

$17.5 Million County Budget Shaping Up

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County Commissioners held another budget study session yesterday—reviewing, item-by-item, proposed expenditures for the 1975-1976 fiscal year, and hearing an appeal by the Greenville City Board of Education for more funds, particularly in the area of capital outlay appropriations.

County Manager Reginald Gray indicated yesterday that the final budget for the coming fiscal year may be a little less than the $17.5 million recommended to the Board of Commissioners—and much less than the $21.35 million initially requested by the various agencies funded by the county. A $17.5 million county budget, Gray pointed out, would be a 2.99 per cent increase over the $17 million budget the county has operated under during the current fiscal year. And the final figure will be funded without an increase in the tax rate—something the commissioners have indicated a strong desire to achieve.

The current tax rate is 62½ cents per $100 valuation, with an additional levy of 15 cents per hundred for Pitt school district current expenses (paid by all property owners outside the Greenville city school district) and a 15-cents per $100 valuation levy for current expenses for city school district property owners.

Members of the city Board of Education met with commissioners during their budget session to request additional funds for the city system.

School board member James Bearden—prefacing his remarks with the statement "my opinions are my own"—told the commissioners the public has been led down "the primrose path" with hopes for a new junior high school for the city.

"We have been delayed" on the project through land acquisition difficulties in the past, Bearden said. Now, the project faces a shortage of capital outlay funds, he emphasized. "It frustrates me...I don't see anything on the horizon. This is the situation we are at today," he said.

The junior high school project was established as the first priority of the city school board in 1971, Bearden explained, adding that now, the board still is short of funds to complete construction of the entire building.

"Try to give us a couple of hundred thousand more," Bearden asked. "We need $590,000."

Gray told the school board that to give them the capital outlay funds they requested to complete the junior high school project would require an increase in the tax rate of about a third.

The county manager told the two boards that the current budget recommendations before commissioners for the Greenville school system (a total of county-wide and special district levies) of $1.63 million for 1975-1976 represents a 14.19 per cent increase over the schools' total budget for the 1974-1975 fiscal year.

"Education is getting the lion's share of increases" recommended in the proposed budget Gray said—comparing the city schools' 14.19 per cent increase to the total budget's three per cent

The three-member Pitt Board of Elections, including two incumbents and one new member, was sworn in Tuesday in ceremonies at the courthouse. H.L. Lewis, Clerk of Superior Court, administered oaths of office to incumbent Republican members James C. Lanier Jr. and Thomas C. Herndon and newly appointed Democratic member Clifton W. Everett Jr. Both Lanier and Everett are Greenville attorneys while Herndon is a professor in the History Department at East Carolina University.

Everett was appointed by the State Board of Elections earlier this month to succeed J.B. Spilman Jr. who requested that he not be reappointed due to business commitments.

All three members will serve two-year terms which expire in June of 1977.

The new board, meeting following the swearing-in ceremony, reelected Lanier as chairman for the upcoming term and Herndon as secretary. Miss Margaret Register was reappointed as the board's executive secretary.

During the brief business meeting, board members discussed preliminary plans for the upcoming municipal election in October.

The board will meet Aug. 5 to appoint precinct registrars and judges from the list of nominees furnished by each county party chairman.

Pitt Hospital Board Shocked By Non-Accreditation Decision

THE NEW HOSPITAL... Progress as of June 10 is recorded in this aerial photograph of the new hospital site. There are seven acres of roof on the structure, Construction Manager Ralph Hall said. (Photo by Powell of Greenville)

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt Memorial Hospital Trustees were told last night that the administration has been notified by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals that Pitt Memorial has received a decision of non-accreditation from the Commission's Board, based on recommendations of a survey team which was here March 17 and 18.

Administrator Jack Richardson said this decision was a shock because the team had in no way indicated disapproval.

Several of the recommendations dealt with environmental services and the physical condition of the existing Pitt Memorial, Richardson said. Some 21 dealt with meeting new fire safety code requirements, which will be met when the new hospital is in use. Eight had to do with governing body bylaws and 28 with revisions of medical staff bylaws. Current negotiations between the hospital and the ECU School of Medicine have delayed these modifications until some of the interrelationships between the two institutions could be clarified. Some 21 had to do with documentation of activity now taking place in the hospital for which there is no written record. "Yet, all they said when they were here is that we were doing things we were not giving ourselves credit for," he said.

Dr. Eric Fearington, Chief of Staff, who has been working on answers to the allegations, along with the administrator and Trustees chairman W.R. Duke, said, "These people don't care a thing about how we treat our patients. We could kill every one that comes in just as long as we document it correctly. But we have to go through all this to get the federal nickel."

Medicare and Medicaid payment hinge on HEW approval, which delegates its survey responsibilities to JARC, as long as the hospital meets standards.

Richardson said JARC is an internal accrediting agency and that "we will do all in our power to cooperate and meet their standards for the welfare of our patients."

Richardson, Dr. Fearington, and Duke have an appointment with the Commission in Chicago Thursday afternoon to exchange information and further clarify the findings pertinent to the decision of the committee.

They said they are confident of working out workable arrangements. They are taking along an aerial photograph of the new hospital as proof that the existing building soon will be vacated.

Hospital Status Said No Problem

"I don't feel that this represents any particular problem for the hospital for the medical school, in view of the current situation that the hospital finds itself in," Dr. Ed Monroe, vice-chancellor for Health Affairs at East Carolina University said this morning as he commented on the possible loss of accreditation for Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The "situation" the hospital finds itself in, according to Monroe, involves "an overcrowded, outdated facility, being surveyed with a new comprehensive hospital under construction."

Monroe said "once this situation is understood clearly by the accrediting authorities, I firmly believe that their preliminary decision (to withdraw accreditation) based on only partial understanding by a site visitor, will be changed."

"Meanwhile," the ECU official said, "it is my understanding that officially the hospital is still accredited until the necessary discussion and understanding have occurred and a final decision by the accrediting body is reached." According to Monroe, "We at the university and at the medical school will do all within our power to assist the hospital through this present situation and have no doubt that the matter will be clarified very quickly."

worked long hours to reach the goal. The Senate has been working at a more leisurely pace, although it has also increased its meeting hours.

Sen. Ralph Scott, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said adjournment is more likely to come next Tuesday.

But House Speaker James C. Green, D-Bladen, said the House may recess Friday and wait until the Senate is ready to leave before returning to Raleigh to finish up.

The only substantive agreement reached Tuesday concerned the Department of Transportation budget. The conferees agreed to halve the $2.8 million allocated by the Senate for a ferry in Hyde County.

But they adjourned before getting to the departments which are expected to cause problems—corrections, higher education, and the public schools.

The House made much sharper cuts than the Senate in the public school budget, leading to protests by Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips.

The Senate proposed a $4.6

million tuition hike for state university system students that the House did not favor.

The prisons budget situation may be influenced by the recent violent outbreak at the Correctional Center for Women. The conferees' work was delayed Tuesday because the legislators wanted more detailed information from the state budget office about the differences between the two budget bills.

By the time it was provided, in a blizzard of paper, the senators decided they had had enough and the committee adjourned.

In addition to the budget hearing, agenda items include: consideration of a Transit Development Program application; consideration of two applications for taxicab operator's permits;

Consideration of HUD Form 6213 for the sale of parcels in the Central Business District to the Parking Authority for the development of parking facilities; consideration of a contract with Greenville City Schools concerning insurance on the Eppes property; and

Adoption of a resolution declaring certain equipment and vehicles surplus to the city's needs and authorizing sale of the equipment to the highest bidder.

Will the new lights at Ficklen Stadium affect the electric bills of the people in Pitt County? J. W.

Executed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The young Saudi Arabian prince found guilty of assassinating King Faisal was publicly executed today, Saudi state radio reported.

A brief radio announcement said Prince Faisal Ibn Musaed a nephew of the slain king, was put to death in front of the government palace, which faces the main city square of Riyadh.

There was no indication whether the convicted assassin was beheaded with a sword or shot in the back by a sole executioner. Both methods have been used in recent years. Earlier announcements had said he would be beheaded after pre-dusk prayers.

The broadcast also reiterated an announcement that Prince Faisal was found guilty by a Sharia, or religious, court, and the death sentence was approved by King Khaled, Faisal's successor.

Responsibility Essential For Effective Children's Drama

By MARIAN BAILEY
Reflector Staff Writer

"The one thing I would like to stress to everyone I come in contact with is a serious approach to drama," said Dorothy Heathcote Monday afternoon at Wahl-Coates Laboratory School. Mrs. Heathcote, professor of drama at the University of Newcastle upon Tyne, England, conducted a workshop for the Greenville City Schools in Creative Dramatics Monday and Tuesday.

She was born and raised in England and studied at the Northern Theatre School as a young woman. Mrs. Heathcote has since pursued a career in the educational aspects of drama and has devoted a great amount of her teaching to children's theatre. She has worked with various types of children, from ages four and a half to 18 years and an ability range from subnormal mentally handicapped, blind, deaf, crippled on through university entrants, nurses and priests.

When asked what type of children proved to be most difficult to reach she answered, "I think that the children who proved to be most difficult were ones not used to responsibility. Physical handicaps can be overcome but responsibility is essential to effective drama."

The two-day workshop, which is one of many Mrs. Heathcote has conducted featured lectures to teachers and teaching demonstrations utilizing children of various ages in the classroom to exemplify the different approaches to creative dramatics. "If you want to teach drama, you have to find out the student's implication because drama is about implication before it is about anything else," she said. She also admitted that pressure to learn is missing from her teaching technique.

MRS. DOROTHY HEATHCOTE

In her classroom demonstrations she leads these children in a variety of improvisational exercises in the demonstrations, producing a feedback between herself and the seemingly spell bound children. She ways one of the most difficult things she has had to overcome in her teaching career was to learn to think clearly, and to produce crystal concepts. Mrs. Heathcote says that since her 24 years of teaching began she has become more aware of what she is as a person. "I have had 24 years of tremendous privilege in teaching," she said with a smile. "But as you know, a teacher goes on developing. A teacher doesn't sit still, he either goes ahead or gets behind. One must constantly be struggling to stay ahead."

Mother Has Opinions Concerning In-Laws

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My brother and his wife, who had been married 10 years and have four children, got a divorce by mutual agreement.

The wife remarried a month later, and my brother got married in two months. Both married divorced persons. My mother has seven children and 33 grandchildren, and nothing like this has ever happened in her family. She is heartbroken. Now that they both have remarried she does not want to meet the new spouses. She says that it may be legal as far as the state goes, but not with her!

She still considers her first daughter-in-law her son's only wife—divorce or no divorce. And she wants the first wife to visit as always with her children, but without her new husband. She says she won't have her son and his new wife sleeping together in her house (they all live out of state) and the same goes for the first daughter-in-law and her husband.

In other words, she doesn't recognize their divorce and remarriage. "Visit me," she says, "but do your sleeping with your new spouses elsewhere."

What do you say, Abby?

SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Your mother has a right to her own opinions, but whether she wants to recognize the second marriages or not, they are still valid, according to civil law.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are supposedly mature adults in our 40s. We have been married five years. At least five nights a week, his mother telephones when we are eating our evening meal (always between 5:30 and 6). She asks my husband what he's doing, and he says, "Just messing around." So I sit and eat alone while he makes small talk with his mother and sometimes his father, too. Last night his whole dinner got cold because he was on the phone, and I really exploded.

Abby, his parents don't go anywhere in the evening, and they could just as well call an hour later. Or he could say he's having dinner and call them back when he's finished. I would appreciate your opinion on this matter.

NO NAME PLEASE

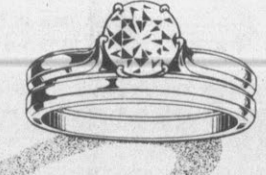

DEAR NO NAME: It would be a small matter for your husband to ask his parents to call after 6. And if he doesn't, why don't you?

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Women's Rights Group Has Identity Crisis

By MICHAEL ROSENBAUM
CHICAGO (UPI) — Jill's father was Mr. Smith, but he died and her mother married Mr. Jones. Mr. Jones adopted Jill, but he later divorced Jill's mother. Jill eventually married Mr. Johnson but they, too, are now divorced.

What is Jill's last name? According to attorney Priscilla MacDougall, Jill can choose any or none of those names as her own. The only problem she might have is in getting the name recognized for credit purposes or by state agencies.

Ms. MacDougall, a graduate of the University of Michigan Law School and a former assistant attorney general for Wisconsin, now directs the legal activities of the Center for a Woman's Own Name in Barrington, Ill., 35 miles northwest of Chicago's Loop.

As the name suggests, the group is involved in obtaining recognition of a woman's right to choose her own name. With volunteers in 50 states and nine foreign countries, the center offers a booklet and counseling for women wanting to retain their own names.

Booklet sales and contributions barely support the three-person office in Barrington. Last year the nonprofit group operation on a budget of about $23,000.

The center has become involved in several court suits. And that involvement is developing into a new area of case law.

Ms. MacDougall said common law has permitted persons to assume any name, as long as the name is not used for fraudulent purposes. Only one state, Hawaii, requires that a woman adopt her husband's name.

"Nicknames are the perfect example of how the common law operates," she said. Terri Tepper, founder and president of the organization, said the group is not attempting to convince women that they should keep their maiden names.

"For women who take their husband's name, we consider that this is her name," she said.

But many women who do not use their husbands' names are finding an identity crisis in state agencies.

"The problem is getting it recognized, and if you can't get your name recognized by the agency, you're in trouble," she said.

In Virginia, a woman must get a court decree in order to use her maiden name on a driver's license. And in Alabama, she must pay a fee if she wants to continue to use her maiden name.

Ms. MacDougall said the problem exists in credit, voter registration, driving and professional work.

"If the state cannot force you to change your name at marriage, then it cannot deny you the right to use your own name for anything else," she said.

Ms. MacDougall said name changes require a judge's approval in almost all cases, including adoption. Many judges believe they should have discretion in ruling on the name change requests, while the center maintains changes should be automatic.

Ms. MacDougall added that the problem is not confined to women. Many men who wish to change their Americanized names back to the names of their Old World ancestors are finding judges reluctant to approve their requests.

The failure of state agencies to recognize chosen names or approve name changes can be exasperating and costly.

An art teacher in Milwaukee, Wis., Kathleen Harney had never adopted her husband's surname of Kruzel. But the school board informed her she could not be paid or receive group insurance unless she became known as Mrs. Kruzel. Ms. MacDougall and the center took her case and the Wisconsin Supreme Court ruled in March that the teacher is legally Kathleen Harney.

Just prior to the 1972 elections, the Maryland Court of Appeals ruled that a woman who had not adopted her husband's name could register to vote under her maiden name, placing a disenfranchised voter back on the rolls.

Even attorneys can have problems with name changes. Judith Montage, a Clayton, Mo., lawyer who represents many women in name change actions, is not listed in the state's bar register. She is married to a man named Natale and has been unable to get a name change approved either for herself or on her license. Her request is pending before the Missouri Court of Appeals.

Montage is not her maiden name, by the way. She had one father and two stepfathers before she married and chose the name Montage as an informal combination of her other four names.

Ethics Act Will Take Effect

After Dec. 1 members of the General Assembly will be subject to the legislative ethics act which was approved by this session of the Legislature. The act prohibits legislators from accepting money or favors which will affect their activities. It also requires legislators and members of their immediate families to disclose business associations, property, creditors, employers or clients which might influence their actions as members of the General Assembly.

Under the act, legislators must file public statements of their interests. If they don't, they can be removed from the ballot or prohibited from performing duties of office if they are elected.

A joint House-Senate bi-partisan Legislative Ethics Committee was created and it will have the power to prepare a list of ethical principals and guidelines for legislators to follow. The committee can take action on violations, advise committees on conflict-of-interest areas and suggest activities which legislators should avoid. The act doesn't cure all the ethical problems which can come up for members of the Legislature, but it is a start. A key to making it all work will be the Legislative Ethics Committee. We hope members of the very highest calibre will be appointed to this committee. Not only must they set the guidelines for fellow legislators to follow but they must set the examples in their own conduct which will establish high principals for the legislators.

It is too bad that the ethics act wasn't made to apply to other elective offices, but hopefully this will be done in the future by the General Assembly.

There is a strong public concern about ethics among our political leaders now. The General Assembly has taken a step toward allaying this concern. Time and future actions will tell how effective the ethics act is to be.

THIS AFTERNOON

May Set New Trend

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—One of the major publications of a state department is fighting economic hard times by starting a new policy: charging a subscription rate. "People," a magazine published four times yearly by the Department of Human Resources, will cost $2 yearly, with the hope that the publication can be kept alive. The action could well set a trend for other state departments which publish magazines or newsletters. Several of them are in financial trouble as budget trimming is required. "Our choice was to cut back on employees, or charge a subscription rate. . . otherwise there was no way to continue publication," says Frank Thompson, public information director of the Department of Human Resources. The various state publications are as different as the programs conducted by the departments which put them out. Different Aims The Agriculture Department prints a newspaper filled with want ads and news items; both the Community Colleges Department and the public school operation put out magazines filled with pictures, feature stories, and new items. The Labor Department prints and distributes a newsletter reporting on program activities and statistics; the Department of Corrections has a publication largely devoted to newsy items or interest to employees. Audiences vary, depending on content, from general readership to limited, internal distribution. Most publications, to some degree or another, are used to promote a positive image for the department, and some devote considerable space to pictures and items concerning agency heads. "People" magazine is aimed at a general audience and is the only publication put out by Human Resources. Mailings to school libraries, hospitals, doctor and dentist offices, and local offices of mental health and health programs. "We use a lot of case histories to illustrate human problems and approaches to working with them, and articles are written in simple, clear language," Thompson said. Note Programs One of the main goals of the publication which appears quarterly is to call attention to programs which might otherwise be overlooked. Human Resources houses 17 divisions with 25,000 employees offering scores of services to people in need. Thompson said response to the subscription effort has been good. "Our own employees are subscribing and a campaign is underway. . . they have a vital interest, and know that without support, there won't be any more 'People,'" he said. All 52 employees of the Division for Children have subscribed, and the Wake County Board of Education approved subscriptions for each of the systems 47 school libraries. Thompson said the magazine has been distributing between 18,000 and 20,000 copies each edition. His aim is to sell a minimum of 10,000 subscriptions for the $20,000 needed to keep the publication alive. Success or failure of the subscription drive will prove interesting to other state agencies facing the same belt tightening as Human Resources.

A Trip With The CIA

WASHINGTON—Most Americans are willing to put up with all the shenanigans of the CIA in the name of national security. As a matter of fact the only item in the Rockefeller Commission's report that seemed to disturb anybody was the one where it was revealed that the CIA had been experimenting with LSD and giving it to unknowing victims. It makes one very nervous now to go to the house of someone who works for the agency. The day after the report came out I dropped over to Blackwhistle's house to see if I could get any more information than had appeared in the commission's findings. Blackwhistle asked me if I would like a cup of coffee. "Yes," I said, "thank you." He poured out the coffee into a mug and said, "One lump of sugar or two?" "I'll take it black," I said nervously. "It's awfully strong," he said. "It's awfully strong," he said. "Let me put one lump in for you." "No! No! I don't want any sugar!" I screamed. "But you always take sugar in your coffee," he said. "I'm trying to lose weight," I replied. "How about a lump of saccharin?" "Please, Blackwhistle. I don't want anything in the coffee." "All right. Would you like a vitamin C tablet?" "What for?" "You might catch a cold sitting next to the air conditioner." "That's all right, I like catching colds." "Have a cookie," Blackwhistle said. "I just made them." "You just made cookies?" "Of course, everybody at the agency learns to bake. It's part of our training." He showed me a book, "The Joy of CIA Cooking." I was about to open it when he grabbed it from me and said, "I'm sorry, it's classified."

State Books' Subject

By Dr. H. G. Jones
Written for the AP
CHAPEL HILL (AP) — By the time the French novelist Jules Verne died in 1905, his hundred or so books had made his name familiar to millions around the world.

Among the most widely known titles were "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Sea" and "The Tour of the World in Eighty Days," both of which provided stories for hair-raising motion pictures.

Verne's mastery of imagination enabled him to speculate about things to come. He wrote of automobiles, airplanes, submarines, and awful weapons long before they were perfected. Thus one can read Verne's books today without sensing their impact upon reader nearly a century ago.

Among the readers of Verne's works—were many North Carolinians. Even his most avid fans must have been surprised, however, when two volumes appeared which told of strange happenings in North Carolina.

In 1896 Verne's first book with a North Carolina setting appeared, titled "Facing the Flag." The scene opened at Healthful House, a nationally-known hospital at New Bern for the mentally disturbed. Its most noted patient, one Thomas Roch, received a visitor who styled himself Count d'Artigas. Little was thought of the visit until the following night when Roch and his attendant disappeared, kidnap victims of confederates of the mysterious count.

The patient's disappearance set off a national alarm, and the governor attempted to seal off New Bern to prevent his escape.

Thomas Roch was no ordinary patient. He had been incarcerated at Healthful House on orders from the United States government, for he carried in his head the formula for a devastating new weapon. A Frenchman by birth, he had attempted to sell his secret to the major nations, but because he demanded a billion dollars prior to its testing, they all turned him down. The

Short War Strategy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
ON THE DMZ WESTERN FRONT, South Korea — To deter or defeat a Communist attack from North Korea, a strategy has been devised avoiding the horrors of Vietnam—a war of attrition and heavy U.S. casualties — but briefly requiring massive U.S. airpower. Communist forces heading down western invasion routes for Seoul would be hit by nearly a thousand daily air sorties, including devastating B-52 raids, using the most sophisticated non-nuclear technology. Infantry would then clean up decimated North Korean forces, but with American troops in reserve and not heavily engaged. The goal: a short, violent war lasting little more than a week with few American casualties — the only kind of foreign war the U.S. people or Congress are willing to support. But in the wake of the Indochina debacle, senior South Korean generals are privately skeptical the U.S. will support even this and fear an American pullout inviting a Communist attack quite likely to succeed. That, in turn, would end all remaining U.S. influence in East Asia, with ominous implications for Japan and the world. North Korean dictator Kim

Il Sung has been massing troops along the demilitarized zone (DMZ) for three years. Since the 1953 armistice brought the DMZ well below the 38th Parallel in the west only 25 miles from Seoul ("a bayonet pointed at the heart," says one American general), Kim's strategy was obvious: capture the capital in a lightning strike, then call for a ceasefire and interminable negotiations that would insensibly destroy South Korea independence. Communist plans progressed the past year with fantastic infiltration tunnels under the DMZ, Frog missiles that can hit Seoul and Y-shaped, reinforced concrete artillery bunkers. What's more, Communist plans meshed with strategy long imposed on protesting ROK (Republic of Korea) officers by U.S. generals: keep troops away from the DMZ and fall back on Seoul when the Communists strike. This would insure the loss of Seoul and probably the war, as was clear to Lt. Gen. James F. Hollingsworth, a wiry, profane Texan wearing a pearl-handled pistol who arrived here in December 1973. An inspirational leader and innovative strategist in an age of managerial generals, Hollingsworth immediately ordered a new strategy bringing allied troops right up to the DMZ. President Chung Hee Park enthusiastically agreed. These are troops of the 1st Corps Group — mixed ROK and U.S. (but overwhelmingly ROK), commanded by Hollingsworth and covering the western front. Its three army corps and 11 divisions (one U.S., 10 ROK), comprising the world's largest single troop command, are dug in behind reinforced concrete near the DMZ. But the heart of Hollingsworth's strategy is firepower, not manpower. Once the invading Communists come through the mountain passes, Hollingsworth plans a murderous torrent of fire to destroy them in the DMZ. But outgunned ROK troops under his command are supported by only 78 battalions of artillery, compared to 130 battalions normally for an equivalent number of U.S. troops — a telling indictment of U.S. military aid here over 22 years. There is only one substitute for artillery: massive U.S. airpower, including B-52s that terrified enemy ground troops in Indochina. Directing operations at An Loc in 1972 without any artillery, Hollingsworth used B-52s to destroy five North Vietnamese divisions. In Korea, his plans call for five days to immobilize the enemy and another four days for infantry mop-up—a nine-day war. But the U.S. 2nd Division, the last American infantry in Korea, would be pulled from the front line to a reserve position once the warning of invasion came. As we travelled the western DMZ in a helicopter, Hollingsworth's plan looked feasible. There is no triple-canopy jungle as in Vietnam to shield fearsome Soviet 130-mm. artillery. Allied air control would doom tanks on single-lane mountain roads. Laser technology can destroy artillery in Y-shaped bunkers. Yet, in private, ROK generals seem skeptical. Their collective memory is of wholly unexpected assaults by North Korea in 1950 (capturing Seoul in two days) and by Communist China in 1951. U.S. generals are confident, however, of at least 48-hours advance warning and up to six days. Indeed, the true fear by the ROK military seems spawned by Vietnam: will the President of the United States really commit his forces here? Will he do it in time? The hard truth is that U.S. help is absolutely imperative. Besides being outnumbered 3 to 1 in aircraft, the South Koreans lack both communications equipment and experienced officers for coordinating land-air operations. Moreover, the 2nd division, though in a reserve role with its ranks fleshed out by 1,500 Katusas (South Korean army fillers), is vital psychologically. Its withdrawal would be a signal for both North and South Korea. Marshall Kim Il Sung could seize as the opportune moment to strike either signs of U.S. military withdrawal or widespread political disturbances in the south. But President Park's stern measures to prevent disturbances provide ammunition for Americans who want military withdrawal from Asia. Consequently, the (Continued on page 5)

Public Forum

To the editor: In speaking of a "political espionage system" being operated against Senator Robert Morgan last year, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten recently made four extremely important observations. As lifted from his news release, these observations are as follows: 1. . . a complete disregard for the principles upon which this nation was founded. 2. . . the most stupid, unlawful, ridiculous, petty things that grown men could dream of doing. 3. . . not blaming (the governor) or anybody over in his office for these activities, but everybody is supposed to know what people are doing around them. 4. Making public . . . the 50 page report to show how you do not run good government." Mr. Edmisten is to be applauded for making these essential points. At the same time, he must be reminded that all of them apply equally as much to the operation of his own office. They have special significance in connection with the SBI assault on the medical profession. Earlier recognition and application of these principles could have prevented a situation which can now very clearly be seen as a disaster to the public welfare. Even now they could become the basis for relieving some of the damage already done. M. Elizabeth Hawkins

40 Years Ago Today

June 18, 1935 The local delegation of the Eastern Carolina Association went to Washington yesterday to appear before the Rivers and Harbors Board today and are scheduled to confer with Senators Bailey and Reynolds and Congressman Lindsay this morning before the Board meeting. The delegation will ask at the hearing for the Tar River to be deepened so as to open it to navigation. A great batch of information was expected to be presented to the board. B.T. Clark, local weather observer, said today was the hottest day of the year. The temperature stood at 98. Greenville has been parched under a hot sun for three days and relief came with a cooling breeze last night. The breeze was accompanied by clouds which failed to give off rain. —James Kyle

Court Decision May Save Money

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're planning to buy a house, write a will, get a divorce or open a small business, you may save money on legal fees because of a new Supreme Court decision. The court ruled 8 to 0 on Monday that state and local bar associations may not establish minimum fee schedules that are enforced with the threat of discipline against lawyers who charge less. "What does this mean for the consumer? Lower prices and more competition," said Alan B. Morrison, the attorney for the Virginia husband and wife who brought the suit challenging the Fairfax County Bar Association's minimum fee schedule. "It means the consumer is going to be able to bargain with the lawyer for what the lawyer charges him," said Deputy Assistant Atty. Gen. Bruce B. Wilson. The court decision appears to be the final blow ending the legal profession's 179-year-old system of setting the minimum fees that lawyers may charge for their services. The system began to erode after Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Goldfarb took their case to court and the Justice Department filed a similar suit against the Oregon State Bar. Minimum fee schedules at one time were in effect in 34 states, but the American Bar Association now says the number has dwindled to about 20. The ABA recently backed away from its past support for the system. At its strongest, the system threatened censure for lawyers who undercut the fee schedule on the theory that to charge less was a violation of professional ethics and would encourage shoddy legal work at cutrate prices. The system was most effective in enforcing minimum rates for the legal work required to buy a house and settle an estate, the occasions when consumers most often need an attorney, Wilson said in an interview. Most state systems established a probate fee averaging 5 per cent of the estate, he said. The fee for a real estate title search and other settlement costs involved in buying a house was about 1 per cent in Fairfax County, but varied nationally. Bar associations in northern Virginia abandoned the fee schedules after the Goldfarbs won a lower court decision. Morrison said homebuyers' closing costs have dropped by one-third since then. The fee schedule adopted by the Massachusetts bar in 1972 provides examples of the charges established for other services; uncontested divorce, $300; organizing a corporation, $300; representing a client against a misdemeanor charge, $100; defending a client charged with a felony, $1,000; filing a suit for damages from an auto accident, one-third of the amount awarded. An ABA poll, taken a year ago, indicated that minimum fee schedules were enforced in these states: Alabama, Colorado, Delaware, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia and Wyoming. However, officials in Maine, Colorado, Rhode Island, Louisiana and Oklahoma said then that they were considering abolishing the system.

Strength For Today

PAINT YOUR OWN HOUSE
In a charming suburb of a mid-western city there is a bleak, dilapidated house set amongst a group of well-tended dwellings. There are great bare patches on the side of the house where the paint has peeled off. Newcomers to the neighborhood are amazed to learn that the owner of the house is in the business of selling paint. He has been doing so for years, yet no house within a radius of five miles needs paint as badly as his does. This situation reminds one of the old story of the shoemaker's children who went without shoes. Both stories have an important moral. They point to people who are always anxious to counsel others about moral and spiritual matters and then pay scant attention to these things in their own lives. Paint your own house first. Don't try to sell paint to others while your own house is an eyesore in the neighborhood. By Elisha Douglass

Wallace Would Turn To 'Punishment'

By LES SEAGO
Associated Press Writer
MEMPHIS (AP)—America's "gutsy middle class" is tired of the leaders and policies which have led to higher taxes, inflation and rising crime, Alabama Gov. George Wallace has said.

"Some day—and I think that day may not be too far in the future—we're going to have some people in Washington they understand," Wallace told the National Sheriffs Association Tuesday night.

The Alabama Democrat was on his way to Washington to speak to a businessmen's organization today when he spoke to more than 1,200 sheriffs and other local law enforcement officers.

Afterward, he refused to say whether he intends to announce his candidacy in the 1976 presidential election.

"Let 1976 take care of itself because we've got enough problems right here in 1975," Wallace said.

Wallace returned again and again to a law and order theme during his unprepared remarks. "We've tried rehabilitation...we've tried education...let's try punishing some people," Wallace said. "At least they can't be any worse."

Wallace attacked the New York Times, liberals, federal bureaucrats who write guidelines and the judicial system, which he said is more concerned with the rights of criminals than their victims.

"Let's try the electric chair again," the Alabama governor declared. "I'm as compassionate as the next person but I have compassion for the victim."

"There are some folks who cannot be rehabilitated...we're going to have to build some more penitentiaries in this nation...when that time comes, I believe it might have some deterrent effect on crime."

Wallace also touched briefly on foreign affairs and gun control and drew applause for his remarks on both subjects. He recalled that Indian officials voiced pleasure at the United State's failure to win in Vietnam. Yet, Wallace said, India has asked for American wheat for its starving millions.

Wallace said if he had his way, he would tell India "if you're starving and you want some more wheat, you ask North Vietnam for it."

"I'm tired of countries that we've given money to—countries that spit in our face." On gun control, Wallace said: "If I thought gun control in this country would save a single life...I was shot in a state that had gun control—you're going to wind up disarming the good folks in this country."

Wallace said many of the individuals advocating gun control are the same ones who have been responsible for inflation and rising crime. "Nothing they've ever advocated turned out right," he said.

United States, unwilling to buy a pig-in-a-poke, was also unwilling to chance the sale of the secret to another country.

Roch's secret invention was the "fulgurator," an engine which could hurl itself a great distance and blow "to atoms" anything within a twelve thousand yard radius. No model existed, but it could be constructed with simple materials and a powerful explosive that only Roch knew about.

No wonder that the world was astounded at the escape of the "madman."

After this introduction, Verne allowed the story to be told by Simon Hart, a French engineer who had disguised himself as Roch's attendant and was kidnapped with him. The victims were carried aboard the count's schooner, the Ebba, in the New Bern harbor.

Despite the governor's efforts to blockade Pamlico Sound, the schooner escaped to an island in the Bermudas where all manner of revelations took place. First, Hart discovered that the schooner had been propelled by a submarine attached to its keel—a submarine that had been hijacked during a test run at Charleston.

Second, the kidnapers had discovered a secret tunnel that allowed them to enter a lagoon formed by the crater of an extinct volcano, called Back Cup. Finally, Count d'Artigas revealed his real identity: he was Ker Karraje, the world's most dreaded pirate.

The mad inventor was coddled into believing that he had been mistreated by the world and that only Ker Karraje could pay him the huge sum that he demanded for his secret. Thereupon he proceeded to construct several fulgurators. Hart, realizing that all nations would be at the mercy of the pirates, dropped a message into a keg and hoped that the tide would carry it to the outside world.

His gamble paid off, and not long afterward a British submarine unsuccessfully attempted to rescue him. Hope appeared to be gone, but one day five ships appeared on the horizon. Roch prepared a fulgurator, and upon orders from Karraje, promptly disintegrated one of the warships.

Another ship, however, disregarded the awesome weapon and sailed directly toward the island. As it drew near, Roch caught sight of the flag flying in the breeze: it was the French tricolor. His tortured mind cleared, and he refused to launch the deadly missile.

Suddenly the volcanic crater erupted and Roch, conscience-stricken by the enormity of his invention, detonated his supply of explosives. Only Hart survived to tell the story.

Jules Verne never visited North Carolina, and his descriptions of Raleigh, New Bern, and other localities reflected his research in gazettes. Why he chose the state as the locale for Roch's incarceration may never be known, but a few years later he was to put his imagination to work in North Carolina again, this time in the mountains.

Support Curbs On Malpractice Suits

RALEIGH (AP) — Two bills aimed at preventing malpractice suits against North Carolina doctors have sailed through the state Senate.

The bills, both heavily lobbied by doctors and their insurance companies, go to the state House, where they may be enacted before the 1975 General Assembly adjourns.

One of them lowers the time limit for filing malpractice suits. The deadline in current law is five years after the malpractice becomes evident to the patient. The bill cuts that period to three years after the negligent act by the doctor occurs.

The second bill makes technical changes in the law that should help protect doctors, nurses, and anesthetists from malpractice suits.

One says that a doctor is justified in operating on a patient without getting the patient's consent if, in the opinion of a "reasonable person," the patient should have had the operation in his circumstances.

The second instructs juries to consider the local community standards in determining whether a doctor gave acceptable treatment.

A handful of senators objected that in small towns where there is only one doctor, the physician being sued can be said to set the local standards.

Both bills passed by wide margins, however.

Missionary Duo In City

Elder James Payne and Elder Gary Mendenhall are in Greenville as missionaries for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons). Elder Payne is from Springville, Utah. He graduated from high school in 1973, and, on returning home this fall, will attend Brigham Young University and major in law. Before coming to North Carolina he worked for a construction company in Utah.

Elder Mendenhall comes from Provo, Utah. Before coming to North Carolina he attended Ricks College in Rexburg, Idaho. After his two years of missionary service he plans to once again attend Ricks College to continue studies in dentistry.

The two missionaries are working under the jurisdiction of President Charles M. Alexander, who presides over some 210 missionaries working the boundaries of the North Carolina-Greensboro Mission, with headquarters in Greensboro.

A Mormon chapel is under construction on Martinsborough Rd. Further information is available by calling Elder Payne or Elder Mendenhall at 758-1203.

At the present time there are about 19,000 full time Mormon Missionaries throughout the world who receive no financial support from the church but are maintained by their savings or families during their two years of mission work.

House Democrats Plan Build Up Their Muscle

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Squelching talk of dumping Speaker Carl Albert, some House Democratic freshmen say they instead will present six proposals to him for strengthening the clout of the Democratic Congress.

Rep. Bob Carr, D-Mich., said he got almost no support from 38 members at a closed meeting Tuesday night for his proposal to dump Albert. "That is over for now," he said. Carr said the six-point plan developed by the freshmen and some older Democrats at the meeting is "constructive and good but it doesn't go to the issue." They will present the plan to Albert today.

He had said last week that the issue centers on House Democrats' inability to override President Ford's vetoes under Albert's leadership, despite the fact that they have almost a two-to-one — 289-145 — majority over Republicans.

At the time, the House had failed to override Ford's veto of the strip-mining bill, the third Ford veto that the House has tried unsuccessfully to override.

Other Democrats said after the two-hour meeting Tuesday that Carr's five-minute speech contained the only mention of dumping Albert and said they detected no support for the effort.

"Many of the rest of us said why we felt that, strategically and tactically, was the wrong way to go," said Rep. Timothy E. Wirth, D-Colo.

Wirth and Rep. Paul E. Tsongas, D-Mass., said that although no votes were taken, the Democrats agreed to urge Albert:

—To set up a priority list of Democratic programs for which Democrats would be expected to unify and cast a solid party vote.

—To set up communication with Democratic factions including the freshmen so that those Democratic priorities would not violate positions large groups of Democrats had already taken.

—To strengthen the House Democratic whip system to get all possible Democratic votes for Democratic programs.

—To designate Democrats to be party spokesmen on major issues, such as making House Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., the spokesman on energy matters.

—To require the House to meet five days a week rather than take Fridays off.

—To decide each day what votes Democrats should demand roll calls on to show the public how Democrats are recorded for the programs.

Transition From Colony To Independent Country Has Been Easier For Mozambique

Editor's Note — Rival rebel groups fight each other in Angola as it moves toward independence from Portugal Nov. 11. Another Portuguese colony on the opposite side of Africa becomes independent next Wednesday. Here's a report on how things are going in Mozambique.

By LARRY HEINZERLING
Associated Press Writer
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — War-weary Mozambique is quietly dismantling the symbols of Portuguese colonialism as it prepares for its independence next week.

The nation's 8.5 million people will shed nearly 500 years of white domination next Wednesday and get a government run by the Front for the Liberation of Mozambique, made up of Africans and known as Frelimo.

The Marxist-oriented movement, led by bearded 41-year-old Samora Machel, fought a guerrilla war against Portugal for more than a decade.

The African takeover in Mozambique, compared to the bloody strife in Angola, Portugal's bigger and richer territory on African's west coast, has been calm and orderly.

A transitional Portuguese-Frelimo government, led by Machel's chief lieutenant, Joaquim Chissano, has paved the way for a smooth handover of power.

Machel is expected to make a triumphant entry into Lourenco Marques, the capital, on independence day to lead the celebrations.

Virtually all of Portugal's 60,000 soldiers in the territory, with the exception of a handful of advisers, are scheduled to leave.

How much popular support Frelimo enjoys is difficult to gauge and there has been no indication the movement plans to hold elections.

Frelimo's ranks consist largely of Makonde tribesmen from northern Mozambique who traditionally have been opposed by some of the country's other tribes, especially the Makua, who make up 25 per cent of the population.

Whether Frelimo will be able to maintain tribal peace, a problem in virtually every black African nation, remains to be seen.

Frelimo had only an estimated 1,000 trained administrators when last year's military coup in Lisbon signaled the collapse of the Portuguese empire. But foreign diplomats in Lourenco Marques say the party has organized itself with speed and efficiency.

Machel, at one time commander of Frelimo's 10,000-man guerrilla army, has declared Mozambique will be a revolutionary society aimed at creating a "new man free from exploitation."

The party's philosophy expresses a strong Marxist ideology closer to Maoist thought than most other forms of "African socialism."

Although a Marxist Machel firmly denies any ties to Moscow or Peking.

"Frelimo is a Mozambican party," he once told newsmen. "It's orientation and personality are Mozambican."

Some Western diplomats, however, express fears that the Soviet Union may win agreements to use Mozambique's ports to boost its naval strength in the Indian Ocean. But they also point out an intense Soviet-Chinese rivalry is under way in Mozambique to win influence.

They say this competition is reflected by internal tensions within Frelimo itself with some top officials leaning toward Peking and others favoring Moscow.

Machel is an admirer of President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and is likely to follow his policies of "African socialism" including the creation of agricultural communes.

Individualism is condemned and Frelimo says communication with the masses must be improved "through the indoctrination of journalists."

The provisional government already has decreed jail sentences of up to eight years for anyone "sabotaging the decolonization process." There is no trial and no appeal.

Mozambique will be a one-party state ruled by a central committee, a political committee and a military committee. Machel is expected to head all three.

About 90 per cent of the population is illiterate and few Africans are trained to take up jobs being deserted by whites.

No up-to-date statistics are available but the country is plagued by a shortage of foreign reserves, a large trade deficit, widespread unemployment and inflation.

Of an estimated 200,000 whites in the country, some 20,000 have left, taking with them special skills needed to help run the government bureaucracy, public services and commerce.

More than 80 per cent of the population is tied to agriculture.

Ingram Wins Three-Year Fight

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Insurance Commissioner John Ingram has won his three-year fight for a law prohibiting age discrimination in setting auto insurance rates in North Carolina.

The General Assembly Tuesday accepted a conference report compromise and enacted the legislation, which does not go as far as Ingram had hoped it would.

It may also have to survive a court battle between Ingram and the insurance industry before taking effect. The industry bitterly opposed the legislation and lobbied hard against it.

The bill abolishes discrimination in rates because of age or sex. But, in a provision inserted by the Senate, it allows companies to surcharge drivers of any age who have less than two years' driving experience. In practice, almost all of the drivers in that category will be 18 years old and under.

Except for inexperience, the bill allows surcharges only for traffic violations and chargeable accidents.

The surcharges would range from $10 for two points on a driver's record to $320 for 12 points.

Under the current rate system, male drivers under 25 pay heavy surcharges regardless of their record because the insurance industry believes they have the most accidents.

As Ingram has often said, "a young Vietnam veteran with a perfect driving record may pay more than a convicted drunk driver who happens to be over 25."

The Ingram plan would shift the burden from young drivers in the 18-25 age group to all drivers who have had violations or chargeable accidents. It is supposed to take effect in September.

Ingram has pledged not to approve any industry proposal that responds to the new law by proposing even a slight increase in rates for drivers with clean records. The industry has said the plan cannot be implemented without a general rate increase for all drivers.

Unless one side gives in, the dispute may be the occasion for a court test that could delay implementation of the bill.

But on Tuesday, as he accepted congratulations for legislators, a jubilant Ingram did not foresee that.

"That (a court case) is a threat they've used before. I don't think it will happen," he said.

County Budget Study...

increase. During the 1970-1971 fiscal year, total funds appropriated for the city system by Pitt commissioners amounted to $790,000. Gray said that increases in funds appropriated for the city system—including last year's $1.33 million appropriation—represents a 68.95 per cent increase in money over the past five years.

The figures—including the total amount appropriated to the city system and the per cent increase over the year before—for the period as reported by Gray include: 1970-1971 ($790,000); 1971-1972 ($936,000) a 21.8 per cent increase; 1972-1973 ($990,350) a 2.76 per cent hike; 1973-1974 ($1.13 million) 14.88 per cent increase; and 1974-1975 ($1.33 million), up 17.44 per cent. Bearden, after hearing Gray outline the increases in the school's budget said "that sounds good to me. . . it's appreciated," but indicated more funding is needed.

School Board member Ed Carter told commissioners, "People are concerned about the new junior high. He asked, 'what direction' can the board take to raise the needed funds. 'Is there anything you can recommend?'"

Gray indicated it would require a 25 to 50 per cent increase in taxes to meet the capital needs of education in Pitt on a pay-as-you-go basis, and suggested that a bond issue might be the best route for both the city and county school systems, as well as

Pitt Technical Institute to take in seeing that their building requirements are properly met.

Commissioners' chairman Bruce Strickland indicated he felt the board "would call a referendum for the school systems. . . upon request" but said "the board is not going to levy 20-cents per $100 valuation. . ." for special school district capital outlay (on the Greenville District) as had been suggested earlier, or increase the tax rate to provide additional funds. "I don't think the citizens would stand for that," he said.

Will Address Meet On Evangelism Role

The Rev. Archie B. Parrish, executive administrator of Evangelism Explosion, Inc., will be in Greenville Friday.

He will tell about and show slides on the evangelism program initiated in Atlanta, Ga. by Evangelism Explosion at a dinner meeting at Tom's Restaurant at West End Circle at 7 p.m.

The purpose of the meeting, according to John Grier, a local Christian layman, is to encourage churches in this area to engage in an evangelism clinic and the development of a united evangelism fellowship following the clinic. Ministers and lay persons interested in learning how to share their faith with others more effectively are invited to the meeting. For reservations, one may contact either the Rev. Rod Randolph, 752-6154, or Grier at 756-1076.

Net 179 Pints Of Blood Here

Tuesday's Bloodmobile visit at the Moose Lodge netted some 179 pints of blood with 43 persons rejected for various health reasons.

Pitt Blood Chairman Billy Ross thanked the Mittie Smith Sunday School class at Immanuel Baptist Church for sponsoring the successful visit. Ross also expressed his appreciation to the women of the Greenville Service League and the volunteer nurses who assisted in the important blood drive. Prior to the visit, he noted, the Pitt blood quota was some 900 down.

The blood collection total was boosted by the participation of 53 donors from the city's Public Works Department, Ross added, as well as 29 donors from Greenville Utilities Commission, 12 from East Carolina University, 11 from the Moose Lodge and seven from Union Carbide, in addition to other non-affiliated donors.

Church in the United States. It now has 3,200 members, nine ministers, and 400 lay people actively involved in a weekly evangelism program.

Parrish has been invited to Greenville by an interdenominational group of ministers and lay persons. It is hoped he can return later to conduct a certified evangelism clinic.

The Bloodmobile was at Burroughs Wellcome Co. today for an employee blood drive.

Ford Leading Calls For Less Federal Regulation

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by President Ford, administration spokesmen are pressing for a reduction of federal regulation over business. "The time has come to cut the federal red tape that binds the hands of small business,"

Ford told a National Federation of Independent Business conference. Delegates applauded the remark enthusiastically. In other appearances on Tuesday, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. voiced similar opinions. And former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, a potential challenger to Ford for the Republican presidential nomination next year, echoed the administration's denunciations of government controls.

"We must free the business community from regulatory bondage so it can produce," Ford said. "Your efforts are stifled by unnecessary, unfair and unclear rules and regulations."

Ford said that in the last few years the estimated 10 million businesses in America — "from mom and pop stores to huge corporations — have struggled to adapt to consumer protection laws, to environmental mandates, to energy sources, to inflation, to recession and to complicated high taxation."

Ford also announced he is naming eight members of a new federal paperwork commission "to simplify and reduce the enormous clog of federal forms and documents."

"It's hard to believe, but the number of different federal forms sent out from Washington, at last count, totaled 5,146," Ford said.

Ford has sounded similar themes in recent speeches. Simon, speaking at a National Coal Association convention, said government controls on the energy industry stand in the way of doubling U.S. coal production by 1985 and achieving energy self-sufficiency.

"Our goal of 1.2 billion tons per year of production by 1985 will not be reached if we do not remove government impediments and create incentives for expanded production," Simon said.

Speaking at the same convention, Coleman repeated the administration's proposals to lessen regulation in rail, motor and air transportation. "Existing regulatory provisions are excessively restrictive and costly to industry and to the consumer," he said. Reagan, speaking at a convention, attacked what he called "demagoguery" by those who suggest that one group "a bigger slice of the pie" at the expense of other groups. "We can all have a slice of pie if government gets the hell out of the way and lets the free enterprise system work."

'The Lost Colony' Opens ECU Class 35th Season On Friday Hears Raynor

America's oldest and best-known outdoor drama, eastern North Carolina's "The Lost Colony", is opening its 35th season on Friday, June 20 at 8:30 p.m. at the Waterside Theater at Ft. Raleigh on Roanoke Island, 125 miles from Greenville.

"The Lost Colony" will have performances nightly thereafter except on Sundays through August 30. All performances are to begin at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets range in price from $1.50 to $4.00 per person. Confirmation of tickets in advance is recommended. This may be done by writing to The Lost Colony, P.O. Box 68, Manteo, N.C. 27954.

Written by Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Paul Green, the epic drama memorializes the efforts of 100 Englishmen to found their country's first colony in the New World.

The story of Sir Walter Raleigh's early colonists is retold on the very ground where in 1587 they landed, built homes, and vanished before a relief ship reached the settlement in 1590.

Paul Green wrote the play to commemorate the 350th anniversary of the birth of Virginia Dare, the first child of English parents born in America. Though it was intended to run only one season in 1937, the drama's success has enabled it to play each summer since its founding, except for the years of the coastal black out during World War II.

Staging has changed through the years, but the pagentry, suspense, humor, and pathos of the original script have been retained. Authentic costuming, skillful lighting, dance numbers, and choral music in a natural setting provide power found only in outdoor theatre.

Director and choreographer Joe Layton, in his 12th season with the show, is a three-time Tony award winner and also is the recipient of television's Emmy Award. Broadway veterans Fred Voelpel, costume and scene designer, and Nananne Porcher, lighting designer, also return for their twelfth season with the production.

Production coordinator Robert Knowles is executive director of Theatre Jacksonville in Florida. Mavis Ray, associate choreographer, and music director George Trautwein complete the professional production staff.

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Regular gasoline, heavily subsidized by the government, sells for 11 cents U.S. per gallon in the Colombian capital.

Summarizing a newspaperman's job, Sunday Editor Jerry Raynor of The Daily Reflector was guest speaker to an East Carolina University journalism class on Friday.

Raynor, a native of Martin County, finds that his work is more than an eight-hour a day job. He covers events after hours including meetings, concerts and simply talking with the public for human interest stories.

He feels that the telephone is The Daily Reflector's main means of finding out information for news stories.

When questioned about his hardest adjustment to being a newspaperman, Raynor said it was "longwindedness." His first experiences in writing were during his military training where there happened to be a need for writers.

Raynor feels that the experience with a small paper is varied and would be commendable for a beginner in the field of journalism.

He also believes that traveling is a very important part of his job. If the public does not come to him with information, Raynor goes to the public.

NEW YORK (AP) — Some early selling on continued concern over the second quarter earnings outlook left the stock market showing a moderate loss today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 6 points in the first half hour, had recovered to 826.19, off 2.42, by 11:30 a.m.

Losers held a 3-2 advantage over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was relatively quiet. The early declines represented a spillover of selling from late Tuesday after Du Pont said its second quarter earnings would probably be a bit better than first quarter figures, but still down sharply from comparable year-age levels.

Analysts said that news, coupled with Hercules, Inc.'s report that it would show "nominal" second quarter profits, tended to raise concern that figures for the second quarter generally would be poor.

Du Pont shares, down 4 Tuesday, lost another point to 115 1/4 in the early going today.

Hercules dropped 1/4 to 29 on top of a 2 1/4 slide Tuesday. Oil issues weakened on reports that President Ford was deferring his plan to remove price controls from domestic crude oil.

Getty dropped 2 to 187; Atlantic Richfield 3/4 to 100; Exxon 7/8 to 89 1/2, and Standard Oil of Indiana 3/4 to 44 1/2.

The Big Board's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks slipped .20 to 48.07 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .18 at 88.92.

Hospital Bd...

$345,082.25 have been recorded so far by the Pitt Memorial Hospital Gifts Committee, Committee Chairman Harry Leslie told the Trustees. Of this amount, $91,955 is in the bank, he said. Some $134,000 has been pledged by the medical profession of this community, he said, with $136,000 pledged by industry. Some civic organizations and individuals are planning benefits, he said, and foundations and many individuals have not yet been approached. Later there will be a drive for individuals and organizations to buy specific equipment for the new hospital. Hospital Administrator Jack Richardson becomes Hospital Director under a reorganization of the hospital administration. He will be primarily concerned with the new hospital and the medical school affiliation, while Rick Gilstrap, the new associate director of hospital services, will oversee the work of Buck Sitterson, administrator of fiscal and environmental services and Miss Jean Owens, administrator of nursing service, and all the persons working under them, plus related areas like ambulance, pharmacy, and the like. Buck Sitterson told of how North Carolina Medicaid program has been contracted out to a California firm, which in the past few days has instituted a new insurance form. "Use of this form will throw a monkey wrench into mechanisms already developed for using one standard form for all insurance companies, including Medicaid and Medicare, and which is usable in the county computer. We have appealed to Secretary David Flaherty, our legislators, everybody we know, to prevail on this company to continue use of the standard form," he said. The Kate B. Reynolds Foundation has expressed interest in giving Pitt Memorial help on its rehabilitation facility if participation from the 22 counties which will be using it can be identified. "We are in the process of contacting other counties," Richardson said. New hospital construction manager Ralph Hall said rooms are being laid off in the bed towers now. Twenty contractors are on the site, and the work is about 43 per cent complete. Trustees are urged to tour the site. Ambulance Committee Chairman Delton Perry reviewed the history of the ambulance and rescue squad services in the county. He said the county now has 75 registered Emergency Medical Technicians who are saving the County untold dollars because of their volunteer work. He also praised the hospital ambulance service, directed by John Watson, and said all ambulance personnel are proven rescue personnel. Collections run as high as 86 per cent, he said.

Earlier Leaf Sales Dates On Ga.-Fla.
Macon, Ga. (AP)—Auction sales of flue-cured tobacco in the Georgia-Florida belt will begin earlier this year than at any time in the past, Commissioner of Agriculture Tommy Irvin said today. Irvin set the opening date for Tuesday, July 8. He acted following a recommendation of an industry advisory committee which considered such factors as the condition of the crop and other things. Sales in the 28-market belt began July 15 last year and auctions lasted for 41 days, the longest sales period in history. Irvin noted that the national advisory committee has allocated fewer buyers to the belt this year. He said that as a result, the auctions could last longer this year. Crop conditions have improved considerably in recent weeks following a cool, wet spring which delayed planting, and Irvin said indications point to a crop of high quality tobacco which may not be as large as that of last year. Georgia flue-cured farmers produced a record crop of 160.5 million pounds last year which sold for an average of $103.23 per hundred pounds and nearly $166 million—also a record. Markets in the belt this year will be allowed to sell 225,000 pounds of tobacco per set of buyers each day as compared with 172,000 pounds a day last year.

Capital Hill 'Leaks' Used
WASHINGTON (AP)—Foreign intelligence agents are gathering "considerable political and economic information" through an increasing number of contacts with members of Congress and their staffs, a senior FBI official says. "Many of these contacts are of a clandestine nature" in which the intelligence agent poses as an official of a foreign government, said James B. Adams, deputy associate FBI director. However, he said there is no indication that Soviet and other foreign agents have succeeded in actually infiltrating any congressional offices by recruiting a congressional staff member to gather and pass along information.

Chapter Held Dinner Meet
Gamma Delta Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha held a dinner meeting at the Three Steers Thursday night. Following a business session, President Ruth Cox presented Merle Modin a silver bowl in the chapter. Mrs. Modin will be moving from Greenville in the near future. Pile-Ups In Dust Storm
BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—At least one motorist was killed and several others were injured when a sudden dust storm reduced visibility to near zero and caused several chain-reaction collisions on a busy highway, authorities said. More than 50 cars were involved in collisions. All lanes of the state highway were blocked about 7 miles south of Bakersfield on the southern edge of California's Central Valley, according to a California Highway Patrol spokesman. "The dust was so thick for a time the sun was obscured," a highway patrol official said. Spokesman Daniel Dean said today that the dust storm lasted about three hours Tuesday evening, reducing visibility from 20 miles at 6:30 p.m. to near zero in about 15 minutes. The high winds also frustrated firemen battling a fire burning out of control in the Inyo National Forest southwest of Independence. The flames were spread over at least 60 acres in a rugged, wooded area in the Mt. Whitney District, fire officials said.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Foreign intelligence agents are gathering "considerable political and economic information" through an increasing number of contacts with members of Congress and their staffs, a senior FBI official says. "Many of these contacts are of a clandestine nature" in which the intelligence agent poses as an official of a foreign government, said James B. Adams, deputy associate FBI director. However, he said there is no indication that Soviet and other foreign agents have succeeded in actually infiltrating any congressional offices by recruiting a congressional staff member to gather and pass along information.

Tar Heel Rally Nips East Carolina

By JOHN EVANS
East Carolina baseball coach George Williams had to have been left shaking his head following the Pirates' 3-2 loss to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill last night.

The loss, which dropped ECU's season record to 1-4, was not only the third one run loss for the Pirates this season, but was also the third time this summer the Pirate club has lost a game in the final inning. Williams must be wondering what his club needs to do to win.

The story last night was the same as it has been all year. ECU held a 2-0 lead going to the bottom of the eighth only to have North Carolina rally to tie in the eighth and win in the ninth.

And this time ECU found a different way to lose. With the score tied at 2-2 in the ninth, Carolina's Bill Lee reached on a walk and Mike Fox beat out a bunt single to put Lee on second. After Don Davis was called out for stepping on the plate, Steve Rackley came to the plate for the Tar Heels.

Rackley grounded to Steve Bryant at second for what appeared to be a double play grounder. As Bryant threw to Ken Gentry to force Fox at second, Lee rounded third and headed for the plate. The confused Gentry hesitated before throwing to the plate too late and Lee slid past Howard McCullough's tag with the winning run.

Before the eighth East Carolina had dominated the game behind the pitching of Terry Durham and Joe Heavner.

In the eighth, however, Heavner seemed to run out of gas and so did the Pirates.

East Carolina scored in the third when Gentry led off with a hit in back of second and was sacrificed to second by Pete Paradossi. Gentry then advanced to third on a fly out and scored on Bryant's single to left.

Carolina threatened in both the first and third off Durham, but the Pirate hurler pitched out of both threats before leaving after the third with a sore arm.

The Pirates added another run in the fifth when Gentry sent a drive to left which bounced over the fence for a ground-rule double and came around on sacrifices by Paradossi and Beaton.

With his team on top 2-0 Heavner seemed in control of the game through the seventh until he suddenly seemed to lose his touch.

In the eighth, Carolina scored twice to tie the contest and set the stage for Lee's last inning heroics.

Heavner walked both Rackley and Baldwin to open the inning and Kevin Haerber sacrificed the two runners up a base. Bernie Menopase then singled to center to score both Rackley and courtesy runner Randy Porch and tie the game. Two put outs by Bryant finished the inning.

In the ninth, ECU managed no threat, as the Tar Heels came up with their ninth inning run to win the game.

For Heavner it was his first loss of the year, as well as his first pitching appearance.

At bat, the Pirates' bats made good contact with the ball and Gentry, Glenn Card and Robert Brinkley collected two hits apiece.

East Carolina's next game will be tomorrow night at Harrington Field when they play Methodist College starting at 7:30.

University Kiwanis, Taff Capture Victories

Taff Office Equipment and University Kiwanis captured victories in the Senior Babe Ruth League last night. Taff downed Farmville, 8-4 while the Kiwanis nipped the Fire Fighters, 10-8.

It was only the second loss for the Fire Fighters, and knocked them out of a share of first place with Ayden-Grifton.

In the opener, Farmville pushed over a run in the opening inning. Neal Gordon walked and moved up on an error that moved him to third. He scored on another error.

Taff came back with seven runs in their half of the inning. David Manning opened up with a single and Lee Shearin got a hit. Levi Brock singled in Manning and both he and Shearin advanced on a passed ball. Jay Chenier singled in both Shearin and Brock. Chenier then stole second. Jim Peszko walked and Chris Garrett got a hit, loading the bases. Mel Boyd singled in Chenier and Peszko, and an error let Garrett score. Greg Lassiter singled in Boyd with the seventh run.

Taff got its other run in the third. Boyd walked and stole second. Manning singled to drive him in.

Farmville's other three came in the sixth. Alan Cobb doubled and stole third. Lanie Jones walked and also stole up. An error let both runners score. Ricky Smith walked and Carroll Griffin doubled to score him.

University Kiwanis pushed in one in the first. Greg Sasser reached on a two-base error then stole third. He scored on a wild pitch.

The Fire Fighters got one in their half to tie it up. Randy Adams singled and stole both second and third. He scored on Eugene Forrest's single.

The Kiwanis went back out with one in the second. That came on a home run by Bill Ellington.

The Kiwanis added two more in the third for a 4-1 lead. Donnie Haddock singled and Sasser got a hit. Les Roberson doubled to drive in Haddock, and a single by Ellington scored Sasser.

The fourth saw five more Kiwanis runs come over. Bobby Sasser singled and stole second. Larry Boyette was hit by a pitch and Haddock singled. Roberson then tripled to clear the bases and an error on Ellington's grounder let him score. Ellington stole second, took third on a passed ball and scored when Rick Harrell reached on an error.

The Fire Fighters started to rally in the fifth, scoring three. Forrest walked and stole second. Donnie Cox reached on an error, scoring Forrest. Ricky Phillips walked and both runners moved up on a passed ball. Randy Edens reached on an error, scoring both runners.

The Kiwanis got their final run in the sixth. Ellington walked and stole second. Greg McGilhon singled, scoring him.

Farmville added one in the sixth. Keith Gould walked and Forrest reached on a fielder's choice. Cox singled, scoring Gould.

The final three came in the seventh. Max Joyner walked and Edens singled. Both moved up on an error, and a wild pitch scored Joyner. Adams reached on an error, scoring Edens, and a wild pitch put Adams on second. He scored when Gould reached on an error, but the rally died there.

Jaycees Clinch Tie For Title

The Jaycees sewed up no worse than a tie for the North State Little League championship yesterday as they romped to an 8-2 win over the Optimists.

The victory boosted the Jaycee record to 12-1 on the year, while the Optimists are now 6-6. The Lions, at 9-3, is the only team with a chance to catch the Jaycees, and a single win by the leaders, or a loss by the Lions would wrap it up.

The Optimists pushed over a run in the top of the first to take a short-lived lead. Andy Holloman reached on a fielder's choice and moved to third on wild pitches. Billy Dough singled, driving Holloman in with the run.

But the Jaycees came back with seven runs in the bottom of the first to put the game on ice. Larry Talbert singled and Teddy Gartman doubled. Mike Pollard singled, scoring Talbert and an error on the play allowed Gartman to score. Kenny Barnes singled and another error scored Pollard. Elvy Forrest then cleared the sacks with a two-run homer.

Crowell Pope got things going again with a single and he moved to third on passed balls. Danny Woods walked and also advanced on a passed ball. Talbert then doubled to drive in both runners.

The Optimists got their other run in the second. Paul Macmillian singled and moved to second on a balk. He gained third on an out and scored on Sammy Hodges' double.

The other Jaycees run came in the fifth. Henry Goodson walked, advanced on a balk and a wild pitch and scored when Woods reached on an error.

Moose Nip Pepsi, 1-0

Marc Sasser smashed a two-out home run in the top of the fifth to give the Moose a 1-0 victory over Pepsi-Cola in the Tar Heel League yesterday.

Dwayne Allgood was the winning pitcher giving up only two hits to Pepsi. Both were by Ricky Sutton and only three other men reached base for Pepsi during the game. Sutton pitched a three-hitter for the losers and allowed six other runners on base. Sutton fanned five, Allgood five.

The Moose got a threat going in the first as Sasser reached on a fielder's choice and Kosta Marakis on an error. Neither advanced.

The Moose put a man on in the third and fourth by singles but could not move them around. The Moose chances seemed bleak until Sasser's homer in the fifth after a strike out and a ground out.

Pepsi got men to second twice and to third just once. In the first, Sutton singled and took a passed ball to second. In the third, Jeff Wilson reached on a fielder's choice and Eric Bowman moved him to third reaching on an error. A pop up ended the inning.

Beltone Out Of Loop Lead

Piggly Wiggly shut out Beltone, 6-0, last night knocking Beltone out of first place in the Ladies Softball League and lifting PW into first place in a tie with Little Mint, which beat the Daily Reflector, 11-8.

In the first game, Wachovia struggled past Daniels, 21-18. Daniels had built a 14-2 lead by the fifth inning but in the top of the fifth Wachovia started to come back with three runs. In the sixth Wachovia added six and scored 10 in the seventh to win the game.

Little Mint pushed in three in the first and four in the second for a 7-0 lead over the Reflector but a homer by Sandra Spivey keyed a five run, second-inning pulling them back into the game. Little Mint got one in each of the fourth and fifth and added two in the sixth to insure the victory.

Piggly Wiggly broke a scoreless game in the sixth picking up one run. PW rallied for five in the seventh to put the game away.

In the final game of the night, Coca-Cola humbled Burroughs-Wellcome, 11-4. All Coke needed came over in the first, as Coke rallied for seven. Four more went up in the second.

American Teams Win In Church

The American Division came away with four victories in six games last night over the National Division in the Church Softball League. People's Bible and Grace were the lone winners from the National.

In the opening game on one field, Trinity took a 4-3 victory over Immanuel. Trinity got one in the first and added another in the second. Immanuel came back with three in the third to take a 3-2 lead.

But Trinity scored one each in the fourth and seventh to claim the victory.

Temple got four in the third, with Ray Womble homering, then added two in the fourth and one in the seventh.

The third game saw Grace outlast Memorial, 12-11. Memorial got two in the first, then added two in the second. One came over in the third, and another in the fourth. Three more scored in the sixth for a 9-0 lead.

Grace came up with nine in the bottom of the sixth with Sidney Hardee homering. Memorial came up with two in the seventh, but three by Grace claimed the victory.

In the opener on the other field, St. James rolled to a 15-4 win over University-Mt. Pleasant. St. James pushed over five in the second, then came back with two in the fourth. They added two in the fifth, five in the sixth and one in the seventh.

University-Mt. Pleasant got all four of its runs in the second.

First Presbyterian rolled to a 13-3 win over First Free Will Baptist in the second game. Presbyterian pushed over three in the first and got four more in the second. They added two in the third, one in the fourth and three in the sixth, with Miller homering.

First Free Will got one in the first, and two in the third.

In the final game, St. Gabriel took a forfeit victory over Arlington Street.

Three Tied For Putting

Jefferson Standard and Vikki Morrow Karate pulled into a tie for first place with victories yesterday in the Junior Putters of America league matches at the local Putt-Putt.

Morrow captured a 30-0 victory over the Waffle House, while Jefferson Standard downed J.H. Hudson, 17-13. That, combined with Home Builders' 10-2 win over Eckerd's, put Morrow, Jefferson and Eckerd's into a 3-1 tie for first.

Jerry's Sweet Shop downed Kwik-Pic, 17½-6½ in the other match.

Royals Get Signals; Down California, 3-2

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
Ed Figueroa leaned forward, waiting for his signal from catcher Ellie Rodriguez. He didn't know it, but the Kansas City Royals were waiting for their signals, too.

A pause, then the windup. The pitch ... crack went the bat — a single for Vada Pinson. Crack went the bat, a single for George Brett.

"The Royals were picking up what our pitcher was going to throw in the early innings," explained California Angels Manager Dick Williams when it was too late to do anything about a 3-2 loss to Kansas City Tuesday night. "They were letting their batters know by whistling."

"We caught on about the fourth inning and then we put a stop to it," said Williams. But the Royals had their runs in the first inning and the Angels could manage only two in the ninth.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland swept a doubleheader from Minnesota 4-2 and 8-7; Milwaukee beat New York 4-3 before the Yankees took the nightcap 4-2; Baltimore trimmed Cleveland 5-3; Boston edged Detroit 7-6, and Chicago blasted Texas 13-3.

The city of it was that Figueroa pitched a good ball game — a six-hitter. Three errors by his teammates, two by shortstop Orlando Ramirez, resulted in two unearned runs and the game-winner came in on Hal McRae's sacrifice fly.

A's 4-8, Twins 2-7
Reggie Jackson smacked a 420-foot home run and a run-scoring double in the opener to back Vida Blue's 10th victory of the season and first victory in nearly three weeks.

Gene Tenace hit a bases-loaded double to drive in three runs during an eight-run Oakland fifth inning in the nightcap.

Brewers 4-2, Yankees 3-4
Ed Herrman's two-run homer in the ninth won the nightcap for the Yankees, who trailed 2-1 entering the inning. The Brewers had won the first game by an error by shortstop Jim Mason who — aside from hitting .142 — misplayed George Scott's pop fly with Robin Yount on third base.

Orioles 5, Indians 3
Elrod Hendricks raised his batting average 32 points to a prodigious .167 with three runs batted in — including a home run — in carrying Baltimore past Cleveland.

John Ellis was slumping on the field, throwing the ball into centerfield twice trying to get runners stealing on his arm.

Nuggets Eyeing Thompson, Too

By ROBERT P. DALTON
Associated Press Writer
DENVER (AP) — With pint-sized guard Monte Towe in hand, the Denver Nuggets are going after his teammate and hometown friend David Thompson, the much-sought All-American from North Carolina State.

Team officials say there was no package deal for the two, but admit signing Towe might help in picking up Thompson if the details can be worked out.

The details include Thompson being drafted by the Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association and also by the Nuggets' fellow American Basketball Association team, the Virginia Squires.

Carl Scheer, general manager of the Nuggets, said following Monday's collegiate draft that he has been talking with Virginia about several things including a deal for Thompson.

The Nuggets passed over Thompson, the major college player of the year, and picked Marvin Webster of Morgan State in the collegiate draft on Monday. Coach Larry Brown said the Nuggets felt they had a better chance of signing Webster than Thompson.

The Atlanta Constitution reported today that Webster had rejected last-minute pleas by the Hawks and would sign with Denver today according to Atlanta Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons. Fitzsimmons, in a telephone interview from Baltimore, told the Constitution, "He turned us down."

Towe and Thompson visited Denver together during the ABA Western Division playoffs which the Nuggets won. At that time, Thompson said he hoped to play on the same team in the pros with Towe.

The 5-foot-7 Towe hit 49 per cent of his shots from the floor at the Atlantic Coast Conference school and averaged 11.1 points a game in his career.

"We feel he can stand on his own and play for us," said Nuggets spokesman Ted Malick when questioned on whether Thompson and Towe were a package deal.

Scheer calls Towe "the type of player who responds to every challenge," adding Towe has "received a stiff challenge at every level of his basketball competition from high school to the college ranks to winning a national championship and now the professional ranks."

"Despite his physical stature, he has never failed to more than pass the test in all his previous starts," Scheer said.

In Raleigh, N.C., following the signing Tuesday, Towe said, "I want to play for Larry Brown and with that team."

"The particular type of team, the closeness, is important and I am impressed with the visit I made to Denver in April. All I want is a chance to prove myself and that I will get with the Nuggets."

Towe was picked in the third round of the draft by the Nuggets.

Atlanta also drafted Webster and that franchise is considered by some to be unable financially to sign both of them.

Morton Sees Reds—Go Down

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Every time Carl Morton faces Cincinnati's National League West leaders, he sees Red.

"The only way to beat Cincinnati is to give it everything you have," says the Atlanta Braves right-hander. "That's the only way to beat the Reds — get mad at 'em."

Morton gave it everything — which means that he gave Cincinnati practically nothing — while winning a 5-1 decision while allowing three hits Tuesday night.

Dave May smashed a grand slam home run to back Morton's splendid pitching. Morton, 7-6, tantalized the Reds with an assortment of sliders and changeups, but lost his shutout in the ninth when Ken Griffey walked, Joe Morgan singled for his second hit of the game and Johnny Bench drove Griffey home with a double.

May's grand slam broke up a pitching duel between Morton and Gary Nolan, who saw his six-game winning streak snapped. Ralph Garr's one-out single ignited the Braves' outburst against Nolan, 7-4. Mike Lum followed with a double which popped out of centerfielder Cesar Geronimo's glove.

In the other National League games, the Chicago Cubs beat the Philadelphia Phillies 9-5; the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4; the Los Angeles Dodgers turned back the Houston Astros 6-1; the San Francisco Giants beat the San Diego Padres 3-1 and the Montreal Expos nipped the New York Mets 6-5 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second game 5-2 in 11 innings.

Cubs 9, Phillies 5
Tim Hosley drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a single, leading Chicago over Philadelphia. The Phillies took a 5-0 lead, one run in the fifth inning on Greg Luzinski's 14th homer of the season, before Chicago struck for six runs — their highest scoring inning of the year.

Cardinals 7, Pirates 4
Reggie Smith drove in three runs to power St. Louis over Pittsburgh. After scoring a run in the second inning on an error, the Cardinals scored four more in the fifth, two on Smith's single, for their eventual winning runs.

Dodgers 6, Astros 1
Andy Messersmith fired a four-hitter and Ron Cey slugged a three-run homer and Steve Yeager a solo shot to power Los Angeles past Houston, the Dodgers' third victory in four starts.

Giants 3, Padres 1
Rookie left-hander Pete Falcone scattered seven hits and San Francisco snapped a six-game losing streak by beating San Diego. Falcone continually worked out of trouble to help the Giants snap a week-long slump.

Expos 6-2, Mets 5-5
Gary Carter drove in four runs, three with his seventh homer of the season, to lead Montreal's first-game victory over New York. The Mets won the nightcap with a three-run 11th inning as Mike Phillips tripled home the tie-breaking run.

Louisburg's Smith Sparks Summer Play

Louisburg College outfielder Charlie Stevens made his presence known in the first week of North Carolina Collegiate Summer League play. In doing so, he showed that he just isn't the type player a pitcher wants to perform. For example, look at the performance against Methodist College:

Stevens got hit in the back of the head with a pitch in his first trip to the plate. In the ninth inning with his Hurricane teammates trailing 9-6, he belted a three-run home run to tie the game. And in the twelfth, Stevens connected with the bases loaded to secure a 14-10 win for Louisburg.

For the week, Stevens not only picked on Methodist while his team ran up a 2-2 record. He collected seven hits in 19 at bats (.368), with three home runs, a triple and a staggering 13 rbi's. In short, Stevens had a pretty good season last week and for his efforts has been named the first "Player of the Week" in the summer league.

Other candidates for the weekly honor were UNC's Early Jones and Methodist shortstop Wayne Spell. Jones, a rising senior from Trenton, belted the ball at a .467 clip, with two doubles, five rbi's and six stolen bases. Spell, a transfer from Sandhills, led the Monarchs to a 3-1 league-leading mark with a .437 mark at the plate. Included in that hot-hitting spree was one home run and seven rbi's.

The hitters have dominated early-season play, but realistic onlookers have also noted that when the season gets into full swing, those high batting averages will in most cases level out. UNC reliever Duke Hale will attest to that.

Hale has pitched only five innings for the Tar Heels in their first five games, but has he ever been effective! Appearing in four games, Hale has been credited with both Tar Heel victories. He has yielded two hits while giving up no runs.

Other standout pitching performances have come from Methodist ace Earl Bunn and ECU lefthander Bob Feeney. Bunn has totaled 18 innings pitched, appearing in all four Monarch games and coming away with a 1-0 record. Feeney was tagged with the Pirates' 6-5 loss in relief in the season opener to UNC, but came back two days later to ship Louisburg 7-3, scattering 12 hits in squaring his record and getting the Pirates on the winning track.

East Carolina started the season in the same manner as it finished the spring season, namely hitting the baseball. Pirate third-baseman Geoff Beaton (.428) and centerfielder Glenn Card (.357) were the leaders through the first three games, which the Pirates lost to UNC (6-5), lost to Methodist (3-2) and beat Louisburg (7-3). Why the losses, though?

"We left 38 men on base in three games," Pirate head coach George Williams explained. "You won't win many averaging 12 and a fraction like that per game."

Whatever the reason, the Pirate schedule was shortened somewhat by the rain and Greenville Rose High School's participation in the state 4-A playoffs at Harrington Field, which cost the Pirates a home and an away game with UNC-Wilmington. Those games will be made up June 16 in Greenville and July 7 in Wilmington.

UNC-W was a late starter in the season due to later participation in the AIA playoffs in St. Joseph's, Mo. The Seahawks, who finished strong in the spring season in earning that trip, whipped UNC 6-2 but fell to Methodist in another high-scoring battle, 12-8.

Graniteers Hold To Win

Singles by Chip Davis and Ricky West and a walk pushed over three runs in the fourth inning and the Graniteers held onto beat Auto Specialty, 7-5, in a prep Babe Ruth League game last night.

The Graniteers picked up four in the first as David singled and scored on Charles Daise's single. West reached on an error scoring Daise and West scored on a double by Lynn Jackson. Jeff Worthington singled in Jackson.

Auto Specialty narrowed the gap to 4-2 in the third picking up two as Ashley Taylor walked, stole second, took a wild pitch to third and came in on a steal. Don White walked, stole to third and scored on an error.

David Holley led off the fourth with a single and Mike Campbell walked. Al Shackleford singled loading the bases. A hit by Davis drove in Holley, Daise walked forcing in Campbell and a single by Ricky West brought in Shackleford.

Auto Specialty led off the sixth with a double by William Sneed and he moved to third on an out, and scored as Rusty Davenport reached on an error. Davenport went to third on the play and scored on Calvin Jones's hit. Jones stole around to third and Taylor singled him over. The Graniteers held on after that and pulled it out.

Russian Star Lives In Fear

By ELAINE HOOKER
Associated Press Writer
HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The elegant evening gown and the spotlight seem to set her above worldly cares. On stage, Renata Babak is the magic of her art, an opera star.

But at 4 a.m. she is alone and terrified when the telephone rings and a person with a foreign accent asks for Renata Babak. Then click, and silence. Since she defected, the Ukrainian opera singer has lived in fear that the KGB — the Russian secret police — will get her, even in New York where she has made her home since January.

She defected at the end of 1973 after she performed in Milan, Italy, with the prestigious Bolshoi Opera Theatre.

Last year she spent a solitary eight months in Canada, learning her Russian roles in the operas' original languages, living with her constant fear that she would be taken back to Russia.

During an interview Monday after a weekend concert here, she talked publicly for the first time about her life as a dissident artist in Russia, suffering from discrimination and political pressure.

Friends convinced her she had a far better chance of getting her 16-year-old daughter to the United States, and protecting herself and her family still in Russia, if she would talk openly about her problems in the Soviet Union.

Renata Babak, 37, was an opera singer in the Soviet Union for 10 years. Despite pressure throughout her career, she refused to join the Communist party.

She won acclaim and was given important roles. But she was never allowed to sing on premiere nights. When the Bolshoi sang at Montreal's Expo '67, she was given a primary role, but the program said another opera star, a woman with a Russian name, was doing the singing, Miss Babak said.

She claimed the main reason she was discriminated against was that she would not change her Ukrainian name to a Russian one. She said she was not allowed to seek publicity or make records, and for six years she was not permitted to travel outside Russia with the Bolshoi.

She said she felt that her career was being thwarted, just as she had seen other artists destroyed because they would not toe the party line.

A new conductor who she said didn't understand politics refused to take any singer besides Miss Babak to Italy for a certain role. It gave her the chance to defect. She sought and won political asylum.

She said that after she moved to Canada early last year, her mother's home in Russia was searched and a Canadian address was taken.

Miss Babak said that at that address she received one of three letters forwarded through immigration authorities from persons claiming to be relatives. They said they wanted to see her in Canada or in the United States and directed her to go to a certain address.

"I know I have no relatives" in either place, she said.

Miss Babak said she frequently receives telephone calls in the middle of the night and that the person either will hang up or ask for her and then hang up. She claims her telephone line is tapped.

Vigilantes Ride Again In Idaho

BY QUANE KENYON
Associated Press Writer
SANDPOINT, Idaho (AP) — Quasi-vigilante groups have sprung up in northern Idaho in response to the problems of sudden growth, a series of unsolved crimes and laws which members say will limit personal liberty.

"People always fear the unknown," says Robert Wilcox, sheriff of Bonner County, where one of the groups is active. "If they don't know what's going to happen, it strikes fear in their hearts and they visualize the worst."

The groups, calling themselves "posses comitatus," are most visible in Idaho's rural Kootenai and Bonner counties. The groups advocate various forms of ultraconservative, right-wing philosophy. Members say the federal and state governments are not following the U.S. Constitution.

The movement isn't entirely confined to Idaho. H. L. Beach, a 70-year-old retired postman from Portland, Ore., heads what he calls the Citizens Law Enforcement and Research Committee. Beach toured the Pacific Northwest organizing posse chapters. He said his goal was to have one in every county.

But an Associated Press survey indicated little activity in other areas of the country.

"Posse comitatus" loosely means "power of the county." Common law has it that a county sheriff may call upon any male between 18 and 45 if needs assistance. Anyone who refuses commits an offense.

Idaho posse groups say they interpret the U.S. Constitution as saying that if citizens don't like the way the law is being enforced, they can form their own posse. Some groups go so far as to say that if the sheriff isn't enforcing the law properly, they have a duty to do it themselves.

Such a philosophy is similar to that of the original members of the Ku Klux Klan in the South just after the Civil War.

Despite some lively sounding provisions in some of the posesses' literature, such as the threat that offending officials should be hanged in the public square, Idaho's posesses have gained little official recognition.

"We just recognize it as a social club, much the same as the duplicate bridge club," says Kootenai Sheriff Thor Fladved, a big, broad-shouldered former FBI agent. "If they don't break any of the established laws or ordinances, we don't get to excited about them. Until there is some violation, we're not going to foster trouble."

Officials say they've received telephone threats, although the calls haven't been linked directly to the posse. None of the threats have been carried out.

Posse members decline direct interviews. "We've been had by you guys (newsmen) too often," said Jack Williams, a posse member from Priest River. "We'll give you a statement ... if you post a $1 million bond to guarantee it'll be printed exactly as we give it to you."

Most officials say the posesses have been formed because the area has been beset by new problems. The population has grown rapidly in the past five years. There have been a series of violent, unsolved crimes. But most observers feel the main reason for the posesses are proposed laws that members consider threats to their rights.

Dial-A-Ride Needs Money

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Dial-a-Ride transit programs are gaining popularity with passengers across the country, but officials in some areas say they can't afford to keep the door-to-door services rolling.

"The people using Dial-a-Ride appreciate it, think it's a great idea and hope it will be continued," said Sam Jacobs, director of the Minneapolis, Minn., program which started Feb. 3 with $190,000 in federal and local subsidies for nine months of operation.

The problem is money. The program is going to cost $196,000 and is expected to bring in only $15,000 in revenues. The fare for adults is 35 cents, the same as the regular city bus fare.

"Considering the cost-revenue figures," said Jacobs, "I don't foresee that Dial-a-Ride, as it now exists, will be continued at the end of the nine months."

A San Jose, Calif., Dial-a-Ride program, billed as the nation's biggest, was discontinued just over three months ago because it was too successful and too expensive.

There are no statistics on exactly how many Dial-a-Ride programs operate around the country. The U.S. Department of Transportation, in a report last August, said that as of May 1, 1974, there were 48 "Demand Responsive Transportation Services" in the United States. Eleven Dial-a-Ride projects were planned, the department said. An Associated Press spot check turned up several other programs.

The aim of Dial-a-Ride is twofold: First, to save fuel by convincing people who normally would drive that they can switch to public transit without inconvenience. Second, to provide transportation for people who don't have a car and don't want to take a taxi.

Those programs that do exist vary from area to area. Some provide transit only for the elderly or the handicapped; others are available to the general public. Some operate in a limited part of the city involved; others cover the whole area. Some deliver a rider right to his destination; others drop people off at central terminals. Some are free; others have fares ranging from 10 cents to more than $1.

All the Dial-a-Ride projects operate in basically the same way: the person who wants to go to a particular place calls a central number and a multi-passenger vehicle like a minibus picks up the caller and drops him off at his destination. All of the programs are subsidized. Like many regular mass transit programs, the Dial-a-Ride services are unable to pay the bills with the money from the fare box.

The San Jose program started Nov. 24, 1974, and was killed off March 5, 1975, partly a victim of its own success.

The Santa Clara County Transit District, which operated the program, said it couldn't keep up with the demand: 7,000 requests a week. In addition, state law required the transit district to buy out existing commercial competitors who were adversely affected by Dial-a-Ride. Eight local taxi companies demanded $1.5 million and county supervisors decided the expense was just too great.

Lowering Age Had No Effect

By C.G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Lowering the legal drinking age in Wisconsin did not increase the traffic fatality rate among youthful drivers, state health authorities report.

In fact, alcohol was found to be involved less frequently among young drivers than older ones in fatal crashes, they say in the June issue of the Journal of Safety Research, published by the National Safety Council.

The authors, Ellen M. Naor, a research analyst, and Dr. Raymond D. Nashold, director of Wisconsin's Bureau of Health Statistics, compared driver fatalities from 1968 through 1973.

The legal drinking age for all alcoholic beverages in the state was lowered in March 1972 from 21 to 18. Previously, 18-year-olds had been permitted to drink beer.

Since 1968, the state has required blood tests of all victims of traffic fatalities who were drivers of vehicles or pedestrians.

The authors said young drivers are more frequent victims of fatal crashes than drivers of any other age group. Lowering the drinking age in some states has brought fears that accident rates rates for the young would rise even further.

But youths drink regardless of legality, so lowering the age might be expected to have little effect, the authors said.

In the six-year study, 60 per cent of all tested driver fatalities in the 18-20 age group, including motorcyclists, had evidence of alcohol intoxication. The proportion remained substantially unchanged from year to year, Miss Naor and Nashold found.

"In fact, the frequency of alcohol involvement among 18- to 20-year-old drivers and motorcyclists in 1973, the first full year under the lowered legal drinking age, was exceeded in two earlier years (1969 and 1970) when the drinking age was 21," they said.

The 1973 rate was 62.7 per cent, compared with 64.2 per cent in 1969 and 66.1 per cent in 1970.

The researchers said further that the proportion of fatalities with alcohol involvement was generally higher for age groups 21 to 24 and 25 to 44 than for the 18- to 20-year-olds.

The lowest frequency was among drivers 45 and older, followed closely by 16- and 17-year-olds.

River Rats Have Big Business

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer
CARSON CTY, Nev. (AP) — The river boatman warns passengers to hang on, and then expertly maneuvers his raft through thrashing waves and past treacherous rocks to calmer water.

The riders, who pay up to $50 a day for such trips, bail water out of the rubber rafts and make sure the beer sack is still trailing behind. The boatman rows for the next rapids a few miles away.

The experience is repeated during runs that last up to two weeks or more. Then sunbaked passengers scatter for homes and the boatmen head for the next "put in" point and another load of customers.

The "river rat" raft pilot is one of hundreds of commercial boatmen who are involved in a multimillion dollar business run on big rivers that thread through scenic canyons throughout western states.

They're found mainly in Wyoming, Utah, Colorado and New Mexico on runs down the Colorado, Green, Yampa and San Juan rivers; in Idaho on the Salmon River; and in California on the Stanislaus, American or Tuolumne rivers. The big ride is down more than 200 miles of Colorado River water in the Grand Canyon. More than 15,000 persons ran the river last year.

The boatmen have a casual manner that belies their skill at negotiating the rivers and their ability to keep themselves and their riders in the boat and the river out of the boat.

Besides being able to spot "big Bertha" waves or rocks that can flip rafts, the boatmen double as cooks at riverside campsites.

Most have some emergency medical training and many can provide a running commentary on geologic features exposed by the rivers over millions of years.

Pay runs up to $60 a day for the boatmen. With little chance to spend wages, they can salt away much of their earnings over the season from May to October.

The gross revenue take for their employers is now estimated at about $11 million a year. There are at least 20 companies on the Colorado River alone. Most have developed since the mid-1960s.

Oregon's Actions--Innovative Or Just Impetuous?

By ROBERT SHEPARD
SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon is considered by many persons to be a forward-looking, innovative state. A contrary view suggests state government leaders tend to rush in where angels fear to tread.

normal climatic conditions. Scientific reports indicate that fluorocarbons used as the propellants for some spray products are depleting the ozone layer, so the legislature voted to ban fluorocarbon sprays.

Congress. In 1973, while the debate raged elsewhere about the effects of smoking marijuana, the legislature decided the casual use of the drug probably was not any more harmful than the use of liquor or tobacco. In any case, the lawmakers said, it was not worth locking people in jail, so the law was changed to reduce the penalty for possession of less than one ounce of marijuana to a maximum of a $100 fine. The offense was no longer even classified as a crime.

At its previous meeting, in 1971, the legislature concluded that bicycles are more than just kids' toys and voted to set aside one per cent of the state's highway fund for construction of bicycle trails throughout the state.

That same session also saw the legislature adopt a complete revision of the state's criminal code. Included among the changes was a legalization of any sexual conduct between consenting adults.

The criminal code revision also eliminated all prohibitions against the sale or showing of pornographic materials to adults, but a change of heart occurred after the 1972 elections and the next session voted to reimpose restrictions.

The Oregon law that has probably caused more discussion than any other is the "bottle bill" of 1971. Running against a tidal wave of disposable, one-way packaging, Oregon's legislators decided that the state's beaches, streams and roadsides would look better without beer and pop cans. The result was a ban on the sale of nonreturnable cans and bottles.

The bottle bill also banned detachable, flip-top type opening devices. Industry opposition to the bill in 1971 was intense and efforts to head off similar laws in other states and Congress generally have succeeded, but the law has proven its worth in Oregon.

Self-Defeating Postal Rate Hikes Cautioned

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Many large users of the Postal Service would stop using the mail if a judge's recommendation for increasing their postal rates takes effect, the Postal Service says. The Postal Service would be left with little to do besides deliver letters, and postage costs would be substantially higher than they are now, a Postal Service official said Tuesday.

Wenner. Wenner recommended May 28 that the cost of mailing a first-class letter be lowered from 10 cents to 8½ cents and that rates be increased for parcels, printed matter and for bulk mailings.

Pageant Won By Pitt Girl

Miss Deborah Mills, a former graduate of D.H. Conley High School, was named North Carolina FFA Sweetheart Thursday night.

The official, who declined to allow the use of his name, spoke as the Postal Service filed a brief with the independent Postal Rate Commission urging it to reject the recommendations of its administrative law judge, Seymour

The Postal Service official claimed that Wenner's recommendations would lead to a substantial drop in mail usage by business mailers. The resulting dropoff in revenue, estimated at more than $350 million per year, would in the short run be borne by the taxpayers, the official said.

DEBORAH MILLS
The pageant was held in Raleigh on the State Fair Ground in Scott Pavilion. There were 16 contestants representing various parts of the state. They were judged on poise, beauty, charm, appearance, content of speech, personal interview and answering questions.

The contestants competed for the four top places in preliminary judging and later that night the top four girls competed for first place, which Miss Mills won. In November Miss Mills will represent North Carolina in the American Royal Pageant, Kansas City, Mo.

Within a decade, publishers and bulk mailers would turn to private delivery systems, and private parcel services would take over from the Postal Service in most areas, the official predicted.

In high school, Miss Mills was a member of the following clubs: FHA; FFA; Black and White Soul Society; Origami; Literary. She was a member of the track team and a member of the cheering squad.

As the business mailers desert the Postal Service, a greater portion of the service's fixed costs would be borne by the first-class mailer, according to this scenario.

She held offices of FBLA vice president, SCA treasurer, and class secretary. She received the honor of being selected Homecoming Queen and also received the Jr. Homemaker Degree and King's Teen Board Scholarship. Miss Mills is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie H. Mills of Grimesland. She will be attending Howard University, Washington, D.C., in the fall. Her concentration area will be fashion design.

"In anything other than the short run, the average first-class mailer is going to pay more," he said.

The Postal Rate Commission will hold hearings starting July 7 on Wenner's recommendations. A final ruling will be issued later in the summer.

No TV Powerhouse, But A Change For Viewers

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Take a look at "A Girl Named Sooner" on NBC if you've two hours to spare tonight. It isn't a powerhouse TV drama by any means, but it is a pleasant alternative to the competing network reruns.

Filed in and around the small Indiana town of Vevay, "Sooner" is a leisurely yarn about a poor, ignorant orphan girl from the backwoods facing the prospect of a new life with a childless couple in Vevay.

The waif is portrayed by Susan Deer, an 8-year-old amateur actress from Indianapolis.

In the show, set in the early 1930s, she's being raised by a bad-tempered, mean-faced old guardian (brilliantly played by Cloris Leachman) who lives in a beat-up old shack in a wooded area far from town.

Old Mam, as she's called, ekes out a hardscrabble living making moonshine she sells to the citizenry and a nearby Civilian Conservation Corps camp, much to the ire of at least the camp commander.

Her ward, as dirty and unkempt as Old Mam, first is noticed by the town veterinarian (Richard Crenna) as she plays near a stream with a pet bird.

It develops that Crenna would like kids of his own, but his wife (Lee Remick) is unable to bear them. A recent operation has left her barren, and she's afraid of adopting a child.

But he gets the chance when Old Mam, having heard of federal payments to guardians of orphans, comes to town to collect what she considers her due for supporting the child the last nine years.

The county sheriff (Don Murray), after one look at the ragged, ill-treated child, puts her in Crenna's care and tells an outraged Old Mam a board will have to investigate whether she's a fit guardian and deserves the money.

Off the child goes to a new world of hot baths, electric lights, new clothes, school and, in a bittersweet finale, what one knows will be a happier life.

"Sooner," adapted for TV by Suzanne Clauser from her 1972 novel of the same name, tends to drag a bit and the child's relationship to Old Mam doesn't strike me as particularly clear.

But it has its nice moments, thanks to sympathetic, low-key performances by the professionals which save many scenes with the Deer girl, whom NBC says never has had a speaking role before now.

It's not her fault her scenes don't quite come off at times. It's the fault of those who cast her in what would be a hard role even for a young professional. Still, she's appealing and makes a good try.

Two major reasons for watching this program tonight are the direction by Delbert Mann and the photography by Ralph Woolsey.

Together, they brilliantly capture the mood and feel of an easygoing rural community and a late, lazy Hoosier spring like few shows of this kind ever do.

led a low trump. East's nine was headed by the king and taken by West's ace.

West now found the killing defense—he shifted to a heart. Since it was probable that East held the king, declarer went up with the ace in the hope that eventually he would be able to discard his heart on the diamonds. This would be easily accomplished if trumps were 2-2. Unfortunately, East showed out on the second club. However, if West held at least three diamonds, declarer could still get a discard on the fourth round of diamonds. But West ruffed the third diamond and the defenders cashed a heart for a one-trick set.

Declarer was overly enamored with the idea of holding his trump losers to one. He should have noted that he could afford to lose two trump tricks if he didn't have to lose a heart as well. As long as West did not win the first trump trick, this wouldn't be too difficult to accomplish.

The winning line is for declarer to lead a low trump from his hand at trick two. If West rises with the ace of trumps, declarer will lose only one trump trick and need not worry about hearts. Therefore, West must play low, and dummy's queen wins. Declarer can now afford to abandon trumps and shift his attention to diamonds.

Though West ruffs the third round of diamonds and switches to a heart, declarer is home. He rises with the ace of hearts and plays a fourth diamond, sluffing his losing heart. The only tricks for the defense are two trumps.

Sunken Hulk Of A Queen Rests In Mud

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD
HONG KONG (UPI) — Curious visitors touring Hong Kong Harbor in colorful junks invariably stop chattering to gaze at the black hulk that rises about 15 feet out of the water.

A few hundred feet of charred steel is all that is left to see of the Queen Elizabeth, once the glamorous flagship of the Cunard Line.

That part of the ship that hasn't been salvaged and sold as scrap now rests in 40 feet of mud, more than three years after fire shattered her new career as a floating university.

It is a sad contrast to the days when the Queen Elizabeth plied the Atlantic with a crew of 900, her 13 decks carrying 2,500 passengers in elegance and luxury. During World War II the Queen Elizabeth transported divisions of Allied soldiers across the Atlantic, eluding submarines with her speed.

How the fire started, who was responsible and why, are questions still unanswered today and may remain a mystery forever.

Only the mid-section and its blackened, twisted structure peak above the sea, water slapping at the wreck's sides.

Slowly but surely divers and explosive experts chipped away at the bow and stern.

By carefully planting explosives and using underwater torches, they tore away tons of steel that once were the backbone of the monarch of the sea. The metal is now sold as scrap throughout Asia.

It may take another three years to remove the mid-section from its casket of mud, according to D.A. Sandison, the senior marine officer whose department administers the 23-square-mile Hong Kong harbor.

"Essentially we're dealing with a square box," he said. "If the water could be pumped out, openings sealed, and air pumped in, it's possible she might literally float to the surface."

Another possibility is yanking the ship from its bed by huge cables and winches on land, he said.

Yet the operation is so risky and difficult it may not be accomplished at all, he said.

"There was never any thought of turning the blackened hulk above the surface into a memorial to the ship," Sandison said.

"But if it is impossible to remove the part stuck in the mud, signs on the surface will permanently mark the spot."

Recalling the devastating fire of Jan. 9, 1972, Sandison said "the fire boats couldn't do a thing" to combat the overwhelming blaze.

The vessel had begun its new career as the "Seawise University" after C.Y. Tung, a Chinese shipping magnate,

Hunt Sniper

SWANNANOVA, N.C. (AP) — Buncombe County authorities are looking for a gunman who fired at several vehicles on U.S. 70 Tuesday morning.

Two trucks were hit, but no one was injured, sheriff's deputies said.

Motorists in the same area reported last winter that snowballs with rocks inside were thrown at their vehicles from trees along the side of the highway.

Bullets shattered a window in a van operated by Randy H. Waters of Cary, an employee of the North Carolina attorney general's office, deputies said. A windshield was smashed in a tractor-truck operated by Fred Strodd.

Secretaries To Stars Tells Rolls

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — What is a supersec? According to Alice Marchak and Linda Hunter, she is a secretary to a superstar, with all hoopla and headaches the job implies.

The two ladies should know. Miss Marchak has worked 19 action-filled years as secretary to Marlon Brando, and Miss Hunter has also served with Brando and now functions internationally as secretary to Julie Andrews and Blake Edwards.

"But after all these years, I'm no longer just a secretary," said Miss Marchak. "I take care of the house, I make all the arrangements for parties, I order Marlon's clothes, and because he has never had a publicist, I handle his press relations."

And much more. But she draws the line at trying to untangle Brando's personal life. That life is no longer as wild as it once was, she says, but she can recall the hectic times.

During his travels Brando was inclined to tell girls to "drop in some time," and sometimes they would be stacked up at his hilltop house like the holding pattern at Los Angeles International.

Misses Marchak and Hunter have recorded their more printable adventures in a new book, "The Supersecs," which proves that stars can be heroes and heroines to their secretaries.

"The question interviewers ask most is: What is Marlon really like?" Miss Marchak said in a recent interview. "I am amazed that people still think of him in terms of 25 years ago — as the angry man with torn T-shirt and motorcycle. I try to explain that

Secretaries To Stars Tells Rolls

Marlon has matured since then. He does get angry sometimes, just as everyone does. But obviously I wouldn't stay with him for 19 years if he were the kind of eccentric that people think he is."

Miss Marchak, an elegant brunette, said the book originated with a movie script she had written. Brando read it, was "pleasantly surprised" and suggested rewriting.

Instead, she began writing of her real-life experiences and discussed them with Linda Hunter, who had once been hired as a traveling secretary for Brando. They decided to collaborate.

What was Brando's reaction to the book?

"He was completely supportive," said his secretary.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 19, 1975

Your DAILY HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day that can be largely given over to investigations of whatever you do not understand in your own line of interest. Don't be too fixed and rigid in your viewpoints, or you are likely to alienate one whose support you require for well-rounded success.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study contracts you have made with others and plan to carry through with your commitments conscientiously. Patience with mate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Keep promises made carefully, or you could regret it later. An early start on responsibilities is wise. Relax in p.m.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle job most efficiently today. Take the right exercise, health treatments that rid you of nervousness. Be more sure of yourself.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You want to have a good time, but stick to the wholesome and inexpensive for best results. Further special talent now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle home matters with particular care now for happiness with close ties. Avoid arguments with anyone. Use good judgment.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get at uninteresting but important duties. Collect as much data as possible to operate more efficiently in future. Watch reputation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Forget all those impossible ideas and get down to the practical so you have your feet on the ground and save more money.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to become more successful; be your true self for best results. Make new friends of worth who can be helpful to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You need more information and should go after it without delay. Be more pleasing with loved one. Don't fly off the handle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A dynamic friend comes along who can help you get some personal wish that has long been close to your heart. Repay social debt.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Impress others by being intelligent. Buy the gadgets that make your work lighter and better at the same time. Coordinate brain and strength.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Now you understand where you are headed and can make the right plans to get there faster. Ask expert's advice on how to expand.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be most aware of everything and will want to know what makes everything tick, so needs as fine an education as possible. Then this inquisitive streak in the nature will lead your progeny in right and most profitable lines. The character here is good and straight and should have the right kind of religion to keep it that way throughout life. A natural sport here, too.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Here's How N.C. Congressmen Voted

By Roll Call Report
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 5 through June 11.

HOUSE
VETO — Failed, 278 for and 143 against, to achieve the two-thirds majority needed to override President Ford's veto of a strip mining bill (HR 25). When the bill was first passed by the House last March — in a form stronger than that vetoed — it had 333 supporters and 86 opponents.

Ford, who also vetoed a similar measure last year, said HR 25 would put as many as 36,000 Americans out of work, reduce coal production and increase utility rates.

Supporters disputed the Administration's figures and predictions. They said higher coal costs and utility rates are caused chiefly by skyrocketing oil prices. Rep. Alan Steelman (R-Tex.) said the three-fold profit increases from 1973 to 1974 received by some companies shows the coal industry can afford stiffer reclamation standards without passing the cost through to consumers. He added that newly-created land reclamation jobs will offset any jobs lost by decreased production.

Opponents generally agreed with President Ford. Rep. Joe Skubitz (R-Kan.) said the bill's objectives are "laudable... but we are not in formal times — we are in an energy squeeze and coal offers our one source of salvation."

Reps. David Henderson (D-3), Stephen Neal (D-5) and Richardson Preyer (D-6) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), Ike Andrews (D-4), Charles Rose (D-7), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "nay."

OIL IMPORT QUOTAS — Rejected, 185 for and 224 against, an amendment to gut the oil import quota provision of HR 6860, the Energy Conservation and Conversion Act.

HR 6860 would limit imports to 6 million barrels annually through fiscal 1976. In later years the volume of imported oil would progressively diminish.

HR 6860, the Democratic-controlled Congress' "energy plan," is designed to make the nation independent of foreign energy supplies by reducing imports and cutting domestic usage.

Rep. Sam Gibbons (D-Fla.), sponsor of the amendment, said oil import quotas amount to be "drain America first" policy. He added: "When the end of our oil comes 35 years from now... we are going to have nothing left... not a bargaining chip..."

One opponent, Rep. William Green (D-Pa.), said, "American oil is drying up with or without a quota... every country in the world is running out of oil, and we have to find alternate sources of energy." He said oil import quotas would intensify HR 6860's message that U.S. consumers must "stop being energy hogs."

Martin and Broyhill voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Taylor voted "nay."

OIL REVIEW—pass, 230 for and 151 against, a bill (HR 4035) extending from Aug. 31 to Dec. 31, 1975 the expiration date of the Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973, a law spawned by the energy crisis. HR 4035 also would intensify congressional scrutiny of Administration proposals to "decontrol" domestic crude oil prices. It would do this by increasing from five to fifteen days the period during which Congress can block Administration crude oil decisions and requiring the President to justify such decisions in writing. HR 4035 was later sent to the Senate.

Supporters said the bill is a neutral move to maintain the "statute quo" until Congress reaches a consensus on national energy policy. They expressed fear that the Administration might otherwise abruptly remove the price ceiling now controlling prices of much of the nation's domestic crude oil.

Opponents said the bill is a negative attempt to undermine the President's plan to decontrol "old" oil, a plan they feel would promote energy self-sufficiency by inducing oil companies to step up production.

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Taylor voted "yea." Martin voted "nay." Broyhill did not vote.

SENATE

HATHAWAY CONFIRMATION — Rejected, 40 for and 54 against, a move to recommit to the Interior Committee — and thus kill — President Ford's nomination of Stanley Hathaway to be U. S. Secretary of the Interior. Hathaway was then confirmed by an even wider margin.

Sen. Edmund Muskie (D-Maine), sponsor of the motion, criticized Hathaway's "lack of concern for environmental issues," including his support for President Ford's veto of the strip mining bill (above).

Opponents, those favoring confirmation, said "thorough" hearings had shown Hathaway to be a good administrator with high integrity. Sen. Roman Hruska (R-Nebr.) said critics of Hathaway "... have failed to make their case."

Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted

Head Finally Found His Place As He Turns Out A Hit Record

By MARIAN FOX
Associated Press Writer
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—
When success found him in 1965, Roy Head didn't know who Roy Head was—and he couldn't handle it.
He tried to be blues and rock. He missed show dates. He picked fights.
But now, under new management, Head's "Most Wanted Woman in Town" is moving up the country charts, and the hard-headed Head is convinced he has found himself at last.
Head was 24, fresh from Three Rivers, Tex., when "Treat Her Right"—a rock song the kids "loved because it was kinda dirty"—sold 3½ million copies and catapulted him into stardom.
"In 1965, I just felt I didn't need anybody," he said. "I thought: I'm up here now, I can do my own thing." And nobody told him differently.

He had a habit of "hitting disc jockeys and whipping club owners" that did little for his reputation or career.
"I had a bunch of managers that didn't care if I made anything or not, as long as they got theirs," he said.
"I started drinking, you might say as a crutch. I never really had a problem as far as alcoholism. I mean I just enjoyed drinking."
He began to miss dates and his temper flared.
"Jobs got more scarce and more scarce and things really got bad and things started going bad at home," he said. "I'm married, currently going through a divorce that I'm not proud of."
Finally he housed up a "Savaggio's" on Houston's North side to try to talk Lee Savaggio into hiring him.
"I walked in there with a big black hat on, unshaven and feeling too good from Coca Cola, and told him I wanted to change my bag...I wanted to go country."

Savaggio sent him home to clean up.
"So I went back, finally after about four weeks and several Whataburgers and said 'Lee, what have you decided to do?' He put me to work the following Monday and we hassled back and forth, had arguments and I kicked off doors.
"He took me in the office and said, 'Look, I'm going to buy your contract. I'm putting out x amount of dollars and it's gonna be this way or it's not going to be.'"
Head's first country music attempt was a Mickey Newberry song, "Baby's Not Home."
Then Savaggio got together with the Joe Taylor Agency which was arranging a showcase of country talent in Nashville.

"Everybody was there—Billboard, Cash Box, people from radio stations—everybody who was anybody were there. Boy, was I scared," Head recalled.
Here's...
"nay," Sen Robert Morgan (D) did not vote.
SENATE STAFF—Rejected, 47 for and 49 against, and amendment permitting each senator to hire two new staff aides for each of his committee assignments. The committee aides were to be separate from and in addition to a senator's regular office personnel.
Since senior members now utilize existing committee staffs, the amendment was designed to benefit junior senators. Junior members now rely mostly on office personnel for committee assistance. The amendment was proposed to S Res 60. Following its rejection, the Senate approved the addition of one new staff aide per senator to work on committee affairs.

One supporter of the amendment, Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.), said, "Every senator is equal, and every senator has an equal need to have adequate and competent staff support."
Opponents said the Senate lacks office space for the estimated 259 staff members that could have been hired under the amendment. They argued also that the additional $8 million annual payroll was prohibitive, and that the need for the extra personnel had not been clearly demonstrated.
Helms voted "nay." Morgan did not vote.
B-1 BOMBER—Rejected, 32 for and 57 against, an amendment to delete funds for research and development of the B-1 aircraft, envisioned by its supporters as the replacement for the B-52 bomber. The amendment was attached to S 920, which authorizes funds for weapons through Sept. 30, 1976 was later passed and sent to conference.

Supporters said the projected price-tag of $20 billion for the 244 B-1's is too high. They contended that existing B-52's and FB-111's should meet the nation's bomber needs through 1990.

One opponent, Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), said that just as it is no longer possible to "get a T-bone steak for 45 cents," defense costs have risen. He said the national defense in upcoming decades needs three basic components — land missiles, submarine-based missiles and the B-1 bomber. Morgan and Helms voted "nay."

Changes In Canadian Mounted

Editor's Note — Nelson Eddy may have had to get permission from his Canadian North West Mounted Police commander to marry Jeannette McDonald, but that's not the case in the Mounties today. Things have changed — but for some Canadians not enough.

By The Associated Press REGINA, Canada (AP) — The federal government is looking into the Royal Canadian Mounted Police because of criticism that its training and discipline are too harsh and too militaristic.

Critics say recruits seeking $14,000-a-year as Mounties have been pushed to the point of exhaustion and that intrusions have been made into the private lives of members of Canada's national police force.

Officials at its training center here in Saskatchewan Province counter the critics by saying that conditions have changed so much that few of the retired old hands would know it's the same police force.

When it was organized in 1873 as the North West Mounted Police only a small force was recruited to patrol the sparsely settled Canadian northwest.

The name was changed to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police — the RCMP, as it is called in Canada — in 1920. And now the force numbers about 15,000.

Traditionally, the Mountie wore a red tunic and a wide-brimmed hat. He rode a horse in summer and a dog sled in winter.

The horse and the red tunic are still part of the modern RCMP, but only for ceremonial occasions. The uniform of the new Mountie on regular duty is a brown jacket and blue pants. He rides on snowmobiles and squad cars and flies in helicopters and airplanes.

Your modern-day Mountie could be a woman. But at Depot Division, the training center, there still is saluting, marching in parade, short hair and sharply pressed uniforms.

Addressing himself to the criticism, Supt. W. F. McRae, the chief training officer, says: "People are reacting to a visual relationship with the military."

"The military do foot drill and we do foot drill ... but to assume that this generates a kind of military mentality ... that's missing the point entirely. If we were doing that we'd be out of business."

"Police training requires that we gear the individual to respond. Police work is an individual response to every situation."

"Looking at discipline in that context is also a mistake because foot drill is not where discipline is learned. Foot drill is simply a technique for quick response, for quick obedience to a set of commands. Discipline is taught through experiencing the examples of things done the right way ... We must convince the student that the standards we are trying to achieve are worth while. Foot drill has nothing to do with discipline."

Chief Supt. H. P. Tadeson, the depot's commanding officer, said recruits themselves would like more marching and the public loves the pomp and ceremony, but the real work is done in classrooms.

MacRae said more than half of the six-month training course given as many as 640 male and female recruits at a time is spent on such academic subjects as law, human relations, psychology, crisis intervention, minority policing and community relations.

Work Out Agreement

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Motorists from Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and Virginia who are caught violating North Carolina traffic laws will no longer be jailed if they are unable to post bond.

Under an agreement worked out with the four states, North Carolina highway patrolman can issue citations and allow the out-of-state drivers to continue their journeys.

The agreement does not apply to offenses in which a conviction would result in mandatory suspension or revocation of driver's license, the patrol said.

The arrangement also applies to North Carolina drivers arrested in the four Mid-Atlantic states, authorities said.
