Charlotte Visit Apolitical Affair For President Ford

CHARLOTTE (AP) — President Gerald Ford's visit to Charlotte to commemorate the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence was as political as a presidential trip can be in the year before an election.

Ford carried seven congressmen, five of them Democrats, with him on his plane from Washington. According to two of the riders, politics was not discussed.

But that did not stop Ford from pressing past his security guards to shake the hands of hundreds of Charlotteans who stood along the red carpet rolled from his limousine to the speaker's platform.

Grinning and sweating, he seemed buoyed by the welcome. Asked how it augured for his 1976 campaign, he replied, "We're going to do very well."

But impressive as Ford's welcome was, it did not win him any further support from North Carolina's two most powerful Republicans, Sen. Jesse Helms and Gov. Jim Holshouser. Both, for different reasons, remained noncommittal on his 1976 candidacy.

Helms praised Ford Tuesday for his action in rescuing the Mayaguez and its crew. But in the past, he has been critical of the President on grounds ranging from the appointment of Nelson Rockefeller as vice president to the increase in the national debt. He has talked of forming a third party unless Ford toes the conservative line.

delegates under the governor's influence.

He said Tuesday that he was standing by that position.

Ford does have the support of the state's two GOP Congressmen, James T. Broyhill and James G. Martin.

"If he's running, we're all for him," Broyhill said.

"Unless he stubs his toe really badly, I'll support him," said Martin.

TRASH BINS CONSIDERED

Are there any trash bins in Pitt County like so many other counties? It would be very convenient to use these instead of driving all the way to the landfill. A.H.

No, there are not at the present. However, Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray says that the Board of County Commissioners as well as the Pitt County Planning Board have been investigating the feasibility, of establishing "mini landfills" — containers placed at various locations within the county — for some time. These containers would be picked up on a regular basis and taken to the landfill to be dumped, if such a system is put into operation.

SCHOOL BOARD CONVENTION

Did the taxpayers have to pay for the Board of Education and their spouses to go to the National School Board Convention in Florida? E.N.

Greenville School Superintendent Glenn Cox said the expenses for the four school board members who made the trip were paid from money budgeted to the board for such a purpose. Cox's expenses were paid from the travel funds budgeted to the superintendent. Board members paid their wives' expenses, Cox said.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

UNDERWAY

April 22 Hotline ran an inquiry about whether there is a Parents Without Partners chapter here. We sent to national PWP headquarters in Washington, D.C. for information and learned about the same time that some local citizens were forming a chapter. It was reported to us this week that meetings are being held each Wednesday and officers pro tempore have been elected. Charter members are being sought between now and June 1. Any mother or father of a child of any age is eligible for membership, a local member said. Whether he or she has custody of the children does not matter. For more information, one may call the Methodist Student Center, 752-2030.

OUR BIRTHDAY

Hotline's birthday went unnoticed last week. The first anniversary of the column's being published was last Tuesday, May 13.

Expect Higher Oil Price

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials expect the cartel of oil-exporting nations to impose a petroleum price increase of 10 to 15 per cent by the end of the summer, a move that could provide more trouble for the U.S. economy.

A Federal Energy Administration spokesman said today that "all indications point to that sort of price rise by OPEC" — the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The administration's expectations were made known after the House Rules Committee abruptly suspended action Tuesday evening on a congressional energy conservation measure. The committee was to schedule the bill for House floor action today but instead put the matter over until after Congress comes back from its Memorial Day recess on June 2.

Committee Chairman Ray J. Madden, D-Ind., said Democratic leaders had informed him it was "impossible to pass this bill in two days." The controversial bill boosting gasoline taxes faced more than 100 amendments on the floor.

Agency Bldg. Seized

VIETIANE, Laos (AP) — About 200 Lao students seized the U.S. aid agency headquarters in Vientiane today and held two American Marines and an American civilian behind the locked gates of the compound.

The students told newsmen at the gate they had offered to release the Americans if they would "surrender" but all three refused.

U.S. Charge d'Affaires Christian A. Chapman made a verbal protest to Premier Souvanna Phouma and Foreign Minister Phoumi Vongvichit. The embassy said they told him the situation would be "resolved," which was interpreted to mean the government would take some action.

The students issued handwritten lists of demands which included the immediate dissolution of the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) and the departure of all of its American employees within three days.

They also demanded that AID turn over all its facilities to the government including personal goods that had been imported tax free, that taxes be paid on personal property of Americans before they leave the country and that police check on the export of "individual American belongings" and on payment of taxes and visas of Americans and non-Laotians employed by AID.

The demands were broadcast over the government radio station.

Consumer Prices Up In Report On April

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grocery prices reversed a two-month downturn and helped push over-all consumer prices up six-tenths of a per cent in April, the government reported today.

The April increase was double that of March and the biggest increase since January when retail prices also rose six-tenths of one per cent, but the increase still was far below the typical monthly increases of inflationary 1974, when the annual rate was 12.2 per cent.

The White House had said it did not expect the lower March rate to continue. The April increase was in line with the administration's forecast of an annual inflation rate of about 6 or 7 per cent this year.

Retail prices over the past three months have risen at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 5.8 per cent. During the same three-month period in 1974, retail prices rose at an adjusted annual rate of 11.8 per cent.

The Labor Department said last month's increase reflected an upturn in food prices, following two months of decline, and a large increase in nonfood commodities.

Prices were reported up for many items, including used cars, furniture, houses, gasoline, magazines, auto insurance, natural gas and foods such as fresh fruits, eggs and beef. Prices were listed as down for mortgage interest rates and fresh vegetables and sugar.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said that average hourly earnings of production workers continued to rise along with the average work week, but the purchasing power of the weekly paycheck continued to lose ground.

Real spendable earnings — that is, what's left after deduction for taxes and adjusted for inflation — fell one-tenth of a per cent in April and were down 4.1 per cent over the year, the government said.

The Consumer Price Index in April moved up to 158.6, meaning that it cost $158.60 to buy an assortment of goods and services at retail that could have been purchased for $100 in the 1967 base period. Retail prices were 10.2 per cent higher last month than in April 1974, with food up 7.9 per cent. Both nonfood commodities and services were 11 per cent above their levels of a year ago.

In April, grocery prices rose four-tenths of a per cent after declining nine-tenths in March and six-tenths in February. Still, the April rise was moderate compared with increases in late 1974.

So far this year the over-all Consumer Price Index climbed six-tenths of a per cent in January, five-tenths in February, three-tenths in March and the six-tenths in April. The original increase in February had been recorded at six-tenths, but each year at this time the Labor Department re-calculates seasonal adjustment factors to reflect developments over the past year. For this reason, the February increase was revised downward.

Over-all food prices, including the cost of restaurant meals also rose four-tenths of a per cent last month.

Prices for beef, which rose for the first time in seven months, and increases for eggs and fresh fruits offset declines for pork, poultry, fresh vegetables, bakery products and sugar. Sugar prices fell 15.6 per cent in April for a decline of more than 33 per cent so far this year, but they were still more than 80 per cent above their April 1974 level.

The downturn in food prices in February and March had not been expected to continue. The Agriculture Department has forecast an increase in retail food prices of between 6 and 8 per cent if good weather holds, more if it doesn't.

Estimated N.C. Revenue Sees Further Shrinkage

RALEIGH (AP)—The Joint Legislative Committee on the Economy this morning further revised the estimated income shortage in the next two budget years and it was bad news for teachers and state employees.

The revenue shortage had been estimated at $232 million for the 1975-1976 and 1976-1977 budget years. Today, the committee was told the shortage is expected to be about $288.3 million, a difference of $56.3 million.

Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, said the shortage may mean that teachers and state employees won't get the 5 per cent pay raise that had been planned for the 1976-1977 budget year. Already, the pay raise had been delayed a year as the employees had hoped it could take effect July 1 when the 1975-1976 budget year begins.

In a report to the committee, a subcommittee said it revised income figures downward based on information from the Office of the State Budget,

North Carolina National Bank and Legislative Services Fiscal Research Division. All three were in agreement on anticipated income, the report said.

The subcommittee said general fund revenues are expected to be $1.67 billion in 1975-1976 and $1.84 billion in 1976-1977. "In view of the great economic uncertainty, the subcommittee felt that it was prudent to choose a conservative estimate for 1976-1977," the report said.

Several committee members said the General Assembly will have to meet again next year to review the budget. It would be easier and better to divide up greater than anticipated income than to have to make further cuts next year, they commented.

Projected figures accumulated by the committee show anticipated revenue increases to be 8.2 per cent for the current budget year, 8.6 per cent for 1975-1976 and 11.4 per cent for 1976-1977.

To be on the safe side, the committee decided to operate on anticipated revenue increases of 7.2 per cent next fiscal year and 10 per cent in 1976-1977.

Pitt Hospital Bd. Told Construction Progress, Stucco Exterior Okayed

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt Memorial Hospital trustees were told last night that the County Commissioners yesterday afternoon approved the using of stucco as the exterior finish of the new hospital, rather than the vinyl finish that had been planned.

"The vinyl coating is done with a relatively new product," Construction Manager Ralph Hall said. "And we have run into some problems with how we would deal with expansion and treatment of joints since we have long spans of steel. We felt the stucco is a much better material to use because we know its properties and that it's nice-looking. Our contractors will be very happy about the change, because they feel more at ease with stucco."

The Hospital Board went on record as favoring the change, which will cost about $225,000 extra. Hall said interest accrued on construction funds will pay most of the difference.

Hall reported that all foundations, all structural steel, and all roof slabs have been completed in the new hospital construction, moving right along now that the weather has "opened up." He said floor slabs in the acute hospital area will be finished this week and stud wall framing in many areas is well underway. Plumbing's coming along well, too. The project is about one-third complete, he said.

Dr. Steven White, local ophthalmologist, told the Trustee about a relatively new technique for cataract removal known as phaco-emulsifier surgery. With a machine which the Greenville Eye Clinic owns and leases to the hospital "for a token," lens extraction may be accomplished through a smaller incision than is generally used. The material to be removed is emulsified by ultrasonic means and recovery time is kept to a minimum. The posterior lens capsule is kept intact and there's less danger of the hemorrhaging being induced. Dr. White emphasized that the surgery, which has received much publicity in recent months, is not usable in every situation. Very "ripe" cataracts have to be dealt with by conventional surgery, he said, adding that he feels he never can promise a patient that the new technique will be used, though, of course, it is when it's at all possible.

Chairman Duke praised hospital employees for receiving a State Labor Department safety award.

Medical Chief of Staff Dr. Eric Farrington reported that finalization of the affiliation

Only Three Items

Only three items of business are slated for action by the City Council at Thursday's 4 p.m. meeting at city hall.

Discussion is planned on the proposed ordinance implementing the Local Government Budget and Fiscal Control Act as it relates to the Utilities Commission.

Also scheduled is the consideration of a resolution requesting advance funds in the amount of $10,000 from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for the Community Development Program.

The third item involves consideration of a request by the Recreation Commission for advancement of funds to cover purchase of property owned by East Carolina University under the North Carolina Land and Water Conservation Grant Act.

Tomorrow's meeting is the second for May under the Council's trial period of having two meetings per month.

Consultant Is Enthused Over AHEC Outlook

Dr. Thomas Stern, a consultant to the North Carolina Area Health Education Center program and director of the Division of Education of the American Academy of Family Physicians, said here yesterday that the state's AHEC project "looks to me like a hell of a good program."

A Kansas City resident, Stern was in Greenville yesterday meeting with Eastern AHEC people and with officials of the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

As director of the division of education for the American Academy of Family Programs, it is Stern's job to "visit developing programs and help get them started," he said. "I've been involved in the development of the program (the AHEC program) from the beginning," he said.

According to Stern, the AHEC program should be a model program, and should turn out good doctors.

You have all the ingredients here in Greenville you need," he emphasized, "... a good hospital ... a developing medical school ... good leadership ... outstanding medical educators."

The visiting consultant said "my area of expertise, if I have one, is family practice." The AHEC is "a progressive thing

"The country suffers from mal-distribution of physicians ... also mal-distribution by specialty. There are not enough family physicians to take care of all the primary health needs of the country."

"Any state like North Carolina that is forward looking enough to develop this type of program is interested in her own health care," he said.

"I've visited Fayetteville, Asheville, Greensboro, Columbia ... all over the state (where AHECs are located)." "It's an impressive network. I wish we had more states like this."

Expert Advises Skin Cleaning

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Women have been brainwashed by the constant message that if the skin is bad "cover it up," says Christine Valmy, an expert on skin. "Actually they should go to beauty salons as they go to the dentists, checking out their skins as they do their teeth."

Feeling strongly on this point, Mrs. Valmy recently made a limited offer of a free salon treatment and 1,600 women responded. The idea was to acquaint women with the beneficial effects of real skin cleansing.

"Women worry only about wrinkles which a beauty treatment can't remove anyway, and they cover their skins with cosmetics instead of keeping the skin young looking by thorough cleansing," she maintains.

She "was astounded to find that true skin care was unknown in the United States" when she arrived 13 years ago from her native Roumania. She had been working in beauty for 25 years in Europe.

One of the first and best known in the U.S. skin care field, she was prompted into it after three years of working at a New York salon where there was too much emphasis by women on wrinkle removing. She now has 400 salons and 26 schools for "estheticians," as her specialists are known.

"Wrinkles are noticeable only because of the textured parchment look of the skin that is between them. Moistened and fluffed, the light in the cavities will show less dark and it can be a pretty skin," she insists.

In that kind of setting, wrinkles, even deep folds, may look more like character marks than aging lines, she contends. It is one reason men's wrinkles are not so noticeable — they are constantly lubricating their faces with shaving creams, lotions and the like, which helps soften the skin.

Mrs. Valmy devised one machine that vacuums the skin and removes the outer crust. It also irrigates the epidermis with a fine spray after the crust is removed. Its main purpose is to provide deep cleansing and put water back into the upper layers of the skin by hydration. The skin moisture is then protected from evaporation by a protective layer of lotion put over it.

She has had some luck in removing baby-fine wrinkles with cleanliness and hydration, she says. But one must make a skin test first to see if there is still some elasticity in the skin.

"Pinch the skin between your fingers and note how long it takes to regain its initial shape," she advises. "If it takes awhile, you lack elasticity. If it bounces back to its original shape, treatments may still keep it supple and in good condition for a long time."

Very oily skin, "the orange peel kind," is helped tremendously by treatments, the effects of which can be observed in about three months, she insists.

As for the much-talked-about "youth treatments" given by means of procaine which have attracted people over the world to her native Roumania, they may be overrated, in her opinion, although it has been an effective treatment for older people.

The communist regime was looking for a drug to make people work harder and somehow this one did as it provided people — my mother had a treatment — with a lot of pep. But many people over there look at it as a gimmick."

A dark-haired beauty, mother of a 26-year-old, Mrs. Valmy thinks one important way to keep your face young is to "think young."

"I always think like an 18-year-old girl," she explained. "Some people want too much out of life instead of considering everything they have as a gift of God. Their thoughts become etched on their faces. Think happy and you'll look prettier when you are older," she advises younger women.

THREE-GRAIN PEANUT BREAD
Hearty and especially nutritious because its protein is better balanced than that in regular white bread.

1 cup flour, fork-stir to aerate before measuring ½ cup quick-cooking oats
½ cup yellow cornmeal
½ cup nonfat dry milk solids
½ cup sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2-3rds cup creamy peanut butter
1 egg
1½ cups regular fluid milk

In a large mixing bowl stir together the flour, oats, cornmeal, dry milk solids, sugar, baking powder and salt. Cut in peanut butter until particles are small. Beat egg and milk to blend; pour into flour mixture and stir to mix well. Turn into a greased and floured 9 by 5 by 3 inch loaf pan and spread evenly. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 70 minutes. Place pan on wire rack to cool for 10 minutes; loosen edges; turn out on wire rack; turn right side up; cool completely. To store, wrap tightly in plastic film.

FAMILY DINNER
Leftover Meat or Poultry with Barbecue Sauce
Mashed Potatoes or Toast
Green Salad
Apple Pie Beverage

BARBECUE SAUCE
Quick to make and really good.

2 tablespoons corn oil
1 cup chopped onion (1 medium)
½ cup dark corn syrup ½ cup catchup
½ cup water
1-3rd cup cider vinegar

2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

In a 10-inch skillet heat the oil and add the onion; cook gently until wilted; add remaining ingredients; simmer, stirring occasionally, for 15 minutes. Makes about 2 cups. Store, tightly covered, in the refrigerator; keeps well. To use, heat sauce, add sliced leftover cooked meat or poultry and reheat.

GUESTS FOR LUNCH

COMPANY SALAD

A "different" tuna combination.

¾ cup real mayonnaise
1½ tablespoons cider vinegar
Two 7-ounce cans tuna, drained and broken up 1 cup thinly sliced celery ½ cup diced green pepper
¼ cup chopped canned pimiento
8-ounce can water chestnuts, drained and sliced
½ cup small pitted ripe olives

In a medium mixing bowl stir together the mayonnaise and vinegar; add remaining ingredients and toss. Cover and chill or serve at once on lettuce. Makes six 1-cup servings.

Will Comic Card Cause Chilly Reception?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: It's been 50 years since I've even thought of my childhood sweetheart. Then I read in the obituary column that her father had died, and she was still a "Miss."

I have been a widower for 18 months, so I sent this childhood sweetheart a mass card. She promptly wrote to thank me for it. Then I sent a comic card that read, "Are you free Saturday night? I have $2.95 to spend." (I wrote on the bottom, "On the serious side, I'd like to take you out for dinner if you aren't too upset about the loss of your father.")

No reply. Should I write to her again? Perhaps telephone her? Do you think that receiving no answer was an answer in the negative? Thanks for your comments.

CONNECTICUT YANKEE

DEAR YANK: Your comic card may not have been so comical since the lady was still in mourning. Wait a while, then telephone her. If you get a chilly reception, you'll know you blew it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old, college-educated, unmarried woman.

I have definitely made up my mind that I do not want to bear any children. If I marry and want a child, I will adopt a homeless child since I think there are already too many children in the world.

Also, I would like to be able to have sex without worrying about getting pregnant, and no matter what anybody says, there is absolutely NO method of contraception that is 100 per cent foolproof.

I have asked every doctor I know to perform an operation on me to prevent pregnancy, but so far, I have found no one who will. They all say: "Oh, you'll change your mind one day and then will be sorry." Or: "Have a few kids first—then I'll do it for you." They act like they'd be committing some kind of crime.

Abby, why shouldn't I be able to have that kind of operation if that is what I want? And where can I find a doctor who will do it?

DEAR READER: I personally feel that if you do not want children, it's your right. Keep shopping around for a doctor. If you can't find one, inquire at your nearest Planned Parenthood office for information. Their motto is: "Every child should be a wanted child." And I couldn't agree more.

DEAR ABBY: With reference to walk-in customers versus telephone customers, this is how I handle it: When I phone a store, I always open my inquiry with: "If you are not with a customer now, will you please help me?" The clerk says, "Yes, I can help you" or "I'm busy now, may I take your number and call you back, or will you hold?"

Then, when I am in a store and in a hurry, if the phone rings while I'm being waited on and the salesperson makes a move to answer it, I say, "Please ask the person on the phone to wait. I was here first, and I am in a hurry."

They always look a little shocked, but I don't care because I know I'm right. And if they will just stop and think, they'll agree.

I have also been a salesperson, so I've been on both sides of the counter.

"SELDOM STANDIN' AND WAITIN' "

DEAR SELDOM: Your system makes sense for telephone shoppers, walk-in customers and clerks. Thanks for the sensible suggestion.

ECU French Professor Signs Writing Contract

Dr. Nicole Aronson of the East Carolina University foreign languages and literatures faculty has signed a contract with Twayne, a New York publishing firm, to write a book-length study of Mlle. Madeleine de Scudery.

The proposed title of Dr. Aronson's book is "Madeleine de Scudery: A Critical and Analytical Study of Her Work." The book will be part of Twayne's World Author Series. Mlle. de Scudery was a renowned novelist and feminist of 17th century France, whose work has been relatively ignored by literary scholars. The Aronson study will be one of the few in existence.

In October Dr. Aronson will chair the Women in French Literature session at the 24th Inter-State Mountain Foreign Language Conference at Appalachian State University. Scholars and professors from several eastern and midwestern states will meet at the conference.

At Christmas, Dr. Aronson will address a New Orleans gathering of French professors at the joint meeting of the American Association of Teachers of French and the Société des Professeurs français, an association of French professors from 47 nations. Her essay, "Women in Moliere's Work," will appear in the Eastern Kentucky University Centennial Book this fall.

During the past academic year Dr. Aronson has published five reviews of books on French literature and has been an active contributor of abstracts to the ABC Clio Bibliography, a listing of articles dealing with French history.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Welsh of West Hazleton, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Shelley Kay, to Sgt. Troy R. Staton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Staton of Rt. 2, Grifton. The wedding will take place July 12.

Further Allegation Of CIA-Mafia Connections

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy was warned that prosecution of two organized crime figures could result in the disclosure of a CIA plot to kill Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, a former high agency official says. The former official also said he did not know what effect the information had on the Justice Department's subsequent efforts to prosecute the two men. The official, who declined use of his name, said Tuesday that he told Kennedy about the assassination plot in 1962 after the CIA learned that Sam Giancana and John Roselli, the two Mafia figures involved in the plot, were under investigation by Kennedy's Justice Department. The agency was concerned that Giancana or Roselli might threaten to disclose the plot in an effort to avoid prosecution, the official said.

"We gave Kennedy the facts and said, 'Here's the problem,'" the official said. "Mr. Kennedy said, 'the next time you deal with the Mafia come to me first,' but he didn't voice any other objection," the official added.

The department dropped its efforts to prosecute Giancana after the Chicago rackets chief had spent a year in jail for refusing to answer questions before a federal grand jury. Roselli was convicted of a card-fixing scheme and subsequently revealed his CIA connection in an unsuccessful effort to gain a reduced sentence. The former official said that the 1961 plot involved contacts between Giancana and Roselli and two former CIA officials, William K. Harvey and Sheffield Edwards. Both Harvey, currently an attorney in Indianapolis, Ind., and Edwards, now retired and living in suburban Maryland, refused to comment. According to the former official, Giancana and Roselli "had thought they could be useful in connection with a plot against Castro's life." Columnist Jack Anderson has reported that Roselli made several attempts to kill Castro, but the former official said the would-be assassin "never got as far as Cuba." "The project was over" by the time Kennedy was informed, he added.

VEPCO Avers Near-Disaster

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Executives of Virginia Electric & Power Co. have told the North Carolina Utilities Commission that the company might not have survived through 1974 without the fuel adjustment clause.

Vepco president T. Justin Moore Jr. made the comment Tuesday as hearings opened on the company's 28.7 per cent rate increase request for its 63,000 customers in northeastern North Carolina.

The fuel adjustment clause has allowed Vepco to pass increased fuel costs directly to customers without a rate hearing. Bills have risen sharply since the clause was put in effect over a year ago.

There is sentiment among the Utilities Commission staff that a greater portion of Vepco's fuel costs should be reflected in the company's base rates instead of being tacked on under the fuel clause.

Vepco's requested rate hike would increase the monthly bill for a customer using 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity from $32.95 to $43.16. Customers are already paying over half of the proposed increase on a temporary basis pending the outcome of the rate hearing.

Moore told the commission that without the fuel adjustment clause, Vepco "would have experienced a financial disaster and perhaps could not have even survived."

Vepco senior vice president Stanley Ragone warned the commission that predicting future developments in the fuel market could be "hazardous."

Attacked At Her Front Door

Police are investigating an assault here last night at 310 West Third St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Mrs. Georgia Hearn reported that she was choked by a man after she went to her door when the door bell rung, between 10 p.m. and 10:15.

Mrs. Hearn said that she screamed, and her attacker ran from the scene when a passer-by—drawn by her scream—came to her aid.

Investigation of the incident is continuing.

It's A More Dangerous World

There were many risks in the action President Ford took to free the U. S. freighter Mayaguez, which had been captured by Cambodia.

The rescue operation was highly successful in that the freighter was recaptured and its crew was returned unharmed by the Cambodians.

At the same time the mission was costly to the U. S. Marines. Our casualties were high with five reported killed and 16 missing. An effort to determine the injured is still going on.

Regardless, the United States' reaction to the capture of the ship is widely regarded as successful in our own nation and in the eyes of the world.

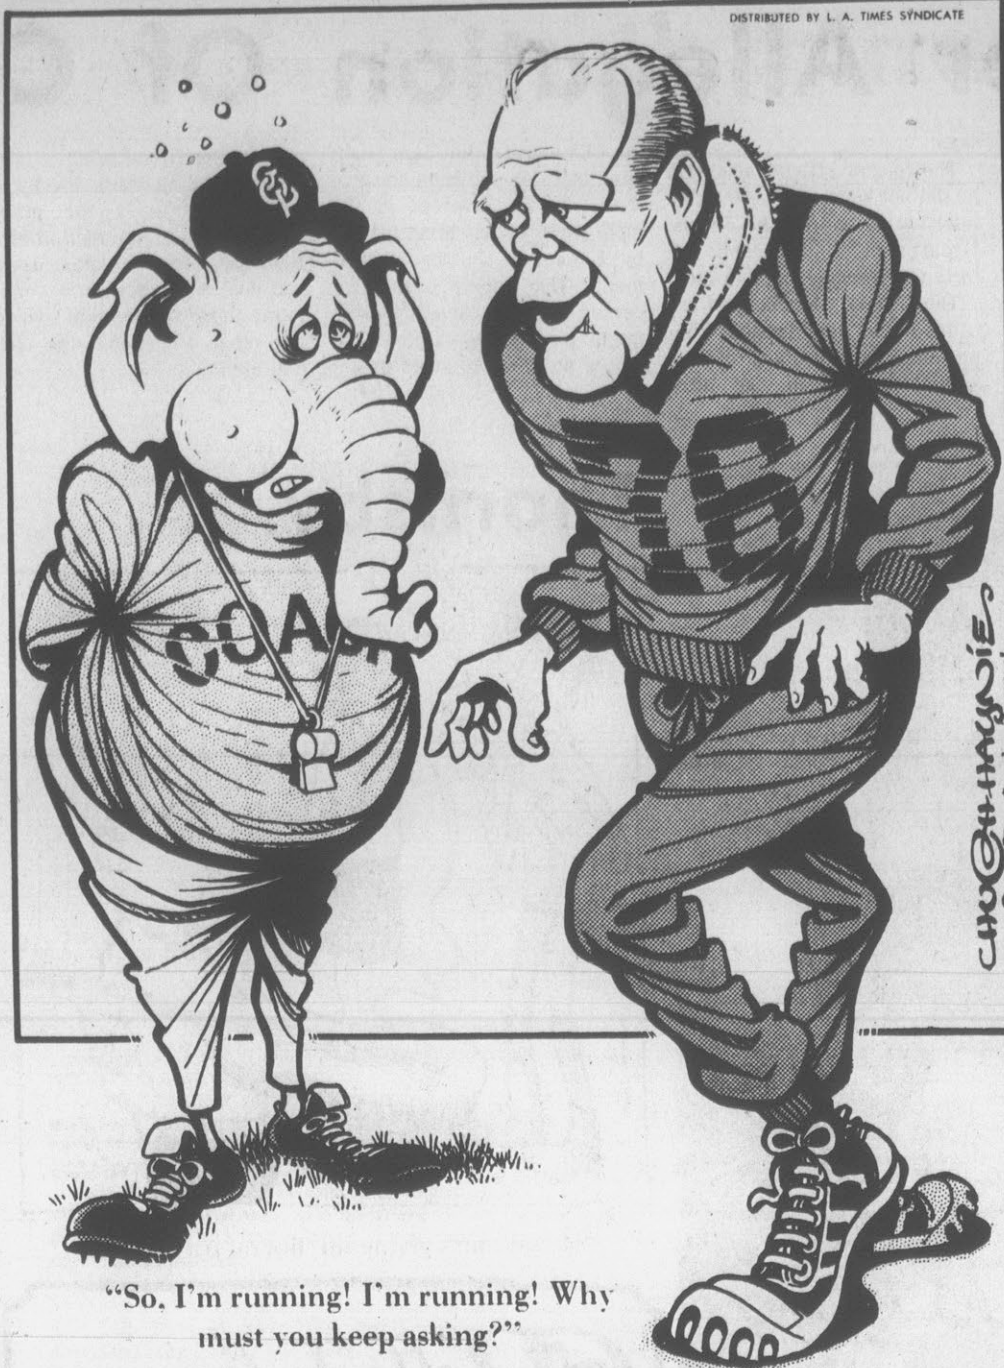

It served notice on those nations who would become aggressive towards us following the Southeast Asia debacle that we will not stand meekly by while other nations take advantage of us.

We hope, too, that communist powers will appreciate that the United States has learned another lesson from Vietnam; that is, that our reaction to aggression in the future will have to be swift and decisive. We can never again become bogged down in expensive land wars by degrees. When our interests are threatened we will have to react with full force immediately.

Admittedly this makes for a more dangerous world since there is the danger of two super powers overreacting in a given situation. Nevertheless, we expect that that is the way presidents and Congress will be forced to think as future emergencies arise.

Hopefully the communist powers will recognize that this is the situation that the United States has been forced into. Since World War II we have been in two long and draining conflicts in Asia. In Korea we fought to a stalemate, while in Vietnam we lost entirely. There will be little public support for such actions for many decades in our country, but when our national interests are clearly imperiled the public will demand quick and decisive action from our leaders.

Changing Gerry's Image

WASHINGTON—When Richard Nixon ran for President in 1968 his image-makers went to work to make the American people forget he was a tough guy and believe he was a nice guy instead. Out of it came the "New Nixon."

Gerry Ford has the opposite problem. He is known as a nice guy, and his image-makers now have until 1976 to make him into a tough guy. It will be a lot harder than anyone thinks.

"Mr. President, we'd like to talk to you about the new Gerry Ford."

"Aw shucks, guys, I don't know if I want to talk about that. Does anybody want any breakfast? I'm making pancakes."

"There's the problem, Mr. President, in a nutshell. You're going to have to stop making your own breakfast. Nobody trusts a President who cooks in the White House."

"Gee whiz, that's the only fun I have in the morning."

"Do you want to be President in 1976 or don't you?"

"I guess so."

"Then we've got to change the picture Americans have of you. Now for a start we don't want you to release any more photos of you kissing the First Lady or of Susan sitting on your lap. It's too—too family. The only shots we want in the papers are you sitting at your desk firing a Cabinet officer."

"I can't fire anybody, fellows. You know that."

"You're going to have to show everyone you're in charge."

"Whom should I fire?"

"It doesn't make any difference as long as you do it in public and you humiliate the person."

"I don't think I'd like that."

"It isn't whether you'd like it or not. You're going to have to do it unless you want Ronald Reagan moving into this office."

"Ronnie's a nice guy."

"He is not, Mr. President, and you better stop saying he is. If you're going to be President of the United States, you've got to hate Richard Nixon. Nixon knew that better than anyone."

"Poor Nixon. I hope he's getting better."

"Mr. President, will you forget about Richard Nixon? We're playing hard ball. Now the first thing we've got to do is draw up an enemies list of people you're out to get."

"I'm not out to get anybody. People may not agree with what I have to say, but that doesn't make them my enemies. Golly gumdrops."

"This is going to be tougher than we thought, men. Mr. President, if we're going to get you on the ballot, we've got to make everyone think you're a real s.o.b."

"What's an s.o.b.?"

"It's an expensive deleted."

Ford's Handy 'Bonus'

By FRANK CORMIER

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford appears to have found a "non-political" strategy for getting an early start on his promised 1976 campaign by embracing the role of "Bicentennial President."

Ford assumed the Bicentennial mantle twice in three days this week, before markedly different audiences in Philadelphia and Charlotte, N.C. In each case the results could only have heartened the President and his political advisers.

These appearances also offered Ford a large bonus in the form of enthusiastic applause for his handling of the Mayaguez incident.

If the reaction in Pennsylvania and North Carolina reflected the national mood, this would be no week for anyone to be campaigning against Gerald R. Ford.

But the Mayaguez incident aside, Bicentennial festivities present Ford with unique opportunities to show himself to the voters in a nonpartisan role. More important, perhaps, crowds are large and ready-made. And, with jarring exceptions, a 4th of July spirit of flag-waving patriotism is in the air.

Authorities in Charlotte estimated 50,000 or more shirt-sleeved Carolinians turned out in a holiday mood to hear Ford talk Tuesday about a need for national rededication to the principles of the American revolution.

Ford also seized the chance to devote about half his speech to glowing words about the South in general and North Carolina in particular. The South could be a major Republican battleground should former California Gov. Ronald Reagan or some other GOP conservative decide to challenge Ford next year.

The President has been about his Bicentennial chores on a regular basis since last fall when he went to Philadelphia for a symbolic reconvening of the Continental Congress. April found him on the revolutionary battlefields at Lexington and Concord, in Massachusetts, and at Boston's Old North Church where lanterns were hung to start Paul Revere on his famous ride.

Of course, 1975 is only a

Land-Use Control Slowed

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — North Carolinians obviously embrace a middle-of-the-road attitude toward state control of private growth and development.

Rejecting both the Oregon approach of freezing out newcomers; or the permissiveness of heavily industrialized states, Tar Heels seem to be saying they welcome controls where circumstances require them, but don't want them unless necessary.

Thus, three companion proposals put forth in the past two years and hailed by supporters as historic steps at statewide land use management are in various states of implementation:

—The Coastal Land Use Management law passed the 1975 General Assembly after bitter debate, 56 amendments, and a restructuring to give supervision into the hands of local residents rather than Raleigh bureaucrats.

Even bitter opponents now endorse the coastal controls, recognizing the need to guard against runaway development and protect environmentally sensitive marshes, waterways, dunes, and beaches.

Not Enough Time

Still, experience has shown that local communities called upon to prepare long-range development plans and controls could not respond as rapidly as the law required, and steps are underway to extend deadlines by two years.

—The Mountain Land Use Management proposal is quietly resting in a committee of the General Assembly, not likely to be debated in the 1975-76 session, while supporters work on strategy to revive it in 1977.

Mountain opponents, even in the face of successful experience with the Coastal Land Use Management Act, insist that conditions are not the same in those two widely different sections of the state.

State Rep. Claude DeBruhl, D-Buncombe, thinks the mountain proposal is more restrictive and far-reaching than the one for the coast; that mountain terrain does not offer the same sensitive problems that coastal land does; but principally that so little of the mountain land is in private hands, that stringent controls would all but halt growth and development in a section badly needing economic boosting.

Land Ownership

DeBruhl argues that nearly half of the mountain land is in state or national ownership, or owned by utilities exempted from land use controls, while buffer zones 800-yards wide around state and national parks adds another 100,000 acres which can't be used for development.

Urban mountain areas already have land use controls, DeBruhl said, but the mountain lands west of Asheville are the ones which would be adversely affected by land control.

"We say that when the whole state of North Carolina is zoned, we will take our lumps along with the rest. But when the rest of the state doesn't have land controls, we shouldn't," DeBruhl said.

—Statewide Land Use Policy, the third of the package, is in limbo. The strategy was to go for all three measures at once, initially. Seeing the coastal opposition, and the mountain opposition, the measures were split up.

The statewide measure would fill in the gap of counties between coast and mountains, requiring similar supervision, preparation of county land use and zoning plans, and establishment of basic areas in each county (urban, developing urban, rural, and protected).

Piedmont counties, holding the balance of power in the General Assembly, are largely already using zoning techniques. But many fringe counties with large rural areas are not, and those are the ones in which stiff opposition exists to any governmental control over land use.

Backers of land management are not conceding defeat over the long run, but concede that action must be slower, and less aggressive, than originally thought. Strategy now looks to 1980 and beyond for conclusion of statewide land use management in North Carolina.

INSIDE REPORT

Ford vs. Doves And Hawks

By ROWLAND EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—High Pentagon officials, backed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, argued strongly during President Ford's secret deliberations with the National Security Council (NSC) for rock-bottom minimum use of U.S. military power—less than the President finally ordered—in the rescue of the pirated Mayaguez.

Mr. Ford rejected their argument for strict application of the "rule of proportionality"—meeting an enemy's force with no more than the minimum required counterforce. The President opted instead for "a higher degree" of American counterforce, or what some military analysts call "equivalence plus."

This shows that often-maligned Pentagon hawks, operating within new congressional restrictions on the use of military force, are now more conscious of political backlash than their counterparts in the State Department and Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

This was no bareknuckle, backroom brawl. Nor did it convert the austere cabinet room of the White House, where the NSC held its deliberations, into a debating society.

Rather, the threads of the pro-and-con discussion over what kind of military action the U.S. should take leads to no villains, no heroes. Those threads do reveal that the President ruled in favor of "equivalence plus"—but also overruled at least one State Department suggestion for American bombing of the civilian-military Cambodian airfield outside Phnom Penh.

That bombing proposal—opposed by the Pentagon—stemmed from a diplomatic effort to milk maximum psychological advantage from a case of piracy on the high seas. It was cloaked, of course, in conventional military argument—that the Cambodians might use the airfield against the American force in the Gulf of Siam. But it would have been a clear case of overkill.

Whether Secretary of State Henry Kissinger favored it himself is not known. But the President vetoed it as provocative.

Thus, Mr. Ford asserted his own will in a crisis that, with only a little mismanagement or a bit of bad luck, could have escalated to extremely dangerous proportions. As one administration insider told us: "Don't think this was a Kissinger or (Defense Secretary James) Schlesinger extravaganza. It was pure Ford."

Among all the considerations behind the President's rejection of a strict "rule of proportionality" was the looming problem of South Korea. He chose to employ slightly more military force than required in order to signal the Communist government of North Korea that any military probe across the demilitarized line into South Korea would not only be turned back; it would assure punishment of North Korea.

The thesis: no distinct, unprovoked act of aggression should be given a free ride. Simply righting the wrong would not discourage similar acts in the future. The needed increment: punishment, to make the aggression more costly to the aggressor than to the victim.

The backdrop of Mr. Ford's planning was a virtual blackout of accurate intelligence, a factor that made the decision to intervene far more risky than it actually turned out to be, which was risky enough.

At the time Mr. Ford decided definitely that he would use force to recover the Mayaguez and its crews, the vessel was reported by U.S. intelligence to be somewhere in the sprawling harbor on one of Cambodia's most populated cities: Kampong Som (Formerly Sihanoukville). The truth was far different. The vessel actually had been towed to Koh Tang island, a fact not known to the Pentagon until late Monday.

Yet, Mr. Ford's decision to seize the boat wherever it was had already been taken on the logical grounds that to wait supinely for deliverance at the hands of the bizarrely revolutionary Cambodian government would make intervention progressively harder. In the background was Mr. Ford's refusal to let the Mayaguez become another Pueblo, whose crew languished in a North Korean prison for 11 months in 1968.

Any repetition of the humiliating Pueblo affair the President ruled utterly unacceptable. Steering his thin line between State Department hawks, aiming for maximum political effect, and Pentagon doves, fearful of another outburst of anti-military animus from Congress, he followed his own convictions and wrote a bold new chapter of history.

Strength For Today

CLASHING CYMBALS

The man who plays the cymbals may not appear to have a very important part in an orchestra, but a symphony without the discordant clang of the cymbal somewhere in it would lack much of the majesty it was intended to have.

Many of us when attending concerts have noticed how cymbal players sit motionless throughout a number until nearly the end. Then, as all the instruments are swelling into a grand crescendo, the cymbalist rises, poises his cymbals, and just at the right moment crashes them together and sends a peal of brass across the mounting harmonies of the orchestra. The cymbal does not make a tone; it creates a loud dissonance, but it thereby makes all the other harmonies more significant.

Any such is the function of disharmonies in life. They make the harmonies more significant. Pain, disappointment, and loss—the clash of cymbals in our lives—make us remember and appreciate the times when our lives were more harmonious.

Auto Execs Feeling Pay Pinch

DETROIT (AP) — Auto industry executives, whose boomyear bonuses put them at the top of America's high-paid industrial magnates in 1973, dropped from the ranks of the nation's most rewarded executives for 1974.

Revlon President Michel C. Bergerac led the list with total compensation of $1,595,000. Much of his pay reportedly was an inducement to accept the post. He left IT&T for the cosmetics firm.

A survey of executive compensation by Business Week magazine shows most automotive executives trailed their counterparts in 31 other industries last year.

Though top automakers' salaries rose eight per cent over 1973, their bonuses were down 85.9 per cent, sending their over-all compensation a sharp 43 per cent lower.

Ford Chairman Henry Ford II and President Lee A. Iacocca, the auto industry's highest-paid executives in 1974, each earned $573,000 less than in 1973 when the firm's profits were 60 per cent higher.

The pay cuts left Ford and Iacocca each with $292,000 in salary.

GM President Elliott M. Estes earned $236,250 in 1974. His predecessor, Edward N. Cole, earned $833,000 in 1973.

At Chrysler Corp., which reported a record $52-million loss in 1974, Chairman Lynn Townsend took a $432,000 pay cut, and President John Riccardi's pay was slashed $335,000. But Chrysler's board still granted stock options to Townsend for 60,000 shares and to Riccardi for 50,000 shares.

Profits were down only 38 per cent at American Motors, and the AMC executives were the only real winners among the auto executives.

AMC Chairman Roy D. Chapin Jr. got a 26 per cent increase, including a $152,000 bonus. President William V.

Lunenburg got a similar increase, and both got options for 25,000 shares.

Chapin wound up with $209,760 in salary and another $152,000 in bonuses, while Lunenburg got $176,892 in salary, plus the $152,000 in bonuses.

The Business Week survey showed many fewer stock options exercised last year, but some executives did profit handsomely. Dow Chemical Vice President Earle B. Barnes netted $613,000 when he exercised an option on 16,000 shares.

Dow, which had a net profit of $587 million — up 117 per cent over 1973 — paid Barnes $292,000 in salary in 1974, compared to $239,000 the year before. He received $60,000 in bonuses, up from $52,000.

W. German 'Bonnie And Clyde' On Trial

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer
STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — West Germany's Bonnie and Clyde went on trial today in a special courthouse built in a maximum-security prison at a cost of $3.5 million amid a nationwide alert against the possibility of terrorist attempts to free them.

While police, border troops and armored cars stood guard outside public buildings throughout the country, Andreas Baader, 32, and Ulrike Meinhof, 40, leaders of the Baader-Meinhof Gang of anarchists, sullenly took their seats in the dock inside Stammheim Prison.

The 354-page indictment accuses them of masterminding a wave of antistate terror in the early 1970s that killed four U.S. servicemen and a German policeman, of threatening the lives of at least 54 other persons, of bombings, shootings and bank robberies that left 65 persons wounded and netted the equivalent of $200,000.

Two other gang leaders, Jan-

Carl Raspe, 30, the gang's bomb expert, and Gudrun Ensslin, 34, a pastor's daughter who became Baader's mistress, also went on trial before the five-judge tribunal. A fifth gang leader, Holger Meins, 33, died last Nov. 9 after a hunger strike that the other four kept up for 145 days.

In West Germany's most heavily guarded court proceeding since the Nuernberg war crimes tribunal three decades ago, dozens of police guarded the two-story courthouse set behind double fences equipped with electronic sensors and under continuous surveillance by television cameras.

With testimony scheduled from some 1,000 witnesses, the trial is expected to last at least 18 months.

There were persistent reports that German anarchists would attack the West German embassies in Oslo and Stockholm in another attempt to force the government to free the defendants. The police in the two capitals put extra guards on the embassies.

A band of anarchists occupied the Stockholm embassy last month, killed two West German diplomats and blew up the building, but the Bonn government refused to free the defendants and 22 other alleged members of the gang in German jails.

More than 50 other followers or members of other anarchist groups are behind bars, awaiting trial or serving sentences.

The four were rounded up by West Germany's biggest post-war police dragnet several weeks after the bombings in June 1972. They have been in jail ever since.

Two U.S. Officers Assassinated On Tehran Street

By PARVIS RAEIN
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN (AP) — Terrorists shot and killed two U.S. Air Force officers on a Tehran street today as they were being driven to work.

The assassins escaped. The Iranian government said they were Marxist guerrillas, and "no action will be spared to find the murderers and bring them to justice."

The embassy officially identified the dead men as Air Force Lt. Col. Paul R. Shafer Jr., 45, a native of Dayton, Ohio, and Air Force Lt. Col. Jack J. Turner, 45, from Carbondale, Ill.

Shafer, a graduate of Ohio State University, was married and the father of two children. Turner, a graduate of the University of Nebraska, was married and the father of three children.

About 20,000 U.S. citizens now live in Iran.

Unofficial sources also reported an Iranian murdered by terrorists today. They said he was an employee of the government radio-television company, Ebrahim Nushirevani, but had no other information about this killing.

A woman telephoned The Associated Press office anonymously at noon and said: "The execution of American officers today was a reply to the execution of nine Iranian revolutionaries in prison last month."

Identifying herself as a spokesman for the Iranian People's Warriors Association, she said Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi is a "stooge of the Americans, therefore we murder Americans."

The shah paid a state visit to President Ford in Washington last week and is now in Paris on his way home.

An Embassy communique gave this account of the shooting:

"Two U.S. military officers were assassinated by terrorists at 6:30 a.m. Wednesday, May 21. As the officers were being driven to their duties, a car pulled out to block their progress on the street. Another car rammed them from behind.

"According to an eyewitness, three men got out of the automobiles and after ordering the Iranian driver of the car carrying the officers to get down on the floor of the car, shot the two officers several times as they fell to the floor. The terrorists then got into a third car and made their escape."

A Marxist-anarchist underground has been active in Iran for several years. About 200 of them have been killed in battles with the police or executed by firing squads, and Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi said while visiting Washington recently that about 3,000 of them are in jail.

Officials in Washington said the U.S. military assistance group in Iran now numbers 1,000 Americans in uniform and about 2,000 civilians. The American community in the country totals 20,000 people and is expected to reach 50,000 by 1980 because of Iran's huge purchases of American arms, industrial equipment and other major items.

An Iranian government spokesman expressed "deep regret" at the murder of the two officers.

Hough Reviews Role Of Presidents And Office

"Some people have suggested that there should be two Presidents, one in charge of international relations and one in charge of domestic relations, since the Presidency has become such a complex and demanding office," Dr. Lawrence Hough told a meeting of the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters Tuesday night.

Dr. Hough, who was guest speaker at the meeting, is an Assistant Professor of Political Science at East Carolina University.

"The Presidency has evolved into a much more powerful office than the Constitutional framers intended it should be," Dr. Hough explained. "In order to implement these expanded powers, the number of persons employed by the executive office has grown from a handful to approximately two or three thousand."

"The decision-making capability of a President is extremely important but difficult," Dr. Hough said. We need more openness in the decisional process so that the public can better understand it. Because of their access to the President, presidential advisers must be chosen more on competence than loyalty and must be held accountable," Dr. Hough stated.

"To whom should the President be held accountable for his decisions?" Dr. Hough asked. "A person feels he is represented only if he agrees with the decision. But the President must be responsible to the national interest as a whole—the voters, Congress, the media, interest groups, etc.—as well as to the international community."

Dance Scheduled At Recreation Center

A four hour long Community Ambassador dance will be held from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Elm Street Recreation Center Gym on Saturday.

Mike Allen, student chairman of the Greenville Community Ambassador program, says "We're holding this dance, which will feature music of the 1950s, in an effort to raise badly needed funds for this program that has been going on for a number of years."

The "Zeus," a Greenville based band, will be on hand to furnish music for the dance. Refreshments will also be available. The Community Ambassador dance is open to people of all ages. Admission is 75 cents per person.

All proceeds realized from the dance and from the sale of refreshments will go to support the two Rose High juniors who have been named Greenville Community Ambassadors to be living in foreign countries this summer. Mike said that persons wanting to make contributions for the Rose High program can send such contributions to: Mike Allen, in care of United Christian Youth Movement, St. James United Methodist Church, Greenville.

Church Board Meets Tonight

The official board meeting of the Mt. Calvary F.W.B. Church will be held tonight at 7:30. The minister Dr. W. L. Jones will lead the quarterly meeting services for the remainder of the week and the weekend.

Elected Member National Council

Robert Woodside of the East Carolina University Department of Mathematics faculty has been elected to the national council of Pi Mu Epsilon honor society in mathematics.

The election was conducted by mail, with each U.S. college or university chapter having one vote. Prof. Woodside will serve a three-year term as a member of the society's governing body.

Prof. Woodside is responsible for the organization of ECU's Pi Mu Epsilon chapter in 1968 and has since served as its faculty sponsor. The local chapter has been active in campus affairs and nationally prominent, having sent student speakers to the past six national meetings.

Faculty Senate Elects Benjamin

Lloyd Benjamin, assistant professor of art at East Carolina University, has been elected chairman of the 1975-76 ECU Faculty Senate.

Vice-chairman will be Stella Daugherty, assistant professor of mathematics, and John Atkeson, assistant professor of history, was elected secretary. The newly elected chairman appointed Henry Ferrell, professor of history, to the office of parliamentarian.

The Faculty Senate, composed of 49 faculty, represents the general faculty at ECU in its recommendations on academic policy to the Chancellor.

Students Initiated By Honor Society

Twenty-two advanced students in the East Carolina University School of Business have been initiated into the campus chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma honor society.

Included in the new initiates are graduate students, seniors and juniors from 16 North Carolina counties, five other states and one foreign nation.

Invitations to membership in Beta Gamma Sigma are extended to students of business with superior academic grade point averages.

Current president of ECU's Gamma chapter is Dr. Ross Piper of the School of Business faculty.

Names, parents' names and hometown addresses of area new Beta Gamma Sigma initiates follow:

MARTIN COUNTY, Williamston—Roy William Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Rogers Jr., 207 Williams St. He and his wife Mary Lou reside at 209 West Jarvis St., Greenville.

PITT COUNTY, Farmville—

Co-Recipients Of Math Award

Mary Aldridge Bailey of Burlington and Barbara Jean White of Williamston are co-recipients of the 1975 Outstanding Senior Award for the ECU Department of Mathematics.

Both students have better than 3.9 academic grade point averages and both are active in campus affairs.

Mrs. Bailey, who plans to pursue graduate studies in biology, was awarded third prize for a research report she presented at the Biological Sciences Section of the N.C. Academy of Science meeting in April.

Will Be Cited

Chief City Inspector Alton E. Warren said effective next Monday persons with dogs still running at large will be cited to court for violation of City Ordinance 441 Section 5-7 on Restraint of dogs.

The leash law, as the ordinance is commonly called, went into effect May 1, and Warren said the animal control officer has been giving warnings since then. Warnings no longer will be given after this week.

Rizzo Wins Philadelphia Primary Bid

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mayor Frank L. Rizzo has crushed the Democratic organization that had tagged him a "monster" and a "liar" and refused to endorse him for a second term because he supported Republican President Richard M. Nixon.

And Rizzo's smashing primary renomination Tuesday also swept in most of his candidates for City Council and judge, virtually guaranteeing him control of the powerful Democratic party machine that has run America's fourth largest city since 1952.

"The people of this city have shown the machine politicians that a man who worked for the people can be re-elected," said the 54-year-old former police commissioner who rocketed into politics on the law and order issue that brought him national recognition as a tough cop.

Rizzo defeated state Sen. Louis G. Hill, the party choice, and four other candidates in a bitter name-calling battle that failed to excite the electorate. Only 55 per cent of the 605,848 registered Democrats voted.

With 99 per cent of 1,777 precincts reported, Rizzo had 179,994 votes to 147,287 for Hill. Muhammad Kenyatta, a black civil rights minister, trailed far behind with 6,133.

Republicans, with less than half of their 227,787 votes balloting, easily nominated Thomas Foglietta, a former city councilman who was opposed by an unknown engineer who claimed he was a Samoan prince.

In November, Rizzo also will have to face Charles Bowser, a black independent who was denied Democratic endorsement in favor of Hill and formed his own party to run for mayor.

Safe Robbed At Farmville

FARMVILLE—Local police and Pitt deputies are continuing their investigation of an early Monday safe robbery at Messer Chevrolet here on W. Wilson Street.

A Police Department spokesman said that an acetylene torch was apparently used to cut a hole in the front door of the safe. A money box was taken from the safe, it was noted but the exact amount of money contained in the box has not been determined.

According to the spokesman, the torch used in the robbery belonged to Messer Chevrolet and was located inside the business.

Entrance to the building was gained through a rear roll-up door on a wash pit, it was noted.

The owners reported no items missing from the business except the money box.

The spokesman said that the robbery was discovered around 8 a.m. Monday when company personnel arrived for work. The torch had been left on, it was pointed out, and the smell of gas in the building was still strong when the incident was discovered.

Installation On Saturday

New officers of both the Jaycees and Jayettes for the coming year will be installed Saturday night during the annual Installation and Ladies Night Banquet.

This year's banquet-dance, which will get underway at 6:30 p.m., will be held at the American Legion Building.

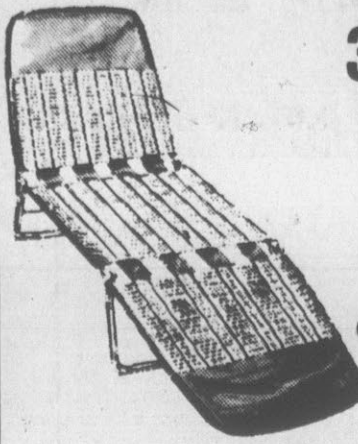

Guest speaker for the banquet will be State Jaycee President Jim Morgan of High Point who was elected during the N.C. Jaycees' annual convention this past weekend in Asheville.

In addition to the installation of officers, the Jayettes will present their annual Jayette-of-the-Year Award.

A number of past presidents, including charger president Dave Mosier, are expected to be on hand and will be recognized during the banquet. The Jaycees are also planning a special social for the past presidents, it was noted.

RECALL EMPLOYEES
CAMDEN, S.C. (AP) — The May plant of the DuPont Co. has recalled 48 additional employees. The recall brings to 369 the number put back to work who were laid off between October and February.

Iraqi Suffer From River Flow Cutoff

By HOLGER JENSEN

Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) —

Children in Iraqi villages are drinking sewage water, livestock is dying and Iraq has no rice crop because Syria has reduced the flow of the Euphrates river, travelers from Baghdad report.

"First the sheep and cows died; now the children are getting sick with eye problems and stomach diseases," said one Iraqi who toured the drought-stricken Karbala region 80 miles southwest of Baghdad.

"There is still water in the Euphrates, but all the canals are dry. The only water in outlying villages is sewage, a stinking yellow mess with soap in it. The farmers have planted no rice this year. So far a quarter of them have left the fields to find work in the cities."

He reported that the Iraqi government has bought at least 50 water tankers to transport drinking water from the Tigris river, in eastern Iraq, to communities that formerly depended on the Euphrates.

The government is also building large storage tanks in the villages and setting up emergency clinics to cope with outbreaks of drought-induced illness.

The Euphrates rises in Turkey and flows 1,750 miles through Syria and Iraq before it joins the Tigris and ends at the Shatt al-Arab estuary on the Persian Gulf. Iraq is thus third in line for Euphrates water.

Iraq has negotiated off and on for more than 10 years to try to work out a water-sharing formula with Syria and Turkey.

The Baghdad government claims 3 million Iraqi farmers are short of water because Syria's new Soviet-built dam at Tabka is diverting more water than Syria is entitled to. The Syrians claim they are holding back one-third of the river and allowing two-thirds to flow into Iraq.

Attempts by Saudi Arabia and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt to mediate the dispute have failed. Last week Syria closed its air space to Iraqi planes, shut down its trade mission in Baghdad and sent home Iraqi airline personnel and the staff of the Iraqi trade mission in Damascus. Diplomats in Syria reported the two Arab neighbors were on the verge of breaking relations.

There have also been unconfirmed reports of troop build-ups on both sides of the Syrian-Iraqi border.

Fuel Charge To Be Less

RALEIGH (AP)—The average customer of Carolina Power & Light Co. will pay about 15 cents less in fuel adjustment charges next month, the utility announced Tuesday.

CP&L said the fuel adjustment charge in North Carolina in June will be .616 cents per kilowatt-hour, which equals $6.16 per thousand kilowatt-hours used, compared to a May charge of .631 cents per kilowatt-hour.

The utility's average residential customer uses 905 kilowatt-hours per month.

The fuel adjustment charge will be slightly lower in South Carolina than in North Carolina.

Power companies are permitted under the clause to pass increased fuel costs directly to their customers without a rate hearing.

The June fuel adjustment clause is calculated on the basis of the cost of fuel burned in April. CP&L said in a statement that the June charge would be lower because the cost of coal burned in that period was down.

Officer Fined For Dogfight

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—Suspended Graham police officer William A. Robertson Jr. was fined $100 and court costs after he was found guilty in Wilson County District Court of engaging in an illegal dogfight in March.

Twenty-four other defendants charged with the same offense pleaded guilty, Judge Ben Neville gave them suspended six-months jail terms in addition to the fines.

Robertson was suspended without pay as a policeman after his arrest in the Wilson County incident.

Rose Wins State Opener Over Hoggard

WOMEN'S INVITATIONAL WINNERS—Greenville Golf and Country Club pro Gordon Fulp offers congratulations to Mrs. Harriette White following her victory yesterday in the Greenville Women's Invitational.

Golf Tournament. Mrs. White had a low gross score of 78 to capture first place. At left is Mrs. Marlam Luper, low net winner with a handicap score of 70. (Reflector Photo)

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School took advantage of Hoggard mistakes and overcame an early Viking lead to take a 5-2 victory last night in the first round of the State 4-A Playoffs.

The victory sent the Rampants into the second round. Rose will play host to Richmond County in the next game, tentatively set for Friday at a time and site to be decided. Richmond County gained a 3-2 victory over Jacksonville in eight innings last night.

Rose got shaky pitching most of the night from starter Wesley Deal and reliever and eventual winner Mike Belton. Deal lasted only a third of an inning, giving up an opening triple and two runs before being lifted after two walks. Belton had his control problems, too, walking nine in the six and two-thirds frames he pitched. But after Rose staked him to a 3-2 lead in the top of the sixth, he hurled two strong closing innings, striking out three straight in the sixth and two of four he faced in the final frame.

The two pitchers gave up only four hits around all the walks. But the combination kept Rose in hot water defensively most of the night.

Rose batters slapped Hoggard pitcher John Isley for nine hits, but it was the errors behind Isley that really paid off for Rose as none of their five runs were earned.

Isley walked just one man and struck out five in going the distance.

Hoggard pushed into the lead in the bottom of the first after setting Rose down in order. Jim Rouse, who reportedly closed out the regular season with a .600-plus batting average, showed why, blasting a triple up the power alley in left center.

John Shaw walked and Isley singled to right, scoring Rouse, and moving Shaw to third. He scored from there on Mark Daughtry's sacrifice fly to center.

That, however, was all the Vikings were to get.

Not that they didn't threaten. Three straight walks in the second loaded the bases with two away—and one of those outs came after Mike Hobbs singled and then was cut down trying to steal. In the third, two walks put men on second and third after a sacrifice, but Rose shut the door despite another walk that loaded the bases.

Daughtry singled and Richard King walked in the fourth to put men in scoring position, and in the fifth, Tex Ritter walked and stole second. But he was the last man to reach second for the Vikings.

Rose, meanwhile, got off a good threat that came to naught in the second. Macon Moye led off with an infield single and Mike Brewington beat out a bunt. They were wild pitched up and Keith Jones walked to load the bases with none out. But a strikeout and a double play got Hoggard out of that jam.

Rose tied it up in the third. Griff Garner reached on a fielder's choice and Kelly Heath was safe on an error. Moye then doubled to right, driving in both runners to tie the game at 2-2.

Rose again threatened in the fifth. Garner singled and moved up on a passed ball. Heath beat out an infield hit, but the rally ended there.

Finally, in the sixth, the Rampants got the go-ahead run. Jones reached on a fielder's choice and Ron Hunt walked. With two outs, Mike Belton grounded to first, but the ball was thrown away, allowing Jones to score from second for a 3-2 lead.

The Rampants added two insurance runs in the seventh. Heath reached on an error and Moye was safe on an infield hit. Jones then singled to right, driving in Heath. The ball got past the fielder, too, and Moye came on in to score the second insurance run.

The game, along with seven others across the state, served to cut the 4-A field from 16 to eight teams. Friday's quarter-final games will further trim it to just four.

Two High In Meet

Two Greenville men placed in the 15-Kilometer Championship in Alexandria, Va. recently, when their club, the N.C. Track Club won the event.

Eddie Hereford of Greenville, an ECU graduate who teaches science in Kinston, placed 10th and Eddie Rigby, an ECU student, placed 17th. Over 180 runners from 11 states and the District of Columbia participated.

15 kilometers are 9.3 miles. Hereford's time was 48 minutes, four seconds; Rigby's, 50 minutes, 18 seconds.

Both men will take part in the National One-Hour Run to be held in Raleigh May 31.

Warriors Take Second Contest

By ERIC PREWITT

AP Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —

The Golden State Warriors did it again the hard way.

"I'd hate to go through a full season of games like this," Coach Al Attles said Tuesday night after his team survived the frantic final seconds of a 92-91 victory over Washington and took a 2-0 lead in the National Basketball Association championship series.

The Warriors, who won the series opener after trailing once by 16 points, came from 13 points behind in game No. 2.

"We try to lull them to sleep," Attles joked, trying to laugh off the tension of a fourth quarter in which his team blew an eight-point lead and finally won on Rick Barry's two free throws with 23 seconds remaining.

Golden State's latest improbable victory came in the Cow Palace, an arena the team hasn't used since 1971. Game No. 4 is scheduled on the same court Friday night.

"I never felt we were in the clear. They're too good a team," said the Bullets' Mike Riordan who gave Washington a 91-90 lead with a three-point play 1:01 from the end, then fouled Barry.

The Bullets, who went into this best-of-seven series as heavy favorites, called a time out after Barry's free throws and Coach K.C. Jones planned a play to get the ball to Phil Chenier, who had 30 points already.

"We played great defense in those 23 seconds. We didn't let them do what they wanted to do," said Barry, who finished the game with 36 points.

Chenier, hemmed-in by Keith Wilkes and Charles Johnson, passed off to Riordan, who tried a 15-foot shot from the right side over Barry with about five seconds to go.

"I just blew the shot, that's all," said Riordan.

Elvin Hayes took the rebound after Riordan's missed shot and hurried up another shot which fell short.

The Warriors' George Johnson grabbed Hayes' missed shot just before the final buzzer sounded.

Then the 13,225 Warriors' fans who filled the Cow Palace sent up the loudest noise heard in the cavernous building since Republicans at the 1964 GOP Convention cheered Barry Goldwater into the path of a Democratic landslide.

TOO TAXING

SANTOS, Brazil (UPI) — Pele, famed Brazilian soccer star, turned down a three-year contract for $6 million to play with the New York Cosmos because income taxes would take all but a sum estimated between $500,000 and $1.2 million. Pele, 34, already is wealthy after 17 years of high pay in soccer and numerous business interests.

Bear Grass In WinOverManteo

MANTEO — Bear Grass High School got a one-hit effort out of Mark Gardner and gained a 2-1 victory over Manteo in the first round of the State 1-A Playoffs last night.

The Bears now will travel to Jamesville on Friday night to meet their Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference rivals in the second round of competition. Jamesville downed Chowan, 7-2, last night.

Gardner struck out eight and walked four in going the route. He also hit one batter.

But except for the fourth inning, when Manteo scored its lone run, the Warriors failed to put a man as far as second base.

Bear Grass pushed in a run in the second inning to take the lead. Danny Peaks singled and was sacrificed up. Junie Wynne then singled to drive in Peaks for a 1-0 lead.

Manteo tied it up in the fourth inning. O'wne reached via a walk and moved up on an out. He stole third and scampered home on an error.

Bear Grass pushed back into the lead in the fifth inning, this time for good. Terry Wombleton walked and stole both second and third. An attempted suicide squeeze bunt was missed, but Wombleton slid under the throw to safely steal home.

The Bears then held to their 2-1 lead the rest of the way to gain the second round.

Tigerettes In 1st Round Win

WILSON—Williamston's girls softball team exploded for ten runs in the fourth inning Tuesday to insure a rout of Louisburg in the first round of the state playoffs as the Lady Tigers took a 23-6 victory.

Williamston scored in every inning and batted out 21 hits. Cissy Taylor and Cynthia Tyre led the way with four hits each. Barnhill had three and Valinda Spruill, Lisa Roberts and Cindy Cullipher had two each.

Williamston got the lead with three tallies in the first. Spruill led off with a walk and Debra Rogerson reached on an error. Barnhill sacrificed Spruill across and Rogerson scored on Tyre's triple. Taylor singled in Tyre.

Louisburg cut the lead to one in the second. White reached on an error and scored on Harrison's hit. Harrison scored on a single by May.

Hopkins was safe on a fielder's choice in the bottom of the second and a homer by Spruill put the Lady Tigers out by 5-2.

Four singles in the third got another run for Louisburg but Williamston got two more to ice the win. Barnhill singled and Bedra Bell got a hit. Taylor singled in Barnhill and an error scored Bell.

Williamston added ten in the fourth, three in the fifth and three in the sixth. Louisburg got two in the fifth and one in the seventh. The Lady Tigers will play Roxboro, Friday.

Jamesville Downs Chowan

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville High School, champion of the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference, rolled to a 7-2 victory over Chowan last night, advancing in the State 1-A Playoffs.

The victory moved the Bullets into the second round of competition against conference rival Bear Grass. The B-H-M league had two entries this year into the State Playoffs. Jamesville will host the Bears, a 2-1 winner over Manteo, on Friday.

Jamesville jumped into the lead in the first inning, scoring a run. Eric Davis walked and scored when Jerry Ange tripled.

In the second, the Bullets shot down any hopes Chowan might have had, scoring their other six runs to take a 7-0 lead. Robbie Hardison reached on an error and Jeffrey Holliday singled. Ronnie Padgett got a hit to score Hardison. Larry Pierce singled in Holliday, with Byron Davis running for Pierce. Eric Davis walked and Ange singled in both Padgett and Byron Davis. An attempted pickoff was errored, letting Eric Davis score. Billy Brown then reached on an error, scoring Ange with the seventh Bullet run.

Chowan got both of its runs in the fourth inning. Layton reached on an error and Leary singled. Mansfield got a hit, and an error on the relay let both Layton and Leary score.

Exchange Rips Moose By 10-1

The Exchange handed the Moose their first defeat of the year yesterday, taking a 10-1 victory in the Tar Heel Little League.

The defeat left the two teams tied for first place in the league with 4-1 records.

The Exchange pushed in their first run in the opening inning. Billy Kittrell walked and Gordon Douglas singled. John Williams singled to drive him in.

Two more runs came over in the third. Gordon Douglas doubled and scored on John Williams' two-bagger. Williams was thrown out, however, trying to stretch it into a triple. Billy Bost singled and moved up on a passed ball. He scored on Chip Cayton's single.

The Moose got their only run in the fifth. Gregg Novak doubled and took third on a passed ball. He scored on an error.

The Exchange came up with eight runs in the sixth to put the game away. Bost reached on an error and moved up on a passed ball, scoring when Frank Norris reached on an error. Jimmie Jones singled in Norris and Kittrell walked. Mark Douglas hit into a fielder's choice that got Jones at third. Gordon Douglas singled in Kittrell and John Williams got a hit to score both of the Douglasses. Steve Irwin reached on an error and both runners scored on Bost's double.

Williams, in getting the victory, gave up only two hits. He struck out eight and walked one.

Optimists Top Coke By 8-7

The Optimists nipped Coca-Cola, 8-7, yesterday in the North State Little League.

The victory boosted the Optimists to a 2-3 record, while Coke is now 1-4 on the year.

Coke grabbed the early lead, scoring three runs in the first inning. Jeff Camp reached on an error and moved up on a wild pitch. Barry Tyson reached on an error, and Ricky Hardee walked, loading the bases. Jonathan McGee reached on an error, scoring Camp and Tyson, and another error on the play let Hardee score.

The Optimists came back with two in the second. Jeff Porter reached on an error and Jon Hause was safe on another. Paul MacMillian reached on a fielder's choice, as did Michael Moon, scoring Porter. Hause then stole home.

Coke came up with another run in the third. Camp singled and moved up on an error. He took third on an out and after Chuck Allen walked, Hardee's single scored Camp.

The Optimists also got one in the third. Andy Holloman reached on a fielder's choice and Kenny Kirkland was safe on an error. Both advanced on a passed ball and Tony Heath's single scored Holloman.

The Optimists drew even with one in the fourth. MacMillian reached on an error and scored on Rudy Stalls' double, making it 4-4.

Coke pushed back out with three sixth inning runs. McGee led off with a homer. Todd Lovette reached on a fielder's choice and moved up on a wild pitch. Billy Brannigan reached on an error and Camp doubled in both runners.

But the Optimists rallied for four in their half of the frame to win it. Porter reached on an error and scored when Hause was safe on an error. Macmillian singled and both moved up on an error. Moon doubled in Hause and Stalls reached on interference, loading the bases. Holloman walked to force in MacMillian and a wild pitch scored Moon with the game ending run.

Lee Not Afraid Of Fenway's Big Green Monster; Fires Two-Hitter

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Who's afraid of the big, bad Green Monster? Not Bill Lee.

The renowned left field wall at Fenway Park usually strikes fear into the hearts of left-handed pitchers, but holds no terrors for the Boston south-paw.

The nonchalant left-hander had a good day Tuesday night — a two-hit beauty that led the Red Sox to a 7-0 victory over the Oakland A's. None of Oakland's formidable right-handed hitters reached the short wall — in fact none even came close.

Lee retired the first 13 batters before Sal Bando grounded a 2-1 pitch just inside third base for a double. Lee then set down 11 batters in a row before Angel Mangual got a bad-hop single leading off the ninth.

Meanwhile, Oakland's Vida Blue was having his usual problems at the Boston park. The left-handed Blue, a one-time Cy Young winner with already eight victories under his belt this year, lost his fourth game in seven lifetime decisions at Fenway Park.

While Lee was performing his pitching magic, his Boston teammates were making bases-balls disappear over the fence. Jim Rice, Tony Conigliaro and Juan Beniquez belted home runs to lead the Boston attack.

In the night's other American League games, the New York Yankees beat the Kansas City Royals 6-0; the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the Texas Rangers 7-6 in 10 innings and the Minnesota Twins stopped the Detroit Tigers 5-3. The Baltimore-Chicago game was postponed by rain.

Yankees 6, Royals 0

Pat Dobson checked Kansas City on six singles, Roy White collected a triple, double and two singles and Graig Nettles homered and tripled as New York blanked the Royals.

Dobson, 3-5, walked two and struck out two in gaining his first triumph since April 26 and snapping a personal three-game losing streak.

Brewers 7, Rangers 6

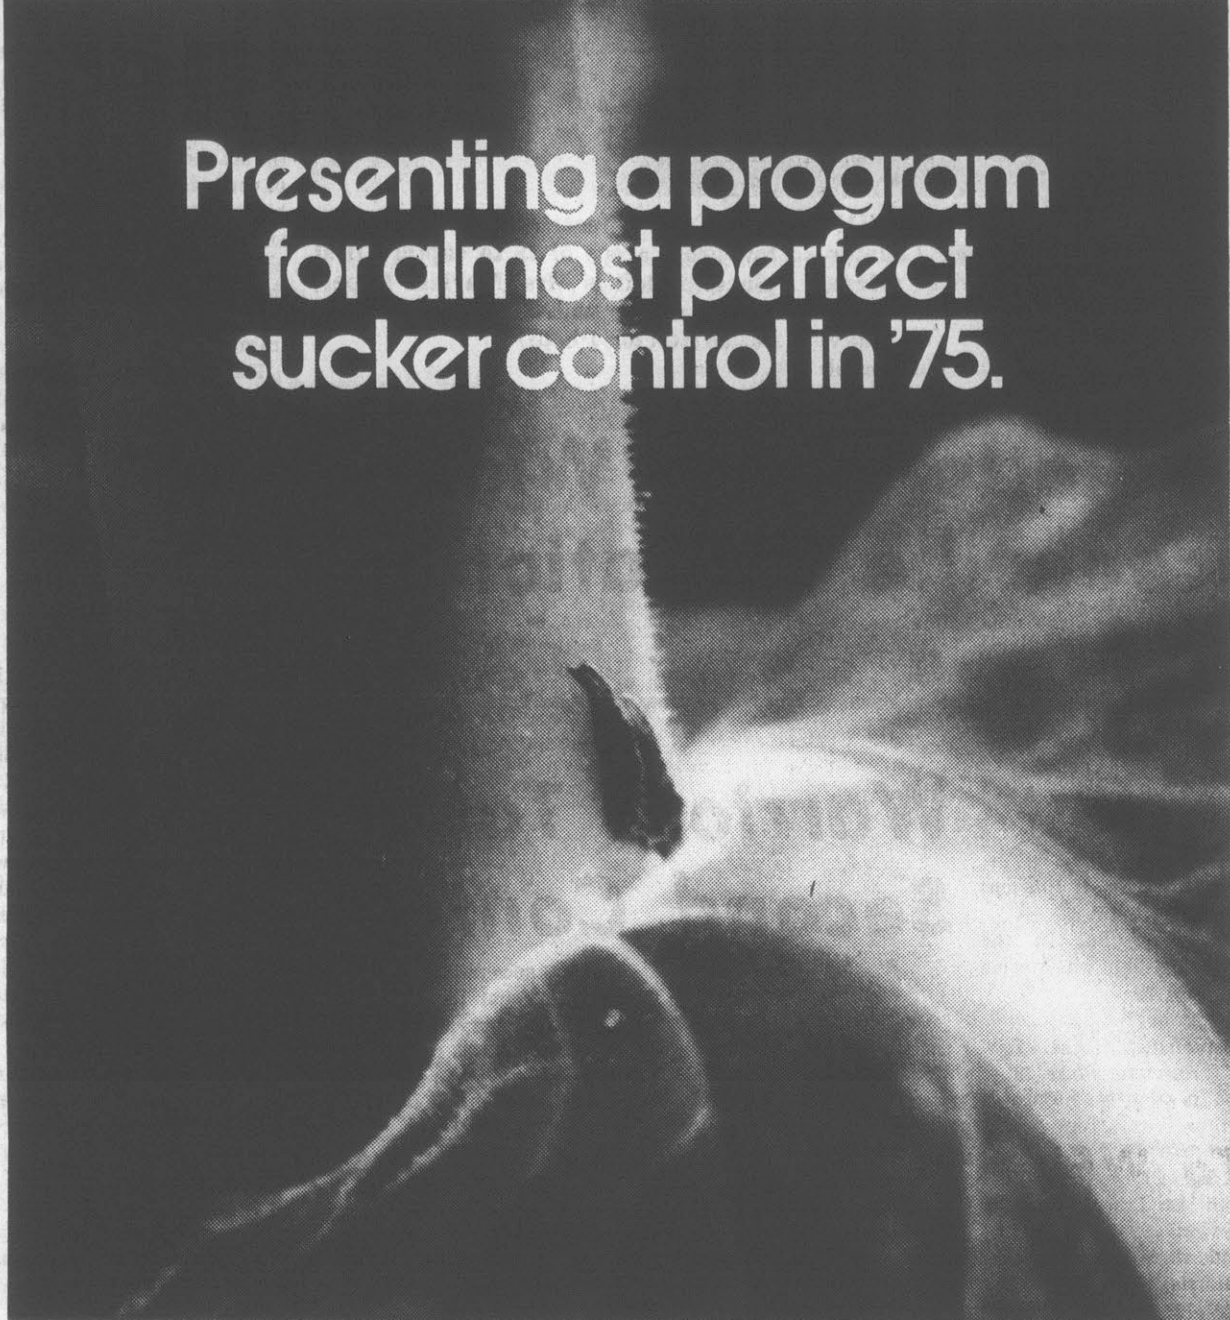

George Scott tripled home the tying run in the bottom of the 10th inning and scored on Mike Hegan's grounder as Milwaukee rallied to defeat Texas. Willie Davis' fourth home run of the season leading off the top of 10th had given the Rangers a 6-5 lead, but Bobby Mitchell opened the Brewers' half with a single off reliever Jackie Brown and scored on Scott's triple as center fielder Davis crashed into the fence trying to catch the drive.

Tigers 5, Twins 3

Rookie Dan Meyer's two-run triple and a two-run double by Bill Freehan sparked a five-run Detroit sixth inning, leading the Tigers and Mickey Lolich over Minnesota.

Presenting a program for almost perfect sucker control in '75.

Off-Shoot-T 85 introduces an extraordinary new program for sucker control that is not just improved, but almost perfect. It comes after years of research and testing—and solid data that it works.

Last year, one application of Off-Shoot-T 85 gave you excellent sucker control... excellent leaf quality... and excellent yield. But this special program produces results beyond that, even with an uneven crop.

Here's how it works. Spray Off-Shoot-T 85 in the early button stage. Then apply a second application around 5 to 7 days later. This will help control the suckers that were undeveloped or shielded by the cluster of top leaves at the time of the earlier spraying. What's more, this will also help control any new sucker growth. Top either before or after the second application, and follow in about 10 days with maleic hydrazide.

Result: almost perfect sucker control—and at a cost that's usually less than one application of Off-Shoot-T 85, plus hand "cleanup," plus maleic hydrazide.

Get all the details, as well as an informative new booklet about sucker control, at your local Off-Shoot-T 85 dealer. Look for the special window seal identifying him (shown to the right)—and check the new information center inside. See him today—and order Off-Shoot-T 85.

It's your way to almost perfect sucker control this year.

Grand Slam Helps Braves Win Mexico City Says It Can Transfer Olympics

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN.
AP Sports Writer

"I'm not a home run hitter," says Atlanta's Vic Correll, who'll have a hard time making National League pitchers believe it.

The 5-foot-10, 180-pound catcher walloped his eighth home run of the season as the Braves defeated the Montreal Expos 9-4 Tuesday night. It was no ordinary home run. For one thing, it was a grand slam. For another, it tied him with teammate Dusty Baker, Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski, Houston's Bob Watson and San Diego's Dave Winfield for the league home run lead.

Elsewhere, the Chicago Cubs edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1, the New York Mets whipped the Cincinnati Reds 6-2, the Houston Astros downed the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2, the San Francisco Giants trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 12-4 and the San Diego Padres beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2.

In addition to his grand slam, which broke open a tight 5-4 game in the eighth inning, Correll drove in a fifth run with a third-inning single while Baker smashed a three-run homer, his eighth. Gary Carter hit a two-run shot for Montreal.

Cubs 2, Dodgers 1

Bill Bonham pitched a two-hitter and the Cubs scored twice off Don Sutton in the first inning on a run-scoring double by Bill Madlock and an RBI grounder by Adrian Garrett. One of the hits off Bonham was Lee Lacy's second home run of the season in the fourth inning.

Sutton, 7-3, took the loss despite striking out 11 and allowing only five hits.

Mets 6, Reds 2

Joe Torre's two-run homer, his first in a New York uniform, capped a four-run fifth inning and Jerry Koosman combined with Bob Apodaca to clinch a six-hitter. Rusty Staub drilled a two-out two-run double to start the scoring against Don Gullett and Torre followed with his home run.

Giants 12, Pirates 4

Ed Halicki, making his first start since being recalled from the minors, pitched six strong innings and the Giants backed him with a 16-hit attack, including five runs in the third inning. Halicki struck out eight while Von Joshua and Willie Montanez homered.

Padres 5, Cardinals 2

Dave Winfield drove in three runs with a double and homer and Alan Foster, facing his former Cardinal teammates for the first time, settled down after falling behind 2-0 in the first inning.

The Cards, who had been shut out on a total of three hits in their last two games, scored twice on four hits in the opening inning before Foster took command.

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Will the 1976 Olympic Games be moved from Montreal to Mexico City?

"We could take them over," said Dr. Eduardo Hay, the man who ran the Olympics in Mexico in 1968. "But personally I don't think it will be necessary."

"I was in Montreal a few weeks ago and I think the Canadians, despite all their difficulties, will be ready in time."

A delegation from Montreal was due to appear before the International Olympic Committee today to report on the situation in the troubled Canadian city where construction of the stadium and Olympic village has been held up by strikes.

As the 77-strong IOC assembled for a critical week of talks, Mayor Octavio Centies of Mexico City said his city could take over the Games if Montreal has to withdraw.

Lord Killanin, the IOC president, made it clear at the opening ceremony of the session that if the Games cannot go on in Montreal they will be staged somewhere.

"The 1976 Olympics cannot be postponed," Killanin said. "The IOC is firm that athletes must have Olympic opportunities in 1976."

Asked afterwards if that meant the games might be moved elsewhere, Killanin smiled and said: "It means they will be held."

Hay, who was chairman of the organizing committee in Mexico in 1968, is now a member of the IOC. In an interview, he said Mexico City would be pleased if asked to take over the Games at short notice.

"All the facilities are there," he said. "Moreover, housing the athletes would not be a big problem. The normal housing program in Mexico City is very heavy. We can at any time assign new houses temporarily to athletes. We are doing that this year for the Pan American Games, for which there will be 3,000 competitors."

The Pan Am games were moved to Mexico City on short notice from Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Ambitious Television Slate For ACC Cagers

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer

MYRTLE BEACH, S. C. (AP) — Among items Atlantic Coast Conference officials considered today at the concluding session of their spring meeting was a tentative 19-game schedule of basketball telecasts that is the most ambitious undertaken by producer Castleman DeT. Chesley.

The schedule includes a package of nine Saturday afternoon games spread over eight weekends, one of them to be televised nationally by more than 100 stations.

In addition, the Sunday, Jan. 18, North Carolina State game at North Carolina, set for a 12:30 p.m. start on pro football's Super Sunday, will be carried nationally.

Four Wednesday games have been added to go along with a Monday, Dec. 8, Kentucky-North Carolina game at Charlotte, N. C., and the last two nights of the championship tournament from Landover, Md., March 5-6.

Chesley's plans for his 19th season as producer of the telecasts have been complicated by the recent announcement that the National Broadcasting Company has completed a long-term agreement with the TVS television network to add 90 regular season college basketball games, starting next Jan. 3 and running through March.

NBC will present a national game and TVS will air regional games following the national telecast.

Chesley has conferred twice with NBC officials recently in an effort to determine if the NBC schedule will conflict with the ACC program. He plans another meeting soon.

The ACC schedule will be acted on by the conference radio and television committee, which includes all athletic directors, at a meeting next month.

Nineteen stations in five states and the District of Columbia will carry the ACC games. Five are in both North Carolina and Virginia; four in South Carolina; two each in Maryland and West Virginia; and one in Washington.

The tentative schedule:

Dec. 8—Kentucky-North Carolina at Charlotte.

Jan. 7—North Carolina at Clemson; 10—North Carolina at Virginia; 14—Maryland at N. C. State; 17—North Carolina at Duke; 18—N. C. State at North Carolina, nationally; 24—Maryland at North Carolina; 28—N. C. State at Maryland; 31—N. C. State at Virginia.

Feb. 7—Duke at Maryland; 11—North Carolina at Maryland; 14—Maryland at Clemson, 1 p.m. nationally, and Wake Forest at N. C. State, regionally, 3 p.m.; 21—N. C. State at Clemson, or Virginia at North Carolina; 24—North Carolina at N. C. State; 28—Duke at North Carolina, or N. C. State at Wake Forest.

March 5-6, last two nights of the ACC tournament at Landover, Md.

The final two regular season Saturday afternoon telecasts list two games on the tentative schedule. The ones most vital to the standings will be presented.

Most of Tuesday was given over to recreation by the ACC party after a morning catchup meeting of athletic directors.

Astros 4, Phillies 2

Cesar Cedeño walked leading off the eighth inning and came all the way home with the tie-breaking run on Bob Watson's long single to right-center off Phil's relief ace Tug McGraw. The Astros added an insurance run on Doug Rader's RBI single.

The Phillies tied the score in the top of the inning on Dave Cash's infield single with the bases loaded but Dick Allen was tagged out to cut the rally short when he overslid second base.

B-W Captures First Victory

Burroughs-Wellcome captured its first victory of the year last night in the Ladies Softball League, while Little Mint and Piggly-Wiggly also picked up victories.

In the opening game, Little Mint rolled to an 18-9 victory over Daniel Construction. Little Mint pushed over five runs in the first inning, but Daniel came back with five, including a homer by K. Daniel to tie it up. But eight more by Little Mint in the bottom of the second, put it out of reach. C. Nichols homered during the frame.

Little Mint added two in the third and three in the fifth. Daniel got two in the third and one each in the fifth and sixth, the last run a homer by V. Daniel.

The second game saw Piggly-Wiggly take a 21-7 win over Wachovia Bank. P-W pushed over three in the first inning with V. Davenport homering. They added nine in the second as Davenport again homered. Two crossed in the third and two more in the fourth. They closed out with five in the fifth.

Wachovia got five in the fifth, with homers by B. Brown and D. Bryant, and the Bankers added three in the sixth.

The final game saw Burroughs-Wellcome defeat the Daily Reflector, 19-8. B-W got three in the first and one in the second. They added three more in the third with A. Hoyle homering. One came over in the fifth, and they closed out with 11 in the sixth inning.

The Reflector got one in the first, one in the third, one in the fourth and another in the fifth. They came up with four in the sixth.

Joe Is Leaning To WFL

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Free-agent quarterback Joe Namath says he is leaning toward the World Football League's $4 million offer, which he describes as more than fair.

But leaning does not mean falling, and Namath said Tuesday he still doesn't know which way he'll go.

His other options are retirement from the game or acceptance of the New York Jets' reported million-dollar offer to re-enlist with the National Football League team.

Namath, who played out his option with the Jets last season, took time out from a Tuesday round of golf to comment:

"I want to play football, and I'll play with Chicago if things work out. The people in the WFL have about got me convinced it's going to work."

"I hope the league does survive, because it creates more jobs and entertainment. There are a lot of fine players who don't have the opportunity to play now."

If he jumps to the yearling WFL, Namath would be signed by the Chicago Winds.

Winds owner Eugene Pullano held his first toe-to-toe meeting with Namath Monday night in what WFL President Chris Hemminger described as a big step that would tell the WFL whether it had landed the talented performer.

Namath said he met with Pullano "and we talked a bit. We are in negotiations over the contract. It's an interesting contract. I'm pleased that they're interested, and I hope it works out."

"Money at this stage is not the main consideration."

Hemminger said Monday in Birmingham that the 40-page contract was virtually complete, but Namath wanted some additional things that represented both substantial money and substantial performance. He did not elaborate.

"It's possible to stay in football after I quit playing," Namath said, adding that wherever he goes, without further injuries to his fragile knees, he could play "at least three more years in good style."

The WFL offer calls for three playing years and $100,000 a year for 20 years thereafter.

Hemminger said Monday that the WFL would know Tuesday if Namath was in the fold, but it would be a while before the decision would be made public. That, he said, would be up to Namath.

One Leader Is Knocked Off

Immanuel lost its share of the National division lead last night falling to Grace, 7-1 but Black Jack won to remain tied with Grace for first place.

In the National game, Mt. Pleasant scored a run in the fifth to beat First Free Will, 10-9.

Black Jack stormed past Arlington Street in the second game picking up six in the first, one in the second, four in the third and eight in the fifth as Arlington could only score two in the fourth and two in the fifth.

Grace won the final game in the third rallying for three runs. Immanuel got its only run in the second.

In the American League, Presbyterian evened its record at 3-3 with a 6-5 win over Trinity.

They battled in the second game with all Presbyterians' runs coming in the second. Trinity pecked away with one in the first, one in the third, one in the fifth and two in the seventh but could not pull it out.

In the first game in that loop, Memorial beat Temple on a four run rally in the second. Memorial had to hold off a last inning rally to get the win.

St. James closed out the night with a 13-10 victory over St. Gabriel for its second win of the year. St. James got four in the first, one in the second and two in the third. St. Gabriel got four in the fourth to cut the lead by three but St. James got three back in the fifth. St. Gabriel cut the lead to 13-9 in the sixth but got only one more in the seventh.

Mrs. Graham Grabbed Sign

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Mrs. Billy Graham, 54-year-old wife of the evangelist, grabbed a sign from a demonstrator in Charlotte's Freedom Park Tuesday, while President Ford was speaking.

Mrs. Graham, whose husband also figured in ceremonies commemorating the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, planted her shoes on the sign and refused to give it back.

She told a newsman later, "I was simply acting instinctively. The man had every right to his opinion, but when the President of the United States is speaking, it is definitely not the place to express his opinion."

R.D. Taylor In Who's Who

BERRYVILLE, Va.—The biographical sketch of the Rev. Roy D. Taylor of Berryville appears in the first edition of "Who's Who in Virginia—1974."

Formerly of Greenville, N.C., the Rev. Taylor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Taylor of Greenville.

He received his A.B. from the University of North Carolina, B.D. from Union Theological Seminary and M.A. from the Presbyterian School of Christian Education.

The Rev. Taylor is married to the former Carol Posey and they have three daughters.

Newsman later identified the demonstrator as Dan Pollock, 28, who said he was a wood carver and a member of the antiwar Red Hornets Mayday Tribe in Charlotte.

His sign said "Don't Tread on Me" on one side, and "Eat the Rich" on the other.

Police led the demonstrator away before he learned the identity of the woman who seized his sign.

He issued a statement later, saying in part: "This is the first time in my life I have ever demonstrated at a political meeting. I do not believe that I broke any laws today. I attempted to demonstrate legally and peacefully. I think I was unlawfully removed and arrested by the Charlotte Police Department."

Police said he was not arrested but acknowledged that his freedom of movement was temporarily curtailed.

After Mrs. Graham grabbed the sign, the demonstrator squatted down beside her and asked if he could have his sign back, she said. "He looked rather helpless and harmless. I just patted him on the shoulder and shook my head," Mrs. Graham said.

Several members of the Mayday Tribe, not including Pollock, recently lost a civil suit in U. S. District Court in Charlotte. They had charged they were illegally excluded from a 1971 Billy Graham Day rally at which former President Nixon, longtime friend of the Charlotte-born evangelist, spoke.

Florida Adopts New Approach To Malpractice

By G. MICHAEL HARMON
Associated Press Writer
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida doctors looked forward today to guaranteed insurance coverage and a reduction in patient lawsuits because of a medical malpractice reform act.

Gov. Reubin Askew, surrounded by smiling doctors and lawmakers, signed the measure into law Tuesday with the hope that it will "help us avert a crisis in the delivery of vital health care services in Florida."

Sponsors said the new Florida law represents the first comprehensive attack on the malpractice dilemma in the nation.

In California, where doctor protests over soaring malpractice rates have halted nonessential surgery in large portions of the state, the legislature is in special session. But it may be three months before bills attempting long-range solutions reach the governor's desk.

The New York legislature passed a bill this week designed to avert the collapse of medical malpractice insurance in the state by placing restrictions on patients' rights and setting up an insurance pool. The Tennessee legislature passed a similar bill this week.

And in Maryland, the state insurance commissioner Tuesday approved a 300 per cent boost in physicians' insurance rates to prevent cancellation of malpractice insurance until a state-created, doctor-run insurance company begins operation at the end of July.

But Rep. John Forbes, a chief architect of the Florida act, claims "no other state has taken such a far-reaching approach to this problem."

The two-pronged Florida law imposes a four-year statute of limitations on the filing of lawsuits and requires patients to take their claims to a mediation panel as a prerequisite to going into court. There formerly was no time limit for filing suits in Florida.

"We made a social decision," said Forbes. "We decided that the claims of some few people were going to have to be sacrificed to make the cost of insurance reasonable to the majority of people."

The act also gives the Board of Medical Examiners and hospitals the authority for the first time to revoke the licenses and dismiss doctors found guilty of malpractice.

The act also guarantees coverage for doctors and hospitals by requiring insurance companies in Florida to write policies and share in the risk by forming a premium pool to pay damages below $100,000.

Fully Aware It's A Long Sentence

ANDERSON, S.C. (AP)—Circuit Court Judge E. Harry Agnew may understand the impact of a 25-year jail sentence.

After imposing four 25-year sentences Tuesday in Anderson General Sessions Court, Agnew remarked that 25 years is a long time.

"I know it is, because I've been married 25 years today," he said.

PAROLE DATE
SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—Sirhan B. Sirhan, originally sentenced to death in the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, will be paroled on Feb. 23, 1986, after serving 16 years and 9 months in prison, authorities say.

Passenger Jet Of The Future May Resemble A Flying 'X'

By ROBERT STRAND
MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — The next generation of the passenger jet may be a flying X, with a moveable wing that crosses the fuselage at a 45 or 60 degree angle so one tip points forward and the other backward.

You think such a weird craft would be off balance and spin into earth with a couple of hundred passengers?

Not so, despite the tradition of the straight wing design of a World War I Spad, or the outstretched wing image of a bird.

It turns out that at speeds of 500 to 900 miles an hour an X design is far and away the most efficient.

At NASA's Ames Research Center, the X design is being pushed by Robert T. Jones, an imaginative theoretician credited with development of the swept-back wings of conventional jets.

A German dreamed up the oblique-wing idea in 1943, and Jones had the same vision two years later at Langley Field. But the notion seemed ridiculous, and Jones shoved his drawing back in the desk drawer.

The problem was not flight instability; rather, the fact that if both wings point forward, they develop so much lift at high speed that they break off.

A few years ago Jones had a new thought. Perhaps this would not necessarily happen with an X design. Jones did some equations but concluded the problem remained the same, until a friend pointed out that Jones had made a simple mistake in one of the equations.

The oblique wing, Jones explained, is more efficient because it develops less drag at the wing tips and the point where the wing crosses the fuselage.

In the Ames wind tunnel a model X jetliner developed a record high ratio of lift to drag, and a remote control model has flown at 100 miles an hour. The design is under study by the Boeing Commercial Airplane Co. as well as by NASA.

A flying X would take off in a conventional shape, with the wing at 90 degrees to the fuselage, which is the most efficient up to 500 miles an hour. Then the wing would pivot to an oblique angle.

Turning the wing in mid-flight, Jones said, takes little power. It is much simpler than retracting landing gear. The problem for engineers would be bringing fuel and electrical connections through the pivot, but Jones said this would not be difficult.

The X is a transonic plane, much faster than conventional jet transports but not as fast as the supersonic Concorde or the Soviet Tupolev 144, which operate around Mach 2.

But the X seems to have advantages over these SSTs. It can fly efficiently at lower altitudes, eliminating danger potentially posed by SSTs to the earth's ozone region.

Over land an X can cruise below the high altitude "sonic boom" speed limit of 750 m.p.h., a limit that makes the SST less practical for transcontinental flight. Over water the X could accelerate to 900 m.p.h., less than an SST but still a very high speed.

From New York to Honolulu, an X would make the trip an hour faster than the SST, which would be slowed by the speed limit over land and the need to make a refueling stop. From the East to West Coast, the X would cut an hour or two off the current time of conventional jets.

Another advantage would be fuel economy, an important factor because commercial aircraft consume 4 per cent of the nation's petroleum. At top speed and fully loaded, an X would get 30 or 40 miles to the gallon per passenger, twice the mileage of an SST.

"Eventually, I think the oblique wing will replace the swept-back wing designs of our subsonic jets," Jones said. "It will not replace the straight wing design of planes with lower speeds."

Jones, 65, became interested in aviation as a high school student carrying gas for a Waldo Pepper-type flying circus. After one year of college, Jones "talked an aircraft company into thinking I was an aeronautical engineer," and designed a 200 m.p.h. plane to compete in the 1930 National Air Races.

He learned his aerodynamics in night school and on the job, mostly with the government. Now a senior NASA staff scientist, he contributed to the theory of slender delta wings and, in 1945, developed the swept-wing concept, an idea so radical two years passed before it was published.

Just as with the swept wing, the X wing is being met with caution. Jones wants NASA to spend $5 million to experiment with his X wing on a Navy F8 research plane.

"I get no argument about the design," he said. "It's just hard to get headquarters' attention."

Quartet Singing On Saturday

FARMVILLE — The Temple Quartet of Greenville will be singing Saturday night at the Beacon Free Will Baptist Mission here. The service will begin at 7:30.

Revival services will be held Sunday through June 1 at the church. The evangelist will be the Rev. Bobby Jackson of Greenville.

A graduate of the Free Will Baptist Bible College and Bob Jones University, the Rev. Jackson has been involved in evangelistic work for the past 25 years. He has held revivals throughout the United States and Canada.

The pastor, Rev. Tommy Godley, invites the public to attend. There will be special singing and a nursery provided each evening. The revival services will begin at 7:30 nightly.

Singles Club To Meet Friday

The Greenville Singles Club will conduct a May membership meeting Friday at 8 p.m. at the First Federal Savings and Loan Building, Greenville Boulevard.

The club is planning an afternoon of entertainment at Green Springs Park Sunday from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. Those attending are asked to bring a picnic lunch and their bicycles if they wish.

Bike riding will begin at 2 p.m. and the picnic will be held at 5 p.m.

SWEET SEMINAR

VIENNA (UPI) — The Austrian province of Burgenland is offering a wine-tasting seminar at the Neusiedler lake from Sept. 9 to 13. It says the province has the sweetest grapes in central Europe.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 22, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A helpful person gives cooperation in a.m. Later, some surprise circumstance brings you the chance to show your ingenuity and cleverness where it counts the most.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A partner clarifies his views in a.m. and you can go along with them comfortably. Be more pleasant with mate for future harmony.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get some new system working, and you gain the cooperation of allies, make the future brighter. Seize fine opportunities.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan recreation for later in the day during early a.m. Associates are helpful in creating more benefits in future. Be charming.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Organize basic matters during a.m. A pleasurable evening, without a hitch. Kin are most cooperative, so make the most of this.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) See bigwig early who can give you the advice you need, then improve conditions at home. Handle important correspondence.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Focus on monetary affairs so that you are in a far better position in the future. Good pals can be helpful. Set them early.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make your life more as you desire it to be. A good friend can be of help now. Stop being led around by the nose by a conniver.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Keep some secret and don't blurt it out to the wrong persons. Some thoughtful act for mate can be productive of more support, love.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Look to a good pal if you want to solve that problem faster. Get information at right sources. Plan far into the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be more aboveboard with higher-up for better results now. Handle career matters before dashing out for recreation. Be with trusted friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) New data can assist you in advancing your career, but you need the okay of bigwigs before putting it to use. Help from letters received.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle obligations well, then something interesting occurs in public that gives you a big boost. Make the right new contacts.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she while young will want everyone to like him or her, and will go out of the way to please everyone, but upon reaching the age of reason will decide to put experiences to work and make the life a most productive one. Teach early to work as a form of discipline and to work off excess energy. Sports are good here, religion a must.

Quiz Three In Prison Slaying

RALEIGH (AP)—Authorities were questioning three prison inmates Tuesday in connection with the strangling of a dental assistant at the Triangle Correctional Center.

The State Bureau of Investigation is conducting the probe into the slaying of Jenette Wood Fish, 42. She was found Monday afternoon in her office next to the dental clinic in the minimum security prison facility. An autopsy released Tuesday said she died of strangulation.

SBI Director Charles Dunn said no warrants had been issued in the slaying, but the inmates under questioning had been moved to maximum security cells.

Mrs. Fish had been working in the prison facility for about three weeks. She was apparently alone in her office Monday afternoon when the slaying occurred.

State Medical Examiner R. Page Hudson said there was no evidence that she had been raped.

Prisons Director Ralph Edwards called the incident "regrettable and unfortunate." He said there is "some risk" in transferring prisoners to minimum security centers like Triangle Correctional Center but that prisoners had to be given more responsibility at some point.

Edwards said that with 400 persons in the correctional center, "it is always possible to make a mistake in the classification of an individual."

He said to be eligible for the minimum custody center, a prisoner must have served at least 10 per cent of his sentence and must have received favorable reports from counselors, vocational instructors and other prison employees.

Gov. Martin (1775) Recognized Growing Spirit

By DR. H.G. JONES, Curator
Written for the AP
CHAPEL HILL (AP)—Two hundred years ago May 18 Governor Josiah Martin wrote the Earl of Dartmouth that "the frenzy that has been so long growing among the People of these Colonies seems daily I think to spread wider and wider and is continually breaking forth in new and dangerous outrages that at least remove the prospect of Accommodation further off, if they do not absolutely preclude all hopes of it by the desirable means of peaceful reasoning and practicable Negotiation."

Martin had resolutely resisted negotiations previously, demanding absolute compliance with all British policies. He continued:

"The Inhabitants of this Country on the Sea Coast, are for the most part infected with the ill spirit that prevails in the adjacent Provinces of Virginia and South Carolina, whose extravagancies they are copying by arming men, electing officers and so forth.

In this little Town (New Bern) they are now actually endeavouring to form what they call independent Companies under my nose, and Civil Government becomes more and more prostrate every day."

The governor blamed much of the "infection" upon the arguments of members of Parliament who opposed the Crown's concept of its right to tax the colonies. These arguments, Martin said, were "worked up and altered by Newspaper Compilers and the Tools of Faction, in the way that may best serve their purpose of exciting Sedition in America."

He applauded certain resolutions recently passed by Parliament as being "gracious and indulgent," but he concluded that he could not call for the election of a new assembly to consider them.

Instead, he again proposed the "perseverance of Government in such vigorous Measures as their (the colonists') infatuated conduct has unfortunately rendered necessary...and I am therefore satisfied of the Wisdom of the determination against any Relaxation of them."

While the governor occupied himself in writing long letters, the committees of safety were consolidating their influence as the governmental authority in many areas of the state. Perhaps the most successful of these committees was the one at Wilmington which was composed of men like Cornelius Harnett, John and Samuel Ashe, Thomas and Timothy Boodworth, James Moore, Archibald MacLaine, and Alexander Lillington. Absent members were required to pay a fine.

At its meeting on May 20, 1775, the Wilmington committee voted to invite similar committees from other counties to meet in that town on June 20 "in order to deliberate on several matters of importance that will be laid before them, respecting the general cause of America."

Thus the need for concerted action and the sharing of mutual problems was recognized. Payment was ordered for 200 pounds of gunpowder and for the sending of expresses north and south.

The Pitt County committee advertised in the newspapers for John Tison who previously had been directed to appear before it to answer charges of disloyalty to the American cause. The same committee at its meeting on May 27 raised thirty-three shillings "for the use of the town of Boston," a sign of the increasingly unified consciousness of the colonists.

On May 23 the New Bern committee, led by Abner Nash (characterized by Martin as "a principal promoter of sedition here") called on the governor to protest the dismantling of the cannon on the grounds of the governor's palace.

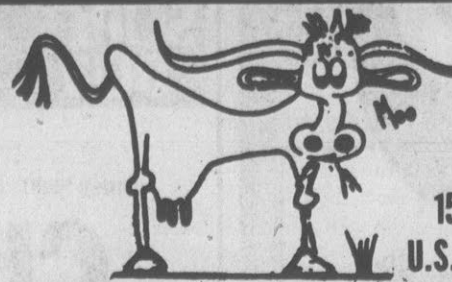

Martin considered the demand for the return of the cannon as "a mere pretext for insulting me," and claimed that he had removed them because the carriages were not sturdy enough to withstand the salutes intended to be fired on the upcoming celebration of King George's birthday. The cannon were indeed returned to their places, but not for long.

Still Tried To Leave The Scene

MEADVILLE, Pa. (AP) — The accident left James Ausmundson's car almost disabled. He still tried to leave the scene the only way he could.

Crawford County Judge P. Richard Thomas, who was gardening in his yard at the time, saw Ausmundson driving backwards away from the smashup and chased the 23-year-old Linesville resident in his own car.

Ausmundson was charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Kenya Appears Early Loser In Fighting Pollution

By ALFREDO ARAUJO
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Kenya is the home of the United Nations Environment Program headquarters but appears to have already lost the battle of pollution in her own backyard.

The encroachment of modern development, which has brought pollution in its wake, has led to Lake Nakuru, one of the country's most famous lakes, being all but abandoned by its bird life.

For years the lake, in the farming town of Nakuru 90 miles northwest of here from which it takes its name, has been the home of millions of birds.

The flamingos and more than 400 other species of birds that lived on the lake led to Lake Nakuru National Park being described as "the world's greatest ornithological spectacle."

But today the sight of myriad pink birds dabbling in the water is a thing of the past.

The birds have flown to new pastures. Most have made their new home at Lake Magadi, 120 miles south of Lake Nakuru, which has a natural deposit of soda.

Pollution of Lake Nakuru has long been regarded as inevitable because the town of Nakuru itself, the third largest in Kenya, is only a short distance from the edge of the lake. Furthermore, Nakuru is a soda lake with no outlet, and is therefore very sensitive to pollution.

One of the greatest ecological dangers to the lake has been the town's rubbish dump which, through a serious lapse on the part of the town's planners, for many years was sited a mere 300 yards from the water's edge. Until the middle of last year the town's sewage works poured a million gallons a day of effluent into the lake.

Paul Chabeda, a Kenya biochemist who has worked on Lake Nakuru, says that heavy metals (such as lead, zinc, mercury, manganese and chromium) and other poisonous substances in the sewage dump near the lake inevitably found their way into the lake.

Chabeda said that solid wastes apart, it is estimated that industrial and municipal liquid wastes are flushed into the environment at the rate of 750,000 gallons per day per 50,000 urbanized population in developing countries.

From Nakuru, Chabeda says, with its population of 60,000, the volume of liquid wastes flushed into the lake stands at over 1.4 million gallons per day.

Chabeda said the concentration of organochlorine pesticides in the lake, likely to increase ten-fold by 1990, may have accounted for a sudden massive fish die-off at Lake Nakuru in March 1971.

On several occasions in the past, dead flamingos and pelicans have been found by the lake; pollution has invariably been blamed.

Wildlife authorities in Kenya in June 1974 launched a desperate campaign to "clean up" the lake and save the birds.

Under the direction of town engineer Joseph Ndegwa, the rubbish dump was re-sited at a safe distance from the lake. Teams of young volunteers from schools in the country's Great Rift Valley, where the lake is situated, joined forces with members of the National Youth Service, a sort of state-run workers' brigade, to clear the old rubbish-dump site.

They buried what could not be removed, and planted grass and trees where for years there had been nothing but heaps of garbage.

A new, enlarged and improved sewage works was also designed for the town.

More important, the Kenya government, with the help of money donated by the World Wildlife Fund, extended the area of the park from 14,000 acres to 51,000 acres.

National Park authorities are hopeful that all is not yet lost.

A senior executive of the National Parks of Kenya, which oversees the Lake Nakuru facility, said it was hoped the birds would one day return to the lake.

John Hopcraft, the British-born director of the Baharini Wildlife Sanctuary on Lake Nakuru and an ardent conservationist who settled in the town in 1911, says: "The newly-acquired ring of land around the lake will act as a buffer zone, protecting the many and diverse habitats around the lake which are responsible for the great variety of bird life."

How Tar Heel Congressmen Are Recorded

By ROLL CALL REPORT WASHINGTON—Here's how ages Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes
May 8 through May 14.

HOUSE
REFUGEES—Passed, 381 for and 31 against, a bill (HR 6755) authorizing $507 million for use by the Administration in resettling Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees. A separately-passed appropriations measure made available only $405 million of the total.
Additional money is likely to be appropriated once it is known how much money will be needed.
Both HR 6755 and the appropriations measure were sent to the Senate.

Supporters said America's war role makes it imperative to extend a compassionate "hand of welcome." Rep. Edward Hutchinson (R-Mich.) said the group of 125,000 refugees "is not very large. . . when we remember that last year under our own immigration laws more than 400,000 people were admitted to the U.S."

Opponents, both conservative and liberal, criticized the Administration's willingness to aid the refugees at the same time federal belt-tightening has forced it to fall short of meeting the needs of recession victims at home. Rep. John Conyers (D-Mich.) said, "Detroit refugees", who by the hundreds of thousands are without work" deserve top aid priority."

Reps. L. H. Fountain (D-2),
David Henderson (D-3), Stephen
Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7),
James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor
(D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), Ike
Andrews (D-4) and W.G. Hefner
(D-8) voted "nay."

FARM VETO—Failed, 245 for and 182 against, to override President Ford's veto of an emergency farm bill (HR 4296) to raise price supports. HR 4296 would have increased for one year federal price support levels for cotton, corn, wheat, soybean and dairy products, thus insulating farmers from financial loss in the event that surplus harvests glut the market and depress prices.

Committee sponsors estimated HR 4296 would have cost the federal government $230 million, to be distributed via the "target price" and "loan rate" mechanisms. Ford's veto was based on Administration estimates that the bill would increase the federal deficit by as much as $1.8 billion. Ford also said existing law permits him to increase farm supports.

Those voting to override said that in addition to protecting farmers' pocketbooks the legislation would increase grain reserves, offset world food shortages and keep down consumer prices by preventing food scarcity. Rep. James Abdnor (R-S.D.) said the mercurial agriculture industry should not have "to bear the full brunt of our national need for fiscal responsibility while we increase record federal deficit spending in nearly every other area."

Opponents said the bill would increase consumer costs and reverse the healthy trend of less government control of farmers.
Rep. John Anderson (R-Ill.) said, ". . . historically every increase in support prices has translated itself into higher prices. . . in the supermarket."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson,
Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose,
Hefner, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

Martin voted "nay."

BUDGET—Adopted, 230 for and 193 against, the conference report on a resolution (H Con Res) setting a recommended level of federal spending for fiscal 1976, which begins July 1.
The resolution, marking Congress's first action under the 1974 budget control law, recommends ceilings of $367 billion for total federal outlays and $68.3 billion for the federal deficit during fiscal 1976.

The conference report figures are lower than the ceilings set by the original House version of H Con Res 218. However, they still exceed Administration budget recommendations of a $355 billion ceiling on outlays and a $60 billion deficit ceiling.

The Senate also adopted the conference report, thus completing the "target" phase of the new congressional budget process. Revisions may occur when Congress implements the "binding" phase later this year.
Supporters praised the move toward improved congressional control of federal spending. Rep.
Charles Whalen (R-Oh.) said the recommended level of deficit spending would alleviate "recession, our most pressing economic problem."

Many opponents were fiscal conservatives who felt the spending and deficit ceilings were too high. Rep. Phil Landram (D-Ga.) said federal spending should "stay within the revenues obtainable."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson,
Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose,
Hefner and Taylor voted "yea."
Martin and Broyhill voted "nay."

SENATE
CONSUMER AGENCY—Voted, 71 for and 27 against, to cut off a filibuster on a bill (S 200) creating an Agency for Consumer Advocacy. It would be the first federal agency devoted exclusively to protecting the interests of consumers.

It was the first cloture vote held since the Senate in March changed from 67 to 60 the number of votes needed to choke a filibuster. S 200, which had been filibustered to death in previous years, was subsequently passed and sent to the House.

Supporters of the bill (those voting "yea") said the American consumer needs a well-organized advocate to balance the clout of business and other special interest groups active in federal policy-making.

Opponents of the bill (those voting "nay") contended the agency would interfere with free enterprise and create another expensive layer of federal bureaucracy. Sen. Jesse Helms (R-N.C.) said, "I represent . . . thinking men and women, who are intelligent enough to decide for themselves through their purchasing power what products and services they want."

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "yea." Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

CONSUMER AGENCY—Rejected, 36 for and 52 against, an amendment to put disputes between organized labor and management within the jurisdiction of the proposed Agency for Consumer Advocacy (above). The amendment sought to delete language in the bill preventing intervention by the agency in labor-management negotiations conducted before the National Mediations Board.
Sen. Lowell Weicker (R-Conn.), the sponsor, said the exemption would appear as a "special interest" concession to labor in the eyes of the public.
He said the exemption limits the consumer agency's freedom to decide where consumer interests are at stake.

One opponent, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.), said the agency should be restricted to "marketplace transactions" which directly affect consumers and where consumer interests are not now being represented.
He said organized labor and management are equally-matched adversaries capable of settling internal disputes under the existing federal framework.
Morgan and Helms voted "yea."

Emergency Call Center Uses Back-Up System

RYE, N.Y. (UPI)—On Saturday nights and other busy periods emergency switchboards can resemble theater marquees and many times public calls for police and ambulance become jumbled or misplaced.

Emergency call centers in many large cities use back-up logging systems. Now Dicta-phone Corporation has introduced a new mini-logger designed for emergency call centers in small, busy communities.

The Dutchess County emergency center, which handles all fire and ambulance calls for the 250,000 person area, installed one of the first mini-loggers. According to Dutchess County Chief Doug Verdick,
"The logger system acts as a safety net for us. It's not unusual for our department to handle several hundred emergency calls daily. At such times, the logger has proved a lifesaver," he added.

Algerians Don't Like Questions On Ben Bella

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH
ALGIERS (UPI) — Daniel Patrick Moynihan, former U.S. ambassador to India, said recently he is fed up with verbal attacks on the United States by nations like Algeria. One riposte to Algeria, he suggested, would be the most embarrassing question of all: Whatever happened to Ben Bella?

Moynihan knew there would be no answer. The case of Ahmed Ben Bella is not discussed these days, at least not by Algerian officials.

In fact, no one outside the tight inner band of men who rule Algeria even knows for sure if Ben Bella is alive or dead—a bizarre fate for the father of Algerian independence, the nation's first president and one-time leader of the Third World movement.

Ben Bella was president of Algeria for three years, from its independence in 1962 until 3:30 a.m. on June 19, 1965, when two tanks commanded by a Col. Tahar Zbiri ground into the courtyard of his villa, arrested him and spirited him away.

He has not been seen in public since.

The bloodless coup was led by Ben Bella's defense minister, Houari Boumedienne, joined by other former loyal Ben Bella aides including his 28-year-old protege, Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika.

Boumedienne is still president and increasingly is assuming Ben Bella's old role as leader of the Third World. The tiny, mod-manned Bouteflika, now 38 and still foreign minister, was president of the U.N. General Assembly last fall. It was his anti-American statements that prompted Moynihan's outburst.

Zbiri, the man who arrested Ben Bella, has not done so well. He himself was accused of plotting to overthrow Boumedienne and in absentia was sentenced to death in 1970.

And what of Ben Bella?

There is no solid news of him, only rumor and gossip among Algerian intellectuals and foreigners in this steamy Mediterranean capital, plus the occasional tidbit dropped by officials.

The general opinion is that he is alive and under house arrest in a villa somewhere near Algiers. He is said to be under heavy guard and is never allowed to leave the villa.

Despite 10 years of virtual imprisonment, he is said to be in good health.

There are reports that he spends his time studying languages, but no one knows for sure.

In the early years of his captivity, officials said he liked to watch television. This was taken to mean he was within 50 or 60 miles of Algiers, the maximum range of Algeria's one television channel. Television here is more advanced today, so tube watching is no longer a clue.

For many years, Ben Bella's only regular visitor was his mother. But she died several years ago. According to gossip here, he was not allowed to go to her funeral.

Astonishingly, however, Ben Bella, who would be 55 now, is said to have married during his captivity. He and journalist Zohra Sellami, 28, reportedly were married in 1971 and she moved into his villa. They had met in 1962 when she was a worker in the liberation movement.

It would be his first marriage. There is no word of any children. There are reports that she is allowed to leave the villa occasionally, under guard, for shopping trips in Algiers.

There is no sign at all that the Boumedienne government plans to carry out its earlier announced intention of bringing Ben Bella to trial. Instead it apparently plans to keep him under house arrest until he dies, counting on time to erase whatever support still lingers for the charismatic freedom fighter and ex-president.

Push Tourism Within Region

SINGAPORE (UPI) — The government has granted the Singapore Tourist Promotion Board a budget of $3.4 million for this year, the bulk of the money to be used on promotion within the Asian-Australian region.

A board spokesman said the promotion will concentrate on Australia, Japan, Hong Kong and other Asian countries, while maintaining the same tempo on Britain, the United States and European countries. Last year Singapore attracted more than a million tourists, with Australian and Indonesian travelers topping the list.

Bottled Water Sales Boosted

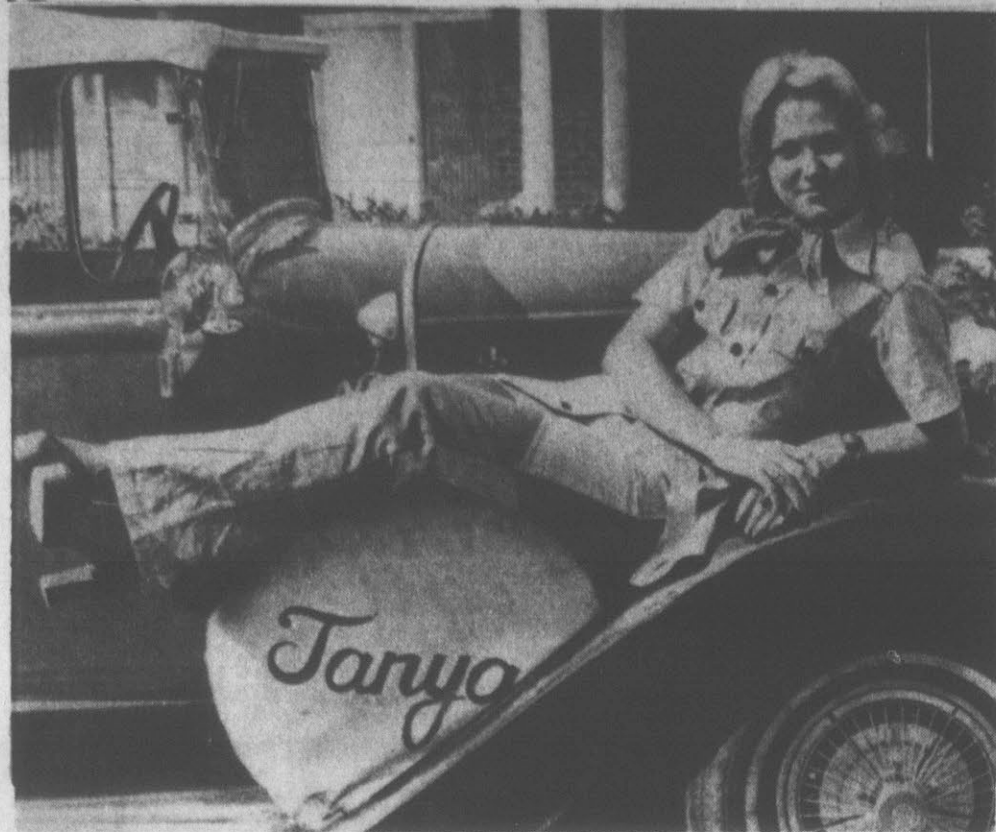

NEW YORK (UPI) — Recent scares about the safety and purity of tap water have sent bottled water sales to new highs, reports Fred H. Jones, executive director of the American Bottled Water Association. "When each succeeding scare dies down, many people never go back to drinking tap water."

Emphasizing that most public water supplies are perfectly safe, Jones said, "It's not greater safety, but better taste that keeps people drinking bottled water."

Talk Restoring Of Sans Souci

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — A restoration project for the historic Sans Souci palace, built in the 19th century by Haiti's self-proclaimed King Henri Christophe, was discussed recently in Washington by Haitian Ambassador Gerard Bouchette and Rudolfo Martinez, executive secretary for science of the Organization of American States, the government announced.

Sans Souci, in ruins from natural disasters and pillage, is located near Cap Haitien, on the northern coast of this Caribbean island. It is near the Citadel, a mountaintop fortress also built by the Haitian king, and being restored.

TANYA POSES—Teenage country singing star Tanya Tucker poses proudly with her Model A Ford. Tanya aims to stay in the big time. (AP Wirephoto)

Tanya Tucker, 16, Has Goal Of Staying At Top

By BRENT PROCTER
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Mozart may have been the child prodigy who entertained 18th century royalty as a mere boy but—as every music appreciation student knows—the gifted composer died unknown, a pauper.

And in all fields of music today, you don't have to even bother asking what the next toughest thing is to making it. The answer, of course, is staying there.

Country music, with its myriad of solid artists who've trodden rugged paths to stardom, is no exception. The cowboys and the hillbillies pick and sing just as hard as ever—just to stay there.

Most of them remember the bruising, formative years of their careers and that, within itself, is usually sufficient motivation to keep 'em going.

So when a youngster like Tanya Tucker comes breezing along, nonchalantly listing her biggest single disappointment as a brush-off by the major record companies at age 9, the skeptics pause.

Now a tender 16 and with two substantial hits to her credit, "Delta Dawn," "Will You Lay With Me (In a Field of Stone)" and her latest single, "Lizzie and the Rainman," riding high on the charts, Tanya hasn't the slightest doubt as to where she's headed.

"I'm determined. I had to be in the first place and I am now. "Starting young can be good or bad. Like sometimes, I wonder what Donnie Osmond will be doing when he's 30. But I don't let fears like that bother me.

"I don't really have a child's voice so I don't have to worry about what I'll sound like later on.

"My Dad wanted me to be a singer and I was given a lot of encouragement. I have been singing for as long as I can remember and when I was real young, I was entering and winning talent quests.

"I didn't really have to make a decision about my career. I could sing, I liked singing and had my heart set on becoming a recording star.

That Tanya, the youngest of five children, had the makings of a top country singer, was most obvious of all to her father, Bo Tucker, in their native Texas.

"My Dad had to work hard to make the money to get me started," said Tanya. "He worked at all sorts of things—as a welder, mechanic, on the oil rigs. You name it."

Now her manager, Bo Tucker took his talented daughter to Nashville when she was only 9 year old. Armed with an assortment of tapes, they had no luck at all.

"Dad was very disappointed," Tanya recalls. "I was too, but not to the same way, of course."

Four years later, the Tuckers moved to Las Vegas, Nev. The purpose was to make contacts in the music business. "It made sense," Tanya said. "Everybody who is anybody in entertainment business goes to Las Vegas."

The gamble paid off. About two years later, Bo Tucker somehow managed to get the word to legendary producer Billy Sherrill that his schoolgirl daughter was worth listening to.

Tanya went to Nashville and cut "Delta Dawn" at age 14. Then with no apparent regrets, quit school to become a full-time country singer.

"I know my whole thing sounds like starting out from scratch, like taking any old horse from Texas and then winning the Kentucky Derby," she said, almost apologetically.

When talking about her work, however, Tanya's eyes light up. "I'm very excited about my latest single, 'Lizzie and the Rainman.' I really hope it becomes my next big hit."

"All I want to do is carry on working at what I'm doing now and doing it better," said said. "And there's nothing in the world I like more than doing a show and knowing I've done it well."

Women Turn To Home Repairs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women shoppers are going from pins and needles to hammers and nails.

Because of the high cost of making even simple home repairs and improvements when a professional is hired to do the job, more and more women are tackling do-it-yourself projects. This is evident, according to Anne Winfield, F.W. Woolworth home adviser, by the greater number of women shopping in the hardware and home improvement centers.

"Many women get tired of waiting for their husbands to make necessary repairs that are long overdue," said Ms. Winfield.

ON-JOB STUDYING
COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — The University of Missouri has work-study programs in engineering with 29 firms in 13 states.

More TV Sets Than Bathtubs

NEW YORK (UPI) — There are more television sets than bathtubs in American homes.

A survey by RCA shows there are now some 121 million color and monochrome television sets in American homes, or more than the number of bathtubs, automobiles, washing machines or refrigerators in use, and not far behind the ubiquitous telephone.

Corot Art On Display June 6

PARIS (UPI) — A total of 120 paintings, drawings and engravings by Corot will go on exhibition starting June 6 at the Musee de l'Orangerie in Tuilleries Gardens.

The idea is to show the full sweep of the French Impressionist painter's work, especially the least known aspect of his production.

This Is The Year Of The 4th World'

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH
GENEVA (UPI) — This is the year of the LDCs.

LDC, the newest acronym in the international alphabet soup, stands for Least Developed Country and means the poorest of the poor such as Bangladesh, Burundi and Brunei, where average income is about $60 per year.

World Bank President Robert S. McNamara calls them the "Fourth World."

The LDCs are not getting any richer. But, judging by the spotlight they enjoy at one international forum after another, they have suddenly become fashionable.

The LDCs hope to parlay this new attention into the kind of massive help needed to put them on the road to development. They are counting on aid from the newly oil-rich nations, some of which were LDCs themselves until oil prices took off 18 months ago.

At their recent summit meeting in Algiers, leaders of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said the forthcoming conference between the oil-using and oil-producing nations must discuss not only oil, as the West wants, but the problems of the poorest nations.

They said OPEC will hold the line on oil prices only if the West agrees to take "concrete action" to help the LDCs.

Less than a month later, about 150 nations, including both rich and poor, met in Lima, Peru, for a U.N. Industrial Development Organization conference to debate the poor nations' demand for a "new world economic order."

The "new order" calls for raising the developing countries' share of world output from its present 7 per cent to 25 per cent by the end of the century. "Special measures" such as industrialization and preferential aid and trade treatment are demanded for the LDCs.

At the same time, the U.N. Law of the Sea conference opened in Geneva. While disagreeing on almost everything else, delegates agreed in principle on the need for an international agency to oversee ocean floor mining, with profits shared by the LDCs.

Around the corner in Geneva, new international trade talks began and the industrial countries were committed in advance to giving the LDCs special breaks on trade and tariffs.

The International Monetary Fund is committed to giving the LDCs a special role in any world monetary reform, possibly including an extra allocation of Special Drawing Rights, an artificial currency used in world trade.

The U.N. Committee on Trade and Development advocates an $11 billion fund to support the prices of 18 LDC commodities, including sugar, tea, copper, and lead, but that plan has no noticeable support from the West.

The LDCs, backed by OPEC, claim the right to form OPEC-style cartels to keep up the price of their raw materials.

Most of the plans are still talk and the outcome is in doubt.

The West is opposed to bringing the problems of the LDCs into their talks with OPEC. And with Western payments balances taking a beating, there is little sentiment among the rich nations for increasing aid.

The Law of the Sea conference is in danger of breaking down. The Geneva trade talks will take at least three years and, with billions of dollars in trade among the industrial nations at stake, the interests of the LDCs could be squeezed out.

Look For Crowd In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — About 9.5 million persons will visit Philadelphia for bicentennial celebrations next year, and about two-thirds of them will need commercial housing, Pennsylvania's travel development chief says.

Robert Whitely said in an interview projections that the city will have 25 million, or maybe 45 million, visitors are nonsense.

Whitely estimates 6.3 million of the tourists will need commercial housing, 2.4 million will stay with relatives and friends and 800,000 will use camping facilities.

He predicts that there will be a lot of daytrippers, since 27 million people live within a 2½-hour drive of the city.
