First Reports Trickle Out From Captured Saigon

By United Press International

Hanoi radio and news reports said Saturday water, electricity and textile plants had resumed operation in conquered South Vietnam and that the first plane flying the Viet Cong's colors had landed in Saigon—the capital the Communists renamed Ho Chi Minh City.

But communications from Saigon to the outside world remained blacked out for the fourth day. The little information about life in South Vietnam came from Hanoi radio monitored in Bangkok and from dispatches by Peking's New China news agency, under Hanoi datelines, received in Hong Kong.

After 35 years of fighting the Japanese, French, Americans and South Vietnamese, victorious Viet Cong troops rode Russian-made tanks and captured U.S. jeeps into Saigon Wednesday to end the war.

A wave of 70,000 Vietnamese who fled the country by sea during the dying hours of the war were making their way across the Pacific aboard U.S. and Vietnamese ships Saturday, en route to eventual destinations in the United States.

In Paris, the French Foreign Ministry said Saturday two French journalists, who disappeared almost a week ago during the fall of Saigon, were still missing. They were identified as Michel Laurent of the Gamma photographic agency and Christian Hoche of the newspaper Le Figaro.

A handful of American newsmen, including four UPI men, remained in the capital. The last direct dispatch from UPI's Saigon bureau was Wednesday morning.

A New China dispatch said electricity and water supply plants had resumed operating in Da Nang, Ban Me Thuot, Pleiku, Kontum, Nha Trang and the ancient imperial capital at Hue.

It reported textile mills were working again in Da Nang, the city that had heaquartered the U.S. Marines during the war, and have been turning out goods since April 21.

It said transportation links between Da Nang, Cau Doa, Quy Nhon, Phu My, Quang Tri and Hue—generally along the nation's main north-south Highway 1—were restored.

A Hanoi radio broadcast said Lai Dinh Xuy of Da Nang piloted the first plane carrying the flag of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government to land at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base.

The broadcast quoted Xuy as saying, "I have fought for 22 years and am very honored to fly the first plane of the PRG to land in your city of Ho Chi Minh."

South Vietnam's new rulers had said they would rename Saigon Ho Chi Minh City, in honor of the North Vietnamese leader who directed the Communist side for 29 years of the fighting. He died in 1969 in Hanoi.

Printing shops were set up in Saigon for mass distribution of documents stating Viet Cong policies, and "thousands of persons, including many high-ranking officials of the old regime and many puppet officers and troops ... reported to the revolution," the radio said.

CELEBRATE COMMUNION—The Rev. Snags In Arms Talks

BRUSSELS (UPI)—Soviet-American negotiations on the second Strategic Arms Limitation Talks treaty have run into serious snags, Western defense sources said Saturday.

The sources said the treaty may not be ready for signing, as was hoped, when Soviet Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev goes to Washington in the autumn to meet President Ford.

No Evidence of Violation

WASHINGTON (AP)—A federal investigation of alleged conflicts of interest in the operation of Soul City, N.C., has produced no evidence that federal laws were violated, the Commerce Department said Friday.

The department made public a telegram to Soul City director Floyd B. McKissick from Alex Armendaris, the director of the Office of Minority Business Enterprise.

In the telegram, Amendaris told McKissick that negotiations for a new funding contract for the city would resume.

Seven Die In Crash

VECHTA, Germany (AP) — Authorities say seven persons including five children died when a crippled Belgian Mirage jet fighter slammed into a row of homes here during a training mission.

Nineteen other persons were injured and two were missing after the crash Friday near this north German town 40 miles southwest of Bremen.

Police said the pilot, who was flying the plane back to the Belgian air base at Bierset near Liege, apparently had tried to clear the row of homes instead of bailing out. The plane skimmed the tops of trees on its way down.

Named Vanderbilt Dean

NASHVILLE (AP)—The first woman to head of a major American divinity faculty says she views her appointment as Dean of Vanderbilt University as "one small step for womankind."

She is Dr. Sallie McFague TeSelle, whose appointment to the post was announced Friday after confirmation by the Board of Trustees.

To Return Crusade Check

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Officials of the Billy Graham Crusade, faced with a possible law suit, say they will return at $1,000 check offered by the City of Jackson.

James Carr, state Crusade chairman, made the announcement Friday after an American Civil Liberties Union spokesman said the group would sue unless the payment was withdrawn.

The group claimed the city money would violate the separation of church and state.

Carr said the money would be returned to avoid any controversy.

Irish Warning

BELFAST (UPI) — Roman Catholic politicians warned Saturday of "complete disaster" if hardline Protestants use their overwhelming election victory to shut out the Catholic minority from a voice in a future Ulster government.

But Protestant leaders said the 78-member constitutional convention selected by voters Thursday would never share authority with Catholics.

Complete returns gave the Protestant coalition a total of 45 seats, plus two independent Protestants who support it. Parties favoring power-sharing captured 31 seats.

Possibility of Being Tried

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Episcopal church faces the possibility of being tried on charges of violating church law as the result of an ecclesiastical court's ruling.

The situation is unparalleled in the two centuries of the American denomination's history.

A special church court, trying a local priest on charges of disobedience, declared Friday that Presiding Bishop John M. Allin was guilty of contempt for refusing to appear as a witness.

Nuclear Plants Explosions

MULHOUSE, France (UPI) — Two explosions rocked a nuclear power plant under construction at Fesenheim in northeastern France Saturday. German and Spanish anarchist groups claimed responsibility.

Police said two telephone calls, one to the site itself and the other to the newspaper "l'Alsace," warned of the impending explosions. A male voice said three explosive charges had been placed in the plant's toilets.

Final Arguments Monday

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Final arguments in $1.2 million lawsuit are scheduled Monday in U.S. District Court, where a group of young persons are seeking damages in connection with a 1971 "Billy Graham Day" rally attended by former President Richard Nixon.

The plaintiffs say they were illegally barred from the event in Charlotte by members of the White House staff, the Secret Service, the Charlotte police department and the local chapter of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Over 500 Arrive At Thai Border

By A.E.H. TAYLOR

ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand (UPI) — More than 500 foreigners, including one American newsman, made their weary way aboard 20 trucks to the Thai border from Cambodia Saturday—the first allowed to leave the country since its fall to the pro-Communist Khmer Rouge 16 days ago.

Red Cross officials at the border said another 250 foreign refugees—the last believed to be in Phnom Penh—were expected to make the arduous 300-mile journey from the Cambodian capital within the next few days.

Some of the arriving refugees, representing 23 nationalities, wept as they crossed a small bridge marking the border. Others thirsting in the tropical sun quaffed soft drinks. Then they climbed into air-conditioned coolness for a four-hour bus ride to Bangkok.

They said little about their ordeal. New York Times reporter Sydney Schanberg and six other foreign newsmen in the group said they had agreed to write or say nothing until other journalists still in Phnom Penh have left.

Communications with Phnom Penh have been all but blacked out since the Khmer Rouge took over.

The foreigners had been penned up in the French Embassy since the rebel Khmer Rouge overran Phnom Penh and won the five-year war April 17. United Nations and French officials had said earlier they had received reports the refugees had faced food and water shortages and were hit by dysentery.

But most of those arriving Saturday appeared in good health although obviously exhausted by the 3½ day truck ride under Khmer Rouge escort.

By late evening officials still had not arrived at a firm head count of the evacuees. The total number—including those still in Phnom Penh—was believed to be well above the 635 on a list held by the French government.

Bloodbath

NEW YORK (UPI) — A massive bloodbath has begun in Cambodia and thousands have already been executed, Newsweek magazine reported Saturday it was told by a U.S. official.

Newsweek said the reports are said to have come from intercepts of Khmer Rouge radio communications picked up by U.S. intelligence. The intercepts were said to indicate that the first victims were to be all officers of the Cambodian army down to the rank of second lieutenant and their wives.

Newsweek said sources told it that intercepts of the official Khmer Rouge radio transmissions gave the orders for the executions and that field radio reports indicated they were being carried out. They quoted the sources as saying the killings were not isolated cases but part of a full-fledged campaign.

World's Largest Warship Cost $692 Million

Carrier Nimitz Commissioned

By RICHARD E. LERNER

NORFOLK, VA. (UPI) — Calling military power "the sure guarantor of peace," President Ford Saturday commissioned the world's largest warship and pledged to strengthen America's international commitments in the post-Vietnam period.

Ford delivered his pledge during commissioning ceremonies for the USS Nimitz, the nation's second nuclear powered aircraft carrier and the largest warship ever launched.

The $692 million carrier was named in honor of Fleet Adm. Chester Nimitz, one of the nation's greatest World War II naval heroes, who died in 1966. Ford said Nimitz turned defeat into victory during that war and, in doing so, brought peace to the Pacific.

Ford stressed his determination to seek world peace, but added: "Fleet Admiral Nimitz and this fine ship both tell us that controlled strength is the sure guarantor of peace."

"We are strong," he said. "We will continue to be strong. We will keep our commitments and we will remain a great country."

The President's speech appeared designed to blunt fears around the world that, in the wake of Vietnam, the United States might not be a reliable ally.

His only reference to Vietnam, however, was to the role played by U.S. aircraft carriers in the emergency evacuation of Americans and South Vietnamese. He said the five carriers used in the evacuation provided "the most convincing demonstration of their readiness and flexibility in the successful execution of national policy" and made the 20-hour rescue possible.

Loud applause from the crowd interrupted Ford's speech several times.

"The Nimitz joins the fleet at an auspicious moment, when our determination to strengthen our ties with allies across both great oceans and to work for peace and stability around the world requires clear demonstration," Ford said.

He called the carrier "a solid symbol of U.S. strength and resolve—made in America and manned by Americans"

The 95,000-ton ship, powered by two nuclear reactors, will have a crew of more than 6,000 and be able to house about 100 tactical aircraft.

Special Session For South Korean Gov't

By JAMES KIM

SEOUL (UPI) — Pro-government and opposition politicans called Saturday for a special session of South Korea's National Assembly to discuss national security in the wake of Communist takeovers in two other Southeast Asian nations.

Deputy Assembly Speakers Kim Jin-man and Lee Chul-sung tentatively agreed to convene a special parliamentary session, their aides said. Kim belongs to the ruling camp while Lee represents the opposition.

The fall of Cambodia and South Vietnam to the Communists and a recent trip to China by North Korean President Kim Il-sung have raised fears in Seoul about new Communist moves in other areas. South Korea is also known to have questioned the strength of American defense commitments in any new conflict.

Political sources said the proposed session would adopt a resolution calling for strengthened security and the defense of South Korea against North Korean threats "by all means."

The government camp would seek legislation for stronger security, the sources said. The opposition, which has long criticized President Park Chung-hee's authoritarian rule, wants those measures coupled with internal reforms.

The sources said behind-the-scenes negotiations are continuing to prevent open clashes at the special session and present a show of national unity.

Edenton Woman Charged

EDENTON, N.C. (AP)—An Edenton woman was jailed Saturday under $20,000 bond in the death of her husband and police said an autopsy was ordered to determine what killed the man.

Officers identified the victim as Dennis L. Cunningham, 29, of Rt. 3, Edenton. Charged with his Thursday night death was his wife Rosa. Police said there were stab wounds on the body and the man had been choked.

Bill Godley of the State Bureau of Investigation said Cunningham's death followed a domestic argument.

According To Lawyer Mack Howard, Former Member Of The James St. Clair Staff

Says Facts May Have Emerged Without Press

Former Staff Assistant to President Nixon Mack Howard said Friday night he believes the facts of Watergate would have eventually unraveled through the judicial and political process, regardless of the press coverage.

"At least I hope they would," he told members of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association meeting in Greenville.

Howard served on the staff of James St. Clair in the Watergate defense and was assigned to aspects of the case involving the Watergate break-in and James Dean.

The attorney, now in private practice in Greenville, questioned whether much of the work done by the press was really investigative reporting. He contended that much of the information gathered by Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward of "The Washington Post" was provided by a source which went under the code name of "Deep Throat". That source has yet to be identified.

Howard cited Judge Sirica, the FBI and other investigators in government for bringing the facts forth. As he viewed it, "The true purpose of the press is to report the news," he said and that may have been subverted by the leaks.

Howard saw the Agnew case as an example of letting the government take care of its own indiscretions, rather than the news media.

Other than the leaks, Howard said, he "did not perceive that the press had a great effect either for or against the president" in the Watergate matter.

Howard spent seven months in the Nixon White House associated with what he termed "the story of the decade."

He said those who control the nightly television news have become very powerful. "It worries me a great deal," he said. "It is a problem the viewer may not realize. I pray the situation will never get out of hand."

Howard told the newspaper group that he feels the country now confronts a moment of truth. "The months and years ahead will determine whether your children and my children will enjoy the freedoms we have. I wish you well in your awesome tasks and responsibilities."

Howard said the Supreme Court case involving the presidential tapes was "the most difficult and intense issue we faced." The defense attorneys felt they had a chance until the date of the Supreme Court announcement of a unanimous decision that the tapes must be turned over.

It was a harsh decision, he said, and perhaps will have great impact in the future.

Howard said there was no evidence that the White House had ordered the Watergate break-in, so the major issue affecting the president was the coverup. The tapes revealed that Nixon was asked about having the CIA call off the FBI investigation and he replied, "Right, fine."

He described it as an "absolute bombshell."

After private consultation with his family Nixon subsequently announced that he would resign.

James St. Clair then left and Howard took over for three additional weeks to close down the operation.

Howard was introduced by David J. Whichard, editor of "The Daily Reflector."

Jack Whichard, co-publisher of "The Daily Reflector" is president of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association and presided over the meeting.

A workshop was held Saturday morning with Tom Boney of Graham; Hal Tanner, Jr. of Goldsboro and Jim Wilson of Wilmington discussing changes their newspapers have made in the past year.

Claims "Fantastic Neglect" In Nation's Welfare Program

By CRAIG A. PALMER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Amazed at what they have found so far, congressional investigators say the government is guilty of "fantastic neglect" in its efforts to stop chiseling, cheating and fraud in the nation's welfare programs.

A House subcommittee has been checking the investigative capacity of the Health, Ecucation and Welfare Department, which spends more than one-third of the federal budget—$118.4 billion in fiscal 1976—on programs that affect virtually every American.

Over the past two weeks, hearings of the House subcommittee on intergovernmental relations and human resources disclosed that:

—HEW has only 13 criminal investigators to watch over Medicare health insurance and social security for the aged, which account for more than 60 per cent of its budget.

—HEW has only 10 investigators for all its other 320 programs, including welfare, Medicaid, guaranteed student loans and the Food and Drug Administration.

—Those 10 investigators have about 100 cases of alleged fraud and abuse under or awaiting investigation: A four-year backlog.

—HEW's tiny investigative staff must clear every proposed investigation with the HEW secretary or undersecretary.

The lawmakers have been incredulous at these revelations.

"This is a question of fantastic neglect over many, many years," said Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass.

"You're kidding yourselves, Congress and the American public to say you have any investigatory capacity," Rep. Elliott H. Levitas, D-Ga., told an HEW representative.

The congressmen are not charging that HEW's programs are rife with fraud, because they simply do not know how widespread it is.

HEW officials testified they don't know either, but agreed there is plenty of potential for undetected dishonesty.

"There is a vast potential for fraud and abuse," HEW official John Ottina said of the Medicaid program.

The hearings may resume in the next two weeks.

Subcommittee Chairman L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., has been patient with the HEW witnesses, stressing that neither he nor the panel blames them personally.

But even Fountain lost his cool over the clearance procedure that HEW's security chief, Nathan D. Dick, must follow to initiate an investigation.

Dick testified he must clear each case with the HEW secretacy or undersecretary because of concern his gumshoes might poke "into areas we had no business getting into, such as personal misconduct."

Former Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., expressed concern in 1974 that HEW investigations might involve invasions of privacy.

But Fountain told Dick: "I can appreciate the necessity for caution and care on invasion of privacy, but for an agency with 320 programs, and one-third of the federal budget, it just seems to me absolutely ridiculous for you to have to go to the secretary or undersecretary for approval of every single investigation you make."

Dick said he had 22 investigators a year ago but was cut back "by Congressional action" largely resulting from Ervin's efforts. He said more HEW investigators would undoubtedly turn up more cases of embezzlement, conflict of interest, student loan ripoffs and welfare cheating.

Five Years To Recover

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—A former state legislator says the economic future is so uncertain that he thinks the North Carolina General Assembly will have to meet each year for the next five years to review the state budget.

"We should plan our government knowing that the recession is not a temporary thing," Sam Johnson, Raleigh attorney, said in an interview.

Johnson is serving in a newly created role of legislative counsel to House Speaker James Green. For 10 years he was a member of the House.

"We've got so many legislative problems and headaches today that if I were a freshman legislator I'd be tempted to pack up and leave," Johnson said.

He considers the present legislative session "the most unique since the depression of the 1930s."

Many problems, such as energy, utilities and increased crime, are tied to the recession.

The biggest problem, however, is trimming the state budget to reflect the drop in revenue resulting from the recession. Gone are the big money surpluses of past years.

"I'm saying the situation is so bad that it will take five years to recover," Johnson said. He pointed to a stack of charts and statistics in his office to support his belief.

In predicting the legislature will have to return each year "to patch up and review the budget," Johnson explained "it won't be annual sessions in that sense. The biennial sessions will continue. In the other years the legislature will come here, elect a House speaker and get organized."

Johnson envisioned that perhaps in the even numbered years the General Assembly will meet in April or May, possibly for 30 days, to consider budget matters.

"People who think the recession will be over in a few months are wrong," he said.

Arab Rockets Miss Israeli Targets

By United Press International

Arab guerrillas fired two Soviet-made rockets aimed at the Knesset (parliament) and other government buildings in Jerusalem Saturday. But they missed their targets, causing only light damage and no casualties, Israeli police said.

In Beirut, the Palestinian guerrilla leadership said the rockets scored "direct hits" on the buildings and inflicted heavy material and human losses. It said the attack was carried out by a special guerrilla force operating inside Israeli-occupied territories.

A general moblization was called when reports of the attack first reached police. Israeli soldiers joined in the operation and an army helicopter hovered over the site of one blast.

The first rocket hit at 4:15 a.m. and police said they discovered a crater caused by the blast in an open area between the Hebrew University and the Israel Museum, adjacent to the Neve Shaanan residential quarter. Windows of some nearby buildings were shattered, a police announcement said.

The Katyusha rocket landed only several hundred yards from the Knesset and various government offices, including that of the prime minister, in the area.

The Refugees Trail Stretches Far

By DONALD E. MULLEN
United Press International

The trail to exile for an estimated 120,000 Vietnamese refugees stretched 10,000 miles Saturday as flight after flight of the homeless arrived in America and thousands of others sailed through the South China Sea in ships crammed to the gunwales.

The first planeload of refugees to land in the Deep South was scheduled to arrive at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., Sunday to a welcome toast of Florida orange juice.

Thousands of others were en route to hastily assembled tent cities at Camp Pendleton, Calif., and Fort Chaffee, Ark., where they will join homeless countrymen faced with a bewildering array of red tape.

The 300 refugees headed for Eglin Air Force base had been scheduled to land late Saturday, but their plane was delayed at Guam.

They will be housed in wood floor and frame tents among scrub pine and palmettos at a remote airstrip on the huge base just miles from the Gulf of Mexico. The camp can accomodate 2,500 persons.

The numbers of known refugees who escaped South Vietnam jumped Saturday when a Danish freighter radioed that it had picked up 3,000 men, women and children from a sinking Vietnamese freighter and was steaming for Hong Kong under "dangerous" conditions, with food supplies running low. It was expected to arrive at 6 a.m. EDT Sunday.

About 30,000 other refugees were aboard South Vietnamese Navy vessels in the South China Sea.

Another 40,000 were aboard American vessels going to the Subic Bay Naval Station in the Philippines or en route to Guam. About 10,000 of these were helped ashore at Subic Bay Saturday from Navy ships including the helicopter carrier USS Hancock.

In addition, about 40,000 are at staging areas on Guam and Wake Island, or at Camp Pendleton and Fort Chaffee.

About 10,000—wives, children and in-laws of Americans or those with American sponsors—have been released to new homes across the country.

The first refugees to arrive at Fort Chaffee Friday received such an open-hearted welcome from Arkansas Gov. David H. Pryor and private citizens that it prompted a call of congratulations from President Ford.

"He complimented the people of Arkansas for the best reception given so far for the Vietnamese refugees," Pryor said Saturday.

Flights carrying 1,280 refugees were scheduled to land at Chaffee Saturday.

Miss Lee Thi Thuanhoa, one of the first arrivals at Chaffee, said, "All my life from the time I was 15 years old there has been war. I am 46 and now there is no more war.

"I don't care where I go in America. Anywhere in this country is safe."

Evidence of American reluctance to accept the refugees in the United States has been sporatic since the airlift began. It became more pronounced Saturday after a poll of Congressmen showed their constituent mail and telephone calls were running heavily against the refugees.

Despite reports to the contrary, health service officials and doctors said most of the refugees were in pretty good health.

"These refugees pose no more of a problem to the health of Americans than the thousands of other travelers who enter this country from the Far East every year," said a Health, Education and Welfare official.

Rejects Farm Supports

By BERNARD BRENNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford rejected a request by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz that he make administrative increases in farm price supports to soften reaction against his farm bill veto, government sources said Saturday.

But the President also declined to follow the advice of the Office of Management and Budget that he delete or modify promises to take administrative action on farm prices if they continue to decline.

The sources said Ford's decision might have been different had the April farm price report not indicated an upturn.

McGovern Calls For Refugees To Return To SVN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., has called for the voluntary return of most South Vietnamese refugees to Saigon.

In a lecture prepared for delivery to Eastern Illinois University Sunday, McGovern said "America will not turn away those few who might be endangered by a return to their homeland."

But he added that "90 per cent of the Vietnamese refugees who left would be better off going back to their own land now that the initial panic has subsided."

He described it as unlikely that the new government would "engage in the bloodbath our policymakers have talked about so much." and said the new rulers have already given orders that the people are not to be molested or their personal belongings seized.

"That is more respect for the people than Thieu's army ever demonstrated," McGovern said.

Caldwell Retires From NCSU; Warns Against Budgets Cuts

RALEIGH (AP)—Proposed budget cuts for the state university system brought a warning from North Carolina State University Chancellor Dr. John Caldwell Friday in his formal farewell to the campus.

Caldwell, retiring after being head of the school for 16 years, urged State's alumni and friends to fight against the legislature's proposed cuts.

During the ceremony, State's engineering foundation gave Caldwell a new Audi and the alumni association presented the university with a $100,000 scholarship fund named in his honor. Caldwell will retire in June.

In his 16 years, he said, "I have seen your alma mater reach undreamed of heights in intellectual competence and ability to serve this nation."

He warned that the budget cutting process jeopardized some of those gains. "I am alarmed, perplexed and discouraged by the tentative decisions being made," he said.

The legislature's budget committees, faced with a projected $232 million deficit for the next two-year budget, have been cutting many appropriations. One subcommittee has recommended $44 million in cuts for the 16-campus university system and a $100 tuition hike for in state students.

Caldwell said the proposals would strike particularly hard at State's research and graduate programs. He said the General Assembly apparently was seeking to finance new programs like the East Carolina University medical school at the expense of existing programs in other schools.

NC News Briefs

Would Welcome Refugees

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Jim Holshouser says he thinks Vietnamese refugees should be welcomed to this country, and if they come to North Carolina, he added, they should be welcomed here.

Holshouser's remarks came in an interview following a speech at the All-Star Scholars banquet for top students in public and private schools of Mecklenburg County. The banquet was sponsored by the Charlotte News.

The arrival of South Vietnamese refugees comes at a difficult time, said the governor, adding, "We have considerable unemployment in North Carolina but at the same time, I think we have to recognize, in part, at least, because of our involvement, these people have been through a great deal more than us."

Two Women Murdered

CHARLOTTE (UPI) — Police Saturday described the murder of two women, found shot in the head at a north Charlotte apartment, as an "execution style" slaying.

One of the victims was identified as Sandra Ann McAfee, 21, who lived in the apartment where the bodies were found. The other victim had not been identified Saturday.

Police said both women had been shot in the head with a small caliber weapon.

No arrests had been made and police said they had no immediate suspects.

The two were apparently shot to death about 11:30 p.m. Friday.

Doctor's Insurance

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)— The head of the policy-making body of the North Carolina Medical Association says physicians in the state might not like the type of malpractice insurance offered them, but will accept it.

"Without some sort of insurance, we'd be naked as a jaybird," Dr. Chalmers R. Carr, speaker of the House of Delegates, said in an interview Saturday at the annual convention.

The St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co., which insures practically all the doctors in the state will offer after July 1 only a claims-type policy.

$2 Million Grant

GREENSBORO (AP)—North Carolina A-and-T State University Saturday received notification of approval of a $2 million development grant awarded by the Office of education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Approval of the grant, largest individual development grant in the university's history, was announced by Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, chancellor.

Arrested On Drug Charges

BOONE, N.C. (UPI) — Steve Perille of the Charlotte Observer Saturday night was named "Southern Photographer of the Year" in the awards ceremony at the 26th annual Southern Photographers Short Course.

The award is presented based on judgments of portfolios submitted by news photographers with newspapers having a circulation of 20,000 or more. Perille also won the "Best of Show" award.

Photographer Of Year

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP)—All 26 persons named in warrants in a drug crackdown in Salisbury and Rowan County were arrested Friday and early today, authorities announced.

The defendants, who include some college students, were placed under bond for appearance May 13 in state District Court in Salisbury. Those charged with misdemeanors will be tried and those charged with a felony will be given probable cause hearings to determine whether they should be tried in Superior Court.

100,000 Stings

WINNSBORO, S.C. (AP)— Sixty-five-year-old H. Spann Leitner estimates he has been stung 100,000 times in the 55 years he has worked with bees, the last 30 years fulltime.

He has 700 beehives.

The stings don't bother him too much. However, his wife is highly allergic to bee stings and can't help him around the hives.

The Fairfield County associate agricultural extension agent, A.D. Boggs, says that as far as he knows, Leitner is the only person in South Carolina who makes all his living from bees.

Leitner moves slowly and easily when working with his hives. He handles his bees gently as though he were afraid of hurting them, rather than the other way around. Sometimes he works with gloves and a face mask, sometimes not.

The home office of the Leitner Honey Farm is on a rural road six miles south of Winnsboro. It consists of 100 beehives and a small processing plant in the yard back of the brick home. Six years profits from the bees has paid for the home.

...Howard Says

Jim Wilson of Wilmington was elected president of the association for the coming year.

Other officers elected were: Jim Parker of Clinton, first vice president; Carl Worsley of Rocky Mount, second vice president and Howard Jones of Warrenton, secretary-treasurer.

Bob Allen of Wake Forest and Dave Jones of Raleigh were named one-year directors. Gene Smith of Havelock and Maurice Williams of Kinston were named two-year directors.

PATENT PARADE

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) — In 1974 more than 104,000 patent applications were filed in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. More than 70,000 patents were granted.

Feasible Because Of Planning

It is likely now that the proposed appropriation for development of the ECU Medical School will be cut by $7 million, but this is not expected to affect the school's development.

In view of the tight budget now being considered by the State Legislature, Dr. William Friday, UNC president, recommended the decrease in the appropriation to a Senate subcommittee. He said the recommendation was being made with concurrance of Dr. Leo Jenkins.

The proposed budget called for an appropriation of $35.2 million to be added to the $15 million already on hand. The cut will mean that $28.2 million remains in the budget for development of the school.

The decreased appropriation is feasible because the people of Pitt County voted bonds to construct a modern new Pitt Memorial Hospital which is now under construction. An agreement has been worked out for joint use of the facility as a county hospital with the private physicians on its staff, and as a teaching hospital with the Medical School people on the staff.

It is anticipated that a third bed tower of 100 beds and other facilities will be constructed with state funds to provide for the Medical School.

Development of the Medical School will offer untold advantages to Greenville and Pitt County; there is no doubt about that. But we should not forget the foresight of Pitt County's political and medical leaders and our taxpayers in providing for the new hospital.

We have no doubt that the old hospital would not have been satisfactory as clinical facilities for the Medical School. If an entirely new state facility had been constructed the cost to the state would have been much more and there would have also been the problem of getting it built to meet the school's development schedule.

This is a fine example of the people of Pitt County cooperating in every way possible to help with the Medical School's development. It has meant some personal cost to county tax payers, but we believe the vast majority of them are happy that the new hospital facilities will be available to the ECU School of Medicine.

Private Kindergarten Aid?

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—North Carolina has a legalized gambling system—the public school lottery to see which kind get to attend kindergarten.

State Rep. Thomas O. Gilmore, D-Gilford, thinks it is wrong for some citizens to win, while others lose, and is proposing that at least the state give a tax break to the losers.

He has introduced a proposal in the General Assembly to allow a state income tax deduction of up to $500 for parents who have a child who is eligible for a public kindergarten—but can't get him or her enrolled.

The amount of the deduction would be based on the actual cost of sending the child to a private kindergarten, and Gilmore figures the cost to the state would be about $200,000 this year; about $100,000 next year; and would be phased out the following year as the kindergarten program expands to enroll all five-year-olds.

Tax Breaks

"We allow tax breaks of all sorts to people . . . but nothing if your nextdoor neighbor gets a kid in public kindergarten, and you must send yours to a private school," Gilmore said.

The measure would have passed easily last year, Gilmore believes, but fears the tight money situation currently works against his idea.

About half of North Carolina's 87,800 five-year-olds are currently enrolled in public school kindergarten. Expansion plans call for adding additional spaces each year until all can be enrolled by 1978.

Closed Meetings

State Rep. W. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, has introduecd a simple, two-line amendment to the state's open meeting law which has profund impact across the state—affected would be meetings of General Assembly committes, local school boards, city councils, and boards of county commissioners, among others.

Lawing's proposal says meetings can be closed to the public for discussion of any "information regarding the appointment or dismissal of any member of any commission, committee, advisory body, board or agency."

That sounds like an extension of the right of public boards to meet privately to discuss personnel matters. But in reality it broadens that concept to include discussing qualifications of appointees to local zoning bodies, hospital boards, etc.; hiring architects or lawyers, or other consultants; even consideration of a replacement member of the parent board itself if a vacancy occurs through resignation or death.

Lawing says he isn't married to the proposal, but was asked to introduce it by the N.C. Association of County Commissioners and the Mecklenburg Board of County Commissioner.

Crime Study Urged

State Senator Donald R. Kincaid, R-Caldwell, agrees with recent comments in this column that this General Assembly is moving in two conflicting directions on the question of fighting crime.

"One segment. . .has introduced bills liberalizing the sentencing and punishment of criminals. In my opinion, many of these bills will further prove to those considering crimes that punishment is not certain," Kincaid said.

"Another segment . . is proposing laws making the punishment of those who commit crime more severe. Unfortunately, many lawyers (say) the firmer we make the laws, the easier it is to get an accused acquitted."

Kincaid says the assembly must get to the "major problem. . .the inability of the state to guarantee swift and immediate punishment. . ." He is pushing a speedy trial proposal, and also urging a crime study commission to prove possibilities of law requiring the full criminal record of a defendant be presented to the judge before a trial occurs; strict guidlines for continuing cases; and changes in the system which allows release of the accused on a technical error of the court although no miscarriage of justice occurred.

Capital Growing Pains

By ROBERT E. SULLIVAN and STAN LEHMAN

BRASILIA (UPI) — The crowded commuter bus moves slowly over the new pavement, workers jammed body to body in the tropical heat.

The modern, clean diesel rolls smartly by the modern clean apartments out to the "satellite cities".

It is the end of another day in Brasilia, the created-from-nothing capital of Brazil celebrating its 15th anniversary this year, and the clerks, messengers, construction workers, and washerwomen are leaving it.

They cannot afford to live in the city that many of them helped build.

Looking back on his creation recently, Lucio Costa, chief urban planner for the city, told UPI that the main failure was that the capital did not develop in an integrated way. Instead, low income families were forced to move to poorly planned "satellite cities", which in some cases are nothing but slums.

In other interviews, reporters received a wide range of views on the city. The former president of Brazil, responsible for the building of the city, said the capital is "the masterpiece of the century." The city's chief architect said Brasilia "is unjust and discriminatory." A young lab technician said she would never leave it.

Former President Juscelino Kubitschek's dark eyes light up and a broad smile comes over his face when he speaks of the city he built in an effort to open up and develop Brazil's vast interior.

"The construction of a new capital was the only way to awaken the spirit of pioneering of Brazilians, not only to build Brasilia, but to also settle the areas adjacent to it," he said.

Repeating the dramatic call he made during his 1956-1961 presidency, he said, "We must march to the west, turn our backs to the sea, and stop staring at the ocean as if thinking of departing."

According to government statistics, the populations of the

Sunday Morning Notes

The pretty girl attended services at First Presbyterian Church last Sunday in long dress, a hat and fashionable shoes.

Following the services she returned to her transportation—a bicycle.

She kicked off the shoes, put on flip flops and took off the hat. Then she mounted the bike and was off.

A pretty girl was selling a compound for cleaning glass in a local store.

She demonstrated it to a prospective customer.

Then she explained that it was a dollar a bottle, but as a special it was on sale two bottles for a dollar.

The male customer said he didn't believe he would try it.

"Well," she said brightly, "as a special I'll sell you one bottle for a dollar."

The man thought a moment and then asked, "Would you settle for 50 cents?"

Turned out a buck was rock bottom.

The coed finished her breadfast in a local restaurant and then paid the check to the cashier. She returned to the dining area to leave a tip.

That was thoughtful enough, except she left the tip at the wrong table.

Some times, it's the thought that counts—but not always.

The man had obviously seen some years and he stared out across the Town Common Park.

ALVIN TAYLOR

"Things sure have changed here," he commented. "My church used to stand right over there." He indicated the site of Sycamore Hill Church at First and Greene Street. Only three stately oaks remain at the site. The rest has been landscaped and walks installed as a part of the over-all park.

"Houses were located all along there," he said, indicating the remainder of the park.

He said he first came to Greenville in 1929 and his conversation indicated that he might have been gone for some time.

"It was a long time ago," he said somewhat sadly, as he picked up the battered satchel at his feet and walked off towards the downtown area.

Yep, things sure have changed.

40 Years Ago Today

May 4, 1935

The doubleheader scheduled for tomorrow between the ACC Bull Dogs and the ECTC Pirates has been called off, and the teams will play only one game, beginning at 2:30 p.m.

This leaves the Pirates with only one more home game, against the Oak Ridge Cadets here on the 11th.

The locals have shown much improvement since the beginning of the season. There will be several changes in the lineup for tomorrow's game. Rex Hodges, a local youth, is currently first baseman and will shift to the outfield. Theo Eason, out with a broken rib, will be back in action for the game.

Lex Ridenhour has been moved in from the outfield to third base. Other positions will be the same with Rogerson or Dunn doing the hurling.

Greenville High School won its 12th game of the season yesterday by defeating Wilson High 14 to 11 in an 11-inning game in Wilson.

The INSIDE REPORT

Israel Lobby Angers Ford

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A head-on attack against President Ford by one of Israel's most respected journalists here has pushed White House political temperatures closer to the boiling point and hardened this tentative conclusion: Israel's battle to outflank Gerald Ford in his own country is getting rougher.

One immediate Ford response: a unique effort to reach agreement with congressional leaders on how much Israel's request for $2.6 billion in new military and economic aid should be cut. The President's hope is to gain a consensus before he sends the Israel-aid package to Congress, thus Israel's pressure campaign on Congress to raise the ante.

The anti-Ford critique appeared on April 23 in Israel's most respected daily newspaper, Ha'aretz, under the byline of its top American reporter, Dan Margalit.

"A cold man who is developing a grudge against Israel is now sitting in the White House," Margalit wrote. "In no way does he now resemble the Gerald Ford who, as a member of the House from Michigan, signed petitions for arms for Israel and spoke at meetings of the Jewish lobby."

That Margalit should attack President Ford is scarcely remarkable in a country which enjoys notable freedom of expression. What is significant is that high officials in the Ford administration are convinced that his criticism closely parallels private sentiments of some of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's top political advisers. As such, it is receiving close White House attention.

The chief American villain in Israeli eyes since the breakdown of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's Israeli-Egyptian peace mediation has been Kissinger. "Kissinger . . . is not America," wrote a journalist in Ma'ariv (often regarded as a government voice) just before President Ford's April 21 interview with CBS. "He will have to go, if not today, then tomorrow; if not tomorrow, then the day after."

But the President's careful even-handedness between Israel and the Arabs during his CBS interview changed the focus of attack. Asked whether he wanted a meeting with Rabin to help clear the air following Kissinger's failure, the President said that if he met Rabin he would want to meet Arab leaders too.

That was vintage Jerry Ford. White House aides never did prepare a briefing paper for the President before that interview on a possible meeting with Rabin. Thus, the President's answer, entirely his own, triggered Margalit's report to Ha'aretz the following day.

What raises the President's hackles about Israel's anti-administration campaign is its assumption that pro-Israeli publicists can sway U.S. public opinion and Congress against the administration. Indeed, many of Israel's staunchest friends in Congress also are finding fault privately with the campaign, a fact Mr. Ford is well aware of.

Israeli ambassador Simcha Dinitz has been told privately by several pro-Israeli congressional leaders that attacks on Mr. Ford and Kissinger could boomerang against Israel. Similar warnings of pro-Israeli overkill against the Ford administration — and against all U.S. politicians willing to criticize Israel — are coming from highly respected leaders of the American-Jewish community both worried and saddened by occasional intemperance in the reaction to any criticism of Israel's tactics.

One such leader, Hyman Bookbinder of the American-Jewish Committee (AJC), wrote in the April 22 edition of the AJC's authoritative "Washington Letter," that "there have been . . . some unjustified and needlessly shrill reactions recently to statements made by some members of Congress" critical of Israel.

The immediate issue between Mr. Ford and Israel is the U.S. "reassessment" of American interests in the Middle East following collapse of Kissinger's mediation. The heart of that reassessment is how to handle Israel's pending request for long-term military aid and the new

To the editor:

Several weeks ago my car was hit while parked on Evans Street. The person that hit me left the scene without reporting the accident to me or the police. A passerby took the person's license number and told me what had happened. I reported the incident to the Greenville Police Department and after a short time I was compensated by the other drivers insurance company.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the person who took the license number and was not afraid to get involved. We need more citizens like him in our city. I would also like to thank Officer Doug Jackson who conducted the investigation and was more than cooperative. The Greenville Police Department needs more people of Officer Jackson's caliber.

In this time of great national apathy I find it very encouraging that there are at least two people in our city who really do care about their fellow man.

Strength For Today

SUFFERING LEADS TO SERVICE

Wendel Phillips, who in later life became a great American reformer of the nineteenth century, was quite a playboy during his college days. One day he saw the anti-slavery agitator, William Lloyd Garrison, assailed by a mob and dragged off to prison. In later years Phillips wrote, "With the setting of that October sun, there vanished forever a career of prosperous ease and the gratification of ordinary ambitions."

Other men have been turned to careers of great usefulness by witnessing the suffering of someone in behalf of a great cause. Paul's movement toward Christianity began when he witnessed the stoning of Stephen, the first Christian martyr. The stoning of Paul at Lystra some years later had much to do with making Timothy a great Christian disciple.

Let us remember, therefore, that God has made sacrifice the starting point of some of his great enterprises. Strange as it may seem, God can use the trouble and injustice of this world for great ends.

Reality Dulls Any Celebrating

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The attitudes and emotions that spur economic activity seldom rise and fall in predictable symmetry, and during the past few days they seem to have developed very erratic pulsations.

The recession will be over by late this year, almost all the nation's economic advisers seem to be saying, but the celebration of this news already is being dulled by the realities.

A high level of joblessness, it is widely believed, will persist well into the recovery, far into 1976. And few economists are willing to say when, if ever, it will drop back to 4 per cent or so.

Inflation fell to an 8 per cent rate for the first quarter of the year, the lowest in nearly two years, which is exciting news. On reflection, it is sobering news too, because 8 per cent by any measure is unacceptable.

And now there comes news that is little less than ominous: Farm prices are rising again after a five-month decline, a frightening development for consumers, even if the Agriculture Department says it was expected.

The great automobile marketing experiment seems to have turned out to be a bummer, the rebate programs merely stealing sales from the "traditional spring rally." It didn't come this year. There was no spurt in car sales.

Now it appears that car prices are headed still higher, rebates notwithstanding, which isn't the kind of situation that encourages penny-pinching customers to rush to the showrooms.

The carmakers feel, however, that they have little choice. The big profits that used to leave some people aghast, and which generated so much criticism, are fading now.

Ford Motors just reported a $10-million dollar loss for the first quarter. Chrysler also is losing money. General Motors earnings are off sharply.

A dark cloud hovers over the credit markets, and nobody seems to know if eventually it will drop rain or dissipate, whether it will drive up mortgage rates and corporate borrowing rates and government bond rates.

The inescapable fact is that Uncle Sam finances his debt in the same credit market that ordinarily accommodate individuals and business. And when Uncle Sam jumps into that sand pile there isn't much room for the others to play.

The leading indicators of economic activity haven't as yet lent much statistical support to hopes that the recession is ending. In March, for the seventh month in eight, it dropped, although by only one-half of 1 per cent.

The dismal forecasts of the index, which is supposed to foreshadow economic activity, probably is leading to its demise in the next few months, to be replaced by another barometer.

If the news is bad, shoot the messenger! This country needs good news.

Kissinger In Public Favor

PRINCETON, N.J.,—Although Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is the target of increasing criticism in Washington circles, he wins a vote of confidence from a majority of the American people.

Nationwide, 56 per cent of persons interviewed in a recent Gallup Poll say they approve of the way Kissinger is handling his job as Secretary of State, 25 per cent disapprove and 19 per cent are undecided.

Kissinger has been under heavy attack from certain quarters in recent weeks following two major U.S. foreign policy setbacks—the breakdown of his mediation efforts in the Middle East in March and the collapse of Cambodia and impending downfall of South Vietnam. Only about one American in 10, however, places the blame for the breakdown of Mideast talks directly on the U.S. government and Kissinger.

Attitudes Becoming More Politically Partisan

Approval outweighs disapproval among all major population groups and in all four major regions of the nation. Although both Republicans and Democrats lean toward approval, strong bipartisan lines are developing.

Republicans today are far more inclined to approve of Kissinger's performance than are Democrats, with 70 per cent of Republicans approving, compared to 50 per cent of Democrats.

Following is the survey question:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way Henry Kissinger is handling his job as Secretary of State?"

Following are the detailed breakdowns. As seen, Kissinger has particular appeal with the college-trained segment of the population.

Approve or Disapprove Of Kissinger Performance?

Was Most Admired In '74

Kissinger placed fourth on the Gallup Poll's "Most Admired Man" list in 1972. He headed the list in 1973 and 1974.

Kissinger's high name recognition and popularity derived from his success in laying the groundwork for former President Nixon's historic visits to China and Russia, for his role in the negotiations that led to the ceasefire in Vietnam and until just recently, for his successful "shuttle diplomacy" in bringing about an easing of tensions in the Middle East.

The findings reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,535 adults 18 and older, in more than 300 sampling locations across the nation during the period April 4-7.

Public Forum

To the editor:

A letter appeared in last Tuesday's Daily Reflector praising the "tremendous leadership" of the people of Eastern North Carolina in the defeat of the Equal Rights Amendment. For the gentleman who wrote the letter, I would like to report a conversation I had with one of Eastern North Carolina's legislators who voted against the Equal Rights Amendment.

He told me that in his opinion most of the people opposing the ERA did not understand it and therefore were afraid of it. I asked him if he did not believe that ignorance and fear were dangerous bases for legislation. He agreed that they might be but said he would vote against the ERA because it seemed to him that more people were opposing it than supporting it. So much for the "tremendous leadership."

To the editor:

It seems that citizens of Greenville and the rest of our great country may be misled by what they read in the papers and hear and see on TV about the contract negotiations between the postal service and the postal union. The postal service is "in the hole" more than $8 million, so why don't they go up on postage now? They are waiting until they give the postal employees a pay raise and therefore blame all postal employees for the raise in price of stamps and services. The American Postal Workers Union does not like being a scapegoat for the U. S. Postal Service.

During 1975, the Southern Region of the U. S. Postal Service will open new Bulk Mail Centers (BMC) in Atlanta, GA; Dallas, TX; Jacksonville, FL; Memphis, TN, and Greensboro, N.C. These BMC's will cover a total of 301 acres of land and 1,636,700 square feet of interior space. These BMC's will cost billions of dollars. So if you have to pay more for a postage stamp, please remember it is not only because of the billions and billions of dollars raise, but because of the billions and billions of dollars spent on Bulk Mail Centers, Sectional Centers, facilities, gas, vehicles, utilities, zip cope books, etc.

Please join with the American Postal Workers Union whose only wish is to give you the best postal service possible.

The Score Today Is Goliath 2 And David Zero

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

As the tale is told in I Samuel 17, it was David all the way. The stripling shepherd boy took on the Philistines' champion, slang a single stone, slew the giant, and cut off his head. But in the closest thing we have around town to such a combat, sad to say, the score is now running Goliath, two; David, nothing.

This is the court battle now in progress between ten of the nation's largest unions, on the one hand, and the doughty little National Right to Work Committee on the other. The committee, thus far, is losing. The unions have won every preliminary skirmish, and the right-to-work leaders, to their considerable discomfiture, are about to find themselves in contempt of court.

The fight began two years ago this week, when the ten unions brought suit against the committee and its offshoot, the National Right to Work Legal Defense and Education Foundation. The committee and the foundation, both non-profit organizations, exist for the same purpose: It is to protect the right of an American worker to join or not to join a union. Toward that end, the committee works for the enactment and retention of state right-to-work laws. The foundation defends workers seeking to preserve their rights.

From the unions' point of view, the right-to-work outfits have become a royal pain in the neck. The unions therefore are seeking, through their suit, to destroy both the committee and the foundation. They propose to accomplish this aim by compelling the committee and the foundation to disclose the names of their contributors.

The legal situation, at the moment, is this: District Judge Charles R. Richey, after first denying a motion to dismiss, last June ordered the right-to-work defendants to disclose the names of 190 employers who have made contributions. The defendants took the matter to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals on a petition for a writ of mandamus against Judge Richey. On March 17, the appellate court rejected the petition.

The proper way for the right-to-work people challenge Judge Richey, said the circuit court, is "through disobedience." If the committee and the foundation will put themselves in a position of "formal and respectful" contempt, the circuit court will have another look. That's what the right-to-workers are doing.

They have no other choice. To disclose the first 190 names of employer contributors would subject these contributors to the kind of harassment, abuse, and vilification at which the unions are expert. Such a disclosure also would open the way for compelled disclosure of more than 160,000 other contributors to the National Right to Work Committee and its legal foundation.

These 160,000 contributors include many thousands of union members who resent compulsory unionism and oppose in principle the union shop. It requires no great labor of the imagination to perceive what would happen to these workers if their identity became known. They would have been laid wide-open to physical and verbal abuse by the unions' professional pug-uglies and bully boys. The committee and the foundation soon would be put out of business.

If the topic of the day is "contempt," let me express my own contempt for the ten powerful unions and for the liberals who are supporting this invasion of privacy. The principle here at stake is the identical principle defended in years past by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. When the Commonwealth of Virginia once sought a court order compelling the NAACP to disclose its legal defense operations, the Supreme Court responded with an emphatic "no."

In the NAACP case, the Court held that the Constitution protects "expression and association" by the members of any group, without regard to the truth, popularity, or social utility of the ideas they cherish. Will the courts take these protections away from Americans who believe in the right not to join a union? I can't believe it. But for the time being, Goliath is winning, and David is losing.

Many Signs Suggest A New, Worse Recession Expectable In 2 Years

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Are we going to begin a climb out of this recession only to fall into an even worse mess within another 18-months or two years?

A growing list of economists and other business analysts says we are and for a variety of reasons which add up to to another vicious boom-bust cycle. The big question, of couse, is "can this appraisal be right?"

Certainly, the forecasters have piled up a pretty bad track performance in recent times. Last year, many failed to see a recession coming. And even those who did have been surprised by the severity.

But the case being made is too persuasive to simply brush aside. Business Week has called it a "frightening scenario" for a "double dip recession" and one which may well end up by more government intervention in the economy. The Wall Street Journal reports on the possibility of a "new boom and bust" cycle.

Those who subscribe to the pessimistic outlook give considerable weight to both short and long term forces at work in the economy and many see the great danger as a new and wild surge of inflation growing out of political impatience with slow recovery.

There is general agreement that the tax rebates voted by Congress will be a factor in getting recovery going later this year. They will put extra billions in the hands of consumers. Resulting spending will help reduce inventories and set the stage for a pick up in production.

But the resulting recovery will not be rapid enough and on a broad enough front to put a dent in unemployment ranks ahead of the 1976 general elections. Any sustained recovery will require a lot of capital going into business plant and equipment and into the still very sick housing industry.

And there's little prospect, under present conditions, that these needed investment funds will be available in time to underpin the recovery that takes place. The government's huge demand for funds—the deficit—is keeping capital markets tight and long term interest rates high.

Thus, according to this scenario, the expected recovery threatens to falter before mid-1976. And there's no reason to believe that the present Congress would view any such development with restraint.

The danger seen is that Congress would push the nation more toward inflation, with a second tax cut, more spending and even greater deficits. And it might well add a government program to supply subsidized capital and allocate its flow. With an eye on politics, it might add wage-price control authority.

Of course, things might not work out this way at all. Recovery might get going in a more normal fashion and put the economy on an upward course for a longer period of time, provided Washington doesn't resort to new gimmicks for political reasons.

The Ford Administration already has made it clear that recovery, if it is to be sustained, will be a gradual process. It will take three, perhaps, five-years to get unemployment back in the 5 percent to 6 percent range if inflation is to be held below the double digit rate.

Excessive wage demands can be a real bararier to lasting recovery. It is unfortunate that unions look to next year, when recovery should be getting underway, as the "time to catch up." We may well see the biggest wage raises ever at a time when unemployment is at a peak. For employers, the alternate can be long and costly strikes.

Even under the best of conditions, there is a limit on how far recovery can go without bumping against pretty rigid ceilings. Fuel — energy — will be in short supply and high priced for years to come. And it might be recalled that as recently as a year ago industry was finding many raw materials hard to come by.

And these ceilings are real. They can be lifted by patient and hard work. They aren't budged by printing press money voted by politicians trying to hang onto cushy jobs.

Having ruled out large, new arms guarantees that would have the effect of "underwriting a stalemate" between Israel and the Arabs, the President is seeking — and finding — assurances of congressional support before he decides how much to give.

Hence, in the battle between Mr. Ford and the Israeli lobby for control of Congress, in the past an inveterate Israelj ally, the President now holds high cards. The more "shrill" the attacks on him become, the tougher he is going to get.

The population of the neighboring state of Mato Grosso rose from 650,000 to 1.5 million during the same period. Road milage in Goias increased from 316 miles to 1,103 miles, while in Mato Grosso it rose from 25 miles to 518 miles.

Eventually A Reversal In Those Frog Stories

I've always been fascinated by frogs. Even when I was little, my favorite fairytales were the ones in which the talking frog was kissed by a beautiful princess and turned into a moon-eyed prince. I even tried to reenact what happened in those stories at home. But when I finally realized that all you got from picking up and kissing live frogs was wet hands and bad breath, I decided to settle for the inanimate variety.

By the time I married Phillip, I was up to the gills in inanimate frogs. I had frog sheets, frog towels, and a frog night light that croaked when I plugged him in. I had frog dishes, frog ashtrays, and a frog planter that bore a startling resemblance to Hubert Humphrey. I wanted a bathtub shaped like a lilypad, but those are a bit hard to locate in Greenville.

At first, Phillip didn't seem to mind my mania for frogs. In fact, he was a real prince among men. He soaped, toweled, and shaved with frogs without grumbling even once. He ate, drank, and washed dishes with frogs, and the only thing he complained about was dishpond hands. And he didn't even flinch when I gave him frog-green underwear for his birthday.

But after the first year, I noticed that a strange metamorphosis appeared to be taking place. Instead of walking from place to place, Phillip began to leap from place to place. Soon after that, he manifested an inexplicable aversion to frogs—whenever he saw one, he looked like he was going to croak. Worst of all, he developed a chronic case of warts.

GAIL MICHAELS

Then came the fateful day. That was the day I came home to find a bug-eyed husband perched atop the footboard of the bed, brandishing a frog gig with all the ferocity of an intoxicated pygmy.

"THEY're taking over," he hissed as I walked into the room. "Everyone in the world is going to die of terminal warts, and then THEY'll move in and take over. THEY told me."

"What are you talking about?" I asked incredulously.

"Your frogs," he answered in a low, conspiratorial voice. "I was lying here taking a nap when I felt them staring at me, deriding me, infecting me—I'M their first victim!" he cried hysterically, as he automatically flashed his tongue out at a passing fly.

"Calm down, honey," I pleaded. "You've had a bad dream, that's all." I grabbed him by the ankles and threw him down on the bed just before he tried to spear my frog pillowcase with his gig. "Now lie there and get a hold on yourself," I demanded.

He looked at me with glazed eyes; then he stammered, "I guess you're right—it was just a dream. I don't know what's come over me lately, but I've really been jumpy."

"You're probably working too hard," I said sympathetically. Now, you just lie here and rest while I tell you what I found today."

"What was that?"

"Some frog wallpaper. It'll look great in our bathroom."

"GA-RUMPH," he said, clearing his throat, "No, it won't. I will NOT have frog wallpaper in our bathroom. IT's out of the question."

I stared at him in amazement, then said, "Now I know what's come over you."

"What?" he asked.

Some Say 75 Freshman Representatives Have Gained Wisdom

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON (AP—The window in Tom Steed's spacious office in the Rayburn Building has one of the best views of the Capitol dome, inspiring in the late afternoon sun against a crystal blue sky.

People drop by just to take pictures.

Tom Steed, 71, generally doesn't mind. He's served the House of Representatives from his district in Oklahoma for 26 years. By his measure he's earned the view, as a faithful soldier in the legislative trenches.

So when 75 new Democrats were elected last fall to the 94th Congress and came on strong, demanding and getting reforms like an end to automatic seniority privileges, Tom Steed naturally took a somewhat jaundiced look at the goings-on.

"The one big mistake the freshmen make, if they make mistakes," he says with a faint smile, "is letting their bias and prejudice and their shock at the fact that this isn't anything they've ever been connected with take over."

"This is the greatest law-making body in history, the only parliament where both houses are equal.

"And the way it has to operate can be very irritating to a fellow who has just come out of a campaign where he vows to vote the issues — and then finds out that he's going to be seen and not heard. Well, it never dawns on him that senior members are seen and not heard, too."

Tom Steed, a Democrat, and other senior congressmen live the traditions of the House, and now find it divided by nearly a hundred, mostly young newcomers, Republican and Democrat alike, almost a quarter of the 435 members. The rookies have mellowed in their first four months. They have tasted compromise. They are learning to cope. But they still insist that they hold a fiery mandate from the electorate to get something done in Washington.

They swept into office mostly from the suburbs on two major promises — to reform campaign spending that had set up the Watergate scandal and to halt support of the war in Vietnam. Largely, they have kept the promise about Vietnam, helping to trim military aid to the South Vietnamese government. The campaign spending issue hasn't come up in the 94th Congress.

Martha Keys, a 44-year-old housewife, is in her first term from northeastern Kansas. She is one of two freshmen on the prestigious and powerful Ways and Means Committee, something unheard of in congresses past.

"None of us really fall into traditional categories," she says of her colleagues. "So many of us ran out of a sense of something's just got to be done. We've got more of a problem-solving approach. We just can't go along with the old power forces struggling against each other."

She and many other freshmen feel they cannot vote in good conscience for omnibus bills that contain a potpourri of dissimilar proposals.

The sorest test was the foreign assistance act where military and humanitarian aid from the Middle East to Vietnam were lumped together in one bill. It passed by a handful of votes. It could easily have failed. Many of the freshmen congressmen opposed to military aid nevertheless accepted it to get humanitarian aid.

"I've found myself in some forced choice situations and the foreign aid bill was a classic," says Les AuCoin, a modish 31-year-old from Oregon. "I ended up having to hold my nose and vote aye. I vowed to myself that will be the last time I will vote on that basis."

Joe Fisher is 61, a former county executive in his first term from northern Virginia and with Mrs. Keys a member of Ways and Means. An oldtimer on the Washington scene, he is the first member of the League of Women Voters elected to Congress. He doesn't like dissimilar items in the same bill either, but he knows the system.

"We had a perfect example in the tax bill," he explains. "We had things shoved in there at the end that ought logically to have been considered not in reference to tax cut or economic stimulation, but to Social Security, housing, foreign taxation...But if you look at things on a larger canvas, it would be what you expect I suppose."

People, Joe Fisher says, have certain pet proposals, and in the system of trade-offs and assembling winning margins, they are going to slip their pets into any bill they think can be passed.

He's against it, but not 100 per cent against it. For instance, he voted to attach the elimination of the oil depletion allowance to the tax cut bill passed in March. If it hadn't made it there, he was prepared to put it in the energy bill. If that failed, then the tax reform bill. And anytime he thought it could make it, he would offer it on its own.

Tom Steed labors on the Appropriations Committee where omnibus bills are common. He says they are also necessary. "With way over a thousand items in the appropriations process, you have to put a lot of them together to make it work at all."

Millicent Fenwick is a freshman Republican, a consumer advocate from New Jersey, and at 65 a witty philosopher about her first excursion into national politics. She tells the story of an harassed committee chairman, coping with the questions from a young committee member. The chairman finally retorts, "We're never going to get this bill through if everybody insists on knowing what's in it."

That, indeed, seems to be the line between the old and the new.

There is also a deep contrast between the way Tom Steed's office ticks away with practiced efficiency, and the almost feverish activity in most freshmen offices. There are inevitable advantages to experience, to having been around.

When he first came to Congress, Steed says, he was told to keep his mouth shut until he could tell other members something they didn't know. "It was 10 months before that day came. Yet the day I made my first speech, I made three. And I killed a bill single-handedly."

He also offered a substitute which passed.

Perhaps the pace has quickened in the 94th Congress. Les AuCoin, with the session only 50 days old, offered an amendment to the emergency housing bill and maneuvered its passage with a substantial margin.

"I think we've buried for some time, certainly through the 94th Congress, the notion that a freshman should be a backbencher, saying as little as possible and getting along by going along," AuCoin says.

The Democratic freshmen are, naturally, critical of President Ford. His solutions, they say, are not responsive to the needs of the people. And because of this they are forming their own programs on taxes, energy and economic stimulation. Yet they rue, in a sense, the decline of the presidency.

Says AuCoin, "Since I've come here, I've become a strong advocate of a strong presidency. Congress needs to be strengthened as a co-equal branch of government, but Congress cannot lead. It can pioneer and it can do some very bold things, some innovative things on a case-by-case basis. But in terms of total management on a day to day direction, Congress is not the place where you'd expect that to happen."

The rudest awakening has been the time-consuming, seemingly inefficient way Congress operates.

"I thought things would be more clear cut," says Bob Edgar, a 30-year-old minister from Pennsylvania. "And I also thought more people would listen to debate. I have a crazy resolution I'd like to see passed in the rules that rather than have five hours of no attendance at the debate, have one hour of mandatory attendance and one hour for amendments, and go to a vote."

Some freshmen, like Edgar and Millicent Fenwick, find time to attend debate as a learning process. Almost all, however, rely on their legislative assistants to review pending legislation and brief them on it.

Some are more methodical. Joe Fisher has rotating seminars with unpaid, but high-powered experts from the Washington area, discussing various areas of domestic legislation.

Another educational source, sometimes wanted, sometimes not, is the lobbyist. The trouble most have encountered with lobbyists is turning them off. Martha Keys says the only heavy-handed lobby she has faced is the oil lobby.

Bob Edgar is thinking of holding an auction to get rid of all the souvenirs, the model helicopters, the flags, the pen sets, and a gold key ring he explains is supposed to fit in the nose.

"We're willing to listen to them without all the gimmicks," Edgar says.

Don Bonkers, a 37-year-old former county auditor from Washington, is more appalled by the endless list of receptions and banquets to which Congressmen are invited, two and three a night, extra lavish spreads of "beef, turkey and booze."

"It just appears to me that this is an extravagance that we can ill afford at these times," Bonkers says. "It just doesn't seem right to sit around all day arguing the school lunch program and then go to a big banquet."

But as much as the freshmen talk of reform, some say it is wrong to characterize this as a reform Congress — aside from the dethronement of three committee chairmen as the session began.

"They banned proxy voting. They have now reintroduced it," says Millicent Fenwick. "They had banned closed meetings except for security reasons. They can now be brought about any time by a vote of the majority. All of these things pass unnoticed."

The test, says Tom Steed, will be how many of the new congressmen come back for the next Congress.

"And that's the way of saying you go out of here in a burying box or a ballot box," says Steed. "The hero of the day is the guy who proves he's a smart politician. He knew when to run because he got elected. He knew when to quit because he didn't get defeated."

Until these freshmen are reelected from their districts Steed and others will consider many of them political accidents. When and if they return, they will likely have a greater respect for Congress, the thinking goes, and Congress will have a greater respect for them.

River Study Gets Funds

The Department of Biology of East Carolina University has received a grant of $12,497 from the Water Resources Research Institute of the University of North Carolina for research on the Pamlico River estuary.

The amounts and seasonal changes of basic food sources in the estuary will be studied with special reference to the part food may play in deoxygenation.

On occasions in the summer the deeper portions of the estuary lose oxygen and may even become anaerobic with death of bottom animals occurring. The possibility of oxygen depletion due to respiration of dissolved food by microorganisms in the water will be considered.

Those involved in the project include Dr. Graham J. Davis and Dr. Mark M. Brinson and graduate students Thomas M. Vicars and Craig D. Zamuda.

Several undergraduate students in biology will be working this summer on other aspects of the deoxygenation problem on an NSF Undergraduate Research Participation Grant under the direction of Drs. Davis, Brinson and Clifford B. Knight.

Honor Society Will Initiate New Members

The East Carolina University chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha national honor society in political science will initiate 18 new members at its seventh annual installation banquet Tuesday, May 6.

The chapter will also install its new officers for the academic year 1975-76.

Mayor Howard N. Lee of Chapel Hill will be keynote speaker for the banquet, which has been set for the Greenville Golf and Country Club. Master of Ceremonies for the occasion will be Christopher Hay, speaker of the ECU Student Government Association.

New officers will be formally installed by Carl A. Robin, past chapter president. They are: Connie Moore Nanney of Farmville, president; Ray Tyler of Winston-Salem, vice president; and Mary Leslie Evans of Goldsboro, secretary-treasurer.

ECU's Epsilon Lambda chapter was chartered in 1969. Requirements for membership include a student's achievement of a B average or better in 15 quarter hours or more of political science courses and overall grade point average placement in the top third of his class.

While most of the new initiates are political science majors at ECU, five are majoring in other areas, and minoring in political science.

Dr. H. A. I. Sugg is faculty advisor to the ECU chapter. Further information about the new officers from this area and names and hometown addresses of the area new initiates follow:

PITT COUNTY Farmville—Connie Moore Nanney, daughter of David Arthur Moore, 505 North Contentnea St.

REPUBLIC OF KOREA, Seoul—Byung-Chin Kim, childre of Mr. and Mrs. Soon-Keun Kim.

REPUBLIC OF CHINA, Taiwan—Jeng-Mihn Hsu, child of Mr. and Mrs. Ch'in-feng Hsu.

Design Provides Uncrowded Living Space For Active Family

By Jerry Bishop

The "Hedgewood", a modified two-story ranch style home, provides uncrowded living space with additional features such as a separate family room with wood-burning fireplace for the large, active family.

The "Hedgewood" has added space for storage, laundry, outdoor living and dining—the perfect design for the leisurely family who needs space.

A small concrete porch provides entry to the home through a hallway which gives access to the second story, the family room, bath facilities, the garage or storage and laundry. The lower level is designed for informal entertaining, with a large family room containing a wood-burning fireplace.

A storage area, nearly 7' by 9' is provided in addition to a double garage...The laundry room again is separate, with space for washing and drying as well as sorting and folding clothes. Furnace and water heater are contained near this area. A separate bath with shower is located on the lower floor.

The staircase rises to the second floor, exiting again in a hall, but open to the living area, which also contains a wood-burning fireplace. Access to the dinette is available from the end of the living room, the dining area is open to the U-shaped kitchen. Built-in appliances create a functional working area. From the dinette-kitchen area a door and stairs leads to the lower level rock terrace, convenient for out-of-doors eating or relaxing.

Bedrooms are reached from a hallway. The design provides a noise buffer in terms of the living room. Also, the lower level family room separates active entertaining from the upper level of the house, designed for quiet visiting, sleeping and dining.

The sleeping wing contains its own full bathroom, with a diagonal vanity in a unique design. The master bedroom contains two closets for separation of clothing and efficient storage. A second bedroom, nearly as large as the master room, also contains two closets. A linen closet is provided in the hallway. The third bedroom is slightly smaller, but with a wall-to-wall closet provided. Both bedrooms have large double windows which overlook the balcony.

The balcony is not only ornamental, and is reached by a door from the living room. It provides patio space, in effect, at the upper level of the home.

The "Hedgewood's" exterior is of brick and frame construction, with a large brick chimney a dominant design element of the home. The chimney, of course, is also functional, serving the two wood-burning fireplaces in the home.

The home is particularly well designed for a lot that slopes from front to rear, with the rock terrace at the rear of the home certainly benefiting from a wooded or otherwise attractive lot.

Here's the Answer

Q.—I intend to make a small wall of concrete blocks. I expect to use ready-mixed material for use between the blocks. Does this have to be the same mixture used for brickwork or can I use a concrete mix?

A.—Use the same kind of mortar mix you would use between bricks. A concrete mix contains too much heavy aggregate for that purpose. If you had to use something other than a mortar mix, you could use a sand mix. The presence of hydrated lime in a mortar mix is said to make it easier to handle and more adhesive.

Q.—Can I use penetrating resin to finish an old oak table which apparently never had a finish on it? Also, can wood with the resin finish on it be stained?

A.—Yes, the penetrating finish can be used on oak. However, it usually darkens the wood, so better test it first in an inconspicuous place to be sure it doesn't give you the effect you want without using a stain.

Q.—Our house has always been too dry. Recently, my son bought me a humidifier. It has worked wonders in eliminating the dryness, but now our living room picture window is often wet on the inside. Is the humidifier responsible for this?

A.—The wetness on the inside of the window is condensation, caused when warm, moist air settles on a cooler surface. What has happened in your case is that the humidifier is throwing out too much moisture, so that now your living room has too much humidity in it rather than too little. Most humidifiers have some kind of adjustment so that they will not turn on except when the dryness in the room reaches a certain level. Read the instructions that came with the humidifier to determine how it should be set or, if it is not automatic, how to keep the humidity at the proper level.

Q.—I am having insulating wool blown into one side of our house. The dealer suggests that, in the meanwhile, I repaint the inside wall. It doesn't really need it. Should I follow his advice?

A.—Didn't he explain that the purpose of the paint is to act as an extra vapor barrier so that moisture won't get through the wall and dampen the blown-in insulating material? Also, he should have told you perhaps he did that, for the paint to be effective as a vapor barrier, it must be of the vapor-resistant type. Be sure you get that kind and apply two coats, brushing it in well.

The 'Right' Home Is Up To You

By DOROTHEA BROOKS
United Press Interntional

How to choose the right home?

Any shopper who has done his homework is armed with a formidable checklist of things to consider, starting with the town itself and moving on down to things like traffic flow, storage, number of bathrooms, quality of construction.

It's this last that's a stumper for most people. How do you tell quality construction, particularly in a new home? The best way, of course, is to have a house checked out by a professional. Another is to talk with people who have lived with the builder's work for a while. But there are other clues for the layman.

One of the best, and most often overlooked, is landscaping, says Dick Brickman, president of Theodore Brickman Co., Long Grove, Ill., landscape architects and contractors.

Brickman says very few people seem interested in landscaping, although this is one question that's a sure tip-off to the quality of a particular home or community. "It's not how much a builder spends on landscaping but how good a job he does and the care he takes to make the best of the natural environment."

On the basis of his experience working with builders and community developers, Brickman offers these clues to a well-designed landscape:

Preservation of existing vegetation on the site, especially large trees. Many builders simply level the land with a bulldozer because it costs less to build on open ground than around trees. A builder interested in giving his homes added value, however, will preserve as much as he can of the natural attractiveness of the land, particularly mature trees which cannot be replaced.

Careful contouring of the land through the building of earth mounds, called berms, which add visual interest, help direct water run-off and create privacy around a home. "Berms are particularly useful in creating topographic variety in areas where the land is naturally flat, such as it is in the Midwest," Brickman said.

Attractive plantings of trees, ornamental shrubs, evergreens and ground cover around the builder's production homes, not just the models. The more a home costs, the more complete the landscaping should be and the larger the trees and shrubs should be.

"As costs of homes have climbed," Brickman noted, "builders have had to trim landscaping budgets. In the lowest priced developments, we're almost back to seeded lawns and the single sapling. But above $50,000," he said, "buyers should insist on a more complete landscape package."

Selection of plant materials for easy care, so they won't quickly become overgrown or require a lot of maintenance to keep looking good. Plants also should complement the architecture of the home, be suitable for the region and climate, and present an attractive appearance during all seasons.

Brickman lays particular stress on ease of maintenance. This is important not only in the single family home where the owner most likely will be his own gardener but in a condominium development where maintenance is taken care of by an owners' association.

If landscaping is not well planned with easy maintenance in mind, assessments may have to be raised to pay for extra landscape maintenance.

According to Brickman, if a builder invests money in good landscaping —which traditionally is the last area where he spends money —chances are he's done a quality job of planning and building the homes themselves.

Organizational Meet Monday

The Pitt County Concerned Women for Justice will hold its organizational meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Angela Phillips, 603 Bancroft Ave.

During the meeting, an election of officers will be held. Those attending will also be given an opportunity to participate in a discussion of various issues which concern them.

The meeting is open to women interested in discussing issues that they have concern for.

Concerned Women for Justice is a statewide organization with chapters in many North Carolina counties. Pitt County is just getting its chapter organized.

Santa Fe Fiesta Began In 1693

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — The annual Fiesta each Labor Day weekend in the city of Santa Fe is believed to be the oldest community celebration in the Western Hemisphere.

The Fiesta was started in 1693 to celebrate the reconquest of the city from the Pueblo Indians, who had driven the Spanish out of the territory in the Pueblo revolt of 1680.

The joints of a wooden chair sometimes come loose over a period of years. Whatever the cause — humidity problems or just wear and tear — the failure to make a proper repair can be responsible for an accident. It's the kind of repair that should be made when the trouble is first noticed; if it can't be, the chair should be kept out of service until it can.

Most common of the joint troubles is a loose rung. If both ends are loose, the rung should be removed, but very carefully so as not to cause further damage or mar the finish. If only one rung is loose, it may be necessary just to remove that end from its socket.

The first step is to scrape off all the old, dried glue from both the end of the rung or the two ends, as the case may be and the socket, since new glue will not adhere firmly to the old. This can be done with a pen knife or similar tool. Sanding off the old glue is possible if done very carefully, but it is not generally advisable because it will make the end smaller and the hole larger, two things that will make an even worse fit than before.

If you determine that the joint will be reasonably tight, you can go ahead with the gluing. More often than not, however, the end of the rung must be made a bit larger so that it fits more securely into the socket. The most professional way of doing this is to cut a little notch into the end of the rung and insert a wedge into it. Or you can wind something around the end, perhaps strands of steel wool or silk thread or even a small piece of cloth. Whatever your choice, coat the inside of the socket with wood glue before reinserting the end of the rung into the hole. When this is done, be sure to wipe off immediately any glue that is squeezed out of the hole, using a soft cloth and warm water. Have the cloth and water ready ahead of time so that the wiping can be done at once to prevent staining.

While the glue is drying, the joint must be held together. Read the label of the glue you purchased to see how long this should be. I make it a point to add on several hours at least to the manufacturer's recommendation just to be sure. If you have clamps of the proper size, use them, being careful to place small, softwood blocks under the jaws of the clamps to prevent marring the finish. If you do not have clamps large enough, make a tourniquet with rope or heavy cord, winding it around the two legs that hold the rung in place. Here, too, some kind of padding is necessary to prevent damaging the chair finish.

Occassionally, one end of a rung will be loose but cannot be removed from its socket without danger of further damage. One way to handle this is to drill a tiny hole into the chair leg so that it stops just before it reaches the end of the rung. Using a glue injector made expecially for such purposes, squirt some glue into the hole and allow it to dry, then fill the hole with matching plastic wood or wood putty. Another way is to drill a pilot hole through the leg into the rung, carefully hammer in a finishing nail, drive it slightly below the surface with a nail set and fill the identation.

ADVANTAGES OF BUYING A HOUSE

The decision on whether to rent or buy a home is one that eventually confronts almost every family. If this is your case, here are a few thoughts to consider.

First, an equity (cash value) is built up as you pay for the home over the years. And, its resale value can increase greatly (as has been the case in recent times) with rising real estate prices.

Also, property taxes and mortgage interest can be deducted from income taxes. This can be a sizable tax deduction, especially during the early years of the mortgage when about 90 per cent of the monthly payment represents interest on the loan. Rent, on the other hand, cannot be deducted from anything but the checking account.

There is no fear of a raise in rent at the end of each lease period. Payments remain the same for the life of the mortgage. Finally, where else can you find an investment that you and your family can live in while its value increases?

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at LOUIS CLARK AGENCY, IBM Bldg., 100 Reade St., Greenville. Phone: 752-4173. We're here to help!

Farm Laborer Job Protection

Recent regulations issued under the amended Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act provides greater job protection for migrant and day haul farm laborers.

Jose Fernandez, Raleigh, North Carolina area director of the Wage and Hour Division, Employment Standards Administration, U.S. Department of Labor, said that major changes in the new law include the following:

—the term "farm labor contractor" has been broadened to include persons who recruit, solicit or transport workers for agricultural employment, either within a state or across state lines;

—insurance protection for farm workers and their possessions has been increased;

—the responsibility of crew leaders has been expanded to include the proper payment of workers and a full explanation to them of all pay deductions;

—crew leaders must now identify housing facilities which they own or control and must submit proof that applicable federal and state safety and health standards are met;

—crew leaders are prohibited from employing illegal aliens.

Fernandez emphasized that the new law covers day haul employees for the first time and continues coverage of migrant workers.

However, a contractor is exempt from the law's requirements if he operates solely within a state and within 25 miles of his permanent residence, provided he does not engage in such activities for more than 13 weeks per year.

To operate as a contractor under this law, the contractor must obtain a federal certificate (which can be obtained at any office of the State Employment Service).

The Act provides for civil money penalties of up to $1,000, while willful violations may result in imprisonment or fine, or both.

Additional information about the Act may be obtained from the Wage and Hour area office, 408 Federal Building, 310 New Bern Avenue, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

Rose High Concert Set For Tuesday

The annual spring concert of the J.H. Rose High School Band will take place on Tuesday, May 6 at 8 p.m. in the gymnasium at Rose.

The band is under the direction of James Rodgers and student teacher Sandra Gerrior.

James Houlik, saxophonist and faculty member at East Carolina University is guest performer. He will perform in the Suite for Tenor Sax by Richard Lane.

Susan Smith will be guest piano soloist in Bennett's composition Repartee; and the Percussion Ensemble under the direction of Larry White, a former Rose High Band student, will present two pieces.

Compositions to be played by the band include three marches by John Phillip Sousa; Masque by McBeth; Giovannini's Overture in B Flat; Frescobaldi's Toccato; and Incidental Suite by Smith.

Admission fee for the annual spring concert is 50 cents for students and $1.00 for adults.

Proceeds from the concert will be used to purchase an electric piano for instrumental music programs.

Woman Seek Home For Two Big Dogs

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

I am looking for someone who genuinely loves animals. I have two large (50 lb.) dogs, 1 yr. mixed brother and sister. They love their freedom to run and I will not take it from them by leashing them day and night. If you have plenty of land and love dogs, please adopt. Call Diane 756-3689.

Last week Diane Dancy of 1505 E. Greenville Boulevard, Greenville, placed the above classified ad in the East Carolina University newspaper, The Fountainhead. She had had no response at press time for this article.

Thursday she complied with Greenville's new leash law and chained her dogs, Little One and Akia. She placed the stakes so they could touch noses but could not tangle the chains one with another, and so one could have shelter in their doghouse, the other in the family garage.

"They didn't know what to make of it," Diane said. "They've always been free. They sat and whined and tried to get to each other to play and roughhouse as they love to do. Little One seemed especially dejected. He kept his tail between his legs all day. I guess it affected him more because he's always been so free.

"I got Little One last year while I was working at Camp Leach. He had the run of the camp all summer and loved and was loved by all the children. They'd fight over who Little One would sleep with each night.

"I got Akia only about three months ago. My brother and I were at the pound and he said, 'Come here, Diane, this dog looks just like Little One except for her coloring.' Sure enough, she did. They're as nice a pair as you'd ever see. I'd prefer to find them a home together, but would consider splitting them up if I have to to have them each in a place they can be free again.

"There wouldn't be the problem of puppies for anybody that would take Akia. With the help of the Humane Society, I had her spayed as soon as I got her."

Diane says if she cannot find a home for the dogs, she will also consider boarding them with someone in the country. However, she thinks it would be best to find good homes for them since she is transferring to N.C. State University in the fall and believes she would have the same problem keeping Little One and Akia she now has in Greenville.

"The Boy Friend" Is Final Playhouse Season Offering

ROBIN McDOWELL . . bangs out a Charleston during a rehearsal for The Boy Friend, the spring musical to open in McGinnis Auditorium on May 7 at 8:15.

The final production of the East Carolina Playhouse this year will be the musical comedy The Boy Friend which opens at McGinnis Auditorium on May 7 at 8:15 and runs through May 10. There will be a matinee on Thursday at 2:15 p.m.

Written in 1953 by Sandy Wilson, the show is a spoof on the "roaring 20's" and of the great song and dance musicals of that era. A time when a girl's most exasperating problem was how to tell the rich from the poor on the beaches of the Riviera where everybody wears a bathing suit instead of clothes befitting their station.

The story revolves around a wealthy girls' school in France where Polly (Amy Boyce) is faced with the problem of producing a boyfriend for the school's carnival time or losing face in the eyes of her classmates. She asks the messenger boy, Tony (Joe Badgett) who brings her costume for the carnival to pose as her boyfriend. As the pretend romance becomes real, the messenger boy turns out to be Tony Broadhurst who is the runaway son of Lord and Lady Brockhurst (Albert Pertalion and Dottie J. Johnson). Meanwhile, Polly's father (Martin Thompson) appears and rekindles an affair he started during the war with Madame Dubonnet (Janice Vertucci) who is now the headmistress of daughter's school. In a "they lived happily ever after" ending, both couples are married in a double ceremony.

The play is directed by Edgar Lessin, with the musical numbers choreographed by Mavis Ray. Scenery and lighting are designed by Robert H. Johnson. The costumes are by Brooks-Van Horn.

Reserved seat tickets at $3.00 each are on sale at the McGinnis Auditorium box office from 10:00-4:00 Monday-Friday. Phone reservations can be made by calling 758-6390.

Hospitality House

The Cherry Point Officers Wives Club's choral group, "The Caroliers," will lead off in a musical salute on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House," show, to be aired from noon to 1 p.m. today over WITN-TV, Channel 7.

Also on the show is John Montgomery of Greenville, representing the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship.

The final guest on Kay's show today is Jay Burton, director of "The Odd Couple," the current play on board at the Roof Top Theater in New Bern.

Carolina Today

Music makers, politicians and educators are among the guests scheduled to make appearances during the coming week on "Carolina Today," the WNCT-Channel 9 early morning show. The line-up for the week is:

—Monday, May 5 7:30 a.m., Amanda Smith of the N.C. Department of Public Instruction will be the morning guest.

—Tuesday, May 6 7:15 a.m. Representatives from the Greenville Christian Academy will talk about the forthcoming Spring Festival on May 10; and at 7:30 Barry Shank, ECU theater orchestra director, will conduct a jam session.

—Wednesday, May 7 7:15 a.m., Howard Lee, the mayor of Chapel Hill, is the first guest for Wednesday, to be followed at 7:30 by Howard Dawkins of the Sheltered Work Shop.

—Thursday, May 8 7:15 a.m. A representative from PACE (Political Action Council for Educators) will speak; and at 7:30 Randy Buck will provide music with his combo from the Black Jack Community.

—Friday, May 9 7:15 a.m. Two guests will be on hand, Mrs. Mary Spell, NACP Mother of te Year, and D. D. Garrett. 7:30 a.m. The final music offering of the week will be an appearance by members of the Elmhurst Elementary School 5th and 6th grade Choral Group.

Songwriting Contest Deadline In June

The American Song Festival, the largest of all international songwriting competitions, is offering a total of $129,776 to amateur and professional songwriters in six categories — rock; easy listening-middle-of-the road; country, folk, soul and-or rhythm and blues; and gospel-religious.

Sponsored by the Radio Shack chain of music stores, the competition this year has also added a special Bicentennial competition for patriotic and historical songs.

The jury panel includes multi-oscar winner Marvin Hamlisch and Al Kasha, two-time winner of the Academy Award for the Best Song of The Year. Others on the panel include: Tennessee Ernie Ford; Merle Haggard; Ray Charles; Loretta Lynn; Jerry Wexler, vice president of Atlantic Records; record producers Billy Sherrill, Kenny Gamble and Richard Perry; and Rev. James Cleveland, a top exponent of gospel music.

Entrants do not have to know how to write music. All they need to do is have their song recorded on a cassette tape.

Entry forms for the 1975 American Song Festival are still available from Radio Shack stores and participating dealers nationally. Deadline for entries is June 3, 1975.

Recital Today

An Honors Recital will be held this afternoon at 3:15 in the School of Music's A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall. Performers for the recital were chosen after auditioning for faculty judges. Featured today are Mardee Reed, flutist; Lee Hendricks, organist; Sherry Riegel, soprano; and Gary Fountain, pinanist.

Miss Reed and Hendricks are working toward their B.M. degree in performance, and Miss Riegel and Fountain for their M.M. in performance. Works by Martinu, Bach, Puccini, Cumming, Strauss and Liszt will be performed.

The recital is sponsored by the E.C.U. School of Music Student Forum, an elected body existing as a liaison between students and faculty of the School of Music. This performance is free and the public is invited to attend.

Ensembles Concert Wednesday

On Wednesday, May 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the A.J. Fletcher Music Building, a concert of small ensembles will be held.

The concert will feature student woodwind quintets, brass quintet, percussion ensemble, and mixed instrumental chamber groups from the School of Music, East Carolina University.

The public is invited and there is no admission charge.

Music On Campus

Five student recitals are scheduled for the coming week on campus at East Carolina University. All will be held in the Recital Hall of the A.J. Fletcher Music Building at the times indicated. There is no admission fee and the public is invited to attend.

—Thursday, May 8—7:30 p.m. Mrs. Rhonda Wingate Riley and Miss Kathryn Earlene Finklea in a joint recital. Both performers are students of Miss Virginia Linn.

Mrs. Riley, from Vanceboro, will be accompanied by Linda Cecile Walker, piano. For her program she has listed Mozart's Alleluja; Standchen, by Brahms; Schumann's Stille Thranen; and Aurore by Faure. Also, Debussy's Il pleure dans mon coeur; three songs by Copland based on poems by Emily Dickinson; and Ned Rorem's Alleluia.

Miss Finklea, of Farmville, will be accompanied by Wendy Elizabeth Thomas, piano, and Keith Quinn Bailey, clarinet. Her selections are: Schubert's Der Kirt auf dem Felsen; Brahms' Wie Melodien aicht es mir; Beau Soir by Debussy; two songs by Respighi; Puccini's Donde lieta; and Barab's Songs of Perfect Propriety.

—Thursday, May 8— 9 p.m., Mrs. Wanda Williams, piano recital. Mrs. Williams, of Greenville, is a student of Miss Elizabeth Drake. For her recital she will play Chopin's Nocturne No. 2, Opus 15; Gershwin's Preludes No.'s 2 and 3; Debussy's The Girl With The Flaxen Hair; three Beethoven Bagatelles (no.'s 2, 3 and 6) and Grillen, by Schumann.

—Friday, May 9—8:15 p.m. Brian Dean Hoxie and Carolyn Ward, joint recital. Both are students of Miss Antonia Dalapas.

Brian, a tenor from Jacksonville, will be accompanied by Barbara Plummer, piano. His selections include a duet with Miss Ward, Messager's "Duetto de L'Ane" from Veronique. Other selections Brian has listed are: "In Native Worth" from The Creation, by Haydn; three Schubert songs; Aurore and Dans les Ruines d'une Abbaye by Faure; and the aria "Una Furtiva Lagrima" from Donizetti's L'Elisir d'amore.

Miss Ward, from Nakina (N.C.) is a soprano. She will also be accompanied by Barbara Plummer. For her program she has noted that she will sing compositions by Schubert, Lalo, Mozart, Dougherty, Bliss, Rachmaninoff, Prokofieff and Messager.

Sunday Jazz Program Tonight

Jazz on a Sunday Evening — A joint program by the East Carolina University Jazz Ensemble, directed by George Broussard, and the Contemporary Jazz Ensemble, lead by pianist Paul Tardif, will be held in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Music Building today at 8:15 p.m. Guest artist for this program will be Jazz Saxophonist Jerry Coker.

Coker, presently on the faculty of Duke University, has been a pioneer in the field of jazz education; he initiated the Jazz Studies programs at Indiana University — his alma mater, Sam Houston State Teachers College, and the University of Miami. He has performed and recorded with Woody Herman, Les Elgart, Ralph Marterie, Thad Jones, Claude Thornhill, and Stan Kenton, as well as his own groups. His books on jazz and improvisation are used as texts in colleges and universities throughout the United States.

The East Carolina Jazz Ensemble will be performing the music of Chick Corea, Spain; Woody Herman Four Brothers; Thelonious Monk, Round Midnight, featuring alto Saxophonist Phil Thompson; Stan Kenton, Here's That Rainy Day, featuring vocalist Robin Kinton; and Carol King Corazon.

Aside from numerous concerts on campus, the Jazz Ensemble participated in the University of North Carolina's Jazz Festival in Chapel Hill. Coker will be featured on the Bill Stapleton (Woody Herman) arrangement of Carol King's Corazon.

The Contemporary Jazz Ensemble . . . Paul Tardif, piano; Larry Dowdy, bass; Mike Carney, drums, has performed throughout Eastern North Carolina, and has played on the E.C.U. campus. Coker will be featured with this trio.

Ives "Contata" Performance Monday

Celestial Country, a cantata for solo quartet, string quartet, choir, double choir, trumpet, euphonium, tympani and organ will be presented on Monday evening, May 5 at 8:15 at the Memorial Baptist Church.

The work will feature the East Carolina University Concert Choir, directed by Dr. Charles W. Moore, and the Testore String Quartet, with Dr. Rodney Schmidt, Mrs. Joanne Bath, Milton Wright and Dr. Joan Mack.

The solo vocal quartet will be sung by Vickie Spargo, soprano; Kathryn Griffin, alto; Norman Miller, tenor; and Robert Edwards, bass. Assisting instrumentalists in addition to the string quartet are: Larry Lambkin, trumpet; Randy Guptil, euphonium: Carlton Hirschi, tympani and Lee Hendricks, organ.

Although Celestial Country was written in 1898 or '99 and first performed in 1902, the cantata was not published until 1973, just in time for the centenary of Ives' birth in 1974.

This is a youthful work full of freshness and vigor. In addition to these qualities, there are many moments filled with the strangeness and wonder which characterize the mature genius of Charles Ives.

There will be no admission charge for the performance, and the public is cordially invited to attend this first live East Coast performance of this work.

Open House Today For Interior Design House

For the third consecutive year, students of the School of Art, East Carolina University are putting their interior decorating talents into a show case at the Interior Design House at 504 E. 9th Street. Previously, interior design majors had utilized other houses in other parts of town for this annual display of talent at work.

Two of the students on the publicity committee spoke about the goals of this year's design project. "We have altered the facade and completely redesigned interior spaces," Diane Howell said. "The design project this year is built around the idea of creating an architect's office."

"Our main objective," Joseph (Joe) Collins, another publicity committee member said, "is to create an environment conducive to interaction between clients, and co-workers through the means of color, spacial design, and arrangement."

In addition to Joe, a native of Whiteville, and Diane, who is from Charlotte, other students involved in the 1975 design project are: Sherl Taylor, Charlotte; Brenda Kerby, Los Gatos, California; Susan Harvey, Yorktown, Va., Robin Francis, Charlotte; Pat Bennett, Raleigh; Gerry Palese, Baltimore; William Kepley, Salisbury; and Susan Humphries, Brandon, Mississippi; and Jenny Price, Greenville.

The faculty advisor for the 1975 project is Melvin Stanforth. Stanforth has also been advisor for similar design projects in past years.

More than a dozen local building supply, furniture, paint, carpet, office equipment, concrete and electrical firms, as well as a bank and a florist, contributed materials, accessories and cash to make the project possible. The design students also had a cash budget of $1,500 from ECU and from students to work with.

In addition, a number of faculty and student artists have loaned paintings, drawings, ceramics and sculpture

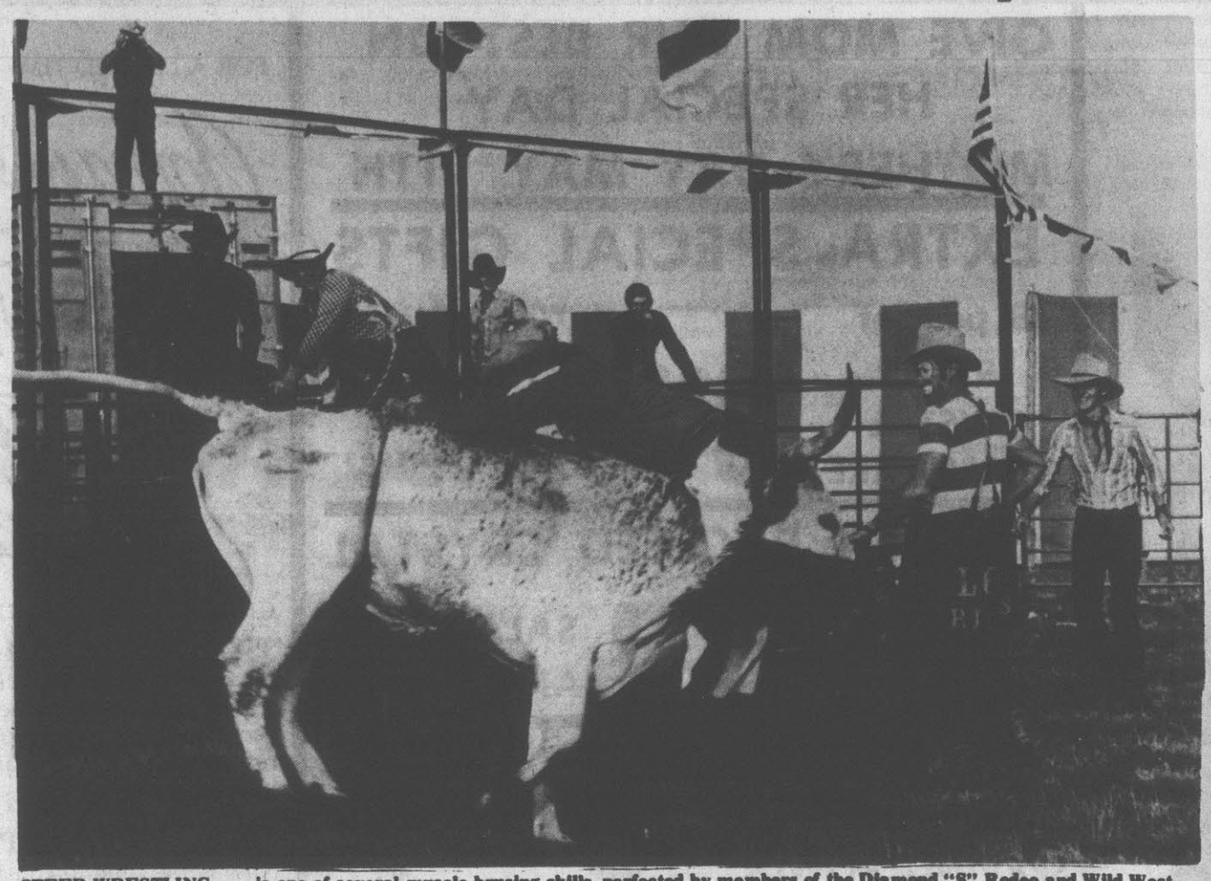
From noon until 5 p.m. today, an open house will be held at the Interior Design House with the public invited to attend. Students will be on hand to explain the work they have accomplished.

Reception Today

A reception is being held from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Greenville Art Center for the third young people's art exhibit of the season, that of students of Agnes Fullilove School.

To be on view through May 14, the show will feature works in different media by seventh graders at Agnes Fullilove.

Diamond "S" Rodeo--Wild West Show May 9



STEER WRESTLING . . . is one of several muscle brusing skills perfected by members of the Diamond "S" Rodeo and Wild West Show coming to Greenville on May 9.

The Diamond "S" and Wild West Show, an entertainment where steers, men, women and horses pit their skill and strength against each other, is coming to Greenville for one day only on Friday, May 9 at the Pitt County Fair Grounds.

The occasion is the Greenville Jaycee sponsored rodeo which will feature about 20 performers — cowboys and cowgirls, plus the animals — in a dozen separate acts that will include the fine art of trick riding, bucking horses, bull riding, steer wrestling, calf roping, and bullwhip manipulating.

The Daimond "S" and Wild West Show, billed as the only self-contained exhibition rodeo touring the United States, will have two continuous 90 minute action shows, one beginning at 6 p.m., the second at 8 p.m.

Advance tickets at a discount are now being sold in several locations — WOOW Radio, Biggs Drug Store, Carolina Office Sales, Western Auto, Plaza Gulf, Sears Roebuck, H.C. Hodges, Larry's Carpetland, Cozart Auto Supply and Anthony's Family Center.

Advance tickets are on sale at the following prices: Single tickets, adults, $2.60, children, $1.55. At gate prices, adults, $3.10, children, $1.80. Warren Stroud, one of the program's coordinators, also notes that money saving family tickets are available. These are $8.25 per family and provide admission for two adults and up to four children. "The purchase of a family book of tickets can save a family up to $5.00 in admission prices," Stroud said.

Ernie Hargett, chairman of the Jaycee event, says that all proceeds realized from the two rodeo performances will be applied to community service projects being sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

New in fiction at Sheppard Memorial Library are three novels that depict different periods of American life. The first is the STONEWALL BRIGADE by Frank G. Slaughter. It covers the Civil War in Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and the District of Columbia. It is the day-to-day story of one of the world's most famed fighting units. This unit began the war as the 1st Brigade at Harpers Ferry in 1861 with four thousand men and ended it at Appomattox as the Stonewall Brigade with only 210 men left. This novel covers the entire history of the Stonewall Brigade—the battles at Sharpsburg, Gettysburg, Chancellorsville, the death of Stonewall Jackson, right up to the last fights before Appomattox. The story is told through the eyes of David Preston who is a young medical officer. Blending facts with historical fiction, Slaughter gives the reader picutres of the young man's first sight of the brutalities of war and his encounters with the famous figures of the time such as Abraham Lincoln, Robert E. Lee, J.E.B. Stuart, and the awesome Stonewall Jackson. Along with the history, the reader is moved with the personal story of Preston's separation from the woman he loves and his own dangers in the war. This story is a unique blend of history and personal drama.

The next book is COLD RIVER, a tightly-written adventure story, by William Judson. The setting is 1921 in the Adirondack Mountains. Lizzy and Tim Allison, who are 14 and 13, face the most terrifying events of their lives. Their camping trip with their father turns into a nightmare. Their maps, compass, and camping equipment are lost in a canoe accident. When they think that nothing else can happen to them, one of the worst snowstorms of the century comes. COLD RIVER is the story of the lone survival of these two people without their father who does not make it out of the storm.

The last book gives a look at modern day America life. A CITY ON A HILL by George V. Higgins recounts the private world of a Washington political insider. The man is Hank Cavanaugh, the aide of Congressman Sam Barry who is a Democrat from Massachusetts. The business at hand is choosing or inventing a Presidential candidate. Cavanaugh's job is to feel out the key people, put on the pressure, butter-up the right ones, determine the smallest change in attitude, and get the little people in harness. Cavanaugh has to make things happen for his boss. He barely has time to notice that his own life is falling apart. Higgins in his use of dialogue presents the private and political lives of those in Washington. Every word gives a truer picture of the intrigues of political and personal Washington at work.

"The Contractor" To Be Seen On PBS

The Contractor, British playwright David Storey's provocative drama exploring relationships among three generations of the working class, returns to PBS on Theater In America, on Wednesday, May 7, at 9 p.m. over TV Channel 25.

Hal Holbrook host this season for the drama series made possible by Exxon Corporation and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, will introduce the program.

Performed by the Chelsea Theater Center of Brooklyn, which gave the play its New York stage premiere in 1973, this television production of The Contractor was videotaped especially for Theater in America on location in New Orleans.

The Contractor was the third of David Storey's plays to be staged in New York. The first two, Home and The Changing Room, won the New York Drama Critics' Circle Awards

A SCENE. . . from David Storey's "The Contractor," which will be seen on the University of North Carolina network, Channel 25, at 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Mushroom Shows Listed

"Good Clean Fun" is the name of a two-artist show going on view at the Mushroom Gallery Monday, May 5, with a reception from 3 to 5 p.m.

The senior students of the School of Art, Bill Dugan and Frances Whitehead, are both exhibiting prints.

Their show will be followed beginning May 11 with an exhibit by senior Kathy Scharf, with a reception to be held Tuesday, May 13 from 7 to 9 p.m. She will be exhibiting weavings, wall hangings and other crafts.

The public is invited to attend both these shows. There is no admission charge, and the Mushroom Gallery is located within the George Town Shopping Center downtown

Chamberlain Work Chosen

A ceramic egg separator by Charles Chamberlain of the East Carolina University School of Art faculty will be among 124 craft items on view in the Crafts Multiples Exhibition at the Smithsonian Institution on July 4.

The show is funded by the National Endowment for the Arts and will be on display in the Smithsonian's Renwick Gallery as part of a Bicennntennial observance. After the Renwick viewing, the craft show will tour the U.S. for three years.

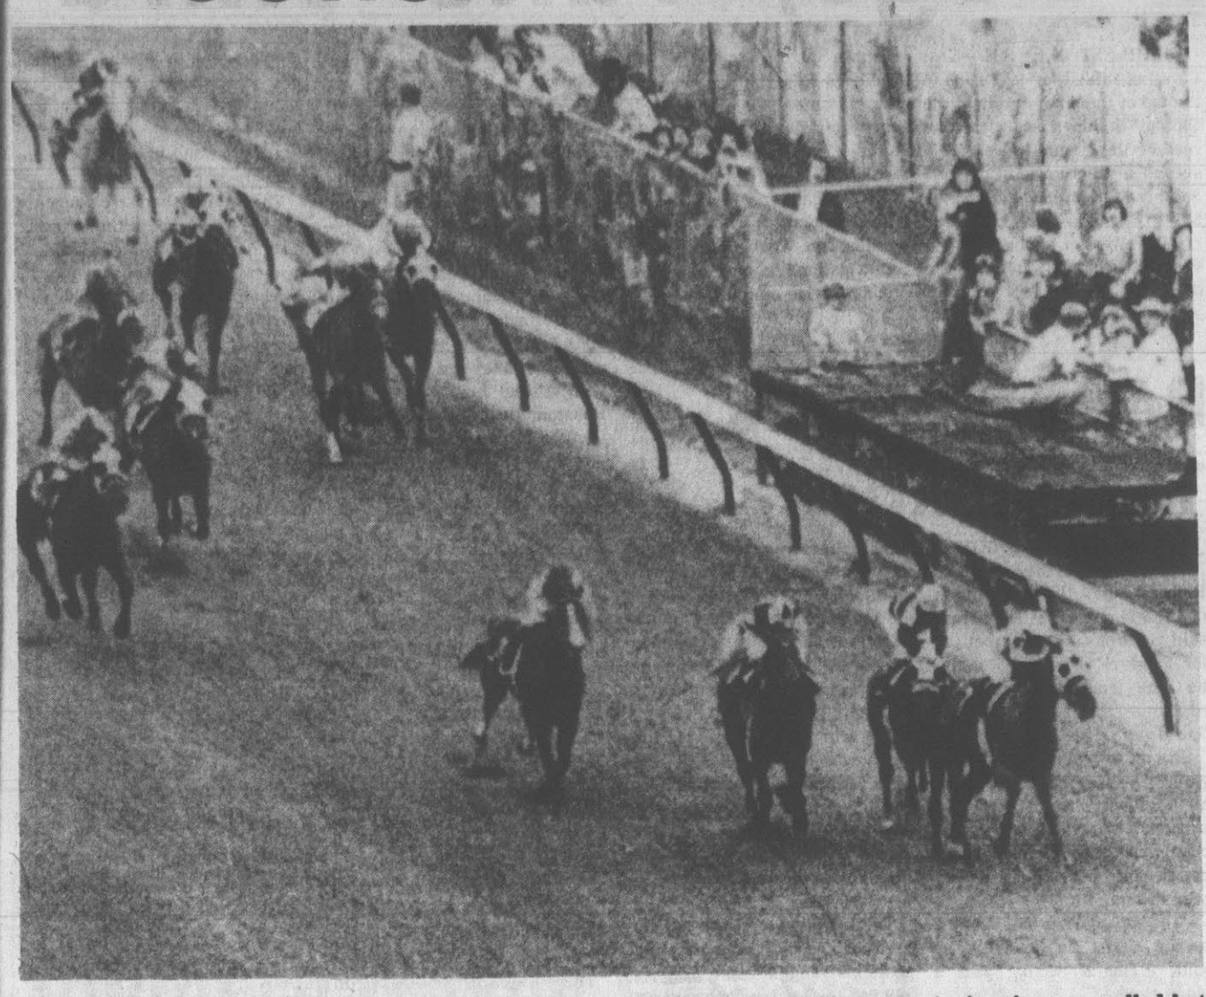
Foolish Pleasure Rockets To Victory



THE BUMP—Jockey Laffit Pincay, Jr. aboard Diablo (second from right) stands up in the saddle as his horse bumps Avatar (right), with Bill Shoemaker up, in the home stretch of Saturday's 101st Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs. An inquiry was called but disallowed. Avatar finished second and Diablo third both behind Foolish Pleasure, third from the right. (AP Wirephoto)

By BOB COOPER
AP Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Foolish Pleasure, charging between horses in the final eighth of a mile, made good all his credentials as an almost unbeaten champion as he won the 101st Kentucky Derby by 1¾ lengths Saturday.

A stewards' inquiry was called immediately after the race but did not affect the winner. Second-place Avatar and Diabolo, the third-place finisher, were the subjects of the inquiry, but the original finish was allowed to stand.

Avatar was leading when Diabolo pulled to the right and bumped from the rear, lowing both horses measurably. It was at that point that Foolish Pleasure shot between horses and took the lead.

Foolish Pleasure, beaten only once in the 12 races of his life, had to move from 12th to first in the final mile of America's favorite horse race and he was timed in 2:02 for the full 1¼ miles.

In winning this 101st Derby, Foolish Pleasure overcame the Wood Memorial-Flamingo Derby hex that has seen five colts who had previously won both the Flamingo and the Wood en route to the Derby denied a victory in the famed Run for the Roses at Churchill Downs.

Nashua, in 1955, fared best of the bunch with a second-place finish in the Derby.

Foolish Pleasure won by almost two lengths in the Flamingo, came from behind for a photo victory in the Wood and then broke the hex here.

Behind Diabolo at the finish was Master Derby, winner of the Louisiana Derby and the Blue Grass Stakes.

Media, Elmendorf Farm's lightly raced colt and the youngest by the calendar in the field of 15, finished fifth.

The Churchill Downs stewards, after studying the stretch drive, decided that Diabolo was at fault and left the order of finish as it was.

Foolish Pleasure was unbeaten last season in seven starts and had only one blemish, the Florida Derby, on his record this season.

In that March 29 race, both Prince Thou Art and Sylvan Place finished ahead of the juvenile champion of last season, but Foolish Pleasure returned to the barn with cuts on the frog of his feet.

The injury to the part of the foot that acts as a shock absorber was minor, however, and within three weeks Foolish Pleasure was back on the race track and won the Wood Memorial.

His owner, John L. Greer, 76, wasn't disappointed with the Florida Derby-finish and it prepared him for a possible loss at Churchill Downs.

"If it isn't our day," he said before the race, "we'll just shake hands with the winner and look ahead to the next dance."

Behind Media at the finish were Prince Thou Art, Promised City, Bold Chapeau, Sylvan Place, Fashion Sale, Round Stake, Gatch, Honey Mark, Rushing Man and Bombay Duck.

Bombay Duck and Rushing Man set the early pace for the first three-quarters of a mile but faded fast when the others who had laid back until the final half mile began to move.

Jacinto Vasquez, aboard Foolish Pleasure, had his first Derby victory. He was 10th in his only other Derby start 11 years ago.

As the favorite, Foolish Pleasure paid $5.80, $4.40 and $3.60. Avatar returned $9.20 and $5.60 and Diabolo paid $4.40.

The 113,324 fans who packed Churchill Downs bet more than $3.3 million, about $100,000 less than last year's American record.

Vasquez said he thought he had the Derby victory in his grasp after passing the eighth pole, but saw four horses ahead of him, two on the left and two on the right "and I began to get worried."

"I talked to him and then I used the whip. That's how I talk to him," the 31-year-old Panamanan rider said.

Did the bumping in the stretch help Foolish Pleasure to victory?

"It didn't hurt him any," trainer LeRoy Jolley said.

Jolley said he was pleased with Foolish Pleasure's position early in the race "and I was looking for Prince Thou Art, but I guess this wasn't his day."

Asked if he would compare Foolish Pleasure and Secretariat, Jolley replied, "Secretariat is the greatest horse I ever saw and Foolish Pleasure is the greatest horse I ever had. It's tough to compare the two but Foolish Pleasure has done everything we've asked of him."

Bill Shoemaker, aboard Avatar, wasn't at all unhappy with the colt's race. "He ran real big, real big. It was a great race," said the rider who has been in more Derbys than any active jockey.

Laffit Pincay Jr., the rider on Diabolo, said he thought his mount "swerved in and the other horse came out" causing the stretch incident.

"He was running real well in back but he was pulling at me. He kept pulling at me," Pincay said of Frank McMahon's California Derby winner.

Darrel McHargue said he made his move with Master Derby "but the others were already moving too. I don't think the crowd bothered the horse. He ran a good race."

Media, who had raced only four times before his Derby start, "broke okay but we didn't want to be too close to the lead," rider Jean Cruget said. "The crowd only bothered my horse for the first quarter-mile."

Minutes before the Derby start, about 1,000 fans slipped over and through a retaining fence in the infield and lined the rail on the backstretch. However, no incidents involving the running appeared to occur.

The people in the packed infield also taunted guards trying to prevent them from climbing tote boards. A few pop bottle were thrown and one or two smoke bombs went off but apparently there were no injuries.

Within half an hour after the race was run over a fast track, rain began to fall and the infield was emptied quickly.

Bombay Duck and Rushing Man, with Fashion Sale on their heels, went for the lead in the first quarter mile as the field swept under the finish line for the first time with a mile

Rebounding Helps Celtics Get Back In NBA Series

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Celtics took control of the boards behind Paul Silas and Dave Cowens in the second half and romped to a 101-90 victory over the Washington Bullets Saturday to remain alive in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Silas, Boston's sixth man, came off the bench and grabbed 25 rebounds, including nine in a decisive third period as the Celtics posted their first victory after two defeats in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final.

The Celtics widened their advantage to as much as 15 points early in the fourth period and breezed the rest of the way.

The game was unusually rough, with key players on each club running into foul trouble. However, only two players fouled out, Elvin Hayes and Mike Riordan, both of the Bullets.

Hayes, who scored 63 points in the first two games of the series, fouled out with nearly seven minutes remaining. He scored 23 points in leading the Washington attack.

Phil Chenier had 17 points and Wes Unseld 12 for the Bullets.

The lead was exchanged 11 times and there were seven ties in the first period alone, with Washington inching in front 33-31. The game was tied five times in the second period before Boston pulled in front just before the half.

The fourth game of the series is scheduled for Wednesday night at Landover, Md.

Helped by the shooting of John Havlicek, the Celtics took a 60-57 halftime lead in a most physical game. Both teams belted each other around and the officials were kept busy in the first two periods.

Havlicek scored 13 points in the first period, but the Bullets held a 33-31 lead as the quarter ended. Washington was led by Elvin Hayes, Phil Chenier and Jimmy Jones, each with eight points in the first 12 minutes.

Washington withstood a three-point play by Boston's Paul Silas in the opening minute of the second period and then went in front on baskets by Wes Unseld and Nick Weatherspoon.

However the Celtics kept applying the pressure and went in front to stay on a field goal by Havlicek in the eighth minute of play.

At the half, Havlicek had 18 points, Jo Jo White and Dave Cowens had 11 each and Don Nelson 10. Hayes had 15 points and Chenier 11 for the Bullets.

Two Boston starters, Nelson and Don Chaney, were in foul trouble with four personals apiece. Kevin Porter of the Bullets also had four fouls at the intermission.

Postponed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Houston Astros-San Francisco Giants baseball game scheduled Saturday was rained out, and the Giants announced it would be made up as part of a doubleheader on Sunday.

The doubleheader will begin at 3:05 p.m. EDT.

Robinson Scores Tie-Breaker

CLEVELAND (AP) — Manager Frank Robinson drove in the tying run with a pinch single in the eighth inning and scored Frank Duffy's single in the Cleveland Indians' 6-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles in a nationally televised baseball game Saturday.

It was the Orioles' sixth consecutive setback.

Ross Grimsley, 0-3, blanked the Indians on two hits until Buddy Bell opened the eighth with a double and scored on Robinson's pinch single. Robinson took second on the throw to the plate and went to third when Ken Berry drilled a single off the glove of first baseman Lee May.

Duffy greeted reliever Wayne Garland with a run-scoring bloop single, and the runners advanced on George Hendrick's groundout. After an intentional walk to Charlie Spikes, Garland fanned John Ellis but walked Rico Carty, forcing in the third run.

Grant Jackson issued another bases-loaded walk to Boog Powell for the fourth run, and Bell, up for the second time in the inning, lashed a two-run single off Dave Johnson, the fourth pitcher of the inning.

Fritz Peterson, 2-2, who brought a 14.05 earned run average into the game, checked the Orioles on five hits. Baltimore scored in the seventh on doubles by Lee May and Don Baylor.

Twins Win Royally With Whopping 14-5 Decision

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Twins cruised to a 14-5 victory over the Kansas City Royals Saturday as Bert Blyleven pitched a six-hitter and Eric Soderholm and Steve Brye combined to drive in seven runs.

Soderholm's two-run homer in the second inning put the Twins ahead 2-1, and four unearned runs in the third gave Blyleven, 3-1, all the cushion he needed.

He was touched for an unearned run in the first inning and home runs by John Mayberry in the fourth and Hal McRae and Tony Solaita in the ninth.

Shortstop Frank White's two-out error on Bob Darwin's sharp grounder which skipped through his legs opened the door for the Twins' four tainted runs which routed Paul Splittorff, 1-4. Rod Carew scored from second on the boot, Soderholm then blooped a run-scoring single while ducking away from a pitch, and Steve Braun finished the flurry with a two-run single.

The Twins turned the game into a runaway with three runs in the seventh on Brye's bases-loaded double off Marty Pattin and five more in the eighth against Bruce Dal Canton. Brye got his fourth RBI with a single in the eighth and Craig Kusick delivered a two-run single.

Brye led Minnesota's 14-hit assault on four pitchers with three hits as Kansas City suffered its ninth defeat in the last 12 games. After his three-run double in the seventh, his pop single in the five-run eighth accounted two more runs thanks to some more shaky defensive play, although no errors were charged and Brye received only one RBI on the play.

Trevino Falters In Third; Crampton Takes Over

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Bruce Crampton, a steady tour veteran from Australia, came from three strokes off the pace with a 66, swept past struggling Lee Trevino and assumed a one-shot lead Saturday in the third round of the $150,000 Houston Open Golf Tournament.

Crampton, who presents a dour, grim-faced appearance on the course, put together a 54-hole total of 204, 12 under par for three trips in hot, muggy weather over the 6,929-yard Woodlands Country Club course.

But Crampton, in his 19th season on the American tour, refused to get excited over his first lead in two seasons.

"I didn't even know I was leading the golf tournament until I finished my round and took a look at the scoreboard," Crampton said. And he had no predictions for Sunday's final round.

"Golf is a very unpredictable game," he said. "Anything can happen and they don't write the checks until tomorrow night.

Crampton, the winner of this title, three other tournaments and the coveted Vardon Trophy in 1973, owned a one-stroke advantage over Dr. Gil Morgan going into the last round of this chase for a $30,000 first prize.

Fryman's Shutout Sets New Record

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran left-hander Woodie Fryman fired a one-hitter—rookie John Stearns' fifth-inning double—for his third straight shutout and set a Montreal club record of 29 2-3 consecutive scoreless innings as the Expos defeated the New York Mets 3-0 Saturday.

The 35-year-old Fryman, back in the National League after 2½ seasons with the Detroit Tigers, walked three, struck out six, hit a batter and retired the Mets in order six times as he lowered his earned run average to 0.53. His record is 3-0 and he has yielded only 19 hits in 33 2-3 innings.

Stearns laced a clean double to left-center with two out in the fifth. Fryman then issued an intentional walk to Bud Harrelson but retired losing pitcher Hank Webb on a bouncer back to the mound for the third out.

Webb, just recalled from the minors, was nicked for a run in the first inning when Tony Scott singled with two out, stole second and scored on a single by Mike Jorgensen.

Scott also scored in the sixth. He outlegged a one-out bunt, moved around to third on a balk and Jorgensen's grounder and scored on a double by Larry Parrish. The Expos added a run off Rick Baldwin in the ninth on Gary Carter's single, a sacrifice, wild pitch and a single by Pete Mackanin.

The old Montreal record of 26 consecutive scoreless innings was set by Gary Waslewski in 1969.

Bosox Skin Tigers, 12-2

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox sent 11 batters to the plate in the first inning Saturday, scored six runs on just four hits plus some shabby Detroit fielding and rolled to a 12-2 victory over the Tigers.

Jim Rice's bases-loaded single was the big blow off Lerrin LaGrow, who lost his first game after three straight victories. The tall right-hander hurt his own cause with two walks, one intentional, and was the victim of two errors plus a couple of other defensive lapses.

A pair of walks sandwiched around a double by Carl Yastrzemski set the stage for Rice's two-run single. A fielder's choice and an error let two more runs in, and Rick Burleson singled home the fifth run.

Another error, followed by Doug Griffin's fluke single on a pop-up which fell safely in center field, left the bases loaded again and Bernie Carbo's sacrifice fly completed the big inning.

Bob Montgomery's bases-loaded single made it 8-0 in the fourth and Rick Wise, 2-2, costed from there. The veteran right-hander checked the Tigers on eight hits, giving up a run in the fifth on three singles and another in the seventh on rookie Leon Roberts' first major league home run.

Boston added three runs off Vern Ruhle in the eighth, including RBI singles by Burleson and Dwight Evans.

Anderson Shakes Up Crowd With Mistake

By SY RAMSEY
Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE (AP) — It was his first mistake in 16 years of track announcing for Churchill Downs, but Chick Anderson was philosophical.

For the last half-mile of the Kentucky Derby race, Anderson had Prince Thou Art confused with Foolish Pleasure, who won it.

Anderson corrected himself just at the finish line.

"The thing about being an announcer is that you have to live with what you do, right or wrong," Anderson said afterwards. "I'm prepared to live with it."

Several jockeys said they heard the wrong call but that it had no effect on how they rode.

Braulio Baeza, who was aboard Prince Thou Art, said in the dressing room later that he could hear the announcer saying that his mount was moving into the lead.

"It confused me," he said. "I knew I wasn't going anywhere. I was never in the race."

The veteran Bill Shoemaker, aboard Avatar, said he didn't know Foolish Pleasure had won the race until he got to the locker room.

"I thought Prince Thou Art had won it," he said. "All I saw was this horse buzzing past me. I didn't know which one it was."

Jacinto Vasquez, who rode the winner, said he also heard the announcer calling Prince Thou Art's name.

"I was just looking ahead at the wire," he said. "I knew nobody could catch me."

Anderson, 42, said he began making the wrong call at the half-mile point of the 1¼-mile classic.

The situation was not helped by the fact that a restive infield crowd broke down the fence on the far side of Anderson's view and unnerved him somewhat as it pushed towards the track.

The weather was no help, either. In the gathering gloom, as rain threatened, Anderson confused Foolish Pleasure's black-and-white silks and Prince Thou Art's brown-and-tan colors.

He began putting Prince Thou Art in the lead at the eighth pole, when really it was Foolish Pleasure making his move. He realized his error at the 16th pole, when the black-and-white became more visible.

The nationwide television audience that saw the race on ABC also heard Anderson's wrong call. The television announcers, headed by Howard Cosell, gave no explanation afterward.

If the blunder shook Anderson, he did not show it, continuing his routine announcements in the last two races on Derby Day.

The mixup recalled one by Clem McCarthy, one of the most famous radio announcers in horse racing.

During the 1947 Derby, McCarthy, who had not erred in thousands of races, mistook Faultless—who came in third— for the winning Jet Pilot. Both thoroughbreds had reddish colors.

"Oh my God, ladies and gentlemen, I have called the wrong winner," McCarthy said shortly after announcing that Faultless had won.

Bucs Rally To Dump Dogs; Take Third

CHARLESTON, S.C.—East Carolina rallied for four runs in the top of the sixth and held the Citadel Bulldogs scoreless the rest of the game to record a second straight upset of the 1975 Southern Conference champs, 6-5.

Mike Weaver got his first varsity win coming on in relief in the fourth. Bob Feeney had started for the Bucs but got into trouble as he spotted the Bulldogs five runs in the first three frames. Feeney had pitched the Pirates' win over the Citadel last Saturday here but could not hold them this time out. He gave up four earned runs, eight hits and a walk while fanning two. Weaver blanked the Bulldogs for two and two-thirds innings giving up four hits and a walk. He gave up a single and a walk in the seventh and was relieved by Terry Durham who saved the win for the Pirates.

The Citadel put a man on in the first but failed to bring him around. They broke the ice in the second on a two-run home run. The Bulldogs pushed over three more in the third for a 5-0 lead.

The Pirates went to work in the fifth picking up a pair and then rallied for four runs in the sixth to take the lead.

Joe Roenker led the Pirates with three hits while Geoff Beaston, Bruce Leary and Ken Gentry had two each. Paul Martin led the Citadel with four, Dick Jones had three and Rod Lanning and Mike Hawkins had two each.

East Carolina put men on in the first as Ron Staggs walked and Roenker singled. They loaded the bases in the second but again failed to score. Leary singled and Jack Elkins walked as did Beaston.

The Bulldogs, however, were first to break through with a score. Jones led off with a single and scored as Martin blasted a homer.

The Citadel came right back with three more in the fifth. With one out, Gene Dotson and Richard Weiters both singled. Jones drove them in with a home run.

The Pirates broke the ice in the fifth cutting the lead to 5-2. Beaston singled, moved to second on an out, took third on Roenker's hit and scored on a wild pitch. Roenker had gone to second on the wild pitch and scored on a hit by Glen Card.

Elkins led off the sixth with a walk and Howard McCullough singled him to second. Gentry got a hit scoring Elkins and a triple by Beaston brought in both McCullough and Gentry. Staggs flew out to score Beaston with the winning run.

The Citadel had a chance to get the lead back in the seventh as Jones singled, Martin singled and Mike Hawkins walked. Durham struck out Rick Jarrell to end the threat.

Martin tried to stretch a double into a triple in the bottom of the ninth but was thrown out at third to end the game.

The loss was the first of the year for Hank Welch who relieved Citadel starter Mark Mazucco in the sixth.

The Pirates travel to Campbell Wednesday and then finish their season Saturday hosting UNC-Wilmington.

Petty Expects Tough Race

By ORBIE L. MEDDERS

TALLADEGA, Ala. (UPI) — Richard Petty, the first million-dollar winning NASCAR driver, said Saturday the competition for Sunday's Winston 500 may be the toughest ever at Alabama International Motor Speedway.

The driver taking the $20,000 winner's purse has "got to be awfully lucky," said Petty, who will start his Dodge in the fifth position. "The competition is better this year than it has been in some time.

"The top 10 cars are about a second apart in speed," he said. "That's racing and I mean racing."

Buddy Baker, who won the pole position in his Ford at 189.947 miles an hour, said "the competition is really stout."

Forty drivers qualified Thursday and Friday. Rain Saturday delayed qualifying of the final 10 cars for the 50-car race.

Track officials said if the rain prevented qualifying runs Saturday, the last 10 drivers would be selected on the basis of practice speeds and NASCAR point standings.

The National Weather Service said the rain was expected to end before the scheduled 1 p.m. (CDT) starting time.

Glen Wood, a top NASCAR mechanic, agreed with Petty and Baker the competition will be tough. Wood is chief of the Wood Brothers team, which prepared the Mercury driven by defending champion David Pearson.

"It will be tougher to win than ever before," Wood said. "There are more cars in the drafting limit, within a space of less than five miles an hour. There are probably 10 of them here now, twice as many as in previous years."

The qualifying speeds of the cars in the top nine starting positions ranged from Baker's 189.947 to Gordon Johncock's 184.940 in a Chevrolet.

Dave Marcis, whose third fastest qualifying time on Thursday was disqualified because of an illegal spoiler on his Dodge, qualified Friday for the 21st starting position at 188.879, the third fastest qualifying time.

The drivers starting in positions two through eight will be Donnie Allison, Chevrolet, 189.560; Bobby Allison, Matador, 187.975; Pearson, Mercury, 187.956; Petty, Dodge, 187.108; Lennie Pond, Chevrolet, 186.630; Richard Brooks, Ford, 185.563; and Bennie Parsons, Chevrolet, 185.520.

Two Win 2nd Games

Union Carbide and Daniel Construction each won their second straight games in the Industrial Softball League Friday night.

In the first game, Daniel gained a 5-2 win over the Moose. Daniel broke a scoreless tie in the fourth inning with two runs. They added three more in the sixth. The lone Moose runs came in the sixth, and included a homer by C. Connell.

Union Carbide downed State Highway, 8-4, in the second game. State Highway grabbed the initial lead with two in the first. They added two more in the second for a 4-0 lead, but were shut out the rest of the way.

Union Carbide came back with two in the third and four in the fifth to push ahead. They added two more in the sixth to wrap it up.

L. League Opens Year

The Greenville Little Leagues will open their 1975 season on Monday at Guy Smith and Elm Street Little League fields.

The Exchange will meet Integon in the opening game in the Tar Heel League at 6 p.m. at Guy Smith. Tuesday, Big Value Drugs, a new team in the league in name only meets Pepsi-Cola, while the Moose take on the Graniteers on Wednesday to complete the first swing.

Coca-Cola takes on the Lions at Elm Street Park at 6 p.m. Monday. Tuesday finds R.C. Cola meeting the Jaycees and the Optimists take on the Kiwanis on Wednesday.

The annual Chicken Luncheon-Supper will be held on May 21, and tickets are now on sale from any Little Leaguer.

Announcer's Wrong Call Did Not Bother Vasquez

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

LOUISVILLE (AP) — As Jacinto Vasquez turned Foolish Pleasure toward home in the 101st Kentucky Derby, he could see only the wire and stretch of open dirt ahead of him but a strange sound pounded his ears.

"Here comes Prince Thou Art taking the lead," bellowed the track announcer over the public address system.

"No, I wasn't bothered," Vasquez said. "I could see the wire and I knew that a horse would have to have a jet behind him to catch me."

After pacing his bay colt around most of the track, sitting back in a comfortable position, Vasquez made his move at the 5-16th pole.

"I whispered in his ear, 'Let's go from here,' " the Panamanian said. "He responded. He always responds. He is that kind of horse. He is a great horse. He does everything you ask him to do."

Vasquez, riding in his second Derby and winning his first, said at the quarter pole the two Pacific Coast horses, Diabolo and Avatar, gave him some momentary concern.

"I thought they were going outside," he said, "and I would have to go inside.

"But they didn't and when I moved to the 5-16th pole, I couldn't see anything but the wire and the track. I knew nobody could catch us then."

Lafitt Pincay, Jr., aboard Diabolo, and the veteran Bill Shoemaker, aboard Avatar, bumped each other in the final drive.

"Shoemaker's horse was coming out and my horse was coming in so it was even," Pincay said.

"He came in on me and bumped me," said Shoemaker. "But it didn't affect the outcome of the race. That horse (Foolish Pleasure) went by me like a bullet. He would have won, any how."

Pincay agreed. "That horse was determined to win," he said. "Our little bumping made no difference to either of us."

Vasquez is a 31-year-old veteran who has ridden in only one previous Derby. He was on Wil Rad and finished 10th in 1964.

"I was so far back and so disappointed," he said, "that I said I never would race in another Derby until I got a good horse. I have turned down many chances.

"When I got a chance to ride Foolish Pleasure, I decided to try again. It is a great thrill to win."

The Panamanian said he grew up on a farm in rural Las Tablas.

"I rode horses all the time," he added. "I rode them so hard that every day my father gave me a bad licking. I never thought I would be a jockey."

Vasquez raced against the great Secretariat but never on him. He doesn't mind making comparisons.

"Secretariat is one of the greatest race horses of all time, but he lost several races and this horse has lost only one and that was because he had bad feet."

Actually Secretariat lost three races—and Vasquez figured in all three defeats. Foolish Pleasure's only defeat was in the Florida Derby where he finished third after suffering cuts on his front feet during the race.

In Secretariat's maiden race as a 2-year-old at Aqueduct, Vasquez, on Quebec, bumped him at the gate and Secretariat never recovered.

Vasquez was on Angle Light which beat Secretariat in the Wood Memorial prior to the great champion's sweep of the Triple Crown—Derby, Preakness and Belmont—and he rode Onion to the upset triumph over Secretariat in the Whitney Stakes at Saratoga.

"This horse can win the Triple Crown just as Secretariat did," Vasquez said. "He is a real champion.

"I never doubted that he could go the distance. I never doubted that he could win the Derby. Some of you guys did," he said, pointing to the newsmen, "but I never doubted it.

"He ran easy and when I gave him the signal, he responded. What else can you ask of a horse?"

Derby....

still to go.

Avatar, owned by Arthur A. Seelingson Jr., moved up to challenge after another quarter mile and was three lengths behind the pacesetting Bombay Duck with Rushing Man close behind.

At that point, Foolish Pleasure was in eighth position and Diabolo was sixth, four lengths ahead of the winner and more than eight lengths behind the leaders.

As the field began the turn for home, Bombay Duck still had a half length lead over Avatar, who was running alongside Rushing Man while Daibolo had moved into fourth and Foolish Pleasure was much closer to the front.

Foolish Pleasure moved to second in the turn behind Avatar while Bombay Duck faded to last and the winner continued his move down the long Churchill Downs' stretch for the 1¾-length victory.

Avatar finished 2½ lengths in front of Diabolo with Master Derby the same margin to the rear in fourth position.

Vasquez said he never doubted that Foolish Pleasure could make the Derby distance—a severe test so early in the year for 3-year-olds although numerous observers felt Foolish Pleasure would not be able to handle so long a race.

All of the colts carried 126 pounds in the race.

The victory for Greer, a Knoxville, Tenn. bakery and banking executive, was worth $209,600 and increased Foolish Pleasure's bankroll to $673,515.

With 15 starters, the 101st Derby had a gross purse of $262,100, second only to last year's record $346,500.

It was the first Derby victory for Greer, although he was a member of the partnership that owned Ridan who was third in the 1962 Derby behind Decidedly and Roman Line.

Another member of that partnership was Mrs. Moody Jolley, mother of Saturday's victorious trainer.

Greer, who began his interest in horses as a National Guardsman and member of the horse-drawn artillery in World War I, put up only $4,000 as his one-third share in Ridan.

He paid $20,000—obviously another bargain—for Foolish Pleasure in the Saratoga Sales two years ago.

The early fractions were :22, :45 1-5, 1:10 1-5 and 1:36.

The final time of 2:02 was far off the Churchill Downs and Derby record set by Secretariat at 1:59 2-5 two years ago.

Foolish Pleasure's trip to the Derby was balanced on a pair of "ifs" and apparently it was his 76-year-old owner who made the decision that kept the colt on the victory trail.

Squeeze In Eighth Gets Win For Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Don Money squeezed Pedro Garcia home from third base with one out in the eighth inning, giving the streaking Milwaukee Brewers a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday.

After the Brewers failed to get runners home from third with less than two out in the sixth and seventh innings, Garcia opened the eighth with a double off New York relief ace Sparky Lyle, 1-2, and Bob Coluccio sacrificed him to third.

Money then dropped a squeeze bunt down the first base line and wound up at second when Lyle's desperation toss sailed past the plate. Garcia scored to give the Brewers their fourth consecutive victory.

New York, trailing 3-1 after two innings, tied the score on two RBI by Thurman Munson. Bobby Bonds walked in the third, moved to third on Chris Chambliss' single and scored when Munson singled off Milwaukee starter Ed Sprague to make it 3-2.

Bonds walked again in the fifth, again was singled to third by Chambliss and scored on Munson's infield grounder off Jim Colborn, who had just replaced Sprague.

The Yankees took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Roy White walked, went to third on Elliott Maddox' single and scored on an infield out by Chambliss.

Milwaukee came right back with two runs after Yankee starter Rudy May walked Money. Robin Yount singled and one of the Brewers' six sacrifice bunts sent the runners to second and third.

Money scored on George Scott's infield out. After Hank Aaron walked, catcher Munson tried to pick Yount off second but his throw went into the outfield. Yount went to third and scored when right fielder Bonds bobbled the ball for another error.

The Brewers took a 3-1 lead in the second on singles by Rob Ellis and Money around a sacrifice.

Kelly Heath smacked out a two-run homer to post Rose High School toward a 5-0 victory over Northeastern of Elizabeth City Friday as the Rampants got back on the winning track.

The game, originally scheduled for Tuesday in Elizabeth City, had been postponed until Friday, and was switched to Greenville Friday morning. Rose will pay a return visit to the Eagles on May 16, in a game originally set for Greenville.

Wesley Deal hurled the shutout for the Rampants, but didn't have as much stuff as he usually does. He walked five and struck out six, while allowing six hits. Two double plays helped him out of jams.

Elizabeth City's Billy Price allowed only four hits by the Rampants but they were all key, ones, coming in the scoring innings.

The victory boosted the Rose record to 9-2 in Division I play, and kept alive their hopes of the title—if someone else can stop Rocky Mount. The Rampants are 14-3 overall. Northeastern fell to 3-8 in the league and 5-8 overall.

Rose has four games remaining, all but one of them on the road. They host Bertie at Guy Smith on Tuesday, then have away games with Northern Nash, Wilson and Northeastern during the next two weeks as they wind up the season.

For the Rampants to win the conference championship they must win all four and hope that one team tops Rocky Mount somewhere along the way. The two teams could end up tied for the title, but since the Gryphons won two of the three league meetings, they would get the league's lone state playoff berth.

Rose pulled off its first double play in the second inning, getting it the hard way. Bruce Bright had singled to open the inning. David Suerman grounded to Mike Brewington at first, and he was forced there. Brewington then relayed the ball to Heath at second where the tag was put on Bright.

Northeastern offered its first real threat in the fourth. Norman Watts reached on an infield hit and with one down, Bright singled him to second, but he died there.

In the fifth, Woody McDaniels reached on a fielder's choice and moved up on Cliff Harris' hit. In the sixth, Ray Scott singled and Suerman walked to put a run in scoring position.

The seventh saw the best Eagle chance fail. Doug Dees walked and McDaniels beat out a bunt. With one down, Watts grounded to third, and McDaniels was forced at second. The relay from Greg Sasser to Brewington at first was too late, but Dees had kept going around third, and Brewington alertly fired to Eddy Connolly, who made the tag in time to end the game.

Rose was shut out for the first two innings, and got only a two-out single by Deal in the third.

But in the fourth, Jack Jenkins walked and Health followed with his two-run blast that put the Rampants into the lead.

It stayed that way until the sixth, when Rose added three unearned runs. Griff Garner led off with a walk and Jenkins was safe on an error. Heath's grounder to short got Garner going into third. Macon Moye followed with a single to left, scoring Jenkins. Brewington grounded back to short, nailing Moye at second as Heath made it safely to third. Brewington moved unheeded to second, and after that, Keith Jones was intentionally walked. Ron Hunt delivered a single to left, scoring both Heath and Brewington for the 5-0 score.

Jock's In Second Win

Jock's picked up its second win of the year, while the Little Sluggers were winning their opener Friday night in the City Softball League.

In the opening game, the Sluggers broke the backs of One-Hour Koretizing, 18-3. The Sluggers pushed over eight runs in the third inning, including a home run by B. Kuykendall. They added four more in the fourth, and came back with six in the fifth, including another homer by Kuykendall.

One-Hour got two runs in the fifth and one in the sixth.

In the second game, Jock's downed White's Insulation, 14-4. Jock's got one run in the first and added four more in the third. They came up with four more in the fourth, two in the fifth and three in the sixth, including a homer by R. Scales.

White's got one in the fourth, two in the sixth and one in the seventh.

Ayden-Grifton Shears Rams

SNOW HILL—Two hits each by Randy Nelson and Paul Setliff and seven-hit pitching by Dennis Cristiano and Chris Riggs led the Ayden-Grifton Chargers to an 8-4 victory over Greene Central, Friday night.

The Chargers spotted the Rams a run in the bottom of the first but rallied for two in the second to take the lead. They all but wrapped it up getting four in the third.

The loss dropped the Rams to 7-4 in the Eastern Carolina Conference and 8-7 overall.

Donnie Blizzard led off the first with a walk for the Rams and Jerry Carraway reached on an error. Tim Butts singled in Blizzard.

The Chargers countered with two in the second. Steve Noble and Stevie Tripp both singled. An out scored Noble and a hit by Ned Craft scored Tripp.

Paul Ricciarelli opened the third with a single and Eddie Taylor's fly to right was dropped. Noble walked and Cristiano was hit by a pitch forcing in Ricciarelli. Tripp flew out bringing in Taylor and hits by Nelson and Setliff scored Noble and Cristiano.

Blizzard walked in the Ram third and scored on a triple by William Brown.

Taylor doubled for the Chargers in the fourth and scored on a single by Vern Daveport. Nelson singled in the fifth, moved to third on Setliff's hit and scored on Craft's sacrifice fly.

The Rams tried to rally in the seventh but only got two. Butts singled and Brown reached on a fielder's choice. Joe Heath walked loading the bases and a hit by Floyd Adams drove in Butts and Brown.

Butts and Adams had two hits each for thge Rams.

Robersonville Blasts South E.

ROBERSONVILLE—Robersonville romped to an 11-0 victory over South Edgecombe Friday, clincing the title in its division of the Eastern Plains Conference.

At the end of the regular season, Robersonville will meet the other divisional leader, either Lee Woodard or Saratoga in a playoff for the conference championship and the loop's state tournament berth.

Jimmy Stalls tossed a one-hitter in the game. He struck out seven and walked only one. Just four South Edgecombe players reached—the single and the walk putting two on. One other reached on an error and the other on a passed ball following the third strike.

No one got as far as second on the Eagles, who pulled off two double plays.

Robersonville pushed in four runs in the first inning to get all they needed. Jeff Warren doubled and scored on Reid Bullock's two-bagger. Stalls singled and Ricky Spruill ran for him, stealing second. Carl Bullock singled in both Reid Bullock and Spruill, and moved up when the ball was relayed home. Charlie Smith singled in Bullock with the fourth run.

Five more crossed for the Eagles in the third, for a 9-0 lead. Carl Bullock walked and Robin Fowler singled. Smith walked to load them up and Ricky Jenkins singled in Bullock. Ken Gurganus, squeezing in Fowler beat out the throw for a hit. Reid Bullock singled in Smith and Jenkins, and Neno Hayes' hit scored Gurganus.

The final two came over in the sixth. Fowler singled and Smith reached on a fielder's choice. Both stole up and scored on Gurganus' hit.

Robersonville, now 11-6 overall and 10-2 in the league, travels to Elm City on Tuesday.

Eastern Drops Panthers, 10-1

NEW HOPE—Eastern Wayne came up with three runs in the third inning to take a 3-1 lead and the Warriors added seven more runs to beat the North Pitt Panthers, 10-1, Friday night.

The Panthers got their run in the first as Noel Whitley walked and stole second and scored on a double by Aubrey Wynne.

The Warriors took control in the third. Larry Ward led off with a double and W. Sutton walked. Both were sacrificed up and both scored on a triple by Graham. Graham came across on an error.

The lead ran up to 6-1 in the fourth. Grady reached on an error and W. Sutton walked. R. Sutton tripled scoring the two runners. R. Sutton scored as Taylor reached on an error.

The Warriors added four more in the sixth.

Williamston Takes Victory

WILLIAMSTON—Williamston High School nipped Washington, 5-4, Friday in a Northeastern Conference baseball game.

Details of the game were not made available to the Daily Reflector.

Southern Nash Tops Aycock

SPRING HOPE—Southern Nash Junior High School rolled to a 6-3 victory over E.B. Aycock Junior High School Friday afternoon.

Southern scored a run in the first, but saw Aycock come back to take a 3-1 margin in the top of the second. But the host team pushed in four second inning runs to lock up the victory.

In the first inning, Allen Sherrod walked and stole second. He gained third on a passed ball and after Tony Jefferies and Jimmy Collie both walked to load the sacks, another walk to Jeff Strickland forced in Sherrod.

Aycock came back to gain the lead in the second. Reggie Spain reached on a two-base error and Lance Wetherington singled him to third, then stole second. Jerome Ross walked to load them up, and Ronnie Chapman was hit by a pitch, scoring Spain. Will Sanderson singled in both Wetherington and Ross' courtesy runner Gary Chapman.

But in the bottom of the inning, Southern came back to take the lead for good. Steve Glover walked and Sherrod did too. Collie singled in Glover and a passed ball scored Sherrod with the tieing run. Strickland tripled in Collie and Ricky Murray got a hit to score Strickland for a 5-3 lead.

The other Southern run came in the third. David Shelton walked and stole both second and third, scoring on an error on the relay.

Aycock returns to action on Tuesday, hosting Goldsboro.

Firebirds Take Conley By 7-1

SPRING HOPE—Southern Nash High School rolled up a 7-1 victory over D.H. Conley High School Friday in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

Southern pushed over two runs in the first and added four on two fourth inning home runs to put the game on ice. The win raised Southern's record to 10-3, and kept their title hopes alive. Conley fell off to 6-7 in the league.

The Firebirds pushed in their first two in the first frame. Mitch Henley doubled and scored on Steve Hicks' double. George Perry walked and Robin Fassnachts reached on an error, scoring Hicks.

Conley came up with one in the third inning. Clennel Streeter walked and Donnie Cox reached on an error, allowing Streeter to score.

Southern put the game away with four more in the fourth inning. Matt Cooper walked and Bobby Harrison reached on a two-base error. Mitch Henley cracked out a three-run homer and Perry followed that up with a solo round-tripper that raised the score to 6-1.

The other Firebird run came over in the sixth. Henley singled and scored when Hicks reached on an error.

Conley will play host to Charles B. Aycock on Tuesday.

Two Qualify For State Meet

NEW BERN — Two area girls qualified for the state track meet Friday by finishing in second place in the sectional track meet held in New Bern Friday.

Ayden-Griton's Cindy Brown finished second in the long jump with a leap of 16 feet, 11¾ inches, just beating out Rose High School's Fannie Johnson, who finished third with a jump of 16 feet, 11½ inches.

Miss Brown also finished fifth in the 100-yard dash in 11.7 seconds.

The other qualifier was D.H. Conley's Vickie Hawkins, who was second in the shot put with a heave of 35 feet, 2½ inches.

Rose High had two others to place. Bonnie Lee finished fifth in the 110-yard hurdles in 16.6 seconds, while Gwen Tavasso was sixth in the high jump at 4-9, missing fourth place by one miss at the height.

Maritha Kilpatrick of Ayden-Grifton finished third in the mile run with a time of 5:28, just a second off qualifying.

Farmville Central failed to place and Williamston did not compete.

Hoke took first place in the meet with 35 points, while Camp Lejeune was second with 23. Tarboro finished third with 20.

Ayden-Grifton was tied for ninth with eight poonts, while Rose was 17th with four, along with Conley which also had four.

Blanks Fires Homer For Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds have finally learned how to pitch to Larvell Blanks—very carefully.

Blanks is not normally a long-ball hitter, but he is whenever he sees Red—and Friday night, he continued his assault on Cincinnati pitching.

"They throw more strikes to me than anybody else in the league," Blanks said after his two-out homer lead the Atlanta Braves to a 6-5 decision over the Reds.

Blanks has been a Cincinnati nemesis for some time now.

"I always have good luck against them, for some reason," said Blanks, who hit his first major league home run against the Reds in 1972.

A week ago, he came through with an 11th-inning double that provided the Braves with their only other victory over Cincinnati this season.

On Friday night, he said he was going for the long ball again.

"I'm not a home run hitter," he said. "But with two out and none on, I'm just swinging away."

In the other National League games, it was New York 3, Montreal 0; Philadelphia 9, Pittsburgh 5; St. Louis 5, Cincinnati 1; Los Angeles 3, San Diego 0 and San Francisco 5, Houston 4.

Blanks connected off Clay Kirby, 1-3, who took over from starter Fred Norman in the eighth.

The Reds had tied the score with two runs in the bottom of the seventh after Clarence Gaston's three-run pinch homer gave the Braves a 5-3 lead in the top of the seventh.

Pete Rose walked to start the bottom of the seventh and Dave Concepcion doubled. Rose scored when shortstop Blanks misplayed the relay and Concepcion scored the tying run when Joe Morgan smashed a single into left field off the hand of relief pitcher Gary Gentry.

The Braves took a 2-0 lead in the second inning on Williams' second home run of the season, a double by Blanks and Ralph Garr's single. Cincinnati got one back off Ron Reed in the bottom of the second on Dan Driessen's single and a double by Tony Perez.

Mets 3, Expos 0

Jerry Koosman pitched a four-hitter and singled home the game's first run, leading New York past Montreal. Koosman, 2-0, outdueled Dave McNally, 3-2, and delivered a two-out RBI single in the second inning after Jack Heidemann's one-out triple.

Phillies 9, Pirates 5

Philadelphia scored four unearned runs in the first inning, three on Mike Schmidt's towering homer, and went on to beat Pittsburgh. Tug McGraw nailed down the game for Philadelphia in the ninth, recording his first save for the Phillies.

Cardinals 5, Cubs 1

Bake McBride and Ken Reitz hit home runs and Bob Forsch pitched a three-hitter, leading St. Louis over Chicago. McBride picked on a 1-1 delivery from Rick Reuschel, 1-2, in the opening inning and slammed his second homer of the season. An inning later, the hot-hitting Reitz followed Ron Fairly's single and Keith Hernandez' triple with his first home run for a 4-0 lead.

Dodgers 3, Padres 0

Don Sutton hurled a five-hitter for his 38th career shutout as Los Angeles beat San Diego Padres for its eighth straight victory. Steve Garvey slugged his second home run and also singled in a run, giving him 19 RBI for the baseball season and a tie for the league lead. Lee Lacy continued his torrid hitting for the Dodgers, collecting two singles and scoring once.

Giants 5, Astros 4

Derrel Thomas' single in the ninth inning delivered the winning run as San Francisco beat Houston.

Foolish Pleasure, champion 2-year-old of 1974, won six stakes over five different tracks last year.

Pirates Clinch Southern Award

Based on unofficial results from the spring sports, East Carolina University has clinched the Commissioner's Cup for the second straight year in the Southern Conference.

The Commissioner's Cup is emblematic of having the best overall sports program in the Southern Conference. Points are awarded to each school on the basis of their finish in the league standings and championship meets.

By unofficial tally, East Carolina finished the second with 67½ points, two and a half ahead of runner-up Appalachian State. The Mountaineers finished with 65. William & Mary, the only other school to have won the trophy, finished with 61 points, followed by Richmond with 55. VMI followed with 50½, while Furman had 48½, The Citadel had 42½ and Davidson had 37.

The Pirates held only a half-point lead in the official standings going into the spring sports round. The Bus had finished fifth in cross-country, tied for third infootball, tied for fourth in soccer, second in basketball, first in swimming, second in indoor track, first in wrestling, and seventh in rifle.

During the spring, East Carolina finished second in golf, was second in track, third in baseball and seventh in tennis to build up enough points to offset those of Appalachian State. ASU took a third place finish in cross country, was second in football, first in soccer, eighth in basketball, fifth in swimming, sixth in indoor track, third in wrestling, won rifle, was third in golf, first in tennis, fourth in outdoor track and sixth in baseball.

William & Mary won cross-country, indoor track and outdoor track. VMI won football, while Furman took basketball and golf. The Citadel won baseball. Richmond and Davidson did not win a championship this year.

Official results of the Commissioner's Cup standings will be released later.

Women's Golfing

GRIFTON—Harriette White, Jane Worsley and Jan Woodworth took top honors in the final tournament of the year in the Pitt County Ladies Golf Association, Friday.

Mrs. White won low gross, Mrs. Worsley low net and Mrs. Woodworth low putts.

In the second flight, Mary Bruton won low gross, low net was won by Helen Back and Evelyn Ward won low putts. In the third flight, low gross was won by Grace Merritt, Miriam Martin won low net and low putts by Betty Lou Howard. The fourth flight winners were Ruth Gurganus, low gross, Jenny Johnson, low net, and Ann Moon, low putts.

Former National Hockey League referee Bill Chadwick worked in a record 106 Stanley Cup games.

The St. Louis Cardinals have won 8 of 12 World Series. That's the top National League figure.

Wild Pitch Starts Texas Toward Rally To Nip California By 4-3

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Texas Rangers finally got their man.

California's Bill Singer, who beat the Rangers 4-1 with a six-hitter back on April 23, had them shut out 3-0 on three hits going to the ninth inning Friday night and had a string of 16 scoreless innings against them.

Then he did something good...and something bad. He struck out Jeff Burroughs to start the inning...but the third strike also was a wild pitch and Burroughs made it safely to first.

"It was probably my most pleasing strikeout ever," said Burroughs, who eventually scored the first of four runs that lifted the Rangers to a stunning 4-3 triumph over the Angels—their sixth victory in a row.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Cleveland Indians nipped the Baltimore Orioles 4-3, the Oakland A's edged the Chicago White Sox 4-3 in 12 innings, the Minnesota Twins downed the Kansas City Royals 4-1 and the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the New York Yankees 4-2. The Detroit-Boston game was rained out.

The Rangers loaded the bases in the ninth on the strikeout-wild pitch, a double by Mike Hargrove and a walk. Singer then fell behind Joe Lovitto 2-0 and was replaced by Mickey Scott, who completed the walk and forced in the Rangers' first run.

Roy Smalley's sacrifice fly scored Hargrove and moved pinch-runner Toby Harrah to third, then Jim Sundberg's single tied the game. Dick Lange came on and walked Cesar Tovar to load the bases again and Frank Tanana, the fourth pitcher of the inning, threw a wild pitch which allowed Lovitto to score the winning run.

Indians 4, Orioles 3

If the mark of a good team is winning in the late innings, what does that make the Orioles? Charlie Spikes and Rico Carty delivered run-scoring hits in the eighth as the Indians handed Baltimore its fifth loss in a row. In four of them, the Birds have blown leads after the seventh inning.

Oscar Gamble drew a walk off reliever Dave Johnson in the eighth and pinch-runner John Lowenstein stole second. Spikes then doubled to score Lowenstein with the tying run and Carty, who homered earlier, blooped a single off Bob Reynolds to score Spikes with the winner.

Home runs by Elrod Hendricks and Lee May had given the Orioles a 3-2 lead.

A's 4, White Sox 3

Bill North singled home Claudell Washington with the winning run in the 12th inning. Washington opened the inning with a single off reliever Terry Forster, who blanked the A's after replacing Wilbur Wood in the eighth. Forster then fielded Larry Haney's grounder but threw late to second. Ted Kubiak sacrificed the runners along and North singled to right.

Rollie Fingers, 1-2, picked up the victory after Vida Blue surrendered seven hits and three runs—all unearned—in 10 innings.

Twins 4, Royals 1

Rookie Dan Ford's first two major league runs batted in and sharp relief efforts by Bill Campbell and Tom Burgmeier keyed Minnesota's triumph. Campbell replaced winning pitcher Dave Goltz with runners on first and second and none out in the seventh inning. He struck out Buck Martinez and got Fred Patek to ground into an inning-ending double play.

Burgmeier came on with the bases loaded and one out in the eighth. He struck out George Brett and retired pinch hitter Jim Wohlford on a fly ball. The three Minnesota pitchers limited Kansas City to five hits.

Brewers 4, Yankees 2

Mike Hegan and Don Money smashed solo home runs to back the six-hit pitching of Billy Champion. Hegan's fourth-inning homer off Doc Medich broke a 2-2 tie and sent the Brewers on the way to their third straight victory.

The Yankees got to Champion for two runs in the third inning on a bases-loaded single by Elliott Maddox but the Brewers tied it in the bottom of the third.

Will Study SC Expansion Policy

BOONE, N.C.(AP)—It may be a year before Western Carolina University knows whether it will be admitted to the Southern Conference.

The league tabled its application for not more than 12 months Friday. Richmond, a member for 40 years, has served notice it will leave in July of next year.

The conference, at the close of its spring meeting, named a special committee to examine the "philosophy of the conference, the possibility of expansion and procedural policy."

Dr. Francis Booner of Furman, who was reelected president of the conference, did not disclose the vote except to say that the majority favored tabling. It would have taken six votes to admit Western Carolina, which is at Cullowhee, N.C.

The special committeee includes one representative from each school, either the athletic director or the faculty chairman of athletics. It is headed by Ben Carnevale of William & Mary.

It will recommend to the constitutional committee what can be done to ease growing costs of operating an athletic program.

Bonner said the conference "is in a state of mind to consider realistic moves on expansion and financial matters."

Continuation of the new basketball championship format adopted last year was approved. First-round games will be played Feb. 28 on the courts of the four top finishers in the regular season. The semifinal and final rounds will be played in midweek, March 3-4. The site will be determined by athletic directors at their meeting in Nags Head, N.C. next month. The last two rounds were played at the Greenville, S.C., Memorial Auditorium last season under a one-year agreement.

Cornelius Greene, Ohio State junior, averaged 175.6 yards in eight Big Ten football games last season.

Rose Given Defeat

ROCKY MOUNT—Rocky Mount won seven matches to take a 7-2 victory over the Rose High tennis team Friday.

Tim Toates was the only singles winner for the Rampants while Dana Kendrick and Mike Murad won their doubles match.

The Rampants meet Northeastern Monday.

Singles

1. Bob Bennet (RM) won by default.
2. Tim Toates (R) defeated Gerry Felton, 6-7, 7-5, 6-4.
3. Danny Wheeless (RM) defeated Julian Vainwright, 6-2, 6-3.
4. Jeff Joyner (RM) defeated Dana Kendrick, 6-1, 6-2.
5. Jimmy Apostoleris (RM) defeated Mike Murad, 6-2, 6-4.
6. Wade Mayberry (RM) defeated Graham Dempsey, 7-5, 6-3.

Doubles

1. Felton-Bennet (RM) defeated Toates-Vainwright, 8-5.
2. Kendrick-Murad (R) defeated English-Eason, 9-8.
3. Paul Mayberry-Rusty Dickens (RM) defeated Carl Thurber-Don Tucker, 8-5.

For Chicano Singer Freddy Fender, Success Comes After A Long Wait

Text And Photograph By Jerry Raynor

"I LOVE MY EL RANCHO GRANDE"—Freddy Fender (left) sang to a packed house two weeks ago in Kinston. The Texas native currently has a big hit song, "Before The Next Teardrop Falls."

Two weeks ago on Saturday, April 19, from Greenville and Washington, Camp Lejeune and Cherry Point Marine Air Station, Goldsboro, Wilson, Snow Hill, New Bern and Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, travelers braved dust filled air created by strong winds to drive into Kinston.

Their destination? Mock Auditorium in Kinston High School to take in a Country-Western show starring Merle Haggard, Leona Williams and Freddy Fender.

At six o'clock and again at ten o'clock, the auditorium was packed with a cross section of eastern North Carolina fans of country and western music. There were military men, farmers, mechanics, housewives, clerks, college professors and high school students.

For most of this audience, singing stars Merle Haggard and Leona Williams were familiar favorites.

The third singing star on the bill, Freddy Fender, was another story. Freddy represented the excitement of a new discovery, the thrill of seeing in person someone suddenlywell known to them through his often aired hit "Before The Next Teardrop Falls."

For the moment at least, this song has become something of a trademark for the Corpus Christi singer. But this projection into the bright spotlight of entertainment success is no sudden fluke of fate.

Freddy Fender, by his own admission, is happy about the turn of events, yet he's a man who has patiently prepared and waited for this moment and is taking it maturely in stride.

"All my life I've been a working man, first as a boy and young man living a migrant life following the harvests trails," Freddy said in an interview before going on for the six o'clock show. "In my adult life I've worked many years as a mechanic, playing and singing weekends in clubs. Each time I've performed has been an escape from my week day job, a brief return to what I've always really wanted to do, to sing."

Although his appearance in Kinston was on a country-western billing, Freddy more accurately represents the new trend in American popular music where the division into "categories" of types of singers is no longer so sharply drawn.

The essence of Freddy's music is undeniably underlined with a strong Latin flavor. His soft, rich voice, colored by a muted vibrancy that seems to be the natural gift of many singers whose native tongue is Spanish, is ideally suited to the mixture of sadness and gaiety that marks the best in Latin melodies.

"I'm anxious to let the people hear more of the music I started out with," Freddy remarked. "My cultural roots are Chicano, I love singing our songs, traditional or new."

In his current best-selling album bearing the name of his hit song, "Before The Next Teardrop Falls," Freddy has recorded an updated version of a traditional Mexican song, "El Rancho Grande." His variations include a slight rephrasing into "I Love My El Rancho Grande."

In his Kinston performance, incidentally, the audience several times cheered his singing of this old favorite with it's sparkling tempo.

"I'm going to record 'Ceilito Lindo,'" Freddy noted, "I'll sing it in a tempo somewhat different from the traditional slow waltz tempo. I'm also trying to persuade my manager to let me record a real oldie, 'La Paloma.' This lovely song was the one that the Mexican Emperor Maximillan asked to hear before his execution more than a century ago in 1867."

Kinston was the third stop on this first East Coast tour for Freddy. "In this tour with Merle Haggard we have already played Florence, South Carolina and Greensboro," Freddy explained. "I love these audiences. They're wonderful, clean, religious people, the family type who brings their kids to the show. I can appreciate that," he smiled, "since I have three kids of my own."

Before 1975 Freddy said his singing had been mostly in the Louisiana-Texas-Mexico area. With 1975 and a national hit, the picture changed and already he has toured in Oklahoma, Arizona, California, and Nevada. "I had the good fortune to be at the Land Mark in Las Vegas with Leroy Van Dyke, for three weeks," he said.

Future plans include the possibility of touring overseas—Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Germany. "I'm also thinking about a Mexican tour," he added.

"I was thinking about going to the Wimberly World Country Music Festival in England this year," he said. "But," he smiled, "I changed my mind. I realized it would be illogical to go there before I'm better recognized. Maybe later."

Hopefully it will not be too much later that we'll have the pleasure of more songs of the kind that Freddy sings so well, the heart warming and beautiful songs of Mexico, Spain and old Texas. Even in new arrangements, they will surely ring a nostalgic response in older music lovers. For the young, Freddy might be just the man to open their ears to an exciting part of America's musical heritage not heard too often in the past two decades.

Dave Messer, A Busy Marine Farrier

MCAS, CHERRY POINT—In his working gear of cowboy boots, Levi jeans and jacket, flannel shirt, a straw hat topping off his uniform, Marine Corporal Dave Messer is ready for work.

Though Dave doesn't wear his Marine uniform to work at the Cherry Point Horse Stables, he is still responsible for keeping himself and all other military duties squared away.

His responsibilities are quite a bit different than those of his buddies on the flight line, though. He has the job of keeping the horses at the Cherry Point Horse Stables well-groomed and in serviceable horseshoes.

Stretching out his long legs, and puffing on a cigar, the Cumberland Gap, Tenn., Marine explained that he was assigned to the horse stables more than a year ago after being assigned to the Marine Wing Headquarters Squadron-2 as a cook.

"I guess my experience with horses had a lot to do with me getting the job," Dave explained. "I've been riding and training horses ever since I can remember."

Dave is an experienced horse trainer, a rodeo rider and also a licensed blacksmith.

"When I was growing up on my fathers farm in Tennessee, I found there was a need for qualified farriers (blacksmith), so I went to a vocational school and was taught how to do it right.

"Since being stationed here at Cherry Point, I've learned that the shoeing business is good. If I had three men working for me, there would still be a lot of horses walking around barefoot and needing shoes. Of all the things that are being invented, they still haven't found anything to replace the horseshoe."

The horseshoe business is good, Dave explained, because, "It seems there's a lot more people going to horses. Maybe it's because of the gas prices. People aren't traveling by car as much and they're beginning to take advantage of our National Parks and trails."

With more people going to horseback riding for relaxation, Dave told about how it has affected the Cherry Point stables.

"When it's a nice day and the trails aren't wet, we'll get anywhere from 35 to 40 riders, and that keeps us stablehands busy testing riders for classification.

"Classification is for the rider's protection," Dave added. "A lot of Marines and dependents who come to ride don't understand why we have to test them on their riding abilities. If we were to let them come out and choose their own horse, he might be a "C" class beginner rider and choose an "A" class horse, a horse with a lot of spunk, that rider is in for trouble! With a classification test, though, we can fit the rider with just the right horse.

"Even if a person has never been on a horse before, he can come on down to the stables and we'll give him a few tips that will help him on his classification test. He may be sore for a few days, but that'll wear off after a few times out. Riding is the best way I know of to spend a Saturday or Sunday afternoon."

Gary Stewart Makes A Musical Serpent

If you ever need anyone to play a serpent, just call Gary Stewart.

A serpent is an obsolete bass wind instrument made of wood.

"Every musician knows what a serpent is," says 21-year-old Stewart, a brass major at Appalachian State University, who after two years has just completed making one by hand. Stewart's instrument is a copy of a Belgian serpent, circa 1780-1800. It's probably one of only a dozen or so serpents in the United States.

When Stewart plays it as part of his senior music recital this spring, it's bound to blow his major professor's mind—because there's no serpent music or how-to-play—it books around.

The 3½-foot high, 10-pound instrument took Stewart some 500 hours to make, not counting time spent on research and wondering what he was going to do next.

Stewart recalled, "I just decided I wanted to do it. And once I got started, it was kind of like a Perry Mason novel; I just wanted to finish it. I guess in the beginning I just wanted to find out what one sounded like."

A WIERD LOOKING WATER PIPE—Appalachian music major Gary Stewart demonstrates the proper procedure for playing his serpent—a replica of the extinct bass instrument that he has spent most of the past two years making by hand.

Some of its tones sound bad—raucous is the term musicologists use. The raucousness is due to faulty acoustics in the six finger holes, and that led to the eventual abandonment of the instrument.

Serpents were used from around 1590 until valved brass instruments came on the scene in the 1840's, Stewart says. Musicians played serpents in Catholic churches as bass accompaniment for chants and for bass support of the choir.

Stewart's interest in serpents started during his sophomore year when he took a course in music history. After reading the small amount of information that is available on "the bass voice of the Cornetti family," Stewart found a 2-by-3—inch picture of the Belgian serpent. The picture was to scale and Stewart had it blown up to its actual size, using the only measurement he knew—the 4½-inch diameter of the bell end.

In the summer of 1973, Stewart purchased an 11-foot long, 2-by-12 mahogany board. The board was cut in sections and glued together and the pattern of the instrument was traced on the boards. By gluing the boards together, Stewart had formed mirror-image halves along the entire length of the tubular instrument.

He cut the rough shape of the serpent on a large band saw in a machine shop in Hickory. Stewart then put his future instrument aside for six months and "just messed around. I really never thought I'd finish it," he says.

In 1974 Stewart decided to get more serious about his college education and about serpent making. He went back to work.

Stewart cut the figure into 100 pieces—each of which could be held in the hand. The centers of the pieces were ground out using a flexible shaft with grinding attachments connected to a motor. (In olden times, the insides of the instruments were chiseled out by hand.)

The 100 semitubular wooden pieces along the eight-foot length of the instrument were glued together and brush sanded.

Stewart did most of the work on the serpent in the office of music professor Dr. Max Smith. In the beginning, only two faculty members and the janitor inew what he was doing. The drilling and sanding on the mahogany wood filled the office with a storm of dust. "It surely was a mess in there," Stewart said.

The wooden frame was rapped tightly with 25-yards then covered as in olden days with fine cowhide. Stewart carefully measured the length and circumference of the sections of the frame and cut out nearly perfect fitting pieces. He soaked the leather pieces in hot water, kneaded the pieces like dough and pulled the leather pieces over the wooden frame.

The leather pieces were skived and overlapped at the seams so they souldn't show. The finished leather was dyed black and saddle soaped. The inside of the bell was painted red as far inside as the eye could see. The six finger holes were drilled out.

Work on the mouthpiece finished the serpent. The lead pipe was fashioned, authentically, out of sheet brass. Stewart's brother turned the mouth piece—which resembles a trumpet mouthpiece—on a lathe, and the end cap was made out of sheet brass.

"I would consider making another one for a substantial sum," Stewart says. "I would not consider less than $1,000 unless it were part of a degree program, then I'd take $995."

Stewart will receive six quarter hours of credit for the serpent project, which he took as an independent study. Appalachian officials believe he worked for a record number of hours on an independent study. They're sure it's the most unusual independent study as yet.

"I don't think everyone was meant to try this. They just don't have the patience," Stewart said.

Irish Wolfhounds, 150 Lbs Of Dog

MCAS, CHERRY POINT—What's Irish, stands three feet at the shoulders, weighs 150-pounds, eats 50 pounds of food per week, is quiet mannered, dignified and loyal to its master? No, it's not an overweight Leprachaun, but an Irish wolfhound.

There are 1,309 registered Irish wolfhounds in the United States, according to the 1975 "Readers Digest and Almanac." Two of those dogs are at Cherry Point and strangely enough, both are owned by the same man.

Staff Sergeant Bob Pugh, a Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron (H&MS)-14 Leatherneck, has been raising dogs for 20 of his 29 years. From Dachshunds to Dobermans and finally, Irish wolfhounds.

"The Irish wolfhound originated in Ireland," explained SSgt. Pugh, "and at that time, was the most valued dog in the Middle Ages. They were renowned for their hunting prowess and considered a fitting gift to royalty. The dogs were used to hunt the Irish wolf and the large Irish elk. But the way, that's why there aren't any wolves in Ireland anymore."

Pugh says he is proud of his dogs, explaining, "Both my dogs are champion bred and sired.

That means both parents were champion show dogs. We paid $750 for Lorien, and $450 for Cooleen."

Though Pugh notes Lorien is ready to retire, Cooleen still has a few years left in the dog circuit even though she is now pregnant. With two such rare dogs already, Pugh is looking forward to a litter of 10 champion wolfhounds.

150 POUNDS OF DOG—Three-year-old William "Willy" Pugh, hangs on to the collar of Lorien, one of two Irish wolfhounds owned by Staff Sergeant Bob Pugh, a Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron-14 Marine at the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N.C. Sweden's 600,000 Immigrant Problem

By BARBRO LARSON

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden, always in the forefront urging international understanding, has come to realize it has a problem with 600,000 immigrants in its own back yard.

The newcomers, who total 7.5 per cent of the eight million population, have triggered some anti-immigrant demonstrations and charges of foreigners "stealing" Swedes' jobs.

Nothing serious, but enough for the government to expand existing programs to adapt the immigrants to life in Sweden and to try to broaden their contacts with Swedes.

Immigration into Sweden began in the 1960s, unplanned and at first disorganized. Workers from poorer countries came to seek better jobs and good pay in a rapidly expanding economy.

Political refugees arrived from countries such as Greece, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Chile. U.S. deserters and draft dodgers sought a safe haven in the country that spoke out most harshly against American war policy in Indochina.

Every accepted immigrant—about 70 per cent of all applications are approved —has the same rights and duties as Swedes. Immigrants share one of the world's highest standards of living, including free medical care, housing allowances and baby bonuses. They also pay the taxes—an average 40 per cent.

Friction between immigrants and natives has nevertheless occurred.

"I still don't know any of my neighbors," said Hassan Arhani, a subway ticket seller who came from Istanbul, Turkey, two years ago.

A group of tenants in a Stockholm suburb signed a petition calling for eviction of gypsies on grounds of their "incapability of living in apartments and adapting to Swedish society."

The petition was unsuccessful, but it showed a sentiment the government is determined to fight.

The government proposes to give more money to immigrant organizations such as the Greek Community, Islamic Association and Yugoslavian Congregation, to extend more funds to Swedish groups teaching language or child care and set up an immigration council and an expert research group.

"We hope some of the new measures will help eliminate the contact problem between Swedes and foreigners," said Ann-Kristin Olofsson, an official at the immigration office.

"Swedes appear very cold and unfriendly to many foreigners and some Swedes feel the foreigners steal their jobs, which is not true."

She said immigration is regulated to fit the needs of the labor market. Immigrants, Scandinavians excepted, must have a job lined up and a place to live before they are allowed to enter the country.

The immigration office, which was set up in 1969 and now employs 300 persons, helps newcomers with initial problems. The new government proposals are aimed at ironing out the remaining difficulties in adapting to a new society.

Some feel they don't go far enough.

Although every employer is obliged by law to pay for language training for immigrant employes, labor unions point out that many who have been in Sweden for years and have become Swedish citizens still do not speak the language. They say the new language training scheme must be open to all immigrants, not only to those arriving after it becomes effective.

The immigrant council is envisaged as an advisory body with members representing immigrant groups, the labor market and the government.

The research experts would concentrate on working out solutions to specific problems, including better language teaching methods.

Total cost is not known. But the government wants to spend $600,000 to support immigrant organizations in 1976 and has proposed a 50 per cent increase in the current $5 million immigration office budget.

The next step, Miss Olofsson said, is to inform Swedes about immigrants, "so that the different cultures can come closer and understand each other better."

A Newspaper Of 37 Old Blackboards

By EDGAR NAVARRO

MOALBOAL, The Philippines (UPI) — A 37-year-old Roman Catholic priest gives the 18,000 citizens of the small town of Moalboal in the central Philippines all the news that's fit to print—if it doesn't rain.

"The Moalboal Times," founded and edited by the Rev. Francisco Silva, consists of 37 rickety blackboards placed among the coconut palms and fishing huts.

It is produced daily by chalk-wielding school children.

When Father Silva arrived in Moalboal seven years ago, he found the town ruled by gunslingers. His predecessor, driven by extortionists to live behind shuttered windows, had suffered a nervous breakdown.

Father Silva stocked his study with firearms and considered how he could help the people of Moalboal, intimidated by a "maton" (gang leader) and "kantoboys" (street corner hangers-on).

"My chance came unexpectedly," the priest said. "The maton hit an attorney in the street."

Father Silva said the attorney went for his gun and shot the gang leader.

"The maton just lay in the street with no one daring to help him, in case he drew," Father Silva said. "I saw my chance, went up and got him to the hospital, and from then on the town started to respect me."

He credits "The Moalboal Times" with helping restore law and order to the town.

Silva said his newspaper is "much the same thing" as the wall posters used in China.

Barring typhoons that can shatter the blackboards and whip them into the sea, or rain that washes out the news, work on the "newspaper" starts at noon when the priest monitors radio broadcasts in his office.

A teacher transcribes the news onto a school blackboard. After school boys and girls chalk up the news on the outdoor blackboards.

News can be anything from an earthquake in Pakistan to the plight of a villager who has lost a pig.

Silva also gets news from newspapers brought in on produce trucks from Cebu City, 60 miles away. He visits the market place for news. Sometimes people drop by the church to give him a story.

"It works," the priest said. He said that when a pig is lost, children chalk up the report "and in a few hours the pig is back."

"The Moalboal Times" has a dialogue corner, a space on the blackboards where any citizen can express his views.

Father Silva hopes the idea for blackboard newspapers will spread to small towns throughout the Philippines Islands.

Manila Jesuit priests visited him recently to study "The Moalboal Times." They hope to start 30 more of the blackboard newspapers in nearby towns.

Efforts Made To Produce Supertrees

By DAN HALL
associated Press Writer

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Science is close to mass-producing "supertrees" that mature as much as three times faster than normal, a Yale University scientist says.

Through the discovery of a quick way to predict the growth rate of a seedling, F. Thomas Ledig says he was able to collect fast-growing trees that previously could be found only after years of observation.

His collection of superior trees is being cross bred selectively to produce "supertrees" with traits best suited for the climate in which they eventually will be grown.

"Supertrees" actually are created every so often in the forest by Mother Nature. But until now the problem has been in identifying those rare creations in time to reproduce them through cross-pollination, Ledig said.

After nine years of research, Ledig said he has developed a room-sized device which he calls an "infrared gas analyzer." It consists of a transparent chamber that holds 12 seedlings, overhead lamps to simulate sunshine and complex equipment to record the plants' growth rate.

"Simply based on growth rate, trees could be developed that would grow five times faster than normal," he said.

That rate is lengthened in practice, however, by cross-breeding that insures the trees also will be hardy.

He said the process could lead to more and cheaper timber for paper and construction, faster-growing trees for landscaping, more sap for maple syrup and larger Christmas tree crops.

Loblolly pines from Arkansas, for example, take 20 to 25 years to mature, but Ledig has produced some that should be ready for the pulp factory after 15 years.

The black spruce of the northern states and Canada shows even more dramtic promise. Fast-growing specimens have been found that should reduce the maturation period from 100 years to 35, he said.

Ledig, an associate professor in the School of Forestry and Environmental Studies, said he expected to perfect his process in about two years.

FLOWERING

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI) — The gardens at Bukit Tembusu, an estate on Eastern Road, showcases one of the finest collection of orchids in the Western Hemisphere.

Advise Limiting Fertilizer Use

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — With the world-wide shortage of fertilizer, agriculture experts at Texas A&M University have recommended its use for lawns and landscaping be limited.

Officials say many persons use more fertilizer on lawns than is necessary because most grasses need less nitrogen, a common element in fertilizer. They recommend gardeners use only two pounds of nitrogen fertilizer per 1,000 square feet of lawn area.

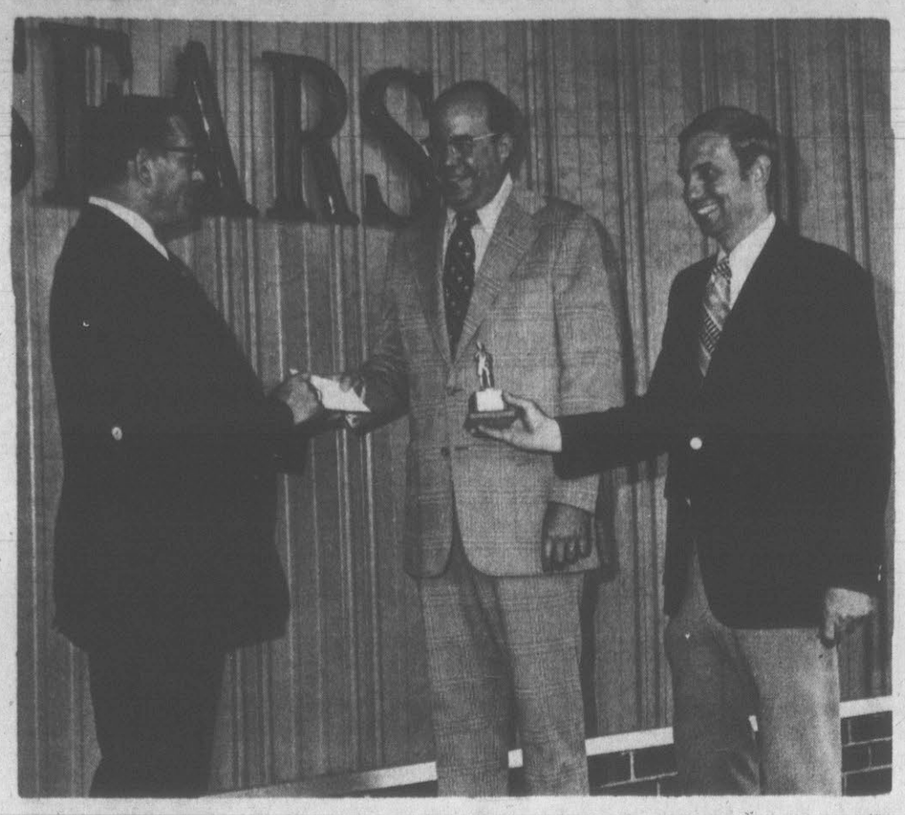
Sears Gift To Scouts



SEARS CORPORATE GIFT—of $3,600 to the East Carolina Boy Scout Council has been announced. In the photograph above, G.D. Weitnauer (center) store manager of Sears in Jacksonville, presents a $1,200 check, part of the total gift, to E.N. Szerjter (left) of the East Carolina Boy Scout Council. Berkley Roberts of the Onslow Boy Scout District (at right) looks on.

In a continuing effort to support Greenville and Eastern North Carolina, Sears stores located within the area of the East Carolina Council of Boy Scouts have donated a corporate gift of $3,600 to the council's scout program.

Sears retail stores in Jacksonville, Kinston and Rocky Mount, and eleven Catalog Sales Offices in the council area, Wilson, Ahoskie, Greenville, Havelock, Morehead City, New Bern, Plymouth, Roanoke Rapids, Tarboro, Washington and Williamston, made the donation to the Capital Fund Campaign to expand camping facilities at Herbert C. Bonner Scout Reservation and to provide professional staff to enlarge the "Exploring Program".

ECU Latin American Symposium Wednesday

"Energy Potential and Mineral Resources of Mexico and Brazil" is the topic of a Latin American Symposium being held on Wednesday, May 7 at East Carolina University.

Sponsored by the Latin American Studies Committee of ECU, the symposium will have as guest speakers, Ing. Guillermo P. Salas, Director, Department of Non-Renewable Resources, Mexico, and Dr. Stanley Riggs of the Geology Deopartment, ECU.

As part of the symposium, a special film program will be shown on Tuesday, May 6, beginning at 1 p.m. with four films being shown — "The Turtle People;" "Maya Family Today;" "Mexican Fishing Village;" and "The Mayan Mystery."

Both the Tuesday films and the three Wednesday sessions of the symposium will be held in Room 244 of the Mendenhall Student Center.

Ing. Salas will speak at two sessions. At 10 a.m. he will talk on the subject "Energy Problems of Mexico;" and at 8 p.m. on Wednesday his topic will be "The Petroleum Industry of Mexico." Dr. Riggs will speak at 2 p.m. on the subject "New Mineral Wealth: Key to Brazil's Future Development."

Ing. Salas is an internationally known geologist and occupies a position in the Mexican government that is generally the equivalent of that of the Director of the U.S. Geological Survey.

In his morning talk, he will elaborate on energy available in Mexico, the development of this energy; and approaches that will be used by the Mexican government to solve its future energy problems. In his evening talk, the Mexican geologist will outline the histroy of petroleum exploration in Mexico, from the discovery of the Golden Lane Oil Fields on the Vera Cruz region to the reported recent discovery of a huge oil field in the Chiapas region.

ECU's Dr. Riggs recently returned from a trip to Brazil where he met with business and government officials and spent considerable time studying the geological formations of the country in relation to sedimentary phosphorites.

Dr. Riggs is currentlky on leave from ECU to do research in delineating geological formations in Brazil, Columbia, Mexico, South Africa, Southwest Africa, the countries of the West Africian coast, several Mediterranean countries, and various regions within the United States.

In previous work, Dr. Riggs was involved in extensive geological research on Roanoke Island and the Outer Banks.

All sessions of the Latin American Symposium, including the films on Tuesday, are open to the public without charge.

PROFITS UP

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California farmers received a record $8.5 billion for their products in 1974, up 18 per cent from 1973, the state Food and Agriculture Department reported.

Latter Day Saints Forming Genealogical Film Library

Every day in more than 20 countries around the world, operators of 70 microfilm cameras are at work adding to the collection of the Genealogical Society of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. The cameras are at work filming records such as parish registers, census rolls, wills and deeds. This year for the first time cameras are in Taiwan. Six cameras are already at work in France, 13 in the United States.

At the present, with nearly 1,000,000 microfilm rolls in the collection, the society's holdings are growing at the rate of approximately 4,000 rolls per month.

Before the microfilmers start work, a good deal of research has to be done in a country to find out which records are the most complete. In countries in which a state church has existed for many centuries, the church records usually offer the most complete record. In other countries the problem is to find out which civil records are the most complete.

After each roll of microfilm is complete it is sent back to the Society's central processing department located beneath a granite mountain 20 miles from downtown Salt Lake City.

In order to make sure that the valuable microfilm collection is secure from natural disaster and that it is stored in perfect conditions of temperature and humidity, the Genealogical Society constructed an immense storage vault and processing center beneath 700 feet of granite in Little Cottonwood Canyou.

The Latter-day Saints processes more genealogical rolls of microfilm than any other group. In fact, the church is the fourth largest user of microfilm in the world.

ANNOUNCING

THE LAST PHASE OF UNIVERSITY CONDOMINIUMS
will go on the market May 15, 1975

This will be the last of these remarkably priced homes. We won't be building more because it would be foolish to ask the sales price that new construction necessitates after we've just sold most of these completely redecorated Condominiums at only:

In fact, we still have a few left at that price until May 15, 1975. $19,500.00 is a remarkable price considering what you get: A two bedroom, bath and ½, layout in antique brick with new shag carpeting and congoleumn; air-conditioned, private patio, dishwasher, range, refrigerator and pool. We also have 95 per cent financing with monthly payments at approximately $180.00.

Offer Screening To New Pupils

During the week of May 5-9, all children planning to enter first grade in 1975 will have an opportunity to participate in a special learning disability screening program.

The program is being co-sponsored by the Greenville Kiwanis Club and Greenville City Schools in cooperation with the Department of Special Education at East Carolina University.

The Kiwanis Club will furnish approximately 30 volunteers to assist in the screening program, which is deisgned to help identify the learning styles of young children so that future learning problems can be prevented.

The screening will take approximately one hour, it was pointed out, with each child rotating through six learning stations designed to measure specific tasks related to learning. Information gained about each child will be shared with the parents.

Schedule for the screening includes: May 5, Elmhurst; May 6, Wahl-Coates; May 7, Third Street School; May 8, South Greenville; and May 9, Eastern Elementary. All screening sessions are scheduled from 8:45 a.m. until 12 noon.

Persons desiring additional information should contact any of the elementary schools or Mrs. George Coffman, chairman of the Parents' Education of Learning Disability, at 752-4564.

Polled As To Chosen Fields

NEW YORK (UPI) — If Americans had a choice of occupation, they'd rather work in television, the telephone industry or public relations more than anything else, according to an article in The National Enquirer.

In a recent Roper Poll, pollsters gave interviewees a list of 13 different work fields and asked them to choose the two or three fields in which they'd prefer to work.

Thirty per cent chose TV, 26 per cent picked phone companies and 26 per cent also selected public relations.

The prefix Mac in Scottish and Irish names means "son of."

Adults, Too, Seek Orthodontic Treatment

By MARY GRACE MEGGINSON

RALEIGH — "Look who's wearing braces!"

Not the cute teen-ager next door, but her mother—or grandmother—or maybe dad—or even granddad!

Braces on the teeth of modern-day youngsters have become commonplace. Now, their elders are realizing that it is not too late to straighten their own crooked teeth, to correct overbites and strong chins.

Adults are seeking orthodontic treatment to improve their appearance both facially and orally, and to improve their oral health. Orthodontic treatment can be an important factor in preventing periodontal (gum) disease, which is one of the major causes of tooth loss in adults, they have learned.

Orthodontists agree that a person with crooked teeth can maintain a healthy mouth—but point out that such persons must spend more time on daily care and must expect to make more frequent visits to the dentist than the person with straight teeth.

Many people do not know that orthodontics can be accomplished for adults and frequently they learn that it is being done when one of their children is having orthodontic treatment.

Teeth can be straightened at any age, providing bone support in the jaw is healthy enough to have the teeth in it moved, orthodontists explain. Bone is one of the most plastic (pliable) substances in the body when proper pressures are applied, they point out.

One orthodontist interviewed stated that about one-fifth of his patients are adults and that the oldest he has ever treated was 63 years of age. The percentage of adult orthodontics being done varies with geographic location.

Motivation is of prime importance in treating orthodontic patients and the adult patient seeking treatment is usually motivated before his first appointment. This is definitely in his favor. A maximum result cannot be obtained in orthodontic treatment without patient cooperation, whether the patient is a child or an adult, orthodontists explain.

Since growth is over for adult patients, some of the principles involved in treatment differ from those used for children. Adult patients usually adjust well to having braces on their teeth, the specialists note.

Plastic brackets, which are now being used in selected cases, are less noticable than metal and are popular with adult patients. However, for some problems they are not strong enough to withstand the types of pressures needed.

When orthodontic treatment is completed for the adult patient, the patient often exclaims, "I never imagined my teeth could feel so good coming together!"

Mrs. Lilliam Bezgela, of 351 Forsyth St., Raleigh, who completed treatment for a protruding chin about the time she reached her 50th birthday, admitted to being apprehensive when she first consulted the orthodontist. She states emphatically that she has found a new dimension of growth—not only in appearance but in her future.

Mrs. Charlie Mae Aderholdt, of 1205-A Huntington Park, Hickory, had lived with an "overbite" since childhood. Starting orthodontic treatment at age 23, she wore braces for the next three years. She had felt there might be some embarassment in wearing braces, but she found it was far less than the embarassment of having abnormal teeth.

Not all orthodontics is accomplished by movement of teeth by routine mechanical means. Surgical procedures are being used to move teeth with the supporting bone structure, as a unit, into new positions within the mouth. This usually requires several days of hospitalization. Correcting a prominent lower jaw or severe protrusion can involve the oral surgeon as well as the orthodontist.

Orthodontists point out that there is usually a cause for teeth being where they are. Many problems are due to genetics; others are created by habits of which the patient may not even be aware. One of the tasks of the orthodontist is to identify the habit.

Teeth are just as variable as any other organ in the body, the orthodontists point out. They are constantly under movement, constantly undergoing changes. Changes can occur after the orthodontic treatment is completed and braces are removed, but major relapses are usually associated with remaining unbroken habit or a new habit associated with [illegible] teeth, it was explained. Practically all orthodontic patients must wear retainers for some time after braces are removed, it was noted.

The cost? It usually ranges from $300 to $2,000, depending upon the problems, treatment, and time involved.

Spa Is For The Affluent

By MARCIA O. BURG

NEW YORK (WNS)—Inflation has hit some segments of the world population in the hips, instead of the hip pocket. And to shed the excess poundage, some females of this species make intermittent pilgrimages to a spa in Arlington, Tex., called The Greenhouse.

Located between Dallas and Fort Worth, the elegant retreat helps the famous and affluent shed a bit of bloat or sometimes accrue some curves, or unwind from chores associated with organization of civic projects, fund-raising drives, hectic professional engagements, or whirlwind social seasons.

Princess Grace of Monaco was listed in the guests books and shown in photos. And Lady Bird Johnson's turn was imminent, food editors recently given the grand tour were told.

Daily meals served to Greenhouse guests are low calorie—850. But the weekly fee could mean living high off the hog for many a man for many a moon. For $1,500 weekly, sojourning ladies don yellow loungewear, dubbed the "yellow robes of Texas," sleep in lush coral, green or beige rooms, soak in sunken marble tubs, laze in a bowered solarium, bake aches away in a sauna, and tone muscles in and around indoor and outdoor pools.

The regimen also includes massages, facials, makeup and hair care advice by experts from Charles of the Ritz, Greenhouse co-director with Neiman-Marcus stores, under Great Southwestern Corp. ownership.

Mrs. Stanley Marcus, slim and striking in an old Chinese ivory-ball necklace, served as hostess to visiting newspaperwomen, as Helen Corbitt, menu creator at the Greenhouse outlined the program.

The goal of a stay at this oasis is a newly beautiful and relaxed individual, resulting from privacy, serenity and minimum demand on physical and mental capacities.

For a week or two, a maximum of 36 women at a time reputedly have their whims gratified by "85 international specialists." Tony Beck is one of these—a mere slip of an attractive 49-year-old female choreographer, whose "splits and crosses" pelvic lifts, water jogs and heel clicks are executed by clients to tunes such as "Mrs. Robinson" and "This Guy's In Love With You," daytimes.

Post-dinner pastimes might include a fashion show; play readings by college drama students' bingo, or presentations on art, astrology, investments, precious jewels, wine, or yoga.

And one evening is devoted to a shopping expedition of Neiman-Marcus in Dallas, in company with a fashion adviser, for consultation and to expedite delivery of purchases.

But every day begins with breakfast in bed and progresses through luncheon near the pool; three o'clock snack; nonalcoholic cocktails.

Bloody Shame or Virtuous Bull—tomato or consomme bases with slimming nibbles, and lean meats and fresh vegetables for dinner.

Responsible for planning menus is Miss Corbitt, author of four cookbooks, former restaurant director and current food consultant for the Neiman-Marcus chain. She's been called the "Balenciaga of Food" and was awarded the "Golden Plate" from the food service industry and the Escoffier Gold Plaque of the Confrerie de la Chaine des Rotisseurs.

Miss Corbit is remarkable, but withal her girth betrays her probable preference for "Avocado Butter" or "Lobster and Chicken a la Creme," which appear in "Helen Corbitt Cooks for Company," rather than potassium broth, made of vegetable peelings, or incredibly thin, lacy Melba toast fed to women intent on not casting a shadow when they leave The Greenhouse.

Her 1967 book, "Helen Corbitts Cooks for Looks," in its 27th printing, was based on low-cal recipes which spa clients could duplicate at home. "Yogurt Soup" is one such light bite which is served there in cups from any of seven sets of fine china.

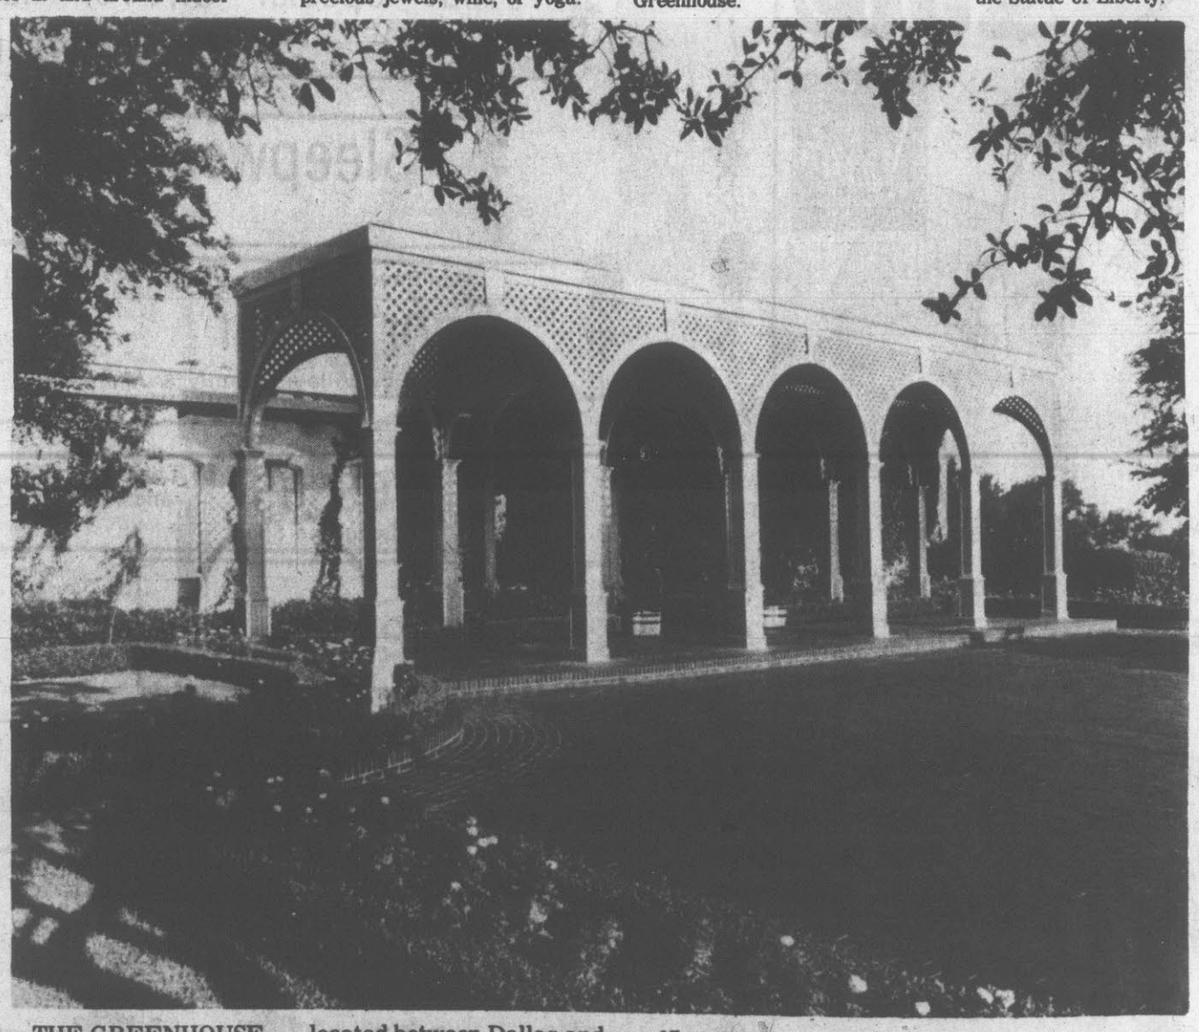
Greenhouse Yogurt Soup

Soak one-quarter cup raisins in 1 cup cold water till puffed. Combine 3 cups yogurt in bowl with one-quarter cup skim milk, 1 chopped hardcooked egg; 6 ice cubes; one-quarter cup cucumber and 2 tablespoons green onion, finely chopped. Stir well, add raisins with soaking water and refrigerate. Serve with chopped parsley and dill. Season if desired.

The Greenhouse, a "beautiful escape from the madding crowd," as its brochure trills, is one of several luxury beauty cloisters in the country.

Others are Elizabeth Arden's Maine Chance, Phoenix, Ariz., and the Golden Door, Escondido, Calif. They cater to the tired—and on that 850-calorie diet, probably the hungry.

But that's probably not the "golden door" American poetess, Emma Lazarus, meant, when she wrote "Give me your tired . . . I lift my lamp beside the golden door," inscribed on the Statue of Liberty.



THE GREENHOUSE . . . located between Dallas and Fort Worth, is the elegant retreat for the famous and affluent.

A Poem To The Dentist Expresses Her Happiness

Dr. Ledyard Ross, a local orthodontist, has framed in his office a warm and amusing poem by Carol Ann Tucker, associate director of the ECU Regional Drug Program here.

Miss Tucker tells how "together" her teeth are now and thanks Dr. Ross profusely for the change in her appearance. "I had told myself I was over my childhood self-consciousness about the space between from upper front teeth," she said, "but now that I've had the treatment, which took only 193 days, I know I must have been more sensitive than I realized. I love the change anyway and am so delighted with the new me."

Dr. Ross says about 8 to 9 per cent of his patients are adults and the number is increasing all the time. He is one of two full-time orthodontists in Greenville. The other is Dr. Dan Warren, and Dr. Kenneth Manning of Washington, N.C. sees patients here one day a week.

Adult treatment is increasing all the time, but many times it's partial rather than complete," Dr. Ross said. Often it's for correction in conjunction with dental work, though some like Carol Ann do it to improve appearance.

Mrs. Evelyn Spangler, a home extension agent here, and Mrs. Evelyn Carmichael, a nursing student at Pitt Technical Institute, are two others who tell of their delight with the changes Dr. Ross has made in their appearances.

Mrs. Spangler had full orthodontics done 12 years after she had been married. She said she was self-conscious about being "wired up" only for about a week. "People were curious," she said, "but it was a friendly curiosity. I even got to where I could keep my composure and laugh when a rubber band would shoot from my mouth clear across the room."

Mrs. Carmichael had correction just to her upper teeth. Now she's at the stage of wearing a retainer only at night and in private. "I'm thrilled," she said of the orthodontist's ridding of what she felt was a not-so-attractive overbite.

Most of Dr. Ross's patients

are women, but a few men also elect to wear braces on their teeth, "I had a six-foot father of three in the chair yesterday," he said.

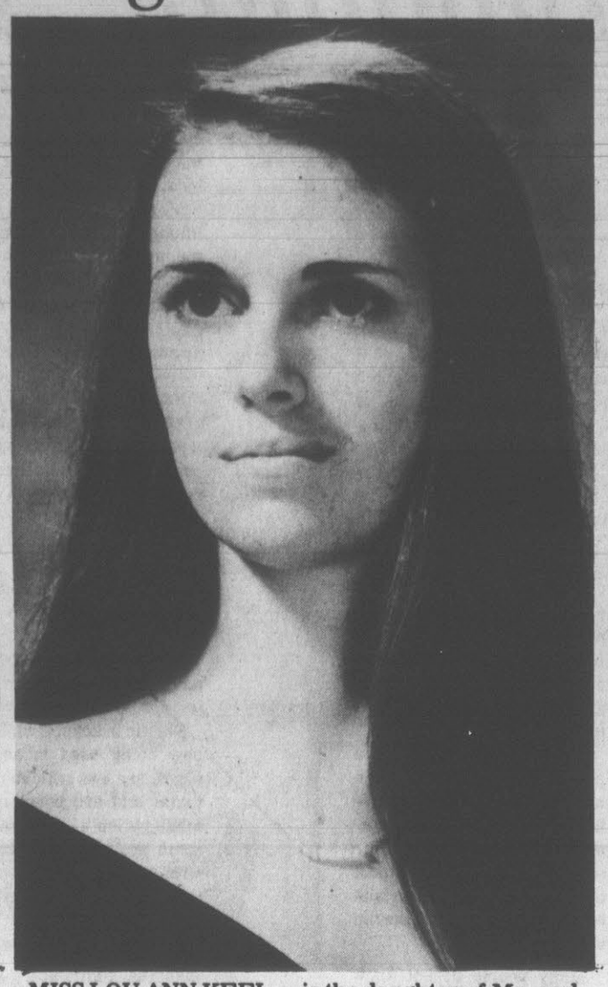
Summertime Wedding Are Planned By Brides-Elect

MISS DEBRA LOU HARDEE. . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon R. Hardee of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Ronnie Wayne Leggett, son of Mrs. Lillie Daniels Grabowski and Mr. James Robert Leggett, both of Greenville. The wedding will take place Aug. 15.



MISS LOU ANN KEEL. . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Carroll Keel of Oak City, who announce her engagement to Kenneth Lee Tetterton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orlander Bowen Tetterton of Bethel. The wedding will take place in June.

MISS SHERI ANN MOSLEY. . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leslie Mosley of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Terry Eugene Strickland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Green Strickland of Grimesland. The wedding will take place Aug. 3.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

Summer weddings are being planned by Sally Chance and Bill Holland and Cathy Hudson and Paul Schiffel.

Sally and Bill will exchange wedding vows July 12 in the First Presbyterian Church chapel, Greensboro. The Mt. Gilead Christian Church, Louisburg, will be the scene of the Aug. 30 wedding of Cathy and Paul.

Sally will graduate from Western Carolina University, Cullowhee, in June with a B.S. in speech and hearing. She was a member of Kappa Alpha Little Sisters. Her fiance graduated from Western Carolina with a B.S. in finance and was a member of Kappa Alpha Order. He is now a B.S. in finance and was a member of Kappa Alpha Order. He is now employed with the Veteran's Administration.

Cathy and Paul are students at ECU, she is majoring in special education and is a student aid for the dean of women. Paul, a physical education major, is a member of the ECU Swimming Team and is a member of Phi Epsilon Kappa, professional fraternity.

Turning designer sheets into bicentennial costumes has caught the attention of students and faculty in the School of Home Economics at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

The group has been designing and sewing four costumes for the characters of a musical "Oh, Penelope!," which will be on tour throughout the state during 1975-76. The bicentennial play is based on the leading figure of the Edenton Tea Party in North Carolina. It was written by Mrs. Susan Graham Erwin of Charlotte and the music composed by Mrs. Rose Marie Cooper Jordan, a doctoral student in child development at UNC-G.

Estimating that 90-100 woman-hours were spent on the design and construction of each costume, Ms. Peyton Clark, a lecturer in clothing and textiles at UNC-G, described the school and community project.

"One of our students told us about some Smithsonian fabric copies of old textiles made during the Revolutionary period," she said. "Fieldcrest Mills produced a line of five patterns called the American Treasures Collection. These sheets are authentic copies of the designs created during this period. One is a copy of an actual patchwork quilt sewn by an 11-year-old girl during that time."

The costumes have already been used in the play at Tryon Palace, in two fashion shows, and in front of 1,000 school children in Eden.

SAFETY TIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you have a gas, kerosene or oil space heater have it inspected regularly to insure adjustments are proper and the equipment is clean.

Annual Banquet Is Announced

VANCEBORO—The 55th annual banquet and dance of the Farm Life School Alumni Association in Vanceboro will meet Friday, May 9 at 7 p.m.

The dinner will be served in the Farm Life School cafeteria and the dance will be held in the school gymnasium, beginning at 9 p.m. Music for the dance will be provided by "The Traveling Band."

This will be the 50th year reunion of the graduating class of 1925. Special recognition will be given these alumni and tables will be reserved for classes of 1925, 1935, 1945, 1955, and 1965.

Roy Rowe of Raleigh, principal clerk of the N. C. Senate, will be the keynote speaker. Mrs. Colvin Joyner will discuss her book on the history of the Farm Life School and the Town of Vanceboro.

Peggie Mills is in charge of the program.

No invitation cards have been mailed to the alumni this year.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

It was bound to happen.

Yesterday, I blacked out from an overdose of lemon.

Ever since manufacturers of everything discovered lemon had a fresh, clean smell, my nose has been on the verge of puckering.

It started out as one of those typical, average days in the life of a housewife. I ran my lemon deodorizer up the flag to see who could salute it, swished my dishes through lemony suds, damp mopped my floor with lemon-scented ammonia and spread a smooth coat of lemon wax on it.

I gave the furniture a spritz of lemon wax, and took the prints off the picture window with my lemon window cleaner.

Everything was so fresh and clean smelling I thought I was going to be sick, so I called Mayva and made plans for lunch.

Stepping into the shower, I lathered up with lemon soap and washed my hair with lemon essence and climbed into the car which was a lemon before lemons came into style.

Mayva had already ordered me a lemon diet drink and blew lemon menthol cigarette smoke into my face all during lunch. After lunch, I popped a lemon sour breath mint into my mouth and we shopped for about an hour before I knew I must return to my lemon dream cottage.

There was no escaping. I went out to sit by the garbage cans. They had been sprayed with lemon. I put my head in the oven. It had been cleaned with lemon foam. I turned on TV. Graham Kerr was arranging lemon slices around a flounder.

When my husband came home I was propped up in a chair mumbling to myself.

"What's wrong?" he asked pecking me on the cheek and nearly knocking me out with his lemon after-shave lotion.

"I want to smell dirt again," I said, "do you understand? Good old-fashioned musty, rancid, greasy, baked-on dirt. And I want to smell hair with a wet possum aroma and shoes that smell like feet, and chairs that

AFTERNOON TEA
Apricot Loaf Tea

APRICOT LOAF

One of the best quick breads we've come upon.

2 cups flour, stir to aerate before measuring
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup finely chopped dried apricots
1 cup warm water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup brandy
¾ cup coarsely chopped walnuts

Stir together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Soak the chopped apricots in the warm water for about 15 minutes; drain apricots and discard liquid. Beat together the butter, sugar and egg; add orange rind, orange juice and brandy and beat to blend. Add flour mixture and stir only until it is moistened. Fold in drained chopped apricots and walnuts. Turn into a greased 9 by 5 by 3 inch loaf pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 60 to 65 minutes. Place pan on wire rack to cool for 10 minutes; loosen edges and turn out; turn right side up; cool completely before cutting. To soften crust and make slicing easiest, wrap in plastic wrap and let stand 4 to 6 hours before slicing. Serve with or without butter.

Denim is a classic for sportswear, but this season's look is a faded, worn one instead of the traditional deep indigo.

Adopt Brother And Sister And Look For Love, Not Trouble

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 29, and my husband is 33. We are unable to have children of our own and want to adopt, and have our names in at a very reliable adoption agency.

We would prefer a very young infant but are told that it could be a long wait. We have been offered a brother and sister, ages 5 and 6, but friends have told us that we shouldn't consider children who are that old. They say that children of that age are usually emotionally damaged and that we would be looking for trouble. We can easily care for those two and want them.

What is your feeling about this? We trust you.

LOVES CHILDREN

DEAR LOVES: If you are "looking for trouble," you will find it. If you are looking for love, you will find it. Your signature says as much as your letter. Take the brother and sister. No one has a guarantee against having emotionally damaged children, even when they have children "of their own."

DEAR ABBY: I am the oldest of five children. Four years ago, both of my parents smoked about three packs of cigarettes a day. One day my father decided to quit cold turkey. He also proclaimed that my mother was going to quit, too.

Well, my father really quit, but my mother didn't. She said she did, but she used to sneak cigarettes behind everybody's backs. She wasn't fooling Dad. He knew it, but he made all of us policemen, and he was the chief.

We felt bad ratting on Mom, because she sometimes keeps things we do a secret from Dad because he is a violent man and she wants to protect us.

We believe Mom should quit smoking, but we can't do anything about it. We've now sided with Mom because Dad has threatened to send her to her mother if she smokes another cigarette.

We don't want our home broken up. What should we do?

CIGARETTE PROBLEM

DEAR PROBLEM: It's unfair of your father to ask you to inform on your mother. He should know that nicotine is strongly addictive and some smokers can't be cured by nagging or threats. Lay off Mom; she's trying to quit. If she succeeds, it will be her victory over herself, not your dad's—or yours.

DEAR ABBY: Two weeks ago I met a man to whom I was very much attracted. I gave him my phone number, and he said he would call me.

I waited a week, and he didn't call, so I got his phone number and called him. He seemed glad to hear from me, and he asked me out. I had a fabulous time. I gave him my number again to be sure he had it, and he said I'd be hearing from him. Well, it's been a week, and he hasn't called.

I don't like running after a man, but if I wait for his call, he may never call me, and I really want to see him again.

How do men feel about women calling them?

IMPATIENT

DEAR IMP: Some men enjoy being pursued, but most do not. I think it's his turn to call you.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Nun Is A Lobbyist

By KENNETH T. WALSH
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — Sister Loretto Anne Madden is apparently the first nun to be a registered lobbyist in Colorado.

Sister Loretto, lobbyist for the Colorado Catholic Conference doesn't think there's any conflict between her religious vocation and her worldly role.

"Part of the Christian vocation is to be aware of what's going on in the world," she said.

"Man's salvation is really going to be worked out in the temporal order. There are inhuman conditions in the world that keep people from living human lives."

Sister Loretto first registered as a lobbyist last year and focuses on what she calls "quality of life issues," such as hunger, food stamps and insurance for newborn babies.

She's normally at the Capitol at about 8 each morning after attending Mass and saying the rosary. She attends a committee meeting and sometimes talks to legislators from the House and Senate in the anterooms where the lobbyists generally wait to collar lawmakers.

Sister Loretto, 52, tries to be low-key and doesn't wear a formal habit.

"I would be a holy show," she said, noting that customs for nuns have changed.

"Today it's the time to be as unobtrusive as possible, especially as a lobbyist." Sister Loretto normally wears a simple dress to the Statehouse.

A member of the Sisters of Loretto, she holds a doctorate in sociology and taught for 19 years at Denver's Loretto Heights College.

"Last year I was learning the ropes," she said. "The state legislature is a lot more strenuous place than I envisioned it to be."

Some people think of lobbyists as "not always above board," the slim, soft-spoken nun said. But she's found them to be "very high-type people."

She receives the standard sister's salary of $5,200 per year and gets nothing extra for her lobbying job, which she says is to "represent the needs of people who can't afford a lobbyist up here."

"At one time the idea was that the church was only interested in fighting abortion or promoting aid to parochial schools," Sister Loretto said. "Some think we still should be solely concerned with that. But my interests are broader."

smell like leather and bodies that sweat and refrigerators tainted with cantaloupe."

"Now, now," he said patting my hand, "you're going to be all right. It's been a bad day. You just sit there and relax and I'll bring you a nice, cold lemonade."

That's when I passed out. . . cold.

ART STUDENTS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Students of painting, sculpture and the graphic arts, along with the professional artists who train them, will participate in a visuul arts program supported by the Ford Foundation.

Grants totaling $4,054,650 were made to 34 institutions, independent schools of art, colleges and universities with strong studio art departments, and a few atelier schools that concentrate on studio work but do not offer a degree.

The funds will be used for scholarships for art students and for fellowships for artist-teachers to enable them to concentrate on their own creative work, on or off campus.

Couple Weds Friday In Candlelight Ceremony

Miss Linda Carol Speight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence R. Speight of Farmville, became the bride of Glenn Harris Warren, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Jack Warren of Greenville, in a candlelight ceremony Friday at 8:00 p.m. The ceremony took place at the First Free Will Baptist Church.

The Rev. Robert G. Hufford performed the double ring ceremony. Prior to the ceremony, a program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Ruth Taylor and Miss Dianne Griffis, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal length white organza gown designed with a high neckline encircled with white Venise lace. The empire bodice featured a sheer yoke edged in tiny seed pearls. The long, puffy sleeves were edged in the Venise lace flowers and the waistline and hemline were trimmed in the matching Venise lace. The modified A -line skirt featured appliques of Venise lace.

She wore an imported white woven rattan straw garden hat threaded with rows of white satin ribbon, featuring bows and streamers in back. She carried a cascade bouquet of white majestic daisies and baby's breath, centered with a corsage of white sweetheart roses, featured with white bridal satin and greenery.

Mrs. L. Martin Tyson of Farmville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She was dressed in a buttercup yellow floral floor length gown of jersey knit. The gown was fashioned empire with short puffed sleeves. She carried a bouquet of spring flowers with a lighted candle in the center, tied with streamers of yellow satin ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Miss Marsha Louise Warren, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Rachel Lea Patterson, both of Greenville, and Miss Debbie Keel of Farmville. Their dresses were styled identical to the matron of honor in powder blue, floral jersey knit. They carried bouquets of spring flowers with the lighted candle in the center, tied with powder blue streamers.

MRS. GLENN HARRIS WARREN

The flower girl was Miss Meloney Owens of Chesapeake, Va., cousin of the bride. Her dress was styled identical to the bridesmaids, with butterfly sleeves and empire waist. She carried a basket of spring flowers.

The bridegroom's father, T. Jack Warren, served as best man. Ushers were Tracy Jackson Warren, Gary Lew Warren, brothers of the bridegroom, Henry Stith Harris, all of Greenville, and L. Martin Tyson, brother-in-law of the bride, of Farmville. The ring bearer was Todd Owens, cousin of the bride, of Chesapeake, Va.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents at the church. Miss Laura Owens of Chesapeake, Va., cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register.

Ms. Patty Dunn poured punch and Mrs. Ann Owens, aunt of the bride, served the wedding cake. The refreshment table was covered with a white organza and lace cloth completmented with spring flowers.

For a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the bride wore a beige linen pants suit and corsage of white sweetheart roses. The couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and Lenoir Community College. She is employed at the I County Mental Health Cent The bridegroom is a graduate J. H. Rose High School. He affiliated with Proctors Limi and is in partnership at F mer's Warehouse, Greenvi

The bridegroom's pare entertained at an aft rehearsal dinner held at Holiday Inn for the wedd party, relatives of the bri couple and out-of-town gue

Odds Against Her

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — Rhona Lyle is a pretty brunette of 29 given a good chance of becoming the first woman to manage a major gambling establishment in Britain.

But, as they say in her profession, the odds are against her. The world of high play for high stakes has been peopled exclusively by male executives since gambling became legal in this country.

There are plenty of women croupiers and even a small handful (of which she is one) capable of acting as "chef de parties" for baccarat, one of the games at which fortunes change hands most frequently in London.

But no woman has yet been given an establishment of her own, and for some reason it's a field that the women libbers have completely overlooked in their drive for equality of opportunity.

Miss Lyle, who is more billowy than willowy, is not interested in women's lib as such.

"In an industry in which a small mistake, a small error of judgment, can cost thousands of pounds, advancement must be by ability and not by sex," she said. "When the time is ripe I think I'll be up for promotion, and until then I'm learning all the time in my present post."

Recently Miss Lyle advanced a giant step by receiving a license in club management from the British Gaming Board. She also considers herself to be lucky to be working for the vast Ladbroke organization, which has a number of casinos.

(It's diversified activities grossed $600 million in 1974 of which $24 million was profit.)

"A good club manager," said Miss Lyle at the Ladbroke De Vere Club where she is Social Secretary, "needs a photographic memory for faces, an instinct for phonies and a good head for figures. Hiring and firing comes into it, too, but I picked up that experience at another club three years ago."

How can she tell a phony?

"My nose twitches," said Miss Lyle.

Urges Planning Urban America

BOSTON (AP) — The hope for a livable urban America is riding on regional cities such as Kansas City — not Los Angeles, New York or Newark, says a leading urbanologist.

Dr. Charles N. Kimball, president of Midwest Research Institute in Kansas City, warned a group of Boston businessmen "Whether our children see their country in terms of America the Beautiful or West Side Story is our choice."

Kimball said that most Americans are "chilled" by predictions that the U.S. will be 85 per cent urbanized, and have 50 million additional people by the turn of the century.

"It's time to ask ourselves," he suggested, "not only where, but more important, how our children are going to live in 1999."

The scientist, who is credited with playing a major role in the renaissance of Kansas City, rejected the idea that the nation must build 100 new cities to meet its projected population needs.

"It's impossible," he added, "to build a new Boston, Kansas City, or Minneapolis — no matter how much money you have to spend."

According to Kimball, America's major regional cities must begin to play a much larger role in the urban challenge that faces the country. He pointed out that there are 75 metropolitan areas in the U.S. with a population of under 1.5 million that are capable of housing the next generation without destroying the quality of life they now enjoy. "Unfortunately," he added, "few are prepared to meet this challenge."

He said Kansas City's $5.3-billion urban renaissance — 75 per cent of which is privately funded — is evidence of that city's commitment to planned, orderly growth without sacrificing its quality of life.

Inflation Woes Mount For Philippines People

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN

MANILA (AP) — Inflation means Luz Femina Aragon, 14, spends fewer days in school.

Inflation means Luz and her seven brothers and sisters more often fill up only on rice or corn their mother thinks is fit only to feed pigs.

Inflation makes a daily newspaper for her father a forbidding luxury, a radio for the family out of the question.

Inflation means her father, Bonifacio, worn but still buoyant at 44, may have to leave his family to get a job at sea to earn the money he wants to support them.

As a driver for a Manila oil company executive, Aragon earns 300 pesos monthly. That is worth 42 U.S. dollars. A middle class American family will spend that much one Saturday afternoon at the shopping center supermarket.

On the same amount, Aragon, his wife and their eight children live for a month.

"Before, a year ago," said Aragon's wife, Honorata Montalban, "things were a little bit loose. Now, we are pushed about as far as we can go. We can barely keep our kids in school."

She and her husband spoke through an interpreter in their native dialect from the Visayan Islands in the central Philippines. She has had a fourth grade education; Aragon went through second year high school.

"Now, Luz has to miss school," she continued, "because she goes around to our relatives asking what they can give to us."

The Aragons are squatters. For a decade they have lived in a two-room house built by Aragon and friends of packing crate wood in a neighborhood of shanties in the Tatalon section of Quezon City, which neighbors Manila and is the official if unsung capital of the Philippines.

Rice is their major expenditure. Mrs. Aragon spends almost two-thirds of the family income — $27.60 — for rice or corn, enough to give each of her children six ounces of rice a meal, two meals daily, for a month.

Luz, the eldest and the only high school student, eats lunch at school from the change of her daily peso from which she also pays jeepney fare of 40 centavos, six cents.

Aragon spends a peso a day to get to his job. Between him and the girl, they spend another 50 pesos or so monthly.

The rest of the money goes for fuel, salt, sugar and delis, or tiny dried fish which provides some flavor for the rice or corn. Mrs. Aragon used to buy pork or beef on the 15th and 30th of the month — pay days — but now she doesn't. The Aragons make a local variety of coffee from corn. It saves them money.

Hazardous Trip On Steamboats

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cry "Steamboat a-comin'" often echoed back, "Steamboat a-sinkin'."

Early travel on the vessels was at best hazardous. Undredged rivers were shallow and the boats were threatened with grounding and swift destruction of hulls on hidden snags. Passengers also risked fire and explosion of poorly tended boilers.

During the whole of their romantic era, the average steamboat rarely lasted more than five years, according to the National Geographic Society.

Found Oldest Mayan Pyramid

DALLAS (UPI) — An archaeological team at Southern Methodist University says it has found the oldest and largest Maya pyramid yet discovered.

The team says the pyramid was found in Belize, formerly British Honduras, and is approximately 12 stories tall. The archaeologists also believe there may be two more similar pyramids which in conjunction with the first once formed a religious complex.

Hunts Bobcats When Off Duty

LAVERNE, Okla. (UPI) — When he isn't chasing speeders or law offenders in the Oklahoma Panhandle, highway patrolman Robert Snider is stalking bobcats.

"There are a lot of bobcats in this Panhandle country and they prey heavily on our quail population," Snider said. "So I don't feel so bad when I help decrease the bobcat population once in a while."

CROWN SUCCESSOR — Karen Morris, America's Junior Miss 1974, who hails from Cheyenne, Wyoming, will crown the new titleholder on the 18th annual "America's Junior Miss Pageant" to be broadcast live from Mobile, Alabama, Monday, May 5 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

Everybody Said 'He's Flipped'

Everyone laughed when Flip Wilson trod the boards in a school play at age nine. They weren't supposed to — but he literally brought the house down as a last-minute replacement for a little girl who had been cast as Nurse Clara Barton.

Flip was never happier in his life than that day when he discovered the sheer pleasure of provoking laughter. Sidetracked by a near tragic childhood in which the chuckles were few and far between he didn't truly pursue the comedy game until he dropped out of school at 16 and dropped into the Air Force. Betwixt more soldierly chores, Flip found himself on a military lecture circuit where he gave himself over to discourses on such weighty subjects as The Sex Life of a Coconut Crab — and garnered the nickname "Flip" in the process.

"The guys used to listen and say — 'he's flipped,'" admits Flip.

Guys and gals alike will 'flip' again Wednesday, May 7, when Flip's fourth and final special of the season airs on NBC and Channel 6-7 from 9:00 to 10:00 p.m.

Songs and comedy sketches will highlight "The Flip Wilson Special," with guest stars Cher, Richard Pryor, Kenny Rankin and McLean Stevenson.

Flip does his opening monologue, followed by a basketball sketch, with Stevenson portraying a college scout. Flip amd Marie Bryant play the parents of a talented high school basketball player (Pryor). Stevenson comes to ink him to a contract, but finds a rather strange household.

Next, Cher sings "Bell Bottom Blues," followed by a pawnshop sketch, featuring Flip as the proprietor and Pryor as a n'er-do-well promoting some money.

Flip and Stevenson have some humorous reparte, Rankin sings "Blackbird," then teams with Flip for "Your Cheatin' Heart."

The special concludes with a charm school sketch, with Geraldine running the place, Cher applying for a job, and Stevenson as their customer.

Flip tends to be modest about his success in show business. It began, he says, with an appearance on "The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson" in 1965. Then came a series of important guestings over the next few years, followed by his own special in 1969. The special led to his weekly series which ran for four well-received years on NBC-TV. He also admits to being a long-range planner of sorts with projects on the drawing board for motion pictures, his Little David Records (named for his son) and even Broadway.

'THE FLIP WILSON SPECIAL' — Flip's fourth and final special of the season has guest stars Cher, Richard Pryor, Kenny Rankin and McLean Stevenson. Highlights include a sketch about Geraldine's charm school. The special will be televised Wednesday, May 7 (9-10 p.m.) on NBC Channel 6-7.

Landon Hosting Junior Misses

The 18th annual "America's Junior Miss Pageant," with high school seniors from all 50 states vying for the title, will be broadcast live from Mobile, Ala., with Michael Landon as host for the second consecutive year Monday, May 5, 9:00 to 10:00 p.m., on CBS and Ch. 9-11.

During the three nights of preliminary events, a panel of five judges will rate each of the 50 contestants, all high school seniors, on poise and appearance, youth fitness, scholastic achievement, creative and performing arts, and on a personal interview.

The judges are Dr. Taylor Smith, Chancellor of the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff; television star Gary Collins; Debi Faubion Batteiger, America's Junior Miss 1968; I. William Hill, retired associate editor of the Washington Star; and Mary Frann, America's Junior Miss 1961, who now appears in the daytime television program, "Days of Our Lives."

Karen Morris, America's Junior Miss 1974, will crown the new title-holder. Reflecting back on her tenure Karen says, "My year as a Junior Miss was an education in itself, and I'm sad to give it up."

Still, Miss Morris, the daughter of a Wyoming cattle rancher, is somewhat relieved that her reign which took her around the country is almost over. Her demanding schedule in the past year at times cut into her studies in speech pathology at the University of Wyoming.

"During my involvement with the program I was able to travel and meet many different groups of people," she says. She believes the Junior Miss competition can be a definite asset to young women who are studying for a career while broadening their scope of experience. After graduation, Miss Morris intends to work with retarded children.

So even though she is sad about giving up her crown and anxious to begin her career, Miss Morris is grateful for having the opportunity to be America's Junior Miss for a year.

"I intend to speak for the program whenever I can," she says. "If one is inactive after her reign is over, she defeats the purpose of the program."

Kirk Douglas A Tonight Host

Kirk Douglas, a leading motion picture actor for more than 20 years, will be guest host for the first time on NBC Television Network's "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" in May.

Ed McMahon and Doc Severinsen are scheduled to appear on the program with Douglas.

Newsreel Footage Added By 'Today'

NBC News' "Today" has added a new dimension to its programming on the NBC Television Network.

For a few minutes every other week, "Today" will become "Yesterday" as it looks at the past through the eyes of Fox-Movietone News — newsreel footage of the years 1918 to 1963. It will excerpt that footage and present it as it was shown in motion picture theaters throughout the country.

The new feature was launched Thursday, May 1, with a look backward to the week Adolf Hitler died. (The date of his death is April 30, 1945.)

The newsreel segments on "Today" run about five minutes. Each looks back at an event of that week: "40 Years Ago This Week," "35 Years Ago This Week," and so on.

By arrangement with Twentieth Century - Fox, "Today" will draw upon the vast Movietone library, which in this country contains not only the six million feet of released newsreel footage, but 100 million feet of outtakes. (Movietone, characteristically, may have released a two-minute segment of Winston Churchilll addressing the United States Congress, but its vaults also contain the 20 minutes of footage of the speech that were not used.) Further, Movietone's foreign libraries contain an additional 60 to 70 million feet. And more, the library has silent film dating back as far as the 1890s.

On Movietone sound film are the faces and voices of virtually all the leaders of the recent past, including Hitler, Chuchill, Mussolini, Stalin, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Gandhi, as well as such other outstanding figures as George Bernard Shaw and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, interviewed on sound film in 1927 — his last interview before his death.

Movietone, which started as the Fox silent newsreel in 1918, produced two newsreels a week for 44 years — some 4,576 episodes covering everything from wars to fashions and sports. In 1927, Movietone began to issue one silent newsreel and one sound newsreel each week.

CHANGE THE MOOD

If for one reason or another you have been dissatisfied with your living room, change the mood. There is more than one way to accomplish this and you don't have to start from scratch unless that's what you want to do. An accent piece added to the room can be what you have in mind, or perhaps a color change is really the thing to make the difference. If you are going all the way with new furniture, window treatment and carpeting, be sure you change the mood to suit your own.

We have a complete selection of quality carpeting to change the present mood in your home or place of business. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale."

THE MARENGO MODEL GT838

A stirring Spanish design, complete with bold, massive base, turned columns and simulated drawer with ornate pull. All are attractive accents in this outstanding model! And swivel casters are concealed in base.

Actor Directing Another Cause For Apprehension

JOIN FORCES— Dennis Cole (left) stars as a casino owner who joins forces with an undercover agent played by William Shatner, to expose wrongdoers in boomtown San Francisco, in "The Barbary Coast" a world premiere on the "ABC Sunday Night Movie" May 4 at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 3-5-12.

What does an actor feel when he learns that he is going to be directed by an actor?

"Apprehension."

The actor speaking was William Shatner as he looked across the huge stage that had been turned into the wild and woolly Golden Gate Casino in San Francisco during the 1870s. replete with scores of sailors. miners, fortune hunters and Can-Can girls.

In the middle of the organized chaos stood the actor-turned director, Bill Bixby.

"But," said Shatner," "Bill knows exactly what he is doing and he's doing it right."

The two Bills are the star and director of the world premiere two-hour motion picture, "Barbary Coast," to be presented on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," May 4, 8:30 to 10:30 p.m., in Ch. 3-5-12. Dennis Cole and Lynda Day George also star.

Shatner was quick to explain his apprehension: "I'm thinking of Bix," he said. "While I was doing 'Star Trek' I directed some of the episodes and I know what he's going through. So very much rides on the outcome of a production, especially one of the magnitude of 'Barbary Coast.' "

Shatner grinned and added. "The apprehension is overpowering because the thousands of minute details must be all brought to gether by the director.

"The biggest hangup for an actor who is directing, however, is the question: 'Am I seeing the scene through an actor's eyes — or a director's?

Will it fit all the other elements?' There is a battle going on in your mind because an actor always has his own interpretation of a scene, and many times that's in conflict with the director's thoughts.

Hollywood history is scarred by some great verbal brawls between temperamental stars and equally temperamental directors. Some have gone beyond being verbal and a director has clobbered his star. or vice versa.

"Fortunately," Shatner continued, "those were exceptions rather than the rule. And as soon as I can find the time and the right script, I'm going to be directing."

Danny Thomas In 'McCloud' Show

Danny Thomas guest-stars as a tailor who makes a big winning on the numbers but faces nothing but trouble trying to collect, in "Shivaree on Delancy Street," a two-hour "McCloud" drama, starring Dennis Weaver, on the "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" series May 4, 8:30 to 10:30 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

Sgt. Broadhurst (Terry Carter) is shot while staking out a numbers pick-up man who is slain and robbed of the day's bets. While fighting for his life, Broadhurst is investigated by Internal Affairs as a cop on the take, and Marshal McCloud (Weaver) tries to expose the obvious frame-up.

Despite Chief Clifford's (J.D. Cannon) orders, McCloud proceeds with the investigation and encounters a hot battle for control of the numbers racket between racketeer Johnny Amado (Ceasre Danove) and a slick hood named Justin (Lou Gossett). Tailor Marcus Rubin (Thomas) is caught up in the turbulent chain of events as he tries to collect his winnings.

The cast includes guest star Jack Kruschen as bookie - grocer Morris Selditz; Jessie Welles as Judy Rubin; Tracy Reed as Carol Broadhurst; Sally Kemp as Gloria Allison; and John Quade as Merle Koska.

Tense WWII Film Saturday

George Segal, Robert Vaughn, Ben Gazzara and E.G. Marshall star in "The Bridge at Remagen," a tense World War II drama to be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" May 10, 9 to 11:20 p.m. on Channel 6-7.

As World War II draws to a close and the Allies move into Germany, Hitler orders the Ludendorff Bridge at Remagen — the only span left standing along the length of the Rhine — destroyed to remove the possibility of American capture.

German Maj. Paul Kreuger (Vaughn), a humanitarian, delays Hitler's order to dynamite the bridge, realizing that the entire 15th Army of 50,000 men will be stranded on the bridge's west side once the task is completed.

This Comedy Writer Is Gorgeous And 'Bubbly'

(See Monday evening schedule.)

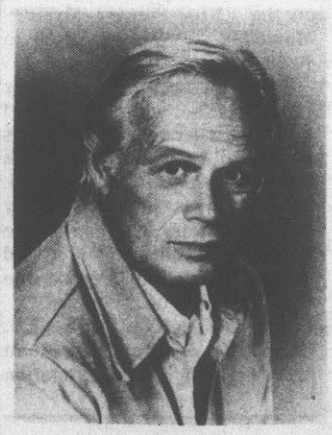
One thing should be clearly established in advance — Susan Silver is not exactly your basic comedy-writer stereotype — balding, pudgy and nervous. None of the aforementioned.

She's not exactly your basic women's-lib stereotype either: she's gorgeous, bubbly and nuts about her husband.

What Susan Silver is, by nature and by choice, is a very funny and very successful writer who has earned an in-demand reputation for herself writing for Mary Tyler Moore and all the other major comedy shows on television. And she has now written her first movie — "The Couple Takes a Wife," which airs on the "CBS Late Movie" Monday, May 5, at 11:30 p.m. on Ch. 9-11. The film is about a very successful married lady whose personal career improves and complicates her life.

She has, basically, written a movie about herself.

"Everyone does need a wife," she said during a rare and brief vacation from work, "including women who are wolves. Men don't realize the little things a woman deals with every day, and you can't just hire someone to do the dishes and think that's taking care of it. It's not that simple."



RICHARD WIDMARK narrates "The Great Migration: Year of the Wildebeeste," a one-hour special depicting one of the world's most awesome spectacles, the annual trek of a million wildebeeste across East Africa's Serengeti plain in search of food, Monday, May 5 (8-9 p.m.) on channels 3N-9-11.

Doubles Tested Casting

Finding a quartet of look-alikes to match the appearance of star Jack Lord and regular supporting members on "Hawaii Five-0" really tested the mettle of the series' casting department.

The results of the search will be seen on the 'Welcome to our Branch Office" episode on Hawaii Five-0" Tuesday, May 6, 9:00 to 10:00 p.m., on Channel 9-11. The plot centers on four confidence men who masquerade as the Hawaii state investigative team.

The first match was effected according to the show's Hawaii producer, William Finnegan, when casting director Bob Busch and Lord spotted a resemblance between the actor and a "Five-0" cameraman who was forthwith cast as the fake "Five-0" chief, Steve McGarrett. He is Hamburg-born Thorwald "Tom" Boie, who had never before acted. His usual function in the series is to keep the camera equipment in top working order.

Arduous Road To Stardom

Dorothy Lamour, former screen queen, and Katharine Ross, current motion picture favorite, are among those who counsel six actresses seeking careers and recognition in films in "The Starlets: Making it in Hollywood," a "Wide World: Special" on the ABC Television Network, Tuesday, May 6, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., on Ch. 3-5-12.

The young women are Karen Lamm, Carol Mallory, Misty Rowe, Deborah Rowe, Deborah Peatt, Jennifer Leak and Jane Steele — all with varying degrees of experience in films, TV and the theater — who will be seen making the Hollywood rounds.

Along the way they sit in on a make-up session conducted by Mike Westmore, talk to Julia Phillips, co-producer of "The Sting," to actress Candy Clark and to producer Larry Gordon, currently casting for "The Fan Club." There is also a photo class with noted photographer Harry Langdon.

Invisible Man May Be Series

SCIENTIFIC KNOW-HOW — David McCallum stars as a scientist who discovers the secret of making himself invisible and Melinda Fee plays his wife, in "The Invisible Man" the "NBC World Premiere Movie" Tuesday, May 6 (8-9:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Invisibility has been the subject of many novels and motion pictures, ranging from the classic H.G. Wells tragi-comedy fantasy, "The Invisible Man," to Thorne Smith's ribaldly humorous "Topper."

Imagine being able to roam at will, undetected and unseen. The possibliities are endless and have captured the imagination of people throughout the years.

Now, NBC-TV brings "The Invisible Man" to home screens in a splendid production airing Tuesday, May 6, 8:00 to 9:30 p.m., on Ch. 6-7, as a "World Premiere Movie." The film is the basis for a projected new series on NBC.

One of the obstacles encountered when the original "Invisible Man" was filmed in 1933, with Claude Raines making his Ameican film debut in the title role, was the area of effects.

Several months prior to the start of the TV production, the producers took over a sound stage to work out the technical problems. The 'invisible' process of having bodyless sweaters, trousers, etc., walking around had been used on black and white film in both motion pictures and television. The process had never been used in a technicolor film, although it had been used, briefly, for a television commercial.

The story of "The Invisible Man" concerns a research scientist who has perfected a way of making animals invisible but has never tried the the process on a human. Much to his wife's anger, he uses himself as a human guinea pig and succeeds in making himself invisible. The head of the research organization wants the process to be made known to the Pentagon and an agent of a foreign power wants to obtain the formula for his employers. The scientist, who wants his discovery to be used only to benefit mankind, is caught between the police, foreign agents and the fact that he cannot make himself visible again.

Starring as the scientist is David McCallum, who first came to prominence in the television series, "The Man From U.N.C.L.E." Also starring is Jackie Cooper as the profit-minded head of the research institute. Melinda Fee is seen as McCallum's wife and Henry Darrow plays the role of McCallum's trusted friend.

MOVIE INTERLUDE

During his "Harry O" hiatus, David Jansen will wing his way to Switzerland to star in a movie.

George Peppard In Hospital Story

George Peppard stars as the Chief of Neurological Services of a large metropolitan hospital in NBC-TV's "One of Our Own," a two-hour made - for - TV drama. It will be colorcast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" May 5, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

"One of Our Own" details ten crisis - filled hours in a large hospital, focusing on the doctors, nurses and patients whose lives are drastically influenced by their dealings with the institution's brilliant, but tough, Chief of Services.

Dr. Jake Goodwin (Peppard) is positive that Dr. Hollander's (Scott McKay) traffic injuries require special surgery, not the procedure ordered by Dr. Moresby (William Daniels). Goodwin also feels that Hollander, a famous heart transplant surgeon, should not be operated on by the aged Dr. Helmut (Oscar Homolka), who has not been active for years.

In other crises, Goodwin must attend his son, victim of a mysterious paralysis; Dr. Norah (Lampert), also a neurosurgeon, must inform a patient he is doomed to die; and a young tennis star insists on leaving the hospital prematurely.

Dr. Goodwin's personality reflects the mood of the drama, the basis for a projected new series. He's hard - nosed, especially in his attitudes toward the system. He could have taken on a rich, private practice.

Rules Changed For 'Jackpot'

NBC Television Network's "Jackpot!", hosted by Geoff Edwards, has instituted new rules to enable contestants to have the opportunity to win the Super Jackpot prize in every game.

Each game consists of 15 ribbies given to the contestants. One of the 16 contestants is designed as the "expert," and builds up prize money for the "Jackpot!" prize by giving the correct answers to the riddles.

Under the new rules, each game begins with the 'expert' pressing a button, which automatically selects a random Super Jackpot figure amounting to thousands of dollars.

When the Jackpot riddle is disclosed, the 'expert' must quickly decide whether to go for the money in the Jackpot or pass it up to try for the high money total in the Super Jackpot.

Inside The Tube: Unless Dinah Shore is willing to share, her days with Burt Reynolds may be numbered. For the sardonic star is seeing another woman. It's strictly on the sly, but the romance is for real and it's been going on for almost a year. The identity of the 'other woman' is so unlikely, so preposterous, so unexpected . . . . that not a single Hollywood correspondent was able to break Burt's secret. Until now. The 'other woman' is Adrienne Barbeau. That's right. The strong - willed, women's liber who stars as Maude's daughter on the popular CBS show. She's no glamor girl. No jet setter. No femme fatale on the order of Dinah Shore. She's even younger than Burt — and he's always professed to liking 'mature' women.

A top television executive told me about the clandestine romance. How Burt and Adrienne meet late at night. How they dine either at his Hollywood Hills home or at the house Adrienne leases down in Laurel Canyon. How neither of the couple's closest friends know about it. And, of course Dinah has no idea . . . .

Archie Bunker have no place in America if the nation is to overcome the problems that lie ahead, says a college professor. "We can't afford Archie Bunker," said Maxwell Norman, organizer of the Phoenix College Department of Future Studies. Bunker, the grumbling hero of TV's "All in the Family," is famous for his apathy and ignorance, faults that must be overcome if society is to meet the needs and challenges of the future.

'Tonight Show' Has New Look

NBC Television Network's "Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" has a new look.

The millions of "Tonight Show" viewers are now seeing a new stage set for Carson and his sidekicks, announcer Ed McMahon and music director Doc Severinsen.

Creation of the show's new look is credited to its art director, John Shrum. He said: "It is more contemporary. The size of the set is the same but we've constructed four new backdrops for the area in back of where Johnny sits. There are scenes of an ocean, a desert, a city view much like the intersection of Hollywood and Vine, and a scenic garden view as seen from the top of the Hollywood Hills."

The new set is made up of imitation rosewood, scenically painted to ensure controlled lighting conditions. The couch where guests sit and Carson's desk, a plastic material, appear as one piece. Tables in front of the couch are cylindrical.

Shrum said: "Johnny will still be able to have snow, rain, fog, wind or lightning, as he does now, just by pushing a button near the desk. In back of Johnny, we have corn, tomatoes and strawberries growing out of large barrels beneath plant lights — real fruits and vegetables growing on stage."

It took Shrum and his aides two months to complete the new set.

TOMORROW GUEST—Veteran broadcaster John Cameron Swayze will reminisce with host Tom Snyder on the edition of NBC-TV's "Tomorrow" to be colorcast (1-2 a.m.) following the Thursday telecast of "The Tonight Show" on NBC-TV.

New Bicentennial Special In Making

Film and stage star Lee J. Cobb will appear in an hour-long ABC News Bicentennial special, "Suddenly — An Eagle," an innovative documentary which presents parallel stories of the people and events in America and England that triggered the American Revolution.

Av Westin, ABC News Vice President, said, in making the announcement, that Kenneth Griffith, British actor, author and documentarian, will appear with Mr. Cobb on the ABC Television Network broadcast. The special, to be filmed at historic sites in England and the United States, will be telecast in the fourth quarter of 1975 as part of the overall observance of the Bicentennial by the American Broadcasting Companies, Inc. The theme of the company's Bicentennial effort is "The American Spirit."

"Mr. Cobb and Mr. Griffith will be involved storytellers in modern dress," Westin said. "Each will narrate pivotal events that occurred in his own country at the sites where history happened and portray, as well, the famous men who played a part in those events. This is a fresh approach to history. We believe the result will be an exciting and dramatic documentary that is historically accurate."

William Peters is the producer and co-author of the script with Kenneth Griffith. There will be no sets or costumes.

Peters explained: "Our two narrators will be seen alternately. They will be almost constantly in motion, narrating and slipping frequently into various roles as they quote historical figures. The stories, filmed in England and America on both side of the developing conflict, will be told in parallel and intercut until they reach the climactic moment when the two forces met in bloodshed and war at Lexington and Concord."

Lee J. Cobb received Oscar nominations for his performances in the films, "On the Waterfront" and "The Brothers Karamazov." He has played leading roles in the television series, "The Virginian," and "The Lawyers," and appeared in such stage successes as "Death of a Salesman" and a Lincoln Center production of "King Lear."

Kenneth Griffith, who has acted in more than 100 feature films, wrote and produced a number of acclaimed historical documentaries for British television.

Young Couple Plan 'Buck' Establishment

David Janssen stars as a father who finds himself up against the generation gap when he discovers his daughter and son-in-law are planning to buck the establishment and have their baby their own way, in "Generation," to be seen for the first time on television on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, May 8, 9 to 11 p.m., on Ch. 9-11. Also starring are Kim Darby and Carl Reiner.

Walter and Doris are married, but establishing a happily-ever-after is a struggle. Doris finds herself facing her father's frantic objections to the couple's intention to deliver the child they ar expecting by themselves.

THEN AND NOW — Redd Foxx, star of NBC-TV's "Sanford and Son" (right), is shown (left) at the microphone performing as a teenaged singer with a group called the Bon Bons. His appearance with the Bon Bons marked his start as a professional performer. Foxx says young performers should acquire a trade or skill not connected with show business to fall back on if the going gets rough.

Redd Foxx Advises Added Job Skills

"Get a job — a job that pays money regularly." This is Redd Foxx's advice for people who want careers as performers in show business.

Foxx has been in show business for 40 years. He started when he was 13 as a singer with a group called the Bon Bons; later he did comedy with Slappy White, made several party record albums, headlined night club acts and owned a Los Angeles night club. In January of 1972, he became known to millions as Fred Sanford on "Sanford and Son," colorcast Fridays, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on NBC and Channel 6-7.

Said Foxx: "Looking back over the whole thing, I know the one big problem was eating.

'Noise' Incorporated Into Classical Music

"What Is Noise? What Is Music?" is both the substance and the title of the next presentation in the award-winning series of New York Philharmonic Young People's Concerts, to be presented Saturday, May 10, 5 to 6 p.m., on CBS-TV. Michael Tilson Thomas, director of the Young People's Concerts, conducts and narrates.

The program will examine the use of such 'noises' as barking dogs and amorous cats as incorporated into the works of great composers of classical music. In fact, in Haydn's and Mozart's time, there were many compositions written for toys and symphony orchestras.

"But at no time," Thomas explains, "has there been more interest in special sound or noises than right now in our 20th Century. These are not sounds made to be funny or to punctuate, but to replace notes as the building blocks of a new kind of music."

It has been said that Thomas is another Leonard Bernstein. Although a generation separates the youthful conductor and the 57-year-old Bernstein, the Parallelism between the two of them is remarkable. Both are native Americans of Jewish ancestry, both are brilliant pianists, both are high strung, both are intensely enthusiastic, and both share a love of theatre and the theatrical gesture. Both were the recipients of teaching, guidance and sponsorship by the leading musicians of their time — and both made sensational debuts that captured not only the accolades of the critics but the imagination of the public as well.

In 1943, Bernstein, then 25 years old, substituted for the ailing Bruno Walter with the New York Philharmonic on a few hours' notice and electrified his audience with a dynamic conducting performance. History, which isn't supposed to repeat itself, did precisely that 26 years later when young Michael Thomas got a similarly dramatic 'break.'

In October 1969, the Boston Symphony was giving a New York concert at Philharmonic Hall under the baton of William Steinberg, who suddenly became ill at mid-point. The rest of the program was conducted by his assistant of barely a month, 24-year old Michael Tilson Thomas, and the pinch-hitting, a la Bernstein a quarter-century before, was spectacularly successful.

Maestro Steinberg remained indisposed for the rest of the season, and Thomas took over a schedule that involved conducting more than 30 concerts. Michael Thomas' star was definately in the ascendancy.

CONDUCTOR — Michael Tilson Thomas asks for more pianissimo as the 29-year-old conductor who has been called another Leonard Bernstein, leads the New York Philharmonic through the Young People's Concert, "What Is Noise? What Is Music?" Saturday, May 10 (5-6 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Stylized Orphan's Fantasies

An orphan with a fanciful imagination leaves her star surroundings for the world of fantasy, in "Lucy and the Miracles," a motion picture from Czechoslovakia, which will be broadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, May 10, 1 to 2 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Lucy (Viktorie Cermakova), who has been adopted, sets out, through fantasy, to find parents for her orphan friends. Since the story is told from a child's point of view, it unravels without logic, weaving in and out of reality. The cinematic technique is highly stylized and often reminiscent of the old Keystone Kops silent movies.

In the final scene, Lucy is back at the orphanage, bidding goodby to the last occupant, who is about to join her new father.

Anchormen Named For News 'Update'

NBC News correspondent Tom Snyder and Edwin Newman in New York and John Schubeck in Burbank will be the newscasters for "NBC News Update."

"NBC News Update," one minute of prime-time news, will be presented seven nights a week at approximately 9 p.m. beginning Aug. 2, 1975.

Snyder will anchor the report Sunday through Friday nights and Edwin Newman will appear Saturday nights. Schubeck will anchor the edition for the western time zone.

A broadcast journalist for over 17 years in various parts of the country, Snyder won an Emmy Award for his work as host of "Tomorrow."

Newman, the recepient of the prestigious University of Missouri Award for Distinguished Service in Journalism April 25, has covered news events in at least 25 countries since joining NBC News in 1952. Often assigned to "instant specials," he has been the substitute host on "Today," appeared on "Meet the Press" and has been reported on NBC News documentaries. A prolific writer, he has contributed articles to numerous publications and his recently published book, "Strictly Speaking," is a best seller and has been excerpted in Reader's Digest and TV Guide.

Schubeck has an extensive background in television news, including experiences as a general assignment correspondent, entertainment editor, and drama and film critic in some of America's major cities.

ROCK'S INCENTIVE

Rock Hudson, star of "McMillan & Wife" on NBC Sunday Mystery Movie, says he got into action because of a childhood dream to get a new bicycle. "When I was 7-years-old, I saw Jackie Cooper in a movie with a new bicycle," Hudson reveals. "It was during the Great Depression and I saw no other way of getting one."

Big Viewer Payoff In Doubles Finals

The finals of the "Mixed Doubles Classic," a unique tennis tournament offering $60,000 in prize money and pairing active male tennis Hall of Famers with current stars on the women's professional circuit, will be broadcast on "CBS Sports Spectacular" Sunday, May 4, 3:30 to 5:30 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Tony Trabert, former tennis great, will be one of the commentators for the CBS Television Sports presentation from the John Gardiner Tennis Ranch in Scottsdale, Arizona.

Eight teams will compete for the top prize of $20,000 and will feature such outstanding stars of the game as Billie Jean King, Trabert, Vic Seixas, Betty Stove and Wendy Overton, among others.

Trabert and Seixas dominated men's tennis in the United States in the 1950s. Trabert turned professional after the 1955 season after achieving greatness as an amateur and won his first national title at Forest Hills in 1953. He lost to Seixas the following year, but in 1955 won Wimbledon without losing set, regained his national championship and took the French singles as well. In 1954, Trabert and Seixas teamed up to give the United States a 3-2 Davis Cup victory over Australia, a feat which earned Trabert election as "Player of the Year."

Seixas played in seven successive Davis Cup challenge rounds, winning 38 of 55 matches between 1951 and 1957, the best individual record by an American player in the historic competition. His winning record, three better than the immortal Bill Tilden, includes 24 singles victories and 14 in doubles. Seixas had his biggest year in 1954 when he won both Wimbledon and Forest Hills. He also won the Wimbledon mixed doubles four straight years between 1953 and 1956.

Both Trabert and Seixas were elected to the tennis Hall of Fame in 1971.

Stewart is the number one player in the United States in the 45-and-over category, and Stove, of the Netherlands, and Overton are two regulars on the women's circuit.

SHOWS HAD TUNES

Willie In 13th Year

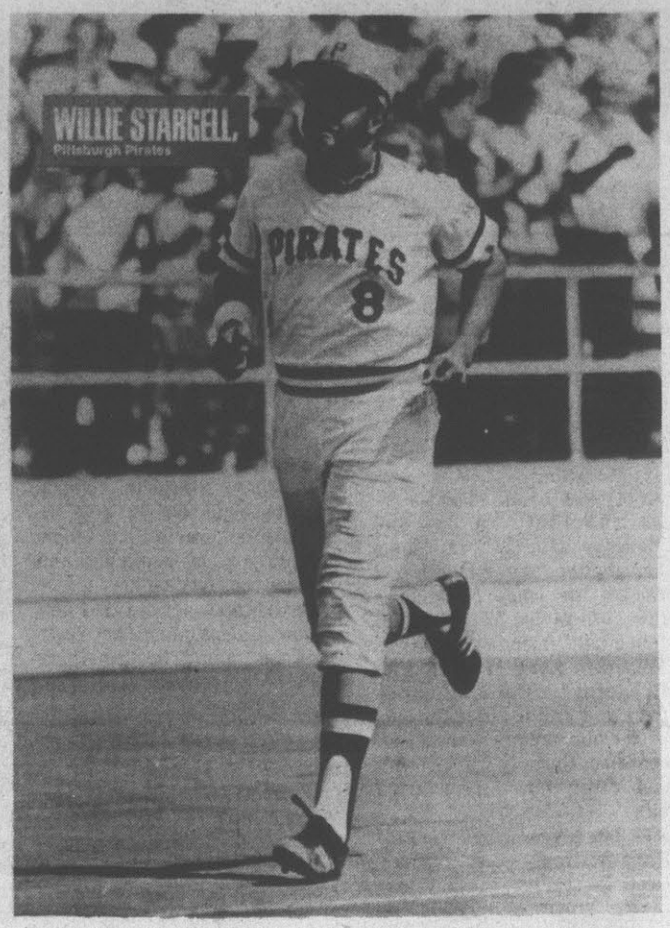
In Pittsburgh it is recognized that "Chicken on the Hill" Willie Stargell is the most important man in the Pirate lineup. Wil has continued to build on his reputation as one of the most feared hitters in the game. (Willie will be at bat this Saturday, May 10, at 2:00 p.m., against the Los Angeles Dodgers at Pittsburgh.)

Willie Stargell, the soft-spoken leader of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is beginning his 13th full year in an Buc uniform, and at the age of 34 is currently ranked 27th on the All-Time Major League home run list.

The big leftfielder's contributions to the Pirate Family team record books are a clear indication of his value to the Pirate Family. During this past winter he was the 20th winner of Phi Delta Theta's Lou Gehrig Award. A modest man, Stargell said of the award, "Naturally, I'm very pleased to win an award in memory of Lou Gehrig. His name has a special meaning in baseball. His career was a tribute to the game.

"One of the most cherished awards I've ever received was the one in honor of my late great teammate, Roberto Clemente," Stargell said. "That was a very moving experience and I'm sure this will be somewhat the same."

Willie still looks forward to many more years of success in Pittsburgh. "I think I have at least three or four good seasons left. I feel that I'm still an all-around ballplayer and I just want to continue to help the team win," says Willie.



WILLIE STARGELL of the Pittsburgh Pirates will be on hand when the Pirates host the Los Angeles Dodgers on "NBC Major League Baseball Game-of-the-Week" Saturday, May 10 at 2:00 p.m. on NBC -TV.

WCT Finals To Be Telecast

If the World Championship Tennis Doubles and Singles finals were held today, the international fields would include such singles players as Arthur Ashe of the United States, Australia's Rod Laver and tennage Swedish sensation Bjorn Borg—and doubles teams like defending champions Bob Hewitt of Australia and South Africa Fred McMillan.

NBC-TV will present the WCT Singles and Doubles Championship matches in May, the Doubles being contested May 4 at Mexico City (1-4 p.m.), the singles at Dallas May 11 (also 1-4 p.m.).

The eight-man or eight-team fields for both finals are made up of the two point leaders in each WCT group—Red, Blue and Green—and the next two in the standings, regardless of group. The winners of the weekly WCT tournaments receive 110 points for their triumphs.

RUSSIAN RULERS — Michael Jayston (1) relies on Janet Suzman for comfort as their empire crumbles when they star as the last royal rulers of all the Russians in "Nicholas and Alexandra," the sweeping story of a reign that changed history, airing on television for the first time in two parts on ABC-TV's "ABC Saturday Night Movie" Saturday, May 10 (9-11 p.m.) and "The ABC Sunday Night Movie" Sunday, May 11 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

Two-Part TV Debut

"Nicholas and Alexandra," the sweeping tale of a time when change was written in thunder and royal tragedy was overshadowed by the weight of history, makes its television premiere in two parts on the ABC Television Network's "ABC Saturday Night Movie," May 10, 9:00 to 11:00 p.m., and "ABC Sunday Night Movie," May 11, 8:30 to 10:30 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

Michael Jayston stars as the ill-fated Tsar Nicholas II, doomed to be the last royal ruler of Russia, and Janet Suzman was nominated for an Academy Award for her performance as his Empress, who carries the incurable disease that may doom their son.

Judith Crist said the "spectacular of the year manages, on its enormous canvas, to paint human portraits and tell of events of world upheaval in terms of flesh and blood and common experience."

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR JOE NAMATH

Do you receive a lot of ribbing as a result of your pantyhose commercial? Also, were you ever asked to pose for a centerfold?—Debbie Green, Orange, Texas

● Yes, I do get a lot of ribbing about the pantyhose commercial. Most people ask if I shaved my legs to do it and are surprised when I tell them that during the football season my legs are shaved anyway so that I can be taped easier. But the commercial was a lot of fun and people seem to enjoy it, so that's good. To answer the second part of your question: I have been asked several times to pose for a centerfold and each time have said no. I don't see any circumstances in the future that would make me change my mind.

FOR CLARENCE M. KELLEY, director of the FBI

To what do you attribute the crime increase? Is it due to affluence?—John Volk, New London, N.H.

● It's not possible to single out one factor. But I think it's agreed we need to deal more firmly in court with repeat offenders (more than 66 percent of all persons arrested in the U.S. have previous arrest and/or conviction records).

FOR CARMEN McRAE

How do you know if you're reaching your audience?—L.P., Spartanburg, S.C.

● I never gauge approval or acceptance by applause. A smile and folded arms are much more encouraging and welcome than claps and a stony expression. Faces, not hands, are what counts.

FOR MICHAEL LANDON,
star of "Little House on the Prairie"

I'm curious to know why the Junior Miss Pageant, which you're hosting on May 5, is dropping the word "pageant" from its title.—E. Beste, Mansfield, Ohio

● The sponsors say the use of the word "pageant" brings to mind a beauty contest—which ours isn't. Our girls don't wear swimsuits. The real purpose of Junior Miss is educational, since it gives away over $750,000 in scholarships to its participants.

FOR BURT BACHARACH

What is your definition of success?—A.K., Redding, Calif.

● The real measure of success for me is being in a taxi and hearing the driver whistle one of my tunes, or hearing a garbage man trying to sing "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head." To me this is the real compliment, the true recognition.

FOR CHER BONO

How do you stay so slim?—Chet Somers, Bradenton, Fla.

● My weight just never seems to go above 108 pounds, so at 5-7, I don't really have a problem. I do watch what I eat for nutrition and energy, though—and I eat a lot of fruit.

FOR CELESTE HOLM

Someone once said that Mrs. Wallis Simpson should have said "No" to the Duke of Windsor because it was wartime and his country needed him as its head. How do you feel? —G. G. Crabtree, Lansing, Mich.

● Your question interestingly puts the emphasis on Mrs. Simpson's responsibility. I think if she had refused him, she might have emerged as a real heroine. Instead they became, to me, one of the saddest couples in history—going from one resort to another, no anchor, no job, no purpose, except to maintain the illusion of romance indefinitely.

FOR DARRELL ROYAL,
University of Texas football coach

Do you think instant replay on TV will ever be used to overrule a football official?—J. C. Parker, Arvonia, Va.

● No way. You'd have to rerun almost every play, and then you would have disputes over that. Besides, I think you have to make allowances for officials' mistakes, just as you do for coaches' mistakes and players' mistakes. They are honest people doing the best job they can, and I think they do a good job.

FOR EILEEN FULTON, star of "As the World Turns"

What's the biggest difference between appearing in a soap opera and appearing in a regular play?—A.S., Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● Soap operas are written as they go along, unlike a stage play, where the performers are given the complete script the day they start rehearsing. When I ask the director what's on for next week, he won't tell me, explaining: "This is like real life. Do you know what's going to happen to you next week?"

Ingrid Bergman

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

I've always admired Ingrid Bergman. Tell me about her private life—is she having marital problems? And what about her children?—G. Wills, San Pedro, Calif.

● Since 1960, Ingrid has been happily wed to Lars Schmidt, a businessman and theatrical producer based in Paris. They're often apart, due to stage commitments and business deals that send them off in opposite directions (he attends her openings, though). They're amused at the rumors of their "estrangement"! Pia Lindstrom, Ingrid's firstborn, is a journalist-TV broadcaster, married and with two children. The Rossellini children, Roberto, 24, and twins Isabella and Ingrid, 22, all live in Rome. Miss Bergman is winding up a national tour of "The Constant Wife" (Broadway is the last stop). She helps maintain the Gladys Aylwood Orphanage in Taiwan and also supports a Vietnamese child in Saigon.

Pat Loud on Love and Divorce:
"In Spite of It All, Married Is Better"

By Pat Loud
Especially for Family Weekly

"Men may conceive of the last frontier as a little cabin in the clearing of the forest primeval. But for women, the last frontier is the city. It is there that I began to find the balance and the challenge that my hometown could no longer give me."

By Pat Loud Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

Eve Rubinstein

Pat Loud and her daughter Delilah in their New York apartment. Pat finds that "cities offer women more of the essentials of life."

A year ago, Pat Loud, whose name had become a household word after the break-up of her marriage was recorded on TV, wrote an article for FAMILY WEEKLY saying that, despite her divorce, she still thought married life was better. Since then, Pat has been working in New York, and she is currently planning to move to Los Angeles, trading life in one big city for that in another. In the meantime, she has undergone certain changes of attitude—as this article shows.

Think of it! In 25 years we will be well into the year 2000—which certainly sounds, from here, like a whole new dawn breaking on a whole new epoch. And it had better be a splendid one, because we've earned it. I don't think we can take much more of the way things are going now. But who knows? Maybe by that time we all will have Social Security numbers tattooed across our foreheads and our brain waves will be reproduced on computer cards to help take the guesswork out of mating. And maybe marriage will be a flimsier commitment, a revolving contract with five-year options, renewable by mutual consent and a government stamp. Or maybe we all will be too busy trying to find food and gas to care.

But it would be comforting to those of us who won't last to 2000 to know that something better than that awaits our children's children—something better than government-inspected shopping lists and dehumanized coupling. Hopefully, all our suffering, all the Sturm und Drang that has characterized much of today's scene, will help future generations cope with each other and themselves. If only we could know that the personal chaos of the 1960's and '70's will make life easier for some future someone. If those old discarded mores are no longer viable, then at least I hope we're asking the right questions and forming the bedrock for a more tolerable tone of life in the future.

What we hope we're doing is devising formulas that will enable men and women to live together without winding up hating each other. But sometimes all the emotional pushing and shoving comes across to us—and, after all, we're the ones who are living it—as an emotionally jarring psychic witch-hunt. In the confusion, conflict and uncertainty of our world we are all of us the very real victims of our times. This has frequently been true in history, but I think it is probably truer now than ever before. No one in this country has been left untouched by the fear and cynicism of our age. That old buzz saw, "Once burned, twice cautious," is particularly well suited to our generation: It is we who have watched in anguish as one after another of our most cherished beliefs has been shot down and idol after idol has turned up with feet of clay. If you get the idea that rules have been changed in the middle of the game, you couldn't be righter. In fact, it all puts me in mind of that great scene in "Alice in Wonderland" when Alice tells the Queen of Hearts that she has lost her way. "Your way? Your way?" roars the Queen. "All ways here are my ways!" It's enough to make you want to look for the nearest exit. And that is more or less what I have done.

A year ago I thought that I wanted to remarry someday, and I said so, right here in FAMILY WEEKLY. I just couldn't imagine spending the rest of my life as the non-swinging single that I am, my soul hovering on the backstage of life, thinking it had missed its cue forever. After all, I had been more comfortable in my twin roles of wife and mother than a lot of people I knew, and I wanted back what I had lost. Well, I guess there's still plenty of room around the philosopher's stone for anyone who wants to try to turn that one into gold. As for me, I have taken a flying leap at life on my own and find that I love it.

I am still middle-aged, still divorced and often afraid and uncertain, but I don't consider myself a failure and I don't feel that my life is over. Au contraire, my dears. After years of being a dependent wife I find it stimulating and exciting to be on my own. Three years ago I was hiding in a beautiful kitchen of a beautiful house hidden in the hills behind a beautiful town called Santa Barbara, hidden in a beautiful corner of California. I allowed myself an occasional excursion, or rather frantic foray, into the "real world" and then jumped right back behind the stove. Reality was too

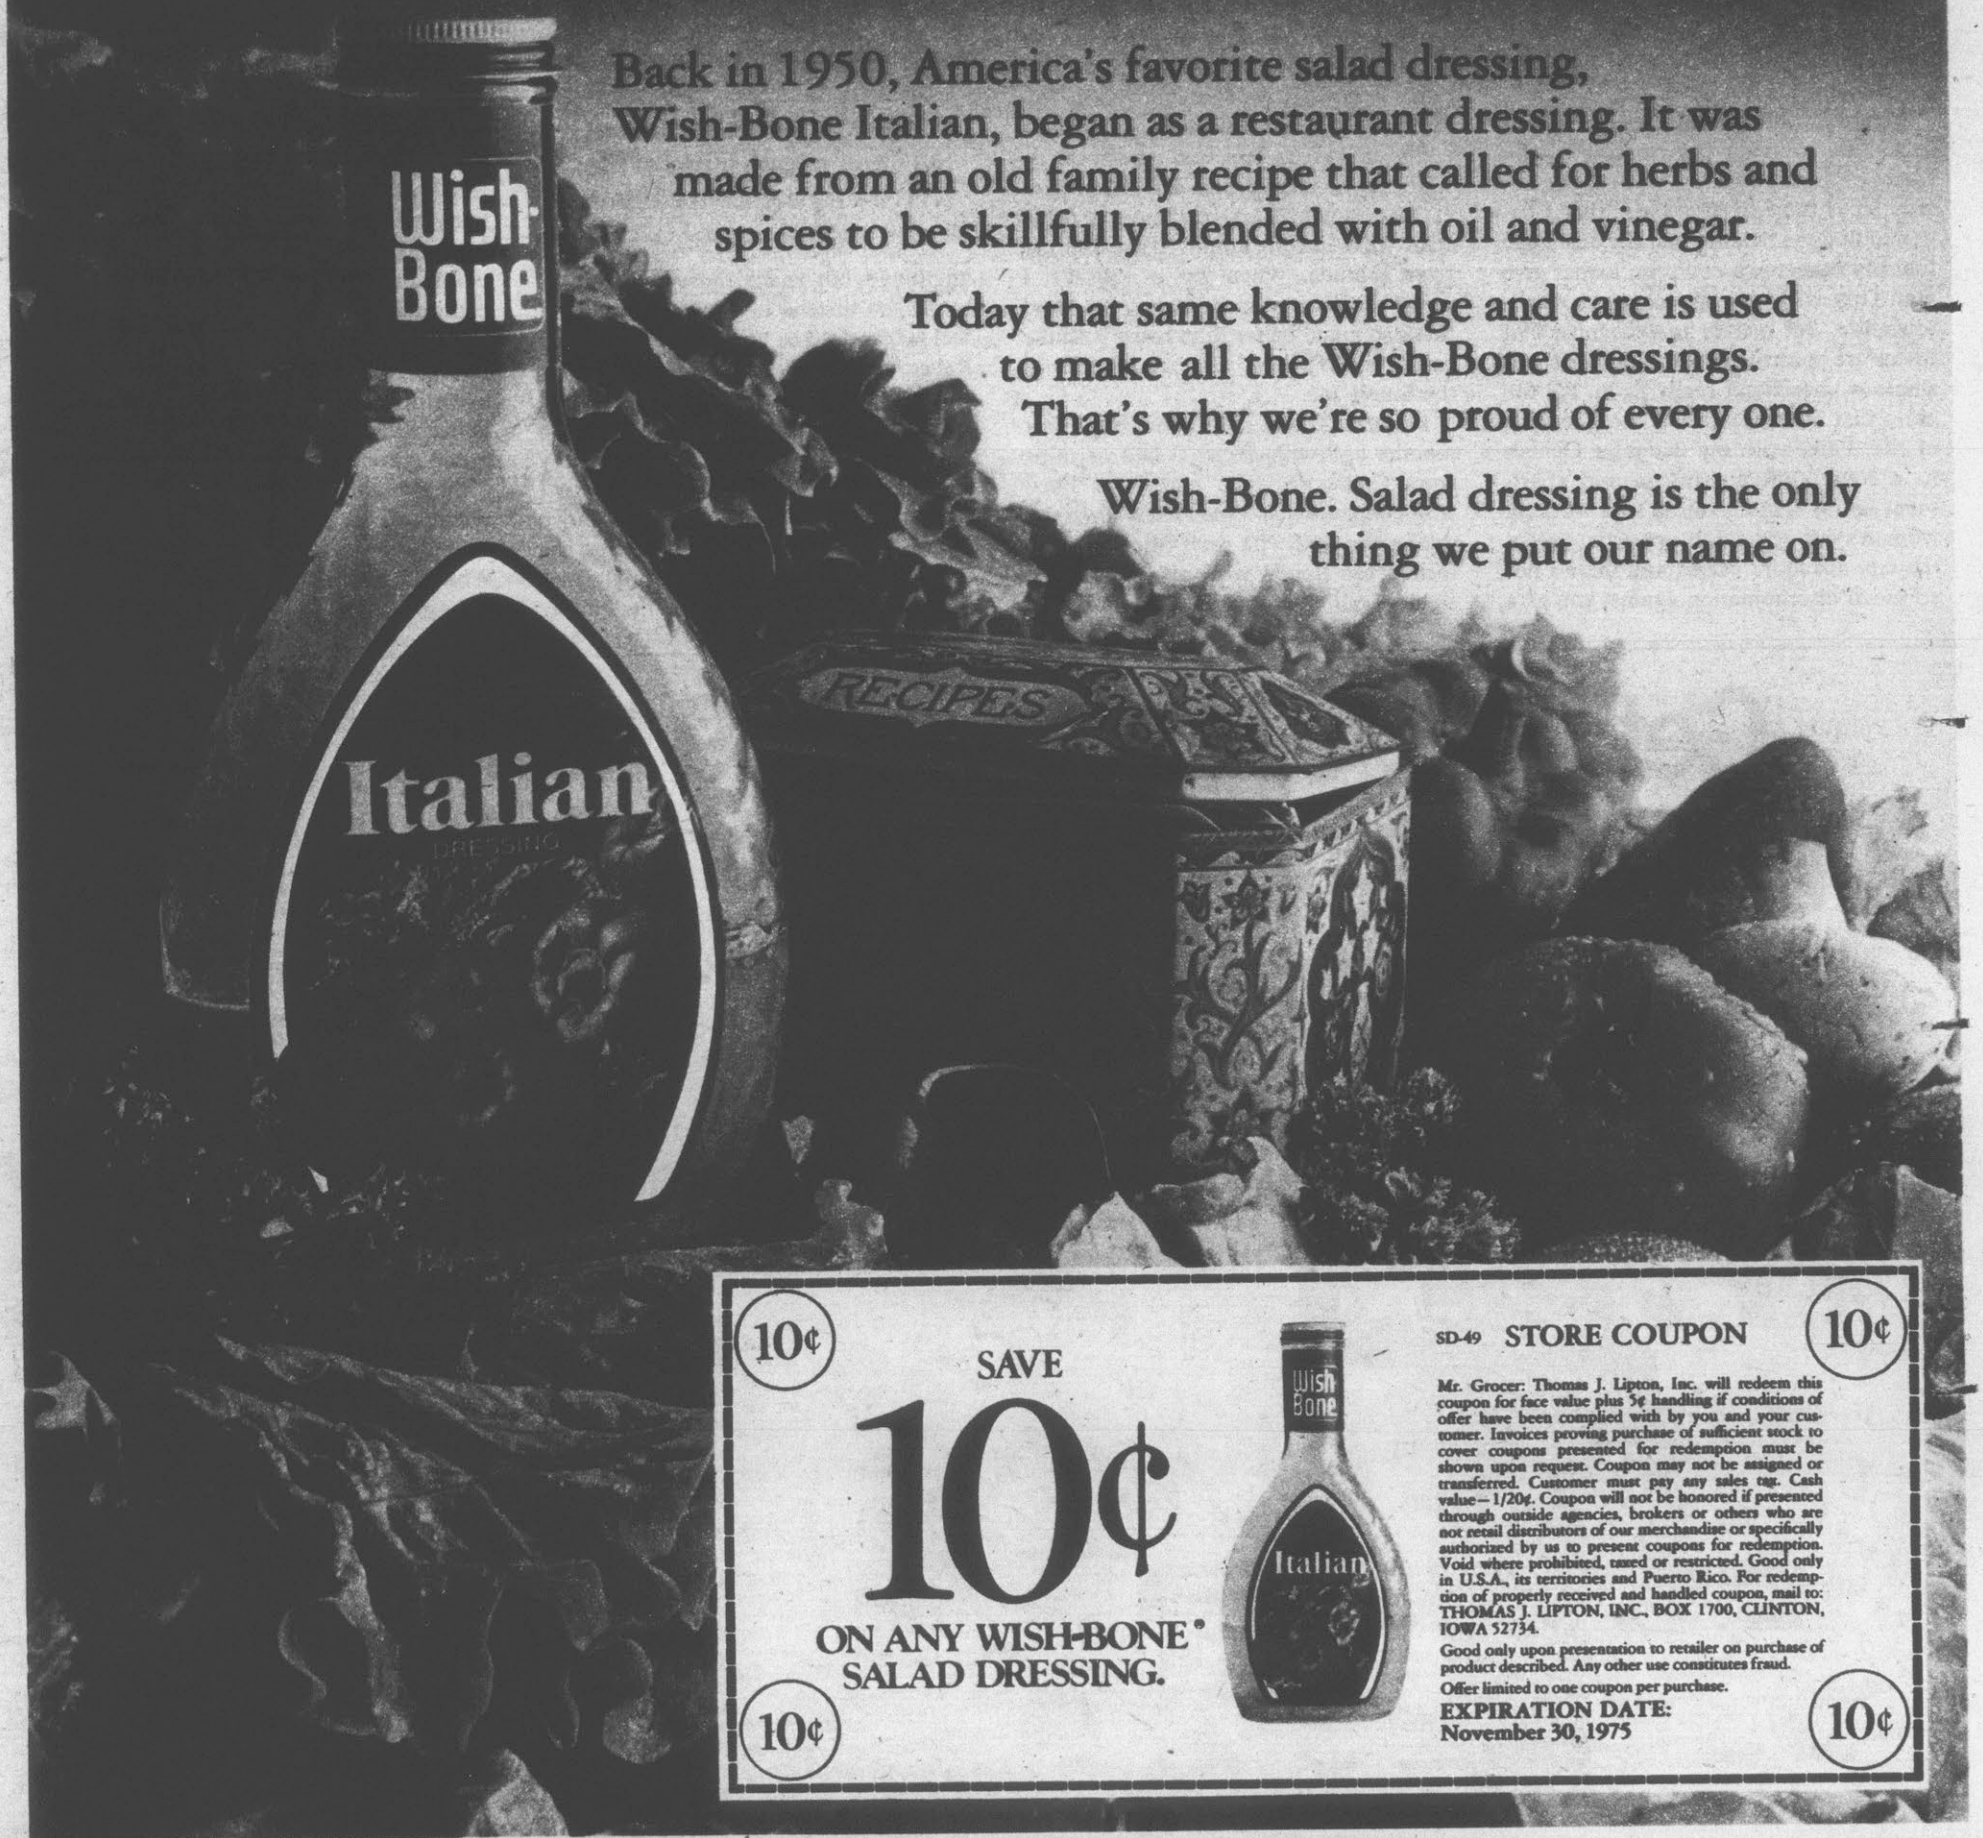
25 years ago a great recipe for salad dressing got the Wish-Bone® name. Times haven't changed.



Back in 1950, America's favorite salad dressing, Wish-Bone Italian, began as a restaurant dressing. It was made from an old family recipe that called for herbs and spices to be skillfully blended with oil and vinegar.

Today that same knowledge and care is used to make all the Wish-Bone dressings. That's why we're so proud of every one.

Wish-Bone. Salad dressing is the only thing we put our name on.

scary. I didn't feel competent or trained or even sufficiently motivated to function in a business capacity. I felt vulnerable, insecure, guilty and a host of other things that add up to the blues. Then I moved to New York and got a job. And if I could do that, anybody could. It took every ounce of courage I had. The pioneer spirit is not dead.

Men may conceive of the last frontier as a little cabin in the clearing of the forest primeval. But for women, the last frontier is the city. It is there that I began to find the balance and the challenge that my hometown could no longer give me. This is not at all to reject small-town life, but merely to recognize that towns are constructed for family life and single women don't really fit in. It's the cities that offer us more of the essentials of life. I live with my daughter Delilah in a New York apartment, and apartment living is more suited to a working woman's life-style. Job opportunities in the city are more varied and there's not so much discrimination against you as a woman. Also, in cities there are a lot of other single people you can meet easily and do things with, and a wider variety of entertainments to choose from. And my job! Believe it or not it's really thrilling for me to be considered a competent asset by my co-workers.

Any time you change your life, you have to make a lot of decisions—and none of them is easy. It's only human to feel terribly unsure and vulnerable at such times, and very lonely. Loneliness is the gray menace lurking at the bottom of the champagne glass of life. It steals the bubbles, but not the dregs. It can make you feel different, all right, but not in a healthy or optimistic way. For some crazy reason, if we feel unloved, it follows that we feel unlovable. Loneliness either makes us feel dull and inert or spurs us to frantic and self-destructive activity that gets us into more trouble than we'd like to admit. It's a far cry from solitude. When I'm in solitude, I spend my time with the strong me. And that's so much better than being with the cast from "Psycho" that germinates in the lonely me.

I'll never forget sitting in a bar a few months ago with a girl friend of mine from California. The place was filled with couples who seemed to be slavishly, dotingly in love with each other. I wasn't feeling too happy with myself and the sight of all that tinseled love-in-bloom only added to my depression. When we were served, my friend picked up her glass, clinked it against mine and said, "Here's to the two most beautiful and exciting women in the room." I've loved her ever since. She taught me something I needed to know, and that is, if you don't believe in yourself, no one else will. The world is a state of mind.

So the trick is to turn the hours of potential loneliness into hours of solitude. We all need to be alone sometimes to replenish ourselves. Read, catch up on the news, telephone friends, clean, wash, sew, tat, take a night course—anything—but make those hours work to fill you instead of deplete you. Don't feel trapped when you have to be alone. Relax, you're in friendly good company.

It's tough to develop an independent spirit if you've never been required to or didn't realize that it shows a healthy state of mind. When I was in college I knew a girl who managed to pull down high grades in tough courses, but she talked baby talk with her boyfriend! Now there's a candidate for the rubber room. What was she trying to prove? That she was helpless? If so, why? I have no way of knowing, because she never told me and we never kept in touch. But I know that to make yourself less than you are in order to please anybody is sick. It's self-polarized masochism. It's disgusting deception, and there is, thank God, no place for it in today's world. Be what you are, but for Heaven's sake be everything that you are and know that your femininity is not in question just because you happen to be smart.

I like being able to take care of myself. I never thought that I would or could, but I do. It's all part of "Life's Great Pageant"—as it used to be called—the learning to deal with frustrations and angers, triumphs and failures, and even the plateaus, till we find out what really makes us tick. Learning when to hang in and when to let go. It puts me in mind of the great whales straining plankton through their baleen. These enormous creatures live on tons of microscopic marine life, accepting or rejecting with monolithic savoir faire everything that floats their way. They know enough not to try to swallow grand pianos, but they don't stop eating if they've swilled down a few dozen bad shrimp, either. Life is a great big ocean to nose around in—and, like Mama Whale, I feel right at home.

A '60's Postscript:

The Poignant Story Of Jan and Dean

By Randal C. Hill

Jan and Dean are now in their early 30's. Their "golden era" ended in 1966.

Jan and Dean epitomized the West Coast surfer sound. Their records gave you the feeling of kids without a care in the world. That was until the day when Jan Berry's sports car suddenly went out of control. . . .

The sleek green Sting Ray swung off busy Sunset Boulevard three blocks from a sharply twisting, poorly banked turn known locally as Deadman's Curve. Accelerating the car smoothly, the handsome blond driver was suddenly confronted with the unexpected—an unseen car, approaching from a bend in a residential street. The driver of the Sting Ray jerked the steering wheel to avoid a collision. The Corvette's fiber-glass body shattered as it slammed into a parked gardener's truck —then silence as the driver lay still in the twisted mass of metal and plastic.

Pulled from the wreckage, miraculously alive, was 25-year-old Jan Berry of a popular duo known as Jan and Dean. Berry was rushed to a local hospital, where he remained in a deep coma for five weeks. Family and friends of the singing star maintained a constant vigil as Berry clung to the thin thread that separated him from the dim spark of life and the emptiness of death.

The month was April, 1966.

Ask how many remember who Jan and Dean were and you're likely to get a lot of "I dunnos." The public forgets. Memories are particularly short when it comes to pop music and rock and roll. But from 1958 to 1966, Jan Berry and Dean Torrence managed to produce a stream of hits that included "Surf City," "Little Old Lady From Pasadena," "Honolulu Lulu," "Drag City," "Linda," "Jennie Lee," and dozens of other brisk-selling songs. Jan and Dean epitomized the West Coast teenage-surfer sound. Listening to their records, you got the image of golden-haired, suntanned youth —kids without a care in the world and with nothing more serious in their futures than a dirty carburetor or a wave that failed to break.

But there was more than tragedy that awaited Jan Berry—there was irony too. Two years before the accident, one of Jan and Dean's biggest hits (790,000 copies) had been "Deadman's Curve," a pounding, blaring paean to the excitement of drag-racing down Sunset Boulevard in a new Sting Ray. In the song, Berry (who sang lead and wrote the lyrics) pits his Corvette against a Jaguar XK-E. The climax crashes down amid screeching tires and shattering glass, with Berry intoning in a flat voice,

"Well, the last thing I remember, Doc,
I started to swerve.
And then I saw the Jag slide into the curve.
I know I'll never forget that horrible sight.
I guess I found out for myself that everyone was right.
You don't come back from Deadman's Curve."*

Emerging sluggishly from the coma, Jan Berry found himself unable to speak or move his head. Figures of people were misty, moving blurs. His temple had been injured in the accident, dam-

It took a doctor for each ingredient to make a better Lecithin, Kelp, Cider Vinegar, Vitamin B_6 capsule.

The most popular diet in America today is the lecithin, kelp, cider vinegar, B6 diet. Thousands and thousands have tried it. And it is growing in popularity every day.

It was discovered by nutritionists and received national recognition over a year and a half ago in Family Circle. This diet consisted of the painful and costly process of pill popping and potion fixing.

Six months ago, some smart companies got the idea of putting all four ingredients in one capsule. That was a great idea. But you wouldn't know how good this standard pill was unless you tried the four ingredients separately, which was a time consuming experience.

Every company had the same formula. It was good—but not good enough according to four doctors.

Not all lecithin, kelp, cider vinegar, B6 capsules are the same. Thanks to four doctors and Peak Laboratories.

A research team which includes experts that even Adelle Davis quoted, helped Peak Laboratories put together a capsule called Vita-Retic™

It took a doctor for each ingredient to make a better lecithin, kelp, cider vinegar, B6 capsule.

The more the better when it comes to lecithin says Dr. Charles John Rudolph, PhD. in Biochemistry in Fort Worth, Texas. He reports that the advantages of lecithin are that it is a superpolyunsaturator which safely increases the solubility of the cholesterol esters in your body. This in turn promotes a higher turnover of the fatty acids and the lipids in the blood.

Vita-Retic contains three times more lecithin than the standard formula. And for a good reason! Dr. Rudolph personally takes that amount or more daily and has noticed a significant reduction in his weight and cholesterol level. He further adds that most adults would benefit from lower cholesterol.

Second on the list of ingredients in Vita-Retic is kelp, a mineral-rich food from the sea and a reliable source of essential iodine. According to Dr. Claire Friend of Los Angeles, kelp, like many good things, works best in small quantities. The ADA (American Dietetic Association) reports that "Excessive kelp can depress thyroid activity, lead to severe complications in undiagnosed goitrous conditions and adversely affect body metabolism."

To ensure that we included the proper amount of kelp in our capsules, our specialist, Dr. Friend, recommended that we put exactly one-half the amount contained in the standard formula. Because when it comes to kelp, a little goes a long way.

Vita-Retic is the only lecithin, cider vinegar, kelp and B6 capsule that contains an iodine level within RDA (Recommended Daily Allowance), set up by the National Research Council.

Vita-Retic is not only the most concentrated capsule, but it also is the safest.

Another ingredient in Vita-Retic is Cider Vinegar, a folk remedy made from apples and rich in potassium. The most noticeable thing about Cider Vinegar is that it just plain tastes bad. As the base for Vita-Retic, the taste of Cider Vinegar is hidden inside the easy-to-take capsule. Dr. William H. Saunders is familiar with the diet and contends that Cider Vinegar forms an effective base for the other three ingredients.

Dr. John Ellis can be considered the personified troubadour of Vitamin B6 because of his clinical success. In fact, he is the doctor that is probably solely responsible for B6 being included in this popular diet quoted by Adelle Davis.

Dr. Ellis asked us at Peak Laboratories to do everything possible to get Vitamin B6 included in every woman's diet. He says that Vitamin B6 is a natural diuretic effective for up to 38 million American women.

According to Dr. Ellis, the birth control pill also causes a depletion of B6 and can cause the accumulation of five to seven pounds of excess water (bloat). Dr. Ellis feels that the two unhealthy conditions are associated and are easily corrected with the addition of B6 to the diet. Besides those who are on the birth control pill, there are up to 30,000,000 other Americans who could reduce bloating with B6. We asked Dr. Ellis how much B6 he prescribed for his patients. And that is exactly the amount we put in Vita-Retic. It happens to be well over two times what the standard capsule contains.

Used in conjunction with a conscientious diet program, you are guaranteed to get more of the results you want with this diet supplement capsule in only 10 days or your money will be refunded.

aging the left side of his brain. This is the area responsible for word-comprehension and language-formulation abilities. It seemed to mark the end of a charmed existence for the straight-A UCLA premed student with a posh $120,000 Bel Air home.

Top speech pathologists were rushed in, but initial recovery proved painfully slow. Doctors were pessimistic. Berry was unable to walk for a year, forced to give his total concentration to the simplest act of standing up from his wheelchair. He began speech-and-language therapy in which the primary objective of his program was to learn to recognize letters and words. From this followed the relearning of basic speech.

A year after the accident Jan finally was able to master reading the simplest books. But he apparently had lost none of his creative musical ability. (He had written, arranged and produced most of Jan and Dean's records, all without formal musical training.) This discovery seemed to provide Berry with the much-needed impetus to improve "more than he was supposed to." Doctors and therapists were astounded at the results.

In the meantime, rock music continued its nonstop metamorphosis. The Beatles conquered the music scene. Psychedelia emerged. Jan and Dean songs became relegated to "oldies but goodies" weekends on pop-music stations. Their albums often ended up as "dumps," tossed into drugstore bins with price tags of 59¢. Jan, forgotten by a fickle public, continued his struggle for improvement in obscurity. He worked daily to relearn the basics of communication, and the years passed with continuous therapy. People stopped asking, "Whatever happened to Jan and Dean?"

Dean Torrence, now 34, graduated from USC with a degree in art in 1967. Today he heads Kittyhawk Graphics in Hollywood, where he designs record-album covers.

Jan Berry is now 33. Most of the fortune he amassed during his prosperous days has gone into therapy expenses. The sprawling Hawaiian-modern house he once owned has been sold. Once again, he lives with his parents. Each day finds him at his piano, neatly printing song lyrics and picking out melody lines with his left hand. He has limited use of his right hand and hemispherical vision in both eyes, although he is able to drive and owns a car. He walks with a slight limp, and when he speaks, there are occasional comprehension problems.

Time and musical styles may have passed by the golden era of Jan and Dean, when the carefree surfing and drag-racing songs from California were in vogue. Jan Berry, nevertheless, remains confident that he will once again record hit songs. He gazes wistfully from the window of his home above Hollywood and picks out the melody of a new Berry composition, "Tinseltown." It is an ode to the world of glamour and fame that was once, at least partially, his.

Build Our Wishing-Well Barbecue

It looks like an old-time country well, but our do-it-yourself project is really a generous-size barbecue—the perfect finishing touch for your yard or patio. Easy and fun to build, the "wishing well" is a dream to work at: The ledge gives you counter space aplenty; the roof shades you comfortably as you cook. And there's a custom-built plus: The plan lets you add or subtract bricks to arrive at the cooking height that's best for you.

I lost half of myself without taking diet pills.

By Donna Walker — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

When I was 66 inches around, and 65 inches tall, even my favorite fat lady's store had a problem. I know, because at 278 pounds I wore the largest bloomers they carried. And that's the only word for them — bloomers — even though I'm of the generation that usually refers to ladies' panties as briefs.

Fact is, the thought of having nothing to wear made me so panicky, I said to myself: "This is it! You've got to lose weight, Donna." Not that I was unaware of my size before. There were too many embarrassing reminders in my life for me to ignore my weight. Let me tell you a few of them . . . for laughs.

At my fullest figure, I fit so snugly into a tub that the water was dammed up behind me when I pulled the plug out in front of me. And when I stood up in a shower stall, I couldn't even bend over to pick up a bar of soap. I was trapped upright by my own appetite.

Actually I've been stuck in more places than you can imagine: a seat in a movie house, a Carnival turnstyle, even my own armchair. Why, I was wedged in so many times, the friction from my fanny wore out the upholstery.

As for dresses, I had one — to go to work in. I washed it every night and every day for one year because it was the only dress that fit.

Now if you think this whole situation embarrassed me, let me tell you it shamed my poor mother. She was always making excuses for me. Like when I was a child she used to say: "It's only 'baby' fat. It'll go away." But she was still saying it when I was 28 years of age!

I think I ought to mention that chocolate and sweets were my undoing. But ironically, candy is what really helped me to lose weight. Ayds® Reducing Plan Candy. I'd read ads about it in magazines and when I learned that Ayds contains vitamins and minerals but no drugs, I thought maybe there was something in it for me. I sure knew from past experience that diet pills, weekly reducing sessions, and even a psychiatrist were not the answer for me. I needed something to help curb my appetite and my eternal craving for sweets.

So, I bought a box of chocolate fudge Ayds at the drug store and started on the plan in the fall. I took one or two Ayds about 15 minutes before each meal with a hot drink and it really helped me cut down on what I ate. And I ate regular meals. I didn't prepare anything special.

At 278 pounds, I was no mermaid. Believe it or not, I had a friend who once called me a Floating Island! I laughed, but I really didn't think that it was very funny!

Now at 136 pounds, my hometown friends in West Hartford, Connecticut, hardly recognize me. As a matter of fact, whenever I look into the mirror, I hardly recognize myself.

Right from the start, I had such a positive feeling about the Ayds plan, I even took on a $50 bet from my friend's husband. He'd heard me talk about losing weight for 10 years, but never saw me do anything about it. So he figured it was going to be an easy win. But in the end he had to pay up, because that weight came off.

Nobody really noticed it until I'd lost more than 50 pounds. You see, I hadn't bought any new clothes so I was hidden under a lot of baggy pants and sacky tops. Then at Easter, when I'd taken off 78 pounds on the Ayds plan, I turned out in a new lavender pantsuit and everybody was amazed. As for me, I was so thrilled, I was determined to stick to the Ayds plan, even on my birthday. Some friends dropped by with a "Have-a-happy" box from the bakery and I thought: "How mean!" But when I opened it, it was filled with celery and a lot of laughs. I knew then that everybody was rooting for me.

I guess, though, we never see ourselves as others do. Let me tell you about a remark my nephew made while I was still losing weight. He'd seen me at his sister's wedding, wearing a size 52 beige tent. Months after I'd been on the Ayds plan, I appeared at his wedding in a size 18 dress. He was so shocked, his eyes opened wide, then his mouth. "What were you wearing the last time I saw you — your beige Volkswagen?" Funny, I knew I was fat, but not that fat.

How long did it take me to lose 142 pounds on the Ayds plan? Just about a year and now I can do things I never could before. For the first time, I can cross my legs — like a lady. I can also see all of me in a mirror. And I can even climb up a pool ladder without fear of breaking it.

On the serious side, my teenage nieces and nephews are now proud to introduce me as their aunt. As for my relations with my parents, I can tell you that they've never been better. In fact, everybody I know is happier with me, since I'm now only 37½ inches around. Which makes me forever grateful for the Ayds plan.

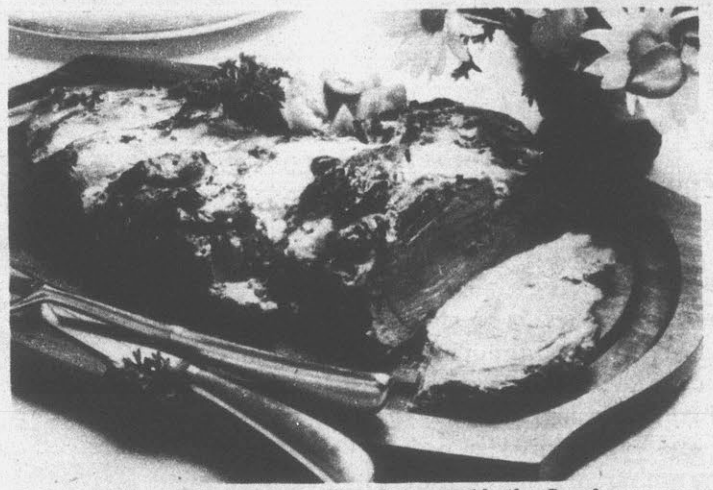
Smart Cooking For Special Occasions

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a company dinner with a Greek flair. Marilyn says: "Several sunny favorite Greek flavors weave through this menu, making it exceptionally festive and light."

Leg of Lamb With a Greek Touch



Juicy and flavorful, roast Leg of Lamb created in the Greek manner awaits the carver's skilled hand.

LEG OF LAMB (GREEK-STYLE)

2 cloves garlic, crushed
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ teaspoon coarse ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon ground or crushed anise seed
½ pt. (1 cup) plain yogurt
1 leg of lamb (6-7 lbs.) boned, trimmed and butterflied

1. Combine all marinade ingredients in large, shallow, glass baking pan. Dip lamb in marinade, coating both sides. Allow to marinate, covered, in refrigerator several hours or overnight.
2. Preheat oven to 500°F.
3. Place lamb in shallow baking pan. Roast for 30 minutes. Baste with marinade. Turn and roast 15 minutes longer. Outer thin parts of lamb will be well done. Thick portions will be slightly pink.
4. Slice thinly on the diagonal.

Makes 8 servings

GREEK SALAD

1 large head iceberg or romaine lettuce, washed and torn ½ cucumber, thinly sliced
2 tomatoes
½ cup Greek-oil-cured black olives or plain black olives
1 jar (6 ozs.) marinated artichoke hearts
¼ lb. feta cheese, crumbled
½ teaspoon oregano leaves
3 tablespoons lemon juice
6 tablespoons olive or vegetable oil
Salt
Pepper

1. Arrange a bed of crisp lettuce leaves on an attractive serving plate. Scatter cucumber, tomatoes, olives, artichoke hearts and feta cheese over lettuce.
2. Sprinkle all with oregano leaves, lemon juice and olive oil. Pass salt and pepper. Makes 4-6 servings

GREEK BUTTER COOKIES

2 cups sweet (unsalted) butter, softened
3 cups confectioners' sugar
2 egg yolks
½ cup brandy or bourbon whiskey
5 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
Whole cloves

1. In large bowl, with electric mixer at medium-high speed, cream butter until light. Gradually add 2 cups confectioners' sugar, beating at low speed as you add.
2. Beat in egg yolks and brandy. Stir flour with salt and baking powder and gradually beat into mixture.
3. Blend in vanilla extract and knead dough until smooth. Using about 1 tablespoon dough, roll into a crescent or ball shape.
4. Place cookies on lightly greased cookie sheets. Place a whole clove in center of each.
5. Bake in preheated 375° F. oven for about 20 minutes. Cookies will be pale gold. Roll in remaining 1 cup confectioners' sugar while warm.

Makes about 7 dozen

Build it yourself!

With a learn-at-home program as fascinating as home entertainment electronics, reading about it is just not enough!

Simulated TV picture/test pattern.

Once you discover something that really fascinates you, no matter what it is, reading about it is just not enough. You want to be involved. You want firsthand experience.

That's exactly how Bell & Howell Schools' exciting learn-at-home program in electronics works. You learn by doing, experimenting, trying it yourself. That's why throughout this unique program you get practical "hands-on" experience with some of today's latest electronics training tools.

Throughout your learning adventure with Bell & Howell Schools, the key word is build.

It doesn't matter if you've never had any training in electronics before. We start you off with the basics and help you work your way up one step at a time. As a matter of fact, with your very first lesson, you receive a special Lab Starter Kit to give you immediate working experience on equipment as you are picking up the fundamentals. It makes the learning process faster and certainly a lot more interesting.

You'll build and work with remarkable educational tools as you explore advances in electronics—"State-of-the-art" equipment that's being used today—and will be used tomorrow. So the skills and knowledge you will acquire will be useful for years to come.

You'll build your own electronics laboratory!

With Bell & Howell's Electro-Lab® electronic training system, theory comes to life. And you'll make it happen! In building each of these modern test instruments you'll get experience in wiring, soldering, assembling. Then you'll use the lab for testing, trouble-shooting and circuit analyzing.

First, the design console. After you assemble it, you'll be able to set up and examine circuits without having to solder them in place.

Next, you'll build a digital multimeter. This important instrument measures voltage, current and resistance, and displays its findings in big, clear numbers like on a digital clock.

Then comes the solid-state "triggered sweep" oscilloscope similar in principle to the kind used in hospitals to monitor heartbeats.

You'll use it to analyze tiny integrated circuits. The triggered sweep feature locks in signals for easier observation.

You'll actually build and work with a new generation colorTV...investigating features you've probably never seen before!

This 25" diagonal color TV has digital features that are likely to appear on all TV's of the future. Features made possible by the applications of digital electronics to home entertainment.

You'll probe into the technology behind all-electronic tuning. And into the digital circuitry of channel numbers that appear on the screen! You'll build-in an on-the-screen digital clock and learn to program a special automatic channel selector that goes directly to the channels of your choice.

You'll also better understand the exceptional color clarity of the Black Matrix picture tube, and gain working knowledge of "state-of-the-art" integrated circuitry and the 100% solid-state chassis.

After building and experimenting with this TV, you'll be equipped with the kinds of skills that could put you ahead in electronics know-how.

Once you've completed this program, your skills in electronic trouble-shooting could lead you in exciting new directions. While we cannot offer assurance of income opportunities you can use your training: to seek out a job in the electronics industry, to upgrade your current job, or as a foundation for advanced programs in electronics.

Building. Learning. Growing. Without missing a day of work or a single paycheck!

Because this is a home study program, you study at your convenience—without being a classroom captive. That means there'll be no conflicts with your job or other interests.

And even though you're on your own, we'll be there to help if you should ever run into a rough spot. Most schools make you mail in all your questions. We have a toll-free line you can call when you have a question that can't wait.

For even more personal attention, Bell & Howell Schools' "help sessions" are held in 50 major cities at various times throughout the year, where you can meet and talk with your instructors and fellow students.

A school's reputation can't be built on what it is going to do.

...but rather on what it has done and is doing right now. That's why Bell & Howell Schools' 43 years of experience in electronics home study is your best guarantee that our "hands-on" learning method really works.

Many thousands of people each year choose Bell & Howell Schools' home learning programs to start or further their electronics education. Discover this fascinating program in home entertainment electronics for yourself.

Mail in the postage-paid card for more details!

Taken for vocational purposes, this program is approved by the state approval agency for Veterans' Benefits.

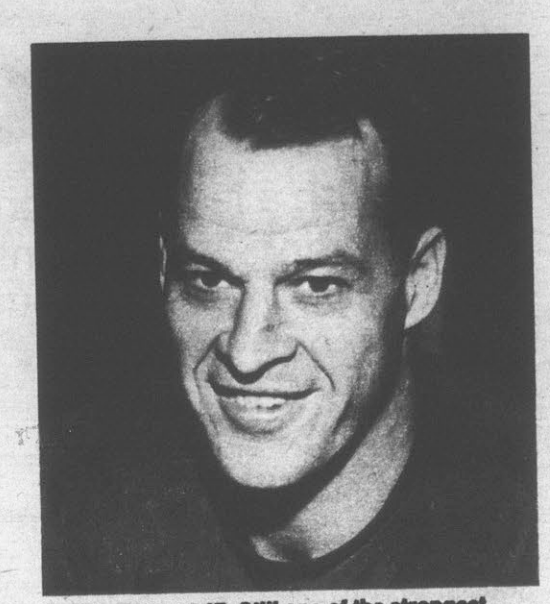
Hockey's Howe & Sons: The Drive Behind the Greatest Family Act Ever

By Larry Bortstein



Gordie Howe at 47: Still one of the strongest bodies in hockey.

"Bill said, 'Gordie, why don't you come on down to Houston with us?' We all had a good laugh, but then we realized we were all serious."

From his position on left defense, Marty Howe deftly stickhandled the puck across center ice, then passed it ahead to Mark Howe on left wing. Spotting a muscular figure breaking unchecked in front of the crease, Mark slipped the rock-hard rubber disk in that direction. Gordie Howe caught it on his stick. Then he calmly shot it past the sprawling goaltender. Chalk up another score for the Howe family of the Houston Aeros.

This is not an uncommon occurrence in the World Hockey Association. To the delight of the ever-increasing number of hockey followers in Houston—and to the amazement of nearly everyone—the Howe trio continues to make athletic history every time the threesome laces on ice skates for the Aeros. The presence of a father and two sons as teammates in a major professional sport is a family sporting saga that has no equal anywhere.

There is the father Gordie, age 47, generally acclaimed as the finest all-round performer in the history of the sport. There is oldest son Marty, 21, and Mark, the second oldest son, who soon will reach the age of 20. All three debuted with the Aeros last season, and all they did was lead the Houston club to the WHA championship. Gordie was voted the league's Most Valuable Player award and Mark its Rookie of the Year award. Marty was a workhorse defenseman. Their performance was equally fine this year.

Less than two years ago, about the farthest thing from the elder Howe's mind was returning to a playing role. He had closed out 25 seasons of unparalleled brilliance with the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League in 1971, leaving with virtually every major career scoring record, including 786 goals. At age 45, Gordie could afford to sit back and watch another generation of skaters chase after his records. Continued

How to collect from Social Security at any age!

Updated 1975 Edition
© 1975, Good News Publishing Co.

Would you like to know how much money you have invested in Social Security right to the penny? Then would you like to know how to get the most from that investment including all the brand new Social Security benefits? Now you can do both by using the short easy coupon at the bottom of this page. Here is the way it works. The left half of the coupon will be sent to the proper government office. They will run a check on your account and then send you a report in a confidential sealed envelope. This report will tell you how much of your earnings have been recorded in your Social Security account year by year. There is no charge for this service, not even postage.

The right half of the coupon will be used as a shipping label to send you a copy of a new book entitled, "How to collect from Social Security at any age." If you think that you have to wait until retirement age to start collecting your Social Security benefits, this book will really open your eyes. Here are some of the little-known facts about Social Security you will find out about in this book:

- How to increase your payment if you are already on Social Security.
- How to collect your share of the brand new Social Security benefits just passed by Congress.
- How to qualify for Social Security disability pensions at any age.
- How to increase your benefits.
- How to report your Farm income for Social Security.
- How to make your whole family eligible for Social Security benefits, even your youngest children.
- How to replace a lost Social Security card.
- How to replace a lost Social Security check.
- How to get a refund if you have overpaid your Social Security taxes. (Studies show that two out of three people overpay.)
- How to figure out what your Social Security payments should be.
- Should you tatoo your Social Security number on your body?
- What papers do you need in order to file a Social Security claim?
- How ten million people who are only 30 years old, on the average, collect Social Security.
- Should you get a divorce in order to get more Social Security? (a lot of people already have.)
- Should you have two Social Security cards?
- How to get free services which are available from Social Security.
- How to make sure your employer is not cheating you on your Social Security.
- How you may be cheating yourself out of your benefits.
- When are the five times you should get in touch with your Social Security office?
- How to work and still get Social Security benefits.
- How to cash in on Social Security even if you've never paid a penny into it.
- How to get hospital and medical insurance for the aged.
- How students 18 to 22 can get Social Security cash benefits.
- How to get the special Social Security benefits for veterans only.

Although this book can mean hundreds and perhaps thousands of dollars to you, it is priced at only $3.00. Remember, it is not enough to qualify for your Social Security benefits. To get your benefits you must know how to apply for them. You could find out by literally spending days reading through all sorts of Government materials, or visiting Social Security Administration offices . . . but this book quickly and plainly tells you how to qualify, who to contact—including all necessary addresses, and what to say. This is a 100% no risk offer. If you do not like the book, return it and your $3.00 will be immediately refunded. You will still get the confidential report on your Social Security account.

If you do not take advantage of your new Social Security benefits, you are only cheating yourself, after all, you have already paid for them. It is easy to start getting your new Social Security benefits. Just fill out both parts of the coupon below. Mail the coupon and $3.00 in cash, check or money order to The Good News Publishing Company, 515 Galveston St., Fort Worth, Texas 76104. The book will be sent to you immediately by return mail. Your confidential Social Security report will be mailed to you separately as soon as the government has finished checking on your account. Checks and money orders should be made payable to The Good News Publishing Company.

Painful elimination is unnatural.

Many people have experienced the pain of dry, hard stools. And many have come to accept this, as if it were a natural part of elimination.

But there's nothing natural about it.

The truth is, no matter what your age, you should have comfortable elimination.

And Serutan makes this possible.

Serutan is the effective laxative that forms a smooth gel in the lower digestive tract, where it combines with intestinal waste to give you comfortable relief There's no strain, and no cramps. That's because Serutan, with its natural ingredients, adds the necessary moisture and bulk to work with your system for smooth, easy results.

If you suffer from painful elimination due to constipation or dry, hard stools, try Serutan. You'll be very comfortable with it.

Incredible Howe Family

Continued

"My coming back to play all started out as kind of a joke, really," he recalls. "The Aeros drafted both Marty and Mark in the summer of 1973. The boys had been stars with the Toronto Marlboros in the junior league of Ontario. The Aeros sent their top people up to Detroit to talk with us about the boys going to Houston. One of the guys who came up to see us was Bill Dineen, the coach of the Aeros, who played five years with me in Detroit and is an old friend.

"We were sitting around talking about Marty and Mark," Gordie continues, "and Bill said, 'Gordie, why don't you come on down to Houston with us?' We all had a good laugh, but then we realized we were all serious. I had always wanted to play with the boys, but I never thought it could happen. Now I was going to get the chance. I couldn't turn it down."

Joining the Aeros also gave Gordie a perfect excuse for leaving the Red Wing organization. "I was thinking of quitting anyway," he recalls with bitterness. "All I was doing for two years as vice president in charge of nothing was shaking hands with people. I never participated in any decisions involving players or trades or anything. I suppose my 25 years of experience weren't enough."

Sam Pierson

" 'There's so much going on with Gord and the boys,' says Mrs. Howe, 'that it takes a full workday just to keep up to date on their mail....' "

Gordie scored 31 goals for Houston last year, and he scored with equal frequency this year. He is four and a half years older than Dineen, the coach of the Aeros, but shows little sign of age, continuing to see extended ice time on a regular line and to work on the Aeros' power play. His 6-0, 205-pound finely muscled body has long been considered the strongest in all of hockey.

Time eventually will catch up with Gordie, who is undoubtedly the most remarkable middle-aged athlete in history. But even when he finally retires, Aero opponents will still have to contend with two, and possibly three, other Howes. Mark, who stands 5-11 and weighs 180 pounds, powered 38 pucks into the nets in 1973-74, one of the highest totals ever achieved by a rookie in big-league hockey. He is a superstar in the making. Marty, less flashy and less naturally gifted, nonetheless is a solid, aggressive defenseman, who figures to spend many seasons in professional hockey.

Then there is the third Howe son, Murray, 14 years old, who is also coming along strongly in hockey. When the rest of the family moved South two summers ago, Murray remained in the Detroit area. "He lives with the Chuck Robertsons," says Gordie. "They're old friends of the family. Murray was doing so well in the junior-hockey program in Detroit that it would have set him back to take him to Houston, where hockey for young kids is just getting started."

If another member of the Howe clan has a say, every kid in Houston and its environs may soon be on skates. Colleen Howe, Gordie's lovely blonde wife, ran the junior-hockey program in Detroit out of the Olympia, the home arena of the Red Wings, and now is taking the lead in bringing the ice sport to youthful Texans. Together with the family's secretary, Dorothy Ringler, who has worked for the Howes since 1971, Colleen runs the affairs of Gordon Howe Enterprises, Inc., from an office in downtown Houston.

"There's so much going on with Gord and the boys," says Mrs. Howe, "that it takes a full workday just to keep up to date on their mail, their business commitments and all the things they do for hockey in Houston. We run this like a family business and we think we do a good job. Next year, when the Aeros move into The Summit, the new $18 million arena the city is putting up, things will probably get even more hectic because more people will be able to see the Aeros' games and there'll be even more hockey interest than there is now."

About the only Howe offspring not likely to be employed by the Aeros in the near future is Gordie and Colleen's only daughter, 16-year-old Cathy, who attends high school near the Howe home, a mini-mansion in the richly wooded Memorial section of western Houston. "But Cathy comes to all the games and cheers for her father and big brothers," says Colleen Howe.

Throughout sports history, there have been many family combinations on teams. There were the three DiMaggio brothers and five Delahanty brothers in major-league baseball. There once were seven brothers named Nesser playing pro football in Columbus, Ohio, in the early 1900's. Wrestling had five Dusek brothers.

In father-son sports combinations, there was the Jennings Nine of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., a baseball team in the 1880's that consisted of James Jennings and his eight sons. One of the sons, Hughie, went on to major-league fame as a shortstop with the Baltimore Orioles.

But these exploits are barely recalled today. Houston's Howes have become national figures. They may eventually forge another first among sporting families by becoming the first household to have more than one member enshrined in a Hall of Fame. Gordie was elected to hockey's pantheon after completing his NHL career in Detroit. Can his sons be far behind?

Where there's smoke there's controversy.

The papers are filled with stories against smoking.

But many people are continuing to smoke. They like it.

Yet it's obvious that there are smokers who have become concerned about what they've been hearing about 'tar' and nicotine. And so—many of them are trying lower 'tar' and nicotine cigarettes.

If you're a smoker who's become concerned, you (and millions like you) have been facing a dilemma.

Until Vantage, cigarettes that had lots of flavor had lots of 'tar' and nicotine. And cigarettes that were way down in 'tar' and nicotine were way down in taste.

Most smokers found that most low 'tar' cigarettes just didn't make it. But then we started making Vantage.

Vantage is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you'll find, but it could well be the lowest you'll enjoy. Exactly the right blend of tobacco working in harmony with the ingenious Vantage filter is what made it possible.

And that's why Vantage has become the fastest growing major cigarette brand in America.

There's no controversy about that.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Filter: 11 mg. "tar", 0.7 mg. nicotine, Menthol: 11 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine, av. per cigarette, FTC Report OCT. '74.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

How Well Do You Know The Art of "People-Handling"?

True or False: The best way to handle a child when you've got to get a splinter out of his finger or disinfect a wound is to tell him that it isn't going to hurt a bit. (See number 2)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If a lady has to face an irate male because of some blunder or oversight on her part, she should dress attractively for the encounter.

2. The best way to handle a child when you've got to get a splinter out of his finger or disinfect a wound is to tell him that it isn't going to hurt a bit.

3. If you can't keep a person from frustrating you, you'd better stay away from him or you won't be able to manage your blood pressure either.

4. If you want to draw a person out—to learn as much as you can about him in the shortest possible time—you should invite him to sit in a comfortable reclining-style chair.

5. A girl who plays "hard to get" is likely to discourage the very man she wants to attract.

6. There is no diplomatic way to insult someone.

ANSWERS

1. True. Psychological studies have shown that a man won't get nearly so mad at a woman—regardless of what she's done to provoke him—if she wears something that accents her most attractive features. Her choice of attire for the encounter may run the gamut, from the most flattering dress in her wardrobe to a miniskirt, bikini or whatever the lady feels she looks best in. While this tactic isn't guaranteed to reduce a man's anger to the status of a melted candle, it is warranted to take the edge off it.

2. False. Studies at Wayne State University have demonstrated that this is precisely the wrong way to go about reducing a child's pain and discomfort—and is likely to increase it if anything. Tests showed that when subjects were given a description of the pain sensation they were about to experience, they rated its intensity and distress on a far lower scale than when this procedure was not followed.

3. True. Studies at the University of Manitoba and Florida State University show that when a person frustrates you in some way, your blood pressure climbs significantly—and that it stays at an elevated level as long as you remain in the presence of the frustrator.

4. False—according to psychological studies at the University of Kansas, which demonstrated "that some postures are more conducive to certain psychological processes than others . . . and . . . the sitting-erect posture encouraged subjects to talk more about themselves than the supposedly more comfortable postures." Both the men and women subjects of the study indicated that they felt the most comfortable in the sitting-erect posture. And it's suggested that they may have felt more vulnerable in the supine and sitting-bent postures—and thus were less at ease. The fact that psychiatric patients are asked to assume a reclining posture may be due to the special nature of the patient-specialist relationship.

5. False. A team of behavioral scientists at the University of Wisconsin has made a careful study of the hard-to-get phenomenon and evaluated its efficacy. "We have," they concluded, "finally gained an understanding of this process. It appears that a woman can intensify her desirability if she acquires a reputation for being hard to get and then, by her behavior, makes it clear to a selected romantic partner that she is attracted to him."

6. False. The way to insult someone diplomatically is to compliment him—preferably in the presence of others—in such a way that it sounds as though you don't mean it. Complimenting him on virtues or attributes that both you and he know he lacks has a disconcerting and ego-disturbing effect that must be seen to be appreciated. And the side glances likely to be exchanged by any others present can't help but add to the subject's discomfort.

Get this elegant 5-piece monogrammed crystal setting for only $1 with trial offer described below

Imagine...this complete 5-piece setting of shimmering Litchford Crystal...each piece permanently engraved with your own initial ...all for just $1.

Why this fabulous $1 offer? We want you to hold this delicately beautiful crystal and see for yourself its sparkling elegance and exquisite quality. For only $1 you get: 12-oz. Stemmed Goblet...8-oz. Stemmed Wine Glass...12-oz. Tall Drink Glass...11 oz. Double On-The-Rocks Glass...8-oz. Beverage Glass. Five fully coordinated crystal pieces that blend beautifully with contemporary and traditional table settings—provide the right glass for every occasion. And the charm of your initial on each glass adds a personal touch as it "brings things together."

Quality craftsmanship—the key to fine monogrammed crystal. Old World craftsmanship blends with modern technology to create delicate, superb quality engraving—permanently etched—and completely dishwasher safe. Smooth, fire-polished sheer rims grace each piece...a feature found in the most expensive handmade crystal.

And that's just the beginning. When your first personalized crystal setting arrives, note its exquisite quality and richness. In the same shipment, you'll receive a second identical 5-piece setting—on approval—and from then on, you'll receive another identical setting automatically, about once a month—always on approval, of course. Pay only after you decide to keep each shipment.

And here's the best part. You can enjoy this superb crystal at the low Crystal Shop price because we buy in large quantities directly from the manufacturer. Then we ship direct to you. We have no retail stores, no salesmen, no commissions to pay. And because we buy exclusively for our Homeward House families, we can pass these economies on to you.

That's why each shipment is yours for only $5.98 plus shipping and handling. You may cancel any time after examining your introductory setting. Complete open stock available—other shapes, sizes and matching accessories, too.

No fixed number of settings to buy—it's up to you. You alone decide how many settings you want—and even how fast you want them. Beginning with your introductory setting, you'll see how you may complete your set sooner—at substantial savings.

Start your distinctive personalized crystal set now—for just $1. You won't find this fine personalized crystal setting for sale in any store, at any price—because beautifully monogrammed Litchford Crystal is available exclusively from Homeward House. Don't wait. Mail coupon with just $1 today to start your set of elegant personalized crystal.

HOW TO SELECT TRULY ELEGANT MONOGRAMMED CRYSTAL

1. Check the engraving. Is it permanently engraved and dishwasher safe?
2. Note the rims of each glass. Do they "bubble" at the edges—or are they smooth "fire polished" rims?
3. Is the glassware versatile and coordinated to offer you the proper glass for each occasion?
4. Is it fine quality crystal that offers you complete open stock availability?
5. Do you have the opportunity to order personally monogrammed accessory pieces?

SAFE PACKING FOR YOUR CRYSTAL—Each piece of Litchford Crystal is individually inspected to insure the highest quality standards—then packed with care to arrive in perfect condition. However, if a piece should arrive in unsatisfactory condition, we'll replace it at no charge. Replacement instructions in each shipment.

BEST FOOT FORWARD
A new high for "togetherness"?

Sweethearts Carol Whitlock and Graham Seymour are proof that love is the best crutch of all. Within hours, they both broke bones in their right legs. Graham was the first victim—he stumbled while attempting a Kung Fu move and broke his leg in two places. Carol drove him to the hospital but on her way home she hit a lamppost and suffered three broken toes and two cracked ribs. "I must have been dreaming of Graham's mishap when I had mine," she explained.

Billie Jean King and tennis "snobbery": "Billie Jean played in her first tournament at the age of 11½, and the events of that contest have great bearing on many of her attitudes toward the game today. The day before the tournament, Billie Jean learned that it was required that she wear white in order to play. Her mother then spent the night before the game making her a beautiful pair of tennis shorts. Yet, on the following day, Billie Jean was excluded from the group picture because she wasn't wearing a skirt. The slight hurt. And to this day Billie Jean charges that tennis is too 'snooty' and 'clubby,' too closed, in fact, to poor and lower-middle-class kids. She once blew up at a society writer who wanted an interview, insisting that what was wrong with tennis was that it was covered on the society and not the sports pages. The United States Lawn Tennis Association has shrunk in horror from her suggestions that tennis fans be encouraged to root and cheer rather than sitting in hushed silence." From "The New Breed of Athlete," by Leila Gemme (Pocket Books, $1.25).

JACK LEMMON
"I am contemporary man"

The real Jack Lemmon talks about Jack Lemmon, the film image: "I play the harried businessman or beset male with such conviction because I'm just as frustrated with contemporary life as the average guy in the audience. We're all in this together, rich or poor. The more money you make, the better you try to live, the more complicated it becomes. In essence, I am contemporary man. If I put on robes like Charlton Heston, people would laugh at me. I'm not cursed with beauty, which in this case is to my advantage. My success as a comic actor can be attributed to my belief that comedy has to be played as seriously as drama. Even a frothy spoof has to be played as if it were 'Hamlet.'" Jack is currently starring in "Prisoner of Second Avenue."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

OUR DREAM HOUSE

When we build a new house, if ever
we do,
We'll show that we've learned a thing or two:
A living room we shall do away with,
Since our family room is the one we stay with;
A dining room we can do without,
Since we eat in the kitchen or else
dine out;
The closets and storage spaces and such
Will be larger, I'd say, than the rooms are, much. . . .
My intentions are good, I'm no stupid or bad man,
But the architect surely will think me a madman.

A belligerent type turned suddenly to the man sitting next to him in a bar and demanded, "Did you just give me a nasty look?" The man shook his head. "You certainly have a nasty look," he replied calmly, "but I didn't give it to you." —Lane Olinghouse

The fellow next door is putting in a new lawn. I'm hoping mine will turn green with envy. —Robert Brault

"He was such a bad musician," panned one critic, "that when he played the national anthem, people sat down." —Tom Gallagher

Husband: "This cake is delicious. Did you buy it yourself?"

Nothing creates a firmer belief in heredity than having a good-looking child. —Conrad Fiorello

Very impressed with her first Sunday at church, my four-year-old granddaughter asked her mother why all the people were kneeling. "Shhh," her mother replied. "They are getting ready to say their prayers." Puzzled, the little one asked, "With all their clothes on?" —Helen LaMance

After the fire was out, the firemen were pulling in their hoses and stowing their gear. I overheard a mother telling her little boy, "See, Junior, when the firemen are finished, they put all their toys away." —Tom Gallagher

LITTLE EMILY

"I'm warning you. This is not the same bubbly, vivacious blonde who talked to you on the phone last night."

He's just won $25,000, poured a bucket of champagne over his head. He's not going to follow all that with a boring cigarette.

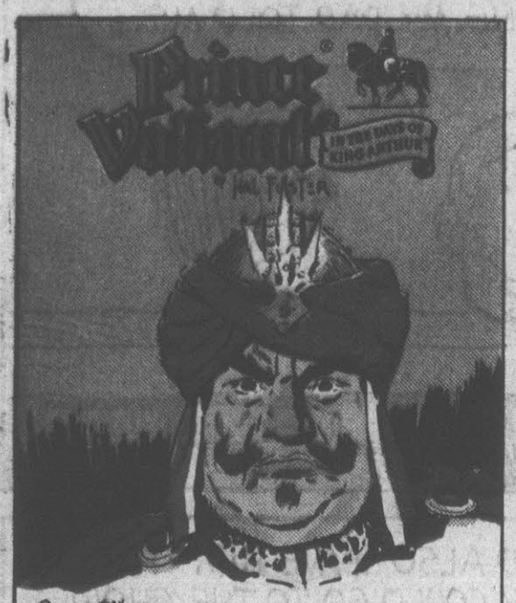
Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

by HAL FOSTER

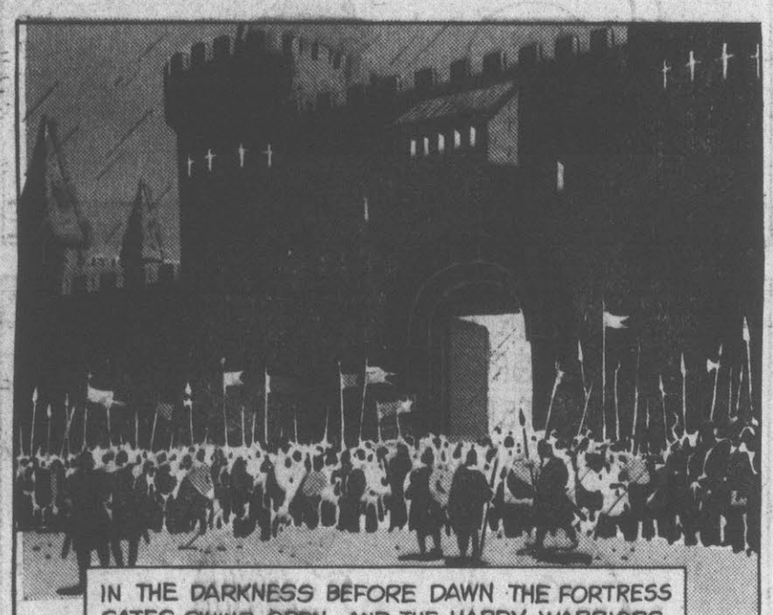


Our Story: BELLA GROSSI, MOST FEARED OF CORSAIRS, GOES WHITE WITH RAGE; HE HAS BEEN INSULTED BEFORE HIS WHOLE ARMY. HE MUST VENT HIS AWFUL RAGE ON SOMETHING.

SLOWLY HE TURNS TOWARD DUPUY, HIS SPY, AND DUPUY SCREAMS. HE IS LED AWAY STILL SCREAMING, FOR HE KNOWS THE FATE OF THOSE WHO FAIL BELLA GROSSI.

AT LAST THE SIGN PRINCE VALIANT HAS BEEN AWAITING. DOWN THE HIGHWAY IN THE SKY COME WAVE AFTER WAVE OF WILD GEESE. "AT LAST! A STORM IS ON THE WAY, DRIVING THE GEESE BEFORE IT. TOMORROW WE DO BATTLE!

"THE WILD GEESE BRING TIDINGS OF WINTER STORMS COMING DOWN FROM THE NORTH. WE NORTHMEN ARE USED TO THE COLD, BUT OUR ENEMY COMES FROM WARMER CLIMES. THEIR HANDS WILL BE NUMB. AT DAWN WE DO BATTLE!"



IN THE DARKNESS BEFORE DAWN THE FORTRESS GATES SWING OPEN, AND THE HARDY WARRIORS OF THESSALRIGA MARCH OUT AND FORM THEIR BATTLE LINE. THE STORM FORETOLD BY THE GEESE IS BEGINNING.

TRUMPETS SOUND THE ALARM IN BELLA GROSSI'S CAMP, AND THE SHIVERING PIRATES LEAVE THE SHELTER OF THEIR TENTS AND FACE THE BITTER WIND. 1995

BELLA SNARLS WITH RAGE. TO MOVE FORWARD WOULD BRING HIS ARMY WITHIN RANGE OF ARCHERS FROM THE BATTLEMENTS. THE NORTHMEN STAND IDLY WHILE HIS MEN FREEZE.

TO THE CAPTAIN OF ARCHERS, VAL SAYS: "GO NOW INTO POSITION AND FACE THE ENEMY ARCHERS. YOU WILL SUFFER HEAVY LOSSES, BUT WHEN HE HAS EMPTIED HIS QUIVER HE WILL HAVE NO MORE ARROWS."

ON LIBERTY FROM HIS TANKER IN A MIDDLE-EAST PORT, LEIGHTON OLSON HEARS A CRY OF "OLSON! YEA, MAUMEE" FROM A PASSING CAR...

OLSON, I'M SO HAPPY THAT YOU REMEMBER ME!

YOU WERE THE BIG FOOTBALL HERO— AND I WAS—AH— NOBODY!

NOBODY? ONE DAY YOU WERE TOLD YOU MUST RETURN HOME...

BECAUSE YOUR GRANDFATHER WAS DEAD— SO YOUR FATHER IS NOW THE HEAD MAN!

AND YOU ARE NEXT IN LINE! ...SOUNDS LIKE "THE STUDENT PRINCE"

MUCH TOO SIMILAR! I HAD A WONDERFUL TIME AT MAUMEE...

AND NOW I AM A PRISONER BY ACCIDENT OF BIRTH

BUT THAT'S ENOUGH OF MY TROUBLES, LEE!

I THOUGHT THAT WAS YOUR NAME WHEN IT WAS YELLED OUT AT FOOTBALL GAMES— MISTER O. LEE OLSON!

IT SOUNDS GOOD! CALL ME THAT, RU---

GO AHEAD! YOU KNOW THE GUYS IN MY MAUMEE DORM NAMED ME "RUDY"...

"AFTER RUDOLPH VALENTINO, IN "THE SHEIK"! I WAS NOT ANGRY! I LOVED IT!"

I ALSO LOVED YOUR BEAUTIFUL STALKY SCHWEISENBERGER! IF MY FATHER KNEW I EVEN THOUGHT OF SUCH A NORDIC GODDESS HE WOULD FLIP HIS...
