

U.S. Speeding Up Saigon Evacuation

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
President Ford told Republican congressional leaders today the evacuation of Americans from Saigon is being speeded and the number remaining in the South Vietnamese capital will be down to 1,500 by nightfall.

As recently as a week ago, some 5,000 Americans were reported in the Saigon area.
Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J.,

one of the GOP leaders who spent nearly two hours conferring with Ford and Secretary of State Henry A.
Kissinger, told reporters:
"We have succeeded in stimulating the evacuation process."

Case described the 1,500 as the minimum number needed to carry out the responsibilities of the U.S. mission in Saigon.

Asked if Ford and the leadership had discussed the President's hope to also evacuate tens of thousands of South Vietnamese whose lives might be endangered by a Communist takeover, Case said there was agreement this "could be done only as part of a general agreement" that would involve North Vietnam.

The House Armed Services committee voted 21 to 17
today to table Ford's proposal for $722 million in emergency aid to South Vietnam. Tabling in Congress normally kills a measure, but
Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-
Miss., who made the motion, had said before the session he simply wanted to delay action on the proposal.

Without a cease-fire or the approval for the evacuation
by both North and South Vietnamese, it could take "a sizeable U.S. military commitment" to evacuate
"those South Vietnamese that we feel a special obligation to," Ford said in an interview Monday night on the CBS radio and television networks.

Many congressmen have said they fear such a step could lead to U.S. rein-volvement in the Vietnam war. A $200-million package of evacuation and humanitarian aid funds before the Senate today would restrict U.S. authority to withdraw Vietnamese.

A parallel measure approved by the House International Relations Committee, however, would give Ford the broader authority he seeks.

In addition, the House Appropriations Committee became the first congressional panel to heed Ford's plea for more arms aid when it voted Monday for $165 million in arms and a like amount for humanitarian aid.

The vote came after Army
Chief of Staff Frederick C.
Weyand told the panel that South Vietnam is no longer militarily defensible but that the aid could prevent an abrupt Communist takeover.

LITTLE OPPOSITION
WASHINGTON (AP)—Little Senate opposition has developed to the nomination of former Wyoming Gov. Stanley K.
Hathaway as Interior secretary despite criticism of his environmental views.

aboard the Air Force C141 were defense department attaches, American dependents, Vietnamese nationals and several military

Small Increase In Consumer Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of living last month registered its smallest increase in nearly two years mainly because of declines in food prices,
the government said today.

Consumer prices were reported up three-tenths of a per cent in March, half the increases in both January and February as the nation's inflation rate continued a declining trend which began last fall.

Food prices dropped for the first time in eight months with beef, eggs and sugar leading the way, the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index

said. Prices rose for many nonfood items and services but at a slower rate than in previous months.

The March increase in retail prices was the smallest since a two-tenths of a per cent increase in July 1973, when wage-price controls were in effect.

Wholesale prices have fallen for four consecutive months, and thus the slowdown at the retail level had been anticipated.

The turnaround in the nation's inflationary rate from last year's peak levels provided further evidence of the recession's impact on the economy. Over the past three months, retail prices were reported rising at a seasonally adjusted rate of 6.6 per cent compared with a 10.1 per cent rate in the previous three-month period and a 14.2 per cent rate in the quarter ended last September.

The Ford administration has forecast an inflation rate of about 6 or 7 per cent this year, or about half the 12.2 per cent increase recorded in all of 1974.

Oppose Rules Change

RALEIGH (AP)—Republican
Gov. Jim Holshouser and Democratic members of the Council of State are opposed to several provisions of the proposed rewrite of North Carolina's Executive Budget Act.

The opposition was voiced Monday as Holshouser and the Council of State met with six members of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee which is considering the legislation.

No final decisions were reached. The group agreed to meet again in about a week.
Newsmen were allowed to sit in on the discussion.

The legislation, if enacted, would make the first substantial revision in 50 years in the Executive Budget Act.

Holshouser said, "I think it is not going to let us have a modern state government." The Council of State members—statewide elected officials—objected to proposals that would:
(1) limit the authority of department heads to transfer the use of some funds, and (2) shift responsibility over contingency and emergency funds from the Council of State to the Advisory Budget Commission.

Holshouser wondered about the provision that would allow the budget commission to elect its own chairman rather than have the governor preside as director of the budget. He also questioned the restrictions on the transfer of funds and on an administrator's ability to reclassify positions.

Launch New Effort For State ERA Referendum

RALEIGH (AP) — Another attempt has begun in the legislature to have a statewide referendum on the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S.
Constitution.

Rep. Ralph Prestwood, D-Caldwell, an ERA opponent, prefiled a bill in the House Monday night that would set up a referendum on the issue in the 1976 primary election. Defeated earlier this session was a bill sponsored by Prestwood that would have had such a referendum in the 1976 general election.

The referendum would simply gauge the public's attitude toward the controversial ERA, but the referendum's results wouldn't be binding on the General Assembly. Constitutional amendments must be ratified by the legislature.

Rep. Herbert Hyde, D-Buncombe, an ERA supporter, said last week that such a referendum would only cause confusion in the primary. He said candidates for all offices would be forced by voters to take a stand on the ERA.

Last week, the House defeated by a five-vote margin a bill calling for North Carolina ratification of the ERA.

In other legislative action Monday night, the House gave tentative approval to a Senatepassed bill that would expand the definition of receiving stolen goods. The bill would allow conviction of a person who had "reasonable grounds" to believe that an item he was buying had been stolen. State law now requires proof that the buyer knew the goods were stolen.

Supporters said the bill would give the state a stronger hand in efforts to crack down on people who regularly buy stolen merchandise from thieves.

Also given tentative approval Monday night was a bill that would allow minimum security prisoners to be put to work cleaning up state highways.
The prisoners would be paid $1 a day.

Backers of the bill said it had support from the transportation and corrections departments.
They said it would help solve the idleness probe problem in the prisons as well as help control roadside litter.

Pitt County Represented At Highway Meet; Study Asked

RALEIGH—Representatives from Pitt County attended a hearing in Raleigh yesterday to request that the North Carolina Department of Transportation conduct a study for a corridor or corridors to serve Eastern North Carolina from U.S. 301 to U.S. 17 and that U.S. 264 be four-laned from Raleigh through Wilson, Farmville and Greenville and tie-in with U.S. 17 at Washington.
Local representatives attending the meeting included:
Sam D. Bundy, State
Representative; Bruce
Strickland, chairman of the Pitt County Commissioners; W.W.

Speight, county attorney; H.R.
Gray, county manager; Tom Taft, attorney on behalf of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association; Jack Lewis and
A.D. McArthur of Monk Tobacco Company, Farmville.

The resolutions were presented to hearing commissioner James Garrison at a hearing concerning the North Carolina Highways
Improvement Program.
Speight said the local representatives did not endorse a single corridor concept but requested that U.S. 264 be improved to a four lane facility from Raleigh through Wilson to Farmville and Greenville and tie in with U.S. 17 in Washington.

Speight said the thoroughfare is needed for the flow of tobacco processed for export from the heart of the tobacco growing and selling area to the port at Morehead City. The need for improvement to U.S. 264 for the industrial development in Pitt County was also emphasized.

Other needs listed for a better highway facility included community interest with other areas, the new Pitt County hospital, the proposed AHEC

Center and the new medical school at East Carolina University.

"When the feasibility study is undertaken, further documentation for the needs of improvement of U.S. 264 will be presented to the Department of Transportation, along with the results of studies emphasizing the need for a better highway program east of Raleigh," Speight said.

Hearings have been held in several Eastern North Carolina towns which have requested that a corridor study be made by the Department of Transportation.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.
Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.
Transcribing is done once a day.

STOPLIGHT WHEN?
When will there be a stoplight at Third and Reade Streets? We need one. C. D.

One is ordered for this intersection and should be here within the next 60 days, Traffic Engineer Ron Sewall said. A master unit for lights for every intersection on Reade and First streets should be in with the next shipment, he said. Eventually every intersection downtown will have a traffic light and be controlled by a master unit that will have them programmed to change in conjunction with one another. This must wait till all street construction and improvement in the CBD plan is completed, however.

PWP HERE?
Is there a Parents Without Partners Chapter in this area? My daughter and I have recently moved here and I've found that Greenville is rather like Noah's Ark—Everyone goes two by two. I would enjoy the fellowship of men and women with situations similar to mine and think we could help one another with many of the problems each of us now faces alone. L. D.

When you inquired, Hotline knew of no Parents Without Partners Chapter here. So we got the address from Sheppard Library and requested information from PWP, Inc., 7910 Woodmont Avenue, Washington, D. C. 20014. They sent us a wealth of material about the organization and its services.

Since then we have heard there is to be an organization meeting here Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. at the Methodist Student Center, 501 E. Fifth Street, Greenville. One may call 758-2030 for further information. We are sending you a copy of each pamphlet and information sheet we received and will be glad to pass along the balance of the information to whoever is organizing this chapter, which we believe will be of tremendous benefit to many, many parents and children in this area.

Here To Learn About Urban Renewal

VISITORS . . . Joe Laney (R-Center), executive director of the Redevelopment Commission, discussed the city's downtown urban renewal program with three members of a 12-man delegation from Laurinburg who visited Greenville on Monday to view the city's overall urban renewal program. Talking with Laney are (L-R)

Pete Vanderberg, Laurinburg city manager; Mayor Charles Barrett; and Clint Willis, chairman of the Downtown Development Commission. The visit was arranged by Harold Creech, manager of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association.

Ford In Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here, at a glance, are highlights of President Ford's interview broadcast Monday night on CBS television and radio:

VIETNAM
The United States is exploring with a number of governments the possibility of negotiating a settlement to the war.

Ford said "there was no pressure from here" on South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu to resign.

NIXON
Former President Nixon called Ford last week after his state of the world message to Congress and they had a "rather short and friendly conversation."

Asked if he would ask Nixon to campaign for him in 1976, Ford said he would stand on his own in the election.

ROCKEFELLER
Ford said he could see no reason for dropping Vice President Rockefeller as his running mate.

CIA
Ford rejected a suggestion that the intelligence agency be forbidden to engage in covert activities beyond intelligence gathering.

ECONOMY
Ford said of the acute economic situation of today, "I don't think (it) will be nearly so bad in the months ahead."

KISSINGER
He called the secretary of state "an outstanding individual" and said no one on his staff has suggested Kissinger be replaced and, in any event, he would reject any such suggestion.

MIDDLE EAST
He called an oil embargo "inevitable" if war should break out again in the Middle East.

Friends Hold Fish Fry For Falkland Neighbors

FALKLAND—The Ralph Stokes and the Pete and Jamie Norville families are fishing folks and they're friendly folks. Last night and two previous times this year, big catches of herring have resulted in many of their friends and neighbor's enjoying fish fries at Ralph Stokes Store in Falkland. "Pete, why don't you and Jamie get us some fish this weekend," Stokes asked his son-in-law last week, "so we can have one more fry before the season is over. "And, boys, if you don't catch any, just buy some while you're down at Jamesville. I want to have folks in Monday night." Saturday found Pete, a wholesale meat salesman and a Falkland resident, and Jamie, his son, on the Roanoke River. They netted about 500 herring. Sunday morning everyone at the Falkland Presbyterian Church was invited to the Monday evening fish fry. So were many other acquaintances of the Stokes and the Norvilles, most, but not all from the Falkland area. Monday, as in times past, several fryers were set up behind the store and Pete, Jamie, Bob Drew, and Leroy Carraway started cooking fish and hushpuppies shortly before 6 p.m. Pearl, Ralph's wife; Margaret, Pete's wife, and Marie, Jamie's wife, had dishes of slaw ready.

Russell said that officers arrested Richard Lynn Stone of 1010 Forbes Street around 2:50 p.m. and charged him with two counts of possession of hashish and two counts of possession of LSD. Capt. Russell said that bond for each of the hashish charges was set at $2,500 while a $5,000 bond was set for each LSD possession count. The captain said that a quantity of LSD and hashish was confiscated. A hearing has been scheduled in District Court here for May 5.

'Discussed' Assassination Plan

By DAVID C. MARTIN Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — High-level intelligence officials in the Kennedy administration discussed plans to assassinate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, according to a former CIA official. Richard Bissell, who directed the agency's covert foreign operations from 1959 to 1962, said Monday that he told the Rockefeller Commission investigating the CIA that the assassination of Castro "was considered... but it wasn't carried out." According to Bissell, the scheme was rejected by then-CIA director Allen W. Dulles.

Bissell spoke to a reporter after testifying before the commission.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, head of the eight-member panel investigating allegations of CIA domestic wrong doing, declined to confirm Bissell's testimony.

Instead, the vice president repeated earlier statements that the commission would investigate alleged assassination plots only if they violated domestic statutes.

As Bissell recounted it, his testimony appeared to support statements made by a variety of persons about CIA plots against Castro.

Most recently, convicted Watergate burglar Frank Sturgis said in an interview with the New York Daily News that he was part of a CIA plot to assassinate Castro in 1960. Sturgis said the attempt was never made because officials in Washington "couldn't make up their minds."

Bissell, who resigned as deputy CIA director for plans following the Bay of Pigs, said he did not know whether President Kennedy was aware of the CIA discussions about killing Castro.

Informed sources say that the Rockefeller commission is investigating whether the CIA withheld information from the Warren Commission during the assassination of President Kennedy. Reports have suggested that the CIA may have resisted furnishing information to the Warren commission in an effort to cover-up CIA involvement in plots on Castro's life.

In the latest of its series of Sturgis' revelations about the CIA, the Daily News reported today that renowned ballerina Margot Fonteyn was arrested by South American authorities, and she and her husband were investigated by the CIA in 1959 in connection with a bizarre plan to invade Panama.

Movie stars John Wayne and the late Errol Flynn also were mentioned and investigated in the alleged plot but they were found not linked to it.

Sturgis told the News the Panama invasion plot was dreamed up by William Morgan, an Ohio-born adventurer who became a major in Castro's army.

The conspirators planned to overthrow the Panamanian government and grab the canal, after blocking it with a sunken ship, "for propaganda and extortion reasons," it was said.

Aiding in the scheme were Dame Margot and her husband, Roberto Arias, former Panamanian ambassador to Britain and the son of a former president of Panama, the story said. The couple was assigned to bury arms and munitions on a beach, so they would be available to the plotters, according to the News.

Three Injured In Accidents

Three persons were reported injured and an estimated $1,000 in damages occurred in traffic mishaps investigated Monday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported that Randy Troy Riddle of 202 S. Elm Street was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries suffered when the motorcycle he was riding was involved in a collision with a vehicle driven by Mitchell Kyle Barnes of 311 Scottish Court. Police said that the 8:50 a.m. accident occurred on Elm Street at Brookgreen Avenue.

Barnes was charged by investigating officers with a safe movement violation and damage was estimated at $200 to his vehicle and $50 to the motorcycle.

William Barney Burress of Box 67, Saratoga, and a passenger in the car he was operating were reported injured in a 11:52 a.m. mishap at the W. Sixth Street-Memorial Drive intersection.

Officers said the mishap involved cars driven by Burress and James Tucker Smith of Rt. 6, Box 66-A, Greenville.

No charges were preferred and damage to the Burress vehicle was set at $5.

Stanley Madison Southern of 314-A, Scott Dorm, was charged with a safe movement violation following investigation of a 1:45 p.m. wreck at the intersection of E. Tenth Street and Greenville Boulevard.

Officers said the wreck involved cars driven by Southern and James R. Bell of Rt. 4, Clinton.

Damage was estimated at $500 to the Bell vehicle and $250 to the Southern car. No injuries were reported.

Bird Hordes Cost Trees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two million squawking birds that roosted in a pine forest in Graceham, Md., are apparently gone for good. And so is a good part of the forest.

The uninvited birds took over the forest in February and March of 1974. But when 60,000 returned to the pine grove this winter, they found what remained of the roost so unattractive that they left after a day or so, the Smithsonian Institution's Center for Short-Lived Phenomena reported today.

Following last year's invasion by migratory hordes of starlings, grackles, redwing blackbirds and cowbirds, officials of the Maryland Forestry Department removed 30 to 40 per cent of the pines in an effort to make the roost undesirable.

Every third row of trees was removed and selected trees in other rows were destroyed.

Wins Mother Of The Year Award Promoters Board Sues

Mrs. Mary Spell, 50, of Winterville, was the winner of the annual Mother of the Year contest sponsored by the Pitt County Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Greenville, with 16 contestants—representing various churches and organizations from throughout the county—participating.

Mrs. Spell represented Phillippi Church of Christ in Greenville, in the competition.

Garrett said the winner was selected on the basis of the amount of money raised for the NAACP's Freedom Fund. He noted that the state winner will be selected in like manner—on the basis of Freedom Fund donations.

Chairman of the Mother of the Year competition was Mrs. Ella Little. Special music for the program was presented by Johnny Wooten and the Voices of Zion singers of York Memorial AME Zion Church.

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Stan Kaplan says he "will fight as long as there are courts" a $35,000 damage suit against him and other promoters of a rock concert.

The suit by trustees of Cabarrus Memorial Hospital seeks actual damages of $9,988 and punitive damages of $25,000 in connection with last summer's August Jam. The concert drew an estimated 200,000 young people to the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

The suit claims the promoters caused a public nuisance. The director of the hospital, Robert L. Wall, said the hospital treated 137 persons from the festival, and most of them did not pay their bills. He said about 60 of the patients were diagnosed as victims of drug overdoses.

The suit was filed Friday in Cabarrus Superior Court. The motor speedway is in Cabarrus County.

Kaplan is the owner of radio station WAYS in Charlotte.

MRS. MARY SPELL

Pitt NAACP president D.D. Garrett said Mrs. Spell—the mother of one son—will represent the county in the state Mother of the Year contest scheduled for November 11 at Memorial Auditorium in Raleigh.

The Pitt contest was held Sunday night at Mt. Calvary Free Will Baptist Church in

Hubby Has One Ring Too Many

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it is all right for a supposedly happily married man to accept (and wear) a ring given to him by an unmarried coworker?
Well, that is what my husband is doing, and it is causing a lot of trouble between us. To me, a ring is no ordinary gift. It has much more meaning.
Do you think she is trying to tell him something? If she wanted to show her appreciation for favors rendered (like fixing a flat tire), wouldn't a necktie or a wallet have been more appropriate?
When I saw that ring on my husband's little finger, right next to his wedding band, I was deeply hurt. We have been married for 24 years and need your help to settle this disagreement.

RING TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: Your husband's coworker had no business giving him such a personal, symbolic gift. And he was equally culpable for having accepted it. I think your man is wearing one ring too many.

DEAR ABBY: I'll bet a lot of people got a good laugh out of reading about the 37-year-old mama who went to stay at her daughter's home while daughter was having a baby, and ended up falling in love (and into bed) with her son-in-law. In fact, I'm sure some people thought it was a phony letter. I didn't laugh, and I didn't think it was phony because that is exactly what happened to me! Fourteen years ago, my own mother came to stay at my home while I went to the hospital to have my second baby. Yes, my husband and my mother "fell in love," and mom left my father and two other children to trek across the country with her "true love"—my husband!
I divorced my husband and have since remarried. My brother and sister are now grown with families of their own. We have never forgiven our mother for what she did. She no longer writes or calls any of us because she knows that we want nothing to do with her. She chose her path, and now she must walk on it.

STRANGE COINCIDENCE

DEAR STRANGE: The coincidence is even stranger than you think. Others wrote to say that when mama was sent for to keep the home fires burning, the marriage went up in smoke.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please state what you think is a decent amount of time to mourn the loss of one's deceased mate?
I was 100 per cent loyal and stayed by my husband during a long and terrible illness. He's been dead for six months, and I am terribly lonely.
I am 44, well-educated and know a very attractive, professional man in his middle 50's who has been a widower for a number of years. He has asked me out, and, frankly, I'd like to date him, but my friends say it's too soon—it would be disrespectful to my late husband. What do you think?

WONDERING WIDOW

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I wish to heavens Emily Post would spell out what "come casual" to a party means.
Casual in my dictionary reads, "A thing that is accidental. Not planned or sought."
When I go to a party casual, that's exactly what I am... an unplanned, unsought accident.
My husband's idea of "casual" is going to bed without a necktie. If he would back me up in whatever style I chose, it wouldn't be so bad. But it never fails. We never match. I emerge from the closet where I am dressing and look at him for the first time.
"What are you doing?" I shout. "You look like the groom on top of a wedding cake."
"What are you supposed to be?" he grimaces. "Hansel or Gretel?"
"Look," I said. "The hostess made a big point of telling me to 'Come super casual.'"
"That doesn't mean wearing a gym suit with a whistle around your neck."
"This is not a gym suit. Why don't you at least take off your tie."
"I'll take off my tie if you wear a skirt."
"I got it. You change to a sport shirt and I'll put on slacks."
"I've got a better idea. You wear a dress and I'll wear a sport coat."
I retire to the closet again and come out a few minutes later in a sleeveless basic black and heels. In the meantime, he has changed to a pair of baggy pants and a sweatshirt.
"She said 'casual,' not destitute," I said.
"Then why are you dressed up like a dining room hostess? I am going back and change."
After several trips to the closet, I finally decide on my original outfit and he goes back to his original selection.
At the party it becomes obvious that no one knew what "casual" meant. All of the women are formally attired as are all the men.

As I pass by a group, I hear my dapper husband explain, "I just picked Erma up at the gym and she didn't have time to change."

Boy, is he going to get a "casual" punch in the mouth on the way home.

Their Concern Understandable

Public university students in North Carolina are upset over the proposed tuition increase which would hike their cost of attending college considerably next year.

Mass rallies are planned today on all 16 campuses of the university system to make student feelings known on the increases which have been proposed in the Legislature.

If the increases stand, in-state students will be paying $200 more in tuition costs next year and out-of-state students will see their tuition raised by $300 annually.

We can readily sympathize with the students in their feelings over this new additional cost of attending state universities which looms in their future.

Like everyone else, students have seen costs rising as food, lodging and other necessities have gone up at an alarming rate.

Now a whopping rise in tuition could mean that some students who are helping pay their own way through school will be forced out of the universities. If the unemployment rate continues as it is in North Carolina, the last thing we need is those young people looking for jobs without completing their college degrees.

The tuition increase could also prove counter-productive to North Carolina. For, if we increase tuition, only to lose hundreds, or even thousands of students, then we could wind up with less total income from tuitions than we have now—and that with the young people who would be attending college out searching in an already tight job market.

In an interview with John Kilgo, whose column appears in The Daily Reflector, Sen. Livingstone Stallings stressed that the tuition increase is "tentative." His Senate Appropriations Subcommittee has recommended it, but Sen. Stallings hopes some other way can be found.

We recognize the Legislature's problems with the budget this year but we, too hope some way can be found to avoid this major increase in tuition. If the increase stands, some deserving young people are going to miss a college education, and we can ill afford to waste bright minds because of cost.

Fowler Case Typical

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chain of events that brought Jesse Thurman Fowler to the attention of the U.S. Supreme Court began in Raleigh, N.C., at a crap game on a sultry Sunday morning in July 1973.

Fowler got into an argument with a friend, John Griffin, about a $10 bill that Griffin tried to take from one of Fowler's friends. The quarrel continued that afternoon in a bar, where Griffin broke Fowler's nose. It ended two hours later on the streets of a public housing project, where Fowler shot Griffin in the stomach and killed him.

Three months later, a jury of four blacks and eight whites found him guilty of first-degree murder. He was sentenced to die. Fowler's lawyers argued before the Supreme Court Monday that the death sentence is unconstitutional on the grounds that it is cruel and unusual punishment.

The sentence put Fowler on the maximum security wing of Raleigh's 100-year-old Central Prison, there to wait with some 70 others under the death sentence until the legal process decides their fate. Across the country, some 261 men and women are in similar situations, according to Fowler's attorneys.

Most lawyers familiar with the case think Fowler's appeal was selected for review because it presents no peripheral issues — only life or death. But had the court searched for a "typical" condemned inmate, it might well have come up with Fowler.

Like most of the condemned inmates, he is young — 27 years old — black, and male. He was born poor and he dropped out of high school. He said recently that the best job he ever had was his last, driving a truck for a furniture store. He is the father of three children. He had previously spent a year in prison on an assault charge.

Fowler said last week that he was not even aware that North Carolina had a death penalty until he became subject to it. The state has not executed anyone since 1961.

Watkins Chose Hot Seat

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The philosophy behind the early and heavy axe which has fallen on the budget for public schools in North Carolina is quite simple:

Education is a statewide and largely popular program, and if the General Assembly can get away with chopping into that budget, no other agency has a leg to stand on when cutting time comes around.

The school budget cutting is being done right at the start by the Base Budget Committee of the House of Representatives, chaired by State Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville.

Watkins now confesses that he personally assigned himself to chair the subcommittee probing public schools. "If anybody had to sit in that hot seat, then it wasn't fair to ask somebody else."

A hot seat it has been. Looking at current operating expenses for public education, Watkins and his committee concluded that $25 million needed to be taken out the first fiscal year; $17.5 million the second year of the coming biennium.

Cutting Job

Overall, state agencies

must be cut $50 million in current spending in the first year of the two-year budgetary period; and one half (about $70 million) cut out of capital building spending requests before a bare minimum $65 million could be considered for the other phase of the state budget—expansion of programs and services.

Naturally, mail, phone calls, and personal contact has been heavy from the folks at home as legislators began digging into what Watkins terms a process of "cutting not only the fat, but some meat, and in some cases bone, as well."

Also naturally, the contacts represent vested interests: teachers think money could be cut from administrative and supervisory levels; principals think teachers and Raleigh administration are the best places to cut.

North Carolina is one of few states with a heavy statewide commitment of funds to public schools, rather than depending on localities to do the job.

Of the total general fund money for operating expenses contained in the budget for the coming fiscal year, 44.47 per cent ($827,539) is for public schools.

Thus the biggest single whack must come from that single biggest state agency, legislators reason. And Watkins had to bite the bullet in moving into that distasteful task first.

"This is certainly not a popular thing to do. But let's face it: if public education can be cut, anything else in state government can be cut, and opposition will have little chance.

"Besides, the amount of money that we need to find and cut can't be gotten out of other state agencies without cutting schools as well," Watkins said.

Lump Sum?

Members of the State Board of Education pleaded with Watkins recently to cut a lump sum without specifying programs, but the legislator rejected that. "We can not go back home and say we cut the school budget... but we didn't know where we were cutting," he argued.

Legislators and school board members alike agree that the goal must be to cut if the must, but target programs which have no direct impact in the classrooms.

Board member Mrs. Mildred Strickland is most outspoken on that point, saying the "only sacred thing in this comedy... is the child" who must be protected.

Mrs. Strickland charged the state with misplaced priorities as she noted that per student investment is $700 in public schools; $3,000 per student in colleges and universities.

The legislative committee outlined for the state board cuts amounting to $25 million for reaction.

Hardest hit by legislators were career education programs and the specialty Advancement School in Winston-Salem.

After a hard day's work, the board sent back some $20 million in possible cuts, including a $4 million cutback in textbook purchases; and trimming 1,000 teaching positions at a savings of $12 million—a step made palatable by the continued decline in student enrollment.

The debate will go on. Watkins is now saying he will have a final report from Base Budget Committee by June 1, and Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., is eyeing a June 20 adjournment date. When the final cuts begin, they will come fast and with little debate.

The INSIDE REPORT

Autopsy Of The Collapse

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—An autopsy of the collapse of South Vietnam performed at a high level here points less to the widely presumed culprit, President Nguyen Van Thieu, and far more to a single command blunder in the field which combined with slumping U.S. military aid to produce irreversible tragedy.

The autopsy was performed not by Saigon embassy staffers closely associated with Thieu but by Washington-based officials not at all interested in his reputation who visited Vietnam after the collapse. Their story, cross-checked for accuracy and fully substantiated, helps explain why soldiers of the South Vietnamese Army (ARVN) now fight bravely at Xuan Loc and elsewhere but ran in disorder last month. The answer is not lack of courage, patriotism or even training but notoriously poor generalship which steadily weakened under pressure of diminishing U.S. aid.

Failing support from Washington, along with Moscow's blank-check backing of North Vietnam, probably insured South Vietnam's eventual fall. But the macabre events of mid-March may have hastened Saigon's doom by years, in a manner magnifying the damaging impact on U.S. policy.

Communist destruction of the 23rd ARVN Division in capturing Ban Me Thuot in the Central Highlands dramatized for Thieu the altered power balance. He determined then that his troops must retreat from exposed positions. But contrary to popular belief, he gave no precipitate order.

On March 13, Lt. Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, commanding the 1st Corps in the North, flew to Saigon to confer with Thieu. Thieu ordered Truong to withdraw, abandoning Hue if necessary, but to make a stand at Danang. Truong agreed, adding he would defend Hue if possible.

On March 14, Thieu summoned a top secret council of war (unknown to the U.S. embassy) at the military base of Cam Rahn Bay. Five generals attended: Thieu; Prime Minister Tran Thien Khiem; Gen. Cao Van Vien, chief of the general staff; Lt. Gen. Dang Van Quang, the president's military adviser; and Maj. Gen. Pham Van Phu, commander of the 2nd Corps headquartered at Pleiku in the Central Highlands.

Following Thieu's strategy, it was decided to abandon Pleiku and Kontum in the highlands—but certainly not withdraw all the way to Saigon. Rather, their plan was to regroup, then counterattack at Ban Me Thuot, seeking to end the hesitant Communist offensive. Just when Pleiku and Kontum would be abandoned was left open, a vagueness of historic importance. Four of those present thought the pullout was to take place gradually the last two weeks of March.

The fifth man, 2nd Corps commander Gen. Phu, has a long and valorous record as one of only two Vietnamese officers in the French army at the fatal 1954 battle of Dien Bien Phu. But he fits a familiar ARVN pattern: first-rate division commander unable to cope with complexities of corps command. What distinguishes Phu now is committing the long war's greatest single blunder.

Returning to Pleiku late on March 14, Phu inexplicably ordered the withdrawal that very night without preparation. In the old days, American advisers would have restrained Phu, planned an orderly withdrawal and mocked up the Ban Me Thuot counterattack. But such advisers left after the Paris accord of January 1973 (which permitted 140,000 North Vietnamese regulars to stay).

Abandoning equipment worth tens of millions, Phu's troops set off east on routes 19B and 7B, the latter a road to hell. 7B is an unimproved road with no bridges, assuring chaos as heavy trucks chewed up river fords. Retreating troops, trailed by 200,000 refugees, were ambushed at Cheo Reo by the 320th North Vietnamese Division. The result was more chaos, massacre and a calamitous retreat surpassing storied Caporetto and needing a Hemingway to (Continued on page 5)

Disaster From Deficits

WASHINGTON—President Ford drew a $60 billion line in his speech of March 29. It was a fine dramatic gesture, and it came over great on TV, but the line already has disappeared. The grim probability is that the deficit for the coming fiscal year will surpass $80 billion. Without congressional restraint, the deficit will approach $100 billion.

The figures zip through our minds like some of those invisible particles whipped from an electron accelerator. They make no conscious impact. It is imperative, or so it seems to me, that we concentrate on this whole problem of deficit finance and try to understand where we are heading.

The federal budget has shown a surplus in only four of the past 20 years. These were not large surpluses: They amounted cumulatively to only $10.8 billion. In this same period, including the present fiscal year, the deficits have amounted to some $240 billion. One result is a national debt on which we are paying $33 billion this year in interest alone.

That is not the only result. Beyond question, these deficits were a prime causative influence on the combined inflation and recession that struck the American economy with such stunning effect last year. Massive federal borrowings have dominated the capital market; they have had a domino effect—if that abused image may be invoked—on every aspect of our economy.

Now the prospect is for more of the same—in vastly larger sums, piled upon a less stable foundation. The Senate Budget Committee proposes a federal deficit for the coming year of $69.6 billion. The House committee proposes $73.2 billion. Neither figure is likely to stay glued together.

The House already has passed public works and housing bills that would add $4.3 billion. The Senate is looking at an appealing proposal for new revenue sharing that would add $5 billion. Few persons expect the Congress to go along with Ford's hold-the-line please on federal pay and social services: these decisions could add almost $5 billion more. Intense pressures will be applied in coming months for railway aid, public service employment, national health insurance, and still greater extensions of unemployment compensation.

We are sowing the wind. As surely as night follows day, we will reap the whirlwind. The tax reduction bill the President signed last month, just before he drew his line in the sand, eventually will be seen as a blunder. Wholly apart from the precedents this act will set, the immediate effect will be to add some $23 billion to the Treasury's problems.

If the President had vetoed that very bad bill, and let the economy work its own healing processes for a few more months, we might have witnessed a bottoming-out and a slow upturn by fall. To be sure, this may happen anyhow. Treasury Secretary Simon's "patches of blue" are growing larger. Our ailing economy may have enough residual health to survive even the blood-letting remedies the Congress has prescribed. But the far more likely result of the course on which we are now embarked is fiscal disaster. If Simon's gloomy projections are anywhere near the mark, the Treasury will have to finance cumulative deficits over the next five years approaching $350 billion. It will be an economic miracle if this debt can be handled without triggering a new spiral of destructive inflation.

It is not enough, as Senator Muskie of Maine has urged, that we "stop, look, and listen." The Senate's Budget chairman will have to exhort his colleagues to do much more. Until we are clearly out of this recession — until rising employment begins to produce significant new revenues — the Congress must set an example of (Continued on page 5)

Public Forum

To the editor:

Twice within the past month editorials have appeared in The Daily Reflector contending that the Equal Rights Amendment is not needed since people already have equal rights under the Constitution. One of these editorials followed a Supreme Court decision which ended 35 years of blatant discrimination on account of sex. It should not be necessary for citizens to wait for years or to have to bring suit to get rights which should have been theirs by virtue of birth.

If you can point out the passage in the Constitution which states that "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex," it will be great news—especially for the people who have been working for over 50 years to have this simple passage added to the Constitution. Perhaps you were thinking of the Nineteenth Amendment ratified in 1920, which reads, "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex." Without this explicit statement, the Constitution was not strong enough to give the vote to women in an environment which was hostile to their voting. If ratification of the North Carolina General Assembly had been necessary, women citizens of the United States would have had to wait until 1970 for a right which white male citizens had always had and which was granted to black male citizens in 1868.

When this nation was conceived, equality of rights should have been provided for all. No law should ever have been applied to a group of citizens simply because of their sex. That has been done and is still being done. The only way that citizens can protect themselves from laws which limit their rights because of their sex is by ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Entertainment Business Soars

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — What industry defies inflation, shortages, high interest rates, economic recession, declining consumer buying power and other adverse conditions?

The entertainment industry qualifies as an answer. Although it may not be the only industry to do so, it stands out because of the seeming contradiction: people enjoying themselves more under the worst of conditions.

A financial analysis by Blyth Eastman Dillon shows that several of the leading companies in the entertainment business had record high sales and earnings in 1974, with motion pictures being especially profitable. At the same time, another category of the leisure-time industry suffered from economic conditions. Makers of highpriced products used in participant activities showed declines in incomes.

The report states: "Whereas sales of high ticket items such as recreational vehicles, marine products and show vehicles declined sharply, the motion picture, recorded music and scenic attraction businesses are believed to have incurred record postwar volume."

One explanation offered is that even though incomes fall, the amount of leisure time may not. It may, in fact, increase because of unemployment. Unable to afford the more expensive leisure pastimes, people settle for the less costly ones.

In so doing, they automatically retreat from some participant sports, which often require a costly initial outlay, to more passive activities, such as listening to music and watching motion pictures.

A good many analysts and others have already attributed this to a withdrawal symptom, a tendency to retreat from the harsh realities into a world which, for the time being, is more comfortable.

While this may be true, there certainly are exceptions to such behavior, as operators of many ski resorts will attest, having just concluded one of their most successful seasons in several years.

Still, the fortunes of the ski lift operators probably were no better than those of the motion picture producers and distributors.

"Even though only 124 new films were released, the lowest level in 25 years," said the brokerage house, "box-office receipts grossed $1.9 billion, about a 25 per cent increase for the year, and were the highest since 1946.

How does the future look for entertainment?

Even if consumer confidence improves and discretionary income rises, the analysts don't expect great shifts in leisure-time activities and expenditures.

"After the difficult times that consumers have gone through, we believe they may be reluctant to return to more costly forms of leisure that would increase still further consumer debt."

In other words, they're just going to take it easy and count their pennies.

GOD IS IN CONTROL
Anno Domini (in the year of our Lord) 1975.

Do you believe it? Is this really the year of our Lord? If we say yes, then we acknowledge that time is in our Lord's hands. He is in control. But it is useless to say this if every day we deny the affirmation by our actions. If time is in our Lord's hands, then we may face a loss of job, illness, disappointment, or temptation with the full realization that nothing can hurt us. We can even face death, for if time is in our Lord's hands, then the infinite extension of time called eternity is also.

It is with such assurance that we must sustain ourselves when life is hard to bear. And if we really believe that time is in the Lord's hands, a great wave of confidence will sweep over us. "If God be for us, who can be against us? He that spared not His own son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall He not also with him freely give us all things."

More Claim Illegal Exclusion

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A U.S. District Court is expected to hear more testimony today from persons who claim they were illegally excluded from a 1971 rally attended by President Nixon.

Nineteen young persons, many of them members of a group called the Red Hornets May Day Tribe, have filed a $1.2 million lawsuit against former White House aide H.R. Haldeman, U.S. Secret Service director H.S. Knight and 24 others.

The plaintiffs claim they were excluded from the rally, held in honor of evangelist Billy Graham, because authorities

"didn't like their looks or they were unfriendly to Richard Nixon."

Defense attorneys claimed in their opening statements Monday that Charlotte police and the White House obtained information that activists would attempt to disrupt the rally, held in the Charlotte Coliseum.

The trial, which began Monday, is expected to last about two weeks. Haldeman's attorney, S. Dean Hamrick, said the former White House Chief of Staff was not expected to attend.

Haldeman's involvement in the suit stemmed from the 1973 Senate Watergate hearings, when John Dean revealed a White House plan approved by Haldeman to keep dissidents from Nixon appearances.

Hanrick claimed in his opening statement that Haldeman merely approved a general scheme to control potentially violent demonstrations against the President.

Also named as defendants are U.S. Secret Service director H. S. Knight and 10 other Secret Service agents, Charlotte Police Chief J.C. Goodman and six other policemen, four members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and three former White House advance men.

The VFW members have also filed cross actions against the White House defendants and the national VFW, asking that they receive compensation from the others for any judgment the jury might return against them.

In Monday's session, only two witnesses took the stand following the morning-long jury selection.

Joy Justice, 24, a plaintiff, testified that she and a companion were ushered out of the coliseum although they had tickets. She told the court she and some friends had come to the rally "to protest the war." After she was evicted, she said she joined other activists for a demonstration in the Coliseum parking lot.

Her testimony was to continue today.

Another plaintiff, Lawrence James Reichard, 16, said he was denied admission to the building three times although he had tickets each time.

Reichard said he entered the coliseum without incident but, after a few minutes decided to leave the building to take some pictures for a Sunday school slide show.

When he tried to return, defendant Ernie Helms told him his ticket was counterfeit and ushered him outside, he said.

Under cross examination, Reichard said he did not go to the rally for the purpose of demonstrating but thought "if the chance arose, I would join a demonstration."

He said he went to the rally without a ticket because he knew he could obtain one from another plaintiff, who was distributing them in the parking lot.

"Certainly I wasn't a threat to Presidential security," he insisted. "I was only 13 years old."

William Jeffrey, attorney for former advance man Michael Duval, said potential troublemakers were sometimes told they had bogus tickets as a means of separating them from the crowds and keeping them out of public rallies.

He said, "There's nothing sinister about that."

In his opening statement,

Hamrick sought to play down Haldeman's role in security arrangements. He said his client had received a memo from defendant Ronald Walker indicating possible disruption at the rally and asking authority to take action to protect the President.

He said Haldeman approved the basic scheme as long as local authorities handled any enforcement.

Frank Aycock, the lawyer for the Charlotte policemen, said his clients knew nothing of any plan to deny access to any specific group. He and the attorney for the Secret Service maintained their clients were merely doing their duty in providing security and protecting the President.

The original suit was filed on Nov. 4, 1971 against the Charlotte police and the VFM members. The list of defendants grew following the Watergate disclosures.

The rally was sponsored by the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce to honor the Rev. Mr. Graham, a Charlotte native. Nixon was invited by Charles Crutchfield, a local broadcast executive.

Fortieth Anniversary Of SCS To Be Marked

The Soil Conservation Service will soon complete 40 years of continuous conservation planning and service to the State of North Carolina and the nation.

The 40th anniversary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture conservation agency will be held Sunday, the date that President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed Public Law 46.

The first chief of the agency was Dr. Hugh Hammond Bennett of Anson County.

The first district in the nation was formed in North Carolina's Southern Piedmont—the Brown Creek Soil and Water Conservation District. Pitt County was organized into the Coastal Plain District on May 12, 1942. There are 92 districts in the state today.

In the early years, Soil Conservation Service, the technical expertise of soil conservationists, began in the farm area. SCS provided service to farmers. Farmers are still being served today with a variety of programs, but now conservation work is also being done in the urban areas.

Farms have benefited from terraces, conservation cropping systems, grassed waterways, contour planting, wildlife food and cover, farm drainage systems, and reforestation.

One of the most popular conservation practices in North Carolina is farm ponds. There are 1,450 farm ponds in Pitt County.

Soil surveys done by SCS also help farmers plan the best use of their land and help urban planners locate sanitary landfills, best sites for home building or shopping centers, and help decide to place municipal parks and other facilities.

Newer programs such as watershed protection and resource conservation and development projects serve both rural and urban people.

Progressive soil surveys have been completed for 20 counties, including Pitt, and work is under way in 15 others.

The SCS works cooperatively with other agricultural and natural resource-oriented agencies as well as with units of government at all levels.

Ruling Awaited

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Superior Court Judge Henry McKennon is expected to rule today on a motion to quash a first-degree murder indictment against Joan Little.

The 20-year-old black woman is accused of the ice pick slaying of Beaufort County jailer Clarence Alligood, 62, a white. She claims he was slain while trying to rape her.

Her case has stirred widespread interest among women's and civil rights groups.

McKennon's ruling is expected after the state offers its final arguments.

Defense attorneys contend that the grand jury which indicted Miss Little was illegally constituted because the jury pool did not represent a cross-section of the community.

Defense attorney Jim Gillespie of Chapel Hill told the court Monday that both the U.S. Supreme Court and the state Supreme Court had ruled that a jury which excludes certain groups is illegal.

Defense attorney Karen Galoway said that while blacks make up 30.2 per cent of the Beaufort County population, only 12 per cent of the county's jurors are black.

Stevens Heads ECU Program

Dr. David B. Stevens has been appointed to head a task force for development of a University Affirmative Action Plan to insure equal employment opportunity and fair accommodation for handicapped persons by East Carolina University.

Sections of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 require that all institutions receiving federal grant money or who perform contractual services for the federal government must develop and implement a plan for the employment of handicapped persons. The same requirement exists under a recently published state personnel policy.

Stevens said that the requirements under the plan are divided into two broad areas. One deals with accommodation of handicapped persons and the other deals with providing equal employment opportunity and equal opportunity for promotion and advancement for qualified handicapped persons.

Those appointed by Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins to the task force to assist Dr. Stevens are Dr. Sheldon Downes of the Department of Rehabilitation Counseling in the School of Allied Health and Social Services Professions, Dick Farris of the University Personnel Department and Dr. James L. White, Director of University Sponsored Programs. Dr. Downes will develop the accommodation aspects of the plan and Farris will be in charge of the personnel actions aspects of the plan. Dr. White will supervise the requirements relative to Federal Grant Funds.

Dr. Stevens is the Attorney Advisor for ECU and also serves as Director of Equal Opportunity Programs.

He passes his time writing to people who have read of his case and contacted him, although he says he does not enjoy writing. He reads, especially works by and about blacks. He plays chess; some of the inmates have numbered boards, and they call their moves to each other through the bars.

The legal system does not impress him. "I've seen other guys with cases similar to mine get off with 30 years. I'm glad for them, but I'm not satisfied."

He does not believe in capital punishment. "I can't see it. If the state decides to take a man's life, they're committing a crime themselves. And it's definitely premeditated."

describe. The disaster on Route 7B quickly spread. Fearing isolation in the north, Gen. Truong ordered a withdrawal from Hue. But now President Thieu panicked. Disregarding the March 13 meeting, he ordered the troops to return. Counter-marching, they collided with streams of refugees and soon turned back again. By then, Truong's prized 1st ARVN Division had so disintegrated that defense of Danang was impossible. Thus, premature withdrawal from Pleiku cost South Vietnam five infantry divisions, the country's northern half and almost surely its independence.

This autopsy provides valuable lessons. It justifies President Ford not heaping blame on Thieu, as some advisers wanted. It confirms that what the ARVN has needed is not political dedication or even inspired low-level leadership so much as halfway decent generalship. And though Congress may resist, it points up the unescapable causal relationship between steadily reduced U.S. aid and the Vietnam disaster.

Even if some renewed aid now enables Saigon to re-equip five divisions and stabilize the military situation, the most hoped for is an interval for orderly evacuation of Saigon's leaders, a new government and negotiations leading inevitably to Communist rule. The long, immensely costly war was lost on the Ides of March. But whoever was to blame, this autopsy makes clear, it was not the long-suffering, much-abused ARVN foot soldier.

NEW YORK (AP)—Figures indicating a substantial slowing in inflation kept the stock market's current uptrend alive today. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11:30 a.m. was ahead 5.71 at 821.57. Gainers led losers on the New York Stock Exchange 857 to 290 among the 1,512 issues traded.

Big Board activity was heavy. The Labor Department reported as the market opened that consumer prices during March rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.6 per cent, about half of February's inflation rate.

Brokers who had expected some weakness in the market today said the inflation news appeared to keep investors' confidence alive. The Dow index has advanced nine out of the previous ten sessions.

Some analysts, however, still worry about what appears to be a firming in interest rates and large federal borrowings scheduled for May. "From a technical standpoint, there is some concern," said John Smith of Fahnstock and Co.

The Big Board's composite index, which reached a new 1975 high Monday, gained 38 to 46.62 today. The American Stock Exchange's market-value index was up 20 at 84.56.

House Committee Votes End Insurance Age Discrimination

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—The House Insurance Committee voted 16-8 today to approve a long-discussed bill to forbid the use of age as a factor in setting automobile liability insurance rates.

The measure, strongly backed by state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram and hotly opposed by the insurance industry, now goes to the House floor.

Some of those who voted for the bill in committee said they did so to get the issue debated on the House floor.

Ingram, who has campaigned for years for an end to "age discrimination" in setting insurance rates, said he feels "the people of North Carolina will be pleased with the vote. This is what they have wanted done for many years."

The bill would require that the use made of an automobile and the driving record of the driver would be the factors considered in setting automobile liability rates.

On motion of Rep. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson, the bill was amended to forbid the use of sex as a factor in setting auto liability rates.

Ingram has long opposed the present system under which male drivers between the ages of 16 and 25 pay much higher liability rates than older persons. The insurance industry has taken the position that the present system should be changed but that eliminating age as a factor in setting rates ignores the fact that young males cause a higher percentage of accidents than drivers.

Before approving a motion by Rep. R. C. Soles, D-Columbus to give a favorable report, the committee defeated a motion to give the bill a without prejudice report which would have taken the bill to the House floor without a recommendation by the committee.

In opposing the bill, Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, said that eliminating age as a factor in winning rate setting would "fly in the face of all common sense and all the actuarial facts." He said that the accident rate for youthful drivers is 64 per cent higher than the rate for adults.

Soles replied that if the 16-year-old driver "gets out and has accidents his insurance premiums are going up."

Rep. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, an insurance agent, said in opposing the bill that it would benefit 12 per cent of the drivers who are males in the 16-25 age bracket, but would penalize with higher rates the 88 per cent of the drivers who are older.

Rep. W.S. Harris, D-Alamance, said in supporting the bill that the discrimination against young drivers in setting auto liability rates is the one thing that he receives most complaints about.

Rep. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, an insurance agent, said in opposing the bill that it would benefit 12 per cent of the drivers who are males in the 16-25 age bracket, but would penalize with higher rates the 88 per cent of the drivers who are older.

Rep. W.S. Harris, D-Alamance, said in supporting the bill that the discrimination against young drivers in setting auto liability rates is the one thing that he receives most complaints about.

Ford Defends 'Covert' Role

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford emphatically rejects any suggestion that the Central Intelligence Agency be barred from covert political activity in foreign countries.

"That would be like tying a president's hands behind his back in the planning and execution of foreign policy," Ford said Monday night in an interview broadcast on CBS television and radio.

"I can't imagine the United States saying we would not undertake any covert activities knowing, at the same time, that friends as well as foes are undertaking covert activities, not only in the United States, but elsewhere," the President said.

Asked if his definition of covert activities included the use of "the dirty tricks department to support friendly governments and try to bring down unfriendly ones," Ford replied: "It covers a wide range of activities. I wouldn't want to get in and try to pinpoint and define them ..."

Asked if there ever had been any good covert activities carried out by the CIA, Ford replied, "There have been some most successful ones and I don't think it's wise for us today to talk about the good ones or even the bad ones in the past. It's a very risky business but it's a very important part of our national security."

Ford also said he thought a better way was needed to keep Congress informed about CIA activities than simply increasing the number of legislators given access to briefings.

Ford said that in 60 to 90 days he expects to have the recommendations of the commission, headed by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, which is investigating allegations the CIA engaged in domestic surveillance in violation of the agency charter.

Ford said the recommendations would include "any structural changes or any other changes that might be made" in the intelligence agency.

NBC-TV To Debut 8 Series This Fall

NEW YORK (AP)—The NBC television network plans to debut eight evening series for the new fall season including two medical dramas, two family comedies and a TV version of the H.G. Wells classic, "The Invisible Man."

Seven current series will be dropped to make way for the new lineup. They include the Smothers Brothers' attempt at a network TV comeback six years after their CBS series was canceled, and "Adam-12," a seven-season veteran.

Also to be canceled are "Lucas Tanner" and "Petrocelli," both in their first season, and three midseason replacements, "Sunshine," "The Bob Crane Show," and "The Mac Davis Show."

The first network to announce its fall programming, NBC said Monday that "Petrocelli," about a Manhattan lawyer in a New Mexico town, might be resurrected for a still-open Monday night time slot.

NBC said its movie-night schedule for Mondays, Tuesdays and Saturdays is being changed with made-for-TV or theatrical movies to appear regularly next fall only on Thursday and Saturday nights.

In addition to the "The Invisible Man," which will star David McCallum, NBC's new series are: "Holvak," with Glenn Ford as a Southern country preacher in the late 1930s; "Fay," with Lee Grant as a newly divorced woman; "Elle-ry Queen," with no one yet cast as the well-known mystery writer; "Medical Story," an anthology series of medical dramas; "The Metro Man," with Lloyd Bridges as a policeman; "Doctors' Hospital," with George Peppard as a surgeon and chief of services at a large hospital; and "Sunday Dinner," a situation comedy with Tony Montefusco as the head of a large Italian-American family.

Asked if his definition of covert activities included the use of "the dirty tricks department to support friendly governments and try to bring down unfriendly ones," Ford replied: "It covers a wide range of activities. I wouldn't want to get in and try to pinpoint and define them ..."

Postal Bargaining Proposals Outlined

WASHINGTON (AP)—Postal union leaders indicate they may be willing to accept smaller wage increases for their 600,000 members if they win better working conditions in contract negotiations with the U.S. Postal Service.

"We can't outprice ourselves. We know what's at stake here," said James Rademacher, president of the 200,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers.

Negotiations for a new contract between the Postal Service and four unions opened Monday with an exchange of initial bargaining proposals.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailor already has warned the unions that "an excessive pay package" could force a sharp increase in mail rates, leading to a drop in mail volume and a loss of postal jobs. Bailor has predicted that the price of a 10-cent first-class stamp may have to be increased to as much as 13 cents this year.

Postal worker, who won a $1,100-a-year increase two years ago, plus semiannual cost-of-living adjustments, currently earn a top of about $12,000, excluding fringe benefits.

The unions are banned by law from striking, but some unions have adopted a "no-contract, no-work" stance.

Specific wage demands were not disclosed. The unions also are seeking an improved cost-of-living formula; a reduction in the current 40-hour week to 35 hours; fully paid life, health and retirement benefits and greater voice in approving any work rule changes or efficiency-saving measures.

Find Viet Orphans Basically Healthy

By C.G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—A pediatrics group says the 1,900 Vietnamese orphans who have been brought to the United States are basically healthy.

Dr. Henry Seidel of Baltimore, Md., said in an interview Monday that a survey of the orphans has disclosed no diseases which would require quarantine and none which was unique or unusual.

Seidel is the chairman of a task force named by the American Academy of Pediatrics to determine if the Vietnamese children were unhealthy or were bringing to this country diseases which might endanger American children.

Seidel, a member of the pediatrics faculty at Johns Hopkins University school of medicine, said the orphans have many of the illnesses that American children have.

But he said that because many of the Vietnamese children are malnourished they have these diseases more frequently and with greater severity, including diarrhea, dehydration, rashes, lice, pneumonia and skin infections.

Rampants Romp Past Northeastern, 8-2

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Rose High School's Rampants continued to breeze along in the Division I baseball race yesterday, taking an 8-2 victory over Northeastern of Elizabeth City.

The victory boosted the Rampants to an 11-2 overall mark and a 6-1 conference record. Northeastern fell off to 4 overall and 3-3 in the conference.

The Rampants pushed over three runs in the first inning and were never in any real trouble. They added five more unearned runs in the fifth before Elizabeth City finally came up with a pair of unearned runs in the sixth.

Kelly Heath tossed the victory for the Rampants, and had a perfect game going until the fourth inning. He got the first man he faced on foul fly to right, then proceeded to strike out the next eight on his first time through the Eagle lineup.

Woody McDaniel spoiled things in the fourth, however, getting a single. He was sacrificed up, and Ray Scott got an infield hit to put two men on. That was the only trouble Heath got into until the sixth.

During the game, he walked none, and came away with 14 big strikeouts.

Rose was led by the hitting of Heath, Mike Brewington and Keith Jones. Each of whom banded out two hits. Both of Brewington's were doubles, while Heath had one two-bagger.

Rose pushed over three runs in the first inning to grab the lead for good. Griff Garner singled to right and Heath followed with a double to center. Brewington brought both of them home with a double to right center. A wild pitch then let Brewington come in for the 3-0 score.

Rose threatened again in the third when Brewington again doubled, but a ground out ended the inning.

A freak double play took the Rampants out of a good position in the fourth. Keith Jones led off with a single and Ron Hunt beat out an infield hit. Jones alertly moved to third on the play as no one covered the bag.

In the meanwhile, Hunt, seeing second unoccupied following the relay to third, took off for that base, sliding in safely. Jones, trying to take advantage of the confusion headed for home, but was tagged out sliding in. Hunt, trying to move on to third, was also cut down sliding into the sack.

Eddy Connolly followed with a walk, and courtesy runner David Dixon stole second and took third on an error, only to die there.

In the fifth, the Rampants took advantage of six Eagle errors to score five more runs. With one down, Garner reached when his pop fly was dropped in center. Heath, after gaining new life when his foul fly was dropped, got a single to center. Brewington reached on another error, scoring Garner. Macon Moye singled to drive in Dixon, running for Heath. Brewington scored when Hunt was safe on an error, and Connolly singled to drive in Moye. Wright Hooks reached on another miscue, scoring Hunt with the final run.

Northeastern finally got to the Rampants in the sixth. McDaniels reached on an error, as did Cliff Harris. Norman Watts singled off Heath's glove to drive in McDaniels. Ray Scott reached on a fielder's choice and Bruce Bright singled in Harris with the second Eagle run.

Northeastern got off another threat in the seventh as Doug Dees singled and moved up on an error and an out, but died at third.

The Rampants return to action this afternoon, playing Northern Nash at N.C. Wesleyan at Rocky Mount. They return to Guy Smith Stadium here on Thursday, meeting Wilson at 4 p.m.

Dye Unhappy Over Workout

It was a day of dejection for East Carolina football coach Pat Dye. Monday proved to be one of the worst days yet of spring practice.

"I just did not see much to be encouraged about," said Dye. "I had hoped they wouldn't just go through the motions this last week just to get it over with. But I'm afraid that's exactly what happened yesterday."

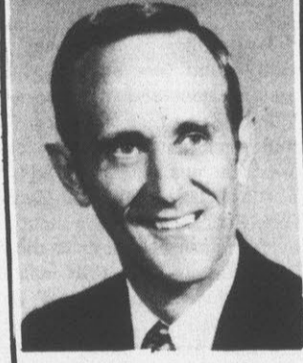

The Pirates practice plan was altered yesterday, as opposed to most Mondays. Instead of working light, Dye had the team go heavy with contact work.

"We looked so poor on Saturday that I felt we needed the contact work," explained Dye. "And we will work light today, heavy Wednesday and have two light days prior to the Saturday game."

Not only was it frustrating from the execution standpoint, but also from injuries. While only one appears of major note, 11 Pirates left the practice field yesterday with some type of injury.

The one that could be a problem is Dennis Morgan, a freshman middle guard from Trenton, N.C. Morgan injured a knee, although just how seriously is not known as yet. He will not be back in spring practice and will miss the Purple-Gold game on Saturday.

Southern Nash took first in eight individual events and won one of the relays. The other relay was split between Southern and Greene Central. Southern also had two double winners, as Perry won both of the hurdles and Cooper took the mile and 800.

Mile Relay Decides Winners In Big Meet

DEEP RUN—Southern Wayne won the mile relay to beat South Lenoir 77 1/2-77 in a five-way track meet and the Saints also beat out Kinston, North Lenoir, and Conley.

There was some controversy in the mile relay as one of the Southern Wayne runners dropped a baton off the track. It was ruled he did not move toward the finish line in picking it up so the victory stood. Calvin Hawkins loss in the 100 yard dash was his first defeat this year.

Kinston was third with 60 1/2 and North Lenoir edged Conley for fourth, 21-20 1/2.

Jones Getting Off With Wins

By HERSCEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Turnabout being fair play, the National League is having a tough time keeping up with San Diego's Jones boy.

While losing a major league-leading 22 games last season, Randy Jones was shut out seven times. The Padres provided him only one run in four setbacks and just two runs in six others — a whopping total of 16 runs in 17 losses.

"I don't even like to think about last year," Jones said Monday night after running his 1975 record to 2-0 with a six-hit, 4-0 whitewash of the Houston Astros. In three starts, the 25-year-old lefty has allowed just 12 hits and one unearned run in 25 innings.

"I just try to go out and get three outs before a run is scored," he said.

In other NL games, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the Atlanta Braves 2-1 and the San Francisco Giants nipped the Cincinnati Reds 4-3 in 10 innings.

The key blow on Jones' behalf was a run-scoring triple by catcher Randy Hundley which produced the second of two runs in the second inning. The first run scored on a two-out error by shortstop Roger Metzger.

Meanwhile, Jones allowed a double and five singles while walking none and fanning four.

In boosting their record to 7-4 and remaining atop the NL West, the upstart Padres added a run in the fourth on Dave Winfield's single and a double by Tito Fuentes. They got their final run in the fifth when Jones singled, took third on Glenn Beckert's double and scored on a wild pitch.

Helmet Throw Angers Williams

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Luis Gomez threw his helmet in anger ... and the only thing hurt was Dick Williams' feelings.

The eight runs Minnesota scored against his California Angels didn't do his disposition any good, either.

Larry Hise knocked in four of the runs with a homer and a triple and Rod Carew hit a tie-breaking sacrifice fly in the eighth inning to carry the Twins past the Angels 8-6 Monday night.

In the only other American League games, the New York Yankees beat Boston 12-1 and Oakland defeated Texas 11-6. Baltimore at Milwaukee and Kansas City at Chicago were rained out.

All those runs and those 14 Minnesota hits weren't what had Williams talking to himself, the umpires and anybody else who would listen. What sent the Angels' manager up the wall started out, oddly enough, when the Twins' Luis Gomez was called out at first base in the sixth inning.

Williams contended Gomez should have been given the heave-ho when he threw his helmet disputing the call following his bases-loaded bunt that gave the Twins their sixth run — not the most important one in the game since the Angels tied it 6-6 in the bottom of the sixth.

Gomez protested being called out, flung his helmet to the ground and was hit with an automatic $100 fine by first base umpire Lou DiMuro, who made a graphic gesture by waving a finger in the air, then pointing at the helmet.

But DiMuro permitted Gomez to stay in the game and Williams responded by playing the game under protest.

"I know damn well he threw him out," Williams snarled after the game. "But that didn't give up the eight runs."

"I didn't throw Gomez out," DiMuro explained. "I gave him the great gesture to indicate the violation (throwing equipment) and pointed at the helmet to indicate the automatic fine. I guess Williams misinterpreted me."

DiMuro also explained that a new American League rule, like one adopted several years ago by the National League, no longer makes throwing equipment an automatic ejection from a game.

Yanks 12, Red Sox 1
Roy White continued to wield a hot bat with a home run, a double, and two singles, scoring four runs and driving in two in New York's rout of the Red Sox.

White, sidelined with a hand injury during the first week of the season, has 10 hits in 19 at-bats for a .526 average. While Pat Dobson checked Boston on six hits, White led the Yanks' 16-hit assault.

A's 11, Rangers 6
Sal Bando tripled to highlight a five-run fourth inning and Billy Williams doubled home two in a three-run eighth that boosted Oakland past Texas.

The Rangers struck for three runs in the fourth inning and got a two-run homer from Toby Harrah in the eighth — but four errors didn't help matters much.

An Identity Problem In Arthur Hailey Chooses Work Of Patrolwoman Here-And-Now Themes

By STEVE LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — One of California's first highway patrolwomen says she's had to deal with kisses as well as speeders during her first weeks on the job.

"He stepped forward and I stepped back and he just sort of grazed my sleeve," Officer Vivian Winsor said of a motorist who tried to kiss her when she let him go without a ticket.

Another driver was so shocked to see a woman in a California Highway Patrol uniform that he called his passenger out of their car for a look at her, said the 31-year-old Mrs. Winsor, one of 26 women now patrolling the highways in California.

Officer Debbie Street says she's also had an identity problem with some motorists.

"That's the funny part," she said, "Most of them don't even realize I'm female."

The patrol dropped its all-male barrier last fall when it allowed 41 women to enroll in its 16-week officer training program.

has been no major physical confrontation," he said.

One woman officer was seriously injured in a traffic accident as she raced to the scene of a bar fight. She has since been released from the hospital, officials said.

The symposium, on the topic of the American Presidency, was held on April 11-13, with meetings in the Senate Caucus Room in Washington, D.C., and in the Reston International Center in Reston, Va.

Key-note speakers for the event were Sen. Barry Goldwater, Rep. Morris Udall, and Casper Weinberger, Secretary of H.E.W. In a reception following the meetings at Reston, Thompson met President Gerald Ford.

The students, engaged in a study of the power of the Presidency, heard talks by journalists, educators, military leaders, and administration officials.

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Four years ago, when Arthur Hailey got the idea of writing a novel dealing with money, he never expected that its publication would come at a time when money was uppermost in the public's mind.

"Whatever else it is, it's timely," says the author of "The Moneychangers," which focuses on the world of banking and is the latest in his series of books that includes "Wheels," "Airport" and "Hotel."

As he did for those best-sellers, Hailey again spent the first year of his books' usual three-year gestation period traveling extensively to do painstaking research. He talked to people involved in banking at every level, in securities, in law enforcement, in credit card organizations, in the U.S. Treasury and even went to London to discuss counterfeiting with Scotland Yard.

"It isn't just the facts one acquires. There's a process of osmosis and you begin to feel like somebody actually working in the field you're researching," explains the 55-year-old writer whose accent attests to his British birth.

"This is the most exciting time in history to be alive, and I like to tell a story against the background of the here-and-now, of something that impinges on our lives in various ways," he says. "We are shaped to a large extent by our environment and an essential part of our environment is the technology we live with."

Part of this technology is in the area of bank security and Hailey doesn't think the industry will take him to task for giving away any trade secrets.

"I think I made it plain there's no future in stealing money ever, either by embezzlement or robbery," he declares.

More and more women are moving up to the executive level in banking — "and it's about time," says the writer, who has made one of his leading female characters in "The Moneychangers" a branch bank manager and another a lawyer.

"There's nothing in banking or anything else women can't do. It's a matter of brains. I do think women in many areas have a superior intelligence," says Hailey, who has been married nearly 25 years to his second wife, Sheila. They have two daughters and a son and he has three sons by his first wife.

Hailey admits that the research is the most "fun" of his three-year stint. "I enjoy meeting people, going to fresh places, learning — though as I get older I like less a solid year away from home."

Home since 1969 has been the Bahamas, where he enjoys swimming and a boat "parked at the back door," recreational activities that perhaps account for the good-looking author's tanned face, a startling contrast to his silver hair and gleamingly perfect teeth.

Once research is completed, he starts the six-month planning stage, which includes a number of successive outlines and mini-biographies of each character. "It's hard work but I know from experience I'll get a story out of it."

Then, "there comes a point when you can put off writing no longer. I start at 8:30 and work till 4 or 5, five days a week, producing 600 finished words a day. The first draft is in long-hand and then I type it and change it. I may spend a morning on one paragraph, redoing it from half a dozen to 20 times till I get it as good as I can make it." The actual writing takes about 18 months, says Hailey, who sold his first novel at age 36.

"Then there's a sudden let-down, an absence of activity, a feeling of uncertainty, is it really good enough? I'm uptight, irritable and bad tempered and I get depressed while I'm waiting for publication and for the reaction."

The reaction on "The Moneychangers" has included sale of the film rights, making it the author's seventh book to be made into a movie.

While Hailey doesn't claim to have learned any magic formula for money management as a result of his intensive study of the subject, he did come to the conclusion that certain precautions should be taken and offers one bit of general advice.

"I would suggest to people if

Record Airlift Of French Art

DETROIT (AP) — In one of the biggest art airlifts in history 150 masterpieces by French painters arrived in the United States for exhibition at the Detroit Institute of Arts, the first official event of the city's Bicentennial celebration.

Many of the canvases are so huge — the largest, "Wounded Cuiraissier," a painting by Theodore Gericault, measures approximately 118 inches by 144 inches — that a number of them had to be removed from their frames for transport.

They were flown to this country on six separate flights, as the $55-million insurance contract stipulated that only a certain number could be shipped at one time.

Each shipment, accompanied by a courier, was met at the Detroit Airport by an armed escort and whisked to the museum. Uncrating was supervised by members of the museum's conservation department and each painting was carefully examined to make sure it had withstood the trip without damage.

"The Age of Revolution" exhibition came direct from its initial showing at the Grand Palais of the Louvre and will return to France after a showing in New York's Metropolitan Museum from June 13 to Sept. 7.

The priceless art treasures, assembled from 96 public and private collections, were painted in the period 1774 to 1830, from the death of Louis XV to the fall of Charles X.

The great neoclassicist, Jacques-Louis David, is represented by nine canvases, among them the famous "Death of Socrates." The climax of the show is Eugene Delacroix's "Liberty."

The exhibition took more than five years to assemble and includes, in addition to works of such major artists as Corot, Fragonard, Gericault, Gros, Greuze and Ingres, lesser known portraits, landscapes and still lifes.

It was conceived by Dr. Frederick J. Cummings, director of the Detroit Institute of Arts; Dr. Pierre Rosenberg, curator of paintings at the Louvre, and Dr. Robert Rosenblum of the Institute of Fine Arts, New York University.

The bulk of the loans are from French national museums; others are from Dublin, Brussels, Rotterdam, Florence and Ottawa, as well as from a number of American museums. Among the 93 artists represented are six women.

Among the paintings is a landscape by the man whose invention gave birth to a new art form, photography: Louis Jacques Mande Daguerre, inventor of the daguerreotype.

Appointed To Sweden As Missionary

Charles Barber, a student at LeTourneau College in Longview, Tex., has been appointed to a summer of missionary service in Sweden with Greater Europe Mission.

Barber, a business administration and Bible major, will spend the summer months in maintenance and construction work at the Scandinavian Bible Institute in Saffle, Sweden, in the south central part of the country.

His assignment is a part of Eurocorps '75, a short-term program that gives college and business-age young people practical experience in Christian work at one of several locations throughout Europe.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barber of Greenville, and is youth director at Pine Tree Cumberland Presbyterian Church in Longview.

We have never been overly enthusiastic about the plethora of conventional bids that seem to have become part of every bridge player's arsenal. Probably the one we dislike most is the Unusual No Trump Convention, which quite often points the way for declarer by drawing a roadmap of the opposing distribution. Consider this hand.

East's no trump overall was not a desire to play the contract at that spot. It was a takeout bid requesting his partner to bid his better minor suit. South doubled to inform his partner that he held a sound opening bid, allowing North the option of doubling the opponents should he so desire. When North could take no action over five diamonds, South elected to go on to five hearts. In view of his distribution and the vulnerability, West might have ventured a sacrifice in six diamonds, which would have been set only two tricks.

West led the nine of clubs, thereby marking East with both the king and jack. It seemed that South would have to lose a diamond and two clubs, but declarer saw a way to make use of his knowledge that East was short in the major suits provided West had only a singleton club.

Declarer won the ace of clubs, cashed the ace of trumps and ace-king of spades, and led a diamond to the ten. East won and, since it would not help him to cash the king of clubs, he exited with a high diamond, ruffed in dummy. Declarer ruffed a spade, crossed to the jack of hearts and led the ten of spades, discarding a club loser from his hand.

West won this trick, but was not very happy at the prospect of having to lead to the next trick. He was down to nothing but spades and diamonds, and both declarer's and dummy's hands had been stripped of all cards in these suits. Whichever suit West returned, declarer would be able to ruff in dummy while discarding his remaining club loser. In all, declarer lost just one trick in diamonds and one in spades.

Voyaging Canoe To Attempt Resolving Old Hawaii Puzzle

By KAY LYNCH
HONOLULU (UPI) — Anthropologists hope a giant voyaging canoe will help them find the answer to one of the most intriguing questions in Polynesian history: Why Hawaii?

The 60-foot vessel, the Hoku-lea, launched to the ancient chants of Hawaiian priests and the cheers of a thousand Hawaiian culture devotees off Oahu's Kuloa Point, is the largest voyaging canoe seen in Hawaii in 500 years.

Under conditions nearly identical to those of ancient Polynesia, Hoku-lea will attempt next March the round-trip voyage from Hawaii to Tahiti to answer one question: Were early landings in Hawaii mere accidents of wind and current, or were they the deliberate achievements of the greatest sea captains of all time?

Hoku-lea means star of joy. It is the Hawaiian name for Arcturus, celebrated in ancient chants as the guiding star for Hawaii-Tahiti voyages. Next year's reenactment of one of those early trips is being planned to coincide with the country's bicentennial celebration and will specially commemorate the 50th state's unique history.

Hoku-lea handled well on its brief maiden voyage, crew members said: It will now undergo rigorous testing in Hawaiian waters, to determine how it will withstand the 5,600-mile round trip to Tahiti and back.

No navigational instruments will be used on the trip of 80 to 100 days. Instead, crew members will rely on the stars, the sun and the waves as they believe their ancestors did.

The only provisions on board will be those available to the Polynesians of 2,000 years ago setting out on a resettlement voyage—dried bananas, taro, breadfruit, coconut and fish. Suckling pigs, dogs and plants needed for colonizing new lands also will be taken along.

The 18 to 20 men and women for the voyage will be carefully selected for such attributes as maturity, good heart or "Aloha," good humor, self discipline, courage, stamina and respectful attitude toward the sea.

The crew will undergo grueling training, ending in an isolation stint on Molokai to help them assume not just the barkcloth garments of the ancient Polynesian, but the mental attitude as well.

The venture is being supported through contributions to the Polynesian Voyaging Society, established in September, 1973, by artist-adventurer Herbert Kawaiui Kane, anthropologist Ben Finney and waterman Tommy Holmes.

More than half the needed $95,000 has been raised. It financed construction of the sleek two-masted vessel that now rocks peacefully off Kuloa Point. All lashings, 40,000 yards, are of hand braided sennit (coconut fiber). The two sails are of woven lauhala, which is similar to palm fronds.

Kane has said one of his goals is "to break the stereotype of the Hawaiian sitting under a coconut tree strumming his ukulele." He points out that the Hawaiians were crossing thousands of miles of ocean and landing on tiny specks of islands in the Pacific, without instruments, at about the time William the Conqueror made so bold as to cross the English Channel in 1023.

Rigorous selective pressures, of repeated, may explain the physique and large size that distinguish Polynesians from other equatorial people," he has written.

The theory has its detractors, who maintain that the people who colonized the Pacific did so through accidental and random drift voyages. Dr. Finney claims this is impossible, because a canoe drifting west from the Marquesas or Tahiti would have been pushed far west of Hawaii by prevailing easterly tradewinds.

Sawhill To Be Prexy Of NYU

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Federal Energy Administrator John C. Sawhill will succeed Dr. James Hester as president of New York University.

Hester, who has held the post since 1962, will leave in September to become rector of the new United Nations University in Tokyo.

Sawhill, 38, is an alumnus of NYU's graduate School of Business Administration and former professor and assistant dean there.

Sawhill will be the 12th head of the university, which was founded in 1831 and now has nearly 40,000 students enrolled in 13 divisions at five major centers in Manhattan.

His appointment was announced Monday.

Edmisten Believes Legal Questions 'Convincing'

WASHINGTON (AP) — "If they decide this case strictly on the legal questions involved, then they've got to uphold the state's argument," said North Carolina Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten.

Edmisten had just listened to the Supreme Court's review of oral arguments in the appeal of Jesse T. Fowler, one of 70 North Carolina inmates condemned to die in the state's gas chamber. The decision in Fowler's case could decide their fates as well as those of almost 200 others across the nation.

Edmisten's opinion, however, was just one of several voiced after the 90 minutes of argument.

Charles Becton and Adam Stein of Chapel Hill, who represent Fowler, said they were happy with the arguments presented for them by Anthony Amsterdam of the Stanford University School of Law.

Others felt that the court will pass up the opportunity to issue a decisive ruling on the constitutionality of capital punishment and issue an opinion limited to a specific quirk in the case of Fowler and 46 others in North Carolina.

From the arguments, the key issue appeared to be whether the legal system in North Carolina — or any other state — is so fraught with arbitrary discretion by solicitors, judges and juries that only an unfortunate few are ever sentenced to death.

North Carolina Deputy Atty. Gen. Jean Benoy, arguing for the state, acknowledged that it was. But he said that discretion worked to aid more defendants than it hurt.

Benoy told the court that if it said the state could not execute a man because its legal system included discretion, it would be a short step toward ruling that no one could be sent to prison because of discretion.

Amsterdam said death is such a unique punishment, "the one thing that is irremediable, something we don't even understand," that its application deserved separate scrutiny.

Benoy pointed out that the framers of the Constitution specifically said that no one should be deprived of life without due process. He said the inference was that death is a permissible punishment if due process is safeguarded.

Questions from several justices, however, indicated that the court might choose the third route, one that could spare Fowler but leave the larger question unresolved.

Justice Potter Stewart ascertained through questioning that Fowler was sentenced under the terms of a 1973 North Carolina Supreme Court decision that interpreted the effects of the U.S. Supreme Court's 1972 Furman vs. Georgia ruling.

In the Furman decision, the court said capital punishment was arbitrary and capricious where a jury could recommend that a defendant convicted of a capital offense be given clemency and a life sentence. That decision spared the lives of 600 condemned inmates.

The North Carolina court ruled that the Furman decision required a severing of the jury discretion clause from North Carolina's capital punishment law. The only punishment thereafter, the court said, would be death. The legislature, in 1974, changed the statutes to a mandatory death penalty for rape and murder in the first degree, but by then Fowler and 46 others had been sentenced.

The Supreme Court might rule that the state court erred in severing jury discretion and order life sentences for Fowler and the 46 others. That would leave the determination of the ultimate question for another case, Justice Harry Blackmun noted.

A decision in the Fowler case is expected by the end of the court's spring term in June. If the court rules in favor of Fowler in a sweeping decision, Edmisten said he would seek legislation to permit incarceration of certain murderers and rapists without hope of parole.

State Sen. Julian Allsbrook, who also attended the hearing, said he might introduce legislation that would begin a process in which the states could amend the federal Constitution to permit capital punishment.

European Visitors See Normal Life In Da Nang

PARIS (AP) — Two Europeans who have just visited Da Nang say that life has returned to normal in South Vietnam's second largest city since it fell to the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese three weeks ago.

French television correspondent Claude Gaignaire, who spent 36 hours in Da Nang last week, said there was no blood-bath after the Communists took over. He contrasted the situation with the chaos and looting that accompanied the retreat of the Saigon regime's forces.

Alex Casella, a Swiss working for the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, reported to the commissioner's Geneva headquarters that despite a dusk-to-dawn curfew, "restaurants and schools are open, and water, electricity and other public services operating."

He said the city's population is now about 900,000, including 500,000 refugees, and that 200,000 are being moved back to the rural areas from which they came. But there is a shortage of food, and "in the coming weeks, the food shortage will reach the danger point if there's no outside supply," Casella warned.

Films taken by Gaignaire showed Viet Cong soldiers in crisp green uniforms directing traffic, schools open and several people criticizing the Saigon government.

He said the first thing that struck one was the absence of street peddlers and beggars who thrived under Saigon's rule.

A Viet Cong member of the new military government said its first problem had been "the unemployed, the prostitutes and all those without means of support. We have changed this city of debauchery."

Officials of the Saigon regime "who have realized their mistakes" had been put to work in productive jobs, the Viet Cong man said.

A Communist school official said teachers were being indoctrinated in the "new realities."

"The teaching of the physical sciences has remained unchanged," he said. "But history and literature have been changed. The Saigon government could not really explain Vietnamese literature."

Teachers who did not accept the new situation "have already left," and they were a minority anyway, the official added.

Two Roman Catholic Vietnamese nuns said the Viet Cong "until now" had done nothing to affront their religious beliefs.

Casella, who returned from Da Nang to his headquarters in Hanoi Saturday, said the city's most urgent needs include rice, wheat, flour, fish, meat and medical supplies.

Reject Part Of Tax Debt

KENANSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The Duplin County Commissioners have, in effect, rejected an offer by J.P. Stevens & Co. to pay about $156,000 in back taxes

Instead, the commissioners offered Monday to settle for $190,000, the $250,000 in local taxes and penalties state officials calculate. J.P. Stevens & Co. would have paid except for an "illegal" agreement made in 1951.

The compromise was approved in a 3-2 vote. The board members voting for the compromise offered no explanation why they were willing to settle for less than the full amount state officials had said the textile company owed the county for the years 1969 through 1973.

County Tax Supervisor A. E. Shaw III resigned two weeks ago to protest refusal of the commissioners to back his drive to collect the full amount from Stevens.

Shaw said that in 1974 he discovered that a secret agreement was made in 1951 by Duplin County and Stevens. Officials said the pact was designed to lure Stevens into locating a plant in Kenansville. It allowed Stevens to value its inventory at the 1951 market, or replacement, value of its looms.

State officials said such an agreement was illegal, and allowed Stevens to refrain from listing millions of dollars in inventory.

Judge Cited With Felony

GREENSBORO (AP) — State District Court Judge Walter B. Clark Jr. has been charged with the felony of assaulting a law officer with a firearm.

Sheriff Paul H. Gibson of Guilford County, quotes two of his deputies as saying shots were fired at their patrol car from the Clark residence between 3 a. m. and 4 a. m. Sunday. The sheriff said that Mrs. Clark also was in the patrol car, and the incidents leading to the alleged shooting grew out of an apparent "domestic problem."

There were no injuries and the patrol car was not damaged, the sheriff said.

The judge has been cited to appear at a preliminary hearing on May 5.

The sheriff gave this account: Deputies C. T. Austin and B. L. May responded to a call from Mrs. Clark. The call concerned someone tampering with her car. They met her at a location away from the Clark residence.

"When they drove to her house, one shot was fired at them. Then five more shots were fired" as the patrol car containing the deputies and Mrs. Clark turned around to leave.

Optional Equipment On Cars In Heavy Demand

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Consumers are buying fewer and smaller cars, but they're ordering more optional equipment than ever before. Installation of extra-cost items such as air conditioning, power brakes, vinyl tops, bigger engines and power windows is setting records despite the over-all sales slump, the auto companies report.

"People are buying smaller cars but they're putting more stuff on them," says an analyst at Ford Motor Co. "The upward trend in options has been going on for 20 years, and 1975 is no exception."

Adding more options may partially defeat the fuel-saving objectives of some small car buyers. Air conditioning, for example, uses up about one-half mile per gallon. And any option adds weight to the car, with a corresponding increase in fuel consumption.

The companies say they are selling more options partly because more are being offered — on small cars as well as larger models.

They say they make the options available because the consumer wants them. But the heavily promoted items also boost the auto makers' profit margins, traditionally lower on smaller, stripped-down models.

"Many buyers now want more luxurious trim levels and options than on their earlier cars," said Ford Vice President John B. Naughton. "They are interested in comfort and convenience, and they are willing to pay for it."

For example, 94 per cent of all Chevrolet Novas sold so far this model year were ordered with an optional automatic transmission. Last year, only 92 per cent had the option.

Similarly, power steering was ordered on 95 per cent of this year's Dodge Darts, compared with 93 per cent last year. Air conditioning in the Ford Torino is up from 84 per cent last year to 88 per cent.

The installation rates of other options such as power door locks, AM-FM stereo radios and deluxe wheel covers also are up from a year ago.

These options, sometimes marketed in discount packages by the companies, cost hundreds of dollars — air conditioning alone costs around $400. When customers are done listing everything they want, they may discover the final cost of the car is 20 to 50 per cent more than the sticker price.

A typical compact lists for around $3,300 without options. But the average compact car sold carries $800 in options, raising the price to $4,100.

Jailed Newsmen Vow No Answers

By JOE BIGHAM
Associated Press Writer

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Three newspapermen sentenced to jail for contempt of court until they tell how they acquired a sealed grand jury transcript vow "they will never answer those questions," their attorney says.

Superior Court Judge Denver Peckinpah has stayed imposition of sentence until May 23 for Fresno Bee Managing Editor George Gruner and reporters Joe Rosato and William Patterson.

That will give the newspaper's attorneys time to file an appeal on grounds that the contempt citations issued by Peckinpah violated their constitutional rights and the state "shield law" under which reporters need not disclose confidential sources.

They were cited in "direct contempt" 62 times at an earlier hearing for refusing to answer questions which might have led to the source of three articles containing details of a transcript ordered sealed until trials were completed.

A fourth Bee employee, City Editor James Bort, was found in contempt 17 times Monday, but his sentencing was delayed until the hearing resumes on Wednesday.

"Each defendant (in the Bee case) says that whatever the sentence, imposition is detrimental to their freedoms and they never will answer those questions," said Bee attorney Philip C. Fullerton.

Bort elaborated while testifying:

"The public is entitled to know that newsmen in performing their function are willing to stand on a principle we think is very important to a free press. That is the ability to refuse to disclose sources when they are confidential in nature."

The articles that sparked the hearings detailed transcript material from a Fresno County Grand Jury indictment of Councilman Marc Stefano and two others for bribery and conspiracy.

By coincidence, Stefano was acquitted Monday by an Alameda County Superior Court jury.

Gruner told newsmen he felt the Bee newsmen had satisfied the purpose of Peckinpah's hearing, to determine if a court official leaked the material. Each testified that "no court official provided it," Gruner said.
