Municipal Swim Pool Is Opened For The Summer

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"For the past 12 years every candidate for City Council has touched on the idea of a swimming pool for Greenville," Mayor pro-tem Percy Cox said at the formal opening of the Greenville Swimming Pool shortly before noon Thursday.

"Thanks to the efforts of men like the two-ex-councilmen standing over there grinning happily," Cox said, "we have a pool." The major pro-tem indicated ex-councilmen John Taylor and Bill Dansey.

"I hope," Cox added, "this pool will keep the kids out of Tar River. I also hope parents will tell kids to treat this pool as if it was in their own back yard."

In the low-key official ceremony, Cox, City Manager Harry Hagerty and Recreation Commission chairman Tom Foreman, Sr. all made brief remarks before pool director John Gillette took visitors on a tour of the pool. Rev. Richard Gammon gave the invocation.

"There's only one thing I don't see on the swimming schedule Boyd Lee has published," Foreman commented, "and that is a time for senior citizens."

"I suppose," Foreman said, "we'll have to turn sprinklers on our senior citizens or turn a port-a-pool over to them."

A check for $100 from the Junior Woman's Club was presented by Mrs. Thomas Basnight on behalf of the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville. The funds will be used to purchase a resuscitator.

The Greenville swimming pool was built at a total cost of $257,000, including pool and the building containing dressing rooms and showers for men and women.

The main pool measures 25 meters by 25 yards. The two different dimensions are so that competitions can be held in either size," Lee said. In addition, there is a diving tank with a one and a three meter board, and a baby pool.

Admission has been set at 25 cents for children under 17 years of age and 50 cents for adults.

A schedule of hours for public swimming and for special events appears in today's paper.

Nixon Testifies Before 2 Grand Jury Members

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President Richard M. Nixon testified under oath in California before two members of the Watergate grand jury earlier this week, court papers disclosed today.

The fact that he testified was made public at Nixon's own request.

The questioning took place Monday and Tuesday at the U.S. Coast Guard station in San Clemente, Calif., next door to Nixon's home. The questioning lasted for 11 hours over the two days.

The former President was not under subpoena. His lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, said in a statement that the testimony "was voluntary and responsive to the expressed desires of the office of the special prosecutor."

The Watergate special prosecutor's office declined to identify the jurors who traveled to San Clemente for the testimony or the lawyers who conducted the questioning.

The grand jury, whose 18 month term expires July 7, is believed to be investigating deletions in the tape transcripts issued by the Nixon White House in April last year; the financial affairs of c. g. "bebe" Rebozo, Nixon's close friend, and campaign contributions.

Miller and special Watergate prosecutor Henry S. Ruth filed a stipulation with U.S. District Court making the fact of Nixon's testimony public. The testimony itself will not be released.

The grand jury is the last of three looking into Watergate matters.

The first grand jury, investigating the break-in and cover-up, voted to name Nixon an indicted co-conspirator. The evidence it gathered was given to the House Judiciary Committee, which eventually voted to recommend impeachment of the President.

Soon after, Nixon resigned.

In September last year, one month after he became President, Gerald Ford pardoned Nixon of any offenses he may have committed in his five years in office.

BY END OF JULY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman Frank Church says his Senate intelligence committee hopes to make public by the end of July the evidence of Central Intelligence Agency assassination plots, but he personally opposes open, televised hearings on those allegations.

Assembly Adjourns; Will Return May 3

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—When House and Senate gavels banged Thursday night, the 1975 session of the North Carolina General Assembly closed, but lawmakers will be back in Raleigh May 3.

The 1976 meeting is expected to be short—about a month—and concerned primarily with revisions in the two-year budget. Legislative leaders say they hope the state's revenue picture will improve enough to give teachers and state employees a pay raise effective July 1, 1976.

The 1975 session lasted five months and 11 days. Considerable criticism was aimed at the legislature because it rejected a number of consumer-oriented bills but approved bills critics say were favorable to business and industry.

Overall, though, House Speaker James Green said he believes the session was good. He said lawmakers were responsibly to public needs and carefully considered important issues.

Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt expressed a similar view. He praised the Senate for passing nearly all the Democratic program adopted in the session's early days.

Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, said "The 1975 legislature will not go down as a spectacular legislature." He said the economy was the problem, "not an unwillingness to embark on new and innovative programs."

Stewart is the leading contender for House speaker in the 1977 session.

Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, said the session was for businessmen, and special interest legislation "reveals an irresponsible and inexcusable record."

Wilbur Hobby, president of the state AFL-CIO, said the legislature "failed to respond to the needs of the vast majority of the people of this state" and it "buckled under to the banks, the insurance companies and the corporate interests."

A number of groups had put repeal of the sales tax on food as a top legislative priority this session. Several attempts to end the tax failed.

A landlord-tenant bill was killed in the House because some of the representatives expressed concern for landlords, many of whom opposed the bill.

Tenant groups had criticized the measure as being too weak, but they supported it anyway as did the North Carolina Association of Realtors.

After an attempt to repeal it failed, the legislature partially closed a tax loophole that favored the wealthy. All dividend income from North Carolina corporations had been exempt from the state income tax, but the legislature passed a law applying the tax to such incomes above $15,000.

Here is a summary of major legislation during the session:

—The right turn on red law was restored.

—A one week waiting period to draw unemployment compensation was repealed in a period when unemployment was reaching record highs.

—The effort to ratify the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution failed by three votes in the House.

—The 8 per cent ceiling on interest allowed for home mortgages was removed for another two years following a one year trial.

—Small loan companies were allowed to raise the interest on loans of $300 or less to 36 per cent. It had been 30 per cent.

—A bill to cut service charges on credit cards by requiring a different method of computing interest was killed.

State Visit

WASHINGTON (AP)—Britain's Queen Elizabeth II and her husband the Duke of Edinburgh have accepted an invitation from President Ford to pay a state visit to the United States during the 1976 bicentennial year.

Announcing this today, the office of White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the Queen and the duke would be in the United States from July 7 to July 11, 1976.

The statement from Nessen's office said: "The President has invited her majesty Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh to pay a state visit to the United States from July 7-11, 1976, during the bicentennial year, and the invitation has been accepted with pleasure."

It had long been expected that the queen would visit the former British colony at some point during the United States' 200th birthday celebration.

Arrest 2 As Soviet Spies

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—FBI agents today arrested two men on charges of spying for the Soviet Union.

The FBI identified the two as Sarkis O. Paskalian, 36, who has been living in New York, and Sahag K. Dedeayan, 41, of Rockville, Md., a mathematician formerly employed by organizations doing secret defense work.

Both men are natives of Lebanon. Paskalian, who came to the United States in 1968, is a resident alien. Dedeayan is a naturalized citizen who held a top secret clearance.

Paskalian was charged with conspiracy to gather classified national defense information to aid a foreign country. The charge carries a maximum penalty of death.

Dedeayan was charged with failing to report the illegal photographing of national defense information, a charge carrying a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Dedeayan worked for Operations Research Inc. of Silver Spring, Md., and was an associate mathematician at the Applied Physics Laboratory of Johns Hopkins University at Silver Spring from 1966 until September 1973.

During that period, according to the FBI, Paskalian contacted Dedeayan, a distant relative.

While employed at Johns Hopkins, Dedeayan had prepared a secret study entitled "Vulnerability Analysis: U.S. Reinforcement of NATO."

The FBI alleged that Paskalian photographed the study in March 1973 at Dedeayan's Rockville home. The FBI said the camera used by Paskalian was provided by Edward B. Charchyan, an official of the Soviet Mission to the United Nations.

The FBI said Paskalian received $1,500 from his Soviet contacts in May, 1974, and gave Dedeayan $1,000 "as a token of our appreciation."

The complaints filed against Paskalian and Dedeayan said that Paskalian was recruited as a spy in 1962 while he was in Soviet Armenia. He was sent to the United States in the summer of 1971 with instructions to meet with Petros Petrosyan, an alleged Soviet intelligence agent, in Queens, New York.

Petrosyan then instructed Paskalian to contact Dedeayan and develop a close relationship with him.

Extra $17 Million Is Voted 'Pet Projects'

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina General Assembly found another $17 million to finance some legislators' pet projects before it adjourned its 1975 session Thursday night.

On their last day, the legislators enacted more than 80 special appropriations measures. State Budget Officer Ken Howard said the measures exhausted state revenues in sight for the 1975-77 biennium.

The special spending measures ranged from $500,000 for preliminary work on a veterinary school at North Carolina University to $10,000 to help finance the Carolina Cloggers of Canton in a trip this summer to the International Folk Dance Festival in England.

Other special appropriations measures included $1,500 for the burial of dead migrant workers to $30,000 assistance to the Snow Camp

Drama and $25,000 to the Parkway Playhouse. A host of special appropriations were approved for the restoration of historic sites.

Other special appropriations included: $1.8 million to boost payments for persons in homes for the aged from $8.66 to $9.66 per day; $1.2 million to increase payments for care of patients in nursing homes from $25 to $28 per day; $3.6 million additional to finance expansion of the court system; $2.4 million to help finance costs of telephones, heating and janitorial supplies in the public schools; $325,000 as a grant-in-aid to the Asheville Orthopedic and Rehabilitation Center; $585,000 in 1976-77 to increase the minimum salary of policemen from $6,000 to $6,500 a year; $911,657 in 1976-77 for public school librarians; $270,000 more for renovation of the governor's mansion; and $225,000 in 1976-77 to help finance Raleigh's downtown mall.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

REFUND AND REPLACEMENT

Last July I sent for two books for children with personalized things in them. In other words, the recipient child's name was supposed to be worked into the story. I sent money orders for one for my child and one for a friend for use as Christmas gifts. Neither has arrived. The company was American Consumer, but I no longer have the address. I saw the ad in your Family Weekly supplement. Mrs. R.C.

Hotline found the advertisement to which you responded and wrote to the company on your behalf. We got no response either, so we asked Lynn Headley of Family Weekly to contact them. Then you heard from them, asking that you reorder. This you did. You didn't get your books by Christmas, but you say you received a refund in March and some time later replacement books free of charge.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

ANYONE QUALIFIED

In a Hotline item published Monday, a reader said she is not eligible to obtain physical examinations needed for her children to enter public school and a day care center at the Health Department. The Pitt County Health Department has asked that we point out that there are no eligibility requirements for receiving school or day care physicals at the Health Department. "We supplement the services provided by private physicians," a spokesman for the Department said. These examinations are done by a consulting pediatrician or nurse practitioner. Parents may call 752-4141 for an appointment."

Public safety organizations—rescue squads, law enforcement agencies and fire departments—as well as hospitals in Pitt and Martin Counties, were reassured yesterday they have the capability to handle a major disaster with a minimum of problems, although improvements can be made.

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department received a call at 2:17 p.m. saying a train and school activity bus had collided at Whichard's Station, near Stokes, and between 60 and 70 passengers were injured. Of course, they were also told that the disaster was a drill.

The Sheriff's department, in turn, notified the Greenville Rescue Squad at 2:19 p.m. Other agencies, such as the North Carolina Highway Patrol, fire departments at Stokes and Staton House, and all other rescue squads in Pitt, as well as Pitt Memorial Hospital and hospitals in Robersonville and Williamston and rescue squads in Martin County were also notified.

And assistance from the Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic (MAST) office at Fort Bragg was requested. MAST—upon request—provides

Does Ring Prove He Popped Question?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Please give us your opinion of this very important family matter.

My mother-in-law passed away, and about two hours after the funeral services, her youngest son went to play golf. (He is 50-years-old.)

My husband, an older brother, said he was so hurt that his brother showed so little respect for his mother's memory that he will never forgive him.

What do you think?

CALIFORNIAN

DEAR CALIFORNIAN: How much respect the younger brother showed his mother while she was alive is more important than how long after her funeral he waited to play golf. Everyone handles his grief in his own way.

DEAR ABBY: About four months ago, my boyfriend asked me to marry him. He is in the service and is stationed in another state.

I have not seen him since he popped the question, so I haven't received an engagement ring yet, although we did set a date for our wedding.

A friend of mine says that a girl is not really engaged unless she has a ring. She has never had a boyfriend and seldom gets asked out, so maybe she said that out of jealousy.

Still, I would like to know for sure. Does a girl have to have a ring in order to be officially engaged?

ALMOST MARRIED

DEAR ALMOST: A girl doesn't need a ring to be officially engaged. Although you haven't seen him for four months, I presume that you are in touch with one another. Has he questioned the pop since he popped the question?

DEAR ABBY: Let me say first that I am the mother of three and happily married, and have not the slightest desire to attract any man other than my husband.

I always wear pantsuits to work because I think they are more modest than dresses. I would stop wearing makeup and shave my head if it insured keeping my male co-worker's minds off my femininity and on my ability to do my job.

In other words, I do not want to be viewed as a sex object. My friends and I have adopted a poem as our slogan. It was written by a 12-year-old girl:

"Please don't walk in front of me.
I may not want to follow.
Don't walk behind me.
I may not want to lead.
Please, walk beside me and be my friend."
Any man who demands that a woman display her body for him to ogle, and that she be young and have a good figure or suffer his scorn, can never be a friend.

Church Building Plans

A NEW SANCTUARY . . . is planned for Arlington Street Baptist Church.

Arlington Street Baptist Church has launched a bond sales campaign to finance a new church sanctuary.

According to the Rev. Frank Ellis Jr., pastor, sale of the $100,000 worth of bond will be open to investors outside the membership beginning Monday. The bonds will pay from eight to eight-and-a-half per cent per year compounded semi-annually. Investors will have the option of purchasing bonds in the amounts of $1,000, $500, $250, or multiples of these accounts, with maturity at six-month intervals from one to 14 and one-half years. Earned interest will be paid upon maturity of the bond. Information may be obtained by calling the church office, 756-2122, between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Assembly Adjourns...

—The allowed premium on credit life insurance was cut 20 per cent but that action stopped the insurance commissioner's effort to cut it nearly 50 per cent.

—The fair trade act, that allowed manufacturers to set retail prices was repealed. Lower prices on some items was predicted by supporters of repeal.

—Utilities can no longer use projected costs when asking for a rate increase.

—Below cost sale of fresh milk was approved if a store must drop prices to meet competition from a store that has a lower wholesale price.

—Consumers lost their 5-2 majority on the Milk Commission when the panel was enlarged to 10 members with the additional three seats going to industry representatives.

—A bill to require open dating on food was killed as was a bill to require pharmacists to reveal prescription drug prices.

—Also killed was a measure that would allow consumers to sue manufacturers because a product is faulty.

—A bill to set up regulations to be followed by a utility before cutting off service for non-payment was killed.

—The Utilities Commission was expanded to seven members and allowed to sit in panels of three on rate cases to help clear a backlog of pending requests for higher rates. It was a five-member commission.

New law requires Utilities Commission approval before power companies can pass along higher fuel costs to customers. Previously, the utilities were allowed to pass along the costs automatically.

—No fault auto insurance hit a dead end.

—Age and sex were abolished as factors in setting auto insurance rates. Beginning this fall, only a driver's record and use of the car may be considered.

—Some workers were given a tax break. Persons who must pay for dependent care in order to work will be able to deduct the cost of that care from their income tax with a limit of $400 a month.

—Several efforts to reduce or abolish the inventory tax on business and industry were halted by the Senate. That tax break would have cut revenues of local government.

—The presidential preference primary was moved to the third Tuesday in March and candidates must ask to be on the ballot.

—Primary elections for state and local candidates will be the third Tuesday in August. Previously, the primaries were all in May.

—Political parties will get some financial help. Taxpayers will be allowed to donate $1 of their tax payment to the party of their choice. That won't increase a person's tax bill.

—More than 26 miles of the New River were brought into the state's scenic river program and efforts are under way to get the river into the national scenic river program.

Revival Series Begins Monday

The Rev. Tyrone Turnage of Greenville will conduct revival services Monday through Friday at Rouse Chapel Church near Maury.

Prayer services will be held each night at 7:30 p.m. and the evening service will begin at 8 p.m.

The Rev. Robert Gorham is pastor.

Meetings Set June 27-29

The Eighth Annual Session of the Joint Union of the U.A.F.W. Baptist Northeast Conference "B" Division, will be held at Mt. Calvary Church June 27-29 at 7:30 p.m.

The church is located on the corner of Hudson and Ward Streets in Greenville. Dr. W. L. Jones is Pastor.

FROM LAW COMES FREEDOM

When God gave Moses the Ten Commandments they were largely NEGATIVE. "Thou shall NOT..." We should appreciate God's feeling for us!

For if you were privileged to rewrite the Commandments would you choose to make them POSITIVE? "You MUST..." Totalitarianism is just the grammed puppetry. God would have nothing of it!

Truly, every "thou shall not" inspires earnest believers to find their own rightful expressions of conviction and commitment. Our secular Law with its protections of our moral freedom. It simply guides it into more constructive channels, more fruitful aims.

Never does the Law say "Thou shall go to Church every Sunday." It does say "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy". REMEMBERING OUR SPIRITUAL NEEDS IS THE ESSENCE OF FREEDOM!

Miss Catherine Barnes Is Wed On Sunday

GRIFTON—Miss Catherine Lynn Barnes became the bride of Michael Skinner in a double ring ceremony Sunday at 3:00 p.m. in the Grifton United Methodist Church.

The Rev. James E. Sponenberg performed the ceremony.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Troy Jackson, organist, and William Wier, soloist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. William Kenneth Barnes and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Earl Skinner of Winterville.

Mrs. Catherine Whaley directed the wedding and Franklin McLawhorn was acolyte.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white organza and Venise lace. The fitted bodice featured a V-neckline edged in Venise lace and the double shoulder collar was edged in lace. The bodice and skirt featured appliques of the lace and seed pearls. The sweeping skirt with deep ruffle flowed into a brush train.

Her three tiered veil of silk illusion was attached to a Venise lace bandeau with re-embroidered tiny seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of rosebuds and baby's breath.

Miss Cheryl Barnes, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of floral striped sheer of deep pink, green and soft pink designed with an empire waistline, square neckline, short puffed sleeves and full skirt. She wore a large pink picture hat and carried a bouquet of painted daisies tied with matching satin streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Kelly Reeves, Miss Donna Jackson, Miss Cindy Jones and Mrs. Gayle Stroud. Their gowns were styled similar to that of the honor attendant and they carried similar bouquets.

Bill Crossertier of Austin, Tex., was best man. Ushers were Dale McLawhorn, Steve McLawhorn, Neil Stroud and Mike Wainwright.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of Nile green and an orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink floral formal length gown and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Charles Jones, and Mrs. Arthur W. Barnes, grandmothers of the bride, and Mrs. Frank Skinner, grandmother of the bridegroom, were remembered with orchid corsages.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School and will attend East Carolina University in the fall. The bridegroom is a graduate of Ayden High School and is engaged in farming.

After a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, the couple will reside on Rt. 1, Winterville.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church, given by the bride's parents.

Arrangements of mixed summer flowers were used. The refreshment table was covered with a deep pink cloth overlaid with a Quaker lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink and rose flowers.

Mrs. Roy L. Jackson served cake and Mrs. J. C. Jones, aunt of the bride, poured punch.

The bridegroom's parents entertained at an after rehearsal pig picking Saturday night at their home.

Mr. and Mrs. R.B. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. John Ray Edmundson, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Talton, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Smith entertained the wedding party at a wedding breakfast Sunday at the Ayden Golf and Country Club.

Stewed Tomatoes Made From Homegrown Vegetables

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
DEAR CECILY: We enjoy your recipes in our paper and intend to try your Copy Cat Tomato Relish. In the meantime could you tell me the proportions for making our favorite stewed tomatoes from our own homegrown vegetables? I am enclosing the label from the brand of stewed tomatoes we always use. — HOME CANNER.

can be slipped off easily about 1 minute. Remove skins and cut away stem ends. Cut in thick uniform pieces — halves, quarters or slices, depending on size of tomatoes. Into a 5-quart saucepot turn the tomatoes and remaining ingredients; stir to mix; cook over moderate heat, stirring several times, until mixture boils; boil gently about 3 minutes. Leaving 1/2-inch headspace and preferably using a wide-mouth funnel, ladle tomatoes into hot, clean, scalded wide-mouth pint jars. Wipe top edge of jars with a damp towel. Add lids and seal according to jar manufacturer's directions. Process in a boiling water bath for 10 minutes after boiling temperature is reached. Remove and cool on a wire rack or folded towel. Label, noting date, and store in a dark cool place. Makes about 4 pints.

HOME CANNED STEWED TOMATOES—Tomatoes, onion, celery and green pepper are used plus tomato juice made with the aid of a food mill—a pureeing utensil.

DEAR HOME CANNER: After your letter came we bought half a dozen brands of stewed tomatoes, including the one you use. On tasting them, observing their color and texture and measuring the amount of juice to vegetables, we evolved the following recipe.

Our stewed tomatoes are much less sweet than the commercially canned ones because we kept the sugar added low and our tomatoes probably weren't as sweet as those used by commercial canners. The color of our stewed tomatoes corresponded to the color of the fresh tomatoes we used and the pieces stayed whole because they were thickly and uniformly cut as are those of commercial canners; in using home-grown tomatoes, it's a good idea to choose odd sizes for the tomato juice needed and reserve those of uniform size for the tomato pieces. The juice in the commercial can, when the vegetables were lightly drained, ran from about 1/2 to 2/3rds cup and we tried to maintain this ratio. I hope you approve our efforts. — C.B.

TOMATO JUICE
For each pint of tomato juice wanted, use about 3 pounds firm, juicy, ripe tomatoes. Rinse tomatoes; quarter and cut away stem ends. In a large saucepot over low heat simmer tomatoes, stirring occasionally, just until soft; do not add water because tomatoes should cook in their own juice. Strain tomatoes through a food mill, a pureeing utensil. (To remove any seeds, you may pour through a mesh strainer.) For a thicker juice, simmer uncovered about 10 minutes to evaporate some of the liquid. If desired, add salt to taste — about 1/2 teaspoon for each pint.

Wills-Crawford Vows Said

AUBURNDALE, Fla.—Miss Elizabeth Crawford, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Crawford of Auburndale, and Richard George Wills, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Wills of St. Petersburg, were united in marriage Saturday, June 14, at 2 p.m. in the First F.W.B. Church here.

The Rev. Robert Owen officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Roger Fox of Clarksville, Tenn., and Glenn Kelly.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of sata peau, fashioned with a high Venise daisy bordered neckline and bishop sleeves. Venise lace appliques adorned the bodice, the flowing skirt and chapel train. Her bouffant veil of illusion was held in place by a Venise lace daisy covered cap and she carried a crescent bouquet of yellow roses and white daisies.

Miss Janice Hardin of Clarksville, Tenn., was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Jerry Gibbs of Nashville, Tenn., and Mrs. Barbara Flynn of Barrington, Ill., sister of the bridegroom. Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Jan Willis and Miss Melinda Wills of Mt. Vernon, Ill., and Miss Kara Flynn of Barrington, Ill.

Daniel Magnuson was best man. Groomsman were John S. Willis, brother of the bridegroom, of Mt. Vernon, Ill., and James Flynn, Barrington, Ill.

The bride is both a student and employee of Austin Peay State University. The bridegroom is in the United States Army and is currently stationed at Fort Campbell, Ky.

After a wedding trip in Florida, the couple will reside in Clarksville, Tenn.

Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the church annex.

A pre-rehearsal dinner was held Friday, June 13 by Mr. and Mrs. John H. Wills.

LIGHTER LOADS

CHICAGO (UPI) — Attic fans with thermostats can lighten air-conditioning loads substantially and make rooms more comfortable, says Arnold W. Rodin, of the Home Ventilating Institute here.

Rodin said the cubic feet per minute ratings of an attic fan should be matched for maximum efficiency to standard ventilation rates for each individual house. He added that powered attic-space ventilators are labeled to show whether their ratings are for HVI-rated CFM or free-air cubic feet per minute.

Rodin said nonstandard fans with free-air ratings have not been tested adequately and may be less efficient in both cooling and power usage.

COSTLY DIETS

Record Of Outstanding Effort

The General Assembly has finally approved a budget for the 1975-77 biennium and, while it is easy to point to budgetary shortcomings, it must be remembered that this was a particularly difficult year from a revenue standpoint.

From our view the legislators can't be praised enough for their inclusion of funds in the budget for operation and construction of a four-year medical school at East Carolina University.

There is $32 million in the budget for the medical school. Coupled with the $15 million on hand this should be adequate to get the school underway.

The med school project was never too popular with some factions in our state and an all-out campaign was launched this year to force the legislators to drop the funding or put it to a bond issue vote.

Members of the General Assembly stood their ground, however, and we have no doubt that in the future their action will be viewed as one of the milestones in improved health care for North Carolina.

The General Assembly also saw to it that expansion of the statewide kindergarten program will be continued with a $30 million appropriation. State aid to private college students was doubled from $200 to $400 annually. There is $13.6 million in the budget to provide for increased community college enrollment. Some $18 million is included for special education of exceptional children, along with $2.8 million for improving teaching of reading.

There is $3.8 million for state parks development, $6 million for prison construction and $10.2 million to increase caseload in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

Thus there is much that is forward looking in this budget considering it was the kind of year it was economically.

We regret that there wasn't more money for prison construction and we certainly would want to see the universities, schools and community colleges receive more for their obvious needs.

Most of all, we regret that there wasn't money available for salary increases for teachers and state employees. We have faith in North Carolina's economy and we strongly hope that there will be salary improvement when the General Assembly meets again for a short session next year.

An important development in this money-short year was the General Assembly's decision to dig into on-going programs to see what could be cut from existing expenditures. We hope this procedure will be continued in the future, even when more adequate funds are available.

All-in-all we consider this an outstanding budget effort by the General Assembly. The budget makers didn't panic in the face of short revenues and they came up with a budget that looks to a bright future for our state.

We've Lost A Godfather

WASHINGTON—Sam Giancana, a reputed Chicago crime syndicate leader, died quietly in his sleep last week, after being shot one time in the mouth and five times in the neck. While Giancana was better known for his contributions to the rackets, he was first and foremost an American patriot who served his country in its darkest hour. CIA officials were stunned when they heard the news. At the Cloak and Dagger Bar & Grill in McLean Va., Sam's friends sat quietly talking about him.

"Sam was one of us," an agency man said tearfully. "It's as though we've lost a Godfather."

Another CIA man was so broken up he could hardly speak. "I remember recruiting Sam in 1960. He was just a fresh young kid out of the Mafia, and when I asked him if he wanted to work for us his eyes lit up. He said 'It's like a dream come true.'"

"Why did you ask Sam to work for you?" I asked the CIA man. "Well, Sam had a lot of casinos in Havana and Castro took them away from him. So when we decided to knock off Castro we wanted to give the job to someone who felt strongly about anti-communism. I recall saying to him, 'If you kill Castro we'll see that you get your casinos back.' And you know what he said? He said 'I don't care if I get the casinos back or not. I just want to help my country.'"

"That was just like Sam," another CIA man said as he wiped his eye with a handkerchief. "So Sam agreed to work for you?" I asked. The CIA man wept for several minutes and then got control of himself. "Of course he did. He never thought of the danger; he never thought of the expense. He knew as a Mafioso it was his duty to assassinate anyone his country asked him to."

A third CIA man picked up the story. "The funny thing about Sam was that to look at him you would never think he was CIA material. He was short and bald and liked to be seen with pretty girls. As a matter of fact, when we proposed Giancana for the contract there were several people in the agency who had doubts that he was the man for the job. But when we showed them Sam's hit record they were impressed. "The thing about Sam," the first CIA man said, "is no matter what we asked of him, he never demanded anything in return. Oh, once in a while he'd ask us to have the Justice Department drop a federal indictment against him; or he might ask us to tell the FBI to lay off him. But outside of that he considered it an honor to serve his country."

Refusal Cools Hopes

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy appears to have dampened the lingering hopes among some of his supporters that he would ultimately be willing to accept the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination.

Kennedy did so by spelling out more precisely than ever before his refusal to accept a 1976 presidential draft, even if it were the only way to prevent the Democrats from nominating Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

His statement, in response to a question during a nationally televised interview Wednesday night with CBS Wednesday Walter Cronkite, comes after repeated speculation whether there were circumstances under which he might get back into the race.

Such speculation has continued despite Kennedy's statement last Sept. 23 that his decision against a 1976 race is "firm, final and unconditonal" and that "there is absolutely no circumstance or event that will alter the decision. I will not accept the nomination. I will not accept a draft."

And that speculation has been renewed in recent weeks because of heightened concern among many Democratic leaders that none of the party's present or prospective candidates is strong enough to beat the Alabama governor in many of the 30 presidential primaries now scheduled next year.

Kronkite's question about a Kennedy candidacy included a scenario in which no candidate had a clear lead. Wallace held one-third of the delegates and some of the other candidates were "willing to make arrangements with Gov. Wallace and

40 Years Ago Today

June 27, 1935

With lighting facilities in place, the new municipal park overlooking the swimming pools on Fifth Street was ready today to receive the citizenship both day and night.

Although the park was thrown open to the public several days ago, the Water and Light Commission, which is in charge of handling the lighting of the recreational center, was unable to complete work until yesterday, and the park was lighted for the first time last night.

Light poles have been erected at strategic points to enable the public to engage in all kinds of recreation, even reading newspapers if desired.

The park is located on a section of land loaned to the city by East Carolina Teachers College. A fence has been erected between the college campus and the park to prevent holiday crowds from interfering with activities at the college.

Around two score persons who have been evading the purchase of city automobile license plates have been ordered to appear in mayor's court Saturday morning to explain why they refused to purchase the tags after being notified by the city clerk.

Taking A New Direction

By BILL NOBLITT RALEIGH—The coming year will see North Carolina's system for handling juvenile training problems taking a new turn.

If the new direction works, it could become a model for the nation as some revolutionary steps are now in the offing; if the approach is botched, however, it could set the reform movement back many years.

The General Assembly has endorsed a number of steps—some of them deliberately designed and debated to accomplish the revolutionizing of the juvenile system; some adopted by legislators prompted by political motivations, but nonetheless working in the same direction.

Even though some of the measures were passed by assemblymen ignorant of the true impact, the end result is the same: a package of isolated and separate moves which add up to one certainty. A complete reversal of past directions, and a clean slate for the start on a new pattern of handling juvenile offenders.

Several Steps Here, in a nutshell, are the various elements of this new program:

—Juvenile training system is no longer operated by the Corrections Department, but by the Department of Human Resources which likely will approach diagnosis and treatment from a different direction, and has psychiatric and social resources to do so.

—So-called status offenders (juveniles committed not for a crime, but for school truancy, parental discipline) must not be sent to a training school effective July 1, 1977.

—Judges sentencing youthful offenders for crimes will be directed to send the convicted juveniles to the Department of Human Resources, which will determine placement. Sentences will not be to a training school.

—All juvenile offenders will be given indeterminate sentences rather than specific terms to be served; thus, they can be held until helped, and released as soon as aided.

—Group homes based in local communities will be the approved method of holding and treating juveniles, as opposed to the training school institutions.

Experts predict that in the first year under this new procedure, the current training school population of some 1,000 youngsters will be chopped in half, and that eventually only a single facility for hard-core problems will be necessary.

Several Actions

The various measures outlined originated from several different sources, and were handled in the assembly in various manners. Key roles were played by the Commission on Sentencing, Criminal Punishment and Rehabilitation chaired by former State Senator Eddie Knox of Charlotte, and a Commission on Children with Special Needs chaired either by State Senator Lamar Gudger, Buncombe, or State Rep. T. Clyde Auman, D-Moore.

Politics played a key role in at least one of the major steps — transfer of the Youth Development system from Corrections to Human Resources.

One measure which was screened by events to the degree that few realized what was happening is the system for community-based treatment of juvenile offenders. One measure moved through the assembly encouraging group homes and relieving local restrictions to them for those facilities operated by the Department of Human Resources. Few realized that this would cover juvenile treatment facilities—when transferred to Human Resources.

The state's district court judges also opposed one of the steps: elimination of status offenders from training school, on the basis that without such an alternative, the judges had no clout in dealing with juvenile offenders. An outright proposal to that end was defeated; one contained in a package of steps passed.

There are signs that judges think they were deceived, and may try to repeal the measure in a future session, but those charged with putting the system into effect hope to move rapidly to remove the status offenders from the schools, establish alternative programs, and prove to the judges in the first year that the new system will work.

As one source puts it: "When the 1977 General Assembly opens, we should have the training school population reduced, group homes operating alternative treatment methods set up in local communities, and the new system underway to prove its worth. "If we botch it, though, the whole approach will be in trouble."

POLITICAL NOTES

Jim Hunt Took Shellacking

By JOHN KILGO Of all the people who took heavy wounds out of this session of the North Carolina General Assembly, Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt probably took the toughest shellacking.

Hunt went into the session with more at stake than any person there. He was considered the leader among those dozen or so people who were thinking of running for Governor next year in the Democratic primary. The difference was that others were thinking about it; Hunt had already made the decision to be a candidate.

This session of the General Assembly has been one controversy after another. Hunt, as leader of the Senate, found himself in an impossible position. Take, for instance, the political ramifications involved in the battle over whether a medical school should be established at East Carolina University.

Hunt comes from Wilson. He went along with those who favored the ECU med school. It has prompted newspapers like the Charlotte Observer, the biggest in the state, to editorially call for people to bombard Hunt with mail, objecting to his role in the ECU affair.

A good question at this point is whether the office of lieutenant governor is a good launching place for a man who would like to be Governor. Former Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor found it to be a liability rather than an asset in 1972, when he was defeated by Skipper Bowles. Bowles tied Taylor to the administration of Gov. Bob Scott, at least in the mind of the public, at a time when the public was looking for a new start.

"What the people don't understand," Taylor told me, "is that the Governor and lieutenant governor are totally independent of each other. But the public looks at it sort of the way they look at the President and Vice-President. It's not the way the system operates in North Carolina, but 98 per cent of the people believe otherwise."

What does Taylor think about holding the office of lieutenant governor before running for Governor? "Well," Taylor says, "I don't think the lieutenant governor's office is a springboard to the Governor's office. The lieutenant governor has no real authority."

Hunt probably has an advantage over the situation Taylor faced in 1972, in that Hunt and Gov. Jim Holshouser are of different political parties. Hunt will have to share none of the blame the voters want to place on the Holshouser administration. Taylor was linked with former Gov. Scott, whether it was factual or just something that was drummed up and fed to the voters.

On the other hand, Hunt faces disadvantages that Taylor didn't experience. While presiding over the Senate, Taylor got along very well with House Speakers Earl Vaughn and Phil Godwin. There was very little friction about how the General Assembly be run.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor: I have become concerned over the way the Flag of the United States has been displayed in our community and think it timely to give the public a few rules by which we are supposed to govern our use of our national flag. If you will be so kind as to print these rules in your paper, I will be grateful:

1. The Flag of the U.S.A. should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset or between such hours as may be designated by proper authorities.
2. The American Flag should never be displayed with the union down except as a signal of distress.
3. A federal law provided that a trademark cannot be registered which consists of, or comprises among other things, "the Flag, coat of arms, or other insignias of the United States."
4. The Flag should not become soiled, touch the ground, nor brush against objects.
5. When carried, the Flag should always be aloft and free.
6. Never use the Flag as drapery of any sort whatsoever.
7. No other flag may be flown above the Stars and Stripes except the United Nations flag at the U.N. Headquarters; the Church pennant, a dark blue cross on a white background during church services conducted by Naval chaplains at sea.
8. When a number of flags of states or cities are displayed with our national flag, the latter should be at the center or the highest point of the group.

Banking Regulators Secretive

By LEE MITGANG AP Business Writer NEW YORK (AP) —

Despite mounting concern over the liquidity and lending practices of the nation's banks, federal banking regulators maintain a tight lid on what information is disclosed to the public.

So immune to disclosure are some documents that even state and federal judges and other regulatory authorities usually are powerless to subpoena them. In the case of the 4,700 nationally chartered banks whose operations are regulated chiefly by the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency, highly detailed data gathered on each bank's books and records, loan portfolios and quality of management, among other items, are rigidly protected from public scrutiny by the National Bank Act.

The information, gathered at each bank in periodic surprise examinations at least three times every two years by the government's 2,000 bank examiners, is also specifically exempt from the federal Freedom of Information Act, which permits public access to a wide range of government documents.

"If that were not the case," explains a spokesman for the comptroller, "anyone who chose to could find out who's taking out loans, for what purpose, for what collateral. It would be a gross invasion of privacy."

Other banking officials add that disclosure of this information might dangerously undermine public confidence in the banking system.

Also unavailable are so-called Past-Due Loan Reports which the comptroller began to collect bimonthly last October from nationally chartered banks, around the time when Franklin National Bank and Security National Bank of New York went insolvent and concern began to mount over the health of banks' loan portfolios.

And now that the public has grown more aware of the banking practice called redlining—when banks refuse to grant mortgages or other loans in disadvantaged communities—there is some question whether national banking authorities will voluntarily make full public disclosure on what they're finding out about this practice.

Deputy Comptroller for Banking and Economic Research David C. Motter says the comptroller's office and three other federal banking agencies have conducted a pilot study on the criteria used by banks in 18 metropolitan areas in determining who gets mortgage loans.

The final results still are being evaluated and "no decision has been reached to make such information public," says Motter, because the study was limited only to 18 communities and he says public release might appear inequitable.

Some routine information kept by the comptroller's office is freely available to the public, but not much beyond what a bank "willing to cooperate" would give out voluntarily, Motter says.

These include a four times a year Statement of Conditions showing lump sum assets and liabilities in broad categories; a once a year Statement of Income which contains broad income and dividend information; the ordinary annual stockholder reports required of banks with at least 500 shareholders, and information about stock dealings conducted by bank trust departments.

Strength For Today

REAL LOVE FOR HUMANITY

Genuine love for humanity is a rare quality. It cannot be measured by the amount people give to charity or the interest they take in uplift movements. For many people giving to charity is a pleasant indulgence which brings a feeling of self-importance and superiority. We have all seen that type of person who becomes involved in good causes primarily to express his own ego and satisfy a need to dominate other people.

Count Leo Tolstoy, the great Russian novelist, once wrote that "the rich are willing to do everything for the poor except get off their backs". Christian charity means first of all giving one's self. The Christian has been commanded not just to love his neighbor to the point of giving, but to the point of identifying his neighbor's interest with his own. This is what is meant by that phrase which is so often repeated—that we are to love our neighbors as ourselves. Our efforts should be to make our help effective, and not ensure a pleasant feedback for ourselves.

Mental Hospitals No Longer Just For Confinement

Death Penalty For 4 Upheld

RALEIGH (AP)—Death sentences of four men were upheld by the North Carolina Supreme Court Thursday as it granted a new trial to another and remanded a fourth case for a life imprisonment sentence.

Special Use Permits Let

Two requests for special use permits were granted by the Greenville Board of Adjustments following public hearings Thursday night.

The board approved a request by New Directions for a variance from the City Code in order to operate a group home for juveniles at 719 Hooker Road.

The Hooker Road property is currently zoned for R-6 (residential) usage.

Also approved was a request by Harold D. Taunton for a special use permit in order to operate a musical instrument repair shop at 1503 Hooker Road.

No citizen opposition was voiced concerning either of the requests for special use permits.

In a routine agenda item, the board adopted the annual report.

Buchwald...

The second CIA man said, "Sam had a great imagination. He didn't want to shoot Castro. He wanted to poison him. He and Johnny Roselli had it all worked out to put poison in Castro's cigars."

"What went wrong?" I asked.

"Well, we were worried that Castro might offer the cigars to somebody else, like Jane Fonda or Muhammad Ali, so we didn't want to take a chance."

"Then there was talk of poisoning Castro's food. Finally, it was decided it would be better to just bump him off."

"But Sam failed to do it," I pointed out.

"It wasn't his fault," one of the CIA men said defensively. "Sam never got the support from the top. Every time he came up with a plan they rejected it for one reason or another. It was heart-breaking to watch Sam come back from a meeting with the big boys and see the frustration and discouragement on his face. Several times he talked about quitting the CIA and going back to the rackets full time. But I always talked him out of it. I said 'Sam, it's guys like you that are going to keep Latin America from going Communist.'"

"And now he's gone," said another CIA man. "What irony. A gangster like Castro still lives and a good guy like Sam Giancana is dead."

The other CIA man held up his glass. "The agency will never see the likes of him again."

Lewis White who was convicted in Scotland Court of murder and arson in the death of Mose Watson May 19, 1973 and was sentenced to die in both cases. The court said errors made by the trial judge in his instructions to the jury made a new trial necessary.

The court found no error in the first degree murder conviction of James Tyrone Woodson and Luby Waxton in the slaying of Shirley Whittington Butler in Dunn June 3, 1974. Mrs. Butler, who was an employee of the E-Z Shop, was shot in the head during a robbery.

In concurring in the decision, Associate Justice James Exum said he believed "capital punishment is unwise as a matter of public policy." He said his belief was based "primarily on the proposition that government, if it functions properly, should seek to set an example, to teach the people whom it serves."

The high court also ruled no error in the first degree murder convictions of Thomas Lee King and Joseph King in Gaston County. Three of the seven members of the court dissented as to the death sentence and felt it should be remanded for a sentence of life imprisonment.

The Kings were convicted in the slaying of Leo Davis, 72, during a robbery at his Gastonia home the night of Feb. 16, 1974.

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An ex-carpenter who waged a 15-year battle against confinement in a Florida mental hospital has earned himself a niche in the history of treatment for mental illness.

Ruling in the case of Kenneth Donaldson of York, Pa., the Supreme Court held Thursday that it is unconstitutional for a state hospital to confine, against his will and without giving him treatment, a mental patient who is not a danger to himself or others.

The immediate impact of the mental hospital decision was far from clear.

Bruce J. Ennis, an attorney for the Mental Health Law Project of the American Civil Liberties Union, predicted that thousands — if not hundreds of thousands — of patients would be released by state and county mental hospitals.

A spokesman for St. Elizabeth's Hospital, a federal mental institution in Washington, suggested that the decision would make psychiatrists "feel uneasy" but was unable to say whether any patients would be released.

Donaldson, 67, a former Syracuse, N.Y., resident, was committed to Florida State Hospital at Chattahoochee by his father in January 1957. Doctors diagnosed paranoid schizophrenia.

In the hospital, he lived among convicted criminals and acutely deranged persons in a locked, 60-bed ward. He contended he was not mentally ill.

After repeated efforts to secure his release, Donaldson sued the hospital superintendent, Dr. J. B. O'Connor for damages in federal court.

Donaldson said he was not receiving any treatment. O'Connor said he was receiving "milieu therapy." Justice Potter Stewart, speaking for the court in Thursday's opinion, called this "a euphemism for confinement."

The jury at the trial accepted Donaldson's version and awarded him $38,500 damages. The U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans upheld the verdict and O'Connor appealed to the Supreme Court. Although the high court agreed with Donaldson's constitutional arguments it sent the case back to lower courts for more proceedings on the issue of whether state doctors acted in good faith. Thus, Donaldson still hasn't collected his money.

Reacting to the Supreme Court decision, Ennis said it "spells the end of de facto imprisonment of the non-dangerous mentally ill, a category that includes more than 95 percent of the patients in state and county mental hospitals."

At a news conference after the Supreme Court ruling, Donaldson said: "Mainly, my disease was that I refused to admit that I was ill when I first went in there. From what I've seen and heard of other state hospitals, that is the worst disease you can have — refusing to admit that you have a disease."

From what I've seen and heard of other state hospitals, that is the worst disease you can have — refusing to admit that you have a disease."

At a news conference after the Supreme Court ruling, Donaldson said: "Mainly, my disease was that I refused to admit that I was ill when I first went in there. From what I've seen and heard of other state hospitals, that is the worst disease you can have — refusing to admit that you have a disease."

Stan Kenton Abhors Music Of Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music is "a national disgrace," jazz musician Stan Kenton said, adding that he hates almost everything Nashville stands for.

"I hate country and western music. It is ignorant music and perverted music. I abhor it," Kenton said in a telephone interview with the Nashville Banner.

The Banner contacted Kenton Thursday in Cedar Lake, Ind., following reports that he spoke out against country music and Nashville during a recent interview in Los Angeles.

Two G-Men Shot To Death On Indian Reservation

By TERRY WOSTER
Associated Press Writer
PINE RIDGE, S.D. (AP) —
It looked like an execution. They were riddled with bullets," South Dakota Atty. Gen. William Janklow said today after two FBI agents were shot to death on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation. The two FBI agents were dragged out of their cars and killed Thursday when they tried to serve warrants on people who were holed up in a house, authorities said. An Indian in the house was reported killed in an exchange of gunfire, but it was not known when he was killed. Federal agents pursued occupants of the house through the hills of the reservation Thursday night, but at 1:30 a.m. the FBI agent in charge of the operation said the gunfire had stopped, "as far as I know." FBI Special Agent Joseph Trimbach said his men were continuing to patrol the reservation roads, but no arrests had been made. The house where agents Jack R. Coler and Ronald A. Williams were killed is about 5 miles southeast of the reservation community of Oglala, not far from the village of Wounded Knee which militant Indians occupied for 71 days in 1973.

Coler, 28, worked out of the Denver office of the FBI and was on special assignment to the reservation. Williams, also 28, worked out of the FBI office in Rapid City, S.D.

The dead Indian was Joe Robert, about 20, of Oglala, according to a spokesman for the Wounded Knee Legal Defense Committee in Rapid City. The spokesman said there had been some confusion about who was killed but that people who saw the body said the victim was Robert.

Earlier, the Minneapolis Tribune quoted an American Indian Movement source as saying the dead man was Little Joe Kill-sright, 20, of Porcupine.

Authorities have refused to say anything about the man's identity.

At the state capital in Pierre, Gov. Richard Kneip's office issued a statement saying the governor had been told the two FBI men were lured into an ambush.

The governor said the agents were "dragged out of their car and shot 15 to 20 times." Kneip's statement also said there were unconfirmed reports that as many as 30 persons were waiting in the house when the agents arrived. A spokesman for Kneip said the governor's statements were based on reports from authorities on the scene. In Washington, an FBI spokesman agreed with Janklow that the agents' deaths looked like an execution. The spokesman said his reports indicated that the two agents were nearing the house when they were hit by gunfire. Then the gunmen approached the wounded agents and pumped bullets into their heads, the spokesman said. The FBI refused to say how many agents had been sent to the scene, but Janklow, in response to a reporter's questions, said 100 men would be a conservative estimate.

Prohibition Party May Eye Political Realities

By KENNETH T. WALSH
Associated Press Writer
WHEAT RIDGE, Colo. (AP) — Hoping to attract votes from conservatives next year, the Prohibition party wants to shed its preoccupation with liquor and take a sober look at political reality.

"I'm sure most people think members of the party have one foot in the grave and the other on a banana peel," said Earl F. Dodge of Lakewood, the party's executive secretary.

Dodge, 42, added that the party's image needs changing. He said most people think prohibitionists are humorless moralists who wear stovepipe hats and "are perpetually sucking on a sour lemon."

The party, organized in 1869, is holding its national convention in the suburbs outside Denver.

The 100 convention delegates from 19 states are scheduled to nominate candidates for president and vice president today.

Dodge is unopposed for the vice presidential nod. Ben C. Bubar Jr. of China, Maine, is the only candidate so far for the party's presidential nomination.

Bubar, 58, is superintendent of the Christian Civic League of Maine. He was ordained by the Baptist Convention of Maine.

The soft-spoken clergyman said the Denver-based party is associated with only one issue — opposition to liquor.

"We're going to try to change the image," Bubar said. "It's not a one-issue party."

The convention delegates will also vote on a party platform. The proposed provisions include opposition to abortion on demand and opposition to "forced busing."

The proposed platform also endorses free enterprise, states' rights and a volunteer army.

A section on "the alcohol problem" calls for "elimination of the liquor traffic" by prohibition manufacture, distribution and sale of alcoholic beverages.

"Beverage alcohol is today the chief cause of poverty, broken homes, juvenile delinquency, vice, crime, political corruption, wasted manpower and highway accidents," the proposed platform says.

Bubar said Americans are increasingly aware that drinking liquor is a grievous health hazard and a corrupting influence.

But he wants to broaden the party's appeal to the same constituency as Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Dodge said about 1,000 people are on the party's mailing list but he estimated that more than 300,000 Americans consider themselves "party prohibitionists."

Invited Form Trade Group

Invitations have been extended to several hundred leaders in business, banking, industry, shipping, travel, government and other fields to express interest in establishing a chapter of the N.C. World Trade Association in Eastern North Carolina.

Letters sent by Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, chancellor of East Carolina University, said "we are convinced that this mutual undertaking can contribute to the growth of the economy in eastern North Carolina and the state." ECU is spearheading the movement, Jenkins said, because "our goal is to expand our service and provide a greater dividend to the citizens we serve."

Jenkins said certain difficulties and reluctance on the part of potential exporters can be overcome through "a partnership between the business community and East Carolina University."

Safe Robbed During Night

Greenville police are pressing their investigation into the theft of money from a safe at the Happy Store at 514 Watauga Ave. which was reported at 6:39 a.m. Thursday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said entry to the building was made by cutting a hole in the roof of the building.

The thieves moved a safe into a back room and removed several hundred dollars from the strong-box before making their getaway.

CLEARING CONTINUES—A crane lifts a section of the Eastern Airlines 727 jetliner from the roadway outside New York's Kennedy Airport Thursday, while police sift through the rubble. The jetliner crashed Tuesday on its approach to the airport, killing 110 persons. Fourteen people survived the disaster. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was quiet and little changed today as the rally of the past six sessions seemed to coast to a halt.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up a token .31 at 874.45, with losers slightly outnumbering gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading slowed considerably from Thursday's active pace. The market appeared to be showing the sluggish effects that can often characterize Fridays during the summer, as some investors get an early start on the weekend.

An informal committee of about six persons was formed last night to study the possibility and desirability of forming a YMCA in Greenville.

This committee, along with about six other persons, will survey local citizens to determine if there is need, interest and financial support for a YMCA here.

Disaster Test... Need Work Permit If Under 18 Years

emergency helicopter transportation for victims of accidents.

A Carolina Township fire truck—at 2:25—was the first emergency vehicle to arrive at the scene. A Greenville Rescue Unit pulled up at 2:33 p.m., followed by a rescue truck from Bethel at 2:37.

The first rescue workers found a smoking overturned bus, and victims spread all around, inside and on it. Some of the casualties were dazed and walking around; others were "bleeding" from lacerations; many had severe burns, while other lay quietly suffering from abdominal wounds, or tossed about on the ground moaning or yelling with pain caused by compound fractures.

Law enforcement officers—including members of the North Carolina Highway Patrol and Pitt Sheriff's Department—arrived and began to direct traffic and handle a crowd of onlookers who had gathered at the site.

Rescue workers began to survey the injured, separate the more critically injured from the minor injuries, and administer first aid. As other rescue vehicles and manpower arrived, the victims were moved to a near-by church where their injuries were evaluated and preparations to transport them to area hospitals were made.

The first 11 victims of the crash left the scene on two ambulances at 3:11 p.m. and arrived at Pitt Memorial Hospital at 3:30. The first victims to arrive at Martin General Hospital were brought in at 3:45.

In all, Martin General Hospital received seven of the bus crash victims, while the Robersonville Township Hospital treated two. The rest—about 50—were handled at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

A MAST helicopter arrived at whichards at 3:23 p.m., took on five patients, and delivered them to Pitt Memorial at 3:40 p.m.

The last of the victims were clear of the scene and enroute to hospitals by 3:44 p.m. Pitt Memorial Hospital Administrator Jack Richardson said "everything seemed to move very smoothly" at the local hospital. The emergency room personnel processed all victims brought to Pitt in 48 minutes.

"We gave the 'all clear' to our people at 4:30 p.m." Richardson noted. The disaster served a two-fold purpose. It gave emergency service organizations in Pitt and Martin Counties an opportunity to test their ability to handle a major accident situation. It also served as a "graduation exercise" for participants in a four-day Casualty Simulation Course for medical and para-medical personnel, sponsored by the East Carolina University Emergency Medical Education Program, part of the university's Division of Health Affairs.

In addition to the casualty simulation students, a number of regional coordinators from the state's Office of Emergency Medical Services helped make-up the 63 victims—most of them Pitt 4-H Club members who volunteered their time to the exercise. The OEMS staff members also served as observers to evaluate the disaster program.

"There are many questions about what types of work young people are permitted to do in local business, manufacturing and agriculture," Jim Hannan, manager of the Greenville office of the Employment Security Commission explained. All young people under 18 currently employed are required to have a work permit. These are available at the Department of Social Service at 709 Johnston St., Greenville.

Instructor of the workshop—designed to teach students how to simulate injuries for diagnosis and treatment for more realistic training—was Sinclair Cutcliffe of Prince Edward Island, Canada. Cutcliffe is one of the originators of the realistic casualty simulation method which has been taught and is widely used in Canada and in Europe.

The ECU workshop is only the second program of its type ever held in the U.S. The first was held earlier this year in Chapel Hill. Both were funded by grants from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the North Carolina Office of Emergency Medical Services.

George Reich, OEMS regional coordinator for the five-county Mid-East Commission area (state planning region Q) assisted Cutcliffe. Students and OEMS staffers began preparing the "victims" of yesterday's disaster about 10 a.m.

Barbara Campbell, training coordinator for the ECU Emergency Medical Education program said "disaster simulations are now fairly common among health care agencies, since hospitals are required to stage two drills each year for accreditation. 'But in most cases, the 'simulation' is rather sketchily carried out, with little or no attempt at realism. In this important way, the Cutcliffe program is unique, and we are proud that the only two disaster simulation workshops of this type ever held in the nation were held here in North Carolina," she added.

Reich, who explained that the disaster was sponsored jointly by the OEMS and Pitt and Martin County officials, said "I thought it went off very well... the best mock disaster I've ever seen handled. 'It took only an hour and 46 minutes from the first alarm until things were all clear at the scene. There was excellent triage, treatment, management... and the command post did an excellent job. 'Hospital security and treatment was also good," Reich said.

"The disaster was taken seriously by everybody that participated, and we learned a lot," Reich emphasized. He noted too, that in addition to rescue squad workers from Pitt and Martin, several Highway Patrolmen from Troop A who are Emergency Medical Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors as their part in a national "Make America Better" campaign. The Realtors are receiving support in this project from the local Chamber of Commerce.

"If I have one job at all," Armstrong told the group, "it is to convince you you shouldn't have a YMCA." He said he was here to "raise objections" because it would be better not to have a "Y" than to have one fold, as happened recently in Rockingham.

Armstrong showed a filmstrip which traced the history and goals of the YMCA. The film listed seven objectives which a "Y" tries to develop: self-confidence and self-respect, faith for daily living, health in mind and body, family and community members, appreciation for all people, a sense of world-mindedness and community leaders.

Currently, there are about 1,800 YMCA's in the U.S. with eight million members. The "Y" has branches in 83 countries. Armstrong listed the minimum requirements for a YMCA. A local "Y" must be in accordance with the national council, certify that membership is open to all and pay an annual amount of about three per cent of the local budget to the national council.

An operating budget of around $50,000 per year is needed to have a YMCA, Armstrong said, and the money should "be in the bank" before starting a new branch. This money is needed to carry out programs first, before a building is built. A building can be built later on, Armstrong said.

The money for the operating budget can come from three sources, membership fees, program fees and contributions, including possible United Fund money. Armstrong listed three things to be considered before deciding whether a YMCA should be started: Is there a need for it? Is the leadership available to make it work? Can we raise the money?

"If you have these things, you can have a really dynamic YMCA," Armstrong said. The main concern expressed by the group seemed to be whether the financial support necessary for a YMCA could be obtained from local citizens. The committee was formed to determine this and a return meeting was set up with Armstrong for mid-August.

Technicians, participated in the exercise... administering treatment and caring for patients at the scene of the disaster. Reich also praised Cutcliffe's training program, saying that simulated injuries produced by Cutcliffe's methods provide "such realism to a mock disaster that participants take the whole program more seriously because the injuries look like the real thing."

Cutcliffe, in addition to his work in casualty simulation, is active in Canadian politics. A member of the Canadian Legislative Assembly for the past eight years, Cutcliffe is currently president of the Prince Edward Island Liberal Party and a member of the advisory council which meets with Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

Rocky Mount Rallies To Take 8-7 Win

Graniteers In Winning Rally

The Graniteers, who have already won the Prep Babe Ruth League championship, had to struggle for eight innings before exploding for a 12-5 win over Cox Realty last night.

The game was tied at 3-3 going into the extra frame, but the Graniteers came up with nine runs in the inning to put the win away. The victory raised the Graniteer record to 8-1, while Cox fell off to 2-6.

The Graniteers got their first run in the top of the third. Todd Galloway reached on an error and moved up on an out. He scored on Al Shackleford's hit.

Cox came up with three runs in the bottom of the third, taking a 3-1 lead. Roger Clemmons singled and stole second. Eric Deal walked and Patrick Wilson singled in Clemmons. An error on the play let Deal score. Terry Skinner singled Wilson to third and the two pulled a double steal, scoring Wilson.

The Graniteers came up with one in the fourth. Ricky West walked, stole both second and third and scored when Galloway reached on an error.

The tying run came over in the sixth. Charles Daise reached on a two-base error and went to third on a passed ball. Jeff Worthington singled him in.

Then, in the eighth, the Graniteers exploded for nine runs. Lenn Jackson walked, as did Worthington. Galloway also walked, loading the bases. Eddie Moyer walked to score Jackson and a walk to Mike Campbell scored Worthington. Al Shackleford singled in Galloway and Moyer. Chip Davis walked, reloading them. Daise and West both walked, scoring Campbell and Shackleford. Jackson reached on an error, scoring Davis, and a wild pitch brought in Daise. An error then let West score.

Cox came back with two in the bottom of the frame. Clemmons reached on an error and stole second. A wild pitch put him on third and he scored on a hit by Deal. Wilson singled and a hit by Junior Hardee scored Deal, but the rally died there.

Carolina Dairy, College View Post Victories

Three runs in the top of the seventh enabled Carolina Dairy to ice a 9-4 victory over Planters Bank and Reggie Spain pitched a four-hitter to lead College View past North Carolina National Bank, 10-0, in Babe Ruth games, last night.

The first game was a postponement of an earlier game. Planters spotted Carolina Dairy a run in the top of the first. Gary Chapman reached on an error moving to second base and Mike Williams reached on an error to score him.

The CD lead went out to 3-0 in the third. John Coffman got a hit and stole second. Bobby Woronoff walked and an error let both men move up. A second error on the play let them come around to score.

Planters tied it in the last of the third. Mac Stokes started the rally with a home run to left. Calvin Williams walked and stole second and third and Freager Sanders walked and stole up. David Pettus brought both runners home with a triple to center.

Both teams added a run in the fourth to keep the game tied. Then in the fifth, Carolina Dairy got the lead for good on two runs. Woronoff led off with a double and Peter Pace walked. Randy Hodges walked and a hit by Marshall Heath scored Woronoff and Pace.

Two throwing errors in the seventh led to three Carolina Dairy runs. Pace walked and Hodges reached on the first miscue. Heath was safe on a fielder's choice and an error on the play let Pace score as well as Hodges. Howard Tucker grounded out to score Heath.

Jarvis Campbell had two hits for Planters. College View jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning. Reggie Spain singled to left and Jimmy Clemmons walked. Jeff Aldridge doubled to score Spain and Michael Shank grounded out to drive in Clemmons. Aldridge doubled to score Spain and Michael Shank grounded out to drive in Clemmons. Aldridge scored as Ricky Bolonde reached on an error.

Bolonde singled to start the third and Bubber Rowlette walked. Timmy Harris singled driving in Bolonde and after Marshall Crumpler walked, H.L. Austin singled to score Rowlette. An error let Harris score.

College View added three in the fourth and one in the sixth. Bolonde had three hits and Shank two for College View.

St. James closed the night with an 8-6 win over Temple. St. James took a 3-0 lead in the second but Temple cut it to 3-2 in the bottom of the inning. St. James made it 6-2 in the third and two in the sixth won the game.

Black Jack battled past Mt. Pleasant, 10-6. The game was close through the fourth with Black Jack holding a 3-1 edge. In the fifth, Black Jack erupted for six runs to go out by 9-1. Mt. Pleasant got one in the fifth, two in the sixth and two in the seventh. In a second early game, St. Gabriel whalloped Trinity, 25-2. The major damage was done in the second when St. Gabriel rallied for seven runs. Five more came across in the third and seven in the fourth.

In the closest game of the night, Memorial edged Presbyterian by 5-4. Most of the scoring was done in the fourth when both teams scored four runs. Memorial won the game in the bottom of the seventh with one run.

St. James closed the night with an 8-6 win over Temple. St. James took a 3-0 lead in the second but Temple cut it to 3-2 in the bottom of the inning. St. James made it 6-2 in the third and two in the sixth won the game.

ROCKY MOUNT—A freak play allowed Rocky Mount to tie up the score in the seventh inning last night and they went on to record an 8-7 victory over Greenville's American Legion baseball team.

The loss dropped Greenville back to an even 5-5 record for their crowded season. The tying run came over in the seventh with two outs and a man on third. Pitcher Mike Belton was in his windup when the batter, Tommy Crocker, stepped out of the batter's box, holding up his hand.

However, the umpire did not call time out, but Belton halted his windup. The umpire then called a balk, scoring the runner on third to tie the game.

Rocky Mount had pushed over one in the first and three in the second to take the lead. Another in the fourth gave them a 5-0 lead before Greenville finally broke the ice in the fifth.

Rocky Mount got it started in the first, scoring a run. Larry Joyner walked, as did Crocker. Dean Bradshaw grounded to third, forcing Crocker at second. The relay to first, however, was overthrown, allowing Joyner to score for a 1-0 lead.

In the second, mistakes continued to plague Greenville. Greg Proctor reached on an error and moved up on a passed ball. Smith doubled, driving in Proctor. Gary Ward walked and Curt Fulcher was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. A passed ball scored Smith, and an error on a fielder's choice by Joyner scored Ward. That upped the lead to 4-0.

After threatening again in the third on two walks, Rocky Mount scored again in the fourth. Crocker was hit by a pitch and Bradshaw reached on a fielder's choice. Doug Henley walked, loading them up and a walk to Proctor scored Crocker.

Belton, who had walked eight in the first four innings, in addition to hitting two, settled down after that, and did not issue another walk in the remaining four innings. But the damage had been done. Greenville, which had threatened in the first when David Dixon and Kelly Heath both walked, got off another threat in the second on a walk to Keith Jones, who was then sacrificed to second. In the fourth, Belton singled and moved up on a passed ball, only to tie at second.

But in the fifth, Greenville finally broke the ice and pushed over two runs. Wright Hooks singled and Griff Garner got a hit. Heath followed with a triple, driving in both runners.

In the sixth, Greenville came back with five runs, pushing into a 7-5 lead. Jones opened up, drawing a walk and Gil Whitford singled. Robin Woolard hit into a fielder's choice, getting Whitford, and Steve Manning walked, loading the bases. Hooks walked, scoring Jones, and a hit by Garner brought in Woolard. Heath walked, scoring Manning with the tying run.

Belton reached on an error, and that brought in both Hooks and Garner, giving Greenville a two-run lead.

Greenville was able to get off threats in each of the remaining innings, but none came to fruit.

In the seventh, following threats in the fifth and sixth, Rocky Mount tied it up. Ward singled and Joyner tripled, driving Ward in. Joyner then came home on the balk, tying it at 7-7.

In the eighth, Rocky Mount got the winning run. Bradshaw reached on an error and was sacrificed up. He took third on a passed ball and scored on Proctor's single.

Kiwanis, Taff Split A Pair

University Kiwanis and Taff Office split a doubleheader in Senior Babe Ruth League action last night with Taff taking the first, 8-4 but losing the second 7-6.

Taff scored in the first as Mel Boyd walked and later scored on Jay Chenier's sacrifice.

Kiwanis tied the game in the bottom of the frame when Donnie Haddock walked moved up on a walk and a hit and scored on Bill Ellington's sacrifice.

Taff got the advantage back in the third with two runs. Chris Garrett walked and Lee Shearin singled. An error let both men come in.

Taff added three in the fifth. Clayton Brock walked and stole to third. Boyd walked and Levy Brock reached on an error scoring Clayton Brock. Chris Garrett walked forcing in Boyd and a hit by Shearin drove in Levy Brock.

Taff scored two more in the seventh while Kiwanis got three in the seventh.

In the second game, Taff again jumped out to the lead in the first inning scoring twice. A run in the second and one in the fourth made it 4-0 but Kiwanis got one in the bottom of the fourth and gained a 5-4 lead in the fifth. Boyd singled with one out in the seventh and stole second. Brock doubled and a hit by Carlton Walls scored him. Walls stole around to third and scored the go ahead run on a wild pitch.

Ellington led off the bottom of the seventh with a single and took second on an error. Greg McGlohon singled him to tie the game and Meglawn moved to third on an error and a stolen base. Larry Boyette singled to drive in Meglawn and win the game.

Morrow Has Lead

Vikki Morrow Karate continued to lead the pack in the Junior Putters League at the Greenville Putt-Putt.

Morrow gained a 21½ to 8½ victory over J.H. Hudson yesterday to up its record to 6-1 on the year, leading the league. The other matches saw Kwik-Pik take a 12½ to 11½ win over Home Builders; Eckerd's beat Jefferson Standard, 19-11; and Jerry's Sweet Shop downed the Waffle House, 21-9.

Eckerd's is now alone in second, 5-2, while Jefferson Standard and Hudson are tied at 4-3.

Leading the point standings are Robert Stancill, Robert Sturtevant, Johnny Joyner, Wally Norris and Rodney Speight.

Grace Holds Church Lead

Grace kept a step ahead of Black Jack by winning in the Church Softball League last night. Grace remains a game in front of Black Jack which also won last night.

Grace took a 20-4 victory over Arlington St. Grace got all it needed in the first with seven after spotting Arlington St. one in the top of the inning.

People's edged First Free Will, 8-4. People's got two in the first and won it with a four run rally in the third. People's added one in the fourth and one in the fifth.

Black Jack battled past Mt. Pleasant, 10-6. The game was close through the fourth with Black Jack holding a 3-1 edge. In the fifth, Black Jack erupted for six runs to go out by 9-1. Mt. Pleasant got one in the fifth, two

Tiant Hurls Bosox Win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees attended a Boston Tiant Party Thursday night and saw their five-game winning streak go in the drink.

Luis Tiant pitched a strong seven-hitter, rookie Fred Lynn drove in three runs with a triple and single and Carlton Fisk hit his first home run in more than a year as the Red Sox thrilled a capacity crowd of 34,293 with a 6-1 triumph in the opener of a four-game series, leaving them just one-half game behind the Yankees in the American League's East Division.

Elsewhere, the Cleveland Indians walloped the Milwaukee Brewers 9-2, the Kansas City Royals trimmed the California Angels 7-1, the Detroit Tigers edged the Baltimore Orioles 6-5 and the Chicago White Sox whipped the Texas Rangers 8-3. Oakland and Minnesota were not scheduled.

Tiant, 11-6, registered his fourth consecutive triumph after being nicked for a run in the first inning on Chris Chambliss' long sacrifice fly which scored Walt Williams all the way from second base.

The Red Sox got three runs off Pat Dobson in the fourth on singles by Rick Burleson and Carl Yastrzemski, Lynn's triple and a single by Cecil Cooper.

Fisk, playing only his fourth game since suffering a serious knee injury last June 28 and a broken forearm in spring training, touched off a three-run seventh with his first homer since June 17, 1974.

Tigers 6, Orioles 5
Gene Michael's eighth-inning single, his third hit of the game, drove in the tie-breaking run and enabled Mickey Lolich to beat the Orioles for the 25th time in his career, more than any other active pitcher. Lolich allowed only five hits, including homers by Dave Duncan and Paul Blair, and four of Baltimore's runs were unearned.

The setback was the fifth in a row for the Orioles while the Tigers ended a six-game skid.

Royals 7, Angels 1
Fred Patek slammed a two-run homer — his first of the season — George Brett singled three times and doubled and Marty Pattin scattered nine hits for the Royals. It was Kansas City's sixth straight victory against California and Patek's second win over the Angels in eight days. Last week he fired a five-hit shutout. By winning, the Royals climbed to within 4½ games of idle Oakland in the American League West.

White Sox 8, Rangers 3
Bill Melton's grand slam homer off Ferguson Jenkins capped Chicago's five-run eighth inning and gave the White Sox an 8-2 lead en route to their fifth victory in a row. Mike Hargrove homered for Texas. Wilbur Wood gained the victory, but was helped by Pat Kelly's diving catch in the fifth inning and relief from Rich Gossage in the seventh.

Fields Might Be Happy, But Bucs Glad To Be Out Of Philadelphia

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

"On the whole, I'd rather be in Philadelphia."

—W.C. Fields

On the whole, the Pittsburgh Pirates are happy to be out of Philadelphia.

—Rennie Stennett

"I talked to some friends when we got back to Pittsburgh and they seemed very disgusted about what happened in Philadelphia," Stennett said, referring to the Phillies' four-game sweep of the Bucs. "I feel we should have won three of those games but we just have to forget about that now, start over and play our game."

They played their kind of game — pitching and power — with a vengeance Thursday night.

Rookie John Candelaria provided the pitching, a five-hit, 13-strikeout performance. And Stennett provided the power with a three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning that boosted the Pirates to a 5-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

On the rest of the abbreviated National League schedule, St. Louis edged Montreal 4-3, San Francisco defeated Los Angeles 2-0 and Houston beat Atlanta 8-4.

The blast, Stennett's fourth of the season and the Pirates' 34th in their last 26 games, moved Pittsburgh 1½ games ahead of the hard-charging Phillies in the East Division.

Only two of the five hits Candelaria allowed did any damage — homers by Andy Thorn and Tim Hosley. Richie Hebner also homered for the Pirates.

Cardinals 4, Expos 3
Second baseman Ted Sizemore drilled a two-run homer to trigger a four-run eighth inning, then hauled in a game-ending liner in the ninth to preserve the Cardinals' victory over Montreal.

"I'm not a home-run hitter," he grinned. "I only hit two a year and that was one of them." A walk, an error and a hit then loaded the bases and Ken Reitz knocked in the deciding runs with a single that made it 4-1.

The Expos got two runs back in the eighth and had two men aboard in the ninth before Pat Scanlon sent a wicked shot toward right-center field. But Sizemore leaped and speared it for the final out.

Giants 2, Dodgers 0
The Giants jumped on 11-game winner Andy Messersmith for a pair of runs in the first inning on Bobby Murcer's single and Willie Montanez's double, then Ed Halicki made the runs stand up with a five-hitter. The loss dropped the Dodgers 4½ games behind first-place Cincinnati in the West.

Astros 8, Braves 4
While James Rodney Richard went the distance, scattering nine Atlanta hits, the Astros battered Mike Thompson and four relievers for 13 hits — three apiece by Roger Metzger and Doug Rader — and the Braves kicked in with five errors to help Houston breeze to its victory.

Three Remain In The Race

The Women's Softball League race narrowed down to three teams following last night's play. Piggly-Wiggly continues to lead the league, with Belton in second and Little Mint in third, but the rest of the loop has now been eliminated from any chance at the title.

All three leaders claimed wins last night.

In the opening game, Little Mint squeezed by Wachovia Bank, 9-7. Little Mint and Wachovia each picked up three runs in the first, but Little Mint added two in the second for a 5-3 lead.

Wachovia then came back with three in the third to push ahead, 6-5. Little Mint regained the lead with two in the top of the fifth, but a homer by Wachovia's D. Bryant tied it up in the bottom of the frame. Little Mint then got two in the seventh to take the lead for good.

Coca-Cola rolled to a 17-5 win over Daniel Construction in the second game. Coke got four runs in the first and added another in the third. Five came over in the fifth, with C. Kannon homering. One scored in the sixth and five in the seventh.

Daniel got one in the second, two in the third and two more in the seventh.

The third game saw Piggly-Wiggly down Burroughs-Wellcome, 9-5. P-W pushed over

Left-Hander Giving Display Of Net Talent

By JEFF BRADLEY
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — "We've got a real vintage crop of left-handers," said Capt. Mike Gibson, Wimbledon Tennis Championship referee.

Led by defending men's champion Jimmy Connors, the left-handers are giving massive Wimbledon crowds the best display of southpaw tennis since Australia's Rod Laver won the men's title four times in the 1960's.

Connors and the three other lefties among the men's seeds have breezed through to the final 16.

A restrained, poetry-loving Argentinian, Guillermo Vilas, is ranked No. 4 and playing confidently after taking the Grand Prix and Masters titles this season.

Veteran Australian Tony Roche, a finalist in 1968, has revised his hopes with straight set wins in his first two matches.

"For some reason left-handers always seem to do well here," said Gibson. "For one thing they have an advantage because right-handers most often play other right-handers and are unsettled when they come up against lefties." As for women, until now there's only been one great left-hander in recent memory — Ann Jones of Britain, who defeated Billie Jean King for the title in 1969.

But this year, the No. 2 seed is the left-handed Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia, an 18-year-old who came to Wimbledon in top form and looks a tough challenger for defending champion Chris Evert.

Connors, 22, played with supreme confidence Thursday against British left-hander Mark Cox, a recent winner on the U.S. circuit.

After Connors' 6-4, 6-2, 6-2 victory, Cox picked Tanner as the man most likely to upset the champion.

"The person who serves best against him will do well, and someone like Tanner could be the man. But he'll have to play great because motivation is a big part of Jimmy's game and he's obviously very keen to win again," said Cox.

The right-handed challenge remains potent, however, with top seeds Ken Rosewall of Australia, Bjorn Borg of Sweden, American Arthur Ashe and Raul Ramirez of Mexico all winning on Thursday.

Title Gloves Sent To Jail

By KENNETH L. WHITING
Associated Press Writer

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Two pairs of bright red eight-ounce boxing gloves spent the night in sealed boxes behind the high walls of central prison.

"I been fighting 20 years and I never saw them put no gloves in jail before," Muhammad Ali said. Heavyweight champion Ali and British challenger Joe Bugner had selected the gloves they will wear in Tuesday's title fight. Security for the gloves is as strict as for everything else involving the match.

"Poor gloves gotta go to jail," Ali chuckled. "Boy, you sure are careful over here."

Organizers of the first battle for the heavyweight crown in this part of the world are tightening the security screen as the contest nears. Extra guards were posted Friday at Merdeka Stadium and casual visitors were barred.

Security at the mid-morning bout on July 1 will be as rigid as for any single event in this country's troubled history, a police source said. The usual measures to control crowds and protect the boxers are being extended.

Special seating arrangements are planned to keep the throng from getting too close to his majesty, known as the Yang Di-Pertuan Agong, or Paramount ruler. King Tuanku Abdul Halim Mu'adzam Shah Ibn Al-Marhum Sultan Badlishah, 46, is a lame duck, his five-year term expiring on Sept. 21.

A new constitutional monarch and deputy were elected by the country's nine royal houses last week. It was not known how much royalty would see Ali vs. Bugner, but at least one sultan was expected in addition to the king.

Uniquely Malaysian security problems are posed by communal stress between the Muslim majority and the Chinese minority and by the communist underground.

Devout Black Muslim Ali may inadvertently rouse communal feeling, one diplomat said this week. Ali prays at local mosques each Friday and has delivered several fervent lectures on the greatness of Islam and how Allah helps him in the ring.

Swarms of Ali fans seem mostly made up of Malay Muslims. Bugner followers include more Chinese and other non-Malay citizens.

The organizers have taken special pains to have Bugner visit Muslim schools and get Ali photographed with Chinese school children, the diplomat said.

David Graham Holds The Lead

By JERRY LISKA
AP Sports Writer

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Australian David Graham, not to be confused with newly-crowned U.S. Open Champion Lou Graham, carried a course-record 65 and a three-stroke lead over "a little more confident" Arnold Palmer into today's second round of the $200,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

Still the people's choice, runner-up Palmer shot an opening 68 over Butler National Golf Club's course with the same par 71 and rated almost as tough as nearby Medinah Country Club, the scene of last week's strange "Backup Open."

Palmer, without a victory since 1973, was cheered after displaying "more confidence in my game than I've had in a long time. I thought I had it in the Open — it was almost there, but not quite."

Graham, who tied for 29th in last week's Open, missed only two greens en route to his superb 33-32 round which included six birdies and the rest pars. That 65 broke the Butler course record of 67 by Tom Evans in the second round of last year's Western. Evans Thursday opened with an 11-over-par 82.

Tied for third in the pursuit of the Western's $40,000 top purse were Jerry Heard and newcomer Gary Wintz at two-under-par 69, while Argentina's Florentino Molina was next at 70.

Knotted at even par 71 were 1974 U.S. Open Champion Hale Irwin, John Schlee, Gibby Gilbert, Don Bies, Al Geiberger, Ed Sneed, Charles Coody, Miller Barber, Dave Eichelberger, and Jim Simon.

Defending champion Tom Watson was far back with a 78, while John Mahaffey, who Monday lost to Lou Graham in their playoff for the Open title at Medinah, dropped out of the starting field of 156 because of a chest cold after playing eight holes at six over par.

Lou Graham, along with Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Gary Player, skipped the Western.

Melbourne-born Dave Graham, 29, scored his only victory since joining the U.S. pro tour in 1971 with a triumph in the 1972 Cleveland Open. He stands 61st in the current money list with $21,778.

British, French Map Egyptian Arms Deals

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Britain and France, hungry for petrodollars, have entered into secret commitments to help make Egypt the arsenal of the Arab world, informed sources disclosed today.

Senior officials of Britain, France and Egypt said their governments are now in the final phase of negotiating a series of interlocking multibillion-dollar transactions for the supply of plants and technology to Egypt as well as weapons.

The British government has sought to reassure Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin that the arrangements are not intended to hurt his country. But the Israelis, who rely on the United States for arms, have told London and Paris they are worried.

The informants disclosed the broad outlines of a two-stage program:

In the first stage, Britain and France will supply Egypt with a wide range of war material, including 200 trainer and light attack planes, at least 250 helicopters, antitank guided missiles, light tanks, armored cars, communications systems and radar gear.

The British expect to earn more than $1 billion from this, the French nearly as much.

In the second stage, Britain and France separately, and in some cases jointly through merged British and French firms, will provide the plants, technicians and capital equipment for the Egyptians initially to assemble and later to manufacture helicopters, tanks, missiles and other weapons.

This new arms industry would serve those Arab countries which want to lessen their reliance on the Soviet Union; presumably Libya, Syria and Iraq would not be interested.

British and French earnings for equipment, technology, licensing and patent rights could run into the billions of dollars.

During talks with Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Foreign Secretary James Callaghan in London two weeks ago, Deputy Premier Ismail Fahmy made plain that Egypt was not asking for credits from the Europeans. Informants said he explained that Egypt in a sense is acting on behalf of the new Arab Military Industrialization Organization, or AMIO, which an Egyptian spokesman said has an initial "working and spending fund exceeding one billion dollars."

The chief backers of AMIO include oil-producing Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar.

PLEASE READ THIS If you haven't checked your cooling system for summer

Prestone® slices open a car's cooling system to show how corrosion can cause overheating and shorten engine life

In a new survey of 1,202 cars across the U.S., 45% required service because of cooling system problems.

Read how Prestone II Concentrate, with its patented formula, fights corrosion that can cause problems in your cooling system — and how two fresh gallons this summer can prolong your engine's life.

We cut open this engine cylinder head to show you how corrosion can build up in coolant passages. See the rough crusty sediment inside the cutaway area? That's from corrosion. It cuts coolant flow. So the engine gets hotter. This can crack the head and warp the valves. To avoid corrosion, flush your cooling system once a year and put in a fresh 50-50 mix of water and PRESTONE II Concentrate.

If you could cut your engine open, what would you see?

It's hard to see the damage old or worn-out coolant can be doing to your engine's cooling system and your engine unless you do what we did to this one — cut it open.

This cylinder head comes from an engine that's only six years old.

You can see the thick crusty buildup of rust in the coolant jacket around the valve ports. This can happen when the coolant has little or no ability to fight off corrosion.

Crusty corrosion is like an overcoat — it keeps heat in

That crust acts like a layer of insulation. It keeps the heat in the engine. Enough corrosion, enough heat — and the head can crack. The valves can warp or burn. And your engine will be ruined.

What a 1,202-car survey shows

A just-completed survey of 1,202 cars all across the United States shows some startling statistics. It reveals just how large a percentage of cars are suffering from corrosion and risking costly repairs.

How corrosion could shorten your engine's life

Corrosion could be clogging the tiny tubes in your radiator so they can't cool your engine properly.

Corrosion could be gradually perforating tiny holes in your coolant pump and your radiator — letting your coolant leak away and causing the engine temperature to rocket.

Corrosion can attack all 6 metals in your cooling system — including aluminum

In time, corrosion can attack all the metals in your cooling system: steel, cast iron, copper, brass, solder and aluminum, which is in more and more cooling systems today, particularly in imported cars. Many people don't know it, but aluminum is highly susceptible to corrosion damage.

PRESTONE II Concentrate, with its exclusive patented silicone-silicate formula, protects all the metals in your cooling system, including aluminum, against corrosion.

PRESTONE II Concentrate with its patented formula bonds a protective film to all metals

PRESTONE II bonds a protective film to each metal surface. It is extremely tough. And if the film should break, it will mend itself quickly.

But other forces can go to work to keep the coolant from fighting off corrosion. Exhaust gases can escape through a leaky cylinder-head gasket into the cooling system. When that happens, the gases turn to acids,

How permanent is permanent?

A lot of people think a modern coolant can stay in the cooling system permanently — or at least two or three years.

How often should your coolant be changed?

It's true that a coolant will give you anti-freeze protection year after year, as long as it isn't diluted and your system doesn't leak. But it won't fight corrosion that long. How often should you change? You'll find that recommendations in car owners' manuals may vary. We say once a year.

Take a sample

Some of you may think we say that just to sell more coolant. Others may think we're being perfectionists. But we've been working with coolants and engine cooling systems since 1927. That's almost 50 years. And our experience says that the best way to avoid corrosion and the expensive damage it can cause is to invest in a fresh fill of PRESTONE II Concentrate every year.

which weaken rust inhibitors and hasten corrosion of metal parts.

For this reason, you should never leave your coolant in the cooling system too long — even when it's PRESTONE II.

Some of you may think we say that just to sell more coolant. Others may think we're being perfectionists.

But we've been working with coolants and engine cooling systems since 1927. That's almost 50 years. And our experience says that the best way to avoid corrosion and the expensive damage it can cause is to invest in a fresh fill of PRESTONE II Concentrate every year.

If you've waited more than a year to change, check your coolant now for corrosion. Take a sample from your radiator. Look for a rusty brown color or loss of natural color of your coolant. Then check for sediment. These are all indications that you have not changed your coolant frequently enough and that corrosion is already at work clogging up your cooling system.

But even if your coolant looks all right, its rust inhibitors could have lost their ability to fight off corrosion. And you may not know it until it may be too late.

Combustion gas temperatures in your engine can reach 4,500° F. If your coolant can't remove heat adequately, oil can't lubricate metal parts and engine can suffer serious damage from overheating. PRESTONE II Concentrate fights corrosion that slows down heat removal.

Air conditioners can make hot engines even hotter

We know that a fresh fill of PRESTONE II Concentrate every year will fight corrosion and prolong the life of your engine.

Today's engines are designed to run far hotter than those designed before 1962.

You need a coolant that can handle those higher operating temperatures without overheating and boiling over on our fiercest summer days, particularly if your air conditioner is on and building up heat under the hood.

According to PRESTONE engineers, today's cars need a 50-50 mix of water and PRESTONE II Concentrate for protection against boiling over, freezing up and corrosion.

That solution — in combination with 15 pounds of pressure in the system — raises the boiling point of your cooling system to 265°F. (and lowers the freezing point to -34°F).

How do you maintain proper pressure? Install a new radiator pressure cap about every two years. Our service experience shows that pressure cap seals can go bad in that time — so you lose pressure and your boiling point drops.

Now that you know what we know, check your coolant carefully for summer protection before the next weekend is up.

If you've read this page, you know how important it is to maintain pressure in your cooling system. It's pressure, for example, that helps keep the boiling point of the coolant above the normal operating temperatures of today's cooling systems. Our experience shows that most radiator caps lose their ability to hold pressure after two years. If you've had your radiator cap for two years or more, you really should replace it.

Reasoner Report Ending Saturday

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's weekly newsmagazine show, "The Reasoner Report," airs its final program Saturday with highlights of various stories and features seen on the show since it began in February 1973.

It's being replaced by a regular half-hour evening newscast.

ABC News President William Sheehan has said the change was ordered because ABC affiliates preferred a regular network newscast in the early Saturday evening time slot in which the "Reasoner Report" now appears.

But Harry Reasoner, who anchors the show as well as the network's weeknight newscasts, says he's certain there'll be another weekly newsmagazine program on ABC but probably not during next season.

"I hope there'll be one, because one of the things I really miss is the chance to go out three, four times a year and play reporter on a major story and I hope to find a way to do that," he said.

Reasoner, whose weeknight anchor duties tend to keep him tied down in Fun City, was asked if, in retrospect, he wished his weekend show had been given a Sunday night slot, like CBS' "60 Minutes."

"I do," said the 52-year-old newsman, a veteran of 14 years with CBS before he joined ABC in December 1970. "My preferred time all along was 10:30 on Sunday nights."

"I think our main problem was station clearances," Reasoner added, referring to stations that preferred to air their own local programs early Saturday evenings instead of the "Reasoner Report."

"The show did well where it was and there was a good audience out there," he said. "But it was on during such a good local time for the stations and they just hated to give that time up."

In August 1965, the predominantly black community of Watts in Los Angeles was devastated by a six-day riot that left 34 dead, nearly 900 injured and property damage estimated at $45 million.

On Sunday night, NBC News is airing a one-hour news special, "A Country Called Watts," which looks back at that violence, what happened after it ended and what conditions are like there now.

The show, co-reported by Tom Pettit, a white, and Gail Christian, a black, interviews a variety of Watts residents, including Marquette Frye, whose attempted arrest by a highway patrol on suspicion of drunken driving ultimately led to the riots that tore Watts apart.

The program effectively uses aerial footage, old and new, to illustrate what was destroyed and what was or wasn't rebuilt.

Alas, the show has a tendency to somewhat shallow interviews and doesn't dig very deeply into such key issues as why the federal antipoverty funds lavishly poured into Watts after the riot were nil.

The idea of the show is admirable, but it just doesn't come off in execution. Well, at least they tried.

Sales And Use Tax Take Up

Net one per cent sales and use tax collections in Pitt County during May amounted to $174,808, according to figures released by J. Howard Coble, State Department of Revenue secretary.

Net collections in the county for May compared with the April collection figure of $165,064 and the March total of $145,204.

Totals in neighboring counties for May included: Beaufort, $71,893; Edgecombe, $80,444; Greene, $9,865; Lenoir, $121,238; Martin, $50,040; and Wilson, $127,270.

Coble said that net collections in the 95 participating counties totaled $9,799,716.

BEE GEES ARE 20

NEW YORK (AP) — The Bee Gees opened the first leg of a three-month, 60-concert U.S. tour on May 30.

The tour celebrates their 20th anniversary as a performing group. The Bee Gees made their first appearance in 1955 at a cinema in their hometown of Manchester, England. Barry Gibb was 8 and Robin and Maurice Gibb were 5.

VISTA Recruiting Service Volunteers

The Pitt County VISTA Project, under the sponsorship of the Wesley Foundation of Greenville, is beginning recruitment of full-time VISTA Volunteers to serve beginning in August.

Project Supervisor Rick Cagan, said, "the idea is to involve local people with the VISTA Project by shifting the Project emphasis to locally recruited volunteers."

"With the beginning of the third year of the Project approaching, it is important to assure that people from this local area gain more familiarity with the goals of the VISTA Project," said the Rev. Dan Earnhardt, Director of Wesley Foundation. "This is to insure that phase-out can be a more natural process when the time comes."

Applications are encouraged from any sector of the community, including ECU, the intention being to involve the most qualified and dedicated people. VISTA Volunteers beginning their service in August after approximately one-weeks' training in Atlanta would be involved with the interest of low-income communities in addition to the ongoing recruitment of part-time volunteers to work in a variety of settings. A monthly subsistence allowance is provided for all VISTAs in addition to other benefits. Persons interested in applying or seeking more information should call 758-2030 or visit the VISTA office at 501 E. 5th St., in Greenville as soon as possible.
