May Complete Bridge In October

UNDER CONSTRUCTION—Workmen of Kitchin Construction Company, Warsaw, have been busy this week setting girders for new spans and decking for a new bridge over Contentnea Creek at Grifton. The bridge is scheduled to be completed by October 1 but workmen say high water in that area recently has delayed the project several weeks. The length of the new structure is about 375 feet, about the same as the bridge it is replacing. (Reflector Photo by Blanche Hardee)

Fiscal Control Ordinance Sent Raleigh For Approval

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A proposed ordinance implementing the Local Government Budget and Fiscal Control Act relating to the Greenville Utilities Commission is being submitted to the Local Government Commission and state attorney general's office for review and recommendations.

The City Council, meeting Thursday afternoon, discussed the proposed ordinance and agreed to send it to Raleigh for consideration before final action is taken by the Council.

The effect of the Local Government Budget and Fiscal Control Act of 1973, according to the proposed ordinance, is to "prescribe for local governments a uniform system of budget adoption and administration of fiscal control."

The Council, it was noted, has been advised that the Utilities Commission "is viewed as a semiautonomous administrative agency which has been granted specific responsibilities and privileges by statute but is subject to the overall budget and fiscal control authority of the city."

Under the proposed ordinance, which has been studied jointly by the Council and Greenville Utilities Commission, the position of Deputy City Finance Officer for GUCO's fiscal transactions would be created.

The official would be a "senior fiscal executive" of GUCO, according to the proposal.

Appointment of the deputy finance officer would be by the city manager by mutual agreement with the director of Greenville Utilities.

Under the suggested ordinance, the deputy finance officer would furnish monthly statements of operations and financial position to the city as well as a daily report of cash receipts and disbursements "such that both the city... funds and GUCO funds may jointly or separately be maintained in sound investment programs."

The fiscal control responsibility of the deputy officer would be limited to the Greenville Utilities fiscal transactions, it was noted.

Drafting and adoption of the ordinance is necessary in order to comply with the Local Government Budget and Fiscal Control Act, it was explained. Final adoption of the ordinance will be considered by the Council following the review of the Raleigh agencies as to the ordinance's acceptability.

In other action yesterday during the brief Council session, a resolution requesting $10,000 in advance funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the Community Development Program was adopted.

Several months ago, the Council passed a resolution requesting advance funds but the request was withdrawn, City Manager Harry Hagerty noted. Now, the city has learned that advance funds will be available in the next week or ten days and another resolution would be necessary in order to qualify.

Greenville has applied for $1,909,000 in community development funds from HUD and according to the adopted resolution "requests an advance of $10,000 in the 1975-76 community development block grant entitlement funds for the purpose of preparing the city for the final approval of Greenville's Community Development Program."

First State Bank was designated as the depository for the advance funds.

The Council also gave its approval to a request by the Recreation Commission for advancement of funds to cover the purchase of some 338 acres of land owned by East Carolina University north of the river under the N.C. Land and Water Conservation Grant Act.

In advancing the $75,000 purchase funds for the property, the city would be reimbursed by the N.C. Land and Water Con-

Beginning American Evacuation Of Laos

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — A planeload of American women and children took off from Vientiane today, launching the evacuation of many of the 1,000 Americans in Laos.

The Communist-dominated Laotian government announced that Washington had agreed to withdraw all U.S. aid personnel except a few experts and to dismantle the 24-year-old aid program in the country.

Eighteen women and 61 children were aboard the first chartered Laotian jetliner that took off for Bangkok seven hours late because government clearance was delayed. There was no explanation for the delay.

The husbands of the women, all employees of the U.S. aid program, will not leave until all wives and children of American officials have been evacuated.

The number of Americans to be evacuated was not known, but Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said the American presence in the land-locked kingdom that has come under Communist domination in the past month would be substantially reduced.

There are about 1,000 Americans in Laos, including 320 government employees, 150 private civilians and 500 dependents.

Phoumi Vongvichit, the Communist Pathet Lao deputy premier and foreign minister, told a rally in the national stadium that in response to demonstrations in the past two weeks, the U.S. Embassy had decided to close the offices of the U.S. Agency for International Development and withdraw all AID personnel except a few experts.

"The dissolution of USAID does not mean we will stop accepting American aid," he said. "We will continue to accept U.S. aid. The Lao government and the U.S. Embassy will negotiate on the matter."

The aid program this year totals $32.5 million.

Students continued to occupy the AID headquarters compound in Vientiane where two U.S. Marine guards and an American civilian are prisoners. And Pathet Lao troops continued to restrict traffic in and out of the American housing settlement four miles outside Vientiane in which about 140 American families live.

The government arranged the release of foreigners held under arrest by student demonstrators in Savannakhet, in southern Laos, and 14 Americans were flown from there to Udorn air base in northeast Thailand Thursday, along with Japanese peace corps workers, European missionaries and employees of British volunteer agencies.

They had been confined to their homes for eight days during which the Embassy said there were 12 Americans in the town. On Thursday, the Embassy said 18 had been evacuated, but today it reduced the number to 14. There was no explanation for any of the changes.

These other Indochina developments were reported:

Thailand's defense minister, Pramarn Adireksarn, said that Khmer Rouge troops on Thursday conquered the last known holdouts of the old Cambodian regime in the 900-year-old Preah Vihar temple on the Thai-Cambodian border.

Saigon radio reported that the Women's Liberation Union of South Vietnam has taken over the Saigon villa of three high-ranking U.S. officers as the group's headquarters. The broadcast said the house at 60 Tran Quy Cap had been occupied by an army colonel, an air force colonel and a navy commander.

The Hong Kong government announced that it will accept no more South Vietnamese refugees, and new arrivals will be treated as "illegal immigrants" and sent back to Saigon.

Farmville Woman Safe After Africa Research Center Raided By Band

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE—"Ann is safe," says Mrs. Robert Pierce of Farmville, mother of Ann Pierce, a research assistant who was among the persons evacuated from Gombe Animal Research Center when kidnappers raided the Center.

She said she and her husband were called first by Stanford University officials, who told them of the raid and assured them that their daughter was not among the four kidnapped. Although they have not heard directly from Ann, their 26-year-old animal researcher daughter, they have been called by Dr. Jane Goodall, under whom she worked. She told them that all the remaining students had been evacuated, some going to Nairobi, the capital of Kenya and some to Dar Es Salaam in Tanzania.

Most of the persons in the camp were Stanford students, but Miss Pierce is a career research assistant, who has studied one group of chimpanzees in the national park in which the Gombe Center is located. She went there last year, fulfilling a dream of working with Dr. Goodall, the world-famous authority on chimpanzees and baboons. Miss Pierce had worked previously at the Yerkes Primate Center in Atlanta, where she met Dr. Goodall.

Mrs. Pierce said they had never had any fear for Ann's safety at Gombe, because there had never been any trouble there in the more than 10 years that Dr. Goodall has lived and worked in the remote area on Tanzania on Lake Tanganyika. The raiders apparently came across the lake from Zaire, a neighboring country, and were said to be part of the Parti de la Revolution Populaire, which has been fighting the Zaire government since 1967.

Associated Press reports quote Jim Baugh, 21, of San Marino, Calif., as saying he and Miss Pierce hid in the darkness. 20 feet from the approximately 40 armed raiders who landed on the lake shore of the reserve and took away four of their associates. He said a Tanzanian park ranger's life was threatened unless he showed them where the other whites were. "Cretus never said where we were," Baugh said. "He was a very brave man. He saved our lives."

"We are so grateful to this man," Mrs. Pierce said.

Those captured were Stanford students Barbara Smuts of Ann Arbor, Mich., Kenneth Smith of Garden Grove, Calif., Carrie Jane Hunter of Atherton, Calif., and Emilie Bergman of The Netherlands. They were stolen away in boats.

Stanford Professor David Hamburg held out hope for the students' release. He said he has learned in a round of long-distance phone calls with Tanzanian authorities that a suspect has been taken into custody and that a release may be worked out.

"We don't know what this will do to Dr. Goodall's and Ann's work," Mrs. Pierce said. "We'll just have to wait till we hear from her."

It has been speculated that this attack may end Dr. Goodall's work at Gombe, where she and her young son and about 30 assistants live and work. She formerly was married to a National Geographic photographer, who went there to report on her work and her many discoveries about chimpanzees and baboons. Last December she married Tanzania's national park director. She is a member of the faculty of Stanford, having made herself the world authority on chimpanzees after she continued the work of anthropologist, Dr. L.S.B. Leakey, under whom she had worked as a high school-educated research assistant.

July 15 Launch Is OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet and American space officials have given a green light to the joint manned space flight the two countries will conduct in July.

The officials concluded Thursday that the spacecraft and the detailed planning necessary will be completed in time for the joint mission scheduled for a July 15 launch, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced in Washington.

The announcement is an indication the Soviets have satisfactorily convinced their American counterparts that an unsuccessful Soviet launch April 5 won't affect the July flight.

That flight by a two-man Soyuz crew was aborted when the Russian A-2 rocket used in the launch failed to boost the spacecraft into earth orbit.

The Russian cosmonauts landed their spacecraft in Western Siberia where rescue teams picked them up, a Soviet announcement said.

Apollo-Soyuz project director Glynn Lunney said Thursday in Moscow that the mechanism that malfunctioned will not be used in the joint flight.

Lunney described the Soyuz 18 failure as a malfunction with staging in which the bottom stage of the rocket clung to the Soyuz and caused it to deviate from course.

The two Soyuz cosmonauts will be launched at 8:20 a.m. EDT July 15 from the Baikonur Cosmodrome in Russia. Three Americans in an Apollo spacecraft will be launched from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida at 3:50 p.m., 7½ hours later.

The two craft will dock two days later and remain hooked together for two days while joint scientific experiments are performed.

Soyuz will undock and land in the Soviet Union July 21. The American craft will continue circling the earth until a Pacific Ocean landing July 24.

The U.S. crew members are Thomas P. Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald K. Slayton. The Soviet crewmembers are Aleksei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov.

Elect Members Of UNC Board

RALEIGH (AP)—The legislature elected 10 members of the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina system Thursday and this morning.

The Senate held its election Thursday and the House chose its five members this morning. Elected by the House to eight-year terms in the women's and minority race categories were Adelaide Fortune Holderness of Greensboro, already a board member, and Louis Randolph of Washington, N.C.

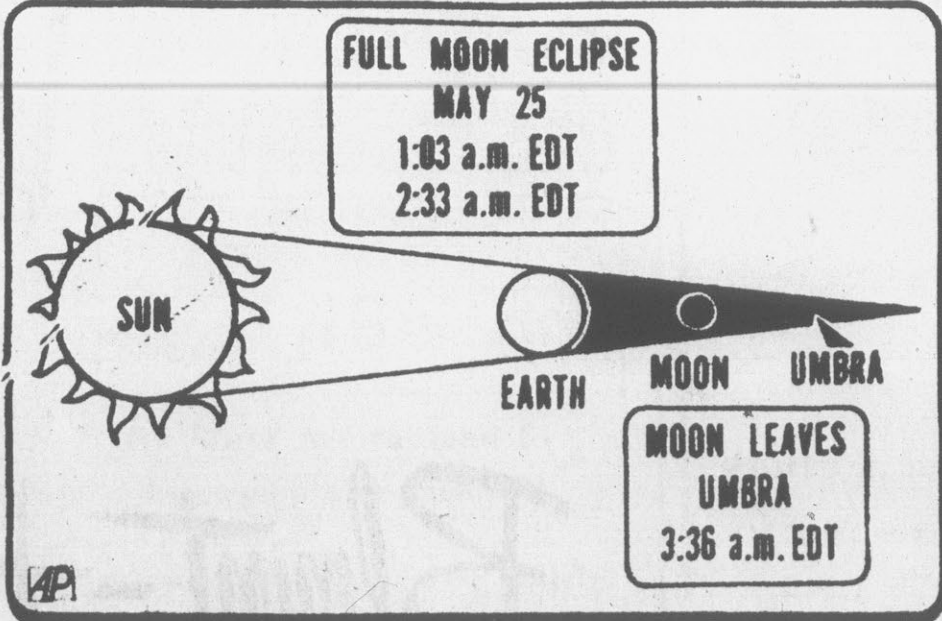

Chosen in a run-off for a two-year term was Betty McCain of Wilson. She defeated Celeste Loftin of Asheville in the second ballot.

John A. Prevost of Hazlewood was elected to an eight-year term on the first ballot and John R. Jordan Jr. of Raleigh narrowly defeated Lennox G. Cooper of Wilmington in a run-off for a similar term. All three are currently board members.

An election and three runoff votes in the Senate resulted in the selection of Harley F. Shuford Jr., Hickory industrialist; Irwin Belk, Charlotte merchant and former state senator; Wayne A. Corpening, Winston-Salem banker; Daniel C. Gunter, a Gastonia industrialist and Joseph J. Sanson Jr. of Raleigh, all were elected for eight-year terms except Sanson who was named for six years. Shuford was selected in the Republican category, Sanson in the minority race category and the others in the at-large category.

ECU To Confer Degrees Sunday

East Carolina University will confer degrees Sunday upon 2,618 graduates in the 66th annual Commencement Exercises. Sen. Robert C. Morgan, D-N.C., will address the members of the largest graduating class in ECU history, their families, friends and guests at 2 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

The ECU graduates, according to figures supplied by the office of the Registrar, number 2,112 undergraduates and 486 receiving graduate degrees. The class includes 953 male undergraduates, 1,159 female; 277 male graduate degree recipients and 219—at the luncheon female. An academic procession will precede the Commencement address and awarding of degrees.

Alumni Day activities are planned for tomorrow with a tennis clinic and guided bus tours of the campus in the morning.

The Alumni Day luncheon is set for the Greenville Golf and Country Club at 12:30 tomorrow with Bob Mays, president of the ECU Alumni Association presiding.

The Outstanding ECU Alumnus for 1975 will be named at the luncheon.

POLICE SUSPENSION

A friend at the Police Department was suspended for a day because a zipper on his uniform coat was broken. He tried to explain, but was not paid for that day. Can something be done to help him get his pay?

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said departmental orders require officers to maintain their uniforms and wear them in a uniform manner. When the uniform of the day includes coats, the coats are required to be zipped up, he said.

When an officer fails to abide by departmental orders or regulations—whether it involves the proper wearing of his uniform or other things—disciplinary action may be taken, such as in the case you asked about.

When such action includes loss of pay, the officer involved is not required to work without pay. "We can't make them work and take a day's pay," Cannon said.

The officer is simply told not to report for work one day and is not paid for the day that he does not work, the chief explained. And nothing can be done to restore the pay lost when the officer does not work.

Scholars Are Honored By ECU Biology Dept.

AWARD PRESENTED—Professor R. M. Helms presents the annual Helms Award to outstanding ECU biology senior Walter Thomas Calhoun of Greenville.

The Department of Biology at East Carolina University honored four of its most outstanding students at a campus honors luncheon Wednesday. The honorees include Robert Reece Twilley of Ayden, graduate student, and undergraduates Susan Pate of Pikeville, Nancy Elizabeth Hall of Fayetteville and Walter Thomas Calhoun of Greenville.

Twilley's superior academic record and research activity were recognized at the beginning of the current spring quarter with a departmental scholarship. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reece Twilley of Ayden and a 1970 graduate of Ayden High School.

Susan Pate, also a recipient of a departmental scholarship this spring, was named the biology department's most outstanding woman student during ECU's annual Women's Awareness Week earlier this spring.

She will complete her undergraduate studies during the summer and has been accepted by the UNC-Chapel Hill School of Medicine. Miss Pate is the daughter of Dr. W.H. Pate of Pikeville and a 1972 graduate of Charles B. Aycock High School.

Nancy Hall, named earlier as the recipient of a departmental scholarship, is a rising junior at ECU. She is the daughter of CW3 and Mrs. Dexter Hall of 814 Anarine Rd., Fayetteville, and a graduate of Terry Sanford High School. She has been named to the periodic ECU Honor's List ever since she began her biology studies here.

Calhoun was recognized as the recipient of the 1975 Helms Award, given annually to a graduating senior on the basis of superior academic achievement, research activity and contribution to the department.

The award was established in 1967 in honor of the late Dr. Mary C. Helms, a biology professor at ECU who retired that year after 40 years of service. The award was presented to Calhoun by her husband, ECU Emeritus Professor of Physics R. Marshall Helms.

Calhoun is also the department's Outstanding Senior for this year.

A member of Phi Kappa Phi honor society, Calhoun received the 1973 Undergraduate Research Award presented by the ECU Society of Sigma Xi. His research, carried out with Dr. Prem P. Sehgal of the biology faculty, has been reported on at a recent meeting of the Association of Southeastern Biologists and at the Eighth International Conference on Plant Growth Substances.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Calhoun of Greenville.

"It's almost unbelievable, the enthusiasm and willingness our young people are showing in so many fields," Mrs. Gail Church, chairman of the Youth, Education and Culture Committee of the Coastal Plain Development Association said at the association's monthly meeting held Thursday night at historic Hope House near Windsor in Bertie County.

Young people, especially those in the high school and immediate post-high school age group in the ten counties have chalked up some impressive achievements, Mrs. Church explained.

"We're pleased that a group from Wilson County has received a $500 Readers Digest Grant," Mrs. Church said. The grant is for a study entitled "Historical Studies of Minorities and Their Contributions To The Growth and Development of the City of Wilson." 4-H club members of Wilson's black communities are researching the project.

In remarks after the meeting, Mrs. Church elaborated on other accomplishments.

"Pitt County young people have formed a singing group," Mrs. Church said, "and in Martin County our young people have held a Crafts Jubilee at Martin Technical Institute and another group is raising money for a North Carolina Zoo project."

She reported that our activities in which young people are involved are constructing two softball and two baseball fields in rural areas; presenting Historical Pageant in Northampton County and a "Scenes from Historic Washington" program in Beaufort County; a bicycle safety and maintenance clinic in Nash County; and conducting fashion and talent shows.

The monthly meeting of the Coastal Plain Association featured a southern meal in the basement of restored Hope House, early 19th century home of former governor David Stone. A tour of the house was conducted prior to the meeting.

A singing group of a dozen boys and girls from the Bertie Senior High School Chorus under the direction of the school's choral director, Mrs. Fonda Sanderlin, presented a program which included a spiritual, "Ride The Chariot" and a contemporary song, "This Land Is Your Land."

At the meeting, plans were announced for the forthcoming ten county Agriculture Tour, to be held June 18 in Bertie County, which tours of peanut facilities and a forestry project.

Women's Day Service Planned

Women's Day Service will be held at Holy Trinity Church Sunday, May 25, at 11:00 a.m.

Rev. Mrs. Eliza Henderson of Kingston will be the guest speaker.

Rev. Mrs. Henderson is the sister of Mrs. Annis B. Taft of Greenville.

Jointly Offer Ice Skating Instruction

The Greenville Recreation Department and the Ice House of Greenville are offering three skating instruction programs this summer. The programs are intended for the beginner and for more experienced skaters.

The courses will begin on June 9th for 7 weeks until July 24th. The courses are:

Basic Skating—Tuesday and Thursday, 9:00-12:00—group instruction in balance, gliding, forward crossovers and various stops.

Power Skating—Tuesday and Thursday, 4:00-6:00—More advanced skills such as fast forward and sideways starts, power crossovers, quick turns and advanced balance drills will be taught.

Basic Figure Skating—Monday and Wednesday, 4:00-6:00—Advancement is based on the Ice Skating of America's Alpha, Beta and Gamma testing program. Each skater will advance according to experience and ability.

The fee for seven weeks of lessons is $18.00 or $20.00 if participants do not have their own skates. An I.D. card will be given to each participant. This will entitle the holder to free skating during the seven week Saturday and Sunday matinees (1:00-3:30 p.m.) Registration will be at Elm Street Gym starting Monday, May 26. Last day to register will be Friday, June 6. Payment of the fee is required in full at the time of registration.

WINSTON-SALEM—More than 200 members of the North Carolina Credit Women International throughout the state are expected to meet with the N.C. Merchants Association at the Hyatt House here for the annual meeting on May 25-26.

Those planning to attend from the Greenville Credit Women International are: Angeline Venters; Inda Wingate; Mary Roberson; Sally Broughton; and Dawn Fitts.

Registration will begin Sunday morning followed by a Career Club luncheon at 12:30. The Winston-Salem Club will host a Sunday luncheon for all non Career Club members. A pre-convention board meeting and business session will be conducted Sunday afternoon. State President, Carol Hardee, will preside at these meetings. At 5:30 on Sunday afternoon the Fuquay-Varina Club will honor President Hardee at an open house with all CW-I members and North Carolina merchants invited. On Sunday evening there will be a western wrangler jamboree held at the Tanglewood Park.

The Monday program will begin with the awards breakfast at 7:30. At 10:00 the Credit Women will meet in a joint session with the N.C. Merchants Association. There will be an installation luncheon at 12:30 p.m. installing the newly elected officers for the coming year. At 3:30 there will be another joint session with the N.C. Merchants Association. Richard Cox, NARDA Associates, will speak on the subject, "How To Keep From Going Bankrupt."

At 6:30 the Winston-Salem Retail Merchants Association will host a reception and the N.C. Merchant's "First In Freedom" banquet will follow. Entertainment will be provided by Doraine and Ellis who will present "200 Years of American Music."

Several out-of-state guests and Dixie Council dignitaries are expected to attend the two day event, including Mrs. Lonnie Mullinax, Dixie Council president, of Anniston, Ala.

State officers are as follows: President, Mrs. Hardee, Chapel Hill; First Vice President, Mrs. Peggy Fox, Kannapolis; Second Vice President, Miss Kay Caudle, Winston-Salem; Third Vice President, Mrs. Eva Shue, Concord; Recording Secretary Mrs. Johnnie Bundy, Charlotte; Treasurer, Mrs. Venters, Greenville; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Doris Hendrick, Raleigh; Parliamentarian, Mrs. Beulah Sullivan, Burlington; and Historian, Mrs. Juanita Hilker, Belmont.

The State President, Mrs. Hardee, is a native of Pitt County and resided in Greenville prior to moving to Chapel Hill. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McLawhorn of Ayden.

Inda Wingate, local club president, is a director.

DEAR ABBY: While standing in the checkout line in a high grade grocery store, I saw the woman directly ahead of me frantically rummaging around in her purse, looking embarrassed. It seems her groceries had already been checked, and she was a dollar short.

I felt sorry for her, so I handed her a dollar. She was very grateful, and insisted on writing my name and address on a loose piece of paper. She stuck it in her purse and said, "I promise I'll mail you the dollar tomorrow."

Well, that was three weeks ago, and I still haven't heard from her!

Abby, I think I'm a fairly good judge of character, and I just didn't peg her as the kind who would beat me out of a dollar.

The small amount of money isn't important, but what it did to my faith in people is.

I'd like your opinion.

SHY ONE-BUCK

DEAR SHY: Don't assume that she deliberately beat you out of a buck. There are other possibilities:

(1) She may have misaddressed the envelope, and the dollar went astray.

(2) She may have lost the paper with your name and address on it.

(3) The incident could have slipped her mind, and the piece of paper may not surface for years.

You bought a dollar's worth of good feeling, so don't feel cheated.

DEAR ABBY: I have been debating for months which of the following I should do regarding a neighbor who has seven children and an unbelievable amount of trash, which, for some strange reason, she doesn't seem able to control.

- (1) Buy her seven jumbo cans with tight lids.
- (2) Make a phone call requesting that she kindly bag her trash.
- (3) Call the police and ask them to give her a ticket for littering.

We live in Pocatello, Idaho, which has the windy city of Chicago beat to pieces when it comes to breezes. This neighbor's trash blows onto my yard, and I am thoroughly sick of it. And if it isn't the wind, it's the stray dogs who drag it all over.

What should I do?

MRS. S. ONE E. BONNEVILLE

DEAR MRS. S.: First call your neighbor and ask her if she read DEAR ABBY today. If that doesn't get results, write to me again.

DEAR ABBY: I am a fifth-grader teacher, and my class has just finished an extensive course on understanding handicaps. We had the good fortune to have as guests some extraordinary persons with physical disabilities. They gave their time to let my children listen, question and learn about deafness, blindness, amputation and mental retardation from first-hand sources.

The children were eager to learn about the capabilities of each of these guests as well as the problems they faced because of their handicaps. After the class spent two mornings "handicapped" themselves as part of the course, I'm convinced their understanding has grown at least three sizes.

True, those who are "sickened" by the sight of handicapped people need a lesson in tact, but they also need some correct information to overcome their prejudices.

There are hundreds of people like Diane, Ede, Steve, Charlotte and my father who are willing and eager to teach children about their handicaps. I urge schools and civic groups to seek them out and use their services. They are beautiful people.

"TEACH"; REEDVILLE SCHOOL ALOHA, OREGON

DEAR "TEACH": Amen!

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Article Published In Current Magazine

Changing trends in the marriage roles of new brides are discussed by East Carolina University faculty sociologist David Knox in the current issue of "Modern Bride" magazine.

According to Dr. Knox's article, appearing in the June-July issue, the Women's liberation Movement has affected today's bride by encouraging her to "regard herself as a person, rather than somebody's wife or mother."

In addition, the modern bride is more likely to complete college rather than drop out and put her husband through, to pursue a career outside the home, and to consider the option of remaining child-free, than the bride of five years ago.

Dr. Knox, an associate professor at ECU, is a specialist in marriage and family relations. He is the author of "Marriage Happiness: A Behavioral Approach to Counseling," "Marriage: Who? When? Why?" and "Dr. Knox's Marital Exercise Book," as well as numerous articles in professional journals and popular magazines.

He has spoken at professional gatherings sponsored by the National Council of Family Relations, the American Psychological Association and other organizations.

He holds degrees from Auburn and Florida State Universities and has done postdoctoral study in behavior modification at the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Mrs. Waters Gives Club Program

Mrs. Sylvia Waters was guest speaker Tuesday night at the Evening Welcome Wagon Club meeting. Introduced by Mrs. Lisa Kannen, Mrs. Waters spoke about the upcoming summer "accidents."

She discussed snakebites, spider bites, ticks, eating and drinking of harmful substances, cuts, bumps, broken bones as well as heart attacks. Mrs. Waters is the clinical supervisor of the special units at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Pat Swanda presided over the meeting as the new chairwoman of the evening group for the 1975-76 year. She presented the slate of new officers as follows: President, Mrs. Swanda; First Vice President, Mrs. Kannen; Second Vice President, Mrs. Brenda McCormick; Secretary, Mrs. Carole Price; Treasurer, Mrs. Carolyn Winbon; Publicity, Mrs. Pat Mullin; Membership, Mrs. Loraine Wells and Mrs. Merle Modlin.

Mrs. Swanda discussed plans for a summer social and members voted to have dinner meetings. The next meeting will be June 17 at 7:30 p.m. at the Ramada Inn.

Mrs. Kannen announced that the June speaker will be Dr. Jannis B. Shea from the School of Home Economics at ECU. She will talk on child rearing. Plans for future programs were also discussed.

Mrs. Price was hostess for the meeting.

Change In Pres. Ford's Image

President Ford got an enthusiastic welcome in Charlotte this week.

The Republican president, who came to office, through his appointment as vice president by former President Nixon, addressed a crowd estimated at over 100,000. The trip wasn't political in the accepted sense. Ford was there for the bicentennial celebration of the signing of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence.

In the sense that the president is a declared candidate for nomination and election in 1976, it was political, however, and certainly this appearance will be gauged by the president's political advisors as a measure of his popularity.

According to news reports, Ford acted every bit the politician. He moved among the enthusiastic crowd to shake hands with well wishers. Asked how he felt things would go in 1976 he replied, "We're going to do very well."

There was a definite change in the Ford image that was mirrored in the Charlotte reception.

Prior to his firm action in freeing the freighter Mayaguez the president had been regarded as an accidental president. He has not been able to have his way with Congress very much and since he has come to power we have lost both Vietnam and Cambodia, although Ford does not especially bear the blame for this.

With the capture of the freighter, however, Ford's time came to act decisively in a crisis. He handled the situation as well as anyone could and although it was a rather small incident in the course of our affairs, the retrieval of our ship gave the nation a new respectability.

We think that some of the respect that we as a nation regained in the Mayaguez incident turned to enthusiasm here in North Carolina as the president visited Charlotte.

Everybody feels better about our ability to defend ourselves. Since President Ford commanded the action, the public is paying him some respect for what he did. Thus for the first time since he took office, both Republicans and Democrats are now having to consider President Ford as a strong candidate for election to a full term in 1976. As of now, his administration is in command of the nation.

Thais Easily Adapt

By SURIN RUANGDEJ
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand is adapting itself to live with Communist neighbors and moving out of a long period of close association with the United States.

Communist influence appears to be greater than ever since two Indochina states have been taken over by the Communists and the third is slipping fast in that direction.

The waning of American influence was accelerated by the U.S. decision to send Marines to Thailand for the Mayaguez rescue against the expressed will of the Thai government.

With three Communist delegations visiting Thailand this month, pressing for total withdrawal of the remaining American forces in the country, Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj has begun collecting facts of past U.S.-Thai economic and military agreements for review.

"I can't deny the old saying about us that we bend with the wind," said Foreign Minister Chatichai Choonhavan, a supporter of U.S. Indochina policy. "You and I know which wind is blowing stronger now."

Chatichai ordered all ministries including defense to collect all U.S.-Thai agreement documents and present them to him within two months. He is then to present policy suggestions to the National Security Council and the cabinet.

The Thai ambassador to Washington, who was recalled last week in protest over U.S. use of Thai bases for the rescue operation, will help review Thai policy.

"It will take a period of time before our two countries will be back to the level of previous close relations again," the foreign minister said.

"When a couple get into an argument they normally need time to readjust to one another," he said. "And usually the couple come back to live together happily."

But some high-ranking policy makers in the Foreign Ministry say U.S.-Thai relations may never return to the period before the Mayaguez incident.

"We are being pressured by the strong east and north wind which began before the fall of Indochinese capitals," said a

THIS AFTERNOON Survey Of Animal Owners

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—The problems involved in delivering veterinarian services to large animal owners in North Carolina go beyond the simple solution of a veterinarian school to train more doctors, a research project carried out by the legislative staff has concluded.

"There are major facets of the veterinary service delivery problem that are yet to be fully discussed," the report states, based on a sampling of more than 300 Tar Heel owners of large animals.

"We raise a question as to whether the function of the (state-operated) diagnostic laboratories and the extensions livestock specialist could be augmented to deliver more services," the report written by the staff of the General Assembly's fiscal research division says.

High Cost

Additionally, the staff concludes that the high cost of veterinarian services on the farm is a major reason animal owners hesitate to call a vet, except in emergencies, and poses the "public policy" question of how to get additional animal doctors into the field.

Describing the problem thusly: "A large animal practice . . . is extremely time consuming. The travel time to and from the farm is largely nonproductive in the sense of generating income . . . operating costs have been rising . . . the veterinarian must either seek ways to increase his productivity or raise his charges . . . the veterinarian has the option generally to take on more small animal work . . . in his office . . . his willingness to make farm calls declines . . . This may in turn reduce demands for the services of large animal veterinarians, and the results may be further price increases or, more likely, more veterinarians shifting to small animal work."

Without entering openly into the volatile political issues surrounding establishment of a new veterinarian school at N.C. State University in Raleigh, the

By ART BUCHWALD $1,000-A-Plate Dinners

WASHINGTON—One of the victims of Watergate is the $1,000-a-Plate Dinner. Both parties used the dinner as a form of raising funds for presidential elections, and some of these events brought anywhere from $1 million to $3 million into the campaign.

But the $1,000-a-Plate Dinner is in trouble, and most companies who automatically bought entire tables in the past are now reluctant to go to a political fund-raising dinner at any price.

My friend Swanson, who arranges these affairs, told me about the problems he has had this year trying to get people to buy tickets.

Swanson called the Washington lobbyist for Conglomerate Electronics. "Charley," he said, "we're having a little dinner at the Hilton for the President and a few of his friends. Can I put you down for a table?"

"Gee, Swanson, I'd love to go, but I'm busy that night."

"I didn't tell you what night it was."

"Oh, yeh," Charley said. "Well, I'll be very honest with you, Swanson. I took 10 of the gang from my company in 1972, and the food was lousy. The fruit cup was warm, the roast beef was overdone and there wasn't enough butter for the baked potato. Everyone said the meal wasn't worth a thousand dollars."

"We're going to do better this year," Swanson said. "We've got shrimp cocktail, squash and wild rice."

"Gee, Swanson, you know how much I enjoy $1,000-a-Plate Dinners, but my chairman of the board got sick the last time he went to one."

"What did he get?"

"Thirty days in jail and a $15,000 fine. It seems when he signed the company check he forgot to mention the money was going to an election campaign. He said he's not going to any more political fund-raising dinners if Fanne Foxe jumps out of a cake at the end."

"Charley, I know how he feels, but how are we going to elect an honest government again and a strong President who cares about the businessman if people like your chairman don't come to our dinners? What happens when the President looks around the room and doesn't see those friendly faces from Conglomerate Electronics, a company that does $400 million a year with the Defense Department?"

"I'm sorry, Swanson."

"Was it the location of the table last time, Charley? I can guarantee you one right up front this time. You'll only be 20 feet from Nelson Rockefeller. He'll be able to wave to you all during the meal."

"It wasn't the location of the table. It was just—well, if you want to know the truth—we had a surly waiter. Heck, when you pay 10 grand for a table you at least want the service to be good."

"I'll get Earl Butz to serve you personally."

"Look, Swanson. There is nothing the missus and I would rather do than sit in the Hilton ballroom listening to the President of the United States tell us what a great country we have. But things are tough right now, and we can't throw around a thousand bucks apiece for dinner like we used to. Don't forget that doesn't include the baby-sitter or the parking in the Hilton garage."

"All right, Charley, I won't

INSIDE REPORT Laird's Blunder Overcome

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—President Ford's Mayaguez harvest with the right wing of the Republican party came precisely when needed most, after a spectacularly unsuccessful play by Melvin R. Laird had accelerated steady erosion of conservative confidence in the President.

Laird's attempt to draw conservative fire away from Mr. Ford by suggesting that Ronald Reagan challenge Nelson Rockefeller for the vice presidential nomination was one of the least successful plays by that inveterate political gamesman.

On the eve of the Mayaguez rescue, Laird succeeded in alienating both the Rockefeller and Reagan camps while giving conservatives the impression that Mr. Ford was dealing from weakness.

Laird's blunder was mitigated by the universal conservative approval of Mr. Ford's decisive use of force in rescuing the merchant ship.

Nevertheless, the White House has been shocked to find many key conservatives not yet ready to endorse their incumbent President for 1976—an extraordinary condition for Republicans. They are waiting to see whether the Mayaguez incident or the Laird play best reflects the presidency of Gerald R. Ford.

The lesson for the White House ought to be clear: the formula for loyalty from the party's dominant conservative wing is decisive action, preferably with a rightward slant, rather than backroom political horse-trading. Whether that lesson has in fact been absorbed is put in doubt, however, by confident statements from presidential aides that Mr. Ford nailed down the Republican nomination the night he called out the Marines.

On that night, Mr. Ford's stock in the Republican party had bottomed out, thanks partly to Laird, his usually astute adviser and longtime

Public Forum

To the editor:

Our North Carolina auto license plates display the slogan "First in Freedom." Present methods and procedures used by the SBI in arresting and indicting doctors suggest that we may be "First in Oppression."

Deception and entrapment appear to have been the basic methods in making the arrests. Legal maneuvering to by-pass preliminary hearings has been the freeway to indictments.

According to the May 5, 1975 issue of Medical World News, North Carolina is one of only ten states plus New York City with such projects which are federally funded (tax dollars to be sure). Let us contrast some differences. In New York City, misconduct in prescribing is a misdemeanor; in North Carolina, it is a felony. Agents in other areas often present evidence to licensing boards for civil procedures; North Carolina has elected to bring criminal charges.

There are many aspects of this entire operation which support the feeling that law enforcement in North Carolina does not recognize its responsibility to protect the individual. No matter what the intent, the impact is to suggest that everyone is guilty and deserving of maximum punishment.

In consideration of the foregoing facts, I raise the question "Are we really first in freedom or possibly first in oppression?"

Sincerely,
Mrs. Raymond W. Williams

40 Years Ago Today

May 23, 1935

An attempt to rob the safe of the Coca-Cola Bottling Company here last night failed when the nitroglycerine charge failed to open the safe's door.

The thieves, believed to be experts, fled in their car immediately after the explosions, and chase by local police officers failed.

It is believed the charge was too small to blow the inner door off of the safe.

A majority of the prisoners in the state prison system think they should not be in prison and feel that they have done nothing wrong, Commissioner of Paroles Edwin M. Gill said in Raleigh today.

"This is the attitude taken by the average prisoner. Nine out of ten prisoners have an alibi of some sort and usually blame someone else for their predicament," Gill said.

Strength For Today

NO RELIGION WITHOUT FAITH

A man once complained to Sam Jones, an evangelist who preached many years ago in the Plains states, that the trouble with religion is that it asks a man to believe a thing before it is proved.

Whereupon Jones gave a striking illustration of the value of faith drawn from his own cattle country. "In the stockyards cattle step on a platform to reach the watering trough, and when they do their weight presses a lever which turns on the water. In order to step on that platform they have to have faith."

"You," Sam said to his complaining friend, "are like a smart steer which slips around the barnyard and peeps into the trough without getting on the platform. Seeing no water he turns away and tells everybody there is no water. Another steer, with more faith, steps on the platform and gets the water. That's the way with religion. Have the faith to step on the platform and you will get living water in abundance; look for water without faith and you will get nothing."

Ears Tuned To 'Hitting Bottom'

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — All through the world of business they are waiting these days for the sound of the economy hitting bottom, hoping that once that ugly clunk is heard they can listen to the sweet music of a recovery.

The anticipation of a bottom being reached soon is based both on the belief that "it can't get much worse" and on the statistical indicators.

Unemployment remains close to 9 per cent of the labor force, corporate profits were off 22.3 per cent in the first quarter, and the Gross National Product has already declined for five straight three-month periods.

Inflation, which tends to decline as recession presses down on the ability and willingness to buy, remained high at 8.5 per cent in the first quarter — but nothing like the 14.4 per cent rate of the previous three months.

Three items are being listened to with special interest, because they will provide clues to the strength and speed of the eventual recovery: Employment, Housing, Automotives.

EMPLOYMENT—During March and April some signs developed to suggest an easing of the jobless problem. Layoffs declined. Total employment rose in April. The work-week lengthened in some industries.

However, there is also a rising supply of workers, which accounts for the continued high level of unemployment. Chase Manhattan Bank gives this assessment:

"In the months ahead, employment will continue to expand, through probably quite slowly. But improving economic conditions will spur labor force growth, so that the unemployment rate will remain high for some time."

HOUSING—One thing that has been learned in the past couple of months is that just because the thrift institutions have money it doesn't mean they'll be looking for mortgage customers.

The savings and loan associations and savings banks are nervous. With a big federal deficit to be financed, they fear that interest rates in general will shortly begin to rise. Therefore, they're afraid to make long-term, low-rate commitments of their money.

Scores of financial analysts in corporations, banks, brokerage houses and elsewhere are scaling down their estimates of the size of the housing recovery. Some see it still two or three years away.

AUTOMOBILES — While Ford and Chrysler have sharply scaled down their expectations for 1975 and don't seem to be very optimistic about next year either, General Motors remains unconvinced that a recovery isn't coming.

Some analysts, in fact, believe the days of 10 million sales a year won't be back for many years. Among the most pessimistic, Sindlinger & Co., whose services are used by the Big Three manufacturers, maintains that automotive executives looking for big sales in the next few months or year are operating on "hunches, habit and hope rather than the facts."

But if car sales take a sharp turn upward, it will be a clear signal that a major change has taken place in consumer buying attitudes.

EMS Chief Lauds N.C. Rescue Units

WINTERVILLE—Charles Speed, chief of the state's Office of Emergency Medical Services, speaking to the Winterville Kiwanis Club last night, praised North Carolina's volunteer rescue squad saying, "these individuals make a tremendous contribution."

Speed, a member of the North Carolina Highway Patrol for 34 years rose through the ranks to become its commander. He took over as state EMS chief several months ago after spending six years as director of the Governor's Highway Safety Program. He said being OEMS chief has been "a post-graduate course in what I've been doing all my life...trying to save lives."

Speed outlined the OEMS program for the Kiwanians and their guests—members of the Winterville Rescue Squad who have recently completed an 81-hour Emergency Medical Technician course—and said "it behooves us not to weaken this program, but to strengthen it." He added that more than 4,000 persons in the state have completed the EMT training program since it began — under the sponsorship of OEMS just over a year ago.

Speaking of the volunteers engaged in emergency work, Speed said "we must depend on these people."

"We're striving for excellence...trying to take advantage of (the volunteers') knowledge and skill..." to save lives.

"These individuals make a tremendous contribution. They want to serve...want to make a contribution. This is the finest kind of help in the world," Speed emphasized.

Recipient Of Leone Award

Mrs. Lillian Stokes, associate professor at the Indiana University-Purdue University School of Nursing, has been chosen as recipient of the Lucile Petry Leone Award during the National League for Nursing convention being held this week in New Orleans.

Mrs. Stokes, the daughter of Mrs. Lillian Gatlin of Grimesland and the late Mr. Gatlin, was cited for her outstanding achievements as a teacher in medical-surgical nursing.

She received her master of science degree in nursing from Indiana University, her bachelor of science degree in nursing from North Carolina Central University at Durham and her diploma in nursing from the Kate Bitting Reynolds Hospital School of Nursing in Winston-Salem.

She and her husband, Dr. Robert Stokes, reside in Indianapolis, Ind., with their 11-month-old son.

Outstanding Student Honored

Celia Elaine Hales, graduate student in the East Carolina University Department of Library Science, has been named one of ECU's most outstanding woman students.

She was presented an award during the recent Women's Awareness Week, an annual spring event at ECU, at a program featuring an address by ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins.

Miss Hales received the BA and MA degrees in English from Duke University and is a candidate for the Master of Library Science degree at ECU. During the past academic year she has been a teaching assistant for the ECU library science department.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Hales of Zebulon.

Rescued From Swimming Pool

Jeffery Lockett, 19, of Greenwood Apts. was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment after he was pulled — unconscious — from a swimming pool at the complex last night.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said investigators were told that Lockett, in the pool alone, walked into water too deep for him, went under and lost consciousness. He was pulled from the water by other residents of the apartments and taken to the hospital by the Greenville Rescue Squad.

The incident occurred about 8:20 p.m., the chief explained.

The Master's Touch

God must love beauty, to use it so lavishly. The Master Artist dapples the soft green leaves with golden sunshine, turns the brook to flowing crystal, and puts a song into Spring itself.

There is beauty in us, too... because He put it there. In His sight, none of us are ugly, none of us are forsaken, none of us are "lost."

But sometimes, in the busy process of day-to-day living, we turn blind eyes upon the world's loveliness, and take for granted the gifts which should brighten the hours and years. We need a faith that gives us vision to find again the inner beauty He gave us in the beginning... a gift which He never takes away. Let us go, then, to His Church. Let us "enter into His gates with thanksgiving... for the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting; and His Truth endureth forever."

Within two weeks this month official delegations came from Saigon and Hanoi. Both have demanded that Thailand could not establish relations with them unless all U.S. forces are withdrawn from Thai soil.

North Korean diplomats, who also visited this month, posed no preconditions for opening relations but also urged removal of U.S. forces.

"We must readjust ourselves to these demands because the Communists are next door to us now. No matter how much we love the American system," the diplomat said.

Beirut's Street Fighting Goes Into Its Fourth Day

By JOSEPH PANOSSIAN
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas and the private army of Lebanon's right-wing Phalangist party battled for the fourth day today with mortars, machine guns and bazookas after the Lebanese government failed in an attempt to put a buffer force between them.

The casualty toll rose to more than 25 dead and 150 wounded.

Residents in the battle area on the eastern outskirts of Beirut said special police forces that tried to establish a buffer zone between the warring factions Thursday night withdrew when they were caught in a crossfire.

This morning they were reported observing the shooting but not participating.

The Moslem Palestinians and the Christian Phalangists battled for five days last month after a shooting at the dedication of a Christian church guarded by the Phalangist militia. Two hundred persons were killed and more than 500 were wounded.

The fighting this week was touched off by a clash Tuesday between some Palestinians and a police patrol.

The Phalangists charge that the Palestinians endanger Lebanon by their guerrilla operations against Israel from bases in southern Lebanon. The Palestinians charge that the Phalangists are trying to drive them out of the country or impose restrictions on guerrilla activity that would kill the Palestine liberation movement.

The tension and periodic outbreaks of fighting have hurt Lebanon's tourist trade and Beirut's image as the stable financial center of the Arab world.

Schools, banks and business establishments have been closed. Shopkeepers have struck in support of one or the other faction. Postal service and transit trade at the port have been disrupted since March. Some foreign companies have indicated they might have to leave Beirut unless conditions improve.

Elsewhere in the Middle East:

The Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram reported that Libya has granted the Soviet Union army, naval and air bases on Libyan territory in exchange for Soviet agreement to sell the Libyans $4 billion worth of tanks, missiles and other of the "latest sophisticated arms in the Soviet arsenal."

Because of the very bad relations between Col. Moammar Khadafy and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, the big Soviet arms sale to Libya was certain to increase Egyptian displeasure with the Soviet Union.

An Egyptian political magazine claimed in early May that Khadafy is building a line of fortifications along the Libyan-Egyptian border as a preliminary to invading Egypt and uniting the two countries by force.

Firing was reported across the Israeli-Jordanian border for the first time in several years. The Israeli military command reported that one of its patrols came under small-arms fire from Jordan south of Galilee and returned the fire. One Israeli was reported wounded.

The Israeli foreign ministry expressed "satisfaction and gratitude" for the letter by 76 U.S. senators to President Ford opposing any attempt to reduce American support for Israel. The White House said the President "welcomes all suggestions" and pointed out that the United States is committed to the "survival of a free and independent Israel."

An Arab League representative in Washington said the senators were seeking "a blank check for Israel to continue to procrastinate in complying with U.N. resolutions pertaining to the Middle East conflict."

Digging Up Bodies At Michigan Home

QNSTED, Mich. (AP) — Lenawee County sheriff's deputies have discovered two bodies and expect to locate two more today as they resume digging around the foundation of a home.

The residence was once owned by a man now held by Houston police for a series of sex crimes.

Sheriff Richard A. Germond said he expects to find the bodies of a man and a woman at the site.

Germond told reporters the two bodies found Thursday buried under about two feet of earth have not been positively identified and it was not determined when the two died. He said the bodies might be those of two Toledo women missing since last summer.

Gary Addison Taylor, 39, arrested Tuesday in Houston and charged with five sex offenses, lived in the house until March 1974, Germond said. Taylor is being held without bond.

A woman claiming to be Taylor's ex-wife, reportedly in protective custody in San Diego, Calif., tipped Houston police that the bodies were buried there several years ago, Germond said. Houston police passed the word to Michigan, he said.

Taylor was known in the late 1950s as the "phantom sniper of Royal Oak" in connection with nine shooting attacks on women and girls. He was first arrested in 1957 for the sniping incidents and was found innocent by reason of insanity in 1966 and committed to a state hospital. He was in state mental institutions until 1973 and is listed by authorities as an escapee from Ypsilanti State Hospital.

No Charges In Mishaps

An estimated $925 damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 5:22 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard 75 feet West of the Sheraton Drive intersection involving cars driven by Cyrus Shelton Adcock of 102 Club Pines Rd. and Linda Teresa Valerio of 306 Prince Rd.

Officers, who made no charges, estimated damage at $250 to the Adcock car and $300 to the Valerio vehicle.

Michael Rudolph Taylor of Highland Trailer Park and J. Paul Baker of 2406 Umstead Ave. were identified as drivers of cars that collided about 5:23 p.m. on 14th Street, 40 feet west of Glen Arthur Avenue.

Damage was estimated at $75 to the Taylor car and $300 to the Baker auto.

No charges were made by investigators.

Five Attending ECU Seminar

Five local persons are attending a five-week Pharmacy Seminar on Selected Subjects continuing education course being held at East Carolina University School of Nursing May 21-June 18.

Attending the seminar are: Clarence Johnson, Hollowell's Drug Store; Brooks Beddingfield, Beddingfield Pharmacy; Dr. Larry Paul, Burroughs-Wellcome Co.; Linda Parham, Pavilion Pharmacy; and Anne H. Harris, N.C. Pharmacy.

The course is co-sponsored by the UNC School of Pharmacy, and the Eastern Area Health Education Center (AEHC).

Each of the weekly sessions is devoted to drugs and drug therapy associated with various disease conditions.

Collided With Commons Arch

Steven Kyle Price, 18, of 1310 Evergreen Dr. was charged with public drunkenness early this morning after his vehicle collided with a brick gateway and arch at the Town Commons near the intersection of First and Reade Streets.

Police quoted Price as saying he did not know who was driving his vehicle at the time of the mishap—at 3:25 a.m.

Damage was estimated at $600 to the Price vehicle and $1,000 to the gateway.

Senate Aims Bill At Blocking New River Project

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Senate has enacted a bill the General Assembly hopes will block a Virginia hydroelectric project that could flood thousands of acres along the New River in North Carolina.

In other action Thursday, the House approved a resolution calling for the adoption of a one-year budget this year with the idea of coming back next year for a session at which the budget for the second year of the current biennium would be adopted.

The Senate first killed and then revived and sent to the House a measure authorizing the City of Charlotte to levy a tax on the rental receipts of hotels and motels. Opponents warned that if Charlotte is allowed to levy such a tax, the idea might spread to other cities of the state.

The Senate voted 46-0 to enact a measure designating an additional 22 miles of the New River as a part of North Carolina's scenic river system. The bill was passed in the hope that the New River would be placed by the U.S. Interior Department in the national wild and scenic rivers system. Such a designation would permanently block plans of the Appalachian Power Co. to build a $434 million hydroelectric project in Virginia that would flood thousands of acres in North Carolina.

North Carolina's obscenity law was called too weak by some people and called one of the best in the nation by others when a House judiciary committee held a public hearing on a bill to strengthen the statute. The hearing was on a bill by Rep. Jimmy Love, D—Lee. It would give district attorneys the right to prosecute book-sellers and theater owners who sell or show what is considered obscene material. Current law requires a judicial determination that material is obscene before a prosecution can take place.

A bill introduced in the Senate by Sen. McNeill Smith, D—Guilford, would permit individuals to find out the information that credit bureaus have about them.

"This bill fills some big holes in the federal law and provides support in state law for important rights of people to find out what is being reported about them," Smith said in a state.

The resolution adopted by the House calls for the General Assembly to adopt a budget for the next fiscal year and to return to Raleigh sometimes next year for a brief session at which a budget for the following year would be adopted.

The resolution has the support of House Speaker James C. Green, but it goes against the policy of Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt and Senate leaders.

The disagreement stems from the need to cut the recommended budget for 1975-77 by more than $288 million dollars because of reduced revenue estimates resulting from the recession.

As of now, the House leadership is leaning toward the one-year budget in hopes that the economy will have improved by next year. They could return to Raleigh and pass out the increased revenues, primarily by approving a 5 per cent pay raise for state employees in the second year of the biennium. The House also is leaning toward a referendum on issuance of about $80 million in bonds to finance capital improvements in the university system.

Hunt and the Senate leaders fear a bond issued might be rejected by the voters. If not it might doom the East Carolina University medical school. They also want to approve a budget for two years, making the second year pay raise contingent upon increased revenues.

A legislative ethics bill similar to one already approved by the Senate won a favorable recommendation Thursday from the House Rules Committee.

The bill provides a basic code of ethics for legislators. It says a lawmaker shall not take action in an official capacity to further his economic interests if he sees that his private interests would impair his independence of judgment.

The committee also voted to recommend that the House install electronic voting machines such as the ones being used by the Senate for the first time this session.

Although both electronic voting and ethics legislation have had trouble in the House in the past, the committee voted 11-7 for the favorable report on ethics and there was little opposition in the voice vote for electronic voting.

The ethics measure requires legislators and legislative candidates to file statements listing their economic interests. It would establish an Ethics Commission to rule on possible violations of the ethics code and the economic statement requirements.

Rep. Larry Eagles, D—Edgecombe, offered an amendment to exempt candidates from filing the statement. It was defeated 8-7 after Rep. Al Adams, D—Wake, argued that it would be cutting out "the guts of the bill."

The House measure requires a legislator to disclose the "type of creditor" to whom he owes more than $5,000. The Senate bill is a little tougher, requiring the disclosure of the names of such creditors.

Competition In Tobacco Looms

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz says the United States flue-cured tobacco industry faces serious competitive threat from Rhodesia, if that country's racial policies are resolved to the point that European countries begin trading with it.

"Rhodesia can take over 40 per cent of our tobacco market," Butz said. Rhodesian leaf "as good as ours" can be produced for 25 to 30 cents a pound less than American flue-cured leaf, he told a news conference Thursday before addressing the annual meeting of the North Carolina World Trade Association.

He said increases of 35 per cent in the quotas allowed United States growers of flue-cured tobacco in the last three years had not produced a glut on markets or a drop in prices paid growers.

And the nation's farmers may not choose to grow all they are allowed to under quotas which were increased 15 per cent this year, he said.

He warned peanut growers that the department's support program is in danger of being cut by Congress, and urged them to "some moderation."

Butz predicted the country will have an "excellent" wheat crop this year, somewhere around two billion bushels, but that wheat prices will not plunge in response to the high yield.

He also predicted a record corn harvest.

In his speech he praised North Carolina for its contribution to foreign trade. He said:

"Last fiscal year your state earned over $456 million in foreign sales of unmanufactured tobacco products. You sold about $107 million in soybeans and soybean products, $92 million in feed grains, and $15.6 million in wheat and flour."

Annual Revival Begins Monday

The Saint Mary Missionary Baptist Church will hold its annual revival services beginning Monday night. Prayer services will begin at 7:30 and regular services will begin at 8:00 p.m.

The programs scheduled are as follows: Monday — Cornerstone Missionary Baptist, Tuesday — Sycamore Chapel, Wednesday — Saint Matthews, Thursday — Author's Chapel and Friday — Wynn's Chapel of Bethel.

The Rev. W. T. Davis of Edenton will be leading the service each night.

TIME TO LEAVE—It was 2-year-old Dawn Marie Thiede's first trip to Detroit's Belle Isle beach as the temperature hit the mid-eighties yesterday. It took a little convincing by her mother, Sharon, to get her in the water, and when it was time to leave it took a lot of convincing to get her out. The Thiedes are from the Motor City. NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market bounced upward today on the heels of a prime rate cut by New York's First National City Bank.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 7.87 at 836.58. Gainers outdistanced losers by more than a 3-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was only moderate, however.

Citibank, a frequent trendsetter on the prime, announced at the opening it was lowering its basic charge on corporate loans from 7 1/4 to 7 per cent—the lowest level in two years—for the coming week.

Investors also were apparently encouraged over the interest rate outlook by weekly figures from the Federal Reserve after Thursday's close, which showed a sharp decline in business loans at large New York banks.

Another stimulant came in the NYSE's report of a record short interest as of mid-May.

The short interest is the number of borrowed shares sold by investors hoping to profit from price declines, and not yet bought back for return to lenders. A large short interest is traditionally considered bullish since all short sellers must eventually buy back in to complete their transactions.

Sony, the most active issue on the Big Board, rose 1/4 to 10 1/2 in trading that included a 125,000-share block at that price. The short interest in Sony took a big jump from mid-April to mid-May.

Lockheed jumped 1 1/2 to 10 1/2 in active trading. In a regular filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission the company projected a large profit increase over the next two years.

The NYSE's composite index rose .32 to 47.77 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .42 to 87.25.

Richmond Calls For New Conference

Pirates Sign Track Athletes

East Carolina University track coach Bill Carson today announced the signing of a number of outstanding athletes signed by the university to grants-in-aid.

The group includes hurdlers Jeff Wright and Marvin Rankins, the former a junior college transfer and the latter a high school star from Bertie. Wright, from Brevard Junior College, led the North Carolina list of times in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles with a time of 52.5 seconds. He also ran the high hurdles in :14.5.

Rankins won the 120-yard high and the 180-yard low hurdles in the Eastern Regionals last week with times of 13.7 and 18.6, respectively. He has also run a 21.9 clocking in the 220-yard dash.

Herman McIntyre is another Eastern Regional winner from last week, who has signed. A triple jumper from Scotland High in Laurinburg, he leaped 48 feet, 3 inches, three feet over the state record last week.

Al Washington, of Hagerstown Junior College, comes to East Carolina, as a sprinter. He has run the 100 in 9.5 and the 220 in 10.9.

Among others signed are sprinter Donnie Mack of Laurinburg, with a 9.7 in the 100; sprinter Tony Siler of Siler City, with a 9.8 in the 100; sprinter Tommy Woodworth of Erwin with a 9.8 in the 100; middle distance runners James Freeman of Kinston with a 1:56.4 880; Keith Uguhart of Bertie, 1:56.5; Valdez Chavis, Greensboro Grimsley, 1:57.2; and Joe DeLoach of South Edgemore, 1:57.7, and two-miler Ricky Warren of South Lenoir, 9:24.0.

Others include triple jumpers George Jackson of Wilmington Hoggard, 48-0; Mike Hodge, Vaiden-Whitley, 46-4; shotputters Wayne Poole, Vaiden-Whitley, 61-5; Mike Harris, Millbrook, 59-11½; and Tim Wright, Roanoke Rapids, 54-10; and Keith Allamong, of Williamsburg, Va., who has high jumped 6-6, pole vaulted 14-6, and long jumped 23-9.

Church Contests

Oakmont and First Christian took wins in the American Division of the Church Softball League last night as the two remained tied for the lead of that loop.

Trinity also won to remain in second place, a game back of the leaders.

Oakmont started the night off with a 6-5 squeaker over Presbyterian. The Presbyterians broke a 0-0 score in the fourth with a run but the game was retied in the bottom of the inning as Oakmont picked up a run. Oakmont forged into the lead in the fifth with three runs, and added another in the sixth. Presbyterian rallied for four runs in the seventh to tie the game but Oakmont won it in the bottom of the seventh with none out.

First Christian got all it needed in the first two innings on its way to a 12-8 win after spotting Temple to a two-run lead. Christian scored two in the first and went ahead to stay in the second picking up seven with help on a homer by Dickie Hawkins. Temple got a home run in the fifth from William Harrison as they added four more runs. Christian iced the win with three runs in the fifth. Harrison homered again in the seventh for Temple.

Trinity gave up the lead to Memorial in the first, 3-0, but exploded for seven in the fourth to win the game. Anderson had homered for Memorial in the first. Kenneth Manning homered for Trinity in their rally. Trinity added another in the sixth as they pulled out an 8-5 win.

Bill Hands Recapturing Ability With Texas

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Bill Hands has lost his velocity, but none of his vitality.

At the age of 35, Hands no longer throws the ball as hard as he used to, but appears to be pitching as well as ever.

"There's an old saying about never underestimate class — Bill was first class today," said Milwaukee's Jim Colborn, who was outdueling 6-0 by the veteran Texas right-hander Thursday.

Hands, a one-time 20-game winner with the Chicago Cubs in the National League and a member of the Minnesota Twins' staff before coming to the Rangers this year, pitched a gorgeous five-hitter.

After two frustrating seasons with the Twins, Hands appears to have come into his own with the Rangers. Thursday's victory raised his record to 5-2 and lowered his earned run average to 2.10.

"It's just taken me awhile to learn the hitters in the American League," said Hands, who pitched the Rangers into first place in the American League West.

The Rangers took a half-game lead over the idle Oakland A's with the victory.

In the other American League games, the California Angels beat the Boston Red Sox 6-3 and the Chicago White Sox nipped the Baltimore Orioles 2-1. In the National League, the Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed the San Diego Padres 4-2 and the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Chicago Cubs 8-3.

The Texas-Milwaukee game was closer than the final score indicated. Hands only had one run to work with until his teammates erupted for four runs in the eighth inning.

Jim Sundberg and Tovar opened the Texas eighth with singles and base hits by Willie Davis and Mike Hargrove produced the first two Ranger runs of the inning. After Davis and Hargrove worked a double steal, Jim Spencer was intentionally walked and then Toby Harrah singled home two more runs.

Angels 6, Red Sox 3.
Rookie Jerry Remy scored the first run after a leadoff triple and then drove in two more, helping California whip Boston.

Bill Singer settled down after Fred Lynn hit a three-run homer in the third inning to pick up his fourth victory of the season. The right-hander has lost five games.

White Sox 2, Orioles 1.
Carlos May singled across two runs in the third inning and Jim Kaat, with relief help from Rich Gossage, recorded his seventh victory as Chicago nipped Baltimore.

The University of Richmond is asking nine other schools to a meeting that might possibly bring about the formation of a new athletic conference, according to a Richmond newspaper. East Carolina is one of those schools.

Officials at the university, however, were caught somewhat by surprise by the announcement, they said.

According to the Richmond News-Leader, the University of Richmond will invite officials from the other nine schools to a meeting next month to discuss the feasibility of forming the new league.

Three current members of the Southern-East Carolina, Richmond and William & Mary, are among those being considered for admission to the league. Others include two former members, Virginia Tech and West Virginia.

Also involved are Memphis State, Cincinnati and Southern Mississippi, all independents; Louisville of the Missouri Valley Conference, and former Atlantic Coast Conference member South Carolina.

The Richmond paper quoted a Richmond official as saying the meeting was still in the formative stages and that nothing concrete had been decided.

"The only thing I know about it is what I've been told by newsmen and what I've read in the papers," East Carolina Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich said this morning. "As far as I know we've received no invitation to such a meeting, but if we do, we probably would talk. This, of course, would be up to the Athletic Committee, Dr. (Leo) Jenkins, and the Board of Trustees."

Faculty athletic chairman Cliff Moore said he also did not know about the proposal until he heard it late yesterday on the radio. "I was completely surprised," he said. "I guess it's legitimate, but so far as I know we've received no official invitation. But if it comes, we'll look into it. It has all sorts of potential."

Dr. Jenkins was out of town today, but was quoted by the Associated Press as saying that East Carolina would be interested in talking about the new league. "If any new gang came along to talk of a new conference, I'd be less than honest to say we wouldn't be interested. I think we'd have the makings of a strong conference with such schools as Richmond, Virginia Tech, South Carolina and West Virginia." Jenkins did not confirm whether any invitation to such a meeting had been received by the school.

According to the Richmond report, the conference would have two divisions. One would include East Carolina, Richmond, Virginia Tech, William & Mary and West Virginia, while South Carolina, Memphis State, Louisville, Cincinnati and Southern Mississippi would be in the other.

Also, it was said that Memphis State is being very actively sought since it is the site of the Liberty Bowl, and the new league would, with MSU, have an inside track toward getting a tie-in with the bowl.

Smith Is Champion

Sandra Smith captured the Brook Valley Golf and County Club's Women's Club Championship yesterday in a sudden-death playoff.

She and Jan Woodworth both finished the championship flight 36-hole round with a score of 186. Mrs. Smith took her victory on the first hole of the sudden-death showdown.

Helen Bach won the first flight, carding a 90 on her second 18 hole round—and it was her best round ever. Second place went to Ruth Billica who won a sudden-death playoff for that spot over Maxine Hawley.

In the second flight, Ann Moon beat out Ellen Fleming for first place, while Jenny Hill won the third flight. Runner-up for the third flight was Alice Rent-schler.

THIRD MEETING IS SET

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Before the Pan-Africa track and field team travels to America in July or August to compete against the United States, there will be a preparatory meeting in one of the West African countries, Kenyan sports officials have said here.

The track and field meeting between Africa and the U.S. this year will be the third of its kind, the first being held in Durham, N.C., in 1971 and the second in Dakar, Senegal, in 1973.

In Dakar, African men won twice as many races and all races longer than 400 meters. But the Americans dominated field events to win the meet 111 to 101.

Rookie Trying To Get Back After Crash

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — As he lies in bed today and nurses his sore back, and as his pit crew works to create a competitive car from a pile of junk, Duane "Pancho" Carter Jr. can ponder what a difference two minutes would have made. The thought of it may haunt him every time he thinks about 1975's running of the Indianapolis 500. Those two minutes — forgotten seconds to most in the month-long party that is Indy — were all that remained Thursday before a three-hour practice session was to be ended at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

As Carter, a highly regarded young driver, came roaring out of the first turn, his car began one of the most spectacular single-car crashes in the speedway's long history. It slid 420 feet before smacking the outer wall, then spun another 213 feet across the track before clipping a fire truck and coming to rest in a drainage ditch.

The car is a shambles; mechanics worked through the night and are still working to take the parts from a backup car and somehow fit them onto what remains of Carter's. The 24-year-old Carter, meanwhile, stumbled and collapsed as he climbed out of the wreckage, but he escaped with only a torn muscle in his back. Doctors told him to put ice packs on his sore back, and said he could race Sunday.

"Duane's going to be all right," said his father, Duane Sr., as the other drivers for Sunday's $1 million race went over needed adjustments with their crews.

It is considered a certainty that the 24-year-old Carter, the top rookie in last year's 500, will start Sunday in the sixth row. But it will be in a patchwork car in which he will have no chance to practice.

So Carter cannot be considered a strong challenger to pole-sitter A.J. Foyt, who will be a 2-1 favorite to win an unprecedented fourth Indy 500.

Foyt joined Carter and the 31 other drivers here Thursday during the three-hour trial runs. It was the only time this week the cars are allowed on the track.

Johnny Rutherford, last year's winner who will be starting on the inside of the third row Sunday, turned in a lap at 190.921, the second fastest of the day, and said he believed his chances were good to repeat the victory, a trick last turned by Al Unser in 1970 and 1971.

Others who performed well Thursday were Tom Sneva, a 26-year-old former junior high school teacher whose 191-plus was the fastest of the day and Bobby Unser, 38, a former winner here who went above 189 in yet another excellent test of a car designed for him by Dan Gurney.

Foyt's fastest lap was 187.931, eight miles per hour below his fastest qualifying lap, but there was no reason to believe anything was bothering the 40-year-old Texan, whose cunning manner would not put him above holding back from top speeds.

Pearson Wins World 600 Pole; But Pond Is Surprise Qualifier

By RICHARD WATERS
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) —

An unfamiliar face will be on the front row in Sunday's $176,530 World 600 stock car race.

Starting up front with such regulars as David Pearson, Richard Petty, Buddy Baker and Cale Yarborough is young lion Lennie Pond, the 1973 Grand National rookie of the year.

Pearson won his third consecutive pole position at Charlotte Motor Speedway Thursday with a record speed of 159.353 miles per hour, but it was Pond who surprised everyone, including himself, with a speed of 158.908 m.p.h.

"I guess we just hit on the right combination," said Pond, who prepares his own Chevrolet. "I could say we planned it this way. I guess you always want to run good, but man, we weren't expecting to run this fast," said the 34-year-old Petersburg, Va., driver.

"This was by far my best qualifying ever on a super-speedway. Anytime you can run that close to Pearson and the Wood brothers, you've done a day's work," he said.

Pearson's Mercury bested the previous World 600 qualifying mark by a scant .057 of a mile. The six-year-old record was held by Donnie Allison who was timed at 159.296 in a Ford over the mile and a half high banked track.

But Allison's speed was recorded on softer gumball tires before the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing imposed the carburetor restrictor rule in an effort to equalize all cars.

Pearson, defending World 600 champion, has been running well in recent races in Charlotte, having won the last two, the National 500 in October and the 1974 World 600.

A blazing sun sent the mercury into the low 90s Thursday and the track temperature was 130 degrees, officials said, when Pearson's Mercury set the record.

"It seems like the hotter it gets, the better we do," the Spartanburg, S. C., speedster said. "Although we qualified a little faster than some of the cars, I don't believe it will be a runaway race. I figured that Richard Petty would run as fast as we did. In fact, I was quite surprised that he didn't outrun me."

Petty, whose Dodge was nearly a mile slower than Pearson's pole speed, turned in the third best time of the day at 158.507 m.p.h. He was followed by Buddy Baker whose Ford was clocked at 158.307.

Starting positions one through 15 were filled Thursday with 15 more to be filled today and the final 10 slots up for grabs Saturday.

Rounding out the first 10 positions were Cale Yarborough, Darrell Waltrip, Allison, Dave Marcis, Charlie Giotz and Dick Brooks. Only 6.8 miles per hour separated Pearson's speed and the 15th qualifier, Jim Vandiver, who was timed at 152.542.

Three Tied For Memphis Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) —

Some self-examination, and a little change in his game, paid off for John Mahaffey.

"I took some time off to reevaluate myself," Mahaffey said. "I was not getting what I should out of my game. I discovered I'd let my swing get too flat."

"I moved a little closer to the ball and got my hands higher."

The result was a string of eight birdies in 10 holes and, with a 65, a tie with Tom Weiskopf and Andy North for the first round lead Thursday in the $175,000 Danny Thomas Memphis Golf Classic.

"I'm tickled to death with what I got, but it could have been even better," said Mahaffey, who hit the cup with a 30-foot putt that refused to fall and missed another of about four feet.

Jack Nicklaus, who birdied five holes in a row, was just one shot back, tied with Larry Hinson at 66.

The scores were among the lowest of the season. Veteran

Gene Littler, Tom Kite and Mark Hayes were at 67, five under par. Gary Player of South Africa, the defending champion, had a 68 and missed three times from five feet or less.

"Any time you have weather like this — warm and practically no wind and a course conditioned this well, you're going to have low scores," analyzed Nicklaus.

"The greens are so big and well defined, if you drive it in the fairway you have no trouble hitting the green. And the greens are so true, you can two-putt from anywhere," Weiskopf said of the gently rolling, lake-dotted, 7,193 yard Colonial Country Club course.

Lee Trevino continued to have his problems. A balky putter contributed to a 74 that put him in danger of missing the cut after Friday's second round.

Billy Casper, a winner last week, and Dave Hill, a four-time Memphis champion, had 71s.

Johnny Miller and Arnold Palmer are not competing.

Joe Says No To World Loop

By JOHN R. SKINNER
AP Sports Writer
FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) —

Joe Namath has rejected the World Football League's $4 million offer, but says he isn't ready to hang up his National Football League cleats as long as the money is right.

Namath, who played out his option with the New York Jets last year to become a free agent, said at a press conference Thursday night that no NFL team except the Jets has bid for his services.

But he said he was open to offers.

The Jets reportedly have offered their star quarterback a three-year contract worth $1 million. Namath said returning to New York is "certainly a possibility if we can come to an understanding of terms."

Namath was apologetic over not signing with the WFL, but maintained the WFL would not be ruined without him.

"In no way does the league's success stand with any one individual," said Namath. He ironically was joined later Thursday night by former Miami Dolphins Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick, both signed by the WFL, as he opened a new nightclub here.

"A great deal of the WFL's success this year is going to depend on the quality of the football," added Namath, who at 31 is still the sport's highest priced commodity despite his injury-plagued knees.

WFL President Chris Hemminger said in Honolulu that not signing Namath "may be a tremendous setback in TV negotiations for 1975."

"But on the other hand, it may be a plus factor because we have established in the sporting community that the league will not compromise its principles," Hemminger said.

"It was a very attractive offer and a very difficult decision to make," Namath said. "I felt bad about not signing. Every-

"I decided not to accept it because of the reasons stated — personal and private," he said. "Maybe in the future, I can elaborate on my personal reason, but right now I don't want to discuss it and I don't feel I have to."

The WFL offered Namath a $500,000 signing bonus and a three-year playing contract for $500,000 a year, plus a $100,000 pension for 20 years and possible partial ownership in a future WFL team in New York.

Namath said the contract called for him to play two years in Chicago and the third year in New York, where the WFL currently has no team.

Integon Upsets Exchange, 12-7

Integon pulled off a 12-7 upset of Exchange yesterday, knocking their victim out of a tie for first place in the Tar Heel Little League.

The loss left the Exchange with a 4-2 record, while Integon boosted its mark to 3-3.

The Exchange came up with three first inning runs to take a brief lead. Mark Douglas walked and Gordon Douglas singled, then stole second. John Williams provided the punch, hitting a three-run homer that accounted for all of the runs in the frame.

But Integon put it all together in the bottom of the first coming back with 10 big runs to take the lead for good. Mont Carter singled and Junior Neal walked. Horace Barnett also walked, loading the bases. Andy Smith walked to force in Carter. Van Warren reached on an error, bringing in all three baserun-ners. He then scored when Mike Holloman reached on another miscue. Steve Hall was safe on a fielder's choice and Keith Stocks walked to reload the bases. Carter walked, forcing in Holloman. Neal then stole home with the 10th Integon run.

The Exchange got another run in the fifth. Steve Irwin singled and moved up on an error. He took third on an out and scored on Jimmy Jones' hit.

Integon added two more in the bottom of the fifth. Stocks walked and Carter doubled. Neal reached on an error, scoring Stocks, and Carter stole home.

Exchange got three more in the sixth. Mark Douglas and Gordon Douglas both singled and Williams hit his second three-run homer of the day to end the scoring.

Colonels Reign As ABA Champs

By GEORGE W. HACKETT
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) —

Game 751 was the biggest of them all for the Kentucky Colonels.

When it ended Thursday evening, they had won their first American Basketball Association championship by holding off Indiana, 110-105, ending an eight-year drought.

Colonels' owner Ellie Brown, sipping champagne afterwards in the dressing room, said, "We're ready to take on the National Basketball Association in a Super Bowl, but they probably won't do it. They have too much to lose."

Louie Dampier, the only Colonels' player still around since Game No. 1 was played in 1967, admitted it was nice to collect a winner's check for approximately $7,000, "but there's something more important."

"The money will go into the bank or I'll spend it, but I'll have a championship ring to keep forever."

In taking the series four games to one, the Colonels relied heavily on Artis Gilmore, who collected 28 points and set a playoff record by snatching 31 rebounds. That was three more than he had last Saturday when he broke the old mark of 27 held jointly by Tom Washington and Mel Daniels.

Voted the most valuable player of the series, Gilmore also won a new car.

Ted McClain, who hit 19 points, was credited with 15 steals, an ABA record.

High point honors went to Indiana's Billy Knight, who finished with 40, followed by George McGinnis with 31.

It was Knight, with 22 seconds left on the clock, who almost pulled the game out for Indiana when he hit two free throws, narrowing the gap to 108-103. He then dropped in a 13-foot shot, but Gilmore was fouled and pumped in two from the free throw line to make it 110-105.

Indiana called time out with 15 seconds left, and when play resumed Billy Kelger fired off a 26-footer that missed.

In Game No. 2, it was Keller's 45-foot shot that touched off an Indiana protest after Kentucky won 95-93.

ABA Commissioner Dave Debusschere ruled that the shot came after the final buzzer, despite Indiana's claim that two seconds still showed on the clock.

UNC-W In Victory

GREENSBORO N.C. (AP)—West Liberty State scored eight runs in the sixth inning on its way to a 10-5 victory over Newberry in Thursday night's opening game of the NAIA Area 7 baseball tournament.

North Carolina-Wilmington defeated High Point 14-5 in the second game. Third baseman Bobby Schupp had vie hits and three runs batted in for the winning Sea Hawks.

High Point will play Newberry this afternoon, with the loser eliminated. North Carolina-Wilmington will meet West Liberty State of West Virginia in the first game of tonight's doubleheader. The loser of that game will play the winner of the afternoon game.

Mandatory Job-Listing Requirement Amended

The federal law concerning employers having federal contracts has been amended. Previously, employers having a federal contract in the amount of $2,500 or more were required to list their job openings with the local office of the N.C. Employment Security Commission. The amendment has raised the contract to $10,000 or more.

The law also applies to various sub contractors working for a prime contractor. The primary thrust of the amendment is to require contractors to take affirmative action in the employment and advancement of qualified Vietnam Era veterans. Jim Hannan, Manager of the Greenville office of the N.C. Employment Security Commission, said the law was passed to improve the chances of the veteran, especially the Vietnam veteran, in finding gainful employment. The law does not force federal contractors to hire any specific applicant, but it does require these companies and firms to list their job openings with the State Employment offices.

"However," Hannan said, "the final choice of applicant remains with the employer. We do not hire, we only refer people for the employers consideration. As to enforcing the requirement to list job openings, that is the U.S. Labor Department's area."

In addition to placing job orders for various skills and trades needed for a job the employer must also identify the name and locations of hiring sites across the state. Once each quarter a report of these openings and of hiring done during the quarter is required to be reported to the Employment Security Commission. Forms to report mandatory hiring activity may be obtained from the Employment Office.

Employers failing or neglecting to list their job openings are subject to penalties under the law. Also, any veteran who has cause to believe a contractor has failed to or refused to abide by the law may file a complaint with the Labor Department.

Hannan urges all companies and firms with federal contracts and especially those with a contract of $10,000 or more to contact the Greenville office at 1002 S. Evans St., to make certain they are complying with the mandatory listing law.

If an employer has a question on this law or wants other information concerning employment, he can call 752-6146.

North Pitt

School News

By GENEVA HOLDER
Jimmie Sue Spain, a junior at North Pitt, was presented the Helen Perkins Award for the best high school poem at the annual Author's Luncheon held in Greenville recently. The event was sponsored by the Greenville Woman's Club.

The name of her poem was "The Victim."

Walter Blount's second and sixth period U.S. History classes traveled to the Pitt County Court House Friday to observe district court in session.

A "no-fine-no-questions-asked" policy has been adopted by the North Pitt Library for this week. All students are urged to return overdue books because the number of volumes present in the school library has a direct relationship with North Pitt's accreditation.

The North Pitt Senior Class will have their group picture taken by a photographer on The Daily Reflector staff Tuesday.

The North Pitt High School JROTC Cadet Battalion sponsored a dance Monday night to raise funds for special activities, uniforms and orientation visits.

Douglas Teel, a graduate of Bethel Union, served as disc-jockey for the dance. The dance was planned and administered by Danny Stancil, cadet battalion commander, and his staff.

Received Award At Miss. Univ.

UNIVERSITY, Miss. — John David Duffus Jr. of Greenville, N. C., was presented the Bank of Mississippi Award during an awards ceremony recently at the University of Mississippi here.

A university law student, Duffus was presented the award by Doug Wright, trust officer of the bank. Selected tax books are presented each year to the law student who achieves the highest grade-point average in the area of estate and gift taxation.

PTA Meet At Pactolus

PACTOLUS — The Pactolus Elementary School School held its regular PTA meeting of May in the school auditorium.

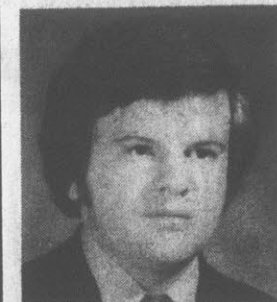

During the business session of the meeting, Mr. Donald Roberson, president, presented the PTA with their certificate of membership. Mrs. Linda O'Conner reported that in the work toward Southern Accreditation, the faculty was most anxious to have more parental involvement, suggestions and ideas.

As the self-study of the school is being completed, the community and school are working together to improve the curriculum, and the physical plant to reflect their concern. Mrs. Eula Bennett, chairman of the Beautification Committee, reported the proposed program for the next few months and asked for volunteers as well as materials to be used. The PTA agreed to help.

The meeting was the last PTA of the school year.

Happy Birthday, Frank!

The most popular frank of all, the skinless frank, was born 50 years ago.

We know because we're the ones who developed it.

First we came up with a cellulose skin that shapes the frank but can be removed after processing.

Then we worked with meat packers to find ways to make the frank better and tastier. And to process it at high speed so the price would stay low.

As a result, the frankfurter became one of the most popular food items in the world.

Last year, Americans ate 21 billion frankfurters. Most of them were made with our casing.

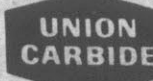

The same type of cellulose film also goes around many other delicious things. Bologna, pepperoni, kielbasa, kosher salami, bratwurst—you name it.

Other films we make help preserve the freshness of meats and poultry right to your table.

And, of course, you know about our GLAD bags and wraps.

As for frank's birthday, if you'd like to help us celebrate it, just look in your refrigerator. The guest of honor is probably in there.

Today, something we do will touch your life.

Says Indy Track One Of Safest

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Some persons may consider the Indianapolis Motor Speedway an arena where safety precautions are nil, to put it mildly. But retired auto racing champion Jackie Stewart isn't among them.

"I've always considered Indy to be the best-equipped facility in the world for an emergency situation or accident," says Stewart, an outspoken advocate of racing safety during his later years in the sport.

"Because of the personnel, the fire trucks, the ambulances, there are so many emergency equipment units available that no matter where an accident occurs on the track it's immediately serviced."

The 35-year-old Scot, who drove in the Indianapolis 500 in 1966 and 1967, will be at Indy on Sunday as one of the ABC-TV crew covering the race. ABC will air it on a delayed basis Sunday night.

Stewart says officials at Indy have made the course a safer one over the years, particularly by putting up so-called "debris fences" to protect spectators and heightening a wall in front of the track's pit area.

Asked what other changes he'd like made at Indy, he said one he sees as obvious is the installation of a "strong and robust debris fence protecting the pit lane on the front straightaway."

Such fences consist of strong metal uprights which hold up heavy-duty chain link fences and are backed by taut metal ropes.

He said one should be put up behind the wall separating the pit area and the track to protect drivers, mechanics and others should a collision send a car flying towards the pit area.

"Now, that is an important addition that is necessary because I consider that there is still the very strong risk that a car could get into the pit lane" after a crash, he said.

Stewart, who has helped ABC cover the Indy race since 1971, won the world driving championship three times before quitting racing.

"I had been motor racing as an amateur and as a professional for 13 years and I enjoyed my career enormously," he said of his decision in October 1973 to leave the sport for good.

"But I felt a strong responsibility to my family, to my wife and children in exposing them to the sort of risks that motor racing provides. And I really felt that for them I had to retire."

Carolina Cotton Acreage Reduced

RALEIGH (AP)—Cotton acreage in North Carolina and South Carolina has been cut back drastically for the 1975 growing season although demand has improved slightly with a slow speedup in production within the textile industry.

Estimates of cutbacks in the cotton crop this year range from 30 to 60 per cent in the two states as growers, unhappy over price declines, switch to other crops or let their land stand idle. Nationally, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Crop Reporting Board predicted growers would plant only 71 per cent of the 1974 crop.

The crop reporting board has estimated South Carolina acreage this year at 140,000, or 44 per cent of the amount planted in 1974. In North Carolina the projection was for 75,000 acres, or 47 per cent of the 1974 crop.

State officials say the actual acreage planted may be slightly higher, but accurate totals are not available. "Some of the land will go to soybeans, but the picture on beans doesn't look much better," according to Otho J. Lysterly of the Carolinas Cotton Growers Cooperative Association.

Lysterly and John Cyrus, chief of the field crops section for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, agreed that growers shifting to the other crops might still have difficulty making a profit.

"For the last couple of years, income from soybeans and corn has been a little better than for cotton. But with the price trend we have now, I don't know whether that's going to continue to be true," Cyrus said.

Cotton sold for as much as 55 cents a pound last year. It has been 10 cent or more below that figure in recent weeks, and Lysterly said the prospects for the current year included price projections of 38 to 40 cents a pound.

"Most growers cannot come out on that price," he said. Cyrus noted that the 1974 corn crop sold for more than $3 a bushel, but "it looks like we may be selling some $2 to $2.25 corn this year. Soybeans started out above $6 a bushel last fall, then fell below $5 and are handing in there a little better than $5."

The price decline this year has been blamed on the Presidential veto of a proposed emergency farm bill, loss of foreign contracts from countries that could buy cotton cheaper on the world market and on the production cutbacks in the textile industry.

The cotton planting season ended last week.

The outlook for 1976 remains uncertain. However, Cyrus noted that, "with the smaller crop this year and the possibility of some of the cotton held in storage moving on, the prospect for cotton could be much brighter in 1976."

Opening lead: King of ♠.

Illinois star Bill Rosen and Milt Rosenberg teamed with former New Jerseyites Les Bart and Eugene O'Neill to win the Lancia Swiss Tournament held last month in Chicago. Their victory earned them the right to meet the touring Lancia Team, which includes Omar Sharif, in a 60-board match for the Alitalia Trophy—and perhaps five Lancia cars.

A fake cue-bid by Rosenberg on this hand netted a huge gain for his team against one of their most serious rivals when it steered the opening leader away from the killing attack. In the auction, West took advantage of the vulnerability to make a weak takeout double based on distribution. When East elected to show his club suit, Rosenberg cue-bid three clubs with the South hand. He was chiefly interested in showing his club stopper for a possible three no trump contract, but he never got a chance to clarify his holding before his partner drove the hand to slam.

Even without a cue-bid of clubs, West might have elected to open the king of hearts. With the bid, he did not even give a second thought to the club lead which would have netted his side two quick tricks at the opening gun. Declarer was quick to profit from the reprieve.

South won the first trick in dummy and immediately ruffed a heart with the five of trumps, preserving the two for later use. The king of diamonds and the seven of the ace drew the outstanding trumps and left declarer in dummy for another heart ruff with the eight. Now the two of diamonds was led to dummy's four, and a third heart ruff set up dummy's fifth heart.

All that remained to do was to cash the ace of spades, enter dummy with a spade and discard two clubs on the high spade and long heart. That left South with only one club, and that was the only trick the defenders got.

Report On Last Days Of South Vietnamese Army

(AP Special Correspondent Peter Arnett began covering the Vietnam War in 1962. He was there when it ended and has remained since the Communists took over. Here is his report on the last days of the South Vietnamese army.)

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent
SAIGON (AP) — One commanding general blew his brains out after ordering his 15,000-man infantry division to surrender without a fight. Another fled in panic after commandeering the only jeep still running in his shell-blasted camp. He was captured wading a river.

That was the inglorious end of the two South Vietnamese infantry divisions defending Saigon in the last hours of the Vietnam War, the finale of the 50-day rout of the million-man, American-created Army of the Republic of Vietnam that began in the Central Highlands and spread down the coast until Saigon itself was left defenseless and defeated.

Reports of the final hours of the 15-year war have trickled into Saigon from survivors of the two divisions involved — the 5th north of Saigon and the 25th to the northwest. They tell of men fleeing in blind panic from murderously accurate artillery fire, of officers deserting, of complete resignation to defeat by whole units, and of a few who tried to salvage some honor from the sudden stunning victory grabbed by the Communists. The pattern of defeat became evident early in April when elite units around Hue and Da Nang fled as Communist forces massed in the hills. The debacle allowed Communist forces to encircle Saigon a full week before the fall of the city, and the message was apparent — surrender or else. In the last week, only the 25th and 5th Divisions stood between the Communists and mastery of the capital. The Communists moved first against the 25th, slamming shells for three days into the Cu Chi base camp, which the U.S. 25th Division had carved out of the jungle 20 miles northwest of Saigon in 1966.

The Communist forces launched the overwhelming last attack on the Cu Chi base at 6 a.m. on April 29. The first target was a division training center whose soldiers broke and ran in the first minutes. An hour later Communist tanks were inside Cu Chi. The division commander, Maj. Ba told his troops to stay in place. But within three hours a company commander reported the tanks were through the sprawling base's second line of defense and were threatening the command bunker. Ba ordered his command staff into two groups and ran out.

"At that moment I saw that all men were going their own way and not following orders," said a staff officer who was present. "All looked for a way of escape to avoid fire and shelling. I myself ran away, jumping over any kind of obstacle including barbed wire toward the main gate of the base to seek a way out. What was most dramatic were the wounded. Some had lost one leg but still tried to drag themselves on — to where nobody knew. Other wounded were ignored by fellow combatants.

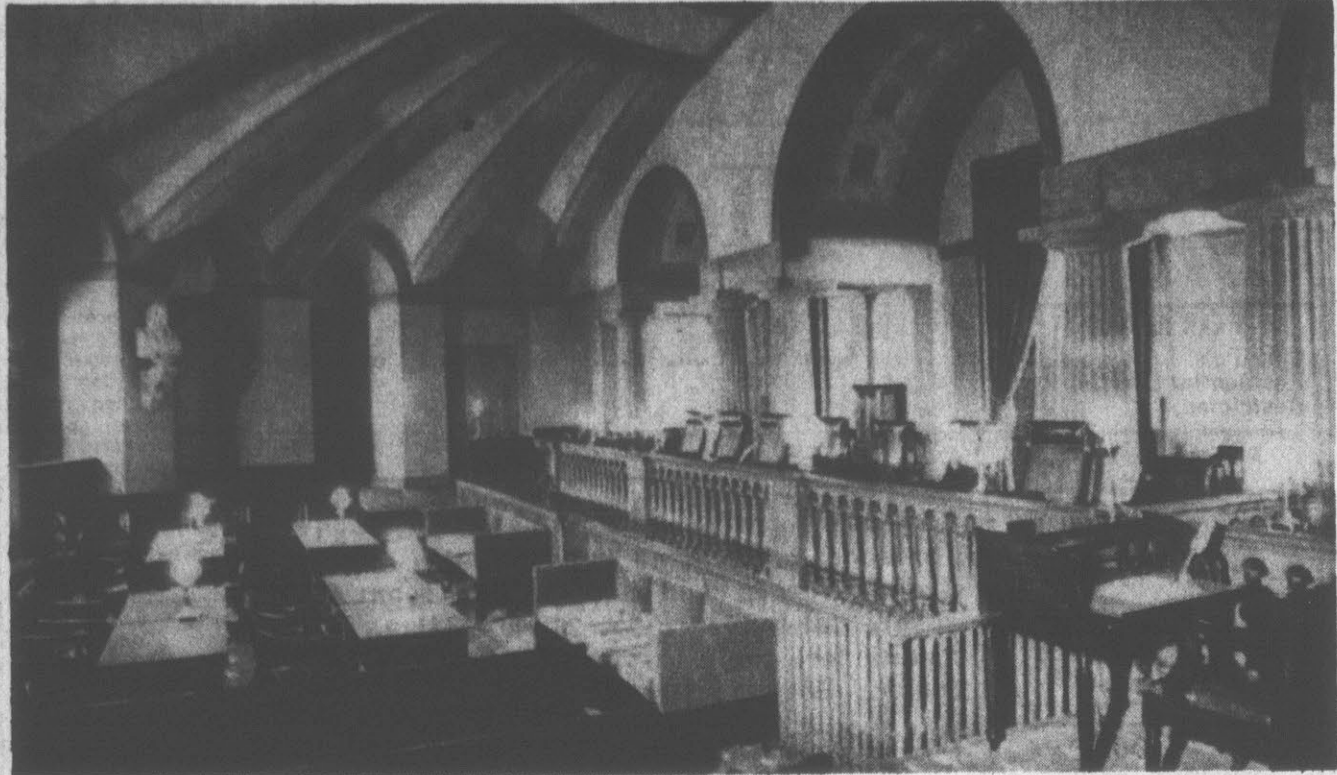

"When Gen. Ba and his staff reached the main gate at the base more than 1,000 men were trying, each in his own way, to escape, climbing over the gate, crossing fields of mines. Quite a few had been shot dead by fellow combatants for earlier having refused to obey the order to resist. "Gen. Ba himself jumped on the only jeep left, belonging to the artillery commander. He ordered the gate opened so he could flee. After the gates opened, a fleeing crowd swelled to more than 2,000 as families joined soldiers. They looked like bees fleeing an endangered hive. Communist guns began firing from nearby but they were firing into the air to stop the soldiers and not to kill them."

The officer was captured and held for a few days in a school building, then released to his family in Saigon. Gen. Ba, according to other reports, got as far as a river about three miles from Cu Chi, but the bridge across it was gone. He called in a rescue helicopter by radio, but it was shot as it came coming in for him. He was captured as he tried to wade across the river. Meanwhile, the staff of the 5th Division at Lai Khe, about 35 miles north of Saigon, was apprehensively assessing the situation. The Lai Khe base, also created by American forces, stood across Highway 13, long regarded as an obvious Communist approach to Saigon. By late in the day of April 29, the division headquarters had lost contact with the corps headquarters at Bien Hoa, and the division commander, Brig. Gen. Le Nguyen Vy, was reduced to following the war news on Radio Saigon. It told him nothing of what was happening to the 25th Division. Gen. Vy ordered all vehicles regrouped in preparation for the whole division to move to Saigon for a final defense of the capital. But on the morning of April 30 Vy decided on another course of action. He called a staff meeting at 7 a.m., which was three hours before President Duong Van Minh announced an unconditional surrender. All were present except the deputy division commander, who had fled from the country in an American plane. Gen. Vy told his staff that Saigon would soon fall. He turned over command to Col. Tu Van and said: "As an officer of the South Vietnamese army, I must act for the honor of the army, but you must protect the lives of the soldiers. Good luck to you." The general went to his house, lit a cigarette and shot himself. Col. Tu Van found the body and ordered it buried with full military honors. As Communist tanks made their last push on Saigon 35 miles to the south, the full 5th Division assembled under the Lai Khe flag pole, "and in a short but emotional funeral Gen. Vy was buried and the honor of the division was saved," one officer said later. "We were all very proud of this event." At 1 p.m., after the surrender announcement from Saigon, the whole division boarded 200 trucks and drove south to the town of Ben Cat, which the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong had occupied. The convoy stopped outside the town. The soldiers dismounted, dropped their weapons and took off their uniforms as about 50 Communists in black pajamas carrying AK47 rifles stood by. The men stayed under guard for two days in Ben Cat. Then all were released except officers of the rank of captain and above, who were held for "re-training." Some have since returned to Saigon.

New Hurricane Radar System Is Ready For Gulf Of Mexico Tests

By RICHARD M. HARNETT
MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) — A radar system that could penetrate the eye of a hurricane and "read" its force and speed from reflections of the ocean waves below will be tested during the next Gulf of Mexico hurricane season.

Dr. James R. Barnum, a radar scientist with the Stanford Research Institute, has been testing his system on a patch of the Pacific one-third the size of the United States.

High frequency radar beams are bounced onto the surface of the ocean. The shape of the ocean waves, their height, contour and movement, act like mirrors, bouncing the radar beams back in patterns which can be read by a minicomputer and transformed into weather map data.

"We want to extend this research to an actual fully developed hurricane," Barnum said in an interview. "If any should pass through the Gulf we will be up and operating."

He believes the scheme promises to at least double the accuracy of predicting where violent Atlantic and Gulf hurricanes will strike land. Present predictions based on satellite pictures and aircraft observations are as much as 200 miles off.

A single hurricane, Carmen, caused an estimated $90 million in damage last year.

"In order to predict where it will strike land and with what force, we need to know the pattern of development on the surface of the ocean," Barnum said. "We have measurement of the approximate location from satellites and approximate wind speeds at the upper level from aircraft. What we really need to know is what is going on at the surface."

Present radar hurricane-tracking systems use low-frequency beams which "get echoes off the rain," Barnum said. "This means they are able to track the system but are not able to use that data extensively in predicting where it will land, or with what force."

Barnum said the experimental radar station operated by SRI at Los Banos, Calif., scans the ocean, picking up data on surface waves in 10-square-mile patches 80 miles apart and updating them every six hours.

The scientist said his data received from the radar has "very good coordination" with information reported by ships at sea. He said the system has not yet encountered winds of hurricane speeds.

"Winds of 100 miles an hour like those at the center of a hurricane have some effects which are not well understood, such as blowing the tops off of waves," Barnum said. "We will probably learn a great deal the first time we track a hurricane." The SRI scientists said several radar installations could be strategically located to track hurricanes and provide continuous information on vast areas of the ocean. Surface wind readings are now obtained only from widely scattered ships. He said the cost per installation would be about $5 million, no more than the cost of one weather-observing aircraft.

The system would also allow oceanographers to detect and monitor the formation and movement of freak wind-caused ocean waves. Such waves, huge enough to swamp a supertanker, have been observed in the future oil routes to the Gulf of Alaska.
