Unveiling Most Of CIA Probe

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will make public the Rockefeller Commission report on the Central Intelligence Agency but keep secret the commission's information about alleged assassination plots, White House sources said today.

telligence committee. The panel is focusing its investigation of the CIA on what its chairman calls hard evidence of "murder plots." Sources said the President will announce his decision to release the commission report during a nationally broadcast news conference at 7:30 p.m. EDT. There was no word on when the report, dealing with allegations of domestic spying by the CIA, would be made public.

Secretary Ron Nessen said during the weekend he assumed the President would make the commission report public. Meanwhile, there were these developments: —Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich., said he will not resign as chairman of the special House committee investigating the CIA and other intelligence gathering agencies. Nedzi acknowledged the CIA had given him information about

"some sort of assassination" because he also is chairman of the standing committee that is responsible for overseeing the agency's activities. The other five Democrats on the special committee have asked Nedzi to resign as chairman of that panel on the grounds that he had done nothing after learning about the assassination plots. —Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi said Sunday the Justice Department would examine the Rockefeller report, if it is turned over to the department, and would "determine whether a criminal prosecution in the federal courts would lie" for any actions described in the study. Levi, speaking on ABC's "Issues and Answers," also said a president does not have the constitutional power to order assassinations. Maheu is the first witness to appear before the Senate committee under a subpoena.

Church has promised to examine evidence of assassination plots against Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and other foreign leaders before moving on to other areas in his probe of the entire U.S. intelligence community. For the moment, the 11-member panel appears to be focusing on what former CIA Director John A. McCone has described as the agency's principal effort to kill Castro in 1960 and 1961.

Down To The Nitty-Gritty Handful Given Budget-Writing Chores

By CATHY STEELE ROCHE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The work of the North Carolina legislature got down to the nitty gritty this weekend as the job of grinding out a balanced state budget fell into the hands of a few men.

House Speaker James Green rearranged the budget-making system in the House this year, dividing responsibility between the Base Budget Committee and Appropriations Committee. Base Budget has considered the continuation budget line by line with Appropriations left to deal only with expansive items.

This weekend, Base Budget chairman Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, and Appropriations chairman, Rep. Jimmy Love, D-Lee, had the task of bringing the House budget together. With $95 million in cuts made from the continuation budget, $193 million more had to come out of expansion proposals.

and wants to iron out the differences after the budget bills clear each floor. Scott is huffy about the arrangement, which he thinks complicates and delays the budget-making process. "There are too many people running for governor around here," he grumbled Friday. Scott supports Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, who is looking to a challenge from Green.

When the cutting began in earnest last week, Republican-controlled agencies found few sympathetic ears on the committees. David Jones' Corrections Department took heavy cuts in the prison construction program in Senate Appropriations and lost two major programs in House Base Budget. The Senate wiped out the entire $8.6 million capital improvements appropriation. (Continued on page 6)

Appointed To Election Bd.

The appointment of the three-member Pitt Board of Elections has been announced by the State Elections Board. Reappointed by the state agency were the two current Republican members James C. Lanier Jr. and Thomas C. Herndon, while Clifton W. Everett Jr. was named to replace J. B. Spilman Jr. as the Democratic representative on the board.

two-year terms, with their tenures expiring in June of 1977. Under the old appointment format, board members were appointed in March for two-year terms. Swearing-in ceremonies for the three members will be held June 17 at noon at the office of the clerk at the Pitt Courthouse. Immediately following the ceremonies, the county board will meet to elect a chairman and secretary. Currently, Lanier serves as chairman. The board will also meet Aug. 5 to appoint precinct registrars and judges from the list of nominees furnished by each county party chairman.

Cigarettes Seized

BETHEL, Conn. (AP) — State police seized 7,200 cartons of untaxed cigarettes early today, the largest single seizure of untaxed cigarettes in state history, according to a state police spokesman.

The cigarettes would be worth $14,700 in tax money to the state, the spokesman said. Two North Carolina men and one from Georgia were charged. Troopers said Mitchell Moore, 51, of Gray, Ga.; Bernice R. Peeden, 43, of Wilson, N.C.; and Richard C. Hamilton of Lucama, N.C. were charged with sale of unstamped cigarettes, transportation of unstamped cigarettes, and conspiracy to sell and transport untaxed cigarettes. Each was held on $20,000 bond, pending an appearance in 3rd Common Pleas Court in Danbury. Troopers said the three were arrested at 2:15 a.m. on Interstate 84 and a 1970 GMC truck and a 1975 Chevy van truck were also seized by police. The arrests at 2:15 a.m. were made by the state Tax Department, state police, the state Organized Crime Investigative Task Force, and the Eastern Seaboard Interstate Tax Enforcement Group.

Hearings On Pitt Budget Are Begun

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County Commissioners this morning held a public hearing on the proposed 1975-1976 budget and began hearings for various county agencies and departments to present their requests to the board. Although no total was available this morning, the initial requests were thought to be much higher than the $13.2 million budget approved by commissioners for the 1974-1975 fiscal year. The board, however, has indicated that wishes to hold the same tax rate as used for the current year which will mean trimming the budget requests. Only three persons spoke at the public hearing.

employees for that department have not been recommended; and expressed "regret" that the budget recommendations do not include funds "to begin to develop a program of recreation," in Pitt. "We are happy to note that the budget contains a recommendation for continued 24-hour matron service at the Pitt County Jail," she said. According to Mrs. Resnik, "the additional services and program that we recommend will be costly in terms of time and money. Yet, we cannot help but believe that Pitt County citizens will support a tax rate that will provide the necessary economic basis for progress and growth. The current tax rate is 62 1/2 cents per $100 valuation for the general fund and equal 15-cents per $100 valuation rates for both the city and county schools' special district current expense funds. Charles Coble, an ECU staff member also urged commissioners to give further support to the public schools, saying in his estimation the budget recommendations for education "fall short of what is needed." Ann Frost, representing the Board of Trustees of Sheppard Memorial Library also appeared at the hearing. She requested the commissioners to fund the full $69,260 that has been requested by the board for the coming fiscal year, saying that the $65,000 recommendation in the proposed budget is short of the needs of the library. Following the public hearing, commissioners began to hear from representatives from various county departments and agencies in support of their requests for funds.

MULTI-HANDICAPPED
Rocky Mount residents Gregory Hawkins and Eddie Walker are multi-handicapped children. They are brain-damaged, but their problems don't put them into any particular category that the State of North Carolina recognizes. They're not retarded; they're not autistic; they're not cerebral-palsied; they're not blind; they're not deaf. Yet they cannot fit into a regular classroom situation. They are learning disabled, but in such an extreme way that a 30-minute-a-day L.D. teacher or a homebound teacher can be of little help. Because their needs are not being met in the public schools of North Carolina, Greg and Eddie's parents are seeking to send them to a school in Dallas, Tex., where Doman-Delacato, orthomolecular therapy, and other methods of treating and educating brain-damaged children have been used very successfully. The cost is about $6,000 per year. Greg is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hawkins, former Greenville residents. He sustained brain damage due to high fever during malaria when his father was working for the Agency for International Development in Zambia, Africa. Eddie, brain-injured from birth, was adopted by the Walkers after their natural children were grown. "Both boys have found reading impossible so far and are hyperactive, yet they have keen minds that must be trained if they are to be contributors and not detractors from society," Mrs. Hawkins said. "The Walkers and George and I are proud people, but we have found we have to ask for help. The public educations provided most people's children just aren't sufficient for our special children." The First Pentecostal Church of Rocky Mount has set up a special "Greg and Eddie" Fund. Tax-deductible contributions may be sent to this church, Box 102, Rocky Mount, N.C. 27801.

someway, the celebration of the nation's Bicentennial. The painting project was completed during the morning. Mrs. Dianne White is chairman of the Arts Department and members of her department assisting in the endeavor were Mrs. Renetta Smith, Mrs. Marlene Slate and Mrs. Peggy Congleton. Filipinos' Reappraisal Brings Red China Treaty TOKYO (AP) — The Philippines, a long-time anti-Communist nation—in the process of reappraising its policies, established diplomatic relations with China today, a Peking broadcast said. Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos and Premier Chou En-lai signed the communique opening relations in Peking, the official Hsinhua news agency reported. "They are opposed to any attempt by any country or group of countries to establish hegemony or create spheres of influence in any part of the world," it added.

over possible Chinese support for Philippine Communists, the communique declared: "The two governments agree that all foreign aggression and subversion and all attempts by any country to control any other country or to interfere in its internal affairs are to be condemned. With the Philippines facing a subversion problem and having previously expressed concern territory." The Philippines in effect broke relations with the Taipei government last week when it asked the Nationalist Chinese ambassador in Manila to return home. The communique said Manila and Peking would exchange ambassadors "as soon as practicable." Soon after arriving in Peking on Saturday, Marcos said at a banquet, "The old modes of thought can no longer sustain us or any other nation in Asia.

We must review our alliances, reappraise our destiny and, in a word, go out into the world." In Manila, meanwhile, Philip C. Habib, U.S. assistant secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific affairs, said the United States will maintain forces, including Navy and Air Force units in the Pacific and Southeast Asia, "as necessary." Habib made the statement before flying to Honolulu, ending a three-week tour of six Southeast Asian countries to "get a clearer Asian perception" following the U.S. withdrawal from South Vietnam and Cambodia. The United States maintains naval and air bases in the Philippines, Japan, Guam and Thailand. The Thais have asked the U.S. forces to leave by next March. Habib visited Indonesia, Singapore, Malaysia, Thailand and Laos before coming to the Philippines. He spoke apparently before the announcement that the Philippines and China had established diplomatic ties.

He's Alive and Well And Collecting His Own Social Security

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I had the same problem "OUT IN THE BOONDOCKS" had. My husband deserted me, and I wanted to get married again but couldn't locate my husband to divorce him. On the advice of my lawyer, I put an ad in the newspaper asking my husband to please contact me. It ran for three weeks without results, so I went ahead, divorced him and married the other man.

It's been 12 years now and I still haven't heard from my "ex" and neither has his family. However, when I wanted to declare him legally dead so my children could collect his Social Security and I could collect his life insurance, I was advised that my "ex" was still paying into his Social Security, which meant he is still alive!

But (get this!) the law is protecting that bum by refusing to let me know the location from which he is paying. How about that?

DESERTED

DEAR DESERTED: Social Security data are confidential. The law is very democratic. Even "bums" have rights.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 75-year-old widow in excellent health, am very independent and am enjoying a full life. Two years ago, my brother lost his wife and came to make his home with me. He is 86. We are of the Jewish faith.

A cousin of ours invited my brother to the first seder (a religious dinner) at her home. However, she did not invite me! I know why, too. She has a new boyfriend and was afraid that if he saw me, he might like me more than her. (This cousin is 70 and is also a widow.)

I felt bad because this might be the last seder I could spend with my brother.

Do you think it was very nice of our cousin to invite my brother and not me? (He didn't want to go without me, but I insisted!)

STAYED HOME

DEAR STAYED: No. But on the brighter side, it's a compliment that at age 75, your charm and personality poses a threat to a woman five years your junior.

DEAR ABBY: This may sound crazy, but I need your advice. I am divorced and the mother of a sweet, 4-year-old boy named Ronnie.

We were at home recently when an armed intruder confronted us. The man was gentle and he quickly put Ronnie at ease. He wanted only money and promised not to hurt us. We both explained to Ronnie that Mommy would have to be tied up for a while. He seemed to understand.

After I was bound and gagged, Ronnie was told to turn the TV on and when the program was over (about 20 minutes) he could help me or call for help. I was taken to another room and the robber left.

Abby, my son spent the next THREE HOURS watching TV while I was bound and utterly helpless. I finally managed, through the gag, to tell him to go next door for help.

Could Ronnie possibly have some hostility toward me? Should I see a psychologist? Please answer.

TIED UP

DEAR TIED: From your description of the way the intruder put Ronnie at ease and "explained" that you would have to be tied up for a while, the boy obviously felt no urgency about getting help or setting you free. Psychologist? Hostility? What for? The kid didn't get the picture—except on TV.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Soviet Missile Subs Are Nearer

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Soviet missile-firing submarine as been detected operating closer to the U.S. East Coast than ever before.

Pentagon officials are puzzled why the Russian command sent Y-class nuclear-powered submarine to cruise within 350 miles of Cape Cod, Mass., and later about the same distance off Norfolk, Va., last week.

This is about 1,000 miles closer to the United States than Soviet Y-class subs normally patrol in the Atlantic.

Although there is no sign of any hostile intent, the recent track of the Soviet submarine would bring much more of this country within the 1,300-mile to 1,600-mile range of missiles carried in Y-class boats.

Intelligence analysts speculate that the appearance of the submarine in the new area would foreshadow a change in the patrol pattern of Soviet missile craft.

Or, they say the Russians could be trying to draw a reaction from the U.S. Navy to learn more about the effectiveness of U.S. methods and equipment in detecting the presence of submarines operating below the surface of the sea.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union are constantly at work attempting to improve techniques for concealing the locations of their missile-firing submarines.

Some years ago, the U.S. Navy learned that the Russians sometimes positioned attack submarines off ports like Charleston, S.C., Guam, and Holy Loch, Scotland. When U.S. Polaris missile submarines left those ports on 60-day submerged patrols, the Russian subs tried to follow.

On at least one such occasion, a Polaris sub and a Russian attack sub are reported to have bumped off Holy Loch. Neither sub was badly damaged and sources said they went their separate ways afterwards.

The U.S. Navy has developed a number of ploys aimed at foiling Soviet efforts to keep track of the Polaris subs. Details of these ploys are kept secret.

NEW MISS N.C.—Miss Thomasville, Susan Lawrence was named Miss North Carolina late Saturday night in the annual state pageant in Charlotte. (AP Wirephoto)

Last-Minute Choices Lucky

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Lucky last-minute decisions helped Miss Thomasville, Susan Gail Lawrence, win the Miss North Carolina title.

The 20-year-old brownette who has been working in the sportswear department at Montaldo's women's fashion shop in Winston-Salem decided to enter the local pageant in Thomasville just before the deadline. That was at the prodding of a former teacher, Mrs. Maggie Lou Barney of North Davidson High School.

"My sister had been in a number of pageants but I had never done it before. I thought that was more her thing than mine," Miss Lawrence said in an interview after her victory Saturday night.

The 5-foot-9 graduate of King's business and vocational college planned until last week's rehearsals to sing "Make Someone Happy" and "Tonight" in the talent segment of the state contest. Instead she sang "Cabaret" while twisting a red ostrich feather collar on a slinky gown—and won in talent. She also had been a preliminary winner in swimsuit.

For her victory over 54 other contestants, Miss Lawrence, 36-24-36, received $3,500 in scholarships to further her ambition to study arts and the humanities at the University of North Carolina-Greensboro.

She will represent the state in the Miss America contest in Atlantic City, N.J., in early September.

The first runnerup was Miss Aberdeen, Diann Lynn Moon, a sophomore at Wake Forest University.

Third through fifth in order were Miss Mount Holly, Susan Smith, a student at UNC-Greensboro; Miss Elkin Valley, Kathy Fleming, a junior at Appalachian State University; and Miss Southern Pines, Julie Ann Kicklighter, a sophomore at Meredith College in Raleigh.

Miss Pender County, Jane Ward Highsmith, was awarded a prize as the most talented non-finalists.

Other contestants chose Miss Morganton, Paulette Bailey, as Miss Congeniality.

Two of the graduates were Keeshan's children—master's degree candidate Michael Keeshan and his younger sister Laurie, who was awarded a bachelor's degree.

Five Persons Reported Injured In Two Wrecks

Five persons were reported injured—one critically—in two wrecks investigated by the Highway Patrol over the weekend.

Highway Patrolman A.G. Wright reported Ralph Daniel Belue Jr. 18 of Rt. 4, Greenville, was pinned in his car for about 20 minutes before members of the Greenville Rescue Squad could free him following a 7:10 p.m. Sunday crash at the intersection of the Eastern By-pass and the Old Creek Road.

A car driven by Belue and a vehicle operated by Robert William Stallings of Stan-tonsburg, collided at the intersection, resulting in an estimated $1,000 damage to the Belue vehicle and $500 damage to the Stallings auto, according to Trooper Wright.

Belue was reported seriously injured in the collision. Mrs. Carolyn Stallings, 27, a passenger in her husband's car, was also injured.

Trooper Wright identified the drivers of the two vehicles involved as Walter Clayton Malloy, 25, of Greenville, and Clater Parker Killebrew Jr., 22, of Rt. 3, Tarboro.

Malloy, according to Trooper Wright has been married a short time before and he and his new bride, Connie Jones Malloy, 17, were enroute to Williamsburg, Va. for their honeymoon.

Both Malloy and his wife, as well as Killebrew, were injured. Damage to the Malloy vehicle was set at $1,000, while damage to the Killebrew vehicle was estimated at $2,000.

According to Trooper Wright, the Killebrew car, after colliding with the Malloy auto, struck three air conditioning units at the Prepshirt Manufacturing Corp. plant. He said company officials estimated damage to the air conditioning units at $100,000.

Investigation of the collision is continuing.

The second collision, according to Ptl. Wright, occurred about 9:30 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of N. Greene Street and the Belvoir Road.

Asserts Plant Site Unstable

RALEIGH (AP)—A Wilmington developer says seismic information he sold Carolina Power & Light Co. supports the fears of some scientists that the earth beneath the giant Brunswick nuclear plant near Southport is unstable and may be vulnerable to an earthquake. But a CP&L spokesman disputes this.

G.L. Sholar, the developer, said in a recent interview he believes the information—gathered by geologists that he hired in 1965—indicates there are faults or cracks in the earth near the site of the CP&L plant.

Sholar said he sold the evidence to CP&L for $7,500.

The company confirmed it purchased the information from Sholar and said it also paid a former business partner of Sholar $10,000 more for related geologic information.

CP&L officials insisted, however, that contrary to Sholar's claims, the information does not show the plant site to be unsafe.

"After evaluating the data, CP&L has determined that there is no reason to question the seismic safety of the Brunswick plant site," the CP&L spokesman said.

Company officials admitted that their conclusions are tentative and that they are sifting through a vast amount of data.

David M. Stewart, director of the McCarthy Geophysics Laboratory at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, is the leader of a group of scientists who claim the Brunswick site may be unsafe. Stewart said he had studied some of the information Sholar supplied CP&L. He said some of it suggests that there may be instability in the area, thereby corroborating his own theory.

Stewart hastened to add, he hasn't seen enough evidence to conclude that Sholar's claims are valid.

Sholar, who is not a geologist, was present back in 1965 of the now-defunct North Carolina Oil and Gas Co. He hired a Tulsa, Okla., firm to make seismic studies of eight eastern North Carolina counties, including Brunswick. Sholar said the survey showed four major faults in the earth's crust, one of which runs within half a mile of the Brunswick plant.

Militant Is Gun Victim

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP)—Russell Means, the American Indian Movement leader, is recovering after being shot in the abdomen during a scuffle with a Bureau of Indian Affairs policeman.

The BIA said Sunday that the shooting was accidental. But Means, in satisfactory condition at a hospital here, said the BIA's entire account was in error.

The BIA said Means was wounded Saturday when the pistol of Lt. Pat Kelly, 45, accidentally discharged during a scuffle involving Means, other AIM members and Kelly near here. The BIA said Means had been sought earlier in connection with an incident at a Fort Rice tavern.

Means, however, said the man who shot him was not Kelly at all, but Kelly's son.

Means was a leader of American Indians who took and held the town of Wounded Knee, S.D., for 71 days to protest their position in society. Federal charges against him in that occupation were dismissed after a trial. He is now free on $30,000 bond on a charge of being an accomplice in the murder of a South Dakota man who was shot in a bar March 1.

Investigating Prison Unit

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP)—The FBI says it is investigating charges by prisoners of brutality, racial discrimination and denial of civil rights in the Robeson County Prison Unit.

The supervisor of the state prison unit at Lumberton, J.J. Oxendine, has confirmed that prisoners are denied speedy trial on escape charges unless they plead guilty. One inmate said he had been awaiting such trial for two years.

Oxendine said the solicitor "will not schedule a man for trial unless they plead guilty because they've got a pretty tight schedule and because the state has to pay $150 for a lawyer to represent these men."

A Time To Resist Temptation

The City Council has before it a $27,877,727 budget and a public hearing on it will be held June 19 at 4 p.m.

The budget is big by any standards and it is difficult to compare with most previous municipal budgets since, starting last year, the Utilities Commission budget was integrated into the city budget as directed by the N.C. Local Government Budget Fiscal Control Act.

Greenville Utilities portion of the big budget is $21,362,884 and, of course, a large percentage of this is paid to Virginia Electric and Power Co. and to N.C. Natural Gas for energy. Electricity and natural gas are purchased by the Utilities for distribution over the municipally owned systems.

The $6,514,843 remaining in the total budget goes for municipal services. These funds come from property taxes, license and permits, revenue sharing (federal funds); Powell Bill (state funds for streets) and other sources.

The most favorable thing about this year's budget, which was proposed by City Manager Harry Hagerty is that it holds the city property tax rate at 64 cents per $100 valuation. Fortunately, because of the revenue sharing funds and the community facilities funds, which Greenville recently qualified for, some new government programs will be possible without increasing the tax rate. And it is important at this time of recession and inflation that the city government not expect more taxes from our hard pressed citizens.

Although there will be some adjusting to be done by the City Council, we think the proposed budget looks reasonably sound at this point.

As required by law the utilities budget has been brought into the city budget and we think there is a real danger there of the council, now or in the future, taking over all phases of policy making for the commission, which we feel should be operated as a business.

We hope the present council resists this temptation and instead relies on the commissioners, which it appoints, to set policy and oversee the operation of the commission. We shall have to see how all this works out.

ENCOURAGING SIGNS

A Farm Pond 'Love Affair'

By FRANK JETER, JR.
USDA-Soil Conservation Service

RALEIGH—Stories and photos of golden wedding celebrations, which appear from time to time in North Carolina newspapers, tell of love affairs that have lasted a long time.

Rural landowners in the Tar Heel State have collectively been engaged in a type of love affair which, if it has not been going on quite 50 years, has certainly set several kinds of records.

During the past 40 years that the Soil Conservation Service and local soil and water conservation districts have been serving the cause of conservation, landowners have established a "love affair" with the familiar farm pond, and the affection seems undiminished in the year 1975.

During the years, more than 66,000 farm ponds have been built in North Carolina with technical assistance from the Soil Conservation Service, and even with this impressive number—more than 660 to each county, on average—pond building is still a brisk business, with 300 or more being built each year.

N.C. Leads North Carolina is the leading state in farm ponds along the South Atlantic coast.

The Southeast, from Virginia to New Mexico, boasts well over half of the two million ponds that have been built in the nation, with some 1.2 million for the region. As might be expected, Texas and its 254 counties lead all states with 267,707 ponds. Runners-up are Oklahoma with 171,000 and Mississippi with 123,000.

Nationally, about one pond to each 10 people has been built. North Carolina is well ahead of the national average, with a pond for each eight inhabitants—and more on the way.

Farm ponds are used for a variety of purposes. Many are used to provide water for livestock, while others supply it for crop irrigation. Many families use it for a farm water supply, for sediment retention (located on low-lying ground) and for fire protection.

All these are valid reasons to install a pond. And of course the SCS people are glad to work with a landowner to figure out the best site and show the landowner where to dig (or build a dam) to create a pond.

More Uses But many people also set great store by the fishing and other recreation provided by ponds. In North Carolina, virtually every pond is stocked with fish, with the bream-bass cycle as the most popular combination. But crappie and other fish are also stocked, and increasingly channel catfish are being introduced.

In the mountains, trout swim in the chill waters of farm ponds.

To help those interested in fishing, the Soil Conservation Service has two booklets that are free for the asking at the SCS office or the soil and water conservation district. They are Farmers Bulletin No. 2250, "Warm Water Fishponds," and Farmers Bulletin No. 2249, "Trout Ponds for Recreation." Each is also sold through the Government Printing Office, the trout booklet for 15 cents and the fishpond booklet for 25 cents.

Swimming, boating and other water-related recreation are also enjoyed at many of the ponds. Some farmers allow fishing for a fee.

The enthusiasm for farm ponds in North Carolina seems to be "contagious." Some individual farmers have a half dozen ponds, or more, on their tracts. Recently one farmer who already had seven ponds called his SCS office and said he wanted help again—to install three more ponds at once and make it an even ten.

While SCS expertise is available to "stake and reference" the locality for a pond and give other advice, including depth and slope of banks, the landowner must pay for the digging or damming himself—sometimes with cost sharing through ACP or other programs, administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

But even if it does cost money to build and maintain a pond, the love affair of rural landowners seems destined to continue.

Tar Heels like farm ponds. It's as simple as that.

Women's Lib Is Home

WASHINGTON—The Women's Lib Movement has made its impact on college and most parents are feeling it now that their daughters are home from school. The big question being debated in households all over America is whether a liberated college student should be required to make her own bed and do the dishes in her own home.

This is how it's been going in our house. "Would you mind making your bed and cleaning up your room?" asks the maker of Mom's apple pie.

"I am not a slave," replies the apple of our eye. "For centuries women have been relegated to dreary housework and we have to put a stop to it."

"That's true. But cleaning up your own room under our present form of government does not constitute slavery."

"The day of women using vacuum cleaners and dust mops is over. We must free ourselves from the image men have of us as servants."

The maker of Mom's apple pie says, "No one could be prouder of the battle you're waging for full equality. But if you don't clean up your room then I will have to, and I don't see how that would strike a blow for women's liberation."

"Why you?" the apple of our eye says. "Don't you see, Mom, by cleaning up my room you are certifying the male image of us as weak, passive, dependent and inferior human beings. Why doesn't Dad clean up my room?"

"That's a good question, but if I were you I wouldn't ask him."

"That's just my point. For years we've been cleaning up our rooms and making our beds. It's time we put a stop to it and said to our men, 'You want a clean bedroom—clean it yourself!'"

"I'm sure in your consciousness-raising sessions this sounds very good, but there are also health problems that have to be taken into consideration. We're not asking you to clean up the house—just your own room. Doesn't the feminist movement make any allowances for that?"

"There's more to life, Mom, than making beds."

"I know that. There's also the dishes. You've been home for two weeks now and I don't think you've washed a dish."

"I refuse to be part of role-playing in this house. The role of women as the official dishwasher has to be turned around. The kitchen is a prison which we must break out of so we can use our God-given talents to do something constructive."

"Even feminists don't like to eat off dirty plates," the maker of Mom's apple pie says. "Couldn't you wash the dishes and then plan your revolution?"

More Paid By Poor

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—When the 1975 General Assembly leaves Raleigh, North Carolina's tax load will still fall more heavily on the very poor than on the wealthy.

One by one this year, bills to restructure the system have died. Food tax repeal had no chance. Neither did bills to increase the tax on incomes over $10,000.

Rep. Sandy Harris, D-Alamance, acting on the advice of North Carolinians for Tax Reform, let those bills die in the House Finance Committee. They would have constituted a major step toward making the state's tax structure more progressive.

But this year, even minor steps are difficult to take. Sen. Russell Kirby had a spate of little bills. One would have given a deduction to parents for day care expenses. A second would repeal the dividend income exemption for stockholders in North Carolina corporations. A third would have repealed the $120 limit on the sales tax on luxury autos that enables a Cadillac buyer to pay the same tax as a Chevrolet owner.

Only the child care deduction has been enacted. The dividend exemption repeal was emasculated in the name of widows and orphans, although statistics show that the wealthy are the ones who benefit from it. Repealing the auto sales tax repeal is a dead issue, Kirby says.

On the other hand, a few bills have gone through. RJR Industries won approval for a special bill that would allow it to change its corporate structure without incurring additional taxes.

Manufacturers and merchants are making progress with a bill that would halve their inventory tax burden and probably lead to higher property taxes. Other groups, like the cigarette and alcohol lobbies, have made sure that the excise tax on their products is not going up.

The net result is that North Carolina will still have a tax structure that a Senate study commission has defined as regressive.

That means that the poorest citizens pay a higher percentage of their incomes in taxes than do the wealthiest. This is largely because the poor spend such a high percentage of their income on food.

The tax bite levels off through the lower and middle income brackets. It declines somewhat for the wealthiest percentage of the citizenry.

Kirby thinks it will stay that way this year because there is an aversion to rocking the boat when times are rough and revenues are uncertain.

But the groups which benefit from the present structure were able to defeat changes in it in 1973 and 1974 when money was plentiful. One ex-legislator, Sneed High of Fayetteville, now a lobbyist, says flatly, "This legislature is never going to pass a tax bill that hurts me more than it hurts the little man."

High isn't saying what his income is, but it can safely be assumed it is above the state average. High thinks he should also be taxed more than the average man.

But that's not an idea whose time has come in the General Assembly.

INSIDE REPORT

Air Korea 'Domino' Fears

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

TOKYO—Behind the calm official reaction that the Communist takeover of Indochina affects nothing, the anguish it has generated in the upper reaches of the Japanese government was revealed last week at a private reception attended by key figures of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP).

One LDP faction leader who may be the next prime minister of Japan discarded the bland, unrevealing prose favored by leaders of that cautious and conservative party. A new Korea unified by Communist force, he said, would bring catastrophe to Japan: a "civil war" between left and right.

Implicit in that grim prophecy is diminished U.S. credibility in Asia after Vietnam. Communist conquest of Korea could come only if the U.S. breaks treaty commitments to South Korea; internal conflict that could destroy Japan's post-war democracy would then result only from a belief that the Americans would abandon Japan as they did Korea.

That Japan, East Asia's great industrial power and democracy, should be indirectly threatened by the Indochina debacle is steeped in irony. Japanese leaders somewhat smugly say the U.S. fiasco in Vietnam was inevitable and the Americans are lucky to be out of Southeast Asia. No non-Communist Asian country shows less interest in the domino theory than Japan.

Indeed, there is a non-chalance here about the fate of Southeast Asia. One prominent business consultant is advising against future investment in Thailand because he feels Communist control is imminent but considers this a minor loss. Japanese leaders generally regard Southeast Asia as a remote backwater, unimportant both politically and economically.

But nearby Korea is the one domino that counts for Japan, as witness one of Japan's most sophisticated and most worldly corporation presidents. A decade ago, he advised the U.S. ambassador here to keep hands off Vietnam and let it go Communist. His views today on Korea: "If the United States leaves Korea, you are finished in all of Asia and the alliance with Japan is finished."

The official Japanese position rules out any chance of that happening. In a private interview, Prime Minister Takeo Miki told us he has absolute confidence in the U.S. living up to its treaty commitments. "The United States people still remain a trustworthy people as far as the Japanese people are concerned," he told us. Unless there are "gross miscalculations" (apparently by North Korea), Miki said, Korea "is not in for a military showdown."

Unofficially, however, there is anguish about the future, particularly if President Ford is not elected next year. Betraying old Japanese-Korean racial enmity, one official at the foreign office here calls the Koreans "tough people who tend to collapse if things go against them." U.S. withdrawal, he predicted, would lead quickly to South Korea's collapse.

That poses this question: if U.S. commitments are worthless, how will Japan survive? Japanese-Soviet relations are chilly and likely to remain so. Relations with China are warmer, but a Sino-Japanese peace treaty may not be signed; behind the scenes, Foreign Minister Kuchi Miyazawa is staunchly opposing an anti-Soviet clause insisted on by the Chinese. In fact, the cool-headed Miyazawa is known to doubt how much protection Japan would gain from non-aggression promises by Moscow or Peking.

That leaves only one alternative to the U.S. defensive alliance: remilitarization (a subject we will discuss in another column from here). But Japan's public opinion and mass media are militantly opposed to a rearmament, nuclear or non-nuclear. That would set up a widely forecast titanic struggle between left and right—the "civil war" predicted by the LDP leader.

Strength For Today

The last gift which Christ gave his disciples was peace. "Peace I leave with you; peace I give unto you."

It is sometimes hard for us to believe that we can really have peace. We have longed for it, and our hearts have been famished in the waiting. We have sought it, and it is not to be found. Yet Christ has given it to us through his disciples. Why do we not have it?

One reason may be that we do not want to meet the conditions of the gift. These are, first, belief in the genuineness of the offer, and after that the disciplining of one's life until inner repose is possible.

Most of all, we must sustain health in our inner life by prayer and fellowship with God, and this we may find difficult. Spiritual peace without spiritual fellowship is impossible. Prayer enables us to share the life of God, and when we share the divine life, we share the peace God offers through Christ.

The Future Is Not The Present

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The trouble right now for millions of American families is that they can't live out there in the future where the so-called leading indicators are pointing.

The index of indicators, which measures 12 economic factors that point to the future, rose 4.2 per cent in April. But the jobless rate, which measures the present, hit 9.2 per cent in May, highest in 34 years.

If you live in the world of the leading indicators you see a golden glow in the economic sky. If you live in the present you observe very little of that glow.

The index of indicators measures stock prices, new building permits, new orders for consumer goods, plant and equipment orders, the money supply and inventory changes and the like.

These are forerunners of further economic activity, it is argued. They supposedly act like catalysts. They are the yeast in the bread, but you can't taste that bread yet.

In fact, the index of leading indicators really hasn't proved itself. It was used for the first time in April, since the old index was said to be badly distorted by inflation.

What, for example, will a sharp drop in the stock market do to the index? Stock prices play an important role in the index, and as any investor has observed, stock prices in recent years have fluctuated widely.

What about that money supply figure? What happens when taxpayers have received all the rebates that the Treasury owes them. Is it conceivable that the money supply could fall a bit? It is. Yes, there is little question the leading indicators are rising. But are the prospects and hopes for the ordinary person, the consumer, whose willingness and ability to spend can make or break the economy?

Government and private sources now believe that the typical house is nearly or completely priced beyond the buying ability of the typical American. How then is this critical industry to recover? Certainly it will recover, because ingenuity is not dead in America and neither is the need for housing. A way will be found to overcome the housing problems, but when?

The most hopeful sign in housing is the attempt by builders and materials suppliers to design simpler homes. Dimensions are being shrunk. Garages are being omitted. Kitchens are less elaborate. Attics remain unfinished.

The same thing is happening in automobiles, but it's taking a long, long time to happen. Despite the worst sales figures in more than a decade, some Detroit auto executives claim to be optimistic.

One result of this has been the tendency to produce more cars than can be sold. In other words, the future tells the automakers one thing, but the present another thing. The future tells the automakers that with personal income rising people can afford cars. The present says they can't.

That tug-of-war probably will go on for many months more. You can support almost any economic forecast if you choose the proper fix from the grab bag.

Meanwhile, the present is a grim presence in our midst. It can't be ignored.

Hamlet Curfew Lifted After Turbulent Weekend

HAMLET, N.C. (AP)—Town authorities lifted a curfew on night travel today as Hamlet recovered from a weekend of racial turbulence that brought on a series of fires, gunfire and rock-throwing.

Mayor J. Earl Covington said today he had removed the curfew despite two small fires Sunday night.

Hamlet, a railroad-oriented town of about 5,000, had been under curfew at night since Friday when three persons were injured and four buildings were damaged by fire.

The fires Sunday night were at the town housing authority office and at a sawdust pile.

Authorities have blamed the outbreak on the arrest of a young black woman who claims she was shot by a white policeman last Thursday.

The outbreak came about 35 hours after the arrest early Thursday of Rhonda Scott, a 21-year-old black woman who accused Sgt. James Bryant of shooting her in the back.

Bryant, who was suspended from duty, was arrested Saturday and charged with assault with a deadly weapon. He was released on $500 bond, pending a trial in state District Court June 19. That's the same date Miss Scott will be tried on charges of disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Miss Scott contends she was shot in the back by Bryant as the two scuffled around 3:30 a.m. outside a cafe. Police Chief Ernest King denied Miss Scott was wounded and said she suffered bruises when she fell to the pavement.

But Sheriff Raymond Goodman told the city council that she had "in my opinion a gunshot in the back." Goodman said he based this on an investigation made by his department.

Hamlet Hospital Administrator S.B. Bowers said Saturday he could not confirm or deny that she had been shot. He said hospital records show she suffered a small laceration on her head and two holes on the right side of her back approximately an eighth of an inch deep.

ing a fire; his three-year-old son suffered cuts from flying automobile glass; and a 58-year-old woman was treated for bruises after she said she was "grabbed" by two black men. None of the injuries was serious.

Four buildings, including a state vocational center for the handicapped, were damaged by fire Friday night. The center which serves 73 persons was gutted.

A small woodpile fire occurred north of town Saturday night and firemen said about 15 blacks pelted them with rocks as they doused the blaze. Mayor Covington, who was at the woodpile fire, said his car window was cracked by a rock.

Sheriff Goodman, who assumed command of the situation, created a committee late Saturday to hear racial grievances. He named J. W. Mask Jr., a black who is assistant superintendent of Richmond County schools, to head the committee.

Covington said following a meeting with the sheriff and police chief Sunday night that to his knowledge no meeting had been scheduled yet.

Former 'Fighting Lady' Begins Final Journey

BAYONNE, N.J. (AP)—The Yorktown, once the "Fighting Lady" and pride of the U.S. Navy's aircraft carrier fleet, begins her final journey today, a 600-mile trip to a proposed nautical museum in Charleston, S.C.

Scheduled to reach the Patriots Point Naval and Maritime Museum in Charleston's harbor sometime June 14, the trip ends several years of negotiations. The Yorktown physically slips into civilian command with high tide today at an Army depot in Bayonne, N.J., where she has been mothballed since being decommissioned in 1970.

Commissioned April 4, 1943, the 990-foot vessel is the first aircraft carrier to be donated by the U.S. Navy. Unless her last voyage hits a storm, the ship is expected to make a five-day cruise from Bayonne, but the $52,000 trip may be extended if the two seagoing tugs towing the vessel must circumnavigate bad weather to avoid snapping the Yorktown's tow lines.

The ship is one of a fleet of four flattops that lay rusting at dockside in Bayonne, and will be one of only two to survive. The Randolph was towed away June 3 to die on the scrap metal heap, and the Essex will follow soon. The carrier Shangri-La will go to Philadelphia for renewed mothballing.

To facilitate berthing in Charleston, the Patriots Point Authority has spent two months and $656,000 carving a 26-foot deep and 1,500-foot long channel into the mud floor of Charleston harbor. At high tide, the carrier will be edged through the watery trench with margin for error limited to two-foot bottom clearance.

Then, she will be "sunk" into the harbor, as her tanks are opened to 16,500 tons of fresh water brought in through pipes.

Restoration of the ship, scheduled to be completed by Jan. 1, 1976, will begin within hours of her arrival. A Charleston firm will repaint the ship gunboat grey at a cost of $160,000. The ship will be outfitted by degrees, and will finally house a museum and contain former carrier-based aircraft, to be refurbished for public viewing.

Rear Admiral Herman J. Kossler, USN Ret., executive director of Patriots Point, has urged all local shipowners and yachtsmen in the Charleston area to greet the arrival of the Yorktown.

"Although the Yorktown will look a little tired and worn after her many years of service to this country, she will be given a new lease on life once she is permanently moored at Patriots Point," he said.

Priest Shot, Killed Youth

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest shot and killed a teen-ager who allegedly lunged at him after breaking into the rectory of the Mother of Sorrow Church, detectives say.

Blaine Kidder, 19, of McKees Rocks, was dead on arrival at Ohio Valley Hospital at 1:05 a.m. Sunday of a bullet wound of the heart.

Allegheny County Detective Capt. Robert Meinert said the Rev. Ralph Esposito called Stowe Township police at 12:45 a.m. to report a prowler in the rectory on Harlem Avenue.

After calling police, Meinert said, the priest heard a noise in the rectory basement and went to his second floor bedroom to await police.

Meinert said the priest told police that as a precaution he armed himself with a .22-caliber rifle which he had in his bedroom.

The priest told detectives that a short time later he heard footsteps on the stairway. He said that as he opened the door the young man lunged at him and that the gun fired.

Meinert said there was evidence of forcible entry and damage on the first floor.

No charges were brought against the priest pending an inquest later this week.

Prosperity For A Decade

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—General Dynamics officials say a decision by four NATO nations to purchase the F16 light-weight fighter plane will help maintain employment in their plant a high level for a decade.

However, they say the $2 billion contract, which could eventually balloon to $12 billion for 3,500 planes in the United States and Europe, will not lead to any great immediate increase in employment.

Corporate spokesmen said the F16 fighter contracts will push employment to the 12,000 level in 1978 or 1979. It had sagged to as low as 6,600 this year as General Dynamics began to phase out its F111 fighter-bomber program.

In addition, a large number of foreign visitors and representatives of the four-nation consortium buying the fighters will be visiting the city in the next few years, also helping the area's economy.

Status Of Major Bills Before N.C. Assembly

RALEIGH (AP)—Here is the status of major bills before the North Carolina General Assembly:

Auto Insurance: The House and Senate have both passed amended versions of a bill outlawing age discrimination in setting rates. The House will decide whether to concur in the Senate amendments or call for a conference committee this week.

Taxes: Most major tax reform measures are dead. A bill that would limit the exemption from income taxes for North Carolina stock dividends to $15,000 is before the House Finance Committee. The Senate Finance Committee is considering a bill to decrease by 50 per cent over a five-year period the inventory taxes paid to local governments by merchants and manufacturers.

Elections: The General Assembly has all but decided to hold a presidential primary in March and the primary for state offices in August. It must still work out House and Senate differences on the date of the August primary and the rules for the presidential primary. The date dispute is between the fourth and final Tuesdays in August. The rules dispute concerns opening or limiting the field of presidential candidates.

Utilities: Nominations of Gov. Jim Holshouser for three vacant spots on the State Utilities Commission will be discussed by a joint committee Tuesday. The nominees are Ward Purrington, Barbara Simpson, and James Daniel.

Two major bills are still before the committees. One would create a state energy council to plan future growth in energy. The second would require a study of "peak pricing," or higher power rates at times of high demand.

Constitutional amendments: A constitutional amendment to allow local governments to sell bonds to finance industrial expansion and pollution control has been sent to the House floor by the Finance Committee.

Ethics: An ethics bill for legislators has passed both the House and Senate and needs Senate concurrence. Ethics legislation for judicial and executive officials is also pending.

Death Penalty: No action has been taken, or is expected, on a bill to abolish the death penalty.

Bond issues: Bills to authorize bond referendums on the East Carolina University medical school and a group of university capital projects are scheduled for votes in the House Finance Committee this week.

Environment: No action is expected on the major environmental bill of the session, the mountain area management act.

New Yorker Is Killed In Wreck

GRIFTON—Michael Lee Green, 29, of New York was killed in a one-car crash east of here on N.C. 118 early Sunday morning.

Damage to the 1972 model car was placed at $1,500.

The fatal crash occurred about 2:30 a.m.

Belgium's decision Saturday to join the Netherlands, Norway and Denmark in buying the F16 rather than the French F1 Mirage climaxed months of negotiations and political maneuverings.

Charge Brothers With Holdup

Greenville police have charged two brothers with armed robbery in connection with a hold up at the Little Mint on Memorial Drive here May 29.

The two were identified by Chief of Police Glenn Cannon as John Fitz Felder, 17, of 701 West Fourth St. and Bossie Byham Felder Jr., 28, of Washington D.C.

Cannon said the two were taken into custody about 8 p.m. Sunday and placed under $25,000 bond each pending hearing in District Court here July 7.

Two men, armed with a sawed off shotgun reportedly held up the Little Mint and took several hundred dollars from the business and forced two employees of the firm into a dumpster-type trash bin before making their getaway.

Investigating Break-In Here

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of a break-in at the Grier Rental Agency at 205 East Third St. reported Friday night.

Chief Glenn Cannon said thieves forced their way into a window and removed a small chest-type safe from the building.

The safe was found unopened outside the building.

Says Liz Taylor Knows Suffering

LONDON (AP)—The widow of British movie star Laurence Harvey says Elizabeth Taylor often has the subject of death on her mind.

"It seems to be her favorite subject after diamonds," Paulene Stone quoted her husband as saying of Miss Taylor. "She knows more about suffering than Charles Dickens and St. Augustine put together."

The quote was contained in Miss Stone's book published today: "One Tear is Enough: My Life with Laurence Harvey."

Miss Taylor, a close friend, visited Harvey shortly before he died of cancer last November.

This catastrophic menace has deepened appreciation among Japanese leaders for the American alliance. Although high-level circles are buzzing about Foreign Minister Miyazawa's returning from Washington in April furious that he had been kept waiting by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, there is visibly less grumbling about such petty aggravations than during our last reporting trip here two years ago. Today's preoccupation at the foreign office is keeping Emperor Hirohito's U.S. visit this autumn free of any incidents that could impair U.S.—Japanese relations.

Angry disputation in 1973 over textile quotas, trade imbalances and American inattention have been replaced by apprehension in 1975 over whether the Americans can still be relied on for the defense of Japan that is essential to this nation's internal stability. That is why Japanese eyes, now and for years ahead, are fixed on the U.S. performance in Korea.

"You don't seem to understand, Mom. Every dish I wash encourages the sexism that is rampant in America today. If we don't take our stand on dishwashing, the movement will go down the drain."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled back a bit today in a continuation of last week's hesitant, inconclusive trend.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.87 at 877.77, and losers held a 6-5 lead over gainers in quiet trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

More than a dozen major banks across the country cut their prime interest rates this morning from 7 1/2 to 7 per cent, but the reductions set off only a brief flurry of buying at the opening. Prices then turned back amid some apparent continuing uncertainty over the prospective speed and strength of the widely predicted economic recovery.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index slipped .03 to 90.66.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks dipped .21 to 48.98.

Israel Insists On New Offer By Egypt

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — Resisting pressure from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, the Israeli cabinet says it won't modify its terms for another troop withdrawal in the Sinai Desert unless Egypt comes up with a new offer.

Kissinger to bring new proposals to Washington for his meeting with President Ford this week.

Kissinger and Ford blame Israel for the collapse of Kissinger's attempt to negotiate a withdrawal agreement last March because Israel insisted on a pledge of nonbelligerency from Egypt. After Ford's meeting with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, the secretary of state said he could not determine whether he would try to revive the Israeli-Egyptian negotiations until after Ford met with Rabin.

A communique issued after the Israeli cabinet meeting said Israel's terms "remain in force" but "the government will be willing to re-examine its policy concomitant with changes that may occur in the Egyptian position."

Some members of the cabinet urged that Israel abandon Kissinger's step-by-step approach to peace and offer a detailed plan for a final peace agreement with all her Arab adversaries. The cabinet rejected this, saying a series of partial settlements "is the only realistic way to advance to peace." But it said the government is willing to negotiate peace treaties with all its Arab neighbors and will attend a Middle East peace conference in Geneva if it is called into session.

Meanwhile, police reported a group of Israeli troops hitchhiking back to camp after a weekend leave shot and killed an Arab guerrilla who attacked them with hand grenades and a submachine gun. The grenades did not go off, and none of the soldiers was hit by gunfire.

The attack took place about 15 miles north of Tel Aviv at the Beit Lid intersection, where there is a maximum security prison for Arab guerrillas and Israeli criminals.

Seven hours later a bomb exploded in an apartment house in Kfar Saba, about five miles from the Beit Lid intersection. Nobody was reported hurt.

In other Middle East developments: —Israel returned three Egyptian soldiers it said were captured last week on a spying mission behind Israeli lines in the Sinai Desert.

—Workers at Israel's Mediterranean oil port at Ashkelon ended a 19-day strike. The strike halted the shipment of Middle East oil through the Israeli pipeline from the Gulf of Aqaba to the Mediterranean coast.

Woman Chief Takes Charge

ECHO, Ore. (AP) — The men in this town of 400 used to joke about their "powder puff" police chief. But the snickering stopped the first time Chief Bonnie Rodger broke up a bar fight.

The 6-foot, 28-year-old police chief arrived here about a year ago, working first as a Umatilla County deputy sheriff and later as head of Echo's one-person police force.

"It's a lot more job than I first thought it would be," said Miss Rodger, "but I enjoy every minute of it."

In eight months, she says she has broken up two bar fights, disarmed two suspects and arrested a few drunks.

Confessed Thief Wins Acquittal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "I can't believe it," a shocked Judge Dominick Olivito said after a common pleas court jury acquitted a defendant who had confessed his guilt from the witness stand.

B.L. Kenley, 29, of Columbus, admitted in his testimony that he took 10 pairs of pants from a clothing store March 11. But he denied he stole more than 30 pairs, as claimed by the store manager.

Olivito instructed the jurors that if they found Kenley guilty they had to determine whether the value of the clothing was more or less than $150, the dividing line between grand theft and petit theft.

Boone Wins Pitt Tourny By One Stroke

Tommy Boone shot a second-round 80 to pass first round leader Jim Lancaster and win the Pitt County Tournament held this weekend at Ayden and Brook Valley Country Clubs.

Lancaster shot a 76 the Ayden course Saturday to take a two shot lead over Boone who fired a 76. Lancaster soared to an 83 Sunday and Boone edged him out by one shot, 158-159 to take the title. Dean Wingate finished third with a 161.

Next year, the tournament will be the Scrapy Proctor Sr. Memorial Tournament in honor of the Scrapy Proctor, Sr.

Jim Jefferies shot consecutive 78's to win the first flight with Scrapy Proctor, Jr., finishing second a shot back at 157. Pete Beamon was third at 159.

Harvey Pittman won the second flight with a 163, a shot better than Reid Kennedy's 164. Kennedy led the flight Saturday with a 78 but fell to an 86 Sunday. Nelson Tugwell took third.

John Phillips beat Edward Serva by a shot to take the third flight with a 170. Bill Goodwin was third at 179.

Two trophies were awarded. One to winner Boone and a second presented by Mrs. Scrapy Proctor, Sr., to the winner's club, this year Brook Valley. The second trophy will remain at the winner's home club until the next tournament when it will go to the next winner.

RED SPRINGS—It may be a long summer season for East Carolina's baseball team.

East Carolina stranded 12 baserunners yesterday and fell victim to several bad bounces in dropping a 3-2 contest to Methodist College in Red Springs, N.C.

The playing conditions of the Red Springs field were such that two Methodist grounders became deadly to the Pirates. Ask Ken Gentry and Addison Bass.

Gentry and Bass were the victims of the bounces which led to two Methodist runs and the 3-2 victory.

East Carolina threatened in the first and second innings without scoring, but pushed across a pair of unearned runs in the third to take the lead.

Geoff Beaton led off the third with an infield hit and moved to second when John Donaldson mishandled Steve Bryant's grounder. With Beaton on second and Bryant at first Alan Smith grounded to Donaldson, forcing Bryant. On the relay to first, shortstop Wayne Spell threw wide. The errant throw allowed Beaton to score and Smith advanced to second. Glenn Card followed with a single to center which scored Smith and gave the Bucs a 2-0 lead off Monarch starter Earl Bunn.

In the bottom half of the inning, Methodist came up with a run. Donaldson walked to lead off the inning and Robert Bryant followed with a high chop between the mound and first. Pirate pitcher Terry Durham fielded the ball but no one covered first and Bryant was safe. With one out, Sam Tolar scratched out a hit to load the bases. Bobby Cobb then tied to center to score Donaldson and make the score 2-1.

In the fourth, the Bucs had men on first and second with one out before Bryant grounded into a double play. The fifth found Card and Bass reaching base with two out, but again the Bucs came away empty handed.

Bobby Cobb led off with a grounder to Gentry at short. The ball took a bad hop and Gentry bobbled the ball, allowing Cobb to reach base. While Durham struck out the next two batters, Cobb stole second. Steve Hodges then lined a two out single and Cobb came around with the winning run.

The Bucs threatened in the seventh and ninth, but Bunn managed to survive.

In the seventh, Bunn walked Brinkley and Bass and Card reached on Spell's third error of the game, but Smith hit into a double play and Howard McCullough popped out to prevent East Carolina from doing any damage. Brinkley singled with one out in the ninth, but Bunn retired both Smith and Card to end the game.

For the game, Dunn scattered six walks and seven hits for the win, as the Bucs left 12 men on the bases. Durham also went the route for East Carolina.

In his eighth inning, Durham walked three and struck out nine. Durham also allowed nine hits, three by Donaldson.

The loss dropped East Carolina to 0-2. The Pirates will be at Harrington Field tonight for a 7:30 game with Louisburg College.

Eagle On Ninth Hole Gives Floyd $50,000

By BOB CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Coming into the ninth green in the Kemper Open, Ray Floyd stood 100 feet and six years from victory on the pro golf tour.

It had been that long since his last victory, the 1969 PGA, and he had 100 feet of slick, rolling green to negotiate with his third shot on the 535-yard par five.

Floyd chipped an eight iron onto the green. It rolled over a low-lying stretch of grass, curved right and hopped into the hole for an eagle. The $50,000 Kemper prize was, from that moment, his to hold.

The eagle gave Floyd a two-stroke lead over South African Gary Player and enabled him to play cautiously down the stretch, using irons off the tees on the last four holes.

Floyd didn't speak to reporters after his round, but Mahaffey offered an unusual excuse for the putts he failed to hole. "It's the white paint on the cups of the televised holes," he said. "I think it makes the hold hard and the putts go in and come out." On televised holes, cups are painted to make them easier to see.

A shot behind Mahaffey was Jerry Heard, with a 72 for a 282. Behind Heard came the trio of Jim Masserio, Bob Murphy and Britain's Peter Oosterhuis at 283.

Second-year pro Masserio nearly doubled his previous earnings for the year with his $9,000 share of the purse. He came within two strokes of Floyd on the back nine before faltering slightly on the final holes.

fused to fall. He bogeyed the 11th and 18th to finish with a 73.

That tied him with young Mahaffey, who started his round with a flock of birdies, then cooled off on the back side and finished with a 70.

Player didn't speak to reporters after his round, but Mahaffey offered an unusual excuse for the putts he failed to hole. "It's the white paint on the cups of the televised holes," he said. Petty Beats Allison For Seventh Win Of Year

By MIKE RUBIN
AP Sports Writer
RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Richard Petty said his boys had a thing or two they wanted to prove to Bobby Allison and his crew, and they did just that.

"Maybe they was wantin' to win a race," Petty drawled after some sure-handed work by his pit crew helped him beat Allison and win the NASCAR 400-mile Grand National stock car road race at Riverside International Raceway Sunday.

Petty started his 1974 Dodge in the front row next to Allison's 1975 Matador that had grabbed the pole with a record speed of 110.753 miles an hour on the nine-turn, 2.62-mile road course.

But during the race Petty spent nearly a half-minute less in the pits, including a crucial series late in the race, and beat Allison by more than nine seconds for his seventh NASCAR victory of the season.

"The big difference was the pit stops," said Petty, who leads the Grand National circuit point standings seeking an unprecedented sixth NASCAR championship.

"Bobby ran a little faster to begin with but after we ran awhile we all settled down to about the same speed and where we beat him was just the difference in the pit stops."

Petty said of his crew: "I think they had a little thing going with the Matador boys and maybe that's why they wanted to win this race. Ever since Bobby won the Western 500 here in January they've been arguin', getting ready.

"My crew has been arguin' with his crew because they feel that's where we can beat him and I guess they'll be rubbing it in now."

Allison outdragged Petty to take the lead at the start and Petty wound up suddenly losing a few places on the opening lap when his brakes locked up in a tight turn.

While Allison and Jimmy Insolo, a NASCAR Grand National West driver from Mission Hills, Calif., driving a 1974 Chevrolet, set the pace in the early going Petty let his suspension settle in and hounded the front-runners.

Insolo took the lead on the 29th lap of the 153-lap race when Allison pitted but lost it to the red, white and blue Matador 16 laps later.

After Insolo went out with engine trouble Petty started working on Allison.

Petty and Allison swapped the lead on pit stops the rest of the way except once when Allison slipped by on the sweeping ninth turn which comes at the end of a long straightaway.

In the deciding series of stops Petty managed to get in and take on two tires along with fuel in 15 seconds while Allison needed 22. Allison ducked in and out on a five second stop later but the earlier pit work had already paid off for Petty, who won $14,885 from the $80,000 purse.

Petty has had some pit problems with the crew "I guess we've had for a year or two."

So he knew what differences smooth work could make.

"The difference when you win a race is the pit crew," Petty said.

"A lot of times when you run second or third your crew does just average—they don't make that something extra makes you a winner."

"Today my pits were just so much better than anybody else's that it just put 'em at a disadvantage."

A total of 15 cars were running at the end.

Bombers Shorten Giants

Jolly's Giants were belittled by 14 runs in the first four innings and conceded a 14-2 loss to the Bombers in a semi-pro ball game, Sunday.

The Bombers began shelling the Giants with six runs in the first. They picked up another tally in the third and then dropped six more on the Giants in the fourth. After that, the Giants scored one in the second and fourth.

Holtzman, Palmer Come Close To No-Hit Games

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Oakland's Ken Holtzman was thinking about a no-hitter. He almost got one.

Baltimore's Jim Palmer wasn't thinking about a no-hitter ... and he almost got one, too.

For Palmer, the thought of what might have been didn't really enter his mind until it was too late, well after Hal McRae's fourth-inning single, Kansas City's lone hit in Sunday's 1-0 loss to the Orioles.

But for Holtzman, the thought lingered on, as long as the dream of a no-hitter can go before it becomes a reality.

It lasted 8 2-3 innings. Actually it lasted more than that, until Detroit's Tom Verzer was down to his last strike. Then, bang, it was all over with a booming double to center field that caught the wind and sailed about a foot beyond the glove of lunging Billy North.

So, with the dream of a third career no-hitter gone, Holtzman did what any good pitcher would do. He returned to the business of trying to win. And he did, striking out Ron LeFlore to end the game, and the A's trudged off the field with a 4-0 victory over the Tigers.

In the rest of the American League, Cleveland defeated Texas 3-2 before the Rangers won the 17-inning second game 7-6, Minnesota beat Boston 7-5, New York downed Chicago 5-1 and Milwaukee edged California 4-3.

Claudell Washington gave Holtzman all the hits he needed with his fifth and sixth homers of the season, a solo shot in the fifth inning and a three-run clout in the seventh.

Orioles 1, Royals 0

"If I had gone late into the game with a no-hitter going, I might have thought about it," Palmer said. "But even then, I think everything you do has to be dictated in the way you want to try and win the game."

So Palmer simply outdueled the Royals' Steve Busby, who allowed just four hits. Baltimore's Brooks Robinson followed Lee May's seventh-inning double with a single down the right field line.

Indians 3-6, Rangers 2-7

"If I say I'm not tired I'm a liar ... I don't think I'd feel this tired if I played," quipped Texas Manager Billy Martin after singles by Jeff Burroughs, Mike Hargrove and Len Randle gave the Rangers their 4 1/2-hour, 17-inning nightcap victory over Cleveland in the longest game in the majors this season.

In the first game, the Indians bunched all their runs in the fourth inning, two coming on John Ellis' two-run double.

Twins 7, Red Sox 5

Larry Hisle doubled to start Minnesota's six-run ninth inning that beat Boston and capped it with an RBI-single.

Hisle's double was protested by Boston Manager Darrell Johnson, who was ejected after heatedly contending that the high drive to left field had been caught at the wall by Bernie Carbo. Umpire Jerry Neudecker disagreed, insisting it bounced off Carbo's glove and hit the wall before he grabbed it again.

Yanks 4, White Sox 1

The Yanks, notching their eighth straight victory, also got the benefit of a disputed drive to left. Elliott Maddox hit the ball in the third inning. A fan reached down and touched the ball. But although it was a ground-rule double, Walt Williams was allowed to score from first. The ump's ruled that since he'd been running on the play, he would have made it home in any case.

Chris Chambliss then made the matter academic by driving in two runs with a ninth-inning single to cap the triumph over the White Sox.

Brewers 4, Angels 3

Darrell Porter drilled a two-run single to snap a scoreless tie in the fifth inning, then pounded a two-run homer that gave the Brewers their winning edge over California. Jim Colborn and Tom Murphy teamed to six-hit the Angels.

'JUMPIN' JEHOSEPHAT!—A hopping mad Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees fails to sway the decision of home plate umpire Jim Evans on play in the eighth inning Sunday in Chicago. With the bases loaded, New York pitcher George Medich walked White Sox' Carlos May, scoring Pat Kelly and Munson chooses to dispute the call. (AP Wirephoto)

Even With 10 Men Astros Looking For Help

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

You know your team needs help when ...

—It has lost the last eight games and 11 of the last 13.

—It has scored three runs in five games and the other guys have tallied 19.

—It has lost eight more games than the next-worst team in the National League.

—It has batted .175 in the last eight contests.

The Houston Astros need help.

"It seems like every pitcher we face comes on like Walter Johnson," observed beleaguered Houston Manager Preston Gomez. "I'm going to have to make some changes."

innings.

Giants 3-4, Pirates 1-2

Glenn Adams' ninth-inning home run tied the game, then pinch-hitter Marc Hill slashed a two-run single, giving San Francisco a sweep of the doubleheader.

In the opener, Chris Speier drove in two runs to ruin the major league pitching debut of Pittsburgh's John Candelaria.

Reds 2-8, Cubs 1-5

Home runs powered both Cincinnati triumphs. Tony Perez drove in three runs — two with a seventh-inning homer — to lift the Reds in the nightcap after Johnny Bench's 13th of the season provided the winning edge in the opener.

The sweep marked Cincinnati's fourth consecutive victory and its 16th in 19 games.

Phillies 4, Dodgers 2

Dave Cash's two-run homer in the fifth and run-scoring sacrifice fly in the seventh backed the six-hit pitching of right-hander Jim Lonborg and lifted Philadelphia past the Dodgers.

Lonborg also helped his cause with his first hit — a run-scoring single in the fifth — after 27 at-bats.

Padres 5-1, Expos 3-2

Those comments came after the Astros had fallen to the St. Louis Cardinals 5-1 Sunday in a game they couldn't win with 10 men on the field at once.

Of course, the 10th man had come out of the Astrodome stands in an effort to assist his heroes. When Ken Reitz hit a double down the left-field line in the third inning, a youngster jumped onto the field to help Astros left fielder Greg Gross double-team the ball.

The youth was lectured by a security guard, but not ejected. Apparently, it's the thought that counts.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco swept Pittsburgh 3-1 and 4-2, Cincinnati took two from Chicago 2-1 and 8-5, Philadelphia beat Los Angeles 4-2, San Diego won its opener 5-2 from Montreal, then lost the nightcap 3-1, and New York trimmed Atlanta 7-6 in 14

Torre, Back On Stroke, Leads Mets To 7-6 Win

NEW YORK (AP) — The way he talks, you'd think he was an old man. And perhaps being 34 years old does put him up there near the senior citizen crowd among baseball players.

But to watch him bat, Joe Torre is playing the game like a kid again...and not a minute too soon.

"I've got the stroke now," Torre said Sunday after getting four hits in six at-bats during the New York Mets' 14-inning, 7-6 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

That stroke has carried him through a 15-game hitting streak, the longest by any Mets player since Felix Millan had an 18-game run in 1973. And it has ballooned Torre's batting average from an anemic .215 to a robust .281.

"It's helps your self-confidence," he admitted. "When you're 34 years of age, well, I knew the .150 I was hitting (earlier in the season) wasn't going to leave me overnight, because at that age they don't play you every day."

They do now.

"I have good days and bad days," Torre continued. "I felt good Friday night but Saturday afternoon I felt bad, even though I got two hits. It's a matter of aches and pains when you're 34."

"I knew I wasn't as bad as .150, nor do I think I'm as good as .360. I'm somewhere in between and I'll be happy if I hit about .280 and drive in important runs."

He drove in three of them against the Braves and scored two others. And his drive to center field in the 14th inning set up the winning run—with a big assist from Atlanta's Clarence Gaston.

Millan led off with a single, then moved to third when Gaston dropped the fly ball for a two-base error. After Rusty Staub was walked intentionally to load the bases, reliever Elias Sosa uncorked a high fastball that sailed off the glove of catcher Vic Correll. Millan scampered home with the run that put the Mets just one-half game behind first-place Pittsburgh in the National League East.

New York took a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning on a walk, Dave Kingman's double and Mike Phillips' single. The Braves then erupted for five runs in the fifth—two on Ralph Garr's triple and another on Rod Gilbreath's first major league home run.

The Mets came back with three runs in the bottom of the fifth, two on Torre's triple, Atlanta went ahead again 6-5 in the sixth on Correll's sacrifice fly and the Mets tied it in the seventh on Del Unser's single, Millan's sacrifice and Torre's single.

Concern Grows Over Rise Of New Nuclear Powers

By WILLIAM STOCKTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Years are mounting again that additional countries may be moving nearer membership in the nuclear weapons fraternity — the exclusive international club that now includes only six countries.

As international commerce in nuclear energy technology grows, the world continues to depend upon a fragile system of treaty and on-site inspections to avert spread of nuclear arms.

Possession of nuclear technologies — once a barrier to nations that might aspire to nuclear weapons — is no longer exclusive.

Concern is being expressed by members of Congress and government nuclear arms-control experts by these recent developments:

—Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., revealed last week that France is supplying nuclear fuel-reprocessing technology and machinery to Pakistan, Taiwan and South Korea and assisting Argentina with a pilot plutonium-reprocessing plant.

—The Soviet Union has agreed to supply Libya, an Arab nation with one of the most militant anti-Israel stances, with a small nuclear reactor that apparently would be used for research.

—West Germany reportedly has agreed to sell Brazil nuclear power reactors as well as the technology to enrich uranium for nuclear fuel and reprocess the plutonium in spent fuel. The Latin American country thus could possess its own complete nuclear "fuel cycle" capability, a technology that has been largely restricted to the nations possessing nuclear arms.

"The global spread of nuclear weapons capability is on the verge of running out of control," Ribicoff said.

"... The ability to make atomic bombs will proliferate among nations in our own hemisphere and around the world unless West Germany and other nuclear allies refrain from making clearly dangerous nuclear exports," the senator said.

Fierce competition for nuclear technology exports among such countries such as the U.S., West Germany and France is part of the problem.

Standing in the way of nuclear arms spread is the Non-Proliferation Treaty of 1970, the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna and international opinion.

More than 80 countries have fully ratified the treaty and more than 20 have signed it, an indication they eventually will become full parties.

As a treaty party, a nation agrees not to develop nuclear weapons and to permit inspections of its nuclear facilities to make certain no material is being diverted for possible use in a weapon.

Inspection is the job of the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna, which sends inspectors into countries with nuclear facilities.

The countries exporting nuclear facilities also are requiring agreements with the country receiving the equipment not to use it for military purposes.

Government sources have said, for example, that West Germany is requiring assurances from Brazil that the new nuclear technology the Germans supply will be used for peaceful purposes only and will be subject to inspection.

But the same sources are concerned about the intentions of both Brazil and Argentina. Neither country is a party to the Non-Proliferation Treaty. And they don't fully adhere to the provisions of a 1967 Latin America nuclear-free zone treaty.

Nuclear weapons now are possessed by the United States, Britain, France, Russia and China. Last year India exploded a nuclear device, but insisted its purpose was for peaceful, engineering applications. India hasn't signed the treaty.

Nuclear weapons experts agree there are at least 10 and possibly more highly industrialized countries with growing nuclear power industries who could develop atomic bombs if they chose to do so.

They include Japan, Belgium, Canada, West Germany, East Germany, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and Italy.

Government officials doubt that any of these countries are considering the possibility of building weapons. All of the countries have either signed the Non-Proliferation Treaty or ratified it.

Arms control officials are watching developments in South Korea, Taiwan, Pakistan, South Africa, Israel, Iran and Egypt, in addition to Brazil and Argentina. All the countries are in varying states of developing nuclear power industries.

Of these countries, Taiwan and Iran are full parties to the treaty. South Korea and Egypt have signed the treaty but not ratified it.

Pakistan hasn't signed the treaty and is unlikely to do so as long as India doesn't agree to it.

South Africa has not signed it and isn't expected to.

Israel isn't expected to treaty unless Egypt ratifies it.

The inspections that the International Atomic Energy Agency makes of nuclear facilities around the world are getting tougher and more sophisticated each year. But safeguards experts concede there still is the possibility of diversion of nuclear material.

If a developing nation is determined to build weapons, the more likely approach is to use the peaceful, imported nuclear technology as intended. Then, after a sufficient number of native nuclear technicians have been trained, move them into a fledgling weapons program.

In the end, U.S. arms-control experts say international opinion might be as effective a deterrent as any.

Countries that have ratified the Non-Proliferation Treaty still have an escape clause that allows them to withdraw if extraordinary events threaten their national security.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ7 ♠10976 ♡AK853 ♣5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♣ Pass
? What do you bid now?
A.—Pass. You have told your whole story with your first two bids. If partner could take no stronger action at his second turn than to raise your suit, you are at the end of the auction.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A76 ♡83 ♣AQ73 ♣KQ92
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 1 ♣ 3 ♣ 3 ♠
? What do you bid now?
A.—If partner has hearts stopped, your best contract might be three no trump, so you should not go beyond that level. We suggest you bid three spades, showing you stopper there, and see what action partner takes.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ ♠7 ♡AJ98432 ♣Q73
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ 3 ♣ ?
? What action do you take?
A.—East's preempt has made life difficult, but that's the purpose of the bid. If you introduce your diamond suit, you will be awkwardly placed when partner rebids four hearts. For maximum

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠QJ4 ♡Q865 ♣K ♣KJ1062
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Pass Pass 2 ♣ 2 ♠ ?
? What action do you take?
A.—Even though you are vulnerable, partner's balancing bid shows no great strength—with a reasonable hand, he would have first doubled, then bid, his suit. Thus, he is already bidding more of your hand, so the prudent action is to pass and let nature take its course. The only alternative call, two no trump, is very risky because of the potential misfit, lack of a sure source of tricks, and your suit values that make your hand weaker than its total HCP indicate.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQ104 ♡K542 ♣K7 ♣82
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
? What do you bid now?
A.—Four hearts. Your hand is worth 18 points in support of hearts, so a simple raise to three hearts would not do it full justice. By bumping, you allow partner to judge whether the combined holding merits a move toward slam.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK107 ♡AKJ2 ♣J1096 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♣ Pass Pass
? What do you bid now?
A.—Double. You have a good hand with support for both unbid suits, and you can best tell partner this by doubling. Since he has not yet bid, your double is for takeout. Partner is free to introduce another suit, but if he converts it to a penalty double, which he will do with a weak hand and a lot of clubs, you will be quite happy, since you have your quota of defensive tricks.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠92 ♡Q87 ♣K752 ♣AJ84
Partner opens the bidding with a demand bid of two hearts. What do you respond?
A.—Three hearts. The question is not whether to go on to slam, but how best to investigate the possibilities of a grand slam. To get the auction off on the right foot, your first priority is to set the trump suit. Thereafter, you can go about showing your controls to see how high you want to get.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠QJ1084 ♡K73 ♣AQJ10 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
? What do you bid now?
A.—Three hearts. Your hand is not good enough for a jump raise, which usually shows four-card support in any case, and much too weak for a "high reverse" bid of three diamonds. There is no point rebidding your fine, five-card suit with reasonable support for partner, so the only course left open is a simple raise.

HIGH RISE BIRD APARTMENTS—Apartment living has been on the increase recently, and bird houses seem to have followed a similar trend. This high rise bird house was built by Jay Mobley of Grimesland and is located in Winterville. The house, or "apartments" stand about 20 feet off the ground, high up from unwanted guests. It can house 68 families, even has its own TV antenna for looks and the complete unit is a wind vane. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Farm Scene

By HENRY C. RIDDICK,
 Assoc. Agricultural Extension Agent

Due to the mild winter there is a good possibility of increased damage from insects on crops this year. Therefore, farmers should check their fields frequently to determine if the insect population is high enough to warrant use of an insecticide. It is only necessary to use an insecticide when the insect damage is serious enough to justify the expense. In order to avoid damage from insecticide residue burn and to save money, use only the recommended amount. Do not make applications using excessive rates of chemicals.

In the tobacco crops, flea beetles, followed by budworms, often cause damage to newly set tobacco plants.

Budworms are usually prevalent in tobacco fields with some years having a more severe infestation than others. Management studies have shown that at least five budworms should be present on 50 randomly selected plants to justify the application of an insecticide. When applying chemicals for budworm control, be sure the insecticide gets into the bud of the plant. This can best be done by applying before 10 o'clock in the morning.

Hornworms then follow as another tobacco pest. Again, management studies show control to be profitable when at least five one-inch worms are found on 50 random hills.

In peanut crops, thrips, leafhoppers can be a serious problem. Control measures should be made where plants show insect damage.

In order for an insecticide to be effective, it must be poisonous; therefore, careless use of these chemicals could result in serious illness or death. Extreme care should be used in the application of any pesticide. Be sure you have a chemical that will control the intended pest. Follow all label instructions in terms of time of application, rate of application and safety precautions for the chemical. STOP! READ THE LABEL. This will give you the best information about a pesticide.

Ten Die In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
 Ten persons died in North Carolina traffic accidents over the weekend.

The toll for the year rose to 552, but was still 72 fewer than at the similar time last year.

In addition, a North Carolinian, 12-year-old Christopher Penn Spencer of Greensboro, was killed when his bicycle collided with a car in North Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Killed in North Carolina from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Sunday were:

Troy Lennon Young, 28, of Rt. 1, Autreyville in Sampson County.

Lewis Powell Edwards, 42, of Dobson.

James Raymond Marion, 63, Winston-Salem.

James Calvin Thomas, 22, Rt. 2, Nebo in McDowell County.

Michael Lee Greene, 29, of New York, in a Pitt County accident.

Harry Jacobs, 28, of Watha in Pender County.

Jack O'Neal Holt, 41, of Raleigh.

Lawrence Allen Sosebee, 34, and his 9-year-old son, of Reidsville.

Albert Dunn, 27, of Raleigh.

ARGENTINA'S (UPI) — Argentina's motor vehicle production was 37,648 units for the first two months of 1975, the Industrial Development Secretariat announced.

requires Interstate Commerce Commission approval of any freight rate change. The administration would allow railroads to raise or lower rates on individual commodities within 7 per cent the first year of the new law and rising to 15 per cent three years later, subject to ICC-ordered roll-backs.

In all the confusion, it is becoming starkly clear that if Congress does not accept the administration program, it must devise one of its own. The railroads obviously are incapable of working their own salvation alone.

Restoring the railroads to a healthy earning position will require not only improvements but wholesale modernization, and Congress may balk at the great cost.

It is equally clear the country cannot get along without railroads. Failure to rejuvenate them, the experts say, would have a far more costly impact on the economy, energy and the environment.

The choice is this: Do the taxpayers spend billions of dollars to revitalize the railroads and then leave them in private hands? Or do they pay almost the same and buy themselves a railroad system?

Conditions Of Railroads May Lead To Their Nationalization

By DON PHILLIPS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Somewhere, as you read these words, a diesel locomotive is trundling down a weed-grown branch line pulling a few freight cars and a caboose.

It might be hauling fertilizer to Maryland's Eastern Shore or cotton to a textile plant in Alabama, tractors to a farm implement dealer in Nebraska or lumber to a mill in Oregon. It really makes no difference.

That little freight train also is carrying America's troubled railroads closer to nationalization.

Once the sturdy steel spine of a vigorous industrial nation, the railroads now look more like its middle-aged paunch. Trains still running hundreds of uneconomical branch lines are only one visible example of an over-built, under-maintained railroad system going too many places far too slowly.

There also are obsolete yards, equipment breakdowns, car shortages and redundant main lines, like the six separate railroads operating between Omaha and Chicago. And the government must accept its share of the blame.

For decades, railroads have struggled under shortsighted government regulations with hardly any federal financial aid as compensation, while the taxpayers built an interstate highway system for their chief competitors, the truckers, and dredged river channels for freight barges.

Now the government is awake in near-panic over the railroads' plight, but it might already be too late.

President Ford knows history may remember him as the Republican free enterpriser who nationalized the last privately owned rail system in the world. The word has gone out from the White House to preserve private ownership at almost any cost.

The cost is likely to be great.

One group of railroad chief engineers says that deferred maintenance on the bankrupt Penn Central alone would total $4.6 billion. Transportation Secretary William Coleman estimates it will take $101 billion to restore all American railroads to prime running condition in the next few years. Their owners can afford to cough up only $71 billion, he says.

With the USRA plan in trouble and pressure for some form of nationalization mounting, high administration officials seized on an old idea with a fancy bureaucratic name, "controlled transfer," which means an orderly sale of bankrupt lines to solvent railroads.

Although healthy railroads still lack enough money to purchase much less improve the bankrupt lines, the administration seems willing to contribute billions of dollars toward "controlled transfers" if the government can be spared ownership of the roads.

Members of Congress were stunned and annoyed. They thought they had solved most of the problem when they created USRA. The administration backed away somewhat, but the idea apparently remains its eventual goal.

Deputy Transportation Secretary John Barnum, in a little-noticed statement to a Senate transportation subcommittee, said any sale of bankrupt lines probably would take place after ConRail begins operating. There would be no immediate "sale on the courthouse steps," he said.

No matter what solution is found for the Northeast, the administration still faces a "railroad problem" of rising costs and deteriorating track in the Northeast that soon will spread to the South and West if something is not done soon.

Nearly everyone agrees on the problem—too much regulation and not enough earning power—but no one seems to agree on a solution, except that the railroads must have outside financial help.

The administration has proposed a $2 billion federal loan fund at low interest rates, and some version is almost certain to pass Congress.

Congress, however, is unlikely to approve one important condition the administration wants to attach to the loans, which is to allow the transportation secretary to require certain railroads to consolidate facilities with others, and perhaps even to merge.

Also in doubt is an administration proposal to ease federal regulation of railroads, particularly freight rates. Present law

Government's first attempt to save the railroads came in 1974, when Congress created the U.S. Railway Association on the theory the whole industry would thrive if the bankrupt Northeastern roads could be revived. USRA's job was to plan a new system for the Northeast and Midwest using lines of the bankrupt carriers, mostly the 20,000-mile Penn Central.

USRA would use $1 billion in federal loan guarantees to finance the new railroad—to be called ConRail—and then return it to private hands as it paid off its debt.

Congress is supposed to get the final ConRail plan July 26, but it is already obvious the new system could not survive without a much greater infusion of federal money. Even USRA's revised projection of $3 billion in federal loan guarantees has been attacked by Interstate Commerce Commission planners, who say it vastly overestimates ConRail's projected income.

USRA sources concede that ConRail's financial outlook is "grim" and will require some hard, searching decisions.

Liberal Democrats in Congress are pushing an alternative plan—adamantly opposed by the railroads and the Ford administration—that would have the government buy railroad track and facilities and lease them to private railroads

Woodard said the program of graded quality feeder pig sales was initiated in 1965 and has continued to be a more important part of the state's swine industry each year.

It is recognized that not all feeder pigs are sold through quality sales. However, there is no doubt that the value of pigs in North Carolina is determined through this system," Woodard said.

Woodard said the grading of hogs for slaughter also has been used in North Carolina on a limited basis. It uses the same principles of grading and sorting into uniform lots that are used for the feeder pig sales.

Grading and sorting of slaughter hogs offers the same advantages to producers as those for feeder pigs. In addition, the buyer-packer has the opportunity to purchase part of his kill of known quality without having to support a buying station and personnel to operate it.

The North Carolina Farm Bureau operates graded market hog sales at Swan Quarter, Greenville, Roxboro and Monroe. A sale organized by the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service is operated on a weekly basis at Statesville.

Pork production has become big business in North Carolina. Total cash receipts from the sale of hogs in North Carolina during 1973 amounted to $197 million.

The administration says such a move would be not only expensive but tantamount to nationalization. The railroads ask: who would decide which railroad runs on which government track?

Community leaders, news media representatives on the tour will see the Johnson's Milltail Watershed Project, completed in 1967, which combines land treatment and channel work to protect the land and to prevent flooding. "Those on the tour will see the actual environmental—and economic—effects of a completed watershed project," Greenlee said.

The tour will begin at 1:30 p. m. at the auditorium of the Grifton Consolidated School on Highway 118 and Church Street, Grifton. Four watershed sites will be seen.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
 Agricultural Specialist
 Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

It's probably still a good idea to avoid buying "a pig in a poke", but today many commercial hog operators are purchasing pigs "sight unseen," by telephone.

In fact, thousands of the feeder pigs sold in North Carolina's graded quality sales are purchased through a system known as "tele-auction marketing," according to Bill Humphries, N. C. State University Agricultural information specialist.

The big advantage of selling pigs through a telephone hookup is that buyers far removed from the scene can participate in the bidding. They don't have to attend the sale but can call in their bids.

The reason they can do this is that the animals are graded in advance by official state graders and are offered at auction in groups or lots consisting of pigs that are uniform in grade and weight.

A total of 231,310 pigs were sold through 265 graded auctions in 1973. According to J. R. Woodard, extension swine husbandry specialist at North Carolina State University, most of these pigs were sold over the telephone to buyers in various parts of North Carolina as well as several other states.

"This system has allowed the development of the feeder pig industry in areas of the state widely removed from the grain producing area where most of the animals are fed out for the slaughter market," Woodard said.

Also, the specialist said, the system has enabled producers to receive fair market value for the animals they are offering regardless of numbers or location.

Since the pigs are grouped in uniform lots for auction sale, the small producer with only a few pigs has the opportunity to participate in a sale large enough to attract an adequate number of buyers to assure a fair market price.

All pigs offered must meet the quality standards established for the graded sales. Inspection and grading are performed by specialists with the North Carolina Department of Agriculture Division of Markets. Thus, purchasers are assured that they are not "buying a pig in a poke."

Woodard said the program of graded quality feeder pig sales was initiated in 1965 and has continued to be a more important part of the state's swine industry each year.

It is recognized that not all feeder pigs are sold through quality sales. However, there is no doubt that the value of pigs in North Carolina is determined through this system," Woodard said.

COPTER CAPER—Dale Otto Remling, the confidence man who escaped from Southern Michigan Prison Friday in a helicopter was back in confinement after just 30 hours freedom. JoAnn Van Patten and Susan Ann Hill, both 20, and JoAnn Lou Conn, 32, will be arraigned on state charges and federal anti-skyjacking conspiracy charges. Morris Colosky, 20, who the FBI says piloted the copter, remains at large. Gertrude Woodbury, still at large, and her son Calvin, 19, are also involved, says the FBI. Donald Hill, a friend of Colosky, is in custody as a parole violator, his ID used by Colosky, according to the police. (AP Wirephoto)

Head-On Train Crash Killed 36

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — A police spokesman today reported 36 persons killed and 86 injured in the head-on collision of two passenger trains in the Alpine foothills south of Munich.

It was West Germany's worst train wreck in four years. Earlier today the police said the toll had risen to 42 dead. But later a spokesman said this incorrect report was due to confusion over the number of persons who had died in hospitals.

So far, no Americans were among the identified victims.

"The cars piled up on each other, and the locomotives were telescoped," a police spokesman said. "It's a terrible scene that recalls the wreckage after World War II bombings."

The two commuter trains were filled with passengers returning from weekend outings. They slammed into each other about 6:45 p.m. Sunday on a single-track stretch of the Munich-Bad Toelz line 30 miles from Munich between the villages of Wargau and Schafflach.

A detachment of U.S. Army Special Forces troops, the Green Berets, is stationed at Bad Toelz.

No immediate information on the identities of the dead and wounded was available.

The collision occurred several hundred yards south of the Wargau station. A police spokesman said the southbound train failed to stop on a siding at Wargau to let the northbound train go by. The northbound train from the mountains was a special that runs on Sundays and holidays while the southbound train runs every day.

Federal Transport Minister Kurt Gscheide went to Wargau early today to take charge of the investigation. The wreck was also being investigated by the Bavarian state police and the state prosecutor, who was studying the recordings of the radio traffic with the trains.

The collision occurred on a curve adjacent to a forest section which apparently prevented each engineer from seeing the other train in time to brake the trains. But a spokesman said the determination of what happened would be difficult because one engineer was killed and the other one was missing and believed dead.

The two locomotives smashed into each other at full speed.

"The cars piled up over each other," said a police spokesman. "Many persons were trapped inside, injured or dead."

"I could hear cries for help from people trapped in the wreckage," said a villager.

It was one of the most beautiful days in months, and the highways were jammed with holiday returnees from the mountains. As a result, ambulances were delayed by traffic, and 10 helicopters took most of the injured to Munich.

Hundreds of firemen, policemen, troops and government technical men worked through the night to remove the survivors and the dead from the wreckage.

The bodies were taken to the Wargau church, and the police began trying to identify them.

Anxious persons swamped the police, the Red Cross and other agencies with telephone calls about friends and relatives they feared were aboard the trains.

West Germany's worst post-war train wreck occurred in May 1971 when a train hit a bus in the Ruhr industrial area and 46 persons were killed. Most victims were schoolchildren returning from an outing.

Deny Report Of Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials have denied a report that American warplanes conducted heavy bombing raids in South Vietnam during the evacuation of Saigon.

"The National Security Council says it is absolutely not true," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Sunday of the report by the Los Angeles Times.

The Times report said heavy bombing raids were ordered April 29 when the evacuation was imperiled. "They were evidently intended to demonstrate conclusively to Hanoi that the United States lacked neither the will nor the strength to protect the evacuation," the story said.

Joseph Laitin, assistant secretary of defense, also denied the report. He said reports received by the Pentagon indicated that U.S. planes dropped two bombs during the evacuation operation — one on an anti-aircraft site near Saigon and the other at a similar installation about 50 miles away.

New York City Survival Blueprint Is Drawn Up

NEW YORK (AP) — City Council leaders and members of the Board of Estimate today were to be presented with the finished blueprint for the state's Municipal Assistance Corp., which is intended to help with $3 billion of the city's short-term debt by converting it to long-term bonds.

During a meeting Sunday night at Gracie Mansion, Mayor Abraham D. Beame and Gov. Hugh L. Carey said they hoped the proposal for Big Mac, as Carey dubbed the corporation, would be ready for passage by the state legislature this morning.

Aides to Senate Republicans in Albany said unless the final proposal included acceptable limitations on the city's short-term borrowing, the Republican majority in the Senate would approve its own version of Big Mac.

Officials in Albany and New York said broker Felix G. Rohatyn of Lazard Freres, a brokerage house, was right when he warned Beame: "If Big Mac is not in operation by Monday, you're finished."

Rohatyn is one of the four men appointed by Carey to draw up the plans for the corporation.

Carey's group had tried to reconcile concerns about the erosion of home rule with the demands of the bankers and Republican legislative leaders that their investment in the corporation be protected from a quick recurrence of the city's money problems.

The city is due to pay off $792 million in notes Wednesday. There were fears that without Big Mac to restore investor confidence, the city would have to default. Financial sources say a consortium of the city's major clearing-house banks, their names not disclosed, have agreed to give the city a "bridge" loan to pay the debt provided a satisfactory version of Big Mac is passed.

Explains 'Too Old' To Scale The Wall

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Dale Otto Remling says he plotted a daring helicopter escape from the Southern Michigan State prison because he's getting too old to scale its walls.

Remling, 46, is to be arraigned today on skyjacking charges in U.S. District Court in Detroit and on state kidnapping charges in Jackson. Four others are to be arraigned with him in federal court on a charge of conspiracy to commit air piracy, the FBI said Sunday.

Why did he go to all the trouble of a helicopter escape? "That was the easiest way; I didn't have enough nerve to try the wall," Remling said. "I'm getting a little old for that."

He said he didn't think he'd try it again. "Remling spent a couple of years getting this ready," FBI agent Neil Welch said Sunday. "And his total plan apparently ended with his getting over the wall ... The whole thing just fritzed."

Remling said the escape plan, which bought him just 30 hours of freedom, was hatched months before the movie "Breakout" was released. The movie depicts a similar attempt.

But Remling told arresting officers his prison bust did stem from news accounts of a whirlybird escape by Joel Kaplan, a millionaire who gained freedom from a Mexican prison and is reportedly now living in the southwest United States. "Breakout," starring Charles Bronson as a helicopter pilot, was based on that raid.

Remling said he never saw the movie, and it was never shown in the prison, officials said.

Despite its initial success, Remling's scheme unraveled quickly. He was picked up alone and unarmed Saturday in a Leslie bar, 13 miles from the prison in Jackson.

JoAnn Lou Conn, 32; Calvin Woodbury, 19; and JoAnn Van Patten and Susan Hill, both 20, were charged with aiding and abetting the escape and with federal skyjacking conspiracy.

Police are seeking Morris Colosky, whom they say skyjacked the helicopter at knife-point on Friday, and Gertrude Woodbury, suspected of being the go-between for Remling and his accomplices.

The women reportedly drove decoy getaway cars from the point where the helicopter dropped Remling and the skyjacker, six miles from the prison. Calvin Woodbury is the son of Gertrude Woodbury.

Remling was serving a 6-to-10-year term for check fraud and a concurrent seven-year term for stealing several hundred hogs in Nebraska.

Annual Tour Set June 18

Persons on the tour will learn about Southern Pine Beetle infestations, and travel to Harrington Manufacturing Company and Perdue Farms.

Young Brothers Drown In Creek

CASHIERS, N.C. (AP) — Two young brothers from Jackson County were dead on arrival at C.J. Harris Hospital in Sylva Sunday following a swimming accident on Bear Creek Lake, authorities said.

The Jackson County Sheriff's Department said Ronnie Gentry apparently got into trouble in about 15 feet of water and his younger brother, Dale, attempted to rescue him, but both went under.

Dale was believed to be in his teens; Ronnie in his early 20s.

Their bodies were recovered from the lake by rescue squad members from the Greenville area.

Soviet Actress Weds Pilot In Private Rites

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Russian actress Victoria Fyodorova and Frederick Pouy, an American pilot, were married privately Saturday by a justice of the peace here, Town Clerk Louis Clapes said today.

Clapes said Justice of the Peace Loren H. Jaffe, who performed the ceremony, delivered the marriage license to him today.

There was speculation that Miss Fyodorova and the 36-year-old Pouy would be married here over the weekend. Pouy, a pilot for Pan American World Airways, has a home here.

Clapes had said he wouldn't be surprised if the couple took out their marriage license here just to throw off the news media, then took out a license elsewhere. However, he said if the couple did get married their license is a permanent record of the marriage and had to be returned to his office.
