Thailand Demands Troop Withdrawal By March '76

By FREDERICK H. MARKS
BANGKOK (UPI) — Thailand Saturday formally demanded the withdrawal of all American troops from the country by next March and said in a stern note it would take steps to prevent any further violation of Thai sovereignty.

Thousands of demonstrators converged on the U.S. Embassy in Bangkok demanding a written apology for the use of Thai bases by American Marines in their assault to retrieve the cargo vessel Mayaguez from its Cambodian captors.

The demonstrators carried signs reading, "Ford, you are a dirty pig," and "Go to hell, bad Americans."

The Thai government rejected as inadequate Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's expression of regret over the American action.

In an aide memoire handed to U.S. Charge d'Affaires Edward Masters, Thailand called for the "complete withdrawal of U.S. military forces from Thailand by March, 1976, in accordance with the declared policy of the royal Thai government."

Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj had said previously all U.S. troops would have been withdrawn eventually. But he never formally notified the United States and said he would not ask the troops to leave if their departure would jeopardize Thailand's security.

"The Thai government believes there is a need in taking measures to prevent any violation of Thai sovereignty and contempt of Thai prestige," the memoire said.

"There is a need to review all commitments, treaties and agreements between Thailand and the United States including the control of American use of the airbases... in order that the commitments are met on the basis of equality."

About 7,000 demonstrators jammed the street in front of the U.S. Embassy. At one point the crush of demonstrators forced open the gate, but protest leaders stepped in and kept the crowd from spilling into the embassy grounds, where about 80 Thai police were stationed.

Wants Free Education

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Indians want free education at the University of Michigan, citing an 1817 treaty giving them that right.

Indian representatives said here today they are to meet with UM President Robben Fleming next week over the demands which also include higher Indian enrollment on the Ann Arbor campus, new courses and facilities for native Americans.

"We seem to be educating Indians from India and other ethnic groups at that university more than native Americans," said Fred Boyd, vice president of the North American Indian Association.

Doctors Strike Spread

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco area doctors strike spread to southern California Saturday in spite of the calling of a special session of the legislature by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

In the San Francisco area, anesthesiologists protesting malpractice insurance rates were refusing to do any but emergency surgery at 77 hospitals in nine counties.

Brown called the special session to deal with the insurance problem for Monday, but doctors went ahead with plans to begin a work stoppage in other parts of the state.

"Wild Man" Captured

BUSHNELL, Fla. (UPI) — A kicking, ranting Oriental "wild man" dragged from the Central Florida Green Swamp by sheriff's deputies Saturday may be an escaper from a hospital security ward where he was admitted after refusing to board an airplane for his native Taiwan.

Telethon For ERA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Various national women's organizations are launching a drive to win support for a telethon to raise money for final passage of the Equal Rights Amendment. ERA must be ratified by four more states to become part of the Constitution. Backers say it will cost a lot of money to win passage in those states.

Students Into Acid

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — A marching band practicing on a warm spring afternoon Saturday took a break, and several of the teen-agers splashed themselves with what they thought to be cool water. It turned out to be acid, and a dozen of the youngsters were rushed to a hospital.

A spokeswoman at the Upstate Medical Center Hospital said two of the 12 victims actually drank the mild acid and fell over in the parking lot of Bristol Laboratories, where the band had been working out. The other ten, who had spread the liquid on their arms, faces, backs and chests, soon began to feel their skin burning.

The two who drank the acid were listed in satisfactory condition at the hospital. The ten others were expected to be released after treatment of skin irritation.

Debate Law Bugged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A move to let the networks show congressional debate on home television, publicly lauded by many lawmakers but privately feared by some, has bogged down in House and Senate committees.

The public was titillated by rare television coverage of the Nixon impeachment hearings. That coverage added impetus to the move to change the rules and make telecasts of regular congressional action possible.

Members of Congress, however, apparently are still reluctant to move cameras into the hallowed chambers where final words are said and votes taken.

Bombs Explode In Middle East

By United Press International
A time bomb left in a beach bag exploded Saturday on a crowded Israeli beach on the Dead Sea, injuring more than 10 persons. Two other bombs exploded in the occupied West Bank and a mortar shell blast in Lebanon killed seven children.

Israeli military sources said 10 persons were taken to hospitals in Jerusalem, about 25 miles northwest of the beach at Ein Fashkha, in occupied Jordan, while a number of persons were treated at the scene for minor injuries.

The explosion went off in midafternoon when the popular Dead Sea resort was packed with weekend bathers.

Five hours earlier, seven children were killed and five others wounded when an Israeli mortar shell exploded in a field where they were playing in the Lebanese village of Altaroun, one mile north of the border with Israel.

A military spokesman in Beirut said the 81mm shell was a leftover from Israeli attacks against the village last Monday and Tuesday.

Also Saturday, two time bombs — left in two small trucks — exploded near the Israeli-occupied West Bank town of Ramallah, about 10 miles north of Jerusalem.

Sources said a number of persons were injured, none seriously.

OAS Votes To End 1964 Cuban Ban

By JUAN J. WALTER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Organization of American States made a key legal decision Saturday that virtually assures that the 11-year trade embargo against Cuba will be lifted this year.

After a lengthy debate, delegates to the OAS General Assembly voted to end the 1964 Cuban ban as soon as the Rio Treaty of hemispheric assistance can be reformed at a conference scheduled for mid-July in Costa Rica.

Shortly after this decision, Mexico's foreign minister, Emilio O. Rabasa, said it was his "personal impression" after talking to high U.S. officials, including Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, that Washington was ready to vote for lifting the Cuban sanctions at the Costa Rica conference.

The United States abstained Saturday when the delegates voted on a two-point declaration submitted to the OAS assembly by Mexico, Colombia, Costa Rica and Peru.

Japanese Woman First To Scale Mt. Everest

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — A 35-year-old Japanese housewife who became the first woman to reach the top of the world's highest peak was nearly killed by an avalanche during her climb up Mt. Everest, it was disclosed Saturday.

Mrs. Junko Tabei, packing a limited stock of gear, braved bad weather to reach the top of 29,028-foot Mt. Everest at noon Friday to end a 22-year male domain. She was accompanied by Sherpa guide Ang Tsering, according to a message received Saturday by the Nepalese foreign ministry.

Mrs. Tabei, a housewife from Saitama near Tokyo, described by her 14 teammates on the all-female Japanese expedition as a "leader of housewives' lib," made the successful assault only 12 days after she was seriously injured in an avalanche.

The achievement was made more remarkable by the fact that she and her party was hit by an avalanche May 4 at their second high altitude camp pitched at 21,000 feet.

Mrs. Tabei and two Sherpa guides were injured while six other members of the expedition suffered more minor injuries in the avalanche.

"Mayaguez" Safe In Singapore

By KENNETH F. ENGLADE
SINGAPORE (UPI) — The American freighter Mayaguez steamed into Singapore Saturday with a happy crew and a captain who said they all were free only because President Ford ordered military action against the Cambodian Communists.

Capt. Charles Miller told a news conference hours after the vessel docked that the Communist Khmer Rouge treated him and his 39 men well and did not threaten them once he convinced them the Mayaguez was not carrying arms or ammunition.

"Military action was the cause that they released me," said Miller, 62, of Fountain Valley, Calif. "I promised them I could stop the bombing."

Miller's statement contradicted a Khmer Rouge announcement in Cambodia which claimed it had released the crew and the ship hours before the U.S. forces launched their rescue attack.

As Miller talked to newsmen, the freighter, its name painted in white block letters on a black hull, bobbed peacefully at the dock in Singapore — its first port since ship and crew were released by the Cambodians Thursday following 3½ days in captivity.

"I promised them I could stop the bombing, the shooting, the strafing of Cambodian territory," Miller said. "I would have promised the Khmer Rouge the moon between two pieces of bread if I thought they would have released us."

"If it hadn't been for our jet fighters and our Marines landing on the beaches, I don't think this crew would be here today," Miller said. "We would either be in prison camp in Phnom Penh or we'd all be shot to death."

Miller also said he was told that seven Marines had already been killed by the time the 39 crewmen boarded the American destroyer USS Wilson at 10:30 a.m. Friday (11:30 p.m. Thursday EDT). The Marines fought the rest of the day and most of the night before helicopters lifted them out.

The Pentagon's tentative figures show one Marine killed, 13 missing and 22 wounded, three of them seriously, in the landing designed to free the ship and its crew.

"It was only through the efforts of President Ford, the Air Force, the Navy and the Marine Corps that finally secured our release," Miller said.

The crewmen, about half of whom were leaving the ship in Singapore and returning to the United States, were cheerful and showed no bitterness toward their captors.

"I hope any time any prisoners get taken they get treated as well as we did," said crewman Herbert McDonald of San Francisco. "They fed us their food, then ate what was left."

Miller said the only casualties among the crew came as an indirect result of American attempts to stop the Khmer Rouge — who took control in Cambodia April 17 — from taking the crew to the Cambodian mainland at the port of Kompong Som, also called Sihanoukville.

He said all the crew suffered skin burns from the tear gas dropped by the jets and three men were slightly wounded by shrapnel.

"I don't blame the pilots, they were only trying to keep us out of Kompong Som," Miller said. "They wanted us returned to the vessel (the Mayaguez)."

The graying, bespectacled Miller said a Cambodian motor torpedo boat fired antiaircraft guns and a rocket across the bow of the Mayaguez Monday. Miller stopped his freighter and seven men, carrying grenade throwers and AK47s, boarded.

At their orders, the Mayaguez followed the Cambodian vessel for eight hours, but near an island a few miles from the Cambodian mainland Miller said he convinced the Khmer Rouge his radar was broken and he could not navigate the ship into the harbor near Kompong Som.

Advertizing Firm Received $85,000 From Soul City

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A now-defunct New York advertising firm was paid $85,157 by the U.S. Commerce Department to promote Soul City, N.C., but federal auditors have said the firm should have gotten only $7,429, it was reported Sunday.

The News and Observer of Raleigh reported in its Sunday editions that a Justice Department file on the matter has been turned over to federal prosecutors in New York.

Records show that Eden Advertising and Communications Inc. was hired by the Commerce Department's Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE) in December 1972 to publicize Soul City, a new town development in rural Warren County. Ten months after getting the contract, Eden was out of business and had accomplished little, federal auditors discovered.

The Soul City project is headed by Floyd McKissick, a former director of the Congress of Racial Equality. About $19.5 million in federal grants, contracts, loans and loan guarantees has been obtained for Soul City by McKissick, though little progress has been made so far on the project.

OMBE's one-year contract with Eden called for extensive promotional efforts.

Wesleyan College To Remain Open

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — The trustees of North Carolina Wesleyan College, faced with substantial debt, have decided to operate the Methodist college next year.

While making the announcement Friday, board chairman J. Phil Carlton warned that the school must raise $1.2 million over the next three years before its financial troubles are over.

"We cannot go back to the community and the church three years from now and ask for the money again," he told the student body.

The college has raised about a half million dollars in pledges and gifts from the Rocky Mount community.

The United Methodist Church has pledged to raise $825,000 for the college over the next two years.

The fund raising drive was intensified after the University of North Carolina board of governors refused to recommend that the state take over operation of the school.

The trustees had asked that the state either operate the college as a part of the university system or as a branch of East Carolina University.

College officials said 426 students had enrolled for next year and that more than 500 were expected by the time classes begin in the fall.

The trustees had said that enrollment for the 1975-1976 academic year would be a major factor in their decision on whether to close the doors.

SIMPSON—Three town commissioners were sworn in, a mayor elected, and the charter presented to the Village of Simpson at ceremonies at the volunteer fire department here Friday.

The presentation of the charter officially established Simpson as an incorporated village—the first such incorporation under a relatively new law which allows communities to incorporate without an act of the North Carolina General Assembly.

John T. McDonald, Junior Lee Dail and Leonard Joe Hardee were sworn in as commissioners by Superior Court Judge Robert Rouse, then the three held a meeting of the new town board and McDonald was elected Mayor.

After Rouse administered the oath of office to McDonald, Dave Alexander, representing the North Carolina Local Government Commission officially issued the charter, presenting it to McDonald.

Signed by Secretary of State Thad Eure on April 9, the charter officially established the Village of Simpson as an incorporated municipality at Noon April 14.

Friday's ceremonies ended 18 months of work by Simpson area residents to become a municipality.

McDonald said the charter presentation was actually a "rebirth of a town" rather than the establishment of a new community.

Named for Gen. John Simpson, a prominent Pitt County resident of Colonial and Revolutionary days, Simpson began with a store and a few homes in the late 1700's or early 1800's. Then in 1907, the Norfolk and Southern Railroad was built through the community, and by 1917, blocks and streets were marked off and land sold at public auction.

In 1918, Simpson was incorporated as a town and remained an incorporated municipality until the depression in 1929 and 1930.

N.H. Beddard was the first mayor and Floyd Bell was the first policeman the community had. The town even had a doctor's office manned by two physicians and their secretary. And, of course, Simpson had a post office.

The new Village of Simpson encompasses 252 acres and has a population of 524.

And it is progressive. A new post office is under construction and should be completed next month. Work is scheduled to start in the near future on a project to dress up the fire station with a new brick front.

McDonald, after taking the oath as mayor of the new town, said "I will do the best job I possibly can" in seeing "improvement for Simpson" and said he will call a citizens meeting "in the very near future" to get on with the business of making the new village a better place in which to live.

Four Day Charismatic Renewal Opens

By JULIE FLINT
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — Bishops, archbishops and cardinals, struggling to keep their hats in place, sang and danced in ecstasy, embracing one another and raising their arms to heaven.

The Most Rev. Joseph McKinney, auxiliary bishop of Grand Rapids, Mich., joined hands with the Most Rev. James Hayes, archbishop of Halifax, who in turn linked arms with Leo Cardinal Suenens of Belgium.

The unlikely chorus on Friday opened the ninth international conference on charismatic renewal in the Roman Catholic Church.

The conference theme of "Renewal and Reconciliation" — the theme of Holy Year — underlines the movement's search for wholehearted approval in the official church.

A crowd of about 8,000, most of them Americans, gathered at the catacombs of St. Callixtus, burial place of the early Christian martyrs, for the opening ceremony. A young band led the congress in song, and delegates from Quebec to Bombay testified to the growth of the movement in all continents.

Cardinal Suenens, archbishop of Malines-Brussels, urged participants to use the four-day reunion "to renew your faith, to renew your hope in the future, to love each other like you never did before."

The charismatic movement, a predominantly lay movement claiming more than half a million followers, emerged in main line Protestant churches in the early 1960s and in Roman Catholicism in 1967, among students and professors at Duquesne University in Pittsburgh.

It is characterized by fervent prayer meetings, gifts of the Spirit such as "speaking in tongues" and efforts to breathe new life into personal religion.

In a recent report, American Catholic bishops credited the movement with "many positive signs ... a new sense of spiritual values, a heightened consciousness of the action of the Holy Spirit, the praise of God and a deepening personal commitment to God."

But they warned of dangers inherent in the revival — divergence from the official church, fundamentalism, exaggeration of the importance of the gifts of prophecy and speaking in tongues.

"Tongues is not the important thing; the important thing is the change in your life," said Bob Cavnar, a retired U.S. Air Force colonel who came here for the meeting from Dallas, an initial hostility to it.

Cavnar, introduced to the movement by his son Jim, was one of 70 congress elite renowned for speaking in tongues and selected to receive messages to the conference from the Holy Spirit.

Cavnar said he had joined the charismatic movement despite an initial hostility to it.

"I didn't like all these people grinning and trying to hug me," he said. "I was a very successful businessman, lived in a mansion in Dallas and wanted my son to be a physicist..."

Some 250 Refugees Already Cleared, Can Leave "Little Saigon"

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (UPI) — Some 250 refugees who worked for United States government agencies in Vietnam and Cambodia can leave "Little Saigon" if they have sponsors, it was reported Saturday.

The refugees were on a list of 10,644 persons who were already given security checks when they were employed by the government, authorities said.

Because they have already been cleared, another security check is not necessary, a spokesman said, allowing the refugees to leave as soon as they can obtain sponsors. He said completion of the list was not completed until Friday night. About 250 persons housed in the tent city here were immediately told they could leave if they had sponsors. An unknown number of others in the same category could be eligible to leave the camp but have yet to be identified, he said.

The remainder of the more than 10,000 former government employees are probably located at the other two refugee camps in the country or in Guam, the spokesman said. He also said some could still be in Indochina.

A record low number of refugees, 24, left the camp

Friday, but the spokesman said the figure was "not unusual." He said clearances have been averaging about 100 per day.

A total of 26,039 refugees from Indochina have arrived here, 7,745 of whom departed as of midnight Friday. Some 18,294 persons remain in the camp awaiting for sponsors or clearance by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

...Social Security Cards Issued Refugees

By DANIEL F. GILMORE WASHINGTON (UPI) — Social Security cards are being issued to every South Vietnamese man, woman and child who qualifies for U.S. resident alien status at refugee processing centers, immigration officials said Saturday.

In addition, Indochina refugees —now expected to number at least 115,000 —may also qualify for welfare benefits and will certainly have to pay the same taxes a U.S. citizen would pay.

It will be up to the individual 50 states to decide whether a refugee resident qualifies for welfare benefits. But State Department officials say they are confident few will go on welfare.

This pays for evacuation from South Vietnam and Cambodia; building or expanding staging camps at Guam and the Philippines; transportation to three U.S. mainland military bases; and feeding and sometimes clothing refugees before they pass through security and identity checks and head for their new homes.

They said few of the Hungarian, Cuban, Czechoslovak, Ugandan, Asian and other refugees have ended up on welfare rolls. Most have been eager to start work as quickly as possible, no matter how lowly the job.

State Department officials estimated 35,000 of the refugees are breadwinners or heads of families. Some are doctors, dentists and nurses, for whom there is great demand. Many are unskilled laborers or non-working dependents.

By any count, the refugees add only a tiny fraction to the U.S. labor force.

In terms of social cost, however, there is also the immediate need to finance resettlement with federal funds, plus sizeable amounts contributed by nine voluntary agencies and thousands of private sponsors.

President Ford asked Congress for $507 million in resettlement money.

Two Die

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Two men were killed early Saturday in a shooting incident in front of a Forsyth County restaurant owned by one of the victims, authorities said.

Clifford Lee Plowman, 19, of East Bend, was charged with first degree murder in the death of a Delaware man who apparently killed Plowman's uncle a few minutes earlier, the Forsyth County Sheriff's department said.

The dead were identified as Donald Plowman, 48, also of East Bend, and Junior Gray Epperson, 45, of Middleton, Del.

Helm's Proposal Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who is opposed to using tax money to finance the resettlement of Indochinese refugees, has offered to donate his own money to resettlement if other Congressmen will do the same.

"Let us now provide real leadership...and reach into our own wallets instead of the taxpayers' wallets," Helms said on the Senate floor Friday.

Helms offered to donate $1,000 in personal funds to a private organization to help the refugees.

However, the Senate turned down Helms' proposal to create a private church-directed effort on behalf of the refugees. Instead the Senate voted $405 million to finance the resettlement. Helms and Sen. William Scott, R-Va., cast the only dissenting votes.

An aide said the $1,000 check would be returned to Helms.

Today's N.C. Graduations

College commencements continue Sunday in North Carolina with more than 1,800 students graduating from five schools.

North Carolina Central University in Durham graduates a class of 850 in 10 a.m. exercises at its O'Kelly Field.

In another morning program, Pfeiffer College in Misenheimer graduates 171 in a commencement starting at 10:30 o'clock.

High Point College, 235 graduates.

Gardner-Webb college in Boiling Springs, 238 graduates.

Heavy Damage In Bethel Fire Friday

An early Friday morning fire caused an estimated $20 to $25 thousand damage to the Bethel Utilities Commission truck garage and parts department, Bethel Police Chief Walter Gray reported.

The fire started at approximately 4:00 a.m. and was extinguished in about 30 minutes by the Bethel Fire Department. The cause of the fire is still under investigation, Gray said.

Degree For Caldwell

RALEIGH (UPI) — Retiring North Carolina State University Chancellor John T. Caldwell was surprised Saturday with an honorary doctor of laws degree during the school's 86th annual commencement exercises.

University of North Carolina President William Friday conferred the honorary degree on Caldwell, who, during his 16 years as chancellor, has seen more than 30,000 of 49,700 students graduate in the school's 86-year history.

The honorary degree, the first given by the university since 1968, was awarded during commencement exercises for about 2,800 students. Caldwell gave the principal address at the last graduation over which he will preside.

Hair Case To Court

RAEFORD, N.C. (AP) — While it's become a dead issue elsewhere in the nation, rural Hoke County High School is still trying to keep hair from touching the ears and collars of male pupils.

One of those pupils, Joseph Thompson Jr., said he has been suspended "several times" because of the regulation and has taken the issue to court. A hearing on the suit will be held in Superior Court in nearby Fayetteville Thursday.

Describing Thompson as "an average kid from rural North Carolina...a neat, clean nice kid," the youth's bearded attorney, Kenneth Glusman said, "If you met the kid, you would never notice the hair length."

Student Death Accidental

DUNN, N.C. (AP) — The death of an Iranian exchange student who drowned near Dunn Thursday was ruled accidental by authorities.

The Harnett County Sheriff's Department identified the victim as Eissa Assef, 24. He was attending Campbell College in Raleigh and drowned in a 30-foot deep gravel pit, though fellow students who witnessed the death said he was a competent swimmer.

Assef's younger sister, Pari Assef, also a Campbell student, was treated at a nearby hospital for shock after she and other students tried to rescue Assef.

Regulations May Change

RALEIGH (AP) — The dress regulations for nuns and priests probably will be changed in North Carolina's Eastern Diocese of the Roman Catholic Church with individuals and orders making their own decisions, the Most Rev. F. Joseph Gossman said Friday when arrived to assume leadership of the region.

Bishop Gossman, who said he will be active in community affairs when necessary, also said he probably will allow Saturday evening mass, a practice not allowed by his predecessor, the late Bishop Vincent S. Waters who was conservative on such matters.

Night Manager Shot

RALEIGH (UPI) — The body of a MacDonald's restaurant night manager, who apparently was shot during a robbery, was found early Saturday morning, police said.

Officers identified the man as Kirk Dugger Jones, 24, of Raleigh. Police said Cien Hsiung Lin, a maintenance man, discovered Jones' body when he came to clean up the restaurant about 4:46 a.m.

An undisclosed amount of money was missing from the Western Boulevard restaurant, authorities said.

Jaycee Officers Elected

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — James F. Morgan of High Point Saturday was elected president of the North Carolina Jaycees at the group's annual convention being held here.

Morgan, a High Point attorney, will be the 39th president of the organization.

The state vice presidents elected were Vernon Averett of Oxford, Woody Copeland of Edenton and Marice Wilson of Charlotte.

Student Art Chosen

SHERBIE DANIELS

Art work by two Pitt County students has been chosen for display in a statewide student show to be displayed in the N.C. State Capital from May 19 through May 30.

Donald Manning, a seventh grade student at Stokes-Pactolus, and Sherbie Daniels, a sophomore at Rose High, were the two whose art work was selected to represent the Pitt County and the Greenville School systems.

Donald's painting is a still life; Sherbie's is a portrait of a girl. Donald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Manning of Rt. 3, Washington. Sherbie is the daughter of Mrs. Queenie Daniels of Greenville.

Retiring Scout Leader Honored

WASHINGTON — Scouters from all parts of the East Carolina Council gathered at Camp Bonner, near Washington, Thursday night to pay tribute to O.B. Roberts, who will retire in July after serving for 19 years as Scout Executive of the Council, which embraces 20 counties.

Chief speaker for the occasion was Spurgeon Gaskin of Atlanta, Scout Executive of the Southeast Region.

A Marine Corps appreciation trophy was presented to Roberts from General Fred Haynes, Commander of the Marine Base at Camp Lejeune.

A native of Virginia, Roberts had held various posts in Scouting in Kentucky, West Virginia and New York before coming in 1956 to the East Carolina Council with headquarters in Wilson.

In retirement, Roberts will continue to live in Wilson, where he has been active as a Sunday School teacher and official board member of the First United Methodist Church.

Patton Was Speaker

KINSTON — Dave Patton of Greenville delivered the principal address and athletic awards to outstanding players at the sixth annual Lenoir Community College Athletic Banquet on Monday night. Patton is the head basketball coach at East Carolina University.

Receives Degree

Richard J. Knapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Knapp, Sr. of Greenville received the Bachelor of Arts degree from Edgely College, Cincinnati, OH, at its fortieth commencement exercises.

Chosen As Marshalls

Three area students will serve as marshalls for the 13th annual graduation exercises at Lenoir Community College. The students selected were Joan Sherrilyn Rouse and Yvonne Clayborne of Grifton. Kenneth M. Edge of Snow Hill will serve as Chief Marshal. The commencement will be held in Kinston High School Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. May 23.

Alejandro Orfila Secretary General

By JUAN J. WALTE WASHINGTON (UPI) — Alejandro Orfila, Argentina's ambassador to the United States, today was elected secretary general of the Organization of American States.

Orfila, one of Washington's most popular diplomats, barely defeated Dominican Republic Foreign Minister Victor Gomez Berges. Orfila received 13 votes in the secret ballot, including that of the United States, for the minimum number needed to win.

Gomez Berges received 9 votes and there were two abstentions.

The election of the successor of former Ecuadorian president Galo Plaza came as the fifth OAS General Assembly neared Monday's end of an 11-day meeting.

The balloting started Wednesday when neither of the two candidates was able to get 13 or more votes in five rounds of voting. A second round of five elections was scheduled for today, but Orfila won in the second round.

The vote is supposedly secret.

But most OAS countries — including the United States — let it be known in the corridors of the Pan American Union who their respective choices were.

The job pays $66,000 a year, tax free.

Orfila, 50, was born in Mendoza, Argentina. He studied law at the University of Buenos Aires, political sciences at Stanford University and foreign trade at Tulane University.

He was named Argentina's White House ambassador in November, 1973.

Wool Pool To Be Collected

WASHINGTON, N.C. — The State Wool Pool for this area will be collected Tuesday, June 10, from 7:00 a.m. until noon, at the Bright Belt Warehouse, Hackney Avenue, Washington. The Pasquotank-Perquimans truck has been requested to arrive at the warehouse at 9:00 a.m. There will be a market charge of 3 cents per pound — the same as last year.

Wants Vote

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Some 125 Appalachian State University students, angered by a county taxation decision involving student cars, marched on the Watauga County board of elections Friday asking to be registered to vote.

Ralph Greene, chairman of the elections board, said only three or four qualified. The staff worked for nearly three hours processing the applications, he said.

The march followed a decision by the county commissioners requiring university students to list their automobiles for tax purposes if they spent more than six months of last year in the county.

Mike Broome, student body president and a leader of the march, said the decision amounted to taxation without representation.

Burroughs Wellcome Funding Research

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — The British pharmaceutical manufacturer of Burroughs Wellcome Co. said Saturday it will provide full salary and research support for a Duke University medical center scientist studying cardiovascular disease.

Dr. James C.A. Fuchs, assistant professor in the Department of Surgery and associate in clinical pharmacology, will concentrate much of his research on atherosclerosis, a disorder often associated with heart attacks and strokes. Fuchs and his associated are looking at surgical grafts which bypass diseased segments of arteries. These grafts, usually veins taken from another part of the body, will be studied to determine the factors involved in their long-term function.

Fuchs received his M.D. degree from Johns Hopkins School of Medicine in 1964 and is a 1973 graduate of Duke's surgical residency program. He was named assistant professor of surgery here in 1974.

Turning Ugly And Dangerous

There is something ugly and perhaps dangerous in the latest round of attacks on the development of the East Carolina University medical school.

The battle has been going on for more than a decade now and, properly, those who have opposed it have presented their arguments wherever possible. The overwhelming facts in favor of the school's development won out, however, and last year the board of governors recommended that the school be developed to full four-year status.

Having lost their argument based on fact, opponents now have turned to divisive tactics which could, if carried to conclusion, tear our state apart.

They try, for instance, to tie in proposed tuition increases for university students with the development of the ECU medical school. We could just as well make a case for the development of UNC at Charlotte being the primary cause for the proposed tuition increase. Nobody attempted to block the development of that campus a few years back, but it's a fact that if we had not spent millions there those funds could be used to forestall the tuition increase. It's not fair to blame UNC-

Charlotte for the fact that students at Appalachian may pay higher tuitions, but it is just as logical as blaming it on the ECU medical school development.

Then there is the proposal, advanced almost entirely by traditional opponents of the ECU medical school, that the financing be submitted to a bond vote.

We have no doubt that any bond issue campaign would be designed to turn section against section in North Carolina and the result would be area bitterness which would endure for decades.

Such a campaign is obviously not in North Carolina's best interest and particularly is true when we consider that during its first years of operation, ECU Medical school students have come from all areas of the state.

The ECU medical school funds are faring very well in the budget making process now underway in the Legislature. We would hope that those who have opposed the school for all these years will now put pettiness aside and work toward developing an ECU medical school which will help solve the severe physician shortage for all areas of our state.

Seek School Smoking Ban

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Local school boards which allow student smoking areas in the schools are breaking the law, and encouraging young students to break the law as well, two Asheville Legislators believe.

Many junior and senior high schools in North Carolina have established smoking areas in which students may smoke—some of them inside the buildings; some on outside grounds.

State representatives Mary C. Nesbitt and Claude De Bruhl are pushing a legislative proposal which would outlaw student smoking on school property.

The measure takes note of state law which makes it illegal for people under age 17 to buy tobacco products, and discourages smoking by people under 17.

Man-school fires result directly from smoking-areas because of the tobacco smoke that camouflages the marijuana smoke.

Many school fires result directly from smoking, the legislators say, and add that "it is widely known that the vast majority of students who use marijuana and other illicit drugs do so at these smoking areas because of the tobacco smoke that camouflages the marijuana smoke."

Relief is offered in the proposal for any student who is addicted to tobacco: special smoking permission may be given if the child presents a statement signed by a physician and his parents or guardian.

No Bicentennial City Washington, New Bern, Edenton, Kingston, and Gastonia all have lost the chance to be named North Carolina's Bicentennial City.

It seems too many towns wanted that single honor; and proving which deserved it over all others proved too difficult.

The rules committee of the State House of Representatives appears ready to endorse the recommendation of a study group that there are "so many cities of real historical importance that a dozen or more could make an excellent claim..." ruling out the prospects of singling out one.

The move now will be toward naming several Bicentennial Cities; and the Legislative jockeying is currently aimed at being the first so designated.

Bicentennial Barage While North Carolina may not have a Bicentennial City, she may have a barage—that is if a proposal by State Rep. Vernon G. James, D-Pasquotank, is adopted by the General Assembly.

James proposes a seagoing barge specially designed for a theater, exhibit area, library, and rooms for presenting plays, music, dances, and exhibits about the state.

Costing some $2.5 million, the barge would be designed to travel the nation's waterways, rivers and lakes, and visit coastal cities on both oceans.

Annual operating costs would run about $300,000, and the proposed Bicentennial Barge Foundation would help raise part of that.

James spells out in his proposal that the oceangoing barge shall not exceed 195 feet long, 38 feet wide, have a super structure some 165 feet long, and a maximum height above water of 35 feet, and a draft of seven feet, so as to clear bridges, locks and normal water depths on canals, rivers, and waterways.

The Barge Foundation, which would be headed by Nellie M. Sanders, Robert Wendell Hutchings, and Ralph Hunter the first year, would be expected to raise additional funds besides the $300,000 matching money for operations, and will seek grants from private and government sources. James suggests some research funds may be available for solar energy collection and storage devices designed into the barge.

Sunday Morning Notes

A clerk in a local store sighed, "I think I'd better go home. I started to water an artificial plant."

That's not so bad. Your columnist forgets to water the live ones.

A letter came to the office addressed to: Mr. Henry A. Dennis, Editor, The Greenville Daily Reflector.

You can't say it is really wrong, Dennis did work with this newspaper at one time. The thing is, it was 62 years ago and he worked for the founder of the paper, D.J. Whichard, who was the father of the current chairman of the board and grandfather of the present co-publishers.

Since then he has gone on to obtain his own newspaper, The Henderson Daily Dispatch.

Dennis recalled his days in Greenville at a recent press meeting here. It was 1913. ECU was a small school then and Dr. Robert Wright, was its first and still president. This was, of course, before the days of chancellors and medical schools.

At any rate we forwarded the mail on to Dennis at Henderson.

One day recently Danny

Burt who is seven years old, cut his foot near the swimming pool at Tar River Estates.

As the blood gushed, needless to say it was unsettling to the young man and he rushed inside the pool area where Ray Scharf swimming coach at ECU, was working to get the pool in shape for the summer.

Ray washed off the wound and stopped the bleeding and Faye Lewis, an emergency room nurse, was summoned to look at it.

She pronounced it not so bad, but said it would be best if he got a tetanus shot.

Daniel said he didn't want one.

"Don't worry about it," the nurse said. "You can get it tomorrow (Saturday)."

"That's my cartoon day," Daniel complained.

Who could interfere with Saturday morning television cartoons?

Danny is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Burt.

Any riches are still a few years away—more drilling, tubing and the building of an oil refinery still are in the blueprint stage—and Mrs. Smitherman, a widow, won't be one of the millionaires.

With just one acre of land, she doesn't have the strike-it-rich symptoms of many in this farm and timber country. Some who have dug a modest living from the soil for decades are now on the threshold of sixfigure profits.

The INSIDE REPORT

Bitter Post-Nixon Legacy

By ROWLANE EVANS

WASHINGTON—The Senate Finance Committee has begun confirmation hearings on President Ford's nomination, as the government's top trade negotiator, of William Walker, a 37-year-old White House aide with an immaculate record and a better than even chance to be rejected by the Senate—a paradox traced to today's weakened presidency.

Walker's ostensible problem is lack of experience in international trade. Sen. Carl Curtis of Nebraska, the Finance Committee's senior Republican, shares that concern but will vote for Walker, he says, "out of deference to the President."

Other committee Republicans—Paul Fannin (Ariz.), William Roth (Del.) and perhaps Clifford Hansen (Wyo.)—show no such deference.

On the Democratic side, liberals Abraham Ribicoff (Conn.) and Gaylord Nelson (Wis.) are inclined against Walker, and chairman Russell B. Long of Louisiana may join them. If all these Senators vote against Walker, his nomination is dead.

What is happening here is the intersection of two bitter legacies from the ruined presidency of Richard M. Nixon. The first, especially strong among Democrats, is congressional attempts to usurp presidential selection of high officials, among other functions. The second, involving Republicans, is a corrosive post-Nixon reaction to arrogance from the Oval Office.

That second legacy means that opposition against Walker from Republican Senators is in large part an emotional slap back at Walker's boss and patron, White House chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld, and, indirectly, Rumsfeld's departed predecessors, H. R. Haldeman and Gen. Alexander Haig.

Walker is unmistakably Rumsfeld's protégé. Brought into the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) as a young Chicago lawyer by fellow Illinoisan Rumsfeld in 1969, Walker followed him to the Cost of Living Council (COLC) in 1972. When Rumsfeld took over the White House last December, he gave Walker the messy task of running the personnel office there. In reward for that hazardous duty, the President on April 15 nominated Walker for the choice post of deputy special trade representative stationed in general to head forthcoming negotiations.

On his courtesy calls to Senators since then, Walker has argued that he gained plenty of negotiating experience as a government lawyer and that past trade negotiators, while more experienced, were concerned with foreign policy dictates rather than driving a hard bargain. With such arguments, Walker would have sailed through the Senate in pre-Watergate days. But in 1975 Senators are tougher about a nominee's qualifications.

Beyond lack of experience, Walker suffers from having been personnel chief. A highly competent but buttoned-down young man who does not suffer fools gladly, Walker treated some seekers of high federal posts recommended by Senators as supplicants rather than VIPs. One Senator now opposing Walker tells of a prominent constituent volunteering for government office being given a runaround by Walker.

He is accused of sidetracking a would-be member of the new Commodity Futures Regulatory Commission who had influential support in the Senate Republican cloakroom. Conservative Republicans who are Walker's sharpest critics also blame him for decisions on some obscure but politically sensitive appointments. Most annoying of these is Neil Staebler, a veteran liberal Democratic politician from Michigan, to the Federal Election Commission. The selection of Legal Services Corp. board members viewed as insufficiently conservative by many Republicans is attributed to Walker.

With these complaints in the background, the White House made a possibly fatal error in handling Walker's confirmation. His nomination was presented to Finance Committee members not as a possibility but as an accomplished fact, a blunder in the post-Nixon mood of congressional superiority.

There is yet another sub-surface layer. One Senate Democrat opposing the nomination told us there is unvoiced suspicion on both sides of the aisle that Walker is Rumsfeld's choice, not the President's, hurried past the President's eye. Absurd though the charge is, the fact that it is articulated by

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

The leash law was passed by our city council without the right of the citizens of this city to vote on the issue. We were told that we would receive a warning the first time the dog is picked up and not a fine, that is, if the dog survives the ordeal of being picked up by the dog catcher.

Our dog got out last week while we were at work. The dog catcher saw her and shot her with the tranquilizer gun (that's the new toy the city gave him to play with). She was shot in the bone at the base of her spine. Fortunately, it did not hit a nerve that could have paralyzed her. The tranquilizer will not work if the dart hits a bone, and since she wasn't put to sleep, the dog catcher did not attempt to take her nor did he try to remove the dart from her spine.

It was several hours later before we learned of the incident and could get the dog to a vet where it was removed surgically. These darts have bars, which look like fish hooks, at the base of the needle which prevent an animal from pulling them out. If the tranquilizer is successful, the dog catcher pulls it out, flesh and all.

I am not upset by the fact that my dog was being picked up; I am upset with the manner in which they attempted to get her. If the city is going to employ the use of such a dangerous weapon, it should be put in the hands of a skilled person. Our dog catcher has very poor aim. If my dog gets out again she may not be so lucky again. The next time it could blind her or if it hits her in the head at the right place, it could kill her.

The city council has given us dog owners three choices: 1. chain it and make it mean; 2. fence it and make it miserable; or 3. let it run free and you local dog catcher will cripple it or kill it. Brother, what a choice.

New Breed Of Oil Millionaires

By KENDAL WEAVER

Associated Press Writer CREOLA, Ala. (AP) — A "new breed of millionaires" may rise out of the hard-scrabble populace of North Mobile County thanks to one of the largest oil finds since the first shocks of the energy crisis.

"Two of the fields are the two largest discoveries in the U.S. over the past two years," says Alabama's state geologist, Dr. Phillip LaMoreaux. "You're going to have a lot of millionaires rise out of there... a new breed of millionaires."

LaMoreaux says there are good signs that the oil fields of Union, Getty and wild-catters will produce the huge quantities of gas and condensate that their initial probes have indicated.

Getty's Peter Klein well near Creola has been marked at producing 6.8 million cubic feet of gas per day, and it's two oilbearing formations, Smackover and Northlet, have brought in 2,166 and 1,416 barrels of condensate oil per day respectively.

The Klein well was discovered last September, and in January Union oil brought in a well on Mobile County school board property in Chunchula. LaMoreaux says the well is going to create "the richest school commission in the country."

The hopes of state officials and the backwoods landowners on the verge of huge good fortune, however, could dry up if future wells strike out. And in any event it is a patient process which may be a decade in becoming fully realized.

Mike Hillman, who leads a five-man crew at a Union well five miles east of Chunchula, stands before the screaming drill which is tunneling more than 18,000 feet into the earth. He's been there for a year and says it will be a few more months before the drill, hopefully, hits pay dirt.

Iola Smitherman picked crops and worked on a chicken farm to raise cash during the past three summers. But today she stands, 66 and barefoot, on an acre plot of land that could ease her earthly cares.

Her tiny farmhouse is on a stretch of piney woods land in southwest Alabama where the 10 oil wells already have signaled huge oil prospects.

Legend Of The Ring

By H.D. QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — He was a slashing young terror of a fighter from out of the West. He had what the sports writers called "the killer instinct," and they dubbed Jack Dempsey "The Manassa Mauler."

It was the Golden Age of sports, the 1920s. The two top idols were Dempsey and the late Babe Ruth, baseball's "Sultan of Swat." Dempsey was world's heavyweight boxing champion from 1919 to 1926. Many experts have held him the greatest who ever lived. He ushered in the "million dollar gate."

Dempsey won the title from the giant Jess Willard and fought memorably with Carpentier, Firpo, Gibbons and others before losing to Gene Tunney. He failed to regain the title from Tunney in the famous "battle of the long count" in which Tunney may have stayed down 14 seconds but officially got off the floor in 9.

In recent years Dempsey fought to save his Broadway restaurant, "Jack Dempsey's," of which he had been part-owner and host for nearly 40 years—sitting as a greeter at a front table. The landlord sought to evict the restaurant. Dempsey said the landlord wanted to double his $65,000 yearly rent.

"We want to hold onto the restaurant because it's the only decent place left on Broadway," Dempsey said. "People of all generations come, shake my hand, say hello, get my autograph."

His wife of 17 years (his fourth), Deanna, said: "If they are going to take away his restaurant, they are going to take away his life... He's so used to being surrounded by people."

But last fall Dempsey and his co-owner threw in the towel. They closed the place, which was not doing well—like many others here.

The old idol did not sulk. He plunged into the writing of his memoirs with his step-daughter, who writes under the name Barbara Piattelli Dempsey. She says: "He figures he'll tell what really went on; get the record straight. This is his tribute to his public."

The letters of the "Jack Dempsey" sign are grayed, and a sign in the window says "this (Continued on Page A-5)

Strength For Today

THE USES OF THE PAST

St. Paul advised his generation to forget the things which are behind and to press on to the things which are ahead. The great evangelist, Phillips Brooks, said, "The only use for a past is to get a future out of it."

How many people continually relive past tragedies. They recall vividly the loss of money, misjudgments which may have limited the advance of their careers, unfortunate words which brought a friendship to an end.

Psychiatrists' waiting rooms are full of people who cannot forget. Yet of one thing we can be sure—we can never change the past. It is over, recorded, fixed. But we must do something more than merely forget it. We must use it to make a better future. No matter how tragic it has been, it should have taught us lessons. Often, the more grievous the mistake or the loss, the more beneficial the lesson it has taught.

So the best way to regard the past is as education. Expensive, perhaps, but that's the way things are.

Differences In Attitudes

PRINCETON, N.J., May 17—College freshmen and seniors differ sharply in their views on the legalization of marijuana with freshmen evenly divided on the issue but seniors more than 2-to-1 in favor of legalization.

These findings emerge from a special survey of college students interviewed in a representative sample of the nation's colleges. The survey was designed to measure differences in attitude and behavior between freshman and senior years.

Sharp differences in views are also found regarding the legalization of abortion, although opinion among both freshmen and seniors favors permitting women to have abortions under proper medical supervision. Opinion divides 55 to 39 per cent in favor among freshmen, 71 to 21 per cent among seniors.

Large majorities of both freshmen and seniors believe it is not wrong for people to have sexual relations before marriage, but freshmen are about twice as likely as seniors to say pre-marital relations are wrong.

The survey records sharp behavioral as well as attitudinal differences. For example, college seniors are far more likely to drink than are freshmen and somewhat more likely to smoke cigarettes.

Views Of College-Educated Among General Public

Interesting differences are found when the attitudes and behavior of college students are compared with those of persons with a college background among the general public.

For example, the college-trained segment of the public votes 2-to-1 against legalizing marijuana. They lean more than 2-to-1 in favor of legalizing abortion. They also believe pre-marital sex relations are not wrong, by the ratio of 5-to-4.

Eight in 10 (83 per cent) of persons with a college background among the general public say they drink alcoholic beverages while 35 per cent smoke cigarettes.

Following are questions asked in the college survey and results for each of the four classes:

"Do you think the use of marijuana should be made legal or not?"

| Junior    | 58  | 36  | 6          |
| Senior    | 64  | 30  | 6          |

"Do you believe a woman should be able to have an abortion under proper medical supervision, if she wants to, or should it be permitted by law only under certain circumstances?"

Public Forum

To the editor:

In a recent column dealing with the unionization of public employees, I attributed to George Meany the following direct quotation: "Certainly it's against the law to strike civil service, but it's AFL-CIO policy to ignore those laws." I said that he had said this in a talk to the AFL-CIO's new Public Employees Department last November.

Mr. Meany did not say this. I regret that I gave fresh currency to a counterfeit quotation, and I mean by this letter to do what I can to stop its circulation.

I got the quote from a speech by Sen. Paul Fannin of Arizona, delivered in the Senate on March 6 and carried in the Congressional Record at page S-3184. Senator Fannin advises me that he got it from the National Right to Work Committee. The committee got it from the newsletter of a Southern manufacturers' group.

A transcript of Mr. Meany's address shows that he said:

"As far as the right to strike is concerned, I think that the leadership of the unions — and we sure have militant leaders in these unions — they determine that for themselves. I don't think it makes a great deal of difference when you get down to the brass tacks, whether there's a law which affirmatively says you have a right to strike or whether there is a law like the Condon-Wadlin law in the State of New York which tells you you don't have a right to strike."

Mr. Meany said he felt the public service unions should act "by going on strike any damn time you feel that the conditions are not right." He said he was "not worried about anti-strike legislation against public employees any more than I'm worried about anti-strike legislation against private employees."

In an editorial on November 10, The New York Times criticized Meany's address, and said his counsel to public workers "was to ignore legal prohibitions, and

A Conservative View

It's Only An Itsy-Bitsy Bureaucratic Monster

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

It's only an itsy-bitsy addition to federal bureaucracy, said Senator Abe Ribicoff of Connecticut. His new Agency for Consumer Advocacy would be nothing more than a "small, specialized agency," costing only $15 million in its first year. Who could oppose the little darling?

What we have here is a teeny-weeny monster. It is a baby crocodile, its teeth not fully formed. This legislative creature, born in the image of Ralph Nader, will grow in a few years to awesome size and authority. The senator from Connecticut knows this. Whom is he kidding?

Granted, the Senate bill is — temporarily — a considerable improvement over the bill that happily was filibustered to death last fall. Ribicoff's new version contains no grant-in-aid provision to stimulate consumerism at state and local levels. A few safeguards have been added to protect small businessmen from harassment. But if familiar patterns of bureaucratic growth provide a reliable guide, the Agency for Consumer Advocacy soon enough will retrieve the discarded baggage. The first-year authorization of $15 million is to increase to $25 million two years hence, an increase of 66 percent. Not bad for an itsy-bitsy baby.

This "small, specialized agency" is to be headed by an administrator, virtually untouchable and unaccountable, whose modest duties require him to determine "the consumer's interest" in thousands of decisions made annually by other federal agencies, to represent this supported interest in various proceedings, and to function as an intervenor with power to appeal decisions through judicial review.

This is only the beginning. The agency is to obtain and disseminate information to consumers; it is to act as a clearing house for consumer complaints; it is to notify businesses and manufacturers of complaints concerning their products or operations; it is to transmit consumer complaints to appropriate agencies for action; it is to maintain files, open to public inspection, of consumer complaints' and it is to advise and assist state and local consumer agencies.

There is much more. The agency would be authorized, for example, to compel businessmen and manufacturers to answer formal interrogatories. The agency would conduct surveys and make studies. It would prepare and publish reports. It will function, says the senator, as a spokesman for "the consumer." It will give "the consumer" a voice in government which can be heard.

"Who is 'the consumer'?" asked Senator Robert Taft of Ohio. "Who is this mythical 'every man'?" I do not believe there is a composite every man out there in this complex, ever-changing nation of individuals. What is in the interest of one consumer in one set of circumstances may well be contrary to the interests of another consumer in another set of circumstances."

Taft is right. What is the interest of "the consumer" in Department of Transportation proceedings having to do with automobiles? Does "the consumer" want ignition interlocks, safety bumpers, and costly anti-smog devices? Or does "the consumer" want an inexpensive car? How is the administrator to determine the interest of "the consumer" in the price of natural gas? In the price of farm commodities? In air fares? In the building of a dam? In the construction of a highway?

Historically, the practice has been for the government's regulatory agencies, through adversary proceedings, to determine the public interest in such decisions. Sponsors of the new consumer agency complain that these agencies have become mere co-conspirators with the subjects of their regulation. The charge is nonsense. And to suggest that consumer groups are voiceless in Washington is to toss truth out the window. Ralph Nader is about as speechless as Hubert Humphrey.

Democratic liberals plainly have the votes, in both House and Senate, to pass this costly, needless, and autocratic legislation. They may not have the votes to sustain a veto. If President Ford means what he says about stopping bureaucratic growth, he will use his veto when the bill hits his desk.

'Indexing' Device Poses Big Washington-Run Economic Dictatorship

By GEORGE BRYANT

There is a considerable and, apparently, growing body of thought that since inflation offers no easy way out the thing to do is simply relax and enjoy the spiral.

The device advocated by this school goes by the name "indexing". It would tie all sorts of financial transactions to a government index, with the living cost yardstick the favorite. Then, as the index goes up the rise would be reflected in wages, salaries, pensions, interest rates, construction contracts, or what have you.

The idea is that this would maintain a balanced spiral, with no pain or hardship on anyone. There would be no cause for consumers to view rising prices with alarm. They would know that their income, from whatever source, would be following right on up. Thus, inflation could be turned into a sort of joy ride, without danger of some future recession or depression.

There is a built-in political appeal. Congress likes to vote the huge spending deficits which create inflation, but is somewhat concerned about backlash from the high prices. The legislators have taken some tentative nibbles—cost of living rises in federal pay and pensions, including social security benefits. And, of course, it sanctions the statute under which some big unions have been able to force "escalators" on employers.

Some countries, most of them known for sloppy economic policy, have gone to the system. Advocates like to point to so-called gains made by Brazil. That country is run by a military dictatorship, which decides how the melon is split. Last year, its inflation rate was 34 per cent.

Support for the scheme has come largely from economists, especially those who lean to detailed direction of the economy by government—Washington. Now and then this concept of economic utopia gets support from surprising quarters.

Take the position of the Chief Justice of The Supreme Court, Warren Burger, for example. His Honor has stepped, at least part way, into the indexing controversy, and as an advocate. He has no particular standing as an economist, of course. But as the top man in the third branch of government, his views deserve attention. Even-handed justice accepts the idea that sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

For a number of months, the Chief Justice has been lobbying on behalf of what he considers over-worked and under-paid Federal judges. He wants more judges in the lower courts and a pay raise.

site for rent. Any day you can find 20 or so tourists peering into the vacant restaurant. The fan mail is redirected to his apartment. Young kids: "Can I have a picture ... an autograph ... my grandfather told me about you; I am a young fighter."

Dempsey reads whodunits, visits friends. When he stands waiting for a taxi, people congregate to shake his hand. Arthritic in both hips, he walks with a cane while holding to somebody—usually his wife—with the other hand.

Jack Dempsey will be 80 on June 24. Something's going to happen — a nice celebration. He is as much a legend as any man now alive.

There can be no question that the work load in the federal courts has grown substantially in recent years. It is the pay raise argument that gets the Chief Justice into the indexing issue.

What Burger has proposed is an immediate increase of 20 per cent in judicial salaries (he earns $62,500) as a remedy for a six year "freeze", plus a "long range" adjustment to put federal judges on a par with other career federal personnel. To top it all off, the new pay rates would be tied to annual living cost adjustments.

In presenting his pay arguments, the Chief Justice makes reference to the Constitution's guarantees of what amounts to life tenure, with no cut in pay, for federal judges. The implication is that inflation, which flows from government policy, does what neither Congress nor the Executive can do directly.

It is not hard to understand how federal judges feel the bite of surging inflation. Their problem is no different from that of millions of other citizens. Perhaps, in fairness, their pay should be raised by Congress.

But the inflation shelter the Chief Justice is reaching for goes beyond this. What he advocates would be another step toward a Washington-run economic dictatorship—an extra push in the direction we are headed.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, May 18, the 138th day of 1975. There are 227 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1804, Napoleon Bonaparte was proclaimed Emperor of France.

On this date — In 1860, a Republican convention in Chicago nominated Abraham Lincoln for president. In 1863, the Civil War siege of Vicksburg, Miss., began.

In 1899, an international peace conference was convened at The Hague in the Netherlands. In 1933, the Tennessee Valley Authority was created.

In 1941, in World War II, Italian forces in Ethiopia surrendered.

In 1951, the United Nations moved from Lake Success, N.Y., to its new headquarters in Manhattan.

Ten years ago: The U.N. special representative in strife-torn Dominican Republic recommended that the Security Council act to bring about a ceasefire.

Inspiration To Be Had Even From The Catbox

There are three things that send me into an artistic depression: locking my keys in the house when Phillip is out of town, cleaning the catbox, and writing term papers.

This week I was in the middle of doing the latter when I suddenly began to rhythmically beat my head against the wall.

"What in the world are you doing?" Phillip yelled from the den. "You're interfering with the TV reception."

"I'm keeping time with the throbbing in my fingers," I yelled back calmly, continuing to follow the same rhythmical motion.

"If I didn't know you already had it, I'd say that was giving you brain damage," Phillip grunted, stomping into the room. "Now, what's your real reason for doing that?"

"I told you," I answered. "It's the kung-fu method of taking one's mind off pain. If I create a pain in my head, I take my mind off the pain in my hand."

"You're a pain in the ...," he mumbled. I stopped my beating and looked up at him in my best tragic manner. "You don't love me anymore," I wailed. "Here I am, struggling violently to overcome my Creative Inhibitions, to let Inspiration fill the Void of my Searching Mind, to get a passing grade out of this lousy course, and here you are, casting aspersions on my ... Character."

GAIL MICHAELS

"You certainly have a lively Imagination," he replied. "What's wrong with your hand?"

"I have chronic writer's cramp with a touch of rheumatism," I answered weakly. "I'm the picture of physical deterioration, and I can't even get any sympathy from the one who's Supposed to love me for better or for worse."

"Oh, I definitely love you for worse," he reassured me. "But I'm not going to give you sympathy when all you've got to do is sit down and make yourself finish the work."

"I can't," I whimpered. "I have drunk my Creative Juices to the Lees, and they're giving me an ulcer. I just can't write coherently any more. I keep drawing blanks all over the page."

"Well, just tell yourself that you've got to finish by tomorrow. After all, you've still got your column left to write."

"Don't remind me," I groaned. "I'm too young to have all this responsibility on my Fragile Shoulders."

"Oh, I think your shoulders will hold up," he snorted. "Especially since the only thing that's resting on them is empty. Now get to work."

"I can't," I moaned, stabbing him with my pencil for that last remark. "I just don't have the Inspiration. My school career, my writing career, it's all over."

"Look," he sighed. "If you'll stop all this complaining and sit down and finish that paper. I'll empty the catbox."

Raleigh Schools Feel Impact Of Increasing 'White Flight'

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

Associated Press Writer RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Since 1971, Raleigh's children have been getting on buses to go to public school under a court-imposed integration plan. Outwardly, the transition has been fairly smooth.

But Raleigh's schools are in trouble today because of a phenomenon that is plaguing many Southern communities with busing plans: white flight.

When busing started in Raleigh, 27 per cent of the school children were black. This year, the figure is 36 per cent. Meanwhile, the percentage of white enrollment in the school system for surrounding suburbs of Wake County is going up.

If the trend continues, Raleigh will find itself in not too many years with underfinanced, mostly black schools, encircled by a county system that is both more white and more affluent.

There are a number of reasons for the decline in white enrollment, according to Asst. Supt. H. Stewart Thompson of the Raleigh schools. He is in charge of pupil assignment.

Like many cities, Raleigh has a decaying core. Shops in the downtown area are emptying as merchants move to shopping centers on the outskirts of the city. Housing for young families is also more readily available in suburban towns like Garner and Cary than it is in Raleigh's older neighborhoods, he said.

Thompson cites a declining birth rate among white families. But much of the problem, he acknowledges, is due to white aversion for busing and integration.

When integration became imminent in Raleigh, many members of the city's banking, real estate and legal establishment turned their attention to a small, private Episcopal school, Ravenscroft. They pumped money into it and donated land for a sprawling, modern campus in the suburbs north of the city.

Now, Ravenscroft is the largest private school in the state. Its 1,100 students, who pay up to $1,800 per year in tuition, are almost all white, although the school does not officially discriminate. They represent a large slice of the several thousand Raleigh whites who have left the public school system.

A check in other Southern cities showed similar statistics. In Richland County, S.C., the district embracing the city of Columbia has lost 4,000 whites since 1971. An adjacent suburban district is more than 80 per cent white.

In Memphis, the public schools have lost 38,000 white pupils since 1971. Private schools, almost all white, have gained 23,000 students. The black-white ratio has gone from nearly even to more than 70 per cent black.

The problem that such a change in ratio represents for a school district is not primarily racial, Thompson said, but socio-economic. The pupils left in the system are generally from lower and lower middle class families who cannot afford a suburban home or a private school.

"The system's financial base is eroded, because tax money will flow toward political power, and that does not rest with the poor, whether they're white or black," Thompson said.

Thompson and others concerned with the Raleigh city schools think there is a solution: merging the city and county school system.

Raleigh is not yet large enough that its metropolitan suburbs extend beyond the county line, as is the case in a city like New Orleans. A merger would reinvigorate the school system's base, he said.

Not too many years ago, before busing, the Wake County schools were anxious to take advantage of its superior financing and facilities. Now they are not. In 1972, county voters overwhelmingly rejected merger in a referendum. This year, the pro-merger forces are trying to avoid a vote by getting the legislature to pass local legislation to merge the schools. They have persuaded the city school board, the county school board, and the county commissioners to agree.

But they have not persuaded the white parents of the suburban areas. Hundreds of them crowded into a hearing before the legislative delegation last Saturday and for 13 hours, they expressed their opposition to merger, based largely on the fear that it would lead to a county-wide busing plan imposed by the federal courts.

The virulent opposition caused one legislator, Wake

Sen. Bob Barker, to back away from the merger bill. Barker's opposition may kill its chances.

With the merger question in limbo, Thompson and other city school administrators are faced with bleak prospects. "There merger is an absolute necessity, for financial reasons," he said.

Thompson did not want to speculate on whether there is a "tipping point" in racial balances, beyond which white flight accelerates. "All the authorities in the field seem to think there is, but I don't want to antagonize anyone. Our system will be here, and I guess it will serve whoever is left here."

Show Biz Provides Its Own Retreat For The Aged

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Senior Editor
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The old people bustling about the arts and crafts room collecting supplies, laying secretive plans for the big wheel chair parade. Some 45 oldsters in their 70s and 80s prepared their chairs for judging of the miniature floats, an important annual event at the Motion Picture and Television Country House and Hospital.

It is one of dozens of contests and programs which have erased the walls of loneliness among the old, ill and forgotten citizens of our society.

In today's youth oriented culture this 41 acre retreat is a unique sanctuary for the aged. It contrasts sharply with the dreary so-called convalescent or retirement homes in which many senior citizens are filed away to die alone.

Billiard balls clicked in another room as arthritic septuagenarians sighted down their cues in a spirited game of 8-ball.

In the library, chock full of theatrical biographies, a white haired, sweet faced former comedienne read Variety. Elsewhere a brisk game of gin rummy was in progress.

An unmistakable air of show business clung to the people and their surroundings, as if they'd brought the aura of old boarding houses, sound stages and back lots with them to this rural setting.

Nestled in Woodland Hills, a Los Angeles suburb 20 miles from Hollywood, the fruit trees and low, Spanish style buildings provide a campus-like atmosphere for 270 residents.

Here and there are familiar faces—a one-time star, several character actors whose names are difficult to recall. But performers represent only 20 per cent of the population.

With the slogan "We Take Care of Our Own," the country house and hospital includes stunt men, sound technicians, dancers, carpenters, agents, extras, directors, publicists, script clerks and all the rest who devoted their lives to motion pictures.

For periods in the past it was the home of Herbert Marshall, Joe E. Brown, Larry Fine (of the Three Stooges), Mae Murray, Hattie McDaniel, Francis X. Bushman, Chester Conklin and currently Frieda Inescourt. Otto Kruger, one of its founders, died there.

The old caste system is forgotten. Actors, hairdressers, makeup men, wardrobe ladies, art directors and security guards, all now in their waning years, sit gossiping, laughing, remembering the old days together. No outsiders are admitted. Even volunteer workers who assist the 320-member professional staff are connected directly with movies and TV.

Jack Staggs, executive director of the Motion Picture and Television Fund and health care administrator, which finances the house and hospital, is the only major non-Hollywood figure on the premises.

"The fund goes back to 1921," Staggs said. "But the country house wasn't built until 1942. I've never seen anything like the facilities here for health care. It is absolutely ideal."

Oldtimers down on their luck are admitted to the center without charge. Those who can afford it, pay their way partially or totally. "Those with the greatest need get the priority," Staggs said.

The fund assists some 2,000 families financially in their own homes. Admission to the country house is limited to women 55 or older and men 60 and older who need help, while the hospital is open to all show folk regardless of age.

The hospital, with a staff of four fulltime doctors and 90 consulting physicians, has 180 private rooms that look out on garden patios, as well as two out-patient clinics.

Residents in the country house must have spent a minimum of 20 years earning $2,500 a year in movies or television, and must have worked 80 per cent of the past seven and a half years in the industry. They live in 54 individual cottages, 16 of which are doubles for married couples.

This March silent picture comedienne Babe London, 73, and Phil Boutelje, 79, for 30 years Paramount's musical director, were married in the chapel (contributed by director John Ford) after having met at the country house. The newlyweds now share a double cottage.

The lodge, a halfway facility between the country house and hospital, accommodates another 60 oldsters.

"Sheltered environment" is the term used for the residents of the lodge, who at average age 81 are older and not as spry as the others residents.

The dining room of the country house is large and airy. The daily menu offers an abundance of healthy food and fancy dishes, better than many a restaurant in the area.

One typical dinner offered three kinds of wine with the appetizers and a choice of entrees from among braised short ribs, baked fish, omelette, cold meat plate, chicken noodle casserole. Diners also had a choice of three vegetables, salads and five desserts.

According to Mae Hoffman, a former singer whose many tasks at the facility include public relations, each resident has a permanent seat in the dining room.

"Old people have a sense of permanence," she said. "They enjoy living by set patterns. We do everything we can to see that they are as comfortable as they can be. I've become emotionally involved with all of them in the eight years I've been here. They are dear, sweet people."

Motion pictures remain a key factor in the lives of the residents. Two movies are shown each week in the 250-seat Louis B. Mayer Theater built in 1968. Some seats are equipped with hearing aids. The aisles are extra wide to accommodate wheel chairs.

Movies are shown here before they are released to the public. There is a full house for every screening. Twice a month live shows by outside groups are presented in the theater.

A beauty salon and barber shop in the theater building provide free coifs.

And while there are nine full time gardeners many of the inhabitants enjoy hours pottering around in garden patches when there is time between art and painting classes, bingo, shuffle board, holiday picnics and card games.

There are monthly birthday parties for all those born in a particular month, complete with liquor and at least one gift apiece for the celebrants. At Christmas there are a minimum of three presents under the tree for each resident. Show folk do indeed take care of their own at the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital with a dash of style that is part of the razzmatazz of show biz itself.

RESIDENTS of the Motion Picture and Television Country House and Hospital include Phil Boutelje, 79, former Paramount's chief

Fewer Job Openings Than Usual For The Grad

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Staff Writer

Finding employment may be a tough job for graduating seniors this spring, according to area school placement directors and students.

Mrs. Marguerite Miller, secretary to the placement director at East Carolina University, said this year there are "few jobs than any year on memory." There have been less job offers, especially for this time of year. However, Mrs. Miller said some companies which conducted interviews earlier are beginning to hire now.

"Education majors will not know about their jobs until later," Mrs. Miller said. "Many, many graduates are still looking for work. We are hoping things will pick up this summer for all graduates. Many companies and school boards will not begin hiring until their budgets are approved, according to Mrs. Miller.

Doug Morgan, placement director at Pitt Technical Institute, said that campus has had several recruiting visits from companies seeking employees in the electrical and machinist trades. "Secretaries aren't having any trouble finding work; in fact, I could place several more of them," Morgan said.

"About 50 per cent of our architectural graduates are placed," Morgan said, "hopefully, more will be hired as building picks up." Other work areas are also being interviewed, according to Morgan.

Pitt Tech graduates "haven't had a whole lot of trouble" finding jobs, Morgan said. The jobs are available, but maybe not the exact ones the students are seeking. "Demand is maybe less this year," Morgan added.

The military may be an alternative for graduating seniors. SFC Bob McCombs, an Army recruiter, said the Army is taking less and looking for the man who is more qualified. The Army is taking about half college educated and half high school educated people.

McCombs said.

Sgt. Robert Jeannette, an Air Force recruiter, said they have "lots of openings for those who qualify." He said recruiting is running "about average" and he doesn't foresee any trend change.

Sue Noble, guidance counselor at Ayden-Grifton High School, said the job market is "a little slow." That school hasn't received many calls about available jobs. "I don't know about those who have gotten jobs," she said, "It is slow at this point, and I don't know which way it will go."

Betty Speir of North Pitt High School predicts it will be much harder to find jobs this year than in previous years. "Good permanent jobs are at a premium. It's a little early to tell, but the few students who have been out (looking for jobs) have been discouraged," Mrs. Speir said.

"Last year we had 15-20 students accepted into the Army, but this year we had only four accepted and the same number tried as last year, according to Mrs. Speir.

C. B. West of J. H. Rose High School said the students going through the vocational program there are "by and large" not having any problems finding jobs. Most of these students are going into jobs they have been training in through a work-study arrangement. "This is a more select group of students, however," West said.

Elizabeth Edwards of Farmville Central High School said the job market is "a little bit slower than last year." The jobs that are available are mostly industrial, she said.

Mrs. Willie Mallison of D. H. Conley High School said that school doesn't have a job placement program, but many seniors who held jobs in work programs will keep them. These jobs are in many areas, Mrs. Mallison said.

Deanie Harris is a recent graduate from Wake Forest University with a major in history. She applied in Winston-Salem for a teaching job in the public school system. "They have 20 openings in the social sciences and have already had 2,000 applicants," Miss Harris said. She said she feels that if a person has few attachments and is willing to relocate, he can find a job. "I can leave my family and I want to teach," Miss Harris added.

Greg Fulghum, economics and finance major at ECU, has had two job offers but he hasn't taken them yet. He is waiting for another job which he would like better. He added that "a lot of people may have to take something that is not exactly what they want."

Leslie Neese, finance and banking major at ECU, said the job market is "really tight, especially for females." She has been interviewed by "a few large firms" and said they told her they would "rather hire the primary male than the primary female."

Miss Neese has taken the Civil Service examination and is now waiting for her scores to come back. "The federal government has a quota on the number of females they must hire so I should have a pretty good chance of getting a job there," she said.

Starvation Kills Protected Deer

By GARY MIHOES
Associated Press Writer

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — The deer at Presque Isle State Park are protected from hunters, but they die in great numbers, nevertheless, stalked by overpopulation, starvation and disease.

"It's a classic example of the service hunters perform by thinning out the deer," says Andy Martin, state game protector for Erie.

About 60 deer were found dead on the limited acreage of the nine-mile park peninsula in the winter of 1974. Twice that many deaths were expected this year as the herd swelled to about 200.

However, game protectors have used hypodermic darts in recent months to drug 127 of the deer for removal to other parts of Pennsylvania.

"Thirty-one of the deer we drugged were already so weak they died under sedation," said Martin, "but the ones who did survive are doing fine elsewhere."

There are no hunters and no natural predators on the peninsula, which attracts hundreds of thousands of tourists each year.

So the deer who escape tourists' autos follow the same cycle. They proliferate in the warm months and die in bunches in the winter.

"It's starvation, primarily, but there are other threats from overpopulation, especially parasites," said Martin.

One parasite is a hairlike worm which infests the brain and skull of the deer, causing decay and slow death.

"The cranial parasites are very typical in overcrowded areas," Martin said.

Some well-intentioned citizens have attempted to augment the deer's food supply, but these efforts have occasionally been harmful.

"We've had people go out there with bananas, oranges, apples, corn, hay and alfalfa," Martin said.

"These are fine foods for people, but for a deer it's just like a human eating cotton. The digestive systems of the deer need microorganisms that are found on the wood tips of natural vegetation."

Some people have even heaped food on picnic benches at the park. "I guess they expected the deer to park themselves on a rail and eat from the table," Martin said.

In past years, game protectors harvested the deer, with rifles and donated the meat to homes and orphanages.

"Some people get very upset when the deer are shot like that, and the dart gun method has met with more approval," Martin said.

Defend Role As A Village

CARMEL, Calif. (AP) — The visitor usually looks on Carmel as an artists' colony with quaint shops and homes. But not the resident. He clings to the "village" character of his home. In fact, the official name of the village is "Carmel by the Sea."

Most residents and business establishments don't have addresses. The result is that most old timers go to the post office every day for their mail.

Delivery men have become accustomed to addresses such as: "Carmelo and 11th, third house on left."

In 1952 the state advised the city fathers they would have to have proper street signs or the gas tax refund would be withheld. Carmel threatened to secede from the union. The state backed off.

Carmel has always been proud of its trees. Trees with streets running around them are common.

Carmel once passed an ordinance making it illegal to sit on the grass. After a fight of three years and a U.S. Supreme Court decision, the law was rescinded. So they passed a new ordinance which rules you can sit on the grass "in a manner which does not harm grass or plants."

Billy Graham Fears Decline Of U.S. Moral Values

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
MONTREAT, N.C. (AP) — Billy Frank, as he was called then, was a shy kid. Mostly interested in fast cars and pretty girls.

Billy Frank didn't cotton much to religion then. He was far more interested in baseball and aspired to play professionally, although he wasn't nearly good enough.

But the gangly elder son of a dairy farmer was talked into dropping by a good old-fashioned revival tent pitched on the red clay dirt of North Carolina.

There, he found God. Or as the Rev. Dr. Billy Graham puts it, God found him.

Since then, God — and the world — has never lost sight of Billy Graham, who is now well into his third decade as a revivalist. Recently he had a private chat with President Ford, making Ford the sixth president of the United States to confer with Graham.

The Queen of England has poured tea for him, the Republicans have tried to draft him as a presidential candidate (he's a registered Democrat), and he's probably filled more stadiums and auditoriums than any other man in history. Fifty million souls have heard him preach at 225 crusades in 55 countries.

Burt Lancaster playing "Elmer Gantry" pales before the electric presence that is Billy Graham, evangelist extraordinaire. The Rev. Dr. Graham — he'd rather be called Mr. Graham or just plain Billy — looks like Hollywood's version of God. Or, at the very least, Michael the Archangel.

His eyes are very piercing and very blue, his nose is long and pointing, one feels, directly at sin, and his hair wavy and leonine. His smile is mobile and reassuring and the strong white teeth good enough to sell any kind of toothpaste.

Appearing taller than his measured 6-foot-2, Graham moves with an almost double-jointed lithe grace. Even in private conversation, he gestures frequently with his magnificently artistic and enormous hands.

Presidents and politicians have come and gone, public mores have shifted and changed, but Billy Graham and his unvarnished brand of the Bible have survived for a quarter of a century.

Even Graham's close association with President Nixon — and his long-held conviction that Nixon was innocent in the Watergate affair — did not seem to damage Graham's prestige.

But Graham, 56, maintains that he was probably closer to Lyndon Johnson than to any other president.

Graham is keenly interested in the powerful people he meets and what they have to say. You don't need to talk with him very long before he comes out with a recent thought of Henry Kissinger or an opinion of Alexander Solzhenitsyn, or maybe something the Queen of England had to say.

It does not come out like name dropping. Graham, the teacher as well as the salesman, wants to share a thought that impressed him.

Graham acknowledges that at some time in his career he may have been used by some politicians. After all, a picture of a politician standing next to Billy Graham sure can't hurt. Would Graham like to name those who might have used him? Of course not, replied the Christian, but he is quick to add that Nixon was certainly not one of them.

The evangelist and his wife, Ruth, live in a 10-room wooden house atop a mountain in Montreat, a tiny community outside Asheville. The house, made from three log cabins, is guarded by two German shepherds, necessitated by threats.

Four of the five Graham children are married and have presented the Grahams with nine grandchildren. Two more are on the way. The youngest of Graham's children, Nelson Edman, is in prep school in Stonybrook, N.Y.

"We're very fortunate that all five of our children have followed Christ," says Graham.

The elder of the two sons, William Franklin Jr., got off to a rocky start.

"He was into everything you can think of, even having the police chief chasing him," says Graham. "I never got after him. Love would always come first. During this time, he would always hug and kiss me when he saw me. When it was over, there was nothing to re-establish."

At his wedding, the namesake of the famed preacher had a surprise for his parents. He announced that he and his wife were dedicating their lives to Christ. Billy Jr. is now in Bible school in Denver.

Already Graham's son is a powerful preacher. He looks like his father and Graham says modestly: "I've been told he sounds very much like me."

One daughter is married to a Raleigh, N.C. dentist who is active in local politics; another is married to a Philadelphia TV producer, and the third is married to a wealthy Swiss, a childhood friend who is now getting his Ph.D. in psychology.

They're talking about going to work with heroine addicts on the streets of Paris.

Graham's wife was born in China, the daughter of missionaries. Graham says she knows the Bible far better than he does.

Graham firmly believes that God chooses his servants and that Divine Providence put him where he is today. He also got a little help from the public relations providence of William Randolph Hearst.

Hearst took a liking to the unknown young evangelist and sent down the order: "Puff Graham."

Graham, the patriot who views the Constitution as the second greatest document in the world, sees communism as a menace to the world.

"They have a gigantic plan for the world and they may win temporarily," he says. "But Christ will win in the end."

"I don't see any hope but the coming of Christ. I used to think the world really was going to turn to God. I don't believe that anymore."

Graham feels the deterioration of moral values is a greater evil than communism.

"We will bury ourselves. It's our own affluence that will be our destruction."

Graham's basic fundamentalism, the belief that each man must be redeemed through Christ, has remained unchanged over the years. He sounds downright gloomy as he talks of the state of the world — the coming of Armageddon, the end of history, the second coming, terrorist organizations that could be building the Bomb, and the quagmire America has found herself in since the assassination of President Kennedy.

This recently prompted Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington to ask if Graham considered himself an optimist or a pessimist.

"I told him I was an optimist because I had read the last page of the Bible."

Graham is certain he will go to heaven and actually looks forward to Judgment Day.

"That gives me a great serenity and peace. I have the Holy Spirit living within me," Graham says simply.

Graham gave quick notice to a group of Republicans who wanted to draft him into running for president in 1964.

The preacher born to be a preacher says he never even considered. "God has called me to preach and I consider that a higher job."

And preach he has, with the organizational support of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, run by a select and respectable group of businessmen who monitor the $18-to-$20-million annual budget.

Graham draws only $32,500 in salary now. The directors wanted to give him more but Graham rejected it.

"I don't feel I should make more than a pastor of a large church makes," explains Graham.

The well versed evangelist reads more than a half-dozen newspapers a day, as well as religious newspapers and magazines. He also peruses the lyrics of well-known rock songs to get into his sermons.

He reads the Bible at least an hour a day and sometimes as much as five or six hours. He's abandoned his dream of memorizing the Bible before he dies.

Prayer, Graham says, is a constant thing, a way of life.

"I'm praying right now," he volunteers in the middle of an interview.

For what? "I'm praying that I don't put my foot in my mouth like I've done so often and I'm praying that I give you answers that will help you."

Amen.

Three-Million-Year-Old Lady May Solve Mysteries

By ROBERT PENICK
CLEVELAND (UPI) — Lucy, a little lady from yesterday, may be the key that unlocks the mystery of the beginning of the human species.

Lucy was a small apelike creature who lived in central Ethiopia about three million years ago, her bones gradually petrifying as the lake she died by became a desert.

There she lay until the desert earth finally eroded away and her remains were discovered last fall by Dr. Donald Johanson, curator of anthropology at the Cleveland Museum of Natural History.

Since then he and other scientists have begun the long labor of study and intuition that eventually may nail down Lucy's place in the patchy tapestry of human evolution.

"This is fantastic, really," Johanson said. "We have never before had so much of one individual to study. Now we'll be able to go back over material discovered over the past 40, 80, 100 years and re-evaluate it.

"Never before have we known positively, so far back in time, that this type of a leg was on an animal that had that type of arm, for instance."

Johanson has Lucy's remains — much of the spine and ribs, parts of both arms and both legs, the pelvis and some skull fragments — for five years, after which they go back to the Ethiopian government.

Lucy surfaced near Hadar in the Afar district of Ethiopia along the East Africa Rift system, currently a hotbed of anthropological study that Johanson calls "the hominid rush."

Site research indicates Lucy died on the shore of a prehistoric lake, sinking quickly into sand or quicksand where her bones fossilized. An upheaval moved her grave to the top of a hill where erosion finally revealed her to the two scientists.

"Had we gone around the hill the other way, or had we gone 10 years ago or 10 years from now, we would not have found her," Johanson said.

The site also yielded fossilized turtle and crocodile eggs and a crab claw from the same time bed as Lucy. Johanson feels she and her kind probably ate seafood.

Lucy, named by members of the expedition who knew Johanson was a Beatles' fan who regularly played the song "Lucy in the Sky with Diamonds," is believed to have died late in her teens. She apparently could stand erect, or nearly so.

Study of the bones of her right wrist and hand may shed new light on the early development of man's opposable thumb and grasping ability; a major point because most experts feel the hand led to toolmaking and the carrying of objects, setting up a feedback system that hastened brain development and upright walking to produce true man.

"Who is she?" Johanson asked. "It's too early to answer that. She looks more like Australopithecus (erect ape-man) rather than genus homo."

All he will say now is that she was a hominid (man, his ancestors and relatives). Some authorities believe the hominids go back 12 to 14 million years.

She and her people may have chipped stones into tool shapes. Johanson reported "a tantalizing bit of evidence" of tool manufacture from the site, a hint that man may have been a tool maker and user from his earliest days on earth.

"We have four to five more years' work there yet. We are still in phase one, so to speak. We have not yet done any real excavation, just surface study and sifting," he said.

The researchers found three jawbone-tooth fossils just a month before Lucy turned up. They also were three, possibly four, million years old and Johanson believes they definitely are from within the genus homo, as is modern man.

"The small size of the teeth in these jawbones leads us to hypothesize that the genus homo was eating meat and probably using tools, perhaps bones, to kill animals three to four million years ago," he said.

It's possible that two different types of primitive man or near-man were living together.

However, he said, it is already clear that "the limits of modern man can be traced back further than we thought. Some current thinking is going to have to be revised."

Other fossils turned up in the same stratum at Hadar include pigs, elephants, hippopotami, rhinoceros, three-toed horses, giraffes, an otter the size of a black bear, and carnivores including sabertoothed cats. The type of remains is consistent with the three-million-year-old date.

Lucy's remains were near a layer of basalt to which potassium argon dating was applied, and that also computed out to three million years, plus or minus 250,000.

Hadar is just northward, up the rift system, from other major east African finds; the Olduvai Gorge in Tanzania where Louis and Mary Leakey found million-year-old Australopithecus; and Lake Rudolph on the Kenya-Ethiopia border where their son Richard is turning up one-to-three-million-year-old material.

The joint U.S.-French-Ethiopian team has spent only three months a year at Hadar because the principals all have other work as well. Johanson, for instance, is not only curator of physical anthropology at the museum but also an assistant professor at Case Western Reserve University.

He hopes the Ethiopian political situation will be quiet this fall when the team will reassemble for its third season.

"Hadar is a unique place for vertebrate remains," he said, "for preservation, and for variety, and for antiquity. It may extend back seven million years."

"It's one of the most fascinating jigsaw puzzles available."

Med School Gets Grant

The East Carolina University School of Medicine has received a $14,900 grant from the National Science Foundation to study the use of a Matrix-Supported Enzyme Thermal Device in chemical analysis.

Dr. Sam Pennington, acting chairman of the Department of Biochemistry describes the device as a new type of analytical instrument that measures heat. The instrument was developed by scientists at ECU.

The NSF grant will enable Dr. Pennington and his staff to conduct "a study to attempt to develop a new method of performing chemical, biochemical and clinical analyses using thermal methods."

If successful with his study, Pennington said the thermal device can be applied to many areas of biochemical analysis and will make analytical laboratory procedure faster, better and cheaper.

Fewer Hens, But Egg-Laying At Record Level

CHICAGO (AP) — There are fewer hens laying eggs in this country, but those that are seem to be enjoying it more, according to a recent report in Prairie Farmer.

The magazine says the numbers of laying hens in the U.S. are at their lowest level in many years. But those that are laying eggs, are doing so in record-breaking numbers. Ralph Baker, Ohio State University economist, says hens are producing about one egg more per hen per month. This trend has been going on for the past five years. The increase amounts to an additional 3.4 eggs per hundred hens per month, since 1970.

Why are the nation's hens laying more eggs now than a few years ago? Baker thinks a major reason is that they're generally healthier than they were a few years ago. He also notes that they are bred to lay more eggs. Some nutritionists suggest the hens are better fed.

Ambulances In South Africa Are Segregated

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Ambulance apartheid may have killed an African man who lay dying in a Pretoria street after he was struck by a car.

The Rev. Father P. B. Stein, a Roman Catholic priest, says he called an ambulance after he saw the man in the street but that an ambulance for white only arrived at the scene.

He said that instead of taking the seriously injured man to a hospital the two white attendants radioed for an ambulance for blacks and stood around waiting for it.

"They did nothing for the man, who was lying in the street in the rain," said Father Stein. "They did not even throw a blanket over him."

The priest said an ambulance with black attendants finally arrived and took the injured man to hospital but he died within minutes.

Father Stein referred to the incident the next morning in a nationwide radio service of the South African Broadcasting Corp.

'First Rain' Is More Slippery

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — When it first starts to rain after a long dry spell, driver beware, warns tiremaker Goodyear.

The company's new Motor Sports Club says that in dry weather an oil film builds up on the highway, and when it first starts to rain there's a mixture of oil and water on the road that is as slippery as ice.

The club says that if it rains really hard for 20 minutes or so, the oil will wash away, but until then roads are dangerous and speeds should be reduced, thus avoiding sharp braking and turning.

Inflated Dollar Bringing Same Odds At Las Vegas Dice Table

By MYRAM BORDERS
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Inflated dollars may not buy as much in the supermarket, but they still buy the same odds on a dice table.

That is one reason this gambling resort of neon lights and superstars stays busy when money elsewhere gets tight. While the rest of the nation is suffering economically, Las Vegas casino owners prosper. Hotel rooms are sold out, showrooms are overbooked. Tourists have to stand in line at restaurants, airports, bars and at the slot machines. Gambling revenue broke the billion dollar mark for the first time recently.

The state Gaming Control Board reported that in the first three months of 1975 casino winnings in Nevada were $251.5 million, up 12.24 per cent over the same period last year.

Tourism increased in 1974, although the gaudy "strip" hotel lights were voluntarily turned out by owners during the beginning of the energy shortage. The lights are back on now, the price of gasoline is higher, and tourists continue to fill the city's 35,000 rooms.

Air travel increased eight per cent here compared to the two per cent nationwide average.

Erle Taylor, director of aviation, said McCarran International Airport, which recently underwent a $22 million expansion, was a "bright spot in the national aviation picture." The airport served 5.9 million passengers in 1974.

"This town of all towns in the world does best when times are bad," said William Kellogg, Western Airlines manager here and a long-time resident.

The give-away philosophy was so strong in the young days of Las Vegas that a "strip" hotel customer could see a superstar for the price of a soft drink and fill his plate as many times as he wanted for $1 at a midnight buffet or noon lunch.

Today most hotel showrooms have a minimum, sometimes as high as $17.50 for a dinner show which will wind up costing a customer at least $25. Hotel rooms for a single may run as high as $45. Four persons spend more than $100 easily in one sitting at a top restaurant and the reservations are in demand.

Most of the customers are tourists, or convention delegates on expense accounts. Some 42,000 conventioners were expected here in May.

But there are permanent residents of Las Vegas, and community's unemployment rate is 11.2 per cent and growing.

Union leader John Wogasky who has been battling to assist the elderly in southern Nevada, recently complained, "Some of our elder citizens are eating dog food."

Larry McCracken, director of the state Employment Security Department, said the labor force in Nevada was growing at a rate of 8.7 per cent and that the new jobs available were increasing at a rate of 4.7 per cent. Last month there were 1,200 new jobs in the service industry (meaning tourism). One out of four persons receiving unemployment benefits was a construction worker, McCracken said.

Construction is down more than 50 per cent compared to a year ago, according to most statistics. Hank Elder, Las Vegas building director, said construction activity the first four months of this year was down $15 million. Building permits totaled $12.5 million through April compared to $27.5 million in permits issued in 1974.

But on the Las Vegas "strip" it looks like a construction boom—a new $28 million hotel-casino opened May 1. Another hotel announced a $50 million expansion, while a third giant has opened a new wing, an indoor tennis pavilion and added 50,000 square feet of convention space since fall. Yet another recently completed a new multimillion dollar high rise wing. The hotel-supported convention center is expanding to the tune of $12 million and plans are in the works to construct a new multimillion dollar sports stadium in the Las Vegas valley.

In 1974 Las Vegas averaged 23,739 visitors per day and they spent $5,184,067 daily, $1,874,157 on gambling, according to the Las Vegas Convention and Visitors Authority.

While casino profits were down 10 per cent in the last fiscal year in the "strip" hotels, downtown's less lush "Glitter Gulch" casinos show no drop in profits. Even the casino problem is a matter of lower profits, but profits they remain.

Harry Wald, president of the Nevada Resort Association which represents all major hotels and casinos, said: "The economy is up and improving. Everybody is doing a good business. You can't get a room on the weekend."

ECU String Project Concert Features Debut Of Newly Formed Boys Choral Group

The newly established Greenville Boys Choral Association will make its debut today in an appearance on the annual ECU String Project and Youth Orchestra concert which will be held at 3:15 p.m. in Wright Auditorium.

The young boys will sing Gustav Holst's I Vow To Thee My Country, under the direction of David Burns, with Karen Hause accompanying.

In this annual festive program, members of the 150 youngsters from Greenville City Schools and the local area will present a varied concert of string music.

Selections listed for the program, performing artists and conductors are: Entr'acte from Handel-Gordon's Semele; the overture to Il Giustino, by Legrenzi-Seay, featuring Margot Schaal, violin; and the Allegro from Mozart's Serenade (Eine Kleine Nachtmusik). This group of selections will be performed by the Baroque String Ensemble under the direction of Rodney Schmidt.

Deborah Minetree will conduct the Beginning String Ensemble in a group of selections that include a Norwegian Folk Song, an English Folk Song, and It's A Small World. The audience will be asked to join in singing the latter selection.

Michael Smith, double bass player, will be guest artist in a performance of Bottesini's Elgiele; and Holladay Worth will conduct the Intermediate String Ensemble in performing Purcell's Chaconne and Septet by Isaac.

The Baroque String Ensemble directed by Dr. Schmidt will present the final group of compositions, which will include two movements from Telemann's Concerto In G Major with Jennifer O'Neal, viola as featured performer. The final selection is Corelli's Concerto Grosso In D Major which features Pamela and Patricia Bath, violins, and Jim Kittrell, violoncello.

The ECU String Project and Youth Orchestra is a joint ECU-Greenville City Schools concert that is supported by A.J. Fletcher of Raleigh.

There is no admission charge for the concert and the public is invited to attend.

Agnes Fullilove School Announces First Annual Fine Arts Festival

Beginning tonight with a radio concert of sacred music and continuing through Friday, May 23, students and faculty at Agnes Fullilove School will be observing its First Annual Fine Arts Festival.

The week long program will include a TV appearance, the radio program, piano recitals, art shows and concerts of music. On four days, Monday through Thursday, during lunch time, a "Music For Lunch" series will be held, with both classical and popular music in live performance. On the final day, Thursday, the program will be one of rock music.

Another continuing part of the week's presentation is an art show that is being shown at the school.

Individual programs will open with a pre-recorded program of Sacred Music by the Fullilove Mixed Chorus. This will be aired over WNCN-FM radio at 11 p.m. Sunday night.

Daily highlight programs scheduled for the week are:

—Monday, May 19—7:30 p.m.—Student Piano Recital, with Fullilove piano students and also guest performers, in the Fullilove Lunch Room.

—Tuesday, May 20—7:30 a.m.—"Fine Arts Festival" over WNCN-TV's "Carolina Today" program. 7:30 p.m., a concert featuring the Rose High School Chorus conducted by Stephen Koch; and a concert by the Rose High School Orchestra, conducted by Holladay Worth.

—Wednesday, May 21—7:30 p.m.—A concert by the Fullilove Orchestra, conducted by Holladay Worth; and a concert by the Fullilove Mixed Chorus and Concert Band, featuring a group of guitar players, directed by Johnny Wooten.

—Friday, May 23—1:30 p.m.—An open air concert in the schoolyard of Agnes Fullilove, with the Aycok Stage and Concert Band directed by Doug Adams; and the Fullilove Chorus and Concert Band directed by Johnny Wooten.

All events are without charge and the public is invited to attend, including the lunch time "Music For Lunch" programs.

Billy "Crash" Craddock, Johnny Carver and Libby Mattocks are the three country singing stars headlining a Country Spotlight show coming to Snow Hill at Green Central High School on Saturday May 24.

For this show, being sponsored by the Snow Hill Police force, there will be only one performance, beginning at 8 p.m. Tickets will be available at $5 per person for reserved seats, and $4 per person, general admission.

Billy "Crash" Craddock, Greensboro native, has two recent hit hits, Rub It In and Ruby Baby. His first record was Knock Three Times. Billy's career has followed what is now a classic pattern, that of a singer making his living in a trade while still dreaming of hitting the big time in music. In Billy's case, for over ten years after making his first record, he was in and out of the construction business until his hit records made it possible for him to sing full time.

Mississippi native Johnny Carver has seen seven of his own compositions rise into the top 20 chart. A singer who travels extensively, with appearances in Europe and the Pacific areas as well as in the U.S., Johnny's big dream is to be a member of the Grand Ole Opry.

For the Snow Hill performance, The Dream Lovers will be backing Billy Craddock, and Libby Mattocks will have with her the Super Grit Cowboy Band.

Greenville Native Was Soloist With Orchestra

A Greenville native, James (Jim) Piver, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.A. Piver, was one of the guests soloists with the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra in performances in Henderson last Sunday for an afternoon and an evening concert.

Piver, a graduate of East Carolina University, where he received both undergraduate and graduate degrees in music, is married to the former Josephine Hendrix of Greenville. Currently, he is a soloist at St.

Timothy's Episcopal Church of Raleigh and is also a soloist with the Oratoria Society there.

In 1973, Piver was guest soloist with the N.C. State University Symphony Orchestra in the dedication program for Stewart Theater and Price Music Center.

In his Henderson performance Sunday, Piver was one of the soloists in a performance of Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise.

First Annual Student Union Art Show Held On ECU Campus

Faced with two choices—what to include in the annual spring student show in Kate Lewis Gallery and what to assign for showing in the First Annual Art Show in Mendenhall Student Center—art students made the inaugural Mendenhall show a substantially good representation of student work.

A one day only affair, held from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. last Wednesday, this show should draw increasingly wide participation if kept up in coming years.

The Multipurpose room where the exhibit was mounted lends itself well to this type of brief show—there's good lighting and sufficient space for a much larger show than this first one.

Judged by ECU School of Art faculty members Donald Sexauer, Mrs. Sara Edmisten, Betsy Ross and Tran Gordley, 16 awards were given to 12 student artists (four of the artists won two awards each).

Results of the judging shows: (listed by category and order of awards, 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th place winners)—Painting: Loretta Russo, T. Brent Funderburk, Harold Brammer and Phillip Harris. Prints: Barbara McPhail, W.O. Dugan, Bernard K. Gentry, Jr. and Barbara McPhail. Drawings: Phillip Harris, Louis Cherry, Matt Smartt, and Louis Cherry; and Sculpture: Jack Gresko, Jack Gresko, Steve Bickley, and Art Booth.

Samplings From Science And Nature In 1974

Nature-Science Annual, 1975. Jane D. Alexander, Editor and Others. New York, Time-Life Books. Illustrated, 192 pps, $7.95.

One of the advantages that the publishers of Time-Life books has is its fabulous world-wide picture source. Perhaps no other publishing group has at its disposal photographs, color and black and white as unlimited in scope and quality.

Because of this, any of the books published by Time-Life can usually be relied upon to furnish exceptional visual beauty.

This is certainly true of the volume under review. Nature-Science Annual, 1975, is, in addition, an excellent sampling of significant events taking place each year that shape our immediate lives. In some instances, there are events that will have an accelerating impact on our living in the years ahead.

In a volume of this limited scope no pretension is made of being encyclopedic.

The coverage given in 15 articles, however, is sufficient in each instance to be satisfying. All are excellently presented in clear, forthright writing that is a pleasure to read. The fact the writing is more popular than scholarly should not deter any thoughtful reader from giving serious consideration to this (and similar volumes) as a sensible means of keeping abreast of important and interesting developments in all parts of the world.

A fine account of excavations at L'Anse aux Meadows in Newfoundland gives proof that the fever of questionable discoveries relative to early Viking settlement in America has given way to less colorful, but more accurate proof that Columbus was indeed several hundred years behind the hearty Vikings. This fascinating information is contained in Robert Wallace's "A Viking Village in America."

One of the most promising possibilities for finding raw material to meet man's growing needs is outlined in "Mining Bonanza At Sea" by Tom Alexander, sub-titled "Geologists' Theory Points To Lodes On Ocean Floor."

This is exciting pioneering work in a time when many people think of pioneering only in terms of outer space.

A world of distant and almost inaccessible beauty is magnificently photographed in "Parks To Save Himalayan Wilds;" and serious questions on the use of certain curative programs are raised in Gerald Jonas' "Furor over Brainwashing."

The growing awareness of man's universal problems is reflected in "The Famine of 1974," in which C. P. Gilmore warns that real extent of hunger and the population crisis is not yet fully realized, and that there may be worse yet to come.

Other articles in Nature-Science Annual, 1975 are: "From Skylab: A Quirky Sun;" "Recording the Dawn of Life;" "New England's New Coyote;" "Domsat: Messenger in Space;" "The Death of Old Age?;" "Florida's Exotic Aliens;" "Fresh Faces For Three Planets;" and "Teaching Animals To Talk."

There is also a capsule review of interesting discoveries and developments during 1974 in "Summing Up The Year;" and an article on "Nobel Prize Winners."

Scholarly Contemporary Work In A Lively Vein

Afghanistan in the 1970s. Edited by Louis Dupree and Linette Albert. New York. Praeger Publishers, 266 pps, with maps, charts and tables. $16.50.

Greenville's Louis Dupree, whose comprehensive book, Afghanistan, was published a couple of years ago by Princeton University Press, has now edited, with Linette Albert, a collection of one article each from 14 contributors, including the two editors.

Afghanistan in the 1970s is a compilation that fills a basic need for contemporary information on political, cultural, economic and social issues in a country about which little is available through popular periodicals or through the news media.

Editor Dupree sets the tone of the volume in the opening lines of his article: "The West . . . including the Soviet Union) has done a great disservice to the so-called developing world of Afro-Asia in educating its literate elite since World War II. Young men and women have been taught to believe that Western-style democracies and socialist states (or combinations of the two) represent ideals for all nations to emulate."

It is these deep-rooted, inherently different factors at work in larger, more complex societies and the less complex factors at play in smaller, less developed nations that either directly or obliquely form a connecting thread in these articles.

Although this is a work with a substantial sprinkling of footnotes and references, most of the contributions are in a style of writing that fortunately seems to mark the current trend in scholarly writing—it is writing that generates genuine interest and excitement without sacrificing the inclusion of generous amounts of information.

This may be because the contributors, who include two native Afghans, are without exception people who have lived for varying lengths of time in Afghanistan.

My preferences (admittedly based on my own affinity for certain subjects) are the chapters on "Archaeology and the Arts in the Creation of a National Consciousness" by Nancy Hatch Dupree; and Richard Tapper's "Nomadism in Modern Afghanistan: Asset or Anachronism?"

Mrs. Dupree has a natural flair of making facts come alive when getting a point across: (On the general lack of western style monuments commemorating national figures, for example) . . . "Today and tomorrow have much more appeal than yesterday. . . . Often the name of the hero has long been forgotten or modified through time. Therefore, grandiose monuments are a comparative rarity in Afghanistan, where ostentation in general is both distrusted and disliked."

Tapper's fine article on nomadism, while written to "assess how far Afghanistan can regard them as an anachronism to be eliminated rather than an asset to be developed," does more than present arguments for the question posed. His brief article kindles a desire to want to know more of the self-sufficient people who still maintain a life style of nomadic freedom in the face of growing social and economic persuasions.

A wide range of topics is covered in Afghanistan in the 1970s—"Trends in Modern Afghan History;" The Constitution of 1964: A

A Man's Moving Portrait Of Deep Personal Agony

A Season In Hell, by Percy Knauth. New York: Harper and Row, 1975. 111 pp. $6.95.

Percy Knauth is a master craftsman in the art of writing, and has used that skill to produce a poignant and richly rewarding book, rewarding for professionals and laymen alike.

It is deeply personal. It portrays the agony, the despair, the rock bottom feeling of helplessness and hopelessness that is the essence of the mental disorder known as depression. He lost that core of sanity we call identity, and, with it, the ability to see meaning in life, to act, even to be. He went to the very brink of suicide. He had to be the principal agent with, eventually, the right kind of help, to pull himself from the depths. Here is a highly sensitive man with deep appreciation of life, who became ill, who conquered and for whom it can be said "illness made him a better man."

Equally striking is the balanced, objective perspective Mr. Knauth gives about depression and, indeed, about the whole field of mental health. He spent many hours doing research, by talking with some of the leading experts and familiarizing himself with the professional literature. The result is an eminently readable summary of the knowledge which has been slowly, but very significantly, gained over the past quarter century and, especially, during the last decade.

The book gives many useful insights. It demonstrates how complex the major mental disorders, like depression, are. They have biological, psychological and social elements. Their treatment must permit the patient to help himself. But this help can only be given by a skilled clinician, or a team of clinicians. Only the right drugs with the right dosage must be used; the dangers can be great. Only the right type of psychotherapy must be used; again, the dangers can be great. Mr. Knauth spent many futile, and, I would say, dangerous, hours on a couch with a classical psychoanalyst, vainly probing farther and farther into his past. This view is not to condemn psychoanalysis, which has contributed significantly to psychological theory and practice. But, as a form of therapy, it is contraindicated for depression.

There were problems in his past, perhaps some problems with his father (a very common occurrence), and certainly a major problem about an earlier, wartime marriage which failed after several apparently happy years. It took the right combination of therapies so that he himself could work through these problems.

Mr. Knauth has real hope for the Mental Health Centers, which have been developing since 1963. He states, "The Community Mental Health Center program is in itself a revolutionary idea. Its objectives are to bring psychiatric care to the community, to combat ignorance of mental health problems, to make psychiatric care available and accessible to all on the same basis as physical medical care."

He also has faith in the National Association for Mental Health, for which he now serves as National Mental Health Chairman. Of it he says, "There are more than a thousand divisions and chapters . . . country-wide, all with extensive educational and volunteer programs to help combat unjustified fears and superstitions about mental illness and bring aid and comfort to the afflicted in the hospital, the center and the home."

In sum, this book makes a major contribution to the knowledge that mental disorders are normal reactions to a combination of tragic happenings, biological, psychological and social, happenings which are close to all of us.

Art Works By Keller, Girard Ending Tour

Sculpture by ECU faculty sculptor Norman Keller and drawings by ECU graduate art student Jack Girard will soon be ending a seven month exhibition tour.

The work of the two Greenville based men went on exhibition first in November of 1974 at the main campus of Loyola University in Chicago. In December, the joint show moved to the Lakeside Campus of Loyola in Chicago.

Since mid-March, the final phase of the joint exhibition of the works of the two artists has been a show at Earth Works Gallery in Rockton, Illinois. The Rockton show will be ending within a few days.

During January and February 1975, Keller's sculpture — half a dozen major pieces and about that number of smaller works — were shown on campus at Beloit College, Beloit, Wisconsin.

Oil Brings Prosperity To Alabama

By BESSIE FORD
CREOLA, Ala. (UPI) — Baby chicks peep in their box beside the wood-burning stove and a clump of pink azalea blooms as usual in front of the white frame house of Frank and Willie Ann James.

But there is something special about this spring for the elderly black couple.

Mr. and Mrs. James, along with several other low and middle income families in the rural area near this south Alabama community just north of Mobile, have suddenly been plunged into the middle of a "black gold rush."

A few months ago representatives of the Getty Oil Co., traveled the crooked dirt roads around the James' home and leased land that experts think has excellent potential of being one of the richest oil discoveries in the country.

Getty paid Mr. and Mrs. James $22,000 for mineral rights on their five acres. The owners retain the standard one eighth share in mineral rights if oil is discovered on their tract.

Their neighbors, black and white, also share in the sudden wealth.

"We had no idea this was going to happen to us," said Mrs. James, 63, a large woman who moves around on crutches. "The Lord has been mighty good to us."

Her husband, nearly 80, nodded and grinned. He has poor hearing and leaves financial transactions to his wife.

Until Getty's visit, the only business they had to worry about was watching for James' pension check to arrive each month. They were making ends meet, but they didn't have much cash to spend on frills.

They had known that Getty drilled a well about a mile away from their house but it seemed none of their concern. It became their business when Getty persuaded them to lease their land because the Peter Klein Well No. 1 looked like a major discovery.

Mrs. James said they were reluctant to sign away their mineral rights, because they were not sure what they were doing. But the money helped erase their fears.

Like their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. James remain a little awed by their unexpected money. They are reluctant to spend much of it for fear they will get in debt over their head if their desires grow with their purchases.

They did buy Mrs. James' nephew a car so he could job hunt and she pledged $500 to a black church for a kitchen.

"It don't seem like dressing comes to my mind," she said as she straightened her well-worn print dress. "We would like more conveniences. It would be blessed if we could keep warm."

One convenience they intend to buy, she said, was a hot water heater. They have a makeshift bathroom now but must heat water on the stove.

Such money windfalls have done little to change the lifestyles of the working families in the area.

Mrs. R. A. Grimsley, who grew up in the Oklahoma oil fields, said she and her husband banked the $30,000 they received for their 11 acres. They leased their land to get rid of the Getty agent who kept pestering them while they were trying to watch football games, she said.

"Daddy won't be griping about the grocery bill so much any more," the couple's daughter, Wanda, 22, said.

The Grimsleys can see the lights of the Peter Klein well from their porch at night but neither they nor the Jameses want a derrick near their house. They said the noise would bother them.

Leslie Walker, whose long underwear was drying on the fence outside his house, said he would like indoor plumbing from the money he expects to receive from the lease on his 20 acres.

"I'm going to stay like I am and try not to get the big head," he said.

Many residents missed out on the Getty leases because they had already leased their mineral rights to a group of New York businessmen who saw the potential in advance and bought up leases for a fraction of what they are going for now.

The Peter Klein well technically is not an oil well but a producer of natural gas and liquids that condense from the gas as it surfaces. That does not lessen the importance of the well, which will not be producing for several more years.

Casper Expands Lead In New Orleans Golf

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Placid, imperturbable Billy Casper reeled off a decisive string of four consecutive birdies and expanded his lead to a commanding four strokes with a six-under-par 66 in Saturday's third round of the $150,000 New Orleans Open golf tournament.

The 43-year-old Casper, who scored the last of his 50 tour victories two seasons back, put together a 54-hole total of 201, a distant 15-under-par for three times over the muddy 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course.

Casper, who has led or shared the lead at the end of each round, dropped two back of England's Peter Oosterhuis early in the round, but then swept by him on the birdie string that started on the 12th hole.

Oosterhuis, meanwhile, bogeyed two of his last six holes and drifted back to a 69 and a 205 total.

Steve Melnyk, the former National Amateur champion who has yet to make his mark in the pros, once advanced to second place, but made a double bogey six on the last hole, scored a 68 and was third at 206, 10-under-par, but five strokes off Casper's pace.

Fred Marti, Lanny Wadkins and Bob Wynn were next at 207. Marti shot a 69 in the mild, slightly breezy weather, while Wadkins and Wynn had 70s.

Defending champion Lee Trevino finally mastered his balky putter for a 67 that included a 45-foot birdie putt on the final hole. He had a 209 total, but at eight strokes behind, appeared out of title contention.

Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller, Gary Player and Arnold Palmer are not competing.

"It's been a long, long time since I've played this well," the veteran Casper said. He attributed at least a portion of his success to a three-week break prior to this tournament.

"Some fellows need to play and practice a lot to play well," he said. "I need to get away. I need to have time off to get completely away from the game, to get myself refreshed."

Casper held a one-stroke lead when the day's play started, but Oosterhuis caught him at the turn and went ahead with birdies on the 10th and 11th.

Casper responded on the next hole.

He punched a nine-iron to four feet and made the putt. A six-iron shot left him six feet for a deuce on the 13th. He flew a three-iron to within eight feet of the flag and made the putt on the 14th. A four-foot putt after a wedge made it four in a row on the next one.

Oosterhuis, in the same group with Casper, three-putted for a bogey on the 13th and 16th and Billy had the big lead.

"Boy, that's fun," Casper said of his birdie string. "It's been a long time since I've had anything like that. I feel very good about the way I'm playing. Everything is just right in place."

Homers Lift Reds By Expos

MONTREAL (AP) — Solo home runs by Ken Griffey and Johnny Bench in the 10th inning powered Cincinnati to a 5-3 victory over the Montreal Expos Saturday, ending the Reds' six-game losing streak.

Griffey, first batter up in the 10th, tagged reliever John Montague for his first home run of the season and one out later Bench walloped his sixth.

After being held hitless by Steve Rogers over the first four innings, the Reds, who scored only 10 runs during their six-game skid, used three hits and three Montreal errors to take a 3-0 lead in the fifth.

Tony Perez led off with a single and Dave Concepcion reached on a throwing error by third baseman Larry Parrish. Cesar Geronimo singled for the first run and Concepcion went to third when left fielder Bob Bailey bobbled the ball.

After pitcher Fred Norman struck out, Pete Rose doubled a run home and Geronimo scored on Griffey's grounder. Shortstop Tim Lincecum booted that ball for another error when second baseman Pete Mackanin ran into him but Rogers prevented further scoring by retiring Joe Morgan and Bench.

The Expos began their rally in the bottom of the fifth when Foli singled with two out and scored on Gary Carter's double. Mackanin hit his first major league home run in the sixth and pinch hitter Jose Morales socked a game-tying homer in the seventh.

The game was nationally televised in the United States.

The Expos had a chance to win the game in the ninth when Pepe Mangual ripped a leadoff single off reliever Pedro Borbon and was sacrificed to second. After an intentional walk to Carter, Will McEnaney replaced Borbon and pinch hitter Mike Jorgensen forced Carter at second. Mangual went to third but was stranded when Larry Parrish forced Jorgensen.

Montreal loaded the bases with one out in the bottom of the 10th on consecutive singles by Mackanin, Barry Foote and Tony Scott but McEnaney escaped by firing a called third strike past Mangual and retired Foli on a pop-up.

Following his fifth-inning double which produced Montreal's first run, Carter was thrown out at the plate by right fielder Griffey when he tried to score on Bob Bailey's single.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Master Derby, sent off at 23-1, took the lead at the head of the stretch and pounded to a narrow victory over favored Foolish Pleasure Saturday in the 100th running of the Preakness Stakes, which was run for a record $210,600.

Jacinto Vasquez, aboard Foolish Pleasure, filed a foul claim against the winner, but the stewards left the order as it was.

With Darrel McHargue in the saddle, the chestnut son of 1971 Kentucky Derby winner Dust Commander was held just off the pace until he began his move on the turn for home.

Foolish Pleasure, winner of the Derby two weeks ago, was far back in the early going, running seventh. He closed with a rush that fell about a length short.

Frank McMahon's Diabolo held on for third, the same position he had in the Derby, and Prince Thou Art finished fourth.

Master Derby finished fourth in the Derby, but had won five races in a row before that, including the Louisiana Derby and the Blue Grass Stakes.

Native Guest, the previously unbeaten invader from the West Coast, broke first from the gate with media, the lightly raced colt from New York, in close pursuit.

Singh, also unbeaten this season prior to Saturday, was placed in third position to lengths behind the leaders with Master Derby following closely for the first half mile.

Diabolo and Avatar ran fifth and sixth, with Foolish Pleasure seventh.

Jockey Angel Cordero Jr. sent Singh to the front a half-mile into the 13-16-mile race. But at that same point Master Derby was making his move, first to the outside and then to the rail.

Master Derby won by a length over Foolish Pleasure. Diabolo was another length back at the wire with Prince Thou Art following by 1½ lengths.

Foolish Pleasure, suffering only the second defeat of his 13-race career, was sent off the 6-5 favorite by an estimated record crowd of 70,000 fans who jammed Pimlico Race Course for the 100th running of the second leg of the Triple Crown.

Master Derby was timed in 1:56.2-5, which is more than two seconds off the record set in 1972 by Canonero II. Fractions for the race were :23.5, :47.1-5, 1:11.3-5 and 1:36.1-5.

Master Derby paid $48.80, $16.00 and $7.20. Foolish Pleasure returned $3.20 and $2.60. Diabolo paid $4.60 to show.

Master Derby, who won only five of 12 starts last year, caught fire after he was left in the gate in the LeComte early in March at the New Orleans Fair Grounds and won his next five races in easy fashion.

Behind the first four finishers, in order, were Avatar, Singh, Native Guest, Bold Chapeau, Just The Time and Media.

The victory for Master Derby was worth $158,100 and boosted the colt's bankroll to $438,663.

Trainer W.E. "Smiley" Adams obviously wasn't believed by the fans when he said Master Derby lost a chance to win the Kentucky Derby when he was bumped on the first turn at Churchill Downs, forcing him to go wide.

Adams predicted a better Preakness finish as long as Master Derby was allowed to run his own race.

Master Derby, in 21 starts, has never finished off the board in stakes competition and has won 11, finished second six times and third twice.

The colt is out of a Royal Coinage mare, Madam Jerry, and was bred in Kentucky at Mrs. Robert E. Lehmann's Golden Chance Farm.

His sire, Dust Commander, won eight of 42 races and earned $215,012, most of it coming from his Kentucky Derby victory.

Dust Commander, purchased as a yearling for only $6,500, was sold to Japanese interests for a price that reportedly exceeded $500,000.

Foolish Pleasure, before the Preakness, had been defeated only once—in the March 29 Florida Derby when both Prince Thou Art and his stablemate, Sylvan Place, beat Foolish Pleasure to the wire.

However, after that race, trainer LeRoy Jolley said the colt had injured both front feet. Within three weeks, he had healed and won the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct after a mad dash to get position from his No. 15 starting slot.

Foolish Pleasure, John L. Greer's bay son of What A Pleasure, came from well off the pace in the Kentucky Derby as well, winning by 1½ lengths over Avatar, with Diabolo finishing third.

But he could not pull it off this time.

Vasquez, aboard Foolish Pleasure, brought his colt to the outside. In his foul claim, Vasquez charged that Master Derby moved in on him during the stretch run.

"He was clear, but still made me change my course," Vasquez said. The stewards apparently didn't see it that way.

Vasquez said Foolish Pleasure apparently did not like the Pimlico track. "He was climbing all the way. It was cuppy and he didn't run his race," he said.

Laffit Pincay Jr., the rider on Diabolo, said the son of Damascus "ran a good race. He lost some ground around the turn but there was nothing I could do about it."

Jockey Braulio Baeza said Prince Thou Art did as well as possible. "He just got outrun," he said.

Bill Shoemaker, aboard Avatar, also complained of a cuppy track, but said there is "no excuse that I could see" for his horse's fifth place finish.

Singh, flying the colors of Cynthia Phipps and riding a four-race winning streak, was "caught between horses and I think it was the outside horse who came in and stopped us" at the three-eighths pole, said rider Cordero.

Part of Master Derby's put-on of the fans came because more than half his victories in recent races had come on a muddy track and the Pimlico strip was lightning fast for the 100th Preakness.

That did not keep them from betting on other horses, however. For the first time in Preakness history, the fans bet more than $1 million on the race itself. They pushed more than $1,306,000 through the mutual windows.

Master Derby broke fourth from the gate and moved into third position 1½ lengths behind the leaders after the first quarter-mile.

McHargue pulled the colt slightly further off the pace going into the backstretch, but was within striking distance coming into the turn.

After making his move, Master Derby led by as many as three lengths in the stretch drive.

Foolish Pleasure ran his usual come-from-behind race, running seventh after the first half mile and fifth, almost three lengths behind the leader, in the turn for home.

Pearson Sits On Pole For Mason-Dixon Race

By LARRY SIDMONS
Associated Press Writer

DOVER, Del. (AP) — David Pearson, his red, white and blue Mercury running to perfection, shattered his own Dover Downs lap record Saturday and grabbed the pole position for the Mason-Dixon 500 stock car race.

Pearson, the winningest driver in the history of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing's super-speedway circuit, zoomed around the high-banked mile oval in 26.352 seconds to average 136.612 miles per hour.

The Spartansburg, S.C. veteran led a group of six drivers who broke the one-lap track record in qualifying for Sunday's race. The old mark of 134.403 mph was set by Pearson in qualifying for last year's Mason Dixon 500.

Starting next to Pearson on the front row in Sunday's 31-car field will be Buddy Baker, who averaged 136.560 m.p.h. in a 1973 Ford. Inside on the second row will be Richard Petty, who ran 135.562 m.p.h. in a Dodge, flanked by Cale Yarborough's Chevrolet, which toured the course at 135.516 m.p.h.

Two former NASCAR rookies-of-the-year will start from the third row. Dick Brooks, who won the honor in 1967, will be in the No. 5 position in a Ford after qualifying at 135.145 m.p.h., while Lennie Pond, top rookie two years ago, will start from the sixth spot in a Chevrolet on the strength of a 135.094 m.p.h. qualifying run.

Benny Parsons and Darrell Waltrip, both of whom have scored super speedway victories this season, make up the fourth row in Chevrolets. Parsons was clocked at 134.128 m.p.h. and Waltrip at 134.063.

Pearson, 40, the all-time NASCAR grand national leader with 30 super speedway victories, gained the pole for the fifth time at Dover Downs. He won the top qualifying spot in two previous Mason-Dixon 500s and two runnings of the Delaware 500 here.

Pearson has won the pole position a total of 29 times in his career, also a NASCAR record.

Carew Sparks Twin Victory

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Rod Carew's two-run wind-blown double off the left field fence with two out in the eighth inning lifted the Minnesota Twins to an 8-7 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday.

The winning rally came against Milwaukee relief ace Tom Murphy, who entered the game with a 1-0 record, seven saves and an 0.81 earned run average.

Murphy started his own downfall by hitting leadoff batter Craig Kusick with a pitch. Danny Thompson, who hit a three-run homer earlier to begin Minnesota's comeback from a 6-2 fifth-inning deficit, bounced into a forceout and took second as Tom Lundstedt grounded out. Murphy walked Steve Braun and Carew followed with his game-winning double.

Left fielder Gorman Thomas crashed into the wall trying for a leaping catch Thomas lay motionless for several seconds as both runners scored.

Home runs by Hank Aaron, Bobby Mitchell and Sixto Lezcano powered the Brewers to a 7-6 lead after 7½ innings. The Brewers opened a 6-2 advantage in the fifth when Aaron slammed his fifth home run of the season—and 738th of his 22-year career—following a single by George Scott.

Lezcano drilled his fourth homer in the seventh inning for a 7-5 lead. Minnesota cut the deficit to 6-5 in the sixth on Thompson's second home run of the season and the Twins scored in the seventh on a two-out double by Eric Soderholm.

Mitchell slammed his second homer of the season into the left field pavilion following singles by Money and Bill Sharp in the third inning. After Scott walked, Aaron lined a run-scoring double, putting the Brewers in front 4-1 and chasing Minnesota starter Vic Albury.

Jaycees Stay Unbeaten, 5-2

Kenny Barnes pitched a no-hitter as the unbeaten Jaycees took a 5-2 victory over Coca-Cola yesterday in the North State Little League.

Barnes struck out 16 while he gave up four walks. He also hit one batter. One other batter reached on an error.

The victory boosted the Jaycees' record to 4-0 on the season. Coke is now 1-3.

The Jaycees picked up three runs in the first inning to get all they would need. Larry Talbert singled and Mike Pollard got a hit. Barnes doubled to drive in Talbert. A passed ball scored Pollard, and Barnes then stole home.

In the second, the Jaycees added their other two runs.

Crowell Pope walked and Chuck Coggins reached on a fielder's choice. Both moved up on a passed ball and Talbert walked. Pollard singled in Pope and an error on the play let Coggins score.

Coke came up with its first run in the third. Skip Cannon walked and moved up on a passed ball and a stolen base. He scored on an error.

In the fourth, Coke got its other run. Chuck Allen was hit by a pitch and moved up on a wild pitch. After Jonathan McGee walked, Raynor Casey reached on an error, scoring Allen.

Pepsi Hands Exchange Loss

Pepsi-Cola handed the Exchange its first defeat of the season yesterday, taking an 8-4 decision.

The result left the Moose as the lone unbeaten team in the league. Pepsi and the Exchange are both 3-1 now.

Pepsi took the lead in the opening inning, pushing over five runs. Tim Shank walked and Kelly Kee also drew a walk. With one down, Jeff Wilson walked, loading the bases. Eric Bowman and Ed Yancey both walked, forcing in Shank and Kee. Scott Wilson singled in Jeff Wilson, and Billy Stallings singled to score Bowman. An error on the play let Yancey score also.

The Exchange came up with one run in the second. Steve Irwin walked and scored when Billy Bost tripled.

They added two more in the third, cutting the gap to 5-3. Billy Kittrel was hit by a pitch and Mark Douglas singled. An error let Kittrel score and another brought Douglas home.

Pepsi came back with two in the bottom of the third. Scott Wilson singled and Stallings walked. Shank and Kee both walked forcing in Wilson. Ricky Sutton hit a sacrifice fly to score Stallings.

The other Exchange run came over in the fourth. Frank Norris singled and moved up on an error. He scored on Kittrel's double.

Pepsi also got its final run in the fourth. Bowman walked, as did Yancey. Wilson reached on a fielder's choice, getting Yancey.

Stallings walked and Steve White singled to score Bowman. Exchange 012 100-4 5 1

Cardinals Rip San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ted Simmons started a seven-run third-inning outburst with a solo homer and capped it with a bases-loaded triple, pacing the St. Louis Cardinals to a 17-2 demolition of the San Francisco Giants Saturday.

Simmons also singled a run across in the ninth inning as the Cardinals backed the seventh hit pitching of Bob Forsch, 4-3, with a 23-hit attack. Forsch blanked the Giants until the ninth.

Singles by Ted Sizemore and Ken Reitz, a walk to Simmons, Danny Cater's two-run single and a two-run double by Teddy Martinez started the rout in a four-run first inning off loser Pete Falcone, 3-3.

Simmons' fifth homer of the season and Reitz' double chased Falcone in the third. Cater singled off reliever Charlie Williams and pinch hitter Ron Fairly belted a run-scoring double.

The Cardinals two runs on bases-loaded walks to Sizemore and Luis Melendez before Simmons greeted reliever Dave Heaverlo with his base-clearing

Clemson Gets NCAA Notice

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Clemson University president Robert C. Edwards said Saturday he had received a letter from the National Collegiate Athletic Association concerning the group's investigation into Clemson's athletic policies and procedures.

The letter, marked "confidential," is a result of an extended investigation made by the NCAA into the Clemson University athletic program. It revealed for the first time incidents which the NCAA says are possible violations of its rules.

Edwards, while declining to elaborate on the contents of the letter, or the purported infractions, says Clemson will investigate reported allegations and will report to the NCAA Infractions Committee as directed.

He said the committee will review the report and will invite Clemson representatives to appear before the group.

Mario Andretti Easy Qualifier For Indy 500

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mario Andretti, who last weekend passed up a sure shot at a near-the-front start for the May 25 Indianapolis 500, qualified for the 33-car field Saturday, bumping Lee Kuzman out of it in the process.

Andretti, the 1969 Indy winner, rocketed his Offenhauser-Eagle around the 2 1/2-mile track at a speed of 186.480 miles an hour, the eighth fastest time among all qualifiers and by far the fastest of Saturday's entries.

With that speed last Saturday, the man from Nazareth, Pa., would have started the race in the third three-car row. But, because he passed up the first weekend of qualifying in order to race—unsuccessfully—in a grand prix at Monaco, Andretti had to settle for the inside of the 10th row, 28th place over-all.

Also qualifying early Saturday were rookie Larry McCoy of Langhorne, Pa., in 29th place at 182.760 m.p.h. in a Rascaro-Offy; Steve Krisloff of Parsippany, N.J., 30th at 182.408 m.p.h. in an Eagle-Offy; Dick Simon of Salt Lake City, 31st at head injuries in December 1973 during tire testing in Ontario, Calif., was bumped from the starting field.

Kunzman, from Guttenberg, Iowa., had qualified last weekend with the slowest time, 180.469 m.p.h. in an Eagle-Offy.

With him out of the field—not necessarily permanently since he can attempt to qualify again and improve his speed—rookie Al Loquasto of Roston, Pa., was "on the bubble," the next man in line to be bumped.

Still to qualify later Saturday were Graham McRae of New Zealand, 1973's top rookie; Tom Bigelow of Whitewater, Wis.; Billy Scott of San Bernardino, Calif.; rookie Jerry Sneva of Spokane, Wash., brother of already-qualified Tom Sneva; George Follmer of Huntington Beach, Calif.; rookie Elden Rasmussen of Canada, and Larry Cannon of Oakwood, Ill.

ELIZABETH CITY—Wesley Deal, running for catcher Eddy Connolly, scored from first base on Mike Brewington's triple in the top of the 14th inning giving Rose High a 3-2 win over Northeastern and the Division I baseball championship, Friday.

The game was the longest since 1970 when the Rampants battled 12 innings with Williamston winning in the bottom of the 12th. Both teams had good opportunities to end the game earlier but until the 14th, they could not get that one break.

The weather may have been an omen of what was to come. It began to rain just before game time and the teams had to wait about 20 minutes for the rain to stop. That wait was indicative of what was to come.

Kelly Heath pitched an amazing game for the Rampants. He pitched the whole way and ran into trouble only three times, in the sixth, the tenth and the 11th. Each time, he got a strike out or a big play to get out of the jam. In the tenth, Macon Moye saved the game for Heath with a diving catch of a fly ball with a man on second. He also made the final out in the 11th.

Heath fanned 16 batters with nine being the last out in an inning. He walked five but two of those were intentional. He gave up just six hits. His opponent Billy Price went just as long walking two and striking out four.

The Rampants had about as many hits as Elvis Presley but could not get a gold record. They banged out 15 hits off Price but could not get that one hit to do the trick until Brewington came through. They got their first two

Playoffs Are Set

Four area baseball and one softball team move into the state playoffs this week, playing Monday and Tuesday.

Rose High School's Rampants qualified in the 4-A ranks, and will travel to Wilmington Tuesday to meet Hoggard. Game time has not been set. Rose won the Division I title, while Hoggard took Division III.

In the 3-A playoffs, Williamston will play host to Eastern Wayne at 8 p.m. Tuesday night. Williamston won the Northeastern Conference while Eastern Wayne was the Eastern Carolina winner.

No 2-A teams made the playoffs this year.

In 1-A ranks, both Jamesville and Bear Grass of the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin league qualified for post-season play. Bear Grass will travel to Manteo on Tuesday, while Jamesville will meet either Creswell or Chowan, on Monday.

In softball, Williamston moved into the first state playoff for the girls. They will meet Louisburg in Wilson Tuesday at 4 p.m.

Pier Five, Rockets Win

Pier 5 moved back into a tie for the American Division lead with an 8-6 win over Jock's Friday night in the City Softball League.

Pier 5 is tied with Kentucky Fried Chicken, both with 4-1 records. In the other City league game, Baggett's fell to the Rockets, 16-4.

The Rockets had pushed over three in the first and got the winner in the third picking up two more. They added five in the fifth and six in the sixth. Baggett's got one in the fourth and three in the sixth.

Both Pier 5 and Jock's got a pair of runs in the first. Pier 5 got the lead back in the fourth with three runs but the Jock's tied it with three in their half of the frame. Pier 5 pushed over two in the fifth getting the eventual winner.

Wilkes Honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Keith Wilkes, the silky smooth forward of the Golden State Warriors who last month was voted the National Basketball Association's rookie of the year, was the only unanimous choice for the league's 12th annual All-Rookie team as chosen by the 18 NBA coaches.

Wilkes, who played his college ball at UCLA, is the first player from his franchise to make the All-Rookie team since Rick Barry and Fred Hetzel both made it in 1966.

Forwards John Drew of the Atlanta Hawks and Scott Wedman of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings each received 17 of 18 ballots. Drew, an exciting 20-year-old from Gardner-Webb, was the outstanding offensive rookie.

runs in the first on a triple by Moye and Heath drove them through four and two-thirds before giving up a hit. Then in the sixth, two Rose errors let the Eagles tie the game, 2-2.

No one got away with a steal Friday. Rose's Connolly wiped out the only Eagle who tried to swipe second and Ray Scott nailed three Rampants who went down.

Brewington was first to reach base getting on by an error in the first. He took second on the play and scored on Heath's single to left. Moye tripled up the gap in left-center scoring Heath.

After that, Price settled into his rhythm and allowed three batters to reach base in the next three innings. The Rampants tried to get some more in the sixth as Heath reached on an error but David Dixon, running for Heath, was fooled on Moye's bloop hit to center and was thrown out at second. Moye was likewise caught with his mind blank on Ron Hunt's grounder and was easily forced at second.

Then in the bottom of the sixth, the Eagles got a break.

Cliff Harris reached on a two out error and Bruce Bright singled. Scott walked leading the bases and a throwing error let the tying run score.

The Rampants could have won it in the seventh as Wright Hooks and Mike Belton both singled but two pop-ups ended the threat.

Rose put men on in every one of the extra frames but the 12th and 13th. Jack Jenkins singled to open the tenth for Rose and moved up on a sacrifice. Heath was walked but later forced at second. Keith Jones doubled in the 11th. Jenkins led off the 12th with another hit only to be forced by Griff Garner. Garner went to second on Heath's single but neither could advance.

Northeastern got a hit from William Eason in the tenth, a single and a walk in the 11th, a single and a walk in the 13th and a single in the 14th but could not win it.

Connolly led off the 14th with a single to center but the Rampants hopes seemed to be washing down the drain another time as Jenkins struck out and Garner popped up. But Brewington swung late and smashed a Price pitch into deep right and Deal scored standing up with the winning run.

Heath got Chuck Cullen and Price both to fly out before giving up a hit to Eason. But Surman made a breeze striking out to end the game.

Jenkins and Moye had a trio of hits for the Rampants while Heath and Connolly had a pair each. Eason had two for the Eagles.

The Rampants wind up the season with a 19-3 record. They will travel to Wilmington Tuesday to play in the first round of the state playoffs.

Pinecrest Takes Controversial Regional

UP AND OVER—West Cartaret's Elmer Brown clears the bar at 6-7½ to win a jump-off over Bertie's Armstead Gilliam in the regional track meet at East Carolina Friday. Both jumpers failed at 6-8 after making 6-6, and the bar was lowered for the jump-off. Pinecrest High School captured the championship of the meet after a controversial 880-yard run. Pinecrest High School came away with a controversial victory in the Eastern Regional Track Meet held Friday afternoon at East Carolina University's track and field.

Pinecrest finished the meet with 20 points, just nipping Bertie, which finished with 19. But it was nearly an hour after the final event before it was decided just which team had won.

It all started in the 880-yard dash. Bertie's Keith Uguhart finished second in the event, but was informed immediately afterwards by ECU assistant coach Curt Frye that he had been disqualified. The disqualification came after Uguhart had been observed running inside the line marking the inner boundary of the curbside track.

East Carolina head coach Bill Carson, as meet director, however, found that Bertie's coach Shelton Bond protested the call. Carson then ruled that he had not covered the penalties for running inside the line during the meet's scratch meeting and voided the disqualification. He also noted that only he, as meet director, could make the disqualification.

That brought protests from Pinecrest coach Charlie Bishop, who's fifth place runner in the event, Jeff Moody, would then not qualify for the state meet. With the disqualification, Moody would move up to fourth, thereby qualifying. (The top four finishers in each event qualified)

The arguments continued throughout the remaining events and followed for nearly an hour.

Finally, Carson ruled that the point totals awarded following the disqualification would stand, giving Pinecrest the championship. Bertie, if Uguhart had been reinstated, would have won it, 23-19.

Carson then ruled that Uguhart had been improperly disqualified and would qualify along with the other four runners for the state meet this Friday in Raleigh.

Only one Pitt-Martin-Greene area athlete qualified for the State Meet, Rose High School's David King, who finished third in the pole vault.

Lindberg Morris, who won the triple and long jumps last week and was second in the 100-yard dash, failed to qualify this week. Coach Bud Phillips said afterwards that undue pressures had hurt him.

"Lindberg was picked out of the running in his heat in the 100, actually finishing third, good enough to qualify for the finals," Phillips said. "Even the coach of the man picked ahead of him told the meet officials that it was clear that Lindberg had beaten his man, and therefore should qualify."

Phillips said that later, one of the qualifiers pulled a muscle, and Morris was moved back into the finals field. During the same time, he was also participating in the long jump, and after thinking he had failed to qualify in the 100, he scratched on his final long jump, failing to qualify there, too. He also scratched on two of his three triple jump attempts, and missed qualifying there by an inch.

"After last week, it was just too much pressure on him," Phillips said. Phillips was referring to last week's 100-yard dash, in which most observers saw Morris was the winner of the 100, but officials picked him second. In both races, he had run on an inside lane of the track.

There were three double winners in the meet, led by Bertie's Marvin Rankins, one of the state's top hurdles, and already signed to East Carolina next year. Rankins was named the meet's outstanding performer. He won the two hurdles events, running the highs in 13.7 seconds and the lows in 19.3 seconds.

Tony Shipman of Whiteville took the 100 and the 220 with times of 9.6 and 21.9 respectively. Dennis Huntley of Bowman (Wadesboro) won the 880 and the mile with times of 1:56.5 and 4:20.4, respectively.

TOUGHEST SCHEDULE
ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Falcons have the toughest schedule in the National Football League in 1975 based on the previous season's record of their opponents. Falcon foes won 111 games in 1974. At the other end of the scale, the 1975 opponents of the Los Angeles Rams won only 77 games among them last season.

The new kid on the block.

Conley No-Hitter Death For Chargers

HOLLYWOOD—Roger Jenkins and Donnie Cox combined for a no-hitter against Ayden-Griffon Friday, killed the Chargers hopes of a post-season berth 2-1.

The defeat left Ayden-Griffon with a 12-5 Eastern Carolina Conference record. They could still tie for second place in the league by beating Greene Central on Monday.

But that game was made meaningless by a ballot of the coaches of the league on Friday morning. The secret ballot was taken in case a tie did develop between the two teams and it gave the league's second playoff berth to Southern Wayne which downed Farmville 5-4, Friday night. Thus Monday's game becomes meaningless as far as the playoffs are concerned.

Jenkins went five and a third innings for the Vikings, striking out seven and walking five. Cox in one and two-thirds frames fanned one and walked one.

Conley took the lead in the first inning with a run. Clennel Streeter walked and Joey Baggett singled. Streeter stole third and when the throw there was too late, it was relayed to second, where Baggett was also trying to steal. That throw got away and on the error, Streeter came home.

Ayden-Griffon tied it up in the second. Eddie Taylor walked and stole second. An error on the relay let him take second. Dennis Cristiano then hit a sacrifice to score Taylor with the tying run.

It stayed 1-1 until the bottom of the seventh when Conley got the winning run. Streeter singled and was sacrificed up. Keith Gould then doubled to score him, ending the game.

Cristiano and Craft; Jenkins, Cox (6) and Forrest.

In the other National League games, the Montreal Expos beat the Cincinnati Reds 4-2; the Philadelphia Phillies routed the Atlanta Braves 12-8; the New York Mets trimmed the Houston Astros 10-2; the San Diego Padres beat the Chicago Cubs 8-2 and the San Francisco Giants defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 in 10 innings.

After Oliver put the Pirates ahead 3-1 in the top of the ninth, the Dodgers scored a run off Dave Giusti in their half of the inning on Steve Garvey's single, an infield out and a single by Cey. Bill Buckner then grounded into a game-ending double play.

Expos 4, Reds 2
Pepe Mangual keyed two rallies and extended his hitting streak to 12 games, leading Montreal over slumping Cincinnati.

Pittsburgh In Role Of Spoiler

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Nobody's perfect. Not even Don Sutton.

The Los Angeles Dodger right-hander who has a lot on the ball came close to pitching a perfect game Thursday night, but fell apart in the last two innings.

First he lost his no-hitter. Then he lost his shutout. And finally, he lost the game to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-2.

"Pittsburgh is an explosive club," said Sutton. "When they hit, it's like an epidemic. It runs through the whole ballclub."

For 7 1-3 gorgeous innings, Sutton was in complete control with a 1-0 lead. And it looked like that was all he was going to need. He struck out seven, and allowed only two balls to be hit out of the infield. The Pirates got nothing resembling a hit.

But with one out in the eighth, Richie Zisk hit a hot grounder just to the left of third baseman Ron Cey and into left field for the Pirates' first hit. Dave Parker followed with a line single to center and Manny Sanguillen singled to tie the score.

Sutton gave up his fourth hit to Rennie Stennett in the ninth and then his fifth, a home run

Jaguars Defeated

DUDLEY—Southern Wayne High School kept its hopes for a post-season playoff berth alive Friday with a 5-4 victory over Farmville Central.

The victory came in the eighth inning after two were out and the score was tied at 4-4. Smith singled and moved around as two walks loaded the bases. Pelletier then singled to drive in Smith with the winning run.

Farmville Central ended the year with a 10-12 record.

Bear Grass In Playoff Berth

BATH—Bear Grass primed itself for the state 1-A playoffs with a 6-3 baseball win over Bath Friday.

The Bears had a tough time winning the game in the fifth as they broke a 3-3 tie getting two tallies.

Bath had gone in front in the second as Smith tripled and scored on an error.

The Bears got it back in the fourth. Danny Peaks reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. Dwayne Baker singled to drive in Peaks.

The Bears kept things moving in the fifth taking the lead on two runs. Jerry Wynne was safe on a fielder's choice and he stole up. He was sacrificed to third. Mark Gardner walked and a double by Peaks scored both runners.

Bath, however, came back with two in the bottom of the frame to retie the game. Paul singled as did Smith. A third hit, by Price, scored Paul and a double by Tate brought in Smith.

Richard Knox was hit by a pitch to start the Bear Grass sixth and Alton Craft reached on an error sending Knox to third. Danny Rogerson sacrificed Knox in and a triple by Junie Wynne scored Rogerson.

The Bears added an insurance run in the seventh as Gardner walked and scored on Peak's second double.

The Bears will meet Manto Tuesday night in the first round of the playoffs.

Alligator

... you won't believe it 'til you see it! This is Alligator's newest innovation—the rain-proof, windproof protective cover-up for the fellow who doesn't want to come in out of the rain. And get this: It folds up into its own pocket! You're prepared for sporting activities rain or shine... because while the rain suit is folded, it slips onto your belt or hangs by a strap, out of the way but ready for use. When rain falls or winds blow, it's ready in seconds—you unsnap here and unzip there, and you have yourself a full, one-piece cover-up! (unfold it half way, and it's a versatile lightweight windbreaker!) It's fantastic for football and other out-of-doors spectator sports, great for golf, fine for fishing, unbeatable for boating or biking... wear it too, when you're hiking, camping, hunting. In tan, burgundy, orange, navy or light blue. Made of space age nylon.

Graniteers In First Victory

The Graniteers won their first Tar Heel Little League game of the year Friday, downing winless Big Value Drugs, 9-4.

The win boosted the Graniteers to 1-3 on the year, while Big Value fell off to 0-4.

Big Value got onto the scoreboard first, scoring four runs in the second inning. Ricky Uhlman reached on a fielder's choice and Scott Irwin walked. Tony Burroughs reached on a two base error, scoring Uhlman. David Sneed singled in Irwin and Tracy Cain doubled, driving in both Burroughs and Sneed for a 4-0 lead.

But in the third, the Graniteers came up with four to tie it up. Lance Searle singled and moved up on a wild pitch. Steve Holloman walked and Jeff James singled. Another wild pitch scored Searle and Mike Fuller walked. Mike James reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Holloman, and Alan Dickens walked to score James. An error let Fuller score the tying run.

The other five Graniteer runs came over in the fourth. Searle reached on a two-base error and was wild pitched to third. Holloman walked and moved up on a passed ball. Fuller reached on an error, scoring Searle. James singled in Holloman and an error let Fuller score. Dickens walked and Tony Ellis singled in both James and Dickens for the final 9-4 margin.

North Lenoir Downs Panthers

BETHEL—North Pitt closed out its baseball season on a loss Friday as the Panthers fell to North Lenoir, 4-3. The Panthers end the year with a 1-17 record.

North Lenoir broke the ice with a run in the first. Avery walked and later scored on a foul fly.

North Pitt rallied in the third to take the lead. Micky Nichols got his first hit of the year, a home run, to tie the game. J. D. Vernelson singled and Aubrey Wynne followed with another homer to make it 3-1.

The Hawks cut a run off the lead in the fourth as Jones tripled and scored on an out.

Craig Walton singled in the fifth and later scored on Avery's ground out to tie the game, 3-3. Jones singled for the Hawks in the seventh and Aycock moved him to third with a hit. Killett sacrificed to score Jones.

Vernelson and Nichols had tow hits each for the Panthers.

Aycock Gains Final Victory

E.B. Aycock Junior High School grabbed an early lead and held off a Rocky Mount rally to take an 8-7 victory Friday as they closed out the 1975 season.

Aycock pushed over three runs in the first to take the lead. Ronnie Chapman tripled and Greg Lee sacrificed him in. Bobby Wornoff singled and Jeff Aldridge hit a two-run homer.

The Panthers pushed in four more in the second. Jerome Ross reached on an error and Danny Boyd singled. Reggie Spain singled in Ross and Wornoff singled. An error on the play allowed all three runners to come around and score.

Rocky Mount broke the ice with two in the third. Silver walked and stole both second and third. Wilkens also walked and stole second, allowing Silver to score. Clark walked and stole second, and an error let Wilkens score.

Aycock got what proved to be the winning run in the third. Joey Downing singled and stole up. Ross walked and after Downing stole third, Boyd sacrificed him in.

Rocky Mount picked up one in the fourth and two each in the fifth and sixth, but fell one short of catching up.

Aycock ended the year with a 7-7 record.

Ali Batters Lyle In 11th For TKO Victory

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Claiming that at 33 he is a young man, Muhammad Ali says he wants to give Joe Bugner, Joe Frazier and George Foreman a shot at his world heavyweight title before the year is out. Ali did not look so young for 10 rounds Friday night, when 33-year-old Ron Lyle appeared to be winning their title fight. That all ended in the 11th, when Ali unleashed a barrage of head punches that left the ex-convict helpless and finished, his one shot at fame and fortune ended in a few seconds of speed and power.

Ali, who had a bruise over his left eye as he came out for the 11th round—one in which he told his handlers between rounds he would finish Lyle—credited his new strategy of wearing down his foe for the swift ending to a dull fight.

"I knew I was behind because he had thrown the most punches, but I came out serious to win all the rest of the rounds," Ali said of his attitude after 10 rounds, most of which found him doing next to nothing except inviting Lyle to hit him.

At 224½, Ali was the heaviest he's been for his 14 title fights, and he gave a lethargic performance in the first four rounds.

"I was using my 'Rope-a-Dope' strategy and then I went to the 'Mirage,'" he said. Ali said he wanted Lyle to wear himself out pounding him on the ropes, but when Lyle refused to fall for that, he went to the center of the ring for the "Mirage"—like someone on the desert thinking they can see water and only find sand."

Lyle, weighing 219, denied he was helpless at the end; he said the fight should have continued. That is not the way it looked to others. Ali caught him with a left-right-right combination on the ropes and staggered Lyle, who avoided a knockdown by falling against the ropes. Then Ali belted home a long series of rapid and strong follow-ups—as many as 35 punches—that Lyle could not evade as he staggered.

Ali signalled for referee Ferd Hernandez to stop the fight, and later said, "The man was unconscious. He wasn't defending himself. I cannot kill a man. I could see in his eyes he was just there to be hit." Hernandez finally stopped at 1:08 of the 11th round.

Lyle disagreed. "I wasn't going down or nothing. I wasn't hurt." His opinion was not shared by many.

A crowd of 6,875 paid $258,672 to watch in person as a nationwide television audience saw the bout at home, the first time Ali has been shown on home television since 1966.

Ali collected $1 million for his second defense since knocking out Foreman for the title in Zaire, Africa. Lyle got $100,000.

Since becoming a professional fighter on release from prison, Lyle built a 30-2-1 record to earn his title shot while rated the No. 7 challenger.

Ali, now 47-2 with 34 knockouts, next is scheduled to fight Bugner in Kuala Lumpur on June 30.

R.C. Cola Batters Kiwanis In 24-9 Win

R.C. Cola mauled the Kiwanis, 24-9, Friday in the North State Little League. R.C. boosted its record to 3-1 with the win while the Kiwanis are now 0-4.

R.C. pushed over one in the first inning. Dwayne Fisher reached on an error and moved up on an out. Tracy Mills singled to score him.

The Kiwanis came back with three in the bottom of the first to take the lead. David Welborn singled and Tom Brown got a hit. Grant Stackhouse singled and an error let Welborn score. Jay Whitehurst singled in Brown and Stackhouse for the 3-1 lead.

In the third, R.C. came up with four to regain the lead, 5-3. Chris Joyner singled and moved up on a passed ball. Mills singled and Greg Wright reached on an error, scoring Joyner. Stacy Mills then slapped a three-run homer to put R.C. ahead.

The Kiwanis came back with one in the third. Whitehurst singled and advanced on Brian Hill's hit. John Parnell singled him in.

R.C. put the game on ice with 11 big runs in the fourth inning. Jon Catlett singled and Fisher reached on a fielder's choice. Joyner singled and Doug Berry singled in Catlett and Fisher. Tracy Mills doubled to drive in Joyner and Berry and Stacy Mills singled. An error let Tracy score and moved Stacy to third. Jeff Wilson reached on an error, scoring Stacy Mills. William Rhodes singled Wilson in, and moved up on a passed ball and a wild pitch. Catlett walked and Fisher singled both runners home. After a wild pitch, Fisher scored on Joyner's single. An error let him move up, and after Berry singled, he scored on a passed ball for a 16-4 lead.

The Kiwanis got two in their half of the inning. Eric Lee doubled and Tom Brown singled. Stackhouse doubled Lee over, and Brown scored on Whitehurst's fielder's choice. R.C. added seven more in the fifth. Stacy Mills reached on an error and stole second, moving to third on a wild pitch. Eric Sawyer walked and stole second. Catlett reached on an error, scoring both runners. Fisher then doubled him in, and moved to third on a passed ball. Mike Livingstone was hit by a pitch and Tracy Mills slapped a three-run homer. Wright singled and stole second. Stacy Mills walked and David Moon reached on an error. Sawyer walked forcing in Wright.

R.C.'s final run came over in the sixth. Berry singled and Tracy Mills got a hit. A wild pitch and a passed ball scored Berry.

The Kiwanis came up with three in the bottom of the sixth. Greg Davis singled and moved around on a passed ball and a wild pitch, scoring on Brown's single. Stackhouse singled and an error let Brown score. Another miscue brought in Stackhouse with the final run of the game.

Saratoga Ousts Robersonville

SARATOGA—Saratoga Central High School outlasted Robersonville, using a first inning run to take a 1-0 victory Friday night to gain the Eastern Plains Conference championship.

The win gave Saratoga a 2-1 victory in the best-of-three series with the Eagles for the title, and sends them into next week's State 2-A baseball title playoffs.

The contest was a pitching duel between the two iron-men aces of the two teams. Jimmy Stalls of Robersonville, who saw his record tumble to 11-7 on the year with the loss, went the distance for the Eagles, allowing only three hits. But two of them came in the crucial first. He struck out two and walked two as he went the distance.

Winner Monte DeRatt also scattered three hits, walking none and whiffing six.

The two pitchers pitched the entire three game series this week.

The lone run of the game came in the first inning. Peele Garis singled and John Whitley got a double, on a misjudged fly to right, scoring Garis. That proved the only run of the night.

Aside from Whitley, only one other Saratoga player got as far as second the rest of the night, as Stalls allowed only one more hit. The lone threat of the Saratoga club came in the fifth when Tim Shelton reached on an error and moved to second on an out.

But things were even tougher for the Eagles. They didn't get a man to second base until the seventh inning. That came when Stalls singled and moved up on a passed ball.

The loss closed out the year for the Robersonville nine, which finished with a 13-9 overall record. R'ville 000 000 0-0 3 1

To date there's only a dozen active members, but their enthusiasm is boundless. They're members of Greenville's 4WD Club, or in full, the Four Wheel Drive Club.

Rugged vehicles and what they can do in getting over difficult challenging terrain is what it's all about. Members point out theirs is a practical sport, one that can fill urgent needs in times of emergency, such as coming to the aid of rescue squads in territory not negotiable by more conventional vehicles. There is, it is true, an element of the daredevil in testing the ability of vehicles to maneuver through hills of chewed up sand and slushy bogs of mud and water.

Vehicles used by the Greenville 4WD Club at this time include the Ford Bronco, Jeep Wagoneer and Jeep CJs, the Chevrolet Blazer, Ford 4WD Pickup, and Toyota Land Crusier.

Organized in October 1974, members now meet the first Wednesday night of each month at 8 p.m. at Smith-Waldrop Motors Company, 2201 Dickinson Ave.

Bill Mooney is president; Rivers Goodall, vice-president, Jack Norvell, secretary, and Ray Howard is treasurer. Other members are Larry Hatton, Darrell Phelps, Chad Lammert, Bob Johanneson, Buddy Holt, Larry Sapur, Robin Abbott and Richard Tatum.

Immediate plans are for the group to be represented on May 24-25 at the Blue Ridge 4WD event in Martinsville, Va., reportedly the biggest 4WD event on the east coast. Also in the mix are summer fishing trips. The club welcomes inquiries from anyone seriously interested in their activities. Bob Mooney, 752-6232 or Richard Tatum, 756-4267 will gladly furnish additional information.

Greenville Observing National Public Works Week

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Mayor Eugene West has proclaimed the period beginning today and continuing through Sunday as Greenville observance of National Public Works Week.

In issuing the proclamation, West pointed out that "public works services in our community are an integral part of our citizen's everyday lives."

He noted, "The support of an understanding and informed citizenry is vital to the planning and construction of public works programs and systems such as water, sewer, streets, highways and other types of facilities."

The mayor contended that "the health, sanitation, safety and general well-being of this community depends, to a great degree, on these services and facilities" and he added, "the quality, efficiency, and effectiveness of these facilities, as well as the planning, design, and construction of future facilities, is vitally dependent upon our public works engineers, administrators, and technicians."

West called upon "all citizens and civic organizations to acquaint themselves with the problems involved in providing public works facilities and services; and recognize the important role in our safety, health and well-being that is played by the public works officials in our community."

Mayo Allen, Greenville Public Works director, discussing the functions of the department, pointed out that the Public Works division here operates under the largest budget of any city agency.

Allen said that Public Works currently employs approximately 130 full-time employees who have specific jobs and duties in the operation of seven divisions within the department. Those divisions include: administrative, garage, sanitation, traffic signs and paint, street, landfill and cemetery.

The director, briefly discussing each division, explained that the administrative section is charged with the responsibility of keeping up-to-date records on all city owned vehicles; issuing purchase orders on vehicle maintenance and general improvements; operating the base station for the city's two-way radio system; receiving and following-up on all complaints registered with the department; and conducting a monthly safety program for all employees.

The garage division, according to Allen, maintains the city's fleet of 96 motor vehicles and 15 light, medium and heavy self-propelled equipment plus lawn mowers and small engines. Fleet maintenance includes regular vehicle lubrications, oil changes, tune-ups and major repairs, Allen said. In addition, the garage division provides safety inspections for all vehicles owned by the city and also maintains vehicles operated by Shepard Memorial Library and Airport Authority personnel, as well as providing gas for Housing Authority and Redevelopment Commission vehicles.

Since last July, the division has repaired some 336 tires and distributed an average of 16,000 gallons of gas and 1,500 gallons of diesel fuel per month.

The largest division within the city government, the sanitation division has the responsibility of picking up household garbage from residential back yards twice a week and trash once a week. Special pick-up service for heavy limbs and discarded items is also provided.

The sanitation section has 16 residential routes which are serviced twice each week and 12 business routes which are serviced from three to five times per week. Allen noted that some 13,000 cubic yards of raw garbage is collected per month here and an average of 200 loads of trash is picked up each month as the sanitation fleet accumulates approximately 11,000 miles of driving per month. Street sweeping services are provided by the division, as well as a litter patrol and a malaria and rodent control operation.

The landfill, the director continued, is open from Monday through Saturday at noon for residents of Greenville to dispose of their refuse at no charge. Approximately 4,000 vehicles visit the landfill site each month.

Allen, explaining that the landfill is operated under city, county, state and federal regulations, said that all new garbage and trash at the site is covered daily with six inches of dirt and once the fill areas are completed, another 20 inches of dirt is added.

The 75-acre site at one time of little value to the city due to its swampy location, is now maintained and within a few years, after total utilization of the landfill, there is a good possibility of a city golf course being made out of the area, he said. Three fish ponds are under construction there that could become a part of the overall recreation program, it was noted.

The traffic signs and paint department installs and paints all city traffic signs and averages some 100 sign preparations and installations per month. The division also paints and maintains all street traffic stripes and during April painted some 5,000 yards of traffic markings. Allen said that the division paints and takes care of some 675 refuse containers and paints all city-owned vehicles. The painting and repairing of all city parking meters is also the responsibility of the division as well as repair, painting and placement of barricades. The cemetery division provides maintenance for city cemeteries, including Brown Hill, Cherry Hill and Greenwood. In addition, cemetery division personnel mow grass and beautify all median strips within the city and maintain lawns at city-owned libraries.

Some 128 miles of paved streets are maintained by the street division, as well as 15 miles of unpaved streets and alleyways. Allen said that the division patches and repairs all city streets, using approximately 2,000 tons of asphalt per year, 8,000 tons of stone, and 1,000 loads of sand. The division has installed approximately 1,000 lineal feet of new curb and gutter since last July and replaced or repaired some 5,000 lineal feet of curb and gutter during the same period. Approximately 900 lineal feet of new sidewalk was also installed and another 5,000 feet repaired or replaced, the director added.

The street division has installed more than 3,000 lineal feet of pipe already this year and since last July has cleaned out and opened over 7,000 feet of ditches. The division is responsible for removing all unwanted trees on street right-of-way and has the duty of trimming all trees and bushes that create a hazard to traffic. Trees and shrubs are also planted by the division where needed along the city street system.

Allen said that the Public Works Department handled the paving, curbing and guttering of the new Reade Circle.

The director was recently elected to a two-year term on the board of directors of the North Carolina Public Works Association.

Three To Speak At Jarvis Monday

Dr. Dick Douglas, the Rev. John Farmer and Ed Lewis, an ECU senior, are scheduled to speak at Jarvis Methodist Church Monday.

Their five-minute talks each, their reasons why they were motivated to join a Haiti Mission Team on June 7, are scheduled at 10 a.m. in the chapel of the church. It is free and open to the public. A nursery will be provided for preschool children.

Others on the program will include Mr. William F. Grossnickle, chairman of Christian Global Concerns of United Methodist Women, sponsor of the meeting, Mrs. O.E. Dowd Sr., who has visited Haiti and will inform her audience of the situation there, and Mrs. Clifton Everett, who will make a presentation of a gift from Group One with Mrs. Ed Clement as leader of United Methodist Women.

Another highlight of the meeting will be the introduction of 12 new members into United Methodist Women. Mrs. John L. Hassell, chairman of membership, will introduce the following:

Mrs. Dick Douglas; Mrs. Elsie Dunn; Mrs. Pat Dye; Mrs. Joe Gurganus; Mrs. John Hackett; Mrs. Arlene Hoot; Mrs. Bob Hursey; Mrs. Kenneth Knight; Mrs. Warren Russell; Mrs. David J. Whitchard II; Mrs. Jack C. Wynne III; and one who has reinstated, Mrs. Pinkney Young III.

Membership Committee members in addition to Mrs. Hassell and Mrs. E. Hoover Taft Sr., co-chairmen of refreshments, will honor new members with refreshments following the meeting in the ladies parlor of the church.

The meeting will close with a violin performance by Miss Dee Anna Braxton, an ECU student-musician. She will play "Ava Maria" and will be accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Hope Anderson.

Presiding at the meeting will be Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh, president of United Methodist Women.

Atlantic Beach Chief Elected

ATLANTIC BEACH—Atlantic Beach Police Chief W.W. Moore has been elected national vice-president of the American Federation of Police—a national fraternal organization of law enforcement officers.

Chief Moore's term became effective May 1 and will expire May 1, 1977.

He has served as president of the state American Federation of Police chapter for the past six years.

Pitt Student Was Page

By GENEVA HOLDER

Robert Greene III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greene Jr., served as a page in the North Carolina General Assembly last week.

He is a rising sophomore at North Pitt High School and was recently elected SGA reporter for next year.

The Future Farmers of America have received their monogrammed jackets. The jackets are navy blue with the FFA emblem and the student's name in gold.

The East Carolina University cheerleaders met with the North Pitt varsity cheerleading squad and prospective members for 1975-76 Tuesday and Wednesday to practice cheers.

Official tryouts for next year's squad will be judged by two teachers, two students, and the ECU cheerleaders at a later date.

North Pitt held their first JROTC inspection last week. The inspectors were LTC Applewhite, LTC Darlrymple and Major Shoe.

During the parade, Cadet Capt. Linda Fillingame was presented the superior cadet medal. Company B was selected as the best company.

Corrections Personnel At ECU Institute

Eighteen North Carolina corrections personnel representing 12 counties have completed the 13th Institute of Correctional Administration at East Carolina University.

The 18 institute graduates receive certificates in a campus ceremony Friday, at which Dr. William C. Smith of the ECU Department of Social Work and Correctional Services was featured speaker.

Other campus officials present were ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins, Dr. Kenneth Taylor and Herman G. Moeller of the social work and correctional services faculty, and Dean Ronald Thiele of the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

E. R. Beacham, of Jamesville in Martin County, was among those at the institute.

D. H. Conley Highlights

The final countdown continues for seniors as another busy week passes. Senior cap and gown portraits arrived and were distributed Thursday during lunch.

Wanda Joyner, Gloria Bostillo, and Debbie Toler were awarded OGA (Order of Gregg Artists) pins for demonstrating fine penmanship in shorthand.

The Physics and IPS classes, taught by Mrs. Pattie Leary, traveled to Chapel Hill Thursday and visited the Morehead Planetarium there.

Conley's SGA will sponsor a dance Friday, May 23, beginning at 8:00 p.m. The dance will feature "The Average Band". Admission is $1.50.

Students of the week in IPS are Henry Johnston, second period; Donald Ribeiro, third period;

Auction Planned

DHC's auditorium will be the scene of an auction on May 26 at 7:30 p.m. Auctioneer, Ray Oglesby, will auction off student made items such as macrame belts and planters, wall hangings, woven pillows, paintings, chalk drawings, block prints, printed scarves and fabrics, pottery, posters, and sculptures. Proceeds will go toward the purchase of art materials and a potter's wheel.

The National Honor Society officers were elected Wednesday for the school year 1975-76. They are as follows: Gregory Daniels, president; Mark Berg, vice-president; Connie Garriss, secretary; and Mike Nobles, treasurer.

Research Group Aids Small Law Firms

By RICHARD NEWCOMBE
CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (UPI) — Five years ago a third-year law student developed an idea that he believes can enable small law firms to compete with the biggest and best known in the country.

Walter W. Morrison, now 30, is president and founder of the Research Group, Inc., which provides legal research primarily for the three-person-or-less law firm, about three-fourths of the legal profession. The idea is to give small outfits the same quality of research that big firms hire whole departments to provide.

Another company executive, James L. Arnold, a Morrison classmate, compared the Research Group's relationship with lawyers to a medical laboratory's relationship with doctors.

"When your doctor takes a sample of something, he doesn't peer into a microscope to examine it," he said. "He sends it to a laboratory for a report on the results."

The company now has a staff of more than 50 full-time attorneys and about 150 law students researching cases that range from drug laws to medical malpractice suits to massage parlor complaints.

A recent case concerned an unusual drunken driving arrest. An allegedly inebriated North Dakota farmer faced a 60-day jail sentence because the arresting officer said the farmer's horse was weaving down the road.

The farmer protested—"the horse didn't have anything to drink"—and the Research Group's attorneys discovered a technicality in the proceedings that helped the farmer's attorney clear his client.

Morrison said his company is bringing quality back into the courtroom.

"Maybe 40 years ago two attorneys arguing in the courtroom arena started on equal grounds," he said, but today small-firm lawyers are faced with having "their hours eaten up by running an office and gathering facts on a case."

He said this frequently results in ill-prepared cases, or it creates a lopsided battle with the big-firm attorney relying on the extensive research of recently-hired law school graduates arguing against a small-firm lawyer not half as well prepared.

"True legal advocacy, the bedrock of our system, is crumbling," he said.

One of the reasons for the company's substantial growth from an initial $150,000 investment by James W. Deeter, a Virginia businessman whose investment company owns 60 per cent of the research firm, is the wide variety of current legal complexities facing lawyers.

"Issues such as abortion, environmental protection, consumerism, massage parlors, medical malpractice, franchise laws and wiretapping are tremendously interesting," Arnold said.

"When a sole practitioner can face a large corporation backed by a powerful law firm in, let's say, a $50 million suit and feel that his research is as thorough, or even more thorough, than the law firm's, then he keeps using our services.

About 60 per cent of our business now is repeat."

Morrison also said the company does not limit its research to small firms exclusively, as some of his attorneys are gradually moving into the corporate market.

Not all lawyers favor this approach to research. They argue that attorneys may rely too much on outside research. But Morrison said that since lawyers are subject to malpractice charges he doesn't think this is a great danger.

With more than 8,500 attorney clients and offices in Charlottesville, Va.; Cambridge, Mass.; Ann Arbor, Mich., and Berkeley, Calif., Morrison said his idea has blossomed into

Satellite Used For Training

CHEYENNE (UPI) — A communications satellite is being used this spring in an innovative program by the Federation of Rocky Mountain States to provide medical training refresher courses.

About 1,000 emergency medical technicians will receive refresher training in the courses beamed to Wyoming, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming.

annual gross revenues of about $2 million, derived from what he considers a low rate structure.

"Our attorney clients are charged $17.50 an hour, significantly lower than the average $40 an hour that a typical attorney charges his client," he said.

The office locations are all in law school towns "so that our researchers have access to the best law libraries in the country," he said. "This gives a great advantage to the attorney who may be limited in his research facilities."

Morrison said the company is "in the vanguard of creating a layer of support for lawyers" that he expects will provide a better balance of powers within the legal profession.

Traineeships For Wyoming U.

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — Five of the 44 graduate traineeships made available nationwide by the National Science Foundation have been awarded to the University of Wyoming for research on non-nuclear energy production.

The $101,500 in funds will be used for research on atmospheric pollution, coal geochemistry, reclamation, and restoration of strip-mined areas. The funds will be available for a three-year period starting this fall.

E. Gerald Meyer, vice president for research, said the programs are already underway and the new funds will make continued research possible in areas important to the national energy effort.

August Becomes Bridal Month

LAKEVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Surprising as it may sound, the marrying-est month is no longer June — it's August.

The source of this romantic revelation is Cove Haven, honeymoon resort located in the Poconos here.

For a couple of years, August has been the most sought-after month at Cove Haven for newlyweds, according to owner Morris Wilkins, but the phenomenon was attributed to coincidence. However, so far the same is holding true for this August and a number of requests have already arrived for August of 1976.

If you're looking for an ordinary job, don't look here.

Many jobs on this page require experience. Ours don't—just high standards and the desire to learn. (You'll be paid while you learn, too.)

Many jobs pay a salary or wage. Our jobs include free medical and dental care, food and housing, a 30-day paid vacation every year, besides a good salary.

Many jobs offer you one kind of work. We offer you a choice of training and travel.

And, if you qualify, we'll guarantee your job training in writing, before you enlist.

And, finally, many jobs give you an opportunity to work for a company. Ours give you an opportunity to work for your Country.

Woman Plants Wall Of Trees To Reclaim Desert

WENDY CAMPBELL-PURDIE has the wild idea she could whip the Sahara with trees, and vast projects are under way to do just that. (UPI Photo)

By GREVORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — For centuries man watched hopelessly as the once-green Sahara died into desert and spread like a cancer. Then Wendy Campbell-Purdie stepped in.

She had a wild idea that she could whip the Sahara with trees. It was obviously insane. She was a woman alone. Nobody backed her. She was no "expert."

Yet today vast projects are under way to do just that.

Algeria is using her idea to create an enormous wall of trees, a living great wall up to 7.5 miles wide across the country from border to border.

Miss Campbell-Purdie has just returned from Senegal, on the desert's southern edge, which is about to start a similar border-to-border "green wall." Botswana and Gambia are hammering at her door for advice on taming their deserts. Egypt wants to see her next.

"There are schemes all over the place," she said in an interview with an understandingly satisfied smile.

Wendy Campbell-Purdie is an unlikely person to change the world single-handedly. She is a small, frail-looking woman of 49 with short-cropped hair and a penetrating gaze.

But she is utterly confident that the Sahara can be halted—it devours a Connecticut-sized area every two years—and made green again.

"Of course it can be done," she said in the clutter of her tiny London house.

"Trees will stop the desert in its tracks. Then you can plant inward, shrinking the desert as you go. And you can plant pretty well all the way across the Sahara."

Once the Sahara had rivers and vegetation and contented people, she said.

"There is still water everywhere, far down. Enough rain falls even now to keep established trees alive," she said.

Seedlings planted in the sand need irrigation for two or three years, she said.

"But there's lots of water there," Miss Campbell-Purdie added. "Most of it is just wasted now."

Miss Campbell-Purdie was working for a timber firm in Corsica when English tree expert Richard St. Barbe Baker convinced her that his "green wall" idea could tame the desert.

"But he got ill and couldn't do anything about it," she said. "So finally I went off by myself."

She headed for Morocco on a one-way ticket, rented 45 acres of desert and, with her own money, began to plant trees.

"People thought I was daft," she said.

But Miss Campbell-Purdie knew trees would stop sandstorms, cool the atmosphere upward to seven times their own height, and increase surface humidity enough to make land fertile again.

She planted 2,000 trees at Tiznit. In four years they were 12 feet high. She grew wheat and barley in their shelter.

A change of government forced her to Tunisia, and floods there drove her to Algeria. Algerian officials ended her incessant badgering by letting her demonstrate her own folly.

"They gave me rather a nasty bit of sand covered with scrap metal," she said. "It had been a French military dump, then an Algerian army dump."

She planted 1,000 seedlings. A year later 800 were still alive.

An astonished Algerian government then offered unlimited seedlings for her 260-acre dump. In England she formed the Bou Saada Trust to help with finance. Local leaders promised men to help with the planting. Miss Campbell-Purdie described what happened the day they all showed up.

"As I got out of the car I heard music from a three-piece band," she said. "Following them marched a great army of tree planters—thousands, literally thousands, of volunteers."

"I nearly burst into tears. It was the most glorious, maddening and fabulous day of my life."

A few months ago she revisited her Bou Saada plantation, now a going concern. Her 130,000 trees are flourishing. The fertile area they created grows vegetables, grain, and citrus fruits. It has given unemployed villagers work and wealth and inspired the government to use Miss Campbell-Purdie's full "green wall" blueprint.

"I was rather proud, seeing it that way," she said. But other projects beckoned.

"I'll go anywhere I'm invited and grow trees," she said. "I don't think I'll run out of deserts in my lifetime."

Her motive now is the same as when she began 16 years ago.

They Signal Polluted Air

TOWANDA, Pa. (AP) — Tiny specks of red, yellow, blue and green phosphors, produced here by GTE Sylvania Inc. and invisible to the naked eye, are helping California scientists accurately trace patterns of industrial and automotive air pollution.

Concentrating in the Los Angeles area, scientists recently discovered that polluted air can affect municipalities up to 60 miles away. In a pollution simulation test, the nontoxic phosphor particles were released simultaneously from four locations at smokestack and ground levels. After being borne aloft by wind currents, fallout patterns were determined by up to 80 monitoring stations. Since the phosphor particles have a precise grain size and color and do not exist naturally in nature, they can be readily identified under a microscope.

Preliminary tests have indicated that stationary sources might be responsible for a higher percentage of air pollution than is generally realized.

'Stage Setter' Helps Students

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Albert Miles of Akron says he likes to help students.

One way he does so is by holding the price of candy to 10 cents a bar in his vending machines at Kent State University, though the wrappers say 15 cents. Another is by sponsoring the Mary Miles Scholarship, given quarterly to a Kent State music student in memory of his daughter, who was a Kent State music student.

"Smiles," as he is known, says he has been in candy all his life, eating it as a child, making it as a young man working his way through college and now selling it. He is 75.

"There are people on the stage and there are those who set the stage," he philosophizes. "I'm in the background; I provide the sweets."

Couple Exchanges Vows In Saturday Ceremony

Miss Deborah Joyce Owens became the bride of Raymond Hyder Hardman in a ceremony Saturday at 3:00 p.m. at Saint Paul's Episcopal Church.

A program of wedding music was presented by Larry Jones, organist. The Rev. Michael Berry sang "O Perfect Love" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Joyce Harris Owens of Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Hardman of Roanoke, Va.

Given in marriage by her brother, Stephen Lee Owens of Atlanta, Ga., the bride wore a formal length white dotted swiss gown styled with an empire bodice and demi bell A-line skirt. Venice lace formed the high neckline and accentuated the bib design in the front. Satin buttons centered the bib effect. Matching Venice lace trimmed the cuffs of the long sleeves and edged the hemline and attached chapel train.

She wore a tiered illusion mantilla edged in Venice lace. The bride carried a nosegay of tropicanna roses, yellow miniature carnations and baby's breath.

Mrs. Vernon L. Sutphin Jr. of Raleigh attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a formal length gown of yellow organza flocked with white flowers accented with green leaves. The gown featured an empire waistline with a square ruffled neckline and the hemline of the modified A-line skirt was edged in a ruffled flounce. She wore a yellow brimmed garden hat. She carried a nosegay of white gladioli florets, yellow pom poms and orange statice.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Donna R. Owens of Atlanta, Ga., Miss Beverly Crews of Winston-Salem, Mrs. Mike Paynter of Richmond, Va., and Miss Teresa Creech of Wilson. They wore gowns styled identical to that of the honor attendant and carried nosegays similar of that of the honor attendant. Miss Amy Pendleton of Fayetteville, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a full length yellow dotted swiss dress and carried a basket of mixed spring flowers. Pierce Owens of Atlanta, Ga., nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

The father of the bridegroom was bestman, and ushers were Mike Paynter of Richmond, Va., Gregg Sparks of Winston-Salem, Gen Fielder of Richmond, Va. and Barry Stump of Roanoke, Va.

The mother of the bride wore an aqua silk shantung dress fashioned with long sheer sleeves. She wore a corsage of white gardenias. The mother of the bridegroom wore a dress of pink chiffon with matching Venice lace, fashioned with a roll collar of lace. Her corsage was white gardenias.

The bride's grandmother was remembered with a corsage of yellow carnations.

The mistress of ceremonies was Mrs. James Larsen of Greenville.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's mother at the Tar River clubhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. William Crisp greeted guests. Mrs. C.L. Brown of Plymouth served the three tiered wedding cake after the bride and bridegroom ate the first slice. Mrs. Thomas R. Harris of Plymouth poured punch. John Schofield and Durwood Davis served champagne. Mrs. John Schofield presided at the Bride's Book.

For the wedding trip to Virginia Beach and Williamsburg, Va., the bride changed into a melon knit dress with a matching jacket.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University where she was a member of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority and is employed by First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Raleigh. The bridegroom is also a graduate of East Carolina University where he was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He is employed by the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., Raleigh. The couple will make their home in Raleigh.

Following the rehearsal wedding party was entertained at a dinner at the Beef Barn by the parents of the bridegroom.

Chapter Officers Named At Tuesday Night Meet

The Eta Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority held a covered-dish supper meeting Tuesday at the home of Lavonna Scott.

At the meeting, the 1975-76 officers were installed. A transferee ritual was performed and a pledge of funds to United Cerebral Palsy was undertaken. Ms. Scott provided a program on friendship.

Dorothy Jensen was the transferee welcomed into the Eta Delta Chapter from a chapter in Polo, Ill.

The new officers are: Carolyn Powell, president; Jan Stanley, vice president; Sandi McBride, secretary; and Elaine Ollino, treasurer.

Ms. McBride was given a plaque for her contributions as the first and past president of the Eta Delta Chapter. Other awards were also presented to various committee chairmen. The next Beta Sigma Phi meeting will be Tuesday, May 27 at the home of Ms. Powell. A feature of the meeting will be pledge rituals and rituals of the jewels.

Amateurs Are Experts At Needlework Show

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Living Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Ethel

Merman loaned a needlework rug with a sunflower design by Mary Martin; Joanne Woodward, an art nouveau needlepoint pillow made for her daughter.

But celebrities are the exception rather than the rule in the grand prix of needlework, a biennial exhibit by Amateur Needlework of Today to benefit The Lighthouse, the New York Association for the Blind.

The only thing amateur about the sponsors is the organizational name. This year's show contained an astonishing variety of designs and a superb standard of workmanship.

Mrs. Grant Simmons Jr. of the mattress family showed a nine-foot by 39-inch needlepoint alligator that took three years to make.

There were needlepoint renditions of Old Masters and even a Picasso.

Lady Lindsay of Woking, a leading British needleworker, loaned a needlepoint picture of her home that looks like an etching. The clouds above it were worked with her own hair, in an 18th century tradition.

Candy Redd of Birmingham, Mich., designed and stitched a minutely detailed scene from a Charles Dickens novel showing a child in bed beside a many-paned window, and snow falling outside. A patchwork quilt worked in tiny needlepoint stitches is thrown to one side, and a piece of unfinished embroidery rendered in needlepoint lies on the windowsill.

J. Harden Rose of New York designed and made a handbag that looks like a salt-box house. Its weathered gray shingles and roof are worked in bargello stitches. Rose's wife is a member of the board of the needlework organization.

"A lot of people exhibit year after year," said a spokesman for The Lighthouse. "Many spend the years between exhibits working on new entries."

The needlework organization contacts designers and professionals to locate people who are doing interesting work, and invite them to participate. The group, organized in 1934 to raise money for the Friendship Fund of The Lighthouse, exists solely for the biennial exhibit. Proceeds from fees charged exhibitors, sponsors and visitors help support extra curricular activities — music, theater, summer camps for sightless children and the elderly.

The rules permit both original and commissioned designs. Nearly 500 entries this year included an unusually large number of chairs, plus pillows, pictures, wall hangings, tote bags and handbags, footstools and backgammon boards — one in a giraffe pattern and another with wine bottles.

Gold thimbles are awarded to winners in needlepoint and embroidery. This year's embroidery prize went to Mrs. LeRoy Campbell of South Harwich, Mass., for an wall hanging in a game bird design. Mrs. Alastair B. Martin of Katonah, N.Y., won her fourth thimble for a Victorian armchair in needlepoint.

Second prize in wall hangings went to Mrs. Henry S. Reeder of New York, for a Pauline Fischer design resembling a three by five foot Christmas card with a Christmas poem and holiday scenes worked in embroidery, needlepoint and bargello.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I go to the movies and watch television to be entertained, not to sit there and fall apart.

Sitting through the Towering Inferno the other night, I found myself slouching in my seat, my legs hopelessly entangled and locked with one another, beads of sweat gathering on my forehead. Unable to stand looking at the screen, I buried my head in my husband's sweater.

Finally, I opened one eye and whispered to him, "Is it over? Has Faye Dunaway fallen out of her dress yet?"

There is something about a dress slit to the waist supported only by gravity and good posture that makes me tense. When Rita Moreno ran to the podium for her Tony in her divided to the waist halter, I nearly fainted, and when Adrienne Barbeau slouches on the Carson show, I instinctively throw my body across the screen when there is no one in the room but the dog.

I guess it all goes back to my mid-Victorian upbringing where we were taught, "What good is a dress if you can't play the violin in it."

In shopping for a long dress the other week, however, I couldn't resist taking a halter dress to the fitting room with me.

"What holds it up?" I asked the salesperson.

"Gravity and prayer. . . not necessarily in that order."

"I see. The earth revolves and draws all the bodies in its sphere toward the center of the earth at the rate of 32 feet per second and the dress stays up."

"That's easy for you to say,"

she said. "Personally, I'm holding out for prayer."

"What do you think?" I asked, standing erect, not daring to breathe. "I think the dress should sue you for non-support."

"Maybe I should go back to the keyhole neckline," I observed. "I personally think you should seal off the entire chest," she said.

"Look, if Faye Dunaway can last through a cocktail party, a major fire, 35 explosions, smoke, water and a ride on a see-through elevator with a broken cable, I can handle this dress."

"I'll throw in an asbestos bra," she said tiredly.

Bonnie Prudden Says: Find Time To Exercise

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Physical fitness is a family thing, according to Bonnie Prudden, who has spent 30 years working out flexible exercises to make it easy.

"Aging is not so much a matter of years but of lack of fitness," she said in an interview here. "As you get older, it's more difficult to keep fit but when you exercise every single day it helps keep you young."

In 1954, Mrs. Prudden reported to President Dwight D. Eisenhower that 54 per cent of young school children she tested had flunked a basic fitness test, more than half again as many as had failed the test in Europe.

"Today, 85 per cent of young children fail that same test," she added. "Despite increased interest in gymnastics and in games like tennis, it's still natural athletes who excel in school physical education. Needs of other children are for the most part ignored."

The fitness expert warned that too many parents say their children don't wish to exercise, and therefore should not. Children, she said, do not always know what they want. The basics of fitness should be taught so they can build on them later on.

Her short, blonde hair in a pixie cut, Mrs. Prudden's face and figure belie her 61 years and her pride in the achievements of her children and grandchildren. She lives in Stockbridge, Mass., where she heads the Bonnie Prudden Institute for Physical Fitness.

"I grew up in a time when children walked four to 10 miles each day, skated, skied, climbed trees. Today, children have little opportunity for those things," she said.

The answer, Mrs. Prudden said, is an exercise program in which an entire family participates. Her new book, "How To Keep Your Family Fit and Healthy," studies ways fitness can be made easy.

"We lived with a family — all three generations — for a year working this program out, and we took more than 2,000 pictures from which we selected 500 for the book. Nothing in there is difficult," she added. The result is a total fitness regime to help individuals keep their muscles flexible.

"People don't realize there's an exercise answer for everything, a way of handling most all problems. There are exercises to reduce tension, or to keep a driver from becoming stiff if he's behind the wheel for a long period."

People who say they have no time for exercise are wrong, Mrs. Prudden said. They have no time to stop exercising and keeping their muscles flexible and elastic.

"Whatever your lifestyle, you have only one body. It must be cared for," she added.

"How To Keep Your Family Fit and Healthy" is published by Readers Digest Press.)

No Harm Done In 'Make Believe'

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor and I are both young mothers, and our children, who are 5-years-old, play together.

This neighbor tells her little girl fairy tales all the time. She reads some out of books, and others she makes up as she goes along.

Abby, please don't think I'm weird, but I think fairy tales are unhealthy for children. It confuses them to the point where they don't know the difference between reality and fantasy or lies and the truth.

I read to my child, too, but I avoid all those fairy tales and stick to the truth. Somehow, I feel that when you tell a child the truth, it helps to develop honesty and truthfulness. What is your opinion?

YOUNG MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I am not aware of children who have been harmfully "confused" by nonviolent fairy tales; but I know of some who have been traumatized by the shocking "realities" of modern life. Fantasy gives wings to young imaginations, and as long as the youngsters understand that it's all "make believe," there's no harm done.

DEAR ABBY: If I asked my doctor about my problem, he'd think I was a hypochondriac, "putting him on" or even making a pass at him to prove my point. So I'll tell you:

During my several marriages and all the romances in between, I continually contracted everything from sore throats to colds to serious illnesses. But when I'm without male companionship, I enjoy excellent health—although I nearly die of loneliness!

Is kissing really that "germy"? Could I be allergic to men? Or do fatigue and emotional excitement lower one's resistance?

I really do like men, Abby. But they seem to be bad for my health. What do you suggest?

KISSING BUG

DEAR BUG: People who are "in love" usually don't get enough rest. And they don't eat properly. Consequently, their resistance is low, and they're more susceptible to whatever is going around.

Your problem could be that you don't stay with one man long enough to build up an immunity to his "germs." Given a choice, most women would rather be sick in bed with a wonderful man than playing solitaire in the best of health.

DEAR ABBY: I am 26, and considered attractive and lots of fun. I met this man two years ago and have been seeing him ever since. He only takes me to motels and church.

The problem is that he loves me, but I don't love him. I want to stop seeing him, but I don't know how to go about it. He is 42, works six days a week, and he doesn't want me to go with anyone else. He has never been married, and he says I'm the first girl he has ever been serious about.

He doesn't drink or smoke. (I do.) He deserves a nice church-going girl who is more like himself, and I'm not it. How do I break it off without hurting him?

DOLLY

DEAR DOLLY: Tell him the truth. It's unfair and unkind to keep seeing him when you could set him free to find someone else.

DEAR ABBY: My granddaughter got married two years ago. When she and her husband come to see me, he calls me "John." What is more, he calls my son, who is his father-in-law, "Frank."

I think this young man should call me "Grandpa" and my son "Dad."

GRANDPA

DEAR GRANDPA: Some Dads and Grandpas don't mind being addressed by their first names. But if you do, you should complain to the offending party.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Miss Hightower Weds Saturday

St. Paul's Episcopal Church was the scene of the Saturday morning wedding ceremony of Miss Faye Elaine Hightower and William Ross Potter, both of Greenville.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Lawrence P. Houston Jr., rector.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. George Walton Hightower of Charlotte, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Potter of Perry, Ohio.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a floor length gown of white rose brocade designed with an empire waistline with a tie and bow in back. She wore a mantilla with a lace band of roses and carried a bouquet of white roses tied with white ribbons.

Mrs. Camille Twining of Charlotte was matron of honor and was dressed in a yellow ribbed dress and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Honorary bridesmaids were Cher Shepard of Hyde County, Pam Kesler, Billy Jo Hightower, Cameron Kay and Laura Rexroad, all of Charlotte, and Pam Hunt Hightower of Beaufort, S. C. They were dressed in spring colors of blue, yellow and green and carried bouquets of red roses.

The best man was Mark Christopher of Greenville and the usher was Ty Potter of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride will graduate this month from East Carolina University with a B.S. degree in speech language and auditory pathology. The bridegroom served in the U. S. Navy and is manager of the Stop-N-Go, Grifton.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Alpha Omicron Sorority house.

The children also related their ideas on their mother's recipes.

Steak, Doug Martoccia—She beats it up. Then she puts rooster sauce on it. Then she cooks it in a pan about 1 hour. She puts some kind of grease in the pan. When steak is in the pan, she puts salt on it. It is done when the news goes off.

Chicken Soup, Connie Wallace—Salt about 1 gallon, put 1 chicken, cookies (vanilla wafers) crumble up in soup. Cook it 3 hours. It gets real hot.

Pineapple Cake, Carlton Station—4 drops of pineapple, 6 strawberries, 4 drops of sugar, 8 pears of flour. Put in the oven and cook 50 minutes.

Beans, Lisa Harkley—Pour in a pan, put them on the stove. Cooks 10 hours. Puts water in it. Salt.

Chocolate Cupcakes, Pauletta Summerall—Sugar 2 spoonful, milk 1 gallon spoon, eggs 2, flour 5 spoons, 2 spoons chocolate. Then she cooks it 5 hours. After it gets done, we eat it.

Spaghetti, Tiffany Mewborn—She puts noodles in a pot. Then she makes a sauce. Onion 1, bell pepper 1, tomatoes 2, celery 3 pieces. Then she puts it all together and cooks it all day. At night we eat it—at 6:00.

Pizza, Patrick Carroll—16 mushrooms, meat on it, little triangular things on it, crust on the outside. She puts it in the oven for ½ hour. Then she cuts it. Then we eat it up in a minute.

First Lady Of Radio Broadcasts From Her Home In The Catskills

EDITOR'S NOTE — Mary Margaret McBride figures she's interviewed upwards of 30,000 persons. She's still interviewing, still on radio (a local station in the Catskills), and she still gets mail from devoted listeners of yore.

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
WEST SHOKAN, N.Y. (AP)

Mary Margaret McBride was always afraid, as she puts it, that somebody would find her out. Maybe, at age 75, she should put aside her fears.

Mary Margaret McBride? A cherished name from your past?

If you're asking who's that, well, you're young enough to be a pure product of television.

Mary Margaret McBride was the undisputed first lady of radio, heard across the nation daily by millions of Americans.

She was called the "female Arthur Godfrey" and listed in a book as one of America's 12 master salesmen.

For 20 years, from 1934 to 1954, Mary Margaret was the window of the world to housewives in suburbia. Through Mary Margaret, they got away from diapers and dishes. They met Eleanor Roosevelt and Harry Truman, movie stars and authors, lion trainers and master chefs. Mary Margaret interviewed them all. Her listeners heard how the rich lived and what it was like to be an overnight guest in the White House.

And if you yearn for that nostalgia, take a trip to the beautiful Catskill Mountains and tune in Kingston's WGHQ. Miss McBride broadcasts three days a week and she's as endearing as ever.

In fact, Mary Margaret, 75, allows as how she might just be a better interviewer now. And that was always her trump card, that magnificent technique of getting people to talk, to open up and talk out their hearts in front of an impersonal microphone.

"I'm in complete control here," says Miss McBride, her deeply set brown eyes as bright and clear as ever.

She broadcasts from her home now, a 200-year-old refurbished barn with gigantic chestnut beams and a top-of-the-mountain view of the Ashokan Reservoir.

It's in the heart of the Catskill Mountains, 100 far miles from The City, which Mary Margaret fought so hard to conquer. And did.

Among the regulars on the local program are Cynthia Lowry, a retired columnist and Mary Margaret's roommate, and Josephine McTague, a close friend who handles business arrangements. Josephine makes sure the sponsors' addresses, phone numbers, business hours, etc., get onto the air.

Sometimes the program is just a coffee klatch featuring these three interesting women. Sometimes, even now, there's a famous guest, probably an old friend of Mary Margaret's. More often, it's a guest from the nearby community of Woodstock. And that's not to say that just anyone can get on the air. Miss McBride is still Mary Margaret, the ambitious girl from a farm outside of Paris, Mo., who decided at age five she would be a famous writer.

Mary Margaret, born Nov. 16, 1899, knew at the age of five she wanted to be a great writer.

Miss McBride began her newspaper career in her native Missouri at 16, moved on to Cleveland, and eventually arrived in New York City. And then one day she read a story she had written for the now defunct Evening Mail.

It was on page three, it carried her byline — she still calls it a signature — and her picture. She read it over and over. And then she realized her dream would never come true.

She was good. Yes. But she knew at that moment she was never going to be a great writer.

And she aspired to greatness even then, a greatness that would come later, much by fluke, a greatness that she never understood. Even now. And that's why there's that secret fear, the worry that somebody will find her out.

Mary Margaret McBride always asked herself what she was doing that anybody couldn't do. She always answered that she wasn't doing much. Only the sponsors, directors, production manager and the nation knew differently.

When her dream of being a great writer was self-shattered, Miss McBride had to fight to pick herself back up. She continued in the world of print, writing feature articles on a variety of subjects for all the major magazines of the day. And then came the Depression and the money for freelance writers dried up and, to make matters worse, Miss McBride had been speculating on margins on Wall Street.

She lost her proverbial shirt. "I was getting shabbier and shabbier and more and more miserable," she says. And then her agent called and told her to report for something called an audition.

Mary Margaret looked down her nose at the thought. "I had a scorn for radio. I was a writer," she says.

But it was money — $25 a week to be exact and Mary Margaret took the job that would catapult her to fame.

At first Mary Margaret just talked about interesting things she had seen and done, recipes she had collected and all kinds of current affairs. Later she brought guests on the program and it became a precursor of today's late night talk shows.

Her listeners were so devoted that they filled Madison Square Garden on her 10th anniversary in 1944. And on her 15th anniversary, they filled Yankee Stadium in tribute. Except for three rows on top of the bleachers.

And Mary Margaret, always the stranger to greatness, worriedly asked her manager why those seats were empty.

On The Young Side

(Editor's Note: Guest columnist for this week is Janet Gantt.)

The activities of the National Honor Society highlighted the happenings of the week at Rose High School.

Helping to brighten the atmosphere of the school, members of the National Honor Society painted the library. Mrs. Brenda Lewis, librarian, and Mrs. Ella Harris, club sponsor, directed the undertaking.

Members helping were Jeff Barber, Bill Billica, Mark Boudreaux, Mary Burnette, Ed Connolly, Lynn Gantt, Griff Garner, Ed Garvin, Christi Hearne, Pat Hernan, Joey Howell, Keith James, Mike Jeffries, Carol Kelsey, Kathryn Kittrell, Kim Knight, Gail Molic.

Sherry Ledbetter, David Ostrow, Brenda Peterson, Lorraine Rayford, Gail Shaw, Clay Shugart, Kathy Still, Ernie Stine, Don Sullivan, Rosalyn Taylor, Mary Joe White, Vicki Wilkerson, Laura Phelps, Margie Snell, Beth Briley, David Moye and Martha Wilkerson.

Semi-finalists for the Football Cover Contest were announced during the week. Fifteen covers were selected from samples turned in at an earlier date.

The eight semi-finalists are Kelly Graham, Lisa Clark, Mary Charles Stevens, Lawrence Hartley, Anne Marie Cox, Danny Bowman, Monte Williams and Cindy Eubanks. Five contestants will later be chosen and their covers will appear on the home football programs.

Senior Kathy Still will travel to Raleigh May 19 to serve a week as page 10 for the governor of North Carolina.

Kathy, the daughter of Mr.

and Mrs. William M. Still, is a member of the Keywanettes, and National Honor Society. A cheerleader for two years, she is also a member of the Concert Choir and the Ensemble as well as being in the My Fair Lady cast.

The 1975-76 Varsity Cheerleaders elected officers, Monday for the upcoming year. Lynn Gantt will serve as head-cheerleader, Gwen Maye, co-head, and Christie Priestley, secretary-treasurer.

Kim Knight's house was the scene for the election of officers of the newly formed, Anchor Club. A service organization under the Pilot Club of Greenville, the Anchor Club is sponsored by faculty member Leigh Ledbetter.

The new leaders will include Anne Williams, president, Margie Snell, vice president, Sherry Ledbetter, secretary, and Jackie Robinson, treasurer.

PILL POPPING
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Georgetown University researchers quizzed members of nearly 3,500 households in Baltimore. The topic: use of medicine in the two days before the survey.

In the 48-hour period, it was found, 56 per cent of the household's occupants used medicines; 33 per cent used prescribed drugs; 36 per cent nonprescribed drugs; 13 per cent used both.

Terrific Togs For Tough Times

COOLLY DEFEATING HIGH PRICES — Separates that make up a dress for under $30 are good news when budgets are tight. Both of these qualify—and of course both the tops and skirts can be worn in other combinations. At left, a polyester skinny ribbed tank top is combined with an all-around pleated skirt of the same material. At right, the skivvy top is matched to a soft swing skirt with its own belt, all of nylon. Both tops leave throat uncovered and have little or no sleeve, so they're cool for summer. ### New Members Are Named

The annual meeting of the Chi Omega Fraternity Board of Trustees was held Wednesday at the chapter house.

New members elected were Mrs. Lillian Jenkins, Mrs. Maggie French, Mrs. Judy Warren and Mrs. Janice Merritt.

New Alumnae Chapter officers include: Stephanie Carlson, president; Cameron Bain, vice president; Nancy Jessup, secretary; Frieda Purvis, treasurer; and Maggie French, corresponding secretary.

The annual chapter farewell banquet was held and the first Mrs. Pattie Wooten Alumnae Award was given to Miss Velma Lowe. The presentation was made by Dr. John Wooten. The award will be given to the outstanding alum in honor of Mrs. Wooten, who was a member of the board of trustees.

The annual Chi Omega Alumnae yard sale will be held May 24 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the chapter house. Proceeds will be given to the active chapter for house improvements.

The active chapter recently won the following awards: Alpha Xi Delta All Sing; Scholarship Award; and Greek Week queen.

All area Chi Omega alumnae interested in becoming a member of the alumnae chapter are asked to call Stephanie Carlson, 758-3763.

HEARTY BEET SOUP

Adapted from Jewish cuisine.

1-pound (about) lean, narrow beef short ribs (4 pieces)

1-pound can diced beets

2 cups shredded cabbage, packed down

Medium onion, cut in thin strips

3 beef bouillon cubes

Bay Leaf

Lemon juice

Dark brown sugar

Salt and pepper to taste

In a large saucepot bring the short ribs and 1 quart water to a boil; skim off scum. Simmer, covered, for 1 hour. Add juice drained from beets (reserve beets), cabbage, onion, bouillon cubes, 3 cups water and bay leaf; continue to simmer, covered, for 1 hour longer. Remove ribs, cut meat from bones and dice; discard bones and return meat to soup with beets. Add enough lemon juice and sugar to give real sweet-sour flavor — we like 3 to 4 tablespoons of each — and at the same time add the salt and pepper. Mix well and reheat. Makes 6 servings.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Wherever you apply your efforts there will be progress. Work hard but not overly so or you could injure health. A measured pace is wise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improve your good looks by right treatments and stop feeling sorry for yourself. Impress others at socials with your charm.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Give attention to kin. Get that new project working satisfactorily by giving attention to details. Put abode in order in p.m.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Keep that appointment to talk over some important business matter. Don't postpone, or you could lose out where it counts the most.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study your monetary position and figure out how to add to holdings. Get busy at the repairs to your home that are necessary.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle personal affairs wisely now for successful results. You can make a good impression on others in a social way. Dress well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle personal affairs that need attention right now to free more time for other important matters. The evening favors romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Discuss hobbies with good friends. Once your work is done, get out to the social and be happy. Make valuable new friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know what is expected of you by bigwigs who have control over your affairs. Aim to please them. Community activities increase prestige.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Seek persons who can give you information you need, especially those whose background differs from yours. Plan new directions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Check accounts for accuracy. Show more devotion to mate for increased future happiness. Avoid a sadistic person and troublemaker.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Know more about how partners feel about you, then you can have more accord. Get out socially together later and pay your part of the bill.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will love detail and precision and should have the education slanted along lines that require these qualities in the profession. Be sure to give right religious and ethical training early, or your progeny could easily use attributes in the wrong directions. Sports are fine here, since the body needs building up early in life. Art lessons, music are good.

Kremlin Basks In Recent Successes

By CHARLES P. WALLACE MOSCOW (UPI) — Recent major world developments have all seemed to go the way of the Kremlin propaganda line with such surprising rapidity.

While the Soviets are clearly taking comfort from success, they are not gloating about it. There is no hint they have given up the principles of accommodation with the West.

Nonetheless, knowledgeable Western analysts here say as a result of recent events they now detect a new self-confidence in the world affairs arena at the Kremlin.

On the surface, the Soviets regard the recent turn of events as a vindication of Communist party doctrine. More pragmatically, they view their position as world statesmen enhanced as never before.

"It's really not that easy to put your finger on because it is just a feeling," one diplomat said. "But they definitely feel stronger, more positive."

Diplomats point to a number of developments to illustrate the strength of the Soviet position:

There are the Communist victories in both Vietnam and Cambodia that appear to have written the final chapter in the history of American involvement in Indochina, still regarded by the Kremlin as a strategic Asian area.

The collapse of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's personal diplomacy in the Middle East has created a vacuum which the Soviets are sparing no effort to fill.

The stories about misdeeds by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency are being used to help whip up anti-American sentiment, mainly in third world nations.

Feuding within the Western military alliance, particularly the Cyprus dispute, erupted into a Greek-Turkish confrontation and nearly broke the eastern wing of NATO.

And there is the leftward drift of the Portuguese government.

On a more grand scale, the economic crisis of the West has provided ample grist for Soviet propaganda mills. The Kremlin has noted somewhat boastfully that Western countries are now competing for Soviet business.

Diplomats say that Soviet propagandists are not dwelling on Western setbacks as they might have in the past, in line with the Kremlin policy of detente with the West.

They said the Soviets, buoyed by their successes, no longer feel compelled to make the case for detente, no longer have to sell their ideas to a reluctant audience.

Along with this shift, they have noted a slight moderation in Kremlin thinking about the Middle East.

As little as one year ago, the Soviets appeared to be humiliated by Kissinger's well-publicized success in talking to Arabs and Israelis.

Moscow placed its hopes on a Geneva Middle East conference and stood on the sidelines as the American Secretary of State jettied between Cairo and Jerusalem.

Now that the Kissinger mission has collapsed, the Soviets have softened their call for "immediate resumption" of the Geneva talks, calling them only "indispensable."

The difference may suggest an attempt to force Arab countries into line behind the Soviet position before Geneva reconvenes. The reasoning is that the Arabs now need Geneva more than the Soviet Union.

Similarly, the Soviets for the first time have announced aid for Cambodia, indicating that now that the Americans are gone they want to establish their influence ahead of China, which already holds a geographic advantage in Indochina.

Cod Today An Endangered Species Of Metal Fish

THE U.S.S. COD — Moored at Cleveland, Ohio since 1953, is facing the scrap pile unless concerned sub-buffs can raise the money to salvage the vessel. (UPI Photo)

By NANCY KERCHEVAL
CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cod is an endangered species of metal fish.

One of the last of the World War II submarines, the USS Cod, moored here since 1953, is sunk unless concerned sub-buffs can raise the money to salvage the vessel.

Rear Adm. Richard Freundlich, USNR, and Capt. Donald A. Gairing, USNR, both submarine veterans, have been trying to raise funds for the past three years to turn the metal monster into an historic landmark.

The two are quick to point out, however, that not all those who are attempting to save the sub are Navy men suffering from nostalgia.

"If the only reason to save the Cod was the interest of a few Navy people, there would be no justification for it," Freundlich said. "It's not Navy-oriented people or warmongers who are trying to save her, but people who are fascinated by a submarine syndrome."

The Cod, which went into service against Japan in the Pacific in 1943, was decommissioned Jan. 1, 1972. Since then the Navy has been patient with those who want to keep the sub in Cleveland.

Under normal procedure, the Navy would have auctioned the 1,500-ton sub for scrap by now, Gairing said. She could bring up to $100,000 at auction, he said, but the Navy would sell her for $1 to the Cleveland Coordinating Committee for the Cod, Inc.

The Cod was mothballed after World War II, reactivated for the Korean conflict, then towed up the St. Lawrence Seaway in 1953 and moored at the dock in Lake Erie ever since.

Freundlich and Gairing regard the 310-foot sub as the heroine she was during her commission in the Pacific. Replicas of the flags of those ships she sank during World War II still adorn her side.

"She sank 75,000 tons worth of ships and one man-of-war during the war," Gairing said. "The ribbons and flags represent the victories."

The sub carried a crew of about 90 and could stay at sea for several months. Unlike today's nuclear subs, those of the Cod's vintage traveled faster above water and her batteries carried only enough energy to remain submerged for short periods of time.

The Cod is still in working condition, although it has been disarmed. A pact between the U.S. and Canada forbids warships on the Great Lakes. Freundlich said it would take navy yard work to restore the sub as a war vessel, but added all other systems are operational, such as the radar and sonar systems.

The obsolescence of the Cod and the abandonment by the Navy leaves only two options for the future—a trip to the scrap yard or the creation of an historical curiosity.

But the would-be saviours of the Cod are having trouble raising money, mostly because of the economic conditions in the country.

Freundlich estimates the Cod could survive on $5,000 annually, but added that if $10,000 were available "we'd be quite comfortable." In winter the Cod must be heated and in summer well-ventilated to prevent interior rusting.

The coordinating committee has been incorporated by the state of Ohio and has Internal Revenue Service approval as a non-profit agency.

"The only problem is getting people to part with their money," Freundlich said. "The logical sources have been hit so hard by the times."

"The timing is unfortunate for us. Fifteen years ago money would have probably been available. It hasn't been an antagonistic attitude that has slowed us up, just the availability of funds."

The Navy requires the committee to show financial stability before it will turn over the sub.

Hopes jumped in January when a local man took over the collections and vowed to have $100,000 within 60 days. The two months ended and so did the man's enthusiasm. There is nowhere near that much money in the collection plate.

"The Navy would rather see the Cod become a patriotic artifact, but not if it costs the government," Freundlich said.

"The sub represents a moment in history. She represents a dying breed. If we let the Cod go, Cleveland will never get another sub."

Kids Learn About Rest Of Country In Exchange Of Tapes

SUBLIMITY, Ore. (AP) — "Hullo, I'm Jed Clark from Pine Prairie, Louisiana. Greeting's to y'all out in A-a-region," drawled the voice coming from the tape recorder.

Several fifth graders at Sublimity Grade School gathered around the recorder, listening to Clark describe a world very different from their own: fishing in the bayous, eating crayfish and gumbo, seeing the Mardi Gras.

It was part of a program begun last year by Patricia Nagel, who teaches fifth grade at the school, to supplement social studies and counteract the boredom her pupils felt from books and lectures. She calls the program her "Countrywide Classroom."

The federal Teacher Incentive Program gave her a $700 grant to expand the program this year.

It is designed to let pupils learn state history and customs from other fifth grade pupils in comparable small towns throughout the country by exchanging tapes and letters. Mrs. Nagel's pupils got tapes or letters from 26 states last year.

"It's more fun when they learn from other fifth graders," she said. "Kids also love tape recorders, and they don't realize how much they are learning when they are having fun."

Each pupil is assigned to contact one or more schools elsewhere to find out if pupils there want to participate. They choose schools in towns about the size of Sublimity and with interesting names — Colt's Neck, N.J., Frostproof, Fla., and Turkey Creek, La.

In addition to sending tapes, letters, pamphlets, brochures and other material on Oregon, the pupils began arranging this year to exchange state trees.

They already expect trees from at least 16 states to plant at the edge of the school playground.

They learned from the program that a school on an Indian reservation needed school supplies, so they and their parents conducted fund-raising events and sent 13 boxes of books to the school.

Mrs. Nagel's pupils have mail boxes in the classroom where they receive letters and packages from the other towns. On walls of the classroom are letters, maps and other material from the program.

One of the things they tell about in their tapes and letters are Oregon's strong environmental programs.

"It won't hurt for the kids to brag," said Mrs. Nagel, "and it shows others what a special place this is."

"Students gain an empathy for people outside their own communities. They realize it's all one big community. They also notice more around them, like in newspapers," she said.

She knew of one pupil whose father was about to change the television channel in their home from a news program concerning destructive tornadoes in the Midwest.

"Don't change that," the child said. "I've got friends out there."

Hickory Plant Layoffs Slated

HICKORY, N.C. (AP)—The General Electric distribution transformer plant in Hickory has announced it will lay off another 325 or so workers. It cites continued slackness in demand from electric utilities.

General Manager Iver J. Petersen says the exact number to be laid off, and the effective date, will be announced later.

Alumni Day Program Set

Alumni Day, 1975, on the East Carolina University campus Saturday, May 24, will open ECU's commencement weekend with a full program of activities.

Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins will be the principal speaker for the annual Alumni Day luncheon. The program includes class reunions of the classes of 1925, 1930, 1935, 1940, 1945, 1950, 1955, 1960, 1965 and 1970. Also to be recognized will be alumni of the classes of 1915 and 1920.

Special recognition will be given the classes of 1925 and 1950 celebrating their 50th and 25th reunions.

The ECU Alumni Association has planned campus tours and also a golf tournament and a tennis clinic as special events.

Commencement exercises are scheduled at 2 p.m. on Sunday, May 25, at Ficklen Stadium with U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., as the commencement speaker.

Counterfeit Bills Circulate

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Talmadge W. Bailey, special agent in charge of the U. S. Secret Service office in Charlotte, said today that several counterfeit $20 Federal Reserve notes have been passed recently in Hickory and Burlington.

Bailey said the center of distribution seems to be in Roanoke, Va.

He said enough were passed in the Hickory area to indicate to his office that a scheme had been devised to pass the notes around.

He declined to estimate how many had been passed.

FOR WARREN BEATTY, currently starring in "Shampoo"

FAMILY WEEKLY recently ran one of the rare interviews with you. Why don't you give more interviews? Also, why do you admire women like Germaine Greer, whom so many men find offensive?—T. A. Beale, Louisville, Ky.

● I get a little uneasy talking about myself. The story of my movie career is not very different from any other actor's movie experiences, and I can't see that the idiosyncrasies of one actor are all that much more interesting than another actor's. It's easier to talk about someone else or a political problem that matters. As for Germaine Greer, I like her simply because she is smart and a lot of fun. But I admire other women too. I hate to list things, but if I were to make a list of women I most admire, it would include: (politics) Golda Meir, Eleanor McGovern, Bella Abzug and Cissy Farenthold; (arts) Lillian Hellman; and (music) Mabel Mercer.

FOR JIM HARTZ of the NBC-TV "Today" show

Why do guests on your show have bloodshot eyes (you and Barbara Walters don't). Is it because they haven't had enough sleep?—W. M. Chamberlain, Grand Rapids, Mich.

● To tell you the truth, I never noticed it. But I suppose it is a bit of a strain on some people who aren't used to getting up that early and making sense at that hour. And I wouldn't be at all surprised if one or two bloodshot eyes might not be the result of some artificial courage taken the night before by an especially nervous visitor.

FOR MARGARET MEAD

Do you believe in UFO's?—Laurene Mills, Hobart, Ind.

● Believing in UFO's simply means I believe that "unidentified flying objects" have been reported, for which we do not have any satisfactory explanation. It doesn't mean a UFO is a flying saucer or a visitor from outer space. When man-made vehicles like Mariner 10 leave our solar system, they become UFO's to the possible inhabitants of other solar systems. Those who do not believe in UFO's think they have a satisfactory explanation for objects that other observers believe are unexplained.

FOR CARLA HILLS,

Secretary of Housing and Urban Development

I read that your husband said he is more bothered by your beating him at tennis than by your being considered a better lawyer. Is this true?—D.B., Atlantic City, N.J.

● The comment was made by my husband in jest and was meant to indicate that he is not at all bothered by my achievements as a lawyer. Actually, he's one of the finest lawyers I've ever met, and his comment underscores his security. As for tennis, we play for fun, mostly doubles.

FOR MICKEY ROONEY

Judy Garland was quoted as saying that Louis B. Mayer gave sleeping pills and pep pills to her, you and Deanna Durbin when you did the "Andy Hardy" movies. True?—Sharon Greening, Crown Point, Ind.

● False. That was a figment of Miss Garland's imagination, which was quite extensive. Mr. Mayer was not in the habit of breaking the law. I hope this puts an end—finally—to this much-repeated untruth.

FOR BOB BARKER

What do you do when someone freezes up before the camera?—Pershing D. Berry, Jr., Amherst, Va.

● I thaw them out—how I go about that depends on the personality of the person. Gentleness works with most people.

FOR BRENDA VACCARO

Please settle an argument. What's the correct pronunciation of your name?—G.O.A., Toms River, N.J.

● I'm glad you asked that. It's Vac-CAR-o, with the emphasis on the "Car" bit. I got so excited the first time someone said it right and began to feel I was getting somewhere at last. But I'm happy if they at least spell my name with two "c's."

FOR ARNOLD PALMER

Will you hang up your golf shoes if your losing streak continues through 1975?—Robert Barney, San Antonio, Texas

● No, I don't intend to drop off the tour if I don't win a tournament this year, unless I then feel that I am not playing well enough to win. Right now, I feel that I am playing well enough to win.

FOR DON RICKLES

What was your most ego-shattering experience?—H.C., Daytona Beach, Fla.

● When I walked out on a Las Vegas stage and saw Frank Sinatra in the audience—reading a paper! He later told me he was there to see the singer who shared the bill with me.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

My teenaged daughter insists my kind of music (soft ballroom and Dixieland jazz) will never return. What do you think?—S.S., Elmira, N.Y.

● Well, Lena Horne, Johnny Mathis, Peggy Lee, Sinatra, etc., seem to be doing all right. When Herb Alpert opened at Harrah's in Lake Tahoe, his Dixieland numbers got the biggest ovation. At New York's Roseland Dance City, more people than ever are tangoing, fox-trotting and waltzing. Also in New York, the famed Rainbow Room just reverted to old-fashioned ballroom dancing. Cashing in on the jazz bandwagon, Eddie Condon's jazz nightclub (carrying on the traditions of the late legendary musician) just opened. Billy Daniels reports the bulk of his concert audiences are younger folk, not those of his own generation. As icing on the cake, piano manufacturers Steinway & Sons state production has risen over the last decade.

Dr. Joyce Brothers On a Strange Truth: You Don't Have to Be Kidnapped to Have A "Captive" Mind

By Dr. Joyce Brothers
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

Dr. Brothers says that all of us "are somewhat and in some way in a captive-captor relationship."

"As captives we try to please our captors and wind up not only adopting their ideas and attitudes but believing in them with utmost sincerity. Though we start out playing a role . . . , after a while we really begin to feel the emotion, we really begin to think the thought."

Patty Hearst in 1972. Dr. Brothers says that when we become "captives," our whole psychology changes.

"Everyday life has plenty of captor-captive relationships—none as frantic as a kidnapping, to be sure. But the way they work on our 'beliefs' is very much the same."

A few months ago it seemed beyond comprehension to most Americans that Patty Hearst, the kind of young woman who spent time carefully choosing her china pattern as she happily prepared for her June wedding, could voluntarily make common cause with the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Many people, including her parents, William Randolph and Catherine Hearst, expressed the belief that the young heiress had been brainwashed into cooperating with her captors. How else, they argued, could such a complete change of values take place?

As I write this, it's still impossible to say exactly what happened in the Patty Hearst case. But one thing does seem clear: If Patty Hearst's views were changed—and even changed drastically—she wasn't much different from the rest of us. Because, perhaps shockingly, when we become "captives," our whole psychology changes and we become susceptible to ideas that may never have occurred to us before. And here's the eye-opening truth: We don't have to be kidnapped to test the validity of this proposition. Everyday life has plenty of captor-captive relationships—none as frantic as a kidnapping, to be sure. But the way they work on our "beliefs" is very much the same.

If we put aside the word "brainwashing" in its highly sophisticated sense and begin to think in terms of "identifying" with one's captors—absorbing their values, ideas and attitudes and making them one's own, incorporating them into oneself—then we begin to understand what may very well have happened in the case of Patty Hearst.

And if we think of the captor-captive relationship in the broader terms of our own lives, we begin to get some insights into the reasons why kidnapping victims are so willing to "cooperate" with their captors.

It may seem odd to think that all of us are somewhat and in some way in a captive-captor relationship. But we are—and in no uncertain sense.

As infants and small children, we are, in a way, captives of our parents. We are totally helpless and totally dependent on them for our survival. All children learn at a very young age that they must please and in some way "cooperate" with their parents. Throughout our lives we tend to reflect in many ways and to a surprising degree the likes, dislikes, values, attitudes and opinions of our parents. We've absorbed them, incorporated them into ourselves and made them our own.

Anyone who has power over us—and it doesn't have to be anything as drastic or fundamental as the power of life and death—has the power to shape our views, our outlook and our behavior. Cooperating with those who have power over us, placating them, diminishing friction between them and ourselves and adopting their views and attitudes—these are some of the ways of insuring our survival and our general well-being. And they stem directly from the child-parent relationship.

Each of us is both a captive and a captor. In one relationship we may be the captor; in another, the captive. As captives we try to please our captors and wind up not only adopting their ideas and attitudes but believing in them with utmost sincerity. Though we start out playing a role, talking and behaving as though we think and feel a certain way, after a while we really begin to feel the emotion, we really begin to think the thought.

As captors we are able, to varying degrees, to "brainwash" others, to impress on them our views, ideas, attitudes, likes and dislikes. We are able to change their feelings and their minds.

Studies show that the "kid-glove" treatment works best. The more gently we deal with those we wish to influence, the more successful we are in achieving our goal. Severe punishment or the threat of punishment works only when the punisher is around. The captive, in any situation, is more likely to internalize the captor's ideas and values and make them his own if they are presented in a gentle, temperate way.

We also know that it's important to keep a certain physical distance from those we wish to influence. The salesman who sticks his foot in the door and seems to be lunging at us doesn't influence us much, no matter how good his spiel, because we're too busy coping with the anxiety he arouses in us by his invasion of our privacy and intrusion on our territory to listen to his message. The ideal distance, studies show, from which to influence others is 15 feet.

Feeding someone as we make suggestions and put forth our views makes him or her more susceptible to being influenced by us, to having his mind, feelings and behavior changed by us.

In a recent study students were divided into two groups. One group was served lunch while the psychologist put forth certain views with which the students did not generally agree. The other group was presented with the same views but was not fed. The group that had been fed while listening tended afterward to concur more with the psychologist's views than the group that had not been fed. This, of course, will come as no surprise to those who regularly take prospective clients and contacts whom they wish to influence or "sell" to fancy restaurants for lunch or dinner. They know it pays off!

Let's look a little more closely at a few of the studies that show that the "kid-glove" approach works best when you wish to shape someone's views, outlook or behavior.

In a recent study children were shown some toys. Some of the toys were very attractive; others, not so attractive. One group of children was sternly threatened with punishment if they played with the attractive toys. The other group was given gentle suggestions and reasons as to why they should not play with the attractive toys. The children who'd been strongly admonished and threatened fell in love, so to speak, with the forbidden toys and sneaked over to play with them when the experimenter was out of the room. The children who'd been gently admonished, incorporated the idea into themselves, made it their own and didn't even want the forbidden toys.

The temperate treatment is highly effective during wartime too. It's been observed countless times that when a captive insists on giving only his name, rank and serial number, there is more likelihood that he can be made to change his mind if his captors treat him gently than if they use harsh, coercive measures.

Here's another example from a recent study. Little Billy likes to hit his baby brother. Dad threatens to punish Billy if he hits the baby.

What happens? When Dad is around Billy doesn't hit the baby. When Dad leaves, Billy tries to beat the dickens out of Baby Brother. Little Johnny also likes to beat his baby brother. But Johnny's Dad quietly and gently explains the reasons why it's wrong to hit the baby—You'll hurt him, he'll cry, he's weaker than you, etc. The study shows clearly that Johnny will incorporate or internalize the idea and not hit his little brother even when left alone with him.

We've all noticed that during political primaries people will rally around the candidate of their choice and sincerely believe in and proclaim his virtues and effectiveness. But once the primary is over and one candidate is nominated, opposition voters may well find themselves sincerely dedicated to him, sincerely finding reasons to believe in and proclaim his virtues and effectiveness. In a sense, such a voter has become a captive, finding a way to deal with or live with what he must live with. What's more, this is not done hypocritically, but with genuine and sincere enthusiasm.

There's a captor-captive relationship between husband and wife, though it isn't always clear who's captor and who's captive. Perhaps both are both.

Couples don't realize how much they've cooperated and incorporated each other's values, attitudes, ideas, likes and dislikes, so that they have come to feel the same way about so many things. In fact, in many areas they eventually come to feel as one.

It's when the Smiths meet the Joneses on a cruise and realize that they, the Smiths, generally speaking, think and feel as one—We don't like that, we always enjoy doing this, we never do that, etc.—that they sense how much they have incorporated each other's thinking, desires, opinions, outlook, behavior, will and wants. The Joneses have also done this, and the two couples

"There's a captor-captive relationship between husband and wife, though it isn't always clear who's captor and who's captive. Perhaps both are both."

Sometimes there's a great conflict between what your conscience believes and what someone else, someone who has power over you, wants you to believe. Let's say a school-bus driver knows the bus is unsafe because his boss, the owner of the bus, refuses to maintain the vehicle properly. The driver keeps warning his boss about the danger and the boss keeps saying, "It's okay, stop worrying, nothing's going to happen." This may be so severely against the driver's conscience that he will simply walk out even though he may need the job badly.

But studies clearly show that in most situations where we are captives, our beliefs, views and behavior can be influenced and changed by those who have power over us. One need look no further than the case of the students who were fed while the psychologist presented them with his views and ideas. In the space of time it takes to eat a nice lunch a decided modification in their thinking took place.

The whole idea that we can be deeply influenced and our minds changed by those who have power over us becomes less shocking and alien when we are aware of such studies. But the best understanding of the captive-captor psychology and how it works comes from a closer look at our everyday, taken-for-granted relationships.

Jimmy Connors Talks About Big Money, Big Pressure and "The Killer Instinct"

"I don't like guys going around saying they beat Jimmy Connors. I'm going to do everything I can to stop that. I just don't like to lose. The killer instinct is part of the game...."

Art Zellin/Globe

FAMILY WEEKLY: How did you get so good so young?

CONNORS: I think I just wanted to become a good player and worked hard for it. I was coached by my mother and my grandmother until I was 16, and then my mom said I needed something that she couldn't give me, so she sent me to California to be with Pancho Segura. He was over in Wimbledon with me when I won last year, and he was at Forest Hills with me too. So I've had some pretty good coaching.

FW: You blew Kenny Rosewall off the court in the final at last year's Wimbledon and again at Forest Hills. How did you feel about that?

CONNORS: I was just glad to get a chance to play him. He's a legend in his own time. The guy is such a great guy and a great sport—well, it was just an honor to play against him.

FW: How do you stand up under that kind of pressure? I mean, here you are, only 22, and you're in the finals of the biggest tournaments of them all—and everybody's rooting for the other guy! That's got to be pretty tough, doesn't it?

CONNORS: I don't know—I'm very relaxed. I go out and practice and I take a shower and then sometimes I go up and clown around and talk with Pancho and his wife and my mom and Chrissy [Chris Evert] and I'm just—well, relaxed!

FW: Don't you ever feel pressure? Don't you ever get nervous in front of a crowd?

CONNORS: Yeah, I think when I first started playing in the men's, crowds bothered me. When I played doubles with Pancho Segura in California and people would be watching, or when I played as a doubles partner with Pancho Gonzales about five years ago. Everybody would come around and say, "Gonzales is playing. But who's the kid playing with him?" It bothered me.

FW: How aware are you of the crowd? Do they affect your game at all?

CONNORS: Sometimes. I think most of the time they maybe want the other guy to win. When they're cheering against me, I want to make them realize I'm out there. I want to show them that they're not going to bother me one way or the other.

FW: Do you care about whether you please the crowd or not?

CONNORS: Well, it's nice to have 16,000 people in the stadium cheering for you. But if they don't—when 16,000 people are cheering against you—well, then suddenly you're the underdog. Anyway, I know that there are a few people in the stands who want to see me win. I just go out and try to win and please them.

FW: Your mom was a pretty good player wasn't she?

CONNORS: Yeah, she played the Pan American cup with Pancho Segura. In fact, Pancho almost became my dad! Maybe that's why I play like him—two hands on the racket and a little pigeon-toed. I don't know.

FW: Did you pattern yourself after him?

CONNORS: Not really. I had everything before. But when I went to Pancho, he took everything I had and improved it and added more shots to my repertoire. He also improved, my mental outlook. He just made me a better player.

FW: Some parents always say to their kids, "Now go practice the piano," or "Go play your violin." Is that what your parents did with tennis?

CONNORS: No, I was never pressured into playing. They always said, "Will you play tennis today?" And I'd say, "Okay." And if I said, "No," they'd say, "Okay, go study or go play baseball or whatever." But I was never pressured. But when I went to California, I felt I had to prove myself to Pancho. That's when I started to want to be great, so that he wouldn't say, "Ah, here comes another young punk." So I worked very hard, and luckily he took an interest in me.

FW: They say you have the "killer instinct." Where did that come from?

CONNORS: I don't like guys going around saying they beat Jimmy Connors. I'm going to do everything I can to stop that. I just don't like to lose. The killer instinct is part of the game, you know. I can't say that it came from my mom or it came from Pancho or it came from anybody. It's just myself.

FW: Was Wimbledon your sweetest victory?

CONNORS: Well, I think before I won Wimbledon, winning the Pacific Southwest Championship in 1973 was one of my best victories. Also, winning the U.S. Pro Championships in 1973. I was unseeded, and I played Stan Smith in the first round and beat him, then I beat Arthur Ashe in the final. So I think I've had a lot of sweet victories and a lot of bad defeats. That's part of the game too. It's called hard knocks. You're going to win a lot and you're going to lose a lot. And if you keep the losses down to a minimum, I guess you're going to be the best player.

FW: Do you try to analyze your losses afterward?

CONNORS: Ah, I think that's a way to drive yourself insane. I think about a loss maybe five or ten minutes after I play, then I'm finished. Once I leave the courts I try to be finished with tennis.

FW: Jimmy, I'm going to mention various names and I'd like to get your reaction to them. Stan Smith, for example.

CONNORS: Before I start answering this I

We could all use less friction.

Friction? Who needs it? Friction leads to wear and tear.

STP Oil Treatment does something about friction by helping to protect your engine from it. Just add a can to the crankcase when the oil is changed, and the first time it's down.

That'll help the oil lubricate better than it would without STP. And a well lubricated motor is the best way to help reduce oil consumption, bearing wear and prolong engine life.

Try a can of STP Oil Treatment. See what driving's like when everything's running smoothly.

should tell you that I play everybody more or less the same until I get into a situation where I have to change my game. Stan is a player with a big serve and volley, you know. I don't think he feels as comfortable on the base line as he does at the net, so I like to keep Stan on the base line if I can. But you know, all these guys like Stan and Newcombe and Laver and Ashe are great players, and whether I say I'm going to do this against Stan or I'm going to do that against Arthur, maybe when I get out there I'll play a completely different game because the situation calls for a reversal of my attitude. It all depends on how the other guy's playing that day and on how I'm playing.

FW: How about Newcombe? [At press time, Connors was still preparing for his $250,000 match with John Newcombe at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas.]

CONNORS: He serves big. You know, you get the ball in play against anybody and you know

FW: Do you think people hate you, Jimmy?
CONNORS: No. I don't think so. I don't know. Some people, maybe. But you know, if they don't like me, that's okay. What I do is what I feel, and I'm not going to change my views just to please 20 guys or to make them like me.
FW: But the press is always saying how disliked you are. Why has that happened and how do you feel about it?

CONNORS: Well, maybe if I'd lose more they'd like me. Somebody said that to me in Stockholm in 1973. They said, "Connors, why don't you lose more so you'd have some friends?" I said, "If that's what it takes to get friends, I don't need you, boy." And I really don't. I'd rather have a couple of true friends than guys who are friends to my face and grab me from behind.

How to make your last two years of college mean even more.

Take the Army ROTC Two-Year Program.

If you've just about completed your second year of college, and you're planning on two more, it's not too late to take Army ROTC.

You start the program with six-weeks of Basic Camp (you'll be paid for it) between your sophomore and junior years.

Then it's back to school in the fall. Learning how to become an Army officer while you're working on your college degree. Earning an extra $100 a month, up to ten months a year.

And two years later, you'll graduate with your degree, your commission as an Army officer, and some real experience at leading and managing people.

The last two years of college mean a lot. Take the Army ROTC Two-Year Program and you can make them mean a lot more.

Tennis fans witness a different kind of "love," as Chris Evert kisses Jimmy Connors.

his odds of winning the point, and your odds of winning the point. With a serve like his, he lowers the other guy's odds.

FW: Your fellow southpaw Roscoe Tanner seems to have come into his own this year. How do you feel about playing against other left-handers?

CONNORS: It doesn't matter. Playing Roscoe is like playing myself, so I just go out and look over the net and say, "Lord, I'm playing Jimmy Connors!" It's no big problem.

FW: Do you think a lefty has an advantage over a right-handed player?

CONNORS: A five percent advantage, I think. Not more than that.

FW: They say this is going to be the decade of either Bjorn Borg of Sweden or Jimmy Connors. What do you think?

CONNORS: Maybe the decade of both. Bjorn is great. Maybe we'll be clawing at each other for the next ten years.

FW: What about Ilie Nastase?

CONNORS: He's one of the hardest guys for me to play. It's because of the way he plays—his top spin and the way he moves. The guy has so much talent. I've played him a number of times, and I think he's the only one who has a real advantage over me.

FW: Does the amount of money that you're earning at this age make you uptight at all?

CONNORS: Not really. I'm working now so that when I'm 30 or 35 I don't really have to do anything if I don't want to. I'll have what my grandmother always used to call a pillow that I can lean on. Maybe when I'm 35 I'll still want to play some tournaments, but it won't be like I'll have to keep winning. I can just do what I want.

Jimmy Connors

FW: Jimmy, you've been very involved with Chris Evert. There's been a lot of publicity on that, and I'm not going to pry into it any further. But I would like to know one thing: What are your views on women's tennis and the idea of women earning as much money as men in tennis?

CONNORS: It's okay with me. There is one thing, though. We play three out of five sets, the women play two out of three sets. But after all, men are supposed to be bigger and stronger, so I guess that's all right too. In their way, women are playing just as hard as we are. So if they can get equal prize money, that's super.

Veteran Pancho Gonzales And Top Newcomers on Connors

No question about it—Jimmy Connors is the dominant figure in tennis today. Challengers like Newcombe and Laver may be able to beat him on a given day—but, like Nicklaus in golf or Ali in boxing, Connors is the man challengers have to measure themselves against.

FAMILY WEEKLY went to veteran Pancho Gonzales and to four "young Turks" who are currently assaulting the top stars. We asked them, "Is Jimmy Connors unbeatable?" Here is what they answered:

PANCHO GONZALES: "I Know How Jimmy Feels—He Reminds Me a Lot of Me!"

Kevin Fitzgerald/Sport

FAMILY WEEKLY went to one "oldster" of tennis, Pancho Gonzales, and asked him how "unbeatable" he thought Connors was. Gonzales dominated professional tennis in the 1950's, and even into the 1960's. Many fans place him on the same pedestal as former greats Bill Tilden and Don Budge. Gonzales, who just turned 47, is now director of tennis at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas. Here's Gonzales on Connors:

"A lot of people think young Connors is arrogant and cocky. That's just the way I was when I was young. I won Forest Hills for the first time when I was 20 and again when I was 21. And I guess you could say I had a hot temper. I had a hot temper when I was in my early forties, too, but now I've mellowed because I don't play the tournament circuit any more.

"No player's unbeatable. There are champions in all eras and there are great players who constantly challenge those champions. Of course, tennis has changed in many respects since I took up the game as a boy in the public parks of Los Angeles in the early 1940's. Even youngsters have professional coaching today. Parents spend a lot of money on equipment and coaching for their children, and Connors had a lot of background in tennis from early childhood.

"Consistency is the big test of tennis greatness. Let's see how Connors does for a few years before we call him the greatest or anything like that."

ALEX (Sandy) MAYER

Alex (Sandy) Mayer, 23, is a native of Wayne, N.J. In 1973, while still a student at Stanford University, he paid his own way to Wimbledon and astounded the sports world by upsetting Rumania's Ilie Nastase and reaching the semifinals. In his second season on the U.S. circuit last year, Mayer won three tournaments.

"Jimmy Connors is the best in the game at returning serve and at attacking the ball. He may be the best ever in both of these categories, that's how good he is. He's pretty far ahead of everyone else right now.

"I've probably played Connors more than any of the other young players. We came up at the same time as juniors, and I remember beating him only once, in the National 14's [for players 14 years old and under] in Chattanooga, Tenn.

"Good tennis players are crawling out of the woodwork all over the world. It's not like in the old days. Tennis is a good career for young athletes now, although it takes about six years for a young player to find out whether he's good enough to make a career out of it. This is where tennis is different from the other sports. A good natural athlete can go out and hit a baseball or catch a football without tremendous amounts of training. But learning the right timing and maneuvers to become a good tennis player requires a lot of work and preparation.

"Among the young players who'll be starring in tennis over the next few years, you have to include Bjorn Borg of Sweden and Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, both of whom are already among the world's top ten. Also Americans Roscoe Tanner, Dick Stockton, Brian Gottfried and Harold Solomon. I like to think that my younger brother Gene, who's now playing at Stanford, and I will be up there too."

VITAS GERULAITIS

Vitas Gerulaitis, a shaggy-haired blond from Queens, N.Y., will turn 21 on July 26. A six-footer who weighs 155 pounds, he lost to Connors in the finals of the U.S. Indoors in 1974. He is a regular member of Bill Riordan's Independent Professional Association, the circuit on which Connors stars.

"Connors has become a tremendous player, no question about it. But you really can't call him, or anyone else, unbeatable. Last year, in a tournament in Salt Lake City, I was almost completely unknown and I made the finals against him. He was the heavy favorite. But I won the first set, 6-4, and was leading the second, 5-2, when he came back to win the match, 4-6, 7-6, 6-3. I mean, a couple of better shots by me and I would have won it.

"The best thing about Connors' game is that he attacks the ball so well. You have to try to keep him away from the net if you're going to have any chance to beat him. Of course, he's still improving, and since he's already Number One at the age of 22, this makes it tough for the rest of us. But it also creates a challenge. There are too many strong players now for one player to dominate things all the time."

Jimmy Connors

BILLY MARTIN

Billy Martin turned 18 last Christmas and has been rated the top junior player in the U.S. for the past two years. Born in Evanston, Ill., Martin now lives in Palos Verdes, Calif., and is a freshman at UCLA. In 1972, still four months shy of his 16th birthday, he became the youngest player ever to compete in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills. Billy won the junior title at both Wimbledon and Forest Hills each of the last two years.

"The fact that Connors and Bjorn Borg are doing so well at a young age helps me quite a bit. It makes my interest to improve and become as good as I can much greater than it would have been if there weren't people like Connors to shoot at. I can see that if I work at the game as hard as I can and keep getting better I might not have to wait until I'm 25 to be tops. Everybody used to say that you had to be old before you could be considered really good in tennis. That's turning out not to be true.

"I think my style is similar to Connors' in that my return of service is good and I can move all over the court pretty well. The weakest part of my game has been my serve. I was always too small to have a very big serve, but in two years I grew four or five inches. I'm now 5-9. I'm working on developing a better serve. I know it won't come overnight, but when I'm satisfied that it's a good serve, I think I'll be able to hold my own against anybody."

FERDI TAYGAN

Ferdi Taygan ranked behind only Billy Martin among American junior players in 1974 and is now a teammate of Martin's on the UCLA tennis team. Taygan, whose college major is economics, is an 18-year-old native of Framingham, Mass.

"Frankly, that Connors is dominating tennis right now surprises me. It's amazing that anyone could be dominating the way he is with so many top players around. It's a little frustrating to think that he could keep going this way for years and that the rest of us may have to settle for second best. But he's really the best right now. The all-out style with which he goes after every ball is his trademark and the thing that makes him great. His all-round consistency is amazing.

"I think that I can do well as a pro after I'm through with college. I'm kind of on the small side—5-10, about 145 pounds, built a lot like Billy Martin. And I'm a scrambler. I rely on speed and quickness. Connors may be the best right now, but there are a lot of good players around who have the ability to take his Number One spot away from him. They may not do it, but Connors is not guaranteed to stay on top either."

Here I am at 204 pounds. I not only had pudgy cheeks, but also heavy thighs and a bottom that was out of sight.

Now that I see these photographs of me side by side, I realize what a tremendous difference coming down to 138 pounds has made in my appearance. And I might add, it has completely changed my outlook on life.

The thought of wearing a bathing suit made me lose 66 pounds.

By Mavis Molina — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

From my own personal experience, I know there's nothing quite like being lonely, homesick and snowbound to turn a person's appetite on. In my case, I ate everything in sight and wound up weighing 204 pounds.

You see, I'm English by birth, married to an American Air Force man. Happily for me, our first years together were spent "at home" near my parents. But soon after our third child was born, we were transferred to the States. We had hoped to be sent to Florida, because I love the sun and swimming so much. But instead, we ended up at an isolated base in North Dakota, and in the dead of winter.

I don't think I've ever felt so lonely or unhappy in my whole life. Not that the people were unfriendly. But drifts of snow separated the 18 houses on the base and instead of ploughing out to visit neighbors, I stayed indoors fussing over the children from December until almost June. I also spent the time trying to cure my homesickness with donuts, cake, cookies and candy bars.

I didn't have a scale or a full length mirror at the time. And although my jeans were getting tighter and tighter, I had no idea how big I really was until the summer thaw came. My parents had arrived for a visit about then, and one day we drove 35 miles into the nearest town for a look around. That's when I saw a reflection of myself in a store window. I was so huge, I nearly died. I'll tell you, the very thought of my getting into a bathing suit made me absolutely shudder.

Right then I knew that I had to take some action. So I walked into a drug store and bought a bathroom scale and a box of Ayds®, the chocolate mint kind. You see, while I was snowbound, I'd read those stories of people who'd lost weight on the Ayds plan. And since I'd learned that Ayds Reducing Plan Candy contains vitamins and minerals, but no drugs, I wasn't afraid to start on the plan the next day.

I took one or two Ayds before each meal with a hot drink, coffee for me, and they really helped me cut down on what I ate. For breakfast, I'd have an egg and sometimes bacon which I'd blot with a paper to remove the grease. At noon, I'd have Ayds and coffee and maybe a chef's salad. For dinner, I'd have my Ayds and coffee again, then eat what the rest of the family did, but much smaller portions. And in the evening, instead of a piece of cake, I'd have a couple more Ayds. Soon the weight started coming off. The first two weeks on the Ayds plan, I lost nearly eight pounds. Then I tapered off to two pounds a week and later one pound, until at the end of the year I'd lost 66 pounds.

I think I ought to mention that during the time I was losing weight, we moved from North Dakota to Panama City, Florida, which gave me even more incentive to reduce. You see, I couldn't stand the idea of being a fat blob on a beach full of bikini-slim women. But that Ayds plan worked beautifully for me and it brought a lot of sunshine into my life.

One last thing. And I say this for the benefit of people like me who overeat when they get upset. Ayds are marvelous for controlling your appetite, whether you want to lose a little weight or a lot. I know, because several months ago my husband went off on a special tour of duty and loneliness moved right in on me.

I immediately began to overeat and put on pounds again. But this time, thank goodness, I knew exactly what the Ayds plan could do for me. In very short order, it made my bathing suit look just great on me again.

HAM 'N' CHEESE
POTATO CASSEROLE

- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 cup minced onion
- 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- 1½ cups milk
- ½ cup instant nonfat dry-milk powder*
- 4 medium potatoes (about 2 lbs.), pared and thinly sliced
- 2-3 cups diced, cooked, smoked ham
- 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

1. Preheat oven to 375°F. Melt butter in medium saucepan. Add onion and cook, stirring, until tender, about 5 minutes.
2. Stir in flour, salt and pepper until blended. Gradually stir in milk and dry-milk powder. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens.
3. In 2-qt. greased casserole layer half the potatoes, ham cubes and sauce. Repeat layers and sprinkle with cheese.
4. Bake covered 45 minutes. Uncover and bake 15-20 minutes longer, or until potatoes are tender. Makes 4-6 servings

*Optional nutritional fortifier

UNDER-THE-SEA SALAD

- 1 pkg. (6 ozs.) lime gelatin
- Water
- 2 cups cottage cheese

A Delicious
Meat 'n' Potatoes Casserole

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a good old-fashioned scalloped-potato casserole—with a variation. "By adding ham cubes and Cheddar cheese," says Marilyn, "you'll have a hearty main-dish casserole."

Make use of 1974's big potato harvest in this old-time Ham 'n' Cheese Potato Casserole.

Blue Cheese Dressing, your own or bottled

1. Make up gelatin according to package directions, using 2 cups boiling water and 1½ cups cold water. Refrigerate until partially thickened.

2. Pour or spoon half of partially thickened gelatin into 8x8-inch square pan. Top with cottage cheese. Pour remaining gelatin on top. Refrigerate until firm.
3. Cut in squares. Place each on lettuce leaf on individual plates. Top with Blue Cheese Dressing. Makes 6 servings

CRESCENT FRUIT
DESSERT PIZZA

- 1 pkg. (8 ozs.) refrigerated crescent rolls
- 1½-2 lbs. fresh pears, peeled and sliced*
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 egg
- 1 cup sour cream
- Dash salt

1. Preheat oven to 375°F. Lightly grease a 10-inch pizza pan or pie pan.
2. Unroll crescent-roll dough, separate into triangles. Flatten triangles with fingers. Arrange triangles in pan in a circle. Use fingers to press dough together smoothly.
3. Toss pear slices with lemon juice; arrange on dough. Mix sugar and cinnamon, sprinkle over pears.
4. Bake 15 minutes, then remove from oven. Beat egg lightly with fork; stir in sour cream and salt.
5. Pour mixture on "pizza" and bake 10-15 minutes longer, until pears are tender and sour-cream mixture is set.
6. Cut into wedges. Serve warm or cool.

Makes 8 servings

*Or use 1 lb. can apricot halves, drained, and 1 can (8 ozs.) pineapple chunks, drained, or 1 can (1 lb. 12 ozs.) peach or pear halves, drained.

Nothing can banish ugly cellulite bumps except this treatment. Diets alone can't do it. Exercise alone can't do it. Even surgery can't do it.

Glamorous European beauties have cherished this astounding beauty secret for years. But, at last, we have discovered their secret and share it with you. Our "Loofah Pad" contains thousands of tiny "fingers" that work with our unique beautifying program that banishes beauty-robbing Cellulite in just minutes a day.

Only Minutes A Day

In a matter of days you'll have a younger, more glamorous looking body without strenuous dieting, rigorous exercise or nerve-shattering pills. And, you achieve this miracle in the privacy of your own home, for a tiny fraction of what it would cost to attend a European beauty salon.

Everything You Need In One Kit

When you mail the coupon, we will send you everything you need to wage your war on

"turkey watties", sagging jaw lines, flabby upper arms, ugly thighs, crocodile skin.

CELLULITE is fatty deposits that have gone astray and are clinging to the most obvious parts of the woman's body. If left unattended, they create CELLULITE: Miracle Loofah Pad, complete beauty program, instructions showing you precisely the proper way to use it.

Sensual European Ladies Swear By It

They say the program turns your own bath into a full-fledged European Health Spa. International magazines say the plan effectively attacks problem areas, as it creates a sensually smooth skin. Other authorities say nothing can banish ugly Cellulite bumps except this treatment. Diets alone can't do it. Exercise can't do it. Even surgery can't do it!

So send the coupon now. You have nothing to lose but your embarrassing bumps. The complete Cellulite kit will be rushed to you by return mail. Use it for 10 days. You must be positively delighted with the results, or return the proof of purchase slip for a full refund — no questions asked. Remember, this program is not available in stores anywhere.

The Fascinating Story of LOOFAH

Loofah belongs to the cucumber family and originated in India about 2000 years ago.

About 500 years ago, a Korean king, Sochong the Great, ordered his men to find a sponge strong enough to cleanse his body but gentle enough not to scratch his skin. It did not take very long for his men to find SUSEMI (Korean name for loofah).

He finally ordered loofah to become the royal bath sponge. The Japanese and Europeans later adopted it.

Many doctors recommend loofah for its ability to stimulate the skin while the juice of loofah soothes the body.

Famous Health Magazine

"During my residence in Paris, I was intrigued by... Loofah, which, except in Europe, was not yet so much in vogue. The accompanying tag declared it excellent for cellulite, or peau d'orange — skin of an orange." "I asked the pharmacist for an explanation of peau d'orange. He described the condition and the loofah, he said, was part of the massaging action needed to help break down and dissolve the fat accumulations."

A Best Selling Book On Cellulite

Banish Those Cellulite Bumps Forever,

by Catherine Russek

"The loofah, a Swedish sponge or mitt, is an instrument of massage. This will smooth your skin, flaking off the dry outer layer and leaving you smooth as the proverbial baby."

We set our clocks by the hour they appear
And race to be ready so they'll not sneer.
If the doorbell rings on the very dot,
We know who it is and who it is not.
For we've also friends, I am quick to state,
Who are always—and I mean always—late.

The punctual people make us rush.
If we're not quite dressed, we stammer and blush.
The ones who are late, although good as gold,
Make our nerves grow tense and the food grow cold.
What of us? We're the kind who cause most enragement, Forgetting completely we had an engagement.

HEPBURN & TRACY

Were they the "perfect couple"?

A great actress recalls why she and Spencer Tracy made such a winning film pair: "We were perfect representations of the American male and female. The woman is always pretty sharp, and she's needling the man, sort of slightly like a mosquito. The man is always coming along, and she needles, and then he slowly puts out his big paw and slaps the lady down, and that's attractive to the American public. He's the ultimate boss of the situation, and he's very challenged by her. It isn't an easy kingdom for him to maintain." From "Kate," by Charles Higham (W.W. Norton, $7.95).

BOB AND DOLPHIN FRIEND

Proof that courage is a relative thing: One of Bob Shepard's routines at Sea World of Florida is to stick his head into the mouth of a 4,700-pound killer whale named Shamu. He does it every day, as well as riding on Shamu's back underwater and water-skiing with packs of dolphins. He had a close call once—Shamu brought his mouth down on Bob's head. "I just felt a sort of chomp on either side of my head, and then the whale opened his mouth again. I went on with the show. It wasn't until later that I realized I was in shock." Nevertheless, Bob contends that his job is not really dangerous. "As far as I'm concerned," he says, "a brave man is one who sky-dives or hang-glides or climbs mountains. I have a thing about heights. Don't ask me to climb a ladder and change your light bulb—I won't do it. But I'll be glad to ride your killer whale."

Famous European Design Scissors

The Scissors that are molded to your hand

- Cushion plastic handles with contour finger grip gives you more comfort and cutting freedom than you've ever experienced before.
- Stainless steel blades
- Cut paper in . . . patterns . . . fabrics with incredible ease.

Some time ago entirely new concepts in scissors came out of Europe. Scissors with a special cushioned handle anatomically designed to fit your hand. The comfort was incredible. You could cut through the most intricate curve, cut all kinds of materials, cut free hand into all kinds of designs or slip the scissors along the table for an even straight line cut. People who were used to the old fashioned kind of scissors couldn't imagine a pair of scissors working so efficiently and so effortlessly as this new design. Seamstresses and anyone who needed them knew they had discovered a secret. But originally scissors like these cost much more. In fact, even today you can find similar designs selling for $10 or more in fine stores. But now we've captured the essence of these designs at a fantastically low price. "Shear Joy"! It's got the familiar colorful, cushion soft plastic handle, the stainless steel blades, weighs only 3 ounces, and they're 8 1/4" long. If you thought there was nothing glamorous about a pair of scissors then wait until you've tried these. At this new low price you can't afford to be without them. Order now. If they are not shear joy, simply return for full money back.
