No Plans For Evacuation As Laos Crumbles

By The Associated Press
The State Department says the United States has no plans to evacuate the 1,000 Americans in Laos although the Communist Pathet Lao apparently are taking over the landlocked Indochinese kingdom.

"The situation doesn't appear to warrant it," said a State Department spokesman in Washington.

In Bangkok, the Thai government said it would propose to the Association of Southeast Asian Nations that North Vietnam, South Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos and Burma be included in the grouping "because the region has found peace."

The association, which meets Tuesday in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, includes Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, the Philippines and Thailand.

In Saigon, the Roman Catholic archbishop, Nguyen Van

Binh, called on Catholics to put forth "maximum efforts to rebuild the nation and contribute to national reconciliation and concord so as to create a thorough mutual understanding." A communique from the archbishop was read at the Saigon cathedral during the Sunday morning Mass. A report on the communique was received in New York today from an Associated Press correspondent in Saigon.

Vientiane, the Laotian capital, remained calm following a speech Sunday in which Premier Souvanna Phouma in effect conceded that the Pathet Lao now control the coalition government of rightists, leftists and neutralists established under a 1973 peace accord.

"Important changes have taken place which some had not expected so suddenly, but they are here," said the 73-year-old premier, a neutralist who for years tried unsuccessfully to forge a balance between the conservatives and Communists.

"We must stop the fighting. The war has reached an end," Souvanna Phouma told a meeting of high-ranking officials attended by King Savang Vathana. "...It is our great chance to preserve our country from further bloodshed which surely would take place if one continued to ignore the march of historical events."

The premier's speech followed the Communist victories in Cambodia and South Vietnam, attacks by Pathet Lao forces on various positions held by the rightist Royal Laotian Army, the resignation of four of the six rightist members of Souvanna Phouma's coalition cabinet and the removal of three top-ranking rightist generals from their army commands.

HOT BLAZE . . . A fireman runs from the heat as flames leap through cracks in the metal siding of a storage warehouse at the intersection of 12th and Pitt Streets late Saturday night. Fire officers said the blaze was reported at 11:50 p.m. and indicated the

Israeli Take 5 Suspects In Lebanon Raid

By The Associated Press
An Israeli army raiding party crossed into southern Lebanon this morning in an antiterrorist operation and captured five suspected guerrillas, one of them a woman, the Israeli command said.

It said the raiders hit three villages about two miles across the border, the same area where at least two incidents of shelling by Lebanese gunners have been reported this month.

By Israeli accounts, the raid broke a lull in Israeli incursions into Lebanon that had lasted since Jan. 15.

Lebanese officials charged that Israeli commandos kidnaped five men and a woman and blew up a cafe in the raids.

Among those abducted was Dr. Ahmed Murad, a member of the Politburo of the Lebanese Communist party, an official said in Bint Jbail, the village in which the cafe was reported dynamited. The owner of the cafe also was taken prisoner, the official said.

The official in Bint Jbail said the Israeli force numbered about 100 men. He said four other Lebanese were taken from the villages of Ait el-Shaab and Ait Aroun after a house-to-house search.

Lebanon has also charged Israel with four mine-laying missions on the Lebanese side of the border in the past five weeks.

The mine layers apparently were trying to block routes that the Palestine guerrillas might use for raids into northern Israel.

The guerrillas have taken renewed hope from the fall of the U.S.-backed governments in Indochina. Yasir Arafat, the chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization, cabled the Viet Cong that its "victory over American imperialism and its agents in your country has given us limitless confidence to pursue and strengthen our struggle the same way you did."

Other Mideast developments: Egypt and the wealthy Persian Gulf oil states of Saudi Arabia, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates contributed $1.04 billion in capital to form The Arab Authority for Military Industry, the first major step toward establishing an arms industry. Its first project is expected to be establishment of an arms plant in Egypt.

Officials in Jerusalem said Israel has told the United States it will make no gesture toward Egypt to welcome the reopening of the Suez Canal, from which Israeli ships will still be barred. State Department officials in Washington spoke of the possibility of another Israeli withdrawal a few miles east of the canal to demonstrate a willingness to pursue peace with Egypt.

Israel and the European Common Market signed a comprehensive trade pact in Brussels as a further step toward lowering tariff barriers and strengthening commercial links. Israeli sources said the agreement will give some protection to European companies threatened with reprisals by Arab countries for trading with Israel.

Defense Minister Sisouk Na Champassak and Finance Minister Ngon Sananikone, two of the strongest rightists, were among those who resigned. Diplomats in Vientiane expect the three-faction "Government of National Union" to continue, but predict the new rightist ministers will be men of less stature who will pose no challenge to Pathet Lao control.

In the wake of the Pathet Lao army attacks and a student demonstration Friday against the U.S. Embassy, a number of high-ranking officials associated with rightist, pro-American groups left Vientiane, along with Vietnamese and Chinese businessmen. But the city was peaceful Sunday on the Constitution Day holiday.

The Laotian government in a broadcast Sunday night appealed to the populace to remain calm and said Laotian and foreign residents were prohibited from leaving the country. The broadcast charged "certain rightist groups" were trying to panic the population with rumors of bloodshed.

Champassak and Sananikone were among those who fled to

Large Storage Building Burns

A late night fire destroyed a tin-covered storage building at the intersection of 12th and Pitt Streets, Saturday, resulting in more than $40,000 damage.

Fire officers said the blaze was reported at 11:50 p.m. They said the building was completely involved when the first units arrived minutes after the fire was reported, with flames breaking through the roof at the front of the structure.

Investigators, who are trying to determine the cause of the fire, said the blaze apparently started at the rear of the building.

Owned by L. H. Whitehurst and Robert Lee O'Neal, the 15,970 square foot building, according to Pitt County Tax records, was valued at $11,620.

Whitehurst said his flooring firm and three other companies had building material and other items stored in the facility.

Ed Tipton of Tipton Builders had some building material in the facility, as well as some personal items of furniture. Tipton estimated the value of his property at $25,000. Bob Smith of Greenville who reportedly had some building material and furniture stored in the building could not be reached for comment.

John White of White's Insulation said his firm had an estimated $6,500 worth of material, including some insulation and a flooring machine stored there.

Welfare Errors Resulted In $1 Billion In Overpayments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mistakes by state and local officials who administer the government's largest welfare program caused an estimated $500 million in erroneous payments last year, a new study says.

Another $500 million was spent erroneously because of incorrect information from welfare recipients about factors that determine eligibility for payments, according to the study by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Analyzing payments under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program between January and June 1974, the study found 9.3 per cent of AFDC families ineligible, 20.6 per cent overpaid and 8 per cent underpaid.

Seven of 10 errors by state officials resulted from failure to take action on information they possessed about AFDC families' circumstances, the report said. For example, welfare officials might not reduce payments to a family even though they have copies of birth certificates and can determine when children turn 18 and no longer are eligible.

Three out of four errors blamed on recipients involved failure to report changes in family income, the report said.

About $8 billion is distributed through the AFDC program to about 3 million families each year.

Filipinos Plan For The Day Of U.S. Withdrawal

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The Philippine government is making plans to convert Clark Air Base, America's largest overseas military installation, into a university complex in expectation of a U.S. withdrawal, a well-informed columnist reported today.

"We are already drawing plans for the day when we can make the Americans go," wrote Teodoro F. Valencia, who is closely identified with the martial law regime of President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

"Clark will become a big university complex, to move out many of the overcrowded institutions of higher learning in the greater Manila area," he said.

Valencia added that a "new big city" will be built around the original Clark headquarters 50 miles north of Manila and that the target ranges and reserves at Clark and Subic Naval Station will be converted into agricultural areas. Modern superhighways will connect both areas to Manila, he said.

Marcos and his government have begun a review of U.S.-Philippine military and defense agreements in light of what he has termed the American abandonment of Cambodia and South Vietnam. At the same time, Marcos is stressing the need to improve relations with China and the Soviet Union. He has said the Philippines and the United States will start negotiations over the bases "within weeks."

The United States maintains at least 17,000 servicemen plus about 70,000 family members and Filipino employees at Clark and Subic, which have been used as stopovers in the evacuation airlift from Saigon.

American officials here have said that the operation at Clark alone is worth about $165 million a year to the Philippine economy.

Ready To Close Schools

BOSTON (AP) — The federal judge overseeing Boston school integration said today he may order two high schools closed if necessary to head off potentially violent racial tension.

U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. said tensions at South Boston High School and Hyde Park High School have been building for several days and were heightened by the release of his new school integration plan on Saturday.

"The court feels that it has an obligation to do whatever it can to head off an explosive situation in two of the schools that could cause serious injury to young people," the judge said.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old girl, graduating from high school this June. My problem is my parents. They don't want me to have anything to do with my boyfriend, who is 19, because I've been impregnated by him three times.

The first two times I was forced to get abortions, and the third time I waited too long, had the baby and placed him for adoption.

My parents have also heard bad things about my boyfriend, but he did those things when he was 15 and 16, and he has reformed now. He has a job and is staying out of trouble.

Abby, there is absolutely no way I could ever stop seeing him. He's a lot of fun to be with, and we love each other and want to get married some day. Please don't tell me to date others because he is the only one for me. We've been going steady for five years and don't like to sneak around behind my parents' backs. Please help me convince them to let me see him.

IN LOVE IN N.J.

DEAR IN: Sorry. I can't blame them for feeling as they do. They have been through three nightmarish experiences with you, and they're not looking for a fourth. When you have matured and are on your own, you won't need their permission, but because of your past mistakes you'll have to wait until then.

DEAR ABBY: With all due respect to Ripley's "Believe it or Not," there is no documentation to support its story that a 99-year-old American Indian woman gave birth to a child. And the same goes for the one about the 64-year-old woman who was said to have produced a child with her 80-year-old husband.

"The Guinness Book of Records" has documents to prove that Mrs. Ruth Alice Kistler (nee Taylor), at 57 years and 129 days old, gave birth to a daughter, Suzan, in Glendale, California on Oct. 18, 1956.

This is the oldest recorded birth of which there is certain evidence.

AN M.D.

DEAR M.D.: I'll buy "Guinness." But how about the Biblical Sarah who, at age 90, bore a son for her husband, Abraham, when he was 100? (Genesis 21)

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago, my father was told that he had kidney failure and would have to go on a dialysis machine.

Because his kidney failure was recent, the chance of obtaining a kidney transplant was small. (There are adults and children who have waited 10 years and longer for a kidney transplant because Americans are either unaware of the need or have hangups about having parts of their bodies removed after death.)

Thank heavens there was a dear man who had no such hangup. Unfortunately, he was in a fatal car accident, but he gave up his kidney, which matched my father's needs. That was two years ago, and my family is eternally grateful to that generous man.

Needless to say, the members of my entire family are card-carrying kidney donors. How I wish more people would become donors. If they knew how much it meant to people like us, they would be.

M.C.P. IN NEWPORT BEACH

DEAR M.C.P.: I am, and have been for four years. And if my readers want to leave a legacy of inestimable value, write to The National Kidney Foundation, 116 East 27th Street, N.Y., N.Y. 10016 for a donor card.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Social Work Field Privacy Issue Cited

Personnel in the field of human resources are faced with daily problems relating to the right to personal privacy of their cases, according to an East Carolina University professor. "Confidentiality: is it confidential?" asked Dr. John Ball, chairman of the ECU Department of Social Work and Correctional Services. He chaired a panel discussion at the Virginia Council on Social Welfare in Norfolk, Va., on the legal status of social workers.

The issue of confidentiality has become increasingly relevant to the social welfare field, in which investigative information about individuals is filed and used, he said.

"Recent actions of the Supreme Court and the legislative bodies have established new legal and professional guidelines for social workers, psychologists, psychiatrists, and other professionals as brokers of information."

Dr. Ball urged thorough study of the "legal and ethical issues" surrounding the gathering, recording and management of information about social services, which, he said, relates to "all aspects of human existence."

Tass Lashes At Wallace Words

MOSCOW (AP) — A remark by Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace that the United States may have fought "the wrong people" in World War II has been termed "fiendish" by the official Soviet news agency Tass.

Tass said Sunday that the comment "is the voice of the forces that even today have not renounced the hope of frustrating peaceful coexistence and cooperation of states with differing social systems."

Wallace has since said that although he believes "you can't trust a Communist," the remark he made March 3 to a group of foreign journalists, including a Russian, was not meant to imply that Americans should not have fought against Nazi Germany.

Status Of Key N.C. Legislation

RALEIGH (AP) — Here is the status of major measures before the North Carolina General Assembly.

Primarys: The Senate has killed the House-passed bill to abolish the presidential primary. The House and Senate will vote this week on bill to move the primaries for state offices to August and to establish new rules for a presidential primary in either May or March.

Utilities: Committees in both houses are considering two major bills. One would establish an energy policy council for the state. A second would require utilities to set rates higher for use of power at "peak" periods.

Auto insurance: The Senate Insurance Committee is considering a House-passed bill to abolish age and sex discrimination in rates. Both houses have yet to take committee action on no-fault insurance bills.

Taxes: The Senate Finance Committee is considering measure to repeal income tax exemptions for North Carolina corporate dividends and a sales tax exemption for the value of autos over $6,000. Both houses have legislation to repeal the state's food sales tax and raise income taxes, but no action is expected. The Senate may vote this week on a bill to phase out the manufacturers' inventory tax over a 10-year period.

Equal Rights: The House Elections Laws Committee has before it a bill authorizing a statewide referendum on the ERA in 1976.

Constitutional amendments: Among the major amendments in committees in both houses are bills for merit selection of judges, two-term authorization for the governor and lieutenant governor, and six-year terms for the governor and lieutenant governor.

Death penalty: Bills to abolish the death penalty are still lingering in the Senate Judiciary Committee. No action is expected. In the House, bills have been introduced to make the current life imprisonment penalty for second degree rape and first degree burglary retroactive for those now sentenced to death for those crimes under old statutes.

Environment: The Mountain Area Management Act is still pending in committees on both houses. The bill to extend "scenic River" designation to 26 miles of the New River is also in committee in both houses.

Director Named Of Vets Affairs

Elijah R. Harris Jr. has been appointed director of the East Carolina University Office of Veterans affairs, effective May 1.

As Veterans Affairs Director at ECU, Harris will provide services to U. S. armed forces veterans in the areas of recruitment of veterans to use VA benefits to continue their education, counseling and referral for counseling and community outreach.

The Veterans Affairs Office will also develop a referral service in the areas of housing, employment, health, vocational and technical training and financial assistance; and maintain a tutorial service for veterans enrolled in educational programs.

The office is located on the second floor of Erwin Hall on the ECU campus.

Harris is a graduate of Speight High School, Stantonsburg, and of N. C. agricultural and Technical University, Greensboro, where he received the BS degree in business administration.

He served three years of active duty in the U. S. Army from 1966 to 1969, where he was assigned to data processing operations at Okinawa and at U. S. Army bases.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Harris Sr. of Route 2, Bailey, Harris is married to the former Gladys Atkinson of Pitt County. They are residents of Farmville, Route 2.

Graduated From Duke University

Three area men graduated from Duke University Sunday. They are George Alexander Weimer Jr. of Greenville, with a Bachelor of Arts degree; Leland Edward Farnell of Williamston, with a Master of Hospital Administration degree; and Walter Malone Keel of Williamston, with a Master of Business Administration degree.

Received PhD At Howard U.

Greenville native George L. Jenkins received a Ph.D. in Education from Howard University Saturday.

Jenkins is an employee of the federal government in Washington, D. C. and has returned from the U. S. Army as a major. A 1942 graduate of Eppes High School here, he is the son of Mrs. Bertha Lee Jenkins of Greenville and the late George L. Jenkins Sr.

A&P Plans Close Store

A&P Food Stores will close its West End Shopping Center store, according to an official at the company's Charlotte headquarters.

R. M. Alexander, merchandising director, said that A&P will vacate the West End facility soon, although no definite date has been set at this time.

Alexander, who emphasized that the company is not closing its Tenth Street store here, explained that the West End closing fits into A&P's overall program of concentrating more on stores which are doing a larger volume of business.

The official said that the company has no plans to build another store in Greenville but he added that A&P is always looking into the prospects of new stores in suitable locations and the company is looking at property here as well as in many other cities.

Parent Council Meets Tuesday

The Title I, ESEA Parent Advisory Council will meet at the Greenville City Schools Administrative Building at 8:00 p.m. on Tuesday.

The purpose of this meeting is to continue planning for the evaluation of the FY 75 programs and to discuss plans for preparing the FY 76 Project. New officers for the 1975-76 year will also be elected at this meeting. The meeting is open to the public.

DENTISTS MEET
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)—Technical and educational lectures were on today's program as the N.C. Dental Society's annual convention continues. Tonight's highlight will be the election of officers.

Refugee Ky's Future Is Possibly As A Farmer

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — "Little Saigon's" most famous refugee wants to be a farmer. But many others have urban careers in mind.

A former Vietnamese government labor administrator, Mai Tren Quang, said most refugees looking for jobs have "marketable skills."

While he was making his assessment to a newsman here Sunday, former South Vietnamese premier and air marshal Nguyen Cao Ky said on ABC television's "Issues and Answers" that his plans probably will include farming.

And Ky disagreed with Quang's optimistic outlook for fellow refugees' employment prospects.

Ky said he doesn't believe most Vietnamese have the job skills to compete with Americans.

"All we want is a little help for us to start a new life in a new, big and wonderful country, America," he said.

Ky said he might like to set up an Israeli-style communal farm run by refugees, possibly in Texas or Arkansas. Ky said among other real estate proposals, a friend had offered him land in Texas.

Quang estimated only about 35 per cent of the 19,000 refugees living in tents here will seek work. The rest are children, dependent wives or elderly people, he said.

Many of the refugees worked for the U. S. government and American contractors, and former employers are assisting in resettling and job searching, he said.

Quang, former deputy director of the labor development agency of the Da Nang area, said some refugees have experience as clerk-typists while others are heavy equipment operators, truck drivers, pilots, military men with various skills, teachers and businessmen. A number are graduates of American universities, Quang said.

Besides Ky, who has some experience in agriculture, Quang said there are few farmers in "Little Saigon."

Couple Weds Sunday In Double Ring Ceremony

Miss Ethel Beaman Allen and Larry James Ragland were united in marriage Sunday at 4:00 p.m. in the Red Oak Christian Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis H. Allen of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Ragland of Sanford.

The Rev. Ronald Nichols, pastor of Red Oak Christian Church, and the Rev. Tom Law, pastor of Saint Paul's Christian Church, officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was rendered by Lee Hendricks, organist, of Greenville. Mrs. Mark Craven, cousin of the bride, of High Point, sang "There Is Love," "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee," and the "Lord's Prayer," as the benediction.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white jersey fashioned with an empire waist. The V-neckline and the cuffed long sleeves were accented with chantilly lace. She wore a formal length white illusion mantilla edged in chantilly lace. Her only ornament was a silver cross. She carried a shower bouquet of spring flowers.

Miss Linda Lasley of Durham attended as maid of honor. Her dress of orchid polyester was fashioned with an empire waist and flounced with an empire neckline was accented with a flounced edged with an embroidery stitch. She wore a matching picture hat with satin streamers and carried a basket of mixed pastel flowers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. W. en Stephens, sister of the bride, of Greenville, Mrs. Dickie Allen, sister-in-law of the bride, of Fayetteville, Mrs. Wayne Ragland, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, of Raleigh, and Mrs. Richard Taylor of Wilson. Their dresses and hats—one each, blue, pink, yellow and green, were like those of the honor attendant. They also carried baskets of spring flowers.

James Ragland served his son as best man. Ushers were Dickie Allen, brother of the bride, of Fayetteville, Wayne Ragland of Raleigh, Jerry Ragland and Harold Ragland, of Sanford, all brothers of the bridegroom. Richie Allen, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of pink polyester with matching lace sleeves, while the mother of the bridegroom wore a light blue polyester dress with matching coat. Each wore a matching corsage.

Mrs. J.T. Manning Jr. directed the wedding.

For traveling, the bride changed into a red and white ensemble with matching accessories. After a wedding trip to the beach, the couple will reside in Raleigh.

The bride is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and is employed with McNeely Associates of Raleigh. The bridegroom graduated from North Carolina State University, Raleigh, and is a landscape designer with McNeely Associates.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

Miss Faye Manning of Greenville poured punch. After the traditional first slice of cake was cut by the bride and groom, Miss Susan Manning of Eden served the cake. Others assisting in serving were Miss Dianne Manning, Miss Donna Worthington, Miss Janet Worthington and Miss Wendy Worthington, all of Greenville.

Mrs. Jerry Ragland presided at the guest register and good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cameron, aunt and uncle of the bridegroom.

After the wedding rehearsal Saturday, the wedding party and close friends were honored with a dinner in the fellowship hall of the church. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Crawford Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Hart, Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Manning Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W.T. Page, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Don Worthington Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Worthington.

On Saturday at one o'clock, Miss Ethel Beaman Allen was honored at a bridesmaid luncheon by Mrs. Ernest J. Cassick and Mrs. William E. Goin at the home of Mrs. Cassick.

Engagement Announced

MISS DONNA WILLETTE COWARD, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Coward of Rt. 5, Greenville, who announce her engagement to YN3 Gerald Thomas Whichard, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Whichard of Rt. 5, Greenville. The wedding will take place in the summer.

Junior, Senior German Clubs Hold Meeting

The annual business meeting of the Junior and Senior German Clubs was held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club Thursday morning.

During a joint meeting, new members and officers for the next two years were introduced by the clubs.

Junior Club President, Mrs. Max Ray Joyner, introduced the following new members: Mrs. Graham Taft III; Mrs. Judson Blount Jr.; Mrs. Rhett Honeycutt; Mrs. Boyd Lee; Mrs. Paul Evans; Mrs. Richard Evans Jr.; Mrs. Ben Shappley; Mrs. H.E. Lowry; and Mrs. L.S. Brown.

Mrs. J.B. Kittrell, Senior Club president presented the following new officers: President, Mrs. W.M. Aldridge; Vice President, Mrs. David J. Whichard II; Secretary, Mrs. Sam T. White; and Treasurer, Mrs. William Hudson.

Mrs. Louis Clark is the president of the Junior Club and will be assisted by Mrs. Fred Mattox, vice president, Mrs. Leon Moore Jr., secretary, and Mrs. Dave Reid, treasurer.

Following the business session, a luncheon was held for the clubs.

To give homemade clothing a professional look, press seams open before crossing them with other seams.

BPW Club Installation Held

The new officers of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club were installed Thursday evening at the club meeting held at the Ramada Inn. Miss Nancy Smith, past president of the Greenville club, conducted the ceremony, presenting each incoming officer with a flower symbolic of her office.

Installed were: Lucille Moore, president; Ruth Scott, first vice president; Natalie Grady, second vice president; Colleen Patton, corresponding secretary; Dorothy Harman, recording secretary; and Elizabeth Deal, treasurer.

In her acceptance speech, the new president stressed the importance of committee work and asked each member to indicate to her, the committee on which she wanted to work.

Miss Mary Daugherty, retiring president conducted the meeting, and after the invocation by Mrs. Irma Worthington, recognized Mrs. Terry Harrington, a guest of the club.

Awards were presented to the club members who have had perfect attendance this year and plans were made for the state convention to be held in Raleigh in June. Those planning to attend from the Greenville club are: Lucille Moore; Ruth Garner; Mary Daugherty; Naomi Edwards; Mary Harper; Betty Congleton; Louise Congleton; Gladys Stokes; Retsy Baker; Colleen Patton; and Frances White.

Lucille Moore paid tribute to Doris Marlowe as the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club "Clubwoman of the Year" and presented her a silver cup with her name inscribed. Doris Marlowe was active in working with the Williamston Business and Professional Women's Club which she helped organize.

The new president adjourned the meeting by leading the club collect.

Chapter Holds Spring Church Business Meet Picnic Set For June 1

The business meeting of the Alpha Omega Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha was held Thursday night at the home of Shirley Westbrook.

President Barbara Woods opened the meeting with the beginning ritual. Plans were completed for a bridge benefit to be held at Planters Bank May 15. Proceeds from the benefit will be used to buy musical instruments for the activities for exceptional adults of the Elm Street Recreation Center. Tickets for the benefit can be obtained by calling Mrs. Barbara Zickerman, 756-4004.

Plans were made for two members of the chapter to appear on "Carolina Today" in relation to this benefit. Alice Keene, coordinator of Programs for Exceptional Children and Adults conducted by the Greenville Recreation Department, will also be on the show.

Members discussed attending the sorority's state convention in Burlington, May 23-25. Plans were made to hold a dinner social for members and their husbands at the Beef Barn June 5. Secret sisters will be revealed.

month. Mrs. James Murphy, chairman of the N.C. Right to Life, Greenville Chapter, spoke on the issues and questions involving the program and stressed the importance of a drive for membership. Mrs. Eagan, who is visiting Miss Lichtner, was introduced.

The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth centered with a cut glass bowl filled with red roses, surrounded by silver candleholders with white candles. Hostesses were Mrs. Thomas Butler, Mrs. George Jaboni and Mrs. Frank Flower.

Mrs. Thomas Butler and Mrs. Charles Hayes reported on taking the handicapped Girl Scout Troop to Peppi's Pizza.

Mrs. Thompson proposed projects to be undertaken for the 1975-76 year. These will be voted on at the September meeting.

The following committees were formed: Telephone, Mari Anne Hayes; Altar Linens, Jo Berry; Refreshments, Fran Rostar; Trading Stamps, Ann Butler; Publicity, Lud Sherwood; Sick and Cheer, Irene Hanife.

It was decided that a basket of fruit would be presented to a patient in the hospital once a

The fresh fruit adds wonderful flavor to a delightful recipe.

Large fresh ripe pineapple 2 eggs

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup milk

2 teaspoons lemon juice

With a large sharp knife cut off stem and crown ends from pineapple; cut off rind, from top to bottom, all around; with a small sharp knife remove the "eyes." Cut into lengthwise quarters; cut away core. Cube two of the quarters; in an electric blender puree enough of the cubes — there will be about 1 1/2 cups — to make 1 cup puree. Cut remaining pineapple into fingers, cover and chill. In a medium mixing bowl beat eggs with salt until thickened and lemon color; gradually beat in sugar until very thick. Beat in milk, lemon juice and pineapple puree. Turn into can of a 1-quart electric ice cream maker — the kind that operates in the freezer compartment of the refrigerator. Insert dasher, cover and freeze according to manufacturer's directions. Turn into a freezer container and ripen in freezer about 2 hours. Scoop sherbet into sherbet cups set on dessert plates; add some of the chilled pineapple fingers to each plate. Makes 6 servings.

Bitter Feeling Concerns ALL

Throughout all its history the United States has welcomed refugees and displaced persons from all over the world.

That is how the nation was founded and this great influx of people into a New World was what made our nation as great as it has become.

For that reason it concerns us that an apparent bitterness has developed in the United States toward the refugees from South Vietnam who fled from the Communist take-over.

We recall no such feeling when Hungarian refugees came here following the Soviet crushing of the Hungarian revolt. The Cuban refugees, after Castro's take-over were generally accepted in our country.

One has to wonder why there would be such national resentment against those from Vietnam who are fleeing for their lives.

Granted, through our history there has been resentment in local area against ethnic groups, when established citizens felt they were taking their jobs.

We also recognize that there might be some of this feeling in the present situation considering the high unemployment rate.

The Vietnamese refugee group is probably not large enough in numbers to have any effect on the over-all employment picture in a land so large as ours, however.

The ill-feeling against the refugees may stem from our long and humiliating involvement in the Vietnam war, which finally ended in defeat. There may be a belief that the refugees include those who are not really deserving of our hospitality.

Regardless of all that, the Vietnamese are now people without a country and because of our involvement in their homeland we bear some of the responsibility for them.

It might have been better if some of the refugees had stayed on in South Vietnam, but they are out now. To go back would perhaps mean death. They have no place to go and the United States will have to do the best it can for them.

Merit System Doubts

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—The ultimate failure of James M. Newcomb's candidacy for chief justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court has only recently become apparent in the General Assembly.

Newcomb is the fire extinguisher salesman from Williamston who decided last year that God was calling him to the state's highest judicial position.

There was nothing to prevent him from entering the race. He did. Then, to the discomfiture of the Republican hierarchy, he won the GOP primary against a black female judge from Greensboro, Elreta Alexander.

Newcomb had only a high school education, but he did not worry about his lack of legal training. He was certain that his political ideal, Justice I. Beverly Lake, would help him with the fine points.

He got no closer to the Supreme Court than the general election, where he was soundly trounced by Democrat Susie Sharp. At the time, there was a feeling among lawyers that maybe Newcomb's candidacy had done some good.

Maybe, it was thought, it would scare the legislature enough to force some serious consideration of the constitutional judiciary reforms that had been kicking around the capitol for years.

Thus, with some fanfare, a two constitutional amendments were introduced this session. One would provide for an elaborate "merit selection plan" for judges. Another would simply require that anyone running for the bench be a licensed attorney.

The bill to require that only licensed lawyers be eligible for judgeships was defeated in the Senate last week.

The sponsors of the merit selection plan are holding their bill in committee, trying without much success to round up the three-fifths majorities needed to put the question to the people in the next general election.

The opposition to the merit selection plan is based on several factors. The public reasons include the observation that the current system has provided pretty good judges by and large. And, the opponents say, they do not want to take away the people's right to choose their judges.

Those reasons do not bear up under scrutiny. There are now 10 district court judges in the state who are not lawyers, and their number grows with each election. Some are quite competent. And, at the district court level, they do not hear many important cases.

But what will happen if the non-lawyers begin reaching the Superior Court bench and must handle murder cases, civil suits and other weighty matters?

Furthermore, the people do not, as a practical matter, choose their judges. They are appointed by the governor and, if they are Democrats, reelected as a matter of course.

If the merit selection plan passed, each judge would have to go before the people at the end of each term. If he failed to win approval from 60 per cent of the voters, he would be out.

The private and more compelling reasons for the demise of judicial reform appear to be two. One is the currently low prestige of the legal profession, which would have the basic power to choose the nominees

'Free Enterprise' Braked

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Human nature being what it is, man will hustle a buck. That's as true inside prison walls as it is on the "free street," and a lot of inmates of the North Carolina prison system think they should have more opportunity to make a buck while serving time.

The Department of Corrections has put the brakes on the prison free enterprise system; cutting down on inmate industry production of wallets, belts and such which were once peddled on the street by inmates on leave, or at prison workshops across the state.

One complication was, of course, the need for tools—particularly knives—to do that kind of work; prison officials frown on the men having weapons.

Boss Takes Over
But even more serious complication arose from the tendency of prisoners to fall into "street" patterns with their production-sales activities. A capitalist always seemed to take over: buying the raw material, lining up workmen, setting up work quotas, paying labor low wages, and pocketing the profits.

All that notwithstanding, the men in prison need such an outlet, says Wayne Brooks, a current North Carolina inmate who can look back on an 18-year career in and out of prisons in Florida, Georgia, and this state. Brooks is, by his own confession, a professional safecracker who set out to become the best in the business.

He says bluntly prison has little chance to rehabilitate him; and he was once bought out of prison in another state by a band of thieves who wanted his talent; that he uses the prison system to his own advantage, seeking transfers to units from which he might escape easily, and working to get on "honor grade" in order to make life easier for himself.

Brooks was one of the star witnesses at a recent session of the North Carolina Inmate Grievance Commission. Fred G. Morrison, executive director of that body, set the lengthy hearing up in order to learn from the men who are living daily inside the prison system what they think ought to be done to make prison more bearable, and worthwhile.

Complaints centered largely around enforced idleness among the prison population; prisoners complain that hours of boredom defeat the spirit as prison officials beat down any efforts to engage in creative activities.

The answer, Brooks thinks, is more emphasis on free enterprise.

The benefits would be two fold, he said; something for the men to do; and income for use in prison commissaries.

Have Weapons
The weapon argument doesn't hold water, he says: "80 per cent of the men have weapons anyway; sometimes more than knives. You've got to have them for self-defense, and some have them to use in committing crime."

As for the emergence of a "boss," Brooks says that's the American way, and inmates are grateful for the dollar or so a day they can make in wages while producing profits for the "owner" of the business.

"We need that money," he said, "for everyday necessities like toothpaste and razor blades; and for something to eat from the snack bar." Prison food, good though it may be, gets monotonous, he explained.

Why should prisoners buy toothpaste? "If you don't buy it, and you ask for some free, they give you salt and baking soda—and after brushing your teeth with that for a long time, the gums bleed—it's bad for you."

The commission probed sharply the parade of inmates who offered a variety of suggestions for ways to help the men put their time to productive use.

Several of the inmates hinted to the commission that the overcrowded conditions and enforced idleness are part of a scheme by prison officials to breed discontent inside the walls, pushing the inmates to riot so the public will support efforts to get money for new prisons.

INSIDE REPORT

Vicious Backstage Battle

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—On April 14, the Senate by routine voice vote confirmed President Ford's nomination of John F. Lehman, Jr., as deputy director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA), without dissent, without debate, without newspaper publicity—and without a hint of the vicious fight waged backstage for four months.

Had it been up to the elected Senators, Lehman's nomination would have rushed through the Senate months ago. But staffers of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and of its members mounted a campaign against him of vendetta intensity. Indeed, Lehman was doomed. Only stubborn intervention by one Democratic Senator, Gale McGee of Wyoming, salvaged him.

The Lehman affair is a case study of one alarming aspect in the multiple revolution on Capitol Hill. As the congressional bureaucracy grows in Parkinsonian dimensions to match their brethren downtown, appointed staffers inevitably seize policy functions from their elected bosses, usually with an eye toward usurping power from the executive branch. As for Senate foreign policy staffers, the phenomenon is well advanced.

Well-educated young veterans of the U.S. Foreign Service, disaffected with this country's generation-long cold war policies, in recent years have travelled a circuit between bipartisan Senate staff posts and the Brookings Institute, the Kennedy Institute and other non-profit organizations. Because they agree on a revisionist view of the cold war and confer frequently, critics variously describe them as the "Cabal," the "Underground" and the "Mafia." A more accurate, less pejorative description might be the "Network."

Until his defeat last year, Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas as Foreign Relations Committee chairman was the Network's leader and protector. Some conservative Senators expected Fulbright's successor, Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama, to hire non-Network staffers for the committee. But Sparkman, 75, has disturbed nothing so far.

In fact, Sparkman's first policy speech as chairman, on Jan. 28, read as though filched from Bill Fulbright's briefcase ("we remain divided by shortsighted rivalries and mean-spirited, obsolete nationalisms"). It was written by Network staffers inherited from Fulbright. Chairmen come and go, but the Network flourishes—up to a point, that is, as seen from the Lehman affair.

When Lehman was first suggested for the ACDA post, Network alarm signals were flashed. As congressional operative for Henry Kissinger at the National Security Council, Lehman proved a hard-liner ideologically and a prickly antagonist personally. So, last December the committee staff informed Secretary of State Kissinger that the Senate would not confirm Lehman for any job.

Mr. Ford nominated him anyway, triggering a Network campaign against Lehman of such extent that we can only give a taste of it. Leading the charge were committee staffers Richard Moose (famed for Vietnam inspection trips on Fulbright's behalf) and William Ashworth, along with Pete Lakeland, foreign policy aide to Sen. Jacob Javits of New York.

They fought on two fronts: anti-Lehman memos circulating in the Senate to stir up opposition; telephone calls to administration officials reporting Senate opposition. Ashworth sent liberal committee members a memo accusing Lehman of being "conservative on arms matters." On Jan. 7, Moose told ACDA director Fred Ikle that Lehman was personally objectionable to Fulbright. On Jan. 14, committee staff director Pat Holt warned White House lobbyist Pat O'Donnell that pursuing Lehman's nomination would embarrass the President.

By the time hearings began, the Network had two Senators opposed to Lehman—Stuart Symington of Missouri and Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island. That was enough to drag out intermittent hearings from Feb. 11, through March 17, probing into anything remotely derogatory—including Lehman's doctoral thesis to indicate anti-congressional deviationism. Thanks mainly to McGee's defense, it was not enough.

When Symington demanded reassurance from Kissinger that he really wanted Lehman, Network allies inside the State Department hinted that perhaps Henry ought to drop this hot potato. But Kissinger was adamant, cabling his endorsement of Lehman from Egypt.

On March 17, the com-

Hawks Are Hard To Find

WASHINGTON—The hardest thing to find in Washington, D.C., these days is someone who was a Hawk on Vietnam. Everyone you talk to was against the war from the start, and it's hard to imagine how we could have been there for 15 years when so many people in power thought our involvement was such a big mistake.

"You know, I was always against the war," an aide in the Kennedy Administration told me the other day.

"Oh," I said. "I thought you were for it."

"Publicly, I was for it," he said. "But privately I was against it. I worked behind the scenes to get us out of it. Ask my wife."

"I believe you," I said. "Why would you lie?"

When I got back to my office I heard from one of President Johnson's national security advisers. "Well, I was right, wasn't I?"

"Right about what?"

"I said we couldn't win it with American troops. The Vietnamese people had to do it for themselves."

"But you told me in the Sixties the pacification program was working and we were winning the war."

"I did not," he said angrily. "Yes, you did. I remember you reading me the body counts from Vietnam. You said I should believe you instead of the press reports coming out of there."

"I'm sure you got me mixed up with somebody else," he said nervously. "I was always suspicious of those body counts."

"Yeah," I said, getting him off the hook. "It must have been somebody else."

"Thanks," he said, "thanks a lot."

As luck would have it, I ran into a high CIA official on the street the next day. The last time I saw him was at a party where he said after a few drinks that anyone who didn't support the war in Vietnam was a traitor to the country. Someone took a poke at him, but the hostess broke up the fight before it really got started.

"You are?" I said, rather surprised.

"The CIA knew it was hopeless from the beginning. It was the military that really screwed us up."

"I didn't know that," I said. "I thought the CIA played a big role in the war."

"Only to get us out. Our main thrust was to disengage from the war, but you know how generals are. They kept telling the President we could win it."

"I'm glad I ran into you," I said, "or I would have never known what the CIA was doing over there. It must have been a tough period for you, going to parties and getting into fights with people who were against the war."

"Yes, but that was my cover. I had to pretend I was a Hawk when I really was a Dove. I had everyone fooled."

"God bless you," I said. "No one would have ever guessed."

I went into the drugstore to buy some cigars and met a retired Air Force colonel I knew. "A CIA friend of mine just told me it was the military who kept us in Vietnam," I said.

"That's a crock," he said. "We always knew the bombing wouldn't work, but no one would listen to us. The politicians had no idea of what was going on over there. We carpet bombed that country from wall to wall and they wouldn't give in."

Other Editors Say Go North, Lady

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Go North, young woman, if you're looking for a husband, that is.

In Alaska, reports the Institute of Life Insurance, unmarried men between the ages of 18 and 29 outnumber unmarried women between the ages of 16 and 24 (considered to be the most marriageable age for the respective sexes) by more than two to one.

The reason for Alaska's bachelor bonanza is the large number of servicemen stationed there. Servicemen also make Hawaii an attractive possibility for females who prefer a more temperate climate.

There the ratio is 146 men to 100 women. And for those who want to stay closer to the mainland, Nevada and Rhode Island offer a ratio of 120 men to 100 women.

Between 1952 and 1970, the number of unmarried men in the country increased from 15.4 million to 22.4 million. In no less than 16 states, men in the 18-20 age bracket outnumber women age 16-24.

This means, of course, that in 34 other states and in the District of Columbia, there are more unmarried women in those key ages than men.

Matrimony-wise, the states for women to forget about are Pennsylvania, Ohio, Iowa, West Virginia, Utah and Minnesota. In the first five, single women outnumber men by more than 15 per cent.

As for Minnesota, it has the lowest ratio of men to women at the key ages—81-100.

Even in those states however, population projections indicate that the number of unmarried males will increase in the next several years, so it is possible, girls, that you won't have to travel all the way to Alaska to find a suitable spouse.

tax reduction bill was passed. Campaigns were begun to get people to buy cars and thus get the autoworkers back on the assembly lines.

Now, as Americans are adjusting to the shock of the worst recession since the 1930s, some disturbing signs and fears are appearing.

Like the clouds of recession that last year sat on the horizon for months before rushing in, early signs seem relatively harmless. But some shrewd analysts aren't inclined to view them that way.

The most obvious signal comes from wholesale prices, which in April rose at an annual rate of 18 per cent, led by two familiar categories: Farm prices and processed food prices.

Some economists still decline to decide on the April evidence. Some say it is an aberration in a trend to price stability. Others say it was expected, because prices seldom drop in a straight line. Still, there is no way anyone can ignore the evidence of the past few years which suggests that price increases any place in the producer-distributor-retailer system are passed on down the line.

Once it was assumed that wholesaler or retailer could absorb brief flurries of higher prices. Now we know nobody is willing or probably even capable of swallowing higher costs. The "bottom line" is the consumer.

The other major distress signal is the federal budget deficit's size. Some $60 billion to $70 billion of federal borrowing must be accommodated in the capital markets for fiscal 1976.

Financiers show considerable confidence that such a job will not be insurmountable—that it can be done without depriving business of money needed to expand and without driving up interest rates.

But there is developing evidence that a return to higher interest rates is likely. This too might be an aberration in a healthy situation, but based on experience, who really can afford this view?

Moreover, one reason why the federal debt allegedly can be financed without extreme difficulties is that private enterprise is in a nonspending mood.

What happens, the critics ask, when big business decides it must borrow to expand and re-equip its plants for the next expansion? Will there be money enough for both government and business?

Keep your eye on wholesale prices, especially farm and processed food prices, and on interest rates. A tornado could be brewing.

ASPEAR INTO THE HEART

Someone has said that Christianity differs fundamentally from every other religion in that it is the only one which thrusts a spear into a person's heart.

At first thought his observation would seem to be a serious condemnation. But when we ponder the matter a little we can see that the spear thrust is what we most need.

Christianity is not sentimental. Jesus assured his followers that they would be presented and called on them to leave loved ones and friends without hesitation if salvation depended upon such a separation. He told men to lose their lives and they would find them, to deny themselves daily and take up their crosses and follow Him.

No Real War Going On, But Peace Remains Elusive

An AP News Analysis
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

As of now, with the Vietnam fiasco, the world for the first time in about 45 years is without a conflict that can be said to rank as a war, but real peace remains elusive and threats to it are plentiful.

If there's nothing at this moment classifiable as on-going war, there's a lot of armed violence around the world, and there are two cases — the Middle East and Korea — where war has simply been suspended and states of belligerency prevail.

With regard to Korea, the Indochina outcome raises concern that the Communist North, noting a failure of American arms and what it could read as a wholly eroded American will to resist, might step up pressure on the South. Ever since the truce of 1953, the Communists have vowed to "liberate" the South and 40,000 U.S. troops are still there.

In the Middle East, the critical time now comes in July when the mandates keeping United Nations buffer forces between belligerents again will expire. If the current negotiations stalemate looks insurmountable then, the situation will be immensely dangerous.

Since World War I ended 57 years ago, there has almost always, except for relatively peaceful years in the 1920s, been one or more actual wars in progress somewhere on the planet. In 1931 the China-Japan conflict began with Japan's invasion of Manchuria. Then came the Italian invasion of Ethiopia, the Spanish civil war involving outside Communist and Fascist forces, then the Russian-Finnish war and the beginning of World War II.

The big war wasn't over before the Greek civil war started and the conflict in China was transformed into war between the Communist and Chiang Kai-shek's Kuomintang. Then came France's seven years of war in Indochina and eight years of war in North Africa, the four rounds of Middle East war between Arabs and Jews between 1948 and 1973, three years of war in Korea with the United States heading a U.N. alliance, and, finally, the American phase of the Vietnam war.

But nations haven't and still don't need outside enemies to find excuses for organized killing. The map is spattered with conflicts wherein citizens of individual nations murder one another over the question, always, of: Who will rule whom?

Guerrilla activity often is equipped and abetted from outside. There still exists a serious threat to the tranquility of Thailand, the only Southeast Asian nation to avoid being colonized. Communist-backed guerrillas, long supported by China, seem to be stepping up their effort, perhaps encouraged by the Indochina outcome.

No Southeast Asian nation has escaped armed violence and in most there is always a possibility that it will become dangerously troublesome yet again. The Malayan peninsula had its guerrilla insurgency, quelled by the British before the creation of the independent states of Malaysia and Singapore. A variety of political guerrillas, all on the left, are still active in Burma. India accuses China of encouraging guerrilla activity in Assam.

Indonesia almost came under Communist rule in a coup that failed in 1965. The Philippines had its Communist Hukbalahaps of whom there are still remnants and now has its hands full with a Moslem rebellion.

In Europe, Cyprus, for a generation or more the arena for violence between ethnic Greek and Turk, nearly caused Greece and Turkey to go to war last year. At present the situation continues to defy solution and erode the southeast anchor of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Fatricidal strife rooted in centuries of professional hostility continues to torment Northern Ireland.

Africa experienced a generation of tumult attendant on its emergence to independence. Freedom brought unrest and conflict in the Congo, the Sudan and elsewhere. Today, thirst for freedom stirs Rhodesia's blacks. The guerrilla wars that finally brought Portuguese colonies freedom from that mother country now are being turned into wars among the "liberation fighters" themselves for control.

Ethiopia, long independent, saw its autocratic emperor deposed and then war break out between factions contending for power.

Guerrilla violence dots the map of Latin America, and in Argentina scarcely a week goes by without its toll in blood. Guerrilla movements have existed in a number of Latin American Nations ever since the Cuban Communist victory of 1959.

In much of the world, experience suggests the outlook is for more of the same. As in the past, the danger in all this can be in the extent to which great powers become directly involved.

mittee finally voted, 9 to 6, for Lehman's confirmation, galvanizing the Network into heroic efforts. Scurrying for votes, staffers claimed a new tally would show an 8-8 tie, defeating the nomination. But Chairman Sparkman, pressured by McGee and Sen. Henry M. Jackson (not a committee member), finally ordered the staff or report the nomination to the floor as it should have done days earlier. That ended all hope of stopping Lehman (though Symington delayed Senate action until April 14).

Had Fulbright been around, there is little doubt he and the Network would have managed Lehman's rejection in committee as they had in 1973 with hardliner G. McMurtrie Godley for Assistant Secretary of State. Sparkman is obviously a transitional chairman to be succeeded by Sen. Frank Church of Idaho. While ideologically sympathetic with the Network (he voted against Lehman), Church is not considered a willing accomplice for brass knuckle fighting. Thus, Church's accession is the best, long-range hope that foreign policy decisions in the Senate will be made by elected representatives, not their tireless employees.

for gubernatorial appointments under merit selection.

And a second, according to some merit selection supporters, is the opposition of some rural lawyers in the legislature. They now have the means, through political clout, to influence who gets on the ballot in their counties.

That comes in handy when a client is hoping you can get him off with a prayer for judgment continued on a traffic violation.

So, it appears that judicial reform is dead this year. Maybe the answer is to dust off James Newcomb and keep running him until he wins.

An Hour Away In Flying Time, But Havana Is Another World

By SAM SUMMERLIN
Associated Press Writer
HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Only an hour's flying time from Miami, the Cuban capital is a world apart from any other city in the Western Hemisphere.

For a reporter who last saw the island 20 years ago, Fidel Castro's new Cuba is a startling experience.

Long gone are those once-familiar billboards proclaiming: "Beba Coca Cola," or "Vuelo Pan American." There are no advertising agencies on the island — not a single commercial ad in any newspaper, nor on any radio or television show. Only a few scattered billboards discreetly describe the routes of Aeroflot, the Soviet airline.

In place of commercials, the Cuban media bombard the populace with exhortations to work harder, produce more, to rally behind the Communist party and to waste nothing.

These outward signs catch the eye instantly in Cuba. More difficult to comprehend are the inward signs of the "new Cuban man." In 16 years of rule, the Castro regime has managed to submerge the individual's own welfare into a cog of the collective wheel.

Since Castro seized power in 1959, 600,000 Cubans have fled the island. But the 9 million who remain exhibit a spirit of pride and patriotic fervor which must explain their willingness to endure the years of shortages suffered by an island isolated for more than a decade from most of the world except the Soviet bloc.

Cuba is a youth society. Almost half of the nation is under 20 years of age, knowing no other government than that of Castro. The revolution heaps its scant resources on educating its youth and convincing them of its socialistic way of life.

Everywhere you go, teachers, factory foremen, agricultural planners, editors of newspapers, movie producers and baseball managers all speak of life in Cuba as if everything began in 1959.

They say with pride that since the revolution Cuba has achieved successes in every field, wiping out illiteracy, tripling the number of students in schools, doubling steel production, and providing free medical and dental care for all.

They have a good word for nobody before Castro's revolution but Jose Marti and his heroic exploits against Spanish colonial rule and the founders of the Communist party who laid the seeds for the guerrilla campaign which Castro and his aides waged from the Sierra Maestra mountains.

One encounters sharp contrasts in Havana. People line up patiently with their ration coupons to buy food and clothes. Some workers wait in line an hour just to buy a newspaper, which costs five cents.

On Sundays the papers publish readers' letters, some of which voice criticism of life in Cuba such as poor service in a restaurant. In one recent case workers aired their complaints about a cafe which, according to one journalist, promptly "shaped up."

On Saturday nights Havana's luxury hotels are jammed with what could pass for a new affluent youth class. In rooms once graced by one-armed bandits and gaming tables, couples dance to Cuban rhythms. In a bar where a daiquiri costs the equivalent of $2, a pianist plays the theme song from "Love Story" and other tunes from the United States.

One wonders where they get the money. Most students get 30 pesos a month — about $24 — and all are kept busy in "productive work" 25 hours a week outside the classroom.

Young Cubans are well dressed. Young men wear open-necked sport shirts and slacks. Despite the beads worn by Castro and his fellow guerillas, Cuba's youth is clean-shaven. Girls wear miniskirts.

There appears to be no drug problem and there are no drunks on the streets. Like other socialist states, Cuba is a puritanical society where no X-rated movies or literature are permitted. The most popular Hollywood movie in recent months was "The Godfather," but most U.S. films here are of an older vintage, such as "Hud" with Paul Newman.

No one can be fired and everyone is required by law to work or study between the ages of 16 and 60. Doctors can earn $480 a month, while journalists get about $165 and workers in the steel mills about $120.

The government has evolved an elaborate "bonus" plan which brings throngs of workers to the night spots.

On Saturdays and Sundays the famed Tropicana nightclub is turned over to workers who for their production achievements have been awarded a night on the town by their unions, paying half price to see the elaborate floor show at Havana's most famous club.

At the Havana Riviera a master of ceremonies entertained a delegation of women wearing t-shirts proclaiming their membership in the "millionaire club" — not for dollars but for cutting more than a million "arrobas" of sugar in the canefields which are the lifeblood of Cuba. An arroba is about 25 pounds of sugar.

Dozens of freighters are anchored in the harbor waiting for a berth. The docks are jammed with vessels of the Soviet Union, Japan, Greece, Canada and other nations engaged in a flourishing trade with an island afflicted by shortages in everything.

Recent visits by Sens. George McGovern, D-S.D., Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., have sparked moves in Congress to end the 15-year-old trade embargo against the island. Castro's main goal is to mechanize the harvesting of sugar and the best equipment is manufactured in Illinois.

There is no visible resistance to the Castro regime, but one observer who has visited Cuba many times said some older farmers have refused to sell their property to the government. Their plots are small, and the officials leave these holdouts alone.

"They'll just wait for the old-timers to die off," the observer said. "They expect to be able to deal much easier with the children. There's tremendous pressure on the kids to conform. New towns are sprouting up near the farms, with modern low-cost housing siphoning away many of the farmers into the apartments where they enjoy plumbing, refrigerators and television sets.

"When those youngsters of the holdouts have to continue living in huts and sleeping on mud floors they begin to wonder and there is an almost irresistible urge for them to rebel against their parents and join the system."

Foragers Learn To Subsist On Weeds

BLACK DIAMOND, Wash. (AP) — "Everything I point out to eat will be something I've eaten," David Jansen said. And with that, the 25 foragers were off for a weekend of learning to live off the land.

"I read all about these in books, but you never really know for sure until somebody shows you," Bob Rollin, a forestry teacher at a local high school, said later. The group nibbled its way along the roadside, sampling miner's lettuce, bedstraw, sheep sorrel and licorice fern roots.

Jansen, a freelance writer on edible wild foods, explained the various goodies as the group moved along. Winter cress, in the mustard family, curly dock, a good rhubarb substitute, young fern fronds, with an almond flavor and several other plants were sampled and approved.

Jansen led the participants in a workshop sponsored by the Seattle Parks and Recreation Department. They gathered at the Red Barn Ranch, about 20 miles southeast of Seattle.

Jansen lectured the aspiring natural gourmards Friday night, before they hit the fields.

At one point, the group came upon a fir tree. Jansen explained "the needles taste turpentine, but there's a lot of vitamin C. It's OK, if you like it."

Later, a Seattle woman pointed out lichen. She told the group it could be pounded into a powder, mixed with water and made into a pan bread. She said it was high in protein, though "not as high as insects."

"In survival situations, grubs — even worms — provide proteins and fat," she said.

She told one interested party that slugs also can be eaten.

"I eat raw eggs frequently, but I don't know if I could eat a slug," Rollin muttered.

Two Soviet Warships Dock In Boston Harbor

By WARREN E. LEARY
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Two Soviet destroyers, first warships of their nation to visit a U.S. port since World War II, docked today under the welcomes of a harbor fireboat's spray, a 21-gun National Guard artillery salute and a party of U.S. Navy officers carrying swords in full formal dress.

In Leningrad, meanwhile, hundreds of curious Russians lined the docks and bands played vigorously as two U.S. warships entered that city's port for the first visit of American Navy vessels to the Soviet Union since World War II.

The five-day exchange visit of the warships was arranged in honor of the 30th anniversary of the Allied victory over Nazi Germany.

In Boston, the Zhguchiy tied up at Commonwealth Pier at 8:30 a.m., followed by the Boykiy, flagship of Rear Adm. A. M. Kalinin, in line behind her about 10 minutes later.

As a band played aboard the Zhguchiy, the crews of the Russian ships manned the rails in full dress uniforms, facing the American officers on the pier.

They exchanged salutes with the USS Albany, a guided missile cruiser berthed on the other side of the pier.

A handful of civilian spectators watched the arrival.

The two Soviet ships, armed with guided missiles, exchanged salutes with 105mm howitzers fired by National Guardsmen as they sailed past Ft. Independence on Castle Island at the mouth of the inner harbor. The Soviet and American flags flew side by side over the fort.

In Leningrad, an official of the U.S. consulate said the two American vessels received and returned a 21-gun salute and dipped their flags as they entered the harbor, with a U.S. Navy band playing aboard one of the ships and a Soviet band playing on shore.

Rear Adm. Just E. Langille, senior officer aboard the ships, came ashore to greet Soviet Rear Adm. Ivan M. Kolchin, and the Soviet reception party was invited aboard the ships for refreshments.

Several hundred Leningrad residents on the docks surged forward for a look at the American ships.

The 800 officers and men aboard the American ships have a full schedule of sight-seeing and other events during their Leningrad visit.

They will tour the city, visit a kindergarten and high school, attend the opera, go to the circus and symphony and also will participate in basketball and volleyball games with Soviet sailors.

Forest Fires In Michigan Hit Large Area

By the Associated Press
Forest fires raced through portions of lower Michigan over the weekend, destroying nearly 13,000 acres of timber and brushland. Authorities said the fires were the worst to hit the state in 28 years.

Charles Bomaster, a fire supervisor for Michigan's Department of Natural Resources, said Sunday all fires were contained and under control.

The worst of the fires was south of St. Helen in Roscommon County, where 6,000 acres burned before the flames were brought under control late Sunday afternoon.

Officials said arson was believed the cause of that fire because blazes broke out Friday in four places at the same time. Causes of other fires were not immediately determined.

Those busy little bees need a helping hand. They need human friends who will protect them so they can go about their job of making honey and pollinating crops.

The value of bees in making honey has been recognized since prehistoric times. The value of bees in pollinating crops is becoming better recognized all the time.

In fact, extension entomologists at North Carolina State University estimate that the value of pollination is at least 15 times the value of honey and beeswax produced in the state.

Research has shown that good pollination will increase the yields of cucumbers, blueberries and cotton by 20 to 25 percent.

Bees will also boost the yields of apples, peaches, grapes and all the vine crops. Bees help many of the wild fruits and berries too.

"The need for pollinating insects is becoming greater all the time," commented Dr. H. E. Scott, N. C. State University extension entomologist. "Crops are grown in such large acreages that bees can't get around to visiting them all. This is why some farmers are buying or renting bees to pollinate their crops," Dr. Scott continued.

On the other hand, Scott pointed out that bees often have a difficult time surviving in the modern world. Pesticides have killed many bees. Much of the woodland and many of the hedge rows that once provided a habitat for wild bees have been destroyed. Towns often have ordinances that prevent citizens from keeping hives of bees.

Dr. Scott and a fellow entomologist, Dr. R. C. Hillmann, have a number of suggestions which they feel will help protect the bee population.

The big need, they say, is for better communication between beekeepers and farmers. Beekeepers need to let farmers know when they have hives nearby; farmers need to let beekeepers know when they plan to use insecticides.

Farmers and gardeners are also urged to avoid insecticides when crops are in bloom. If spraying during bloom becomes necessary, an effort should be made to apply the insecticides late in the afternoon or at night when the bees are not working. Also, many blooms close at night, which would keep them free of insecticides for the bees that might visit them the following day.

Other suggestions are to avoid insecticide drift and to cut crops in bloom like alfalfa before insecticides are applied.

"Many of the things that are needed to protect bee habitats are not practical," Dr. Hillmann observed. "Farmers like clean fence rows and cities want weedy lots mowed even though they make good nesting places for wild bees."

Hillmann pointed out that the major pollinating insects in North Carolina are honey bees, bumble bees and leaf cutter bees. Of these, honey bees are the most important.

Honey bees, or at least the majority of them, survive the winter as a colony. This means that large numbers of them are available to work early in the spring.

On the other hand, only the queens among bumble bees and leaf cutter bees survive the winter. Population of these bees must be regenerated each year, which means that it is usually mid-summer before many of them are available.

Even by mid-summer a colony of bumble bees will seldom number more than a few hundred. A strong colony of honey bees by comparison may have 30,000 or more.

Wheat, Corn Foreign Sales For 1975 Still Match The Forecasts

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor
WASHINGTON (UPD) — Despite some recent cancellations of export orders for wheat and corn, foreign sales contracts currently on the books remain at or beyond government forecasts, according to Agriculture Department records.

The agency reported late last week that contracts for 53 million bushels worth of corn, including nearly eight million bushels earmarked for the Soviet Union, had been cancelled in late April. But potential 1974-75 season sales, according to contract reports filed by exporters, remained at slightly over 1.2 billion bushels. That is nearly 130 million bushels above official government forecasts.

The apparent export potential for wheat in the 1974-75 season rose slightly to 1.099 billion bushels on the basis of data filed by exporters. This was right in line with Agriculture Department forecasts for the season.

The Soviet Union cancelled a corn order, reportedly because of quality complaints. But Agriculture Department reports also showed Soviet buyers had signed contracts for 2.6 million bushels of U.S. wheat for shipment in the 1975-76 season which begins July 1. It was the first Russian order for "new crop" wheat.

An agriculture specialist in Soviet affairs, meanwhile, said a report in another department publication today eventually could open the door to some stabilization in the level of U.S. grain trade with Russia.

The report said the Soviet Union is planning to expand its grain storage capacity by 40 million tons — almost a third — over the next five years at a cost of about $4.7 billion.

If the Soviet plans are carried out, economist David M. Schoonover said, there could be some improvement in Russian capacity for carrying over reserve stocks of grain from year to year. If that happens, he said, future Soviet purchases of American grain might follow a fairly stable pattern in place of the sharp ups and downs of recent years.

Schoonover cautioned, however, that the Soviet construction plans may not have a "dramatic" impact on future world grain market developments. Part of the planned new storage capacity, he said, probably would be needed to keep pace with projected future expansion in annual Soviet grain production — and only part would be available for increased carry-over reserves.

A report on the Soviet grain storage plans said they appeared to be a response to internal criticism about heavy losses of grain in recent years which spoiled because of a shortage of storage and drying facilities.

The 1974-75 State Graded Fall Feeder Calf and Yearling Steer, and the Spring Stocker Cattle Sales are now history. During the fall of 1974 and the spring of 1975, a total of 16 yearling steer sales, 21 feeder calf sales and 13 state graded stocker sales were held across North Carolina.

In the feeder calf sales this fall, the average price was $28.44-cwt as compared to $53.93 a year ago. Average weight was 456 pounds and 460 pounds for the respective years. These figures include all steers and heifers sold.

This spring, stocker cattle sales sold 10,632 head for an average of $27.67-cwt and a weight of 522 pounds. This compares to the 1974 spring price of $43.49-cwt for cattle averaging 530 pounds.

Of the 10,632 head sold, 5,787 were steers which marketed for an average price of $39.37-cwt with 3,845 heifers averaging $22.21-cwt.

The graded sales program becomes even more important to producers when cattle are selling on a depressed market. It is estimated that cattle marketed through the graded sales last fall and this spring brought from three to five cents per pound more than cattle sold through other channels. This means that for 500 pound cattle, producers received from $15 to $25 more per head.

These sales are sponsored by the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, North Carolina Cattlemen's Association and North Carolina Department of Agriculture.

Seven Dead In Traffic

By The Associated Press
Seven persons died in traffic accidents in North Carolina over the weekend. That brought the toll for the year to 447, or 55 fewer than at the corresponding time last year.

There were two youngsters among the victims. One was nine-month-old Osie Ellen Duval of Todd in Ashe County. She was killed in the head-on collision of two cars in Wilkes County. The other was 5-year-old Bryan Keith Wilmoth of Thurmond in Wilkes County. He was in a car which overturned near Dobson in Surry County.

A pedestrian, Mable Linda Alston, 54, of Graham, was struck by a car near Hillsborough.

Another pedestrian, Bubber Littlejohn, 27, of Lawndale in Cleveland County, was hit by a car near Shelby.

Victims of other accidents were Clyde James Hicks, 27, of Henderson; James Raymond Richmond, 38, of Roxboro; and Herdman Locklear, 35, of Rt. 2, Red Springs.

Commission To Hold Meet Here

The State Soil and Water Conservation Commission will hold its May meeting in Greenville Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Pitt Soil and Water Conservation district will serve as host for the two-day meeting.

The session will begin with a noon luncheon at the Greenville Holiday Inn. A tour of the Chicod Creek Watershed will be held Tuesday from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m., under the leadership of Robert G. Little and Robert Stokes.

Frank M. Wooten Jr. of Greenville will be the keynote speaker at a supper meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. at Parkers Barbecue.

A 7 a.m. breakfast will be held Wednesday morning at the Holiday Inn. A short business session will be held following breakfast. The members will participate in a tour of Conetoe Creek Watershed during the morning. The meeting will conclude following a visit to the Hassell Thigpen farm.

Members of the commission are: Carl E. Sloop Jr., James D. Bellamy, Charles M. Ladd, C. Roy Nifong Jr., William G. Greenlee, G.C. Palmer Jr., Joseph L. Williams. Advisory members are Jesse L. Hicks, Dr. George Hyatt Jr., Col. Clyde P. Patton, J.C. Williamson Jr., and Ralph Winkworth.

Oat Windbreaks Are Utilized In Transplanting

GRIMESLAND—Tobacco was transplanted between small windbreaks of oats on the Robert G. Little farm near Grimesland recently.

The oats were left growing in the fifth middles.

Narrow strips of grain grown in this fashion to control wind erosion are called Balk strips.

"The strips are very effective in preventing wind-blown sand from damaging tender small plants of tobacco, watermelon, cantaloupe and vegetable crops," stated Roy Beck of the Soil Conservation Service.

"The Balk strips are destroyed during a later cultivation of the row crop after the crop is well established," Beck added.

Kindness Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors have told an Agriculture Department aide he will lose the eye injured when he was stabbed while walking through Human Kindness Day crowds near the Washington Monument.

"Nobody would help me," said Steven Laine, director of public affairs for Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz. "I said, 'Help me,' and there was no response. I said it several times and no one did anything."

Laine said he was stabbed while walking Saturday through the crowds at the Washington Monument. He said he was attacked from behind and, when he turned, something sharp and thin was thrust into his right eye.

About 125,000 persons had gathered at the monument for a day of rock music sponsored by the Park Service and a group called "Compared to What, Inc."

Laine said after the stabbing he walked alone to a first aid station at the edge of the crowd. He then was rushed to a hospital.

Park police said about 100 persons had reported being robbed or assaulted during the day.

There's a Lasso tank-mix that's right at home on your soybean fields.

For soybean growers, Lasso is the herbicide to start with. By itself, Lasso controls many annual grasses, including fall panicum and crabgrass. And some broadleaf weeds. What's more, Lasso doesn't carry-over, and that makes it a good working partner in any labeled tank-mix. Which tank-mix is right for you? For medium soils with relatively low organic matter, Lasso plus Lorox* will help you control common ragweed, foxtail, smartweed, and pigweed. And you don't incorporate Lasso plus Lorox.

On the other hand, if your soybeans need relief from cocklebur and annual morningglory, Lasso plus Dyanap or Lasso plus Premerge could be what you've been looking for. They both cut down on cocklebur and annual morningglory competition. Again, no incorporation.

Anyway you look at it, Lasso is the herbicide to start with. It's right at home on your soybean fields.

Bullets Set For Finals; Warriors, Bulls, Still Battle

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — When Kevin Porter keeps his cool, he makes things hot for the opposition.

The 5-foot-11 dynamo had his temper and his game under complete control Sunday, and stood tall among the giants of the National Basketball Association while leading the Washington Bullets to a 98-92 victory over the Boston Celtics.

The victory, Washington's 42nd in 48 home games this season, gave the Bullets the best-of-seven Eastern Conference title, four games to two, eliminating the defending champion Celtics.

"Kevin really took charge," said Porter's 6-9 teammate, Elvin Hayes. "He's the real key to this club. He makes things happen and he makes us go. He proved it today down the stretch. It was a fine effort by the little fellow."

In addition to handing off 11 assists, as he did all year to become the NBA assist champion, Porter scored 13 of his 21 points in the final quarter to blunt a Boston comeback.

Washington will now have a week off, which could give Mike Riordan time to recover from a severe thigh bruise, before entertaining either Golden State or Chicago in the first game of the championship series next Sunday.

CHICAGO (AP) — It looks like Coach Al Attles and his resilient Golden State Warriors may not be headed for a vacation after all.

"I said before this sixth game that if we didn't come out blazing, we'd go on a vacation until next October," Attles said after his Warriors stunned the Chicago Bulls 86-72 Sunday to carry the National Basketball Association's Western Conference playoff final to a seventh game.

The Warriors, and Rick Barry in particular, did come out blazing to create a 3-3 standoff and give the Warriors home court advantage in the seventh game in Oakland Wednesday night.

The winner will face the Washington Bullets in a best-of-seven showdown for the NBA championship. Barry, who has had an up and down series, was at his best before a Chicago Stadium record crowd of 19,594.

Barry led both teams with 36 points. He also had seven steals, eight rebounds and eight assists.

It was Barry's hustling play that keyed a Warrior defense that outrebounded the Bulls 51-39 and had Chicago handling the ball like a hot potato most of the time.

Barry's 12 points in the second quarter ignited a Warrior spurt which erased an early 25-18 deficit and moved them to a 46-38 halftime lead.

"For the first time in six games," explained Barry, "the Bulls had to play Warrior basketball. That means we run and they can't set up their defense."

CHANGE TO NIGHT
ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Expansion of the University of New Mexico football stadium will be completed in time to permit some 1975 season games to be played at night. University officials had announced earlier that all six home games would be played in the afternoon.

Contractors have assured athletic department officials that the Fresno State, Colorado State and Arizona State games in September and October can be played at night.

The first day game will be Oct. 18 against Utah. Other home afternoon contests will be against Texas-El Paso and Wyoming.

Ashe Wins Tennis Title

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The story is an old one, but it seemed ever so true: Arthur Ashe blows the big ones. While the talk continued, Ashe was getting a giant confidence builder from a gypsy in Stockholm.

The seance of two weeks ago was credited by Ashe with helping him win the World Championship of Tennis title here Sunday.

"It almost sounds silly to tell you about this," Ashe said after his 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-0 victory over Sweden's Bjorn Borg. "I really thought I was going to win two weeks ago after I met this lady in a coffee shop. It was quite unsettling."

Ashe, 31, said, "This red-haired lady read my palms and my lines in my face and told me I would win this week. She didn't really know me from Adam. "She told me things there was no way for her to know — like one of my parents dying when I was young. The last thing she said was, 'You will cry a lot before the month is over.'"

Ashe cried while accepting his trophy and a $50,000 first prize check after his unexpectedly easy victory over the 18-year-old Borg, who lost in the final for the second consecutive year.

The blond teenager from Sweden said his five-set, four-hour marathon against Australia's Rod Laver Friday night in the semifinals had taken too much out of him to handle top-seeded Ashe.

"I gave everything against Laver and I had nothing left mentally or physically," said Borg, who earned $20,000 for second place.

As far as the "choke" talk, Ashe said, "I think I have answered all that. I have been on three winning Davis Cup teams. I have won two grand slam events. Now, I have won the WCT."

How about a one-on-one match with Jimmy Connors? "That idea is not very appealing," Ashe said.

Ashe played poorly at the start of the nationally televised match before 9,000 fans in Moody Coliseum, committing 23 errors in the first set. But his big serve soon blew the Swede off the court, particularly in the fourth set. Borg's usual consistent volleys failed him and he couldn't buy a first serve in the last two sets.

The son of a Dayton, Tenn., preacher, Gaither made famous the expression that he always wanted his football players "to be mobile, a-gile and hos-tile."

Vida Wins 7th Free For All Breaks Lazy Kansas City Day

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

It wasn't a full-fledged free-for-all in the best baseball tradition, but for a lazy afternoon in Kansas City it wasn't bad.

The Royals were coasting 4-0 behind Steve Busby, Milwaukee wasn't making much of a comeback attempt and the 11-163 fans scattered around Royals Stadium were stifling yawns.

Then Kansas City's George Brett and Milwaukee's Kurt Bevacqua woke everyone up with some fisticuffs in the seventh inning. Brett barreled into second trying to break up a double play, both players came up swinging and the crowd had something to yell about.

So did Bevacqua and Brett. Both benches and bullpens emptied, but just to get a better look. No one else threw a punch. Bevacqua and Brett were ejected and everyone settled back to watch Busby finish off his five-hit, 4-0 victory.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland beat New York 7-5; Texas outslugged Detroit 11-7; Minnesota and Baltimore split a pair, the Twins taking the opener 6-4 and the Orioles the nightcap 9-3; Boston defeated California 5-2 and Cleveland slipped by Chicago 4-3 in 11 innings.

Busby struck out nine batters and walked just two en route to his fifth victory against two losses. Brett, Cookie Rojas, Frank White and Harmon Killebrew collected run-scoring singles. For an added touch, Killebrew, the paunchy 38-year-old designated hitter, stole a base for the first time since Sept. 15, 1971.

"I'm running better now than in about three years," Killebrew explained.

Rangers 11, Tigers 7
Jeff Burroughs and Leo Cardenas clubbed two-run homers and Tom Grievie and Roy Smalley added solo shots for Texas in a game marred by missed fly balls as well as other errors that don't show up in the box score. Ferguson Jenkins won his fifth straight game but left after the fifth in favor of Steve Foucault.

Each side was officially charged with only two errors but Texas' Joe Lovitto and Detroit's Leon Roberts, among others, were guilty of misplaying balls into extra-base hits.

"It was one of the worst games I've ever managed in, as far as seeing balls fall in that should have been caught," said Texas skipper Billy Martin.

A's 7, Yanks 5
Vida Blue became the American League's first seven-game winner but needed relief help from Jim Todd to hand New York its seventh loss in the last eight games. Joe Rudi drove in three runs for Oakland with a homer and single. Bobby Bonds hit a two-run homer for New York.

Steve Brye's two-run double was the big blow in a four-run rally in the fifth that carried Minnesota to victory in the opener. Rod Carew and Tony Oliva singled in the other two runs in the inning. Bert Blyleven gave up six hits en route to his fourth win in five decisions.

The Orioles rallied in the nightcap behind the hitting of Bobby Grich and Tommy Davis. Grich unloaded a pair of solo home runs and Davis went 3-for-4 with four RBI. Jim Palmer, 5-2, won it and Mike Pazik, making his major league debut, lost.

Red Sox 5, Angels 2
Rico Petrocelli and Rick Burleson rapped two-run singles as Boston made it seven wins in the last eight games and climbed to within one game of first-place Milwaukee in the East Division. Jim Rice added a solo home run for Boston and Bill Lee went the distance with a seven-hitter. Bill Singer, 2-5, dropped his fourth straight.

Indians 4, White Sox 3
Cleveland's Tom McCraw got an infield single to drive in the tying run with two out in the bottom of the 11th and John Ellis raced home with the game-winner on throwing errors by Terry Forster and Bob Coluccio.

Rico Carty hit a home run for the Indians who ended a five-game losing streak. Nyls Nyman had put the White Sox on top with a run-scoring single in the top of the 11th.

A.J. Foyt Heads Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The old master, A.J. Foyt, will lead the Indianapolis 500 field for a record-tying fourth time May 25, but again there will be an explosive list of chargers in the back of the 33-car pack.

Foyt, with a dramatic late afternoon effort Saturday, wrestled his new Aztec orange Coyote Racer through its 10-mile, four-lap speed test at an average of 193.976 miles per hour, with a top lap of 195.313 m.p.h. Only the late Rex Mays, who never won here, earned as many No. 1 starting positions in the May classic.

The list of speedsters relegated to the rear of the field, because they missed the first day of qualifying for one reason or another, includes Wally Dallenbach, Roger McCluskey, Steve Krisloff and Mario Andretti.

Each hopes for the same luck that helped Johnny Rutherford come from 25th starting spot to win last year. Rutherford missed the first day of qualifying because of a blown engine and had to make the field later and start at the rear, despite second fastest speed.

Foyt solved the problems in his new Coyote, which started out the week at barely 173 m.p.h.

"That really shook me up," Foyt said. "But I knew what the car would do — what it was capable of doing — so we stuck with it."

Foyt's run knocked 1973 winner Gordon Johncock, who drove a Wildcat identical to Dallenbach's, to the second starting spot with a speed of 191.652 m.p.h. Bobby Unser, the 1968 race winner, completed the all-winner front row with a 191.073 average in a new Eagle.

The only other driver to crack 190 m.p.h. was Tom Sneva, starting on the inside of the second row with a 190.094 showing in a McLaren. Rutherford, though better off than last

Bombers Take Pair

Belvoir's Bombers scored eight runs in the fifth inning and coasted to a 10-4 victory over Grimesland yesterday to complete a sweep of a doubleheader. They won the first game by a 7-3 margin.

Leading 2-0 going into the fifth inning, Robert Johnson led off with a single. Bobby Short followed with a triple to score Johnson, later scoring himself on a wild pitch. After one out, Marvin Hardy and Leon Johnson were walked. Curtis Sneed's two-base error scored Hardy, with Johnson moving to third. Willie Streeter reached on another error and Bill Holland's double cleaned the bases.

Howard Pegret's double scored Holland, though Pegret was thrown out trying to stretch the double. Robert Johnson batted for the second time in the inning, scoring on a three-base error. Grimesland got its runs in the fourth and fifth innings, when J. Daniels got to second on an outfield error, went to third on an infield out, and came home on a sacrifice fly. Three more scored when Grimesland parlayed four successive singles and a triple by Larry Telfair.

In the first game, Belvoir broke a 2-2 tie when Marvin Hardy tripled in the third inning and scored on an error. They added three in the fourth when Holland reached on an error, followed by Robert Johnson's single, and Short's double. Bernie Colorado also doubled to score Short.

Grimesland scored one more run in the fifth inning.

Sports In Brief

By The Associated Press
FOREST CITY, Fla. (AP) — Sandra Cheeseborough of Jacksonville Ribault has claimed a national high school record in the 220-yard dash with a time of 24.2 seconds.

Miss Cheeseborough's effort came in the preliminaries of Saturday's state girls' prep track meet here. She won the finals in a time of 25.8 seconds.

MONTREAL (AP) — The chairman of the executive committee of the Montreal Urban Community says a work stoppage at the site of the 1976 Summer Olympics has created "a very critical situation."

Most of the 1,800 workers at the Olympics site and 25 other construction projects in Montreal walked off the job Thursday in protest of a government report that suggests several union locals be placed under the trusteeship of the provincial government.

Falcone's Pitches Little Puzzle To Cardinals

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

"I thought they'd be taking some pitches to find out what I had," said Pete Falcone. The St. Louis Cardinals immediately liked what he had—and put the pitches all over the ball park...and out of it.

"I started them off with fast balls. 'I should've started them off with the curve,'" San Francisco's rookie pitcher added with momentous hindsight. Before Falcone knew what had happened, the Cards had jumped all over him for four runs in the first inning, all they needed for a 4-3 victory over the Giants.

In Sunday's other National League games, Los Angeles blanked Pittsburgh 7-0, New York beat Cincinnati 3-2, Houston mauled Montreal 6-0, San Diego edged Chicago 2-1 and Atlanta beat Philadelphia 7-3. Lou Brock said it didn't matter what Falcone threw. "I wasn't taking anything," he said. "Just throw it over the plate and I'll swing at it. I can't afford to be taking pitches."

He took a Falcone offering and put it into left field for a double. Then Ted Sizemore put a pitch down the left field line for another one and a run.

Luis Melendez liked the right field line better. He tripled there, sending Sizemore home to tie the score 2-2. Ted Simmons then returned the action to left field...or, more precisely, beyond it. He unloaded Falcone's full-count pitch into the seats for his fourth home run of the season. Dodgers 7, Pirates 0. Don Sutton "had a touch of the flu and wasn't feeling his best," Dodgers Manager Walter Alton said. It would have been interesting to see a healthy Sutton facing the hard-hitting Pirates. As it was, he limited them to eight harmless hits and chalked up his seventh victory of the season.

"My control was good and I was keeping them off balance most of the time," he said. "I was fortunate that I didn't get behind very many of them and was able to get them to hit my pitch."

The Dodgers got two runs in the fifth inning when Dave Lopes walked, Lee Lacy tripled and he came in on Ken Brett's wild pitch. Los Angeles added three in the sixth, two on Lopes' single.

Mets 3, Reds 2. Tom Seaver settled down after giving up a pair of first-inning runs, one on Pete Rose's lead-off homer, and hurled a six-hitter to help the Mets end their six-game tailspin.

Rusty Staub's into left field for the eighth, which foiled Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson's lefty vs. lefty strategy, delivered the tie-breaking run.

Singles by Mike Phillips and Del Unser chased Reds' starter Jack Billingham and Staub greeted reliever Will McEneaney with his line single to right.

"Sometimes I make mistakes, too," said Anderson. Padres 2, Cubs 1. Dave Freisleben withstood Chicago's 10 hits and Hector Torres singled to drive home the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning for the Padres.

Bill Bonham walked Dave Winfield to open the eighth. Two outs later, Winfield stole second and, after Steve Huntz was intentionally walked, Torres singled to right.

Both teams scored a run in the fifth inning, San Diego on Winfield's bases-loaded ground-er and the Cubs on Tim Lincecum's homer.

Astros 6, Expos 0. Larry Dierker's five-hitter and Roger Metzger's three runs batted in—two with a homer—gave the Astros their victory over Montreal, Houston's first shutout of the season.

Dierker got a fourth-inning run on Jose Cruz' single, Houston added two in the fifth on Ken Boswell's single, Greg Gross' triple and Metzger's infield single. In the ninth, Gross singled for another run before Metzger belted his first homer of the year.

Braves 7, Phillies 3. Atlanta's Buzz Capra, with help from the potent bats of Earl Williams and Ralph Garr, ended his personal four-game losing streak, scattering eight Philadelphia hits.

Williams hit a two-run homer to cap a four-run first inning against Wayne Twitchell and Garr unleashed a three-run clout in the fourth.

Strange Takes N-S Amateur Championship

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer

PINEHURST, N. C. (AP) — Curtis Strange, the 75th North and South Amateur golf tournament champion, was scheduled to take a makeup exam today at Wake Forest University.

He was busy on the No. 2 course of the Pinehurst country club all of last week, shooting 66 under par in winning seven matches on the par 72 course measuring 7,051 yards.

He wound up the week with a 2-up victory over Walker Cup teammate George Burns in Saturday's 36-hole finals. Burns, who says he "probably" will turn pro in June, was 10 under on the week.

Strange, 20-year-old sophomore from Virginia Beach, Va., shot 71-69 against 70-73 for the husky Burns, 25-year-old from Port Washington, N. Y., who had hoped to become the first champion in a dozen years.

to retain the title. Burns took a 1 up lead to lunch by winning the last two holes of the morning round. He led by three at the turn, but Strange won four in a row starting at No. 13 to go 1 up, only to bogey the last two and relinquish the lead.

The afternoon round was hotly contested as the two never were more than one hole apart until a final hole bogey five by Burns gave Strange his 2 up margin.

Strange had made the turn for the last time 1 up, but Burns birdied on 12 and 13 put the New Yorker ahead. Strange regained the lead with a par on 14 and a birdie two on 15 and never relinquished it.

Two keys to the outcome were the failure of Burns to hit greens in the afternoon after rarely missing all week and Strange's turnabout on the par threes.

Burps missed six greens in the afternoon, losing each hole, four to pars. He missed only three in the morning. Strange, after missing seven in the first round, missed only one in the afternoon.

Burns won three of the par threes in the morning and Strange took only one. The Virginian used 14 shots on the four shorties. In the afternoon, he played them in 10 shots to win three and halve the other.

Remarkably, the 36 holes produced only one three-putt green, Strange's sixth in the morning. He knocked in a 57-footer to birdie the par four fifth first time around, then missed three putts of four to seven feet as he lost Nos. 6, 8 and 9.

Strange, who says he'll finish college and turn pro "when I'm ready," told newsmen, "I worked as hard as I could for three weeks for one golf tournament. I hit balls and putted for hours at a time. It's really satisfying."

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Brian Oldfield has set sights on an 82-foot shot put toss, using what he calls "the style of the future."

Oldfield showed what he has in mind with a 75-foot heave Saturday, more than three feet farther than the world record. "Call it the Oldfield spin or the Ogre's Orbit," Oldfield said of his unorthodox style after he stunned an El Paso Track Classic crowd with his efforts.

Oldfield, using a discus-like delivery, fouled in his first attempt and then edged Al Feuerbach's world outdoor record of 71 feet, 7 inches with a 71-11½ toss, which also topped Fred DeBernardi's pro record of 70-3.

The 265-pound Oldfield made two more illegal tosses before successive heaves of 73-¼ and 75-0.

His 75-foot toss at the International Track Association meet will not be an official world record because he is a professional and records are kept by an amateur track and field federation.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Coast Guard is champion of the 37th Dad Vail rowing regatta.

Celebrities Have Fun

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. (AP)—President Ford won a bet, Chuck Thorpe won a bet, and Wilson sliced his first shot into a cluster of woods to the right of the fairway, then asked:

"What's the date of that fundraiser, Mr. President?" After finishing a stroke higher than Ford, Wilson said he was ready to campaign for the President. In turn, the President said he'd be happy to tape a segment of Wilson's program with him in Washington.

Ford received a round of applause at the end of the round when he was presented a bronze trophy by Elder, a Washington area resident and Lake of the Woods property owner who this spring was the first black ever to compete in the Masters at Augusta, Ga.

Thorpe, a Roxboro, N. C., County Club pro who set a course-record 68 in his first round Saturday, came back Sunday with a 69 for a 36-hole total of 137 for the first prize money of $1,000.

The 68 was equaled Sunday by David Jimenez of the Woodmont County Club in Rockville, Md., who had a 72 Saturday and took second prize money of $600 with his 140 total. Touring pro Bob Murphy won $500 for third place with a 141 on rounds of 72 and 69.

A best ball of 116 won the pro-am division was won for a team headed by pro George Wallace of Atlanta, Ga., who earned $500. His amateur partners were Booker Kent of Washington, D. C.; Barney Chilton of Dunedin, Fla.; and Dr. Edgar Soifer of Annandale, Va.

Elder and Wiechers did not compete Sunday after playing Saturday with President Ford

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 13, 1975

Your DAILY HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to be careful not to become embroiled in any arguments or discussions for they could bring harm. The evening finds different aspects that make it possible to gain your aims.
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't permit a secret anxiety to deter you from accomplishing your duties today. A loved one gives unexpected aid.
TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Steer clear of one who argues and go about your business in a practical way. Do something nice for a close family tie.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use diplomacy instead of forceful ways to gain your objectives. Don't neglect your bills. Evening is best for chores.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you attend to regular duties before you amble off for recreation or you could regret it later on.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Making collections and paying bills is vitally important today. Keep any promises you have made. Follow your hunches.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to gain true harmony with associates, but avoid one who opposes you during the day. Handle public affairs wisely.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try not to argue with co-workers or there could be trouble and little accomplished. Take steps toward better health.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't anger associates by leaving your work and going out for recreation when you shouldn't. Stay within your budget.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Strive for increased harmony with your associates. Don't air family troubles away from home. Take it easy tonight.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Much care in motion is important today and tonight. Study reports and statement and make sure they are accurate.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care you are not extravagant with money today. Don't trust an adviser at this time. Take health treatments.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Seeking new outlets is wise now since you could hit on the right ones to bring more success in the future. Be happy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to work hard for everything desired, but should be taught to use tact, or your progeny will have a difficult and unrewarding life. Let discipline be of the gentle kind. A good marriage is denoted in this chart.
"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Jazz Unnoticed Visitor On TV

TV Log

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Despite public TV's fine four-part "At the Top" series from station WXXI in Rochester, N.Y., jazz still is an infrequent, almost unnoticed visitor to national television.

But a 43-year-old jazz nut and promoter here is trying to give the art form a larger share of national TV time this year.
He's Jack Tafuya, whose half-hour "Jazz Adventures" series has appeared the past two seasons on New York's municipal public TV station, WNYC-TV.

On May 20, his series, expanded to an hour, kicks off with pianist Bill Evans' trio, followed by nine more weeks of shows with such jazz greats as Donald Byrd, Stan Getz and the Gil Evans orchestra.

The shows will appear only locally now. But Tafuya says he plans to approach both prospective underwriters and the Public Broadcasting Service about getting some or all the new programs aired nationally.
"One of the reasons jazz has never got its due is that it's never hit the mass medium, at least with artists like these," says Tafuya, a former bassist and singer who hosts all his shows.
"When you see jazz on TV, it's always going to be Ella Fitzgerald or Benny Goodman. It's always these same people. And that's what all the kids think jazz is. They don't get to hear a Bill Evans."
He spoke before a screening of the Evans show. The program's production was modest, but the camera work was good and the sound quality — often mediocre even in network shows — was magnificent.
Tafuya says he gets most of the money for his non-profit "Jazz Adventures," which also holds off-camera concerts locally, from the New York State Council on the Arts.

The council, a tax-supported body, says it gave JA an $11,000 grant for the 1973-74 season and doubled that this season.
Tafuya said he taped the current batch of "Jazz Adventures" TV shows at Brooklyn College before a student audience in January and February.
He says he hopes to enlist PBS' wealthiest station, WNET-TV here, in helping him find corporate underwriters who would pay for the series' national broadcast, when and if such ever occurs.

Surgical Boycott In California Spreads

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A boycott of all but emergency surgery by many California doctors protesting high malpractice insurance rates continued into an 11th day today, threatening to engulf all of California.

"It's a foregone conclusion that this will ultimately extend to the entire state of California," Dr. Sanford Marcus, president of the Union of American Physicians, said Sunday.

Doctors in two more counties in Northern California prepared to join the protest. Anesthesiologists in Santa Clara and San Mateo counties said they would assist only in emergency surgery starting today.

In Sacramento, a spokesman for 60 anesthesiologists said they would go out May 19 unless the state legislature takes action before then.

No elective surgery has been performed in about 50 private hospitals in San Francisco, Alameda, Contra Costa and Marin counties since May 1 when anesthesiologists and some other physicians refused to renew Argonaut Insurance Co. malpractice coverage. Other hospitals reported a booming business.

Patient occupancy has been drastically reduced. Private hospitals in San Francisco alone report losing about $200,000 a day. Some hospitals have laid off up to 50 per cent of their staffs, including nurses.

Anesthesiologists and other specialists involved in the boycott who had paid $5,377 a year for malpractice coverage with Argonaut now must pay $18,164. Those in San Mateo and Santa Clara are covered by Travelers Corp. which announced rate hikes of up to 500 per cent last week.

Elizabeth's Shrine Visitor

TOBA, Japan (AP) — On the fifth day of her state visit to Japan, Queen Elizabeth II visited the shrine consecrated to the legendary goddess who founded the nation's imperial family. The British monarch was escorted Sunday into the unpainted wooden structure, which is rebuilt every 20 years, by a priest, but she did not view the mirror said to have been handed the first Japanese emperor of the sun goddess. The mirror is not shown to the public.

No Special Strategy For GOP In 1976 Election

By CATHY STEELE ROCHE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—The chairman of the Republican National Committee said the GOP plans no special strategy to appeal to the southern vote in the 1976 election.

Mr. Smith, in North Carolina on Saturday to address a leadership seminar for state party officials, denied that a split between conservatives and moderates in the GOP was damaging the party.

She said that ideological differences are properly expressed within the party structure and predicted that by 1976 President Ford would build a record that would appeal to all segments of the Republican party.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan was not indicative of a damaging party split. Reagan has called for the GOP to turn to the right, away from the moderate course charted by Ford and the national committee.

Sees Future Hostility In Boston School Plan

BOSTON (AP)—A final plan to integrate Boston's public schools next September "has virtually guaranteed a continuation of the present level of hostility and tension throughout the city," Mayor Kevin H. White says.

The proposal would increase the number of students who must take buses to get to their assigned schools from 17,000 to 21,000. It would require for the first time the busing of about 12,000 pupils in elementary grades.

Garrity forecast a school population of 72,000. But McDonough said the enrollment may drop "dangerously close" to 60,000, down from 93,000 one year ago.

One section of the city, East Boston, was left out of the new plan. It is 95 per cent white and separated from the rest of the city by Boston Harbor.

The plan was announced over the weekend by U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., whose partial desegregation plan ordered last summer touched off months of disturbances.

Assigning students to schools in their own neighborhoods "cannot achieve substantial desegregation in Boston due to the geography of the city and the racial and ethnic distribution in the city," Garrity said in his 104-page final plan.

White was joined by school officials and white community leaders in attacking the plan. There was no immediate reaction from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People or Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

Garrity predicted the plan will cost about $7.6 million to implement and will require the use of about 420 buses at a cost of $100 a day each.

Plan Increased Grain Storage

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union plans to increase its grain storage facilities by nearly one-third by 1980, a move U.S. experts say could save much of the Russian crop now lost each year because of poor handling after harvest.

Fletcher R. Pope Jr., a specialist in the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service, told a reporter he could not predict whether an improved Soviet grain handling system might eventually mean a lesser need for imports.

Pope said the Agriculture Department estimates about 10 per cent of the Soviet Union's grain harvest is lost each year on the average, much of it from lack of modern storage and handling facilities.

The proposed grain storage expansion was outlined in a report by A. Paul Danyluk, assistant U.S. agricultural attache in Moscow. He said the Soviet plan is to construct about 40 million metric tons of additional off-farm storage capacity in the next five years, boosting the total capacity to 180 million tons by then.

Kannapolis Has 3rd Fire

KANNAPOLIS, N. C. (AP)—Firemen were called out for the third time in eight days to battle a school fire in Kannapolis Sunday but damage was slight and classes were held as usual today at J. W. Cannon Junior High, where the latest fire occurred.

Kannapolis Fire Chief Roy Deyton said investigation is continuing into the cause of the fires. Sunday's fire was discovered on the Cannon school roof, which was under repair.

Deyton said spontaneous combustion in some materials left on the roof by repairmen was one of the possible causes being studied.

Philadelphia Has A Party

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Hundreds of thousands of Philadelphians turned out to eat, drink, dance and tour dozens of exhibits in a massive block party commemorating the 200th anniversary of the Second Continental Congress.

Sunday's celebration, "The American Way," included something for everyone, from a minizoo to fashion and sports shows and demonstrations of ethnic culture.

Festivities took place along eight blocks of Benjamin Franklin Parkway from City Hall to the Art Museum. It began at noon and ended nine and one-half hours later with a free concert by the Blood, Sweat and Tears rock group and a fireworks show.

Music Holidays In North Wales

LLANDUDNO, Wales (UPI)—The Welsh National Opera Company, in conjunction with seaside hoteliers, has arranged a selection of music holidays during its two-week season in this North Wales resort beginning June 3. Arrangements include hotel accommodation and the best opera seats at an all-inclusive reduced price.

PLANS TO RETIRE?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen Roman L. Hruska, a Nebraska Republican who has been a leading conservative voice in the Senate for the last 20 years, plans to retire when his current term expires in 1977, an aide says.

Germany Seeing Tourism Down

WIESBADEN, Germany (UPI) — Germany is no longer attracting the visitors it used to. The Federal Statistics Office said 10.5 million foreign tourists visited the Federal Republic last year, the lowest figure in five years. The number of American tourists fell by 15 per cent compared with the previous year, according to the agency.

NOTICE OF SALE OF LIEN FOR TAXES

Under and by virtue of the power vested in me by the laws of the State of North Carolina, particularly by General Statutes 185-349, and pursuant to an order of the City Council of the City of Greenville, I will offer for sale and will sell at public auction, for cash, to the highest bidder, at the courthouse door in the City of Greenville at 12 o'clock noon on Monday, the 9th day of June, 1975, liens upon the real estate described below for the non-payment of taxes owing for the year 1974. The real estate which is subject to lien, the name of the owner or the name of the person who listed it for taxes, and the amount of the lien is set out below. And notice is hereby given that the amounts of the liens set out below are subject to the addition of interest as provided by law, and also the costs of sale. Minimum bid that will be received is amount of lien plus interest, penalties, and cost.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was widely mixed today amid countering forces of profit taking and buying on hopes of an improved economy. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial was off 1.26 at 948.87, but gainers held a 3-2 lead over losers in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The push and pull of activity on the NYSE left the exchange's ticker tape running as much as four minutes late in the early going.

Occidental Petroleum, the most active stock Friday when it gained 1 1/2 points, added another 1/2 to 1 1/8 in heavy trading today.

Late this morning the company announced it had found a new natural gas field in California's Sacramento Valley. Some housing and related issues were strong on a Wall Street Journal report that a recently enacted tax break for buyers of new homes was stimulating sales in the inventory laden industry.

Kaufman & Broad, for example, was up 3/4 at 8 1/2, and MGIC Investment, a major mortgage insurer, climbed 1/2 to 16 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .17 to 48.15 in the first hour.

The American Stock Exchange's market-value index was up .33 at 87.72.

Indochina...

Thailand. Both were reported headed for Paris, and the Thai government said it wanted friendly relations with the Laotian government and would not give asylum to any political refugees from Laos. It took the same stand toward political refugees from South Vietnam and Cambodia after the Communist victories there.

Elsewhere in Indochina: The new Communist regime in South Vietnam ordered members of the former South Vietnamese armed forces and of the civil service to register by Saturday.

A Saigon broadcast said two dozen generals and 1,500 other senior officers registered last week. It said officers from lieutenant through colonel and civil servants were to report to the central police station in Saigon by Saturday, while lower-ranking soldiers were to register with their local security units.

Armed security units made up of volunteers have been set up in every district and village of South Vietnam. Saigon's Liberation Radio said it reported that 2,700 young people from the Youth and Students Federation of South Vietnam have volunteered for security, peacekeeping and traffic duty in the capital.

Liberation Radio said 1,700 young people in Saigon attended four-day indoctrination courses at the "Youth Voluntary Training Center" last week.

"The aim of the courses is to emphasize the significance of the great victory and the liberation of South Vietnam and the new duties of youth and students in supporting and protecting the revolutionary authority," the broadcast said.

"Youth now must keep revolutionary spirits to deserve to be called youth of the Ho Chi Minh Era."

Another broadcast from Saigon said plans were being made to repair and reopen the city's Tan Son Nhut airport, hit by rockets and shelling in the last days before the Communist takeover.

Communications with Western newsmen who remained in South Vietnam after the surrender of Saigon continued to be fragmentary and sporadic. But Matt Franjola of The Associated Press drove through the Mekong Delta and reported commerce booming, farmers preparing their rice fields for the rainy season and homes being rebuilt. He said there appeared to be a new spirit among the people.

From Cambodia, a broadcast Sunday stressed "unity forever" between Cambodia and China and thanked North Korea, North Vietnam and Laos for their support in "defeating the U.S. imperialists." Nothing was said about the Soviet Union.

"The victory of the Cambodian people is the same as the victory of the Chinese," the broadcast said.

The International Red Cross Committee in Geneva defended its delegation in Phnom Penh against a charge by West German television reporter Christoph Froeder that when the city surrendered, the delegation panicked and fled to the French Embassy, abandoning wounded Cambodians and medical supplies.

The committee said the delegation tried to get the Khmer

405 million appropriation for the purpose. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee rearranged its schedule to begin considering the refugee legislation today.

The House also will take up a compromise version of the congressional budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1. A Senate-House conference committee last week worked out a compromise between versions passed by both chambers and came up with a spending target of $367 billion and a $68.8 billion deficit.

President Ford has asked for a deficit limit of $60 billion.

Before the week is over the House expects to dispose of a $32 billion authorization for weapons for the armed services.

Consideration of that bill will be complicated by a drive to attach to it provisions requiring admission of women to the service academies and perhaps to open some combat assignments to servicewomen.

About midweek, the Senate expects to try to limit debate to allow a vote on a controversial bill to create a consumer protection agency.

As already written, the Ways and Means Committee's energy bill would increase gasoline taxes by yearly increments, impose a special levy on high-consuming new automobiles, create new duties to replace petroleum tariffs, tax some industrial use of petroleum and natural gas, and give tax benefits for installing energy-saving insulation.

The question of a special tax on windfall profits is bound up with the issue of decontrolling the price of domestic natural gas. This is under discussion in a House committee panel not expected to resolve it soon.

To get the legislation moving promptly, the committee may report it out without the windfall tax, but with the understanding the tax may be proposed as an amendment when the bill reaches the House floor, probably during the week of May 19.

Meanwhile, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters the Ways and Means bill does not meet President Ford's goals of reducing imports by two million barrels of oil a day and making the nation independent of foreign supplies by 1985.

The State Department said that by Sunday night a total of 48,758 refugees were gathered in Guam, Wake, Thailand and the Philippines; another 26,847 were en route to Guam; 18,700 were at Camp Pendleton; 15,000 were at Ft. Chaffee, Ark.; and 2,500 were at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

Congress is still debating how much it will appropriate to aid the refugees. An initial allocation of $98 million was expected to be exhausted over the weekend.

Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore said in Washington that Asians now question whether the United States would fight to defend South Korea. Appearing on the CBS program "Face the Nation," he said there seems to be a consensus in Congress that Japan must be protected but there is debate about South Korea.

Four American ships loaded with 16,100 more Vietnamese refugees were expected to arrive at Guam today. An additional 1,300 refugees were expected Tuesday and Wednesday, according to a U.S. Navy spokesman.

Four Injured In Accident

Four persons were reported injured in a 9:45 a.m. collision at Calico, 18 miles South of Greenville on N.C. 43 Sunday.

Investigating Highway Patrolman K. R. Ross identified the drivers involved as Susan Kathleen Mayer of Surfside Beach, S. C.; Mildred Tripp Smith of Route 2, Ayden, and Don Gray Billings of Clemmons, N.C.

Trooper Ross reported the Mayer car collided with the rear of the Billings auto, crossed the center line of the highway and struck the Smith car, then bounced back into the Billings car once more.

Damage was estimated at $900 to the Mayer car, $2,000 to the Smith auto and $100 to the

May Designated As Month To Beautify

As part of the statewide clean up and beautifying program, Mayor S. Eugene West has declared the month of May as "Operation Beautiful" month in Greenville, and county officials have designated May as "Clean Up Pitt County Month."

In the presence of "Operation Beautiful" chairman Mrs. Janice Buck and Mrs. Evelyn Spangler of the Home Economics Extension Agency, Mayor West signed a proclamation in which he notes "visual beauty is an essential part of North Carolina's environmental quality . . . the protection of our heritage of splendor is tied to improvement of our environment."

The mayor added "it is appropriate that we give attention to the importance of anti-litter projects by civic-minded groups spearheaded by Keep North Carolina Beautiful.

Mrs. Janet Haseley, commenting on the county effort which has been endorsed by county leaders, said: "Citizens are asked to make a special effort to clean up and beautify their neighborhoods, arrange for junk cars to be removed, remove trash, paint and fix up, and to plant flowers."

The workers voted 4,609 to 2,796 to accept a tentative agreement drawn up last week in Washington. The 24-man negotiating committee had recommended that the proposal be rejected.

The new three-year pact contains a 31-cent-an-hour increase in the first year and three per cent hikes in each of the following years.

Also included is a 78-cent-an-hour cost-of-living boost and retroactive payment of a disputed 17-cent-an-hour hike for 41 weeks, as well as improved seniority provisions.

The machinists, who now average $7.43 an hour in wages and benefits, walked out Feb. 10. About 7,000 machinists in California also struck at that time but returned to work in April.

Final Meet For Council

The Pitt County Title I Parent Advisory Council held its final meeting of the year Thursday night.

Speaker for the meeting was Miss Katherine Green, Title I psychologist for Pitt County Schools. She discussed her duties and answered questions from the members concerning types of behavior and adjustments of children.

Ray Parker, Title I Coordinator, presided. He discussed the present status of the Title I project. He explained that at the present time, the project is operating on a $1 million budget but next year the county will receive only $800,000. Some carry over funds from this year will be used during the next school year.

The dates for meeting during the 1975-76 school year were decided.

Mrs. Maxine Wiggins was elected vice chairman of the group and Mrs. Nora Gatlin was named secretary.

End 13-Week Plant Strike

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — Machinists and aerospace workers have voted to return to work at McDonnell Douglas Corp., ending a 13-week strike that idled 11,500 employees.

The union members, voting Sunday, ignored a recommendation from their negotiating committee.

"The voice of the membership says we will be going back to work," said Claude Barnes, assistant directing business representative of Machinists and Aerospace Workers District 837.

The workers voted 4,609 to 2,796 to accept a tentative agreement drawn up last week in Washington. The 24-man negotiating committee had recommended that the proposal be rejected.

Officers Named By Committee

CHICOD—The Parent Advisory Committee of ESEA Title I met at Chicod Elementary School Wednesday.

Officers for the coming year were named. They are: Mrs. Lloyd Wiggins, chairman; Mrs. Billy Elks, vice chairman; Mrs. Lamur Buck, secretary.

Attending the meeting were: Mrs. Frances Edwards, medical-social counselor; Mrs. Carolyn Smith, reading lab teacher; Miss Sue Creech, reading resource teacher; Mrs. Carolyn Page, aide.

Public Housing Tour Wednesday

A tour of public housing areas in Greenville will be sponsored by the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters Wednesday. The public is urged to attend. Those interested in making the tour should meet at the Community Center of the Newtown Housing Project, 1103 Broad Street, at 9:30 a.m.

The tour, which will last approximately two hours, will include visits to units of various sizes in the four housing projects. Joe Laney, Greenville Housing Authority Executive Director, and Sallye Streeter, Director of Tenant Affairs, will brief tour participants on the local housing situation.

Women Demand Abortions On Mother's Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several thousand women staged a three-hour demonstration on Mother's Day in support of legal abortions.

The women, some accompanied by their husbands and children, paraded past the building housing the Catholic Apostolic Delegation to the United States, chanting, "Two, four, six, eight — separate the church and state."

Organizers said the demonstration was intended to urge the Roman Catholic hierarchy to keep out of the national debate over abortions.

The protest, billed as a "Day of Outrage," was sponsored by the Pennsylvania chapter of the National Organization for Women and a group called Catholics for a Free Choice. Organizers said the marchers were from throughout the Northeast and California, Ohio, South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Recover Body In Chowan River

HARRELSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Rescue workers recovered the body of a Battleboro fisherman Saturday from the Chowan River.

A spokesman for the Hertford County sheriff's department said James Moore drowned Friday while fishing with Larry Herring, also of Battleboro.

Herring was rescued by on-lookers, but Moore went under the water's surface and did not come up. His body was found near the site of the accident, about three miles east of Harrellsville.
