Ford, Rabin Discuss Peace In Middle East

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford accelerated his push for a new Israel-Egyptian settlement today at the first of two formal meetings with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

Rabin met with the President in the Oval Office of the White House in midmorning for meetings that began with a minimum of ceremonial hoopla.

Flanking the two leaders were Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Undersecretary of State Joseph Sisco and Simcha Dinitz, the Israeli ambassador here.

The down-to-business scenario for the talks was underscored Tuesday by Kissinger's simple welcome to Rabin at nearby Andrews Air Force Base.

At Andrews, Rabin pledged that his country would do "whatever is possible" to achieve peace in the Middle East. He also expressed his government's faith in "special relations" with the United States.

Kissinger's welcoming statement included the declaration that "you are among friends here."

Rabin's meeting with Ford was to be followed by a working dinner in the State Dining Room of the White House tonight and a final session Thursday with the President.

Rabin also planned sessions with Kissinger and had appointments with Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House International Relations Committee.

The Ford-Rabin talks follow the President's meetings in Salzburg, Austria, last week with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. The White House later called those talks successful.

Shortly after Rabin arrived, qualified U.S. officials confirmed that many of the tanks, artillery and soldiers that Israel claimed to have withdrawn from the Suez Canal region last week actually had been removed months earlier.

The U.S. officials nevertheless stressed the positive significance of last week's announcement, saying it was taken by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Kissinger as a hopeful sign and is still as such.

Prospects for a new try at step-by-step diplomacy in the Middle East, shelved following the March collapse of Kissinger's attempt to promote an interim Sinai settlement, seemed brighter with sources saying Rabin no longer would insist on an Egyptian pledge of nonbelligerence.

Israel is described as receptive to any Egyptian promise to avoid the use of force as a substitute for a nonbelligerency pledge.

Ford's meetings with Rabin and Sadat and a scheduled session here June 20 with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam will wrap up the President's face-to-face contacts with Mideast leaders.

Water, Sewer Rates Going Up

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Managing Editor
Rate increases for water and sewer were approved by the Utilities Commission last night because of rising costs.

Director Charles Horne said the water costs to the customer will be up about ten percent after the increases go in effect July 1.

Under the new rate schedule the minimum water bill will go from $2 to $2.16 monthly for in-city customers. The rates will increase 4 cents per 100 cubic feet in each block above the minimum.

Out-of-the-city customers pay double water rates.

The sewer charge minimum for an in-city customer will go from $1.80 to $2.16 while the maximum will go from $4.50 to $5.56.

For out-of-the-city customers the old minimum was $3.60 and the new will be $4.32, while the maximum was $9 and the new will be $11.12.

The commission also approved revising the water and sewer budgets for the present fiscal year because of rising expenses. The water budget was increased by $23,801, while the sewer budget increase was $24,573.

The commission approved placing fleet liability insurance with American Mutual Insurance Companies at an annual premium of approximately $6,986 after the previous carrier instituted a rate increase.

Bids were called for the Utilities group life insurance with the bids to be received July 8.

Other matters considered by the commission Tuesday night: —Approved revised rate schedule for municipal street lights which will increase the charge to the city.

—Heard of preparation of ads concerning summer electric usage.

—Heard report on Electricities investigating feasibility of joint purchase of generation and transmission facilities.

—Heard, but took no action, on proposal from White Concrete to purchase a portion of Utilities property north of river.

—Approved various changes in Utilities personnel policies.

—Heard report from Director Charles Horne on conferences with federal officials concerning discharge from water plant and waste treatment plant.

—Approved water and sewer line to Belvoir-Stokes-Pactolus Middle School on U.S. 13 north with county schools to pay full cost of project.

President Hopes To Wrap Up CIA Probe By End Of Summer

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will act on the Rockefeller Commission recommendations for ending unlawful CIA domestic activities within two months and will seek to have all CIA probes wrapped up by Sept. 1, an informed White House source predicts.

Meantime, chairman Frank Church of the Senate intelligence committee has indicated he is prepared to endorse one of the commission's major recommendations — creation of a joint congressional panel to oversee the Central Intelligence Agency on a continuing basis.

Two other senators, Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., and Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said today they would press for adoption of a resolution they have co-sponsored with 21 others to have a joint permanent congressional oversight committee police the entire intelligence-law enforcement community.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said he expects the Senate committee to "go into it (the CIA) in detail and lay out all the facts." Although the Montana Democrat called the Rockefeller Commission report incomplete, he termed it "a good report" disclosing "lots of fault to go around."

At the same time, Richard Bissell, former head of the CIA's department of "dirty tricks," returned for a second day of closed-door testimony as the Senate committee continued its probe into alleged CIA assassination plots, which the Rockefeller report did not include.

Church, an Idaho Democrat, said in a public television interview Tuesday night that a joint congressional oversight committee should be one of the reforms resulting from the current investigations of the CIA.

A source close to Church's committee had said earlier that the senator would endorse such a joint committee during a Senate speech, but the Senator said today he had no speech planned.

In the television interview, Church criticized some of the Rockefeller Commission's other recommendations, saying they did not go far enough in specifically outlawing improper domestic activities.

"What is needed is specific prohibitions in the law with penalties attached to violations of the law," Church said.

Church also is said to believe that his 11-member Senate panel investigating the CIA and other intelligence agencies will need to continue its work through the end of the year.

Ford's timetable for dealing with the Rockefeller findings calls for a decision within 30 days on what to do about the still-secret material on alleged CIA assassination plots, according to the White House source. The source said he could not predict what action Ford would take or what his response would be to the commission's recommendations to prevent future domestic abuses.

The recommendations were part of a 300-page report released Tuesday which found that the CIA conducted a number of "plainly unlawful" domestic operations, including opening of mail and surveillance of U.S. citizens, which (Continued on Page 12)

No Evidence In JFK Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is no evidence that more than one gunman was involved in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy or that the Central Intelligence Agency was involved in the murder, the Rockefeller Commission says.

The panel in effect confirmed the basis of the Warren Commission's conclusion nearly 11 years ago that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in assassinating Kennedy. The panel also discounted all of the major conspiracy theories surrounding the slaying.

The Rockefeller report also rejected claims that photos showed E. Howard Hunt and Frank Sturgis, who later took part in the Watergate burglary, were at the assassination scene in Dallas, Tex.

However, an expert medical witness whose testimony was included in the report says his views were misrepresented and that he still believes at least two gunmen were involved in the Nov. 22, 1963, slaying.

Cyril H. Wecht, a forensic pathologist, coroner of Allegheny County, Pa., and longtime critic of the Warren Commission's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in the assassination, said the statements attributed to him by the Rockefeller panel are "reprehensible and an insult."

He challenged the commission to release transcripts of his interview with a commission attorney.

The report indicated Wecht had changed his mind about the number of gunmen and their location. It quoted him as saying "the available evidence all points to the President being struck by two bullets coming from the rear, and that no support can be found for theories which postulate gunmen to the front or right front of the presidential car."

Wecht said he still believes at least two gunmen were involved and that one fired from a knoll to the right front of Kennedy's auto.

The Rockefeller panel said a detailed analysis of movie film taken at the moment of the shooting and a re-examination of the records of the Kennedy autopsy disprove the contention that Kennedy was shot by a sniper hiding to the right front of the presidential motorcade.

It also said there is no credible evidence showing that the CIA had any connection with Oswald or with Jack Ruby, the Dallas nightclub operator who shot and killed Oswald.

Budget Battle Is Nearing End

RALEIGH (AP)—The long battle over the 1975-77 North Carolina budget is drawing toward a conclusion in the General Assembly. But there is still a long way to go.

The House and Senate Appropriations committees Tuesday adopted widely differing versions of a $6.6 billion budget to operate state government during the next two fiscal years.

In the process, a 2 per cent pay hike a Senate Appropriations subcommittee proposed Monday for all state employees in the second year of the biennium all but disappeared.

The subcommittee had figured Monday the budget it proposed would leave $25.7 million available for the pay hike the second year of the biennium.

However, the full committee reallocated $4 million to boost state contributions to the state employees retirement fund and $11.5 million to provide merit salary raises for faculty members at universities and for other state employees who are not covered by the State Personnel Act. The amount available for a pay boost for all state workers virtually disappeared.

Sen. William Mills, D-Onslow, figured about $13.6 million, about enough for a 1 per cent raise, was left.

However, State Budget Offi-

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) —

The nation's governors talked about the energy crisis, calling it an emergency, but they found it impossible to agree in a hurry on anything more than the need for more money.

The governors, who met for more than an hour Tuesday without success, are expected to adopt an energy resolution at today's closing session of the 67th annual National Governors Conference.

The resolution, similar to an impromptu one approved Tuesday, demands that states get half of the proposed 3-cent increase in the federal gasoline tax and 20 per cent of anything above that.

But it also contained general opposition to a rise in the cost of petroleum products, including the gas tax hikes proposed by the Democratic House and the oil import tariff of President Ford.

State governments generally feel a hike in federal taxes will cut gasoline consumption and thus lower revenues from state fuel taxes. Thus the governors sought to insure their fair share of any hike.

Gov. Edwin W. Edwards, D-La., talked his fellow governors into giving up an easy afternoon of recreation and minor meetings Tuesday to come up with a proposal to do something about energy.

"There are 8½ million unemployed Americans," Edwards chided. "If we don't do something about the problems, the next great group of unemployed Americans will be the elected officials."

So the governors folded away swim trunks, shoved tennis rackets back in the bags and came back to solve energy.

Edwards said it was a minor victory because GOP governors, with White House agents mixing among them, used a parliamentary rule to prevent energy action on the eve of Congress' unsuccessful challenge Tuesday of President Ford's veto of the strip mine bill.

OPEC Nations Delay Increase

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer
LIBREVILLE, Gabon (AP) — Ministers of the oil cartel decided today to postpone at least until Oct. 1 any action on raising prices.

The ministerial conference of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed to put off until the end of September an earlier decision to quote future prices in special drawing rights instead of in dollars.

The OPEC ministers agreed Tuesday to postpone consideration of a proposed major price increase of some 30 per cent to compensate for losses which they claim have been caused by inflation since the current price freeze went into effect in January 1974.

The conversion to special drawing rights, an average of 16 major currencies established by the International Monetary Fund, would have resulted in a smaller price increase of some 3 per cent, or 30 cents per barrel of crude, for customers paying in dollars.

Iranian delegate Mohamed Yaganeh, chairman of Iran's central bank, told newsmen the ministers approved the principle of quoting future prices in special drawing rights, but agreed to postpone establishment of the new price structure until their next meeting, due to open at the OPEC's Vienna headquarters on Sept. 24.

Yaganeh said the postponement was agreed as part of OPEC's earlier decision to freeze all prices through Sept. 30. Iran has been among the OPEC members which most actively advocated a price increase.

Iran and Algeria claim that inflation has reduced the purchasing power of their oil revenues 35 per cent in the 16 months since the freeze took effect and prices should be raised enough to recover this in full. Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf sheikdoms appear to be prepared to settle for less.

There is no solid evidence that inflation has eroded oil revenues as much as Iran and Algeria claim. In Washington, White House press secretary Ron Nessen said on Tuesday that President Ford thinks the increase should be no more than 7 or 8 per cent because this would be in line with the estimated rate of inflation in the oil-consuming countries during the first nine months of 1975.

Several delegates said they hoped the time until the September meeting would be used to make a new start toward arranging a dialogue between the oil-exporting countries and the industrial countries that are their chief customers. These delegates said a resumption of efforts to organize an international conference on oil and other raw materials might persuade OPEC to extend the price freeze beyond September.

BEWARE OF TICKS

I understand there has been a case of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever in Pitt County this spring. What precautions can a person take to avoid this disease? C.M.

The Pitt County Health Department confirmed that one suspected case of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever has been reported in this county. The attending physician said the child is now in Duke Hospital and that the case is still clinically diagnosed as this tick-borne disease, though he has not received the results of laboratory tests.

Children and even adults who spend any time outdoors should be checked daily for ticks during warm weather, says Willie Pate, director of the Environmental Health Division of the Health Department.

"Never just pull a tick out," Pate said, "You may leave his head and allow infection to continue. Instead force him to turn loose either by applying heat by some means like a lighted cigarette or a heated metal object. Or cut off his oxygen supply by covering him with something like nail polish or petroleum jelly."

"Always pick up a tick with tweezers which you sterilize later, not your fingers. Kill him by crushing, but not between your fingers—use something like a rock. And sterilize the wound and your hands later anyway."

Removal of ticks from dogs may be done in much the same way as from a person. Some of the new tick and flea collars seem to decrease the number of ticks a dog will accumulate, but those living outdoors should still be checked daily.

Symptoms of the disease, a physician who wished not to be identified said, are malaise (feeling bad), fever, and later on a rash which begins on the arms and legs and goes inward. A person who shows these symptoms should be taken to a physician quickly, and any contact with ticks in the previous few weeks should be mentioned to the doctor. Brain damage and even death can result from the disease if it is not promptly treated.

Miss Janice Minshew Weds Sunday Afternoon

FARMVILLE—Miss Janice Minshew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Minshew of Farmville, and Donald Eugene Pope, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pope of Kenly, were united in marriage at four o'clock in the afternoon Sunday.

The Rev. Jack Scott officiated at the candlelight, double ring ceremony in the Pentecostal Holiness Church. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Jim Craft Jr. of Farmville, who also sang the "Wedding Prayer."

The vows were pledged in a setting of candlelight and greenery. Satin yellow bows marked the pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of organza and lace with a chapel train. Her chapel mantilla veil of lace draped to her gown. She carried a cascade of yellow and white miniature mums with pearl hearts to highlight the bouquet.

Mrs. James Stancil of Lucama served as her sister's matron of honor. She wore a formal length mint green polyester gown fashioned with short, puffed sleeves trimmed in white lace. She carried a long-stemmed rosebud highlighted with a yellow bow. She wore a short veil hat with yellow rosebuds with a long mint green streamer ribbon tied in a bow.

Mrs. Stanley Vick, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Jackie Kirby of Lucama were bridesmaids. Their dresses were like that of the honor attendant and they also carried long-stemmed yellow rosebuds.

Joy Vick, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl and wore a long yellow gown and carried a basket of yellow roses. Jimmy Stancil, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

James Stancil, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man and ushers were Eric Howell and

MRS. DONALD EUGENE POPE

Stanley Vick, both of Farmville.

Mrs. Minshew chose a mint green dress, "matching accessories and a wore a corsage of white carnations. The mother of the bridegroom selected a similar ensemble and wore a corsage of white carnations.

The bride attended Greene Central High School and works as a flower designer. The bridegroom graduated from Johnston High School and is employed by Fair Banks Morse Weighing Scales Division, Charlotte.

The couple will reside at Rt. 1, Ayden, after a wedding trip to Virginia.

After the rehearsal the couple was honored at a cake cutting given by their parents.

The three tiered wedding cake was cut by the bride and bridegroom, who also remembered their attendants with gifts.

Miss Nancy Darden presided at the register.

Friend's Baby Should Be Checked

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: One of my friends has a baby who is a little doll—very bright and good-natured. My friend and her baby are living with her parents.

Abby, I am not sure anything is wrong—and I hope to God there isn't—but that baby will be a year old next week, and he can't sit up at all. He just lays on his back or stomach and kicks his little legs around. I'm afraid something is wrong with his spine.

My problem is I'm afraid to mention it because the baby's mother doesn't seem to think anything is wrong, and I guess her parents don't, either. (They say he's "lazy.")

I have a baby girl the same age, and she is all over the place. I just don't know what to do, Abby. If something is wrong with that baby's back, the sooner they get him to a doctor, the better, right? Should I bring it up? And, if so, how do I do it without sounding tacky?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Tell your friend of your fears and don't worry about sounding "tacky." It would be a kindness. And if she hasn't had her baby checked by her doctor recently, she should do so at once.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, my daughter was riding her horse along a country road. A car approached her from the rear and the well-intentioned driver blew the horn. The horse was startled, threw my daughter and ran away. My daughter was hospitalized with a broken arm.

The driver of the car stopped, administered first aid and kept repeating how sorry he was. He simply didn't know the basic safety rules that should be exercised around a horse.

You would do a great service if you would publish the following:

1. A loud, sudden noise will cause a horse to run forward blindly.
2. Never walk within six feet of the rear of a horse. He may kick.
3. Don't accelerate a motorcycle when passing a horse.
4. Young horses are more unpredictable than older horses. They are extremely strong and often dangerous. Never buy a young horse for an inexperienced young rider.
5. Never pet a strange horse. He will sense your nervousness and may bite. If the owner gives permission, you may treat a horse to a raw carrot (not sugar), extended on the palm of your hand.

PHOENIX HORSE LOVER

DEAR LOVER: Thank you for sharing some horse sense with my readers.

DEAR ABBY: There is scuttlebutt among my shipmates that Dear Abby is really a cigar-chewing, bald-headed boiler salesman in Cleveland, Ohio who moonlights by writing a column.

Is there any substance to this accusation?

MERCHANT SEAMAN

DEAR SEAMAN: No way, mate! I'm a non-smoking, genuine female with hair growing on my head and no grass growing under my feet.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Bridal Couple Entertained

A swimming party and cookout honoring Peggy Willford and Tommy Jordan, who marriage will take place in Windsor on June 21, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fenner Allen Jr. near Winterville Sunday afternoon. Co-hosts and hostesses were Jack and Sue Ellen Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Fenner Allen III, Mr. and Mrs. Tim Allen, and Mrs. Fenner Allen, grandmother of the bridegroom-to-be.

Various arrangements of summer cut flowers were used on the tables around the pool.

About 40 friends of the couple attended. The couple was remembered with gifts of silver by the hostesses.

Wedding Invitation

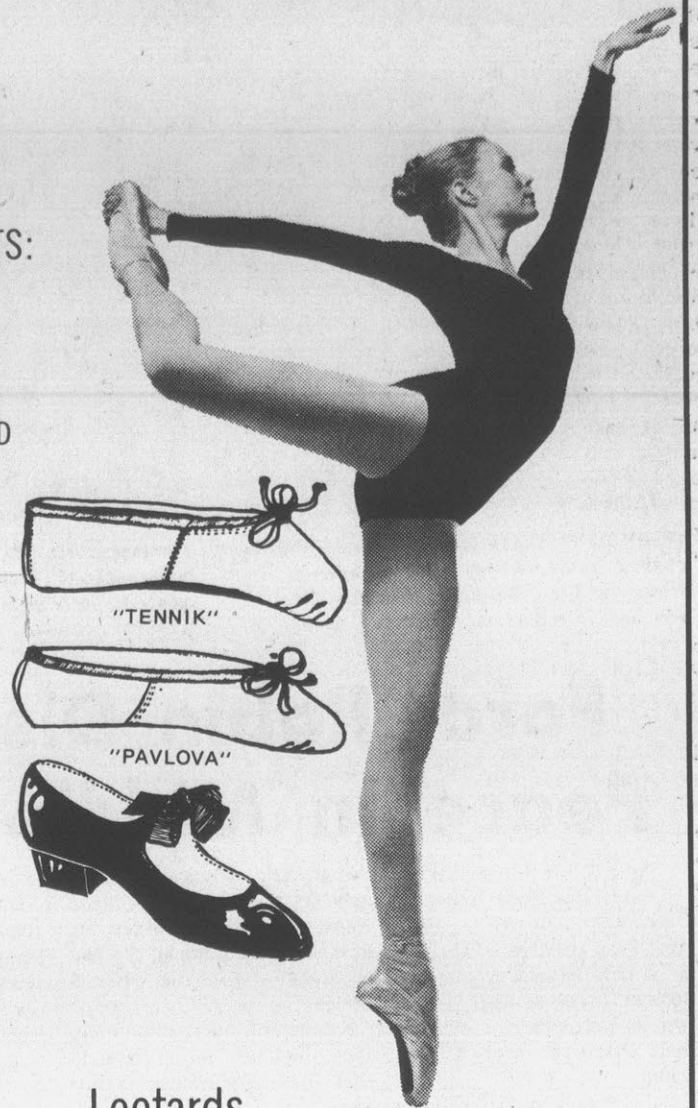

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Leary request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Shirley Louise, to Fredrick Thomas Staten, on Saturday, June 28, at 2:00 p.m. at the Tabernacle Baptist Church, Calico.

Make The Most Of Your Home Freezer
It's "freezing time" again and the convenience of a home freezer can only be measured by the way it utilized. Before loading up on unnecessary food items consider the freezer's capacity, and the family likes dislikes.

Instead of stocking up on foods which are available and consistently inexpensive throughout the year, choose those items which the family can expect to use until the same food is in season again. Sale items are great, if the bargains are family preferences. Be careful not to overly stock any one item so that you will not have space for necessities.

Prepare and freeze fresh products. Make sure fruits are at the peak of freshness—firm and fully ripe. Vegetables are best when graden fresh and frozen no more than 2 or 3 hours after they are picked. Have foods readily accessible by dating and labeling each package with a marking pen before freezing. Rotate foods so that older items are used first. Keep a record of foods stored and don't keep them for too long a period of time.

Dilda Reunion Held Sunday

FOUNTAIN—The 22nd reunion of the families of the late Jonas Dilda and his two wives Louisa Gardner Dilda and Fannie Moore Dilda was held on Sunday at Dilda's Grove Baptist Church near here.

A picnic lunch was held by the approximately 125 persons present following a business meeting conducted by outgoing president, S.L. Dilda. Mrs. Johnny Ruel Dilda and Jenness Owens have served as secretary and treasurer, respectively, for the past three years. New officers are: W. Beasley Owens, president; Barbara Dilda Owens, secretary; and Jenness Owens, treasurer.

Jonas Dilda was the youngest child of Benjamin J. and Mattie M. Dilda. He was born in 1857 and died in 1954 having lived his entire life at his birthplace, now the home of Ruel M. Dilda.

Five children by the first marriage were: Allie D. Phillips; Mollie D. Owens; Ben Dilda; Jonas C. Dilda; and Louis Dilda.

In 1907 Jonas Dilda and Fannie Moore of Old Sparta were married. The three children are Frances D. McArthur of Clearwater, Fla., Stencil L. Dilda of Greenville and Fountain and Ruel M. Dilda of Fountain.

The youngest member of the family is Bennett Wells Dilda born May 19, 1975.

Out of state relatives attending included: Mr. and Mrs. W. (Billy) Clark Dilda of Baltimore, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. David Dilda, Seat Pleasant, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cady of Washington, D.C.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert McArthur, Clearwater, Fla.; Miss Margaret McArthur, Fort Worth, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. William Jonas McArthur, Atlanta, Ga.; and Mr. and Mrs. Jonas (Pete) Owens, Cheraw, S.C.

Family Reunion
The family of the late John and Betty Pierce will hold their annual family union at the Rountree Christian Church Sunday. Lunch will be served at 1 p.m.

The pants versus skirts look is still competitive for fall and winter, although one industry observer sees skirts gaining.

moisture in and air out. Loss of moisture causes drying out of fruits and vegetables, and freezer burn in meat and poultry to prevent rancidity of the fat in these foods.

Fruits and vegetables may be frozen in folding cartons with plastic bag liners, waxed containers, rigid receptacles made of plastic or metal, and freezer glass jars with tight-fitting rust-proof lids.

A first step in preparing foods for the freezer is to assemble supplies—packaging materials, cutting boards, utensils, marking pen. Make sure all items and work surfaces are scrupulously clean. Wash everything with hot detergents or soap suds and dry thoroughly before using. Tie back hair so that it doesn't fall into anything. Then, scrub hands, fingernails and wrists before handling any food.

Before preparing fruit, taste a sample of the harvest yield if possible. Once it's passed this freshness test, the secret to correct fruit-freezing is quick handling and prompt freezing. No cooking or blanching is required. Simply wash fruit in cold water, a small quantity at a time, and drain thoroughly. Peel and cut up if necessary.

There are three fruit-packing methods: dry, with sugar, or in syrup. Some light-colored fruits such as apples, apricots, peaches can become darkened when frozen due to oxidation. An anti-oxidant (ascorbic acid, citric acid such as lemon or lime juice, or a commercial product) should be used to preserve color. Consult a freezing manual on exact techniques. When packing fruits allow for expansion by leaving ½ inch of room at the top of pint containers and 1 inch for quart sizes.

Preparing vegetables for freezing is essentially the same

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Wednesday, June 11, 1975—3 as preparing them for the table. Wash them thoroughly in cold water. Sort or cut into sizes for freezing.

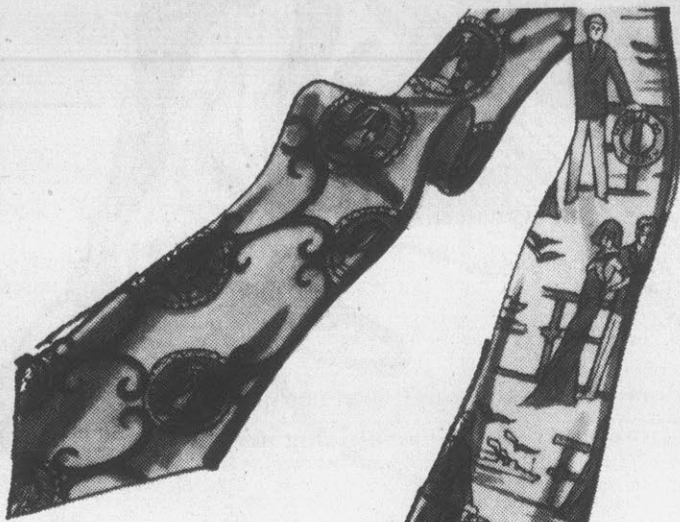

Blanching or scalding is important for all vegetables except green peppers. Blanching is needed to arrest the action of enzymes and stop ripening or maturing. Blanching is done in either boiling water or steam; consult a manual for timetable suggestions. After blanching, vegetables should be cooled immediately to stop any cooking, and to retain color and texture. Chill under cold running water or ice water, drain thoroughly and pack dry. Pack firmly but not tightly.

IN DOWNTOWN GREENVILLE

Moving Toward Downtown Mall

A long-held dream should become a reality by the end of November.

The Redevelopment Commission has called for bids on construction of a downtown mall between Fifth and Third Streets.

The mall will be the center of the Central Business District redevelopment plan and it was around the mall that all the other downtown improvements were designed.

Reade Circle had to be designed and constructed before Evans Street could be eliminated as a thoroughfare and converted to a walking mall. Reade Circle has been done as far as Dickinson Avenue and it has become an attractive core city thoroughfare.

Next the city's downtown alley ways had to be redone for pedestrian traffic. A pebble surface was put down, landscaping done and lamps are to be installed. Wisely the authorities blocked off all vehicular traffic to the alley-walkways.

Other work is going on around the Central Business District. The Town Common Park has been developed. The old phone company building on Dickinson Avenue has come down and the NCNB building will be demolished when the bank's new building, now under construction, is completed.

The work around the edges of downtown is far enough along now so that the Evans Street Mall can finally get underway. The Commission got surprisingly quick approval for the mall plan from the Department of Housing and Urban Development. and bids were called for this week.

The mall will be landscaped, with covered gates at all four entrances. Its surface will be paved with a hexagonal brick and a covered area will be included in the middle of each block. A lighting system comparable to that in the newly designed alleyways is planned for the downtown mall.

It has been a long wait for the central feature of the downtown revitalization program, but if bids are acceptable on July 8, the mall work can get underway and be completed prior to December.

Hopefully it will help make downtown Greenville attractive enough so that we won't face the business decay that has characterized so many cities over the past couple of decades.

POLITICAL NOTES

N.C. Republicans Hopeful

By JOHN KILGO

The Democrats look at 1976 as their year to win big in the Governor's race. Speculation is there will be no shortage of candidates. You've heard the roster of prospects before: Jim Hunt, Jimmy Green, Jim Ramsey, Skipper Bowles, Pat Hall, Ed O'Herron. The list goes on.

But what about the Republicans? Do they feel 1976 is a lost cause? Hardly. Listen to what one Republican in the Piedmont has to say:

"The image of this General Assembly will more than offset any criticism that (Gov.) Jim Holshouser might receive. As a matter of fact, the political polls that I have seen give Holshouser a pretty good rating. The people seem to think he's been up there fighting against a partisan, disorganized Legislature."

Who will the Republicans run in 1976? No one has emerged as a leader of the pack, but several names are being prominently mentioned.

GOP leaders have tried and failed to get Congressman Jim Martin and Jim Broyhill interested in making the run for Governor. Both men apparently want to stay where they are.

Another name high on the list of prospective candidates is former congressman Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell. It is known that Mizell wants back into politics, but most knowledgeable politicians feel he'll make a strong effort to regain his congressional seat, which he lost last year.

Republican Party Chairman Tom Bennett of Morehead City might be the closest thing the GOP has to a frontrunner. At one time Bennett was geared up for an almost-certain gubernatorial campaign. But some folks feel now that Bennett can't afford that much time away from his law practice. Nevertheless, Bennett has been talked about for a long time as a candidate, and he's not closing the door on the possibilities.

Larry Cobb, a Charlotte lawyer and the House minority leader in Raleigh, is also giving the Governor's race a close look. He has not made a final decision at this time.

Charles Jonas Jr., son of the former congressman, has also been mentioned as a possible candidate, and might be persuaded to run if he feels the timing is right.

David Jones and David Flaherty, two members of the Holshouser administration, are also giving the race consideration.

Says a prominent Republican: "We'll have another good chance to win in '76, if we put up strong candidates. You must remember that Republicans do much better in North Carolina when there is a presidential election at stake. The voters are much more prone to split their ballots in presidential years. Also, the Democrats are going to have another fight for the nomination, and will have trouble getting back together after it's all over. The Governor's race next year will be very close, and we think we have a good chance of winning."

INSIDE REPORT

Rearming Worries Japan

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

TOKYO—Unspoken but pervasive post-Vietnam doubts about how long the U.S. military will remain in the Western Pacific is bringing the Japanese establishment to grips with the hard reality that this nation could find itself utterly defenseless—a realization with ominous implications for Japan and East Asia.

The immediate result has been a quiet change among government leaders in cautiously advocating modest increases in Japan's defense. Beyond that is increasing private talk within the establishment that Japan must now consider major rearmament.

But any increased defense activity, modest or major, runs counter to overwhelming public hostility. In a nation that functions by consensus, there is absolutely no consensus for defense. Thus, attempts to enlarge the defense burden strain the fabric of Japanese democracy.

We reported earlier that a Communist conquest of Korea would bring internal turmoil to Japan. But short Korea would bring internal turmoil to Japan. But short of that catastrophe, the fall of Vietnam is causing the first widespread consideration here of this question: can an economic superpower continue indefinitely as a military midget?

To maintain its military force of about 250,000 men, Japan spends only 8-10ths of one per cent of GNP (compared with nearly 6 per cent by the U.S. and 11 per cent by the Soviet Union). That tiny expenditure produces an impressive little force: well, led, fairly well equipped, with foot soldiers considered the equal of Japan's old imperial army.

But there is much less here than meets the eye, thanks to restrictions imposed by Japan's anti-military climate. Since a 1971 mid-air collision between an airliner and a fighter plane, Japanese military aircraft have been so restricted that pilots are inadequately trained. Joint ground and air operations with U. S. forces are prohibited. Most important, the absence of a strategic supply reserve means Japan's armed forces simply cannot fight a war. So, reliance on U.S. forces is total.

None of this seemed likely to be changed by the week, supposedly caretaker government of Prime Minister Takeo Miki which took office last December. The new defense minister was Michita Sakata, a former minister of education not regarded as a major politician and utterly ignorant of military affairs. Like Miki, Sakata is associated with the left wing of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP), opposing close military collaboration with U.S. forces.

But with the Prime Minister's backing, Sakata has proposed what the LDP's old pro-American conservative stalwarts never dared: joint military planning with the U.S. After the surrender of Saigon, Sakata invited Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger to Tokyo for planning. If Schlesinger cannot come, Sakata added last week, he could go to Washington. Furthermore, under Sakata, important changes—such as 24-hour computerized air defense—may soon be made.

"Unless the Japanese people recognize we must defend our nation by our hands, we cannot make requests for American help," Sakata told us in an interview, adding that "we must make new efforts in defense." Both Japanese and American military experts feel this attitude is shaped by suspicion over Washington's long-term commitment to Japanese defense.

Behind Sakata's good intentions, however, lurks political reality. While trying hard to put defense spending at 1 per cent of GNP, Sakata told us the Dietguld not stand for anything higher. But influential elements in Japan are coming to believe that, with the American withdrawing, 1.5 per cent, 2 per cent or even higher is essential—a view so contrary to the consensus that it could produce postwar Japan's most dangerous internal confrontation.

While Japanese businessmen long have opposed defense spending as wastefully unprofitable, some important industrialists have become apprehensive about declining American power. They are deeply concerned that the Sea of Japan is now a Russian lake, Soviet submarines below it and Soviet warplanes above it. One business leader, by no means a nationalist, has so lost faith in U.S. commitments that he feels domestic opposition must be overridden to build a powerful Japanese fleet and air force. Another well-known Japanese figure privately talks of obtaining nuclear missiles.

Besides tearing upon Japan apart internally, extreme rearmament would destroy the region's power balance and alarm the rest of Asia, including China. Moreover, one Japanese defense expert—Osamu Kaihara, former secretary general of the National Defense Council—feels air and naval spending is "unrealistically grandiose."

Kaihara instead advocates a 10-million-man militia—well-trained, armed with automatic weapons and so clearly defensive that it would not frighten Japan's non-Communist neighbors. Nevertheless the militia along with Kaihara's other reforms probably would double defense expenditures and therefore also provoke bitter internal struggle.

There are, therefore, inescapable consequences of U.S. withdrawal from the Western Pacific: Japanese

The Commission Report

WASHINGTON—The Don Corleone Commission has just handed in its report on organized crime to the President.

Don Corleone, the Godfather of the report, told newspapermen, "We have done the most thorough and comprehensive job of any commission ever appointed by the President, and we have come to the unanimous conclusion that, while a few laws were broken by organized criminals, there were no massive violations."

"Organized crime in the United States may have done some things in contradiction to the statutes, but in comparison to the total Mafia effort they were minor."

Don Corleone was asked if his commission had investigated the close ties between the Mafia and the CIA.

"We have heard some witnesses who have testified that the Mafia and the CIA worked closely together on several projects. But it is our opinion that this was on a lower level and none of the Mafia chiefs had ever approved of any activity involving the CIA. We would never condone our soldiers trafficking with spies and the counterintelligence people."

A newspaperman wanted to know if the Mafia was aware of any assassination attempts involving CIA personnel.

"On occasion there was talk of assassinations, but the Mafia bosses rejected it out of hand when they found out it was illegal. There have been charges in the media that organized crime worked closely with the CIA. What the average person does not understand is that, in order to do its job and protect the country's interest, the Mafia has to work with many unsavory people."

"We work with politicians, the police, informers and, I'm sorry to say, even legal businessmen. But you will never have a strong organized crime force in this country unless you can use every weapon at your disposal."

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

Much attention has been focused recently on medical malpractice insurance. Here are three subtle extensions therefrom to which all Americans should be cognizant.

Initially, the American Medical Association is second only to the Pentagon in attaining its goals. The AMA is a powerful pressure group which enforces and enacts federal and state legislation for its benefit. For whatever other reason does the United States not have a national health insurance plans as offered by Senator Edward Kennedy?

Secondly, I believe the burden of proof in a medical malpractice case is upon the plaintiff. That is, the individual who has been injured must bring forth the litigation to prove that the doctor's activity, surgery or mistake did cause the defect or injury. This burden is enormous for usually it requires that one physician testify on behalf of the injured party and against the doctor being sued; yet, one aspect of medical malpractice insurance is to provide a buffer between the injured patient and his physician by restricting the amount of damages, legislatively, to which that patient is awarded.

Thirdly, this example of medical malpractice insurance displays that the United States is more socialistic than democratic. When one segment of the citizenry garners special privileges at the expense of the remainder, then we are only making a mockery of democracy since a "Sacred Cow" has been created who is privy to special conditions and activities precluded from the remainder of society. Doctors are skillfully and professionally trained for their tasks; however, state legislatures are considering rewarding doctors for making errors. If you want to discriminate doctors from insurance obligations, why not reduce the premiums which males 25 and younger must pay for automobile insurance?

My only concern is for competent and efficient physicians. However, I fear that with states writing into statutes medical malpractice insurance for doctors, individuals comprising this honored profession will potentially become careless, nonchalant and inept. Where is Hippocrates now?

Recovery of $116,000 of the $200,000 ransom paid for the return of kidnapped George Weyerhaeuser was announced today by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Justice Department's bureau of investigation.

The money was recovered with the help of the confession of a man who has been under arrest in Salt Lake City, Utah for four days. Another man is being sought who is believed to have the remainder of the money with him.

The amount of recovered money includes $90,700 found buried in a canyon today near Salt Lake City.

A spirited campaign for the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State of North Carolina is in prospect as a result of the informal announcement by Thad Eure that he will be a candidate for the nomination in next June's primary.

Last Saturday, M. R. Dunnagan, Raleigh newspaper correspondent, issued a statement of his candidacy. Stacy W. Wade, the incumbent, has not yet announced his candidacy.

Strength For Today

EXPECTING DIVINE HELP

So often we dismiss from our minds the possibility of being helped by God because, we reason, God will not help a person as unworthy as I am.

But we should recall that the whole message of the New Testament can be summed up in this statement, that what brought divine favor of God upon man was not man's goodness but his evil. It was pity for our lost condition that moved the Father to send the son to save the world. "While we were yet weak, in due season Christ died for the ungodly." It was not because we loved God, but because he loved us that he sent the Christ to save us.

Now this, of course, should not lead us to take a light attitude toward sin. It should lead us to take an eager attitude of understanding and appreciation toward the love of God. If God loves us enough to take us in all our unworthiness, how great indeed must be that love! How sure is it to triumph over those weaknesses before which we are powerless!

Job Market Is Tough For Young

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The depressed job market, with unemployment at 9.2 per cent and probably headed higher, is expected to be especially unaccommodating for youth this summer.

The matter is made worse by an increase in the number of job seekers age 16 to 24 years. The Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates this group will be about 550,000 greater this July than it was a year ago.

The tough times in the job market apply not only to those seeking temporary or part-time work to help pay their college tuition, but for those youngsters embarking on careers.

As usual, the unskilled face the worst situation, but even for college graduates the prospects are poor. In May, the College Placement Council revised its outlook downward. It now expects hiring to be 18 per cent below a year ago.

The council commented that "employers do not expect appreciable improvement in hiring until possibly next spring," meaning the spring of 1976. Many graduates are expected to be idle for many months.

While over-all unemployment is expected to recede slowly, the longest wait of all will probably be among the teen-age unemployed.

Within that category is the most startling unemployment statistic of all, that for black teenagers. A year ago April these youngsters experienced a jobless rate of more than 30 per cent. This April it was 40.2 per cent.

The horror story doesn't stop there, however. These are national averages, and doubtless are considerably below the real jobless rates in some of the densely populated inner city areas.

No criterion seems to have been developed to measure the social and political consequences of this situation, but nobody doubts that serious damage is being done.

One immediate consequence, if the past is a criterion, could be a summer of unrest and frustration in some of the inner cities, or at least an amount of tension that could test civic leadership.

For the longer term the social and personal consequences might be worse. Thousands of young people will be forced to accept whatever they can obtain rather than taking on jobs that will further their ambitions and fit their talents.

The only effective answer seems to be to get the system moving again — to get production to expand, consumers to buy, people to express confidence. But the formula is elusive and the achievement remains distant.

To Try Again To Pass Bill

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of the strip mining bill, having failed to override President Ford's veto, say they'll try again later this year to get the legislation enacted.

"A large majority of the American people clearly wanted this bill," said Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz. "This thing isn't dead. The fight must go on."

Udall, floor manager for the bill, said the narrow margin by which the House failed Tuesday to override the veto "is but a temporary victory for those who would have this country produce energy at any cost."

The vote was 278 to 143, three votes shy of the two-thirds margin needed for a House override.

Ford vetoed the bill on May 28, saying it would drive up consumer utility bills, increase unemployment in the coal fields and make the United States more reliant on imported oil.

The vote was the third time in three override attempts this year that Congress has sustained the President. The vote was a major defeat for the House Democratic leadership and for environmentalists who have worked for more than four years to get Congress to enact strip mining controls.

Disagreeing with Udall, Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., the chief GOP opponent of the bill, said failure of the Democratic-controlled Congress to override the veto "demonstrates that Congress doesn't want a federal strip mine bill."

Steiger told reporters he doubted whether another attempt at passing the bill would be successful. He said strip mining control should be left with the states, which he said are doing a good job at protecting the environment.

The vote sustaining the veto was hailed at the White House.

"It's safe to say the President's pleased," said Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

The legislation would have imposed stiff environmental controls on strip mining.

ferred to have gone on the boat, rather than attending their fancy dinner.

Conference officials said the tab for the boat trip was picked up by Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, which represents small and large oil companies.

Side-by-side blue-and-white signs at several spots around the ship displayed the name of the trade association and its message: "The Seafood You are Eating Tonight is Delicious. Proof that the Oil and Seafood Industries Can Survive and Thrive in the Same Waters."

A spokesman for Mid-Continent Oil and Gas said that the organization itself did not pay for the affair, but that the money came from individual oil companies, most probably members of the association. "Each of our contributors feel they get something out of it," said J.A. Griffith, the South Central Bell Co. assistant vice president who is the unpaid Host Committee chairman. He added that the Internal Revenue Service has ruled their contributions are tax deductible as business expenses.

Michael D. Bromberg, director of the hospital federation, said the advantage to his association is "getting ourselves known in the hope that we can later follow up on specific issues."

"We hope that we meet enough people that if we ever need to sit down and talk to a staff man or a governor in the future, we'll have at least opened the door for that possibility."

One thing that the host committee didn't have to worry about was to provide expensive gifts for the governors. The conference has voted to bar them, so that governors, aides and newsmen are only getting a cookbook, a record with local jazz favorites and, in the case of the governors only, a lucite block with a disc portraying the city's $163 million, unfinished domed sports stadium.

Student Unrest Stirs Rangoon

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Troops rounded up 213 students in Rangoon's pagoda district early today after five days of demonstrations against President Ne Win's military government, authorities in the Burmese capital announced.

Other students staging sit-ins at colleges and universities in Rangoon were given until 6 p.m. to leave the campuses.

Rangoon Radio broadcast a ban on public assemblies, processions and demonstrations in the capital.

Student unrest also was reported in Mandalay, 350 miles north of Rangoon.

The government blamed the Communists for the demonstrations, which included street marches, public meetings and campus sit-ins. But other reports from Rangoon said student leaders denied Communist support and asked for unspecified American assistance.

Elsewhere in Southeast Asia: The new South Vietnamese government broadcast orders to all military and civilian officials of the former regime in the Saigon area to report to various schools this weekend for "reform courses" so they could "soon become honest citizens."

It was the most comprehensive call for indoctrination since the Communist takeover April 30, although reform courses and "re-education centers" in both Saigon and the provinces have been much advertised and lauded in radio broadcasts.

The new order told those reporting to bring pens and pencils, clothes, towels, and enough food and money to last a month.

"Those who do not report themselves will be regarded as persons who stand against the order of the authorities," the order said.

In Laos, Rosemary Conway, the American imprisoned for the past eight days by the Communist Pathet Lao, was visited by a U.S. consul, a doctor and an official of the Lao Foreign Ministry. No details of the visit were immediately made known.

Ms. Conway, 36, of Chicago and Las Vegas and a former teacher at the international school here, was seized June 4 as she returned from a date with a Laotian air force pilot. Ms. Conway, who prefers the feminist designation, has been kept since then without explanation in a dingy police station in Vientiane.

Senior Awards

The East Carolina University Department of Chemistry has announced three honors recipients among its recently graduated senior students.

They are Johnnie Chamblee of Ahoskie, Elizabeth Buchanan Koszulinski of Fort Walton Beach, Fla. and Stanley C. Skrobialowski of Chicago, Ill. Chamblee won the department's annual Outstanding Senior Award. Mrs. Koszulinski won the Outstanding Woman Chemist Senior Award during the recent campus Women's Awareness Week.

Skrobialowski won the department's award for highest academic grade point average among senior chemistry majors.

ECU Grad Gets Grant

Two outstanding North Carolina library students are the recipients of N. C. Library Association scholarships. They are Joe Stines of Dallas, a graduate of East Carolina University, and Cynthia May Beyer of Greensboro, a graduate of Queens College.

The scholarships winners were announced by Dr. Gene D. Lanier, chairman of library science at ECU and president of the Library Association.

The two scholarships are awarded each year to outstanding students preparing to become librarians, he said, and are applicable toward the expense of their studies during the 1975-76 academic year.

Stines received the NCLA $1000 scholarship. A graduate of Dallas High School and ECU, he is at present East Branch Librarian at Sheppard Memorial Library in Greenville.

Valedictorian In W. Germany

BAUMHOLDER, West Germany—Melanie Dawn McCormick, a senior at Baumholder American High School, has received the highest average in the senior class and has been named valedictorian.

She also won the German-American Friendship Award. Her parents are Col and Mrs. James Stuart McCormick and Mrs. Bonnie T. McCormick of Ayden is her grandmother.

Ky Says Thieu Planned Murder

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky says President Nguyen Van Thieu tried to have him murdered, apparently after learning of a plot by Ky and some associates to oust Thieu in a military coup last April.

Ky said the murder scheme failed when security guards shot three would-be assassins who managed to penetrate the Vietnamese air force compound where he lived at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airbase.

Ky, describing the events in an interview at his rented home in a northern Virginia suburb, said the coup-plotters had hoped that the overthrow of Thieu would help save South Vietnam from falling to the Communists. He said they were talked out of the plan by U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin, who assured him that Thieu's departure would be "arranged."

But by the time Thieu finally resigned on April 21, it was too late. Saigon surrendered nine days later.

Ky said his group included a number of top political and military leaders, including the military chief of staff, Gen. Cao Van Vien, Air Force Commander Tran Van Minh and the commanders of several key military units.

Ky said the plans for a coup developed after Thieu's decision to abandon three central highland provinces to the North Vietnamese army, a move which triggered the eventual collapse of Saigon's military forces and the government.

"We were ready to move in right after the defeats in II Corps," Ky said. "Mr. Martin came to me and said, 'Well, you don't need it, it is not necessary to use military forces. We are going to arrange it.'"

Ky said he agreed to an alternative plan under which he would take charge of the government after Thieu quit, but that Thieu hung on until the situation became critical.

He said he had expected Thieu to be gone in "two days, three days, a reasonable time," but that "it took us 10 days to get rid of Mr. Thieu, and during the 10 days, each day, we lose more ground, more provinces, cities." He said in the end the plan "worked, but too late."

He said it was during this period that aides informed him of the plan in which "Thieu tried to have me killed."

Although vague about some details, Ky said Gen. Dang Van Quang, who was Thieu's top aide and confidante, managed to obtain about 15 blank passes which the would-be killers would use to gain entry to Ky's heavily guarded compound.

Call For New Revenue Sources

DURHAM—The board of Directors of the North Carolina League of Women Voters in a recent meeting in Durham called for urgent action on new sources of state revenue.

In a letter going to all members of the Legislature, the League expressed its distress at the curtailment of valuable and even critical programs and services by the General Assembly.

While saying they understand that the economic recession has seriously decreased the state's income and that some privation is required, they are keenly disappointed by the apparent unwillingness and lack of a feeling of urgency to take some needed and reasonable steps to increase North Carolina revenues.

Such steps would provide the means to sustain at least some programs for North Carolina's most needy and deserving groups without being detrimental to the state's economy. "Without some such adjustment it will take many years to return to where we are now," Mrs. Barbara Smith of Durham, Legislative Director, advised the Board members.

Proposals by the N.C. League of Women Voters were made to the legislators for their consideration: Take advantage of the possibility of taxing up to the 10 per cent rate permitted by state law by raising appropriately the rates on adjusted taxable incomes of $10,000 or more; increase the tax on cigarettes and other tobacco products; remove the sales tax ceiling on luxury items.

Attend Institute

Twenty-five media specialists from the Carolinas and Virginia are at East Carolina University this month for an Institute for Training in Librarianship, a program sponsored by the U. S. Office of Education.

The participating media specialists, all of whom are employed by school systems, are working with faculty members of the ECU Department of Library Science and with visiting lecturers and consultants.

The program is designed to aid the participants in developing ways to provide supportive services to the reading programs in their respective schools.

Names of area participating media specialists include from Greenville Mary F. Rose.

Ball Elected To Ass'n Board

Dr. John R. Ball, chairman of the East Carolina University Department of Social Work and Correctional Services, has been elected to the national board of the Association of Baccalaureate Social Work Program Directors.

Dr. Ball was informed of his election by Eleanor Hannon of Catholic University, chairperson of the Association's nominating committee.

Fellowship For History Scholar

An East Carolina University historian specializing in studies of journalists of the New South has been awarded a graduate fellowship to pursue doctoral work at the University of South Carolina.

Ronnie Wayne Faulkner of Coats, N.C., a graduate student in American history at ECU, is completing his master's thesis on Samuel A. Ashe, 1840-1938, founder of the News and Observer in Raleigh. Ashe, a Confederate veteran, was editor of the Raleigh Observer and consolidated that paper with the Raleigh News in 1880 to create the News and Observer.

Ashe was an historian and politician as well as a journalist. A monument to Samuel A. Ashe is on the State Capitol grounds in Raleigh.

Willis Is Named As Director

J. V. Brittle, president of East Federal Savings and Loan Association of Kinston, announced the appointments of Thomas W. Willis of Farmville and William K. Glasgow of Jacksonville to the firm's board of directors.

TOM WILLIS

Willis, a Farmville native, is presently serving as director of the East Carolina University Regional Development Institute. Prior to joining RDI, he served as the first director of the Farmville Economic Council, as industrial engineer with the N.C.

Department of Conservation Development, as city manager of Newton and assistant city manager of Raleigh.

Willis resides in Farmville with his wife, Hope.

Glasgow is co-publisher and secretary-treasurer of the Jacksonville Daily News and has been a resident of Jacksonville since 1953.

Brittle announced that the appointment of Willis and Glasgow to the general board expanded the board membership from nine to 11.

Okay Two; Reject One

RALEIGH (AP)—House and Senate committees today approved subcommittee reports which recommended that two nominees to the State Utilities Commission be confirmed and another be rejected.

However, the Senate Utilities Committee said it wanted to get an immediate ruling from the attorney general whether the governor would have the authority to make interim appointments to the commission if the legislature fails to act on the matter before adjourning.

Sen. Wesley Webster, D-Rockingham, chairman of the Senate committee, said he hoped to get his committee together again today to report back on the attorney general's ruling.

The House and Senate subcommittees Tuesday recommended that James Daniel of Raleigh not be confirmed. They gave favorable votes to two other nominees, Barbara Anne Simpson, a Queens College economist, and Raleigh attorney Ward Purrington.

The action of the two committees will be considered by a joint House-Senate session.

The General Assembly enacted legislation earlier this session increasing the commission membership from five to seven. Hugh Wells resigned from the commission, leaving three appointments to be made by the governor.

Gov. Jim Holshouser indicated Tuesday he would not give up on his appointment of Daniel.

Holshouser said in a statement issued from the National Governors Conference in New Orleans that he would not decide what action to take about the Daniel nomination until he returns to Raleigh. He is due back tonight.

Area Production Credit Officials At Fla. Meet

Officials of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association have just returned from Hollywood, Florida where they attended the annual conference for directors and presidents of Production Credit Associations and Federal Land Bank Associations in the Carolinas, Florida and Georgia, according to Frank Little, Jr., president of the association.

The conference held at the Diplomat Hotel, June 8-10, 1975, was sponsored by the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Columbia, South Carolina, and

The Federal Land Bank of Columbia, South Carolina. The theme of the conference was "Improving Rural Life."

Program topics presented at the conference included highlights of service and operations of The Federal Land Bank and the Federal Land Bank and the Federal Land Bank Associations, and the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank and Production Credit Administration Today and Tomorrow" by W. Malcolm Harding, Governor, Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D. C. and an address on "Objectives of Farm Bank Services" by Dr. Robert B. Sweeney, Assistant Executive Manager, Farm Bank Services, Denver. An address on "Financing Outlook For Farm Credit" by Aubrey K. Johnson, Fiscal Agent, Farm Credit Administration, New York, and a concluding address "You Can Do Something About It" by Dr. Kenneth McFarland, Guest Lecturer for General Motors Corporation, Topeka, Kansas was made on Tuesday, June 10.

The Credit Bank provides leadership, supervision and agricultural loan funds for the PCAs and the Land Bank makes loans through Land Bank Associations in the Carolinas, Florida and Georgia. The FLBAs and PCAs are serving over 109,000 farmers, growers ranchers and rural homeowners throughout the four state area with over $3.4 billion in outstanding loans.

The Pitt-Greene PCA is currently serving 1,221 farmers and rural homeowners with loans totaling $34,000,000 in Pitt and Greene counties.

Other officials of the PCA attending the conference in addition to Little included Alton Gardner of Rt. 2, Ayden, Chairman of the Board; W. F. Welfare, Jr. of Snow Hill, Vice Chairman of the Board; Chester Don Worthington, Jr. of Rt. 1 Greenville, director; David Harold Smith of Rt. 2, Ayden, director; Charles H. Harper of Snow Hill, director; and Arnold B. Parris of Snow Hill, Branch Office Manager.

The association's home office is located in Greenville and the branch office is located in Snow Hill.

Safety Problems Have Been Met

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — American experts say potential fire hazards and other problems have been met and, according to the three American astronauts, the planned linkup of Soviet and U.S. craft next month is as safe as any other space mission.

The astronauts said they disagreed with congressional critics who claim the mission is endangered by an accident-prone Soviet record.

Apollo, with three astronauts, and Soyuz, with two cosmonauts, will link up in space and the two crews will exchange visits for a few hours during the mission that begins July 15.

"It's no more dangerous than any other space mission," said Thomas P. Stafford, commander of the American crew. The astronauts said the Soviet Soyuz spacecraft was simpler than the U.S. Apollo but safe.

U.S. space officials say the most obvious problem that had to be overcome was the different atmospheres aboard the spaceships. Soyuz has a mixed oxygen and nitrogen atmosphere at 15 pounds of pressure. The Apollo operates on a pure oxygen atmosphere at 5 pounds.

Thus, the U.S. crew could not transfer from the Apollo to the Soyuz as planned without experiencing the "bends" — nitrogen poisoning caused by a change in pressure. Deep-sea divers who surface too quickly frequently get the bends.

The problem was overcome when the Soviets lowered the Soyuz atmosphere to 10 pounds.

For the Soviets, the pure oxygen of the Apollo atmosphere posed a fire hazard, as evidenced by the 1967 Apollo flash fire that killed three astronauts during a routine ground test.

To avoid this problem, the Soviets will use some American equipment, such as earphones and cameras which have been qualified for fire safety in pure oxygen atmosphere instead of bringing Russian hardware which has not. They will also wear special clothing.

U.S. engineers worried that a depressurization valve in the Soviet craft might endanger the Americans while they are aboard the Soyuz.

The only space deaths occurred when a similar valve failed aboard Soyuz 11 and three cosmonauts were plunged suddenly into a vacuum. These deaths along with a recent aborted Soyuz mission prompted congressional critics to express concern over safety.

"We asked that a manual override be placed on the valve so it couldn't be electronically triggered," said Lunney. The Russians complied with the request.

To help insure the docking mechanisms would mate properly, tests were performed here and in Russia, using actual flight hardware.

Some precautions deal with the men themselves.

The astronauts and the two Russian cosmonauts have spent hundreds of hours together, practicing again and again the complex procedures that must go well for the mission to succeed.

Spacemen on both sides have studied the language of the other side to develop sufficient fluency for the mission.

Cox; Linda Baldree, Ayden Elementary; Kent Worthington, Bethel Middle; Vivian Weatherly, Chicod Elementary; Mary Mayo, Falkland Grammar; Duffy Lincoln, Farmville Central; Sally Taff, G.R. Whitfield; Helen Johnson, H.B. Sugg; Gloria D. McKinney, Sam D. Bundy; Bill Clayton, Stokes-Pactolus; and Althea Weatherington, W.H. Robinson.

Armed Robbery May Bring Life

RALEIGH (AP) — Life imprisonment will soon become the ultimate penalty for armed robbery in North Carolina.

The state House Tuesday enacted into law a bill that raised the penalty for armed robbery from 30 years to life, effective October 1.

The bill's enactment came at a time when, spurred by the recession, armed robberies are dramatically increasing in the state. The Department of Justice, in its latest available figures, said that the number rose from 3,500 in 1973 to more than 4,200 in 1974.

The life sentence is not the only measure the legislature is taking in response. Another bill has neared enactment which would require that convicted armed robbers serve five years or one-third of their sentence, whichever is longer, before becoming eligible for parole.

Currently, any felon must serve one-fourth of his sentence before becoming eligible.

Whether the new law will deter the incidence of armed robberies is open to debate. "At least it will deter the people who get convicted a little longer," said Rep. Robert Jones, D-Rutherford.

The new law leaves the minimum penalty at five years, and a judge may still order all or a part of that sentence suspended.

Sen. Lamar Gudger, D-Buncombe, said that in his opinion, the law will mean that the average sentence for armed robbery will rise from about eight years to about 12 years.

Register To Vote

Registration deadline for Greenville's Oct. 7 municipal election is Sept. 8 at noon, according to Miss Margaret Register, executive secretary of the Pitt Board of Elections.

Miss Register asserted that now is an ideal time for citizens who have not registered to get their names on the voting books and also for people who have moved to their precincts to change their registration.

The Oct. 7 election is a primary event, she pointed out, and in the event of a runoff, that would be held on Nov. 4.

According to Miss Register, the filing period for Greenville mayoral or council candidates is from Aug. 15 at noon until Sept. 12 at noon.

The only other municipal election in the county on Oct. 7 will be in Farmville, she said.

Other elections will be held in Pitt on Nov. 4 in Bethel, Fountain, Winterville, Ayden, Falkland, Grifton and Grimesland. The Bethel, Farmville, Greenville, Fountain and Winterville elections will be conducted by the Pitt Board of Elections while the other municipalities will hold their own elections.

No Charges In Accident

No charges were reported following investigation of a 2:37 p.m. mishap yesterday on Memorial Drive near the Sixth Street intersection.

Officers reported vehicles driven by Oscar Thomas Williams Jr. of Scotland Neck and Jesse David Haddock of Route 1, Greenville collided, causing an estimated $350 damage to the Haddock car. No damage resulted to the truck driven by Williams, according to Police.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took an upward turn today on some early buying encouraged by signs of strengthening retail sales.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 5.24 at 827.36, and gainers outpaced losers by more than a 2-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was moderate.

Brokers noted that the market had begun to firm late Tuesday after the government reported that retail sales climbed 2.2 per cent last month after a 1.2 per cent rise in April.

The May figure was taken as a sign that income tax rebates and reductions had helped stim-

An Incentive For Reading

A new incentive to read program was adopted at Chicod School this year by the reading specialist, Carolyn Smith and her assistant, Carolyn Page. Reward is the key to the new incentive approach.

Children were rewarded when they read 50 books and awarded further for reading 100 books. The students were reading "skinny books" which were made by the reading teachers. Old discarded books were taken apart, broken down, and made into smaller books with wallpaper covers.

Each day the children were allowed to check out and return books upon coming to class. Large posters were kept in the classroom to enable the children to keep up with the number of books read. This developed competition among the students.

Upon reading 100 books, the child was awarded a white T-shirt with the words "Title 1, I Have Read 100 Books, Pitt County Schools." Many children exceeded the 100 mark.

Some parents played an active role in this reward program by reading with and listening to their children at home.

Through the efforts of these incentives, other teacher-made materials, and individualized reading funded by Title I, goals are being met for some of the students at Chicod.

President Hopes...

violated the rights of Americans.

The commission revealed for the first time that the CIA had administered drugs to unsuspecting human guinea pigs, monitored long-distance phone calls, infiltrated a congressional campaign and contributed its secret funds to a White House political project.

Some of these activities, which have all been terminated, "were initiated or ordered by presidents, either directly or indirectly," the commission found. However, the eight-member panel concluded that the great majority of the CIA's domestic activities comply with the law.

A Justice Department spokesman said officials have begun an informal review of laws which might apply to both the domestic violations and the alleged assassination plots. The spokesman noted that federal laws are restricted by the standard five-year statute of limitations, which apparently would rule out prosecutions for any acts committed during the Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson administrations and the first year of the Nixon administration.

The Rockefeller Commission report, which is the result of a five-month investigation ordered by Ford, praised the CIA's over-all record of operating within the law and said the agency is needed to enable the president to make sound international decisions.

But the report described in detail a number of already-reported operations such as the gathering of files on antiwar radicals and other domestic dissidents. And it also described these previously undisclosed domestic activities:

—"A clearly illegal" program to test the influence of drugs on humans, including the administration of LSD to persons without their knowledge. In one case, a man given LSD later committed suicide.

—"The infiltration of a CIA agent into the campaign of an unidentified congressional candidate. The agent furnished the CIA with reports of behind the scenes campaign activities.

—"Monitoring long-distance phone calls between the United States and Latin America in an effort to identify narcotics traffickers.

—"The collection of information on long-distance phone calls between Western Hemisphere countries, including the United States and two unidentified foreign countries.

—"The contribution of more than $33,000 from the CIA's secret budget for payment of stationery and postage costs for replies to persons who wrote President Richard M. Nixon after the 1970 invasion of Cambodia.

The commission report makes no recommendations for legal action, but notes that some of the agency's domestic operations may have violated constitutional rights of free speech and protection from unreasonable searches and seizures. Some of the activities also may have violated federal wiretap laws and statutes protecting the mails.

Budget Battle...

cer Kenneth Howard, figured that only about $7.4 million was left. The House bill makes no provision for a general pay raise. Floor action on the House and Senate budget measures is expected to begin later this week, and a Senate-House conference committee is expected ultimately to work out differences between the two measures.

Changes made by the House Committee included elimination of the ombudsman program in the governor's office which had been budgeted for $102,822 a year. The office, headed by Fred Gallagher, looks into citizens' complaints.

Both Senate and House committees approved sharp cuts for the State Department of Corrections and less severe cuts in the budgets of most other state agencies.

Rep. Jimmy Love, D-Lea, House Appropriations chairman, said his committee had cut $150 million from recommendations made by the Advisory Budget Committee. This would be in addition to cuts totaling $95 million made by the Base Budget Committee.

The House version of the budget contemplates having about $7 million left at the end of the first year of the biennium and $14.9 million the second. Much of this likely will be used to fund a number of small appropriations measures that remain before the committee.

The House Committee voted to double the program of state aid to private colleges from $200 to $400 per North Carolina student enrolled. However, it voted that the first $200 will continue to go to the college as in the past and the second $200 will go to the individual student.

The Senate committee approved an increase in the aid to private colleges of $350 the first and $400 the second year of the biennium.

Love hot dogs but can't stand the fat?

Life-Links are not a funny-tasting health food. They're plump. Tender. Delicious. And with their nutritious ingredients, everyone can enjoy them.

Lower in animal fat than hot dogs.

So they're better for most people. Even healthy teenagers, who quite often have an unhealthy build-up of fat in the heart's circulation system.

Of course, if you're not 19 anymore, fatty foods may have become a strict "No-No." But doctors will tell you that with Life-Links you can pretend you're a kid again. Enjoy.

Ross Chokes Rally To Ice NCNB Victory

NCNB's Jerome Ross got out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the seventh to preserve a 6-4 win over Pepsi-Cola last night as NCNB moved into a tie for first place in the Babe Ruth League.

Pepsi fell off to 2-2 while NCNB is tied with Home Builders with identical 3-1 records.

NCNB did all its damage in the first as it got five runs. Doug Selby walked and was sacrificed up. Jay Holt singled and a passed ball scored Selby. Ross walked and Bryant Morton was hit by a pitch. Cliff Fearington reached on an error scoring Holt and Ross and a wild pitch brought Morton in. Fearington scored on an error.

Ross held Pepsi hitless through three and two-thirds innings before giving up a dribbler to Marty Worthington in the fourth. Pepsi got its first run in that inning. Bob Morehead had reached on an error and moved to third on the play. After Worthington's dribbler to second, Danny Hester singled Morehead home.

Pepsi closed within three in the fifth as Greg Lee was hit by a pitch and scored on a hit by Calvin Parker. Parker scored when Worthington was safe on an error.

Derek Brewington led off the seventh with a single and Lee doubled him to third. Will Sanderson's hit scored Brewington but kept the bases full. Ross struck out Morehead to end the game.

Ross went the distance striking out ten and walking one. He gave up six hits. Hester was the loser.

Pitt Plaza Slugs Out 12-10 Decision

Pitt Plaza just plain wore out Cox Realty last night to finally pull out a 12-10 victory and even its record to 2-2 in the Babe Ruth Prep League.

Pitt Plaza had sneaked into the lead in the first on two runs but Cox, threatening to break out of the winless ranks, rallied for five. Pitt Plaza picked up one in the second and tied the game, 5-5, in the top of the fifth but Cox roared back into the lead in the bottom of the inning with four runs.

Pitt Plaza began to pull up again with one in the fourth and then took the lead for good in the top of the fifth with a four run burst. Mark Shank's triple provided the big blast in the inning.

The winning runs came over in the sixth, however. Alan Collier led off with a single and Garrett Young reached on an error. John Meeks reached on a bunt and George Wilkerson hit into a fielder's choice scoring Collier but leaving the bases full. Howard Wilkerson grounded out scoring Young.

Cox scored again in the sixth as Leon Hardee was safe on an error, took second on a wild pitch and scored on a double by Steve Hawkins.

Don McGlohn, Skip Hill, David Carroll and Collier each had two hits for Pitt Plaza while John Meeks had three. Hawkins had two doubles for Cox.

Pepsi Squeezes Out An 8-7 Win Over BVD

Pepsi Cola downed Big Value Drugs 8-7 yesterday in a Tar Heel Little League game.

Pepsi scored one in the first as Kelly Kee got on with an error and scored on Scott Wilson's single. Big Value tied it at 1-1 in the third with a run by Emmett Walsh.

The fourth inning proved to be the difference as Pepsi scored five runs and batted 11 men. The Big Value pitchers walked six men, hit one with a pitch and made an error to give up the runs, all unearned. Scott Wilson and Tim Shank scored on walks and Billy Stallings scored on an error. Then, Keom Richards walked in as Ricky Sutton was hit by a pitch. Eric Bowman scored the last run on a walk.

Big Value came back with four runs in the bottom of the fourth to come within one, 6-5. Jack Mann singled and Tracy Cain doubled to right field. Mann scored when Tony Burroughs got on with an error. Burroughs came in on a single by Walsh and Walsh scored the final run on an error.

Pepsi got two more in the fifth as Bowman and Richards scored and Big Value could only get two on runs by David Sneed and Mann to make the final score 8-7.

Tuesday Was Bad Night For National Teams

Both National division leaders suffered losses outside their division last night as Grace and Black Jack were beaten in Church league softball.

Grace fell to First Christian 20-1 and Black Jack was upset by Memorial, 5-4, in interdivision play. In other games, there was only one National winner, People's, which beat Trinity, 6-3. Oakmont crushed Immanuel, 23-9. St. James smashed Arlington St., 20-8, and Temple squeaked past Mt. Pleasant, 12-11.

People's pushed over three runs in the third inning to get enough to beat Trinity. People's added two in the fifth to insure the win.

Grace scored its only run in the third inning of the second game. By then, Grace was already seven runs behind. First Christian pushed over 12 in the seventh.

Oakmont jumped off to an 8-0 lead over Immanuel in the first and picked up three more in the third to ice the win. Oakmont scored eight more in the fifth. Immanuel rallied for five in the sixth.

Memorial came up with a run in the top of the seventh to eke out a 5-4 win over Black Jack. Memorial had tied the game an inning earlier, 3-3, but Black Jack picked up a score in the last of the sixth to regain the lead. Black Jack got a man on in the seventh but could not score him.

St. James scored four in the first and five in the second and from there, coasted to its win over Arlington St. G. Howell had a homer for St. James in the fourth.

Mt. Pleasant gained a 3-2 advantage in the second over Temple and then roared out to a 9-2 lead in the third. Temple began to come back with three in the fifth and then tied it up in the seventh, 9-9. Mt. Pleasant regained the lead in the eighth with two runs but Temple rallied for three to win the game.

Sports Shorties

Glenn Hulse of Rockville, Md., will captain Army's indoor track team next season.

Emmitt Thomas of the Kansas City Chiefs intercepted 12 passes in the National Football League last season, two short of the NFL record.

The Denver Broncos has scored 41 touchdowns in eight National Football League seasons.

A total of 93 new players were on 12 National League rosters when the 1975 baseball season began.

Beltone kept half-game's distance over Piggly-Wiggly with a 45-1 win over Daniels, last night, in the Ladies Softball League.

Piggly Wiggly had earlier moved into a tie for first with Beltone beating Coca-Cola, 25-3. Piggly Wiggly had gotten four in the first for enough to win the game.

Little Mint added the confusion with a 13-1 win over Burroughs Wellcome to move into a tie for second with Piggly Wiggly. Little Mint had likewise gotten the eventual winner in the first as two runs came over. Little Mint finished B-W off with four in the seventh.

Wachovia sent the Daily Reflector back into the cellar of the league with a 26-8 victory. Wachovia had gone ahead 3-0 in the first but the Reflector rallied for seven in the bottom of the frame to take the lead. It proved to be too exciting for them as Wachovia tied it up in the third and went ahead in the fourth on D. Bryant's homer. 14 more came over in the fifth for Wachovia.

Beltone slapped out six homers in their rout of Daniels.

Jaycees Win As R.C. Falls, 13-2

Teddy Gartman held R.C. Cola to just four hits, one a home run, and had three hits to lead the Jaycees to a 13-2 win yesterday and move them closer to the North State Little League title.

Gartman fanned 10 and did not walk a batter during the game. The Jaycees got a pair of runs in the first but Tracy Mill's homer in the bottom of the frame with one on to tie it up. It stayed 2-2 until the Jaycees pushed over four in the fourth.

Henry Goodson reached on an error and Crowell Pope on a fielder's choice. An error moved both runners up and a hit by Jay Woods scored Goodson. Pope scored on a hit by Gartman and an error scored Woods. Gartman scored on an error.

The Jaycees added seven more in the sixth, three coming on a homer by Elvy Forrest. Larry Talbert also had three hits for the Jaycees while Mike Pollard and Kenny Barnes had two each.

Tourney At 8 p.m.

Rose High School and Charlotte Harding will open play tonight at 8 p.m. at Harrington Field for the State 4-A Baseball Championship.

The best-of-three series will continue Thursday, and if necessary, Friday at Harrington. All games will be at 8 p.m.

Admission for the games will be $2 each. All softball leagues under the City Recreation Department, along with the Babe Ruth league, have cancelled their games until the conclusion of the tournament.

Presenting a program for almost perfect sucker control in '75.

Off-Shoot-T 85 introduces an extraordinary new program for sucker control that is not just improved, but almost perfect. It comes after years of research and testing—and solid data that it works.

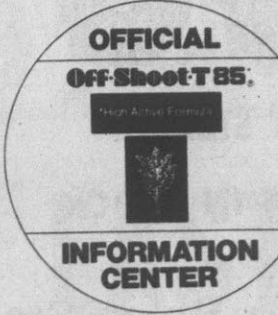

Last year, one application of Off-Shoot-T 85 gave you excellent sucker control... excellent leaf quality... and excellent yield. But this special program produces results beyond that, even with an uneven crop.

Here's how it works. Spray Off-Shoot-T 85 in the early button stage. Then apply a second application around 5 to 7 days later. This will help control the suckers that were undeveloped or shielded by the cluster of top leaves at the time of the earlier spraying. What's more, this will also help control any new sucker growth. Top either before or after the second application, and follow in about 10 days with maleic hydrazide.

Result: almost perfect sucker control—and at a cost that's usually less than one application of Off-Shoot-T 85, plus hand "cleanup," plus maleic hydrazide.

Get all the details, as well as an informative new booklet about sucker control, at your local Off-Shoot-T 85 dealer. Look for the special window seal identifying him (shown to the right)—and check the new information center inside. See him today—and order Off-Shoot-T 85.

It's your way to almost perfect sucker control this year.

Sparky Glad To See Pirates Leave Cincinnati

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
"I'm glad to see them go," said Sparky Anderson. "They're ferocious."

The Cincinnati manager said goodbye and good riddance to the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday night after watching them plunder his pitching staff.

"When they're going like that, it doesn't matter who you pitch against them," sighed Anderson after the Pirates walloped 17 hits and beat the Reds 9-5.

Coupled with Monday night's 9-2 loss to the Pirates, Cincinnati's pitchers were racked up for 18 runs and 32 hits in two games at Riverfront Stadium. The Pirates embarrassed starter Pat Darcy and five other Cincinnati pitchers Tuesday night.

"Maybe this is the start of something big," said Willie Stargell, who collected three doubles and a single and drove in five runs. "Maybe this will be the start of some consistent hitting."

In the other National League games, the Houston Astros whipped the Chicago Cubs 4-3; the Philadelphia Phillies blanked the San Diego Padres 7-0; the Montreal Expos nipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4 and the New York Mets turned back the San Francisco Giants 5-0. The St. Louis-Atlanta game was postponed by rain.

Sam McDowell, 2-1, making his first start of the season for Pittsburgh, was the recipient of the lusty Pirate support. He went five innings to pick up the victory.

The Pirates jumped on Darcy, 1-3, for three runs in the first inning on singles by Richie Hebner and Al Oliver, Stargell's two-run double and Richie Zisk's double.

Hebner walked, Oliver singled and Stargell doubled them home for two more runs in the fourth, then they scored twice again in the fifth when Zisk singled and Manny Sanguillen hit his second homer of the year.

The Pirates got their final two runs in the eighth when Hebner walked, Oliver and Stargell singled and Zisk hit a sacrifice fly.

Astros 4, Cubs 3
Enos Cabell singled home the tie-breaking run and pitcher Doug Koniczny doubled home another in the eighth, leading Houston past Chicago. Cesar Cedeño walked to open the Astros' rally, stole second and took third when Chicago catcher Steve Swisher threw the ball into center field.

Phillies 7, Padres 0
Larry Christenson and Tug McGraw combined on a six-hitter as Philadelphia defeated San Diego for the Phillies' first victory in their last 11 road games. Jay Johnstone, who had a single and double, and Terry Harmon, who had two triples, each drove in two runs off loser Dan Spillner, 2-7.

Expos 5, Dodgers 4
Pepe Mangual raced home from second base on a misfired pickoff attempt by pitcher Mike Marshall in the seventh inning to break a 4-4 tie and lead Montreal past Los Angeles.

Mets 5, Giants 0
Tom Seaver pitched a six-hitter for his 30th career shutout and battery-mate Jerry Grote knocked in two runs to lead New York past San Francisco.

Hinting That Kuhns' Job Is On The Line

NEW YORK (AP) — While not announcing overwhelming support for Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, a number of owners denied a published reports they had banded together to block re-election of the sport's ruler.

The denials came specifically from George Steinbrenner, suspended managing general partner of the New York Yankees, and Jerold C. Hoffberger of the Baltimore Orioles — two of the three men reported on Tuesday by the Chicago Sun-Times to be leading the drive.

The other owner purportedly involved was Charles O. Finley of the Oakland A's. Steinbrenner said from Tampa, Fla., "I would never vote against the Commissioner because of anything he did within the perimeter of his authority. To begin with, under the terms of my suspension, I am not involved with the Yankees, so I would not be voting, anyway."

The voting to which Steinbrenner referred is the vote of confidence to be taken at the league meetings during the All-Star break in mid-July. If four voters from each league were to go against Kuhn, a new commissioner would be sought despite the fact that Kuhn's seven-year contract still has one year to run.

"People seem to think the Yankees will vote against him because of my suspension and that is absolutely not so," Steinbrenner told the New York Daily News.

Steinbrenner was suspended for two years from any activity with the Yankees after being indicted and fined for making illegal contributions to the campaign fund of former President Richard Nixon.

Hoffberger denied talking to Steinbrenner, Finley, "or any club owner or representative" about alleged ouster plans. He added he did not have the "slightest idea" if others were involved in such a movement.

Strike Continues To Be Felt

NEW YORK (AP) — The aftershock of last year's National Football League players strike continues to be felt — in the courtroom, rather than on the playing field — as the league and its players try to piece together their shattered collective bargaining agreement.

A step in that direction may have been taken Tuesday when a National Labor Relations Board official ruled that player salaries "including minimum or other salaries for the unit (the players union), is a mandatory subject of bargaining."

Money was one of the prime differences in opinion last year when the bargaining agreement lapsed between the NFL Players Association and the NFL Management Council and a number of the athletes boycotted their training camps.

But the players got a boost Tuesday when the NLRB official, Sidney Danielson, ruled against a complaint by the Management Council that the Players Association had not bargained salaries in good faith during last year's troubled pre-season.

"A party may not refuse to bargain, or waive bargaining, on that subject without consent of the other party," the judge said.

"We're very pleased that the NLRB has decided we're not guilty — not that we had any doubt in our minds," said Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association.

"You have to contrast the fact that the board has found the owners guilty of a number of offenses. I think it's incumbent on the owners to start bargaining."

Monday, the board had found valid 15 of 32 complaints filed by the players against the owners and set a hearing for July 22 in New York.

In substance, Tuesday's decision said that were the league to propose an across-the-board wage scale for its players — such as the one that exists for most unions — the players would have to bargain on that scale.

The owners reacted positively to that ruling, with NFLMC Executive Director Sargent Karch saying, "We accept fully the Labor Board's observation that collective bargaining on all salaries is a duty of the union that cannot be waived unilaterally."

"We have had the concept of a union wage scale under advisement for some time, but have not pursued it actively pending affirmation of our position by the NLRB."

While a standard pay scale of any kind was certain to be opposed by the players, Tuesday's opinion at least had the apparent effect of forcing the groups to the bargaining table — a measure which was not easily effected last summer.

Linebacker Waived

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals took another step Tuesday to make room for their youthful crop of incoming linebackers by waiving veteran reserve Doug Adams.

The former Ohio State captain was awarded to the Kansas City Chiefs.

The move left the National Football League club with 10 linebackers.

"With the addition of four linebackers, we felt Doug would get a better shot with another team," said Mike Brown, Bengals' assistant general manager.

Number One Pick Is No Pennant Guarantee

By NORM CLARKE
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Being baseball's No. 1 draft pick is no guarantee of "instant pennant" says Rick Monday, the first man selected 10 years ago when the revolutionary concept was launched to help the have-nots.

"Sure there's been a lot of pressure. Everywhere I go I have the tag as baseball's first No. 1. But I don't think it's bothered me," said the Chicago Cubs' outfielder.

In 1965, the former Arizona State star was the top selection when baseball reorganized to end expensive bidding wars which usually resulted with the rich getting richer.

"I'm not enough of an authority on the subject to say if it's worked or not," said Monday, "but it's certainly saved baseball a lot of money."

It may have saved baseball, period, according to some of baseball's leading authorities.

Cincinnati Reds president Bob Howsam, who admits being "among a small number opposed to the draft," says there is no question it has upgraded overall competitiveness.

"Baseball is bigger than one club. You're no stronger than your weakest link," said Howsam. "You have to have competitive teams or the public won't buy what you are selling."

Kiwanis Wins, 7-3

University Kiwanis rallied for three runs in the bottom of the third to take a 7-3 victory over Farmville in the Senior Babe Ruth League, last night.

Craig McGlohn led off with a walk and scored on Donnie Haddock's triple. A triple by Les Roberson drove in Haddock and an error scored Roberson.

Kiwanis had scored one in the second as Rick Harrell reached on an error and scored on a sacrifice. Kiwanis added two in the fifth and one in the sixth.

Farmville scored all three of its runs in the sixth. F'ville 000 003 0-3 4 5 U. Kiwanis 013 021 x-7 4 3

Everyone Was Looking The Wrong Way

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

All eyes were on Nolan Ryan again, looking for another no-hitter.

They were looking in the wrong direction. They should have been looking at Jim Perry.

Ryan, the California Angels' flamethrower, sauntered into New York Tuesday night. In his last two games he'd thrown a record-tying fourth career no-hitter, beating the Baltimore Orioles, and had followed that up with a two-hitter.

Naturally, everyone figured, he had a pretty good chance to get No. 5; but they weren't counting on one thing. He wasn't pitching against Baltimore. Perry was.

And for 52-3 innings, Perry flirted with a no-hitter. It would have been his first. Then Al Bumby ruined it with a single up the middle. So Perry, cast aside by the Cleveland Indians and acquired by the Oakland A's only three weeks ago, finished with a one-hitter as the A's beat the Orioles 3-0.

Ryan, meanwhile, got bombed by the Yanks with four runs in the second inning, two on Chris Chambliss' homer, and whipped the Angels 6-4.

In the rest of the American League it was Chicago 9, Milwaukee 2; Texas 8, Boston 3; Kansas City 4, Detroit 3, and Minnesota 5, Cleveland 3 in 12 innings.

"My record doesn't look too good," said the 38-year-old right-handed Perry, now 1-1 with Oakland and 2-7 overall with a 5.59 earned run average. "But I haven't pitched that badly. I know I'm a better pitcher than I've shown. Maybe this will turn things around."

Bumby's two-out single in the sixth was a clean hit. "It was out of my reach," Perry said. "It was off to my left and hit on the corner of the dirt."

A two-run homer by Gene Tenace in the fourth and a solo shot by Claudell Washington in the sixth gave Perry all the runs he needed.

Yankees 6, Angels 4.

"It was probably the worst I've pitched all year," Ryan said after his bid to become the first 11-game winner in the majors this year wound up as his fourth defeat.

He walked leadoff batter Thurman Munson in the second inning and Chambliss lined a homer into the second deck of the right field stands. A walk, singles by Sandy Alomar and Walt Williams and a throwing error made it 4-0, then the Yanks chased Ryan in the sixth, scoring two more runs on singles by Williams, Roy White and Munson and Chambliss' sacrifice fly.

White Sox 9, Brewers 2.

While Perry was doing his thing and Ryan was trying to do his, 10-game loser Wilbur Wood found out he still knows how to do his. After six unsuccessful tries to get his fourth victory of the season, he finally did, even though Milwaukee knocked him around for 10 hits.

He got it because the White Sox knocked out 14, the big one being Pat Kelly's homer which triggered a four-run fifth inning.

Royals 4, Tigers 3.

John Mayberry's home run lifted the Royals into a tie in the second inning, Cookie Rojas' RBI grounder put them ahead in the fifth and George Brett's eighth-inning single knocked in what proved to be the run that beat the Tigers. Brett's hit offset Willie Horton's 14th homer of the year for Detroit in the ninth.

Twins 5, Indians 3.

Steve Brye's tie-breaking single in the 12th inning and a subsequent bases-loaded walk to Tony Oliva gave Minnesota its winning edge against the Indians. Rod Carew gave the Twins a 3-2 lead in the top of the eighth with his sixth homer but Cleveland tied it in the bottom of the inning on George Hendrick's 11th homer.

Rangers 8, Red Sox 3.

Jeff Burroughs kept up his assault against American League pitching with his sixth homer in the last seven games and 15th of the season to help Texas rout the Red Sox.

Sign Guard

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle SuperSonics of the National Basketball Association announced the signing Tuesday of Gerald Edwards, a 6-foot-4 guard from Texas Southern.

Edwards, a free agent, may turn out to be the "big guard" assistant coach Bob Hopkins was hoping to add to the Sonic roster.

Centennial Planned By Tar Heel

By Dr. H.G. Jones, Curator
Written for the AP
CHAPEL HILL (AP)—In the midst of the merrymaking and mythmaking of the approaching bicentennial year, North Carolinians ought to take note of a fellow Tar Heel who planned the nation's first big birthday party.

True, Joseph Roswell Hawley moved away to Connecticut at the age of eleven, but once a Tar Heel always a Tar Heel. Especially for one whose mother, Mary McLeod, was a Richmond (now Scotland) County girl. The father, Francis Hawley, was a Connecticut Congregational missionary who served in both Carolinas.

"Fighting Joe," as the young man was to become known during the Civil War, was born at the village of Stewartville near Laurinburg Oct. 31, 1826.

Undoubtedly one reason for Hawley's obscurity in North Carolina history was his identity with abolitionist policies before the war and his high military rank in the Union army during the Civil War.

His memories of human slavery in North Carolina made a lasting impression upon young Hawley, and from the time he began practicing law in Hartford in 1850 he was an ardent foe of slavery. Two years later he was a delegate to the Free-Soil National Convention; and in 1857 he became the outspoken editor of the Hartford Evening Press.

When news of the firing on Fort Sumter reached Hartford, Joe Hawley rushed to the colors and was one of the first men to be enlisted in Connecticut. He rose rapidly in rank and by 1865 was a brigadier general. His assignment following the fall of Wilmington early that year was, ironically, to command a supply base within a hundred miles of his birthplace. He had returned as conqueror.

His war-won reputation led to Hawley's election in 1866 as governor of Connecticut. The following year his old paper was consolidated with the Hartford Courant and Hawley again became editor. In 1868 he was chairman of the Republican National Convention, and he was a delegate to the next three presidential nominating conventions of his party. His name was placed in nomination for president of the United States at the 1884 convention.

Congress in 1871 established the United States Centennial Commission for the purpose of planning a mammoth celebration five years later on the 100th anniversary of American independence. The 94 members representing every state and territory elected General Hawley as their president, and he served throughout the life of the commission.

The centennial featured a huge exhibition of American and foreign arts and manufactures in Fairmount

Park, Philadelphia. The United States proudly showed off its latest in inventions, such as the telephone and typewriter, as evidence of its progress of the first hundred years of independence. The eyes of the world were on the USA.

When the centennial was officially opened on May 10, 1876, with President Grant and the emperor of Brazil on the platform, the loudest applause was for Joe Hawley whose perspicacity has saved the observance from dissension and threats similar to those that have bedeviled the bicentennial of our times. When the exposition closed November 10, it had attracted 6,740,500 paid admissions.

Meanwhile, Joe Hawley had served in the United States House of Representatives from 1872 to 1875, and he was elected to another term in 1879. Two years later the Connecticut legislature chose him United States Senator, an office that he held until March 3, 1905. Two weeks following his retirement he died and was buried in Cedar Hill Cemetery, Hartford.

Hawley's North Carolina origins might have been ignored except for the interest of Dick Brown, staff writer for the Sunday edition of the Fayetteville Observer-Times and chairman of the Scotland County Bicentennial Commission. In addition to spreading the word about a North Carolinian's success with the nation's centennial, Brown wants to see Hawley's birthplace, still standing at Stewartville, preserved as a bicentennial project.

That would indeed provide overdue recognition to Mary McLeod Hawley's little boy who became a national figure.

John Steinbeck, one of America's best known authors, got a "C" in Freshman English while attending Stanford University in the 1920s.

Here's How They Voted

BY ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 2, when the Memorial Day Recess ended, through June 4.

House
VETO—Failed, 277 for and 145 against, to achieve the two-thirds majority needed to override President Ford's veto of an emergency employment bill (HR 4481). When the bill was passed by the House in March it had 313 supporters and 113 opponents.

Failure of the Democratic majority to overcome the veto was a major victory for the President in his showdown with Congress over the best legislative means of curing the economy. Ford had proposed, in place of HR 4481, a $2.7 billion bill to continue existing public service jobs for six more months.

HR 4481 would have appropriated $5.3 billion, mostly for continuing existing public service jobs and creating new ones. It would have also funded the purchase of new cars by the government to help Detroit, summer jobs for youth and accelerated public works spending to spur the economy.

Supporters of the override (those voting "yea") regarded the bill as an effective tool for putting the jobless back to work and reviving the economy. Opponents agreed with Ford that the bill's medicine would not take effect until after current unemployment had eased, and that it would thus set off a new round of inflation.

Reps. Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), W.G. Hefner (D-8) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L.H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), James Martin (R-9) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted "nay."

VOTING RIGHTS ACT—Passed, 341 for and 70 against, a bill (HR 6219) extending the soon-to-expire Voting Rights Act through 1985. When enacted in 1965, the law's chief purpose was to prevent discrimination against black voters in six southern states. Congress broadened the scope in 1970. HR 6219 was sent to the Senate.

A major change embodied in HR 6219 is to expand coverage to four non-English speaking minorities — Asian Americans, Spanish Americans, American Indians and native Alaskans — in jurisdictions where they make up at least five percent of the population and exhibit high illiteracy.

Supporters said the substantial success of the Voting Rights Act should not obscure the fact that discrimination still exists. Rep. Louis Stokes (D-Ohio) said it is "important to remember that we are still in the early stages of reversing the results of centuries of discrimination."

One opponent, Rep. William Dickinson (R-Ala.), said, "The Voting Rights Act is only a cover designed to force the South to continue to atone for its alleged past sins." Some opponents said expansion of an otherwise admirable act to include non-English speaking minorities would cost too much and promote "multilingualism."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

VOTING RIGHTS—Rejected, 134 for and 269 against, a substitute version of the Voting Rights Act (above) which would have changed the "trigger" mechanisms for bringing jurisdictions under coverage and softened the law in other respects.

Under the substitute, the act would have applied only to jurisdictions which in the most recent federal election had less than 50 percent turnout among black (or Spanish heritage) voters.

Rep. Charles Wiggins (R-Cal.), the sponsor, said it is time to stop compelling southern states, which have been most affected by the Voting Rights Act, to "ride in the rear of the bus." He said that if his substitute was not accepted southern states would continue to be singled out for voting practices that they corrected years ago.

Opponents regarded the substitute as a weakening of the law, pointing out that a jurisdiction with a minority turnout of 51 percent could still discriminate against 49 percent of the minority population. Rep. Don Edwards (D-Cal.) termed it "curious to me" that "someone would want to undo an act that has proven its effectiveness."

Fountain, Henderson, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

Andrews and Neal voted "NAY."

Jones did not vote.

Senate

DEFENSE CEILING—Rejected, 36 for and 59 against, an amendment to set a $28.8 billion ceiling for weapons authorizations through Sept. 30, 1976. As a result, the Armed Services Committee's recommended ceiling of $30.3 billion was left intact. The bill (S-920) was later passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), the sponsor, said the cost-cutting amendment would not weaken the nation's security and that the committee-approved ceiling is 20 percent higher than the fiscal 1975 defense funding level.

Opponents said inflation and the need for a strong defense justify the committee's authorization figure. Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.) said S 920, as presented by the Armed Services Committee, is "... a bone-and-muscle bill with the fat or soft items already taken out." Sens. Robert Morgan (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

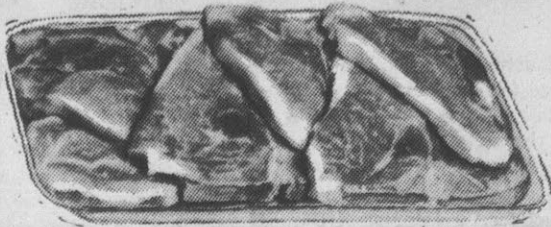

MISSILE ACCURACY—Rejected, 42 for and 52 against, an amendment to delete from S 920 (above vote) $109 million earmarked for the Pentagon's "counterforce" research and development program. "Counterforce" is concerned with making U.S. missiles more accurate and potent in terms of hitting Soviet missile silos and other targets.

Supporters argued that the U.S. already has ample nuclear prowess to destroy major Russian targets many times over. Therefore, to perfect the already devastating U.S. power is a provocative step that might be interpreted by the Soviets as preparation for "first-strike" capability. Also, said supporters, "counterforce" signifies a policy change in that it acknowledges limited nuclear war as a military option.

Opponents argued that failure to improve missile accuracy would be interpreted by the Soviets as a lack of resolve. One opponent, Sen. Harry Byrd (I-Va.), said, "It just seems to me logical and sound to try to make our weapons systems as accurate as possible, whether they be rifles, or whether they be nuclear weapons or other weapons systems that we may need."

Morgan and Helms voted "nay."

Village Called Revolutionary 'Nonlandmark'

By GUY GUGLIOTTA
 ODESSA, Del. (UPI) — Some time during the 250 year history of Odessa, which sits in the lap of liberty about 25 miles from Philadelphia, something of historic significance should have happened.

"It would be nice if George Washington had at least stopped here," Odessa curator Horace Hotchkiss said wistfully. "But he didn't."

Nor did anyone else, it seems. Many towns in Delaware and neighboring New Jersey are as old as "historic" Odessa and Revolutionary War battles were fought in some.

"But not, unfortunately, in Odessa," Hotchkiss said. "The War passed us by. That doesn't do too much for our public relations effort."

Hotchkiss, who takes care of many old properties in Odessa, calls the village a "non-landmark of the Revolution."

The search for historical significance among the musty manuscripts and mansions of the town has led him to a state of amused frustration.

Even neighboring Middletown can boast that George Washington used to eat dinner at an old inn there.

"I can't find anything about Odessa," Hotchkiss said. "He may have at least ridden through town, but if he did, I can't find any evidence."

The result is a limited but attractive tourist industry specializing in American decorative arts. It is popular among what Hotchkiss calls "a devoted following."

For vacationers accustomed to Gettysburg, Williamsburg and such, Odessa's history lacks drama.

Consider William Corbit, a Quaker tanner from Philadelphia who built the Corbit-Sharp House, Odessa's showpiece, in 1772.

Corbit, like most 18th Century Odessans, was not a Revolutionary but, Hotchkiss said, "Continental soldiers once searched the house and commandeered some leather they found in the basement."

The soldiers paid for the leather with Continental money, but the Corbits preferred not to spend it, passing it from father to son until it became a family curiosity.

Then there was clockmaker Duncan Beard, who built Corbit's grandfather clock. He participated in the Revolution "because he made flintlock rifles," Hotchkiss said. His house might have held some secrets "but it burned down about 30 years ago."

There is a portrait in the Corbit House that looks like young Washington. But it isn't —it's Phillip Syng, a Revolutionary War era Delaware politician. While Syng was not a signer of the Declaration of Independence, Hotchkiss said, "the inkstand in the painting is the same one used by the signatories."

Other landmarks in Odessa include: A box-like, charming but undistinguished 18th Century Quaker meeting house. "We like to think it's the smallest brick meeting house in the United States," Hotchkiss said. A restored stable, built around 1775. It belonged to John Janvier, a cabinetmaker and undertaker. The hearse he kept there has disappeared.

The Old Drawer's Presbyterian Church. It's expensive to show it to tourists "because it costs $35 to get someone to open all the shutters."

Hotchkiss says if you want to find out more about Odessa, read "Grandeur on the Appoquinimink," by John A.H. Sweeney. Except its out of print.

Only once did Odessa bring a major change on itself.

The village used to be called Cantwell's Bridge, named in 1725 for the man who built a span across Appoquinimink creek at one end of town.

In 1852, a railroad was built through nearby Middletown and the citizen's of Cantwell's Bridge feared the road would threaten their own town's importance as an agricultural distribution center.

They renamed the village Odessa, after the great Ukrainian agricultural center, to refocus attention on themselves. It didn't help.

Singing Group Appears Sunday

The Young World Singers of Vanceboro will appear at the Faith Assembly of God Sunday.

The youth will be singing and testifying in the 6:30 p.m. youth service. The Rev. Wesley Morris will speak and the group will also sing during the evening service at 7:30.

The public is invited to attend. The church is located on Highway 13 North, Bethel Highway. Steve R. Jones is pastor of the church.

Exotic Jade Collection Is Exhibited

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — Before the dawn of recorded time the Chinese formed a mystic reverence for a lumpy, unassuming looking stone called jade. They never lost it.

This love runs like a connecting thread through a new London exhibition of jade, jade and still more jade.

"It is surely the most comprehensive display of jade carvings ever to be held in the West," said the Victoria and Albert museum, where the 500-odd carvings are on view.

Jade is so hard it cannot be marked with steel. But when its natural lumps are cut and polished it becomes silken smooth, with a beauty that cannot be imitated.

"Chinese Jade Throughout the Ages" is an eye-opener about every aspect of it.

Jade, for instance, is green—everybody knows that. Green, and sometimes white.

But there are carvings on display of black jade, and yellow jade, and red and gray and brown jade, and some delicate flowers of lightest lavender. Jade's mineral content determines its shade.

"Carvings" is another misconception. Jade is too hard to carve. Instead it is ground, worn away with abrasives in a lengthy and laborious procedure.

Over the ages the Chinese developed many drills and tools to shape and polish it. But for centuries they cut it with a piece of cord dipped in crushed garnets, or in powdered quartz, black sand or other cutting powder.

"Jade has occupied the same position in Chinese culture as have gold and precious stones, in the West," the exhibition's catalogue explained. Early on it was more than that.

Neolithic Chinese thought jade was magic. They made it into religious ceremonial objects, like the axes on show which may be 6,000 years old, or older.

Even when recorded history enters the picture, about 1500 B.C., jade was made into ritual knives, scepters, amulets to wear for mystic protection, or into flat large discs with a hole in the center whose purpose still is a mystery.

Finally the Chinese decided that jade was a passport to immortality. They made body-shaped burial suits of jade squares, sewn together with gold—some squares are on exhibit—which they thought would keep the body from decay and give eternal life. As more centuries passed, jade became like gold—rare, precious and valuable for its own sake. One T'ang gentleman, about 800 years after Christ, took an uncut block of it into his tomb.

Jade was made into screens, vases, dishes and perfume holders for imperial palaces. The show overflows with such items, many lent from collections in San Francisco, Toronto, Chicago, Minneapolis, Stockholm—an international list of museums and individuals.

Among the most appealing objects are jade animals, some tiny but a few large and bulky—buffalo and horses carved from jade blocks up to 17 inches long.

However, this exhibition holds just about everything that can be made of jade. Belts and water pots, a royal hat stand, modern jewelry and 18th Century "mountains"—jade lumps carved into craggy mountainsides—cups and vases and a jade book.

The exhibition, assembled by the Oriental Ceramic Society, runs through June 22.

Workshops To Begin June 23

Two 2-week college credit workshops will be offered in Greenville by the Division of Continuing Education of East Carolina University. The Metric Workshop carries three quarter hours of credit and will meet from June 23 to July 1, 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4:30 p.m. each day. The Energy Workshop carries three quarter hours of credit and will meet from June 30 to July 11, 8:40-10:20 a.m. and 1:00-2:40 p.m. each day. Tuition is free for any public school teacher, supervisor, or administrator with at least a class "A" teaching certificate under contract for the 1975-76 school year.

For pre-registration or further information you may contact the Division of Continuing Education, Box 2727, East Carolina University, Greenville, North Carolina 27834, or telephone: Greenville 758-6109.

Rapid Rise To Fashion Fame

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Last fall, Margaux Hemingway, 19-year-old hot-dog skiffier from Ketchum, Idaho, was casting about, looking for something to do.

Today, Margaux is the latest pretty face peering out of just about every major fashion magazine in the country. She just signed a million-dollar advertising contract with Fabergé, getting more money than the likes of long-established model Lauren Hutton of Revlon.

It's been quite a transformation: from drifting drop-out—killing time as an au pair girl for actor George C. Scott and "go-fer" for stuntman Evel Knievel at Snake River Canyon—to millionaire perfume pusher. It was accomplished with some luck, public relations and the fortuitous appearance of a hot, new personality with a famous last name.

The granddaughter of novelist Ernest Hemingway and daughter of an Idaho conservationist, Margaux is ingenious and corn-fed pretty. She's almost 6 feet tall, has blondish hair, ice-green eyes, a snub nose, dimples and a generous mouth that in motion shows more gums than teeth. Margaux is giddy from the excitement of these last months.

How did it all happen? "I'm just a country kid with style, honesty and good timing," says Margaux.

But her rapid rise to celebrity model status would probably still be earthbound if it weren't for a story book romance with Errol Watson, New York gadabout and king of his own hamburger empire.

Watson, in his early 30s, first met Margaux in the Palm Court of the Plaza Hotel here and took her to a party in September attended by models, photographers and agents. Suddenly, everyone was asking: "Who is that girl?" And suddenly that girl was rising out of the sea on the cover of Town and Country magazine. And in its pages languishing around her grandfather's haunts in Key West. And grinning wickedly from the cover of Vogue, photographed by camera geniuses such as Richard Avedon and Francesco Scavullo.

At a recent Fabergé press conference, sipping her birth date vintage Chateau Margaux 1955 wine, Margaux said: "It's like magic, like angel dust sprinkling all over me. I'm not a model, I'm an athlete. I just freaked everybody out. It's all unbelievable, like a movie. I'm having the best time. It's a groovy happening. Like everyday is a tornado. It's unbelievable."

There are more modeling assignments in Europe and of course, movie contracts in the offing, but Margaux said she wants to be "really together" before she sings or acts.

"You really have to watch out 'cause your values can get all mixed up," Margaux said. "You have to stay real 'cause it's unbelievable."

Medical Care Need Stressed

DURHAM—To deny adequate medical care to the elderly is a "travesty of our American way," says Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, chancellor of East Carolina University.

The increasing need for medical care is "one of the well-known facts of life facing the elderly in our state and nation," Jenkins told a combined meeting of Sertoma Clubs here Tuesday.

"In the ten years of debate over the East Carolina University Medical School the demand for physicians has increased dramatically."

"In the same ten years the ratio of physicians to population has worsened in 60 of our 100 counties, and the ratio of family physicians to population is worse in 32 of our 100 counties."

Folklore Ballet For Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The formation of a Municipal Folklore Ballet has been approved by authorities of the Argentine capital.

The ballet company will consist of two troupes, one performing in Buenos Aires and the other touring abroad and through the Argentine provinces to present typical dances while a narrator relates them to the country's history and population.

Take a look at all four hands in this diagram, and then decide whether you would rather play or defend three no trump after the lead of the three of clubs.

Suppose you elect to play. East wins the first trick with the ace of clubs and realizes that the club suit offers little future, for the lead marks West with no more than five clubs. The only suit that offers any prospect of a substantial number of tricks is spades, so let us presume that East shifts to the five of spades! You win the trick with your nine.

Things are not looking too good for you right at this moment. It would seem that you have to develop tricks in diamonds, but there is no way you can do that without letting West gain the lead. (Naturally, if you start by leading a low diamond toward dummy, West will split his honors.) When West gets in with the third round of diamonds, he returns his remaining spade and the defenders come to three spade tricks, a diamond and the ace of clubs for a one trick set. You have been beaten by very fine defense on the part of East, and he was suitably rewarded.

Well then, you say, you'll choose to defend three no trump. Very well. You win the first trick with the ace of clubs and shift to the five of spades, and declarer wins the nine of spades in his hand. Only this time he cashes the king and queen of clubs, discarding two diamonds from dummy.

The second club causes you some discarding problems. You can't let go of a heart, for that would give declarer four heart tricks. Neither can you part with a spade, for declarer will simply play a spade and eventually set up his fourth spade for his game-going trick. Therefore, you have to part with a diamond, but that doesn't help you either. Declarer cashes the ace and king of diamonds and his three high hearts, then throws you in with the fourth heart. You are forced to concede the ninth trick to the king of spades.

So you want to declare after all? Well, suppose East wins the ace of clubs and shifts to a heart! Let us know if you find a way for South to make the hand.

Country Music Goes Big Time

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—At one time country music had its own unique sound that appealed to one limited audience but appalled those outside it.

That was before television took it into nearly every living room in America. Much of that identity was lost in the homogenizing which followed.

The latest trend is crossovers—songs that make the country charts while also getting on the pop or the middle-of-the-road listings. In fact, a song stands a poor chance of reaching the top spot on one chart without at least appearing on another.

Typical is a debate over whether B.J. Thomas' "Hey Won't You Play Another Somebody Done Somebody Wrong Song" is more pop than country, or more country than middle of the road.

There's no identity problem with the old school, performers like Webb Pierce, Hank Snow, Roy Acuff and Lefty Frizzell. Their styles—the slight twang, the slurs and the occasional nasal tones—remain pure while innovations are adopted by others.

Merle Haggard is no newcomer, but he, like others, have given Frizzell credit for shaping their careers.

"Merle's used some things, like the curves and slurs, because he liked the way that I'd sing a song," Frizzell said. "But he's a heck of an entertainer; he can sound like Hank Snow or Marty Robbins and is great in his own style."

One of what Frizzell says are "little tricks" is slurring a note down an octave. "I'm not really a lazy guy," he said, "but I got tired of holding high notes for a long time. Instead of straining, I just let it roll down and it felt good to me."

The rewards came quickly. At 22, Frizzell began a long hit-making string in 1950 with a record in which both sides reached No. 1. The first was "I Love You a Thousand Ways" and the second was a novelty tune, "If You've Got the Money Honey (I've Got the Time)," that he said he had once thrown out the window.

The next year there were four songs all on the Top Ten at the same time. They were: "Always Late," "Mom and Dad Waltz," "I Love You a Thousand Ways" and "Travelin' Blues." Elvis Presley never equaled the feat and neither did the Beatles.

Frizzell's music hasn't changed in the 24 years since. His newer recordings like "I Never Go Around Mirrors" and Haggard's "Life's Like Poetry" may lace the intense edge of his earlier songs. But there's a deeper sound of experience.

Even Whitey Shafer's relatively novel tune, "My House is Your Honky Tonk," has a touch of pathos when Frizzell sings it. "When I sing a song, I want to make it sound like it's the last thing I ever say in my life," he said.

The emotions, not the tricks, are what keeps Frizzell's music unique.

NOTICE OF RE-SALE OF LAND UNDER DEED OF TRUST
North Carolina
Pitt County
WHEREAS, the undersigned Trustee in that certain deed of trust executed by North Side Lumber Company under date of July 22, 1968, and duly of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County in Book V-37 at page 622 foreclosed and offered for sale the land hereinafter described; and whereas within the time allowed by law an advance bid was filed with the Clerk of Superior Court and an order issued directing the Trustee to resell said land upon an opening bid of Thirteen Thousand One Hundred Seventy-Five Dollars.

NOW, THEREFORE, under and by virtue of said order of the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County, and the power of sale contained in said deed of trust, the undersigned Trustee will offer for sale upon said opening bid of Thirteen Thousand One Hundred Seventy-Five Dollars at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, at the door of the Courthouse in Greenville, North Carolina, at twelve o'clock noon, Eastern Daylight Saving Time, on the 13th day of June 1975 the following described property located in the City of Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina, namely:

TRACT NO. 1. All of those parcels of land which together are well known as the Mill Site of the North Side Lumber Company, containing a parcel of 3.72 acres conveyed to North Side Lumber Company by deed of W. K. Smith et al. which said deed is duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County in Book 0-17 at page 161; and all of Lots No. 80, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 58, 57, 56, 55, 54, and 53 located to the west of the S. I. Dudley home place which is duly of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County in Map Book 3 at page 30, saving and excepting so much of said lots as was conveyed to the North Side Lumber Company by deed of S. I. Dudley, et al. and F. M. Wooten, Trustees, dated December 5, 1940, and which said deed is duly of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County in Book T-23 at page 223, and to all of which deeds and map reference is hereby made for a more perfect description.

TRACT NO. 2. These certain lots or parcels of land known and described as Lots No. 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 42, 43, 44, 45, and 46 according to the map of the S. I. Dudley home place which is duly of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County in Map Book 3 at page 30, saving and excepting so much of said lots as was conveyed by deed of North Side Lumber Company to Kathryn Ward VanNorwick by deed dated the 1st day of October, 1952, which said deed is likewise duly of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County in Book F-36 at page 15, to which deed reference is hereby directed for a more perfect description.

TRACT NO. 3. That certain lot or parcel of land situated, lying and being in the City of Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina, on the north side of West Fifth Street and being the identical property conveyed to North Side Lumber Company as the second parcel in that certain deed from Bessie A. Jones which deed is dated May 20, 1966, and is duly of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County in Book F-36 at page 15, to which deed reference is hereby directed for a more perfect description.

But this sale will be made subject to the liens of three certain other deeds of trust, executed by North Side Lumber Company to W. W. Speight, Trustee for Home Savings and Loan Association as follows:

(a) Deed of Trust of record in Book K-39, page 171.
(b) Deed of Trust of record in Book C-42, page 362.
(c) Deed of Trust of record in Book C-42, page 364.

And provided that the undersigned Trustee will offer the third parcel hereinafter described for sale free and clear of the liens secured by said deeds of trust and will sell said parcel either subject to or free and clear of the said liens in such manner as to develop the larger amount of money for application to the debt secured by this deed of trust.

But this sale will also be made subject to all outstanding and unpaid taxes and municipal assessments, including those to be levied or assessed as of January 1, 1975.

The successful bidder or bidders will be required to deposit the statutory portion of the bid, pending confirmation of the sale or sales by the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County, North Carolina.

This 28th day of May, 1975.
