

Capture Of Phnom Penh's Airport Now Red Target

By The Associated Press
Communist-led insurgents began shelling the center of Phnom Penh today and launched a massive drive to take the airport, field reports said. The besieged government fought back with ground and air forces.

In South Vietnam, field reports said government troops were forced into their first retreat in the crucial battle for Xuan Loc but continued to hold the ruins of the isolated provincial capital 40 miles east of Saigon.

Other field reports in South Vietnam said radio contact was lost with the provincial capital of Phan Rang, one of two remaining government coastal enclaves. This generally signals the fall of a town. North Vietnamese forces also captured the strategic crossroads of Dau Giay on Highway 1 about 30 miles east of Saigon.

A high-ranking Cambodian officer said four regiments of the Communist-led insurgents were assembled for the attack on the airfield four miles west of Phnom Penh. Cambodian air force T28 fighter-bombers and gunship helicopters were reported strafing the rebels.

The Khmer Rouge insurgents moved their 105mm artillery to the southern outskirts of Phnom Penh and began shelling the central part of the city. Ten people were reported killed and 30 wounded by the howitzer shells.

The territory held by the Cambodian government was steadily shrinking. Clouds of black smoke hung over the city, and the International Red Cross declared the leading hotel a security zone for noncombatants and the sick and wounded.

Hard fighting was reported at the southern edge of Chba Ampeou, across the U.N. Bridge to the western outskirts of Phnom Penh. Government forces closed the bridge to keep out infiltrators.

Government positions in various parts of the northern, southern and southwest sectors were reported holding despite heavy attacks. Radio reports in Bangkok, Thailand, said the Khmer Rouge have taken over the east bank of the Mekong River across from Phnom Penh, a bridge across the Bassac River on the southern edge of the city and were within a mile of the northern edge.

Another battle was reported at Ben Tran, in the Mekong Delta 35 miles south of Saigon. The government said two of its A37 jets were shot down and three men were lost, while casualties in the ground fighting were 26 Viet Cong and two government soldiers killed and 18 government men wounded.

Officials in Washington said the number of Americans in South Vietnam would be cut to about 1,000 in the next two weeks so those remaining could be evacuated quickly. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a congressional committee that the U.S. Embassy in Saigon has been ordered to reduce the number of Americans to the essential minimum, and Defense Secretary James R.

Schlesinger said 3,850 are still in the country.

Schlesinger also told the House Armed Services committee that the Communists might kill at least 200,000 South Vietnamese and possibly as many as a million if the Saigon government falls.

Radio Phnom Penh was still broadcasting from the Cambodian capital.

Final House ERA Vote Slated Today

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina House was set today for another crucial vote on the Equal Rights Amendment.

The final House vote, expected this afternoon, followed a dramatic roll call Tuesday in which the House voted 60-58 to approve tentatively a bill ratifying the Equal Rights Amendment in the U.S. Constitution.

After the roll call had been completed, Rep. Ronald E. Mason, D-Carteret, changed his vote from "no" to "aye" and averted a 59-59 tie. Mason said he changed his vote to break the tie so that House Speaker James Green would not have to cast the deciding vote.

Observers said the ratification bill's chance of final House approval today is questionable. Mason said he might change his vote back to "no." Another House member, Stanford White-Dare, missed the House vote Tuesday, but is expected to be on hand today. He is accounted an opponent of ERA.

However, Nancy Drum, coordinator of the "ERA United" lobby predicted that supporters of the amendment would pick up strength overnight and win the final House vote by a decisive margin.

In another legislative action Tuesday, a House base budget subcommittee agreed on priorities for effecting a cut of $41 million in the proposed budget for the public schools during the coming biennium. The cuts would amount to $25 million next fiscal year and $16 million the following year, and were near a goal set by the subcommittee.

Rep. William T. Watkins, D-Granville, the subcommittee chairman pointed out that the group had achieved its goal without resorting to an increase in classroom sizes and without cutting off a teacher salary longevity increment.

The Senate unanimously passed and sent to the House a measure making it a felony punishable by up to five years in prison to assault a judge while in the performance of his duties. A simple assault on a judge is now merely a misdemeanor.

The Senate Local Government and Regional Affairs Committee unanimously approved a resolution cutting off certain state funds from the Soul City development in Warren County for 70 days while the legislature's Fiscal Research Division determines "if the allocation and use of state funds relating to the planning and development of South City...has been proper."

Required A Big Lift

HEAVY LOAD—A power transformer for the Greenville Utilities Commission is unloaded from a train car on Berkley Rd. The new transformer is a 115,000 volt unit with a 23,000 KVA capacity, which is a part of an eight-year conversion to 115,000 volt system. A new substation is under construction on Ficklen Drive to house the unit. The transformer, which is one of the largest for Greenville and cost approximately $120,000, will serve East Carolina University and the Hollywood substation. When the unit arrived it presented a problem, in that it was filled with oil. The plans called for the 118,000 pound unit not to be filled with the cooling oil, which was to be installed after the transformer was placed on a concrete pad. A crane from Raleigh and one from Rocky Mount were called in to help move the large load. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Council Agenda

Nine items are on the agenda for Thursday afternoon's City Council session at city hall.

Only one item is scheduled under old business, a discussion concerning a request by the Pitt-Greenville Airport for payment of prior year commitments in the amount of $38,000 for capital projects at the airport.

New business includes: discussion concerning a request by the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop for an appropriation by the city of $10,000 to apply as local matching funds for a $326,000 federal building grant; a request by William E. Jones for a certificate of convenience and necessity to operate a limousine service for Pitt-Greenville Airport and surrounding areas.

Designation of signatures; consideration of an ordinance amending the city's classification plan to include the position of chief dispatcher in Salary Range Nine; consideration of a resolution approving the sale of Parking Authority and water bond anticipation notes.

Discussion concerning the Jaycee Park; consideration of proposed increases in unit prices for street improvements; and consideration of amended rules of procedures of the Board of Adjustments.

Tomorrow's meeting is set for 4 p.m.

Attack Jury Listing

WASHINGTON, N. C. (AP)

— Beaufort County Clerk of Court Bessie Cherry testified Tuesday in pretrial motions in the Joanne Little murder case that before the most recent jury list was compiled local attorneys had complained that too many women were serving on the panels.

Attorneys for Miss Little, a 20-year-old black accused of the stabbing death of a white Beaufort County jailer, are attempting to show that the county's jury list was not representative of the population in their bid to have the first degree murder indictment against her quashed.

Responding to questions from defense attorney Jerry Paul, Mrs. Cherry said she informed the county jury commission in the fall of 1973 that there had been complaints about the composition of juries. "I told them we had had some complaints, that we had had too many women serving on juries and too many colored women," she testified.

Mrs. Cherry said she warned the jury commission in 1973 that it should be careful that the jury lists represented a cross section of the community in order to assure they would not be vulnerable to challenges such as the one Paul is making.

In two days of pretrial motions, defense attorneys have sought to establish through detailed statistical evidence that the grand jury which indicted Miss Little last fall was defective.

The jury list used to draw the panel which indicted Miss Little was compiled in the fall of 1973 by Donna Cherry, the clerk's daughter-in-law. The list was drawn to serve in 1974 and 1975.

Helping Babylift

NEW CANAAN, Conn. (AP)

— A U.S. military plane will airlift 80 to 100 orphans from Saigon to the United States within the next two days, replacing a private flight grounded by Federal Aviation Administration regulations, the flight organizer said today.

Robert Macauley, president of Virginia Fibre Corp., said the Military Air Command had agreed to furnish a C141 transport containing medical equipment and staffed with doctors in Saigon.

The children are in Vietnam orphanages operated by Friends for All Children in Boulder, Colo., and all have received exit visas, Macauley said.

The FAA on Tuesday forced cancellation of an Air Caledonia DC8 jet flight to carry medical supplies to Saigon and return with the orphans.

John Cassidy, FAA staff lawyer in Denver, said the plane was leased to a travel club and could not be operated for hire as an airlift.

"We should have residents here by July, 1976," Dr. James G. Jones, the AHEC Family Practice Residency Program planner and director, told Hospital Trustees last night.

Dr. Jones, who practiced family medicine in Jacksonville for 10 years before accepting this job, said this program is not part of the ECU Medical School program, but is a complement to it. It will benefit area residents in that it will offer area people who do not have a family doctor a place to go and will take much stress of the hospital emergency room, he said.

He is currently working on an application for approval by the American Medical Association, which must be finished by the first week in May. Last week he was in Kansas City, seeking approval for use of two double-wide mobile homes for the Family Practice Center until a permanent building can be funded and built by the state.

Dr. Eric Fearrington, the medical staff representative to the Board, praised Jones' program as the "one that will show the first concrete results of bringing more medical care to the people of the East." He also made clear that Dr. Jones has other jobs. He will plan continuing education programs for the hospital staff members each Tuesday and will also have a limited practice of his own.

Dr. Jones and Dr. Douglas F. Newton, a new internist here, were approved for staff privileges.

Assistant Administrator for Financial Affairs Buck Sitterton told the Board of plans for Pitt Memorial to go to a completely computerized bookkeeping and billing system. They can make use of the county computer he said, and should save costs in the long run, plus be more efficient. The changeover will come during the summer and should be completely operational by Oct. 1.

Administrator Jack Richardson announced that a volunteer program gets underway in the hospital today. Some 43 ladies have attended several orientation sessions and today will begin helping out on the floors, taking care of some non-medical patient needs to relieve the hospital employees and make things more pleasant for patients. He expressed delight with the innovation and predicted it will be of benefit to the hospital and will grow considerably before the new hospital is finished.

The Trustees were invited to attend a meeting sponsored by the N.C. Hospital Association on "What Hospital Trustees Need to Know about Labor Relations." This will be held May 13 at 6 p.m. at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Kenneth Dews, vice chairman of the Board, invited all new members to attend executive meetings any time they wish.

Sitterton reported that business office employees have been coming back at night calling people about past due accounts, in an effort to get some debts to the hospital paid.

"I don't like to talk about the weather too much," Ralph Hall, supervising engineer for the new hospital, said, "but we're now between three and four months behind schedule because of the weather. I think our contractors have done an admirable job of moving ahead as fast as possible, considering. He said all the foundation has been laid, structural steel erection should be finished soon, some of the floor slab has been completed, and interior partitioning is beginning in the north end of the building. Twenty seven per cent of the work has been done, he said, and 41 per cent of the money has been expended. He invited any interested persons to come by his office for a hard hat and a guided tour of the site.

Doby Has Resigned

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Motor Vehicles Commissioner Jacob Alexander will become state Transportation Secretary April 25, succeeding Troy Doby.

Doby said Tuesday a need to return to private business prompted his decision to resign. He said a reported conflict with Gene Anderson, Gov. Jim Holshouser's aide, had no bearing on his decision.

Doby, who took over the transportation post last July 1, has been on leave from a Raleigh-based engineering firm, Peirson — Whitman Inc.

He said Alexander would make the decision on an appointee to the motor vehicles post. Holshouser announced the appointment of Alexander to succeed Doby.

Alexander, 51, has been head of the motor vehicles department since last Nov. 1. He had served on the Board of Transportation and its predecessor, the State Highway Commission.

ADOPT A GRANDCHILD?

Is there a foster grandparent plan in Greenville? My child has only one parent and no grandparents. Would there be some older persons in the area who would like to "adopt" a grandchild? K.P.

Hotline knows of no such program, but perhaps some of our readers do. We will be glad to give you the name of anyone who might tell Hotline he or she would like to act as a grandparent for your child. In today's mobile society, there must be many children without grandparents nearby and persons wishing for grandchildren they can humor.

GOT CYCLE

I ordered a pedal cycle from Palm Company Feb. 17 My check for $5.84 has gone through the bank, but I don't have my order. The check was deposited in the account of Greenland Studios in Miami, Fla., which I thought was a little strange. C.H.

Greenland filled your order either the same day our inquiry reached them, or perhaps even before. You wondered about the order's being sent from Greenland Studios, after being advertised by the Palm Company. Palm probably is a subsidiary or affiliate of Greenland, although we've found that Greenland also fills orders for certain magazine and other special offers.

Aide To First Lady Has Left Her Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Howe is on leave from her job as First Lady Betty Ford's personal assistant and will not return to her White House post, a spokeswoman for Mrs. Ford said today.

Mrs. Howe's departure came less than a week after the suicide of her husband, James W. Howe, and in the midst of a White House inquiry into who paid for a recent trip the Howes took to the Dominican Republic.

Sheila Weidenfeld, Mrs. Ford's press secretary, said Mrs. Howe would be on paid administrative leave until May 31, when she will leave the White House payroll.

Mrs. Weidenfeld said "Mrs. Howe's circumstances were discussed with her" but that she did not know whether Mrs. Howe was actually asked to resign.

Mrs. Howe became Mrs. Ford's personal secretary last August when President Ford took office. She was named Mrs. Ford's personal assistant on Dec. 10.

Mrs. Howe's husband was found shot to death at the Howes' home in northwest Washington last Thursday.

Woman's Lib Group Talks To His Employer

By KATHRYN TOLBERT
TOKYO (AP) — Mythology says a female goddess formed Japan and started the country off with a matriarchal society, but the tables turned somewhere along the line and it has been downhill for women ever since.

Now a pink-helmeted women's group is trying to reverse that slide. The members recently surprised a few company executives when they marched into their offices with banners and posters and claimed an employee was unfair to his wife.

"You should take responsibility for hiring such an irresponsible man that he would divorce his wife and leave her with no money," they told one company official.

The embarrassed employee quickly arranged to give his ex-wife money and the pink-helmeted women's liberationists scored another victory.

The group is called "Chupiren." With about 1,000 members, it is the newest and most radical of women's liberation groups in Japan, where the women's liberation movement is small and fragmented.

It was formed three years ago to fight for legalization of the birth control pill and oppose abortion restrictions, but has expanded its objectives to deal with divorce cases.

To be successful in Japan, according to the group's leader and founder, 29-year-old Miss Misako Enoki, women's liberation must understand the close ties between a wife and, not her husband, but her husband's place of employment.

Company executives often act as go-betweens to arrange marriages and the logical place to take a complaint about a husband, Miss Enoki said, is to his company.

In three campaigns the group has been successful twice with the third pending a court decision. In the most recent case, a man carried out divorce proceedings with the aid of his company's personnel manager and without the knowledge of his wife. The wife was to have received no money.

Miss Enoki holds a master's degree in pharmacy from Tokyo University and is married to a Tokyo municipal government civil servant, but goes by a pen name.

She said divorced women are at a particular disadvantage in Japan because they are virtually unemployable. For a woman starting a new life, the property shares that have been granted are considered inadequate by Miss Enoki and her group.

"The Japanese system of employment offers few openings for any but the freshmen, who are expected to stay with the company for their entire lives," she said. "It is difficult to enter halfway, with the discrimination against middle-aged women."

Companies pay high personnel training costs in Japan with the expectation the investment will result in lifelong service. They are reluctant to make such investments for women whom they believe will quit after a few years to be married, and they are even less willing to take on middle-aged women whose working years are limited. Seventy per cent of Japanese firms have a retirement system and of those, 30 per cent set women's retirement age at 50 and men's from 55 to 60.

Mandatory protective regulations make women employees even less desirable. Among those specified in the labor standards law are: Overtime for women may not amount to more than two hours a day or six hours a week, women may not work between 10 p.m. and 5 a.m., and they may not perform so-called dangerous or harmful jobs.

CWU Board Meeting Held On Thursday

Twenty-four representatives of Greenville churches attended a CWU board meeting Thursday at St. James United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Dee Vinson, chairman for May Fellowship Day, invited all women to the Oakmont Baptist Church for a covered-dish luncheon at 12 noon on Friday, May 2. There will be a dedication of the Least Coin offering and the Health Kits for the migrant ministry. These are to contain a towel, wash cloth, comb, tooth brush, toothpaste, soap and hand lotion.

Mrs. Becky Groome reported on World Day of Prayer. This was the first time that the young people had a WDP assembly. The united offering of the young people, the morning and evening services totaled $193.93, to join with that collected in the U.S. and 168 other countries.

A call for volunteers was heard from Mrs. Colleen White, chairman of the Board of Directors for Operation Sunshine. The new activities director, Miss Clara DuBois is working with groups of 30 young girls at each session at the recreation centers. There is a need for helpers to teach the girls how to knit and crochet. Materials needed are yarn, needles, material scraps, wax, magazines and money.

Mrs. Liz Wilkerson also called for volunteers to help with WICS including someone to stay in the office on Thursday. She presented a new program called Volunteer Greenville, which will be set up as a clearing house for all volunteer services to the youth and to the elderly of Greenville.

Another call for service was the tutoring in schools.

Church World Service is making a plea for children's clothing in small, light weight garments, layettes, blankets, sheets and towels, sweaters, light weight women's clothing and fabric parcels. The next collection in Greenville will be on Sept. 2.

Homemaker's Haven

By EVELYN L. SPANGLER,
Assoc. Home Ec. Ext. Agent

When do sons and daughters stop being dependent on their parents?

In most families, it's usually a matter of individual decision. In the case of family health insurance protection, however, it is when a boy or girl reaches a particular age, generally 19 or 21, but, some companies extend coverage to age 23.

Health insurance protection under family plans also ends for a youngster who enters the armed forces or gets married. Some policies, however, will continue coverage for unmarried full-time students who depend on parental support up to age 25.

While most young people enjoy good health, protection against the high costs of illness is important. Health should never be taken for granted at any age, especially in these days of soaring medical expenses. Most health insurance policies contain an option allowing youngsters to obtain their own coverage when they become ineligible under the family plan.

If you have an individually obtained policy, talk to your agent—and bring your son or daughter in, too. The agent can advise the young man or woman on the kind of health insurance best suited for his or her needs.

African Violets—Bane or Joy
African Violets are relatively easy to grow, but there are certain tricks that determine your success. The African Violet (Saintpaulia) is probably the most widely known plant that is used indoors. Strangely enough, these plants are not violets at all, but they do come from Africa.

Most homes do not have sufficient light to induce profuse flowering of African Violets. Some growers succeed by growing their plants in a window with a northern or eastern exposure. A simple test to determine adequate light is to hold your hand 18 inches above and to the side of the plant. If the shadow of your hand is just barely visible, the light should be adequate. Symptoms of insufficient light are dark green leaves with long stems or petioles.

To make a new rope-type clothesline soft and more durable, boil it five minutes in sudsy water before stringing it up.

There's a second life for old toothbrushes. After cleaning one thoroughly in a suds and water solution, keep it handy in the kitchen for working suds into hard-to-reach corners and crevices of appliances, such as can opener, toaster, waffle iron, range parts of the crevices of silver, cut crystal, even a strainer. Of course, be sure to disconnect any electrical appliance before cleaning!

Non-stick finishes are made of a fluorocarbon resin which is scratch-resistant. But should the surface stain, a household remedy may be in order. Mix 2 tablespoons of baking soda with 1/2 cup of liquid household bleach and 1 cup water. Then, simmer the solution for 5 minutes in the utensil. Wash, rinse thoroughly and dry. To recondition the finish, wipe with a light coating of salad oil before reusing.

MS Patients Benefiting By Dance Therapy

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The classical Hindu dance is usually a cultural matter. But for a group of Tulsans it may be a help to fighting the crippling disease, multiple sclerosis.

Rang Vitthal is a professional dancer and teacher who gave his first professional performance more than 30 years ago in India.

When he met Jean Chapman at a porch sale less than four years ago she was in a wheelchair from MS. For more than a year her vision had been badly impaired.

"Maybe," he told her, "if you take up dancing it might help."

"After two lessons, she was able to move her eyes. She was able to bend and touch her toes," he recalls.

Her doctor was amazed, Mrs. Chapman says. "He asked what I had been doing when he first saw me after I had started the lessons. And then he told me, 'Don't miss a lesson — whether you feel like going or not.'"

Vitthal agreed to teach a class — free — for any patient interested in dance therapy.

"I am not a therapist; I am a dancer," says Vitthal.

The Hindu dance is complicated. It demands coordination of the eyes, feet and hands.

"This type of dancing is beneficial to MS patients because it helps with balance and control," says Louise Mail, executive director of the state MS society. "It keeps up muscle tone, but it is not as strenuous or as fatiguing as other dances which demand the dancers move around over the floor; it is more stationary than some types of dancing. Fatigue is devastating to MS patients."

Mrs. Vera Dailing is a veteran member of Vitthal's class. Usually she wears a back brace but not necessarily at a class.

At one time, she was paralyzed from the waist down. She has advanced from a wheelchair to a walker, to a half-walker.

"Thanks to Rang, I can do my own housework now," Mrs. Dailing says.

The class begins with exercise. "Next I make them walk, then I make them walk faster," Vitthal says.

He has the students lift their legs and later adds weights. He shows them they can, when they think they cannot.

Vitthal came to the United States with Mr. and Mrs. John F. Schnur of Muskogee. Schnur was in India as a government representative, and Vitthal had worked as his public relations officer.

In Tulsa, he has worked as a photographer but his first love is dancing and teaching.

He hopes eventually to work with patients at the Children's Medical Center here.

Mother Relates 'Bedroom' Story

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: After reading about the mother who was upset because she couldn't get her teenagers to keep their rooms reasonably neat, I had to share this amusing incident with you:

My home is always neat and orderly—with the exception of my teenage daughter's bedroom, which was always a mess. Drawers open, clothes thrown everywhere, her bed unmade, etc.

I fussed, threatened, punished, but to no avail. Finally I just gave up and kept her bedroom door closed all the time so I wouldn't have to look at the mess.

One day our house was robbed. For some strange reason, all the burglars took were the television sets. I called the police, and they sent two policemen to investigate. They asked me to accompany them while they checked each room in the house to find out if anything else was missing.

When they opened the door of my daughter's bedroom, they gasped, "Good grief—they certainly ransacked THIS room!"

I calmly replied, "No. It always looks like this."

SAN RAFAEL MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: If you could see my home, car and clothes closet, you would probably think I was the luckiest woman in Boston. Well, I'm not. But I could be the most frustrated. I sometimes want affection so much I could just curl up and die.

My husband is a very successful businessman. I know he loves me, but he's not the demonstrative type. He shows our dog a lot of affection, though. Abby, you don't know how frustrating it is for me to sit there and watch my husband with the dog on his lap. He cuddles him and scratches his neck. That pup gets more loving than I do! I just hate to be the one to always make the first move. Why are men so dumb? When we go to bed at night and he wraps those big, strong arms around me, I'm so happy, I hate to fall asleep. He's so good and dear and sweet and INSENSITIVE...and I'm so frustrated. What should I do? Sign me,

"PLENTY OF NOTHING IN BOSTON"

DEAR PLENTY: Don't sit around waiting for your hormones to dry up. MAKE your husband notice you. You may have to shove the dog off his lap, but you can make it up to him (the dog) come "BE KIND TO ANIMALS WEEK."

And what's wrong with making the first move? It's better than no moves at all. Be aggressively affectionate. Some men LIKE to be pursued. Try it, and if nothing happens, you haven't lost anything.

DEAR ABBY: Do you know of any organization or medical school that might be interested in buying a person's body?

I have always wanted to donate my body to science since I don't relish the thought of being buried. But with times being so bad right now, I'd like to sell my body to a medical school that would pay me in advance. The money would come in very handy now.

By the way, I sure do enjoy your column. I can't get over some of those kooks who write to you.

A MAINE READER

DEAR READER: I know of no organization or medical school that pays for bodies. People leave their bodies as a "gift" to a medical school.

N.C. To Get More For Money

Legislators, who are at present working to whittle away $232 million from the big state budget, are going to hear cries for (a) cutting all capital improvements from the budget or (b) to put capital improvements in a bond issue.

We hope and expect that the lawmakers will ignore both these suggestions.

The two largest items in the proposed budget capital improvements are for prison improvements and expansion of the ECU medical school. The budget was tight on ECU improvements even before it was determined that additional funds would have to be cut from the budget which was recommended by the governor and the Advisory Budget Commission. What was left in is essential to North Carolina if we are to meet needs in the years ahead.

We suspect that some of those who might call for elimination of capital improvements are more interested in obtaining their dream of halting the medical school's development, and they don't care what else they carry down to accomplish this aim.

There will never be a time more advantageous to carry out capital improvements projects than the months ahead. Construction has been slow and therefore bidding has been more competitive. Costs increases of building materials have also abated because shortages have been eliminated.

So it is clear that we should leave these bare minimum capital improvements programs in the budget simply because we are going to get more for our money in the near future.

As for a bond issue, we think the tax payers have made it clear that they want the budget makers to stay within the funds available. That means no new taxes and certainly no bond issue. North Carolina taxpayers are pretty responsible people. They aren't screaming for big tax cuts, but they do want a progressive government program carried out within the funds we have. That means a reasonable capital improvements program, carrying on present government services and adding new worthwhile ones as the money is available.

Institution On The Ropes

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—A North Carolina institution for more than 50 years is facing hard times: the popular Agricultural Review publication has just escaped the budget-cutting axe in the General Assembly; only to find itself running out of money due to increased circulation.

"Our money is running out because of the increased readership," says F. Carlyle Teague, editor of the Agricultural Review, and the man in charge of public relations for the N.C. Department of Agriculture.

In just one year, circulation jumped from 66,915 to 75,436; and is now around 80,000.

It costs the state $35,000 yearly in printing costs; another $10,000 for mailing. The writing, editing and photography are done by department staff people.

Legislators pressed by the recession eyed the budget for the Agricultural Review as a possible cutting place. The question went before a subcommittee of the Base Budget Committee, but was dropped like a hot potato when State Rep. P.C. Collins Jr., of Laurel Springs protested.

Can't Go Home

"If they cut that out, I can't go home," Collins argued. "If that paper is three days late getting delivered back home, my phone rings off the hook."

Collins' response is typical of the rural legislators across the state who know that the slender tabloid newspaper delivered twice each month is a mainstay in many a farm-home family room.

What is the appeal? Mostly, even Teague admits, it's the want ads.

Of course the newspaper carries pictures of prize winning farmers and their produce; stories about agricultural events and shows; even news from the Department of Agriculture, and when space permits a picture of Agricultural Commissioner Jim Graham.

"But this is not just promotional material. Some people might consider it that...but we certainly don't," says Teague, who defends the wide range of information on marketing, animal health, crop prospects, consumer information regarding feed, seed, fertilizer and pesticides, and even recipes.

Teague recently ran a survey of readers to find out how well the newspaper is liked, and what is liked best.

Our question was whether to reduce the mailings to monthly instead of twice monthly. "The answer was overwhelmingly to keep it twice monthly," he said.

The recipes and the other material showed up pretty well in the readership survey, "but if you ask most people," it's the ads they read most," Teague said.

By Request

Mailed out to readers strictly by request, the publication is free. Some have suggested charging for the advertisements, or for subscriptions, but Teague resists that, pointing to the extra costs of bookkeeping and administration of the system if charges were made.

Besides, many people feel they are not getting a great deal out of state government, but these 80,000 readers can say they are getting something for their tax money out of Raleigh."

Editions usually have four to six pages of classified advertisements, ranging from farms for sale or rent, equipment wanted or for sale, livestock and other animals for sale, and fascinating offerings for special needs.

Example: "Little Old Timey white cucumber seed; teaspoonful 25 cents," or, "Old timey open pollinated red corn..." Teague requires the name and address of each seller, and a stated price to avoid confusion.

Readers can find dogs, horses, farm labor, or bees; or a buyer for wood cookstoves, old greenhouses, cider mills, timber, fruit jars, or even a man who wants somebody to teach him how to train and handle draft horses or mules.

It's easy to see why Agricultural Review is growing so rapidly. Teague thinks the budgetary problems can be ironed out and the newspaper first published in 1922 will continue a popular tradition in rural homes.

The INSIDE REPORT

Moscow Playing It Cool

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The Elysee Palace has passed the word that President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing may break French policy of the last decade by attending a NATO summit meeting late in May, a surprising message indicating European alarm at the suddenly fallen fortunes of the U.S.

No French president has ever attended a North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) summit since the French pulled out of the alliance's military structure in 1966. The bare possibility that Giscard himself may indeed go to Brussels for the summit meeting that President Ford is now trying to put together was privately raised with the U.S. embassy in Paris.

If he does attend, it will signal no change in French policy toward NATO; nor will Giscard be a particularly eager participant. Rather, the decision to attend would display one thing: rising French concern, shared all over Western Europe, that the catastrophe of American policy in Southeast Asia coupled with Soviet advances requires a solid show of Western unity.

There is also reaction in Moscow. So shattering and sudden is the U.S. debacle in Vietnam and Cambodia that policymakers here detect minute though significant policy changes inside the Kremlin to protect the U.S.-Soviet detente. The first change: an order from the Kremlin to the Communist party of Portugal to "go slow" in seizing total power in Lisbon.

That directive was given to the second ranking Portuguese Communist party official on his recent visit to Moscow to discuss the rapid and astonishing success of the party in its grasp for control of the Western anchor of NATO.

U.S. officials desperately trying to grasp the full impact of the worst foreign policy defeat in this nation's history are sure of nothing at this early stage, but a consensus is beginning to develop along these lines:

The Kremlin was probably shocked as much as the Ford administration by the wholly unexpected withdrawal and subsequent collapse of the South Vietnamese army. With thousands of Americans still in Saigon and Phnom Penh as potential victims of Asian fury, Moscow is fearful that mass killings could arouse violent reactions in the U.S.—"arouse the slumbering beast," in the words of one policymaker—and result in angry anti-Soviet sentiment. That could shatter detente, which the Kremlin definitely does not want to happen.

Having poured arms and munitions into Hanoi, the Soviet Union has forfeited control over the pace of events in Vietnam. Bit it is not without important political and financial resources to slow down the Communist takeover in Portugal.

There is, moreover, another explanation for a Soviet go-slow order to its confederates in Portugal. Moscow desperately wants an all-European summit meeting later this year that would formally recognize Soviet hegemony over its European empire. If Portugal slips inside the Communist orbit, the Kremlin can forget all about any such summit conference.

These first political developments from the debacle of Vietnam—a French concession to President Ford's call for a Western Summit and Moscow's effort to restrain the Portuguese Communists—underscore a key phrase in Mr. Ford's distended speech to Congress last Thursday night.

"As long as I'm President," he said, "we will not permit detente to become a license to fish in troubled waters."

Those words reflect both the hard-line policy of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the specific recommendation, made directly to the Oval Office on several occasions the past 10 days, of Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger. The warning, however, did not have to be made by the President for Soviet leaders to get the point.

Even in the Middle East, Moscow is playing a "cool and quiet" game, according to one presidential adviser. The Soviets are working closely with radical Palestinians to avoid border attacks against Israel that might set off another Arab-Israeli war—and a super-power confrontation.

These covert Soviet moves point in only one direction:

MAKING A DIAMOND

We are told that charcoal needs only the rearrangement of its atoms to become a diamond.

It is on this principle that many transformations of evil life into grandeur of character have taken place. Pieces of carbon like Mary Magdalene, the harlot; Augustine, the profligate; and numerous evil-living sons and daughters of this world have been turned into precious jewels by a somewhat similar process. The basic material always remains the same.

We are also told that it is heat and pressure, sometimes in the form of volcanic eruptions, which changes carbon into diamonds. Conversion of character often takes place under the same circumstances. There is a volcanic eruption in one's nature. Old ways must be renounced, new pathways taken. Sometimes these are of a very radical and traumatic nature. But after eruption is over—behold, a new nature.

Still carbon, but by a rearrangement of its inner nature, changed into a diamond.

Tax Season Fantasies

WASHINGTON—Every year around tax time I have a fantasy about the IRS. Last year my fantasy was that I made a gross error in favor of the government and had overpaid my taxes by such a large sum that I received a personal visit from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue who handed me a briefcase filled with new $100 bills.

In my dream the Commissioner told me, "You are a great American and I wish we had more like you. Take this small token of our appreciation plus 6 percent interest." (He handed me another package of bills.)

I recall that I protested, saying that the government needed the funds more than I did. But the Commissioner was adamant. "We checked your return carefully and we could not in good conscience accept all the money you paid in taxes. You refused to take any deductions for business or entertainment or even for your family. My people were so impressed by your honesty as well as the neatness of your tax form that they called it to my personal attention. Not only am I authorized to present you with these funds but I am also awarding you the IRS Medal of Honor with an Oak Leaf Cluster—the highest decoration the Service can award."

He kissed me on both cheeks.

This year my fantasy is far more interesting. After reading that the IRS had used undercover women informers to investigate the sex habits of those suspected of cheating on their taxes, I worked out the following scenario.

I send an anonymous letter to the IRS saying: "Buchwald has a secret numbered bank account in Switzerland and sends a courier over to Geneva every month with a suitcase full of cash. A full investigation of his activities might produce astounding results."

"P.S. He is partial to blondes and is a leg man."

The IRS Counterintelligence Organization calls a special meeting. The Chief tells his agents, "We must get the number of that Swiss account. Wiretaps and surveillance have been unproductive. We have no choice but to put 'Operation Joy of Sex' into action."

Everyone at the table whistles. "He's very clever," the Chief's Deputy says. "We can't put any woman informer on to him. It's got to be someone special."

"What about Sherry Foldout?"

"You mean Burning Lips, the Passion Flower of Pasadena?"

"We'll have to give her 30 percent of the fine, but it will be worth it. When you're trying to catch a rat in a tax shelter you have to use the most expensive cheese in the store."

They call in Sherry and tell her, "We don't care what it takes. Stay with him day and night, but get that number."

I won't go into all the

Other Editors Say Red-Hot UFO's

(Greensboro Daily News)

Dozens of persons have reported seeing unidentified flying objects in the air over Eastern North Carolina in the last few days. Among the sighters were officers of the law who were on duty and, therefore, cold sober at the time.

The visiting flying saucers were described as being V-shaped and of a pink and reddish hue. One report was of five flying in a circle, each with a steady flame issuing from it. Ray Strickland, a guard at Pembroke State University, said the objects he spotted were "nothing like planes."

Mr. Strickland and Ron Thompson of the Robeson County Sheriff's Department said they found five burned places in a field near where Mr. Strickland saw the mysterious aircraft. Next an official UFO researcher came out and collected some ashes at the place where the objects were thought to have landed. He will sift the ashes and analyze them for credibility, etc.

Carl Jung, the eminent Swiss psychologist, once advanced the theory that troubled times produce flying saucers. He said the objects were real in the sense that they were the projections of troubled minds looking to the sky for salvation. On the other hand, a 1973 Gallup Poll disclosed that 51 per cent of Americans believed flying saucers were real physical objects from outer space.

We don't know which category these particular airborne items fall into. But if they emit flames and leave ashes, then they must be wood burners or tobacco smokers. That means they'll be playing with fire if they ever land long enough to try to take over this country. The clean air and conservation forces will make life hell on earth for them if they are burning wood; if they are smoking cigarettes, the Stamp Out Smoking League will get them.

A Better Syndrome Prevailing

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The disaster syndrome, in which a lot of people were convinced that the disintegration of economic society lay ahead, has been replaced in recent weeks by the crisis syndrome.

There is a vast difference. Economic society can live with crises. By some definitions, in fact, that is what economic society is today, just one crisis after another. But crises can be solved, and economic society goes on.

There are signs now that the world is getting over its shocks and is about to look at its problems realistically and even go about trying to solve some of them with some degree of hope.

The Office for Economic Cooperation, made up of the world's leading trading nations, feels that inflation is tending to be less extreme, down from 15 per cent late in 1974 to 9.5 per cent with the three months ending with February.

Prices don't rise forever, we have learned, after having that notion imprinted on our brains for most of the past decade. For four straight months U.S. wholesale prices have fallen. Farm prices have been sharply lower.

While the latter won't do farmers any good—in fact, it demonstrates that the up-down misfortunes of farming remain built into the system—they do offer some reassurance that there is some give and take in the market place.

It is now more credible to argue that the petrodollar outflow to the Mideast isn't going to destroy Western civilization but that conceivably it could be turned into a gain. Many Western business enterprises already are prospering from going where the money goes.

While the old issues remain part of the scene as the newer issues emerge, the latter don't seem to be branded with the same despair. The world isn't coming to an end economically, although some feel the political aspect of that consideration might lead to a different answer.

Almost everyone is talking about an end this fall to the recession, the worst since the depression of the 1930s. The reasons offered might differ, but the conclusions don't, and that's the "bottom line," as they say.

May Day is coming in the securities industry, and it isn't likely to kill it off.

Little Stress In Laos

By KENNETH L. WHITING

Associated Press Writer

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The coalition of leftists, neutralists and rightists that governs Laos seems to be taking in calm stride all that is going on in the rest of Indochina.

"Laos will stand firmly and strictly in a neutrality policy regardless of whatever changes or circumstances," the neutralist premier, Prince Souvanna Phouma, said recently as the Communists tightened the noose around Phnom Penh in Cambodia and took over much of South Vietnam.

The only sign of stress is an unfinished debate about whether Laos should continue to recognize the governments in Phnom Penh and Saigon. Laos decided earlier to maintain diplomatic links with whoever is in charge of the capitals of Cambodia and South Vietnam.

The Communist Pathet Lao members of the coalition want immediate recognition of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government in South Vietnam and the Royal Government of National Union of Cambodia, headed by exiled Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Western diplomats here say Laos is bound to be affected by Communist successes in Cambodia and South Vietnam. Some say they expect the Pathet Lao to be sufficiently emboldened to speed up their efforts to take over Laos.

The Pathet Lao claim control of two-thirds of the kingdom's 91,429 square miles, slightly larger than Idaho, and one third of its estimated 3.2 million people.

The Provisional National Union Government formed on April 6, 1974, is regarded as a success by Laotian standards if only because it has lasted a year. Two earlier attempts at coalition in 1957 and 1962 failed within months, and fighting resumed.

The economy of landlocked Laos depends on handouts from foreign governments. The country earned about $15 million in foreign exchange last year and needed $40 million to pay for its imports. Donations from the United States, Australia, Japan, Thailand, Britain and France helped make up the difference.

Reunification of the country is moving slowly, one diplomat said. Neither side seems particularly anxious for elections. Some view the future as bleak. Without providing statistics

Won't Compete For Convention

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Richard J. Daley says Chicago will not take part in a "bidding war" with other cities for the 1976 Democratic National Convention.

Daley, elected to his sixth term earlier this month by an overwhelming margin, is expected to play an important role in the party's selection of a 1976 presidential nominee.

At his first news conference Tuesday since the election, Daley criticized the Democratic

Regulated Oil Traffic Proposal Has Collapsed

By ELIAS ANTAR
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — The proposal for a conference to regulate the international oil traffic collapsed today after the meeting to make preparations for the parley broke up in deadlock.

After nine days of exhausting negotiations, the 10 delegations representing oil exporters, industrialized nations and developing nations that import oil went home without setting a date for new talks.

Throughout the negotiations, the two sides never budged from the opposing positions which caused the deadlock. Led by Algeria, the nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries demanded that the proposed world energy conference take up all raw materials sold by the under-developed nations to the industrial nations and not just oil. The industrial nations insisted that oil be the chief business of the future conference, with only secondary and peripheral discussion of other raw materials.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi of Iran had warned that the price of oil would rise again if an energy conference was not held. But a glut of oil on the international market is exerting downward pressure on prices. The head of the U.S. delegation to the Paris talks, Assistant Secretary of State Thomas Enders, commented that market forces, not a conference, will determine the price of oil.

Enders said the U.S. government will reflect on how to get a dialogue going again but without any particular urgency.

The meeting was the first time that the exporters and consumers had sat down at the same table in a body since the energy crisis began with the Arab oil embargo during the 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

The breakdown of the talks was a sharp diplomatic setback for France, which called the meeting to begin the process of dialogue and end the atmosphere of confrontation. The president of the meeting, Louis de Guiringaud, said France would take a new initiative only if asked to do so.

The industrialized nations were represented by the United States, Japan and the European Common Market. The oil exporters present were Algeria, Iran, Saudi Arabia, Venezuela and Brazil. India and Zaire represented the other developing nations.

The developing nations declared that their goal was equality with the industrialized nations. To achieve this, they demanded that the proposed conference prepare "a new world economic order." Algerian delegate Jait Challal warned that the industrialized nations "will never be able to stage an energy conference with the Third World" unless they give in on the raw materials issue.

After Chupiren's first company raid and the resulting publicity, a flood of letters and phone calls poured into the group's headquarters in Tokyo from women seeking help.

One housewife had received a bank notice that the month's loan payment was due and she hadn't borrowed any money.

She telephoned the bank's loan section. After hurried discussion on the other end, she was told that someone else by the same name had borrowed the money.

But investigation disclosed the bank had loaned money to her husband to buy a house for his mistress and had lied to the wife for the errand husband.

The pink-helmeted demonstrators showed up at the bank, declared it an "enemy of women" and won an apology from one of the executives. The couple had become divorced in the interim and the wife received a favorable settlement.

The color pink used for the militants' helmets, explained Miss Enoki, does not connote helpless femininity in Japan, but is found in expressions like "pink mood" or "pink cinema" to convey the sex object image of women. She said it signifies what women protest.

She said Chupiren is the largest women's liberation group in Japan, adding that although there have been many different groups, they dissolve once their immediate goals are satisfied, rather than unite into a larger organization.

Group Talks Fund-Raising

Representatives of the United Christian Youth Movement, an interdenominational fellowship of young people from churches throughout Greenville, met at St. James United Methodist Church Sunday afternoon.

Clay Shugart, president, presided. The primary order of business was the proposal of several fund-raising projects to provide funding for the two Community Ambassadors, Kathryn Haynes and Rosalyn Taylor, who will represent Greenville in Europe this Summer.

Letters will be written and visits made to the businesses which supported this endeavor last year. Each local church youth group is asked to make a contribution. A dance will be held at the Elm Street Gym, Saturday, May 3, 8:00 p.m.

In addition it was agreed that the U.C.Y.M. would sponsor a city-wide festival during the summer and again during the fall.

details of the rest of the fantasy except to say that Sherry Foldout goes way beyond the call of duty to get my secret out of me. But there is one thing the IRS hasn't counted on.

With the statute of limitations on my tax return almost up, Sherry tearfully confesses to her superiors, "I don't know how to tell you this, but I've fallen in love with him. It's the first time in my life I've ever felt anything for a tax evader. Why didn't you warn me about this? I'll never be the same again."

The IRS Counterintelligence Organization calls another special meeting. The Chief says, "Sherry's been compromised. We'll have to use Fern La Long and tell Astrid Rapture to stand by just in case he does to Fern what he did to Sherry."

"We've never used three undercover women on one case before," the Deputy protests.

"You forget, Desmond," the Chief says angrily. "We're not dealing with an ordinary tax cheater. We'll get him if we have to use every woman in the Service."

I haven't told my wife about my latest IRS fantasy because she doesn't understand anything about taxes, and if I told her she'd only become confused.

Thousands To Camporee

Friday is the big day for thousands of Scouts in the East Carolina Council, Boy Scouts of America. Hundreds of Scouts of Pitt County will journey to the Bonner Reservation North to attend the annual Camporee.

The annual Council Camporee is one of the largest in the country, having an attendance of about 5,000. Pitt County Scouts camp in the "gold" area of the huge reservation. Camporee Chief for the Gold area will be David Cobb Jr. of Greenville. Other gold area staff will be Frank Saunders, Dr. Milam Johnson, Bernard Haselrig, Glen Jetter, the Rev. Jim Trader, Garland Buck, Hugh Benson, Ray Parker, Charles D. Cobb, and Ken Davis. Also assisting with special projects will be members of Alpha Phi Omega fraternity of ECU.

Units will be judged on campsite layout and operation, as well as cooking and other Scouting skills. Chief Judge of the Camporee will be Tom Butts of Greenville. The Camporee Chief will be Bob Peters of Tarboro, assisted by past chief, Jack Farrior of Farmville.

Two Facing Drug Counts

Two local men were arrested late Monday night by Greenville Police and charged on drug law violation counts.

Police Capt. L.J. Russell said that officers arrested Kevin Mark Leutgens, 21, of 100 S. Woodlawn Avenue and charged him with two counts of possession of a controlled substance and one count of sale of a controlled substance. Bond was set at $5,000 on each charge.

Capt. Russell reported that James E. Seaman, 20, of 307-B, Eastbrook Apartments, was also arrested and charged with possession of a controlled substance. Bond on the possession charge was set at $5,000.

According to the captain, the arrests were made around 11:15 p.m. at 100 Woodlawn Avenue. He noted that officers confiscated approximately two pounds of marijuana and a quantity of peyote, as well as several pipes.

Hearings on the drug charges have been scheduled for May 5 in District Court.

Grant Awarded To Cycle Course

The East Carolina University Traffic Safety Center under the Department of Health and Physical Education at ECU has received a $1,000 grant from the Motorcycle Safety Foundation.

The money will be used to support a course on motorcycle safety that is taught at ECU each summer.

Dr. Alfred King, coordinator for the ECU Traffic Safety Center, said part of the money will be used for maintenance on the motorcycles used during the course. The rest of the funds will provide stipends for driver education teachers that enroll in the program.

CHORALE AT TARBORO
The East Carolina University Chorale will perform at Tarboro's Calvary Episcopal Church Sunday, April 20, at 5 p.m.

The chorus is directed by Brett Watson of the ECU School of Music faculty.

Cambodian Orphans In Red-Tape Maze

LEESBURG, Va. (AP) —
The first group of Cambodian children flown to the United States lack immigration papers necessary for adoption and now may be children without a country, U.S. officials say.

The 28 youngsters who landed at Dulles International Airport Monday were rounded up by an assortment of "adoption agents" that included a monk,
a barber and a free-lance photographer. They were brought to the United States by the Agency for International Development.

But Immigration officials said Tuesday the children aren't eligible for adoption because they lack the necessary releases from their parents or guardians.

"They're not legally here, if that makes any sense," a spokesman for the Immigration Department said. "He said the children were allowed to land because there was no alternative."

"We had no choice," he said.

"We couldn't turn the plane around and tell them to get the hell out of here."

The children are being cared for by Red Cross officials and volunteers in a temporary dormitory at the Leesburg Presbyterian Church in Loudoun County.

Adoption agency officials and social workers conducted interviews with the children Tuesday in an effort to learn their backgrounds.

The children include an 8-day-old infant who reportedly was snatched newborn from the streets of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital.

Channelization Arguments Reach Flood Areas

By MARY GANZ
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — When floodwaters gurgled, the Army Engineers answer. They move in to advise states how to protect citizens, to tell people when to move and when to worry.

This year, hundreds of families in the lower Mississippi Valley have fled from the river's spring overflow. As they wait out their third straight spring of high water, a Mississippi judge has asked a grand jury to investigate whether flood control makes flooding worse.

"The Corps of Engineers, because of channelization and the clearing out of natural streams and doing away with their natural courses, has thrown all this water into that part of the state," said Circuit Judge

Francis S. Bowling of Jackson, surveying the flooded Yazoo River Basin.

Ecologists are saying that Corps river dredging and levee building mess up the natural order of things for nothing.

"The evidence on hand is that the projects don't necessarily control floods and there's serious question they may be increasing flood damage," said John Hammond, vice president of the Louisiana Ecology Center.

The argument goes like this:

When Army Engineers dredge a Mississippi River tributary to make the stream more navigable, they remove the natural bends and curves that slow the water's movement into the big river.

Then, to help contain all that extra water, the Corps builds levees that keep the river from spreading out into its natural floodplain.

By the time the flood reaches the Mississippi Delta, it can no longer be contained. It has to go somewhere, so it backs up into smaller rivers, like the Yazoo.

Many of the levees that line the Yazoo and other tributaries are privately constructed and can't hold up. Thousands of acres of productive farmland are flooded and hundreds of families are forced to leave their homes.

Floods are acts of God, the Corps answers. If there have been three straight years of flooding in the Mississippi Delta, that's because there have been three straight years of above-average rainfall.

If flood damages, expected to total $155 million this year, are increasing faster than inflation, said Corps spokesman Bruce Sossaman, that's because 23 years of minimal flooding since 1950 encouraged people to move into flood-prone areas.

"They plant a crop, they build a shack, then they start living there in the summers, then they say: 'Hey, this land is cheap.' The reason it's cheap is because 20 years ago it was under water, but they forget about that and pretty soon they decide to build a home and live there. Then five years later you get a rainy cycle, and they get flooded."

Environmentalists say the Corps is guilty of encouraging people to move into the flood plains. "One of the functions of the Corps has been not only flood control but land enhancement," Hammond said.

"By leveeing off a flood plain and digging up the channel so water doesn't spill over they make that land extremely valuable for developers."

In turn, land development increases the flooding. As trees are cleared, roads paved and crops planted, rain and snow run off the land and into the river system more quickly, he said.

The Corps rejects the suggestion that its flood projects make flooding worse in the South. Damages from Mississippi River and backwater flooding totaled $15 billion in 1973, one of the worst years ever. Without the projects, says the Corps, the figure would have been 15 times that.

Robert Kaufman of the Mississippi River Commission in Vicksburg agreed that dredging speeds the water flow. But he noted that the Corps builds reservoirs along its channeled rivers to catch and regulate some of the extra flow.

"If you have a flood coming down one of these rivers, the

Plant Trout In Texas Streams

LUFKIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and U.S. Forest Service are cooperating in a project which may produce Texas' first stream trout fishery.

Approximately 2,000 catchable size trout were placed in Boykin Creek in Angelina National Forest on March 3. An additional 2,000 fish are being held for another stocking in April.

If biologists determine the stream will support trout year round, another stocking will be made in November.

ACCIDENT REPORT
CHEYENNE (UPI) — Wyoming officials say there were fewer traffic accidents in the state last year than in 1973, but more people were involved.

The Wyoming Highway Department said 120 more drivers were involved in 1974 accidents than the year before, with 63 per cent of the accidents occurring in urban areas.

Beef Is Big Budget Item

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The average American family spends about $30 a week for groceries, with beef accounting for 15 per cent of its food budget, the government said today in a new survey of consumer buying habits.

The survey also showed that the amount spent for restaurant meals rises steeply as income rises, exceeding one-third of the total spent for food by families earning more than $19,000 a year.

The findings represent the partial results of a two-year survey of spending and earnings of American families, the first such survey in 12 years by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

BLS Commissioner Julius Shiskin said the preliminary results were being made available now because of widespread interest in information about food-buying patterns and energy consumption.

Initial findings also showed that, on the average, the amount spent by families for gasoline is about 50 per cent of direct energy purchases and that younger families spent more on gasoline than older families.

Also, on the average, expenditures for gasoline are more than one-fourth of the amount spent for food at home and about three-fourths of the amount spent for food away from home.

Other findings:

- The average size of family increases with income.
- The average age of the household head is higher at the lower-income levels, reflecting the fact that a large number of elderly persons have low incomes.
- The proportion of homeowners goes up with income.
- The proportion of black families in each income group declines as income rises.

Shiskin, in presenting the findings to the American Marketing Association in Chicago, said the new figures showed that families spend an average of $6.36 a week for gasoline, $5.40 for gas and electricity, and $30.32 for food, including $22.17 for groceries and $8.15 for food away from home.

Sue To Open Public Record

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP)—The Burlington Times-News sought an injunction today in an effort to obtain access to exact salary figures for Alamance County employees.

The Superior Court action seeks a permanent injunction restraining D. J. Walker, county manager, and Jo Hargrove, county personnel director, from denying to the plaintiffs and other members of the public the right of access to public records under their control.

The Times-news and Linda Jackson, a reporter for the newspaper, are listed as plaintiffs.

Walker and Mrs. Hargrove are listed as defendants.

The paper and Ms. Jackson claim Walker and Mrs. Hargrove refused to provide the information she sought.

The suit says legal basis for the court action is a state law which says public records may be inspected by anyone.

The suit says, "That which is news today may, with the passage of time, have its newsworthiness destroyed."

Don Bolden, managing editor of the newspaper, said, "We can obtain exact salaries of any individual who is on the state payroll without any difficulty. However, we cannot get this from the county."

"We regret we have to go to such lengths to obtain access to records to which we feel the public is entitled, but we have no recourse if we are to effectively fulfill our responsibilities to the public."

Expect Wells Resign Post

RALEIGH (AP)—Hugh Wells reportedly will announce Friday his resignation from the $30,000-a-year post as a member of the North Carolina Utilities Commission. He will become the first full-time legal counsel to the North Carolina Electric Membership Corp.

The former member of a Raleigh law firm, who has been on the commission six years, has been a critic both of utility companies and the commission.

Wells is a Democrat. His resignation would give Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser a chance to name a successor who would give the five-member commission a Republican majority.

Holshouser has appointed commissioners Tenney Deane and George Clark, both Republicans. However, a House committee is considering a Senate-passed bill to increase the size of the commission. The bill also would require legislative approval of gubernatorial appointments.

The Electric Membership Corp. is composed of 28 rural electric co-ops. At present they have no generating capacity, and buy power from private utilities. They and cities with their own electric distribution systems are trying to gain legislative approval for their own generating plants. If they get it, they would be regulated by the utilities commission.

Landon Suffers Fainting Spell

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Alf M. Landon, a Republican who ran unsuccessfully for president against Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1936, was hospitalized in satisfactory condition after suffering a fainting spell.

Landon, 87, governor of Kansas from 1933-1937, was stricken Tuesday while at one of his radio stations. He was expected to remain at least two days at Stormont-Vail Hospital, his wife said.

Trudeaus Expect A Third Child

OTTAWA (AP) — Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and Margaret Trudeau are expecting their third child in October.

Sources in the prime minister's office confirmed Tuesday that 26-year-old Mrs. Trudeau is expecting a child. Rumors to that effect had been circulating for some time.

The Trudeaus' two children were born on Christmas Day two years apart. The couple was married four years ago.

Evans And Baker Spark Braves

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Hank Aaron is gone from Atlanta but some of his magic remains in the red-hot bats of Darrell Evans and Dusty Baker.

"Driving in runs in the clutch is what I'm paid to do. You can't drive them in all the time, but you can try — that was one of Hank's philosophies," Baker said after he and Evans drove in three runs apiece in the Braves' 6-1 triumph over the Houston Astros Tuesday night.

Atlanta has scored only 25 runs in eight games, Evans driving in nine of them and Baker seven.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Cincinnati Reds 3-1 on Don Sutton's one-hitter — Johnny Bench's two-out home run in the seventh inning — and the San Diego Padres nipped the San Francisco Giants 2-1. The Chicago-Pittsburgh and New York-Philadelphia games were rained out while St. Louis and Montreal were not scheduled.

Tuesday night's slim gathering — at 12,744 the lowest opening-game turnout since the Braves moved South in 1966 — saw Evans crack his third homer of the season, a two-run shot, in the first inning off J.R. Richard. He picked up a third RBI when he was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded in a three-run third. Baker drilled a bases-loaded single for two runs in the third and added a sacrifice fly in the fifth.

Meanwhile, knuckle-baller Phil Niekro scattered seven hits, including Jose Cruz' first-inning home run.

Dodgers 3, Reds 1

Sutton held Cincinnati hitless for 6 2-3 innings before Bench's first home run of the season forced him to settle for the fourth one-hitter of his career.

The 30-year-old right-hander walked Joe Morgan on a 3-2 pitch with one out in the first inning but Morgan was erased when Bench grounded into a double play. Sutton then faced the minimum number of batters and had retired 18 in a row when Bench homered on the first pitch. The ball landed in the left field stands about 20 feet fair. Sutton then retired the last seven Cincinnati batters.

Jimmy Wynn slugged a two-run homer for the Dodgers in the first inning off Clay Kirby and Sutton squeezed home the final Los Angeles run in the seventh.

Padres 2, Giants 1

Randy Jones allowed two hits in seven innings and Bobby Tolan and Willie McCovey delivered run-scoring singles as San Diego rallied in the eighth.

Mike Caldwell blanked the Padres on five hits over the first seven innings and an unearned run in the first put the Giants on top 1-0. But Glenn Beckert, leading off the eighth as a pinch hitter for Jones, was safe on an error by second baseman Derrel Thomas, a former Padre. Pinch runner John Scott stole second and third and, after a walk to Enzo Hernandez, scored the tying run on Tolan's single.

Hernandez went to third on Tolan's hit and, after John Grubb was hit with a pitch, scored the winner on a bloop single by ex-Giant McCovey off reliever Gary Lavelle.

Bucs Have Hard Work

Trench work was heavy in Tuesday's spring football drills, in particular for those players which saw little or no action in Saturday's scrimmage.

Sophomore quarterback Marvin Moss, a lefty that was injured last season, drew praise from coach Pat Dye for "some good things he did at quarterback."

The running of Willie Hawkins was singled out. Hawkins is a strong candidate to start at one running back position with Kenny Strayhorn.

Defensively, three young players were mentioned for their days work; Mike Dross, Paul Bolin and Terry Brayboy.

A couple of injuries were reported. Mack Thorpe, a freshman from Wilmington, is out with an ankle injury that has required a cast. Starting offensive tackle Ricky Bennett is expected to be out of contact action the remainder of the week with a pulled hamstring muscle. However, Bennett will be able to run throughout the week.

Army and Holy Cross will have their 10th football meeting since 1914 when they play at West Point on Sept. 13.

Hunter Loses Again; Replacement Shines

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It was enough to make Oakland forget about Catfish Hunter — and enough to make A's Manager Alvin Dark forget ... period.

When Hunter escaped from his contract, and ultimately escaped from Oakland to take up residence with the Yankees in New York, a lot of people predicted the gap left in the A's pitching corps by the departure of the Cy Young Award winner would be a damaging blow.

It might have been if Mike Norris hadn't surfaced in spring training, winning a spot on the A's roster, earning a berth in the starting rotation — and taking over Hunter's old No. 27.

In his major league debut last Thursday, Norris three-hit Chicago and won 9-0. And on Tuesday night, he twirled seven innings of one-hit ball in Kansas City before Dark, figuring his young hurler was getting arm-weary, called for veteran reliever Paul Lindblad in the eighth to protect the A's 3-1 lead.

A few pitches later the lead was gone, compliments of Al Cowens' two-run homer.

And an inning later, the game was gone, too. The Royals won it 4-3 on Hal McRae's single and George Brett's double off Rolie Fingers.

In the rest of the American League, it was Boston 5, Catfish and the Yanks 3; Milwaukee 7, Baltimore 1; California 7, Minnesota 3, and Texas 6, Chicago 5.

Norris allowed only Cookie Rojas' second-inning single in his stint against the Royals. But when the leadoff runner got on in the eighth — through no fault of his own — and Norris threw a couple of bad pitches to Tony Solaita, Dark figured it was time to make a move.

Vada Pinson had just reached first on Joe Rudi's error at first base when Dark called for Lindblad.

"I thought he was tired when I took him out," said Dark. And Norris didn't deny it. "I lost my concentration and got the ball up to Solaita," he said.

"I got behind. Maybe I was a little tired."

Cowens then replaced Solaita at the plate and put a Lindblad pitch far over the left field wall.

"He was great," Dark said of Norris. "I still haven't seen him pitch a bad ball game."

Red Sox 5, Yankees 3

The Yanks built up a 3-0 lead against Bill Lee, but it evaporated in the Red Sox' four-run fourth. A walk and singles by Bernie Carbo and Bob Montgomery produced one run, Doug Griffin's single loaded the bases, a sacrifice fly by Fred Lynn made it 3-2, Griffin stole second and Dwight Evans singled for two more runs. Carbo doubled and scored Boston's final run on Rick Burleson's single when Hunter departed in the eighth.

Brewers 7, Orioles 1
Robin Yount's tie-breaking single triggered a six-run eighth inning — with the final five runs unearned because of three Baltimore errors — that backed Bill Champion's five-hit pitching for the Brewers.

Senior BR Sets Meet

The Senior Babe Ruth League will hold an organizational meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Elm Street Gymnasium. Officers for the coming year will be elected, coaches named, and plans for the 1975 season formulated.

All those interested in the league are urged to attend.

to three hits before Pedro Garcia doubled and scored on Yount's single with one out in the eighth. Don Baylor dropped Mike Hegan's fly ball for the first error; a wild throw by first baseman Lee May on Johnny Briggs' grounder allowed Yount to score and, after an intentional walk to Hank Aaron loaded the bases, Mark Belanger booted George Scott's grounder for the third run.

Angels 7, Twins 3
Bruce Bochte hit a two-run double and Bob Darwin's three-base error let Mickey Rivers race home with the tie-breaking run in the Angels' decision over Minnesota that gave Nolan Ryan his third straight victory and ruined the Twins' home opener.

California trailed 3-2 before Orlando Ramirez singled to start the seventh inning, took second on a grounder and scored when Rivers singled to right. Rivers came all the way around when Darwin allowed the ball to skip behind him.

Rangers 6, White Sox 5
Dave Nelson singled, stole second and scored on a single by Joe Lovitto in Rangers' extra-inning squeaker over Chicago. Lovitto's hit came off reliever Rich Gossage, who entered the game in the seventh.

Texas had tied it 5-5 in the eighth when Jim Spencer doubled, took third on Toby Harrah's single and scored on a grounder by Mike Hargrove.

Bobby Richardson's South Carolina baseball team will play 50 games this spring. Last season the Gamecocks won 48 of 56 games.

Purser Chosen To Europe Team

Barry Purser, a member of the D.H. Conley wrestling team, has been selected as one of the members of the North Carolina Cultural Exchange Wrestling Team that will tour Europe this summer.

Purser, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Travis Purser of Winterville, is a senior at Conley High School.

During this past year, he was the third place finisher in the 185-pound weight class in the North Carolina High School Athletic Association's tournament.

He went on to win the Amateur Athletic Union's state championship at the 178-pound level. Then this past weekend, Purser won a wrestle-off held in Eden for the right to represent the state in the 178 level on the European trip.

The trip will take place this summer, providing funds are raised in time. A state-wide goal of $10,000 must be raised to finance the operation.

To aid in this, a group of wrestlers from the eastern part of the state will play host to a team from Denmark on Monday at 8 p.m. at North Pitt High School.

Purser has been selected along with others from the east to participate in the event. Conley Coach Milt Sherman and North Pitt Coach Roger Ingalls are serving as co-coaches for the match, and tickets can be purchased from them at their respective schools. Ticket are a minimum of $1 donation.

The Danish team is making a stopover in Bethel during a 10-match schedule which takes it to South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, North Carolina and Virginia.

The meet is under sanction of the North Carolina AAU.

Spirits Haunt Nets As Champs Eliminated

By BERT ROSENTHAL

AP Sports Writer
UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — No one is going to take the Spirits of St. Louis lightly anymore, least of all the New York Nets.

The spirited Spirits, playing with confidence and determination, shocked the Nets with a 108-107 victory Tuesday night, eliminating New York's defending champions from the American Basketball Association playoffs.

The triumph was the Spirits' fourth in a row — their longest streak of the season — and gave them the best-of-seven Eastern Division semifinal series, 4-1. The miraculous and unexpected comeback by the Spirits, a group of very promising, vastly-improved rookies and discarded veterans, was more remarkable in view of the fact that St. Louis had lost all 11 regular season games to the Nets, plus the playoff opener.

It thrust the Spirits into the Eastern Division final against Kentucky, the regular season division champions and a winner over Memphis in the other East semifinal series. The best-of-seven St. Louis-Kentucky series will open Monday night in Kentucky.

Indiana leads San Antonio 3-2 in their Western Division semis and the winner will meet Denver, which eliminated Utah earlier in the week.

"There was a stigma put on our guys early in the season as a happy-go lucky bunch," Coach Bob MacKinnon said of the St. Louis team, which joined the league only this season. "Sure, there were things happening on our club, but I don't think the tag was correct."

Regardless, the Spirits proved they could play basketball. After a slow start the Spirits gradually molded into a respectable unit, reaching their peak with the ouster of the shocked Nets.

The catalyst of the club was Freddie Lewis, who had played on three championship teams in seven years at Indiana before being traded prior to this season to Memphis, and then being grabbed by the Spirits in an early-season deal.

Lewis, the third-leading scorer in ABA playoff history, proved his mettle in the final game against the Nets. He led St. Louis with 29 points, including the team's last 10 in the final two minutes, and his 20-foot jump shot with three seconds left won the game.

Lewis had taken an inbound pass in forecourt from Mike Barr with 16 seconds remaining, then dribbled the ball around before taking his winning shot over Brian Taylor.

Barr finished with a season-high 20 points for St. Louis. Marvin Barnes, who had averaged 34 points per game in the first four games but was held scoreless for the first 22 minutes of the finale, wound up with 17.

Julius Erving led New York with 34 points and John Williamson came off the bench to score 22.

"The whole series is hard to believe," said New York Coach Kevin Loughery. "It was a terrible disappointment. But let's give St. Louis credit, especially Lewis. Anything he did doesn't surprise me."

"You get what you deserve," Loughery added, "And the way we played we got what we deserved."

WFL May Rise From The Ashes

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With visions of Broadway Joe Namath in its dreams, the World Football League announced today that it would play a 1975 season with at least 10 teams.

Sources at the league meetings here said 1975 franchises had been awarded to Southern California; Memphis; Shreveport, La.; Philadelphia; Chicago; Birmingham, Ala.; Jacksonville, Fla.; San Antonio, Tex., and Charlotte, N.C.

The sources said the league had given prospective owners of a Portland, Ore., franchise two more weeks to raise the required $750,000 to enter the league.

An official announcement of the league's 1975 plans was scheduled for later in the day.

Hoping to make Namath its biggest catch, the league said Tuesday night that it has offered the New York Jets' quarterback $4 million in guaranteed cash — a quantity the WFL has lacked so far — to play with its Chicago franchise for three years beginning this summer.

League president Chris Hemminger said the offer called for a $500,000 bonus, $500,000 a year for three years and $100,000 a year for 20 years beginning in 1978.

In addition, the WFL said it offered Namath 50 per cent ownership in a future expansion franchise — one which sources said would be located in New York, the city Namath captured a decade ago when he gave respectability to another struggling league.

As an indication of its uncertain future and unsuccessful past, the league did not know as late as Tuesday night what it would announce today.

Officials said there would be a league, but just how many teams was yet to be figured out. Other problems were also still being argued in meetings that were going 18 hours each of the past two days.

Hemminger, the Hawaiian land developer who has rescued the WFL, said the offer to Namath was backed by guarantees. There was no immediate response from Namath, who is under contract to the Jets until May 1.

Sources at the meeting said owners of the potential Chicago franchise were insisting they would not play unless they got either Namath or Larry Csonka and Paul Warfield.

The league wants to make Chicago its flagship in hopes of attracting television money and major media coverage. The Memphis WFL owner, who owns the contracts of Csonka and Warfield, has said he would sell them to Chicago if such an action were necessary to save the league.

To be sure, the league is not on the most solid economic ground. But a few months ago, when the WFL had lost $20 million, missed countless payrolls and broken numerous promises, another season seemed a virtual impossibility.

This time it is being done under a strict financial plan drawn up by Hemminger, one designed to force teams to place their operating expenses in escrowed bank accounts to guarantee bills will be paid.

Hemminger says he fully intends to satisfy all debts. He said Tuesday that 93 per cent of the players who are still owed back pay from last season had agreed to a WFL plan to repay them. That plan calls for an estimated 20 per cent of the balance in immediate cash, with the remainder to be paid in installments over the next five years.

From eight to 11 teams could be involved in the WFL in 1975, and it was not certain if the league would know the number by today.

Teams set to play are Hawaii; Southern California; Shreveport, La.; Philadelphia and Memphis. Sources at the meetings said it appeared that there would also be franchises from Chicago; Birmingham; Jacksonville, Fla.; and San Antonio, Tex. Charlotte, N.C., and Portland, Ore.,

Russell Not Worried About 1st Game Loss

By BOB GREENE

AP Sports Writer
The "old" Boston Celtics are doing what comes naturally — running and winning. But a former Celtic — Seattle SuperSonics Coach Bill Russell — knows that one game doesn't make a best-of-seven series.

"Guys like Don Nelson, Paul Silas and myself welcomed the layoff because of our age," said John Havlicek, the 35-year-old captain of the Celtics.

He was referring to the first round by the conference champions drew before entering the National Basketball Association playoffs.

"I think others like Dave Cowens also came back fresher, even though we practice hard," said Havlicek.

The Celtics will be out to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven series against the Houston Rockets tonight when the teams clash at Boston. The other Eastern Division semifinal pits the Buffalo Braves against Washington with the series tied at 1-1.

The Golden Gate Warriors, Western Conference champions, will attempt to increase their margin over Seattle to 2-0 tonight when they entertain the SuperSonics.

"They ran us out of here," Russell said after the Warriors won the first contest 123-96 Monday night. "But it's still a seven-game series. I've been in too many playoffs where we've lost the first game to worry about this."

The Kansas City-Omaha Kings and the Chicago Bulls, who split their first two games, go at it again tonight in Chicago.

The Houston Rockets, coming off a quarter-final victory over the once-mighty New York Knicks, made a fatal mistake when they attempted to run with the Celtics.

"We were ready, but unfortunately they were ready too," Houston's Rudy Tomjanovich said.

In Washington, Bullets Coach K.C. Jones is hoping for a change. The teams have split six games this year, Washington winning three at Buffalo and the Braves winning three at Washington. "It's really been weird," Jones said of the home court disadvantage. "I hope it discontinues."

Chicago has a little problem — KC-Omaha's Nate Archibald, one of the league's top scorers — and that leads to a bigger problem: the Kings' Larry McNeil.

Against the Bulls in the playoffs, McNeil is perfect from the field, hitting 18-of-18. "It just doesn't figure, it isn't normal," Chicago Coach Dick Motta said. "McNeil is a 40 per cent shooter. He just can't keep hitting at a thousand per cent."

Karate Teams High In State

At the North Carolina State Karate Championships held in Burlington this past weekend, the ECU Karate Club and the Greenville Recreation Department Karate Team won an impressive victory, with at least one person placing in 19 out of the 20 events the teams entered. In all, the two teams captured 29 trophies. This brings their total number of trophies won in their past 6 tournaments to 127, an average of 21 trophies per tournament.

Head instructor Bill McDonald commented that this year's club made the most impressive showing ever in the NC Championship's history. He gave praise to all participating members of the two clubs, as well as to Dr. Ed Hooks for his support of the ECU club and to Boyd Lee for his support of the Greenville Recreation Department team.

Through their victory, the Greenville clubs have earned the right to represent North Carolina in the US Nationals, to be held May 3 in Atlanta, Georgia. This tournament will feature entrants from all over the country as well as from other nations. The team winner of this tournament will be the undisputed US team champion.

Winners in Burlington were: Vikki Morrow, 1st place black belt form, 1st place black belt fighting; Vivian Pierce, 1st place brown belt form, 2nd place brown belt fighting; Linda June, 3rd place brown belt form; Gladys Williams, 1st place brown belt fighting; Annette Franke, 1st place green belt form; Beth McCarter, 2nd place green belt form; Sylvia Johnson, 1st place white belt form, 1st place white belt fighting;

Charles June, 2nd place black belt form, 2nd place black belt lightweight fighting; John Forrest, 3rd place black belt form; Joe Dionne, 2nd place black belt middleweight fighting; Bill Perkins, 2nd place heavyweight black belt fighting; Mac Davis, 1st place brown belt form; Mel Herrell, 2nd place brown belt form, 4th place brown belt fighting; Quincy Gardner, 3rd place brown belt form; William Joyner, 1st place brown belt fighting; Gary Edens, 2nd place brown belt fighting; James Daniels, 2nd place green belt form, 1st place green belt fighting; Jerry Leggett, 1st place white belt form, 3rd place white belt fighting; Vik Kirkman, 2nd place white belt fighting; Mark Shank, 3rd place intermediate form, 3rd place intermediate fighting; David Sutton, 4th place intermediate fighting.

Also this weekend, two of McDonald's students — Gary Edens and William Joyner — were promoted to first degree black belt. They appeared before a board of 4 black belts, and, in a grueling 3-hour physical and mental examination, demonstrated their mastery of basic karate techniques, form, and fighting ability.

Ali Being Sued By Tony Perez

NEW YORK (AP) — Claiming Muhammad Ali has exposed him to "a sermon of hate throughout the world" and "public scorn and disgrace," referee Tony Perez has filed a $20 million suit against the world heavyweight champion.

Perez, who referred Ali's bout with Chuck Wepner in Cleveland March 24 and the second Ali-Joe Frazier fight in New York's Madison Square Garden Jan. 28, 1974, asked for $10 million in civil damages and $10 million in punitive damages.

In the suit filed in U.S. District Court here, the New York referee said Ali's remarks were made in his post-fight interview and in a subsequent television appearance.

Ali was in Florida and unavailable for comment.

According to the suit, after the fight Ali called Perez "a dirty dog" and cast aspersions on Perez's Puerto Rican heritage, saying: "He's not black and he's not white. He is more black than white, but he is trying to be white."

The referee said Ali repeated the remarks on ABC's Wide World of Sports March 29 and gave the impression that Perez was "dishonest and had committed a crime and was untrustworthy to discharge his duties as referee."

The suit referred to Ali's comments on the second round of the second Ali-Frazier fight.

Ali buckled Frazier's legs with a right to the jaw near the end of the second round but Perez, thinking he had heard the bell, stopped the bout with 15 seconds left in the round. Realizing there had been no bell, he motioned the fighters back into action, but time quickly ran out.

In his suit, Perez quotes Ali as telling the national TV audience: "I had Joe Frazier going and the whole world saw it and he stopped the fight and said, 'Go to your corners,' pre-

Once-Golden Valley Explains Land-Planning Need

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The once-golden Santa Clara Valley south of San Francisco is filled now with a maze of factories and suburbs. Its smog is a landmark for sailors off the California coast.

East of the Golden Gate, industrial Oakland wafts its polluted air across San Francisco Bay.

North of the city, the suburbs are marching up to the Napa Valley wine country.

And in Washington, politicians and lobbyists argue over the merits of proposals that the federal government set up a system to plan the nation's future growth.

Would land use legislation solve all the problems of a sprawling nation, redesigning late 20th century America into a workable community, with the gears of urban life, suburban development, agriculture and conservation all meshing together?

That is the long-range goal of land use planning, as envisioned by one of its leading advocates here, Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz.

But Bryan Patchen, a member of the National Association of Home Builders land use and development staff, insists that land use legislation guarantees no such future for the United States.

San Jose, Calif., in the heart of the Santa Clara Valley, would not necessarily look any different if land use legislation had been in effect before it underwent its terrific building boom, Patchen said.

"The irony is that the public is looking at land use legislation as a cure-all, but sprawl is planned for, by zoning, by subdivision regulations," he said.

Indeed, as the home builders' group defines its ideal land use legislation, each local jurisdiction would determine the use of the land within its borders, with the federal government setting broad policy and the states guaranteeing that local decisions are regionally coordinated.

Bills to involve the federal government in state and local land use planning have been introduced in Congress for several years, but none has been enacted.

Udall re-introduced land use planning legislation in the House on Feb. 20. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the issue's leading proponent in the Senate, re-introduced it there on March 6.

While critics of land use planning legislation say such planning should not be conducted on a level higher than that of any one community, the measure's supporters point to current problems to bolster their arguments that low-level jurisdictions have not done the job.

Suburban sprawl, congested freeways, overloaded sewer systems, and all the other symptoms of unplanned growth arose, they say, because no one with greater authority than the individual municipality stopped to take a broad overview of the expanding subdivision known as the 20th century United States.

"The fact that zoning is often delegated to the smallest unit of government precludes effective treatment of major large-scale land issues having regional or statewide impact," Lance Marston, director of the Interior Department's Office of Land Use and Water Resources Planning, said in a recent speech.

"Highways, housing, and recreation planners are all doing their things, but there isn't anything pulling these things together, looking at the regional consequences of large-scale development," said one Interior Department official.

The American Institute of Architects has taken a broad overview of the need for land use planning, calling for a revision in most governmental organizations dealing with development.

"We have seen the chaos that the process we work in has created," said Michael Barker, the organization's administrator for environment and design. "The local governments haven't distinguished themselves by their interest in the public at large rather than their own small constituency."

Nineteen states already have land use plans in effect, covering certain critical uses and areas, with seven states employing regulatory programs.

Just as Udall is motivated in his fight by a fear of an army of bulldozers marching across the nation's woods, fields, prairies and deserts, his critics fuel their arguments with predictions that the progress and development of the United States will be smothered under red tape if the federal government moves full speed ahead into land use planning.

"If there are local, county, state and federal regulations, by the time builders get to the federal level it's that much more red tape and that means time, and wasted time is wasted money," said Richard M. Gauch, the National Association of Home Builders' land use planning expert.

Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., agrees, insisting that federal land use planning would interfere in all segments of the economy.

"Utility companies are concerned because it would be more difficult to get a plant siting. Oil companies feel it would be harder to drill. Labor is concerned over a slowdown in construction," he said.

But Udall insists that only "a very small federal bureaucracy" would be needed.

"All the feds will do is pass out the money, to save billions of dollars we now use to subsidize sprawl," he said.

The federal government's involvement in land use planning is already widespread. Through Department of Housing and Urban Development flood insurance regulations, Environmental Protection Agency controls, and agriculture programs, to name a few, the federal government is constantly making decisions about how land can be used, and is constantly requiring the users of that land to seek federal approval.

"It would be better all around to have the decisions put into a national framework," said Dallas Miner of the Urban Land Institute. "This would ease for the builder-developer the maze of federal regulations. Perhaps a national land use approach would be the starting point for simplifying these problems. It may be step one in deciding some ground rules."

An Interior Department official, familiar with government policy relating to land use planning, agreed that a good bill could simplify a builder's red tape battle.

"Look at the builder trying to get eight permits," he said. "This could bring about a clearing house so he gets just one permit."

Sao Paulo, Brazil, is the most industrialized city in South America.

Accountants To Hear Professor

Harold O. Langenderfer, professor of accounting at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, will be the guest speaker at the April meeting Wednesday of the Eastern Carolina Chapter of the National Association of Accountants.

Langenderfer, who will speak on "Price Level Accounting," received his B.S. degree in business from Miami University; M.B.A. degree from Northwestern University; and D.B.A. degree from Indiana University.

The Eastern Carolina chapter said that all persons interested in discussion of accounting subjects and NAA are invited to attend the 6:30 p.m. meeting at the Candlewick Inn.

Gold Fever Not Affecting U.S.

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Americans still seem immune to gold fever.

In the 3½ months since bullion ownership became legal last Dec. 31, gold prices at both the retail level and on contracts for future delivery at major commodity exchanges have plunged about 18 per cent — from $200 an ounce on New Year's to around $164 an ounce Tuesday.

In the last two trading sessions, all four major exchanges where gold futures are traded have seen sharp price drops in unusually heavy volume.

The recent strength in the dollar and U.S. stock market and signs inflation is easing have contributed to the drop from the initial lack of gold enthusiasm, according to Chicago gold trader Larry Blum.

And gold analyst James E. Sinclair of the Wall Street firm of Vilas & Hickey says the recent ban on gold coin sales in Britain, and a misapprehension among traders that the French government would support gold prices above $170 an ounce — the level it revalued its gold stocks last January — also pushed gold prices lower.

But even with lower gold prices, a spot check of American banks and brokers shows only a slight pickup in buying interest in some cities, and even a waning of interest in others.

"Basically, gold sales started slow and have gotten slower," says Bob Renneisen of San Francisco's Crocker National Bank, whose retail price has gone from $200 an ounce in January to $177.63. "Now we're getting maybe six or seven transactions statewide a day,"

In New York, a Republic National Bank spokesman says, "Demand for gold hasn't been anywhere near what we expected." But he adds that "coin demand has been very nice."

Sinclair says Americans might be lured to gold if and when the price per ounce reaches the low $150's. And while other experts were unsure whether sales will eventually pick up, almost all foresaw further gold price drops.

How Tar Heel Congressmen Cast Votes

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes April 7, the end of the spring recess, through April 9.

House
SCIENCE—Passed, 212 for and 199 against, an amendment requiring the director of the National Science Foundation (NSF) to submit every 30 days to Congress a list of all proposed grants. During an additional 30 days, either chamber could disapprove of any of the proposals. The amendment was attached to a subsequently passed bill (HR 4723) authorizing fiscal 1976 funds for the NSF.

Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.), the sponsor, said the NSF should be held accountable for "spending projects which strike ordinary people as, at best, ridiculous." He cited past expenditures to study "...Polish bisexual frogs, ...the smell of perspiration given off by Australian aborigines, ...or, ...why people fall off of tricycles." One opponent, Rep. James Symington (D-Mo.), said the amendment unfairly singled out the NSF, and would burden Congress with reviewing as many as 16,000 grants a year. Rep. Robert Krueger (D-Tex.) called the amendment "anti-intellectual," adding: "I am confident that if most of us were to have read the subjects of the doctoral theses of people like Dr. Jonas Salk or of other distinguished scientists in this nation, we would have thought that they sounded narrow and perhaps foolish."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), David Henderson (D-3), Charles Rose (D-7), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. L. H. Fountain (D-2), Ike Andrews (D-4) and Richardson Preyer (D-6) voted "nay."

Reps. Stephen Neal (D-5) did not vote.

OLDER AMERICANS—Passed, 377 for an 19 against, a bill (HR 3922) extending until 1979 the Older Americans Act of 1965. The bill authorizes $2.6 billion to be distributed via grants to states. Most of the money would continue existing programs for the elderly, but 20 per cent of the outlay would fund the new Special Service Program, which would assist with home repairs, finance personal counseling, and provide better means of transportation, among other features.

HR 3922 was passed under a "suspension of the rules" parliamentary procedure which prevented floor amendment and limited debate to 40 minutes. The bill was sent to the Senate.

Supporters lauded the past success of the Older Americans Act and said the current recession makes its continuation even more desirable. Many of those voting against favored extending the act but objected to the short-cut parliamentary procedure. One opponent, Rep. Robert Michel (R-Ill.), said normal parliamentary procedures are imperative if the program is to be expanded at a time of national belt-tightening.

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

GENOCIDE—Adopted, 332 for and 55 against, a resolution (HJ Res 148) designating April 24, 1975 as "National Day of Remembrance of Man's Inhumanity to Man." More specifically, the resolution commemorates the 60th anniversary to the 1915 extermination by Turks of 1.5 million Armenians who had sought to create an independent Armenian nation. The resolution was sent to the Senate.

Supporters said the Armenian massacre, the first instance of systematic genocide in the 20th century, stands as a reminder of mankind's continuing failure to solve disagreements peacefully. Rep. Frank Annunzio (D-Ill.) said, "The Germans have made reparations to the Jews—the Turks have failed even to acknowledge their heinous crime against the Armenians." Opponents also deplored "man's inhumanity to man," but generally objected to the resolution's narrow ethnic focus. Rep. John Ashbrook (R-Ohio) said a "National Day in Remembrance of the Armenian Genocide" would more accurately describe the resolution. Some opponents said the measure might hinder ongoing negotiations over Cyprus.

Jones, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill, and Taylor voted "yea."

Fountain and Rose voted

"nay".

ENERGY—Rejected, 42 for and 47 against, an amendment to remove certain domestic oil reserves from their "old oil" classification and thus provide a price incentive to encourage production of an estimated 59 billion barrels of oil.

"Old oil" is that from wells which were in production before the 1973 Arab oil embargo. It has a price ceiling of $5.25 per barrel which the amendment sought to remove. Post-embargo oil—"new oil"—is not price-controlled and currently costs $11.80 per barrel.

The old oil reserves at issue here are those which floor debate indicated could be obtained only through secondary or tertiary extraction procedures, which cost more than normal procedures. By removing the $5.25 ceiling the amendment sought to provide the necessary price incentive. The amendment was proposed to the Standby Energy Authorities Act (S 622).

Sen. Bennett Johnston (D-La.), the sponsor, said that since the outset of the Arab embargo, Congress has "not taken any steps...that are designed to increase that production rather than decrease it."

One opponent, Sen. Harry Jackson (D-Wash.), said the amendment would unfairly benefit producers to the detriment of consumers and deal with "only one part of the pricing problem."

Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea." Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "nay."

ENERGY—Adopted, 46 for and 38 against, an amendment to raise the ceiling from $5.25 to $7.50 per barrel on domestic "old oil" which can only be extracted through more costly secondary and tertiary methods. This measure was attached to another amendment (above) which had been rejected but brought back for reconsideration. Its adoption signalled a compromise solution to the above dispute.

Morgan voted "yea." Helms voted "nay."

Offer Film On Ministry

"Ministry On An Escalator," a 28-minute documentary film on campus ministry, will be shown Thursday, at 8:00 p.m. in room 244 of the Mendenhall Student Center, East Carolina University.

An invitation to all interested persons to view the film has been extended by Presbyterian Campus Minister John N. Miller on behalf of the ECU Campus Ministers Association, sponsors of the film presentation.

Miller indicated the film deals with what a campus minister does, how his job is changing, what the university campus is like today, and why the church should be on campus.

Produced by United Methodist Communications in cooperation with United Ministries in Higher Education, the film shows 10 campus ministers representing five denominations at work on six campuses. It explores their personal feelings and attitudes as they represent Christ and his church on campus.

"Ministry On An Escalator", Miller concluded, will be helpful to all groups or persons concerned with campus ministry, and they will be welcome at the showing.

Ayden Board Has Hearing

AYDEN—The Ayden Board of Commissioners held a public hearing Monday night to discuss improvements on Mill and Juanita Streets.

The board passed resolutions confirming the assessment roll and levied the assessment.

Town Manager Don Russell was authorized to write the Greenville Utilities Commission and say the Town of Ayden will assume ownership of the sub-station feeder breakers in their area. The cost to the town of Ayden will be $7,500. Greenville Utilities will be paid in the next fiscal year's budget. Greenville Utilities had previously discussed with town officials the possibility of Ayden purchasing ownership of the breakers.

Board members voted to have a public hearing on May 12 to discuss improvements on Reaves Road, Princess Street, Stokes Street and Laurinburg Street. The cost and preparation of assessment roll was completed Monday night.

The board received an estimate of $1,800 for cost of lighting at two ball fields and one tennis court during the summer months.

The board discussed various ways of curtailing the cost of lighting and still utilizing the areas as planned for summer recreation.

The board members felt the Little League schedule would have to remain as planned but hoped the ball park where the church league games are played could be used with fewer lights. A committee of board members will meet with members of the church league to see what can be arranged.

It was agreed that the Ayden Police Department would be in charge of the lighting at the tennis court. It is hoped the lights will be turned off when no one is playing on the courts.

The board adopted the existing electrical rates through the month of June. Board members expressed hope that the case VEPCO has before the State Utilities Commission is resolved by then and the Town of Ayden will know which direction to take in charging for utilities.

An amendment to the electrical budget was made so that the town will have enough funds to purchase power for the remainder of this fiscal year. The budget was changed from $567,920 to $743,393.

The audit firm of Worsley, Farley and Prescott of Greenville will be employed to audit the town books at the end of the current fiscal year.

The board discussed the possibility of returning to metal license plates for the next year instead of purchasing windshield decals.

The town is using windshield decals for the first time this year but the League of Municipalities is talking about going back to the standard metal plates. If the League returns to metal plates, they are planning to have a five year town plate.

The board was advised to wait on a discussion about the town tags until the League decides what it will do.

It was pointed out that several local citizens had expressed a desire to return to the metal plates because the windshield decals are hard to see and that the metal plates are good for advertisement purposes.

Delinquent taxes will be advertised in local newspapers on May 8, 15, 22 and 29 and the date of the tax lien sale has been set as June 9 at 12 noon in front of the Ayden town hall.

The board mailed specifications for an electronic accounting machine on April 10 and bids will be opened on April 28 at 2 p.m. at the town hall.

$41 Million Cut In Education Pondered

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina House's Base Budget Committee believes it can cut $41 million from the next biennium's public school budget without damaging instructional standards.

Committee chairman William T. Watkins, D-Granville, said the plan does not eliminate positions for classroom teachers or expand class size.

The plan, worked out by a subcommittee, would delete $25 million from the 1975-76 budget and $16 million from the 1976-77 budget. The cuts from the budget include phasing out the experimental "Advancement School" in Winston-Salem and the summertime "governor's School" for gifted children.

Occupational education would be cut by $8 million, transportation by $3.7 million, psychologists by $400,000, and administrative costs in the Department of Public Instruction by $600,000.

The subcommittee also decided to charge teachers $25 for their certificates and to transfer $8.3 million from special literary and textbook funds to the operating budget.

Watkins said the Governor's School may continue to operate if the students are charged room and board.

All of the changes are subject to approval by the full committee and then by the House and Senate.

Says Satellites May End Wars

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Rocketry pioneer Dr. Werner von Braun says that using communications satellites to bring the bloodshed of war into living rooms will "increase the compassion of man" and hopefully prevent future wars.

"The whole world can witness what goes on somewhere else in very graphic terms," the scientist told a news conference Tuesday prior to a speech at the U.S. Naval Academy.

"For the first time, it has provided mankind with a nervous system," said Von Braun, a former deputy associate administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and now working in private industry.

Bowling Team's Weiner Roast

A weiner roast will be held at Elm Street Park Sunday by the Messer Chevrolet bowling team.

Special guests will be Floyd Messer of Farmville and his family, owner of the business which sponsored this first-place team in the Community Mixed League. Players include Luther Hedgepeth, Connie Hedgepeth, Sharon Pollard, Charlotte Deans, and J. R. Deans.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Scattered showers Friday and mainly in the east portion Saturday, becoming fair Sunday. Highs in the 80s Friday and Saturday, cooling Sunday but near 70 on the coast.

BIBLE STUDY

A Bible study will be held at the home of Mrs. Inetta Fleming, 1808 S. Greene St., Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

Action Due On Key Measures

RAMBLING IN THE HOUSE With
SAND D. BUNDY

Two major events this week. After three months of study and public hearings, the House Constitutional Amendments Committee voted to send House Bill 15 to the Floor of the House and it became a special order of business on April 15. I predict that there will not be a difference of three votes for passage or rejection in the House vote. Some predict that the Speaker might have to cast the deciding vote. The visit of Governor George Wallace to appear before a Senate Committee to ask that the Presidential Preferential Primary not be abolished. I predict that the Senate will vote not to do away with the Primary and that it will result in a move to strengthen it.

Now, let me report on the status of Utility Legislation. Electricity is one of today's necessities that has drastically increased in price, and I am concerned about this increase. We in the House are determined to take positive legislative action to insure that utility companies operate as efficiently as possible, including legislation providing that rate increases be granted only if fully justified.

The House Public Utilities

Committee has calmly and deliberately investigated various complaints about the high cost of electricity. It has considered a number of proposals. Action has been taken on some, others have yet to be considered.

House Bill 3 repealed an act of the 1973 General Assembly permitting public utilities to request rate increases based upon future test periods. It provides that the test period for determining utility rates will now be a past period from which data can be verified. This will permit the Utilities Commission to examine factual documentation in considering rate increase requests rather than force commission members to rely on projections and guess work.

The House approved a Joint Resolution asking the Federal Power Commission to reconsider the fuel adjustment clause affecting residential customers purchasing power from cities and rural cooperatives. Electricities and Rural Electric Cooperatives purchase power from major utilities for resale to their own customers. The North Carolina Utilities Commission directive to private power companies in February to reduce fuel adjustment charges to residential customers by 25 per cent did not affect consumers served by Electric-Cities and rural co-ops. Power costs from those outlets are not regulated by the State Utilities Commission.

House Bill No. 506 provides that the Utilities Commission

Issue Recall At DuPont

KINSTON—Du Pont here announced the call back of some 200 company employees who are currently on layoff status.

Joe La Motte, a company spokesman, said that the call back of the employees is the result of "modest improvement in the demand for some of our product lines."

La Motte pointed out that the employees will be coming back to work at Du Pont over a four months period, beginning on May 5.

"We still don't expect any steep market upswing," he commented, "and any further call back will depend on continued improvement in business."

In addition to those being recalled at this time, 57 employees returned to work Monday, which will leave just over 200 workers on laid-off status after May 5. Some 464 employees were laid off several months ago as demand for company product lines dropped during the economic crisis.

DRUG CONVICTION

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Keith T. Jones, 53, of Myrtle Beach, S.C., has been sentenced to 10 years on conviction of involvement in the smuggling of 900 pounds of marijuana from South Africa.

can require utilities requesting rate increases to file supporting data with the commission immediately. This will enable the commission to make more rapid decisions. The bill also provides that proposed rate increases by suspended if the utility does not produce information requested. House Bill No. 266 authorizes cities with existing power generating facilities to pool resources to construct, operate, and maintain joint generating facilities. The bill also provides that joint facilities may be financed by revenue bonds and the bonds paid off from power revenue.

The House has approved the concept of authorizing the Utilities Commission to hear major rate cases in a flexible manner: As groups of commissioners or as single commissioners.

Other measures being considered include funding for additional commission staff and personnel, expansion of commission size, and prohibition against rate increases without hearings and proof of need.

The House Public Utilities Committee will investigate energy conservation measures. Fellow House members and I have been concerned that there has been little emphasis upon real conservation measures.

We are also concerned that alternative sources of energy have not been sufficiently considered.

We know the escalating price of electricity has caused economic problems for home owners and power users, and we are exerting our best efforts to devise positive, workable solutions.

We are learning there are no easy answers.

It was nice to see groups from Farmville Central High School, Maury Junior High and Pace Academy observing the Legislature in session. See you next week.

RIBBON CUT—Mr. and Mrs. Eugene West (left) cut the ribbon at the grand opening of the new Sambo's Restaurant on East 10th St. Looking on are Mr. and Mrs. Keith Wells. Wells will be the restaurant manager. The chain of Restaurants began in the west coast area and has begun constructing on the east coast. (Reflector Staff Photo)

By DON KENDALL

AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has decided to remain on the job at the request of President Ford, possibly through the 1976 presidential election, according to sources in Congress and the administration.

According to the sources, Ford asked Butz earlier this month to remain in the Cabinet indefinitely. For more than a year there have been rumors that Butz soon would leave the post he has held since a 51-44 Senate confirmation vote Dec. 2, 1971.

Butz was said to have indicated to associates before Ford's request that he was seriously thinking of leaving his $60,000-a-year Cabinet office in late June. He will be 66 on July 3.

An aide said Tuesday that Butz now plans to remain as long as Ford wants him. The aide said that "pressure was put on him by the White House to stay a little longer" but he did not indicate how long that might be.

One source speculated that Ford wants Butz to remain partly to avoid any possible upheaval and controversy that might arise if a successor had to be named.

The source, asking not to be identified, said an extensive Senate confirmation hearing on a successor would "open the political door all the way" to allow the Democratic majority to criticize Ford administration farm policies on the eve of an election year.

Another source, however, said Ford's request for Butz to remain could be withdrawn abruptly if farm belt Republicans feel the outspoken secretary is a political liability to them.

Butz has been adamant in seeking less government control of agriculture and more reliance on free markets instead of federal subsidies for farmers. This has not gone over well with many farmers who have seen their prices decline and costs continue to rise.

Sisterhood Hadassah Held Kinston Meet

The Greenville-Kinston Sisterhood Hadassah met at the home of Ms. Sharon Kanter, Harvey Circle, Kinston, N.C. Geri Siegler, president, conducted the meeting.

Mrs. Chusched and Mrs. Sol Schechter reported on the regional board meeting which they attended in Newport News, Va. Dr. Daniel Ries, an orthopedic surgeon and doctor of traumatology, was one of the guest speakers at the regional meeting. He discussed the reconstructive surgery that was still needed by 54 of the children surviving the Arab terrorist attack on the school at Maalot, Israel. Twenty-two children died either during or shortly after the massacre, he stated.

Ms. Suretta Bronstein presented a travelogue, "Come With Us to Israel". The film strip showed lush greenery, dramatic landscapes, new construction, and ancient ruins. The most heart-rending scenes were of Yad Vashem, the memorial to those who perished in the Holocaust. Set into a black slate floor were plaques, one for each of the Nazi concentration camps. Mrs. Chusched, who had visited Yad Vashem, told about the photographs on the walls showing the skeleton-like bodies of the liberated inhabitants of the camps. She told, too, of the pictures of the naked and castrated children of these camps. The travelogue closed with an aerial view of the Old City of Jerusalem.

Advisor of the B'nai B'rith Youth Organization Ms. Joan Crane, announced that the luncheon and carnival held by the local teenagers was a great success.

Ms. Ulene Blok thanked members of Sisterhood Hadassah who contributed to the League of Women Voters' used book sale which was held at Pitt Plaza.

Recover Body Of N.C. Youth

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP)—The body of an 18-year-old North Carolina youth has been found amidst rocks off the Royal Palms State Beach here, officials say.

The youth, Clarence Bearden of Rockingham, N.C., was washed into the ocean by a four-foot wave Saturday, while sitting on a rock jutting out to the sea.

Authorities said several witnesses, including Bearden's uncle, with whom the youth was staying, tried to rescue him but they were unable to reach him.

Computer Flops Charlotte Test

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Traffic engineers report Charlotte's $1.4 million computer has failed its first test.

It is designed to eliminate red light and undue delays for downtown motorists. But it didn't.

It will take a week or two before it is made ready for further tests. The computer is designed to synchronize lights at 128 intersections in downtown Charlotte, and 47 more on roads leading into and out of the city.

Watergate Figures Comes To Life In Presentence Reports

By ED ROGERS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — When U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica sentenced four of Richard M. Nixon's closest aides in the Watergate conspiracy, he had access to confidential documents describing their lives in more intimate detail than perhaps their own families had ever known.

Prepared by specially trained federal probation officers, the presentence reports contain everything that can be learned about a convicted defendant—his schooling, credit rating, likes and dislikes, even how many cavities his dentist last found.

If the Watergate reports met the standards prescribed by the National Probation Service, they contained a "true, vivid living picture" of former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and former White House aides H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and Robert C. Mardian.

Sirica said he reviewed the documents before he sentenced them to prison terms ranging from 2 1/2 to eight years, but it was not known how thoroughly he read them or how much weight they carried in his final decision.

No federal judge is required to consult them, but many apparently do.

Unless the judge requests otherwise, each report includes a recommended sentence with an explanation. James Cates, chief probation officer for the District of Columbia, said judges generally follow the recommendations "probably higher than 75 per cent" of the time.

Knowing that, a defendant probably would prefer to overcome his desire for privacy and cooperate with his probation officer, whose report might help determine whether his sentence is strict or lenient.

Besides, Cates said, every claim uttered by a defendant is checked and doublechecked against voluminous records and interviews with family, friends and associates.

Everything is there—professional histories, personal finances, credit ratings, health records, emotional reactions and attitudes, hobbies, their own explanations of their problems and involvement in a crime.

No one outside the criminal justice system except judges and defense attorneys has ever been allowed to see a presentence report of the type prepared for each of the 50 Watergate defendants who have appeared in court. UPI was allowed to read the standard manual the probation service's 1,468 field officers use in preparing the reports.

If the manual's guidelines were followed in the Watergate case, a probation officer assigned to each defendant interviewed him closely, probably more than once, and also those who know him best.

The officer also had access to any past criminal records, credit bureau reports, bank records, employment files and any other documents shedding light on his private life.

Except for taking pains to select mature officers for the Watergate cases, Case said in an interview, each defendant was treated the same as any other, without favoritism or publicity.

A presentence report is "really a social history, whether it's about Haldeman or Joe Blow who's stolen a car," Cates said, and it is prepared in confidence because "we are always nose-to-nose with their lives."

The manual says the report's main purpose is to "focus light on the character and personality of the defendant, to offer insight into his problems and needs, to help understand the world in which he lives, to learn about his relationships with people and to discover those salient factors that underlie his specific offense and his conduct in general."

It emphasizes: "It is not the purpose of the report to demonstrate the guilt or innocence of the defendant."

More important than facts about a defendant's life is "how the defendant thinks, feels and reacts today," the manual says. "People in the report must come to life. Instead of giving an accumulation of cold facts the report should rather present a true, vivid, living picture of the defendant."

The manual contains lectures on objectivity and good writing, with no bureaucratic gobbledegook or scientific lingo is allowed.

If the defendant goes to prison, the presentence report goes with him. The U.S. Bureau of Prisons uses it to classify him, and it goes to the Parole Board when he is considered for parole. Whenever possible, the officer who made the report will follow the case to its finish.

More Veal On The Table

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seventy per cent more veal will be coming to market this year compared with 1974, but it's not likely to put veal scallopine on every table.

The American Meat Institute attributes the big increase to livestock producers who are marketing younger animals instead of placing them on high-priced feed. But production still is expected to reach only 59 million pounds, or 1.1 per cent of total red meat production in the United States, said Howard Madsen, director of economics and statistics for the institute.

Meat prices in general dropped 4.7 per cent in January this year, compared with 1974, the institute said, while the index for all food items increased 11.7 per cent for the same period.

Cuts that showed the greatest price drops were hamburger, down 16 per cent; beef liver, down 12.4 per cent and picnics (cured pork shoulder), down 11.7 per cent.

Despite inflation, Americans retained their meat-and-potatoes image. Per capita consumption in 1974 was 187.2 pounds, more than 11 pounds above that of 1973.

But the institute is forecasting a decrease of three and a half pounds in meat consumption this year, not because consumers are looking for cheaper sources of protein, but because total meat production is expected to be lower than last year's: 36.8 billion pounds for 1975, compared with 23 billion pounds in 1974.

HOUSEHOLD HEADS
STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Stanford University researchers say in 1972 about 13 million women maintained households of their own without husbands.

The women had a total of 10 million children under 18 and reported a median family income of less than $4,500. The unemployment rate for women in this group is twice that of men who are household heads.

The bidding:

South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Jack of ♥.

Looking at today's hand, it is easy to see that South's three no trump contract should be defeated. At the table, however, it required alert play on the part of the defenders to make sure that they got their tricks.

South's rebid of three no trump might not delight the purists, but it was a practical bid that offered an excellent chance of success. He had eight tricks in his own hand and partner had responded in his short suit. The alternatives of a jump rebid of two no trump or three clubs would have grossly understated South's playing strength, while a jump shift to three of a major on a skimpy three-card suit would have been as bad a distortion of South's distribution.

West led the jack of hearts, and it did not take a genius to realize that North's hand was of little practical value to South. Even if the hearts were evenly divided, declarer could not get to dummy to enjoy a diamond trick after forcing out the ace.

Declarer saw no point to holding up the ace of hearts, since he was vulnerable to a spade shift. He decided to bank everything on being able to steal a diamond trick before the defenders realized that he had a running club suit.

Therefore, declarer won the ace of hearts and immediately shot back the queen of diamonds. A careless West might have followed with the two, and East would almost certainly have held up the ace to shut out dummy's suit. But sitting West was Tom Smith, of Greenwich, Connecticut, one of the country's foremost players. He unhesitatingly dropped the nine of diamonds.

This cleared up the situation for his partner, Steve Altman, a brilliant young New Yorker. West would play the nine of diamonds from any of three holdings—a singleton, a doubleton, or four low cards. If West held either a singleton or doubleton, there was no point to holding up the ace, since South could not be prevented from establishing the diamond suit. And if West had four diamonds, declarer's queen was singleton and failure to take the ace would give him a trick he might not otherwise be able to win. So Altman won the ace and declarer had to be satisfied with the eight tricks he started out with.

Think Tank Looks For Philadelphia Solutions

By ROBERT GLASS
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A decade ago, the west Philadelphia area that separates the universities of Pennsylvania and Drexel was filled with decaying houses, marginal businesses and worn-out factories. Today it's the site of the University City Science Center, a multimillion-dollar think tank. In 1965 those 19 acres and the dying buildings were assessed at $2.6 million. Now, revitalized, they carry a $136.8 million tag. But modern high-rise buildings and dollars don't tell the whole story of this scientific, medical and psychological center in which 29 universities and hospitals are partners. Here, where some 50 science-connected firms also lease space, the 125 scientists and thinkers are seeking something out of the ordinary, the problem needle in the haystack. Dr. Randall M. Whaley, president of the center, says its job is to find real answers to gut problems. For instance: What makes some white people hate black people? How can we help women stricken with breast cancer? What's going to happen when all our energy resources dry up? An example of the kind of work the think tank is doing is a project, now in its second year, to help the U.S. Army cope with its race problems. The Army, in many ways far ahead of society at large in race relations, awarded the center a $53,000 contract to devise a training program aimed at white junior-grade officers. "The Army perceived the need for a new training program, not to replace anything but to add to what they had," says Dr. Dan Landis, head of the think tank's Center for Social Development. Landis and his staff, along with the staff of predominantly black Delaware State College, spent a year preparing a five-volume programmed training manual known as a culture assimilator. It is a collection of vignettes, based on actual experiences gleaned from interviews with 130 officers and 180 enlisted men, depicting the races in conflict. After each vignette, the reader is asked to choose one of four possible reasons why a conflict has arisen. If he chooses a wrong answer, the manual explains why it is wrong and instructs him to try again. The process is repeated until the reader chooses the correct response and is instructed to go on to the next vignette. The culture assimilator has been tested at four bases among black and white junior-grade officers, warrant officers, lieutenants and captains.

Because it was designed to teach whites about black culture, blacks were included in the pilot training sessions simply to validate the test questions, Landis says. He explains that if a significant number of blacks gave wrong answers to a particular question, it was assumed the question did not accurately portray black culture. However, analysis on responses given by white officers showed that at first they made a great number of mistakes, but toward the end of the four-hour sessions the number of errors had decreased significantly. The researchers believe the white officers had been taught something about black culture that they didn't know before. A decided drawback to the assimilator program, Landis admits, is that no attempt has been made yet to determine how long the test subjects retain what they learn. Furthermore, there is no clear way to measure how much good the training is doing. In the second year of the program, the center has drawn up blueprints for two more assimilators to propose to the Army. One is for white non-commissioned officers, and the other is a "reverse assimilator" aimed at black junior-grade officers.

Meal Planning For The Older Person

Remember the old adage "You are what you eat!" The basis of good health at any age is to eat a wide variety of foods so that each of the necessary vitamins, minerals and protein are included in the whole diet. The United States Department of Agriculture recommends that a well-balanced diet for the older person should include the following each day:

- 2 or more servings of milk and milk products: a serving constitutes 8 oz. of fluid milk, yogurt or 1 1/2 cups cottage cheese; 2" cube cheddar-type or 3 scoops of ice cream.
- 4 or more servings of fruits and vegetables: a serving equals 1/2 cup of any fruit or vegetable, (raw or cooked), or a normal portion such as one medium apple, banana, or potato. A serving of food rich in Vitamin C is essential.
- 2 or more servings of meat and meat alternates: one serving is 3 to 4 oz. of meat, fish or poultry; 2 eggs or 4 tablespoons of peanut butter. Nuts, dried peas or dried beans may be substituted for meat, fish, poultry or eggs.
- 4 or more servings of cereals, breads and pasta: one serving equals 3/4 cup oatmeal; 1 cup enriched cereal; 1 slice enriched bread or 3/4 cup enriched macaroni.

If you find the suggested portions of foods too ample for you, reduce the size of each serving. DO NOT ENTIRELY ELIMINATE ANY OF THE FOOD GROUPS.

It's here! The encyclopedia devoted to the things kids like most.

Getting a youngster to pull out an encyclopedia can be like pulling out teeth. So Funk & Wagnall's now brings you an encyclopedia made up of the kinds of things kids go for: things that creep, roam, hop, soar, hiss and slither. Funk & Wagnall's Wildlife Encyclopedia.

Inside 22 hard-cover volumes is a world of facts on the world of living creatures: birds, fish, insects, animals, reptiles. How they live, and where. What (or who) they eat. Plus more than 2,000 color illustrations.

The Encyclopedia is originally published in the United Kingdom and has been sold here as The International Wildlife Encyclopedia and Encyclopedia of Animal Life. Both sets sold for over $75.00 each.

Wattlebird (See Vol. 21)
Has bell-like call and wings of a bird, but prefers to travel by foot. Hunts forest floors for meals, bounding left and right like a ping-pong ball.

Horseshoe Bat (See Vol. 8)
Has bell-like call and wings of a bat, but follows his horseshoe-shaped nose to food by using his ears. (Guided by the echoes of his squeaks.)

Coral (See Vol. 5)
Tiny, marine carnivores with mouths, stomachs and tentacles. By multiplying, they form spectacular reefs, sometimes a thousand miles long.

True Frog (See Vol. 20)
Swings from branch to branch like a trapeze artist. Suction-cup toes keep him from falling off. His voice is more clank than croak.

Foxes (See Vol. 7)
Looks like a wildcat, smells like a skunk. Only two feet long, but has been known to attack oxen.

Most Missionaries In S. Vietnam Have Gone

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly all 200 American missionaries have left South Vietnam in the face of the uncertain situation, according to reports received here.

At least seven are missing in areas newly seized by the Vietcong.

Two other Americans remained intentionally in captured regions to try to continue their work, and a few missionary doctors and a few relief workers are staying in the Saigon area as long as possible.

But most American missionary personnel have pulled out.

"They had to be evacuated in case the onrush of the northern forces take over Saigon as they've taken over everything else," said the Rev. Louis L. King of Nyack, N.Y., in charge of overseas personnel of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, the largest mission group in the area.

The Rev. Mr. King added: "There also is a strong possibility of intense anti-Americanism breaking out at any time. If this sentiment grows, our people ought not to be there."

The exodus of missionaries, teachers, nurses, pastors, technicians and others has been going on for the past two weeks.

However, about a dozen Americans of Catholic Relief Services and a reduced U.S. crew of Church World Service, working through the inter-Protestant Vietnam Christian Service, still are on duty there.

So were key personnel of a Seventh-day Adventist hospital in Saigon, including six American doctors.

Seven missionaries are missing in areas overrun by the Vietcong, including John Miller, of Allentown, Pa., and his wife, Carolyn, of Houghton, N.Y., who worked for the Wycliffe Bible Translators.

The other missing five, all of them Christian and Missionary Alliance personnel, are Richard and Lillian Phillips, of Bloomington, Minn.; Mrs. Archie Mitchell, of Bly, Ore., and Mr.

and Mrs. Norman Johnson, of Hamilton, Ont.

Two missionaries have voluntarily remained at posts in Vietcong seized territory, including a Menonite worker, Earl Martin, of New Holland, Pa., who stayed in Quang Ngai, and Dr. Thomas R. Hoskins, a Morristown, N.J., Quaker, who was helping set up a clinic at Da Nang, now in the North's hands.

The butcher-apron look is coming on strong in dresses.

Residents Make Avenue Of Flags

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Indian Hills, a Kansas City suburb, claims to be the first community in the nation to celebrate the upcoming bicentennial by turning its entire residential area into an avenue of flags.

It's a part of "Operation Patriotism," a cooperative project of the area's Homeowners Association and the Boy Scouts of America.

Ernest Hueter, a Kansas City businessman and scout executive, said each of the 425 homeowners in the area has been given a free flag kit and is displaying Old Glory on all recognized state and national holidays.

KOOL-AID: IT'S SMARTER THAN YOU THINK.

An Authority On The Art Of Origami

By MICHAEL R. FRANCO
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — John Montroll estimates he's spent nearly 11,000 hours folding paper during the past 15 years. The practice has paid off.

The 21-year-old University of Rochester senior is now considered a world authority on the obscure oriental art of origami.

In origami, a single piece of special rice paper is folded to create figures or forms. Montroll was introduced to the art at age six.

"We have a large family and my mother brought home a book on simple origami folds for all the kids," he says. "I took to it more seriously than the others, though."

Montroll mastered the basic origami techniques and began experimenting with new folds.
At 15, attending an origami convention in New York City, he astounded fellow artists with his complicated, realistic animal figures.

"Origami models have traditionally been either very simple or very abstract," he says.
"Some people cheated by using more than one piece of paper or by cutting the paper to conform to a certain shape they wanted to get."

But Montroll was determined to use traditional origami paper for realistic portrayals of objects. Soon he was producing amazingly lifelike animal figures.

"I try to make them as realistic as possible by modeling them from photos," he said.

Montroll, a mathematics major at UR, reluctantly admits he's one of only a handful of origami "masters" in the world. "There are only about five or 10 of us who've gone beyond the basic origami folds to the creative techniques."

Most of those, he said, use only about 20 folds to form their models while some of his most complex pieces, insects for instance, involve as many as 500 folds.

His bedroom is a menagerie of thousands of paper animals, stuffed into corners, bureau drawers and boxes. Montroll has developed more than 500 different models and is continually attempting to improve each one.

The soft-spoken artist says he's practiced origami folds
"an average of two hours a day" since being introduced to
it. He even stumbles across new origami folds in his dreams, he adds.

Montroll says his mathematics aptitude is useful but not essential in conceptualizing the complex system of folds involved in his models. "Good, hard practice is more important than math principles when it comes to origami."

Montroll is completing a book on advanced origami techniques. He says the art has grown in popularity throughout the country in recent years.

His internationally exhibited works give origami novices a lofty goal toward which to work.

Drought Hurts Kenyan Farms

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Agriculture in Kenya had a poor year in 1974, mainly due to drought and the higher prices of farm machinery, according to a government report released here.

Coffee production rose marginally from 71,200 tons in 1973 to 72,800 tons. Tea production declined from 56,600 to 50,100 tons. Sisal recorded the biggest increase, from 58,100 tons in 1973 to 75,000 tons last year.
Cotton dropped from 16,200 to 14,500 tons and rice fell from 36,100 tons to 34,700 tons. Wheat production went up from 124,600 tons to 136,200 tons and sugarcane output rose from 1.5 million tons to 1.75 million tons.

Ill Effects From Long Isolation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Geologist Michel Siffre, spent half of 1972 buried alone in Midnight Cave, near Del Rio, Texas, in order to study the effects of prolonged isolation from the rhythm of the earth's days and nights. Now he says his health was impaired during his ordeal and the ill effects continue.

"I am convinced that final results of this experiment will reveal serious problems confronting future long-range space travelers," Mr. Siffre reports in the March National Geographic.
