

Zoning Amendment Tabled By Council For Further Study

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Action on the controversial proposed amendment to the city's Zoning Ordinance was tabled by the City Council last night following a show of opposition to the ordinance by several local citizens.

The Council's decision to table the matter pending further study on the question of where to locate a new fire station came after a public hearing on the proposed amendment which, as written, would allow municipal government buildings, uses, and facilities as permitted uses in all zoning districts except "Flood Plain."

The need for the amendment, although it was emphasized that the question of the fire station was not the matter under consideration last night, arose following a decision by the city to build a fire station on property at 2405 and 2407 S. Memorial Drive.

Residents in the area objected to the placement of a fire station in a residential district and a court suit against the city was solved when the city agreed to a consent judgment, admitting its error in attempting to build the station in the residential zone with a special use permit.

Mayor Eugene West, noting that, "We thought this was allowable to start with," said that the reason for the proposed ordinance was to clear up the question so that placement of municipal buildings in any zone except flood plain could be done if the Council "deemed it wise."

West explained that the state insurance board has advised the city that a new station is necessary in the South Memorial Drive vicinity to replace the current Chestnut Street facility which is inadequate with regard to structure and location.

The mayor noted that several other sites proposed for the station were rejected by the state and the city was unable to purchase another proposed site along the highway from the proposed location. He said that the city is "pretty much cut off" as to where to locate the station.

The city currently has a Class Five fire rating and failure to locate the station within a designated area to meet state guidelines will mean a drop to Class Six and increase in fire protection rates for Greenville citizens, West contended.

Currently, there is nothing mentioned in the city ordinance about fire stations and West said that the station would have to be placed somewhere.

Eddie Dozier of 107 Glenwood

Avenue, whose property backs up to the rear of the proposed station location, appealed to the Council to take negative action on the amendment because of its "broad scope."

Dozier said that it appeared the city was trying to correct a mistake it had already admitted in court, and he called attention to recent unanimous action of the Planning and Zoning Commission in voting against recommendation of the amendment.

The resident, who has opposed the city's fire station location from the outset, asked that if an amendment is adopted that it exclude not only "Flood Plain" but residential zoning districts.

Dozier said that there is "ample land in Greenville" on which to place a fire station without having to go into a residential area.

Councilman John Howard reminded the citizens that people living in the vicinity of Gardner Fire Station questioned the Brownlea Drive site but since construction very few complaints have come from residents of the area.

Opposition to inclusion of residential districts in the amendment was also voiced by Jim Hicks who noted that he was opposed to the city having blanket authority to place a municipal building where it pleased. He said it would keep the city from having to seek a permit from the Board of Adjustments.

Arnett Harris of Lamont Road asserted that the ordinance would give the city too much latitude in the placement of municipal buildings without the residents of a proposed area having a say in the matter.

Harris said that he could appreciate the position the city finds itself in but as a citizen he could also understand the position of residents in the proposed area of the fire station.

Bill Clark of 104 Terry Street, also noting that too much latitude would be given to the city through the amendment, said that he would like to see the matter go to a committee for more study.

Linda Hicks said that there are many times when a proposed municipal building would not be objectionable but there are other

Little New Evidence In Edmisten's Probe Report

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten today released a report on the Holshouser administration's Enforcement and Theft Bureau which he said "all has been published at one time or another in an unofficial manner."

Edmisten's 50-page report repeated assertions he has made in interviews this week that the bureau was turned into a "private detective agency" for partisan purposes by overzealous Republicans, including "high administration officials."

But it offered little additional evidence beyond the previously published allegations of former bureau employees Charles "Rusty" Lassiter, Nicholas Smith, and Timothy Bowers.

Edmisten said his investigators had not asked for interviews or evidence from several key people in the report, including Gov. Jim Holshouser, political aide Gene Anderson, ex-Secretary of Transportation Bruce Lentz, and former Motor Vehicles Commissioner Boyd Miller.

"We may not have interviewed everyone you would think should have been interviewed," he said.

The most serious allegation in the report was that bureau agents had begun an investigation into the affairs of Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., with "absolutely no basis."

But in another section of the report, Edmisten said Bowers had received tips from some sources concerning alleged underworld connections to Morgan in the areas of cigarette smuggling and auto theft.

Edmisten said there was no contradiction. He said an investigation into issuance of prayers for judgment continued in Harnett County, Morgan's home, had led into and provided the opportunity for the investigation of Morgan. "I'm not going to tell you who those informants were," he added.

The report contained an allegation by Smith that Holshouser, through Anderson, had allowed the probe of Morgan "if it had a sound basis." But Edmisten said the investigators had not asked Holshouser or Anderson for their versions of Smith's third person account.

Edmisten said Smith ordered the Morgan investigation dropped after his meeting with Anderson in late 1973 or early 1974.

The rest of the report contained allegations of misuse of state travel funds and equipment involving Lassiter and former bureau director Roy McCampbell. McCampbell, Edmisten said, refused to be interviewed on advice of an attorney.

The amounts involved generally were in the hundreds of dollars. Edmisten said, "You can investigate any state agency at any time and find a few vouchers that are a little off."

Total Employment Is Growing U.S. Unemployment Rate Hit 9.2 Per Cent In May

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate jumped to a post-World War II high of 9.2 per cent in May, but total employment also gained for the second straight month, the government reported today.

The jobless rate — 8.9 per cent in April — has climbed steadily since last August. This was the first time in 34 years that it exceeded 9 per cent of the work force. In 1941, the jobless rate averaged 9.9 per cent over the year out of a work force of 55.9 million.

The Labor Department said another 360,000 Americans joined the jobless rolls last month, bringing the total number out of work to 8.5 million.

But the number of Americans working also increased in May, rising by 320,000 to a total of 84.4 million.

The size of the labor force was reported up by 680,000 to 92.9 million in May. But because more people went looking for work than there were jobs available, unemployment also increased.

Analysts with the Bureau of Labor Statistics cited the gains in employment over the past two months as a "positive sign" of an improving job picture.

Another indicator was the Labor Department's Diffusion Index which showed that 54 per cent of the 172 industries in the index posted employment gains in May. It was the first time since August that more than half of the industries registered employment increases. Over the past two months total employment has increased by 550,000, after registering six consecutive monthly declines that totaled 2.6 million.

Nearly all the increase last month was in agricultural employment and involved adult males and teen-agers, the government said.

Despite the gains in employment, joblessness also has continued to increase. Since August it has risen by 3.6 million. Loss of jobs accounted for a large portion of the May unemployment increase, but both new entrants and re-entrants into the labor force also accounted for sizeable increases in joblessness.

Almost all of the May joblessness occurred among men 25 years and over and teen-age women. Most of the other age-sex groups showed little or no change.

Housewife And Mother Getting A Diploma, Too

When the graduation ceremony for Rose High students takes place tonight, one of the students in line will be a 33 year old mother and housewife.

Mrs. Barbara Wilson, following a 14 year lapse after dropping out in the 11th grade at Epbes, she never dreamed she'd go back to school over a decade later. "I got married, I married Joseph Wilson," she said.

Late last summer, Mrs. Wilson first heard about the Optional Program "on the TV program 'Together With Eve.' I got to thinking about going back to school and went over to Rose High and talked to Rev. Clarence Gray.

"He told me he thought it would be best for me to go to the Optional School," Mrs. Wilson said. "So I started in September and have been going all year. Just two more days," she smiled during an interview on Wednesday.

And her opinion on the Greenville Optional School program? "I think it's a beautiful idea, and the teachers there are terrific."

Back in 1960 when Mrs. Wilson dropped out in the 11th grade at Epbes, she never dreamed she'd go back to school over a decade later. "I got married, I married Joseph Wilson," she said.

Mrs. Wilson has four children. The two oldest, Gail and Emily are girls. The two younger are boys, Emanuel and Curtis. The children are 14, 13, 10 and 6 years old respectively.

On future plans, Mrs. Wilson says she is "Thinking about enrolling for a course at Pitt Technical Institute in September. That is, 'unless I get a real good job before then.'"

Inmates Escape By Helicopter

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — A helicopter plucked two inmates to freedom from the yard at Southern Michigan Prison in Jackson this morning, state police said.

State police said the helicopter landed near the town of Munith, about 15 miles northeast of the prison, two persons jumped out and the aircraft flew off.

State police said they were trying to track the copter but had made no apprehensions.

WHY THE CHANGE
If a referendum was needed during the 1970 election to decide whether Pitt Technical Institute should become a community college, why can the status be changed by an act of the legislature now? B. W.

We enlisted the help of Dr. Reid Parrott, vice president for educational programs of the Department of Community Colleges to get this answer. The change was made in the 1971 legislature session. It's found in G. S. 115A-20, Section F.

Now a referendum may be held, but is not required. Prerequisites for it's being considered by the legislature include approval by the Board of Trustees of the Institute, the County Commissioners, the State Board of Education, the Advisory Budget Committee, and the Governor, Dr. Parrott said.

Stallings Field Designated Regional Airport

RALEIGH—Governor Jim Holshouser announced today that the North Carolina Airport System Plan will provide for the designation of Stallings Field at Kinston as a regional airport to serve the needs of air passengers in the Central Coastal Plains area.

This phase of the plan, begun in July, 1973, makes recommendations for the consolidation of commercial airline service at Stallings Field to serve Goldsboro, Greenville, Kinston, New Bern, Washington and their surrounding areas.

In addition, Albert Effis Airport at Jacksonville would continue to be developed as an area airport to serve Onslow County and neighboring areas.

million in State and federal funds for the construction of a new jet terminal and access roads for Stallings Field.

The funds, which are provided from the North Carolina airport aid program, the Coastal Plains Regional Commission and the Federal Economic Development Administration, will be supplemented by local funds to build the 40,000-square-foot terminal.

Governor Holshouser said the regional airport designation is for planning and future development purposes and will have no immediate impact on the operations of any of the airports involved in the study.

"It is apparent, however," he added, "that the rapidly changing character of airline service will make it difficult to maintain a desirable level of service with the existing system of airports in Eastern North Carolina.

"Although we evaluated a number of comments received after a March public hearing, there were no new facts introduced which would substantially alter the initial recommendations of the Airport System Plan, which gave a preliminary designation of a regional airport facility to Stallings Field."

Coastal Plains Region within a 45 to 60-minute drive of Stallings Field.

In addition, the quality of facilities at Stallings Field makes its expansion considerably less costly than similar expansion at nearby locations.

Because of the heavy military demand in Onslow County, it was felt that Albert Ellis Airport could best serve this specialized need and that, too, should continue to receive airline service.

The Governor noted that under the plan, ground travel time will increase for about 20 percent of the area's residents.

However, he said, these increases will be relatively minor and will be more than offset by the superior service which would be available at the planned regional airport.

"The increasing economic needs of Eastern North Carolina require better airline service which can be gained only by a consolidation of flights into a central location," Holshouser said. "I urge all of the cities in the region to put aside local differences and work to develop an airport which can provide the level of services to serve as an economic and transportation stimulus for all of the Coastal Plains Region."

City Council...

times when it would be, as in the case of the planned fire station. Those times would not allow the citizens a voice in where a structure would go, she said.

Councilman Clarence Gray said that he was opposed to the ordinance because it would give the city too much latitude and the public would have little to say as to where a facility would be placed. Gray said that he was prepared to vote on the matter last night.

Noting that he could not vote for the ordinance as it was now written, Councilman Percy Cox pointed out that the fire station will have to be built somewhere but he did not believe the ordinance should be passed.

Council members voted, with Gray voting no, to give further consideration to the matter.

In a matter not on the scheduled agenda, discussion was held concerning problems in the West Meadowbrook flood plain area and Cox, Gray and Council member Mrs. Mildred McGrath agreed to serve on a committee to give immediate study to the problems and seek some type of a solution.

Chief Inspector Alton Warren reported that people living in the flood plain sections want to know what can be done to help them. Warren said that there are people living in the area who are drinking contaminated water and have been for some time.

Currently, flood plain restrictions prohibit new construction in designated low lying areas and no sewer or water improvements can be made in the area.

Cox noted that, at the present time, the city has no authority to do anything in the flood plain, which has been so designated by the Corps of Engineers. "I think we will have to take some action to relocate the people there," he added.

Gray said that he would like to see an effort made to relocate people from the affected area.

The Red Cross is very disturbed that people are living under the present conditions in W. Meadowbrook, Warren said, and especially with the water situation there.

"One thing that bothers me is that the people don't seem to want to help themselves," West asserted.

Mrs. McGrath said that it is "immoral to have people drink that kind of water" and she pointed out that an effort to have local banks provide a pool of low interest money to assist residents in Meadowbrook was unsuccessful.

The Council, after holding a public hearing, approved the rezoning from Highway Commercial to Shopping Center of properties located on the east side of Memorial Drive between W. Fifth Street and Farmville Boulevard.

The Planning and Zoning Commission recommended that the area north of the E.F. Craven Co. property be rezoned to Shopping Center and that the Craven Co. and Carolina Model Homes property remain Highway Commercial.

West said that the Shopping Center designation is more strict than Highway Commercial zoning and will give the city more control over development of the property. The rezoned area contains some 12.3 acres. Several appointments to city boards and commissions were made by the Council, including the naming of Lacy Harrell as a regular member of the Board of Adjustments. Harrell succeeds Patrick Dayson who completed one term and asked not to be reappointed. Matthew Lewis, who served with Harrell as an alternate, will remain in that capacity and an alternate replacement will be named for Harrell at the next meeting.

Mrs. Ruth Trevathan, E.R. Carraway and Lymond Ormond have completed or finished unexpired terms on the Planning and Zoning Commission and were reappointed for second terms. Ormond was recently appointed to fill an unexpired term.

The Council also named Hugh Bazemore and Mrs. Dorothy Woolees to replace Sidney Carraway and Mrs. Louis Gaylord, respectively, who completed two terms on the Recreation Commission and were not eligible for reappointment.

Alton Harris was approved for membership on the city Library Board.

Authorization was given for the refund of advance payments on VanNortwick and Moore Street improvement petitions in the amount of $1,000.

Mobile home permits were renewed for one year for William Hopkins for the mobile structure at 134 W. Gum Road and used as a personal residence; for United Mobile Homes for the mobile home at 708 W. Greenville Boulevard for use as an office; and for Mrs. Almeta L. McCoy for the mobile home at 1306 S. Pitt Street which is used as a personal residence.

The Council tabled a committee report on the Moyewood Center pending a workshop session and continued study on the use of the facility.

A bid by Barrus Construction Co. for the city's 1975 street resurfacing program (9.59 miles) was approved in the amount of $179,087.40 or $16.65 per ton of asphalt. Other bids received included: Barnhill Contracting, $21.25 per ton and total bid of $228,565; and S.T. Wooten Construction, $19 per ton and $204,364 total bid.

The resurfacing program was initiated some three years ago, it was noted, and this is the third phase of the improvement project.

Approval of a contract with Worsley, Farley, and Prescott, Certified Public Accountants, for audit of the 1974-75 records of the city and Parking Authority was given. The firm has handled previous city audits.

The sale of Disposal Parcel W-1 in the Southside Project to David Evans Jr. and Disposal Parcel W-1 in the Central Business District Project to Louis Clark was approved.

Evans submitted a bid of $23,201.11 for the parcel bounded by Howell, Norris, Skinner and Perkins Street and Clark offered a bid of $32,060 for the property located across from the courthouse (old Dr. Smith property) on Third Street. In both bid openings, only one bid was submitted.

A resolution creating a seven-member Public Transportation Commission was adopted by the Council. The commission, according to Councilman Dr. Frank Fuller, would act on matters involving public transit, including the disbursement of funds allocated by the Council, and give the city an official body to deal with the transportation matter. The Transit Advisory Committee served only in an advisory capacity and had no real authority, it was noted.

Other business included: scheduling of a public hearing on July 10 on a request by Mr. and Mrs. Nat Sutton for rezoning from R-6 to R-6-Mobile Home of property at 208 E. Mumford Street; adoption of a resolution confirming the assessment roll and levying assessment on the street improvement project on Canterbury Road from Avon Lane to Berkshire Road; release of taxes for 1970, 1973 and 1974; denial of a request by Sam O. Worthington for release of $99 penalty on a 1969 paving assessment on property on E. Seventh Street; and authorization for the city manager to receive bids on group life insurance for employees of the city.

City Manager Harry Hagerty noted that a letter was received from Integon Corp. indicating that group insurance rates will go up some 30 per cent. Hagerty asked for authorization to seek bids on group insurance in light of the proposed increase.

Hagerty was also authorized to proceed with a project to improve an area on the third floor of city hall for use as a police assembly room. The city manager said that Chapin Construction Co. has submitted a bid of $2,912 to handle the improvements.

A motion to leave the present structure of the Joint City-County and Greenville Planning and Zoning Commissions as it now stands was adopted by the Council. The action followed a request by members of the joint board to have the boards combined and to have equal voting status with city members.

Cox said that his opinion was that "we should definitely not combine the two boards."

As a result of legislative opposition to the trip, Phillips had informally polled board members and told the federal agency that the trip would be canceled.

The trip had been criticized in a House resolution sponsored by Rep. Hartwell Campbell, D-Wilson.

Weekend Wedding

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Russian actress Victoria Fyodorova and an American pilot have taken out a marriage license here, and her half-brother says the wedding will take place this weekend.

Miss Fyodorova, who came to the United States to visit the father she had never seen, is to marry Frederick R. Pouy, 36, of Stamford, according to an application filed at the Stamford Town Hall on May 30. Officials say the license was picked up Tuesday.

In Moscow, Miss Fyodorova's mother, actress Zoya Fyodorova, refused comment on the report of her daughter's marriage plans. It was the mother's love affair with a member of the U.S. military mission in Moscow 30 years ago that led to the daughter's birth.

"It will be a love-filled marriage," Miss Fyodorova's half-brother, retired Navy Capt. Hugh Tate said in Orange Park, Fla., Thursday. He said Miss Fyodorova plans to become a U.S. citizen.

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Keith Concannon sat in his office across from the county courthouse and talked about police and computers and how a politician might end up with his name in an intelligence file.

He had drawn an organization chart on a blackboard. The Orange County, Calif., commissioners were along the top line. Down below, connected to the commissioners by vertical lines, were various departments, including the police.

The blackboard chart was being used as a prop as Concannon gave a localized view of police surveillance and the use of computers as a law enforcement tool.

Several congressional committees are investigating allegations that unauthorized police surveillance is widespread and that computerized files contain information on the private lives of many Americans who've never committed a crime.

"You take a police department down here that's got a police chief who's charged with enforcing the law and somebody (a politician) says 'Take it easy,'" Concannon related in an interview, gesturing to the chart.

How does the chief react? "He says, 'Oh, the politicians are coming in and trying to run my job,'" said Concannon. "Then you start developing paranoia on both sides," he added.

looking broad? You want to see the pictures?"

Then he switched back to his normal voice and added, "I'm sorry, but that's the way these things develop and this goes on all the time."

With hundreds of thousands of dollars in grants from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, police in several Orange County communities have installed elaborate computer systems.

Orange County, located south of Los Angeles, also is a stronghold of the Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit (LEIU), a nationwide association of police intelligence officers formed as a means to exchange information on organized crime.

State and federal officials are looking at LEIU's operations in the aftermath of allegations that the organization no longer limits its activity to organized crime.

One of the questions raised is how police define organized crime activity. Responding to this, Concannon returned to his example of the politician and his girl friend:

"Now, was it his secretary? Or was it a $100 call girl in the employ of organized crime who starts using this guy. You see, that gets into what the police department's talking about. Well, we have to know about these things because this is the way elected officials become corrupted."

Claims Research Lead Slipping

LOS ANGELES (AP) — America's world leadership in basic scientific research is dwindling to the point that the nation faces a future technology gap, RCA chairman Robert Sarnoff said today.

Sarnoff said the slippage of U.S. technological leadership was due to "sheer drift" in government, a lack of public awareness and hostility by "a narrow-minded coterie" he did not further identify.

"Taking all our research and development spending as a percentage of gross national product, we have witnessed a decline from 3 per cent in 1965 to 2.2 per cent last year," Sarnoff said in a commencement address at the University of Southern California. The industrialist received an honorary doctor of law degree during the ceremonies.

Cooperative Education Is Indian Curry: Hot And Spicy One Answer To The Family's Strained Budget

By BETTY YARMON
NEW YORK (WNS)—How can you make certain that your college-age child gets a college education without breaking the family? For if yours is a non-scholarship student, it will cost you $20,000 or more over the next four years to handle tuition, room and board, and other necessary expenses.

One answer to the problem of the family's strained education budget these days is cooperative education.

This is a system whereby classroom theory is integrated into practical experience as part of the student's college career. The student studies for a period, then works at a full-time job for a period, until he or she completes the requirements for a degree, with the money earned during the work periods defraying a good portion of the total tuition costs.

The plan is called cooperative education because the community outside the college—business, government, voluntary organizations—cooperate with the college in carrying it out.

About 500 of the almost 33,000 colleges and universities in the country are now estimated to be offering cooperative education, with better than 100,000 young men and women enrolled in these programs.

Typical of the cooperative education plans in operation in that of Drexel University, in Philadelphia, one of the pioneers.

The Drexel Plan, a logical extension of founder Anthony Drexel's original idea to create an educational environment where young men and women would learn how to translate new concepts, discoveries, and inventions into socially useful purposes, is a five-year plan that allows students to alternate periods of academic study on campus with at least 21 months of full-time employment at cooperating companies and institutions in the United States and overseas.

This way they finance their college education on a pay-as-you-go basis through work assignments, while integrating classroom theory with practical problem-solving in business, industry, and government.

While many students have decided on a career goal before entering college, others expect to explore and develop their career choices through their college education. Cooperative education provides a systematic framework for exploration within their chosen field.

For the student who is quite certain about his future, employment while at school offers invaluable work experience in his specialty. After graduation, then, he will be on jump ahead of the competition in today's tight job market because of that unique blend of experiences and education.

On the other hand, for the student who is undecided about his future, cooperative education provides an opportunity to develop his interest, his abilities, and the appropriateness of his tentative career choice.

Cooperative education also serves to keep the university's curriculum fresh and up-to-date. Students who have been on the firing line in business and industry return to campus with new ideas and new demands that their instructors make their curriculum more relevant. A constantly evolving program is often the useful result.

The hard-pressed students in the five out of six colleges that don't offer cooperative education plans, however, will have to look to the less formal but traditional procedure of simply finding part-time employment in the effort to offset tuition and other costs.

Not unexpectedly, most colleges these days are reporting that finding such jobs is tougher than ever, with employment in most areas lagging behind the demands for work.

This means that locating a job can become a real test of Johnny's or Jane's resourcefulness. The best places to look: the college placement office, the personnel office of business concerns in and around the college area, local shopkeepers.

If none of these brings results, he or she might talk over the problem with fellow students likewise in the job market. Together they might come up with an idea for an unfulfilled service—book exchange, babysitting, room rental agency, and so on—that could give all of them some portion of the funds needed to keep them in college.

Most of us have sampled the curry powders found on every supermarket shelf, but how many realize that they are actually a blend of anywhere from six to 40 spices?

All curry powders have as the main base turmeric, which gives them the characteristic golden color, and most contain lesser amounts of saffron. Apart from that, each powder is different, using such spices as fenugreek, coriander, cardamom, fennel and cumin.

I'm told the curry served in India bears little resemblance to that dished up in the Western world. For Indians, curry is a sauce designed to add relish to rice or those pliable wheat pancakes known as chapatis.

The Indian peasant often cooks a couple of onions or a cup of lentils in some vegetable oil seasoned with the spices that make up curry powder. He dilutes the result with coconut milk. Added to the rice or chapatis, this makes up the evening meal in the poorer homes. In fact, the poor Indians usually have one curry mixture with their rice, but the wealthy serve several varieties, both dry and liquid, during the same meal.

Usually the hotness of curry in India is determined by the place of origin. For instance, Madras curries are said to be torrid enough to blister your tongue.

Time was when the true curry buff in this country would inist, like his Indian cousins, on combining the various spices to make up his own powder. But today, with so many good brands on the market, few go through this tedious process.

Many condiments are served with curry, from a dried fish known as Bombay duck to Bhurta, a spiced vegetable puree made from potatoes, eggplant and tomatoes. The most popular accompaniment, however, is chutney, usually prepared from a base of mangoes. These preserves can be amplified with gooseberries, peaches, tamarind, limes and dates. The distinctive flavor of chutney comes from an approximately equal mixture of sugar and vinegar.

Lamb lends itself to curries about as well as any meat. Here is a recipe that should not cost too much. A cheap cut of lamb can be used since it is ground.

- 1 pound ground lamb
- 1 cup cooked rice
- 1-3rd cup chopped almonds
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon curry powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 egg beaten
- 6 hamburger buns split and toasted

Combine lamb, rice, almonds, onion, curry powder, salt, pepper and egg and mix well. Shape into 6 patties. Broil about 6 minutes. Turn patties and broil another 6 minutes, or till well done. Serve on buns. Good with chilled ale.

Woman Wants Hand, Not Face On Paper Money

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am no big women's libber, but I would like to know why no woman has ever had her name on an American dollar bill, a $5, $20, or any other denomination of paper money.

If that is the way a country honors its outstanding historical characters, I think it's time we gave that honor to a woman. How about making a survey to find out how other women feel about it?

ONE WOMAN

DEAR ONE: I polled 12 women. Nine agreed that it's time a woman got her face on paper money. Two said they didn't care one way or the other, and one said, "I don't want to get my face on any folding money, but I would like to get my HANDS on some!"

DEAR ABBY: This is a response to "His Wife" who's clinging to her husband for prestige, social position, money and retirement benefits. Let me tell you my story:

My husband found an old flame, and they took up where he left off 30 years before. After a couple of miserable years of hanging on to him, I asked him for a nice "no fault" California divorce, which was the best move I ever made.

I am now financially secure and emotionally at peace. No more scenes or churning stomach as I had when I knew he was with her. I don't have to put up with his lies, unexplained absences and sulking. And no more tennis socks to wash!

He is so grateful to me for giving him his freedom that he balances my checkbook, makes out my income taxes and even remembers my birthday. I live in a beautiful condominium and am back in college getting my master's degree—at 50! I can also stay up all night to read whenever I feel like it. Life is beautiful. I wish I'd done it years ago.

FREE

DEAR FREE: You all lucked out. Dissolving your marriage had all the sentiment of dissolving a business partnership. Not all parties to a divorce are that lucky.

DEAR ABBY: A plumber's wife asked why so many people think plumbers are overpaid. Then she did a whole number on how dirty their work is and how hard they work. Well, my father is a policeman, and every time he walks out the door he is putting his life on the line, but does he get paid as much as a plumber? No!

And my girl friend's father is a fireman, and his kind of work is just about as dangerous as a policeman's. But does he get paid as much as a plumber? No way!

I agree that a plumber's work is messy and dirty, but he sure gets paid enough without risking his life in the line of duty.

I'M 14 IN PHOENIX

DEAR "14": You're right. Let's hear it for the heroes who risk their necks routinely to protect us against those dastardly twins, crime and fire!

There'd Be No Choice For U.S.

With the collapse of South Vietnam the area of greatest concern in Asia now seems to be South Korea.

Over two decades ago United Nations forces, with the United States bearing the brunt of the action, moved into South Korea to help stabilize the situation there.

The war bogged down in the area along the 38th parallel, but finally we were able to negotiate a settlement and the shooting stopped.

Politically, though, Korea was still divided and, ever since, North Korea has been a threat to continued peace in that part of the world.

If war should come in that land, the United States would be involved whether we wished to be or not. We still have 42,000 military personnel there and 141 military installations.

The situation, of course, would be different in Korea from that of Vietnam. South Korea has control of its area and its people apparently have the will to remain free of northern domination. The will and control were both lacking in South Vietnam.

Militarily the north and the south are believed to be fairly evenly balanced so that if the North launched a new attack there would be no assurance that it would be successful.

Then, of course, the north would turn to its neighbor, China, as it did in the 1950s. But China reportedly has warned North Korea that it should not do anything drastic. Obviously China has more to lose now that it did in the 1950s. It has opened relations with the United States and its relations with the Soviet Union are poor. Thus China might not relish a new war in Korea which could sour relations with the United States.

Wars usually come as a surprise and we have no doubt that North Korea would like to head south again. There are elements which should keep North Korea under control, however, and that is our best hope for continued peace in Korea.

A New Refugee Problem

WASHINGTON—Waldo Nostrum, who works on refugee problems, was very upset when I saw him in the steam room the other day. "You don't know what I've been going through," he said. "You mean with the South Vietnamese refugees?" I asked him.

"No, I'm not working on that problem. I'm dealing with another refugee situation. I'm working on contingency plans in case New York City goes broke. I'm trying to figure out what to do with 7 million refugees who will have to be taken care of when the banks foreclose on Mayor Beame."

I whistled. "Seven million refugees? Do you think they'll all leave the city?" "What choice do they have?" he said. "They're going to be locked out, and they're going to have to go somewhere. The main problem is that no one in the United States wants them."

"I don't see why. New Yorkers make fine citizens, and they could contribute to any community. I once had a New Yorker for a maid, and she was a wonderful person. She was almost a member of the family."

"They do make good servants," Nostrum agreed. "But not all of them are trained to do housework. Some of them are salesmen, brokers, manufacturers and lawyers. No one wants people like that."

"I see what you mean."

"And there's the language problem," Nostrum told me. "How do you teach 7 million New Yorkers to speak English?"

"Maybe they could go to night school," I suggested. "We've thought of that. But we also have to take into consideration the culture shock. New Yorkers have their own customs which might seem strange to the rest of the country."

"Such as?"

"Well, they pick up their garbage at 5 o'clock in the morning, and while this may not seem weird to them it could cause problems in places like Peoria and Texarkana. And then New Yorkers talk to themselves all the time. Other people think they're crazy, but actually it's their way of coping with life. One of their traditional customs is to dig up their roads. They reverse holes in their streets and never try to fill them in. If they start digging holes in another city, they're going to cause a lot of ill will."

"New Yorkers will just have to be told they can't dig holes if they're accepted in a new community," I said.

"But that's just it," Nostrum said. "No community wants them. Every governor and every mayor we've talked to has said he won't take any. They all say they have no room for them and no funds to care for them until they get assimilated into the American way of life. I honestly believe the real reason, though, is that many of them are prejudiced against New Yorkers."

"Why?" I asked.

"Because most of the governors and mayors have been to New York."

"But you can't be prejudiced against an entire people just because of a few bad apples."

"Which brings me to my next problem. Before we can resettle New Yorkers, we're going to have to give each one of them a security check."

"That's going to take time."

"Don't I know it! But we can't ask the rest of the United States to take these people unless we weed out the people of low moral character. Many New York men were profiteers, and some of the women worked in massage parlors. Also some

Famine Strikes Haiti

By IKE FLORES

Associated Press Writer GONAIVES, Haiti (AP) — Marie Joseph, up at daybreak in the sweltering heat, squatted near her one-room, stick-and-mud house in the bleak desert-like northwest tip of Haiti.

She carefully peeled and ate a mango which, with sorghum seed and another mango or two, was all the 40-year-old mother of five had to eat that day. Her farmer husband, three small boys and two teen-age girls fared no better.

The Joseph family is undernourished even in good times. Now more than half a million Haitian peasants are on the thin edge of starvation. They may die unless a massive disaster relief effort American agencies are gearing up succeeds.

Eight to 12 months of drought, a soaring population rate, archaic farming methods and primitive transportation and communications have brought famine to impoverished Haiti's northwest. It is spreading across the country's entire northern tier.

There have been some deaths, although government officials in Port-au-Prince deny it.

Some livestock also has starved to death amid the powdery dust whipped up by the hot winds. Small family farming plots lie fallow in the rock-strewn areas between the craggy mountains and the sea.

The searing hot, arid peninsula north of Gonaives, jutting out into the Caribbean 50 miles from Cuba and 700 miles from Miami, has been hit hardest.

Two weeks ago, the government admitted that 306,889 people were in desperate straits because of the "natural catastrophe."

Conditions have worsened since then. Some representatives of foreign relief agencies who have conducted field surveys say many more people are involved. Estimates of 600,000 and more have been used in planning sessions of a disaster

ENCOURAGING SIGNS

Beginning To Spend Again

By LOUISE COOK

Associated Press Writer Americans are starting to spend again, loosening the purse strings after more than a year of caution caused by soaring prices and uncertainty over the future of the economy.

The signs are small ones and the indicators are far from unanimous. But recent reports show that consumers apparently are heeding the advice of those economists and politicians who have been urging people to spend their way out of recession.

Retail business picked up last month; so did car sales, although they were still at a 14-year low. Businesses are spending more for equipment. Government indexes on the economy provided encouragement for the experts.

Tax rebates were credited with providing some of the stimulus. The rate of inflation has been lower; consumer confidence is rising.

No one knows how many Americans will spend the rebate checks they are getting from the federal government and how many will simply put the money into savings accounts. The total of the rebates is estimated at $8.1 billion.

Dr. Elsie Watters, research director for the nonprofit Tax Foundation Inc., predicted more than half of the money refunded to taxpayers will be spent on consumer goods.

Dr. Watters said the economy already had shown signs of improvement. She said the rebate "is the icing on the cake."

Irwin Kellner, an economist at Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., said the tax rebate checks — being mailed at the rate of 13 million a week — were a factor in May increases in retail sales.

Sears Roebuck & Co., the nation's biggest retailer, reported Thursday that sales in May were 2.2 per cent higher than they were in the same month a year ago. The figures were unadjusted for inflation.

J.C. Penney Co. said May sales were 7 per cent higher than last year's and Montgomery Ward Co. reported a 4 per cent boost.

Here is a look at some of the indicators and what is happening to them:

AUTO SALES: U.S. car-makers sold 16 per cent more cars during May than they did during April. Total domestic sales were at their highest level for any month since last October.

CONSUMER CREDIT: The Federal Reserve Board reported that Americans trimmed their debts again in April, but the decrease in outstanding debt was much lower than it was the previous month. Increases and decreases in the amount of debt provide some indication of whether people are spending or simply paying off their bills and putting money in savings.

WHOLESALE PRICES: The Labor Department said Thursday that wholesale prices increased four-tenths of one per cent in May, compared with a 1.5 per cent increase in April and decreases in the preceding four months.

DURABLE GOODS ORDERS: The Commerce Department said an April increase in purchases of machinery and other durable goods by manufacturers was the largest rise in more than seven years. Orders for durable goods rose nearly $3.5 billion, or 9.8 per cent, in April.

HOUSING: The government said the number of new housing unit starts increased in April, although the level remained well below 1974. There also was a sharp increase in the amount of money loaned for mortgages during April.

INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTION: The Federal Reserve Board said the output of the nation's industry fell four-tenths of one per cent, the smallest decline since last August.

EMPLOYMENT: The number of people employed increased in April, the first rise in seven months, although the employment figure did not grow as fast as the size of the labor force.

PERSONAL INCOME: Total individual income rose in April — the second straight month of increase. The Commerce Department said personal income for the month showed a $6.7 billion increase, compared with a $3.2 billion increase in March.

CONSUMER CONFIDENCE: The Conference Board, a nonprofit research organization, said consumers are more confident about the future of the economy.

BUSINESS SPENDING: The Conference Board said the amount of money businesses are setting aside for new plants and equipment dropped 9.4 per cent during the first quarter of 1975, compared with a 26 per cent cutback in the previous three months.

INSIDE REPORT

Rumsfeld's Risky Tactics

By ROWLANE EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Only marginally shrouded by President Ford's conspicuous public success on his European trip in asserting his own dominance over U.S. foreign policy, the backstage maneuvering to reduce Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's stellar role is now reaching a crescendo of its own.

Its impact on Kissinger himself is beyond dispute. When he first read an authoritative dispatch to the New York Times on May 28, Kissinger, about to start a meeting in Paris of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), was white-knuckled with anger. That dispatch from Washington stated that the President was "reducing" his reliance on Kissinger and that Kissinger was losing his near-total "grip" on the nation's foreign policy.

Subsequent stories during Mr. Ford's European journey embroiled the theme. High-level administration officials, both inside and beyond the White House, are convinced that the source of much of this backstage, highly-authoritative leaking was Donald Rumsfeld, 42-year-old chief of the White House staff. It would not be the first time that Rumsfeld, who returned here eight ago from his post as U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) to organize Mr. Ford's White House staff, has demonstrated a taste for backstage power-brokering. Nor are Rumsfeld critics certain that his motives are all that suspect.

"Rummy plays hard ball," said one such critic. "But he's got the President's best interests at heart—as well as his own."

The most conspicuous White House-engineered pressure against a top cabinet member prior to the current moves against Kissinger came last winter against Secretary of the Treasury William Simon. Leaks from well-placed White House sources greased the resignation skids for Simon at a time when Simon was the most loquacious and conservative holdout against the administration's anti-recession budget deficits.

At the time, Treasury Department operatives were convinced that the source of the anti-Simon barrage was Roy Ash, then head of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). These same operatives, however, are now convinced that it was Don Rumsfeld, not Ash, who was hurling the anti-Simon thunderbolts.

Even before that, moreover, top aides of Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger privately complained that Rumsfeld, partly because Schlesinger had upstaged him at earlier NATO meeting in Brussels, was conducting a low-decibel campaign against the Defense Secretary. As with Simon, nothing happened, although muted White House criticism of Schlesinger continues.

The hardest-fought Rumsfeld campaign, however, came not against any Nixon-holdover cabinet member but against Vice President Nelson Rockefeller. The issue was whether the President should permit Rockefeller to name his own staffers to run the Domestic Council.

Rumsfeld fought a hard but losing battle on that one, and his reasons were both sound and carefully considered: if the Vice President as chairman of the Domestic Council could control its top staff, he would command its operations, and such command might conceivably become a heavy political liability for the President. Mr. Ford, however, sided with Rockefeller—and Rumsfeld made his displeasure known subsequently by returning an early draft of a Domestic Council working paper to director James Cannon with a caustic order that it be redrafted.

The downgrading of Kissinger, however, moves Rumsfeld into far more dangerous waters. Kissinger is a proven master at the art of bureaucratic in-fighting. (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say No Quitting Korea

(Henderson Dispatch)

When three prominent U.S. senators who were doves on the Vietnam war speak out boldly against any withdrawal from South Korea, you may be sure America's 42,000 troops now there will remain. That's not a particular tribute to their influence and power in the Senate, but a reflection of what is probably majority sentiment in the upper house of Congress.

For the United States to pull out of South Korea would further erode this country's prestige among the nations. It would be added cause for other countries which have been promised American defense support. It would go far toward destroying confidence in the United States and its foreign policy.

We left Southeast Asia in the face of advancing communist armies from the north. It does not indicate fear of an enemy, but at the same time an unwillingness to stand by commitments.

Since we left Southeast Asia, and if we now were to renege on commitments to South Korea and pull out from there, just where would we actually make a stand to halt communism? It would appear that this country lacks the will to resist and would actually be that.

President Ford has been traveling around Europe promising to stand by its allies there. But there would be the problem of overcoming lack of confidence there if we were to run from the communists in Korea.

Presence of American forces in Vietnam and Cambodia was to halt the advances of the communists, and the same is true as to Korea. We were not and are not so much defending other people as defending our own outposts in other parts of the world. The communists must be held at bay somewhere along the line or else our own security will be threatened. Actually, it is threatened even now.

It can be hoped there will be no showdown in Europe, nor in the Middle East. But these are among the last bastions of the free world, and must be so recognized, or else abandoned at our own peril.

Strength For Today

BEING SET IN OUR WAYS

Some years ago it was discovered that in places the walls of Lincoln Cathedral in England, were beginning to crack. Inasmuch as the cathedral is built upon solid rock, the cracking puzzled architects. But at last they found the reason. The rock base held the walls so rigidly that vibrations made by heavy trucks on a nearby highway were transmitted directly into them. Having no chance to give or bend, they began to disintegrate.

Cathedrals and human life must both be built upon solid stone foundations. But there is such a thing as having the solid underlying rock so rigid and unyielding that the vibrations of modern life will cause the superstructure to crack. We can, for example, maintain our own habit patterns and even our conscientious scruples with such rigid inflexibility that this modern world in which we live will at last break up the things we prize most.

We must build the house of our life upon rock, not upon sand, but we must be sure that superstructure is not so rigid that it cannot bend with the strain which modern life puts upon it.

Moved Into The Stock Market

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Could it really be so? Have thousands of the nation's unemployed decided that the way out of their economic dilemma is to invest in the stock market?

You may find the notion difficult to accept, but pollster Albert Sindinger, who relies solely on the evidence of his data, maintains that's what the data reveals.

Sindinger's information is assembled by daily telephone questioning of households. During the past 20 years or so he calculates that his interviewees have spoken with more than 4.4 million households.

The latest computer analysis of the data is disturbing, Sindinger says, because it shows a lot of young, inexperienced and not very well-off individuals have moved into the stock market during the past few months.

The biggest gain in the stockholder population between Feb. 12 and May 21, says Sindinger, was among the unemployed, some 409 per cent. In February there were 427,000 such stockholders; in May, 2,175,000.

A gain of more than 42 per cent was registered by a category he calls clerks and salesmen, most of whom are under 50. In February they numbered 4.35 million, in May, 6.18 million.

At the same time, Sindinger noted, the category he calls professional-technical and kindred, a category that includes doctors and lawyers, fell by 9.2 per cent, from 10.56 million to 9.59 million.

This latter group, he suggests, is being replaced by a new, younger, inexperienced "sucker" group. He says this new group is made up of people who can't afford to lose money, who have little experience — sometimes none — in the market.

"They are convinced that the recession had bottomed out and that they are getting in on the bottom. They believe the stock market and the economy will rise together."

Sindinger doesn't think this will happen, and he bases his belief on the general level of confidence in the economy. Stockholder confidence is high, he concedes, but general confidence isn't.

The economy, he fears, is in worse shape than many of the new, enthusiastic investors realize. Nonstockholders, he noted, have not improved their level of confidence in 10 weeks.

Why? Fears and doubts. Millions of Americans cannot afford to buy houses and automobiles, Sindinger states, and then asks: If two basic industries such as housing and autos are depressed, how can the economy recover strongly or quickly?

Indications are for a slow, painful recovery, he states — not the leap forward expected by many investors.

Sindinger, who has many brokerage house customers, believes a major correction is coming. "Unless there is some radical change of behavior — an aberration of human nature — or a cataclysmic event like a war, we'll stand behind our projection."

And based on current information, he says, the market soon may trap some naive investors.

40 Years Ago Today

June 6, 1935

Annual play for the president's cup was begun at the Greenville Country Club today. The winner is generally regarded as the leading local player for the year.

The baseball curtain was rung up here yesterday afternoon with Greenville taking Ayden for a 12 to 3 ride after losing to them yesterday 7-4.

Between 1,500 and 2,000 watched the game, in which Greenville outthit Ayden 16-8. Greenville battled Ayden last year for the chance to play Kinston for the league championship. Greenville won that game and went on to beat Kinston in four out of six games to take the title. It was the second year in a row Greenville had won the championship.

Police reported today the discovery of a second banknote from the ransom money in the Weyerhaeuser kidnapping. They also reported the detention of a man for questioning.

Legislative Conferees To Decide Primary Rules

RALEIGH (AP) — The rules for North Carolina's 1976 presidential primary will be decided by a legislative conference committee that will probably be appointed today.

Conferees became necessary Thursday when the House refused to go along with the Senate's version of the rules. A prospective race between Alabama Gov. George Wallace and Duke University president Terry Sanford added political overtones to the conflict.

The primary bill was amended in the Senate by Sanford's state co-chairman, Sen.

William Staton, D-Lee. Staton's amendment restricts the field to candidates who seek entry and promise to wage an active campaign.

Grants For 2 Students

The local Delta chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society recently awarded scholarship grants to two outstanding senior students at East Carolina University.

Scholarship recipients are Barbara Jean White of Williamston, a mathematics major, and Dorothy E. Crissman of Broadway, an elementary education major.

Awards to the two students were made on the basis of superior academic achievement and participation in extracurricular campus activities.

Barbara White's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Slade R. White of Williamston.

Formal presentation of the Delta Kappa Gamma awards was made by Delta Chapter Professional Affairs Chairman Mildred Derrick, a member of the ECU mathematics faculty.

The House is adamant in favor of rules that would open the field to any recognized candidates unless the candidate seeks to withdraw. Sanford supporters feel that such an open field would dilute the moderate vote expected to go to Sanford in a race with Wallace.

The battle over primary rules added more heat to a legislative day which needed none. There was enough friction in the air due to fights over age discrimination in auto insurance and the state budget.

The Senate debated for hours over a bewildering array of amendments to the House-passed bill to abolish age as a factor in setting auto liability rates. Then it gave the bill tentative approval by a 35-12 vote.

But before that happened, it adopted two key amendments that may eventually kill the bill. One would allow a surcharge for the most inexperienced drivers, those in the 16-18 group. Another would restrict surcharges to moving violations.

Under the House proposal, backed by Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, age would not be a factor at all. Higher rates would be charged only for points on a driver's record. They would range from $10 for two points to $320 for 12 points.

In other insurance action, a House subcommittee quietly killed the remaining bills dealing with no-fault insurance.

The prime no-fault bill of the session had been killed several weeks ago. Thursday's action also defeated a Senate-passed bill which would have required drivers to add a no-fault policy to their regular insurance. It was criticized by advocates of "true" no-fault as insufficient and expensive.

The battle of the budget was being fought in committees in both the House and the Senate as legislative leaders pressed their chairmen to finish preliminary work. All decisions made were tentative.

But it appeared that the Department of Corrections had suffered heavily. The Senate Appropriations subcommittee voted to remove $8.6 million from its construction budget, leaving it with only funds to finish two new prisons started earlier.

The department's operating budget was also cut by the House Base Budget Committee, which extracted an average of 4 per cent from departments run by the Republican Holshouser administration but left several Democratic departments nearly untouched.

The base budget committee betan receiving and approving subcommittee reports which recommended a total of $95 million in spending reductions from the budgets for the next biennium.

Among the major recommendations was a rejection of a Senate plan for tuition increases of $100 and more for students at the University of North Carolina. The House committee approved a plan much slower to recommendation of University of North Carolina president William Friday.

Evans-Novak...

He easily surmounted and survived two earlier flanking attacks on his power:

First, when Rumsfeld and other White House political aides failed to persuade the President to disengage himself from the Vietnam debacle in his state-of-the-world speech to Congress on April 10; and second, when reports leaked from the White House press office (obviously with Rumsfeld's personal approval) that Kissinger should give up his second hat as head of the National Security Council fell flat.

Some Rumsfeld critics take the conspiratorial view of these torpedo attacks by the President's youthful and ambitious White House staff chief. Rumsfeld, they say, yearns to be Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary of Defense, chief of the National Security Council or even Secretary of State. These critics point to the gaudy personal publicity that has been coming Rumsfeld's way: the Merv Griffin show, an ABC television show on the "President's right-hand man"; a Washington Post series on the "second most powerful" man in Washington; the cover of last Sunday's Parade magazine, to name a few.

But others see a loftier Rumsfeld target: to make Gerald Ford come alive as complete master of his own administration—in short, as President in fact as well as name.

Whatever the rationale, Rumsfeld is now taking high risks with his torpedoes aimed at Kissinger. Firing torpedoes is not President Ford's style, a fact that Kissinger himself will soon make full use of.

Puritans Set Tone In 1677 For Coming Revolution

EDITOR'S NOTE — Nearly one hundred years before the American Revolution, the Puritans set the tone of the coming rebellion. They told King Charles: "We humbly conceive that the laws of England are bounded within the four seas and do not reach America."

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

Almost 150 years before the American Revolution, God-fearing Englishmen were laying down the principles of New World democracy and the groundwork for open rebellion still generations away.

They sailed into the crude hamlet of Salem in the colony of Massachusetts Bay on a spring day 345 years ago. John Winthrop, the straitlaced leader of these Church of England Puritans, envisioned "a city upon a hill," a model of Christian good living for the decade back home.

It was June 12, 1630. Within 75 years, the intense power of these pious people over the whims and ways of their fellow settlers would be eroded by succeeding waves of immigrants. But the strength of their convictions and prejudices would leave a profound imprint on the character of American life — through the War for Independence, the westward expansion, and into modern times.

The traditional American respect for work and education, determination, representative government in America — all have their roots in this opening phase of a radical religious experiment.

The Puritans' list of New World accomplishments includes the first college, first public school, first printing press and first organized industry.

Under the guidance of Winthrop, 400 of them glided into Salem Harbor and found a band of hollow-eyed countrymen living in squalid wigwags and tents. Within months, they moved to Charlestown and then to the ideally located Shawmut Peninsula, which they named Boston.

There evolved a form of government that became the standard for the colonies, the states and the nation that followed.

The Puritan leaders took the royal charter of the Massachusetts Bay Co., the investors who backed the expedition, and turned it into a constitution for democratic government. The stockholders of the corporation became the voting public of the colony. Their meetings, held quarterly, were called the General Court.

The company had a governor, a deputy governor and 18 assistants who managed affairs between meetings of the General Court. As the charter became a blueprint for government, the assistants acted as a legislative assembly and the governor as chief of state.

Slowly, almost by accident, democracy grew. The voters, all church-going men, earned the right to elect the governor. They turned the General Court into a legislature, with elected representatives from each town, who made laws limiting the power of their leaders.

By 1644, the General Court had separated into two houses, and the little colony had something like a modern state government.

The Puritans adopted a "Body of Liberties" that spelled out such rights as jury trial, no taxation without representation and free elections.

There were 100 provisions in all, and many of them were later incorporated into the Bill of Rights of the Constitution.

However, the Puritans had not left the Old World to seek political freedom. They left to prove that a pure religious community was viable, and their faith permeated every aspect of life in early New England.

The Puritans believed that man's fate was preordained. Only a select few would be saved by God, and there was nothing anyone could do about it. However God hinted at whom he planned to let into Heaven. One hint was wealth. The Puritans thought God rewarded those he liked with material possessions. This belief encouraged them to work hard and acquire as much as they could. It made toil a religious must.

The respect for labor and wealth lingered long after the spiritual reason for it faded away.

The Puritans also believed that religion should stand the test of reason as well as Scripture. But to nitpick a holy point, people had to know what the Bible said, and that meant being able to read.

Therefore, education became a primary virtue. Six years after the settling of Boston, the Puritans founded Harvard College across the Charles River in Cambridge. And in 1642, the General Court ruled that all parents must see that their children learned to read.

The religious debate was more than idle talk. Serious dissenters were dealt with severely. Two notable ones, Roger Williams and Anne Hutchinson, were driven from the colony.

Through this time, the people of Massachusetts Bay remained loyal Englishmen, although they resisted domination by the mother country.

In 1677, the Privy Council, appointed by King Charles II, informed colony officials that they must accept royal officers to enforce trade laws. But the General Court, in words similar to those of the conflict 100 years later, replied: "We humbly conceive that the laws of England are bounded within the four seas and do not reach America ..."

The customs collectors came anyway, and in 1684, the charter that formed their government was revoked in London. That was the beginning of the end for the rule of the Puritans. Anglicans came into power and newcomers who did not accept a strict interpretation of the Bible lived openly by their beliefs.

In the early 1700s, settlements spread farther into the countryside, church attendance slipped and clergymen lost their grip on the daily lives of their congregations.

But the beliefs of the Puritans, though watered down, continued to influence the development of the American nation.

Treasures In Surplus Sale By Government

CHEAP BOMBSIGHT—Milton Dimmock of Azle, Tex., poses with a bombsight he purchased at a government surplus sale for $37. Originally it cost Uncle Sam $66,000. (AP Wirephoto)

AZLE, Tex. (AP) — Melton Dimmock surveyed the sophisticated components of the super-expensive F111 aircraft, industrial jewels, office machines, furniture and late model cars that all once belonged to the U.S. government.

They are junk now. "I'm sure we've got well over $1 million worth of government equipment," Dimmock said as he studied the castoffs originally paid for with U.S. tax dollars.

"Altogether we probably paid $500 or $600 for it," said Dimmock, a partner in a big salvage firm here whose "holdings" are spread over several acres of once-prime pastureland northwest of Fort Worth.

Dimmock said his firm gets "three or four sheets a month" from the General Services Administration (GSA), the federal agency charged with disposing of unwanted materials.

"They don't care what they get for the stuff they have for sale. They're not in the money-making business; they're in the getting-rid-of business."

In recent weeks, Dimmock and his partner, Louis Freeman, have consummated the following transactions with the U.S.

government. —Entered a successful bid of $37 each for three Litton bombsights of the F111, which originally cost Uncle Sam $66,000 apiece.

—Bought $26,000 of tiny rubies and sapphires, used as jewel bearings in precision equipment, for $66.

—Purchased "about an acre and a half" of miscellaneous surplus items, including desks, appliances and other furniture for a total investment of $118.

Some months ago, the partners paid $35 for a radar "terrain finder" that had cost $185,000 in federal funds. They later resold the equipment for $15,000.

"Sometimes we're the only bidder," Dimmock said. "When that happens, we can bid as little as $10 and get the stuff."

Used cars are put up for bid by the GSA every few weeks, he said.

"We just bought a 1971 Plymouth Fury with air and power for $161 and a 1972 Ambassador, similarly equipped, for $377," Dimmock said.

Used cars have an obvious retail value, but some other items that cost American taxpayers tens of thousands of dollars only a few months ago may not move as quickly.

Who will buy, for instance, the F111 bombsights? Freeman and Dimmock shrug their shoulders.

"I don't have any idea what we'll do with them," said Freeman. "But at the price we paid, who cares?"

House Kills All No-Fault Plans

RALEIGH (AP)—No-fault insurance is a dead issue, but abolition of age discrimination in auto liability rates is still alive in the North Carolina General Assembly.

A House subcommittee killed all remaining no-fault legislation before it Thursday. "None of them would have done anything for the people," said Rep. Art Thomas, D-Cabarrus.

Included in the crypt was a Senate-passed bill that would have taken a tentative step toward a true no-fault system by requiring motorists to add a no-fault medical and financial loss package to their regular liability policies.

Advocates of true no-fault, however, said the bill was worse than nothing. Their own bill was killed earlier this year in the House Insurance Committee.

The House passed the bill that would allow higher rates only for drivers with points on their record. The surcharges would range from $10 per year for two points to $320 for 12 points.

Arrest Two Film Execs

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—The FBI has announced the arrest of two Charlotte film executives on charges of interstate transportation of obscene movies.

Louis A. Giovanetti, special agent in charge of the Charlotte FBI office, identified the men Thursday as W. R. James, president of Galaxy Films Exchange, and Robert W. McClure, president of Variety Films Inc.

The FBI spokesman said they were charged under warrants in connection with six indictments returned by a federal grand jury in New Orleans. The men were charged with interstate transportation of obscene color films into Louisiana.

The FBI said the indictments charged that the films were shipped to the Paris and Toulouse theaters in New Orleans.

McClure appeared before U. S. Magistrate Joseph R. Cruciani and was released on a $5,000 personal recognizance bond, the FBI said, while James was to appear before the magistrate today.

'Could' Close Rural Offices

WASHINGTON (AP)—The General Accounting Office and the postmaster general agree that 12,192 small, rural post offices serving 2 million families could be closed at a savings of $100 million without reducing the quality of mail service.

In a report made public Thursday, Congress' fiscal watchdog agency recommended the phasing out of two-thirds of the nation's 6,100 fourth-class and 12,190 third-class post offices.

Rural areas are served by 2,007 contractor-operated rural branches and stations, 107 contractor-operated community post offices and 30,674 rural routes, the report said.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar told the GAO, in a March letter included with the report, that the Postal Service has not increased its closings in rural areas "primarily because of the concern expressed by members of Congress about such closings." The rural development subcommittee of the House Agriculture Committee was sharply critical in studies it conducted last year of the quality of Postal Service activities in rural areas.

Could Close Rural Offices

But the GAO said that it conducted interviews in 32 communities in 28 states where post offices had recently been closed and found that "mail service was at least as good as, and in a number of instances better than, before the changes."

Third-class post offices serve an average of 250 families each.

Demand Severance Pay From Laos AID Office

By MATT FRANJOLA Associated Press Writer VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—A dozen students and Laotian employes of the U.S. Agency for International Development demonstrated at the AID headquarters today demanding that it pay its 2,700 local employees an extra three months' severance pay.

The demonstrators stopped one U.S. Embassy car driven by two American military attaches and would not let them take some loaded mail sacks out of the compound without permission from the Laotian government.

The Americans said the sacks contained supplies of the U.S. Defense Attache's Office, which was located in the compound until student demonstrators occupied it several weeks ago. The Communist Pathet Lao now contends that all offices in the compound were part of the AID mission and that their equipment must also be handed over.

The Communist Pathet Lao now contends that all offices in the compound were part of the AID mission and that their equipment must also be handed over.

The United States has agreed to close out the AID program and turn over all its property by June 30. Informed sources said agreement was near on the turnover of the multi-million-dollar AID warehouses five miles outside Vientiane.

Meanwhile, American and Laotian officials were discussing the new pay demand with leaders of the demonstration.

The Laotian coalition government announced that it plans that both the Pathet Lao faction and the non-Communist faction of neutralists and rightists be represented in local governments throughout the kingdom. The Pathet Lao has established itself in all the Communist centers since it became the dominant faction in the government last month, and new plan apparently is signed to give the non-Communists official standing in a the Communists have trotted for years.

Their departure, to be completed on Sunday, left about American planes and helicopters at Thai bases. The rest of the aircraft and the 25 American military men still in the country are to be pulled within a year.

The Air Force's last 31 B-52 swing-wing fighter-bombers in Thailand are to start leaving June 15, and 4,500 men will be withdrawn by the end of the month.

Pledge Replace A Dream House

CHICAGO (AP)—William Villavaso cherished the idea of moving his wife and two children out of their crowded apartment and into their own home. That was before the city tore down the home.

John L. Waner, area director for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, said Thursday the home was razed because of a "breakdown in communication." He promised to provide the family with a replacement.

"Somebody jumped the gun and destroyed the building," Waner explained.

"I couldn't believe it," said Villavaso, a 49-year-old carpenter. "I drove up to work on the house like I've done in my spare time since spring. And there was nothing there. mud and bulldozer tracks were about ready to move a few days."

Villavaso said he bought a six-room dwelling for $10,000 from HUD and spent about 1000 fixing it up in his spare time.

Villavaso said that after getting over the shock of seeing his family's dream house gone, he phoned the city building department and asked how they could tear it down without notifying him.

"They said they had a court order for its demolition and forbade HUD from seeing it. He said the city never told that Villavaso had bought the property."

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was mixed today, failing to hold a broad early gain that greeted the news of another prime rate cut.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 3 points in the early going, was off .71 at 841.44 by 11:30 a.m.

Gainers held a 3-2 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange, but the margin had narrowed from more than 5 to 2 earlier.

Trading was active.

The market was confronted with some sharply diverging news developments at the opening. New York's First National City Bank said the change, effective Monday, was in accord with its formula which adjusts the prime for changes in other short-term money rates.

Since last summer, when the prime hit a record high of 12 per cent, the key interest rate has fallen sharply as a result of weak business loan demand and an easier credit policy by the Federal Reserve Board.

Analysts expect other major banks to follow Citibank's lead in cutting their prime rates to 6 1/2 per cent soon.

Sen. Church Indicates Some CIA Plots Led To Murder Attempts

Israel Hints A Deal

JERUSALEM (AP)—Foreign Minister Yigal Allon indicated today that Israel may be willing to make a new deal to trade occupied Arab land for some kind of Middle East peace agreement.

In Egypt, meanwhile, four foreign freighters led by two Iranian destroyers sailed past a waning President Anwar Sadat at Suez, the Red Sea gateway to the Suez Canal. It was the first northbound convoy since the Egyptian leader reopened the canal on Thursday after an eight-year shutdown.

Israel's reduction of forces along the Suez Canal front this week was partly aimed at preparing the Israeli public for territorial concessions, Allon said in an interview with the newspaper Yediot Aharonot.

Allon said the thinning-out of Israel's front line forces "will get the public used to concessions without which we cannot reach a peace settlement."

The statement appeared to be a repetition of Israel's standard policy, and Allon did not elaborate on it.

In Paris, visiting Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres told a news conference he expected Egypt to abide by an agreement to let Israeli-bound freight through the canal.

In Washington, U.S. officials said Egypt is going to let cargoes for Israel on ships of other nations go through the canal soon. But they said the Egyptians and the Israelis are hoping to try to keep it quiet in hopes of avoiding adverse reaction from the Syrians and the Palestinians.

Prime Rate Is Cut Again

NEW YORK (AP)—The nation's second largest commercial bank cut its prime lending rate today from 7 per cent to 6 1/2 per cent, the lowest in the industry in more than two years.

The prime is the rate banks charge their best and biggest corporate customers. Trends in the prime may influence other consumer rates, though there is no direct link.

New York's First National City Bank said the change, effective Monday, was in accord with its formula which adjusts the prime for changes in other short-term money rates.

Since last summer, when the prime hit a record high of 12 per cent, the key interest rate has fallen sharply as a result of weak business loan demand and an easier credit policy by the Federal Reserve Board.

Analysts expect other major banks to follow Citibank's lead in cutting their prime rates to 6 1/2 per cent soon.

By DON WATERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman Frank Church of the Senate Intelligence Committee indicated today some Central Intelligence Agency assassination plots resulted in murder attempts and left open the possibility that the CIA was indirectly involved in killings.

"These plots have been in certain cases more than planned," Church said in a broadcast interview.

"No actual assassinations took place with which the CIA was directly involved," Church said. But he refused to deny that there were any in which the agency was indirectly involved.

The Idaho Democrat was interviewed on the CBS-TV "Morning News."

The Rockefeller Commission report to President Ford on alleged domestic spying by the CIA omits any commission findings about CIA assassination plots.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, chairman of the commission, was to deliver the report later today.

The 350-page report, which follows five months of investigation by the Rockefeller commission, contains no discussion of the panel's inquiry into charges of CIA involvement in plots to assassinate foreign leaders, a spokesman for the vice president said Thursday night.

However, he added that the materials in the possession of the commission which bear on these allegations will be turned over to the President. Time limitations did not permit the commission to undertake a full investigation of the charges, he said.

Ford created the commission in January after The New York Times published charges that the CIA had engaged for years in a massive, illegal spying campaign against antiwar activists and other U.S. dissidents.

Ford originally gave the panel an April 4 deadline to complete its investigation and report its findings, but on March 31 extended the reporting date until today. At that time, Rockefeller said the new deadline "is one that will be met."

Allegations of CIA plots on the lives of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and other foreign heads of state as far back as the John F. Kennedy administration were brought before the commission after its creation.

The Minneapolis Tribune said in a copyrighted story today that the panel received evidence implicating the CIA in the assassination of Gen. Rafael Trujillo of the Dominican Republic in May 1961 and of South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem in November 1963.

Quoting an informant said to be familiar with the evidence, the newspaper said the commission heard evidence and saw documents indicating that the agency supplied guns to Trujillo's killers and money to the generals who had Diem slain during a coup d'etat.

But the Tribune said the informant also reported that the CIA tried to call off the killings shortly before they occurred on grounds the agency should not be involved in such activities.

Commission investigators also obtained evidence that the assassination of Congolese leader Patrice Lumumba was discussed within the CIA. Lumumba was killed in February 1961 after reportedly escaping from a prison farm, the Tribune added.

The name of Castro, however, has cropped up most persistently in reports of assassination plots.

In a book, "The Cuba Project," to be published this September, former FBI agent William Turner and writer Warren Hinckle said they had uncovered 15 separate plots against Castro, 11 of them by the CIA.

In an interview in San Francisco, Turner said some of the plots were launched from the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, as early as July 1961.

ERA 'Dead' In N.C. Assembly

RALEIGH (AP)—ERA was a dead issue today as far as the current session of the North Carolina General Assembly is concerned.

This came as the Senate Judiciary II Committee Thursday voted to postpone indefinitely a measure to submit the issue to the people.

The House-passed bill, sponsored by Rep. Robert Jones, D-Rutherford, called for a referendum to be held at the time of the presidential primary next spring. It would have been advisory only and would not have committed legislators to vote either for or against the Equal Rights Amendment.

The referendum measure was backed mainly by opponents of ERA who hoped a strong popular vote against the amendment would hurt its chances in future legislative sessions.

Recruiting Volunteers

Eastern North Carolina individuals who wish to donate their services to a local volunteer project are invited to attend two recruiting sessions scheduled by the East Carolina University Student Volunteer Association and Volunteer Greenville.

The sessions will be held in the old Student Center on the ECU campus from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m. June 10-11 and June 17-18.

The two volunteer groups serve as clearinghouses for ECU students and area citizens interested in becoming volunteers, by directing them to agencies or organizations which require their services. Members attempt to match potential volunteers with projects in which their individual experience and interests can be best used.

Among the volunteer services need at present at tutoring schoolchildren who are having difficulty in their studies, assisting a day care centers, teaching elderly persons to read, visiting invalid and elderly persons, becoming companions for children with special needs, providing emergency transportation for the needy and bringing information about available social services to local people.

In addition, volunteers are needed to help with a Greenville city-wide transit study and other community projects.

O'Brien Lays Down Law To Knicks, Hawks

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Larry O'Brien, five days the commissioner of the National Basketball Association, laid down the law against the New York Knicks and gave his blessing to a record $400,000 fine against the Atlanta Hawks.

"The league can exist only if it adopts and adheres to an appropriate set of rules," O'Brien said Thursday after the cases involving superstars George McGinnis and Julius Erving were decided — for now, anyway.

"If violations of such rules by one team were permitted, then it would be the same as if there were no rules at all. This would, of course, threaten the structure and very existence of the league," he said.

Playing outside the rules, the Knicks last Friday signed American Basketball Association scoring champion McGinnis although NBA rights to the Indiana Pacers' forward belonged to the Philadelphia 76ers. The Hawks signed Erving, another ABA star, in 1972 before he was eligible for the NBA draft.

O'Brien said the Knicks were guilty of a "flagrant violation" of the NBA constitution and by-laws and ruled that McGinnis' contract with New York is void. He also ordered the Knicks to forfeit their 1976 first-round draft.

"We have no plans of future defense. The deed is done. We'll respect the commissioner's decision," said Knicks President Mike Burke.

The Knicks, in signing McGinnis for a $500,000 bonus and $400,000 a year for six seasons, said he would get his money regardless of whether he was allowed to join the team. The only way they can get him now is by making Philadelphia an offer it can't refuse — mainly players, cash or both.

General Manager Pat Williams of the 76ers has said he wants McGinnis. The player, free in O'Brien's eyes to return to the ABA, says he wants to play with New York or no one in the NBA.

The fine levied by the NBA Board of Governors against the Hawks in the three-year-old Erving case is believed to be the largest in pro sports history. O'Brien, it was learned, spoke in favor of the action.

"I was surprised by the size of the fine," said Hawks President John Wilcox, who added that no decision had been made whether to take legal action to fight the ruling. That decision may be up to new owners who will take over leadership of the Hawks' franchise when they get NBA approval.

Foolish Pleasure Is The Pick

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Turcotte, who has ridden two Belmont winners, thinks he knows what has to be done to win Saturday's 107th running of the Triple Crown finale.

"Anybody who beats Diabolo will get the money," said Turcotte, who has been on Diabolo for a workout but who will ride Just The Time, an outsider, in Saturday's $150,000-added test. He won the 1972-73 Belmonts on Riva Ridge and Secretariat, respectively.

Diabolo, Frank McMahon's California Derby winner who was third in both the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, is the third early choice, a role he shares with Singh at 5-1, for the Belmont.

The early 2-1 favorite in a field of nine 3-year-olds is John L. Greer's Foolish Pleasure, the Kentucky Derby winner and Preakness runner-up. Mrs. Robert Lehmann's Master Derby, fourth in the Derby but winner of the Preakness, is the second pick at 3-1.

Foolish Pleasure put in a final prep Thursday, going five-eighths of a mile under regular rider Jacinto Vasquez in 59 1-5 seconds and galloping out three-quarters in 1:12. Vasquez will ride the 1974 2-year-old champion and winner of 11 of 13 career starts from the No. 2 post, just outside Master Derby, who will have Darrel McHargue up.

The Preakness winner will be gunning for the seventh victory in his last eight starts and a first prize of $116,910 from a purse of $194,850, if all nine start. He was not nominated for the Belmont and had to be supplemented for $12,500 — $2,500 to enter and $10,000 to start. A $10,000 supplemental fee for the Preakness paid off in a return of $158,100 for Mrs. Lehmann.

Post time is about 5:35 p.m., EDT, with television coverage by CBS during 5-6 p.m.

Diabolo worked five-eighths of a mile in 59 seconds and went out three quarters in 1:11 Tuesday. "And I didn't ask him for a thing," said Turcotte. Laffit Pincay Jr. will be aboard Saturday when Diabolo starts from the No. 4 slot.

Singh, owned by Cynthia Phipps and Hal Price Headley Jr., earned his shot at the Belmont by winning the Jersey Derby on Memorial Day after finishing sixth in the Preakness for his only loss in six races this year. He missed the Kentucky Derby because of an injury.

Singh will be ridden by Angel

Cordero Jr. and start from the No. 6 post just outside of Arthur Seeliger Jr.'s Avatar, the Kentucky Derby runner-up and fifth in the Preakness. Avatar will be ridden by Bill Shoemaker.

Others entered, and their jockeys, are John Galbreath's Prince Thou Art, sixth in the Derby and fourth in the Preakness, Braulio Baeza; Thomas Mellon Evans' Just The Time, ninth in the Preakness, Turcotte; Max Gluck's Syllabus, Jean Cruguet; and Mrs. Geroge Humphrey's Nalees Rialto, Daryl Montoya. Prince Thou Art will start from the No. 3 post, Just The Time from No. 7 and Syllabus and Nalees Rialto outside them.

Ryan Could Set History Tonight

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer
ANAHEIM (AP) — Hang in there, Sandy Koufax. Keep cool, Johnny Vander Meer. You and your record-book achievements probably won't get shunted aside tonight. But then again...

Two years ago, Nolan Ryan pitched a no-hitter and then, in his next start, went seven innings before he surrendered a hit, a bloop single.

Tonight, against Hank Aaron and the Milwaukee Brewers, Ryan gets another chance to throw a second consecutive no-hitter — matching Vander Meer's 1938 feat, as well as an unprecedented fifth career no-hitter, which would eclipse Koufax's achievement.

Despite the historic possibilities in front of him, Ryan is facing the game in his usual unflappable manner.

"As far as a fifth no-hitter is concerned, I don't think it will put any more pressure on me. I've been there before," he said earlier this week.

"If there's an opportunity, I'll go for it. But I'm not going to change my style just to throw a no-hitter. I'm going out to win a ball game."

Vander Meer of the Cincinnati Reds pitched his consecutive no-hitters against the Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers on June 11 and 15 in 1938.

Koufax was the sole owner of the major league record of four no-hitters until Ryan tied him last Sunday with a 1-0 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. Ryan's achievement stands as an American League record, breaking the mark of three no-hitters held by the great Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians.

Ryan came closest to matching Vander Meer in 1973. He pitched his first no-hitter on May 15 and came back at Detroit on July 15 with his second.

His next start was at Anaheim Stadium on July 19 against Baltimore. "I hadn't pitched a no-hitter at home and I wanted to do it," Ryan said.

He came close.

Through seven innings he gave up no hits, although the score was 1-1. In the eighth, Brooks Robinson reached first base when the umpire ruled he had been hit by a pitch. Robinson later said he didn't think the pitch had touched him.

Mark Belanger, in a bunting situation, hit away and blooped a high fast ball into short center field. The Orioles won 3-2 in the 11th inning.

Murphy Hoping Round Was His Usual Start

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — If Bob Murphy's self-assessment is correct, he may be cashing a $50,000 check Sunday.

"I'm a notoriously bad starter," said Murphy, winner of this year's Jackie Gleason Classic. "But I'm probably the best finisher on the tour."

Murphy, a rotund 210-pounder, had a four-under-par 68 Thursday in the opening round of the $250,000 Kemper Open Gold Tournament, leaving him in a tie for fourth place, three shots behind the leader, former PGA champion Ray Floyd, who carded a brilliant 65 in the hot, muggy weather.

"I don't know why I usually start badly," said Murphy. "I think it's a matter of concentration. This was a fast start for me. My good start usually is 72."

"I'd sure like to pick up 50 bills here and be on my way to the U.S. Open," he added, referring to the year's second major test of golfing greatness, scheduled in two weeks at Medina, Ill., just outside Chicago.

Murphy Hoping Round Was His Usual Start

While Murphy was hoping for a strong second round today over the 7,160-yard, par-72 Quail Hollow Country Club course, Floyd was enjoying the spotlight as a leader.

"I haven't been in the lead in so long I might not get any sleep tonight," said Floyd, winless since making the PGA title his third championship of the 1969 season.

Trailing by two shots at 67 were tour rookie Roger Maltbie, who rolled in two 35-foot putts and a 20-footer, and Bobby Mitchell, winless since the 1972 Tournament of Champions. He also putted well, winging a

Univ. Kiwanis Shut Out Taff

University Kiwanis won its second straight game last night, romping to a 10-0 victory over Taff Office in the Senior Babe Ruth League.

Taff got only five hits off Rick Harrell's pitching for University Kiwanis, as he hurled the shutout victory.

The Kiwanis got things going with a run in the first. Doug Causey walked and stole both second and third, scoring on an error on the final steal.

In the second, four more Kiwanis runs came in. Harrell singled and Bobby Sasser walked. Both moved up on an out, and Greg McLawhorn doubled both of them in. McLawhorn stole third and scored on an error. Causey reached on a two-base error, then scored on Donnie Haddock's hit.

In the fourth, University Kiwanis came up with three more, running their lead to 8-0. McLawhorn singled and stole second. Haddock singled, driving him in. ## Future Bucs Are Honored LOUISBURG—The Louisville College Hurricanes continued to win post-season honors with the announcement this week that third baseman Randy Warrick had been named to a first team position on the NJCAA All-American Baseball Team. First baseman Sonny Wooten was named to a second team spot, and outfielder Charlie Stevens received honorable mention. Stevens also won the Adirondack Big Stick Award for the leading hitter in the Eastern District with a .469 average for the regular season. The three sophomores, along with outfielder Steve Coats, supplied the power for the Canes in leading them to a 31-5 season, and a third place finish in the nation in the NJCAA National Tournament.

Stevens and Wooten have signed with East Carolina's Pirates for next season, while Warrick and Coats have signed with Carolina's Tar Heels. All four will be with the Canes this summer in the North Carolina Collegiate League.

The Louisville College Hurricanes also won the coveted Sportsmanship Trophy in the NJCAA National Tournament held in Grand Junction, Colorado.

Butz Says Government May Do The Inspecting

By DON KENDALL
 AP Farm Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says the grain inspection scandal could lead to the federal government taking over responsibility for grain inspections.

Butz said in an interview that no decision had been reached within the administration on how to overhaul the inspection system. But he said one option under consideration would give the federal government the same inspection responsibility for grain that it now has for meat. State and federal inspectors check meat for quality and sanitation.

Present law prohibits federal inspection and grading of grain but requires federal licensing of the inspectors employed by private firms, boards of trade and others.

Grand juries in New Orleans and Houston — two of the busiest ports for U.S. farm exports — have returned nearly a score of indictments during a far-flung probe of alleged irregularities associated with export inspection and sampling. A complex investigation is continuing into reports of bribery, shortweighing of grain cargos, substandard and rubbish-laden grain and the possibility of organized crime involvement.

Butz said he still was not aware of any evidence that organized crime is mixed up in the grain troubles but repeated his previous statement that "we're looking for it."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., announcing Wednesday that he will hold a hearing on June 19 to look into the export situation, said he holds Butz responsible for the system's difficulties. Others, including Rep. Edward Mezvinsky, D-Iowa, have called for federalization of the inspection service.

The Humphrey charge that Butz should be held accountable for the grain inspection troubles was a "bid for today's headline," Butz said. Butz said investigators were looking into the irregularities long before the Minnesota Democrat "woke up" to the fact.

Although Butz said he would not rule out federalization of the export inspection system, he added that there are other options, including an improvement of the present system and possibly some kind of federal-state operation along the lines for inspection of other commodities such as meat.

 If you think your car's coolant is only anti-freeze

Prestone® tells why it may be even more important to change your car's coolant now than in the fall

In a new survey of 1,202 cars, 45% required service because of cooling system problems.

This summer your engine could be damaged by overheating caused by corrosion or insufficient coolant or both. Read how two fresh gallons of Prestone II® Concentrate can help prevent summer boilovers and prolong your engine's life.

Get protection against boilovers

Most drivers are so used to thinking of a car's coolant as "anti-freeze," they overlook the fact that it should do much more than keep a car from freezing up.

In some ways, it's even more important to have your coolant checked now.

A modern car with its air conditioner and high operating temperatures runs even hotter when the weather warms up. It needs a coolant mixture that won't boil over and seriously damage the engine.

Your car also needs a coolant that will ward off corrosion that causes the cooling system to clog up and overheat.

What a 1,202-car survey shows

A just-completed survey of 1,202 cars all across America by PRESTONE, with the assistance of independent researchers, shows some startling statistics. It reveals how large a percentage of cars are corroded and risking costly repairs. Note that these cars were all relatively young.

How corrosion could be shortening the life of your car's engine

Corrosion may be doing its work inside your cooling system right now.

Corrosion could be clogging the tiny tubes in your radiator so it can't cool your engine properly.

Corrosion could be gradually perforating tiny holes in your coolant pump and radiator to let coolant leak away and cause the engine temperature to rocket.

Corrosion can attack all 6 metals in your cooling system — including aluminum

Corrosion is indiscriminate. Over time, it can attack all the metals in your cooling system: steel, cast iron, copper, brass, solder — and aluminum.

PRESTONE II Concentrate, with its exclusive patented silicone-silicate formula, protects all the metals in your cooling system, including aluminum, against corrosion.

PRESTONE II Concentrate with its patented formula bonds a protective film to metal surfaces

PRESTONE II bonds a protective film to each metal surface. That film is extremely tough. And if the film should break, it will mend itself quickly.

A coolant can protect against corrosion only so long before it gives out

But other forces can go to work to keep the coolant from fighting off corrosion. Exhaust gases can escape through a cylinder-head gasket into the cooling system. When that happens, the gases turn to acids, which weaken rust inhibitors and hasten corrosion of metal parts.

For this reason, you should never leave your coolant in the cooling system too long — even when it's PRESTONE II.

It's true that a coolant will give you anti-freeze protection year after year, as long as it isn't diluted and your cooling system doesn't leak.

But it won't protect against corrosion that long. To fight rust and sludge and cor-

When the temperature gets hot, your car can boil over if insufficient coolant concentration brings down the boiling point of your coolant. If you don't have a proper coolant mixture in your car, it can actually boil before the warning light goes on.

How often should your coolant be changed?

rosion, you need to flush your cooling system and replace your coolant periodically.

How often should you change? Recommendations in car owners' manuals may vary.

We say once a year.

Some of you may think we say that just to sell more coolant. Others may think we're being perfectionists.

But we've been working with coolants and engine cooling systems since 1927. Our experience says that the way to avoid corrosion and the expensive damage it can cause is to invest in two gallons of PRESTONE II Concentrate every year.

Take a sample

Check your coolant now for signs of corrosion. Take a sample from your radiator. Look for a rusty brown color or loss of natural color of your coolant. Then check for sediment. These are all indications that you have not changed your coolant frequently enough and that corrosion is already at work in your cooling system.

But even if your coolant looks all right, its rust inhibitors could have lost their ability to fight off corrosion. And you may not know it until it's too late.

We know a fresh fill of PRESTONE II Concentrate every year will fight corrosion and prolong the life of your engine.

Two important summer warnings: you need the right mix and the right pressure

For proper temperature protection this summer, you also need to maintain: 1) the right mix of PRESTONE II and water; and 2) the proper cooling system pressure.

Detroit engineers no longer base their cooling system designs on water cooling. Cars made from 1962 on should never be cooled by water alone.

Today's engines are designed to run

Air conditioners can make hot engines even hotter far hotter. So they require a coolant having a boiling point higher than water.

You need a coolant that can handle those higher operating temperatures without overheating and boiling over on our fiercest summer days, particularly if your air conditioner is on.

How to take the boiling point to 265°F., the freezing point to -34°F.

According to PRESTONE engineers, today's cars need a 50-50 mix of water and PRESTONE II for proper protection against boiling over, freezing up and corrosion.

The proper solution—in combination with 15 pounds of pressure in the system—raises the boiling point of your cooling system to 265°F. (and lowers the freezing point to -34°F.).

Send for free maintenance handbook

Now that you know what we know, even if you checked your coolant for anti-freeze protection last fall, you'll want to check it again carefully for summer protection before the next weekend is up.

Send coupon for our free PRESTONE Cooling System Handbook with the facts on corrosion and your cooling system and how to install PRESTONE II Concentrate, and how to lengthen your engine's life.

'Weird' Radio Show A Novelty

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Mac Calhoun runs a weird radio show at an unlikely home for a weird radio show—WRFK-FM, a tiny noncommercial station owned by the Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va.

For 15 minutes each week-night, Mac, a slow-talking, deadpan humorist from Charlotte, N.C., holds forth on "Nightlife," a down-home haven for hijinks, put-ons and matters of great import and consequence.

He began it on April 1, 1973, with what he calls "an expose of vampires," the aim being "to encourage them to come out of the closet."

Since then, he's done such things as brushing his teeth for most of a show "to extol the virtues of dental hygiene" and exposing Richmonders to "classical country," the forerunner of country & western music.

"Classical country is a period of music that happened in Europe around the turn of the century, whenever the century turned," he explained. "It all began when they had these Danube Ball barn dances...."

Calhoun, 26, is clearly a man to be reckoned with. No matter that he's in his first radio job or that he got in the business after college "because I was tired of donating blood for a living."

His freedom at WRFK, a National Public Radio outlet, has led to such other "Nightlife" happenings as the very popular "Search for Sorrow."

"It's radio's shortest-running soap opera," Mac drawled. "Has a cast of thousands, all mired in tragedy. Mostly they just sit around drinking coffee. Most important, there's plenty of good organ music."

He also runs "a symposium of thought, a series on great ideas. We just had a lesson called, 'What You Can Do with Your Great Ideas.'"

Sports aren't neglected. Calhoun regularly airs "All-Star East Coast Intergalactic Wrestling," in which the very famous grapple. He said one Watergate-era match had CBS newsman Dan Rather tussling with then-President Nixon "for the Hickox Dictabelt."

"Nightlife" has two major sponsors. One is Duke Geek, an operator of assorted home study courses, including the "Train-At-Home School of Home Training." The other sponsor is Dr. Ralph Waldo Gonzago.

Peter Darg, WRFK's manager, says all this tomfoolery so impressed him he once proposed that National Public Radio make "Nightlife" a nationally broadcast series. Alas, NPR lacked the money for it.

Reminds Residents Of Vacation Mail

Postmaster H. Lloyd Mills urges residents of Greenville to include the disposition of their mail in their vacation plans this year.

The Postal Service wants to provide its customers the service they need even during vacation.

"There are many ways your mail can be handled during your absence. The best way to have your mail secure and available when you want it is to ask a relative or neighbor to collect your mail daily. In this manner your mail will be safe and available when you return home on the weekend or late at night," Mills explained.

"If you would like to have your mail forwarded to you at your vacation location, simply complete a change of address card and give it to your carrier. The carrier will forward all first class mail at no extra cost. Additional postage will be required if newspapers, magazines, obvious value mail or parcels are forwarded," Mills added.

For a period not to exceed 30 days. Persons should notify their carrier, in writing, when they plan to leave and the date they want delivery resumed, or may call for their mail at the Main Post Office upon their return.

Postmaster Mills urges each resident to use one of these methods during vacation. "Do not let mail accumulate in the mailbox. This is a sure sign that your home is unoccupied and encourages burglars," Mills said.

Show Support Of Policemen

Support Your POLICEMAN He Cares

Two local business men have joined forces in an effort to help local residents show support for law enforcement officers in the community.

Mack McGilvary, a local photographer and Carl Knott, a glass company executive, have purchased 1,000 bumper stickers proclaiming "Support Your Local Policeman—He Cares".

According to McGilvary it was his idea, with Knott eagerly supplying half the money needed for the project.

McGilvary said he obtained a similar sticker when he lived in Florida. "A number of people commented about it... said they would like to have one, but couldn't find them. So, we had some printed."

About 500 of the stickers have been given to the Police Department's Crime Prevention Bureau, while Knott and McGilvary are distributing the stickers, too.

"I don't think people do enough for the (Police) Department," he said. "The policemen are about half demoralized. We need some way to cheer them up and this seems as good a way as any."

"They work awful hard," according to McGilvary, "and get very little recognition."

"This is a very simple way to express a lot of sentiment quickly."

Malpractice Insurance Companies Told To Open Financial Records

By The Associated Press
A federal judge has ordered four malpractice insurance companies accused of antitrust violations to open their financial records to a group of Rhode Island doctors.

In California, meanwhile, a survey showed hospitals suffered heavy financial losses during a doctors' work slowdown spurred by skyrocketing malpractice insurance rates.

Hospitals hit by the strike lost from $35,000 to $1 million and were forced to furlough employees and cut working hours before the strike ended Monday, the Associated Press survey showed.

Legislators and officials elsewhere moved Thursday to deal with doctor protests to malpractice insurance rates.

At the same time, many doctors in a number of states continue to refuse all but emergency work. Slowdowns were most widespread in New York and Texas.

There were indications doctors participating in a work slowdown to protest New York's new malpractice law would accept Gov. Hugh Carey's proposal to set up a special panel to review the situation and recommend corrective legislation.

Rhode Island Gov. Philip W. Noel said he expects to have an interim solution to the malpractice problem "pretty well in hand" by the middle of next week. The governor said his staff was preparing a proposal for a "shared-risk" malpractice insurance pool to provide malpractice coverage for 600 of the state's 1,400 doctors.

And in Ohio, the House Insurance Committee gave strong bipartisan support to a bill to set up a Joint Underwriters Association Pool.

In Providence Thursday, U.S. District Court Judge Raymond J. Pettine gave the four companies two weeks to produce their records for review by lawyers for eight doctors and seven patients who filed the anti-trust suit the day before.

The $100 million class action suit charges violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act in the introduction of a new, controversial form of malpractice insurance coverage, the "claims made" policy.

The defendants are St. Paul's, Aetna Casualty and Surety Co. and affiliates of Travelers Insurance Co. and the Hartford Group.

Under the "claims made" arrangement, legal protection is provided only if malpractice claims are filed while policies are in effect. Under previous policies, coverage was provided if policies were in effect at the time the alleged malpractice occurred.

Doctors in California returned to work after assurance from the legislature that it would hold down the mounting cost of malpractice insurance.

'Saloon' Ruled A Legal Title

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Taverns in Wisconsin now can call themselves saloons under a court ruling being hailed as a victory for both free speech and unpretentious drinkers.

Circuit Judge Richard Bardwell struck down on Thursday a state law prohibiting drinking establishments from billing themselves as "saloons."

His ruling also declared unconstitutional a Madison ordinance against the use of the word.

"It is time we realized that this is 1975, not 1919," Bardwell said. "There is no longer anything opprobrious or disdainful about the word saloon."

The suit challenging the legal ban against saloons was filed by Jack McManus, an attorney who rents part of a building he owns to a tavern.

McManus hailed the decision, saying it "struck a blow for the working man who wants to do his drinking in a place other than a lounge." The city attorney's office in Madison fought to keep the ban, arguing that the word saloon had been barred from tavern names in the wake of repeal of prohibition in 1933.

City officials said the law was enacted to protect the image of taverns. They said that to many persons a saloon was a wide-open, swinging-door establishment.

"At the time, the word saloon apparently had a connotation which was unappealing to many people," Bardwell said. "While the word may have had a negative connotation 40 years or so ago, I take notice of the fact there no longer exists any negative connotation."

Republican state Sen. Ernest Keppler of Sheboygan, who unsuccessfully attempted to repeal the ban on the word "saloon" in 1973, praised Bardwell's decision as "elementary in the matter of free speech."

When playing a trump contract, it is not enough just to count your losers. You have to count your winners as well to make sure you have enough tricks to make your contract. Consider this hand from a recent rubber bridge game at New York's famous Cavendish Club.

North's one no trump overall showed the equivalent of a one no trump opening bid, so South was determined to play in game. After checking on a possible 4-4 heart fit, he jumped in his five-card suit, and North was happy, in view of his heart weakness and good spades, to raise his partner to game. West led the king of clubs, and when dummy came down, declarer could see only three losers, even if West held the ace of hearts. However, a count of his winners showed only eight, and it seemed that declarer would have to rely either on the diamond suit or on maneuvering two heart ruffs in dummy for his other two tricks. There was an obvious danger in playing for heart ruffs. Declarer would have to concede the lead twice, and if the defenders were able to lead trumps on each occasion, dummy would have only one trump left for ruffing purposes.

After some study, declarer uncovered a line that required no more than two rounds of diamond to go through. He won the ace of clubs in dummy and immediately ruffed a club. He crossed to the king of diamonds and ruffed another club, then reentered dummy with the ace of diamonds to ruff a third club. Now declarer conceded a diamond. East won the trick and returned a trump. Declarer overtook his queen with dummy's ace and ruffed a diamond with his master trump. Dummy still had two high trumps and two hearts, which declarer willingly conceded to the opposition.

By playing the hand as a dummy reversal, declarer scored in all seven trump tricks, two diamonds and a club.

Five Collisions In Greenville Thursday

More than $2,800 property damage resulted from five collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 11 a.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 500 feet west of the Granville Drive intersection, involving cars driven by Dorothy Venters of Rt. 2, Ayden and Elizabeth Mills of Rt. 3, Greenville.

Police, who estimated the damage at $500 to the Mills car and $1,200 to the Venters vehicle, charged Ms. Mills with failure to reduce speed.

Patricia Louise Fleming of Rt. 4, Greenville, was charged with failure to reduce speed following investigation of an 8 a.m. mishap on East Fifth Street.

The Fleming vehicle, according to officers, collided with a vehicle driven by Deborah Ann Yancey of Rt. 1, Grimesland, causing an estimated $150 damage to the Yancey vehicle and $200 to the Fleming auto.

Killer Swan Gets Chance At New Life

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — City officials have ruled out capital punishment. They say Adolph, the killer swan, is going to be rehabilitated.

The graceful murderer was taken into custody and placed in solitary confinement after his second spring rampage in a water-filled municipal pool.

Like most crime-movie newcomers, Adolph began — at the tender age of 9 — with second-rate misdemeanor offenses such as going berserk when the ducks, geese and swans were returned to the pond from their winter quarters.

But it didn't take long for the 72-pound mute swan, now 11 years old, to make the big time. This spring he became a murderer, killing a whistling swan and injuring another in an apparent case of aggravated assault.

Officials say they've pinpointed the root of Adolph's criminality: sex. The problems began when someone stole his mate two years ago, said Tom Sullivan, city parks and recreation director.

Sullivan said Adolph has been sentenced to an indefinite term at the Jumping Rainbow Ranch near Livingston, Mont., where he may get to select another mate from several young females.

Mutes, the common white swan of Europe and western Asia, produce no loud notes and mate for life. But some authorities say mutes will mate again after 6- to 12-month intervals.

In exchange for Adolph, the ranch has agreed to provide Great Falls with a young pair of royal mute swans. Sullivan said. He said Adolph may end up at a wildfowl ranch in Maryland as part of a round-robin swap.

"Our major quest right now is just to get him out of here," Sullivan said.
