"The Arms Deal Of The Century"

Four European Nations To Purchase U.S. Planes

By JACQUES CLAFIN

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The United States won "the arms deal of the century" Saturday when Belgium picked the General Dynamics F16 fighter jet over the French Mirage for its air force—a choice worth $2 billion now and perhaps $20 billion in all to the United States.

The decision paves the way for The Netherlands, Denmark, Norway and Belgium to purchase 334 F16s from the Fort Worth, Tex., corporation to replace their obsolescent F104 Starfighters.

The three other NATO countries earlier had said they would buy the American plane on the condition that the Brussels government do the same, but Belgium, with half its population French-speaking and with a prime minister deeply committed to a united Europe, had delayed its decision since January.

"The government decided to proceed with the ordering of 102 YF16 planes destined to replace 116 F104s," Belgian Prime Minister Leo Tindemans told newsmen following a lengthy cabinet meeting.

Tindemans said he regretted Belgium could not purchase a European plane, but said the government "doesn't want to be responsible for a considerable weakening of European security."

Tindemans said Belgium would continue its efforts to create a unified European aeronautic industry and would set aside the value of 14 F16s—about $84 million—for a research and development fund leading to such an endeavor.

A spokesman for the Dassault company, which makes the Mirage F1E, said in Paris, "We are not surprised. It was a political choice. We are just sorry Belgium did not make a European choice."

French Prime Minister Jacques Chirac, playing host to hundreds of distinguished guests on the next-to-last, and most important, day of the 11-day annual Paris air show, called the decision "profoundly regrettable."

"In my opinion the debate was not a technical one, since all observers and technicians considered the quality of these planes, American and French, to be technically identical."

Chirac's luncheon audience at Le Bourget air field included Soviet Aviation Minister Pyotr Dementiev, Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peces, Egyptian Vice President Hosni Mubarak, Spanish Defense Minister Cuadra Medina, scores of ambassadors and both Soviet and American astronauts.

One minister in the 29-member Belgian cabinet said the vote was not unanimous, but he did not give figures.

General Dynamics said the contracts will double its payroll in the Fort Worth assembly plant to about 15,000 men by the early 1980s and will create 55,000 additional jobs in the company's other plants.

In addition to the $2 billion aircraft sale, the firm stands to take in up to $15 to $20 billion over the coming years in sales of spare parts. The sale also boosts the F16 in the eyes of other NATO members.

Grain Inspection Lobby

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Private grain inspection companies are beginning to lobby quietly against a federal takeover of their profitable $21 million a year business in the wake of an inspection scandal, government sources reported Saturday.

IRS Had 13,000 Files

Crisis Worsens In Portugal

By THOMAS CHEATHAM

LISBON (UPI)—Portugal's press freedom crisis worsened Saturday with the editors of the Socialist newspuper Republica rejecting the military government's conditions for its reopening. Civil unrest was reported in the Azores islands.

The army said order has been restored in the Azores after farmers closed the airport, seized a radio station and won the resignation of the governor in protest against low crop prices.

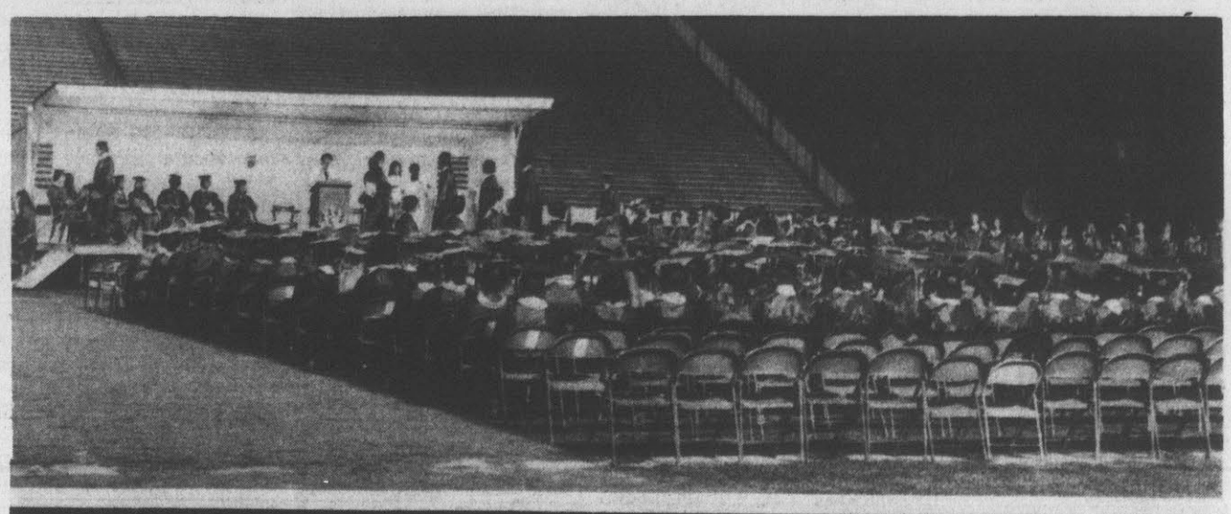

A government-run newspaper said thousands of demonstrators were backed by a group advocating linking the Portuguese Atlantic islands with the United States, whose air force has a field there. No injuries or arrests were reported in the incident Friday.

The Republica dispute was rekindled only hours after the ruling Armed Forces Movement had appeared to defuse the Republica dispute, at least temporarily. The editors said the basic conflict had not been resolved and they vowed not to publish until it is.

"The communique is unacceptable," editor Raul Rego said of the regime's announcement that his paper could reappear just by asking. "It resolves nothing. We are standing firm in our position to defend freedom of the press."

A party spokesman said the leadership met through the night but would not announce a decision until after the return of President Costa Gomes from France, possibly tonight.

"I believe graduates are capable of reviving the sagging American spirit."

"Reflections on Rose High School—Past, Present, and Future" was the unifying theme of six student speakers at the 1975 graduation ceremony for more than 400 seniors.

The traditional good luck of fine weather held true as a large crowd flocked into Ficklen Stadium Friday night to attend the graduation—and this year no train came by during the graduation hour.

"We are not only steeped in traditional values, but we have challenged those values,"

Recreation Meeting

A special meeting of eastern North Carolina Recreation Boards and Commissions will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall.

Members from approximately 12 to 15 boards and commissions are scheduled to attend the meeting which is being sponsored by the N. C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

Joseph Lee Howell, the first of the student speakers told the audience. "There have been drastic changes in the American educational system during our 12 years in school. Some because of social upheavals, others due to the technological revolution that has increased our knowledge."

Howell touched on a point reiterated one way or another by the other student speakers, noting that "many scholars are advocating a return to traditional teaching. It is imperative that Rose High School keep pace with trends in education," He noted that "school administrators must change their roles from that of policemen to educators."

William Harry Billica said "Traditional education values have come under attack in recent years. . .We must reflect on what is really necessary for students. We can attain high ideals only through sustained values in education.

"The basic philosophy of education," Billica added, "is one of individual development . . . all students must derive satisfaction from education."

Speaking on the topic "Present Philosophical Outlook, Gail Lynn Shaw said "Education must deal primarily with intellectual training, the transmitting of heritage and culture. . . our philosophical outlook has been influenced by our school. Now we must blend idealistic and realistic views . . . as students we must develop visionary ideas of the future."

With reference to the changing structure of local schools in recent years, Gail remarked "realistically, we have endured confusion. We have rejected some traditions, upheld others. We have made friends, lost friends. We must now approach the next step in our lives with realistic caution."

Gail Cecilia Molic surveyed possibilities open to the new graduates. "Some of us will go on to higher education, others will go to work, be home makers or go into the armed services," she said.

"As graduates," she noted, "we are now able to begin to see and understand our failures as well as our achievements. We all have two mutual goals, happiness and a chance to improve our success."

"Happiness and success," Gail concluded, "will belong to those who have prepared themselves for the achievement of their goals."

The fifth speaker, Eddie Louis Smith, spoke briefly about world conflicts and needs. "Many of us feel we are stepping out into a world for which we can offer no solutions," he said, then added a more hopeful viewpoint. . ."but we still feel good times are coming.

"We have problems of wars, famine, poverty, fear, unemployment and domestic problems for which we must find solutions," Eddie noted. "I challenge you, however, to take the highest degree of optimism."

William Griffin Garner posed several questions: "Will we ever find our place in an ever changing society? Will our generation be capable of maintaining the high standards of excellence the U.S. has known?

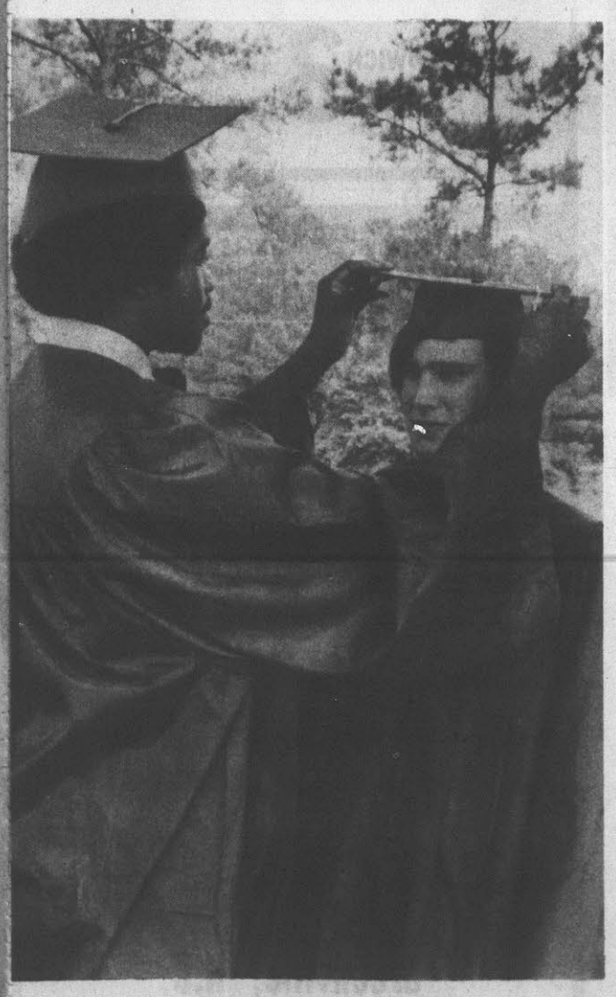

"We must continue our interest in our government . . . apathy damages our system today.

Several Hundred Graduate From Four County High Schools

Ayden-Grifton High

Speakers for the commencement exercises at Ayden-Grifton included Earl Harris, Bertha Phillips, Kathy Edwards and Mary Ellen Conner.

Their speeches centered around man as a threefold being and dealt specifically with "Spiritual Man," "Rational Man" and "Physical Man" in his struggle to cope with a challenging and changing world.

Also participating in the program were Theron Moye and Bertha Phillips, co-presidents of the senior class. Music was provided by a choral ensemble under the direction of Mrs. Myriam Harris.

Jo Paget, chairman of the Ayden-Grifton Advisory Council, awarded diplomas to the 146 graduating seniors and Principal William C. Wiggins presented awards and scholarships.

This year's graduating class was the first class to have attended the school for four full years since it was opened in 1971.

D.H. Conley High

A total of 191 high school seniors were awarded diplomas during commencement exercises at Conley Friday night.

Senior speakers for the occasion were Bertha Credle, and Joel Dunn. The topic for the speeches was "Opportunity."

"An uninvited guest is with us tonight," Miss Credle told those attending the exercises. "Our ears have been waiting anxiously for his knock for his coming means so much to us.

"This unseen guest is Opportunity. . .our future rests with him," Miss Credle said. "Many careers have failed, many battles have been lost, and many useful skills have gone unused all because people failed to recognize Opportunity when he appeared to them."

She continued, "Successful lives, successful careers, satisfactory wants and needs, and most importantly, reaching our highest goals all depend on whether we can reach out a hand to great Opportunity.

"For opportunity is a chance to succeed. . .it is an unlocked door and a tremendous challenge," she added.

"A person must have the initative and the determination to open the door to opportunity. There must be determination and exertion of one's physical strength present for success to be the result."

Determination, ambition, and success depend upon one facing the challenge with hope, she explained.

"Life in this world will be unbearable for us if we think negatively rather than positively," Miss Credle pointed out.

Senior Joel Dunn told the audience that opportunity is all around us.

"You may not see it when you first look, but it is there," Dunn said. "You must look for it at every turn in the road.

"Opportunity will not come to you, you must go to it. With today's economy the way it is, career opportunities may be harder to come by, but they are still there; if one will persevere, he will find them," Dunn said.

Dunn emphasized that some opportunities may not bring great financial rewards, but instead, they may offer personal rewards; they may bring feelings of deep accomplishment and service to mankind. These are well worth considering and may be desired in lieu of great wealth at personal loss or dissatisfaction.

"Our opportunities have their foundation at Conley High and we are now ready to begin to open doors to the future we desire," Dunn said. "The decision of what to do has been made for most of us. However, the specifics are still up to us.

"Whatever you decide, do not give up the first time an obstacle arises. Try, and you can surmount it," Dunn said.

The invocation was presented by John Sayce and the benediction was given by Calvin Hawkins. Special music was presented by Tony Smart and Willie Stephenson.

Principal J.R. Carraway awarded the diplomas to the graduating seniors. He was assisted by D.H. Conley, former county schools superintendent for whom the school was named. Vickie Arlene Hawkins led the turning of tassels ceremony.

Farmville Central

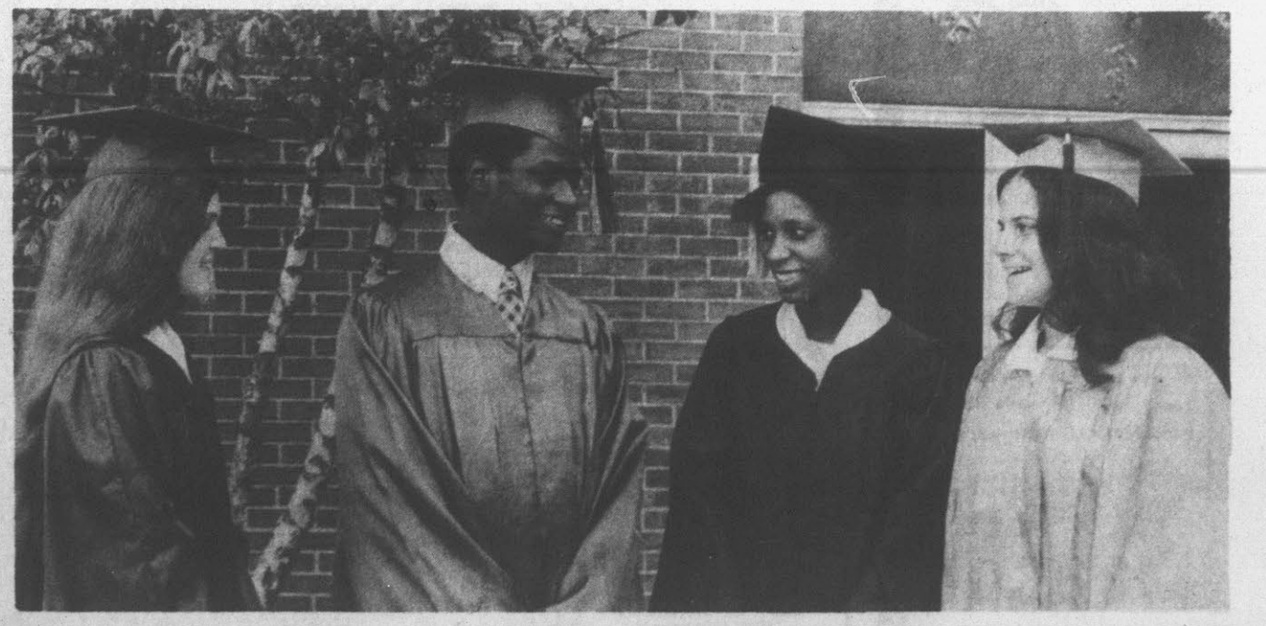

The student speakers at Farmville Central Friday night—Richard Albritton, Kenny Patterson, Gwen Britt and Angela Ellis—chose to explore the challenge of various opportunities which the graduation class will face in future years.

As the first speaker, Albritton chose to explain opportunity as a feature in itself.

"Opportunity is there for those willing to utilize it. Ahead of us are many unknown advantages," Albritton said. "We must strive to recognize opportunity and to evaluate it, because recognizing our chances for what they really are could mean the difference between success and failure."

Albritton continued, "No matter how many aims, dreams, goals. . .we may have, if each arising opportunity is not fully grasped and each benefit secured, we will not be

Governors Say Ford, Congress Have Failed

By STEVE GERSTEL

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — By a wide margin, the nation's governors agree that president Ford and Congress have failed to develop an adequate energy program. Most would prefer fuel supply allocations to price increases.

In response to a UPI poll on the eve of the National Governors Conference, only Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken said he feels a program is being developed. A few others give Ford credit for trying, and some see slight progress.

But of the 37 governors participating in the poll, 26 flatly replied "no" when asked whether the government has developed, or is in the process of developing, a workable program.

Their replies indicate as much disagreement over what should be done as exists in the administration and Congress. Most, however, indicate they favor allocation over Ford's increase of tariffs on imported oil or congressional moves to tax gasoline —both of which would increase fuel prices.

The governors would accept allocation —many of them reluctantly—but rationing of gas was termed a measure of "last resort" and a "gruesome prospect."

One of the harshest criticisms came from New York Gov. Hugh L. Carey, a newly elected Democrat, who said, "We haven't had a national energy program in our history and we don't have one now.

"We are not going to get one as long as the oil companies are calling the shots. That's what's happening in Washington now."

Mississippi's Gov. Bill Waller, also a Democrat: "I would say there is no way we can solve the problem until we address ourselves to a state of emergency and mobilize ... I think this nation is going downhill until we have a Manhattan Project crash program to solve the energy crisis."

Milliken, a second-term Republican, disagreed:

"Congress, the President and the people are now in the process of resolving some of the difficult questions (and will determine which) should be part of the policy."

There was strong opposition to any program using higher prices to discourage gasoline consumption, although a few governors recommended this approach. Some others were willing to let voluntary conservation remain the keystone of the energy program.

Tennessee Gov. Ray Blanton, a Democrat, said, "I can't see that it is in the best interest of our economy to drive prices up."

Police Arrest Daring Helicopter Escapee

JACKSON, Mich. (UPI) — State police, working on an anonymous tip, Saturday arrested a veteran criminal who staged a dramatic helicopter escape from the nation's largest walled prison. He was captured in a tavern 15 miles from the prison.

A state police spokesman said Dale O. Remling offered no resistance when he was arrested while standing at a bar in the Ingham County community of Leslie. He was jailed at the state police post in Jackson, where the Jackson State Prison is located.

Authorities, who had conducted a massive house-to-house search for Remling in northern Jackson County since his escape Friday, said they received an anonymous tip that Remling would be in Leslie.

Earlier, three women were arrested and police said two other suspects were still being sought—another woman and the man who allegedly forced a helicopter pilot at knifepoint to make a pinpoint landing in a prison yard.

With a knife at his throat, the former combat pilot set his hijacked aircraft down for 20 seconds on a precisely marked spot Friday and 47-year-old inmate Dale O. Remling hopped aboard.

Except for a pack of flying bullets, the escape might have been out of "Breakout," a current movie thriller based on an actual prison escape in Mexico. The film played in Jackson a week earlier.

State Of Emergency Declared In Hamlet

By ELIOT BRENNER

HAMLET, N.C. (UPI) — A state of emergency was declared Saturday in this North Carolina town following a nightlong racial disturbance marked by firebombings and the wounding of a fireman by a sniper.

Police Chief Ernest King said about 300 young blacks roamed the streets during the heighth of the distrubance, triggered by the arrest of a black woman by a white officer. The woman accused the policeman of using undue force in taking her into custody on a drunk and disorderly charge.

Five buildings were damaged by fires during the outburst and at least three persons were hurt. No arrests were made, however, and none of the injured was believed to be seriously hurt.

A city fireman, returning to his home in his own vehicle after fighting one of the fires, was hit by several shotgun pellets fired by a sniper hiding in a vacant lot. The fireman, Gene Ross, suffered head wounds and his son was cut by flying glass when the pellets came crashing through the windows of their car.

The other known injury involved a motorist who stopped to watch one of the fires and was hit by a rock, police said. All three were treated at a local hospital and released.

Fire Chief C. B.Utter said the purposely-set fires caused an estimated $24,000 damage and occurred between 11 p.m. Friday and 6:45 a.m. Saturday. He said a woods also was set ablaze.

The policeman who arrested 21-year-old Rhonda Scott on charges of being drunk and disorderly was identified as Sgt. James Bryant. Miss Scott filed assault charges against him and he was relieved of his duties pending an investiagtion.

King said the city's 13 man police force had been equipped with riot gear, including tear gas, for dealing with any new disturbances and the chairman of the County Commission, Condor J. Richard, declared a state of emergency in the town of 5,300 and surrounding areas.

Utter added there had been racial fighting at the local schools in the past week and that police had been called out to patrol the schools when they closed Friday.

The glass in front of the city's state liquor store was shuttered just before the first fire was reported at an auto parts store in a predominantly white section of town at 10:28 p.m. Friday night, Utter said, and at 11:35 p.m. a fire broke out at an abandoned lumber mill in another section of town.

The chief said a molotov cocktail was tossed into the McLaurin Vocational center at 12:15 a.m. and a vehicle adjacent to the center was set ablaze. The last reported fire was at 6:42 a.m. Saturday morning when another fire bomb was thrown into the empty cab of a tractor trailer truck, igniting a blaze in the truck and the adjacent buildings at Pinecroft Industries, Inc. a manufacturer of window shutters.

A 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew was ordered into effect because of the disturbance

Highway Patrol roadblocks were ordered up outside the town and King said troopers would tell arriving motorists to go directly to their homes, if residents, and advise travelers to continue through the town without stopping.

PARIS (UPI) — A prostitutes' strike for better social conditions and less police harassment spread throughout major towns in France Saturday.

Something Assembly Can Do

Time is getting short for this year's session of the Legislature and we doubt that the lawmakers are looking for any new tasks at this time.

One thing the legislators could do before they leave Raleigh, though, is to establish a commission to recommend ways of modernizing North Carolina voting system.

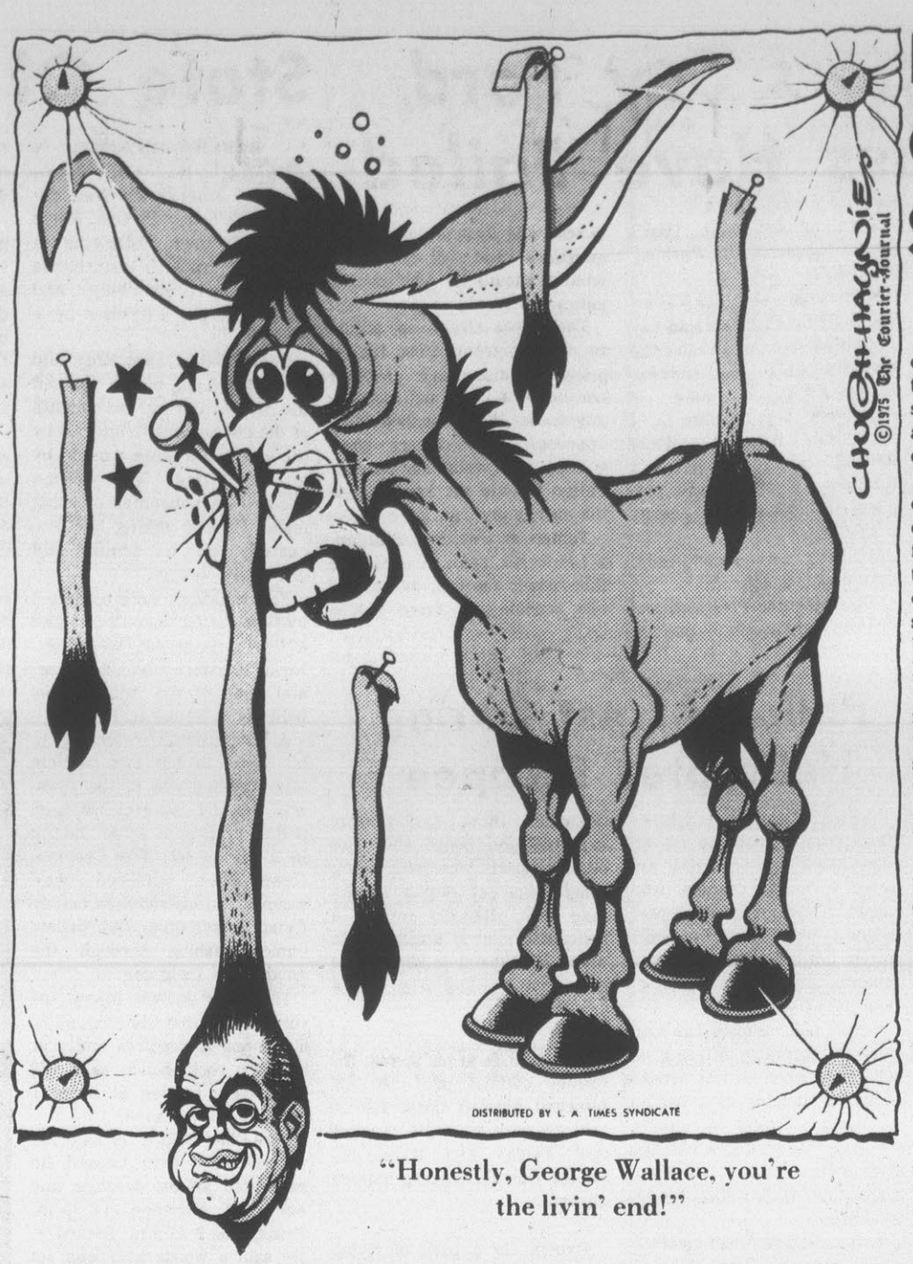

Setting up the voting procedures is the responsibility of the counties, as it should be. Nevertheless the electronic age is fast bearing down on us insofar as vote casting and tabulating are concerned.

Thus we will need some coordinating by the state if we are not to continue to have a hodgepodge of voting methods. Currently we have the old paper ballot system, which some counties such as Pitt still cling to. Our county commissioners in a what-was-good-enough-for-grandpa attitude have made no effort to improve on this archaic system. Next there are the traditional voting machines, which many counties have. Votes are cast by levers and there is no paper ballot, unless there is a breakdown.

Some counties are now studying electronic devices. Paper ballots are still marked by the voters. Then they are placed in a slot and counted electronically. At the conclusion of the day the totals are instantly available, and if there is any malfunction of the equipment the marked ballots are still available.

It seems obvious that a method such as this won't be long in being put to widespread use. We expect, though, there will be a number of systems available and it would be wise for the state to begin study now to see that compatible systems are used throughout the state. In addition, there will be counties such as Pitt where the county commissioners simply refuse to modernize the voting system and some prodding on the part of the state will be necessary if anything is ever to be done.

With modern vote tabulating equipment the polling places could stay open longer to accommodate our citizens. At the same time totals would be available much sooner and this would be a real service. There should be some uniformity to the voting system, however, and the leadership for this will have to come from the state government. Now is the time to begin studying, and we think the Legislature should get things going.

"Honestly, George Wallace, you're the livin' end!"

THIS AFTERNOON

The Press Gets Its Share

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—People in state government—both bureaucrats and members of the General Assembly—mention "The Press" often.

They are talking about newspapers, and the comments often are made critically of items or editorials printed which work against a favored project.

It is as though any critical comment published one time in even the smallest of newspapers in North Carolina has been seen by more than five million people—all of whom are by exposure to the criticism swayed to resist the maligned program.

Legislative leaders and program directors tend to forget that North Carolina has nearly 50 daily newspapers, and in the neighborhood of 140 non-dailies. Each makes independent judgements on what to print or not print; and each takes editorial stands for or against government proposals or actions depending on independent judgments by editors.

Stumbling Block

Still, to hear the Raleigh rehtoric, one would think "The Press" of North Carolina is centrally directed and coordinated, speaking in unison and working against the good aims and programs of some leaders.

Early in the legislative session, House Speaker James C. Green blasted "The Press" for being critical of the slow start and fumbling about of this session of the General Assembly.

In 1974, Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., was equally as outspoken against "The Press" for creating the image of a "do-nothing" General Assembly.

Bureaucrats tend to forget that the newspapers don't create an image; they report what is going on. It is then incumbent upon the readers across North Carolina to read, understand, and interpret that information to reach their own conclusions.

On a recent day in the State Legislative Building, "The Press" took a drubbing from two leaders on two separate subjects.

Dr. A. Craig Phillips, superintendent of public instruction, announced that he was scuttling a planning excursion to Japan by 20 educators, and returning unused to the federal government some $50,000.

Phillips blamed legislative concern and confusion "brought on initially by political and personal motivation of those who sponsored and promoted" action to halt the trip.

The trip, Phillips said, was "clouded and confused . . . misunderstood across this state as citizens responded to the image of this trip. . . created by 'The Press.' There was no positive response in the 'The Press' and editorials in 'The Press' have been negative."

Public Reaction

Phillips confessed that the trip was cancelled as the result of public reaction generated by the facts of the case: a total $102,000 outlay for a 42-day excursion by a group top-heavy in administrative people, including a superintendent who will retire shortly after returning, a New Jersey internee who will go back to that state, a public relations aide, etc.

Later that same day, the House Finance Committee enthusiastically endorsed another effort to get North Carolina voters to approve use of revenue bonds to aid industries.

Voters overwhelmingly rejected Amendment Number Two to the state's Constitution in November, 1974, which would have allowed such bonds for industrial plant construction and for pollution control devices.

Part of the rejection resulted from the wording on the ballot which started off talking about creating jobs and employment opportunities, and cleaning up the environment.

There was strong opposition to the proposal, including a forthright denunciation by State Treasurer Edwin C. Gill, and by State Elections Chief Alex Brock who scored the wording on the ballot.

Still, State Rep. Daniel T. Lilley, D-Lenoir County, had this to say: "I hope The Press will accept the challenge of supporting this proposal and not try to kill this bill as they did last year."

Not least among the things that killed the measure last year was disclosure of the fact that Mecklenburg County officials had already committed millions to Duke Power Co. before the voters even spoke. This year, the original bill kept utilities out; but they have since been put back in.

Such criticism from governmental leaders proves only one thing: "The Press" is doing its job.

The INSIDE REPORT

A Drive To 'Get Wallace'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Permission from frightened Sweden for Nazi troops to cross its territory in World War II has become intertwined with a ferocious but flawed campaign by mainstream Democrats to cut Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama down to size.

The goal is to convince American voters that Wallace is not equipped to be President of the United States and Exhibit A is Wallace's sensational March 3 interview with foreign journalists in Montgomery, Ala. Although Wallace's uninhibited criticism of Sweden in that interview accurately stated the historical facts, he has been accused of thinking neutral Sweden was a belligerent—of being a snopesian ignoramus.

Nor is that the only distortion. A reading of the transcript shows no Wallace departure on foreign policy from his rambling conversations with reporters over the years: blunt to the point of offensiveness, nationalistic to the point of jingoism, anti-Communist to the point of hysteria. But the analyses have painted a more sinister picture.

The reason for this is the Democratic party's escalating Wallace dilemma. Party leaders have no air-tight arguments to blunt Wallace's obvious appeal to the discontented. That led to the first contrivance: the aborted drive to repeal presidential primaries Wallace would likely win.

Wallace's interview with the foreign journalists, reported by the Washington Post of May 8, was therefore desparately needed ammunition. It fit the purposes of mainstream Democrats to foster the impression that Wallace had confused Sweden's World War II status. "Actually," the Post reported parenthetically, "Sweden steered a neutralist course during World War II while the Nazis invaded Norway and Denmark." Both liberal and conservative columnists chortled over his alleged redneck ignorance.

In fact, however, he had not erred. Unreported from the March 3 meeting was Wallace's accurate if ungrammatical statement to a Swedish journalist: "You wasn't occupied, but they (Nazi troops) marched through Sweden to get to Norway."

The distortions of Wallace's views on Germany and Japan were less flagrant. "I think we were fighting the wrong people, maybe, in World War II," he said, but the transcript makes clear he was criticizing U.S. policy before the war that permitted the rise of Hitlerism and Japanese imperialism, not the American choice of sides after it started. It is also clear from the transcript that his remark to a Japanese journalist that "I wish we'd been on the same side in World War II" was banter.

Distorted or not, the surfacing of the interview gave heart to mainstream Democrats. Wallace, they hoped, had committed one of those senseless political gaffes that ruin presidential candidacies.

Indeed, the Wallace camp is explaining more than usual. Press secretary Billie Joe Camp quotes William Shirer's "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich" that Sweden provided "immense help to Germany" by permitting transit to Hitler's legions, first to Norway, later to Finland.

But Wallace himself is a stinging counterpuncher. Addressing the Louisiana

Sunday Morning Notes

With the end of school approaching Tony Trotman, son of Daily Reflector womans editor Rosalie Trotman got to thinking about his birthday.

At times many school classes make a big thing about birthdays, with a party or something.

For Tony the trouble is that his birthday comes in July.

"Why can't my birthday come when school is going on?" Tony commented on this problem to his mother the other day.

Well, it could be worse, Tony. You could have a birthday on Christmas day.

The man was on Evans Street near the Town Common Park. He was carrying a traveling bag and seemed new to Greenville.

"Excuse me," he asked. "Can you tell me where Greenville Boulevard is.

I explained that it was about three miles south.

He started in that direction and I asked if he had a car.

"No," he said, "but I've got plenty of time. I can make it on foot."

He disappeared down Evans Street. Hopefully he made it.

Staffer Carol Tyer announced at the office one morning, "My husband now has twelve hundred thousand bees."

ALVIN TAYLOR

I inquired further. It seems that her husband, Ruel, a farmer, rented the bees to cross-pollinate his cucumber crop.

There are 12 hives with about 100,000 bees each which comes out to twelve 100,000 bees or 1,200,000.

The bees do their work in the cucumber fields during the day and then return to the hives at night. That is when they are moved about by the bee keeper.

Carol, however, says she and the children are keeping a healthy distance.

A good idea.

Bright lights in East Greenville a couple of nights last week brought people out of their homes to investigate.

Seems the new stadium lights at Ficklen were being tested.

The 'Tough Line'

(Greensboro Daily News)

Tanzania took a tough line when Marxist guerrillas demanded half a million dollars, arms and ammunition, and the freedom of two radical leaders from Zaire in exchange for three of the four foreign students they abducted on the shores of Lake Tanganyika three weeks ago. The Tanzanians rejected the demands outright, and they can hardly be blamed, for an accession to any such blackmail by a guerrilla group operating in the hinterland—and there are many of them—would doubtless encourage similar behavior in the future.

But the United States and the Netherlands, the two nations whose young citizens were kidnapped, can hardly be blamed for their concern, or for the efforts they are likely to undertake to change the Tanzanians' minds.

Barbara Smuts, the Stanford University student who was released by the guerrillas to act as a messenger for them and for her Dutch and American colleagues, says that her abductors are neither bandits nor pirates but soldiers—the distinction strikes us as weak, since they are kidnapers—who aim to "liberate" the people of Neighbouring Zaire in order to establish democracy there.

This can't we've heard before, and its substance hardly matters so long as the three young anthropology students remain in the hands of the guerrillas, be they freedom-fighters or crazed fanatics. The one detail for which we can be thankful is that the abductors have given the Tanzanian government a generous sixty days to come up with the money, the weapons, and the prisoners—time enough, the Marxists must have suspected, for public opinion in this country and elsewhere to pressure the Tanzanians into compromise. The Dutch and American governments are prone to take a softer line on the ransom, since the students are their nationals, but the Tanzanians stand to lose repeatedly in the future if the demands are met—particularly the release of the Zairois radicals now in Tanzanian jails.

The troubling situation in Tanzania is exposing, once again, the difficulty of taking a "tough line" on kidnapping while trying to see the kidnapped safely home. We trust they will be so seen.

Better Cloud Seeding

By ROD ANGOVE
Associated Press Writer

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The art of cloud seeding has advanced to where the seeders can make snow and tell which snowflakes are theirs and which are Mother Nature's.

The result could be a flurry of cloud seeding in many parts of the world to increase snowfall — and get more runoff water for lakes, reservoirs and electricity-producing dams, says Joseph Warburton of the University of Nevada's Desert Research Institute near here.

Warburton is manager of a five-year pilot project, just ending and done with the University of California at Berkeley, to increase the snowpack in a 1,500-square-mile area of Nevada east of the Sierra.

The results are being evaluated by computers, and firm conclusions won't be yielded until September. But Warburton says his staff is convinced the snowfall from storms that were seeded was probably 10 to 15 per cent heavier than it would have been without seeding.

Warburton said he is already working with the Iranian government to set up a similar project north of Teheran. There is also a program planned for Northern California.

"There's no question at all that the state of the art is such that a lot more countries are going to get into it, especially in high-altitude, winter situations," said Warburton in an interview.

Seeding doesn't create storm clouds. It only "milks" them for more rain and snow.

In cloud seeding, which began in 1946, silver iodide crystals are sent into precipitating clouds by smoke generators. The crystals form nucleuses for raindrops or snowflakes. They gather up the superfine droplets of cold water suspended in the clouds until they drop to earth.

Time was the seeders could point only to the correlation between seeding and precipitation to "prove" they had done something. "Now we have methods of coming up with the numbers," says John R. Doherty, assistant to the president of the institute.

As explained by Warburton, it involves the comparing of snowflake crystal shapes, along with the measurement of silver

At last night's Kiwanis meeting, President James and Guy Smith reported on the International Convention of the Kiwanis Clubs recently held in San Antonio, Texas.

The filing period for applications for federal seed loans will close June 15, it was announced today from the office of T.O. Edens, director of the local office.

Edens said that all farmers wishing to take advantage of these loans should file their applications between now and the closing date.

Strength For Today

OVERSIMPLIFYING RELICION

Sometimes you may hear it said that the way to make religion more appealing is to divest it of its mystery and make it so simple that everyone can readily understand it.

But experience has proved that such an endeavor is bound to fail. A religion perfectly understood would cease to be a religion. Moreover, making a religion readily understandable is impossible because the core of all religion is the supernatural. This element, by definition, is beyond our human capacities of comprehension.

Chrisitanity, therefore, has its eternal mysteries which will never be completely understood by anybody. The miracles recounted in Scripture are a good example. Hundreds of volumes have been written to explain them, but none of these explanations can be more than shaky hypotheses. Christianity begins to work upon us not when we think we understand the acts of God, but when we acknowledge them and allow them, mysterious as they are, to influence our lives.

Cautious On Pace Of Recovery

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Yes, the economy is still expected to catch a faint breeze and begin sailing out of the doldrums later this year, but increasingly we are being warned not to expect any speed records.

Don't expect the unemployment situation to clear up quickly. In fact, expect it to get a bit worse before turning better. Plan for a continuation of inflation, although not as bad as it has been.

The economic direction is changing, Treasury Secretary William Simon told Congress, but he added that "recovery from this low point won't quickly be evident in all of the measures of economic activity."

The students of consumer attitudes note the majority of ordinary Americans already are aware of all this, even if their leaders still think it's news.

A good many of the private economists who write letters to clients are still advertising an imminent upturn in those two very basic industries, autos and housing, but they're beginning to hedge a bit.

They have good reason to do so. Housing, while improving, isn't doing so with any bounce; automotive markets are listless, and a threat of growing inventories is returning to haunt the industry.

Instead of buying, millions of Americans are banking. Personal income is rising, but there are too many jobless workers in the neighborhoods to remind everyone the economic future can be risky.

On Wall Street, some of the bulls have run out of breath, and it isn't at all unusual to find cautionary comment creeping into the market letters, one of whose functions is, of course, to induce rather than reduce activity.

The hesitancy, the uncertainty, the warnings are subtly packaged, hidden or surrounded as they are by the consensus forecast, which still calls for a recovery later this year. But they are there.

There exist too many variables for many economists to understand and deal with, and many of the variables are far beyond the scope of an economist's training. Political considerations are dominant in the world of economics.

One theory circulating is that the industrialized nations of the Western world can't expect to continue the furious expansion of their economies as they did in the 1950s and 1960s because the underdeveloped nations just won't let them do so.

Observations From Editorial Columns

Man-Sized Job

There's a $17,000-a-year job down in Raleigh going begging, and that's unusual in these times of long unemployment lines and sagging economic conditions.

The job is superintendent of the North Carolina Correctional Center for women and nobody, but nobody, seems interested.

The former director of the center, Jaunita Baker, was fired early last December. Since then, state officials say that they have interviewed a number of applicants; but, so far, their efforts have fallen on rocky ground.

Feelers have been put out all over the state, even beyond and into the hinterlands. There seems to be nobody in the present ranks who is interested. There seems to be nobody in the wide open spaces who is interested.

Isn't there a capable woman out there somewhere in womenland who will step forward, boldly and without restraint and say, "Take me. I am your woman; you are my job?"

Director of Prisons Ralph Edwards said last week that "We're not desperate but we are open to suggestions."

Superior In Every Way

There's talk that the upper peninsula area may secede from Michigan and join the Union as the 51st state, Superior.

Whatever other effects it might have, the move would provide a big morale boost to the upper peninsula.

With a name like that, they'd probably outboast the Texans.

If the Bicentennial Commission, which is overseeing all that is done in the name of this country's 200th birthday, has any "Good Loser" awards to hand out, we nominate Davison Newman & Co., Ltd., of London.

The firm was established in 1650 and has been shipping tea to the New World since before 1700. Good show, Davison Newman & Co., Ltd., it's nice to know you aren't carrying a grudge.

From Antipathy...

Has it been more than a decade since Great Britain launched its "Invasion of Innovation" upon the USA?

We're speaking of British rock music, and particularly the first well-known invaders, the now defunct group called The Beatles.

Though they've gone their separate ways, it's easy for most of us to recall the great American outrage at their "cereal bowl" haircuts which greatly lapped over their ears.

But today, there aren't many young boys or men with hair enough left on their heads whose hair cuts or styles don't bear a striking resemblance to those four fellows.

In addition to changing our ideas of music, The Beatles also introduced the now make American ideal of long hair.

The Wrongs In Busing For Racial Balance Goal

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

In recent weeks, three researchers in the field of school desegregation have voiced an identical conclusion: Racial-balance busing simply does not work. The practice does more harm that good, and ought to be abandoned.

This is scarely a novel conclusion. A great many critics of the federal courts have been saying this for years. What gives weight to the most recent appraisal is that the three researchers cannot be described, by any stretch of the imagination, as bigots, yahoos, or rednecks. They are qualified scholars.

James S. Coleman, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, is principal author of the famed "Coleman Report" of 1966. Biloine Whiting Young is a former instructor at the University of Illinois who served as director of the Illinois project for gifted children. Grace Billings Bress taught at the University of Minnesota and was a Woodrow Wilson fellow at Harvard.

Mrs. Young and Mrs. Bress offered their observations last month in the Kappan, the magazine of Phi Delta Kappa professional education fraternity. They reviewed research done by others over a 20-year period, and concluded that racial-balance busing is a "dangerously simplistic" device that has created expectations it has so far been unable to satisfy.

"Further," the two educators remark, "mandatory busing has contributed to the racial and economic segregation of our cities on a scale undreamed of in 1954, to the extent that in many there are no longer enough white pupils to integrate."

In an interview published by National Observer, Coleman made the same points. He studied data for 1968-73 from the 20 largest school districts in the country, and from the 50 next largest. He also took a general look at racial trends in very small districts. He concluded that integration can work, in the sense of maintaining a stable racial balance, in a small district, but it has "a very difficult time working in a large district."

Coleman was sharply critical of the federal courts for their role in desegregation. He termed them "the worst of all possible instruments for carrying out a very sensitive activity." When judges fail to consider that their decrees may cause "white flight and resegregation," their orders are "exactly the wrong thing to do."

Looking to the future, Coleman sees a "general resegregation in all regions of the country." Especially in major cities, middle-class whites will continue to flee to the suburbs or to private schools. This is not necessarily a manifestation of race prejudice as such. "In large cities, where the system often seems out of control, there's a much greater feeling of inability to have any impact on the schools, a feeling that schools cannot maintain order, and a feeling that the schools cannot protect the child."

Coleman finds it understandable that many parents, white and black alike, don't want to send their children to schools "where 90 percent of the time is spent not on instruction but on discipline." Failure to control "undisciplined and violent behavior on the part of some black children" serves to intensify the prejudice of whites. Educational achievement suffers, and massive busing makes bad matters worse.

If racial-balance busing is wrong socially, and wrong educationally, can it be justified constitutionally? Mrs. Bress and Mrs. Young identify what they term the "judicial essence" of the Supreme Court's 1954 decision: "Namely, that the law must be applied to all Americans in a color-blind fashion; that race is not a constitutionally valid basis for differentiating among school children. . ."

Accepting that succinct formulation, I confess my own inability to comprehend why the federal courts persist in their reckless and irresponsible course. When children are bused away from their neighborhoods, solely because of the color of their skin, court orders are not color-blind. Such orders differentiate on race, and on race alone. The Equal Protection Clause becomes a nullity, and the Constitution is turned on its head.

Professor Coleman, Mrs. Bress, and Mrs. Young, in voicing their objections, join many other respected critics in saying that busing is a mistake. When will the courts pay them heed?

Public Confidence Has Significant Impact On Prospect For Recovery

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Polls say that the public confidence factor in the economic outlook is improving.

This can be highly significant if it means that more people now are ready to step out and make major purchases, say of autos and homes. This would be a rather convincing sign that the slide has spent itself and that a recovery is in the making.

And it can be counted on the plus side, even if it reflects nothing more than relief that the bottom hasn't fallen out. Those with jobs feel more secure and may spend more freely, especially on goods and services they have been putting off. And people at work account for 90 per cent of the entire labor force. Employment at 95 per cent would mean "good times".

An influence on the shift in consumer attitude no doubt is the different picture given by recent official statistics out of Washington. For months, they had shown nothing but one sharp drop after another. May figures brought a smattering of gains. These have been widely hailed as signs the economy is turning, or is about to turn.

Such an appraisal may turn out to be correct. It had been anticipated that tax rebate checks, which are flowing out, would give some sort of lift, primarily at the retail stores. That may be what is taking place. The next few months will tell.

But to paint the picture, at this time, in bright sunlight and blue sky is to overlook major soft spots and a danger that some basic industries, including steel, are just now coming up against what may be months of rough going.

Spring will soon turn into summer and the giant auto industry is still in more than just bad shape. True, May productin was the highest of any month since November—614,032 cars, compared with 729,802 in May 1974 and 941,019 in the record May of 1973. For Detroit, it was the worst May in 14 years. May sales were in much the same line.

This is a real drag on industries which supply the auto makers. And there's no hard sign when it will end. The buyers may simply sit on their hands until they are offered truly "new" cars that give much better gas milage. Talk of gas at 70 cents a gallon in a few months and $1 in a few years doesn't help.

Home building is another far flung industry which has got to get going if recovery is to be along a broad front. There has been some pickup, but not on the scale which foreshadows any early comeback. The big problem here is price, plus the uncertainty over heating and cooling bills. Mortgage money is available, but not at bargain rates.

A fresh concern involves the basic industries. The recession was slow to hit producers of chemicals, steel, aluminum, other nonferrous metals and paper. Last year, they operated in a "shortage" economy—couldn't meet demand. But, lately, they have been hit and hard. Inventories have piled up. More production cutbacks will be in order unless there is an early, broad-based recovery.

These factors probably help explain why Ford Administration economists are sticking with a rather grim set of projections for both the long and short term. This points to 1980 as the earliest possible time when unemployment may get back to a 5 per cent rate and inflation shrinks to 4 per cent yearly.

This new appraisal was made this week in a revision of February budget projections and in the news it was somewhat overshadowed by the spending row between the Democratic Congress and the White House. In substance, the conclusion is that the economy will be on short rations for the next five years.

It is no surprise that the estimate this year sees the economy in worse shape than had been anticipated. Unemployment, for example, will average about 8.7 per cent, rather than 8.1 per cent. And gross national product, the total of goods and services, will decline 3.6 per cent instead of 3.3 per cent, adjusted for inflation. Inflation, however, is now put at an average of 9.1 per cent for the year, a decline from the earlier 11.3 per cent estimate.

Apparently, some of the earlier recovery hopes for 1975 have been pushed into 1976, when gross national product is expected to gain 6.3 per cent, instead of 4.8 per cent. Inflation will slow a bit more, but unemployment will still be high, 7.9 per cent in an election year.

By 1980, unemployment is expected to be down to 5.1 per cent and the rate of inflation down to 4 per cent, which is high by standards of only two years ago.

Five years. A long time. But no nation has ever found a quick and painless way to recover from the consequences of an inflationary spending binge.

iodide and the trace element, indium, in the snow.

Indium is sent up from the smoke generators along with the silver iodide.

Crystals that form around silver iodide are diffusional and accretional — they have a different shape from Mother Nature's snowflakes. Scientists found this out by creating their own snow in a cloud chamber.

First, the shapes are compared in a sample. Then by measuring for silver iodide and indium, they can estimate what percentage of the snowfall was caused by the seeding.

The measurements are made on super-sensitive equipment that didn't exist five years ago, said Warburton.

It has been this and other studies that have indicated that snowfall in each storm seeded has probably been increased 10 to 15 per cent, Warburton explained.

Other measurements play a role in telling the success os seeding.

On Squaw Peak in the Sierra sits a radar truck which reports snowfall rates in all parts of the target area. There are also 35 precipitation gauges in the area.

To add a "control" to the experimental program, only half of the ideal storms were seeded, said Warburton.

About 60 storms a year pass over the area, roughly east of San Francisco near Lake Tahoe. Of these, 33 were considered ideal for seeding. But only 17 were seeded. The other 16 went their natural way.

Comparisons were made on the amount of snow that fell when a storm was seeded and when one wasn't.

The final verdict on whether the seeding worked will be determined after computers digest all the data on the snowfalls.

legislature May 21, Wallace played to the discontented by accusing "the liberals in this country" of bringing on "the blunder of Vietnam. . . that not only cost all of these lives but $150 billion that has affected the inflationary spiral of every pensioner and every low income person."

Moreover, Wallace is mailing a letter denouncing the press for starting all the trouble: "The liberal press establishment is getting to the point where they would distort anything that I have to say."

That is only the beginning. No longer perceiving Wallace as a vulgar if fascinating curiosity, as they did in 1972, his enemies in both the Democratic party and the press can be expected to assault his intelligence, character and competence with ever greater vehemence. But they should be correct on the facts or Wallace's response in kind will strike home in the long bitter struggle for the allegience of the discontented American.

Meal-Time Is A Time For Gentle Persuasion

According to his mother, my husband has always found unique ways for getting rid of unwanted food.

When Phillip was seven, the family poodle developed an ulcer. Not only was the poor dog eating Purina Dog chow and Dash, but he was also devouring spinach souffle, broccoli casserole, and Chung Li Pizza Rolls.

When Phillip was eight, his mother thought he had contracted a serious squash-related bladder disease—everytime she served it, he made frequent trips to the bathroom with his napkin.

When Phillip was nine, the whole family marvelled at his sudden taste for English peas. They were still marvelling three weeks later when they discovered the rancid air vent next to Phillip's chair.

When Phillip was 26, he was still exhibiting marked food preferences. Not only would he not eat leftovers, he wouldn't even touch my culinary masterpiece, tuna-noodle surprise.

"Let's go out to eat," he suggested one night as he walked in the kitchen door and took a disdainful sniff.

"I've already fixed dinner," I answered, "tuna-noodle surprise."

GAIL MICHAELS

"Like I said, let's go out to eat," he repeated, with excess emphasis on the "out."

"Now look, we both agreed to be more careful with our spending, and inflation has pushed restaurant prices sky-high. So I've fixed a nutritious supper for us to enjoy at home."

"You call that junk nutritious and enjoyable," he gagged. "It looks like a penicillin culture with mumps."

"You don't appreciate all my hard work," I cried. "You should eat it and like it. Think of all those poor, starving children in India."

"I am. They wouldn't eat this either," he retorted, poking the unusual concoction tentatively with his fork. "Can't I have a peanut butter and jelly sandwich instead?"

"If you don't eat my tuna-noodle surprise," I sniffed tearfully, "I'm not going to fix you anything else, not even dessert."

Painful memories spread over his face like sauce over noodles. "Don't treat me like a child!" he roared. "I wouldn't eat this stuff if I had to sit in front of it all night! I wouldn't eat it if I had to miss my favorite television program! I wouldn't eat it if you promised never to cook anything again!"

"Okay," I sighed. "I guess we'll just have it tomorrow night—as left-overs."

His skin turned the color of light chunk tuna. "Fill up my plate," he gulped. "Then will you please get me a VERY large glass of milk?"

As I turned toward the refrigerator, he snatched up a suspiciously heavy napkin and headed at full speed toward the bathroom.

Large Majority Of U.S. Public Favors Registering Of Guns

(Copyright 1975, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—A large majority of the American public, 67 per cent, favor the registration of all firearms, consistent with Gallup surveys over the last three decades which have shown similar majorities supporting such legislation.

Support for registration of guns (shotguns, rifles, and handguns) is found among all major segments of the population and among gunowners as well as non-gunowners.

More dramatically, a majority of persons living in high crime areas—large cities and in the East—would go so far as to ban the possession of handguns by anyone except the police or other authorized persons.

Persons living outside the East and in smaller communities, however, would oppose such a ban. Nationally, 55 per cent think there should NOT be a law forbidding the possession of handguns by private citizens, while 41 per cent say they would favor such a law.

Reasons Pro And Con

Among those who favor a ban on handguns is a 24-year-old female social worker from Los Angeles who questions the need for this type of gun: "Gun abuse is a growing problem that needs to be addressed. Access to guns by almost anyone is socially dangerous. The populace doesn't need handguns—they breed more trouble than they prevent."

A 25-year-old female teacher from Chicago had this to say: "Handguns are a menace to public safety and are more of a liability than an aid to a family when they are used as protection."

A retired public utility executive from Sarasota, Fla., opposes a ban on handguns: "Guns don't kill, people do. Enforcement of our laws, promptly and efficiently, is what is needed to curtail crime."

The findings show support for such handgun legislation highest among women, persons with a college background, Easterners, and persons living in the largest cities in the nation.

Here is the question dealing with registration:

"Do you favor or oppose the registration of all firearms?"

Here are the figures nationwide, by key groups and by gunowners and non-gunowners:

	Favor Registration	Oppose Registration	No Opinion
NATIONWIDE	67%	27%	6%
Men	61	33	6
Women	72	22	6
College background	73	22	5

Under 2,500	50	42	8
Gunowners	55	39	6
Non-gunowners	76	18	6

The following question was asked to determine attitudes toward making possession of pistols illegal:

"Here is a question about pistols and revolvers. Do you think there should or should not be a law which would forbid the possession of this type of gun except by the police and other authorized persons?"

Analysis of the findings show that outside the high crime areas—the East and the nation's largest cities—all major groups oppose the banning of handguns, with two exceptions. Among women and persons with a college background, opinion is closely divided.

Here are the findings:

	Should Be Law Forbidding Possession	Should Not Be No	No Opinion
NATIONWIDE	41%	55%	4%

Gun Ownership Highest In South

More than four in 10 households in the U.S. (44 per cent) have at least one gun—pistol, shotgun or rifle, as determined by interviews in 3,108 households.

The highest proportion of households have a shotgun (26 per cent) or rifle (also 26 per cent), followed by pistol or handgun (18 per cent).

Gun ownership is highest in the nation's smaller communities and in the South where a majority of residents (58 per cent) say there is some kind of gun in their homes.

It is interesting to note that gun ownership is considerably higher among whites than among non-whites.

strengthened for the performance of the duties which face us in the commonplace affairs of life.

"If we neglect or fail to perceive an opportunity, we must not cry over those precious chances which have passed by. There are always new sunrises and new opportunities which may lead to success," Albritton said.

Gwen Britt told the graduates that a new way of life is now taking shape for them as they leave a world of dependency.

"We will now have the total reponsibility of our disciplinary actions and our decisions. All the fun and games are not over, but will come in different forms and less frequent intervals," Miss Britt said. "It is a time to be serious about the course of our lives and to realize what is going to face us in the world. The goal we set will be accomplished only through our own integrity."

Senior Angela Ellis said, "We are builders of hope, conquerors of dreams and leaders of tomorrow.

"Let us consider what part education can play in helping us to work toward our goals. No one goes through life without learning something.

"As individuals we owe it to ourselves to try to continue learning and better our world," Miss Ellis said. "No matter what road we may choose, we must all remember education plays an important part in today's society."

Kenny Patterson told the audience that as citizens of the United States, they each have certain duties and obligations.

"We should lend our support to the government and obey its laws and regulations.

"This does not mean that we should accept all things as they now stand. As educated and responsible individuals we should make ourselves aware of the changes needed in our environment. Each of us should utilize any opportunity afforded us to make this world a better place in which to live." Patterson said.

"We all need to feel that we are making a contribution to society. Each of us can make this contribution." Patterson said. "We must not be content with accomplishments which concern only ourselves. The world is full of people, and if we are to make this world a better one, let us begin with the wants and needs of others."

The invocation was given by the Rev. Denmark Suggs and the benediction by the Rev. Kermit Wheeler. Special music was presented by the Farmville Central Band.

The presentation of awards was made by Principal Russ Cotton and the class gift was presented to the school by Richard Albritton. Cotton, Joby Griffin and Rev. Suggs presented the diplomas.

North Pitt High

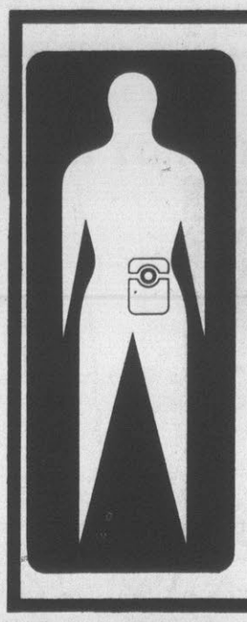

Teresa Ann Knight and Bruce Ray Tripp were the student speakers for commencement exercises at North Pitt Friday night.

Other participants in the event were Linda Sue Mayo, invocation; Velma Louise Johnson, benediction; Kim E. Manning, welcome; Marion Terris Barnes, farewell; Linnie Brown and Brenda Pollard, school gift.

Special music was presented under the direction of Mrs. Rebecca Norcott and Lewis Ayers. Fred Glisson played the base guitar.

North Pitt Principal Jim Allen and assistant principals Ernest McNair and Farney Moore presented diplomas to the graduating seniors. The tasseling ceremony was led by Linda Mayo and Velma Johnson.

Miss Knight's speech was entitled "Today Is Here" while Tripp spoke on "Tomorrow Is Yet To Come."

Some Recollections On Greenville's 1915 Graduating Class

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

"Because this is the sixtieth anniversary year of our class, I wish I had made plans for a reunion of as many members as could be brought together for a reunion," W.H. Booker recently stated in a letter to Superintendent of Greenville City Schools Glenn Cox.

Hooker, one of 13 graduates from the Greenville High School in the spring of 1915, now lives in Marietta, Georgia and is a publisher for the American Motor Carrier.

For the past ten years he has funded a $100 scholarship "to be presented to a worthy graduate." The scholarship this year marks the beginning of the second decade that Hooker has remembered his high school with an annual scholarship.

"In the class of 1915 there were ten young ladies and three young gentlemen," Hooker noted in his letter. Elbert Peel, a lawyer at Williamston, was high school principal and our teachers were Maude Upchurch, Audrey McLeod and, I believe, Eula Cox."

Referring to the class motto and the way history is proving it's aptness, Hooker noted "Our motto was taken from Virgil's Aenead—'Forsan et haec olim meminisse uivabit.' It translates as 'perhaps sometime in the future it will please us to remember these things,' which is most true in my case. We did have a fine group of girls and boys in the class and most of us appeared truly interested in learning."

Principal Remembers

The man who in 1915 was principal of the Greenville School was himself barely older than the seniors graduating 60 years ago. Now 80 years old, and a widower, Williamston lawyer Elbert S. Peel Sr. took time out from his office work to talk about students and conditions in Greenville just prior to the days of World War I.

"I'm sure Hooker is right in saying there were ten girls and three boys in the 1915 senior class," Peel said. "I remember them as being good students. The boys were hard put to make a good showing against all those girls.

"The Greenville School was on Evans Street, about 150 yards south of Five Points. I think it was where the Greenville Library is now."

Peele said that the school "had about 300 students in all grades. Greenville also had what was called a training school for young children over toward the teacher's college."

It was in September 1914 that Peel, following his graduation from UNC-Chapel Hill, became principal of the Greenville School. "At that time principals usually taught. I taught mostly in the 11th grade, which was then the senior grade, teaching classes in math and history.

"I was only 19 when I became the principal in 1914," Peel smiled, "but I'd had teaching experience before that and didn't worry about not being much older than some of the students. Anyway," he added, "they didn't give me or the teachers much trouble. They really were fine eager boys and girls." Peel mentioned earlier teaching stints during his student days at the Chapel Hill High School and in two summer schools in Martin County in the summers of 1912 and 1913.

"Greenville was a good place to live in back then," Peel said. "My school days there was before I married Fannie Myrt (Manning) so I boarded out. One of the places I lived at was Mrs. Quinnerly's boarding house not far from Biggs Drug Store. Another place I roomed in was Mrs. Ada Cherry's house near the shop run by Dr. Robert Humber's father."

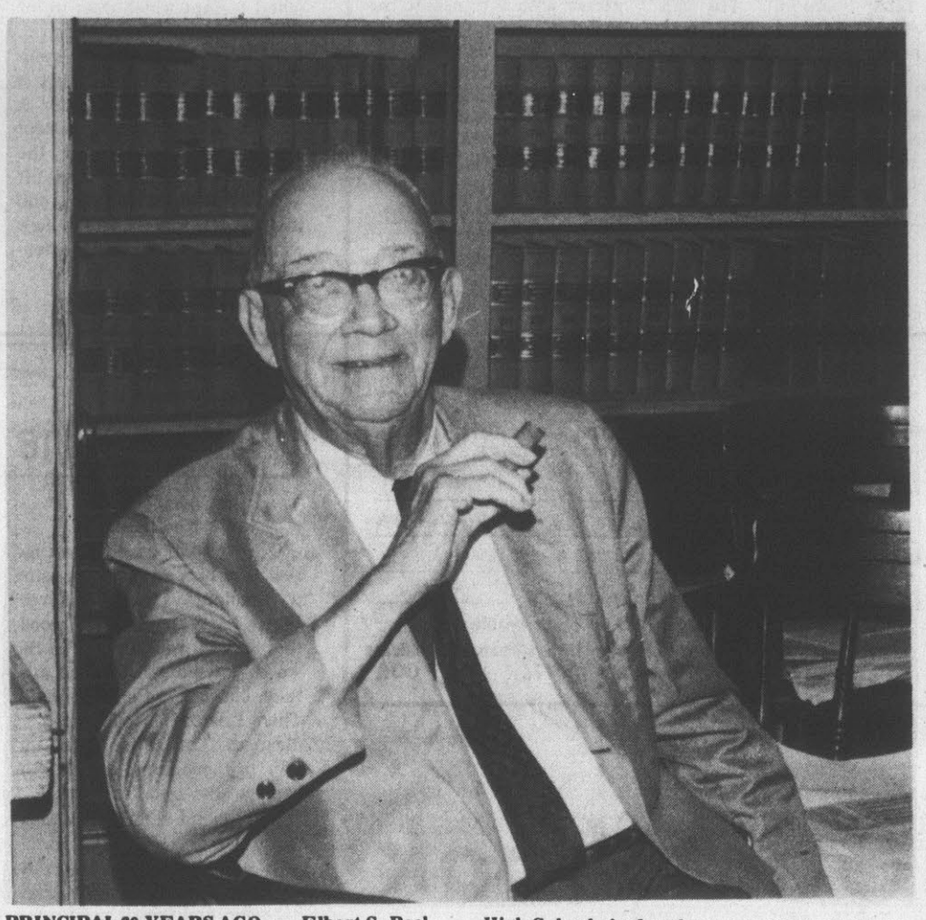

Peel's years as principal, three altogether, were cut short by the advent of World War I.

"I volunteered for the Army in April of 1917," Peel said, "on the Saturday after we declared war against Germany. I left Greenville on May 13, 1917 for Camp Oglethorpe, Georgia and then went to Camp Jackson, South Carolina for artillery training. Later I was sent overseas to serve in France."

Peel never returned to teaching. After the war, he studied law at Chapel Hill and was soon admitted to the bar.

"I remember those years in Greenville with pleasure," he said. "I enjoyed teaching and often wonder what has become of the people I taught. I know some of them are no longer living, but many are. Once in a while I see one of them."

Peel finished up a cigar he'd been chewing on. "I bought some new fish hooks today," he smiled. "Maybe I should go down to Gardner's Creek to do some fishing."

Hearings On Southern Bell

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A federal grand jury will begin hearings in Charlotte next Friday on possible violations of federal elections laws and other statutes by Southern Bell Telephone Co., according to published reports.

U.S. Attorney Keith Snyder of Asheville said Friday he could not comment on whether the grand jury would investigate the case.

The Charlotte Observer said Saturday that Snyder has obtained subpoenas for an unknown number of witnesses to appear before the investigative jury.

Predicts Shortage

RALEIGH (AP)—A top-level state official said Friday it was likely that all industries and most businesses in North Carolina would be hit hard by a shortage of natural gas next winter, and some homes would be affected.

The statement came as the Federal Power Commission reported in Washington that natural gas utilities estimated they would be almost 20 per cent short of gas needed to meet firm requirements over the next 12 months.

Methodists Adopt Budget

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N. C. (AP) — The Western North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church has adopted a budget of $5,917,000, for the coming year, representing an increase of about 3 per cent over the current outlay.

In other developments at Friday's session of the annual meeting, delegates also acted on a number of petitions from legislative committees.

Meanwhile, the more than 1,700 lay and clerical delegates from United Methodist congregations west of Greensboro have elected 19 of the 26 lay and clerical delegates who will represent the conference at meetings next year.

Vets May Not Get Benefit Checks

By IRA R. ALLEN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Up to a half million veterans on the GI bill could miss their checks this month because the Veterans Administration has run out of money to pay educational benefits while the House and Senate have been haggling over how much to spend for railroad bed improvements.

The VA Saturday confirmed a statement by Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., who told the Veterans of Foreign Wars in New York that thousands of veterans will not get their education benefits this week.

"This situation is intolerable," Wolff said, "because the government is failing to meet its obligation to young men and women who have served their nation in wartime."

VA spokesman Frank R. Hood said, "Education checks due 88,000 of approximately 1.4 million veterans have been temporarily delayed in the month of June." The value of the missed checks is $27 million.

He said the VA ran out of money because of Congress' failure to pass a $15 billion supplemental appropriation that includes the VA benefit money.

The House and Senate for weeks have been at odds on the appropriations bill —the House is expected to deal with it again Monday.

Rose High Graduation...

"I believe," he concluded, "that today's graduates, here and across the nation, are capable of reviving the sagging American spirit. It is time for the idealistic outlook to meet the realistic . . . we must be capable of conquering world grief with overwhelming friendship."

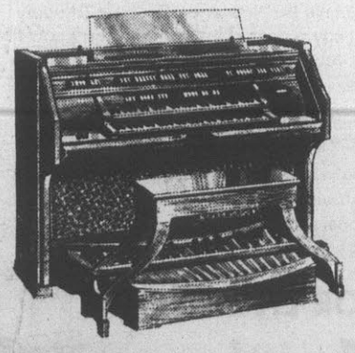

In brief remarks before presenting the 1975 graduation class, Superintendent Glenn Cox said "It is evident here tonight that students are concerned about individualized education. We have come a long way along the road of reaching ideals we have espoused. . .of education according to the needs, desires, and abilities of the individual student."

The 1975 graduation ceremony opened with the Rose High Band playing the familiar Elgar processional "Pomp and Circumstance." Alexander Wilcox gave the invocation, and Tommy Joe Payne II introduced the six student speakers.

Diplomas were awarded by Chairman of the Greenville City School Board Henry Dunn and Rose High principal Robert J. Alligood. Kimberly Kay Knight was in charge of the tassel ceremony.

How to add $50,000 to your retirement savings without even trying

The result? A build-up of your retirement savings by an extra $40,000, $50,000 . . . even more!

The Individual Retirement Account makes it possible . . . and we make it easy, with our Individual Retirement Savings Account—the IRSA.

You may save up to $1500 or 15% of your wages, whichever is less, each year. For Federal income tax purposes, contributions to your IRSA are fully deductible from gross income, and you may make this deduction even though you do not itemize other deductions.

The interest your savings earn is also tax-deferred until retirement, when your exemptions will be higher and your tax bracket lower. Compounding of the interest over the years generates more dollars, to build a retirement fund that is tens of thousands of dollars more than would be possible with taxed dollars. The table shows you just how much more you can accumulate.

The sooner you start the sooner you save tax dollars, so don't delay. Phone us for complete information and our free folder explaining the IRSA Plan, or use the convenient coupon. Act today!

TUDOR SPLIT LEVEL USES SPACE EFFICIENTLY

Huntleigh

Upper level - 1,183 sq. ft.
Lower level - 681
Garage-498 Basement-480

By Jerry Bishop

Setting three separate living areas on different levels results in effective zoning and efficient space usage in this Tudor - inspired split level. Living and family room levels account for only 1863 sq. ft. of living area, but their arrangement creates space and preserves privacy for a variety of family activities.

On the entry level, living room, dining room, and kitchen become a dining and entertaining center. Since an expansive family room is provided, the living room may be reserved for entertaining, and the adjoining dining room merits sliding glass doors to the terrace. The kitchen is compact and features an entry to the double garage.

Steps up from the main living area is the sleeping level comprising three bedrooms and two full baths. Clustering the bedrooms on their own levels zones the area for maximum quiet, and the master bedroom is favored with a private bath.

The 26-foot family room, a few steps down from the living room, becomes the focus of the design. Brightened by a cozy wood-burning fireplace, the family room includes a closet for toys and games and borders a utility room complete with laundry and half bath.

Also located on the family room level is a closeted den, adaptable to use as a library, television room, or extra bedroom. The den might also serve as a home office, since it is easily reached from the entry.

Besides the three living levels, this well-planned design also offers a sizable basement for storage and hobbies and a large double garage with entrances to the rear yard and kitchen.

The Huntleigh, a comfortable three bedroom split level, is enriched by its Tudor - inspired facade and will retain its appeal and increase its resale value over the years.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A kit for fixing toilet flush valve leakage.

Manufacturer's claim — That the combination flapper and stainless steel seat can be installed without tools and without removing the tank from the toilet bowl ... that the seat is mounted directly onto the existing flush valve seat with a patented sealant which uses water as a catalyst for curing ... that the sealant remains resilient under water, providing a permanent watertight seal ... that the flapper is always kept in proper alignment with the valve seat and eliminates lift wires in the tank water ... and that the chain is adjustable to a wide variety of lengths, fastening with a stainless steel clip to the tank trip lever.

THE PRODUCT — An all-weather multipurpose lubricant.

Manufacturer's claim — That the lubricant can be applied to almost any surface and produces a sliding action on zippers, bearings, tools, machines, windows, doors, musical instruments and hundreds of other items ... that, since the product can be used in temperatures ranging from 20 degrees below zero to 450 degrees Fahrenheit, it can be used on oven and freezer racks and trays ... that it is not affected by salt water, rain or snow and thus is useful for reducing friction and stickiness in fishing reels, rifle bolts, skis and cycle chains ... that the lubricant fills the pits of metal and other surfaces and stays in place.

THE PRODUCT — A "thermal break" extruded aluminum window.

Manufacturer's claim — That the four-track, combination prime and storm window has removable sash and reduces the heat losses associated with nonthermalized prime windows ... that it is designed to reduce frame condensation to practically zero ... that its thermal factor rating of 62 under new thermal standard adopted by the Federal Housing Administration qualifies it for use throughout cold and hot climates ... and that a unique feature in the window is a new insulating material that provides a thermal break in the unitizing aluminum frame.

Manufacturer's claim — That the kit comes in four woodgrain reproductions ... that it includes ten 16' by 32' tongue-and-groove planks, adhesive, clips and nails, two 6' 2" matching chair rail moldings and installation instructions ... that the precut paneling and molding permits even an inexperienced do-it-yourselfer to install the wainscot in about the same time it would take him to cut the paneling from standard 4' by 8' sheets ... and that the prefinished hardboard paneling can be used in heavy traffic areas because it can be damp-wiped clean quickly.

(Thirty-five do-it-yourself problems are handled in Andy Lang's helpful handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.

(The flush valve kit is manufactured by Fluidmaster Inc., 1800 Via Burton, Anaheim, Calif. 92805; the lubricant by WonderGlide Lube Products, 170 Old Country Rd., Mineola, N.Y. 11501; the aluminum window by Capitol Products Corp., Mechanicsburg, Pa., and the wainscot kit by Marlite, Masonite Corp., Dover, Ohio 44622.)

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I stripped down an old bedroom bureau recently, using a regular varnish remover. When I got to the bare wood, there was a reddish cast to the wood. I tried sanding the surface, but it didn't seem to help. Then I used various types of cleaners, but nothing did the job. Is there some way I can remove the reddish tint so I can go ahead with the refinishing?

A. — It appears likely that the coloring is that of the original stain and that it penetrated so deeply into the wood that it can no longer be removed by taking off part of the surface. The best solution is to bleach the wood. Use one of the bleaches sold in hardware and paint stores for the specific purpose of bleaching wood. Be sure to follow the instructions carefully, particularly the part about how to rinse the wood surface after the bleaching has been completed.

Q. — I gave two coats of shellac to a piece of unfinished furniture. A short time later — the same day — the furniture developed a kind of cloudy appearance. I haven't done anything since, because I do not want to make it worse. I know about not using old shellac, so I purchased brand new shellac just for this project. What caused this and how can I correct it?

A. — You probably applied the shellac on a day when the humidity was very high. Wipe off the surface of the wood with a clean cloth dipped in denatured alcohol. This time be sure to apply the shellac in a room where there is no high humidity.

Q. — I made some outdoor furniture last year. I used a water-resistant glue, but some of the joints now are not as tight as they used to be. While it is true that we leave the furniture outside all year round, I did not think that the weather would affect the glue. Can you explain this?

A. — Yes. When glued joints are to be exposed to the weather, it is imperative that a waterproof glue be used. A water-resistant glue will hold up well in high-moisture areas, but where the furniture is not used indoors, the adhesive must be waterproof. It should say waterproof on the container.

(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, stain, bleach, rubbing compounds, etc., are explained in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 30 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N. Y. 11743.)

Moving? There Is Guidebook

By DOROTHEA BROOKS
United Press Interntional

The American home owner is a do-it-yourselfer, whether by choice or necessity.

Still, it often is surprising to find some of the things he does himself —and in what numbers.

Take moving for instance. If past performance is any guide, one family in five, or nearly 13 million, will move this year, about two-thirds of them between Memorial Day and Labor Day.

Seventy-six per cent of these moves will be do-it-yourself, about half with rental equipment, the others using owned or borrowed equipment or else liquidating their household goods.

The figures come from the people at U-Haul Rental system, Phoenix, Ariz., who have all sorts of information on why and how people move. They say they move more people than any other company in the industry, with 50,000 rental trucks, 115,000 trailers and all sorts of packing cases, furniture pads and hand trucks in 8,000 cities and towns.

They have all sorts of tips, too, for the family that does move itself, in a handy little guide, complete with checklists for do-it-yourself estimating of equipment needed. The list gives the cubic footage of just about any household item — from one cubic foot for a fan or card table to 67 cubic feet for a king-sized bed.

To the possibly reluctant do-it-yourselfer the first question that comes to mind is "Can I do it, safely, without damage to my goods or myself? Can I drive the equipment?" Obviously, the answer for any family depends on individual circumstances.

But for the 25-44 age group which U-Haul says is the one served by the do-it-yourself moving industry, the answer generally is yes. The industry has an enviable safety record —both for driving and claims for damage to goods. Apparently, people moving themselves exercise extra caution.

Among its tips to movers, no matter how they're making the move, U-Haul recommends:

Make your moving arrangements as far in advance as possible. Avoid the peak season and avoid weekends if you can.

Move only those items you really need or want. Sell, donate to a local charity or discard everything else.

In packing, use only sturdy cartons with closable tops, preferably of uniform size since they are easier to pack and stack.

Wrap glassware loosely with clean paper and place in carton. Stemware requires extra paper and care. Cartons with dividers are helpful. Wrap dishes individuaply in clean paper and stack on edge in a carton. Nest bowls and cups. Fill empty pockets with crumpled paper or towels. Don't pack too many dishes in one box.

In packing books, alternate direction of spines and pack flut. Pack in small boxes. Books are heavy.

Remove light bulbs and wrap lamps individually in paper, towels, blankets or furniture pads. Wrap shades individually in clean paper, then stack and place in carton.

In packing pictures and mirrors cut cardboard to fit front and back and tie in place. Then wrap in blankets or furniture pads. Load carefully; don't put anything heavy on top.

Have rugs and drapes cleaned before moving. Leave rug rolled for easy transport. Leave drapes in plastic bags and hang in wardrobe carton. if move is local, have cleaned items delivered to new address.

Have clothes washed or cleaned just before moving. Hang garments in wardrobe carton. Pack rest in dressers, trunks, chests or similar furniture.

For appliances, call dealers for specific instructions on moving. Generally, air out refrigerator and freezer 24 hours before moving and place small block in door to permit air circulation and prevent mildew and odor. Tie or tape stove burners in place or pack separately. brace washing machine tub to prevent bumping by padding space between tub and sidewalls.

Discard all inflammables — cans of paint, alcohol, cleaning solvent, greasy rags or mops, lighter fluid, aerosol pressure cans, propane torches. Remove gasoline from lawn mower, camp stoves and lanterns.

Keep handy to pack last the bedroom and bath items, kitchen ware, clothing, some favorite toys for the youngsters and other things you'll want immediately. Include in this a selection of hand tools — hammer, screwdriver, pliers, wrench, you may need in setting up new home.

Guide is available free. Address: Moving Guide, P.O. Box 21503, Phoenix, Ariz. 85036.

Early Use Of Prefabrication

NEW HARMONY, Ind. (AP) — Perhaps the earliest examples of prefabricated housing in America were constructed in this small southwestern Indiana community in 1814.

Historic New Harmony's founders, a group of German Lutheran separatists called the Harmonists, built all of their houses from standardized parts which were numbered for quick assembly. The Harmonists also developed effective "Dutch biscuit" insulation, made by wrapping straw and mud around pieces of wood. This insulation continues to this day, to keep those houses — which have been preserved and restored in the community — both warm in the winter and cool in the summer.

Holoscan Checks On Credit Card Rating

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — The first holographic memory unit which can check a credit card holder's rating within three seconds is now being produced by a firm here.

"Airline ticketing operations, gasoline companies and any retail operations that have their own credit or other credit cards coming across the counter can use the device," said James J. Wilson.

Wilson, president of Optical Data Systems, Inc., which holds the first patent granted such a device, said several international hotel chains are now using the firm's holoscan 300 memory unit.

Several Las Vegas gambling casinos have also installed the credit card checking device. The casinos can tell if a gambler's ccedit is good —and can even make special notations that tell how large a marker the gambler is good for.

The laser beam at the heart of the device makes fast, accurate scanning possible. The system is miniaturized and permits 350,000 to 700,000 credit ratings to be put on a 30-foot strip of 35 millimeter film.

If a customer were to ask for lodging at one of the hotels using the system, the clerk would punch the credit card's number into a keyboard.

"Within three seconds the memory unit would search a file to see if your card had been designated a bad credit risk," Wilson said.

"If your card number is not in the memory, the clerk gets a 'thumbs up' and you proceed with the checking in ceremonies."

However, should your card be included in the file, the clerk would get a negative response and refuse to accept the card.

Gardening Questions

Q. Is there anything better than Benlate or Acti-dion for mildew on roses? (R.E., Raleigh)

A. Another good fungicide for powdery mildew is Karathane. Sulfur can also be used if temperature does not exceed 90 degrees. Powdery mildew can be difficult to control in shaded area and on new, tender, succulent growth during periods of humid weather. Liquid lime sulfur can also be used as a dormant spray to reduce overwintering of powdery mildew on the stems. (R.K. Jones, extension plant pathologist)

Q. Will ivy growing in the tops of trees kill them? (Mrs. C.G., Siler City)

A. Ivy seldom kills trees upon which it grows because it is not parasitic. It will shade the leaves of the tree, however, thereby reducing its vigor. (Fred Whitfield, extension forester)

Q. What is the best green manure crop that we can plant this spring for turning under in August? (C.P., Hillsborough)

A Soybeans or southern peas (cowpeas) will make a lot of top growth to turn under in August. The more you turn under, the more positive the effect. (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

Q. Do you recommend keeping one or more colonies of bees to help pollinate a half-acre garden? (B.M., Kernersville)

A. Yes, I am sure that added bees in an area would improve the yield and quality of such crops as cucumbers, strawberries, blueberries, and apples. Do not locate the bees where they will be a nuisance to neighbors. If you do get stung, remove the barbed stinger with your fingernail or a knife. Then apply household ammonia or your favorite remedy to the wound. (H.E. Scott, extension entomologist)

MOTIVATIONS FOR BUYING

Strong forces are keeping the single home market very much alive despite the increasing price trend over the past several years. A probe of the motivations behind current sales has found that buyers are convinced that home ownership is worth the financial sacrifice for environmental reasons. A better place for their children to live and the farther from the city the better.

A second powerful influence is inflation. Buyers are convinced that the housing inventory is too short to see any significant over supply or reduction in value in their lifetime.

Another influence, not to be ignored, is retirement. In many cases, home ownership offers the only hope to enter retirement in a condition other than poverty. Since Social Security was designed as a supplement and not sufficient to live on, a free and clear home, or the investment potential of home equity, provides a solid base for retirement.

Churchmen Cling To Secrecy

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Secrecy is a declining practice in the churches. They've become increasingly open about their official discussions, decisions and operations. But just as in government, concealment — and at times deceptions — still occur.

In some cases, there are closed meetings, confidential reports, hidden agendas, unrevealed actions.

Yet the churches, like other public and governmental institutions, represent people, are supported by the people's money and the people consequently are entitled to know what goes on, says Richard N. Ostling, president of the Religion Newswriters Association.

While the churches generally affirm that principle, he writes in a book issued by Harper and Row, "Secrecy in the Church," they sometimes don't live up to it. Take some recent examples:

—Roman Catholic bishops, at their annual meeting last fall, acted in closed session on a matter of obvious concern both to church members and the public, but afterward wouldn't reveal it. Reporters queried usually candid friends among them, but they wouldn't tell. Their then president, John Cardinal Krol, of Philadelphia, had admonished them to silence.

Finally, however, through one bishop who believed in leveling with the people on an action involving them, the facts were brought out: A committee had been authorized to raise questions with congressional committees to confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller as vice president because of his pro-abortion stand. Only after newsmen dug it out, through a lone bishop against hiding it, was an action on a clearly public issue officially acknowledged.

—In another case, the interdenominational relief agency supported by most major Protestant and Orthodox churches, Church World Service, recently was involved in a policy controversy over whether it should oppose oppressive governing systems overseas as well as doing direct relief work.

An emergency meeting of its 30-member executive board met to consider the dispute, but reporters were barred and official statements afterward were ambiguous. Only later through individual sources was it determined — on a matter of keen church-member concern — that the agency would stick solely to relief-rehabilitation work and avoid partisan conduct about foreign social systems.

"There is nothing hidden but it must be disclosed ... " Jesus said.

Ostling, the brainy, gentlemannered religion editor of Time magazine, cites this principle in his coolly documented study and adds: "The Christian church has a special claim to be champion of the truth, and the truth is without value if no one knows it."

Emphasizing that church leaders are "accountable to their members," he observes: "Secrecy is based upon a low opinion of the public and ultimately of the individual man."

NO RECOURSE

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — An Argentine court has ruled that a person who crosses a street outside a marked pedestrian crossing zone has no legal recourse if struck by a vehicle.

The court overturned a judge's ruling granting damages to Segismundo Haar, 73, who was struck by a pickup truck driven by Ignacio Zaraboso.

"The pedestrian who crosses (the street) outside the marked zone is the only person legally responsible for the accident," the court said, setting aside the damage payment.

BISHOP OF OXFORD OFFERS CRITICISMS

OXFORD, England (AP) — The Church of England has for years made marriage too easy and divorce too difficult, says the Bishop of Oxford, the Right Rev. Kenneth Woollcombe. He told a churchmen's conference that there was inadequate spiritual preparation for those about to be married and for many years the church had been "obsessed" with divorce.

Doctors Run Dance Band For Relaxing

By ANN HELLMUTH
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Maynard Taylor and Joe de Cenzo are two Miami doctors who unwind from the pressures of a hard day in hospital operating rooms by running a successful dance band.

Taylor, 50, a prominent cardiac surgeon, is the band's guitarist and singer while De Cenzo, 45, an obstetrician and gynecologist, plays the tenor sax and clarinet.

"I don't play golf, I don't have a boat, so this is my way of getting out and relaxing," Taylor said. "Music is a tremendous medium of expression and you learn a great deal by being involved with music."

Since the two first formed The Doctors' band 14 years ago they have played at hundreds of parties and conventions, donating all earnings to charity.

"At first we were all doctors," De Cenzo said. "But now we have one dental lab technician, a building contractor, two real estate brokers and an insurance broker."

"I worked my way through college in Halifax, Nova Scotia, by singing with bands," Taylor said. "When we formed the group we decided to play a great variety of music, and we do everything from the Big Band era to hard rock."

De Cenzo trained in New Orleans and also helped pay for his studies by playing with musical groups.

One drawback to being a doctor as well as a musician, Taylor said, is that guests at parties sometimes try to discuss their medical problems.

"We meet many of our patients at these functions," he added. "And some of them try and discuss their aches and pains with us between musical numbers."

De Cenzo once found himself going to the aid of a partygoer who was having a miscarriage.

And Taylor said he had sometimes been late for musical engagements "because I've had to go and put in a pacemaker prior to playing."

The playhouse, now in its 29th year of operation, will begin the season with "The Sound of Music," a musical, July 2-5; followed by "Story Theatre," based on stories from Aesop's Fables, July 9-12; "Little Women," a well-known classic, July 16-19; "Come Blow Your Horn," a comedy, July 23-26; "Harvey," another comedy, July 30-Aug. 2; "Annie Get Your Gun," a western musical, Aug. 6-9.

The Parkway Playhouse was founded in 1946 as an offshoot of the now-defunct Burnsville School of the Arts. From the beginning, it was affiliated with the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. In addition to the six plays planned at Parkway this season, Burnsville also will be host to the annual Burnsville Arts and Crafts Festival Aug. 1-2.

Fresh Views On Tar Heel Colonial Life

Society In Colonial North Carolina. By Alan D. Watson, Raleigh. N.C. Dept. of Cultural Resources, Div. of Archives and History. 93 pps, illustrated, $1.00.

It's time again to think about light-weight, easy to pack and easy to read fare to take along on that summer vacation or a week-end trip.

For an economical $1.00, any reader interested in a good sampling of early North Carolina will find Dlan Watson's Society in Colonial North Carolina ideal fare.

Divided into seven chapters, this small book is perfect bedside or hammock reading, informative and factual, but written in a comfortable reading style, unencumbered by footnotes.

The seven chapters are titled—Settlement; Character and Class; Life-style; Religion; Transportation and Communication; Town Life; and Conclusion. The chapter on Life-style is further divided into areas of the colonial household; education; recreation, health, marriage, and death.

For such a small book, there's a surprising amount of information packed into it—in text and in photographs. The six dozen or so photographs plus a dozen maps and sketches are admirably reproduced—and include pictures and charts from new and old sources.

Watson's writing instructs and entertains. In his extensive article on the colonial household, for example, he shows that early households were not always the neat, Spartan affairs modern museums might lead us to think of as typical—"The clutter outside the house under sheds or lean-tos and in barns or small outbuildings was as great as that found inside," Watson writes. "Saddles, bridles, and halters hung from the walls as did reaphooks, scythes, and pieces of rope. Horse collars and hames awaited use, while various tubs, pails, baskets, and casks occupied much space. . ."

And a note on travel in eastern North Carolina in the colonial era. . . . ."A traveler once commented that 'Nothing can be more dreary, meloncholy and uncomfortable than the almost perpetual solitary dreary pines, sandy barrens, and dismal swamps' throughout eastern North Carolina. That tiresome, unvaried scene was compounded by frightening encounters with numerous snakes and pesky mosquitoes."

The example chosen here might lead a prospective reader to conclude there was little to commend North Carolina as a good place to live in its early days. But Watson writes in a fully-rounded perspective, showing both the best and the seldom told more human elements as recorded in early records.

The beauty of this little book is that the author makes early North Carolina somehow seem much more a place where people lived and exhibited the same basic shortcomings and flaws then as today. History thus becomes personal.

Society in Colonial North Carolina is a fascinating sampler of people and places—a lion's share of it in coastal North Carolina. For a vacation take along special, put it on top of your list.

Folk Art Show On View At N.C. Museum Of Art

Folk art—independent and individualistic in expression—will go on display today at the North Carolina Museum of Art.

The exhibit comes from the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Collection in Williamsburg, Va., and has been organized with the assistance of the High Museum of Art, Atlanta.

Titled "Folk Art in America: A Living Tradition," the exhibition consists of more than 100 items ranging from primitive portraits to weathervanes to illuminated family birth certificates.

The majority are the product of unschooled amateur artists and craftsmen whose naivete adds a particular charm to their work today.

Most of the art comes from the Northeast. Very few documented examples of 18th and 19th century folk art have been found in the South.

One reason is that students and collectors have scoured Northern and also Midwestern states but have neglected the South.

Other explanations for the comparative dearth of Southern material are geographic and economic in nature.

The agrarian nature of the Southern economy meant that populous areas where the craftsmen could operate were fewer and farther apart than in the North.

Then too most of the folk artists were members of the middle class who bartered, sold or gave their work to their peers.

In the South the middle class was considerably smaller. Wealthy plantation owners could afford and often preferred to patronize immigrant European and American academic artists.

One of the hopes of the organizers of the current show, which is being seen in seven Southern cities, is that it will encourage people to search their attics and storage areas for possible examples of forgotten Southern folk art.

The show is not devoid of Southern work, however. Included are a carving, "The Fiddler," by Alexander McKillop, who did the work about 50 years ago in Balfour, N.C., and a watercolor, "South East View of Greenville, S.C.," signed by Joshua Tucker and dated about 1800.

The numerous paintings in the exhibition ecompasss portraits, landscapes and still lifes.

Needle work and weaving are represented by quilts, coverlets and samplers, along with frakturs and other ornate examples of fine penmanship.

Three-dimensional figures take the form of weathervanes, decoys, ship figureheads and carousel animals, while sculptures include skunks, horses, snakes, fishes, frogs, birds and people.

On the opening day three films on folk art painters will be shown at 3 p.m. in the Flemish Galleries.

Beatrix T. Rumford, director of the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Collection, will lecture at 3 p.m. on the following Sunday, June 15.

The exhibit will be on display through July 13.

Exhibition Of Photographs Opens At Art Center Today

. . . .an Oriental child

. . . .a rural scene and a rose opening

Poppies and sunsets, old wood and red signs, Arabian men and Oriental children, fire plugs and ferns, Hope House and anemones, dancers and a young pipe smoker, harbor scenes and a close-up view of a praying mantis—these are all part of a marvelous panorama going on view this afternoon at the Greenville Art Center.

The occasion is an exhibition of photography by the ten members of East Carolina Camera Club. A reception is being held from 3 to 5 p.m. today, to which the public is invited.

The ten photographers displaying their work are Ennis Chestang, Robert Cramer, Walter Faulkner, Ray Jones, Oscar Moore, James Rees, Ralph Steele, Jack Thornton, Tilton Willcox, and Louis Zincone. Zincone is president of the club. Chairmen for installation of the show are Ray Jones and James Reese.

As the final show of the 1974-75 season, this colorful look at small and big beauties of the world is a cheerful summer note. Here are fine studies of faces aged with wrinkles; the freshness of children's happy faces; nature in the perfection of a rose or the imperfection of a warped dead tree sekleton.

Eastern North Carolina is extensively represented in beach and harbor views during all seasons, in muted twilight scenes and brilliant blaze of sand.

This is the first all-photographic show of this scope on view in Greenville for some time, and will appeal to people of all ages. Try to see it before it ends on June 25.

Two Artists Featured At EEii's Today

Two craftsmen, Edward M. Jones and Leon H. Harkins, both with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, will be featured at EEii's little Korners of the world in Belhaven today 2:00 to 5:00 p.m.

The exhibit includes wood carvings and a demonstration of carving techniques by Leon Harkins, as well as a photography exhibit and a slide presentation of wildflowers by Edward Jones. Harkins will carve and assist those who wish to try their hand at sculpturing in wood. Jones will identify and discuss woodland flowers, mushrooms, lichen, and other life from the forest floor depicted in his photographs.

The exhibit will have a backdrop of Grecian folk art in fabrics design, courtesy of Miss Mary Costulis. Also there will be a garden show of art by local youth who are students of Mrs. Frank Calfee.

Jones lives in Tarboro with his family, who share his hobby. Many of his photographs have used in slide sets throughout North Carolina for educational and entertainment programs. Prints of his work have been displayed in Raleigh at the North Carolina Wildlife Show. He is a hardwood management specialist.

School's out! Reading's In!

Beverly Cleary and Carolyn Haywood fans will be pleased to know that each of these authors has a new book. When Carolyn Haywood's Eddie finds out his family is moving, he is taken by surprise. He manages to get his parents to allow him to take along all his valuable collectables. Some of them, such as his cigar-store wooden Indian help him earn an immediate reputation as an exciting person. Eddie finds that moving is not a bad experience for him. His philosophy is, every time you move, you get a new bunch of friends. Read about Eddie's move in Eddie's Valuable Property.

Beverly Cleary's Ramona of Ramona the Pest is now old enough for first grade. Bravely she goes, feeling very grown-up. But all is not well. Mrs. Griggs, her teacher, does not understand children who are different and Ramona is certainly different! Ramona's father says she has "spunk". Her teacher calls it "lack of self-control." In a very funny book, Ramona tries to hold her own against adult hostility. Join her in Ramona the Brave.

Nina finds herself in an unusual predicament when she enters seventh grade. Her parents are divorced. Her father has remarried. Suddenly Nina finds herself face-to-face with her father's new wife. The new wife is Nina's math teacher. Nina cannot believe her bad fortune. She can't turn to the school administration for help. She'd rather die than have her family situation become the topic of conversation in the teacher's lounge. She can't turn to her mother. Her mother would surely make a big scene, embarrassing Nina in front of her friends. Her father is not a good choice either. He would tell her to be "mature," or something like that. Nina decides she must work it out for herself. Her friends all want to get into the act by giving the teacher the business. Nina has a tough time, but gradually begins to adjust to the isutation, making the best of it. Her story is told in a A Smart Kid Like You by Stella Pevsner.

People who saw the excerpts in the Readers Digest from Smashed Potatoes edited by Jane G. Martel will be pleased to know that the entire book is available in the Children's Library. Smashed Potatoes is a cookbook by children in an elementary school. Recipies include ingredients and complete directions for cooking. They are highly entertaining as this example from the instructions on hot dogs will show.

"1 package of hot dogs that has a lot in it; 3 whole packages of spinach—so that we have 2 left over for 2 more nights; 1 whole package of hot dog buns (you can use bread if you don't have any—it tastes just as good to my mother but not to me); Put the hot dogs on a greasy pan. Cook it until your mother puts the silverware on."

Butch Cassidy's Sister Says He Had A Long Life

By PETER GILLINS

ROBBERS ROOST, Utah (UPI) — Outlaw Butch Cassidy is long since dead. But nobody agrees on how the king of the Wild Bunch met his end—in a bloody Bolivian gun battle, or with his boots off in bed.

Popular history and Pinkerton Detective files say that in 1909 the Utah-born train robber shot his badly wounded sidekick, the Sundance Kid, and then committed suicide rather than be captured by army troops after a desperate shootout in San Vicente, Bolivia.

But many old timers who knew him, including his 91-year-old sister, say he returned to the United States, visited them, and lived to a ripe old age.

Cassidy, whose real name was Robert LeRoy Parker, was mostly a local folkhero before release a half dozen years ago of the Paul Newman-Robert Redford movie "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

The movie made Cassidy as famous as Jesse James and the Younger brothers. It also prompted a rash of articles and books about the bandit and renewed an old dispute surrounding the circumstances of his death.

The film followed the official version of Butch's last showdown, provided by Pinkerton agents who trailed the outlaw as he robbed banks and trains in a dozen Western states.

Cassidy was wanted for at least 16 major bank and train robberies when Pinkerton men finally hounded him out of the country in 1902 along with Harry Longabaugh, alias the Sundance Kid, and Longabaugh's girl friend, Etta Place.

The trio set up a ranch in Argentina, but the detectives soon found them and the bandits fled north, resuming a life of crime. The Pinkerton file ends with the Bolivian shootout.

But Lula Parker Betenson, the outlaw's sister who still lives near the Parker Ranch in Circleville, Utah, insists "Butch wasn't killed in South America. He came back to this country and lived a good many years."

She recalls a visit by Butch to the family home in 1925, 16 years after his supposed death:

"A new black Ford drove up and a man got out. The man walked across the field toward Mark (another brother). As he came near, his face broke into a characteristic Parker grin.

"At first Mark was puzzled. He studied the face and suddenly realized it could be but one person—Bob Parker."

Parker or Cassidy was the last of the old-time cowboy bandits of the Wild West, bridging a gap between the post-Civil War outlawry of the James brothers and other midwestern gangs and the gangsters of the early 20th Century.

He was born April 13, 1866, in Beaver, Utah, the oldest child of poor Mormon settlers from England. The family moved a short time later to nearby Circleville where Butch grew up, slowly drifting away from the Mormon religion.

In Circleville, he came under the influence of some local outlaws, including a rustler named Mike Cassidy whose name Parker borrowed years later when he was running from the law.

He fled Utah at age 18 after a cattle rustling episode and drifted to Colorado where he joined other young toughs, many of them ex-Mormons, who later became ringleaders of the Wild Bunch.

The Wild Bunch was a loose confederation of outlaw gangs, involving several hundred men over the years, according to Kerry Ross Boren, Western historian and president of the National Association and Center for Outlaw and Lawman History.

In the 1890s, the gangs terrorized an area of the West running from Canada to Mexico and from the Dakotas to Oregon and Washington. They rustled cattle and robbed banks, trains and mine payroll offices.

Rewards for Cassidy totaled nearly $100,000 at the height of his career, considerably more than the usual loot from any of his robberies, Boren says.

Cassidy became the leader of the Wild Bunch through his cunning in planning jobs and getaways. He was caught only once and spent 18 months in prison for rustling.

He is credited with organizing the "outlaw trail", an escape system consisting of relay stations at friendly ranches stretching from Canada to Mexico, weaving back and forth across the borders of eight states, a route difficult for lawmen to follow.

"The bandits would ride into a ranch, trade their tired mounts for fresh horses and leave the rancher a $20 gold piece in a tobacco can nailed to the corral," Boren said. "The rancher would get his horses back when the next bunch of bandits rode back from the other direction, plus more money. He often made a better living supplying horses than he did ranching."

Banks, trains and payrolls remained Butch's favorite targets when he moved to South America, and it was after holding up the Arramayo Mine payroll in 1909 that he and Sundance were supposedly trapped by the Bolivian army.

But Boren says the shootout never happened and suspects the Pinkerton agents cooked it up to clear their files and avoid "a failure."

The historian says the Pinkerton account was actually based on another shootout in Mercedes, Uruguay, in 1911, in which two other American bandits were killed.

Boren says the evidence is overwhelming that Butch returned to the United States. He says he knows of at least 150 people who either personally saw Butch after 1909 or had close friends or relatives who did.

Many of the sightings occurred in the 1930s when the outlaw supposedly returned to Wyoming and Utah to dig for loot he buried three decades earlier.

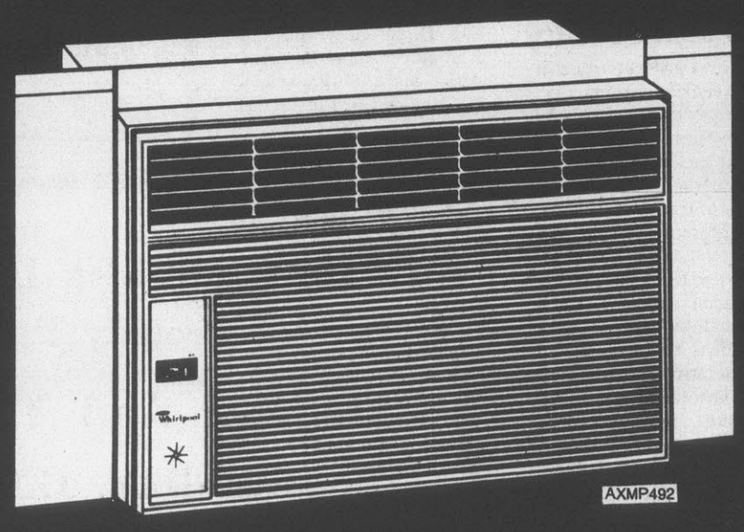

"In our part of the country, it was taken for granted that he was alive," said Boren, whose grandfather was closely associated with many members of the Wild Bunch. "It was only on the literary market that there was any argument that he was dead."

Mrs. Betenson recalled the outlaw's return in a new book called "Butch Cassidy—My Brother."

She said Butch, then using the name Bob Parks, told the family he had gone straight since his reported death, and had lived in Mexico, Europe and Alaska. He also told of visiting Sundance and Etta Place in Mexico City.

Tar Heels Hang On For First Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The University of North Carolina pushed over an unearned run in the 12th inning last night to cap a rally from as far behind as 5-1 and take a 6-5 victory over the East Carolina Pirates.

It was the opening game for both teams in the North Carolina Summer Collegiate League.

Carolina, which had been held to only one hit by Dean Reavis, rallied for three in the seventh, then got the tieing run in the ninth. Poor baserunning took the Bucs out of two chances to put the game away during the first two extra innings, then in the 12th, Carolina scored after the runner had seemingly been cleanly picked off.

Bernie Menapace led off the top of the 12th for the Tar Heels, singling to left field. Buc catcher Howard McCullough caught Menapace off first, however, but his throw to the bag, while in plenty of time, was low and bounced over Robert Brinkley, allowing Menapace to go to second. Early Jones sacrificed him to third, and Laird Williams singled him in.

The Bucs had sailed along with little trouble until the seventh, as the Tar Heels got only one hit off starter Reavis. The first Heel run came in the third, as Mike Fox walked to open the frame. He stole second and scored on Chris Hager's hit to right.

The Pirates had good fielding on other chances, pulling off four double plays in the first seven innings. But fielding also caught them, as they committed seven errors.

East Carolina pushed over three in the first. With one down, Steve Bryant singled and stole second. He took third on an out, and scored when Alan Smith doubled to right. Glenn Card reached on an error and moved up unheeded. Both scored on Addison Bass' double for a 3-0 lead.

After threats in the second and third, the Bucs got two more in the fourth. Geoff Beaston doubled to right with two outs, and Bryant walked. Robert Brinkley doubled to left, scoring both runners.

But after that, the momentum began to swing to the Tar Heels. East Carolina led off the fifth with two singles, but three straight outs, including two strikeouts, killed that rally. They put men in scoring position in the eighth, then had a great chance in the tenth. With two away, Ken Gentry singled to deep short, then stole second. Beaston singled to shallow left, and Gentry, trying to score, was easily thrown out. In the 11th, the Bucs had another chance, but again a runner was cut down, as he tried to go to third on a bouncer to short. Bass doubled to open the 12th, but died there as the next two fanned, and a ground out ended the game.

Carolina, aside from their run in the third, didn't move a man to second again until the seventh.

Steve Rackley led off with a single in the seventh and Jimmy Baldwin singled to short. Jones singled to right, scoring Rackley, and Baldwin came home when the ball was thrown away on the relay. Williams singled to deep second, and an error on the play allowed Jones to score, cutting the lead to 5-4.

Then, in the ninth, the Heels tied it up. Baldwin singled and was sacrificed up. Jones singled, driving him in to tie the game.

It stayed that way until the 12th, when the Heels got the winning run.

The Pirates will return to action today, traveling to meet Methodist College. They will return home on Monday, hosting Louisburg College.

Rampants Host Harding

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

While the main part of the long uphill march is over for the Rose High Rampants baseball team, they still have a short distance before they reach the summit of their climb to the State 4-A baseball crown.

The Rampants have compiled a 21-3 record on the year losing twice to Rocky Mount, 2-1 and 7-1, and to Kinston, 9-6. The Rampants won the Division I championship with a slim one-game advantage over Rocky Mount. The two teams had been tied going into the last three regular season games but Bertie surprised the Gryphons, 2-1, and the Rampants won their last three to edge the Gryphons out.

In the first round playoff game, Rose beat Wilmington's Hoggard, 5-2. Rose bumped off Richmond County, 5-1 in the second round and after two attempts to play, the Rampants finally bombed Scotland County, 10-3. Now in the finals of the playoffs, they will meet Charlotte's Harding High, Wednesday and Thurdsay night and maybe Friday if the best-of-three series lasts that long.

The Charlotte team brings 14-6 record into the series and according to a Charlotte source, they are a "one-man team." Harding was the runner-up in Division X. They beat Gastonia to get into the finals.

Dickie Noles is purportedly the one man show that has carried the team. He is mainly a pitcher but plays centerfield when not throwing. He is batting over .300 and has good speed. But after that, the Charlotte source gave a bland picture of the rest of the team.

The player that has been hottest for Harding the last few weeks is catcher Rod Laning. He did not get many hits the first part of the season but has improved his eye lately. Harding's coach Bill Crawford had Bobby Shank as his number 2 pitcher with first baseman Robbie Dunn also being able to pitch.

Noles had put together a 9-3 record with two of his losses being by slim 2-1 margins. Against East Mecklenburg, he gave up hits to the first three batters but did not give up another for the rest of the game. His earned run average is below 1.00.

The Harding team will be hurting in depth. Only 14 people are on the team as compared to Rose's 20. They are supposed to have a good defense but are not very speedy.

The Rampants will counter with two .400 plus hitters in Macon Moye and Kelly Heath. Heath will probably start the first game with either Mike Belton or Wesley Deal starting the second. Rampant coach Ronald Vincent also has Jimmy Averette to call on.

The Rampants will have Mike Brewington at first base, Jack Jenkins at second, Keith Jones at short if Heath is pitching, Wright Hooks on third, Grif Garner in left, Moye at center and Ron Hunt in right. Eddy Connolly will be behind the plate.

Chances are that all activities will shut down Wednesday and Thursday night for the playoff. The Babe Ruth games may be cancelled and the softball leagues may postpone their games. That would give the Rampants a chance to pick up a lot of home town support that could help their cause.

Orioles Fly To Victory Over KC

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dave Duncan's two-run double capped a five-run fifth inning and Mike Torrez scattered five Kansas City hits, leading the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-3 victory over the Royals Saturday night.

Dennis Leonard, 2-2, walked Al Bumbry and Tommy Davis tripled for a run to break a 2-2 tie and start the Baltimore burst. Lee May's single scored Davis, Ken Singleton singled and Paul Blair walked to load the bases.

After Doug Bird replaced Leonard, Brooks Robinson made it 5-2 with a sacrifice fly, then Duncan sent Singleton and Blair home with his double into the left-field corner.

The Orioles took a 2-0 lead in the first inning on run-scoring singles by Davis and Blair. The Royals tied it off Torrez, 7-3, in the second on George Brett's third home run of the season.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — William & Mary basketball Coach George Balanis said Friday that 6-foot-11 Matt Courage, a starter during most of his three years at the school, has been declared academically ineligible and will not be play for the Indians next season.

Jaycees Beat Coke On One-Hitter, 8-1

Kenny Barnes and Mike Pollard combined to shackle Kiwanis with one hit, a home run, and the Jaycees took their ninth game of the season, 8-1.

The only Kiwanis hit came in the second as Mike Thurber smacked a one-out pitch over the fence. All the good it did was to tie the game, 1-1. The Jaycees had taken the lead in the first as Larry Talbert walked, stole second and scored on Barnes's double.

The Jaycees regained the lead in the third as they rallied for five runs Danny Woods led off with a single and Tan-Talbert followed with a hit. Teddy Gartman reached on a fielder's choice nailing Talbert but a double by Pollard scored Woods and Gartman. Elvy Forrest singled in Pollard. Henry Goodson also singled and both runners scored on Crowel Pope's double.

The Jaycees added two more in the fourth on an error and a wild pitch.

Talbert and Pollard had two hits each for the Jaycees.

Shoemaker Rides Avatar To Belmont Victory

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Foolish Pleasure had the Kentucky Derby to his credit. Master Derby had the Preakness. And Saturday, as the 3-year-old thoroughbred picture became even more scrambled, Avatar had a masterful ride from Bill Shoemaker that paid off with victory in the $193,600 Belmont Stakes.

"I thought Shoe rode a typical Shoemaker race—great. He (Avatar) has a tendency to loaf on the lead, but Shoe nursed him along," trainer Tommy Doyle said after the world's winningest rider made Avatar his fifth Belmont winner in eight tries.

Shoemaker had Avatar no worse than third on the outside most of the way, and he took the lead from Master Derby with about an eighth of a mile left.

Referring to Avatar's tendency to loaf in the lead, Shoemaker said, "I didn't want to take the lead when I did, but I didn't have a choice.

"Master Derby ran out of gas and left me in front. I decided I might as well go on now. He didn't respond at first—the wire came up just about in time."

And indeed it did, as Foolish Pleasure's late charge over the final quarter-mile fell barely short while Master Derby was fading.

Avatar, who earned $116,160 and returned $28.40, $8 and $5, now will be able to loaf for a while without worrying his jockey, trainer or owner.

"He's had a tough campaign," said owner Arthur A. Seeligson Jr. of San Antonio, Tex. "We want to rest him for a while."

For most of this 107th Belmont, which was completed in 2:281-5, more than four seconds off Secretariat's 1973 record, it looked as though Diabolo would haunt Shoemaker again.

The veteran jockey rode Diabolo in 10 of the colt's first 12 races, but he became disenchanted and was pulled off by owner Frank McMahon and trainer Sid Martin, following a third-place finish in the Santa Anita Derby which was won by Avatar.

Shoemaker rode Avatar once before the Triple Crown and then took him to a second-place Kentucky Derby finish and a fifth in the Preakness.

Diabolo surrendered the lead to Master Derby approaching the quarter-pole and faded to finish fourth, a distant four lengths back of the third-place horse.

Following Diabolo across the finish were Prince Thou Art, the second-betting favorite who never was a factor; Singh; Just the Time; Nalees Rialto and Syllabus.

Diabolo, ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., broke on top and held the lead around the turn and down the backstretch as Master Derby and Avatar ran almost as one behind him. Foolish Pleasure was fifth with a half-mile to go and fourth with a quarter-mile to go.

Master Derby, ridden by Darrel McHargue, closed with Diabolo midway through the turn and took the lead coming into the stretch. Avatar also made his move on the turn, as did Foolish Pleasure.

Avatar's move brought Seeligson $116,160. Foolish Pleasure's move brought Greer $42,592. But since it fell short, it brought a great deal more disappointment to Greer and Leroy Jolley, who trains the 2-year-old champion of 1974.

For Avatar, who is trained by Tommy Doyle, the Belmont was the colt's fifth victory in 12 starts this year. It boosted his lifetime earnings to $276,210, all but $4,382 coming in 1975. The victory also boosted his stud value considerably.

Shoemaker turned in the kind of ride expected of a jockey whose victories are approaching the 7,000 and who has won more than 100 $100,000 races and whose mounts have earned more than $50 million.

His other Belmont winners were with Gallant Man in 1957, Sword Dancer in 1959, Jaipur in 1962 and Damascus in 1967. This was his first Belmont appearance since he rode Damascus.

A crowd of 60,321 was on hand for The Shoe's fifth Belmont triumph.

"I didn't want to take the lead when I did," said Shoemaker, "but I didn't have a choice. Master Derby ran out of gas and left me in front. I decided I might as well go on now."

"I was a little scared when he had to go to the front so early because, as you know, the horse has a tendency to loaf," said trainer Doyle.

Vasquez, who missed a Triple Crown by a total of a length (in the Preakness) and a neck said "I had dead aim on him from the three-eighths pole on but I just couldn't catch him. No excuses. We ran our race. We didn't win."

It was the first time since 1970 that three 3-year-olds won a Triple Crown race. In 1970 Dust Commander, the sire of Master Derby, won the Kentucky Derby; Personality won the Preakness and High Echelon won the Belmont.

The race was run on a fast track under partly cloudy skies with the temperatures in the mid-70s. All nine starters carried 126 pounds.

Player Takes Lead From Faltering Floyd

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Gary Player shook off three early bogeys and passed faltering Ray Floyd with a 69 and the third-round lead Saturday in the $250,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament with a 208, eight-under-par.

Floyd slipped to 73 and a second-place tie at 209 with Bobby Nichols, another 69 shooter.

Tied for fourth place at 210 going into Sunday's final round were Jerry Heard and second-year pro Jim Masserio, who each shot 69. They were one stroke ahead of John Mahaffey, whose 71 gave him 211 and a deadlock with Dan Sikes, who shot 73.

Player, one of the game's best bunker players, called his long trap shot at the 10th hole, "the shot of the day for me." He hit a 60-yard shot from the bunker three feet from the pin on the 597-yard hole for a birdie-four.

After three pars, he birdied the par-four 14th from 20 feet and later saved par twice by getting down in two from a trap.

The little South African, who estimates he has travelled four million miles in a 20-year career of international golf, called his play "most satisfying" considering the shaky start.

He bogeyed the second and third holes, having been trapped on each, and then took three to get down from the back of the green for another bogey on the fourth hole.

He got back on track by chipping two feet from the pin for birdie on the long fifth, then birdied the last three holes of the back nine on putts of 18, 14 and 6 feet for an outgoing 35.

Floyd, the leader through each of the first two rounds, increased his margin from two shots to three with a front-nine 35 on the par-72 Quail Hollow Country Club course, a 7,160 yarder.

At that point, six men spread around the sun-drenched course were three shots behind.

Floyd then dropped to a tie at eight-under with Player and Nichols after he was trapped and bogeyed the 13th hole. Another bunker caught him on the 16th and he surrendered the lead.

Nichols, playing what he called a solid round, had nines of 34-35, highlighted by a 70-foot birdie putt on the par-four 11th. He lost his share of the lead when he three-putted No. 17 from 25 feet.

The combination of 90 degree heat and a stiff breeze made the already fast greens faster on a course that has been toughened considerably since last year.

Heard, who lost a playoff last year, was the only one of the top six finishers of 1974 to survive Friday night's cut of 147, three-over-par. Rod Curl had the day's best round, 67, to move up to 213, five shots back of Player.

Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf, the top three money winners this year, are not competing. Sunday's final round will be televised nationally by CBS.

Home Builders Left Atop Babe Ruth Standings

Pepsi-Cola fell out of a tie for first place in the Babe Ruth league Saturday dropping its first game of the season to Home Builders, 15-3, while College View and NCNB also took wins.

In the first game of the day, NCNB creamed Carolina Dairy, 15-3. NCNB got all it needed in the first picking up six runs. Doug Selby reached on an error and took a wild pitch to second. Jesse Baker singled and Jay Holt walked loading the bases. Jerome Ross walked forcing in Selby and a triple by Bryan Morton brought in three more runs. Cliff Fearington forced Morton at home. Taylor Pace singled and after Skip Topping was hit by a pitch, Will Barrett reached on a fielder's choice scoring Fearington and Pace.

Carolina Dairy scored one in the first and two more in the sixth. NCNB got one in the second, four in the fifth and four in the sixth.

Home Builders and Pepsi were one-up after the first inning but the tie was quickly broken as Home Builders rallied for five in the second. Mike Adams walked as did Stanley Nichols. Ronnie Chapman reached on an error loading the bases. Timmy Allen singled in Adams and after Joel Toates walked forcing in Nichols, Gary Allen singled scoring Chapman and Tim Allen. Toates scored on a wild pitch.

Home Builders came up with one in the third, one in the fifth and seven in the sixth. Pepsi got its other two runs in the third. After the sixth, the 10-run rule was enforced with Home Builders up by 15-3.

College View scored twice in the first. Joey Downing and Michael Shank both reached on fielder's choices. Hits by Ricky Bolonde and Scott Brady scored them.

Planters came back with a run in the bottom of the inning. Mac Stokes walked and stole both second and third. Danny Boyd singled to drive him in.

It stayed that way until the third when College View opened up a 5-1 lead. Jeff Aldridge reached on an error and stole second. Shank walked. Bolonde singled in Aldridge and an error scored Shank. Brady forced Bolonde at second but Brady scored as Marshall Crumpler reached on an error.

College View scored one in the fourth, one in the sixth and two in the seventh. PNB got its other run in the fourth.

Pepsi Beats Graniteers On Double In 7th

Jeff Wilson smashed a double in the bottom of the seventh driving in Kelly Kee with the winning run as Pepsi-Cola squeezed past the Graniteers, 12-11, Saturday.

Pepsi picked up its seventh Tar Heel League win while the Graniteers lost their fifth.

The game was a slugfest as both teams banged out 25 hits. Pepsi had 14, the Graniteers 11.

Pepsi started things off with four runs in the first. Tim Shank led off with a walk and Kee singled. Ricky Sutton also got a hit scoring Shank. Kee scored on a sacrifice fly by Jeff Wilson and a hit by Eric Bowman scored Sutton. Bowman later scored on Kevin Richard's single.

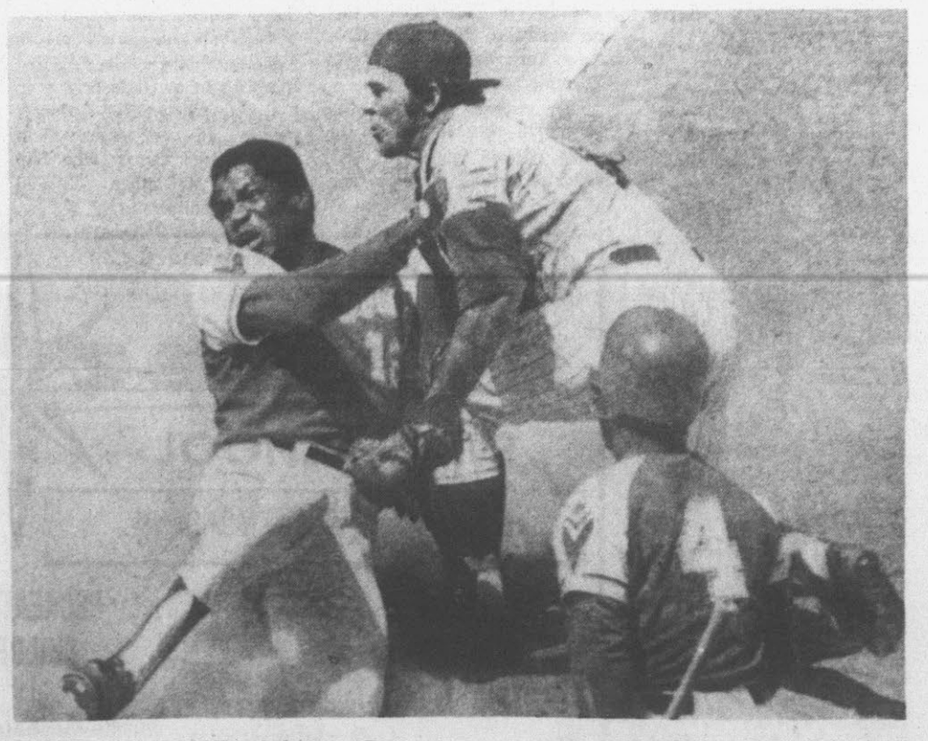

Pepsi picked up four more in the third but the Graniteers fought their way back into the game with four in the top of the fourth. Mike Tucker and Mike Fuller both walked and both came in on Alan Dickens' double. Art Pittman singled Dickens to third and a hit by Lance Searle scored Dickens. Two walks forced Pittman over.

Jeff Wilson added some temporary distance in the bottom of the fifth blasting a two-run homer. The Graniteers roared back, however, to tie the game, 12-12. A big play came when three runs scored as Steve Holloman reached on a bases loaded outfield error. Two singled lifted the Graniteer total to 11-10 and singled by Fuller, Dickens and Pittman drove in the tieing runs.

Kee led off the bottom of the seventh doubling. Sutton singled but could not move Kee around. Wilson stepped in a double to drive in Kee with the winner.

Sutton and Bowman had three hits each to pace Pepsi while Kee, Wilson and Stallings had two each. Dickens and Pittman had three each for the Graniteers while Searle had two.

Graniteers Hold Prep Advantage

Al Shackleford pitched the Graniteers to a one-hit 9-1 victory over Jeanette Cox Saturday but were unable to add any room over Auto Specialty as AS beat Pitt Plaza, 3-2.

The Graniteers got all they needed in the first picking up a single run. Charles Daise singled and stole second. Ricky West reached on an error letting Daise score.

Daise led off the third with a triple to right and scored as West again reached on an error. Lynn Jackson singled to drive in West.

The Graniteers added four in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Pitt Plaza threatened to break out of the winless ranks scoring twice in the third. Howard Wilkerson walked and scored on David Caroll's double. Don McGlohon had earlier singled and scored on an error.

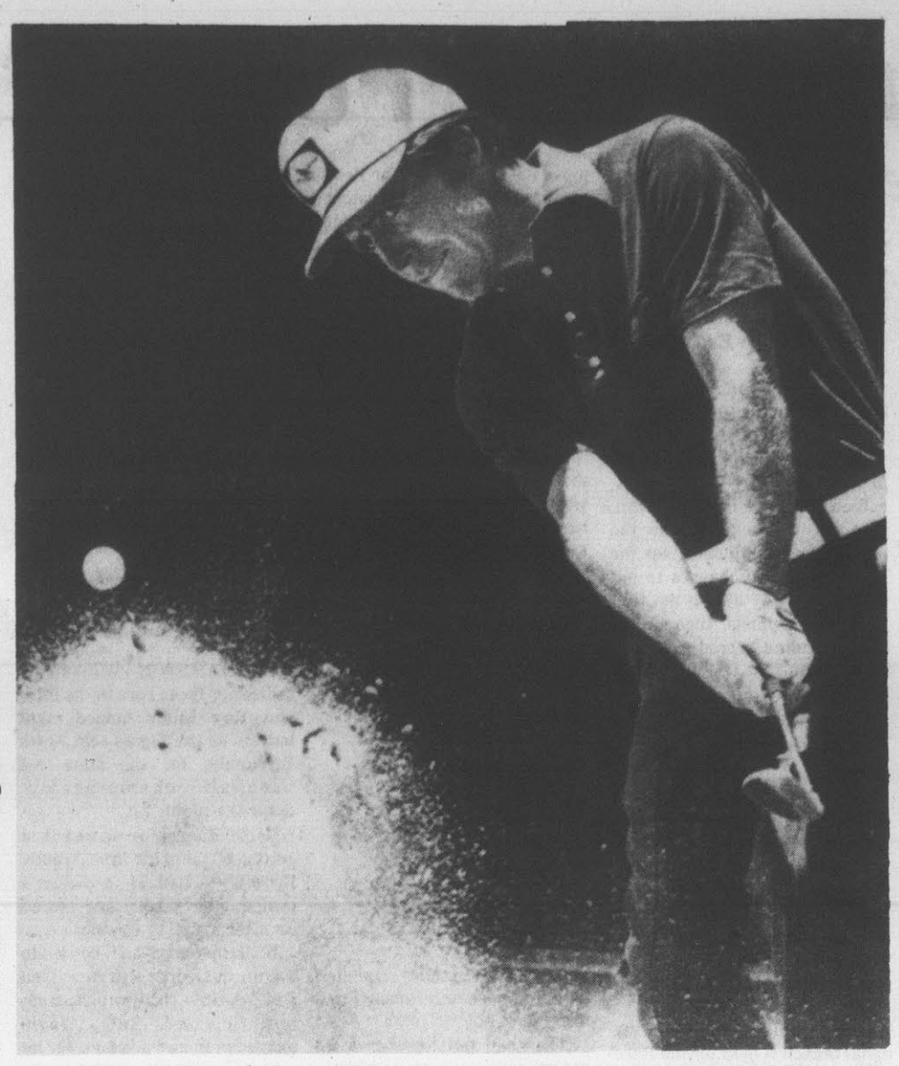

But the lead was short lived as Auto Specialty got all its runs in the bottom of the fourth. Lindsey Winstead singled and John Haynes doubled. Calvin Jones reached on an error scoring Winstead and Haynes. Jones moved around and scored on a passed ball.

Title IX Probably Won't Be Felt Locally

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Local officials expect little change in the athletic situation because of the passage of Title IX, and most effect, if any, will come at the collegiate level.

Both Pitt County and Greenville City Schools said they expect to increase their programs in girls' athletics in the nesr future, depending on interest and the availibity of coaches. East Carolina University, meanwhile, hopes to continue addition to its program, but does not see the advent of athletic scholarships for women, at least not in the coming year.

"I haven't seen the complete bill," East Carolina Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich said, "but we've been conscious that we should be funding the women's program since 1970. The women on our campus organized an athletic association in 1969-70, and the following year, the athletic department took over funding of it."

Stasavich said the budget for women's athletics has been increased each year. "This past year, we also added a second women's coach, and our proposed budget for the coming year would add another."

Stasavich said the women at East Carolina have full use of athletic vehicles, and of training facilities. "They have their own training room, which we admit isn't as fancy as the men's, but they have full use of the men's training facility also, so there really should be no problem there.

"There is not much difference in the funding of the men's and women's non-revenue sports now," he added.

Women at East Carolina currently participate in swimming and diving, tennis, golf, basketball, field hockey, volleyball and gymnastics. "We plan to add track next spring. We tried to get it going this spring on a club basis, but we couldn't find anyone to run against."

Stasavich said that this is one of the key problems in women's athletics—competition. "We also have the problem of getting people to come out for the team. We had one team this spring that only four people came out for, and one of them didn't stick."

When asked about women's scholarships, Stasavich said that the athletic council "consulted with the people in charge of the women's programs, and they felt that they would rather put the money into the program at this time, rather than to give scholarships."

"I think as this thing is put into effect, more and more schools will field women's teams, so we will have a chance to have better scheduling. We want to do all we can for women's athletics and we will put emphasis on it as we get people to come out for the teams and as we are able to schedule games."

In comparison, East Carolina would now field eight teams for women, while at present, there are 12 sports for men, if the three tracks are considered separate. Combining the track group into one would cut the total to 10. These include football, soccer, basketball, wrestling, swimming and diving, baseball, tennis, golf, the three tracks (cross-country, indoor and outdoor), and rifle. Rifle has been open to members of both sexes, in effect, giving the women a ninth sport.

Meanwhile, neither of the two public school administrators looks for much change in the near future. Both Pitt County Superintendent Ott Alford, and his counterpart in Greeville, Glenn Cox, said much of what could be done already has been done.

"We hope to add volleyball and softball at most schools," Alford said. "All of the schools already have track and basketball and one has tennis." According to Alford, softball would balance baseball, and volleyball would balance football. The two track programs balance each other, as does tennis where it is played. That would leave the boys' program with one unbalanced sport, wrestling.

"We haven't really brought it to a head," Alford said, "we're waiting to see the final regulations, which we understand are still subject to chance."

He added that the necessary funds would have to be found somewhere. "We'll do the best we can and hope no one makes a federal case out of it. We feel we can make enough adjustments, however."

Cox said he foresees no great difficulties in the city school program. "For instance, we'll probably have to say 'physical education' instead of 'boys' and 'girls' in the future."

Currently, at Rose High, there are nine sports for boys. There are plans for six providing there is enough interest. The boys currently have football, cross-country, basketball, wrestling, swimming, baseball, track, tennis, and junior varsity football. Girls currently have taken part along with the boys in cross-country and swimming, while separate teams are maintained for tennis, track and softball. The school hopes to add volleyball and basketball this year.

"We con't anticipate any imbalance," Cox said. "Our supplement scale also is in good shape."

On the junior high level, Cox admitted that he hadn't looked too closely yet. "We have five sports for boys, and this year, we tried to get a girls' track team going. We might add softball if there is the interest, and we could also add basketball.

"Our biggest problem right now, in girls sports, is finding people to coach. We are not anticipating a large turnover in our staffs this year, and finding people who are willing to coach isn't an easy job."

Singles In 12th Give Rangers 5-4 Win

CLEVELAND (AP) — Run-scoring singles by Mike Hargrove and Lenny Randle in the 12th inning Saturday gave the Texas Rangers a 5-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

The Indians tied the score in the bottom of the ninth on singles by Frank Robinson and Charlie Spikes and John Ellis' sacrifice fly.

But in the 12th, Toby Harrah singled to center off Cleveland starter Gaylord Perry, 6-8, took second on Jeff Burroughs' hit to left and scored the tie-breaking run on Hargrove's line-single past first.

Hargrove was out trying to stretch the hit into a double. After Jim Spencer was walked intentionally, Randle beat out an infield hit that sent Burroughs home with an insurance run.

Hargrove's leadoff homer in the eighth inning, his sixth of the season, had put the Rangers ahead 3-2.

Robinson got his eighth RBI in three games, singling home Rick Manning in the fourth inning and giving the Indians a 1-0 lead.

The Indians made it 2-0 in the fifth when Kuiper, who singled and moved to second on a fielder's choice, scored on an error by shortstop Roy Smalley.

The Rangers tied it 2-2 in the sixth. Harrah singled with one out and with two away Hargrove reached first on an interference call on Ellis, the catcher. Harrah scored on Spencer's single and Hargrove scored on Randle's single.

Sanguillen Cleans Shoes To Beat San Francisco

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Manny Sanguillen, who says he has eliminated his bad-ball hitting habits, Saturday lifted a couple of pitches off his shoetops and helped the Pittsburgh Pirates nip the San Francisco Giants 7-6.

The speedy Pirate catcher doubled and scored in the first inning, doubled and scored in the fifth, and then hit a sacrifice fly in the eighth to send pinch runner Mario Mendoza across with the winning run.

"That first double, I hit a sinker ball down here," and he Panamanian indicated the area just above his ankles.

"The next one, I hit a fast ball here," and he indicated a shoulder-high outside pitch.

And in between hits he caught four different Pirate pitchers who turned in some wild performances. Ramon Hernandez, 2-2, the third on the mound, eventually got credit for the come-from-behind victory.

Starter Jim Rooker was wild, walking seven. But Sanguillen said the wildness could have been due to a strained groin muscle which had been bothering him.

Hernandez, who walked none, nevertheless allowed the Giants' other three runs in the top of the eighth which put them ahead momentarily.

Manager Danny Murtaugh had revised his batting order following Friday night's 5-2 victory over the Giants, dropping third baseman Richie Hebner from second to seventh place. And it worked out to the Pirates' advantage.

Hebner hit his third homer of the season to tie the score in the eighth before Sanguillen came through with his run-producing fly.

Yaz, Lynn Single Bosox Past Twins

BOSTON (AP) — Carl Yastrzemski and Fred Lynn whacked run-scoring singles in the eighth inning, propelling the Boston Red Sox to a 3-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

Bernie Carbo opened the Red Sox eighth with a single and pinch runner Rick Miller took second on a wild pitch and third on a sacrifice. Yastrzemski then singled in the tie-breaking run before Lynn provided an insurance tally with his base hit.

The Twins took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning. Rod Carew grounded a single through the middle and Larry Hisle got a base hit off Boston starter Bill Lee's leg.

Tony Oliva fouled out, but Bobby Darwin hit a wind-blown fly to deep right. Carew and Hisle had to hold up on the fly and managed to advance just one base each. Darwin rounded first on the single and was run down and tagged out.

Dan Ford then beat out a slow grounder to third, scoring Carew.

Minnesota starter Ray Corbin worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the fourth and blanked the Red Sox until the sixth. Then, with one out, Lynn drilled his ninth homer into the center field bleachers to tie the score.

Morton Pitches, Hits Braves To Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Morton stopped a personal six game losing streak and knocked in two runs to lead the Atlanta Braves to a 7-3 decision over the New York Mets Saturday.

Morton, 6-6, who last won on April 26 when he beat the San Diego Padres, scattered nine hits in seven innings. New York left-hander John Matlack, 7-4, was the loser.

Morton gave up run-scoring singles to Joe Torre and Ed Kranepool in the first inning to fall behind 2-0, but that was the last time he trailed the Mets.

The Braves scored four times in the second inning, two of the runs coming in on Morton's two-run single. Vic Correll doubled home a run before Morton's base hit and Ralph Garr capped the rally with an RBI single.

Correll doubled home another run in the third inning to give the Braves a 5-2 lead.

The Mets cut the Atlanta lead to 5-3 with a run in the fifth on Rusty Staub's single, but the Braves came back with two in the ninth in a rally keyed by Larvell Blanks' RBI single.

Houston Loses Seventh, 5-1

HOUSTON (AP) — Ted Simmons slammed a tie-breaking two-run double in the eighth inning Saturday night and the St. Louis Cardinals handed Houston its seventh straight loss, whipping the Astros 5-1.

Willie Davis doubled and Reggie Smith walked before Simmons sent a pitch by Dave Roberts, 3-7, off the left-field wall. Luis Melendez then sent Simmons home with a single to right. St. Louis wrapped it up with a run in the ninth on a walk, a sacrifice and Ted Sizemore's single.

The Cards took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Reggie Smith walked, took second on a passed ball and came home on Ken Reitz' single. Houston tied it off Lynn McGlothen, 6-4, in the sixth when Cesar Cedeno's double to left-center field scored Greg Gross, who had walked. McGlothen finished with a six-hitter.

LaGrow Gets First Career Shutout, 3-0

OAKLAND (AP) — Lerrin LaGrow pitched a five-hitter and recorded the first shutout of his major league career as the Detroit Tigers stopped the Oakland A's 3-0 Saturday.

LaGrow, 4-4, had a no-hitter until Phil Garner singled with two out in the fifth inning. Bill North followed with another single but Bert Campaneris grounded out to end the inning.

The only other hits off the Tiger pitcher were a sixth-inning single by Billy Williams and singles by Claudell Washington in the seventh and ninth.

The Tigers rapped Oakland starter Vida Blue for eight hits before he left with no outs in the seventh inning. Three straight doubles—by Mickey Stanley, Tom Veryzer and Ron LeFlore—scored two runs in the seventh before Blue was replaced by Rollie Fingers.

Pele May Play With Brazil Stars

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Soccer "King" Pele, who has announced he will come out of retirement to play for the New York Cosmos, says he may rejoin the Brazilian all-star selection and take part in the 1978 World Cup in Argentina.

Pele, 34, made the statement in a radio broadcast from Santos, Brazil, Friday night. "Now that I'm coming back to play, I may consider rejoining the selection. But that will depend on whether the coaches will still trust me.

"Personally, I don't think I'll still be in good shape three years from now. But let's see what happens," Pele said.

Pele was about to leave for New York City, where he is expected to sign a contract with the New York Cosmos, of the North American Soccer League, next week.

The 30-month contract will give the player $4.5 million plus other benefits that will make the pact's estimated worth as high as $7 million.

Pele said the only thing still pending before he signs the contract are the terms involving the use by the Warner Communications—owners of the Cosmos—of the world famous trade mark "Pele."

"But I think that things will work out all right," Pele said.

The player did not say when he will travel to New York City, but said that he will not be able to play an exihibition game at the Maracan Stadium in Rio de Janeiro next Tuesday, lining up with Rio's Fluminense in the game against European champion Bayern Munchen of West Germany.

The game will be sponsored by the MOBRAL, the Brazilian government-run literacy movement. Pele had been invited to take part in the game, in what would be hailed as his "farewell from the Brazilian fans."

The Cosmos have said Pele would be available to participate in pregame ceremonies Tuesday in Philadelphia, then be ready to play June 15 in New York against the Dallas Tornado.

Pele retired as a selection player in 1971, in Rio de Janeiro, against Yugoslavia. Last year, he retired from pro soccer.

Reds Ride Homers

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench, Dan Driessen and Joe Morgan slugged home runs Saturday to support Jack Billingham's five-hitter and power the Cincinnati Reds to an 8-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Bench led off the second inning against Ray Burris, 6-5, with his 12th homer of the year and Driessen followed with his first.

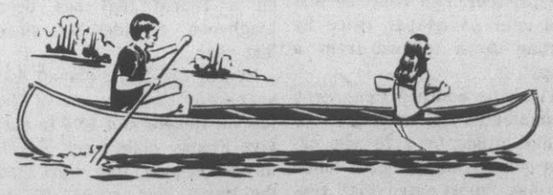

In the third, Bench singled for two more runs and, in the fifth, Morgan hit his seventh homer of the year.

Billingham, 6-3, lost his shutout in the sixth inning when the Cubs loaded the bases on singles by Pete LaCock, Don Kessinger and Jose Cardenal and got a run on Bill Madlock's forceout grounder.

The Reds came back with three runs in the bottom of the sixth as Chicago relievers Eddie Watt, Ken Frailing and Bob Locker each walked a man with the bases loaded.

North Buncombe Outslugs Williamston

I GOT HIM—Dave Cash, Philadelphia Phillies infielders, is out at the plate on outfielder Greg Luzinski's flyball to right field in the first inning of Friday night's Phils-Los Angeles Dodgers game in Philadelphia. WILLIAMSTON—North Buncombe High School came up with two runs in the sixth inning to nip Williamston, 9-8, Friday night and even up the State 3-A Baseball championship series at one game each.

The final game was to be played Saturday afternoon in Williamston.

Williamston took the early lead in the game, getting a run in the first, . but the Black Hawks came back with six in the second. They added another in the third before Williamston came back in the fourth and fifth to charge into an 8-7 lead. But the two in the sixth for North Buncombe did the trick.

The game was not the best played. Neither team got outstanding pitching, and both teams committed four errors, most contributing to the 17 runs scored.

Williamston jumped into the lead in the first inning with a lone run. Roy Lilley reached on an error and then stole second. An error let him move on to third. He scored from there on a passed ball.

The Black Hawks exploded for six big runs in the second inning. Doug Denton singled and Mike Jamerson reached on an error. Kenny Phillips singled, loading the bases. Dwayne Dillingham walked, scoring Denton. Tony Martinez sacrificed, scoring both Jamerson and Phillips. Freddie Brown walked and Mike Cowan's hit brought in Dillingham. Mike Lasher sacrificed in Brown, and Doug Banks singled to score Cowan.

In the third, North Buncombe added its seventh run. Phillips singled and stole second, moving to third on an error. Martinez reached on an error, scoring Phillips.

The fourth saw Williamston put on a four-run rally, cutting the lead to 7-5. George Brown doubled and Tim Hardison walked. Butch Davis brought both of them home with a triple. An error on the relay then let Davis score. Greg Roberson walked and Ken Herman also drew a walk. Mike Koesy then walked, loading the bases. A sacrifice fly by Phil Selby brought in Roberson.

The Tigers pushed back into the lead in the fifth, scoring three more runs. Brown walked and scored when Hardison tripled. A passed ball let him come in. Herman walked and moved up on a balk. Gordon singled and an error on the play let Herman score.

That gave Williamston an 8-7 lead, but they couldn't hold it. The Black Hawks came up with two in the sixth. Cowan singled and stole second, scoring the tieing run when Denton singled. Jamerson then tripled, driving in Denton with what proved to be the winning run.

Bobby Allison Grabs The Pole

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Bobby Allison, gunning for his third straight NASCAR victory in Southern California, grabbed the pole position Friday for Sunday's 400-mile Grand National stock car road race at Riverside International Raceway.

Allison averaged 110.753 miles an hour on the up-and-downhill 2.54-mile course in an AMC Matador and was more than a mile-an-hour faster than the second swiftest qualifier, Richard Petty.

The pole speed was a record for the event, bettering a speed of 110.027 set by Petty two years ago, and marked the second straight time Allison has taken the fastest qualifying speed here.

Daytona 500 winner Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N.C. qualified third, taking the inside of the second row with a speed of 109.104 in a 1975 Chevrolet.

Dave Marcis, of Skyland, N.C., was fourth fastest at 108.966 in a 1974 Charger, while George Follmer of Huntington Harbour, Calif., in his first effort to make a starting lineup, drove his 1975 Chevrolet into the No. 5 spot with a speed of 108.654.

Californians held the next two spots, Jimmy Insolo of Mission Hills placing sixth with a speed of 108.537 in a 1974 Chevrolet and Ray Elder, the racing farmer from Caruthers, seventh 108.391 in a 1974 Dodge.

The early qualifying filled the first 20 spots in the 35-car field with the rest of the positions to be decided Saturday.

Allison, the veteran from Hueytown, Ala., last fall took the Times 500 at Ontario, Calif, last race of the 1974 NASCAR campaign, and also claimed a leg of the International Race of Champions at Riverside.

He captured the Western 500-mile road race here in January.

Petty, of Randleman, N.C., aiming for an unprecedented sixth NASCAR title, has won six of 13 Grand National stock car races this year and leads the points standings.

He is also closing in on the $2 million earnings standard with a career total of more than $1.9 million.

Defending 400 winner Cale Yarborough is skipping the race this year.

First baseman Bob Watson of the Houston Astros played with five minor league teams before he came up to the major leagues in 1969 as a full-time player.

John (Hully) Hallahan has been equipment manager for the Pittsburgh Pirates since 1957.

Graniteers In Prep Loop Lead

Charles Daise's three run triple in the second highlighted a seven run rally and the Graniteers went on to beat Auto Specialty, 9-4 in a Prep League game, Friday night.

Daise smacked his bases-loaded triple with two out in the last of the second. The Graniteers had already picked up three runs. Ricky West led off the inning reaching on an error and Lynn Jackson was safe on a miscue that scored West. Jeff Worthington and Todd Galloway both walked and a wild pitch scored Jackson.

Auto Specialty got one in the third as Clavin Jones walked and scored as William Sneed reached on an error.

Auto Specialty cut the lead to 8-4 in the fifth. Sneed reached on an error as did Mike Clemmons. Marion Crisp singled. Lenzy Winstead reached on an error scoring Sneed and Clemmons and a hit by John Haynes scored Crisp.

The Graniteers got one in the fourth as Ricky West singled and later scored on an out.

West got the final Graniteer run in the sixth reaching on an error that let him race all the way around to score.

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

"Iron Mike" is back and a month off hasn't rusted his talents.

Mike Marshall, Los Angeles' fabulous relief pitcher, came back after a month's layoff Friday night and showed that he was as iron-clad as ever with a three-inning appearance that helped the Dodgers beat the Philadelphia Phillies 3-2.

"I felt as good as before," said the masterful Marshall after allowing just one hit in relief of starter Burt Hooton. "I'll be ready to pitch Saturday night."

Marshall, who pitched in 106 games last season to establish a major league record, has been troubled with an injured rib through most of this year. The burly right-hander first pulled a rib on his left side on April 19. He returned on May 3 and pitched three scoreless innings. Then on May 9, he pulled the rib again and sat on the sidelines until Friday night.

"It didn't hurt," said Marshall. "I believe it will hold this time, but you never know."

In the other National League games, it was: Atlanta 4, New York 1; Cincinnati 5, Chicago 1; Pittsburgh 7, San Francisco 2 and St. Louis 6, Houston 0. The San Diego-Montreal game was rained out.

Jimmy Wynn doubled and Ron Cey singled to give Los Angeles its winning run in the sixth inning. Hooton earned his fourth victory against five losses although he had to leave after six innings. He was facing Dick Allen when rain delayed the game for 50 minutes.

Braves 4, Mets 1

Phil Niekro fired a six-hitter and singled home a run to lead Atlanta over New York. The Braves' knuckleball pitcher got out of a bases-loaded jam in the ninth to preserve the victory.

Reds 5, Cubs 1

Don Gullett pitched a five-hitter and George Foster hit a two-run homer to lead Cincinnati past Chicago.

Pirates 7, Giants 2

Dave Parker and Richie Zisk hit home runs in a five-run sixth inning to power Pittsburgh past San Francisco.

Cardinals 6, Astros 0

Exchange Top Moose

The Exchange continued to roll along in the Tar Heel Little League Friday, gaining an 8-1 victory over the Moose. The win upped the Exchange record to 8-2 in the league, while the Moose dropped to 6-4.

The Exchange scored early, driving in four runs in the opening inning. Mark Douglas got things started with a solo home run. Gordon Douglas singled and John Williams reached on a two-base error. Another error let Douglas score. Steve Irwin then hit a two-run homer for a 4-0 lead.

Three more runs came over in the third. Mark Douglas doubled and Gordon Douglas slapped the game's third homer. Williams followed him to the plate with another homer, making the lead, 7-0.

The Moose finally got into the act in the fifth inning. Bobby Gantt singled and scored when Carl Woodworth doubled.

Arizona State, Texas Get Wins

By DAN EVEN
AP Sports Writer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The first night of the College World Series provided no surprises.

Arizona State was as strong as predicted, Fullerton State was pesky and Texas and Oklahoma showed they have plenty of pitching.

All that added up to a 5-2 victory for third-rated Arizona State over Fulleton State behind the pitching of super-sophomore Floyd Bannister. Texas recorded a 4-2 triumph.

"This is going to be a pitchers series," predicted Arizona Coach Jim Brock after Bannister scattered six hits and struck out 15 to send the Sun Devils ahead to round two Sunday night against No. 2 Texas.

And regards pitching, he could be right.

Texas and Oklahoma, frequent opponents over the years in this eight-team, double-elimination classic, engaged in a pitching battle that was marred by some shoddy base-running by Big Eight Conference champion Oklahoma.

"Our big mistakes hurt us tonight," reflected Oklahoma Coach Enos Semore after the Sooners fell to Texas for a fifth straight time in series play.

Oklahoma, 50-9, came to the series with a reputation of speed on the basepaths, but three times ran itself out of scoring chances before finally chasing Texas ace Jim Gideon in the ninth inning with two runs.

Oklahoma faces Fullerton State, 36-15, in an elimination game this afternoon. South Carolina, 45-4, tangles with Seton Hall, 31-8, and Eastern Michigan, 35-17, tests top-rated Florida State, 48-9, in final first-round games in the evening.

Bannister, a hard-throwing left-hander, walked the first three Fullerton State batters and then let in a run with a wild pickoff throw.

After that he was superb until the ninth inning when Fullerton State mounted a belated threat.

Meanwhile, the Arizona State attack that includes seven .300-plus hitters had touched Fullerton State ace Dan Boone for nine hits. Four errors also aided the winners, giving them three unearned runs.

Gideon and Oklahoma's Bob Shirley each pitched strong games in the nightcap witnessed by a crowd of 9,032. Shirley, however, contributed to his own downfall despite a seven-hitter and six strikeouts.

Optimists Down Coke

The Optimists struck for four runs in the first inning and glided to a 6-2 win over Coca-Cola, Friday.

Sammy Hodges walked to lead off the game and Andy Holloman reached on an error. Kenny Kirkland drove them both in with a single. Kirkland scored on a sacrifice fly. Jeff Porter doubled and later scored as Tony Heath grounded out.

The Optimists added another in the third as Heath doubled and scored on an error on the play.

Coke ended the shutout in the third as Jeff Camp reached on an error, moved to third on a passed ball and a wild pitch and scored on an out.

The Optimists' final run came over in the fourth as Hodges singled, took second on an error and scored on a sacrifice fly.

Rick Hardee led off the sixth with a single for Coke. He took second on a passed ball and scored on Chuck Allen's double.

Daniel In Second Loss

Things got a little bit stickier in the Industrial Softball League Friday night, as Moose downed first place Daniel Construction to put three teams within one game of each other at the top of the loop.

Daniel is still in the league lead with an 8-2 record, while the Moose and The Daily Reflector are a game back with 7-3 marks.

The Moose pushed over two runs in the first, then added three in the second. They came up with three more in the fourth and added one in the sixth and two in the seventh.

Daniel scored one in the fourth, one in the sixth and two in the seventh, trailing all the way.

The other game saw Union Carbide romp to a 20-2 victory over State Highway. Union Carbide scored one in the first and three in the second to take the lead. They added two more in the third, one in the fourth, four in the fifth with F. Coing homering. Three more came over in the sixth and six scored in the seventh.

State Highway got both of their runs in the fifth inning.

Leaders Take Wins

The Little Sluggers and Pier Five, the divisional leaders in the City Softball League both picked up victories last night.

The Sluggers downed One-Hour Koretizing, thus eliminating the losers from any chance at the National Division title. In other games on the same field, Kentucky Fried Chicken beat the Rockets and Pier Five downed Morgan Printers.

Scores and details of these games were not made available to the Daily Reflector due to the loss of the scorebook.

In the lone game played on the other field, the Chargers rolled to a 10-4 victory over White's Insulation.

The Chargers pushed over four runs in the first inning, then came back with two in the second, including a homer by L. Smith. The Chargers added two in the third and two more in the fifth.

White's got two in the fourth and two more in the fifth.

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

"If I'm going to give up a hit," Nolan Ryan drawled, "I might as well give it up to one of greatest hitters in the game. I can't think of anyone more appropriate."

That, of course, would be Henry Aaron.

"His job is to pitch and my job is to hit," Bad Henry philosophized.

For 5 2-3 innings Friday night, Ryan did his job as noboby but he can do it. Then Aaron did his...and ruined what might have been one of baseball's most historic nights.

For those 5 2-3 innings, California's 28-year-old flamethrower was gunning for two incredible records, trying to surpass Sandy Koufax' mark of five no-hitters in a career and equal Johnny Vander Meer's seemingly impossible feat of hurling two of them in succession.

Well, actually, not quite. Ryan, now 10-3, finished with a two-hitter, his second this year and the seventh of his career. And the Angels, thanks to Lee Stanton's four runs batted in, finished with a 6-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

In Friday night's other American League games, Detroit mauled Oakland 11-2, Boston outlasted Minnesota 13-10, New York beat Chicago 5-1, Cleveland defeated Texas 7-5 and Baltimore subdued Kansas City 3-2 in 11 innings.

While Ryan baffled Milwaukee, the Angels battered Jim Slaton, scoring four runs in the first inning, three on Stanton's bases-loaded double. Stanton then hit his fourth home run of the season off Slaton in the sixth.

Tigers 11, A's 2

While Ryan was doing his thing on the mound, so was Detroit's Mickey Lolich. He became baseball's all-time left-handed strikeout artist with 2,586, surpassing Warren Spahn's 2,583, while Willie Horton drove in four runs—three with a homer—and Mickey Stanley belted a two-run shot in the Tigers' rout of Oakland.

Reds Sox 13, Twins 10

Yankees 5, White Sox 1

Bobby Bonds' 13th homer of the season—a two-run shot in the second inning—boosted the Yanks to their sixth straight victory and left Chicago's Wilbur Wood, a 20-game winner the past four years, as the majors' first 10-game loser this season.

Indians 7, Rangers 5

Frank Robinson hit a pair of three-run homers, the latter in the eighth inning, to vault Cleveland past Ferguson Jenkins and the Rangers.

Orioles 3, Royals 2

Paul Blair's sacrifice fly in the 11th inning carried Baltimore past the Royals. Jim Northrup singled and moved to third on a sacrifice bunt and an error before Blair came through.

Vander Meer Doubts That Ryan Will Ever Tie His No-Hit Mark

By JOHN R. SKINNER
AP Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Johnny Vander Meer says he'd be proud to have a pitcher of the calibre of Nolan Ryan tie his record of successive no-hit games.

But he doubts Ryan will do it.

"If you go by percentages, I'd say the time isn't due yet," said Vander Meer, who was a hard-throwing 22-year-old southpaw for the Cincinnati Reds when he performed his still-unduplicated feat in 1938 against the Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers.

"It was from the 1800s until 1938 before I did it," added Vander Meer, now 61 and a sales manager for a beer firm.

"I was in the hot seat," he recalled. "I had a lot of hard hit balls, but everybody was playing in the right places at the right times. You've got to get some breaks to do anything that breaks a record.

"But records are made to be tied and made to be broken," Vander Meer said. "Ryan's a pretty good one. If he does it, it's good for the game and all right with me."

It was the second time Ryan has seriously threatened to match Vander Meer. Two years ago he no-hit Detroit and, in his next start, baffled Baltimore until Mark Belanger blooped a single to short center field in the eighth inning.

Vander Meer, who often struck out 200 or more batters a year, said it will take someone like Ryan to equal his feat.

"It's going to take somebody who's a power type of pitcher to do it," he said. "Ryan's a pitcher of this type, very much so. He's a hard thrower and strikes out a lot of guys."

Even if Ryan succeeds, Vander Meer figures he'll remain in the record books because, as he put it, "It's one of those records that can be tied, but I don't think it could be broken."

McGinnis Main Topic When Barry, Gilmore Get Together For Chat

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — He was nowhere in sight, but George McGinnis was the main topic of conversation Friday for two other pro basketball superstars, Rick Barry of the National Basketball Association Golden State Warriors and Artis Gilmore of the Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association.

Barry, Gilmore and goaltender Bernie Parent of the National Hockey League champion Philadelphia Flyers were in town to pick up new cars—their rewards for being named the most valuable players in their respective playoffs.

Barry, who made the same trip between leagues a couple of years ago, thinks the NBA is making too much of a fuss over McGinnis' attempted jump from the ABA Indiana Pacers to the NBA New York Knicks.

And Gilmore, whose Kentucky Colonels beat McGinnis and the Pacers for the ABA title, believes big George would be better off staying right where he was, back home in Indiana.

"I think it's a little silly on the part of the NBA to get involved," said Barry, who started his career in the older league, switched to the ABA and then returned to the NBA as pro basketball's most celebrated traveler.

"It hurts the reputation of the league. I just don't believe any one player is that important," Barry continued. "The Knicks did something they shouldn't have but all this chaos isn't necessary. Philadelphia gave them the right to deal with McGinnis once before. Why shouldn't they do it again?"

The Knicks signed McGinnis to a six-year contract worth close to $3 million last Friday but the deal was blocked by NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien because Philadelphia holds that league's rights to the 6-foot-8 star.

Gilmore understands McGinnis' desire for the increased recognition he could get in the NBA but nevertheless was surprised at the big guy's decision.

"It was his decision and he chose to make it," said Gilmore. "I think he had a better situation for himself in Indiana. He was a hometown guy who had become a star in the place where he grew up. That's a great situation. But he knows what's best for him."

Gilmore said his NBA rights belong to the Chicago Bulls but he can't imagine leaving Kentucky.

"My family and I are content there," he said. "That's what's most important for me. Sure, I have had the desire to play in the NBA, but I've never wanted to leave Kentucky."

Drizzle Doesn't Stop Fishermen

By JIM DEAN

We left the landing early in the morning. A thick fog had settled over the river during the night. At least we thought it was just fog.

After running down the wide, blackwater coastal river for several miles, Mike Gaddis turned the boat towards the bank and cut the engine. We drifted in among towering cypress trees festooned with Spanish moss.

It was ghostly. In the fog, you could hardly see anything but shadows and the only sounds were the tentative chirps of birds, the whine of mosquitoes and the soft plops of cottonmouth moccasins falling off the cypress into the water. Surrounded, as we were, by such great beauty and ambiance, we began to fish.

"As soon as this fog burns off, we'll have nice weather," I remarked.

A few minutes later, the fog thickened and began to produce a slight fallout.

Mike reached into the hatch and put on his rainsuit. Then he threw me mine.

"No sweat," I said. "It'll pass shortly."

It did pass, or at least the light drizzle passed. It was soon replaced by a somewhat heavier drizzle.

We fished on stoutheartedly.

The heavy drizzle was replaced by a steady rain. Well, it was not exactly steady. Gusts of light wind (not more than 25 knots) occasionally passed through, driving the rain in at a wicked slant. I don't know if you've noticed or not, but there is nothing in the world wetter than a waterproof rainsuit. I don't understand why.

I should tell you why we persisted in this madness. There is a simple explanation. Shortly after we began fishing, Mike caught a six and a half pound largemouth bass. We didn't catch much of anything else, but that was enough. We gritted our teeth and kept on trucking.

By late afternoon, Mike was running the bilge pump full time. Plastic worms were floating in the boat, along with tackle boxes and a camera case.

I was almost ready to call it quits when I caught a small bass. I thought this was a highly encouraging omen and decided to stick it out a while longer.

Sometime in late afternoon, the weather conditions suddenly changed. The sky got very dark (gee whiz, it must not have been a morning fog after all), and the wind began to whistle up the river. The Spanish moss was horizontal on the trees.

Then it began to rain. I mean it really began to rain. For a while, I couldn't even see Mike in the other end of the boat.

"You know what?" said a voice through the rain. "I believe it's going to get serious about this. You think maybe we ought to go in?"

I pulled off a boot, poured out a half gallon of water and thought it over.

"I guess so," I said. "I've enjoyed about all of this I can stand."

Back home in Raleigh on Monday, a friend stopped me on the street and asked me what kind of weekend fishing trip we'd had.

"You can duplicate our trip exactly by getting fully dressed and standing in the shower for 72 hours," I replied.

"Well that probably cured you of fishing," observed my friend.

Indeed it has. I'm not going again until later this week.

Commission Seeks Return Of Pender

RALEIGH—The North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission, with the support of agricultural interests and many sportsmen, is trying to revive a piece of legislation that would bring Pender County, including the Holly Shelter Game Land, back under the regulatory control and jurisdiction of the Wildlife Commission.

A bill to accomplish this purpose (Senate Bill 108) which had passed in the Senate on May 20 was defeated in the House on June 3 as a result of pressure from hunters in Pender County.

It would take a two-thirds vote of the House to revive the bill, but the Wildlife Commission feels that its passage is important to the interests of the sportsmen of North Carolina as well as to the general public.

"Make no mistake," said Clyde P. Patton, Executive Director of the Wildlife Commission, "this bill is not simply a local matter in Pender County. It is of state-wide importance.

"The Wildlife Commission is operating a publicly owned 50,000 acre Game Land at Holly Shelter in Pender County for public hunting and it's being paid for by all the sportsmen of the state through hunting license fees. And yet, because of a local law, passed in 1969, this public Game Land is substantially under the 'local law' control of a few who own or lease adjoining grounds for hunting.

"Furthermore, under this law, the effect is to keep the Holly Shelter Game Land deer population at abnormally high levels which serves to restock privately controlled lands surrounding Holly Shelter," said Patton. "This happens because the public access to deer hunting on this Game Land is limited by law to a very few days each season."

Patton pointed out that not only were hunters being denied maximum use of their public property, the deer population has reached such high levels that agricultural crop depredation has become a severe problem. Farmers who depend on annual crop production for a living are being especially hard hit.

"In locations where the deer population increases to a level that it is incompatible with other important interests such as agriculture and forestry, conflict results and the sport of hunting and the image of hunters is seriously damaged," said Patton. "This could lend support to sentiment now being expressed by many people who are strongly opposed to hunting. The ultimate result could be laws which are adverse to the hunters' interests. We don't want this to happen."

The Wildlife Commission is seeking support for the revival and passage of Senate Bill 108 from all who are interested in good wildlife management and public hunting compatible with other important interests in the state.

Philadelphia Phillie manager Danny Ozark was signed by the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1941, never played with them in a league game, but was a Los Angeles Dodger coach seven years.

OUCH!

Summer electric rates are here again...

. . . and, unfortunately, there is little we can do about it. Summer rates are higher to cover the cost of extra facilities necessary to carry the heavy demands for electricity created by hot weather during the months of June, July, August and September.
We also have to pass along VEPCO's Fossil Fuel Charge. And, we don't like it any better than you do.
Fortunately the higher rates are only in effect for the four summer months. Substantially lower winter rates will return in October.
To compare winter and summer costs and to estimate the size of your summer electric bills simply study the figures beside your estimated monthly usage in the table shown below.

For A Big Lifting Job, It Takes Rugged Equipment And Strong Men

A couple of weeks ago the time arrived for placing a large air conditioner unit on top of the new North Carolina National Bank Building under construction at the corner of Greene and First Streets.

For a big job of this order, a combination of rugged equipment and husky manpower is called for. To lift the unit, the Carolina Crane Corporation of Raleigh, the firm doing the work, sent down a 75 ton BHL Lima crane.

The huge crane was outfitted with a 180 foot boom which was set at about a 70 degree angle for the pickup. While onlookers watched, the crew of workmen made preparations—first for lifting with the use of spreader bars. When this method didn't work because of the weight balance of the air conditioner unit, the crew lost no time in switching to another method, the use of cables without spreader bars.

That method worked without a hitch, In a matter of a couple of minutes the cumbersome air conditioning unit was airborne and swung into place on top of the new building.

PREPARING THE SPREADER BARS. . . workmen check and adjust cables of the spreader bar before a second crane lifts the bars in place over the air conditioner unit.

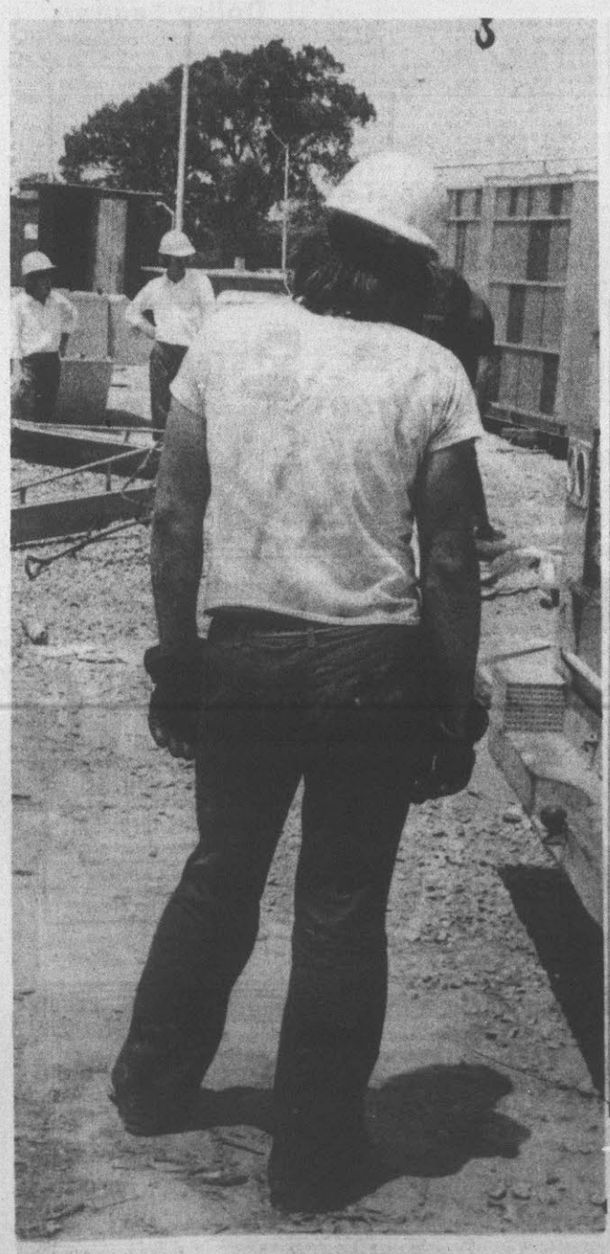

Text And Photographs By Jerry Raynor

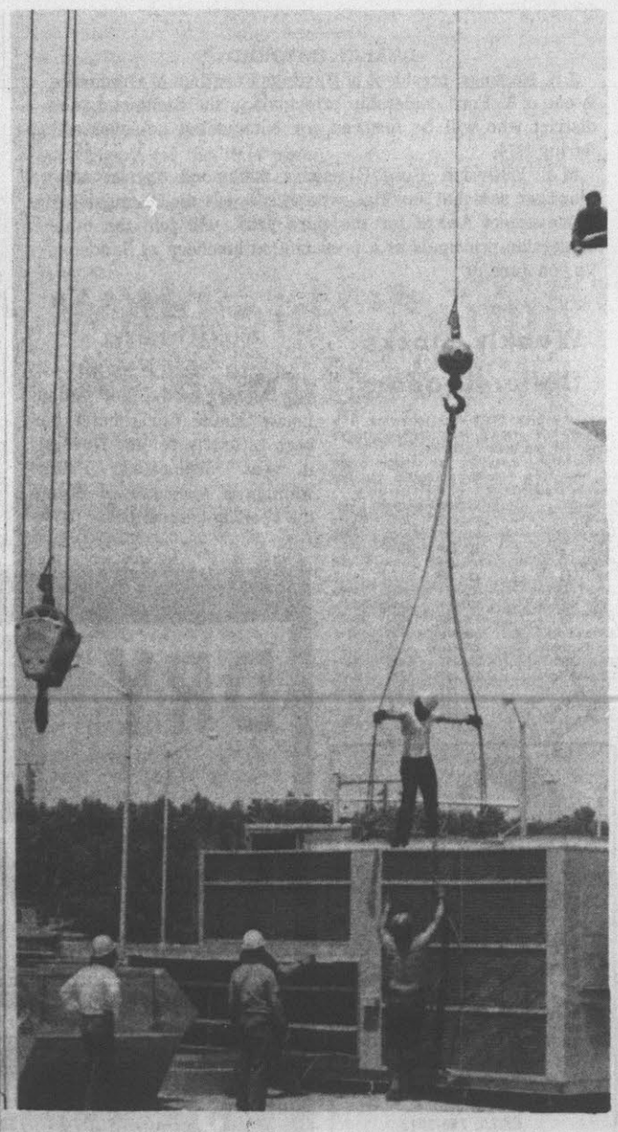

A MINOR PROBLEM DEVELOPED. . .with the spreader bars method of lift. Because of the weight balance of the unit, the unit tilted when an attempt was made to lift it.

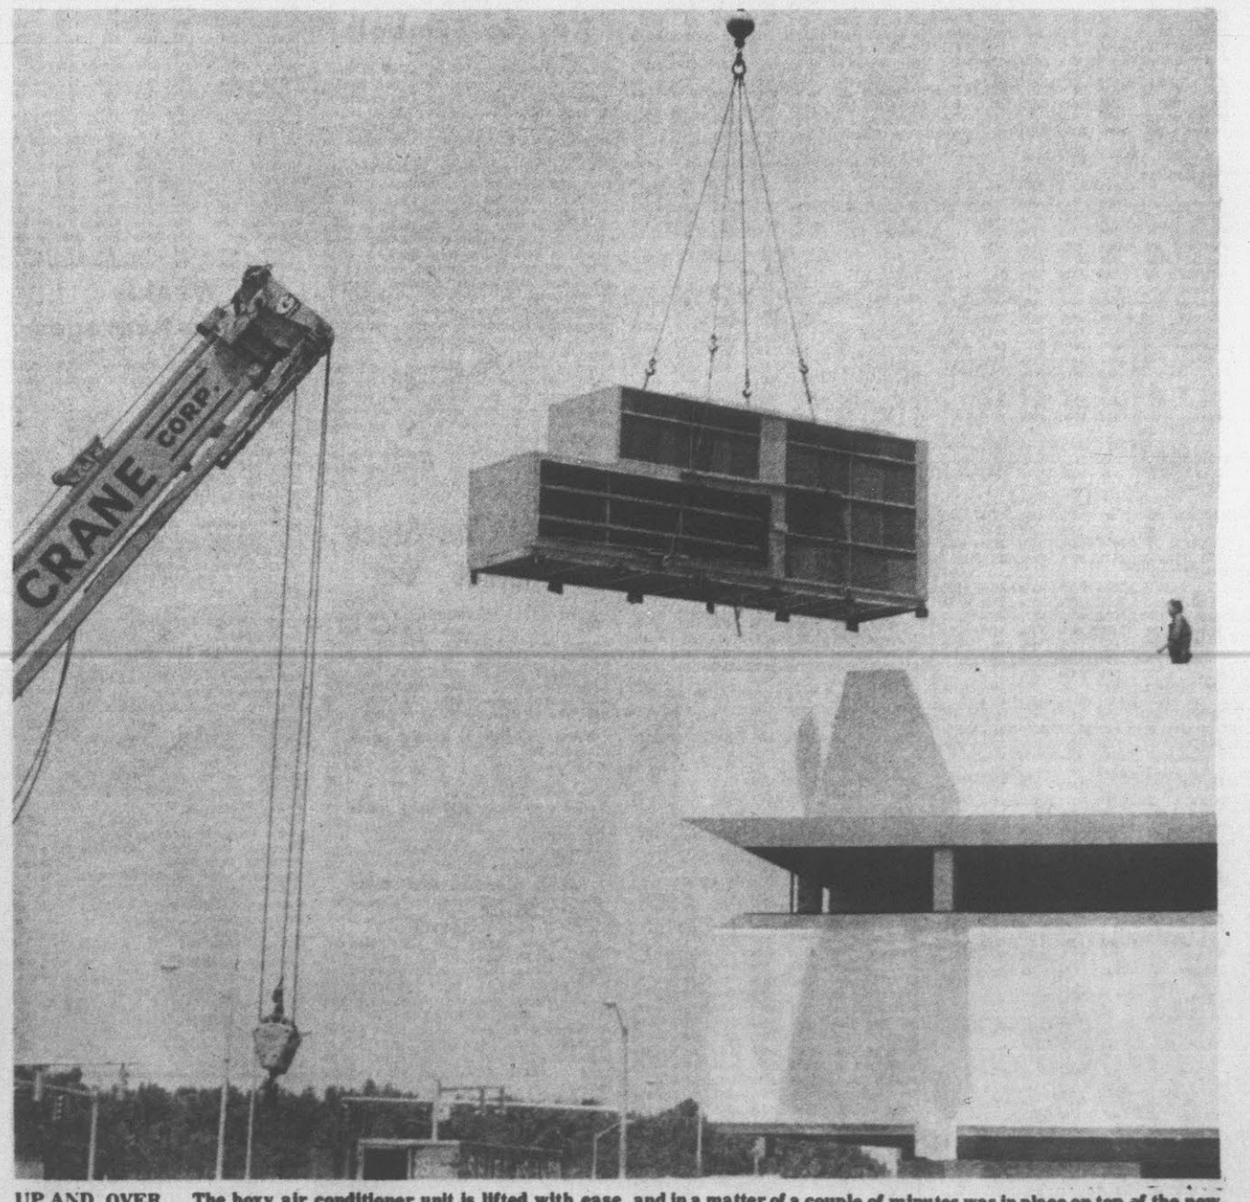

GETTING READY FOR A SECOND TRY. . .The spreader bars (at top right of photo) are lifted away as workmen cluster around the unit to discuss an alternate method for lifting the unit.

SIZING UP THE SITUATION. . .A decision is made by the man at left, who then took over preparations (photo above) for a second attempt to lift the unit without use of the spreader bars.

UP AND OVER. . .The boxy air conditioner unit is lifted with ease and in a matter of a couple of minutes was in place on top of the new NCNB Bank Building.

Concern On Dredge And Fill Operations Aired

Robert G. Little, chairman of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District, in a letter to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at Wilmington, asked the Corps to select the least restrictive method of regulating dredge and fill operations in waters of the United States.

In a news release from the Corps, the agency stated that federal permits may be required by a rancher who wants to enlarge his stock pond, or the farmer who wants to deepen an irrigation ditch or plow a field, or the mountaineer who wants to protect his land against stream erosion.

According to Little, two state legislatures, Texas and Louisiana, have passed resolutions protesting the proposed expansion of federal jurisdiction over disposal of dredged and fill material to "waters of the United States."

George R. Bagley, president of the National Association of Conservation Districts, has asked the Congress to define the term "waters of the United States," limiting those waters to waters that are navigable or that are strictly of national interest.

Robert Dettman, president of the Wisconsin Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts, in a letter to the Environmental Protection Agency, said, "If carried to the ultimate, this would create an unmanageable monster of federalism dealing with the environment which would cause unbearable costs and delays in social, economic and environmental progress.

"State and local governments are working effectively with private landowners and operators to carry on positive conservation and water quality improvement programs. To impose another layer of permit-granting authority dealing with the details of all waters in the United States is unreal."

Little said citizens of Pitt County are directly involved in the controversy.

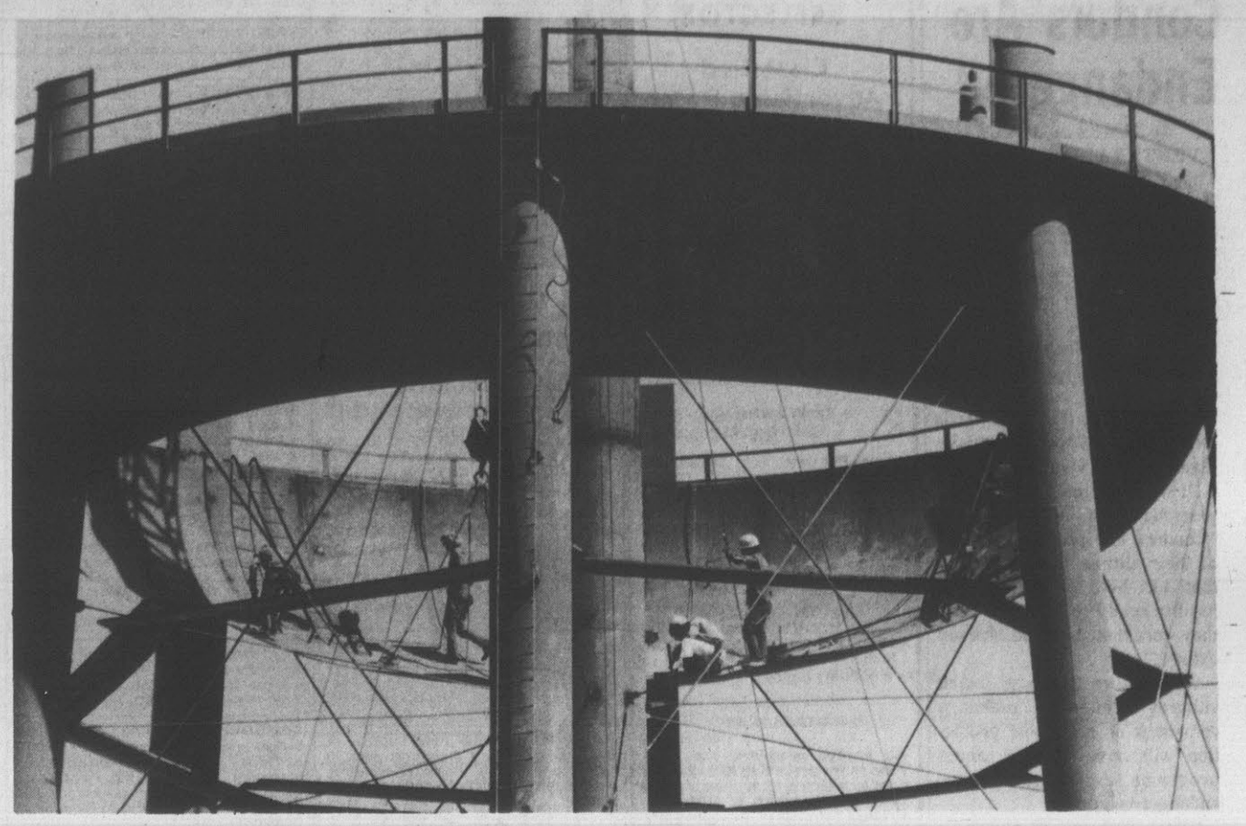

"The U.S. Environment Protection Agency stated recently that a permit would be required on the Chicod Creek Watershed Project," Little said.

The U.S. Army engineers have been ordered to revise their current regulations controlling the disposal of dredged and fill material in navigable waters to expand control to include all the waters.

Little said the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia issued the order in March in a ruling under Section 404 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendment of 1972.

However, since there is no basis in law or court edict to define the term "waters of the United States," the Corps of Engineers is offering four alternative regulations with varying scopes of application for review and public comment to assist it in the implementation of the court order.

Little said a coalition of environmental organizations is urging support for the least restrictive method of regulating dredge and fill operations in the United States.

A SPACESHIP?—At first glance one might think a spaceship is under construction, but it's in fact the new water tank under construction in Winterville. Workers are busy welding parts in place for the bottom section of the 500,000 gallon tank. Completion of the new tank and deep well is expected in August. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Insurance Bill Sent To House

RALEIGH (AP)—With the state Senate in apparent confusion, a bill to abolish age discrimination in setting North Carolina auto insurance rates has been given final approval and sent back to the House.

The Senate voted 34-5 to pass the bill Friday. Three members declined to vote because they said they did not understand the measure after several days of acrimonious debate on more than a dozen amendments.

"Maybe the House can figure it out," said one senator before the vote.

If the House refuses to concur in the Senate amendments, which were substantial, the bill will go to a conference committee.

The major changes made by the Senate were to add a provision allowing surcharges to drivers in the 16-18-year-old group and to give the authority to propose rates back to the insurance industry. The House had banned any age discrimination and given more authority over rates to state insurance Commissioner John Ingram, who is the bill's sponsor.

The insurance industry and senators who agree with its position say Ingram's plan would bankrupt them by taking away surcharges income from young drivers without allowing them to make up the difference from other drivers.

Ingram's contention is that the present system unfairly charges a male under 25 with a clean record more than a male over 25 with several tickets.

His plan would impose heavy surcharges—as much as $320—on any driver with points on his record.

In other action, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill that would make the state Ports Authority an autonomous agency within the Department of Transportation.

Ex-Secretary of Transportation Troy Doby had been involved in a jurisdictional row with authority members over control of daily ports operations and

California Condors Are Endangered

By JAMES J. DOYLE

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI)— The California condor, the largest land bird in North America, is still declining in numbers despite cooperative efforts of the state and federal governments and private agencies.

John C. Borneman, the National Audubon Society's condor warden, said there may be about 50 of the giant birds left and he is not optimistic about their survival.

"I would incline to be a little pessimistic, in fact," he said. "Condors are probably at one of their alltime lows, but past data has been so sketchy it's hard to really tell. At one time they were thought to be already extinct."

But whether the large black vultures eventually make a comeback or not, their protection will have brought about programs important to other endangered species.

"Probably one of the best things about the programs is the cooperation among the agencies," Borneman said, "federal, state and private.

"We have a lot of spinoff such as working with ranchers and others. The ranchers I've talked with are overwhelmingly sympathetic toward the bird."

But some county officials in the condor range in California are not so helpful.

"There are supervisors in some of the counties who really do not see where the condor has any significance," he said.

The condor, with a nine-foot wingspread, ranges from Fresno and Santa Clara Counties as far south as Los Angeles County. The major breeding area is in the Sespe Condor Sanctuary in Ventura County.

"The importance of the Sespe," Borneman said, "is it is where most of the available nest sites are, although there are nests outside the sanctuary. But because of the geography, it is unique in the condors' range.

"They don't build nests, as such. They find a protected ledge, a cave or a pothole, find a flat place, and lay the egg. The Sespe is so remote they usually are protected."

The eggs take about 50 days to hatch and the young remain in the nest four to five months. If all goes well, and food is found, the birds can live to be 30 to 40 years old.

But the survival rate isn't high. Man has encroached on the condor's territory in too many areas, and where man is, the birds will not go.

"The condors are the focal point of other environmental problems," Borneman said. "They are linked to land use and the cattle and sheep industries. Condors feed on dead cattle and sheep and where there are none, there may be no other food.

"Also, second home developments have made great inroads in the condor habitat, particularly in Kern and Tulare Counties, two of the major feeding areas. In Kern County alone, 100,000 acres have been rendered unusable for condors by second homes," he said.

Borneman said he hauls sheep and goat carcasses into the Sespe range to be sure there will be enough food for the birds.

If there isn't enough food for parents and their young, the condors won't stay around to watch over the young.

The only condor in captivity, Topatopa, was a victim of that instinct. Tope, as it is called, has spent most of its life in the Los Angeles Zoo, away from public view.

It—the sex has never been determined—was estimated to be eight or nine months old when discovered. It had been abandoned and was weak from hunger. It was nursed back to health at the zoo and an attempt was later made to introduce it back into its natural environment.

The try failed, Tope was recaptured and returned to the zoo.

The bird has been studied by ornithologists and just plain bird lovers. The public may get its chance next year if funds can be found for the large flight cage needed and a center to inform the public about the plight of the condors.

RESERVE CAMPSITES

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) — While these will be no nationwide reservation service this year, mailed requests for campsite reservations for the 1975 camping season will be accepted by Mount McKinley, Acadia, Grand Canyon and Platt National Parks, the Department of Interior has announced.

Rebuilding Of Ancient Nile Temples Underway

By LIZ FULTON

ASWAN, Egypt (AP) — Philae Island, located on the Nile between the old Aswan Dam and the High Dam, swarms with engineers and Nubian workers in the morning hours and then lies quiet in the heat — a curious mixture of raw French steel and granite temples inscribed 2,000 years ago.

The dangerous work of salvaging 14 temples from a watery grave is over, and the delicate and painstaking task of dismantling the monuments and rebuilding them on Agilika Island, 500 yards away, has begun.

Official estimates for the total cost of the five-year project range from $16 to $19 million, two thirds of which is paid by the U.N. Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and one third by the Egyptian government.

The resident engineer of the Philae Salvage Project, Hanna Butros, admitted work was behind schedule "but we hope the company will finish it in reasonable time, maybe two years."

The company is Condotte-Mazzi-Estero of Italy, which is responsible for the dismantling, surveying, recording and marking of each piece and then their re-assembly in the new setting.

An estimated 60,000 single ton blocks, some of them injected with reinforcing material to preserve them in a new environment after 2,000 years, will be raised by derrick or crane to boats.

Every stone will be taken to a special storage area on the mainland, where the silt of centuries will be washed away and the block restored.

Agilika Island, the new home for the Philae monuments, is not ready. Its elevation must be raised and the ground leveled. Work here fell behind because of the October 1973 Middle East war.

Work on the salvage project began in 1971. A coffer dam of some 5,000 tons of steel sheet piles was built around three quarters of Philae island. Butros said it was the only dam of its kind surrounded by water in Egypt.

For 14 months, 2,000 Nubian workers, who knew the island as Geziret Anas el-Wogud, the name of a hero in one of the stories in "A Thousand and One Nights," labored to erect the steel barriers.

"Luckily," said Butros, "there were no injuries at all, even with explosives used in some places."

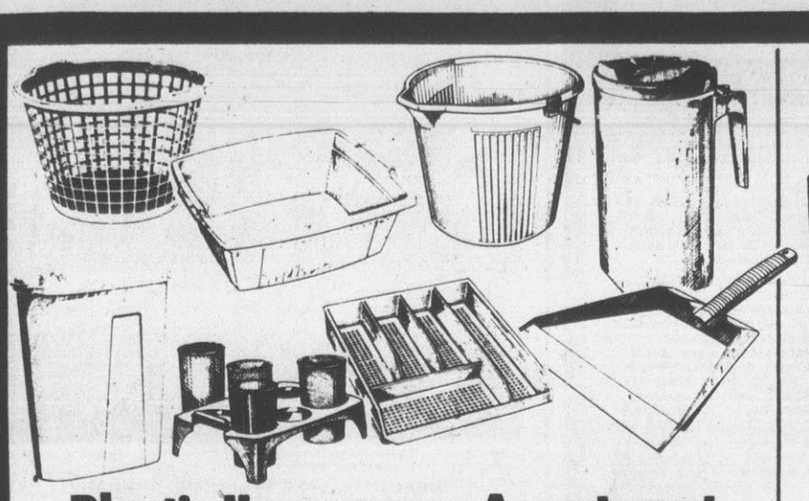

Heat stroke on the island, where the atmosphere shimmers like cellophane, was n problem because the Nub are accustomed to 100-degr plus temperatures.

When the coffer dam was ished in the early spring 1973, the drying-out process gan. Pontoon pumps v floated to lift the water out the steel confines of the d Now 12 deep well pumps s water 24 hours a day from pit of Philae Island.

Drying out should be c pleted by summer.

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.,

DEAR ABBY: I work in the security screening area of a large, international airport, and I have a complaint to register:

Many people are insulted when we check them and their hand luggage. They curse us under their breath, give us dirty looks and make snide remarks like: "Do I look like I'd highjack a plane?" Obviously most don't, but everyone must be checked, regardless.

Some travelers have exploded in anger because they had only a few minutes in which to catch their planes, and they found themselves in a long line of people who must wait their turns to go through security. Naturally, some miss their flight, and they blame us. But it's their fault, not ours, for not having allowed themselves enough time to make their planes.

You would do a great public service, Abby, if you would print this with a plea for a little more patience and consideration on the part of air travelers. We're only doing our job.

"HEY, GIRLIE, IN L.A."

DEAR HEY: The Federal Aviation Administration told Congress that in 1974, during the security check, more than 2,400 firearms were confiscated and more than 3,500 persons were arrested. It was the second consecutive year without ONE successful highjacking of a U.S. airliner. Two would-be hijackers surrendered, and a third committed suicide.

I think the inconvenience of being searched is a small price to pay for a safe flight, don't YOU? So, fellow air travelers, please get to the airport a little earlier, and make everyone happier—including yourselves.

DEAR ABBY: Mine is a rather unusual problem. My small apartment building faces a 10-story highrise. Every time I look over at that building I can see straight into this gentleman's apartment, and I know he can see into mine.

The problem? He is always alone and so am I. Every night I see him sitting there alone, including Saturday and Sunday.

I am a 28-year-old working girl, but it's hard to tell how old he is—not that it matters.

I would like to meet this man, but I don't know how to go about it. Please don't think I'm cheap. I'm not. Any suggestions?

THE GIRL ACROSS THE WAY

DEAR GIRL: I don't have the foggiest idea how you can "meet" a man in the window of a 10-story highrise across the way. If you were to play Sherlock Holmes and learn his identity by hook, crook or bribe, he might feel flattered and therefore turned on. He might also peg you as a conniving, scheming, aggressive female and be turned off. It's your choice. Me? I'd pull down my shade and forget him.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Sociologist Publishes Article On Fatherhood

A new father's adjustment to parenthood during his child's first year is the subject of an article by sociologist David Knox of East Carolina University which appears in the current issue of "American Baby" magazine.

Entitled "Fatherhood—The First Time—The First Year," the article is included in the special June Father's Day issue.

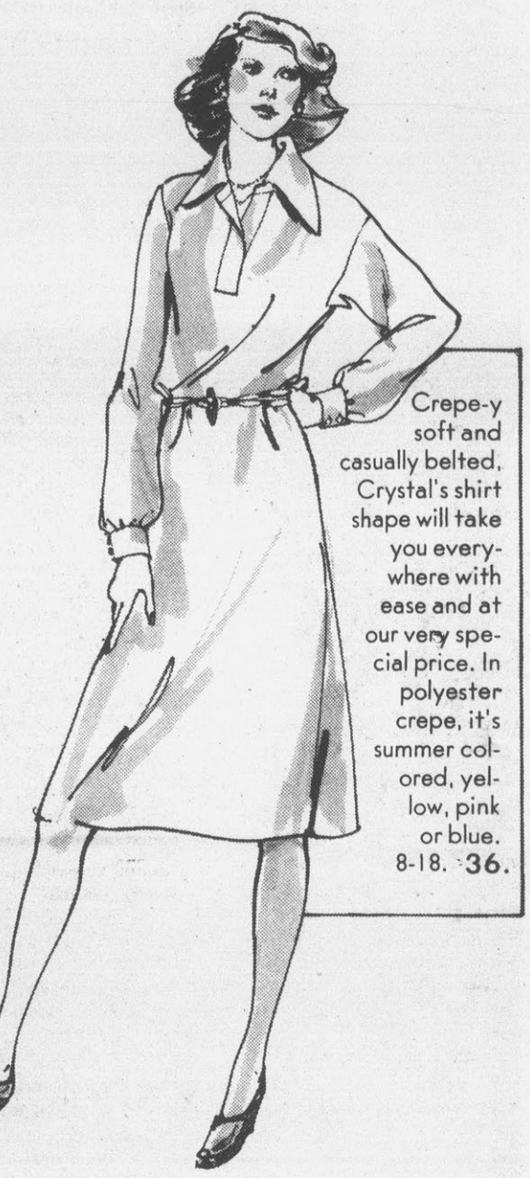

It is based on a survey of new fathers in the Greenville area which was undertaken by Dr. Knox after the recent birth of his daughter, Lisa.

At present Dr. Knox is preparing two reports on the original surveys for professional publication, in collaboration with Dr. Richard Gilman, also of the ECU Department of Sociology.

Dr. Knox is the author of three books on marriage relationships and marriage counseling and of several articles in professional journals and popular magazines.

In addition to the survey report in "American Baby," two other Knox articles on aspects of contemporary marriage are included in the June-July issues of "Modern Bride" and "Bride's Magazine."

Miss Agnes Whichard Weds Saturday Evening

Agnes Barnes Whichard and Chevois Johnson Moore Jr. were married Saturday at 8:00 p.m. at the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church.

The Rev. Horace G. Thompson officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Paul Braxton, organist, Willard Finch, clarinetist, Miss Vanlora Finch, pianist, Randy Johnson, guitarist, and Miss Madge Dews and Miss Beverly Smith, soloists.

The parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Julius F. Whichard of Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. Chevois Johnson Moore Sr. of Wilson.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal sheath gown of imported silk designed with a sweetheart neckline and short sleeves. The front featured imported silk French lace and the bodice was accented with seed pearls and sequins. The flowing chapel train of pure silk draped from the hip line.

The chapel length veil of imported silk illusion was edged in rosepoint lace. The veil was appliqued with lace medallions. It was fashioned by Mrs. Rebecca Davenport of Winterville. The bride carried a Bible, a gift of her sister, covered with a white orchid and showered with ribbon stephonotis.

Miss Anne Smith of Greenville served as maid of honor. The maid of honor and the bridesmaid's dresses were designed and fashioned by the mother of the bride. The sleeveless formal length gowns were empire styles and made of red and white polyester gingham. The scoop neck was adorned with a ruffle and accented with white cluny lace.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Lou W. Crouch from Ayden and Mrs. Hill W. Stancil of Farmville, both sisters of the bride, and Miss Gail Evans of Winterville.

Miss Phoebe Crouch of Ayden and Miss Susie Stancill of Farmville, both nieces of the bride, were junior bridesmaids. Their princess styled formal gowns were of identical fabric as the bridesmaids and they carried the same flowers.

The paternal grandmothers are Mrs. John Moore of Chester, S.C., and Mrs. Mary Brown of Wilson.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length light blue knit dress with sheer long sleeves. The mother of the bridegroom chose a blue formal length gown. The mothers and the grandmothers wore white cymbidium corsages.

Jason T. Whichard, nephew of the bride, acted as ring bearer. The best man was the father of the bridegroom. Ushers were William S. Moore and Robert T. Moore, both brothers of the bridegroom of Wilson, Douglas C. Tabb Jr. of Wilson, Gregory F. Whichard of Moorehead City, brother of the bride, and the junior ushers were Junius Walter Stancil of Farmville and Burleigh O. Crouch III of Ayden, nephews of the bride.

After the ceremony, the bride's parents gave a reception at the Winterville Community Building. The wedding party, out-of-town guests and family were entertained.

An after rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom at the Ayden Country Club.

The bride was honored at a bridal luncheon, given by Mrs. Phoebe Barnes Owens, cousin of the bride, in her home. She was also honored at showers given by Madge Dews, and Beverly Smith and also by Mrs. Sallie Broughton, Mrs. Myrtle Averett and Mrs. Linda Garrett.

The couple will take a wedding trip to Fontana Village, and then make their residence in Rocky Mount.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina with a BS in nursing. She will be working as a nurse at Nash General Hospital, Rocky Mount. The bridegroom is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College and is employed by the Vocational Rehabilitation, functioning at R.T. Fountain Diagonostic Center, Rocky Mount.

Rezeli-Gregory Vows Said In Ceremony

CHAPEL HILL—The University Baptist Church here was the scene of the marriage on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock of Miss Gail Charlotte Gregory, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Worth B. Gregory Jr., to David Joseph Rezeli, son of Col. and Mrs. Frank M. Rezeli of Fayetteville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white organza designed with a high neckline encircled with a ruffle of pleated organza. The bib effect bodice of French imported chantilly lace beaded in pearls and iridescent crystal beads was outlined in the ruffled pleated organza. The sheer bishop sleeves featured a border of the beaded lace with ruffled organza trimming the fitted cuffs. The modified empire waistline was accentuated by a band of white satin. The flared skirt was edged at the hemline in a deep ruffle flounce of pleated organza that extended around the attached chapel train.

She wore a bouffant illusion veil held in place by a Camelot cap to match her gown. The bride carried a bouquet of roses, carnations and baby's breath.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

This year, there are 60 million Americans who are planting vegetable gardens.

Have you any idea what it means to have 60 million tillers of the soil running loose? I'll give it to you straight. It means there will have to be at least 210 million tillees to eat the stuff at harvest time, and frankly, I don't think we have the population to handle it.

At last count, there were 80 million adult non-gardeners in this country. Of this amount, 32 million are allergic to tomatoes and their faces break out after eating the first bushel. Twenty-eight million are still eating bread and butter pickles they canned in 1958, and of the reamining 20 million, 18 million had their teeth turn green during July and August.

To begin with, the harvest of a home garden never occurs when the gardener is at home. He is always on vacation. I don't know how this phenomenon occurs, but I have known tillers who have hung around all summer waiting for their labors to bear fruit. They have a few hours for a dental appointment only to return and realize they've missed the harvest.

Another phenomenon is that you can share your garden with friends. After the first 500 pounds of bib lettuce, a gardener has no friends.

Several years ago, my husband and I visualized an orchard in our backyard. One pear tree seemed inadequate, so we planted 12 of them. One day, our daughter came running into the house feverish with excitement. "Our first pear," she exclaimed. We put the pear on the mantel and hooked up a three-colored revolving light used on the tree at Christmas and watched it glisten.

Several weeks later, when we had tired of pear delight, pear salad, pear pie, pear cake, pears over cereal, pear casserole, pear omelets, pear pizza and pear sandwiches, we started to make house calls with them.

By the fifth week of harvest, I began to feel like a Welcome Wagon lady on the moon. As I approached a house with a shopping bag of pears, I would observe cars in the driveway, doors wide open, radios blaring draperies moving, but no visible signs of human life.

When the next year rolled around, our daughter once again announced, "Our first pear." We clapped a hand over her mouth and sent her to her room.

I know the work involved in gardening and it is gratifying that the American people are intent on solving the food problem, but the real heroes of the war against inflaion have to be the non-gardeners who smile and burp, "Why, everyone can use another bushel of radishes!"

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Warm weather calls for main-dish salads. So here's a hearty one designed for a company lunch or for one of the help-yourself main dishes at a buffet supper.

Freshly cooked rice makes the base, large pimiento-stuffed green olives add elegance and the other ingredients are happily chosen. The rice is tossed with half the oil-and-vinegar dressing while it is still warm (but not hot). This procedure keeps the rice grains from sticking together; also, warm rice picks up seasonings better than it does when it's cold.

MAIN-DISH RICE SALAD

2-3rds cup salad oil
¼ cup cider vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons minced parsley
1 teaspoon dried oregano leaves
3 cups freshly cooked warm (but not hot) rice
1 cup diced celery
½ cup sliced large pimiento stuffed olives
1½ cups cubed cooked ham (about ½ pound)
½ pound snap beans (tipped, cut and cooked until tender crisp), chilled
4 hard-cooked eggs, halved
2 medium tomatoes, cut in wedges

In a 2-cup measure beat together the oil, vinegar, salt, pepper, sugar, parsley and oregano. Turn rice, celery, olives and ham into a large mixing bowl; add ½ of the oil-vinegar mixture and toss well; cover and chill for several hours. At serving time, turn rice mixture onto the center of a platter; surround with beans; alternate eggs and tomatoes around beans and drizzle remaining oil-vinegar mixture over them. Makes 4 hearty main-dish luncheon servings, more if used as one of the dishes on a buffet supper table.

A bone-in ham half (shank or butt portion) may cost less per serving than a fully cooked boneless ham.

The Bloom Is Gone For Woman Governor

By ROBECT LAMBERT

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — For Ella T. Grasso, the nation's only woman governor, the bloom is off the rose, the honeymoon is over and reality has replaced the kleig lights.

For weeks after her inauguration Jan. 8, Mrs. Grasso was in the national and international limelight. Many hours a day were taken up with interviews with newspapers, magazines and television from around the world.

Mrs. Grasso, who just turned 56, was a curiosity and a model for the rest of the world to see in this, the International Year of the Woman.

Now, most of the camera crews are gone —although Hungarian television did an interview recently —and such mundane problems as taxes, an austerity state budget, state employe pay hikes and political patronage have taken up her time.

Mrs. Grasso has generated an image of a moderately conservative Democrat, and she has had to say "no" to educators, welfare rights groups and state employes because, as she puts it, "the cupboard is bare."

A monumental effort to cut spending produced a budget, representing the smallest percentage increase in spending in a decade, that pleased virtually no one.

Yet, she had to raise taxes by nearly a quarter of a billion dollars, wiping out the federal government's tax rebates for individuals and businesses.

She has taken positions that would enhance her standing among many middle Americans: against legalizing marijuana, favoring mandating of silent meditation in the schools, against abortion, and favoring the death penalty.

When more than 100,000 Vietnam refugees were en route to the United States, Mrs. Grasso, the daughter of Italian immigrants, said she could not extend an official welcome because of the state's high unemployment rate.

Very conscious of her public image, Mrs. Grasso has donated her $7,000 pay increase to the state treasury and rides in a state police cruiser from the executive residence to her second-floor office in the State Capitol.

Mrs. Grasso has delighted in making public appearances and was the honorary ringmaster at the opening performance of the Barnam and Bailey, Ringling Brothers Circus.

She cheered on the New England Whalers of the World Hockey Association at home games in Hartford but was dismayed one evening when she was booed as she was introduced over the loud speaker system.

She enjoys doing her own cooking when she returns to her home in Windsor Locks, a small industrial community 20 miles north of Hartford where she grew up.

When she can get away from the bustle of the State Capitol, she retreats to her summer home on the shore in Old Lyme or visits historic sites in the state.

Mrs. Grasso is working on ways to revitalize the state's lagging construction industry by tapping a backlog of approved highway and public works projects. Environmentalists, however, were outraged at what appeared to be a turning back on the movement toward clean air and water.

At the same time, Mrs. Grasso supported a bill to eliminate one-way bottles and cans and made a point of opposing a plan to land supecsonic transport aircraft at the Windsor Locks airport, not far from her home.

She also signed a bill repealing the state's fair trade laws and one that authorized advertising of prescription drug prices.

A Phi beta Kappa at Mount Holyoke College, Mrs. Grasso served two terms as a congresswoman, three terms as secretary of the state and two terms as a state representative.

Novelist Is Tripple Crown Winner

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Living Editor

Novelist Virginia Hamilton is to juvenile fiction what Secretariat was to horse racing a couple of years ago —a triple crown winner.

Miss Hamilton's "M. C. Higgins, the Great" (Macmillan) this year captured the Newbery Medal, the National Book Award and the Boston Globe-Horn Book Award. She is the first author ever to win all three in a single year.

Her book is about a teen-age black boy who lives with his family in an isolated strip-mining area very much like the section of southern Ohio where Miss Hamilton grew up.

In an interview, she said she tries to reflect life, to tell a good story with a plot and characters.

"If there is a message, it will show through."

Miss Hamilton, who is black and the mother of two children, ages 7 and 11, said she writes through a black medium, "but you can't depend on one ethnic group to get enough readers."

She sometimes writes about dangerous acts children perform when no adults are around to prevent them. There was a time, she said, when "people didn't worry about them, didn't think about the trouble they could get into.

"We used to go in a cousin's barn," she recalled. "There was an oak crossbeam at the very top. We used to walk across it for hours. Then we got the idea of blindfolding each other. We had no fear."

They hurt themselves only occasionally, she added.

A few years ago, authors writing about black children were expected to write about settings the children knew, she said:

"This gave rise to the ghetto book."

Miss Hamilton's mail from young readers indicates that whites as well as blacks identify with her characters.

"A white girl in Alberta, Canada, said she was white but 'I could just as well be black,' and that my books had taught her that being black is not very different.

"What I think I'm doing is showing that even what is different is the same. The same fears, the same hopes, trying to put food on the table, to survive. M.C. is trying to look after other people whose lives are threatened by outside sources. You never really see the mining machines, but you see the spoil heap. You see the damage, but not the people who created it —the absentee landpords, huge coal companies, conglomerates.

"There is a kind of isolation of spirit in my characters. They are on the edge of society or (they are set apart) because of the way they look. One girl (in an earlier book) was isolated because she was very tall. Another, a 14-year-old boy, was grossly overweight. M.C. is rather isolated on top of his pope.

"I have a feeling it harks back to the thirties, close ufter the Depression. Pole-sitting used to be an American pastime."

In addition to writing, Miss Hamilton and her husband, poet Arnold Adoff, give help and advice to students in Yellow Springs, Ohio, where they live.

"They want to know how I do it. I tell them 'what's important is that I learned over 15 years ago to sit down and write every day.'

"They want an easy way to learn to write. There isn't one. Fiction demands a great deal of concentration. You're creating history and atmosphere when you write."

She tells them:

"Keep writing, try to get all the help you can from your teachers and parents. Don't worry about grammar and spelling. Enjoy writing.

"Children don't have (a large) vocabulary, and it doesn't occur to them yet that you learn."

IT'S RENTED.
(If you don't tell anybody we won't)

Sweden Today A Staging Area For Terrorist Gangs

By EMIL R. SVEILIS

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden has become a popular staging area for foreign terrorists and a hideaway haven for their comrades on the run.

Not only are the guerrillas drawing plans here for attacks in other countries, but they are also giving eight million Swedes the jitters by keeping police guessing where the next attack in Sweden might be made.

Sweden was rocked April 24 when six West German anarchists belonging to the leftist Baader-Meinhof gang stormed the West German embassy in Stockholm and blew it up. Four persons died in the assault, two of them guerrillas and two West German diplomats.

"Nothing rules out an eventual risk of new terrorist actions in Sweden," said Hans Wermdalen, Stockholm bureau chief of the Swedish security police. "Our open society is an invitation for terrorists."

All of the terrorists who occupied the West German embassy were caught or killed, but police are certain that an unknown number of comrades who helped stage the embassy attack are still hiding somewhere in Sweden.

Just before the attack on the West German embassy, the Swedish Labor Department urged parliament to modify a law that gives police the right to detain and search a suspected terrorist on the spot.

But after the embassy incident, parliament reaffirmed the law by an overwhelming vote.

Security police are watching several suspected terrorists groups. They include Palestinian Arabs, suspected members of the Japanese Red Army, the Baader-Meinhof group and its offshoots, and some Yugoslav separatists.

Police have monitored clandestine radio transmissions beamed abroad from south-central Sweden, but so far they have not been able to locate the short-wave radio believed to belong to the Japanese Red Army.

The Baader-Meinhof gang is named for Andreas Baader and Ulrike Meinhof, currently on trial in Germany for murder, arson and robbery. It is thought to have its Swedish headquarters in or near the southern university town of Lund.

Shortly before the embassy bombing, police thought they had several members cornered, but they managed to escape.

Early in March, security police swooped down on two Japanese sitting in a car outside an embassy complex in Stockholm and hauled them in for questioning.

Police found in their possession more than 300 photographs and dozens of sketches of the building complex and the people who worked there.

The two were deported to Japan after they had been identified as members of the Red Army, a leftist terrorist organization which, among other things, claimed responsibility for the Lod airport massacre of 25 persons in Israel three years ago.

Police later said the two were planning an attack against the Lebanese embassy, located in the complex.

Sweden's policy is to get rid of captured terrorists as soon as possible. Deportations have been arranged and carried out within hours.

After the capture of the West German terrorists and announcement of their extradition, Prime Minister Olof Palme said there was "no advantage to having these kinds of criminals here."

Several days later hastily scrawled aerosol paint slogans began appearing on Stockholm buildings saying the Baader-Meinhof gang was planning to return.

On May 9 the Stockholm newspaper Expressen received a mysterious letter from Hamburg, West Germany, demanding $850,000 and threatening the lives of Sweden's Princess Christina and Anna-Greta Leijon, minister without portfolio. Mrs. Leijon was instrumental in arranging the extradition of the embassy terrorists.

The letter also said that "a certain church in Stockholm" would be blown up "where the believers already today can say their last prayers and sing 'Nearer My God To Thee'."

Another recent threat was to kidnap West German school children in Stockholm. The children are now under tight police protection.

The Soviet embassy is set back about 75 yards from the street and surrounded by a stone wall and heavy iron gates, above which a remote-controlled television camera zooms in and out 24 hours a day.

"Even if they get past that, we have several men on duty around the clock inside the building armed to the teeth with automatic weapons," the Soviet diplomat said.

The American embassy also is improving its security. Bullet-proof glass recently was installed immediately inside the reception area, and a wide television surveillance of the grounds was set up.

Migrants Have Fowl Cholera

DENVER (UPI) — Waterfowl migrating to the rainwater basin of Nebraska have been struck by fowl cholera, a disease which has already killed an estimated 5,000 geese and 10,000 ducks on their way north.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Nebraska Department of Game, Fish and Parks are cooperating in identification of the disease, a survey of the magnitude and cleaning up dead and dying birds.

The disease occurs frequently in Texas and California but is rather rare in the midwest.

CHIPPENHAM, England (UPI) — A unique photography museum opens in the grounds of 13th century Lacock Abbey, 90 miles west of London, June 27. The Fox Talbot Museum commemorates the invention of modern photography by William Henry Fox Talbot (1800-1877) who lived and worked near the abbey.

FAMILY TREE—Every time Anthony Prins of Grand Rapids, Mich. goes to his garage he walks all over his family. In to the concrete he etched his name and those of his wife, Katy, three daughters, three sons-in-law, 11 grandchildren, the husband of one of his granddaughters, a great-granddaughter, three brothers-in-law, five sisters-in-law, a niece and his sister. Prins also fashioned blocks to commemorate the brothers-in-law, a son-in-law and a sister all of whom have died. (AP Wirephoto)

Can Deposit Bills Killed

NEW YORK (AP) — Environmentalists are facing stiff resistance in their bid to get state legislators to enact laws that would impose 3-to 5-cent deposits on all beer and soft drink bottles and cans.

A survey shows that of the 40 states with such bills in the legislative hopper, 24 have already rejected the legislation as both inflationary and a potential cause of unemployment. Only three states — Oregon, Vermont and South Dakota — have enacted such laws.

Proponents of the forced deposit bills claim that roadways throughout the nation would be cleaner and that valuable resources could be saved under a returnable bottle system.

Labor and industry leaders on the other hand confirm that 100,000 jobs are at stake nationally, and that a two-way system will cause product prices to rise. Along with many lawmakers, they support broad-based litter control programs and resource recovery and recycling, pointing out that "bottle bills" have had minimal impact on roadside litter.

Stanford Works For Iran TV

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — A $978,000, three-year contract to assist in planning a domestic communication satellite system for rural telephone and educational television series has been awarded Stanford University by the government of Iran.

Prof. Bruce Lusignan of electrical engineering and Edwin Parker of communications are serving as principal investigators for the telecommunication planning study for National Iranian Radio Television. Five NIRT technicians are at Stanford working with the Stanford staff.

Near-Paradise For Rockhounds

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — There's gems in them thar hills — especially for the rockhound in Idaho. A rockhound is an outdoor enthusiast who collects precious stones and minerals. And, according to Rand McNally's "Outdoor Recreation Guide," Idaho is a virtual paradise for that pursuit.

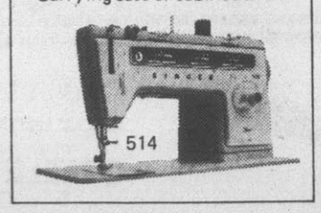

Richard Dunlop, the book's author, reports that agate and opal are plentiful in the southern part of the state; garnet and emerald abound in the north; ruby and even some diamonds can be found in central Idaho.

Our Summer Program for children 4 and up.

For children 4 and up, summer at Mini-Skool will be unmatched in adventures and excitement. In June, Tom Sawyer will lead the way. Tom had the wonderful gift of finding fun in everything he did. Mini-Skoolers will share this gift, trying all the things Tom and Huck enjoyed. Hiking. Fishing. Painting. Over-night camping. Woodworking. And much, much more.

July will be Mystery Month as Mini-Skoolers explore our skool and community for clues to exciting fun and mystical experiences. In August, the wacky characters and experiences of Dr Suess will come to life for the enrichment of all.

Where will all the "Cats In The Hats" (our excellent staff) be? Supervising it all. And making sure your child has a summer packed with safe enjoyment and happy experiences. We're going all out to make Summer at Mini-Skool the very best kind of summer. So make sure you register your child for June, July and August right now. We want to accommodate as many children as possible. For more information, call us.

A Salute To Sir Lew

John Lennon was "Slippin' and Slidin'" to the tune of his rock hit in the Grand Ballroom of the New York Hilton one unseasonably warm April day. Julie Andrews and Tom Jones at the same time were rehearsing a love song duet in the hotel's Rhinelander Room, while on the sixth floor, Peter Sellers was pre-recording his comedy act to "sweeten the bark" of the participating dogs.

The stars were about to pay tribute to a man who has been involved in their careers and whose own career spans the spectrum of show business in such areas as television, theatre, movies and concerts — Sir Lew Grade, the internationally-celebrated British impresario. Their performances will be seen on the ABC Television Network special presentation of "Salute to Sir Lew — The Master Showman," Friday, June 13, 9:00 to 10:00 p.m., on Ch. 3-5-12. Also on the program are British comic Dave Allen and the Second Generation Dancers. The New York Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences had arranged the gala evening on April 18 to honor Sir Lew Grade.

Sporting a large red and white "Salute to Sir Lew" button, an Englishman's poor-boy cap, a long red scarf and round, rose-colored sun glasses, Lennon mesmerized wandering hotel visitors who had stumbled into the ballroom when he ran through his hit song, "Imagine," which he dedicated to Sir Lew and Yoko Ono at the gala. One visitor to the rehearsal was Sir Lew himself, who expressed delight at the singer's button.

Moments later, Peter Sellers joined Lennon's audience and bounced to the infectious rock beat as he sidestepped rushing crewmen working feverishly to set up equipment. "Sir Lew dances, too," said Sellers, "but it's the Charleston for him." Sir Lew won the World's Charleston Championship in his early days as a performer and often displays his hoofing talents as he did on the night of the tribute. Sellers went on to say that his association with the showman dates back more than 20 years when he joined the talent agency Sir Lew and his brother, Leslie, operated in the '40s and 50s. "It's been a memorable experience," said Sellers.

GALA TRIBUTE—Julie Andrews, Peter Sellers, Tom Jones and John Lennon (from top left) perform at a gala entertainment tribute to Sir Lew Grade (center) internationally-celebrated British impresario, which will be presented as an ABC-TV special Friday, June 13 (9-10 p.m.) on channels 3W-5-12.

Summer Brings 3 New Series

Three new prime time series - "Keep on Truckin'," "The Jim Stafford Show" and "Almost Anything Goes" - and a return engagement of "The Texas Wheelers," with six new episodes, will air this summer on ABC-TV.

These special summer series, each with widely different family appeal, will premiere on different dates during the coming three months. The programs, listed chronologically by premiere date, are:

"The Texas Wheelers" return on Thursday, June 26. The earth contemporary comedy series deals with the four motherless Wheeler children and their widowed father, Zack, who is the most irresponsible, no-account, indolent-but lovable-character in the Lone Star state.

"Keep On Truckin'," a new variety hour of music and fast-paced contemporary comedy staring 14 newcomers, premieres in the first of its four variety hours on Saturday, July 12. Underscored by the musical beat of the '70s, the stock company 'in residence' includes zanies, impressionists, stunt people, singers and dancers.

"The Jim Stafford Show" stars the singer-musician-composer-humorist the New York Times calls "a cheerful entertainer accomplished at everything he does" and whom Billboard described as "a brilliant young man absolutely bursting with talent. His first album included the slyly comic hit called "My Girl Bill." The series, which will include major guest stars, premieres Wednesday, July 30.

"Almost Anything Goes" premieres Thursday, August 7, and presents a series of competitions between teams representing different American cities within a given geographical region. The contests, taped each week in outdoor locations of stadium size, involve appropriate costumes, gigantic props and obstacle courses of epic proportions.

Footnote To Landon Career

Mike Landon, producer-star of "Little House on the Prairie," is walking with a cane because of torn ligaments in his foot. "During 14 years on 'Bonanza,' " Mike says, "doing all my own stunts, I never broke a fingernail. But the other day, playing football with some kids, I stepped in a hole and almost broke my neck."

Morgan Throws A Fit

"I was having screaming fits today," sighed Morgan Fairchild, the small, slender blond star who plays Jennifer Pace in "Search For Tomorrow" (seen weekdays on CBS-TV). Just what had caused this outburst?

"I learned today that my lover on the show, Scott, is going back to his wife," Morgan said. Of course, avid 'Search' fans know that Morgan helped 'do in' her lover's father, "which is something he was contemplating doing himself," she said. Thus, the screams, fits and even a couple of suicide attempts!

In real life, Morgan is nothing like what she plays on the screen. She's a happy, upbeat girl thoroughly enjoying her life in the big city. That little trace of soft, southern accent you may detect in her lilting voice can be traced to her Dallas, Texas, girlhood, as can her acting ambition. It was her mother who introduced her to drama, not necessarily to have an actress in the family, but to cure her elder daughter of acute shyness.

After many months of intensive work in a dramatic school, Morgan got up the courage to audition for a children's theater production. And even tho the shyness persisted, an affliction strangely enough developed that also persisted. Because of this 'affliction,' Morgan went on to star in many professionals productions and to do modeling at the famed Neiman-Marcus department store.

Morgan married when she was just 17. The marriage lasted six years and ended two years ago.

"When I got the divorce, I didn't see any reason to stay in Texas. When I look back now, it was kind of nervy of me to go to New York because of all my security in Texas. The easiest thing in the world would have been to stay down there with my friends and family. I was making a lot of money modeling too."

It was a big step, but one she's never regretted. Once in New York, Morgan took roles in road show comedies and dramas and now has her steady role on 'Search.' The writers and producers are so enthusiastic about her that they've now built her role into an integral part of the drama.

" 'Morgan' is frequently mistaken for a man's name," she says, "and it isn't my real name. The famous movie of that name had more than a bit to do with the choice. I identified enormously with that," she laughed. "Morgan the misfit! I simply named myself after the movie."

So, armed with a name "that catches people off-guard," Morgan Fairchild is happily awaiting the unexpected adventures that lurk behind every corner for a mischievous and beautiful 'misfit' like herself!

MORGAN FAIRCHILD, the small, slender blonde star, portrays Jennifer Pace in "Search For Tomorrow" which can be seen Monday through Friday on CBS-TV at 12:30 p.m.

SHOWS STRAIN— Lee Majors, as Steve Austin, shows the strain of his harrowing experience as he surfaces after having been left for dead in a discontented diving bell on the ocean floor off an unfriendly Latin American country in "Act of Piracy," on ABC-TV's "Six Million Dollar Man" Sunday, June 8 (7:30-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 3-12.

McMillans Are Surrounded By Suspects

Susan Strasberg, Pat Harrington, and pro football stars Gene Washington and Dick Butkus guest-star in "Guilt by Association," a two-hour "McMillan and Wife" drama, starring Rock Hudson and Susan Saint James, to be colorcast on "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" June 8, 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. on Ch. 6-7.

The McMillans' maid, Mildred (Nancy Walker), is attacked while on jury duty and her fright is compounded when a fellow juror is slain the next evening in a security-proof hotel. The mysterious slaying leaves Commissioner McMillan with a host of suspects, especially pro grid star Luke Johnson (Washington), already standing trial for homicide.

The cast includes John Schuck as Sgt. Enright; Strasberg as Virginia Rhine; Pat Harrington as house detective Mordanti; Butkus as coach Urbanowski; Dennis Patrick as defense lawyer Leon Silver; Paul Stevens as Buddy Stone; John Randolph as Andrew Brill; Tracy Reed as Lena Johnson; Walter Brooke as District Attorney Chapman; and David Soul and Jared Martin as the security guards Jerry and Mike.

Cameo appearances are made by TV newsmen Ken Jones and Larry Burrell as TV reporters; NBC sportscaster Charlie Jones as Tom Newscaster; and syndicated TV columnist Joan Crosby and Altovise Davis (wife of Sammy Davis) as jurors.

Robert Blake Had His Stage Start At The Age Of 2

Robert Blake, star of ABC-TV's "Baretta" series seen Wednesday', didn't 'cut his teeth' in show business. . .not quite, but almost. Actually, he started acting when he was two years old when he participated in a song-and dance act with his father, brother and his sister. Not long after his dancing debut, he went to Hollywood to work in "Our Gang" comedies with Spanky McFarland. After he'd grown up a little, he played an Indian lad called Little Beaver in the "Red Ryder" motion picture series.

These films he did as Bobby Blake; a name that 'ended' with the film "The Black Rose" in 1950. As Robert Blake his credits begin with "Pork Chop Hill" and continue through "Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here."

The same sort of duality reaches into Blake's television and attaches itself to "Baretta." This highly popular series is a revival of "Toma," which had been popular with everyone except the star, Tony Musante. Musante warned the 'powers that be' that he just might become bored with the series, but noone listened to him..at least, not until he said "No, thanks" to a second year as "Toma."

ABC-TV decided to revive "Toma" and to put Robert Blake in the role. A few weeks later, "Toma" became "Baretta." The comparisons, however, remain. "Baretta" like "Toma" is a policeman and he is one who uses all kinds of disguises to catch lawbreakers.

Blake's movie and television credits read like a recital of anthology drama of the 50s, 60s and 70s. He has been working steadily, usually submerging himself so thoroughly in the character that the movie-goer or the television viewer was rarely aware that he was watching an adult actor named Robert Blake. One of his choice roles was playing killer Perry Smith in the motion picture version of Truman Capote's "In Cold Blood."

David Janssen Starring In Comedy-Drama

David Janssen, who plays the title role in ABC's "Harry O" series, stars as a sharp Las Vegas gambler who decides to teach his idealistic son a few facts of life in the dog-eat-dog world, only to wind up learning a few things himself in "Where It's At," a modern comedy-drama on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," June 8, 8:30 to 10:30 p.m., on Ch. 3W-5-12.

Rosemary Forsyth, Robert Drivas, Branda Vaccaro and Don Rickles are also starred in the United Artists feature, produced by Frank Ross and written and directed by Garson Kanin.

A FOURTH TIME AROUND

Production has resumed on "The Streets of San Francisco," the highly rated detective drama series which begins its fourth year on ABC-TV in the fall.

"THERE ARE THINGS", Captain Jacques Cousteau notes, "which nobody has seen before." Some of those fantastic sights are explored in "Beneath the Frozen World", on "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau", the ABC News action-adventure series, which airs on Monday, June 9 (8-9 p.m.) on channels 3W-5-12.

Cousteau In Antarctic

"There are things," Captain Cousteau notes, "which nobody has seen before!"

Captain Cousteau's excited reference is to the abundance of life discovered by him and his divers in "Beneath the Frozen World." This special on the Antartic will be presented on "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau," ABC News action - adventure series to be aired on Monday, June 9, 8 to 9 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

Divers from the Calypso, descending to previously inaccessible sites beneath the ice of the frozen continent, share a kindred danger with hundreds of thousands of other warm-blooded creatures which surface in order to breathe, and which can be trapped under the ice. Such denizens of the deep include Sei whales, killer whales, elephant seals, leopard seals and crabeater seals.

The divers, hauling their equipment across ice shelves by sledge to seal holes, accomplish their descent to the previously unexplored ocean floor. Wearing cold-resistant unisuits and utilizing self-contained underwater lights and homing transceivers, the divers are able to find their way back to the small escape holes in the ice.

Among the underwater creatures they encounter are the Weddel seal, which can dive for periods exceeding an hour, reaching incredible depths of 1,800 feet and matching or outperforming the sperm whale.

Underwater filming includes scenes of the almost unknown fauna, a brilliant revelation of corals, sponges, marine worms, sea spiders, crabs and even octopi. The semi-transparent ice fish, with "anti-freeze protein" instead of red blood cells or hemoglobin, is photographed for the first time underwater. Dives through icy cave-like catacombs are incredibly beautiful and extremely dangerous.

James Arness Started In School Operettas

James Arness (U.S. Marshal Matt Dillon on "Gunsmoke") was born 51 years ago in Minneapolis. He became interested in acting while attending John Burroughs grade school, Ramsey Junior High and West High School, from which he was graduated. Because he particularly enjoyed singing, he took part in school operettas.

In 1942, he entered Beloit College in Wisconsin, but his studies were interrupted by military service. As a member of the 3rd Infantry Division he was involved in the bitter fighting of the Italian campaign. Wounded at Anzio, he was hospitalized for a year and was discharged in 1945.

On his return to Minneapolis, he joined radio station WIOL as an announcer and took some stage and radio dramatic roles before moving to Hollywood. After two little-theatre appearances he was given a screen test at Warner Brothers. It was a failure, but his discouragement was followed by a role in the movie "The Farmer's Daughter." Then came three lean years in which he worked as a laborer, carpenter and salesman and made sporadic appearances in little theaters.

He credits a role in the MGM movie "Battleground" as the turning point of his career. In the next three years he appeared in more than 20 movies.

In 1951 he won a top role in "Hellgate," which resulted in a contract with the newly-formed Wayne Fellows Company. He stayed there until May of 1955, when he was selected to star in "Gunsmoke."

His film credits, in addition to those previously mentioned, include "The First Traveling Saleslady," "The People Against O'Hara," "Gun the Man Down," "Island in the Sky," "Big Jim McLain," "Hondo," "Them," "Her Twelve Men," "The Sea Chase" and "Many Rivers to Cross."

FIGHT FOR LIFE—Frank (Ben Murphy) and Laura Taylor (Bonnie Bedelia) nobly fight to save themselves and their unborn child during a catastrophic heat spell on the "Tuesday Movie of the Week", "Heatwave" on Tuesday, June 10 (8:30-10 p.m.) on channels 3W-5-12.

Drama Of Courage In Chaos Of A Heatwave

During a catastrophic heatwave, the courageous determination of a young couple ultimately inspires survivors in a mountain town to unite in an effort to save a life, in "Heatwave," on the "ABC Movie of the Week, Tuesday, June 10, 8:30 to 10 p.m., on Channels 3-5-12.

Ben Murphy and Bonnie Bedelia star. Guest starring are Lew Ayres, David Huddleston and John Anderson as Toler. Dana Elcar, Robert Hogan and Janit (cq) Baldwin co-star.

Brokerage clerk Frank Taylor (Murphy) and his expectant wife, Laura, (Miss Bedelia), join other refugees leaving the metropolitan area, made chaotic by an intense heatwave.

Frank and Laura mistakenly hope to find relief in the mountain hamlet of Bear Springs. When they stop at a small cafe on the way, they find water rationed and meet a self-serving beer distributor, Mr. Brady (Huddleston), who is enjoying profits because of the torrid weather.

Later the Taylors' car is commandeered by Mr. Toler (Anderson) to help a desperately ill woman. Frank and Laura then make a tortorous climb along a fire trail, only to find that most of Bear Springs has been razed by fire. As Laura goes into premature labor, attended by her old friend, Dr. Grayson (Ayres), Frank finds a new determination to save a life. His courage unites the survivors, including Brady and Toler, in the seemingly hopeless attempt to overcome the heat wave.

Embarrassed As Instant Celebrity

After being abandoned on the highway without his clothes, a mild mannered married man has to face a series of topsy-turvy consequences when people learn that he was forced at gunpoint into intimacy with a gorgeous woman in "It Couldn't Happen to a Nicer Guy," a unlikely comedy on the ABC Television Network's "Wednesday Movie of the Week," June 11, 8:30 to 10:00 p.m., on Channels 3-5-12. Paul Sorvino and Michael Learned star.

Hitchiking after his car has run out of gas at night, Harry Walters (Sorvino) is picked up by a beautiful woman (Joanna Cameron), but the police don't believe his story of the events that follow—and neither does his wife, (Miss Learned). Unfortunately, everyone else believes it when the morning paper runs the story with his picture, and Harry becomes an instant and uncomfortable celebrity.

The woman shows up again to add to Harry's humiliation by returning his wallet and showing him that the weapon she used was a toy gun. She disappears and leaves Harry to face various charges related to the incident. Against the advise of his wife and his lawyer, Harry decides to fight the charges.

With the help of the reporter who wrote the story about him, he finds the woman— and finds himself in worse trouble than ever.

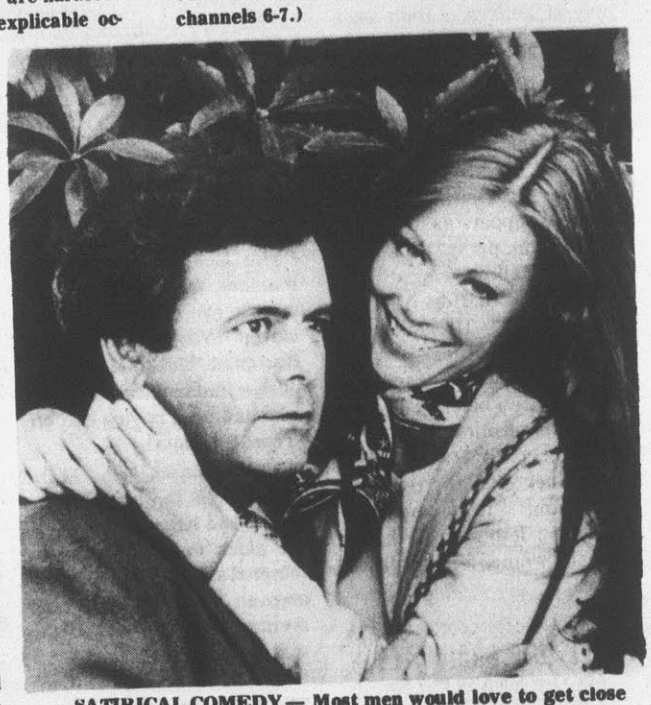

Now she claims that Harry was the agressor.

Terrorized By Inexplicable Happenings

Robert Stack stars as the head of a family terrorized by a series of inexplicable happenings shortly after moving into a house in a remote area in "The Strange and Deadly Occurence," an "NBC World Premiere Movie" to be colorcast Tuesday, June 10, 8:30 to 10 p.m., on Channels 6-7.

At first, Michael Rhodes (Stack) and his wife Christine (Vera Miles) think such strange occurences as the lights going off and the tub overflowing are accidental, but after Christine is trapped in a sauna and almost suffocates, they realize someone is deadly serious about getting them out of the house.

Margaret Willock is featured as the Rhodes' daughter.

SATIRICAL COMEDY— Most men would love to get close to Joanna Cameron (r), but Paul Sorvino is forced into intimacy at gunpoint, setting off a series of very embarassing consequences in "It Couldn't Happen to a Nicer Guy," a modern satirical comedy on ABC's "Wednesday Movie of the Week" Wednesday, June 11 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channels 3-5-12.

'Best Of Magazine' Set For Prime Time

LAWFUL INTEREST—Barry Newman stars in the title role of NBC-TV's "Petrocelli" series, about a Harvard-educated layer who leaves the East to establish a practice in the Southwest. The program will be colorcast Wednesdays (10-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

One year ago, on May 2, 1974, CBS News introduced "Magazine," an innovative daytime informational television series designed primarily for women.

Six editions later, a sampler of those broadcasts, "The Best of 'Magazine,' " will be presented during prime time on Wednesday, June 11, 10:00 to 11:00 p.m., on Channel 9.

"The response to 'Magazine,' as measured by both mail and the size of the audience it has attracted, has made this experiment very satisfying to us," said Bill Leonard, CBS News Senior Vice President. "This primetime sampler, "The Best of Magazine," being broadcast so that people who haven't seen, and viewers who don't watch daytime televison, will get an idea of what's been done during the last year — and what can be expected next season."

COURTING TIME

Bert Parks, who will emcee the 55th annual Miss America Pageant on NBC-TV Sept. 6, retains his trim 175-pound weight on a 5-foot-11 frame by playing tennis outdoors the year 'round.

Jo Anne And Geer With Tony

Jo Anne Worley plays a hip-swiveling "Hard-Hearted Hannah," on trial as "the meanest gal in town," and Will Geer (co-star of "The Waltons") portrays a flamboyant prosecuting attorney, in a musical production number on a rebroadcast of "Tony Orlando and Dawn" Wednesday, June 11, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS-TV and Channel 9-11.

In a featured spot, Geer as Mark Twain, does a tongue - in - cheek impression of the American author's whistle - stop tours in which he becomes confused about which group he is addressing. Geer also joins Tony Orlando in a duet of "Making the Best of a Bad Situation."

Production Begins On 'Novel For Television'

The most extensive dramatic special in American television history — Irwin Shaw's "Rich Man, Poor Man" - has gone into production for the ABC Television Network.

This 12-hour, multimillion-dollar "ABC Novel for Television" is planned for telecast during the 1975-76 season as six two-hour motion pictures. Each will be presented as a self-contained drama, collectively covering the full scope of the 1970 best-seller. The project will take approximately six months to complete.

"Rich Man, Poor Man" examines the shifting social and moral values in America from the end of World War II until the late sixties. The story traces the lives of three people - the Jordache brothers, Rudy and Tom, and beautiful Julie Prescott. Their paths continually cross as Rudy, haunted by his love for Julie, achieves extraordinary establishment success while Tom, shunned by his family as a troublemaker, finds himself lost in the jungles of society.

The production will star three exciting new performers in the pivotal roles: Peter Strauss as Rudy Jordache, Nick Nolte as Tom Jordanche and Susan Blakely as Julie Prescott.

As production begins, the large cast includes such prominent film and television performers as Edward Asner, Kim Darby, Gloria Grahame, Dorothy McGuire, Ray Milland, Robert Reed and Talia Shire, along with former boxing champion Archie Moore.

"Rich Man, Poor Man" is being filmed at Universal Studios in Hollywood and on various Southern California locations.

Ted Knight Honored

Ted Knight was named Television Father of the Year by the National Father's Day Committee at its 40th annual luncheon celebration in New York City.

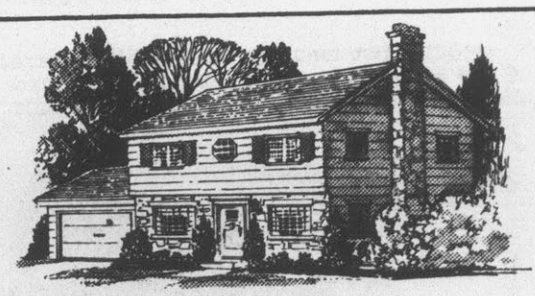

In accepting the award, Knight said that being named Father of the Year was "more meaningful than any other award I've ever earned." Besides an Emmy Award for his role as the bumbling, egocentric news anchorman, Ted Baxter, on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" on the CBS Television Network, Knight has five Bronze Stars, won while in the service in World War II.

The father of three children, Knight shared his new honor with such other Fathers of the Year as Sen. Edmund Muskie, John Gardner of Common Cause.

Star Of 'The Waltons' On Working Vacation

By CHARLIE PIKE
Press Features

Waite is directing several three-act plays at a small, neighborhood theater in Hollywood, and in doing so he's fulfilling a long-time ambition.

"This is just my attempt to give back some of the things I've gotten by being successful in television," the bearded actor said during a rehearsal break at the Oxford Theatre.

"Rather than take my funds and set up a program in which I'll never have to worry about money the rest of my life, I'm fulfilling a dream. It's an experiment. I don't know whether this is going to work. We've taken over the theater for four months. If it does work, and by work I mean if an atmosphere of real creative work is established and if the community responds by giving us some support, then we'll go on, we'll make it a year-round thing," he explains.

Waite is fully aware that it's "The Waltons" that has made such a venture possible, and he says of that:

"I'd never done television and I was not interested in doing television, but I was assured it'd be a 13-week project and everyone kept telling me that I could pick up enough money to get through the year. So I did it, and for a long time I was not very happy that it became successful because I wanted to go on to other things, to the theatre and films.

"But I adjusted to it and now I appreciate it and like it. It gives me the chance to do something like this," he says as he gestures to the small stage in front of him.

"I respect the series and the people associated with it. Most actors are so self-obsessed with their careers that they can't take time to enjoy it, and it's given me time to kind of enjoy it, and my life, my friends and my family. And the greatest benefit is that it's allowed me to do what I'm doing now, which is a very thrilling thing for me."

RALPH WAITE stars as John Walton on the weekly family series "The Waltons" which can be seen on Thursdays from 8:00 to 9:00 on CBS-TV.

Poignant Comedy Thursday Evening

Walter Matthau and Carol Burnett star as "Pete 'n' Tillie" in the comedy-drama about a mismated marriage to be colorcast on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" June 12, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7. Geraldine Page and Barry Nelson co-star in the 1972 Universal Release.

When Tillie Schlaine (Burnett) is introduced to Pete Seltzer (Matthau), a great wit and practical jokester, their romance blossoms after a shaky start and in six months they are married.

With the birth of their son, Charlie (Lee H. Montgomery), the marriage is complete, and despite Pete's constant levity and minor infidelities, it continues to flourish.

MISMATCHED COUPLE—Carol Burnett and Walter Matthau star as a husband and wife who struggle to make a go of their marriage though they are mismated in "Pete 'n' Tillie," a poignant comedy to be colorcast on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" June 12 (9-11 p.m.) on channels 6-7.

Double Feature Friday

"One More Time" and "The People Next Door" are the films to be featured as a double-feature presentation on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" June 13, 8 to 11 p.m., on Channels 9-11.

Sammy Davis Jr. and Peter Lawford star as the wild team of Salt and Pepper, whose hijinks make them the most endangered men around, in "One More Time," which will be seen as the first film (8:00 to 9:30).

Charlie Salt and Chris Pepper, whose club has been closed for disgraceful behavior, find their luck looking up when Chris' wealthy twin brother appears on the scene. Lord Sydney, the twin, is mysteriously murdered and Chris easily assumes his identity. This makes him the unknowing target of a gang of smugglers who believe he has double-crossed them, and of the international police, who also feel betrayed. Salt and Pepper play a dangerous cat-and-mouse game with both sides for expensive stakes.

"The People Next Door," a tense drama to be seen as the second film (9:30-11:00) stars Eli Wallach and Julie Harris — with Hal Holbrook and Cloris Leachman in supporting roles — as tormented parents trying to get at the source of their daughter's drug habit.

Arthur and Gerrie Mason react with shock when they discover their daughter Maxie is deeply involved with dangerous drugs. Believing her brother to be the supplier, the parents banish their son from home. Than Maxie disappears and Arthur and Gerrie have no recourse but to rely on their son to help find her. A bad trip lands Maxie in the hospital and her parents' efforts to save her and find her drug supplier grow to desperate heights.

SPECTATORS — Rock Hudson (l) and John Wayne watch a brawl, with Lee Meriweather and Marian McCargo (r) urge them to stop, in "The Undefeated" adventure film set in Southwest shortly after the Civil War, on "The CBS Late Show" Friday, June 13, at 11:30 p.m. on Channels 9-11.

SPECIAL ACTS

Stan Harris, producer-director of NBC-TV's "The Midnight Special," reports the show has featured more than 750 different acts since it was launched over two years ago.

Wayne, Hudson In Action Movie

John Wayne and Rock Hudson star in "The Undefeated," an action-packed adventure film set in the Southwest immediately after the Civil War, which will be seen as "The CBS Late Movie" Friday, June 13, 11:30 p.m., on Channels 9-11.

At the war's end, Col. John Henry Thomas (Wayne), leader of a Union cavalry unit that had attacked a Confederate position commanded by Col. James Langdon (Hudson), heads west with some men to round up wild horses and sell them to the federal forces. Col. Langdon, who is unwilling to live in a conquered land, burns his plantation and heads for Mexico with his family and a large group of settlers. Evading Union troops, the party crosses the Rio Grande.

Tapings In Old Chambers

The Old Supreme Court Chamber in the Senate Wing of the Capitol, newly restored and officially dedicated on May 22, was the site recently of a number of tapings for the "Bicentennial Minutes" series which is broadcast every evening in prime time on the CBS Television Network.

Among the prominent members of Congress and the Executive Office who appeared in and narrated various "Minutes" were Speaker of the House Carl Albert (D., Okla.); House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. (D., Mass.); House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes (R., Ariz.); Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D., W. Va.); Sen. Robert P. Griffin (R., Mich.), Sen. John G. Tower (R., Tex.) Sen. Joseph M. Montoya (D., N. Mex.); Rep. John J. McFall (D., Calif.); Donald H. Rumsfeld, Assistant to the President; Ron Nesson, Press Secretary to the President; Howard H. (Bo) Callaway, Secretary of the Army; and Frederick C. Weyand, Chief of Staff, U.S. Army.

One of the most historical rooms in the Capitol, the Chamber once housed the United States Senate (1800-1810) before that body moved to a location directly overhead, thus giving the Supreme Court its first permanent home.

During the construction of its new Capitol meeting place, the Supreme Court held its sessions of 1808 and 1809 in the room that had been vacated by the House of Representatives. This room was so cold and inconvenient that the Court often met in a tavern opposite the Capitol on First Street.

Fantasy Tale In Children's Festival Film

"The Boy Who Wore Spectacles," a film from Russia which tells of the fantasy life of Kuvanychbek, a small boy whose accomplishments are less satisfying than his dreams, will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, June 14, 1 to 2 p.m., in color on CBS-TV.

Kuvy's father impresses upon him the importance of protecting those who are smaller and weaker. When an ice-cream cart appears and the children line up for a treat, Kuvy's little friend Bermeta is pushed out of line by some rough children. Though he tries to put his father's lesson to use, he is only laughed at by the bullies.

Kuvy then experiences a number of fantasies in which he imagines himself as, among other things, a spy-catching hero and a soccer star, only to wind up defeated in each of these wild dreams — until he finally does emerge triumphant from one of them. His "victory" gives him the self-confidence to intervene when his little friend is again pushed around by rougher children, and he proceeds to take care of the bullies himself.

Nicklaus Showcase Readied

Jack Nicklaus, who at 35 is a golf legend and perhaps the greatest player of all time, has already pocketed the 1975 Masters Championship and is seeking to capture the tour's Grand Slam. If he does so, television golf fans will be able to see his victories live and exclusively on ABC.

ABC Sports will televise exclusive, live coverage of the remaining three Grand Slam tournaments - the U. S. Open, British Open, and PGA Championship - on the ABC Television Network.

The "Golden Bear" had his first shot at the Grand Slam in 1963, but he lost the U.S. Open to Julius Boros.

In 1965 and 1966 he won the Masters back to back, but the U.S. Open in those years went to Gary Player and Billy Casper, respectively.

Jack appeared to have it all together in 1972, with wins at the Masters and U.S. Open, but was stymied at the British Open by Lee Trevino.

With his win of this year's Masters, Jack Nicklaus broke his own record, to become the only golfer to have 15 major championships to his credit. He is the only player to win four major championships twice. Maybe this will be the year he'll do it, at the U.S. and British Open and the PGA Championship, all on ABC.

'Land Of The Lost' Resumes Production

"Land of the Lost," part of NBC Television Network's fall Saturday morning line-up of children's programs, has resumed production for its second season, with familiar faces returning in front of the camera and new faces behind the scenes.

Returning to this Sid and Marty Krofft production are series leads Spencer Milligan, Wesley, Kathy Coleman and Philip Paley.

YOUNG BOXING HOPEFULS, many pointing towards the 1976 Summer Olympics, will be featured on the National Boxing Championships, part of the CBS Sports Spectacular to broadcast on Saturday, June 14 (4:30 p.m.) fr Shreveport, Louisiana.

CIA To Be Next Topic Of CBS News Special

The Central Intelligence Agency, now being investigated by Congress and a Presidential Commission, will be the subject of the next edition in CBS News' continuing series of special broadcasts for young people. "What's the CIA All About?", with CBS News Correspondent Daniel Schorr, will be presented on Saturday, June 14, 12 noon to 12:30 p.m.

The broadcast will explain why we have a CIA, what the agency does and how it does it. Schorr will give examples of spying from Nathan Hale to Francis Gary Powers, plus some insight into the technology of satellite spying.

"The CIA collects intelligence," Schorr tells young viewers. "Intelligence in this sense doesn't mean simply how smart you are; CIA intelligence often means finding out how smart somebody else is."

On the broadcast, Schorr will also describe covert operations and show how some of these activities have gotten the CIA into trouble.

One section of the broadcast will cover the CIA's role in the Cuban Missile Crisis of 1962. Schorr will show the actual camera that photographed Cuba — and spotted the Soviet missiles — from the high-flying U-2 planes. He will also show the model of a SAM site which the CIA made to show to President Kennedy. The camera and the model have never been shown publicly.

Walter Lister is the producer of "What's the CIA All About?" and Vern Diamond is the director. Joel Heller is the executive producer.

Bjorn Borg: Teen Angel Of Tennis

As the sports world becomes filled with 15-year-old swimming champions, highschool graduates going directly into the pros, and teen-age phenomenons in baseball, boxing and golf, it is little wonder that one of the brightest and most successful tennis stars of the last season is an 18-year-old blonde sensation from Sweden. Bjorn Borg, the handsome youngster who grew up on the outskirts of Stockholm, has already become one of the most consistent competitors on the WCT tour.

Borg began training for his already illustrious career at the tender age of nine, when his father won a tennis racket in a Ping-Pong tournament and presented the gift to his son. The small child would practice on a nearby court by hitting a worn tennis ball against a fence until his tiny arms ached. When he was 10, Bjorn came under the practiced eye of Percy Rosberg, a teacher employed by the Swedish Tennis Federation to scout young talent and prepare his discoveries for international play. Rosberg actually had gone to Borg's home town to watch Leif Johansson, who was three years the former's senior and supposedly a coming star, but the coach came away more noticeably impressed with the skinny little novice.

The teen-aged Swede began playing competitively at 13, and eventually won junior tournaments in Berlin, Barcelona, Millan and at the Orange Bowl in Miami during his first trip to the U.S. after winning the junior Wimbleton in 1972, the young blonde made his Davis Cup debut in smashing style, winning both his singles matches against much older opponents from New Zealand. At 15-years-old, Borg was already making a stunning impression on the tennis world.

CALE YARBOROUGH, number 11, and Richard Brook, number 90, will be vying for position in the field for the "NASCAR WORLD 600" to be featured on the CBS Sports Spectacular from Charlotte on Saturday, June 14 at 4:30 p.m.

A Determined Driver

In a sport as competitive as auto racing, a raw determination is required to overcome the constant muscle pains and deafening noise that are part of a four or five - hundred - mile contest. Cale Yarborough epitomizes the tough, gutsy approach stock car drivers bring to their trade, and his desire to win has made him a legend throughout the steaming, crowded tracks in the stock car - crazy South.

The racing bug bit Yarborough when he was only 10, when he left his father's tobacco farm in Timmonsville, South Carolina to enter a soap - box derby in nearby Darlington. Although he finished about halfway down the field, Cale knew then that racing was in his blood. At age 15, he helped friends rebuild a 1935 Ford, which he drove to first place on an 'outlaw' track in Sumter, South Carolina.

For awhile, his interest in racing was side-tracked by football, as he spent 4 years as halfback and linebacker with a semi-pro team in Sumter before entering Clemson University. He soon became disenchanted with college football, and soon went back to racing. It didn't take long for Cale to become one of the top drivers on the NASCAR circuit, but his success did not arise without incident. In 1969, he hit an iron wall at 200 mph in Texas and shattered a bone in his back. For seven days he lay unconscious in a hospital with an injury that doctors said would have killed somebody less physically fit.

He has survived numerous other crashes to diversify his track fortune into real estate, farms, apartment blocks and a fertilizer business run by his younger brother, J. C. Cale flies to races in his own twin-engine, six-passenger Aztec, and in a good year will split $400,000 in prize money and royalties with his sponsor, the famed Junior Johnson.

Like the engines he runs, the stock-car driver must keep his own systems operating at peak performance. Yarborough says that in the heat of battle his senses become so acute that, driving at Indianapolis one day, wearing a mask in a car reeking of oil and gasoline, he caught the scent of a tree blooming some 100 yards off the third turn.

SUPERSTAR — Swedish superstar Bjorn Borg will be pitted against the American veteran Stan Smith as the mens singles feature of the WORLD INVITATIONAL TENNIS CLASSIC, to be broadcast on Sunday, June 8 from 4:30 to 6 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Tim Joins Burnett 'Family'

Carol Burnett, Harvey Korman, Vicki Lawrence and the Ernest Flatt Dancers present their annual "family" show — this year relaxing the rules to allow Tim Conway to join them — on a rebroadcast of "The Carol Burnett Show" Saturday, June 14, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV and Ch. 9-11.

Conway, whose five previous appearances this season qualify him as "almost family," is seen as Mickey Hart, Ed's (Korman) often talked - about assistant at the Acme Hardware Store, in the "family" sketch. Conway also appears as an old clockmaker in another sketch with Miss Burnett and Korman.

Miss Burnett, the mother of three daughters, gives expectant mother Vicki Lawrence (she is married to Al Schultz, the show's make-up man) some good advice as the two of them brush up on their lullabies in a medley of songs. Miss Burnett also sings "When Your Lover Has Gone," backed by five of the Ernest Flatt Dancers.

All the dancers perform in a musical number, "Ain't That Nothin'," and appear in the musical finale with Miss Burnett as the charwoman.

The "family" sketch finds Eunice and Mama (Miss Burnett and Miss Lawrence) visiting Ed in his newly redecorated hardware store, where they meet Mickey Hart and an assortment of Ed's regular customers.

Al Lapin, manager of the orchestra for NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," was manager and played drums on the "Colgate Comedy Hour" when it originated live at the old El Capitan Theater in Hollywood from 1951-56.

Pike's Peeks

By Charlie Pike, Press Features staff writer, Los Angeles, Calif.

There's considerable concern about the future of TV's "M-A-S-H." Wayne Rogers has announced he won't be back this Fall, McLean Stevenson is gone, and now Gary Burghoff has reportedly threatened not to return unless he's given a new contract. Likewise, Loretta Switt is renegotiating her pact, and Larry Linville has asked for a contract revamping. All is well with Alan Alda however.

Remember Donna Douglas on "The Beverly Hillbillies?" She portrayed Elly May. Well, today she's selling real estate in Beverly Hills and doing quite well.

Isabel Sanford of "The Jeffersons" is one of those overnight successes that took twenty years. When she started her career in New York she worked two jobs to support her three children before going to the theatre every night where she generally performed free! Isabel says she pinched pennies then and "I still squeeze a penny to death."

Look for James Arness to return to TV no later than next January with a mid-season replacement western.

James Brolin appears headed for super stardom with his role as Clark Gable in the film "Gable and Lombard." Word from the set of the movie is that Jim is terrific!

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR CAROLINE BIRD,
author of "The Case Against College"

Is there a simple rule of thumb for deciding whether your child should go to college?—A.R., Altoona, Pa.

● A 17-year-old may not know what's best for him in the long run, but he knows whether he likes books or not. If he doesn't want to go to college, the chances are very good that he won't get anything out of it. The professors and students I interviewed said that little more than one out of four college students is turned on by his courses. Why give an inferiority complex to people who don't dig books by making them dance to an intellectual tune when their real talents lie elsewhere?

FOR ROBERT MITCHUM, star of "Farewell My Lovely"

When did you know you had become a success, and do you analyze your acting much?—L.P., Lima, Ohio

● Success? Well, if that's what it is, I guess I knew when I walked down the street and was recognized by truck drivers. As for analyzing my acting, I don't like talking about acting and I only like watching it on certain occasions. I rarely go to the movies, and no longer watch myself on the late shows because it's past my bedtime. (The only other thing I've given up is eating marshmallows.)

FOR GEORGE MEANY, President of the AFL-CIO

Has any labor group ever gone on strike to hold down prices as opposed to hiking wages?—Mrs. E. Wilerson, Greenville, N.C.

● Unions have offered to forego wage increases in favor of price reductions, but I know of no case in which management accepted. I do not believe such a proposal has ever been made a strike issue—it would be a great deal to expect union members to willingly sacrifice part of their wages for price cuts, even if it were in the public interest.

FOR FRANK GIFFORD

When you see rough play on a football field, do you think back to your own playing days and experience the pain of the player being tackled?—Elizabeth Rehm, Jamaica, N.Y.

● No. But I'm keenly aware of the positions that players get into in which they are more vulnerable to injuries. Sometimes these situations cause me to wince—both vocally and physically.

FOR DINAH SHORE

What's your favorite fan story?—N.T., Chicago, Ill.

● The day I was in an elevator and an elderly lady got in, stared at me and concentrated hard for a few seconds. Then she announced to me and the other passengers with great satisfaction: "I know you. You're WHATSERNAME."

FOR JEANE DIXON

Is it true you once predicted that neither President Nixon nor Vice President Agnew would complete his second term of office, but that neither would be assassinated or die in office?—Patricia Cates, Las Cruces, N.M.

● Yes, I did make that forecast. Also, I went on record as saying that former President Nixon would definitely not be impeached—which, of course, he was not.

FOR CINDY ADAMS, author and syndicated columnist

You travel a great deal. What's the most interesting purchase you've made on your trips?—J.S., Lima, Ohio

● Papier poudres in Hong Kong. They're small packets of papers, one side is plain and the other is powdered. The plain side wipes off the stale powder; the other side puts a fresh lot on again. This is how I keep a clean (unwithered) look. Until I found these, by the end of the day, due to endless powdering, my face looked like a Halloween mask, and I didn't dare smile in case I cracked it.

FOR PHYLLIS DILLER

● I'm usually cheery at home, unless there's a crisis or I'm upset. The only thing that upsets me is when everyone talks at once and asks questions. When I'm away, I call home daily and get a full report. Even so, when I get back, there's always a delegation of family and friends awaiting me with hundreds of questions. And they're all asking at the same time. I make a dash into the kitchen and fall over the dish of Jello my grandson dropped on the floor. Otherwise, I rarely get flustered.

FOR DR. NORMAN VINCENT PEALE, pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church and author

Do you think trial marriage will make real marriage obsolete?—Mrs. Albert Cansler, Jackson, Tenn.

● In my opinion, nothing can be learned from trial marriage. I do not believe in it and strongly hold that the institution of marriage will always endure as a way of life. Perhaps I may be bold enough to suggest that the questioner read a book by my wife, Ruth S. Peale, called "The Adventure of Being a Wife." It answers this question fully.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

How come I only see Peter Sellers in TV commercials nowadays and not movies?—A.C., Galveston, Texas

● Have we got good news for you! Peter has a new film out this summer, "The Return of the Pink Panther," in which he'll recreate his original role of Inspector Clouzot. Also, you can see Peter on June 12 in a rare TV appearance on ABC's "A Salute to Sir Lew Grade" (the British showman and impresario), in which he does a comedy skit. His ambition is to costar in a Western with David Niven. He says: "I'm a serious actor who happens to shine in comedy, and I am a great social disappointment. When I see people watching me, waiting for witticisms, I know they feel cheated when nothing comes out." Sellers, a former drummer, occasionally sits in with groups in London. He relaxes with yoga, organic foods, meditation and photography. His hobby is servicing cars.

If a Supertanker Exploded...

Denis Pitts

By Denis Pitts

Have you ever seen a can of gasoline explode? Then imagine what would happen if a lighted match was put to 100,000 tons of high-octane fuel. The devastation would possibly be worse than that caused by the atom bomb at Hiroshima in 1945.

Cargoes of 100,000 tons—usually much more—of highly volatile fuel are commonplace in the supertanker fleets that roam the seaways of the world. These giant ships are floating A-bombs. Could one be hijacked and used to threaten a city? This is the frightening possibility raised in a new book, "This City Is Ours" (Mason-Charter, $7.95), in which a group of activists holds the island of Manhattan for a ransom of $130 billion. Its author, Denis Pitts, explains:

It was 1944, and as the war crept reluctantly to an end in Europe, horror came to Cleveland, Ohio.

What was described as a "relatively small quantity" of liquefied natural gas began to seep from a newly built processing plant into the sewers of the city. The sewers were warm, and in a matter of seconds, the liquid vaporized and became dangerously volatile. Expanding quickly, it forced itself up from the sewers into houses and apartment blocks.

The resulting series of blasts killed 180 people and almost completely destroyed 80 square blocks of the city. It was estimated later that it took less than 70 tons of the liquid gas to bring this havoc on an unsuspecting urban population.

Imagine then, the effect of putting a match to 100,000 tons of this gas. Or 200,000 or even 250,000 tons. The effect, according to explosives experts I talked to, would be the equivalent of a major atomic explosion.

These are the amounts of natural gas in liquid form that are being carried all around the world at any given time of day or night by fleets of supertankers. These great floating monsters are themselves growing in size.

In ten years time—and the assumption is that the present energy crisis will be eased by then—the biggest supertankers will weigh more than one million tons.

A great deal has been written about the hazards that the supertankers have brought to our environment. We know already about the effects on marine and bird life and upon our holiday beaches of collisions, deliberate spillage and accidental oil wastage by these gargantuan floating piers.

But has enough attention been focused on the explosive force that is contained in these ships?

Now let's face it, the corporations that own these elephantine tankers are aware of the potential danger. So are their captains and crews—after all, they have to live on top of the cargo. But even in this multimillion-dollar industry there are a few operators who are known as "cowboys" in the trade because of their disregard for safety regulations.

Nor is natural gas the only cargo carried by supertankers. Apart from huge quantities of crude and refined oil, they also carry high-octane gasoline (if you have ever seen a can of gas explode, imagine 200,000 tons of it blowing), aviation kerosene and explosive chemicals like naphtha, an industrial waste product that is used in making everything from nylon shirts to fertilizer.

Naphtha has a dangerously low flash point, and when it does explode it has a nasty habit of showering tons of molten chemical for miles around. A tanker load of this chemical caught fire off Brooklyn a few months ago. The Coast Guard officer who handled the emergency described the volunteer crews who fought the fire as the "bravest men I have ever met."

Another particularly sinister cargo carried in the big ships that ply between the Middle East and North America is a black cocktail consisting of crude oil into which has been pumped a mixture of such natural gases as methane and propane. The extraction takes place at the refinery. As you might guess, this is perhaps the most lethal cargo of all. Tankermen call it "spiked oil," and there are moves to make the carrying of it internationally illegal.

Accidents have already happened. This supertanker, "Mactra," was ripped down the middle by an explosion that left a giant gash as long as a football field. Two crewmen were killed. Noël Mostert's brisk-selling book, "Supership" (Knopf $8.95), brought the problem to public attention. Denis Pitts' new book adds another dimension—the possibility of piracy and ransom.

What would be the effect of a supertanker explosion? Suppose it's natural gas. When natural gas vaporizes it expands by 625 in volume. An explosion of natural gas would have the capacity —assuming the kind of cargoes we have been talking about—to create what is known as a massive wind inrush. In other words, the gas creates a vacuum that has to be filled by air. That air would race into the vacuum at speeds of up to 1,000 miles per hour.

A supertanker moored a few hundred yards from the southern tip of Manhattan, for instance, would threaten such buildings as the World Trade Center—which has been designed to withstand winds of 250 mph only—and many other high-rise buildings. The result of this wind—and the blast that would inevitably follow—would be a shattered and blazing city. In the meantime, the force of the explosion would suck people from their windows, drag automobiles along like toys, destroy subway systems and create a massive loss of life.

"A supertanker moored a few hundred yards from the southern tip of Manhattan . . . would threaten such buildings as the World Trade Center. . . . The result of the wind . . . would be a shattered and blazing city. . . . The force of the explosion would suck people from their windows, drag automobiles along like toys, destroy subway systems and create a massive loss of life."

What is really ironic about this threat is the fact that the emptier the tanker, the bigger the risk. The tanker that is on its way to be reloaded is usually filled with nothing more than vapor. And that is much more vulnerable to a tiny spark than the ship crammed full of gas or oil or volatile chemical.

Scary? I don't mean to be. After all, the big oil-carrying lines have so many millions of dollars invested in these giant tankers that they make a point, a very major point indeed, of cramming their ships with every possible fire- and explosion-prevention device that science and engineering can think of.

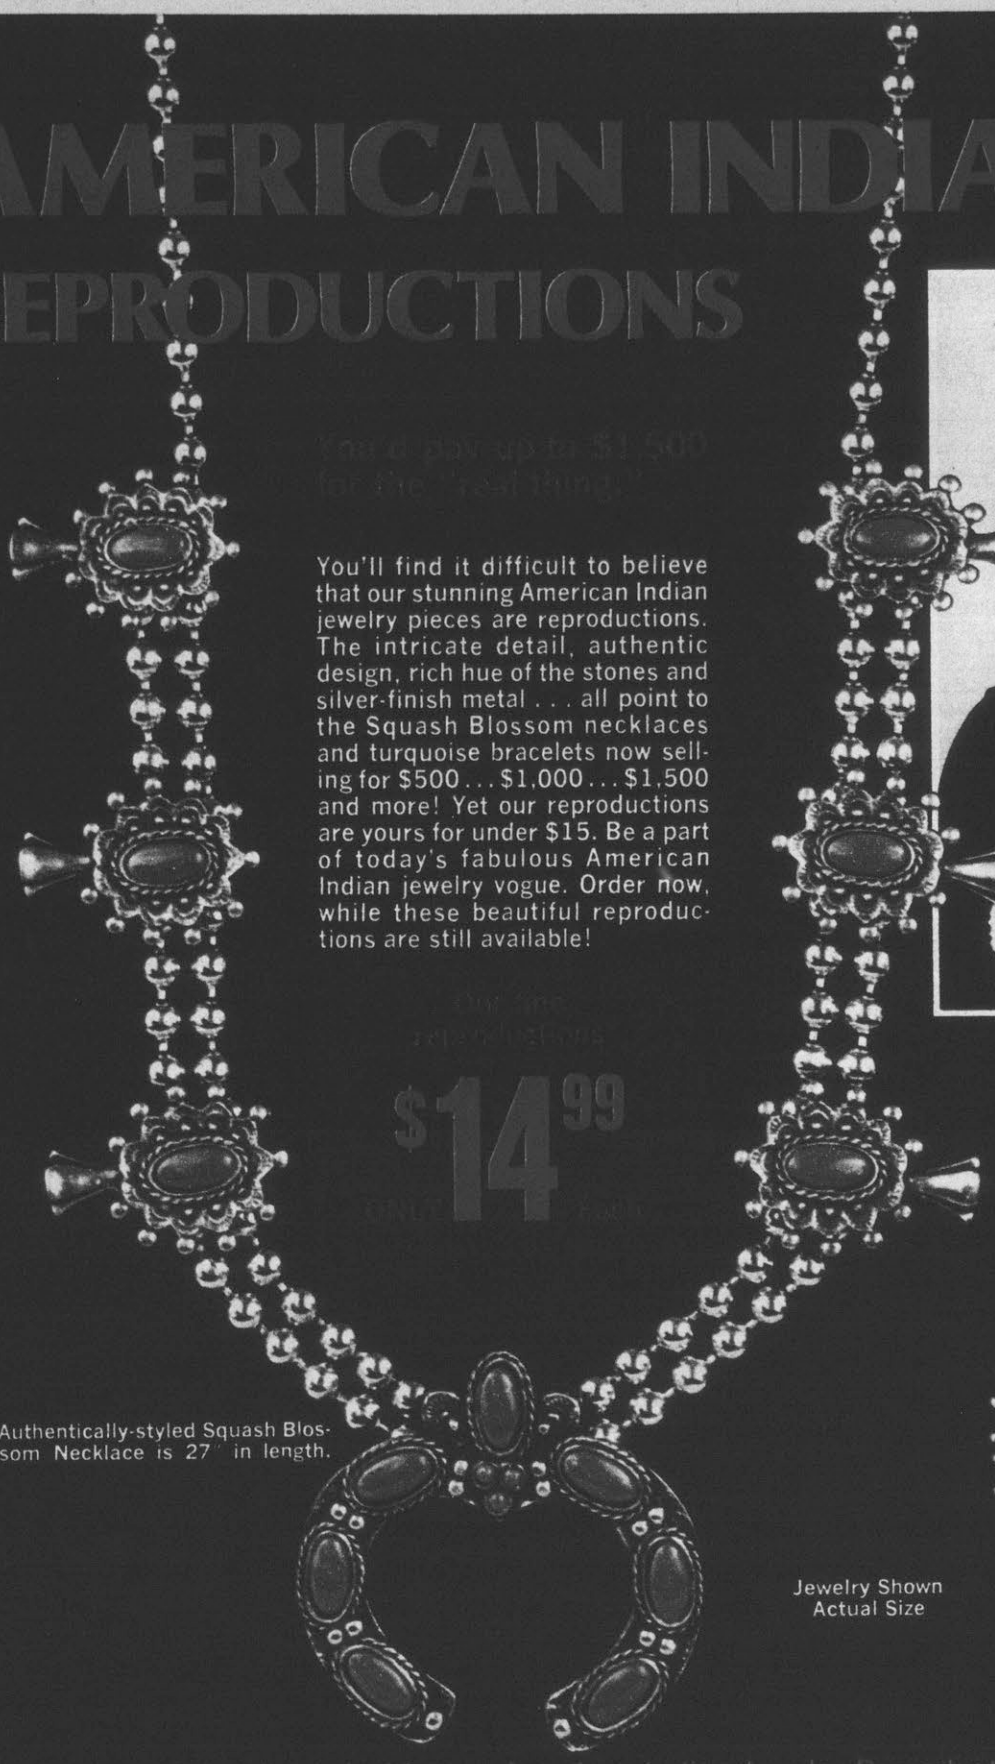

Some systems can rush a million gallons of fire-drenching foam into a cathedral-sized tank in a matter of minutes. Other systems rely on the inert—or non-

Taxpayers Making Up To $16,000 A Year Now Eligible

How to save $120 to $2400 a year by participating in the U.S. food stamp program

A mother of a typical family of four, can save $444 a year with food stamps, even if her husband makes $10,000 a year.* She can provide a nutritional and healthy diet while serving them the foods they like, such as, steaks, side dishes, beverages, desserts, and snacks.

By Elizabeth Evans

A government ruling in July of 1974 has extended food stamp coverage to 20,000,000 new Americans. But to date, more than 15,000,000 of these newly eligible citizens have not claimed their benefits. Why?

Obviously, most of these people are not aware of this new ruling. Others think that eligibility is based on gross income. But in reality, numerous deductions lowering your gross income are used to figure food stamp eligibility. And finally, thousands of people who know they are eligible are too embarassed to claim their benefits.

The embarassment surrounding food stamps and the old fashioned notion that you must be on welfare to participate are quickly becoming a thing of the past.

A December 20, 1974, Wall Street Journal article reported that more and more middle and upper middle class working families are using food stamps. Donna Marie of 4445 11th Street NW, Canton, Ohio, sums up the feelings of hundreds of thousands of working American families who now use food stamps, "I saw my neighbor eating steaks and using the money she saved to buy a few luxuries. Then I thought of all the taxes I'd paid. It struck me how silly it was not to take advantage of something I'd already paid for. I now use food stamps to serve nutritional and delicious meals for my family. To me it is no different than a tax rebate program."

No Risk Report: The problem of people not knowing if they are eligible has been eliminated with the recent publication of the public information report, 1975 Food Stamp Qualification Guide. This report is being made available on a no risk basis. By ordering the report, you can quickly determine in the privacy of your home if you qualify and for what amount. If you don't qualify, you may return the book. You'll receive a full refund—no questions asked.

Eye Opening Facts: Here are some little known facts regarding the food stamp program. Did you know that:

- In some states, you can get your food stamps through the mail.
- Hundreds of thousands of senior citizens are eligible.
- The elderly can use food stamps to pay for home delivered meals-on-wheels and for group meals for the elderly.
- Working families with gross incomes as high as $16,000 a year can qualify for food stamps.
- Food stamps are used just like cash. There are no forms to fill out at the grocery check-out counter.
- Food stamps are accepted at almost every grocery store.
- It takes only two weeks to receive your food stamps after you qualify.
- Several people living in the same house can all separately receive food stamps.
- If you are physically unable to apply at the food stamp office, you can have someone else apply for you or have the food stamp office come to your home.
- If you move, you can continue to receive food stamps for a 60 day period from your old food stamp area.
- If you've recently moved to a new state, you can immediately apply for food stamps.
- When your income and resources are being calculated to see if you qualify, your house, lot, one car, your personal belongings and household goods, cash value of your insurance policy, income producing property, and boarders are not counted as resources.
- When calculating your income, money from a student under 18, irregular income from part time jobs totaling less than $30 a month, and money from loans is not counted as income.
- If you work and must use a day care center or a babysitter, you can deduct this expense.
- State and Federal taxes, Social Security, and union dues are deducted from your income.
- Medical fees over $10 a month and tuition and mandatory education expenses can be deducted from your income.
- Alimony or child support you pay can be deducted. So can unusual expenses due to disasters.
- Rent, mortgage and utilities are deductable by using a shelter standard formula.
- All information given when you apply for stamps must be kept strictly confidential.
- You'll be told if you qualify 30 days after you apply.
- If you are refused food stamps and feel you're being cheated, you have the right to a fair hearing appeal. Even if you've been refused long ago, you can still go back for your hearing. And if the food stamp office made a mistake, you're entitled to all the back food stamps you should have collected.

 Typical Working Families: Here's an example of a typical family that qualifies for food stamps. Mr. Seagel grosses $192 a week, $10,000 a year. Mrs. Seagel does not work and has a boy, age 5, and a girl, age 10. Mr. Seagel pays $150 per month alimony and child support to his previous wife, has a rent of $130, $8 for phone, $50 for heat and utilities, $35 a month for hospital insurance, and spends $15 a month on allergy medicine.

After making all the necessary deductions outlined in the 1975 Food Stamp Qualification Guide, it was found that the Seagels would receive $150 worth of food stamps for only $113 a month. They'd saved $37 dollars a month. A total of $444 on groceries for the year.

What will qualifying for the food stamp program mean to you? Depending on your income, you could slash your food budget by 20% to 60%. This would mean a savings of $120 to $2,400 a year. You could afford to provide your family with the most nutritional and healthful foods. The money you've saved could be placed in the bank or used to buy anything you'd like. There are no restrictions on what you do with the money you saved. But, best of all, you'd be starting your own personal tax rebate program. You will be getting back some of the thousands of dollars you've paid in taxes by taking advantage of a government program which you've already paid for.

"A July 74 ruling extended food stamp coverage to over 20,000,000 new Americans. To date, over 15,000,000 of these newly eligible citizens have not claimed their benefits which their personal taxes have already paid for"

The 1975 Food Stamp Qualification Guide is written in plain, simple language. It will show you step by step how to figure your Food Stamp income. It will make sure you're deducting all the expenses you're entitled to. It will also prevent you from adding income which should not be counted in your total. When you qualify, you'll be told exactly where to go, who to see, and what to do in order to start cashing in on your benefits. A sample form is enclosed so you will waste no time when you go to fill out the real thing. All of this is done in the privacy of your home. You'll waste no time hunting down this information, and you won't have to spend a cent on gas.

Low Priced Soft Cover Edition: As I've said, this public information report is being made available in a special low price soft cover edition. To get your report, all you need do is write the words Food Stamps on the top of a piece of paper along with your name and address.

Mail to: THE CENTER FOR PUBLIC INFORMATION, Government Programs Division, Dept. D-5, 401 Market Ave., N., Canton, Ohio 44702. Be sure to enclose $3.00 plus 50¢ postage and handling charges in cash, check, or money order. Make checks payable to Public Information. Your report will be rushed to you by return mail in a plain unmarked envelope.

If after reading your report you discover that you don't qualify, return the book within 3 weeks. You'll receive a full refund—no questions asked.

You could be one of the 15,000,000 people missing out on the benefits you have coming to you. If you do qualify, you'll receive a $120 to $2400 return on your $3.50 investment. You can find out if you qualify within 3 weeks by mailing in your report request today. *

"Order in a Chaotic World"

Why Do People Collect Things?

By Kathleen Brady

"Collecting is an attempt to limit the world you deal with to objects you can arrange so that you make a world where you're in charge. You become the god of the universe."

People who collect butterflies like geography and want to see the world. Stamp enthusiasts crave knowledge of history and international politics. Those who gather beer cans (yes, beer cans, it's the latest craze) are sentimental about their buddies and want to be considered hell raisers.

Psychologists and psychiatrists, many of whom are collectors, say the objects a person prizes are clues to what he seeks from life. An outstanding example of this was Sigmund Freud himself, the father of psychoanalysis. He called his collection of antiquities "an addiction" and crowded his apartment in Vienna with such things as Etruscan mirrors, Egyptian sculptures and Greek vases. In fact, Freud once confessed, "I have read more archaeology than psychology." His passion wasn't just pleasurable; he said it helped him unlock man's conscious and subconscious minds, the structure of which goes back through time. Freud's or any collector's study of particular things is a sign of a scientific mind; for just as scientists collect, compare and order data, so a collector accumulates, evaluates and displays items.

Professionals agree that, basically, collecting implies an urge to bring order and beauty to a chaotic world—and, in doing so, to gain a sense of security.

Having a supply of something, even pebble specimens, confers a sense of power and possibly feelings of immortality. "Collecting is an attempt to limit the world you deal with to objects you can arrange so that you make a world where you're in charge. You become the god of the universe," says Dr. Elizabeth Thorne.

Collectors are often interesting, happy people because of their enthusiasm. They take pride in themselves and their achievement. Dr. Jack Granofsky observes, "The way a person treats his collection will carry through to everything else. If it's neat and well-arranged, he's orderly in other ways too." Dr. David Ingram concurs, saying, "The urge to collect implies a wish to catalog. Collectors sometimes grow uneasy if their stamps or whatever are out of place, and they apologize in order to preempt criticism. Often, collectors have parents who appreciate order."

In fact, they may be trying to please their parents or deepen a tie with them, many doctors say. A woman may recall the pride her mother had in her china, and so collects decorative plates in the subconcious hope of pleasing dear old Mom or being like her.

The need to feel self-sufficient and powerful helps explain why children often go through stages of collecting. Since kids are totally dependent on bigger people for support, they find it delightful (as well as practical space-wise) to gather tiny objects they tower over and control. Dr. Thorne recalls her childhood pastime of clipping coupons and mailing away for makeup, cereal and perfume premiums. "I couldn't wait for the mail to come and bring me the little boxes I'd ordered. I took pleasure in their being small. It was the thing that was the most fun when I was little."

Collecting is as much a part of adolescence as acne, but more fun. In the 1930's and '40's, teenagers collected movie-star photos. Today, the fad is for kooky T-shirts, but the impulse is the same. The reason is that as kids start to leave the security of home to make their own lives, acquisitions are a way to state their own individuality. Dr. Helen DeRosis observes, "Collecting is a way people get in touch with new worlds outside themselves and their homes. But adolescents are imitative. They may think they're getting away from one nest, but they are busily tucking themselves into another by collecting things that will make them part of a group of friends."

Dr. Lawrence Hatterer, author of "The Creative Personality," gives this overview: "The important thing is that there is never one single reason for anything. Some people collect just for aesthetic pleasure. They become connoisseurs. For instance, I used to paint, and when I stopped, I stayed in touch with that world by taking painters as patients. I collect their paintings as payment. Many other people collect as a way to relieve tension, just as others drink because they think it will help them."

"Whatever the interpretation," says Dr. DeRosis, "collecting is a positive experience. It helps people feel good. Because they have an interest, they're happier with the world and so they look better and are more fun to be with."

Henry Grossman/Transworld

Jean Stapleton, of CBS-TV's "All in the Family," and her husband Bill Putch are both good cooks.

Moving into our new house out West has changed our style of entertaining! Our new swimming pool is a joy. It forces me to sit down and relax, but it's also inspired some lovely Sunday afternoon poolside parties. We've even remodeled the garage into dressing rooms for our guests!

I have a lovely housekeeper who cooks most of our meals when I'm working. When I cook, I like to prepare simple make-ahead dishes. We all like tasty casseroles that can be popped into the oven on a moment's notice. Unlike "Archie," my real husband, Bill, cooks. And very well too! He specializes in Italian dishes. My favorite is his chicken tetrazzini, flavored with a hint of curry!

"My recipes come from everywhere. Even my makeup man, a gourmet cook, brings me wonderful chili!"

Bill (our family name is Putch) runs a playhouse in Pennsylvania called the Totem Pole Playhouse, and he's as good at directing, producing and designing stage sets as he is at performing in the kitchen. I should also add that he designed our house in Pennsylvania—a log cabin surrounded by orchards and mountains.

My recipes come from everywhere. Even my makeup man, a gourmet cook, brings me wonderful chili! It's fun to study cookbooks and come up with new ideas.

JEAN'S LOBSTER QUICHE

1 pkg. prepared pie crust mix
6 frozen South African rock-lobster tails (2-oz. size)
Boiling, salted water
1 cup (4 ozs.) grated Swiss or Gruyère cheese

Press pastry lightly against pan sides, allowing about ½-inch overhang. Flute pastry edge. Prick shell with fork. Partially bake in preheated 400° F. oven about 8 minutes.

2. Drop frozen rock-lobster tails into boiling, salted water. When water reboils, boil for 2 minutes. Drain in collander; drench immediately with cold water.

3. Remove underside membrane with scissors or poultry shears and pull out meat in one piece. Slice meat crosswise. Reserve 6 halves sliced lengthwise for garnish. Place meat in bottom of partially baked pie shell. Sprinkle cheese over meat.

4. Sauté onion in butter until golden; reserve.

5. Beat together eggs, half and half, salt, white pepper, nutmeg and cooked onion. Pour over lobster and cheese in pie shell.

6. Bake in preheated 350° F. oven 40-45 minutes, or until a knife inserted in center comes out clean. Garnish with rock-lobster slices to form a star design. Serve warm or at room temperature.

HE HEALS WITHOUT MEDICINE!

And chiropractors, all over America, pay him $54 a year to learn his new natural, non-drug ways to do it!

Would you like to share in these secrets—for a fraction of the price they pay?

Then read the thrilling details below...

Now, A MASTER Chiropractor—Who Trains Other Chiropractors... Who Cures Other Chiropractors... Shows YOU What He Believes You Must Do To Be Saved From Illness!

VITAL NOTE: At the very beginning, we must warn you that this man's views—though he is one of the most widely-respected chiropractors in the world—are still ultimately controversial! That he believes implicitly in a non-medical viewpoint in relation to health and disease! And that, therefore, though his views are accepted by chiropractors all over America, who pay him $54 a year to learn his discoveries—these views are not accepted, in any way, by the bulk of the medical profession!

We ask you to read every word that follows with this fact firmly in mind. And then decide for yourself whether you wish to test his natural, non-drug, let-the-body-heal-itself methods—without risking a penny!

So, Dear Friend – with this controversial background firmly in your mind, let us start by giving you this renowned chiropractor-teacher's basic philosophy, in his own words:

"The body manufactures all the ingredients we need for health, for growth, for self-repair of damaged body tissues..."

"Let the people know that the body cures itself. The power that created you is also the power that can heal you. The doctor may not know what's the matter... but the body knows—and knows what to do for it. What you have to do is just take away the obstacles to cure."

"There are positive and natural remedies and techniques for ills and ailments . . . natural, non-drug, un-harmful ways to reach equivalent or better results than with drugs."

"Trust this one thing: The body wants to be well. With half a chance the body will heal itself. In forty years of doctoring the sick, I have found that few ailments—very few—were altogether irreversible."

These, Then, Are The Health Goals Of A Man Who Has Spent Over Half A Century Searching Out Natural Ways To Heal! NOW YOU SHOULD LEARN HOW HE IS THOUGHT OF IN HIS OWN GREAT PROFESSION!

He has been recognized, by his profession, as one of its most prominent leaders, for decades! His teachings have been hailed, in print, by hundreds of chiropractors. Thousands of chiropractors have flocked to hear him during his lecture tours in 35 major cities of the United States —plus Montreal, Toronto, London, Brussels, and other world capitals.

Chiropractic doctors have repeatedly and gladly paid $60 to $120, just to attend one weekend seminar with him. Some of them, unable to attend have paid $15, simply for a 20-page copy of his lecture notes.

Four years ago, he decided that he could not reach enough of these chiropractic doctors, on a frequent enough basis, by his lectures alone. Therefore, he offered his profession a Newsletter, giving physician-subscribers his latest findings, as he discovered them. Despite the fact that this 6-page Newsletter sold for $54 a year, 1300 subscriptions poured in the very first few months!

Now You Know What This Man Has Set Out To Do, And You Know How Highly His Own Profession Values His Ability To Do It! NOW READ HOW HE INTENDS TO SHARE IT WITH YOU!

THE FOOD-MEDICINE he marks off as useful in internal sores, pin ulcers, bleeding of the gums.

THE FOOD MEDICINE he uses to stimulate hair growth!

Tips 'n' Topics

KEEPING FOOD SAFE TO EAT

1. Defrost frozen products in the refrigerator or, if necessary, under cold water, but not at room temperature.
2. Wash your hands frequently.
3. Do not allow meat, poultry and other foods to stand at room temperature more than 2 hours after cooking. Refrigerate promptly.
4. Clean boards and counter tops with soap and hot water.
5. Keep hot foods hot (above 140°F.) and serve hot.
6. Don't let cold cuts and cold sliced meats reach room temperature. Keep them cold (below 40°F.) and serve cold.
7. Wrap meat and poultry correctly for storage—loosely for refrigerator storage, tightly for the freezer.
8. All foods prepared with mayonnaise must be kept cold.

A great new book has come across our desk. It's the Barbara Kraus "Dictionary of Protein" (Harper's Magazine Press, $8.95).

"Protein is our Number One nutrient, and an adequate daily intake is essential for good health. But the fact is that most Americans eat twice as much protein as they need," says Barbara. "For ages we associated steak and other expensive meats with affluence. We've gotten into the habit of thinking of them as the best sources of protein. Actually, less-expensive foods —cheaper cuts of meat, fish and poultry, for example— are just as nutritious and high in protein."

For the real protein bargains, Barbara urges consumers to look to the plant products: dried beans and peas, whole-grain cereals, nuts and vegetables.

Barbara's "Dictionary of Protein" is an extensive, easy-to-use listing of more than 8,000 brand names and basic foods, with their protein and caloric contents. Foods are listed in normal serving portions and in purchased container sizes, so it's a simple matter to estimate one's protein intake.

KNOX BLOX™

New finger-size gelatine snacks.

Knox has a nifty new snack idea that's a knock-out with kids. It's firmed up, finger-sized, fruity gelatine squares. They're firm enough to never melt or get mushy even at room temperature. But still have enough wiggle to tempt any tot. And a snap to make. Just add Knox® Unflavored Gelatine to any flavored gelatine and your Knox Blox will stay firm until the last block is all gobbled up. Now, isn't that a better idea than candy?

4 envelopes Knox Unflavored Gelatine
3 packages (3 oz. ea.) flavored gelatine
4 cups boiling water

In large bowl, combine Knox Unflavored Gelatine and flavored gelatine; add boiling water and stir until gelatine dissolves. Pour into large shallow baking pan (for example, 13" x 9") and chill until firm. Cut into squares to serve. Makes about 100 one inch squares.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

What Your Reading Habits Reveal About You

True or False: Some people use reading not as a means of enjoyment or enlightenment, but simply as a narcotic. (See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you don't find reading a chore and a bore, the odds are that you're well adjusted and have a minimum of personality hangups.

2. Your reading habits provide a clue to your social and economic status.

3. A good reading ability—the enjoyment of books, magazines and newspapers, and a quick comprehension—provides an index to your personality type.

4. Some people use reading not as a means of enjoyment or enlightenment, but simply as a narcotic.

5. What we read has a marked influence on how we live.

ANSWERS

1. True. University studies indicate that the able reader is better adjusted, has fewer emotional conflicts and "has more successfully accepted his role in society." It's also observed that the person who gets the most out of the printed page is also likely to get the most out of life. In both cases, the focus and comprehension of our mental faculties is a key factor.

2. True—according to a survey of American reading habits, which showed that the most common kind of reading done on a typical day is newspaper reading, and that "those who read two or more newspapers tend to have a higher socioeconomic status than those who read only one, and that persons who read newspapers at work have a higher status than those who read newspapers at home." It was also found that: Higher status is associated with persons who read editorials and letters to the editor, the sports section, and motion-picture, book or other reviews.

3. True—as shown by a study of more than 100 men and women at the University of Illinois, in which each subject was given a standard reading-ability test, followed by a personality test. Findings showed that "the quiet, thoughtful, feminine, agreeable woman is the better reader. Using different variables as a basis of description, it is also the quiet, thoughtful, cultured man who is the better reader among men."

4. True. Reading, as one authority observes, is a basic tool in living a good life. But instead of using it as such, some people use it as an opiate. They don't read because of interest in a given subject or for entertainment or for mental stimulation. On the contrary, they use reading as a means of deadening their thoughts—as a drug to quiet their nerves, to escape boredom, to "read themselves to sleep" or to take their minds off their problems. Just as some people can't stand being alone, these people can't stand being without "something to read." But just what it is makes little difference to them, for they retain very little of it.

5. True. Studies of the effects of reading show that it is largely responsible for influencing the attitudes and outlooks of people from all walks of life, "giving them a design for living more purposefully, or a way of experiencing life more understandingly." In one study, college students were asked to tell specifically how books or articles affected their attitude, ideas or behavior. Only a minimal percentage reported that their reading had little or no influence on their personal lives. The extent of the influence was affected by each person's intelligence, vocabulary and comprehension. And it's observed that "To read without reflecting is like eating without digesting."

If you have tried diet after diet without success . . . If you have been accused of "cheating" by doctor after doctor . . . If you're tired of starving yourself for the sake of a few pounds . . .

"I promise that once you learn this secret you can lose up to 12 pounds in one week alone. What's more, you'll never be overweight again – even if ordinary diets have always failed you!"

Harry Needelman, M.D.

Here is the most important diet discovery in 64 years. Read how this eminent diet doctor learned the secret of activating NAD, your body's Natural Appetite Depressant! See the actual unretouched photos of just a few of Dr. Needelman's 20,000 success stories!

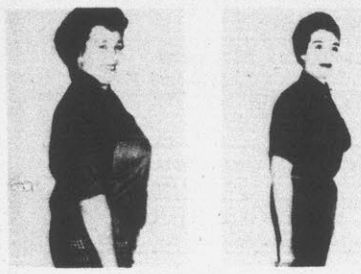

I am Dr. Harry Needelman — the one doctor who has delved deeper into the mind and body of the overweight person than any other doctor on earth! I have spent the last 22 years successfully treating more than 20,000 obese patients — most of whom had never before been able to lose weight and keep it off!

NOW I'D LIKE TO SHARE MY INCREDIBLE DIETING SECRET WITH YOU!

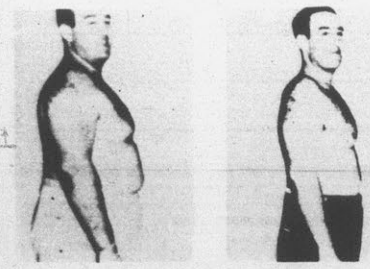

And incredible it is — because it requires no starvation . . . no deprivation . . . and no exercise! Yet your surplus weight will disappear like magic . . . and never return!

How can I make such a fantastic claim?

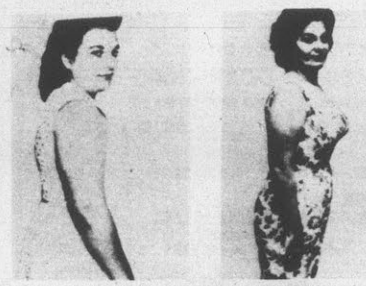

I can, because I am the one diet doctor who has bothered to thoroughly investigate why most diets fail. I am the one doctor who has not laid the blame to lack of will-power or insufficient exercise. I am the one doctor who finally realized that hunger is the culprit that stands in the way of the conscientious dieter.

Merta Pinelas went from 165¾ lbs. to 126¼ lbs. in 8 weeks!

And learning this, I am the one doctor who has finally discovered what hunger really is!

NOW I CAN REVEAL THE SENSATIONAL SECRET OF HOW TO COMBAT HUNGER — NATURALLY AND HARMLESSLY!

What took me so long to release this remarkable knowledge?

Frankly, I was so busy with my patients I had no time to put any of my findings on paper. Now, after more than 20,000 success stories, I've finally taken the time to put my years of studies and results into a book that will revolutionize the entire dieting field!

I will now show you how hunger works like a time clock in your body . . . a time clock that can be triggered or shut off by the chemical compositions of certain foods. And I will reveal for the first time exactly what foods can turn off this time clock. I promise that once you learn this secret you can lose up to 12 pounds in one week alone. What's more, you'll never be overweight again — even if ordinary diets have always failed you!

As a "resistant-obese" person, you are especially important to me because you've already suffered years of ridicule and abuse from intolerant and ignorant friends and doctors. Now you needn't suffer any longer — from their lack of understanding, or from your stubborn weight!

You can see what's possible for you from these photos of the amazing results some of my most "resistant-obese" patients have achieved:

THIS IS NOT A FAD DIET!

I call it the HAPPY DIET — for you will happily lose pound after pound while you fully enjoy mealtime and snacktime pleasures!

What other diet do you know that tells you to have a big roast beef sandwich as a snack if you wish? Or a good sized baked potato as part of dinner? Or a milk shake as often as every hour of the day?

With my sensational diet regimen, you can satisfy your hunger and your palate with such satisfying treats as these — and still lose weight!

Yes . . . I want you to eat generously of all the foods you enjoy: bread, certain fruits and vegetables, salads, meat, chicken, fish, Jello, coffee, tea, milk . . . plus all the Scotch, bourbon, rye, gin, vodka and brandy you desire!

I also want you to enjoy snacks in between meals if you wish!

If you get hungry, don't resort to something like a diet beverage . . . have a milk shake! Don't nibble on a piece of celery . . . have a huge turkey sandwich! Don't open a can of dietetic fruit . . . have half a grapefruit, or half a canteloupe, or a generous slice of fresh pineapple, etc. Enjoy every delicious mouthful and watch the pounds melt off!

And wait until you see the additional benefits of my fantastic diet!

- Your complexion will become clearer.
- Your skin will become moist and firm — no sagging anywhere!
- You will become more mentally alert.
- Problems of constipation will disappear.
- Menstrual cramps will virtually disappear.

Sports Mini-Profile

MIKE SCHMIDT:

He Became No. 1 When He Stopped Trying Harder!

By learning to relax and do what comes naturally, Mike Schmidt has been transformed into the best slugger Philadelphia has had in over 40 years. Schmidt led the major leagues with 36 homers last season, was No. 1 in the National League in slugging percentage and No. 2 in the runs-batted-in category. His batting has helped the Phillies mold a new image as a contender for top honors. . . . Schmidt's turnabout came after he had a dismal first year, batting a measly .196 and striking out 136 times. "I was pressing too hard," he says.

"I was so anxious to achieve stardom that every time I went up to bat it was like a life-or-death thing with me. And when I got off to a bad start, I kept pressing even harder, so things just got worse."

. . . Schmidt developed a new attitude when he played winter baseball in Puerto Rico. Bobby Wine, manager of his Puerto Rican team, taught him to pick out the good pitch and swing naturally at it. "I knew he had the ability," says Wine, "if he only went about it the right way." . . . Success as an athlete came early to Schmidt. "I had a God-given gift of being able to pick up a bat, golf club or racquet and do the right thing with it," he says. As a youngster in Dayton, Ohio, he was a standout in all sports. At Ohio University, the redheaded Schmidt played shortstop on a team that reached the College World Series. He set a conference record for home runs and was picked in the second round of the free-player draft by the Phillies in 1971. . . . Most home-run hitters are outfielders, and the 6-2, 200-pound Schmidt is built like an outfielder or first baseman. But his sure hands and his ability to rifle the ball to first have made him invaluable as a third baseman. He is the first third-sacker to lead the National League in homers in 16 years and the first Philly in over 40 years to win a major-league home-run title.

The Doctor Lets You In

Some Do's and Don'ts About Hospital Visits

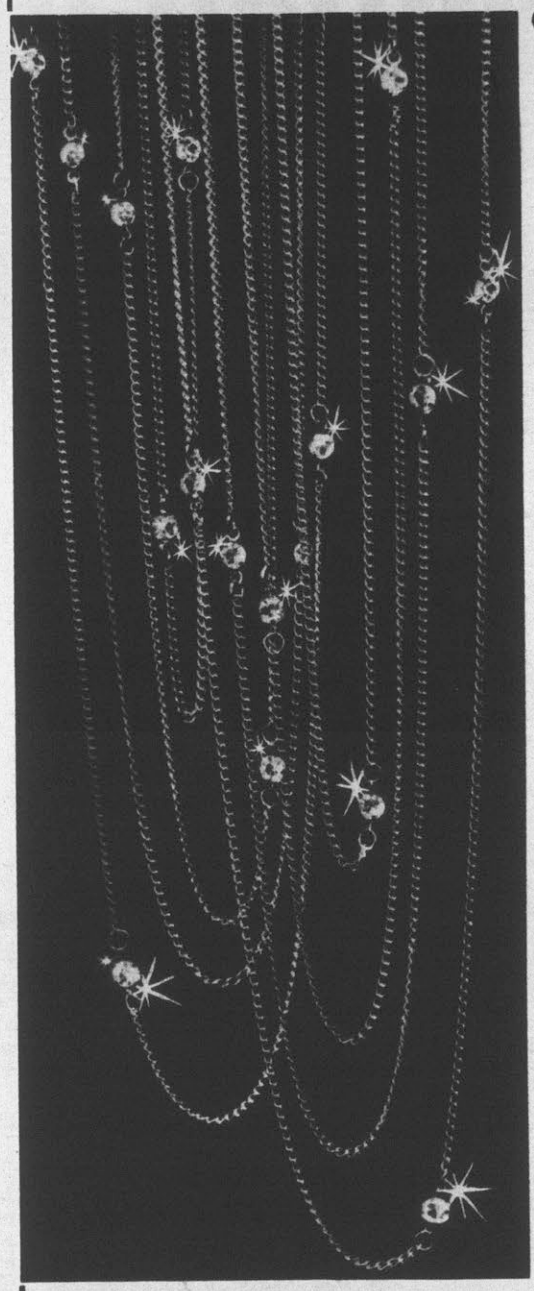

Often, people visit sick friends or relatives in the hospital because they feel they should. Instead, they ought to try to find out if the sick person really wants visitors. Here are some points about visiting the sick at home or in the hospital: When it is a short confinement, the patient often welcomes rest and quietude rather than visitors. A sick person who is expecting visitors is put under some stress—even to having to dress properly to receive them. . . . Think twice about visiting someone—especially a woman—who has just undergone plastic surgery or a dental operation. She may have black eyes from the surgery. In her own view she feels "I am a mess" and may not appreciate being seen that way. . . . A sick person usually has various anxieties: Is the doctor telling him the truth? Is the family holding something back? Will he be able to take care of himself when he is released from the hospital? Don't add to his anxieties. Other don'ts: Don't stay too long. A 10 to 15 minute visit is usually enough. Don't try to settle family problems. Don't bring goodies—salt in cakes, sugar in cookies or alcohol are what he may have to do without. Don't tell him about people who are sick. Don't talk too much. And, above all, don't go if you have a cold!

Now You Don't Have to Be a Millionaire to Own This Simulated Diamond Ring

AMAZING OFFER
to readers of Family Weekly

FULL ONE CARAT ZOLATRON SIMULATED DIAMOND RING 5.99

Did you know that only a diamond expert can tell the difference between a Zolatron and a costly diamond?

We got hold of a fabulous full carat diamond ring costing $1000.00 and we made a copy of it. A copy so clever . . . so realistic . . . and so precise that only a diamond expert could ever tell it apart from the original $1000.00 ring. We made it from luxurious silver electroplated and burnished by jewelry craftsmen. Then we mounted it with an imported full carat ZOLATRON – the famous simulated diamond that lasts a lifetime. Now we offer it for only $5.99. Imagine it – about a half percent of the original!

PLEASE DON'T JUDGE IT BY ITS LOW $5.99 PRICE!

Now don't think that because it's so low-priced, this must be a cheap, inferior imitation. Far from it! We proudly offer you a superior, quality-made jewel. We simply refuse to use the cheap, soft plastic "diamonds" found in low-cost rings. Instead we use ZOLATRONS exclusively—because they are amongst the world's most dazzling, convincing simulations. These hard, dense stones are diamond-cut and hand set into heavy duty rings of exquisite beauty. Like precious diamonds, ZOLATRONS look, glow and feel like diamonds. And like diamonds, they sure do impress people! But let's face it: ZOLATRONS are different from regular diamonds. However, the most thrilling difference is that you get one for only a few dollars—not thousands!

PROVE IT YOURSELF WITH DARING SULPHURIC ACID TEST

Now you can prove the similarity of ZOLATRONS and DIAMONDS with this daring experiment. Take a loose Diamond, a Zolatron and a Plastic Stone (used in cheap jewelry) and drop them into foaming sulphuric acid. Next day carefully remove them from the acid. Note how both the diamond and the Zolatron come out unharmed. But the plastic stone has disintegrated into a mushy mass. Hard, dense Zolatrons easily pass this corrosive acid test. Just like diamonds they don't break down. CAUTION: Sulphuric Acid is a dangerous substance. Avoid getting onto skin or clothing.

WEAR ZOLATRONS WITH CONFIDENCE!

Yes, wear this magnificent man-made stone with pride and assurance—just like a diamond costing thousands. Keep the secret to yourself. After all, it takes a real diamond expert to detect it from a natural diamond.

THE GIFT OF A LIFETIME FOR SOMEONE SPECIAL!

ZOLATRONS make thrilling, lifetime gifts for special occasions . . . engagements . . . a wonderful surprise for Someone Special. He or she will never know it isn't a diamond worth a fortune — unless you tell. You don't have to go broke for a man-made stone either. A magnificent ZOLATRON Ring can now be yours for only a few dollars — rushed by return mail to your home. By choosing man-made ZOLATRONS instead of regular diamonds, you save plenty for a down payment on a car, real estate or a terrific vacation.

Many millionaires and movie stars secretly wear simulated diamonds. Think of this: the "genuine" diamonds your neighbors show off at parties, may not be so "genuine" after all. We know of rich folks that wear simulations and stash their costly jewels in bank vaults. Be it as it may, you don't have to be a millionaire to own a man-made ZOLATRON Ring.

Supertanker

Another factor that eases the mind is that these really huge ships are precluded from entering any major port in the United States because this country has no major deep-water facilities to cope with them. (The people of Staten Island—the least-known borough of New York City—are by no means happy, however. Storage facilities for 900,000 tons of liquefied natural gas are being built on that island—and far too near to houses and apartment blocks for their inhabitants' comfort.)

But then consider what I think is the real danger. It was brought home to me quite dramatically.

Last summer, in Manhattan, I sat down to write a novel about a group of activist American Indians who took over a supertanker and held the island of Manhattan for ransom. It was a novel, nothing more—a fantasy with a hero (the mayor), a heroine (Manhattan herself) and a splendid collection of villains.

Of course it could not really happen, I thought. And then I bought some charts and started doing some reading. What I found was that it was indeed possible to bring a huge supertanker into the Hudson and create exactly the situation I had envisaged.

A very unhappy thought.

But the plot was based on the knowledge that in a few years time, such will be the high level of automation and computerization that these huge ships will have minimal crews—possibly as few as eight or ten men. At the moment, few of them sail with less than 26 men on board, and each of these men is generally highly skilled. It is only the "cowboys" who worry me.

What is important is that those people who transport great, almost unbelievable, quantities of fuel and dangerous chemicals should be constantly reminded that they have a massive responsibility to the rest of us; and that these huge loads must be treated as the potent hazard they are.

The Cleveland explosions brought about a major examination of all the potential dangers. Perhaps the time has come for a new reassessment by public authorities and the transporters themselves.

It would be far better to do it now than after an explosion that would almost certainly be far more catastrophic than that of 1944. It is, after all, our lives that are involved. FW

THE EYES HAVE IT
Neither wind, nor rain . . .

Anyone who wears eyeglasses and has gotten caught in the rain knows that after a while you can't see a thing. Walking into a warm room after being outside in the cold also causes visual problems. To remedy this dilemma, a French manufacturer followed the idea of automobile windshield wipers and designed battery-operated windshield-wiper-fitted spectacles. (Prescription glasses can also be fitted.) The spectacles are lightweight and all you have to do to set the wipers in motion is press a button on the side. But a few queries remain: Wouldn't they become hypnotic after a time? And if they're as unreliable as car wipers, wouldn't a tissue do just as well?

Women are setting a new trend—as runaways: "In no other year have women outnumbered men as the runaway spouse," said Ed Goldfader, president of Tracers Company of America. "Two years ago, for example, runaway husbands outnumbered runaway wives by a margin of two to one. Generally speaking, the average husband leaves home because of professional frustrations and financial pressures. The wife often leaves to get attention; she is anxious to elevate herself from the role of cook, laundress and housekeeper," Goldfader concluded after numerous interviews with wives who had decided to go it alone. The most publicized incident of a female runaway was the case of Angelina Alioto, wife of San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, who last year vanished in the midst of her husband's reelection campaign. After 17 days, Mrs. Alioto returned and publicly explained that she had run away because she felt neglected. There are other reasons for the rising number of female runaways, which reveal the tremendous change in social mores in recent years. As Americans have become more educated, more affluent and more sophisticated, large numbers of men and women have come to believe that marriage is not the only option open to them (as the drop in marriages and subsequent rise in the divorce rate attest).

JOE DIMAGGIO
"I don't like comparisons, but . . ."

The Oakland A's, whom Joe DiMaggio coached for three years, have won the World Series three years in a row, but Joltin' Joe maintains that they're still not on a par with the old Yankees: "You get in trouble when you start comparing eras, but would you prefer having Gene Tenace at first base over Lou Gehrig? Would you use Ray Fosse behind the plate over Bill Dickey or Yogi Berra?" But the ex-center fielder of the Yankees admits that a player like Reggie Jackson or Sal Bando would have been an asset to any Yankee team and goes on to say, "In fact, the A's have many of the same qualities that the Yanks did—they wait for the other team to make an error and really capitalize on those mistakes." Joe retired from play 25 years ago; but at age 60, his popularity hasn't diminished one bit. He travels all over the world instructing youngsters, demonstrating that he hasn't forgotten how to use a bat. With all the TV commercials he does, he is quick to add: "More people see me today than at the height of my baseball career."

FACING IT

Our bathroom mirror has a bubble
That causes me no end of trouble.
I move my face the slightest bit—
The bubble makes a mess of it.
My nose is shifted to my cheek
Or else becomes a monstrous beak;
One eye (it's hard to think it's mine)
Is up or down or out of line;
My lips grow thick and then grow thin;
I look as if I've lost my chin.
That bubble shifts and longs and shorts me,
It unexpectedly distorts me. . . .
Bad as I look, at least I'm glad
I really don't look quite that bad.

Walking along a dimly lighted street, a man was surprised by a stranger who slipped out of the shadows and stopped him. "Would you be so kind," said the stranger, "as to help a poor, unfortunate fellow who is out of work and very hungry? All I have in the world is this gun." —Lucille S. Harper

A government official had to decide whether an elderly woman's farm was located in the United States or Canada. When he announced to her that her property was just inside the U.S., she seemed very much relieved and said, "I'm glad to know that. They say Canadian winters are terribly severe."

MILESTONES IN THE STORY OF

Prince Valiant

® BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: KING AGUAR OF THULE LANDS IN BRITAIN WITH HIS QUEEN AND FIVE-YEAR-OLD SON, PRINCE VALIANT.

THE YOUNG PRINCE SPENDS HIS BOYHOOD IN THE WILD FENS LEARNING THE HUNTER'S SKILL AND THE ART OF SURVIVAL.

HE MEETS SIR GAWAIN AND A LIFELONG FRIENDSHIP BEGINS.

IN KING ARTHUR HE FINDS A LEADER WORTH SERVING TO THE VERY END. BUT IT IS GUINEVERE'S SMILE THAT INSPIRES HIM TO MASTER THE ARTS OF CHIVALRY.

THEY RIDE TO CAMELOT AND THERE HE WILL SPEND MONTHS AND YEARS IN HARD TRAINING.

THE 'SINGING SWORD' FLASHED LIKE LIGHTNING, AS HE HELD THE BRIDGE AT DUNDORN GLEN AGAINST A SAXON RAIDING PARTY UNTIL HELP ARRIVED.

THE NEW-MADE KNIGHT SO HARASSED ATTILA THE HUN, THAT HIS CROSSING OF THE ALPS WAS DELAYED, GIVING TIME FOR ATEUS TO CONTRIVE HIS DEFEAT AT CHALONS.

SHIPWRECKED IN THE AEGEAN SEA HE BEHELD ALETA, GREY-EYED QUEEN OF THE MISTY ISLES. THROUGH SORCERY, SHE CAST A SPELL UPON HIM THAT TROUBLED HIM, BUT PLEASANTLY, FOR THE REST OF HIS LIFE.

BOLTAR, THAT HONEST MERCHANT AND PIRATE, CAME ROARING INTO HIS LIFE AND REMAINED FOREVER HIS FRIEND.

HAL FOSTER

ONCE HE STOOD ALONE BEFORE THE WALLS OF SARAMAND AND VOWED TO DESTROY IT.... AND DID.

BEFORE THE HOLY SEPULCHER IN JERUSALEM HE DEDICATED THE 'SINGING SWORD' TO THE CAUSE OF JUSTICE.

AGAIN HE MEETS ALETA, THE SMALL GOLDEN ONE, AND IS QUITE CONTENT TO LIVE UNDER HER SPELL FOREVER.

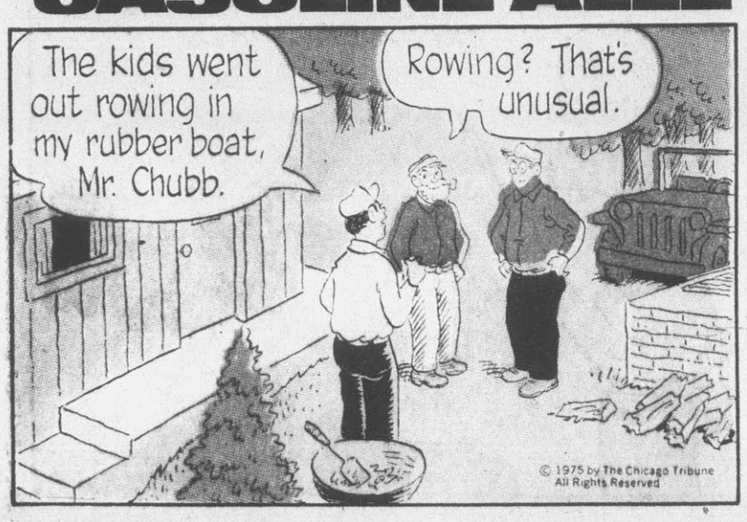

PRINCE VALIANT WANDERS THE WIDE TURBULENT WORLD IN SEARCH OF ADVENTURE BUT EVER HE RETURNS TO SEE IF HER SPELL STILL HOLDS, AND IS GLAD IT DOES.

YOU DID THIS!

SIRE, I KNOW NOT WH--

TO EMBARRASS THE AMERICAN, THE STABLE BOY HAS LEIGHTON OLSON DRAGGED PAST THE TRIBAL CHIEF! —HE IS RESCUED BY THE CHIEF'S SON

YOU ORDERED THE CAMEL BOY TO TRY AND MAKE MY GUEST APPEAR THE FOOL!

YOU SHALL ANSWER TO ME!

SIRE, MY CHIEFTAIN! —I APPEAL!

MY FATHER, I REQUEST PERMISSION TO CHALLENGE THIS MAN!

BOLD WORDS! —HOW?

SWORDS! LANCES! WHIPS! —ANY THING!

I AM NOT ABOUT TO GIVE PERMISSION TO HAVE MY SON EXECUTED...

BUT I ADMIRE YOUR COURAGE AND YOUR LOYALTY TO YOUR COLLEGE FRIEND!

YOU MAY JOUST WITH THE GUARD CAPTAIN! —BLUNTED LANCES!

BUT, FATHER —I MUST KILL THIS BOOR!

THIS 'BOOR' IS THE BEST FIGHTER IN MY SERVICE!

YOU WILL PROCEED AS I ORDERED!

I OBEY MY FATHER!

ONE DAY THE BOY WILL BE THE CHIEF! IF YOU UNSEAT HIM HE WILL NEVER FORGIVE YOU!

IF HE UNSEATS ME I WILL BE DISGRACED AND SENT INTO THE DESERT!

SO YOU WILL BLUNT MY LANCE LOOSELY ENOUGH THAT THE POINT MAY SLIP THROUGH ON IMPACT!
