

Agreements Step Up N.C. General Assembly's Pace

RALEIGH (AP)—Democratic Senate leaders reached agreement with the Republican governor over the Utilities Commission Thursday, a bill to raise hunting and fishing license fees was approved and the House voted to give some 97,000 workers a tax break.

Gov. Jim Holshouser said Thursday he agreed to appoint a consumer-oriented person to the state Utilities Commission in return for his being able to name two additional commission members.

The consumer representative would replace Hugh Wells who left the commission this week.

A bill nearing approval in the legislature would expand the commission to seven members—it is now five—and require legislative confirmation of gubernatorial appointments.

Holshouser's agreement is with Senate leaders and it wasn't known whether House leaders would go along. Holshouser said he agreed to wait on making appointments until the bill becomes law so the legislature would have the right to review those named.

The Senate originally passed the bill, but it was amended by the House. Now, it is back in the Senate and probably will go to a conference committee where differences will be worked out.

A bill to raise hunting and fishing license fees was to be ratified into law today. The fees will go up effective Aug. 1.

Funds raised by the increase will be used to hire more wildlife officers, expand game areas and trout hatcheries and improve the radio system for wildlife officers, Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, sponsor of the bill, said.

The Wildlife Resources Commission is supported by license fees and a special federal tax on firearms and ammunition. It gets no state tax funds.

Here are some examples of fee increases: the combination hunting-fishing license will go from $7.50 to $10; the resident statewide hunting and fishing licenses go from $5.50 to $7.50 each; a statewide trapping license goes from $4.25 to $10 and a resident trout fishing permit goes from $2.25 to $3.25. A new $25 license will allow types of hunting and fishing for a year.

As expected, the House approved Thursday a bill to allow income tax deductions up to $400 a month for workers who must pay for dependent care to hold a job. Because of some minor amendments, the bill went back to the Senate where concurrence was anticipated.

State revenue officials have said the measure will cost about $4 million and give a break to 97,000 workers.

Under terms of the bill, the deduction would be allowed for care of children under the age of 15, spouses and other dependents unable to care for themselves.

If the care is in the worker's home, a monthly deduction of $400 would be allowed no matter how many dependents. If the care is outside the home, a deduction of $100 per dependent would be allowed with a monthly maximum of $400.

Taxpayers earning an adjusted gross income of $18,000 or less would be entitled to the full deduction. Those earning more than $18,000 would have the entitlement cut as income went up until the income reached $27,000 when entitlement would be zero.

The bill would take effect this taxable year and be applied to the income tax forms North Carolinians file next year.

Also in the legislature Thursday, House Speaker James Green said he believes the session should be over by June 20. He told committee chairmen that legislation should be well on the way toward getting out of committee by May 15th.

Green said there are still some major issues pending such as the budget, no fault auto insurance and the mountain land management proposal.

Because of the economic situation, Green predicted the legislature will need to meet in 1976 to at least review the budget.

Friday Rejects Opinion

RALEIGH (AP)—University of North Carolina President William Friday has rejected the contention of a Health, Education and Welfare official that a decision to build a veterinary school at N.C. State University is a violation of the university system's desegregation plan.

In a letter released Thursday, Friday advised HEW that the university would not comply with a suggestion from William Thomas, director of HEW's Civil Rights Office that the veterinary school be located at North Carolina A & T University in Greensboro.

Thomas said in a letter to Friday last month that the decision to place the school at predominantly white N.C. State instead of predominantly black A & T violated the university's commitment to equalize the quality of instruction on black and white campuses. Thomas said the university should either locate the vet school at A & T or locate a comparable facility there.

Friday told HEW that Thomas had misconstrued the university's desegregation commitment, made in a plan accepted by Thomas's office last year.

The UNC president said the university had agreed only to give careful consideration to locating new programs at black campuses when those campuses present "realistic alternatives" in terms of cost and other factors.

In the veterinary school decision, Friday said the UNC board of governors had decided that N.C. State had strong supporting programs for a vet school and A & T did not.

Friday said that A & T "could be made an adequate base for this program only at enormous expense and over a long period of time."

Communists Seek Return Of Property

By The Associated Press
Hanoi and Saigon today demanded that all combat planes and ships taken out of South Vietnam be returned, but Thailand said it would leave a decision on 130 planes and helicopters on its soil up to the United States.

A Hanoi broadcast said the Foreign Ministry of the Revolutionary Government in Saigon charged that "dozens of warships, freighters, and hundreds of cargo and combat planes" were taken away.

It said all property inside and outside of South Vietnam — including gold — owned by the defeated Saigon regime belongs to the Vietnamese people and is at the disposal of the new government under international law.

In other developments: —Official French sources reported in Paris that the Khmer Rouge have destroyed several foreign embassies in Phnom Penh and no foreign mission was functioning in the Cambodian capital. A spokesman for President Valery Giscard d'Estaing said he was deeply concerned about the fate of a truck convoy supposedly bringing 610 foreigners from the French Embassy to the Thai border.

—A South Vietnamese spokesman said 103,000 enlisted men and noncommissioned officers taken prisoner around Da Nang have been released to their homes.

—The Viet Cong's Liberation

radio reported that President Duong Van "Big" Minh told Viet Cong officials that former President Nguyen Van Thieu tried to get away from South Vietnam with a large amount of gold "but we stopped him" from taking the gold out.

—A last group of 3,703 Vietnamese refugees was flown from the Utapao Air Base in Thailand, ending an American airlift operation to remove Vietnamese refugees from Thailand to Guam, American sources in Bangkok said.

—U.S. congressional leaders are expected to start work next week on a new bill to approve aid to Vietnamese refugees after rejecting one proposal Thursday because it included authorization for use of American military forces in the already completed evacuation.

North Vietnam's official newspaper Nhan Dan rejected j.u.s. claims of ownership of "planes, warships and other property of South Vietnam" taken to Thailand by fleeing Vietnamese officers.

It said the Thai government "must hand over to the PRG these aircraft and warships, and in the meantime, it has the duty to take care of them."

The Thai government at first said that the aircraft would be returned to Vietnam. But today, after pressure from Washington, Thai Defense Minister Pramarn Adireksarn said disposal of the aircraft was the responsibility of the United States.

Unemployment Up To 8.9 Per Cent

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate rose to 8.9 per cent in April, the government reported today, but there were some bright spots in the employment picture suggesting joblessness may be nearing its peak.

The 2 per cent increase in unemployment was at a slower rate than in March, and total employment rose for the first time in seven months. Nonfarm payroll employment also held steady, and the length of the work week edged up for the first time since the fall.

"I wouldn't want to say we're coming to the end of the line," said an analyst for the Bureau of Labor Statistics. But he added, "There's room for encouragement."

Unemployment in April rose by 200,000 to a total of 8,176,000 following an increase of 500,000 in March, when the jobless rate hit 8.7 per cent.

But total employment, which had declined by 2.6 million since September, increased last month by 240,000 to 84.1 million. With employment and unemployment both rising, the size of the U.S. labor force rose sharply for the second month in a row — to 92.3 million.

The Labor Department said adult males, who have experienced the greatest number of job losses during the current recession, accounted for more than half of the April employment gain.

The jobless rate, since hitting 8 per cent in January, has remained at the highest level since the depression of the 1930s. Not since 1941, when the rate averaged 9.9 per cent for the year out of a work force of 55.9 million, had it exceeded the 8 per cent mark.

A further rise in unemployment is expected in the next few months before it reaches the peak forecast by the Ford administration for about mid-year. However, despite new predictions of an economic improvement, joblessness is expected to remain at high levels through much of the 1970s.

Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop indicated Thursday that he believes the steep rise in unemployment experienced over the past seven months is losing steam. He predicted that joblessness will not go "much higher."

High Awards Bestowed On High School Paper

High marks went to a much-innovated "Rampant Lines" last week as the school newspaper won the Columbia (University) Scholastic Press Association's top "medalist" ranking and the National Scholastic Press Association's first class rating. This is a national high school newspaper award program.

Both honors indicate "an excellent publication, indicative of sound journalism and high standards." In Columbia competition, "Rampant Lines" scored 973 out of a possible score of 1000. First place requires at least 850 points.

Judges returned comments on first semester issues of the paper. "I'm glad you've gone to three-week publication," commented a NSPA (University of Minnesota) judge, in reference to this year's more frequent printing of "Rampant Lines." NSPA gave the paper "marks of distinction" in three categories: content and coverage, writing and editing, and editorial leadership.

The same mark in either physical appearance, or photography would have won the

Opening Plant Here Next Fall

Container Corporation of America, the country's largest producer of paperboard packaging, announced that it will open a manufacturing plant here this fall.

According to the firm, the plant will be the fourth in the state for Container Corporation and will produce composite cans for Pringle's potato chips which are processed in Greenville by Proctor & Gamble.

The local plant, currently under construction, is located at N. Greene Street and Industrial Boulevard. The site, it was pointed out, was selected by company officials after extensive study of the area, and with the cooperation and assistance of the Pitt County Development Commission.

Reese Hart Jr., executive director of the Development Commission, commented, "We are delighted to have a fine company like Container Corporation of America join the rapidly growing business and industrial community in this area."

Container Corporation also operates shipping container plants in Winston-Salem and Shelby, and a folding carton plant in Greensboro.

Whoopers Laid Their 3rd Egg

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's only captive whooping cranes to nest in nearly two decades have laid their third egg, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced.

Biologists removed the egg and placed it in an incubator and then destroyed the nest in hopes of encouraging the pair of nearly extinct whoopers to nest and mate again.

"We're hoping to get at least two more eggs out of her," said a Wildlife Service spokesman.

The productive cranes, named Joe and Josephine, are part of a flock of 21 whoopers kept at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center in nearby Maryland. Forty-nine whoopers survive in the wild.

Panelist Sees Greenville As Major Urban Center

All indications point to Greenville eventually becoming the largest urban center between Raleigh and the coast, between Wilmington and the Virginia border, Dr. Philip J. Adler noted in his Greenville Community Forum talk Wednesday night. This was the final of four Wednesday evening forums sponsored by The Division of Continuing Education, ECU.

Dr. Adler, an associate professor of history at East Carolina University, chose for his talk the intriguing title "When the Jay-C-Etts Out-number the Sewing Circle, Is

It Time To Cut Down The Old Magnolia Tree?"

Using the magnolia tree as a symbol of the South, and the sewing circle as a symbol of the feminine adjunct to men's occupations when eastern North Carolina and specifically Greenville was predominantly dependent on tobacco farming, Adler spoke about the change in the past two decades from a basically tobacco economy to a mixed farming-industrial-educational economy.

Among points he emphasized were the desirability of reaching a plateau or leveling out of population in Greenville; of continuing the policy of encouraging an economy resting on a mixture of varied selective industries; and of fostering a growing awareness in society that encompasses an ecological order based on a land society. Dr. Adler noted that in the past history of America, man could afford to be extravagant with natural resources, to disregard measures to protect the environment, but that this was no longer true.

Dr. Joe Pou, first of four panelists to speak, outlined highlights in the Greenville

Pitt County economic structure, noted that mechanization on the farms started in the late 1840's resulting in the replacement of farm labor to a significant degree. Referring to Adler's remarks about conservation of resources, Dr. Pou pointed out that one of the blessings about use of land for agriculture is that the same land resources can be used repeatedly. He cited 1974 figures of a crop produce in Pitt County bringing in $95, and that the same land with reasonable care can once more this year produce an equally valuable monetary asset to the community. Dr. Pou is an agribusiness expert with Wachovia Bank and Trust Company.

The second panelist, Acting City Manager Harry Hagerty, touched on his personal love for Greenville, his adopted home, where he has lived before and following a military career.

Hagerty also noted he took pride in having been a part of the process of helping Greenville to grow selectively, and that he felt this approach had paid benefits in many ways, including being able to maintain the warmth and close personal relationship between old timers and newcomers.

Curtis Hendrix, executive vice president of First State Bank and current president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce-Merchants Association, asserted that Greenville must still continue to maintain an orderly and controlled growth. He also mentioned that in his personal contacts with people who previously had lived here, he often encountered people who expressed a keen desire to live here again, even to the extent of taking a cut in

Helen Jackson Begins 'Ordeal'

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — She hates flying, gets nervous when she gives a speech and worries she'll say something wrong.

But her husband wants to be president of the United States, so Helen Jackson is starting to campaign again, 11 months and thousands of miles of traveling before the first presidential primary in March 1976.

"I'm bracing myself," said the wife of Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who lost his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972 but has again declared himself a candidate.

Bracing herself, because experience has taught her that a presidential campaign means a crush of handshakes, a constant smile, strange hotels and chicken dinners, the same answers to the same questions: What do you think of the economy, the energy crisis, abortion, women's lib?

"You have to be so careful of what you say," Mrs. Jackson said as the plane bumped down in Indianapolis recently, her first stop on a campaign trail she hopes will lead to the White House.

"I sympathize with Abigail McCarthy who said she lay awake nights worrying that she would say something that would ruin her husband's career," she said. Mrs. McCarthy, who is separated from former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, wrote "Private Forces, Public Places," a book about her political experiences.

Four years ago, Mrs. Jackson traveled almost exclusively with the man she calls "Dear Heart" while other candidates' wives campaigned alone for their husbands. This year Mrs. Jackson started her campaign by driving herself to the airport. Now she, too, plans to do some campaigning alone because "it's more practical, and we'll reach more people."

With her husband running close to President Ford in the opinion polls, she sees her duty as "helping people get to know Scoop better." She knows that if he is to secure his party's nomination this year, he must do better in the primaries than he did in 1972 when he finished third in Florida after a major effort, fifth in Wisconsin and a weak third in Ohio.

This time Mrs. Jackson plans to do some things differently, like spend more time at home with their two children, Peter, 9, and Anna Marie, 12.

"I'm not going out for a week or 10 days at a time," she said. "It's not good for the children. . . . At 41, Helen Jackson is an attractive woman who is more comfortable discussing her children than the Middle East crisis. Her blonde hair is always perfectly coiffed; she does need point to keep busy; she never disagrees with her husband publicly; and she freely admits she hasn't given the women's liberation movement much thought.

"I will have to do more study on that," she said. "It's accomplished so much since the last campaign. At first it turned me off . . . but they no longer consider housewives second-class citizens. I enjoy being a housewife, and I used to resent that." But should anyone be fooled by her quiet demeanor and radiant smile, Helen Jackson is a Vassar and Scripps College-educated woman with a master's degree from Columbia University in English literature. Politically, she is interested in the elderly, conservation and day care.

She hasn't collected her thoughts on other issues yet: "I'm not as well-versed as I should be. But I'll become more informed as we go along."

Jackson was a veteran of 20 years on Capitol Hill when he married Helen Hardin, daughter of an Albuquerque, N.M., mining executive. She was a young divorcee whose marriage to a hometown doctor lasted five years.

An old family friend, former Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., offered her a job in his Washington office. On her first day, Anderson introduced her to Jackson in an elevator.

That was January. The next December they were married.

Today, they live with their children in a two-story, brick colonial house on a winding, tree-lined street in a wealthy section of Washington called Spring Valley. The children are bused to public schools.

Will Seek To Override Ford's Farm Bill Veto

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House sponsors of a one-year emergency farm bill expect to ask their colleagues next week to override President Ford's veto of the measure.

Failing that, and failure is expected, House and Senate Agriculture committees plan to abandon any effort for higher supports for 1975 crops.

Leaders said they will return to their work on a farm bill that would cover the same ground for the years ahead, plus foreign food aid and food-stamp revisions.

Ford vetoed the measure Thursday as "not in the public interest." Administration experts said the bill would trigger massive new farm subsidies and result in higher consumer food prices.

Members of both parties in Congress also viewed the bill as the first test of Ford's promise to use vetoes to hold the federal deficit for fiscal 1976 to $60 billion.

The President said that, if farm prices deteriorate when this year's crops are harvested, he would order Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz to raise production loan rates to prevent disastrous effects on farmers' incomes.

The bill would raise the target prices on corn by 51 per cent, wheat by 63 per cent and cotton by 18 per cent. The government makes direct payments to farmers when the market falls below target.

The bill also would bolster federal milk price supports. Neither the original House bill nor the slightly modified version that emerged last month from a House-Senate conference won passage by the two-thirds margin that would be needed to override a veto.

Cautious Hope In Auto Industry

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. lost a record $94.1 million in the first quarter of 1975.

But the auto industry as a whole is expected to turn a profit this quarter and for the remainder of the year.

"The worst is now over," said an analyst for a major investment house in New York. "The companies have cut costs, and sales will pick up. The industry will return decisively to black ink in the second quarter."

Chrysler reported Thursday it had operating losses of $127 million in the January-March period. However, an accounting change and a tax credit reduced the loss by some $33 million. Even so, the net loss was the largest in the firm's 50-year history. In the first quarter last year, Chrysler showed a $1.6 million profit.

Ford Motor Co., with pretax losses of $158 million in the quarter, also used an accounting change and tax credit to cut net losses to $10.6 million. In the first quarter in 1974, Ford earned $124 million. General Motors, the only auto maker to turn a profit in the period, earned $85 million, or $59 million after taxes, its smallest return since 1946. Its first quarter earnings in 1974 were $120 million.

American Motors, which will release its results next week, has said it lost at least $10 million before taxes in the period. AMC showed first quarter earnings last year of $6.9 million.

The operating loss of the four companies compared with earnings of $253 million in the first quarter of 1974 and record profits of $1.3 billion in the first quarter in 1973.

Sanford Viewpoint On Primary Ready

RALEIGH (AP)—Sources say former Gov. Terry Sanford has prepared a new statement on the issue of the North Carolina presidential primary which is expected to be made public soon.

In it Sanford is reported to have asserted vigorously that he would welcome the opportunity to challenge Alabama Gov. George Wallace in the primary again.

Sanford, now president of Duke University, trailed Wallace by 107,000 votes in the 1972 Democratic presidential primary. Both Wallace and Sanford are expected to seek the Democratic presidential nomination again.

A Senate State Government subcommittee is considering a House-passed bill to abolish North Carolina's presidential primary. The drive for passage of the measure lost much of its steam after Wallace appeared at a hearing of the Senate Committee April 9 to urge retention of the primary.

During House consideration of the repeal bill, many political observers suggested Wallace would benefit from continuation of the primary while Sanford would gain greater strength from a caucus convention system of selecting Democratic National Convention delegates.

In an earlier letter to Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, chairman of the State Government Committee, Sanford said he had had no involvement with the presidential primary issue and would be "completely satisfied with whatever the state Senate decides."

Thursday Saw Four Collisions

More than $3,350 property damage resulted from a series of four traffic collisions investigated here yesterday.

Heaviest damage reported resulted from a three-vehicle collision on Elm Street at 12:47 p.m.

Investigators reported cars driven by Laura Quinney of Route 7, Greenville and Bradley Wayne Miller of 114 Alexander Circle, and a parked car owned by William Albert Harrison Sr. of Riverview Estates, were involved in the mishap.

Damage was estimated at $800 to the Quinney car, $500 to the Miller auto and $100 to the Harrison vehicle.

Officers reported investigation of the collision is continuing. Tommie Winston of Route 1, Nashville was charged with failing to stop for a stop light following investigation of an 11:07 a.m. collision at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Elm Street.

The Winston car, police reported, collided with an auto driven by Howard Bunyan Clay of 129 North Harding St., causing an estimated $800 damage to the Clay car and $250 damage to the Winston vehicle.

No charges were made following investigation of a 12:40 p.m. mishap on Dickinson Avenue, 60 feet East of the Truman Street intersection involving cars operated by Thomas Edward McCaskill of Route 1, Greenville and Cecil Ray Harris of Route 1, Farmville.

Police estimated damage at $300 to the McCaskill car and $400 to the Harris auto.

Barbara Ann Sumner of Cotten Hall was reported injured last night when the bicycle she was riding collided with a car about 8:20 at the intersection of Tenth Street and College Hill Drive.

Investigators identified the driver of the vehicle involved as Gary James Wong of Midway Park and estimated damage at $150 to the Wong car and $65 to the Sumner bicycle.

DAVID HOLMAN, a Canadian cab driver for the Windsor, Ont., Checker Cab Co., who was talked into a 1,300-mile trip to Florida by a pair of pretty girls late Saturday. The trip ended in Ft. Lauderdale as the two girls gave him and his $800 fare the slip. (AP Wirephoto)

USDA Plans Series Of Information Conferences

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Living Editor
Home canning can save money, but it also can kill you if you aren't careful.

Five of the seven Americans who died last year of foodborne botulism poisoning contracted the disease by eating home canned food. Commercially processed food accounts for only 10 per cent of the botulism outbreaks in this country, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

And last year America had 20 outbreaks, the largest number since 1935. The USDA said the increase is believed to be due mainly to new gardeners who canned much of their harvest. To prevent a repetition, and teach consumers safe canning methods, the USDA this month will launch a series of information and education conferences for new media and consumers group leaders in nine cities. The first is scheduled for April 25 in Los Angeles.

The others are set for Dallas, May 13; Atlanta, May 20; Philadelphia, June 4; Chicago, June 11; Denver, June 12; Minneapolis, June 17; Seattle, June 19; and Detroit, July 8.

Among the messages the USDA spokesmen will deliver is this:

Whether you garden or buy your produce for canning, you can't avoid the deadly bacteria that cause botulism poisoning.

NEW LAW
NEW YORK (UPI) — A new law, the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, went into effect in November. It is part of the Omnibus Education amendments of 1974 and was designed by Sen. James Buckley of New York.

It ensures parents and older students the right to inspect and challenge student records while limiting access by outside parties. It covers "any and all official records, files and data" directly related to a student. This includes grades, standardized test scores, attendance data, interest inventory results, health data, family background and teacher or counselor ratings and observations.

They are common in garden soil, and even careful washing of food cannot remove all the poison spores. The only way you can be sure of killing Clostridium botulinum is by processing food-filled jars or cans in a pressure canner at 240 degrees Fahrenheit for periods of time determined by the type of food and the size of the container used.

At a Washington news conference, government spokesmen also answered some of the questions about canning most frequently asked by consumers, and passed on tips to help assure safety.

Don't take shortcuts or experiment, particularly with low-acid produce, which includes all vegetables except for some varieties of tomatoes. Use only tested, approved methods, such as those described in USDA's booklet, Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables, Home

Miss Lowe To Be Honored

On Saturday, the Business Education and Office Administration Department of the School of Technology, East Carolina University, are honoring Miss Velma Lowe, who is retiring this year.

Miss Lowe's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Wesson, of Atlanta, and her niece and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Perry, also of Atlanta, will be here for the occasion.

Dr. Aubrey V. Dempsey, former chairman of the Business Education Department at East Carolina, retired, will come from her home in Greeley, Col. Dr. and Mrs. Leo W. J. Jenkins and members of the business education department will attend.

On Sunday, the Rho Zeta Chapter of Chi Omega Sorority, will honor Miss Lowe with a reception at the sorority house between 5-7 p.m. This is in recognition of Miss Lowe's retirement and also of her approaching marriage. Miss Lowe's friends are invited to the reception.

Young Woman Wants 'Rent-A-Granny' Established

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old unmarried woman. My father is Jewish, and my mother is Irish. I have always looked more like my father because I have the same little bump on my nose that he has. I never minded the bump because I love my father very much, and I never did get along with my mother.

Well, I got into an automobile accident, and they called in a plastic surgeon to sew up my face. Since my nose was in pretty bad shape, this doctor took the bump off, and I now look like my mother instead of my father.

Even though people remark on what an improvement it is, I became very depressed. I even went to a psychiatrist, and he said I should have the plastic surgeon restore my nose the way it was. That's what I want to do.

My problem is everybody I talk to. They tell me I should have my head examined. What do you say?

LOVES DADDY

DEAR LOVES: You DID have your head examined and were advised to do what you want to do about your nose. So do it.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I weighed 400 pounds. My life was hardly worth living. In fact, I planned to commit suicide after reaching the age of 21. (I was going to take heroin.)

I am now 22 and weigh 200 pounds, and I haven't touched drugs of any kind—and that includes alcohol and cigarettes—for two years.

I owe it all to a wonderful doctor at the University Hospital in Iowa City, Iowa, who performed a gastric bypass on me. Now I can eat as much as I want (which isn't very much anymore) and never worry about putting on a pound.

I wish you would print this for others who have found that dieting didn't work for them.

ONE HAPPY FELLOW

DEAR HAPPY: You make it sound so simple. After considerable research, I learned that gastric-bypass surgery, which proved so successful for you, is not for everyone. There are risks involved. Those who are interested should discuss it with their physicians.

DEAR ABBY: As a police officer, may I say something to the man who objected to women wearing pants suits? Not one victim of the rape cases I have handled was wearing a tailored pants suit. One was wearing a slinky pajama sort of thing; the others were wearing either skirts or shorts.

ACOP

DEAR ABBY: I have a question to ask that has been bothering both my husband and me for a long time. We have two little girls. Our third daughter was stillborn. When people ask us how many children we have, what is the best answer?

WISCONSIN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: The best answer is your own: "We have two little girls. Our third daughter was stillborn."

BPW Club District Meet Held In Kinston

KINSTON—The Business and Professional Women's Club district meeting was held here at King's Restaurant Saturday. Mrs. Naomi R. Edwards of Greenville, District IX director, presided. The Kinston Club hosted the meeting.

Mrs. Belle Boyles, president of the Kinston Club, called the meeting to order and welcomed the members and guests. Response was given by Capt. Loretta J. Liebs, president of the Havelock Club.

During the business session, Mrs. Bertie Reed of Washington, chairman of the nominating committee, presented a slate of nominees for 1975-76 offices. Mrs. Margaret B. Peyton of the Kinston Club, the 1975-76 District IX director will have serving with her, Miss Irene E. Lewis of Goldsboro, District director-elect and Mrs. Muriel Smith of Kinston, District secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Helen Mahlum of New Bern, Eastern Area vice president, gave a brief report of her year's work in the area.

Mrs. Edwards gave a report of her year's work in the district. She has visited all 10 clubs in the district and some of them more than one time, making it a point to visit during business meeting to observe regular workings of the club. Mrs. Edwards was given a standing ovation and congratulations for the work that she has done in the district this year.

Mrs. Betty Powell of Tarboro, state president-elect, made a few remarks pertaining to the State Federation.

Mrs. Carolyn Williams, State Federation president, brought greetings from the N.C. State Federation.

A highlight of the meeting was the "Young Careerist Program." Eight clubs in the district were represented by a young career woman, who spoke on her chosen career. The winner in this contest was Peggy Sawyer of Greenville, who is an interior designer with Larry's Carpetland. She will compete with other district winners at the BPW State Convention in June in Raleigh. Special music for the meeting was rendered by Mrs. Nora Jean Hill of Kinston, singing, "America the Beautiful" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic." She was accompanied at the piano by Virginia Warrington of New Bern.

There was a brief memorial service for members who died during the 1974-75 year.

By JOHN LEAHIGH
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — After her husband died Anne Beckman couldn't find a job and decided to create work for elderly and retired persons in a program called "Rent-a-Granny."

That was 13 years ago and now the widowed grandmother with 35 years' experience in social service work is director of the Job Placement Service for Elderly of the American Association of Retired Persons.

As of March the nonprofit program she started on a volunteer basis in 1962 had placed 4,415 persons in part-time, temporary or full employment. Of the city's 3,500 sub-poverty level persons 60 or more years of age, the energetic Mrs. Beckman estimates "we have helped 1,300 in some measurable way."

To some, the service has meant not only employment but the time of their lives at salaries ranging from $50 a week to $22,000 a year.

Recently, Mrs. Beckman said, an elderly man signed on as a companion for a wealthy "gentleman who wanted someone to travel with him, and the person got to go to Europe and all over." The $22,000 job went to a technical oil engineer.

Mrs. Beckman has 118 applications on standby and 114 job openings listed by potential employers. She says "jobs are becoming so diversified we need more diversified workers."

Club Officers Are Named

Officers for the coming year were elected when the Dilettante Book Club met Monday night at the home of Mrs. Clarence Kelsey.

Mrs. Jack Thornton was named incoming president. Assisting her will be Mrs. John C. Ellen, vice president, Mrs. Lionel Kendrick, secretary, Mrs. Charles Q. Brown, treasurer, Mrs. Philip E. Carroll, librarian, Mrs. Elmer Lansche, social chairman, and Mrs. John Lautares, yearbook chairman.

Carl R. Woxman Sr. presented a film program of a recent trip to India.

The club finalized plans for a luncheon May 10 at the Henderson House, New Bern.

After her husband's death she "couldn't get a job so I decided I would create jobs for others" through Rent-A-Granny which became part of the federally funded Manpower Program in the city in mid-1973. Mrs. Beckman operates her referral and counseling service on a budget of $20,000 annually, covering all expenses, including the salaries of herself and her secretary, Mrs. Lee Landry, also a grandmother.

Mrs. Beckman began her program with one line in the yellow pages of the telephone book and "lots of talks and speeches selling the program at service clubs...every place."

First calls were for child care workers—"we don't use the word babysitter around here," she said—but today job orders total more than 300 a month from a large variety of occupations. In a recent month, she says, the service placed 226 candidates in child care, housekeeping, painting, home repairs, nursing, sewing, accounting, bookkeeping, sales, data processing, switchboards, chauffeuring and general store work.

Mrs. Beckman said there has been no problem with employers taking advantage of the program to obtain cheap labor. In fact, she said, most employers prefer older persons, already trained, and the service often involves "the celdery hiring the older worker."

Persons 55 or older are eligible for the program which Mrs. Beckman said has been so successful that "people have moved and retired here" after reading chamber of commerce literature on the service. Participants are required to undergo counseling before going to a job.

"We do a concentrated study on each and every person who comes in here," Mrs. Beckman said. "There are so many things we have to do to help them."

She tries "to build up dignity" in the elderly "who have been out looking for work" without success.

"You take a man who has worked in an office all his life," she said. "He comes in and doesn't want anything to do except office work."

"He may have to change his concept. If we are positive we can't get a job for him in an office, we'll say, 'Why don't you try to sell in a retail store and meet people? Why don't you go into a lumber yard? Use your muscles and let your brain rest for awhile.'"

"Or take the elderly widow in her early 70s who never had any work outside the home. The husband has paid all the bills, and so on, and when he dies she is left bereft with nothing but this big home and doesn't know what to do with it. After six or seven months of desolation, she comes to us, and through counseling finds out being a good hostess is all she knows how to do."

The combination of the home and the woman's graciousness, says Mrs. Beckman, is a prime ingredient for a successful boarding home operation. Her counseling service has had a hand in the creation of several in Albuquerque.

"House-sitters," persons who live in a home while the owner and his family are out of town on business or vacation, also are in demand. Before anyone is assigned as a house-sitter, Mrs. Beckman said, the counseling service checks them out thoroughly.

"Retired ministers make beautiful house-sitters as do doctors," she said. "When the elderly go there to house sit, they stay put."

Eventually Annother Crossroads

Vietnam is finished. Just as all the world knew would happen weeks ago, Communist troops have marched into Saigon and the long and agonizing war is over.

Perhaps General Duong Van Minh was the most sensible person in all the land. At long last given power over the dwindling territory that was left to South Vietnam, he did the only logical thing: he surrendered unconditionally to the Communists.

Only by throwing themselves completely on the mercy of the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong could the South Vietnamese have any hope of avoiding the blood bath that many, even now, feel will come. At least the surrender avoided the destruction of Saigon which a final, but hopeless, fight by South Vietnam would have brought about.

Now the people of Vietnam are left to their own fate.

For the United States the involvement has been disastrous. Whether we should have been there or not, we were; and the final loss of Vietnam is sure to be viewed by the world as an American loss.

The question now remains how the fall of Vietnam will affect the United States in the years ahead. Well, everything is not negative. The Communist world has been steadily advancing in territory since World War II, but we did slow that advance down in this long and divisive Vietnam fight.

There are cracks in the Communist world now and we may have gained time to take advantage of those divisions. Right now Communist countries are having to choose between the leadership of the Soviet Union and China, and Vietnam, too, will have to choose between the Red giants.

With all that, though, we would be naive to think that the end of the Vietnam conflict will mean an era of peace ahead. Whether we want it or not, the war is not over for the United States; for the policy of both the China and Soviet blocs of Communism is expansionist. Unless we are willing to stand by and see our friends swallowed up one-by-one, we will eventually again have to take a stand. While that is not a pleasant prospect, it is one that we will ultimately have to face.

THIS AFTERNOON The Fight For Number-Two

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Things are shaping up for a full field of contenders in the race for North Carolina's number-two slot—lieutenant governor—equally as strongly as that for the governor's office.

Some insiders for predicting between 12 and 15 candidates for the office now held by Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., who is a certain entry into the race for the governor's office.

Neither the governor nor the lieutenant governor can succeed himself under the North Carolina Constitution. The election will be held in November, 1976; but sights are currently set on the Democratic Party primary earlier in 1976. Some think it too early to seriously consider candidates that far away, but the facts of political life—especially fund-raising, getting firm commitments, and setting up the nucleus of local campaign organizations—require that serious candidates be up and moving now.

The list of contenders for the lieutenant governor's office who are known to be actively seeking support and talking with possible campaign workers is topped by three leaders who are given the strongest position by a variety of political sources:

3 Leaders

—State Senator John T. Henley, a pharmacist from Hope Hills in Cumberland County, just south of Fayetteville. Henley is currently President Pro Tempore of the State Senate, standing in for Hunt when he is absent.

—State Rep. James C. Green, a Clarkston tobaccoist who is the current Speaker of the N. C. House of Representatives. Green has kept an open door to entry into the governor's race, but close associates now say he is really aiming at the number-two position.

—State Rep. Herbert L. Hyde of Asheville, widely regarded as a leading expert on constitutional law and the only attorney among the top three contenders.

There are other possible candidates, already being mentioned, and some others who may emerge in coming weeks or months; especially as the governor's race firms up and those interested in that possibility re-examine their positions and perhaps lower sights accordingly. Some have been actively discussing the prospects,

The N.C. SCENE Anti-Porn Fight Smolders

By JOHN KILGO

The city of Charlotte has just gone through a roaring controversy about dirty books and films that are prevalent in the city—and it appears certain this battle against pornography will spread to other cities in North Carolina.

Charlotte attorney Allen A. Bailey, who is also president of the N.C. Baptists Association, was the leader in a fight to get the Charlotte City Council to adopt an ordinance that would have put smut peddlers out of business. Council refused by a 5-1 vote, after four weeks of stormy debate, to pass the Bailey-written ordinance.

"The City Council voted today," Bailey said after his proposal was defeated Monday. "The people will vote in November."

Charlotte's City Council and Mayor are up for reelection in November of this year.

It is known that Bailey was encouraged in his fight against pornography by the Christian Action League, which took a leading part in helping defeat liquor-by-the-drink in North Carolina two years ago.

Bailey hinted that other cities and towns in North Carolina will be asked to pass anti-pornography ordinances similar to the one Charlotte rejected. Bailey's proposed ordinance would have made the enforcement of laws against pornography take their turn through civil court rather than the criminal courts.

"My office spent hundreds of hours researching this ordinance," Bailey told me, "and I'm as satisfied as I can be that it was constitutional. We used the exact language in the ordinance that the U.S. Supreme Court used in defining pornography."

Charlotte's City Attorney Henry Underhill disagreed with Bailey on that point. Underhill advised Council that, in his opinion, the ordinance was unconstitutional. Underhill has also claimed that Bailey's ordinance would have made the City Council a board of censors.

Bailey was highly irritated by Underhill's legal opinion. "He didn't take the time to research the matter before he started rattling off legal advice," Bailey said. "A first year law student could have done better."

Attorney Neill Williams, a freshman member on Charlotte's City Council, was the most outspoken critic of Bailey's ordinance. "In this case," Williams said, "the cure is definitely worse than the disease."

Other people opposed to the ordinance claimed it would chip away at a person's right to read what he pleased. They also claimed that no one was forced to read a dirty book or view so-called offensive films.

In saying others might make attempts to have anti-pornography ordinances passed in other North Carolina communities, Bailey sounded a clear warning for members of Charlotte's City Council who voted his ordinance down.

"If I live until November,"

THE COMMON SHRUB BELOW

Gardeners know that when some highly cultivated shrub has been grafted onto a more common variety of shrub, the common shrub will on occasion send up shoots from below to mingle with and mar the beauty of the grafted shrub.

Our spiritual natures are similarly grafted onto our physical natures. St. Paul expressed it when he said, "First that which is natural and afterward that which is spiritual." First the common shrub; after that, the

By ART BUCHWALD The Handgun Advocate

WASHINGTON—I have a lobbyist friend who works for the right of every American to own a handgun. His name is Luger and, despite what people say about handgun fanciers, he is not a nut. He does get a little excited though when anyone talks about regulating the sale of handguns and even tends to froth at the mouth. But it's all an act. Luger knows that if there were no attempts to pass handgun laws he wouldn't be paid $50,000 a year to kill the legislation.

The other day he said to me, "You always write the bad things about handguns. Why don't you write the good things as well? Why don't you give both sides of the story?"

"You're right," I said. "I think I should be more objective about gun control. What should I say?"

"You can think of something," he said.

"All right. Handguns are good because they're cheap. They cost less now than they did 10 years ago, and since Taking To The Hills?

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite claims of complete control of South Vietnam, the new revolutionary government, and Hanoi still may have the problem of continued holdouts and vestigial guerrilla units from remnants of the Vietnamese army, official sources report.

The sources say some military units in the Mekong Delta including those from the Ho Hao and Cao Dai religious sects, may still be holding out.

Other groups east of Da Nang and among the Montagnards in the central highlands also may have melted into the hills to await further action without surrendering their arms.

However, there is no military leader at this point who could unify these diverse units.

Anti-Communist guerrillas would face many difficulties particularly in finding a constant source of supply.

In the past, South Vietnamese told American officials that if the Viet Cong came to Saigon they would go to the lairs of the VC.

Some of this thinking is believed to be operating now.

The new bosses of South Vietnam who came from a guerrilla warfare background have moved swiftly to stop an insurgency before it can develop. It is believed this is one of the reasons they demanded that South Vietnam's last president, Duong Van "Big" Minh, disband the army and the administrative apparatus of the Vietnam government.

The new revolutionary government is expected to move slowly in consolidating its forces.

The Provisional Revolutionary Government — PRG as it was known before taking power — was not a government in the full sense of the word. It was more of a cabinet with only 125 people in top positions.

At the grass roots areas where the Viet Cong held control, there were revolutionary committees.

But there was no in-between.

Health officer Doctor Ernett and the nurses of the health department are examining and instructing the midwives of Pitt County today and tomorrow at the Pitt County Health Department.

There are 39 midwives in Pitt County.

The maternity and infant mortality rate in Pitt County is very high, and the state and local health departments are doing everything possible to reduce this high rate.

Since a large number of mothers are still being served by the midwives, the health department plans to raise the standards of midwives.

A physical examination of the midwife will be given to make sure she cannot transmit a disease to the mother and infant. She will be given a check-up course in principles and practices of midwifery and the nurse will check her equipment.

Expectant mothers are also advised to write the state health department in Raleigh for information about what to expect from a midwife.

Other Editors Say Economizing

(Henderson Dispatch)

You have read of talk in Congress about economizing, but how much of it have you actually seen? One guess will answer. You hear a lot about it in the Legislature also but wait until the budget is finally approved some two months hence, and see if you find the spots where economy was given a fling.

You don't hear much about economy in county or city. Nor do you see evidences of it.

We will borrow this from a U.S. Press Association release. Read it and see how it settles on the stomach. Twenty years ago, the House and Senate in Congress had combined staffs of 5,600 people and a $42 million budget. At present there are 16,000 employees and a budget of $328 million. But that isn't all. A Senate resolution is now being considered that would add 900 more people to senatorial staffs. That's just the Senate alone, and there are only 100 senators!

Senator Herman Talmadge of Georgia is leading his fight against this lavish outlay, and is assisted by Senator Helms. These solons are only two. Who else is opposed is not indicated. Nor is there certainty that the proposal can be defeated.

So this is the sort of economizing Capitol Hill does. Regardless of the low state of the economy, the honorables feel they must be kept in abundance and luxury. They would raise their individual salaries from the present $42,500 to around $50,000 if they were not fearful of the reaction back home. There probably would be and certainly should be.

Why do not congressmen rise up in resentment against the projected sharp increase in postal rates? For one thing, of course, they are accorded free postage and it wouldn't hit them.

Curtailment, Not Conservation

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When U.S. energy use dropped last year, delighted government officials hoped it was the start of a new trend.

But statistics indicate that the economic recession was more responsible than anything else for the decline. Thus, energy use is expected to start climbing again when the economy rebounds.

The Department of the Interior announced last month that U.S. energy consumption fell 2.2 per cent during 1974. Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton said he was "delighted" and "frankly gratified" — at this drop. I hope we are seeing the start of a new trend.

Energy use, however, historically has been linked to Gross National Product — the value of goods and services produced by the economy.

And for 1974, the GNP was down from 1973 by the same 2.2 per cent that energy use fell.

Roger Sant, the Federal Energy Administration's assistant administrator for conservation and environment, said in an interview he takes last year's energy consumption figures "neither with encouragement nor discouragement."

Sant contends, however, that one year is too short a period in which to expect conclusive results.

When 1974 energy-use figures were announced, Morton cited five causes for the decline in usage: Arab oil embargo, higher prices, economic slowdown, successful conservation efforts and favorable weather.

No government experts could be located, however, who had calculated just how much of the decrease was attributable to each cause.

"Because there are so many variables, we don't know which caused what," said Sant.

For future savings, the Ford administration and Democratic congressional leaders are pushing a policy that depends in significant part on curbing use through higher prices. Elements of that plan, now being studied in Congress, include deregulation of certain gas and oil prices, higher fees on imported oil, higher gasoline taxes and excise taxes on gasguzzling autos.

Sant acknowledged that his office has trimmed some of its earlier estimates on how much price rises would cut consumption of energy, but he still maintains: "The price has to have some effect."

The relationship of demand to price is called price elasticity. Sant's experts now figure that, for every 10 per cent rise in price, a 1 per cent saving in energy will result over a one-year period.

If, for example, you now spend 60 cents a gallon for gasoline and use 50 gallons a month, these elasticity predictions say that, if the price rose to 66 cents per gallon, you'd trim your usage to 49.5 gallons a month. That might be the equivalent of one less trip to the supermarket.

Sant said energy figures for 1974 reflect hardly any conservation in industry but instead simply show curtailment of energy.

"But equipment is getting in place and changes are under way now, so that conservation will replace curtailment," he said.

Propose Bounty On Missing Fathers

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government today proposed cutting off payments to welfare mothers who refuse to help identify and track down the father of their children, but mothers who cooperate would be rewarded with cash bounties.

Rules proposed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare also would require all adult applicants or recipients of family welfare payments to obtain Social Security numbers and furnish those numbers to a welfare agency.

Those mothers who cooperated in identifying the missing fathers would be rewarded with cash incentives of up to $20 a month in child-support payments without any loss of welfare assistance. Support payments beyond the first $20 would then begin to reduce the amount of welfare payments to the family.

HEW estimates there are 1.3 million fathers who have deserted their children and left their support to welfare, thus costing state and federal taxpayers $1.5 billion a year.

The regulations are designed to put into effect the 1974 amendments to the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program, which pays about $8 billion a year to more than 11 million poor adults and their children.

The public has 30 days to comment on the rules which take effect July 1.

If a mother refused to cooperate in locating the father of a child, establishing paternity of a child born out of wedlock and obtaining support payments, she would lose her share of the family's benefits.

The children's benefits, in such a case, would be handled by the local welfare agency or another third party.

The government also would, for the first time, turn over now-confidential AFDC case records to nonwelfare "public officials," not otherwise identified in the proposed regulations, for the purpose of collecting child-support payments. Possession of a Social Security number would become a condition of eligibility for receiving AFDC assistance. The numbers would assist in identifying welfare recipients, help job placement and double-check for other possible sources of income or support.

Other provisions will be published "in the near future," HEW said.

Home Role In Mental Health Is Underlined

JACKSONVILLE—The home environment and improvement of quality of life in the community are key ingredients in programs dealing with America's number one health problem, mental health, says Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, Chancellor of East Carolina University.

"The home cannot abdicate its responsibilities," Dr. Jenkins told the Onslow County Mental Health Assn. here Thursday. "Much of what is basic in life is learned early and the home is the natural and first place for such instruction."

"It is a fortress that cannot be captured," Jenkins urged the mental health association members to stress the importance of "assuming full responsibilities of family hood and parenthood...make your family an instrument for good in your neighborhood."

bureaucracy connecting the revolutionary committees at the bottom and the PRG command at the top, according to analysts here.

Now, it is expected that new revolutionary committees will be established not only at all village levels but also in the big cities such as Saigon, which has been renamed Ho Chi Minh City. One revolutionary committee is being formed for each 3,000 people.

Based on past experience and on Communist doctrine, the prognosis for South Vietnam is a rough, mean and probably bloody transformation into a Communist state. The main hope here is that the new rulers are sensitive to world public opinion.

Annual Research Award Is Presented Dr. Lamb

ECU RESEARCH AWARD—Dr. Robert C. Lamb (right) Professor and Chairman of the Department of Chemistry at East Carolina University, is presented the annual Bisplinghoff

Dr. Robert C. Lamb, professor and chairman of the Department of Chemistry, is the 1975 winner of the annual Bisplinghoff Award for outstanding research among East Carolina University science faculty.

Dr. Lamb's research on organic peroxides, "Kinetics of Decomposition of Some Acylperoxy Compounds," was recognized in presentation of the award Thursday evening at the annual banquet of the ECU chapter of Sigma Xi, the Scientific Research Society of North America.

The award was presented by Dr. Robert L. Holt, Vice Chancellor and Dean, during banquet ceremonies.

Graduate and undergraduate awards for scientific research went respectively to Thomas M. Vickers Jr. and Russell N. Holmes, and a certificate of merit for graduate research went to Diane Gardner.

Forty-one new members of the ECU chapter of Sigma Xi were initiated, and new officers installed. New officers are Dr. Prem Sehgal, president; Dr. G. Everett, president-elect; Dr. S. McDaniel, secretary; and Dr. C. Hampton, treasurer.

Dr. Blanche Watrous of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology was banquet speaker on the topic, "Sigma Xi and Anthropology: Then and Now."

Promotions In ECU Faculty

Additional promotions in East Carolina University's professional schools have been announced by campus administrators. All promotions in rank become effective September 1.

In ascending order, faculty members are ranked instructor, assistant professor, associate professor and professor.

Names of the newly promoted faculty and their ranks follow:

School of Allied Health and Social Professions (Dean Ronald Thiele): William C. Byrd, George F. Hamilton and W.

Garrett Hume, professor; Joe Frankford, Patricia Garton, Yan-Jeong Lao, Robert Muzarelli and Gerald Southerland, associate professor; and Margaret Nelson and Jeanette Whitehurst, assistant professor.

Health Affairs Library: Jo Ann Bell, associate professor. School of Nursing (Dean Evelyn Perry): Barbara Adams and Joanne Suggs professor; Judith Tripp Garrison, Inez Martinez, Lona Ratcliffe and Bonnie Evans Waldrop, associate professor; Belinda Temple and Eugenia Yount, assistant professor.

Newspaper Pricing Continues To Rise

By The Associated Press

At the newsstand or delivered to the front porch, newspapers are costing more in many American cities and towns. The rising costs of paper, ink and wages are the main reasons, newspapers say.

The New York Post, the afternoon newspaper in New York City, will raise its newsstand price from 20 cents to 25 cents next Monday.

"Sharp increases in the cost of wages, newsprint, ink and other supplies in all areas of the New York Post's operations make it necessary to raise the newsstand price," the newspaper told readers Thursday.

Newsprint is the paper on which newspapers are printed.

In Washington State, the Walla Walla Union-Bulletin announced Wednesday an increase from $3 to $3.50 a month in the cost of daily and Sunday home delivery.

The associate publisher of the Union-Bulletin, Frank A. Blethen, said the newspaper now pays $280 a ton for newsprint, up 47 per cent from March 1974.

Newsstand price of the Union-Bulletin will remain at 15 cents daily and 25 cents Sunday.

The Boston Herald American will raise its newsstand price from 15 cents to 20 cents next Monday.

The Boston Globe raised its price from 15 cents to 20 cents last month.

Other newspapers that recently have raised their price from 15 cents to 20 cents include the Portsmouth (N.H.) Herald, the Democrat and Chronicle and the Times-Union in Rochester, N.Y. and the Daily Press and Observer-Dispatch in Utica, N.Y.

HARMFUL FUMES
DALLAS (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency warns that pesticides improperly placed in spray cans can leak harmful fumes.

It says if the closure seal of the can is damaged during filling, leaks of colorless, odorless gas may develop that could cause death.

Hundreds Of California Doctors Quitting Work

BY LINDA KRAMER
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP) — Only emergency cases were being handled at many hospitals in northern California after hundreds of doctors chose to quit work rather than pay a hike in malpractice insurance of up to 322 per cent.

At most private hospitals in eight northern counties, only major surgery was performed Thursday, although rural areas were not affected as dramatically. Three San Francisco hospitals were handling in-house crises, but were not admitting new surgical cases.

Most of the hospitals laid off staff because of the curtailment of services and more layoffs were expected as patients now hospitalized were released.

There was no exact count on how many of the 4,000 physicians faced with spiraling insurance hikes refused to renew their coverage Thursday, but it had been estimated that up to 50 per cent would stop work.

Argonaut Insurance Co. of California, which handles malpractice insurance in 30 states, triggered the crisis when it decided to drop such coverage. The company later told California doctors it would renew insurance on an individual basis for three-month periods for up to a year.

High risk insurance rates for anesthesiologists, which have been averaging $5,377 a year, would go as high as $21,508. Rates for low risk practice such as that performed by psychiatrists would go from a low of $1,131 a year to a high of $4,912.

Many private hospitals were referring pregnant women to public hospitals not affected by the malpractice situation.

Physicians and hospitals are hoping for legislation to resolve the crisis. The legislature sent a bill to establish an insurance pool to Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. Thursday, but Brown was working on his own solution.

Under California law, a doctor could practice without malpractice insurance, but hospitals risk losing their own insurance if they allow uninsured doctors to practice.

Install Pipeline Beneath River

TONSINA, Alaska (UPI) — The first sections of pipe for the 798-mile trans-Alaska pipeline have been installed beneath the Tonsina River.

The installation marks the start of actual pipeline construction. Construction of roads and temporary camps, and other work at pumping stations and the marine terminal, have been underway since April 29, 1974.

Will Be Tourist If He Returns

LOS ANGELES (AP) —

Francis Gary Powers, the American pilot whose spy plane was shot down over the Soviet Union 15 years ago, says that if he ever goes back to Russia it will be as a tourist.

On Thursday, the 15th anniversary of his capture, Powers said that although he spent 17 months in the Soviet Union, it was in a jail cell.

"I know nothing about the Soviet Union," he said. "Although I've seen it from high altitude, it's not the same as walking along the ground, talking to the people."

Powers, 45, is now flying over Los Angeles as a reporter for radio station KGIL, reporting on the freeway traffic conditions.

Imputing 'Maleness' To God Is Termed Distortion Of The Truth

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With some churches acting to get rid of "sexist" terminology, a problem regularly comes up about usages which impute maleness to God.

"It's a distortion of the truth," says Dr. Leonard Swidler, a theologian and church historian of Temple University in Philadelphia. "It's also the ultimate put-down to women."

In classic Judeo-Christian teaching, God is neither male nor female, nor delimited in any way to bodily organs, but traditionally and in most Biblical passages, has been referred to in the masculine gender as "He."

On the surface, church scholars note, this often has led to scaled-down, erroneous impressions of God as a kind of patriarchal grandfather or "man upstairs," a gross caricature of the Judeo-Christian view of God as an infinite, omniscient Spirit.

Because it both distorts basic convictions, causing superficial misconceptions, and also implies male superiority, Swidler says, the language for addressing God needs to be modified, and there are Biblical grounds for doing so.

"We do have precedents both in Scripture and Judeo-Christian tradition for also referring to God in feminine imagery," he said in a telephone interview. "It's not a strong tradition, but it's there."

Although God cannot be accurately referred to in either sexual category, Swidler said that this becomes necessary because of the limited experience of humans which inevitably also limits their language.

Their only words for referring to a person are either "he" or "she," including God, whom Christianity regards as a personal being, which is the highest form of being known to humanity, surpassing an impersonal "it."

"In our language, we're left with four possible choices, using 'he,' using 'she,' using both or coining a new word," Swidler says. Since new words can't be automatically imposed, he suggests using both pronouns, complementarily. Swidler, an interreligiously versed Roman Catholic who edits the Journal of Ecumenical Studies, has worked out a tentative revision of the church liturgy, eliminating sexually classifying references to God.

"O God, our Father and Mother," the prayers put it. As for the liturgical recasting, he said it aims only at "getting people to recognize we have a problem," and to start trying to resolve it. Some denominations, to a degree, already have taken steps in that direction.

While the Bible mainly uses male pronouns referring to God, Swidler notes scattered feminine implications. Isaiah 66:13 says God comforts as a "mother comforts." A parable of Jesus in Luke 15 portrays God as like a woman seeking the lost.

The Hebrew word for God's Spirit, "Ruach," is of feminine gender, referring to God's creative force. The "wisdom" of God is portrayed as feminine in Proverbs and in the Catholic books of Wisdom and Ecclesiastes.

Thy mysterious inclusivity of God's nature is hinted in various plural designations, such as the Hebrew word, "Elohim," with its feminine suffix.

Singing Service On Saturday

GRIMESLAND—The Grimesland F.W.B. Church will have a gospel singing service Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The featured singers will be the Gospel Chargers. Other groups will also participate.

A revival will begin at the church Monday with Evangelist Billy Jackson as the speaker. Services will begin each night at 7:30 and continue through Saturday.

Special singing, including the Harrington Trio of Greenville on Tuesday night and the Haddock Family on Thursday night, will be presented.

Rev. Wilson To Speak Sunday

The Rev. W. S. Wilson of Grimesland will speak at Burney's Chapel F.W.B. Church, Black Jack, Sunday at 6 p.m.

He will be assisted by the Hansley Sisters of Grimesland. The service is being sponsored by the Women's Day Committee of the church.

Service Station Robbed In Night

Greenville Police today are continuing their investigation of a break-in at Buck's Gulf Station at 2704 East Tenth St. discovered before dawn this morning.

Chief Glenn Cannon said thieves forced open the door to the wash pit at the station to gain entrance, and took $75 in change and a .38 caliber pistol and holster valued at $90 from the service station office.

plain as the nose on your face

That's the way Grandma described things that were absolutely clear.

Religion was one of these!

Of course, she knew that theologians debate certain subjects. She sometimes lamented the fact there were so many denominations—which in her day weren't cooperating as they are now. And Granny was fully aware that a few individuals claim to be atheists or agnostics.

But the idea that God created us... loves us... seeks us... saves us. To Granny that was plain as the nose on your face.

As Granny often added: Even a child knows that! Every Sunday millions of them are proving her right.

Defense Jubilant As Little Trial Site Is Moved

By CATHY STEELE ROCHE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Attorneys for Joan Little were jubilant Thursday after a state judge ordered the young black woman's murder trial moved from rural eastern North Carolina to Raleigh.

Superior Court Judge Henry McKinnon granted the defense motion for a change of venue as nearly three weeks of pre-trial motions came to an end in Beaufort County Superior Court.

He said the move was "in the interest of justice for both the state and defendant."

Court sources indicated the trial would begin during the second week of July. Defense attorneys predicted it would last between one and two months.

Miss Little, 20, said after the decision that she was hopeful she could get a fair trial in Wake County Superior Court in Raleigh.

"I think the people in Wake County are not as racist as the people in Beaufort County. I hope they will fulfill the confidence I have in them to make sure I get a fair trial," Miss Little said.

She is charged with first degree murder in the stabbing death of a white Beaufort County jailer who was found dead in her cell last Aug. 27. The jailer, Clarence Alligood, 62, was naked from the waist down.

Miss Little claims he was trying to rape her and that she stabbed him in self defense.

with his own icepick, then fled the jail in fear for her life.

During two days of testimony on the change of venue motion the defense sought to show that attitudes in eastern North Carolina were more racist than those in urban areas to the west and would prevent Miss Little from getting a fair trial.

McKinnon indicated he considered the defense evidence, although he declined to say that Miss Little could not have received a fair trial in Beaufort County or adjacent Pitt County.

The prosecution had agreed to move the trial out of Beaufort County, but refused to agree to move it beyond an adjoining county. North Carolina law states that a trial may be moved only to an adjacent county.

McKinnon said, however, that his ruling did not involve overturning any part of the change of venue statute.

"It is what I believe to be an inherent power of the court to go beyond the statute if the circumstances are justified," he said after the ruling.

Dist. Atty. William Griffin filed an exception to the ruling, but said he did not think he had grounds for appeal.

McKinnon's decision followed a morning of consultation with prosecution and defense attorneys. The defense agreed to waive a jury challenge in Wake County.

Miss Little, who seldom appeared during the pretrial hearing, was called to the courthouse to testify before McKinnon that she understood and accepted her attorneys' motion for a change of venue.

Defense attorney Jerry Paul has said for months that he felt he must get the trial moved to an urban area. He said after the ruling that the motion was the most important one the defense argued.

McKinnon had earlier denied several motions to quash the indictment against Miss Little, including one based on a challenge to the Beaufort County jury system.

Paul called the ruling "a step in the long road to freedom" for Miss Little. He said, "We have shown there was a high level of racism in this area that must be dealt with in order to get a fair trial for black defendants."

Special prosecutor John Wilkinson, a local attorney hired by the Alligood family to aid Griffin, was angry about the decision. Red faced and blustering, he claimed loudly that McKinnon did not have authority to move the trial to Raleigh.

"It imposes a heavy burden on the state to try the case this far away," he complained.

Wilkinson said the state attorney general's office had advised the judge that he had the authority to move the trial. McKinnon, asked about the report, said the attorney general's office had no part in the decision.

It is not known whether McKinnon will hear the case when it comes to trial. He was appointed by the chief justice of the State Supreme Court to handle the pretrial motions in a special session of court.

Two Killed By Toxic Gas

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Toxic gas produced when a tank truck driver pumped sulfuric acid into the wrong vat killed two tannery workers and left 27 other men, including six firemen, ill.

Killed Thursday were Jamie L. West, 43, and James Perkins, 34, both of Milwaukee. Hospital officials said they died of acute asphyxiation.

Three employees remained hospitalized in critical condition early today from effects of inhaling hydrogen sulfide gas created when the acid was pumped into a third-floor vat containing sodium hyperchlorite, 4th Battalion Fire Chief Clarence Redlewicz said.

He said the heavier-than-air gas, described by a chemist as "very, very poisonous," moved quickly to the first two floors of the seven-story building occupied by Spencer Leathers.

Taught Himself To Use 22 Languages Fluently

WITCH LAKE, Mich. (AP) — Growing up in this isolated hamlet, Donald Wixtrom had little contact with the outside world.

But as a teen-ager, he found himself hooked on foreign languages.

"I ordered Spanish, French and German grammars," he said.

Today, Wixtrom, 46, reads, writes, speaks and translates 22 languages, all self-taught.

"I spent hours poring over grammar books, the Reader's Digest in foreign editions, listening to my shortwave radio and using a recorder," he said.

His only formal language training was Latin in high school. He dropped out of college after one year.

Languages were a hobby while he worked as a farmer and logger. But in 1965, after mastering 10 languages, he quit the other jobs and hung out a small sign reading "Donald Wixtrom, Translator."

"It was a long learning experience, but once I had grasped the basics of one of the Romance languages, I found the others quite similar," Wixtrom said in his small office in his home. "It's the same with the Slavic and Scandinavian groups."

After doing some translating for northern Michigan mining companies with foreign customers, Wixtrom began working for other international firms located throughout the United States. Ultimately, he did some government work.

For Wixtrom, who is married with three children, the beauty of his job is that he can work at home in this folksy village of 50.

He figures he has translated about six million words, enough to fill 120 books.

Wixtrom works 8 to 10 hours a day, and says he has more work than he can handle. But he still finds time to learn a new language each winter and every spring he takes off three weeks to make maple syrup.

He does little traveling and admits that he is usually conversationally fluent in only five languages because he has little chance to speak with foreigners.

"It would only take me a week or so to brush up on the other languages so that I could chat them fairly well," he said.

Kindergartens Study Disputed

RALEIGH (AP)—A bitter state Board of Education dispute over a study of the state kindergarten program has ended on an inconclusive note.

Dr. Norman L. Johnson, chairman of the University of North Carolina Statistics Department, told the board Thursday his study of the kindergarten report uncovered errors that made the report more favorable to the kindergarten program.

However, he said the report did not contain sufficient evidence to conclude that these errors were made deliberately. He also said a "more appropriate" analysis of the data would have produced more positive conclusions than those in the report.

Dr. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction, and board of education members engaged in a name-calling session two months ago. It came after Phillips learned that Dr. Dallas Herring, board chairman, had made a secret investigation of allegations that Phillips' department had juggled the statistics in the report to improve the image of the kindergarten program. After Johnson had made his report, Herring issued a statement in which he said he had "attributed no improper motive to anyone and none should have been attributed to me for establishing, in the first place, that there were errors in the report."

When Phillips learned of Herring's investigation two months ago, however, he accused Herring of participating in a political conspiracy to discredit him. Phillips said Herring had told others that the results of the investigation would force Phillips to resign, but Herring denied this.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced sharply for the third straight day today, bolstered by the belief that government borrowing plans would not put as much strain as had been feared on interest rates and the bond market.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 8.76 at 839.72 on top of a 27.92 advance over the two previous sessions.

Gainers held a 5-2 edge over losers in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Treasury's borrowing plans announced after Thursday's close were generally taken as bullish on Wall Street because of the feeling that they were not likely to push long term rates into an uptrend and squeeze corporate borrowers out of the bond market.

Bond prices also rose in response to the news.

In Washington, Alan Greenspan, President Ford's top economic adviser, said the economy could reach the point of vigorous recovery by early next year.

The government reported today that the nation's unemployment rate rose to 8.9 per cent in April from 8.7 in March. But Greenspan was predicting that the rate would be declining later in the year and in all of 1976. Pan American World Airways, the Big Board volume leader, rose 1/4 to 4 in a 127,500.

Newcomers On Licensing Bd.
RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser has reappointed two members and named two new members to the Child Day Care Licensing Board.

The governor reappointed Mrs. Faye Marks of High Point and Carl C. Staley Jr. of Greensboro.

The new members are Robert L. Eagle of Charlotte and Mrs. Pearl H. Wesson of Shelby.

whether the group had left Phnom Penh.

The revolutionary government's Paris spokesman has charged that the French Embassy was a refuge for "war criminals," and that they included Sirik Matak, one of the leaders of the coup that installed Cambodia's pro-Western government in 1970.

A French government spokesman in Paris denied the charge. Sirik Matak had contacted the embassy but decided not to stay there after seeing how bad the food and sanitation had become, he said. The spokesman said this information reached Paris before communications with Phnom Penh were cut off more than two weeks ago.

French officials said there were no Cambodians among the evacuees, who included 515 French citizens and 95 other foreigners.

Edmisten, addressing some 600 lawyers and judges at a Law Day luncheon in Charlotte Thursday, admonished lawyers for not doing their part to oppose what he described as a growing number of legislative proposals that could take away individual liberties.

"As times get bad, there are more and more calls for repressive measures. There is a wind blowing now. I feel that wind blowing to increase repressive measures to meet upcoming crises," said Edmisten.

He declined to be more specific, but he added that lawmakers are drawing up proposals that could add "hundreds of years" to prison sentences for criminal offenses.

NASHVILLE (AP)—"The news just about floored me," said Robert Lewis 25, after an Illinois state lottery official told him he had won the top weekly prize of $300,000.

"I'm going to sit down, drink a beer and think about it," said Lewis, 25, a therapist at the Central State Hospital.

Lewis, a native of nearby Murfreesboro, Tenn., said on Thursday an aunt gave him the winning 50-cent ticket when he and his father, Griffith Lewis, went to Chicago in March for the funeral of his grandmother.

"My father also had a ticket and I wanted to swap with him," Lewis recalled.

"My relatives have been playing the lottery all the time and they have never won $20, (the minimum prize)."

Lewis, a bachelor, said he hopes to use the money—which will come in $20,000 checks each May 1 for 15 years—to finance "a long vacation" geared towards his hobby of backpacking. Then he wants to return to college.

He graduated from Middle Tennessee State University in December, 1973, with a planning degree, and began work as an adjunctive therapist at Central State nine months ago.

After granting an interview, Lewis returned to his job in the hospital's drug and alcohol treatment ward. He also added he was happy that he had not impulsively swapped tickets with his father.

SLIGHTRISE
NEW YORK (AP)—President Ford in the last month has shown a slight rise in over-all standing with the American people, up from 37 per cent approval to 40 per cent, according to the Harris poll.

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Navy ships today were carrying thousands of South Vietnamese refugees to sanctuaries far from their homeland. But in the United States, Immigration Service officials were uncertain how many Vietnamese would come to America.

Together the latest estimates from the Pentagon and State Department showed around 80,000 Vietnamese had fled their homeland in advance of the Communist takeover.

That total included some 40,000 on U.S. Navy ships, more than 31,000 in camps on Guam and Wake Island and an unknown number at sea in Vietnamese Navy vessels.

An Immigration Service spokesman said it was unlikely all the Vietnamese evacuated would be admitted to the United States. He said they would be screened to determine which qualify for admission under a waiver of normal immigration procedures.

While emphasizing that no figure could be considered definitive in the current confused situation, the Immigration Service spokesman said officials are thinking in terms of about 50,000 people being admitted. Many of the other refugees probably would head for countries other than the United States.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger said Thursday the refugee rescue operation off the coast of South Vietnam had been halted and Navy ships were heading out of Indo-chinese waters.

However, spokesmen for the Pentagon and State Department said that any refugees spotted in the open sea would be picked up in accordance with international maritime law.

Defense officials said that about 30 South Vietnamese Navy vessels had been sighted in the South China Sea with large numbers of refugees aboard.

Dollar Gains As Pound 'Crashes'
LONDON (AP) — The dollar strengthened sharply in London today and the pound sterling crashed to its lowest levels ever against major currencies.

Dealers said part of the pound's troubles stemmed from the strength of the dollar but international currency speculators were still worried about the rate of inflation in Britain now running at a record 21 per cent.

DID YOU EVER NOTICE HOW MOST BANKS ARE CLOSED JUST WHEN YOU NEED CASH THE MOST?

If you think about it, most banks are open during the times when you're too busy earning money to be spending any. Then nights and weekends roll around, and what happens? Right. Your bank closes. But not NCNB 24. It lets you get cash any time, by pushing a few buttons.

It's open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. It's about as hard to operate as a candy machine. And, unlike a candy machine, it won't cost you even a penny to use. So try NCNB 24. It's the bank that lets you get to your money when you're ready to spend it.

Bertie Captures Division I Track Title

Three Teams In Second Victory

Black Jack, Grace and Trinity picked up their second victories in the Church Softball League last night.

In the opening game on one field, Immanuel opened its season with a 15-9 win over Arlington Street. Immanuel pushed over three in the first inning, and added two in the second. They got four more in the third and an equal number in the fourth. They closed out their scoring with two in the fifth, including a homer by Ken Mizelle. Arlington got five runs in the fourth, with J. Galloway and M. Haddock homering, then added one each in the fifth and sixth before closing out with two in the seventh.

Grace rolled to a 26-15 victory over University-Mt. Pleasant in the second contest. U-MP pushed over eight runs in the first inning, but Grace matched that, getting one homer from Sammy Pugh. U-MP added one in the second, and Grace again matched it. But in the third, U-MP went scoreless, while Grace pushed in two runs. U-MP came back in the fourth with four, while Grace regained the lead, this time for good with five. They added three more in the fifth, with Mike Gilliam homering, and closed out with seven in the sixth, with Jimmy Paige and George Shevose homering.

U-MP came back with two in the seventh.

Black Jack downed People's Bible in the final game, 9-6, in eight innings. People's pushed over two in the first and another in the second. They added another in the third before Black Jack broke the ice with three in the fifth. Black Jack got another in the sixth, but People's came up with two in their half of the sixth to lead, 6-4.

Black Jack tied it up with two in the seventh, including a homer by J. T. Mills, then pushed over three in the eighth to win it.

Oakmont nipped First Christian, 5-4, in the opening game on the other field—also going extra innings to do it. Oakmont pushed in two in the first inning, and added one each in the second and third. Christian rallied for three in the third to trail, 4-3. They got another in the fifth, tying it up. It stayed that way until the 10th, when Oakmont finally pushed in the winning run.

Memorial romped to a 13-4 win over St. James in the second game. Memorial got all it needed in the first inning, scoring seven runs. They added two in the fourth, three in the fifth and one in the sixth. St. James got three in the first, and added one more in the sixth.

Trinity ripped Temple, 20-0, in the third game. Trinity gained the lead with five runs in the second inning. They picked up three in the third, six in the fourth with Andrews homering, and six in the fifth with a homer by Cayton.

Unhappy Jergensen Put Out To Pasture

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sonny Jurgensen, with the waistline of a veteran beer drinker (actually he leans more toward scotch), was asked once how he could quarterback with a protruding stomach.

"I throw with my arm, not my belly," he replied.

And throw he did during the 18 years he played in the National Football League — 11 with the Washington Redskins and seven with the Philadelphia Eagles.

The 40-year-old Jurgensen was retired by the Redskins Thursday even though he made it plain he did not like the idea. "I would have preferred to make the decision myself," Jurgensen said at a news conference. "So few people get out of the game at the right time. Everybody thinks they can do it forever. But you would like to make the decision to quit yourself."

Earlier, at another news conference, Coach George Allen made Jurgensen's retirement official by saying he made the decision for the good of the team and its future.

"He deserves every recognition he's going to get," Allen said. "He'll go to the Hall of Fame. I hope his next years will be as productive and happy as his last 18 have been."

Allen said Jurgensen's No. 9 jersey will be retired as was

"It's the dignity of going out," he said. "It's not a matter of being replaced by Billy Kilmer.... He did that four years ago."

"It's kind of disappointing to retire this way," said Jurgensen, who holds numerous NFL passing records and led the National Conference last season although he was a part-timer. "I feel that I could still make a contribution. I believe I can still help someone win."

At his own conference later, in the day, Jurgensen announced he would join a management consulting firm full-time and was considering an offer to become a color analyst for CBS Sports on NFL games this fall.

Led by hurdler Marvin Rankins and distance man Keith Uguhart, Bertie Senior High School rolled to its second straight Division I track title yesterday.

Rankins won both of the hurdle events, while Uguhart took the 880 and the mile. In all four events, the runners successfully defended the titles they won last year.

Records were set in every event except for the pole vault. Rankins ran the low hurdles in 19.2 seconds, breaking his record of 19.9, and turned in a 13.8 in the highs, bettering his mark of 14.9.

Uguhart ran the mile in 4:34.2, erasing his old mark of 4:37.4. His 880 time of 1:59.7 was two-tenths of a second faster than his old record.

Bertie finished the meet with 91½ points, easily outdistancing second place Rose. The Ram-ramps had 56½ points, beating out Wilson, which finished with 49. Northeastern was a distant fourth at 27, followed by Northern Nash with 23 and Rocky Mount with eight.

Besides the two double winners of Bertie, the meet had two others to double. Lindberg Morris of Rose won the long jump in 21-9, breaking Northern Nash's Thomas Eley's mark of 21-4. His distance in the triple jump of 43-4, was well ahead of last year's winner, Roderick Williams of Northeastern, who jumped 42-2.

The other double winner was Northeastern's Delbert Powell, who defended his title in the 100 and the 220. He ran a 9.6 in the 100, ahead of his 9.8 time of last year; and has a 21.9 in the 220, also two-tenths of a second ahead of last year's record.

The only other winners who were defending champions were Armstead Gilliam of Bertie, who won the high jump at 6-7, breaking his record of 6-4; and Tony Ward, whose discus throw of 134-½ beat his 1974 mark of 127-9½.

Other record setters included Doug Paschal of Rose, who took the shot put in 51-8, beating Milton Ryan's (Bertie) mark of 45-6; Terry Perry of Bertie, who won the 440 in 51.2 (old by Willie Stancil, Bertie, 51.8); Russell Wearden of Wilson, who won the two-mile in 10:16.0 (old by A.J. Tyson, Rose, 10:25.8).

Northeastern won the 880 relay in 1:30.6, well ahead of the Rose time of last year of 1:33.0; and Bertie won the mile relay in 3:28.5, beating their old mark of 3:28.5.

The lone event that didn't see a record was the pole vault, won by Rose's David King at 12-6, a foot under the record.

Overall, Bertie won seven individual events and one relay. Rose won four events, while Northeastern took two, plus a relay. Wilson won one event.

All teams will participate in the sectional meet next week at East Carolina University.

Pirates Postponed

East Carolina University's baseball game at Pembroke State University was among several sports activities rained out yesterday.

In addition to the Buc-Brave game, others washed out included Bear Grass at Williamston, "B", Greene Central at Eastern Wayne, Belhaven at Jameville, North Lenoir at Farmville Central, and the Eastern Carolina Conference tennis tournament at Goldsboro.

No new dates were set for Bear Grass and Williamston, nor for the East Carolina-Pembroke game. Greene Central and Eastern Wayne will make up their meeting on Saturday, while Belhaven and Jameville meet on Monday. North Lenoir and Farmville delayed their game until May 14.

The tennis tournament will try to get underway today.

Trevino Wants Win In Texas

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HOUSTON (AP) "One of these days in this state...." Lee Trevino let the sentence trail off.

It's one of his fondest hopes to win a golf tournament in his native Texas. It hasn't happened yet.

"It's really tough to win in your home state," Trevino said. "You know, you have so many friends in the gallery, lots of friends and people pulling for you and it puts extra pressure on you."

As usual, he had a massive gallery of followers Thursday, many of them of Mexican-American heritage.

"There's more Mexicans than whites in my gallery because more Mexicans are out of work," Trevino said after his six-under-par 66 had given him a share of the lead with Australian David Graham in the first round of the $150,000 Houston Open Golf Tournament.

"I like this course," Trevino said of the new, lush, 6,929-yard Woodlands Country Club layout that features tight, pine-forest lined fairways and greens guarded by 91 sandtraps and 12 lakes and ponds. "You have to work the ball. You have to hit it where you're aiming."

Jerry McGee, winner of the Pensacola Open just two weeks ago, birdied his first four holes and headed a group tied at 67. Also at that figure were Dale Douglass, Eddie Pearce and rookie Alan Tapie.

Bulletin

BOONE — The Southern Conference has tabled for no more than one year the application of Western Carolina University to join the Southern Conference.

The conference meeting in Boone named a committee to study expansion of the conference—whether it was desirable, and if so, what criteria were necessary and desired. The committee was to report back at next spring's meeting.

The conference also approved the continuation of the format for the Southern Conference basketball tournament used this year, having the top four teams host the first round on February 28. The four winners will meet at a place to be decided for the final round on March 3-4.

Beltone, Little Mint and Daniel Construction remained unbeaten in the Ladies Softball League last night.

In the opening game, Beltone rolled to a 27-7 victory over Coca-Cola. Beltone picked up two runs in the first inning, with J. Sawyer homering. But Coke came back with four, including a homer by P. Van Dyke to take the lead. They added another run in the second before Beltone came back with four in the third. Coke pushed in two more in their half of the third to hold a 7-6 lead, however.

Beltone then exploded for 21 runs in the fourth inning. L. Rouse hit two homers, while P. Bennett slammed one in the big inning.

The second game saw Little Mint romp to a 34-2 win over Burroughs-Wellcome. B-W pushed in one run in the first, and got their other one in the second.

Little Mint wasted little time, pushing over 12 runs in the first inning. They added 10 in the second and 12 in the third. Homers were hit by B. Forbes (two), D. Edwards, and C. Nichols during the game.

Key Games Set In Pro Playoffs

By The Associated Press
Golden State Coach Al Attles was worried about his team.

"We didn't play very smart basketball. We just have to get ready to play Game No. 3 here Sunday," Attles said as he assessed his Warriors' 90-89 loss to the Chicago Bulls that evened their National Basketball Association Western Conference playoff.

In Boston, the defending champion Boston Celtics, their backs to the wall after two losses to the Washington Bullets, face a "must win" situation Saturday in the third game of the NBA Eastern Conference playoff final.

And in the American Basketball Association, the Denver Nuggets and the Indiana Pacers, tied 3-3 in their best-of-seven semi-final series, meet Saturday night in Denver. The winner will take on the Kentucky Colonels.

A mental error by Warrior star Rick Barry breathed life into the Chicago Bulls' playoff hopes on Wednesday.

Golden State had an 89-88 lead and control of the ball with 20 seconds left and a Warriors' victory seemed all but clinched. With a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven series, a win would have put the Warrior's comfortably out in front.

But the Warriors brought the ball down court and passed to Barry in the corner. With 7-foot Tom Boerwinkle all over him and 10 seconds left in the game, Barry went up for a shot.

"Rick apparently thought that time had run out because I told him to run out the clock," said Attles. "Then, realizing that time had not run out, he got caught between making a shot and a pass and he made a shot." Barry's shot fell far short of the basket and into the hands of Chicago's Chet Walker.

The Bulls called time out to set up a final play. Norm Van Lier took an inbound pass to the top of the key and went up for a shot. In mid-air Van Lier saw Boerwinkle wide open underneath the basket and rifled the ball to him. Boerwinkle sank an easy layup with two seconds showing on the clock, triggering bedlam among the 18,553 fans in Chicago Stadium.

The two teams will meet Sunday at the Chicago Stadium and then go to Oakland for two games. If a sixth game is needed, the teams will come back to Chicago and the seventh contest may be played at Golden State.

"We're not down except in games," said Boston captain John Havlicek, a 13-year pro. "If we win at home and come back to win there next week, things will be in proper perspective again. We just have to go to it."

Despite Havlicek's optimistic note, the Celtics are in trouble. They blew a 12-point halftime lead in losing the series opener 100-95 at Boston Garden last Sunday and then were bombed 117-92 by the Bullets Wednesday night in Landover, Md.

Boston Coach Tommy Heinsohn refuses to concede that Washington may just be better than his Celtics. He even ignores the statistics which indicate that the Bullets' tenacious defense wrecked the Celtics in the first two games.

"We beat ourselves again," Heinsohn said after the second game rout. "We missed the shots, that's all. We just couldn't hit a shot."

COOL IT—That's what first base umpire Ron Luciano appears to be saying to California Angels catcher Ellie Rodriguez during a first inning fracas in Thursday's game with the Kansas City Royals. The Royals finally won the game, 11-10 in 13 innings. (AP Wirephoto)

Aaron Snaps Another Of The Babe's Marks

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Hank Aaron won one for Milwaukee and lost another one for Babe Ruth.

Aaron, who surpassed Babe's fabulous career home run mark last year, blasted through another Ruthian plateau Thursday — his career RBI record of 2,209.

The Milwaukee slugger knocked in two runs to bring his lifetime figure to 2,211 and guide the Brewers to a 17-3 decision over the Detroit Tigers.

"I've never set any plateaus," said Aaron, dismissing the herculean accomplishment. "I just try to do the best I can and let the records fall. I just happened to be in the position to break one of the most historic records in baseball, and I'm glad it's over with." While playing with the Atlanta Braves, Aaron went through exquisite pressure catching Ruth's home run total of 714. Since then, Aaron has built the proud record to 735.

Since being traded to the Brewers, however, the 41-year-old superstar has been having his problems. Aaron's four hits Thursday represented his biggest day as a designated hitter and boosted his batting average to a modest .218.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston nipped Cleveland 7-6; Texas whipped Chicago 2-1; New York blanked Baltimore 5-0 and Kansas City beat California 11-10 in 13 innings.

Aaron broke Ruth's RBI mark with a third-inning single that scored Sixto Lezcano and gave the Brewers a 3-2 lead. Willie Horton, whose sixth homer had staked the Tigers to a 2-0 first-inning lead, tied the score with an RBI single in the fifth.

Don Money beat out an infield hit to start the Brewers' fifth and scored the go-ahead run on a double by Robin Yount. Aaron doubled home Yount with two out for his 2,211th RBI, then scored on a triple by Darrell Porter. After a walk to Mike Hegan, two more runs scored on an error and a triple by Pedro Garcia for an 8-3 lead.

Aaron, whose second-inning single set up a bases-loaded sacrifice fly by Hegan, singled again to trigger five more runs in the seventh. A three-run homer by Yount capped the assault.

Porter touched off a four-run burst in the eighth with a two-run homer.

Red Sox 7, Indians 6
Bernie Carbo triggered a three-run first inning with a leadoff double, then tagged Cleveland starter Jim Perry with a two-run homer in the second as Boston snapped a four-game losing streak with a victory over the Indians.

Staked to a 7-2 lead, left-hander Bill Lee was working on a five-hitter until surrendering John Ellis' three-run homer in the eighth. Rico Carty's pinch-hit RBI single made it 7-6 but reliever Diego Segui got the last out.

Rangers 2, White Sox 1
Lenny Randle's run-scoring single in the ninth inning lifted Texas over Chicago. With one out, Jim Sundberg was hit by a pitch. Cesar Tovar hit a grounder to Bill Melton, but the throw to second for a forceout was dropped by Jorge Orta and Sundberg took third on the play. Reliever Terry Forster came on and struck out Roy Howell for the second out but Randle beat out an infield single and Sundberg scored.

Yankees 5, Orioles 0
Catfish Hunter silenced Baltimore on five hits while Thurman Munson and Ron Blomberg provided the power to give New York its victory over the Orioles.

Hunter picked up his second straight victory after losing his first three starts. Munson hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning and Blomberg knocked in three runs with a double in the sixth.

Royals 11, Angels 10
Cookie Rojas doubled home the tying run and Buck Martinez singled in the game-winner in the 13th inning to lead Kansas City to a wild victory over California. The Angels had taken a 10-9 lead in the top of the 13th as Tommy Harper singled, stole second and scored on an infield single by Dave Chalk.

Foolish Pleasure Goes Against 14 For Derby

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE (AP) — "He's as honest as he can be; he always tries," says his owner. And Foolish Pleasure will try to beat 14 other 3-year-olds in the Kentucky Derby Saturday.

"We hope to win, but I'd be foolish to guarantee it," said owner John L. Greer, who has watched Foolish Pleasure win 10 of 11 lifetime starts including two major pre-Derby stakes — the $100,000-added Flamingo and the $100,000-added Wood Memorial.

The Churchill Downs odds-maker listed Foolish Pleasure as the 9-5 favorite Thursday to win the first prize of $209,600 from a purse that will total $262,100 if all 15 start in the 101st running of the 1 1/4-mile Derby.

With no more rain, the track should be fast for the Derby. The weather forecast for today and Saturday called for cloudy and mild weather, with the temperature around 70 Saturday.

Post time is 5:32 p.m. EDT, with television coverage by ABC from 5 p.m.-6 p.m.

Foolish Pleasure will start from the No. 3 post position under Jacinto Vasquez in the Derby, which calls for scale weights of 126 pounds.

John Galbreath's Prince Thou Art and Golden Chance Farm's Master Derby, expected to be Foolish Pleasure's toughest competition, both will start on the outside of the favorite.

Prince Thou Art, who upset Foolish Pleasure in the Florida Derby, will go from the No. 8 post under Braulio Baeza. He will run as part of an entry with Galbreath's Sylvan Place, a non-stakes winner who was second in the Florida Derby.

Sylvan Place, a 7-2 choice, will start from the No. 14 post and be ridden by Angel Cordero Jr., who won the 1974 Derby on Cannonade.

Master Derby has won his last five races, including the Louisiana Derby and the Blue Grass Stakes, and is listed as a 9-2 choice to make it six in a row Saturday. An off-track figure to help the chances of the son of Dust Commander, 1970 Derby winner, who will leave from the five post under Darrell McHargue.

Frank McMahon's Diabolo won the 1 1/4-mile California Derby in a blazing 1:46 3/5 on a fast track at Golden Gate Fields. Laffit Pincay Jr., will be aboard again Saturday when the dark bay starts from the No. 13 slot.

Two other big stakes winners in the field are Arthur A. Selligson Jr.'s Avatar, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, and Bob Clayton's Promised City, who was first in the Arkansas Derby. An Arkansas Derby winner never has won the Kentucky Derby.

Bill Shoemaker, who will be trying to win his fourth Derby in 19 attempts, will ride Avatar out of the No. 10 slot, while Dave Whitted will ride Promised City from the outside post. Roland Aristone Sr.'s Bombay Duck will start from the No. 15 post.

Others entered, their post positions and jockeys, were Max Gluck's Media, No. 1, Jean Cruguet; Mrs. and Mrs. Robert F. Roberts' Honey Mark, No. 2, Eddie Delahoussayer; John W. Mecom's Rushing Man, No. 4, James McKnight; Clarence Benjamin's Fashion Sale, No. 6, Bill Gavidia; Leggio, Wyble and Isbell's Bold Chapeau, No. 7, C.J. Allemen; Pedro A. Diaz' Gatch, No. 9, Julio Espinoza, and Jack Dreyfus' Round Stake, No. 12, Mike Hole.

Baker Captures Winston Pole

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — "I didn't expect to run this fast," heavy-footed Buddy Baker said Thursday. But he did and it was fast enough to capture the pole position for Sunday's Winston 500 stock car race.

Baker, of Charlotte, N.C., sped his Ford around the 2.66-mile Alabama International Motor Speedway at 189.947 miles per hour, taking only 50.414 seconds for a lap, to lead the first 20 qualifiers for the event.

Today, another 20 drivers will qualify for the $176,410 NASCAR race. Saturday, just before the 200-mile Automobile Racing Club of America race, the last 10 drivers will qualify for the Winston 500.

"If my car runs like it did today," Baker said Thursday, "on Sunday, I'll be fine."

"I feel real good about the race—better than I've ever felt before," the 6-foot-5 driver said.

Donnie Allison will be in the other front row slot in Sunday's race. He turned in a speed of 189.560 m.p.h. Thursday.

Apparently, Dave Marcis had the third spot wrapped up, tooling his Dodge around the track at 188.289 m.p.h. But that time was disqualified when officials found an adjustable spoiler on his car. However, he will be able to compete in today's rounds.

Baker is no stranger to speed at the east Alabama track. He ran a practice round for the 1970 Winston 500 at 200.447 m.p.h. That same year, Bobby Isaac established the track's 199.658 m.p.h. qualifying record.

NASCAR king Richard Petty turned in the fifth best time Thursday at 187.108. Just ahead of him was David Pearson's 187.680.

Glad Cubs Are A Contender

By JERRY LISKA
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Relief pitcher Darold Knowles, who objected to the off-season deal which sent him from the three-time world champion Oakland A's to the Chicago Cubs, now thinks he may have landed with a pennant contender after all.

"I asked Charley Finley last fall to trade me to a contender," recalled Knowles, who posted his third save of the young season Thursday as the Cubs beat the New York Mets 5-2.

"I wasn't happy about going to the last-place Cubs," said Knowles. "It was the kiss of death asking Finley to trade me to a winning club, but now the Cubs are suddenly a contender."

With the season nearly a month old, the Cubs' 13-5 record is the best in the major leagues. Knowles, a 33-year-old left-hander, has been a big part of their early success, pitching in seven games and allowing only three hits and no runs over 12 innings.

"If we play this way all season, I see no reason why we can't finish near the top in our division," Knowles added.

In Thursday's only other National League game, the Houston Astros beat the San Diego Padres 6-3. One other game, St. Louis at Pittsburgh, was rained out.

"We're just playing like hell," said Manager Jim Marshall, whose Cubs have won six of their last seven outings. "We've been getting what we need when we need it without being lucky."

Against the Mets, Chicago's winning formula was an 11-hit attack and sterling relief pitching.

Starter Steve Stone was sent to the sidelines by a leg injury after 5 1/3 innings but still posted his fourth straight victory without defeat. Ken Frailing and Milt Wilcox made brief appearances before Knowles cleaned up with a faultless stint for 2 1/3 innings.

Knowles was acquired from the A's along with second-baseman Manny Trillo for Billy Williams, the long-time Chicago outfield star.

Stone, who singled across the go-ahead run for a 3-2 lead in the fourth inning, said he wanted to stay in and go for his third complete game. "But it was hurting," Stone said of what he described as a pinched nerve high on his right leg.

Astros 6, Padres 3

Bob Watson and Doug Rader drove in two runs apiece to pace the Houston attack. Watson had a run-scoring single in the first inning and hit his fourth homer of the season in the third. Rader belted a two-run double in the fifth.

Ken Forsch got the victory for the Astros, with relief help from Jim Crawford.

Kelso won 31 stakes races and nearly $2 million in purses in eight years of racing as a gelding.

When Houston's sports information office first saw the women's basketball team roster it contained neither weights nor ages.

Michigan State has a one-game edge in football victories over Ohio State. The Spartans lead 8 to 7.

Hornets Out To Sign Players

CHARLOTTE (AP) — General Manager Upton Bell says the Charlotte Hornets of the World Football League have begun efforts to sign players from last year's team.

However, he declined at a news conference Thursday to identify any who now have signed.

He said each team will be allowed to carry 32 regular players and six others on the taxi squad. Taxi squadmen may play on specialty teams or if their team is ahead by 28 or more points.

Bell said he hopes to book two preseason games, probably in Raleigh and Columbia, S.C. He said the season opener tentatively is set for Aug. 2, but work remains to be completed on the schedule.

Bell said he expects to open training camp within a month. Davidson College, Appalachian State University and Belmont Abbey College are under consideration.

Bell said the WFL would play an 18-game schedule, split into nine-game portions.

After playing the first nine games, the clubs in the 11-team league will begin the second season with 0-0 records. The split schedule is used by many baseball minor leagues to generate new enthusiasm in cities with losing teams.

Six teams will qualify for the postseason playoffs, three from the East and three from the West divisions.

Bell said that the qualifiers will be the division winners in each half of the season, plus the other team or teams with the best overall record.

The Hornets will compete in the East Division with Birmingham, Memphis, Jacksonville and Philadelphia.

The West Division will be Hawaii, Southern California, Portland, San Antonio and Chicago.

No Westerns In Season Lineup

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — When CBS said it was canceling "Gunsmoke," I briefly considered going to Hurley's Bar — a Gotham version of the Long Branch Saloon — and holding a wake.

Sure, Miss Kitty was gone and Chester was now McCloud. But Marshal Dillon still was fighting wickedness, Doc still was bandaging bullet wounds and giving advice and Festus still was ... well, Festus.

"I think finally it was just a ratings attrition over the past several seasons," said CBS programs chief Fred Silverman, the voice of reality. "It's been on the air for 20 years, but all good things finally come to an end."

Imagine that. Bullets couldn't kill Marshal Dillon, but ratings did. They made a statistical Boot Hill for "Gunsmoke," hailed as among the first of TV's "adult" westerns when it started on Sept. 10, 1955.

Prior to that, it had been on CBS Radio for three years, with William Conrad (now the star of "Cannon") cast as the marshal.

He didn't get the TV role because he was too rotund for a marshal.

It went to 32-year-old James Arness, who wasn't fat but whose horse visibly sagged whenever the square-jawed, broad-shouldered actor hoisted his 6-foot-6, 225-pound frame atop it.

"Gunsmoke," which always had better-than-average stories, dialogue and characters, began as a half-hour show in black and white, and later was expanded to an hour program filmed in living color.

Until recent years, it consistently beat opposing programs in the ratings, and even survived the glut of Westerns on TV in 1959, when no less than 32 sagebrush sagas were riding the video range.

But in what proved to be its final season, its ratings were starting to sag. CBS, pondering whether to keep it on, extended the show's option for renewal by a month to allow more pondering time.

It finally was canceled for two reasons. One, said CBS' Silverman, "is the decline in the size of its audience. I think for this season it's averaged a 30 or 31 per cent share of audience in its time period."

"Number two is the recognition there's going to be new programming on NBC and ABC in that time period" — Monday nights at 8 p.m. EDT — "and it's fairly competitive programming. And you really have to keep abreast of the competition."

So as of now, "Gunsmoke" is being replaced next season by two situation comedies about women, "Rhoda" and "Phyllis." And unless ABC installs a Western, the next TV season will be the first without one.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAY 3, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Fine day for carrying through with new plans that you have thought up recently. Use a modern approach to achieve your goals. A good time for seeing friends and enjoying the simple pleasures in life.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) This is the right time to get to work on decisions you've made recently. Contact business experts for the advice you need.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take time to analyze regular activities and know where to make changes for greater benefits. Don't be too extravagant.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Obtain the data you need for new aims you have. Be sure to arrive on time for any appointments you have. Take it easy tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use modern methods in all your business transactions. You are capable of achieving your aims today. Be cheerful.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Complete talks with associates and get the right results now. Know what is expected of you. Show more devotion to mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Complete duties that need immediate attention and show associates that you do your fair share of the work. Relax tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Engage in pleasurable pursuits and make this a pleasant day for you and others. Be active and strive for happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Attending to small tasks early in the day can give you more time to engage in favorite hobby later. Use good judgment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle those duties that are difficult to do during work week. Take time to improve your surroundings. Keep poised.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study budget so that you really know what your financial position is. Make necessary repairs to your property.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Give attention to those personal affairs you have been neglecting. Find the right way to achieve greater happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle those secret affairs early so that you can attend to more important matters later. A book can bring you solace.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who is always engineering new ways of getting things done, which is fine, but be sure you first teach true and tried methods. Allow playmates around the house early in life so your progeny will learn how to deal with others.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

North Pitt School News

By GENEVA HOLDER
Twenty-nine students were inducted into the North Pitt Chapter of the National Honor Society in a closed candlelight ceremony Monday.

After the inductees received their oaths, their parents stood to be recognized.

A reception in the cafeteria followed Principal James Allen's closing remarks.

Many of North Pitt's students returned to school Monday with sunburns from spending the traditional Junior-Senior weekend at the beach.

The Junior-Senior was held Friday and congratulations are in order for the Junior Council. Decorations and refreshments followed an "Aloha" theme and leis were given to everyone as they came in.

The band, Onyx, provided musical entertainment for the

Sharp Decline Seen In Building Permits

Permits for new building in cities of over 10,000 population in North Carolina registered a steep decline in March, both in dollar volume and number of units authorized, compared with year-ago levels, according to figures released by Billy Creel, State Labor Commissioner.

Creel said the cities reported $32,477,865 in March building permits, down 41.6 per cent from the $55,608,794 total of March, 1974.

Area totals for March included: Greenville, $530,774; Elizabeth City, $553,450; Goldsboro, $428,000; Jacksonville, $152,472; Kinston, $534,845; New Bern, $301,800; Roanoke Rapids, $511,315; Rocky Mount, $537,381; and Wilson, $503,668.

According to Creel, first quarter 1975 permits in the cities totaled $126,055,007, dropping 14.8 per cent below the $147,955,860 recorded for the first three months of 1974.

First quarter totals for the area cities included: Greenville, $1,611,174; Elizabeth City, $2,839,310; Goldsboro, $1,177,500; Jacksonville, $677,992; Kinston, $1,173,890; New Bern, $378,000; Roanoke Rapids, $741,396; Rocky Mount, $2,003,065; and Wilson, $1,493,922.

GoodDaydreams Ford Plans Confer With Sadat, Rabin

By M.A. BARTHOLOMEW
Associated Press Writer
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A quick trip to the Orient can ease everyday tensions, help solve problems and won't cost a cent, according to an expert on daydreams.

These brief therapeutic vacations from one's immediate reality can be taken in the office, in an easy chair at home or in a noisy factory, says Dr. Jerome Singer, a Yale University psychology professor.

Although everyone has daydreams, most adults, afflicted with a guilt of idleness in a society that is action- and task-oriented, tend to repress them, says Singer.

Singer, who has studied daydreams in thousands of patients for 25 years, says "positive daydreaming" is a normal, healthy outlet and should be encouraged.

"We tend not to notice our daydreams because we give too much attention to our external environment. It's an immensely satisfying experience," he said.

in an interview Tuesday.

He says that compared with people who daydream little, regular daydreamers are less disruptive, less restless and have less need to rush around seeking new stimulation, including drugs and alcohol.

Singer said scientists have not been able to define daydreams precisely because of their private nature, but he says he defines them as "any shift of attention away from one's immediate task or immediate perceptual experience."

"Most of our behavior in life is guided by the fantasies we have. With daydreaming we can follow our fantasies through."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is lining up separate meetings in about a month with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, informed sources report.

The meetings, expected to be announced within a few days, are seen as part of a U.S. attempt to recapture the diplomatic initiative toward a Middle East settlement that was lost in March with the collapse of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's step-by-step approach.

Sources in Washington and Cairo said Thursday that Sadat was referring to Ford when he said in a speech prepared for delivery today that he would meet with "a major foreign personality" in a European capital June 23.

Ford plans to be in Brussels, Belgium, on May 28 for a summit meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Diplomatic sources here said discussions were still under way between American and Israeli officials over the exact date and place of the Ford-Rabin meeting, but they said the session may take place in Jerusalem during the first week of June.

They said Israeli officials had been informed of the Ford-Sadat meeting in advance and understood it would take place about June 2.

Officials declined to speak on the record about the planned meetings for fear of detracting from the official announcements.

Church 'Factionalized' By Charismatic Feud

QUINLAN, Tex. (AP) — Baptists here have traded blows during services, voted under the eye of police and split into two factions led by rival groups of deacons.

One group claims it cannot worship safely at the First Baptist Church. The other group says it's been locked out of the church it has contributed to for years.

At the center of the controversy is the church's pastor, the Rev. Ron Howard. He says he's never preached anything contrary to Southern Baptist beliefs. His opponents charge that he agrees with the charismatic movement, an issue which has split other congregations across Texas and the nation.

To some persons in this town of 900 about 40 miles east of Dallas, the word "charismatic" means speaking in "tongues," "faith healing," and "falling out in the aisles." They want no part of it.

"With a lot of people, if they don't understand something, they are against it," the Rev. Mr. Howard says. "We've never had any actual practice of these things in our church."

Howard doesn't deny that he believes in the power of healing, or that speaking in tongues is a legitimate way to worship. And that was enough for some members to demand his resignation. The vote was 122 to 86 to support the pastor, but that didn't settle it.

"I tried to shake hands with someone from the other side and she said: 'Get your filthy hands off me. I don't want to see you in this church again,'" said Rick Quick, a young deacon who voted against the pastor.

Quick's side said few long-time church members were notified when the vote on Howard was taken. They claimed the new "charismatics" Howard had recently brought into the church padded the vote.

The minority called themselves the "Faithful 86." They worshipped at an old school cafeteria until a lawyer advised them to assert their right to be in the church.

"They came charging back in one Wednesday night. They came busting in like a bunch of motorcycle people," said Jesse Jones, a 60-year-old deacon.

Quick said his group peacefully marched to the church and that the other side tried to close the church as soon as they walked in.

"I stepped outside and someone hit me. I hit him back. Then someone called the police," Quick said.

The town's two policemen came and advised all to go home.

The "86" ran an advertisement in the Terrell Tribune recently saying they were back in the First Baptist Church. The ad also carried a resolution listing beliefs they oppose, including a "second baptism" of the Holy Spirit, the casting out of devils, faith healing and speaking in tongues.

Howard countered with a bigger advertisement saying the "86" had no right to adopt a church resolution.

But the dispute apparently has proved too much for Howard, who says he has mailed a letter of resignation.

Actor Is Fined For Disturbance

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Municipal Court judge has fined actor Dan Dailey $150 in connection with an incident at San Francisco International Airport in which Dailey was accused of slugging a passenger agent.

The 59-year-old Dailey pleaded no contest to a disturbing the peace charge. Dailey was not in court Wednesday when the plea was entered on his behalf.

Dailey originally pleaded innocent to an assault and battery charge.

Authorities said Dailey hit an agent who refused to let him board a plane because he appeared to be drunk.

Week Is Proclaimed For Senior Citizens

Mayor Eugene West has proclaimed the week of May 19-23 as Senior Citizens Week in Greenville in conjunction with the governor's proclaiming the month of May as Older Americans Month in North Carolina.

In issuing the proclamation, West pointed out that "while the city . . . is indebted to all of its citizens, we are especially indebted to those citizens over 60 years of age for their significant contributions to the development and progress of our city."

Saying that "they continue to be a valuable resource of knowledge, skills, experiences and leadership," the mayor added, "as a progressive city, we must be forever conscious of its most valued resource—its people; yet constantly aware and appreciative of those citizens of the city over 60 whose contributions have and shall remain the foundation of solidarity and ensuing growth."

West concluded, "We urge the people . . . to seek to expand opportunities for active participation of older adults through paid or voluntary endeavors that assure continued usefulness and nondiscriminatory involvement in helping to assess and meet both the growing needs of our older citizens and the needs of the city as a whole . . ."

and now it was South's turn to fall from grace. Had he doubled, the recommended way of showing a strong hand, North would pass for penalties and accurate defense would net 700 points. Instead, he ventured gaily into uncharted waters, and the result was a shaky no trump game.

West led the top of his spade sequence, and when dummy came down declarer could see only eight top tricks. The diamond suit offered the only hope of developing a ninth trick and, under normal circumstances, declarer might have pinned his hopes of an odds-against 3-3 split. However, West's takeout double almost certainly marked him for diamond shortness, so declarer tried another tack.

After making the technically correct play of allowing West to hold the first trick, declarer won the spade continuation with the ace. Then, at trick three he led a low diamond, and inserted dummy's nine when West followed low.

East won the ten and shifted to a heart, taken by the ace. Declarer led another diamond, capturing West's queen with the king, and now had a tenace position in the suit over his right-hand opponent. A diamond was led off the table and, when East followed with the six, declarer finessed the eight.

West showed out, and South scamped home with his nine tricks—three diamonds, three hearts, two clubs and a spade.

The punishment more than fitted the crime when declarer alertly made use of a slight indiscretion by West during the auction to uncover a finesse position that was not readily apparent.

Except for South's opening bid and North's raise to three no trump, there is little about the auction that meets with our approval. Although West has 12 points in high cards, his strength is mostly in queens and jacks, and the queen of diamonds was at a best dubious asset. Since his hand contained only one defensive trick, a pass would have been far more discreet. East dutifully responded with his long suit.

Revenue Source For Wealthy Remains Untaxed

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Despite the state's tight budget, the legislature is expected to shun a revenue source worth more than $8 million a year.

NCMA Acts On Saturday

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)—The North Carolina Medical Society will act Saturday on a resolution concerning recent increases in medical malpractice rates.

The delegates at the 121st annual convention also will act on a resolutions opposing the Professional Standards Review Organization. This is a federal body which sets guidelines for quality and cost of medical work.

Dr. Jesse Caldwell of Gastonia was named president-elect Thursday.

Dr. Frank E. Davis of Durham will be installed as president Saturday, succeeding Dr. Frank E. Reynolds of Wilmington.

Dr. John L. McCain of Wilson was elected first vice president. Dr. Reginald Harris of Shelby was named second vice president.

Dr. Harvey Estes Jr. of the Duke Medical Center will continue as secretary until next year.

Dr. Chalmers Carr of Charlotte was reelected speaker of the House of Delegates, the policy making body. Dr. Henry Carr of Clinton, no relation, was reelected vice speaker.

Will Speak At Meeting

John Gilman, a network program director with The Christian Broadcasting Network Inc. of Portsmouth, Va., will speak at the Greenville Chapter meeting of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship Monday.

JOHN GILMAN

His talk, his own testimony on how his life has been changed, is scheduled at 7:45 p.m. in the American Legion Building located on Saint Andrews Drive. The meeting is free and open to the public.

A dinner will be served at 7 p.m. for a charge. Following the dinner, John Montgomery, president of the Greenville chapter, will welcome guests. Hugh McGowan Jr. also of Greenville, treasure, will introduce the speaker.

Special music will be provided by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne West of Williamston.

Gilman was born in Ashland, Va. He attended Bob Jones University from 1959 to 1965. He comes to Greenville under the sponsorship of 21 businessmen, members of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship.

President Buys Savings Bond

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has bought the first of a new series of Bicentennial Savings Bonds and says he'll purchase a new $200 bond each month.

"It was a good investment then and it's a good investment now," the President said Thursday, recalling for reporters that President Franklin D. Roosevelt bought the first Series E bond 34 years ago.

Ford made his wife, Betty, beneficiary of the first of the Bicentennial bonds, saying he expects her to outlive him.

The remark seemed aimed at countering speculation Ford will not seek election next year because of his wife's health. Mrs. Ford underwent surgery in September for breast cancer.

The money would come from the state's wealthy citizens and they have mounted a campaign to preserve their favored income tax status. State senators, especially those on the Finance Committee, have received a number of letters from influential persons on the matter.

At issue is a provision in the state income tax law since 1921 that exempts dividends paid by North Carolina corporations. If a firm does all of its business in the state, stockholders pay no state income tax on dividends; if it does part of its business in the state, only part of the dividend is taxable.

For example, 99 per cent of Wachovia's business is in North Carolina so share shareholders pay income tax on only 1 per cent of their dividend income.

A bill sponsored by Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, that would close the loophole is in the Finance Committee. In an interview Thursday, Kirby said there's been so much pressure that the measure probably is dead.

Kirby was chairman of a special Senate Commission on North Carolina Revenue Laws. That body recommended the exemption be repealed because it is an unfair loophole.

While figures from the state Revenue Department show that some North Carolinians in the lower income levels enjoy some benefit by the loophole, it is the wealthy citizen who reaps the greatest advantage.

In 1971, the average taxpayer with an adjusted gross income between $7,500 and $10,000 had a deduction of $957 and $19 of that was dividends from North Carolina corporations.

But, the 265 persons in the $120,000 to $160,000 income range had an average deduction of $27,493 and $19,000 of it was dividends that were in the loophole. The four taxpayers in the $800,000 to $900,000 income rate had deductions averaging $49,000 and $25,597 of it was because of the loophole.

In rough figures, the $10,000 taxpayers would have had to fork over less than $1.40 to the state. But the taxpayer earnings $160,000 would have had to pay nearly $1,400 and the average $900,000 taxpayers avoided paying the state more than $1,450.

Because of the loophole, the federal government, through that income tax, has been getting much of money North Carolina has allowed to slip by. The reason is that state tax payments are deductible from federal taxes.

To illustrate, suppose Fred Moneybags was in the 50 per cent federal tax bracket and the top state tax bracket of 7 per cent. If he earned $100,000 from Tar Heel corporations his federal tax on that would be $50,000 and the state tax zero.

If the exemption were removed, he would pay the state $7,000 and Uncle Sam $46,500. Because of his tax bracket, the federal government effectively pays half of Fred's state income tax, though the state now loses all of it.

Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, who served on the study commission, said another unfair aspect of the exemption is that it discriminates between people of the same income level. Those who happen to own stock in out-of-state companies don't have the same break, he said.

For example, if Fred's neighbor earned $100,000 in General Motors dividends, he would pay $3,500 more in taxes than Fred because the neighbor wouldn't be able to use the loophole.

The loophole was created in 1921 in an effort to make investments in North Carolina companies more attractive. But, that reason is no longer valid because the economy has changed, Kirby said.

Those wealthy persons opposing the bill say it will hurt widows and retirees who invested in Tar Heel corporations because of the tax break. Kirby said he didn't believe there would be anyone who enjoys the loophole who couldn't afford to pay the tax.

The letters against Kirby's bill reflect the sophistication and income level of the writers. They aren't threatening, but the writers make their opposition, their influential positions and their wealth clear.

The opponents cry that the bill to close the loophole is unfair and will hurt the state. They say now isn't the time for a tax increase and that the bill is "a gross injustice" or "a gross inequity."

One letter writer in urging defeat of the bill railed about "giveaway" programs, apparently referring to programs such as welfare, and said "get down to necessities only" in the budget.

Smith said the tax exception is a giveaway program. If it were an $8 million appropriation to the rich rather than a tax exemption, it would never be allowed, he said.

Kirby said he's become an outcast in his neighborhood. A lawyer with enough income to put him above the 50 per cent federal tax level, Kirby has been accused of "selling out your people," of being a "maverick" and a "turncoat." The pressure, though, has been subtle, he said.

One senator said it's no wonder the rich are screaming. He said a family in the central part of the state had an income of about $1 million untaxed by the state because of the loophole. The state lost $70,000 revenue from them.

While Kirby has resigned himself to defeat on that battle, he's not given up the war. He said he hopes to work up a bill that would attack the problem from another direction, a minimum tax.

He said the bill would require taxes to be paid if income are above a specified level such as $50,000. The idea needs a lot of work and may not be finished in time to get it in this year, he said.

Kirby said he was rankled that 10 North Carolinians with incomes between $160,000 and $180,000 paid no state income taxes.

Such a bill could win legislative approval, he said. "If I could get it out of committee, I don't know how in the hell anybody could vote against it," he said.
