Small Scale Fighting Continues

News Briefs

By United Press International
Small-scale fighting between Communist forces and last-ditch holdouts was still going on in scattered sections of South Vietnam Friday, more than a week after the Communist capture of Saigon, UPI correspondent Alan Dawson reported in a delayed dispatch from Saigon received Saturday.

Dawson said military sources reported that virtually all the country, including offshore islands, was under control of the new government and that what fighting continued was away from population centers.

"Among the holdouts are troops of the 25th Division about 15 miles northwest of Saigon and a small militia unit about 20 miles southeast of the capital, the sources said," Dawson reported.

"Surprisingly, the resistance is not coming from supposedly elite units of the former South Vietnamese army but from these supposedly inferior units, they said.

"Holdouts in the jungles northwest of Saigon are near the district capital of Phu Hoa Dong, having fled from the overrun base camp at Cu Chi, a former U.S. division base camp 18 miles northwest of Saigon.

"To the southeast the militia-men around Long Le district capital fled from advancing liberation forces April 30 and instead of surrendering as ordered have holed up in the swampy impenetrable Rung Sat special zone, ironically a former Communist stronghold.

Dawson quoted the military sources saying resistance to the Communist armies has faded in virtually all other sections of the nation.

"Dissident Hoa Hao buddhists fought for five days past the April 30 surrender by the old Saigon government, but gave up after reaching a political solution with local Viet Cong commanders, which included the release from jail of their leader," Dawson said.

"The Hoa Hao is a unique Vietnamese Buddhist offshoot which has opposed the Viet Cong in the past because Communists allegedly killed the sect's founder in the 1950s."

Dawson said the military sources reported another hold-out position was Con Son Island, site of the "tiger cage" prisons where political prisoners of the former South Vietnamese government were held. Con Son was reported under complete control last Tuesday, the sources said.

Dawson said there was no information on the extent of the fighting at Con Son, some 120 miles southeast of Saigon and 40 miles off shore.

Ministers Resign

By ROBERT KAYLOR
VIENTIANE (UPI) — Premier Souvanna Phouma's coalition government Saturday announced that four right-wing cabinet members had resigned, the official government radio said. The resignations opened the way for a takeover of cabinet control by the Communist-led Pathet Lao.

There were reports that some pro-American officials were planning to flee from Laos for fear of a Communist takeover of power as in neighboring Cambodia and Vietnam.

The official Vientiane radio also announced the replacement of two military commanders and the resignation of the deputy commander in chief of the army.

All who resigned were among loyalists whose ouster had been demanded by the Pathet Lao and leftist organizers of street demonstrations. The radio identified the ministers who resigned as Defense Minister Sisouk Na Champassak; Finance Minister Ngon Samanikone; Deputy Foreign Minister Tiene Thone Chantharasay, and Deputy Public Works Minister Houmphanh Sansayngasith.

No replacements were immediately announced, but it was believed they would be replaced by nominal rightists or neutralists who would not resist Pathet Lao views on policy matters.

"Military sources said the militia-men are being tracked down one by one and either captured or killed depending on whether they offer resistance. No casualty figures were available."

South Korean Mass Meeting

SEOUL (UPI) — South Korean demonstrators burned North Korea President Kim Il-Sung in effigy at a mass public meeting Saturday and called on the United States to "honor its defense commitment" to support them against military threats from their Communist neighbor.

The participants in the demonstration at Seoul's Yoido Plaza—estimated by the organizers at 2 million persons—coupled their appeal to President Ford with a warning to the North Korean Communists not to consider South Korea as another Indochina.

The United States has pledged to come to the defense of South Korea on the basis of a 1954 Mutual Defense Treaty. It maintains about 35,000 troops in the country.

A message sent to Ford and South Korean President Park Chung Hee asked that "the United States, by deed, would honor its defense commitment to South Korea and actively support South Korean efforts to deter, bravely meet and crush war provocations by Communist aggressor forces."

It warned North Korea that "should there be miscalculations that primitive provocations only possible in the jungles of Vietnam could be repeated on this land, then we will resolutely let you realize this is neither South Vietnam nor Khmer (Cambodia)."

Kim Il-Sung recently visited Peking but diplomatic observers believe he got little encouragement for renewing the war against South Korea.

The Korean conflict of 1950-1953 was ended by an armistice in 1954. No treaty between the two Koreas has been signed.

Chilean Quake

SANTIAGO (UPI) — A strong earthquake rocked a 900-mile stretch of Chile Saturday and a tidal wave warning was issued for the Pacific Ocean.

The early morning tremor, which damaged at least 100 homes, was felt for 900 miles from Santiago to Puerto Montt and reached an intensity of from 7 to 8 on the international 12-point scale in some localities, according to the emergency office of the Chilean Interior Ministry.

There were no immediate reports of casualties.

The quake temporarily cut communications with Puerto Montt and Concepcion, a large industrial city about 350 miles south of the capital but lines were later restored.

Endorses Expanded Fishing Jurisdiction

OCRACOKE ISLAND, N.C. (AP) — A proposal to extend North Carolina's jurisdiction over commercial fishing in coastal waters from three to 12 miles has been endorsed by the state's Marine Science Council.

The council approved a resolution to that effect at its monthly meeting on this Outer Banks island.

John Pittman, the council's executive director, said Friday the 20-member body also heard a report on a proposed water system for the 463 permanent Ocracoke residents, who presently catch rainwater for drinking purposes.

"Recognizing that the federal government will likely extend its economic jurisdiction to the 200 mile limit in the near future, the Marine Science Council recommends that the state jurisdiction be extended...to 12 miles..." the resolution stated.

It also called for studies on the effect on individual fishermen, reciprocal regulations with other states, and the cost of possible enforcement of regulations.

Secretary Bruce Lentz of the Department of Administration urged the council to look ahead and attempt to anticipate problems the state might face in the next five to 20 years.

The council was established by the 1969.

MOTHER OF THE YEAR—Mrs. Josephine Burson, 59, of Memphis, Tenn., holds flowers in New York Friday after being named Mother of the Year. Mrs. Burson told newsmen she does

Ford Supports Change In Proposed Trade Act

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford cast his support Saturday behind a proposed trade act change that would let him restore favorable tariff treatment to Ecuador, Iran, Indonesia, Nigeria and Venezuela despite their membership in the oil cartel.

The new U.S. Foreign Trade Act, which he signed into law Jan. 3, excluded all members of the Organization of Oil Producing and Exporting Countries from its generalized system of tariff preferences in retaliation for the 1973-1974 oil embargo.

In a speech to foreign ministers of the Organization of American States, Ford indicated the retaliation had been unfairly broad. The five nations that would be affected by the proposed amendment to the act did not participate in the embargo despite their membership in OPEC.

"We must be particularly conscious of the need to avoid unnecessary damage to each other's interests," Ford told the foreign ministers during a White House reception.

"For this reason, I am supporting modification of recent legislation passed by the Congress which singles out a few nations in the Hemisphere for what seems discriminatory treatment."

Latin Americans have strongly criticized the trade act, objecting particularly to the provisions relating to oil cartel members.

The House Ways and Means Committee has scheduled hearings Monday on an amendment to the trade act that would give Ford discretionary powers in applying its tariff provisions. The idea of the proposal is to let OPEC members who ignored the embargo continue to enjoy tariff preferences.

The OAS foreign ministers were in Washington for the fifth general assembly of the organization, which began Thursday and will end May 19.

"International cooperation that assures mutual respect among nations is more essential than ever," Ford said. "And the opportunities, particularly in this hemisphere, are without precedent."

The President sought to ease with a bit of humor the ill feelings generated by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's cancellation of three Latin American trips in the past six months.

"Some of you, I understand, were disappointed not to see Henry Kissinger in your capitals," he said. "I know exactly how you feel. There are times when we don't see much of him in our own capital."

Trustees Approve New $96.3 Million Duke Hospital

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The Duke University Board of Trustees has unanimously approved construction of a new $96.3 million facility which will be called "Duke Hospital North." It will be located about a quarter of a mile from the present Duke Hospital complex.

Site preparation is expected to begin in September or October with completion in the spring of 1979.

The new facility will expand total capacity to 1,008 beds. The present hospital has 855 beds.

Trustee approval of the new facility had been expected late last year but the sagging economy and high interest rates delayed final action until Friday, a spokesman said.

Dr. William G. Anlyan, Duke vice president for health affairs, said the outlook for borrowing money "is the best it has been for a long time and we need to take advantage of this probably temporary improvement."

Trustees disclosed that a down payment of $30 million would be required on the project with the remainder to be financed by the sale of bonds.

Anlyan said $17.5 million of the required down payment is in hand and the remaining amount is expected to be available within the next few weeks. He did not disclose the source of the anticipated funding.

The new facility will have 616 beds for patient care services in the departments of medicine, pediatrics and surgery. The present hospital will retain 353 beds for obstetrics, gynecology and psychiatry, and also patient rehabilitation services. The remaining 39 beds are in the Duke Eye Center.

Two Washington Explosions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two explosions, apparently small bombs, shattered a window at the Mexican Embassy chancery and caused minor damage at the Soviet Aeroflot airlines ticket office Saturday.

There were no injuries, and authorities said there was no indication the minor explosions might be connected. Police and Secret Service agents were investigating.

District of Columbia police said "some kind of explosive device" went off outside the downtown Soviet Aeroflot airlines ticket office about 2:35 a.m. EDT, breaking a window and damaging some paneling.

Foreigners Can Stay

Saigon radio reported Saturday that South Vietnam's new rulers will allow all foreigners remaining in the country to conduct normal business so long as they register with government officials within 15 days.

The North Vietnamese newspaper Peoples Daily, meanwhile, kept up its criticism of the U.S.-organized evacuation of Vietnamese, this time in a commentary by its correspondent in Saigon calling the evacuation "really medieval slave-trading in modern times."

Upholds Martial Law

MANILA (UPI) — The Philippine Supreme Court Saturday upheld military court jurisdiction over civilians, saying President Ferdinand E. Marcos must be amply armed with powers to cope with the Communist rebellion that prompted his declaration of martial law.

The high court decision, by a vote of 8-3, was handed down 21 months after imprisoned opposition leader Benigno S. Aquino Jr., 42, challenged the right of military courts, formed under martial law proclaimed in September, 1972, to try civilians.

Detroit Braces Itself

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit is bracing itself for the next round in a violent controversy over police department layoffs.

Both the chief of police and head of the police union warn there may be "some problems" because a federal court decision upheld the layoffs of police officers with high seniority.

Angry clashes erupted Friday when hundreds of police officers, most of them white, reacted to the court ruling that banned layoffs of federally funded officers, mostly blacks and women.

Force Put On Alert

NICOSIA (UPI) — The United Nations peacekeeping force on Cyprus was put on alert Saturday because of an outbreak of gunfire between Turkish occupation troops and Greek Cypriot National Guardsmen.

The two sides exchanged shots for about a half hour late Friday night on a position known as "Stephanie Hill" about 30 miles northwest of Nicosia. There were no casualties.

Order Spending Curb

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Labor government has ordered a curb in public spending by local authorities after the pound sterling fell to record lows in European foreign exchange markets Friday.

Political commentators said further moves are expected by the government to hold down inflation climbing toward 25 per cent.

New Shredder For CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — While government investigators are rifling through the CIA's top secret files, the agency is hard at work building a new document shredder.

However, the new "classified waste disposal system" apparently is not designed to thwart committees probing CIA activities but rather to satisfy the Environmental Protection Agency, which has been complaining about puffs of top secret smoke sent up by the CIA incinerator.

Soviet Ships To Visit

BOSTON (AP) — Two Soviet destroyers are due to arrive in Boston on Monday for the first naval warship exchange since World War II, according to Pentagon spokesmen in Washington. The exchange was arranged in connection with the 30th anniversary of the allied victory over Germany in World War II.

Service For Non-Mothers

OAK PARK, Ill. (AP) — A minister who says childless women have been made to feel inferior and unnatural is celebrating a Non-Mother's Day this Sunday at his church. He says the world needs fewer children, not more mothers.

The Rev. Gerald Krick, for five years pastor of the Unitarian-Universalist Church in this Chicago suburb, estimates that two-thirds of his congregation of 207 are married and 20 per cent of the couples are childless.

Oil Agreement Said Near

TOKYO (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Commerce Rogers C.B. Morton said today that President Ford and Congress are nearing agreement on a U.S. oil policy and may make an announcement within 30 days.

He told Japanese newsmen that the Ford administration and Congress had reached agreement on most points regarding plans to achieve independence from foreign oil supplies.

But he said Ford will go ahead with his own program using his executive powers if a compromise is not achieved.

Only If Evidence

KEENE, N.H. (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., says the investigation into the assassination of his brother, President John F. Kennedy, should be reopened only if there is sufficient evidence.

Kennedy said he was "neither for ... or against" a new inquiry. "Members of my family have been satisfied with it."

Japanese Strike Ended

TOKYO (AP) — A strike by 300,000 workers against the Japanese National Railway and most of Japan's private rail lines ended today with agreement by both sides to pay increases averaging 14.1 per cent, sources said.

The powerful Japan national railway union initially asked for an increase of more than 25 per cent in monthly salaries of about $450.

Wallace Explains His Remarks About Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace says he was trying to point out the folly of American foreign policy when he said the United States should have been allied with Japan during World War II.

Wallace said in a Friday speech that when he made the remark, he was also attempting to demonstrate his strong anti-Communist feelings and did not mean for the comment to be taken literally.

"I have made some statements and have had this 'mis-constructed,'" said Wallace, who is expected to announce soon as a Democratic presidential candidate.

Advises On Refugee Information

MCAS, CHERRY POINT—The Joint Public Affairs Office at the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, has learned that the Inter-Agency Indochina Task Force has been receiving hundreds of telephone calls a day from Americans who wish to sponsor a specific Vietnamese family or are willing to offer such sponsorship or other assistance to families selected by resettlement agencies.

All such calls should now be directed to the following toll-free number: 800-368-1180. A bank of telephones will be manned by operators who will ask for the particular information which the voluntary resettlement agencies require in order to match sponsors with appropriate families after they arrive at one of the three reception centers in the United States—Camp Pendleton, Calif., Ft. Chaffee, Ark., or Eglin AFB, Fla.

Members of the public who have previously filed or mailed affidavits of support, or who have notified their local immigration and naturalization service of their willingness to sponsor a specific family, are advised to repeat this information to an operator at the indicated 800-368-1180 number.

Individuals wishing to make cash contributions may send their checks to the local chapter of the American Red Cross marked for "Assistance to Refugees From Indochina," or to any of several voluntary agencies.

Persons interested in obtaining a list of those agencies can call the Joint Public Affairs Office at Cherry Point Air Station — 466-2536 or 466-3547.

The Inter-Agency Indochina Task Force has also been receiving hundreds of calls from Americans seeking information on the whereabouts of relatives and friends who may have been evacuated from Vietnam and who have not yet arrived in this country.

Because of the number of evacuees involved, their widely scattered location, even on the single island of Guam, and the pace of their onward movement to the continental U.S., it has not been possible to devise an acceptable locator system and callers have been advised to await word that is certain to come to them from the incoming families.

Such calls tie up the switchboard and delay a self-location process on the part of the refugees who are trying to reach their American friends. Self-locating is in fact well underway as the families and friends of the 10,000 Vietnamese who have already left the three reception centers for their new communities can attest.

Mother, 5 Children Die In House Fire

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A 34-year-old mother and five of her 11 children were killed today when a fire of undetermined origin swept through their apartment on the city's rundown South Side, police said.

Five other Mills children escaped uninjured and the 11th child was nowhen the fire broke out at 3:11 a.m., police said.

Police said Mrs. Mills and four of the dead children were found in their apartment. Three-year-old Pope was found in the back yard, and police said the child apparently had been thrown from a window in an effort to rescue him.

The fire was under control about an hour after it started and firemen were sifting the rubble for more bodies.

Police said it appeared the fire broke out in the Mills apartment.

Green Proposes Freezing Capital Improvement Funds

RALEIGH (AP)—House Speaker James C. Green has proposed freezing expenditures of state capital improvement funds for at least six weeks. He said he wanted the time to determine what the state's revenue outlook will be for 1975-77.

Green's proposal was introduced in the House as a resolution Friday by Reps. John E. Davenport, D-Nash, and Herbert Hyde, D-Buncombe. Senate leaders were not consulted, and they expressed coolness to the idea.

The bill would freeze approriations made by previous legislatures for capital improvements, furniture and other equipment until the 1975 budget is approved. It would give the legislature a chance to reconsider past appropriations that have not been spent.

Estimates of the funds involved ranged between $84 million and $200 million.

Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee was unenthusiastic about the proposal.

He said he thought it was wrong for the legislature to meddle with decisions made in earlier sessions. "I would hesitate to interfere. I realize things are subject to change at any time, but I would hate to see us get involved in all that," Scott said.

Rep. Jimmy Love, D-Lee, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said he was not consulted either and indicated he did not approve of the measure.

"I personally don't think it is the way to go right now. I don't think the situation is quite that desperate."

Asian Nations To Meet

By RATAN SINGH
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI)—Foreign ministers of five Southeast Asian nations meet here next week in the wake of Communist victories in Indochina to try to turn the elusive dream of securing a lasting peace in the region into a reality.

Barring surprises, they will adopt a blueprint for creation of a zone of peace, freedom and neutrality free of foreign bases and big power manipulations and covering all 10 countries of Southeast Asia.

For four years since they declared their intention to work for such a zone, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations has quietly chiseled out a draft blueprint despite internal disputes and international skepticism.

The determination of ASEAN—comprising Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Thailand and Singapore—has won over countries in Europe and Asia that initially scoffed at the concept.

But the biggest hurdles lie ahead.

The major obstacle is convincing the Communist countries of Indochina—North and South Vietnam and Cambodia—to join the zone. If they opt for it then convincing Laos and Burma to make up the proposed 10 countries would be easy.

But once this is achieved, ASEAN diplomats say, the zone powers will face the acid test—getting international recognition and guarantees for the zone especially from the superpowers.

The ASEAN ministers will have to decide during their three-day meeting starting Tuesday how to meet these problems. The master plan consists of precepts upon which the zone would operate.

The zone is defined as a 10-nation group mutually agreed on peaceful co-existence, neutral in world affairs and opposing big power interference.

The guidelines for members, among other things, pledge zonal nations not to allow foreign bases on their territory. Those foreign bases existing currently will be accepted as "temporary" ones being phased out.

The rules would also enjoin members to renounce the use of force and pledge a policy of non-intervention and non-interference in each other's internal affairs.

Perhaps more significant are the "expectations" which zonal members expect outside nations, particularly the big powers, to observe in dealing with the zone.

Besides listing the usual international principles, these require the outsiders to respect the sovereignty and independence of zone members as well as their neutrality in superpower politics. The key provision in the expectations is one requiring outside powers to refrain from having defense pacts with zone nations.

Former Chairman Sentenced

SHELBY, N.C. (AP)—The former chairman of the Shelby Human Relations Council has been sentenced to three to five years imprisonment for selling heroin.

J.C. Cole, 30, received the sentence Friday in Cleveland County Superior Court. He was released in lieu of a $10,200 bond pending appeal.

Four Students Charged

BOONE, N.C. (AP)—Four students at Appalachian State University were charged today with malicious destruction of state and private property in the slashing Friday of tires on 17 automobiles.

A university spokesman said 16 of the cars involved were state-owned vehicles. The tires were punctured early Friday.

The university said three of the students had been arrested: David Waldron Jones, 21, a sophomore, of Charlotte; Willie Richard Dildy, 21, a senior, of Asheboro, and James Michael Manning, 20, a sophomore, of Fayetteville. The spokesman said a warrant also had been issued for Donald Wayne Atkinson, 20, a sophomore from Lumberton.

Judge Will Retire

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—Judge Sammie Chess Jr., the state's only black Superior Court judge, says he will resign in a few weeks and return to private law practice.

Chess, a Democrat, said his term as a special judge ends June 30 and he did not expect to be reappointed. Gov. Jim Holshouser has been appointing fellow Republicans to the special judgeships.

Chess made the disclosure during an interview this week in Gastonia.

New Highway Requested

RALEIGH (AP)—U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., has offered hope for Surry County motorists forced to take long detours to get across the Yadkin River.

Morgan, through his Raleigh office, said Friday that the Federal Highway Administration has formally requested the U.S. Army to construct a temporary replacement for the bridge which collapsed near Siloam in February. Four persons died when their cars plunged into the river.

Morgan said the FHA has agreed to pay for the temporary bridge if the Army will build it.

Charged With Neglect

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A 23-year-old Charlotte mother has been charged with child neglect after her five small children were found unattended at their home, police said Friday.

Bobbie Jean Livingston was released under $300 bond pending a district court hearing May 16.

Police went to the woman's home last Wednesday after a neighbor reported that the children, ranging in age from two months to six years, had been left alone for several days.

Reaffirms Ban

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—The Wake Forest University Board of Trustees has reaffirmed its 1971 ban on men and women students visiting in one another's dormitory rooms. The vote was 15-13.

In effect, the decision Friday turned down a trustee committee recommendation that the administration be asked to design "a social policy and program . . . that would be realistic in nature and one that is uniquely applicable to this particular university."

Judge Sharp Honored

GREENSBORO (AP)—Miss Susie Sharp, chief justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court, was one of four women honored Saturday at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Alumnae service awards were presented to the four during the annual meeting of the UNGC Alumnae Association.

Honored with Miss Sharp were Brig. Gen. Mildred Bailey, director of the U. S. Women's Army Corps; Mrs. Gladys Avery Tillett of Charlotte, who served this year as state president of Equal Rights Amendment United; and Mrs. Bennie Craig Inman, executive director of the Greensboro Cerebral Palsy and Orthopedic School.

Rush Needed Item

VALDEZ, Alaska (AP)—An emergency supply of toilet paper was rushed to Valdez from Anchorage following an early-morning fire that destroyed the storage area of the only grocery store in Valdez.

Cause of the fire on Friday was not known.

Criticism Fine, If Not Printed

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Eleanor McGovern, who accompanied her husband Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., on his trip to Cuba, says Cuban premier Fidel Castro doesn't mind criticism as long as it stays out of print.

Mrs. McGovern said Friday that while she and her husband were in Cuba someone in their party asked Castro, "What would you say if someone said, 'Down with Fidel Castro?'"

"I don't mind if they say it, they just can't print it in my newspaper," she quoted Castro. The news media in Cuba is owned by the state.

The McGovern returned from Cuba on Thursday.

Mrs. McGovern, who delivered the commencement address Friday at the University of North Carolina at Asheville, said she has no doubt that Castro wants better relations with the United States. She said Castro told them repeatedly that he also wanted the 10-year trade embargo imposed by the United States lifted.

Approval Expected

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House is expected to approve up to $405 million for 115,000 Indochina refugees this week, but the Senate may chop that figure and pinpoint some of it for return tickets to Saigon.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana Saturday urged careful consideration of long-range funding for refugees. He said $147 million earlier earmarked for military aid to South Vietnam should be spent on the refugees.

Mansfield said earlier he supports full funding for resettlement but he also wants Senate legislation specifically expanded to pay the way for South Vietnamese who ask to return home or settle in other countries.

Editor Resigns

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Edwin M. Yoder Jr., associate editor of the Greensboro Daily News since 1965, has resigned effective June 1 to accept a similar position with the Washington Star-News.

Yoder, 40, joined the Daily News in 1961 as an editorial writer and has been with the newspaper all but one year since then. He spent that year as an assistant professor of history at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

For the past 10 years he has been associate editor and editor of the editorial page. His title with the Washington Star-News will be associate editor and his primary responsibility will be to edit the editorial pages.

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (UPI)—North Carolina Wesleyan College, battling for money to survive, has gotten more than $200,000 in pledges, the school's campaign chairman said Saturday.

Chairman Leon A. Dunn, Jr. said the pledges totaling $207,070.81 have come in since the solicitation for funds started May 3.

The University North Carolina system turned down a request by school officials to take over the financially burdened North Carolina Wesleyan. Increasing costs and dwindling enrollments have sent the school floundering with little chance of reopening next fall without large donations.

The United Methodist Church has pledged to raise $825,000 for the school over the next two years, $400,000 this year. The Methodists say they'll have $200,000 by Sept. 1.

The pledges announced by Dunn are in addition to the pledges from the North Carolina Methodists.

Wesleya board chairman J. Phil Carlton said the Board of Trustees will announce May 16 whether the fund drive projection and the student enrollment projection is favorable for a September opening.

Want Trial Moved Back To Eastern N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The prosecutors in the Joan Little murder case have asked the North Carolina Supreme Court to order her trial moved back to eastern North Carolina.

Dist. Atty. William Griffin filed his petition with the court Friday. He asked it to void trial Judge Henry McKinnon's decision to move the trial to Raleigh, in the central part of the state.

McKinnon, at the close of pre-trial hearings last week, said it would be difficult and expensive to find an unprejudiced jury in the area around Beaufort County, where Miss Little allegedly stabbed jailer Clarence Alligood last summer.

She was in jail at the time awaiting an appeal on a breaking and entering conviction. She has said that Alligood entered her cell and tried to rape her when she stabbed him in self defense.

The defense had asked for the change in venue, presenting elaborate studies designed to prove that racial prejudice in the rural, eastern section of the state was worse than in the urban Piedmont, where Raleigh is located.

McKinnon called most of the defense data "irrelevant and incompetent." But he acceded to the request after Miss Little's attorneys agreed to waive their right to challenge the jury pool in Wake County.

McKinnon said he was moving the trial "in the interests of justice."

At first, Griffin acceded to the decision. But since that time, he has been criticized in eastern North Carolina. He indicated in his brief Friday that some of his neighbors have expressed concern at what they consider a slight to the racial fairness of eastern North Carolinians.

Griffin formally entered an exception to McKinnon's order Monday, four days after it was handed down.

He based his complaint on the expense to Beaufort County trial participants of coming to Raleigh, 100 miles away.

And he said McKinnon overstepped his authority by ordering the trial moved so far.

Refugee Bottleneck Builds Up At Guam

AGANA, Guam (UPI)—Processing bottlenecks at mainland refugee camps and the anticipated arrival by ship of another 20,000 Vietnamese stretched Guam's capacity as a refugee transit stop almost to a breaking point Saturday.

Authorities, who were forced to fly 3,000 more refugees to Wake Island, said Saturday they were eager to send on to the continental United States a large number of the 42,000 displaced Vietnamese crammed onto this U.S. island territory.

Guam's stated maximum capacity is 50,000 and Rear Adm. George S. Morrison, commander of U.S. Navy forces in the Marianas, said sanitation problems were intensifying and there also was a shortage of cots and mattresses. Children were being doubled up on beds while many adults were forced to sleep on the plywood floors of their tents.

Meanwhile, seven ships carrying 2,546 South Vietnamese left Singapore Saturday for Subic Bay in the Philippines en route to Guam and another two ships with 763 refugees were expected to leave later in the day. On Friday, five South Vietnamese ships with 850 persons aboard left for Subic Bay.

An undisclosed number of displaced South Vietnamese arrived in Hong Kong Saturday aboard a Swedish freighter. Last Sunday, 3,750 refugees were bought in by the Danish freighter Clara Maersk and two Hong Kong-registered ships with 70 aboard docked Tuesday.

Representatives of international relief agencies on Guam said the bottleneck was caused by the change in the type of refugees being processed on the island.

"At first there were few problems as most of the people had relatives in the U.S. or sponsors that they got in touch with immediately they arrived and the flow from the camps was good," said John F. Thomas, a representative of the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration.

"Now most of the locating process has to be done through volunteer agencies and churches as it was with the Cubans, the Hungarians and Ugandans. And the slow, careful way is the only way to do it if you are not just going to dump them on the community," Thomas said.

He said ICEM so far has secured promises from four of its 32 member countries to take a small number of refugees. He said Canada has promised to admit 3,000 refugees, Australia and France 1,500 each and Austria and Belgium 200 each.

New Demands By Guerrillas

VITERBO, Italy (UPI)—Three inmates who staged a rebellion in Viterbo's prison with the support of urban guerrillas outside released a guard Saturday in exchange for transfers to jails in northern Italy.

But new demands by the guerrillas delayed the promised release of a Rome magistrate kidnaped three days ago by the left-wing guerrilla group Armed Proletariat Nuclei, known as the NAP.

The inmates had said Magistrate Giuseppe Di Gennaro would be released after they safely reached their new prisons in three different towns of the Piedmont region, but after they got there the magistrate was not released.

The guerrillas made their new demand on a tape recording left for a newsman in a doorway of Via Frattina, one of Rome's busiest shopping streets.

"You have forgotten everything," Di Gennaro's voice said on the tape. "You are prejudicing my position. Police have arrested Sergio D. and have not guaranteed him his rights to defense."

Authorities said they have not taken any "Sergio D." into custody in the past 24 hours, but they said if they had they would have complied with the demand on the tape to provide three of Italy's top defense attorneys for the supposed prisoner.

Authorities said they have not taken any "Sergio D." into custody in the past 24 hours, but they said if they had they would have complied with the demand on the tape to provide three of Italy's top defense attorneys for the supposed prisoner.

In a new outbreak at the medieval Viterbo prison, about 50 inmates climbed to the roof and fastened a banner reading "Reforms and Laws" to the adjoining church tower.

Authorities reinforced the guard around the prison but said the situation was "under control."

The guerrillas, who seized Di Gennaro Tuesday night as he drove home, had threatened to kill him if the three inmates' demands for transfers and legal help were not met.

Bribes Sometimes Necessary Pentagon Spokesman Claims

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon explains to U.S. weapons makers that they must sometimes pay off high foreign officials to sell arms in Middle Eastern countries.

In a document prepared last year by the Pentagon's sales arm, it says arms makers usually must do business through local agents who have strong "influence" with the local government and who can command fees ranging into the millions of dollars.

The document did not name any countries where payoffs had been made, or any companies that made them. It said French and British companies had no qualms about paying huge agent fees, and that one French firm reportedly laid out $40 million to get a $200 million contract.

The unclassified document, written by Josef K. Hoenig of the Defense Security Assistance Agency for use by trade associations of U.S. arms makers, appears in the public files of the Securities and Exchange Commission as part of a voluminous report by Northrop Corp.

Northrop was accused in an SEC lawsuit of paying $30 million in fees to agents and consultants in 1971, 1972 and 1973 without proper accounting.

Although Northrop has so far refused to divulge details of the $30 million publicly, SEC documents indicate that at least some went to a Saudi Arabian agent, Adam M. Khashoggi, best known in this country through his buying of some California banks.

Pentagon spokesman Joseph Laitin said Friday he had not read the Hoenig document, but that "We stand foursquare against bribery."

The ten winners at the Author's Luncheon were: Best primary poem, Patrick Moore, third grade, Farmville, Christine Johnston award; Best primary story, Ingrid Elizabeth Ross, third grade, Eastern Elementary, Elizabeth Savage award; Best upper elementary poem, Mary Mattox, sixth grade, St. Raphael, Bessie Ward Wooten Award; Best junior high essay, Lee Moore, Carolyn James-Agnes Fullilove award.

They'll Use Every Opportunity

As could be fully expected, we are hearing cries for either delaying the ECU Medical School or submitting the financing to a state-wide bond issue, now that the General Assembly nears final action on the budget.

All too frequently these cries come from those who fought the establishment of the medical school and then screamed at every step of its development.

Of course, they want it delayed and naturally they would wish with all their hearts that some sort of bond election could be arranged. Having lost their battle to deny this needed facility to North Carolinians, they would like a fifth quarter.

Too many opponents of the ECU Medical School have never worried too much about the public need, anyway, so obviously still another campaign where they could attempt to divide our citizens and create bitterness between sections of our state would be just fine with them.

The need for the medical school at ECU has been clearly established through ten years of debate and study. The State Legislature showed great foresight in establishing a $15 million fund prior to this year to develop the school. The citizens of Pitt County voted bonds for construction of a new hospital and as it turned out this is going to be of great help in development of the medical school.

We are also fortunate that a dedicated group of administrators and medical faculty are on hand at ECU and they have, in fact, been teaching medical students for three years.

Funds are included in the proposed budget for developing the school and because of the availability of the new hospital the amount needed this year has been reduced by $7 million.

In view of all this we cannot understand why anyone would call for delaying the school's development, or for a bond issue, which amounts to the same thing.

North Carolina has put too much of its energies into arguing over the principle of the ECU medical school, already. We don't think that there is any doubt that when the final budget is approved the medical school funds will be there. Too much work has been done and the need is simply too great for any turning back now.

Spying During Detente

By GORDON F. JOSELOFF
MOSCOW (UPI) — The 20 young American tour guides heard the warnings about possible Soviet attempts to trick them with skepticism.

"That stuff is strictly out of novels," one of the Russian-speaking Americans remarked three months ago when the subject came up at a U.S. embassy reception soon after their arrival.

"This is the era of detente. Why would they do something like that? It really would be stupid."

Stupid or not, the guides have now learned first hand that detente has not stopped the Soviets from attempting to compromise visiting Westerners.

The U.S. embassy said such an attempt recently was made against one of the guides who are on a six-month tour of the Soviet Union with a U.S. home technology exhibit.

An embassy spokesman gave no details other than to say the man involved had been sent home for his own protection and a protest had been lodged with the Soviets.

U.S. sources said the incident involved a young black in his 20s who had sexual relations with a Soviet woman in Tashkent. He was taken to a Soviet hospital on a pretext and interrogated for two days.

He was questioned closely about the personal background of the other guides, their training and qualifications and asked, "who are the spies among them?" the sources said.

U.S. officials finally located him and won his release.

The United States and other Western nations have tried to play down incidents such as these for fear of rocking the detente boat.

"We know they go on," one U.S. official in Moscow said. "The other side does, too (apparently referring to Western attempts to subvert Russians). It's best not to bring it out in public."

Others, inside and outside the diplomatic community, disagree.

"It really gets me mad to see these things hushed up," one American foreign service officer said.

"They go on all the time. People back home think things are all sweetness and light here, and that's one reason why

Seeking Some Pay Raises

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Faced with the hard political realities of not giving state employees and teachers a raise in the coming fiscal year, legislators are wrestling with several ideas designed to soothe the ruffled feathers resulting.

A total of nearly 150,000 people are affected—and that represents a lot of organized political clout.

The governor has agreed with legislative sentiment that the budgeted five per cent pay raise will likely have to be put off.

Still, the lawmakers would like to find some way, and among the various ideas being debated privately are these:

—Put a freeze on the normal longevity and merit pay increases for most state employees, and use that money to provide a two per cent across-the-board raise for all;

—Adopt a system whereby state employees would be given a raise without further legislative action if revenues improve and the money becomes available;

—Set up a contingency bonus system in which all employees making less than around $9,000 yearly would receive a one-time state allotment of around $1,000—if the money is available—while higher salaried employees would receive a lesser amount.

The hard truth being faced by the General Assembly is that cutting big chunks of money out of the budget can't be done without affecting people, because that's where the majority of state money is spent.

Resolve Conflict

A proposal put forth by State Rep. Graham Bell, D-Gaston, in hopes of resolving the high-level clash between State School Supt. A. Craig Phillips, and Board of Education Chairman Dallas Herring is one of several in the works in the General Assembly.

Bell's suggestion involves spelling out clearly the duties of the State Board of Education under the Constitution, giving that group hiring and firing authority over Department of Public Instruction personnel; supervision over operation of divisions within the department; the upper hand in setting policy and programs; in sum, makes that board the top authority in public school activity.

His suggestion also is to set up staff research people directly answerable to the board to oversee agenda items and to review proposals put forth by the superintendent.

"The proposal charges the State Board of Education with assuming its responsibilities under the State Constitution to function aggressively as the policy and supervisory structure over public education," Bell said.

It will be difficult to bring about the major change which many have suggested in public education in the short time remaining in this session of the General Assembly, Bell, and others, agree.

A special Senate committee is at work on the same problem, and several other groups are also drawing up proposed legislation on the same matter.

Adjournment Near?

House Speaker James C. Green has been saying for some days that he hopes to see the session finished by June 20, and recently scolded members of the House of Representatives for introducing new legislation at this time.

"If you had a good idea which needed legislative attention, it should have occurred to you before now," he reminded legislators. He suggested that only matters of extreme urgency be handled from here on.

The big hangup, however, is bound to be the budget bills as senators and representatives go their separate ways in cutting and fudging, wait until the last minute to try to pull the differences together into one budget acceptable on both sides.

The INSIDE REPORT

The Crisis In Government

By ROWLAND EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—A partisan cat-and-mouse game played within the House Ways and Means Committee points to permanent stalemate on energy and no major action against a serious menace to this country.

What Ways and Means is doing in its languorous handling of energy tax legislation is drenched in politics. Dominant Democrats are maneuvering for Republican endorsement of a bill unlikely to clear the House itself. The embattled Republican minority, in turn, resists such an embrace, preferring a wholly Democratic stamp on a bill condemned to oblivion and perhaps carrying political obloquy for its sponsors.

Thus, despite periodic bleats from the White House about an energy compromise in sight, there is little likelihood of legislation to force reduced oil consumption. Confronting a rambunctious Democratic majority recognizing no structure leadership President Ford cannot even control his Republican minority. Beyond doubt the energy stalemate documents the crisis in government here today.

derlined relationships between the three actors in the politics of energy—the President, congressional Democrats and congressional Republicans.

The philosophical differences are clear. Republicans want to reduce oil consumption through the price mechanism, that is, by raising prices; Democrats want the reduction through some means of government control.

A compromise has been sought in weeks of negotiations by two sincere, industrious newcomers to their jobs: Federal Energy administrator Frank Zarb and Rep. Al Ullman, Ways and Means chairman. They agreed to combine an oil import quota (controls) with a gasoline tax (price mechanism), the relative emphasis on each remaining a big, unanswered question.

Ullman had trouble selling this to liberal Democratic committee members who oppose the gasoline tax as regressive, but Zarb had even more trouble with committee Republicans. Rep. Barber Conable of New York chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee and a senior Ways and Means member, had been instrumental in Mr. Ford's anti-gas tax statements during the 1974 campaign.

Conable and other Republican Congressman promised constituents last fall to oppose any gas tax and have informed Zarb they are not about to renege.

That led to last week's decision, forced on the President simultaneously with the fall of Saigon. Should he impose by executive order the second dollar of his proposed $3-a-barrel oil import tax—popularly called "playing hardball"? Or should he wait another month to see whether the Ullman-Zarb negotiations succeeded?

Advice from Conable and other committee Republicans was firm: play hardball. The committee's Democrats, they told the President, were only trying to entangle him and the Republicans in a bill that could never pass the House. To protect his own eroded authority, they urged, stand firm. Some White House advisers agreed.

But Zarb urged Mr. Ford to give the Democrats one more month. Even more persuasive perhaps was Rep. Joe Waggoner of Louisiana, a conservative Democrat with close ties to the White House. He had trouble enough with Congress, Waggoner told the President; invoking executive power would only exacerbate his problems.

But the President's granting another month's grace has brought the leisurely Ways and Means pace to paralysis. The May 1 decision started a cat-and-mouse game, with Democrats seeking collaboration among the 12 Republicans on the 37-member committee, and Republicans resisting the snare.

An example: Rep. Herman Schneebeli of Pennsylvania, the committee's senior Republican, suggested on May 2 an improvement in one Democratic proposal he opposed in principle. By May 5, his suggestion had been transmogrified into the "Schneebeli Amendment." Averting the trap, he disavowed authorship.

So, if the committee votes a bill including a gasoline tax, it probably will be a straight Democratic measure without Republican votes. Either way, there is little hope any gas tax could survive the House floor, suggesting all this is largely political posturing.

Sunday Morning Notes

Danny Griffin, Williamston native who is now a systems programmer at the ECU computer center, plays the organ for weddings and other occasions.

At last count he had played for around 35 weddings, but one stands out in his memory.

Danny began the traditional Wedding March and the wedding party had started down the aisle.

He reached up to turn the first sheet of the music. Alas, the second sheet clung to the first. It sailed into the air and, caught in a draft, it floated through space.

The soloist, who was seated behind Danny grabbed for the sheet of music. This unbalanced the soloist and he fell from his chair.

There was nothing for Danny to do but stop the Wedding March and rush behind the organ to retrieve the music. This done, Danny returned to the organ, started the march over again and the wedding party resumed its procession to the altar.

Fortunately, Danny had a number of weddings to his credit when the incident occurred.

"If it had happened on my first one, I probably would have never played again," he chuckled.

Other Editors Say Flawed Program

(Wilson Times)

Early Sunday, an armed bandit robbed a Raleigh supermarket of more than $25,000, police arrested two men in connection with the crime and are still searching for a third suspect.

Except for the size of the store's loss there appeared to be little unusual about the holdup. Raleigh has its share of crime, as do Wilson and other parts of the nation, and armed robberies are everyday incidents.

What was unusual was that the third suspect is a convict granted "weekend leave" from the Wake County Advancement Center where he was serving a 20-to-30-year sentence for—you guessed it—armed robbery.

The fugitive, although considered worthy of leave by the Department of Correction, was described by Wake Chief Deputy L.W. Kelly as armed and dangerous.

A subsequent investigation revealed the convict was granted leave to visit his mother who was supposed to come from the prisoner's home town to Raleigh at an address later discovered to be the home of the two men arrested in connection with the holdup.

But the story has another twist. A deputy said he was told by prison officials the fugitive was to visit another address that turned out to be that of the convict's girlfriend. Going to this address, officers found another prisoner, a life-terminer, who was supposed to be on leave in Kinston.

Chief Deputy Kelly criticized certain Department of Correction policies and said law enforcement officers have had trouble with prisoners on weekend leave from the center. The chief deputy said "something is going to have to be done even if we have to go to the legislature."

Although a center spokesman defended the practice of granting leave and described its aim as preparing prisoners for work release, something obviously is wrong with any system that allows men convicted of serious crimes to go free on weekends to commit additional crimes.

One slip should not be allowed to destroy a worthwhile rehabilitation program, but if there are widespread abuses, as Chief Deputy Kelly's remarks indicate, an immediate crack-down is mandatory.

In case you don't know, hailstones hurt, so J. B. found his way to shore and shelter as quickly as possible.

A friend who was fishing at the same time wasn't so lucky. He couldn't find shelter and wound up sticking his head under one of the boat seats to protect it from the hail stones.

For J. B., a local realtor, it recalled a time when he worked at the old Carolina Dairies dairy bar on Washington Street. Hailstones as big as golf balls fell, he recalled, and actually broke the plate glass windows of the building.

The Carolina Dairies building, which was located between Third and Fourth Streets, has since been demolished.

No Buyer's Mood; Paying Debts

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business analyst

NEW YORK (AP) —

Americans are paying off their debts by the hundreds of millions of dollars and, to the chagrin of merchants and some government economists, they don't seem to be developing a buyer's mood at all.

It will come, we are told by the high-finance forecasters. The First National City Bank said this week that "as inflation moderates and monetary policy continues to be stimulative, tightened purse strings should begin to loosen."

True, but the loosening foreseen by the bank isn't coming until "later this year." And a publication of Chase Manhattan Bank headlines, "Housing industry poised for an upturn," but adds the tail, "late this year."

Meanwhile, people are paying off those bills and avoiding new ones, hurrying car dealers in particular. Barely was the rebate program on car sales over when the manufacturers realized they must begin again.

For the fourth month in five, consumers lowered their debt in March and indications are that the trend continued through April. The March reduction totaled $462 million, the third highest figure on record.

In the full January-March quarter the consumer debt declined $816 million, and this followed a reduction of $909 million in the final three months of 1974. But that left $184.25 billion in borrowings on the books.

While that figure appears to be enormous it represents an increase of only $6.68 billion from a year earlier. Wring out inflation from those swollen figures and you have a real decline of at least that much.

All this suggests that American consumers, disheveled by inflation, are getting their houses in order, both reacting to and, by their reluctance to spend, reinforcing the recession.

If you're a pessimist you would be inclined to say they have every reason to remain conservative, cautious, without confidence. But if you're an optimist you'll view this as the stage setting for economic expansion.

A good many financial men see the brighter view, although they tend to look through binoculars rather than reading glasses. Over the next couple of months nobody seems to foresee any sudden turn for the better, but by year end they insist, the change will be apparent.

The consumer isn't dead, despite the claims made by automobile dealers who say he hasn't been seen in his usual haunts for months. He's alive and alert, but suspicious. He's timing his move.

Strength For Today

TROUBLE AS A BLESSING

A wise man once said that prosperity is the blessing of the Old Testament and adversity is the blessing of the New. This is not exactly accurate, for in the Book of Job and in other portions of the Old Testament the sanctifying power of suffering is fully recognized.

But certainly it is true that in the New Testament the faithful are admonished not to regard adversity as a calamity. Jesus said, "Blessed are they which are persecuted... Blessed are ye when men shall revile you..."

In the world ye shall have tribulation, but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."

How can this position be maintained? We can hold it because we believe that God bends everything to his loving purpose, that in Jesus Christ, who suffered and rose from the dead, we have the answer to life's most grievous situations.

For those who seek to know God's will through Jesus Christ, adversity is changed into blessing.

Little New Isolationism

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—Findings from a just-completed study of the public's views on the extent of U.S. military commitments abroad offer little evidence of a "new isolationism."

President Ford and others have decried what they perceive to be a wave of isolationism sweeping the nation in the wake of the fall of Cambodia and South Vietnam. Ford has warned that the United States cannot "go it alone."

The current study, which sought to measure the extent to which Americans would go to the support of 12 key nations around the world, shows the public's views on U.S. military commitments to be virtually the same today as in 1971. Exceptions include West Germany where U.S. public support for military intervention has shown some decline.

Today, as in 1971, interventionist sentiment (that is, those who favor sending troops or military aid in the event a nation is attacked by Communist-backed forces) outweighs isolationist sentiment (those who favor a "hands off" policy) in the case of most of the 12 nations.

With the exception of Great Britain and the neighboring countries of Canada and Mexico, however, relatively few Americans would favor sending U.S. forces, as was also the case in 1971.

Women Vote Heavily Against Sending Troops

One of the most dramatic findings to emerge from the survey is the difference in views of men and women on troop commitment. Women are far less in favor (by a margin of 2-to-1 or greater) of sending troops in the case of most of the nations tested. In fact, the difference in views of men and women are among the sharpest recorded in Gallup Polls over the past four decades.

Following is the question asked in both the 1975 and 1971 surveys:

"In the event a nation is attacked by Communist-backed forces, there are several things the U.S. can do about it. As I read the name of each country, tell me what action you would want to see us take if that nation is actually attacked—send American troops OR send military supplies but not send American troops OR refuse to get involved."

As the following table shows, the willingness of Americans to aid other nations relates closely to their proximity to the United States. Percentages are ranked from highest interventionist sentiment to lowest:

Other Editors Say Planning By Vote

(Greensboro Daily News)

There might be a certain brief satisfaction, for those who thought the ECU medical school idea foolish from the outset, in having the proposed outlay of $28 million for that project put to a statewide referendum vote.

The idea came up this week as a state senate appropriations committee hacked away at educational budgets squeezed by rising costs and falling revenues. It is the brainchild, apparently, of Sen. James McDuffie, Mecklenburg Democrat.

Despite the superficial temptations, it is a thoroughly obnoxious idea—not because the idea of a fourth medical school in North Carolina is very sensible, but because a referendum would set a hard-to-live-with precedent. Assuming, as we do, that the ECU medical school scheme would disappear in a blizzard of negative ballots, the problem is that far more valuable higher educational plans could follow the same route.

The North Carolina General Assembly, in short, can't dodge its responsibility in the matter. It is that body's job to plan—with the too-seldom-headed advice of the UNC Board of Governors—for the future of state-supported higher education. Legislative decision is political enough for such a sensitive matter. But the referendum dodge would put higher educational planning on another level of political manipulation. Those critics of ECU empire-building who collaborated in it would no doubt live to rue the day they did so.

NEW YORK (AP) — Five years ago the maximum Social Security tax was $374 a worker a year. Today it is $824.

If nothing is changed and government projections prove correct, the tax paid by middle to upper income workers will rise to $895 in 1976, $962 in 1977 and $1,125 in 1978.

$342 this year, $362 in 1976, $380 in 1977 and $397 in 1978.

As a result, experts are debating how to change the nation's Social Security system, which is taking in $67 billion in fiscal 1975 and paying out $69.5 billion.

Proposals include raising the tax rate, increasing the wage base on which taxes are paid, cutting back benefits and taking revenues from the federal income tax.

The one thing on which just about everybody agrees is that Social Security is not financially healthy. The $2.5 billion deficit this year —

Victims Are Primary Concern In Britain, Too

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

By almost any yardstick one employs, the crime problem in Great Britain is vastly less than the crime problem here. One explanation may lie in a national attitude that looks with compassion upon the victims of violent crime. In Britain, victims get help.

The experience of the United Kingdom in this regard is of timely interest. In his speech at Yale on April 25, President Ford spoke eloquently of the plight of persons victimized by violent crime. "The victims," he said, "are my primary concern." They are a primary concern in Britain also.

Ten years ago, Parliament created the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board. In the 1973-74 fiscal year, it received 12,215 claims from persons who suffered personal injury "directly attributable to a crime of violence," or who suffered injury in the course of assisting him in the making of arrests. More than $9 million in claims was paid out last year. Since the program began in August, 1964, some $45 million has been awarded.

Britain's program is administered by a nine-member board, headed by Sir Walker Carter, a distinguished jurist. The system is a model of simplicity and efficiency. A person who has been mugged or assaulted, or otherwise injured, files a claim with the board. An investigation is made to determine the victim's medical expenses and his loss of income. Ordinarily, the claim is handled by a single member of the board. In about 10 percent of the cases, three members conduct a hearing. Their decisions are final.

One case last year had to do with the bombing incident near Old Bailey. More than a hundred persons were injured in the explosion. In a matter of months, more than $75,000 was paid to these victims. The board estimates that in time the figure will surpass $100,000.

Most claims, of course, are from less spectacular crimes of violence. A couple of years ago, for example, the board acted upon the application of a coal miner who was assaulted on the street. He fell with such violence that his eyesight was permanently impaired. The award: $35,250. In another case, a 15-year-old girl was raped. The board received evidence of psychiatric problems and granted $3,000.

Another case involved a 29-year-old woman who was beaten with a concrete block. The board found: "She sustained fractures of the skull, and facial bones, causing damage to the optic nerve, and total blindness. She lost the senses of taste and smell and the hearing of her right ear is impaired. . . Her powers of concentration and memory have been seriously affected and she is tired and listless." The board granted compensation of $120,000.

Great Britain's problems with violent crime, to repeat, are not nearly so severe as ours. In 1973, only 465 homicides were reported (in a nation of 53 million), and of these only 78 finally were classified as murder. Gun control is maintained so effectively that of the 78 murders, only four were committed by firearm.

British judges are not handicapped, if the verb may be forgiven, by the elaborate safeguards our own Constitution accords to the accused in a criminal trial. Thus British justice works swiftly: The quality are promptly imprisoned, and the acquitted promptly go free. If the system seems short on sociology, it is long on justice.

Under our own federal system, criminal justice is overwhelmingly the responsibility of the states. This is especially true of violent crime—murder, assault, and rape. It would be costly new burden for the states to create boards for criminal injury compensation in the British pattern, but why not?

Governments are instituted among men, said Thomas Jefferson, to make certain rights secure. Among these are the citizen's right to life, and his right to pursue happiness. If the states cannot protect these rights, so that law-abiding persons may walk in safety by night, is it not reasonable to demand that the states pay damages for their failure? It seems so to me.

Democrats Watch The 'Wallace Factor' As Big Spoiler Of 1976

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Followers of presidential politics are watching every move Governor George Wallace makes. Wallace is much aware of this attention and uses it to gain national publicity which other wise would be hard to come by.

The Wallace watchers don't see the "Alabama bantam" as a winner in the 1976 contest for the White House. At this stage, Wallace isn't given much chance to pick off the Democratic nomination.

Why the interest? It's the possibility that Wallace might just go to next year's party convention with a bigger bloc of delegates than anyone else. Then, if the convention gave him the brush off, he could well make the nomination worthless for whoever got it—head a third party ticket for instance.

Except for health, Wallace is in a much stronger position than he was in 1972, when a would-be killer's bullet took him out of the race. He has built an effective organization for one thing. For another, he has been able to attract political money and is qualified for Treasury funds under the new campaign law.

On top of this, Wallace has played no part in shaping highly controversial Washington policies of the past dozen or so years. He has no responsibility for Vietnam, for inflation, for unemployment, for long distance busing for integration or, for that matter, any of the major issues which will figure in next year's politics.

That's a real advantage. Wallace likes to point the finger at "they", meaning political forces in Washington. On the stump, delegate-seeking, he can use this hard; since his chief rivals for his party's nomination are sitting members of the Senate—McGovern, Jackson, Muskie, Kennedy, Bayh, et al. From a confidence standpoint, the public rates Congress below President Ford.

The big Wallace threat is in the system of state preferential primaries. Wallace was a leading delegate gatherer in these last time around, before he was shot in Maryland. Then, as now, he provided a rallying point for party dissidents who were fed up with leadership from the so-called Eastern liberals. He fared less well where so-called party regulars could do him in at state conventions.

This, of course, is why organization Democrats in a number of states made attempts to repeal their presidential primary laws. By and large, these were states where Wallace made sweeps in 1972, such as North Carolina and Tennessee. Wallace, however, was able to turn such maneuvers to his advantage.

In North Carolina, for example, he used the issue to give him a forum in Raleigh, where he pictured the move as an attempt to limit participation by "the people" in the nominating process. And he did the same thing in Tennessee, at Nashville. This got him national exposure, with slaps at liberals for attempting limited Democracy.

Thus far, none of the Senators bidding for 1976's big prize have been able to set the grass on fire. The hardest runner is Senator Henry Jackson, Washington. He has sought to establish himself as a Senate leader on major issues—energy, foreign policy, economics. But he hasn't got far. One reason of course, is that he finds himself stepping on the toes of other candidates. They are in no mood to make him "look good".

George McGovern, the 1972 convention winner, is moving onto the state again. He has a die-hard following on which he hopes to build. His visit to neighboring communist Cuba will be taken as a signal to his liberal followers that he's available.

Right now, the Democratic top command, as represented by the National Committee, is striking an impartial pose when it comes to the many candidates. But it is no secret that this leadership wants as little of Wallace as possible, especially in a year when it thinks there is a good chance of pushing the Republicans out of the White House. It may feel the necessity to intervene.

This explains the speculation that non-candidate Senator Ted Kennedy, Mass., is still in the picture. The Committee might turn to him, after persuading some other candidates to withdraw.

Kennedy is vulnerable, but he might put the party in a stronger position than it will be if there is a real ax fight in the convention.

Qualities That Mark A Perfect Mother-In-Law

In any language in the world there are three words designed to sour the hearts of man and beast — taxes, leftovers, and mother-in-law. Of the three mother-in-laws are the most maligned. The traditional mother-in-law has the temperament of Attila the Hun, the tactics of Lucretia Borgia, and the personal charm of Maude.

In fact, having a bad mother-in-law has become a status symbol in our society. A man can elicit instant sympathy from his colleagues just by saying that his mother-in-law is coming for a visit. And in coffee klatches all over the country, women are competing over who can tell the most horrifying mother-in-law story. The only thing that can top mother-in-laws as a topic of competitive story-telling is the labor room.

Having been brought up in this social climate, I was shocked when I married my husband. Because my mother-in-law is perfect. Now, I knew she was attractive before I got married, but I was expecting some nasty mean streak to come out after the wedding and compensate for her other virtues. It didn't.

You can imagine how cheated I felt. I considered my mother-in-law one of the worst liabilities of my marriage. After all, with such a nice mother-in-law, what did I have to talk about at bridge club? All I could do was listen enviously while some other woman talked about how her mother-in-law asked everyone else in the family over for steak and served her unseasoned Gainesburger.

A perfect mother-in-law is someone who has raised two wonderful sisters-in-law, one adorable brother-in-law, and your husband — and three out of four isn't bad.

A perfect mother-in-law is someone who never publicly bemoans the fact that you've been married ten months and she's still not a grandmother.

A perfect mother-in-law is someone who, knowing that you have a tendency to lock yourself in a closet and eat the hems out of your dresses whenever you're expecting week-end company, volunteers to make dessert.

A perfect mother-in-law is someone who tries to make you feel at home when your own mother is over six hundred miles away, and you're suffering from terminal homesickness.

A perfect mother-in-law is someone to whom a not-so-perfect daughter-in-law can say in all sincerity, "Happy Mother's Day!"

Income Tax Funding Of Social Security Looms

By JOSH FITZHUGH

NEW YORK (AP) — Five years ago the maximum Social Security tax was $374 a worker a year. Today it is $824.

If nothing is changed and government projections prove correct, the tax paid by middle to upper income workers will rise to $895 in 1976, $962 in 1977 and $1,125 in 1978.

But even those increases will leave the system with mounting annual deficits as maximum monthly benefits to new retirees advance to $342 this year, $362 in 1976, $380 in 1977 and $397 in 1978. As a result, experts are debating how to change the nation's Social Security system, which is taking in $67 billion in fiscal 1975 and paying out $69.5 billion.

Proposals include raising the tax rate, increasing the wage base on which taxes are paid, cutting back benefits and taking revenues from the federal income tax.

The one thing on which just about everybody agrees is that Social Security is not financially healthy. The $2.5 billion deficit this year — making good forecasts," says Social Security Commissioner James B. Cardwell. "Congress has ample time to make choices — but they aren't necessarily easy choices."

Interest payments on a $47.8 billion trust fund will probably cover this year's $2.5 billion deficit. But experts urge some change in the system soon to keep Social Security from going broke and to reassure Americans that their retirement incomes are safe.

Here are the alternatives generally discussed and the impact they would have:

BENEFITS: Until 1972 Congress increased taxes and benefits it deemed necessary. But that year the government decided to let taxes rise as incomes rise and to let benefits rise under a formula tied to inflation.

The problem with the escalators, according to Geoffrey Calvert, a New York actuary who was one of the first to call attention to Social Security's impending problems, is that the government assumed that wages will increase an average of 5 per cent year over the next 75 years while prices will rise by 3 per cent. In 1974, prices rose at more than three times that rate.

Under the formula adopted in 1972, inflation will make Social Security benefits continue to multiply faster than income to pay the benefits. Actuaries say that if inflation persists, then some beneficiaries might receive more in retirement pensions than they earned while working.

"The facts, the law passed in 1972 had an error in it and has the effect of doubling adjustments for inflation," says

W. Allen Wallis, chairman of the government-appointed advisory council which recently completed a year-long study of the Social Security system.

To correct the error, the advisory council and others have suggested a complicated formula which links benefits to an index of wages, and not to the present index based on both wages earned and the rate of inflation.

The new proposal has yet to be presented to Congress. Once approved it would eliminate about one-third of the system's long-term deficit, which will exceed $100 billion by the year 2010. It would also reduce benefits by 30 per cent.

WAGE BASE: To cover the deficit expected over the next 20 years, the AFL-CIO and Robert Ball, former Social Security commissioner, suggested raising the wage base on which the 5.85 per cent Social Security tax is paid from the current $14,100 to around $24,000 within a couple of years.

But raising the wage base would hurt middle income

Self Confidence Marked Viet Sweep Into Saigon

Editor's Note: This account of the final collapse of the South Vietnamese army and the lightning takeover of Saigon by Communist-led forces was written by AP Special Correspondent Peter Arnett, a Pulitzer Prize winner who covered the war almost from its inception. He was one of three AP staffers who stayed behind after the fall of the capital.

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent
SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The first pith-helmeted, green-uniformed Viet Cong soldiers to spill into Saigon around noon on April 30 nailed a painted sign on the last bridge on Route 1. It read in Vietnamese: "Independence Palace, Tu Do Street, straight ahead."

Then, as reporters and awe-struck residents watched, the heavily armed infantrymen wove their way past the last flimsy barricades of oil drums and sand bags and Saigon was theirs.

This massive self-assurance had marked all of the devastatingly swift Communist military advance through South Vietnam in March and April. It was evident in days following the fall of the city as Viet Cong soldiers mingled freely with the Saigon population and the few Westerners in town.

It was paralleled by a correspondingly massive loss of confidence by the South Vietnamese army. The retreat of Saigon forces from Ban Me Thuot in the central highlands that began 50 days earlier ended on Saigon's main Tu Do Street.

A battalion of special airborne Rangers ran hysterically past the Caravelle Hotel, tossing weapons into shop doorways, pulling off their boots as they hopped along and tearing off helmets, uniform jackets and trousers.

They were disappearing into alleyways in their underwear like bathers in search of a beach as the first truckloads of Viet Cong troops rolled down Tu Do Street in flag-bedecked trucks.

The total collapse of resistance in Saigon and the literal disappearance of the Saigon army into the anonymity of the population followed by four hours the departure of the last U.S. Marines from the roof of the American Embassy.

But Americans had long ceased to be a factor in the final outcome because for the past two years the war had been Vietnamese against Vietnamese, and the Saigon army finally just refused to fight.

The intentions of Viet Cong forces moving against Saigon had been clear for weeks: they wanted the war ended on their own terms. As April rushed to a conclusion and the remaining few thousand Americans in Vietnam began hastily pulling out, it was apparent these terms were the total surrender of the Saigon army and city.

All roads to Saigon were methodically cut by Viet Cong forces. Just in case the series of revolving door governments in Saigon failed to get the message, the international airport at Tan Son Nhut was bombarded on the night of April 28 and Viet Cong troops began moving massively and purposefully from their jungle hideouts to the main highways leading to the heart of the city.

By the time the last president of South Vietnam, Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh, solemnly broadcast the surrender at 10 a.m. on April 30 and waited weeping in Independence Palace to receive the victorious invading forces, the last three South Vietnamese infantry divisions defending Saigon no longer existed.

Reports are still sketchy on the fate of the Saigon units, but a clear picture has been put together on what happened to the South Vietnamese 25th Infantry Division guarding Saigon from the northwest.

The unit was based at Cu Chi, 20 miles from Saigon, in a camp carved out of scrubby ground in 1966 by American infantrymen whose fight with the local Viet Cong guerrillas was long and bloody. On the morning of April 29, nine years later, the Viet Cong forces returned to take it back.

They began by laying down a barrage of 4,000 shells on the base with a tank column pushing inside by late morning. Coordinated attacks hit every district and province town along the 30-mile front.

The 25th Division commander, Gen. Ly Tong Ba, a special favorite of Americans since 1963 when as a major he used armored troops to help overthrow former President Ngo Dinh Diem, ordered his men to fight to the end. Some tried to escape with wives and children who were living on the base. But most who ran into the scrubby countryside were quickly captured.

Estimated losses at Cu Chi for South Vietnamese government troops were 2,000 killed and wounded.

Gen. Ba reportedly committed suicide beside a river when a helicopter he summoned to rescue him was shot down. With the 25th Division gone, the path was clear for the Viet Cong to sweep into Saigon from the northwest and west.

International School Benefits American Students

BY RUTH YOUNGBLOOD
HONG KONG (UPI) —
Bewildered American youngsters, thousands of miles from football games and homecoming queens, have found a home away from home in a British Colony.

The sons and daughters of U.S. businessmen, transported abroad with their parents as American interests expanded, benefit from many worlds when they attend the Hong Kong International School.

As the only school in the colony aimed at following the American pattern of education, the institution has attracted a high-quality international staff and broad-based student body since it opened nine years ago.

Robert Christian, its principal, taught in New York City for 10 years before he traveled to Hong Kong to head the private school operated by the Lutheran Missouri Synod.

"More and more American businesses were locating offices in Hong Kong during the 1960s," Christian said. "The government schools, operated basically on the British system, were already overcrowded. The need for an American-oriented school was becoming urgent."

"The big question was who would sponsor such a school?" "Since the Lutheran church had been operating Chinese elementary schools since the 1950s, the church agreed to contribute a large percentage of the $1 million needed to start."

The Hong Kong government provided an interest-free loan, and donations came in from the business community.

Starting with one teacher, six rented rooms in an apartment building, and 190 students, the International School now has a teaching staff of 85 and a student population of 1,190 from kindergarten through 12th grade.

It is located in an attractive eight-story building, and plans are underway for a large addition in the nearby luxurious community of Repulse Bay. "Although this is an American oriented school, with the practical aim of preparing students for colleges and universities in the United States, it is an international school as well," Christian said. "We try to combine the best of many worlds. There's a high premium on happiness here. We stress openness and internationalism."

When a group of American students wanted to fly the U.S. flag at the school, the student council decided against it, feeling such a move would diminish the international image.

Thirty per cent of the student body comes from countries other than the United States, with the largest groups from Australia, Canada, Japan, the Philippines, Netherlands and India.

Scott Schroth, 16, a Philadelphia native who lived in Maryland, Texas and California before moving to Hong Kong, found the students at the International School "very receptive to a newcomer."

Scott, vice president of the sophomore class, said his classmates "have moved around a lot, too. They know what it's like to come to a school, not knowing anyone. Students are very friendly here, and not in cliques like you might find in a small high school in the United States."

"The only thing I miss is football, and learning to drive in Hong Kong's traffic is impossible," he said.

The school sponsors many athletic programs. Basketball is especially popular, but football so far has been rejected because there is no other team to play against. Those who miss football can play British rugby.

Betsy Templeton, the pretty, blond president of the senior class, plans to attend Southwest Texas State University in the fall. The daughter of Southern Baptist missionaries, she came to Hong Kong in fifth grade from Midland, Tex.

"This is a very personal school," she said. "The teachers really consider you an individual."

"And I think the students are more politically minded and aware of world events than they are in a U.S. public school. I don't mind missing out on football games and homecomings. The experience here has been more than worth it."

There are no entrance examinations, and the school is open to students of all nationalities. Christian says Chinese are increasingly interested in sending their children to the school to prepare them for American universities.

"Ninety-five per cent of our graduates go on to schools in the United States, with many attending the most prestigious institutions," Christian said.

Christian said the International School adopts a program that is both innovative and traditional, with formal lecture programs and student discussion groups.

Students are prepared specially for the Scholastic Aptitude Tests for American college admission.

Tuition at the International School is about $2,000 per year, a rate Christian says is comparable to the costs of other American schools in foreign countries.

Social Security...

Insurance companies fear the tax increase, with its accompanying benefit gain, would eat into the sales of private pension and annuity plans which now supplement Social Security checks.

The decreased use of private retirement plans, economists say, would in turn hurt business, which relies on such plans for capital.

GENERAL REVENUES: Troubled by these consequences of raising the wage base, the Social Security Advisory Council proposed instead that the system's deficit be overcome by funding some of the Medicare benefits with general revenues raised by the income tax.

The proposal immediately kicked up a storm. President Ford opposed it and Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar Weinberger claimed it was "inappropriate for a program whose strength has depended so heavily on support by working people and their employers."

Since Social Security's founding in 1935, Congress has consistently opposed using the income tax to finance Social Security. Opponents of this plan argue that to do so would destroy the system's independence and an American belief that benefits are earned, as in private pensions.

In recent years, however, tax experts have argued whether Social Security is really an earned pension or a subsidy. The best answer appears to be that it is both.

PRIVATE PLANS: Whether the taxpayer, given the choice, could earn greater benefits in private pension plans or retirement bonds than under Social Security is a topic of hot debate.

Some economists say that because Social Security taxes don't draw interest, private plans are certainly better. Others contend that under Social Security the nation's economic growth replaces the need for interest.

Social Security officials say their system is best because there are no selling costs, because Congress updates the benefits and because Medicare benefits for survivors and disability insurance come along with old age pensions.

Still, a study by Barron's, the weekly financial newspaper, concludes that at least for higher-paid, young workers, Social Security is a bad deal.

Based on government assumptions, the newspaper said, a well-paid 18-year-old could expect to receive $4,950 a month in Social Security benefits upon retirement, under the present formula system, but $7,432 a month from a private plan funded by the same premiums. Yet, let an individual start work at 25 and Social Security becomes the better deal, another actuarial firm told The Associated Press.

Even if Social Security is the better deal, healthy Americans have experienced a diminishing return over its history. A study for Money magazine, for example, found that a young worker today could expect to receive in benefits less than half as good a return on his taxes as his 65-year-old relative.

BIRTH RATE: The sharp downturn in the nation's birth rate over the last ten years presents long-range problems for Social Security. Solutions vary from increasing taxes now and adding general revenues later to resolving the issue when and if it develops.

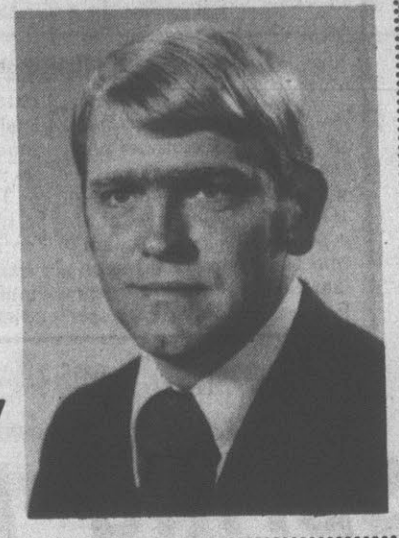

Because the birth rate has fallen from 2.5 babies to 1.85 babies per woman of child-bearing age in the past decade, the government now predicts that in 45 years there will be only 2.2 persons supporting each Social Security recipient, compared with 3.2 persons today.

Because children support parents under Social Security, the birth rate change could mean a 50 per cent increase in taxes between 2005 and 2030, Social Security actuaries estimate.

Making Bid For Solor Institute

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — The county commission is petitioning the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration to locate its proposed solar institute in Albany County.

Commissioner Marguerite Nelson says Wyoming needs to get in the race for the research facility because California, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and Nevada have already made bids.

Mrs. Nelson said Albany County would be ideal for the site because of the energy research already underway at the University of Wyoming and the large number of sunny days in Wyoming.

DOUBLE GARAGE ADDITION ENRICHES EXISTING HOME

Annex Five

By Jerry Bishop

Investing in a home can be done in many ways, one of which is to consider adding to or remodeling an existing structure. If your present home was built without a garage, this type of addition is a logical and important step to take. Annex Five is basically a garage addition, offering a substantial 728 sq. ft. of space for housing automobiles as well as general storage.

Two separate garage doors, a window, and side and rear entrances characterize this attractive plan, which adds individuality to the home while increasing its resale

GARAGE, EXTRA STORAGE ASSURE RISE IN VALUE OF HOME

Located at the rear of the garage, the storage area is placed conveniently near the door for ease in transporting garden tools, toys and bicycles. The window, though not a necessity, promises a bright, airy interior and is doubly useful if part of the garage or storage is designated as a wood-working shop or hobby shop. Ideally, the double garage addition will be built on the end of the home nearest the kitchen, for efficiency in unloading groceries and other parcels.

As in all the Annex Series of plans, construction drawings for Annex Five specify roofing and siding to blend with that of the existing dwelling. The aim is to create a home with a distinct personality, a more effective use of space, and, at the same time, a unity of design elements. Even in such a simple step as a garage addition, this unity is vital, and, for example, doors and windows can usually be changed or modified to help achieve it.

Since today's housing market almost demands the inclusion of a double garage and, especially if the home is without a basement, a storage area. Annex Five will offer a wise investment opportunity for many families.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The first-time shopper for resilient floor tiles is likely to be confused by the multiplicity of prices for seemingly identical products.

Prices vary so much that the most costly tiles may be as much as six or seven times more than the cheapest tiles, with a variety of prices in between. While it may be difficult for many persons to see the reasons for these price differences, be assured that they do exist. An often overlooked factor is the gauge of the tile; that is, its thickness. Some tiles have a heavy gauge for extra durability, some a light gauge for economy. But the difference between the two is such a small fraction of an inch that it usually isn't noticed by the untrained eye until the tiles are held alongside each other. A simple way to determine the gauge of a tile is to look on the bottom of it, where the thickness usually is stated. If it isn't, then the carton the tiles come in is marked with the thickness. If a particular kind and color of tile catches your eye and you decide to price it somewhere else, be sure you write down the figures so you won't be comparing apples and oranges.

Dark-color asphalt tiles generally are the cheapest, followed by asphalt tiles in light colors and linoleum tiles, although I must admit I haven't seen linoleum tiles on display lately. Next some vinyl asbestos tiles, rubber, cork, solid vinyl and vinyl cork. But there is an overlapping of price categories throughout the entire field of resilient floor tiles, depending on thickness, color, backing and general quality. The important thing is that, when two stores offer apparently similar tiles at remarkably different prices, ask questions and find out why.

In addition to cost, the choice of the proper tiles depends to a large degree on where they are to be installed. (For a copy of Andy Lang's booklet, "Installing Resilient Floor Tiles," send 30 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.)

Because it can be installed anywhere and is relatively inexpensive, vinyl asbestos tile is the biggest seller. It is especially vital, when the tiles are to be installed in a basement or on a concrete slab, to ask the dealer whether the material you have selected will fill the bill. If he says yes — and the manufacturer's literature confirms this — be certain that you get the special adhesive required when tiles are to be installed on concrete.

Take rough measurements of the room where the tiles will be laid and take them along to the store. The dealer has a chart which will show him how many tiles are needed. You will, of course, need fewer tiles if they are 12" by 12" rather than 9" by 9". Some dealers will agree to an arrangement whereby you can get a refund on unused tiles under certain conditions, one of which is the period of time between the purchase and the refund requested.

Installing the tiles is more of a tedious than a difficult job. And few do-it-yourself installations give as much satisfaction, since it usually is impossible to tell the difference between a professional and an amateur result.

Q. — Our house is on a concrete slab. In one of the rooms — the utility room — there is no floor covering. There seems to be a fine powdery substance there, as though the concrete is disintegrating. A neighbor who once had the same problem says that the condition can be corrected by using a solution of sodium silicate. He says he had a handyman do it several years ago, but that he doesn't remember exactly how much water was in the solution. Can you help me?

A. — Yes, but with a precaution. If you later intend to paint the floor, you may find that the paint won't hold well to a sodium silicate finish. If you decide to go ahead with the job, the mixture is one part of sodium silicate to three parts of water. If you plan to paint the floor, use one of the commercial concrete sealers. While most will not interfere with a later paint job, read the label first to be sure.

Q. — What's the difference between interior and exterior plywood as far as the quality of the wood is concerned?

A. — The main difference is that the adhesive used between the plies of the exterior type is waterproof, whereas the other adhesive is merely water-resistant. In some cases, the wood layers in the exterior plywood are better suited to outdoor ex-posure.

Q. — In making a picket fence, is there any rule of thumb on how far apart the pickets should be?

A. — The simplest way to handle the matter is to use one of the pickets as a spacer.

Q. — I have been told to size a wall before hanging wallpaper. What's the purpose of sizing?

A. — Sizing is a glutinous material which fills the pores in surfaces and makes the paper hang better. Some wallpaper pastes contain sizing and thus do away with a separate coating operation.

Q. — Can you give me instructions on adding a bathroom to our house?

A. — Not even if this column occupied the entire page. It's an involved process that requires skill, not merely knowledge. You'd have to install water pipes, drains and vents, among other things. Even if you could handle it, you'd probably find that it would be a violation of a local ordinance for anyone but a licensed plumber to undertake the job.

Q. — Within a short time, I expect to have a roofer put asphalt shingles on our house, which now has wooden shingles. Can the asphalt be installed over the wood?

A. — Yes. A certain amount of preparatory work must be done — replacing loose nails, nailing down curled ends, etc. The roofer will know what to do.

Spring Housecleaning A Habit

By DOROTHEA BROOKS
United Press International
The traditional rites of spring-house cleaning and moving — linger on.

True, there have been changes. Housework, mechanized if not automated, is more an ongoing thing — no longer the two-week spring cleaning orgy.

The one-time May 1 mass exodus of city dwellers from one apartment to another offering better location, more space or services, is no more. An apartment with affordable, or almost affordable, rent is not to be left lightly. Homeowners, too, are less likely to move for any but the most urgent reasons.

Still, come warm weather, most of us make a little extra effort at clearing winter's clutter from our homes. Folks who are planning a move are likely to make it when the youngsters are out of school. And, today, there is a new rite added: the garage sale, or tag sale, or if you live out a way, you may call it a barn sale.

Whatever the name, the game is the same: you dispose of your discard collection. It's a proven fact, your junk is bound to be someone else's treasure — and vice versa, of course.

A garage sale takes many forms. It can be a joint effort of a couple of neighbors or a whole neighborhood, or a simple advertisement listing a few items your family no longer needs. It can be profitable; certainly more so than giving or throwing things away.

It also takes some planning. Some help in that area comes from the Office of the Impartial Chairman of the Moving and Storage Industry of New York. That impressive title belongs to an organization formed in 1955 by Local 814 of the Teamsters Union as a self-policing, consumer arbitration program for resolving complaints with movers.

The OIC also has a consumer education service. One of its booklets tells "How to Have a Garage Sale."

Even if your collection of discards includes "things" like Grandpa's old mustache cup, and the elephant's foot umbrella stand Uncle Dan brought back from Africa, OIC says you'll be surprised at what will sell.

The first step, OIC says, is to check local authorities to see if there are any prohibitions or taxes connected with a garage sale.

Check your neighbors to see if any want to combine efforts with you. This will give you a greater assortment of items to sell. And the more the better because people take more time to look when there is variety. Get a notebook and list exactly what you will dispose of. Look each item over carefully. You might want to do a little cleaning or minor repairing. Package items that go together. Put sizes on clothing.

Set a price on each item. Keep in mind what you have to sell is used and should be priced on the low side. Place a price tag or label on each item, then list the price next to the item in your notebook. It pays to check the value of any antiques or other major items you may be selling. If other families are cooperating, be sure everything is properly identified.

You'll have to advertise: in the local newspaper, the shopper's pennysaver, a notice on supermarket bulletin boards, church or school bulletin and, on the day of the sale, a few signs directing prospective customers to the sale itself. Some newspapers make printed signs available to those who take out ads. Be sure to remove them once your sale is over.

In setting up your display, remove anything you do not want to sell or, in the case of things that can't be moved, put up big "not for sale" notices or cover them with a sheet. This also provides good background for small items.

Arrange things attractively. Group similar items together.

Hang clothing if possible, or fold it neatly. Enlist friends to help if it's a big sale. In any event, have one person in charge of money, another free to answer questions and negotiate on prices (some people don't think it's a sale if they can't bargain). If you do change price, be sure to mark it in your book. Be particularly careful if more than one family is involved.

OIC says you'll have fun, make some money you wouldn't have had otherwise, and if you're moving, it's a great way to have a last get-together with friends and neighbors before you leave.

Gardening Questions

Q. Please give me some tips for caring for a Norfolk Island Pine. (R.T., Goldsboro)

A. Norfolk Island Pine does best when grown in a cool temperature; 45 degrees at night, not much over 55 degrees during day. Do not waterlog soil, but give plenty of moisture throughout year. Grow in diffused sunlight or partial shade, full sun during winter. Plant may be moved outdoors to area of broken shade during summer. Fertilize every one to two months with prepared mixture for house plants — a nitrogen-phosphorus-potash analysis ratio close to 1-2-1 will give balanced growth. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. How long after treating my garden site with methyl bromide should I wait before planting vegetables? (S.G., Tarboro)

A. Forever. Methyl bromide should not be used for treating the home vegetable garden. In fact, it is illegal because of residue problems. However, you can use methyl bromide to treat soil in which transplants will be grown for later transferring to the garden. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. I'm trying to grow an organic garden. What kind of components go into an organic "non-chemical" insect repellent for a vegetable garden? (L.J., Apex)

A. There are numerous insect repellents for humans and livestock but none to my knowledge for plants. At least one "anti-feeding" compound for plants has been tested, but I don't believe it is commercially available. Also, the USDA has screened over 1,400 plants for naturally occurring insecticides. So far, only three such materials have been found: pyrethrum, obtained from some plants in the daisy family; rotenone, obtained from some tropical legumes; and nicotine, obtained from tobacco plants. However, even these naturally occurring substances are chemical in nature. If you want to avoid chemicals completely, you could consider putting cheese cloth around your vegetables. (H.E. Scott, extension entomologist)

Q. My figs set but never ripen. The bush is in well drained soil on the south side of a building. What could be the trouble? (Mrs. J.P., Tabor City)

A. A common problem with figs in North Carolina is that the variety is not adapted to our conditions. The most productive figs are those that have been propagated from a local plant with a good crop record. Another common problem is the presence of nematodes. (Melvin H. Kolbe, extension horticulturist)

WHITE ELEPHANT SYNDROME

In the Real estate trade it's called a "White Elephant." An excellent house for sale that just sits and sits. Often you can recognize it by the tall grass and weeds overrunning the front yard; an occasional broken window here and there. The cause of this blight is always the same — OVERPRICING! This story always has a sad ending — for the seller. Eventually, he has to reduce the price to sell. By this time, it's too late. The good prospects have waved goodbye and bought elsewhere. The appearance and condition have deteriorated. The eventual selling price is far below what it could have realized had it been valued realistically from the outset. You don't have to increase the "White Elephant" population. There is a safe way to establish the RIGHT price. When you're ready to sell, see a local Realtor. He'll know the true value and what it will bring in the market. Top price, yes! Overprice — No! If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at LOUIS CLARK AGENCY, IBM Bldg., 100 Reade St., Greenville. Phone: 752-4173. We're here to help!

Vintage Car Mart Feeling The Pinch

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Auto makers lamenting sinking sales have one consolation: even the vintage car market isn't what it used to be.

For once, the gas price hike is not to be blamed. It's just that even wealthy collectors are getting stingier these days.

At a Christie's sale of four-wheeled veterans, the top event of the continental market, less than half of the 70 models exhibited could find a buyer. Most of the prices paid were well below the estimate.

Of the 13 cars expected to fetch more than 100,000 francs ($40,000), only one changed hands, a 1933 Rolls, Phantom 11, completely rebuilt last year at a cost discreetly left unmentioned. It went to a private collector for 100,000 francs.

The dozen left unsold included a 1929 six-cylinder Duesenberg which had been expected to fetch more than 250,000 francs ($100,000).

A public relations agent said the sales had brought a total of 2.8 million francs, more than $1 million. But to people who watched the sales the figure seemed fictitious.

"We must be honest," Geza von Habsburg, Geneva director of Christie's, told a newsman. "We are disappointed with the outcome. Last year we had fewer good cars but we sold more."

"I presume this shows a change in the financial situation," explained the director, a descendant of Austria's imperial family. "I don't think that the fuel price is of any importance. People who buy vintage cars normally don't worry about fuel consumption."

But perhaps one did. Best bargain at the sale, held in association with Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, was a rare 1933 Czech-built Aero sedan that would still make a good extra in any nostalgia movie.

It was sold for 3,800 francs ($1,500) roughly half the estimate. A two-cylinder, two-stroke job, it has a subcompact gas mileage.

Tucson Becoming Marijuana Capital Of America

By ARTHUR J. LINGLE
TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — They come from all parts of the country, many young and carrying their lives in their suitcases, looking for the Tucson connection.

Others come with bodyguards. Some carry guns, thousands of dollars in cash and plans for astronomical profits for dealing in dope. They come to Tucson and it is becoming the marijuana capital of the country, and also the rip-off capital.

It is a problem of staggering proportions for this desert community of 450,000 population.

In a few years Tucson has become the stopping and starting point for tons of marijuana, pounds of heroin and cocaine and thousands of up, down and around pills.

In 1974 the Metropolitan Area Narcotics Squad, a special group established in 1969 to deal with drugs, investigated 139 shipments of narcotics from Tucson. They ranged from one kilo, about 2.2 pounds, to 70 kilos.

"It's extremely large scale. We feel we're getting only 10 per cent of the stuff that crosses the border," said Metro Intelligence Officer John Bostick.

"I would say 50, and probably 70, per cent of the marijuana used in the United States comes out of Mexico, that goes without saying," said James Howard, director of the county attorney strike force against narcotics, which has a staff of seven attorneys and two investigators. "You've got to figure that an enormous amount comes through Arizona because we have the type of border which is difficult to patrol.

"For example, authorities in Colorado and Los Angeles tell us that the marijuana they can trace back comes from Tucson."

The dealing in drugs has led to "rip-off" gangs of gun toting youths who make a late night walk, a trip to the market, even one's own home, a possible crime scene.

"The violence of these rip-off artists hasn't been seen since prohibition," said Chief Deputy County Attorney William R. Stevens. "We're the wholesalers. The rest of the country are retailers."

"It's going to be similar to the old days of bootlegging where different groups of people will be involved in violence," Tucson Police Chief William Gilkinson said.

"Drugs are this county's number one problem," County Sheriff William C. Cox said. "Seventy-five to 80 per cent of our crimes are drug-related."

It is estimated there are 10,000 heroin users in the Tucson area, and many crimes are committed to support $100 a day habits.

In Pima County last year 1,816 persons were arrested for drug violations; one-half were juveniles. Just in the Tucson area authorities seized 64,000 pounds of marijuana, 12 pounds of heroin and nine pounds of cocaine.

A pound of marijuana bought on the Mexican side of the border, 60 miles away, costs $35-$40. In Tucson it sells for about $85. In New York it could bring $300. Profits are higher in the other drugs.

"I know of one guy, 22-years-old, who said he made $250,000 in one year dealing in narcotics," Sheriff Cox said. "These kids are smart, they're no dummies."

It is not uncommon for routine traffic stops to turn up 500-600 pounds of marijuana. Last September Customs seized 19 tons as it crossed the border in two trucks.

Narcotics stream across the border in cars, trucks, planes, horses and even as payment from smuggled aliens who want to live or work in the United States. It's been found under adobe bricks, beneath ice-packed fish and as part of tomato shipments.

The business of smuggling has fastened on the airplane as a major carrier. Authorities know of one man in New Mexico who operates a flying school to train pilots for smuggling, Stevens said.

The dope dealers are not without enemies. Besides the law, there are the rip-off gangs—youth, middle class, mean, callous and with a total disregard for human life.

"These young people have never worked a day in their life. They're not going to work. They're going out with a gun to get it however they can," Cox said.

"I've seen dope buyers come here and within an hour they've been taken out into the desert and executed," Stevens said.

"These people have used (simulated) police cars, handcuffs, Mace. They've pretended to be undercover officers and they stop cars. We've had instances where they've gone into homes and used cattle prods on women to try and tell them where the money or dope was."

"We know of one rip-off group that consists of eight persons. Rip-offs can go either way. But all are armed and expecting to be ripped off. Everybody's armed. Everybody's trigger-happy," Bostick said.

The rip-off artist plays his deadly game for money, but there is something else.

"You know ladies love outlaws. They identify with the Godfather type," said Sheriff's Homicide Detective James Barkman. "I think they enjoy being real outlaws—it's not like a criminal—swaggering down the street at high noon."

Authorities agree the flow of drugs must be stopped, but so far it has been an impossible task.

The Arizona-Mexico border stretches some 380 miles, a vast area of sagebrush and rolling grasslands sprinkled with mountain ranges. A five-foot high chain-barb wire fence runs the length of the border.

"It's a joke," Stevens said.

Despite air and ground patrols and electronic sensors, Customs admits drugs flow freely. In fact, in heavily traveled smuggling areas some ranchers have put up easily opened gates so they won't have to keep repairing the border fence.

"I think the serious problem is what it's doing to this town. You can't wake the people up. They don't seem to care," Stevens said.

"Nobody's really doing anything about it. As far as citizens are concerned it's, 'Well, that's the way life is.'"

JAMES HOWARD, director of the Pima County attorney strike force against narcotics, says 50 and probably

70 per cent of the marijuana used in the U.S. comes out of Mexico. (UPI Photo)

Store Employee Thefts Growing

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) — Store thefts once attributed to shoplifters are frequently being traced today to store employees, say two men who deal with the problem.

Laxity of management and tight economic times are to blame for much of the pilfering, according to Addison Verrill.

Verrill is vice president of a nationwide company that trains undercover detectives to pose as employees in order to catch lightfingered workers. The company has an office in Hamden.

One detective worked four months at a business in the New Haven area and found 13 employees who had stolen a total of $116,000 worth of meat and poultry, Verrill said.

Recent national figures suggest that employees steal three times as much merchandise as shoplifters.

"Pilferage has grown by leaps and bounds" in recent years, said Burth Cohen, president of a similar firm in Bridgeport.

He said a favorite department for employe theft is shipping and receiving, where a worker can make a deal with an outside deliverer to keep items marked "delivered" and sell them illegally elsewhere.

Verrill said his agency has more than 40 undercover "operatives" on duty in a variety of businesses in south central Connecticut.

"We fit the person to the job. If the shipping and receiving department is mostly people under 30, we give them that. Or if most of their employees are Scandinavian, we give them that — we provide the individual that will fit right into the group."

The operatives are encouraged to mix with their fellow employees, become friendly with them and even go drinking or bowling with them after work to get the theft information they seek.

Ranked 13th In Pupil Spending

CHEYENNE (UPI) — State School Superintendent Robert Schrader says national figures show that Wyoming ranked 13th nationally in spending per pupil for 1974-75 with $1,228.

Schrader said according to the figures from the National Education Association this was the highest in the Rocky Mountain area. Wyoming also was shown to have the second lowest ratio of pupils to teachers, with 16.4 to 1, he said.

Schrader also said the percentage of Wyoming's population age 25 and older who have completed four years of high school or more was 62.9 per cent, sixth highest in the nation.

Dolly Parton, Freddy Weller In May 16 Washington Concert

DOLLY PARTON... the blond singing star of country music, will be singing in Washington on Friday, May 17 at 7 and again at 10 p.m.

FREDDY WELLER... a rising country singer, will be on the bill with Dolly Parton in a country music program in Washington on May 17.

An established female country singing star and an up and coming country male star are sharing the bill on a one-date, two-performance show to be held at Washington High School on Friday, May 16.

Blond Dolly Parton and dark haired Freddy Weller are the two star singing attractions due to be on hand at 7 p.m. and for a second performance at 10 p.m. The event is sponsored jointly by the Beaufort County and City of Washington Law Enforcement Agencies and the Williamston Police Force, with proceeds going to these agencies.

A recording artist for RCA records and a star of the Porter Wagoner Show, Dolly Parton has to her credit a long list of hits over the past years, including My Blue Tears, Just Because I'm A Woman, Joshua, Coat of Many Colors and My Blue Ridge Mountain Boy. She is also a successful co-author of songs like The Pain Of Loving You, When Possession Gets Too Strong, Put It Off Until Tomorrow, and The Fire's Still Burning.

A native of Sevier County in east Tennessee, Dolly has made guest appearances on the David Frost, Johnny Carson and Mike Douglas Shows, Hee Haw and the Kraft Music Hall Awards Show from Nashville. Since January 1969 she has been a member of the Grand Ole Opry.

Freddy Weller, native of Atlanta, did his apprentice work in music as a teenager in the Georgia Jubilee show, and later worked with Billy Joe Royal. In 1966 Royal and Weller performed with the rock group of Paul Revere.

While on hectic rounds of tours, Weller and another native Atlantian, Tommy Roe, began writing songs to pass away travel hours. The results were Dizzy and Jam Up and Jelly Tight, two gold disc records.

Still, country music remained at the heart of Freddy Weller's interest. He is making musical history in that field with his A&R, CBS Records such as Home and The Games People Play. Games was Freddy's first song to hit the number one spot on the charts. A recent hit is The Promised Land.

Other Weller records include Indian Lake, Another Night Of Love, The Roadmaster and The Perfect Stranger.

Tickets for the Dolly Parton-Freddy Weller show are priced at $5 for reserved seats and at $4 for general admission.

From Sheppard Memorial Library

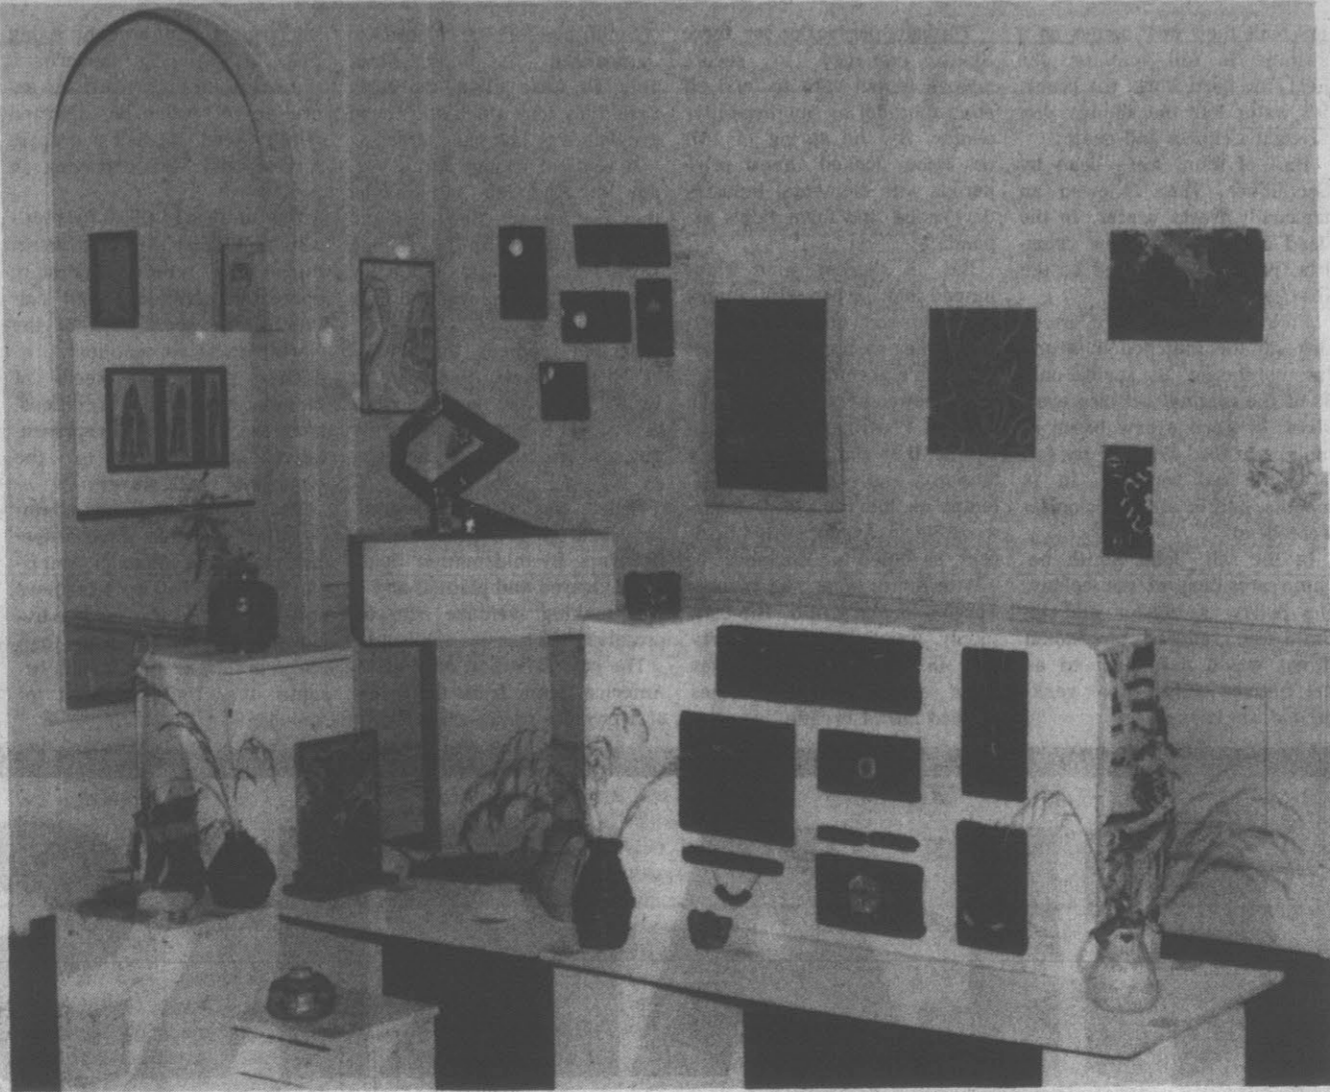

By JUDITH M. THOMPSON

Two new novels of political intrigue are among the new additions to the Sheppard Memorial Library collection. Charles McCarry's THE TEARS OF AUTUMN is a superb thriller which emphasizes the overwhelming strength of blood and family in the affairs of nations. The story begins in 1963, immediately after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Paul Christopher, one of the top agents in the United States Intelligence Service believes he knows who arranged the assassination and the motive behind it. If true, his theory would not only destroy the image of the dead President and endanger U.S. foreign policy, but would also implicate high government officials in the murder of a foreign head of state. Christopher is officially ordered to halt the investigation. Unwilling to stop his quest for truth, he resigns his position and strikes out on his own to prove his theory. He moves from Paris to Rome, to Zurich, to Washington, and to Saigon seeking the proof of his theory—all the while stalked not only by Kennedy's assassins but by his own government. When at last he has the evidence he needs to prove who killed the President, government officials must make the decision of whether to release the information or destroy it forever.

Highly suspenseful, THE TEARS OF AUTUMN presents an entirely unique theory of the Kennedy assassination and one that, no doubt, will cause the reader to ponder a long while.

For those who enjoy a fast-paced cloak-and-dagger story TELEFON by Walter Wager is exciting reading. The story evolves around a large number of Soviet agents who have assumed American identities and are living in the United States as useful, law-abiding citizens. Each of them though is under deep hypnosis and will activate whenever the code word is spoken. The key to these agents—their identities, code names, and missions—is the "telefon book" which is kept by Dalchinski, a disgruntled Stalinist of the K.G.B. In a power struggle at the Kremlin, Dalchinski comes out on the losing side and immediately escapes to the United States with the "telefon book". Seeking to find relief and revenge he sets about activating the various agents across the country.

Seeking to avoid World War III, which Dalchinski could easily trigger, the Russians send their best man to find him and stop him. The thrill of the chase from coast to coast as the agent tries to make a desperate guess as to where Dalchinski's telephone calls will strike next leads to an unexpected climax. TELEFON is a highly suspenseful, well-written book which will have the reader on the edge of his chair.

The current student show on view at the Greenville Art Center is an exhibit of arts and crafts by students of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades at Agnes Fullilove and E.B. Aycock Junior High School.

One of the most striking impressions of this beautifully displayed student show is the degree of sophistication achieved by young artists in the 12 to 15 year old age group. Particularly in the area of ceramics, textiles and jewelry, the works shown this year are marked by a sure understanding of technique applied to the students' individual imagination.

Paintings and graphics on view are also of a high order, with vibrant colors and innovative handling of subject matter noticeable characteristics of the paintings as a group.

In a few instances, the student artists have successfully depicted complicated "story telling" pictures encompassing a large number of details, somewhat reminiscent of Persian miniature paintings.

All three galleries are devoted to this excellent spring student show. The junior high students, their teachers and all involved in the selection and hanging of this show have reason to be proud of their 1975 offering. This is definitely an exhibit that falls into the "don't miss" category. The Junior High Annual Show ends on May 14.

Mint Museum Acquires Romare Bearden Work

The Mint Museum of Art recently acquired an important work by Romare Bearden, one of the country's foremost contemporary artists. A native of North Carolina, Bearden now lives in New York's Harlem where he produced in 1974 this brilliant collage painting entitled "Carolina Shout"—a bold compilation of images of black people, celebrating the artist's cultural past.

Bearden has been recognized with a one-man exhibition at the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, D.C. His retrospective exhibitions include the Museum of Modern Art in New York, the National Collection of Fine Arts in Washington, D.C., the High Museum of Art in Atlanta, Ga., and the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh, to mention just a few.

Bearden's work forms part of many important permanent collections—the Metropolitan Museum of Art, The Whitney Museum of American Art, the Philadelphia Museum of Art, the Museum of Modern Art, among others.

The greatest single item in the world's water budget, aside from the world ocean itself, is the Antarctic ice sheet. If melted at a suitable uniform rate it could feed the Mississippi's flow for 50,000 years.

Four Year Old Japanese-American Girl Has Successful Art Show In Tokyo

By KAY TATEISHI

TOKYO (AP)—Mariko Wesley, a lively 4-year-old girl with brown hair and big brown eyes, ran around the big Tokyo department store's improvised art gallery, weaving among the viewers as if playing a game.

"I like that one . . . that one . . . that one," she said, pointing at three acrylic paintings, among 130 paintings and drawings on display. She tossed her tresses, rushed into the arms of her Japanese mother, whispered into her ear, and then tugged at the jacket sleeve of her American father.

There was reason to take her choices seriously. For Mariko herself was the painter. The three she had pointed out—"Poison Things in the Ocean," "Mariko Shopping for Fruits and Flowers" and "Sunflower"—would easily be the envy of many adult artists.

"Her choices vary, depending on her mood," Tom Wesley explained in English with a proud smile. "But that's how Mariko is about her paintings."

Viewers commented: "Her colors . . . her brush work . . . her composition . . . her themes . . . simply fantastic . . . incredible." Critics described her as a "tensai," or genius, and an extraordinary talent.

But her mother, Mioko, 31, shook her close-cropped head. "No, Mariko isn't a genius or child prodigy," she said in Japanese. "She's a little girl with lots of imagination and ideas and the ability to convey on paper or canvas what she pictures."

The ideas, Mariko said in Japanese, are "in my head . . . coming out . . . from my hand like an airplane on canvas."

"And the titles on her paintings are hers, too," Mioko said. "Mariko's on her own when she's painting and we never restrict her movements or tell her what to do."

Tom, 41, a balding, bearded, one-time wanderer who describes his wife and himself as "dropouts," added: "Mariko is self-taught. She's free to do as she pleases. She has her own ideas and she selects her own colors, an artistic talent both of us are lacking."

Mariko, who turned 4 on March 14, has already produced about 2,000 paintings and drawings. None is for sale, to avoid commercializing the girl's flair for painting.

When 130 of her works were brought to Japan to show her grandparents and other relatives, someone suggested an exhibition. But the Wesleys didn't have the money to rent a gallery. A friend approached a department store, which agreed to sponsor the show, treating Mariko's paintings like adults' works—each framed separately instead of simply being tacked up like children's pictures.

"Mariko was six months old," Mioko recalled. "One evening she watched me with curiosity writing in our diary with a felt pen. She asked for the pen. I gave it to her with a sheet of paper. She scribbled and laughed, but her scribbles soon took on shapes and forms."

"Several evenings later," Mioko continued, "I gave her a set of crayons which delighted her. But it took time before she was able to differentiate the colors. Then she learned to mix acrylics."

The Wesleys live in Klamath National Forest in northern California, where Tom bought 20 acres near the Klamath River, about a half-hour car ride from Sones Bar, the nearest town. They have been living in a camper and hope to build a log cabin.

Tom, a graduate of Washington University with studies at Washington State and Mexico City universities too, met Mioko in Tokyo 10 years ago on a round-the-world bicycle ride.

Seeds Of New Nation Sown At Jamestown

EDITOR'S NOTE — The foundation of the United States really began 368 years ago this week when the first Englishmen to found a permanent settlement in the new world landed at Jamestown, Va. Overcoming stunning hardships, they planted the seeds of a new nation.

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer
Learning to live in the wilderness that some day would become the United States of America was one of the most difficult feats ever accomplished by mankind.

The settlers came unprepared, expecting to find a land of milk and honey, easy living and quick wealth. They found, instead, a bountiful land which could also be harsh. The fields and air were filled with game, waters teemed with fish, the soil was fertile. But native Englishmen starved in the midst of plenty before they learned to harvest this natural bounty.

They came as gentlemen, artisans, soldiers, even jailbirds. They were not born pioneers. They had to learn the art, and they learned hard. Most of them died in the attempt.

The group that finally made it almost gave up before even touching land. Sailing northward from the Caribbean for four days without sight of land, they would have quit but for the reproaches of John Smith.

Then a sudden gale tossed the three tiny ships toward destiny.

It was Virginia, the promised land which the poet Drayton had proclaimed "Earth's only Paradise."

On the morning of May 14, 1607, the birthday of English America, they went ashore and began building a fort which they named for the English King.

It would become Jamestown, the first permanent English settlement in America. Four other attempts had failed. By the time the Pilgrims reached Plymouth, these first colonists would have established a dozen settlements and would have increased to 1,000 souls.

But these innocent adventurers built their new homes on a swamp. In full summer, the heat, the hard work, the brackish water and the skimpy diet brought sickness and death.

Half of them were dead by September. Then followed an unusually frosty winter. In the dead of winter 120 new colonists, just as unprepared as the first, arrived.

Five days later fire raged through the thatched huts and the storehouse. By spring only 38 of the original settlers were alive. In April a new batch of mouths to feed arrived. By fall 30 more had perished. In 18 months, half of all the colonists were dead.

In the fall, John Smith became president of the colony. His policy of bluster and intimidation reduced an Indian threat which had mounted as the natives sensed the weakness of the intruders.

Through persuasion or force Smith managed to secure enough Indian corn to fend off starvation during another bitter winter. By the spring of 1609 the colony looked almost prosperous with elemental industry developing and farm fields expanding.

But in August nine ships limped into harbor with almost 500 new and unprepared settlers. They soon destroyed most of Smith's accomplishments.

The newcomers stirred up the Indians. Chaffing under his discipline, they challenged Smith's authority and even made an attempt on his life. In October, wounded in a gunpowder accident, he sailed for England.

With Smith gone, the Indians were no longer afraid. The corn supply was cut off. A party sent to barter for food was found dead, "their mouths stopped full of bread."

Smith had left 500 colonists in Jamestown. Six months later only 60 were alive. In early June they took stock and found provisions to last only 16 days.

It was not enough for a voyage to England, but maybe they could reach Newfoundland and be picked up by fishing ships. On June 10, 1610 they abandoned Jamestown, but only briefly.

At that moment, the arrival of Thomas West, Baron de la Warr, with 300 new colonists and a year's supplies saved the day and the future of the colony.

Order was slowly restored. Indians were cowed by English firearms. By midsummer fields were cleared and planted and a wine-making venture showed promise.

The real salvation of English America came from discovery of a product which grew easily in Virginia and brought a big price in England — tobacco.

John Rolfe discovered the secret in 1611 when he imported quality seed. He had a crop in a year and was exporting in two.

The success of these first citizens of English America determined the future ownership, population, language and culture of the great bulk of the North American continent.

They sowed the seeds of many American traditions, from the blessings of representative government to the scourge of black slavery.

They made pioneering a family affair and thus gave a special place to women in American history. They were farmers and craftsmen who took a living from the land. Less than 200 years later this would become the United States of America.

Bucs Close Year With Win Over UNCW

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
East Carolina University's Pirates took advantage of UNC Wilmington mistakes in the early innings, then rode Geoff Beaton's run to a 6-4 victory over the Seahawks yesterday.

The game ended the year for the Pirates, giving them a 17-12 record on the year. Wilmington, which moves into NAIA District play next week, fell off to 21-9-1.

The Bucs pushed over four runs, three of them unearned in the first two innings. They fell behind after one and a half, 3-2, and then saw Wilmington tie it at 4-4 in the top of the fourth. But Beaton provided the winning run in the bottom of that inning. The insurance run was also scored by Beaton, in the sixth, as he got four of the six runs, and went three-for-four at the plate.

Bob Feeney took the victory, his fourth against no losses; coming in on relief of Steve Herring in the fifth inning. Although the Bucs were leading at the time, Herring didn't qualify for the win since he did not complete five full innings.

The game ended the Pirate career for several Bucs, one of who did not see action in the game, Don Lee. Herring, Bobby Harrison, Jack Elkins and Ron Staggs all closed out their careers with the contest. For Staggs, it probably was a disappointing finish. The Pirate slugger, who holds the school career marks in home runs, doubles, hits, total bases and runs batted in, failed to get a hit during the day, although he drove in a run.

Wilmington threatened in the first inning of the game. Howie Edgerton led off with an infield hit and then stole second, only to die there as Herring set down the side in order.

Catfish Blanks Former Teammates As Yankees Glide Past Oakland

OAKLAND (AP) — Catfish Hunter faced his former Oakland teammates for the first time Saturday and overpowered them with a two-hit shutout in pitching the New York Yankees to a 3-0 victory over the world champion A's.

The right-hander, who won free agent status over the winter, gave up two singles, the first by Bill North with one out in the third inning and the other by Claudell Washington in the fourth. Hunter then retired the last 18 Oakland batters and faced only 28 batters, one over the limit, since North was caught stealing.

Hunter, 3-4, stopped the Yankees' six-game losing streak with his masterful performance. He walked none and struck out seven in hurling his second shutout of the season.

Losers Ken Holtzman, 1-4, walked leadoff batters in the second and fourth innings to set up New York's first two runs. Following a walk to Thurman Munson in the second, Alex Johnson singled to put runners on first and third. Holtzman retired Bob Oliver on a fly to short center before Graig Nettles hit a sacrifice fly to score the game's first run.

Padres Bow As Cubs Capture Third Straight

CHICAGO (AP) — Jose Cardenal and Don Kessinger collected five hits between them, including a pair of doubles, to lead the high-flying Chicago Cubs to their third straight victory, a 5-1 triumph over the San Diego Padres.

Cardenal had a double and two singles, drove in two runs and scored one while Kessinger hammered out a double and single, knocked in one run and scored twice.

Kessinger and Cardenal, Chicago's first two batters, singled in the first inning off loser Sonny Siebert, 3-2, and both eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Jerry Morales and a single by Pete LaCock.

The Cubs added two more runs in the second on a hit batsman and successive doubles by Kessinger and Cardenal. Cardenal also singled home a run in the fourth inning.

Robinson Leads Orioles To Win

BALTIMORE (AP) — Brooks Robinson snapped a hitless string of 20 consecutive at-bats with a two-run double in the sixth inning and the Baltimore Orioles held on to defeat the Minnesota Twins 3-6 Saturday.

The Orioles took an 8-1 lead into the seventh inning behind Mike Torrez, 4-1, but the Twins erupted for five runs, three on Larry Hiale's home run off Doyle Alexander.

Paul Blair also drove in two Baltimore runs while Al Bumbry, hitting .469 since April 28, had a single, double and triple, walked once and scored three times.

Robinson, who will be 38 years old May 18 and had only one hit in his last 36 trips to the plate, smacked his double off reliever Bill Butler to climax Baltimore's three-run sixth. Starter and loser Ray Corbin, 0-2, had departed after issuing a bases-loaded walk.

Moose Roll To 10-1 Victory

Kosta Maurakis and Donnie Daughtridge banged out five hits, scored four runs between them to lead the Moose to its second win of the year, a 10-1 trouncing of Big Value.

The loss was the second for Big Value.

The Moose got a run in the first as Lorimer reached on a two-base error. A ground out moved him to third and Maurakis sacrificed him in.

Marc Sasser reached on an error with one out and took second on a passed ball. Maurakis singled him to third and a hit by Bobby Gantt drove him and Maurakis in.

Daughtridge singled to lead off the third and scored on John Shaw's double.

The Moose made it 10-0 with six more in the fifth. Dwayne Alligood reached on an error and another error put him on second. Gantt walked and both runners moved up on a passed ball. Daughtridge singled scoring both runners and after taking second as Robert Hopkins reached on an error, two passed balls scored Daughtridge.

Crampton's Birdie Allows Him To Pull Into Lead Tie

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Australian veteran Bruce Crampton scored a dramatic birdie—he missed eagle two by about an inch—on the final hole for a 67 that vaulted him into a three-way tie for the lead Saturday in the third round of the $175,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

The poker-faced Crampton, a winner last week in Houston who needs this title to complete a career sweep of the Texas tournaments, put together a 54-hole total of 203, 10 under par, on the 6,957-yard Preston Trail Golf Club course. He was tied for the lead with 41-year-old Rod Funseth and non-winning tour regular Bob Eastwood. Six other players within two shots of the top spot in probably the closest tournament on the tour this year.

The stocky Eastwood took advantage of the almside ideal playing conditions for a second consecutive six-under-par 65. The last two rounds represent his two best scores as a professional.

Rangers Gun Down Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — Texas ripped five consecutive singles to score three runs in the sixth inning and Bill Hands scattered eight hits as the Texas Rangers beat the Detroit Tigers 5-2 Saturday.

The rally began with two out and turned a 2-1 Texas lead into an easy triumph for Hands, 3-2. Joe Coleman, 2-4, who pitched a one-hitter in his previous start, was the victim of all five runs.

Singles by Willie Davis, Jeff Burroughs and Mike Hargrove produced the first run in the Rangers' sixth. Jim Spencer and Roy Howell followed with RBI singles.

Hargrove broke a 1-1 tie in the fourth with a suicide squeeze bunt while Cesar Tovar knocked in a Texas run in the third with a double.

Mets Handed Sixth Defeat

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Concepcion's two-run single highlighted a three-run fifth inning and George Foster hit a two-run homer that gave the Cincinnati Reds a 4-1 victory Saturday and handed the New York Mets their sixth straight defeat.

Hank Webb, 0-2, walked Pete Rose with one out in the fifth, Ken Griffey singled and Joe Morgan walked, loading the bases. After Johnny Bench struck out, Tony Perez walked, forcing in a run, giving the Reds a 2-0 lead and chasing Webb. Concepcion greeted Rick Baldwin with a broken-bat loop to right for two runs.

In the eighth, Perez walked and Foster hit his fifth homer of the season off Jerry Cram, the Mets' fourth pitcher of the game.

Winner Clay Kirby, 2-3, who needed relief help, gave up Rusty Staub's third homer of the season in the sixth inning.

R.C. Rallies To Take Game

R.C. Cola rallied for five runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to take an 8-7 victory over the Optimists in the North State Little League yesterday.

The win evened both teams records at 1-1 on the year.

The Optimists pushed into the lead in the second inning, scoring a run. Billy Dough reached on an error and moved up on a passed ball and scored on a fielder's choice.

In the fourth, the Optimists added three more for a 4-0 lead. Doug opened the inning with a home run. Jeff Porter singled and John Hause got a hit. Paul MacMillan doubled in Porter. Andy Holloman grounded out, scoring Hause.

R.C. Cola got its first runs in the fourth, scoring a pair. Stacy Mills reached on an error and Chris Joyner and Greg Wright both drew walks. Dwayne Fisher sacrificed in Mills and Joyner scored on a passed ball.

Then, in the bottom of the sixth, R.C. rallied for five to win it. David Moon walked and moved up on a passed ball. Fisher reached on a fielder's choice and Eric Sawyer walked to load them up. Berry was hit by a pitch, scoring Moon, Mills doubled in both Fisher and Sawyer and an error let Berry score the tying run. Vince Hawkins followed with a single, scoring Mills with the game ending run.

Rampants Regain First As Knights Fall

UNDER A CLOUD OF DUST—Rose High's David Dixon slides safely into second base on a steal during Friday's game with Northern Nash. Dixon was running for catcher Eddy Connolly. Making the tag too late is Knight Ronnie Boddie as rightfielder Kim Sykes comes in to back up the play. Rose won the game, 7-3 and took first place in the conference. (Reflector photo by Thomas Foreman, Jr.)

ROCKY MOUNT—Rose High pulled off the old "gittin'-in-by-the-back-door-trick" Friday. They started things off with a Friday afternoon 7-3 win over Northern Nash then got help from Bertie as the Falcons upset Rocky Mount, 2-1, sending the Rampants into first place by themselves. Now all the Rampants have to do is win everything from here out to claim the title and that means two more games. The Rampants' Wesley Deal had a perfect game going for three innings Friday but Northern Nash got a hit and an error off him in the fourth. The Knights scored a run in the fifth to end the shutout and picked up two more in the sixth. But by then the Rampants had built a 6-3 lead and they added another in the seventh. The Rampants got big hits from Wright Hooks, who had a pair of doubles, Kelly Heath who had one and Macon Moye who hit his fourth home run of the season. All together, Rose collected 11 hits off Knight starter Jay Davis. Davis got the loss but struck out four and walked one. Deal fanned eight, walked two and gave up seven hits. The Rampants wasted no time in getting started. Griff Garner led off the game with a single and scored on Heath's double. Hooks doubled to bring Heath across. The Rampants did not get another baserunner until the fourth when Eddy Connolly walked. They could not bring him around. In the fifth, Rose did get another tally, Joe Godette beat out an infield hit and took second on an error on the play. Deal sacrificed him to third and Garner grounded scoring Godette. The Knights finally got a run in the fifth. Davis walked as did Johnny Willis. Steve Taylor loaded the sacs with a single and a sacrifice fly brought in Davis. Moye got the run back in the top of the sixth smashing a homer 360 over the left-centerfield fence. The buck did not stop there as Jack Jenkins reached on an error two outs later. A balk put him on second and Mike Brewington drove him in with a single to right. Brewington stole up and scored off Deal's hit. Craig Smith led off the sixth with a double for the Knights and scored on a single by Davis. Davis went to second as Moye fumbled the ball and scored on Dickie Duke's double. Ron Hunt singled to center to start the seventh and Heath sacrificed him up. Howard Baker drove him in with a single. Deal gave up a double and a single to open the seventh for the Knights but he got two ground outs and a strike out to end the game. Hooks had two hits to lead the Rampants while Taylor led the Knights with two.

Schedule Game
NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees announced Saturday that this year's Old Timers Game will be held Saturday, Aug. 2, in conjunction with a regularly scheduled game against Cleveland. The Old Timers' game will salute the 50s, a decade in which the Yankees won eight pennants.

Paciorek's Home Run Provides Dodgers With Win Over Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tom Paciorek, a last-minute starter for Los Angeles, belted a three-run homer that carried Doug Rau and the Dodgers to a 6-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday. When catcher Steve Yeager complained of back pains just before the start of the nationally televised game, Dodgers' Manager Walter Alton moved Joe Ferguson behind the plate and put Paciorek in right field. And in the second inning, Ron Cey walked and Ferguson was safe on a fielder's choice when Paciorek came to bat for only the 13th time this season. He worked the count to 2-2, then rifled a Jim Rooker fastball over the left field wall. A balk by Rau, 5-1, who scattered 10 hits, set up a Pittsburgh run in the third inning and a passed ball in the sixth helped provide another. Rennie Stennett singled, went to second on the balk and scored on Bill Robinson's single. Oliver singled, went to second on Ferguson's passed ball and came home on Manny Sanguillen's hit. A walk to Bill Russell and a sacrifice by Rau paved the way to a fifth-inning run for Los Angeles. Russell came home on Dave Lopes' single to left-center. Consecutive singles by Jim Wynn, Steve Garvey and Ron Cey gave the Dodgers a run in the seventh and they scored again in the ninth on Garvey's single. Paciorek not only gave the Dodgers the offensive punch they needed, but he also came up with several sparkling defensive plays. He robbed both Willie Stargell and Richie Zisk of extra-base hits in the second inning and flagged down Richie Hebner's drive headed for the wall in the fourth. And it was Paciorek whose slide into second base in the sixth inning led to the ejection of Pittsburgh second baseman Rennie Stennett by umpire Art Williams.

Rose In Chess Win

Rose High's chess team won its third straight victory Friday night beating Farmville Central, 5-0. Jan Ludwinski, David Ostrow and Melvin Jonson won their matches in fewer than 30 moves. Ludwinski's match was the longest of the trio going 70 minutes. Timothy Casper forced Farmville Central's John Lawrence to resign in just two hours. Mike Jefferys avoided an early attack and went on to record a checkmate on his 35th move over Sellers Lawrence. Rose hosts Chapel Hill High School on Thursday what may be in their toughest match of the year.

Celtics Rally To Nip Bullets

BOSTON (AP) — "When you have no where to go but up," says captain John Havlicek of the Boston Celtics, "you take your best shot." That's what the Celtics did Friday night with center Dave Cowens overcoming foul trouble, regaining his shooting form and sparking a furious fourth period rally in a 103-99 victory over the Washington Bullets. That enabled the Celtics to remain alive in defense of their National Basketball Association championship, forcing a sixth game in Washington for the Eastern Conference best-of-seven final. Cowens, whose sub-par shooting hurt Boston as the Celtics lost three of the first four games, missed his first five shots and things looked rough for the Celtics in Game No. 5. However, even saddled with five fouls for the entire fourth period, he led a wild finish which enabled the Celtics to pull out the victory. He scored 11 of his 27 points in the final 12 minutes and helped nail down the triumph with a key steal in the closing seconds. "This was the game we have been looking for from Cowens," Havlicek said. "It seems like every time comments are made about him not playing well he comes back and proves everybody wrong." Cowens and veteran Don Nelson, who had eight points in the final period, wrecked Washington in the duel to the wire. The Bullets inched in front 99-98 with 3:21 left, but were unable to score again before the final buzzer. "It was a long one, tough all the way," White said. "We had to win this one, and we have to win two more in a row. However, if anyone thinks this was rough, wait until we go down there."

Kaat Records 12th Straight Chisox Win

By ALEX SSCHARE
AP Sports Writer
Chicago's Jim Kaat keeps rolling along...with a little help from his friends.
Kaat set a White Sox team record with his 12th consecutive victory, five of them this season, beating Cleveland 2-0 Friday night. He blanked the Indians on six hits before giving way to his friends, relief pitchers Rich Gossage and Terry Forster, in the ninth.

"If it wasn't for Gossage and Forster, I'd be 0-5 this year," said Kaat, a 36-year-old left-hander who seems to age like vintage wine. "They've bailed me out of every game I've pitched. I'd like to have gone the distance, but the victory is good enough."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Kansas City Royals 7-1, the Minnesota Twins topped the Baltimore Orioles 5-2, the Texas Rangers defeated the Detroit Tigers 3-1, the Boston Red Sox beat the California Angels 4-1 and the Oakland A's edged the New York Yankees 4-3.

Kaat beat Gaylord Perry, who made one bad pitch and wound up a loser. That pitch was to Pat Kelly in the eighth inning, and the White Sox outfielder turned it into a two-run homer.

"It was a slider inside," said Perry. "I'd like to have that pitch back, but at the time it seemed like the right thing to throw. Evidently, it wasn't."

Perry held the White Sox hitless over the first five innings and had a one-hitter until the eighth, when Tony Muser led off with an infield single. Two outs later, Kelly blasted his first home run of the season. Perry finished with a four-hitter.

"We needed three pitchers to beat one tonight," said Chicago Manager Chuck Tanner in tribute to Perry. "We beat a great, tough pitcher."

Kaat left the game in the ninth after giving up a leadoff double to Rico Carty. His last loss was on Sept. 4 of last season. His 12 consecutive victories broke the previous White Sox record of 11 set by John D. Rigney in 1939 and tied by Gary Peters in 1963.

Brewers 7, Royals 1
Hank Aaron's 736th career home run snapped a 1-1 tie for Milwaukee and highlighted a five-run seventh inning. It was his third homer of the season and was greeted by a standing ovation from the Kansas City fans.

"It makes me feel very good to go into a city for the first time and have the fans give me a standing ovation for a home run that has beaten their team," Aaron said. "The young fans, particularly, they want to see you hit one, even if it means their team is getting beat."

"I guess they want to be part of...part of history. It's a wholesome situation."

Bobby Mitchell had a two-run triple and Don Money a two-run double in the big inning.

Twins 5, Orioles 2
Minnesota posted its fifth victory in six starts behind rookie Jim Hughes, who pitched a seven-hitter for his second major league triumph.

"He was on the threshold for a couple of years, and I guess it was a little discouraging to be sent back down," said Twins Manager Frank Quilici. While in the minors, Hughes developed a changeup and a palm ball, but Quilici observed, "Maybe in addition to his arm he got ready between the ears. He had a lot of confidence, as evidenced by the way he hung on in the first three innings."

Six of the first nine Baltimore batters reached base against Hughes, but he survived thanks to some shoddy baserunning. Al Bumbry was caught stealing and Paul Blair was trapped off base after the infield fly rule had been called on a pop fly.

Rangers 3, Tigers 1
Texas got the go-ahead run in the third inning on a throwing error by rookie outfielder Dan Meyer and added an insurance in the ninth on Tom Walker's wild pitch with the bases loaded. The beneficiary of this generosity was Texas' Jackie Brown, who pitched a six-hitter.

Red Sox 4, Angels 0
Rick Wise stopped California on three hits, losing his shutout in the ninth on a leadoff homer by Mickey Rivers. Rick Burleson paced the Red Sox attack with two doubles and a single.

A's 4, Yankees 3
Oakland got the winning run in the eighth when Billy Williams walked with two out, pinch-runner Matt Alexander stole second, moved to third on Thurman Munson's throwing error and scored on Sparky Lyle's wild pitch. It was the Yanks' sixth straight loss.

Claim 1st Victories

State Highway and Burroughs-Wellcome both came up with victories Friday night in the Industrial Softball League, giving everyone at least one win in the loop.

State Highway downed Carolina Telephone, 21-4, in the first game of the evening. State Highway pushed over four in the first inning of play. They came back with 14 in the second frame for an 18-0 lead. Three more scored in the fifth inning. Carolina Telephone got one in the third, one in the fourth, and two in the fifth inning.

The second game saw Burroughs-Wellcome down Greenville Utilities, 16-13. B-W pushed in a pair in the first, but GUCO came back with four in their half of the frame. B-W added three in the second with Rufus Walston homering. GUCO scored four more in the second to lead 8-5. Burroughs-Wellcome came back with five in the third inning, taking the lead for good. They added two in the fourth and four more in the sixth. GUCO tried to rally, coming up with five in the bottom of the sixth, but they never caught up again.

Marvin Rankins led Bertie Senior High School to a close victory over Rose High School Friday in the Northeastern Sectional Track Meet, but Lindberg Morris of Rose walked away with individual honors.

Bertie finished the meet with 37 points, 12 of which came on victories by Rankins who won both of the hurdle events. He also came in fifth in the high jump and record in the 220, giving him a total of 17 points in the meet.

Morris also was a double winner, and only a judges' decision kept him from possible winning another. As it was, he had two wins, a second and a leg on a third-place relay team to his credit. For this he was named the Outstanding Individual Performer in the meet as selected by the coaches of the top five teams.

Rose High School finished the meet with 34 points, just beating out Tarboro with 33 and West Cartaret with 32.

They were followed by New Bern with 20, Wilson with 16, Washington with 15, South Lenoir with 12, North Lenoir with 8, Swansboro 6, South Edgecombe 5, Edenton, Havelock and Jacksonville, 4 each; Roanoke Rapids, New Hanover, Greene Central, Aurora, Enfield and East Cartaret, 3 each; Perquimans, Knapp and Plymouth, 2 each; and White Oak and Camp Lejeune, 1 each.

In addition to Rankins and Morris as double winners, Tarboro listed one, as Archer won the 100 and the 220-yard dashes. He also ran a leg on the winning 880-yard relay team.

Morris' victories came in the long jump, where he heaped 22 feet, 6 inches, and in the triple jump where he soared to 45 feet, 2½ inches, a new Rose High School and sectional meet record.

In the 100-yard dash, he was thought to have been the winner by a number of observers, but the official judges picked Archer first.

The favorite in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, Delbert Powell of Northeastern, pulled a muscle during the preliminaries, and was unable to compete in the finals.

A number of area athletes were among those who qualified for the Regionals, to be held next week also at the East Carolina University track. The top four finishers in each event advanced to the regionals, where finalists for the state meet will be chosen.

In the 880-yard run, fifth place finisher Hill of South Lenoir was awarded a berth in the regionals because of a jostle at the start.

Among those qualifying were Morris in the long jump, the triple jump and the 100-yard dash; Doug Paschal of Rose in the shot put (first) and the discus (fourth); the Rose 880-yard relay team (third) and the Green Central team (fourth);

David King of Rose in the pole vault (third); William Joyner of Rose in the 220-yard dash (fourth), and the Rose mile relay team (fourth).

Summary:

Rampant Girls Defeat Northern Two Place In State

Rose High School's girls' softball team rolled to a 14-9 victory over Northern Nash Friday.

The victory was the fifth in eight starts for the Rampant girls.

The two teams played it run-for-run throughout the first three innings, with Rose coming back to match each run scored by the Lady Knights. After that, however, Rose pushed ahead and gained the lead for good.

Northern Nash took the initial lead with two in the first. K. Harrison singled and T. Wells got a hit. P. Westry doubled to score both runners.

Rose came back with two of its own in the bottom of the inning. Jill Carney singled and Fannie Johnson slammed a home run.

After Northern Nash got one in the top of the first, Rose came back to tie it again, 3-3. Lou Foreman singled and Sally Augspurger walked. Sheri Augspurger singled, scoring Foreman.

Northern again pulled away, scoring five in the third, but Rose came right back to match that. Jane Wahlert singled and Carney tripled her in. Johnson singled to score Carney and Shirley Johnson singled. Peggy Leggett singled in Fannie Johnson and an error let Shirley Johnson score. Sally Augspurger singled in Leggett for an 8-8 tie.

Rose then pushed over four in the fourth to take the lead, 12-8. Edna Barnhill singled and Carney got a hit. Fannie Johnson singled in Barnhill and Shirley Johnson singled to score Carney. Leggett singled in Fannie and an error let Shirley score too.

After Northern got one more in the fifth, Rose came back with two more in the sixth. Carney singled and Johnson slapped her second homer of the game.

Rose will host Northeastern on Tuesday.

bases. Butts singled in Harris and Jeff Pridden walked to force Holloman.

Clark again started things off for the Saints as he opened the fifth with a double. Neal brought him around on a hit and an error let Smith reach and Neal move to third. A passed ball scored Neal and a hit by Newhart brought in Smith.

Marshall Bombed In Relief Against Bucs

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

If Mike Marshall can get out of bed today he'll be happy, but he should have stayed in bed Friday night. The Los Angeles relief ace was called on to protect a 3-2 lead against Pittsburgh in the seventh inning and quickly turned it into an 11-3 loss.

In two innings of something resembling batting practice, Marshall was battered for nine runs on seven hits—including two doubles, a triple and a homer—and three walks. It was the worst pounding in a Dodger uniform for Marshall, who set a major league record last season by relieving 106 times, never giving up more than four runs in any game.

However, he had pitched only three innings—all last Saturday—since April 19, when he injured rib cartilage on his left side. Was the two-inning shelling worth it?

"I'll know tomorrow," Marshall said. "If I can get out of bed, then I'll call it a good night."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds nipped the New York Mets 4-3, the Chicago Cubs trimmed the San Diego Padres 5-2, the Atlanta Braves downed the Philadelphia Phillies 3-1, the St. Louis Cardinals shaded the San Francisco Giants 6-4 and the Montreal Expos edged the Houston Astros 5-4.

Marshall's chief tormentor was Pittsburgh's Dave Parker, who slammed a two-run triple to cap a four-run seventh inning that put the Pirates on top 6-3 and homered with two men on base in a five-run eighth. Parker also drove in a sixth run with a sixth-inning double off starter Burt Hooton.

"Marshall didn't have his usual velocity and he was throwing a lot of off-speed stuff," Parker said. "His arm must have been hurting or something."

But according to Dodger Manager Walter Alston, Marshall "told me he felt fine after warming up. Then when he got out there he asked to stay in so he could get the work."

Reds 4, Mets 3
Second baseman Joe Morgan, who turned a potential bases-loaded single into an inning-ending double play in the third, singled home the final two runs in Cincinnati's four-run fifth, sending the Mets to their fifth consecutive defeat.

Trailing 1-0, the Reds loaded the bases against rookie Randy Tate on two walks and George Foster's infield hit. Winning pitcher Don Gullett then bounced a two-run single up the middle. One out later, Dave Concepcion walked and Morgan greeted relief pitcher Bob Apodaca with a single.

The Mets, who got late-inning homers from Dave Kingman and Wayne Garrett, loaded the bases in the third but Morgan made a diving back-hand stop of Jesus Alou's grounder, tagged second and threw to first for the double play.

Cubs 5, Padres 2
Rick Monday's two-run homer capped a three-run first inning for Chicago. Ray Burris limited the Padres to six hits before giving way to Darold Knowles with two out in the eighth.

Don Kessinger and Jose Cardenal singled to open the Chicago first against Joe McIntosh. Bill Madlock then grounded into what would have been a double play but Willie McCovey dropped the relay at first for an error as Kessinger scored. Monday then followed with his fourth homer of the season.

Chicago added two runs in the eighth when Madlock singled, John Summers tripled and Jerry Morales hit a sacrifice fly.

Braves, 3, Phillies 1
Biff Pocoroba drove in two runs with his first major league hit, backing the five-hit pitching of Roric Harrison. Pocoroba, making only his third start as the Braves' catcher, lined a one-out single to left in the second inning off Tom Underwood following a single by Earl Williams and a double by Larvell Blanks.

Harrison had a shutout until the sixth, when Greg Luzinski smashed his sixth home run of the season. The Braves got their final run in the bottom of the sixth when Dusty Baker walked, stole second and scored on Blanks' single. "It was a great day for me," said Pocoroba. "When I got back to the locker room, someone had put the ball in my locker. I won't part with this thing."

Cardinals 6, Giants 4
Ron Fairly drove in four runs for St. Louis with a two-run single and a two-run homer, his first of the season. Lynn McGlothen got the victory with help from Al Hrabosky in the ninth.

Fairly's hits followed streaks of wildness by Giant starter John D'Acquisto, who was chased in the third inning after Fairly's home run. After the Giants scored an unearned run in the first inning, D'Acquisto walked Jim Dwyer and hit Ted Simmons with a pitch. They advanced on a wild pitch and Fairly followed with his tworn single. He scored on a double by Keith Hernandez. Fairly homered in the third following a walk.

Expos 5, Astros 4
Pepe Mangual's single capped a four-run Montreal rally in the sixth inning. Trailing 4-1, the Expos tied the score on Gary Carter's double.

Gain 3rd Victories

Kentucky Fried Chicken and Jock's captured their third straight wins in the City Softball League Friday night. White's Insulation also came away with a victory.

In the opening game, White's gained a 15-8 victory over One-Hour Koretizing. White's pushed in three runs in the first inning, but One-Hour came back with four in their half of the inning to take the lead. One-Hour added another in the second before White's came back with three in the third. One-Hour scored two in the third, then got one in the fourth to hold an 8-6 lead.

But White's exploded for eight runs in the sixth inning, and added one in the seventh to move ahead and take the win.

In the second game, Kentucky Fried Chicken remained unbeaten with a 14-2 won over Morgan Printers. Morgan scored first, getting two in the top of the fourth. But KFC came back with six in the bottom of the frame, with M. Aldridge homering. They added eight more in the fifth with Aldridge again homering.

The final game saw Jock's take a 10-7 win over the Chargers, also to remain without a defeat. Jock's pushed over three in the second and added one in the third. The Chargers came up with three in their half of the third, and after Jock's got one in the fourth, the Chargers added three more for a 6-5 lead.

But four by Jock's in the fifth did the trick. They added one in the seventh. The Chargers got their other run in the sixth.

Coca-Cola Rolls By Kiwanis By 21-2

Coca-Cola romped to a 21-2 victory over the Kiwanis in the North State Little League Friday. The victor was the first in two games for Coke, while the Kiwanis were losing their second.

Coke pushed in two in the first inning. Billy Brannigan reached on an error and Jeff Camp walked. Barry Tyson reached on a fielder's choice, nailing Camp at second. He stole second and a

In the second, Coke added five more. Richard Pace walked and Camp singled. Tyson doubled to drive in Pace. Chuck Allen reached on an error and Rick Hardee singled in both Camp and Tyson. Skip Cannon singled to score Allen, and a hit by Raynor Casey brought in Hardee.

Six more runs crossed in the third for Coke. Camp reached on an error and Tyson walked. Allen single to load them up and a walk to Hardee brought in Camp. Jonathan McGee doubled in both Tyson and Allen, and Cannon's hit, scored Hardee. Pace singled in McGee and Camp reached on an error, scoring Cannon.

The fourth saw three more score. Allen singled as did Hardee. Both moved up on a wild pitch and McGee singled in Allen. Chip Little reached on an error, scoring Hardee and McGee.

The fifth saw five more score. Camp, Tyson and Allen all walked, loading them up. A wild pitch scored Camp, and Hardee walked to load them again. McGee walked to force in Tyson, and Allen scored on a balk. Little singled in both Hardee and McGee.

The Kiwanis got one run in the third. Eric Lee reached on an error and Tom Brown singled. An error let Lee score.

The other run came in the fifth. Brown singled and moved up on a passed ball. Spencer Mayo reached on a fielder's choice and Grant Stackhouse singled in Brown.

Ayden-Grifton Downs Panthers

LITTLEFIELD—Randy Nelson had three hits and an RBI and Paul Ricciarelli had two hits, including a grand slam home run to lead the Ayden-Grifton Chargers to a 13-0 shut out of North Pitt, Friday night.

Chris Riggs was the winning pitcher while Aubrey Wynne lost it. Bill Wilson had two hits for the Chargers and Willie Briley had a pair for North Pitt.

The Chargers took the lead in the first getting one run. Nelson doubled and took third on an out. A wild pitch scored him.

Ricciarelli led off the fourth with a triple and Vern Davenport walked and stole second. Both runners scored on Eddie Taylor's single. Steve Nobles reached on a fielder's choice. A wild pitch moved Taylor to third and an error let him score. Riggs singled and stole second but Nobles was thrown out as he tried to steal home. Stevie Tripp walked and Nelson reached on an error scoring Riggs. A single by Paul Setliff scored Tripp.

The Chargers had picked up three more in the fifth, but to add insult to injury, Ricciarelli smashed a grand slam homer putting up the final 13-run margin.

The Chargers will be visiting Southern Nash, Tuesday.

McTear Blazes To 9.0 Hundred

WINTER PARK, Fla. (AP) — Houston McTear has blazed past grinding poverty and a ragged running style to reign today, at age 18, as the world's fastest human.

McTear became only the second man in history to run 100 yards in nine seconds flat, tying the world record set by Ivory Crockett 363 days earlier at a track meet in Knoxville, Tenn.

"I don't believe it," said McTear after matching history's fastest 100 yards in a preliminary heat of the Florida Class AA prep championship meet. "I thought I might be a 9.2, but I never thought I was going that fast."

The odds against McTear breaking away from his family's hardened poverty, much less an unexplored racing barrier, would seem astronomical. But today McTear, who lives in Milligan, a town too small to make the maps, is on the verge of reaching a speed never attained before.

McTear lives with seven other children of a parttime sawmill worker in a little shack at the end of dusty dirt road in Okaloosa County. He began running five years ago when he joined the President's Physical Fitness Program.

McTear, a junior at Baker High, sometimes practices on the school's football field and other times on bare dirt adjacent to railroad tracks near his home.

But with his enormous talent, all that seems to have been left behind, just like his competition. He's "a born sprinter," says track star Mel Pender.

McTear, who shattered the national high school record of 9.3 with a 9.2 clocking last weekend in a qualifying meet, was recorded in 9.0 by all three timekeepers Friday. The wind gauge showed a reading of two miles per hour, well under the allowable 4.47 m.p.h. for official world record purposes.

"I was just thinking about my time," said McTear, who came back two hours later Friday to win the 100-yard finals in 9.3. "I thought I had a good start. Some people said I had a false start, but I didn't."

McTear won the 220 in 21.5, was second in the long jump with a leap of 22 feet, 8 1/4 inches and anchored the school's winning 880-yard relay team. Baker, the smallest Class AA school, won the Class AA title.

McTear's running style has been likened to that of Bob Hayes, the Olympic gold medalist at 100 meters in 1964 and now a receiver for the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League. Despite being much shorter than Hayes, at 5-foot-7 and 155 pounds, McTear runs with the same hard-charging brute strength.

McTear was a member of Baker High's football team last season, averaging a whopping 14.4 yards a carry. But he says he won't play this fall unless used as a wide receiver, where there is less wear and tear on his 67-inch frame.

"I'm proud of him," said McTear's father Eddie, whom friends say earns $400 a month when work is steady. "I hope he makes it. Then maybe he won't have to work in a sawmill the rest of his life."

Now in a new format, eastern North Carolina's regional magazine expands its offering to readers

"The New East," Voice Of Eastern North Carolina

THE NEW EAST MAGAZINE, published bi-monthly, Greenville, N.C., P.O. Box 727. Annual subscription, $4.68 ($4.50 plus 18 cents postage).

There's a lot of exciting reading about eastern North Carolina in the May-June 1975 issue of The New East, just off the press.

Dr. Thomas Williams, who recently moved into the editorship of The New East, has said "it is our hope to get all residents of eastern North Carolina eagerly involved in this regional magazine, both as readers and contributors. If this can be done, then the magazine will truly serve its purpose."

Working on the thesis that a magazine serving a regional audience should address itself to "readers of all ages and occupations," one of Williams' first decisions has been to add new features which appear in this first issue entirely under his editorship.

"Bed and Board"

The revised format includes a "Bed and Board" column written by Lee Dudley. For his first assignment, Lee takes a critical look at New Bern's Henderson House, one of eastern North Carolina's most elegant dining places. He gives high scores to the decor, atmosphere and to the specialties of the restored old house, but tempers his praise with barely passing marks on the vegetables, which "tend to be routine and could stand more imaginative treatment."

Poetry and Fiction
A refreshing experiment in the expansion of the magazine's coverage is the first time inclusion of poetry and fiction. Greenville's Claire Pittman contributes half a dozen poems to this issue. These touch on sentiments that are both universal and regional. Consider three final lines from "Summer Dawn At Oriental" . . . "Etching with the Midas touch, a gull-who with a monomaniac hold-Throttles a breakfast fish of gold."

Pitt County farmer-writer Tom Forbes' short fiction, "The Living Stream," is a sensitive evocation of remembered urges and forces that tug at the mind and heart of a boy growing into young manhood. At one point, wandering alone along the small woods stream, the writer recalls a day he saw hawks above him. "Maybe all the hawks should be shot, he thought, and then wondered why he would want a sky without hawks sailing high in the clouds with his freed mind riding their windy backs."

Sir Walter Raleigh
The cover story, "Sir Walter Meets the Tree Carver," by editor Williams, is a soul-laid-bare interview with R.K. Harniman, the New York native who is fulfilling a dream to sculpt in larger-than-life size images.

Harniman is now concluding the strenuous task of converting a huge 507 year old Pitt County cypress tree into a powerful, massive sculpture of Sir Walter Raleigh, a work of art that has sparked the imagination and curiosity of thousands of North Carolinians who have visited Harniman's outdoor studio in Raleigh's North Hills Shopping Center. (Unfortunately, the five photographs in color illustrating the article, at least in my copy of The New East, are pale and bluish).

Beaufort

Away from Raleigh down in the southeastern corner of eastern North Carolina, Janice Hardison Faulkner and Walter Faulkner (she in text, he in photographs) have teamed up to provide a superb coverage of "Old Beaufort: The Town Where Time Stands Still."

The article appears at a particularly appropriate time, as thousands will begin their annual trek to nearby Atlantic Beach and other resort areas on Emerald Isle. Mrs. Faulkner goes beyond the standard "historic" wrap-up of old buildings to bring in a welcome note about the leisurely atmosphere of Beaufort. She tells us that "Beaufort is a town of working folks and former working folks, fishermen, farmers, businessmen, and retired seafarers. It is a place where the grace and charm of the 18th Century blend harmoniously with present day living."

Every reader will likely be fascinated by Charles L. Price's account of "Riding The Rails In Civil War Days." It's hard to realize just how important the railroads were to eastern North Carolina in the turbulent days of the great war. Trains were always overcrowded; available food at the end of a journey was poorly cooked and served and often expensive; and as the war years went by, equipment and rails deteriorated. Traveler complaints — many taken from diaries and personal journals — charged negligence and greed on the part of railroad officials. But Price concludes "These charges were unfair . . . most of the miserably traveling conditions and inefficiency were the results of the times and not the fault of the railroad officers."

Home Industry

The importance of home-owned industry is emphasized in Manly Heidt's informative look at "The Harringtons of Lewiston." The manufacturing company, specializing in the production of modern farm equipment, has seen a number of ups and downs since 1908; with the recent swing to big scale, mechanized farming, however, the present and future seems bright for the continued growth of this native industry headed by J.J. (Monk) Harrington, and his two sons, Robert and Picott. Harrington has also served eastern North Carolina for a number of years as a State Senator.

The story of how a "rag-tag band of eastern North Carolina irregulars scored the earliest and most important of southern victories in the Revolutionary War" is told by Ralph Scott, complete with a reproduction of the 1775 Henry Mouzon map of North Carolina; a more modern event is related by George A. Threewitts in an account of "Flying Saucers Over Washington."

Other Items

To round out this look at the new issue of The New East, mention needs to be made of intriguing tidbits contained in a column "The Mysterious East;" a "Gardener's Guide;" Ben McDonald's column, "Ben Notes; Mildred Huskins' "Cooking;" Paul Dowell's "Carolina Folkways;" a review of books by Carol Williams; a helpful "Calendar of Coming Events;" and Steve Messick's timely "How To Save Money On Air Conditioning."

If this larger, more comprehensive than ever issue of The New East is a harbinger of future issues, the people of eastern North Carolina can look forward with high hopes to a magazine that truly and significantly will become what its slogan aims for . . . "the voice of eastern North Carolina."

ECU's Norman Pendered's popular version of an infamous character

An Introduction To Blackbeard

Blackbeard—The Fiercest Pirate Of All. By Norman C. Pendered. Manteo, N.C. Times Printing Co., Inc. 1975. 81 pps, illustrated, paperback, $2.95.

Books on the life and times of the familiar pirate Blackbeard continue to proliferate, indicating a continuing public interest in the cruel, energetic man who for a brief few years in the early 18th century wielded power and influence through fear in eastern North Carolina.

Dr. Pendered, Professor and Chairman of the Department of Industrial and Technical Education at East Carolina University, has written a popular version of Blackbeard, his associates, and his activities during the zenith of his career.

Dr. Pendered sketches in a few relevant factors about the social and economic conditions of those years, then zeroes in on the movements and actions of Blackbeard in the years immediately prior to the pirate's defeat and death in the Pamlico (Pamlico) Sound in November 1718.

These were adventure packed years when Bluebeard and his competitors in the brotherhood of piracy were constantly maneuvering for prizes in the waters among the islands of the West Indies and along the eastern coast of America.

Although this is a book designed for quick, easy reading, Dr. Pendered's Blackbeard bears the stamp of careful and well documented research. (The author has just completed a long, scholarly work on Blackbeard and is now in the process of searching for a publisher).

Pendered incorporates proven dates, places, names and figures and an occasional document. One such document is a letter from Tobias Knight, then Secretary of North Carolina and also the Chief Justice of the Province. The letter was a muddled attempt to warn Blackbeard of imminent danger and was dated only days before the infamous pirate met his match against young Navy Lt. Robert Maynard.

By far the most interesting pages in Dr. Pendered's book are those dealing with Blackbeard's relations with Knight and North Carolina's Governor Eden, and accounts of the pirate's life in and around Bathtown and Fishtown—(now Beaufort).

For a book to acquaint those not yet familiar with "the fiercest pirate of all," Dr. Pendered's Blackbeard is highly recommended.

It has also the virtues of a good reading list, a list of little known reference works and a few reasonably good maps and charts. Attractively bound and printed, the cover portrait of Blackbeard is copied from the Mildred Rumley painting at the Visitors Center in Bath.

The "Parthian Shot"

A story of hilarity, of friendship and brotherhood

(Editor's Note: Loyd Little, a graduate of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, has a B.A. degree in journalism and a B.S. degree in medicine. Currently, he is editor and publisher of the "Carolina Financial Times." For a number of years, Little worked for several Southern newspapers. The author and his wife, Drena, live in Frog Level, a rural community outside Chapel Hill in Orange County).

Parthian Shot. By Loyd Little. New York, the Viking Press. 1975. 278 pps, $8.95.

It's ironic that Loyd Little's remarkable novel about a small group of American soldiers in South Vietnam should come to press at the very moment that a way of life, of defying fate and force, has seemingly come to an end in that beleaguered country.

Author Loyd Little is among a slowly growing number of talented writers, many of them turning out first novels, who are taking a backward look, a compassionate look, at their contacts with the people and land of South Vietnam.

Little, a journalism graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill, served as a Green Beret medic in the Delta and the Highlands of South Vietnam from September 1964 to November 1965.

Undoubtedly making use of a goodly share of his own personal experiences, Little has written a book that is less a war novel than an account of individuals who are seeking their own personal liberation.

Through an astonishing paper blunder, the Army loses a small six-man field team operating in the tiny village of Nan Phuc, on the Bassac River near the Cambodian border. Accepting the fact their team no longer officially exists as a recognized operational unit, the six men — one officer and five enlisted men, philosophically fall back on the American virtue of making the best of a bad situation.

In a situation such as this, unpredictable comic situations are bound to arise. The medic, Warren, for instance, improvises a pair of water skis and is photographed skiing. It is not long before he discovers that a sizeable number of the local population regard him as something of a saint, reverently keeping his photograph in a place of honor, speaking of him in awed tones as the man who walks on water.

The dilemma posed by what to do with time until the Army eventually realizes and untangles its paper error is the central issue of Parthian Shot. This is resolved by forming a project of capitalistic ingenuity involving the Americans and the local Vietnamese.

With the assistance and guidance of Major Choi, the shrewd ranking Vietnamese military man in the Delta area where by circumstance and the seasonal floods of the Mekong River the Americans are marooned, an idea for a novel industry takes root.

As a beginning, the cottage industry is limited to making brassieres, an unknown item that native women are soon clamoring for, and Viet Cong flags. The new flags, after being dirtied and even torn to make them appear authentically used, become a hot selling item when smuggled out to souvenir hungry American troops arriving in other parts of Vietnam in ever increasing numbers.

"When profits begin to trickle in, the amazed native populace acquire a keen taste for money making, American style. The venture expands, then mushrooms. A large factory is built, a ship acquired to serve as a floating department store. The ultimate step comes when corporation stocks are issued. On one unforgettable occasion, the industry site is visited by an American general and a Viet Cong leader at the same time. An outlandish double-agent story is concocted on the spot to save the day—and each visiting dignitary is adroitly "permitted" to invest substantially in the company's stock.

Little's novel goes much deeper, however, than merely setting forth a series of fantastic machinations inherent in such an improbable situation. Beyond the foreground of comic tactics there is a sustaining vein of seriousness, a heart felt desire by people to be left alone, to find peace and stability on their own terms.

They do indeed achieve an idyllic brotherhood, but it is doomed to be temporary. These men, American and Vietnamese, know they live in the constant shadow of more powerful, evil forces—of overwhelming strength and ingrained hatreds that in time will destroy them and all they have achieved.

Not the least among the good things in Parthian Shot is the solid background of relevant history Little manages to weave into his narrative. He illuminates the social, ethnic and political fabric of South Vietnam in the early 1960's without interrupting the flow of the novel.

Parthian Shot is a bitersweet novel, an exceptional love story of people who are thrown together by the forces of destiny, who learn to work together, to respect each other for their mutual human qualities and for their differences.

At this traumatic moment when Americans and South Vietnamese are tasting the bitterness of defeat after a long and tragic struggle, Parthian Shot is a sad echo of what might have been. But perhaps more significantly, it is also a vivid reminder that all was not lost, after all. Love and respect have a way of being remembered and cherished.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Council, a farm couple of near Greenville.

A Pitt County Man And Wife Send Six Children To College

GREENSBORO, — In any day and time, inflation or not, it's not an easy task to raise nine children. It's an even more difficult task to put them through college.

A&T State University has been the salvation of the Arthur Councils. Six of their children have already graduated from A&T, the latest being Thomas, who received his degree in industrial arts Sunday at the university's 84th Commencement.

Although most of the Council children are now living and working in the larger cities across the country, they grew up on the Council's 100 acre farm near Greenville. Mr. and Mrs. Council bought the farm in 1947 because they say this is to be the best way to support and raise their children. All of the Council children learned the fruits of hard work and self-determination on the farm.

The other A&T graduates include Jesse L. Council who received a B.A. in agriculture. He is employed as a water and soil conservationist in Rochester, Pa.

Mrs. Marion C. Mitchell, who received a B.A. in home economics now owns Carl's Delicatessen in northern Philadelphia.

William Council, who received a B.A. in business administration and accounting, is also a former Peace Corps Volunteer. He is an instructor of Business at Washington Technical Institute in Washington, D.C.

Francis D. Council, who received a B.A. in business administration, is residing in Oakland, California and is an employee of the Hyatt Regency Hotel Corporation in San Francisco.

Walter B. Council, who received a B.A. in health and physical education lives in Greensboro. He is a candidate for the Master's Degree in safety and driver education at A&T.

The Council's other children are Robert, a dairy operator in Greenville; Arthur, a hair stylist in Philadelphia; and Mrs. Stella C. Morning, a licensed practical nurse in Philadelphia.

To Save Two Rare Butterflies

. . . the silver-bordered fritillary and the Hippolyta silver-spot lest they vanish like the Xerces Blue, it is necessary to preserve the violets and the peat bog.

By ELDON BARRETT

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Once upon a time, but not too long ago, there fluttered around the sand dunes close by the Golden Gate a flock of butterflies known as Xerces Blues.

Today, the city of San Francisco stands on those dunes, but the Xerces Blue is no more.

What happened to the Xerces Blue could happen to other butterflies. But it won't if the nation's only organization dedicated to saving these beautiful creatures prevails. Based in Seattle it is named The Xerces Society, for that now extinct species that once brightened the beaches of San Francisco Bay.

So far, the society has had a hand in the establishment of two butterfly sanctuaries in the Pacific Northwest. One is at Moxee Bog near Yakima, Wash. The other is a salty ocean-side meadow in the Siuslaw National Forest on the Oregon Coast.

Moxee Bog is one of the few remaining homes of the little, yellow-brown butterfly with white spots known as the silver-bordered fritillary.

The oceanside meadow is one of two remaining Oregon homes for the spotted, yellowish butterfly called Hippolyta silver-spot.

The fritillary of Moxee Bog and the Oregon silver-spot have one thing in common that sets them apart from other butterflies and moths. During their caterpillar stage, they will eat only the leaves of the local violets.

If the violets are wiped out, so will be the butterflies.

David McCorkle, an entomology teacher at Oregon College in Monmouth, is an expert on the two endangered species.

"It is not so much the threat to individuals as it is the threat to the butterfly habitat," he said. "One female can lay enough eggs to repopulate an entire colony, but if the colony site is destroyed the species is wiped out."

The Hippolyta silver-spot once inhabited many storm-sprayed meadows along the Oregon coast, but they were taken over as grazing land, farm plots or motel sites, and the butterflies were no longer free.

McCorkle and The Xerces Society helped persuade the U.S. Forest Service to set aside the salt meadow in the Siuslaw as a silver-spot sanctuary.

McCorkle, who was one of the discoverers of the fritillaries, also was instrumental in persuading the owner of Moxee Bog to sell that strange peat marsh in the middle of the sage desert to Nature Conservancy, a nonprofit organization dedicated to preserving natural areas.

McCorkle thinks both the bog violets and the fritillaries have been isolated there since the retreat of Ice Age glaciers.

Now the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is involved and is studying butterflies to determine which should go into its "Red Book." Species of wildlife written down there are officially classified as rare and endangered and subsequently put under government protection.

Wheat Crop Off To Good Start

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1975 winter wheat crop is off to a generally good start and may produce a record harvest of 1.62 billion bushels, grain needed to replenish reserves now expected to be at a 27-year low by summer.

Winter wheat makes up about three-fourths of total U.S. wheat output. The estimate, based on May 1 field conditions, was announced Friday by the Agriculture Department.

The department's Crop Reporting Board did not include spring-planted wheat and will issue its first estimate of that production in July. But USDA has projected a spring wheat crop of 825 million bushels, assuming normal yields and expected plantings.

Thus, including the winter crop's estimate, a 1975 record wheat harvest of more than 2.1 billion bushels is in the offering. But USDA a year ago predicted an even larger 1974 crop and saw poor weather, including drought, slice it to less than 1.8 billion bushels.

The May estimate for winter wheat was one per cent larger than the 1.6 billion bushels USDA initially forecast last Dec. 23. Officials said Friday that 1975 yields are expected to average 32.1 bushels an acre, compared with 29.5 last year.

Plantation Is Open To Tours

OCHO RIOS, Jamaica (AP) — One of Jamaica's most popular attractions, the "plantation tour," has a new addition.

Prospect Estate, a 1,200-acre working spice and cattle plantation, recently opened for visitors' tours for the first time.

The historic property has a 17th-century fortified great house, tropical gardens and a bird sanctuary. It overlooks the north coast near Ocho Rios and the gorge of the White River, which flows into the Caribbean.

Oil Overcharge May Be As High As $6 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a House energy subcommittee says his staff has been told that oil companies have overcharged their customers by as much as $6 billion, far higher than previous estimates.

Rep. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., quoted an unnamed Federal Energy Administration official Friday as the source of the estimate. FEA chief Frank G. Zarb, appearing before Moorhead's panel, said the figure "sounded fairly high" but conceded he had no accurate figure of his own.

In a 30-page formal statement, Zarb said FEA enforcement of price regulations thus far has resulted in price reductions of $161 million and disapproval of another $418 million in potential overcharges. But he said that figure included some charges that the oil companies had not yet passed along to customers.

Moorhead said the General Accounting Office, a congressional watchdog agency, has pegged the overcharge total at close to $2 billion, while his unnamed informant said they "may be in the $5 billion to $6 billion range."

NEW YORK (AP) — Tax rebate checks, designed to stimulate the economy and end the longest recession since the Great Depression, began to leave Washington for American households this past week.

The first of an estimated 78 million checks ranging up to $200 per taxpayer were mailed Wednesday and Thursday to those who filed their 1974 tax returns early. About $8 billion in refunds is planned by June 15.

While the rebates are part of Washington's plan to get things moving again, there remained uncertainty whether taxpayers would spend the cash — as government economists desire — or will reduce debt or sink the money in savings accounts.

While all three choices will help the economy, spending the money will help it the most right now, economists say.

Lending credence to those who believe Americans would bank the checks were government figures which showed that consumer credit fell by a total of $462 million in March. It was the fourth decline in five months and the third largest on record.

A record $1.9 billion drop in business inventories during March encouraged economists, who feel the reduction is necessary before production can increase and layoffs end. But an even sharper drop in sales during the month could be even more troublesome if it continued, they said.

Wholesale prices, which had dropped four months running, turned around and posted an 18 per cent annualized gain during April, the government said. Higher food prices accounted for most of the rise.

In the auto industry spring remained elusive. General Motors said its supplemental unemployment benefit program was dry, cutting layoff compensation in half for some 55,000 workers. And American Motors Corp., like Chrysler Corp. and Ford Motor Co. the week before, announced a big loss in the quarter ended Mar. 31.

Workers Strike At Schlitz Beer Plant

LONGVIEW, Tex. (AP) — Teamsters Union pickets went up Friday night at two Schlitz Brewing Co. plants in this East Texas city after what a union spokesman said was a failure to agree on a contract for the recently-organized Schlitz workers.

A Union spokesman said about 20 members of Local 745 of Dallas began picketing Schlitz's container division here about 7 p.m., and other pickets went up at the Longview brewery at midnight.

Union pickets at the canning plant told newsmen that the union local would call a nationwide strike against Schlitz because of the contract talks breakdown here, but union officials in Dallas would not confirm that such a call had been issued.

In Winston-Salem, N.C., picketing began around 11 p.m. Friday at the Schlitz plant. A company official said about 547 Teamsters members worked at the plant.

It marked the third time in four years that Teamsters members had picketed the Winston-Salem plant.

Braniff Trims Trainee Ranks

DALLAS (UPI) — Braniff International Airlines terminated two classes — totaling 45 young men and women — of its Flight Attendant College midway through the five-week training period.

A Braniff spokesman said the trainees were released because of a decline in business and lack of attrition among current flight attendants. Trainees were given one-way plane tickets home.

The spokesman said training may resume in July.

Most In UN Keep Death Penalty Law

By R.M. SORGE
UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. Economic and Social Council has recommended the eventual abolition of capital punishment but that goal is still a long way off.

A recent report by U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said most U.N. member states, 102 out of 135 members in the latest survey, still had the death penalty.

According to the report, some U.N. members "do not favor early abolition of capital punishment. Some are moving towards it. Others regard the use of capital punishment as their sovereign right, though it may have little practical significance for them; and there are some who feel that capital punishment is an unfortunate, but, at this time, unavoidable necessity."

Three nations were divided on the issue, including the United States, where 13 out of 50 states have done away with the death penalty; Australia with two states states out of six abolishing it, and Mexico with 29 states and territories out of 32 having outlawed it.

In an unanimously adopted resolution, the Economic and Social Council's 54-nation social committee confirmed the long range U.N. principle of promoting progressive restriction on the number of offenses for which the death penalty might be imposed, "with a view to the desirability of abolishing this punishment."

Waldheim reported on changes in death penalty statutes since 1969, pinpointing these countries:

"Argentina abolished capital punishment for all ordinary criminal offenses in 1973. It retains the death penalty for military offenses."

Canada temporarily suspended capital punishment for ordinary offenses, with a few exceptions, for a five-year period from 1967 to 1972. It then abolished it for a four year period ending on Dec. 31, 1977.

Sweden abolished capital punishment completely.

Britain abolished the death penalty for an experimental period in 1965, and made the action permanent in 1969. In Northern Ireland, capital punishment for offenses under the special powers act and the criminal justice act was abolished in 1973.

Japan: two new capital offenses have been legislated since 1961—unlawful seizure of aircraft causing death in flight or fatal crashes. Japan registered 71 executions in the 1969-1973 period for crimes that included homicide.

"The Philippines reported a shift in 1972 from a strong movement to abolish the death penalty to increasing capital punishment. It legislated two new offenses which carry a discretionary death penalty, namely cattle rustling resulting in serious human injury or death and fishing with explosives resulting in loss of human life."

Suspend Club's Beer Permit

The North Carolina ABC Board has suspended a beer permit issued to Roscoe Clayton Norfleet for the Cavalier Club at 1311 West Fifth St. for 120 days.

The State ABC order followed a meeting of the Board April 21 in Raleigh.

The 120-day suspension, effective May 5, was ordered "on charges of (Permitting alcoholic beverages to be possessed and consumed on the licensed premises on or about January 10... at 9:45 p.m.... failing to give the licensed premises proper supervision and allowing the premises to be used for unlawful purposes... by allowing the above violation to occur..."

Collectors Await '76 License Tags

By LLOYD G. CARTER JR., FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Some people collect art, some collect beer cans. John Noordberg collects license plates.

Noordberg has covered his garage walls and even the rafters with some of the more than 900 license plates he has collected in the last 10 years. Noordberg, a Dutch immigrant, is a member of the American License Plate Collectors Association with an estimated 1,500 members in the United States, plus members in Europe and Japan.

He likes nothing better than to gather with other collectors and discuss the trivia and history of the American license plate. The first license plates were homemade, of wood, cardboard and other materials, attached by some horseless carriage drivers. But in 1901 California and New York required all motorists to place some sort of identification on their autos and in 1903 Massachusetts issued the first state license plates.

JIM NOORDBERG displays some of the more than 900 auto license plates he has collected in the past ten years. (UPI Photo)

While he used to travel around the country digging in junk yards and barn yards for old plates, Noordberg now acquires most of his plates through swap meets with other collectors and through mail want ads. He is trying to complete his collections for the years 1929 (the year he was born), the war years of 1940 and 1945, 1951 (the year he immigrated) and 1961 (the year his first child was born).

about his boyhood was experiences, and he also specializes in license plates issued for the private cars of U.S. military families in occupied Germany after the war. "Like any other unusual hobby people say, 'Hey, this is crazy,'" Noordberg said, "yet a great number of people have come to my house, see the plates on the walls and say, 'Hey, this is fantastic.' Because of the different colors. Its very colorful and of course the slogans on some of the plates. People really flip over that."

Medical Task Force Is Undertaking Pain Study

By JAMES O. CLIFFORD SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An unusual task force of medical men, experts in everything from planting electrodes in the brain to the study of ethnic backgrounds, has been formed to battle one of the most elusive aspects of illness: pain.

"One thing we never do is assume someone who comes here is crazy," Dr. Mark Zborowski said in explaining that even when pain is not organic in nature it is still real to the person suffering. Zborowski is a member of the Mt. Zion Hospital Pain Center which uses the team approach to the study, diagnosis and treatment of patients with chronic pain. The white-haired Zborowski is that rare breed known as the medical anthropologist.

The patients, under the overall care of an internist, meet for several days with a panel of doctors from the assorted fields. These meetings and the conferences that follow are one of the most important techniques at the center, according to Dr. Burton Wise, chief of the hospital's department of neurosciences. "Some of these patients have been to 20 or more doctors," he said. "But all the visits were separate. Here it's team work." Feinstein said the center, one of about six in the nation, does not allow one field to dominate and in this way differs from the other centers. "Being a neurosurgeon, my previous orientation was mechanistic," he said. "But in some of my work concerning research into pain mechanisms, I found that surgery did not always cure the pain."

The doctors said that eventually it is established that around 80 per cent of the patients have problems that are emotional or social. Wise said that before these reasons are established all other possible causes must be ruled out. He recalled that the great composer George Gershwin, who died in his 30s, was seeing a psychiatrist for headaches at the time of his death. Gershwin died of a brain tumor.

Compile World Weather Map
COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Geoscientists at Texas A&M University are helping fit together the complicated pieces of a huge world weather map. Dr. A.H. Thompson, A&M meteorology professor, said the project may someday enable scientists to understand and predict the weather accurately from global data. "We need to see the whole world and discover what causes weather and how systems interrelate," Thompson said.

Big Hartsfield Airport: Controlled Pandemonium

By JACK STILLMAN
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — There's an old saying: If you're going to Hell, you must pass through Hartsfield International Airport.

No matter what your destination, if you pass through Hartsfield you take notice. If you're in a car, you may see a dozen or more giant jets waiting to land. There probably are 40 or more in line up there some place.

And if you're up there looking down, you can count more than 100 jets at boarding ramps or on the parking aprons.

When you disembark and walk through the concourses—there is almost a mile of them—you are amazed by the thousands of passengers, more than 62,000 a day.

If you drive to the airport, your car is one of some 8,000 in the airport's parking lots.

That's some of the problems at Hartsfield—too many airplanes, too many people, too many cars. But there are other problems, too.

Hartsfield can be compared with a city. It has about 18,000 employees within the confines of its 3,700 acres in a triangle between three freeways eight and one-half miles south of Atlanta. Based on the number of passengers, it is the nation's second largest airport—next to Chicago's O'Hare. Los Angeles International is third, LaGuardia at New York is fourth and San Francisco's International is fifth.

On the surface, Hartsfield is a busy place. Underneath the surface, it is pandemonium, albeit controlled.

Grady Ridgeway, Atlanta's aviation commissioner, is the keeper of the pandemonium.

"Emphatically, we need a second airport," Ridgeway said in an interview. "Actually, statics show that the city eventually will need four. I can't understand why people get so mixed up about a second airport.

"Eventually, when you buy a ticket to Atlanta, the airport you use will be determined by the type of aircraft you're on, the airline you're flying and your destination. The city needs four airports and there is no doubt in my mind that we will have them in the end."

Right now, however, his concern is Hartsfield, which he believes will always be the city's No. 1 airport. The proposal for a second airport has produced a heated controversy among airlines and city officials, and a site has not been established.

The city has plans to rebuild Hartsfield in the near future to add three multistory passenger terminals and "people movers" to carry passengers to boarding gates.

The Federal Aviation Administration's new control tower is under construction, and is expected to be the most modern in the world when it is placed in operation in June 1976.

The phenomenal growth of Hartsfield can be illustrated by the number of aircraft movements a year. In 1964, there were 272,875 landings and take-offs carrying 7,707,920 passengers. Last year, there were 483,841 air craft movements and 25,605,742 passengers.

About 67 per cent of the passengers are passing through Atlanta. And that, says Ridgeway, brings up the competition between Delta Air Lines and Eastern. "Statistical information can always be twisted and taken out of context," he said. "But Delta and Eastern have cross connections and that's the main reason we're so big. Besides this, both airlines depend on each other for connections.

"They found out they couldn't survive otherwise. This is Eastern's biggest market and it's Delta's headquarters."

Eastern has 4,500 employees based in Atlanta, including 1,000 stewardesses.

Delta's jet base alone employs 4,000 persons.

The jet base is the pride and joy of Don Hettermann, Delta's vice president of operations. One hangar has 36 acres under its roof and Hettermann says there are more than 139,000 airplane parts in the inventory. Hartsfield probably is the only major airport sliced by a river. The Flint flows through its south side.

The airport has its own post office, which handles more than 7,700 tons of mail a day.

The FAA control tower not only watches over traffic at Hartsfield, but controls approaches and departures at 15 other airports in metropolitan Atlanta, including Dobbins Air Force Base at Marietta, Ga.

Last March, the tower handled an average of 1,282 flights a day at Hartsfield.

Ridgeway, 52, has been boss of the airport for 14 years and he says it's still fun to go to work.

"Travelers, I'll swear, have got to be some of the funniest mortals walking," he said. One of his favorite stories is about a woman who tried to board a plane with a four-foot alligator in a sack.

"We told her it was illegal to own an alligator, so she got on the plane and left the sack of the floor in the terminal. We gave it to the Atlanta zoo," he said.

Ridgeway says Atlanta's importance as an aviation center will continue to grow, not only because it is the hub of the Southeast, but because the city itself will continue to grow.

"The Northeast—New York, Boston, Philadelphia, they just can't grow any more," he said. "The people are coming to the Southeast. The pattern of air traffic already is beginning to illustrate this."

Deaf To See TV Dialogue

NEW YORK (UPI) — Deaf people soon will be able to enjoy television dialogue.

That's the word from the producers of "Feeling Good," the nationally televised half-hour health program hosted by Dick Cavett. The producers have achieved a breakthrough after three years of research to make TV useful for the 13.4 million deaf and hard-of-hearing people in the United States.

Through the use of a special converter, subtitles corresponding to what is said on the show are being added by the Public Broadcasting Service in telecasting the program. These electronic codes are not detectable in readable form until channeled through a special decoding instrument on the home set.

Eventually, PBS predicts, hearing-impaired people will have access to low-cost decoders for their homes and thus will be the only viewers to see closed-caption programs with subtitles. But for the time being, some PBS stations equipped with existing units will air the series with subtitles visible to all viewers.

Couple Exchanges Vows On Saturday Afternoon

Miss Brenda Anne Edwards of Virginia Beach, Va., became the bride of Richard Fraser Moran, also of Virginia Beach, Saturday, at 4:00 p.m. at the First Free Will Baptist Church, Greenville.

The Rev. Buddy Sasser officiated in the double ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grover S. Edwards of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Moran of Longmeadow, Mass.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length white gown of a la mode designed with a high neckline and sheer ruffled yoke of cluny lace and beaded with pearls and Venice lace flowers. The long fitted sleeves featured ruffled cuffs. A band of lace over white satin, centered with pearls, encircled with empire waistline. Appliques of Venice lace trimmed the gown front. A flounce of ruffled cluny lace edged the hemline and attached cathedral train.

She wore a fingertip illusion veil edged in scalloped rosepoint chantilly lace held in place by a Camelot headpiece trimmed in lace and beaded with pearls. She carried a full formal cascade bouquet of gardenias and English ivy.

Mrs. J.F. Wirth of Greenville was the matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. William T. Rogers of Panama City, Fla., Miss Doris A. Harrington and Miss Betty J. Mankowich, both of Virginia Beach. Miss Valerie James of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. Adam Moran, nephew of the bridegroom, of Longmeadow, Mass., was ring bearer.

The attendants wore formal gowns of green and white floral print voile over white taffeta. The sleeveless gowns were styled with shoestrings straps and a full flared skirt. They were enhanced by matching bolero jackets bordered in linen with long sleeves.

The flower girl wore a formal gown of white flocked organza over green linen designed with a high neckline and short puffed sleeves. A full skirt extended from the empire bodice and the hemline was edged in white lace.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids carried candlelight bouquets of mixed flowers tied with apple green satin bows and greenery.

Jeff Moran of Longmeadow, Mass., was his brother's best man. Ushers were Neil C. Day and Russell D. Phelon, both of Longmeadow, Robert E. Moran, brother of the bridegroom, of Greenwich, Conn., and L. Cmdr. Ronald E. Yeaw of Virginia Beach.

Mrs. Ruth Taylor was the organist and Mrs. Wayne West was the soloist and sang "One Hand, One Heart" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Following a wedding trip to Puerto Rico, the couple will reside in Virginia Beach. The bride is a teacher in Virginia Beach public schools and the bridegroom owns and operates Mariners III Nautical Gift Shop, Virginia Beach.

The bride graduated from J. H. Rose High School and East Carolina University. The bridegroom graduated from Laurel Crest Academy and Nichols College, Dudley, Mass. He served six and a half years as a navy lieutenant attached to Seal Team Two.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the Moose Lodge, given by the parents.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the Candlewick Inn given by the bridegroom's parents for the wedding party and out-of-town guests. An after-rehearsal party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Clay Burnette and Dr. and Mrs. James F. Wirth of Greenville.

A wedding breakfast was held at the Ramada Inn given by Mr. and Mrs. Melbern C. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Ervin, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie E. James, Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Mills and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Taylor.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Marie Cox.

Engagement Announced

MISS ELEANOR LOUISE LOVITT is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Earl Lovitt of Rt. 1, Farmville, who announce her engagement to James Marion Exum Jr., son of Mrs. Estelle Exum of Rt. 1, Fountain, and the late Mr. James Marion Exum. The wedding will take place June 29.

Diamond Is Still Bride's Favorite

NEW YORK (AP) — Bridal fashions change a lot through the years but engagement stones don't change very much.

The diamond remains the choice of 76 per cent of all first-time brides in the United States.

In 1965, when simplicity set the theme in bridal gowns, a solitaire, brilliant-cut diamond, the most popular shape for engagement rings, was the overwhelming choice by most brides.

In 1970, bridal fashions shown were reminiscent of the 19th century, many choosing empire-style gowns with wide bishop's sleeves in the spring and white lace with matching, floorlength mantilla in the fall. The engagement ring chosen by the majority of brides that year was the solitaire diamond with tapered baguette diamonds at the sides.

Recently the Diamond Information Center here interviewed several engagement ring manufacturers to find out what directions diamond rings are taking in 1975. It is evident that the solitaire, with stylistic variations, is still the favored engagement ring.

Young persons are looking for more twists and more curves rather than the bold look, according to one eastern manufacturer. A western manufacturer said that his customers favor the tailored, symmetrical look.

Matched sets are popular. In many sets, the diamond engagement ring interlocks with the wedding band, giving the appearance of a single, wide ring. Some sets look like a cocktail or fashion ring.

In a nationwide survey of 6,000 girls, aged 17 to 25, conducted mainly in shopping centers, midwestern girls were big on black antiquing as an accent on rings. Girls in the south, southwest and west were looking away from the traditional solitaire. The east showed the least change in style preference, still leaning heavily toward the traditional solitaire.

The brilliant or round cut have been the most popular in solitaire diamond engagement rings in the 20th century in this country. Other cuts are the oval, marquise, pear, heart-shape and emerald cut. The newest cut is the star cut, which can be either a five-point or six-point star.

And these days, young men are looking at diamonds rings, too — to wear themselves.

Italy's Ministry of Justice is consulting women's associations on legislative reform to benefit their sex. The Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare is looking into women's work problems and the Ministry of Health into their health problems.

Syria has promised to review existing laws and afford women practical equality with men by giving them equal opportunities to reach decision-making levels.

Tropical Storm Abe Australia decided to use men's names as well as women's in naming tropical storms.

Female members of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union on March 9 adopted a women's rights charter demanding that the constitution be rid of discriminatory provisions and women have an equal chance with men for jobs and promotions despite pregnancy, maternity or married status.

Two days earlier, women U.N. employees handed Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim a petition asking that he campaign to recruit and promote more women in the U.N. secretariat and meanwhile appoint an ombudswoman to deal with staff members' complaints. The petition was signed by more than 2,750 men and women employees.

There is no ombudswoman yet. But Waldheim long has been trying to put more women into the secretariat, where men now outnumber them four to one in executive and professional posts. He complains that governments do not put up enough women candidates.

Like many other events, the Irishwomen's manifesto and the U.N. women's petition were timed for the neighborhood of March 8 — International Women's Day, which grew out of 19th-century walkouts of American sweatshop seamstresses and was adopted as a world holiday at a 1911 conference of Socialist women in Copenhagen. Klara Zetkin of Germany, who put the proposal before the 1911 conference, later turned Communist. Her latter-day sisters carried the operation a step further by proposing International Women's Year.

The Women's International Democratic Federation, with headquarters in East Berlin, made that proposal to the U.N. Commission on the Status of Women in 1972.

The idea caught on with governments. France, Finland, Hungary, Romania, Egypt, Tunisia and the Philippines came up with a resolution that was approved by the commission, the Economic and Social Council and finally the 1972 General Assembly, proclaiming 1975 International Women's Year.

Intensified Action

The year was dedicated to "intensified action" to promote equality between men and women, to insure women's full integration in economic, social and cultural development, and to recognize the importance of women's contribution to international cooperation and peace.

International Women's Year Isn't All Empty Formality

By WILLIAM N. OATIS Associated Press Writer UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — This International Women's Year, proclaimed by the United Nations for celebration around the world, is not all empty formality. It is also solid progress.

Inspired by the occasion, governments are granting gains to women — and women are pressing for more.

Well before the year began, Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam announced that Australia would ratify a 22-year-old U.N. convention admitting women to public office on equal terms with men. In December, it did.

Prime Minister Michael Manley of Jamaica, declaring IWY open, committed his government to lay down the legal framework for rapid movement toward sexual equality. But he warned women liberationists to avoid "overtones of bitterness or recrimination."

Early in IWY, Uganda sent the first woman ambassador to the Vatican — a 27-year-old Catholic named Bernadette Olowo. She noted the coincidence as she handed Pope Paul VI her credentials.

On Feb. 27, as women cheered in the gallery, Guyana's parliament authorized the government to ratify two International Labor Organization conventions putting women on an equal plane with men in the world of work.

Early in March, Queen Elizabeth II's government introduced a bill in the British Parliament to outlaw discrimination against women in recruitment, hiring, dismissal or promotion of employees or selection of business partners.

By apparent coincidence, an act requiring equal pay for women adopted by Parliament in 1970 will take effect three days before the year ends. A Norwegian act giving daughters born since 1964 the same rights as sons went into effect Jan. 1.

Meanwhile, Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., has introduced a bill in Congress to keep up the IWY momentum in future years through a commission, conference or other device, and Rep. Patsy T. Mink, D-Hawaii, has put in another calling for a White House conference on women in Bicentennial year 1976.

After Dinner, He Falls Asleep

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Nearly every time I invite my boyfriend over for dinner, he plops himself down in an easy chair right after he finishes eating and falls fast asleep.

He works 10 hours a day and is 43-years-old. (I'm 42 and put in a good day's work, too, but I'm not all pooped out right after dinner.)

I've been tolerant of this habit of his for two years, but I have had it. Don't you think he is being selfish and unfair? We discussed it, and he says I should wake him up and keep him awake. I say if he's that tired or sleepy, he should excuse himself and go home.

He says he loves me, but do you think a man can really love a woman and fall asleep in her face nearly every night? FULL OF DOUBTS

DEAR FULL: It's possible. Don't awaken him, and don't chastise him. Insist that he have a complete physical checkup.

If he's all right, rejoice! It's proof that he is completely relaxed and at ease in your company. And if you can't see it that way, maybe you'd better look around for more alert, wide-awake companionship.

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office. Our boss is a Mormon and will not allow any of us to smoke, drink coffee or tea, or swear.

The smoking and swearing restrictions I don't mind, but I do resent not being able to have coffee in the office during breaks from the hectic pace of our business.

The nearest cafe is 15 minutes away, so going there for a cup of coffee is out of the question.

Does the Mormon church condone this kind of pressure on non-members to conform to its beliefs? I don't question my boss's reasons for abstaining himself, but his demand that I do so too doesn't seem fair to me.

Meanwhile, this boss thinks he is being morally righteous by preventing us from drinking coffee in the office, but he is carrying on a not-so-secret affair with his secretary. Both of them are married. Does that mean, according to his religion, that I can't drink coffee, but I can still have extra-marital sex?

DON'T USE MY NAME

DEAR DON'T: Your boss is speaking only for himself and not the Mormon church, which stresses that each individual has a right to his own beliefs. Your boss's behavior shows him to be not only a poor boss but also a poor Mormon. NO church condones adultery!

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor, who thinks she knows everything, saw Joshua, my 3-year-old son, playing with his big sister's doll. He was cuddling it, rocking it and treating it in a very tender way.

This neighbor told me that I should not permit Joshua to play with dolls because it might make a homosexual out of him.

Joshua also plays with cars and trains, but occasionally he plays with his sister's dolls, and I don't see anything wrong with it.

Once, when Joshua put on my high heels and pretended to "go shopping" with one of my old purses over his arm, this neighbor told me that if I didn't discourage this kind of play, Joshua might grow up to be a transvestite.

Is she right? JACKSON STREET

DEAR JACKSON: No. There's no reason why little boys shouldn't cuddle dolls. One day he may become a father, and babies need cuddling from fathers, too.

And as for Joshua dressing up in your clothes, don't worry about it—unless he persists in this habit, goes in for makeup and does it on the sly.

CONFIDENTIAL TO M.B.: It's not enough too forgive and forget. You also have to forget what you forgave.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Editor Says 'Savings For Weddings Buy Less These Days'

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Living Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — The day of the dowry is long past, but many families still save for their daughters' weddings.

"I think a family that has saved $5,000 is spending whatever was planned, but they are not getting as much for it," says Cele G. Lalli, executive editor of a bridal magazine.

Two years ago, the magazine, "Modern Bride," printed budgets for four weddings: informal, $500, semi-formal, $1,600 and formal, $3,000 and $5,000.

"You can have a wedding within any of these budgets even today," said Mrs. Lalli. "Have a champagne breakfast instead of a sit-down lunch. The cost depends on personal taste and wants."

"The parents really want a party. In every wedding, every family must compromise on something." The wedding gown is the first expense. The type a bride chooses determines the kind of ceremony, the time of day it will be held and sometimes, the size of the wedding party. Mrs. Lalli said gowns for a formal wedding cost $100 to $2,000. But the biggest variable, economically speaking, is the reception. The amount of flowers, the size of the guest list, the number of limousines hired, the bride's gifts to her attendants, all these add up.

Engagement Announced

"I have a feeling that fewer families are having big post-rehearsal dinners," she said. One banquet manager at a Manhattan hotel estimated that a sit-down dinner for 100 persons with a maximum of four drinks per person would cost $2,400. This is with a menu of appetizer, entree, salad, dessert and wedding cake.

Music for a three to four hour reception by a five or six-man band costs anything from a few hundred dollars for local players to thousands for a nationally known group.

Jack Harris, vice president of Meyer Davis Music, Inc., estimated that a five piece band which cost just under $3,000 for a June wedding in South Bend, Ind., in 1971 would run closer to $3,300 to $3,400 now. He added that the figures include transportation, hotel and meals for a band sent from New York. The same size group playing in the New York City area would cost about $800 to $1,000, he added.

Flowers? They average $250 to $350 for a reception, and $175 to $225, for the wedding ceremony, said Frances Jones Poetker, a Cincinnati florist and a commentator for Florists' transworld Delivery Association. Mrs. Poetker added that some families have spent as much as $20,000 for the reception and $1,000 for the ceremony, while others spend a total of only $200, $75 of it for a buffet centerpiece, greenery and candles for the reception.

She said brides are budgeting less for flowers now, apparently to compensate for rising prices for everything else. These are the major expenses. In addition, there are gifts from the bride to her attendants, her trousseau and new luggage.

If she's lucky, most of her china, silver and crystal will be gifts.

Installation Luncheon Planned

Mrs. Joanne Goodman, president of Welcome Wagon, will preside at the installation of officers at the luncheon meeting to be held May 14.

Beginning at 11:30 a.m. the luncheon will be held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

For luncheon reservations, contact Ann Lichteferd, 752-1041, or Pat Swanda, 756-4038.

SALTY ADVICE

NEW YORK (UPI) — For a champagne reception at home, chill the wine about three hours in the refrigerator or at least 30 minutes packed in ice to which water and salt have been added. Salt speeds the cooling.

Be sure the glasses you use are dry. Dampness kills the bubbles.

Andrews-DeVaun Vows Solemnized On Saturday

RALEIGH—The marriage of Sabra Carolyn DeVaun and John Dawson Andrews Jr. took place Saturday at 2:00 p.m. in the Highland United Methodist Church here.
The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Jack L. Hunter. Mrs. Ernest M. Lewis was organist.
Daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

Luther Linwood DeVaun Jr. of Raleigh, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a street-length dress of white eyelet designed with an empire waist, scoop neckline and long puff sleeves. The dress was made by the mother of the bride.
She wore a white wide brimmed hat trimmed with white velvet ribbon and bow in back and carried a nosegay of daisies and white miniature carnations tied with white ribbon.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of North Carolina State University and was employed by the NCSU Budget Office part time.
The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dawson Andrews Sr. of Farmville. A 1975 graduate of NCSU, he was employed by NCSU Civil Engineering Department part time as a research assistant. He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Miss Deborah Lynn Funk was the maid of honor. She wore a dress of peach crepe with white flocked flowers and carried a bouquet of white miniature carnations and peach carnations tied with peach ribbon.
The best man was the father of the bridegroom and ushers were Luther L. DeVaun of Raleigh, brother of the bride, and S. Justus Everett of Salisbury.
The church was decorated with two candelabra and an arrangement of mixed flowers.
The mother of the bride wore an aqua dress with polka dots, white accessories and a white carnation. The mother of the bridegroom selected a navy and white knit dress and jacket ensemble, navy accessories and a white carnation.
For traveling, the bride changed into a green linen dress and navy accessories.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. J. L. Maness of Raleigh.
The couple will reside in Charleston, S.C., where the bridegroom is employed as plant engineer for West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co.
A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Kanipe.
A rehearsal dinner was held at Ballentine's, Raleigh, given by the parents and sisters of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Andrews Sr., Miss Margaret Andrews, and Mrs. Reggie Roberts.

Homecoming activities were held last weekend at Mary Baldwin College, Staunton, Va., and included a talk by President William W. Kelly.
Mrs. Tom Mallison of Greenville, a member of the board of directors of the Alumnae Association, attended a meeting of the board held during the weekend.
It was announced that 70 women's colleges across the nation comprising the Women's College Coalition have initiated a national project to focus attention on their role in meeting the educational needs of today's women.
The coalition, which has members in 22 states and the District of Columbia, represents 50 per cent of the women's colleges in the country.
Among the issues to be highlighted by the coalition are the broadening of curriculum for women students, the growing concern of women's colleges for the educational and social needs of older women and the developing relationship between women's colleges and the business community.

Creole Cooks Rated Among World's Best

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Perhaps the most original contribution America has made to the world of fine food is Creole cookery, that fascinating blend of the cuisines of France, Spain and England with a touch of black Africa thrown in.

Perfected by generations of Creole cooks — those descendants of Louisiana's French and Spanish inhabitants — this cuisine specializes in game, fowl, salt and fresh-water fish, oysters and crayfish.

Most closely associated with Creole cookery are the tangy bouillabaisse, gumbo and jambalaya. There are other specialties, too, that have enchanted visitors to Louisiana and the Gulf states. One that fascinated me on a visit to the lovely city of New Orleans was Cafe Brulot, a strong black coffee flavored with cloves, cinnamon and lemon peel and set aflame with curacao and cognac. I was served this in a venerable New Orleans hotel after a prodigious breakfast that included oyster soup and roast quail in red wine sauce and was topped off with a bowl of cream cheese and sour cream over which crushed strawberries flamed in kirsch had been poured.

Creole cookery combines the Spanish leaning toward highly spiced foods and the French talent for subtle seasoning. A good Creole cook can take a cheap cut of beef, soak it in wine, sprinkle it with herbs and spices and produce a gourmet delight. That same cook can take some leftover meat and rice and bring forth a superb jambalaya.
Creole cooks go in heavily for cayenne, tabasco, worcestershire, onions, garlic, green pepper and a dazzling variety of spices, such as "file," made from powdered sassafras leaves.
One of the most popular ingredients is okra, which is translated into Congolese and comes out Gumbo. Gumbo can be made from a wide variety of meats and shellfish, such as chicken, ham, veal, rabbit, squirrel, wild duck, crab, oysters and shrimp. Half soup and half stew, gumbo is famous all through the deep South, but it has reached the highest level of perfection in New Orleans. Here is a recipe for Chicken and okra gumbo with oysters.
1 three-pound frying chicken
2 tablespoons butter
1 pound diced smoked ham
1 medium onion chopped
6 large tomatoes peeled and chopped
2 pints okra, sliced and one half inch thick
Salt to taste
½ teaspoon tabasco
½ teaspoon Worcestershire
Juice of half a lemon
Few sprigs parsley chopped
1 bay leaf
6 cups water
12 shelled oysters
Cut chicken into 12 pieces. Heat butter in kettle and add chicken and ham. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Add onion, tomatoes and okra. Cook over high heat, stirring for five minutes. Season with salt, tabasco, worcestershire and lemon. Add parsley, bay leaf and water. Bring to boil, cover and simmer two hours. Add oysters and cook a few minutes longer. Add additional salt if desired. Serves six. Good with a chilled rose wine.

On Tuesday, members of the Lakewood Pines Garden Club visited the iris gardens of Mrs. J. B. Winstead, Nashville.
A luncheon was held at the Carleton House, Nashville, followed by a business meeting, presided over by club president Mrs. J. C. Bateman.
Mrs. A. E. Dubber, chairman of the recently annual spring garden fair, announced that this year's fair was a success.
Mrs. C. G. Garrenton of Bethel is a new member.
The project committee reported the donation of a living Christmas tree, a magnolia, to the City of Greenville. The tree has been placed in the Town Commons.
Mrs. Bateman, outgoing president, was given a standing vote of thanks for her leadership during the past year. Mrs. Harry Billica, incoming president for the 1975-76 accepted the club's gavel.

Gift Givers Are Price Conscious
NEW YORK (UPI) — Wedding guests are giving smaller, less expensive presents today, says the Sterling Silversmiths Guild of America.
The guild said dollar sales for sterling have increased, but fewer pieces are being sold. Many gift-givers choose either a serving piece or a one or two pieces from a place setting, such as a teaspoon and salad fork.
"The average gift-giver decides on a price and looks for something in that price range," said one industry spokesman.
Jack McDermott, editor of the trade publication, "Gift and Tableware Reporter," noted that a five-piece place setting of fine china which sold for $34-$39 in 1973 costs $38-$45 now.
Because of such price increases, some brides now choose a three-piece buffet setting of knife, fork and teaspoon instead of the traditional five-piece place setting, said Carolyn Bartel, tableware and appliance editor for "Modern Bride."
Miss Bartel said many brides also choose all purpose wines for their crystal, to use for wine, water and on-the-rocks drinks.
But they still opt for cooking utensils in sets, partly because manufacturers give a better price on sets than on individual pieces. Colored pots and pans that nest or stack are important trends, she added.
"Pots today are display items with double use. Oven-to-table designs are very popular, as they are in casual china — ironstone and stoneware."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

When it first appeared, Erma Bombeck's special Mother's Day column became an instant tradition. This year we again bow to popular demand by bringing Erma's unique tribute to mothers for publication on Mother's Day.

When the Good Lord was creating Mothers He was into His sixth day of "overtime" when the angel appeared and said, "You're doing a lot of fiddling around on this one."
And the Lord said, "Have you read the spec on this order?"
"She has to be completely washable, but not plastic."
"Have 180 movable parts . . . all replaceable."
"Run on black coffee and leftovers."
"Have a lap that disappears when she stands up."
"A kiss that can cure anything from a broken leg to a disappointed love affair."
"And six pairs of hands."
The angel shook her head slowly and said, "Six pairs of hands . . . no way."
"It's not the hands that are causing me problems," said the Lord. "It's the three pairs of eyes that Mothers have to have."

"That's on the standard model?" asked the angel.
The Lord nodded. "One pair that sees through closed doors when she asks, 'What are you kids doing in there?' when she already knows. Another here in the back of her head that sees what she shouldn't but what she has to know, and of course the ones here in front so that she can look at a child when he goofs and say, 'I understand and I love you' without so much as uttering a word."
"Lord," said the angel touching His sleeve gently, "come to bed. Tomorrow . . ."
"I can't," said the Lord, "I'm so close to creating something so close to myself. Already I have one who heals herself when she is sick . . . can feed a family of six on one pound of hamburger . . . and can get a 9-year-old to stand under a shower."

The angel circled the model of a Mother very slowly. "It's too soft," she sighed.
"But tough!" said the Lord excitedly. "You cannot imagine what this mother can do or endure."
"Can it think?"
"Not only think, but it can reason and compromise," said the Creator.
Finally, the angel bent over and ran her finger across the cheek. "There's a leak," she pronounced. "I told You You were trying to put too much into this model."
"It's not a leak," said the Lord. "It's a tear."
"What's it for?"
"It's for joy, sadness, disappointment, pain, loneliness and pride."
"You are a genius," said the angel.
The Lord looked somber. "I didn't put it there."

It was announced that 70 women's colleges across the nation comprising the Women's College Coalition have initiated a national project to focus attention on their role in meeting the educational needs of today's women.
The coalition, which has members in 22 states and the District of Columbia, represents 50 per cent of the women's colleges in the country.
Among the issues to be highlighted by the coalition are the broadening of curriculum for women students, the growing concern of women's colleges for the educational and social needs of older women and the developing relationship between women's colleges and the business community.

Homecoming activities were held last weekend at Mary Baldwin College, Staunton, Va., and included a talk by President William W. Kelly.
Mrs. Tom Mallison of Greenville, a member of the board of directors of the Alumnae Association, attended a meeting of the board held during the weekend.

More At Ease Among Crowds

NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans are more at ease in a crowd of people — especially 16 or more — say Purdue University Professor Richard Heslin and graduate student Joan Marshall.

When college students were jammed into crowded rooms, both men and women preferred the crowding when the sexes were mixed. But women were more congenial in small, all-female groups than in large, all-female groups. The men preferred any size group — as long as it included some women.

'Sponge Squad' Moves Into Domestic Crime

By DOUG BAILEY
Associated Press Writer
ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Police here have a "Sponge Squad," but it's not a bunch of softies. The group of seven special officers is assigned to domestic crime, the most dangerous police work, and they handle it with kindness, psychological understanding and modern community treatment.

Chief Sam Gemelli says the "Sponge" nickname evolved from jokes made by veteran officers about the Family Crisis Intervention Unit, the squad's true title. But he's turned the slur into a compliment.

"A sponge is a good thing. You step on it and it bounces right back," says Gemelli, a 20-year police veteran who proudly wears a tie clasp proclaiming himself the "head hog."

Police statistics show the most dangerous assignment is a family fight, and that more officers are killed in domestic incidents than in any other situation.

"The tough-guy attitude hasn't worked," says Gemelli, a tall career cop who was promoted to chief three years ago and immediately launched innovations. "I figured there had to be a better way than beating people up."

One of his first moves was to halt arrests for public drunkenness unless there were special circumstances. Drunk arrests in this northwestern Pennsylvania city of 129,000, third largest in Pennsylvania, have dropped from 1,570 in 1971 to 261 in 1974.

He studied the calls for police assistance and found that around 35 per cent were for "domestics" — husbands beating up wives, or vice versa; fathers threatening children, dangerous drunks, landlords evicting violent tenants. And another 35 per cent centered on neighborhood problems like illegal burning of trash, street hazards, loitering youths.

Too many times these calls were answered by men with guns drawn, Gemelli says, which is how the "Sponge Squad" evolved.

He wants his men to understand people's problems, and to try to settle them without jail by using such community services as family counseling, child care and mental health programs.

"You train a policeman to fire a gun, to use tear gas, so why not train him in human relations?" Gemelli asks.

At least one of the "Sponge Squad" officers is on duty every shift. Members, who are unarmed, are the first called in domestic cases.

"For the first time in our experience a real effort is being made to sort out the kind of people who should be in jail and the kind who should be in a hospital," says Howard Henderson, a local mental health organization official.

"After all they know you're too busy for uninvited guests!"

'Retrofit' Fits Times

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) — Many words have just happened and have become part of our vernacular. "Snafu" probably is the best known. Now, "retrofit" is gaining in popular usage.

Today, retrofit means insulating one's home to make it more energy-efficient, to conform with new government standards. During World War II it meant constantly refitting military aircraft tanks and naval vessels which became obsolete even before they were completed. Each plane or ship was provided with the latest gear — often on a weekly basis as technology advanced.

The resurrection of retrofit occurred during the energy crisis hearing in Washington in 1973 in testimony by energy experts of Certain-teed Products here. They pointed out that millions of American homes required attic retrofitting with six inches of fiber-glass insulation (or its R-19 equivalent). Conforming to these retrofit standards the nation could save up to 30 per cent on annual heating and cooling bills.

IT FIGURES

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI)—The Tongue of the Ocean, a mile-deep channel west of Nassau and Paradise Island, received its name because of its resemblance to that part of the human anatomy when viewed from the air.

"INCREDIBLE INFLATABLES"—Art students at Clarke College, Dubuque, Iowa, as a class project designed and built these "incredible inflatables." The project required yards of plastic material, tape and patience. When the weather cooperated with a windless day the 24-foot high cylinders and 12-foot cubes took shape on the campus. Air is blown into the structures to give them shape. (AP Wirephoto)

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Thank you for your interest in Greenville's First Annual Parade of Homes.

As President of the Greenville Home Builders Association I am proud to extend to you and your families a cordial invitation from all the Greenville Home Builders to visit and inspect these outstanding homes that will be open for your inspection on May 11 and May 18th.

Home Building is the second largest industry in the United States (only the food industry is larger) and probably one of the major industries still providing for one of man's basic needs--shelter. These homes are built by skilled craftsman, producing a quality home for individual taste and needs, a home that history has shown increases in value over the years rather than decreases with age as most of our other mass produced products.

Inflation seems to be a permanent part of our national economy. You have probably heard or asked yourself, "why didn't I buy that house last year?" Will you be asking yourself the same question next year?

I hope that you will visit all the homes in the Parade. The homes can easily be identified by the signs with the National Association of Home Builders Seal which means that the builder is a member, who has subscribed to the code of ethics of this association.

Decor tips

Create original wall hangings to fill that empty space, decorate for a pittance yet get very interesting results your family and friends will admire. Look for pre-stitched, inexpensive canvases at a building supply or art store, which also stocks plastic foam. You may have saved some pieces of this plastic from household cartons, and didn't know till now what to do with them! Place the forms on the canvas or other stiff material and get the arrangement most pleasing to you. Paint them with acrylics, let dry, and attach them to the material with white glue.

If you want to "wake up" a wall, choose a mirror of distinction. There are many in your favorite shops, some classic, some mod, some rectangular, some copies of antiques... and of course, some antiques. Use a mirror to elongate or "pull together" an area, to create the illusion of more, or less space. Get tips from the pro's at the shops, and the decorating magazines.

Once you find a home you want, you have to think about how to finance it.

Few of us have enough cash on hand to pay for the home in one lump sum. Therefore, most of us have to borrow money from a lending institution.

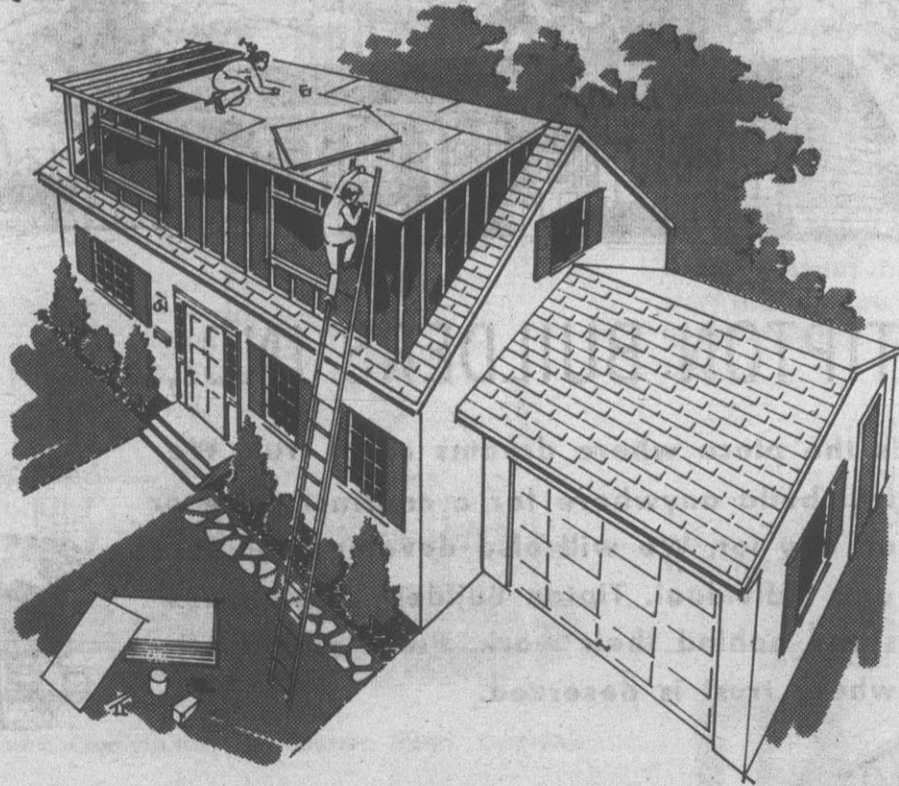

What are the steps involved?

First of all, check with your builder. Often he will already have obtained the best possible mortgage financing arrangements in town. For example, some builders have lined up financing through special federal programs which in effect subsidize interest rates at below the market level.

If your builder doesn't have his own financing, then you can shop around.

There are basically three kinds of mortgage—conventional, FHA insured and VA guaranteed. All three types of loans can be arranged through private lenders. The main sources of mortgage funds are savings and loan associations, mortgage companies (sometimes called mortgage bankers or mortgage brokers), mutual savings banks and commercial banks.

Build Your Future By Greenville HBA Buying Home Now Organized In 1972

Despite today's economic conditions, there are some great bargains in the housing market for potential home buyers. This is because there is a large inventory of unsold new homes carried over from last year when mortgage money was unavailable for the average American consumer.

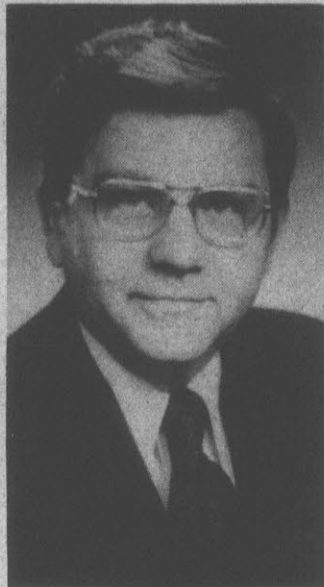

But things are beginning to change. Mortgage money is available. Interest rates have stabilized and the inflationary pressures on housing costs appear to be leveling off.

In addition, many builders are willing to sell their existing homes at bargain prices because they can't afford to carry them any longer.

The would-be buyer would do well to take advantage of today's market.

James T. Lynn, newly appointed director of the Office of Management and former secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) said at a recent economic conference in Atlanta: "The wise person wouldn't wait two, three or four years to buy if he could afford it now. Because even though we get an appreciably better handle on inflation than we've had, it's still

J.S. NORMAN
NAHB President

going to cost more for that house each year hereafter."

Housing can be a strong factor in building your own financial security. A home is the only thing you can buy today that increases in value as time goes on. A home is a hedge against inflation. And remember: no matter what happens to the national economy — and we're confident that we will solve the complicated problems confronting us today — you will always need a place to live.

So you have nothing to lose and everything to gain by buying a new home today. Ask your builder. He can provide financing at probably the lowest rates you've seen in years. Talk to the builder about what is available, what prices, what terms. You may be surprised.

Build yourself a future — buy a new home today.

The Greenville Home Builders Association was organized in 1972 as Greenville-Washington Home Builders Association.

The association received its charter from the National Association of Home Builders in January, 1973.

The current officers of the Greenville Home Builders Association are: David Evans Jr., president; Jesse Childers, vice president; J. Larkin Little, secretary-treasurer; Dan Gregory, co-ordinating officer; Caryn McCue, executive officer.

The 1975 board of directors include David Evans Jr., Lee F. Ball, Jesse Childers, J. Larkin Little, Dan Gregory, Ollie Harrington, Mark Tipton, Don Moon, Larry Whitlow, Connally Branch. State director is Don Moon and legal counsel is Taft and Taft, Attorneys.

The association has its general membership meeting on the first Tuesday of each month, usually at the Holiday Inn. The board of directors meetings are usually held on the last Tuesday in the board room of Home Savings and Loan Association.

In addition to being affiliated with the National Association of Home Builders of the United States, the Greenville Home Builders Association is affiliated with North Carolina Association of Home Builders with offices in Raleigh.

The purposes of the Greenville Home Builders Association as well as the NAHB and the NCHBA is to work toward achieving legislation favorable to housing and to the home buying public, advancement of technology, promoting the home building image, educating its members to become professional home builders, and advancing other housing relating matters such as the current Parade of Homes.

The Mortgage Market At A Glance

Tight money has been a phrase which is perhaps over-used and very much misunderstood as far as the American public is concerned.

Eastern North Carolina, especially Greenville, has been very fortunate in the fact that throughout the past two years of somewhat difficult times, money has always been available to the home buyer. Efforts have been made by your institutions to accommodate specific needs on an individual basis if and when the occasion arose to do so.

Each institution has attempted to tailor an individual interest rate or an individual loan amount to the particular situation at the time it arose.

The present market conditions indicate that your savings and loans do have money available for permanent financing on individual houses. Depending on the percentage loan in question the rates vary from 8% percent to 9 and 9 1/4 percent. This does provide for a program of an insured mortgage which would permit an individual purchaser to obtain up to 95 percent financing based on sales price or appraisal, whichever is less.

There is construction money available in relation to an individual who wishes to have a contractor build his own house. This would be a loan in the amount of approximately 75 percent of appraised value and would permit an individual home buyer to obtain construction financing for a period of six months and then convert to a permanent loan at the time construction is completed.

There is availability of FHA and VA money in Greenville. Almost anyone who is employed is eligible to be considered for an FHA loan and a VA loan would be offered to anyone who has served 181 continuous days active duty in the armed services.

Knowing the facts is perhaps the most important obligation which the public has intoday's market. Asking questions, contacting various lending institutions, and trust in your individual builder are qualities and characteristics which cannot be over-emphasized in today's market.

It is essential that the public consider all phases of financing and also inquire of the lending institution and the builder concerning who is eligible for the tax credit which was recently passed.

It has been emphasized that waiting until next year as far as building or buying is concerned, would only afford the perspective customer an opportunity to seek cost increases. This also applies to a great extent in relation to mortgage money.

It is important that an individual decide on acting immediately in relation to buying or building a house.

Communication with builder and institution is imperative as far as the public is concerned. Tight money as such, however, does not exist in relation to Eastern North Carolina. Money is available and all institutions are willing to discuss any individual's particular needs as they arise.

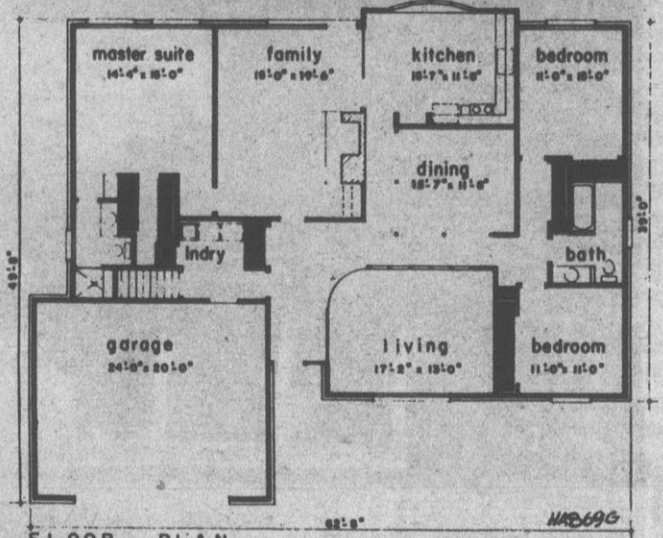

Totable air unit 'pulls' double duty

Have inflation, higher taxes or unexpected expenses put a crimp in your plans to add air conditioning to the house this year? General Electric has a possible solution that's easy on the budget.

Get just one small air conditioner that's easy to move . . . and take your cooling with you from room to room.

General Electric, which pioneered portable air conditioning with the Carry Cool in 1972, now offers portable air conditioners in two capacities — the original 4,000-BTUH size and a new 5,000-BTUH model.

Savings For Owners

If you don't own a home or apartment, you may be losing out on some state and federal income tax deductions that can save you hundreds of dollars each year.

Home and apartment owners are able to deduct real estate taxes and mortgage interest payments from their net income on their state and federal income taxes.

For example, interest payments on a 25-year, $30,000 mortgage, at 9 per cent interest, amount to about $2,500 during the first year after purchase of the home. So right off the bat you have a $2,500 income tax deduction.

In addition, you can deduct as interest "points" you pay to a lender for the express purpose of obtaining a new mortgage. This deduction is available only in the first year of the mortgage.

As you build up equity in your property, the amount of interest you pay on your mortgage is reduced accordingly. Therefore, your greatest tax savings are made during the first five-years of a mortgage.

However, you can continue to deduct your real estate taxes for the rest of your lifetime.

Energy Saving Things To Look For

If there's one thing certain, it is that energy costs will continue to rise in the years ahead.

Therefore, it is imperative that consumers inquire about the energy saving techniques and materials used in the construction of the home they are considering to buy.

To help consumers with this task, the National Association of Home Builders' Research Foundation has compiled a list of energy saving techniques, materials, and appliances that can save homeowners thousands of dollars over the years. Here are the highlights of that list.

Multi-family dwellings — apartments, townhouses, garden apartments and duplexes — use less energy than the traditional single-family detached homes.

The garage or carport should be attached on the north, northeast or northwest walls in cold climates or on the east or west walls in warm climates to reduce heat gain by shading. It is thermally advantageous for the house ridge to be about parallel to the east-west axis.

Check whether proportionately more glass is used on the south wall and if it is shaded with the right amount of overhang to reduce heat gain.

Also note tree locations to see if they shade the home in the summer.

The air conditioner compressor should be shaded, particularly in the afternoon, by the house, trees, garage or carport.

Check equipment to be sure it is no larger than necessary for heating and cooling requirements. Over-sized equipment is less efficient!

In electrically heated homes, a heat pump uses from one-third to two-thirds less energy than electric resistance heating.

Be sure filters for forced warm air furnaces can be reached and changed easily. Clogged filters reduce fuel efficiency substantially for heating and cooling.

A clock thermostat cuts heat to desired level at night and restores it automatically in the morning. If residents are not at home during the day, the clock thermostat can be set accordingly.

Look for hot water heat control and be sure it is set for 120 degrees. If gas is used, look for a water heater with modulating capacities — two burners are more efficient than single burners.

Look for a humidifier attached to the heating system. With higher humidity, people feel equally comfortable at lower temperatures.

Clothes dryers should have an exhaust vent that forces hot air outside the home.

Range hoods should be of the recirculating type in cold climates and exhaust-to-outside-air type in warm climates, where air conditioning loads are more important than heating loads.

A conventional over-under refrigerator-freezer uses considerably less energy than a side-by-side refrigerator-freezer. Frostless refrigerators use up to 50 per cent more energy than normal defrost ones.

Be sure exhaust fan has a positive shutter closer, especially in cold climates.

Look for a low water-consumption shower head.

Check recessed or "bullet" lamps to be sure they do not penetrate into nonconditioned space where heat from the lamp is lost and air and sound can infiltrate.

Fluorescent lamps produce nearly four times as much light per watt than the typical general service light bulb.

Look for less general purpose and more specific purpose lighting to cut back total energy use for lighting.

With the cost of heating and cooling homes increasing each year, more and more consumers are looking for ways to conserve energy and trim their utility bills.

The above information listed the basic energy saving appliances and materials used in home-building today. The following deals with energy saving tips on the more technical aspects of residential construction, including insulation standards:

Fireplaces should have dampers to cut heat loss in winter.

Look for cracks that can let outside air infiltrate.

See that wall sheathing is not damaged. It allows air to infiltrate home even when wall is insulated.

Does the home have well-fitted doors and windows that are weatherstripped?

Are there storm windows or doors or are they double-glazed?

In attic openings, look for:

weatherstripped attic access doors and scuttle holes; insulation cut to size and attached to attic access doors and scuttle holes; and mineral wool insulation sealing pipes, flues or chimneys where they penetrate into attic space, especially in cold climates.

Every 300 square feet of insulated ceiling should have at least one square foot of openings for ventilation.

A thermostatically controlled attic fan can reduce summer cooling loads during the summer in hot and humid climates.

A light colored roof lowers the design energy requirement for cooling more than a dark colored roof.

Ducts in nonthermally conditioned areas should be insulated with two-inch flexible or one-inch rigid insulation.

When you are told to use boiled linseed oil, don't buy linseed oil and boil it. You merely purchase linseed oil that says "boiled" on the container.

BUYING A HOME IS ONE OF THE BEST INVESTMENTS YOU CAN MAKE.

NOW MORE THAN EVER.

TODAY'S $40,000 HOUSE WORTH $125,000 BY 1984?

The annual rate of inflation between September 1973 and September 1974 was 12.1 per cent as measured by the Consumer Price Index. If it continues at the same pace for the next 10 years, by 1984 it will take $3,133.7 to buy what one can buy today for $1. Using that figure as a guide, anyone who buys a house today for $40,000 would be able to resell it 10 years later for $125,000 while the person who is renting an apartment today for $300 could expect to be paying $940 per month for that same unit in 1984. The person who owns a few rental properties would be able to retire on rental income with much more security than he would on a regular pension because rental income will rise with inflation while the person who retires today on a pension of $1,000 per month will have a purchasing power of only $319 by 1984.

By the same token, a man who dies in 1984 leaving a house he bought this year for $40,000 will be providing his family with much more security than one who leaves behind a $40,000 insurance policy because its purchasing power will have dwindled to $12,764 by 1984.

Adequate Space Is A Feature

The Home Builders Association's 1975 Parade of Homes includes a striking Colonial-style split-level home on River Hill Drive — off U.S. 284 just East of Greenville near the Tar River.

The home's three levels — with brick veneer and masonite exterior — provide a striking picture, set against a background of large trees.

To provide very adequate space for a good size family, the home includes a livingroom, kitchen den, utility room, 2½ baths, foyer and three bedrooms.

The living area, including the kitchen and a half-bath is one level, while the three bedrooms with two full baths are located up-stairs.

Glass sliding doors leading from the den — the center of family activities — to a patio at the rear of the house — make the spacious den with built-in fire place seem even larger.

Built-ins provided to make living more convenient and efficient include a self-cleaning range, two hot-house windows and a work-desk and book case in the kitchen. Other kitchen aids to make life more pleasant for the lady of the house include a 22-cubic foot frostless refrigerator-freezer and deluxe model dishwasher.

An electric heat pump and air conditioner provide year-around climate control for the home.

Built-in book cases in the den and a large utility room with outside entrance help remedy storage problems found in many homes.

The wooded lot — already seeded with grass — measures 85 feet by 150 feet to give the homeowner plenty of elbow room.

"YOU KEEP US NUMBER ONE"

Condominium May Be For You

Hunting for a new home or apartment calls for some decisions. What kind of home best suits your family's needs? How much can you afford? What location do you want to settle down in?

The options available in the housing market are many. You can buy a single-family detached home with your own lot or you can buy a condominium or cooperative unit. You can buy a home within the city limits or in the suburbs.

Many families are buying condominium units because a condominium may be less expensive, frequently the down-payment is less, and it offers many advantages that they may not be able to afford in a single-family home.

Consider energy costs. If there's any thing certain in today's world, it is that utility bills will continue to go up in the years ahead. And condominium units — whether they are town houses, garden apartments or high rise apartments — all use less energy than single family homes.

When you add these savings in utility costs to the lower sales price, it is easy to see why condominium sales have boomed in recent years. In addition, most condominiums offer swimming pools, tennis courts and other recreational facilities.

Despite these obvious advantages, many families may have some second thoughts about buying a condominium. This usually occurs when consumers are puzzled by the name and the legal obligations involved in condominium ownership.

In simple terms, a condominium means a form of ownership in a multi-family building or complex in which the buyer owns his own individual apartment or house (usually a townhouse), but shares the grounds and other common areas — hallways, lobbies, recreational facilities, etc. — with other co-owners.

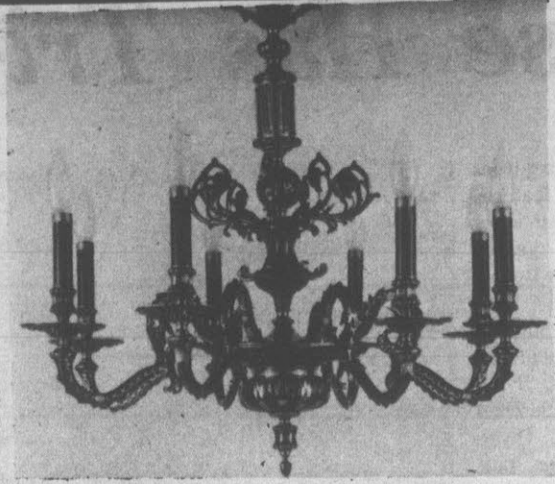

The owners don't have any individual responsibility for the upkeep of the commonly owned property, but all pay fixed monthly fees, or assessments, to cover management and maintenance and repair expenses.

Financing a condominium unit is similar to financing a single-family home. Buyers take out a mortgage on their own individual unit. In most cases, the builder will have mortgage financing money available for buyers.

Condominium owners also are eligible for the same tax deductions that single-family homeowners receive. Property taxes, any points charged to you for a mortgage loan, and the interest on mortgage loans can be deducted from your state and federal income tax returns.

So, if you're looking for a new home but can't afford a single-family home, check with a member of the Home Builders Association of Greenville about the advantages of condominium living. You may be surprised. You could build yourself a future by buying a condominium today. You will be buying a home and making a good investment at the same time.

Cram Course In Home Buying

Buying a home or apartment is probably the biggest financial decision consumers will make during their lifetime. Yet, it is something about which the average American needs more understanding.

Most families can find a suitable home in a neighborhood that is convenient and compatible to their lifestyles without much trouble. But when it comes to the details about how to go about buying a home, the majority of consumers needs some help.

In order to help consumers understand this process, the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) has prepared a booklet called "Home Buyers Guide." This book outlines all the steps leading to the purchase of a home, from ways to pick a good builder on through a final checkout with the builder or his representative.

It can be obtained from the Home Builders Association of Greenville.

To start, a consumer should decide how much he can afford to spend on a new home. The general rule to follow is that the price tag should not exceed two-and-a-half times your annual income, or that monthly housing costs should not exceed one week's take-home pay. But these estimates will vary from family to family. You should work out your own budget to determine how much you can afford to pay for housing costs each month.

To determine your budget or "house-buying power," the guide suggests that you set up a series of charts for listing average monthly income and present financial assets on one hand and average monthly expenses and cash outlays required to buy a house on the other.

By subtracting average monthly non-housing expenses (food, clothing, medical costs, etc.) from average monthly income, you arrive at a figure available for monthly housing expenses.

Monthly housing expenses will include mortgage payments, comprehensive insurance and property taxes, utility bills, maintenance and repairs. Your builder's representative can provide these figures.

Next there are the immediate costs involved in buying a new home, including down payments and closing costs. Down payments in today's market are running between 5 and 20 per cent.

To determine if you have enough cash on hand to make the required down payment, list all available funds including all savings and current value of investments. Then subtract the amount you must keep in reserve along with cash costs for closing and settlement, moving expenses, furnishings and whatever cash you might need for alterations, repairs and landscaping.

Finally, by subtracting the amount you can make for a down payment from the sales price of the house, you will know how much of a mortgage you will need to finance it.

There are three kinds of mortgages available to home buyers — conventional mortgages, those insured by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) and mortgages guaranteed by the Veterans Administration, which are available only to qualified veterans of the military services.

All three types are arranged through private lenders, the main sources being savings and loan associations, mortgage companies, mutual savings banks and commercial banks. However, the builder of a new house frequently has arranged previously the best possible mortgage financing.

One note of caution — don't forget to budget for closing and settlement costs. These fees can be substantial. Check with your mortgage lender for an estimate and be sure you have enough cash — in addition to the down payment — to pay these fees at closing.

HOW

There's no doubt about it — 1975 is really a home buyer's market. There are some great bargains in the marketplace.

That is one of the reasons why thousands of homebuilders are signing up for the first nationally insured, 10-year homebuyer protection program — the Home Owners Warranty (HOW) program.

This program was developed two years ago by the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB), a trade association which represents 74,000-member firms and with which this association is affiliated.

The HOW program provides safeguards for both the homebuyer and the builder. Here's how it works. During the first year of the warranty, the homebuyer is assured that his newly built home is protected against major construction defects plus faulty workmanship and materials caused by non-compliance with HOW's Approved Standards. Through the second year, the warranty covers major construction defects and defects in the mechanical systems of wiring, piping and ductwork in the home. For the remaining eight years, HOW's master insurance policy protects both the buyer and builder against major construction defects.

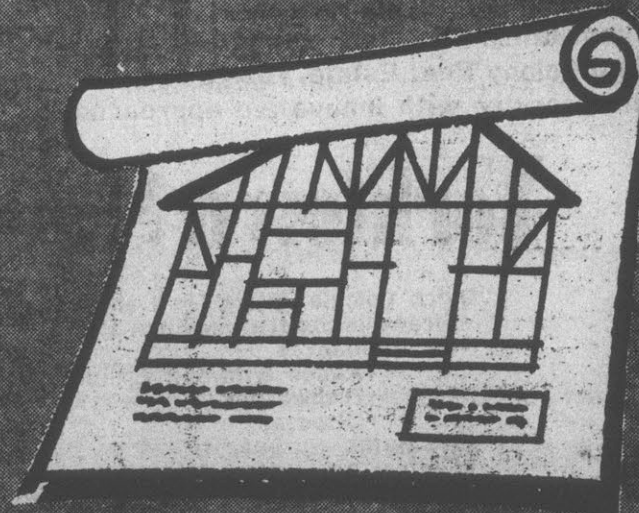

In addition, if for any reason the builder fails to live up to his warranty obligations during the first two years, HOW's insurer will assume those responsibilities.

"When consumers are cautious, when they have to make every penny count, they are much more insistent on their rights as consumers," Virginia H. Knauer, Special Assistant to the President for Consumer Affairs, told homebuilders at the 1975 NAHB Convention-Exposition in Dallas.

"The HOW program is a good bargain for consumers and it is a good bargain for builders," she said.

SECURITY SYSTEMS 'NECESSARY EVILS'

Homeowners, even in areas formerly regarded as "safe," are installing security systems by the numbers. With the rise of crime and the increased burdens placed upon law enforcement officers, many homeowners have invested in sophisticated crime and fire deterrent systems, tied in with a local central station. When the system detects an intrusion or the beginnings of a fire, it immediately relays a signal to the station.

TO CROWN WINNER — Karen Morrison, Miss USA 1974, will crown the new titleholder on the 24th annual "Miss USA Beauty Pageant," to be presented live from Niagara Falls, N. Y., with Helen O'Connell and Bob Barker as hosts and the Letterman as special guest entertainers Saturday, May 17 (10-12 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

Crowning Miss USA Winner Saturday Night

There was a time - and not too long ago, either - when beauty-contest winners were as predictable as they were beautiful. Certain questions were sure to elicit inevitable responses; for example, to the question, "How have you enjoyed your year as Miss Cattle Queen of Weedpatch?" The answer was unfailingly: "It was the biggest thrill of my life. If only it could go on forever!"

For contrast, consider the response to this same question by Miss Universe, (1972), Kerry Ann Wells of Australia: "It was exciting, but it was also tiring. My favorite moments came when people saw me under that title and related to me as a human being." Another beauty queen put it this way: "The year broadened my horizons - it's not until you travel that you realize what a big world it is out there - but a year is long enough. I don't know if I could keep up the pace much longer."

These are human responses, and they're indicative of a new trend which is noticeable among girls who enter today's beauty contests. They are no longer wide-eyed with the glamor of it all.

After all, an intelligent face is more beautiful than a vacant one, and the fact that the Miss USA and Miss Universe contests are recognizing this is an encouraging sign.

Lest you doubt this, watch the 24th annual "Miss USA Beauty Pageant," to be broadcast live from Niagara Falls, N.Y. Saturday, May 17, 10 to 12 midnight, on CBS and Channel 9-11.

51 of the most beautiful young women in the United States will compete for the coveted title of Miss USA 1975, and singer Helen O'Connell and TV personality

Go Afloat For Emmy Awards

The Hudson River excursion boat, the Dayliner, will embark from Manhattan's Pier 81 on Thursday, May 15, with a roster of passengers that reads like a Who's Who of daytime television talent. The illustrious gathering - from both behind and in front of the television cameras - has been invited for a festive 90-minute cruise to celebrate The Second Annual Emmy Awards for Daytime Programming.

The festivities for the awards ceremonies, which will be telecast live from the open top deck of the boat by the ABC Television Network (1:30 to 3 p.m., on Ch. 3-5-12), will be launched with an informal luncheon held on the first three decks of the 2,000-ton vessel. Co-hosts for the ceremonies will be Monty Hall, host of "Let's Make a Deal," and Stephanie Edwards, co-host of "AM America." The assembled performers, writers, producers and directors will be joined by members of The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, television network officials and members of the press for a special "seafarer" lunch during which there will be lots of meeting, greeting and speculation as to the winners of this year's Daytime Emmys.

Shortly before air time, the 600 invited guests will assemble on the open top deck of the Dayliner - christened the S.S. Emmy Dayliner for the day - as the excursion boat takes to the open waters of the Hudson River and the start of the awards ceremonies.

Once the boat is on the waterway, the program will take to the airways via five camera crews aboard the floating television studio. Panoramic views of the Manhattan skyline and the on-board festivities will be provided by a sixth camera crew following the vessel by helicopter. The on-board and airborne cameras and technical equipment will provide a mixture of the natural sights and sounds of the city and the river with the entertainment and presentations aboard the slowly cruising boat.

A ten-piece band will provide the musical accompaniment for the program's entertainers - Bert Convy, host of "Tattle Tales"; Kathryn Hays of "As The World Turns" and Rod Hull of the "Hudson Brothers Razzle Dazzle" Saturday morning children's show.

From a specially constructed stage on the open deck, a selection of daytime television celebrities drawn from the ranks of the networks' drama shows will announce and present the Emmy Awards to this year's winners.

From bow to stern, the special telecast is designed to provide an exciting and picturesque cruise for both viewers and participants. Don't miss the trip!

Bob Barker will host the final competition.

The Lettermen, the popular singing trio which has drawn large audiences around the world, will be the special guest entertainers on the "Miss USA Beauty Pageant."

The special highlights will be the judging of the selected finalists and will be climaxed by the crowning of the new titleholder by Miss USA 1974, Karen Morrison. Amparo Munoz of Spain, Miss Universe 1974, will make a special guest appearance. Miss USA 1975 will represent the United States in the "Miss Universe Beauty Pageant," to be broadcast on CBS on July 19.

AT THE LEAD IS JIM Jim Garner is recuperated from knee surgery and plans to drive the pace car at the Indianapolis "500".

Counseling Study For Seminarians

At the University of Minnesota, a revolutionary development in theological education is taking place — it's a six-day sexual attitude reassessment program known as "The Week of Enrichment" — and it is teaching seminarians and other professionals about physical and emotional love as a tool for counseling their parishioners on sexual problems. ABC News' "Directions" presents a special two-part examination of this remarkable new trend in the Church on "They'll Know We Are Christians by Our Love."

Part 1, "The Church and Human Sexuality," will air on the ABC Television Network, Sunday, May 11, 1 to 1:30 p.m. Filmed on the university campus, Bill Beutel will be the host.

(The second part, "The Church and Homosexuality," will be presented the following week on "Directions," Sunday, May 18.)

The program is a cooperative venture between the University of Minnesota Medical School, several seminarians in the Minneapolis area, and the American Lutheran Church, and is perhaps the first time in Church history that a medical institution has joined with theology to offer a program for seminarians which enables them to understand themselves better, so that they might help their parishioners. Dr. Richard A. Chilgren, a physician, and Director of a program in human sexuality for the University's Medical School, feels that these sessions can help seminarians understand "the fear, ignorance and misplaced guilt that is the cause of most sexual problems."

The sexual attitude reassessment programs is made up of three major elements — large group discussion - lecture sessions; the showing of explicit sexual materials to acquaint the seminarians with all forms of human sexual behavior; and small group sessions in which all are encouraged to talk about things they've seen and heard; and about their own feelings towards sex.

right, a "friendly" bout of arm - wrestling between the two turns into a deadly rivalry. The confrontation occurs in the episode, "The Seven Million Dollar Man," on ABC-TV's "The Six Million Dollar Man" Sunday, May 11 (7:30-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 3-12.

Recreation Room

If you're concerned about the lack of living space in your house, cast your eyes down to the basement and you may find just what you're looking for. Many homeowners overlook the possibilities that a basement has in terms of living space. They may see a maze of water pipes, helter skelter storage and cement blocks. But, with a little time and effort and the right materials, even a do-it-yourselfer can upgrade the basement into an attractive recreation area or family room. Now that you've decided on a recreation room for the basement, how about the floors? See our collection of the most wanted wall to wall carpeting for this area. It Cost More To Create $6 Million Man's Rival

Inflation hits "The Six Million Dollar Man." There will be a seven million dollar man in the episode to air Sunday, May 11, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., on Channel 3-12, and the stanza is appropriately titled "The Seven Million Dollar Man." The character played by guest star Monte Markham, give series star Lee Majors quite a run of his - uh - money! Markham plays Barney Miller, a former auto racer who is injured in an accident very similar to that suffered by Steve Austin, portrayed by Majors. Like Austin, the character Markham portrays is put back together again with bionic replacements for the damaged parts of his body. Nuclear power gives him superior strength, but because of technological advances made and inflationary factors since Austin's transformation, Miller is even more powerful - and most costly. His price tag is a whopping $7 million as opposed to the $6 million spent on Austin. "The character that Monte plays in this episode brings a whole new element to the series," points out Majors. "In all of our segments so far it is known that Steve Austin is superior in strength to every other human pitted against him. But here, at last, we have an adversary who is actually stronger than Steve.

As to just what that "something" is, Lee isn't saying. What Lee does talk about is the fascinating concept of rebuilding damaged body parts. "The entire project is not as much science fiction as people suppose," says Lee. "Products of our imagination now, such as the six million dollar man and even the seven million dollar man could and probably will exist to varying degrees in the very near future." According to Majors, writer Martin Caidin, who authored "Cyborg," the book on which the series is based learned that science is indeed working on programs similar to those that went into rebuilding the characters played by Monte Markham and Lee. Obviously Lee Majors takes his role in "The Six Million Dollar Man" seriously... oops... in the time it has taken to write this story, according to the latest price index, he is now the "6,000,011.37 man."

WOODWIND TO THE WINDS

David McCallum says his parents were displeased when they learned he wanted to be an actor. "My father was lead violinist with the London Philharmonic and my mother was a concert cellist," he says. "Naturally, they thought it would be quite filial if I devoted myself to the oboe." McCallum will star in "The Invisible Man" series on NBC-TV this fall.

Producer's Son Has Affinity For Wildlife

Naturalist producer cameraman Chuck Draper cast his son, Carl, in "Wild Geese Calling," a nature and conservation study which which airs Sunday evening, May 11, on "The Wonderful World of Disney," because of the boy's natural kinship with animals. (The program will air over NBC-TV from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.) "Carl has an unusual and rare quality," explained Draper about his son. "He is a sort of nature boy, which is what we needed for this film. He loves animals and they sense this. He's not afraid of handling snakes, or running races with a sand hill crane about his size."

Network Signs A Beauty

Cynthia Sikes, actress, singer and dancer and a 1972 "Miss America" finalist, has been signed to an exclusive contract by NBC-TV.

Her first assignment under the contract is as a co-star in the 1975-76 season "Columbo" drama, "Quicker Than The Eye," which began production April 28 and features Jack Cassidy as a magician. She portrays the magician's daughter and assistant.

The Wichita, Kan., native recently was chosen one of 10 "Hollywood Stars of Tomorrow" by the members of the Hollywood Hair Stylists and Make-up Artists organization on NBC-TV's March 5 colorcast of "The Bob Hope Special." She was presented onstage by actress Valerie Perrine.

During the 1972 Bob Hope Christmas tour overseas, Sikes was one of the Hope "American Beauties." The following year, with five other Miss America finalists from 1972 (Sikes had been the winner in the swimsuit competition), she toured Japan, Oinawa and Korea with a specially trained USO troupe. The group later appeared during the 1973 telecast of the "Miss America" competition.

Sikes attended Wichita State University and was a journalism and drama major at South-eastern Methodist University. In February, 1974, she was chosen as a guest writer for Mademoiselle magazine on the basis of an in-depth interview she did on former Kansas P.O.W. Lt. Commander Charles Plum's experiences in the year following his release from a long imprisonment.

In November, 1974, Sikes was invited to return to Kansas to sing for President Gerald Ford during a visit he was making to her home state.

Poitier, Belafonte In Western Drama

Academy Award winner Sidney Poitier stars with Harry Belafonte in "Buck and the Preacher," a Western adventure to be colorcast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" May 12, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

In the story, Buck (Poitier), a black ex-sergeant and scout in the Union Army who now uses his knowledge of the West to lead wagon trains of blacks to the new territory, first meets the whiskey-drinking, self-ordained Preacher (Belafonte) at a stream where the Preacher is taking a bath.

Buck is fleeing a group of white men led by Deshay (Cameron Mitchell) who are against blacks coming into the territory.

Though he reimburses the Preacher, Buck trades horses with him without an explanation, and rides away.

The Preacher follows casually behind, intending eventually to catch up and get his horse back.

Before he can do so, he meets Deshay and his men who have recognized Buck's horse. When the Preacher explains how he came by the horse, Deshay offers him a $500 bounty to bring Buck back, dead or alive.

Ruby Dee portrays Ruth, Buck's wife.

 (6,7) Tonight Show: With Johnny Carson

When Alan Alda was growing up, it was his most cherished desire to be able to follow in his dad's footsteps. As he put it, "As a kid, I can remember how dad was considered one of the greatest in the musical theatre. I can remember our walks down Broadway. People would stop us every few steps to ask for autographs or just to say "Thanks for a wonderful time in the theatre." I used to think my father was the luckiest man alive. Even today, I envy the fact that he was able to do most of his work in the theatre."

early years. Even today, he will not uproot his family. They continue to live on both coasts, but I know that I don't want my children (Alan has three daughters) to feel displaced in the same way that I did."

It is typical of Alan that he finally resolved his feelings about never having a permanent home on the day he entered Fordham University. On that day he told his father, "From now on, I'm on my own, and I intend to live in New York." Robert Alda was quick to understand how his son felt. From that day on, he never interfered in Alan's life.

Of course, due to the popularity of "M-A-S-H," seen Tuesdays on CBS from 8:30 to 9 p.m., and his own unique gifts, Alan today, is probably much more widely recognized than his father. But in his mind, Robert Alda is truly a star, thanks to shows like "Guys and Dolls," and he Alan, is just a television actor. Alan said, "As much as I love "M-A-S-H," I always felt the real challenge is in doing theatre with the audience right there. In fact, when I was a kid, I didn't even want to do films."

Although he is 40 and an established star in his own right, Alan will probably never fully emerge from his father's shadow. He recently said, "I'm proud of the fact that I'm able to love my dad, and not feel messed up about it. Too many sons of famous men have had real problems for me not to realize what a good father I've had."

Alan grew up between Hollywood and New York, since his father's film career blossomed during Alan's childhood. Since Alan likes to settle in one place, this was the hardest aspect of his

SCOTT HYLANDS stars as a young doctor ready to sacrifice his career for his principles in "The First 36 Hours of Dr. Durant", a contemporary drama of hospital life on ABC-TV's "Tuesday Movie of the Week" May 13 (8:30-10 p.m.) on channels 3W,5,12.

New Team For 'Movin' On'

A new producer, a producer on location and six writers have been signed for the 1975-76 season of NBC-TV's "Movin' On."

Ernest Frankel will be the producer of the series. He is the author of "Tongue of Fire" and "Band of Brothers," which won the Sir Walter Award of Literature. He has written for many TV series including "Mannix," "Mod Squad," "I Spy," and "Movie of the Week." He also was the executive consultant on the original "Perry Mason" series, and was producer of the "New Perry Mason Show."

Take It From Bea: No 'Maude'

Is Bea Arthur really like Maude in real life? Let Bea speak for herself. "Although I rant and rave as much as Maude does when the need arises, I don't have her persistence. In all honesty, I'm afraid the tiger in my tank is really a pussycat. I'm absolutely incapable of haggling with the butcher over a choice cut of meat, as Maude would do, and I'm a pushover for any door-to-door salesman with a reasonable sales pitch."

Writer Prescribes A 'Realistic Look'

"A realistic look at medicine from the viewpoint of a surgical resident in a hospital," is Stirling Silliphant's description of his original screen play, "The First 36 Hours of Dr. Durant," an ABC "Tuesday Movie of the Week," airing May 13, 8:30 to 10:00 p.m., on Ch. 3W,5,12.

An Academy Award-winner for his screenplay, "In the Heat of the Night," and a prolific television and motion picture writer, Silliphant is executive producer of the production starring Scott Hylands in the title role of Dr. Chris Durant.

Long interested in the field of medicine, Silliphant stated, "I wrote this screen play out of concern that the tendency to put doctors on a pedestal is sort of dangerous in that it creates a lack of dialogue between the patient—whose body it is—and the physician. Doctors are human. Despite all their training and precautions, they can make mistakes. Sometimes with tragic consequences. No one is more aware of that than doctors themselves."

However, he stressed, "This show is very pro-medicine and pro-doctor as young Durant moves through his first 36 hours on call as a surgical resident at a metropolitan hospital and takes a small step forward in his career."

Silliphant's numerous television credits include "Route 66," which he co-created and for which he wrote 71 scripts; "Naked City" and "Longstreet" on which he also served as executive producer. Among his motion picture credits are "The Towering Inferno," "Shaft,"

FINAL MOMENTS— Martin Sheen (center) as Pvt. Eddie Slovik, the only United States soldier executed for desertion in World War II and the first to receive the death penalty for that crime since the Civil War, receives last rites from Father Paul Stafford (Ned Beatty, left) in "The Execution of Private Slovik" to be colorcast on "NBC World Premiere Movie" Tuesday, May 13 (8:30 - 11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

and "The Poseidon Adventure."

Silliphant said that the "thematic inspiration" for "The First 36 Hours of Dr. Durant" came from a book, "Year of the Resident" by Dr. Robin Cook, that was brought to his attention. He later met Cook, now a senior resident at a Boston hospital, to discuss the project.

Noting that he has many friends who are doctors, Silliphant said, "I know their frustrations, the problems they have."

Almost anything can set a star to reminiscing. But the nostalgia catalyst for Eddie Albert was the Sparkling promise of his three young co-stars — Frederic Forrest, Meg Foster and Steven Keats — in "Promise Him Anything..." The comedy film airs as an ABC Television Network "Wednesday Movie of the Week," May 14, 8:30 to 10:00 p.m., on Ch. 3W, 5, 12.

"Working with and watching these youngsters took me back to my own days as an actor," mused the veteran performer, referring to the late 1930s at

"Their enthusiasm, their light-hearted horseplay between scenes, reminded me of our fun in making films," continued Eddie. "When I say 'our,' I mean contemporaries who were tyros like myself — Wayne Morris, Ronald Reagan, Jane Wyman and the Lane Sisters, Priscilla, Rosemary and Lola."

Combinations of these stars worked together in such delightful films as "Brother Rat," "Brother Rat and the Baby," "Four Wives" and "Four Mothers," among others.

There were the young breed of players arriving on the scene at a studio which was showcasing such greats as Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, James Cagney, Bette Davis and Humphrey Bogart.

"While shooting scenes for 'Promise Him Anything...' I sensed the same spirit between Fred, Meg and Steve as there was between Wayne, Ronnie, Jane, Priscilla, Rosemary, Lola and myself," said Eddie, who plays Fred's free-spirited father in the movie. "In fact, our story, which deals with Steve rigging a computer date between Fred and Meg, who has put 'anything goes' on her card, is a timeless blind date-type situation. Had the film been made 35 years ago, it would have had Priscilla Lane playing Meg's part, Wayne Morris doing Steve's role and I would have been cast as the shy guy that Fred plays. Who would have played the role I now play? Why, who else but Alan Hale!"

Eddie points out that one of the reasons he enjoys doing television is that it provides opportunities for working with young, upcoming actors.

COMPUTER MATCH Frederick Forrest and Meg Foster star as a computer-matched dates who find that neither had been honest in filling out the computer card, in the world premiere of "Promise Him Anything..." on the "Wednesday Movie of the Week" May 14 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Loretta Swit, Rosey Grier Tony's Guests

Loretta Swit, the sultry Hot Lips of "M-A-S-H" on the CBS Network, appears in a musical production number as an errant housewife who becomes stripper "Gypsy Rose," and Rosey Grier portrays a doctor whose medical bag contains some bizarre surprises, on a rebroadcast of "Tony Orlando and Dawn" Wednesday, May 14, 8:00 to 9:00 p.m., on Ch. 9&11.

Grier teams with Orlando and Miss Swit in a poetic tribute to the Fourth of July, "Ode to the Spirit of 76," and then is beguiled by Thelma Hopkins and Joyce Vincent Wilson — the show's Dawn — in the musical number "Cute."

In other musical numbers, Tony Orlando and Dawn open the show with "Tie a Yellow Ribbon 'Round the Ole Oak Tree," and offer "I Believe in Music," "Amen," "Oh, Happy Day," "Take Your Brother by the Hand" and "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands" in the concert sport.

Case History Of A Mistake Returning

One of the more impressive specials of last season will have an encore when GE Theater's "Larry," the case history of a mistake, is telecast over the CBS Television Network on Thursday, May 15, 9 to 10:30 p.m. on Channels 9 & 11.

An actual case study by Dr. Robert McQueen of the Nevada State Hospital, and professor of psychology at the University of Nevada, provided the basis for the drama which was filmed on location at a state institution in Los Angeles. Many of the residents appear on camera.

In David Seltzer's screenplay, it is therapist Nancy Hocksworth who first notices that Larry doesn't fall into the classic mold of the mental retard he is supposed to be. She finally convinces her superior and mentor, Dr. McCabe, that their newly arrived resident at the state hospital, sent there because the private institution where he formerly was a patient has been closed down, should receive further testing.

The results of the examinations amaze both Nancy and McCabe. Larry proves to be of normal intelligence and evidently adopted the manners of his former fellow patients as the only behavior patterns he could follow in his specialized world.

A lifetime of learning has to be crammed into Larry in a few short months. He then must be taught how to survive as a functioning member of society.

Larry is tremendously naive and gullible on his first trips to the outside world accompanied by a no-nonsense therapist assigned to the case after Nancy fails to show the necessary firmness in dealing with Larry. "How do you teach cynicism? How do you explain to a man that he can't trust everybody?" Nancy asks.

In time, she, McCabe and Corman - the therapist - have the satisfaction of seeing Larry develop into a functioning human being. He even moves from the hospital to an apartment in town to be close to the job of which he is so proud. Eventually he disappears from their lives. They have done their job.

"LARRY" is the case history of a mistake' the story of a man who lived the first twenty-five years of life as a mental retard in a private mental institution—when he was, in fact, perfectly normal. Dramatized on GE Theatre, Thursday, May 15 (9-10:30 p.m.), on CBS-TV, "Larry" tells of the discovery of this mistake, and the efforts to undo the emotional damage caused by it—and the gradual emergence of a human being into a world he has never seen before. Larry is portrayed by Frederic Forrest.

Preakness Stakes Telecast May 17

For some unexplained reason, the term 'flat racing' has been adopted to distinguish Thoroughbred racing from harness racing, two types of horse racing which actually need no special term to distinguish them. A Thoroughbred, such as those horses that will go to the gate in the 100th running of the Preakness Stakes, to be broadcast on the CBS Television Network—Saturday, May 17, 5:00 to 6:00 p.m., does not run in harness. And a harness horse doesn't run at all; he trots or paces, and would have a hard time doing either anywhere but on the flat. He would hardly go over jumps wearing all the harness he does, pulling a "wagon" behind him. The term "flat racing" has long been in use among "running horse" people, but it means just what it says—running on the flat rather than over steeplechase jumps and hurdles. A horse's natural "means of expression" is to gallop or run; the gaits of the trotter and pacer, while beautiful to watch, are unnatural and acquired. While the Thoroughbred and the Standardbred today are separate and distinct breeds, it was the gray Thoroughbred, Messenger, imported to America in 1788, who founded the line of what was at first called the American trotting horse but which, due to the subsequent introduction of the pacer, became the Standardbred.

Bixby Hosts It's Magic

Bill Bixby, actor and director, who is one of Hollywood's most proficient practitioners of magic, will star as the host of "It's Magic," a "Wide World: Special" on the art of now-you-see-it, now-you-don't, to be presented on the ABC Television Network, Thursday, May 15, 11:30 p.m. to 1:00 a.m., on Channels 3, 5, 12.

Mark Wilson, named "Magician of the Year" by the Academy of Magical Arts, is a featured guest in a cast includes many of the world's most accomplished magicians, among

Family Circle Tourney

Defending champion Chris Evert is seeded first and the talented Czech, Martina Navratilova, number two, in the $100,000 Family Circle Cup tennis tournament, NBC Television Network coverage of which will be presented Saturday, May 17, 5 to 6:00 p.m., and Sunday, May 18, 2 to 3:30 p.m.

Rounding out the seeds in the international field of 32 women professionals are Margaret Court of Australia, third; England's Virginia Wade, fourth; Australian Evonne Goolagong, fifth; Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union, sixth; New York City's Julie Heldman, seventh; and Francoise Durr of France, eighth.

The winner of the event, being staged at the Amelia Island Plantation near Jacksonville, Fla., receives $25,000, one of the largest top prizes in women's tennis. The singles runner-up gets $13,000 and the victorious doubles team share $4,000.

Evert's triumph in last year's Family Circle Cup — over Australian Kerry Melville — was one of 10 tournament titles she captured on her way to winning a record $261,460. In addition to the Family Circle Cup, Chrissie's 1974 crowns included Wimbledon and the French and Italian Opens, all three of which will be covered by NBC-TV in 1975 (the Italian Open, May 31-June 1; French, June 14-15; Wimbledon, June 28-29, July 5).

Bobby Riggs and veteran sportscaster Jim Simpson will team up for the NBC-TV coverage.

Riggs, who captured the men's singles titles at Wimbledon and Forest Hills in 1939 and won at Forest Hills again in 1941, has gained an insight into women's play by competing in nationally televised matches with top professionals. He defeated Margaret Court and lost to Billie Jean King in 1973.

Simpson, the versatile NBC veteran, was on hand in 1974 for the Evert victory and proved to be quite an accurate forecaster when he said: "I think this year she's going to have her best year ever."

them the famous Dai Vernon.

A veritable vaudeville show of magic, the "Wide World: Special" offers a wide diversity of legerdemain, ranging from the mystifying feats of mentalist Glen Falkenstein to the comedy prestidigitations of 297-pound Mike Caldwell.

Mark Wilson, with assistance from Nani Darnell, his wife, and his son, Greg, will be seen in a medley of routines. In one, Greg enters a box which, when reopened, yields Mark.

Evangelist Is Under Scrutiny

The Rev. Sun Myung Moon, the controversial and very rich Korean evangelist, who is called Messiah by some and a quack by others, will come under close scrutiny of NBC News' late-night TV magazine, "Weekend," in its May 17-18 edition.

(The program will be colorcast on NBC-TV Saturday, May 17, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. In some areas it will be presented Sunday, May 18, in the same time period.)

Moon heads the Unification Church, which is, in effect, a cult similar to Children of God, Hare Krishna and others using methods of conversion involving very heavy indoctrination — what some call brainwashing. He is at the center of a cluster of related religious, financial and political enterprises that operate on a worldwide scale. "Weekend" will examine some of them.

In this country, Moon has gathered behind him thousands of young adherents from college campuses and city streets. The majority of these "Moonies" live an austere, devotional life decreed by the founder. They raise funds by selling flowers, peanuts, candles and 'granariums' (bottled arrangements of dried flowers and seeds) on the streets. Producer James Gannon says: "They can make up to $300 to $400 a day each if they are good at it. On an average they make almost $100 a day."

Moon's net worth has been widely reported to be about $15 million, though he is said to have been widely reported to be about $15 million, though he is said to have been broke when he began proselytizing his vision in post-war Korea.

Allegations of brainwashing are discussed with ex-Moonies. Some have been 'deprogrammed' by Ted Patrick, a full-time deprogrammer of young people from various cults.

Viewers will see a young man who escaped from the church's international training center in Barrytown, N.Y., after being there for 10 days. The psychiatrist who examined him immediately after the escape has diagnosed his condition as temporary "acute psychotic reaction."

TV PREMIERE — Jennifer Jones and Gregory Peck star in "Duel in the Sun" a tale of fierce family rivalry and love, coming to television for the first time on the "ABC Saturday Night Movie" May 17 at 8:30 to 11 p.m. on Channel 3-5-12.

'Duel In The Sun' Has Vintage Cast Of Stars

Jennifer Jones, Gregory Peck, Joseph Cotten, Lillian Gish and Lionel Barrymore head an all-star cast in "Duel in the Sun" — David O. Selznick's western saga of love and bitter rivalry between two brothers — on "The ABC Saturday Night Movie," May 17, 8:30 to 11:00 p.m., on Ch. 3-5-12.

Pearl Chavez (Jennifer Jones), a beautiful girl, comes to Texas to stay with distant cousins, Laura Belle and Senator McCanles (Lillian Gish and Lionel Barrymore).

On the baronial ranch, Pearl meets Laura's two sons, Jesse (Joseph Cotton) and Lewt (Gregory Peck). Both are quickly attracted to Pearl. Soon after, Jesse has a violent disagreement with his father and leaves the ranch.

Though having been attracted by Jesse's kindness and compassion, Pearl is unable to resist the wild and passionate advances of Lewt and becomes Lewt's girl.

In an attempt to lead a more normal life, Pearl encourages ranchhand Sam Pierce (Bickford) and consents to marry him. On the eve of the marriage, Lewt murders Sam and escapes to the surrounding mountains.

Not long after, Pearl's world is further shattered when Laura Belle, her only friend on the ranch, dies.

Returning to the ranch after his mother's death, Jesse asks Pearl to come stay with him and his future wife. She consents and leaves with him.

That night Lewt rides into town to take Pearl away with him. When he finds Jesse standing in his way, he ruthlessly shoots him down.

As Jesse fights for his life, Pearl rides out to find Lewt and takes matters in her own hands.

DAUGHTER HELPS HIM

When a crew member on "The First 36 Hours of Dr. Durant" greeted Alex Henteloff by observing, "You're much more muscular than you were in 'The Young Rebels' series," the actor happily agreed: "That's because I have a very active four-year-old daughter to keep up with."

Michael Learned will not be leaving her role as Olivia Walton on CBS' "The Waltons." That has been a rumor since she was cast to star in an NBC movie, "Widow."

However, Richard Thomas' possible departure from the show, into a spin-off entitled, "John Boy," remains a possibility despite denials. Richard could be going out on his own at mid-season next January or most likely in the Fall of '76.

Emily McLaughlin has begun her twelfth year as Nurse Jessie Brewer on ABC's "General Hospital." Emily is the longest running actress on a West Coast daytime show. John Berardino has been portraying Dr. Steve Hardy for equally as long a period.

A lot of people are predicting some type of reconciliation between Cher Bono and Sonny. There's a lot of evidence pointing to that possibility.

Wayne Rogers has been quoted as saying he'll leave "M-A-S-H" after this next year, but it seems Wayne was misquoted.

Jim and Jane Brodin, owners of a large ranch some 40 miles outside of Los Angeles, have leased a home in Beverly Hills so Jim won't have to commute during the new season's production of "Marcus Welby, M.D." Jim will be getting married on the series this upcoming year, a prelude to his departure from the show should it be back a year from now.

A lot of outcries over Mac Davis' show being cancelled, and if the details of how and why were known there'd be many more.

'The Great Escape' Next

Steve McQueen, James Garner, Richard Attenborough and Charles Bronson star in "The Great Escape," a based-on-fact World War II adventure film on the "NBC Saturday and Monday Night at the Movies," May 17 and 19 from 9 to 11 p.m. on Channels 6&7.

During World War II, a German convoy deposits a group of POWs — the most famous of the Allied escapees from other camps — at the Stalag Luft North maximum security camp.

On arrival, Captain Ramsey (James Donald) is told by the German Commandant, Von Luger (Hans Messelner), that there will be no escapes from his camp. Ramsey politely informs him that it is the sworn duty of officers to attempt escape.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR BING CROSBY

Why do you appear on wildlife-conservation ads such as Ducks Unlimited when you hunt the very creatures you're campaigning to protect?—Mary Gilbert, Antioch, Calif.

● There's more to the conservation and protection of wildlife than just loving nature. When the advance of civilization upsets nature's system of game management, intelligent wildlife management is the answer. This means a reasonable harvesting of game. Ducks Unlimited preserves wildfowl. It has spent over $35 million to create habitats and environments in which ducks can breed and hatch their eggs. The funds for such projects were all provided by people who hunt waterfowl. As a result, the waterfowl population has increased more than 50 percent above what it was 20 years ago, when it was threatened by extinction.

FOR ANN-MARGRET, starring in "Tommy"

Have you ever suffered from stage fright?—L. Demes, Little Rock, Ark.

● Yes. Six months before JFK was assassinated, I performed for him at New York's Waldorf-Astoria. I spent weeks anticipating that moment, but I can't recall one thing I did or one word I said. I thought everything would be indelibly imprinted on my memory—but it wasn't. I was so nervous and scared that the only recollection I have of that evening is icy-cold hands and feet.

FOR ERMA BOMBECK, columnist

Does it irk you to hear women say, "I'm just a housewife"?—Bessie Abbott, Roswell, N.M.

● I'll say! Especially when it's Jackie Onassis. Everyone wants to be "just a housewife" these days. A woman doing a commercial for a bleach the other day belted down a glassful and said, "Now that's clean you can feel!"

FOR BILL HUDSON of The Hudson Brothers

Why were you chosen to lead the group?—P. Lumes, Lansing, Mich.

● Because I'm the oldest. I "formed" the group in 1966 when I was 15. Mark, 13, was my partner. We felt Brett, 11, was too young. Then he got a strep throat. In a dramatic moment, when we thought he was dying, we asked what his last wish was. He croaked he wanted to join us. We agreed. Next day he miraculously recovered, and our duo became a trio.

FOR MEADOWLARK LEMON of the Harlem Globetrotters

Where do you get your ideas for your funny routines. Also, how did you get such an unusual first name?—N.S., Albany, N.Y.

● I get my inspiration from TV commercials and from watching children playing in the streets and parks. As for my name—well, when I was born, my mother knew that someday I'd play for the Globetrotters, and she wanted to make sure I'd have a name people would remember.

FOR JULIE LONDON of "Emergency"

Have you given up your singing career?—Gladys Greene, Elmira, N.Y.

● No, but I must admit I despise all the traveling that goes along with nightclub work. Now that "Emergency" is thriving and I'm able to stay home with my husband Bobby Troup (he plays Dr. Joe Early in the series) and my children, I've refused all nightclub and recording work. Maybe I'll sing again someday, but for now I only sing when I want to—at home and among close friends.

FOR GEOFF EDWARDS, host of "Treasure Hunt"

Do the contestants pay taxes on everything they win, or only on the larger prizes?—C. Steurmer, Fallbrook, Calif.

● Winners pay taxes on everything—whether it's a car or a box of Kleenex. They're taxed on the retail value of the prize. I often wonder what the IRS thinks when someone gets klunked, then declares two salamis, a beanie and one pound of wet dough on the income tax form.

FOR BOWIE KUHN, commissioner of baseball

Who and what determines the site of the annual All-Star game? Has the site for 1976 been selected?—Jim Johnson, Lambertville, N.J.

● Baseball's executive council determines the site of the All-Star game. There is only one stipulation—that it alternate between the American and National leagues. Usually teams ask to host the game. Milwaukee's request for the 1975 game has been accepted, and so has the bid from Philadelphia for the Bicentennial year game in 1976.

FOR PETER BENCHLEY, author of "Jaws"

How did you get the idea for your exciting book about sharks?—Karen L. Culley, Klamath Falls, Ore.

● In the mid-'60's, a fisherman caught a 4,500-pound great white shark off Long Island, and I thought: "What would happen if a monster like that came to a resort community?" The book was the result of that thought. In 1974, I went to Australia and got in a cage while a 1,600-pound shark swam around it and ate chunks of horsemeat. The shark did try to bite through the cage, but unlike the account in my book, he didn't succeed.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

What was Barbra Streisand like before she became a well-known superstar?—J.R., Hartford, Conn.

● When disc jockey Stan Martin worked at a discount store in the early '60's, Miss Streisand came in and asked to see a tape recorder. She said she was an understudy in an off-Broadway show and needed it to help her learn her lines. Martin showed how the machine worked, but the aspiring actress was baffled. She sighed to her escort (Elliott Gould): "I hope I don't have as much trouble becoming a star as I do getting this machine to work." According to author Rona Jaffe, Streisand was very shy. They were at the same party when 17-year-old Barbra was rehearsing for "I Can Get It for You Wholesale" and the host told the author: "That girl over there who's alone is Barbra Streisand. Please look after her." Miss Jaffe did and reports the now-superstar was hard to talk to because of her extreme shyness, but was delighted someone had noticed her.

For Mother's Day

Compiled by Alan Ebert

Pictorial Parade

LORETTA LYNN

"I'm just gonna grab me an armful of kids who need a mama and I'm gonna love 'em up in my home. Maybe that will take away some of the sadness I always feel."

"Startin' out in this business, my husband Mooney and I hit just about every tank town in this big country to promote me and my first record. We didn't have us a dime, so we slept in our beat-up ole car and ate bologna sandwiches. Mooney had heard me sing to our babies and he had a dream. So did I, but sometimes you gotta be careful what you dream, 'cause it might come true.

"Even then, there was sadness. Four of my babies stayed behind with my brother and his wife. I sure felt right bad about leavin' them. It affected those kids. It affected me. That kind of sadness never leaves you. Even today, I'm leavin' my nine-year-old twin girls constantly, despite their always sayin', 'Mommy, why don't you slow down?' It's real hard explaining that Mommy can't cause. Mommy feels she belongs to the public. But that is how Mommy feels. Loretta Lynn is public domain because she was nothing but a poor, simple, uneducated country girl when the public made her a star. And because they did, my kids have gotten a lot of the good things in life.

"I got them educated. All of them read and write—all those good things I found so hard to come by. And all have their feet firmly planted on the ground. They know how to love and how to share—that makes me happy.

"My career, on the other hand, has meant more sadness than joy. Only those times onstage before the people feel good to me. I missed out on my children, missed out on bein' a mama to them. I know that. With each, I worked two weeks up to their birthing and two weeks afterward. Although I'm young enough to have more, I won't. No more could I let another woman raise my kids. Today, I dream about the time I can slow down. I tell Mooney that then we'll buy us a big house—maybe even 30 or 40 rooms, and we'll fill that house with runaway kids. I mean I'm just gonna grab me an armful of kids who need a mama and I'm gonna love 'em up in my home. Maybe that will take away some of the sadness I always feel."

"I've told my children constantly that I love them—but, unfortunately, I often did it by phone."

"I've been what you might call a traveling saleslady of song. I've told my children constantly that I love them—but, unfortunately, I often did it by phone. I've always believed, because I've had to believe, that it is the quality rather than the quantity of time spent that is important in raising a child. But it's a conflict I have never resolved.

"As my family's sole support, I worked to keep my kids in a fine home

LYNN ANDERSON

"What am I to do with this gorgeous creature named Lisa? 'Be her mother,' was the answer I kept hearing in my head. And that is what I have been, but not without difficulty, and certainly not without conflict."

"My first reaction to motherhood was panic. What am I to do with this gorgeous creature named Lisa? 'Be her mother,' was the answer I kept hearing in my head. And that is what I have been, but not without difficulty, and certainly not without conflict.

"I needed to pursue my career or I would have felt a void in my own personal development, but I needed to be a wife and mother even more. What I have done is to work only on weekends, and without Lisa (who's now four) accompanying me. A performance demands your total concentration. So does a child. Thus, when I work, I work. But at home, I am Lisa's mother. I do all the cooking and cleaning and love it!

"What I hate most about being a working mother is leaving my daughter's mind to a stranger. It's been hard for me to find someone who won't fill my child's head with unnecessary fears or prejudices. I want my girl to make her own choices. Young as she is, I try to make Lisa see both sides of an issue. I hope she will always do this. If I give her nothing more, I want her free to question everything and then make a decision that she will also feel free to change if new thought dictates that.

"Someday, I hope to give Lisa a brother. I would like to adopt—maybe a child of another race or nationality. Yes, that will pose difficulties, but I feel we could cope with it."

in a fine neighborhood, with fine private schools. Financial obligations kept me on the road 26 weeks a year. Although they were never consecutive, they were still times spent across a continent learning from others that your baby took her first step or said his first words.

"I hated it then; I hate it today. But now that both kids, Kathleen and Danny, are pre-teen, they understand that my absences are not rejections of them but simply a matter of business. And they remember when I tried to take them on the road with me. That was awful! A nightclub entertainer beds down just as her children awake. We rarely saw one another, and after a while I began to realize the craps tables in Vegas were not the best playground for a child.

"I do not work Christmas, Easter or my kids' birthdays. The month after school recesses is ours to spend at the shore or wherever we choose. And it is a collective choice. Although I have raised my kids with rules, it has not been with an iron fist. I do not believe parentage is a dictatorship. I have encouraged them to speak their minds. They are feisty-but-not-fresh kids. As I keep telling them, both from near and 'long distance,' I want, need and love them very much. To which both have said the most gorgeous words ever spoken: 'We know Mama.'" Continued

The ingot, a full ounce of precious silver, is entitled "Father's Joy" and depicts a father and his sons sharing a great American pastime, a football game. The design in high relief, is an original work of art by Konrad Hack. Famous Mothers

TERESA BREWER

"Fourteen weeks per year was all I would give to maintaining the Teresa Brewer name. My kids grew up knowing what family means."

"When I married at 18, I vowed my children would have a normal homelife. I could have been a film or stage star, but I placed the children before my career. My kids are Kathleen, 24, Susan, 23, Megan, 20, and Michele, 17, and for me, the greatest reward is motherhood.

"My children were never subjected to the road but remained at home, in school and within a very protective environment. Fourteen weeks per year was all I would give to maintaining the Teresa Brewer name. My kids grew up knowing what family means. We are still close and none seems to be in a hurry to marry, as they all continue to live with me.

"But they are fiercely independent. From the earliest, I felt it important to let my children make their own mistakes. I would have done anything to spare my girls any pain. But life is frequently about pain, and I couldn't inoculate my kids against it. Each of my girls has known sorrow and each has learned to stand tall when dealing with it.

"Ours is an open relationship. We discuss things as 'girls' and not as mother/daughter. I have insisted my kids know who I am as a person and not just as a mother. I have tried to know them individually as people and not as my children. I have never entered a discussion with them thinking, 'Mother is always right.'

"From the beginning, I've tried to help my kids believe in themselves. Each girl has an ability to live her own life. I wish each a nice man and the joys that I have known as a mother."

NANCY WILSON

"Times were when I would prop up a huge poster of Kacy onstage and dedicate my closing number to him. It was a poor substitute."

"My son Kacy has always come first. I have refused work because it would keep me away from home longer than I feel a mother should absent herself from her family. Unfortunately, before remarrying recently, I had to work. The conflict caused by the separations from my son was awful. More for me, I suspect, than for him. Times were when I would prop up a huge poster of Kacy onstage and dedicate my closing number to him. It was a poor substitute.

"Because I worried about the lack of both father and mother in Kacy's life, I tried for two years to earn my living solely by working the TV variety shows based in Los Angeles, where I lived. But no one is that welcome a guest, so I had to take to road work again. But I never took Kacy. I believe a child belongs in school and at home rather than in the wings of a stage somewhere in America.

"Through it all, I left something with Kacy that I believe sustained him. Love and respect. I love him for the person he is and not as a possession of motherhood. With Kacy, this is not hard to do. He is a gorgeous, bright, sunny Aquarian, as is that other wonder of my life, my new husband and Kacy's father.

"Shortly, we will be presenting a new brother or sister to Kacy, and I will try to be to him or her what I have always tried to be to my son—a mother first, a performer last. The public Nancy Wilson remains on her doorstep outside her home. Some folks say they don't need to perform and think they mean it. I know I do. I love to sing, but it needn't be on a stage or before a public. I can be quite happy sitting in my own home, rocking my baby and singing the first gold record I ever had—"How Glad I Am!"—and meaning every word of it."

Astrology reveals - Mary Tyler Moore and Rhoda were destined to reach super stardom after 30!

By Tom Kennedy

Don't trust anyone over 30 - to make it big? It sure hasn't stopped 37 year old Mary Tyler Moore and 34 year old Valerie Harper. Astrology proves that you don't have to be a teenager to be a successful part of today's youth-oriented society.

Mary's horoscope shows that her big success was destined to come after 30, due to the movement of Saturn. Saturn crossed the position it occupied at the time of Mary's birth around her 30th birthday. This powerful planet position produces a spectacular situation which gives great strength to a person's past efforts. In Mary's case, her endeavor to reach real success. Today she is considered TV's newest tycoon, certainly evidence of Astrology's accuracy!

At 34, Valerie Harper is in the prime rays of Saturn and, therefore, enjoying a sort of rebirth and the success shown in her natal chart.

Astrologers have questioned the compatibility of Mary and Valerie. Seemingly, Mary's earth sign, Capricorn, and Valerie's fire sign, Leo, are not harmonious - until a closer look is taken. Then, it is seen that both have the Moon and Venus in the 8th house in water signs, Cancer and Scorpio. This tends to upset the imbalance of earth and fire by overpowering the rays with love and emotion.

But still their personalities are different as night and day. Valerie is a rebel with many causes. She even telegraphed President Ford protesting his pardoning of Nixon and is well-known around the White House. She's been involved in picketing various establishments while Mary is pretty much establishment herself. Uranus in Valerie's 7th house is responsible for this side of her nature and pushes her to fight for what she believes.

Valerie wonders if she has the discipline for stardom. She says, "I have the desire to goof off!" It's that old devil Moon in her 8th house that gives her this streak of laziness but according to all indications, she has little to worry about!

Mary Tyler Moore and Valerie Harper are over thirty but by no means over the hill! They are super stars today and things look bigger and better for the future. Astrology predicted it all!

ASTROLOGY AFFECTS US ALL

Mary Tyler Moore and Valerie Harper are not the only people affected by Astrology. Because you were born, you yourself have a unique natal horoscope, different from all others. I'll show you what it can mean to you by using another celebrity for my example.

Sonny Bono is a typical outgoing, nonconforming Aquarius. His horoscope didn't predict real financial success until after 30 either. When he made his first million, Astrologers warned against an investment he wanted to make. In spite of these warnings, Sonny put his money into two movies that turned out to be box office disasters and lost everything. But he wasn't to be kept down. In just five years he was again a millionaire and vowed never to invest without the approval of his Astrologer. Sonny's horoscope showed that his breakup with Cher could have been avoided. Luckily, it also predicted that they'll be back together again soon.

THE TRUTH ABOUT ASTROLOGY

How does your natal horoscope work? An astrologer will chart the positions of the sun, moon, and eight planets as they appear above your place of birth at your exact time of birth. The placements and angular relationships of these bodies make up your natal chart. This means that someone born at the exact same time as you, but in a different city, will have a different chart.

The written interpretation and analysis of your natal chart is called your natal horoscope. Astrology is not fortune telling and your horoscope does not cause things to happen to you. Your horoscope analyzes your personality, and then tells you what things are most likely to happen. But remember, your free will can override events in your life, if you put your mind to it.

As you've seen from the examples I've given you, some of the most famous people used their horoscope to reach success; but in other instances ignored it and faced failure. There are thousands of different ways to achieve wealth, love, success and happiness.

A good example is Euell Gibbons, the naturalist, whose interest is plants. He has published several books and appeared on the Johnny Carson show. Many people consider him odd. But his career has bought him happiness and wealth.

Each and everyone of us is good at something no matter how odd one's talents may seem to others. Your horoscope will tell you what you're good at. So why beat your brains out on an area that you're not talented in, when an equal amount of time spent on something you're good at would put you much further ahead. Not only will you get ahead, but you'll be relaxed and happy while you're doing it.

Your horoscope will give you an indepth analysis of your personality. It will point out your strengths and show you how to utilize them. It will also discuss your weaker areas, and allow you to compensate for them.

Because your natal horoscope is such a sophisticated analysis of your personality, it will probe your subconscious mind and seek out your hidden talents. These are the areas where you thought you had talent (writing, E.S.P., sex appeal, public relations, athletics, etc.) but were afraid to try. If you've been waiting for someone to give you a little push, let your horoscope be that someone. It will give you the confidence to start using your hidden talents.

Summed up, your natal horoscope will discuss your personality, lovelife, career, finances, and health. It will help you understand and accept yourself for what you are. It will then show you where your talents lie and set you on a course of self-improvement, self-fulfillment, and true happiness.

As the old saying goes, "You only live once." Will you miss your success opportunities? Will you stumble into pitfalls you could have avoided, like Sonny Bono did? Don't you owe it to your loved ones to seize every precious moment of your life and make the best of it. Why not give yourself every advantage with the added edge of your personal natal horoscope.

For a limited time, during this special research project, you can get your personal natal horoscope for nearly a copying cost. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process - FREE. And you can use your horoscope for a full year on an absolutely no risk guarantee. The article below will tell you how to order your horoscope. For your own sake, please don't pass up this once in a lifetime opportunity.

Limited Time Only Research Project

How to get your Personal Natal Horoscope for nearly a copying cost

Send me your exact time and place of birth. I'll cast and analyze your natal horoscope for research purposes. You may have a duplicate copy of your horoscope for only $3.00 to cover the cost to make your copy plus 50¢ postage and handling. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process FREE - because of the fact we must produce your horoscope for research anyhow.

Your natal horoscope will consist of 9 pages, and 3,000 words and will provide you all of the following benefits: (Note: This is our new improved horoscope.)

- Your horoscope will help you understand and accept yourself. It will analyze your personality and explain your strengths and talents in detail. It will also point out your shortcomings and advise you on how to improve.
- Everyone of us has hidden talents just waiting to be tapped. Your horoscope will discuss your hidden talents (sex appeal, E.S.P., writing, athletics, public relations, etc.) and show you how to cash in on them.
- Your horoscope will give you an indepth analysis of your love life. Personally tailored advice on how to enjoy a more fulfilling sex life will be offered. You'll be told who you're compatible with and why and shown how to find romance. Once you find it, your horoscope will help you keep it burning hot.

- Your horoscope will instill confidence in you by showing you what you're good at. It will place you in the proper frame of mind to begin a program of all around self-improvement.
- The types of jobs and careers that you are best suited for will be listed. You'll be told which careers will bring you success and happiness and which jobs to avoid.
- Your financial future will be covered. Your attitude towards money and the best ways for you to make money will be discussed.
- Areas of your body which may pose health problems are pointed out. Tips on dieting are also offered.
- Your marital and family relationships are analyzed with emphasis on getting along with your mate, your children and your relatives.

There's no need to worry about finding out about an unavoidable coming disaster through your chart. As mentioned, astrology deals in potentials. Your free will can override potentials if you know about them. In any case, the policy of qualified astrologers is positive astrology. If there is something negative in your chart, you are told what you can do to make it positive.

When casting your horoscope, we conform to the strictest scientific principles. First the longitude and latitude of your place of birth will be charted down to the hundredth of a degree. Then any time changes due to World War II will be taken into consideration. Finally your longitude and latitude and exact time of birth will be key punched into our gigantic IBM 370 computer, which contains over 24 million bits of authenticated astrological information. No two horoscopes produced by our computer are ever alike. Your horoscope will carry your name on every page and will be cast from your exact time and place of birth for you and you alone. So you can be sure that your horoscope will not be the worthless type found in paperbacks.

A similar horoscope could cost up to $250 if done by an astrologer. But THERE'S ABSOLUTELY NO CATCH to this offer. I need this information for my astrological research. I'm looking for certain planet configurations from the people who mail in birth information. (People who fit this group can receive extra bonuses by filling out a research questionnaire.)

This research project has appeared in BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS, PARADE, FAMILY WEEKLY, SUNDAY MAGAZINE, LADY'S HOME JOURNAL, REDBOOK, McCALLS, WOMAN'S DAY, and other publications. The response has been tremendous with over 500,000 people now enjoying their natal horoscope. But that's what's so frustrating. We may never be able to run this article again. Inflation has pushed our computer, advertising, postage, and printing costs almost to the point of no return.

So for a limited time, we're gathering all the names we possibly can to finish our research project. If you'd like to help us with our research and take advantage of this special offer by ordering natal horoscopes for yourself, for your family or your friends, simply do this: Send me the name, address, time, date, month, year and place of birth for each person on a piece of paper along with the $3.00 copying cost and 50¢ postage for each horoscope. (If you don't know your exact time of birth we'll use 12:00 noon.) If you have Master Charge, BankAmericard, or American Express, you may charge your purchase by sending the following information: A. Name of your credit card B. Credit card number C. Card expiration date.

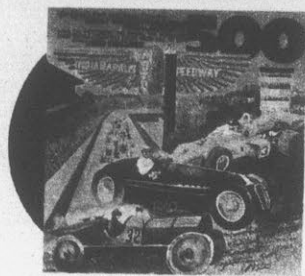

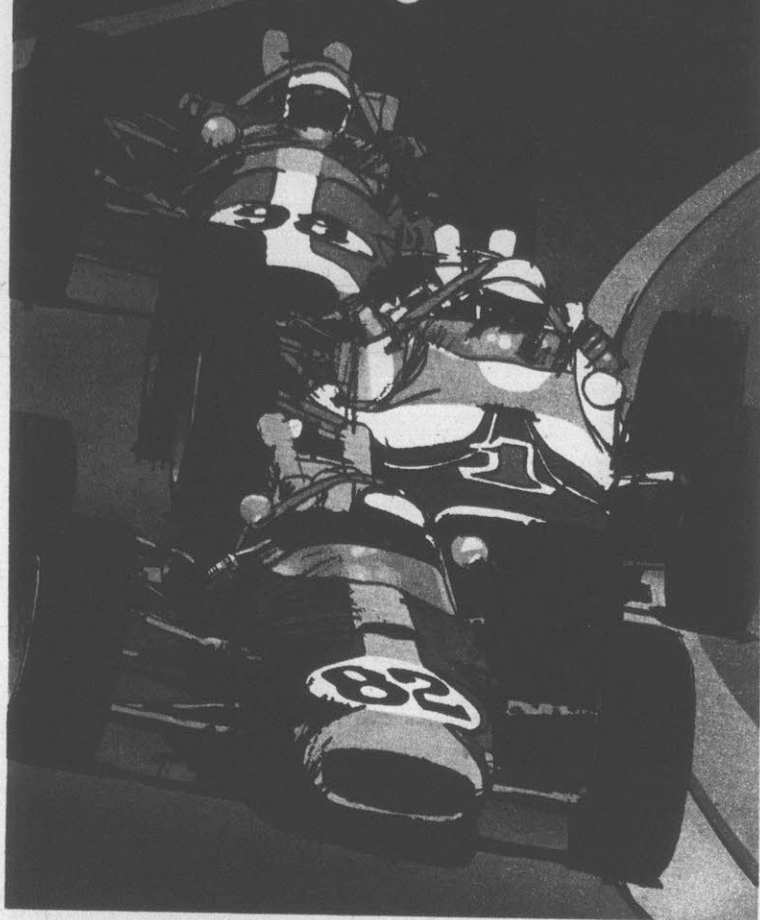

Mail your orders to the AMERICAN ASTROLOGICAL ASSOCIATION, Research Division, Dept. D-3, 401 Market Ave., N., Canton, Ohio 44702.

Your natal horoscope is covered by a one year - 365 day - full money back guarantee. If you have any questions, call me, John F. Ford, President, the American Astrological Association. Telephone me at (216) 478-2171. To avoid disappointment, why not order your horoscope right now, before you forget. Thanks.

A Fun Mexican Menu For Teenagers

Ripe Olive 'n' Chicken Tostadas*
Soda Sangria*
Quick Mexican Crullers*
Toasted Almond Brownies
Bowl of Oranges and Bananas

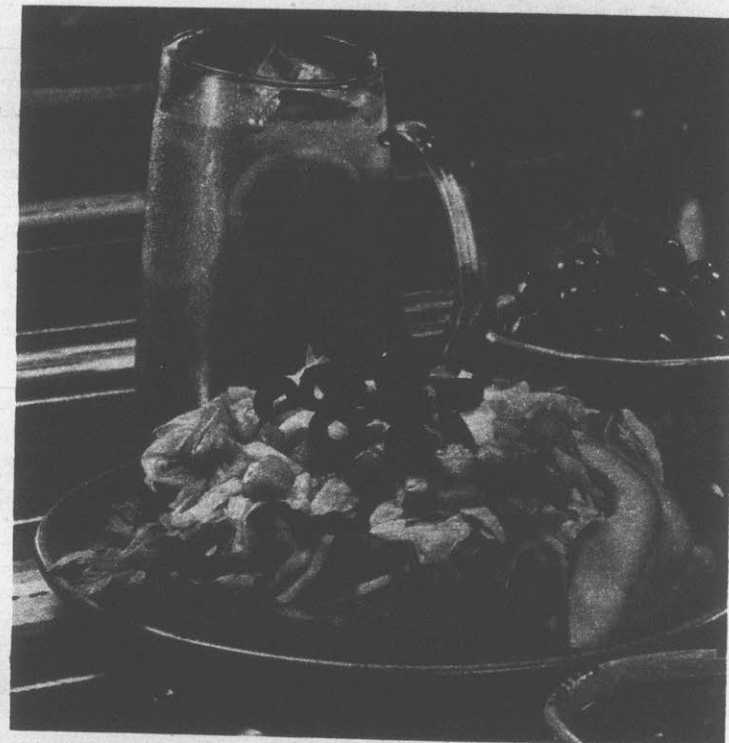

*Recipe given

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen tells teenagers how to make tostadas. "Mexican food is really 'in,'" says Marilyn. "Here's a simple party menu for teens that uses all the great ingredients, from taco sauce to refried beans—and is topped off with Soda Sangria."

RIPE OLIVE 'N' CHICKEN TOSTADAS

2 pkgs. (1 1/4 -oz. size) taco seasoning mix
2 cups water
3 cups shredded cooked chicken
2 cans (5 1/4 -oz. size) sliced ripe olives
Vegetable oil
1 can (11 ozs.) tortillas
2 cans (15 1/2 -oz. size) refried beans
2 cups shredded Cheddar or Jack cheese
3 cups shredded lettuce
4 tomatoes, chopped
1 cup sour cream
1/2 cup sliced green onions
1 avocado, peeled and sliced
Taco sauce or green-chili salsa, optional

1. In medium saucepan, combine taco mix with water; stir until dissolved. Heat to boiling; reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes. Add chicken and olives; simmer another 2 or 3 minutes, stirring occasionally.
2. Heat about 1/2 inch vegetable oil in skillet until hot but not smoking. Fry tortillas quickly, 2 at a time, until crisp on both sides; drain on paper towels.
3. Heat refried beans in small saucepan, stirring occasionally.
4. Place tortillas on two large serving platters. Spread beans over tortillas. Spoon chicken-olive mixture over beans.

5. Top with cheese, lettuce and tomatoes. For final touch, add a dollop of sour cream and a sprinkle of onions. Arrange avocado slices along side of dish. Pass taco sauce, if desired.

Mexican Party Hint

Our tostada toppings are only a start. Vary toppings to your taste. Why not try sliced hard-cooked egg, mashed avocado, crisp bacon strips, fresh bean sprouts or shredded carrot?

I remember when I first started doing 'Room 222' on television, I had a horrible complexion. People would come up and say, 'Oh, you're all broken out.' What an unthinking thing to say! Almond Vegetables Mandarin Toss in a helping handful of  Almonds!

Add a few almonds, cook vegetables the stir-fry way, and suddenly old standbys like carrots and cauliflower turn into something sensational. Tossing in a few almonds as you cook is so easy and so rewarding. Almonds add a pleasant crispness, fresh eye appeal and a nice nutty flavor to everything from appetizers to desserts. And remember, for choice, fresh almonds, look for the Blue Diamond brand on tins and cello packs, from the Almond People in California.

ALMOND VEGETABLES MANDARIN

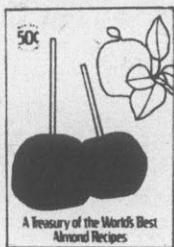

1 cup thinly-sliced carrots
1 cup green beans cut about 1 inch
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 cup thinly-sliced cauliflower
½ cup sliced green onion
1 cup water
2 teaspoons chicken stock base
2 teaspoons cornstarch
Pinch garlic powder
½ cup unblanched whole almonds

Cook and stir carrots and beans with oil in skillet (or electric skillet) over medium high heat 2 minutes. Add cauliflower and onion; cook 1 minute longer. Add mix of water, chicken stock base, cornstarch and garlic. Cook and stir until thickened. Vegetables should be crisp-tender. If they need further cooking, reduce heat, cover and steam to desired doneness. Add almonds. Recipe may be doubled only; do not make larger quantity at one time.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Are Women Emotionally Superior To Men?

True or False: When men and women become depressed to the breaking point, it's usually for entirely different reasons. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Women are more unselfish and more considerate of others than men are.
2. Men tend to be frank and open about their fears and apprehensions, while women are inclined to keep their anxieties bottled up and pretend they don't exist.
3. When men and women become depressed to the breaking point, it's usually for entirely different reasons.
4. If a man is smart enough, he can outthink a woman in virtually any situation.
5. When it comes to judging others, women are more charitable than men.
6. A man perceives himself differently than a woman so far as his looks are concerned.

ANSWERS

1. True—according to the findings of a university study in which a team of psychologists subjected men and women students to a battery of character and personality tests. Results: The women scored significantly higher than the men on measurements of altruism and concern for the welfare of others. The women also tended to view others as more unselfish and more sympathetic than did the men.
2. False. A study of men and women under conditions of stress showed that women were "better able to express their anxieties directly by verbalizing about them, whereas men tended to express anxiety through bodily ills such as ulcers and various other stress ailments."
3. True. National Institute of Mental Health studies show that when a woman is on the verge of going off the deep end, it's likely to be because of interpersonal friction, the breaking up or estrangement of relationships with people who mean a great deal to her. Not so with men. A man's depression "tends to be preceded more by job loss, difficulties with the law and alcoholism." And the man most critically affected by these considerations, it was found, is the one who is a loner.

4. False. When it comes to outthinking and outmaneuvering a determined woman, brains aren't enough—particularly when emotional considerations are involved. A woman is likely to acquit herself best when pitted against a worthy adversary. But she isn't likely to do as well with the type of clown who couldn't think his way out of a paper bag—he's too unpredictable. Kipling, who understood women pretty well, summed it up succinctly when he observed that "the silliest woman can manage a clever man; but it needs a very clever woman to manage a fool!"

5. True—as evidenced by a study conducted by University of California investigators. A panel of psychologists, consisting of 10 men and 13 women, was given the task of evaluating the personalities of 98 men and women. The differences in rating performances were both interesting and significant. The women judges were more charitable, ascribing more favorable characteristics to both the men and women than the male judges did.

6. True. As one authority observes, "While a man perceives his face and body as a unit, a woman sees them as two separate entities. A woman's face is the canvas on which she paints a revised, corrected image of herself. A man's face is defined as something he doesn't have to tamper with." It's pointed out that men are not under the same relentless pressures to remain physically attractive; that aging carries far fewer penalties for men than for women; and that while a man is said to get "older and wiser," femininity is associated with docility, noncompetitiveness and "being nice"—and these qualities do not improve with age.

Pitcher DON SUTTON:

Did Hypnosis Play a Role in Last Year's Pennant Race?

Hypnosis may be carnival-trick stuff to some people, but not to Los Angeles Dodger pitcher Don Sutton. Sutton says hypnosis was his secret weapon in effecting a dramatic turnaround last season, which saw him win 16 of his last 17 games and clinch the National League flag for his team. Sutton had worked his way up to the $100,000 bracket by winning 19 games in 1972 and 18 in 1973 as well as by being tabbed twice for the NL's All-Star team. He continued his winning streak early last year, posting a 6-2 record before he plunged into an uncountable slump in which he started 14 games without winning a single one. He became so depressed he worried openly that the Dodgers would trade him. Even his five-year-old son went around telling his friends, "We're going to have to move from here."... Sutton was in the Dodger clubhouse one day when he picked up a magazine and read about the way hypnosis has helped certain athletes. He arranged an appointment with hypnotist Arthur Ellis. "I had my doubts about the whole thing because I'm a strict fundamentalist Protestant and I wondered how this would fit in with my beliefs," Sutton recalls. But his wife Patricia encouraged him to go, and not long afterward he beat Houston and went on to win 13 of his last 14 regular-season games... Just what did Ellis do for the Dodger pitcher? Sutton says his problem was that he was thinking negatively—he was so worried he was going to make mistakes that he actually forced himself into making the mistakes. Ellis convinced him to think positively and to have confidence in his natural ability... Sutton was helped, too, by the fact that manager Walt Alton never gave up on him. Alton never removed him from the starting rotation even when he was at his lowest ebb. "I knew Don was a good enough pitcher to find his way out of his temporary trouble," says the manager. The 30-year-old Sutton is a native of Clio, Ala. The L.A. organization signed Sutton in 1965, and he came up to the major-league team the following year. —By Barry Abramson

DAVID PROWITT
New insights into mental illness

Some interesting facts about mental illness: "Last year we spent $568 million on cancer research, a disease that affects one million people; $190 million on heart disease, which affects 15 million people; and $6 million on mental illness, which affects 19 million Americans." The speaker is David Prowitt, executive producer of the widely acclaimed public-television series "The Thin Edge," which will air the fourth of five segments on mental illness on May 12. Prowitt told FAMILY WEEKLY, "Until recently, the subject of mental health was not dealt with openly outside of superficial cocktail-party conversation. We were afraid to admit our emotional anxieties. But we have begun to look at depression, aggression, guilt, anxiety and sexual crisis more realistically. We now know some guilt is necessary for children; young people learn moral standards through guilt. We accept the fact that we are all prone to anxiety; it's not an upper-middle-class phenomenon. As man realizes that happiness is not the norm—that we should pursue it, but not anticipate it—then mental disorders can be greatly diminished."

QUOTE: "Oh, but author John O'Hara was a difficult man! Indeed, there are those who would describe him as impossible, and they would have their reasons. . . . Once it befell that Robert Benchley and his daughter-in-law Marjorie, catching sight of O'Hara at '21,' called him over to their table. Marjorie said, 'John, we've just been seeing 'Pal Joey' again, and, do you know, I like it even better than I did the first time.' O'Hara: 'What was the matter with it the first time?'" From "Here at the New Yorker," by Brendan Gill (Random House, $12.95). UNQUOTE.

HERB ALPERT
Why he's coming out of "retirement"

During the sixties, Herb Alpert sold about 45 million records—then "disappeared." Here's the way Alpert explained it recently to FAMILY WEEKLY: "About the middle of 1969 I became bored doing concerts and I sensed that the Tijuana Brass sound was becoming repetitious. My personal problems compounded my professional worries. My horn became my enemy. I just couldn't play it. So I broke up the group and retired—took a sabbatical, anyway. I was consumed with guilt at having gotten where I was without suffering. I wanted to struggle, fall flat on my face and pick myself up again." And did he succeed at his desire to fail? Well, not exactly. As co-owner of the enormously successful A & M Record Company, Alpert continued to become what he calls "ridiculously rich." So he's returning to performing again. And, yes, he's even made friends with his trumpet.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY By Richard Armour

TREE TOPPED

I wonder just how it would be
If man were somewhat like a tree
And grew a head of hair each spring,
Then in the winter lost the thing.
If hair and leaves were thus the same
I might feel just a little shame
In winter months, with head all bare,
But, spring ahead, I wouldn't care!

The young woman eyed her escort with disapproval. "That's the fifth time you've gone back for more cake, Bill," she said coldly. "Doesn't it embarrass you at all?" "Why should it?" the young man shrugged. "I keep telling them I'm getting it for you."

—Thomas LaMance

To market, to market,
To look for a roast;
Home again, home again . . .
Tuna on toast. —Conrad Fiorello

A Moscow professor told his class that interplanetary junketing was definitely in the cards. "We will be able to travel to Mars, Pluto and Venus. Are there any questions?" A young Russian in the rear raised his hand and asked in a quavering voice, "When can we travel to Vienna?" —Dorothea Kent

The number of idle workers in this country would be much greater if a lot were included who have jobs.
—Franklin P. Jones

The driving instructor sighed as he watched his nervous pupil clutching the wheel after the driving lesson. "We have a few minutes left," he said. "Shall I show you how to fill in accident forms?"
—Lucille S. Harper

A fellow was pounding a candy machine. Finally, a candy bar dropped out. A bystander cracked, "They sure make you work for your dime, don't they?" Said the pounder: "I wouldn't know. I didn't put one in."

I did not want to destroy a nice box in which my daughter gave me a gift, so I took it back to her. My little granddaughter met me at the door and took the box. Opening it, she called disappointedly to her mother, "Mama, Grandma brought us an empty present."

"Good ol' Charlie Brown"

by mort walker

TIGER

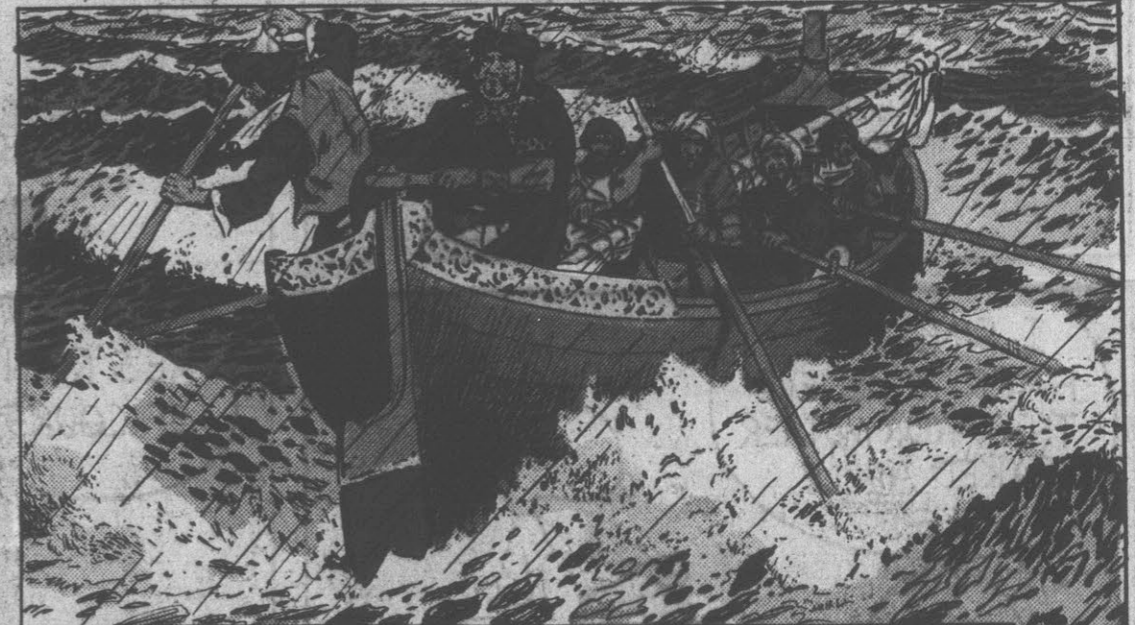

by BUD BLAKE

Our Story: THE BATTLE BEGINS, ARCHERS LEADING THE WAY FILLING THE AIR WITH A CLOUD OF ARROWS. QUIVERS ARE EMPTIED AND NOW EACH SIDE MUST RETRIEVE THE SPENT ARROWS OF THE ENEMY TO CONTINUE THE ASSAULT.

VAL'S STRATEGY IS A SUCCESS. THE SMALLER NOCK OF THE NORTHMEN'S ARROWS WILL NOT FIT THE THICK BOWSTRINGS OF THE CORSAIRS' BOWS. THEY ARE USELESS.

A TRUMPET SOUNDS AND THE WARRIORS OF THESSALRIGA CHARGE, SHOUTING. IN PANIC THE PIRATES FLEE TO THEIR OWN TIGHTLY PACKED LINE, AND IN THEIR STRUGGLE TO GET THROUGH TO SAFETY, HINDER THEIR COMRADES.

WHILE CONFUSION REIGNS, PRINCE VALIANT RELEASES HIS SECRET WEAPON: THE MOUNTED TROOP HE HAD BEEN TRAINING. THE THUNDER OF POUNDING HOOVES, THE GLEAMING LANCE-POINTS, IS MORE THAN THIS VICIOUS RIFFRAFF OF THE SEA CAN FACE. THE BATTLE IS WON. THE SLAUGHTER BEGINS.

BELLA GROSSI WATCHES THE TIDE OF BATTLE TURN AGAINST HIM, AND HIS DREAM OF BECOMING MASTER OF THE BALTIC FADES.

NEXT WEEK - Bella Grossi's Return
