Commissioners Approve $17.69 Million Budget

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners Friday afternoon approved a budget for the county for the 1975-1976 fiscal year totaling $17.69 million.

In approving the budget—some $180,000 more than the $17.51 million originally recommended—commissioners held to the current tax rate of 62½ cents per $100 valuation for general expenses and 15-cents per $100 levies for current expenses in both the Greenville City and Pitt County school districts.

County Manager Reginald Gray explained that the higher-than-expected budget total was made possible—with no increase in the tax rate—due to several grants received in the past several days.

The grants, Gray said, which include no local funding requirements, include four law enforcement projects—one providing a group home. One mental health grant provides funds for the establishment of an Adult Day Activity Program.

Earlier, Gray explained that salaries—including new personnel and adjustments in some areas—accounted for a substantial portion of the total budget hike.

The county manager explained, however, that there were no merit raises approved in the budget for county employees. Neither was there a cost-of-living pay hike for county workers.

Gray indicated that, aside from the new grant programs included, commissioners made relatively few changes in the total budget package from the recommendations made to the board initially.

Major reductions reflected in the 1975-1976 fiscal package are in the areas of health and revenue sharing.

Federal revenue sharing funds included in the list for the coming year total $1.23 million as compared with $1.47 million last year. Gray noted that this reflects a $61,000 cut in revenue sharing dollars, as well as a smaller amount of carry-over than was on hand at the beginning of the 1974-1975 fiscal year.

Gray said, too, that a large reduction is reflected in the Health Department budget figures.

He explained that a $293,000 figure included for contractural services for the Health Department listed as part of the General Fund reflects only Pitt County money going for support of the program, and does not reflect state and federal monies as did the current year's budget.

But as has been the case for the past several years, education received the "lion's share" of the increases.

News Briefs

Record Ransom

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Left-wing Peronist guerrillas claim they have received $60 million, a world record ransom, for the release of two industrialist brothers.

Family members confirmed the Montoneros guerrillas released Jorge Born, 41, on Friday. They also disclosed that his 39-year-old brother, Juan, had been freed secretly 45 days ago. The brothers are directors in Bunge y Born, a large agricultural and industrial complex with international interests.

German Demonstration

HEIDELBERG, Germany (UPI) — Police used water cannon, tear gas and night sticks Saturday to disperse about 1,000 rock-throwing leftwing demonstrators protesting planned increases of bus and streetcar fares.

A police spokesman said 10 officers and five demonstrators were injured in the clashes in downtown streets of this south German university town.

Ten demonstrators were taken into temporary custody, he said.

Recovery Expedition

MOSCOW (AP) — A Russian climber will lead an expedition in the Soviet Pamiers to recover the bodies of his wife and seven other women who died on Lenin Peak last summer in one of international mountaineering's worst disasters.

The newspaper Soviet Sport reported that Vladimir Shatayev and a 24-man expedition would climb the peak this summer.

Perfect Launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A huge remote control telescope designed to study the sun and perhaps unravel some of the mystery of the "black holes" in space was blasted into a "perfect" circular orbit 343 miles above earth Saturday.

The one-ton Orbiting Solar Observatory 8 (OSO), last of a series of space telescopes which first went into operation in 1962, began transmitting data within an hour after launching. Three of its eight separate data gathering systems were activated Saturday morning and the remaining five were to be turned on within the next four days, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

Money Recovered

BAIE COMEAU, Quebec (AP) — Police say they have recovered two sacks containing more than $1 million stolen from a branch of the Canadian National Bank in Quebec's largest bank holdup.

Tracking dogs led police to the loot hidden in a wooded area about 15 miles from a bank branch which was robbed Thursday, police said.

Last Fighter Leaves

BANGKOK (UPI) — The last F111 swing-wing fighter bombers left for the United States Saturday as part of the coninuing withdrawal of American forces from Thailand, a U.S. military spokesman announced.

The spokesman said 16 of the warplanes left Korat Air Base northeast of Bangkok Saturday for the first leg of the flight to Ellis Air Force Base, Nev., where they will join 13 other F111s that left June 15.

"Work And Pray" Solution

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI, celebrating the 12th anniversary of his election to the papacy, today offered a crowd of 25,000 Italians from the backward south the old adage "work and pray" as the solution to their social and spritual problems.

"Unfortunately our times are marked by the separation of these two words," he said. "It is of course necessary to earn an honest living, but we must not forget to look especially to the higher search of God and spiritual values."

NVN, VC Forces Battle Cambodian Communists

By STEWART HENSLEY
UPI Diplomatic Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces have fought pitched battles with Cambodian Communists in Cambodia and seem to be preparing for clashes in Laos as well, administration officials said Saturday.

They said this information comes from thoroughly reliable sources and from Americans still in certain Southeast Asian areas.

Hanoi's readiness to fight neighboring Communist-led armies on their home grounds, they said, has fueled fears in Southeast Asia that North Vietnam may be planning to make an empire of the region.

High-ranking American officials, however, are not convinced that Hanoi really means to embark on conquest. But they said intelligence reports do indicate that Hanoi's military and political agents are running Cambodia and some other places while allowing the local authorities to keep up appearances of control.

The administration officials said the Cambodian fighting took place in border regions and could have been caused either by centuries-old frontier disputes or by North Vietnam's refusal to withdraw troops from sanctuaries established during the Vietnam War.

They said some of the fighting occured near the Parrot's Beak frontier of South Vietnam, where U.S. troops made their "limited incursion" of Cambodia in 1970 to attack North Vietnamese and Viet Cong havens. Other North Vietnamese units regularly moved through Laos and Cambodia along the Ho Chi Minh trail and its tributary routes.

Education Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Appropriations Committee, which has recommended $7.6 billion for school and college aid, Saturday accused the administration of underestimating the nation's school problems and needs.

The committee's bill was nearly $339.9 million higher than a House-approved money bill and over $1.5 billion higher than the administration sought. In an accompanying report, members said the administration's budget requests for education were "unrealistic or insufficient."

$1,429,862 Bids On County School

J.H. Hudson, Inc. was low bidder for construction of the Belvoir-Stokes-Pactolus Middle School on land north of Greenville on US. 13 at the N.C. 903 intersection.

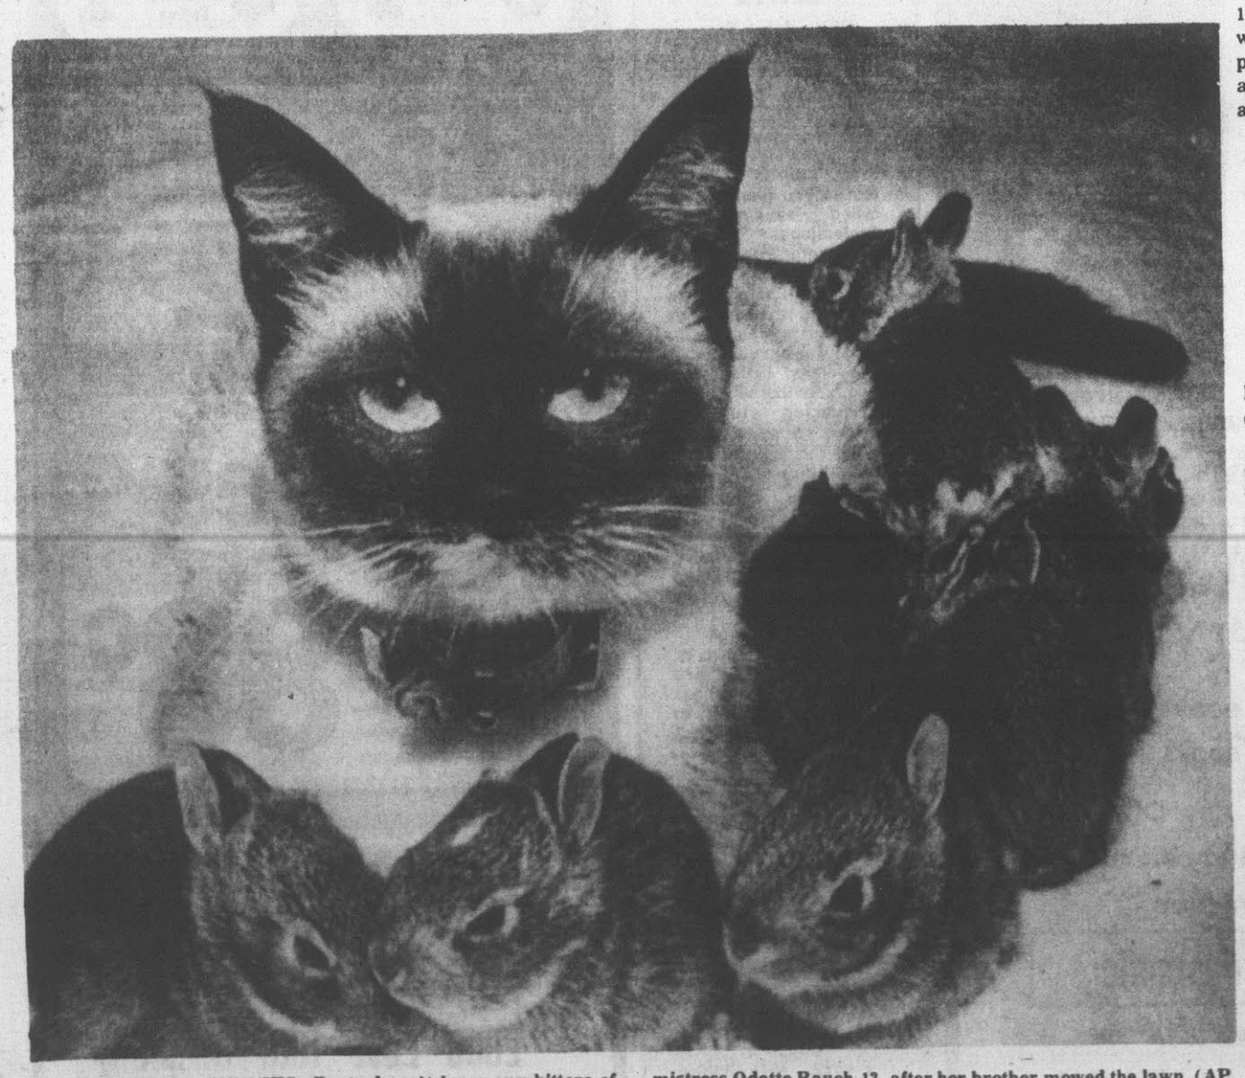

Hudson's low bid, including all alternates, was $961,200. County School Supt. Ott Alford said no action was taken on the bids which were received Thursday afternoon.

Electricon, Inc. was low bidder for the electrical work on the school. Its bid, including alternates, was $122,700. The low bidder for the plumbing was Brewer Plumbing Heating and Air Conditioning at $128,982. Low bidder for heating and air conditioning was Electricon at $216,980.

There were six bidders for the general construction; five for electrical work; ten for plumbing and five for heating and air conditioning.

The low bids, including all alternates totalled $1,429,862. Alford said $1,528,000 has been budgeted for the school. Architect's fees are in addition to the bids. Alford said $500,000 of the funds budgeted are included in the 1975-76 capital outlay budget. The remaining funds are on hand.

Alford said the plans duplicate the building at Farmville and there will be a reduction in architect's fees because of this. He said school officials were pleased with the bids received. The new school will house grades six, seven and eight.

Women's Prison Quiet

RALEIGH (UPI) — Extra guards remained on duty at the North Carolina women's prison Saturday after a week of protests, work boycotts and two violent disorders.

But the facility remained peaceful and officials announced Saturday that inmates would be allowed to receive two visitors from their immediate family on Sunday for one hour —the first admission of outsiders to the prison grounds since the protests began.

Prisons Director Ralph D. Edwards has ordered 33 of the "worst inmate offenders" in the disorders removed from the prison and sent to the previously all-male Western Correctional Center at Morganton. Another 60 of the 400 inmates have been placed in a separate dormitory for reclassification, meaning they are being considered for discipline measures such as loss of priviledges.

Edwards said, however, that it remains uncertain whether any of the women will face criminal charges as a result of the disturbances.

Eleven women and six guards were injured in a clash Monday and Thursday night 21 inmates, 18 guards and three matrons were hurt in a melee that first pitted guards against inmates and then nonprotesting inmates against protestors.

State Buys Jockey's Ridge

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina invested in much sand Friday.

The state bought 90 acres of Jockey's Ridge for $975,000 and accepted as gifts 44 additional acres.

Jockey's Ridge, located on coastal North Carolina, includes the highest sand dune in the eastern United States. The state is getting the land for a state park.

Included in the 134 acres acquired by the state is the top of the highest peak and more than half of the two dunes.

James Harrington, secretary of the state Department of Natural and Economic Resources, said 400 acres will be needed for a successful state park. And he said that the 134 acres added to land purchases planned by the state brings the total to 250 acres.

The persons selling the land Friday, who are the same ones who gave the state 44 acres, were given their checks in a ceremony in Manteo.

Interior Minister Killed

COTONOU, Dahomey (UPI) — Presidential guards caught Interior Minister Michel Aikpe Friday in the act of adultery with the wife of President Mathieu Kerekou and shot him to death, a government spokesman announced Saturday.

The spokesman said the guards acting on a tip broke into Aikpe's home in central Cotonou during the evening. The minister and Mrs. Kerekou were "surprised in flagrante delicto of adultery," the spokesman said.

The youthful minister tried to flee from his home and the guards ordered him to halt. When he ignored their commands, they shot him, the spokesman said.

Government sources said the president's wife was "in good health" but they said they did not know any other details of the incident.

The Republic of Dahomey in west Africa is a former French colony.

Portuguese Government Curbs Politics, Press

By NAT GIBSON

LISBON (UPI) — Portugal's military rulers launched the nation toward a classless socialist state Saturday, curbing political parties and press and threatening armed action against extremists.

For the first time, the Revolutionary Council made Portugal's membership in NATO conditional on preservation of the European status quo and said measures would be taken against foreign correspondents the government considered counter-revolutionary.

A sweeping 5,000-word policy statement by the council warned that the working class would have to tighten its belt to destroy capitalism and replace it with an egaliatarian socialist state that bore a close resemblance to the governments of Eastern Europe.

The council said political parties still had a role to play in its "pluralistic road" to socialism, but restricted them from turning the recently elected constituent assembly into a public forum for the discussion of government policy.

It called the ruling Armed Forces Movement a "national liberation movement" and said "internal decolonization" was one of its main tasks.

The left-of-center Popular Democratic party issued a communique saying it backed the military's support of political pluralism, which in Portuguese jargon is generally considered to mean the political parties, while maintaining a stony silence over other elements in the document.

Second Body Recovered

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The Navy recovered the body Saturday of the second man killed in Thursday's crash of a helicopter about six miles offshore.

The body of Lawrence W. Kamas, 38, of Moyock, N.C., an aviation anti-submarine warfare officer, was found near the sunken helicopter, a Navy spokesman said.

The body of the pilot, Lt. Cmdr. Harold Guinn, 35, of Virginia Beach, Va., was recovered near the same spot Friday.

Fire Sweeps Hotel

VICTORIA, B.C. (UPI) — Fire flashed through a 70-year old hotel in a rundown sector of the city early Saturday, killing three guests and injuring 11 others. Scores of persons were rescued, many as they screamed for help from window sills and outer ledges.

Fire officials said the blaze, believed to have started in a guest's room on the second floor of the brick, seven-story, 125-room Royal Olympic Hotel, was brought under control less than 90 minutes after it erupted shortly before 2 a.m. PDT.

But rescue work was hampered by dense suffocating smoke from the old, recently renovated hotel.

Police said two of the three victims apparently died of smoke inhalation in their rooms, while the third suffered severe burns in a corridor.

Police identified two of the dead as Mrs. Elizabeth Mae Towers, 20, of Trail, B.C., and Mrs. Lorna Anne Minnis, 50, of Vancouver.

The identity of the third victim, a 94-year old man, was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Police said three of the 11 injured persons were released after treatment in hospital. the remaining eight were reported in satisfactory condition.

"We got there within minutes of the alarm but the building was already fully engulfed by flames," a fire department spokesman said.

"Some people were sitting in windows and on ledges, terrified and screaming," he said.

Most of the guests in the hotel, which housed many elderly retirement-age persons, waited for rescue by firemen.

Disapproves Shifting Tobacco Allotments

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Farmers and warehousemen from northwestern North Carolina have expressed their disapproval of a proposal to allow flue-cured tobacco allotments to be shifted from county to county.

The opposition was voiced Friday during a three-hour meeting with five Congressmen.

The farmers said they feared that changes in the allotment system would drive up the price of allotments beyond the reach of small farmers.

They said the result would be a centralization of tobacco farming among large growers in eastern North Carolina and other tobacco-rich areas.

Rep. M. Dawson Mathis, D-Ga., who was at the meeting, has sponsored a bill allowing such allotments to be switched between counties.

Mathis said 72 per cent of the tobacco farmers in Georgia favored the plan. He added that George counties needed an easy system of allotment transfer because they were so small.

"It could be disastrous," said Otis P. Joyce, president of the Old Belt Warehouse Association. "The large farming interests would centralize growing. It could result in a decrease of small and medium-sized farms."

Other lawmakers at the three-hour hearing were Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C., Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., Rep. Steve Neal, D-N.C., and Rep. William Wampler, R-Va.

Farmville Woman Named Peace Officer Of Month

PEACE OFFICER. . . of the month for April 1975 in the Mid-East Region is PFC Genevieve "Jenny" Horne Childers. Here she is shown receiving the award from Farmville Police Chief Donald Hibbert. The presentation was made at a ceremony in Farmville recently.

FARMVILLE—Pfc. Genevieve "Jenny" Horne Childers, the town's first female police officer, was honored as Peace Officer for April. The award, initiated by the Mid-East Criminal Justice Planning Division, recognizes outstanding law enforcement officers in the Mid-East Region, made up of Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford, Martin and Pitt Counties.

Since being sworn in as a police officer, Jenny Childers has assumed the position of chief dispatcher, supervising two full time dispatchers in the Farmville department.

W.A. Martin, town administrator, characterized Pfc. Childers as a "really dedicated police officer". Her co-workers in the police department speak highly of her efficient performance and count her a great asset to the Farmville Police Department.

In her duties as a dispatcher, Officer Childers handles the department's sophisticated communications equipment, maintaining constant radio contact with all police vehicles out on patrol and individual units of the Farmville rescue squad.

Clerical work in the department is taken care of by Jenny Childers, who also sets up schedules for the two dispatchers under her supervision.

Jenny Childers first came to the Farmville Police Department in March of 1971. Since that time she has received formal education in law enforcement duties by attending narcotics training sessions at Wilson Technical Institute and seminars on the work of a police dispatcher, held in area technical institutes.

Pfc. Childers was honored as the Peace Officer for the month during a meeting of the Farmville Town Council. Ahoskie Police Chief Donald Hibbert made the presentation.

American Mercenaries Serving In Rhoesia

BY HODARI ALI

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American mercenaries are fighting in the Rhodesian army against black guerillas and more are being recruited with State Department knowledge, according to Rhodesian black nationalists and U.S. officials.

A State Department official said the government is checking to see whether any laws have been broken, but has done nothing to stop the white mercenary recruiting so far.

"About 60 Americans are there already fighting and many more are being actively recruited in the United States," said Tapson Mawere, chief U.S. representative of the Zimbabwe (Rhodesian) African National Union.

ZANU seeks black majority rule for Rhodesia, where minority white settlers declared independence from Britain in 1965 and have governed the country since despite worldwide protests.

Temple Cole, the State Department's country desk officer for Rhodesia, said "there are certainly indications" that Mawere's description of mercenary recruiting is accurate.

Cole identified the recruiter as "Robert K. Brown of an organization called Phoenix Associates, near Denver, Colorado."

Contacted by telephone, Brown confirmed he has been recruiting white mercenaries since September and said Phoenix Associates aims to "merchandise information on mercenary opportunities abroad."

He said his advertisements have drawn "about 300" responses, but he did not know how many Americans have actually joined the Rhodesian army.

"I have no official or unofficial contact with any country," Brown said. "I am not an agent for a foreign power,"

Mawere also claimed American mercenaries bound for Rhodesia are being trained at the Quantico Marine Base in Virginia, disguised as South African troops.

Cole denied knowledge of any such training, but said the State Department is checking into Brown's recruiting efforts "to see if there is a violation of law."

"The obvious violation of law would be whether he is acting as an agent for a foreign power without being registered with the State Department," he explained.

Under the law, Americans who serve in foreign armies may be liable to lose their U.S. citizenship.

Gangster Sam Giancana Killed In Illinois

CHICAGO (UPI) — The underworld mob likely killed aging gangster Sam Giancana to keep him from "singing" to a federal grand jury about crime syndicate operations around the world, investigators said Saturday.

A member of the Senate Intelligence Committee investigating alleged CIA assassination plots against Cuban Premier Fidel Castro called the slaying an "obvious rubout." Giancana, 67, linked to the alleged CIA murder plots, was to appear before the committee.

"Our theory was that he was taking mob money and investing it. We wanted to know how," said Peter F. Vaira, head of a Justice Department strike force in Chicago which had been trying to get Giancana to talk about overseas mob investments.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., said federal protection had not been ordered for another underworld mob witness, John Roselli, because "he has not asked for protection" and "because I have no idea what was behind the obvious rubout of Mr. Giancana."

One of the six bullets that cut him down in the basement kitchen of his suburban Oak Park home Thursday night was a hit near the mouth. The others were fired into his head and neck.

Giancana apparently was cooking sausages and spinach when he was cut down. Investigators said the amount of food being prepared indicated Giancana may have been cooking a meal for both himself and his killer.

A free-wheeling spender in his day as Chicago's top crime boss, Giancana was a longtime boyfriend of Phyllis McGuire of the singing McGuire sisters and an acquaintance of many Las Vegas personalities, including Frank Sinatra.

On Thursday, a number of cronies and family members gathered at Giancana bungalow. The arrivals were watched by law officers, it was reported, and it was believed someone who attended the welcoming celebration stayed long enough to murder him.

Investigators said that in past appearances before federal grand juries, Giancana had been asked only about crime syndicate operations outside the United States and investment of syndicate cash in projects throughout the world.

Gangland fear of what he might say if questioned again could have led to his death.

Law officials also said subsequent investigations abroad had indicated Giancana may have lied about mob operations in Mexico, where he lived for many years, and that he could have been charged with perjury.

A dozen armadillos are being infested with leprosy bacillae in laboratory experiments and researchers say the acillae are growing extremely well in armadillo bodies.

"They have low body temperatures," said Dr. Charles Sheperd of the national Center for Disease Control (CDC).

Falkland Tax Rate Adopted

FALKLAND—Following a series of meetings held last week, the town council of Falkland has unanimously approved a 1975-76 property tax of 75 cents per $100 valuation, an increase of 30 cents over last year's property tax.

A total budget should be approved next week, according to Falkland Mayor Bill Jones. It will be the first year in nearly a century that the town has had a budget, Jones said. The budget is necessary due to the use of federal funds by the town and the need for their accountability. The delay in approval stems from the need to wait for the funds to arrive, Jones said.

The tax increase was needed because of higher utilities charges, higher police salaries, increased expense of operating the new sanitation system and other increased town costs, Jones said. "The increase is necessary if Falkland is to continue to operate as a town," he added.

Tips On Summer Saving Of Electricity Listed

By JORDY WHICHARD
Reflector Staff Writer

The majority of Pitt County's residents will be trying to cut back on their use of electricity during the summer. According to a Greenville Utilities rate schedule, electric rates have risen by nearly 30 per cent over last year. The only way consumers can save money is by altering their use of electricity.

Many of the people who were questioned said that their largest area of conservation this summer will be in the reduction of air conditioning use. Some consumers indicated that they will shut their units down completely, while others plan to cut down mainly during the evening hours.

Residents also offered other suggestions for conserving electricity this summer. Mrs. Emma May of Greenville plans to use her charcoal grill more to cut the cost of cooking on her electric stove.

Mrs. James Hardee, also of Greenville, plans to use her electric clothes dryer as seldom as possible by switching to a "fresh air" clothes line.

There are some people, though, who can see no way to cut down any more on their use of electricity than they have already done. Greenville resident Mrs. Alma Heath says "I'm sure everyone will try to use less electricity, but there is only so much that we can do without." Many people feel that they reached their point of minimum use last year, and wonder how they can save money on electricity this summer.

Greenville Utilities Director Charles Horne says that you can help save money in the long run even if you cannot cut down on electricity usage. Everyone can do this by keeping the peak use of energy as low as possible. Horne says the highest peak of energy use occurs from 5 to 7:00 p.m. on the hotter days of the summer. The price of electricity for the entire is based on 90 per cent of this demand peak. If the demand peak is kept low, prices may also decrease. Horne urges that everyone do what they can to keep the demand peak low, and offers these suggestions to help: try to wash dishes later than 7:00 at night, or wait until the next morning; keep air conditioners set high at all times, but especially during the peak demand period; do not do laundry during these times if at all possible; cook supper on outdoor grills or before the peak demand period.

The Greenville Utilities Commission also offers these more general suggestions for conserving electricity during the hot summer months. Try to keep air conditioners set at about 75 degrees or higher during the day, and up to 78 degrees during the nights. Never burn lights or run electrical appliances when not actually in use. Remember to check air conditioner filters and replace them if necessary. Insulate house wherever possible. Remember that a shower uses about one-half as much hot water as a bath.

Director Horne emphasises these suggestions and adds "if Pitt consumers make wiser use of electricity, it will help to hold down utilities prices."

Man First President Of Women's Conference

By MATTHEW T. KENNY

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — An Iranian princess heading her country's delegation to the International Women's Year Conference has donated $1 million to the United Nations, according to a feminist publication.

Princess Ashraf, sister of the Shah of Iran, is prepared to make a second $1 million contribution if Iran's proposal for establishment of an international women's institute is adopted, the newspaper Xilonen said.

Xilonen, official paper of the IWY Tribune, a feminist forum running concurrently with the U.N.-sponsored IWY Conference, said Princess Ashraf gave U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim a check for $1 million following the opening of the two-week conference last Thursday.

The conference was in recess over the weekend and neither the Princess nor a U.N. spokesmen was immediately available for comment.

At a meeting of IWY Tribune Friday, American feminist Betty Friedan said the election of a man —Mexican Attorney Gen. Pedro Ojeda Paullada — as president of the IWY Conference was "an insult to women."

"To make a man the president of the first international women's conference held by the United Nations is really an insult to women," Friedan said.

Speakers at the conference have included Egyptian First Lady Jihan Sadat, who criticized Israel's occupation of "Arab land," and Philippines First Lady Imelda Marcos, who warned feminists not to become "anti-male."

One half of the $1 million donated by Princess Ashraf was earmarked to help pay for International Women's Year activities, according to Xilonen, and the other $500,000 was given for establishment of an Institute for Research and Information on the Status of Women by the U.N.'s Economic Commission for Asia and the Pacific.

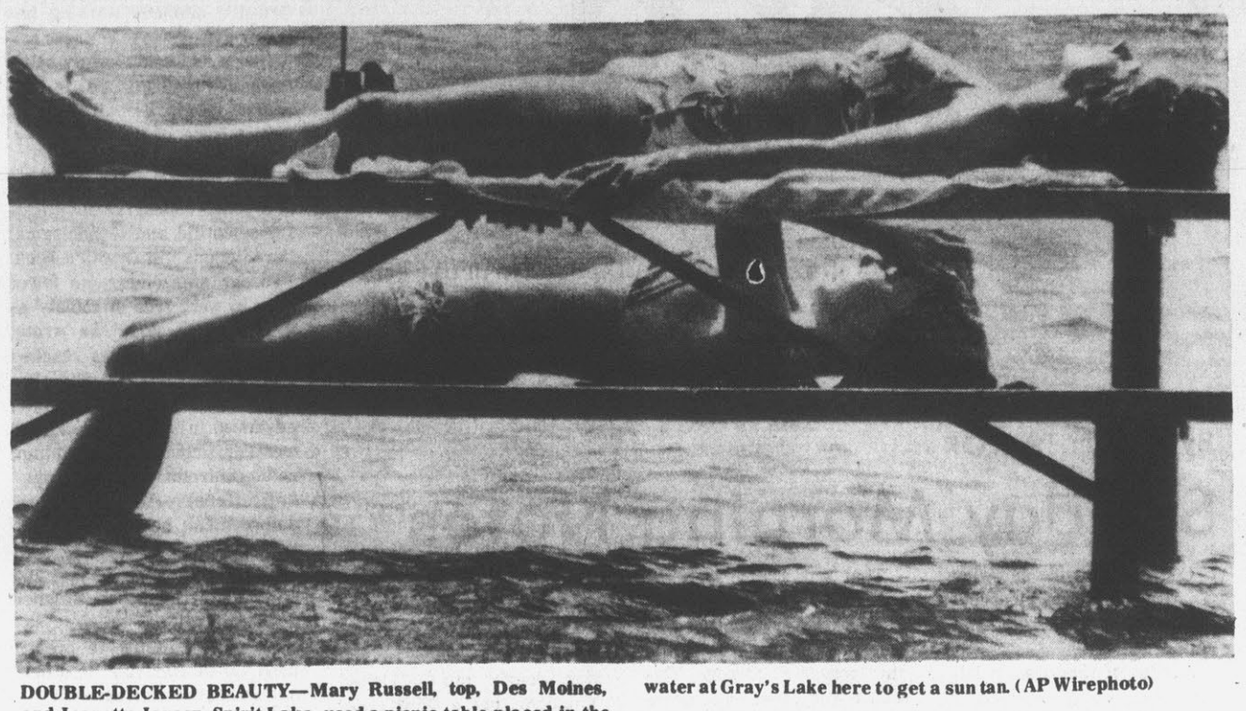

Iran is ready to put up another $1 million if a proposal for creation of an International Institute of Research and Information for the Advancement of Women is adopted, according to the newspaper.

Cover Girl Wedding

PARIS (UPI) — Million dollar New York cover girl Margaux Hemingway, 20, and hamburger baron Errol Wetson, 34, were married Saturday and later honeymooned in the favorite hotel of her late grandfather, Ernest Hemingway.

The couple wore pristine white—Margaux a ruffled cotton eyelet Victorian-style gown and the mustached groom a white suit, shirt and tie. They said "oui" in a civil ceremony in the office of Paris's first district near the Louvre museum.

Then the ranch girl from Ketchum, Idaho, giggled and joked her way through a champagne reception for the small wedding party at the Hotel Ritz where "Papa" Hemingway was a familiar fixture beginning in the 1920's.

Hangup On Public And Higher Education

State Budget Still Deadlocked

RALEIGH (AP)—House and Senate budget conferees will go at it once more Monday morning after failing again Friday to reach agreement on state spending for public schools and higher education.

Senate and House members stood fast to their positions, neither side willing to compromise. "You're not in a mood to give ground and we're not in a mood to give ground. Somebody higher up has got to tell us what to do," Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, told House conferees.

While Scott looked heavenward for a solution, Rep. Kitchin Josey, D-Halifax, offered a more down to-earth solution: "We ought to stay here like a jury and lock us in if it takes 15 ballots to reach a decision." Senate conferees objected.

The budget is the only matter between the legislature and adjournment of this session. The Senate and House had each approved their own version of the $6.6 billion budget for 1975-1976. The conference committee must work out the differences.

One obstacle is the Senate's insistence in raising tuition at state universities $50 a year for residents and $100 for non-resident students. That would produce $4.6 million a year.

But, House conferees want no increase. "You're raising tuition when families are out of work," Josey said.

After Friday afternoon's session, Rep. William Watkins, D-Granville, chairman of the House Base Budget Committee, said in an interview that spending for the public schools' publicity department has also blocked agreement.

That department's appropriation of $343,140 a year was cut by $323,000 by the House. That would reduce the number of employes from 18 to the director, a secretary and three duplicator operators, Watkins said.

House conferees agreed to compromise and cut only eight positions, but "the Senate would not agree," Watkins said.

Adjournment of the legislature remained cloudy Friday as House and Senate conferees trying to hammer out a state budget agreeable to both sides were still deadlocked. Spending for public schools and higher education was the hangup.

Each chamber came up with its own form of the budget and the conferees are trying to resolve differences. The session can't end until a budget for 1975-1976 is adopted.

Senators want to raise tuition at state universities $50 a year for residents and $100 a year for non-residents. The House won't go along with any increase.

On public schools, one member of the committee said the public relations department is the problem. The House wants to cut the $343,140 a year budget by $232,000. That would reduce the staff of 18 to the director, a secretary and three duplicator operators.

Senators objected to that cut and still refused to go along when House conferees agreed to eliminate only eight positions.

Earlier Friday, a joint meeting of the House and Senate confirmed the nomination of W. Lester Teal Jr. to the state Utilities Commission. Several lawmakers lauded Teal's qualifications and urged his acceptance. The vote was unanimous.

No arrests had been made early Saturday afternoon.

Named in the warrants were Arthur Ray Reed, 32, of Oxford, Steve Weldon Clark, 23, of Oxford and Robert Lee Towns, 23, of Henderson.

Last week authorities reported some severely retarded patients at the center had burns on their necks that were believed to have been caused by a cigarette lighter. The State Bureau of Investigation has been called in to help local authorites with the investigation.

Doctor, Patients Robbed

GREENSBORO (AP) — Three men, one of them complaining of an aching back, robbed a chiropractor and nine of his patients Friday, leaving their victims, some of them bound and in various stages of undress, in tiny, heat-stifling rooms.

Police said no one was injured in the robbery at the office of Dr. John J. Faga, but the bandits escaped with a little less than $600 in cash and an undetermined amount of jewelry.

The Mecklenburg Presbytery sought to restore the cutback for overseas personnel, saying inflation abroad placed an undue hardship on missionaries.

Strike Threat By ILA

WILMINGTON — A strike has been threatened by the International Longshoremen's Association in the face of disagreements in negotiations between the dockworkers and the state.

Fred Field Jr., a union organizer, said he advised the state on Friday that if no agreement if reached between the ILA and the state that the union will strike in Wilmington and Morehead City July 7.

Field said state representatives turned down proposals for a 15 per cent wage increase and for maintenance of the union. He said they also failed to offer salary increases and balked at the proposals to require all hourly employes to be union members.

The state's chief negotiator, Transportation Secretary Jacob Alexander, could not be reached for comment.

A statement issued by the department's public relations office said a labor contract originally scheduled to end June 30 had been extended to July 7. The prospect of a strike was not mentioned.

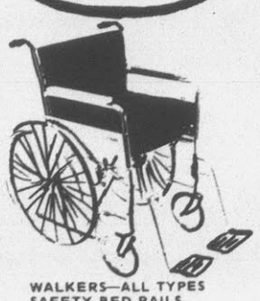

Reviews Programs

On Thursday evening the Pitt County Historical Society had its final meeting of this calendar year at the Greenville Golf and Country Club. After the dinner Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives, president, reviewed the programs given during the year. He stated that as a reminder of our heritage the Society had contributed to Greenville flags to fly at the Town Common.

In a brief memorial he paid tribute to the late Mr. Charles White, a former president of the Society and an active member who had contributed a great deal to the Society.

Dr. Rives spoke of the topic "North Carolina in the Eighteenth Century."

The Society will have its next meeting in September.

Tobacco Production Changing

Production of flue cured tobacco is changing so rapidly that is it difficult for us who grew up with old methods of growing and harvesting to comprehend it all.

But John S. Campbell, vice president for research and development, American Leaf Organization, Imperial Tobacco Limited brought some of the changes into focus at a meeting of the Tobacco Merchants Association of the United States.

Campbell said 1974 will be looked back on as a major turning point in tobacco growing in our country.

Some ten to 12 percent of the U.S. bright leaf crop was harvested by single-row multi-harvest combines, somewhat similar to corn and cotton combines, that year. And, he said, bulk curing is replacing the old flue barn.

"In Canada in 1974 one man and four members of his family harvested and cured 110 acres of tobacco using one of the first two-row combine harvesters to come on the market," he said.

He said the N. C. State University aim is to produce one pound of tobacco from seed sowing to final cure per man minute of labor. That would be 35 man-hours for a 2,100 pound crop, and this goal must be reached as rapidly as possible.

"Mechanization will thus be the key to growing flue-cured tobacco and will allow prices of U.S. leaf, in its present form, to be competitive in the world market of the future," he continued.

Tobacco may be grown in a completely different way and sold in another form, depending on the manufacturer's being able to use the material produced and the competitiveness of the price.

In the future, "the art of the old operator is going to give way to the science of the new and the consumer is going to benefit from it, Campbell said.

Thus we can see there are going to be great changes ahead for tobacco production. This particular crop has always been saddled with high production costs because of the harvesting and curing procedures. New methods and more efficient production are rapidly changing all this. Our tobacco growers are changing because they have to in order to make a profit.

"Very well . . . is there any other constructive criticism concerning the Speaker's leadership ability?"

Orwell Inches Nearer

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A quarter-century ago, British author George Orwell described a chilling police state of the future in a best-selling novel whose title, "1984," contained both prophesy and warning.

In that year, his fictional characters lived in a nightmarish totalitarian society ruled by Big Brother, who used electronic technology, brainwashing and "thought police" to banish all individual privacy, unorthodox ideas and creative expression.

Many of Orwell's horrors became fixed in postwar language and thinking, and "1984" remains a watchword for any repressive tendencies in government.

David A. Goodman, a psychobiologist at the Newport Neuroscience Center in Culver City, Calif., believes that Orwell's ominous warning has been ignored.

"Today's world already bears uncanny resemblance to Orwell's 1984," he wrote in a recent issue of Human Behavior magazine.

Three years ago, Goodman and some colleagues identified 137 scientific and technological "predictions" in Orwell's book. "To our amazement, no fewer than 80 were true of society as it existed in 1972," he wrote, and today the list has reached 100.

Goodman cited Orwellian advances in warfare, including weather control, defoliation, radio-controlled "smart bombs" and offensive lasers. In law enforcement, he mentioned the Watergate-era reality of government computer banks and powerful electronic surveillance devices.

Prison Building Plans Cut

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Four walls, the poet opined, do not a prison make.

Members of the General Assembly have apparently agreed as they took the sharpest budget-cutting axes to the massive prison-building plans of Corrections Secretary David Jones.

The situation boiled down to one of philosophy as much as anything else: Jones has pleaded overcrowding the system (13,000 inmates in space designed for 10,000) and need for single cells to keep hard cases and newcomers separated.

Assemblymen, facing squarely the economic squeeze, paid more attention to alternative ideas put forth from a variety of sources that presently empty space could be used for prisoners, that prisoners could build single cell units for themselves in existing units, that more prisoners could be paroled earlier, that the inmates were not compaining so much of lack of space as they were of the lack of anything to do to occupy their time.

All new capital building projects put forth by Corrections were eliminated by the legislature—a total of $38 million for three new single-cell prisons, and some $10 million to rebuild Raleigh's Central. Jones initially had plans totalling between $100 million and $200 million. That was trimmed by the governor and the Advisory Budget Commission.

Insiders now predict that Corrections will be forced to look at methods to get the prisoners out of their crowded quarters and into more rehabilitation programs and work projects, as well as exploring the possibility of using vacant state facilities such as training schools or hospitals for housing.

Other Cuts

Salary increases for state employees is the focus of most of the money-saving in the state budget for the coming two years, with no raises recommended in the first fiscal year beginning July 1; a token raise in the second fiscal year.

Legislators have signaled that they will be back in 1976 for a budget session, however, and conditions permitting will give another hard look at salaries with an eye to bigger raise for teachers and state employees.

Burn Center Set

Almost three years of study by medical experts, and intensive fund-raising projects by North Carolina Jaycees, will pay off early next year when construction gets underway on the Jaycees Burn Center to be built in Chapel Hill's Medical Center.

The 22-bed facility will have treatment rooms, therapy areas, and a special operating room for burn patients, allowing isolation to avoid contamination from other areas of the hospital.

The General Assembly has put up $1.2 million for the center, while pledges and gifts totaling over $800,000 has been solicited through the Medical Founation of North Carolina. About $500,000 of that will go toward equipping the burn center.

Jaycees carried out two jelly sale drives to raise over $250,000, and will continue to channel funds into the burn center from future sales.

Fix Bridges

The State Board of Transportation is moving to improve the safety of a number of old and substandard bridges in the state, in the wake of the collapse of a span at the Yadkin River in February taking four lives.

The board approved $1.5 million for warning signs, warning devices to halt motorists in case of a bridge collapse, and improved guard rails.

Sunday Morning Notes

Could Greenville be flying an historically incorrect Union Jack over its Town Common?

Shades of King George III, Hal Smith of Greenville thinks it's possible.

Hal noticed that the flag with the Union Jack in the corner (where the field of stars now is in the American flag) did not have the thin red lines superimposed on the white "X".

On the other hand the full Union Jack flag, which flies among the six that have flown over Greenville, did have the thin red red line.

That sent Hal to do some research on the British Union Jack. He learned that the flag was made up flag of England, the cross of St. George. This was a red cross on a white field. In the 1600s, King James combined Scotland's cross of St. Andrew with the cross of St. George, signifying the union of England and Scotland. Scotland's flag was a white "X", or diagonal cross on a blue field, and the union of these two crosses is what is seen in the corner of the 13-stripe flag which was used by the American colonies in 1775. So that flag on the Town Common is correct.

But, Hal maintains, it was not until 1801 when Ireland was brought into the United Kingdom that a third cross was added to the Union Jack. The cross of St. Patrick is the thin red diagonal line.

ALVIN TAYLOR

Thus, says Hal, "The Union Jack flying at the Town Common has the St. Patrick cross while the 1775 Grand Union flag of the colonies does not. So the flag we are showing is not of the 1774-1776 vintage, but a modern Union Jack. If the point was to show the various flags which have flown over Greenville, this one did not, unless we still had some Loyalists or Tories around in 1801."

Hal, a school counselor and Jaycee president, however, admits that he was not a history major and made a "C" in the only history course he took at ECU.

"Maybe I'd better hush before they decide to look over my records and take back my degree," he said as a second thought.

Anybody want to try to flunk Hal in history?

"How did your day go?" someone asked a pretty girl in a store last week.

"Only so-so," she replied. "My knight-in-shining armor didn't come along today."

Well, knights in shining armor just don't come along very often these days.

40 Years Ago Today

June 22, 1935

Pitt County tobacco farmers went to the polls today to express their sentiments on the crop control program inaugurated by the federal government two years ago to relieve congested markets and improve the price situation.

The election was called by the AAA as a means of sizing up the opinions of the growers after they had been given ample opportunity to see what their cooperation with the government meant to them.

Price conditions on the tobacco markets of the nation have been improved since the inauguration of the control movement and farmers here and elsewhere are in much better financial condition than they have been since the boom period immediately following the war.

The annual battle against typhoid fever and diptheria will begin in this county at Bethel and Bruce schools Monday morning at 9:00, it was announced today by Dr. N.T. Ennett, director of the Pitt County Department of Health.

Although typhoid vaccinations are free of charge, there will be a charge of 10 cents for a diptheria vaccination.

Other Editors Say Bad Combination

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

What's bad news for both the farmer and the consumer? At least part of the answer is a steadily declining wheat market in combination with climbing bread prices.

And John Sledge, president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, says farmers simply cannot afford to grow wheat at "starvation prices."

He pointed out recently that wheat sold for between $5 and $6 per bushel a year ago, while today it is priced at around $2.50.

To compound the farmer's situation, production costs are up considerably from last year. In some instances the prices the farmer receives for his wheat don't even cover the cost of nitrogen used in its production, much less other production costs or a return on labor and management.

Farmers can't be expected to go for all-out production and go broke in the process.

Depressed farm prices now will cut into farmers' production plans next year which could raise the specter of possible future shortages and this will definitely affect the consumer.

The profit incentive remains the key to ample production and a stable economy.

It is ironic that the American Bakers Association last year predicted $1 a loaf bread because of rising wheat prices.

"The facts are," said Sledge, "that a loaf of bread costs 15 per cent more now than it did a year ago, but the farm value of the wheat in that loaf is down 30 per cent. At today's wheat prices, there is only about five cents worth of wheat in a one-pound loaf of bread."

Unless current economic trends are reversed, farmers will continue to lose the means to produce as well as the incentive to do so.

The INSIDE REPORT

Real Politics Of Korea

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

SEOUL—The most important political development in this potential battleground for a shooting war is a deepening feeling by President Chung Hee Park's political opponents that, much as they deplore his harsh security measures, the anti-Park campaign by American liberals poses a worse danger to South Korea.

That feeling stems from widespread acceptance here of this axiom: internal disunity might induce North Korean dictator Kim Il Sung to attack or the U.S. Congress to remove American forces. If there was not a threat from the north, one highly placed opposition leader told us, "we would be in the streets denouncing Park. But now we must be quiet." He and his colleagues accordingly look with apprehension at American Congressmen, clergymen, civil libertarians and liberals for fear they will send the wrong message to Pyongyang and Washington.

The right message is that united opposition ot Communism takes precedence over internal politics with a totality never approached in South Vietnam. Furthermore, one reason for restraint by Park's political foes is that his security measures, while probably excessive, fall short of thorough repression. Less than a democracy today, South Korea is not a true police state either. Thus, it would be tragic irony if concern over Korean human rights triggered a war with ominous world implications.

Central to politcs here is a conscious decision by Gen. Park after coming to power 14 years ago. Heeding the teachings of Mao Tse-tung, Park courted the countryside by channelling a disproportionately high share of Korea's runaway prosperity (17 per cent annual growth before the world oil crisis) to rural areas. The results: a countryside that not only delivers huge election majorities for Park and strongly supports him today but is immune to guerrilla warfare. Communist agents slipping down from the north are immediately reported to the police.

The antithesis is the anti-Park urban middle class of Seoul, particularly intellectuals and students who are Park's loudest critics and the target of his security decrees. But the students lack broad support. Leaders of the opposition New Democratic Party (NDP), generally deploring Park's suppression of dissent in his May 13 decree, say privately his ban on student demonstrations is probably necessary while the northern threat continues.

Actually, the May 13 decree has resulted in only two arrests. both non-political, a fact derived from opposition and diplomatic sources—one arrest for forged travel documents, the other for currency manipulation. A demonstration at Seoul National University was halted and the students expelled, but nobody was imprisoned.

The decree has ended all public criticism but not all political discourse, as witness what happened here after a U.S. Senate subcommittee revealed a clandestine $4 million contribution by Gulf Oil to Park's ruling Democratic Republican Party in 1971.

Although not a word appeared in the shackled Seoul press, news spread through the city's political grapevine. Accordingly, Oh Le Sung, a tough young NDP leader, rose in the National Assembly under protection of parliamentary immunity to ask the Prime Minister a pointed question about Gulf's payment.

But outside the assembly where he has no immunity, we heard Assemblyman Oh roast Park in front of pro-Park assembly members. A private citizen saying the same thing might promptly have been visited by the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, the nation's secret police fork. But the existence of even limited criticism indicates less than total repression.

Security restriction are challenged with Park's government. Foreign minister Kim Dong Jo, a diplomat (former ambassador to Tokyo and Washington) in a government of generals, is quietly attempting some relaxation of controls. There is no secret that he is supported, discreetly, by the U.S. embassy.

But Park, as we reported after our interview with him, is not budging. He tells aides

HE HAS LEFT US PEACE

The last gift which Christ gave to his disciples was peace. "Peace I leave with you, and peace I give unto you."

It is hard for us to convince ourselves that we can really have peace. We have longed for it, and our hearts have been famished in the waiting. We have sought it and have not found it. Yet Christ has given it to us and we are supposed to be in possession of it right now. Why do we not have it?

First, because many of us cannot believe that the offer is genuine. Again, we don't want to meet the conditions of the gift, most importantly, the disciplining of our lives until inner repose is possible.

Finally, many of us find it difficult to sustain our inner life by fellowship with God which comes about through prayer. Spiritual peace without spiritual fellowship is impossible. When we share the life of God through prayer, we also share in the peace which he conveys.

Production, Investment Linked

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A nation or a company's degree of productivity depends upon how wisely and effectively it uses its raw materials, capital, technology, energy, labor — all its resources — in obtaining production.

In the United States, productivity advances have been disappointing of late.

Output per man-hour in the total private economy fell 2.7 per cent last year and the first-quarter increase this year was 1 per cent. From 1966 through 1974 the rise has been 1.9 per cent a year, far below the long-term trend.

Whatever the reason, this slowing has caused alarm in government, management and labor circles.

"There is a general feeling of concern about the past eight years," says a member of the National Commission on Productivity and Work Quality. One area of concern is an insufficiency of capital investment.

Capital investment — in new plants and equipment — averaged 14.9 per cent of total U.S. output from 1960 through 1973. But, the commission points out, it averaged 28.9 per cent in Japan, 20.6 in France, 22.2 in Germany.

These percentages demonstrate that other nations are spending more for technological change, to mechanize and, therefore, to improve productivity. Capital investment generally means modern, efficient production.

For example, when the United States was founded two centuries ago it required a day's hand labor with a shovel to cut a ditch 20 inches wide, 4 feet deep and 20 feet long.

The Ames Co., which made shovels then and still does, consulted a local contractor near its Parkersburg, W.Va., plant and asked him how long it would take him to dig a similar ditch through similar material. "One minute," he replied.

The explanation: The contractor owned a wheel trencher that contained 32,000 pounds of technology and which represented a capital investment of around $40,000.

The productivity commission observes also that the United States is cutting back on the amount of research and development that goes into the productive effort, especially since less emphasis is being placed on the space effort.

In 1965, it notes, research and development as a percentage of the Gross National Product was 2,8 per cent. In 1974 it was 2.3 per cent.

In most other industrial nations, including the Soviet Union, the percentages are rising. While these figures are raw and say little about quality, they do suggest the United States is slipping in its quest for better ways to produce.

In output per man-hour, which is probably the most popular way of expressing productivity, U.S. manufacturers had one of the smallest average gains for the years 1970 through 1974 — 4.8 per cent.

By comparison, Japan achieved a 9.5 per cent gain, France 6, Germany 5.7, Italy 8.3. Of all the major industrial powers, only the United Kingdom, with its old plants and equipment and some bad work habits, averaged less.

Various reasons have been put for the relative decline: concentration of industrial power, labor restraints, overregulation at all levels of government, insufficient motivation, too much competition for capital. But few conclusive answers are available.

Is the situation permanent?

Observations From Editorial Columns

A Boon In Slippery Water

Some big brains have recently zeroed in on the problem of fighting fires, and one of the results, according to a recent report, is a simple, harmless chemical treatment of water before is passes through the firemen's hoses. The chemical reduces turbulence in the water, which flows then at a fantastically rapid rate; the increase is about 70 per cent in the flow from the hydrant to the fire.

They call this swift-flowing stuff "slippery water", and almost certainly there will be considerable thought given now to its other potential uses.

It may not be too farfetched to foresee a few benefits to the average household if, say, that chemical should be introduced into the public water supply (as with fluoride for our teeth).

We may find ourselves able to get the car washed or the flower bed watered in jig time. To say nothing of taking a (really) fast shower.

A Hard Lesson

Boca Raton is on the Florida east coast. It means rat's mouth, which in this case is an inlet to the sea. It was developed during the land boom of the '20s. nearly perished, and came back in the boom which followed World War II.

Boca Raton is what newspaper writers call plush or posh, meaning it has some high-priced ways of living.

Fine enough. Who's to complain? A citizen of Boca Raton no less, who successfully stopped an advertising campaign which said every 43rd person there has a million or more dollars.

What's wrong with that? Atlanta can tell you. Advertise your prosperity to the world and it attracts the reckless, the indigent and the unlucky from everywhere, seeking to share you good fortune, if necessary by force and Saturday night specials.

In case of special blessings, such as unusual prosperity, it is best to keep it a secret.

Anybody Home?

If you want to find a senator these days, the last place to look for him would be in the U.S. Senate.

The Wall Street Journal reported that out of a total of 100 senators, 44 failed to vote on vital energy legislation in 1973. Important appropriations bills have passed with less than half of the senators voting.

The principal reason so many senators are not on the floor for important votes is that they are making extra money on speaking tours. Our information is that the going rate for about a half hour of senatorial oratory is anywhere from $500 to $2500 per appearance. In 1973, some senators earned as much as $60,000 on the lecture circuit, more than the $42,500 they are paid to stay in Washington and tend to the nation's business.

Legislation has been proposed which would limit the size of speaking fees and the amount that could be earned each year by oratorical moonlighting. So far it has not passed. The Senate has shown little inclination to kill the goose that lays such golden eggs.

For many Americans, those who wish to see their senators should wire ahead and let them know they are coming. Otherwise the lawmakers may be out of town on—er—business.

Plants Are NOT Like People

You can stop singing to your philodendron. A panel of scientists convened in New York and voted 5-1 that there is no proof whatever that plants have emotions. All those who believe their plants lead secret lives, who play Bach for their African violets and whisper sweet nothings to their ferns, may find this hard to take. But them's the breaks.

Plants do have, the scientists said, electric currents flowing through them. These currents can be and have been measured. But no experimental evidence proves that plants have human-like emotions and respond to good or bad personal treatment. . .

Puttin' On The Spitz

We note with interest that officials in Framingham, Mass., are compiling what must be the world's first dog directory.

This is a bold move which has all kinds of social implications.

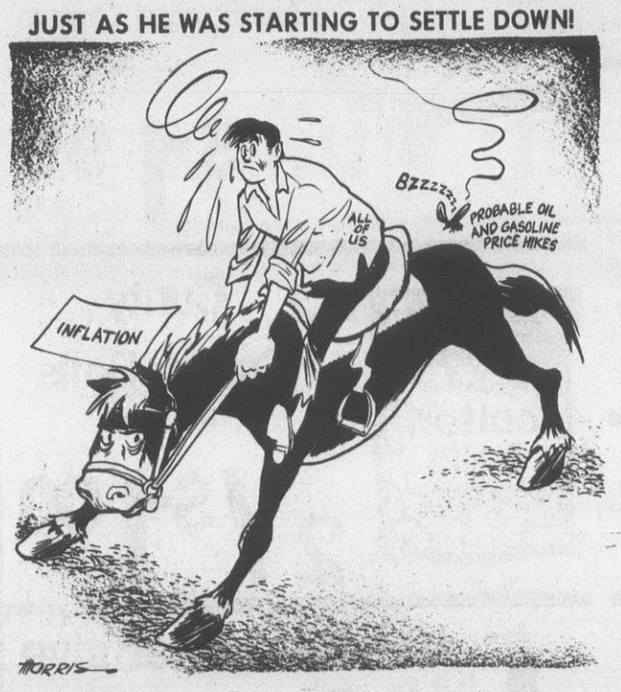

The next thing you know there will be a blue book listing only the best bred dogs. Then there'll be a list of the canine 400.

And then. . .

Well, as you can see, there's just no telling where it all might end.

Federal Bureaucracy Standing At The Bedside

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

DAYTON, Ohio—The federal government's involvement in health care grows larger all the time, and perhaps inevitably, the federal bureaucracy grows along with it. If you happen to be in the hospital business, your life has become an endless hassle.

The Kettering Medical Center, a teaching institution with 409 beds and a staff of 1,400, stands handsomely in a parklike setting just south of Dayton. Completed 11 years ago, it is as modern an institution as one could ask. By any rational standard, it is completely safe. But the Kettering is in deep trouble with the bureaucrats. More than a hundred other hospitals, in 35 states and the District of Columbia, are in the same fix.

In the bureaucratic view, the situation is pure heaven. For the harassed hospital administrators, the situation is something else. In some fashion, the administrators must satisfy the captious, conflicting, nit-picking, and sometimes foolish demands of competing agencies. If patients and taxpayers truly benefited from this rigamarole, the multiplying rules, regulations and inspections might be justified. No such benefits are apparent.

The Kettering's problems are entirely typical. At the time it was built, the medical center complied fully with the Ohio building code, the municipal fire code, the Hill-Burton construction requirements, and the demands of the underwriters. The hospital was inspected and accredited by the respected Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH).

Three years ago the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare got congressional approval for its notion that JCAH accreditations should be "validated." That is, the government's own inspectors, applying their own criteria, should check around. At random, the government selected 144 nospitals for validation. One of them was the Kettering Medical Center.

Last September the validators descended. Dr. M.H. Schaffner, Kettering's president, still is shaken by the experience. The surveyors praised the institution's construction and maintenance, but the team from HEW had its paperwork job to do. By applying its own standards, HEW compiled a bristling "statement of deficiencies." The hospital was ordered promptly to submit a plan of correction.

One complaint had to do with the hospital's airflow system. It was immaterial to the HEW surveyors that the system was safe, efficient, and fully in compliance with state and local requirements. Kettering's windows are kept locked—a key is at every nursing station—for sound reasons of patient secutity and airflow engineering. Never mind, said the bureaucrats. The fenestration must be redesigned and replaced so that windows may be opened. If a sick or deranged patient falls or jumps to his death, too bad.

A hassle developed over wastebaskets. The validators said plastic liners were prohibited, lest a spark ignite a bag and create toxic smoke. Dr. Schaffner said plaintively that if he took the bags out of the wastebaskets, he could be cited by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Under OSHA regulations, the liners are required, lest hospital workers be infected by handling contaminated trash. An informal compromise was reached: Dr. Schaffner would take the liners out while the HEW inspectors were on the scene, and put them back for the OSHA people.

In an effort to get along, the Kettering has corrected many of the supposed deficiencies. It would cost an estimated $500,000 to remedy every complaint. The cost ultimately would fall on the patients, who would be not one whit better off. If the hospital fails to comply, HEW could cut off its reimbursement for Medicare and Medicaid patients.

Of the 144 hospitals subjected to validation inspections, 105 lost their accredited status. In 16 states, every hospital failed to qualify. It is only a matter of time, one may be certain, before HEW proposes to extend its own regulations not merely to a random sample of American hospitals, but to all hospitals throughout the nation.

What a dream! Thousands of inspectors! Tens of thousands of clerical assistants! Millions of reports, surveys, studies, summaries, notices, letters, documents! And when "validation" is added to "utilization review" and to a mind-boggling survey of the hour-by-hour activities of hospital physicians, the bureaucratic vision becomes apocalyptic. In the end, every taxpayer, and every patient, must pay the bill.

By GEORGE BRYANT JR.

WASHINGTON—The Democratic party has held control of Congress in most sessions since its big comeback in the 1932 general election. But in all this time it has seldom, if ever, been free of internal strife in the House and Senate.

The circus playing now, with the House serving as ring one, has revived an old Will Rogers quip, The famed humorist once observed that he belonged to no organized political party. He added that he was a Democrat.

There is nothing new in the basic issue which prevents the top-heavy Democratic majorities, especially in the House, from writing its own ticket. At heart, it is the inability of the left to have its way with those not so far left.

The horde of new Democrats which came to the House in the 1974 post-Watergate Congressional elections failed to overwhelm the older members. There is still a stump of the old Republican— "Conservative" Democrat coalition.

This alliance, so far, has been strong enough to make President Ford's vetoes stick. But it doesn't have enough strength to control on major legislation, such as the energy program or the big deficit spending bills.

There is a lack of strong leadership. Speaker Carl Albert is no Sam Rayburn or Bill Bankhead. And neither is Senate Leader Mike Mansfield a Lyndon Johnson or Alben Barkley. But the problem goes much deeper than this.

This is the seventh year the party has been without White House control. And during the last two years of the Johnson Administration, there was a growing tendency to break with the President on the war issue. The result is that the party today is without central goals which tend to pull members of Congress together. This works to the advantage of special interest groups which supply members with campaign financing.

There has been no real difficulty in getting together on anti-recession measures. The tax cuts went further than President Ford wanted them to go. And so did expended unemployment compensation and job-making spending. These are in keeping with the party's tradition as a big spender.

But on other issues, members tend to scatter, pressured by special interests or just individual inclinations. An example is the effort to write an energy policy on the floor, after rejecting the proposal of the Ways And Means Committee. This is a real embarassment. Many members, including freshmen, fear it made them a laughing stock.

Overshadowing other factors are the uncertainties of the 1976 campaign year. Historically, when a party makes exceptionally large gains in a Congressional election, as the Democrats did last year, the next time around produces quite a casualty list. The new comers have trouble sticking, since many come of politically close districts.

In private conversation, many members question the policy of fighting recession to the extent of pushing concern for inflation into a minor role. For most members, recession, meaning unemployment, has created hardship for relatively small numbers of voters. Nationally, about 91 our of every 100 workers still have jobs. Inflation, however, gnaws at everyone, whether employed or unemployed. While today's rate of inflation, about 7 per cent, is a far cry from the double digit rates hit last year, it is still excessive. For many, it is of more political concern than the unemployment rate.

The Democratic left has a weapon which it could use to force party unity. But it is afraid of it, even though some of the activist freshmen want to give it a try. This would mean using the party caucus to bind members on legislative issues. In other words, if a majority said "fall in" here, all party members would have to go along, or risk punishment, which could include loss of committee assignments and other party plums.

Among some of the Republicans, there is hope that the Democrats will try this route. They reason that such a dictatorial approach would backfire with the voting public. As one GOP member put it, "such a move would be evidence that the left wants to put a monolitiic face on the entire nation." Thoughtful liberals are afraid of tar from this brush.

The prevailing opinion is that Speaker Albert will survive the challenge to his leadership. The odds are against a real showdown, if for no other reason than that it would leave a lot of bitterness.

Despite their problems, though, Democrats see 1976 as an opportunity to take the White House, providing they can get around both George Wallace and George McGovern without doing themselves in.

he is determined to control the students and not permit them to become a disruptive political force, as in Thailand. Noting lack of American response when he released 200 political prisoners in February, the president privately suggests he would not get much credit from critics in Washington for anything he did.

What worries both friends and foes of Park is this question: will he step down in 1978 when his term ends? In one recent private conversation, he expressed a desire to retire before he died and added poignantly that his wife, assassinated last year, would be alive today if he had done so earlier. If Park stays on, he might start losing support rapidly—including businessmen, increasingly important in this now industrialized society.

Although Park's future may decide the fate of Korean democracy tomorrow, the watchword here today is national survival. That Koreans regard becoming another domino a far worse calamity than infringement of civil liberties is a fact to be pondered by American Congressmen who suggest the U.S. abandon Korea as it did Vietnam because Chung Hee Park is insufficiently democratic.

MAKING IT TOUGH TO HIT A HOME RUN!

Life And Limb Risked In Playing Cat-Healer

Trying to get medicine down a sick cat is like asking a healthy kid to eat green peas without gagging. In both cases the subjects are unresponsive.

Now, our cat will not take medicine unless there's a licensed veterinarian standing by to intimidate her. The last time anyone else tried to give her a pill, she skewered his finger on one of her two-year molars. So naturally, when the vet told us to give her four pills a day last week, we were rather anxious about the outcome.

"Can't we leave her here for a few days?" Phillip pleaded, looking at the scar on his finger. "At least until I can take out major medical insurance."

"I don't know what you're so concerned about," the veterinarian answered. "Why, you shouldn't have any trouble at all with an animal as docile as this one."

Obviously, the veterinarian was no student of feline psychology. By the time we got her home, our docile cat had already retaliated for her suffering at the vet's hands by spitting at me and chewing a hole in Phillip's ankle. Not wishing to provoke a more violent response on her part, Phillip and I decided to use the indirect approach to pill giving.

Our first battle plan involved crushing the pill and sticking it to her favorite food, chicken liver. We did this four times, and each time the chicken liver disappeared. We were ecstatic over our devious success until I emptied the catbox and found that she hadn't eaten the livers—she had buried them.

GAIL MICHAELS

The second tactic we tried was crushing the pill, mixing it with syrup, and feeding the concoction to her with an eyedropper. After thirty minutes of armed confrontation we realized that not even Aunt Jemima carried any weight with this cat.

After a few more inoperative experiments, we reluctantly decided to take a direct approach. We both put on garden gloves, wrapped ourselves in towels, wrapped the cat in towels, and proceeded with the operation.

"I hope nobody comes to the door,'" I said. "I haven't looked like this since I played a lima bean in my third grade play."

"Well, this is no child's play," Phillip said grimly as he prepared to thrust a finger down the cat's throat. "I'll never understand how a cat with such a loving nature can get so vicious when she's sick. It's like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

"Hey, that's not a bad idea," I answered. "You do the doctoring, and I'll hide."

"Can't you be serious?" he screamed. "She just stabbed me! Put her paw back in the towel."

I looked at the squirming cat and the two-inch claws which were now slashing the air next to me. "I'm not going to do it. You do it. Here I am, your helpless, pregnant wife, and you want to expose me to cat-scratch fever. You're shameless."

"I give up," he sighed. "An uncooperative cat and a maniacal wife — it's too much for any man."

"You can't desert me now," I commanded, challenging him with a garden glove. "Who'll give the cat her medicine?"

"YOU do it," he said firmly. As he stalked out of the bathroom, he threw in the towel.

Wallace Looms A Greater Threat To GOP Than To Democrats

By GEORGE GALLUP

(Copyright 1975, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N.J., June 21—Gov. George Wallace of Alabama poses an even greater threat to the Republican party in 1976 than he does to the Democratic party.

In the latest nationwide trial heat, Wallace as a third party candidate draws more votes away from President Gerald Ford than he does from Sen. Edward Kennedy, giving Kennedy the edge in a three-way contest. Here are the findings, based on registered voters:

Three-Way Test

Kennedy	39%
Ford	34
Wallace	19
Undecided-Other	8

When Wallace is excluded from this test, Kennedy gains 6 points while Ford picks up 10 points, as seen in the table below:

Kennedy	45%
Undecided-Other	11

Ford and Kennedy were used in this test of Wallace's potential strength because Ford is currently the No. 1 nomination choice of Republican voters nationwide, while Kennedy, despite his non-candidate status, is the top choice of Democrats. Wallace also scores well with Democrats. When Kennedy is not included in tests of nomination strength, Wallace emerges on top.

Wallace Again In Position of Power

Present indications are that Wallace, for the third presidential race in a row, will be in a position to exercise a profound effect on the vote given the major party candidates.

While most political observers believe Wallace has little chance of winning the Democratic nomination in 1976, many feel he may be able to win enough delegates in the primaries to have a powerful voice in the selection of the Democratic nominee.

Wallace's forced withdrawal from the presidential race in 1972, due to the assassination attempt which left him confined to a wheelchair, was to swell President Nixon's vote margin.

In the first trial heat taken after both major party conventions in that year, Nixon won 46 per cent of the vote, compared to 32 per cent for Sen. George McGovern, 18 per cent for Wallace and 4 per cent undecided. When the vote was limited to Nixon and McGovern, Nixon received 56 per cent of the vote, compared to 37 per cent for McGovern and 7 per cent undecided.

In 1968, Wallace's third party candidacy drew votes away from both Nixon and Sen. Hubert Humphrey, with the result that the 1968 election was one of the closest in history, amid speculation that the outcome would be decided in the House of Representatives.

These questions were asked in the survey:

"If President Gerald Ford were the Republican candidate and Sen. Edward Kennedy were the Democratic candidate, which one would you like to see win?" (If the respondent was undecided, this question was then asked: "As of today, do you lean more to Ford, the Republican, or to Kennedy, the Democrat?")

All persons were then asked this question:

"If Sen. Edward Kennedy were the Democratic candidate and President Gerald Ford were the Republican candidate and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama were the candidate of a third party, which would you like to see win?" (If undecided, this question was then asked: "As of today, do you lean more to Kennedy, the Democrat, Ford, the Republican, or Wallace, the third-party candidate?")

The trial heat results today are based on registered voters among the 1,626 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period May 30-June 2.

Top Birdwatcher Combines Hobby And Profession

By BOYD GILL

LEAMINGTON, Ont. (UPI) — G. Stuart Keith lays claim to having seen more species of birds than anyone else ever, but his 5,200 total still is about 3,400 short of perfection.

Keith, a research associate in the ornithology department of the American Museum of Natural History in New York City since 1958, is president of the American Birding Association, Inc.

The 6-year-old organization is dedicated to promoting the hobby and sport of what the uninitiated call "birdwatching." The hobbyists themselves call it "birding."

The ABA held its second convention in Leamington in May, concentrating on Point Pelee National Park, a spit of land jutting nine miles into Lake Erie on the Canadian side about 35 miles southeast of Detroit. More than 300 persons were registered.

Keith, 43, has been birding since 1947 and still has years in which to spot the magic number of 8,600, which would include all the world's bird species.

"I'm one of these lucky persons who have managed to turn their hobby into a career, and I've said a little prayer of thanks every day that I've had that good fortune," Keith said in an interview.

Keith's hobby and his work have taken him to every continent except Antarctica in quest of birds both common and rare to add to his life list of sightings and for collection of specimens for the museum.

Keith is about 800 species of bird ahead of his nearest world life list rival, Peter Alden of Massachusetts, but he ranks no higher than 24th in the number of birds seen in North America north of Mexico. Keith had 663 of the more than 700 species in the area at last count. Joseph W. Taylor, of Honeoye Falls, N.Y., treasurer of the ABA, leads with 716.

Explaining why he rates lower on North American than on world birds, Keith said, "I figure that the United States will always be here, whereas a lot of places you'd better go while the going's good because you don't know how long they're going to be birdable.

"Ten years ago I went to Cambodia and saw a number of birds. Well, in the foreseeable future nobody's going to watch birds in Cambodia. This is why I prefer to bird other countries of the world while I can and I figure the birds I have not seen in the United States, like the boreal owl, for instance, I can get later in a wheelchair if I have to."

Keith believes "birdwatching" contributes to ecological order "simply by introducing birders to the environment even without any particularly educational intent."

Birders do not go out to learn about ecology, he said, but they do have an interest in preserving the countryside.

"If there's no longer any habitat left, we're not going to see any birds. So we want to preserve as much habitat as we can," he said. "That's why you will find birders in the forefront of drives to save salt marshes along seacoasts from real estate developers or a piece of forest from a throughway engineer."

Keith also believes birders have obligations as individuals and groups to work actively in behalf of all phases of conservation of natural resources.

"Birders realize that conservation goes beyond birds because when you preserve the environment you preserve not only the birds, you preserve the snails, worms, animals, flowers," he said.

The ABA was organized in 1969 as in informal group of no more than a dozen persons. The present membership is 2,400.

The ABA encourages, but does not make a fetish of, competition between birders to see who can record the most species on their life lists—"it's only natural just like playing any other game," according to Keith.

Keith credited birders and the news media with helping preserve some bird species facing extinction.

"The media have been very helpful," he said. "The tremendous amount of publicity given, for instance, to the plight of the whooping crane. The problem of the Kirtland's warbler in Michigan. Interest shown in a bird and given publicity can result in great concern among all levels of people."

Efforts Made To Save First Hamburger Shop

By DAN HALL
Associated Press Writer

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Louis' Lunch, which claims to have served the first hamburger, has closed its doors to make way for a modern nine-story complex of medical offices and shops.

Kenneth Lassen, the owner, says his grandfather, Louis Lassen, invented the hamburger and served it in the 12-by-18 foot snack shop starting in 1917.

Regular customers and the curious jammed Louis' Friday for a last ground beef burger — on toast and without ketchup.

Louis', which depended on a neighboring building for its fourth wall, was popular with Yale University students and businessmen. There was room for only about 25 customers at a time and a line often formed outside on the corner of Temple and George streets.

Lassen, who has fought since 1965 to preserve Louis' at the current site or at another location he can afford, was optimistic he could save his business.

"We still have a week, and miracles have happened in a week," said Lassen, who is known for his sideorders of homey philosophy and good natured insults.

The land is owned by the city's redevelopment agency which first notified Lassen in December 1965 of its plans to develop the choice corner lot across from two department stores.

The agency gave Lassen final notice Tuesday to vacate the building, designated a New Haven landmark because of its association with the hamburger, by July 2. The city also has offered to store the small brick building for 60 days if Lassen finds a new location by Thursday.

Lassen says he plans to move out equipment and the wood benches this weekend.

"Things look kind of cooked," he told a newsman. But he added, "I think this will be saved by someone who has a piece of land."

Louis' got its start in 1895 as a Meadow Street lunch cart operated by Lassen's grandfather, a Danish immigrant. About the turn of the century, he began serving steak sandwiches.

Meat scraps from the steaks, cut up and cooked separately, were offered in a sandwich which the Lassens claim was the original hamburger.

Rate Drops

RALEIGH (AP)—The unemployment rate in North Carolina dropped more than one per cent from April to May, the state Employment Security Comission said Friday.

May's rate was 8.9 per cent of the work force, compared with 9.8 per cent in April and 11.8 per cent in March. The jobless rate for May of last year was 3.1 per cent.

The ESC said unemployed workers in May totaled 221,200 workers, 23,500 fewer than the April figure.

The employment picture for workers eligible for unemployment compensation improved in the first week of June for the ninth consecutive week.

Lack Of Rain Is Affecting Pitt County

Dry weather is causing problems in area tobacco crops, agricultural extension agent Ken Bateman said Friday and rain seems to be uppermost in the minds of area farmers.

Crop diseases such as mosaic, blackshank, and wilt are affecting area crops, Bateman said. While these diseases are not caused by dry weather, dryness aggravates the disease condition and breaks down plant resistance to disease, Bateman said.

Many farmers have mosaic, a disease which causes discoloration of tobacco leaves. The virus spreads by mere touch, Bateman said and, in severe cases, the bottom leaves of the plant can burn.

Rain will not cure these plant diseases, but it will help, Bateman said, especially in the case of wilt. In general, rain is needed all over the county.

Farmer Chester Worthington of Falkland said he is "getting along pretty good as far as housing, but I think we need some rain." The effect of dryness to tobacco plants is "showing up a little bit more every day now," he said.

Robert Pierce, farmer from Farmville, said the rain situation there is "not quite as critical" as in other areas, but rain is needed there, too.

J.D. Briley has mosaic in his crops, but said things will "come out all right if we get some rain in the next few days."

Farmer Louis Gaynor also said rain is needed in the area.

Utility Tour

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Eight Soviet electrical utility experts Friday toured Duke Power Co.'s coal-fired generating plant on Lake Norman as part of a two-week tour of American power plants.

J.M. Nekrashas, Soviet deputy minister of power and electrification, said the group had asked to visit the Marshall Steam Station because "this station has the highest efficiency in the United States and we are very anxious to learn from the experience which has been achieved in this plant."

Again Head Press Group

For the third consecutive year, Rose High students have been elected to fill the office of state president of the North Carolina Scholastic Press Institute.

For the school year 1975-76, rising senior Robert Walters was elected incoming president of the institute. The election took place this past week at the 34th annual meeting of the institute at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

Robert, page one editor of the Rose High newspaper, "The Rampant Lines", succeeds outgoing state president David Ostrow, who was the 1974-75 editor of the Rose paper.

The state president for the previous school year, 1973-74, was Bob Fulghum, also a former editor of the Rose High newspaper.

Robert, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Walters, is advocating the issuance of a statewide newsletter during his tenure of office.

The North Carolina Scholastic Institute is the official statewide high school journalism association for students involved in the publication of yearbooks, newspapers and magazines.

Record Attendance At Tryon Palace

A new all-time attendance record at the Tryon Palace restoration complex here was set for the month of May, according to a report compiled for the Tryon Palace Commission and the North Carolina Department of Cultural Resources.

A total of 7,792 persons toured the restored Colonial palace and first state capitol during the past month, demonstrating—according to Palace Administrator Donald R. Taylor—that tourism and travel are thriving this summer, despite energy and economic problems. "This increased attention from the public also confirms the growing reputation of the Palace as an American historical and cultural attraction", he added.

In addition to those who saw the Palace, an additional 379 toured other parts of the restoration, making a total attendance of 8,171 who toured all or parts of the complex. Separate tours are available for the restored John Wright Stanly and Stevenson houses which are a part of the Palace complex.

"World Of Carl Sandburg" Set By Vagabond Players

Carl Sandburg writings will be heard this summer when members of the Vagabond School of Drama present "The World of Carl Sandburg" at Connemara, the former Sandburg farm at Flat Rock. Announcement of the project was made jointly be Benjamin Davis of the National Park Service, superintendent of the Carl Sandburg Home National Historic Site, and Robroy Farquhar, managing director of the Vagabond Players at Flat Rock Playhouse.

The Vagabond Workshop Theatre production, an abbreviated version of Norman Corwin's "The World of Carl Sandburg" featuring excerpts from the well-known author's poetry, prose, jokes and collection of folk songs, will be given one performance daily at 2:30 P.M. except on Wednesdays and Saturdays throughout the summer season, beginning June 23rd.

The project will be supervised by Missy Cromer, who rejoins the Vagabond Players after an absence of several years. Miss Cromer was the balladeer in the first production of "The World of Carl Sandburg" at Flat Rock Playhouse in 1962, which Sandburg himself attended. She has since staged productions in Richmond, Virginia, and Atlanta, Georgia, where she is drama director of the Westminster School.

Since 1964, the Vagabonds have performed "The World of Carl Sandburg" on nine school-year tours, giving 540 performances to audiences totaling nearly half a million students.

This summer's presentation will be given outdoors under the trees at Connemara except in rainy weather, when it will be staged inside the Sandburg Home. An interpretive program of the National Park Service, it is sponsored by the Eastern National Park and Monument Association. There is no admission charge.

"Godspell" To Be Presented

Godspell, the religious rock musical, will be presented again this summer by the Kinston Recreation Department's Summer Theatre at the air-conditioned Emma Webb Park Building from June 26 to July 2.

Director Oran K. Perry stated, "We had such an enthusiastic response to this production last year that we were forced to turn many people away at the door. We want to give Eastern North Carolina audiences another chance to see Godspell, a play based upon the gospel according to St. Matthew. Six of the original ten cast members will recreate their roles; however, there will be changes which will make the play even livelier than before."

Puppet Shows Set For Local Libraries

A form of theater beloved by children, the puppet show, is making a perennial summer comeback when the Summer Puppet Theater of the East Branch Library opens with productions next Tuesday and Thursday at two different libraries.

Joe Stines, librarian at East Branch Library, has announced that Charlie Hayek will be directing a cast of a dozen players for the two June productions.

The first will be at 2:30 p.m. in the Children's Room of Sheppard Memorial Library on Tuesday; and the Thursday production will be both at 11:00 a.m. and at 2:30 p.m. at East Branch Library.

Four stories are in rediness for this initial Summer Puppet Theater show—"The Adventures of Amos," from Robert Lawson's Ben and Me, "Eeyore's Birthday" from Milne's classic Winnie-the-Pooh; "The Lion and the Mouse;" and "Johnny Appleseed."

Cast members of the Summer Puppet Theater are Brent and Barry Holmes, John and Pierson Shaw, Robin O'Neil, Marcia Piper, Stephen and Nancy Johnson, Beth Carlton, Sean Farley, Kathy Hayek and Rachel Caspar.

There is no admission charge and the public, particularly children, are invited to attend.

Hospitality House

"East Meets West" is the unifying theme of Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" today. The weekly variety program is aired over WITN-TV, Channel 7 from noon til 1 p.m. on Sundays.

Mrs. Annie Yokum, a practicioner of ikehana, the Japanese art of flower-arrangement, discusses and demonstrates flower arrangements—which in Japan is an art practiced extensively by men and women.

A missionary couple, Bud and Bev Chase, will also be guests, and will be accompanied by their three children—two adopted children, Robbie, a Japanese child; Reggie, a Korean child; and Cindy, their own daughter, born in Peru. The Chases are from San Diego, California.

In a different vein, Oran Perry and cast members of Kinston's upoming summer production will present excerpts from Godspell, which the Kinston theater group is presenting for the second successive summer.

Ten Summer Shows For Flat Rock Playhouse

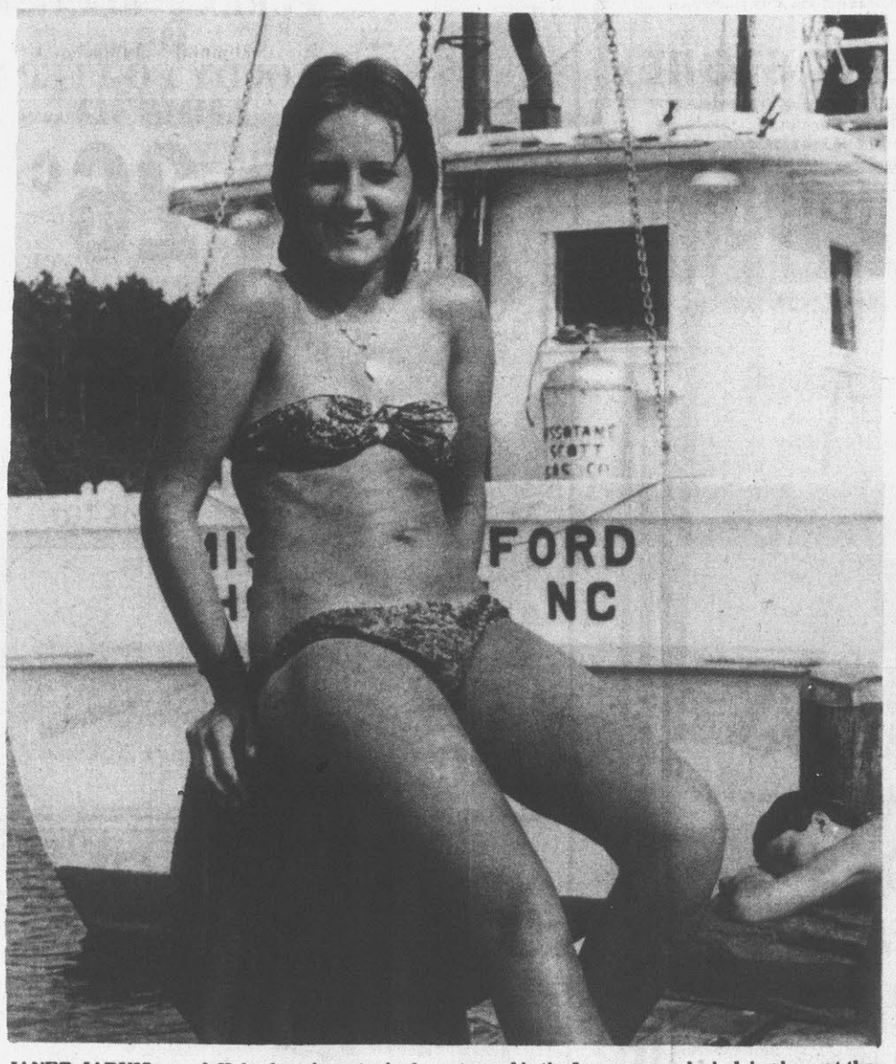

Ten productions have been announced for the 1975 summer season of the Flat Rock Playhouse, the State Theater of North Carolina located three miles south of Hendersonville on U.S. 25.

The Vagabond Players of the Flat Rock Playhouse, which this year is celebrating its 50th season, will open with Come Live With Me. This play will open Tuesday, June 24.

The nine other plays and opening date for each are: Strange Bedfellows, July 1; The Sunshine Boys, July 8; Idiot's Delight, July 15; Sleuth, July 22; Jabberwock, August 5; Move Over, Mrs. Markham, August 12; Look Homeward Angel, August 19; 6 RMS RIV VU, August 26. Scribbling And Doodling Becomes Community Art

ONE SECTION. . . of the community art wall at Gayle's Creek Marina shows names, hearts, leaves, stick figures and a number of names with the "was here" statement. The canvas, about 20 feet long and about four feet high, has hundreds of entires made by customers and friends of Rosa Arnold, (shown here) and her husband, Billy Arnold.

For over two years, dozens of people have contributed to a work of art that fulfill people's need to doodle and scribble.

In effect, it's an invitational work of community art. About two years ago, Billy and Rosa Arnold. proprietors of Gayle's Marina, located on N.C. 304 alongside Gayle's Creek between Mesic and Hobucken, placed a piece of canvas about 20 feet long on the wall behind a row of booths in the Marina's trading post building.

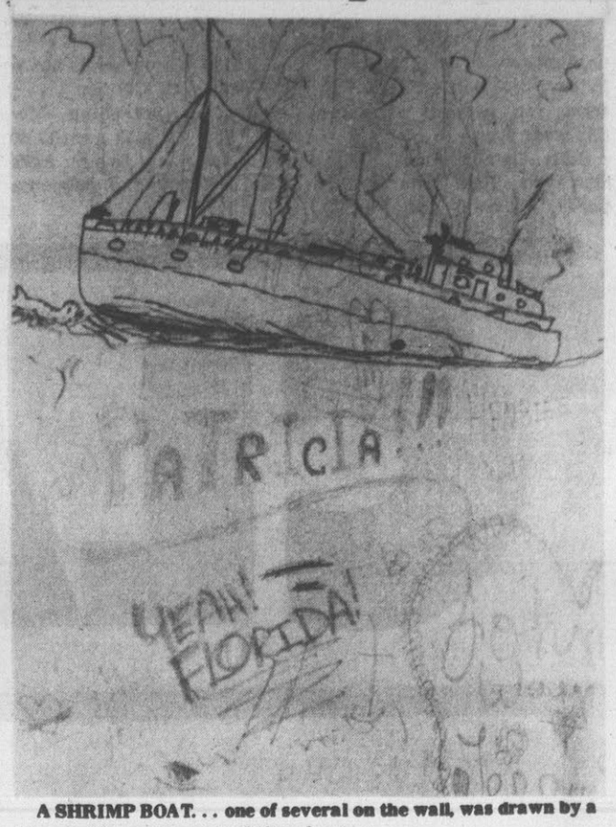

"Some of our friends and customers have drawn things several different times," Rosa said. "I can often tell who drew something even if they don't put an initial or name by it," she said. "People mostly use magic markers, pencil and ball point pens to draw with."

Rosa and Billy find the doodling art is something their customers enjoy doing. It also usually catches the eye of people stopping by for the first time.

Faces, ships, hearts, outlines of fingers and feet, motorcycle riders and a lone lamppost entwined with ivy are representative of the subjects drawn on the wall canvas. Black and black blue are the colors most frequently used, with an occasional touch of green or red. Above all, names and initials predominate.

"We think it's fun, and it's a sort of history of our friends and customers," Rosa commented.

—A Review—

The Art Of English Language

Grammar and the Language Arts. By Janice H. Faulkner. Dubuque, Iowa, Kendall-Hunt Publishing Company. 1975. 140 pps, plus note pages. Paperback. $5.50

Most local authors for the past couple of years have been concentrating on books or pamphlets relating to centennial and bicentennial matters. It is therefore something of a surprise to have in hand an entirely different kind of book.

Janice H. Faulkner, a faculty member of the East Carolina University English Department, has written a ten chapter book that will be helpful to teachers and to individuals having a need to brush up on English grammar.

Without being frivolous, it can be said this is a grammar textbook with an almost lighthearted approach. In the preface, the author points out . . . "I undertook writing a text because virtually all of the available textbooks have been written by scholars who have not taught English grammar in the public schools. Consequently, their books reflect isolation from the language experience, or lack of experience, among teachers and students who try to use them. . . This book pays little attention to the underlying concept which make up the bulk of such texts."

Having stated this, Mrs. Faulkner levels with the reader and gives what I find are clear cut guidelines to understanding grammar structure and usage. There's even whimsical challenge in the chapter on "The Morpheme." She asks the reader to use a list on nine nonsensical words to construct a sentence — supplying "your own function words." The words are: "Ralipish. . .Dorked. . .Wampic. . .Slurker. . .Difles. . .Kelmed. . .Stufully. . .Boogam. . .Mupple." Try it.

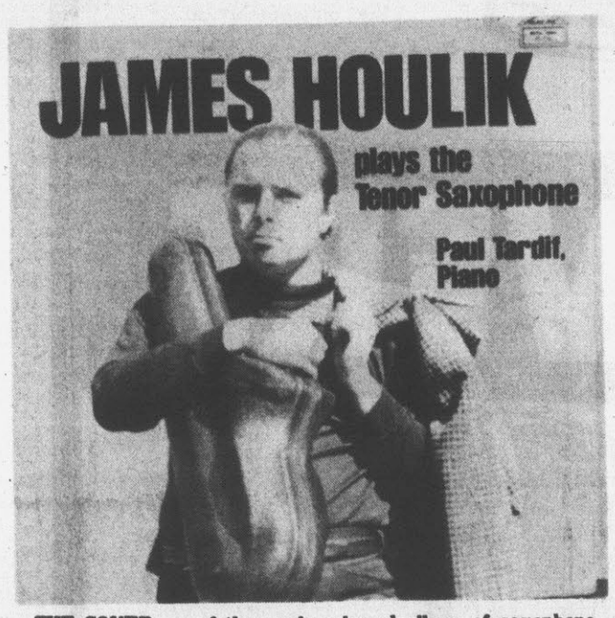

For me, one section for which I'm grateful is that explaining the use of 's to indicate the possessive forms of pronouns.

Other readers will surely find simple clarification of troublesome areas in grammar construction that have long plagued them.

If you've been looking for an English grammar handbook that untangles without too much pain some of the knotty issues of the English language, this book may be what you've been waiting for.

Grammar and the Language Arts may be ordered directly from Mrs. Faulkner at the English Department, East Carolina University, Greenville, or from the publishers: Kendall-Hunt Publishing Co., 2460 Kerper Blvd., Dubuque, Iowa 52001.

THE COVER. . . of the newly released album of saxophone music recorded by James Houlik with Paul Tardif at the piano.

Houlik's Album Of Saxophone Music

Saxophonist James Houlik, associate professor of music in the School of Music, East Carolina University, has recently had an album released by Golden Crest Records, Inc. of New York City.

In this one-record album of old and new saxophone music, Houlik has been joined by pianist Paul Tardif, also a faculty member of the ECU School of Music.

The album titled "James Houlik Plays The Tenor Saxophone," includes three selections written for and dedicated to Houlik. These are Gregory Kosteck's Mini-Variations; Walter S. Hartley's Poem (1967); and William Duckworth's Pitt County Excursions.

Other selections recorded include Chopin's Largo; William Schmidt's Sonatina; Beau Soir by Debussy; and Pietro Baini's Largo and Allegro arranged by Voxman.

Houlik, who has played with orchestras in the U.S. and in Europe, made an extended tour of Japan a few years ago accompanied by Charles Stevens, pianist and faculty member at ECU.

"The album will get international distribution," Houlik said, "with wide usage made by college and musical libraries. It will also be on the shelves of record stores in major cities."

Tour By Camelback

By LIZ FULTON

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Sayed Kahmadi, 70, with one workable eye and a scrimshaw face, has been an Egyptian tourist guide for 30 years. He has helped matrons on camelback at the Pyramids and organized expeditions to Luxor and the Valley of the Kings.

For the past decade, Kahmadi has led nearly 1,000 travelers of varied nationalities through the Egyptian Museum in Cairo, with a rolling narrative on Pharonic times that sometimes does not gibe with guidebooks.

When he speaks of Egyptian treasures housed in other countries a subtle sadness creeps into his delivery, but it is short-lived as he points out the riches of Tutankhamon's tomb.

"Business is very good now," he said, recalling the dark days after the 1967 Arab-Israeli war when the flow of tourists to Egypt dried up.

On first encounter at the iron gate outside the sand-colored museum just across from the Nile Hilton, Kahmadi brandishes his brass identification plate which certifies him as an "official tour guide."

The label is safety-pinned to his galabea or flowing floor-length shirt and he wields it with unquestionable authority when describing the sarcophagi of Egypt's ancient kings and queens.

In a dark room on the second floor of the museum, Kahmadi remarks on the sacred flowers still strewn over two unwrapped mummies. Twenty-seven skeletal figures, many of the Ramses line, lie under aging cotton cloth in glass cases.

Their faces are exposed and the bones of their toes jut indecorously from their shrouds. Kahmadi rattles off the dynasties by heart.

Cairo is too crowded for Kahmadi. He was born and raised in Mene village, a sun-baked cluster of homes and shops, just down from the paws of the Sphinx at the site of the Great Pyramids at Giza.

The people of Mene specialize in the tourist trade. They know the best route to ascend the top of Cheops pyramid, the calmest camel for the most frightened tourist and the easiest way to make a traveler part with his money.

Belhaven To Have Water Events July 4th

Nautical events this year will again be an important part of Belhaven's fourth of July celebrations.

July Fourth Chairman Jonathan Latham has outlined the program, which begins with heat races of powerboats in the morning. Races will be held in 11 classes, provided there are at least three boats present in each class. This series of heat races is scheduled to occupy two hours of time prior to the parade.

After lunch two marathon races will be held, one for half an hour and the other for an hour.

All these races have been sanctioned and are conducted by the American Powerboat Association. The Coast Guard will be in attendance for traffic control and the Belhaven Rescue Squad will be present in case of an emergency.

Prizes will be given for winners in the various classes of boat racing.

Two other water events scheduled are the sailboat race and a ski show and water carnival. The sailboat race will terminate at the Belhaven breakwater at about 4:00 p.m., and the ski show and water carnival will take place at 5:00 p.m.

The public is invited to attend the water events and other events which have for years been a part of the harbor town's traditional Fourth of July celebrations.

By MARGARET CLARK

Love counters intrigue and violence in an exciting new suspense novel, THE MASK OF MEMORY by Victor Canning. This is the absorbing story of Margaret Tucker, the neglected wife of a high-ranking government security chief, and her strange liaison with an earthly ambitious lover. Played out against a background of power politics and the struggles of labor unions, their love affair contrasts sharply with the colorless anonymity of government bureaucracy. The climax poses a question to which every reader must give his answer: how far even to the point of murder, is an individual responsible for his own acts?

Another edge-of-the-chair thriller is Robert Carroll's A DISAPPEARANCE. When Steve Parrish, the narrator of this novel of suspense, returns to the Paris hotel suite he and his wife have taken for their honeymoon, he finds his wife has disappeared. He is sure she did not simply walk out on him, sure that she loves him as much as he loves her, sure—even in the discovery of six bullets among her belongings—that she left involuntarily. And then one day—he gets a call from Italy. His wife has been seen skiing happily with a friend in the Alps. As excitement keeps mounting, surprise follows surprise before a climax is reached that is both vivid and bright.

What could link an automobile mechanic in Denver, a beautician in Augusta, and a charter pilot in Lac du Flambeau? In Walter Wager's TELEFON, each is unknowingly among 150 deep-cover Soviet agents smuggled into this country at the height of the Cold War. Each, beneath his peaceful ordinary manner, is ready to be activated on a mission of horrible violence by a codeword delivered in a phone book. And the key to these agents—their identities, codes, names, and missions is in the hands of a disgruntled Stalinist of the K. G. B. In this fast-paced cloak-and-dagger story, suspense mounts in a race to forestall phone calls that could provoke World War III.

Marvin Albert's THE GARGOYLE CONSPIRACY, another political suspense novel, takes the reader to Rome, Paris, London and The Riviera. An explosion in Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport sends a soul-weary American agent on a strange search for a billiant, mysterious Arab terrorist leader. And while he searches, the man he is after nears the culmination of his methodical preparations to strike again—with a ferocity that will stun the world. The opposing destinies of these two men lead the reader into a shadowy world which draws into it vortex the secret lives of people from every rung of international society.

Concerts In A Castle

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Symphony has started three Bicentennial concerts, at Castle Clinton, in Lower Manhattan's Battery Park.

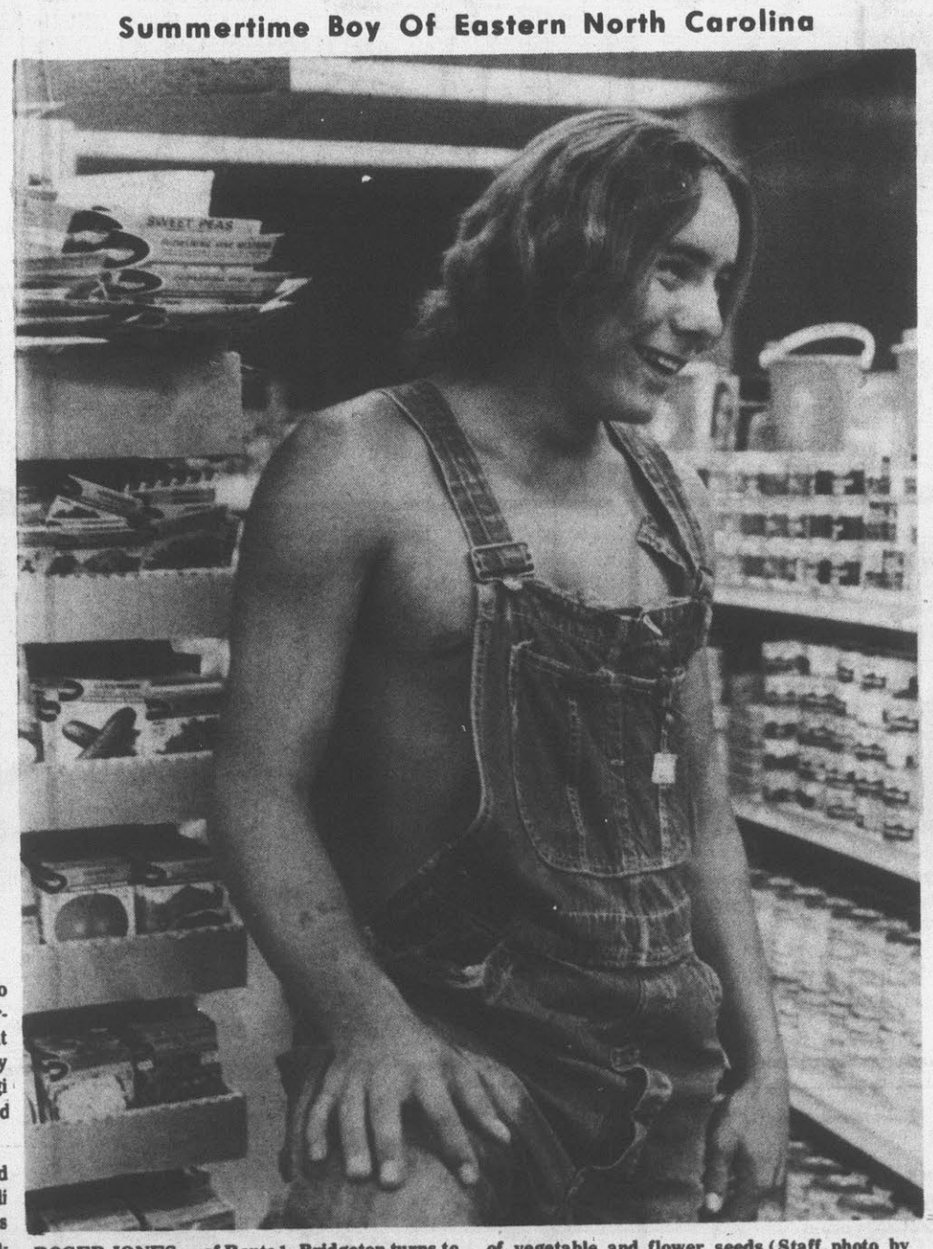

The first was May 24. On July 4, Morton Gould will conduct unusual works by esteemed American composers. The Jenny Lind Concert, Sept. 11, will be a reenactment of the concert of 1850 when 6,000 persons heard the "Swedish Nightingale." The Swedish government has invited a leading coloratura of the Stockholm Opera to appear. Both concerts will begin at 7 p.m. and will be free.

Sponsor is the American Landmark Festivals, in cooperation with the National Park Service.

Fort Clinton was begun in 1803 to defend New York Harbor against the British fleet.

Beard Vaults Into 3-Stroke Open Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

MEDINAH, Ill. (AP) — Frank Beard, once one of the game's great players but a pathetic, struggling figure in recent months, fired a magnificent 67 that lifted him from eighth strokes off the pace to a three-shot lead in Saturday's third round of the U.S. Open Golf Championship.

The 36-year-old Beard, the 1969 leading money winner who had collected only $522 in five months of play this season, swept past suddenly-stricken front-runner Tom Watson with a 54-hole total of 210, three-under-par.

Watson, who shared the lead in the first round and held a three-stroke advantage with a record-matching 36 hole score of 135, collapsed to a 78 that left him at 213, even par.

Beard was the only player under par after three rounds over the 7,032-yard Medinah Country Club course, a tame and timid kitten of a layout for the first two day's play but a snarling tiger in the 90-degree heat and high humidity that marked Saturday's action.

It sent them all—all but the enigmatic Beard—stumbling in shocked dismay, head-shaking frustration, bitter exasperation reeling back in the pack.

Even the mighty Jack Nicklaus couldn't escape. The Masters champion, the holder of 15 major titles, the greatest player the game has known saw his improbable dream of a modern Grand Slam fade and all but disappear on the strength of a 75, four-over-par that left him seven shots back with only 18 holes to play.

"It was just one of those days when you never get it going, never develop a swing," said Nicklaus. "The result...75."

Nicklaus shook his head when asked about his chances to keep alive hope for the unachieved one-year sweep of all the world's major titles.

"I've got to get over this round before I start thinking about the next one," he said.

Lee Trevino also had a 75 for 216. Gary Player of South Africa shot 72-220. Tom Weiskopf and Johnny Miller each had fat 41s on their front nines. Miller finished with 76-223. Weiskopf salvaged a 74-220. Defending titleholder Hale Irwin had 73-218, five-over-par.

Arnold Palmer double bogeyed his final hole for 73-217.

"It's just a bad hole. Let's don't talk about it," Palmer said.

They all had their troubles. The reason seemed to be a mystery.

"There's no reason for it," said Nicklaus. "The course isn't playing hard. Actually, it's pretty easy. The fairways are good, the greens are holding. There's no reason for it—except possibly that it's the third round of the U.S. Open."

Watson, who blew this title with a poor final round last year, was tied for second with Pat Fitzsimons, who shot a third-round 73.

Ben Crenshaw, the 23-year-old who had such a fantastic start as a pro two seasons back, shot 76 and was tied at 214 with Lou Graham and England's Peter Oosterhuis. Graham had a 68 and Oosterhuis an unusual 72 that was made up of nines of 41 and 31.

Beard's sudden return to the top was even more startling than his slow descent into the golfing depths.

"It would be a decided understatement to say this is my best round in the last 3½ years," said the quiet, thoughtful man from Louisville.

"It's like a child getting a new toy."

Long noted as one of the game's premier putters, Beard had parlayed that ability on the greens into 11 tour titles and a budding fortune.

But it all came to an end in 1971. He won his last title that year. He slipped in 1972. The slump deepened the next year. He slid even more the next one. And this season he hit rock bottom.

He missed the cut in 13 consecutive tournaments. His stroke average was almost 75. He made official money in only two of 19 tournaments through the first five months.

Then it started to come around. He tied for 15th last week in Philadelphia and collected $1,956.

Friday, in the rain-delayed second round of this tournament, he broke 70 for the first time all year. Now, suddenly, dramatically, almost without warning, he is leading the most prestigious of all golf's many tournaments.

The change, he said, came about two months ago when, at the urging of fellow pros Gene Littler and Phil Rodgers, he visited Paul Runyan, a famed teaching pro in Denver.

"It took him about five minutes to figure out what was wrong," Beard said, "and it took him about three days to explain it to me."

In essence, he said, it was a change in his grip, a weakening of his right hand.

It all came together Saturday.

All but ignored by the huge gallery that flocked after the leaders and gathered around the glamor names, the Palmers and the Nicklauses, Beard started his run to the top in a hurry.

He flipped an eight iron to three feet and birdied the third hole. He made it two in a row with an eight-foot putt on the third. A wedge to four feet made it three consecutive birds at the fifth.

He saved par with a 15-foot putt after getting in a trap on the seventh.

He made it from eight feet on the ninth.

Suddenly, with Watson's collapse, he was in a tie for the top and the fans began to swarm around Beard.

He twice saved par by chipp-

Pepsi Keeps Hopes Alive

Pepsi-Cola threw a monkey-wrench into the Exchange drive toward the Tar Heel Little League championship yesterday, taking a 13-9 win.

The victory kept Pepsi in the race for a share of the title, as both teams have one game left. The Exchange is now 10-4, while Pepsi is 9-5. The Exchange plays the Moose on Tuesday, while Pepsi meets the Graniteers on Wednesday. An Exchange win Tuesday would give them the title, while a loss would let Pepsi tie it up by winning their Wednesday game. A Graniteer win, however, would give it back to the Exchange.

The Exchange pushed over two runs in the first inning. Billy Kittrell doubled and took third on a wild pitch. Mark Douglas walked and Gordon Douglas hit a sacrifice fly to score Kittrell. John Williams singled and an error let Mark Douglas score.

Pepsi came back with two in their half of the inning. Kelly Kee reached on an fielder's choice and moved to third on passed balls. Ricky Sutton singled and moved up on an error and then came around on two more passed balls.

The Exchange moved back out with four in the second. Rodrick Harrell walked, as did Alison Taylor. Both moved up on an out, and Mark Douglas singled. Gordon Douglas reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Harrell. Williams singled, bringing in Taylor. An error let both of the Douglases score.

Both Pepsi also rallied for a pair to cut the lead to 6-4. Scott Wilson walked and moved up on an out. Tim Shank walked and after Wilson advanced on a passed ball, a double steal scored Wilson. Shank moved to third on a passed ball, and scored on a steal.

Pepsi moved ahead with five in the third, 9-6. Jeff Wilson and Eric Bowman both walked and moved up on a passed ball. Kevin Richards singled, scoring Wilson. An error let Bowman score. Richard came around on passed balls. Scott Wilson got it started again with a walk and Billy Stallings also walked. Both stole up, and an error let Wilson score. Stallings came over on a wild pitch.

The Exchange came back with three in the fourth to tie it up. Kittrell singled and Mark Douglas reached on an error. Both moved up on a passed ball and Williams singled in Kittrell. Steve Irwin reached on an error, scoring Douglas, and Williams scored on Billy Bost's hit.

Pepsi came back with four in the fifth to wrap it up. Richards walked and Stallings got a hit. An error on the play let Richards score. Dwight Garrett singled and stole second. Shank walked, loading the bases. Sutton singled in both Stallings and Garrett and Jeff Wilson's hit scored Shank with the final run.

Errors Help Expos Win, 5-1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Errors by Dick Allen and Tony Taylor gave the Montreal Expos a pair of unearned runs in the first two innings Saturday, and the Expos went on to beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1.

Montreal scored in the first inning when Mike Jorgenson's two-out grounder was bobbled by Allen at first and Larry Bitner followed with a triple off the right field wall.

Philadelphia came back with a run in the bottom of the first when Dave Cash and Greg Luzinski doubled, but Montreal went ahead to stay in the second when Gary Carter beat out an infield single, moved to second on Tim Foli's grounder and scored when third baseman Taylor booted a grounder by winning pitcher Dennis Blair, 4-8.

The Expos chased Jim Lonborg, 6-5, with two runs in the seventh. Bob Bailey walked and scored on singles by Carter and Foli. After Blair bunted into a force at third off reliever Tom Hilgendorf, Tony Scott doubled to score Foli. Montreal got its final run off Gene Garber in the eighth. Bob Bailey beat out an infield single to Taylor and continued to third on Taylor's wild throw, then came home on Carter's squeeze bunt.

Pittsburgh Rallies To Capture 7-3 Victory From New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Manny Sanguillen's single in the ninth inning scored speedy Rennie Stennett with the tie-breaking run, then Bill Robinson drilled a two-run single to cap the four-run burst that gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 7-3 victory over the New York Mets Saturday.

With two out in the ninth inning of the nationally televised game, Stennett beat out an infield single to Wayne Garrett at third base and promptly stole second before Sanguillen came through with his soft line drive to right off Harry Parker, 2-3.

Al Oliver followed with a single to center and, when Del Unser bobbled the ball, the runners wound up on second and third. Bob Robertson walked to load the bases, Rick Baldwin replaced Parker and walked Richie Zisk to force home Sanguillen, then Robinson singled to left.

The victory, which went to reliever Ramon Hernandez, 3-2, was the fourth in a row for the Pirates and their eighth in the last nine games. It widened their National League East lead to 4½ games over Philadelphia and dropped the third-place Mets 5½ games back.

The Mets jumped on starter Bruce Kison for three runs in the first inning but the Pirates, held to just three singles through the first six innings by Jon Matlack, tied it in the seventh on pinch-hitter Dave Parker's three-run homer.

Wayne Garrett led off the bottom of the first with a walk and Felix Millan and Unser singled to load the bases. Kison then walked Rusty Staub to force in one run and two more scored on Ed Kranepool's single to right.

Richie Zisk opened the seventh for the Pirates with a single and, with one out, Richie Hebner also singled. Parker then batted for Frank Taveras and sent a 2-2 pitch over the right field wall for his 11th homer of the season.

The Pirates threatened to break through against Matlack in the first inning. Sanguillen singled with one away and was forced at second by Oliver. Then Robertson punched a single to right, sending Oliver to third. But Zisk struck out to end the inning.

Kranepool's two-run single in the bottom of the first sent Staub to third and chased Kison, but Sam McDowell came on to prevent any further damage.

He got John Milner to hit a grounder to Bob Robertson at first base and Staub wound up being tagged out in a rundown play, Mike Phillips then flied out and, after John Stearns was intentionally walked, Matlack grounded out.

McDowell pitched himself into a mild jam in the second when Garrett led off with a single and Millan walked. But Sanguillen, the catcher, picked Garrett off second, then McDowell fanned Unser and Staub popped out.

McDowell checked the Mets on just one hit through the next two innings before Larry Demery took over at the start of the fifth. He retired the first six batters he faced before Hernandez had to bail him out in the seventh.

Matlack led off that inning with a walk, Garrett singled him to second and Millan bunted the runners into scoring position. That brought Hernandez out of the Pirates' bullpen and, after walking Unser intentionally to load the bases, he got Staub on a popup behind second and pinch-hitter Joe Torre on a grounder to end the Mets' final threat.

Dobson's 100th Sparks Yankees

DETROIT (AP) — Pat Dobson fired a seven-hitter to win his sixth straight game and the 100th of his career Saturday, leading the New York Yankees to a 4-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Dobson, who raised his record to 8-5, struck out four Tigers, walked one and was helped by three double plays. He lost his shutout in the ninth inning when Mickey Stanley was safe on an error, Gary Sutherland singled and Willie Horton hit a sacrifice fly.

New York pushed across a run in the second inning on a fluke single by former Tiger Ed Brinkman after Bobby Bonds and Graig Nettles had singled. Brinkman's hit ricocheted off the leg of Detroit pitcher Mickey Lolich, 7-5, and rolled to the right of shortstop Tom Veryzer who was racing to his left to field the ball.

Bonds, still hobbled by a leg injury but in the lineup as the designated hitter, opened the Yanks' seventh with a triple and pinch-runner Rich Coggins scored the deciding run on Chris Chambliss's sacrifice fly.

New York made it 4-0 in the eighth. Sandy Alomar singled and was forced by Walt Williams. But Williams took second on a passed ball and scored on Alex Johnson's single, then Johnson took third on Roy White's single and came home on Thurman Munson's sacrifice fly.

Builders Rally Past Planters; Pepsi Outlasts College View

Home Builders and Pepsi-Cola chalked up Babe Ruth League victories yesterday. Home Builders rallied for a 13-5 win over Planters Bank, while Pepsi-Cola outlasted College View, 10-8, in an 11-inning contest.

Home Builders continued to lead the league with a 7-1 record. Pepsi is now 5-4, College View, 3-5, and Planters, 1-7.

Home Builders pushed over three runs in the top of the first inning. Ronnie Chapman walked and Joel Toates singled, moving up on the relay. Gary Allen singled to drive in both runners. Stanley Nichols, running for Allen, moved up when Lance Weatherington walked. An error on a pickoff attempt then allowed Nichols to score.

But Planters came right back with three in their half of the inning to tie it up. Mac Stokes reached on an error and stole second. Fraeger Sanders reached on an error, scoring Stokes. Sanders advanced on an out and Mike Norfleet singled. A passed ball scored Sanders, and an error let Norfleet come the rest of the way.

Home Builders regained the lead with one in the third. Toates reached on a two-base error and was balked to third. Weatherington singled him in for a 4-3 lead.

Planters came back with two in the fourth to take a 5-4 lead. Perry Worthington reached on a fielder's choice and moved up on an error on the play. He stole third and James Hawkins walked, also stealing. Stokes reached on an error, which allowed both runners to score.

Home Builders came back with two in the fifth to regain the lead. Toates reached on an error and stole second. Allen singled and Weatherington reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Toates. Mike Adams walked, and Reggie Selby hit into a fielder's choice that got Allen at home. Mickey McGrath hit into another, but it scored Weatherington.

One crossed in the sixth. Chapman singled, moved up on a passed ball, took third on an out and scored when Allen reached on an error.

The final six Home Builders runs scored in the seventh. McGrath walked and Jay Wood singled. Chairman singled in both runners. Tim Allen doubled in Chapman and two wild pitches scored him. Toates walked, stole second and scored on two more wild pitches. Gary Allen walked, stole second, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Weatherington's out.

College View grabbed an early lead with two in the first inning of the second game. Jimmy Clemons reached on an error and stole second. Michael Shank reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. Ricky Bolonde doubled in both runners.

Another College View runner scored in the second. Timmy Harris walked and was sacrificed up. He scored on Reggie Spain's hit.

Pepsi broke the ice with one in the third. Danny Hester singled, stole second and scored on Greg Lee's hit.

College View moved its lead to 5-1 with two in the bottom of the third. Jeff Aldridge walked, stole second and scored on Shank's hit. Shank was then cut down stealing. Marshall Crumpler reached on a two-base error and moved to third on a wild pitch. Harris singled him in.

Pepsi rallied for four in the fourth to tie it at 5-5. Mickey Finn singled and Bob Morehead got a hit. Marty Worthington singled to load the bases. Will Sanderson singled in both Finn and Morehead, and a double by Derek Brewington scored the other two runners.

College View went right back out with two in the fourth, 7-5. Aldridge walked and stole second scoring when Shank reached on an error. Bolonde singled Shank in.

Pepsi came up with one in the fifth. Ray Kilpatrick singled and moved up on fielder's choice and a walk. He scored when Hester reached on a third-strike error.

The tieing run came over for Pepsi in the sixth. Brewington reached on an error, moved to third on another and scored on still a third miscue.

Pepsi then pushed over one in the 10th. Brewington singled and stole second. He scored on Kilpatrick's hit.

But College View scored to tie it again, 8-8. Clemons walked and Aldridge reached on an error. Shank singled and Bolonde reached on an error, scoring Clemons.

Finally, in the 11th, Pepsi got two unanswered runs to win it.

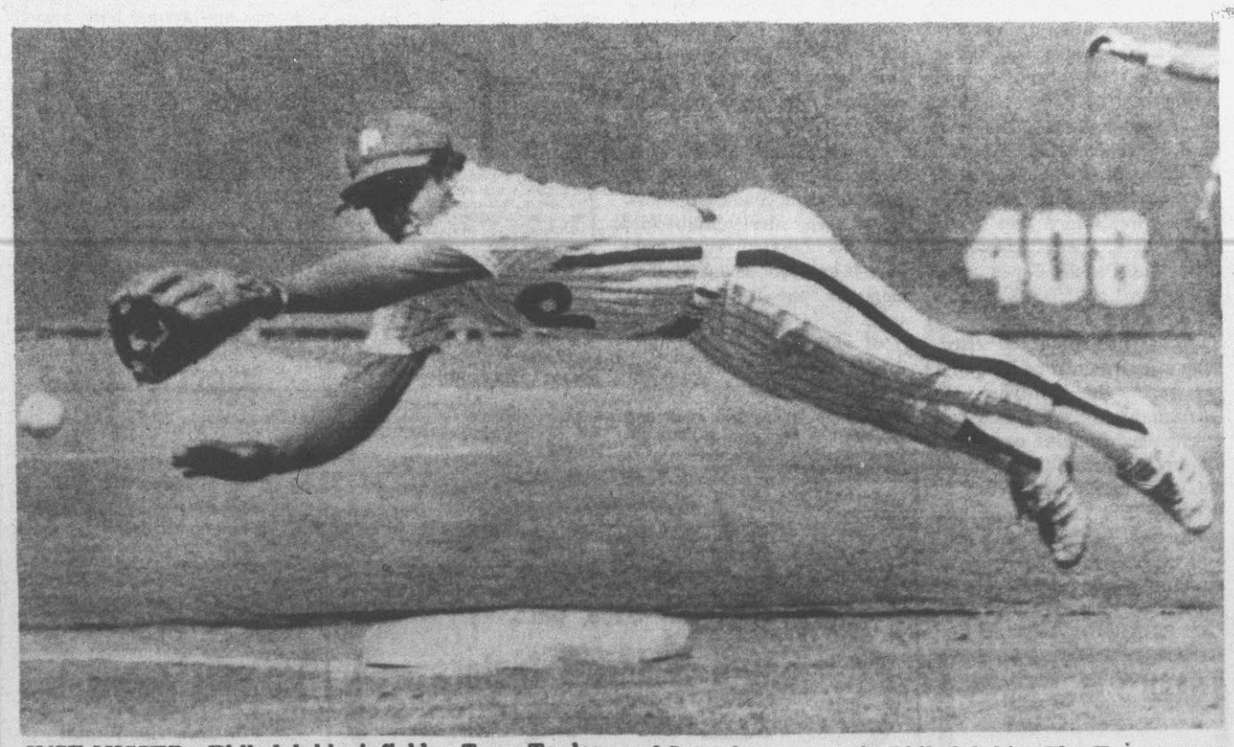

Morehead reached on an error and stole second. Worthington walked and both were sacrificed up. Sanderson singled scoring both runners. Pepsi then held College View for the win.

Palmer Takes His 12th Win

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jim Palmer cooled off Boston's hot bats with a five-hitter Saturday, becoming the major leagues' first 12-game winner by pitching the Baltimore Orioles to a 3-0 victory that snapped the Red Sox' six-game winning streak.

Palmer, who has lost three times, struck out eight batters en route to his 11th complete game and sixth shutout of the season, which lowered his earned-run average to 1.56, the best among regular starting pitchers in the majors.

The Orioles bunched three of their seven hits off Dick Pole, 1-3, for all of their runs in the first inning.

With two out, Al Bumbry walked, then Lee May, Don Baylor and Bobby Grich singled for the first two runs. The third run scored when third baseman Rico Petrocelli bobbled Brooks Robinson's grounder.

Ford's Homer Leads Twins

CHICAGO (AP) — Dan Ford slugged a pair of home runs and Danny Thompson and Steve Brye hit two-run doubles Saturday to lead the Minnesota Twins to an 8-3 victory over Chicago, handing the White Sox their fourth straight loss.

Ford hit a two-run homer in the third inning after Tom Kelly walked. The White Sox came back with three in the bottom of the third against winner Bill Campbell, 1-3, to go ahead, but Thompson's two-run double capped a three-run sixth off Jim Kaat, 10-4, that put Minnesota ahead to stay.

Eric Soderholm led off with a single, and Tony Oliva was safe on second baseman Jorge Orta's throwing error. Brye singled to score Soderholm with the tying run and Thompson doubled to left for two more.

The Twins got two more runs in the seventh inning on Brye's bases-loaded double to right, and Ford hit his second homer of the game and sixth of the season in the eighth.

Jack Surprised With His Round

MEDINAH, Ill. (AP) — "I never dreamed a 75 would come out of my bag today," Jack Nicklaus said after his disappointing third round in the U.S. Open Golf Tournament.

"I thought it would be a 67 or something like that and I would be back in the thick of it. But it didn't happen that way. It was just one of those days—I never got anything going."

Nicklaus' round, four-over-par, put him seven shots back of the tournament leader, Frank Beard, who surged out of the pack with 67 for 210. Jack is at 217.

Big Jack hasn't given up hope although he acknowledged that he now had to be considered a "long shot—but maybe not that long.

"After all, Beard made up 11 shots on Tom Watson, who was the second-round leader. The same thing could happen Sunday."

Nicklaus had six bogeys on his card, including two sixes on par-five holes he normally eats alive.

He drove and hit his irons so poorly that his round would have skyrocketed more except for some good putting. He one-putted six holes in succession, starting at the fourth, yet two were for bogeys and one for a birdie.

"The golf course was actually easier than the first two days," he said. "The pin placements were not difficult. I just did everything wrong."

Nicklaus said he found something on the practice tee Friday afternoon which he thought would help his game Saturday. "It turned out just the opposite," he said.

Giants In 4-3 Victory

ATLANTA (AP) — Steve Ontiveros cracked his first home run of the season and Dave Rader slapped a two-run double, sparking the San Francisco Giants to a 4-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday night.

Ontiveros' homer, a solo blast, sailed over the right field fence in the sixth inning off Atlanta starter Carl Morton, 7-7, and gave the Giants a 4-1 lead and what proved to be the winning run.

The Giants took a 1-0 lead in the third when Derrel Thomas tripled and scored on Von Joshua's single.

Chris Speier and Gary Thomasson singled in the fourth, Ontiveros drew a walk to load the bases and Rader then drilled his two-run double down the right field line.

All of Atlanta's scoring off Mike Caldwell, 4-6, came on home runs. Dusty Baker rapped a bases-empty homer down the left field line in the fourth, his 13th of the year, and Earl Williams smashed his fifth of the season over the center field fence in the sixth following a walk to Darrell Evans.

Homers Pace Royals To Win Over Oakland

OAKLAND (AP) — Steve Busby pitched a five-hitter while George Brett and Hal McRae hit home runs to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 4-1 victory over Oakland Saturday, snapping the A's five-game winning streak.

The victory was the 10th of the season against five losses for Busby, who struck out eight and walked only one batter, helping the Royals to pull within 2½ games of the first-place A's in the American League West.

Oakland got its run in the first inning when Bert Campaneris doubled and Claudell Washington singled. Brett hit his fifth homer of the year to tie it in the third inning, then Kansas City went ahead to stay with with two unearned runs off Ken Holtzman, 6-7, in the fourth.

With one out, Frank White reached second when second baseman Phil Garner dropped his towering pop fly for an error. Jim Wohlford singled to score White and went to second on the throw to the plate. Amos Otis then singled White home. McRae hit his fourth homer in the seventh inning.

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — Gordon Johncock roared through four laps at a sizzling 183.281 miles an hour and knocked A.J. Foyt off the pole Saturday for the Pocono 500-mile race June 29 at Pocono International Raceway.

Johncock, starting in the No. 1 spot for the first time in 22 500-mile races he has run, waited until the cool of the late afternoon to make his eye-popping run in a George Bignotti-prepared Wildcat. Earlier, he had experienced mechanical troubles and pulled off of a qualification attempt.

In another surprise, Jerry Grant, a veteran who is competing in his first race here, put his Eagle on the outside of the front row next to Foyt.

Bobby Unser was pushed back to the second row with Johnny Rutherford and Wally Dallenbach. Mike Mosley, Al Unser and Pancho Carter were in the third row.

Rutherford came back in a backup machine in the afternoon after he crashed his No. 1 car earlier in qualifying. He was uninjured. Dallenbach had mechanical troubles earlier in the day but solved them shortly before his second try.

Thirty cars qualified for the 33-car field Saturday, with several others scheduled to make attempts Sunday during the final day of time trials.

Foyt won the pole position in the two other 500-mile Indianapolis-style races this season. Although he has won the 500-milers at Ontario, Calif., Indianapolis and Pocono, he has yet to claim Indy racing's Triple Crown in the same year. He trails Bobby Unser in the points battle this year.

Unser, the pole winner here last year with a speed of 182.500 miles per hour, held the pole for several hours until Foyt's four-lap test around the 2½-mile tri-oval at 182.778 m.p.h. Unser averaged 181.708 m.p.h.

"We're just not handling right. We just haven't got the bugs out of it," Foyt said of his new Coyote, "We feel there's a couple of miles per hour left in the car."

Johncock and Dallenbach broke engines in early attempts, when conditions would have been ideal. Rutherford said his ill-fated run would have been good enough to challenge for the No. 1 starting spot.

"It was going just beautiful," Rutherford said. "But as I was taking my usual line through the second turn, the rear end started coming around on me."

Ahern Ups Her Hoosier Lead

PLYMOUTH, Ind. (AP) — Kathy Ahern fired a one-under-par 71 Saturday and increased her lead to two strokes after two rounds of the $40,000 Ladies PGA Hoosier Classic at Plymouth Country Club.

Miss Ahern birdied the 10th, 12th and 13th holes, offsetting a pair of bogeys, and finished with a two-round total of 138, six under par and two strokes in front of Kathy Postlewait, who came in with her second straight 70.

Betsy Cullen and Debbie Austin were three shots back at 141 after a 70 and 72, respectively. Five golfers were deadlocked at 142, including Kathy McMullen, who had the day's best round at 68.

The others at 142 were 1975 leading money winner Sandra Palmer, Judy Rankin, Echo Nakamura and Amy Alcott, who shot a 69.

Defending titlist JoAnne Carner fired a 71 and was in at 143, along with Mary Lou Crocker, Susie McAlister and Marlene Bauer Hagge, who started the day one stroke behind Miss Ahern but slipped from her first-round 68 to a 75.

"I hit the ball just as well as I did yesterday, but I felt like I got a few bad kicks," Miss Ahern said.

On the 407-yard, par-four No. 4, she hit what appeared to be a good drive into the narrow fairway, but the ball kicked left into the rough and she wound up with a bogey.

Her other bogey came on the par-three 16th when she three-putted from 25 feet.

"I'm just going to try to make as many birdies as I can tomorrow," said Miss Ahern, who has not won a tournament since 1972.

LPGA officials said the entire field of 70 players would compete in Sunday's final round.

Withhold Okay Of McTear's 9.0

By DAN BERGER
AP Sports Writer

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — The National AAU Track and Field Committee voted Saturday to withhold approval of Houston McTear's world record-equalling 9.0-second time for the 100-yard dash.

At one of its regular meetings, the committee said it would hold in abeyance any action on McTear's mark which he set at Winter Park, Fla., on May 9.

The time by the 18-year-old high school junior would, if accepted, equal the world record set last year by Ivory Crockett, and McTear's effort appears legitimate in all respects except for one technicality.

An international rule says that where electronic timing mechanisms are available, they should be used and will be considered official for world-record purposes. A committee member said an Accutrack device was available and timed McTear in 9.30.

The committee said it would not approve the mark until it received further information about whether the device was being used and, if so, if it was used properly.

The decision by the committee came over strong objections by Jimmy Carnes, head track coach at the University of Florida, who said, "Are we going to take a kid's record away because they used hand-timed watches?"

McTear was given the 9.0 time by three judges with stopwatches.

The committee did recommend the approval of Dave Robert's 18-foot-6½ pole vault set on March 28 at Gainesville, Fla., and said it would recommend two other world records for approval if application requirements were satisfied.

Those records are in the discus, John Powell's mark of 226-8 set May 4 at Long Beach, Calif., and the time of 19.9 seconds for the 220 on June 7 which was recorded by Don Quarrie and Steve Williams in Eugene.

Upset Win

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Mark Enyeart became America's latest middle-distance star by beating defending champion Rick Wohlhuter in a stunning upset in the 800-meter run at the National AAU track and field championships Saturday.

Enyeart was timed at 1:44.87, by far his lifetime best, and it kept the Utah State junior undefeated in 12 races at the distance.

ing close early on the back nine, rolled in a 20 to 25 footer for birdie on the 14th, then made his only bogey on the 17th when he hit into a bunker at the back of the green.

"I hit a three iron," he said. "It should have been a four. I haven't been in contention for so long, I forgot how the adrenalin starts to flow."

Watson had nothing but problems. He three-putted the first hole, missed a one-foot putt on the second—struggled, strained and scrambled all day and finally lost the lead with a double bogey, bogey finish.

And the likeable, pleasant young man even fell victim to barbed taunts from the gallery.

"Remember Winged Foot," they yelled at him after his bogeys on the first two holes.

It was reference to the 1974 U.S. Open, at Winged Foot. Watson, held the third-round lead, then blew to a 79 over the last 18 holes.

He was asked if the fans were trying to be helpful.

"No," Tom said, "I thought it was derogatory."

Of the bad round, he said:

"It rips me up inside. But I feel I've got a good chance. I'll go to the practice tee and work it out. I'm not that bad a player. The key to it was my swing. It just got too fast. I first realized I was swinging too fast on the 13th tee. Then I started to work on it."

By that time it was too late.

He didn't make a birdie all day.

Greenville Socks Williamston By 10-2

Greenville's American Legion team continued to roll along, romping to a 10-2 victory over Williamston Friday night.

Greenville spotted Williamston the 2-0 lead in the game, then came roaring back to take a 7-2 lead in the bottom of the fourth inning.

Jim Wilkerson hurled the victory for Greenville, scattering six hits. He fanned five and walked just one in going the route. Greenville, meanwhile, pounded Williamston for nine hits. A delegation of Williamston hurlers fanned just four batters while walking seven.

Greenville threatened in the first, when Kelly Heath walked and Macon Moye reached on an error with two away. But there was little action after that until the third, when Williamston pushed over its first run.

With two down, Roy Lilley doubled and Jimmy Fleetwood reached when his third strike was dropped. On the relay to first to try and get Fleetwood, the ball was thrown away, allowing Lilley to score from second.

In the fourth, Williamston added another run. Raymie Styon reached on an error and moved up on an infield out. He took third on a passed ball and scored on Tim Hardison's single.

After that, however, Williamston had only three more threats. Fleetwood got as far as second in the sixth, then died in a double play when caught off second on a line-drive. In the seventh, Styon singled but was later cut down at third. George Brown also singled and moved on to third as Williamston loaded the bases, but another double play got Greenville out of the jam.

In the eighth, Fleetwood doubled with one down, but died there.

Greenville threatened in the third, with David Dixon reaching on an error, then moving up on a sacrifice.

But it was the fourth when they broke it open. With one down, Keith Jones walked and Steve Manning doubled. Wilkerson singled, driving in Jones. Dixon singled, scoring Manning. Griff Garner walked, loading the bases. Kelly Heath singled, scoring Wilkerson, and a hit by Moye brought in Dixon. Robert Woolard reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Garner, and Gil Whitford was safe on an error, scoring Heath. Jones, up again, singled in Moye with the seventh run.

Another came over in the fifth. Dixon walked, and Garner was hit by a pitch. Heath then hit a fly ball deep to right, and after the catch, Dixon surprised everyone by not only taking third, but home as well on the sacrifice fly.

Another came over in the sixth. Woolard singled and moved up on a wild pitch. Jones walked and Manning reached on an error, scoring Woolard.

The final Greenville run scored in the seventh. Garner reached on a fielder's choice and Heath walked. A passed ball moved Garner to third and Moye sacrificed him over.

Greenville returns to action today, playing host to Snow Hill, the only team that has stopped them this year, at 3 p.m. at Harrington Field.

R.C. had pushed over five runs in the first, two in the second and four in the third. The Kiwanis, who had gotten one in the second, were batting in the bottom of the frame, when the R.C. manager pulled his team from the field in protest of an umpire's decision. That brought on the forfeit.

Three more Kiwanis runs crossed in the fifth. Sasser and Harrel both walked, scoring when Baker tripled. Haddock singled in Baker. The final run came over in the sixth. Ellington singled and stole second, scoring on Sasser's hit.

Connors Suing Ashe For Libel

LONDON (AP) — Wimbledon champion Jimmy Connors has sued Arthur Ashe for $5.0 million, Connors' manager said Saturday.

The squabble between the two American tennis stars was revealed by Bill Riordan, Connors' manager, as the Wimbledon champion started his final practice session before the big tournament that opens Monday.

"We filed two suits in Indianopolis last week," Riordan said.

The first suit, Riordan added, concerned a letter written by Ashe as president of the Association of Tennis Professionals to 16 players about the captaincy of the U.S. Davis Cup team. Connors alleges that Ashe libeled him in the letter.

The second suit has been filed against Ashe; Donald Dell, the ATP's legal adviser; Bob Briner, the association's secretary, and Jack Kramer, the executive director. It alleges libel in an article written by Briner, Riordan explained.

But Dell said: "We have not received a writ, either officially or at our office in America."

At the Queen's club, where Connors was practicing for Wimbledon, Riordan said that Kramer should resign.

"Tennis will be in a state of chaos unless he steps down," Riordan said.

Connors has another legal suit pending against Kramer, Dell and the Commercial Union Assurance Co., which sponsors the Grand Prix. Meanwhile, Kramer is suing Connors and Riordan for $3.0 million, alleging libel and slander.

Connors is the favorite to win again at Wimbledon. Ashe, who never has won the big title, is seeded No. 6.

Ashe said of the law suit: "This is the first I've heard of the matter."

Richard Evans, European director of ATP, said: "Personally, I'm getting very tired of these shabby tactics of throwing out law suits just before Wimbledon.

"Nobody is fool enough to think that this is Connors doing it entirely on his own.

"This is something that is putting extra pressure on players at a critical time."

WADE WINS

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — Virginia Wade of Britain beat Billie Jean King 7-5, 4-6, 6-4 and captured the first prize of $4,025 in an international women's tournament on the eve of Wimbledon.

Miss Wade rallied from a 5-2 deficit in winning the first set, while Ms. King missed a set point at 5-4.

Malaysian Waltz Is Ali's Latest

By KENNETH L. WHITING
Associated Press Writer

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The colorful language of boxing has added a few new phrases during preparations for the first heavyweight title fight in this part of the world.

Most are labels for tactics used or promised by champion Muhammad Ali. Some are oddball ring innovations, others the result of whimsy or pre-fight puffery.

Ali brought his "Rope-A-Dope" and "Russian Tank" tactics to Malaysia. They augment the "Ali shuffle," "the Double Clutch" and "The Mirage," Ali said this week.

He promised to dazzle British challenger Joe Bugner on July 1 with a secret weapon called the "Malaysian Waltz."

"This new defense throws my man off course, makes him lose balance ...it's a new dance step and I will demonstrate it only in the fight."

Ali said if the waltz doesn't sweep Bugner off his feet, he may unleash the "Ghetto Whopper" which was not otherwise described.

For his part, Bugner said he might turn the tables on Ali by adopting the "Rope-A-Dope" and "Russian Tank" himself.

Ali then insisted that only he, the originator, had sufficient skill to employ the two defenses.

"Rope-A-Dope" is the label given to the cover-up and swayaway into the ring ropes Ali first used to tire George Foreman last year in Zaire.

The "Russian Tank" consists of peering between his arms, which are held horizontally in front of the face, in apparent simulation of a soldier looking through the viewing slit of a tank. Experts note that it leaves him open to body punches.

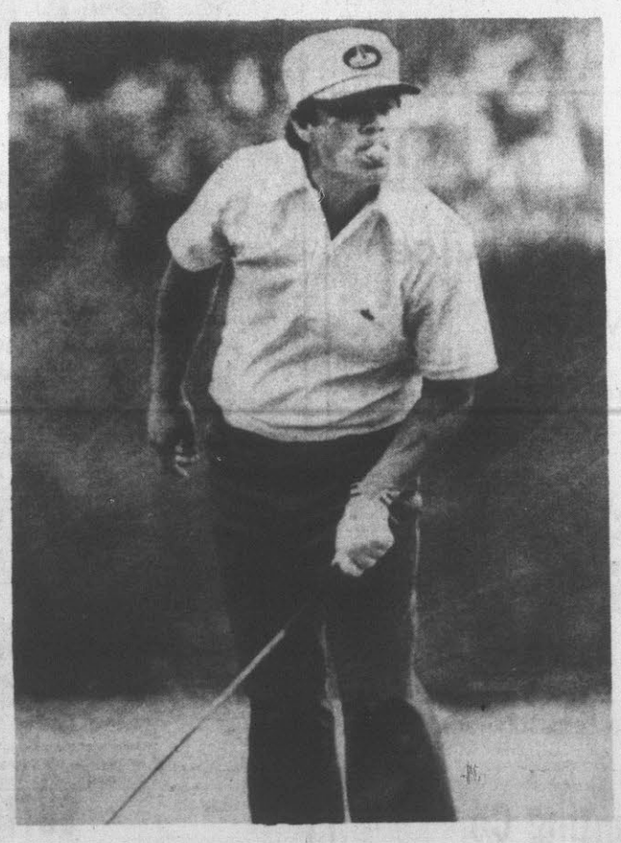

Fight publicist Harold Conrad said Ali announced the "Russian Tank" in whimsical expectation that it might gain him millions of fans in Russia.

Bugner has also said he might attack with what he called the "British Bazooka" if Ali tries the "Russian Tank." It was not further explained.

Andy Smith, Bugner's manager-trainer, said his fighter also would use the "Kuala Lumpur Lumper," also not further explained.

Ali said he wasn't worried.

"What's he gonna lump me with?" he asked. "He better find some lumps before he gonna land them on me," added the champion.

A WINNER'S DOUSING

NEW YORK (AP) — Jockey Kenneth Hargrave received the traditional "first win" dousing of water after he scored aboard the 4-year-old Herrenfriseur in a maiden race at Aqueduct this spring. Hargrave didn't know he had won the race until it was over. His dousing came in the jockeys' dressing room.

Perry Loses Six-Run Lead

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Give Stan Bahnsen an A in his first outing with the Oakland A's.

Bahnsen, acquired from Chicago last Sunday shortly before the trading deadline, allowed five hits in 7⅓ innings as the A's ran their winning streak to five games by defeating the Kansas City Royals 3-1 Friday night.

Dave Hamilton, the pitcher the A's gave up for Bahnsen, didn't fare as well. He was tagged for a three-run homer by Minnesota's Steve Brye in the first inning and took the loss as the Twins downed the White Sox 5-3.

Gaylord Perry, who dropped his first start after being traded from Cleveland to Texas, couldn't hold a 6-0 first-inning lead and the Rangers then blew a three-run lead in the 11th and lost to the California Angels 12-11. Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red nipped the Baltimore Orioles 4-3 in 12 innings, the Detroit Tigers outslugged the New York Yankees 10-9 and the Milwaukee Brewers blanked the Cleveland Indians 6-0.

Bahnsen brought a 4-6 record and 6.01 earned run average to Oakland but struck out seven—all in the first four innings—did not walk a batter and blanked the Royals until the seventh. Reggie Jackson doubled home two Oakland runs off Dennis Leonard in the first inning and Claudell Washington homered in the fifth.

Angels 12, Rangers 11

California spotted Perry a 6-0 lead in the first inning and finally rallied a second time with four runs in the 11th, the winner scoring on a two-out error.

Red Sox 4, Orioles 3

Rick Burleson's sacrifice fly in the 12th inning gave the streaking Red Sox their sixth consecutive victory. Baltimore rookie Dyar Miller walked Doug Griffin with one out in the 12th and Juan Beniquez singled him to third before Burleson delivered his sacrifice fly. The victory gave the Red Sox a three-game lead over the Yankees in the American League East.

Tigers 10, Yankees 9

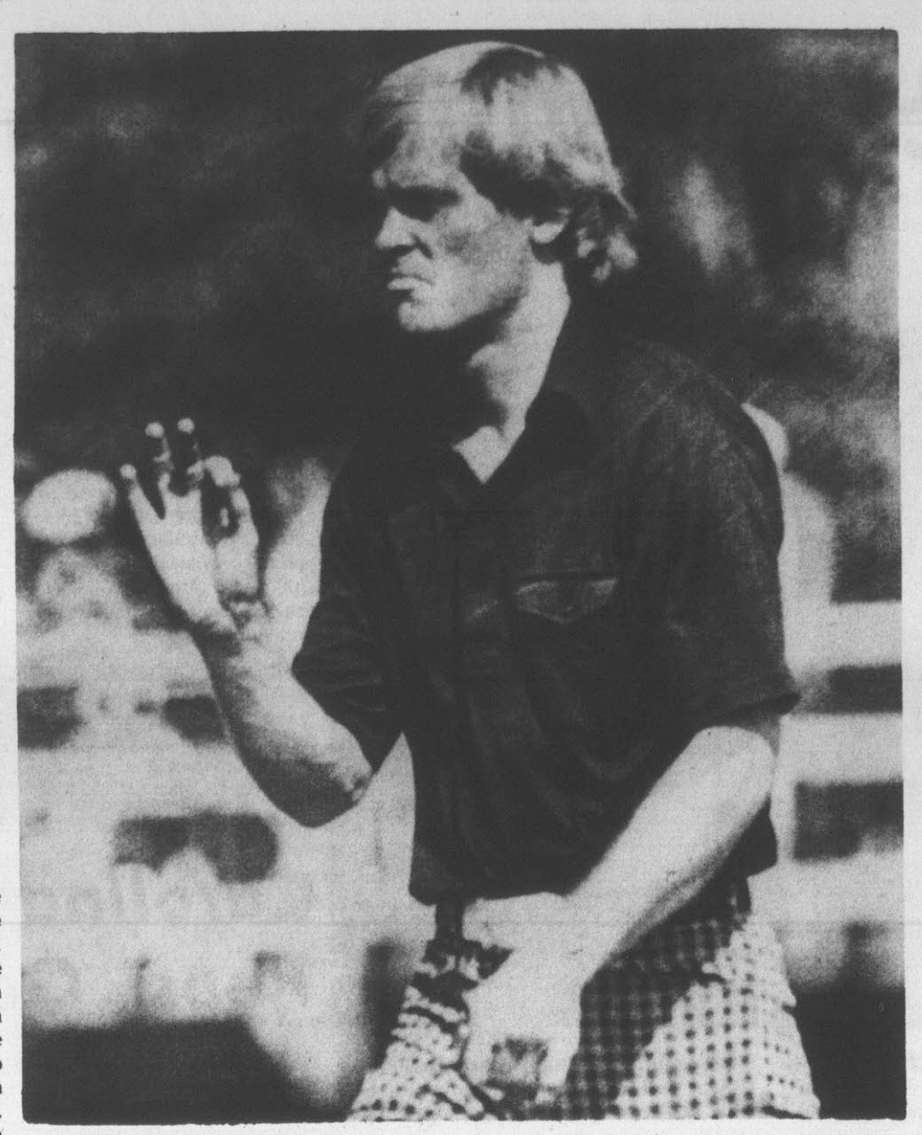

Detroit exploded for seven runs on seven hits against Rudy May and Dave Pagan in the first inning, highlighted by John Wockenfuss' two-run double, and held on for a 10-9 victory when New York countered with six runs in the ninth. Mickey Stanley's three-run homer off Pagan in the seventh gave the Tigers a 10-3 lead and proved to be decisive.

Brewers 6, Indians 0

Bobby Darwin drove in three runs, two with a homer, while Jim Slaton pitched a six-hitter. Slaton got all the runs he needed in the first inning when Darwin hit his sixth home run of the season and his first since being traded from Minnesota to Milwaukee off Roric Harrison following George Scott's double. Darwin also doubled a run home in the fifth. Gorman Thomas also homered for Milwaukee.

Twins 5, White Sox 3

Steve Brye smashed a three-run homer in the first inning to spoil Hamilton's debut with Chicago. Hamilton walked two batters before Brye walloped his fifth homer of the season. Ray Corbin blanked the White Sox until Ken Henderson homered in the eighth.

ALL'S WELL WITH MILLER—After canning a putt for a pare on Medinah's second hole, Johnny Miller flashes the okay sign in the second round of the U.S. Open Friday. Miller added a 72 to his 75 of Thursday for a 36-hole total of 147. (AP Wirephoto)

Three Jumpers Clear 7-4; Record Try Fails

By KEN DONEY
Associated Press Writer

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — A hush fell over Hayward field. For the first time in history, three high jumpers had cleared 7 feet, 4 inches in the same meet. Now Tom Woods was ready for his third and final try at a world record height of 7-7.

Woods, who just completed his collegiate eligibility at Oregon State, missed. But he shrugged it off. "I definitely feel a 7-7 in me," he said. "I went to a clinic recently where I picked up a lot of technical flaws."

Woods cleared 7-5½ in winning the event on the opening day of the Amateur Athletic Union's national track and field championships. Rory Kotinek and world record holder Dwight Stones both cleared 7-4, finishing second and third, respectively.

All three represent the Pacific Coast Club.

The jump was a lifetime best for Woods as it was for Kotinek, who formerly competed in the long jump and javelin as well. For Stones, the two-time defending champion and holder of the world mark of 7-6½, it was a warning.

"Between now and my next meet Tuesday in Finland, I've got to get some sleep," said Stones, who overslept Friday and did not arrive at the stadium until one-half hour after the high jump competition began. "If this group is jumping like this, I've got to be ready."

It was an impressive first day but not one without misfortune. Willie Davenport, a three-time Olympian, fell in the semifinals of the 110-meter high hurdles and was scheduled to undergo surgery today for a torn cartilage below his left knee.

Davenport, who competes for the Baton Rouge Track Club, was leading at the time. "I've had trouble with the left knee before," he said, "but not to this extent. When I came over the last hurdle, my knee just gave way. I didn't hit any hurdles or anything."

Later, in the finals of the same event, both Guy Drut of France and defending champion Charles Foster of North Carolina Central fell and did not finish. They won their respective heats of the event, in which Gerald Wilson of the Beverly Hills Striders took first with 13.38 seconds.

Marty Liquori, normally a miler, won the 5,000 meters, taking the lead early and turning in a final lap of 56.8 en route to an AAU meet record of 13:29.

Liquori, representing the New York Athletic Club, finished about two seconds ahead of Dick Buerkle, also of NYAC. He said earlier in the week he wanted to run the 5,000 to help prepare for his rematch in the mile next week against Tanzania's Filbert Bayi.

Bayi set a world record of 3:51 last month with Liquori second in 3:52.2, fifth-fastest mile of all time. The rematch is set for Thursday in Helsinki.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers' quarterback Terry Bradshaw will sign a recording contract soon with Mercury Records, a company official says.

Jerry Kennedy, a producer, said Friday Bradshaw will record late this summer and the record will be released after the football season. Kennedy said Bradshaw has "a smooth, easy voice. So, we're going to sign him up."

He will be the second athletic figure to enter the recording business here this week. Former heavyweight boxer Jerry Quarry recorded an album earlier this week.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Jim Basista has been named head basketball coach at the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown.

Basista, 29, was an assistant coach at UPJ from 1971-73 and was also an assistant at Bowling Green and Delaware University.

Wes Westrum is the third former major league catcher to manage the San Francisco Giants in the past 10 years. The others were Herman Franks and Charlie Fox.

Olivares Takes Feather Title

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Mexico City's Ruben Olivares Friday knocked down Californian Bobby Chacon twice in the second round and won by a knockout when referee Larry Rozadilla stopped the World Boxing Council featherweight title fight before the stanza ended.

Olivares, 125¼, became the second boxer in history to hold two different weight classification titles twice. On two occasions the 28-year-old Mexican had been the world bantamweight king and once before held this 126-pound title.

Chacon, 124½, from Sylmar, Calif., near this Forum battle site, was first staggered by a right hand, then went down from three successive rights. A left hand put him down again,

The 28-year-old Olivares slammed Chacon at will before Rozadilla called a halt after 2:29 of the explosive second round.

Chacon had trouble making the weight for his second defense of the title he won last September and appeared listless even in the opening round.

The hard-hitting Olivares took command in the opening round and backed Chacon into the ropes, landing a left and right to the head. He did the same just before the bell.

A left and right combination to the head shook Bobby as the second round opened and the veteran little slugger from Mexico City took complete command.

Chacon wasn't hurt until the right caught him midway in the round. From that point on he had no defense against the Olivares attack.

The crowd paid an estimated gate of $421,000, largest ever for a title fight in California and the largest in the state for a fight not including heavyweights.

Olivares scored his 71st knockout in 84 fights and put his record at 78-5-1.

The loss was only Chacon's second in 28 fights, but both losses were by knockouts to Olivares. The Mexican stopped him in the ninth round of a non-title fight on June 23, 1973.

In his younger years, Olivares ruled the bantamweights and was the World Boxing Association featherweight titlist until stopped by Nicaragua's Alexis Arguello in this same Forum ring last Nov. 23.

Only Emile Griffith, welterweight and middleweight champ, ever held two titles twice previously.

Comedy Helps Phillies Rally Past Montreal

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

"I felt like the cop in the middle of the street in a Mack Sennett movie," said Philadelphia third base coach Billy DeMars Friday night after watching the eighth-inning shenanigans that helped the Phillies score four runs and beat the Montreal Expos 7-4.

In the rest of the National League, Pittsburgh downed New York 5-1, Cincinnati whipped Houston 7-3, San Diego edged Los Angeles 2-1, Atlanta beat San Francisco 4-2 and St. Louis defeated Chicago 8-3.

With the Phils trailing 4-3, Jay Johnstone and Mike Schmidt singled and Tony Taylor bunted the runners up a base. Dale Murray replaced starter Steve Renko and Mike Rogodzinski singled to tie the score and send Schmidt to third.

That's when the mental gears—and the comedy—shifted into high gear.

Phillies' Manager Danny Ozark sent up Tommy Hutton to bat for pitcher Tom Underwood. Montreal Manager Gene Mauch sent Fred Scherman in to replace Murray. Then Ozark countered by sending Ollie Brown up to bat for Hutton.

Brown sent a grounder to shortstop Tim Foli and Schmidt took off for home. The throw to the plate was in time to nail him—so he slammed on the brakes and retreated to third.

Schmidt, Rogodzinski and the ball all got there about the same time...except the ball, thrown by catcher Barry Foote, hit Schmidt on the shoulder and bounced into left field.

Schmidt braked once more and raced home with the tie-breaking run...and got hit in the shoulder again, this time on the throw from left-fielder Tony Scott.

Pirates 5, Mets 1

Richie Zisk's tie-breaking single and a three-run triple by Rennie Stennett in the ninth inning kept the Pirates 3½ games ahead of the Phils in the East Division and dropped the Mets into third, 4½ games back.

Reds 7, Astros 3

Tony Perez' two-run single and Cesar Geronimo's three-run homer highlighted a six-run fifth inning that boosted Cincinnati past Houston and enabled the Reds to widen their West Division lead to three games over the Dodgers.

Padres 2, Dodgers 1

San Diego's Brent Strom outdueled Don Sutton with a four hitter and rode Tito Fuentes' tie-breaking single in the sixth inning to victory over Los Angeles, whose only run came on a second-inning homer by Steve Garvey. Willie McCovey's homer tied it in the fourth. And two innings later, Gene Locklear walked and was bunted to second before Fuentes came through.

Braves 4, Giants 2

Dave May's fourth-inning homer and Vic Correll's decisive sixth-inning double carried the Braves past San Francisco in a game extended nearly two hours by rain delays.

Cardinals 8, Cubs 3

Lou Brock lashed four hits including three doubles, stole his 22nd base, scored three runs and drove in two to help the Cardinals batter Chicago, saddling the Cubs with their 11th loss in the last 15 games.

Sports Briefs

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Chuck Ramsey, who averaged 39.8 yards on 71 punts with the Chicago Fire in the World Football League last year, has signed a multiyear contract with the New England Patriots of the National Football League.

Patriots Coach Chuck Fairbanks said Ramsey was signed after he obtained his release from the Fire. A former Wake Forest star, Ramsey was New England's sixth round draft choice in 1974.

Fairbanks also announced Friday the signing of quarterback Steve Grogan of Kansas State and cornerback Steve Freeman of Mississippi State, both drafted in the fifth round this year.

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Rick Cerone of Newark, star Seton Hall University catcher, signs today with the Cleveland Indians, a university spokesman said. The 21-year-old Cerone was the Indians' number one choice at the recent college player draft.

The spokesman said the rugged 5-foot-11, 190-pounder was expected to sign for one of the biggest bonuses in the history of the Indians.

Cerone led Seton Hall into the College World Series for the second consecutive time this past spring. He batted .405 this season, with 15 home runs, including two in the series. The Hall finished fifth in the series.

HONOR FOR CAPPY

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Racing Assn. honored former race caller Fred Capossela during an Aqueduct program this spring. As part of the celebration, track officials gave away T-shirts to 500 youngsters. Each bore Cappy's favorite phrase, "It is now post time."

Oakmont Gets Win

Oakmont pushed over six runs in the top of the first and went on to record a 20-3 win over Arlington St. in Church League Softball, Friday night.

Oakmont added two in the second, three in the fourth, six in the sixth, with homers by Chet Emerson and Ernest Carraway, and two in the seventh. Arlington St. scored once in the third and twice in the seventh.

Dream Game Is A Nightmare

BOSTON (AP) — Bring the world's two most popular soccer players together for the first time in five years and you have a dream game. Right?

Wrong.

Pack 18,000 spectators into a 12,000-seat stadium, provide minimal security, and the result is more of a nightmare.

The overflow crowd stood six deep around Nickerson Field Friday night to see Pele of the New York Cosmos pitted against Eusebio of the Boston Minutemen in a North American Soccer League game won by Boston 2-1 in overtime. However, the anticipated confrontation never came off.

Eusebio scored the first goal of the game on a direct kick with less than 12 minutes to play.

Then Pele scored what spectators thought was the tying goal, but it was overruled. Fans clustered around the goal, then swarmed over the Cosmos' hero, burying him from view for several minutes.

It took more than 15 minutes to restore order, and when play resumed, the magic of what was to have been the dream game was gone.

Pele was taken out for the rest of the game, and Eusebio played only four more minutes. Neither star was on the field at the end.

New York's Mirko Liverio and Boston's Wolfgang Suhnholz completed the scoring, giving Boston the victory.

The Cosmos first announced that Pele was not injured, that he had been taken from the game as "a security ploy."

Millions Of Visitors Are Expected For Bicentennial

By ROGERS C. B. MORTON
Secretary of Commerce
Written for United Press International

The British are coming!

And the Japanese, and the Germans, as well as the Canadians, the Mexicans, the French —and visitors with a hundred other nationalities ... about 30 million people in all.

In fact, more international visitors are expected in the United States during the Bicentennial years of 1975-76 than in any other two-year period.

These visitors represent tremendous earnings for the United States. In the next two years, incoming tourists will spend an estimated $11.9 billion on such items as transportation, food and lodging.

Local economies, especially in major tourist-receiving states, will reap appreciable benefits. It is estimated, for example, that seven cents of every travel dollar is added to state and local tax coffers.

This means international tourists during the Bicentennial years will leave behind $630 million in taxes to help fund highways, schools and other public facilities and services.

The United States has experienced phenomenal growth in international visitor arrivals in the past decade. The aura of the Bicentennial will undoubtedly add to this popularity, with many vacationers from abroad viewing this 200th anniversary celebration as the ideal time to "experience" the USA.

What makes a country attractive as a tourism destination?

First is natural tourism resources, such as pleasant climate, beaches, mountains and scenic beauty. The United States has almost an infinite spectrum of climatic zones to appeal to almost any type of vacationer, from sun bathers to ski enthusiasts. Nature has also sprinkled the land with such crowning features as Grand Canyon, Niagara Falls and the Everglades.

Second, and equally important to the tourist, is a network of transportation and accommodations, which provides access to the tourism resources and comfort during his stay.

Again, the United States ranks high in this category, with some of the finest transportation facilities technology can achieve, and more than 64,500 hotels and motels nationwide.

Third, and perhaps least easily defined of the components, is the reputation which a nation builds as a good host.

This intangible third component is the crucial factor which will determine whether the USA becomes a truly great international tourism destination. America's reputation as a good host nation rests primarily with the private sector, and ultimately rests with individual Americans.

International visitors also have many special needs which must be served.

Seventy per cent of last year's visitors from overseas were from non-English speaking nations and many had to overcome the frustrations and problems resulting from being in a strange land with the sounds of a strange language.

At present, multilingual facilities are woefully few.

TraveLodge International offers, as a public service, a toll-free travel phone staffed by operators who can assist a visitor from abroad in four major foreign languages. Eleven U.S. gateway cities have port receptionists, young people who greet international visitors in four languages and aid them through U.S. customs formalities.

These programs are a good start toward the kind of service needed, but they reach only a small fraction of those guests who should be served.

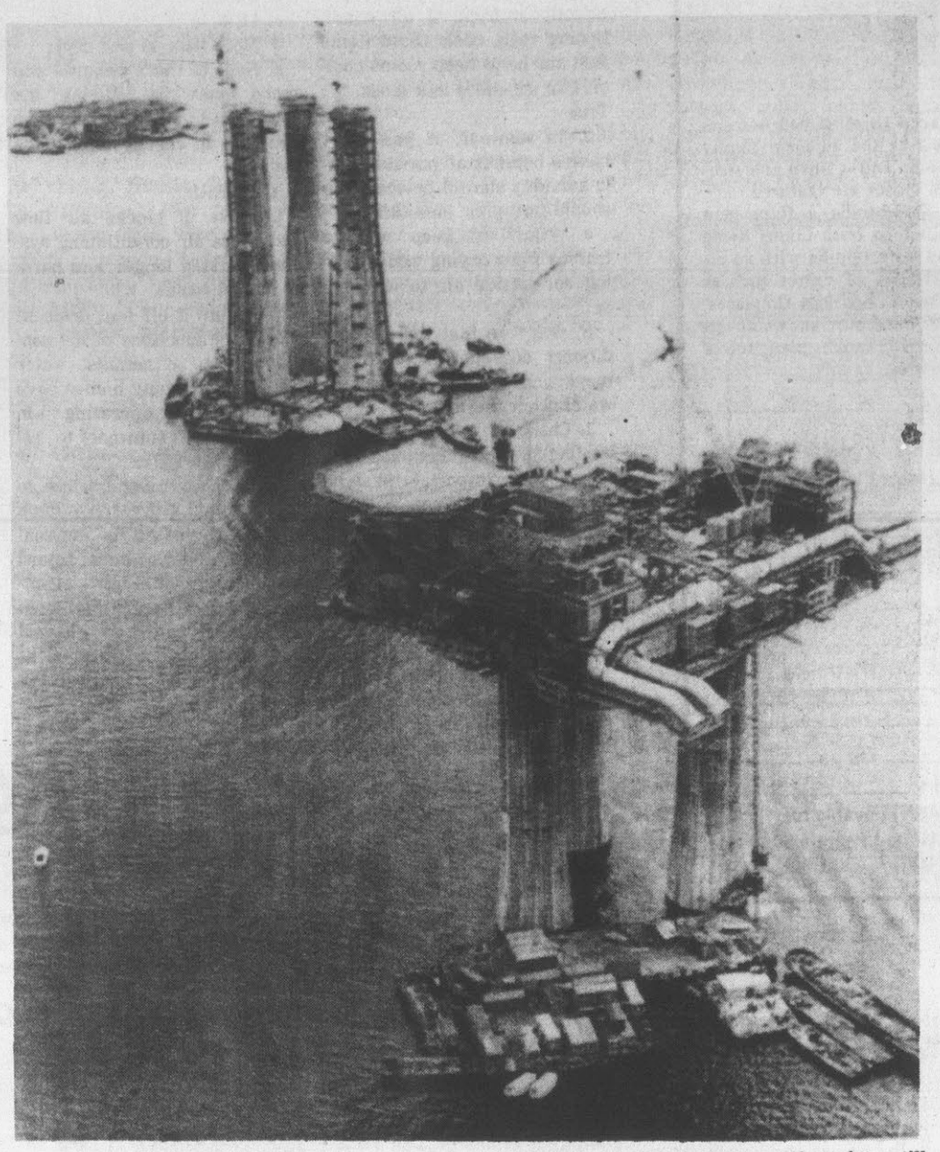

International visitors are often hindered, too, by the lack of readily accessible currency exchange facilities. Too few airports have adequate foreign currency exchange operations, and even in major tourism cities most hotels and shops refuse to accept other currencies. Conversely, U.S. dollars are accepted almost worldwide for the convenience of the American traveler.

The United States Travel Service is conducting a campaign to upgrade services for incoming travelers.

Programs include augmentation of the part-time multilingual port receptionist corps with full-time visitor services representatives at major airports, and identification and certification of hotels and motels with bilingual staffs.

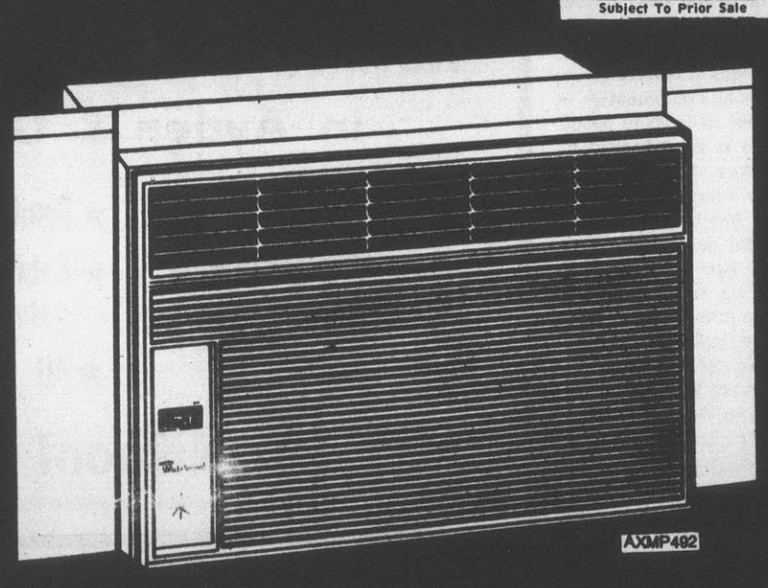

The tourism agency is urging state and local government tourism officials to think in terms of the special receptive services needed by international visitors.

USTS is aiding appropriate state and local officials in conducting educational programs for people who come in contact with international tourists. Many communities have initiated their own host programs, and as these programs expand, economic benefits will be reaped, as well as intangible results in terms of international goodwill.

SPACIOUS RANCH STYLE SET FOR ENTERTAINING

FLOOR PLAN DEFINES AREAS FOR FAMILY, GUESTS

Claycourt

By Jerry Bishop

Zoned areas for entertaining and for family activities result in a design that is both useful and highly livable in this three bedroom ranch style.

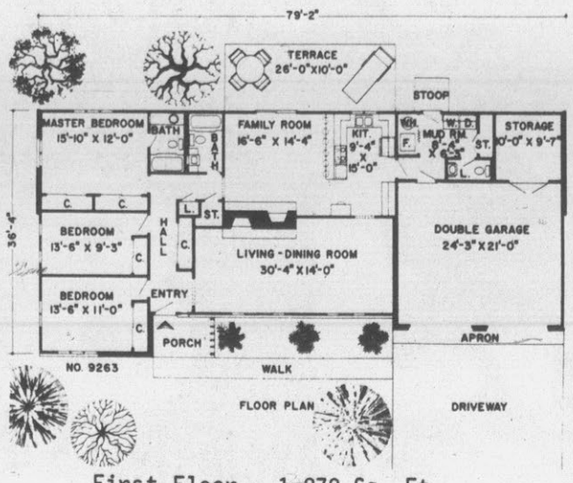

Entry is into the foyer, with its long closet providing plenty of room for coats. Immediately to the right is the expansive formal living-dining room, measuring over 30 feet in length and brightened by a wood-burning fireplace and generous use of windows.

For convenience, the living-dining room connects to the kitchen at rear, but the areas are carefully separated. The U-shaped kitchen is open to the large family room and shares with it a cozy wood-burning fireplace and a long snack bar. Open to the terrace via sliding glass doors, the area promises a restful, appealing site for family meals and relaxation any season of the year. The arrangement also assures a convenient area for small children's play, both indoor and outdoor.

To the right of the kitchen is the mud room/laundry complex, incorporating storage closet or space for utilities and a half bath. The room features an entrance from the back yard, suggesting it might be an ideal place to channel muddy children or gardening equipment. Additional storage is provided in the room behind the double garage.

Bedrooms occupy the area to the left of the entry hall. Desirable because of its size, the master bedroom is furnished with "his" and "her" closets and a private bath, while two more bedrooms radiate from the central hallway. The hall bath is well-placed to serve bedrooms as well as the adjacent family room, and a linen and storage closet are featured.

Combining a floor plan suited to both family living and entertaining with an assortment of extras such as a snack bar and fireplaces, the Claycourt shows an attractive ranch plan for a growing family.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Like to try a warm weather EQ (energy quotient) test? Here it is:

QUESTIONS:

1. Placing furniture or drapes directly in front of air conditioning vents cools those items first and helps keep rooms cooler, like ice cubes in a glass.
True False

2. In summer, if you don't have a humidistat (an automatic humidity control device), you should turn your humidifier:

a. "On," to keep window frames from drying and allowing hot outside air to leak in; or

b. "Off," so that the air conditioner does not have to remove unnecessary amounts of water from the air.

3. Changing the air filter on heating-air conditioning systems is more important in summer than winter. True False

4. Setting thermostats up 5 degrees during the day in the summer can save as much as 20 per cent of energy consumption for air conditioning.
True False

5. To speed up house cooling during hot weather you should:

a. Turn your thermostat to the lowest setting for 30 minutes, then turn it back where you had it.

b. Turn your thermostat down only 10 degrees for 30 minutes, then turn it back where you had it.

c. Turn your thermostat down 10 degrees and leave it there.

d. Set your thermostat at the temperature you want and leave it there no matter how hot it gets outside.

e. None of these.

6. Awnings, special reflector glass, blinds or drapes that help shade windows can be a contributing factor in saving air-conditioning energy.
True False

7. Fluorescent lighting uses less energy and generates less heat than incandescent lighting.
True False

8. Insulation retards the flow of heat into or out of a home so that it helps keep homes cool in summer and warm in winter.
True False

9. Electronic air cleaners in commercial places like restaurants, bars and bowling alleys help save energy because cleaning and recirculating cooled air in the building reduces the amount of "fresh" air that has to be cooled.
True False

10. Hot weather set-up of thermostats during the day can save what per cent of energy per degree of set-up?

a. 1-4.

b. 5-10;

c. 11-15;

d. More than 15 per cent;

e. None of these because you spend more in cooling the house down in the evening than you save in energy during the day.

ANSWERS:

1. False. It blocks air flow and keeps air conditioning systems working longer and harder to cool rooms.

2. b. Turn it off and drain it. One of the functions of air conditioners is to remove water from the air. Many homes have dehumidifiers operating in basements in summer to remove excess water.

3. True. Air must be free to circulate and a greater volume of air is circulated for air conditioning. Dirty filters retard circulation, making compressors work harder and longer. A device called a "clogged filter flag" can be installed at nominal cost to tell when the filter needs changing or cleaning.

4. True. A computer study by Honeywell showed setting thermostats at 80 during a period from 5 a.m. to 4 p.m. and at 75 during the night could save nearly 10 per cent in Dallas and more than 20 per cent in Los Angeles. Air conditioning compressor time savings will vary depending on geographic location.

5. d. As in winter, the thermostat should be set and left alone. If you want a different temperature, lower the setting a couple of degrees per four-hour period until you get the comfort level you want. Turning the thermostat way down will not get you cooling any faster and you may forget to turn it back which would waste energy by overcooling.

6. True.

7. True.

8. True.

9. True.

10. a. One to 4 per cent per degree, according to the computer study.

Scoring: 8 to 10 — High E.Q.

Less than 5 — Your wasteful habits are costing you money.

Vacation House May Be Bugged

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Some families may be greeted by the patter of little feet — mice, squirrels and the like — when they open their vacation house for another season.

Winged insects may also be spotted emerging from one or another place, wooden beams or paneling.

In particular the sight of winged insects may make the spine tingle as one thinks the worst — termites. But amateur insect spotters should not be alarmed; not all winged insects that emerge from walls in bombing squad precision are termites. They may well be flying ants (the body of the ant is tapered at the waist and the underwings are shorter than those of termites) and these may be controlled easily with a product containing chlordane. Used minimally in safe places, chlordane poses no threat to pets or children.

One hardware store man claimed that he used it liberally outdoors many years ago to control a severe pest infiltration and that his dog became tickless as the result of rolling around on the treated lawn. Nevertheless, few people may wish to risk the long-range uncertainty of exposing their dog or other animal in that manner.

If flying ants emrge from a place where powder can be used, the problem can be handled quite easily. To powder the rim of a beam, shelf or sill, for example, without getting the powder over everything, shake it into an envelope and then sprinkle it gently from the envelope across the area to be controlled, using the amount needed. It is very effective in controlling the big black carpenter ants that enter the house at doors or windows. Ivy-covered houses have lots of ant appeal and their usual form of entry is the windows. Sprinkling the powder on the sill just outside the window may do the trick.

Somehow when pests enter the house they take on a new dimension. Outside we may admire the ant for its industriousness as it builds its little colonies feverishly, but when they run amuck on food counters, we need to get rid of them.

So, too, with mice. Little field mice have a lot of Micky Mouse charm, but they are nuisances. It is a question then of choosing the most humane way of riddance. A female mouse begins to mate at about six weeks and the litter of seven are on their way to fierce propagation. Choose the quickest excision, but do not use a product that is also intended for rats. You don't want to torture the poor things.

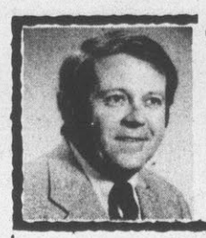

Rats may be eliminated by destructive morsels that they take back to their nests, although some people prefer to use traps. However, traps can be dangerous since a rat might bite you if the trap is picked up prematurely.

Squirrels often take over an unoccupied house for storage of nuts, causing quite a bit of destruction. Often the easiest entry is through a weak fieldstone foundation or the attic, especially one that has a tree limb growing conveniently over it. It is a problem that should be dealt with at once. Even exterminators claim it is hard going to get rid of squirrels. Normally they lace a trap with nuts and other things and move the trap to a wooded area where the squirrels are released. Many people place moth balls in the attic to keep squirrels away.

One can only experiment with various means of extermination if there are no exterminators at the vacation spot. Many people do not like to be dislodged by exterminators, but sometimes the family evacuation may be for only a few hours while the exterminator does his job.

If a bat has taken up residence during the winter, you must try to draw it to the light, advises one family who has had the experience.

They did not light the house, built a large fire outside and kept their automobile lights on and they claim they lured the bat from the house. It did take most of the night, they said, but it was worth it.

REALTOR

FALSE ECONOMIES

There are many ways to cut corners when you sell your home. But some of these may be very costly in the final outcome. I refer to selling with out the services of a REALTOR and attorney. Their experience and knowledge could easily be the best financial insurance you can buy.

An attorney can be well worth his fee if he steers you clear of a single financial or legal pitfall.

Trying to play expert by filling in the blanks of standard deeds, purchase and sales agreements, binders, financial forms can easily backfire. Some of the biggest monetary losses have come about precisely in this manner.

Select a REALTOR from the start. Listen to his recommendation for the best selling price. He knows the local market. Let him handle the whole transaction for you — from advertising, showing, financial arrangements down to the final closing. Anything less could be very false economy. Selling a home is serious financial business. It should be handled just that way.

Gardening Questions

Q. The lower leaves on my tomato plants develop splotches, and eventually turn yellow. Should they be pruned off? (M.D., Maiden)

A. The leaves have probably turned yellow because of a disease called early blight. This desease can be controlled by a weekly application of either maneb (Manzate D or Dithane M-22 Special) or chlorothalonil (Bravo). However, the yellowing may have been caused by one of the wilt diseases or root-knot nematodes. Pulling of leaves is usually not recommended for field tomatoes. However, in the garden or green house, removing the dead leaves from the lower portion of the plant would increase air circulation, which may be helpful in controlling such diseases as Botrytis blight and Sclerotinia. (Harry Duncan, extension plant pathologist)

Q. How do I control dallisgrass in my lawn? (L.L., Albermarle)

A. Use CMA, DSMA, MAMA or MSMA. These herbicides may be used on bluegrass, bermudagrass, fescue and zoysia. Do not use on carpetgrass, centipedegrass or St. Augustinegrass. Use two applications seven to 10 days apart. Spray when soil moisture is good and the air temperature is 80 degrees or above. (W.M. Lewis, extension agronomist)

Q. Some type of worm got into the stem of my squash and killed them. How can I prevent this in the future? (Mrs. G.P., Robersonville)

A. Your squash was undoubtedly killed by the squash vine borer. These insects in the adult stage are moths. The moths lay eggs on the base of the vine and within a few days, the caterpillar works its way through the vine to the inside where it feeds and grows. Soon, of course, it injures the vine to the point it will not be able to feed the plant. Treat the plant about the time of first bloom and every week until you feel the danger from this insect is passed. Use Sevin at a rate of two tablespoonfuls of the 50 per cent wettable powder per gallon of water or if you prefer to use a dust, use the 5 per cent dust. (H.E. Scott, extension entomologist)

Q. Poison ivy is growing on my fence and weeds are growing in my parking lot. How do I get rid of both of these? (A.Y., Greensboro)

A. 2,4-D amine is the best choice. Keep it off other desirable plants. Spray when there is no wind. Any plant is easier to kill when it is actively growing. (Carl Black, extension agronomist)

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

Q. — A guest at our house placed a cigarette in an ash tray on our living room coffee table. We went into another room. While we were absent, the cigarette must have fallen from the tray and rested on the table top, where it left a deep burn that seems to go right through the finish and slightly into the wood itself. Can this be fixed without refinishing the entire table top?

A. — No. When a burn has gone through the finish and affected the wood itself, the old finish must be removed. The marred spot then must be tackled, sanding it down until it disappears. In more severe cases, it may be necessary to do a patching job before the refinishing, but this is often unsatisfactory because it is so difficult to get an exact match. Should it be impossible to make a good repair, you might consider recovering the top of the table with a wood veneer or perhaps a wood-grained laminated plastic.

Q. — Sometimes I read about getting a 5 per cent tax credit on the purchase of a new house and sometimes I read that it is a $2,000 tax credit. Which is correct?

A — It's 5 per cent up to a maximum of $2,000. Thus, if you bought a house for $45,000, the credit would be only $2,000 even though 5 per cent of $45,000 is more than that. Also, you are reminded that the credit doesn't apply to all new houses. The builder can tell you whether his house is eligible for the credit and, to protect you, should give you a certification of that.

Q. — Can I use ordinary hydrogen peroxide for bleaching wood?

A. — It has bleaching qualities and, in some cases, might be effective. I recently visited a friend who had cut his hand while making some furniture. Some of the blood had spilled on the wood. It was quickly and effectively removed with peroxide from the medicine chest. However, for complete bleaching jobs on wood I have never used anything but the wood bleach sold in hardware stores and lumber yards.

No fair peaking. No fun, either.
P-E-A-K...as in "peak demand".
As in electricity. As in your monthly electric utility bill.
The summer electric rate you're paying this year is based on the peak demand you established last year.
The rate you pay next year will be based, in part, on the peak demand you establish this summer.
Yes, you.
You use the electricity. You establish the peaks. You influence the rates you pay.
You can make them higher next year.
Or...you can help keep them down.
How? Simple.

Nobody's asking you to use less electricity...only to use it more wisely.
For example:
Peak demand usually comes between 5:00 PM and 7:00 PM on very hot days. Everybody gets home from work...turns on the air conditioners full blast...cooks a meal...washes dishes...maybe even washes and dries a load of laundry. Everybody does everything at the same time...creating a huge peak demand.
But!
don't PEAK!
What if the folks who're going to cook out or go out were to leave their air conditioning up around 78°, or higher, instead of turning it cooler?
What if the people with dishwashers used them only once a day...around bedtime or early in the morning?
What if everybody with laundry to wash and dry did it in the morning?
Then!
There wouldn't be a huge peak demand this year. Then you'd stand a good chance of holding down summer electric rates next year.
So?
Don't peak. It isn't wise.
Please.

Boston's Busing Foes Eye Nationwide Campaign

By JANET WU

BOSTON (UPI) — Louise Day Hicks, national director of ROAR, Restore Our Alienated Rights, says all she wants to do is "stop all this nonsense."

The "nonsense" is forced school busing for school desegregation. And ROAR represents organized resistance to that court-designed method of bringing racial balance to classrooms.

ROAR was organized last spring after U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity handed down the first part of his school desegregation program for Boston.

It has persisted and grown as the controversy surrounding the integration of Boston's urban classrooms continued. It backed a march in Washington and recently held a "national convention" in Boston.

ROAR began with a core group of low to middle income South Boston parents who wanted to keep their children out of school buses and in neighborhood schools.

Now much of its support now comes from inactive members, parents from Charlestown, Hyde Park and East Boston who are angry at Garrity for trying to change the way their kids have been educated for decades.

They are led by Mrs. Hicks, a former congresswomen and city councillor who says ROAR, symbolized by a large lion with its front paws enveloping a school bus, is "the only thing keeping people in this city."

Mrs. Hicks says ROAR has 56,000 members in the Boston area, although only about 4,000 showed up at its national convention.

"The only requirement to become a member of ROAR is you gotta be against busing," Mrs. Hicks said.

Mrs. Hicks said that there is no information available on the national membership of ROAR, but that ROAR now has chapters in 34 states. Anti-busing groups from Atlanta, Ga., to Los Angeles sent delegates to ROAR's convention.

Mrs. Hicks said that groups originally organized under other names, "like Citizens for Community Schools (Beltsville, Md.) and National Action Group (Royal Oak, Mich.), are now in the process of organizing themselves under the ROAR name".

"ROAR members are no particular type of people. They come from Wilmington, Del., and the Bronx in New York. They're housewives and professionals," she said.

Their purpose?

"We just want to stop all this nonsense," said Mrs. Hicks, who became a national anti-busing figure in the 1960s when she ran for mayor of Boston, saying, "I seek this office in order to bring about change...-The greatest issue of all is that we feel alienated. No one in City Hall listens to us."

Now she said, "I don't know why Judge Garrity won't meet with us. I've written several letters and he won't talk to me."

It is too early to tell whether ROAR will remain a local Boston organization or whether it truly will become a national force. Right now, according to Mrs, Hicks, there are chapters, membership figures unavailable, in the District of Columbia and these states:

Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, California, New Jersey, Michigan, Illinois, West Virginia, Virginia, Florida, Nevada, Texas, Ohio, Wisconsin, Colorado, Oregon, Nebraska, North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Georgia, Maryland, Rhode Island, Kansas, Arizona, Louisiana, Maine, Delaware, Montana, Alaska and Hawaii.

Garrity's final plan, which includes a provision for "magnet" schools to attract students of all races to special educational programs, projects the busing of about 21,000 pupils—more than one quarter of the city's school children.

The School Department's chief desegregation planner, John Coakley, after reading the plan, predicted the number would be between 29,000 and 40,000.

The actual figure probably won't be known until next month after the school department files a transportation plan Garrity must approve.

Garrity apparently was right when he said his final plan probably wouldn't satisfy anyone.

Anti-busing leaders, who have established a formidable political force threatening the re-election of Mayor Kevin H. White, claim the plan goes too far. The NAACP, a moving force in the suit that brought the original court order, is unhappy that East Boston was virtually untouched by the integration order.

Garrity's ruling on the NAACP suit came after a decade of resistance to desegregation by the Boston School Committee, which runs the nation's oldest public school system. That opposition led to the appointment by Garrity of a 42-member Citywide Coordinating Council to oversee integration next fall.

All concerned say the disruptions that caused scores of arrests and injuries last fall will return, perhaps even stronger, in September.

Restore Our Alienated Rights, the largest anti-busing group with support in almost all of the city's white ethnic enclaves, has become a potent political force. It's leader, former Rep. Louise Day Hicks, a twice unsuccessful mayoral candidate, says the final plan only invites more trouble.

White, who had been considering a run for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination until the busing uproar, says the problem is the heavy ethnic isolation of many of the city's neighborhoods.

Both he and Police Chief Robert diGrazia say the additional number of schools and children involved next fall make more trouble a strong possibility.

Even those opposed to the busing order admit excluding East Boston from the final plan will mean a much quieter September. Separated from the rest of the city by Boston Harbor, the heavily Italian area has been a ROAR stronghold and hotbed of opposition to integration.

Robert Dentler, dean of Boston University's School of Education, who helped Garrity draw up the plan, said the physical hardship in busing youngsters that far, not the fear of violence, was the reason for its virtual exclusion.

The busing issue reached almost absurd proportions at times.

"The Ku Klux Klan Is Coming" read a hand-painted sign on the Old Colony housing project. And sure enough, members of the KKK came to Boston and were welcomed by some members of the Irish-Catholic community.

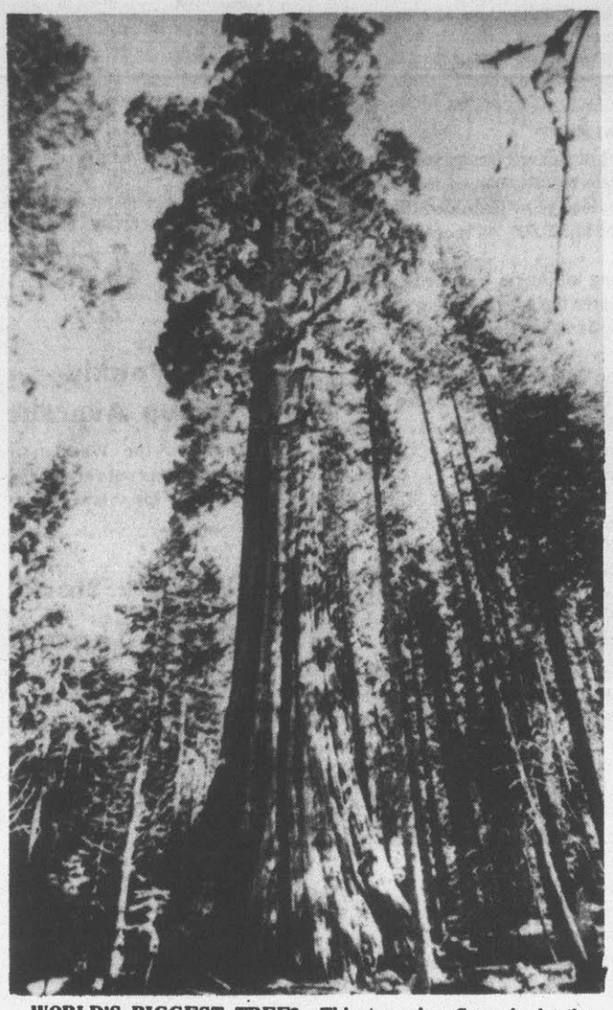

But that allegiance was short lived.

Old-time Irish families told chilling tales to their children and children's children of KKK cross burnings and the Klan's violent anti-Catholic campaign against Al Smith in his 1928 presidential race.

The KKK was sent packing and the welcoming sign came down.

It soon was replaced in sections of Boston by equally ugly graffiti saying: "Niggers go home!"

A black resident answered the stand of some city leaders that the issue was busing and not racial: "Those signs don't say 'school buses go home.'"

WORLD'S BIGGEST TREE?—This towering Sequoia in the Sierra Nevada of California may challenge the famed General Sherman Sequoia for the title of the world's biggest living thing. The tree, called Bull Buck, recently was measured: 258 feet tall and 85 feet around the middle. General Sherman had been considered the champ. Now the experts aren't so sure and will make further measurements. (AP Wirephoto)

Erosion Study By Tire Industry

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Two grants from Goodyear of $2,500 each have been made to the universities of Michigan and Rhode Island to evaluate the use of huge tire barriers to control shore erosion from storm waves along the shores of Lake Michigan and Narrangansett and Chesapeake bays.

The program is part of a major tire industry effort — including highway crash barriers, artificial tire reefs and recycling of old tires into new — to re-use the 200 million tires scrapped by American motorists each year.

More Service Stations Keeping Longer Hours

SUMMER FARMING... takes on a fiery aspect in parts of eastern North Carolina. Sheets of controlled flames racing across fields of wheat stubble is a common sight in late June in several coastal counties as farmers burn the stubble preparatory to planting a late crop of soybeans. The scene here was photographed near Aurora. (Reflector photo by Jerry Raynor)

By The Associated Press

A growing number of service stations are staying open longer these days, switching back to pre-embargo schedules at the request of oil companies urging them to sell more gasoline.

An Associated Press spot check showed only a few cases of intense pressure being applied to dealers to stay open in the evening and on weekends. Most dealers said the oil companies simply asked them to keep selling longer.

Spokesmen for several companies said they were only asking that dealers live up to signed contracts.

The Senate passed and sent to the House on Friday a bill limiting the right of petroleum distributors to cancel franchise agreements with dealers. Distributors would be allowed to cancel a contract only if the dealer failed to comply substantially with his contract or if the distributor quit the petroleum business altogether.

The AP spot check showed the situation varied from station to station, and there was no clear pattern of pressure by any particular company.

The AP questioned a Gulf dealer, a Texaco dealer and a Sunoco dealer in Rhode Island, but only the Sunoco dealer, who did not want his name used, reported any pressure. "All they (the oil companies) want to do is sell more gasoline," he added.

The Gulf dealer, Pat Augiello of Providence, and the Texaco dealer, Roger Langlais of West Warwick, had a different response.

"There is no pressure to sell more," Augiello said. Langlais agreed, and added: "They haven't been pushing the gasoline."

There have been recent warnings of a possible gasoline shortage this summer because of declining stockpiles and production. The Federal Energy Administration has said it was checking supply reports and, if necessary, would use its authority to increase production of gasoline since supplies of crude oil to manufacture the fuel are adequate.

Major stations contacted in Chicago reported no pressure. They said their sales were off because of the price difference between the major brands and the independents.

"We sit around and play poker. The price is too high," said one station operator.

New Textile President

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — South Carolina textile executive R. James Ritter was elected president of the Southern Textile Association Friday.

Ritter of Reeves Brothers, Inc., Spartanburg, S.C., was named as the closing session of the association's annual convention. He replaces E.P. Schrum of Carolina Mills, Maiden, N.C., who was named chairman of the board of governors.

Herman Cone Jr. of Greensboro was presented the David Clark Award for his contribution to the industry over a period of more than 20 years.

Merger Plans Stated

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—The Palmetto State Life Insurance Co., one of the largest insurance companies in South Carolina, plans to merge with Home Security Life Insurance Co. of Durham, N.C., pending approval by both the North and South Carolina insurance commissions.

In a statement released Friday, the board of directors of Palmetto State Life, based in Columbia, announced they have approved in principle, the statutory merger, which would result in the absorption of the company. Home Security Life would be the surviving company in the merger.

Both companies are subsidiaries of Capital Holding Corp. of Louisville, Ky.

According to John L.M. Tobias, board chairman of Palmetto State Life, the merger will mean transferring of employes and layoffs.

The company presently has 117 persons employed in the home office and 325 sales representatives in the field. Tobias said details concerning the future of the company's employes are currently being worked out.

He said the decision to merge was made to protect policy holders and investors and to effect economy in operation.

Legislation Would Resurrect Job-Creating Programs

By DON WATERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation that would resurrect about half the funds for job-creating programs that were contained in an earlier measure that was vetoed is being sent to the White House.

House approval by voice vote Friday completed congressional action on the bill, which includes more than $2 billion for public service jobs, college work-study grants, the Youth Conservation Corps and rural water and sewer grants, among other programs.

The largest appropriation is $1.6 billion for public service jobs, which President Ford has said he favors. There was greater uncertainty, however, about his stand on the other spending.

Ford vetoed a $5.3-billion jobs package.

The jobs programs are included in a supplementary spending bill that provides stopgap funding for executive departments until the regular appropriations are approved.

Meanwhile, the Senate voted 70 to 3 to approve a bill that extends until the end of 1975 the right of jobless workers in high-unemployment areas to receive unemployment compensation for up to 65 weeks. The 65-week provision has been due to expire June 30.

The Senate tied this extension to a provision that would permit a maximum $2,000 tax credit for purchase of new homes which were started before June 19. Current law places the cutoff date at last March 26.

House Democrats also announced a major effort to override an expected presidential veto of an already-approved bill to provide incentive payments to home buyers, interest-reducing subsidies and protection against foreclosure of mortgages held by unemployed workers.

$2.1 Million For Jobs

RALEIGH (AP)—The coastal plains regions of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia have been awarded $2.1 million dollars for 36 job opportunity projects designed to decrease unemployment in areas hard hit by unemployment.

Coastal Plains Regional Commission federal co-chairman Jack Hawke said Friday the funds are part of the Emergency Jobs and Unemployment Assistance Act signed into law last December.

Hawke said North Carolina will get $761,000 for 12 projects, South Carolina $588,000 for nine projects and Georgia $794,000 for 15 projects.

How to add $50,000 to your retirement savings without even trying Wage earners who are not covered by a pension plan can now save tax-sheltered dollars toward their retirement.

The result? A build-up of your retirement savings by an extra $40,000, $50,000 . . . even more!

The Individual Retirement Account makes it possible . . . and we make it easy, with our Individual Retirement Savings Account—the IR$A.

You may save up to $1500 or 15% of your wages, whichever is less, each year. For Federal income tax purposes, contributions to your IR$A are fully deductible from gross income, and you may make this deduction even though you do not itemize other deductions.

The interest your savings earn is also tax-deferred until retirement, when your exemptions will be higher and your tax bracket lower. Compounding of the interest over the years generates more dollars, to build a retirement fund that is tens of thousands of dollars more than would be possible with taxed dollars. The table shows you just how much more you can accumulate.

The sooner you start the sooner you save tax dollars, so don't delay. Phone us for complete information and our free folder explaining the IR$A Plan, or use the convenient coupon. Act today!

By EDWARD R. GIRARDET

PARIS (UPI) — A group of former American intelligence officers has banded together to try to dispel "the myth of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency."

Davis Phillips, former director of the CIA's South American operations, said in an interview with UPI that he helped found the Association of Retired Intelligence Officers to "clear up a great deal of the misconception and mystery which surrounds the CIA."

Phillips formed the association after leaving the CIA a few months ago. He had served almost 25 years with the organization.

The CIA has come under heavy attack for its covert activities, especially those conducted during the crisis in Chile.

Recently two controversial books on the U.S. intelligence organization written by former CIA agents have appeared on the market.

They are "Inside the Company —CIA Diary," by Philip Agee, a 12-year veteran with experience in three South American countries, and "The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence," by ex-CIA official Victor Marchetti and John D. Marks, a former State Department aide.

Phillips visited Europe to appear on French and British television programs and to meet both Agee and Marks.

"I am not at all denying that the CIA was involved in clandestine operations which may have influenced the train of events in the politics of certain foreign countries," said Phillips, a tall, gentle-mannered man with a nervous but pleasant smile.

"We did know of the impending coup in Chile in 1973, but then so did the media. It was just a matter of when.

"But we did not support the putschists. And contrary to repeated allegations we did not back the truck strike" that intensified Chile's economic troubles under the late president Salvador Allende.

"President Allende was democratically elected and the next elections were due in 1976," Phillips said. "The economic situation in Chile was so disastrous that he would have lost the elections, so we supported Christian Democrat and other organizations in order that they could survive until the elections came about. But that we directly undermined Allende is not true."

"The CIA has changed. Just as times, people, countries and even presidents have changed.

"There is a great deal of truth in what Agee has written. However, there are also a large number of misconstrued facts. He has named a number of CIA employes still operating, a move which could jeopardize their lives.

"In addition, he has mentioned names of persons not at all connected with the CIA."

Phillips said one of the main difficulties in being an intelligence officer is leading a double life.

"There comes a time when you have to explain to your family that you are not a diplomat, but an intelligence officer," said Phillips, who has seven children.

"The reaction among my elder children was one of amazement: Gee, is my old man really a James Bond?

"Of course, its not quite like that," he added, smiling. "The majority of CIA activities—about 80 per cent—is pure research. Only a minority of the company is actually engaged in covert activities.

"But when my youngest daughter said, 'but daddy, that's dirty,' I began to have second thoughts.

"It took a long time to explain why I was an intelligence officer.

"The question one has to ask is whether it is possible for an open society such as the United States to have a secret organization. That's where the paradox lies and it will have to be up to Congress to decide how to cope with the problem.

"I am all for Congress acting as a watchdog. It has to."

Expert Advises Let Faucet Run For A Minute

LOMBARD, Il. (AP) — Allow the tap water to run for a minute every morning before using it for cooking or drinking, say water experts. It gets rid of water that may have picked up undesirable elements — such as lead or cadmium — by standing in the pipes overnight.

"Four recent research projects have indicated the desirability of this practice," says Richard Weickart, technical director of the Water Quality Research Council.

"Since hot water is more likely to pick up trace elements from pipes than cold water, we are also advising the public never to use hot water for drinking or cooking. When you want hot water for these purposes, run fresh cold water and heat it."

The Water Quality Research Council is a nonprofit organization dedicated to research and education.

Thornsby. . .

"Yes, dear, it looks much better since it was washed and ironed."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

In trying to pull a wardrobe together for my vacation, I ran into an incredible phenomenon—the pre-planned, no fault, can't miss, color-coordinated basic wardrobe.

"This," said the salesperson, "is the Weekender. It has four basic pieces that will take you from a super casual afternoon to a formal evening. And here is the Fortnighter. It's an 11-piece coordinated collection designed to meet all the fashion requirements of a two-week cruise. This, of course, is the Around The World In 80 Days and 44 Pounds. It's 22 pieces that combine to make 156 outfits."

"This little stack of clothes weighs 44 pounds?" I asked.

"Of course not. The clothes only weigh 8 pounds. There's a 36-pound can of deodorant that comes with it."

"How does it work?" I asked.

"You just press the nozzle and . . ."

"Not the deodorant! The wardrobe!"

"Simple. Here is your basic pants suit. Take off the blouse, add the vest and you're ready for polo. Take off the slacks, put on the shorts and you're dressed for bicycling. Zip the lining into the shorts, add the halter and it's a bathing suit. Take the straps off the halter and it's a bra. Add a short skirt and you're ready for tennis.

"Now, turn the blouse inside out and it's a bathrobe. Turn down the cuffs on the slacks, take the belt off the overblouse and you're in your jammies."

"It certainly is versatile," I stammered.

"Versatile! Look at the accessories. This elasticized halter can get you a sun tan, but when pulled down over the hips is a girdle. Now, slip into the evening skirt, slip on this veil, and you're ready to be married. Or, slap a monogram on the jacket and you can pass for a member of the U.S. Olympic Chess team. The long skirt is plastic-lined. If you have to, you could convert it into a tent and live out of it for a week. Or snap out the sleeves in the overblouse and it's a caftan.

"Take off the scarf, roll down the sleeves of the blouse, put it on backwards, take off your underwear and it's a hospital gown. Trust me, there are enough combinations to mix and match for 80 days."

"What's this?" I asked picking up a small plastic kit.

"That's a kerosene and the box of matches for the 81st day or when the deodorant runs out . . . whichever comes first."

Ode To Daughter's First Apartment

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: After reading about how sloppy some children are about their rooms, I had to send this poem:

"There's nothing so neat nothing so sweet as a daughter's first apartment.

With every item
ad infinitum
kept in its own compartment.

No possession's so rude
as to ever intrude on a place that is another's.

How does she do it?
There's nothing to it—
the clutter is still at Mother's!"

JANE D. FEIST

DEAR ABBY: There has been a lot of publicity about the need for spaying and neutering animals—but not enough.

I live in a rural area that is quite close to the county dump, where many animals are left like so much rubbish. They find their way to my house because it's closest, and since I can't bear to see an animal go hungry or freeze, I have had to assume the unfair responsibility of disposing of it.

At first I'd take them to the vets to be put to sleep, but that became so costly, I couldn't continue, so my husband has been shooting them mercifully with a bullet in the head. Every time he shoots a dog or cat it upsets us so much we both have nightmares.

Today another beautiful, healthy puppy was at my door, and I know we will have to kill her.

We are in the lower income bracket and have more pets now than we can feed or care for.

Please, Abby, ask your readers to have their animals "fixed" so they won't reproduce. Also ask them not to take them out in the country and abandon them. It's too hard on us.

ANIMAL LOVER

DEAR ANIMAL LOVER: I am also an animal lover, and as such, I'm using your letter in hopes that it will be heeded.

DEAR ABBY: Because of a recent argument with my father, I am writing to you for the answer.

We were watching professional wrestling on TV and arguing about whether it was real or faked.

My dad claims some of the wrestling is faked, but most is real.

I think it's all faked. The big question is whether the wrestlers know who is going to win before they enter the ring. I say they know, and my dad says they don't.

The facts on this subject would be greatly appreciated.

NORWICH, N.Y.

DEAR NORWICH: Only the wrestlers in question are qualified to give the facts. And if the wrestlers ARE faking in order to put on a good show, you wouldn't expect them to admit it, would you?

CONFIDENTIAL TO "STILL HURTING IN NAPLES, FLORIDA": You can't "kill" love. It has to die by itself.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

On The Local Scene

For the summer traveler in North Carolina, the call of the coast issues an invitation to visit Historic Beaufort June 26-28 for the annual Old Homes Tour.

The tour is sponsored by the Beaufort Woman's Club and the Beaufort Historical Association in conjunction with other civic and church organizations.

This year there will be four private homes open to the public in addition to the three old churches and the Historical Restoration buildings. There have been two additions to the restoration area—the J. Pigott house, constructed in 1830, and the Apothocary Shop, built prior to the Civil War.

The Spanish Pirates will again invade Beaufort on Saturday preceded by a jump into modern times with a water skiing exhibition by the C.C. Waterbugs. There will be 18th century music and a checker tournament on the grounds of the restoration area, with bazaar type items for sale. The United States Coast Guard will also have an exhibit.

The Beaufort Historical Association will hold its annual anitque show and sale at the National Guard Armory, Morehead City, starting Thursday at 6 p.m.

Dealers from various locations in North Carolina as well as those from New Jersey, Virginia and South Carolina will be showing period furniture, china, jewelry, silver, Oriental rugs and coin collections.

The antique show will open at 6 p.m. Thursday and close at 9:30 that evening. The Friday hours are noon until 9:30 p.m. and on Saturday from noon until 6 p.m.

Arch T. Allen III, president of the Terpsichorean Club of Raleigh, announced that the 49th annual N.C. Debutante Ball will be held Sept. 4-6.

The formal presentation of N.C. society of young ladies from across the state will highlight the weekend. On Thursday evening, Sept. 4, the weekend will begin with a reception honoring the debutantes and their parents.

The parents will be honored again on Saturday at a reception given by the Terpsichorean Club and the mothers will be entertained at a coffee hour given by the honorary chairman of the ball.

Burrows-Smith Vows Solemnized Saturday

Miss Carolyn Anne Smith and SP5 Bart Parkinson Burrows were married Saturday at the Immanuel Baptist Church at 3:00 p.m.

The Rev. Irby Jackson officiated at the ceremony. The nuptial music was provided by Phillip Cooper, organist, and Sammy Pittman, soloist, who sang "Let It Be Me," "Each For The Other", and the "Wedding Prayer".

The parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Norman Earl Smith of Greenville, and SSG and Mrs. William H. Burrows of Frankfurt, Germany.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of white organza designed with an open portrait neckline accentuated with scalloped chantilly lace. Panels of lace extended from the empire bodice over the flared A-line skirt. The full sheer bishop sleeves were encircled in rows of chantilly lace. The detachable chapel train of organza was trimmed in the chantilly lace. The bride wore a string of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Her formal length illusion mantilla edged in lace to match her gown was held in place by a bandeau headpiece trimmed in chantilly lace. She carried an orchid nosegay in a cascade style or white and pink.

Patti Jane Heath of Allentown, Pa. served as maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of candy pink knit designed with an open V-neckline and short butterfly sleeves. The neckline was accentuated by a wide collar extending to the gathered empire waistline which featured a silk rose in matching pink.

She wore a candy pink garden hat trimmed in candy pink satin ribbon. She carried a nosegay of spring flowers and baby's breath trimmed in pink ribbon. She wore a matching garden hat trimmed in satin ribbon.

The bridesmaids were Montez Burney, sister of the bridegroom, of Ayden, Ellen Longino, and Bettie Jo Carroll of Greenville. The bridesmaids wore dresses and hats identical to the honor attendant's.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. The ushers were David Smith of Wanchese and Robert Smith of Greenville, brothers of the bride, Perry K. Burrows, brother of the bridegroom, of Frankfurt, Germany, and Thomas Burney of Ayden.

Following the ceremony a reception was given at the bride's home.

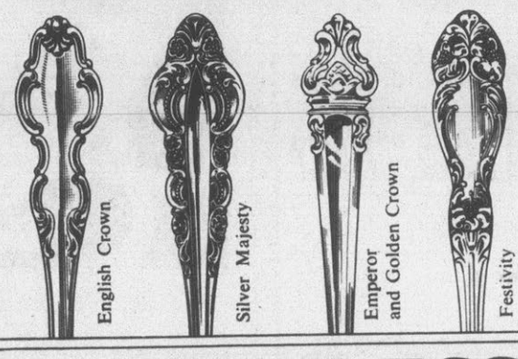

Mrs. Worth Lanier poured punch, and Mrs. Frank Longino served the wedding cake. Guests were greeted by Mrs. M.L. Stafford.

The couple will take a wedding trip to Virginia and will make their new residence in Frankfurt, Germany.

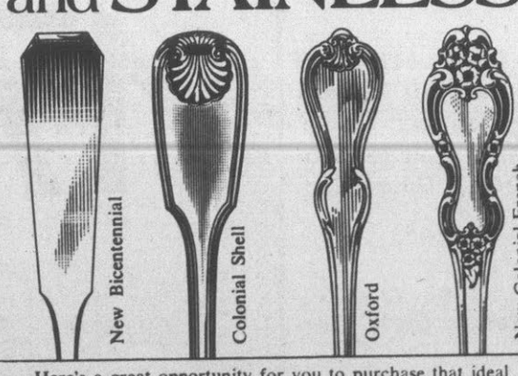

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University with a B.S. degree in nursing. The bridegroom is a graduate of Career Academy, Washington, D.C.. as a medical assistant and is currently a clinical specialist in the United States Army, Frankfurt, Germany.

Following the rehearsal Friday night, the wedding party was entertained by the parents of the bridegroom at Riverside Restaurant. The bride's table was decorated with pink carnations and pink candles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A situation at home does not please you so absent yourself for the present. Make plans to improve your surroundings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) More care exercised with your money now is wise. Don't lose your temper with an associate who is in a bad mood.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to save money instead of spending it so lavishly today. Talk with an adviser and obtain the advice you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) There is tension in the wind and you may not be able to accomplish much in the morning. Avoid group affairs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Not a good day for outside activity, but fine for conferring with an expert about the future. Take it easy tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) One you have known for a long time could inadvertently give you the wrong information. Use your good judgment.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will act well in time of emergency, so direct the education along troubleshooting lines. The lone wolf is definitely in this chart, and the desire to argue with others is strong. A valuable governmental adjunct here.

Art Rental Said Popular Service

By C. G. McDANIEL
Associated Press Writer

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Evanston Public Library's rent-a-picture service is so popular that users reserve their favorites in advance, just as they do popular books.

The library has a collection of 147 framed fine-art reproductions and 43 replicas of small pieces of sculpture.

Kenneth L. Knapp, head of the library's art, music and film collection, said in an interview that art rental services have become common in recent years in American libraries.

The Evanston library has reciprocal arrangements with a number of Chicago's other North Shore suburbs, so that residents of nearby towns and Chicago may use their towns' library cards to borrow from the Evanston collection.

Catalogs include small pictures and descriptions of the prints and sculpture available. The works are also listed in the library's general catalog, so that a reader studying a particular artist might borrow a reproduction of that artist's work.

Last year, 1,039 loans were made from the print collection, and 140 from the sculpture collection.

Knapp said the library had been adding new works over the past four or five years, but had reached the limits of its storage capacity so no new ones were added in 1974.

Some prints are in great demand and if they are out when borrowers ask for them the library reserves them when the prints are returned.

Most popular, Knapp said, are a still life by Lydia Kemeny called "The Red Chair" and a seascape called "Quiet Anchorage" by Bria.

The collection also includes many of the big names in art — Braque, Chagall, Klee, Monet, Renoir, Calder, Gauguin, Matisse, Rembrandt and others.

"Everything by Monet has been out for months," Knapp said. This is the result of a major exhibition of his work at the Art Institute of Chicago, he explained.

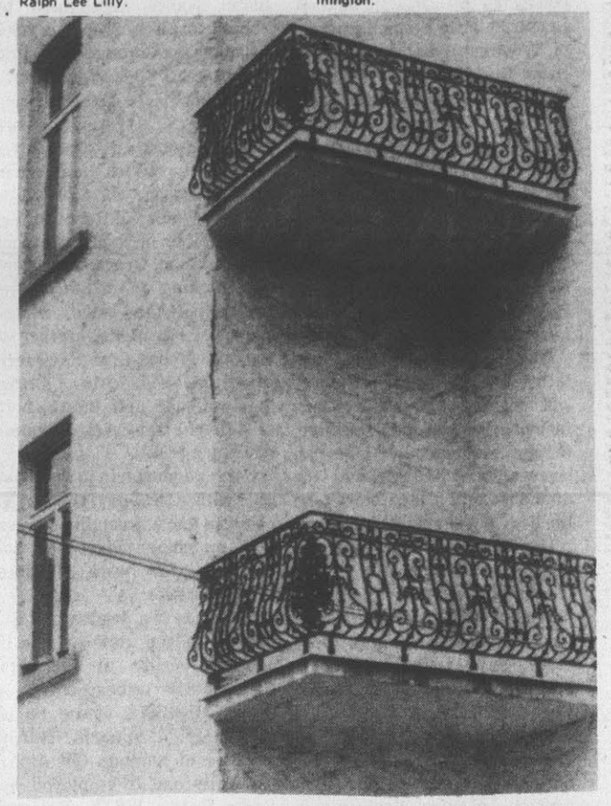

The sculpture reproductions are largely from classical antiquity and include animal figures as well as humans.

Students at Northwestern University in Evanston and visiting faculty members are big users of the collection, Knapp said.

The students like to have something to liven up their "bare, hospital green rooms," and the visiting faculty likewise want decorative pieces for their temporary homes.

Retirement homes have also come to be major users of the collection, he said.

No picture has been lost or damaged in the four or five years the library has had the service, the librarian said. The sculpture has suffered some minor damage, and a couple of pieces have been stolen from the library, but none has been lost by borrowers, Knapp reported.

SIX TEEN-AGERS. . . found the wooden benches and tables on the porch of Minnesott's pavillion a convenient place to rest and talk after taking in the arts and craft show.

A WELCOME PAUSE. . . In intervals between groups of browsers and purchasers, those attending these craft tables took brief rest breaks in the shade — except for the lad at the right who moved his chair into a sunny place.

Pamlico County Arts Festival Inaugurates A Public Park

For the people of Pamlico County, the week-end of June 14 and 15 was a long planned for and eagerly awaited milestone in the county's history.

On those two days, Saturday and Sunday, a two day arts and crafts festival was held in the new public park at Minnesott Beach.

Sponsored by the Pamlico County Arts and Crafts Guild, the Saturday and Sunday Festival served two purposes — to bring together for the first time ever in one big show the growing number of artists and craftsmen working in the scattered villages and farms of the county; and an opportunity for the town fathers of Minnesott Beach to inaugurate their new public park.

The Minnesott Beach public park is an ideal location for festivals of this nature — and when not occupied by a show, trade fair or other specific event, it becomes a delightful place for resting, for picnics and sightseeing.

A number of cottages have been removed to provide space for the uncluttered park. A fine spread of trees — various species of oaks, sweet gum, cypress and pine have been preserved, so that the park includes both sunny and shady areas.

The park site, on the top of a sandy hill, overlooks the beach. From the park, people can sit and watch the Minnesott Beach-Cherry Point Marine Air Station ferry come and go on its appointed rounds from the pier at the bottom of the hill.

Visitors not in a hurry can park their cars in the parking lot adjacent to the ferry and take a ride across the broad foam flecked Neuse. . . at no cost.

The weather for the two day festival was made to order for the event. The sun moved in and out of lazily drifting clouds, and a brisk river breeze tempered the heat of the summer sun.

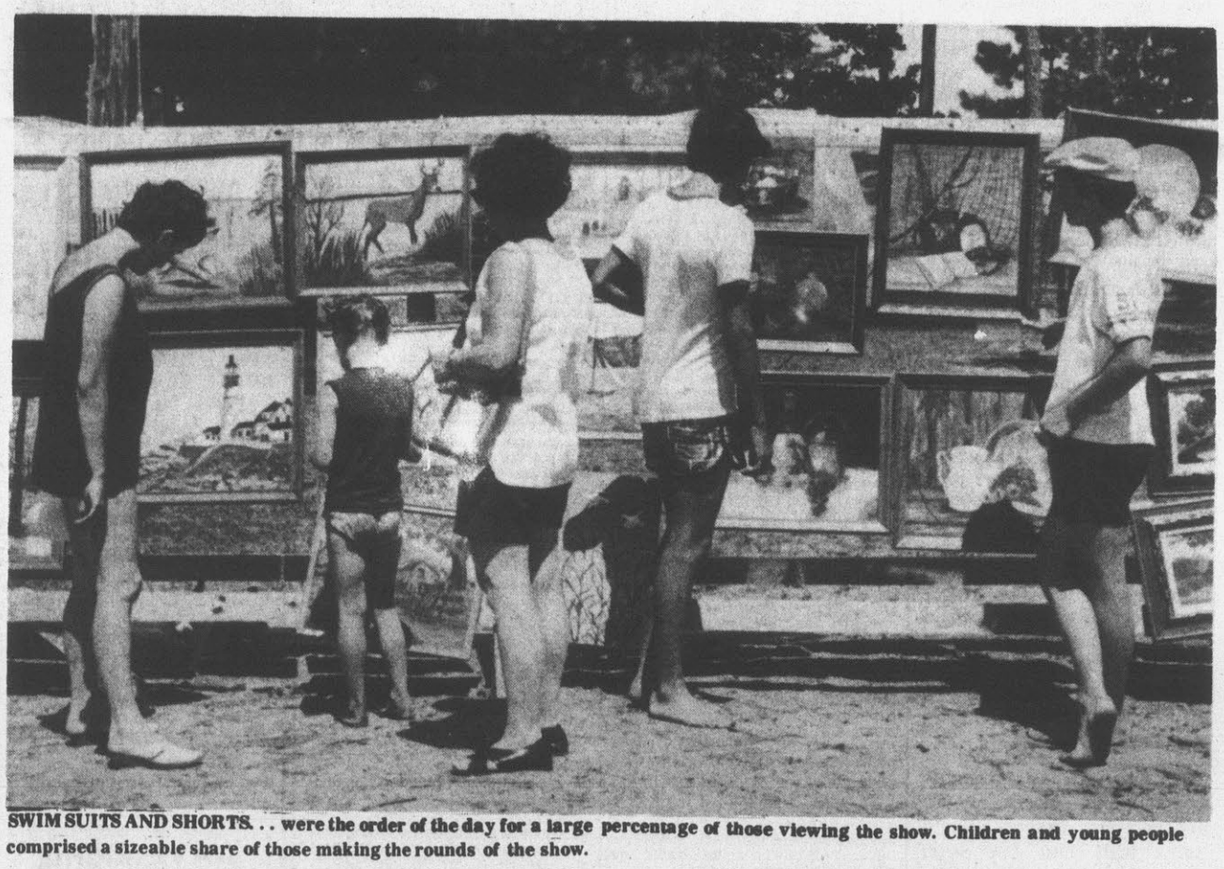

Young couples, family groups and larger groups strolled from one exhibit to another, often looking, sometimes making purchases. Informality of dress was the order of the day, with most of the people in swim suits or shorts.

At about mid-afternoon on Sunday, many of the younger people gathered at the Minnesott Beach pavillion to listen to and to dance to the music of a group formed of Pamlico County musicians, The Thunderhead. Young and old alike formed a steady stream in and out of the local restaurant, and afterwards strolled casually along the curving Minnesott Beach to collect sea treasures of shells, coral fragments and shark's teeth.

The display tables and stands have been taken away for another year — but the appealing combination of a tree filled park, a majestic ferry boat, a winding crescent of beach, and the smell of salt air and pines is there for all to enjoy on any summer day.

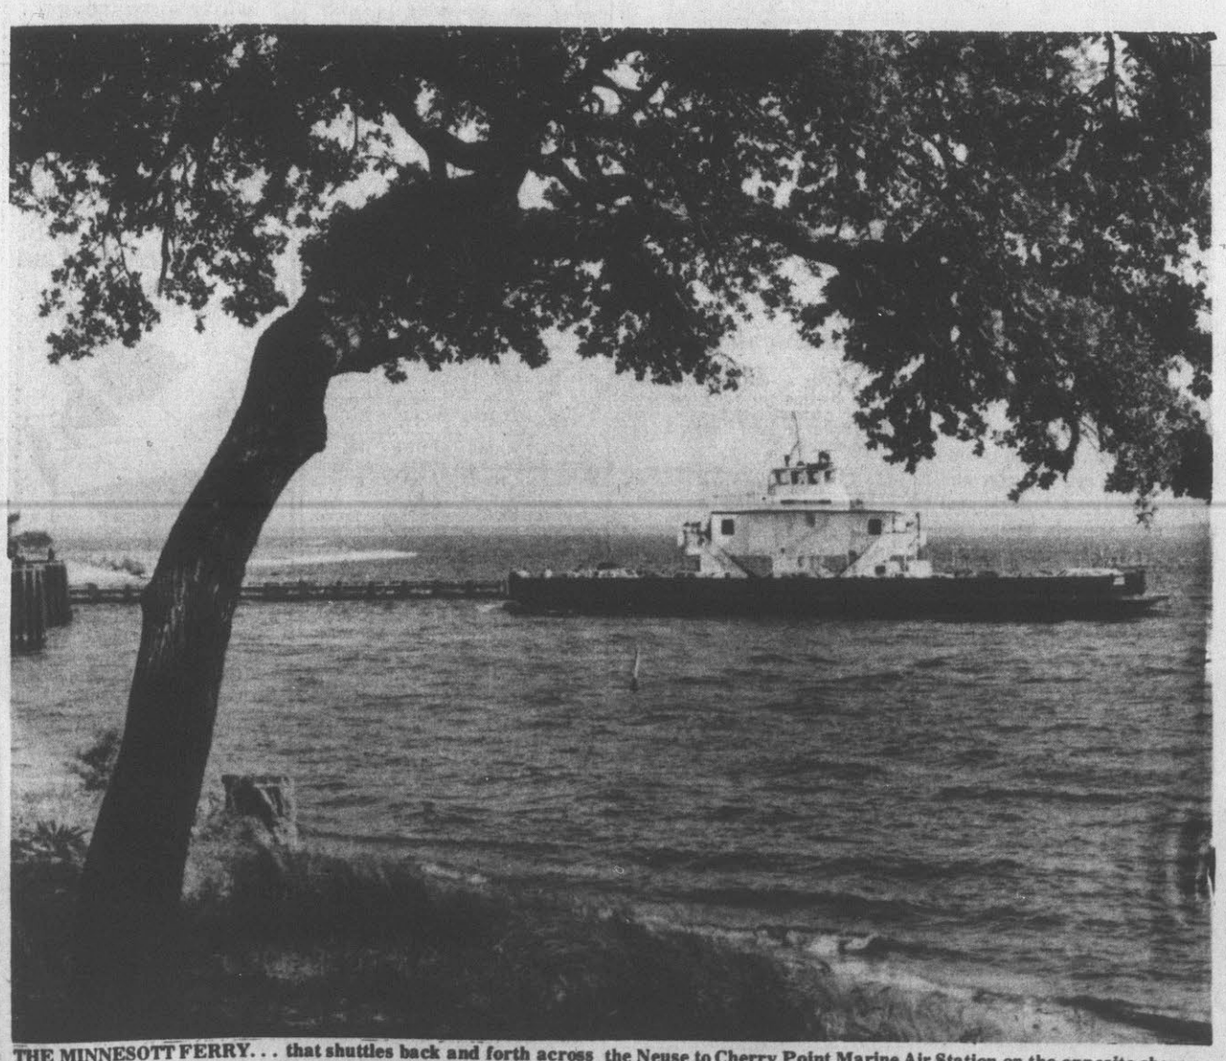

AN AUTHOR. . . manned her table in a shady spot. Mrs. Marian Hardy, (seated) author of a book on the town of Oriental, set up a booth displaying copies of her recently published book.

SWIM SUITS AND SHORTS. . . were the order of the day for a large percentage of those viewing the show. Children and young people comprised a sizeable share of those making the rounds of the show.

THE MINNESOTT FERRY. . . that shuttles back and forth across the Neuse to Cherry Point Marine Air Station on the opposite shore drew considerable attention from those attending the arts and craft show. A number of visitors said they had taken the ferry for the purpose of seeing the show, and had left their cars behind.

TWO COUPLES FROM HAVELOCK. . . spoke admiringly ot a group of boat and harbor scene paintings. Paintings in this genre were very much in evidence in the Pamlico show.

Is History Fated To Repeat?

By JAMES KIM

SEOUL (UPI) — A quarter of a century ago war engulfed South and North Korea, a country divided at the end of World War II.

Now, in the aftermath of the Indochina war, Korea is again in conflict. Tension is rising along the 38th Parallel dividing South and North Korea, to the point that hostilities could erupt at any moment, according to some observers.

South Korean President Park Chung-Hee says the North Korean Communists are bent on aggressive schemes against his country, and he has evidence to support his views. He thinks the Communist rulers in the North apparently figure November, 1976, when the United States is preoccupied with its presidential election, is the best time for a southward thrust.

North Korean President Kim Il-Sung, who visited Peking in April and subsequently toured African neutral nations and some East European countries, publicly said he would take advantage of any trouble in the South to take action.

Kim and his aides in Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, have shown less and less interest in a dialogue with the South to improve relations between the divided halves of the Korean peninsula. Talks between the two sides have come to a standstill.

South and North Korea opened talks in 1971 and 1972 on two fronts: Through their Red Cross societies to seek reunion of separated families, and through the so-called South-North Coordinating Committee to tackle political issues.

North Korea, citing political developments in the South, has virtually disrupted both channels of negotiations, leading some to ask, "Will history repeat itself and bring another war to Korea?"

Before dawn on Sunday, June 25, 1950, North Korea initiated an attack that touched off a three-year war.

Ten divisions of well-trained North Korean army troops, backed by 500 Russian-built tanks and 2,000 artillery pieces, struck across the entire border in an all-out surprise invasion seeking forceful unification of the peninsula under communism.

U.S. troops who had occupied South Korea at the end of World War II had largely withdrawn, leaving behind an army of 100,000 men, originally designed to be a constabulary force armed only with rifles and light machine guns.

The North Korean onslaught was effective and speedy. Seoul, the South Korean capital, fell into Communist hands in no more than three days.

The South Korean forces kept falling back. On June 27, the United Nations Security Command, under U.S. initiative, adopted a resolution asking U.N. member nations to come to the aid of South Korea against North Korea which had refused to heed a Security Council resolution calling on the invasion forces to return to the old border.

U.S. President Harry S. Truman ordered Gen. Douglas MacArthur to use American ground forces to stem the invasion. MacArthur, named commander-in-chief of U.N. forces in Korea, moved his troops from Japan to the Korean front.

A great buildup of manpower and arms was needed, however, to stop the North Korean march. By July 31, American troops and the remnants of the South Korean army had been squeezed into a small perimeter around the southern port of Pusan, 205 miles of southeast of Seoul.

American and South Korean troops held the perimeter, which had a 60-mile northern front and a 90-mile western face, preventing a rout. Reinforcements were arriving in the meantime.

On Sept. 15, MacArthur landed troops 150 miles behind enemy lines at Inchon, 25 miles west of Seoul, to turn the tide of the war. North Korean forces, suffering from overextended supply lines and handicapped by the lack of air cover, crumbled rapidly.

Seoul was recovered Sept. 25. South Korean and U.S. forces drove across the old border into the North, reaching the Yalu River between Manchuria and North Korea by Oct. 21.

A new phase of the war developed on Nov. 25 when a 600,000-man Chinese "volunteer" force struck across the Yalu to aid North Korea. The U.N. forces, now with contributions from 16 members of the world body, fell back in a general retreat.

On New Year's Day, 1951, Seoul changed hands for the third time, but the U.N. forces stopped the Chinese south of the capital and threw the invaders back to the 38th Parallel.

On June 23, 1951, Soviet U.N. delegate Jacob Malik proposed truce talks to settle the hostilities. After two years of on-and-off negotiations, the Korean Armistice was signed July 27, 1953.

The conflict, which ended when the old border was restored, claimed heavy losses on both sides. The United States spent $20 billion and suffered 140,000 casualties, including 34,000 killed.

South Korea lost more than 220,000 troops killed. South Korea's combined military-civilian casualties totaled about 500,000 dead and 430,000 wounded.

Higher was the cost the Communist side had to pay. Nearly 300,000 North Korean and 200,000 Chinese soldiers were killed and 220,000 North Korean military men and 700,000 Chinese wounded, according to a Pentagon estimate.

The armistice agreement that halted the Korean War has not been replaced by a formal peace treaty. What exists in Korea today is a shaky and inconclusive truce, often called one of history's longest armistices.

Following the signing of the armistice, South and North Korea lived without major clashes for nearly 10 years. The truce front began heating up in 1965 when South Korea was planning to send an expeditionary force to South Vietnam to help fight the Viet Cong.

Frequent border battles flared up along the 151-mile front, with North Korea sending down a steady flow of infiltrators. In 1960, 50 major incidents were reported. Six American and 29 South Korean soldiers died and 19 other South Koreans and one American were wounded. The North Koreans suffered 43 killed and 19 captured.

The next year saw a total of 565 bloody clashes which claimed the lives of 125 South Koreans and 16 Americans. Another 272 South Koreans and 66 Americans were wounded and 228 North Korean infiltrators were killed and 57 captured.

The armistice nearly fell apart in 1968 after 761 major clashes. At least 184 South Korean soldiers and 16 Americans were killed and 247 South Koreans and 53 Americans were wounded in actions in which 321 North Korean invaders were killed and 13 others captured.

The year started with an abortive attack Jan. 21 on the Blue House, official residence of South Korean President Park, by 31 North Korean commandos who sneaked into Seoul through mountain paths. Two days later North Korean gunboats captured the U.S. spy ship Pueblo.

The United States successfully negotiated the return of the Pueblo crew and kept the Korean armistice shakily in force.

Clashes between North Korean infiltrators and South Korean and American defenders fell off in the following years, though the border heated up occasionally.

Park in the meantime ordered 2.5 million reservists into a militia force to cope with North Korean threats of aggression. The militiamen, through regularly scheduled training, have become an important part of South Korea's defense setup.

South Korea, whose post World War II government was patterned after the U.S. model, has undergone a series of political upheavals since the signing of the armistice.

The autocratic government of Dr. Syngman Rhee, who led the nation through the war, was toppled by student uprisings on April 19, 1960. On May 16, 1961, then army major general Park Chung-Hee took over in a bloodless coup.

Two years later Park was popularly elected as president, and has since rewritten the constitution twice.

In recent years opponents have criticized Park as high-handed and demanded another constitutional amendment to return to a fully democratic order. Park counters that the nation, faced with ever growing North Korean threats, could not afford the luxury and waste of western style democracy.

Park has played a key role in helping the nation grow into a largely industrialized society. Shortly after he took power in 1961, Park launched an ambitious five-year economic development plan, following it with two more successful five-year plans.

An indicator of South Korea's economic success is exports, which rose to $4.5 billion in 1974 from $27 million in 1955. The target for this year is $6 billion. The gross national product totaled $17 billion in 1974.

In North Korea President Kim Il-Sung has since 1948 maintained a Communist dictatorship reinforced by a strong personality cult. His leadership appears unchallenged. North Korea, however, has lagged behind the South economically. North Korea's GNP is expected to reach $5 billion in 1976, according to a South Korean estimate.

Since last year, South Korean government officials have warned that North Korea would stage a military adventure this year to mark the 30th anniversary of the founding of the North Korean Workers (Communist) Party.

The discovery last November and this past March of two underground tunnels North Korea built into the South across the border added to the already growing concern among South Koreans. Officials suspect there may be no less than 14 such tunnels, which they say can send down several thousand armed soldiers in an hour.

The fall of Cambodia and South Vietnam and U.S. action and reaction to it greatly alarmed South Korean leaders, who feared the Indochina debacle could encourage North Korea's Kim to attack the South.

South Korean military sources say North Korea has already completed preparations for a war with the South. They said North Korea recently built covered heavy artillery positions and six air strips and bases near the truce border. They say North Korea installed a 43-mile range missile site 32 miles north of Seoul.

The sources say North Korea has 561,753 men on its regular service list, and nearly 2.2 million well-trained militiamen. North Korea can infiltrate 12,000 guerrillas by land, air and sea at one time for irregular warfare, according to the sources.

North Korea has 900 aircraft, including some 600 high efficiency military planes, 320 naval vessels including 18 missile-capable ships of Komer and Osa classes, about 1,200 tanks and 200 armored cars, and 6,000 artillery pieces, according to a recent South Korean report.

Only $2,741. But you can't appreciate the price until you drive the car.

It's easy enough to tell you what our car comes with (see above). And what it goes for (see above).

But more impressive than any of these statistics is the way our Fiat handles. This is because it's designed differently than just about any car you've ever driven.

This, unfortunately, is hard to describe on paper. So we'd like you to experience it in person. By taking a test drive with your local Fiat dealer. It's certainly not as convenient as reading about the Fiat 128. But in the long run, it's a lot more convincing.

TORO GRASSMASTER™

The only rear bagger that's three mowers in one

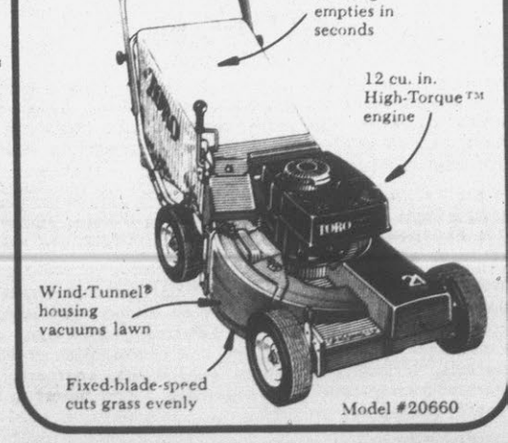

First, a maneuverable rear bagger. Second, a mulching mower that slices and reslices clippings into fine mulch. Third, when you need it, a regular mower that disperses to the side.

Every Grassmaster is also equipped with a High-Torque™ engine which helps cut tall, lush grass evenly—without stalling.

Plus a Quick-Change rear bag that empties in seconds and holds more than 2¼ bushels of leaves or clippings.

Power-drive models feature fixed-blade-speed mowing. The blade and drive speeds operate separately. So you can slow the drive speed without slowing blade speed or mowing power.

Visit us today and see the three-in-one mower.

TV SHOWTIME

For The Week Of June 22-28, 1975

"No, I Am Not Maude"

NOT THE CHARACTER — "To be or not to be . . " That is the question Bea Arthur asks herself when she ponders her role in "Maude," seen Mondays on CBS-TV at 9 p.m. "I've finally decided that the answer is "No, I am not Maude," says the talented actress.

By BEATRICE ARTHUR

After more than three years to ponder the situation, and after being asked the question hundreds of times, I have finally decided in my own mind that the answer is "No, I am not Maude."

Apparently, Maude Findlay is a woman with whom a lot of people identify. We've received dozens of letters from women who think they are Madue, from husbands who think of their-wives as Maude, and from office workers who swear that the lady at the next desk or in the office down the hall is more like Maude Findlay than anyone else could possible be.

And I happily admit there were some letters which gave my ego quite a boost, too — letters from men who think Maude is the sexiest lady on television — and, even if they mean in the over-40 age bracket, I find room for personal satisfaction in reading them.

You see, it was my intention from the beginning of the series to show that there is a soft spot or two in Maude's armor of steel, and it's gratifying to know that viewers see her as I do.

But to get back to the differences between Maude and me. For one thing, although I can rant and rave as much as Maude does when the need arises, I don't have her persistence. If someone calls my bluff and yells back at me, I usually back down. In all honesty, I'm afraid the tiger in my tank is really a pussycat.

My husband keeps telling me if I just had the courage of Maude's convictions I could save a fortune at the supermarket, but the truth is that I'm absolutely incapable of haggling with the butcher over a choice cut of meat, as Made would do, and I'm a pushover for any door-to-door salesman with a reasonable sales pitch.

I guess I'm also lazier than Maude. At least when it comes to "causes" like charity organizations, civil-rights rallies, or even fighting traffic tickets. I'm definately not a joiner. I much prefer browsing through antique shops, reading, watching old movies on television, or enjoying family activities with my husband and two sons. I also have two huge German shepherd dogs who pout if I don't take them out for a long walk every day.

Maude Findlay often complains of feeling "unfilled," but I feel completely fulfilled. And I can't identify too closely with the women's lib movement, either, because I've always felt liberated. Maybe being an actress is one of the few fields where women have never had to feel threatened about losing their jobs to men.

So, although I may not be Maude, I like her, I understand her, and I love playing the role. I guess I could say it's fun being Maude on stage, as long as I can be myself the rest of the time.

Robert Reed Stars In NBC Movie

Robert Reed stars as Freddy Durant, a respectable family man who cannot resist making obscene calls to women, in "The Secret Night Caller" on the "NBC World Premiere Movie" series Tuesday, June 24, 8:30 to 10:00 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

Durant seeks help from Dr. Cathcart (Michael Constatine) but is reluctant at first to admit he is making the calls.

Hope Lange portrays Durant's wife, Pat, who is not aware of his problem.

Elaine Giftos appears as Chloe, a dancer who attempts to blackmail Durant once she discovers he is making the calls to her, and Arlene Golonka plays another victim of Durant's illness.

"The Secret Night Caller" was written by Robert Presnell Jr. and directed by Jerry Jameson.

Saturday Movie

Ingrid Bergman stars as a woman who must decide between two lovers in "Goodbye Again," to be telecast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" June 28, 9 to 11:20 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

In the story, Paris interior decorator Paula Tessier (Bergman) is involved in an unhappy love affair with Roger Demarest (Montand), who habitually concels their engagements to date other — younger — women.

Runs Only With Five

Normally, a fifth wheel is thought of as a real 'drag,' someone who should've stayed home and read a good book. Not so, however, where "The Texas Wheelers" are concerned, because all five of them are vital parts of this delightful new series which returns on ABC-TV Thursday, June 26, 8:30 to 9 p.m., on Channel 3-5.

First, there's Papa Wheeler. Jack Elam stars as the cantankerous but lovable Zack, who has a totally unorthodox approach to life and shrinks from work like the plague.

Jack Elam was one of the highest-salaried movie auditors in the business when his yearn to act finally won out.

His first picture, "The Sundowners," was a hit and his acting career was launched. Since then, he has appeared in more than 100 motion pictures and even more television dramas.

The eldest Wheeler son, Truckie, is played by Gary Busey, whose hometown is Tulsa, Oklahoma.

"Truckie Wheeler is me!" says Gary, who appears each week as the sensitive, honest member of the Wheeler family.

The energetic Busey "has to be doing something all the time." When not before the camera, he enjoys yoga exercises, racketball, singing, composing music, playing the guitar and tennis.

Mark Hamill is cast in the role of 16-year-old Doobie Wheeler. As a child, Mark was always interested in acting, but it wasn't until he accompanied his father on a business trip to New York that he set his sights on a dramatic career. "After seeing eight plays in six days, I was hooked," he says.

When not acting, Mark enjoys "all water sports" and collecting old magazines.

Ten year old Tony Becker plays T. J., the youngest member of the Wheeler family. His dad, a former actor, is now an audio man at a local station in Los Angeles. His mother is an actress - director currently involved with a West Coast repertory theater group.

Last, but surely not least, is the only distaff member of the Wheeler family, Boo, played by Karen Oberdiear.

11-year old Karen has been acting since 1972, and has appeared in several television commercials. The vivacious little blonde takes weekly drama and dancing lessons, plays the guitar and sings.

There you have the five Wheelers, each very different and each very important to the life-line of this off - beat, earthy family who face life in their own unique way.

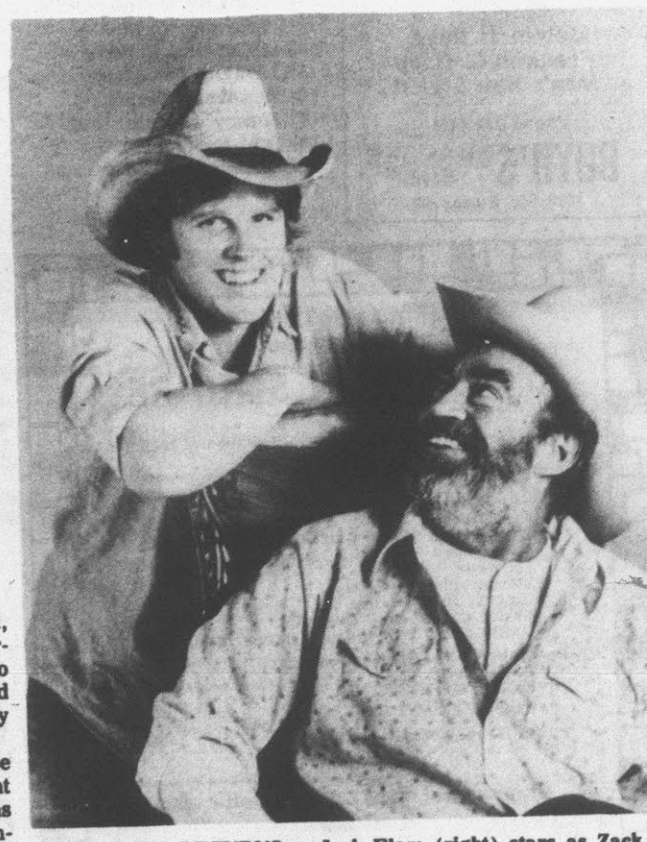

Conductor's Contest

"In Search of a Maestro," a special documentary on the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra's first young Conductors Competition, will be shown Thursday, June 26 at 8 p.m. on UNC-TV.

The hour-long program follows the final 20 contestants, chosen from a roster of 80 from all over the U.S., through an eight-day series of both demanding written test and performance conducting with the orchestra, which include preparing the directing well-known works from classical, romantic and modern repertories. The competitors are also required to recognize and correct mistakes specifically written into orchestral parts.

Television viewers get a close look at the tremendous talent and poise these young musicians exhibit in this rare and important opportunity in their musical careers.

The television program is narrated by the judges of the competition: Mr. Sergiu Commissiona; Mr. Karel Husa; and Dr. Elliott Galkin.

Man On The Move

It's a hectic life these days for Art James, host of NBC Television Network's daytime game program "Blank Check" (Mondays - Fridays, 12:30 to 12:55 p.m.).

He insists on being the 'long distance runner' — taking week-long trips to Los Angeles to tape his show, then often hurrying from the set to catch the 'red-eye' flight back to New York so he won't have to miss a Broadway opening, a golf game with friends or any of the many things that hold his interest in the metropolis.

"I feel best in New York," says James. "I think it's the knowledge that whatever I want is right here at my fingertips — you just have to reach out for it."

So James travels — coast-to-coast — almost every weekend. Sometimes, though, he takes time out for pleasure stops, such as the week of skiing he and his family enjoyed recently at Jackson Hole, Wyo., where they have a condominium.

"I needed the rest, though you can't really call skiing in a blizzard 'rest', can you?" said James.

He is a busy man around the clock, but he likes it that way. While in California, he usually tapes as many as 10 shows at a time, in addition to doing interviews and any personal appearances they have arranged. He even uses his four-to-five-hour flights to catch up on reading or to do some writing — one of his passions. "I live the discipline," he says. He writes plays, poetry and fiction" on any subject," and claims to write "great dialogue, but I have nothing to say." However, many of his pieces have been published.

Broadway is another of Art's loves. As the producer of two plays, he has more than passing interst in the theatre. Recently, however, he made a different kind of commitment to a production: through his friendship with Adele Holzer, producer of "The Ritz," Art became a backer of the current hit show.

James also is studying ESP, a facet of his program "Blank Check."

"I never put much faith in it before," he says, "but I'm beginning to be a beliver. And besides, it gives me something to do with all my free time."

Collision Course Heads ABC List

"Collision Course," a dramatization of the confrontation between President Harry S. Truman and General Douglas MacArthur, will air as a prime time bicentennial special on the ABC Televison Network next season.

"Collision Course" is the only ones of a number of Bicentennial-related sspecials to be shown under the umbrella title, "The American Spirit," Mr. Vane said. Along with a July 4 spectacular chronicling the national daylong celebration, there also will be a number of dramatic specials, including two two-hour specials dramatizing the early years of Elenor and Franklin Roosevelt.

"ABC Theatre" will continue next year with "The Story of David," two two-hour specials to air during the Easter season, and "F. Scott Fitzgerald in Hollywood," starring Tuesday Weld and Jason Miller. Other "ABC Theatre" projects in development include "Attica," a dramatization of the 1971 prision uprising, with David Susskind as executive producer, and an adaptation of famed journalist William Allen White's touching tribute to his late daughter, Mary.

Among the entertainment specials will be musical-comedy programs hosted by Diana Ross, John Denver, Paul Anka, Lily Tomlin, Paul Lynde, Bill Cosby and Alan King. In addition, Muhammad Ali will host an entertainment special from the Hollywood Palace with a roster of major guest stars, and a one-hour program on music from the Oscars will feature Frank Sinatra, Liza Minnelli, Mitzi Gaynor, Judy Garland and other performing the song and memorable production numbers that added to the luster of past Academy Award programs.

In addition to the clean sweep of major showcases - the oscars, the tonys and Emmy Awards shows -ABC will again feature two awards programs pioneered by the network, the "American Music Awards" and the "Second Annual Comedy Awards."

All-family specials in the coming season include "Rudolph's Shiny New Year," a new production for the holiday season, and two encore presentations, "Santa Clause Is Coming To Town" and "The Year Without a Santa Clause." Four new programs in ABC News' "The Undersea World of Jaques Cousteau" series will air this year, as well as an encore presentation of "Yankee Doodle Cricket."

EXTRA DIVIDEND

When USC football stars J.K. McKay and Pat Hayden worked as extras last summer on "Emergency!", they struck up a friendship with Tim Donnelly, the mustachioed actor who plays Fireman Chet Kelly in the Saturday night series.

Soon young McKay, son of USC football coach John McKay, took his friend home to meet his family.

On Saturday, June 14, Tim Donnelly and J.K.'s sister, Michele, were wed at Our Lady Queen of Angels Church in Newport Beach, Calif.. They will live in Studio City, not far from Universal Studios where "Emergency!" is now filming for its fifth season.

Kitchen Kapers

The trend in kitchens today is toward the fine furniture look and away from the workshop atmosphere. The emphasis is on warmth and cheer for the most-used room in your house. The wood kitchen provides decoration unity with the furniture in the rest of the home. It is flexible as it blends well with any color, and enables the homemaker to change accessories to her heart's content.
The right choice of carpet for your kitchen will blend well and add a special personal touch. Enjoy this comfort and convenience. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale."

Football Players Star In 'Million Dollar Man"

RALLYMASTER — Bert Convy guest-stars as Derek Quigley, rallymaster of a sports car competition that is sabotaged by pranks and freak accidents, in "Downshift to Danger," a McMillan & Wife segment of "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" June 22 (8:30-10:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Production has begun on the ABC Television Network's popular action-adventure series, "The Six Million Dollar Man," with a garoup of present and former professional football players as guest stars and series star Lee Majors making his debut as a director. The series currently is seen on Sundays, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., and will air on Sundays, 8:00 to 9:00 p.m., in the fall.

The episode before the cameras, "One of our Running Backs Is Missing," will have as its guest stars Larry Csonka, former Miami Dolphins star who has now moved to the World Football League; Dick Butkus, former Chicago Bears linebacker; Les Josephson, Los Angeles Rams running back; Mike Henry, former Rams defensive back, and actor Al Checco. Additionally, Pam Csonka, Larry's wife in real life, is cast as the wife of the character played by Csonka.

Csonka appears as a star football player, Larry Bronco, who is drugged and Kidnapped by a gang headed by a disgruntled over-the-hill player (Butkus) on the day of a game. They plot to keep the star running back out of the game so they can make a fortune betting on the original point spread.

The teleplay was written by Kenneth Johnson from a story by Johnson and Elroy Schwartz.

Cher Welcomes Special Guests

Guest stars Kate Smith, Ike and Tina Turner, and special guest star Tim Conway help Cher offer a musical salute to The Beatles in a medley of hit songs, on a rebroadcast of "Cher" Sunday, June 22, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS-TV and Channel 9-11.

Musically, Cher opens the show with "All I Really Want To Do," Ike and Tina Turner perform "Nutbuxush City Limits," Cher and Tina Turner sing "Shame, Shame, Shame," and Miss Smith sings a solo of "What Kind of Fool Am I?"

In comedy sketches, Cher and Miss Smith don feathers to portray mother and daughter birds having a heart-to-heart talk in the nest, and Dr. Frankenstein (Conway) introduces a new model of monster (Cher) that he has taken for his wife. Conway and Cher play a feuding maid and butler who disrupt the sedate dinner party they are serving.

Rodeo Rider Has Problems

"Honkers" means wild bulls and wilder women as James Coburn stars as a fading rodeo rider trying to break his own bad luck in the television premiere of "The Honkers" on the ABC Television Network's "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," June 22, 8:30 to 10:30 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

Lois Nettleton and Slim Pickens are also starred in the contemporary story of rodeo life that Los Angeles Times critic Charles Champlin said catches the "earthy, beery flavor of that world, the mixture of comradeship and compitition, with an accuracy which is refreshingly unassertive."

Filmed in and around Carlsbad, New Mexico, the movie finds Lew Lathrop (Coburn) hoping to impress his hometown friends - and patch things up with his estranged wife (Lois Nettleton) - by living clean and riding well when the rodeo comes to town.

He rides well, but the rest of the plan doesn't work. His involvement in two barroom brawls and with one wild woman infurates his partner (Slim Pickens) and completes the estrangement from his wife and son.

Determined to ride a winner in spite of his injured hand, Lew makes one final, disastrous mistake.

STARS SHOW PATRIOTISM

Bob Hope, Anita Bryant, Charley Pride, John Davidson and Juliet Prowse will star in "The Star and Stripes Show," a patriotic musical and variety program to be aired July 3, on NBC-TV.

PEPPARD STARS IN FILM BASED ON SHEPPARD CASE

George Peppard stars in the title role of Sam Sheppard in "Guilty or Innocent: The Sam Sheppard Murder Case," an "NBC World Premiere Movie" to be colorcast during the 1975-76 season.

The fact-based story is a dramatization of the well-known 1954 case in which the Cleveland, Ohio, osteopath was convicted of slaying his wife, Marilyn.

Peppard is also the star of "Doctors' Hospital," a new one-hour series premiering on NBC-TV in September.

She's A Busy Lady And Likes It That Way

"I'm a busy lady and I like it that way," says vivacious Nancy Walker, a 'regular' on NBC-TV's "McMillan & Wife" and CBS-TV's "Rhoda." "In addition to acting in these series and doing TV commercials, I'm also directing two segments of "Rhoda" this year. As for Valerie Harper, I love her. She's just darling to work with, a lot of fun, just down-to-earth-real. Valerie's a real pro.

Nancy's good fortune and steady work happened when she set our for Los angeles. She had worked in New York doing countless plays and reviews and finally ended up in the classics, running the gamut from "Cherry Orchard" to "The Show Off." But with the demise of theater, Nancy couldn't find work. For years, her good friend, Lucille Ball, had been begging her to come to Hollywood. "But Lucille," she said candidly, "my husband's not a poodle. I just can't go and pick up and leave."

If there is one institution that Nancy Walker has been dedicated to these past twenty-five years, it's her husband, David. He's a musical-theatrical coach and a brilliant man.

"David and I ...well, we've gone through some hard times together, but it never seemed that hard because we had each other. If I were alone, I think I would have slit my wrists by now!

"You know, just the other day I was thinking how lucky I am. I'm the luckiest woman in the world. Everything I have I would not give up. I work at what I love doing, and I can work everyday if I want ; I live in a charming house; I've got a daughter who is so level-headed, she's divine; I've got my gardens and friends, health and, most important, my husband who enriches my soul and spirit.

Nancy's friends and admirers are not surprised at anything she does because she is one of the most versatlie and capable performers. In addiction to her theater work, she starred in the movies, "Best Foot Forward," "Girl Crazy" and "Broadway Rhythm."

Riding high these days and practically monopolizing television, Nancy refers to the bad times, when the work was not so easy in coming, as "the 'down periods'...they were the times of education. Those times only get you ready again for a comeback. The lower you seem to go, the higher you seem to come back.

Nancy Walker is dynamite! The diminutive actress has a habit of stopping the show, stealing the scene and garnering the reviews. And she does it with ease whether it be on stage, in films or television.

NANCY WALKER stars as Mrs. Morgenstern, Rhoda's mother on CBS-TV and as the maid for "McMillan & Wife" on NBC-TV. She's a busy lady and she likes it that way.

Females Enjoyed 'Pushing Men'

"We did a lot of laughing between scenes," said Diana Muldaur, an exceptionally lovely actress with green eyes that reflect her vivacity. She was discussing her role as the whip-cracking, man-dominating 'Marg' in Gene Roddenberry's "Planet Earth," airing on the "Wide World: Mystery," Monday, June 23, at 11:30 p.m., on ABC-TV and Ch. 3-5-12. The film stars John Saxon as a 20th century astronaut cast into the year 2133, via suspsended animation, where he is captured and enslaved by a female-dominated society call the Confederacy of Ruth. Here it is believed that if women had been in charge from the beginning, the world would have been a lot cozier.

"We all had a marvelous time pushing men around and fighting among ourselves," continued Miss Muldaur, whose personal warmth goes well with her ladylike manner. "In the picture, males are called 'Dinks.' We did have a little trouble adjusting to that word and you can imagine the jokes. Someone on the crew kept insisting the setting should have been Peruvian so that we could all sing a few bars of 'Inca-Dink-a-Doo.' Dreadful pun! We laughed like fools."

Miss Muldaur, who is Mrs. James Vickery in private life, believes that "Planet Earth" will demonstrate how nonsensical the idea of sexual dominance really is. "I don't think the picture makes fun of the so-called women's liberation movement," she said, "nor does it demean men. If anything, it lampoons extremism."

"All the actresses who played tormentors of males in the picture are very femine 'perfect wife' types in real life," noted Janet Margolin, who stars as the only female member of a team of specialists from Pax, an organization dedicated to the reclamation of a world left fragmented by a global trauma.

"In fact," Miss Margolin continued, "I think I was the only girl in the show who takes sexual equality seriously. I'm not active in any movement, but I do have strong ideas about women's rights. I know a number of secretaries who are as well qualified for executive positions as their bosses. That annoys me, but things seem to be improving. I don't believe in being pushy about it all; way down deep I kind of like having men in charge of things.

"I could never have a meaningful relationship with a Dink."

Distinguished stage, screen and television actress Julie Harris, winner of two Emmys and four Tony Awards, will star as Glenn Ford's wife in "Holvak," premiering on the NBC Television Network in September.

Mr. Rooney 'Dines Out'

CBS News writer-producer Andrew A. Rooney, whose acerbic, entertaining observations on government bureaucracy were recently seen on the CBS News Special "Mr. Rooney Goes to Washington," now takes his palate and a film crew to some of America's typical and atypical restaurants, observing in his own special way how Americans eat when they eat out, where they go and why, on "Mr. Rooney Goes to Dinner," a CBS News Special to be presented Tuesday, June 24, 10 to 11 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

For his candid study of the American way of dining out, Rooney sampled the cuisines of more than 75 restaurants in 12 cities, including Los Angeles, Seattle, Chicago, New York and New Orleans. They ranged from the most expensive establishments, such as The Palace in New York, where a minimum tab comes to nearly $70.00 per person, without liquor but including tip, to fast food chains, a variety of ethnic eateries and "theme" type restaurants which feature unusual decors.

What makes customers frequent certain restaurants? Fooney found that the quality of the food was not necessarily the reason. "It's easier to find an acceptable restaurant today than it was, say, ten years ago," he comments, "but it's harder to find a good one. Today, a restaurant can attract as many people because it looks like a pirate ship as it can because it has a good chef."

In addition to looking at why people choose particular restaurants, Rooney explores what restaurants do to attract the customers. And, in spite of the wide variety of eating places included in his sampler, Rooney found many similarities prevailing. Take, for instance, the menu:

"Most restaurants have a preference for using certain terms to describe their dishes. Among the most frequently used words are 'tangy,' 'topped with,' 'succulent,' 'choice morsels of' and 'zesty,' " notes Rooney.

Since a restaurant makes more money on liquor than on food, it's easy to get a waiter to take your drink order, but hard to get his attention to tell him what you want to eat."

The chefs:

"You wonder how some of them really feel about their cooking when they know the restaurant's main attraction is the view from the top floor."

And the wines:

"If you can afford the wine, it probably isn't very good."

"Mr. Rooney Goes to Dinner" also looks behind the scenes of eating out. At a convention of the National Restaurants Association, some of the artificiality of the food business comes to light—the stretchers, tenderizers, softeners, thickeners and other agents.

With the why's and wherefore's of dining out in America come a few of Rooney's own reasons for staying away from particular places. "If a restaurant has flaming torches outside and calls itself 'Polynesian.' I won't go in," he admits, adding that the same holds true for a restaurant that has a sign in its window, "Waitress Wanted."

He Is Really Good At Being Bad

Young actor Gary Morgan is awfully good at being bad. Which to Gary is both good and bad because he feels he's also not too bad at being good.

"For certain reasons, which I won't argue with, producers always seem to pick me for a mean kid," relates Gary, who is actually 20 but looks anywhere from 15 to his actual age. "If there is a teenager doing something wrong in a film I usually get a call."

His latest effort in getting into trouble is in "The Missing are Deadly," an ABC Television Network "Tuesday Movie of the Week," airing June 24, from 8:30-10 p.m.

"I don't play an actual rat in this one," says Gary, with a twinkle in his eye, "but my companion is really a rat, a four-legged, long-tailed one that I take from a lab, not knowing the animal is infected with a deadly virus that can kill anyone that comes in contact with it."

Gary's role is that of a hyperactive 15 year old who can't stay out of trouble, and this time he endangers not only himself but an entire city. And the tension builds when Gary and his rodent buddy suddenly disappear.

Brian Keith Stars In Thursday Movie

Brian Keith stars in "The McKenzie Break," tense prisoner-of-war escape drama to be presented on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, June 26, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 9-11. Helmut Griem, Ian Hendry and Patrick O'Connell co-star in the film.

Captain Jack Connor is assigned by British Intelligence to circumvent an escape attempt at a prisoner-of-war camp in Scotland, during World War II. Led by Kapitan Schleutter, a U-boat commander, the German captives at Camp McKenzie have established radio contact with Berlin and are tunneling their way to freedom.

The camp commander, Major Perry, and his aide, Sergeant Cox, are unable to keep the prisoners in order, so Connor takes direct action.

Double Feature For Friday

"Captain Nemo and the Underwater City" and "Shaft" comprise "The CBS Friday Night Movies" which will air June 27, 8 to 11 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

In the first part of the presentation, shipwrecked victims are taken on a fabulous and treacherous journey through inner space to a city of gold under the seas, in "Captain Nemo and the Underwater City," a tale inspired by Jules Verne. The film, starring Robert Ryan, Chuck Connors and Luciana Paluzzi, will be seen from 8 to 9:30.

"Shaft," the second part of the double bill, sars Richard Roundtree as a tough, flamboyant street detective in the title role. (9:30 to 11 p.m.)

Shaft undertakes to free the kidnapped daughter of a drug trafficker and finds himself involved in a plot to shake New York's Harlem crime syndicate to its roots. Forced to deal with both sides of the law, he is threatened by the mobsters and harassed by the police.

Comedy Involves Romantic Scheme

David Birney, Michele Lee, Dom DeLuise, Gavin MacLeod, Judy Carne and John Astin star.

Jill hires Dave as her attorney, believing him to be married. Dave, eager to date, her, but knowing her feelings about single men, quickly acquires a wife. The 'wife,' Marge, is married to Dave's law partner, Murray. When Dave wants to tell Jill the truth, a psychiatrist friend insists that he keep up the masquerade.

Quiet..Director At Work

"Tighten up the shot a little more," he said. "Dolly more to the left. Punch up four!"

Stan Lathan, a young, black director was a work on one of several episodes of the ABC Television Network's "That's My Mama" he has directed during the past season. ("That's My Mama" is seen Wednesdays, at 8 p.m.)

It was the fourth day into rehearsal and the cast was stage blocking the show with cameras. In the booth, Lathan, working with his production assistant, associate director and technical director, was shaping the show into its final form for taping that evening.

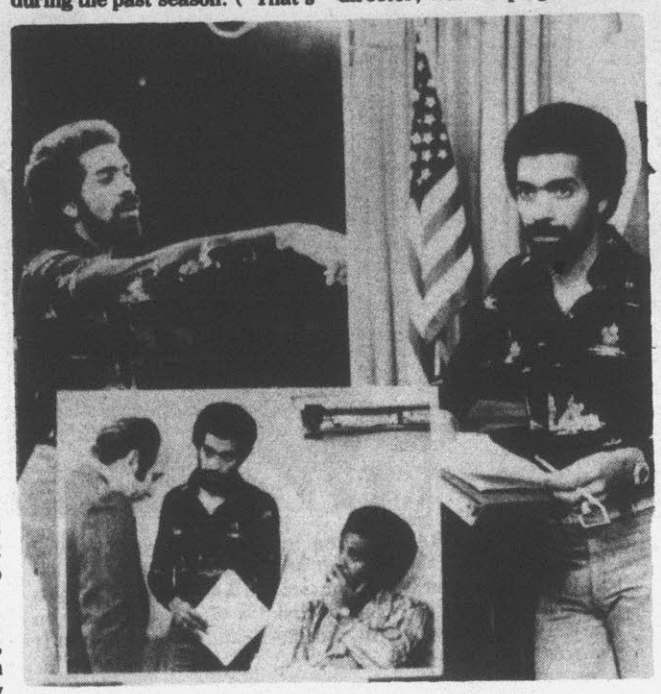

On stage, in the living room set of the show, the actors moved through their paces. Mama (Theresa Merritt) pushed through a door into the set, calling out for Clifton (Clifton Davis). He turned to respond and then froze ... Another adjustment had to be made and then the action resumed.

The comedy series about a middle class black family in Washington, D. C. is video taped. According to Lathan, the technical aspects of his job have to be under total control to make the show come off.

"The biggest challenge of a show like this," Latham said, "is working with a large cast. With so many people to put in a picture, you must not lose the diredtion of the story while allowing the audience to sell all of them."

The job of directing a taped show with four cameras is vastly more complicated than directing a film, a scene at a time, Lathan pointed out. "But if you get bogged down in technicalities, the only thing you're directing is traffic," he added.

"That's part of my job, but not the most important aspect of it. I'm concerned mainly with one thing — bringing a story to life. That means that I must understand it fully, see its full potential and, above all, to feel it. And then to communicate that feeling to the actors. Because they are the ones who must make the viewer get caught up in the life of the story — to smile, to laugh, to remember, and for the moment, at least, to believe."

Star Says Money Can Be Drawback

One of the wealthiest young stars in Hollywood is worried about money.

It's not that he doesn't have enough — it's that he isn't too sure of what to do with it.

Asked recently if money was really important, Michael Landon, star of NBC-TV's hit "Little House on the Prairie" series (Wednesdays, 8 to 9 p.m.), frowned in thought, considering the answer.

"It is very easy to say money isn't important — if you have some," said Landon. "But if you have having trouble paying the rent, or feeding your kids, then it is important."

Landon, a top-salaried star of "Bonanza" for 14 years, now draws pay for his work as a star, producer, writer and director - but he didn't hesitate when asked if he is working toward building a large estate for his seven children.

"Absolutely not!" he said. "Believe it nor not, having this money is one drawback in raising my family. I take great pride in what I have done with my life. I had five bucks in my pocket when I arrived in California, and I slept in a public restroom for two nights until I could find a job unloading freight cars.

"I had a lot of fun trying to make a success of my life, and I don't want to steal the joy and pride of that feeling from my sons. If I hand them a load of money they'll never know the pride of doing it on their own - and that feeling is worth more than money any day."

Tony's Guests Are Switt, Macy

Guest star Bill Macy, who co-stars as Walter Findlay in "Maude," and special guest star Loretta Swit, of "MASH," take part in a fantasy about the "Dreams of an Everyday Husband" on a rebroadcast of "Tony Orlando and Dawn" Wednesday, June 25, 8:00 to 9:00 p.m., on CBS-TV and Channel 3N-9-11.

Orlando plays a bartender at "Orlando's Hideaway."

Vic French Signs Contract With NBC

Victor French, who is featured as Mr. Edwrds in NBC-TV's "Little House on the Prairie," has been signed to an exclusive star-director contract with the Network.

Terms of the contract call for French to appear in several of the network's World Premiere motion pictures and direct and guest-star in NBC-TV weekly series next season, as well as continue on "Little House on the Prairie."

French has been active this past season on "Little House" both in front of and behind the cameras. He guest-starred as Mr. Edwards in the two-hour film that launched the series on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" last year. After the program began last September, he guest-starred in the episodes "Mr. Edwards' Homecoming," "The Lord Is My Shepherd." "To See the World," "The Plague" and "Ma's Holiday."

French turned director for the Little House" episodes "Child of Pain"; "If I Should Wake Before I Die," guest-starring Joseph Hutchinson; and "Circus Man," guest-starring Red Buttons.

He came to 'Little House' with credits in both areas. He directed five "Gunsmoke" episodes after acting in 19 of them, for which he received three Emmy nominations as Best Actor. He also guest-starred in five episodes of "Bonanza," in which Michael Landon (star of "Little House") was starring as Little Joe.

French is a second-generation actor. His father, Ted French, a cowboy, broke into motion pictures in 1916, when movie westerns used real cowboys.

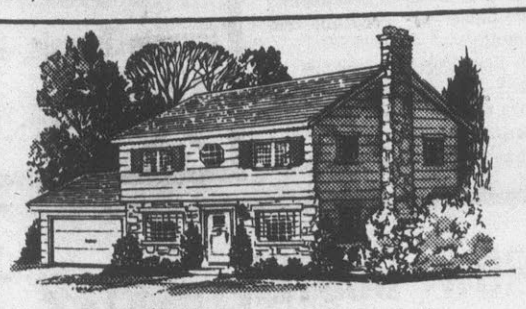

Dr. Mead Is Special Guest

Dr. Margaret Mead, one of today's leading anthropologists, will be the guest on the National Council of Churches program, "A Conversation with Dr. Margaret Mead," to be telecast Sunday, June 22, on NBC-TV.

Mead will discuss with NBC News correspondent Edwin Newman a variety of topics including religion, nuclear energy, the development and use of untested drugs, the supersonic transport, education, and the future role the family as a unit will play in our society.

Known for her writings and lectures, Dr. Mead's work has encompassed every aspect of civilization, including a special interest in revitalizing spiritual understanding as a foundation for living together in our society.

The NBC Television Religious Programs Unit producer of "A Conversation With Dr. Margaret Mead" is Doris Ann; the director is Robert Priaulx. Representing the Broadcasting and Film Commission of the National Council of Churches is the Rev. Dave Pomeroy.

SUSPENSE DRAMA — Bo Svenson portrays a bonded courier who must fake the theft of $2,000,000 in diamonds entrusted to him in order to ransom his kidnapped girl-friend (Meredith Baxter) in "Target Risk" a suspense drama on Thursday, June 26 on "NBC Double Feature Movie" (9:30-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

"Target Risk" Is Something Different

Nothing new in television fare? No fresh ideas finding their way to the television screen, you say? Not so, says executive producer Roy Huggins, a trailblazer in television programming.

It was Huggins who introduced television's first anti-hero "Maverick," the lovable conman, played by James Garner, which is still an all-time favorite series. Huggins followed this success with other ideas, including "77 Sunset Strip," and the top-rated "Run For Your Life" and "Alias Smith and Jones."

What is new and different about "Target Risk?" Huggins says, "I was beginning to think there were only four jobs held by television heroes — doctor, lawyer, cop and cowboy. Then one day I received a novel by Giles Tippette based on the adventures of a bonded courier. Now here was a fascinating character. The courier is a man of mystery, who delivers anything, from top secret documents to underground people. He is a one - of - a - kind man in a new and different line of work which has never been mined by television or films. I felt it was a fresh, new idea, with great potential."

Huggins then assembled the perfect behind - the - scenes crew to bring "Target Risk" to the television screen. Jo Swerling, Jr., his longtime associate, is executive producer and they in turn selected Robert Scheerer to direct the NBC suspense movie which will air Thursday evening, June 26, as part of NBC's Double Feature Night At The Movies from 8:00 to 11 p.m.

To cast the unique role of the mysterious courier, producers Swerling and O'Neill didn't need to place a want ad in Hollywood's trade papers. They already knew the one actor who could fill the part - Bo Svenson!

And fill the part he does, indeed. Bo, who's 6'5", 230 lbs. of blonde, Swedish brawn, is the only actor in Hollywood who holds a 3rd Degree Black Belt in Judo. He speaks six languages, is a former race car driver and ice hockey player.

CBS-TV Gets "Wizard"

"The Wizard of Oz," the landmark film that has become a television classic, has been acquired by the CBS Television Network for presentation as an annual special, beginning with the 1975-76 season.

Starred in the MGM film are Judy Garland, Ray Bolger, Jack Haley and Bert Lahr.

The musical fantasy about the little girl from a Kansas farm and her dog, Toto, and their adventures in the land of Oz, has in the past been broadcast on national televison 16 times, nine times on CBS-TV (1956 to 1967) and, subsequently, seven times on NBC-TV. During the times it was broadcast on CBS, it was always ranked as one of the top 15 specials of the year, reaching one-third of all U.S. television viewing households and attaining more than a 50 per cent share of the average viewing audience.

Pike's Peeks

By CHARLIE PIKE,
Press Features Staff Reporter, Los Angeles.

Mark Spitz, who's joined the CBS Sports staff, says h new assignment won't interfere with his other theatric pursuits. "Certainly CBS is now my first obligation Mark told me at a breakfast press conference held by t network, "But I'll still have time for both my oth professional and business interests."

Regarding the persistant outcries that ABC "S.W.A.T." is too violent, series star Steve Forrest sa calmly, "I'm afraid if we listened to every hue of 't violent' or 'too much crime', we'd end up with one hour television every three weeks. There IS a difference b ween 'action' and 'violence.' "

Mike Evans' departure from the role of Lionel in "T Jeffersons" actually occurred last January but was announced until recently. Apparently a confl materialized between Mike and the show's produc Norman Lear.

The same can be said of Lear with "Good Times" s John Amos, who has yet to come to terms for next Fa Meanwhile, no word yet on whether or not Valerie Harp will follow through on her threat not to return to "Rhoda but Ralph Waite is back with "The Waltons."

Adrienne La Russo, the new and pretty face on "Days Our Lives," may be a trouble-maker in the serial, privately she's a devoted wife, and has been for sev years.

Star Thinks New York's Gre

One ingredient the ABC Television Network's new comedy series, "Barney Miller," will never be lacking is fidelity to the flavor and nature of life in New York City.

Four New Yorkers are starred in the half-hour comedy, Thursdays, 8 to 8:30 p.m., which centers on Barney Miller, Captain of Detectives of a precinct in Manhattan's Greenwich Village. They are Hal Linden as Barney, Barbara Barrie as Mrs. Barney Miller, Abe Vigoda as Detective Fish and Gregory Sierra as Detective Chano.

Linden is especially observant concerning his hometown. From the comments in the scripts, such as "Take a crowded bus," to the double locks on apartment doors, it rings true to him most of the time.

"In one show, however, the director insisted that I take off my overcoat in the hallway," Linden confided. "He was a Californian and he thought the hallway was part of the apartment. To me, that would be like taking my coat off in the street."

Linden pointed out that his city is a place of constant excitement.

"In Los Angeles, you are insulated against brushing up against the life in the city. Watts is like a different world, but Harlem is a part of New York City. People in Califor too far apart and don't New York, the distance wealth and poverty around the corner."

A typical New Y perience Linden likes to is the block party.

"Many neighborhood city have a street closed gala of some kind betw spring and the fall, and ning for these events go months," he said.

"ABC News Closeup" Probes Food Crisis

ABC News focuses on the crucial role played by the United States in the world food shortage and investigates the cost to American families and the hungry in other countries as a result of key government decisions, in the documentary special, "ABC News Closeup on the Food Crisis: A Matter of Policy." The report airs Friday, June 27, 10 to 11 p.m., on Ch. 12.

Emmy Award-winning producer Pamela Hill heads the ABC news team which is examining government actions that have led up to the crisis. Peter Jennings is the correspondent and Brit Hume the reporter.

The federal government has paid farmers to keep millions of acres of land idle at a time of surging food demand and famine overseas. Meanwhile, food costs for American consumers have mushroomed and farmers are organizing to protest widly fluctuating prices. The ABC News report explores why.

The report further will look at the relationship between giant grain companies and the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Department's performance in protecting American consumers and farmers. ABC News also will probe the political uses of food aid programs.

"I believe this is a story that has been overlooked," commented Ms. Hill. "There is a misconception that somehow the food crisis is caused by natural forces — that food and agricultural policy is of concern only to farmers in Iowa.

"But, in fact, government policy is central to the food crisis. American policy has been a critical factor in the daily price you pay for food wherever you live. Furthermore, our research shows that Americans are paying a disproportionate share of increased food prices compared to their counterparts in other rich countries which buy much of our grain. American policy also has resulted in our reduced food aid program being used largely for political rather than humanitarian ends during the past few years."

FOOD SUPPLIERS — ABC News looks at America's position as the world's major food supplier, exemplified in the mechanized harvest of wheat in the state of Washington (left), as part of the investigative report, "ABC News Closeup on The Food Crisis: A Matter of Police," airing Friday, June 27 (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 12.

Midnight Special

NBC-TV's "The Midnight Special" has introduced two newly weekly features — "Rock Tribute" and "Rock Rap" — which will be seen on the show which airs Friday nights following "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," from 1 to 2:30 a.m.

"Rock Tribute" will be a salute to the careers of selected rock super-stars via film, tape, slides and music.

Subsequent stars to be saluted by "The Midnight Special" include Paul McCartney; Joni Mitchell; Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young; Loggins & Messina and Leon Russell. Wolfman Jack, host of "The Midnight Special," will narrate "Rock Tribute."

"Rock Rap" is a two-minute report each week by actress Carol Wayne about the news of personalities on the contemporary music scene.

Special Based On Broadway Hit

Alan Bursky stars as 'Ponty' Finch, a young lad smitten with the idea of sucess, in ABC-TV's comedy special, "How to Suceed in Business Without Really Trying," airing Friday, June 27, 9:30 to 10:00 p.m., on Channel 12. The special is written and produced by Abe Burrows, who directed and co-authored the book for the Broadway smash musical, drawn from Shepherd Mead's best-seller of the same name. Burt Brinckerhoff directs the television special. The program also features Susan Blanchard of the ABC daytime series, "All My Children."

Finch sees no future in the ventures into the business world after reading a book on how to be successful in business. The book suggests that he enter a company that is so big that nobody knows what anyone else is doing, so Finch obtains employment at the World Wide Wicket Company. Our hero knows he has arrived at the right decision when he overhears several confused executives discussing an overabundance of mysterious breakdowns, memos and meetings.

MEET THE GLOBE-ULES—A family of animated characters called Globe-ules identify and dicuss countries visited on "Big Blue Marble," the award-winning children's television series to be seen on Saturday at 7:30 a.m. on Channel WECT-TV (6).

Travel And Not Leave Home

Each week thousands of youngsters travel around the world without ever leaving their homes. Thanks to "Big Blue Marble," the award winning international television series for children 8 to 12, on Saturday, at 7:30 a.m., on Channel WECT-TV (6).

On "Big Blue Marble," youngsters discover how children in other lands live, work and play. Using a magazine format, the producers visited 40 countries and filmed a series of fast-paced sequences - each from a child's point of view. At any given time on "Big Blue Marble," the children may learn how to operate a water taxi, fly a body kite, explore for gold or ancient Indian Ruins, or grass ski.

The series is designed to entertain and enlighten children everywhere. Among the show's goals are:

1. To develop a sense of world mindedness, on both the intellectual and the emotional level.

2. To encourage in viewers an appreciation for cultural diversity;

3. To foster an understanding and appreciation of the commonalities of human experience;

4. To cultivate in children a broader sense of global awareness and responsibility.

The filming of "Big Blue Marble" is done on location which naturally is expensive. Financed by International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation, "Big Blue Marble" was budgeted with $3 million for the first 26 segments. The pilot was tested on 2,500 children who loved the idea.

In a special, "Big Blue Marble" will offer U.S. children an opportunity to correspond with those in foreign countries. "Big Blue Marble" brings children closer together.

Michele Will Tell

TO THE FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. READER: You've gotta' be kiddin'! Does Lee Majors wear dentures? A toupee? What toothpaste does he use? Really now! Why question such a beautifully finished product?

TO BRYAN GALLOWAY, LAMAR, S.C.: Wilt Chamberlain quit playing for the Lakers because he was 'slowing down' and wanted to try his hand at coaching.

TO THE MANY DON RICH ("BUCK OWENS SHOW") FANS: My sources tell me he is alive and well.

IN ANSWER TO QUESTIONS ABOUT George Reinholt who portrayed Steven Frame on "Another World": He left the show because of a salary dispute.

TO M. BRAYBOR, LAKE CITY, S.C., who wants info. on Ken Curtis (Festus) on "Gunsmoke." Born and raised in Colo., ranching and farming occupied most of his youth. He was a professional singer when 'spotted' by a talent scout. You also ask, "Does he really talk that way?" Well, sort of.

TO SONYA HONEYCUTT, LANDIS, N.C.: Henry Winkler, who plays 'Fonzie' on "Happy Days," in real life isn't at all like 'Fonzie.' "I only read about boys like this when I was growing up," he says. Henry's a native New Yorker with a master's degree from Yale University.

TO G.K., FLORENCE, S.C., who wrote about the difference in the volume of the audio elements of TV. After researching, I find that only commercials are staged louder than regular programming. The clarity of the actors' voices depends on their ability to 'project' their voice. The music is 'mood-setting.'

Wolfman Jack Is Host

Wolfman Jack, well-known radio and TV personality, is host of NBC Television Network's "Go" as the PCP cameras show how a cartoon program is made Saturday, June 28, from 12:30 to 1:00 p.m.

Visiting the animation studios where NBC-TV's "The Pink Panther" is made, the "Go" show moves with the Panther's creator, Friz Freleng, from the original sketches to the final cartoon program.

The cartoon, which won an academy Award in the category of the Best Animated Short Subject of 1964, illustrates the Panther's ability to get himself in and out of some hair-raising situations. 'Involved' also are those two lovable characters, the Ant and the Aardvark.

The producers of "The Pink Panther Show," Freleng and David DePatie, originally created the character to illustrate the titles for the motion picture of the same name.

Henri Mancini, another Oscar winner, created the theme music for the NBC-TV series.

The 1975 U. S. Open Golf Championship, one of the world's most prestigious tournaments, will be given the most extensive coverage of any sports event except the Olympic Games with ABC Sports' exclusive telecasts airing on Sunday, June 22, from 4 to 7 p.m., on ABC-TV. This year's version will be played on "The Monster," course number three, at Medinah Country Club just outside Chicago, Illinois. As usual, the course will play long for the Open, at 7,032 yards, with par being set at 71.

The early popular favorite would appear to be the 'Golden Bear,' Jack Nicklaus, who is the only golfer who will have an opportunity this year to capture golf's Grand Slam. In 1974, Jack failed to win any of the "Big Four" tournaments, but personally assured that 1975 would be different. With the 1975 Master Tournament already his, Nicklaus will have to win at Medinah then go on to victory at the British Open and the PGA Championship to notch his first Grand Slam.

Hale Irwin, the 1974 Open Champion at Winge Foot, is expected to be gunning for back-to-back victories after his impressive win at Atlanta Golf Classic. Last yar's record-setting money-winner, Johnny Miller and colorful Lee Trevino, who won the 1974 PGA Championshop and always plays well in the open, will be in the field, as will most of golfdom's outstanding performers. These include Gary Player, the best foreign entry, Tom Weiskopf, always second and thirsting for first, Tom Watson, one of the outstanding 'young lions' on the tour, and Sam Snead, the ancient, amiable Southerner.

Traditionally, the U. S. Open is one of the most demanding annual events covered by ABC Sports. This year, the coverage of 13 holes at Medinah will call for 28 cameras . . . two more than last year . . . and the service of a golf-casting team including Jim McKay, series host of "ABC Wide World of ports," Bill Flemming, Keith Jackson, Dave Marr, British golfing authorities Henry Longhurst and Peter Allis, and expert commentators Byron Nelson and Bob Rosburg.

This year, the purse for the U.S. Open will be in excess of $225,000 with a winner's share of $40,000. Lee Trevino, who shot 257 in 1967 and 1968, respectively, hold the tournament record. In the event of a tie after four rounds of regulation play, 18 holes will be played on Monday, June 23, and ABC Sports will televise the final holes of the playoff.

He Is Speedy Record-Breaker

Steve Williams was born on Friday, November 13, 1953 and immediately had plaster casts placed on both legs to correct an acute case of pidgeon toes. When the braces came off after six months, he had energy to burn. Now a serious and worthy claimant to the title World's Fastest Human, Steve is a complete, perfect example of what a student-athlete should be. (The youthful sprinter will be participating in the AAU National Outdoor Men's Track and Field Championships to be broadcast on the CBS Sports Spectacular at 4:30 p.m., on Saturday, June 28.)

In the way of all sprinters, he was fast from the moment he was broken from his plaster. "I could bunt and make it to third," he says. "I was always the first guy downcourt, always open for the long pass." Williams grew up in the South Bronx, but unlike many of his classmates, he is an extremely articulate, almost lyrical individual who finds as much rewarding challenges in a novel as in a 100-yard track. Shirley Thomas, his ethics professor at San Diego State, states, "He's concerned with repudiating the myth of the athlete as nonstudent."

As far as running is concerned, Steve concentrated on the 220 and 440 at Evander Childs High School, and didn't even run the 100 until his senior year in 1971. After accepting a full scholarship to the University of Texas at El Paso, he participated in as many as eight races in one meet until a ham-string pull cooled his running and confidence.

Rod Laver: Down, But Not Out

He may have lost the battle, but the war ranges on. Rod Laver, the inimitable, 35-year-old 'Rocket' from Australia, suffered defeat at the hands of young Jimmy Connors of February 7, but his famed career is not about to collapse. (Rod will team with Bjorn Borg against Stan Smith and Ilie Nastase in the doubles for men in the world Invitational Tennis Classic to be broadcast on ABC at 22:30 p.m. on Sunday, June 22.)

The Aussie's outstanding credentials are still unmatched in the highly competitive world of tennis. He is the only man to win the grand slam twice, and has won the famed Wimbledon Championship an unprecedented four times.

His easy-going, emotionally steady attitude enabled him to bounce back from the Las Begas Debacle and help Australia capture the World Cup, which took place only two weeks after the Connors match. Typical of Laver's come-from-behind ability was his breath-taking victory in the first round of the World Cup against American Dick Stockton.

Behind 6 to 5 in a thirteen-point tie-breaker, he returned the first Stockton serve with a blazing ground stroke that forced the American to volley into the net. On the next serve, the Aussie hit a deep lob that had his opponent hopelessly out of position, and the former nudged the ball back over the net - hence, a classic Laver victory.

Nevertheless, he is the first to admit that the victories are tourgher and tougher to come by. "I probably haven't played at the same level of a few years ago," Rod recently stated. "Sometimes I do for a match, or even a whole tournament, but I don't mention it. A lot of the other boys are playing very well now too, though. The competition is a lot tougher, especially in terms of depth. We had good players before, but not nearly so many of them."

Another factor working against any veteran is the difficulty in getting excited about it all after so many years and so many matches.

Not His First Glimpse

Anthony Quayle feels he knows a little something about the character of the Biblical Patriarch, Moses, and the Holy Land, and by Jehovah — he's right.

Quayle, who portrays Moses' brother Aaron in "Moses — The Lawgiver," which was filmed in Israel, once played Moses himself in Christopher Fry's play "The First Born." He appeared in this poetic drama opposite Katherine Cornell in 1958 on Broadway.

Now he stars in "Moses — The Lawgiver," a series of six drama specials, the second of which will air June 28, 10 to 11 p.m., on Ch. 9-11.

After the Broadway run, Quayle and Miss Cornell brought the show to Israel where it played to great acclaim.

"The two scripts — Fry's 'The First Born' and 'The Lawgiver' — differ considerably," Quayle said, while on location again in Israel. "Although, I do believe Moses in both is quote obviously the same great, but very human man.

"Aaron in 'Moses — The Lawgiver' follows Moses out of Egypt to the Promise Land reluctantly at first, because he feels the old boy is rushing too fast. The Israelites, though persecuted in Egypt, need time to adjust to the idea of a new life and especially to the idea of one God, a God they cannot see."

"Aaron acts throughout as a rein on Moses," Quayle continued. "He becomes an enthusiastic supporter in time, while always reminding Moses not to expect too much of frightened folk too soon."

Tanned and bearded for his role, Quayle spoke thoughtfully on a peaceful, sunny Sabbath, his one day off that week, in the beautiful seaport of Eilat. Eilat? Smack on the shimmering Gulf of aquab, where King Hussein liked to water ski. Eilat is only a mile from the Jordanian border, clearly visible in the distance.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR ALAN ALDA

When did you first want to be a writer?—T.S., Ventura, Calif. (Editor's note: Alda developed the written concept of the TV show "We'll Get By.")

● When I was eight, I wanted to write books like those I was reading—books like "Top Horse at Crescent Ranch"! My dad and my teachers encouraged me. In fact, at school, I used to get out of book reports by writing little plays and things. I think it was good because it developed my writing ability and gave me a chance to get a feedback on it. For example, I would write the school Thanksgiving play. In exchange for that, I wouldn't have to do some of the boring work I would otherwise have had to do. I found it much easier to write a 60-page play than a 25-page term paper. I got higher marks, too, because instead of writing a paper on some historical subject, I put all the facts in play form.

FOR ETHEL MERMAN

Out of your long career, what moment do you cherish the most?—P.L., Asbury Park, N.J.

● It's got to be when the final curtain came down the opening night of "I Got Rhythm," October 13, 1930. The Broadway musical starred Ginger Rogers, and I made my stage debut in a featured role. I don't mean to boast, but I brought the house down when I sang. Until I stepped onstage that night, then my name didn't mean a thing. But when I left it after the show, my career had begun.

FOR SEN. WILLIAM PROXMIRE (D-Wis.)

For 20 years, the military-industrial complex has run the U.S. to suit itself. Can Congress change that?—Robert Barney, San Antonio, Texas

● I agree that the military has too much relative power. But my main objection is that it is soft and wasteful. What we need is a lean, tough, first-rate fighting force. But the military would rather keep its servants, commissary privileges and the overruns on the fancy gold-plated weapons. We could have a much stronger military for the same money, or as much military strength at far less cost.

FOR MEL BROOKS, actor and producer

Why didn't you appear in your movie "Young Frankenstein," as you did in others such as "Blazing Saddles"?—John Keepers, Pomona, Calif.

● There was only one part that I was right for in "Young Frankenstein" and that was Igor. Then, along came Marty Feldman and he mesmerized me with those eyes. Let's face it, he was born to play Igor. But thank you for the inquiry.

FOR VALERINE PERRINE, star of "Lenny"

How do you like people to pronounce your name?—David Bass, Howell, N.J.

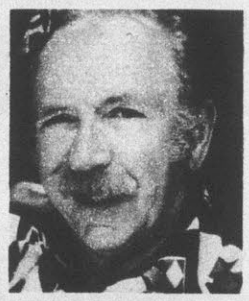

● Per-RINE—like in "wine."

FOR KAY ISELIN GILMAN, sportswriter and author

Does Joe Namath have the most natural star presence of any person you have interviewed?—J.B., Amherst, N.Y.

● No. Evel Knievel has the most natural star presence of any person I've interviewed. He also spouts the best copy.

FOR JACK ALBERTSON, star of "Chico and the Man"

As a garage owner on your show, how much do you know about cars?—S.G., Texarkana, Texas

● One day my daughter and I were driving to the NBC studios and got a flat across from the Hollywood Bowl. I pulled off on the sidewalk and headed for the nearest phone. I told NBC to pick us up. While I was away, another driver—seeing my daughter stranded—offered to help. At that point, I came back. The man recognized me and said with great disbelief: "You have a garage, and you can't fix a flat!?"

FOR HAROLD "RED" GRANGE, all-time football great

How do you think you would do in present-day football? —T. J. McInerney, New Hyde Park, N.Y.

● I think I would fare okay. I weighed about 190 and was slightly over six feet. My time in the 100 was 9.7 seconds. I played both defense and offense. I liked to play, and I was not prone to injuries.

FOR BURT REYNOLDS

I enjoyed your movie "The Longest Yard." Had you ever played football before, and did you do your own scenes in the movie?—Mrs. Al Kuzio, Jr., Whitesboro, N.Y.

● I was an All-State and All-Southern halfback for Florida State University and was headed for a pro football career until a near-fatal automobile accident ended my athletic dreams. Yes, I did all of my own football scenes in "The Longest Yard."

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Was that a real romance between Liberace and Julie Budd? —B.B., Greensburg, Pa.

● About five years ago, when she was 16, singer Julie Budd was Liberace's costar in Las Vegas. She was depressed because she had no escort for Elvis Presley's opening at the International Hotel. Herb Bernstein, her manager, couldn't accompany her, but came up with this solution instead: "Liberace is going, and I'll ask him if he'll take you." He readily agreed: "Of course, she's like my kid sister." The miserable teenager got a new lease on life at the thought of seeing her idol's first night. Off went Liberace and Julie, arm-in-arm. A few months later, a scandal magazine came out with a special report of the "big romance" between them. Liberace was highly amused at the incident, but Julie was mortified. "M'gosh," she said, "I still call him Mister Liberace."

A Look Behind

- What's in It for Us
- What's in It for Russia
- What's in It for Man's Future in Space

It was early summer, 1969. Astronaut Frank Borman, his wife and sons were winding up a tour of Russia. During the long flight back to Moscow, Borman turned to his hosts, Soviet cosmonaut Ghermain Titov and Dr. Boris Petrov, chairman of the USSR Academy of Sciences Committee on Manned Space Flight, and made a momentous proposal: that the U.S. and the USSR fly a manned mission together.

In a way, Borman's trip through Russia (he was the first U.S. astronaut ever so honored) marked the end of the first decade of heated space competition. The Russians, after vowing to beat us to the moon, now knew they had lost, after the repeated test failures of their giant moon rocket. What they did not know for sure was that the U.S. knew of the failures. The decks had already been cleared for Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin of Apollo 11 to perform the first manned landing two months later. Before leaving the United States, Borman had gotten the approval of Henry Kissinger and the White House to approach the Russians. As commander of Apollo 8, Borman had led the U.S. team that daringly flew the first spacecraft to circle the moon six months ahead of schedule, when it looked as though the Russians were about to beat us.

"From the Russians' point of view, the flight soothes their feelings after having lost the lunar race. It enables them to convince the world that they're on a par with U.S. technology—which they are not."

Borman felt then, as he does now, that cooperation in space might lead to détente on earth. After the initial agreements, the joint space flight, christened ASTP—for Apollo-Soyuz Test Project—was approved.

The flight has much in it for both nations. It enables NASA to fly another Apollo mission at minimal expense—since the Saturn rocket and Apollo spacecraft are leftovers from the moon program—thus keeping launch teams and astronauts together for the forthcoming U.S. space shuttle in the late '70's and early '80's. The total cost to the U.S. is about $175,000,000—of which some $25,000,000 is for the docking module built by the U.S. that will link Soyuz and Apollo in orbit. By combining engineering ideas, a better docking adapter has been built than either the U.S. or Russia had before. The adapter makes rescue a possibility, not just a pipe dream, should astronauts of any nation get trapped in orbit on future space flights.

From the Russians' point of view, the flight soothes their feelings after having lost the lunar race. It enables them to convince the world that they're on a par with U.S. technology—which they are not. They're at least a decade behind in boosters and spacecraft. As for those who feel the U.S. is giving away technological secrets—nonsense! Apollo is 15-year-old technology. The Russians may get some computer-software tricks, but nothing they could not have purchased overtly or covertly.

The real triumph of ASTP is the spirit of cooperation that has risen above language and technological differences. The five crew members—U.S. commander Tom Stafford, 44, a veteran of three previous flights; rookie Vance Brand, 44; and Deke Slayton, 51, one of the original seven Mercury astronauts—and the two-man Soviet crew—Col. Aleksei Leonov, 41, the world's first space walker in 1965; and his flight engineer, Valery Kubasov—have worked together for the past three years. The men have slaved four hours a day learning each other's language. Several times a year, the crews and scores of technicians from both nations

The U.S.-Soviet Space Flight

By Jules Bergman
ABC News Science Editor

Aleksei Leonov from the Soviet Union and Tom Stafford from the United States will meet next in space—orbiting above their countries' differences and (hopefully) adding a new dimension to the concept of détente.

have trained at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston or at Star City, 25 miles east of Moscow.

The ASTP agreement was negotiated during the Soyuz 11 disaster. That's when, you may remember, three cosmonauts died on reentry after 23 days aboard the Salyut space station. U.S. skepticism grew about Soviet technical ability. But the Soviets solved the hatch-seal problem that had caused the tragedy and, to prove it, flew three unmanned and three manned flights.

The actual flight plan calls for Soyuz to be launched at 8:20 a.m. on Tuesday, July 15, followed at 3:50 p.m. by Apollo. Two days later, Apollo will pull up behind Soyuz and dock. Apollo carries the linking docking module beneath it, where the lunar module used to be stored. Soyuz is the passive target and Apollo does the active engine "burns" (the U.S. spacecraft carries far more maneuvering fuel and better radar). U.S. and Soviet ground stations and control centers will be tied together around the world via the U.S. ATS-6 satellite, which will also relay hours of onboard television back to Russia and the U.S.

The spacecraft will remain docked for two days, during which time the crews will visit each other's vehicle. One crewman from each nation will always be aboard his own ship. The crews will perform five joint scientific experiments, and the Apollo crew will do 22 more alone.

The joint in-flight rules are simple: The Russians will always talk English to the Americans, the Americans will always speak Russian to the Soviets. Gauges and instruments on Apollo are labeled in both languages.

Soviet obsession with secrecy nearly torpedoed the mission a few months ago. Tom Stafford had insisted that his crew see the Soviet rocket and the Soyuz spacecraft at Tyuratam, the Russian Cape Canaveral. Since the Russians also launch ICBM's there, they refused on the grounds of military secrecy. Stafford persisted, declaring, "If we don't see it, we don't fly it." The Russians gave in, and in late April the U.S. primary and backup crews, with no cameras allowed, were taken through Tyuratam. (The Russians, by the way, have always called Tyuratam by the name of Baikonur, a small city 135 miles away. They seemed to think this would throw the U.S. off about where their spaceport actually is. In reality, via reconnaissance satellites and electronic wizardry, the U.S. has known about Tyuratam for 15 years.)

When you sit inside the tiny Soyuz spacecraft, as this reporter did recently, you get a new appreciation of the courage of Soviet pilots. It is cramped and, by U.S. standards, primitive in its controls. It works well most of the time, but the Russians have lost four men returning from orbit on two Soyuz flights. The U.S. has lost none.

All things considered, Apollo is by far the more versatile and reliable spacecraft. But it was built for the far more dangerous, complex lunar mission, where no one could help if trouble developed. U.S. astronauts consider Soyuz more or less adequate for short earth-orbital missions, but they don't exactly get excited about launching in it. Ironically, the recent failure of Soyuz 18 was the best verification of Soyuz safety. The launch booster failed to achieve orbital velocity and the Soyuz was aborted, using its escape tower. The crew landed safely 1,000 miles down range from Tyuratam and only a few hundred miles from China. Col. Anatoly Filipchenko, the ASTP backup commander who flew the Soyuz 17 rehearsal mission, told me at Star City that this was the first time the escape tower had been tested, and the Soviet cosmonauts were elated that it worked perfectly.

Sitting on a shelf in Aleksei Leonov's apartment in Star City is a half-empty bottle of vodka that all five pilots of the ASTP mission drank from, sealed, and then signed their names on the label. That was at their farewell evening together a few months ago—their last until they meet in space—and they vowed to finish the vodka after returning from the ASTP flight in late July.

There may be problems on the mission that no one can predict—but camaraderie and the desire to succeed will not be among them. FW

Wives in Space? What Apollo-Soyuz May Lead To . . .

The U.S. and the USSR are already holding preliminary talks on possible follow-up missions. The avowed goal is possible joint manned flights in which America's space shuttle would ferry Soviet or joint crews up to the Soviet Salyut space station in the early '80's. Since the U.S. has no space station planned, the idea has some attraction. America's Skylab, still in orbit, might be revisited by a joint crew. More likely would be missions to an advanced Soviet space station

Prelude to the Impossible Journey: The first logical planetary goal looks like Mars, depending on what America's two unmanned Viking spacecraft find if they make it to the red planet next July 4.

The manned mission to Mars would be longer, more dangerous and more expensive than any flight yet attempted: a two-year round-trip journey at the best current chemical-rocket speeds, traversing more than 500 million miles through space each way. So long and dangerous a flight would be likely to require a mixed crew of husband and wife astronauts, at least one of them a physician. Early thoughts call for a five or six person crew. Cost: The latest projection is so huge a figure that no single nation could afford it. The Mars mission, if ever deemed worthwhile, would have to be an international flight.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

What Your Hair Says About You

True or False: What a man's hair length tells you about him depends as much on your haircut as his. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The length of a man's hair tells a lot about his attitude, outlook and general personality.

2. The all-important first impression a man makes on people depends to a large extent on whether he's a blond, brunet or redhead.

3. What a man's hair length tells you about him depends as much on your haircut as his.

4. Nervousness or emotional conflict causes some people to literally "tear their hair."

ANSWERS

1. True. Investigators at Utah State University divided college men into two groups: those with hair above their shoulders and those with hair below their shoulders. All were subjected to a battery of standard personality tests. Marked differences in character, outlook and general attitude were found between the two groups. The hair-above-the-shoulders students were much more interested in the opinions and ideas of others, from whom they felt they could learn, and sought to profit by the examples of the successful and to avoid the mistakes of the failures. They were inclined to adjust and adapt to conditions rather than to rock the boat. Students in the hair-below-the-shoulders group "placed significantly greater value on independence, and significantly less value on conformity and recognition. They were somewhat isolated from others and not as strongly influenced by their authority." They were also disinterested in any rewards that might threaten or compromise their independence.

2. True—according to psychological studies conducted by a team of investigators on men and women students at two Midwestern colleges. Subjects were shown colored slides of male faces of various types. Each facial type was shown first with blond hair, next with dark, then as a redhead. Findings: Blonds scored the highest ratings in terms of such valued attributes as kindness, compassion and consideration for others. The same faces when depicted with dark hair were judged superior in terms of being vigorous, tough-minded men of action. Contrary to expectations, the redheaded models impressed the subjects less favorably than the blonds or brunets.

3. True. A team of behavioral specialists at the University of Arizona made an interesting psychological experiment. A long-haired subject was introduced to a class that included long- and short-haired students. They were told that "the examiners wished to study how people can 'infer,' or estimate, patterns of behavioral traits and of abnormal behavior from very brief encounters . . . and that the subject—'Bill'—had volunteered to assist, since recently 'he spent some time in a psychiatric ward.'" "Bill" read a brief neutral statement about himself and then was allowed to depart. He was then given a short haircut, and the experiment was conducted again with classes of long- and short-haired students. Results: The short-haired students rated the long-haired "Bill" as the sickest—the most likely to be schizophrenic, anxiety-ridden, paranoid, etc. On the other hand, members of the classes with long hair judged the short-haired "Bill" the sickest.

4. True. When feeling distraught or frustrated, some people will absently pluck hair after hair from their head without realizing what they are doing. Specialists in human behavior term this penchant for hair-plucking trichotillomania. It is almost like nail-biting. Methods of breaking the habit run a gamut that includes greasing the hair so the person can't get a grip on it, offering rewards, etc. A psychological study at the University of Manitoba indicates that this hair-removing habit can be effectively coped with if the person is made acutely aware of what he is doing. This was done by instructing the subject to chart the number of hairs pulled daily for seven days, and to save them and place them in envelopes daily. Purpose: To give the subject immediate and emphatic feedback on his behavior.

SHIRLEY MACLAINE:

"Some People Call It Cynicism—I Call It Giving Up"

Pictorial Parade

"One of the major things holding back progress today is the cynicism that has taken hold of people. We have to stop being so cynical, because that doesn't get us anywhere. It has become fashionable to be cynical, but that's really a holding action against change. It doesn't do anything but paralyze people. I think there is a reason for this tendency. People see what is happening all around them and feel that they don't matter. They feel worthless and even stop looking for good things within themselves. So being cynical becomes a defense and a justification for not doing anything. It is much harder to have hopes and act to bring them about. When you are cynical you are just giving up. You might as well be dead. For our survival and progress we have to drop such barriers and expand our efforts toward change. That's the only way we will have a purpose in living." Shirley MacLaine's latest book is "You Can Get There From Here."

The Doctor Lets You In

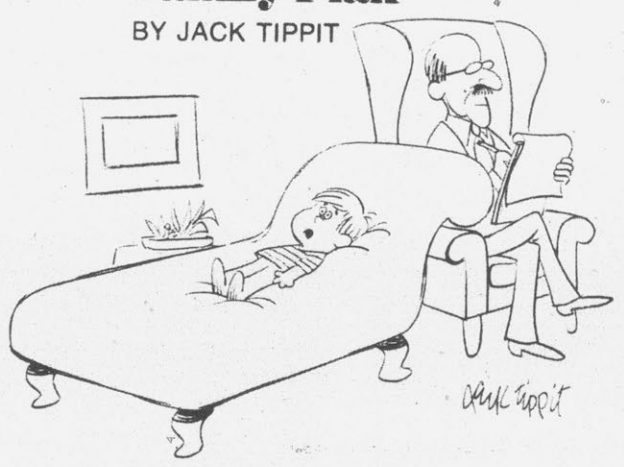

New Family of Wonder Drugs

There is a new family of drugs, called prostaglandins (PG's), that is astounding scientists. PG's are normally found in body tissues in minute amounts—there are different PG variants in different tissues. The body makes them from essential unsaturated fatty acids (arachidonic acid, linolenic acid, etc.) taken in the diet. Originally, PG's were separated from human and sheep seminal fluid. More recently they have been found in a marine coral. They're also produced by chemical synthesis. PG's also have opposing roles. Some dilate the bronchial tubes—useful in treating asthma; others constrict bronchial tubes and may cause an asthmatic attack.... The only PG presently authorized for use in the U.S. by the FDA is one that is being used to hasten labor and also to terminate pregnancy.... But other PG's are being used experimentally to increase blood flow in the lungs; to lower blood pressure; to stimulate the adrenal glands to produce natural cortisone or stimulate the thyroid to increase thyroid hormones. Other PG's can inhibit secretion of acid stomach juices (useful in treating stomach ulcer). Eventually they may be used for migraine or even as contraceptive agents. Within ten years, perhaps sooner, PG's could revolutionize medical treatment.—By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

What Is "Image Eating"?

"Image eating" is a new dieting trick that's getting popular among TV celebrities. In image eating, a doctor asks his overweight patient to imagine herself in a bikini. While she's still shuddering, he asks her to imagine eating a slimming meal: cottage cheese salad with fruit, for instance—tasty enough, yet the kind of meal that can slim her down. Then he asks her to see herself wearing a whole new wardrobe two sizes smaller than her present one. In technical terms, this is called covert conditioning: You're repelled by the "old" fat you, and you identify slim, two-sizes-smaller you with the tasty-enough meal. Many researchers say that deliberately stopping before lunch and dinner and projecting these images is ideal. You flinch from the "old" you, and you identify the "new" you with the lower-calorie meal. Gradually, you achieve a new eating pattern. Some good low-calorie lunches to practice with image eating: shrimp salad with lemon; hard-boiled eggs with paprika, on lettuce: broiled fish with parsley and lemon, green salad.

People and You

Do Good Looks Affect How People Judge You?

If you're good-looking, does that mean that you are also good, kind, honest and sincere? Ask that of people and they'll probably laugh at you. "Of course not," they'll say. But strangely, what we say doesn't match what we do. Most people are susceptible to good looks. When three psychologists conducted experiments on people's reactions, they discovered a strong tendency to assume that good-looking people are good people. In the experiments, volunteers were given photographs of attractive, average and below-average men and women. They were asked to judge how kind, generous, serious, stable, interesting, sincere, sexually warm, outgoing, sociable, etc., each of the people was. In another test, they were asked to judge their friendliness, enthusiasm, social poise and trustworthiness. In all cases, people forgot about beauty being skin deep and decided that good looks probably meant good personality and good character.—By Shirley Sloan Fader

Jobmanship

What It Takes to Succeed as a Secretary

Many people become secretaries. Some are happy and successful in their work, while others who are just as intelligent are restless and dissatisfied. Why? The Johnson O'Connor Research Foundation, a nonprofit group that has tested half a million people for job aptitudes since 1922, says it's not just a matter of "making up your mind to succeed," it's also a matter of your natural abilities and your basic personality. A good secretary needs clerical ability, a natural ease in dealing with paper work, figures and symbols, as well as high finger dexterity. Without the clerical ability she/he makes mistakes, falls behind, daydreams, is just plain unhappy. Without finger dexterity, a secretary never masters the skills well enough to enjoy the work. Moreover, clerical workers and private secretaries need two different personalities. To spend hours typing, doing accounts, running machines or other solitary work, clerical workers need a "subjective" personality that makes them enjoy concentrating on the task at hand rather than working with people. A private secretary needs to enjoy dealing with people. A secretary also needs inductive reasoning talent—the ability to form a logical conclusion from scattered facts. The qualities that interfere with being a good secretary are: high creativity, a talent for thinking in three dimensions, an ability to think ahead and foresee situations, plus a strong inner drive to succeed.—By S. R. Redford

What a Deaf-Blind Man Can Teach Us About Emotion

By Lyle M. Crist

Joseph Jedd

Deaf-blind Dick Kinney "talks" with author Lyle M. Crist, who has written a biography of Kinney entitled "Through the Rain and Rainbow" (Abingdon Press, $5.95).

"The deaf-blind want to perceive as much as you do. They don't want a cold, metallic message when emotion is involved. When you laugh, you move your body a bit, don't you? Aren't you agitated in a hearty laugh?"
—Dick Kinney* (deaf and blind)

I laughed. My friend Dick Kinney had made a witty, humorous comment and I laughed.

Then I tapped him on the wrist, moved my fingers to a small machine resembling a portable typewriter, and slowly punched the keys "H-A, H-A."

I assumed there was no better way to respond. Dick Kinney is totally deaf and totally blind; the machine is the TellaTouch, a wonder aid for the deaf-blind, devised by the American Foundation for the Blind. By spelling out my laughter on the keys, I knew Dick received the impression in momentary thrusts of Braille dot patterns against the tip of his forefinger, placed on the other side of the TellaTouch.

He chuckled over my "H-A, H-A" message, but in that moment his expression betrayed a lesson I had yet to learn about the full meaning of communication among all of us.

Wonderful as it is, the TellaTouch was inadequate that morning, and the lesson from the incident goes far beyond the interview. I was in Dick Kinney's home in Winnetka, Ill., gathering material for the biography of this remarkable man. Blind at age seven, becoming deaf during his sophomore year in college, he lived in a vacuum without a clear sense of purpose for nearly a decade before Helen Keller and a host of interested agencies assisted his return to studies at Mount Union College in Ohio, using specially trained student-associates to communicate classroom lectures to him.

In 1954 he became only the third deaf-blind person in history to earn a college degree. Helen Keller was the first; Robert Smithdas of St. Johns University, the second. Today Kinney is president of the Hadley Correspondence School for the Blind in Winnetka, supervising its far-ranging curriculum, handling all fund raising, overseeing public relations, leading its many personal contacts with more than 4,000 students (a scattering of them deaf-blind) over the world.

His book, "Independent Living Without Sight and Hearing," is the text for a unique course for the deaf-blind, taught now by Geraldine Lawhorn, an equally remarkable black woman on Chicago's South Side. She, too, is deaf and blind.

Reading some of Kinney's comments on communication several weeks after the interview, I found that he was cautioning those in the families of deaf-blind persons to avoid using the TellaTouch when conveying emotion. To respond to a deaf-blind person's witty comment or joke simply with a "H-A, H-A" on the machine was "inadequate." "It is cold," he had written.

Well! On my next trip to Winnetka for material for the biography, I reminded Dick of my boner—I had relied on the TellaTouch for my laughter. And he remembered. "But after all, Lyle, any machine is too mechanical for real emotion. When you say something funny, don't you want a genuinely emotional reaction?"

I tapped his wrist.

"And don't you want to see a smile and hear a good, hearty laugh?"

Another single tap.

"Why?"

"To assure me that I've really said something considered funny." This time on the TellaTouch.

"Exactly. And those are the two experiences that I can't have—not in the same manner you can."

"What's to be done then?" The mechanical message seemed so logical.

He was emphatic. "The deaf-blind want to perceive as much as you do. They don't want a cold, metallic message when emotion is involved. When you laugh, you move your body a bit, don't you? Aren't you agitated in a hearty laugh?"

My single tap on his wrist again meant "Yes."

Dick smiled. "Then agitate yourself! If you're agitated, come up to me, right next to me, agitate your arm against mine; take your arms and run them up and down my arms. Be agitated. In other words, do something that I can perceive directly, on the strength of the sensory perceptions I do have. Give me a sensory clue and I'll reach my own judgment about what's going on!"

He added, with his own brand of humor once again, "Why, if you do that, I will know that one of two things

Smart Cooking Just For Fun

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen blends herbs into sparkling jellies to serve with grilled chicken or a cool salad supper.

Jellies You Can Make From Your Garden!

Why not make some extra-special-tasting fresh herb jellies from your own garden?

PARSLEY JELLY

3 cups boiling water
4 cups chopped parsley (2 large bunches)
2 tablespoons lemon juice (1 lemon)
1 box (1¾ ozs.) powdered fruit pectin
4½ cups (2 lbs.) sugar
Few drops green food coloring

1. Pour boiling water over parsley in bowl. Cover and let stand 15 minutes. Strain through cheesecloth or jelly bag. Measure 3 cups juice into large saucepan.

2. Add lemon juice and powdered fruit pectin. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil.

3. Add all sugar immediately and stir. Blend in a few drops of green food coloring.

4. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; skim off foam with metal spoon and pour liquid quickly into sterilized glasses. Cover at once with ⅛-inch hot paraffin.

Makes 5¼ cups or 6 (8 ozs.) glasses

HERB JELLY

2½ cups boiling water
4 tablespoons dried herb leaves*
4½ cups (2 lbs.) sugar
¼ cup vinegar
Few drops green food coloring
½ bottle liquid fruit pectin

1. Pour boiling water over herb leaves. Cover and let stand 15 minutes. Strain through cheesecloth or jelly bag. Measure 2 cups into a large saucepan.

2. Thoroughly mix sugar and vinegar into juice in saucepan. Place over high heat and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Add food coloring. Stir in fruit pectin at once.

3. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly.

4. Remove from heat; skim off foam with metal spoon and pour liquid quickly into sterilized glasses. Cover at once with ⅛-inch hot paraffin.

Makes 4½ cups or 5 (8 ozs.) glasses

What's Smart? It's cheaper to make your own herb jellies than to buy them. Cost, using fresh herbs from your garden: 21 cents per glass. It costs about 26 cents per glass to use dried store-bought herbs.

What a Deaf-Blind Man Can Teach Us About Emotion

has happened: Either I've said something very funny—or you have a bad case of the palsy!"

And he will have learned of the reaction himself, on the strength of his own senses. That is what is most important.

This is the man who, at the age of 37, fell in love with a blind girl. "It was a case of love at first touch!" The same genuine, open emotion led to their marriage, their child. And the same genuine sense of dominion has enabled him to go on after Evelyn's death just three years after their wedding.

Today, Dick Kinney tells me that most deaf-blind persons, perhaps one in every 20,000 in our nation, are those of later years who, deprived of one sense earlier in life, lose the second after years of home, family, career. When the vacuum world of deaf-blindness overtakes them, they are too old to go to school again, they feel too set in their ways to explore new patterns of learning.

As a result, they retreat to the security of a living room chair, live out their lives in retreat. Kinney's course by correspondence—for both the deaf-blind and their families—puts them back in the mainstream again. And communication is the key element.

The TellaTouch and Braille are tremendous aids, but part of the opportunity lies with the families and friends of deaf-blind persons. We can learn too. Learn to adapt our responses to the perceptions that remain.

I've been more free in displaying emotion since that second interview with Dick Kinney. There are other lessons to be learned, but communication has always been a two-way process. All Dick Kinney wants is for the deaf-blind person to have his rightful share through the open, natural use of touch.

The reasoning applies, in fact, to all of us. FW

Bill Bridges / Medical World News

Dr. James G. Price defines the trained family doctor as "a specialist in his own right—one in breadth rather than depth."

The "Family Doctor" Is Back! (And They're Calling Him a New Specialist)

"Having a doctor who knows the medical history of your entire family intimately is not only a help to you—it is a milestone in the modern medical idea of genetics, family planning and improvement of the human species."

By Jessyca Russell Gaver

You may have heard of it. There is a new specialty in medicine called family practice. It has come into being not because other specialities have lost their allure, but because the American Academy of Family Physicians recently made the idea of specializing in family medicine attractive to medical-school graduates, and more and more new doctors are recognizing that the "whole person" is as important to care for as are special parts of the human anatomy.

There has been a cry for the return of the old-fashioned "horse and buggy" family medic for a long time. Leaving this dream behind, many of us have wished that the automobile age could at least make it possible to have a doctor available not only in a conveniently placed office and hospital, but at a patient's home, when it is difficult for him to get to a doctor.

Now, this is coming true. The "general practitioner" has been put at the low end of the medical totem pole for too long. Today there are all kinds of residency programs for those who want to become family specialists. Films, cassette tapes, classroom and hospital practice teach these residents to become aware of their patients as both individuals and family members. Such doctors learn to become concerned with every facet of a patient's family life and problems. The only other specialist who approaches this concept of the "whole" man is the internist, but he does not usually take on the family's problems as well.

One reason general practice lost out to specialties was because many medical-school graduates were afraid they would not be able to encompass the broad scope of knowledge required of a family doctor. It seemed easier to specialize.

Therefore, in an effort to remedy this problem, the American Board of Medical Specialties established Family Practice as medicine's 20th specialty in February, 1969. The American Academy of Family Physicians was the primary sponsoring organization, and, assisted by the American Medical Association, it set up a certifying board, The American Board of Family Practice, to conduct examinations and grant specialty certification.

The American Academy of Family Physicians has devised residency training programs for this specialty. These three-year programs enable their graduates to care for 85-90 percent of patient needs. As Dr. James G. Price, former president of the AAFP, explained:

"The trained family physician is a specialist in his own right—one in breadth rather than depth. His appearance on the scene corrects a long and fallaciously held assumption that the family doctor requires less training than the specialist, and is therefore less important."

The Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association defines a "family physician" as one who does these things:

1. Serves as the physician of first contact with the patient, and provides him with an entry into the health-care system.

2. Evaluates the patient's total health needs and, unlike other specialists, provides care in one or more fields of medicine on a continuing basis.

3. Refers the patient to another specialist when necessary —for complicated surgery, for instance—and acts as a liaison between the patient and the second specialist.

4. Takes responsibility for all the health needs of the patient and his family, including preventive care, rehabilitation, and treatment of psychiatric disturbances — even marriage counseling.

5. Relates all these services to the health resources and needs of the community in which the patient lives (such as hospitals, clinics, etc.).

Under the AAFP setup, each training program must include what the academy calls a family-practice center, which is an office setting much like that which any practicing physician would have, in which the resident, under clinical supervision, develops the skills and techniques he will need to treat his own patients. Although the center is based on the various departments of in-hospital care, one of its goals is to keep patients out of the hospital through preventive medicine and health maintenance.

Jessyca Russell Gaver writes regularly on medical subjects.

At the end of his residency, the doctor sits for the very difficult two-day certifying examination of the American Board of Family Practice. If, or when, he passes this, he joins his fellow 7,000 family-practice specialists, who are called diplomates. To emphasize the increasing popularity of this specialty, you must realize there are now 2,400 residents in the program in 233 AMA-approved hospitals, and about 100 more programs are being planned. In July, 1975 (the start of a new training year), an additional 1,700 first-year residents will enter the program. More than two-thirds of the 111 medical schools in the United States and Canada now have departments or divisions of family practice. What is even more impressive is that the 1,700 residents entering the July, 1975, classes come from a total of 2,200 applicants. Dr. Price explains that the AAFP hopes to rectify this weeding-out process in the near future, as soon as more qualified teachers, money and educational programs are available.

Having a doctor who knows the medical history of your entire family intimately is not only a help to you—it is a milestone in the modern medical ideas of genetics, family planning and improvement of the human species. In matters of matching blood types for transfusions, of comparing disease backgrounds for immunity factors and of knowing if someone's familial characteristics would make it wise or foolish to marry and have children, the family specialist's records of your family's medical information would save time, worry and even eliminate danger.

Should you want such a family specialist, write to the American Academy of Family Physicians. The AAFP's address is 1740 West 92nd Street, Kansas City, Mo. 64114.

You, too, may find it true that there's no specialist like the family one in this modern age!

QUESTIONS ABOUT FAMILY DOCTORS

Answers Provided by James Price, M.D., Former President of the American Academy of Family Physicians

Q. Do family doctors charge the same amount as other doctors?

A. There is the same variability in charges among family doctors as there is among any group of doctors. The family physician may charge more, less or the same as a specialist in another field. The organizational position is that it is the service, and not the certification of the provider, that should determine the fee.

Q. Are most family doctors youngsters out of medical school?

A. No. The average age is between 47 and 53 years.

Q. How does a family physician differ from a general practitioner?

A. Some GP's treat a person on an acute episodic basis—that is, only when the patient comes to the physician with an ailment. The family physician treats the patient on a continuing comprehensive basis. The patient is regarded as an individual and as a member of the family unit. Prevention is a vital part of this kind of care. Family physicians have, by and large, maintained their skills and knowledge through continuing education. The specialist family physician must take recertification examinations every six years to retain his specialty designation. In addition, members of the academy must take 150 hours of postgraduate education every three years to maintain membership.

We could all use less friction.

Friction? Who needs it? Friction leads to wear and tear.

STP Oil Treatment does something about friction by helping to protect your engine from it. Just add a can to the crankcase when the oil is changed, and the first time it's down.

That'll help the oil lubricate better than it would without STP. And a well lubricated motor is the best way to help reduce oil consumption, bearing wear and prolong engine life.

Try a can of STP Oil Treatment. See what driving's like when everything's running smoothly.

What in the World!

LORD SNOWDON
Royal fears

In New York recently to show his 250-picture exhibit, Princess Margaret's husband (known professionally as Anthony Armstrong-Jones) said: "Performers have stage fright; I have 'film fright.' I've been a professional photographer for 20 years, but things don't necessarily get easier because you've been doing them for a long time. For me, the terror gets worse as I get older. Only when I'm halfway through a job can I begin to relax. Lord Snowdon became interested in photography at 14, and his interest on a more serious level was revived after he flunked a university architectural course. Although he takes pride in his work, Lord Snowdon says, "It's nonsense to call photography 'art.' Photography is only a way of informing people about life. Pictures are to look at in papers and magazines, and then the newsprint should be used to wrap up fish."

LANA TURNER
Stuck on Gable

During Hollywood's "Golden Years" every woman had a crush on Clark Gable, but Lana Turner was really stuck on him. The actress who became typed as the "Sweater Girl" recalled for FAMILY WEEKLY how her film career almost ended because of a kiss: "I guess my most embarrasing moment came while I was filming a love scene with Clark. I was just a teenager and he was at the height of his career. I had this adolescent habit of chewing gum constantly, and as we were doing a kissing scene the gum I was chewing passed from my mouth into his and caught on his caps. You can't imagine the look on his face! From that point on, before the cameras started rolling, the director made sure I had removed my gum." At least she wasn't wearing braces.

How to find happiness as a clown: Peggy Williams, the first female graduate of Ringling Brothers Clown College, says: "If you love people the way I do, you couldn't find a more satisfactory career." Peggy graduated from the University of Wisconsin as a speech-pathology major and planned to go to France to study pantomime with Marcel Marceau. She gave up those plans when she heard of the clown college, and she's satisfied with her choice: "Clowning is the only profession I could think of where I'd have total freedom to express myself. I make up my own characters and costumes. Anyway, I'm a born ham!" Peggy's special skill is making people and objects vanish (illusion, of course). "It's total fantasy," she says. "Physical jokes, like falling over backward, aren't my style. Once I broke my foot just trying to do a cartwheel."

ADOL-LESSONS

If you've an adolescent in Your home, or maybe two,
I sympathize and realize
What you are going through.

No vaccine cures this awesome ill
With consequences vast.
You just must wait that distant date
When it at last has passed.

While adolescents adolesce
I hope that you have got Such strength and hope with which to cope
As I, alas, have not.

One Sunday on our way to church, we passed a very beautiful rose in a garden. My four-year-old son exclaimed, "A pretty flower." To this I answered, "That's called a rose." He answered a little angrily, "Yes, but her last name is flower."

Words and pictures don't begin to show the beauty, brilliance, and fire of these magnificent Gemfire rings. That's why we want you to wear them and judge them on their own merits – not on what we tell you. See if your friends and family can tell them from an expensive "natural" diamond worth 100 times as much. In all probability you can fool them if you want to. AN EXCITING GIFT FOR SOMEONE SPECIAL

These Gemfire rings make a much appreciated gift for a special someone in your life. They will last a lifetime. Give for birthdays, anniversaries or just as a wonderful surprise. And even if you choose to tell, your loved one will be amazed and proud that you were clever enough to find such an expensive-looking ring at these remarkably low prices. The difference between it and a natural diamond could make a down payment on a new car, or home, or even a wonderful vacation for just you two!

With Our Guarantee You Take No Risks.

If at the end of 30 days you are not completely satisfied, return by INSURED MAIL for purchase price refund. At any time, or for any reason, and in any condition, you may return your Gemfire simulated diamond by INSURED MAIL for FREE replacement.

LOW PRICE DOESN'T

Mean Low Quality. Gemfire simulated diamonds are not cheap fakes. In fact, Gemfires are carefully cut and polished by skilled craftsmen in the same manner as natural diamonds. They have 58 facets – just like natural diamonds. They are hand set in heavy 18Kt-HGE (heavy gold electroplate), or solid sterling silver by master craftsmen. They shine like a $1,000 diamond – but cost less than $20.00.

EVEN MILLIONAIRES

Wear Simulated Diamonds. Today many wealthy people, TV and movie stars feel unsafe making public appearances wearing expensive jewelry. Oftentimes they keep their diamonds in a safe deposit box and wear these master-crafted Gemfire simulated diamonds and impress your friends!
