NATO Agrees Soviet Over-Arming

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — President Ford and the leaders of the North Atlantic alliance agreed today that the Soviet Union and its allies have been increasing their forces beyond what they need for defense.

An unofficial version of their final statement said the Western allies were determined to maintain their solidarity, and where it has been weakened to restore it by removing the cause.

They said that maintaining their own defense effort had come up against difficulties resulting from the economic situation in the world. They also said they were determined to face these problems together and firmly.

Earlier, some European leaders praised Ford for reaffirming U.S. support to the NATO allies, but Turkey's premier attacked America's arms ban against his country as a "self-destructive act."

Gen. Vasco Goncalves, Portugal's leftist premier, was quoted as asking the allies for "more comprehension and less apprehension" and defending Portugal's approaches to the Soviet Union. He also promised that Portugal would remain a loyal ally, and said there had been too much talk in the West about its affairs.

The speeches were delivered behind closed doors and spokesmen furnished accounts of them to newsmen.

In his denouncement of the U.S. arms embargo against his nation, Turkish Premier Suleyman Demirel of Turkey did not mention the United States by name but included strong words against the embargo.

"If we admit that the threat we are facing continues, that the contribution of Turkey is as important as it was in the past, it is very difficult to find any justification capable of explaining this self-destructive act," he said.

His attitude has been endorsed by a number of other NATO members.

The Ford administration has been trying to get the embargo lifted.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain told Ford the loyalty of the United States to its European allies was never in doubt, despite setbacks to American policy.

Wilson said he welcomed the President's reassurance of support at the opening Thursday of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's two-day summit meeting.

French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues called NATO "the bulwark of our security" and echoed Wilson in saying that the French never doubted America's loyalty to its pledges.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt said, "The President of the United States yesterday pointed out the problems of the alliance in an important contribution."

He said he took satisfaction in the President's statement that the United States would not unilaterally reduce its 300,000 troops in Western Europe.

"You may be assured, that in these times when the United States carries the especially heavy burden of worldwide responsibility, we too stand at your side: you can rely just as much on us," Schmidt told Ford.

Aldo Moro, Italy's premier, said, "The solidarity reaffirmed by President Ford has become alive and operative for all."

In his speech on Thursday, Ford conceded that the Communist victories in South Vietnam and Cambodia "have led some to question our strength and reliability."

'Can Do Anything'

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Jimmy Certain, who has performed many feats on his legs since being stricken by polio as an infant, is out to break the world's record for walking on his hands.

The 15-year-old high school sophomore, who couldn't walk at all until he was 7, says he has bettered the listed time of 29.5 seconds for walking 50 yards on his hands eight of the nine times he's practiced it.

"I know I can break that record," said Jimmy, who regularly handwalks upstairs and down at Cooper City High, to the delight of his classmates. "I can do anything I put my mind to."

His mother, Therese Certain, said doctors told her that Jimmy, at the age of two months, almost died of the polio that affected his digestive tract and kept him from holding food down. But he battled back.

At 7 years old, he was walking a month after a doctor cut the cast off his leg — now nearly three inches shorter and thinner than the other.

Jimmy set a youth football league record for unassisted tackles — 12 in one game. He races motorcycles, has a 5-1-1 record as a high school wrestler, and bench pressed 220 pounds in weight lifting — a school record in his class as a 140-pounder.

As Jimmy prepares for next week's assault on the Guinness World Book of Records' handwalking title, he recalls that he used to feel out of place on the baseball field.

"I limped and couldn't run as fast as the other kids, but I tried anyway," he said. "You've got to try. You can't just cry."

'Surcharge' Faces Some Motorists

RALEIGH (AP) — Drivers with moving violations and accident records would face auto insurance surcharges under a bill approved by a Senate committee Thursday to abolish age and sex as factors in setting automobile insurance rates.

The bill, which passed the House by a 2-1 margin, has the backing of Insurance Commissioner John Ingram. The Senate Insurance Committee gave it a favorable report despite protests from the insurance industry.

However, the committee amended the bill Thursday to repeal it automatically after a two-year trial. That would force the 1977 legislature to review the plan.

The committee also attached an amendment letting the insurance rating bureau set rates with Ingram's approval. The House-passed measure would give Ingram absolute control over rate classifications and rates.

The bill would require that age and sex must not be taken into account in rate setting, but only the use of the car and the driver's record. Currently, male drivers under 25 pay higher rates.

Drivers with convictions for moving violations and chargeable accidents would face proposed surcharges ranging from $10 to $320 a year.

Insurance industry representatives were angry that the committee did not give more consideration to an industry plan called Fair that would have based rates on sex, age and martial status and had about 90 categories.

Ethics legislation advanced in the House on Thursday, but two hours of debate produced no resolution of separate House and Senate bills. The House gave final approval to its own measure, which encompasses all branches of government, after tentatively approving a Senate bill that deals only with legislative ethics.

The House apparently intends to dump both measures in the lap of the Senate simultaneously. Final consideration of the Senate bill was set as the first order of business today and the House bill was held to be sent to the Senate at the same time.

The House watered down a financial disclosure provision in its own bill Thursday, bringing it closer to the Senate measure. Rep. William Creech, D-Wake, sponsor of the House bill, amended it to require disclosure of only the type of business or client from which a government official receives income, not the specific name.

The Senate bill has the same vague disclosure provision, which Rep. Art Thomas, D-Cabarrus, complained made the legislation meaningless.

Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Haywood, introduced a lengthy amendment that would have toughened the bill radically. Supporters of the bill, however, resisted the amendment for fear its passage would kill the legislation.

The House turned down the amendment on a 56-51 vote. The Senate bill was passed on an 86-15 roll call and the House measure by 81-17.

House speaker James Green said Thursday that a pay raise for state employes and teachers must be the top priority in the second year of the 1975-77 biennium.

He said he did not agree with a tentative Senate plan to approve the raises on a "contingency" basis for the second year budget, to be paid only if state revenue collections exceed current forecasts.

Green also endorsed two fringe benefits for employes and state pensioners. One is a $4 million state supplement to their health insurance premium costs and the other a $575,000 increase in pension benefits.

The House Finance Committee approved a bill Thurs-

Heart Attack Fatal

Farmville Fire Chief H. P. Norman said he went to the hospital with L. H. Faulkner after the 38-year-old man suffered the attack about the time the fire at the home of Jennis Harper here was extinguished. He was pronounced dead on arrival. The Farmville Rescue Squad, which had been standing by at the fire, transported him. Faulkner reportedly had a history of heart trouble. He was not dressed for fire-fighting and was standing by the truck listening to the two-way radio at the time of the attack, the fire chief said.

The fire, said to have started in the carport of the Harper home on North Contentnea Street here, involved several explosions. More than one L.P. gas cylinder for a gas grill exploded, as did the fuel tanks of a boat and a motorcycle.

The Harper family, having dinner inside the house at the time of the first explosion at approximately 7:15 p.m., was not injured. Chief Norman said Harper told him he had prepared meat for the meal on the grill and thought he had turned it off. Norman said he would not be certain that the fire started with the grill, though it did seem to be in its vicinity.

Damage to the house was extensive, enough to render it unlivable. The fire chief refused to estimate.

Norman said several of his men were treated for exhaustion as they battled the hour-long and extremely hot blaze.

DEPENDENT CARE DEDUCTION

I am a working mother. I understand that, for the first time next year, working parents will be able to deduct from their state taxes for child care. How much deduction is allowed? Mrs. W. W.

Yes, care of any dependent person costing up to $400 a month may be deducted. The person providing care cannot be a relative or someone living in the home, however. The adjusted gross income of husband and wife cannot exceed $18,000 to get the full deduction. Since marital partners must file separately in this state, its's probably wise for the spouse not maintaining the household to claim the deduction. You should keep track of how much you pay to whom for what services, so you would have proof if your return were audited. Nursery school receipts or canceled checks and Social Security numbers of persons you hire should be sufficient. Guidelines now are being developed by the N. C. Department of Revenue.

HOTLINE APPEAL

HOST FAMILY NEEDED

The American Field Service chapter being formed here now would like to appeal for a family who would agree to host a teenager from another country this summer. It is urgent that we line up the family right away as the international organization has agreed to waive an $850 charge for having such a student in the community, so Greenville can have one this summer. We must act quickly. Mrs. C. D.

Any family wishing to have such a student as a house guest this summer may contact Mrs. Carol Dohm at 758-0982. Students and families are screened and, as much as is possible, compatible personalities are matched.

Smuggling Plane Dead Identified

By WILLIAM MORRISSEY
Associated Press Writer

ROCKWOOD, Tenn. (AP) — An unregistered cargo airplane that crashed here with an estimated ton of marijuana aboard and claimed two lives was traveling an established drug smuggling route, officials indicate.

The plane crashed before sunrise Thursday and burned at the Rockwood Municipal Airport while taking off from the untended facility about 45 miles west of Knoxville.

Morgan County Sheriff Cecil Byrge said two charred bodies were recovered from the wreckage along with 800 pounds of marijuana that did not burn in the crash.

The bodies were taken to University Hospital in Knoxville where Dr. Robert Lash, Federal Aviation Administration medical examiner, identified them as Jennings Caney Brown Jr. and Charles K. McAnally, both of Gainesville, Fla.

The airplane was a Lockheed Lodestar of World War II vintage that customs officials in Florida said is similar to airplanes often used by drug smugglers. It has a large cargo capacity and long flight range.

They said three similar airplanes smuggling drugs into the country have crashed in recent months in Florida.

Driver Killed By Falling Tree

CHALYBEATE SPRINGS, N.C. (AP)—A Fuquay-Varina, N.C., woman was killed when a tree fell on her car while driving on a rural road near Chalybeate Springs.

The Highway Patrol identified the victim as Joyce Hardee Mangum, 38. Mrs. Mangum's car was crushed Wednesday when a pine tree being cut down by Robert Bradley Tilly fell across the road, the patrol said.

Future Site

The Greenville Utilities Commission has advised the Planning and Zoning Commission that GUCO has purchased the old Smith Farm on the north side of the Tar River west of the airport as a site for a future water treatment plant.

In a letter to the planning board, GUCO director Charles Horne pointed out, "We want your agency to be advised of this purchase and our plans for future water treatment plant construction, such that plans or future operations under your jurisdiction would take this site into consideration."

Horne noted that presently GUCO has no "immediate plans for construction or preparation of construction plans" but he asserted that the commission anticipates city growth will necessitate planning and construction within the next five to ten years.

Questions U2 Crash Version

LONDON (AP) — A British lawmaker said today the American U2 reconnaissance plane that crashed near the East German border Thursday might have been rocketed or attacked by East German fighters.

Leftist Laborite Tom Litterick called on the United States "to explain publicly what really happened" when the plane crashed in a forest clearing near Winterberg, West Germany, just a few minutes from the Communist East German border.

The pilot, Capt. Robert R. Rendleman, of Tucson, Ariz., ejected from the plane just minutes before it hit the ground and escaped unhurt.

A spokesman at the U.S. European Command in Stuttgart, West Germany, said the plane, operating from a Royal Air Force base at Wethersfield, England, was not on a spy mission. They said it was testing navigational equipment and was not outfitted for photos.

Frank Allaun, another leftist Labor party member of Parliament, said he would ask Prime Minister Harold Wilson whether the government ever gave permission to station five U2s in Britain.

"I have heard reports that this plane at one stage wasonly six seconds flying time away from East Germany," Allaun said.

Evacuated From Homes Due Chlorine Gas Leak

VANCEBORO—An estimated 150 persons were evacuated from their homes and nine others — including a Highway Patrolman — were treated at the Craven County Hospital after chlorine gas leaked from a railroad tank car Thursday night.

Spokesmen for the Craven County Sheriff's Department said that employees of the Southern Railroad closed the leak within a couple of hours, but reported that high humidity and the absence of wind posed a problem in clearing the air.

The leak was discovered in the tank car between 8:30 and 9 p.m. The car was on a siding about six miles south of Vanceboro and about 10 miles north of New Bern.

Those evacuated from homes in the area were staying with friends and relatives, and at the Farm Life Elementary School in Vanceboro.

A spokesman for the Craven County Hospital at New Bern said nine persons had been treated and released.

Highway Patrol Troop A Commander John T. Jenkins said one of those treated was Highway Patrolman Johnnie Brown of New Bern. He said Trooper Brown had been directing traffic at the site of the leak.

Traffic along U.S. 17 was blocked in the area of the leak by the Patrol but the highway—which parallels the railroad right-of-way in the area of the accident—was reopened after several hours.

South Korea Bolsters Defenses Along Border

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korean forces have completed "five-or six-fold defense lines" all along the demilitarized zone and can "smash in a single blow" any North Korean attack, Defense Minister Suh Jhong-chul told a news conference today.

Suh said North Korea has recently moved tactical air bases and artillery positions closer to the demilitarized zone and reinforced them.

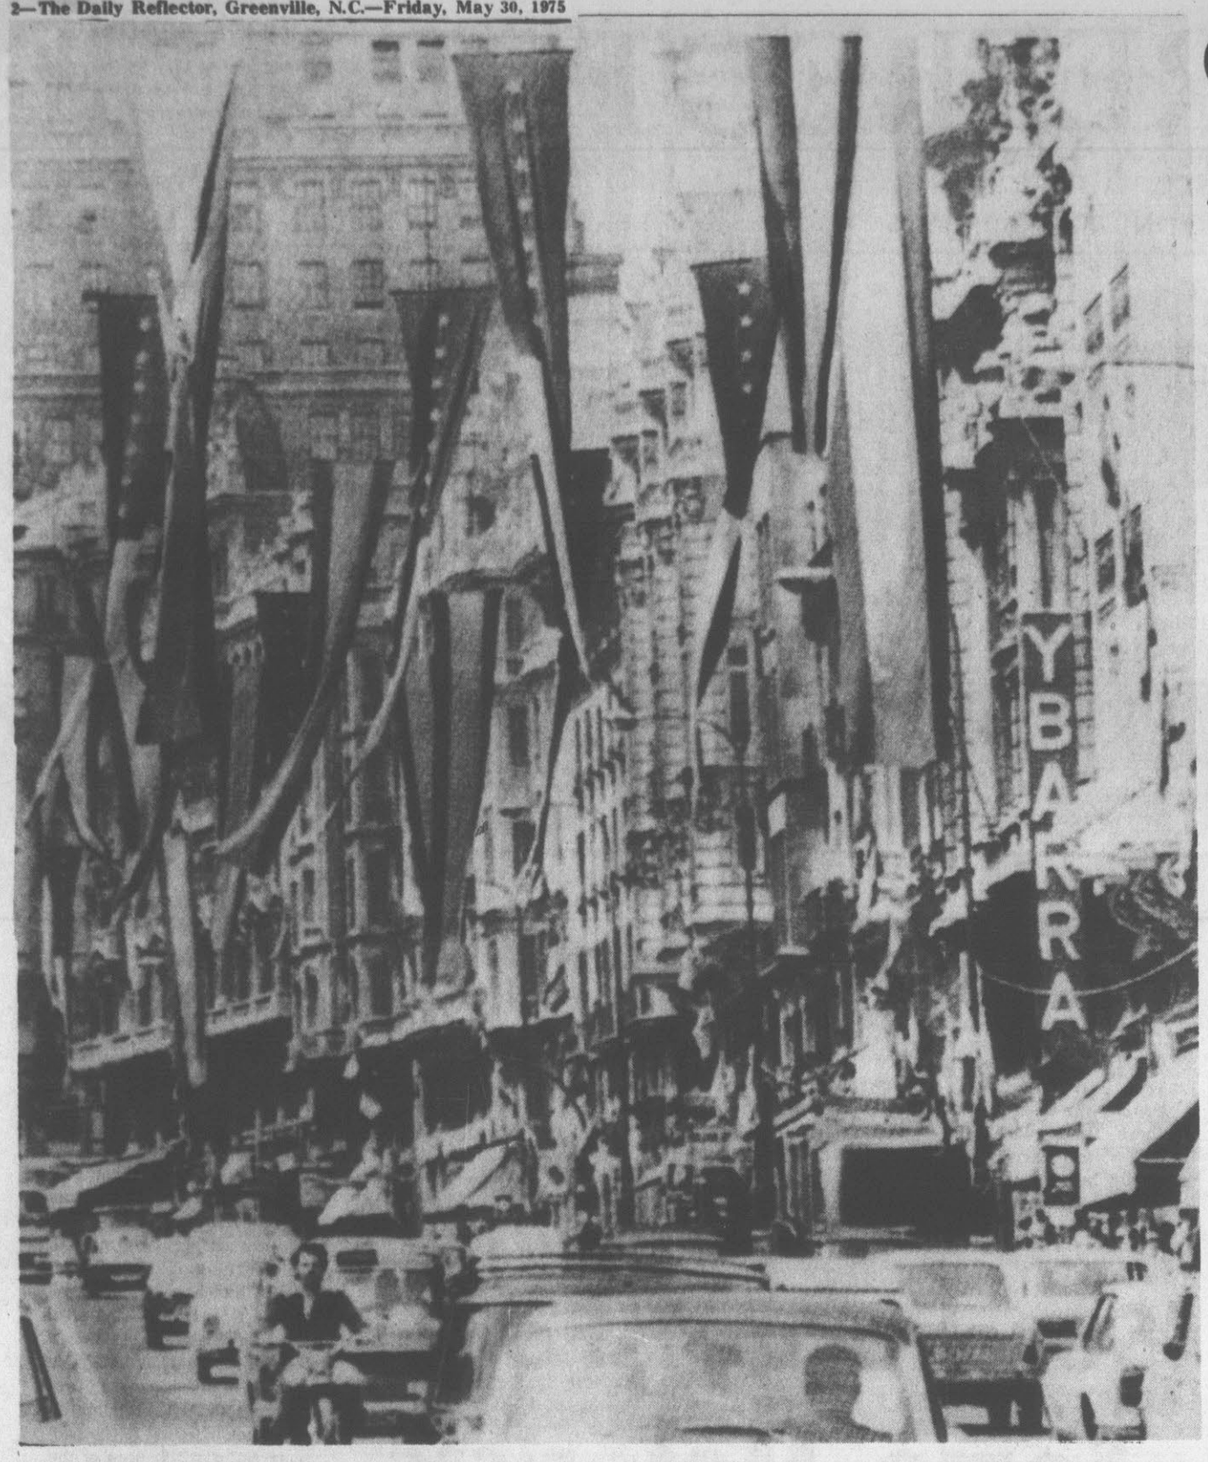

He said these and other North Korean moves increase the possibility of North Korea renewing hostilities in the wake of the Communist advances in Indochina.

In addition to the 600,000 welltrained regulars in the South Korean armed forces, Suh pointed out, South Korea has a reserve force of 2.7 million men and U.S. commitments to the defense of the country.

South Korea also has better weapons and equipment and can mobilize more human and economic resources than North Korea, he declared.

It has been reported that North Korea moved elements of two armored divisions closer to the DMZ and marshalled about 40 warships off the west coast. The Communist victories in Indochina whipped up a crisis mood among the South Korean people, and domestic opposition to President Chung Hee Park's authoritarian rule has virtually disappeared.

Intensive fund drives are under way to augment the defense budget. The defense ministry announced that the people contributed $17 million during the past month to be used for defense expenditures. This was nearly three times the amount contributed in the previous 16 months.

CIA Reportedly Silent On 'Plot'

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA and the Justice Department withheld information about CIA involvement in attempts to assassinate Fidel Castro from members of the Warren Commission investigating President John F. Kennedy's death, according to knowledgeable sources.

Two former officials of the Central Intelligence Agency who acknowledged that the Warren Commission never was told about a 1961 plot on the Cuban premier's life insisted that no conscious decision was made to withhold the information. Instead, they contend it never occurred to anyone at the CIA that the Kennedy assassination could have been ordered by Castro in retaliation for U.S.-sponsored attempts on his life.

Both John J. McCloy, a former member of the Warren Commission, and Secretary of Transportation William T. Coleman, who as an attorney for the commission was responsible for investigating the possibility that Lee Harvey Oswald was part of a foreign conspiracy, confirmed that they had not been told of any CIA plots against Castro at the time of their investigation.

Both men refused to speculate on what effect, if any, knowledge of such a plot would have had on the investigation, which concluded that there was no credible evidence linking Oswald to a conspiracy.

The information withheld concerned a 1961 plot against Castro involving contacts between the CIA and mobsters Sam Giancana and John Roselli.

The existence of that plot has been confirmed by two high intelligence sources, and several other news organizations have reported that the Rockefeller Commission possesses Justice Department documents, one reportedly written by former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, which also confirm the existence of the Giancana-Roselli plot.

The sources describe the plot as having originated in the Eisenhower administration and designed to coincide with the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion.

Although Castro has stated publicly he was aware of CIA plots against his life, there is no independent evidence indicating that he knew about the Giancana-Roselli plot at the time of the Kennedy assassination.

One source has said that the plot never got past the planning stage, but columnist Jack Anderson has reported that Roselli made a number of unsuccessful attempts on Castro's life.

Two Wrecks On Thursday

More than $1,500 property damage resulted yesterday from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 6:05 p.m. mishap at the intersection of N.C. 11 and U.S. 264 involving cars driven by Hal Byrum of Chesapeake, Va., and Jan Estes Johnson of Greenway Apts.

Damage was estimated at $750 to the Byrum car and $130 to the Johnson vehicle.

No charges were reported.

Donnie Gordon Hinson of Route 3, Greenville was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 8:45 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Greene Street and Mumford Road.

Police reported the Hinson car collided with a vehicle operated by Ann M. Harlick of 1701 River Dr., resulting in an estimated $350 damage to the Hinson car and $300 damage to the Harlick auto.

Man Charged In Theft Of Meat

Police early today charged a 26-year-old local man with the theft of 30 pounds of meat from a local restaurant, and according to Chief Glenn Cannon, are investigating the theft of wine from another restaurant and the larceny of a dozen chickens from a grocery store.

Chief Cannon reported Thomas Thigpen of 1809 Kennedy Cir. was taken into custody about 1:45 a.m. and charged with taking a 10-pound box of hotdogs and 20 pounds of sausage from Riggs House Restaurant at 1201 Dickinson Ave.

Value of the meat was set a $26, and Thigpen was placed under a $200 bond pending trial of the case.

Cannon said that a dozen chickens were discovered missing from a crate of fryers at the Piggly Wiggly store on Dickinson Avenue about 1:45 a.m.

Value of the missing birds was set at $24.

The chief reported, too, that seven or eight bottles of wine, valued at about $23, were taken from a cooler at the Golden Dragon Restaurant at 2217 Memorial Drive. That theft was reported at 12:05 a.m.

In addition, two radios, valued at $15 each, were reported taken from a car parked at the restaurant.

The radios were owned, he said, by Bennie Lee Floyd, and were discovered missing after officers went to the restaurant to investigate the theft of the wine.

In addition to the theft of the meats, wine and radios, Cannon said two coin operated newspaper racks were broken into during the night.

He said one of the racks broken open was located at the Piggly Wiggly store on Dickinson Avenue, while the other was located at the Kwik Pik store on Hooker Road.

Her Poetry Read On Greeting Cards

CLEVELAND (AP) — The name Jean Kyler McManus may not be as familiar as Emily Dickinson or Edna St. Vincent Millay, but in terms of published works she ranks as one of the world's most prolific writers of verse.

The Lakewood, Ohio, mother of five has written some 3.5 million words on more than 25,000 published messages.

But if her name isn't exactly a household word, it's understandable. For her medium of communication is the greeting card — an area where authors and their verses seldom gain recognition.

Mrs. McManus's writing has appeared on more than 100,000 different greeting cards and in scores of gift books, which together have sold almost four billion copies in the United States, England, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

Since joining American Greetings Corp. here 24 years ago as a staff writer she has written all types of verse — serious, humorous, children's — but her specialty and favorite is inspirational poetry and prose.

"Through my writing I remind people that they are not alone in their suffering," says the 52-year-old woman, who began writing poetry at 10. "When your world starts to fall apart you have to grasp onto something, whether it's your faith in God, your friends or your loved ones. All I try to do is remind someone in trouble to hang on to those other sources of help until he or she is able to make it alone once again."

She feels confident that her messages have touched the lives of those who have read them, since she constantly receives letters, phone calls and visits from fans. Her writing has often been quoted by clergymen in sermons, and religious and school publications frequently request reprint rights to her work. One of her books, "Brief Prayers for Busy Moments," was requested by RECOVERY, an organization that helps those recovering from mental disorders and nervous breakdowns, for use by its members. And an Alcoholics Anonymous chapter sought permission to distribute one of her verses, "One Day at a Time," to its members.

"What I like best about writing for greeting cards is the fact that people do reach out and touch one another through messages," she says. "These people may have difficulty expressing their own feelings of love, sorrow, faith or cheer, so they turn to someone else to help them say what they want to say.

"A good inspirational verse should ring true," adds Mrs. McManus. "I think it's more important to express the thoughts and feelings that are dear to people, to strike a chord, than to be original or clever. I definitely try to avoid a lecturing tone."

Mrs. McManus, who was born in Cleveland on, appropriately enough, Valentine's Day — second only to Christmas for the exchange of greeting cards — worked her way through college. Her part-time jobs included delivering newspapers, working in hospital kitchens, settlement houses and insurance firms, acting as a timekeeper in a factory and as a bookkeeper.

While still in college she responded to an ad at American Greetings for a verse writer and was hired part-time. She shelved her plans for a career in social work when her cards became best-sellers.

JEAN KYLER McMANUS

Married shortly after graduation from Western Reserve University to the late James McManus, an advertising executive, she continued writing while raising four boys and one girl, who now range in age from 14 to 23.

"As time goes by your life becomes richer, you have more experiences and this is reflected in your writing," says the dark-haired woman, whose topics include love, marriage, friendship, illness, motherhood and religious sentiment. "You'd be surprised how you can pick up ideas from the most common everyday situations."

Her most popular verse?

If the barometer is fan mail, it's one called "This I ask, Lord ..." But if the choice were left to the greeting company's marketing department, which keeps card-by-card statistics, it's "Hands Clasped in Prayer," which has sold more than two million copies.

Become Better Acquainted First

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: We recently moved to another city where my husband was appointed to an executive position.

He told me that we should wait until the wives of executives invite us before we make any overtures to socialize with them.

Later I found out that every wife of a peanut clerk had invited top-management people to their homes, their invitations had been accepted and a good time was had by all.

Knowing this, should we invite management who are above my husband in rank first? Or should we wait until they unvite us?

WAITING

DEAR WAITING: Become better acquainted first, then invite those whose company you enjoy without concerning yourselves with the pecking order.

DEAR ABBY: Danny and I have been married for five years. He had just been divorced, and I had never been married before. (I was 30, and Danny was 42 at the time.)

Abby, he still hasn't told his family that we are married. His ex-wife and sister are very close—like sisters—and his sister never gave up hope that Danny and his ex would get back together.

They know about me, but I guess they must think Danny and I are just living together. I never liked the idea of his keeping our marriage a secret from his family, but he has forbidden me to tell them and keeps saying that he will tell them at the "proper" time.

Abby, this really upsets me. What is he waiting for? When I bring it up, he says that I am being childish and that I should trust him.

This bothers me so much I think I am going to have a nervous breakdown. Can you figure him out? I can't.

FRAZZLED NERVES

DEAR FRAZZLED: I can't figure him out, either. But you can bet the rent that Danny is keeping something from you.

You have two choices: Make up your mind that you don't give a hoot whether or not Danny's family knows you are married, or tell him that if he doesn't announce your marriage by the fourth of July, there will be fireworks!

DEAR ABBY: Roger and I have been dating for three years. We are very happy just dating and not having to worry about money, children and all the problems most married couples have.

Here's my problem: A day doesn't go by without someone asking, "When are you and Roger going to get married?" Or, worse yet, "When are you going to get that guy to marry you?"

I am only 21, so why do people act as though I'm an old maid? Abby, not every girl is dying to get married. I enjoy being single and not having the problems of a married woman. Beside, I've got plenty of time.

If you print this in your column, I'm going to cut it out, carry it with me and hand it to the next person who puts me on the spot with a dumb question about marriage.

Experts Provide Main Dish Family Recipes

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

Imagine a dinner for two that costs only $1. A New York bank asked some experts to do just that. They came up with enough ideas and main dish recipes for a week of interesting and nutritious meals for a middle income family at 50 cents or less per person.

Amazingly, the experts managed to stretch some menus to include dessert and beverage, for a price that is below the average economy level for food expenditures estimated by the federal government.

The simple, easy recipes they provided were lamb stew, a sardine-noodle platter that can be prepared in 10 minutes, chicken tarragon with rice, liver al polenta (with Italian-style corn meal mush), pork steak Alsatian, an Italian fish dinner and eggplant casserole.

Here are three of the recipes:

For easy lamb stew, cut up a 1 pound breast of lamb, and brown it in its own fat. Add 3 peeled potatoes, halved, 1 carrot, cut in circles, 1 onion, cut up, salt, pepper and rosemary or any other herb, and 2 cups of water. Cover and simmer 45 minutes to 1 hour, or until lamb is tender. Serves 2 persons, and the $1.00 cost covers homemade hot biscuits, shredded cabbage salad and sliced bananas with a spoonful of homemade yogurt. Serves 2.

Chicken tarragon with rice for two costed out at .97 cents, including the rice. By substituting water for a quarter cup of dry white wine in the chicken dish, you could include a salad for the same price as the wine: 12 cents.

Coat 1 pound of chicken thighs with 2 tablespoons of flour, and saute quickly to brown all sides in a saucepan heated with 1 tablespoon each of butter and oil. Add 1 tablespoon of lemon juice, 1 teaspoon of dried tarragon, one fourth cup of dry white wine or water, and salt and pepper to taste. Bake 20-25 minutes in preheated 325-degree oven, or until chicken juices run clear. Cook half a cup of raw rice, and serve chicken and sauce over it. Serves 2.

With pork steak Alsatian, you get potatoes with the casserole and beer left over from the recipe to serve as a beverage.

Buy a fresh pork shoulder, and ask the butcher to cut a three-quarter pound steak from it. The remainder can be roasted. Leftovers cooked with drippings and sauerkraut will make a second casserole, and the bones can be cooked with dry beans to make a fourth low-cost meal.

Brown the steak on both sides in fat obtained from rendering some of the trimmings. Remove steak from pan, add half a medium onion, peeled and sliced thinly, and cook until brown but not wilted. Rinse and drain half a pound of sauerkraut; add it to the pan, along with a quarter teaspoon of pepper, a pinch of caraway, if on hand, and a quarter cup of either beer or water. Top with the steak, cover tightly and cook about 25 minutes over low heat or in a preheated 325-degree oven. Serve with 2 small boiled potatoes. Serves 2.

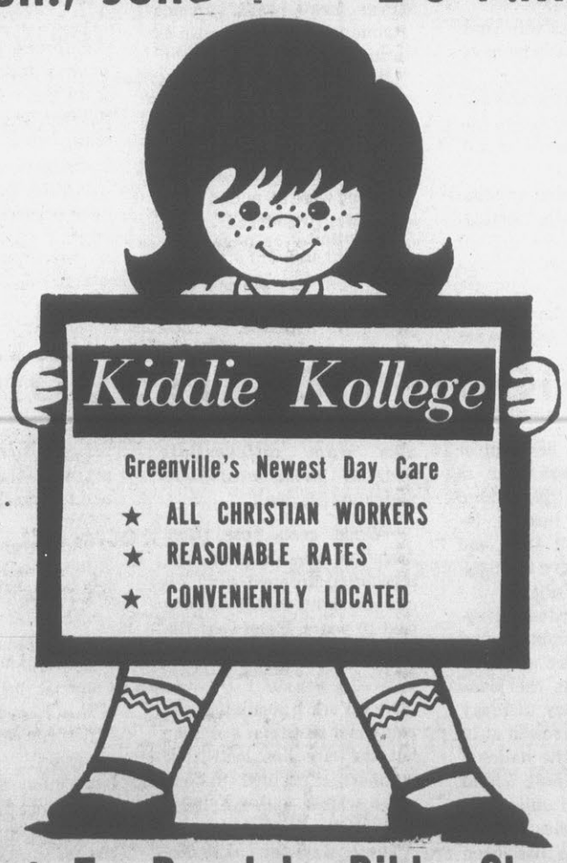

A teaspoon of vinegar added to water in which rice is cooked helps keep the grains whole.

For a silky feeling on your legs and easy shaving, creamy pink baby lotion helps the razor glide smoothly.

Upturn Can't Be So Far Away

Things have been rather bleak around the State House this year as the legislators wrestle with a budget which calls for less than expected revenues.

The principal task of the budget makers has been to trim back on spending requests, rather than to decide how to spend money which was available as in past years.

The state, of course, is caught up in the problems of recession-inflation, just as everyone else is.

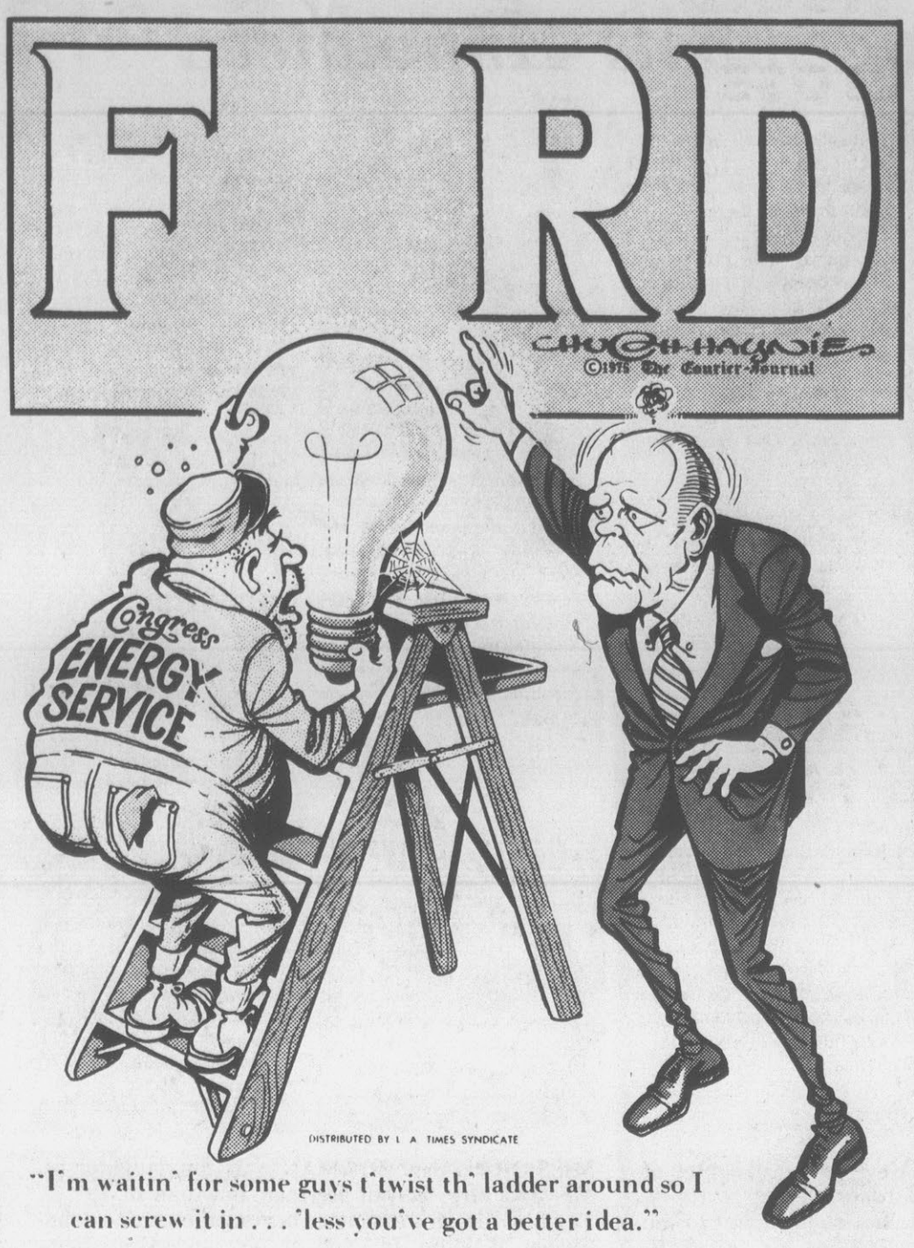

Any raise in pay for state employees appears to be out for the coming fiscal year and there might be no money for a raise in the following year.

The best we can hope for is that the worst of the recession's effects are behind us. There are some signs to indicate that this may be the case. The most hopeful one of recent days was the announcement that unemployment rate in North Carolina dropped to 9.8 percent in April. It had been up to a record 11.8 percent in March.

While those are just percentages it means that large numbers of our citizens, who were without employment have gone back to work during the month. To someone who has been laid off from his job it must be a particularly happy occasion to be called back to work. For, while unemployment compensation is most welcome, it usually does not amount to a full paycheck. In addition, those benefits eventually run out.

For the state government, additional working people back on the job means that these people are productive again. Not only are they paying taxes again, but they are also producing products which stimulate the state's economy.

So, while no one can really say where the economy is going, we have felt that an upturn would not be far off. We suspect the bottom has already been reached and we will see more encouraging economic reports in the months ahead. And that is good for state government and all our citizens.

Hoping Defeat Veto

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's veto of a $5.3-billion program designed to create 900,000 jobs will be overridden by Congress, House Speaker Carl Albert indicates.

"The Congress will not allow the President's negative action to scuttle this job-producing legislation," Albert said Thursday after the White House announced Ford's veto.

The antirecession measure included authorizations for $1.6 billion for public service jobs, $485 million for summer youth jobs, $440 million for construction and repair of federal buildings around the country, $385 million for small business loans and $325 million for speedup of flood control, reclamation and rivers and harbors projects.

In a White House statement issued when Ford was in Europe, he said he vetoed the bill because "its chief impact would be felt long after our current unemployment problems are expected to subside."

Ford, who had requested a $2 billion authorization bill, also expressed concern that the vetoed bill would have increased the budget deficit, now set at $60 billion by the administration.

The House earlier this month passed the bill 293 to 109, more than the two-thirds required to override the veto. The Senate approved it by voice vote.

The program was a special project of Albert and the House Democratic leadership to provide jobs in a hurry in severely affected areas.

The latest national jobless rate stands at 8.9 per cent, but the Labor Department added 22 more cities Thursday to its list of areas with "substantial" unemployment, meaning a rate of more than 6 per cent. That brought to 127 the number of areas on the list of 150 areas surveyed by the department.

Ponce, Puerto Rico, is the unemployment leader with a rate of 20.1 in March compared with a national rate of 8.9 per cent. Ponce also has been on the list longer than any other city, having had substantial unemployment since May 1955.

The nation's second-highest unemployment listing in March was 18.7 per cent in Flint, Mich., followed by Detroit, Mich., at 16.6 per cent and Providence-Warwick-Pawtucket, R.I., at 16.0 per cent.

Ethics Bill Poses Queries

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—It seems everybody beats the drum for legislative ethics, particularly in the shadow of Watergate and the politician's perception that his people have "lost faith in government" of all sorts.

But neither the issues nor the answers are as simple and clearcut as you might think.

You can't pass laws to make men good; and in a democratic system the citizens have to choose their representatives.

The key, then, is full disclosure—during a political campaign and during the career of the office-holder—so that voters and his colleagues can truly judge the politician's motives, says Legislative Services Officer Clyde L. Ball.

"If we cannot depend upon the judgments of an informed electorate, then democratic government is indeed in peril.

Citizen Involved

"Unrealistic ethics laws cannot free the citizen from his responsibility for the quality of those whom he chooses to represent him," Ball concludes in a scholarly and lengthy treatment of the pros and cons of ethics legislation in the current issue of "Popular Government" magazine, published by North Carolina Institute of Government at Chapel Hill.

Ball, who is an attorney and for eight years before moving to his General Assembly post in 1964 was on the faculty of the Institute of Government, is widely regarded as a professional with close and wide experience in state government.

He is also known for his outspoken and thoughtful expression of opinion even though his stance may fly in the face of popular moods—or even his own bosses, the legislators.

Thus he enters the ethics arena with the proposition that legislating honesty is not only a slim possibility, but that efforts to do so would bar from service many people needed to make the General Assembly representative. The answer, he insists, is a suitable disclosure law.

"If a district knows the financial and professional connections of a citizen and elects him to a seat in the General Assembly, he should be allowed to participate in the full range of legislative activity," Ball believes.

"If they (the citizens) know what he is, and then elect him to the office, he should be allowed to come to Raleigh and work toward the very end that caused him to seek the seat."

Ignorance in the General Assembly, similar to that sought on a jury, "Is not conducive to legislative results," Ball said.

Ethics appeals to voters and legislators, and the candidate who supports the idea "is on the side of the angels. "If he is a veteran legislator, he has seen the evil and promises to fight to eradicate it. If he is a newcomer, he promises to bring his untarnished strength to the battle for good," Ball said.

Good Men Barred

But if such legislation is effective—truly barring from office any person who may have a conflict between private and public interests—it "may make it impossible for most persons who are in their most productive years to serve. . . eliminating all but the independently wealthy, the retired, and the otherwise unemployed." Most people, in some way, have a conflict: a minister uses tax-exempt property; most everybody is touched by tax law;teachers work for the state.

"Is it unethical," Ball wonders, "for a legislator to vote on an education appropriation when his daughter is a public school teacher?"

"In short, what kind of employment does not carry the possibility that the legislator will find a conflict between his employer's private interest and the public interest," Ball said, and adds that barring from the assembly certain kinds of employment would raise constitutional issues.

Meanwhile, requiring detailed disclosure of private economic affairs will cause "many valuable persons to decline to run," Ball thinks, and if those disclosure laws include children and spouses "It may require him to do what he has no power to do."

Ball thinks financing elections is at the root of much special-interest influence and power. . . "one need not be a cynic to suspect that support carries with it some demands," he said in concluding that enforceable campaign-finance legislation is a necessary first step in ethics legislation.

The answer throughout, he believes, is disclosure. . . "requiring that a candidate . . . identify the types of his personal and immediate family economic interest" including employment, ownership of property, or acceptance of gifts, meals, housing, etc.

New Profile In Power

WASHINGTON—President Ford has had such a big win with the American people over the Mayaguez incident that he has become a new man—more assured, stronger and determined to show that the United States is not a paper tiger.

In fact he has gotten into the habit of calling Henry Kissinger on the telephone all the time.

"Any American ships been seized lately, Henry?"

"I told you a couple of hours ago, Mr. President, if any country grabbed one of our ships you would be the first to know about it."

"Sorry, Henry, I was chewing gum at the time. I wish the Laotians would try to board one of our vessels. I'd show them a thing or two."

"It's doubtful that any major power such as Laos is going to mess with us, Mr. President, after your strong and forthright action in the Mayaguez incident."

"They better not. If we show any weakness at all, every country in the world will think it can push us around. I sure wish Iceland would try to take one of our fishing vessels. I'd have the USS Enterprise there in no time."

"That you would, Mr. President, but it's all quiet now. Can I go back to work?"

"Henry, I was just thinking. Couldn't we have one of our ships sail close to Ecuador, maybe 10 or 15 miles out."

"You mean in hopes that Ecuador might try to pull another Pueblo?"

"With this difference, Henry. We could have B-52s from Guam flying cover over it. One move toward that ship and we drop everything in our arsenal on Quito. I will not stand for piracy of U.S. ships on the high seas."

"Well said, Mr. President. But I believe we ought to let nature take its course. There is no sense provoking an incident. I'm sure you'll have another opportunity to dramatize the unity and strength of America under attack."

"Henry, even if someone grabs a canoe I want to hear about it."

"You will, Mr. President."

"I'd like to see Trinidad start something. We'll show them how we deal with a crisis. You don't think Trinidad would resort to piracy, do you, Henry?"

"We have no intelligence that they're thinking about it, Mr. President. But that doesn't say they wouldn't."

"Well, keep the 82nd Airborne on alert just in case. And I'd like some cruisers sent to Monte Carlo. You never know when Prince Rainier thinks he can push us around."

"Consider it done, Mr. President."

"Are you sure Cuba doesn't have any Soviet missiles stationed there any more?"

"They were all pulled out in 1962, Mr. President."

PUPIL-BUSING PROGRAM

In Atlanta It's Voluntary

By BILLIE BROWN
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The flight of whites from Atlanta's predominantly black school system is declining, and officials say the city's voluntary busing program is one of the major reasons.

There is no mandatory busing of pupils under the court-approved desegregation plan implemented two years ago. Instead, transportation is provided for those who elect to attend a school where they are in racial minority. The program has accomplished what it was intended to do; it has eliminated predominately white schools.

The voluntary transfer program isn't unique to Atlanta, but in most systems it is a supplement to forced busing. In Atlanta, it is the main element of the plan.

School officials say a major reason voluntary transfers have worked is that 87 per cent of the pupils are black. Massive busing was never necessary.

Another reason, says School Supt. Alonzo Crim, "is that there has been a very deliberate effort to enlist the students. It wasn't left to chance. People went out and did a deliberate job of recruitment."

The buses themselves have drawn a number of students into the program, officials say. The buses are equipped with radios that play rock music from a local station and present intersystem school news and some instructional programs.

This school year, 4,000 of the system's 85,000 pupils are electing to be bused for racial balance, many of them to get a special course or program offered only at a school a bus distance away. Approximately 99 per cent of them are black; only 47 whites are participating in the program.

"We've made an effort to identify the strengths of each school so that the students may choose freely among them," said Crim.

Now that there are no more predominantly white schools, the next step is to get more whites into the system.

"There are still a lot of white children living in the corporate limits of Atlanta that attend private schools, and that's the group we would like to attract back into the system," said Barbara Whitaker, assistant superintendent for community affairs. "And they are slowly dribbling back."

White enrollment began declining 25 years ago, but the rate of decline has been lessening steadily for the past five years, Mrs. Whitaker said.

For the current school year, white enrollment declined only 3 per cent, compared to 4.4 per cent last year. The trend is expected to continue.

"Inflation and recession are probably going to desegregate more schools than any court decision," said Lonnie King, the engineer of the Atlanta plan. "It costs an awful lot of money to send a kid to private school, and I believe people are going to be forced to put their kids back into public schools."

King, who was president of the Atlanta NAACP at the time, helped write the plan and helped sell it to white and black leaders. His support got him suspended from the group by the national NAACP, one of the plaintiffs in the 15-year-old desegregation suit and a staunch advocate of mandatory busing.

Essentially, King's plan traded off busing for substantial integration of school administration, including the first black school superintendent.

"What we did in one fell swoop was bring blacks into control of a $100 million system," he said. "And we did it without one picket sign and without one violent demonstration. What did it was a lot of hardnosed bargaining."

Atlanta's solutions may be only temporary. On the horizon, possibly as early as next month, is a hearing on an American Civil Liberties Union suit to extend desegregation beyond the city limits to the fivecounty metropolitan area. The ACLU contends mandatory busing between the city and counties is necessary to

Sleeping Students

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

Pity the poor school teachers of today.

They have to put up with six hours a day what some of us are exposed to perhaps once a month: the sleeping student.

A few years ago a student who dared doze in class was brought back to reality with a sharp rap on the noggin by a ruler.

Not today.

In every class we have been called on to discuss current events, journalism, or whatever, we have been met by from two to 10 sleeping students.

We feared at first that we were putting them to sleep.

Not so.

Some sack out as soon as they hit the seat.

We have talked with other visiting speakers who have had the same experience.

It prompts one to suspect that the greatest need in the school systems today is not more buildings but more beds.

The only thing that makes it worth-while to appear before classes today is the fact that most of the students are interested. And we are ever more impressed with the classroom teachers of today and feel they need all the support we can give.

But some of their students seem to awaken only during the change of classes. And, we presume, at recess. Or whatever they might call it today.

One professional man who had spoken to a class this year came away vowing never to do so again. And all of us who have had the experience must have been so tempted.

But that approach would be unfair to those students who are interested—and most of them are. And it would be unfair to the teachers who are dedicated to enabling those students who will "to burgeon out all that is within them".

And we suppose, in deference to those who have trouble staying awake, that a sleeping student isn't really hurting anyone but himself.

UNCONQUERABLE SIN?

Occasionally we come across the term, "unconquerable sin." Actually, however, this is a misnomer. It is not in God's plan to allow anyone to be conquered by sin unless the person in question wants to be conquered. Sin has no power over us until we consent to it. Everyone is tempted, and God uses temptation for the development of our characters. But sin is temptation consented to and translated into action. The human will is the door through which temptation must pass in order to become sin. We have the power within us at any time to keep that door closed.

The Master's command to those who are wrestling with temptation is this: "Enter in at the straight gate, for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat because straight is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it."

The straight gate is always open before us, which means that there is no unconquerable sin except the sin we are not trying to conquer.

Like N.Y., London Has Trouble

By FRED COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — London, like New York, is in deep financial trouble. There is talk of bankruptcy, but authorities say they are confident it won't happen here.

London's woes are strikingly similar to those now strapping the administration of Mayor Abraham D. Beame in New York. But London has physical assets to fall back on in a pinch and New York doesn't.

Among London's woes:

—London's debt was $4.6 billion at the end of March. It may be difficult to borrow more. New York City's debt has risen from $500 million in 1965 to $6 billion now.

—Property taxes have risen 50 per cent and bus and subway fares 80 per cent or more in the past year in London, but the added revenue hasn't helped. Increases in transit fares and property taxes have been discussed in New York.

—Much of London's long-term debt was borrowed when interest rates were at 3 or 4 per cent. As the loans mature, the money to repay them must be borrowed at 12 or 13 per cent. The national government won't lend money to London unless the city pays still higher interest rates. New York has been borrowing at a rate of 9.5 per cent. The Ford administration in Washington has turned down New York's plea for help.

—City employes here want a wage increase of 30 per cent to keep ahead of inflation now running at 21.7 per cent. They also want differentials because living costs are higher in London.

—While costs rose, London's tax base declined. The population dropped from 7.9 million to 7.2 million in the past 10 years. Each year the city lost 40,000 manufacturing jobs.

New York's population has remained steady at 8 million but the city has lost large numbers of skilled middle-class whites and the taxes they paid.

The Greater London Council which governs the city now is controlled by the Labor party headed locally by Sir Reg Goodwin. The Laborites are committed to spending on housing, education and other programs to help the poorer areas. The opposition Conservative party charges that property taxes are too high and urgent spending cuts are essential.

Most experts express a belief, however, that London will make it.

"The GLC will not go bankrupt," The Economist concluded after a survey of the financial difficulties.

Said Goodwin's deputy, Illtyd Harrington: "All the obsessive talk about bankruptcy is being done by superannuated academics."

For one thing, the GLC is one of the world's biggest landlords. The 250,000 dwellings it owns outright and uses for subsidized housing are worth significantly more than the total outstanding debt. They could be sold to pay off the debt. New York City has nothing comparable.

Reports Heard By Red Cross

The Pitt chapter of the American Red Cross held its annual board meeting Wednesday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Pitt chairman O. E. Dowd Sr. presided during the session, attended by 16 board members.

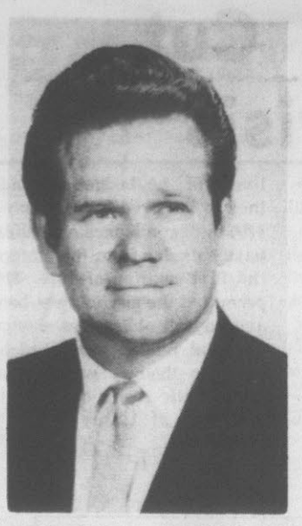

Reports were given during the meeting on service to military families, first aid and water safety, blood program, and disaster program.

The program for the meeting was given by Mrs. Joan Langevin, field representative of the Tidewater Blood Center in Norfolk, Va. Mrs. Langevin presented a film, "Life is Blood, Pass It On."

The program was followed by discussion with recommendations made concerning ways to help increase blood donations in order to reach the local quota. At the present time, the Pitt chapter is some 900 pints of blood below the quota with only two visits remaining in this fiscal year.

Upcoming visits include a June 17 drive at the Moose Lodge and a blood visit at Burroughs Wellcome on June 18.

Some ten new board members will begin three-year terms on July 1, it was pointed out, replacing ten members who have completed their tenures.

But civic leaders say they are optimistic that, whatever the outcome of that suit, the system— or a new one— will continue to work.

"There is sufficient interracial good faith to make it work," said Maynard Jackson, who took office last year as the city's first black mayor. "You deserved it, Mr. President."

If she has kept up with the course all term, she'll not flunk because of this nap. BUT—if she is counting on the midnight oil to pull her through the exam . . . Too bad!

You've heard of people being converted to Christianity on their deathbed. True! As Christ promised salvation to a penitent thief on the cross, so God's love reaches out even in the final hour to those who call on Him in faith.

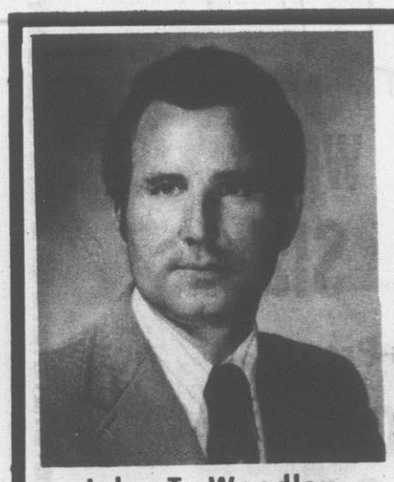

But don't live your life on the dangerous principle that last-minute cramming will satisfy all your religious needs.

There will be millions of adults and children in church next Sunday. They are seeking spiritual truth, gaining Christian convictions . . . not because they need some religion to die with—because they need Faith to live by.

WINDBREAKS. . .Wallace Fleming of Grifton has an 18-year-old pine tree windbreak on his farm that has worked very effectively in controlling wind damage to his crops. (SCS Photo by Roy Beck)

Wind Erosion Preventative

Several Pitt County farmers have planted pine tree windbreaks that effectively controlled wind erosion during wind storms recently.

According to Roy Beck of the Soil Conservation Service, Joe Taft Jr. of Greenville has two 15-year-old windbreaks of loblolly pines beside the Ramhorn Road northeast of Greenville. He has a new windbreak consisting of three rows of pine trees planted beside the Pactolus Highway three years ago. The trees were planted to protect an open ditch from being filled in with blown sand.

Wallace Fleming of Grifton has a 18-year-old pine tree windbreak that proved very effective this year, according to Beck. Large amounts of sand were trapped under the low spreading limbs of the widely spaced trees. There was little wind damage for a distance of about 200 feet on the leeward side of the windbreak.

M. B. Hodges of Grifton has one of the oldest planted pine tree windbreaks in Pitt County. He planted loblolly pine seedlings in 1948 specifically to control wind erosion on his farm near St. Johns Church.

Federal cost sharing is available to Pitt County farmers under the 1975 Agricultural Conservation Program for planting windbreaks or shelterbelts on their farms during the coming planting season.

'Spinoff' For Grain Probers

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal investigation of corruption in the grain exporting business has produced a spinoff indictment accusing three men of scheming to sell non-existent soybeans.

"This is just part of the second phase of the investigation," Asst. U.S. Atty. Cornelius R. Heusel of New Orleans said Wednesday.

"It's just one of the things we found in an investigation still continuing."

The indictment by a grand jury said the three conspired to cheat the Peavey Co. of Alton, Ill., out of $63,449 by selling it 10 truckloads of soybeans — about 2,300 bushels — that never existed.

Two other men were named unindicted co-conspirators.

The first phase of the year-long investigation — dealing with charges that dirty ships were certified as clean — has led to five indictments in Houston and 10 in New Orleans, the world's largest grain-handling port and the center of the investigation.

Named in the indictments Wednesday were Richard M. Blades of Metairie, La., an inspector at the New Orleans Board of Trade; Dewey F. Blades Jr., Lake Charles, La.; Carey T. Lindsay, New Orleans, and Le Trac Land Co., a firm they formed as part of the alleged fraud.

The indictment also charged them with seven interstate commerce violations involving the sending of checks.

New York City Services Cut In Desperate Budget Crisis

By SAMUEL MAULL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham D. Beame, with scathing denunciations of Republican lawmakers and Wall Street bankers, has announced an $11.89 billion "shock therapy" budget that he says will cut 51,000 employes from the city payroll by June 30.

In addition to the 13,782 dismissals Beame already had ordered, the new 1975-76 "crisis-level" budget called for layoffs of another 37,315 city employes. One of every three policemen and sanitation workers and one of every five firemen will be fired. Workers in education, health, transportation, housing, parks and municipal government are also marked for dismissal.

Beame said the budget would mean:

—Curtailment or elimination of school programs; increased class sizes; reduction or elimination of special classes, school lunches and other activities, and elimination of 11,000 education jobs.

—A cut of more than 20,000 students in the City University's September freshmen class.

—Firing of 4,200 police; 700 police civilian employes, and elimination of the entire 2,300-member school crossing guard unit.

—Firing of 2,300 fire fighters and elimination of scores of engine and ladder companies.

—Firing of 2,882 sanitation workers; garbage collection reductions throughout the city, and a 50 per cent cut in snow removal services.

—Closing of numerous branch libraries or shortened hours; and shorter visiting hours at zoos and museums.

Accompanied by Gov. Hugh L. Carey, Beame had journeyed in vain to Washington to ask Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and President for financial help. Their turndowns drew scorn from the mayor.

Hours before the mayor's delivery of the budget message, the city received from Albany a $200 million advance on welfare payments due from the state in the first quarter of 1976. This permitted the city to meet bond and payroll obligations due today. But Beame was irked by what he thought was an unsympathetic reception by state legislators at Albany.

"These are not threats," the Democratic mayor said Thursday evening when he presented the country's second largest budget to a jam-packed, televised session of the 43-member City Council, the Board of Estimate, the heads of all city departments and leaders of the municipal labor unions.

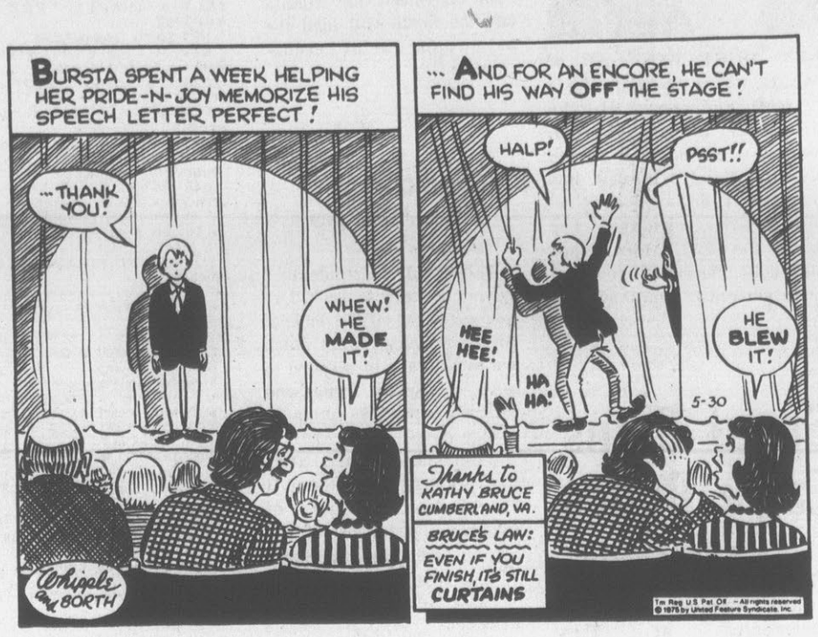

"Without recourse to additional aid, we must move from programmed recovery to shock therapy," he said.

In an emotional 20-minute speech, Beame lashed out at the financial community, accusing it of unresponsiveness to the city's monetary needs "despite unprecedented actions taken by my administration to move the city to a sounder financial position."

A spokesman for the financial community, Ellmore C. Patterson of Guaranty Trust, said: "We feel confident a congressional inquiry into New York's financial problems ... would show that the financial institutions of the city have been working hard to help achieve a constructive solution to the problems."

Personal Struggles With Mental Depression Told

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

World-famous journalist Percy Knauth says he has spent "a season in hell."

He used this phrase as the title for a book published this year about his personal struggle with mental depression. He briefly told about this fight before the annual meeting of the Pitt County Mental Health Association here.

The illness set in just after Knauth decided to end his 30-year employment by Time-Life and try his hand as a free-lance writer. He had contracts for two books and was into a year-long project when he began to have insomnia and inexplicable anxiety and feelings of melancholy. He said, like most people, he has had "bad days" before, but now bad days led into more bad days and he begun to feel hopeless and also guilty for having given up the security of his former job for himself, his wife, and children. A highly educated man with a wide range of experiences, he nevertheless knew nothing about depression and he refused to talk to anyone about it.

About two months after it all began, he went to his doctor about his high blood pressure. When the doctor said, "How are you, Percy," he said, he burst into tears, something he hadn't done in years. The doctor listened to him sympathetically and gave him a prescription for an anti-depressant and a referral to a psychiatrist. He called for an appointment and found it would take two weeks, though he considered himself an emergency. He soon found, though, once he was seeing the psychiatrist that it was not helping at all to delve into his past. He kept on, however, because he felt the medicine that didn't seem to be helping and the psychiatrist who didn't seem to be hleping, were possibly his only hope. There seemed to be no alternatives.

Once after seeing a dead man in Central Park, he began to have nightly "visits" from the dead man, telling him that his struggle with life was useless, that there would be peace only in death. Nevertheless, he said, he didn't want to die. He said he believes that most people who commit suicide don't want to die, but just cannot continue to struggle with the way their depressing thoughts go round and round in their minds.

He said he finally gave in to the messenger of death and thought he would slip quietly into peace with the bottle of pills by his bed. The enormity of the thought made him burst into tears and hiw wife was awakened. She rocked him in her arms and during the next four days she stayed with him constantly and for the first time he told her of his ordeal. This was a turning point, he said. His wife had heard of a Depression Research Unit in New Haven, Conn. He decided to go there as a journalist to learn about what they do. He did get much information and learned that depression is the oldest illness of man, that it was described by Hippocrates and said by him to have been caused by an imbalance in bodily fluids. He wasn't far wrong, Knauth said, in that it was "discovered" in the mid-1950's that depression is related to a chemical imbalance in the brain and the use of psychotropic drugs began.

He finally decided to tell the people at the Depression Research Center that he, himself, needed their help. He told the director, who said his story was an old one, that the amount of anti-depressant he had been given was not nearly enough to do him any good. He prescribed eight times as much and said if it had not worked in two weeks for him to come back.

"In 10 days, I awoke one morning to find I had slept through the night," Knauth said. "And I began to get better from then on."

"I thought my experience was unique," he said. "I wrote an article for Life Magazine describing the depression experience. The response was astonishing. I received hundreds of letters, saying "You have told exactly how I feel as I have never heard it described." I learned I was one of hundreds, or thousands, or perhaps even millions of people who had experienced the same thing."

He has since become affiliated with the National Association for Mental Health, this year as its national chairman. He believes in the work of volunteers in bettering the situations of those who suffer from mental illness and in educating others so they won't be as ignorant of it as he was if it were to affect them personally.

After Knauth's talk, new members of the Pitt County Association's Board of Directors were introduced. They are Mrs. Ted Albritton of Farmville, Mrs. Leighton Blount Jr. of Bethel, Mrs. Virgil Clark, the Rev. William Hadden, Dr. Charles Mitchell, and Mrs. Arthur Tripp, all of Greenville; Mrs. Douglas Moore of Fountain, and Mrs. W. P. Shelton of Ayden.

Awards were made to John Bizzell, a longtime member and supporter of the Association; to Mrs. Frances Clark, coordination of volunteers and newsletter editor; Miss Elizabeth Edwards for the Talk Force Club of Farmville High School for their contributions to the Association's Cheer Fund for patients at Cherry Hospital; and to Mrs. Doris Fleming for Operation Sunshine activities in the Ayden-Winterville area.

FBI Role 'Foolish'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi says the counterespionage programs the FBI operated from 1956 to 1971 were foolish and sometimes outrageous.

The programs, called Cointelpro, involved FBI attempts to harass and disrupt dissident groups of the left and right through such tactics as mailing false and anonymous letters to the target organizations.

"All of them were foolish and some of them were outrageous," Levi said of the programs at a news conference Thursday.

"There's enough dishonesty, lack of candor and incivility in our society as it is and I don't think the government should add to that," the attorney general said.

Levi last week disclosed that the FBI had five counterintelligence programs in addition to the seven disclosed last November.

He said he does not believe the FBI intentionally withheld information about the five additional Cointelpro operations from him. "I think they didn't know about it themselves."

He said that in obtaining information about FBI activities he has hit on no better solution than relying on the good faith of FBI officials and reading newspapers.

Learned Dances From Refugees

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — Some 28 high school pupils held a dance for some young refugees here, thinking they could teach the Vietnamese the latest American rock dances.

Instead, it was the Americans who learned a few steps from the Vietnamese.

"They taught us the cha cha and something called the bump," said Terri Blasier, a junior at Fallbrook High School in Fallbrook, east of this Marine base.

Thompson Won't Rush Into Pro Cage Deal

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — David Thompson, with an opportunity to sign one of the most lucrative contracts in pro basketball history, says he plans to wait until next month's American Basketball Association draft before choosing between the ABA and the National Basketball Association.

Until then, the Atlanta Hawks, who made the exhilirating Thompson the No. 1 pick in the NBA draft Thursday, probably will not decide how much to offer their two other outstanding selections, Marvin Webster and Bill Willoughby.

"It's a great thrill to be the first player picked, and as to where my future lies, I have to wait until the ABA and then weigh all matters as to what team or league I'll be playing in," Thompson said following his selection by the Hawks. "I'm happy that Atlanta drafted me, but I just enjoy basketball and will be happy playing anywhere."

The Hawks likely will be battling the ABA's Denver Nuggets for Thompson's services. The Nuggets have the ABA's No. 1 pick and they already have been openly courting the three-time All-American and two-time Player of the Year, apparently having made some tempting cash overtures.

The agile 6-foot-4 star from North Carolina State spent several days with the Nuggets late in the ABA season.

"David seemed to like our organization and I think he has reached a pretty good understanding," said Nuggets' forward Bobby Jones. "Of course, I don't want to say anything that would hamper the deal ... I'd say Denver is fairly close, but strange things happen when a player is negotiating."

Atlanta, meanwhile, is in a precarious position because of its financial woes, although owner John Wilcox expressed confidence that the Hawks could afford to sign Thompson, Webster and Willoughby.

The problems, if any, could be solved by Wilcox selling the team to more financially stable owners, or as has been speculated, the Hawks trading Webster and Willoughby to the New York Knicks for forward Phil Jackson and $1 million.

The latter deal, of course, would provide the Hawks with sufficient money to afford Thompson.

At present, however, they have the luxury of all three players.

The 7-0 Webster, a two-time College Division All-America and twice winner of the College Division Player of the Year known as "The Human Eraser," was the Hawks' second pick on the first round and the third player selected over-all in the draft.

Willoughby, a 6-8 forward who averaged 35 points and 22 rebounds per game last season at Dwight Morrow High School in Englewood, N.J., was the first player chosen on the second round.

Willoughby was the second high school player ever drafted by the NBA.

The first was 6-10 Darryle Dawkins from Maynard Evans High in Orlando, Fla. He was taken by the Philadelphia 76ers on the first round — the fifth player chosen over-all.

Dawkins, who averaged 25.9 points per game in his senior year, said his goal was to get a seven-year, no-cut contract exceeding $1 million. "I will get that," he said confidently, adding that he was to fly to Philadelphia today and sign with the 76ers.

One selection, however, left NBA officials in a quandry. That was New Orleans' pick on the 10th round of Aleksander Belov of the Soviet Union. Simon Gourdine, the NBA's deputy commissioner, said an investigation of the constitution would have to be made to determine Belov's eligibility.

Meanwhile, two player trades were completed. Kansas City sent forward Ron Behagen to New Orleans for the Jazz' second choice in the first round — center-forward Bill Robinzine from DePaul — and champion Golden State surrendered its second picks in rounds one and two to Cleveland for forward Dwight Davis.

The Warriors also reportedly are ready to deal forward Derek Dickey and guard Jeff Mullins for guard Norm Van Lier of Chicago. There also have been rumors of another trade involving Van Lier, with him going to Portland for guard Geoff Petrie.

Among the other players drafted were All-American David Meyers of UCLA and Junior Bridgeman of Louisville by Los Angeles; Alvan Adams of Oklahoma by Phoenix; Lionel Hollins of Arizona State by Portland; Rich Kelley of Stanford by New Orleans; All-American Luther "Tickey" Burden of Utah and 1973-74 NCAA scoring champion Larry Fogle by New York; Kevin Grevey of Kentucky by Washington, and Joe Meriweather of Southern Illinois by Houston.

In 10 rounds of drafting, 175 players were chosen. Of 17 players on the hardship list, 15 were taken.

NO JOKE—The New Orleans Jazz picked Aleksander Belov, captain of the Russian National team, in the 10th round of the NBA draft Thursday. Jazz Serious About Drafting Russian Star

By AUSTIN WILSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — One team official joked that the New Orleans Jazz may have to send Henry Kissinger to sign their last pick in the National Basketball Association college draft, but Bill Bertka said he's very serious about the choice.

The Jazz chose Aleksander Belov, the man who scored the disputed winning goal for Russia in the 1972 Olympics, in the 10th round of Thursday's draft.

It was the first time in the history of American professional basketball that a Russian had been drafted.

"There are already many athletes from other countries in other sports," said Bertka, vice president in charge of basketball operations. "It looks like all the hockey players are from Canada.

"Leagues tend to fall into patterns, and we have to start looking for ways to break that pattern.

"Belov will be notifed of his selection in the NBA draft just as any player is notified."

Bertka then placed a call to Jim Fox, the Amateur Athletic Union official who organized competition in the United States for the Russian national team.

He asked Fox for Belov's address, then laboriously spelled it out — "Sportkomitet Moskva."

"I would think the team's major problem would be with the Soviet government, if Belov wants to play in the United States," Fox said.

"In my opinion, it will be difficult, although there are two Russians on the professional tennis tour." He said he did not know the names of the tennis players.

Simon Gourdine, the NBA's deputy commissioner, said the league would have to conduct an investigation of the league's constitution to determine whether Belov would be able to play in the NBA.

"We've checked him out," Bertka said. "He's a graduate of the Shipbuilding Academy, so he's eligible."

Others in the Jazz organization treated the signing more lightly.

"Everybody's talking about ways to promote international relations, but we're doing something about it," said Coach Bill van Breda Kolff. "You could say were doing this for President Ford."

"We're going to send Henry Kissinger over to get him to sign the contract," said another Jazz official.

"If the team can't use him, I can," said Andrew Martin, Jazz president. Martin operates a fleet of oilfield supply boats. "I can always use a graduate of a shipbuilding school."

Graniteers Rip Integon, 15-5

The Graniteers evened their record at 4-4 by romping to a 15-5 victory over Integon in the Tar Heel Little League yesterday.

The loss knocked the Integon record off to 3-5.

Integon scored first, getting a run in the top of the first. Junior Neal reached on a two-base error and Cliff Warren was safe on another. Andy Smith reached on a third error, scoring Neal.

But the Graniteers came back with two in their half of the first. Lance Searle reached on an error and moved to third on a wild pitch and a passed ball. Steve Holloman walked and stole second. Mike James singled in Searle and an error allowed Holloman to score.

The Graniteers put the game away with five more runs in the second, upping the lead to 7-1. Alan Dickens walked and Mike Haut reached on a fielder's choice. Searle singled to load them up. James singled in Dickens, and Jeff James cracked out a grand-slam home run.

Integon rallied for two in the third. Neal reached on a fielder's choice and Warren singled. Smith reached on an error, scoring Neal. Allen Hudson walked and Mike Holloman reached on a fielder's choice allowing Warren to score.

Two more Graniteer runs scored in the bottom of the inning. Mike Fuller walked and Mike Tucker reached on an error, then stole third. Dickens grounded out, scoring Fuller, and Searle reached on an error, scoring Tucker.

Two more came over in the fourth. Jeff James singled and Jamie Byrd reached on a fielder's choice. They moved up on a wild pitch and Fuller's ground out scored James. Byrd scored on a wild pitch for an 11-3 lead.

Integon added its last two in the fifth. Horace Barrett reached on a fielder's choice and Hudson singled. A wild pitch scored Smith, and Hudson scored on Holloman's out.

The Graniteers closed out their scoring with four in the fifth. Dickens singled and advanced on a passed ball. Searle was safe on a fielder's choice and Holloman singled in Dickens. Mike James finished it off with a three-run homer.

Warren had two hits for Integon, while Mike James had four, and Jeff James had two for the Graniteers.

The publication annually publishes its list of 100 All-America selections from across the country, based on nominations from coaches, athletic directors, college scouts and sports news media members. This year, just two were listed from North Carolina.

It was announced on Sunday in the Daily Reflector that one of these selections was Tyrone Edwards, the 6-10 center from Pittsboro, who has signed a grant-in-aid to East Carolina.

Yesterday, it was learned that the other selection by the magazine is Louis Crobsy, the 6-3 swing man signed by the Pirates out of Crest High School in Shelby.

Lions Edge By Kiwanis, 5-3

The Lions held off a Kiwanis rally in the late innings to take a 5-3 victory yesterday in the North State Little League.

The Lions are now 6-2 on the year, while the Kiwanis are 0-8.

The Lions grabbed the led in the second inning scoring two runs. Burney Carraway walked and stole second. A balk put him on third and he scored on a passed ball. Roger Williams then hit a solo home run for the 2-0 lead.

Two more came over in the third. Jim Whitehurst reached on a fielder's choice and Shelton Wilson doubled. Marc Gatlin reached on an error, scoring both runners to make it 4-0.

The Kiwanis, shut out completely for the first three innings, got their first baserunners in the fourth, then pushed over two runs in the fifth. John Parnell reached on a fielder's choice, as did Jeff Boyd. Both moved up on a passed ball, and Jay Whitehurst doubled to drive them in.

The Lions added one more in the sixth. Scott Galloway singled and stole second. He scored on Arthur Fletcher's double.

The Kiwanis tried for one more comeback in the sixth, but got only one run. Spencer Mayo reached on a two-base error and Grant Stackhouse singled. Mike Thurber singled, loading the bases. Brian Hill walked to force in Mayo, but the Lions killed the rally at that point.

Hale, Jack And Johnny Agree Pins Tough--But Par Is Riddled

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin and two of the game's top players, Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller, were in agreement after the opening round of the $225,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

Each talked about extremely difficult pin placements for opening day competition on the hilly, 6,883-yard par 72 Atlanta Country Club course.

And, each said they liked it.

But, despite the problems it presented, the strongest field in a tournament so far this year still riddled par in the cloudy conditions that produced a heavy half hour shower at mid-afternoon.

Irwin birdied three of his last four holes to move into a three-way share of the lead with veteran Billy Casper and Joe Inman at six-under-par 66.

Two shots away loomed Nicklaus and Miller, along with Leonard Thompson and Jack Ewing, who had a record-tying 30 on the back nine, which he played first.

"They were the worse pin placements for a Thursday round I've ever seen," said Miller, the outspoken blond who reeled off three early victories on this year's tour. "They're not unfair, just ridiculous."

"I would not categorize them ridiculous," said Irwin. "Difficult, yes. I think courses should be made difficult."

"I thought they were very difficult," said Nicklaus. "But I like that. It's the way it should be all the time. We had 18 tough ones today."

"They had some pins that were unbelievable," said Miller, jesting that the one on No. 7 was in a bunker. "It's good though. It separates the men from the boys."

Irwin, who missed four birdie possibilities from about 10 feet, made his late surge to a share of the lead by sinking a 15-footer on the 15th, a 12-footer at 17 and chipping to within three feet for another birdie on the finishing hole.

Casper had six straight one-put greens during one stretch, including a 45-foot birdie putt on the par three third.

Inman, still seeking his first victory in his third year on tour, rolled in two birdie putts of 25 feet and added three more in the 12-18-foot range.

Seven players were deadlocked at 69, three shots away. They were Lee Trevino, Danny Edwards, Bob E. Smith, Bob Goalby, Lou Graham, Grier Jones and Don Iverson.

Arnold Palmer struggled to a 79 while South African Gary Player had a 73 and Tom Weiskopf a 74.

Women's Leaders Claim Victories

Little Mint, Beltone, Piggly-Wiggly and Daniel Construction gained victories in the Women's Softball League last night.

In the opener, Little Mint took a 12-7 win over Coca-Cola. Little Mint pushed over five runs in the first, with C. Nichols homering. They added four in the third and three more in the fourth, leading all the way.

Coke scored three in the second, one in the fourth on H. Tolson's homer, and three more in the fifth.

Beltone romped to a 21-3 victory over Wachovia in the second game. Beltone pushed over four in the first and added five more in the second as Rouse and Bennett homered. They added in the fourth, three more in the fifth, one in the sixth and five in the seventh with Rouse again homering.

Wachovia got one each in the third, fourth and sixth. B. Brown had a homer in the fourth.

The third game saw Daniel take a 20-6 win over BurroughsWellcome. Daniel pushed over four in the first and added one in the second. They came up with six more in the third, with V. Daniels homering. Three crossed in the fifth, and they closed out with six in the sixth.

Burroughs-Wellcome scored three in the second, two in the fourth and one in the fifth on M. Pitt's homer.

The final game saw Piggly-Wiggly take an 18-4 win over the Daily Reflector. The Reflector gained a 2-0 lead in the top of the first, but Piggly-Wiggly came up with five in their half of the frame. They added five in the second with L. Whitehurst homering. Eigth crossed in the third with S. Pittman getting a homer.

The Reflector got one each in the second and third with S. Spivey homering in the latter inning.

Maddox Paces Yankee Victory

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — New York's Elliott Maddox just circled the Yankees' dressing room for 10 minutes and grinned.

He had struck a mortal blow in his running feud with Texas Rangers' Manager Billy Martin but refused to gloat.

Maddox slammed four hits, collected four RBIs and delivered a game-winning two-run double in the ninth inning Thursday night to give the Yankees a 7-5 victory over the Rangers, who gave up on him a year ago.

It was the only game played in the major leagues Thursday night.

Maddox was embroiled in a beanball controversy with Martin in spring training and it carried over into the regular season last week when Texas visited New York City. Maddox was knocked down and claimed that was done on Martin's orders.

Maddox was asked how it felt to gain a measure of revenge on Martin and the Rangers.

"It's always nice to come back and haunt a team that gave up on you," he said. "I think the bean ball thing is over ... I hope so."

The New York center fielder, whom Rangers' management claimed could neither field nor hit before he was traded, went into the game with one hit for his last 20 times at bat.

"The team made fun of me in the locker room Wednesday night after we beat Kansas City and I just had to laugh," Maddox said. "The irony of the entire thing is that I broke out of the slump against the Rangers.

"I hit two line drives right at somebody, was robbed on two other balls and had a line drive bounce off the pitching rubber right into the second baseman's hands against Kansas City. I was really getting frustrated. I just had to get a hit for a change."

It was the eighth victory in the last 11 games for the streaking Yankees and the sixth loss in a row for the sagging Rangers.

Maddox opened his evening with a triple to score Bobby Bonds, followed with two singles after a groundout, and slashed the clutch double to score Sandy Alomar and Bonds.

Starters Pat Dobson of the Yanks and Clyde Wright of the Rangers were shelled and Dick Tidrow picked up the mound victory in relief. Rookie Jim Umbarger was saddled with the loss.

Prefontaine Is Dead In Crash

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Steve Prefontaine, America's best distance running hope for the 1976 Olympics and one of this country's most controversial amateur athletes, died early today in a one-car automobile accident here. He was 24.

Prefontaine, holder of every American distance record above 2,000 meters, was pinned under his car when it hit a rock wall at about 12:30 a.m. PDT, Eugene police said.

A few hours earlier he had run the second fastest 5,000 meters in American history at the National Collegiate Athletic Association preparation meet in Eugene.

A native of Coos Bay, Ore., Prefontaine was a graduate of the University of Oregon and ran for the Oregon Track Club. He was a member of the U.S. Olympic team in Munich in 1972.

Prefontaine, who trained hard, was often bitter over the treatment received by amateur athletes in this country. Two months ago, asked about running as an amateur for his country, he said:

"To hell with love of country, I compete for myself."

Stallings Is Named

STATESBORO, Ga. (AP) — Jack Stallings, who led Florida State to a second place finish in the NCAA college world series in 1970, has been named baseball coach at Georgia Southern.

Stallings, 44, succeeds Ron Polk, who resigned at the end of the 1975 season, the school announced Thursday.

Stallings, who coached at Florida State from 1969 to 1974, also coached at Wake Forest from 1960-68. He was named Atlantic Coast Conference coach of the year in 1962 and 1963.

He also coached the U.S. All-Stars at the World Amateur Baseball Tournament in South America in 1970.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAY 31, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today brings a good chance for you to get together with old friends. The evening is a good time to take it easy and to build up your mental strength. Improve your surroundings.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Much sociability with good friends pays off handsomely today, but evening should be spent at home. Be logical.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can see bigwigs today who are free and gain their backing with relative ease. Show your talents, but use discretion.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can learn a great deal from new contacts today. A good time to become involved in a worthwhile civic matter.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle your responsibilities efficiently and clear the slate for more important matters ahead. Think constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Find out what associates expect of you, and then aim to please. An important matter develops that can bring happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Delve into all that work facing you with enthusiasm instead of grumbling about it. Later engage in favorite hobby.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Daytime is best for recreational purposes. Use your talent that can increase your abundance. Avoid a troublemaker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make improvements at home that are necessary. Studying a new interest during spare time can bring excellent results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Daytime is best for outside activities so you can enjoy your home and family tonight. Budget your money wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study new ways to build up your security. Make those repairs to property that are necessary. Go to the social tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use charm and with good friends and get more out of the relationship. Make long-range plans for the future tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Meet with an expert and gain the right advice so that you can improve your whole financial structure. Relax tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will want to know all types of people and will benefit from the contacts. The chart becomes a successful one later in life provided the education is good. You must plan now so there will be no slip-up because of lack of cash.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
1 ♥	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♠.

South displayed exemplary technique in bringing home a three no trump contract after the opening lead had removed the entry to dummy's side suit.

Rather than leave himself with a potential rebid problem if he opened the bidding in either major suit, South elected to open with the convenient bid of one club, then rebid his lower-ranking major over his partner's one diamond response. North's jump to three diamonds was a bit aggressive, but his hand was really too good for any alternative action, and South closed the proceedings by settling in the obvious contract.

West led his fourth-best spade. Declarer played low from dummy, East won the king and returned the suit, taking out declarer's only side entry to dummy's diamond suit. Declarer had only six quick tricks available, and the apparent source of the extra three tricks needed to bring home the game was in diamonds. However, he realized that a successful diamond finesse would not, in itself, be enough. Since he was missing both the jack and ten of diamonds, he would have to lose a trick in the suit, and if he gave up a trick on the third round of the suit, he would have no way of getting back to dummy to cash the long diamonds.

The solution was simple. At trick three, declarer led a low diamond from dummy, conceding immediately the trick he would have to lose in the suit. The defenders were powerless. East won the jack of diamonds and, in desperation, shifted to a heart (no return would have been any better), which was ducked by declarer. West won and returned the suit to the jack and ace.

When the finesse of the queen of diamonds held and East followed, declarer had the rest of the tricks. In all he took five diamond tricks, three spades, and two aces.

By playing the hand as he did, South risked taking no diamond tricks if East held the king, but the extra undertrick was a small price to pay for the chance of making a vulnerable game.

Balloonists Scattered

HELEN, Ga. (AP) — Twelve balloonists were scattered across north Georgia and South Carolina as they fought unfriendly winds and forbidding skies in the 300-mile race from this north Georgia town to the Atlantic Ocean.

By late Thursday, the second day of the race, six of the balloonists were reported in South Carolina.

Last year's winner, state Sen. Tom Rutherford of New Mexico, did not get started until Thursday. Barbara Gay, who has been trying to keep track of the contestants, doubted he got too far Thursday.

"He might have gotten a few miles in this morning," she said, "but the clouds would have brought him down again." She said the balloonists land when skies are overcast and the area has been hit by thunderstorms each afternoon this week.

Among the early leaders was Peter Hodkinson of Helen. He made it into South Carolina Wednesday night, but when he lifted off Thursday he found himself drifting back towards Georgia and landed near Lake Hartwell on the Georgia-South Carolina line.

Hints Brezhnev Planning Retire

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS (AP) — Leaders of the North Atlantic Alliance are getting reports from Moscow that suggest Leonid I. Brezhnev, the No. 1 man in the Soviet Union, will retire next year.

That is believed to be the chief reason why the Soviet government is pushing so hard for a 34-nation summit conference on European security in September. It will officially recognize the Soviet sphere of influence in Eastern Europe, and Brezhnev wants it as the crowning achievement of his career.

Expectations of Brezhnev's withdrawal from public life appear to be based on circumstantial evidence, hints and suggestions. No visiting Western leader has been told outright the Communist party chief is on his way out.

Among the pointers:

—Brezhnev"s health seems to be not all that good, according to people who have watched him at close quarters recently.

—Soviet officials exhibit a new sense of haste in arguing the case for a European summit parley by the end of the summer.

—Brezhnev appears to have lined up a schedule that has all the earmarks of a farewell tour. First on the agenda is a visit to President Ford in Washington, he hopes by July. In the fall are the European summit conference and another summit of leaders of European Communist parties. And finally, next February or March, a congress of the Soviet Communist party is expected.

The impression among Western officials attending the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's summit conference is that the party congress is intended as the stage for Brezhnev's swan song.

Some Western officials express the belief that agreement to hold the European summit conference in September would reinforce the faction in the Kremlin that favors cooperation with the West. This, then, would marginally influence the succession to Brezhnev, they argue.

Order Lowering Sugar Prices

NEW YORK (AP) — Amstar Corp. and National Sugar Refining Co. say they will lower the wholesale price of 100 pounds of industrial sugar by $6.10 starting today.

The price of extra-fine granulated sugar will fall to $27 per 100 pounds while granulated and No. 2 liquid sugar will cost $26.60.

The products are used in the manufacture of soda, bakery goods and presweetened cereals. The makers may pass their savings on to consumers, depending on how the new prices affect their costs.

Offer Reward Coed's Slaying

RALEIGH (AP)—A $2,500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the "brutal and savage" murder of an N.C. State University coed has been authorized by Gov Jim Holshouser.

The coed, Elizabeth Parks Rosenburg, 24, was beaten and stomped to death early May 6 beside her automobile in a driveway near the N.C. State campus.

Police said Mrs. Rosenburg's killer had used a heavy iron pipe with a chunk of concrete around its base as a weapon.

Wake County Dist. Atty. Burley B. Mitchell said Tuesday he expected an arrest within two weeks in the case. However, Raleigh Detective Capt. James M. Stell, said that "unless there is a major development in the case, we really dont expect an arrest that soon."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a strong rally today with the aid of apparently increased hopes for an approaching economic recovery.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 9.94 at 824.94, and advances outdistanced declines by close to a 4-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was fairly active.

Brokers said a primary source of optimism was the government's report Thursday that its revamped index of leading economic indicators, designed to provide advance indications of economic trends, took a sharp upward jump last month.

Another plus came in the Federal Reserve's weekly money and credit statistics issued after Thursday's close, which showed a further increase in the nation's money supply and a continued decline in business loan demand at major New York banks.

Late this morning, the Ford administration said it expected a stronger economic rebound in 1976 than had been foreseen earlier.

Occidental Petroleum, the Big Board volume leader, rose 1 to 19⅞ on top of a 2½-point gain over the two previous sessions. Analysts said the stock has been benefiting from a brokerage house recommendation and interest in the company's Island Creek Coal subsidiary.

Occidental warrants, also active, jumped 1½ to 11⅛.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks climbed .50 to 48.17 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .51 to 88.04.

Offers Of Prospective Vietnam Refugee Sponsors Sharply Down

By MIKE SHANHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Offers from prospective sponsors of Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees have dropped sharply, and some officials believe it may be a year or more before resettlement of the refugees is complete.

Resettlement officials say a reported delay caused by security checks of the refugees is slowing the pace of relocation while the decline in the number of sponsors poses more delays in the future.

These officials say the delay is likely to keep thousands of refugees on Guam through the summer typhoon season and could force the opening of more refugee camps on the U.S. mainland.

"The way things are going now, we're still going to have people in the camps more than a year from now," Leon O. Marion, director of an umbrella organization of private refugee agencies, said Thursday.

Marion and State Department officials agree the most recent logjam has been a congressional requirement for extensive security checks of refugees before they move on to new lives in U.S. communities.

So far, 22,382 refugees have been resettled. Most of them had relatives in this country or had established contacts with willing American sponsors before leaving home. Of the remaining 107,941 refugees, there are 24,205 at Fort Chaffee, Ark., 16,879 at Camp Pendleton, Calif., 4,668 at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida, 520 at Fort Indiantown Gap, Pa., and another 61,669 on bases in the Pacific Ocean, mostly living under tents on Guam.

Refugees are not permitted to leave the four mainland camps until an American citizen, acting as a sponsor, provides assurances that the refugee will have a place to live and some assurance of a job.

Norman Sweet, the senior U.S. civilian in charge of the refugee program on Guam, said Thursday the length of time the island was to remain as a refugee center has now stretched to August, compared to the original estimate of mid-June.

During the summer on Guam, there are threats of typhoons, of heavy rains and tropical heat.

U.S. officials privately acknowledge that congressional insistence on a painstaking screening for known criminals or persons with Viet Cong or Communist affiliations has slowed the relocation process.

Among thousands of names checked so far, only about 30 have shown up with negative notations among records of the FBI, the Central Intelligence Agency, the Pentagon, and other agencies.

Meanwhile, from a peak daily average of 11,000 offers of help counted by the State Department in the early days of May, the number has now dwindled to an average of about 450.

Even those offers must be screened for legitimacy, and only a tiny number include promises of all three kinds of help required by the refugees: employment, housing and financial assistance.

Aid For Victims

RALEIGH (AP)—Victims of crime who suffer injuries or dependents of a person killed by criminal action could be awarded financial aid from the state under a pair of bills introduced in the legislature today.

Sen. Katherine Sebo, D-Guilford, sponsored the measure in the Senate and Rep. Lane Brown, D-Stanly, sponsored an identical bill in the House.

If the proposal becomes law, victims of crime could be compensated for medical and hospital expenses, loss of earnings or support, funeral and burial expenses and pain and suffering, Mrs Sebo said.

The compensation would be awarded by the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board and would cover costs from the injury or death of the victim that couldn't be recovered by other means, she said.

Reasoning behind the legislation is that the state has a duty to protect citizens from crime and when the state fails, it should compensate the victim, Mrs Sebo said.

She said there are now 11 states with such laws.

day to give a tax break to businessmen by reducing the inventory tax. The committee also laid to rest repeal of the state income tax on food until 1977.

The inventory tax measure provides for a 50 per cent phased reduction of the levy over a five-year period. Unlike a measure recently withdrawn in the Senate, the bill would not deplete state revenues, but those of local governments which now collect hhe tax.

Industry has lobbied for years for removal of the inventory tax and proponents of repeal claim it would attract new businesses to the state.

The food tax measure was put aside after Rep. Sandy Harris, D-Alamance, its sponsor, asked the committee not to bother voting on it.

The bill, which would replace the food tax with higher state income taxes for the wealthy, has been doomed for some time.

Bills that would establish new state policy for insuring adequate paving on residential streets neared enactment in the General Assembly Thursday.

The House passed a measure to require developers to pave their streets to secondary road standards or else inform property owners that the roads would have to be privately maintained in perpetuity.

A bill passed by the Senate would allow counties to assess all the homeowners on a street for the local share of improvement costs if 75 per cent of them agreed. Both bills were sent to the other chamber for concurrence in amendments.

State secondary road officers say the net effect of the bills will be to allow the state to begin improving substandard roads which have been left by unethical developers for homeowners to deal with.

A plan for merit selection of judges was scrapped by its sponsor Thursday. Rep. Herbert Hyde, D-Buncombe, had to write a letter to himself, formally withdrawing the bill from consideration by the House Committee on Courts and Judicial Districts.

That was because Hyde chairs the committee and House rules require that a committee chairman be notified in writing by the sponsor of a measure in order to drop it.

Hyde was pressured into abandoning the measure after the committee was hopelessly deadlocked for two consecutive days. House Majority Leader C. Kitchin Josey told Hyde it was wasting too much time.

The measure stood no chance of gaining the three-fifths majority it needed on the House floor, even if it could have cleared the committee. It would have provided for nomination of judicial candidates by a committee dominated by attorneys and appointment by the governor.

A House Judiciary Committee rejected a bill to make prosecution for obscenity easier. The panel killed on a voice vote a bill that would have given district attorneys sweeping power to prosecute those selling what he believes to be pornographic.

The Christian Action League had pushed the bill, which would have classified obscenity as a "public nuisance."

SEMIFINAL RITES—Alfred Hitchcok joins newsmen for lunch Thursday in a "cemetery" at Universal studios in Los Angeles. The semifinal rites for the famed director, whose pictures frequently feature death and the macabre, preceded a one-hour documentary film about Hitchcock's career, work and views. He is now at work on his 53rd movie, and the cemetery stunt was a device to promote the picture. (AP Wirephoto)

Rifle Stolen From His Truck

One of Pitt County's animal control officers is missing his rifle.

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said Grant Jarman of 2305 East Fourth St. reported yesterday that someone took the .22 caliber semi-automatic weapon from his county dog warden truck sometime Wednesday night while the vehicle was parked at his home.

Investigation of the theft is underway, Cannon said.

Condemnation

AYDEN—The Contentnea Metropolitan Sewerage District board members agreed last week to begin condemnation proceedings on approximately 68 acres of land as the site of the proposed sewage treatment plant for the towns of Winterville, Ayden and Grifton.

The property, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Worthington, is located on the Contentnea Creek near Grifton.

June 4 has been set as the date for a hearing to determine a fair price for the property.
