Anti-U.S. Feeling Is Promoted In Laos

By The Associated Press

Laotian students protesting against rising prices and foreign economic domination hurled rocks at the U.S. Embassy in Vientiane today and tried to haul down the American flag.

A U.S. Marine guard snatched the flag from two students before it hit the ground and pro-Communist Pathet Lao and government police drove students back from the compound. No injuries were reported.

Meanwhile, Saigon radio reports said long distance buses and trains are beginning services in South Vietnam where for years flying was the only safe way to travel. Cambodia reported that it had begun a campaign to clean up "the stink and pungent smells left behind by the traitors," and to open its chief seaport, Kompong Som.

Associated Press correspondent Peter O'Loughlin reported from Vientiane that the demonstration by more than 3,000 students and teachers began at the baroque Victory Monument a few blocks from the U.S. Embassy.

Students carrying placards saying "Yankee Go Home!" and "Cut the Throats of the Rightists!" paraded around the monument chanting "CIA Go Home." On their way to a rally at the national stadium the crowd detoured to pass the U.S. Embassy compound.

The crowd became more excited, rocks were thrown and an attempt was made to lower the flag.

However, the Pathet Lao police and a student leader sitting on top of the fence shouted for the demonstrators to move on and they obeyed, averting a potentially dangerous situation.

When the crowd had dispersed, a U.S. Marine hoisted a new flag to the top of the staff.

In another development, a Japanese report from Thailand said Soviet and East German diplomats were enraged with the Khmer Rouge who took over Phnom Penh three weeks ago.

The newspaper Yomiuri quoted a Japanese who came out Thursday in the second convoy of foreigners as saying that Khmer Rouge troops ordered 29 foreigners at the Soviet and East German embassies to move to the French embassy, and that four Soviet diplomats arrived there with slight injuries apparently sustained while resisting the Khmer Rouge.

A French doctor who served in Phnom Penh told a French television reporter that former Cambodian Premiers Sirik Matak and Long Boret were executed by a firing squad at the Sports Club opposite the Hotel Phnom. He also said Khmer Rouge forces slit the throats of 300 persons and raped French women.

The new regime in Saigon announced in a broadcast today that banknotes of the old government are legal tender but all other currencies, checks and gold are not, and it said an exchange center had been set up to replace closed banks.

The broadcast added that the new government had taken over the management of all foreign banks in the country.

Test For Energy Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — An energy conservation bill with multibillion-dollar gasoline tax hikes gets its next big test Monday in the House Ways and Means Committee.

"It's a good, sound bill," said Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., its chief author and chairman of the tax-drafting Ways and Means Committee, after the divided panel finished basic decisions Thursday night.

"The bill is a bad job and a wrong approach" to the energy problem, said Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr., D-Ind.

Key parts of the bill would increase gasoline taxes, tax gas-guzzling new cars, set up oil import quotas, create new duties to replace existing petroleum tariffs, levy taxes on some industrial use of petroleum and natural gas and give Americans a tax cut for installing energy-saving home insulation.

By 20 to 16, reflecting the political struggle which marked the committee's lengthy initial drafting work, the panel directed Ullman to transform the final draft into an actual bill. It then will go back to the committee Monday, when a bitter clash is expected over a major item left out of the package.

The entire 12-man Republican side of the committee was joined by Jacobs and three other Democrats in voting against that motion.

The missing feature is a proposed windfall profits tax on petroleum producers. That, in turn, is tied to a major dispute in another House committee over whether to take price controls off U.S. crude oil.

Ullman, trying to meet President Ford's demand for a House vote on energy taxes this month, said the committee would take its final action Monday on the bill and discuss developing a windfall profits tax as a possible amendment to be offered once the bill reaches the House floor.

Next Two Years Critical: See Oil Embargo Specter

By The Associated Press

Britain's authoritative International Institute for Strategic Studies said today the possibility of a new Arab-Israel conflict raises the specter of another oil embargo.

"In the Middle East, the next two years will be critical," said the report "Strategic Survey - 1974."

But it said there is still a need for "a framework for a comprehensive settlement to give incentive for negotiation.... A new Middle East war will almost certainly lead to a renewed use of the 'oil weapon' by the Arab oil-producing countries."

The institute's panel of experts in warfare, strategy and arms noted "repeated statements by American policymakers that military intervention to protect oil supplies should not be excluded" as a last resort. It said such action would lead to a global conflict.

It predicted confrontation between the Soviet Union and the United States amid "growing doubts in the United States about Soviet motives and American advantages from detente."

The survey gave high praise to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's "statesmanship" but also saw some weaknesses in his one-man approach to diplomacy.

In Damascus, Arab diplomatic sources said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat will hold a "coordination conference" with Syrian President Hafez Assad and Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat before his scheduled meeting with President Ford in Austria June 1.

The sources said the tripartite minisummit was expected to take place during the third week of May while Sadat is on an extensive tour of Arab countries, including Saudi Arabia, Jordan and Iraq.

Sadat and Arafat have not met for formal talks since a rift developed between Egypt and the Palestine Liberation Organization last year over Kissinger's abortive peace efforts in the Middle East.

A settlement was announced when Sadat and Arafat attended the funeral of Saudi Arabia's King Faisal in Riyadh last March.

Meanwhile, Egypt's official Middle East News Agency reported that on Saturday South Yemen's supreme court will begin the trial of nine persons accused of spying for the United States and Israel.

It said in a dispatch from Aden the defendants were all employes of an American telecommunications company and were arrested in August 1972, but it did not report the nationality of the defendants.

It said all were charged with "gathering military and economic information for the U.S. and Israeli intelligence services on the strategic Bab el-Mandab Straits," which commands the entrance to the Red Sea.

Airport Ride Service Has Council OK

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council last night awarded two Certificates of Convenience and Necessity to Ms. Leona Matusko, owner of Airport Limousine Service of Goldsboro, in order to operate a limousine service from the Kinston Airport to Greenville.

Under terms of the certificates, which provide for the operation of two vehicles, Ms. Matusko will offer scheduled limousine service to Greenville from the Kinston Airport and be authorized to make scheduled pick-ups at the Ramada Inn and Holiday Inn here for return trips.

Ms. Matusko, it was explained, has a six-month trial contract with Stallings Field in Kinston to provide limousine service and under conditions of the local certificates, the franchises will be automatically terminated if the Stallings Field franchise is not renewed.

Airport Limousine Service will charge a flat $5 per passenger fare regardless of the number of passengers on each scheduled trip.

Two certificates were available here, according to Chief of Police Glenn Cannon, who noted that a certificate or franchise is necessary for each vehicle in operation. Ms. Matusko explained that the need existed for her firm to operate two limousines since the planes are seldom on time at the airport and scheduled times for service may be in conflict when late arrivals occur.

She explained that her firm has been providing limousine service from Kinston to Greenville since April 15th on a trial basis with a passenger drop-off at the Ramada Inn.

William E. Jones of City Cab Co., Greenville, also requested a Certificate of Convenience and Necessity in order to operate a limousine service for the Pitt-Greenville Airport and surrounding areas. Jones, who proposed an on-call service, explained that his company could not compete with the $5 fare proposed by Ms. Matusko and he pointed out that his firm has quite a business load from the new Proctor & Gamble plant and some from Burroughs Wellcome Co.

"All we are asking is to be able to continue that without friction," Jones added. He said that City Cab Co. had no objection to Ms. Matusko picking up passengers at the airport but to make other stops would be infringing on potential passenger fares for the local firm.

It was pointed out that the Greenville cabs are not permitted to pick up passengers at Kinston for return trips to Greenville unless the pick-ups are by appointment. Ms. Matusko was not authorized to pick up passengers here for trips to Kinston without appointment prior to the granting of the franchise for limousine service.

Councilman Clarence Gray said that the interests of the local taxi firm should be protected here since local cabs cannot make pick-ups in Kinston.

Councilman John Howard said that the idea of scheduled limousine service and that of on-call taxi service are two different things. He contended that the scheduled service is a step in the right direction toward getting improved air service to Greenville and the eastern part of the state.

It was suggested that both City Cab and Airport Limousine Service be given franchises to operate but Howard noted, "If you give two certificates, everybody is going to go broke twice as fast. . .because I don't think the traffic is there."

Jones said that awarding one certificate to each firm would not help the situation.

Gray voted against the motion to award both certificates to the Airport Limousine Service.

In other business, the Council called for a public hearing on June 5 to consider an amendment to the zoning ordinance permitting all municipally-owned buildings and facilities to be permitted uses within all zones except flood plain. The public hearing was called as a result a city proposal to construct a West Greenville Fire Station at 2304 and 2305 Memorial Drive.

The matter will go to the Planning and Zoning Commission for consideration at its May 28 meeting.

After holding a public hearing on a request for rezoning property at Clark and 13th Streets from R-6 (residential) to Unoffensive Industry, the Council voted to rezone the former warehouse site to Unoffensive Industry but not two lots located behind the site as included in the orginal request.

The warehouse, which burned last year, was actually a non-conforming use in a R-6 zone and reconstruction of the facility would not be possible without rezoning.

Joe Laney, executive director of the Redevelopment Commission, explained that the area is included in the first year housing segment of the Community Development Program.

Speight Co-Recipient Of O. Max Gardner Award

AWARD—Francis Speight, artist-in-residence at East Carolina University, shown at his easel, was announced today co-winner of the 1975 O. Max Gardner Award of the University of North Carolina. (ECU News Bureau Photo)

CHAPEL HILL—Internationally acclaimed painter Francis Speight, artist-in-residence and professor in the School of Art, East Carolina University, today was named co-winner of the 1975 O. Max Gardner Award of the University of North Carolina.

The coveted award also went to Helen Grey Edmonds, faculty member, chairman of the History Department and dean of the graduate school at North Carolina Central University, Durham.

The O. Max Gardner award is presented annually to members of the faculty of University of North Carolina member institutions who, in the opinion of a committee, have contributed to humanity to a degree to deserve such recognition.

Speight, who has taught painting for more than 50 years, and is particularly noted for his landscapes received the North Carolina Award in 1964 and was winner of the Morrison Award in 1973. He was nominated for the O. Max Gardner Award by East Carolina University Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins.

Speight's paintings today hang in 30 or more museums and permanent collections of art. Born Sept. 11, 1896, near Windsor in Bertie County, he is the son of a clergyman and farmer, Thomas Trotman Speight, and Margaret Otelia Sharrock Speight. He attended public school and high school near Lewiston, and later studied at Wake Forest College and took art lessons from Miss Ida Poteat of Meredith College, Raleigh. He next enrolled at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, near Philadelphia, where he has been associated as a student and teacher since 1920. Many of his favorite subjects for paintings have been in Manayunk, a hilly industrial area along the Schuykill River on the edge of Philadelphia. One of his most famous paintings is entitled "Scene in West Manayunk." In recent years he has painted numerous eastern North Carolina scenes, including a series of Sans Souci ferry in Bertie County.

HELEN EDMONDS

He is married to the former Sarah Jane Blakeslee, an outstanding painter in her own right. They have two children, Thomas Blakeslee and Elizabeth Sharrock.

In 1961, Speight was appointed Artist-in-Residence at ECU and holds the faculty post of Professor of Fine Arts. He has continued painting and has taught in the summer sessions at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts since returning to North Carolina. He and his wife live in Greenville.

ECU Bond Bill

RALEIGH (AP)—A bill was to be introduced in the North Carolina General Assembly today to authorize a $40 million statewide bond referendum to finance construction of a four-year medical school at East Carolina University.

Rep. Carolyn Mathis, R-Mecklenburg, sponsor of the measure, said she did not consider it a referendum on the creation of the school, which was mandated by the 1974 legislature.

but how we are going to do the funding," she said.

Rep. Horton Rountree, D-Pitt, characterized the bill as a publicity stunt for Mrs. Mathis and gave it no chance of passage.

"What is her interest in East Carolina University other than to use it as a tool for publicity purposes for her own gain?" Rountree said.

He noted that Charlotte legislators had traditionally been against the ECU medical school.

"She's never voted for anything for ECU in her life," Rountree said of Mrs. Mathis.

The legislature approved $15 million for the medical school in 1974. There is $35 million earmarked for it in the proposed budget for the 1975-1976 biennium.

Mrs. Mathis wants to replace the $35 million appropriation with the bond funding.

CITY LAW, BUT NO STATE ONE

I witnessed a dog being struck by a car recently. The car didn't even slow down. I tried to get the license number, but couldn't. Later I wondered if it would have done any good if I had. Is it against the law to hit an animal and run? C.T.

Section 5-32 of the Greenville Animal Ordinance reads: It shall be unlawful for any person injuring an animal by running over, or into same or coming into contact with same, with an automobile, motorcycle, bicycle, or other vehicles, to fail to notify immediately the owner of said animal, the Division of Animal Control, or the Police Department of the city.

A spokesman for the Highway Patrol said there is no state law dealing with this matter.

NO EXAMS FOR VENDERS

Are snow cone venders required to have health examinations? Are their vehicles and equipment inspected for sanitary conditions? R. C.

Pitt County Environmental Health Director Willie Pate says, "No, health examinations are not required. He said he does not believe that either the ice or the flavored syrup is very conducive to bacteria growth.

IMPORTANT DATE

Hotline failed to include an important fact about the five per cent federal income tax credit discussed in yesterday's column. Construction of the residence must have been begun before March 26, 1975.

Vandals Attack Parked Cars

BOONE, N.C. (AP)—Vandals punctured tires on 16 state-owned cars and a private car in the motor pool area of Appalachian State University early today.

ASU security officers set the damage at $1,400. They said the incident occurred about 3:30 a.m., based on their periodic checks.

Pitt Unemployment Total Down For March

Total unemployment for Pitt County during the month of March, 1975, was 8.4 percent of the total civilian labor force.

According to Jim Hannan, manager of the Greenville Employment Security Commission, a total of 3,020 persons were unemployed, a decrease of 80 persons were unemployed, a decrease of 80 persons since January, 1975.

The March, 1974, estimate showed 2,660 persons or 7.6 percent of the civilian work force unemployed.

Durning March, an average of 1,337 continued claims were filed with the local ESC office.

"Total resident employment in Pitt County, estimated at 32,910 in mid-March, increased by 840 over the past two months and 650 over the comparable period of one year ago.

"The bulk of the increase since January was attributable to seasonal worker additions in agriculture," Hannan explained.

Manufacturing employment has declined by 420 over the past two months as all industry segments except textiles have recorded employee losses. The largest worker loss occurred in the apparel industry (340).

"An employee increase of 230 was noted in the non-manufacturing sector over the past 60 days as government continued as the leader with an increase of 300.

"Total employment in Pitt County will probably increase by about 2,500 by June," Hannan said. "Nearly all of this projected increase is expected in the agricultural sector. Both manufacturing and non-manufacturing anticipate slight decreases over the next two months with a sharp upturn expected in manufacturing by September.

"One major plant continues to hire people and three new industiies plan to begin hiring within the next two months," Hannan explained. "One plant closed in Ayden within the last three months but another similar operation moved in and hired many of the same workers."

GLOMAR EXPLORER OFF CATALINA — Life guards and yachtsmen were speculating on the arrival of Hughes' Glomar Explorer off Catalina Island yesterday. The ship reportedly used by the CIA last summer to recover part of a Russian submarine, was positioned off the island amid the usual mystery. Residents of the island said crewmen were secretive, but did say the Glomar would leave the area today. (AP Wirephoto)

City Council...

He said that he did not feel the Planning and Zoning Commission was fully aware of CDP plans for the area when it recommended the rezoning to the Council.

A request by Otis Lee Tucker for a Taxi Certificate of Convenience and Necessity was approved. Chief Cannon said that the city has 32 franchises and currently 28 have been issued.

Tucker said that he was requesting the franchise in order to add another taxi and he pointed out that currently cabs are not available at certain times late at night. He said he was employed at City Cab Co. as of last night but he had been informed that if the new franchise was granted, he would have to leave the firm.

William Jones of City Cab Co. said the firm felt that "we have enough cabs in the city." Jones said that 24 cabs are currently in operation with the other four that are authorized not in service at this time.

A resolution of endorsement of Greenville Utilities Commission plans to extend sanitary sewer service to western segments of the city and GUCO applications for grants to the N.C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources and Economic Development Administration for assistance was approved. GUCO, with plans to extend service to the new Pitt Memorial Hospital, Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, and medical development area, is seeking a grant of $63,270 from NER and $235,690 from EDA towards the total project cost of $471,380.

The board also gave its approval to a resolution establishing a policy for attendance by members of boards and commissions appointed by the Council.

The board also gave its approval to a resolution establishing a policy for attendance by members of boards and commissions appointed by the Council. The amendment to the city ordinance stipulates that if a member misses three or more consecutive meetings or fails to attend at least 75 per cent of the meetings in a year, he will be replaced. Gray voted against the motion.

An ordinance was adopted amending the city's 1974-75 Budget Ordinance by appropriating $38,000 from the general fund for airport runway improvements. The money will be turned over to the Airport Authority so that the city will not have to carry it over into the new budget.

A permit for placement of a mobile home on Griffin Street was granted to Henry Blackburn. Blackburn was relocated by the Redevelopment Commission to a house on Griffin Street, it was noted, and plans now call for the house to be demolished. The site is located in the Southside Renewal Project, it was noted.

The council denied a request by Mr. and Mrs. Nat Sutton for a permit to place a mobile home at 208 E. Mumford Road for rental purposes.

Councilman Dr. Frank Fuller contended that the request could not be granted without breaking the law stipulated in the ordinance. A ditch runs through the property and makes construction of a house unfeasible, it was pointed out. A mobile home had been located on the lot for some 14 years.

The matter will have to go to the Planning and Zoning Commission for possible rezoning action before any further action can be taken by the Council toward the application.

Applications for renewal permits were granted to: ABC Mobile Homes for the mobile home at 609 W. Greenville Boulevard for use as an office; Carr Motor Co. Inc. for mobile home on Memorial Drive for use as an office; Oakwood Mobile Homes for mobile home at 708 W. Greenville Boulevard for use as an office; and Keith W. Harrelson for the mobile home located at intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Evans Street for use as an office for sale of portable storage buildings.

A request by the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville for permission to repaint the fire hydrants in downtown Greenville as a part of the U.S. Bicentennial Celebration was approved.

The Council scheduled a public hearing on a recommendation by the Planning and Zoning Commission for rezoning from Highway Commercial to Shopping Center of property located north of the E.F. Craven Co. property on Memorial Drive.

A vote on a motion to rezone property on Elizabeth Street between Ward and Fourth Streets from R-6 to Downtown Commercial Fringe in order to allow for the use of the property as a business location for fitting prosthetic devices resulted in a tie with Mayor Eugene West voting in favor of the measure.

The request had included rezoning the property located in the 400 block of Elizabeth Street as well as the northern 100 feet of the Phi Kappa Tau property on the east side of Elizabeth Street.

Howard said that he could not understand why the fraternity property should be rezoned. City Planner John Schofield asserted that the purpose of adding the fraternity property was to prevent spot zoning.

The motion, which approved the rezoning of the property involving the artificial limb fitting business but not including the fraternity property, gained the approval of Council members Percy Cox, Joe Taft and Howard while Mrs. Mildred McGrath, Fuller and Clarence Gray voted against the measure.

Mayor West reappointed Marshall W. (Woody) Crumpler to a new five-year term on the Greenville Housing Authority. Crumpler completed his first term on May 5 and was eligible for reappointment.

Approval was also given to a recommendation by the Traffic Commission that a request by Greenville City Schools for the erection of a "no parking this side of street" sign on the west side of Berkley Road from North Overlook to Tremont be approved.

Privilege license requirements were waived for the Greenville Jaycees for the Buck-Page Rides at Clark's Shopping Center May 12-17 and for a rodeo at the Fair Grounds on May 9.

Also approved was a request by George Saad for a refund in the amount of $15 for a privilege license purchased in error.

Collice Moore, representing Judson Blount, owner of property located on State Road 1700 north of Coastal Chemical Corp. and southwest of Pinewood Forest Subdivision, notified the Council that Blount had withdrawn his request that the property be rezoned from RA-20 to Highway Commercial.

City Manager Harry Hagerty told the Council that the Town Common has been taken over and charged to the Public Works Department for maintenance until July 1, with assistance from the Recreation Department.

Alleyways designated as northeast, northwest, southeast and southwest in the Central Business District area were accepted for dedication and recording. The alleyways are located behind businesses in the area of the intersection of Fourth and Evans Streets.

The Council voted to approve a request by the Pitt County Mental Health Association for placement of a banner at the corner of Third and Evans Street but voted to prohibit all future banner placements in the city by rescinding the city ordinance.

Mother's Day Originated By Miss Anna Jarvis

MCAS, CHERRY POINT—The honor of originating Mother's Day belongs to Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia.

On Sunday, May 9, 1907, Miss Jarvis asked a friend to remember with her the anniversary of her mother's death, and mentioned her desire to dedicate a day to all mothers.

Before the next anniversary came, she had interested many individuals and organizations in the observance of the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day.

As a result of her efforts, Philadelphia observed the day, May 10, 1908. Miss Jarvis then became the missionary of the idea.

She wrote thousands of letters to influential men in all walks of life. She interviewed many public men and pleaded for the observance day.

Since 1912, the governor of Texas has observed the day by pardoning a number of prisoners on that day. State after state has adopted its observance.

In May, 1913, Pennsylvania made it a state holiday. On May 10, 1913, a resolution passed the Senate and the House of Representatives to make the second Sunday in May a national holiday, "dedicated to the memory of the best mother in the world, your mother."

Miss Jarvis has been the means of organizing a national and an international organization to further the promotion of the observance of this day.

It was first observed in England as early as 1913. The second Sunday in May is observed in all churches irrespective of creed, and the previous Friday is observed in public schools. The previous day is observed in business establishments. It is observed "through some distinct act of kindness, visit, letter, gift, or tribute to show rememberance of the mother whom general affection is due."

The Mothers Day slogan is "the best mother who ever lived," and the badge of the day is a white carnation.

Service League Officers Named At Monday Meet

Three new officers were elected at the May meeting of the Greenville Service League held Monday at the Elm Street Recreation Center.

Mrs. Bernard Vick was elected to the office of recording secretary, Mrs. William Sneed will serve as corresponding secretary and Mrs. W.C. Taylor Jr. is the new treasurer.

Mrs. Jack Whichard, program chairman, announced plans for the upcoming luncheon to be held May 21 at the Greenville Golf and Country Club. Flowers for the luncheon will be arranged by the Sustaining members, under the leadership of Mrs. W.S. Bost.

Mrs. John Biggs, president heard the following committee reports. Mrs. Donald Bailey reported on the two-day visit of the Bloodmobile on the ECU campus April 21-22. A total of 64 workers worked 220 hours and collected 405 pints of blood. She announced the next visit of the Bloodmobile will be May 14-15 at the Moose Lodge and there will be a two-day visit in June.

Mrs. Norman Bennett, Emergency Charities chairman, answered five calls during April for food stamps, rent and utilities. Mrs. Robert VanVeld, Hospital Fund chairman, reported that two hospital bills had been paid during April. The loan of a walker and a wheel chair was reported by Mrs. Charles Gilbert, Lending Chest chairman. Mrs. Robert Abbott urged members to finish sewing layettes for the hospital.

The league voted to give one Girl Scout campership for two weeks and two one-week Boy Scout camperships. They also voted to make a contribution to the Greenville Recreation Department for the use of their building and to the Salvation Army for the storage facilities they provide for the Lending Chest equipment.

Boy Friend Won't Show His Hand

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I met a very nice young man at a church fellowship affair for singles. Clyde had good manners and dressed well, and although he was on the quiet side, I managed to make enough conversation with him so that he asked to see me again.

We saw each other a few times and seemed to hit it off well. But there is one problem: Clyde doesn't like to shake hands with anybody. In fact, he even asked me not to take him any place where he would have to shake hands.

I noticed that when Clyde was introduced to another man, he kept his hands in his pockets and said, "Pleased to meet you." The other fellow looked a little embarrassed because he was all set to shake hands with Clyde.

Does Clyde have a problem? Or am I making too much out of this?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Clyde has a problem. It's probably an obsession with "germs"—imagined or real. In a society where handshaking is customary, refusing to shake hands could be considered unfriendly or even insulting.

Clyde would be well advised to talk to a professional about it. And I hope he does.

DEAR ABBY: A while back, a lady wrote and told you that she didn't like the way her daughter-in-law kept house. You told the mother not to say anything since it was not her house.

Does this hold true for the marriage problems of one's married children? I say, the parents should stay out of their kids' domestic squabbles even though they want to help.

Am I right or wrong?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: You're right! The last person to mediate a family fight is a member of that family.

DEAR ABBY: We desperately need your help and advice on a very serious matter.

Our daughter who is only 14 (I will call her "Mary") is pregnant. What we are going through right now is unbelievably trying. Our gynecologist has been a tremendous help. He has suggested terminating the pregnancy. My husband and I agree that this is the best solution. So does Mary. (Thank God she told us in time!)

Our problem is that the doctor has suggested that when this is all over, we should put our Mary on birth-control pills.

My husband feels that if we do, Mary will feel free to have sex whenever the opportunity arises. We certainly do not want this.

Speaking as her mother, I never want to have to go through this again. Mary says that she has learned her lesson and that she will never get in a spot like this again. But how can we be sure?

What are your views on the subject, Abby? And what have other parents done when they have had to make such a decision?

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: I agree with the doctor. I would also provide Mary with counseling. (Your Planned Parenthood offers excellent help in this area.) Good luck.

INFLATION HURTS

DENVER (UPI) — Inflation is cutting deeply into education programs across the country, a nationwide survey of state school officials has confirmed. This points to the likelihood of an extended period of curtailed services.

The survey, by the Education Commission of the States (ECS), found that state education agencies generally are working hard to minimize the effects of inflation on the schools. But many are at a loss to suggest long-range solutions to the financial squeeze.

Bride-Elect Entertained

Miss Laura Ebbs, bride-elect of Steve Benjamin, was honored at a bridal shower Monday night given by Miss Faye Manning and her mother, Mrs. J. T. Manning Jr. at their home in Greenville.

As the guests arrived, they were greeted by the hostesses, the honoree and her mother.

The house was decorated throughout with floral arrangements of yellow, green and white and candles. The gift table was decorated with wedding bells and green and yellow ribbon. The refreshment table in the dining room was covered with a cut-work linen cloth centered with an arrangement of daisies, lilies-of-the-valley and baby's breath.

Mrs. John D. Ebbs, mother the bride-elect, presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Manning served bridal cakes.

The honoree was presented a rose corsage, a gift of china, and a hand-embroidered wall hanging by the hostess. Each guest was given a hand appliqued daisy as a favor.

N.C. Primary Is Still With Us

A legislative committee has killed a bill which would have abolished the presidential primary.

There was a strong move afoot to do away with the primary, but the movement ended quickly when Alabama governor George Wallace appeared before the N.C. Legislature to protest. Wallace won the primary in 1972.

Wallace said from Montgomery following the committee action that he felt the people of North Carolina were grateful to the committee for its action.

The Alabama governor had maintained that the action to kill the primary was aimed at denying him the North Carolina delegates which he anticipates winning in 1976.

Since former governor Terry Sanford is again considered a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination it is anticipated that there will be a rematch between Wallace and Sanford in the North Carolina primary. It would be, if course, a blow to Sanford's chances if he were to lose again in the primary to Wallace,

At any rate, while there is still some question as to when the presidential primary will be held, it is certain that there will be a presidential primary in 1976. We have never felt that a primary was particularly helpful in our state. Nevertheless we will try it again in 1976 and perhaps a final decision can be made on it following that year when the question of who will be participating will not be an issue.

Concept Suggests New Planning Is Necessary

Mrs. Ruth Cherry, a director of the N.C. Farm Bureau and chairman of the N.C. Farm Bureau's women's committee, believes rural and city people are fast becoming one.

"We must work together to have a great country in which to live," she told a meeting of Pitt Farm Bureau women this week.

We can readily see this happening here in Pitt County. Many rural dwellers work in the municipalities and the rural citizens want the same services as city folk.

This is something that is going to take some cooperative planning between the county and municipal governments.

Excursion Draws Frowns

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Plans for a $102,000 Japanese excursion by 20 Tar Heel educators, mostly at taxpayer expense, has drawn immediate and sharp reaction from budget-cutting members of the General Assembly.

Labeled "Group Projects Abroad: North Carolina Educators to Japan," the outing would take 42 days, from May 19 till June 29. The total cost of $102,000 would be shared by the U.S. Office of Education ($50,000), and another $52,046 from non-federal sources, including $36,976 in state salaries paid participants during the six-week trip.

A direct allotment from the budget of the State Department of Public Instruction in the amount of $12,600, and a foundation grant of $2,000 from the Smith Reynolds Foundation are also included.

Trip Participants

Sponsored by the State Department of Public Instruction, the Japanese visitors include a member of the public relations staff of the state department, Linda G. Irwin, and an administrative intern, Jean Heningburg, who is on an exchange program from the state of New Jersey, and will return there following the trip.

Other participants include Assistant State Supt. George Kahdy, and the head of the instruction television system for the state, Reta Richardson.

Two directors of regional educational centers, F.L. Britt of Grifton, and Culver Dale of Canton; two local supervisors, William Newkirk of Windsor, and Barbara Kosejan of Charlotte; two principals, Richard Green of Kings Mountain, and Tom Posey of Canton; and four local superintendents, S.L. Barker of Boone, Ed Lakey of Yadkinville, Dr. Dean Pruette of High Point, W.T. Hair of Elizabethtown; and an assistant superintendent, Earl Raynor of Goldsboro, are on the list.

Two teachers have been selected, while two are yet to be picked. The two are Mrs. Sandra Boyce of Edenton, and Joseph E. Webb of Jacksonville. Dr. J. Douglas Eyre, geography specialist with wide knowledge of Japan, a professor at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill will be the group leader.

Betty Bullard, consultant in the division of social studies at the State Department of Public Instruction, said the weight toward administrative people is deliberate, with the idea of introducing the decision-makers to the value of foreign travel for teachers.

The purpose of the visit, Miss Bullard said, are to "refine the perspectives of educators as they look at other societies and work with the key question, can you take it from a textbook, or is there more value in something more immediate."

Not A "Trip"

Miss Bullard objects to use of the term "trip" in describing the visit, choosing to label it "on-site exploration." She fears adverse public reaction to the idea of a "trip, or tour, as being frivolous with all its accoutrements."

The group will take a jet break in Honolulu before proceeding on to Tokyo, where the first item on the agenda calls for "Introduction to the Japanese Bath."

The next day will include a tour of Tokyo, followed by an all-day schedule of "Independent Experiences, collecting data," on Friday.

Home visits with Japanese families, tours of farm and industrial areas, temple tours, and in-depth work in areas of art, drama, education, athletics, etc., are on the lengthy itinerary.

Miss Bullard said final plans for the tour are being held up by lack of final approval from the federal level, but she is "reasonably sure of funding."

Meanwhile, when legislators learned of the planned foreign tour, leaders of the budget process on the House side took immediate opposition, and plans are afoot for steps to halt the project.

State Rep. J. Ed Davenport, D-Nash County, who is a member of both the Base Budget Committee and the Commission on Governmental Waste, was outspokenly critical and led a fact-finding committee to determine if the General Assembly could block the expedition.

A Secret Dove Unveiled

WASHINGTON—If Nelson Rockefeller keeps it up, he could become our greatest Vice President since Spiro Agnew. Just the other day he explained to the National Urban Coalition that the reason he did not criticize American involvement in Vietnam in the 1960s was because he feared he would harm New York State's chances of obtaining federal aid.

"I was elected governor of New York and my responsibility was to the people of New York," he was quoted as saying. "You don't kick people in Washington in the shins if you expect them to do something for you." He added, "I think I did a pretty good job if I do say so myself." Rockefeller claimed that during his administration the state increased its aid from the federal government from 5 cents on each dollar of taxes paid by the state to 18 cents.

When the questioner told the Vice President he was disappointed that Rockefeller failed to speak out while the government was spending $150 billion and 50,000 lives on the war in Vietnam, the Vice President shot back, "I can see you never ran for political office, young man."

One's sympathies can go out to Rockefeller who as governor of New York had to keep quiet on the war to get his state as much money as he could. There must have been some terrible soul-searching during those difficult years of the '60s.

"Governor, the students are up in arms about the war; there are demonstrations in every city, and we just keep pouring in more men to no avail. Don't you think you ought to come out with a statement against U.S. involvement in Vietnam?"

"Oh God, I wish I could. But I have to think of the state first. We need some more money for our highways and I'm not going to kick those guys in Washington in the shins right now."

"Couldn't you say it in such a way that they wouldn't get angry?"

"I've thought and thought about it, but you don't know how sensitive the White House is. One word from me about the war and we'll lose the Brooklyn Navy Yard. I've got a good relationship with President Johnson and he just gave me five more veterans' hospitals. I'm not about to blow it with some stupid statement that could only get him sore at me. That war means a lot to Johnson and he's been pretty good to anyone who supports him. But one peep out of me and we could lose $100 million in urban renewal."

"You're a good governor, sir. The easy thing would be to speak out against the war. The tough thing is to remain quiet and get all the federal money you can."

"Someday those same students who are demonstrating in the streets are going to say, 'Thank the Lord Rocky kept his mouth shut about the war. Otherwise we never would have had a new post office in Albany?'"

"The war won't go on forever, Governor, but you've given New York monuments for the future."

"Why don't those kids understand when you run for political office you have to please those who are in charge of the purse strings? I could say the war is a waste of money and lives. I could say we ought to get out of

Sudden Exile Influx

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has previously opened its borders to hundreds of thousands of political refugees, but never before the current Vietnamese influx have so many come so suddenly about whom so little is known.

In 1956 and 1957, the immigration of more than 40,000 persons who fled Hungary was spread over 18 months. From 1961 to 1974, 460,000 Cuban refugees were absorbed, most into the Miami area during the mid-1960s.

In those two instances, the names and backgrounds of almost all who came were known to immigration officials before the refugees stepped on to U.S. soil.

History and geography combined to permit both migrations to be handled gradually and without the emergency aura underscored by the frantic evacuation of Saigon.

Nor was there the bitter resistance shown the new South Vietnamese arrivals and, in general, Cubans and Hungarians were welcomed without fear that they would take American jobs.

Hungarian refugee Istvean Gereben said Thursday he was "stunned" by the groundswell of resistance to the estimated 130,000 South Vietnamese either on their way or already in the United States.

"I am deeply troubled with this whole affair," Gereben said. "I have never been exposed to any kind of discrimination or that kind of badmouthing.

"I don't understand what happened in the last 18 years," said Gereben, who came to the United States in January 1957 along with his family aboard a crowded U.S. troop ship.

Other Hungarians came to the United States aboard U.S. Air Force or United Nations-sponsored transport planes. Almost all were taken to Camp Kilmer, N.J., a converted Army base where jobs and homes were found before the refugees moved on to lives in a new country.

In telephone interviews, Gereben and other refugees recalled that almost all Hungarians who came were members of professions or had job skills then needed in the U.S. economy.

All had been screened at refugee camps in Austria. One former immigrant remembered that "the United States took the cream of the crop" from among the estimated 190,000 Hungarians who fled when the Soviet Union stopped an anti-Communist revolt in Budapest with troops and tanks.

Gereben said Camp Kilmer, with its comfortably furnished wooden military barracks and adequate food and medical care, was home for most of the passing refugees for an average of two weeks.

Learned Lesson From Suit

By JOHN KILGO

Mecklenburg Sheriff Donald Stahl, never one to back away from a fight, withdrew his appeal of a conviction of firing a deputy sheriff because of the way the deputy voted.

Stahl had been fined $500 and was forced to give deputy sheriff Sam McCollum his job back after being convicted in District Court. It was that judgment that he had appealed, but withdrew before Superior Court B.J. Falls on Wednesday.

"I still think I was singled out and charged under an obscure law," Stahl said, "and I detest the idea of having a mark on my record. But for my own reasons I decided not to go through with the appeal."

Stahl had been charged under a law passed some 40 years ago that prohibited sheriffs and clerks of court from firing people for political reasons. He could have been removed from office because of the offense, but District Court Judge Cliff Johnson said he thought part of the statue was unconstitutional.

McCollum had reportedly voted for Stahl's Democratic opponent, John Kelly Wall, in last November's race for sheriff in Mecklenburg County. When Stahl found out about it, he fired McCollum on the spot.

"I think he was disloyal to vote for my opponent, and stupid to admit it," Stahl said at the time of the firing.

Stahl, of course, didn't know anything about the law prohibiting such behavior when he fired his deputy.

"Everything wasn't lost in this case," Stahl said. "The law has now been changed to take in just about eberybody, not only sheriffs and clerks of court, but also legislators, lieutenant governors and even the governor. At least the law is no longer discriminatory against a couple of office holders in North Carolina."

McCollum has been back on the county payroll as a deputy since Stahl's conviction in District Court. When the firing took place, many sheriffs from other sections on the state said they didn't blame Stahl for what he did, but were surprised at the way he did it.

"I would have fired any deputy that voted for my opponent," said one powerful Democratic sheriff. "But I would have handled it differently. First I would have put him on the graveyard shift, and after a couple months of this, I would have told him that he was doing a bad job and would have fired him. But I wouldn't have admitted the reason for doing it."

Stahl has three and a half more years to serve as Mecklenburg's sheriff.

"I hope the next three years will be a little less controversial," Stahl said.

Can't Bar Progress

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

It came as no surprise to supporters of a medical school at East Carolina University that anticipated allocations for the schools development will likely be cut by $7 million.

Supporters of ECU have become accustomed to having the school regarded by many in the state's educational power structural as being the best candidate for bringing up the rear at appropriations time and the point man when the paring knife is bared.

But the General Assembly is getting no static from the majority of the ECU people on the $7 million reduction. The proposal is not a vindictive one born of the frustrations of those who fought the school.

The state is not in a good way financially this session of the General Assembly.

We are not going to be able to do many of the things we would like to do. Some jobs likely will be foregone or eliminated. Salary adjustments might have to be postponed.

Wise economy in government too often is regarded as cutting some one else's budget.

ECU is prepared to stand up and take its share of the medicine of bad times.

Fortunately for the institution and the people of North Carolina, the people of Pitt County have seen to it that the budget cut will not deter the medical school's development.

The people of Pitt County voted bonds to build a new hospital which will serve the county's normal hospital needs plus provide facilities for a medical school teaching hospital.

Space for an additional 100 beds to be used in the teaching hospital will be provided by the state.

Had the people of Pitt County not looked ahead and beyond their own borders, the $7 million cut could have been a serious setback for the medical school and the medical services outlook for all of eastern North Carolina.

SORRY FOR WHAT?

There is a profound difference between remorse and repentence. Judas was filled with remorse; Peter was overwhelmed with repentence. When Judas went out, it was night; when Peter went out, it was dawn.

What do we mean when we say that we are sorry because of something we did? Do we actually mean that we are sorry because the consequences of our wrong-doing have caught up with us? Remorse is sorrow over consequences; repentence is sorrow over sin. Remorse is in no way connected with religion. The most godless individual in the world can suffer remorse. But repentence is the gateway through which every person of religious faith must pass if he would find God.

The word "repent" means to change one's mind. It means not just sorrow for our sins, but the abandonment of them. Repentence cleanses the heart.

Average Family Is Priced Out

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The president-elect of the American Bankers Association thinks the average family no longer can afford to buy the average single-family house. It costs too much to buy and maintain, he says.

"We've been pushing the limit for years, but recent events have pushed housing costs over the edge relative to the average man's ability to buy," said J. Rex Duwe in an interview.

The figures tend to bear out the assessment of Duwe, a Lucas, Kan., banker who this October takes over the reins of the 100-year-old association of commercial banks, a group that has 12.5 per cent of its loans in home mortgages.

Government figures, he said, showed that in 1973 the average family headed by a man had a median family income of about $13,000, and the average family headed by a woman had an income of about $5,800.

Statistics also show, he said, that the median sale price of a new, one-family home, excluding mobile homes, was $32,-800 in the same year.

"Using the rule of thumb that you shouldn't spend more than 2½ times your annual income on a house, the average household headed by a man could spend $32,500 for a home; a household headed by a woman, about $14,500."

Duwe concedes that rules of thumb make good pointers but poor measuring sticks. They lead you in the general direction of the truth but they're too imprecise to measure it exactly. Nevertheless, his point is made.

There is nothing imprecise about the operating expenses of a house. Fuel costs have risen. Taxes are rising. Repairs costs are rising. AGS values become inflated, homeowners must buy more insurance protection.

"The consumer price index already shows that one-third of every dollar we take home is going to housing," Duwe said in a much-discussed speech at a real estate conference in Denver last week.

"How much more can we afford?" he asked.

Duwe had his reasons for discussing housing costs. "I've become tired of interest rates being the whipping boy for the housing problem," he said. "I'm weary of hearing in Congress and the media that intterest rates are the total villain. It isn't so."

He had a secondary reason also. It's about time, he suggested, that the American people re-examine the type of housing they want — and can afford.

Accumulation Of Events Led To Citing Churchman For Contempt

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Events that led a Washington, D.C., ecclesiastical court to cite the Episcopal Church's presiding bishop, John M. Allin, for contempt have unleashed a wave of questions, bafflement and controversy.

How did it happen? What were the accumulating factors? What details were involved in the process that eventuated in the head of the Church being cited for contempt for failing to heed a subpoena to testify?

His attorney, Hugh R. Jones, this week contended the court erred in not excusing him, that it overstepped its authority and didn't give him a chance to defend himself before he was cited. But the court maintained his excuses were insufficient, and that it gave him ample notice and consideration.

To clarify some of the circumstances, here is a play-by-play sequence of the affair:

On April 7, on application of the defense in the disciplinary case against a Washington pastor, the Rev. William Wendt, a subpoena was served on Bishop Allin to appear as a witness at the trial starting April 30.

Father Wendt was accused of disobeying his bishop by allowing one of 11 irregularly ordained women to lead a Communion service.

On April 9, Bishop Allin moved to quash the subpoena, saying he recognized the canonically specified duty of all Church members to give evidence when duly cited, but that he had "no firsthand knowledge" in the case, and could not offer competent testimony.

On April 11, the court issued an order for the defense to show cause why Bishop Allin's motion should not be granted.

On April 17, the defense replied that the bishop's appearance was "absolutely essential," and a principal source of information about a bishops' meeting he had called which termed the women's ordination invalid.

On April 18, the court denied Bishop Allin's motion, saying he must appear.

On April 22, defense attorney William Stringfellow telephoned the office of Bishop Allin's acting chancellor, Peter Brown—substituting for Jones who was away—and offering to make the bishop's appearance brief, at his convenience.

On April 24, at the Algonquin Hotel in New York, Stringfellow received a hand-delivered letter from Brown, arranging for Bishop Allin to testify the first morning of the trial, Wednesday, April 30, so he could leave later for Toronto, Canada, where he had a speech to give that night.

On April 25, however, Bishop Allin sent a telegram saying he had commitments April 30 through May 5 in Canada, Arizona and Missouri and "I am unable to accept the invitation" to testify. He suggested the court could take a deposition, in his absence, if needed.

Meanwhile, his attorney Jones apparently had returned to advise him.

On April 26, the court issued another order, saying the bishop in his motion had been "completely silent" about any schedule conflict, cited the federal legal rules under which the court operated, and said a deposition would deprive the defendant of his rights, since the trial was scheduled to start shortly.

The court noted air shuttle schedules to allow the bishop to appear in Washington briefly and leave Wednesday with a "minimum of ... inconveneince," and repeated the subopena still was in force, and he was expected to comply.

On April 30, the trial began. Then, and for three days, the bishop's name was called out. But he had left New York for a speech Wednesday night in Toronto, and a meeting next day with the new Archbishop of Canterbury, and then headed to Phoenix, Ariz., for a speech Friday night.

On Friday, May 2, the trial's last day, he sent another telegram, expressing regreat at "some confusion" about the subpoena and again saying he could not make it because of other commitments, repeating his offer of a deposition.

On the same day, so as not to leave ground for a mistrial, the prosuection and defense agreed on a stipulation that he would have testified—as had his predecessor, Bishop John E. Hines—that the bishops' vote holding the women's ordination invalid carried no legislative authority.

On the same day, the five-member court issued its judgment, saying:

"Since he has disregarded the subpoena and our explicition and is in violation of the canon, and ... has proceeded to attend on matters which the court had deemed insufficient to excuse him by this Second day of May, 1975, adjudge and declare that John M. Allin ... is in contempt of the ecclesiastical court."

You don't need to know much about polar bears to get the message here. This cub hasn't a worry in the world. But one day he'll grow up to know all the frustrations of life in captivity.

Motherhood is security. . . but only for awhile. And the human mother is no more able to perpetuate the bond of total protection than is her wild counterpart.

Some parents today have abdicated their responsibility to guide their children. They have broken the family bonds too soon. Their children pay for this negligence: They age—but they don't mature.

Whims are fickle. . . and momentary. The Church strives to replace such elusive goals with something more substantial, something more stable. The inner values of character and faith remain as vital today as ever.

In our turbulent society, tranquility can only be found inside a person. Such stability and serenity could be your greatest gift to your child.

UNC Officials Plan No Retreat Over Vet School

RALEIGH (AP)—University of North Carolina officials say they have no intention of backing down in their plans to build a new veterinary school at N.C. State University.

William A. Dees of Goldsboro said Thursday the decision to choose State rather than North Carolina A&T State University as the site for the new school was carefully considered and justifiable on both educational and racial grounds.

A federal civil rights official, William Thomas, disagrees. Thomas said the terms of the university's desegregation plan require that the school be located at A&T, which is predominantly black, as part of the university's effort to equalize black and white schools.

He said the university did not even determine how much more money it would cost to build the school at A&T. Thomas has promised to seek enforcement action against the university, which could lead to withdrawal of $70 million in annual federal subsidies for the system.

Dees said he did not think that would happen. But regardless, "I intend to stand firm, and I think the board does, too."

UNC President William Friday said he, too, would stand behind the decision, which he conveyed in a letter to Thomas last month. The issue, he said, is not racial. It is whether the board has the power to plan for the university.

Friday has maintained that the matter is now in the hands of the legislature, which has been asked to appropriate $4 million to get the school started.

At the legislature, Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, said he did not think Thomas' position would have much impact. "I think the support is there for the school. It's just a question of whether the money is available," he said. Scott, an N.C. State alumnus, said he favored making the appropriation and seeing what federal officials did from there.

Senate Enacts Bill To Remove Interest Lids

RALEIGH (AP) — The Senate has approved and enacted a bill to remove for another two years the interest rate ceiling on home loans in North Carolina.

In contrast with the heated debate the bill caused in the House last month, it cleared the Senate on a 42-4 roll call after only a brief discussion.

The 1974 General Assembly removed the state's 8 per cent mortgage rate ceiling for a trial one year period which will expire June 30. Financial interests contended that the low rate limited the amount of home loan money available in the state.

They argued that since North Carolina is a capital poor state it must depend on funds from the national money market to finance home loans. They said that money was not to be had at 8 per cent.

Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, sought to amend the measure to prohibit lenders from charging borrowers processing fees in addition to interest for a loan. He said that with unlimited interest rates, extra fees were not needed.

The Senate rejected the amendment 35-11 after Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, argued that consumers would wind up paying more if lenders made up for the lack of fees by increasing the interest rate.

Smith and Sen. Jim McDuffie, D-Mecklenburg, said they were not satisfied that the housing market had been stimulated by the removal of the interest rate ceiling. They urged that more information on the effects be obtained before the 1977 General Assembly is asked to act in 1977 on permanent removal of the ceiling.

Figures furnished by the Federal Home Loan Bank in Atlanta indicate the number of home loans in North Carolina actually dropped after the ceiling was removed. Interest rates rose as high as 10 per cent.

McDuffie said 79 per cent of the home loans made in North Carolina come from savings and loan institutions in the state and are not connected with the national money market. He said savings and loan associations have indicated they would be satisfied with an interest rate that is 1½ to 2 per cent above the highest rate paid on savings accounts.

Offer Review Of Curriculum

A curriculum review for the benefit of parents of upcoming eight and ninth graders at Aycock Junior High School has been scheduled for Monday, May 12.

Assistant Principal John Carstarphen announced that the curriculum meeting will be held in the Aycock Library from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Monday, with school staff members to be on hand to answer questions from parents. All parents with children to attend the school during the coming school year are urged to attend.

Requests Denied

The Pitt County Board of Education Tuesday afternoon denied a request from Ted Moore, resident manager of the Ramada Inn, that the Ramada Inn properties be released from the county school district so they could be annexed into the city school district.

Moore told board members that he would have to pay $120 for his two children to attend city schools and that people on either side of the property are in the city school district.

The board also denied a request from representatives of Project REACH that they be allowed to distribute information concerning food stamps in the county schools.

The board felt the medical-social counselors employed by the school board could continue to distribute materials concerning the food stamp program as they have been doing in the past.

Ft. Ticonderoga's Capture Lifted Colonial Spirits

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

Two hundred years ago, a hotheaded land speculator and an egotistical military captain led a pack of mountainmen on a decaying British fort.

As a military victory, it amounted to little. No shots were fired. Eighty high spirited locals, led by Ethan Allen, swarmed over a forgotten bastion in the wilds of upper New York on May 10, 1775. They outnumbered the fort's British soldiers, who were asleep when the nighttime attack started.

But the message swept down the coast: the rebels had captured Ft. Ticonderoga. And for the English subjects of the colonies, loyal to their king but fed up with his Parliament, the coup lifted spirits.

It was the first offensive action by the Americans in the Revolutionary War.

During the next three years of fighting, the prize won by Allen and his Green Mountain Boys proved its importance. Artillery from the fort helped drive the British from Boston. It was the base camp for an ill-fated attack on Canada. Its strategic position on Lake Champlain stopped a British advance on the populated areas of the seacoast.

The fortress, now restored, hunches on a hill overlooking the narrows at the southern end of the big lake. From there, it commanded the greatest inalnd waterway of the Northeast, and that was its importance.

In colonial times, when roads barely existed, water was the fastest way to travel. And the most direct water route between the mid-Atlantic colonies and Canada was along the Hudson River to Lake George, then past Ft. Ticonderoga onto Lake Champlain, the Richelieu River and the St. Lawrence.

The waterway was first fought over by the French and British during the French and Indian Wars. To defend their claim, the French built Ft. Carillon in 1755, but the British captured it and gave it a version of the area's Indian name, Ticonderoga.

There the British stayed, but with Canada secure, only a skeleton force manned the fort.

Little changed until April 19, 1775, when cololnial Minutemen resisted the Redcoats at Lexington and Concord. As the alarm spread, colonial militia units, upset over the mother country's economic policies, marched toward Boston.

A group from New Haven, Conn., led by Benedict Arnold, who later became traitor, joined the Americn cause. Arnold told the Massachusetts Provincial Congress of the cannons and other weapons stored at Ft. Ticonderoga, and the Congress gave him 100 pounds to raise a force and take the fort.

About the same time, another small expedition, also alerted by Arnold, left Connecticut, and they all met in Bennington, now part of Vermont, where Ethan Allen had called together his Green Mountain Boys.

Allen, a bold, impulsive land speculator from Connecticut, had organized the mountain settlers to defend themselves against the conflicting claims of New York and New Hampshire for their land.

With Arnold and the Connecticut men at his side, Allen led his unruly followers in scows across Lake Champlain on the night of May 9, 1775.

At the break of dawn, 80 men, three abreast, marched up to the fort, and a sentry ran for safety. As they swarmed in, about 40 British soldiers, half of them too old or unhealthy to fight, slept in their barracks.

When Capt. William Delaplace, the commander of the post, confronted the rebels, he asked them under what authority they were acting.

"In the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress," thundered back Allen.

The revolutionaries now controlled the vital point on the thoroughfare to Canada.

They quickly took advantage of it. The next August, Brig. Gen. Richard Montgomery used the fort as a base to launch an attack on the northern British possessions. Meanwhile, Arnold led another expedition overland through the Maine wilderness toward Quebec.

But the expedition failed. The British still controlled Canada, and that meant only Ticonderoga stopped them from capturing the waterway that was a main thoroughfare between New England and the colonies to the south.

Meanwhile, Ticonderoga's big guns were needed for the first target of George Washington's army — British-held Boston. During the winter, Gen. Henry Knox and his men dragged 60 tons of cannon, mortars and howitzers across the rough terrain of western Massachusetts. On March, 5, 1776, the Continental Army set the guns up on the highlands around Boston, and the British left without a fight.

That summer, the British army massed in Canada, ready to sail down the Champlain Valley to attack the colonies. But Ticonderoga and its troops blocked the way.

All summer, both sides built navies on Lake Champlain. They met in combat on Oct. 11, 1776, and the British decimated the colonial ships commanded by Arnold.

By this time, winter was approaching, and the British had to postpone their big move until the next July.

Then, the British forced the rebels to give up the fort when they surprised them with fortifications on a nearby mountaintop.

As the British moved on, their expedition bogged down a few miles to the south, and they were beaten in the Battle of Saratoga, the turning point of the Revolutionary War.

Reject Reform School Switch

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina House has rejected a bill to transfer control of North Carolina's youth reform schools from the state Department of Corrections to the Department of Human Resources.

The transfer bill was opposed Thursday evening by both state departments involved. Secretary of Corrections David Jones said it arose because he has fired numerous Democratic appointees in the youth development system.

Rep. Claude DeBruhl, D-Buncombe, its sponsor, argued that the bill would remove the youths from the stigma of the state department that runs the adult prison system.

The House voted 51-47 against the bill, and DeBruhl indicated he might try to revive it when more members are present.

More Doctors Join 'Strike'

By The Associated Press

A walkout by hundreds of anesthesiologists in protest of soaring malpractice insurance rates appeared headed today toward more California communities, crippling medical services in some hospitals.

The state is "saddled with a monumental problem of grave proportions," said Dr. Seymour Wallace, president of the California Society of Anesthesiologists.

Wallace made his comment Thursday after news from the office of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. that the Travelers Corp., the major insurer of California doctors, intended to increase malpractice premiums by 400 per cent on Oct. 31. The Travelers Corp. is based in Hartford, Conn.

The news came one week after sharply increased rates for Northern California anesthesiologists by the Argonaut Insurance Co. went into effect. Premium boosts as high as 322 per cent drove more than 200 anesthesiologists to close their doors in protest and drastically reduced services at many private hospitals. The doctors were faced with premiums that increased from $5,377 to $18,164.

About 70 doctors in Santa Clara County decided Wednesday to cease practice on Monday except in "life or death" cases.

Anesthesiologists in Santa Cruz County planned a meeting today and many were expected to join the boycott. Their colleagues in the Los Angeles area and in Sacramento also were reported talking about doing the same thing.

The walkout by the anesthesiologists has curtailed most surgery and threatens to idle thousands of hospital workers, including nurses and orderlies. Some hospitals report being on shaky financial grounds because of the absence of patients.

Other facilities have closed floors and refused admittance to all but emergency cases.

Ass'n To Hold Meet In S.C.

Several members of the local Association of Medical Assistants will attend a meeting of the N. C. Association in Wrightsville Beach, S.C. next weekend.

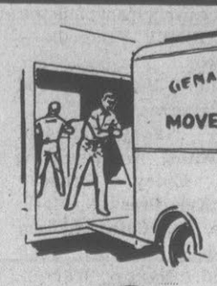

Those attending are Mrs. Faye Creech of Eastern Orthopedics; Mrs. Margie Brown, who works for Dr. Kelley Wallace Jr.; Mrs. Christine Langley of Greenville Family Doctors, P. "Sail Away to Knowledge" is the theme of the meeting and an attorney, a medical retail collections manager, a physician, and the president of Management Consulting to the Health Professions, Mike Silver, are on the program. Any individual employed by a physician will be welcomed, Mrs. Langley, the local president said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market chalked up broad gains today, helped by news of a record inventory selloff in March.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 5.24 at 845.74, while advances held a nearly 4 to 1 margin over declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

As the market opened, the government reported business inventories dropped a record $1.92 billion in March. Most on Wall Street believe a massive liquidation of inventories is a necessary step to an eventual economic recovery.

"After all, when you get inventories down, businesses will have to start buying again," said analyst Ronald Cooper.

He and others also noted an increasingly speculative tone to trading in the past several sessions, and the resulting shift in market leadership to the lower priced issues is seen as bullish.

Consumers power topped NYSE actives, unchanged at 13¾, including a 251,100-share block at 13½.

Among other low priced issues in the active list, Lomas & Nettleton was up ½ to 6⅝, Revere Copper up ¾ at 14 and Coca-Cola Bottling of N.Y. up ⅝ at 9⅜.

Pan American World Airways was up ⅛ at 4 in heavy turnover, despite news the British government is taking steps to force the airline to cancel plans to pay travel agents higher commissions in hopes of boosting ticket sales.

In the blue chips, Du Pont rose 1¼, IBM 1½ and United Technologies a point.

The NYSE's composite stock index added 0.30 to 47.74, and the American Exchange's market value index climbed 0.39 to 87.06.

Archeology Survey Set

The East Carolina University Archeology Program under the Department of Sociology and Anthropology has received a $5,725 award to conduct an archeological survey in Beaufort County.

The award was presented to ECU by North Carolina Phosphate Corporation of Washington, N.C. The money will finance ground surveys and test excavations on several hundred acres of N.C. Phosphate property that adjoins the south shore of the Pamlico River.

Dr. David Phelps, ECU archeologist, says his survey will locate the archeological and historical sites on the property and will determine if important sites would be disrupted by future construction and development.

The Department of Business Education and Office Administration at East Carolina University is collaborating with Pitt Technical Institute in the development of a cooperative education program for eastern North Carolina.

Major goals of the joint venture are to design a program which will facilitate coordination of current co-op programs in high schools, two-year post secondary schools and ECU.

Cooperative education is a process which formally integrates a student's formal studies with actual work experience in cooperating employer organizations. Periods of classroom study are combined with periods of experience in business, industry, government, social service and the professions.

Dr. Betsy Harper, chairman of the ECU Cooperative Education Committee, said such work experience periods are considered "an integral part of the student's education."

"Through the interaction of study and work experience, the student enhances his academic knowledge, personal development and professional preparation."

Williamston Ices Title Tie

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston insured itself of no worse than a tie for the Northeastern Conference baseball championship last night with a 7-4 victory over Tarboro.

For the Tigers, it was sweet revenge. The Vikings are the only team in the league that can claim a win over Williamston. Williamston is now 9-1 in the league with a two-game lead over Tarboro. A single victory in either of the two games left to the Tigers would clinch the crown and a state 3-A playoff berth for them.

Tarboro did all of its scoring in the first inning, getting four runs. Al Forrest led off with a single, then stole second. He moved to third on an out and Terry Thorne reached on an error. He stole up, and both Forrest and Thorne scored on Ricky Norville's hit. Mike Norville reached on a two-base error. Donald Brady singled to drive in Ricky Norville and an error on the relay allowed Mike Norville to score.

After that, however, Roy Lilley set Tarboro down allowing only two more hits the rest of the night.

Williamston came back with two runs in the bottom of the first. Lilley reached on an error and Phil Selby singled. Butch Davis reached on a fielder's choice that scored Lilley but erased Selby. Davis stole up and scored when George Brown reached on an error.

In the second, the Tigers tied it with two more runs. Greg Roberson doubled and scored on Ken Herman's hit. Selby reached on an error, scoring Herman.

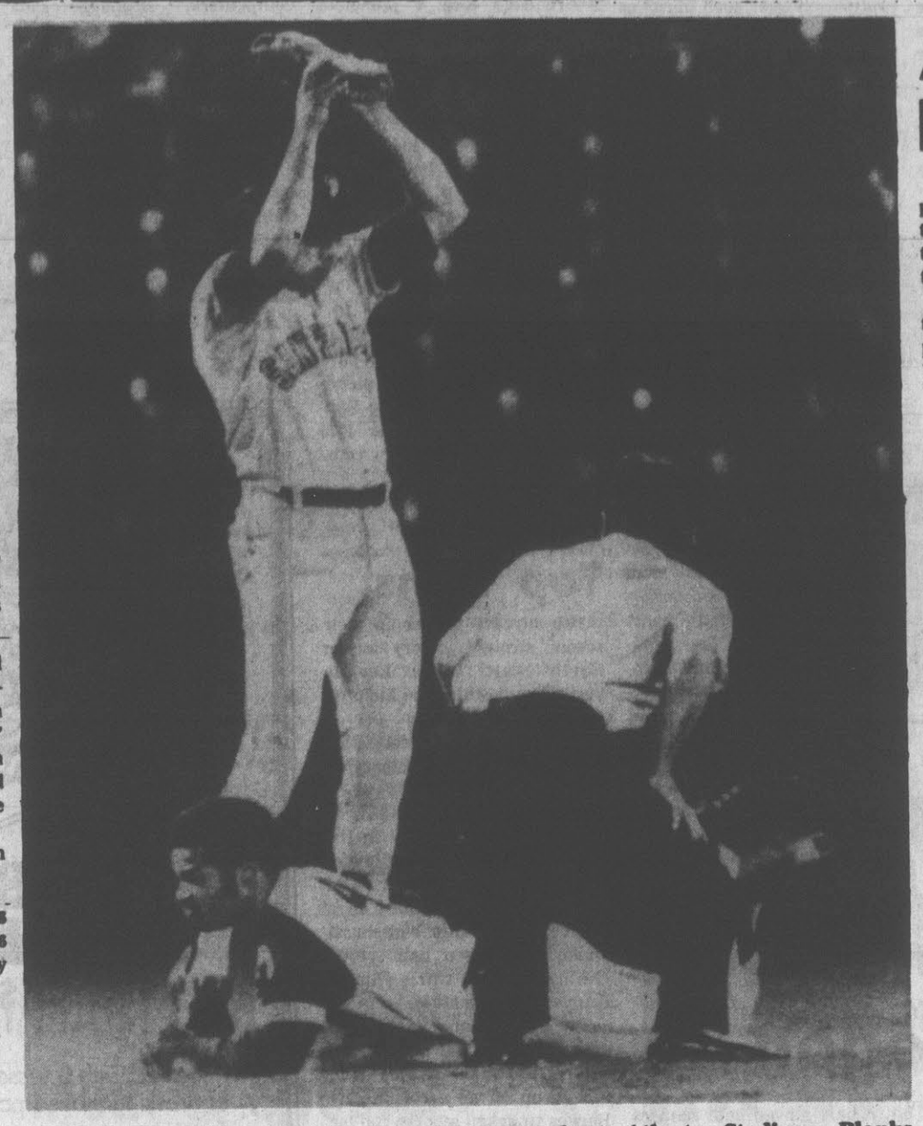

The lead run came over in the third. Davis singled and stole second. He moved on to third on an error ansd scored on Brown's out.

One run scored in the fifth and another in the sixth. Tim Hardison singled and stole second in the fifth, scoring on Davis' double. In the sixth, Roberson doubled, took third on a passed ball and scored when Mike Bryant singled.

Williamston returns to action on Friday, hosting Ahoskie.

All Harmony Between Texas' Davis, Martin

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

What's a few words between friends?

That's the way Texas Rangers centerfielder Willie Davis feels about his shouting match with Manager Billy Martin earlier this week—let bygones be bygones.

"I love Billy, we're great friends," says Davis. "Arguments clear the air. Out of arguments comes the best understanding."

And Martin? He's happy, too, as long as Davis hits the way he did Thursday night.

Davis rapped out four hits against Kansas City, including a two-run homer which tied the game and a ninth-inning single which knocked in the go-ahead run in the Rangers' 5-3 victory over the Royals.

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angles blanked the Oakland A's 5-0 and the Detroit Tigers beat the Milwaukee Brewers 6-4.

The shouting match between Martin and Davis took place Wednesday night, when Martin kept the lockerroom door closed for about 15 minutes following a 6-5 loss to the Royals.

One player said later that at the meeting Martin cited a number of "stupid errors," including Davis' attempt to stretch a double into a triple in the fifth inning. He was thrown out, killing a rally.

Davis apparently said something, because reporters outside the door heard Martin yell, "I'm doing the talking here." Shouts and curses ensued, with Martin finally hollering, "That's the way things are going to be, and if you don't like it then get out of here." More shouts and yells followed.

When reporters were finally admitted, everyone was mum.

Some 24 hours later, it was a different story. Happiness prevailed.

"I plan the next day in advance," said Davis after his four-hit effort. "I started planning this one last night. If it comes off, I'm happy. If it doesn't, I'm still happy. I'm always happy."

He denied the shouting match inspired his big day.

"I'm motivated all the time," he said. "Last night is gone and past. I love Billy. We've known each other for many years. We've partied together. You can't throw all that away over a few words."

And Martin kept up his end, saying Davis "is playing his heart out. I don't single out players at a meeting. I didn't say a word to him. I had something to say to the players. I've done it before."

Davis' third home run of the season, with Jim Sundberg aboard, erased a 3-1 Kansas City lead in the seventh inning. Two innings later the Rangers broke the tie on one-out singles by Cesar Tovar, Len Randle and Davis.

Jeff Burroughs then laced a double to right-center, scoring Randle to make it 5-3.

Angels 5, A's 0

Nolan Ryan blanked Oakland on four singles and struck out 10 in raising his record to 6-1 and becoming only the third pitcher in the majors to win six games this season, joining Vida Blue of Oakland and Don Sutton of Los Angeles.

Mickey Rivers was the batting star for the Angels with a run-scoring single and a two-run triple.

Tigers 6, Brewers 4

Rookie Dan Meyer blasted the first pitch in the bottom of sixth inning for his second home run of the season, snapping a 4-4 tie. The Tigers got another run in the inning when Leon Roberts walked, stole second, took third on a throwing error by Darrell Porter and scored on an infield out.

Relief pitcher Ray Bare got the victory, with a big save to John Hiller, who stopped the Brewers cold.

Olympic Giant Brundage Dead At 87

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany (AP) — "Sports is a pasttime and a diversion," Avery Brundage once said. "The minute it becomes more than that, it's business or work."

With that credo Brundage battled commercialism and politics in sports, especially international competition, for a half century—climaxed by 20 years' service as president of the International Olympic Committee.

With the fervor of an old-time revivalist at a tent meeting, Brundage battled play-for-pay professionalism to protect his brand of amateurism from a materialistic world. His crusade often earned for him the image of a grumpy scold, often tactless and undiplomatic.

He ended two decades as IOC president at Munich's 1972 Summer Olympics, games scarred by a bloodbath—the death of 11 Israeli athletes following an attack by a Palestinian terror group.

With one final fervent cry against commercialism, particularly the Winter Olympics and Alpine skiing, Brundage stepped down and Ireland's Lord Killanin took over the leadership of the Olympics. Brundage was named the IOC's honorary president.

Weary and lonely following the death in 1971 of his first wife, the Detroit-born Brundage retired, admitting that years of controversy over such things as communism, racism, nationalism and, above all, commercialism, had taken its toll.

He gave away his collection of Oriental jade and other objets d'art valued in the millions to the City of San Francisco. He sold most of his real estate holdings in the United States. And once again he was in the headlines, with his marriage at 85 to a German princess nearly 40 years his junior.

Brundage and his bride retired to the German winter sports resort of Garmisch-Partenkirchen in the Bavarian Alps, scene of the 1960 Winter Olympic Games.

It was here Thursday night that Brundage died of a heart attack at the age of 87. He had been a patient in the small district hospital, authorities said, for the past two weeks, suffering from suspected heart trouble. The second Mrs. Brundage, formerly Mariann Princess Reuss, whose relatives include many in European royal families, was at his bedside.

The princess, a slim, statuesque woman who is fluent in six languages and an accomplished skier, was too distraught to talk of her husband's death.

The funeral services are pending. Brundage had no children.

Brundage took a jaundiced view of professional sports. "I suspect," he often said, "that if a professional baseball player discovered one day that he could make more money by going back home and laying bricks for a living, he'd go home and lay bricks.

"....Professional sports should be reported on the entertainment pages along with the circuses and vaudeville."

In his valedictory to the IOC in 1972, Brundage, ever-true to his dedication to simon-pure amateurism, once again pleaded for the abolition of the Winter Olympic Games after 1976 because of rampant commercialism, particularly in Alpine skiing.

"There are only two kinds of competitors," Brundage said then. "Those free and independent individuals who are interested in sports for sport's sake, and those in sports for financial reasons. Olympic glory is for amateurs."

His often-autocratic leadership of the IOC from Summer Games at Helsinki, Melbourne, Rome, Tokyo, Mexico City and finally to Munich, earned for him from his critics such slurs as "Slavery Brundage," "Avery Umbrage," "The nation's No. 1 common scold," and "A male Carry Nation hacking away with a hatchet of righteousness at those who are trying to undermine the amateur idea."

Brundage's first involvement with the Olympic movement was at the Stockholm Games of 1912. He was as a member of the U.S. team and competed in the pentathlon and decathlon.

N.C. Presidential Primary Scheduled For March

RALEIGH (AP)—Bills to establish separate presidential and state primaries in North Carolina and change the dates of each won approval Thursday in the House Election Laws committee.

A measure was approved to move state primaries to the first Tuesday in August. The presidential bill sets that primary on the fourth Tuesday in March, making it the fourth in the nation.

In 1972, both primaries were held on the first Tuesday in May.

The committee approved a presidential primary bill that discourages entry by candidates considering a third party bid and limits the field to those who notify the State Elections Board that they wish to appear on the ballot.

Legislation introduced by Sen. Thomas Strickland, D-Wayne, to revamp the presidential primary originally sought to widen the field by including all major candidates on the ballot unless they declared themselves non-candidates.

Rep. Allen Adams, D-Wake, amended the measure Thursday to require a candidate to return a form to the Board of Elections stating that he wants his name to appear on the ballot.

That "notice of candidacy" includes a pledge that a candidate would not run for President in North Carolina "as a write-in or independent candidate or as the candidate of any other political party in the next general election."

Rep. Lane Brown, D-Stanly, added wording to instruct the State Board of Elections not to put the name of a candidate who refuses to sign or breaks the oath on either the primary or general election ballot.

Adams denied that his move was aimed at Alabama Gov. George Wallace, who ran as a third party presidential candidate in 1968 after failing to win the Democratic nomination. Wallace swept North Carolina's first presidential primary in 1972, defeating former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford.

Adams said "I interpret it as a matter of preserving the integrity of the party's primary."

He cited Republican candidates who might also consider third party candidacies, including North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms and former California govenor Ronald Reagan.

Strickland consulted with Wallace on the primary legislation. Wallace supporters feel that a wide field would help their candidate by cluttering the field with moderate and liberal candidates who would draw support that might otherwise go to Sanford.

The measure approved eliminates the $1,000 filing fee currently required.

The committee voted to commit the state's convention delegates on the first ballot on a the basis of the proportion of votes each candidate receives. Voters would also be allowed to designate an "uncommitted" category.

The committee approved the first Tuesday in August as the primary date for state offices after also considering a bill by Rep. Thomas Gilmore, D-Guilford, to move the primary to the fourth Tuesday in August.

Elections Secretary Alex Brock told the committee it would be difficult for local elections boards to hold the primary that late and set up the apparatus for second primaries if they were needed.

Gilmore argued, "People have said loud and clear that they want a shorter campaign."

The committee did not act on Gilmore's bill and could consider it again if the earlier date is rejected on the House floor.

Although a favorable report was voted on the presidential primary bill, the committee decided to review it again next Tuesday to check the wording of amendments to be added in the new committee substitute.

Mayor Dave Bosley, in accepting the grant from FHA representatives Harry Jarvis, Walter E. Evertt and William H. Davenport, said "I want to publicly express the town's gratitude to these men who made the project possible. A Believer In Herbs And Roots

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Assciated Press Writer

GLENWOOD, W.Va. (AP) — Clarence "Catfish" Gray quit school in the fourth grade and lives on the basement of an unfinished house some three miles from this tiny Ohio River community.

Despite his remote location and lack of formal education, he has become one of the most sought-out residents in these parts.

Catfish is a mountain medicine man who says he firmly believes things such as ginseng, bloodroot and pipsissawa will cure what ails you.

Each month, he receves dozens of cards and letters from people who want his healing herbs. Although he laughingly calls his basement "my groundhog hole," hardly a day goes by that he isn't visited by someone who's plagued with problems that prescriptions haven't solved.

Regardless of the ailment — be it cancer, gallstones, goiters or freckles — Catfish claims he has a cure.

"Most things I can cure with my bitters, a combination of 15 herbs," he tells visitors, who are welcome at any hour of the day or night.

A small, smiling, nonstop talker, Catfish loves the woods where he gathers his roots and flowers. But even more, he loves people.

Visitors inevitably are greeted with a big smile and a glass of cold sassafras tea — and perhaps a handful of chestnuts, "the oldfashioned kind."

Special guests are offered a sip of his cancer medicine, a black liquid that tastes a little like licorice and is dispensed from a refrigerated mayonnaise jar.

"It cured the man in the next house down the road," he said, carefully resealing the lid. "He had a cancer burning out on his back. His mother died of cancer, and he had had two of them cut out but my medicine cured this one in no time. He came over later and gave me $6."

His home is divided into three rooms. One is for drying the herbs, another is for sorting and grinding and the third is for display.

"They're a quarter a bag or five bags for a dollar," he said, pointing to the neatly packaged piles of bitters, his speciality. "I don't try to make much money."

An aroma of mint fills the air. The walls are covered with hand lettered Scriptures from the New Testament and with hundreds of letters from friends and satisfied customers. They bear postmarks from across the nation and many are addressed simply to "Catfish."

Another two boxes full of unanswered requests are on the floor.

"I really don't have time to keep up with all these," he said, giving a little chuckle. "I go out into the woods three days a week and it takes time for the drying and sorting."

Although he never locks his door and has a thousand friends, not everybody looks favorably upon his herbs and mail order business, including local doctors.

Catfish's bitters, which he said he sells without a label to avoid a hassle from postal authorities, contain a combination of bloodroot, snake root, yellow root, yahoo root, sassafras bark, wild cherry bark, pipsissawa and solomon seed, among others. He claims they can cure bursitis, high blood pressure, neuritis, arthritis, kidney and gall stones "and two-thirds of heart trouble."

He treats insomnia with lobelia, impotency with baking soda — one teaspoon in a eight-ounce glass of water each night — and says a concoction of tansy and buttermilk will fade your freckles.

Catfish attends church three times a week. He never touches alcohol, tobacco or prescription drugs and frequently quotes the Scriptures he has written on his walls.

A man who practices what he preaches, he doesn't partake of soft drinks or foods that contain preservatives. He eats only one meal a day and says his diet consists mainly of milk and honey, with an occasional foraged delicacy such as dandelion roots or hickory nuts.

He is a homespun philosopher who admonishes (he's constantly admonishing something) "don't eat too much or work too hard." He and his wife raised 10 children before separating several years ago. Now, at 57, he says he's as healthy as he was at 20 and likes to do a frantic little jig to prove it.

N.C. Income Up 2 Places

GREENSBORO (AP)—Per capita income in North Carolina was $4,612 in 1974. This was $354 or 8.3 per cent more than in 1973 for each man, woman and child.

The state moved up two places to 36th place among the 50 states.

North Carolina was fourth among the 12 states of the Southeast Region of the Department of Commerce.

Virginia led the region with $5,265, followed by Florida with $5,235 and Georgia with $4,662.

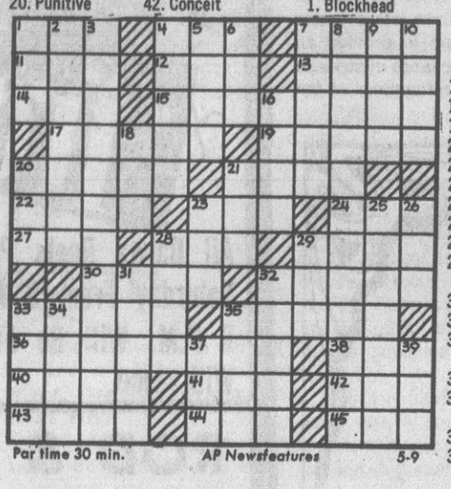

The per capita income and related statistics were prepared by the department of Commerce and released by Joel B. New, director of the Greensboro district office.

Total personal income in North Carolina last year was estimated at $24.7 billion, an increase of 9.6 per cent above the $22.6 billion in 1973.

Each of the 12 Southeastern states saw increases in both per capita and personal income. Only one, Mississippi, remained below the $4,000 per capita level in 1974. Mississippi's per capita was $3,754.

In 1973, six of the dozen states had per capita incomes below $4,000. Those below that level in 1973 that crossed the $4,000 mark in 1974 were Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, South Carolina and West Virginia.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	1NT	Pass	3NT
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♠.

The key to a successful partnership defense is often just making life as easy as possible for your partner. This hand from a recent team game vividly illustrates that point.

A contract of three no trump was reached at both tables after identical auctions. South's overcall of one no trump showed the equivalent of a one no trump opening bid, and North judged that his five-card suit and fine intermediates justified a raise to game despite the fact that he had no help for partner in the spade suit.

Both Wests attacked with the seven of spades, both East played the nine and at each table declarer won the king. Both declarer then ran five diamond tricks. At one table, West discarded two clubs. Declarer led the king of clubs, taken by East's ace. Fearing that declarer held the queen of spades and that a spade continuation would present declarer with a trick he could not otherwise win, East shifted to a heart, and that was that. Declarer scampered home with ten tricks.

At the other table, West took a bit more care with his discards. When East's nine of spades forced the king at trick one, it was obvious to West that his partner held both the jack and ten of spades. So when declarer ran his diamond tricks, West simply discarded his queen of spades on the fourth diamond.

Not a very spectacular play, you say. True, but very effective. East now had no problem when he won the king of clubs. He knew he could cash all the spade tricks he desired.

This is the true art of bridge. Finding brilliant plays when the opportunity presents itself is pleasing, indeed. But helping partner make the winning decision occurs far more often and is equally rewarding both in the score and in partnership confidence.

Denies Any Abandoning

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A 23-year-old mother denies abandoning her five children.

She says she asked neighbors to watch them because she had to leave for a while since she feared for her safety. She says she and a man had fought in her home, and she went looking for a new home for herself and the children so he wouldn't bother her again.

The unemployed woman, Bobbie Jean Livingston, says she wants the children back. The children, aged 3 months to seven years, were turned over to the Mecklenburg Department of Social Service after police said they found them unattended Wednesday.

A court hearing was scheduled for today to decide whether they should be returned.

The mother says she left Monday night, and stayed with a friend while hunting a new place to live. A neighbor says she watched the children Monday night and Tuesday. She says she asked other neighbors to watch them on Wednesday so she could attend a nursing

Workshop Held By Pledges

The second part of the workshop was held Sunday at Carver Library and was on first aid practices.

Mrs. Linda Ebron, RN, served as a resource person.

At the conclusion of the workshop, participants presented flowers to patients of the Bradley Rest Home.

Wallace Sees Blunders In U.S. Foreign Policy

By J. PAUL TILL
Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace says the United States "has blundered in the last 50 years in its foreign policy." He says the result was American involvement in four wars which could have been prevented.

Wallace called a news conference to discuss his foreign policy after a story was published Thursday based on transcripts of an interview the governor had with foreign journalists.

In that interview, Wallace said if he were president, his foreign policy would be "based on the fact that you can't trust a Communist."

Wallace, who has said he plans to run for president, told the journalists in an interview at the state capitol March 3, "I don't believe in confrontation. I believe in negotiation. I believe in detente. But while I'm detenting, as they say, I wouldn't turn my back on them. And I don't trust the Communists."

Wallace told newsmen in Montgomery Thursday that American involvement in four wars, which he said could have been prevented, "came as a result of mistakes in the foreign policy of this country."

The United States "ought to have a foreign policy based on common sense," he said. He added that there is "nothing startling" about his philosophy and that he has made his position known numerous times in the past.

News reports quoted Wallace as telling the foreign journalists, who were on a two-week tour of the South sponsored by the U.S. Information Agency's Foreign Press Center, that the United States may have been "fighting the wrong people" in World War II. Wallace said the reports were distorted and taken out of context.

He explained Thursday that what he meant was that the anti-Communist peoples of Japan and Germany should have been cultivated following World War I. Instead, he said, the Versailles Treaty created vengeance against Germany and "unwittingly helped bring Hitler to power.

"We were fighting the right people ... but our diplomacy led us to fight people who should have been our friends."

Wallace said Hitler "would have wound up hanging paper all his life" instead of ruling the Third Reich if the United States had helped Germany and Japan to become buffers against the Communists following World War I.

Wallace told reporters Thursday that major points of his foreign policy are: "Don't be equal.... Don't be inferior.... Be the No. 1 military strength in the world."

Closing Road

RALEIGH—North Carolina Highway 222 from N.C. 43 to Secondary Road 1251 in Pitt County will be closed to traffic May 19 and will be closed for about three days.

During the period the road is closed, state highway workers will replace a culvert.

There will a traffic delay time of five minutes, and a detour length of 5.5 paved miles, according to C. W. Snell Jr., division eingneer.

A Week For Mailboxes

The week of May 19-24 has been designated Mailbox Improvement Week by the United States Postal Service.

According to H. Lloyd Mills, Postmaster of Greenville, the Postal Service designates a week during the month of May each year when consumers on rural, city motorized and contract delivery routes are encouraged to examine and improve, when necessary, the appearance of the mailboxes.

"The purpose of the week is to call attention to the need for providing mail receptables which are designed to protect the mail from the weather and are neat in appearnace, conveniently located and safe to use," Mills said.

"Mailboxes which meet the above four requirements contribute to improve service to the entire county," Mills emphasized. "Neat, attractive mailboxes make a significant contribution to the appearance of the countryside and the streets in suburdan areas.

Price Hike By Ford Motor Co.

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. says it will raise car prices around 3 to 6 per cent this fall, making it the last of the Big Three auto makers to announce price increases and the first to indicate how big the hikes may be.

General Motors and Chrysler said last week that price increases are unavoidable because of continued cost increases. Neither, however, would indicate the size of the price boosts.

American Motors has not said it will raise prices, but the company is expected to follow the pricing trend of its larger competitors.

Meanwhile, GM confirmed Thursday that its Supplemental Unemployment Benefits (SUB) fund has run dry, cutting in half jobless pay for 55,000 laid-off production workers.

GM said the last batch of SUB checks went out in the mail this week. The auto giant said it did not know when it would be able to resume payments, which were exhausted by extensive, long-term layoffs.

Ford President Lee Iacocca estimated during a news conference Thursday that the firm's car prices would rise roughly from 3 to 6 per cent, or an average $150 to $300 per car.

"Three to five, six per cent — that's the ballpark we hope to play in," Iacocca said. "But we may be off $200."

"We can't operate without a price increase," Ford Chairman Henry Ford II said Thursday following the company's annual shareholders' meeting in suburban Dearborn. He said final pricing decisions have not yet been made.

Ford said he hoped the price increases would not discourage sales. He conceded the record $450 price hike the industry put through on 1975 models last fall helped throw car sales into their worst slump since World War II.

Financial analysts say the companies may try to limit increases to about $150 so as not to further stall an already weak market.

GM is the second auto company to exhaust its SUB fund because of massive layoffs dating back more than a year. Chrysler's fund for 35,000 laid off workers ran out April 1.

SUB funds at Ford and AMC, where layoffs have been less extensive, remain in "relatively healthy" shape, according to the United Auto Workers, which negotiated for SUB 20 years ago.

The average laid-off GM worker had been living on $176 a week, about 95 per cent of his take-home pay. About $92 came from the SUB fund. Most continue to receive an average $84 a week in government unemployment compensation.

The exhaustion of SUB is expected to be especially harsh on auto towns like Flint, where GM owns seven major plants — including its Buick factory — and had been paying about $3 million a month in SUB benefits.

GM has paid out $400 million in SUB payments since January 1974. In Michigan, where GM estimated 24,400 workers will lose SUB, the company said it has paid out $178 million.

Some 110,000 of GM's 400,000 hourly workers are on indefinite layoff, but 10,000 are not represented by the UAW, and thus ineligible for SUB.
