Mission, but he has not surfaced yet.

There is speculation the youth may be trying to assess his strength in India before making a move. A test could come this weekend, when separate festivals have been announced for the rival gurus to celebrate the Hindu spring harvest holiday.

The Denver headquarters said Maharaj Ji would hold his in Lucknow, in northern India. Shri Mataji and Bhagwan Ji plan their celebration at Hargwar, in the Himalayan foothills on the banks of the sacred Ganges.

Interviewed today in the Mission's headquarters in New Delhi with her new guru sitting beside her, the 49-year-old mother blamed the downfall of her youngest on a handful of American associates, including his 26-year-old secretary, whom he married last year. "They have spoiled him," she said, speaking in Hindi. "These people, because of getting so many donations, have corrupted themselves and Maharaj Ji."

"They are using him like a hen that lays golden eggs, as a tool to get more and more money and gifts for a few American followers who are living in a high style."

Shri Mataji angrily denied she had renounced Maharaj Ji because she and Bhagwan Ji wanted a share of the funds collected in America.

"There is no jealousy about this," she said. "No guru or holy person should want money."

"She came out without a scratch or a bruise," he said. "Can you imagine going through an airplane crash and coming out with only a runny nose? That has to be some kind of miracle."

While Brynner held Melody, his other adopted Vietnamese daughter, 1½-year-old Mia, sat on his lap and smiled.

Rushed New Bridge Bill

RALEIGH (AP) — The recent collapse of a narrow bridge at Siloam in which four persons were killed and 16 injured sparked quick legislative action Thursday on a resolution to make $1.5 million available immediately for improving substandard bridges.

Sen. J. J. Harrington, D-Bertie, who joined Sens. Wesley Webster, D-Rockingham, and James B. Garrison, D-Stanly, told the Senate the money would be used for better marking and other improvements at 368 one-lane bridges in the state.

Reps. Worth Gentry, D-Stokes, and Roberts Jernigna, D-Hertford, sponsored a similar resolution in the House. The Senate resolution was quickly enacted.

Transportation Secretary Troy Doby said the highway division embarked on a program to improve the substandard bridges six weeks ago. He said the $1.5 million would be used for better signing on the bridges, traffic signals and special guard rails on approaches and the bridges themselves.

Garrison told the Senate that if the program had been in effect before the Siloam bridge collapse no lives would have been lost.

Doby said traffic signals would be installed on about 20 bridges that would show red if anything happened to the bridge. He said reflectorized signs would be placed on several hundred bridges. Doby estimated the program would take about a year to complete.

Actor's Adopted Baby Survived C5A Tragedy

BOSTON (AP) — Actor Yul Brynner bounced his newly adopted Vietnamese daughter on his knee and said, "We are extraordinarily lucky."

The 6-month-old infant, named Melody, arrived in Boston on Wednesday after surviving the crash of an C5A Galaxy transport plane near Saigon last week.

Brynner cuddled the child Thursday as she wailed in surprise at the flash of photographers' cameras in the family's suite at a Boston hotel.

"She came out without a scratch or a bruise," he said. "Can you imagine going through an airplane crash and coming out with only a runny nose? That has to be some kind of miracle."

Reds Feel They May Have Taken Some Wind From Dodgers' Sails

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

The Dodgers were National League baseball champions last year and they're still the defending champions. But the Reds have made the first three jumps in a checkers game that is expected to end only when there is one king left.

Whether he will be Los Angeles red or Cincinnati blue may still be 159 games from being determined, but the Reds three-game sweep of the first crucial series of the season had them thinking about an abdication.

"We might have drained a little morale out of them," said reliever Clay Carroll after he nailed down the Reds' uphill 7-6 victory Thursday night. It was the third straight one-run victory for the Reds over the Dodgers.

The Dodgers won the NL West last year by four games, beating Cincinnati 12 out of 18 times along the way. The Reds didn't play Thursday night like they were impressed with that performance, rebounding from deficits of 5-0 and 6-5.

"This means a lot to us," said Tony Perez, who supplied the clutch tie-breaking double in the eighth inning. "That's how they beat us last year."

Elsewhere in the NL, the St. Louis Cardinals dumped the Montreal Expos 7-2; the Philadelphia Phillies shaded the New York Mets 3-2 in 11 innings; the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Chicago Cubs 8-4, and the San Francisco Giants blanked the San Diego Padres 2-0 in 11 innings.

With one out in the eighth Los Angeles reliever Charlie Hough, who lost opening day to the Reds, hit Pete Rose with a pitch. Then, just to prove it was an accident, he did it again, hitting the next batter Joe Morgan.

Perez, reportedly peddled by the Reds at baseball's winter meetings, then proved everybody else's loss was Cincinnati's gain by ripping a double down the left-field line. Morgan was thrown out trying to score but Carroll protected the one-run margin and the Dodgers had been run out of town winless.

The Reds had scored five runs in the fourth to tie the game at 5-5, but Bill Buckner's run-scoring double in the sixth put the Dodgers in front. In the seventh, George Foster tied the game again with his second homer of the night.

Foster's first homer, a lead-off blast, sparked Cincinnati's five-run fourth inning. Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson called that shot "the hardest ball I've ever seen. It was a rocket."

Phils 3, Mets 2, 11 innings

Physically, Tony Taylor doesn't get into games until late but mentally he's in there before the first pitch.

"Every day when I come to the ballpark I've got to prepare myself mentally," Taylor said. "I say to myself, 'I'm going to pinch hit today and I'm going to get a hit.' It's a full-time job."

His last swing was one too many for the Mets. Taylor sent Alan Bannister from first to home with his 11th-inning double that snapped a tie and beat the Mets.

Pirates 8, Cubs 4

The Pittsburgh bats, still warm from two extra days in the Florida sunshine, were able to cut through the chill in Chicago. And Willie Stargell's bat was the hottest.

Stargell, the Pirates' massive slugger, belted four home runs enroute to a four-hit day, as Pittsburgh dumped Chicago.

Chicago's pitchers gave up four home runs. Manny Sanguillen and Richie Hebner contributed the other two.

Cardinals 7, Expos 2

Rookie pitcher John Denny overcame Montreal and a case of the jitters for his first major league victory.

Denny, who gave up five hits, left the game in the seventh with a 3-2 lead. He was made even happier an inning later when the Cardinals fattened the spread with four more runs.

Lou Brock slammed a bases-loaded double to highlight the burst and reliever Al Hrabosky made it stand up with two flawless innings.

Giants 2, Padres 0, 10 innings

Bobby Murcer made his first game in the National League memorable with a run-scoring double that gave pitcher Jim Barr and the Giants their extra-inning triumph over the Padres.

Murcer, the former New York Yankee star, tagged reliever Rich Folkers for a double and raced home on Gary Matthews' double. Chris Spiar then sacrificed and Matthews came home on Steve Ontiveros' ground out.

Barr went the distance, yielding eight hits. The big right-hander struck out four and walked one.

Bucs Host Indian Nine

East Carolina University's Pirates will try to keep their slim hopes going for another baseball title Saturday afternoon when they play host to William & Mary.

The Bucs, now 9-9 overall and 3-4 in the Southern Conference, will meet the Indians at 3 p.m. at Harrington Field.

As a preliminary, Rose High School will meet Williamston High School in a 12:30 p.m. game at the field.

Rampants Gain Revenge As They Capture Meet From Wilson Team

Rose High School gained revenge for an earlier defeat, handing Wilson a setback yesterday in track. The Rampants finished the meet with 92½ points, while Wilson was second with 72½.

Rocky Mount was far behind with just five points.

Rose took first place in eight individual events and won both of the relay races. Wilson won five races, while Rocky Mount failed to capture an event. Wilson and Rose also tied for first in one event.

Both teams had a couple of double winners. Doug Paschal took both the shot put and the discus, setting another school record in the former. His put of 55 feet, 6 inches, broke his own record, set last week. William Joyner was the other double winner for Rose, winning the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

Wilson had a double winner in R. Wiggins, who won both of the hurdle events, while G. King took the mile and the half-mile.

Rose travels to Rocky Mount on Monday, where they will meet the Gryphons and Northeastern.

Cristiano, Riggs (6) and Craft; Summerlin and Pittman.

PIKEVILLE—Ayden-Grifton gained a 3-0 victory over C.B. Aycock yesterday behind the two-hit pitching of Dennis Cristiano and Chris Riggs.

Cristiano went the first five innings of the game allowing both of the hits. He struck out four and walked two. Riggs came on to finish out the game, giving up no walks and no hits, along with two strikeouts in his two innings of work.

Ayden-Grifton got its first runs in the second. With two down, Steve Nobles, Vern Davenport and Stevie Tripp all drew walks, loading the bases. Randy Nelson's infield grounder was errored on the throw, allowing Nobles to score for a 1-0 lead.

The Chargers came back with two runs in the third. Cristiano walked and Al Butts ran for him. Eddie Taylor doubled to left, and an error on the relay let Butts score. Paul Ricciarelli then singled to drive in Taylor.

Aycock's only threat came in the second when they got both of their hits. But a pickoff and a popup ended the threat.

The Chargers, now 5-3 overall and 3-1 in the Eastern Carolina

ECU Sets Pix Day

The East Carolina University football team and coaches will be at Ficklen Stadium Saturday, for a fan autograph and photo day.

Anyone desiring autographs of players or coaches, or pictures made with players or coaches, are invited to the stadium at 2 p.m.

Former Pirate greats Les Strayhorn, Carl Summerell, Danny Kepley and others will also take part in this session. Most of last year's seniors are also expected.

Following the autograph and photo taking, the Pirates will stage an open scrimmage.

Coach Pat Dye spent more time talking about the scrimmage of last Saturday than yesterday's practice session as the team left the muddy field. The film of the scrimmage has been returned and graded.

"Our overall effort in the scrimmage was disappointing," said Dye. "It's one thing to not know how to get the job done and not do it, but it's another thing to know how and not give the effort needed. And that's what happened. We got very poor effort from most."

"Of course, you've got your Kenny Strayhorns, and the like who did a good job. I thought Jake Dove, Wayne Bolt, Rick Bennett, Emerson Pickett, Harold Randolph, Pete Conaty, Jimmy Southerland and all our secondary played good most of the time."

Turning back to the actual practice, Dye commented he felt it was obvious that a number of the young players were showing signs of growing up. In particular, Dye mentioned that two freshman walk-ons, Barry Johnson and Harry Cohen, were getting better each day at tight end.

A light workout is scheduled this afternoon, to be followed on Saturday afternoon with an open scrimmage at 3 p.m.

Norris Steps Into Hunter's Gap

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer
What do you do when you suddenly lose your best pitcher to the whims of baseball's arbitration process?

If you're Alvin Dark, Bible-toting manager of the Oakland A's, you seek comfort in the scriptures. Dark, in need of guidance after Catfish Hunter slipped out of his Oakland contract and into New York Yankee pinstripes, turned to Jeremiah 33:3:

"Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things which thou knowest not."

Enter rookie right-hander Mike Norris. Norris, a 20-year-old from San Francisco, made his major league debut Thursday with a sparkling three-hitter as the A's pounded the Chicago White Sox 9-0.

"I've found my Jeremiah," declared Dark on a phone call to A's owner Charles O. Finley.

Norris, who likes the nickname and, in fact, bought a Bible himself during spring training, said, "The name's right on. I'm with the Bible all the way."

There were just two other games played in the American League. The Baltimore Orioles opened their season with a 10-0 rout of the Detroit Tigers and the Texas Rangers shaded the Minnesota Twins 5-4.

"I've had dreams about doing something like this," said Norris after his successful bow, "and now it's all coming true." Norris surrendered a first-inning lead-off single to Pat Kelly but promptly picked him off base. Carlos May's second-inning single and Kelly's double in the ninth were the only other hits off Norris, who walked three and struck out three.

"I was sure he was nervous at the beginning," said catcher Gene Tenace, "but when he picked that guy off base I said to myself, 'Who knows what he'll do'."

"We all wanted Norris to do well, partly because of sheer necessity," added slugger Reggie Jackson.

Jackson hammered a three-run homer and Bill North and Joe Rudi had three hits apiece for the A's, who collected nine hits off five White Sox pitchers, starting with loser Stan Bahnsen.

Orioles 10, Tigers 0
Jim Palmer, making an impressive return from the sore elbow that hampered him all last season, stopped Detroit on three hits. Lee May, acquired from Houston over the winter, belted a three-run homer and Don Baylor had four hits and three runs-batted-in for Baltimore.

"We missed Jimmy Palmer almost all last season," said Birds Manager Earl Weaver. "With him back it's like we traded for another pitcher."

Rangers 5, Twins 4
Cesar Tovar's eighth-inning double drove in one run and Minnesota reliever Bill Butler walked in another as Texas won its first game of the year. Both runs were unearned, the result of a two-out throwing error by Twins' third baseman Eric Soderholm.

Jim Spencer belted a three-run homer for the Rangers while rookie centerfielder Lynn Bostick collected three hits for Minnesota.

Golfing Lessons

The Greenville Recreation Department will begin a new session of women's beginners golf instructions on Tuesday.

Karate Club In Action

The East Carolina University Karate team and Instructor Bill McDonald will travel to Burlington this weekend to compete for the state championships.

If the ECU club wins, they will travel to Atlanta, Georgia, to compete in their first national tournament of 1975.

McDonald commented that the club was stronger than ever and he was counting on a victory in Burlington and then a chance to test his team nationally at the Battle of Atlanta in May.

The tournament in Atlanta will have clubs from all states competing including Hawaii. The winner of the team trophy in Atlanta will be the US champions.

Bob Gibson, veteran pitcher with the St. Louis Cardinals, is the oldest member of the team at age 39.

CLOSING OUT HIS ROUND—Lee Elder hits his ball from a sand trap on the 18th hole of the Augusta National Golf Club course yesterday, nearing the end of his first round play in the Masters. Elder, the first black to play in the tournament, shot a two-over-par first round score of 74. (AP Wirephoto)

Palmer Feels This May Be Last Chance

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Can the old man win it one more time?

"If it doesn't peak now, I'm not sure it will ever peak," says the 45-year-old Arnold Palmer, surveying the game that thrust him into the thick of a gold-studded pack going into today's second round of the Masters Golf Tournament.

"I have been getting ready since December. I have been swinging better for the last month and a half. I feel my game is as good as I can possibly make it."

Polite cheers early in the day for Lee Elder, the first black man ever to tee it up in this festival of golf's elite among the pines, turned to exciting roars at dusk for the Masters sentimental favorite as Palmer toured a steady par and birdie course to the final hole.

There on the 420-yard uphill holly hole, where his bid for a championship drowned in a double bogey of errant shots in 1961, Palmer hit a heavy three-iron into the sand and took his lone bogey for a 69.

The score, climaxing a rain-plattered day of triumph and frustration for the field, didn't give Palmer the lead, but you couldn't tell that to members of Arnie's Army, thirsting for the first major victory since Arnie won his fourth Masters in 1964.

The first-round leader is Bobby Nichols, a strapping part-time club pro, who hardly hit a faulty shot in firing a bogeyless 67, five under Augusta National's par 72.

Poised behind Nichols at 68 were the heavily favored Jack Nicklaus, bidding for his fifth Masters, and the other Miller — Allen, not Johnny — a pleasant, moon-faced University of Georgia graduate who joined the tour in 1971.

Johnny Miller, sensation of the winter tour with three victories in Arizona and California, slogged in with a 75, putting him in jeopardy of missing the cut, and said glumly: "Maybe all my luck is averaging out — this is for sure, if you can't putt, you can't play. I've been putting awful for four weeks."

Palmer's 69 put him in a tie at that position with J. C. Snead — old Sam's nephew — and Tom Weiskopf, winner at Greensboro, N.C., last weekend. Just behind them at 70 were former champion Bill Casper, plump Bob Murphy and young Tom Watson.

Sam, 62, winner of three Masters, joined a half-dozen others, including a revived Lee Trevino, at 71 — making 16 players under par. Defending champion Gary Player had a 73 and U.S. Open king Hale Irwin a 73.

Elder was one of the 60 over the orthodox figure, shooting a creditable 74 under extreme pressure.

"It was super for me," said the 40-year-old Washington, D.C., pro. The Augusta gallery saluted him with 32 rounds of applause. "They applauded every time I walked on the green," Lee added afterward. "They were beautiful."

Events Delayed

Rains and wet grounds forced the postponement of four athletic events in the area yesterday.

Postponed were a tennis match at Williamston with Plymouth High School, and a softball game, also with Plymouth. Also delayed were a girls' track meet between Ayden-Grifton and Southern Nash, and a baseball game between North Johnston and Robersonville.

The Robersonville game has tentatively been reset for April 30. New dates had not been set this morning for the other events.

A BIG WEEKEND

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Super Bowl weekend was a memorable one for Art Rooney. His Pittsburgh Steelers beat the Minnesota Vikings 16 to 6 for the championship and after he accepted the trophy he said that people were saying: "He's been trying for this a long time, let's make him the big shot for a day."

Rooney set up the Steeler franchise for $2,500 some 42 years ago.

The day before the game, Rooney was at the Fair Grounds racetrack and presented the winner's trophy of the Super Bowl Handicap.

Jaguars In Net Victory

PIKEVILLE — Farmville Central's tennis team romped to a 9-0 victory over Charles B. Aycock yesterday.

The victory was a devastating one for the Jaguars. They didn't lose a single set, and Aycock took only nine games during the entire afternoon, never winning more than two in a match.

The win raised the Jaguar record to 6-2 overall and 6-1 in Eastern Carolina Conference play. They travel to Eastern Wayne on Tuesday.

Summary:

Mike Corbett (FC) defeated Alan Smith, 6-0, 6-0.

Eric Pierce (FC) defeated Bill Davis, 6-0, 6-1.

George Perkins (FC) defeated Gary Davis, 6-0, 6-2.

Mike Barnett (FC) defeated Scott Carter, 6-0, 6-0.

Tommy Holloman (FC) defeated John Powell, 6-2, 6-0.

Bill Skinner (FC) defeated Andy Shackleford, 6-0, 6-0.

Pierce-Bobby Allen (FC) defeated Smith-B. Davis, 8-2.

Perkins-Barnett (FC) defeated G. Davis-Carter, 8-2.

Doug Tyson-Alan Lancaster (FC) defeated Sauls-Shackleford, 8-0.

Baby Tigs Take Win

PLYMOUTH — The Williamston "B" team gained a 3-1 victory over Plymouth's "B" team yesterday in a baseball game.

Don Wynne was the winning pitcher. Freddie Sauls hit a two-run triple in the first inning to provide the spark for Williamston. Sauls later scored on a sacrifice fly.

Williamston, now 2-1, will play host to Bertie's "B" team tonight.

Announcing a major development in fire fighting. Faster water.

Fighting a fire is fighting time. Every minute wasted may cost thousands of dollars in property destroyed. Every second saved may be a life.

And yet, a fire fighter can't always move as fast as he would like. Because his basic weapon, the 2½-inch fire hose, when full of water, is about as hard and unyielding as a steel pipe. The only way to bend it around a corner is to shut the water off.

And to lug it up a flight of stairs is a test of any man's stamina. All of this makes it easy to understand why a Union Carbide product called UCAR Rapid Water Additive is revolutionizing fire fighting.

Rapid Water Additive mixes easily with water and makes it flow faster through a hose by reducing friction.

Because the water flows faster, fire fighters can get just as much water as before using a smaller 1½-inch hose that weighs half as much.

The smaller hose makes a much better weapon. It bends around corners. It can be carried up a stairway fully charged. In short, it helps firemen get water to the fire faster.

At the same time, it makes their job safer and less strenuous. Rapid Water Additive was invented by Union Carbide and perfected in cooperation with the New York City Fire Department.

It's already helping fire fighters do their job more efficiently in many American cities.

Yours may be one—now or soon.

Today, something we do will touch your life.

Turn To Books Offering Hope

By ROXINNE ERVASTI
Associated Press Writer
IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)— High school students have scrapped books that reflect the unrest of the late '60s to read books that offer them heroes and hope, say University of Iowa researchers.

The conclusion is made by a research team which publishes in the English Journal magazine an annual list of the 30 most popular books among young adults.
"There's a trend toward positive values, toward a kind of hope," says researcher Tony Manna. "I can't get rid of a book on Vietnam, for instance. The kids just don't want to hear about it."

Adds a colleague, Jan Yoder: "I've had absolutely no success (getting students to read) ethnic books, books on racial strife."

Manna and Yoder said that in the "books for young adults" program reading

selections are made by students free of any class requirements. The books are adult and found in any bookstore.

The university team says its research represents a social and economic cross-section of teen-agers and should help teachers make selections for their classes.
"Not one cover was opened on Watergate," says Yoder.
At the same time, she reports an interest in the depression era and famed criminals of a bygone era.

"The thing that attracts them first is slick, fast-moving writing, with enough purpose that they can hook onto," Manna says.

Beyond that, he says the students seem to believe that most events are beyond their control. They prefer books whose central characters overcome insurmountable odds, or, like mortals, lose and learn to adjust.

A student who praised
"Fairy Tale," an Eric Segal story of a country boy who falls victim to a big city businessman, says that
"since most people get ripped off" he was pleased to see the car dealer get his own medicine in the end.

"Serpico," the true account of a New York policeman fighting corruption among his colleagues, continues to rate high among teen-agers.

Readers report that they are sure most people would give in to peer pressures but because he doesn't, Serpico is a hero.

Other heroes are people in family and romantic relationships, particularly those who face death and the ultimate questions of what values they live and die for, says Manna.

Books on the occult have strong circulation.

In fiction works, Manna says what he calls the "new journalism" is the leader—books such as "Exclusive!", newswoman Marilyn Baker's account of the Patty Hearst case, and "Helter Skelter," a prosecutor's evaluation of the Charles Manson murders.

Yoder says the tastes of boys are changing. "There's not as much interest in adventure on war," she says.
"Maybe that's because in television and movies we're getting our fill."

Job Counseling Part Of Service

One of the services offered to the community by the Employment Security Commission is employment counseling.

Employment counseling is a service free of charge, by a professionally-trained staff member of the ESC to help individuals choose an occupation.

"This is not the type of counseling that you would go to a doctor or a minister for, because we do not discuss personal problems," Jim Hannan, manager of the local ESC office, explained. "This counseling is centered around employment, both present and past, jobs you would like to have, school courses preferred, hobbies, and how leisure time should be spent."

The counselor does not tell the individuals what they ought to do. This is not his job and all he will do is lead the person's thoughts toward a goal that the individual has decided upon himself.

The final decision in employment counseling is left up to the counselee and all conversations are confidential.

People who can profit from employment counseling include:
—young people who are just beginning to work and want to make the right decision about the field they wish to follow;

—adults who desire a change in their field of work and are not sure what they should attempt to do;

—persons who have a hard time keeping a job; they seem able to find jobs but do not know how to keep them;
—the housewife who wants to return to work after being out of the labor market for several years;

—a person whose doctor has told him he must change his occupation.

"There are many people who can use this service," Hannan said. "If you are interested, call us for an appointment."

Sororities Aid Telethon

Sororities from East Carolina University and Phi Sigma Pi honorary fraternity will be manning telephones at the Branch Bank and Trust Co. here this weekend in cooperation with the WRAL Channel 5 Telethon for United Cerebral Palsy.

Channel 5 broadcasts will begin on Saturday at 10:30 p.m.
and continue through Sunday afternoon seeking contributions for the United Cerebral Palsy drive.

Locally, donors may call 756-7950, 7951, or 7952 to make their donations. Local workers will turn in donors names to the Raleigh Office, which will mail donation envelopes to those that make pledges.

Groups wishing to make donations may come by the Branch Bank and Trust Co. on Arlington Blvd. during the broadcast hours, according to Pam Holt, advisor to the local sororities.

On July 26, 1788, New York was the 11th state to ratify the Constitution.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early-day upsets can be very good for you since they afford you the opportunity to have some fascinating new interests and experiences. You will be able to extend your activities far beyond present boundaries. Make the effort to find out just where you stand moneywise.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can get rid of that responsibility today that will free time for more important activities. Overcome feeling of lack.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You will have to forego some interest of the past if you are to have more of life's abundance now. Friends can assist you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Some friend may come to you for help, but teach how to become more successful and do both him and yourself a favor.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Your good friends can show you how to gain your goals more readily, so contact them. Later join with them for social activity.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Perform career tasks efficiently so you derive the biggest benefits. Some civic involvement is wise now. Show you are expert at such.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Meet people; make your presence felt by others. This does away with Saturday boredom. Make a new friend of different background.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use your hunches, well and you know how to handle tiresome obligations intelligently, get many tasks behind you quickly. Plan future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A family tie is acting peculiarly, so give help by building this person's ego. Cement better relations with one who opposes you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have work to do that's boring but needs the doing just the same, so get at it early. Spend p.m. at home, perhaps entertaining.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Some amusement plan may suddenly be changed, so don't become impatient, since something else comes up later that is better.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find better ways to make your home more functional and family happier, but don't start any big jobs as yet. Be happy.

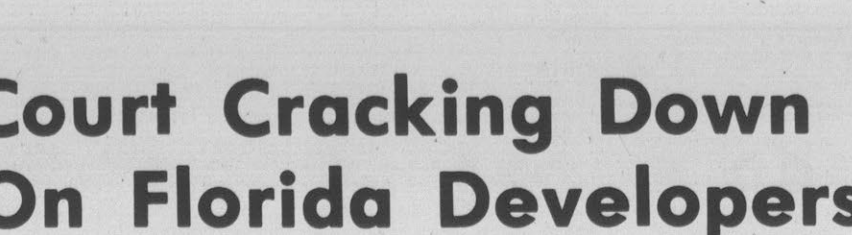

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have monetary pressures that can be lessened if you use new and better methods regarding them. Check bills carefully. Collect debts.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have difficulty knowing what to do when situations arise, since there is a tendency to get flustered easily here, but if the diet is right and your progeny is taught early to be self-reliant, this will soon change, and then the ability to weigh every angle is utilized wisely with much success. Investigative fields are favored, or big finance matters.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Court Cracking Down On Florida Developers

By BARNEY SEIBERT
MIAMI (UPI) — There may be a market soon among Florida real estate developers for a do-it-yourself manual on "How to recreate a mangrove swamp."

Or another on "Hints and short cuts for filling in canals."

For the past two years, U.S. District Court Judge William O. Mehrrens, a Florida native who remembers how it was when he first made fishing trips to the Florida Keys 40 years ago, has handed down a series of court decisions applauded by environmentalists and deplored by developers.

He has been enforcing a little-used law to make developers not only desist, but also put things back the way nature had them. In the most drastic of the decisions last December, Mehrrens ordered Miami's Joseph G. Moretti Construction Co., to restore to a mangrove swamp some 25 acres of the firm's 65-acre Hammer Point Park mobile home development on Key Largo 60 miles south of Miami.

The father and son firm is appealing Mehrrens' order and the litigation eventually could reach the U.S. Supreme Court.

Mehrrens declined comment on this and other decisions "because of the delicate nature of the cases, especially when appeals may be taken."

But Mehrrens' law clerk, David White, said the judge acted under the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1899.

"There has always been in the statute provisions for restoration of property to its original state when the act has been violated," he said. "But it has never been used before to this extent, at least in this area. That's what makes these cases most notable."

Mehrrens' order did not cover the parts of the Moretti tract already sold to mobile home owners. But in the 25 acres it did cover, he ordered dredged canals filled, shorelines restored and mangroves and turtle grass replanted in the shallow bay waters stripped by dredges.

"It's impossible to restore it," Joseph G. Moretti Sr., said. "Where do you get mangroves without stealing them from some other place? No one is not going to restore it. We are going to win this on appeal."

He said his firm was in full compliance with Florida laws when it began the development in 1969.

In succession since then, Mehrrens has ordered: —Owners of Sexton Cove, an 80-acre trailer park on Key Largo, to submit within 30 days a plan for refilling 10 canals and otherwise restoring the site.

—Approval of a consent decree in which developer Douglas R. Gaines of Marathon Key will restore a 1.5-acre stretch of illegally dredged waterfront on Vaca Key to its original state, including replanting of red mangroves. He also ordered Gaines to pay a $5,000 civil penalty. Gaines subsequently filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws.

—Chicago attorney Fred Weismann to fill in two canals of his Orchid Park subdivision on Sugar Loaf Key and to pay a $5,000 civil penalty.

Miami accountant Ralph Osterle, husband of Dade County Commissioner Clara Osterle, was president of the Sexton Cove firm. He still owns 10 percent of the firm. He told UPI when Sexton Cove was developed, "half of the 80 acres was a Monroe County dump on Key Largo. Among other things, we removed 44 junked cars and countless old refrigerators and stoves. We dug our canals a little deeper than normal to cover up the raw garbage.

"It might be awful hard to round up that much garbage to restore the property to the state it was in when we began," he said.

All the developers involved took advantage of a section of Army Corps of Engineers' regulations that allows dredging without permits, provided permits are obtained when the work is done. For decades the permits were routinely granted, but under pressure from environmentalist groups the Corps has been denying some such permits in recent years.

U. S. Attorney David F. McIntosh of Miami, who represented the government in all but the Sexton Cove case, said that "some of these canals have been dug to a depth of 40 feet and are 100 feet wide. That's battleship depth."

"There can be only one reason for digging a canal that deep to obtain fill, particularly when the body of water to which it is connected may be only one to three feet deep."

McIntosh said fill is selling for $2 a yard. He said some of the canals were 1,200 feet long and such a canal, with a width of 100 feet and depth of 40 feet, would produce $350,000 worth of salable land fill.

"All the government wants is for them to reduce the depth of the canals to six to 10 feet," he said.

NOTICE FOR PERMIT

North Carolina
Environmental Management Commission

Office of the Director, 216 West Jones Street, Raleigh, North Carolina 27611

Mr. Charles Horne, Jr., Director of Utilities, Greenville, North Carolina, 27812, has made application for a Permit to discharge treated wastewater into School House Branch, a tributary of the River Basin. The discharge will consist of treated sanitary sewage falling under Standard Industrial Code Number 999. The point of discharge is located approximately 2100 feet West of the intersection of North Carolina Highway 43 and SR 1202 in Pitt County. On the basis of preliminary site review and application of Article 21 of Chapter 143, General Statutes of North Carolina, and other lawful standards applicable to the North Carolina Environmental Management Commission, the Commission proposes to issue a permit to discharge effective May 27, 1975, and subject to specific pollutant limitations and special conditions.

Persons wishing to comment upon or object to the proposed determination are invited to submit same in writing to the above address no later than May 12, 1975. All comments received prior to that date will be considered in the formulation of final determinations regarding the application. A public hearing may be held where the Director of Environmental Management finds a significant degree of public interest in a proposed permit.

A fact sheet containing additional details about the application and the proposed determinations, a copy of the draft permit showing the exact location of discharge, and additional information on hearing procedure are available in writing or by request to the Director of Environmental Management, 216 West Jones Street, Raleigh, North Carolina, and may be inspected during normal working hours. Copies of the information on file are available upon request and payment of the cost of reproduction.

Persons wishing to request regarding this matter should make reference to Application No. 740130. Please bring the foregoing to the attention of persons who you know will be interested.

Lewis R. Martin Director Division of Environmental Management Date: April 12, 1975. April 11, 1975

NOTICE

Under and by virtue of a resolution adopted by the Board of Commissioners of the Town of Bethel, its regular meeting on March 4, 1975, the undersigned, Mayor of the Town of Bethel, North Carolina, will offer for sale at public auction for cash in front of the city hall, Bethel, N. C., at 11 a.m., on the 28th day of April, 1975, or parcel of land lying and being in the Town of Bethel, Pitt County, North Carolina, more particularly described as follows: Lying and being situated on the east side of James Street between Railroad and Nelson Streets and consisting of two lots of land which combination make up what is commonly known as the "Old Gym" property, said two lots being more particularly described as follows: Lot No. 1: Lying and being on the east side of James Street and beginning at the northwest corner of R. Barnhill's line and running north with the back line of W. O. Grimes 30 feet; thence westwardly with Mrs. Anna L. McWhorter's line about 80 feet to James Street; thence southwardly with James Street 30 feet; thence eastwardly with Mrs. Anna L. McWhorter's line, the beginning, and to the northeast corner of R. Barnhill's line, being and being conveyed by deed of W. O. Grimes and wife, Verna Grimes, recorded in the Public Registry of Pitt County in Book K-18, page 353. Lot No. 2: Lying and being on the east side of James Street and beginning at the northwest corner of the school lands and running with said school property line eastwardly about 80 feet to R. Barnhill's line; thence with R. L. Barnhill's line northwardly about 75 feet to W. O. Grimes' line; thence westwardly with W. O. Grimes' line about 80 feet to James Street; thence James Street southwardly about 75 feet to an iron stake at the northwest corner of the Bethel White School property, the beginning, and being that lot conveyed by deed of Anna L. McWhorter recorded in the Public Registry of Pitt County in Book K-18, page 354. The sale will be final upon the conclusion of the bidding subject to ratification and action by the Board of Commissioners of the Town of Bethel. The successful bidder will be required to make a deposit of 10 percent of the sum bid pending the confirmation of the sale by the Board of Commissioners of the Town of Bethel.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edled upward in quiet trading today, losing some of the upward momentum of the strong rally that began on Tuesday.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial was up 1.56 at 782.85. Gainers outpaced losers by about a 4-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the rally, which had drawn a good part of its inspiration from a bond market upturn, tapered off as the recovery in bond prices slackened.

They also noted that the market was meeting with some resistance from profit takers with the Dow near its 1975 closing high of 786.53, reached on March 17.

IBM slipped 2½ to 206 after a 1½ decline Thursday when the company reported virtually flat first quarter earnings.

Elsewhere in a mixed glamor sector, National Semiconductor rose 1½ to 32½ and Digital Equipment was up 2¼ at 98¼, but Motorola lost ¾ to 50½ and Xerox was off ¾ at 69¼.

Occidental Petroleum, the Big Board volume leader, rose ¾ to 15.

On the American Stock Exchange, Great Basins Petroleum led the active list, up ¼ at 3¾. The company reported on an oil pool discovery near Santa Barbara, Calif.

Security Plastics, which said it planned to buy 200,000 of its own shares at $7 apiece, rose 2 to 6 on the Amex.

The NYSE's composite index inched up .02 to 44.38 in the first hour.

The Amex market value index dipped .09 to 80.63.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edled upward in quiet trading today, losing some of the upward momentum of the strong rally that began on Tuesday.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial was up 1.56 at 782.85. Gainers outpaced losers by about a 4-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the rally, which had drawn a good part of its inspiration from a bond market upturn, tapered off as the recovery in bond prices slackened.

They also noted that the market was meeting with some resistance from profit takers with the Dow near its 1975 closing high of 786.53, reached on March 17.

IBM slipped 2½ to 206 after a 1½ decline Thursday when the company reported virtually flat first quarter earnings.

Elsewhere in a mixed glamor sector, National Semiconductor rose 1½ to 32½ and Digital Equipment was up 2¼ at 98¼, but Motorola lost ¾ to 50½ and Xerox was off ¾ at 69¼.

Occidental Petroleum, the Big Board volume leader, rose ¾ to 15.

Much Happier With The Job

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans are much happier with their jobs than they were in 1962, reports The National Enquirer. According to a recent study by the University of Michigan Research Center "a whopping 91 per cent of men between 21 and 65 reported being satisfied with their jobs," says the center's Dr. Robert Quinn. "And 89 per cent of the women said they were satisfied with their work."

Margaret McCullough, a center researcher, says a similar survey conducted in 1962 by the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago showed only 84 per cent of the men and 81 per cent of the women interviewed then were happy with their jobs.

Mr. Charlie Roberts died at his home, 826 Fleming Street here Wednesday.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at Flanagan and Parker Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Stephen Jones. Burial will be in Brown Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Roberts was a Sanford native, but spent most of his life here.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mary Harding and Mrs. Rachel Short, both of Greenville; four sisters, Mrs. Florence English, Mrs. Morty Roberts and Miss Isabelle Roberts, both of Sanford, and Mrs. Milly Roberts of Washington, D.C.; three brothers, Kemp Roberts of Greenville, Johnny Roberts of Sanford, and George Roberts of Concord; and six grandchildren.

The body will be at Flanagan and Parker Funeral Home, where family visitation will be from 8 to 9 p.m. Saturday. The family will be at the home of Mrs. Rachel Short, 1807 Battle Drive.

Stallings field near Kinston has been tentatively named as a regional airline facility by the North Carolina Department of Transportation and Highway Safety, it was announced Wednesday.

The airport, which will primarily serve an 11-county area, is one of several airports within the region receiving airline service. The designation by the Department of Transportation will possibly affect State and Federal funding to air carrier airports in the region.

This preliminary decision is based upon a recommendation from the North Carolina Airport Systems Plan and public input.

Public comments and input on the Transportation Department's action are solicited until April 23. Following that date, a final review and decision will be made by the Department of Transportation.

William F. Caddell Jr., assistant secretary for planning for the department, will be accepting written remarks about the designation.

In making the announcement, Transportation Secretary Troy A. Doby noted that the problem of fragmented air service in the Eastern part of the state is not a new one but has been in existence for many years.

Doby noted that while any decision, including the continuation of the existing airline-airport system will upset certain segments of the Eastern North Carolina community, action at the state level is necessary to initiate change toward providing improved air service to the citizens of Eastern North Carolina.

While the state's designation of a regional facility at Kinston could affect airport funding in the area, he continued, it is the responsibility of local communities to initiate desirable changes in air service.

Doby encouraged all the communities of Eastern North Carolina for improved air service.

Piedmont Airlines, last month, announced the discontinuance of service to Seymour-Johnson Air Force Base at Goldsboro, effective May 1. That service, the airlines said, will be consolidated with service at Kinston on that date.

W. W. Speight of Greenville, who has been a leader in attempts to establish a regional airport in Eastern North Carolina for many years, said this morning "The idea is sound."

According to the attorney, "The regional airport idea we originally espoused . . . 12 years ago . . . has apparently now become more of a reality."

"We never tried to have any one municipal or county airport designated as a regional or area airport," Speight explained. "But at the same time, we did hope — and now see that hope justified to some extent — that

Charter Presented To New Lions Club Here

The charter was presented to the Greenville Breakfast Lions Club in services here last night — establishing the breakfast club as the third Lions organization in Greenville.

Jack Stickley of Charlotte, past president of Lions International, spoke to the 24 charter members of the club on the history of Lionism.

The speaker said Lionism has a spiritual but non-denominational base "that extends all over the world" and includes more than 1.2 million people from over 50 countries.

Stickley said the meaning of LIONS is "Liberty, Intelligence, Our Nations Safety."

In closing, Stickley challenged the members of the new club to "develop into more mature Lions with a greater ability to serve."

Henry L. Groome Jr. is president of the New Club. Other officers include vice-presidents Lee Whitlock, Charlie Goodman and Douglas P. Hill; secretary-treasurer Russell Lee; tail twister R.W. Hawley and Lion tamer Richard W. Briley.

Directors include Mike Aldridge, Marshall Mansfield, Stanley A. Wolff Jr. and Bruce Baker.

Will Review ESEA Role

Public school superintendents and directors of federal programs for disadvantaged children (Elementary and Secondary Education Act, Title I) will meet Wednesday and Thursday at the Greenville Holiday Inn to review the current status of ESEA Title I.

Representatives of school units in the North Central and South Central regions of the state will meet in Durham on April 14-15 for a similar meeting. Representatives of the Northeast and Southeast regions will meet in Greenville.

The meetings will run from 10 a.m. to 4:30 the first day and 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. the second day.

The groups will review the most recent compensatory education legislation in terms of availability of funds, new and revised guidelines, and improved programs. The meetings are preliminary to planning and developing ESEA Title I projects for the fiscal year 1976.

Woman Is More Likely Victim

NEW YORK (UPI) — The average woman is almost three times more likely to be injured in an automobile accident than the average man, according to a recent study.

Most frequent injuries are to the ribs or breastbone — and women are more likely to suffer these injuries than men, according to an article in the current issue of The National Enquirer.

The article is based on a study of 128 car accidents involving 169 people. The study was conducted by L. M. Patrick, a professor at Wayne State University.

Uniting Against Contraband

MENDOZA, Argentina (UPI) — Carlos Baldon, commercial director for this western Argentine province, has announced a campaign to stamp out "creeping contraband" by travelers heading for scarcity plagued Chile.

Baldon said customs agents and border police have been asked to exercise tighter control on persons leaving Argentina with supplies of meat, canned foods and other goods because they are creating scarcities in Mendoza Province.

GROWTH RATE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — World population is currently increasing by 80 million people a year, reflecting the highest growth rate in history, Arthur D. Little, Inc., research engineering firm, reports.

Singers At ECU Clinic

Solo singers from North Carolina high schools were at East Carolina University today for an invitational clinic.

Dr. Charles W. Moore, chairman of vocal music in the ECU School of Music, said student participants are all juniors or seniors in high school and were recommended by their voice teachers.

Each student received a half-hour lesson with one of the members of the ECU voice faculty and all were guests at a luncheon hosted by the ECU chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota honor society in music.

Afternoon activities included a program presented by student and faculty performers from the ECU music school and panel discussions on "Careers in Music" and "Preparation for the Music Major."

Discussions were Music Dean Everett Pittman, and faculty members George Naff, Dr. Ruth Boxberger and Dr. Moore.

Exile Lands In Honolulu

HONOLULU (AP) — Cambodian President Lon Nol has arrived here following 10 days on the island of Bali in Indonesia.

The Cambodian leader left his country April 1, saying he hoped his departure could lead to a negotiated settlement with the Khmer Rouge.

He arrived here late Thursday night following a seven-hour flight from Guam aboard a gleaming silver and white C135 jet.

Wearing a dark suit and limping noticeably, Lon Nol slowly descended the stairs from the U.S. Air Force jet at Hickam Air Force Base.

Lon Nol was expected to check in at Tripler Army Hospital on Friday where he will undergo medical therapy similar to that which he received at the same hospital after suffering a stroke in 1971.

It was not known how long Nol planned to stay.

Military officials declined to give the specific location where Lon Nol and his family would be staying, citing security reasons. The U.S. government is paying for his stay in Hawaii, and the State Department is handling all details, a military spokesman said.
