Report Three Cambodian Naval Vessels Destroyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Air Forces planes destroyed three Cambodian naval vessels after the planes were fired on in the vicinity of the captured U.S. merchant ship Mayaguez off Cambodia, Pentagon sources said today.

Reports reaching the Pentagon said an AC130 gunship and A7 attack aircraft keeping watch over the merchant ship held captive by the Cambodians struck the Cambodian ships with 20-millimeter gunfire and possibly other weapons.

Pentagon sources said the incident occurred near Koh Tang Island, about 30 miles off the Cambodian coast, where the Mayaguez is anchored under Cambodian guard.

Meanwhile, it was learned that U.S. Air Force warplanes flying out of Thailand have been ordered to prevent any effort by the Cambodians to move the Mayaguez from its present position.

The fate of the Mayaguez' 39-man crew was not known. There were reports Tuesday that Caucasians were seen being taken to the island from the Mayaguez in fishing-type boats.

U.S. planes have been keeping a constant aerial watch on the Mayaguez, awaiting further action orders from President Ford.

Pentagon sources said about 1,000 Marines had been flown from U.S. bases in the Philippines and on Okinawa to the U.S. base at Utopao in southern Thailand. The move was made in the face of Thai government objections.

There was no indication as to what happened to the crew of the Cambodian boats, one of which was identified as a gunboat.

There were about seven Cambodian craft in the area of the Mayaguez at the time the three vessels were destroyed, sources said.

There was no evidence that any U.S. aircraft were hit by gunfire during the incident, the sources said.

Pentagon sources said U.S. Air Force rescue helicopters attempted to pick up some of the crewmen of the destroyed Cambodian boats, but that other Cambodian naval craft fired on the rescue helicopters and they broke off the attempt.

Earlier, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott had said he expected developments in the Mayaguez crisis within the next 24 hours and added they might include use of "minimum force necessary" to rescue the ship's crew.

Speaking to reporters, Scott said U.S. naval vessels would be in the area of the Mayaguez by Wednesday night EDT, which is Thursday morning Cambodian time. Vessels sent to the area include the aircraft carrier Coral Sea and two U.S. destroyers.

Speaking guardedly, Scott said the developments might include the use of "minimum necessary measures," which he defined as "minimum force necessary, should force be necessary." He said he doubted the U.S. ships would let the Mayaguez be moved from its present position.

"The primary concern is the recovery of the crew, Scott said, adding that "we may reach a situation which may require the use of minimum necessary measures to bring that about."

"I would expect that within the next 24 hours there would be some developments affecting the vessel," he said.

Scott's statements came as the Ford administration had little expectation of a diplomatic end to the Cambodian ship crisis, hoping instead for a Communist cave-in to the implied threat of U.S. military action.

Again Cross Into Lebanon

By The Associated Press
Israeli troops crossed the border into southern Lebanon today for the third straight day on a hunt for Arab guerrillas, Israeli military sources said.

The Lebanese Defense Ministry said armored patrols broke through the demarcation line and searched village homes but were driven back by Lebanese artillery. It was the first report of Lebanese resistance during the current series of raids.

The Israeli military command said only that Lebanese mortar fire drew an Israeli artillery response. An Israeli military source said Israeli troops searched the border region for Arab guerrillas but entered no villages.

A Lebanese communique said the first Israeli patrol was driven back, but two hours later four armored patrols pulled up to the border and several vehicles punched through the barbed-wire and cyclone fence demarcation line. Israeli soldiers searched two homes in the village of Aita al-Shaab less than a mile from the border before being driven back into Israeli territory by renewed Lebanese artillery salvos, the communique said.

In another Mideast development, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat flew to Baghdad, Iraq, in an attempt to avert a break in diplomatic relations between Syria and Iraq. He will visit Damascus after a stop in Amman, the Jordanian capital.

Syria and Iraq are locked in a bitter dispute over the waters of the Euphrates River. "President Sadat has got to do something to prevent the worst from happening," one Arab diplomat in the Middle East said.

Laotians Loot And Ransack

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Mobs of Lao students ransacked American installations in the cities of Luang Prabang and Savannakhet today, looting rice and supplies, reliable sources said. Radio contact with the Agency for International Development compound at Savannakhet was lost and a U.S. Embassy spokesman expressed concern for the 15 Americans there.

In Luang Prabang, the royal capital 200 miles north of Vientiane, sketchy radio reports said 3,000 students, teachers and pedicab drivers seized rice supplies and wrecked the AID compound.

The four Americans there were thought to be safe, embassy sources said. The reports said the demonstrators also seized the provincial governor's office and began to distribute rice seized from American stocks.

The demonstrators, apparently protesting 70 per cent inflation, skyrocketing prices and the U.S. presence, left the United States Information Service office untouched.

Initial reports said they also took over the radio station and seized foodstocks from stores in Luang Prabang, a city of 50,000 persons.

Meanwhile, the Lao cabinet, chaired by neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma, met this afternoon to discuss a wave of resignations that left the balance of political power in favor of the Communist Pathet Lao, who now dominate the coalition government set up two years ago.

The government replaced the commander of the joint Vientiane security force with a general considered amenable to the Pathet Lao. A radio announcement said Gen. Bounchan Savanthphaysan would replace Gen. Atsaphanthong Pathammavong as commander of the capital garrison, which is made up of both Pathet Lao and rightist troops.

Greenville Utilities Warn Of Natural Gas Shortage

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Managing Editor
Supplies of natural gas could become "very desperate" in the years ahead unless Transco, which supplies natural gas to the area opens up new fields. Utilities Director Charles Horne reported that to the Utilities Commission Tuesday night following a conference with N.C. Natural Gas, the pipeline company. Horne presented charts to show a declining supply of natural gas, based on present sources. It means that soon there will be no gas at all for interruptible customers—those who can turn to other energy sources when gas is short. This includes such customers as the hospital, Burroughs-Wellcome and the university.

Residential customers, which have a higher priority would be all right for the present, but the situation for residential users could be "desperate" by 1977 or 1978. Horne pointed out, however, that government action to encourage gas exploration could change the picture for better in a few years.

The commission adopted a policy of not accepting new natural gas customers on the local system following the lead of the N. C. Utilities Commission.

The commission also spelled out an area for sale of propane gas by the local utilities since additional propane supplies are available. Propane is delivered to tanks from a tanker truck.

Also the commission approved a gas increase of two cents per ccf as an adjustment to current costs.

The commission discussed ways of alerting electric customers to the need to conserve power during critical times at peak summer loads.

The peaks come during early evening hours when heavy air conditioning loads and cooking loads combine to strain generating facilities. Among the suggestions were television and radio alerts to inform customers of the need to reduce electric loads.

Commissioners also approved changes in the 1974-75 budget as an adjustment for changes in revenues and expenditures. The changes increase the electric fund from $12,491,200 as of April 9 to $14,281,000; water fund from $1,134,200 as of April 9 to $1,198,300 and the sewer fund from $684,600 to $741,588.

The commission approved a policy which would allow subdividers to choose either submersible transformers or pad mounted transformers for new developments. The submersible transformers are underground, while the pad mounted are in cabinets above ground.

Under the policy for submersibles the subdivider would pay $125 per lot in advance and the home builder would pay $125 or $25 for all-electric homes. For pad mounts there would be no charge to the subdivider and $125 to the home builder or $25 for all electric homes.

The commission denied a request for refund of water tap fees in Southside Commercial Center prior to expiration of the ten year tap-on period which the commission's policy sets out.

Other matters considered at the meeting: —Approved supplemental agreement with Veeco for new 115 KV service. (Veeco is Greenville Utilities wholesale supplier of electricity).

—Heard report on Electricities legislation. —Approved resolution requesting state grant for water and sewer planning.

—Accepted addition and payment for federal grant in amount of $47,900. —Approved audit of financial records by John C. Proctor and Co. at a price of $2,400.

—Accepted liability insurance refund of $22,770, based on claims experience of past year.

—Approved changes in employee health insurance to drop extended care and add major medical.

—Accepted low bid for water well pump from Hartsfield Water Co. of Kinston at $5,481. Another bid came from Lean Atlantic at $6,980.

—Set work session on 1975-76 budget for May 20.

Logjam Role Is Denied

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI and Central Intelligence Agency officials say they are mystified over claims by the U.S. immigration commissioner that security checks have created a logjam blocking resettlement of tens of thousands of South Vietnamese refugees.

"It's really not an undue burden on us," an FBI spokesman said.

Commissioner Leonard Chapman of the Immigration and Naturalization Service testified Tuesday that 18,000 Vietnamese names are currently being screened to determine if there are criminals, subversives or moral offenders among them.

Testifying before the Senate refugee subcommittee, Chapman said not one of the names had cleared all five agencies who must screen almost all of the 114,000 Vietnamese eventually expected to arrive in the United States.

Chapman said that at the very least, Vietnamese with questionable backgrounds should be identified to local authorities in areas where they will make new homes.

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, the House scheduled a vote today on a $405-million appropriation for the refugees. President Ford had originally asked for $507 million. Volunteer agencies are to receive $500 per refugee for resettlement expenses.

In the Senate, Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said the Senate would vote on a similar $405-million proposal by late this week or early next week.

In a survey of the FBI, CIA, the Drug Enforcement Administration and the Pentagon, officials expressed surprise that the INS' Chapman had attributed any delay in moving refugees to new homes and jobs to the slow speed of security checks. On Monday, only 138 refugees left military camps where they have been undergoing processing for more than a week.

Is there a S and H Green Stamp Redemption Center nearer than Rocky Mount? G.C.

According to Parker Overton of Overton's Super Market, there is a S and H Redemption Center located in Goldsboro. However, a Mail Order Redemption Service will be located in Overton's Super Market in about three weeks. An S and H Green Stamp employe will staff the service and packages will be sent out by S and H Co. via United Parcel Service directly to the customer's house. The Redemption Store here was closed due to renovations for expansion by Overton's Super Market.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

Hotline sometime ago dealt with an item about the need for engraving identifying markings on one's belongings as a means of helping law enforcement identify stolen articles. One's Social Security number was mentioned as a useful identifying mark. Now, however, police officers told Farm Bureau women last week, police have found Social Security number virtually useless when they find marked items and do not know whose they are, because Social Security Administration offices refuse to match numbers and names, regardless of the reason. Police now say driver's license numbers are the best to use, because, they too, are assigned only one to a person and any law enforcement agency can learn the identity of the holder of such a number in seconds via the computerized Police Information Network.

The Greenville Police Department strongly advises the marking of belongings and the posting of some kind of note on one's door that everything of value in the house has been marked. Upon request, a police officer will be sent to do the marking for any Greenville citizen, or a citizen may borrow an engraver.

The Farm Bureau recently has acquired eight engravers and will be loaning them to members.

The towns of Ayden, Grifton and Farmville do not have engravers. A member of the Ayden Police Dept. said there has been some talk about getting one during the summer when a Crime Prevention Program is established. Grifton and Farmville officials said there has been no discussion to purchase engravers.

The citizens of Winterville and Bethel may use engravers owned by the police departments in their areas for engraving their property.

Maurice Stans Fined For Election Violations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans was fined $5,000 today for five admitted violations of federal election laws while Richard M. Nixon's 1972 presidential campaign manager.

U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith said that he found "the end of justice would best be served by a monetary penalty" and therefore was imposing no jail sentence. Stans could have been sentenced to one year in jail on each of the five counts.

"I am very deeply sorry that I caused these matters to come to the attention of the court," said Stans. "I want to assure your honor I did not intentionally violate any law."

Stans concluded by asking for "understanding and leniency." Stans, a career accountant, was the third former member of Nixon's Cabinet to be sentenced in the post-Watergate era.

He had been charged with five counts, all misdemeanors. In three of the counts he was charged with violating the provisions of the law requiring reporting of political contributions; the other counts were for accepting illegal corporate contributions.

"What I did, I did in good faith and in the belief it was the proper thing to do," Stans said.

"It is not alleged Mr. Stans personally profited — that money went into his pocket," said Judge Smith.

He said the four primary purposes of sentencing are rehabilitation, deterrence, protection of the public and punishment.

The judge continued: "It is apparent that the consideration of rehabilitation is not a factor ... it is apparent to the court the deterrent effect already has been achieved," Smith said.

Smith said that new campaign finance laws that went into effect in April 1972 have taken care of deterrence.

"In pre-Watergate days violations of finance laws were commonplace and accepted as fact," the judge said and added such violations are no longer the

Ambassador Wears City's Fashions

THE NEW YORK CITY SUMMER FESTIVAL AMBASSADOR for 1975, Christine Busini, is traveling with a complete—25 costume—wardrobe of packable, easy-care fabrics, presented to her by the Du Pont Company from the current collections of leading New York designers and manufacturers, so that she will be a visible credit to the city's important fashion industry. At left, she wears a raincoat which falls full from raglan sleeves, has deep pockets and can be tied casually with a sash. Tollfree Phone Number Is Refuge For Runaways

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Because I read in your column about that tollfree number, which allows runaway kids to call to let their parents know they are O.K., I re-established contact with my parents, went home and had the most wonderful Easter in my life. (I'm a 19-year-old boy who dropped out of school and hit the road 15 months ago.) Will you please run that item again, Abby?

LUCKY IN ILLINOIS

DEAR LUCKY: With pleasure: Runaways, dial 1-800-231-6946. An operator will telephone your parents anywhere in the U.S. and convey a message from you. ("I'm alive, don't worry about me" is typical.)

There will be no lecturing or counseling. Your call will not be traced, and the only question asked of you will be: "Do you need anything?" If you do, you'll be told where you can obtain it for free. No attempt will be made to bring you home, regardless of your age.

Runaways, please forget the past and call that tollfree number now. Let somebody know that you are alive. You will sleep better tonight, and so will they.

P.S. This wonderful program originated in Texas and has been adopted by 37 states! It's staffed by volunteers, including some grateful runaways who have come home.

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a very attractive man. We hit it off immediately, and I could get serious about him, but he told me something about himself that made me begin to wonder about him. Please don't laugh, because this is serious. He does needpoint!

He is otherwise normal. Do you think I have a problem? WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Yes. But the problem is with you, not him. Needpointing is wonderfully relaxing. It calms the nerves, occupies restless hands, beats smoking and gives one a sense of real accomplishment. And neither sex has a monopoly on that!

DEAR ABBY: I sympathize with "Red-Faced," who wrote to say that she was embarrassed to watch some of those TV commercials with her boyfriend.

I've been in sales and advertising for over 50 years, and I recently became uneasy watching certain TV commercials with my daughter and son-in-law. I think the media is going out of bounds with some of the products they advertise.

If the "red-faced" young lady will go to the public library and ask for an up-to-date copy of "Advertisers' Register," she will find the names and addresses of all major companies listed with the brand names they produce and the names of their executive personnel.

She should then write a letter to the president of the company telling him why she thinks his advertising is offensive. It will be far more effective than writing to the F.C.C., as you recommended.

I've done this with several products and was amazed at the personal attention I received.

T.W.T.: TEXAN

DEAR T.W.T.: Thanks for the suggestion. Others have written to tell me that writing to the F.C.C. to complain about offensive TV commercials was a waste of time.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

ECU Housing Students To Show Projects

Senior projects by East Carolina University housing and management students will be on display this afternoon, in the ECU School of Home Economics Van Landingham Room.

The projects include floor plans, renderings, arrangements of color and fabric swatches, re-upholstered chairs and lighting and wiring lay-outs done by student majors and minors in the ECU

Department of Housing and Management. According to Dr. Patricia Hurley, department chairman, the public is invited to view the projects, which will be on display from 1 to 6 p.m.

French Chef's Way In Preparing Avocados

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
When we heard about this year's fantastically good avocado crop and that this delicious food would be an excellent buy, we immediately thought of one of the best avocado dishes we have ever eaten but which we have never duplicated.

Several years ago when "Feasts of France" by Antoine Gilly and Jack Denton Scott (Crowell) was published, we were at a luncheon given to celebrate the publication of the cookbook. On the menu was a dish that was the hit of the party — avocado halves (barely warm) with a hot tomato filling. The delightful M. Gilly, during his long career in the United States, was the proprietor of two famous New York restaurants, and it was not surprising that when he planned the menu he decided to offer something new and delicious. Now we've adapted the avocado dish for your delectation. If you try it, we hope you enjoy it as much as our tasters did.

AVOCADOS A LA ANTOINE GILLY
¼ cup olive oil
2 tablespoons chopped scallion
16-ounce can whole tomatoes, drained and chopped (1¼ cups)
4 tablespoons soft bread crumbs
¼ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
3 avocados, each about 4 inches long
2 tablespoons (about) butter, melted
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon white pepper

In a 1-quart saucepan heat the oil; add scallion and cook gently until limp; stir in tomatoes; simmer until blended and slightly reduced — about 5 minutes. Add 2 tablespoons of the bread crumbs and stir well. Keep hot over very low heat.

In a cup or small bowl stir together the remaining 2 tablespoons bread crumbs and the cheese; set aside.

Cut the avocados in half lengthwise; remove seeds; do not remove the skin. Brush the cut sides (edges and cavities) with the butter, then sprinkle with the salt and pepper. Fill the cavities with the hot tomato mixture. Sprinkle the crumb and cheese mixture evenly over the tomato mixture.

Broil filled avocado halves about 4 inches from heat source just long enough to brown the topping — about 2 minutes. Serve at once on salad plates with spoons.

Makes 6 first-course dinner servings. If offering as a main luncheon dish, use 4 larger avocados with the filling given above.

Note: When local red ripe tomatoes are in season, you may want to substitute them for the canned tomatoes called for. In this case use two (each about 2½ inches) fresh tomatoes; remove their skins, cut them in half and squeeze each half gently to get rid of the seeds, then dice — there should be about 1 cup.

Household Hints

In planning your garden, use all new seeds for the current year. Seed saved from last year's garden may not breed true to type if they were hybrid varieties. The Federal Seed Act requires labeling with the word "hybrid" any seeds of that type.

Federal standards require a product labeled "bacon dressing" to contain at least eight per cent cured, smoked bacon.

Raisins are easier to chop or grind if they are frozen. For blender chopping, first brush the container and blades lightly with cooking oil and chop no more than half a cup of frozen raisins at a time. The blades and screw of a meat grinder also need oiling for this job.

Avoid excessively fat meat or poultry for canning. Wipe canning jars clean before closing. Fat on rims can prevent a tight, safe seal.

An all-purpose cleaning product may work well on stainless steel but probably will scratch silver, which is softer and needs a less-abrasive polish. Aluminum and polished, or shiny, stainless also should be cleaned with less-abrasive polishes.

Russian Weddings Are Ostentatious

EDITOR'S NOTE—Once Soviet marriages consisted of signing a ledger in an office building. Since 1959, however, ceremony has been added. And now there are complaints that Russian weddings are ostentatious.

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet fathers of the bride share the feelings of American parents as they watch their daughters wed — wistfulness that their little girl is starting a new life and horror that so much money is spent to celebrate that fact.

In their attempts to keep up with the Ivanovs, young Soviet couples and their families may spend 1,000 rubles ($1,400) or more on wedding gowns, presents, processions and lavish feasts.

On one collective farm in the Ukraine, several sets of parents took out loans of 4,000 to 5,000 rubles ($5,600 to $7,000) to pay for their daughters' weddings, according to the rural women's magazine Krestyanka.

"It's upsetting that the wedding, a very significant event in a person's life, focuses on vanity, the desire to parade, and to show acquaintances and neighbors that we supposedly are not worse off than the rest of you," playwright Viktor Rozov recently scolded.

In a letter to the newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta, Natalya Konovova complained that more than a year after her marriage, she and her husband were still paying off their 1,000-ruble wedding debt and because of that, could not afford to buy a cooperative apartment or take a vacation cruise.

Before 1959, Soviet couples spent little on their weddings. They registered their union in the State Bureau for Registration of Civil Condition, commonly known as ZAGS.

No ceremony was held, no witnesses required. An official read the conditions for legal marriage and warned the couple that any false statement they might make constituted a criminal offense. They then signed their names in the register and an entry was made in their passports.

This dreary, dull event rekindled the interest of romantic young Soviets in the festive pageantry which accompanied old-fashioned weddings staged by the Russian Orthodox Church.

To stave off an embarrassing resurgence of church weddings in this atheistic state, Soviet officials in 1959 introduced "solemn ceremonies," performed in just-created state wedding palaces, most of which were ornate mansions belonging to pre-revolutionary nobility and bourgeoisie.

Solemn civil ceremonies, it was argued, would help prolong marriages and thus stabilize family life. That claim is arguable, but wedding places have fulfilled a psychological need and have sparked growth of new secular traditions.

The most staggering wedding bills are for the receptions, usually staged at cafes or restaurants. Such receptions are so popular that there aren't enough suitable places for them. To alleviate this problem, the first firm established exclusively for catering weddings has been set up in Moscow. It offers a hall, orchestra and a menu consisting of 20 dishes served on special wedding china and tablecloths.

At typical receptions, row after row of vodka, cognac and wine bottles line the tables, which are laden with soups, salads, fish and meat dishes, cakes and other courses.

Innumerable toasts are made, and there is much drinking, laughing and often dancing. Traditional shouts of "gor-ko, gor-ko" (bitter, bitter) are addressed to the bride. By tradition, in order to turn the bitter into sweet, she must kiss her groom.

In some cases, festivities last for days.

Couples may still be married at ZAGS offices, but Soviet youths enjoy the opportunity to make a big occasion of weddings. Most now opt for the wedding palace, reception and accompanying frills.

Collectors Are Going Beyond

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newfeatures Writer
Cherish that old wire whisk or wooden potato masher of grandma's and rescue those old bottles and jars from your private dump. You never can tell when they'll be things of value.

People are collecting things, and what things — Betty Boop, hobo art, you name it. "They'll pay anything for Felix the Cat," says Henry Kaplan, a New York antiques dealer, who also directs a popular soap opera.

His shop reflects some of the things in demand now by collectors, the things that have replaced the hard-to-get collectibles — samplers, bandboxes, toby jugs, Currier and Ives, colored glass — that have historical or social significance. Sandwiched between such century-old or older authentic antiques is a soda fountain dispenser, modern jewelry, little tin boxes, tin signs.

"One collector wants only optical stuff, another wants old photograph cylinders, and there are people searching for Peter Lorre memorabilia, little drummers, anything black in figurines. Coca Cola signs, mirrors and pictures are in big demand," he explained, and a lot of collectors want antique egg boxes.

A collector himself, he has a number of very old typewriters and once even collected bath-tubs; he went on to a potpourri — advertising tins, tin toys, worn-out toys, copper, country utensils and tools. As a city boy in Canada he liked country things, he says, and it is often the way with collectors — they enjoy things they haven't known before. "In the beginning I found it hard to part with anything, but now I'm happy to see someone else enjoy something I like. But I'm a bit fussy how they use the things."

He was about to sell a miniature brass four-poster bed with a handmade patchwork quilt, meant for a doll, when he overheard the would-be buyer say it was for her chihuahua. He "quickly remembered" that the bed had been spoken for. He wasn't turned on either when another woman wanted it for her cat. But as soon as it could be sold to a little girl he relinquished it — for $55.

"I love animals, but that was an antique. I feel the same way about something old that someone wants to turn into a lamp. My favorite customer is one who appreciates the thing the way it is." If he has to choose unfavorite shoppers, it might be those he's encountered at some antique shows he has entered. They pick up an article and say, "Look, we threw it away ... it drives me crazy." If so, don't tell him, is his attitude.

There are cycles in the collector thing, he says. Some things are waning — Art Nouveau and Art Deco — but they are maintaining their prices. Indian treasures will continue to be big, in his opinion. Right now collectors want Indian baskets. But who knows what will click next? A few months ago modern jewelry was a fantastic seller, he says.

He can't really understand the current interest in hobo art — although the precision handiwork of matchsticks or ice cream sticks is often beautifully crafted. But then, a small beat-up box of manicure preparations is sought for the silver-etched Art Deco picture on its black cover, he says, handling the box delicately.

It is getting more difficult to find interesting things and he must pay much more for them, he says. In three years at auctions flat irons have doubled in price ($4), plates are $5-or-so and copper and pewter are out of sight. And to complicate things for dealers like himself who work on a no-mark-up basis, there are dealers who jack up prices so they can loff off a good amount to make an impression.

"Another difficult part of run-

Access Order

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP)—Superior Court Judge Thomas W. Seay Jr. ordered Alamance County officials today to allow newsmen access to records relating to salaries paid county employees.

Seay's order came on a petition filed April 16 by the Burlington Daily Times-News and reporter Linda Jackson. Defendants in the case were D. J. Walker, the county manager, and Jo Hargrove, the county personnel director.

Walker and Mrs. Hargrove had declined to allow the newspaper or its representatives to examine the salary records.

In his order Seay directed Walker and Mrs. Hargrove to allow the newspaper "the right of access to the public records of Alamance County as they relate to the exact salaries of all employees of the county."

"The defendants shall permit such records to be inspected and examined at reasonable times and...shall furnish certified copies thereof on payment of fees as prescribed by law," the court said.

Approve Funds To Get Grant

GRIFTON—The Grifton Board of Commissioners Tuesday night approved a request from M. Harker for matching funds for a grant from the North Carolina Arts Council.

The town agreed to pay $865 from their next year's budget, plus $400 from the recreation budget while Shad Festival, Inc., will pay the remaining $400 so that the town can receive a grant totaling $1,665.

The money will be used to expand the town's arts and crafts program. In addition to paying for an instructor, the grant will be used to purchase art supplies.

Police Chief Linwood Outlaw was given permission to have a police telephone installed at the corner of Gordon and Queen Streets.

Buddy Albritton of the Grifton

Rescue Squad appeared before the board to see if the town could purchase a radio for one of the town's emergency vehicles. The squad will have to replace two radios and asked that the town pay for one. The board agreed to study the matter for a decision later.

Shirley Dixon and George Sugg were appointed to serve on the Board of Elections.

Steve Rogers asked the town board to consider increasing the size of its police force. The town informed Rogers that they are attempting to receive funds from the Mid-East Commission for the establishment of a Crime Prevention Program which would mean the employment of another policeman.

The board approved the Mid-East Commission bylaws and changes.

Police Efforts Cleared Inmate

DETROIT (AP) — Two Detroit policemen have done a turnabout, clearing a North Carolina man serving time for armed robbery.

"If there's a hero, the two heroes are two dicks out of the robbery-armed bureau, Sgt. James Morrison and Sgt. Frank Mitchell," said Richard Padzieski of the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office.

Cleared was Larry Owens, who still faces a manslaughter sentence in his home state. He is free, however, from a 25-40 year conviction in Michigan. He remains in custody pending extradition.

Owens was sentenced after being convicted of robbing a Detroit bar in May, 1974.

Morrison said he felt something "wasn't quite right" even though Owens was identified by bar employes as the man who took several thousand dollars from a cash box. Then, when Owens wrote to the two men asking for help, the officers began a new probe.

Padzieski said Mitchell and Morrison located a man in prison who said he had been asked to help in the bar holdup. They then identified a fingerprint on the cash box as belonging to the individual who had tried to gain an assistant. Morrison said Owens resembles the other man now sought in the holdup.

"Every available minute we weren't working on armed robbery, we were working on this," said Morrison.

"There was no way of showing my appreciation," Morrison quoted Owens as saying.

"There was nobody I could go to. I didn't have any money. Nobody would do anything for me."

Owens, 33, of Kings Mountain, was serving a 17-20 year term at a prison near Marion, N.C., for voluntary manslaughter in the death of his wife when he escaped in 1973. Morrison said Owens apparently plans to complete his sentence.

"Jim was happier than if he'd gotten 10 convictions," said Morrison's wife, Nancy.

Pay Tribute To Mothers

FALKLAND—The Youth Choir of the Falkland Presbyterian Church honored the mothers of the church Sunday night during the worship service.

The group sang "Mama," accompanied by Lynn Dail, pianist. Rose Wilkinson presented a boutonniere to the Rev. Marshal Tredway in memory of his mother. Patricia Dail read a tribute to the oldest mother, Mrs. Placid Norville, the youngest mother, Edith Joyner, and the mother of the most children, Mrs. Katie Windham.

The choir members honored each of their mothers by giving them a corsage. While the choir was singing "So Many Reasons Why I Love My Mother" all other mothers in the congregation were presented corsages by the choir directors, Peggy Peaden, Rose Wilkinson and Patricia Dail. Each choir member was presented a boutonniere or corsage before the service.

The members of the youth choir are: Lynn and Johnnie Dail; Cindy, Carol and Lambert Garris; Terry, Mecie and Tom Peaden; Pam, Evelyn and Jeffrey Harrell; Pam Hollis; Pam, Buddy and Ray Waters; Beverly Pass; Larry Everette; Cindy and Lisa Cobb; Bridgette Coburn; Clyde Cash; Susan Lawrence; Ricky, Deborah and Lynette Bullock; Diane and Joey Cobb; Mark Hamill; Angie Hamill; Nancy Witherington; Iris Peaden; Gary Drew; Gwen Edwards; Gina Windham; Brenda Little; Barbara and Sonja Dunn; Bobby Norville; Karen Witherington; Jean Harris and Melody Parker.

Refreshments were served by the Young Adult Class prior to the service.

Launch Art Show, Sale

Today is the opening date of an inaugural event at East Carolina University; the First Annual Show and Competition sponsored by the Student Union Art Exhibition Committee.

Brent Funderburk, spokesman for the show, noted that it will be open to the public, beginning at 10 a.m. and continuing until 8 p.m. tonight. The show is being held in the Multipurpose Room of the Mendenhall Student Center.

Works will in many instances be for sale. Each undergraduate student is limited to submitting two works for inclusion in the show.

Jurors, all members of the ECU School of Art faculty, are Donald Sexauer, Mrs. Sara Edmisten, Betsy Ross and Tran Gordley.

Entries will be in four categories — painting, drawings, sculpture, and printmaking, with first, second, third and fourth prizes of $25, $15, $10 and $5 each respectively to be awarded in each individual category.

N.C. Wesleyan Role Is Needed

Supporters of N.C. Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount seem to be making some progress toward saving the institution from bankruptcy.

Leon A. Dunn, Jr., chairman of a fund raising drive for N.C. Wesleyan, said last weekend that pledges have exceeded $200,000.

The college recently announced that it was having financial problems and it requested that the University of North Carolina take it over and include it in the university system. The board of governors denied the request. Community college status was considered but this, too, was rejected because of the cost involved.

Now the efforts are underway to raise funds necessary to keep the school operating. In addition to the campaign fund raising efforts the United Methodist Church has pledged to raise $825,000 over the next two years.

Time is short for saving the college since the financial situation is critical. N.C. Wesleyan Board of Trustees chairman Phil Carlton said an announcement would be made May 16 as to whether the college will operate next year. The decision will depend on student enrollment and the fund raising drives.

It goes without saying that virtually everyone in this area is hopeful for success in the efforts to save N.C. Wesleyan. The trend in recent years has been for state supported schools to grow larger. With a shrinking number of college aged people that has meant fewer students for the private schools. The differences in tuition between the state schools and the private colleges has accelerated this trend.

Still, there is a definite need for church-related small enrollment colleges. Schools such as N.C. Wesleyan offer a feeling of belonging to many young people that they cannot have on the large campuses. N.C. Wesleyan can fulfill a greater role as a private church related college than it ever could as a state supported institution. It is important to higher education in our state that the current fund-raising drive to save the institution be a success.

THIS AFTERNOON

A Direction In Treatment

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—North Carolina is struggling through the early stages of what may well become a national battle in the months and years ahead: a "Children's Rights" movement.

Various reform proposals are in various stages of consideration in the General Assembly—scattered about in committees of the Senate and the House of Representatives.

A broad overview of those isolated bits and pieces—which by themselves make little impact—produces the glimmering of a new system for meeting the needs of children in trouble.

Some of the measures will pass, and some fail. But those closest to the action do not get uptight over a failure; there will be another year and another direction.

The action is largely the result of a growing recognition among parents and professionals, state bureaucrats and some lawmakers that thousands of children in trouble in North Carolina are not receiving help—aren't even known about in many cases.

Across Lines
That factor is complemented by the awareness that many of those children suffer several different problems—adding together to complicate their lives. In sum, children may be in jail because of mental retardation; or a school dropout due to emotional problems; or a disobedient delinquent as the result of hearing or visual problems.

Agencies are beginning to look at children as a class of citizens who to some extent have been denied their right to services. A simple recognition of that situation is not enough, however, in the views of those involved in the struggle.

"Children's Rights is likely to follow a course like that of the Civil Rights movement of past years," says Donald E. Taylor, head of the Office for Children. "We can establish and assert their rights... but to implement the programs, close the gaps, and change the system we must deal with local attitudes, conflicting agencies, and lack of concern generally."

Eventually, through changing law and attitudes, a new system will emerge. Meanwhile, North Carolina faces a "time of storm and stress, which for the individual kids caught in the storm may be traumatic. And for the parent seeking help, will be traumatic," Taylor said.

A brief look at the numerous proposals under study shows the complexity of the problem, and helps bring into focus the emerging new system which will eventually be designed to fit the needs of children, rather than bending children to meet the format of the agencies.

Ideas at Work

—Early Childhood Screening would give every pre-kindergarten youngster a complete examination to pinpoint physical, mental, emotional problems; design corrective programs.

—Amendments to last year's law demanding that schools must provide programs for all kids would extend that philosophy to all agencies under the Department of Human Resources; and set up state controls to assure that local school boards, health departments, etc. respond.

—Status offenders (kids who are in training school because of truancy or delinquency, not crimes) would be forbidden inside the prison system; diagnosis of troubles, and exhaustive treatment efforts required.

—The juvenile corrections program would be taken out of the Department of Corrections and close relationship to prisons, and put in the Department of Human Resources.

—Law would demand that diagnosis and treatment take place even though parents or guardians object.

—A "surrogate parent" system would be set up to provide an adult to monitor the problems of a child who does not have a parent or guardian able to do so—the surrogate would help the child get proper response from state or private agencies, and schools.

—Community treatment homes would be the preferred method of dealing with all problems, and the right to establish such group homes in residential neighborhoods established by law.

Piece by piece a new pattern is emerging which ultimately will reshape the state's response to children's needs, and bring into the open the need for changing society's attitudes toward those children, the leaders believe.

The Roving Camera Eye

WASHINGTON — The TV camera was sitting there quietly, its eye looking over the scene.

"What are you doing?" I asked it.

"I'm waiting for something to happen. You know, a demonstration or a riot or any kind of a scene to put on the nightly news. You don't have anything provocative to say, do you?"

"I don't think so." "That's too bad. If you were against the Vietnamese refugees I'd take a picture of you," it said. "No," I said "I'm for accepting the Vietnamese refugees."

"Well, that's not news. I need conflict. I have to see that which is unique."

"You mean if you were in a town and everybody was for accepting the Vietnamese refugees except one man—you would interview that one man?"

"Sure." "But if you put him on the news most people around the country would think that everyone in the town was against the Vietnamese refugees."

"I'm just a camera. I do what I'm told. I wish something would happen; my tubes are getting itchy."

"What happens if nothing happens?"

"Something has to happen. Otherwise there wouldn't be any news. If nothing happens I can always tape another unemployed auto worker."

"That's not really news, is it?"

"It is on a dull day. I'm sure not going to tape an employed auto worker."

"I should hope not. It's too bad the college kids are so quiet. They always made good news spots."

"Don't I know it. All you needed was about five kids taking over a dean's office and it looked like 35,000. The kids knew it, too. They used to wait until I arrived before they took over the building. But there is an awful lot of

A New Energy Symbol

By R. GREGORY NOKES

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Who is that friendly little fellow, smiling out from a new government publication? Can it be that Reddy Kilowatt has survived the energy crisis? Why no, it's Energy Ant!

Energy Ant clearly has emerged from the energy crisis as the new hero. While Reddy Kilowatt used to bounce around on television encouraging people to conserve electricity until electricity wasn't cheap any more, Energy Ant's role is to save electricity.

"This little friend has been created by the Federal Energy Administration to tell kids about energy and how to use it wisely," says a new Energy Ant coloring and game book for children.

Energy Ant is full of energy history, riddles and games to encourage children to save energy. For example, there is a maze to help Energy Ant through, so he can turn off a light.

There also is a game called "Trip to the Moon" that penalizes the player who lands on a square that says the door was left open but rewards the player for landing on squares that say the television set was turned off or that the child walked to school.

The child with a pair of scissors may also cut out a deck of cards that take up six pages of the 27-page book. Among the cards is a mean-looking Evil Prince who drives fast, and an equally unattractive Old Queen, who wastes hot water. Peter Keay, acting director of FEA communications and public affairs, said the ant was picked as the energy hero because the "ant is a unique symbol of an industrious creature who really uses energy wisely."

Preparation of the Energy Ant book was done by the FEA staff, especially by cartoonist Tony Ranfone, who Keay said formerly was a combat cartoonist in Vietnam.

The FEA has printed 10,000 copies of the coloring and game book for distribution to selected schools around the nation on a test basis. It also can be purchased for $1.40 from the Government Printing Office in Washington.

INSIDE REPORT

Portugal And The Summit

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — When President Ford convenes the NATO summit meeting in Brussels May 29, one head of government sitting in the inner councils of the Western defense organization will be Vasco Dos Santos Goncalves, revolutionary Portugal's prime minister who is widely perceived here as a Marxist with intimate ties to the Communist party.

That prospect is now causing concern at working levels inside the White House and State Department. It confronts both the President and his Secretaries of State and Defense, Henry Kissinger and James Schlesinger, with this agonizing dilemma: can leaders of the West's defense and political alliance openly discuss their military and defense strategy with Goncalves sitting at the table?

The answer: almost certainly yes, because the slightest hint of excluding Goncalves would be seized upon by the powerful Portuguese Communist party as new evidence of Western attempts to subvert their April 1974 revolution.

It would, in short, be used by the Communists (whose political power far exceeds the bare 12.5 per cent of the vote they polled in the recent constituent assembly election) in the same way the aborted coup d'etat by the center-right in March was used: to aggrandize their power by charging foreign and counter-revolutionary intervention into Portugal's domestic politics.

Even if the U.S. had a workable plan to deal with this dilemma guaranteed not to boomerang, it is nearly certain that European members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would veto it. In Europe, Portugal is still rather well regarded as a member of the European family.

The overwhelming probability, then, is that Mr.

Ford and his NATO colleagues will finesse the delicate problem of Goncalves listening to uninhibited security talk by making the summit largely ceremonial. The intimate talks will go on behind the scenes.

Even so, an horrendous problem is posed by the final communiqué. The question: could Goncalves, who has not before officially conducted any formal part of Portuguese foreign policy, sign a communiqué that could be interpreted as a warning or a threat to the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact?

The precise degree of political connection between Lisbon and Moscow is not known here. Soviet diplomats have gone out of their way to try to calm American fears over Communist influence in Portugal, fearful that the U.S.-Soviet detente might be damaged. In fact, however, high officials here worry deeply about several known facts.

With fellow-traveler Goncalves as prime minister and from at least two to possibly four Communists in the 21-man cabinet, the present Portuguese government is moving toward neutralism between the Western and Soviet camps. Such neutralism is antithetical to NATO, which was built for a single purpose: to combine the military power of the West against Moscow.

The Soviet ambassador to Lisbon is the most active envoy in Portugal and, at 45, one of Moscow's rising stars. He and the ambassadors from Czechoslovakia, Romania and Poland all speak fluent Portuguese (while U. S. ambassador Frank Carlucci is the only ambassador from a NATO member who speaks Portuguese). The Czech ambassador is a former vice foreign minister, and the Romanian ambassador spent five years as special assistant to the foreign minister.

In short, the Warsaw bloc — led by Moscow — has zeroed in on Lisbon by sending only the highest quality diplomats to work there.

Neither Goncalves nor his new foreign minister, Ernesto de Melo Antunes, has given the faintest sign of wanting to take Portugal out of NATO. To the contrary, Goncalves will probably strengthen Portugal's NATO credentials by pointing to the highly successful NATO naval maneuvers last February, including simulated bombing runs by U.S. aircraft on targets just 30 miles south of Lisbon. The maneuvers went off without a hitch.

To The Editor:

The Duke Hospital has announced plans to enlarge the Duke Hospital to a nearly 97 Million Dollar expansion, to be built one quarter of a mile from the present hospital. This is being done because the needs are evident.

I would like to repeat a little history on this subject. In September of 1930, about ten months after the stock market crash in 1929, I entered this New Duke University, on the New Campus, as one of the first pre-medical students in the class of 1934. I had the opportunity to meet a prominent Durham Doctor, at this time, for an examination on a small life insurance policy as I was a self help student. I remember exactly the words this doctor said to me in conversation. "This New Duke Hospital is not needed in this area and it will eventually break Watts Hospital." This doctor was on the Watts Hospital staff and he honestly believed exactly what he said to me. I laughed and said, "Doctor, Watts will grow greater because of this new medical complex in this area." The present expansion speaks for itself.

To me, this is the same situation with the desired Medical Complex to be enlarged at Eastern Carolina University Medical School. I am proud to see Duke Hospital grow and become among the greatest. I am just as interested in seeing Eastern North Carolina get its needed share and I believe it will prove to be Dr. Leo Jenkins dream come true for the people of this area.

While there is peace, get it going. In event of other unforeseen problems, as the possibilities exist, it would be another delay because of lack of materials and manpower.

From my experiences in life, I will take my chances with the unproven rather than otherwise, because all experts get in the rut of thinking the utopia has been met and nothing is further from the truth.

Eastern North Carolinians should take the reins.

Our City Manager was quoted in the Daily Reflector stating "The leash law was to control wild packs of dogs that roam at night causing damage."

Wild packs of dogs that roam are abandoned, lost and starving animals searching for food.

Many of us feel that the City Manager should explain how confining pets that are owned, loved and cared for 24 hours a day the rest of their lives will control wild packs of dogs.

By the way, I don't have a dog but I do have a heart.

Lifted From Railroads' Script

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — For this week's observance of National Transportation Week, the Transportation Department has released to bureaucrats some canned, all-purpose remarks that might form the basis of a speech.

Railroadmen, who maintain they have been the victims of government bias in regard to prices they can charge, competition they must face and unprofitable lines they must maintain, looked at the script and blinked.

"There is," the document states, "an urgent need for a complete revision of the economic philosophy that lies behind the government's regulation of our railroads."

The railroads have been saying that for years. They've also been pointing out, as the official speech does also, that "if our railroads were to stop today, our economy would start closing down tomorrow."

The paragraphs that followed seemed to surprised railroad executives to be right out of their own script:

"The major reason for railroad decline is, of course, competition from trucks, pipelines and inland waterways. I must point out that some of this competition from trucks and waterways is unfair in that these modes receive a high degree of government subsidy.

"Their rights-of-way are owned, operated and maintained by governments. The railroads, however, must pay taxes on theirs. And they are, for example, liable for damage on them.

"A second cause for railroad decline is the outmoded government regulatory process. The economic regulations administered by the Interstate Commerce Commission were drawn up nearly 100 years ago when railroads were kings.

"The classic decisions in rate cases are decided on the basis of precedent — on what has gone before when railroads had a monopoly."

If the issues are so clear, members of the Association of American Railroads are asking, why can't they win more points with Congress and the rest of the federal establishment?

The railroad executives maintain that their situation is critical — and that if theirs is critical so then is the position of the entire country, which depends upon railroads to transport 70 per cent of its coal, 60 per cent of its grain.

The railroads claim they need more money if they are to continue the job, a statement weakened somewhat by their report of 1974 earnings, the highest from operations in eight years, although still low by historical standards.

While truckers run relatively unencumbered by user charges on publicly maintained highways, and barge operators have the use of a similarly maintained inland waterway system, the railroads claim they lose $1 billion a year in regulatory red tape, property taxes and forced continuance of losing operations.

Strength For Today

RING THE BELLS

When a Spanish army was invading Holland over 400 years ago, the Spanish commander called on the Dutch to surrender. "If you do not," he declared, "we will blow our bugles and the assault will begin."

Whereupon the Dutch commander replied, "If you must blow your bugles, then we must ring our bells."

to the end.

When we are assaulted by trouble, disappointment, or temptation, that is the time to ring the church bells in our hearts, to remember that God is our refuge and our strength, a very present help in trouble. Religion is neither an ornament we wear on the outside of our lives nor a sedative to be taken on Sunday mornings. Religion is the spirit of the living God in the world, and it is meant to be used every minute of our lives.

Bill Revamping N.C. Primaries Is Before Senate

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation to revamp North Carolina's presidential primary and change the date of the state primary won tentative approval in the state Senate on Tuesday and was due to receive final consideration today.

The Senate was also scheduled to consider a bill that would cut the maximum premium North Carolinians pay on credit life insurance from $1 to 80 cents. That measure received second reading approval Tuesday.

Separate bills in the Senate would require all serious candidates to enter the state's presidential primary and move the date of the primary for state offices from May to the last Tuesday in August.

The presidential primary bill would require a candidate invited to enter the race to declare that he is not running for President in order to have his name removed from North Carolina's ballot. Designed to widen the primary field, the bill, sponsored by Sen. Tom Strickland, D-Wayne, would also eliminate the $1,000 filing fee.

It passed on a 46-1 roll call. The measure to move the state primary to the end of August was sparked by a desire to shorten campaigns. It seeks to discourage runoffs by providing that a candidate who receives 40 per cent of the vote in the first primary wins the nomination. That provision brought opposition on the floor from senators who resisted what they characterized as a move from majority rule. An amendment by Strickland to delete the provision was defeated and the bill passed on a 28-19 roll call vote. Opponents of the bill said that separating the presidential and state primaries would cost the state an extra $500,000. The bill to reduce the premium on credit life insurance to 80 cents was passed 32-14 after an unsuccessful attempt to cut the premium to 54 cents. Insurance Commissioner John Ingram has appealed to the courts to set a maximum premium of 54 cents and some senators were fearful that legislative action would preempt the suit and consumers would be stuck with the higher 80-cent rate. Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, who led the fight for the lower figure said the 54-cent premium would allow a 100 per cent markup on the maximum cost of credit life insurance, which he said was 27 cents. However senators voted 30-14 to defeat the amendment for the 54-cent premium.

The new laundry would serve state mental institutions in the area. The Corrections Department has a laundry in nearby Clinton which now operates at half capacity.

The sponsor of a bill that would have closed a loophole in North Carolina's income tax law indicated Tuesday that he had given up on its chances. Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, had introduced a measure to repeal the tax exemption on dividends paid by North Carolina corporations.

He signaled defeat for his bill when he offered a compromise bill that would tax only a person's dividend income from Tar Heel corporations in excess of $15,000.

The House Water and Air Resources Committee approved a bill Tuesday to extend the scenic river designation for a portion of the New River in Ashe and Alleghany counties.

It would extend the protected area of the river from the current 1.5 miles to 26.5 miles. Sponsors of the bill hope it will prompt the U.S. Interior Department to make the stream a federal scenic river and stop construction of a power project in Virginia that threatens to destroy it.

N.C. Congressmen Back Ford Efforts

By The Associated Press North Carolina members of Congress generally approve President Ford's efforts to use diplomatic action in recovering the Mayaguez. However, one of them, Rep. James G. Martin, says the American ship and its crew of 39 should be retrieved forcibly unless the Cambodians release it soon.

And Sen. Robert Morgan said, "The United States must begin now to let other nations know that we are not a helpless giant." Morgan asked the President to take whatever steps are necessary to recover the ship, which was seized by the Cambodian Navy.

Sen. Jesse Helms said the United States ought to do whatever is necessary to get the Mayaguez and its crew back. He said the time has come for this country to fish or cut bait on the question of whether it has any national honor left. He said those who understand communism must realize that this seizure of an unarmed vessel is typical of what can be expected unless we stand up to the Communists.

Other comment: Rep. L. H. Fountain: He said he was "hopeful that the administration's diplomatic efforts, through whatever channels still open to it, will bear fruit."

Rep. Ike Andrews: The United States, "should move cautiously rather than over-react too quickly. I think it was a mistake for that ship to be there in the first place."

Rep. L. Richardson Preyer: He said he supported the President's cautious approach. He also said he believed any U.S. effort to recover the ship should be firm.

Local Govm't Given Voice

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP)—Local governments will be allowed to recommend coastal areas to be named interim areas of environmental concern, the Coastal Resources Commission decided Tuesday.

The commission is required by the Coastal Area Management Act passed by the 1974 legislature to designate important ecological areas as being of special concern. Though the commission will make the final decision, that board's 45 member advisory council suggested Monday that local governments have a chance to suggest which areas should be included. The advisory council is made up mostly of representatives of local government from the 20 counties affected by the act.

In Tuesday's action, local governments were given until November to come up with their suggestions. Those recommendations will be due the same time they must turn in land use plan proposals. The decision to allow local governments to suggest interim areas of environmental concern was supported by Milton Heath of the Institute of Government at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. Heath was one of the writers of the Coastal Area Management Act.

Lawmen Slain

WASHINGTON (AP) — A total of 132 local, state and federal law enforcement officers were slain in the line of duty in the United States last year compared with 136 in 1973, the FBI says. All but four of the officers were killed with firearms, 95 of them with handguns, the FBI said in a recent report.

The report said 29 officers were killed while handling disturbance calls, 28 while attempting arrests for crimes other than robbery or burglary and 33 while investigating robberies and burglaries.

Twelve officers were killed while investigating suspicious persons, 11 while making traffic stops, 10 while handling prisoners and nine in ambush-type attacks, the FBI said.

Though the commission will make the final decision, that board's 45 member advisory council suggested Monday that local governments have a chance to suggest which areas should be included. The advisory council is made up mostly of representatives of local government from the 20 counties affected by the act.

"I imagine you have a lot of fun taking pictures of President Ford?"

"Are you kidding? I can hardly keep my eyes open when he's talking. Every TV camera will do anything to avoid covering the White House."

"How do you get out of it?"

"I put a patch over my zoom lens just before they send me there."

"I imagine Congress isn't any better."

"It's worse. You can work your butt off all day long and never get on the air. I really miss the Watergate trial. It was really fun taking shots of all those people arriving with their lawyers and walking in and out of the courtroom."

"Who is your favorite subject?" I asked.

"Henry Kissinger," the camera replied. "He's always tense when he comes out of a meeting and his face flushes a lot when someone asks a tough question. I get a chance to use a lot of red color when Henry looks at me."

"Is that Henry? I thought it was my set."

"Oh ho. Here comes a screaming mob of anti-abortion people ready to tear Washington apart."

"What mob? There are only three of them."

"If I do a close shot, nobody will know the difference."

T.G. Sheppard Long 'Dormant' Before Stardom

By MARIAN FOX
Associated Press Writer
MEMPHIS (AP) — T.G. Sheppard's friends might call him an overnight success, but they know such a thing doesn't exist. And so does he.

"People don't realize how long an artist lies dormant out there until his number comes up," said Sheppard, 31, whose number came up with a song called "Devil in the Bottle."

"He's paid his dues for 15 years and then all of a sudden, he comes up with a hit record and people say, 'Wow, where did he come from.' But he's been out there beating the bushes for 15 years."

Sheppard hasn't been beating the bushes so much as he has been beating around them.

He gave up performing 15 years ago when he found out a married man "couldn't make it on $35 a week." Since he wanted to stay close to the music business, "there was only one way to go...that was to go in through promotion, production and publishing."

That's where he was when a tape of "Devil in the Bottle" found its way to his desk, where it stayed 1½ years.

"That tape sat there on my desk and why it wasn't raked off, I don't know," Sheppard said. "I tried to get everybody in the world to record the cotton picking thing and nobody would believe in the song. But I really felt there was something there."

Finally, he cut the song himself. And he still couldn't sell it.

"I submitted the thing to eight different companies and got eight different passes," he said. "Each company said it just wasn't a hit record, that the country people aren't ready for that new sound."

Melodyland, the new country division of MoTown, bought it.

"After eight passes, I'd have sold it to my wife if she'd wanted it," Sheppard said.

He describes the sound country people weren't ready for as "a combination of Nashville and Memphis-Delta country. It's not Nashville, not Memphis, but Deep South. It's roots."

Sheppard said the key to the business is promotion.

"The one reason I had a hit record with 'Devil in the Bottle' was that I had been a promotion man all these years," he said. "I know a lot of promotion people who personally went out there and endorsed me and gave me help. For no money...just because they wanted to see another one of their own kind make it."

"People have a misconception of a promotion man. They think of him strictly as a guy who's out there finger-popping and promoting and hyping off. But there are some talented people in promotion."

Promotion, for Sheppard, was a step he had to take.

"At the time I turned my back on music as an artist, I was very young. If I had had a hit record back then, I wouldn't have known how to deal with it. I think it would have been the end of me."

Sheppard wears success lightly. He opens up easily, especially when he talks country music, and he doesn't pretend—even if his name isn't T.G. Sheppard. It's Bill Browder.

No Prompt Solutions

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has cautioned Californians against expecting an immediate "magic solution" to the state's continuing malpractice dilemma.

Brown's remarks came Tuesday as about 160 anesthesiologists and 3,000 hospital workers remained off the job in seven Northern California counties.

Anesthesiologists in Los Angeles were to decide Wednesday night whether to join their Northern California colleagues in strike.

The hospital workers were laid off in San Francisco after anesthesiologists walked off their jobs earlier this month to protest increased malpractice insurance rates. The walkout led to a curtailment of surgery in the hospitals involved.

A doctors' strike at Martin Luther King Hospital in Los Angeles, not related to the malpractice crisis, was settled meantime after seven days. Officials agreed to reinstate fired physicians and create a panel to review their demands.

Under the settlement reached Tuesday night, residents and interns at the hospital named after the late civil rights leader will receive the same pay raise granted without a strike to other large county operated hospitals: Harbor General and County-USC.

The package includes a 5 per cent boost in salaries and a 5 per cent increase in patient care funding.

"People are looking for a magic solution. The doctors, after years of fighting the government, are coming on their knees to the government for a solution, and every time you put government into a problem, usually you make it worse," Brown said.

T.G. stands for "The Good" or "The German," depending on which friend you talk to. Browder prefers "The Good."

"Hell yes, I'm country," he said when asked if he would like to turn pop. "If I become a pop-act out of being country, I'm not going to turn my back on people who would ask me if I'm country."

"I'm a country person, born and raised on a farm. Why not face the fact that I'm country? Why pretend to be something I'm not? I'm not a slicker."

If his second single, "Trying to Beat the Morning Home," swings into pop, Sheppard said, "I'll take it, but I'm happy being country."

"The mistake a lot of country acts make is when they have that first big crossover. They immediately go back into the studio and try to cut another pop record. That's wrong. You should go back to the roots each time."

YOUTH DROWNS
WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—An 18-year-old youth from Winston-Salem, Timothy Walker, drowned Tuesday night in Bellew's Creek Lake, 20 miles northeast of the Twin City, authorities report.

Escape Artist Did It Again

HARDWICK, Ga. (AP) — Escape artist Leland Harvey, 69, has broken jail once again, and the commissioner of Georgia's prison system says he isn't sure whether Harvey "ran or just tottered away."
Harvey, who has escaped more than 30 times, and Allen Johnson Billingsley, 65, disappeared Sunday from the Colony Farm Correctional Institute for elderly and infirm inmates. Commissioner Allen Ault said the pair may have slipped out in a visitor's car during visiting hours.
The once-dapper Harvey opened his crime career in the late 1920s. By 1933, he had compiled 110 years in prison sentences. On May 22, 1933, then-Gov. Eugene Talmadge pardoned more than 100 years of the sentences, telling Harvey to "go and sin no more."
He has spent the last half century in and out of prison, including a term at Alcatraz, the now-closed penitentiary on an isolated island in San Francisco Bay.
The last time he was arrested was when he was found unconscious in a car parked a few blocks from the scene of a service station robbery in Gwinnett County.

Harvey pleaded guilty to charges of robbery and auto theft in Superior Court a year ago. He was sentenced to serve 20 years. While he was awaiting transportation from Gwinnett County jail to prison, Harvey slashed both wrists, authorities said.
"He's all mixed up," said Gwinnett County Sheriff W. J. Dodd.
At the time of the Gwinnett County robbery, he was on a five-year federal parole. He had been released less than a year earlier from the federal penitentiary in Atlanta after serving 10 years on a robbery charge.
Officials said Billingsley was serving a three-year sentence on a conviction of theft by receiving stolen property and aggravated assault.

No Charges In Tuesday Wreck

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first hurricane of the upcoming tropical storm season will be called Amy, the National Weather Service says.
The hurricane season begins June 1 and officially ends Nov. 30.
After Amy, the hurricanes will be named Blanche, Caroline, Doris, Eloise, Fay, Gladys, Hallie, Ingrid, Julia, Kitty, Lilly, Mabel, Niki, Opal, Peggy, Ruby, Sheila, Tilda, Vicky and Winnie.
Each year the hurricane season claims an average of 100 lives and causes $150 million in property damage in the United States, the Weather Service said Tuesday.
In oil field terminology, a duster is a completely dry well that encounters neither gas nor liquid.

Greenville police identified drivers of the two vehicles involved in the mishap as Johnnie Lawrence Brown of Route 1, Winterville and Michelle Lynne Field of Route 5, Greenville.
Damage was estimated at $100 to the Brown car and $250 to the Field vehicle.

House Test For Building Plans

RALEIGH (AP) — A move to get the General Assembly to take another look at state building projects, approved by previous legislatures when they had plenty of money to spend, is ready for a crucial House test which could come today. The stage was set for House consideration of the issue Tuesday when a sharply-divided House Base Budget Committee approved a bill sponsored by Rep. John Ed Davenport, D-

Nash, which has the strong backing of House Speaker James Green. The Davenport bill would freeze temporarily the spending of about $84 million in building funds allocated by previous legislatures unless the funds are already committed.

The freeze would enable the legislature, which is confronted with making up a $232 million budget shortfall, to take a second look at the projects and perhaps divert some of the building funds to balancing the budget proposed for the next biennium.

Meanwhile the Senate Appropriations Committee was recommending to the full committee that a $3.8 million appropriation previous legislatures had voted for a laundry at Goldsboro to serve mental institutions in Eastern North Carolina be rescinded and the funds diverted to balance the budget. A bill introduced Monday night by Sen. Edward Renslow, D-Johnston, also would recapture the laundry appropriation.

The 1974 General Assembly reiterated its mandate to build the new laundry even though the Department of Corrections has a laundry at nearby Clinton. Secretary David Jones said a new laundry at Goldsboro would be a duplication of effort because "We've got the capacity to do it at Clinton. We've told them that all along."

Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said he felt it was "too late" to re-

Set Dedication Of Eaton Plant May 21

The dedication of Eaton Corporation's Greenville Industrial Truck Division facility has been set for May 21. The 350,000 square foot plant, which manufactures electric lift trucks, has been in operation since March 1975. Construction of the multi-million dollar facility—located on the Eastern Bypass—began in November 1973, and was completed about a month ago.

The first lift trucks produced in Greenville by Eaton were completed in March 1974. Eaton now employs 215 persons.

E. Mandell de Windt, Eaton's board chairman, and Governor James E. Holshouser are scheduled to participate in the dedication ceremony, scheduled for 5 p.m.

A special plant tour for news media representatives and other special guests, as well as a new conference, have been scheduled prior to the dedication.

Eaton has facilities in Sanford, Roxboro, Laurinburg, Monroe and in Charlotte. Other facilities planned, or under construction, will be located in Lenoir, Hendersonville and Kings Mountain.

Kissingers Call On Mrs. Truman

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Bess Truman, 90-year-old widow of President Harry S. Truman, has had a 30-minute visit with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and his wife Nancy.

Mrs. Truman, standing with the aid of a walking cane, greeted her visitors at the door of her home when they arrived Tuesday at the conclusion of their trip to Missouri.

"She's a great lady. We talked of many things," Kissinger said.

HEW Approves

Congressman Walter B. Jones has announced approval by HEW, Office of Education, of an application for federal financial assistance for the Greenville City Schools pursuant to Title I of Public Law 874, as amended, which provides for assistance to schools in federally affected areas.

This application has been approved for tentative entitlement for fiscal year 1975 in the amount of $9,366 of which $7,024 is certified for immediate payment, to reach the school district in the next week or so.

Ayden Board Votes For 1976 Metal Town Tags

AYDEN—The Ayden Board of Commissioners Monday night voted to have metal license plates for the 1976 city tags.

The town used windshield decals this year but voted to return to the metal tags.

The plates will have large two-inch letters and will not have a slogan.

The board agreed to use the lights on the Ayden Grammar ball field for the summer recreation program. A town employee was instructed last month to see if some of the lights could be turned off during activities. He reported that there were several bulbs that have burned out and that the remaining bulbs should be turned on during games. Board members agreed to use the bulbs that would burn and not replace the ones that have burned out.

Burt Tripp and R. E. Robinson were reappointed to three-year terms on the Ayden Planning Board and Gene McLawhorn was reappointed to a three-year term on the Ayden Zoning Board of Adjustments.

The board set the electrical rate for bulk barns to be the same as commercial rates, except for the first 10 kwh of demand. The bulk barns will be charged for all kwh on demand while the charge to commercial users will be exempted for the first 10 kwh of demand.

The board decided to keep the present electrical rates for customers for the remainder of the month of May. They agreed to wait and see what the cost of fossil fuel for June will be before any rates for that month will be set.

Following a public hearing to discuss resolutions confirming assessment rolls and levying of assessment, the board agreed to continue with the street projects since no opposition was voiced.

The streets to be improved include: Princess Street, Stokes Street, Laurinburg Street and Reaves Road.

Changes in the bylaws of the Mideast Commission guidelines were presented to the board as a matter of information.

No Warrant In FBI Shooting Of Hijacker

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—An FBI agent has testified that when agents shot and killed airline hijacker Richard McCoy last November agents were inside McCoy's Virginia Beach house without a search warrant.

McCoy, 31, was killed by a shotgun blast Nov. 9, 1974.

Previous reports from the FBI on the incident did not mention that there were agents inside the house as well as outside.

Federal sources, after hearing the new testimony Tuesday, said McCoy's widow might file a suit alleging violation of McCoy's civil rights.

The new information came during a federal court hearing on a suit involving McCoy's estate.

His widow, Mrs. Karen McCoy, is claiming at least a half interest in more than $12,000 in cash, a 1971 automobile and a houseful of furniture that others, including a Tennessee bank, claim was allegedly stolen or purchased with stolen money.

FBI Special Agent Nicholas O'Hara, who was stationed in Norfolk when McCoy was killed, testified that agents entered the house through a garage window Nov. 8, more than 24 hours before McCoy was killed.

O'Hara, who is now stationed in Washington, D. C., said no search warrant was obtained and the agents entered the house because they had probable cause to believe one of two men being sought was inside the house at the time.

The FBI was seeking McCoy and Melvin Dale Walker, who were wanted in connection with a North Carolina bank robbery. Walker was arrested in Virginia Beach shortly after McCoy was killed. Walker is now in a federal prison.

O'Hara said the agents found an arsenal of guns and ammunition inside the house, as well as military survival rations and a dollar bill that was marked and traceable to the Bank of Maryville, Tenn., which had been robbed recently.

The agent said reinforcements were summoned to the house and agents waited inside and outside the house for McCoy to return.

McCoy, a former Green Beret soldier, Sunday school teacher, law enforcement student and father of two children, hijacked a United Airlines jet in 1972 and parachuted out with ransom money over Utah. He was arrested the next day at his home in a Provo, Utah, suburb.

Electrocuted At Radio Station

SYLVA, N. C. (AP) — Ronnie Childress, manager of Sylva radio station WMSJ, was killed Tuesday when he came in contact with a high voltage line while apparently checking a malfunction in the station's transmitter room. He was 29.

When the station suddenly went off the air, an employee went to the transmitter room where he found Childress unconscious on the floor. He was taken by ambulance to the C. J. Harris Community Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Childress started his radio career at his family-owned station when he was 12 years old with a record program. He was best known for his sports broadcasts of local high school games, Western Carolina University sports contests and the area's Little League baseball.

Coors, The Colorado Brew That Became 'Craze'

BY PETER M. KELLY
DENVER (UPI) — Rick Bugdanowitz is hoarding his Coors beer, the dirty guy. A week or so ago, Bugdanowitz was minding his liquor store when a Washington, D.C., retailer hoping to cash in on the national Coors craze drove up in a rented truck and ordered 3,000 cases. Bugdanowitz showed him the door. "I hated to do it but I have to have enough for my own customers," he said. "The people in the business I know in other states ask me to send them Coors but I won't do it. "Being without Coors would be like being without my best life of bourbon or scotch. I just can't be without it." Neither, it seems, can America's beer drinkers unlucky enough to live in states where the brew is not marketed. In airplanes and automobile trunks, they're smuggling Coors out of the West. The brew has become a status symbol, comparable to owning a shih-tzu instead of a poodle, a harpsichord instead of a piano, a wok instead of a skillet, a tooled leather backgammon set instead of a pasteboard one, and a string bathing suit instead of a bikini. "In" people know that President Ford brings Coors back from Colorado ski vacations and Henry Kissinger flies it home from business trips. Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond has friends bring him Coors from out-of-state. "It's too good to share," says Bond. In the beer capital of Milwaukee, Coors is advertised in underground newspapers and has sold for $24 a case. Bugdanowitz charges $5.19 a case. A coed in Commerce, Tex., stuffs her car with Coors when driving home during school breaks to Houston, where the beer is not sold. "I've been drinking Coors since I was in college," Bugdanowitz said. "Coors is better for the money and Coors doesn't sit around. It's lighter. The beer sells so fast there's no chance of it getting stale or overheated. It makes a big difference." The difference, according to the company, is Rocky Mountain spring water used in brewing. The company also credits the lightness and crisp taste to constant refrigeration. Coors is not pasteurized and contains no preservative. If a can isn't sold within 90 days, Coors asks the retailer to turn it in. The credit goes to Adolph Herman Joseph Coors, an immigrant German brewer who mixed the beer for men in boom towns and mining camps near suburban Golden, Colo., now company headquarters, in the late 1800s. Coors is marketed only in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Nevada, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, Utah and Wyoming, and the company has no plans to expand this market. The Supreme Court this year ruled Coors' distributors couldn't restrict sales geographically. But, Bugdanowitz said he isn't refusing to sell out of state — Colorado Coors drinkers are just buying him out.

The company buys rice from Arkansas but residents of the state have to sneak across into Oklahoma to pick up a six pack. A Wisconsin University fraternity duns its members to pay for a "Coors run" to Colorado each year. Coors isn't sold in Austin, so Texas University students wait for a shipment to a liquor store in tiny Spicewood, 30 miles away, and on warmer days sit sipping by the shores of Lake Travis. For 12 years Coors has authorized the sale of its beer to one New York wholesaler just so a Bedford, N. Y., woman, reportedly the daughter of an owner of Coors, could be supplied, but her supply now is imperiled by a hassle with the State Liquor Authority. Thomas Fatata Jr., a New York wholesaler who buys 2,000 to 4,000 cases of Coors a week from an out-of-state wholesaler and sells it to retailers at $14 a case, described the demand for Coors as "unreal" and estimated he could sell 30,000 cases a week if he could get them. "I don't think Coors is any better than any other beer," Fatata said. "It's a lot of publicity. You know, Ford, Kissinger. People want what they can't get." Thirsty environmentalists love Coors because of the company's recycling program. Coors pays 15 cents for every pound of empty cans returned. So far in 1975, the firm has paid out $1.2 million for empties.

Austin Clarke Changes Roles

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Having scooped himself out of a job as a newspaperman, Austin Clarke became a college professor and then shed that role to write novels, to broadcast and to practice diplomacy. Clarke, now cultural attache at the embassy of Barbados in Georgetown, Guyana, says that after studying economics and political science at the University of Toronto, he decided he wanted to be an actor but got sidetracked into newspapering. He worked successively for two Thomson Newspapers, Ltd., papers in Ontario — the Timmons Press and the Kirkland Lake Daily News, with respective current circulations of 11,237 and 5,813. While working in Kirkland Lake, he was also a parttime correspondent for the Globe & Mail and three other newspapers in Toronto. While covering a murder story, he recalled in an interview, he scooped his own afternoon newspaper by filing first to the morning Globe & Mail, and later to the other Toronto papers. This understandably annoyed the Kirkland Lake Daily News but led to a job offer with the Globe & Mail. After working for a paper with two reporters, where he sometimes wrote the whole newspaper if his colleague had a hangover, he found it strange being assigned one story a day, he said. "That didn't work out "and they fired me," he said. Along about the same time, Clarke decided not to work steadily again until he found out if he could get rid of the urge to write. He took a year off, and soon wrote two novels which were published in 1964 and 1965. He had also made academic contacts, and was invited to teach Afro-American literature and creative literature at Yale in 1967 and again in 1968-71. Later he taught at Brandeis, Williams, Duke and the University of Texas. Since then, he says, he has resisted offers to teach. Clarke, 40, recently published his fifth novel, "The Bigger Light," third in a trilogy about Barbadians living in Toronto. He has also published one collection of short stories, and is at work on another novel, "To Have Been," set on a plane between Toronto and Barbados. His job with the Canadian Broadcasting Company and his income from writing have made him independent, he says, but when Prime Minister Errol W. Barrow of Barbados, a lifelong friend, asked him to join the diplomatic corps about a year ago, he agreed to do so. He now works and lives at the embassy in Washington, but his work frequently takes him back to Canada. His family remains in Toronto: his wife and three children — Janice, 16, Loretta, 14, and Mphahlele, 7, named after a favorite South African poet and playwright, Ezekiel Mphahlele. "I intend to stay with the government as long as the government thinks I have something to contribute," he said. "I find it very satisfying."

Energy-Savings On Highway Seen Vital

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Americans must "stay a little hotter, be a little colder in the winter and drive a little slower on the highway" to avoid energy shortages, the regional administrator of the Federal Energy Administration said Tuesday. Frederick Johnson said in an interview the economy is improving and this can cause problems. "Our economy seems to be on the upswing, which means people stop thinking about conservation," he said. "If the American people don't keep up with conservation in a booming economy, we'll be in trouble." At present, Johnson said, supplies are adequate. "We've got our heads above water. There is fuel, and we have a buildup in the United States of some spot surpluses in gasoline," he said. But he cautioned that the surpluses are dwindling. "We're trading water, trying to keep ahead without sinking," Johnson said. "Right now, historically, everyone is gearing up for summer vacations and refiners have to start producing fuel oil for the winter." Johnson said the nation will become more vulnerable if oil supplies decline since 38 per cent comes from abroad. Johnson's jurisdiction covers Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Florida, Kentucky and the Panama Canal Zone. The 26-year-olds are identical twins who haven't communicated in months. Mrs. Capps said the cards were identical, and that "flabbergasted" her.

Allege Crime Data Bank Conferring Was Misused By Police On Tourism

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With $1.3 million from the federal government, the Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit, a nationwide police organization virtually unknown to the public, has amassed a computerized intelligence file containing 18,906 names.

The intelligence unit, known as LEIU, and its data bank were established to exchange intelligence information on organized crime. But some police officials say LEIU, which has more than 200 member intelligence agencies throughout the United States and Canada, has expanded its interests to include political dissenters and any citizen who arouses the curiosity of the police.

"Often just being controversial was enough to earn yourself a criminal intelligence file," said a Houston, Tex., police official. "It was obvious that municipal departments across the country were developing unbelievable files."

An insight into the operations of LEIU came when the Houston police department recently left the organization.

LEIU national chairman Ray Henry, a Long Beach, Calif., police intelligence officer, said the organization's purpose is to keep track of "traveling organized crime hoodlums." He added that it has "nothing to do with investigating political figures, churches, blacks, or anything of that type."

LEIU's computer data bank is known as the Interstate Organized Crime Index (IOCI) and is located in the intelligence division of the California Department of Justice.

Funds to operate the index came from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA), a federal agency which has distributed billions of dollars in crime fighting grants throughout the nation.

In 1973 an LEAA evaluation of the index said:

"This project established a national register containing 2,794 persons identified as organized crime principals and 18,906 names of all types including aliases, nicknames, associates and businesses."

The evaluators polled police departments connected to the system and reported user agencies wanted more names in IOCI.

The evaluators also cited complaints about limitations on the material included in IOCI. Some users indicated they wanted it to include data on "dissidents, radicals, revolutionaries and similar types."

It could not be determined whether those constraints on what could be included in the index were removed.

ASHEVILLE (AP) — The 1975 Governor's Conference on Tourism continued today with a presentation of the North Carolina advertising program for 1975-76 scheduled for the morning session.

The Governor's Banquet is scheduled this evening with Gov. Jim Holshouser as the speaker. The Parker and Nesbit Travel Awards will be presented at the banquet.

Approximately 150 persons were registered for the meeting.

A forum discussion on special promotions featured Tuesday's opening session. Henry Palmer of Salisbury discussed plans for the National Sportscasters Association Hall of Fame, which is expected to cost about $10 million when fully developed.

Joe Moss, chairman of the Greensboro Open golf tournament, said the sponsoring Jaycees must take in $100,000 to finance the event, with half the amount going for course rental. He said efforts are under way to have the tournament added to those televised next year.

Thomas Olds of the Carowinds theme park near Charlotte said the attraction is expecting two million visitors in 1975, compared with one million last year and 1.2 million when it opened in 1973.

Showing Film On Saturday

"Survival," a new color film, will be shown at Elm Street Recreation Center Saturday at 7:30 p.m., sponsored by the Faith Assembly of God.

"Survival" is being released by Mark IV Pictures, Inc., Des Moines, Iowa. The company specializes in making feature length Christian Films and their two previous productions are "Blood On The Mountain" and "A Thief In The Night."

The latest production was filmed in the Coconino National Forest in Arizona.

Sinatra Wins In Libel Suit

LONDON (AP)—Singer Frank Sinatra won a libel suit today against the British Broadcasting Corp. which suggested in a television program he had connections with the Mafia.

A high court judge awarded the American entertainer "substantial" but undisclosed damages and the lawyer for the BBC defendants apologized to Sinatra "for the distress and damage to his reputation which they have caused."

The settlement was announced shortly after Sinatra arrived in England for two concerts at London's Royal Albert Hall May 29-30. He was not in the courtroom.

Sinatra's lawyer told the court that the BBC news program "24 Hours," shown June 7, 1972, suggested that Sinatra got his role as Joe Maggio in the 1953 film "From Here to Eternity" because of Mafia influence. Sinatra won an Academy Award as best supporting actor in the role.

The lawyer said the program also suggested that Sinatra had broken an agreement to appear voluntarily before a House of Representatives Select Committee on Organized Crime and had evaded service of a subpoena. It was alleged, the lawyer said, that Sinatra had done this as a favor to members of the Mafia.

"There was no truth in any of these serious libels," the lawyer said. "It goes without saying, as a viewer of the film would instantly appreciate, that his role in 'From Here to Eternity' was obtained entirely on merit."

Regarding the other allegation, the lawyer said Sinatra at no time received a summons to appear before the committee. He added that the entertainer subsequently appeared voluntarily and "answered freely and frankly all questions asked of him."

Sudden Collapse Of S. Viets Even Surprised Foes

By DANIEL De LUCE
Associated Press Writer
After a 30-year war, Saigon became the southern capital of the Vietnamese revolution in a stunning 24-hour transition. One day there were U.S. Marines in the city. The next day, the war was over.

Were the winners themselves surprised at this almost instant change? The answer appears to be: Yes!

We reached Hanoi, capital of North Vietnam, by Soviet airliner April 26, on invitation from the Provisional Revolutionary Government to visit areas of South Vietnam recently brought under its control.

Before flying south to Da

Nang the next day, we were given an official booklet in English assessing the military situation. The assessment was dated April 1, 1975, and somberly conceded:

"It is certain that the U.S.A. still has the financial and material means to prolong the survival of the neocolonial regime in Saigon.

"For long years to come the neocolonial policy of Washington will be held on to the end, to maintain for as long as possible bastions in Vietnam and Indochina, so as to delay as much as possible the liberation of the Indochinese peoples and hamper to the utmost the building of a new society in the countries of Indochina."

Then the assessment came to this qualified conclusion: "But it is no less certain that a severe, if not mortal, blow has been struck at that policy (Washington's), which is now doomed sooner or later. No power in the world can any longer bar the road of national liberation to the Vietnamese, Cambodian and Lao peoples."

In such general terms, we had heard the North Vietnam government predict on our previous visit in 1970 that President Richard M. Nixon's Vietnamization program "will fail." Yet five years had ensued.

The military assessment, however, attributed to one clause in the Paris agreement between the Nixon administration and the Vietnamese revolutionaries the basis for ultimate victory, although victory might still be years in coming.

"One might have been tempted to believe that after the Paris agreement of 1973, things would move the same way as after the Geneva conference of 1954. But history does not repeat itself. It is true that, in 20 years, Washington had had time to set up a colossal military and police machine in South Vietnam, but the American leaders were grossly mistaken when they calculated that the destruction, ravages and mourning they had sown in Vietnam had so exhausted and weakened the Vietnamese people as to render them totally powerless.

"In 1954, the Vietnamese resistance had had to evacuate South Vietnam entirely and regroup its armed forces and cadres in the North, leaving a population without any arms and cadres to confront the imperialist enemy. In 1973, the PRG was there with its own territory and armed forces. The difference with 1954 was a fundamental one."

South of Da Nang on April 28-29, we saw large convoys of civilian buses rumble in the direction of Saigon. All were loaded with young infantrymen, who wore new green uniforms and pith helmets bearing the gold-starred red and blue insignia of the "People's Liberation Armed Forces."

In one hour, 100 buses with troops passed the Dien Ban district secondary school. Girl students in white aodais and conical straw hats, boys in Western slacks, waved PRG paper flags on the edge of Highway 1. They cheered themselves hoarse.

Not only motor-borne infantry poured southward. There were armored vehicles and motorized artillery. And surface to air missiles on Soviet launching trucks, too.

On the afternoon of the 28th, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh granted an interview in a colonial official building on the Da Nang waterfront that was formerly requisitioned by a U.S. aid organization.

One of the questions we asked the PRG foreign minister was how soon she expected the "People's Liberation Armed Forces" to win the war.

"I want it as soon as possible," she said.

On the morning of the 30th at Hue, PRG functionaries set out to show us millions of dollars of captured U.S. armaments in the harbor area. But first, they told us a smidgin of radio news—the American helicopter evacuation in Saigon was officially over.

Until that moment, it seemed to us, these officials had been holding their breath. They were fearful that any foulup in the evacuation would be taken as an excuse for further massive American bombing—the last backlash from a humiliated superpower.

At 1 p.m., the officials got the word: "Saigon liberated."

Then, at last, they knew the war was won.

More Individuals, Businesses Turn To Bankruptcy Petitions

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
More American individuals and businesses filed bankruptcy petitions in March than in any other month in history, the government says. This reflects a steady increase in the number of people unable to cope with inflation and recession.

Over-all bankruptcy filings for fiscal 1975 are running 35 per cent higher than a year earlier and the number of financial failures for the year that ends June 30 could set a record.

March is the latest month for which figures are available. The statistics cover two kinds of bankruptcy filings: those by individuals or businesses who ask the court to declare them bankrupt and those by people or companies seeking relief from creditors while they work out a system of paying their bills.

The Administrative Office of the United States Courts, which records the number of bankruptcy and relief petitions filed in every federal judicial district, provided this update on Monday:

— There were 24,970 bankruptcy filings in March, 13 per cent or 2,839 more filings than in October, the previous single highest month on record, and 42 per cent or 7,391 filings more than in March 1974.

— The total number of bankruptcy filings for the first nine months of fiscal 1975 was 184,655, 35 per cent more than the 136,597 filings in the first nine months of 1974.

— More people have been going broke each month. There were 20,061 bankruptcy filings in December, 21,264 in January, 21,763 in February and 24,970 in March. There was a similar pattern a year earlier, but the rate of climb was less and the numbers involved were smaller.

No breakdown was available on how many bankruptcy filings were made by individuals and how many by businesses. But in fiscal 1974, only 11 per cent of all petitions were filed by businesses.

Officials have expressed concern that an unprecedented number of individuals and businesses will go bankrupt this fiscal year. The previous high was in 1967 when there were 208,329 bankruptcies. Officials said in December that if the latest rate of increase in filings continued, the fiscal 1975 total could reach 231,660.

A spokesman for the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts blamed the 1967 record on "a big overextension in consumer credit."

Consumers have been cutting back their borrowing. In the last three months of 1974 and first three months of this year, consumer debt was reduced by almost $1.73 billion, leaving an outstanding debt of $184.25 billion. But officials blame the current rash of bankruptcies on "inflation and recession and the state of the economy."

Liberal Marijuana Laws For Alaskans

By JOHN GREELY
Associated Press Writer
JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — In state where alcoholism is the No. 1 health problem, the Alaska legislature is on the verge of liberalizing marijuana laws to deal with what one lawmaker calls "the world as it really exists."

The house voted 21 to 17 Tuesday to remove criminal penalties against adults who possess any amount of marijuana for personal use in their own homes. In place of maximum penalties of $1,000 and a year in jail for simple possession, a $100 civil fine would be imposed.

If approved and signed by Gov. Jay Hammond, the legislation would make Alaska the second state to "decriminalize" possession of marijuana. Oregon adopted a similar law in 1973.

Details of the pending legislation have not been worked out, and a constitutional challenge to Alaska's marijuana laws may change the eventual outcome.

"The measure does, however, attempt to deal with the world as it really exists," said Terry Miller, the bill's main sponsor and former senate president.

Under various bills passed by both houses of the legislature, the small-time user of marijuana could simply pay his fine by mail if arrested. Most legislators believe a one-ounce limit may be placed on possession of marijuana in public places.

"Without question there has been a moderately high level of acceptance of marijuana among an important segment of our society," Miller said.

Possession of marijuana was reduced from a felony to a misdemeanor by the legislature five years ago. Still, more than 50 per cent of the drug arrests in Alaska each year are for marijuana possession or sale.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market broke out of its indecisive pattern of the past two sessions today with a broad advance in very active trading. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 6.25 at 856.38, and gainers held an 8-3 edge on losers at the New York Stock Exchange.

American Telephone & Telegraph was the most active stock on the Big Board, off 1/4 at 51 1/2.

AT&T's warrants, which are due to expire Thursday, were also heavily traded, with a block of 350,000 changing hands at 5-64—about 8 cents apiece—unchanged from Tuesday's close.

Telephone common hit 52, the exercise price of the warrants, Tuesday for the first time this year.

Coca-Cola bottling of New York was up 1/4 at 9 1/4 in a 223,000-share block trade.

Good gainers in the glamor sector included Burroughs, up 1 1/2 at 109; Walt Disney Productions, 1 1/2 higher at 54 1/2, and Fairchild Camera, ahead 1 1/2 at 42.

The NYSE's composite index rose .40 to 48.85 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .30 at 87.90.

Proctor Rites Set Thursday

Mr. J. Knott Proctor, 79, retired Greenville Postmaster, died Tuesday in Pitt Memorial Hospital. He resided at 207 Pineview Drive.

Proctor, both of Greenville; and two sisters; Mrs. T.R. Rouse and Mrs. W.A. Hudson, both of Grimesland.

The family has suggested those desiring to make memorial contributions in his memory to consider the First Christian Church.

Mayaguez...

In Bangkok, Premier Kukrit Pramoj gave the United States until Thursday morning to remove 1,100 U.S. Marines brought to Thailand without his permission to reinforce President Ford's demands that Cambodia release the ship and its men.

First reports from the Thai foreign ministry had said 800 Marines arrived before dawn at the U.S. Air Force Utapao base on the south coast, but Kukrit later said U.S. Charge d'Affaires Edward E. Masters had told him the final total was 1,100.

Asked on what basis he was making his statements, Scott said it was "just my own feeling as a naval officer" based on troop movements and on "certain information" on the situation off the Cambodian coast.

"There has been consultation with me concerning the administration's reaction to the seizure of the ship," Scott said. "There are some things I'm not free to talk about," he added.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he had not been consulted about the situation.

Later, in a Senate speech, Scott said "certain steps will have to be taken" in the Mayaguez matter, adding that when they are he hopes senators will support the President.

Mansfield praised President Ford "for showing the restraint he has shown up to this time" and said every step must keep in mind the well-being of the crew.

"I would hope he (the President) would continue to act with care and caution," Mansfield said.

The President discussed the Mayaguez situation with several staff members during the morning and then called another meeting of the National Security Council for 3:30 p.m. It was the third NSC meeting he called in 30 hours.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford was keeping congressional leaders informed about the ship and its plight.

Asked about the Marines in Thailand, Nessen said: "It is our policy that we do not comment on possible troop movements."

He said the Mayaguez was "still in the same place, dead in the water two miles off Koh Tang." But he repeated that the United States was not certain the 39 crewmen were on board.

Nessen described Ford's mood as calm. "He is keeping informed; he has all the facts he needs," the press secretary said.

Ford called a National Security Council meeting late Tuesday night. The meeting broke up early today after an hour and three quarters.

The President slept for four hours, then awoke shortly after 5 a.m. for an intelligence briefing.

Adm. James L. Holloway, chief of naval operations said, "The Navy is ready. We are prepared" to retake the Mayaguez, seized by Cambodia on Monday.

Administration sources said diplomatic efforts primarily through China were being used to emphasize Ford's determination to get the vessel back rather than negotiate a settlement.

"We're not sure Peking would want to help and even if it did we're not sure the Khmer Rouge would listen," one State Department official said. So, he explained, the diplomatic channels are being used simply to tell Phnom Penh that "we want the ship back, unconditionally."

This feeling was reinforced to newsmen traveling Tuesday in Missouri with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. They learned that Ford has refused to consider any deal with Cambodia.

Kissinger, it was learned, would be astonished if the President followed the method used by the United States to obtain release of the spy ship Pueblo from North Korea in 1969. That involved a confession, later recanted, that the Navy ship had been spying. There have been no allegations that the Mayaguez was spying.

State Department sources said Ford and Kissinger are maneuvering in hopes that Cambodia will simply let the ship go.

"If they see we're not fooling around and that there is little anyone can do to stop us, maybe they'll stop fooling around," one official said.

On the other hand, the sources said, the administration isn't afraid to use force, particularly since the administration views the Cambodian action as a flagrant violation of international law.

But they denied Ford and Kissinger have welcomed the incident as an excuse to show American strength following the U.S. inability to stop the Communist-led take-overs of Cambodia and South Vietnam.

"We don't have to prove our guts," one source said, asking that he not be identified. "If we hit them it because they were too stupid to realize what they had done."

Sees A Chance For Independent
LYNNFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Independent Gov. James Longley of Maine says he feels an independent candidate can be elected president of the United States in the next couple of elections.

"I think it's much more alive now — even more than I thought 90 days ago," Longley said Tuesday at a meeting of the New England Associated Press Executives Association. Longley upset two regular party candidates when he was elected governor last November.

Longley said he would want to help and even if it did we're not sure the Khmer Rouge would listen," one State Department official said. So, he explained, the diplomatic channels are being used simply to tell Phnom Penh that "we want the ship back, unconditionally."

Chargers Take Southern Nash

SPRING HOPE—Ayden-Grifton took a 5-3 victory over Southern Nash yesterday, pulling into sole possession of second place in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

The second place berth is an important one since two teams from the league will represent the conference in the state 3-A playoffs.

Ayden-Grifton took the lead in the second, scoring a lone run on Dennis Cristiano's home run.

They added two in the third. Randy Nelson, Paul Setliff and Paul Ricciarelli all walked, loading the bases. Eddie Taylor drew another walk, scoring Nelson. Steve Nobles singled to score Setliff for a 3-0 lead.

But in the fifth, Southern Nash rallied for three to tie it up.

Cooper Finch tripled and Randy Faircloth plated him with a single. Bobby Harrison singled and an error let Faircloth score. Mitch Henley tripled to score Harrison with the tying run.

The Chargers came back with two in the sixth to gain the victory. Setliff reached on a fielder's choice and Ned Craft doubled, with Al Butts running for him. A wild pitch scored Setliff and Ricciarelli sacrificed Butts home with the insurance run.

The Chargers, now 11-4 in the league and 13-6 overall, will travel to North Pitt today.

Rose High Girls Beat Northeastern

Rose High School romped to a 19-10 victory over Northeastern High School yesterday in a girls' softball game.

Rose pushed over three runs in the first inning to take the lead. Edna Barnhill walked and Jane Wahlert also walked. Jill Carney then cracked a home run to make it 3-0.

In the second, after Northeastern had pushed over two runs, Rose came up with four to up its lead to 7-2. Wahlert singled and scored on Carney's triple. Lou Foreman walked and Rosie Cox singled in Carney. Sherri Augspurger tripled in both Foreman and Cox.

Northeastern then erupted for eight big runs in the third inning, pushing into a 10-7 lead.

Rose fought back, however, scoring two in the third to but it to 10-9. Shirley Johnson singled and Foreman walked. Sally Augspurger tripled, driving in both runners.

Oakmont & Grace Remain Undefeated

Oakmont and Grace ruled their respective divisions in the Church Softball League as the lone remaining unbeaten teams following last night's games. Trinity and Black Jack both suffered their first defeats of the year.

In the American division, First Christian opened with a 10-3 victory over St. James. St. James pushed in three runs in the top of the first, but got no more. Christian came up with one each in the second and third, then got four in the fifth to take the lead. They added four more in the sixth to wrap it up.

The second game saw Oakmont hand Trinity a 16-4 defeat. Oakmont got two in the first, then scored five in the second with Barry Singleton homering. Nine more crossed in the third with Bob Turner and Danny Harris hitting round-trippers. Trinity came up with two in the fourth and two more in the seventh.

The final game saw St. Gabriel down Memorial Baptist, 10-8. Memorial pushed over four in the first, but St. Gabriel came back with five in the top of the second. Memorial rallied for four in the bottom of the second, regaining the lead.

But St. Gabriel scored one in the third, two in the fourth and two in the seventh on a home by R. Sewell to gain the win. In the National Division, Immanuel opened with a 9-1 win over Black Jack. Immanuel took the lead with one in the second, but Black Jack came back with one in the top of the third to tie it up. Immanuel regained the lead with one in the third, a homer by Harry Helmes. They added six in the fourth with Helmes again homering. One more crossed in the fifth.

People's Bible ripped University-Mt. Pleasant, 17-6, in the second game. People's pushed over three in the first, then scored five in the second. They added three in the third with J. Blair homering. Three more scored in the fourth, with two crossing in the sixth and one in the seventh, on a Homer by G. Harris. U-MP got two in the first, one in the third and three in the fifth.

In the last game, Grace downed First Free Will Baptist, 17-1. Grace got one in the first, then picked up four in the second. They broke it open with seven in the third, and added two in the fourth, one in the sixth and two in the seventh. The lone FWB run came over in the fifth inning.

Williamston In Softball Victory

WINDSOR—Williamston High School remained unbeaten in conference play in girls' softball yesterday with a 22-7 romp past Bertie.

Williamston pushed over five runs in the first inning to take the lead for good. Belinda Sprull singled and Debbie Rogerson reached on an error. Cynthia Tyre walked and Cissy Taylor singled in both Sprull and Rogerson. Lisa Roberson reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Tyre, and Debra Bell singled in Taylor. Debbie Brown was safe on a fielder's choice, scoring Roberson.

In the second, Williamston pushed over two more. Terry Hopkins walked and Sprull tripled her in. Rogerson sacrificed Sprull in.

Three more came in the third. Taylor led off with a home run. Brown followed with a singled and Cindy Cullipher singled. Terry Hopkins brought both of them in with a hit.

Lisa Roberson homered in the seventh with two on as Williamston went on to add seven runs in the sixth and five in the seventh.

Bertie, never catching up, got two in the second, one in the third, three in the fourth and one in the fifth. Peggy Capehart got a two-run homer in the second inning.

Williamston is now 9-1 in all games, and will play host to Rose on Friday.

Jamesville Ices Tie For Crown

BATH—Jamesville came up with three runs in the eighth inning to nip Bath, 5-2, and clinch at least a tie for the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin championship.

The Bullets have two games remaining and a victory in either of them would nail down the title and send them into the State 1-A Playoffs next week.

Curtis Ange tossed a one-hitter at Bath. He struck out eight and walked five. He also hit two.

The game was scoreless until the fourth, when both teams pushed over two runs.

Jamesville put Eric Davis on with a walk and he scored when Jerry Ange doubled. Ange stole third and Billy Brown walked. Robbie Hardison then singled in Ange for a 2-0 lead.

But Bath came right back with two. Price reached on a two-base error and Woolard walked. Tate was safe on a fielder's choice, loading the bases. J. Woolard singled in two runs to knot the score.

It stayed 2-2 until the eighth inning when Jamesville broke the deadlock and took the win. Davis led off with a walk and Ange singled. Brown doubled to drive in both runners. Brown took third on a passed ball and scored on Hardison's sacrifice.

Jamesville is now 10-2 in the league and travels to Pantego today. They close the regular season at Aurora on Friday.

Southern Wayne Wins Over NP

BETHEL—Southern Wayne High School scored six runs in the first two innings and went on to record a 7-1 victory over North Pitt yesterday.

The win kept Southern Wayne's slim hopes of a playoff berth alive.

The Saints pushed over three in the first inning. Pelletier singled and Robbins reached on an error. Rose also singled, loading the bases. Clark reached on an error, scoring Pelletier. Smith singled, driving in both Robbins and Rose.

Southern picked up three more in the second frame. Rose reached on an error and Clark got a hit. Neal singled in Rose and Smith doubled to drive in both Clark and Neal.

The lone North Pitt run came in the fourth inning. Noel Whitley singled and Aubrey Wynne singled him to third. He scored on a passed ball.

The other Southern Wayne run came in the seventh. Clark singled and moved to third on an out. He scored when Hood grounded out.

The Panthers return to action today, playing host to Ayden-Grifton.

Jack Nicklaus won his fifth Masters title by taking the final round lead on the 18th hole where he sank a 40-foot birdie putt for a deuce.

Dave Hill's scores got progressively better in the 1975 Masters. They were 75, 71, 70 and 68. But he finished seventh, eight shots behind Jack Nicklaus and four under par.

The NCAA baseball championships will be played June 6-12 in Omaha, Neb.

Hall of Famer Earl Averill holds the Cleveland home run record with 226.

Tigers Claim Northeastern Loop Title With Win Over Edenton

EDENTON—Williamston High School clinched the Northeastern Conference championship yesterday, gaining a 14-4 victory over Edenton.

The win will send the Tigers into the 3-A State Playoffs next week.

Williamston pushed over a run in the first frame to take a brief lead. Roy Lilley walked and stole second. Phil Selby reached on a fielder's choice and Tim Hardison's single scored Lilley.

Edenton came right back to tie it up in the bottom of the inning. Jimmy Fleetwood walked and scored then Tommy* Nixon reached on an error.

Williamston pushed in four runs in the second, moving ahead for good, 5-1. Mike Bryant walked and Greg Roberson reached on an error. Both moved up on a passed ball and Ken Herman walked. Eric Godard singled in both Bryant and Roberson, but was then caught off first. Lilley singled and stole second. He and Herman scored on Hardison's hit.

After Edenton scored once in the fifth, Williamston pushed in two in the sixth. Mike Koesy singled and Roberson slapped a two-run homer, making it 7-2. Edenton came back with two in the bottom of the sixth.

Williamston then exploded for seven in the top of the seventh. Butch Davis got a hit and George Brown was hit by a pitch. Koesy singled and a hit by Roberson scored David and Brown. Danny Whitehurst reached on a base hit, and an error brought in Koesy. Lilley walked and a walk to Selby scored Roberson. Hardison singled in Whitehurst and Lilley. A passed ball let Selby score the final run.

Williamston, now 13-5 overall and 10-1 in the league, plays host to Ashokic on Friday.

Bear Grass Downs Lakers

SWAN QUARTER—Bear Grass High School pushed over eight runs in the sixth inning to take a 10-6 victory over Mattamuskeet yesterday.

The victory boosted the Bear Grass record to 9-4 in the Beaufort Hyde-Martin League. They are 12-5 overall.

Mattamuskeet scored first, getting two in the third. Adams was hit by a pitch and Burrus walked. Harris also walked and an error allowed both Adams and Burrus to score.

Bear Grass tied it up with two in the fourth. Alton Cratt reached on an error and stole second. Richard Knox also reached on an error, scoring Cratt. Knox was sacrificed up and scored on Jimmy Peaks hit.

But Mattamuskeet came right back with two in the bottom of the inning, taking a 4-2 lead. Adams walked and Burrus scored then Tommy* Nixon reached on an error.

Bear Grass then broke it open with eight runs in the sixth. Knox walked and Dwayne Baker singled. Peaks got a hit, scoring Knox. Jerry Wynne walked and an error let Baker score. Ray Wynne singled in Peaks, and an error on the play let Jerry Wynne come in. Mark Gardner reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Ray Wynne. Danny Rogerson walked and Cratt singled in Gardner. An error on the relay let both Rogerson and Cratt score the final runs.

The Lakers came back with two in the bottom of the sixth, but never closed the gap again. The Bears host Bath on Friday.

Hankins Resigns

East Carolina University Athletic Director Clarence Stasovich has announced his acceptance of the resignation of head tennis coach Wes Hankins.

Hankins served for three years as the Pirate's tennis coach, leading the Pirates to their first Southern Conference match victory in three years this season in defeating VMI. Also, the Pirates finished seventh in the conference tournament, marking the first time out of the cellar in many years.

Hankins resigned due to his increased work load with the Urban and Regional Planning Department, and his teaching load in the Department of Geography.

A successor is expected to be named within the next month.

Bowling

The Sluggers, composed of Agnes Strickland, Barbara Johnston and Nellie Speight were awarded the first place trophy in the Tuesday Bowlettes League during a recent awards luncheon.

Second place went to the Eight-Balls, made up of Thelma Duell, Janet Williams and Harriet Crisp.

Janet Williams won the high average award with a 165, while Thelma Duell won the high game award of 234. Connie Smith won the high handicap game with a 255. The high series award went to Judy Ensor with a 560, while Jackie Baker took the high handicap series with a 711.

Linda Wilkerson with a 15-pin increase was the Most Improved Bowler award winner.

Even if you didn't know it was 10 years old, you'd be able to taste the difference.

Ryan Tosses Two-Hitter As Angels Win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Nolan Ryan pitched nine innings, Jim Bibby pitched five and Ken Holtzman faced only one batter but all came away with victories Tuesday night.

Ryan pitched six hitless innings and finished with his sixth career two-hitter in the California Angels' 3-0 victory over the New York Yankees. Bibby allowed singles to the first two batters and then knocked off the next 15 in the Texas Rangers' 5-0 triumph over the Milwaukee Brewers which was called in the fifth inning because of rain.

And Holtzman, who had a 1-4 record in eight starts despite a fine 2.35 earned run average, struck out Carl Yastrzemski to end a Boston rally in the fifth inning and was credited with the win in the Oakland A's 9-5 triumph over the Red Sox when Joe Rudi's tie-breaking home run in the bottom of the fifth made him the pitcher of record.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Chicago White Sox 3-2, the Kansas City Royals outlasted the Detroit Tigers 8-7 and the Cleveland Indians nipped the Minnesota Twins 3-2.

Ryan flirted with a record-tying fourth career no-hitter until Bobby Bonds broke the spell with a leadoff single in the seventh, the Yankees' only clean hit. Ryan, who joined Oakland's Vida Blue and Don Sutton of Los Angeles as the only seven-game winners in the majors, struck out seven and walked five.

Doc Medich matched scoreless innings with Ryan until he walked Bruce Bochte with two out in the sixth and Joe Lahoud and Dave Chalk followed with singles for a 1-0 lead. An inning later, Tom Egan's triple and singles by Morris Nettles and Bochte made it 3-0. Billy Smith lashed a two-run double in the eighth.

Rangers 5, Brewers 0
Cesar Tovar and Jim Spencer cracked first-inning home runs off Jim Slaton to back Bibby's pitching. A heavy thunderstorm hit Arlington Stadium with two out in the bottom of the fifth and the umpires called it after a one-hour, 31-minute wait.

A's 9, Red Sox 5
Rudi hit his fourth home run of the season in the fifth inning to break a 4-4 tie and Billy Williams added a three-run shot in the seventh. Holtzman made a rare relief appearance and struck out Carl Yastrzemski, the only batter he faced, to halt a four-run Boston rally in the fifth, capped by Rick Burleson's three-run double.

Orioles 3, White Sox 2
Tommy Davis' run-scoring double in the fifth inning broke a 2-2 tie and the Orioles went on to end Jim Kaat's two-season 12-game winning streak behind the four-hit pitching of Ross Grimsley.

Royals 8, Tigers 7
Kansas City jumped on Lerin LaGrow for five runs in the second inning, one on an off-the-roof homer by Tony Solaita, and survived a four-run Detroit rally in the ninth. Solaita, who singled home a run in the fourth, led off the second with his towering homer.

KC starter Al Fitzmorris was working on a two-hitter until the seventh when Nate Colbert hit a two-run homer. Pinch hitter Dan Meyer drilled a three-run homer off Doug Bird in the ninth.

Indians 3, Twins 2
Rookie reliever Dennis Eckersley shut off a seventh-inning

Minnesota rally and Cleveland capitalized on a unique bunt double to defeat the Twins.

Jack Brohamer laid down a hard bunt past pitcher Vic Albury attempting to sacrifice in the third inning. Minnesota second baseman Rod Carew over-ran the bunt and Brohamer sprinted to second for a double with Charlie Spikes, who had walked, going to third. Frank Duffy doubled to give the Indians a 2-0 lead.

Jaycees Pound Optimists, 22-3

The undefeated Jaycees crushed the Optimists, 22-3, yesterday in the North State Little League. The win boosted the Optimist record to 3-0 on the year, while the Optimists are now 1-2.

The Jaycees got three runs in the first. Larry Talbert singled and Teddy Gartman got a hit. Mile Pollard singled to load the bases. Elvy Forrest singled, scoring Talbert, but Gartman was thrown out trying to score. Henry Goodson singled in Pollard, and Crowell Pope reached on an error, scoring Pollard.

The Optimists came up with two in the second, Jonathan Hause singled and Paul Macmillan tripled him in. Rudy Stalls reached on an error, scoring MacMillan.

Three more Jaycee runs crossed in the second. Danny Woods walked and Talbert doubled. Pollard doubled in Woods and Forrest reached on an error, scoring Talbert. A passed ball let Pollard score.

The Jaycees picked up four more in the third. Pope walked and moved up on a passed ball. Woods singled to drive in Pope. Talbert's grounder got Woods at second. Gartman singled and both runners moved up on an error. Pollard then homered to run the score to 10-2.

Five more came over in the fourth. Goodson led off the frame with a solo home run. Pope singled and Chuck Coggins walked. Talbert singled and an error on the play let Pope score. Gartman walked to load them up, and Pollard doubled in both Coggins and Talbert. Forrest singled to drive in Gartman with the fifth run.

The Optimists came up with their other run in the fifth. Sammy Hodges doubled and moved up on an out. He scored on Tony Heath's sacrifice fly.

The Jaycees closed out the scoring with seven in the fifth inning. Pope walked and moved up on a wild pitch. An error on the play let him score. Coggins reached on an error and Greg Claud reached on a fielder's choice. Talbert doubled in Coggins and Gartman reached on an error, scoring Claud. Pollard walked and Kenny Barnes doubled to score Gartman and Talbert. Pollard scored on a passed ball and Barnes came home on an error.

Kentucky Wins Opening Game

By GEORGE W. HACKETT
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — "We just played a stinking ballgame."

The assessment came from Indiana Coach Bobby Leonard after his Pacers fell apart Monday night and lost to Kentucky 120-94 in the first game of the American Basketball Association playoff championship.

"We just gotta do everything better or we won't be around too long," said Leonard. "Our rebounding was terrible, our ball-handling was terrible and our defense was terrible."

Game 2 in the best-of-seven series will be played here Thursday before the clubs move on to Indianapolis.

Although Kentucky was impressive in putting away the Pacers, Coach Hubie Brown predicted "it won't be as easy next time."

One of the big differences, said Brown, was Artis Gilmore, who contributed 26 points for the Colonels before he was lifted with six fouls.

"If you've watched us all year long," said Brown, "you know we usually keep Gilmore in no matter how many fouls he has. But we gambled, we were up by 10 points."

Indiana, however, managed to trim the lead to five points when George McGinnis hit a turn-around shot with 8:14 to go. Three quick baskets by Dan Issel, Ted McClain and Louie Dampier broke the rally and Indiana never threatened again.

Two Left On Unbeaten List

The unbeaten list in the Women's Softball was cut in half last night as two of the unbeaten knocked off two of the others. Beltone and Piggly-Wiggly remain as the two without losses.

Piggly-Wiggly knocked off previously unbeaten Daniel Construction, 30-2, in the first game. P-W pushed over five runs in the first inning, then added five more in the second. They scored three in the third with S. Pittman homering. Six more crossed in the fourth, then two were scored in the fifth with Pittman again homering. P-W closed out with nine in the sixth inning.

Daniels picked up both of its runs in the first inning.

Wachovia Bank downed Burroughs-Wellcome, 19-10, in the second contest. Wachovia pushed over 10 runs in the first inning to take the lead for good. W. Frye and A. Tucker both homered, with Frye getting two. Wachovia got another homer in the second, from S. Edwards, to account for their lone run of the fame. They added eight more in the fourth.

Burroughs-Wellcome got two in the second, one in the third, six in the fourth and one in the fifth.

In the final game, Beltone knocked off Little Mint, 13-1, to stay unbeaten. It was Little Mint's first loss. Little Mint scored its only run in the top of the first.

Beltone came up with three in the bottom of the first, then added two in the third, three in the fourth and five in the sixth, with Bennett homering.

How Tar Heel Representatives And Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes May 1 through May 7.

HOUSE
STRIP MINING — Passed, 293 for and 115 against, the conference report on a bill (HR 25) setting stricter federal controls on the strip mining of coal. The legislation, to be enforced by the states, seeks to protect the environment at a time when strip mining has been intensified to meet energy demands. HR 25 provides, in part, that strip-mined land must be returned to its approximate original condition; strip mining be prohibited or unclaimable land, and that stricter reclamation standards apply to steep slopes where the threat of acid run-off and erosion is greatest.

The conference report was sent to the Senate where adoption is expected. However, a veto is expected from President Ford, who opposes the ban on strip mining in national forests and the requirement that written consent be obtained from "surface" owners before their land can be mined. The apparently comfortable margin provided by 293 "yeas" is only three votes more than the 290 Votes — two-thirds of the House membership — needed to override any veto.

One supporter, Rep. Patsy Mink (D-Hawaii), said the legislation is a "workable compromise . . . meant to answer a national dilemma" of energy vs. environment. Rep. John Seiberling (D-Oh.) said HR 25 would not boost the consumer cost of coal, a cost he said is determined by factors such as the rise in demand for coal since the Arab oil embargo.

Most opponents said HR 25 would hike consumer costs and frustrate immediate energy needs. Rep. John Rhodes (R-Ariz.) said, "This bill could well be labeled 'The Foreign Oil Dependency Act' . . ." However, at least one opponent, Rep. Ken Hechler (D-W.Va.), contended the bill was too weak.

Reps. L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), James Martin (R-9) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), Ike Andrews (D-4), Charles Rose (D-7), James Broyhill (R-10) and W. G. Hefner (D-8) voted "nay."

BUDGET — Agreed, 200 for and 196 against, to a resolution setting a recommended level of federal spending for next year. The resolution (H Con Res 218), marking Congress's first action under the 1974 budget control law, sets ceilings of $368.2 billion for total federal outlays and $70 billion for the federal deficit for fiscal 1976, which begins next July 1. The House totals exceed Administration budget recommendations of a $355 billion ceiling on outlays and a $60 billion deficit ceiling.

The resolution was sent to conference for reconciliation with a similar Senate-passed resolution (below). The twin measures initiate the "target" phase of the new congressional budget process. Later this year Congress will implement the "binding" phase, which sets final ceilings. The idea is to replace historically piecemeal federal spending habits with a more organized and disciplined approach.

One supporter, Rep. James Wright (D-Tex.), said, "Far more important than any figure . . . is the precedent" set by the resolution — that of "recapitulating some orderly congressional control over national spending priorities." Supporters said the size of the federal deficit, an index of the recession, will diminish as soon as the economy is revived by the stimulant of federal spending.

Most opponents balked at the $70 billion deficit figure, which they warned would ignite another "bloom and bust" round of inflation and recession. They generally attributed large federal deficits to excessive federal spending.

Andrews, Neal, Preyer and Hefner voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Rose, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay."

VIETNAM — Rejected, 162 for and 246 against, the conference report on legislation to provide $327 million for humanitarian aid to South Vietnam and for evacuation of Americans and certain endangered South Vietnamese. The vote on HR 6096 occurred three days after the fall of Saigon and precluded further action on the bill.

At issue was the discretion granted President Ford to use American troops, if needed, to carry out the evacuation.

Supporters said the conference report, thought badly timed, would promptly meet the pressing needs of the Vietnam refugees. Rep. John Anderson (R-Ill.) said: ". . . if we defeat this conference report today, we are simply telling the world that we do not have any confidence in the President of the United States."

Opponents said a "clean" bill should be written later, designed around the as-yet-undiagnosed requirements of the Vietnam refugees. Opponents also expressed concern about the re-introduction of U. S. troops to safeguard evacuation.

Martin and Taylor voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Broyhill voted "nay."

Andrews did not vote.

SENATE
BUDGET — Agreed, 69 for and 22 against, to a resolution setting ceilings for federal spending in fiscal 1976: $365 billion in outlays and a deficit of $67.2 billion. The resolution (S Con Res 32) was sent to conference for reconciliation with a similar House-passed resolution (above).

The Senate totals, though lower than those of the House, exceed Administration budget recommendations of a $355 billion ceiling on outlays and a $60 billion deficit ceiling.

Supporters said the Administration totals resulted from "phony" calculations which, if corrected, would be about as high as the Senate's.

One opponent, Rep. Harry Byrd (I-Va.), praised the new budget committee's diligence, but opposed its "billion a day" budget. He said the theory behind the resolution (" . . . that our nation can buy its way out of economic difficulties . . .") is faulty.

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "yea." Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

OIL PRICING — Passed, 46 for and 36 against, a bill (S 621) to increase Congress' influence in developing U.S. energy policy. The measure would delay for 90 days any Administration-ordered increase in the price of domestic oil. After that period, any change in oil-price policy would be subject to a 30-day period of congressional review and possible disapproval. A companion bill is to be considered by the House.

Supporters disagreed with President Ford's "energy-independence" plan to remove price ceilings on domestic oil, and this provide an incentive for U. S. oil companies to step up production.

One opponent, Rep. John Tower (R-Tex.), said the bill would prove to be a "false friend to the consumer" because it artificially depresses the price of domestic oil. Such a policy "will undercut our efforts to encourage energy conservation while simultaneously restricting our domestic production of oil."

Morgan voted "yea." Helms voted "nay."

ANIMALS FRACTURES
COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Animals that suffer fractured bones from gunshot wounds have an alternative to amputation, according to a Texas A&M University veterinary surgeon.

Dr. Michael Herron said in some cases a splint can be used to delay, rather than facilitate, bone-damage repair.

Uneasy Compromise Taking Shape In Textbook War

EDITOR'S NOTE — The bitter war seems over and a compromise is emerging for Kanawha County's 48,000 school students; a compromise that permits an uneasy and restricted use of the school system's controversial textbooks.

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLESTON, W.V.A. (AP)

When Kanawha County's schools opened last September, Dr. Kenneth Underwood was the superintendent and Rose Snuffer was a housewife who hadn't been inside a classroom, except for PTA visits, in more than 30 years.

These days, however, Dr. Underwood is staying home. The 46-year-old educator has been replaced as superintendent and relegated to an advisor's role until his $32,000-a-year contract expires on June 30. Then he'll be out of a job.

Mrs. Snuffer, who has a high school degree and eight children, has suddenly become a second grade teacher. She's an unpaid volunteer in a makeshift basement classroom at the Faith Gospel Tabernacle, one of the dozen "Christian schools" that have sprung up around here as a result of Kanawha County's chaotic textbook battle with its boycotts, bombings, and demonstrations.

Eight months after it started, the violence is over and most of the school system's 48,000 students are back in class. The controversial books also are back in the classrooms, except for 36 of the most controversial, by such authors as Eldridge Cleaver, Malcolm X and Allen Ginsberg. They are available only in the school libraries to students with parental permission, and most students have that permission.

The parents of only 2,000 students refused to accept any compromise and are sending their kids to hastily organized private schools like Faith Gospel Tabernacle, where Mrs. Snuffer teaches.

Technically, truancy laws are being violated by the children attending Faith Gospel and similar schools opened since September in semi-rural areas near Charleston, the West Virginia capital and the commercial and cultural hub of the heavily industrialized Kanawha Valley.

But the truancy laws are not being enforced. "We are trying to help these schools as much as possible. We've offered them furniture," said Carl "Doc" Young, an assistant superintendent.

"Some of them operate on a tuition basis and some with all volunteer help. Most don't meet minimum standards and it's my opinion that the children who later transfer back to the public schools will have to repeat the grades they've missed," he added.

When the school year began, Young worked for Dr. Underwood. He now works for John Santrock, a longtime principal who has spent 30 years in the school system and who majored in physical education at nearby Marshall University before obtaining a master's degree in education.

Santrock presides over a school system which includes the children of "creekers" from some of the most remote and backward areas in the nation, as well as offspring of some of the state's best educated and most sophisticated residents.

A segment of the community reacted when 325 new textbooks and supplemental reading books were introduced last September. The books deal primarily with language arts and they have been introduced into a number of the nation's schools since the late '60s. They recognize the roles of minorities and of women in America and they deal with a variety of contemporary moral issues.

Although the books were selected by teachers in the schools here and were approved by the board of education, some of the parents in this

Bible Belt area charged heresy and claimed they could see the machinations of a communist conspiracy. At one time, as many as 15,000 students were out of class in a boycott.

Under pressure, the School Board withdrew all the new books on Oct. 27 and stored them in a warehouse. Twelve days later, they were reinstated under a compromise arrangement, but the 36 most controversial titles were placed in libraries throughout the school system to be used only by students with parental permission.

The schools are peaceful today, except for occasional outbursts. But there have been some basic changes. The Ku Klux Klan has become active in the county and a representative of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission is investigating charges of racism in the textbook protest movement.

Parents have become part of the textbook screening process, and the school board is considering a request by Alice Moore, a member who has been instrumental in the protest, to begin formal censorship of books in the school libraries.

The school board says it will continue to use the controversial new textbooks for the length of a five-year contract under which publishers are supplying the books.

The Rev. Marvin Haran, pastor of the Leewood Baptist Church and one of the several fundamentalist preachers acting as protest spokesmen, says: "West Virginia has saved the country. People have been alerted to what's going on. They are more watchful than ever."

The Rev. Mr. Horan was convicted in federal court last month of conspiring to bomb an elementary school. Larry Stevens, a coal miner tried with Horan, was convicted of conspiring with the minister and of actually constructing the bomb. Both will be sentenced May 19.

The Rev. Mr. Horan says the country is in the throes of a revolution that will restore traditional values. "And I don't mean a violent revolution," he said. "We're not talking about anarchy. I mean a lot of people who are in office now won't be in office in 1976."

One man's revolution, however, is another's fascism.

"The country is ripe for fascism," The Rev. James Lewis told a church group recently. Rector of St. John's Episcopal Church here and a member of the Kanawha County Coalition for Quality Education, he predicted that ideological controversies will soon spread.

CB Operators Face Charges

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Fifty citizens band radio operators in Charlotte have been charged with violating federal regulations following a surprise inspection over the weekend.

The inspection was conducted by an enforcement team of the Federal Communications Commission. An FCC spokesman says most of those cited face fines up to $500. He says at least 15 others could be fined up to $10,000 for operating a transmitter without a license.

The spokesman said some of the CB operators were using excessive power.

Peru Seizes Properties

By EDITH M. LEDERER, Associated Press Writer

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The Peruvian government has seized the Gulf Oil Corporation's filling stations, believed worth several million dollars, in retaliation for a bribe report.

The action gives government-owned PetroPeru a monopoly on marketing petroleum in Peru.

The military government issued a brief communique Tuesday night announcing the immediate expropriation of all Gulf Oil operations and accusing the U.S. firm of "offending public morals." The American company has no drilling operations in the country but owns five of the 13 gas stations that carry the Gulf emblem and sells lubricating oil to a number of private concerns and the government, Gulf general manager Edwin McCain said.

Gulf also sells crude oil to PetroPeru, but McCain said he didn't believe that would be affected by the expropriation order.

There was no mention of compensation, and McCain said he understood there would be none. He said he learned of the government action Tuesday afternoon when 10 representatives of PetroPeru arrived at his office and presented him with a copy of the decree signed by President Juan Velasco.

Gulf recently admitted to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission that it had paid $4.2 million in bribes to officials of an unnamed foreign country to remain in business there.

The Peruvian communique said: "The formal recognition by the transnational corporation that it has used in the course of its operations procedures such as those mentioned falls within the domain of penal law and therefore is offensive to public morals and precludes the possibility that said corporation can continue operating within Peruvian territory, directly or through third parties."

Ky Farm Plan Sees Support

By RICHARD SALTUS, Associated Press Writer

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — Former South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky says his plans to start a farming commune for refugees have brought him 10 proposed land deals and 200 letters of support from Americans.

"Only four letters were opposed," Ky said. He flashed a smile as a salesman with another land proposal waited outside his tent.

The former fighter pilot and politician, who has casually slipped into a role of refugee father-figure and media spokesman here, said he is far from making a decision about his commune idea.

"A man came to me just yesterday with a contract, saying 'sign it.' But I am not ready; no, not now."

Ky said in an interview Tuesday that at an undetermined time he will visit a parcel of farmland south of Little Rock, Ark., belonging to the father of a sailor he met while steaming toward Guam aboard the USS Blue Ridge.

He said people from California to North Carolina have sent him proposals for the commune, which he says will be a place for refugees to stay during the "difficult transition" to American society.

Ky, who seemed to be softening an earlier statement that the Vietnamese would never be assimilated into American culture, hasn't cited any figure of how many refugees could live in the commune, nor how large the farm should be.

The 43-year-old Ky was speaking in his squad-sized tent at Camp 8 where he lives along with 10 relatives. He receives visitors and reporters, usually by appointment, for two hours each afternoon.

Warned On Milk Prices

RALEIGH (AP)—About 45 North Carolina grocery stores are to be warned that they appear to be selling milk below cost. That action was ordered Tuesday as the state's restructured Milk Commission was sworn into office.

Under state law, stores cannot sell milk for less than they paid plus costs in handling the product. The old seven-member Milk Commission, dominated by appointees of Gov. Jim Holshouser, had tried to allow below cost sales if it was aimed at meeting competition.

The new commission is composed of 10 members with appointments divided between the governor, the lieutenant governor, the speaker of the House and the secretary of agriculture. All but the governor are Democrats.

Included in the stores where the staff said below cost sales appear to be taking place are A&P and Big Star supermarkets in the Raleigh area. They dropped prices to $1.35 a gallon after area IGA stores dropped prices to $1.39 a gallon and opened a price war.

Set Mid-Year Meet Tuesday

The Northeast "B" Division Conference mid-year session will be held Tuesday at the Bethel Chapel FWB Church, Washington.

The session will begin at 10:30 a.m. A baby contest will be held at 4 p.m. with Mrs. Reba Wilks as director.

FORMER COUNTRY MUSIC STAR DIES—Bob Wills, 70, died Tuesday in Ft. Worth, Tex. He was the composer of the Western classic song "San Antonio Rose". His fiddle took him from the Texas cotton fields to movies and bandstands across the country, and into the Country Music Association's Hall of Fame in Nashville. He led the "Texas Playboys" band, made more than 400 recordings and starred in half a dozen Hollywood movies. Wills had been in bad health and confined to a rest home for several years. This is a 1973 photo. (AP Wirephoto)

N.C. SOIL AND WATER COMMISSION — Members of the North Carolina State Soil and Water Commission held their May meeting in Greenville Tuesday and today. Talking during a luncheon session Tuesday are M.E. Knight, supervisor of Gates County, Blair Goodson, supervisor of Lincoln County, and Carl E. Sloop

Jr., chairman of the N.C. Soil and Water Commission. Events during the two-day session included tours of the Chicod Creek and Conetoe Creek watershed projects and a banquet Tuesday night at Parker's Barbecue. (SCS Photo By Roy Beck)

Credit Life Insurance Cut Faces Action Today

RALEIGH (AP)—A bill that would cut the maximum premium Tar Heels pay on credit life insurance from $1 to 80 cents on the $100 comes up for final Senate action today before going on to the House.

The upper chamber voted 32-14 to approve the bill Tuesday after an opponent called the measure a "wolf in sheep's clothing."

Sen. William G. Smith, D-New Hanover, used that description after he joined Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, in an effort to reduce the maximum premium to 54 cents. This is the level which Insurance Commissioner John Ingram is seeking to promulgate in an order which has been appealed to the courts.

McNeill Smith told the Senate that in the legislation, sponsored by Sen. Carl Thorough, D-Forsyth, the bill's sponsors were seeking to have the legislature preempt the case.

He told the Senate that if the bill were passed, the courts would say that the General Assembly had spoken and that the 80-cent premium "would grind down consumers for it will be fixed for many years to come."

He told the Senate that the 54-cent premium would allow a 100 per cent markup on the maximum cost of credit life insurance which he said is 27 cents.

But the senators voted 30-14 to defeat the amendment to reduce the maximum premium to 54 cents after Sen. Bobby L. Barker, D-Wake, chairman of the Senate Insurance Committee, told the Senate that the committee could find no justification for setting the premium maximum at 54 cents. McNeill Smith offered his amendment and several others after Thorough told the Senate that credit life insurance is purchased by one million Tar Heels and that the reduction from $1 to 80 cents in the premium rate would save them $11 million a year.

The Senate also defeated 34-13 an amendment by McNeill Smith which would require lenders to tell borrowers how much commission they earn on credit life insurance.

In opposing the amendment, Sen. James B. Garrison, D-Stanly, asked the Senate how many other businesses are required to reveal the markup on their product.

McNeill Smith said the amendment was needed because in credit life insurance the "business goes to the company which charges the most commission."

Earlier in response to questions from McNeill Smith, Sen. George Marion, D-Surry, who formerly was deputy insurance commissioner under Ingram, said he was supporting the Thorough bill because it was a way "to get relief to the people." He pointed out that if the bill is not passed and Ingram loses out in the courts, the $1 rate would remain in effect.

The Senate adopted two other amendments offered by McNeill Smith which he said "made it a better bill."

Teachers In Inner City Are Tested

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — When it comes to testing, teachers don't have the market cornered, believes Dr. Herbert Foster, associate professor of education at the State University of New York at Buffalo, who says teachers are also being constantly "tested" by their students.

The testing is most noticeable in the case of white middle class teachers in inner city schools and the way the teachers respond can mean the difference between a classroom where learning takes place and an "educational disaster," adds Foster, who is also director of the Woodlawn Teacher Education Center here. The center is designed to prepare UB students for inner city teaching positions by giving them first-hand experience in what is involved.

"Almost all school children see how far they can push their teachers and white, middle class educators are prepared for and can easily handle such behavior when in a familiar white, middle class environment," Foster contends.

"But when these same educators enter a black inner city classroom they are quite unprepared for and apparently hostile testing that is an integral part of the 'street-corner' coping and survival techniques of many black youngsters," he declares.

"The teachers are likely to become confused and frightened, thus escalating the testing game into ongoing disorder and disruption. This cheats all the students, not only the few disruptive ones, of any learning experience at all," says Foster, who has just written a book about the problem, "Ribbin', Jivin', and Playin' the Dozens: The Unrecognized Dilemma of Inner City Schools."

"Inner city students are highly conscious of any sign of weakness in their teachers and are quick to exploit it, perceiving it — because of their upbringing — as a lack of caring. Not many individuals unfamiliar with the street corner life style can cope with this or even understand what is going on," he explained in an interview.

Foster says inner city students want teachers to play the game of teaching and learning by the rules they know and understand. They want teachers who will "make me work and not let me get away with anything."

"Most often, street corner youngsters respect the teacher who can best them at their games without losing his dignity and without coming down too hard on them," he notes.

Foster, now in his eighth year on UB's Faculty of Educational Studies, does not make these observations from idle speculation. He began his career teaching industrial arts in Haaren High School in New York City's Hell's Kitchen and then taught for a number of years in New York's "600" schools, now called Schools for the Education of Socially Maladjusted and Emotionally Disturbed Children.

He believes that a "climate of learning" must be established in the inner city classroom. To do this, he says, "We need secure and mature men and women who have feelings for their students and who respect them, as well as empathize with their problems, who love the subjects they teach, and who are both good talkers and good listeners."

"Not only must they believe in their students' ability to learn, but they must not let their feelings of empathy get in their way of demanding learning and standards from their students."

"Ribbin', Jivin', and Playin' the Dozens" is published by Ballinger.

Graduates From Pharmacy School

CHAPEL HILL—Carol H. Whichard of Stokes graduated from the School of Pharmacy of the University of North Carolina here Sunday.

She is the wife of A. C. Whichard.

She has completed the five year pharmacy course and will be eligible to take a state examination for registered pharmacist licensure following a period of internship.

She will be employed by Hollowell's, Inc., Greenville.

A Josephus Daniels Scholar, Mrs. Whichard's school activities include membership in the Student Branches of APHA, secretary-treasurer of Rho Chi Pharmacy Honor Society, and Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

Special Nutritional Needs At Breakfast

- Nutritionists and health-care professionals have long considered breakfast to be the most important meal of the day. Many recommend that it supply about 25% of the day's nutrients and calories.
- After a 10-12 hour period of fasting, breakfast provides the body with energy and nutrients needed to meet the physical and mental demands of the morning's activities.

The following basic breakfast provides the nutrients and calories needed by most people and meets requirements suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture. The quantity of each food can be adjusted to meet the nutritional needs of any person.

- 4 oz. citrus juice or fruit
- 1 oz. (dry wt.) ready-to-eat or hot cereal with 4 oz. milk
- 2 slices enriched bread with spread
- 8 oz. milk

Back-Pat Event Begins Thursday

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Television's annual back-pat festival, the national Emmy awards, kicks off here Thursday at 1:30 p.m. EDT on ABC-TV with a live, 90-minute awards show for achievement in daytime programs.

It'll be held on a Hudson River excursion boat and mark the second straight year daytime TV shows have had their own awards bash. On this go, 54 nominees are up for honors in 19 categories.

The festival resumes next Monday night on CBS-TV, when efforts for nighttime program efforts will be heard in a two-hour live show from Hollywood. Nearly 180 nominees will compete in 56 categories then.

At that time, achievement in sports casting also will be honored. No less than 48 Emmy nominees are up for awards in three categories, 18 of the nominees in the "outstanding sports broadcaster" category.

According to the handout from the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, one of them is "Howard Cosell" of ABC. Hmm.

Two changes have been made in this year's Emmy awarding, says Larry Stewart, the academy's national awards committee chairman. One is that the Emmy awards for news, televised live the past two years, won't have a separate show again this year "unless there's a miracle and I don't expect that," he says. "Nobody's even discussed it."

The second is an end to the "super-Emmy" entertainment awards of last year. The awards declared the recipients the best over-all in such general categories as acting or directing.

The winners earlier had received Emmys for their acting or directing in such specific sub-categories as comedy, drama, variety and so on.

The super awards were dropped, Stewart said, because they created a hard-to-understand situation. "It was terrible," he said. "Nobody understood it and it confused the issue."

"Even the people who won weren't certain what they'd won."

He said a telecast honoring Emmy-winners in news and documentary shows may return next year, but was dropped this year to give the academy time to devise new voting procedures and simplify award categories.

Man Develops 'Animal Farm'

LONGWOOD, Fla. (AP) — "When I was a little boy there were two things I wanted, a monkey and a horse," says Fred Wynn. "I still don't have a horse."

Wynn, 33, a department store security officer, has also acquired as pets a cougar, a coyote, a fox, skunks, opossums, snakes and a poodle. The poodle is the only one his wife will allow in their Central Florida home.

The animals are usually brought to Wynn sick and in poor condition after their owners have tired of them.

Cougie the cougar had a calcium deficiency before Wynn nursed him back to health. The fox was ill with tick fever and the coyote was sore-ridden and undernourished after being chained by her owners who then abandoned her.

The cougar, the coyote, the fox and Wynn's poodle now romp together in a pen in the backyard of his Longwood home, set on a 75-by-150-foot lot. Wynn leases them for walks around the neighborhood.

Wynn's wife, Linda, said it costs about $25 a week to feed the animals.

"I like dogs, but the other animals took a little getting used to," she said. "Only the dog is allowed in the house."

Wynn says that once a wild animal has been raised as a pet, it should not be set free again because it does not know how to fend for itself.

"It won't be afraid of man," he said. "If it goes up to a home seeking food, the housewife will scream and her husband will get a two-by-four and club it to death."

Wynn spends his spare time making appearances at local schools and hospitals with his menagerie.

He said snakes are the most popular with young children. "Children aren't afraid of them at all," he said, draping a muscular boa constrictor around his 2-year-old son's shoulders. "But adults are scared of them."

Plants To Guide Office Traffic

Office Traffic

BOSTON (AP) — Tropical plants, not walls or corridors, will be used to guide traffic patterns in many offices at the new 60-story Hancock Tower.

Some 3,000 plants, including the six-foot, six-inch butterfly palm, are being transported from Florida to the delight of green-thumbed employees who will be working in the building designed by I. M. Pei and Partners.

In addition to guiding people from office to office, the plants are said to create a restful quality that increases productivity.
