Thailand Ambassador Recalled

By The Associated Press
The Thai government announced today that it is recalling its ambassador from Washington in protest against the United States using Thai bases for the military operation that recovered the merchant ship Mayaguez from Cambodia.
The government said the United States had violated Thai sovereignty by disregarding Premier Kukrit Pramoj's request not to send 1,100 U.S. Marines to Thailand for use in the operation.
Thailand also said it would demand a review of all economic and military agreements between the United States and its last ally on the Southeast Asia mainland.
Kukrit, after a special cabinet meeting, told newsmen that Ambassador Anant Panyarachun would be asked before leaving Washington to submit a protest note to the U.S. government.
The note would explain that Thailand considers a violation of its sovereignty the keeping of U.S. Marines at a U.S.-run Thai air base for more than a full day after Kukrit formally requested that they be withdrawn, he said.

He said it would add that "we will not allow this kind of incident to occur again."
Saigon radio announced that South Vietnamese authorities today imposed a midnight-to-dawn curfew in Saigon and ordered the military to arrest all curfew breakers without proper credentials.
The broadcast, monitored in Bangkok, said the curfew was ordered because of the "requirement of common security and order and people's activities."
The broadcast gave no further details on the reasons for the curfew but said exemptions would be granted to those involved in such emergencies as fires, accidents, medical treatment or "the reporting of urgent things to authorities."
The broadcast was the first known announcement of a curfew in Saigon under the new government. Under the former regime, the South Vietnamese capital lived under a similar curfew throughout most of the war.

In Laos, three Americans held in the Mekong River town of Savannakhet, appealed to the U.S. Embassy to have senior Laotian government ministers sent to the town to arrange for their safe conduct out.
The U.S. Embassy said the Americans were not in any danger and were living in their own homes. It also denied their lives had been threatened, as reported by diplomatic sources Thursday.
The Americans, all employees of the U.S. Agency for International Development—AID—have been under loose house arrest since student demonstrators took over the town Wednesday.
Two high ranking ministers were due to have flown to Savannakhet today but were unable to leave because air force units were demonstrating at the Vientiane airport. A lower ranking government delegation was sent to Savannakhet on Wednesday.

Secret 'Donations' By Gulf Oil Said Involving Millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of Gulf Oil Corp. said today his company made $4 million in illegal political contributions to the ruling party of Korea; $460,000 in donations to the ruling party in Bolivia, and $50,000 in donations for a "public education program" in the United States about the Arab-Israeli conflict.
Gulf Chairman Bob R. Dorsey mentioned other possible political expenditures abroad.
Testifying before the Senate subcommittee on multinational corporations, Dorsey said Gulf paid $1 million in 1966 and $3 million in 1970 to the Democratic-Republican Party of Korea under what he described as great pressure.

He said Gulf made the donation to protect an investment of several million dollars and that he had discovered only recently that the donations were "in violation of a Korean statute."
Dorsey said Gulf made three political contributions in Bolivia. It bought a $110,000 helicopter for the late Gen. Rene Barrientos while he was campaigning for president of Bolivia in 1966, Dorsey said.

He said Barrientos later demanded and got two other contributions of corporate funds in the amounts of $240,000 and $110,000.
Dorsey said Gulf also secretly funneled $50,000 through First National City Bank of Beirut, Lebanon, "for the purpose of helping to defray the expenses of a public education program endeavoring to bring about a better understanding in America of the Arab-Israeli conflict."

The Gulf chairman volunteered no details about the "education program."
Dorsey said that Gulf was conducting an internal investigation which only recently turned up evidence that "may indicate further use of corporate funds for political purposes abroad. I will say that some of these expenditures involve Italy."

He asked that the public not engage in "premature conjecture" about the Italian money.
Dorsey said Korean party leaders demanded that Gulf make a substantial contribution in 1966.

"Our investigation indicates that the demand was made by high party officials and was accompanied by pressure which left little to the imagination as to what would occur if the company would choose to turn its back on the request," he said.
"At that time the company had already made a huge investment in Korea," Dorsey said.

He said he made the first contribution "in the best interests of the company and its shareholders." Then "the pressure for a political contribution intensified considerably," Dorsey added.

"Officials of the Democratic-Republican Party insisted that the company contribute $10 million. This request was transmitted to the company's area manager in Korea by Mr. S. K. Kim who was financial chairman of the Democratic-Republican Party as he had been in 1966," Dorsey said.

He said Gulf agreed to make a scaled-down donation of $3 million only after "heated discussions" with party officials.

Publicly Hanged At Dawn

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (AP) — Former British black power leader Abdul Malik was hanged at dawn today, three years after he was convicted of murder.

His wife Desiree was among the crowd of 2,000 people outside the prison where the execution took place.

Malik's lawyer, Denis Muirhead, said he had spent the night trying to arrange a stay of execution. Malik was sentenced to death for the machete slaying of a young barber.

Muirhead said he was "surprised and shocked" by the government's rejection Thursday of an appeal for clemency. The Privy Council in London, the highest appeal court in the Commonwealth, dismissed an appeal May 1.

Malik, 41, once known as "Michael X" in London's black ghettos, has been on death row at Royal Jail in Port of Spain for the past 33 months.

Malik, who came to Britain from Trinidad as a 17-year-old immigrant in 1951, was jailed for one year in 1968 for incitement to racial violence. In 1970 he was charged with demanding money from a British businessman but he fled to Trinidad before he could be brought to trial.

Shah Toasts Ford Action For Freedom

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Shah of Iran toasted President Ford at a White House dinner in the aftermath of the Cambodian ship seizure and recovery to salute him for "not shrinking in front of events."

"I congratulate you for the great leadership and the right decisions that you took for your country, and may I add, for all the peoples who want to live in freedom," he said.

The audience of top-ranking government officials, members of Congress, business executives and Hollywood stars burst into lengthy applause as the visiting Middle East monarch paid tribute to Ford Thursday night after a tense four days in which Marines had been ordered to use force to rescue the ship and its 39 crew members.

The white-tie formal party broke loose into dancing, gaiety and extemporaneous performances led by singer Pearl Bailey, who was among the guests.

It had been what presidential assistant Donald Rumsfeld described at the party as "a bear" of a week in which Ford and his aides got little sleep.

The Shah, Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, helped to break the tension.

As Miss Bailey announced afterwards as she took over for some unprogrammed singing with Dionne Warwick: "How long since someone reached out their hand and said, 'American you are right.'"

The Shah never specifically mentioned the Cambodian incident in his dinner toast, but he told reporters "of course" he and Ford had discussed it in their formal meeting Thursday morning.

And he said he was glad to come to this country at a time when the United States was undergoing a reaffirmation of its belief in freedom and international law.

The Shah and his wife will give the Fords a reciprocal dinner at their embassy tonight.

Trade Embargo

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States declared a general trade embargo against South Vietnam and Cambodia today.

The Commerce Department placed the two nations in the same category for export licensing requirements as North Vietnam, North Korea and Cuba.

"The general embargo policy in effect for those countries is to deny licenses for any exports except where special humanitarian considerations are involved," a Commerce spokesman said.

The embargo amounts to an extension of a trade suspension imposed by the Treasury Department shortly after the two nations fell to insurgent forces. Treasury also froze the official U.S.-held assets of the two nations and the assets of citizens still in those countries.

INFO ABOUT PATIENTS

How can you get information on the condition of someone in the hospital when you can't go there yourself?

Jack Richardson, administrator of Pitt Memorial Hospital, said hospital policy does not allow the information to be given over the telephone. He said the hospital has no way of knowing who is calling. The only information given out is general, such as fair, satisfactory or critical.
Richardson said he feels a patient's condition is something between the doctor and the family. He explained the hospital tries to keep the family informed.

He said the intensive care unit has a procedure where they identify a person in the family and a nurse tries to call that person each morning to give a report on the patient's condition.

WANTS A TRANSFER

My teachers are always fussing at me. I want to go to another school, but can't. Is there anything else I can do? I am not quick at learning. M.W.

Glenn Cox, superintendent of the Greenville City Schools, said there is a procedure for requesting transfers. The parents have to pick up the forms from the Central Office and submit them to Cox. The situation will be investigated and a decision will be made as to whether or not the request can be honored. Cox also suggested that the child could talk to either the principal, guidance counselor or homeroom teacher about the situation. There are also school nurses and psychologists available to offer assistance.

FIRST AID

Is there a place in Greenville to get a course in first aid or artificial respiration? A.H.

Mrs. Ruth Taylor of the Pitt County Red Cross says you should contact the Red Cross if you are interested in these courses. First aid courses are taught throughout the year when enough people express interest in taking them. Artificial respiration is taught in some of the first aid courses, Mrs. Taylor said. The telephone number of the Red Cross is 752-4222.

Veterans Service Award Given ESC Office

By JERRY RAYNOR

Reflector Staff Writer
The Greenville office of the Employment Security Commission has been awarded the veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Award for Outstanding Service to Veterans during 1974. Presentation of the award took place Thursday night at the VFW building on East Mumford Road.

Billy Ray Cameron, North Carolina Commander-Elect for 1975 of the VFW presented the award to Employment Security Commission Manager Jim Hannan and Ken Taylor, veterans representative of the employment office.

"Greenville was chosen the winner because of its total staff effort in the veterans program," Cameron said. "This office carried on an effective publicity campaign with the entire staff participating and fully cooperating with all community organizations toward helping veterans find employment."

The annual award is given to the employment office in North Carolina based on achievement in processing and counseling veterans and finding them employment.

Cameron cited figures showing that the Greenville office had placed 414 veterans in gainful employment, representing a 31 per cent placement rate. This figure, noted, included placement of 55 handicapped veterans and 240 Vietnam era veterans.

"You will note," Cameron said, "that the Greenville office placed more than one of every two veterans who filed applications with the office." In contrast, Cameron said, "the national average shows one of four veterans filing applications were placed."

"In presenting this award,"

Cameron concluded, "we recognize the entire local office staff. I present it to the Greenville office for a job well done and for an award richly deserved."

Leon Evans, Commander of the Greenville Post of the veterans of Foreign Wars, presided over the meeting and introduced Commander-Elect Cameron.

In comments which Cameron made following the award ceremony, and which the state commander-elect said

"represent my own personal views and not those of the VFW," Cameron, in reference to the recent action taken to recover the "Mayaguez" ship seized by the Cambodians said: "I certainly commend President Ford and members of Congress who backed the president on this action. It is one of the best moves

Interior Designer Says Homes Should Express

By DOROTHY MARKS
WASHINGTON WNS—With hard times ahead, Americans will be going out and going away less and enjoying their homes more, says Alexandra Stoddard, who is of the firm opinion every man's home should be his castle. Figuratively, not literally, she hastens to add.

The theme of how to make "home, sweet home" the center of one's activities in a recession-rocked world recurs frequently nowadays. But it is not a new obsession with Mrs. Stoddard. This 33-year-old interior designer has spent the last eight years of her life writing an inspirational text on the subject — "Style for Living: How to Make Where You Live You."

"How much you enjoy your home depends on how much of yourself you pour into it. Now, more than ever it is important to create a sympathetic environment in the place we live. Our homes should express what we are, what we consider important," Mrs. Stoddard said in an interview here.

"I can't bear decorators who just try to sell things or throw things out that don't fit into their particular schemes for you. I don't believe in a particular look or a particular style," Mrs. Stoddard is dedicated to this thesis, but not to the point of saying decorators can't help you get it all together. Although her firm, MacMillan & Co. of New York City, has had prestigious clients, the reader won't find Mrs. Stoddard name-dropping. Nor will she find full color photographs of the Duke of Marlborough's library or Christina Ford's drawing room. In fact, she won't find any photographs at all, just pleasant pastel drawings to illustrate chapter headings.

"My book is not a coffee table book, it was written to be read — and reread," Mrs. Stoddard insists. "Yes, it is probably most helpful to young persons starting out to plan their first homes or apartments or rented rooms. But it is also what I call a primer to help anyone make aesthetic decisions." What has pleased and surprised her is that other decorators like Billy Baldwin, Michael Greer and Sister Parrish who have written coffee table books on decorating for the jet set, have heaped praise on her book.

Alexandra Stoddard's enthusiasm for her craft started early. The daughter of a mother who had interior design studios in Massachusetts and Connecticut, she never considered another profession even when she became a top-seeded tennis player on the New England circuit. She scrapped plans for Smith College at age 16 and moved to the New York School of Design. At 17, a relative took her on a tour of 32 world capitals where she first encountered Japanese architecture and got hooked on its restraint and clean, simple lines.

Prefers Natural Look
Although she doesn't subscribe to a particular style, she favors, as do many of her contemporaries at this point in time, "the natural look." She's against fancy draperies, prefers bare, polished or painted floors — or one vintage rug — to wall-to-wall carpeting. It took her several years to write Part I of her book, she says. It is an enthusiastic and comprehensive exploration of Place, You, Space and Value.

In parts II and III, she gets down to advice on handling walls, ceilings and on to specifics of individual rooms of the house. She rattled off some general bits of advice for those starting out. Go slow. Don't rush. Analyze your lifestyle and how you need to organize your space. If possible, get help from a decorator you trust and like to be around.

Don't buy expensive reproductions. It is better to buy a funky original at an auction or thrift shop or even to build your own makeshift version until you find what you want or can afford.

If you move into a house, take down every nail, curtain and picture hook. Start fresh. Remember, this house is to reflect you and no one else who has ever lived there.

Don't buy in quantity. And really love everything you buy. Don't settle for a "ho hum" purchase. People without a lot of money have more fun doing their homes because they have to really love what they buy.

Display your family memorabilia, your hobbies, your collections.

Polish your floors. Try cleaning up before you replace or cover anything. Use natural baskets, dried flowers. Make your rooms come alive with live vegetables and fruit.

Treat windows to let in the view and the light. Direct your natural lighting and let your unnatural light be indirect lighting.

If you have a space problem, consider first whether you need a dining room only for dining.

Use color to express yourself. Changing colors is the most economical way to express what you wish to convey. Remember, every room can stand a touch of yellow.

Husband Ignores Suicide Threat

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife attempted suicide (with pills) twice. Both times she came running to me to tell me what she had done, so I rushed her to the hospital to have her stomach pumped.

She pulled that stunt again, and I refused to take her to the hospital because I wanted to teach her a lesson. She was very sick on the third try, but she was able to telephone her sister who rushed over and took her to the hospital. Of course, like the first two times, she survived.

Now my wife is barely speaking to me. She accuses me of wanting her dead. That's not true, Abby. If I had wanted her dead, I wouldn't have rushed her to the hospital the first two times. On the third try, I felt that I had to teach her a lesson. Was I wrong?

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: Yes. An attempted suicide is a desperate cry for help. I hope your wife is getting professional help to investigate the underlying reasons for her suicidal behavior. She may make yet another attempt—and succeed, just to teach YOU a lesson.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have a problem. We both graduated from high school in 1965. Her school is in the city in which we are presently living and mine is in a town 250 miles from here.

By coincidence, both high schools are having their 10th reunion on the same evening! My wife says that she will not miss her class reunion no matter what, and I feel the same way about mine.

We have had all sorts of advice on how to settle it, but we want to know how you'd solve it.

BILL IN ATLANTA

DEAR BILL: Simple. I'd go to my class reunion, and let my husband go to his.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband's snoring. I am a very light sleeper, and he snores so loud that I can't sleep.

I have tried waking him up and asking him to turn over on his side, but that doesn't work. As soon as he's asleep, he rolls over on his back and starts to snore again.

I don't want to start taking pills to make me sleep, and I don't want to have to go into my little boy's room as I have done on several occasions.

My husband was in a hospital two months ago, and he was in a ward because that's all we could afford. Well, he snored so bad they had to move him into a private room at no extra cost to us because he was keeping everybody in the ward awake.

Can you help me?

LIGHT SLEEPER

DEAR LIGHT: Your husband should see an ear, nose and throat doctor. Some snorers can be cured with minor surgery. If he can't, try ear plugs for yourself.

CONFIDENTIAL TO S.J.L.: Make a mental note of it. You can tell a great deal about a person by observing how he treats someone who can't do him any good.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Mrs. Eagan Gives Program Tuesday Night

A program on educational trends entitled "Old Wine in New Bottles" was presented during a dinner meeting of the Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Tuesday. The meeting was held at the Farmville United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Elsie Eagan presented the program, pointing out that educational trends repeat in cycles with new names. She said new terms and ideas about education including the open classroom, "multi-age grouping," and "Integrated Day," began in the early 1960's when American educators observed such operations in Britain.

The ideas are more than educational terms, Mrs. Eagan added, calling them a philosophy of education.

Mrs. Eagan went to Europe in 1971 with the International Early Childhood Study Group, visiting classrooms in Germany; Athens, Greece; Israel and England.

Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, president, welcomed the group and recognized the following new members: Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, Mrs. Joyce Lewis, Mrs. Mary Murrell, Mrs. Pat Sheperd, and Miss Ella Tucker Smith, honorary member.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wilkerson led in singing "Grace" before the buffet dinner, and the "Delta Kappa Gamma Song" as a benediction.

Mrs. Baker presided over the business session.

Supermarkets Are Changing

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

Grocery shoppers everywhere say they have changed their buying habits as a result of inflation and recession.

Supermarkets are changing, too. Progressive Grocer's 42nd annual report on the grocery industry sees six trends, all of which affect shoppers in one way or another. Higher energy costs get passed on in higher grocery prices. So does shrinkage, the industry term for pilferage by customers and employees. The magazine found it now accounts for one cent out of every dollar in sales.

Stores are getting fewer deliveries from vendors and warehouses and less help from manufacturers, including smaller amounts of merchandising and display material, fewer deals with allowances offered and lower value deals and allowances offered.

In a nationwide study, 88 per cent of the chains polled by the magazine foresee cuts in the number of items stocked in both stores and warehouses.

After years of building larger and larger stores, some chains now are planning smaller ones. A small New England chain said it is reducing new store size 20 to 30 per cent to save energy. A Southeastern company also is thinking small, because "it costs as much to build a 24,000-square-foot store now as it did a 30,000 two years ago."

In even the largest self-service stores, customers are increasingly finding employees to talk with, to get help from. One chain offers freebies to customers who are not spoken to by store personnel: a head of lettuce in produce, a pound of hamburger in the meat department or a light bulb elsewhere in the store.

"When a new employee doesn't respond, the first free item that goes to a customer is on us; from then on it's on the employee," a sales executive told the magazine. Unresponsive employees lose their jobs.

Another chain has a consumer hot line, a phone connected to a tape recorder to take comments, complaints, suggestions.

Still another provides consumer suggestion and complaint cards and requires store managers to call customers personally in response.

Many chains now have consumer representatives and home economists who appear in newspaper and television ads and in stores to talk with customers, give out recipes and answer questions.

Consumer attitude research showed women want more than just food prices in supermarket ads. A California chain now offers complete meal menus on a cost-per-serving basis of 73 cents to $1.16 per serving for main course, vegetable and dessert.

A three-store Tennessee chain advertises comparison shopping statistics, chiefly customer savings averaging five to seven per cent.

A large midwestern chain ran an ad with 87 couponed items that could save as much as $18.30 on a week's grocery bill.

More and more ads promote home cooking in an obvious attempt to lure families away from fast food, take-out eateries.

Example: a double page newspaper ad containing seven days of budget menus based on national brands. The ad also pointed out that coupons and private label ingredients could lower the costs still more.

The extent to which all this has changed shopping habits is disputed. A consumer survey by Progressive Grocer and the Home Testing Institute showed 55 per cent of the stores but only 44 per cent of the shoppers agree that coupons are the most popular way of saving money on food budgets.

Four out of ten stores said shopping around for specials was the second major change, but only 29 per cent of the shoppers said they followed this practice. The shoppers said their number two inflation-fighting habit was cutting down on nonfood purchases.

Thirty-seven per cent said of the consumers said they were changing to store brands, but only 13 per cent of store managers or operators said they'd observed this change.

Twenty-six per cent of consumers said they were buying less meat; only 16 per cent of store managers agreed.

Good Chance For Howard Lee

Chapel Hill Mayor Howard Lee has announced that he will not be a candidate for reelection as mayor and instead will seek the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Lee was the first black mayor of a predominantly white Southern city, and is concluding his third term as mayor of Chapel Hill.

In making his announcement last week Lee said he felt he had a "better than even chance" to become lieutenant governor. "I've had some good contacts around the state," he said. "I've been contacted voluntarily by a number of political party leaders who feel this is my time and who have pledged to me their support." Lee indicated some conservative Easterners had been friendly to his candidacy.

Howard Lee has a good record as mayor of Chapel Hill, which has to be a tough a town as any in the state to serve as mayor. At the same time he has been a staunch party regular in the Democratic organization.

Blacks are noticeably lacking in the high elective offices of North Carolina, but this may well work in Lee's favor in the coming primary. North Carolina has been under attack recently for racism, more often than not with the criticism coming from areas which can ill afford to toss the barbs.

Nevertheless the criticism has stung most of us and at a time when many white North Carolinians are re-examining their racial attitudes, there could be an opportunity for a black candidate who possesses Lee's qualifications.

A lot will depend on who the other candidates are in the lieutenant governor's race, of course, but there is no doubt that Howard Lee is a candidate who can be taken seriously.

$400,000 Effort For Wesleyan College Aid

The North Carolina United Methodist Conference has pledged to raise $400,000 in addition to its normal support for N. C. Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount.

An editorial Wednesday incorrectly stated the amount. Rocky Mount is attempting to raise $825,000 in the efforts to save the college.

Kenneth Hite of Greenville is chairman of the division on higher education for the North Carolina Conference, which recommended the additional support.

THIS AFTERNOON Reading Program Pushed

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—A concentrated assault on reading problems in the public schools of North Carolina may be hamstrung by lack of money in current recessionary times, but that should be no excuse for doing nothing, Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., believes.

Hunt, in his capacity as lieutenant governor presides over the State Senate, and sits as a member of the State Board of Education. He is pushing hard for state and local school people for get moving on a reading program "to the limit of availability."

It is clear that the General Assembly is not going to present a bundle of money for the effort: at first school officials sought $27 million for the coming two fiscal years; the governor and Advisory Budget Commission trimmed that to $8.2 million; reasonable guesses now put the figure at between $2 million and $2.5 million.

Still, there are those experts who rejected the upper figures as "throwing money at the problem" anyhow, and think the job can be done within present budgets and programs of the school system.

Early Grades

The key to building a strong reading program, says State School Supt. A. Craig Phillips, is in grades one through three, following a successful kindergarten experience.

Phillips and his staff think that present reading efforts are successful for about 60 per cent of the children; another 20 per cent experience difficulty, but do well enough to progress through school; while another 20 per cent do not achieve.

"Those having severe emotional and related problems, those with unique handicaps in attaining sound and letter sensitivity, those coming from impoverished background, (for them) the current program is not effective," reading experts have reported to the State Board of Education.

Translated into people, the 40 per cent who have trouble learning to read represent well over half a million Tar Heel children currently enrolled in public schools.

Phillips, at the last meeting of the State Board of Education, sought renewed endorsement by the board of the $8.2 million figure, and presented a proposed program for grades one through three which his staff said would mean that "the goal of success for every child can definitely be realized."

Hunt came back with an alternate proposal—all available funds should be devoted to a reading effort under a systematic plan, but he argued that if the $8.2 million were insisted upon, "they would say to me, 'Jim Hunt... have you lost your mind?'"

Afterward, Hunt was obviously irritated by continued insistence of educators on massive funds to carry out what he considers the essential role of the public schools in the early grades.

Get Moving

For years, he said, educators have argued about the need for reading programs, how to carry them out, and how much they cost. "Why can't we get moving on this? We just keep talking instead of taking action," he said.

Reading, he thinks, should be firmly established as the number one priority at the state level, and in local schools; and waiting on massive funds is no excuse for not getting started, he believes.

"Right now, today, we still have not established a commitment to take a certain approach... and whatever money we can get needs to be applied and utilized in this

Benefit Boost In July

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-five million Americans on Social Security or adult welfare will begin receiving an 8 per cent benefit increase in July, although President Ford considers the increase inflationary.

Checks for retirees will be $7.60 to $37 fatter although Supplemental Security Income recipients in about half the states may not see the extra money if states do not act to pass it along.

Among retired males more than 65 years old, the 8 per cent will add $7.60 to the minimum monthly benefit of $93.80, $16 to the average benefit of $184 and $25.40 to the maximum benefit of $316.30.

Among couples, the maximum increase would be $37 for a total of $511.

The maximum monthly federal SSI benefit will go up $11.70 to $157.70 for individuals and up $17.60 to $236.60 for couples.

Social Security taxes will not be affected by the benefits increase.

The 8 per cent increase was promulgated by Caspar W. Weinberger, secretary of health, education and welfare, on Thursday after Congress had failed to act on the President's request last February to limit the increase to 5 per cent this year.

Weinberger said the 8 per cent will cost $5.7 billion in the fiscal year starting July 1. This will add $2.2 billion to Ford's proposed budget deficit of $60 billion. The President had budgeted $3.5 billion for Social Security benefits under his 5 per cent proposal.

The 8 per cent increase "will be making a substantial addition to the already large federal budget deficit," Weinberger said.

"I fear this will add additional inflationary pressures to the economy, and inflation unfortunately hurts people of low income more than of any other group," he said in a statement.

The 8 per cent increase was based on the difference between the average monthly increase in the Consumer Price Index in the second quarter of 1974 and the first quarter of 1975. It is the first automatic cost-of-living increase under a 1972 law.

Increases for 31.3 million Social Security recipients will take effect in June, payable in July 3 checks, and for 4 million Supplemental Security Income recipients payable in checks beginning July 1.

By ART BUCHWALD A Marriage In Trouble

WASHINGTON—As if Washington did not have enough to worry about, it now, for the umpteenth time, is sweating out consummation of the marriage between its two pet pandas, Hsing-Hsing and Ling-Ling. Everyone knows that those of us who live in the capital are a long-suffering people, but we're all losing patience with Hsing-Hsing who either doesn't know, or doesn't care, about fulfilling his role as a husband and a father.

Zoo officials have indicated that Ling-Ling not only has been ready but eager to have a baby panda. But she has been unable to get Hsing-Hsing into the hay.

The people in this town are so upset about this state of affairs that they have raised a fund to hire a sex therapist to see if he could do something about Hsing-Hsing's hang-ups.

His name is Dr. Newlove and he studied under Masters and Johnson before he decided to specialize in sex therapy for pandas.

Dr. Newlove agreed to talk, but warned he would say nothing to violate a physician-patient relationship.

"I would say Hsing-Hsing is my most interesting case. If you look into his family history, he suffered from an overbearing Mandarin mother and a weak Cantonese father. He also was born right after the Cultural Revolution in China when making love was denounced as a capitalist bourgeois activity to distract the masses. This left a lot of scars on Hsing-Hsing."

"How do you plan to treat him?" I asked the good doctor.

"Slowly," he replied.

"Why don't you set up a television set in Hsing-Hsing's cage and show x-rated movies?"

"I know you're not going to believe this," Dr. Newlove said, "but pandas do not get turned on by human beings making love. The few times we've shown erotic films to pandas they started throwing orange peels at each other."

"It figures," I said.

"The ideal thing," he said, "would be to get some films of pandas making love to each other, but the only ones who have them are the Chinese and they won't give them to us until we let them take back Taiwan."

The N.C. SCENE The Cash Just Isn't There

By JOHN KILGO

The North Carolina Legislature will struggle from now until day of adjournment over what to do about financing higher education in this state.

State Senator Livingstone Stallings says almost apologetically: "People have got to realize that we've got to cut this budget. Money isn't available this year to do a lot of the things we'd like to do."

Stallings' subcommittee on appropriations is the one that first recommended increasing tuition at state-supported campuses. This has brought cries of anguish from students and college administrators alike.

Says State Senator Jim McDuffie: "The pressure is mounting over this higher education controversy. (Sen.) Ralph Scott says the people want to build a med school at East Carolina University. I disagree. I think we should put it to a vote of the people, but when I suggested that, I thought Sen. (Tom) Strickland was going to fall out of his chair. He says we've gone too far on the ECU matter to backtrack. I personally can't see where putting it to a vote of the people would be backtracking."

The legislators are now hearing from those who support the University at Chapel Hill. Those supporting UNC-CH say suggested cuts of the University's budget will severely cripple an institution that has long been one of the state's proudest assets.

How about the move to increase tuition at state-supported universities? The legislators are being bombarded with mail from people opposed to this move, predicting all kinds of ill consequences.

"I have some letters from people who say they'll have to drop out of college if this increase goes through," Sen. McDuffie says. "I have a hard time believing that the small increase that has been recommended would hurt as bad as some people are saying. We have a shortage of funds. This is one way of raising a little more money. It's not the perfect way, but no one has said that it was."

Those who endorse the state-supported institutions are also against the state raising aid to private colleges. The state is planning to raise that pledge from $200 per needy North Carolina student in a private college to $400.

Duke President Terry Sanford has urged the Legislature to increase state aid to the private schools. He

What happens when we run out of oil and natural gas or, as is likely to happen first, they become prohibitively expensive?

No need to panic, says one authority. We have a renewable resource that can replace them—at least to a degree—and one that was, in fact, the traditional source for synthetic goods until the advent of cheap oil and gas: Wood.

All the essential chemical building blocks to make such things as plastics and synthetic rubber can be derived from wood, noted Dr. Irving S. Goldstein of North Carolina State University's school of forest resources in a paper presented at the recent 169th annual meeting of the American Chemical Society in Philadelphia.

"From a chemical point of view," he says, "the molecules don't remember where they came from."

The United States currently produces 18 million tons of synthetic materials a year, consuming between 3 and 5 per cent of all the petroleum used in the country. It would take roughly 50 million tons of wood to replace oil as the basis of the petrochemical industry, Goldstein estimates.

Not only is timber a renewable resource, the type of wood needed is low-grade timber, which exists in abundance. Much of it is now discarded in pulp factories.

Technically, wood could also be converted into fuel. The processing wood alcohol is an ancient art. In research by the Bureau of Mines, wood was successfully converted into an oil that compared well with crude oil, both economically and chemically.

But while we have enough timber to meet the needs of the petrochemical industry, Goldstein doubts that there is enough to take the place of petroleum for fuel.

It might be a good idea to start planting trees, anyway.

Opinions

"Coal and oil are strictly limited in quantity. We can take the coal out of a mine but we can never put it back. We can draw oil from subterranean reservoirs, but we can never refill them again. Alcohol makes a beautiful, clean and efficient fuel and can be manufactured very cheaply." —Alexander Graham Bell in 1917.

"Are those who love the birds and bees, willing to sit in the dark and freeze?" —Wall Street Journal.

Lack Of Planning Is Apparent

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—So vast are some of the immediate economic issues in the United States today that some of the longer term, but very important, considerations fail to get the exposure they deserve.

One of these is the matter of economic planning. The very term long has been associated with socialism, and so its presence on the agenda of Congress already has some conservatives in a lather.

But many of the advocates of planning are themselves conservatives. Some are prominent businessmen. Many are economists with a bias toward free enterprises. Some hate planning, but fear that the opposite means chaos.

If any one thing brings together the advocates of planning it is their realization that the nation has reached a point where it seems to bump along from one crisis to another in a very chaotic, costly, dangerous way.

Such a situation wouldn't be tolerated by any successful business. Instead, the best brains in the company would work out their capital expectations, anticipated labor needs and raw material requirements for years ahead.

Legislation now has been introduced to create a national economic planning system that would try to overcome short-sightedness, and perhaps more importantly, limit the contradictions that now appear in public policy.

Wassily Leontief, Noble Prize winning economist, explained the need by comparing the economy to an engine with moving parts that need to be kept in tune and which sometimes needs replacements.

"It requires lifting the hood, observing and if

Strength For Today

NO LITTLE CROWNS

When the multitude in Jesus's day wanted to make him a king, he fled to the mountains. He was too big for the little crown they wanted to put on his head. They wanted to make him king of the Jews; his desire was for all the kingdoms of the world, and he was willing that a crown of thorns be put on his brow if that was the only way he could win men to his spiritual kingdom.

He is still too big for the little crowns we want to put upon him. All efforts to make Jesus more intelligible to modern man are, of course, commendable, but many of these efforts cheapen him. There are some who would like to put on his brow merely the crown of wisdom; others—the "Jesus Freaks"—would make him into an oriental swami; still others would make him the God of their own creed and the enemy of other creeds.

But the Jesus of the Bible defies all attempts to make him something less than he is, the divine son of God and the savior of mankind.

necessary adjusting the operation of all moving parts of the engine and occasionally replacing those that turn out to be defective," he said.

Another long-term problem involves the in-out flow of money from the savings institutions. If it continues, and there are great fears that it will, the dependent housing industry will continue to operate in peaks and valleys.

It is, you might say, a matter that can only be overcome by planning ahead. But that planning, although talked about and promised, never seems to develop.

STOKES — Mrs. Elizabeth Cobb Williams, author of The Silent Bell, was a guest speaker at Stokes-Pactolus Grammar School recently. The event was sponsored by the library classes of the school.

Her book is a true story of her early life on a farm in the Belvoir Township of Pitt County during the Depression.

Following her talk, the students asked Mrs. Williams questions about the Depression years and compared them with the economic situation of today.

A resident of Robersonville, Mrs. Williams attended Conetoe School. She is married to J. W. Williams and they have one daughter.

Mrs. Williams is featured in this week's issue of TV Guide and will appear on Hospitality House on May 18, WITN-TV.

The Silent Bell has been entered in competition for the Sir Walter Raleigh Award which is presented by the North Carolina Literary and Historical Society. The book has just been published and is available at local book stores.

TVA Costs Rise Again

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Electricity bills will go up again next month as the Tennessee Valley Authority's monthly fuel cost escalator adjustment adds between 22 per cent and 28 per cent, TVA officials report.

Since last August, when TVA began applying the monthly adjustment based on the rising cost of coal, the extra stipend will climb in June to $3.93 per 1,000 kilowatt hours to residential customers, the agency said.

The June adjustment is 85 cents per 1,000 kilowatt hours more than the extra charge included in bills mailed during May. Agency officials said the June adjustment is based on the cost of coal burned at its 12 steam plants in April.

TVA's average valley-wide R2 rate is $18.28 for 1,000 KWH. With the June adjustment, the bill for a customer who burns only 1,000 KWH will be $22.21—an increase of about 22 per cent.

Customers who use 3,000 KWH with an R2 base rate of $46.02 will be paying $57.81, a hike of about 25 per cent.

For heavy customers who use 6,000 KWH, the base rate of $82.73 will mean a bill of $106.31, a boost of about 28 per cent.

Plan Observance Of Men's Day

Men's Day will be observed at Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

The Rev. C. C. Craig, assistant field director of the Baptist Headquarters of Raleigh, will be the guest speaker.

Deacon James T. Vines and Moses Clemons are co-chairmen of the event.

The public is invited to attend.

Gospel-Singing Sunday Night

A gospel singing will be held at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church Sunday evening at 7:30.

The Gospel Chargers of Winterville will be the guest singers.

The church is located on the corner of Brinkley Road at Plaza Drive. The public is invited to attend.

Asserts U.S. 'Overreacted'

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP)—A peace worker likens use of military force by the United States to recover the Mayaguez to a man's beating up of a smaller opponent unnecessarily because he is "not sure of his virility."

The Rev. Bill Jeffries, director of peace education for the Quaker-sponsored antiwar American Friends Service Committee (AFSC), made the comparison Thursday in an interview in his hometown of High Point.

Jeffries, who returned recently from a trip to Hanoi, said the United States had overreacted in using force to recover the merchant ship and its crew from Cambodia.

"It is a symptom of the fact that this administration is wanting to find a way to lash out and prove to the world it still can use military means, that it is not a paper tiger," Jeffries said.

Jeffries arrived in Hanoi on April 30 within an hour after Saigon had surrendered to Communist-led forces.

He said his impression was that the North Vietnamese and the Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) in South Vietnam "would be interested and are open to relations with the United States. They want to be conciliatory and are not interested in humiliating the U.S."

Jeffries has prepared a memo for U.S. congressmen. It says the North Vietnamese and the PRG "seem open to a pragmatic approach, not making demands but being conciliatory, seeking primary the ending of U.S. animosity and the respect of their independence and sovereignty."

Fellowship For Honors Student

Joel G. Hancock, 1974-75 Brewster Scholar in History at East Carolina University, has received a graduate assistant fellowship at the University of Kentucky for next year. Hancock will complete requirements for the MA degree in history at ECU this summer.

Hancock is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie W. Hancock of Harkers Island. He is married to the former Susan Leggett of Greenville. He is a 1970 graduate of East Carteret High School at Beaufort.

With the $3,000 fellowship at Kentucky, Hancock plans to pursue doctoral studies in history. He will go to Lexington, Ky., to begin work at UK in late August.

Special music will be presented at each service by the Youth and Junior Choirs of the church and visiting choirs.

The Pastor, Horace G. Thompson, extends an invitation to the public.

Andrews Is Recipient

Paul M. Andrews, an ECU student from Wilson, has received the university's "Outstanding Environmental Health Senior Award."

The award is presented annually by the ECU Department of Environmental Health under the School of Allied Health and Social Profession. It is dependent upon recommendations of faculty and graduating seniors.

Dr. Trenton Davis, chairman of the Department of Environmental Health, praised Andrews for his scholastic achievement, his contributions to the Student National Environmental Health Association and his involvement in special projects.

Davis said that Andrews was instrumental in organizing the ECU student chapter of the National Environmental Health Association which was chartered in October of 1974.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John (Chic) Andrews of Wilson, Andrews completed the requirements for his degree in March and is presently employed as an environmental sanitarian with the Pitt County Health Department.

A good umbrella keeps you dry—unless the wind starts blowing. In this case, you are bound to get soaking wet!

There is really no such thing as total protection; neither in an umbrella nor in living through just one day. There are all sorts of windstorms, and they sweep into our lives and upset the best made plans. When this happens there is no such thing as finding an umbrella under which to hide.

Since life is so complicated, each of us has to learn to face it in his own way. Those with a strong and unshakable faith are the lucky ones. They have gained a sense of proportion and basic values through their church. And they didn't just "get" faith! They had to start looking for it. YOU do, too. And where? In church, of course!

ERA Referendum Bill Clears Committee In House

RALEIGH (AP) — A House committee reported out a bill to call a statewide referendum on the Equal Rights Amendment but bills to allow below cost milk sales and set up no-fault automobile insurance did not fare so well before House panels Thursday.

The House Election Laws Committee sent the ERA referendum measure to the floor without prejudice. Representatives voted 8-4 to send the bill out for debate by the full House.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Robert Jones, D-Rutherford, an ERA opponent, would set up a referendum on the issue in the next statewide primary. The House Constitutional Amendments Committee earlier killed an ERA referendum bill sponsored by Rep. Ralph Prestwood, D-Caldwell.

House Speaker James Green ruled that Jones' measure could be considered because it differed from Prestwood's bill, which would have scheduled the referendum for the next general election.

The House defeated ERA last month and opponents hope to hurt its chances in future legislative sessions by getting a strong negative vote in a referendum.

Dairymen scored a victory in the House Agriculture Committee when the committee killed a bill offered by Gov. Jim Holshouser's administration to allow below-cost milk sales. Rep. Robert Falls, D-Cleveland, a former dairy farmer, told the committee that allowing leader sales would eventually hurt the dairy farmer.

The House Insurance Committee killed a no-fault bill sponsored by Rep. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, that would have established a "threshold" system. Under the proposal, a driver would collect from his own insurance company without regard to fault, unless damages exceeded a "threshold" of $2,000.

A no-fault bill offered by Sen. Bob Barker, D-Wake, won approval in the Senate Insurance Committee. The measure provides an "add-on," requiring motorists to purchase no-fault medical and disability policies in addition to basic liability coverage.

The policies would cover damages up to $1,000 and after that the current tort liability system would be retained, so damages could be won by proving the other driver at fault.

Lawing said the "add-on" concept has produced higher rates in states that tried it, notably South Carolina.

A House Judiciary Committee killed a bill that would have required pharmacists to reveal prescription drug prices to consumers who request the information in person or over the telephone. Pharmacists argued that it would be unreasonable for them to be required to give prices over the phone.

Sponsor of the measure, Rep. Ruth Cook, D-Wake, said she could not understand the opposition, because many druggists already reveal prices on the telephone.

A recent study by the North Carolina Public Interest Research Group showed that drug prices vary widely from store to store and many pharmacists are unwilling to reveal prices.

Bankers succeeded in defeating a bill that would have prohibited them from selling fire and casualty insurance. The House Insurance Committee voted 13-10 to kill the bill, which was favored by the state's insurance agents.

The measure would have prohibited banks from selling insurance on homes for which they loan money. The insurance agents said the practice was unfair competition.

Corporate stockholders also won a battle Thursday as only a watered-down version of a bill to close a tax loophole won approval in the Senate Finance Committee.

Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, originally introduced a measure to end the income tax exemption on dividends paid by North Carolina companies. But he "faced the political reality" of lobbying by business interests against repeal of the loophole and offered a weaker substitute bill.

The substitute measure, which cleared the committee, continues the exemption for up to $15,000 a year. Above that figure, dividend income becomes taxable.

Meanwhile, legislators were told that the state's budget shortfall would be about $240 million, some $8 million more than predicted last month. State Budget Officer Kenneth Howard said, however, that the recession has "bottomed out" and that "recovery has begun."

Howard said that a tax cut which allows working taxpayers an income tax deduction for the care of dependents accounted for the increase in the shortfall.

Democratic legislative leaders lost their battle to halt construction of a $3.8 million laundry at Goldsboro to serve state mental institutions in the area. Efforts to rush through legislation to temporarily freeze unobligated state construction funds failed in the House.

The House voted 56-54 to approve the impoundment bill, but backers could not muster the two-thirds majority needed to suspend the rules and give the measure final consideration.

The House leaders also lacked the two-thirds majority needed to obtain immediate consideration of a Senate-passed measure directed only at the Goldsboro laundry.

Gov. Holshouser had said he would give the legislature until 5 p.m. Thursday to pass legislation halting the laundry, then contracts would be awarded.

The Senate was due to give final consideration today to a bill to expand the area of the New River protected under the state's natural and scenic river system. It is part of an effort to block a power project on the river in Virginia.

The measure won tentative approval Thursday on a 34-3 roll call. Sponsored by Sen. George Marion, D-Surry, it would include 28.5 miles of the New River in the scenic river system. The 1974 General Assembly had placed 1.5 miles of the stream in the system. Backers of the bill hope that if the South Fork of the river in Alleghany and Ashe Counties is protected by the state, that the federal government will include the New River in its wild and scenic river system Federal protection would prevent construction of the dam, which would flood 40,000 acres in North Carolina.

Track Coach Talks At Ruritan Meeting

WINTERVILLE — William S. Carson, track coach at East Carolina University, spoke to the members of the Winterville Ruritan Club Tuesday night.

He explained that eight years ago track was a very unorganized sport in Eastern North Carolina.

He pointed out that interest in track and field events has grown rapidly in the university area during the past few years.

According to Carson, recruiting at ECU has been largely from other regions, but he predicted that most of next season's recruiting would take place in the eastern part of the state.

The guest speaker was introduced by J. L. Keeter, chairman of the program committee.

Barry Purser, a member of the D. H. Conley wrestling team, was introduced by Ronald Carroll. Carroll explained that Purser has been selected by the North Carolina Amateur Athletic Union to be a member of a team of 12 boys from North Carolina who will go to Europe this summer on a cultural exchange trip.

They will tour Spain, Germany and France.

Purser is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Travis Purser of Winterville and is a senior at Conley.

Tony Moore was inducted into the club by Kay Dunn, vice president of the club. Zone Governor H. D. Weaver asked the club to make an effort to secure several new members during this year. He explained that Ruritan National is striving to reach a goal of 50,000 members.

President J. H. Mobley presided during the meeting.

Motorcyclist Is Injured In Crash

Jay Wilson Dillon of 1506 Mills St. was reported injured here Wednesday when the motorcycle he was riding collided with an auto about 3:00 p.m. on Tenth Street, 25 feet East of the Monroe Drive intersection.

Officers charged Mary Taylor Everett of Robersonville, the driver of the car involved, with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Investigators estimated damage at $250 to the Everett car and $750 to the Dillon motorcycle.

Break-In And Investigate A Theft At Home

Pitt deputies are investigating a break-in that occurred sometime Thursday at an area home that resulted in the theft of some $1,535 worth of equipment.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Kenneth Elton Carraway of 106 Fairwood Lane in Oakdale Subdivision reported that his home was entered yesterday while he was away from 7 a.m. until 7:30 p.m.

Carraway reported the theft of a citizen's band radio, a 16-channel police scanner, two speakers, and a turntable.

The sheriff said that entrance to the home was apparently gained through an unlocked window. No damage to the house was reported.

Revival Series Begins Sunday

Revival services will be held at Carson Memorial Pentecostal Holiness Church beginning Sunday night and continuing through May 24 at 7:30.

The guest speaker will be Rev. J. Hubert Thompson of Goldsboro, ordained minister of the North Carolina Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church.

The pastor of the church is Calvin Seymour.

Call Meeting On Saturday

Elder Grover, Payton, moderator of the Tar River Primitive Baptist Association and pastor of Paul's Chapel Church, Rt. 1, Greenville, announces a call meeting will be held for the members of Paul's Chapel Saturday at 4:30 p.m.

Important business will be discussed.

Rev. Blount To Preach Sunday

The Rev. P.T. Blount, pastor of Union Grove F.W.B. Church, will preach at Burney's Chapel F.W.B. Church, Black Jack, Sunday at 6 p.m.

The program, sponsored by the deacons of the church, is one in a series of Sunday afternoon services in support of the annual Woman's Day service in June.

Safety In Farm Ponds Urged By Rob't Little

"With summer coming on, we need to think about safety in connection with our farm ponds," Robert G. Little of Route 1, Grimesland, chairman of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District, said today.

"Most farm ponds are relatively accessible to people, and we see a lot of them coming to catch fish. In summer, many young people also use ponds for swimming and sometimes put boats in the water, either for fishing or other recreational uses," the chairman continued.

He pointed out that North Carolina has an excellent safety record on such ponds, even though more than 66,000 ponds have been built with assistance from the Soil Conservation Service. Ponds are still being built at a rate of several hundred a year.

Chairman Little said that Pitt County itself has 1450 ponds, located in all parts of the county. While most are installed for irrigation, livestock water, sediment retention or farm water supply—including fire protection—almost all have recreational use as well.

"Since people are attracted to them, landowners need safety rules which should be understood by all who use these ponds. People should not go swimming alone, or fishing from a boat unaccompanied. Small children should be carefully watched. Some farmers have had to put up fences around their ponds, but this is usually not necessary if other safety precautions are observed," the chairman concluded.

"Let's enjoy a safe and pleasant summer together."

The Soil Conservation Service is distributing a bulletin to farm pond owners who request one, entitled "Make Your Farm Pond Safe, Prevent Drownings."

Wreck Kills 4 Brownies

FOWLER, Colo. (AP) — Four Brownie scouts are dead and six others in the hospital after the collision of a station wagon and a truck about three miles east of here on U.S. 50.

The Colorado State Patrol said 11 scouts and two adults were traveling by station wagon to an afternoon outing Thursday. The station wagon was struck in the rear by a semitrailer grain truck attempting to pass, the patrol said.

Most of the passengers were thrown from the station wagon. Three of them were found on the opposite side of a railroad track which runs parallel to the highways.

The dead were identified as Kendi Lou Gunn, 7, Vicki Donovan, 6, Melinda Craft, 6, and Kelley Kesterson, 7, all of Fowler, Colo.

Three of the children hospitalized were in serious condition. The driver of the station wagon was treated and released.

OLD REPORTER DIES

CHICAGO (AP) — Leroy "Buddy" McHugh, 84, an old-time crime reporter who covered the St. Valentine's Day Massacre and was portrayed in the play "Front Page," died Thursday of a heart attack. He retired in 1963 from the Chicago American.

AT PIERCE FELLOWSHIP CLUB—Robert L. Martin of Bethel, a member of the Board of County Commissioners, talks with Dr. J.L. Winstead of Greenville, Ray Oglesby of Winterville and Wiley Gaskins of Grifton at the 53rd annual meeting of the John Pierce Fellowship Club held at Camp Contentment on the banks of Contentment Creek near Grifton Wednesday. Martin was elected vice president of the fellowship club for the coming year while Sam Bundy of Farmville was elected president, succeeding Oglesby who served as head of the group for the past year. Kirby Smith of Ayden was re-elected secretary of the club.

Aver Medicare Is Overcharged

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security Administration says the Medicare program has been overcharged $27 million by doctors, hospitals and nursing homes over the last five years.

About half that amount had been recovered by the end of 1974 and the balance remained outstanding, agency witnesses said Thursday to a House panel probing fraud and abuse in the budget of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Emphasizing that most cases involve abuse rather than criminal fraud, the witnesses said only a small percentage of alleged violations investigated resulted in convictions.

Frank D. DeGeorge, acting associate commissioner for management, said only 72 Social Security cases ended in conviction last year out of 11,678 investigated by the agency and 1,328 referred to U.S. attorneys.

One reason for the low conviction rate is that "disabled and elderly people do not generally gain the wrath of the U.S. attorney as criminals," he said.

A recent exception was an elderly man in California who said he had just returned from an extended stay out of the country and then allegedly applied at least 15 times under different identities for Supplemental Security Income benefits, DeGeorge said.

An investigation revealed that the man had spent 30 years in a U.S. prison for first-degree murder, DeGeorge said. The man is being held in lieu of $150,000 bond.

Social Security's Bureau of Health Insurance investigated 3,928 cases, 2,489 involving alleged fraud and 1,439 alleged abuse by physicians and providers, but referred only 55 to U.S. attorneys who convicted 28.

Robert D. O'Connor, an assistant bureau director, said the major areas of Medicare fraud and abuse in decreasing order are: doctors billing for services not rendered, hospitals and nursing homes billing for services not rendered, misrepresentation, duplicate billing and forgery of checks.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined gradually but steadily today in a carry-over of the profit taking that set in on Thursday.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 7.51 at 841.29 after a 9.93 drop on Thursday.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 2-1 margin in slackened trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The market showed little favorable reaction to the Federal Reserve's reduction of its discount rate after Thursday's close, cutting the rate it charges on loans to its member commercial banks from 6 1/2 to 6 per cent.

Seaboard Coast Line Industries, the most active issue on the Big Board, fell 7/8 to 22 1/2 on the heels of a 4 1/2 drop Thursday, when the railroad holding company cut its quarterly dividend from 55 to 35 cents a share.

American Telephone & Telegraph dropped 1 1/2 to 50 1/2 following the expiration of the company's warrants Thursday night.

Before you move in know the facts about insurance

Fact 1: Fire insurance alone on home and contents is not enough. Your home could be destroyed by windstorm, explosion or other hazard.

Fact 2: Theft coverage of your possessions, at home and away, should be included.

Fact 3: A lawsuit judgment against you could cost you everything you own. You need liability insurance.

Fact 4: You get all this and more in one Homeowners policy... with one low premium!

Mrs. Cottle asked for volunteers to provide transportation for people to have lunch at the chapter's projects to serve the meals and provide transportation, Mondays thru Fridays.

The Reverend Henry Lofquist gave the devotion.

VFW Award...

this nation has made lately. This was one time we had to take a stand.

Cameron, a former Marine who was twice wounded during his tour of duty in Vietnam in 1967 and 1968, remarked on the Vietnamese refugees. "I look on this development with mixed emotions," he said. "Most important, however, I feel we have a moral obligation to those Vietnamese who did dedicate themselves to the U.S. in their jobs. These people are in a hot seat and we must do what we can to assure their safety."

"I want to add," Cameron said, "that I feel we need to watch the new government carefully. We will need to give this government a chance to see how they treat the people of South Vietnam, to see whether or not they begin a bloodbath."

One of two younger Tar Heels to be elected state commander in recent years, Cameron expressed a desire to see Americans "get back to an understanding of what our country really means to us. The Vietnam war did split our people, and now it's time to go back and heal our own wounds here at home."

Continuation of efforts to place veterans in jobs and recruitment of more younger veterans into the ranks of the VFW are two of several objectives Cameron said he would be working on during his tenure in office. "We will be making efforts to get more young veterans involved," he said, "but at the same time we're not going to forget the older men, the veterans of World Wars I and II."

Singing Groups Will Be Heard

A singing will be held at the United Church of God Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The special singers will be the Victory Singers of Garner.

The program will also include local groups. The public is invited to attend.

The Rev. Woodrow Tew is pastor.

Burglary And Assault Case Is Investigated

Greenville Police today are pressing their investigation into a reported burglary and assault case on Paris Avenue last night or early today.

Investigators said the incident was reported at 6:30 a.m. today.

According to officers, Mrs. Hattie Stocks of 211 Paris Ave. was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of head injuries she received in the incident.

Police quoted Mrs. Stocks as saying two men entered her home during the night and assaulted her with a hammer.

The incident may have occurred about 11:30 p.m. last night, officers said, but was not reported until 6:30 a.m., when Mrs. Stocks made her way to a neighbor's house.

Williamston Wins Finale

WILLIAMSTON—Williamston's Tigers closed out the regular season yesterday with a 10-0 victory over Ahsokie.

Williamston, the champion of the Northeastern Conference, is slated to open the 3-A State Playoffs next week against Eastern Wayne, the Eastern Carolina Conference winner.

Williamston jumped into the lead in the second inning, scoring one run. Phil Selby reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. He scored one Ken Herman's hit.

The Tigers got three more in the third. Tommy Gardner walked and stole second. Roy Lilley reached on a three-base error, scoring Gardner. George Brown hit a sacrifice fly to score Lilley. Greg Roberson got it started again with a walk and Mike Bryant doubled him home.

The Tigers picked up two more in the fourth. Herman walked and Mike Koesy also got a free pass, with Eddie Odom running for him. Gardner reached on an error, scoring Herman. Following an out, Odom scored on a passed ball.

In the fifth, Williamston got another run. Tim Hardison reached on a two-base error. Roberson walked and a passed ball let Hardison score.

The sixth saw three more Williamston runs scored. Eric Godard doubled and Herbie Rogers walked. Godard stole third, and a double steal scored him. Rick Roberts singled in Rogers and Danny Whitehurst singled. A passed ball scored Roberts.

Williamston closed out the regular season with a 13-5 record.

Greene Central Downs Firebirds

SNOW HILL — Greene Central knocked Southern Nash out of any hope of a post-season playoff berth yesterday, taking a 3-1 comeback victory.

The loss by the Firebirds left second place Ayden-Grifton and third place Southern Wayne as the lone teams with a chance at the Eastern Carolina Conference's second playoff berth in the 3-A ranks. Ayden-Grifton could wrap it up with a win today, should Farmville Central down Southern Wayne. If the Sanits win, however, Ayden-Grifton will have to beat Greene Central on Monday to move into the tournament.

The game turned into a pitching duel between Cooper of Southern Nash and Jeffrey Pridgen of Greene Central. Pridgen scattered six hits, while the Rams got only two off Cooper.

Southern Nash pushed into the lead in the first inning, scoring their only run of the game. Bobby Harrison tripled and scored when Steve Hicks singled.

The Firebirds also threatened in the sixth, when Hicks singled and was wild pitched to second with none out.

Greene Central offered a threat in the first when Jerry Carraway doubled and Tim Butts singled then stole second. But the Rams got all they needed in the sixth. Carraway and Butts both drew walks and moved up on a wild pitch. Floyd Adams walked on a wild pitch which allowed Carraway to score, and moved Butts to third, Adams stole second and Lindy Pridgen sacrificed Carraway in. A balk then let Adams score the third run.

Greene Central, now 9-8 in the league and 10-11 overall, will complete its season Monday at Ayden-Grifton, if the game is needed.

White Is Champion

Harriette White walked away with the Greenville Golf and Country Club's women's championship yesterday.

Mrs. White fired rounds of 75-76 for a 151 total, giving her a 20-stroke victory over the second place finisher in the championship flight. Second place went to Nancy Monroe, who shot 86-85-171.

Joan Warren won the first flight, shooting 86-96-182. A tie developed for second place between Irene Bircher, 92-93-185; and Julia Painter, 99-86-185, and a playoff will be held later.

In the second flight, Isabelle Rivers won with a 100-105-205 score. Alice Hudson finished second with a 105-108-113.

Andretti Struggling To Make Indy's Field

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mario Andretti, forced to pass up the first weekend of qualifying, is suddenly not the cinch he was to make his 11th Indianapolis 500.

Andretti, competing in the Monaco Grand Prix while qualifying was going on here last Saturday and Sunday, had more or less accepted qualifying in one of the last two rows still open in the 33-car field.

"It's definitely going to go," Andretti said of the new Cosworth-powered Parnelli he is trying to work up to speed. "But I don't know if we can get it all cured for here in time."

If the new machine doesn't come around in time, Andretti has a 1973 Offenhauser-powered Eagle he can jump into. But neither machine has been up to the 182 miles per hour level figured to be the minimum needed for a sure starting spot.

"I'll only run the Cosworth if I feel I have a good shot at it—not just squeaking into the show with it," Andretti explained. "If the car will only do 182-183 m.p.h. flat out, I'll switch to the Eagle because I know what it's capable of."

Teammate Al Unser, who qualified an Eagle-Offy earlier at 185.452 m.p.h., had the Cosworth up to 180 last week, and Andretti neared that mark—although timers only caught him at 175.029. The Eagle's top speed so far is a chancy 181.4 m.p.h.

"Mario will come up with something," said a friend. "It just wouldn't seem like Indianapolis without him."

Behind Andretti, it's only guesswork which cars are likely to fill the last five spots, or bump slower machines.

On the bubble are Lee Kunzman at 180.469 m.p.h. in an Eagle-Offy and Al Loquasto in a McLaren-Offy at 180.723 m.p.h. Above them, the speeds hop almost two miles per hour to Sheldon Kinser at 182.389 m.p.h.

Based on practice times through Thursday, Rick Muther had a 182.2 m.p.h. clocking in Gary Bettenhausen's backup Eagle-Offy. Others over the 180 m.p.h. barrier were rookies Billy Scott, Larry McCoy and Jerry Sneva and veterans Dick Simon and Tom Bigelow.

In the 170 m.p.h. range were Jan Opperman, George Folmer, Eldon Rasmussen.

Moose Remain Unbeaten, 6-1

The Moose remained unbeaten in the Tar Heel Little League yesterday, rolling to a 6-1 victory over Integon.

The Moose are now 4-0 on the year and in first place in the league standings, a half-game ahead of the Exchange, also unbeaten. Integon fell off to 1-3.

One run crossed for the Moose in the first inning. That came on Marc Sasser's home run.

Another came over in the second. Donnie Daughtridge walked and advanced on a wild pitch. Gregg Novak doubled, driving in Daughtridge for a 2-0 lead.

The Moose made it 3-0 with another run in the fourth. Novak reached on a fielder's choice and moved up when John Shaw reached on another fielder's choice. An error on the play let Novak score.

The Moose got two in the fifth. Sasser reached on a fielder's choice and Kosta Maurakis doubled. Dwayne Allgood reached on an error, scoring Sasser. Another error let Maurakis score.

The lone Integon run came in the bottom of the fifth. Cliff Warren reached on an error and moved to third on a wild pitch and Mont Carter's single. Junior Neal hit a sacrifice fly to score him.

The last Moose run came over in the sixth. Novak singled and Shaw reached on an error. Curt Lorimer reached on a fielder's choice and an error let Novak score.

Eighth Round Will Be Last, Ali Boasts

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali predicts flatly he'll knockout challenger Ron Lyle in the eighth round tonight.

Lyle, the ex-convict from Denver, says the fight may not go that far, and Ali will be taking the count.

Most observers side with the champion and don't think he'll have much of a test in the second defense of the crown he won from George Foreman in Zaire, Africa, last year.

Ali, now 33, waxes poetical and philosophical in the manner of 1964 when he first ruled the heavyweight ranks.

"Ali fights great, he's got speed and endurance. If you sign to fight him, increase your insurance."

Lyle, who spent 6½ years in the Colorado penitentiary on a second degree murder conviction, shrugs off the boasts and the poetry.

"I've waited 10 years for this chance and talk isn't going to make any difference to me," the challenger declares.

Ali will come in between 220 and 221, somewhat heavier than he was in recent years but a couple pounds lighter than when he knocked out Chuck Wepner in 15 rounds in the initial defense.

Off his record, Lyle will be tougher than Wepner, a fighter Ali has not yet dignified in poetry.

As the champion talks, Lyle sits back and comments, "He's going through his moment. I'll have my moment in the ring."

Unfortunately, Lyle can't fight offensively and defensively at the same time. So Ali figures to pick him apart.

"I'm going to talk to you, I'm going to play with you...oh, oh you're in trouble," the champion tells his challenger.

Although Ali figures Lyle will be frightened, the record tends to disagree. While in prison, Lyle was stabbed by a fellow inmate and came close to death.

"I've gone through so much that I couldn't be frightened by Ali," the challenger declared. "He's just another man."

In Las Vegas, where betting is legal, the book shops haven't posted odds on the match. The only wagering has been over which round will bring the ending with Ali the winner.

Lyle has worked himself into goodshape and should weigh about 215 for the bout at the Las Vegas Convention Center with nationwide home television via ABC.

The network figures 50 million will watch Ali's first performance on the free screen since 1966.

ABC has put up $1.5 million for rights to the fight with Ali guaranteed $1 million and Lyle $100,000.

Casper Shares The Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A little rest, says Billy Casper, makes all the difference.

"Down through the years, the key to my success has been in getting time away from golf," the portly, 43-year-old veteran said. "I can get away for a time, rest, get completely re-freshed."

"That's what I did the last few weeks. Just chased the kids around the farm."

And Casper, though still suffering from the lingering effects of a virus that once prompted his withdrawal from this tournament, followed a rest with a five-under-par 67 that gave him a share of the lead with Larry Nelson in Thursday's first round of the $150,000 New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

Just one stroke back at 68 were England's gangling Peter Oosterhuis, Allen (no relation to Johnny) Miller, Gary Sanders, Mike Morley and Danny Edwards.

Veteran Dave Hill headed another large group at 69.

Defending champion Lee Trevino matched par 72 on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course, still wet and soggy from two days of rain.

"I played pretty good, just didn't get the ball close enough to the hole," said Trevino, who complained bitterly of poor putting after missing the cut in last week's Byron Nelson Classic in Dallas.

"It's getting better," he said, grinned and paused. "It couldn't get any worse."

Tony Jacklin of England shot a 73 in his first start of a return to full-time competition in the United States.

Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Johnny Miller and Gary Player are not competing.

Hal McRae of Kansas City Royals was baseball's best designated hitter in 1974 with a .305 average.

Unbeaten KOed In Church Loop

The Church Softball League saw its last unbeaten, Oakmont and Grace, fall last night as a mad scramble developed for first place. Two teams, Oakmont and First Christian are tied for the American Division, while Grace, Black Jack and Immanuel are knotted in the National.

In the opening game in the American Division, Temple downed First Presbyterian, 10-6. Presbyterian scored two in the first, but Temple came back with four in their half of the inning. They added another in the third and got four in the fifth along with one more in the sixth. Presbyterian picked up two more in the fifth and two in the sixth, but never caught up.

First Christian downed St. Gabriel in the second game, 7-6. St. Gabriel scored three in the first and added three more in the fifth for a 6-0 lead. But in the sixth, First Christian rallied for six, tying it up. In the seventh Tommy Bunting singled and moved up on a double, scoring when Ronald Moore singled for the winning run.

The final game saw previously winless St. James stun previously unbeaten Oakmont, 11-6. St. James pushed in two in the first and added five in the second. They scored two more in the fifth and the final two in the sixth. Oakmont, behind all the way, got one in the first, three in the third with Bob Turner homering, and two in the fifth.

In the opener in the American, First Free Will downed Arlington St. 17-7. Arlington pushed over two in the first, while FWB got one. Arlington got two more in the second and three in the third for a 7-1 lead. But FWB pushed over three in the third, then erupted for nine in the fourth to take the lead. They added four more in the sixth.

Immanuel downed People's Bible, 8-4, in the second game. Immanuel took the lead for good in the third inning, scoring six runs. They added two more in the fifth. People's got all four of their's in the sixth.

In the final game, Black Jack handed Grace its first loss, 9-8. Grace scored one in the first, but Black Jack came up with two. Grace tied it with one in the second, but Black Jack pushed back into the lead with four in the third. Grace came up with three in the fourth, while Black Jack added one.

Black Jack pushed over two in the fifth and one in the bottom of the seventh to win it, with R. Dixon scoring the winning run on a double by J. T. Mills.

Lions No-Hit Optimists, 7-0

Roger Williams and Scott Galloway combined for a no-hitter and the Lions rolled to a 7-0 victory over the Optimists yesterday in the North State Little League.

Williams started the game but came out after three innings. He struck out six and walked one during his stint on the mound. Two others reached on errors. Galloway, in going the final three, fanned five and walked one. That one was the only Optimist to reach base against him.

The victory boosted the Lion's record to 3-1 on the year. The Optimists are now 1-3.

The Lions pushed over three runs in the first inning to take the lead. Williams reached on an error and scored, when Arthur Fletcher doubled. Chris Smith doubled in Fletcher, and he moved to third on a wild pitch. Jim Bearden singled Smith over.

The Lions got three more in the fourth. Bearden walked, as did Ed Frazier. Both advanced on a passed ball, and Bearden scored on Shelton Wilson's ground out. Troy Hudson walked and stole second, and an error on the play let Frazier score. Hudson scored on a passed ball.

The final run came over in the fifth. Bearden singled and Frazier walked. Wilson doubled, scoring Bearden.

Pacers Lose, But File A Protest

By GEORGE W. HACKETT
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Indiana Coach Bobby Leonard insisted that the timer made a mistake.

Billy Keller was positive there was plenty of time left on the clock when he fired off a 45-foot shot that was disallowed.

When the shouting and pushing ended Thursday evening, the final score read Kentucky 95, Indiana 93, giving the Colonels a 2-0 cushion in the best-of-seven series for the American Basketball Association championship.

However, John Weissert, the Pacers' general manager, said the club would send a formal protest—and the $100 fee required to post it—to the league offices today.

Weissert also said the Pacers will review videotapes of the game in hopes of finding evidence to support their claim.

"We feel we had a justifiable protest and that we won the game," he said. "You can't take the game away from a team in the championship series. We may be wrong, but we want an official determination to be made."

The teams will be in Indianapolis for games Saturday and Monday.

The score was tied 93-93 when Artis Gilmore put up a four-foot spinning hook to pull Kentucky ahead, bringing a roar from the crowd of 13,212 in Freedom Hall.

How much time was left? Two seconds according to the official timer.

Keller crossed the center line and let go with his three-point bomb, but referee Ed Rush already was waving his arms, indicating the game was over.

Leonard rushed onto the floor along with one of his players, Kevin Joyce. Afterwards, Joyce admitted he had shoved a patrolman.

When he returned to the locker room, Joyce said "there were some policemen outside saying they wanted to arrest me and I sure didn't need that."

Leonard claimed there was no way that Rush "could hear that buzzer and he didn't check with the official at the table. Some of us thought that we had five seconds to go. But that's part of the game. It was good, rough, tough basketball."

Rain Hits Tourney

SALISBURY, N. C. (AP) — Officials will seek to complete second round play today in the NAIA District 26 baseball tournament after Thursday's rain-out.

The schedule called for a 2 p.m. losers bracket game between Guilford and Pfeiffer, with Gardner-Webb and High Point following in the winners bracket game.

The double elimination event also called for a night game matching the first afternoon winner against the second game loser to set the stage for Saturday's championship meeting.

Jockey Sandy Hawley won five races when the 1975 Hollywood Park Racing season opened.

Foolish Pleasure Is Favorite In Preakness

By BOB COOPER
AP Sports Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — John L. Greer's Foolish Pleasure carries the role of heavy favorite—and two tiny omens of bad luck—into Saturday's centennial running of the Preakness Stakes.

The bay son of What A Pleasure is the 6-5 choice to add the Preakness to his Kentucky Derby victory as he goes in search of the second Triple Crown sweep in three years.

But the Preakness will be the 13th race of Foolish Pleasure's career and the 13th anniversary of trainer LeRoy Jolley's trip to Pimlico with another favorite, Ridan, who wound up second in the 1962 Preakness.

The favorite's role against a field of nine challengers puts no special pressure on Jolley. "I'd rather have the favorite than any of the others," he said.

"But the pressure's there. That's why guys in this business have more ulcer scars than anybody else," Jolley added. "Chances like this just don't come along every day."

Winner of 11 of his 12 races, Foolish Pleasure needs victories in both the Preakness and the June 7 Belmont Stakes to match Secretariat's Triple Crown sweep of 1973, the first in 25 years.

Challenging Foolish Pleasure on Saturday will be six horses who trailed him to the wire in the Derby, two others who have yet to be beaten this season and Just The Time, winner of his only start this year on a disqualification.

Both Cynthia Phipps' Singh and William A. Levin's native Guest are undefeated in four starts each this season, Singh scoring three stakes victories and Native Guest two.

Coming to the Preakness from the Kentucky Derby field are Avator, who was second in the Run for the Roses; Diabolo, who was third; Master Derby, fourth; Media, fifth; Prince Thau Art, sixth, and Bold Chap-eau, eighth.

All 10 will carry 126 pounds over the 1 1/16 miles, a sixteenth of a mile shorter than the Derby and 5-16ths of a mile shorter than the Belmont.

Like the Derby did in its centennial last year, the Preakness is expected to set records in its 100th running for gross value at $210,600 and the winners' share of $158,100.

Also expected are more than the 61,657 fans who watched Secretariat win the race in 1973. Millions more will see the 5:40 p.m., EDT, race on television or hear it on radio (both CBS) from 5-6 p.m.

An attractive schedule of stakes tests are scheduled elsewhere Saturday.

In New York, the field for the $50,000-added Carter Handicap at Aqueduct includes handicap champion Forego. The Carter is a seven-furlong test for 3-year-olds.

The Hawthorne Handicap for fillies and mares at Hollywood Park carries a $35,000 purse and will be contested a seven furlongs. Tizna is the high weight at 122 pounds.

Eleven horses included Sharp Gary, Sr. Diplomat, El Brovado and Dr. Pantano are entered in the $55,000-added Equipose Handicap at 1 1/16 miles in Chicago's Sportsman Park.

Garden State Park's $27,826 Jersey Belle Handicap, a 1 1/16 mile grass test for 3-year-old fillies, attracted 16 entries including Fair Wind, who will carry top weight of 119 pounds.

The $20,000-added Regret Handicap for 3-year-old fillies over six furlongs at Churchill Downs includes Red Cross and Privileged Class among its entries. The Palmetto Handicap for 3-year-olds and up over 1 1/16 miles is at Calder and Golden Gate Fields has the $20,000 Emeryville Stakes at 1 1/4 miles.

Brewers Quickly Get Win That Eluded Them

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer
It took the Milwaukee Brewers 22 minutes Thursday night to accomplish what they couldn't do in 3 hours and 50 minutes the previous night—beat the Texas Rangers.

After battling 14 innings and nearly four hours to a 2-2 standoff Wednesday night—and one hour into Thursday morning before an American League curfew forced a suspension of play—the Brewers and Rangers returned to pick up where they left off. It took just one more inning for Milwaukee to emerge with a 3-2 triumph when Texas reliever Jackie Brown walked two batters, committed a two-out error to load the bases and then hit Don Money with a two-strike pitch, forcing in the winning run.

Then, they went at it again for 2 hours, 36 minutes in the regularly scheduled contest. Milwaukee won that one, too, with Hank Aaron contributing a three-run homer and a sacrifice fly.

Elsewhere in the AL, the Kansas City Royals blanked the Boston Red Sox 3-0 behind Steve Busby's four-hitter and the Minnesota Twins edged the Cleveland Indians 7-6 on Rod Carew's ninth-inning single.

In the National League, the Philadelphia Phillies swept a two-night doubleheader from the Cincinnati Reds 6-3 and 5-3, while the Chicago Cubs downed the Houston Astros 4-2. The Atlanta Braves were rained out at Montreal in the fourth inning with a 4-1 lead on two-run homers by Darrell Evans and Dave May.

Aaron's 360-foot blast, his fourth of the season, capped a four-run fifth inning which included a run-scoring triple by Bobby Mitchell, who also homered and singled, and gave the Brewers a 7-1 lead.

"I'm learning the pitchers but I've still got a lot to learn," said the 41-year-old Aaron, who spent 21 years in the National League before becoming Milwaukee's designated hitter. "Sometimes I feel like a rookie out there."

Pete Broberg, dealt away by the Rangers last December following a 0-4 season, earned the victory with last-out help from Ed Rodriguez. Sixto Lezcano also homered for Milwaukee while Roy Howell, Toby Harrah and Mike Hargrove connected for Texas.

Royals 3, Red Sox 0

The Royals scored an unearned run in the sixth off Boston ace Luis Tiant, 3-5. With two out, Hal McRae was hit by a pitch after his foul pop dropped between Boston catcher Bob Montgomery and first baseman Carl Yastrzemski in a mix-up.

McRae attempted to steal second and appeared out by 20 feet on Montgomery's throw. However, shortstop Rick Burleson dropped the ball while applying the tag and was charged with an error. After John Mayberry walked, Harmon Killebrew blooped a single to shallow right-center, scoring

Twins 7, Indians 6
Reliever Jim Perry walked Steve Braun to start the ninth and pinch runner Dan Ford was sacrificed to second. After an intentional walk to Danny Walton, Dave LaRoche came on and fanned Tony Oliva but Carew then laced his game-winning hit to center field.

Phillies 6-5, Reds 3-3
Dave Cash beat third baseman Pete Rose's throw to the plate on Garry Maddox grounder in the seventh inning of the nightcap to break a tie. The Phillies took the opener when pinch hitter Ollie Brown's three-run homer off Don Gullett with two out capped a four-run rally in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Cubs 4, Astros 2
Tim Hosley hit a tie-breaking two-run double in the eighth inning to back the three-hit pitching of Rick Reuschel. Both Houston runs were unearned.

Prestone® reveals some little-known facts about cooling system corrosion and how it may be shortening the life of your car's engine

In a new survey of 1,202 cars, 45% required cooling system service because the coolant was no longer doing all of its job properly.

Read how Prestone II® Concentrate, with its patented formula, fights all forms of harmful corrosion—and how this protects your engine from overheating, to prolong its life.

If you check your own oil, why not your cooling system?

What a 1,202-car survey shows

Chances are, if you're reading this, you want your car running well at all times—especially during the hot summer.

You probably also know a lot about how your car works. And do some of your own car maintenance.

If so, you should include your car's cooling system and coolant in your maintenance checks from now on—starting now.

The fact is, corrosion in your cooling system and worn-out coolant can do as much damage to your car over a period of time as old and worn-out oil in your engine.

A just-completed survey of 1,202 cars all across the United States by PRESTONE, with the assistance of United States Testing Co., shows some startling statistics. It reveals just how large a percentage of cars are suffering from corrosion and risking costly repairs. These cars were relatively young—1972, 1973, and 1974 models.

What kind of damage could corrosion be doing to your car right now?

Corrosion could be shortening the life of your car's engine

Corrosion could be clogging the tiny tubes in your radiator, so it can't cool your engine properly.

Corrosion could be plugging up areas in what cooling system engineers call the "coolant jacket." It can build up around hot spots near exhaust valves, to act as an insulator and hold heat in.

Corrosion could be gradually perforating tiny holes in your coolant pump and your radiator, letting your coolant leak away and causing the engine temperature to rocket.

Corrosion is indiscriminate. Over time, it can attack all the metals in your cooling system: steel, cast iron, copper, brass, solder—and aluminum, which is in more and more cooling systems today, particularly in imported cars. Many people don't know it, but aluminum is highly susceptible to corrosion damage.

You can protect all the metals in your cooling system, including aluminum, against corrosion simply by adding PRESTONE II Concentrate, with its exclusive patented silicone-silicate formula.

PRESTONE II bonds a protective film to each metal surface. That film is extremely tough. And if the film should break, it will mend itself quickly.

But other forces can go to work to keep the coolant from fighting off corrosion.

Exhaust gases can escape through a leaky cylinder-head gasket into the cooling system. When that happens, the gases turn to acids, which weaken rust inhibitors and hasten corrosion of metal parts.

For this reason, you should never leave your coolant in the cooling system too long—even when it's PRESTONE II.

Many people think a modern coolant can stay in the cooling system permanently—or at least two or three years.

It's true that a coolant will give you anti-freeze protection year after year, as long as it isn't diluted, and your cooling system doesn't leak.

Paper filter shows sediment left over after we poured coolant sampled from a car's cooling system through it. Sediment includes particles of rust from metals in cooling system and is a warning sign of corrosion at work. PRESTONE II Concentrate fights corrosion.

But it won't protect against corrosion that long. To fight rust and sludge and acidity and corrosion, you need to flush your cooling system and replace your coolant periodically.

How often should you change?

Recommendations in car owners' manuals may vary.

We say once a year.

Some of you may think we say that just to sell more coolant. Others may think we're being perfectionists.

But we've been working with coolants and engine cooling systems since 1927.

And our experience says that the way to avoid corrosion and the expensive damage it can cause is to invest in two gallons of PRESTONE II Concentrate every year.

If you've waited more than a year to change, check your coolant now for signs of corrosion. Take a sample from your radiator. Look for a rusty brown color or loss of natural color of your coolant. Then check for sediment. These are all indications that you have

How often should your coolant be changed?

Take a sample

Temperatures in your engine can reach 4,500°F. If coolant can't remove heat adequately, oil can't lubricate metal parts. Engine can suffer serious damage. PRESTONE II Concentrate helps keep corrosion from slowing down heat removal.

Coolant can be bad, even if it looks all right not changed your coolant frequently enough and that corrosion is already at work in your cooling system.

But even if your coolant looks all right, its rust inhibitors could have lost their ability to fight off corrosion. And you may not know it until it's too late.

We know a fresh fill of PRESTONE II Concentrate every year will fight corrosion and prolong the life of your engine.

Today's engines are required to run far hotter than those designed before 1962. So they need a coolant having a boiling point higher than water.

You need a coolant that can take those higher temperatures without boiling over on our fiercest summer days, particularly if your air conditioner is on.

Summer warning: have the right mix, the right pressure

According to PRESTONE engineers, today's cars need a 50-50 mix of PRESTONE II Concentrate and water for proper protection against boiling over, freezing up and corrosion.

The proper solution—in combination with 15 pounds of pressure in the system—raises your boiling point to 265°F. (and lowers the freezing point to -34°F.).

How to maintain proper pressure

How do you maintain proper pressure? Install a new radiator cap about every two years. Our service experience shows that pressure cap seals can go bad in that time.

Now that you know what we know, even if you checked your coolant for anti-freeze protection last fall, you'll want to check it again carefully for summer protection before the next weekend is up.

Magazine Covers News As Printed In Russia

By DAVID CROSSON
For AP Newsfeatures
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Most people have never heard of a small, unique magazine published on the campus of the Ohio State University — the "Current Digest of the Soviet Press."

But it has subscribers all over the world, from university libraries to diplomatic missions in Moscow. They value the magazine for its comprehensive coverage of the printed media of the Soviet Union.

"The best way to say what kinds of things we cover is to say they're akin to the kinds of things that are considered newsworthy by any practicing journalist," Digest editor Robert Ehlers says.

"Major speeches by top leaders, major decrees and pronouncements, reports on five-year plans and annual plans; but also a host of sidelights on social issues, and what you might call the great issues of the day, as they affect the Soviet Union. Concerns about the environment, about resource management, and some of these of course, have a very specific Soviet twist."

The Digest began at Columbia University in 1949, under the sponsorship of the American Council of Learned Societies' Committee on Slavic Studies. After 20 years in New York it moved to Columbus, where it is published by the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies. A staff of two dozen editors, translators and support personnel produces it in an old campus laundry building.

The weekly covers some 90 general Soviet publications, with each issue containing about 60,000 words condensed from the millions of words appearing in the Soviet press. Articles are read by the staff, selected for translation or abstracting and then prepared and printed in the magazine.

Much of the material in each issue comes from "Pravda" and "Izvestia," since the Digest is committed to extensive coverage of their contents. But the editors read a wide selection of other publications, including the "Economic Gazette," "The Whistle," the railroad daily, the "Medical Gazette" and "Red Star," the daily newspaper of the Defense Ministry.

The Digest also covers the daily newspapers published in the capital cities of the Republics of the Soviet Union.

"It's a mistake to think of the Digest simply as a translation service," Ehlers says. "It's an information service, and what we offer is a very disciplined and rather rigorous selection based on a review of several million words worth of Russian each week."

In addition to covering a wide range of publications the Digest is now producing a computerized index of "Pravda" based on the thesaurus of 10,000 subject headings.

The largest number of subscribers to the "Current Digest of the Soviet Press" are major academic institutions, both in the United States and overseas. Subscription coverage is best, according to Ehlers, at institutions which have programs of study on Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union at the graduate level.

Private "think tanks," such as the Rand Corporation and the Hudson Institute, and American businesses which are interested in trade with the Soviet Union also subscribe, as do a number of major newspapers, magazines and radio and television stations. The other major category of subscribers is government agencies that are concerned with information about or relations with the Soviet Union.

"The Digest compresses millions of words to 3 or 4 per cent of the total wordage that we actually read and evaluate," explains Ehlers, "so what this represents to people is not a simple translation but the result of extensive reading and careful thought and analysis. Subscribers get more or less a comprehensive overview of everything of essential import that has appeared in the papers."

Tarboro 'Happening' Readied For Sunday

TARBORO—Preparations are in high gear for the Fourth Annual Happening on the Town Common in Tarboro, which is to be held beginning at 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

A festive affair encompassing music, art, crafts and photography, the Fourth Annual Happening will feature a Storybook Parade with children in colorful costumes marching to the music of the Tarboro High School Band.

Craftsmen and artists from Greenville, Rocky Mount, Roanoke Rapids, Kinston, Wilson, Washington, Elizabeth City, Raleigh, Hertford, Tarboro and Carrboro will be on hand to demonstrate craft arts such as hand-loom weaving, tin-smithing, pewter-casting, chair-making and leather work. There will also be paintings, needlework, toys, jewelry, pottery, decoupage, and photography. Must of the arts and crafts on display will be for sale. Plans for the proposed Tarboro Historic District with prints by Jerry Miller will also be displayed.

Wallace Gilbertson, Happening chairman, says there will be refreshments available. It is recommended that visitors bring pillows, folding stools or other items to sit on. There is no admission charge.

The time is from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m., and in case of rain, the happening will be postponed until Sunday, May 25.

Senators Use Their Office To Pick Up Extra Cash

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — At least 70 Senators report they moonlight on the lecture circuit, with last year's fees ranging up to $2,500 for a single speech.

Reports filed with the Senate show:
—Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., took an expense-paid trip to Bermuda last Oct. 31 to speak to an investors group, and was paid $2,000 for his efforts. Brooke is ranking Republican on the securities subcommittee.

—The chairman of the same subcommittee, Harrison A. Williams Jr. of New Jersey, got $2,500 for a talk to the Securities Industry Association last Dec. 4. The group represents stockbrokers, who are directly affected by legislation funneled through the subcommittee.

—The American Bankers Association paid $4,500 to Brooke for two speeches, $2,000 to Williams for one speech, $1,000 to Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and $1,000 to Bob Packwood, R-Ore. All are members of the Banking Committee.

Two senators more than doubled their regular salaries of $42,500 a year. One-time Watergate hearing star Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., topped the list with $49,650. His standard fee was $1,750 per speech. Republican Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon knocked down $45,677 speaking mainly to university and religious groups.

Eight senators reported that they used all or part of their outside earnings for charity or to cover unreimbursed office expenses. One of the top earners, Henry M. Jackson, D-

Wash., turned over all his $34,350 to charity.
For the most part, however, the speaking fees and other honorariums apparently went into the senators' pockets.

Honorariums have frequently been criticized as handouts in disguise, especially when they are large and come from groups with a special interest in the bill being handled by the recipients.

The latest reports are peppered with examples of such large payments:

—Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., who is second-ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee, got $2,000 from the "Ad Hoc Committee for an Effective Investment Tax Credit." Talmadge got another $2,000 from the American Council on Capital Gains and Estate Taxation. The Finance Committee handles tax matters.

—Talmadge also is chairman of the Agriculture and Forestry Committee, and he got $2,500 from the Fertilizer Institute, $1,000 from the Grocery Manufacturers Association, $2,500 from the Quality Bakers of America, $1,000 from the National Broiler Council, and $2,500 from the National Forest Products Association, which paid his way to Marco Island, Fla. for a speech.

—Vance Hartke, D-Ind., chairman of the subcommittee that will handle the Ford administration's proposals to promote competition among government-regulated truckers, got $1,500 from the Common Carrier Conference of the American Trucking Associations, which bitterly opposes the proposals. Hartke also got $1,000 from Atlas Van Lines, a regulated trucking company.

—John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., chairman of the housing subcommittee, got $1,500 from the National Association of Homebuilders.

Besides Baker and Hatfield, some of last year's other big earners were Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., $40,750; Talmadge, $32,165; Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, $29,550; Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, $28,800; Brooke, $28,700; Williams, $28,617; John V. Tunney, D-Calif., $25,450; Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., $25,190; and Bob Dole, R-Kan., $20,850.

In all, a score of senators reported getting more than $15,000 in honorariums last year. Starting last Jan. 1 a new law limits federal lawmakers to no more than $1,000 per speech and $25,000 per year.

Congressmen Told No More Free Plane Rides

By EDMOND LEBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics Committee told congressmen today not to accept free rides in company planes when traveling to political campaign engagements.

This was one of several situations covered in an advisory opinion issued by the committee on circumstances that would permit members and congressional employees to accept non-paid transportation.

A committee spokesman said the opinion was in response to requests for clarification of what House members should do in such circumstances. There has been no similar action in the Senate.

The House panel cautioned that the principal purpose of the trip should be considered in every case.

"If the principal purpose of the trip is political campaign activity, and the host carrier is one who would be prohibited by law from making a campaign contribution, such non-paid transportation would amount to a political contribution in kind, and should not be accepted," it said.

Corporations and labor unions, among others, are specifically forbidden by law from making political campaign contributions.

Even if the trip were not for campaign purposes, a member should not request a special flight for his convenience, the opinion said.

"Such a request could be interpreted as abuse of one's public position, the committee said. It would not be improper to accept free transportation for a non-political trip if the transportation were offered on a space-available basis on a carrier making the trip anyway and involving no extra cost to the owner, the committee said.

If a member acting as a public official is going to be present at "an event for the general benefit of an audience," it would not be improper to accept free transportation, the panel said.

Similarly, if a member were making a speech for pay, he could properly accept free transportation instead of cash reimbursement for his travel expenses, the opinion added.

Finally, the committee said it found no bar to riding on inaugural flights by airlines, provided Civil Aeronautics Board regulations governing such occasions were observed.

Sen. White On New Task Force

State Sen. Vernon E. White of Winterville has been appointed to the new Task Force on Food Supply and Agriculture of the National Conference of State Legislatures' Intergovernmental Relations Committee.

In announcing the appointment, Rep. Tom Jensen of Tennessee, committee chairman, said that White was nominated by Sen. John T. Henley, president pro tem of the North Carolina Senate.

Jensen noted that the committee is NCSL's "focal point for the expression of views by state legislatures on major state-federal matters."

Offer Summer Workshops In Food, Nutrition

Two summer workshops in food and nutrition will be offered by the East Carolina University School of Home Economics this summer.

They are Problems in Nutrition Education (June 23-July 3) and Organization and Procedure Problems in Food and Nutrition (July 14-25). Each workshop carries three quarter hours graduate credit, and will involve morning classes for the duration of the program.

Further information and application materials are available from "Summer Food and Nutrition Workshops," ECU School of Home Economics, P. O. Box 2743, Greenville.

Bond Sales Keep Pace

Sales of Series E and H Savings Bonds in Pitt County during the first quarter of 1975 were $258,249, according to R. W. Howard, county volunteer chairman.

Howard said that the first quarter figure represents attainment of 31.2 per cent of the county's 1975 goal of $828,240. During the first three months of 1975, sales of E and H bonds in North Carolina, led by E Bond sales of $24,444, 572, amounted to $24,827,572, the chairman said. This marked the highest combined sales total for the two series since 1945 and represents 25.2 per cent of the state's dollar goal of $98,600,000.

Nationally, total cash sales of both series for the first quarter amounted to $1.89 billion, one per cent above a year earlier.
