Casualty Toll Rises As Fighting Spreads In Beirut

By MICHAEL ROSS

BEIRUT (UPI) — Fighting between Lebanese security forces and right and left-wing militia groups spread from the suburbs throughout Beirut Saturday. Leaders of the rival factions met in an effort to end the two-month-long battle of the streets.

The renewed mortar, rocket and rifle exchanges of the past five days has pushed the casualty toll to more than 1,000 dead and wounded in the intermittent fighting that began last April.

Fighting was fiercest in the neighboring suburbs of Chiah and Ain Rummaneh in city's southeast section, where right-wing Phalangists battled left-wing rivals. Police sources reported at least 10 more casualties, raising the total for the week to 26 dead and 75 injured.

Youths, many of them recruited for $4 a day, manned barricades on approach roads to their neighborhoods. Inside the roadblocks bands of men clad in green combat fatigues squatted behind sandbag emplacements, cars and on rooftops peppering the streets with machine gun, rocket and mortar fire. Thick black columns of smoke spiraled up, marking the spots where mortars fell.

Fighting erupted Saturday morning in downtown Beirut when security forces moved in to dislodge snipers from buildings around main squares.

The U.S. Embassy warned Americans to stay off the streets and said it would issue daily reports on areas considered unsafe for foreigners.

Lebanese press reports said the country's two powerful political groups, the Phalangists led by Pierre Gemeyal and the Socialist Progressives led by Kamal Jumblatt, were near agreement on a compromise formula that would let Premier-designate Rashid Karami form a government to replace the outgoing military cabinet of Premier Gen. Nourredin Rifai.

Karami's efforts to form a government have been deadlocked for a month because Jumblatt has insisted the Phalangists be kept out of the government for their part in the fighting.

The press reports said that under the compromise, neither side would be directly represented in the cabinet although each would be allowed to have a say in the appointment of ministers. Later, the cabinet would be reshuffled to give the Phalangists and socialists direct representation.

Sabotage Suspected In New Delhi Fire

By VICTOR J. VANZI

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Fire suspected of being "an act of sabotage" by opponents of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi gutted the television film library in the All-India Radio building in downtown New Dehli Saturday.

The opposition has accused the government-owned All-India Radio of being biased in favor of the embattled Mrs. Gandhi.

"Police suspect it to be an act of sabotage in pursuance of plans prepared by opposition parties for launching an offensive against the government June 29," an AIR news bulletin said.

The reference was to plans announced by opposition political party leaders for a week-long series of protest marches demanding Mrs. Gandhi's resignation beginning Sunday.

Many of the opposition politicians are among the nearly 900 persons the government had reported arrested since Mrs. Gandhi proclaimed a state of emergency—an unprecedented action in the peacetime history of India since it won independence in 1947.

Mrs. Gandhi had gone on AIR Thursday to announce her crackdown on political opponents who had demanded her resignation because of her conviction of election irregularities in the 1971 campaign. She ordered the arrests on grounds of national security.

Opposition sources estimated the number of persons arrested in the nationwide raids at about 3,500.

In a move to strengthen Mrs. Gandhi's crackdown on her critics and opponents, the government Saturday suspended five basic individual rights guaranteed by the constitution.

President Fakhruddin Ali Ahmad ordered the suspension shortly after midnight and said it applied to "any person, including a foreigner."

The order signed by Ahmad suspends the right of individuals to place before any court matters pertaining to life, property, equality before the law and equal protection under the laws of India, and the freedom from arrest or detention without being first informed of the grounds for the arrest.

While firemen battled the flames, neither AIR's radio nor television service—India's only broadcast media—made any reference to the fire.

It took an estimated 100 firemen four hours to bring the blaze under control while an equal number of police, some in riot-helmets and carrying bamboo poles and shields designed for crowd control, kept about 200 spectators away from the building.

In the absence of newspapers since Thursday, AIR had been virtually the only source of information for Indians on the situation in this country of about 600 million. Papers resumed publication Saturday.

The AIR announcement of suspected sabotage made no mention of specific suspects or arrests and police would not comment.

Officials assigned to clear photographs under the government-imposed news censorship program refused in the early stages of the blaze to pass film of the fire taken by Indian and foreign cameramen.

Shortly after the brief AIR broadcast mentioning possible opposition sabotage, however, a government censor contacted again by UPI about clearing the film said, "Bring it in and we will see."

The sprawling, purple and white AIR building was the scene of protest demonstrations not long after Mrs. Gandhi was convicted June 12 by a court on on charges of election campaign abuses.

Rainfall Light On Late Friday, Early Saturday

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Staff Writer

The much-awaited clouds which descended on Pitt County Friday dropped from less than one-tenth to almost two inches of rain on different areas of the county in scattered showers Friday and Saturday morning.

The rain will help different area crops in varying degrees, according to Henry Riddick, agent for the Agricultural Extension Service.

By late Saturday morning, 0.39 inches of rain had fallen in Greenville, according to the reading at the Greenville Utilities Commission water plant.

In other parts of the county, Ayden and the surrounding area had 1.2 to 1.9 inches, according to Bill Loftin. The Farmville area received 0.9 to 2.0 inches, Carlos Tyson reported. Simpson had less than 0.1 inches, according to Lindy Edwards, while Portertown, a few miles away, had 0.5 inches of rain.

Tobacco and corn will probably be helped most by the precipitation, Riddick said. He estimates that about 30 per cent of the area corn crop has already been lost to the dry weather.

"The rain is sure to help," Riddick said of the corn crop. It will especially help the plants that have already begun to pollenate. The rain will keep the corn crop "from being a total loss," Riddick said.

"There is probably no way to measure the good" the rain will do to the tobacco crop, Riddick said. Irrigators will not have to irrigate for awhile and the rain will hold off some priming which would have had to start next week due to dry weather.

However, Riddick added, "In those fields in which the bottom two or three leaves were burning, we don't feel there was too much loss anyway. You can make this up in the top of the plant."

Soybeans and peanuts will also be helped by the moisture, but they weren't in bad shape anyway, Riddick said. The rain will enable farmers who are planting a double-crop of soybeans to resume planting. Dry weather had forced them to hold off on late planting.

Riddick said a dry June is generally good for peanuts, which don't have a critical need for moisture until about the middle of July.

Two Girls Freed, Man Held Hostage

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — Marxist guerrillas freed an American coed and a Dutch girl in return for ransom Saturday five weeks after they were kidnaped from a Tanzanian wildlife research station. Another American student was still being held hostage in the guerrillas' jungle hideout.

Beverly Carter, the American ambassador to Tanzania, did not disclose to newsmen the amount of the ransom. The envoy welcomed the two students, Carrie Jane Hunter, 22, of Atherton, Calif., and Emilie Bergman, a Dutch national, when they flown in to the Tanzanian capital Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Carter said she was confident the remaining captive, Stephen Smith, 22, of Garden Grove, Calif., "will be released within a week."

175 FBI Agents In Search For Killers

By PATRICK LITTLE

OLGALA, S.D. (UPI) — FBI agents Saturday spread their search for the ambush killers of two of their men to lands surrounding the Pine Ridge Indian reservation. A spokesman said the FBI had "no indication" that the Indians sought were on the reservation or off it.

About 25 additional agents were expected on the scene Sunday. About 175 agents will be pressing the search with the new arrivals.

An FBI spokesman said the agents were looking for an estimated 16 men who Thursday shot and killed agents Jack Coler, 27, and Ronald Williams, 27, both of Los Angeles, when they drove up before a bunker-protected cement block home here. They were attempting to serve a warrant, charging kidnaping and assault with a dangerous weapon, on Jimmy Theodore Eagle, 20.

An Indian, Joe Roberts, was killed the same day, although probably not at that time, the FBI said Saturday.

When officers entered the house after the occupants had fled, they found several weapons left behind, including semi-automatic rifles, ammunition and "explosive devices," an FBI source said.

Although the FBI declined to speculate at a briefing as to the whereabouts of the men, reliable sources close to Indians living on the reservation said they are without doubt "long gone" from the area after making an escape from the shootout scene. These sources said they would have utilized residents friendly to them in making their getaway.

These sources pointed out that the killing was a planned operation, and that undoubtedly escape routes or means of escape had been organized before it occurred. One FBI agent Saturday expressed belief that the fugitives might not be in the state, and a Bureau of Indian Affairs official expressed the same opinion.

However, with plane and helicopter aiding as needed, the surrounding area was being searched as thoroughly as possible by FBI agents.

Tropical Depression Off Cape Hatteras

MIAMI (UPI) — A low pressure system off the North Carolina coast developed into a tropical depression with top sustained winds of 35 miles an hour Saturday and forecasters said it was "on the ragged edge" of becoming the season's first tropical storm.

"Any further strengthening would require issuance of gale warnings along portions of the North Carolina outer banks later tonight or early Sunday," the National Hurricane Center said.

Forecasters issued a small craft advisory for North Carolina coastal waters and warned of tides one to two feet above normal with possible minor flooding north of Cape Lookout.

At 6 p.m. the summer's first tropical depression was located about 50 miles southwest of Cape Hatteras and was moving northeast about 12 miles an hour.

Hunt Assesses General Assembly Actions

RALEIGH (AP)—Actions of the 1975 General Assembly benefited consumers in some respects and harmed them in others.

That comment was made Friday by Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt in an assessment of the legislature which wound up its session Thursday night.

Hunt listed ethics legislation, changes in utilities laws, an energy policy and auto insurance revision among the top legislative accomplishments.

He cited as an example of actions that hurt the consumer the approval of a 36 per cent interest rate on loans of $300 or less from small loan companies. A 30 per cent rate had been allowed previously.

He said another example was the law setting a 80-cent premium per $100 coverage on credit life insurance. The action which reduced credit life insurance premiums 20 per cent blocked an effort by Insurance Commissioner John Ingram to cut it 46 per cent.

Hunt said actions that benefited the consumer included repeal of the Fair Trade Act which allowed manufacturers to set retail prices and the law allowing stores to sell milk below cost if necessary to meet competition.

Hunt, a Democrat, criticized Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser for not exerting leadership or arousing the public on issues such as repeal of the sales tax on food.

The lieutenant governor said the legislative ethics act would reveal potential conflicts of interest of legislators. He said the ultimate effect will be better legislation and more response to the people than to the special interests.

Hunt said he deeply regretted action of the House in killing a bill that would have set up ethics standards for the executive branch of state government. He had worked for ethics legislation 2½ years.

Utilities law changes, Hunt said will, mean that future rate hikes won't be as steep as they have in the past. The legislation included expansion of the Utilities Commission from five to seven members, repeal of the law allowing utilities to use estimated future costs when seeking rates increases, and elimination of automatic fuel adjustment clauses.

Hunt also mentioned the law requiring the Utilities Commission to study the feasibility of "peak pricing" for electricity. That procedure would mean high rates when power is in great demand and low rates when demand is low, such as late at night.

Hunt also praised the enactment of an energy policy bill which sets up a state policy and plan of action in event of severe energy shortages.

"That's going to be one of the most important pieces of legislation every passed by the General Assembly," Hunt said.

The lieutenant governor disagreed with industry predictions that the law eliminating age and sex as factors in setting auto insurance rates won't work and will result in higher premiums for most drivers.

To Run For Lt. Governor

RALEIGH (AP)—A freshman legislator has announced he is running for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

"I'm off and running as hard as I can," said Rep. John M. Jordan, D-Alamance, a Sahahapahaw textile industrialist and son of former U.S. Senator B. Everett Jordan.

The Alamance legislator said the only thing that could cause him to withdraw from the race would be the entry of former Gov. Bob Scott, who is also an Alamance native. Jordan said he had heard reports Scott is considering entering the race in which Chapel Hill Mayor Howard Lee is the only other avowed candidate so far. Several other persons have been mentioned as possible candidates.

Bus-Truck Wreck

SPRING LAKE, N.C. (AP) — A Trailways bus with about 40 persons aboard slammed into a pickup truck on N.C. 87 Friday night, killing the truck driver and critically injuring his companion, officers said.

Trooper H. H. Britt of the state highway patrol said Charles Lee Baker, 25, of Rt. 2 Cameron was pronounced dead at the Womack Army Hospital at Fort Bragg.

Roger Mathewson, 21, a soldier stationed at Fort Bragg, was admitted to Womack hospital in critical condition, he added.

Admission Fee For Zoo

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Zoo will officially begin charging visitors an admission July 7.

Zoo officials have moved the paid admission date back one week because of a delay in the construction of a fence around to the zoo site south of Asheboro.

The admission fee will be $1 for adults and 25 cents for children under 15 years of age.

Joann Little At Rally

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)— Joanne Little, the 21-year-old North Carolina woman whose case has become a cause celebre for females and blacks, addressed a final rally Saturday before the start of her first degree murder trial.

A trial for Miss Little, a black woman charged with killing her white jailer in an Aug. 27, 1974 incident in the Beaufort County, N.C., jail, is scheduled to begin July 14 in Raleigh.

PAINTING PROTEST—Two 10-year-old girls staged a peaceful protest Saturday after they were banned from competing in the annual Tom Sawyer Days Fence Painting Contest in Hannibal, Mo. 18 May Die In Holiday Accidents

Approximately 18 persons may lose their lives in North Carolina traffic accidents during the long Fourth of July holiday period, according to the N. C. State Motor Club.

The state will count its toll during a 78-hour period, that begins at 6 p.m. Thursday, July 3, and lasts until midnight Sunday, July 6.

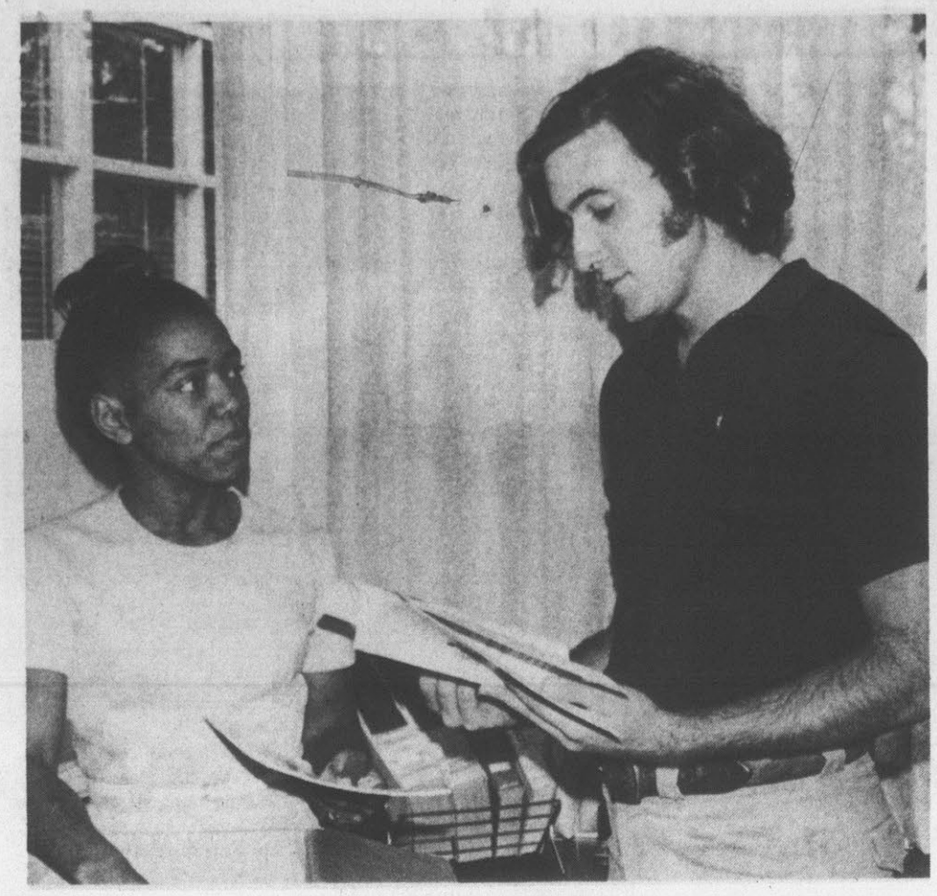

Last year 27 persons were killed in the 102-hour holiday period.

"Historically, the July 4 holiday has been one of tragedy on our highways," motor club president Paul B. Marion said, "but we believe this year will be safer."

"The lower speed limit has had a pronounced effect upon highway accidents," Marion said. "I just hope our travelers continue to respect the law and use good judgment while driving."

This year, fatalities for North Carolina are running 75 less than in 1974.

VISTA, Sorority Grants For Local Book Project

A grant of $950 has been presented by the Wesley Foundation VISTA project to the Greenville Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority. The grant fund will be used to implement the Reading Is Fundamental (RIF) program in Pitt County.

Rick Cagan, head of the local VISTA chapter, made the funds available to Mrs. Willie Mae Gibbs, librarian at the Carver Library on Tyson Street, and chairman of the local RIF program.

The VISTA grant represents funds raised through ACION and Walk for Development public participation projects in Greenville. An additional $250 in funds for RIF has been contributed by the local Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, bringing the total available for the book distribution project to $1,200.

RIF, a national program, is one designed to give children an incentive to develop the habit of reading and owning books. In Greenville, about 400 children have registered to receive five books each, books of their own choice. The children will keep as their own the inexpensive, attractively printed paperbacks.

First distribution of the approximately 2,000 books has tentatively been set for July 20. Children who have registered will be notified of the specific time. Carver Library will be the distribution point for the books.

Local agencies, groups, clubs and organizations who might be interested in being sponsors for future RIF programs are asked to get in touch with Mrs. Gibbs at the Carver Library.

Wrecks Investigated

An estimated $2,600 damages were the result of two traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police Friday.

Heaviest reported damage occured at the intersection of Greene and Moore Streets when a car driven by James Alton Manning Jr. struck a speed limit sign. Damage was estimated at $1,700 to the car and $100 to the sign by police. Manning was charged with driving under the influence.

Cars driven by Mildred Carroll Hardison, Rt. 6, Box 82, and William Howard Vanderford of Robersonville collided on N. Memorial Drive north of Airport Road. Damage was estimated at $600 to the Hardison auto and $200 to Vanderford's car. Vanderford was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, according to police.

A third Friday wreck occurred at the intersection of W. Tenth and Clark Streets involving Duane J. Donders, 73 Azalea Garden and James Edward Ash, 508-B Raleigh Ave. Damage was estimated at $225 to Donders' car and $150 to the Ash auto. Ash was charged with driving with an expired license and a safe movement violation.

An estimated $675 in damage was done in a Saturday wreck involving cars driven by Hubert Barret Jr., 1504 Ward St. and William Henry Dudley Jr., 616 S. Pitt St. Damage was estimated at $200 to Barret's car and $475 to Dudley's auto. Dudley was charged with following too close.

PAGE Group To Meet Wednesday

A meeting of the 'interim chapter of the Greenville Chapter of PAGE (Parents for Advancement of Gifted Education) will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday, July 2 at the Social Security Building, 103 Plaza Drive.

Mrs. Carolyn Adcock, coordinator for the chapter, says that plans are to elect officers for the chapter at the Wednesday meeting and urges interested persons to attend.

Mrs. Adcock also reports that about 30 people attended the meeting last week. Dr. Leroy Martin, president of the Raleigh Chapter of PAGE, and Dr. John Richards, head of the Special Education Department at East Carolina University, were speakers at the meeting last week. Dr. Martin extended an invitation for the Greenville chapter to consider joining the state group.

Two Arrested

Greenville Police have arrested two persons on assault charges, according to police records.

David Lee Evans, 19, 408 Greenway Dr. was charged with assault on a female and put under $100 bail. He also was charged with felonious larceny. Bail was set at $500 for that charge, according to police reports.

Pete Smith, 42, 500 E. Mumford Rd., was charged with simple assault in an incident which occured at 1:30 a.m. Saturday. Marvin Stepps was injured in the incident and transported to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville Rescue Squad. Bail for Smith was set at $100.

Paralyzed Boy To Get Medical Help

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—A 3-year-old boy, paralyzed from the neck down since an automobile accident April 23, will be flown to Houston for a chance at medical help as soon as a hospital room is available.

Nello L. Teer Co., a Durham construction firm, has donated the use of a company plane to fly Keith Langdon to the Texas Institute for Rehabilitation and Research.

The boy is in the intensive care unit at Rex Hospital in Raleigh, where a respirator keeps him alive.

Doctors say he will never walk again, but his mother, Sandra G. Langdon of Garner, south of Raleigh, hopes that specialists in Houston can attach a pacemaker to Keith's diaphragm so he can breathe on his own.

John D. Elliott Jr., deputy ombudsman in Gov. Jim Holshouser's office, said Saturday the plane has been checked out and can accomodate the necessary equipment and personnel to make the trip to Houston.

"As soon as a bed is available, we'll start moving," Elliott said. He added the hospital hoped to have a room for Keith in a week to 10 days.

A fund has been established to bolster the boy's medical expenses.

Young Worker Hijacks Plane

SALONICA, Greece (UPI) — A young building worker armed with a pistol hijacked a Balkan Bulgarian Airways airliner Saturday and forced the pilot to fly to Greece, airport authorities said.

When the plane, a Soviet-built two-engine Antonov-24 with 44 passengers and a crew of four, landed at Salonica's Mikra airport the hijacker jumped out and requested political asylum, the authorities said.

The hijacker, identified as Georgi Ivanov Gagov, forced his way into the pilot's cabin as the plane was flying between the Bulgarian capital of Sofia to the Black Sea resort of Varna.

All the passengers were escorted to an airport lounge while Greek security officials questioned Gagov and members of the crew.

Later they were allowed to board the plane and it took off for Sofia.

The hijacking came only four days before an official visit to Bulgaria by Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis —the first by a Greek government leader.

$3.25 Million Robbery

PARIS (UPI) — Four thieves broke into the apartment of an American divorcee on the fashionable Avenue Foch late Friday and stole cash and jewelry worth $3.25 millions, police said Saturday.

Mrs. Rita Luchman Steinberg, identified by police as the divorced wife of Revlon perfume executive Sherman Steinberg, her maid and an American guest were tied up by the thieves before they ransacked the apartment.

Police said the men gained access to the building by pretending to deliver flowers.

Mrs. Steinberg's chauffeur found the three women lying bound on the floor when he went to the apartment some 12 hours later, a police spokesman said.

Six Arrested On Saturday

Two Greenville citizens were arrested for robbery, and two were arrested on larceny charges, and two were arrested for issuing worthless checks by Greenville Police Saturday.

Charged with robbery in an incident at the Tenth Street Stop and Go were Danny Moore Smith, 18, 1215 Battle Dr., and Bobby Joe Dupree, 29, 705 Carolina Ave. The two men were placed under $5,000 bail pending a court hearing on July 21, according to police reports.

Charged with larceny in separate incidents were James Williams Smith, 18, 905 Langley St. and Michael Angelo Worthington, 17, Apt. 6 Glendale Ct. Each was placed under $200 bail.

Arrested by police on charges of issuing worthless checks in separate incidents Saturday were Deborah Grace Bethauser, 22, 125 Avery St. and Willis Johnson, 36, 1012 Cotanche St. Each was put under $50 bail.

Rocky Mount Man Dies In Accident

James Wade Atkinson, 45, of Rocky Mount died late Friday afternoon when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a truck a half-mile west of Greenville on N.C. 43.

Investigating Highway Patrolman Kenneth Ross identified the driver of the truck involved in the fatal 5:55 p.m. collision as Billy Allen Lloyd, 21 of Tarboro.

Trooper Ross reported Lloyd was charged with following too close and causing a death by vehicle following investigation of the mishap.

Lloyd was placed under a $500 bond pending hearing of the charges in court.

TV Producer Serling Dead

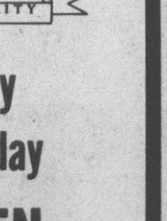

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Television writer and producer Rod Serling, creator of TV's "Twilight Zone," died Saturday at Strong Memorial Hospital after suffering complications during open heart surgery on Thursday.

Serling, who also developed the television series "Night Gallery," underwent 10 hours of open-heart surgery Thursday, apparently suffering a mild heart attack during the operation at Strong Memorial Hospital.

The spokesman said three bypass procedures were performed to take the load off his heart and lungs.

The heart attack was Serling's second in two months. He was first hospitalized in early May at Tompkins County Hospital in Ithaca after suffering a mild attack.

18 Hour Ordeal For Four Men After Boat Capsizes

MIAMI (AP) — "We talked about anything ... everything but 'Jaws,'" says one of four men who spent 18 hours floating and swimming in the ocean after their sailboat capsized.

Steve Woodbrey, 22, was fishing with three other Fort Lauderdale, Fla., men Thursday when their 25-foot sloop ran into a sudden storm about five miles from shore. He said they hung on to the capsized vessel's hull for 90 minutes, but were passed by at least four ships which refused to stop.

"We screamed for help and waved life jackets," Woodbrey recalled Friday. But he said the only reaction came when sailors on a freighter waved back.

"We decided to swim to shore for help because we couldn't get help otherwise," said Arnold Walton, 19, another member of the quartet.

They put on their life preservers, and tried to make it to shore, but the current kept pushing them back.

"We got within a half mile of shore," Walton said. "We swam for 12 hours and gave it everything we had, but we couldn't do it."

"I said 'Hey, we're close. We're close,'" said Gary Turpen, 22, another member of the ill-fated fishing trip. "I kept saying, 'Aren't we there yet?'"

Dave McConnell, the fourth member of the group, said he was concerned about sharks, the subject of a recently released movie 'Jaws' about shark attacks on swimmers in Long Island, N.Y., waters.

"I kept thinking, this is the Devil's (Bermuda) Triangle," McConnell said. "We're shark bait."

They ended up sleeping in the flimsy life preservers. Walton said he was awakened in the morning by a leaping fish. But he said they never saw any sharks.

Finally, the Coast Guard, which had been called by Woodbrey's worried wife, spotted the abandoned boat off Boca Raton. A Coast Guard plane found the men about 10 miles south, and they were picked up by a helicopter.

"Thanks to you I get to see my 23rd birthday," Woodbrey told the helicopter pilot. "I was beginning to wonder."

Feminists Feud In World Meet

By CAROL COOK

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Feuding feminists grappled for microphones and screamed insults at one another during a session of the International Women's Year Tribune, Mexican Television reported Saturday.

"Women tore microphones away from each other and hurled abuse" during the Friday melee, which lasted about 20 minutes, the Televisa television chain reported on its program, "24 hours."

The trouble apparently started when Latin American women accused Betty Friedan and other U.S. feminists of "manipulating" the Tribune, an unofficial forum attended by about 3,000 women in Mexico City's Medical Center.

Meetings have run parallel to the government-level International Women's Year conference, being staged five miles away.

Ms. Friedan Saturday said "several hundred women" burst into the Tribune meeting in a "deliberately orchestrated political disruption" and wrecked what had been "such a beautiful thing."

"They were whole blocks of women we'd never seen before. They seized the microphone and started shouting 'Down with Imperialism.' Then the mikes were disconnected. It got worse and worse."

She said she saw Cuban women and reactionary groups from Argentina among the disrupters. "It looked as though they were from the right and left. And there were two men directing them.

"It was a deliberately orchestrated political disruption. Theoretically I feel the growth of women's liberties would be very threatening to some countries. It is in my own country."

Earlier this week, Latin American women accused the Americans of "taking over" the Tribune.

"It's typically American. First they do it, then they ask us to go along," one delegate told United Press International.

Ms. Friedan also told UPI she was "scared to death" because she thought she was being followed.

Delegates to the IWY Conference met around the clock Saturday in an attempt to reach a concensus of opinion on recommendations to make to the United Nations when the meeting ends Wednesday.

U.S. Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., was expected to arrive here Saturday and to introduce a resolution calling on the United Nations to deny recognition to any country which fails to include women in their delegations.

Survives Fall Of 3,000 Feet

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — "I was fighting for my life. I had no desire to die," says a television newsman who plunged 3,000 feet with a useless parachute and lived to tell about it.

"I fought the whole way down. I did everything possible to get the parachute open," Arch Deal, 43, said in an interview from his hospital bed.

More than 2,000 spectators watched Sunday as Deal, anchorman for WFLA-TV in Tampa and a veteran of 780 previous jumps, dived from an airplane during a skydiving show at Cypress Gardens, and went into a 10-second free fall before pulling his rip chord.

"I looked over my back — normal procedure — to make certain my chute was opening," Deal recalled.

It opened, but in a tangled mess which Deal could not clear. After failing in an effort to free himself from the main chute, Deal said he tried to release his reserve parachute, but it, too, became snarled.

Falling at 120 miles an hour, Deal plunged into an orange grove where his chute caught in a tree and cushioned the impact.

Deal said he never lost consciousness and immediately began trying to move his limbs as he dangled with his feet barely touching the ground.

"I was in terrible pain," he said. "I kept checking out everything so I could tell them it worked. I didn't want anyone to hurt me any further. I was in enough pain."

Deal suffered fractures of his pelvis, neck, spine and ribs but escaped internal damages.

"The doctor told me if the fracture in my neck had been one millimeter deeper, I would have had a hangman's neck," he said, adding that he also was told that the spinal break almost crippled him for life.

Deal, who celebrated his 42nd birthday by jumping more than 50 times in one day, said he expects to be released from the hospital in about two weeks, and will jump again as soon as he is able.

"I've had main chutes fail on me five times before and the reserve always worked," Deal said. "What happened was so rare, I figure it won't ever happen again."

Whale Quotas

LONDON (UPI) — The International Whaling Commission awaited word Saturday on whether Japan or the Soviet Union would object formally to an agreement that would cut by 5,000 the quota of whales to be killed next season.

After a week of talks that ended Friday the Commission approved a proposal reducing the catch from 37,300 to 32,450, with special protection for the finback, the biggest of whales still being hunted.

But the proposal was passed over the strong objections of Japan and the Soviet Union, the only countries still engaged in large scale commercial whaling.

They were expected to be the most likely members of the Commission to take advantage of a provision which permits them to object formally within 90 days to the plan.

Military Recruiting Services Getting Higher Quality Men

By JORDY WHICHARD
Reflector Staff Writer

Local military recruiters are presently involved in a recruiting situation that is different from any that they have recently encountered. This new, higher quality recruiting has been brought on by the end of the draft, along with the effect of the recession.

M Sgt. Bob Jennette of the Air Force recruiting station reports that while the number of new Air Force enlistments has dropped slightly from last year, the quality of the enlistees has greatly improved. Jennette states that the overall educational attainment of the Air Force has increased by four to six grades from five years ago.

The recruiting office reports a slowdown in the number of recent high school graduates who are joining the Air Force. Jennette attributes this to the fact that the young men and women are taking more time to decide about their futures. There is, however, an increase in the number of college students who are enlisting in the Air Force. Jennette says that approximately 50 percent of all new enlistees are joining after one or two years in college or technical school.

The re-enlistment rate in the Air Force is also up. Some 55 percent of all Air Force personnel are signing up for a second term of service.

Jennette hopes that no one is discouraged by the higher quality level when thinking about enlistment in the Air Force. He says that everyone has the chance to join, and anyone who is interested should check by the recruiting office.

The U.S. Army is also involved in a new "quality recruiting" program. M. Sgt. Ray Boose of the Army recruiting station in Greenville says that today the Army is "looking for the high quality individual." According to Boose, the Army is getting what they are looking for.

Boose says that the Army is striving to enlist only those individuals who have attained at least a high school education. In order to land people to fill the military jobs, the Army is having to compete with local job opportunities. Boose believes that because there are job opportunities available in the Greenville area, competition for quality recruits is very keen. He says that he is "satisfied with the amount of enlistees we are landing."

Boose states that the re-enlistment rate in the Army is presently "much higher" than it has previously been. He also reported that beginning on July 1, the Army is going to halt the re-signing of prior service Army veterans in order to make way for more rapid advancement of the new higher quality enlistees.

The Navy is following the trend to recruit high calibre individuals. Don Rymer, the fulltime recruiter at the Third Street recruiting station, reports that the Navy is becoming much more selective in its recruiting. However, there is no minimum education requirement for Naval enlistment.

Rymer also reports an increase in the Navy's re-enlistment rate over the past six months.

The only service branch that seems to have a shortage of men is the National Guard. A spokesman for the Guard says that there is a definite "need for more men." The Guard is trying to fill this shortage with the recruitment of prior service veterans.

News Briefs

ERA Passage Major Issue

BOSTON (AP) — Rep. Margaret Heckler says passage of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution must be made a major issue in next year's political campaign.

"In the 1976 election, our greatest struggle will be for the Equal Rights Amendment, the Massachusetts Republican told 2,000 delegates to the second annual National Women's Political Caucus on Friday.

"The obvious question— support for that amendment— must be brought in a very direct way to all political candidates."

Agrees On $2.2 Million

BOSTON (AP) — Delta Airlines has agreed to pay $2.2 million in damages to the families of 11 of the 89 victims of its DC9 jet crash at Logan International Airport on July 31, 1973.

Under the agreement reached in U.S. District Court here, Delta will pay $200,000 to the families of each of the victims. The settlement represents the maximum allowed under the Massachusetts wrongful death statute, which was increased to $200,000 a few years ago.

Heart Valve Of Pig Tissue

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A heart valve made primarily of pig tissue will give Cheryl Petit a chance to live a normal life, doctors say.

The prognosis was not as bright three months ago, after the 19-year-old Fort Lauderdale, Fla., woman gave birth to her first child. Without the operation, she could have died, doctors said.

"After a period of convalescence, she will be capable of living a physically full life," Dr. Jack Greenberg, chief surgeon at Mount Sinai Hospital, said Friday after implanting the pig tissue.

Male Sues "Playgirl"

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A high school teacher who lost his job briefly after posing for a nude centerfold has filed a $2 million damage suit against Playgirl magazine.

Lou Zivkovich, 36, a physical education instructor at Apple Valley High School in San Bernardino County, said he had agreed to be interviewed and photographed for an article on physical culture with the understanding that there were to be no sexual implications.

Zivkovich was suspended by the Apple Valley school board after the article appeared but later won reinstatement.

Portuguese Commission

LISBON (UPI) — Portugal's military rulers emerged from a night-long session Saturday and announced they had formed a streamlined 11-man central commission to make recommendations for running the country.

The 30-man Revolutionary Council also announced the establishment of a paramilitary police force to deal with civil crimes. No details of the extent of the new police force's authority were published.

Seven Indicted

DETROIT (AP) — Seven persons accused in the June 6 helicopter escape of Dale O. Remling from Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson have been indicted on federal charges.

"We're not monkeying around, especially with the principals," Asst. U.S. Atty. Richard Delonis said Friday.

Remling, who flew to 30 hours of freedom from the yard of the world's largest walled prison aboard a hijacked helicopter, was indicted on charges of conspiracy to commit air piracy, kidnaping, air piracy and interference with a flight crew. Indicted on the same charges was Morris E. Colosky, 21.

Military Services Uniforms On Stamps

HONORING MILITARY SERVICES. . .This set of four Bicentennial commemorative stamps, picturing uniforms of the Revolutionary War, will be issued on July 4.

The United States Postal Services continues its celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of the United States with the issue of four commemorative stamps on July 4.

The stamps, printed together in a single sheet, honor the various military services of the young nation. Each stamp, all 10-centers, depicts a member of the services. They include the Continental Army, Continental Navy, Continental Marines and the American Militia.

The stamps will be printed by gravure method and have six plate numbers per pane. The stamp is the normal commemorative size, arranged vertically. Colors include yellow, magenta, cyan, blue, black and red.

They will be placed on general sale starting Saturday, July 5, nationwide. The July 4 sale will be only in Washington, D. C.

These four join two other issues for the Bicentennial already issued this year. They commemorate the Battles of Lexington and Concord, and the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Local Coast Guard Auxiliary To Assist In Week-Long National Safe Boating Week

Greenville Mayor S. Eugene West has joined mayors and governors throughout the nation in proclaiming the week of June 29 through July 5 as "National Safe Boating Week" in the United States.

As part of the observances, James Hecker, spokesman for the local U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla, has announced that the flotilla here is assisting the U.S. Coast Guard in making the public aware of safe boating practices.

This year, the theme of "National Safe Boating Week" is "Safe Boating Is No Accident." Hecker points out that in 1974 alone, there were 129 boating accidents reported in North Carolina involving 37 fatalities.

"The Coast Guard Auxiliary will use a number of means to attract local boaters to thoughts and actions resulting in zero accidents during this week and every week of the boating season," Hecker said.

Events scheduled by the Greenville flotilla in connection with boat safety are:

—Today—a safety patrol on the Tar River between Grimesland and Washington;

—Monday, June 30—An appearance by flotilla members on WITN-TV, channel 7 on the "Almanac" program;

—Tuesday, July 1—An appearance on WNCT-TV, channel 9's morning program, "Carolina Today;" and from 6:30 to 9 p.m., courtesy motorboat examinations in the parking lot near King's Department Store.

Boaters are urged to bring their boats so that they can be checked out on legally required equipment, and a determination made on whether or not individual boats meet such requirements;

—Wednesday, July 2—A two hour safety course from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Elm Street Recreation Center;

—Thursday, July 3—A safe boating talk on WCTI-TV, channel 12, New Bern, on the "Montage" program;

—Friday, July 4—A safety patrol at Belhaven during the annual fourth of July water events; and —Saturday, July 5—A safety patrol on the Tar River between Grimesland and Washington.

Appointed To Academy

United States Senator Jesse Helms has appointed Ronald Steven Hunt of Greenville to the United States Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Hunt is a 1975 graduate of J.H. Rose High School, where he was a member of the football, wrestling and baseball teams. He also was a member of the Key Club, Monogram Club, and the National Honor Society.

He is the son of Master Sgt. and Mrs. Purcell Hunt, Jr. of Greenville.

So Many Helped Shape Future

A momentous day for North Carolina has come with the approval by the General Assembly of a 1975-77 budget which fully funds the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

The budget contains approximately $47 million—including a previous $15 million appropriation—for development of a full four-year degree granting school of medicine.

It is nearly impossible to imagine what a tremendous impact this development is going to have on delivery of adequate health care to the people of North Carolina, and particularly Eastern North Carolina.

There are so many heroes in this bitter ten year struggle that we won't attempt to single them out at this time. Particular tribute should be paid to the leadership of both the House and Senate which stood firm all during this session in providing the funds for the school. They were faced with withering criticism from Piedmont newspapers, and with the added problem of less-than-anticipated revenues to make up the 1975-77 budget.

Of course, there were many others over the past decade who kept the program alive through the development of the one-year program which laid the groundwork for a full medical school. Certainly we have to credit the Chapel Hill administration and board of governors for having the vision to see that the best approach was to develop the four-year school and approving of its development last year.

There are the many people on the ECU campus who carried on the work of the medical school under extremely adverse conditions because they dreamed of what could be. It is a dream that will soon be a reality.

The people of Pitt County deserve credit for voting bonds to construct a new hospital, now under construction. Without it the medical school's development would be much more difficult.

Finally there are all the people of this state who gave their support to this project because they knew there was a need to be filled.

Funding the medical school completes a cycle of emphasis on providing better medical care for our people. It is a cycle which was set in motion ten years ago when the first proposal for the ECU School of Medicine was made. Since then we have seen the Area Health Education Centers instituted and rural health clinics initiated.

It is so logical that the cycle is completed with the funding of a new medical school at East Carolina University; one that will be dedicated to providing total family health care for all our citizens.

Grass Keeps On Growing

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Speaking of experimentation in highway construction, the state's Department of Transportation is red-faced over the tall grass across the state.

Seems that a special kind of grass supposed to top out at 12 to 15 inches has been sowed along the roads, but spurred by locally heavy rainfalls, just keeps on growing.

In answer to complaints, DOT Secretary Jacob F. Alexander explained the ill-fated experiment, and promised to start cutting the weedy-looking roadside grass.

Along comes former highway administrator Q.F. Babcock who jokingly told a group complaining about beer and soft drink cans littering roadsides that a new approach is in the works.

"We are working with can manufacturers on the matter—we hope to get a can made of fertilizer and grass seeds that after being exposed to the weather for two weeks, will crumble, fertilize the spot, plant the grass seeds, and make the area beautiful," Babcock said, tongue firmly in cheek.

Special Studies

With the General Assembly now to all intents and purposes meeting annually, more and more calls are heard for special study commissions during the "off" months.

The procedure serves a variety of purposes; it allows for public hearings and in-depth study by legislators on particularly complex matters; it provides a means of keeping an issue alive when defeat seems at hand; it gives continuity to work from one session to the next.

The procedure also serves a couple of other purposes, not so worthwhile: some legislators get themselves named chairmen of special study commissions because they have nothing better to do and want to come to Raleigh regularly and draw down some expense money; and even some cases have been seen in the past of a special study commission established so particular legislators could keep a favored secretary on the state payroll during the summer.

Some of the ideas had been put forth before, but now gain new importance in light of the cutback in prison building. Grievance Commission Chairman Fred G. Morrison Jr., says he "hopes this helps prevent a long, hot summer in our prisons. . . idleness breeds crimes, I've heard, and tend to agree."

The suggestions include art, hobby and handicraft programs, more educational programs, libraries for prisoners, and more exercise opportunities.

The commission also recommends use of available hospital or training school space for prison use when vacant; transfer of some inmates to local jails, leasing of vacant public buildings for prison space, and use of prison labor to expand and renovate prison units.

Additionally, the commission urges use of inmates to perform public service work at schools and public parks, to help them keep busy.

Under prodding from House Speaker James C. Green, a new system was set up for handling special studies in this session of the General Assembly.

The Legislative Research Commission was re-activated and all proposals for special commission were shuttled to it, the size increased, and all such studies will be carried out under direction of one central unit, with secretaries drawn from a pool.

Prison Changes

With massive building programs cut back in the Department of Corrections, the Inmate Grievance Commission has stepped forward with several suggestions for relieving prison crowding.

Mexico Blowing Away

By STEPHEN DOWNER

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Mexico literally is blowing away. Five-sixths of the nation is affected by erosion, according to agricultural soil experts.

They say the Federal District where the capital is located is becoming a city of wind and heat.

Nineteen of Mexico's 31 states, where eight million of the country's 56 million inhabitants live, have eroded.

The situation in some areas is so serious that the experts say the cost of repairing the damage is prohibitive.

They blame the virtually unchecked chopping down of forests for the crisis.

Only 54 million hectares—roughly 135 million acres—of the 200 million hectares (500 million acres) that make up Mexico are not drying up, according to Francisco Breach Velderrain, general director of the office for Conservation of Soil and Water.

Erosion advances "so rapidly that if a national program to halt it is not introduced soon, the nation's agricultural production will drop alarmingly," Velderrain added.

He said 100 million acres are "totally eroded and it would be prohibitive to try to recover them for cultivation."

Soil expert Horacio Hernandez, who works with Velderrain, says it is vital to teach small landowners as soon as possible the importance of looking after land.

"Two years of carelessness can cause the loss of a covering of fertile soil which nature takes 300 years to form," he said.

Some planners describe the Federal District as an "urban blob" in the Valley of Mexico. Mexico City, they say, has "devoured green spaces and rural areas."

Worse still the valley, they

Sunday Morning Notes

Mark Spitz won seven gold medals in the 1972 Olympics held in Munich, Germany, something no athlete had ever done before.

For his feat he won worldwide acclaim and reached that pinnacle of American athletic success, the call to appear on television commercials.

One can look over the records posted at Minges Natatorium on the ECU campus and there will be found records held by Spitz. For he is one of a growing number of famous athletes who has appeared in competition on the local campus.

Spitz was here as a high school athlete in 1968 to compete in the AAU Swimming and Diving Championships. His times are listed: 100-yard butterfly, 0:49.72 and 200-yard butterfly, 1:51.50.

ECU's winning swimming coach Ray Scharf says that Spitz was already recognized at that time as a potential super athlete. Did Scharf recruit Spitz for the ECU team? You better believe it, but unfortunately Spitz decided to go to Indiana University.

ALVIN TAYLOR

Spitz went on the Mexican games which turned out to be a debacle for him. He had predicted that he might win five events but won only two, each in a relay event.

Thus Spitz had a score to settle when 1972 rolled around. "Readers Digest Almanac" says, "Haunted by his 1968 failure, Spitz went to Munich and began his assault on the record book by taking the 200-meter butterfly and setting a world record for the event. On the same day he also helped the U.S. to a gold medal in the 400-meter freestyle relay. His other triumphs came in the 100-meter and 200-meter freestyle races, the 100 meter butterfly and the 800-meter freestyle and the 800-meter medley race."

"The United States effort in the 1972 Olympics in Munich was saved from complete debacle by its swimmers. Mark Spitz, handsome predental graduate from Indiana University, headed the band of American aquatic stars who romped off with 46 medals—18 of them for first place. Spitz, who calls Carmichael, Calif. his home,

"Bo" Farley, playing manager of the Greenville club of the Coastal Farm League, announced today he has resigned as manager of the local organization. The resignation will become effective after today's game here with Goldsboro.

Immediately upon receipt of Farley's announcement, officials of the club began casting about for a new manager and somebody to fill the third corner at which Farley has played since the opening of the circuit on June 4.

Although it was known that two or three persons were being considered for the position, the board of directors declined to give out the names of any of them. A meeting of the directors has been called for tonight at which time definite action will be taken.

Annoucing his resignation, Farley said he had been recalled by the school authority at Danville, Va., where he is employed as athletic coach and teacher. He has been instructed to resume studies immediately in preparation for a physical education degree which is required for this position in the Virginia school.

The INSIDE REPORT

Dealing With Gov. Wallace

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The alarm now pervading the Democratic party establishment over the Wallace problem was sharply focused in Sen. Gary Hart's unannounced June 16 visit to Gov. George Wallace in Montgomery for an intimate three-hour talk on how to preserve party civility between now and the nominating convention next summer.

Hart's journey was based on this dubious hope: that despite rabid anti-Wallace sentiment among mainstream Democrats and Wallace's contempt for the party's liberal wing, Democrats can start the presidential campaign next summer reasonably united.

Hart was not the first mainstream Democrat to drop in to the governor's mansion. But as Sen. George McGovern's 1972 presidential campaign manager, the visit of liberal Gary Hart to the 1976 Democratic presidential hopeful most hated—and feared—by party liberals was unusual to say the least.

After their three-hour luncheon talk, neither Wallace nor Hart saw the slightest narrowing of their ideological gap. But Hart's purpose was more modest: to assure Wallace that Hart and some other anti-Wallace Democrats, both elected and non-elected officials of the party, would resist exclusionary efforts aimed at denying Wallace equal treatment in the pre-convention delegate-selection period.

This bold but probably futile effort was the brainchild of Alabama-born Marvin Warner, now an Ohio Democrat national committeeman, who was a close friend of Wallace at the University of Alabama. Though no Wallace-man, Warner has kept close contact with the governor. He was the middle man for Hart's excursion.

Another unlikely visitor to the governor's mansion in Montgomery was Bernard Rapoport, the rich, liberal Democrat from Waco, Texas, who was one of McGovern's 1972 campaign fatcats. Wallace and Rapoport spent two and a half hours together on April 17. There have been other visits, and there will be more, with Warner acting as go—between.

But the problems inherent in Warner's ambitious effort to assure fair treatment for George Wallace—in hopes Wallace will reciprocate and not go third party if he fails to get on the Democratic ticket—are immense, and growing.

Consider, for example, the calculated insults from party officials handling routine requests from Wallace operative Mickey Griffin, an Alabama national committeeman, on changes in state delegate-selection procedures.

Having ignored Griffin's first two appeals for the information, Richard Koster, Democratic national committeeman for the Panama Canal Zone, wrote a letter to Griffin on June 3, four months after Griffin's first request, answering Griffin's questions. But the letter ended: "Let me say further that I resent you aiming your paranoia in my direction," an allusion to Griffin's implied threat to complain publicly if his routine questions weren't answered.

A similar late reply came from Nevada state chairman Paul Lamboley, who wrote Griffin: "Your thinly-veiled . . . threat will not be dignified by further response." Lamboley never did give Griffin the information he requested.

It is precisely such refusals from some party leaders to cooperate in any way with the presidential campaign of the hated Wallace that worries other party leaders, such as Hart and Warner. Purely political attacks on Wallace, on the other hand, are in the accepted tradition of pre-convention combat.

Thus, there is no resentment in Wallace land of Sen. Tom McIntyre's pronouncement on June 1 that he finds it "incredible and appalling" that Wallace is under "serious consideration" as a possible President.

In the same vein, Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, an announced presidential candidate, made no enemies in Montgomery when he told San Diego Democrats on June 12 that Wallace "is not qualified to lead our country."

To Wallace, such political rhetoric will be washed out in the presidential primaries he now plans to enter and win next year. He thinks he gains from political attack launched from the Democratic left.

What Hart, Rapoport, Warner and other main-

A Milestone

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

According to recent news reports, a long-sought goal of mental health professionals has finally been realized.

For the first time in the history of the state and county mental hospital system, there is now, according to the reports, the equivalent of one full-time staff member for each patient.

According to Dr. Bertram S. Brown, director of the National Institute of Mental Health, back in 1948 there were 5.2 average resident patients for each full-time staff member.

Says Dr. Brown:

"The pipedream was to achieve a one-to-one ratio of patients for each staff member. It is a good feeling to be able to say 'now we are there.' "

The increase in staff-patient ratio was accomplished despite a decrease of nearly 10,000 full-time mental health staff members during the year of 1974.

This 4.3 per cent decline in staff was offset by a 13 per cent decrease in patient population in state and county mental hospitals, the 19th consecutive year such a decrease has been recorded.

One might find these figures surprising, in view of the times in which we live: tension, a faster pace of living, more problems—both social and private, as well as economic.

One would naturally assume there were more people today with mental—or at least nerve—problems than ever in our history.

At the end of fiscal 1974 there were 215,573 patients housed in state and county mental hospitals.

This represented a 61 per cent drop from 1965, the peak year of resident patient population.

A number of factors are credited with this downward trend, including increased availability and use of alternate, nonpsychiatric are facilities for the aged, improved access to outpatient care, the introduction of community mental health centers and the use of more effective screening procedures to prevent inappropriate admissions.

Strength For Today

ASKING TOO MUCH OF LIFE

There is an old adage—so old now that it has almost been forgotten—that some people want better bread than can be made out of wheat.

Who are they?

The people who ask too much of life—those who want it to be all sweet and no bitterness; all sunshine and no shadow. We have all seen people of this type, in all walks of life. There are the husbands and wives who can never be reconciled to the fact that marriage is not a gift of happiness but the opportunity to achieve it; the working people who miss all the joy of their work because of a few small things they don't like and can't change; the businessmen who complain endlessly because they cannot buy a little cheaper or sell for a few dollars more.

Life is bread for most of us. It sustains and nourishes us, and if we work hard we can put a little butter on it. But few of can enjoy a continuous diet of cake, and it will be better for our digestion if we don't have it.

They've Learned To Cut Back

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans have come through the economic shrinking process a bit wrung out themselves but not without having learned some lessons.

Millions of Americans seem to have adjusted to the adversity that was reintroduced into life after the 1960s' great expansions. They've cut back, learned to do without, accepted a lower standard of living.

During the 1960s, Americans ascended into a lifestyle that many hadn't aspired to even in their dreams. For some families luxuries became necessities: Boats, second cars, second homes, long vacations.

Many a sociologist wrote that never again would Americans be satisfied with less, but that hasn't turned out to be so. The American of the 1970s has shown his resiliency, his willingness and ability to adapt.

The savings rate recently was up to around 9 per cent, which is roughly 50 per cent higher than the long-term average. It shows Americans don't need to spend just because they have it. It shows they know how to build capital.

Installment loans have been reduced sharply over the past few months. It shows Americans still believe in living within their incomes and won't tolerate a burden of debt they consider excessive.

It was feared that Americans wouldn't cut back on living standards, even temporarily, but would go into debt to keep up appearances, if only to themselves. This hasn't been so. Any butcher will confirm it.

Consumption of expensive red meats had been rising almost every year for more than two decades. But in recent years the per capita consumption has almost ceased to rise, and has actually fallen in some months. Americans kept their wallets folded.

They discovered nutrition too, and now many companies accommodate increasingly scientific shoppers by printing nutritional ingredients on their labels. Substance rather than appearance now is the guide.

Business too has shown it can adapt, even if the adaptation might appear to be forced by consumer or government groups. Regardless of the pressure's source, the response has been forthcoming.

The automobile horsepower war has been replaced by the fuel economy race, with benefits to all parties except—and maybe temporarily—the auto companies themselves.

The list of products that have adjusted to the new environment is long: Air conditioners using less electricity; clothes requiring no pressing, houses consisting of basics instead of needless adornments.

Within much of American business there is a cost consciousness unequalled since the Great Depression.

Government also showed it could adapt, even if its response might have been slower than desirable. Taxes were cut back when many thought the only direction was up.

It can be argued that the areas of responsiveness to change are more than matched by obstinance; that people, business and government choose to ignore realities. But it is worth noting too that out of some of the most financially distressful times within memory, some good did result.

Ford Widens Lead In Poll

PRINCETON, N.J.—President Gerald Ford has widened his lead over Sen. Henry Jackson in the latest nationwide trial heat and leads 46 to 37 per cent among registered voters, with 17 per cent undecided.

The previous test, conducted in early March, showed Ford with only a marginal lead, 43 to 41 per cent, with 16 per cent undecided.

Jackson fares less well against Ford than does Sen. Edward Kennedy, tested in the same survey. As reported Sunday, Kennedy and Ford are in a virtual tie, with Kennedy receiving the support of 45 per cent of registered voters to 44 per cent for Ford and 11 per cent undecided.

Jackson Fourth Choice For 1976 Nomination

In a recent Gallup survey designed to determine the 1976 nomination choices of Democratic voters, Jackson ran fourth, winning 6 per cent of the vote. Kennedy was top choice, with 36 per cent, followed by Alabama Gov. George Wallace, who received 15 per cent, and Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who won 9 per cent. Survey respondents were asked to choose from a list of 34 names.

In assessing Jackson's strength, it is important to bear in mind that he rates as one of the top nomination choices despite a relatively low recognition score. Jackson is currently known to only about 6 adults in 10 (59 per cent).

The following question was asked to test the relative strength of Ford and Jackson:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held today. If Sen. Henry Jackson were the Democratic candidate and Gerald Ford were the Republican candidate, which one would you like to see win?"

Following are the latest findings, based upon the choices of registered voters, and the trend. The latest survey was conducted shortly after the Mayaguez incident and showed President Ford's popularity rating climbing 11 points, one of the sharpest gains ever recorded.

Jackson vs. Ford
(Based on registered voters)

	Ford	Jackson	Other, Undecided
LATEST	46	37	17
March	43	41	16
Nov. 1974	47	42	11

The latest trial heat findings are based on interviews with 1,163 registered voters out of a total sample of 1,626 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period May 30-June 2.

Crime Message Good, Could Have Been Better

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

President Ford's comprehensive message on crime was the work of a wise and experienced politician. That is intended as a compliment, not an insult. Mr. Ford asked Congress for all he realistically could hope to get, which is perhaps a sensible approach. It was thus a good message.

It was good, but it could have been better. The President had some first-rate things to say about prison reform, junvenile crime, and the urgent need to imprison the violent "repeaters" who prey upon our major cities. He made several excellent recommendations for improving criminal justice generally, and he asked for a modest program to compensate the victims of violent crime.

All this was fine. The message, coming in the same week the President set up his campaign committee, is certain to have broad political appeal. Some of his statements had a ritual ring: "For too long, law has centered its attention more on the rights of the criminal defendant than on the victim of crime." But that is all right. These ritual things need to be said.

Yet there are times, it seems to me, when a president ought to look beyond the politically appealing, and beyond the legislatively attainable, in order to provide a bolder leadership. The message offered an opportunity, for example, for Mr. Ford to throw the weight of his office behind restoration of the death sentence. The President might have addressed the folly of sending young men and women to prison for mere possession of small amounts of marijuana. He might have come down one way or another on the issue of abortion: Is it murder?

Mr. Ford chose to be politic. He was silent on these issues. On the matter of gun control, which cries out for forceful leadership, he landed all spraddled out. He was "unalterably opposed to federal registration of guns or the licensing of gun owners," but he favored "mandatory prison sentences for anyone who uses a gun in the commission of a crime" and he asked tighter controls against the domestic manufacture, assembly or sale of "Saturday night specials."

Half measures are doubtless better than no measurers, just as half loaves, if one is hungry, are surely better than none. But the menace of the criminal with a handgun, as Mr. Ford himself emphasized, is a terrifying problem. In the name of domestic tranquility, the problem must be attacked, not merely picked at.

The President devoted only a single paragraph to organized crime. He asked for legislation that would make it a federal crime "to operate or control a racketeering syndicate." His purpose is to reach "organized crime leaders who seek to conceal their role in the syndicate's criminal activities."

This is all right, again, as far as it goes. But isn't there a more effective way of attacking organized crime? Professor William J. Flittie, of Southern Methodist University's School of Law, believes there is. He proposes to strike at criminal syndicates not by criminal law, but by civil injunctions. It is almost impossible to convict a top racketeer on a criminal indictment—not when a jury must be unanimously convinced of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. Professor Flittie's point is that a civil proceedings, tried before a federal judge under a lower standard of proof, could be a powerful weapon against the mobsters.

This is the sort of bold, constructive, imaginative thinking that must be pursued if we are serious about reducing the appalling levels of crime in our society. In his message Mr. Ford almost confronts—but never quite confronts—the grim truth that present approaches simply are not working. Crimes of every description are increasing—juvenile crime, violent crime, organized crime, white-collar crime. No other nation in the world is as plagued as our own.

Perhaps the President's program will help. His message contains so much that is good that one hesitates to complain of a shortfall. Yet a pessimistic feeling persists that crime will not be significantly reduced, nor our streets made significantly safer, until the country is moved to harder attitudes and a greater determination. The President's political judgment is that his program is the best that could now be achieved. He may be right, but that best is not good enough.

A Patient Public Has Reason To Hope Trend Is To A Lasting Rise

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Predictions that the recession either has, or is about to, bottom out and that a recovery is getting underway now find some pretty solid support in the flow of statistics.

Some of the industries hardest hit by the slide show gains from their recent record lows. One is housing. New starts are up a bit. Another is autos. June sales, while low by any recent standard, have registered gains.

These two industries have a wide ranging impact on the total economy. Their performance is closely related to consumer confidence. Thus, what happens in them is considered significant, trendwise.

Another cause for at least moderate optimism about the future is that employment is again gaining. This side of the job picture often is overshadowed by the attention given to the politically sensitive unemployment side. Normally, when a recession bottoms and changes course unemployment will continue to rise after employment has turned up. This is due to growth in the labor force.

There are other indicators which reflect improvement. Inflation continues to have a reduced impact on living costs—the rate of price increase. Retail sales show strength. Durable goods orders have scored gains. And personal income is climbing.

Taken together, these, as well as other signs, point to a change in direction. But this doesn't mean that recession problems are soon to disappear. There will be no quick return to so-called full employment and all out production.

Recovery will be a gradual process, taking two, three or even more years. The danger is that if political Washington tries to hurry the process too much the nation will be in for another inflationary binge. This, of course, would mean another and, perhaps, even steeper recession. The danger of a new spiral remains acute.

This is where the Republican White House and the Democratic Congress are at odds. President Ford and his advisers feel that enough spending stimulation has been injected into the economy and advocate a moderate course. The Democrats are still pushing their spending schemes, apparently unworried by the inflationary consequences of still bigger deficits.

Evidently, Ford is keenly sensitive to the mistake made by the Previous Republican Administration in 1971. At that time, then President Nixon had the twin problems of recession and inflation on his hands, with a general election coming up in 1972.

The Nixon decision was to slap on price controls, to hold back inflation, and prime the pump to get the economy on the up-side again. The economy soon hit a boom pace, Nixon won the White House, controls broke of their own weight and double digit inflation swept the country, setting the stage for the worst recession since the bust of the 1930s.

Based on White House policy, this is the sort of thing Ford wants to avoid. And his advocacy of what might be called a moderate or gradual policy has considerable backing from economists, both in and out of government. So far, his critics are mostly from the Democratic camp.

Since World War II, which ended the depression of the 1930s, we have had six recessions. It is interesting that the longest recovery followed one of the mildest of these slides. That was the 1960-61 recession, which brought on unemployment of 7 percent.

Congress and the White House, under John Kennedy, were leary of big deficits. President Eisenhower had set a peacetime record with a deficit of $12.8-billion. Recovery was slow until 1964, when a tax cut was put through. Things picked up. There were more stimulents to come, however, when President Johnson piled the Great Society on top of the Vietnam war. This set the stage for a real boom and the inflation which hit the Nixon Administration.

At the time, the public was patient with the gradual recovery. If patience again prevails, the budding recovery might develop into another lasting rise.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, June 29, the 180th day of 1975. There are 185 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1946, the British arrested more than 2,700 Jews in Palestine in an attempt to stamp out terrorism.

On this date:

In 1577, the Flemish painter, Peter Paul Rubens, was born.

In 1776, the Virginia State Constitution was adopted, and Patrick Henry was made governor.

In 1946, rioting between Yugoslavs and Italians broke out in Trieste.

In 1966, North Vietnam's captal, Hanoi, and the principal port, Haiphong, were hit by U-S bombers for the first time in the Vietnam War.

Ten years ago: American paratroops took their first offensive action in South Vietnam, attacking a Communist stronghold in a jungle 20 miles northeast of Saigon.

Five years ago: The last of the U.S. troops which had made an incursion into Cambodia were withdrawn.

stream Democrats want is a Wallace dialogue that will guarantee procedural fairness and dissuade Wallace and his militant partisans from making a "stab in the back" charge if and when Wallace fails to get on the presidential ticket.

It's a commendable goal, predicated on the assumption that Wallace is a politician the party can do business with. That may turn out to be a highly dubious assumption, even if the whole Democratic party agreed with it.

To the editor:

I recently read some thoughts on America by William Arthur Ward. I believe he expressed my feeling completely.

"I believe in America.

I believe it became great because of its faith in God, its hope for independence, and its love of freedom.

I am grateful for America's glorious past; I am awed by its unbelievable present: I am confident of its limitless future.

I am not ashamed to take my hat off and to stand for attention when Old Glory passes by. I do not apologize for the lump in my throat when I repeat the Pledge of Allegiance. I am not embarassed by the tears in my eyes when I hear 'The Star-Spangled Banner.'

Like millions of Americans, I want a free choice, not a free handout. I prefer an opportunity to prove my abilities on the job rather than a license to demonstrate my frustrations in the street.

I am an old-fashioned American with a newfound determination to do my part to make democracy work."

Sincerely,

To the editor:

Something should be done about the dogs running loose in the Englewood area. It seems like no one keeps their dogs in their yard. Dogs are always wandering through my yard and up and down the streets. Ordinarily I don't mind it, but now my dog is in heat and I can't even take her outside for a walk because there are male dogs in my yard and on the streets. From now on, instead of chasing them off or having to carry a stick, I'm going to get their dog license numbers and report these to the police. If they don't have a tag, I'm going to hold the dog or dogs, call the dog catcher, and let him take them away. I certainly hope that Englewood residents will think more of their dogs and respect my rights, so it won't be their dogs that the catcher comes to pick up.

Budget-Balancing Isn't Good Mental Health

For me end-of-the-month budget balancing is an ordeal surpassed only by the task of pulling bubble-gum off a ten-year-old flip-flop. Let's face it—living off $5.00 for two weeks is not conducive to good mental health. The only one who profits is Chef Boyardee.

This month was particularly bad. In fact the end of the month started on June 7. By June 9 we were recycling newspapers, bridge tallies, and paper napkins. You've never had a thrill until you've read Monday's newspaper for the next five days. I even used the same paper towel for a week, but I had to throw it away when the shreds became petrified.

By June 12 we had run our of deodorant. This has been beneficial in one respect. No one has been into Phillip's office to complain about taxes in two weeks. We also ran out of washing detergent, and I had to substitute with Lux. This produced mixed results. I didn't have to use a fabric softener, but the only dirt that came off the clothes was food stains.

However, the worst problem was eating. Every time I go into the grocery store, I understand more fully the dynamics of an inflation-recession—the prices go up, and my shopping list goes down. By this Wednesday, I'd given up on supermarkets and was raiding the back of the pantry shelves.

GAIL MICHAELS

"You don't call this dinner, do you?" Phillip groaned as he sat down to a Wednesday night meal consisting of cream of chicken soup over toast. "Can't I have at least one decent meal a day?"

"Well, I fixed you a good lunch," I answered defensively.

Look. I didn't like this idea of taking a lunch to work to begin with. But in the past three days I've moved from ham to bologna to peanut butter. And I don't call half a peanut butter sandwich a meal."

"I'm trying my best to cope with inflation," I sniffed. "And you won't even try to cooperate."

"I do cooperate," he argued. "Haven't I cut down on my consumption of gasoline?"

"Since when is refusing to mow the lawn a sacrifice?" I retorted, giving him my best withering glance.

"I haven't been so miserable since I had to eat my own cooking at Scout Camp," he sighed. "The only thing that's keeping me going is the thought of the first of the month and that fat, juicy steak I'm going to buy."

"There isn't going to be a first of the month," I answered gently. "We have to pay the obstetrician's bill."

He bestowed one miserable glance on his cream of chicken soup and dropped his head into his hands. "Pass the peanut butter please."

For Taiwan, United States Today Is 'Ally We Have To Trust'

By DIANE YING

TAIPEI (UPI) — The mood in Taiwan is quietly changing after the Indochina debacle.

The United States, referred to as "the ally we trust" for the past 20 years, has gradually shifted to "the ally we have to trust."

For the more emotional young nationalists, the standard line nowadays is, "The United States is unreliable, we have to depend on ourselves."

Self-reliance, a mere slogan pasted on walls in streets and broadcast on the air ever since Taiwan's expulsion from the United Nations in 1971, suddenly became a real common goal for the people and the government.

This attitude, slow in forming after Washington launched its rapprochement with Peking in 1972, gathered momentum with the collapse of Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Nationalist Chinese watched the last days of Saigon and the plight of the fleeing refugees with a mixture of painful sympathy and bewildered detachment, as though watching a replay of the loss of mainland China in 1949.

To some the political infighting in Saigon until the very end looked like the same mistakes they had made 26 years ago.

To others U.S. refusal to provide military aid to Saigon was bitter proof that "almighty America has once again abandoned a friend in need."

But the people in Taiwan are steadily building up their self-confidence.

Saigon's fall apparently made them realize, by comparison, the gains they have made since 1949, and appreciate what they now have—internal unity and a peaceful, prosperous life in a stable and relatively open society.

Premier Chiang Ching-kuo recently said in a major policy statement:

"The fall of Vietnam and Cambodia taught us that internal unity is the most essential factor to a nation's existence. Political stability and national defense are the two sides of the same coin. We dare say that internal unity in this country is far greater than in any other country."

The uneventful and smooth transition of power after the death of President Chiang Kaishek in April and the genuine grief showed by millions of people during his funeral are considered a sign of that unity as well as a vote of confidence in the government.

"The unanimous reaction towards the passing away of President Chiang has swept away whatever suspicion we might have before about the differences and gaps between mainlanders and Taiwanese," a high ranking official of the ruling Kuomintang party said. "It was a concrete test which demonstrated that we all support the leadership and the national policy".

In the wake of Saigon's surrender, many even began to praise the far-sightedness of the late president in steadfastly refusing to cut down Taiwan's 500,000-man armed forces, despite constant criticism and pressure from foes and friends alike to trim it.

Taiwan has devoted yearly almost half its national budget to defense, and now maintains one of the best trained and equipped armies in the region, a sizable navy and an elite air force.

The sheer size of Taiwan's defense force provides a comfortable safety blanket to fall back on in the days of reduced Asian confidence in the United States.

"It is inevitable that Taiwan's confidence in the United States has wavered," the Kuomintang official said. "But the important thing is we have confidence in ourselves, because we have good qualifications for existence."

He mentioned strong leadership, internal unity, sound economic base, a relatively small gap between the rich and the poor, a built-in self-reliance after a series of diplomatic setbacks, plus regional military superiority over China.

Although China has a much bigger army, the spokesman said, its bulk is stationed on the Sino-Soviet border for fear of military conflict with Russia.

After the U.S. failure in Indochina, he said, there are even hopes that the "appeasement trend" in America will be dampened, the U.S. process of normalization of relations with Peking might slow down, and the importance of Taiwan's defense position in the Pacific increased.

"Even though we emphasize self-reliance and the concept that only those who help themselves can be helped by others, we do not exclude the opportunity of group security and defense cooperation with allies," he said.

For the cool-headed officials at least, the United States is still the most important ally that Taiwan has, and an ally Taiwan has to trust.

Work And Medical Team From Greenville Going To Haiti In July

Haitian Attitudes Amaze Local Group

By MARIAN BAILEY
Reflector Staff Writer

"The attitude of people in the field of missions is astonishing," says the Rev. John A. Farmer, associate minister at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. "You would think that after people going to all the trouble to raise money and supplies and give up their valuable time away from their jobs and professions that the people would be more appreciative to the people trying to help them."

On July 25, 1975, Rev. Farmer will conduct a work and medical team going to Carrefour, Haiti, a suburb of Port-au-Prince, Haiti's capital city. The group of 14 people participating in this endeavor will finance and provide all of the building and medical supplies used for the work.

The construction team will build a school and community center while the medical team will work in Correfour in various clinics.

Haiti, an island of five and a half million people crammed into an area the size of Maryland, is the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere. Only one-third of the land is tillable. It has the highest rate of illiteracy, 80 per cent in the Western Hemisphere, and only two doctors for every 25,000 people. People are trying to help this desperate little land, but with the attitudes which are prevalent in Haiti towards the people in missions, those involved indicate it is easy to lose dedication.

"We were told by the mission's organization in Haiti that we were to build a school and community center for the people," Farmer said. "Then we received this architect's drawing of this seemingly elaborate, modern building that reminded me of a new bank building here in town," Farmer related with a look of disbelief. "We said, 'What, this is a mission project, a $22,000 building?' So we asked them about it and they tell us, 'Don't get high and mighty with us. We need you, but don't get on this superiority thing and think you are doing us a favor by coming. You ought to be doing this anyway.' They said, 'We're not building slums. It's a new day. Do something for us that is beautiful and significant and that we can be proud of'.

"This attitude has been probably the most difficult aspect of the trip the group has had to deal with." Farmer continued. "We've always had an attitude of 'we did this and now we deserve a pat on the back,' but we were stymied. They retaliated with, 'You ought to do this anyway', and they kept making more demands of us."

"Their attitude," Farmer explained, "has been that missions should not be giving what is left over but an act of putting them first and showing 'we care.' We just weren't used to that attitude and I still don't understand and I don't think a lot of other people in Greenville understand that attitude either." Farmer shook his head and added, "It's just hard to realize that people aren't bending over backwards because we're coming."

This mission endeavor is being sponsored by Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. The church is raising $5,000 to cover one fourth of the cost of the school and community center. Three other churches in the U.S.A. will help finance the remaining cost and labor.

This building will be one of the few buildings with electricity in the neighborhood in Correfour. It is hoped that it will be used for lay training programs in the evenings, as a public meeting building, and a study lounge for children that will attend school there in the day hours.

The medical team will consist of a doctor and nurses who plan to provide medical assistance as well as training programs in birth control and health precautions. They will distribute some 50 to 60 cases of medicines which have been donated by Burroughs-Wellcome. When asked what the medical team will undertake in Haiti, Dr. Edgar Douglas, the team doctor, answered, "We just won't know until we get there. We'll just go and then do what the Lord says do."

More carpenters and masons and more sponsors are still needed. Anyone interested in participating with the mission team in any capacity should contact Rev. John Farmer at 752-3101.

Detective Work Necessary In Investigations Of Fish Kills

By JAMES KYLE
Reflector Staff Writer

"We have to play detective. Sometimes it can get pretty frustrating," said environmental engineer Stan Taylor, one of whose duties is finding the cause of fish kills.

If a fish-kill is pollutant-caused, Taylor, and other employes of the state Division of Environmental Management (DEM), try to determine who caused it and "build a case that will hold up in court."

If the Division can prove that a person or business is the cause of a kill, the guilty are liable for the value of the fish killed and the cost of the state's investigation.

The way in which a kill is handled "depends on the circumstances," Taylor said.

Upon arriving at the scene of a kill, the investigator must "find out what he has to work with." He determines how much of the body of water is affected and looks for any "fish in distress."

It is important that the investigators get to the scene quickly and fish in distress usually mean the cause of the kill is nearby. "If you find fish in distress, you have a good chance of finding out what's killing them," Taylor said. The investigator will take samples of the water in this area and areas close by.

"If it is a flowing stream, and there are more dead and fish in distress, you sample a couple of points downstream," Taylor said.

If no fish in distress can be found, or the kill is in a tidal stream, "it gets to be a real guessing game." The investigator has to rely on previous experience and luck in taking his samples, according to Taylor.

In a test area, the investigator will run a chemistry test to "get a clue of what to sample for." There are four basic things which can cause a fish kill: dissolved oxygen, high or low pH level, change in water temperature or a toxic material in the water.

The investigator can "pretty quickly narrow it down to one of these four," said A.C. Turnage, regional engineer for DEM.

If the cause is dissolved oxygen, the source may not be close by, but if it is one of the other four basic causes, the source will probably be near the kill area.

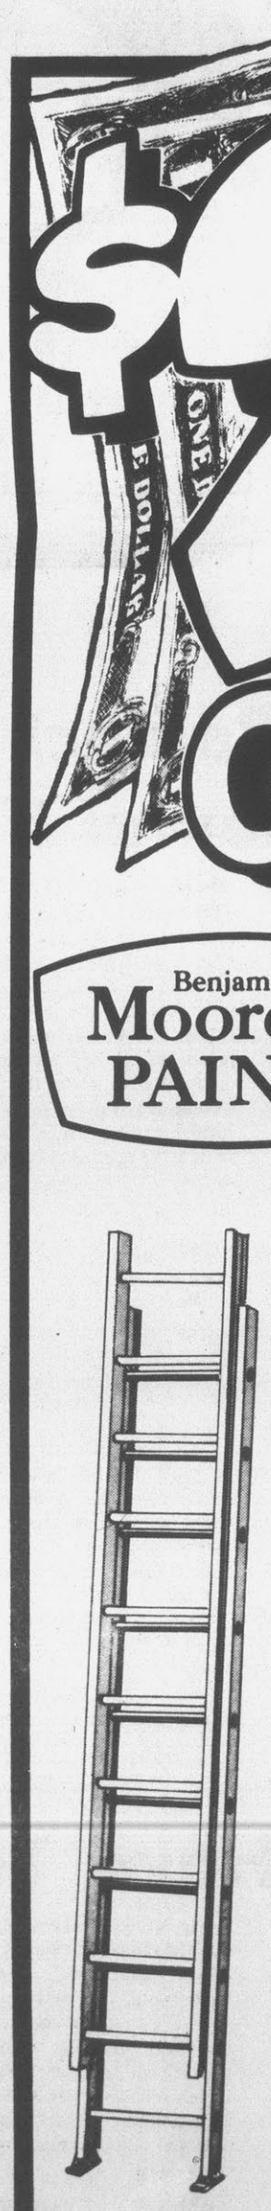

"Once you decide what you're looking for you can use previous knowledge and judgment to decide where to sample to prove who killed the fish," Taylor said.

If the cause is a factory located on the water, samples are taken upstream and at various points downstream to establish "beyond a reasonable doubt" that that company was the cause of the kill, Taylor said.

The source of the pollutant may not be easy to find, however. A person could dump polluting material off a bridge and drive away. A farmer may pollute a stream while filling his insecticide tank with water. These cases make the guilty party a little harder to find. The investigators have to depend on witnesses and people in the area to help them pin down the cause. Turnage said, however, "we have a pretty good batting average" for finding the source of pollution-caused kills.

Many natural causes, such as rain washing out a swamp or even hailstones hitting fish, can cause kills. In this case, the investigation is carried as far as to determine the causes were natural, then it is dropped.

Also helping in the investigation of fish kills is the N.C. Wildlife Commission or Division of Marine Fisheries. These agencies gather the fish, then, count, weigh and measure them to determine the value of them.

Trading In Purses For Fire Helmets

NEWCASTLE, Tex. (AP) — Eleven women in Newcastle are trading their purses for helmets.

They have formed what may be a first in Texas, an all-female volunteer fire fighting department. They have also created a new fire fighter position — designated babysitter.

"We are the backup for the regular rural fire department," says the group's chief, Mrs. Thetus Routon. "The men are hard to find during the day if the alarm goes off. We are not trying to beat them out of a job."

The group decided to organize a week after a fire gutted the home of Mrs. Irene Brunn in this north central Texas community.

"We decided we needed to get something done," said Mrs. Routon. "We want to be protected. We are almost without protection during the day. Only women are in town during the day."

By late May they had yet to fight their first fire, but they have aided the men's fire department in a gas station fire by pulling hose and directing traffic.

Each Tuesday night, the women have been meeting with the men's fire chief for instruction. Now, each woman can operate the 500-gallon pumper if needed.

"We have learned that our helmets are more important than our purses," said Mrs. Marjorie Lazzeri. "Our purses are the first thing to go. We don't ever carry them to the fire department, even for a meeting ...

"I have a jump suit on my bed every night so I'll be ready to jump in it and take off to a fire."

When the alarm rings, that's where Mrs. Mary Loy Kinser comes in.

She is the designated babysitter. She will keep the children at city hall when the women leave their homes.

"I'll just be glad when I get used to the helmet," Mrs. Lazzeri said. "I feel like I have my head in a drum."

Eligible Widower Uses Sister as Watchdog

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.,

DEAR ABBY: I am a 59-year-old widow. My husband died four years ago. I am very much attracted to a 62-year-old bachelor who attends my church. He dated women up until his mother's death (two years ago), but so far as I know, the only person he ever goes out with now is his widowed sister. They don't live together, but they might as well because they are inseparable.

I know he likes me because he gives me gifts on my birthday and Christmas, and he even sent me a valentine. When he goes on vacation (with his sister), he sends me postcards.

I've invited him to my home for dinner, but he always asks if he can bring his sister. (What can I say?)

When he invites me out, his sister is always along.

What do you make of this? Don't tell me to forget him. I can't, and I have tried.

LA JOLLA LADY

DEAR LADY: Some men have bodyguards for protection; others have large dogs. Your friend has a sister. He doesn't want you to get any closer to him than you are, and he's making sure that you don't.

You'll never land him—unless you outlive his sister.

DEAR ABBY: I was born Jewish, but three years ago I converted to the Baptist religion.

Last week my cousin, a devout young Jewish woman, died a slow, agonizing death. Everyone remembered her as a person who had never said an unkind word about anyone.

I discussed her death with my minister, hoping to get some consolation and assurance that she was now in heaven.

He said, "She is not in heaven because she didn't believe in Jesus Christ."

Abby, is this true? I was speechless.

PHILADELPHIA

DEAR PHIL: I'll leave it to other Baptist ministers to evaluate the fundamentalist comment by their brother quoted above.

DEAR ABBY: John (not his real name) and I have been going steady for two years. We're both 17.

One day, I was afraid I might be pregnant. I was scared to death and felt I couldn't tell my mother because she'd have been shattered.

By chance, John heard about a program at Planned Parenthood. I hated to go because I thought there would be a lot of little old ladies who would lecture and condemn me, but I went anyway.

I was wrong. Everyone was very kind and understanding. I was examined by a woman doctor and given a pregnancy test. Everything was kept strictly confidential. They had a counseling session for teens. I panicked when I saw a girl I knew there, but John, who was with me all the time, pointed out that we all had the same problem.

The counseling was far better than what I had had in my high school health class. (Not only was the information I had learned in school outdated, much of it was just plain wrong.)

Planned Parenthood helps with birth control, if desired. They also will arrange an abortion if you want it. Nobody tries to talk you into anything.

Please let girls know that Planned Parenthood practically saved my life. And all I had to do was call them up (they are listed in the telephone book) and ask for an appointment.

AIRY INTERIOR BLENDS WITH EYE-CATCHING FACADE

Brightfield

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN INCORPORATES UNIQUE FLOOR PLAN

First Floor - 2,096 Sq. Ft.
Basement - 2,096 Sq. Ft.
Garage - 624 Sq. Ft.

By Jerry Bishop

Natural stone, shake shingles, and rough cedar layer the facade of this four bedroom contemporary, while, on the interior, cathedral ceilings, cedar beams, and gable end windows create a warm, airy atmosphere.

Inside the gracious foyer, hallways give access to a family activity center at rear, formal dining room at left, or a quiet area, comprised of living room and bedrooms, at right.

Focal point of the plan is the 21-foot living room, alive with light from the expanses of glass and furnished with a cheery wood-burning fireplace. Four sizable bedrooms are also nestled in this area, effectively zoned for quiet. The master bedroom stretches a full 15 feet and enjoys a complete bath and large walk-in closet, while another full bath services the remainder of the sleeping wing.

Located off the foyer and near the kitchen, the dining room preserves formality and is supplemented by a convenient breakfast bar that divides kitchen and family room. Family room, kitchen, half bath and laundry niche merge to become an informal activity center for work and play. Sliding glass doors connect the area to the expansive wooden deck at rear for warm weather dining, sunbathing, or relaxed conversation.

The extra large double garage features a storage area suitable for large toys, tools, and bicycles. Besides the rear entrance, the garage includes a kitchen entrance that will make it easy to carry in groceries and packages. In addition, plans call for a full basement that can be finished, in the future, into a recreation room, party room, or workshop.

An eye-catching contemporary with striking facade and well-arranged floor plan, the Brightfield is unique in its ability to retain an interior warmth, comfort, and individuality.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

When a wood floor squeaks, some persons resort to the use of talcum powder or graphite between the offending boards.

Sometimes this will eliminate the noises. Sometimes it won't. But even when it does, it's only a temporary solution. In a matter of days or weeks, the squeaks are back.

Noisy floors can most effectively be silenced when the trouble is on the first floor where the underside of the floor can be reached, for example in a house with a basement or a crawl space. In that event, driving wood wedges between the joists and the flooring will usually be a reasonably permanent cure. In certain cases, it may be necessary to drive screws from the bottom into the subfloor and then into the finish floor, taking extra pains to be certain that the screw holds both levels of flooring together without coming through on the top side.

Having an assistant (it can be any adult in the household) walk back and forth across the floor, while you remain underneath, will enable you to locate more accurately the area of the squeaks. It is surprising how many times a single wood wedge, driven in at the right spot, can eliminate an annoying noise.

When the underside of the floor cannot be reached, which would be the case wherever there is a ceiling beneath the floor, then the problem will have to be tackled from above. First locate the places where the squeaks are occurring, marking them with chalk which can be easily removed.

At each trouble spot, drive in two nails at an angle so that the points nearly meet inside the wood. If you could see through the wood, you would note that the two nails roughly formed a V.

Use either threaded or grooved finishing nails. Drill pilot holes for the nails so that you don't split the wood. Each nail should be hammered slightly below the surface with a nailset. The tiny hole can then be filled with plastic wood or wood putty.

But, as a reader once asked, what happens if there is wall-to-wall carpeting on the floor and you don't want to either lift the rug or put nails through it?

Simple. Forget the whole thing.

Real Estate

By Louis E. Clark, GRI
REALTOR

COSMETIC SURGERY

How much should an owner spend to get his property ready for sale? If it's a relatively small amount for improving appearance, fine — but think twice before investing large sums into making extensive improvements prior to putting your house up for sale.

The chances of getting the money back in a correspondingly higher sales price are remote. Depending on the nature of the improvements, the recovery historically runs from 10c to 50c on every dollar spent.

The exception to the rule is what we call "cosmetic treatment". If the property looks run down, then a paint and paper job once over lightly may be prudent. But it's a whole new ball game when you start with extensive repairs and remodeling.

The best solution is to discuss your situation with a local REALTOR. You may find that you can sell the house faster, with more profit and less inconvenience by dropping the price about he same amount you expected to spend on repairs.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at LOUIS CLARK AGENCY, IBM Bldg., 100 Reade St., Greenville. Phone: 752-4173. We're here to help!

Surprise In 'Closing' Is Ended

By DOROTHEA BROOKS
United Press Interntional

"When you go for the closing, bring money!"

This was the word that passed from homeowners to friends about to take the plunge. The advice too often came from sad experience.

The home buyer would sit down with a party of lawyers and lenders for the closing, the formal procedure at which title to a house changes hands. After a lot of paper shuffling, he would be told to write checks totaling, perhaps, $1,500 or $2,000.

More than one prospective buyer, unwarned, walked out of the settlement procedures because he was unprepared. Others left with checking balances depleted, even overdrawn, to scramble to replace the money they hadn't planned on spending.

The closing on a home purchase still will require money. But it no longer can come as a surprise to the unwary.

A new law —the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act, known as RESPA —went into effect June 20, designed to dispel the mystique that often surrounded home financing and settlement.

From the time the prospective home buyer first applies to a lender for a mortgage, information now must be made available that will prepare him for the amount of cash he will need and enable him to comparison shop for lower fees among lenders, title companies and others who provide settlement services.

Roger B. Hawkins, director of the American Bankers Association Housing and Real Estate Finance Division, outlined major provisions of the new act:

Advance disclosure of settlement costs is required at least 12 days prior to settlement but preferably at the time of commitment. The buyer can waive the 12-day deadline, in which case the information must be provided at least three days before settlement.

The seller is prohibited from requiring a buyer to purchase title insurance from any particular title company.

The lender cannot require the borrower (buyer) to deposit in escrow or reserve accounts more than his share of taxes and insurance that have accumulated before settlement, plus one twelfth of the estimated amount due on those two items in the first year after settlement.

On a house completed more than 12 months prior to settlement, the seller must disclose in writing to the buyer, and the lender confirm this has been done, the name and address of the present owners, the date the property was acquired by the present owner and, if he has not owned it for at least two years and has not used it as a place of residence, the date and purchase price of the last "arm's length transfer" of the property, along with a list of subsequent improvements other than maintenance, and the cost of these improvements.

Hawkins said, concerning the last provision, "A lot of home buyers have been taken to the races on this one, especially where the sale involves non-owner occupant housing. Here, a speculator might purchase a house for $15,000, do $3,000 worth of cosmetic remodeling and sell the house for $25,000. It won't be so easy to do that under RESPA where the buyer knows the last sale price of the house and the improvements that have been made."

RESPA also provides that each mortgage applicant receive from his bank, savings and loan institution, mutual savings bank or other lender a free government-written booklet, "Settlement Costs and You," and a three-page form, "Disclosure-Settlement Statement."

The prospective home buyer would be wise to obtain a copy of this booklet even before he applies for a mortgage. It includes a wealth of information —an item-by-item explanation of the 31 points in the required disclosure-settlement statement and a comprehensive section on unfair practices and unreasonable or unnecessary charges to be avoided. It also discusses the role of the real estate broker, settlement attorneys, escrow and closing agents, legal representation.

So armed and forewarned, home buyers should be better equipped to deal more intelligently with real estate agents, lawyers, lenders and title insurance companies.

Occupation Workshop Held For Teachers

Seventy-six North Carolina teachers have completed a workshop at East Carolina University on Middle Grades Occupational Exploration. The program, which began June 16 and ended June 27, is sponsored by the N. C. Department of Public Instruction.

Purpose of the workshop is to give the participating teachers experience and further knowledge to assist them in helping their middle grades students make intelligent choices for future occupations.

Instructional staff included Dr. Vila Rosenfeld and Dr. Lilla Holsey of the ECU School of Home Economics, Dr. Betsy Harper and Dr. Robert Leith of the ECU School of Technology, and resource personnel from the N. C. Department of Public Instruction.

Names of teachers who attended the ECU workshop include:

MARTIN COUNTY—Linda P. Bryant and Calvin B. Lawrence.

Sociologist To Study In India

An East Carolina University sociologist will spend seven weeks in India this summer studying effects of the "green revolution" program in parts of his native land.

Dr. Avtar Singh, associate professor in the ECU Department of Sociology and Anthropology, will leave Greenville July 15 for study based at the University of Punjab. He plans to collect and evaluate data on effects of the "green revolution" upon the social and village structure.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — One of the things that puzzles me about the directions for mixing concrete is what is meant by dry sand and wet sand. Sure, I know when sand is wet and when it is dry, but sometimes it is damp and I don't know how to classify it for the purposes of making the mixture. Is there some professional way of knowing when sand is wet -- that is, wet as meant by the person who wrote the instructions?

A — Yes. Pick up a handful of the sand. Hold it there a few seconds, then let go of it. If it felt wet when you picked it up — and if your hand is still wet after you let go of it — the sand is classified as wet for mixture of concrete. If it felt wet when you picked it up, but your hand is dry when you let go of it, then it is called damp. Naturally, if it doesn't even feel wet when you lift it up, it is dry sand. The directions for mixing concrete call for less water when the sand is wet than when it is dry. Generally, too much water in a concrete mixture weakens the finished job, but you still need enough water to make the mixture workable.

Q. — I want to cover a chair seat with a thin layer of foam rubber. What's the best way to cut it to size?

A. — Foam rubber less than 2 inches in thickness can be cut with ordinary scissors. Make a pattern of the seat and take it in to the foam rubber dealer. Often he will cut it to the size of the pattern without charge. If not, it's not difficult to cut it yourself. The vital thing is to cut the piece of rubber half an inch larger on each side than the size of the seat. This half an inch will later be compressed and serve to keep the fabric covering tightly in place.

Q. — Can the rounded tip of an old screwdriver be filed properly so that it will work?

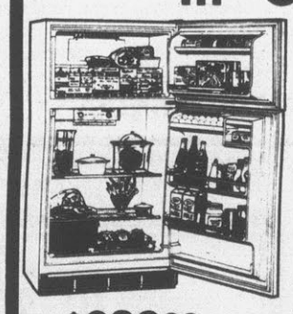

A. — Yes. Simply file it straight across. Be sure to file only on the forward stroke, lifting the file a little as you draw it back towards you.

Q. — I recently wallpapered our living room. It came out fine, except that I now notice in three spots that there is a blister in each of the spots. How can this be fixed?

A. — Moisten each spot lightly. Using a single-edge razor blade, cut a slit in the blister. Working very carefully so as not to tear the paper, lift the edges and insert a bit of wallpaper paste under the paper. Use a slightly damp rag to smooth out the area. If there is a tiny overlap, it probably won't be noticed. But if it bothers you, trim it off, again working very carefully.

Shave That PEAK!

"Peak demand"...the maximum amount of electricity Greenville Utilities must have the capability of delivering at the time you demand it.

You establish peak demand; and because your electric rates are based in part on peak demand, you help set your own rate.

You can help keep next year's rate down by helping to shave this year's peak demand.

Peak demand usually occurs between 5:00 PM and 7:00 PM on very hot days, when everybody gets home from work. Air conditioning is turned lower...meals are cooked...dishes get washed...laundry is washed and dried. Everybody doing everything at the same time.

A few simple changes in people's habits could make quite a difference.

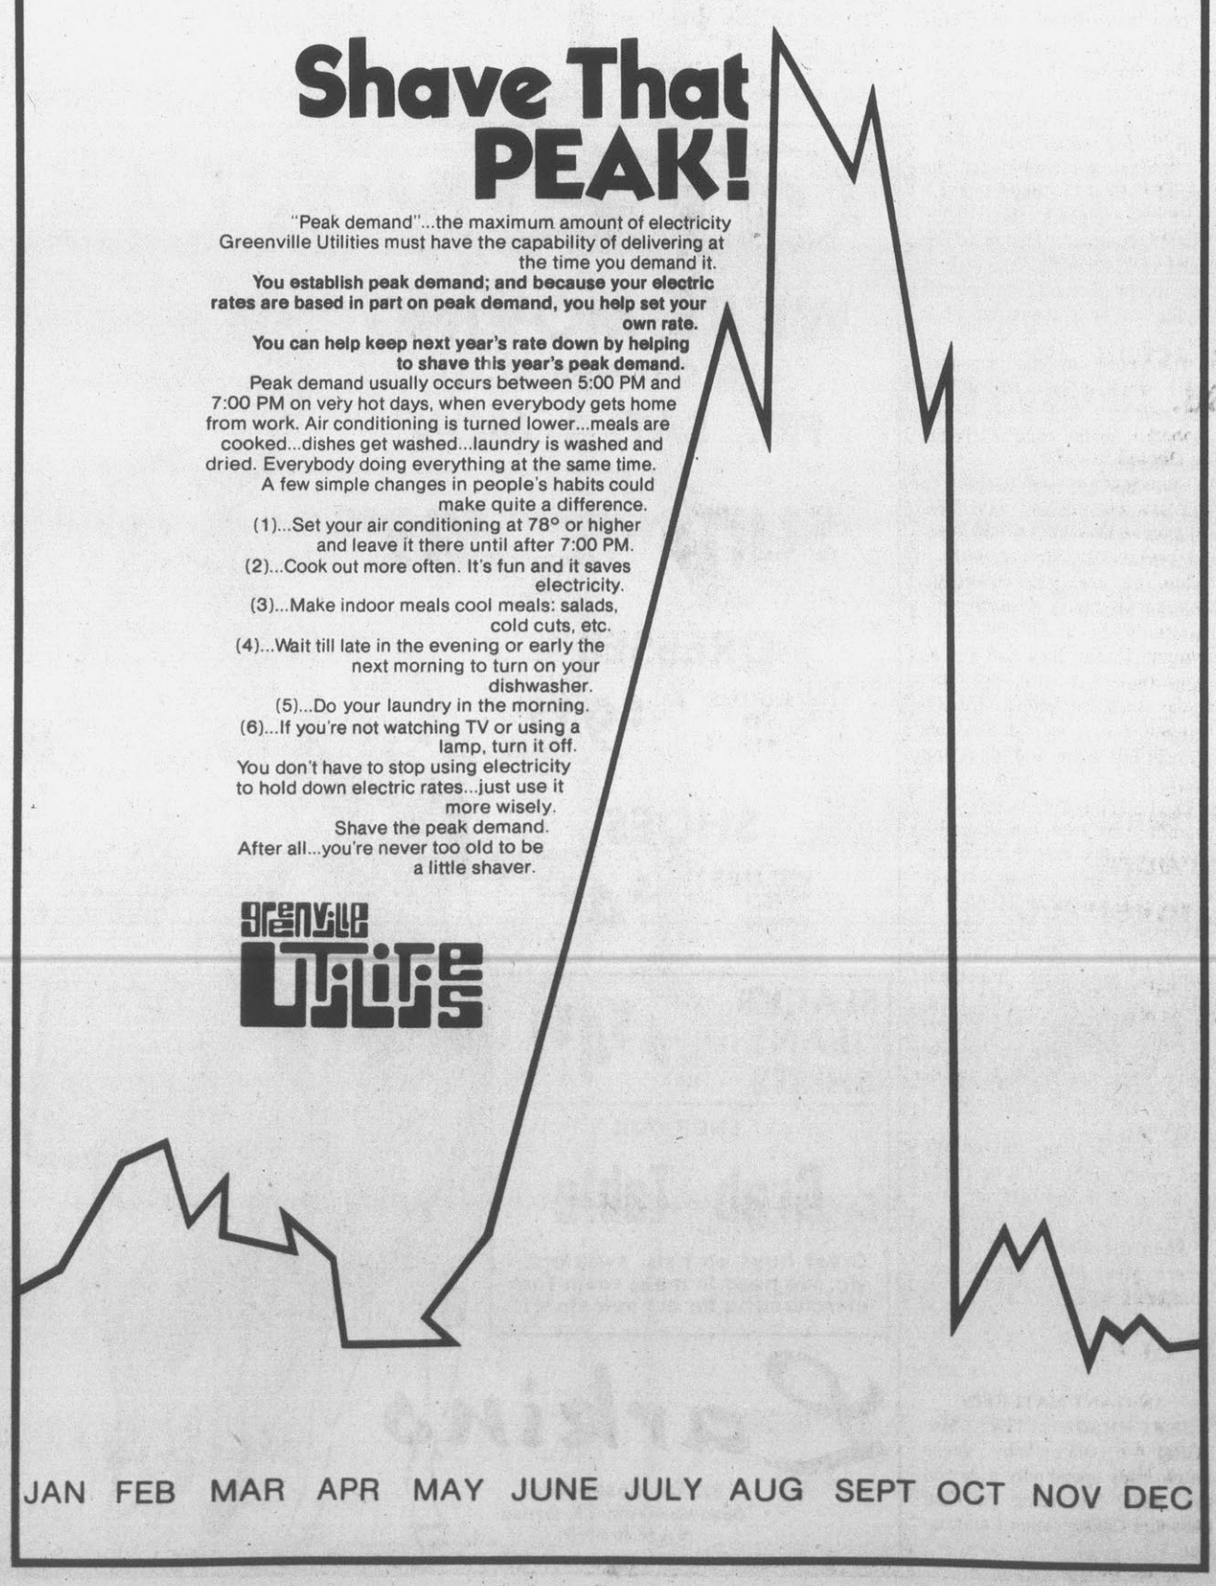

(1)...Set your air conditioning at 78° or higher and leave it there until after 7:00 PM.
(3)...Make indoor meals cool meals: salads, cold cuts, etc.
(4)...Wait till late in the evening or early the next morning to turn on your dishwasher.
(5)...Do your laundry in the morning.
(6)...If you're not watching TV or using a lamp, turn it off.

You don't have to stop using electricity to hold down electric rates...just use it more wisely.

Shave the peak demand.

Coastal Area Publications Are Compiled

A composite list of current publications relating to the coastal area of North Carolina has been compiled by the East Carolina University Environmental Education Program.

John Buck, program director, said the listing is intended to be used by persons who are seeking recent information about such topics as barrier islands and shorelines, such as inlets and the Outer Banks, coastal agriculture, channelization, water resources, water quality and water sewer systems, coastal zone management, estuaries, fisheries coastal planning, storms, marshes, sea law, and others.

The list is available in a 36-page booklet, and includes film and slide presentations as well as printed material. Prices of the listings are given, with the source of each item.

Persons who wish to receive a copy of the list may write to Buck at the Environmental Education Program, ECU Division of Continuing Education, Greenville.

The ECU Environmental Education Program is supported by funds awarded by Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965. Cooperating with ECU on the coastal publications list was the N.C. Coastal Resources Commission.

Council Ends Meet

ROME (AP) — The 36-nation World Food Council ended its week-long meeting today without final action on food aid proposals but with a call by developing nations for its American director to resign.

After a marathon negotiating session, the council agreed to put in its final report a declaration by delegates of Third World countries expressing no confidence in the council's secretariat.

The secretariat is headed by John A. Hannah, 73, a former president of Michigan State University and former administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Third World delegates complained that the secretariat was heavily weighted in favor of Western industrial nations with three Americans and a Frenchman holding the top six jobs.

Set Motorcycle Care Course

Pitt Technical Institute and Stan's Sport Center will co-sponsor a 24 hour course in Basic Motorcycle and Repair beginning July 8th. The class will meet on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7-10:00 at Stan's Sport Center.

The course will teach the student how to operate and care for a motorcycle.

Enrollment for the course will be limited. All interested persons are asked to call Pitt Tech's Continuing Education Division at 756-3130, ext. 38, to preregister for the course.

Elected To Bd. Directors

Robert L. Abbott of Greenville was elected to the N. C. Society of Accountants Board of Directors during the Society's 38th Annual Convention held this past week at Wrightsville Beach.

Also at the Accountants Convention, W.L. Howell of Williamston was awarded the Pioneer Club Certificate in recognition of his 25 years of active membership in the Society.

Attended Kiwanis Convention

W.F. Weston, Kelley Rowe, Edward Hartsell and Ed Yancey attended the 60th annual convention of Kiwanis International in Atlanta, June 22-25.

The Greenville men were among 18,000 people attending the convention, representing 280,000 Kiwanians in 47 countries. All are members of various Greenville Kiwanis Clubs.

Graduate Of King's College

Audrey Elaine Daniels of Greenville was among students receiving a degree from King's College of Raleigh during recent graduation ceremonies. This year's graduating class was the first to receive degrees since King's has achieved Junior College of Business status.

Film Classics Of 1930's Showing On UNC-TV

On July 4, the beginning of America's 200th year, the UNC-TV Network, Channel 25, Greenville, begins a second series of Hooray For Hollywood films from the past.

Each Friday for 13 weeks at 9:00 pm, Hooray For Hollywood will bring great thirties' film classics into the homes of North Carolina.

The series opens with His Girl Friday, starring Cary Grant and Rosalind Russell. Written for the stage in 1928 by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, The Front Page was dubbed the greatest newspaper comedy of them all. This 1940 film version substitutes Russell in the formerly male role of Hildy Johnson, a reporter determined to escape the cutthroat racket of scoop journalism to seek a peaceful life in marriage.

In 1929, Paramount Studios hired stage director Rouben Mamoulian to direct Applause, starring Helen Morgan. With the job, he accepted the challenge of sound pictures, still in their infancy. Applause which airs July 11, was the first film ever to use two microphones to record simultaneously.

City Streets, the July 18 feature, stars Sylvia Sidney in her first movie role. The 1931 film is considered one of the best gangster films ever produced. The film casts Sidney opposite Gary Cooper portraying her boy friend who gets involved with New York racketeers.

The legendary train of the thirties, the "20th Century" was considered the latest thing in speed and luxury. The movie of the same title has Carole Lombard pitted against John Barrymore in a turbulent courtship with professional strains. This film launched Lombard's career. 20th Century will be aired July 25.

On August 1, Hooray For Hollywood presents an adventure story set in China. Considered one of the thirties' masterpieces of adventure, The General Died At Dawn stars Gary Cooper and Madeline Carroll in a tale of love cast in the midst of a revolution.

Maurice Chevalier teams with Jeanette MacDonald, Charles Ruggles and Myrna Loy for a delightful 1932 misical Love Me Tonight on August 8. Chevalier plays a tailor disguised as a baron; MacDonald, a princess. Superb music combines with imaginative cinematography to produce what has been described as one of the best musicals of the thirties.

The pace changes abruptly with the August 15 film American Madness. Directed by Frank Capra, American Madness was a true Depression movie including a run on the bank, a trusted employee seducing the boss's wife and the pessimistic psychology present during the Hoover years. Walter Huston, Pat O''Brien and Constance Cummings star.

The Shanghai Express is obviously a Marlene Dietrich vehicle. Her famous face and ever posed figure monopolize one's attention throughout the 1932 film. Shanghai Express, which also stars Clive Brook, Anna May Wong and Warner Oland, airs August 22.

Television viewers recognize Kitty Carlisle on current game shows, but may be surprised to see her in a mystery, Murder At The Vanities. Elaborate productions including semi-nude showgirls on giant powder puffs, and chorus girls costumed as Mexican peons make the film visually entertaining. Starring with Carlisle was Carl Brisson, a German actor, and Jack Oakie. Murder At The Vanities airs August 29.

In Mr. Deeds Goes To Town, showing September 5, viewers will see Gary Cooper play the role of Longfellow Deeds, the poet laureate of Mandrake Falls, Vt. and part-time musician as a tuba player in the town's band. An uncle dies leaving Deeds $20,000,000 and his problems commence. Jean Authur plays a scheming reporter whose best laid plans turn on her.

Combining the American success story with romantic heartbreak, Counsellor-At-Law was the 1933 film version of the 1931 Broadway hit starring Paul Muni. In the movie, which will show September 12, John Barrymore was cast as the ghetto-born lawyer who, burdened with a spoiled society wife and legal crises, finds support in his secretary, played by Bebe Daniels.

In 1934, Cecil B. DeMille directed the first sound Cleopatra starring Claudette Colbert, Henry Wilcoxon and Warren William. Ingenious sets and the briefest of gowns and togas were designed for a cast of 8000 to create the famous atmosphere of the DeMille extravaganzas. Cleopatra airs September 19.

Director Ernst Lubitsch called it his favorite film and Trouble In Paradise is indeed rich with the famous Lubitsch touch—that light, cynical approach to human behavior. Trouble In Paradise, showing September 26, is a comedy about the adventures of two society crooks. Miriam Hopkins, Kay Francis, Herbert Marshall and Charles Ruggles are among the superb cast that play out this 1932 comedy.

A special feature of this year's Hooray For Hollywood series is a 12-episode serial The Phantom Empire. An episode of this serial about a superscientific lost civilization will follow each of the film features. Gene Autry, in his first role, finds a lost civilization in a cave beneath his Radio Ranch.

Marine Band In Park Concert Today

A 30 minute "Musical History of the United States" with a narrative Bicentennial Patriotic theme, is to be the major attraction of the "Sunday In the Park" concert by the 2d Marine Aircraft Wing Band today.

The Marine Band, under the direction of 1st Lt. Jesse O. Sunderland, will make a repeat appearance this summer on the grassy slope east of Reade Circle between Third and Fourth Streets, summer home of the annual summer twilight series of entertainment. Today's concert begins at 7:00 p.m. and will last approximately one and one-half hours.

In addition to the special bicentennial musical history, the Marine Band will play a varied selection of music that will include martial airs, semi-classical selections, polkas and music reminiscent of the big dance band era.

Fourth Of July Plans Announced

"Fun for the Family" is the idea behind the fourth annual Jaycee Fourth of July Celebration to be held next Friday on the Town Common.

Beginning at 11:30 a.m., games and contests such as greasy pole climb, horseshoes, sack race, three-leg race and bingo are planned for the day.

Live music will be provided in the afternoon and a show by the Tar River Twirlers, a square dance group, will begin at 5:30.

Sunday in the Park will be held Friday to coincide with the Celebration and will get underway at 7:30. The program will feature the Flatland Family Band and an all community sing.

A fireworks show will be presented after Sunday in the Park.

The Jaycettes are sponsoring a bake sale at the Celebration and will present a cake to the oldest woman registered for the day.

State Brochure Now Available

A new brochure on the travel opportunities of North Carolina's coast is available to travelers. The brochure was developed by 13 coastal Tar Heel Counties—Beaufort, Brunswick, Carteret, Chowan, Craven, Dare, Hyde, Martin, New Hanover, Onslow, Pasquotank, Pender and Washington. It ties together the 340-miles of coastline and lists the principal attractions, both natural and man-made, which the traveler can enjoy.

Cost of the North Carolina Coastal folder was underwritten by each of the counties through their Chambers of Commerce or development agency and a matching grant from the Travel Development Section of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

Copies of the brochure are available from travel agents, or write: "Coast", Travel Development Section, P.O. Box 27687, Raleigh, North Carolina 27611.

—A Review—

Book On Dare County, Cradle Of History

Some Whisper Of Our Name. By Nell Wise Wechter. Maps by Robert W. Wechter. Manteo, N.C. 195 pps, paper, $3.95

As a chronicler of a local region, Dare County in this case, veteran Eastern North Carolina writer Nell Wise Wechter has thrown new light on the area that is the cradle of America's English beginnings.

One of the prime pleasures in this easy flowing book is the excitement of rediscovering half-forgotten facts on hundreds of years of history in this region that knew the drama of pioneering efforts in its early days, an area that since those early days has been passed by in the mainstream of events until its recent reemergence as a prominent tourist area.

In any account of Dare County, the question of the fate of the first English settlers is bound to arise. Mrs. Wechter offers the whole range of known facts and questionable myths about this eternally fascinating unresolved mystery—including the romantic possibility that the settlers were absorbed into the mainland Matchapungos, or Beechland Indian tribe. . . "Frank Cahoon, Sheriff of Dare County. . . can trace his lineage to . . . one of the blue-eyed, blond-haired Indians of early Beechlands."

"It is a matter of curiosity . . . why, in three hundred eighty-seven years, English or American historians, antiquarians or archeologists have not investigated Beechlands to a greater extent, studied its artifacts and inscriptions and published their findings," Mrs. Wechter writes in the chapter on East Lake.

Mrs. Wechter delves into the history of Dare County, past and present, through a system of separate chapters on each village and community. This system is ideal for Dare County, where geographical remoteness and economic isolation have sustained pockets of local color and tenaciously held customs, giving each community something uniquely its own even down to the present day. There have been, and are, interconnecting ties and loyalties, and these are shown in all subtle shadings.

Since she is a native of Dare County, writing about the tenor of life in an area where little things are important comes to her naturally. An outsider, for example, might not have included hotel rates in Manteo in 1907. . . "European plan at 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00 per day. . . Baths, 25 cents extra. Meals 50 cents."

Some Whisper Of Our Name encompasses flora and fauna, anecdotes, reference material, history, economics, all cheek to jowl, and it works in a relaxed, folksy telling that never becomes quaint. For example:

—"Old timers in Stumpy Point still talk about the time when tobacco and snuff were banned in the village. The Sunday School superintendent. . . had little patience with the 'filthy' habit of using tobacco in any form. . ."

—on baseball in Manns Harbor—"The proceeds (of lemonade sales) were usually split between church and the local baseball team."

—about early logging around East Lake—". . . it is reputed that five hundred Russians were imported to work in the logging swamps. Many tales have come down about the harsh punishments dealt out by the head man of the Russian loggers when one of his men got out of line."

Sand dunes and shipwrecks, the rise and fall of villages, ferries and schools, people and government projects, Coast Guard stations and folk medicine, family names and national parks, sea gulls and old ballads, jokesters and Indian tribes—these are all part of this totally captivating book.

The Dare County Bicentennial Steering Committee and the North Carolina Bicentennial Commission have dedicated this book to the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of the United States.

Some Whisper Of Our Name is a triumphant prebicentennial celebration. It is undoubtedly Mrs. Wechter's finest book to date, one that does a first-rate job of informing and entertaining. Put it at the very top of your 1975 summer reading list.

"Blind Boy" Is Library Film

Blind Boy, the poignant story of a young Russian boy and a blind pelican, is the movie being shown this coming week for children in Greenville on the City Library Film Series.

The film will be shown at 4 p.m. Tuesday at Carver Library and at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Children's Room of Sheppard Memorial Library. Due to Friday being the fourth of July, there will be no Friday film showing at East Branch Library.

The Library Film Series for Children is free and all Greenville children are invited to attend.

Rescue Manual By Local Man

The International Manual of Basic Rescue Methods. By Dawson Nethercutt. Greenville, N.C. (Morgan Printers, Inc.), 114 pps, paper, illustrated, $4.50

For a long time there was no one manual on basic rescue methods commonly used by rescue units engaged in heavy rescue duty throughout the states. Various units, while employing similar basic methods, nevertheless employed an assortment of references for training members.

With a view to consolidating an acceptable basic manual suitable for general use nationally, a Pitt County resident Dawson Nethercutt, has worked for more than a year selecting, updating and compiling material for The International Manual of Basic Rescue Methods.

Recently printed by a local Greenville printer, the large format paper back publication has been adopted by the International Rescue and First Aid Association as that organization's official training maual for heavy duty rescue. The organization operates primarily in the U.S. and Canada with chapters in other English speaking countries.

The manual is divided into nine chapters—"Rescue;" "Ropes and Knots;" "Block and Tackle;" "Ladders;" "Casualty Handling;" Rescue From Upper Stories;" "Lashings;" and "Riggings."

Explanations and directions are in simple, easy to follow language. A total of 91 figures, drawings and photographs, many full page, supplement the textual passages.

The International Manual of Basic Rescue Methods, while designed as a basic working tool for members of rescue, squads, should be a valuable reference for individuals or groups who work or play in situations where there is a potential need for rescue—i.e. leaders of summer camps, hiking groups, etc.

A limited number of copies of the manual are available for purchase at $4.50 per copy and can be ordered direct from Dawson Nethercutt, Route 1, Box 65, Grimesland, N. C. 27837.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By JUNE PARKER
Book News

Money and how to spend it seem to be on everyone's mind these days. Sheppard Memorial Library has two new books that will help with money problems.

The first book is SYLVIA PORTER'S MONEY BOOK. Without knowledge of the laws of economic survival, one can easily be trapped by the complexity of today's world. Sylvia Porter covers with sensible, down to earth advice nearly every problem that comes up in everyday life. She gives helpful hints on buying groceries such as how to get the most for your money and unit pricing. She discusses the best times to take advantage of sales in clothing and how different kinds of places to live are explained. She talks about the advantages and disadvantages of renting, buying a condominium, or buying a house. She gives guidelines for how much a person can afford to spend for a place to live. She also discusses spending money for cars, insurance, vacations, and college educations. After these everyday problems, she covers expenses that crop up only once in a while such as weddings, children, divorces, funerals, and wills.

After telling how to spend money, she discusses investing money in stocks, mutual funds, bonds, and land. She also includes a section on consumer rights and how to get help when these rights are ignored.

This book can be a basis in guiding personal and family finance. The information can easily be translated into whatever is right for a particular person to do.

Sylvia Porter took five years in developing this book. She is a well-known authority on finance and consumer economics. Her daily newspaper column is read by forty million people in 350 newspapers in the United States and the world. She is the author of several books.

The second book is BUY IT RIGHT by Jean Ende and Clifford Earle. This book is a guide on budgeting and buying. It tells how to beat the high cost of living by carefully buying everything from soup to insurance. Nobody wants to be cheated whether he is buying a roast, a car, a house, or a television tube. This book tells in practical, easy-to-read language what to watch out for when buying any of these things as well as appliances, clothing, furniture, and vacations. As in the Porter book, there is a final chapter on what to do and where to go in government agencies and the courts if you do get taken by a purchase.

Jean Ende is the director of Consumer Information in the New York City Department of Consumer Affairs. Clifford Earl who formerly directed research in consumerism in New York is now in private industry.

Roundtable In August

Approximately 100 amateur and professional writers are expected to attend the 11th Annual Tar Heel Writers Roundtable at the Hilton Inn in Raleigh August 15-16. . . The program will include sessions on plotting, selling the outdoor article, poetry, freelancing, writing the feature article, the Gothic novel, and characterization.

H. G. Jones, Curator of the North Carolina Collection, University of North Carolina, will be the speaker at the Awards Luncheon. He has published three books of historical non-fiction and is completing a fourth. He will speak on "The Writer and the Bicentennial".

Other speakers are Manly Wade Wellman, author of over 65 books, including novels, non-fiction, and juveniles, and widely known as a teacher of creative writing; Sue Spencer, author of two books, "Words on Target" and "Communicate! The Bright, Effective Way", and numerous magazine and newspaper articles; Jim Dean, staff member of Wildlife in North Carolina magazine and freelancer for national outdoor magazines; Jack McLarn, who writes juvenile fiction for national publications as well as adult fiction and technical articles; Frances Mims, South Carolina poet, novelist and feature writer; Peggy Payne, full-time freelancer for magazines and newspapers; Betty Hodges, book columnist and newspaper woman's editor; Patricia Hagan Howell, author of three novels, "Invitation to the Wedding," "Dark Journey Home" and "Winds of Terror"; June Strader, author of "Tide's Rise", a Gothic novel; Peggy Hoffmann, author of two adult novels, "My Dear Cousin" and "Forest of Feathers", and several juvenile books, fiction and non-fiction.

Registrants will attend the Director's Get-Acquainted Party, Poets' Breakfast and the Awards Luncheon. Contest categories are juvenile fiction, poetry, feature article, and short story. Contest deadline is July 21.

Hatteras Students Look At Their Home Island

ONE OF TWO. . .bold black and white two page prints from the current issue of "Sea Chest." Students of the Cape Hatteras School have now completed two years of publishing this fine magazine on life on the Outer Banks.

Sea Chest. A magazine by students of Cape Hatteras School. Published by The Times Printing Company, Manteo, N.C. Vol.2, Number 3, Spring-Summer 1974-75. 73 pps, illustrated. $2.00 or by subscription, $5.50 for three issues, from Cape Hatteras School, Box 278, Buxton, N.C. 27920.

After two full years of publication, the literary, historical, photographic magazine by students of Cape Hatteras School on the Outer Banks continues to be an innovative and imaginative publication.

One of a growing number of school magazines based on the Foxfire concept, Sea Chest has gained a reputation for excellence in highlighting the islands rich regional local history and culture.

Marlin fishing and activities associated with the catching of this strong fighting fish constitute the major theme of this issue. "Life In The Marlin Club" is a group effort article, with several students conducting interviews, editing them and providing photographs. Usually, the annual tournament is held the second week in June.

More of this subject is contained in interview with Lloyd Styron, who "probably knows as much about bill fishing as anyone on Hatteras Island." Styron tells the students "The first man to ever fish for blue marlin here was a Colonel Hugh Wise from Princeton, New Jersey. That was in 1933." From that beginning 40 years ago, the history of marlin fishing and the men following this sport makes interesting reading.

The drama of the world record catch, a 1,142 pound blue marlin caught off Oregon Inlet is told in Bob Hutchinson's article in "The Virginian-Pilot" reprinted in this issue of Sea Chest.

Two articles give insight into fishing as a means of livelihood on the island today — "Commercial Fishing: A Way Of Life," by Arnold Tolson; and "Jasper Williams, Commercial Fisherman." The latter article is a discussion by Williams of techniques and results of commercial fishing now and some years ago.

An older citizen, Mrs. Linda Casey Midgett, "My Stay At The Lighthouse During The 1920's" takes a nostalgic view of the not so good old days when the big keeper's house was void of water, electricity and indoor toilets. Yet, there are many pleasurable recollections and memorable events recalled by a woman who lived at the foot of the tall lighthouse half a century ago.

A class research project has resulted in locating, describing and photographing remains of horse and cattle baths. "When Was The Last Time Your Horse Had A Bath?' has information on eight sites in the Hatteras area.

"New Residents On Hatteras Island;" "Willie Austin, Boatbuilder of Avon;" "Weather Station Journal" (Cape Hatteras September 1876); a selection of photographs; several student poems; recipes; folk "Beliefs From Onslow County;" and "Letters From Readers" round out the material in this issue. Two fine two-page black and white prints, by Cindy W. and E.W. complement the photographs.

Sea Chest is always a pleasure to read. This issue again underscores the ability of high school students to provide readers with a fresh viewpoint on old and new material. For those who might be interested, some back issues also are available.

Ashe, Evert, King Reach Quarter-Finals

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Arthur Ashe overcame a crop of volleying errors Saturday and reached the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon tennis championships for the first time in six years, but Tony Roche ended fellow Australian Ken Rosewall's bid to win the only major title to elude him.

The 31-year-old Ashe finished strongly for a 6-2, 5-7, 9-8, 6-3 triumph over Graham Stilwell of Britain while Roche the No. 16 seed on the comeback after injury, upset the second-seeded Rosewall 6-3, 6-8, 8-6, 6-1.

There was an air of sadness on the center court of the All-England Tennis Club as the 40-year-old Rosewall, looking weary and disspirited, made his exit. The little wizard has been a finalist here four times in 20 years but never a winner.

Ashe, the No. 6 seed, was the third American to make the men's quarter-finals. Defending champion Jimmy Connors and 11th-seeded Roscoe Tanner advanced on Friday.

All seven remaining women's seeds also advanced Saturday, including defending champion Chris Evert and five-time winner Billie Jean King.

Connors next plays Raul Ramirez of Mexico, Tanner will meet Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, Ashe will face Bjorn Borg, the 19-year-old Swede, and Roche will meet Tom Okker of The Netherlands.

Ramirez, seeded eighth, overran American Cliff Richey 6-2, 6-3, 6-2, and Vilas toiled for more than 2½ hours to beat Sandy Mayer of Wayne, N.J., 2-6, 7-5, 9-8, 6-3. Okker brushed past Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union 6-0, 6-2, 8-6.

The weather had cooled after days of blazing sun, but 28,000 persons poured into the All-England Club. At the halfway point, after six days of the tournament, attendance totaled 191,000 and was headed for a record.

Ashe, who spent three weeks in England playing in minor events and preparing on grass courts, played some fine tennis against Stilwell. But his victory was no walkover, and at one stage he faced a crisis.

The Englishman, 29, has struck his best form since he led Britain to the inter-zone finals of the Davis Cup in 1969. After being outclassed in the first set, he came back with a gritty display to win the second.

In that set, Stilwell won four service games in a row without dropping a point. The American was looking shaky, and his erratic forehand volleying threatened to cost him the match.

Stilwell made no impression on Ashe's service until the last game of the second set. Then Ashe double-faulted and, on set point, made a bad forehand volley. He failed with three more forehand volleys in the second game of the third set. Stilwell had four breaks in that game but couldn't cash in on them.

Ashe hung on grimly, and in the long fifth game, he broke service with a cunning short return and lured Stilwell into a half-volleying error.

It was virtually the end of the match. Ashe tightened his game and coasted home by winning nine games out of the remaining 13.

Richey, known to Wimbledon fans as a dogged fighter, never looked like stopping the progress of Ramirez. The graceful Mexican outplayed him from the start.

Mayer took the first set from Vilas, but the Argentine added bite to his returns and volleys and came through the next three sets. Both players, superbly fit and mobile, mixed power tennis with spin and subtlety. Vilas hit the shot of the match, and perhaps of the day, when he led 4-2 in the fourth set. He sped from the net to the baseline in pursuit of a lob and hit an incredible winning forehand over his shoulder.

Rosewall played with much of his old magic, but it was not enough to stop the hard-hitting Roche. In a bizarre second set, Rosewall broke service five times, and each time Roche broke back. Rosewall then broke through a sixth time at 7-6, and this time he held his service.

The old master again nosed ahead in the third, breaking for a 5-4 lead. But Roche came back and from then on the younger man looked more likely to win.

The outstanding women's match of the day saw Virginia Wade, the No. 6 seed from Britain, edge Rosemary Casals 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. There were long rallies with game after game hanging in the balance. Neither double faulted and there were few unforced errors. Miss Casals remained in contention through most of the final game until she served at 4-5 and Miss Wade conjured up three superb backhand returns for the match.

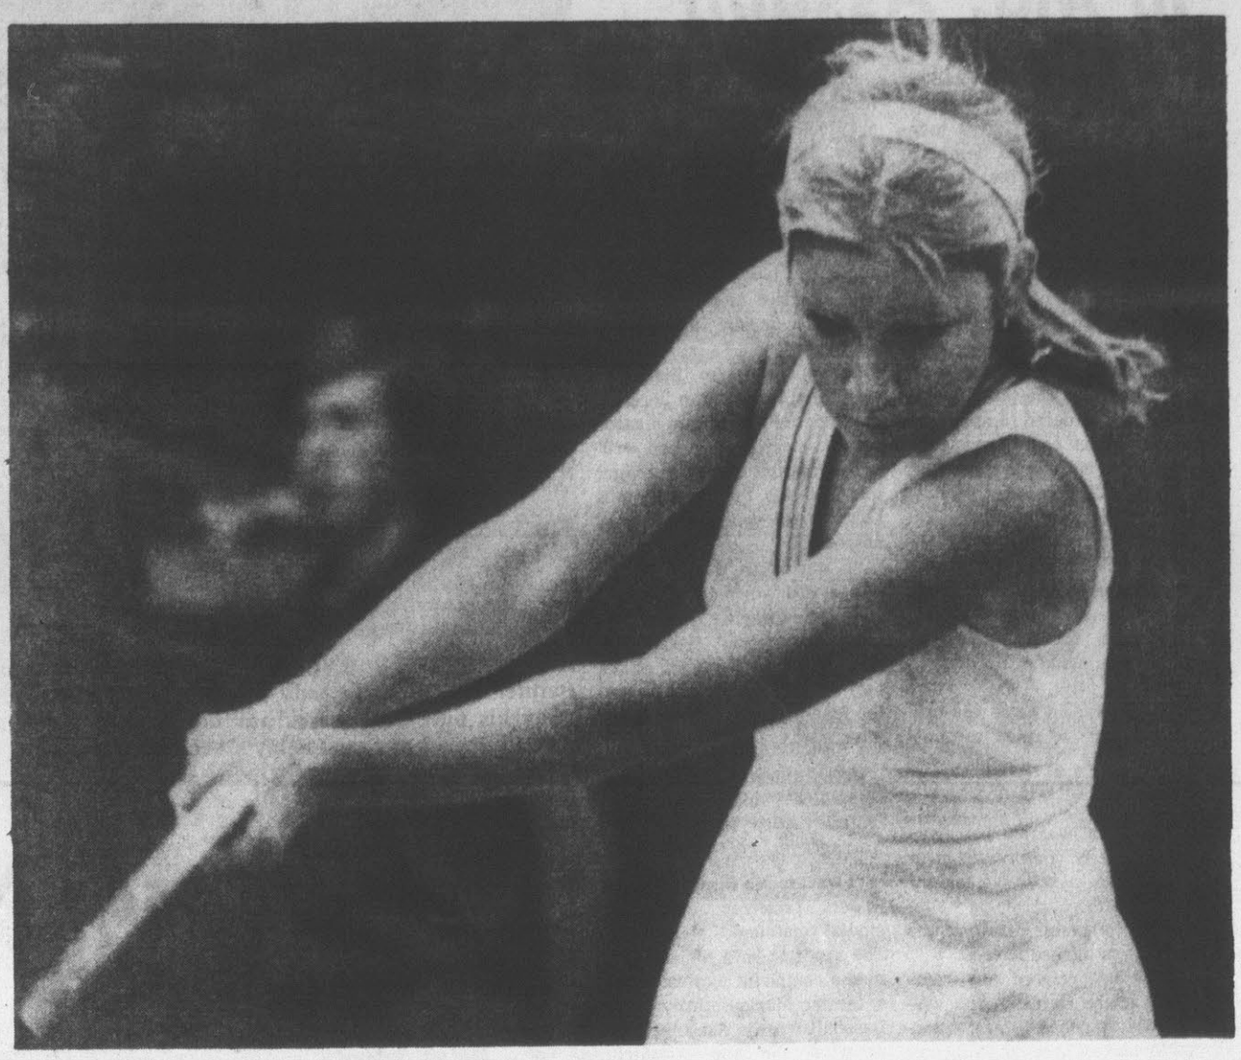

All of the other women advanced with ease. Miss Evert cooly downed Lindsay Beaven of Britain 6-2, 6-4; No. 2 seed Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia hammered Natasha Chmyriova of the Soviet Union 6-1, 6-0; Ms. King, the No. 3 seed, outclassed Belgium's Michele Gurdal 6-1, 6-2; fourth-seeded Evonne Goolagong Cawley eliminated Jennifer Dimond 6-2, 6-4 in an all-Australian duel; Margaret Court, another Aussie seeded fifth who is a three-time Wimbledon champion, sank Glynis Coles of Britain 6-2, 6-2, and seventh-seeded Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union downed Mima Jausovec of Yugosalvia 6-4, 6-2.

DEACONS WIN

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Junior Jay Haas of Wake Forest shot a steady two-under-par 70 Saturday to capture individual honors and teamed with Curtis Strange to lead the Deacons to a successful defense of their team title in the 78th annual NCAA Golf Championship.

Haas had a 72-hole score of 282, one ahead of Alabama's Jerry Pate, and two ahead of Strange, the defending champion.

Wake Forest had a team total of 1,156, over 30 strokes ahead of runner-up Oklahoma.

EVERT MOVES INTO QUARTER-FINALS—Power and determination shows on the face of America's Chris Evert, the defending champion from Fort Lauderdale, Fla, as she beats Britain's Lindsay Beaven, 6-2, 6-4, to move into the quarter finals of the women's singles of the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championship Saturday. Trevino, Others Said Lucky To Be Alive

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Lee Trevino and two other lightning-jolted pro golfers are lucky to be alive, their physician said Saturday.

"It is fantastic that three men were struck and all are living," Dr. Paul G. Fredrickson said. "It's quite phenomenal, I think."

Trevino, Jerry Heard and Bobby Nichols were listed in excellent condition in Hinsdale Hospital. All were stunned and shaken by lightning bolts that forced cancellation of Friday's round in the $200,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

Saturday's round also was washed out after heavy overnight rains made the Butler National Golf Club course unplayable. One round now is scheduld for Sunday and the final two rounds on Monday. However, the weather forecast was for thundershowers both days.

Heard, who was to be released from the hospital Saturday, said he hopes to be able to play when the tournament resumes. Trevino and Nichols will not play.

"Within a week they should be back on the golf course," Dr. Fredrickson said.

"It was a shakey experience for all of them, and I believe Lee was hit harder than any of them," Dr. Fredrickson said. "He was quite shaken up. He had an exit mark on his back and muscle rigidity for some time in his upper back.

"I think they are all fortunate to be here."

Trevino and Nichols were to remain hospitalized until Sunday for observation. They spent Friday night in the hospital's intensive care unit but were transferred to private rooms Saturday.

In the event that weather forces further cancellations, the tournament schedule could be extended as late as Tuesday. After that it would run into a conflict with next week's Milwaukee Open, and this event would be abandoned.

With only one round completed, Australian David Graham held the lead at 65. His six-under-par effort Thursday broke the course record by two strokes. Arnold Palmer was second at 68, with Heard and Gary Wintz next at 69.

Half the field of 156 had finished their second rounds Friday when play was cancelled. All those rounds will be played again in their entirity. Of those who had finished play Friday, none had broken par 142 for two rounds.

"Lee is awful shaken up," said Albert Salinas, his personal manager who spent the night at the hospital with Trevino. "He's stiff and sore all over.

"As soon as he gets out of the hospital , we're going home to El Paso. The doctor here said Lee should check with his personal physician when we get home, just as a safety precaution. After that, it's pretty much a personal thing.

"You know Lee, as soon as he's up and about, he's gonna want to play."

Trevino is scheduled to compete in the British Open in Carnoustie, Scotland, July 9-12. He is a two-time winner of that esteemed championship and is among the favorites for the ancient title again this season.

"I don't think there's much chance he'd miss it," Salinas said. "I know he'll want to play if it's at all possible."

Salinas said the players "are confused about how it all happened."

Witnesses said Trevino and Heard sheltered under an umbrella when a violent thunderstorm forced suspension of play shortly after 4 p.m. Friday. Trevino was leaning against his bag of clubs. A lightning bolt hit in or near a lake adjacent to the 13th green. The bolt apparently bounced from the lake, through Trevino's bag and into his shoulder.

He rolled over a couple of times, shouted "I've been hit," and fell back to the ground, witnesses said.

"He was conscious but very scared and thought he was going to die," said Ann Grassel, 22, of Libertyville, Ill., among the spectators who rushed to the aid of the fallen players.

An ambulance was called. Heard walked the few steps to the ambulance, but Trevino was carried on a stretcher.

Nichols was knocked to the ground while he was in the fourth fairway. Tony Jacklin of England, who was in the same pairing with Nichols, said the same bolt "knocked the club from my hands and sent it spinning about 15 feet away. I had a burning sensation in my hands."

He did not seek medical aid.

Nichols returned to the clubhouse, badly shaken. About a half-hour later he began suffering from a severe headache and was taken to the hospital.

"In cases such as this, we look for possible cardiac damage," Dr. Fredricks on said. "So far, there has been no indication of any. In fact, they are in excellent condition."

National television coverage of the event, scheduled for Saturday and Sunday by Hughes Television Network, was cancelled.

NCNB Holds Off Carolina Dairy; Pepsi, College View Halted, 5-5

North Carolina National Bank took over sole possession of third place in the Babe Ruth League yesterday with an 8-6 win over Carolina Dairy.

Pepsi-Cola and College View played six innings before the game was halted by wet grounds with the score knotted at 5-5. The contest will be completed on Wednesday.

NCNB is now 6-5 in the league, a half-game behind Pepsi, the second place team. Carolina Dairy fell off to 6-7 on the year.

NCNB scored one in the first inning. Doug Selby reached on a two-base throwing error. He moved up on an out and scored on a wild pitch.

The Bankers came back with another in the third to make it 2-0. Taylor Pace reached on an error and was sacrificed up. A wild pitch pushed him to third and he scored on Jerome Ross' double.

Carolina Dairy took advantage of some NCNB mistakes to push over four runs and gain the lead in the top of the fifth. With two away, Randy Hodges grounded to third, but the throw over pulled the first baseman off the bag, and although he had time to get back, he didn't leaving Hodges safe. Mike Williams walked and John Coffman reached on another error, this time a dropped pop fly, scoring Hodges. Bobby Woronoff reached on a third error, scoring both Williams and Coffman. Peter Pace then singled and a hit by Howard Tucker brought in Woronoff.

But NCNB came right back with three to regain the lead, 5-4. Selby singled and stole up, moving to third on an out. He scored on a passed ball. Jesse Baker reached on an error and Jerome Ross slapped a ball past second into center, then alterly raced on to second when no one covered the bag. Joey Mattheis singled, driving in both Baker and Ross.

In the sixth, NCNB picked up three more. Skip Topping doubled and Glen Moore grounded back to short. The ball was played to third, but was errored. Moore moved on to second on the play. Selby reached on an error, scoring Topping and Pace laid down a squeeze bunt to score Moore. Baker reached on an error, scoring Selby with the final NCNB run.

Carolina Dairy came back with two in the seventh. Coffman singled and stole up, scoring on Pace's hit. Tucker reached on an error and walks to Marshall Heath and Rufus Sutton brought in Pace.

Pepsi-Cola came up with three runs in the first inning of their game. Will Sanderson singled and moved to third on a wild pitch and a passed ball. He scored on Derek Brewington's sacrifice fly. Greg Lee then singled and Ray Kilpatrick got a hit. Chris Keys walked, loading the bases. Walks to Mickey Finn and Calvin Parker brought in Lee and Kilpatrick.

College View came up with one in the fifth. H. L. Austin walked and moved up on a wild pitch. After Jimmy Clemons walked, Reggie Spain reached on an error, scoring Austin.

Four more came over in the sixth, giving College View a 5-3 lead. Ricky Bolonde was hit by a pitch and Bubber Rowlette walked. Marshall Crumpler also walked, loading the bases. Austin reached on an error, scoring Bolonde. Rowlette scored on a wild pitch and Clemons walked. Spain hit a sacrifice fly to score Crumpler and an error let Austin score.

Pepsi came back with two in the bottom of the inning to tie it. Finn walked and Parker doubled. Bob Morehead came on to run for him. A passed ball scored Finn, and Danny Hester singled in Morehead.

After a double play ended the inning, the umpires called a halt with completion set for Wednesday.

Exchange And Pepsi In Finals

Pepsi-Cola, 4-0 winners over the Moose and Exchange, 15-0 victors over the Graniteers will meet in the Tar Heel League championship, Monday afternoon.

Pepsi will face the regular season champs in on a game and the winner of that game will meet the North State Little League champ for the city title.

In the first game at Elm Street, Pepsi jumped on the Moose for a 2-0 lead in the first. Ricky Sutton singled and Jeff Wilson walked. A passed ball moved them both up and Eric Bowman reached on an error scoring both runners.

Pepsi put it away with two more tallies in the third. Kelly Kee singled and Sutton doubled him to third. Wilson singled scoring Kee and Sutton scored on an out.

Pepsi pitcher Wilson held the Moose to two hits, struck out four and walked one batter.

In the second game, Exchange took the lead in the second. Billy Bost reached on an error and Jimmie Jones walked. Frank Norris also walked and a walk to Allison Taylor forced in Bost. A fielder's choice scored Jones.

The Graniteers got one in the bottom of the frame. Tony Ellis walked and wild pitches moved him to third. He scored on an error.

John Williams doubled to open the third and scored on a walk to Jones. Jones's walk forced Bost to second after Bost had singled. Bost scored on a passed ball.

Exchange rallied for five in the fourth, four in the fifth and two in the sixth.

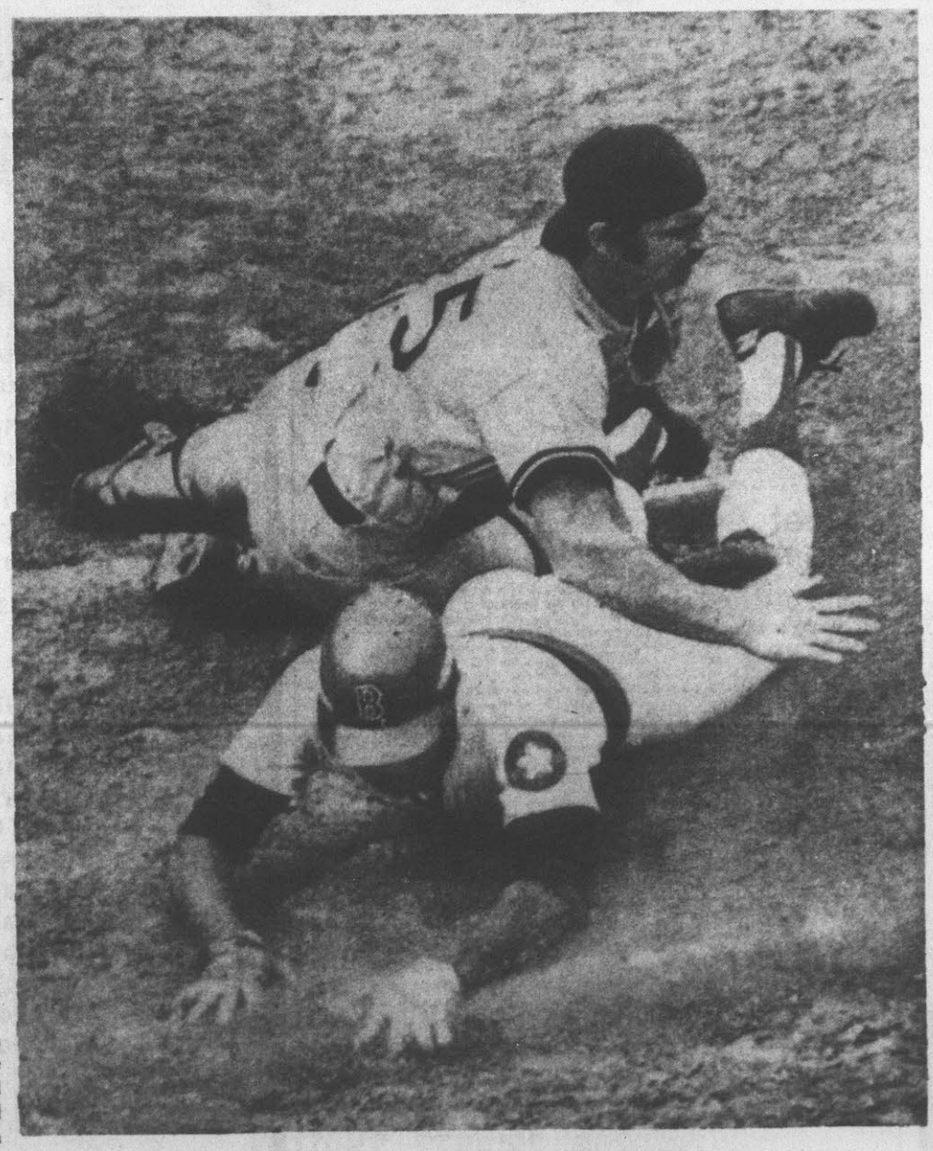

Mark Douglas, Gordon Douglas and Williams had three hits for Exchange and Jones had two. Williams and Billy Kittrell held the Graniteers to one hit, a single in the fourth.

DIVES TO THE PLATE—Boston Red Sox' Cecil Cooper slides safely under New York Yankee catcher Thurman Munson, to score on a sacrifice fly to center by Rick Burleson in the first inning of their game Saturday at Fenway Park. The throw from Yankees' Walt Williams was wide to the plate. Williams later sparked the Yankees to an 8-6 win and a return to first in the American East. (AP Wirephoto)

Yankees Rally To Top Boston; Regain First

BOSTON (AP) — Walt Williams ripped a tie-breaking double between the legs of Boston third baseman Rico Petrocelli with one out in the eighth inning Saturday, sparking the New York Yankees to an 8-6 victory over the Red Sox.

The triumph put the Yankees back into first place in the American League's East Division.

The decisive run off reliever Reggie Cleveland, 4-4, offset a slugging show by Boston's Carl Yastrzemski, who drove in four runs with his eighth and ninth homers of the season and also added a double.

Yastrzemski gave the Red Sox a 2-1 lead with a solo home run in the fourth inning and blasted a game-tying three-run shot in the sixth that chased New York starter Doc Medich. The Yankees had taken a 6-2 lead by knocking out Boston starter Bill Lee during a five-run fifth-inning rally.

New York, which dropped the first two games of the four-game series, moved back in front of the Red Sox by half a game in the nationally televised contest.

Sandy Alomar opened the New York eighth with a single. He was forced by Bobby Bonds, but Williams then drilled his run-scoring double through Petrocelli into the left field corner and took third on the throw to the plate. He scored on a sacrifice fly by Thurman Munson, who drove in two other runs with a bases-loaded single in the fifth.

Dick Tidrow, who relieved Medich in the sixth, boosted his record to 5-0 by blanking the Red Sox on four hits following Yastrzemski's second home run which came with none out in the sixth following singles by Denny Doyle, Cecil Cooper and Rick Burleson. The outburst came after Medich had struck out five consecutive batters.

Alex Johnson gave the Yankees a 1-0 lead with his first home run of the season in the first inning. It was his second homer since the Yankees acquired him late last season and both have come in Fenway Park, the other last September.

Legion Postponed

Greenville's American Legion postponed a doubleheader with Wilson last night because of rain. The twin-bill had been set for Harrington Field.

No new date was set for the replay of the games. Greenville travels to Snow Hill today, and has a game in Williamston on Monday.

Fans Try Anything

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Fans try all sorts of tricks to get into the All-England Tennis Championships at Wimbledon, but this was ridiculous.

A $23,000 double-decker bus was stolen from the National Bus Co. in Devizes, Wiltshire, early Saturday.

It was found hours later 90 miles away—blocking one of the main roads to the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club.

Police were out looking for a man in his mid-20s with long dark hair.

The man told a hitchhiker, who passed the information on to the police, that he wanted to see the tennis matches.

Houk Charged In Md. Assault

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ralph Houk, the Detroit Tigers manager known for his temperamental nature on the baseball diamond, was released on his own recognizance by a district court commissioner Saturday after being formally charged with one count of assault.

Houk, who allegedly vented his anger at a Baltimore Evening Sun sportswriter by slapping him about the head Friday night, was ordered to appear in state district court here Sept. 24 during his club's next road trip to Baltimore.

The Detroit manager was questioned by police about the incident Saturday after he suddenly appeared at the Northern District headquarters to answer a warrant for his arrest, a spokesman said.

Dennis Hill, the police spokesman, said Houk was ushered before the court commissioner after questioning, and formally charged with one count of assault.

The arrest warrant had been issued early Saturday after Phil Hersh, a sportswriter for the Baltimore Evening Sun, filed a complaint detailing the manager's alleged assault.

Houk has refused any comment on the incident, and was allowed by police to use a normally-locked door to avoid reporters and photographers who had gathered at the station.

Efforts to contact the Detroit manager later proved futile, but Houk was expected to be on hand Saturday night at Memorial Stadium when the Tigers faced the Baltimore Orioles.

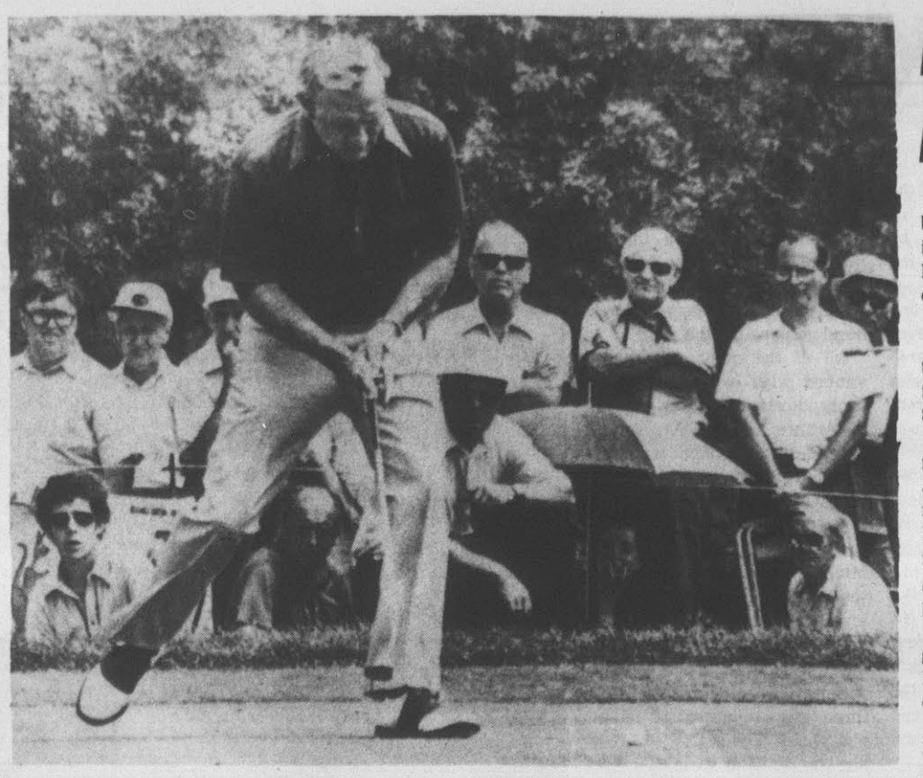

Houk was accompanied to the station by two other men, but police refused to identify them other than to say neither was an attorney.

Hersh alleged in his complaint that Houk began berating him before Friday night's game about a story that he had written saying the Detroit manager told his club "the situation is hopeless but you can still play respectably."

"I started to duck out the closest door when Houk started slapping me saying I wasn't going through there," Hersh said, adding that the manager struck him several more times about the face before a Tigers player interceded.

Hersh swore out the assault complaint Friday, and early Saturday filed for the arrest warrant.

"I want to see future baseball writers protected from this kind of treatment," Hersh said. The reporter said he also had filed a complaint against Houk, a former Marine, through the Baseball Writers Association of America and the American League.

Lions' Galloway In No-Hitter; R. C. Wins

R. C. Cola gained a semi-final berth, while the Lions vaulted into the finals of the North State Little League Playoffs yesterday.

R. C. downed the Kiwanis, 14-10, in a first round game, while the Lions got no-hit pitching from Scott Galloway to take an 8-0 win in a semi-final contest.

R. C. will now meet the regular season Champs, the Jaycees, this afternoon, for the right to meet the Lions on Monday at 4 p.m. at Elm Steet for the league ritle. The winner goes on to the city championship.

Galloway didn't allow a hit in going the distance for the Lions, He walked just one and struck out eight.

The Lions got a run in the first as Roger Williams opened up with a solo home run.

It stayed that way until the forth when they added another. Arthur Fletcher doubled and moved up on a wild pitch. He then stole home.

Four more Lion runs came in the fifth. Jim Whitehurst singled and Jim Bearden walked. Williams again did his thing, this time hitting a three-run homer to up the lead to 5-0. Shelton Wilson then cracked out another homer before the inning ended.

The sixth saw the final two Lion runs score. Troy Hudson reached on a fielder's choice and Chris Smith walked. Both moved up on a passed ball and Whitehurst singled in Hudson. An error let Smith score.

In the second game, R. C. pushed over three runs in the first inning. Chris Joyner walked and so did Dwayne Fisher. Doug Berry reached on an error, loading the bases. Tracy Mills reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Joyner. Vince Hankins walked, bringing in Fisher. Mike Livingston singled in Berry for the 3-0 lead.

In the third, R. C. came up with six more runs for a 9-0 edge. Tracy Mills singled and Hankins walked. Livingston reached on a fielder's choice. Greg Wright doubled in both Mills and Hankins and a wild pitch scored Livingston. Jeff Wilson walked and a passed ball scored Wright. Fisher singled to score Wilson, and a hit by Berry brought in Fisher.

The Kiwanis came up with two in the bottom of the third. Tom Brown singled and Mike Thurber slapped a two-run homer.

They added another in the fourth. Greg Davis walked and Brown reached on a fielder's choice. Walks to Grant Stackhouse and Jay Whitehurst brought in Davis.

Two more R. C. runs came in the top of the fifth. Joyner walked and Fisher singled. Berry was hit by a pitch and Mills grounded out, scoring Joyner. Fisher scored on a passed ball.

The Kiwanis came up with four more in the fifth, cutting the lead to 11-7 Jeff Boyd walked as did John Parnell. Davis also walked, and a passed ball scored Boyd. Thurber then homered again, this time driving in three runs.

In the sixth, R. C. added three. Joyner reached on an error and Fisher walked. Passed balls scored Joyner. Stacey Mills singled in Fisher, and Berry got a hit. Tracy Mills walked, but Stacey Mills was then put out trying to score. Berry was also put out at the plate. Hankins walked and Livington hit into a fielder's choice, scoring Tracy Mills.

The Kiwanis got three in their half also. Spencer Mayo walked as did Boyd, after Brian Hill reached on an error. Greg Davis walked to force in Mayo, but Hill was put out on Brown's grounder. Thurber walked to score Boyd and Stackhouse reached on an error, scoring Davis. The rally ended there, however.

Hardee Misses No-Hit Bid; Graniteers Win

Junior Hardee came within one out of pitching a no-hitter Saturday against Auto Specialty winning 5-1 and the Graniteers outlasted Pitt Plaza, 12-11, in the Babe Ruth Prep League.

The Graniteers jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the top of the first capitalizing on four Pitt Plaza errors. Pitt Plaza battled back to push over two in the bottom of the frame.

Lynn Jackson led off the third with a single and Jeff Worthington got a hit moving him to third. Eddy Moye singled driving in Jackson with a fifth Graniteer run. Mike Campbell singled to load the bases and a hit by Melvin Stocks scored Worthington. Al Shackleford singled in a run and Chip David reached on an error scoring Campbell. Charles Daise was safe on a fielder's choice. Ricky West got a hit bringing in Shackleford and Davis and an error scored Daise.

Pitt Plaza rallied again to close the gap picking up five in the bottom of the third. Then in the fourth, Pitt Plaza pulled within a run, 12-11. Mark Shank singled and scored on David Carroll's double. Allen Collier singled and a walk to Garrett Young loaded the bases. Larry Jones walked forcing in Carroll and a hit by Don McGlohon brought Collier in. Howard Wilkerson singled to score Young. That closed the gap to a run's difference and then the rain put a stop to play after the Graniteers went down in order in the top of the sixth.

Hardee went the distance striking out four and walking three. The only hit came in the top of the seventh with one man on.

Cox Realty surprised Auto Specialty in the first game. Cox broke a 0-0 deadlock in the third pushing in two runs. Alan Clark singled and Patrick Wilson reached on an error. Both moved up on an out and Steve Hawkins was safe on an error. Roger Clemmons walked forcing in Clark and George Wilson reached on a fielder's choice to score Patrick Wilson.

Cox made it a 5-0 game in the fifth. Hawkins singled and stole second. Clemmons got a hit scoring Hawkins and Clemmons stole second. Wilson walked and Terry Skinner reached on an error. Steve Radford forced in Clemmons by walking and a passed ball scored Wilson.

Giants Rally To Nip Dodgers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Marc Hill chased Los Angeles starter Doug Rau with a game-tying single in the seventh inning and Bobby Murcer followed with a run-scoring pinch single off relief ace Mike Marshall, giving the San Francisco Giants a 2-1 victory Saturday over the slumping Dodgers.

Rau, 7-7, entered the seventh with a two-hitter and a 1-0 lead, but Chris Speier doubled with one out and pinch hitter Chris Arnold drew a two-out walk.

Hill singled on Rau's next pitch, and Marshall relieved when Jake Brown was sent up to bat for winning pitcher John Montefusco, 5-3, who had limited the Dodgers to five hits. Murcer replaced Brown and singled on a 3-2 pitch, scoring Arnold from second base.

The setback was the fourth in a row for the Dodgers, who started the day 5½ games behind Cincinnati in the National League West. The last three losses have been to the Giants.

Montefusco was nicked for a run in the fourth inning on Jimmy Wynn's leadoff double and a throwing error by second baseman Derrel Thomas, who tried to nail Wynn at third on Steve Garvey's grounder.

Gary Lavelle pitched the eighth inning, and Randy Moffitt worked the ninth to save the victory for Montefusco.

Mets Slosh To Win Over Phils

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Kingman's tie-breaking two-run single in the fifth inning and rookie Randy Tate's four-hit pitching led the New York Mets to a rain-delayed 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

Gene Clines started the fifth with an infield single off Steve Carlton, 6-6, who had won four in a row but suffered his first defeat since May 19.

Clines took second on a balk and went to third on Felix Millan's fly ball. Carlton walked Cleon Jones and Joe Torre to load the bases and fanned Rusty Staub for the second out, but Kingman then lined his tie-breaking hit to left field.

The Mets, winning their fourth game in a row, added a run in the sixth on a leadoff walk, consecutive errors by shortstop Larry Bowa and first baseman Dick Allen and Clines' sacrifice fly.

Tate, 3-6, walked four and struck out nine in pitching his first complete game in his 12th major league start. Wildness cost him a first-inning run when he walked Dave Cash, who stole second, was sacrificed to third and scored on Greg Luzinski's sacrifice fly.

After Rusty Staub gave the Mets a 2-1 lead with a run-scoring single in the first inning and a sacrifice fly in the third, the Phillies tied it in the fourth on Jay Johnstone's single and Allen's double.

The game was held up by rain for 1 hour, 27 minutes in the middle of the second inning.

Cubs Win On Homer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Bonham's six-hit pitching and George Mitterwald's second-inning home run gave the Chicago Cubs a 1-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday.

Mitterwald, a last-minute replacement in the starting lineup for Andy Thornton at first base, hit his third homer of the season off Jim Rooker, 5-4, who allowed only six hits. The ball cleared the 375-foot mark in left-center field.

Bonham gave up two-out singles to Rennie Stennett and Ed Kirkpatrick in the fifth but got Al Oliver to ground out.

AAU Trying To Keep Meet Alive

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Officials of the Amateur Athletic Union said Saturday they were proceeding with plans for the United States track and field team to face the Soviet Union in a dual meet in Kiev July 4-5 despite Russian skepticism that the meet would be held.

"The AAU is going ahead 100 per cent with its plans," one spokesman said while attending the finals of the National AAU Women's Seniors Outdoor Track and Field Championships at Loucks Field. "We are going ahead full steam."

"As far as we know the meet still is on," said another AAU official. "We don't know that there has been any change today."

The meet had run into snags because of a dispute over which network would televise it. The AAU has a contract with CBS, but the Russians made a deal with ABC. However, after the rift, ABC announced it had cancelled its television plans, and the AAU gave CBS the nod.

After being called off once, the meet was declared on again Friday by Pat Rico, head of the AAU Women's Track and Field Committee. Mrs. Rico announced the rescheduling after consulting with Dr. Leroy Walker, head of the AAU Men's Track and Field Committee, and Ollan Cassell, AAU executive director.

However, early Saturday, Azariy Gerchikov, a vice president of the Soviet Track and Field Federation, said in Podolsk, U.S.S.R. that he could not comment on chances of the meet being held and that the competition was now "rather difficult to organize."

But he said an attempt would be made Saturday to "clarify the situation," through a telephone conversation with Cassell in Colorado Springs, Colo., where the AAU executive was attending an Olympic meeting.

Gerchikov, however, said he was unable to reach Cassell and would make another effort Sunday.

Meanwhile, AAU officials were trying to get together a representative men's squad. When the meet was postponed earlier, American officials sent only a mini-team to compete in other meets in Europe.

The women's team will be comprised of the first and second place finishers in Saturday's finals.

The U.S. team is scheduled to leave Monday night from New York for the Soviet Union.

Petty, Pearson Are Warming Up

By F. T. MACFEELY
Associated Press Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Richard Petty and David Pearson, the two biggest career winners in stock car racing, are warming up vocally for their annual on-track duel in the Firecracker 400 Friday.

"We definitely think we have a good shot at winning the Firecracker again," said Pearson, speaking for himself and his car owners, the Wood Brothers. Pearson has won the race three straight years.

"If David beats me again this year, he's going to have to do it by outrunning me, and not by tricking me," declared Petty, who has finished second each of the past four years in this summer feature at Daytona International Speedway.

Petty was thinking of last year when Pearson abruptly slowed as they swung into the last lap. Petty, right on Pearson's tailpipe, swung sharply to avoid a collision.

Pearson immediately jammed the accelerator of his Mercury to the floor, used the slingshot technique which has won many close races here to roar out of the final turn and across the finish line in front of Petty's Dodge by half a car length.

Both came to the press box after the race, usually the winner's prerogative, and talked at and about each other for half an hour on the ethics of Pearson's maneuver.

Petty has won the Daytona 500 in February five times but never the Firecracker 400. He is within $27,347 of becoming the first $2 million career winner on the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing circuit.

The most he can win here including lap and qualifying money is about $20,000 so he won't go over the top for at least another race.

Pearson has career winnings of $1,360,951. He has confined his racing to the superspeedways the past 3½ years and leads Petty in superspeedway career victories, 32 to 28.

They came into NASCAR late model competition about the same time. Petty was rookie of the year in 1959 and Pearson took that honor the following year.

While the 400-mile Fourth of July event has come to a Pearson-Petty showdown the past three years, there are at least a dozen other man-and-machine combinations capable of winning.

Bobby Allison, third of the million dollar stock car winners and third in superspeedway career victories with 17, is a prime contender in a Matador. So is his brother Donnie Allison in a Chevrolet.

Other top choices are Cale Yarborough, Buddy Baker, Johnny Rutherford, Benny Parsons, Dave Marcis, Richard Brooks, Lennie Pond, Jim Vandiver, James Hylton and Clifton "Coocoo" Marlin.

The field of drivers gained added luster with the late entry of A.J. Foyt, three-time winner at Indianapolis and a two-time winner of the Firecracker 400.

HOSPITALIZED AFTER BRUSH WITH LIGHTNING—Lee Trevino, right, and Jerry Heard pause for a moment on consideration in the ninth fairway during Friday's second round of the Western Open Golf Tournament. Trevino, Heard and Bobby Nichols were hospitalized overnight at Hinsdale Sanitarium with minor burns after being hit by lightning during the round. All three were listed in satisfactory condition. Pepsi-Cola, College View Take BR Victories

Pepsi-Cola moved into second place in the Babe Ruth League with a 15-5 upset of Home Builders and College View rallied for five runs in the sixth to help get a 19-6 win over Planters Bank, Friday night.

Pepsi held Home Builders to four hits while Pepsi got 14. Pepsi started the scoring in the first. Will Sanderson reached on a fielder's choice and Derek Brewington got a hit. Greg Lee reached on an error scoring Sanderson and an error on the play let Brewington score.

Lee led off the third and was safe on an error as Ray Kilpatrick reached on a fielder's choice. Chris Keyes singled in Lee and a hit by Mickey Finn scored Kilpatrick. Calvin Parker was hit by a pitch to load the bases and hits by Danny Hester and Sanderson drove in two more runs.

Pepsi increased the lead to 11-0 in the fourth picking up five more runs. Pepsi added two in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Home Builders rallied for five in the sixth. Joel Toates doubled and Gary Allen walked. A wild pitch sent Toates to third and Allen stole second. Jay Wood reached on a fielder's choice and a walk to Lance Weatherington forced in Toates. Mike Adams singled in Allen and Wood and an error on the play moved Adams to third and scored Weatherington. Adams scored on a wild pitch.

The second game was tight until the sixth. College View got one in the first as Reggie Spain scored on a wild pitch. Planters countered with two in the bottom of the inning. Mac Stokes walked, stole second and scored on Freager Sanders's hit. Sanders scored on a hit by Danny Boyd.

Planters made it 3-1 in the second as Miccah Dixon walked, took second on a wild pitch and scored on Stokes' double.

College View rallied in the third to take the lead. Jimmy Clemmons walked and took second on an error as Spain reached on a fielder's choice. Timmy Harris also reached on an error and a double by Jeff Aldridge scored all three runners. Michael Shank singled to score Aldridge.

Planters fought back to tie the game, 5-5, in the bottom of the frame. Boyd walked and took two wild pitches to third. Calvin Williams walked and stole second. A wild pitch scored Boyd. Williams was thrown out trying to score on Perry Worthington's grounder but Pettus scored as Jim Kernan reached on an error.

With two out in the fourth, Spain walked and scored on a double by Harris. Aldridge singled in Harris for a 7-5 lead.

Planters cut the gap to 7-6 as Stokes walked, stole second and third and scored on an error.

College View got the run back in the fifth when Ricky Bolonde scored after singling moving to third on a sacrifice and a walk and coming home on a walk.

Planters had a threat in the fifth but a double play got College View out of the jam. CV broke loose for five in the sixth to put the game away and added six in the seventh.

Moose, Graniteers Take Playoff Wins

The Moose and the Graniteers advanced Friday in the first round of the Tar Heel Little Playoffs. The Moose upset Integon, 5-4, while the Graniteers slipped past Big Value Drugs, 6-5.

Pepsi-Cola and the Moose were to meet Saturday in one second-round game, while the Graniteers took on the regular season champ Exchange in the other. The winners advance to meet for the title and the right to represent the league against the North State champ in the City Tournament.

Integon pushed over the first run, scoring in the opening inning. Junior Neal doubled and moved up on a passed ball. Cliff Warren singled him over.

The Moose came back with two in the second to grab the lead. Bobby Gantt reached on a fielder's choice and took second on a passed ball. Dwayne Alligood singled to drive him in. John Shaw singled and a hit by Carl Woodworth brought in Alligood for a 2-1 lead.

In the fourth, the Moose added three more to up their lead to 5-1. Shaw singled and advanced on a passed ball. Woodworth singled and Greg Nowak reached on an error, scoring Shaw. Curt Lorimer singled in Woodworth and Noak.

Integon came up with one in the bottom of the fourth. Neal reached on an error and Van Warren walked. Andy Smith reached on a fielder's choice and Mike Holloman singled to score Neal.

The final two came in the fifth. Mont Carter singled and took third on an error. Neal singled him in. Warren got a hit and both moved up on a wild pitch. Cliff Warren sacrificed Neal over, but the Moose killed the rally right there, preserving their win.

The Graniteers drew first blood in the second game with a run in the first. Mike James reached on an error and Jeff James singled. A hit by Jamie Byrd scored Mike James.

Big Value came up with three in the third, pushing ahead. Bert Singleton walked and Jack Mann reached on a fielder's choice. Both moved up on a wild pitch and an error scored Singleton. Another wild pitch put Mann on third. Lloyd Jackson walked and stole second. Both runners then scored on Danny Kelley's double.

The Graniteers got one in the fourth. Tony Ellis singled and was wild pitched to third. Lance Searl singled him in.

Big Value added two more in the fifth to up their lead to 5-2. Mann reached on a two-base error and scored when Jackson also was safe on a miscue. Errors also let Kelley and Tony Burroughs reach with the latter scoring Jackson.

But the Graniteers came up with four in the bottom of the fifth to rally for the victory. Art Pittman walked moved up on a wild pitch. Ellis and Mike Fuller both walked, loading the bases. A balk scored Pittman. Steve Holloman was hit by a pitch, reloading the sacks, and a walk to Mike James scored Ellis. Jeff James reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Fuller, and a hit by Byrd brought in Holloman with the go-ahead run.

Optimists Oust Coca-Cola, 7-1

The Optimists moved into the second round of the North State Little League Playoffs Friday afternoon, but R. C. Cola and the Kiwanis were forced to sit out the action because of rains.

The Optimists downed Coca-Cola, 7-1, to earn the right to meet the Lions in the second round. The R. C.-Kiwanis game was rescheduled for yesterday, with play to continue with the second round on Monday.

The Optimists pushed over two runs in the first inning. Sammy Hodges doubled and moved to third on a wild pitch. Kenny Kirkland singled him in, then advanced on a passed ball. Jeff Porter singled him to third, and Kirkland stole home for the 2-0 lead.

The Optimists raised it to 4-0 with two more in the second. Paul MacMillan, and a passed ball put Stalls on third. Andy Holloman singled to score Stalls.

Coke cracked the ice with a run in the fourth—their only run. Chick Allen reached on a two-base error, and Jonathan McGee singled. Todd Lovette singled to drive in Allen.

he Optimists closed out the scoring with three runs in the fifth. Hodges reached on an error and so did Kirkland. Billy Dough singled, and an error on the play let Hodges score. Porter grounded out, scoring Kirkland, and a hit by Tony Heath brought in Dough with the final run.

Games Are Postponed

Rain washed out several activities Friday night, including East Carolina University's Summer Collegiate League game with Methodist College at Harrington Field.

That game has been rescheduled for July 28 at Harrington.

Owners Vote 43-Man Roster

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When the National Football League Players Association and the NFL Management Council get around to talking contract again, they'll have a new issue to wrestle with, courtesy of the 26 clubs.

The owners voted Friday to play the 1975 season with 43-man active rosters and no taxi squads. That is either an increase or a reduction in size, depending on how you wish to interpret it.

For the decade from 1964 until 1973, the NFL played with 40-man teams, so in that sense, the 43-man limit voted Friday at the conclusion of the owners' meetings represents an increase.

But last year, after the Players Association strike disrupted the training camps, the league adopted an emergency 47-player limit with no taxi squads, so in that sense, Friday's action is a decrease.

Recognizing the likely conflicts the 43-man limit will create, the league instructed its Management Council to clear any aspects of bargaining required by the decision with the Players Association.

The 43-man figure was not reached easily. Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the owners had devoted about 19 hours over three days of meetings trying to reach an acceptable number.

"I guess we spent as much time, perhaps more, on this as any subject since realignment," he said. "There was a wide difference of opinion among knowledgable football people—coaches—about the number of players needed to play a quality football game. A player limit also has to consider injuries. Most of the numbers debated realistically were between 40 and 45. Most felt that 43 was the right number."

Based on the $36,000 average NFL salary reported two years ago, the reduction of four players would save each NFL team approximately $154,000.

The league also agreed on a strict rule for players put on the injured reserved list during the season. Injured reserved players can not be recalled during the season. After the season, three injured reserved players may be restored but any others would be placed on no-recall waivers.

Player limit cutdown dates were also adopted. Teams must be at 60 players by Aug. 12, 55 a week later, 49 by Sept. 9 and 43 by Sept. 15.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Billie Jean King and John Newcombe will be featured attractions when the World Team Tennis circuit competes in matches here next month.

Other stars participating in the July 18-20 matches will be Margaret Court, Rosie Casals, Tony Roche and Butch Buchholz.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Home run sluggers Willie Mays and Ralph Kiner and World Series heroes Yogi Berra and Bill Mazeroski have accepted invitations to play in the Cincinnati Reds oldtimers game July 13.

Mays finished his career with 660 homers, third on the alltime list. Kiner, who will be inducted in the Baseball Hall of Fame later this summer, led the National League in homers for seven consecutive seasons. He had a career-high of 54 in 1949.

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Bobby Malone of Ft. Worth, Tex., overcame a three-stroke deficit going into the fourth and final round and won the 40th annual National Association of Lefthanded Golfers Tournament with a one-under-par 71 Friday at the Myrtle Beach National Golf Club.

Malone, 50, paired a 71 with previous scores of 72-77-71 for a 291 total. He edged Ken Weavil by one stroke.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals have announced that the number of free agent draft players to sign contracts has reached 18.

The team said Friday that pitchers Jim Propst, 19, of Columbus, Ohio, and Tony Dennard, 20, of Jacksonville, Fla.; third baseman Ralph Costanzo, 18, of Millbae, Calif., and shortstop Jeff Borges, 19 of San Leandro, Calif., had signed their contracts and were assigned to the Sarasota farm club in the rookie Gulf Coast League.

Fists Fly As Tempers Flare

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The long, hot summer has just begun, but if the flare-ups in Texas and Baltimore Friday night are any indication, it's going to get a lot longer and much, much hotter.

Texas slugger Jeff Burroughs exchanged punches with one teammate and had to be restrained by Manager Billy Martin from going after another before the Rangers' 2-0, 5-8 split of a twi-night doubleheader with the Minnesota Twins.

Billy Martin a peacemaker? That tells you what kind of a night it was in the American League.

Elsewhere, Detroit Manager Ralph Houk allegedly cuffed a Baltimore writer before the Orioles' 3-2 triumph over his Tigers, the Boston Red Sox regained first place in the East Division by trouncing the New York Yankees 9-1, the Oakland A's stretched their lead in the West to 5½ games with a 12-4 rout of the California Angels while the second-place Kansas City Royals were losing to the Chicago White Sox 4-3 and the Cleveland Indians scalped the Milwaukee Brewers 6-1.

Orioles 3, Tigers 2

Baltimore snapped a five-game losing streak with the aid of Mark Belanger's two-strike squeeze bunt in the seventh inning after the tying run scored on a fielder's choice. The Tigers were ahead 2-1 on solo homers by Bill Freehan and Gene Michael. Detroit starter Tom Walker had allowed only one hit, Brooks Robinson's solo homer, when he came out in favor of John Hiller after six innings.

Red Sox 9, Yankees 1

Boston backed Rick Wise's eight-hit pitching with a timely attack. Doug Griffin drove in three runs with a double and single, Rico Petrocelli collected two RBI while extending his hitting streak to six games with a single and double and Cecil Cooper slammed his first home run of the season. Meanwhile, Wise blanked the Yankees until Bobby Bonds hit his 17th home run with two out in the ninth inning.

A's 12, Angels 4

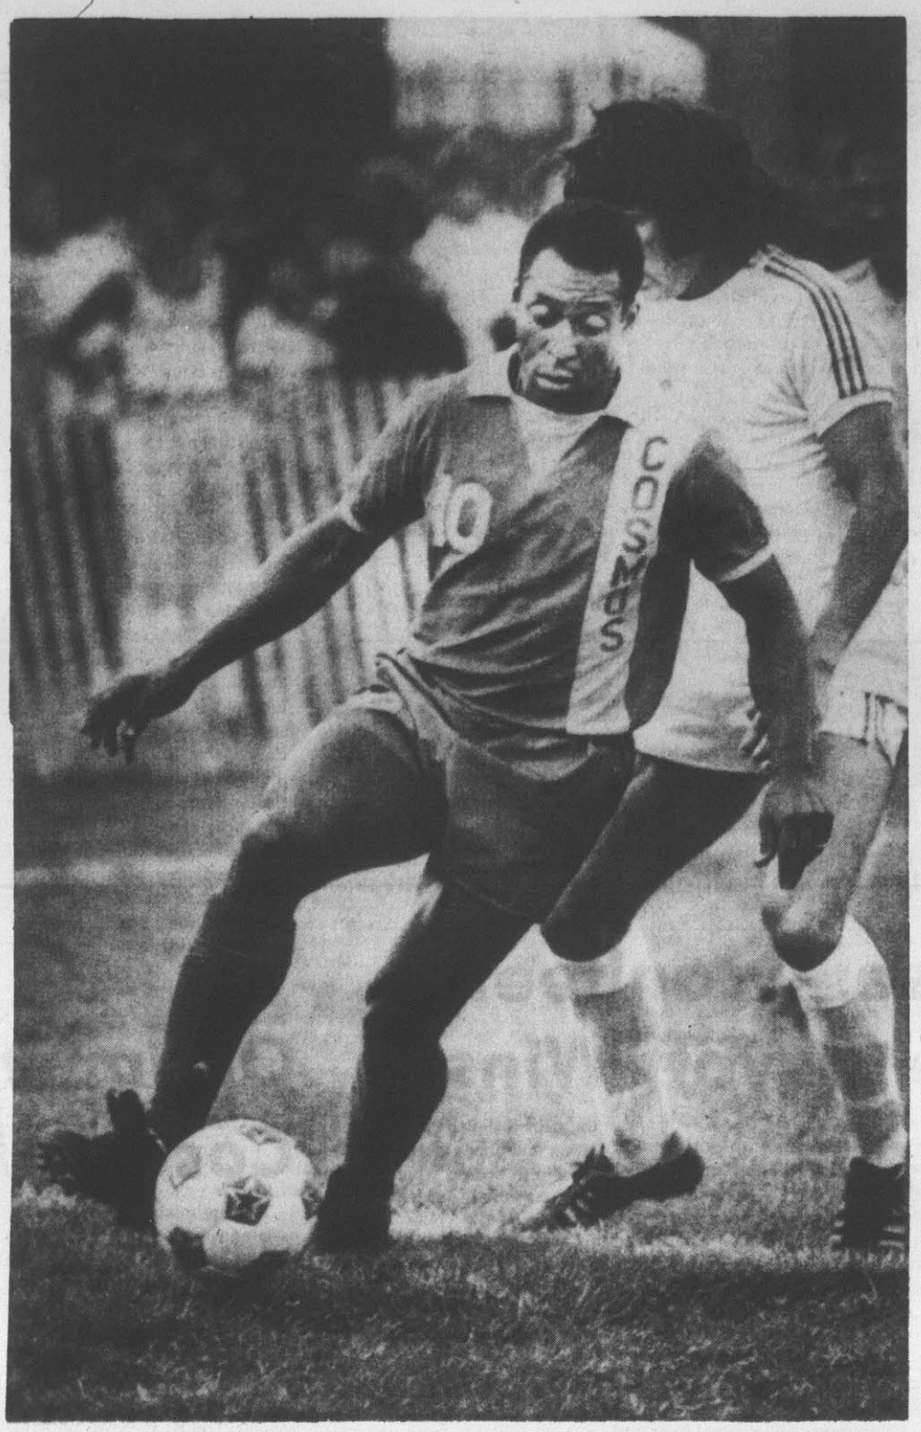

Joe Rudi drove in four runs, and Claudell Washington and Phil Garner two apiece for Oakland. California pitchers struck out 15 batters but also yielded 16 hits and the Angels contributed six errors.

White Sox 4, Royals 3

Hal McRae drove in all three KC runs with a double and triple, but starter Al Fitzmorris had to leave after six shutout innings with a knee injury and the White Sox rallied with two runs in the eighth on Carlos May's triple and two more in the ninth. Bucky Dent's sacrifice fly drove in the tying run in the ninth and Bob Coluccio scored the winner when reliever Steve Mingori dropped a throw at first base with two out.

Indians 6, Brewers 1

Buddy Bell's sixth home run of the season put Cleveland ahead to stay in the fourth inning and two errors by Milwaukee third baseman Don Money set up a three-run fifth. Jim Bibby pitched a five-hitter for his first victory since coming to the Indians from the Texas Rangers two weeks ago as the Indians ran their longest winning streak since 1972 to six games.

Lightning Turns Golf Round Into Nightmare

By JERRY LISKA
AP Sports Writer

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Nobody had a chance to invoke the lightning rule in the $200,000 Western Open Golf Tournament Friday, a scary, painful experience for two-time U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino and Jerry Heard along with several other players buzzed by electrical bolts.

Trevino suffered back burns and Heard leg burns and had to be removed from the thunderstorm-struck Butler National course to a hospital as the tourney's second round was cancelled with half the field home.

Bobby Nichols, Tony Jacklin and Jim Ahern also got lightning jolts. Nichols went to the hospital complaining of a headache after a bolt struck nearby. Jacklin had a club knocked 15 feet away just as he began a swing. Ahern was leaning on his putter when a charge knocked it out of his hands.

Most seriously hurt were Trevino and Heard, huddled under an umbrella which proved a lightning rod. Both were held in a nearby hospital for overnight observation.

Arnold Palmer, who went into today's rescheduled second round still trailing pacesetting Dave Graham by three strokes, even got a scare in the middle of the 14th fairway. "A bolt struck nearby and I just dropped my club," said Palmer who had lost two strokes to par when play was cancelled.

Graham, who shot a course record 65, six-under-par, in Thursday's opening round, was just teeing off on No. 10 and was five-under-par when play was called.

"I heard the siren blow and I made a beeline for the clubhouse," said the Australian pro.

Half the 156-player field had finished when the sudden thunderstorm hit, but all second-round scores were erased. The final two rounds will be played Sunday.

Trevino, Heard and Mike Fetchick, playing in the same threesome, had just played to the 13th green when play was halted at 4:04 p.m. CDT. Fetchick elected to hasten to the clubhouse, but Trevino and Heard sought a low spot near the green and got under an umbrella held by Heard between his legs.

The players generally said the storm hit too quickly for many to invoke the lightning rule and get off the course. Tom Watson did that in last week's storm-pelted U.S. Open at nearby Medinah Country Club at which time Trevino said, "lightning will never strike me. God is on my side."

Fighters Heavy For Weigh-In

By KENNETH L. WHITING.
Associated Press Writer ...

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — British challenger Joe Bugner Saturday weighed in at 230, five pounds heavier than world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali for their championship fight.

The ceremony in the ring at Merdeka Stadium where they will meet Tuesday was marked by Malay tradition and Ali's mouth.

Bugner entered first in blue trunks with darker blue trim. He said little, even when taunted by Ali.

Manager-trainer Andy Smith declared his fighter's weight "just right. I would imagine by the day of the fight he will be down to 226 or 227 pounds."

The boxers were escorted into the stadium by men dressed as Malay warriors, carrying imitation palm trees called "bunga mangam." Drummers were also in the procession.

Efforts to keep the ring clear of superfluous people ended in failure when Drew "Bundini" Brown shoved a security guard and followed Ali through the ropes. Brown is one of the champion's cornermen. Ali's brother, Rahman, also shoved his way into the ring.

The morning weigh-in was arranged three days before the first heavyweight championship fight in this part of the world to suit television purposes in the United States. Both camps expected their men to enter the ring lighter than they were Saturday.

At 225, Ali was the heaviest he has ever been for a title match, although he has weighed more for non-title fights.

Both boxers planned roadwork and several more gym sessions.

The bout is expected to be heavy with Malay ceremony. One side of the ring has been cleared of the usual cluster of officials, news and others in honor of the country's supreme ruler or Yang Di-Pertuan Agung. The lame duck king — his five-year term expires in September — will sit in a special enclosure with assorted other royalty.

Unser Trying To Stretch Gas

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Sports Writer

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — Bobby Unser, like motorists everywhere, will be trying to get a few extra miles out of a tank of fuel when he goes out for a Sunday drive.

But when Unser goes driving Sunday, a $100,000 winner's check will be at stake in the 500-mile race at Pocono International Raceway—where he lost last year for want of another gallon or two of fuel.

"I was leading late in he race, but I had to slow down to finish, or run out of fuel," Unser said.

"I'd rather stay behind the first 400 miles, then lead for the last 100 than give up the lead because I was low on fuel late in the race," said Gordon Johncock, who leads the field Sunday. "That would be an awfully tough way to lose."

"It was," confirmed Unser. "That was one of the hardest things I've ever had to do. You never want to go racing unless you can win."

Unser finished fifth last year, but his position was good enough to give him the 1974 Triple Crown title for the best cumulative finishes in the 500-mile races Long Pond, at Ontario, Calif., and at Indianapolis. Johnny Rutherford won the Long Pond race and at Indianapolis, but still finished second in the Triple Crown race. Unser leads again this year.

Rutherford and Foyt, the 1973 Pocono winner, are the only former champions in the field for the fifth running of this $400,000 event, the world's second riches auto race.

On the strength of his Indianapolis triumph last month, Unser is considered by many as the favorite over Foyt. But Unser never has won on this 2½-mile tri-oval. In fact, it's the only Indy car track he hasn't won on.

Foyt won it when Roger McCluskey, the 1973 national champion, ran out of fuel while leading on the last lap - probably close to what would have happened to Unser last year if he had kept on the throttle.

Strategy Pays Off— But Not For McNamara

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Strategy, you might say, is a sometime thing. Sometimes it works, sometimes it doesn't. For Sparky Anderson, it did. For John McNamara, it didn't.

McNamara, San Diego's manager, decided to bypass slugging Johnny Bench with an intentional walk to get to the Reds' struggling Dan Driessen in the 11th inning of Friday night's game in Cincinnati.

Anderson, the Reds' manager, then decided to let Driessen swing away. "When the winning run is on, go to whacking," he explained.

So Driessen whacked a Danny Frisella pitch hard enough to put the ball over the right field wall for a three-run homer that gave the Reds a 5-2 victory over the Padres and helped Cincinnati widen its National League West lead to 5½ games over Los Angeles.

Giants 10, Dodgers 5

Gary Thomasson drove in three runs while Bobby Murcer drilled three hits, had two RBI and scored four to boost the Giants past Los Angeles. San Francisco scored twice in the first inning on Murcer's double and Chris Speier's sacrifice fly. The Dodgers erupted for four runs in the second, but the Giants bounced back with four in the third on successive singles and two sacrifice flies.

Mets 4, Phillies 2

New York's resident strongman — Dave Kingman — provided Jon Matlack with his winning margin against the Phils by capping a four-run first inning with a two-run homer, his 11th clout of the season.

Greg Luzinski's 18th homer of the year, tops in the majors, came in the fifth inning. It was the Phillies' first of five hits against Matlack. The Phils slipped three games back of front-running Pittsburgh in the NL East.

Braves 7, Astros 4

Dusty Baker drilled a two-run single to highlight a five-run Atlanta burst against the Astros that gave rookie Jamie Easterly his first major league victory.

Pirates 5-5, Cubs 1-3

The nine-hit pitching of Dock Ellis and a three-run homer by Richie Hebner in the fourth inning gave the Bucs their first-game triumph. Then Richie Zisk's tie-breaking single capped a two-run seventh inning that made it a sweep over the Cubs.

Cards 5-4, Expos 4-6

Ted Sizemore's two RBI in a three-run fifth inning helped Bob Gibson notch his 250th career victory in St. Louis' opening-game triumph. First baseman Reggie Smith's error on a Mike Jorgensen grounder let Pepe Mangual score from third with the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning to give the Expos a split.

95% of CPC students passed their FAA written exam the first time they took it.
Cessna's unique integrated learning program is the reason. Ground and flight training are coordinated into a logical sequence for faster, surer learning.

VOA Provides Information To Overseas Listeners

That "sign on" phrase, broadcast worldwide many times daily, opens VOA programs relayed through the Edward R. Murrow Transmitting Station in Greenville, the largest and most powerful domestic installation in the VOA network.

The complex consists of three separate plants, located approximately 27 miles apart, forming a triangle around this eastern North Carolina city. There are a receiving plant and two transmitting plants.

The receiving plant is the "nerve center" of the Greenville operation, according to William R. Harmon, manager of the Greenville facility. Transmissions from VOA headquarters in Washington come into the receiving plant where they are sorted out and sent, via microwave, to two transmission stations.

The transmission stations broadcast the programs to Europe, Africa and the Middle East. Direct coverage is provided in Eastern Europe, western Russia, the Middle East, Africa and Latin America.

In addition, the station provides two-way teletype communications between the European-African stations and Washington.

The combined Greenville plants broadcast approximately 366.6 transmitter hours daily in 26 languages. The complex has 18 shortwave transmitters and four communications transmitters with a power range of 50 to 500 kilowatts. Each Greenville transmission plant has around 37 antennas.

Built in the early 1960's, the plant consolidated several VOA facilities along the east coast. The new plant is more modern, cheaper and easier to operate than the old ones, officials say. It cost $24 million to build and costs $3 million per year to operate. Ninety persons are employed at the facility.

Greenville was selected for many reasons. The area is flat, not on prime agricultural land, well away from other communications facilities which could cause interference, and it is easily accessible from Washington and other sources of supply, according to Harmon.

The Greenville complex is one of five domestic installations, but it is by far the largest, over twice as large as any other in the U.S. All programs relayed by the facility originate in Washington.

The basic mission of VOA, according to Harmon, is "to provide people overseas information about American policy and way of life — to explain ourselves to them." This mission is "guided by the tradition that assumes that the free expression of ideas is the best way to arrive at the best set of ideas," says a VOA pamphlet.

"The genesis of VOA goes back to World War II and the Office of War Information," Harmon said. After the war, it became part of the State Department until 1953 when the U.S. Information Agency was formed. Now, VOA is part of this agency which is in the Executive Branch of the federal government.

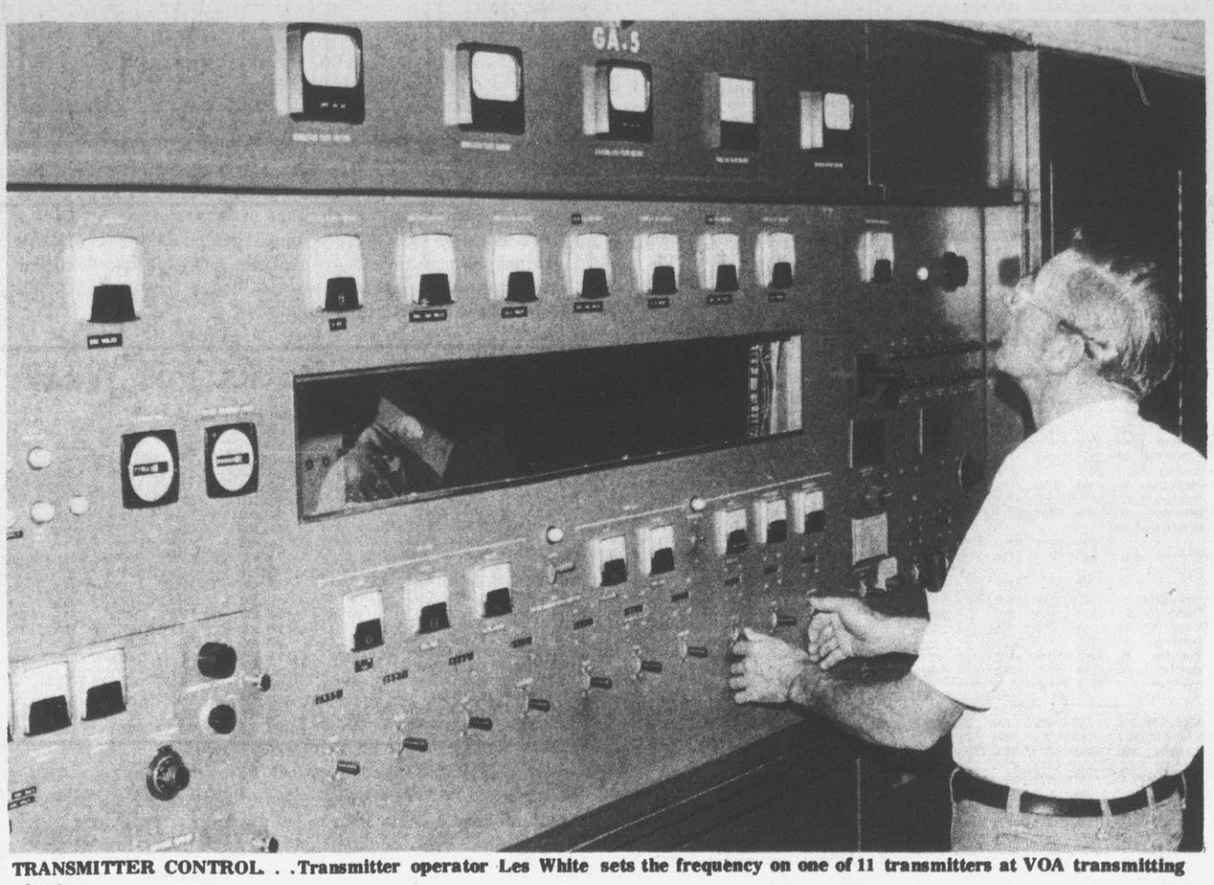

In 1942, VOA's network consisted of a dozen shortwave transmitters operated by five commercial companies. Now, it controls a transmitter network with a total power capacity of 22.3 million watts with 41 domestic and 72 foreign transmitters.

"Any time of the day, in nearly any place in the world, you can hear VOA transmissions in at least one language," Harmon said. A typical VOA broadcast consists of music, features, and at least one news report per hour. A foreign listener may hear, on any given day, a book review or a discussion of some domestic problem facing the nation. Other subject areas include U.S. policy, art, medicine science, engineering and space exploration.

"We attempt to obtain a high degree of credibility," Harmon said. "Without it, who is going to listen to you?"

The late Edward R. Murrow, famed broadcast journalist from North Carolina and former USIA director, once said of VOA: "Truth shall be the guide. Truth may help us. It may hurt us. But helping us or hurting us we shall have the satisfaction of knowing that man can know us for what we are and can at least believe what we say."

A Greenville Landmark Building On Dickinson Is Demolished

Text And Photographs By Tommy Forrest

A Greenville landmark, the old Telephone Building on Dickinson Avenue, fell prey recently to the demolition ball of a wrecking crew. The building was purchased in September, 1973 by the Redevelopment Commission at a cost of $45,200. It had been vacated by Carolina Telephone in 1956.

Carolina Telephone records show that the architect for additions to the building in 1938 was Thomas Herman of Wilson. The architect of the original building is unknown. The building was noted for its rounded corner.

Erected in Greenville 60 years ago, it calls attention to the vast amount of growth of the telephone system in Greenville.

In 1903, the Carolina and Virginia Telephone Company sold the Greenville exchange to the Home Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The Home Company purchased a lot at the intersection of Washington Street and Dickinson Avenue in 1913.

In 1914, the directors of the Home Company authorized the construction of a building on the site at a cost of $7,500. The structure was to house a 2,400 line switchboard and central office equipment costing $12,200.

The building was completed in 1915. It was the first building built by the Home Company. Prior to the construction of the building telephone facilities were housed in leased quarters.

In 1926, the Home Company merged with the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company. At that time there were 1,225 telephones in Greenville, with a plant investment of $99,600.

Additional property adjacent to the Dickinson Avenue building was purchased in 1938 and the exchange was converted to local dial operation in 1939, with 2,031 telephones in service.

As years passed, additional central office equipment was required and the building became overcrowded. In 1956, the company completed and occupied its Fifth Street building to support a microwave tower and provide space for long distance switching equipment. At that time, there were 7,148 telephones being served by the exchange.

To meet continued growth, a new local dial office was placed in service on Hooker Road in 1967. At the end of that year Greenville had 15,863 telephones in service.

In 1970, a new local dial office was installed and began service to subscribers from the Fifth Street building, placing the total telephones in Greenville at 27,800.

Today, that number has grown to 44,733 including Greenville and the surrounding area. The company's plant investment has risen from $99,600 in 1926 to $22,950,000 today.

Carolina Telephone's annual payroll in Greenville amounts to nearly $2,000,000.

DEMOLITION NEARS COMPLETION—Only a pile of rubble remains as demolition of the brick building nears completion.

Efforts Underway To Bring Salmon Back To Industrial Connecticut River

By JAMES CARRIER
Associated Press Writer

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Wanted! Dead or Alive! Salmon caught in the Connecticut River.

Up and down this historic waterway, fishermen have their eyes peeled for Atlantic salmon, one of the top sporting game fish in the world. Catching one could net some lucky angler up to $500 under a federal-state program to return the salmon to its native waters.

The fish disappeared just after 1800 when the first industrial dams were built on the river, blocking the salmon's return to spawning grounds as far north as the Canadian border.

With the waters clean enough to support salmon, four states and the federal government are trying to restock the river.

A reward of $500 is being offered for the first live adult salmon turned over to authorities. The next 19 live fish will bring $100 each. The first 40 dead ones are worth $25 apiece.

Since the start of the program in 1967 over 500,000 baby salmon grown from Canadian eggs have been raised in the Connecticut's tributaries. But only one fish is known to have returned and it died.

Live fish are more valuable because of the eggs they yield. But even dead ones will give the fish experts some proof the fish are returning.

At the same time, fish ladders are planned at five electric company dams, the first to be ready this summer at the Rainbow dam on the Farmington River.

Salmon will be captured in traps and used as egg sources until the fish population returning each year is large enough to support itself.

Salmon, which spend two winters in the Atlantic Ocean, reach weights of 12 pounds and lengths of 29 to 32 inches. Another year of feeding near Greenland can boost them to 40-inch 25-pounders.

Returning the 1,000 miles to the Atlantic seaboard, the fish "smell" each river as they swim south and enter the river they recognize as home. There they seek a clean gravel bottom with rapidly flowing water to drop their eggs.

But with the construction of a dam at Hadley Falls, Mass., the salmon cycle came to an end.

"During the industrial revolution virtually every stream in the state was dammed. This was true all up and down the coast," said Cole Wilde, chief of fish and waterlife for the Connecticut Environmental Protection Dept. The fish, unable to reach their spawning grounds, died and the genetic pool for the Connecticut River disappeared.

Roger Lance, the federal coordinator who oversees the $40,000-a-year river program, said the goal is to create an annual run of 40,000 adult Atlantic salmon and two million American shad at the mouth of the Connecticut.

Senate Bill For No-fault Insurance

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Every car driver in the country would be required to have no-fault insurance coverage under a bill approved by a Senate committee.

No-fault would save American drivers as much as $1 billion in premium payments annually, said Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Commerce Committee, which approved the bill Friday.

Under the bill's approach, an auto accident victim would be compensated promptly by his own insurance company for all medical and rehabilitation expenses, regardless of who caused the accident.

As it is, the accident victim often has to go to court and prove "fault" before recovering any money at all.

Accident trial lawyers, staunch opponents of the bill, receive some $1.8 billion in fees each year, more than seriously injured victims receive in court-awarded damages, says Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, chairman of the Commerce subcommittee which drafted the bill.

Other provisions of the bill:

—Payments of up to $15,000 would be provided if injury prevented a person from working.

—An injured housewife would receive funds to hire help to care for the house or for her children.

—Persons disabled for more than 90 days would have the legal right to sue the driver at fault for additional damages.

—Lawsuits for intangible damages such as pain and suffering would be restricted to serious cases.

Several states have implemented different versions of no-fault insurance programs. The Senate bill amounts to a set of minimum standards that would have to be met or exceeded by every state.

There were three dissenting votes in the 18-member committee: Sens. James L. Buckley, Con.-R, N.Y.; Vance Hartke, D-Ind.; and Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C.

The committee action sends the bill to the full Senate, which passed a similar bill last year by a vote of 53 to 42. The House failed to act. Magnuson said the Senate margin should be larger this year and that the outlook for House passage is good.

Automakers Welcome Ford's Auto Exhaust Recommendations

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists and some experts within the administration oppose President Ford's recommendations for delaying stricter auto exhaust clean-up rules, but automakers welcome the proposal.

Ford said Friday that the main reason for his proposed four-year delay until 1981 is a potential health hazard posed by the catalytic converter, the principal device now being used to clean pollutants from car exhausts.

In a statement released by the White House, Ford said imposing tighter controls in 1977, as scheduled, also would reduce auto mileage per gallon and raise the cost of automobiles.

The President's recommendations to Congress go beyond what the Environmental Protection Agency and his own administration proposed only a few months ago.

The EPA earlier recommended keeping the current rules on auto emissions through only 1979, with a slightly tougher standard for automobiles produced in 1980 and 1981. In January, Ford had recommended changes in the Clean Air Act that did not even go that far.

White House sources reported there was some opposition within the administration, especially the EPA, to Ford's action.

Presidential energy adviser Frank G. Zarb is believed to have been the main architect.

John Quarles, deputy EPA administrator, ducked a question about reports of opposition from within his agency.

"Considering the total of all the factors, the President has reached this position," Quarles said. "That is a position which is binding on us and which we will accept and support."

The National Academy of Sciences earlier this month issued a report which said auto industry could meet the 1977 timetable as it now exists under the law. It said revisions of the law were not justified.

Ford Motor's President Lee A. Iacocca praised the President "for his realistic assessment of the economic and environmental problems...."

The National Clean Air Coalition called Ford's move "a last-ditch effort to permit the auto industry to keep on polluting."

Selling Uranium May Be New American Business

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A new multibillion business may have been born this past week.

Picturing "an entirely new private industry in America," President Ford asked Congress to allow private companies to produce and sell high quality uranium to nuclear plants throughout the world to hasten an end to the current energy problem.

Since the dawn of the nuclear age 30 years ago, the making and selling of enriched uranium has been a strict federal monopoly for national security and safety reasons, and in Washington, aspects of the Ford proposal already were stirring controversy last week.

Ford said by shifting prime responsibility for building needed uranium facilities over the next 15 years to the private sector, he was saving the taxpayers some $30 billion. While few legislators opposed the plan on principle, some questioned the $8 billion federal guarantee Ford is seeking from Congress to cover losses if private firms find themselves unable to build or operate uranium plants profitably.

There also was question whether foreign partners in these private uranium enterprises might gain access to nuclear secrets. And environmentalists and others who say nuclear energy is costly and hazard

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 29, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until the afternoon there are many deceptive influences in effect, but if you hold steady to the principles you believe in all turns out well. Make long-range plans.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You may have limitations that you need to do something about if you want to advance. Family affairs can be improved.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't rely on friends during the day since they have problems of their own. Evening brings the aid you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Show ability at handling civic matters to which you are committed and this adds to your present prestige.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use practical methods in the handling of a private anxiety. Engage in favorite hobby in the afternoon.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Your intuition is now working right during the day, so use only your good judgment. Come to understanding with mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study what associates expect of you but don't discuss it with them until the evening. Don't let tensions mount.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan your new week's activities wisely so that you don't waste precious time and energy later in the week.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have certain tasks to take care of before you can have the recreation you desire. Relax at home tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get busy at the tasks that you can't do during the busy work week. You can improve conditions by using willpower.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Planning the future wisely is a good way to spend part of this day. Take time to improve your surroundings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care you do not commit yourself to responsibilities that will be difficult for you to handle in the future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get rid of that feeling of unhappiness early or you could make a mistake that you later would regret. Be logical.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will require discipline so that the mind and energy will be channeled in the right direction. Religious training is important early in life. Teach your progeny to work with the hands. Sports is a must.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JUNE 30, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: It's necessary in a.m. to use care with facts and make sure you understand everything about any situation. Later you can make some long-range plans that include a new approach to success. An older person can give any needed advice.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Some message may reach you that is not pleasing, but you can turn it into an opportunity to advance. Handle responsibilities well.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't be upset if a friend disappoints you in a.m., as later you find you can improve your whole life-style. Banish blues with activity.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Avoid a bigwig who is out of sorts because of pressures. Later, you can be with congenials for the pleasures you want.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study new interests that ,can relieve you of many anxieties in the near future. Let a higher-up give you needed advice.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't argue with a close tie who is itching for a fight because out of sorts. Get busy at practical matters.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A partner has problems and is not very helpful today, so rely on your own judgment and ability more. Create more happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You may find it difficult to get a fellow worker to see things your way in a.m. Later an ally cooperates. Use self-control.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't neglect important work by running off on some pleasure tangent that would be disappointing. Buy only needed items.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 22) If you are careful in your speech, you can go out later for pleasure and be happy. A compliment works wonders.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get at those routines, though dull, in a.m., and they are soon done. Evening can be a most happy one at home.

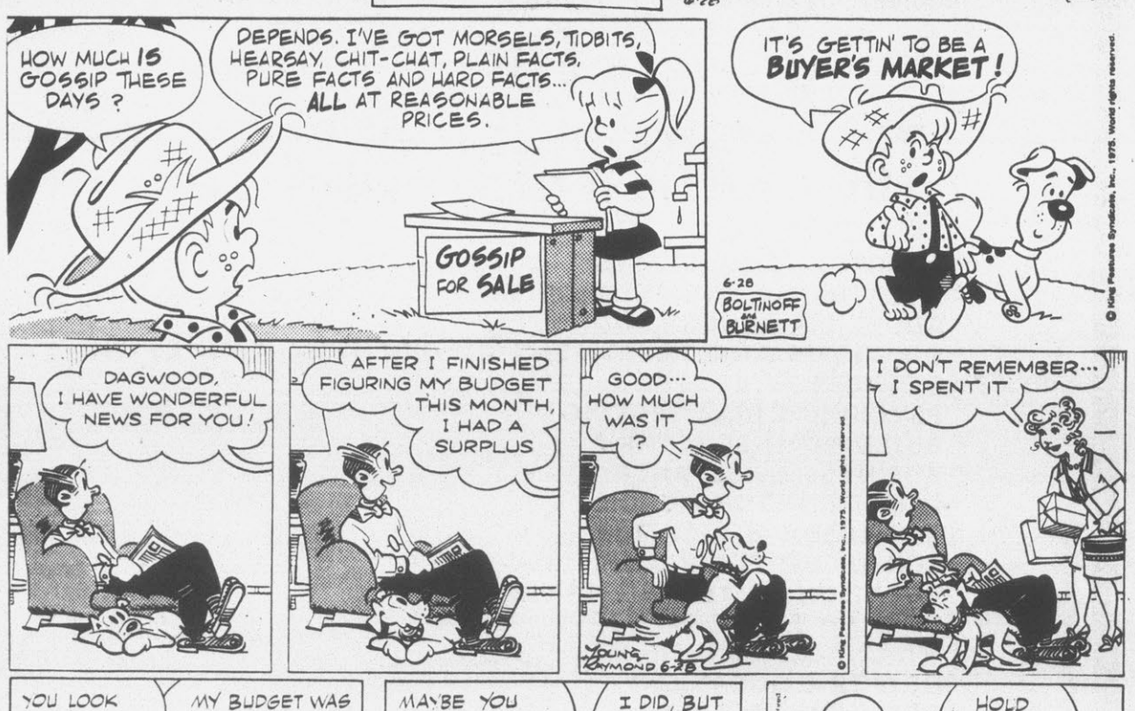

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Monday blues soon clear up and all is fine. Gain the backing of associates. Cut down on expenses. Enjoy hobby you like.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You are better off financially than you realize, so get busy building on present nucleus instead of grumbling.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will require real understanding and devotion in order to get rid of that extreme introversion here. Then the life can become most successful since the mind is good and is a product of the New Era. Learning will come easily, and be retained as well, which will be the secret of success here. Give right kind of education that will bring out the forte early. Some sports, music, too.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Radio Club In National 'Field Day'

The Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club will participate in the 1975-24 hour field day competition on June 28-29th along with thousands of other amateur radio enthusiasts in the U.S.A. and Canada as announced by Ed Hackett, the B.A.R.C. president.

The club's amateur radio call WB4TEU will be used and there will be two transmitters operated simultaneously on both voice and Morse code. This emergency communication drill is one of the biggest events of the year and communication will be established with as many other radio stations as possible. The contest is sponsored by the American Radio Relay League—the largest non-commercial organization of radio amateurs in the world.

As in the past several years the site again will be at Ficklin Stadium at ECU. All equipment will be powered by portable generators just as it would be should a local power fail in a real emergency.

Some of the club members have participated for years in this type of activity, but it will be a new experience to many of the members who have just entered the fascinating hobby of amateur radio. It wil combine a field test of the portable equipment as well as improve their operating techniques.

Of greatest interest to the amateurs will be the ability to provide emergency communication to the community should it arise.

Install Officers Of Seaboard Medical Ass'n

Dr. Louise Bates Ames, noted child psychologist, was the featured speaker at the convention banquet. The Association, now in its 80th year, is one of the oldest regional medical organizations along the Atlantic Coast. It has physicians from North Carolina and Virginia as members.

$24,00 Grant To Ecu Dept.

A grant of $24,000 has been awarded the East Carolina University Department of Speech, Language and Auditory Pathology by the U.S. Office of Education's Bureau of Education for the Handicapped.

Dr. Garrett Hume, chairman of the ECU department, said the funds will be used to employ additional instructors, provide stripend support for graduate students and purchase equipment needed for curriculum development and research activities.

Air Sampler Is A Life-Saver

HOUSTON (UPI) — The federal government's Occupational Safety and Health Administration recently ruled that after Jan. 1 employees in plastics factories cannot be exposed to more than one part per million of vinyl chloride in the air. Vinyl chloride is linked to cancer of the liver.

A Honeywell gas chromatograph is being used in many of the plastics factories to sample the air, separate it into its component gases and, by measuring electrical signals, determine precisely what the workers are breathing. The instrument makes an analysis every minute and triggers an alarm if the vinyl chloride exceeds the level permitted.

The chromatograph originally was developed for use in the Mariner space probes of Mars.

JAPAN'S GROWTH

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan will have a population of 135,150,000 by year 2,000 from 114,470,000 this year, according to the Health and Welfare Ministry's Institute of Population Problems.

The institute says the birth rate will level off after the country's population rises to 144,800,000 in year 2,050.

Couple Exchanges Vows In Candlelight Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Mevelyn Delores Tripp and Durward McDuffie Harris Jr. was solemnized in a candlelight ceremony Saturday at 6 p.m. at Hooker Memorial Christian Church.

The Rev. Robert G. Hufford, assisted by the Rev. Ralph Messick, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Lindbergh Tripp and Mr. and Mrs. Durward McDuffie Harris, all of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. E. Robert Irwin, organist, and Susie Pair, soloist, who sang, "For The Love Of Him" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of white organza over white taffeta featuring a Victorian neckline of antique lace edged in ruffled cluny lace and tiny Venise lace trim. A bib effect of antique lace, outlined in the ruffled cluny lace and Venise lace trim was centered with hand sewn pearl beads in a scalloped pattern with miniature Venise lace flower appliques centered with pearls. The long fitted lace sleeves were beaded in the same pattern with ruffled cuffs of cluny lace trimmed in Venise lace. The princess line gown featured an attached cathedral train with the hemline bordered in deep ruffle flounce of scalloped antique lace trimmed in the Venise lace.

Sprays of floral Venise lace appliques centered with pearls trimmed the skirt front and train.

She wore a formal length illusion mantilla edged in antique lace to match her gown which was attached to a camelot cap trimmed in matching lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis and cattleya orchids, miniature carnations and English ivy tied with white satin.

Miss Janice Tripp, sister of the bride, of Greenville, was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of maize chiffon designed with an open neckline outlined in ruffled chiffon. The long sheer fitted sleeves were also edged at the wrist in ruffles. The Empire waistline was accentuated with a sash of white cluny lace which extended to the back and draped with long streamers. She wore a maize illusion veil styled with maize satin ribbon and silk flowers.

Bridesmaids were Susan Harris, sister of the bridegroom, Wendy Harris, cousin of the bridegroom, Memrie Albea, Melodie Albea, Vandy Beaman and Gwyn Tavasso, all of Greenville. They wore formal length sleeveless slip dresses of maize knit designed with an Empire bodice and full flared skirts. The gown was complimented by a maize chiffon jacket outlined in ruffles of self fabric with long fitted sleeves with ruffled cuffs. They wore maize illusion veil streamers with maize satin ribbon and silk flowers.

The attendants carried candlelight bouquets with a spray of assorted summer flowers in various colors tied with apple green bows with long streamers.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers were Steve Tripp, brother of the bride, John Moore, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Gary Barwick, John Banks, Jim Heidenreich, and Todd Pair, all of Greenville.

For a wedding trip to Florida, the bride changed into a polyester green dress ensemble and wore the orchid from her bouquet. They will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and is a dental assistant for Dr. B.G. Clark Jr. The bridegroom, also a graduate of Rose High, is employed by Harris Super Markets.

The mother of the bride wore a peppermint green ensemble with a lace coat and carried a hand bouquet of American beauty roses and baby's breath.

The bridegroom's mother wore a formal gown of pink crepe with matching headpiece and carried a hand bouquet of bridal pink roses and baby's breath.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church.

Mrs. S. Edward Harris poured punched and Mrs. William D. Cherry served cake. Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Mitchell presided at the register and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie H. Garner greeted guests. Goodbyes were said by Dr. and Mrs. Badger G. Clark Jr.

An after-rehearsal dinner party was given Friday night at the Greenville Golf and Country Club by Mr. and Mrs. Durward M. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie H. Garner and Mr. and Mrs. S. Edward Harris.

Deborah O'Neal Weds Kenneth Haddock Saturday

Miss Deborah Carol O'Neal and Kenneth Leslie Haddock were married in a double ring ceremony Saturday at 3:00 p.m. at the Pleasant Hill Free Will Baptist Church.

The Rev. W. H. Willis officiated the service. Mrs. Wilma Smith, pianist, and Mrs. Janie Hudson, soloist, provided the music. Mrs. Hudson sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Twelfth of Never."

The parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Austin of Charlotte and Leslie Smith Haddock of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a formal gown of floral silk organza over yellow taffeta. The gown was styled with a deep hem flounce. The fitted bodice was shirred as was the lantern sleeves which were wrist length. Tiny ruffles encircled the high neckline and wrist. Green streamers banded the waist. Her headress was a short bouffant veil of tiered French illusion with streamers showered with yellow petals. Her bridal bouquet was yellow roses, gypsophelia and cascading ribbons.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Goldie Kirk, sister of the bridegroom. She wore a floor length gown of mint green knit with empire waist long sleeves and jewel neckline. She carried a single long stem yellow rose with matching ribbons.

Teresa West of Greenville served as bridesmaid. She wore a mint green floor length gown of polyester knit and carried a long stemmed yellow rose with matching ribbons.

Alan Kirk, nephew of the bridegroom and Dwayne O'Neal, son of the bride, served as ringbearers and carried the rings on heart shaped sating pillows.

Ushers were John West and Robert Kirk of Greenville.

The mother of the bride chose a floor length gown of mint green knit with lace sleeves, a jewel neckline and long sleeves. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Mrs. Kenneth L. Haddock

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson T. Landen. Mrs. Claude West served wedding cake and Mrs. Agnes Burroughs, aunt of the bride, poured punch. Mrs. Margie Walker and Edna Robbins assisted in serving.

Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. James C. Walker Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson T. Landen and Mr. and Mrs. James C. Walker Jr. entertained the wedding party with a dinner party Friday night following the wedding rehearsal.

Guests were greeted by the hosts and hostesses.

The bride was remembered with a corsage of white mums.

The bride's table was covered with an Army-Navy embroidered linen and lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of white stock, Queen Ann's lace and daisies flanked on either side by silver candelabra with lighted white tapers. Arrangements of summer flowers were used throughout the house.

Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Jim Walker.

The bridegroom is employed by Daniels Construction Co., Greenville, S.C. The couple will make their home in Georgia.

Fields-Sumpter Vows Said

Miss Carolyn Anne Sumpter and Ben Roger Fields were married in a ceremony Saturday at St. James United Methodist Church.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Frances Cain.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy P. Sumpter Jr. of Greenville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Ben Joyner Fields of Walstonburg.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white polyester crepe with short lace puffed sleeves. The bodice featured a square neckline with lace inserts. Her shoulder length veil of bridal illusion was attached to a bandeau of lance and seeded pearls. She carried a bouquet of white shasta pom pons and white carnations tied with long white ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Keith Manning of Winterville was matron of honor. She wore a formal length princess style dress of yellow dotted swiss with bouquets of colonial flowers. Her dress was tied in back with a green ribbon bow and she wore a headpiece of green ribbon. She carried a nosegay of mixed summer flowers tied with green ribbon.

The bride's mother wore a street length dress of pale green polyester knit and a pink rose corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a street length dress of pale yellow polyester knit and a yellow rose corsage. Mrs. Sudie Harris, grandmother of the bridegroom, was remembered with a white rose corsage.

Mrs. Grover Peaden of Greenville directed the wedding.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Farmville.

The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and is attending Greenville School of Commerce. She is employed by Roses, Inc. The bridegroom is a graduate of Greene Central High School and is employed by the Farmville Division of U.S. Industries.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth over green linen and centered with an arrangement of pink and white carnations and a three branched candelabra.

Engagements Announced

MISS EMMA-LOU PEARL HANNAN. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Hannan of Greenville, who announce engagement to Michael Gene Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton O. Edwards of Rt. 2, Beulaville. The wedding will take place Aug. 24.

MISS LINDA ETHELENE COBB. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Cobb of Rt. 4, Greenville, who announce her engagement to Harold Groft Burkett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Burkett of Ahoskie. The wedding will take place Aug. 3.

West-Manning Vows Said On Saturday

Miss Joy Elizabeth Manning became the bride of Leigh F. West in a double ring ceremony Saturday at 3 p.m. at the home of the bride's parents.

The Rev. F. Owen Fitzgerald Jr., uncle of the bridegroom, officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Ray Manning of Rt. 8, Greenville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Jacob West Jr. of Kinston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of candlelight chiffon designed with a high neckline encircled with ivory Venise lace threaded with pink satin ribbon. Matching lace and ribbon accentuated the bodice which featured tucked chiffon centered in tiny covered buttons. The full bishop sleeves were styled with deep fitted cuffs trimmed in the ivory lace and pink ribbon. A softly gathered skirt fell from the modified Empire waistline.

She wore an elbow length veil of ivory illusion edged in ivory Venise lace held in place by a Juliet cap of ivory Venise lace and strands of interspersing pearls.

The bridegroom's mother selected a petal pink street length dress with matching accessories and wore a corsage of white hybrid orchids.

The grandmothers of the bridegroom, Mrs. Jacob West Sr. and Mrs. F. O. Fitzgerald, both of Kinston, were remembered with white cymbidium orchids.

After a wedding trip to the Outer Banks, the couple will reside in Kinston.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University and is employed by the Jones County Public Schools. The bridegroom attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and is employed by Austin Carolina Company of Kinston.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at their home. Mrs. Fred Pollard and Mrs. Thomas Meeks of Greenville served cake and poured punch.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob West Jr. and friends entertained the bridal party and family members at a buffet dinner at their home Friday night.

Miss Frances Howard Is Wed

WASHINGTON—The marriage of Frances Elizabeth Howard and Charles Earl Dees was solemnized Saturday at 3:00 p.m. in the First Baptist Church here.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. E.C. Reeves. A program of organ music was presented by Miss Gladys Alligood. Mrs. J.R. Jones sang "Whither Thou. Goest" and the "Wedding Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Paul Bailey of Washington, and the late Mr. Benjamin F. Howard, and Mrs. Josephine R. Dees of Greenville, and the late Mr. Earl Johnston Dees.

The bride, given in marriage by her stepfather, Paul Bailey, wore a formal gown of glove silk. The empire waist was enhanced by a Victorian yolk and long sleeves of crocheted lace accented with seed pearls. The A-line skirt and built-in chapel train were adorned with re-embroidered alencon lace and trimmed with a ruffle of crocheted lace.

Her bridal veil of illusion extended from a Juliet cap of lace and pearls. She carried a nosegay of daisies centered with a royal orchid.

Mrs. Marvin E. Price of Wilmington was the honor attendant. She wore a yellow polyester knit A-line gown featuring short sleeves. She wore a matching bow in her hair and carried a yellow mum with green streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Julia Jones of Washington and Mrs. James B. Holliday of Columbia, S.C., cousins of the bride, Mrs. Herman Berry of Washington, Mrs. Larry Vick of Kinston, and Miss Beth Mitchell of Portsmouth, Va., cousin of the bridegroom. They were dressed in mint green polyester knit A-line gowns featuring short sleeves.

Flower girls were Miss Elizabeth Bowden Howard of Warrenton, niece of the bride, and Miss Carolyn Nell Bullock of Washington, cousin of the bride. They wore yellow polyester knit floor length dresses and carried white baskets with arrangements of daisies.

Thomas P. Hardee of Virginia Beach, Va., was best man. Ushers were Ben F. Howard of Warrenton, brothers of the bride, E.M. Hardee III of Virginia Beach, Va., J. Gregory Moore of Washington, D.C., and William H. Dees of Raleigh, all cousins of the bridegroom, and Jack Muegge of Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Washington High School and Raleigh School of Data Processing. The bridegroom is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and attended East Carolina University. He is employed by Procter and Gamble Co., Greenville.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

A reception in the church fellowship hall was given by the bride's maternal aunts and uncles.

The decorations were arrangements of summer flowers and a yellow, green and white motif was carried out. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of summer flowers and burning tapers.

Greeting guests were Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Plummer Jones presided at the guest register. Mrs. Adrian Garris served cake and Mrs. Berble Harding poured punch.

Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Bullock.

SNACKTIME FARE
Peanut Butter Crackers
Grape Fizz

GRAPE FIZZ

When we read in the New Yorker that guitarist Jim Hall, who is on the wagon, refreshes himself with this drink, we tried it — and we recommend it.

2-3rds cup unsweetened grape juice, from a 24-ounce bottle
10-ounce bottle (1 and 1-3rd cups) lemon-lime soda

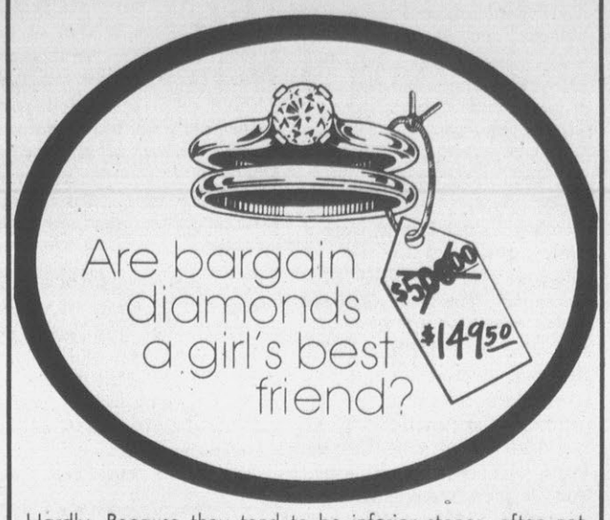

Divide the grape juice between 2 tall glasses; add ice cubes; fill with lemon-lime soda; stir. Serve at once. Makes 2 servings.

The newest suit look is the long tunic worn over pants and a shirt. The quilted jacket is the new pantsuit partner.

Engagements Announced

Mrs. Arrachele Dupree of Greenville announces the engagement of her daughter, the Rev. Clara Donna Dupree, to Marion Thomas Joyner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Joyner, also of Greenville. The wedding will take place July 6. The bride-elect is also the daughter of the late Mr. Preston Dupree.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene M. Kleppinger of Richmond, Ohio, announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathy Jane, to Daniel Downey Sprau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sprau of Detroit, Mich. The wedding will take place July 5.

Miss Pearlie Best Weds In Outdoor Ceremony

Miss Pearlie Best and Thomas Wilkins were joined in marriage in a garden ceremony Saturday at 4:00 p.m. on the lawn of Mrs. Walter King and the late Mr. King, grandparents of the bride.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. A.L. Miller of Warren Chapel Church.

The bride's parents are Mrs. Bessie Best and Mr. Luke Best, both of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Wilkins of Battleboro.

Wedding music was provided by Johnnie Wooten, organist, and soloists, Miss Debonna Barnes and Luther Barnes. They sang "We've Only Just Begun," "The Lord's Prayer," "O Promise Me" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The garden, centered with a Mimosa tree where the vows were spoken, was decorated with two palms and a seven branch candelabra with pom pons and gladioli and a kneeling bench. The seats were marked with white satin ribbons.

The bride, escorted in marriage by her father, wore a white gown fashioned of satamist and trimmed with Venise lace. The gown featured a high neckline with front and back V-shaped yoke on the high rise bodice. Lace appliques accented the cuffs of the bishop sleeves and lace encircled the A-line skirt and attached chapel length train. Her elbow length Mantilla and white capulet were covered with Venise lace and lace edged the veil of imported illusion.

Miss Bonitta Best of Greenville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Marian Hazelton, sister of the bride, of Washington, D.C., Miss Annette Barnes, of Greenville, and Miss Florence Wilkins, sister of the Bridegroom, of Battleboro.

The maid of honor wore a pink formal length matte jersey diacetate nylon jacket and dress ensemble with an Empire slip dress and bolero jacket. She carried a pink and white colonial bouquet.

The bridesmaids dresses were identical to that of the maid of honor in mint green and pink. They carried bouquets fashioned after the honor attendant's which were tied with matching bows and streamers.

Laquanta Monique Duncan of Greenville was flower girl. She wore a formal polyester gown styled similar to those of the honor attendant. She carried a basket of summer flowers.

Leon Wilkins, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Walter Wilkins, brother of the bridegroom, Luther Barnes of Battleboro and Charles Moore of Greenville. Montez Boyd of Greenville was ring bearer. He carried a white satin pillow with pink and green streamers.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of green polyester shantung designed with a V-neckline and a carnation corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore formal attire of summer colors and a carnation corsage.

Mrs. Walter King and Mrs. Major Best, grandmothers of the bride, wore carnation corsages.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Rosa Harris of Greenville.

The bride graduated from Rose High School and was a cum laude graduate of St. Augustine College, Raleigh. She was a member of Sigma RHO, social science honor society, and Alto-Kappa Mu Honor Society. The bridegroom is a 1975 graduate of St. Augustine College.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Orlando, Fla.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Masonic Lodge, given by the bride's mother.

The refreshment and cake table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with a mixture of summer flowers.

Mrs. Catherine Nobles greeted guests and Miss Angela Barnes of Greenville presided at the register. Mrs. Elizabeth Harper of Greensboro introduced the receiving line. Mrs. Zelma Carmen will assist in serving.

After the couple cut the first traditional slice of cake, Miss Debra Hazelton served cake and Miss JoAnn Williams poured punch.

Good-byes were said by Mrs. Moses Best.

MRS. LOUIS WOODSON GAYLORD III

Gaylord-Strohbehn Vows Said In Raleigh

RALEIGH—Miss Shelley Renee Strohbehn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dean Strohbehn of Cedar Falls, Iowa was married to Louis Woodson Gaylord III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gaylord Jr. of Greenville Saturday at 7 p.m. in the rose gardens of North Carolina State University here.

The Rev. Dana Hunt of Greenville performed the ceremony which was attended by immediate family members of the couple.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Northern Iowa. The bridegroom is a graduate of N.C. State University.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Raleigh.

Rarely have the classic shawls had such a revival as in fall fashion collections. They're used for extra warmth over suits, as capes, serapes.

Couple Speaks Vows Saturday

WASHINGTON—Miss Vicky Lynn Harris became the bride of Bobby Lane Clark Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in the Riverview Baptist Church here.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Ken Walters. A program of wedding music was presented by Danny Dixon and Jerome Dixon, who sang "More" and the "Wedding Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Harris and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Woodrow Clark, all of Rt. 5, of Greenville.

The bride entered the church unescorted. She wore a formal length chantilly lace gown designed with a sabrina neckline edged in scalloped chantilly lace. The long fitted lace sleeves were edged in ruffled lace. The waistline of the empire bodice featured a band of white satin ribbon with a miniature bow in back. The full gathered skirt was enhanced with a scalloped lace edging at the hemline which extended around the chapel length attached train.

She wore a fingertip length mantilla edged in chantilly lace. She carried her white Bible covered with satin and centered by three white carnations and streamers.

The maid of honor was Neta Faye Bowers of Greenville. She wore a formal length gown of blue polyester crepe with appliques of lavender flowers and green leaves.

Her headpieces was a lavender bow with lavender streamers and she carried long-stemmed lavender mums with lavender and white streamers.

The bridesmaids were Gilda Harris, sister of the bride, Tammy Anderson of Greenville and Jean Brown of Farmville. The attendants were dressed identical to the maid of honor.

The grandmothers of the couple were honored with white carnation corsages. They were Mrs. Ollen Wooten, Mrs. Willie Arnold, and Mrs. Cora Clark.

The father of the bridegroom was the best man. Ushers were Jesse Clark of Washington, brother of the bridegroom, Sgt. Major William H.Gurkins of Ft. Bragg and Ray Woolard of Greenville.

After the wedding trip, the couple will reside in Washington.

Both the bride and bridegroom graduated from North Pitt High School and the bride will continue her education in the field of nursing. The bridegroom is employed by Daniels Construction Co. and the bride is presently employed by Hollowell's Drug Store.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Ken Walters. Lydia Clark presided at the register. An after-rehearsal party given by the bride's parents in the fellowship hall of the church.

After the bridal couple cut the traditional slice of cake, the mother of the bride served the cake and the mother of the bridegroom poured the punch. Good-byes were said by the aunts of the bride, Mrs. Roy Harris and Mrs. John Vanderburg. The bride then remembered her attendents with gifts.

Happy Hour For Patients

BROOKLYN (AP) — Every day from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. the solarium in the Katz Pavilion of the Kingsbrook Jewish Medical Center is a busy scene of men and women being exercised with and on pulleys, wheels, weights and other rehabilitation equipment by members of Kingsbrook's Department of Rehabilitation Medicine.

But every other Friday at 3 p.m., the equipment is pushed to the walls and two carts are wheeled in ... one with a record player and pop and Latin records, and the other with bottles of wine contributed by the Manischewitz Wine Co., glasses and trays of snacks, and it's time for the "Every Other Friday Afternoon Cocktail Party."

"This break in the hospital routine is most welcome by the patients," said Pauline Tan, chief occupational therapist. "At first, the patients were somwewhat shy in mingling, but after the second party and a little wine, there was a spirit of warmth and cheer." Ambulatory patients began dancing with one another. Wheelchair patients kept time to the music, toe tapping and finger snapping. "The whole atmosphere is psychologically therapeutic," Miss Tan added.

An interesting aspect of the parties is that the patients themselves are responsible for the snacks. Patients in the hospital's Activities of Daily Living Kitchen prepare meatballs, cocktails sandwiches of tuna fish, egg salad, cheese and other delicacies.

Besides being a break in routine, the parties afford the patients an opportunity to forget their personal problems. For many, seeing their fellow patients swing and sway to the music encourages them to undertake activities which they might have thought too difficult.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The inspiring words of famous Americans have often brought goose bumps to my skin.

Like Barbara Frietchie's "Shoot, if you must, this old gray head, But spare your country's flag," does it for me.

So does Robert Kennedy's "Some men see things as they are and say why. I dream things that never were and say why not?"

And of course, the dramatic, "The Eagle has landed" brings a tear.

But nothing has stirred me more than a quotation attributed to the late Eleanor Roosevelt. When she was asked if housekeeping bothered her she replied, "I rarely devote more than 15 minutes a day to it."

Good Lord, that's beautiful.

All my life I have waited for a President to say, "All I am or ever hope to be I owe to my mother's sparkling toilet bowl."

Or a woman accepting the Nobel Prize for literature saying, "I must share this with my mother whose devotion to dust inspired me."

But it has never happened. I personally find 15 minutes a day doing housework excessive, but it's the idea that counts.

When I was first married I broke my bones cleaning that apartment. Then one day, I was interrupted. "Where are you going?" asked my husband.

"I'm going to have a baby. I'll only be a minute or two."

That was 22 years ago and I never got back to housework as a formal religion.

I spread the word, "WANTED, INTERRUPTIONS BY SUBURBAN HOUSEWIFE. NO OFFER IS TOO RIDICULOUS FOR CONSIDERATION. CALL ERMA, 888-9900. OUT OF STATE CALL OPERATOR 5."

And the interruptions came in. I subbed on a jousting team. Learned how to braid bread. Had another baby. Audited a Weight Watchdrs class. Took Hebrew Flower Arranging. Dyed my hair orange. Had another baby. Made a musical out of an encounter group. Raised hamsters in my home for a new coat. And learned how to parallel park a golf cart.

I don't know if I have the right attitude or not. Will my kids remember that I taught them how to ride a two-wheel bike or that the garage was condemned?

Will they remember that I sat when they had measles and watched Gilligan's Island reruns or that my kitchen buckled under too much wax?

I wish I knew. All I can say is, "Eleanor, if you know something I don't know . . . give me a sign."

An open 'Thank-you' letter to
for supporting family entertainment!

Your support of family films at our theatre has been terrific! — thank you. Many of you have asked us to repeat our family day and we are. Below is the coupon that will admit your family (maximum of 5) for $3.00 on Sunday, June 29th. I personally recommend this film to you and your family. All ages will love the adventure, warmth, and determination of the children in this true story . . . a family driven by a dream and their love for each other.

Critics are already raving about 'Seven Alone' — from the same producers that brought you the award winning 'Where the Red Fern Grows'. Family entertainment needs family support. I've committed my theatre this summer to wholesome entertainment and I'm counting on the mothers of our city for a continued commitment of support. I'm looking forward to saying "Hello, again" to you and your family this coming weekend!

Seven Alone
a true story

Henry Sager and his family at their Missouri home in 1843. He was about to leave on a journey across the American frontier that would orphan his children.

SEVEN ALONE — The true story of seven young children left alone to face the hardships and dangers of crossing 2000 miles of frontier America after the death of their parents. The movie, filmed on location near the historic Oregon Trail, is based on the book, "On To Oregon." Henry Sager & his family left their Missouri home in 1843 for Oregon, but his dream of a new home was short lived. The children decide to complete the hazardous journey on their own and fulfill their father's dream. Their courage and determination will be an inspiration to every family!

DOWNTOWN GREENVILLE

She Defies National Custom

By SYLVANA FOA

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (UPI) — The hot, sour air of Raja Bazaar was suddenly thick with a bombardment of potatoes.

"You see what the men in this country are like," said Saira Irshad, dashing for cover in the crowded market. "They see some unveiled women walking around, and they express themselves by throwing potatoes. They probably consider it a very sexual thing to do."

With her western-style clothes and fiercely independent spirit, Saira, 16, belongs to a tiny group of new breed Pakistani women, women who never have and probably never will taste the humiliation of the shroudlike, full-length veil known as the purdah.

Yet, Saira still accepts restrictions on her life style that would send shudders through American and European women.

She does not attend parties unless her brother, Sarmad, 28, agrees to take her along.

Despite her flashing black eyes and sultry look, she has never had a date with a boy.

"I wouldn't even allow her out with my best friend," growled Sarmad, "and she knows better than to ask."

Has this Pakistani beauty, whose bubbling vivaciousness immediately wins her friends, ever been kissed?

"It would be rather unheard of," Saira said, half blushing and half choking at the question. "My brother would be livid at the thought."

Saira's father, an army officer, died in the 1965 Indo-Pakistan War. Her brother Sarmad took over control of the family.

"My brother is much more strict about everything I do than my mother," said Saira. "His excuse is that he mixes around, and he hears his friends taking about other people's sisters so he knows what's what."

She said her brother keeps a sharp eye on her comings and goings. When he is out of town, he keeps track of her movements through a grapevine of friends.

"I resent often enough his interference in my life," said Saira. "He is unreasonable. He stops me from doing things, and when I ask him to explain, he tells me to take it or leave it.

"For instance, if a boy Sarmad didn't know telephones me, my brother would refuse to call me to the phone," Saira said. "If it was someone he did know, he would still hang around to hear what we were talking about."

With the help of her mother, who has studied and traveled abroad, Saira has won some important battles. She said her biggest coup was winning permission to attend high school, something only seven per cent of Pakistani women now manage.

"The only school near my house is a coed school, and at first Sarmad said flatly and absolutely that he wouldn't have me going to school with boys," Saira said. "We had a huge fight, but my mother took my side and said she wanted me to have the education. My brother grumbled a lot, but finally he broke down."

Despite her complaints, Saira says that at heart she appreciates her brother's concern.

"Often enough I get angry with my brother because he tries to carry his control to extremes," Saira said. "But at the same time I understand that in this kind of society you have to follow the rules or you'll be an outcast."

"Society here is unbelieveably petty, and people love to talk," she said. "Already people talk about me and say I'm fast because I'm sort of an extrovert and because of the way I dress.

"I suppose I should be grateful, because I'm allowed much more freedom than other girls my age in Pakistan. One of my friends isn't even allowed to go to the movies in the afternoon if there are just other women along. She can only go with a male member of her family chaperoning."

Saira paused and shook her shiny shoulder-length hair.

"Yeah, I guess I'm lucky," she said. "But I still sometimes get this terrible feeling of being imprisoned. Sometimes I just want to go out, you understand, just out."

Ombudswoman Helps Cause

By WILLEM VUUR

THE HAGUE (UPI) — The Dolle Mina feminist action group first achieved prominence by closing public urinals with tape, whistling at men on street corners and invading a castle where young men were being groomed for diplomatic careers.

It came as a surprise when the stringy-haired, free-spirited Dolle Minas chose neat, businesslike Meta Van Beek, 54, as their first ombudswoman.

Miss Van Beek, who has been at her job almost two years, said in an interview that she took the post because of the poor legal status of working women in Holland.

"Underpayment, no right to a permanent appointment in case of part-time work, less chance of promotion, no day care centers, lack of understanding with labor unions and official bodies that are mostly manned by men," she said, ticking off the problems.

"Working women often cannot get justice because the legislation is poor."

An ombudsperson —the term is Scandinavian —normally is appointed by a government to handle complaints from the public about government agencies.

Miss Van Beek, whose post is unofficial, was appointed by the Dolle Minas, but the government nevertheless listens to her.

State Secretary of Finance Martinus Van Rooyen invited her to talk with him. Soon thereafter some regulations that discriminated against women disappeared.

In correspondence with Social Affairs Minister Jaap Boersma, she won for part-time women workers the same protection under labor laws as full-time employes.

Under a recent law, women also are guaranteed equal wages with men for equal work.

"We feel rewarded by the feeling we are able to assist a lot of women who would otherwise most probably be deprived of their legal rights," Miss Van Beek said. "We are also helping to get a discussion going which sets both women and men to thinking."

Dolle Mina means "Mad Mina," the nickname of Wilhelmina Drucker, a pioneer feminist who led the campaign that eventually won Dutch women voting rights in 1922.

Miss Van Beek, a professional social worker, said her association with the group began when they asked her to lecture on problems of working women.

"I consented, though I did not agree with all they had been doing," she said. "It became an unforgettable night, and they asked me if I was willing to become the leader of an ombuds team.

"I consented, and never regretted my decision, though it practically takes all my spare time."

At first she had 20 assistants. Now she has about a dozen, working out of her apartment in the evenings.

She takes up women's rights issues with government officials. But mostly her volunteer work involves answering questions from women about feminist issues, and advising them how to deal with their problems.

"Daily some 50 letters arrive and have to be answered," she said. "We mail pamphlets, and for me there are lectures, radio and television engagements and visits to authorities."

She and her team also have prepared a 150-page book of advice on women's rights issues.

Miss Van Beek said she got involved in problems of working women because they were her own problems.

"I have worked all my life," she said. "When I was 17, I started as a domestic servant. I wanted to be a midwife, but my father did not allow me to take up studies. He needed money in a family with four girls and a boy."

Later, her parents helped her become a nurse. Then she completed a course for social workers. Next, she found her way into labor inspection, particularly in businesses with mostly women employes.

She fought against many exemptions to the law banning work by 14-year-old girls. She also fought widespread violations of the requirement of a study day once a week for teenaged employes.

Miss Van Beek said the Dolle Mina movement is financed by occasional donations from institutions and individuals and proceeds of her radio and television appearances.

She often is invited to lecture before traditional women's organizations, but few provide financial support.

"We wrote a letter to about 60 of them, and there were two positive reactions," she said.

On The Young Side

By JANET GANTT

The ending of school has slowed down events for Rose High students. Summer school began last Tuesday. Meanwhile, others were busy with both school and non-school events.

Some youths from Rose spent the week soliciting for donations from various businesses for the Community Ambassador's fund. The ambassadors will be Kathryn Haynes and Rosalyn Taylor. Both hope to visit Switzerland. Kathryn Haynes, Rita Ross, Margie Snell, Rosalyn Taylor, and Paul Windsor collected from businesses.

The United Christian Youth Movement also helped by holding street drives and other types of activities. Members who helped were Mike Allen, Lynn Ball, Leslie Dickens, Terrie Evans, Kathryn Haynes, Tammy Lockhart, David Pettus, Laura Phelps, Rita Ross, Clay Shugart, Margie Snell, Rosalyn Taylor, Jerri Tripp, and Paul Windsor. The Rev. Jim Lee, of St. James United Methodist Church, The Rev. Lee Whitlock, of Immanuel Baptist Church, and Mrs. Elaine Shaw help to advise the group.

Others who still attend Rose are Janet Boone, Dave Davis, Marty East, Donald Freeman, and Tammy Levey.

Visit UNC-CH

Newspaper and yearbook staffers spent an exciting four days at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. Attending classes on the newspaper were Tim Giles, Fred Hamblen, Martha Hunt, Leah Long, David Ostrow, Robert Walters, and Vicki Wilkerson.

Robert Walters, page one editor of the Rampant Lines, was voted president of the North Carolina Scholastic Press Institute. He followed David Ostrow, also a member of the Rose High student body. The group was escorted by Miss Anne Nelson, yearbook advisor, and Mrs. Dorothy Phillips, newspaper advisor.

During her visit here, Miss Kapasi stayed at the home of Mrs. Usha Gulati.

Miss Kapasi is spending three months in the United States studying advances in library services with a special emphasis on the challenges of information technology to libraries. She also plans to participate in International Women's Activities in Washington, D.C.

She has met the U.S. Delegation that will attend the World Conference of International Women to be held in Mexico City.

Miss Kapasi presented a program at the East Carolina University Library during her visit here. She discussed the role of libraries in international understanding.

It's such a surprise to find a very congenial and exhilarating community like Greenville," Miss Kapasi said. "I feel that the small town life is better than the big city life . . . after the hectic pace of Washington, D.C."

She added that Greenville is very peaceful and quiet.

"The scenic beauty here is such a change from Washington, D.C. I especially like the Treasure Cove area for spending a vacation.

"Life is very hectic in New Delhi because it is such a large city," Miss Kapasi said. "I like Greenville."

An employee of the library in New Delhi for 18 years, Miss Kapasi received an M.A. degree in librarianship from Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo in 1959. She received a postgraduate diploma in library from the University of Delhi in 1955 and a B.A. in Sanskrit in 1954.

Miss Kapasi is involved in all aspects of the library's functioning and programming. She is in frequent contact with government officials, leaders of political, educational, cultural and social welfare organizations, providing them with detailed information on all facets of American life.

During her tour in the United States, Miss Kapasi will visit Boston, Mass., Milwaukee, Wis., Denver, Colo., Phoenix, Ariz., Seattle, Wash., and San Francisco, Calif.

Her trip is being sponsored by the Training Division of the U.S. Information Agency, Washington, D.C.

Miss Dapasi plans to take a month's vacation and visit in New York City, Philadelphia, Kalamazoo, Chicago and Hawaii before returning to New Delhi.

She lists the performing arts as her hobby.

Raggedy Ann, Andy To Star In Movie

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the offerings of Americana planned for the Bicentennial is a movie, for release in the fall of 1976, starring Raggedy Ann and Andy.

The film, which will be animated, is already in the works, according to an announcement made here. It also is said, by its director, Richard Williams, to bear no relation to the animated cartoons seen on TV on Saturday mornings. Williams said it is meant to stack up well in comparison with the best of the Disney feature-length animated films.

Music will be by Joe Raposo, who composed "Sing" and "It's Not Easy Bein' Green" for TV's "Sesame Street." Bobbs-Merrill of Indianapolis, which publishes the Raggedy Ann books, is investing $1.7 million in the film.

The movie will include characters from the Raggedy Ann and Andy books, including the "camel with the wrinkled knees." Several of the characters are new creations of writers Max Wilk and Patricia Thackray.

The story takes place on the birthday of Marcella, who owns Raggedy Ann and Andy. She receives a new French doll as a gift, which a pirate abducts. Raggedy Ann and Andy leave the safety of the nursery to go and rescue the doll. In the deep woods they encounter the camel with the wrinkled knees, a discarded toy, who joins them in a series of adventures.

The Raggedy Ann and Andy stories were started by the late John Gruelle, a political cartoonist for the Indianapolis Star. He told them to his daughter, Marcella, until she died of tuberculosis in 1916, and he based them on a doll which had belonged to his own mother that Marcella found in the attic. He drew a face on the doll and named her from a combination of two poems written by an Indianapolis neighbor, James Whitcomb Riley — "Raggedy Man" and "Orphan Annie."

After Marcella died, Gruelle started writing down the stories he had told her, and adding others. One of the newspaper's employes borrowed them to read to his children and the first Raggedy Ann book was published by a Chicago printing house in 1918. Until his death 20 years later, Gruelle wrote and illustrated nearly 40 Raggedy Ann books.

After he began writing the books, Gruelle and his wife had two sons, who were never mentioned in the Raggedy Ann stories. Later they said that they didn't mind. Marcella had become part of their father's literary life.

TV SHOWTIME

For The Week Of June 29-July 5, 1975

Bicentennial Salute

The "Bicentennial Minutes" series, the innovative, unique television salute to the 200th birthday of the United States, will celebrate its 365th broadcast July 4, on CBS-TV.

The eries, which made its debut on July 4, 1974, recalls events - some momentous in history, others little known incidences — which occured exactly 200 years ago on the date of the broadcast. Presented each evening in prime time, the series will continue through our nation's Bicentennial on July 4, 1976.

Joanne Woodward is to narrate the anniversary "Minute" of July 4. Miss Woodward relates how, on July 4, 1775, a 21-year-old Connecticut school-teacher was voted a lieutenant's commission in Washington's Continental Army. He had to decide to accept it or turn it down. The young man was Nathan Hale. The "Minute" may be seen prior to the first station break in the move "Yellow Submarine."

Along with Miss Woodward, all performers and other public figures who narrate the "Bicentennial Minutes" series donate their fees to establish graduate fellowships in the study of American history of the Revolutionary period. The graduate fellowships will be endowed at three leading American universities to be selected by the CBS Foundation, which initiated the project. The Foundation will add triple the sum of a narrator's contribution, thus enabling the graduate flowships to be established in perpetuity.

Other narrators this week are Herschel Bernardi, Mayor Fred Hofheinz and Buddy Rich.

The "Minute" of Sunday, June 29, will be narrated by Herschel Bernardi. Spies intercepted a letter from a royal governor of Georgia to General Gage, the British commander in Boston. The "Minute" will be broadcast at the conclusion of "Cher."

Mayor Fred Hofheinz of Houston, Texas, narrates the "Minute" of Monday, June 30. Frontier sharpshooters blazed away at an unusual target in a muddy western Pennsylvania town. The "Minute" may be seen at the conclusion of "Gunsmoke."

Buddy Rich will narrate the "Minute" of Wednesday, July 2. Father Silvestre Velez de Escalante left a Hopi Indian camp in a huff. The "Minute" will be broadcast at the conclusion of "Tony Orlando and Dawn."

Summer Shows Slated

"The Dick Cavett Show," "Joey and Dad," and "The Manhattan Transfer" will brighten the summer on the CBS Television Network with funny, musical, contemporary programs, continuing the practice with the Network has pioneered of using the summer months to develop primetime shows.

This summer, the Network will present a great television star in a new setting on CBS, a pair of seasoned troupers who have never before worked together, and a group of talented young performers entirely new to television audiences — summer programming in the tradition that brought "Tony Orlando and Dawn" and "Sonny & Cher" to viewers.

"The Dick Cavett Show" will star the urbane master of laughter and conversation in a comedy-variety format. Premiering, Saturday, Aug. 16, the four-week presentation is Cavett's first series assignment for CBS.

"Joe and Dad" will star beautiful and vivacious Joey Heatherton and her father, Ray, in an hour of music and comedy beginning Sunday, July 6, for four weeks. Ray Heatherton, with many radio and television, was a Broadway musical comedy star in the 1930s.

"The Manhattan Transfer," four attractive young performers who have gained a large following with their interpretations of songs of the 1930s and '40s and their zany comedy, will transfer their stylish talents to CBS in another one-hour show beginning Sunday, Aug. 10, also for four weeks.

Pantomime Game Begins This Week

"Showoffs" an uninhibited game of pantomime hosted by Bobby Van, will premiere on the ABC Television Network Monday, June 30, 12:00 noon to 12:30 p.m.

Sally Struthers, Dick Gautier, star of ABC's upcoming prime time comedy series, "When Things Were Rotten," Ron Masak and Joyce Bullifant are the celebrity players during the premiere week.

In the wildly unpredictable game of body language, the four celebrity players and two contestants will be teamed in animated competition to communicate—non-verbally—a concept identifying a word or phrase.

The two teams will compete for points and the first team to win two rounds moves on to the Sweepstakes Round and the possibility of big cash winnings.

In 1973, Bobby Van won a Tony nomination for his performance in the Broadway musical, "No, No, Nanette," His television creidts include guest appearances on "The Ed Sullivan Show," "Hollywood Palace," "Kraft Music Hall" and "The Jackie Gleason Show." Van has had featured roles in such films as "Kiss Me Kate," "The Affairs of Dobie Gillis" and "Lost Horizon." In great demand on the nightclub circuit, he has appeared at night spots from the Catskills—where he began his musical comedy career at the age of fourteen — to Las Vegas.

REMODEL WITH PANELING

An old-fashioned room with architectural defects can be given brand-new, updated looks through clever decorating. It's not as difficult as it seems, particularly if you take advantage of some of the new products available. One of the best is paneling. It is an ideal remodeling material because it quickly and easily masks all kinds of bad elements. It camouflages exposed pipes or marred walls, as well as any structural alterations you might make to such things as windows, doors and fireplaces. Wall to wall carpeting will complement your new paneling. There is a complete selection right here. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. Watts: 10 Years Later

WATTS STUDENT LEADER — Ruben C. Vaughan Jr., a student body leader at Jordan High School in the Watts section of Los Angeles, is interviewed in the NBC News special, "A Country Called Watts." The program, a comprehensive study of life today in Watts, a predominately black area that was shaken by riots 10 years ago, will be colorcast on NBC-TV Sunday, June 29 (10-11 p.m.).

A comprehensive survey of life today in Watts, a predominantely black section of Los Angeles which was shaken by riots 10 years ago — and whether promises made by the government after the disturbances were fulfilled — will be the subject of a one-hour NBC News special.

This special, "A Country Called Watts," is the first news documentary to be produced entirely on location using the minicam and will air Sunday, June 29, 10 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

The program will be produced by Thomas Tomizawa, with NBC News correspondents Tom Pettit and Gail Christian as on-camera reporters. It will explore, from the point of view of those who live in the Watts community, the changes that have taken place there during the years following the riots.

The disturbances took place over a five-day period, Aug. 11-16, 1965.

Producer Tomizawa says that an underlying theme of the program will be "... a revelation of life in the ghetto; getting along in the welfare system, fear of crime, fear of cops, looking for a job and looking for status."

Among those interviewed on the special program will be Marquette Frye, whose arrest in 1965 touched off the riots. Now nearly 31 years old, Frye still lives in South Los Angeles and he says he has been arrested about 35 times since the riots. As something of a symbol of the riots, he claims he is a target of police harassment.

"Every rookie cop who sees me wants to bust me because they figure it's like getting Capone or Dillinger," says Frye, who doesn't feel he's to blame for the riots. "If it hadn't been me it would have been somebody else.

"I wish it had been somebody else. It just happened to be me and there's nothing I can do about it. A lot of people look up to me and respect me for it, but I don't look at it that way."

Frye says his many arrests are played up in the newspapers but when charges are dropped the news is ignored.

"A lot of people come up to me on the streets and say, "Man, you always get busted. You've been busted for some of everything, man, but you always get cut loose. How do you do it?"

"I tell them it's simple because I don't do what they say—I do," says Frye.

Also interviewed will be Bobby Lavender, who tutored street gangs in how to avoid confrontations with the police; and Ted Watkins, a former trade union official who is head of the Watts Labor Community Action Committee which specializes in job training and placement for residents of the area.

Tomizawa says the NBC News video tape cameras will record "... a unique phenomenon: the politics of poverty; the competition for diminishing local, state and federal funds for the Watts community; urban renewal, which sometimes meant clearance without rebuilding; and the violence and frustration that youths experience growing up in Watts."

The program will also examine the controversial "Alpha File," a special Los Angeles Police Department card file on youths suspected of having a capacity for violence.

The "All electronic" news documentary will also explore what chance — if any — there is for another riot in Watts.

Misadventures Of 'Inky' The Crow

(See Sunday Evening Schedule)

"Inky, the Crow" is a sensitive nature drama which will air on NBC-TV, Sunday, June 29, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on channel 6-7.

Discovering a crow covered with house paint, 13-year-old Carol Lee (Deborah Bainbridge) rushes him home to be cleaned up and saved from his sticky fate. She decides to keep him for a pet and names him Inky. The mischievous crow, however, makes a pest of himself, upsetting a bridge party, terrorizing the cat, and finally hiding a very valuable ring.

Carol's parents (Margo Lungreen and Willard Granger) tell her that Inky must go. When she sets him free, Inky flies off for Mr. Fletcher's (Rowan Pease) fruit orchard where Fletcher, a cantankerous sort, always has his shotgun ready for unsuspecting crows. Fearing for Inky's safety, Carol follows to keep him out of trouble.

Lorne Greene Movie Making TV Premiere

A retired police lieutenant's son is shot down before his eyes, and his grandson is kidnapped by a syndiate killer, in "Man on the Outside," a suspense drama making its world premiere on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," June 20, 8:30 to 10:30 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

Mac Davis To Be Emcee For Pageant

Mac Davis, TV star, recording star and composer of hit tunes, will be the master of ceremonies of the 15th annual Miss Teenage America Pageant, to be color-cast on NBC-TV in November.

The event will have a Bicentennial theme, "The New Spirit of '76," and will originate for the first time from the Maybee Center, on the campus of Oral Roberts University, Tulsa, Okla. Miss Teenage America of 1976 will be selected on the program, with the title accompanied by a $10,000 scholarship award.

Though a young performer, Davis has, through his TV appearances and song hits, appealed to a wide audience. He has starred in his own NBC-TV series, "The Mac Davis Show," and has hosted "The Midnight Special" and the 90-minute late-night special, "I Believe in Music."

Noted for his songwriting ability, his "I Believe in Music" — his theme song — has been recorded by more than 50 artists. He earned a gold record for his "Baby Don't Get Hooked on Me." His other original compositions include "Watching Scotty Grow," "In the Ghetto," "Something's Burning," "Friend, Lover, Woman, Wife," "Whoever Finds This, I Love You," "Lonesomest Lonesome," "Naughty Girl" and "One Hell of a Woman."

Pin Spot

A nationwide television audience witnessed the astonishment of "Tomorrow" staff member Catherine Wilmot when host Tom Snyder called her onto the set during the taping of a recent program. Tom presented her with a citation and a gold pin on the occasion of her 20th anniversary as an NBC employee. After the show, "Tomorrow" provided a limousine to take Kay to her New Jersey home.

VALERIE HARPER (left) as Rhoda offers some advice to her dating girl friend, played by Barbara Sharma, on "Rhoda" Monday, June 30 (9:30-10 p.m.) on channels 3N-11.

Valerie Harper Becomes Rhoda For Thirty Minutes Each Week

For one half hour each week Valerie Harper becomes Rhoda Morgenstern Gerard, with a transformation that is complete. Millions believe that Valerie IS Rhoda, and the star gets scores of letters each week from fans offering advice on how she can get along with her Jewish mother or how she can lose weight with a new dietetic method. And Valerie makes the character of Rhoda so sympathetic that she gets hundreds of letters from young girls who want to confide in her - tell her about their own personal problems. Only a very gifted actress can effect such a metamorphosis.

Further proof of Valerie's talent is the fact that all her co-stars on the "Rhoda" series, seen Mondays on CBS at 9:30 p.m., praise her talents so highly. Julie Kavner, also known as Brenda Morgenstern, says that Valerie is so good she makes anyone who works with her look good, too. Nancy Walker, who plays the part of Rhoda's overbearing mother, beams when she talks about Valerie. "I love her," she smiles. "She's just a darling to work with, a lot of fun, down - to - earth real. Valerie's a real pro."

And David Groh can't say enough about Valerie's capabilities. "She's terrific!" he says enthusiastically. "She has a feeling for each actor and adapts herself to him, which is a sign of a very good actress."

Specials For Old And Young Ready

On the eve of the Apollo-Soyuz flight (Monday, July 14), NBC News will present on the NBC Television Network two special half-hour programs devoted to a preview of the joint nine-day mission. The first program, designed to help young people understand what is happening in space during the historic event, will be telecast from 4-4:30 p.m. The second, a preview of the flight for adult viewers, will be presented from 11:30 p.m. to 12 midnight.

Both programs will originate from the John F. Kennedy Space Center in Florida. "Today" co-host Jim Hartz will be anchorman of the young people's program, with John Chancellor, chief reporter and writer for "NBC Nightly News," anchoring the nighttime special. Assisting them will be correspondents Roy Neal and John Dancy (in Moscow) and Rear Adm. Alan B. Shepard Jr. (retired), America's first man in space and the fifth human being to walk on the moon.

'A Cry For Help' Was Natural Story For Actor Robert Culp

To what degree are we responsible for the lives of our fellowman? At what risk to ourselves do we try and save a life — if we can? Just how much should be "get involved?"

The answer to questions like these are not black and white answers, but rather varying shades of gray. It's not so much a matter of right versus wrong but it is a matter of what one can live with.

"A Cry For Hlep," ABC Television Network's "Tuesday Movie of the Week," airing July 1, 8:30 to 10 p.m. on Ch. 3-5-12, concerns a very cynical radio commentator who takes on-air calls from listeners from 6 a.m. to 7:30 a.m. every day. When a desperate young woman, seemingly bent on suicide, calls, the commentator mocks her. Angry listeners convince him that the unknown girl may be very serious and the commentator devotes his energy into tracking her down before she ends her life. By cajoling, insulting and goarding his listening audience, he learns the young woman's identity and she is found before the pills she has swallowed take effect. The action takes place during one morning of the commentator's air time.

To play the part of the cunical, charismatic disk jockey, Robert Culp was a unanimous choice. Cup, who became a televison star with the series "Track-down," firmly entrenched that position with "I Spy." Co-starring with Bill Cosby, he also directed a number of episodes for the award-winning series. Best known to film fans, perhaps, for "Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice," in which he starred with Natalie Wood, Culp has also been seen with Raquel Welch in "Hannie Caulder." His television films include Ingmar Bergman's "The Lie" and "Houston, We've Got a Problem."

Culp's role, encompassing sixty pages of dialogue, is one of the most difficult of his career. Because of the unique structure of the dramatic script, Culp and Elaine Heilviel, who plays the part of the suicidal young woman, have no on-camera scenes together. Most of his were filmed in a replica of a broadcasting station on the Universal Studios lot; hers were filmed on locations at Newport and Malibu.

DIRECTS SEARCH — Robert Culp uses the power of his radio program to direct a desperate search for Elayne Heilveil, a girl who has threatened suicide, in "Cry for Help," a contemporary drama on ABC-TV's "Tuesday Movie of the Week" July 1 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

'Police Story' Series Earns General Acclaim

"Police Story," the NBC Television Network's anthology series, has been critically acclaimed by press and public as the most authentic and realistic program of its type. Also attesting to the very favorable impression the series made in its initial year was the fact that several police academies have requested prints of certain "Police Story" episodes for training purposes.

Joseph Wambaugh, who created the concept for the series and who serves as production consultant, knows what he's talking about. He joined the Los Angeles police department in 1960 and was a member of the force for almost 14 years.

'The Carpetbaggers' Return Saturday Eve

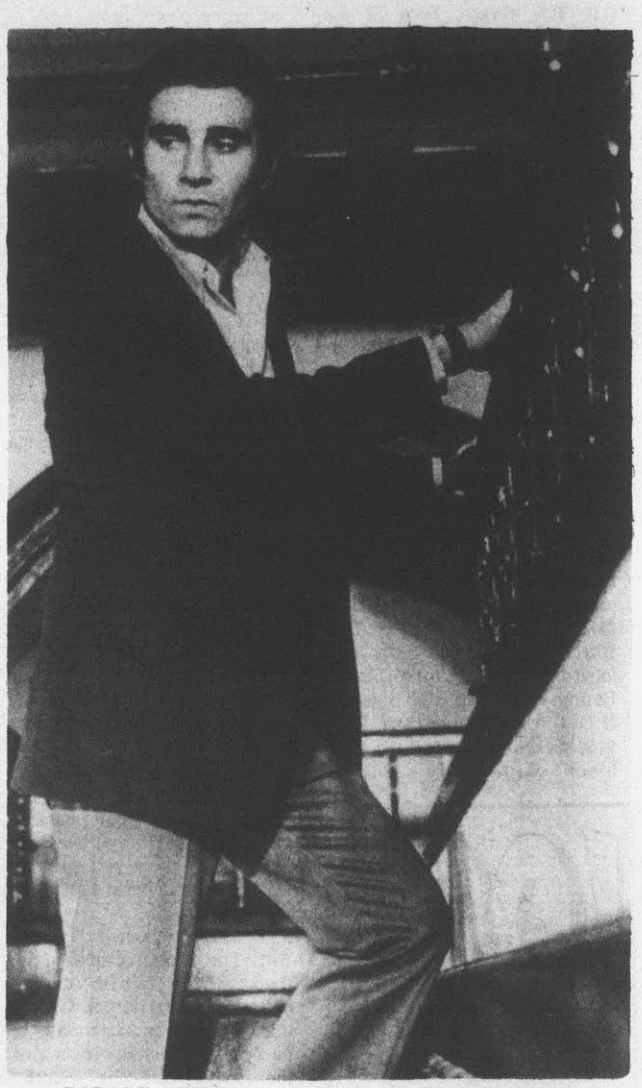

"The Carpetbaggers," based on Harold Robbins' best selling novel, with a cast that includes Carroll Baker, George Peppard, Alan Ladd, Bob Cummings, Martha Hyer and Elizabeth Ashley, airs as "The ABC Saturday Night Movie", July 5 (9:00 p.m. - Midnight) on Channel 3-5-12.

Played against backgrounds of industrial intrigue and the Hollywood of the "Golden '30's," this is the story of Jonas Cord, Jr. (George Peppard), who inherits his father's chemical company and soon blazes a trial of conquests in the business world as well as with women.

Cord is bitter over the marriage of his father to Rina Marlow (Carroll Baker), a woman he had planned to marry himself.

She adds to his bitterness by leaving after his father's funeral as does Nevada Smith (Alan Ladd), Jonas' boyhood mentor and idol. Though he continues to amass money and power, Jonas is lonely and impulsively marries Monica Winthrop (Elizabeth Ashley).

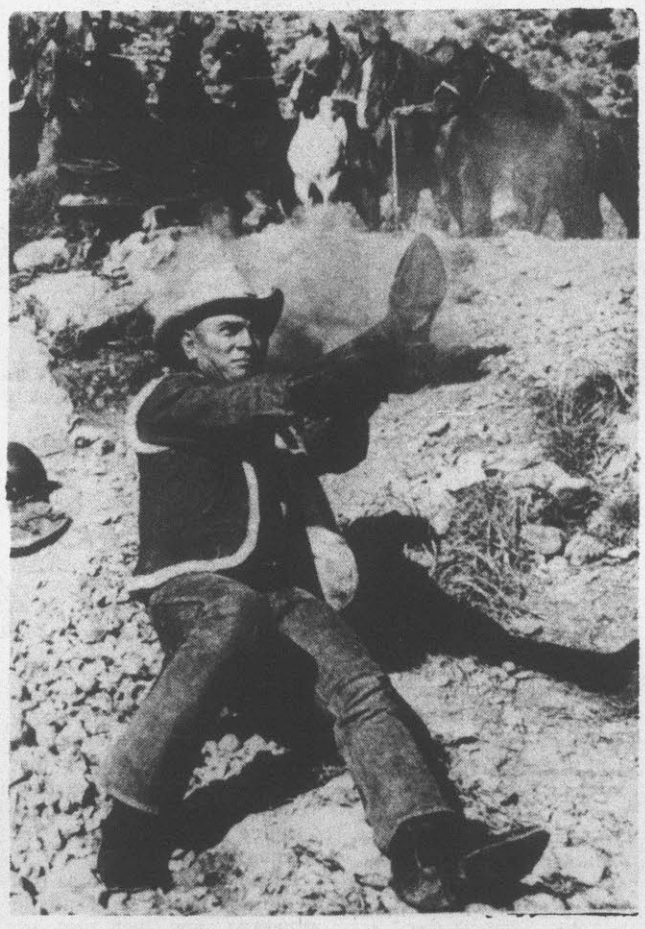

Nevada, now a major movie star, sends for Rina when he hears she is ill and they find a measure of happiness together. Then, halfway through a silent western, in which most of his money is invested, Nevada learns that the picture, because of coming of "talkies," is to be scrapped. Rina calls Cord, who agrees to produce the film himself in return for full control of everything. Jonas casts Rina in the leading role and she is catapulted to international stardom.

FLIP IN HAWAII

Segments of Flip Wilson's second CBS show, "Travels With Flip," will be taped in Hawaii, with a bevy of beauty queens.

YUL BRYNNER stars as a cattle rustler who goes after a fortune in gold bullion, in "Catlow", Western adventure to be seen on "The CBS Thursday Night Movie", July 3 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Movie Filmed In Gotham

"Mr. Inside-Mr. Outisde," starring Tony LoBianco and Hal Linden as two New York Police detectives, will be colorcast on the "CBS Late Show," Wednesday, June 2, 11:30 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

The detective team of Massi (LoBianco) and Isaacs (Linden), in resonse to a call for help from Fred Wakeman (Ed Van Nuys) who says he is a policeman in trouble, storm into a foreign embassy headed by Vice Counsul Luber (Stefan Schnabel). The detectives are attacked by Embassy personnel and Massi is shot and seriously wounded. Wakeman is not in the embassy, but later his dead body is found elsewhere.

Massi's arm is amputated. When he is released from the hospital, he and Issacs are not permitted by their superior, Capt. Valentine (Paul Benjamin), to pursue the case because of diplomatic immunity. Despite this, a bitter Massi persuades a reluctant Isaacs to help him find the asailant, the only clue to his identity being a scar on his gun hand.

Others in the cast are Marcia Jean Kurtz as Isaac's wife, Renee, Phil Burns as Brack, Melody Santangelo as a streetwalker, and Arnold Soboloff as a gun sller.

Perhaps it was because both are native New Yorkers — Tony from Brooklyn and Hal from the Bronx — and have managed to keep working and living in New York.

Several movies Tony made, including "The Honeymoon Killers," "The French Connection" and "The Seven Ups," were all filmed in New York.

"There is more realism in New York," Tony said. "People seem to have character in their faces." Smiling, he added: "It's a harder life here. It's getting harder and harder to be a New York actor, because the work is going elsewhere. But there's still an excitement about shooting in New York. There are neighborhoods in New York. Turn a corner here, and you're in a totally new environment."

THEY COVER NEW YORK—The mast of a ship and the skyline of lower Manhattan form a backdrop for Tony LoBianco (left) and Hal Linden, who portray two New York City detectives in "Mr. Inside-Mr. Outside" filmed entirely on the streets of New York City. The show will be colorcast on "CBS Late Movie" Wednesday, July 2 at 11:30 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Stars Helped 'Save Face'

A young father from the state of Washington called on two Hollywood stars for help when a group of fifth graders called his bluff.

Bill Evans, a telephone company employee in the small town of Renton, Washington, a suburb of Seattle, called NBC-TV recently.

"I have an 11-year-old daughter," he explained, "and last week was Career Day in her school. The fathers of the students appear with their children and tell about their jobs. Since I work for the phone company I decided to tell the kids about the importance of telephones, and how, with a phone, you can talk to anyone in the world."

But the kids challenged him: "No you can't; you can't talk to famous people."

Gulping, Evans assured them that they could indeed talk to famous people on the phone. He asked them to prepare a list of 10 famous people they'd like to talk to, with the assurance that he'd do his best to get one of them to call the school room.

Two of those on the list were stars of NBC-TV's hit series, "Little House on the Prairie" (Wednesdays, 8-9 p.m.) — Michael Landon, who stars as Charles Ingalls, and Melissa Gilbert, the 11-year-old actress who portrays his daughter, Laura.

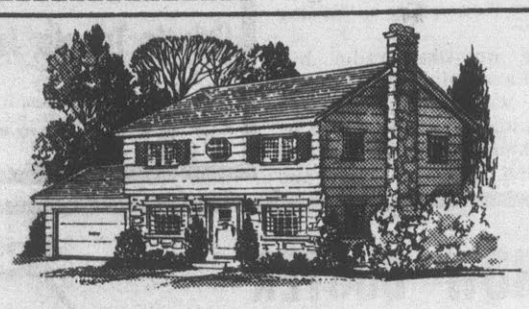

"Do you think it would be possible for Michael and Melissa to call the school room for just five minutes?", asked Evans when he called NBC-TV. "I could have some special phone equipment installed in the classroom which would allow the kids to hear everything they said, and they in turn could hear all the questions from the kids."

That's how it came to pass that Michael and Melissa gave up their lunch hour Friday, June 6, to chat on the phone with students of the Benson Hill Elementary School in Washington.

Don't be surprised if within the near future CBS announces a new series for Wayne Rogers, who has departed "M.A.S.H." Rumor has it that Wayne will have a show of his own for mid-season, and it'll be a variety show!

Tom Bosely of "Happy Days" will co-star in "Please Stand By," an ABC special based on Orson Welles famous "Martian" broadcast of the '30s.

It's apparently true that Sonny Bono will be Cher's guest on her first show of the new season. There's even speculation that the couple will use the national TV audience to announce a reconciliation!

Production on "The Rockford Files" has been delayed, first by recurring leg injury to series star Jim Garner, and second by a contract dispute between Garner and the studio. However, both problems have been resolved.

There's an announcement in the offering regarding The Hudson Brothers and their own series.

Jim Stafford isn't a household name at this writing, but he very well could be when his ABC series debuts July 30.

Andy Griffith was married recently, but there was so much secrecy surrounding the ceremony that not even his new bride's name is being revealed by his public relations representative.

Plan 6 Hours Of 'Tomorrow'

NBC-TV's "Tomorrow" show will be extended to an unprecedented six hours and be colorcast live — from the end of "Tonight" to the start of "Today" — in the early morning of July 4, 1975, to usher in America's Bicentennial celebration, Robert T. Howard, President, NBC-TV announced recently.

Tom Snyder will be the sole host of the colorcast, which will feature remotes from sites in the United States and via satellite from London.

The "Tomorrow" broadcast, from 1 a.m. to 7 a.m. following the Thursday, July 3, telecast of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," is believed to be network television's first six-hour entertainment program.

"With this 'Tomorrow' bridge, the NBC-TV Network will innovate a new dimension in television by providing an all-night network service of entertainment, public affairs and news programming from the 'Tonight Show' through the 'Today' show," Howard said.

"Tomorrow's" six - hour Bicentennial program will encompass two distinct segments integrated into each hour which will be devoted to a particular subject. Each hour will feature Snyder in NBC's New York studio with authoritative guests, and the host talking with people in remote segments from areas including two cities in the East, Las Vegas, Nev., and, via live satellite, London England.

Patriotic Show Slated July 3

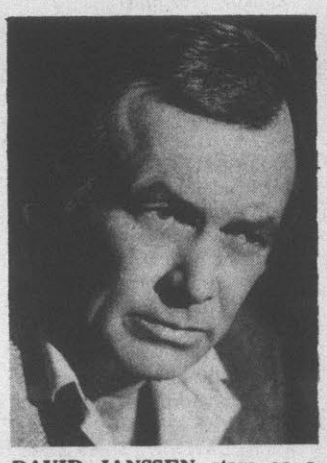

"The Stars and Stripes Show" will celebeate Independence Day this year with music, comedy and variety when it is colorcast on NBC Television Network Thursday, July 3, 8 to 9 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

Stars of this year's program will be Bob Hope, Anital Bryant, Charley Pride, John Davidson and Juliet Prowse. The Mike Curb Congregation, the Stars and Stripes Chorale and the Cisco Belles will be featured.

This year marks the fourth network presentation of the patriotic music and variety hour, an annual event of the Oklahoma Association of Broadcasters since 1969.

Several times the recipient of a principal award of the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, "The Stars and Stripes Show" was conceived by the Oklahoma City Association of Broadcasters as an affirmation of America's heritage of freedom as set forth in the Constitution.

The special was taped at the Myriad, Oklahoma City's convention center.

DAVID JANSSEN stars as a private investigator in "Harry O" which colorcasts on Thursdays from 10:00 to 11:00 on ABC-TV.

From O'Hara To 'Harry O'

In his last television series David Janssen played a United States Secret Service agent by the name of 'O'Hara.' This year on Thursdays, 10 to 11 p.m. on ABC-TV, he plays a private detective by the name of "Harry O."

"Harry O used to be a cop," intoned an announcer for an ABC-TV commercial last summer, "before a bullet forced him out of the department. But 'Harry O,' played by David Janssen can't stay out of the action and as a private investigator he's right in the middle of it."

Right in the middle of television is where David Janssen has been for the past 18 years. He wasn't exactly born into the medium, but almost: his mother, a Ziegfeld Follies beauty, took him on the road at an early age, enabling him to make the claim, "I started acting at the age of 9."

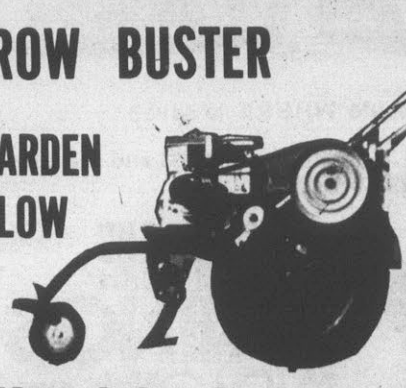

Landing in Hollywood when he was 12, he grew up in the film business and at the age of 16, he was playing the kid brother to Johnny Weissmuller in "Swamp Fire."

The one-time radio hit, "Richard Diamond, Private Eye," was revived for TV and the leading role was played by dark-haired, large-eared David Janssen. It ran four seasons and after its deline Janssen stayed busy doing guest shots in TV shows. Then he went back to another television series, this one in which he nearly lost his personal identity.

The came "O'Hara, United States Treasury," A series the Treasury Department felt would show its law enforcement work as favorably as Efrem Zimbalist Jr. was doing for "The FBI." The series was dropped at the end of the first year.

Kuralt On The Road..To '76

CBS Correspondent Charles Kuralt, who has spent the past eight years "On the Road," will go "On the Road to '76," filing reports from one of the 50 United States once each week on the "CBS Evening News With Walter Cronkite" through next summer to commemorate the nation's Bicentennial.

The first "On the Road to '76" report will be broadcast on Friday, July 4, on Cronkite's newscast at 6:30 p.m.

During Kuralt's travels through the backroads of America for his regular "On the Road" series, he has captured the individuality of the people, places and events which have managed to surive in this age of plastics and conformity. This same theme of individuality, an inherent feature in the settlement and growth of each state in the Union, will be the focus of the Bicentennial Year series.

"Every one of the states in our Union has a rich heritage," says Kuralt. "Each has certain unique qualities which give it a particular flavor and character of its own, whether it be the endeavors and accomplishments of its people, or particular enterprises which have become somewhat indigenous to that state. In these many essays, we hope to represent the people, places and enterprises that have been basic to the history of each state, and in a broader sense, basic to the history of the country."

The first edition of "On the Road to '76" will find Kuralt in Massachusetts, where he will examine the particularly eloquent use of language which has prevailed among the state's patriots, writers and politicians during the past 200 years.

"On the Road to '76" will be Kuralt's first attempt to visit each of the 50 United States in one year, a journey which is certain to add to the usual 50,000 miles he logs annually for "On the Road." Accompanying him in his familiar specially equipped bus will be his soundman Larry Gianneschi Jr., and electrician Charles Quinlan.

Half-Hour Love Story

"Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," a contemporary love story based on the prestigious motion picture starring Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn, will air as a half-hour comedy special on the ABC Television Network, Friday, July 4 (9:30 to 10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

Newlyweds John and Joanna Prentiss entertain their parents at their first family dinner and all goes smoothly. Then, John becomes upset when he learns that Joanna is considering the offer of a job by her former boyfriend, Joe Delaney. He is further annoyed when he comes to suspect that the job offer had been suggested by Joanna's father, Matt Drayton. And his frame of mind is not eased when he is told by Tillie, his parents' outspoken maid, that she thinks Joanna should have married Joe Delaney instead of him.

Starring are Leslie Charleson as Joanna, Bill Overton as John, Richard Dysart as Matt Drayton, Eleanor Parker as Christine Drayton, Madge Sinclair as Sarah Prentiss and Lee Weaver as Ralph Prentiss. Rosetts Le Noir plays Tillie and William Callaway portrays Joe Delaney.

COMEDY STARS— Leslie Charleson and Bill Overton star as newlyweds John and Joanna Prentiss in "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," a half-hour comedy special based on the motion picture that starred Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn, which will air on ABC-TV Friday, July 4 (9:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

Producer and director of "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," is Stanley Kramer, who directed and produced the motion picture of the same name. The teleplay was written by Bill Idelson.

"Guess Who's Coming to Dinner" was taped before an audience at the Burbank Studios. The motion picture score, "The Glory of Love," was retained for the television production.

BOOKS PUBLISHED

Red Skelton will have at least four of his books published. First one's "Clown Alley," a collection of Red's paintings, also for kids' coloring books. The second book is about frogs; third, elephants; and the fourth—patriotic.

Double Feature On CBS Friday Fare

"Yellow Submarine" and "Alfred the Great" will comprise a double feature presentation to be aired on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" July 4, 8 to 11 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

The innovative full-length animated film starring The Beatles and featuring 14 of their hit songs, "Yellow Submarine" will be rebroadcast as the first part (8 to 9:30 p.m.) as the first part of the double bill.

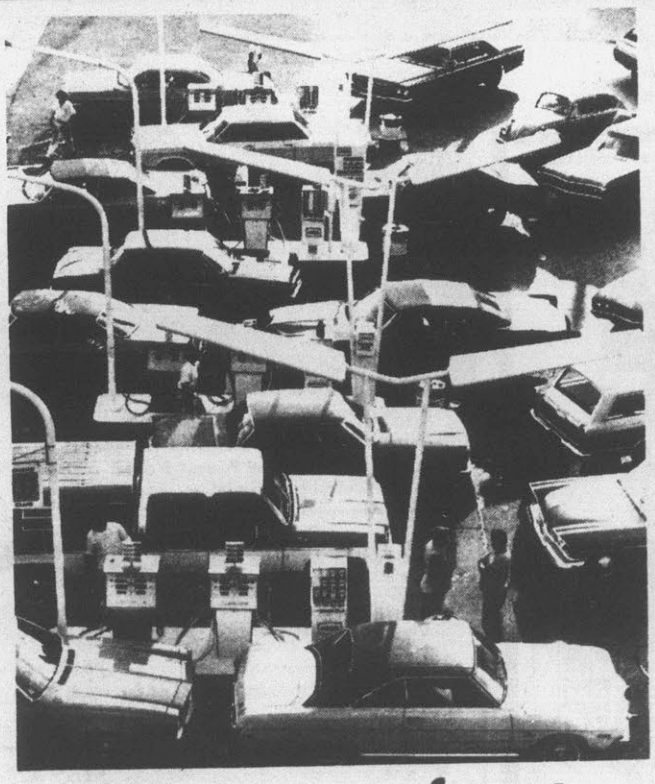

"Yellow Submarine" takes place in the mythical kingdom of Pepperland. There, in the midst of a band concert, the Chief Blue Meanie and Max, his assistant, with their 99 henchmen, unleash a foul assault on the docile populace. One man, Old Fred, escapes in the Yellow Submarine, which surfaces in Liverpool, where he recruits Beatles Ringo, John, Paul and George.

They all head back for Pepperland, encountering an incredible number of adventures on the way. Once there, The Beatles square off for a knucklesdown encounter with the Blue Meanies.

David Hemmings and Michael York star in "Alfred the Great," a drama of the desperate times and fierce battles that led to the unification of England. This exciting movie will be the second film, airing from 9:30 to 11 p.m.

Hemmings portrays Alfred, the younger brother of a weak, dissolute king whose realm is only a tiny corner of England. Constantly beseiged by pagan forces from the Continent led by Guthrum the Dane (York), the tiny factions of England are unable to unite into one powerful force. Alfred, an extraordinary warrior, lives in the shadow of his brother and in fear of his own enjoyment of battle.

The king's death puts Alfred on the throne, and in the throes of making an agonized decision to fight the pagans.

How soon we forget.

New Series For ABC

Nine new prime time series, including five exciting dramatic shows, three bright new comedies and the season's only new variety hour, will be presented on ABC-TV this fall.

The new programs, employing the talents of distinguished creative artists and personalities, will be part of a balanced, diversified and exciting schedule appealing to the entire range of viewer interest.

The three new comedies are "Welcome Back, Kotter," starring the brilliant young comedian - actor Gabe Kaplan; "When Things Were Rotten," an outrageous spoof of Robin Hood, and "On The Rocks," based on an award - winning British situation comedy about four inmates in a minimum - security jail.

"Howard Cosell" stars the famed ABC Sports personality as host of a variety program to be produced live from New York.

The new dramatic programs are "Starsky and Hutch," starring Paul Michael Glaser and David Soul as a team of plainclothes detectives; "Mobile Two," with Jackie Cooper as a TV newsman; "Cash and Cable," starring William Shatner and Doug McClure in an exciting comedy western adventure set in San Francisco's Barbary Coast in the 1880s; "Matt Helm," starring Tony Franciosa as the colorful private eye of motion picture and novel fame, and "The Swiss Family Robinson," the classic children's story, starring Martin Milner and Cameron Mitchell.

Along with the regular prime time series, ABC will present a number of outstanding motion pictures in its popular "The ABC Sunday Night Movie" time period and in the new "The ABC Friday Night Movie." These include: "The Sound of Music," "Cabaret," "Sounder," Woody Allen's "Sleeper," "For Pete's Sake," starring Barbra Streisand, and "The Last Detail," with Jack Nicholson.

NBC And NASA Sign Agreement

NBC News has entered into an exclusive agreement with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to utilize as a broadcast facility, one of the two control rooms at the Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center in Houston for its special live coverage of the joint Apollo-Soyuz mission.

The control room, which was used for the Gemini and Apollo space missions, including the historic first moon landing flight of Apollo 11, is located in the Mission Operations Building of the Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center, directly above the control room that will be used by NASA to communicate with the American and Russan Astro auts during their stay in space.

Reporting during key phases of the mission will be co-anchormen John Chancellor and Jim Hartz, joined by NBC News correspondents John Dancy (in Moscow) and Roy Neal. Acting as special on-the-air consultant for NBC News during the flight will be Rear Adm. Alan B. Shepard Jr. (retired), America's first man to fly in space and the fifth human being to walk on the moon.

Second Bid By Evonne

Ten long years ago, Australian tennis coach Vic Edwards took a young, part-aborigine girl into his Sydney home. He and his wife treated her like one of their own children. Her surname, Goolagong, means "tall trees near still water" in the aboriginal language, and her playing style was as graceful and placid as her name. It wasn't long before Edwards was predicting that Evonne Goolagong, his hard-working student, would reach tennis stardom in 1974. Ms. Goolagong will be teaming with Virginia Wade against Billie Jean King and Chris Evert in the Women's Doubles competition of the World Invitational Tennis Classic, to be broadcast Sunday, June 29, at 4:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Evonne, a hard-serving 23-year-old, first gave notice to the tennis world of impending greatness when she captured the 1971 Wimbledon Championship.

In 1974, her biggest victory came against the world's most formidable female tennis pros, Billie Jean King and Chris Evert, in the Virginia Slims Championships. Her victory over the two highly touted Americans earned her a cool $32,000, equal to the juciest cash prize in the history of women's sports.

Evonne will bring her strong, confident playing style to the traditional courts at Wimbledon in an attempt to capture the prestigious victory for a second time. Wimbledon will be broadcast on Sunday, June 29, on NBC beginning at 3:30 p.m., with the world's greatest players from all over the globe vying to dethrone tennis' "sweetheart duo," Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert.

EVONNE GOOLAGONG, one of the top women's tennis players on the tour, will appear on the World Invitational Tennis Classic, to be broadcast Sunday, June 29, on ABC-TV.

NFL Football Is Set For Mondays

The Oakland Raiders and Miami Dolphins, whose 28-26 Playoff Game provided one of the more memorable moments of the 1974 NFL season, will kick off ABC's "NFL Monday Night Football" 14-game season Monday, Sept. 22. The schedule, which includes a closing Saturday Night game—Pittsburgh at Los Angeles—on Dec. 20, was announced jointly today by Roone Arledge, President of ABC Sports, and Pete Rozelle, Commissioner of the National Football League.

ABC also will televise the Pro Bowl on Monday night for the second consecutive year, from New Orleans, on January 26.

"We are delighted with the strongest schedule we have had on Monday Night Football in a long time," Mr. Arledge said. "The Oakland-Miami game is our strongest opener ever and our closing game features two of the strongest contenders for Super Bowl berths."

All eight playoff teams will appear on ABC Monday Night Football, with five of them appearing twice—the Super Bowl Champion Pittsburgh Steelers, Oakland Raiders, Miami Dolphins, Los Angeles Rams and Buffalo Bills. All four of the powerful AFC Playoff teams will be on twice. Three of the 14 games will feature head-to-head clashes between playoff rivals—the opening night Raider-Dolphin game; St. Louis vs Washington on Oct. 13, and Pittsburgh against Los Angeles on Dec. 20. The perennially strong Dallas Cowboys and the rugged Denver Broncos also will appear twice on Monday nights.

Pittsburgh also will be seen against Houston's fast-improving Oilers on Nov. 24; Miami's second Monday night game will be Dec. 1 against the AFC East's surprise team, the New England Patriots; Oakland, which won the 28-26 playoff verdict over the Dolphins, tangles with AFC Western rival, Denver, on Dec. 8; Buffalo hosts the New York Giants on Oct. 20 and visits Paul Brown's Cincinnati Bengals, in their first regular season home game ever on Monday Night Football, on Nov. 17; and the Rams will play another Pennsylvania opponent on Monday night when they visit Philadelphia on November 3.

National Conference Champion Minnesota takes on its bitter rival, take Chicago Bears on Oct. 27. The Cowboys appear in Detroit's new Pontiac Metropolitan Stadium Oct. 6, and at home against the Kansas City Chiefs, Nov. 10.

Joe Namath and the New York Jets will be spotlighted on Dec. 15 in San Diego, where the Chargers seem always to provide ABC's "NFL Monday Night Football" with exciting games.

The 1975 preseason schedule will be announced in the near future.

Senior Bowl Changed To Be Played Sunday

For the first time in the 27-year history of the game, the Senior Bowl football contest in 1976 will be played on a Sunday instead of a Saturday, according to an agreement entered into today by the NBC Television Network and the Senior Bowl.

NBC-TV, which has telecast the Senior Bowl game for 18 consecutive years, has renewed its exclusive rights to the Mobile, Ala., event through 1977, it was announced by Carl Lindemann Jr., Vice President, Sports, NBC-TV, and Rea Scheussler, Vice President and General Manager of the Senior Bowl.

The game in 1976 will be played on Sunday, January 11. It will be the only network football game that day for TV fans, and will bridge the customary Sunday gap between the National Football League's AFC and NFC championship games and the Super Bowl. Heretofore, the Sunday preceding the Super Bowl game has been void of televised football.

In announcing the renewal of the contract, Lindemann said: "NBC and the Senior Bowl have had a long and pleasant association. This is ample proof that NBC is pleased to have this game on our list of major live sports events."

The Senior Bowl, annually a preview of the young college stars about to step into the professional ranks, offers top-flight incentives for the players. In addition to shooting for cash rewards to each member of the winning ($1,500) and losing ($1,250) teams, and $2,500 to the game's offensive and defensive stars.

Competition On 'The Hill'

A group of political figures, generally not judged for their athletic prowess, will find themselves scrutinized for their physical abilities when they compete in "King of Capitol Hill," a competition in a variety of sports events to be broadcast on "CBS Sports Spectacular" on CBS Saturday, Sept. 27 (4:30-6 p.m.).

Something Extra From Garagiola

The two reports on baseball, Italian style, on "The Baseball World of Joe Garagiola" will offer viewers an extra dividend — each will be seven minutes longer than the customary 15-minute shows.

The first of the pre-game shows on Italian baseball (June 23), filmed in Italy recently by Garagiola, showed how the most American of all American games has invaded the sports life of the Italian people.

NEWSROOM HEAD— Edward Asner portrays Lou Grant, the head of a newsroom, on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" which is seen on Saturdays (9-9:30 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

A New Asner Image

Off-camera Edward Asner, who plays Lou Grant on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" (seen Saturdays on CBS-TV at 9 p.m.), closely resembles an overgrown teddy bear. Standing before you in the bright, sunny living room of his Bel-Air home, his sincerity and warmth shine through that rough exterior. But he's also three-dimensional. Edward Asner swears, yells at his kids, teases his wife, complains and jokes. But, larger than life he's not.

Ed and his wife, Nancy, are as down - to - earth as the couple next door. They exchange light - hearted banter, discuss matter - of - factly any household problems, treat each other and their children with affection. Their home is lived in and comfortable; in the family room there are pictures of friends and Ed's co-stars, an oversized rocking chair for the man of the house to sit in and a tremendous shell collection.

Does he think of Lou Grant as a sexier character now that he's dating on the show, now that his social life as a man separated from his on-camera wife Edie has been stressed? Asner, looking younger and handsomer than he appears on television, smiles slowly. "There is a difference," he says. "There is a different reaction to Lou now. Jim Brooks (producer of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show") said it. I don't know what it is, whether it's the fact that I'm dressed differently . . . but he said, 'I don't know what's happened to you, man. People speak of you 'sexily' now!'" he laughed.

"I'm naturally very delighted to hear that because, of course, it creates greater options," he says in a business - like manner. "But why it's happening, I don't know."

A Special Bicentennial Issue: Close-Up Look At Some Great Americans by Actors Who Helped Immortalize Them

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR FREDDIE PRINZE

What's the real story behind your romance with Raquel Welch?—J.M., Troy, N.Y.

● It wasn't a romance. She's a very lovely, talented and intelligent lady, and I admire her for those qualities—nothing else. All we did was go out to dinner a couple of times. We met at NBC, and I suggested we dine together if she had no other plans. She was free, and we went out. One woman who did a newspaper story wrote it with the few facts I gave her when she called me up, and that turned it into a "romance." I don't like exploiting anyone. Raquel has her boyfriend and I have my girl friend. Our dinners were like business dates. We talked about her movies and my show. I have that kind of evening many times, where my date and I talk about our work. The whole thing was very embarrassing to me—as I'm sure it was to Raquel.

FOR MRS. VIDAL SASSOON, wife of the hair stylist

● No—we live in Beverly Hills. Vidal and I had always lived in apartments, and when we moved from New York to a house in Beverly Hills, we felt terribly successful and important. So what happened? An hour after we moved in I shrieked to Vidal: "Call the plumber! There's a flood in the bathroom and a leak in the ceiling." Funny, that sort of thing never happened to us when we were "unimportant" in our apartment.

FOR RICHARD THOMAS, star of "The Waltons"

Is it true that your wife is older than you are?—L.S., Green Bay, Wis.

● Yes. Alma is four years older. I like being with women who are older than I am. I guess it started because some of my favorite actresses have been my "mothers"—Joanne Woodward, Julie Harris, Geraldine Page, Claire Bloom, Pat Neal and Michael Learned (who's my "mom" on the TV show).

FOR BOBBY VINTON

You sing so many songs with the word "blue" in them. Why?—Sherry Krampf, Cumberland, Md.

● My favorite color has always been blue. I think it's romantic. I like to record songs about love, dreams and happy things, and blue is what comes to my mind first when I think of these things. When some people say they feel blue, they're unhappy. Not me. When I think of blue, I see romance and warmth.

FOR HERB ALPERT

What changes took place in the music world during your six-year absence?—K.B., Little Rock, Ark.

● It got louder. Some rock is good and some is bad. I'm amazed by the tremendous amplification, and it's obvious some groups compete to see who can play the loudest. I was in Rhode Island recently, and at a local rock concert the group used 350 speakers on the stage. I couldn't see myself sitting anywhere within three miles. They sounded like heavy artillery.

FOR SANDY DUNCAN

How do you manage to keep to your low weight of 102? —Sherry Wise, Rockport, Maine

● I cut down on carbohydrates. Breakfast is a low-cal cereal with skim milk and a small orange juice. I pamper myself for lunch, but don't go overboard. Dinner is chicken, a low-cal vegetable and a salad. I almost never nibble between meals, not even on carrots or celery, and I exercise a lot.

FOR PETE ROZELLE, commissioner of the National Football League

When the United States changes to the metric system, what will you do about the length of the football field?—Ricky Burk, Lowell, Mass.

● Probably nothing. An announcer saying "Smith just kicked a 38.4048-meter field goal" is not in the interest of the fans.

FOR ART FLEMING, host of "Jeopardy"

As a bachelor, have you ever looked at any of the contestants on your show from a romantic point of view? —J.M., Rapid City, S.D.

● No. I look at them as poor souls and wonder how they can do what they're doing. I can't imagine where they get the courage and strength. I'm still amazed at the knowledge of the American housewife. (Incidentally, when one magazine story on me came out, I got 60 proposals a week for a while. Now it's tapered off.)

FOR JOAN CRAWFORD

Do you think R- and X-rated films would have done well during the '40's and '50's?—J.M., Vancouver, Wash.

● Our movies didn't need those ratings to be box-office successes. We acted with our clothes on! Our censors did a grand job of telling us what we could and could not do, and their decisions were always right. But you'd be surprised how many letters I get from late-show watchers, who tell me there was more "suggestiveness" in my films than there is in today's R- and X-rated ones.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Lord Snowdon

How does Lord Snowdon feel about all that royal protocol stuff?—J.C., Yuma, Ariz.

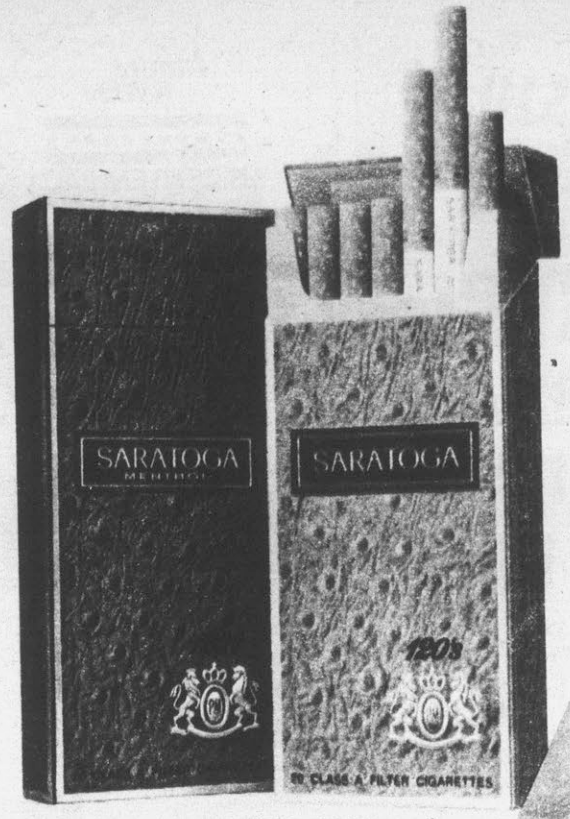

● This will answer your question: Some years ago he made a lunch reservation at New York's Gaslight Club. There was apprehension at the club: "How do we address him?" the staff wondered. Then they took a vote and decided on "Your Highness." But the Lord himself solved the problem. He strolled in and put everyone at ease by saying, "Call me Tony." At his recent photo exhibit at B. Altman's in New York, FAMILY WEEKLY's reporter stuck to him like glue. He stopped short and they collided. Said Snowdon: "We can't go on meeting in public like this." Dressed informally in a lightweight blue-denim suit, he summed up his 20 years as a cameraman: "I'm tottering into old age." By the way, he's a very heavy smoker and doesn't regard himself as royalty—"just someone who married into the Royal Family."

A Special

"He did not suffer fools gladly. In fact, he did not suffer them at all. What set him apart was his courage. . . ."
—Charlton Heston

CHARLTON HESTON ON ANDREW JACKSON:

Having played three Presidents (Andrew Jackson, Thomas Jefferson and FDR), Charlton Heston is probably the entertainment industry's leading authority on the art of portraying our country's glorious men. In "The President's Lady," he had the role of Andrew Jackson.

"When I got the part of Andrew Jackson, I didn't know any more about him than any one else. But in the six weeks I had to prepare, I digested six books and visited The Hermitage (his Tennessee home)—all of which confirmed what I had suspected: that Jackson was one of our mightiest Americans. (I also learned, by the way, that he was like me in having been over six feet and considering himself a good horseman.)

"Jackson had the unique characteristics of a great man who was unusually gifted and enormously motivated. A man with a compulsion to achieve, he was perhaps our only President who was successful as a congressman, a judge and a general before being elected. He was the first to gain support from the ordinary citizen, although he himself was an extraordinary man. We are described as living in the century of the common man; but in Jackson's time, as in all of history, it was the uncommon man who did the work. Jackson was the most uncommon American ever."

Heston also learned that Jackson was extremely impatient and very bad-tempered. "He did not suffer fools gladly. In fact, he did not suffer them at all. What set him apart was his courage, a quality that seems to be lacking in our present-day leaders.

"If Jackson were with us now, he'd be distressed by our lack of a sense of national purpose, because he was enormously sanguine about his country. And it is difficult to be sanguine about this country at the moment." Heston quickly adds: "Don't take that negatively. I'm terribly fortunate to be an American. I'm blessed to have been born in one of the very few countries that is run with the consent of the people who participate in the government." He paraphrases Churchill: "We are a democratic country, and democracy is the worst system of government in the world—except for all the others."

Was being the nation's seventh President an asset or a liability to the man in the White House? "The most negative part was the lack of precedent. The positive aspect was that he could create precedents and didn't have to abide by tradition and be bound by convention." What Heston remembers best about "The President's Lady" was "being inaugurated President of the United States. It sticks in your memory—even 2 years later.

"I still regret that reading about him, learning about him and portraying him did not make me the great man that Jackson was. I identified with him as closely as I could. That gave me a feeling of total inadequacy. But it also resulted in a lasting sense of pride that America could produce a man of Jackson's dimension. I am so glad he was not born in France or England.

"Inside" Look At Great Americans

By Actors Who Helped Immortalize Them

DON AMECHE ON ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL:

The name of Don Ameche was once synonymous with the telephone because of his movie portrayal of its inventor, Alexander Graham Bell. That was 36 years ago. Ameche vividly remembers one of Bell's daughters being on the set from the first to the final shot: "She was the technical adviser and insisted on authenticity."

"Our country was founded by the rebels of Europe and the outcasts of the world. The matings of these early, strong, persecuted people produced a unique talent and vitality that resulted in the kind of Yankee ingenuity that invented the telephone. Inbreeding does not create genius (as shown by the hierarchy of Spain and the intermarriages causing hemophilia throughout the royal houses of Europe). America experienced the exact reverse. Instead of inbreeding, our strong peasant stock developed into physical giants able to withstand greater stress and strain than their European counterparts. With the brawn came the brains, born of the will to survive under the most adverse conditions and hardships."

Why did America turn out so many inventive Goliaths? Ameche says: "I'm a religious man, so I'll give a religious answer. I believe that throughout the ages

"I believe that throughout the ages God distributes talent where He feels it is needed most. The era of our 'inventiveness' was 'our time.' "—Don Ameche

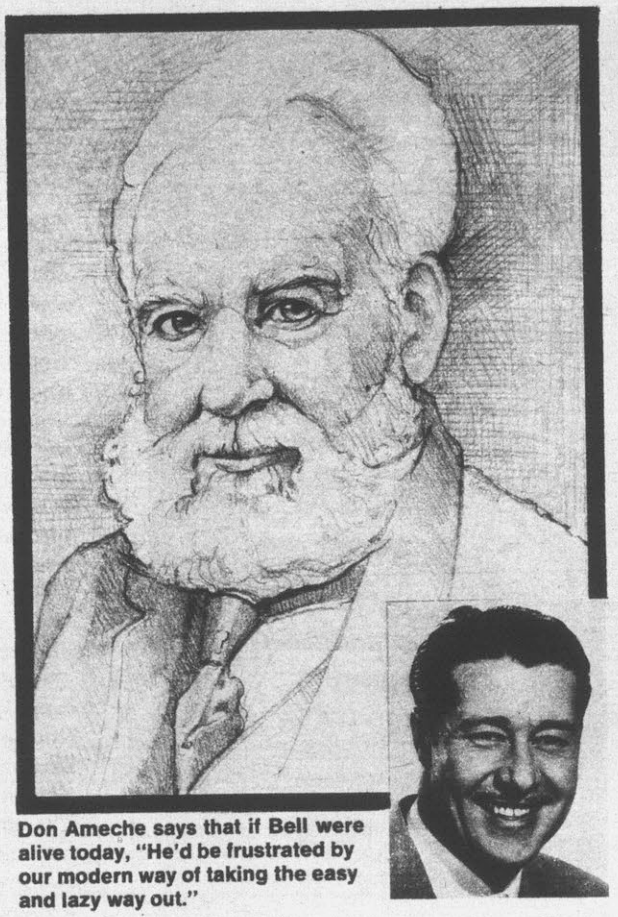

God distributes talent where He feels it is needed most. The era of our 'inventiveness' was 'our time.' I can think of no other explanation.

"Bell and I were opposites. I'm completely lacking in creativity and I've none of Bell's tenacity and intuitiveness. I try to excel at my work, but mine doesn't demand the infinite patience or perseverance his did.

"That's why if Bell were alive now, I don't think he'd like America one bit. Apart from his imagination and ingenuity, he was very industrious. He'd be frustrated by our modern way of taking the easy and lazy way out. He was astonishing. I doubt if any man today would endure all the trials and tribulations that he did to get his patents established. Also, his mental growth would be stunted, and he'd become intellectually and creatively suffocated by the reams of red tape he'd have to wade through.

"But in spite of the red tape, the opportunity available to everyone is as vast now as it was then. Anyone can step on the bottom rung of the ladder and climb up. The tremendous challenge of America is still here. Look what happened on the moon. Our facilities for research and self-improvement are limitless. America is still the land of golden opportunity.

"I love every inch of this country. I recently returned from Europe and felt like kissing the ground. I always suggest that complainers should see how others live. Look at me. My father, born in Northern Italy, was an immigrant who never went beyond third grade. My mother, an American from coal-mining Illinois, never progressed beyond that stage either. One generation later I was privileged to achieve some kind of recognition in my chosen vocation. I couldn't have done it as easily—or possibly at all—elsewhere. I'm proud of being an American."

Don Ameche says that if Bell were alive today, "He'd be frustrated by our modern way of taking the easy and lazy way out."

GINGER ROGERS ON DOLLEY MADISON:

Ginger Rogers portrayed Dolley Madison, wife of the fourth President of the United States, in the 1946 movie "Magnificent Doll." Ginger says her American heritage and our country's founding principles are the greatest gifts that could have been bestowed upon her. "Whenever I see the Stars and Stripes," she says, "I salute it; and I never fail to feel pride at hearing 'The Star-Spangled Banner' and knowing it's my anthem."

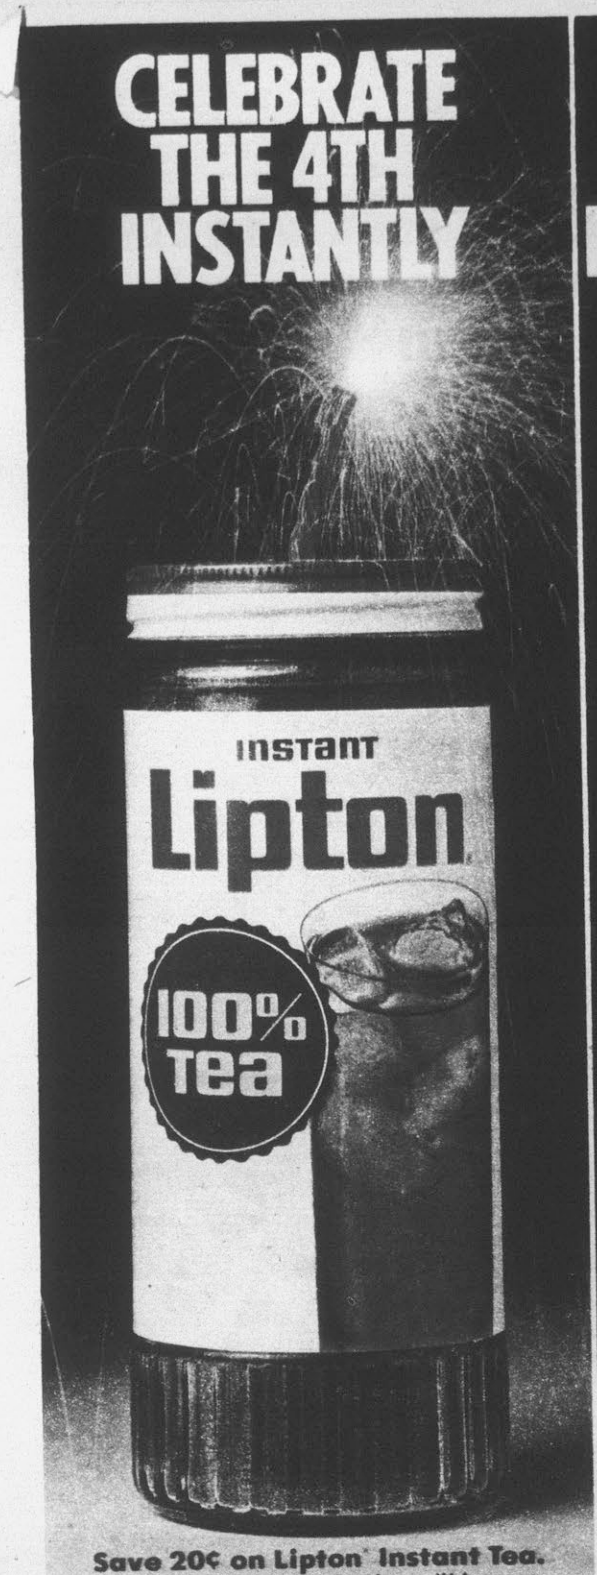

"In this day and age of mass communication, we are still learning what Dolley Madison already knew in 1810. She communicated marvelously, without the help of press, radio or TV. She introduced the art of bringing people together to Washington. Her table was the forerunner of the United Nations, because those sitting at it were meeting under a blanket that was as educational and social as it was political. She was a superb hostess then, and would be an even greater one now. Invitations to her parties, groups and gatherings—which became a tradition and from which our own cocktail parties probably evolved—were highly sought after.

"Her functions were carefully planned. We'd describe them as 'cocktail parties,' but they were anything but that. A cocktail party is for a group of people indulging in small talk and trivia. Her conversation was anything but inconsequential. She would not have had the privilege of marrying James Madison, one of the most important men of his time, had she been an empty-headed creature with nothing to say. James Madison was an enormous human being, small in physique but towering over everyone in mental stature.

"The sad thing is that Dolley's great talent for communicating was not fully appreciated. Although everyone relished it, they didn't realize the far-reaching importance of what she was instituting. Another magnificent contribution she made to the Capital and the country was beautification. She was an innovator, with an in-born and in-bred sense for creating beauty and nurturing it."

Ginger Rogers boned up on Dolley by reading and by studying paintings of her in Washington. She found her to be a fascinating person, with whom she shares a love of ice cream (Dolley popularized it by always serving it for dessert), a weakness for exquisite clothes and a penchant for wearing turbans. (President Madison's First Lady launched hand-woven turbans from India as accepted headgear in America.)

"I think Dolley would be astonished at why it took women so long to get equal rights. She'd be amazed and delighted at the wonderful inventions we have now—particularly those for the kitchen—and our methods of transportation. With her sense of good taste, she'd be rather startled by some of the clothes we wear. She'd be amazed that we have not really learned from the wise and guiding words bequeathed to us by our forefathers. She'd be sorry we gave more time to being mechanical pioneers than to rising to the mental grandeur of which she thought us capable. She'd think we were dragging our feet.

"But we're a great nation because every citizen is different from everyone else. We're not like sheep. We're individuals all wanting to do our own thing. The greatest boon is that all our different races and religions, colors and creeds blend together, and the result is a magnificent garden."

RAYMOND MASSEY ON ABRAHAM LINCOLN:

Ironically, Raymond Massey, the man who "became" Abraham Lincoln in the memorable "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" on stage and screen, says he didn't really research the character he played. "It doesn't matter what my role is, I always put the same amount of effort and enthusiasm into it. I didn't do any special homework. Robert E. Sherwood [author of the work] did all that, and did it beautifully. There was no way I could improve or enlarge upon what he wrote."

Massey, who has starred in over 60 motion pictures, appeared in countless Broadway and London plays (of which he directed 35), is surprised by the way his Lincoln portrayal has endured. "It was a great part. The best I ever played. I'm delighted and grateful my name is still associated with it. Why I'm connected with Lincoln more than anyone else, I don't know. I'm an actor and don't identify or get involved with any particular character because I've played so many. Lincoln was just one of them. I'm just a 'interpreter.' I interpret on stage or screen and try to bring cha acters alive to the audien 'Lincoln' was a good play had confidence in it and confidence was justified."

(Back in 1957, Massey s in a press report: "Actua I'd have killed anyone with bare hands who tried to get part away from me. But not cause of a missionary urge because it suits my politics. so Republican it makes my s crack. It is simply because role itself is so overwhelming

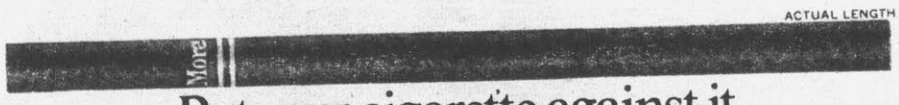

"I haven't the foggiest not of whether Lincoln would prove of us now. I think of as everyone else does, as a torical character. I can't pro myself into his mind, altho I sometimes do understan character better after hav played him. Nor can I specu on what he had that our mod Presidents don't."

Was there anything Ma had in common with our President? "Yes," he qui answered. "We both had large feet, and were both homely."

Raymond Massey, bor Toronto, Canada, on Au 30, 1896, became an Amer citizen in 1944. "Because country has been very goo me, and I wanted to have in it," he says simply. "I sure my American citizens

DON'T PAY 1¢ MORE FOR GAS THIS YEAR THAN YOU DID LAST!

Tricks that can save you up to 14 miles a gallon to begin with, without even touching a tool!
Tricks that START where the usual Detroit "gas-saving advice" leaves off!
Money-saving secrets so powerful that we repeat our guarantee to you—

Don't Pay 1¢ More For Gas This Year Than You Did Last, OR YOUR FULL MONEY BACK!

How can we make this promise? It's a cinch! Because what we're giving you right now are the Super Gas Savers that Detroit probably won't put on their production models till 1980—or even later! The kind of Super Gas Squeezers that Shell Oil proved existed last year, when they coaxed over 376 miles a gallon out of a standard gasoline-powered car. CHANGED IN THE RIGHT WAY TO CUT THE GAS-WASTERS RIGHT OUT OF ITS ENGINE!

(Yes, that's 100 miles a gallon . . . 200 miles a gallon . . . 300 miles a gallon . . . right up to 376 miles a gallon—from a modified car with the same type of engine that you drive today! Because Shell engineers wanted to see what was THE ABSOLUTE MAXIMUM GAS MILEAGE A CAR COULD DELIVER—IF THEY CUT THE JUNK OUT OF IT, AND GAVE ITS ENGINE FREE PLAY!)

You can't do everything they did, of course! But you CAN take dozens of their tricks . . . and U.S. Government tricks (write the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. for Report A1C-240, and see what they say) . . . and Indianapolis competition tricks . . . and put them all together to keep as much as an extra $800 in your pocket this year! Like this . . .

For Example, From Now On, Why Not "BURN" AIR In Your Car!

This is just one Super Gas Saver that you probably never dreamed existed, but that auto engineers have been using on custom cars for years! You've heard, of course, of "Ram Jet Super-Chargers", that cost hundreds of dollars, but that deliver huge new horsepower (and therefore gas mileage) to the engines they're installed on!

Well, here's the world's easiest way to make your own "baby" Super-charger! It takes only minutes! It requires just one simple ingenious trick! And it atmospherically forces great heavy gulps of air to mix with your gasoline . . . thins that gasoline out . . . burns that gasoline more and more and more efficiently (especially when you "open her up" on the highway) . . . and lets you zoom past other cars roaring with laughter, because you know that YOU'RE burning LESS GAS than they are!

But This Is Just The Beginning! Because Now You Save Gas Just By The Way You BUY It! Just By The Way You Park Your Car! Just By The Way You "SHIFT" Your Automatic Transmission!

For example:

You no longer have to pay an extra $100 or more a year in "sucker" gas bills, just because you chose an automatic transmission instead of a stick shift! Because now you can actually get MUCH BETTER MILEAGE—with that automatic transmission and the simple secret on page 16—than your "wiseacher" friend who has to juggle his manual gears at every city traffic light!

(Time to learn—just about as long as it takes you to drive to your neighborhood shopping center! Result—that you take command of the automatic transmission! Money in your pocket—hundreds of dollars over the rest of your driving life!)

PLUS:

How to turn a screw—and that's all there is to it—and get up to 15% MORE mileage in stop and go driving!

How to save up to $1.50 every time you fill up (and think how many times a year you fill up), simply by giving one ingenious little command to your gas station attendant! (You'll kick yourself for not having thought of it before!)

How to get pick-up that makes your friends' eyes pop open, and STILL save gas! (Yes! Forget about the old myth that you have to drive like a maiden aunt—or watch other cars pass you—to get Super Mileage! The engineers don't, and why should you!)

PLUS:

How to get as much as ONE MORE GALLON OF "FREE" DRIVING, FOR EVERY TEN THAT YOU BURN TODAY . . . and get up to 40,000 miles from a single set of plugs!

How to convert your battery—in exactly 60 seconds—into a Super Power Plant that may very easily last the full life of your car—and save gallons of gas that hard slow winter starting is draining out of that car right now! (The total cost? Two cents! And not one penny more!)

PLUS:

How to adjust your engine for summer heat, and save up to 2 "boil-over" wasted miles per gallon . . . how to do the same for winter, and beat mileage-sapping freezing cold . . . how to insert a special piece of metal that costs only 10¢ into your radiator, and get still MORE mileage . . . even a complete section on low-cost "super-tuning" your car to get premium performance on the lowest-cost regular gas!

But Listen To This: Everything That Helps You Save Gas ALSO HELPS YOU SAVE ON OIL, TIRES AND REPAIRS! So You Pocket Another $200 To $500 This Year!

For example:

How to "tune" your car as you drive! Spend an extra 60 seconds with it once a week . . . never leave your driver's seat . . . and keep your plugs firing clean, and your engine purring like a kitten!

How to slice tire costs in half—add as much as 20,000 miles to the life of your tires—without using anything more "mechanical" than an old rag!

How to cool the inside of your car on hot summer days, without the expense of air conditioning! How to get up to $500 of Free services from your gas station every year . . . which the big companies would like to keep hidden!

CLIFF ROBERTSON ON JOHN F. KENNEDY:

Cliff Robertson met John F. Kennedy after the President himself had selected Robertson from numerable candidates to play K in the movie "PT 109." It s April, 1963, and Robertson d been summoned to Washgton. Having many hours to are, Robertson whiled away s time at the National Museum. ere's how Robertson remembrs that day:

"I was probably the first visitor at the National Museum to look at every picture there ithout seeing them. My eyes ere focused on the walls, but y mind was full of what lay head of me." At the White ouse, press secretary Pierre alinger greeted the actor, then ok him into an empty room. obertson assumed it was the rst of a series of rooms in hich he'd meet a series of eople, before being officially resented to JFK. But he was rong. No sooner had he sat own, than the President made is inconspicuous entrance.

JFK did indeed introduce liff to an impressive group. /hen the formalities were ver, Cliff made motions to eave. "But instead of letting he go, Kennedy said, 'Now let's alk.' We went into his private ffice, and the two of us sat own—him in his rocking hair, arms folded. I was erched three inches from the dge of the sofa. (You don't sit ack and relax in the presence f the President of the United tates. At least I don't.)" The wo spoke on a personal basis. They found they both shared a ove of the sea and covered verything from movies to the veather and their favorite oods. "We spoke about our laughters," Robertson recalls. 'My Stephanie was four, a year younger than Caroline, and we discovered both girls adored horses. JFK worshiped his children.

HERB ROAST CHICKEN

- 1 roasting chicken, 5½-6 lbs.
- 1 onion, quartered
- ½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine, melted
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 teaspoon rosemary leaves
- 1 teaspoon savory leaves
- 1 teaspoon thyme leaves

1. Rinse chicken, pat dry with paper towels. Place onion inside chicken, truss for roasting or secure on spit.

2. Preheat oven to 325°F. or prepare rotisserie.

3. Combine remaining ingredients. Brush chicken with mixture. Roast about 2½-3 hours, until done, or grill on rotisserie, basting frequently with butter-herb mixture.

Makes 4-6 servings

WHAT'S SMART?

Don't own a rotisserie? Want to cut time? Buy 2 (2½-3-lb. size) broiler-fryers and broil or grill over charcoal, basting with herb butter.

SPRING VEGETABLE POT

- 2 lbs. new potatoes, scrubbed
- 2 cups water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 lb. asparagus, cleaned
- 1 lb. mushrooms, rinsed
- 1 bunch scallions, rinsed
- 2 tablespoons snipped chives
- ½ cup butter or margarine, melted

1. Put potatoes, water, salt and pepper in large saucepan or Dutch oven. Heat to boiling. Cover; reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes.

2. Cut asparagus in thirds, mushrooms in half and scallions in thirds. Add to potatoes. Return to boiling; reduce heat and simmer 10-15 minutes longer, until just tender. Do not drain.

3. Add chives to melted butter. Serve Vegetable Pot in bowls with a little butter-and-chive mixture poured over each serving. Makes 6 servings

JAMES WHITMORE ON HARRY TRUMAN AND WILL ROGERS:

James Whitmore, who has played Will Rogers and is currently portraying President Truman in "Give 'Em Hell, Harry!", was asked how both these great men would react were they around today. Here's what he said:

"Since our present-day problems are not that much different from those of his generation, I think Will Rogers would feel we meddled too much. He said the thing we do worst in this country is mind other folks' business. Truman never got involved with that, but he believed in self-determination, that people should be allowed to decide for themselves. He formulated the Truman Doctrine, designed to allow countries to have freedom of choice. They both had a hatred of dishonesty and a great regard for honesty, which they felt was the only salvation of the human race."

Whitmore met Margaret Truman Daniel and also Will Rogers, Jr., before he did his portrayals, as a test of accuracy and authenticity. "Only after I had the scripts completely memorized did I turn to mimicking the actions and intonations. The memorizing took a month of solid work."

Here are some of Whitmore's favorite quotes from Harry Truman:

- "The good Lord may have made the world in six days—but that must have been before labor unions."
- On why he wrote a vituperative letter to a music critic who criticized Margaret's singing: "I was a father before I had this temporary job, and I'll be one after I leave it."
- On education: "It's what you learn after you know it all that counts."
- On economists: "If you laid all the economists end to end, they would point in all directions."

And here are some Whitmore favorites from Will Rogers:

- "There's no way in this world you can make a political party respectable unless you keep it out of office."
- "When Harding was elected, I went in to see him and said, 'I'd like to tell you the latest political jokes, Mr. President.' He said, 'You don't have to, Will—I appointed them.' "

The pleasure and self-satisfaction derived from both roles have left their

"None of JFK's successors had his ability or his wit. We've had humorless clods."
—Cliff Robertson

"After 40 minutes, I was the one to terminate the talk. I felt I'd taken enough of his precious time. Then, as another example of his warmth and consideration, he did something he knew I wanted most of all. He asked, 'Would you mind if we had our picture taken together?' Would I mind! The photographer was summoned, and I restrained myself from gazing into the lens (as I do for movie shots) and concentrated on JFK. I ignored his suggestion, 'If you look at me, you won't show your face.' "

The three conditions under which JFK permitted "PT 109" to be filmed were: historical accuracy; all proceeds from the movie to go to survivors of the boat or their kin; he could choose his movie counterpart. When JFK picked Robertson, the actor's delight was somewhat tempered by his realization that the screenplay didn't really delve into the character of the man. "It just centered on an incident in World War II, making it another war movie. We had the chance to plumb deeply into the personality of the man. It was the only time a movie was made of a living President, and it might never happen again. I was honored by his choosing me—but I was not enraptured by the role.

"I immediately started reading whatever I could put my hands on about JFK. I spoke to those who knew him. I learned he did not want me to do an 'imitation' of him or affect a Boston accent. (He told me later, 'Any nightclub comic can impersonate me, but that's a surface impersonation. I was more concerned about your getting into the inside of the role.')"

Robertson was overwhelmed and fascinated by JFK. " He was stimulating, with a quick curiosity and a passionate interest in everything. Had he not been a politician, I think he could have been a great writer. He was a raconteur and an astonishing listener. None of his three successors had his ability or his wit. We've had humorless clods."

After that April, 1963, meeting, JFK and Cliff Robertson corresponded and became good friends. They planned to meet again on the West Coast. They never did. Their meeting was set for December, 1963..

Special Bicentennial Offer for a Very Limited Number of Collectors and Investors

The Hamilton Mint Announces the Minting of

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION "OLD GLORY" INGOTS

In Pure Silver and Fine American Pewter

The dramatic history of The American Revolution preserved for you and your heirs in a single limited minting of 24 magnificent ingots.

Two hundred years ago on April 19, 1775, a volley of musketfire shattered the morning stillness at Lexington Green. The first Americans had fallen in the War for Independence.

Today, as Americans across the land prepare to celebrate America's Bicentennial, The Hamilton Mint is deeply proud to announce an extraordinary new ingot series of major historical importance.

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION "OLD GLORY" INGOTS

Here is a tribute to America's 200th Anniversary as meaningful as it is beautiful. This stirring new series will consist of 24 superb ingots in solid .999 fine silver or solid fine American pewter. They will depict, in striking bas-relief sculpture, the dramatic history of The American Revolution . . . the men and events that helped forge our Nation: the Minutemen's bravery at Lexington and Concord; Patrick Henry's impassioned speech before the Virginia House of Burgesses; Valley Forge, where the Continental Army wintered, enduring incredible hardships; Ethan Allen's colorful Green Mountain Boys, in hot pursuit of the British regulars; John Paul Jones, America's greatest naval hero and his victory on the high seas; Saratoga's glorious victory — these and many other important episodes are captured in this brilliant historic tableau.

AVAILABLE IN PURE SILVER AND SOLID PEWTER

Each ingot will be an original work of art by master sculptor Roger Akers and will be minted to exacting standards by the skilled craftsmen of The Hamilton Mint. Each silver proof ingot will contain one full ounce (480 grains) of .999 pure silver, the finest available, and each pewter ingot will be minted in fine American pewter with a lovely antique finish.

A SINGLE LIMITED MINTING AT A GUARANTEED PRICE

There will be only one minting of The American Revolution "Old Glory" Ingots. Just 10,000 proof sets in .999 fine silver will ever be struck and the total minting of antique finish pewter sets will be limited to the exact number of valid orders accepted before the series closes. Once these orders have been filled, the minting dies will be destroyed, thus safeguarding the integrity of the edition.

The ingots will be issued at the rate of two a month for 12 months. The original issue price will be just $13.75 for each pure silver ingot and just $6.00 for each American pewter ingot. These prices are guaranteed to subscribers over the entire subscription period.

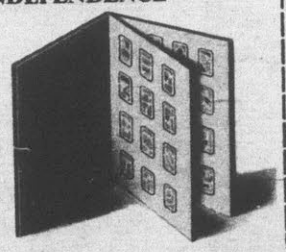

AN AMERICAN HEIRLOOM EDITION WITH YOUR OWN PERSONAL SERIAL NUMBER

These remarkable ingots will prove to be a joy to own and display, while preserving for your children an assured rare and valuable medallic history of The American Revolutionary War.

As a subscriber, you will receive a registered Certificate of Authenticity, written documentation of the limited edition status and precious metal content of the series. Your ingots will be custom minted and will bear your own personal serial number and The Hamilton Mint Hallmark.

FREE DISPLAY ALBUM & SPECIAL BONUS "DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE"

Subscribers will receive a handsome presentation album, custom designed to house the entire collection. You will also receive, at no cost, a special bonus, a deluxe brilliantly illustrated reproduction, suitable for framing, of The Declaration of Independence.

Archive Edition: 24 Kt. Gold on Pure Silver

You may also order these ingots in extravagantly beautiful 24 Kt. gold on .999 fine silver. Only 5,000 sets will be minted, thus making this edition quite rare. Each proof ingot will also be individually serially numbered and hallmarked and each will cost just $18.75.

A LETTER FROM JOHN WAYNE

Few actors have made more movies ealing with America's legends and istory than John Wayne. FAMILY VEEKLY asked Wayne to give us his houghts as our country moves into his historical era. Here is what he vrote us:

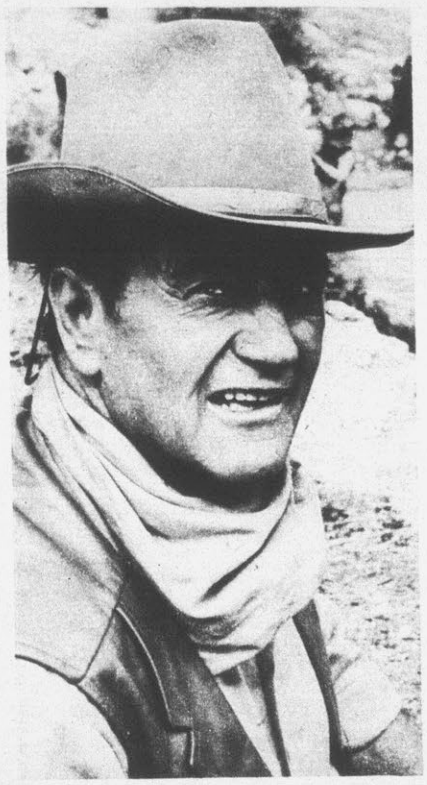

Dear Family Weekly:

My Davy Crockett said it pretty well ike this:

"Republic. I like the sound of the vord. It means people can live free, alk free. Go or come, buy or sell, be drunk or sober, however they choose.

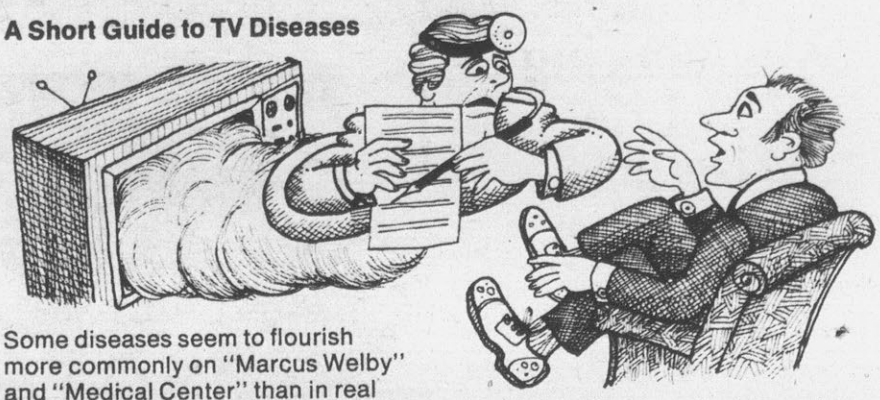

"Some words give you a feeling. Republic is one of those words that make me tight in the throat. The same tightness a man gets when his baby takes his first step, or his first boy shaves and makes his first sound like a man. Some words can give you a feeling that makes your heart warm. Republic is one of those words."

Sincerely,
John Wayne

The Doctor Lets You In

A Short Guide to TV Diseases

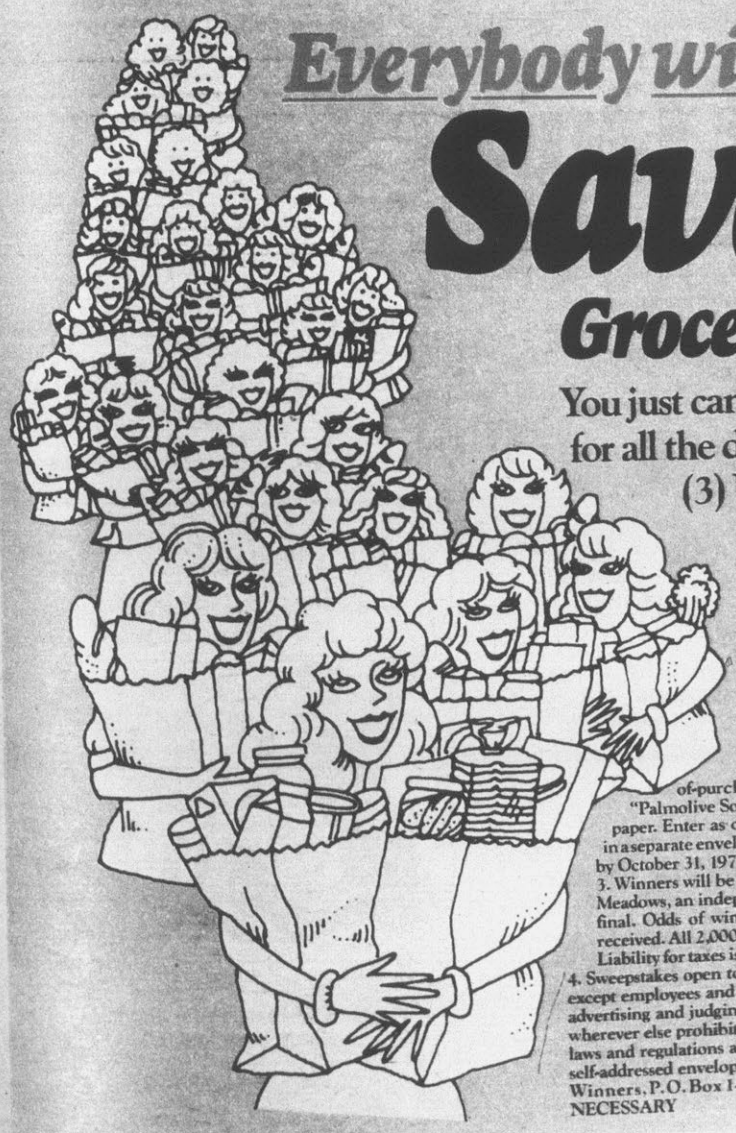

Some diseases seem to flourish more commonly on "Marcus Welby" and "Medical Center" than in real life. They are the so-called eponymic diseases—diseases named after a person (usually the doctor who discovered the disease or else a famous victim). Here is a guide to some of the more unusual eponymic diseases. Munchausen's Syndrome—malingering to get medical attention, even operations; people who are expert in mimicking conditions will repeatedly seek such attention. Huntington's chorea—a chronic nerve condition with unintentional, compulsive jerking movements; also known as Saint Vitus's dance. Lou Gehrig's disease—amyotrophic lateral sclerosis; muscular wasting and atrophy; a fatal disease. Addison's disease—also called President Kennedy's disease; inadequate function of the adrenal glands, now treated by cortisone-like drugs. Ménière's disease—dizziness, ringing of the ears, unsteadiness due to disease of the inner ear. Gilles de Tourette's disease—a mental condition in which the patient continues to repeat the words told him and explosively uses foul language. Raynaud's disease—circulatory inhibition of fingers and toes and occasionally of ears and nose. Pott's disease—tuberculosis of the spine, with stiffening and pain on movement and eventually paralysis. Paget's disease—a deforming bone disease. Korsakoff's disease—a psychosis due to alcoholism. Sjögren's Syndrome—a relatively newly described disease in which women cannot shed tears due to drying up of tear ducts. Salivary glands and other functions are also affected.—By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

VIP MASS TRANSIT
To replace the limousine?

A bus for bosses may soon replace the traditional chauffeur-driven limousine as a means of transporting executives. British Leyland Motors has designed a Business Commuter Bus that offers an executive all the amenities found in a limousine. The bus seats 20 passengers, two secretaries and, of course, the "chauffeur." Eight mini-office units are equipped with telephone, dictaphone and intercom link to a secretary. For those businessmen who prefer not to get right down to business, two color television sets and a lounge-bar are provided. This commuter special won't slow down executive action and it may just be the best way for businessmen to help out the energy crunch.

Great horses are "only human": "When Hollywood was grinding out horse-racing sagas in years gone by, its thoroughbreds were strong as iron, met all competitors head on, never missed a race and prevailed over all adversaries. Seven of the nine Triple Crown winners would have flunked these roles. They had their problems. Sir Barton's feet constantly hurt, causing him to be irascible. Omaha went lame within a few months after he captured the crown. War Admiral sheared off a piece of his fore-foot in the Belmont Stakes and was out of action from June to October. Whirlaway hurt his leg at the end of his third year of racing, which rushed his retirement the following spring. The great Count Fleet struck himself in the left fore ankle, which created a splint and abruptly ended his racing career. Assault injured a foot as a yearling, and walked as though he were about to fall down. Citation had tendon trouble, which kept him from racing during his entire fourth year. Gallant Fox and Secretariat (the other two) were retired after their third years, which no doubt saved them from some of the miseries of the trade they might have encountered if they had continued to race." ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

A RAKISH LOOK

I stepped upon a rake one day,
The handle hit my eye.
It was a stupid thing to do,
Don't ask me how or why.

But since I got a nasty bruise,
I'm asked by all and sundry.
They think I've had a fight and lost,
Or anyhow they're wundry.

Explaining's bad enough, I swear,
I've soured and grown dyspeptical.
But even worse is knowing all
Who hear me still are skeptical.

Money does make all the difference. If you have two jobs and you're rich, you have diversified interests. If you have two jobs and you're poor, you're moonlighting.
—Rudy Joe Mano

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES
Kids see life differently. Send contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

One night I was baby-sitting a four-year-old girl and she was playing "commercials." In her hand was a cylinder-shaped building block for a microphone. Very businesslike she asked me, "How's your love life?" Following along with her game, I responded with, "What's a love life?" With complete innocence, she looked up at me and said, "I think it's your teeth!"

Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT WONDERS IF HE MADE A MISTAKE IN SEEKING SHELTER HERE, FOR THE VILLA IS FILLED WITH A HORRIBLE STENCH THAT HAS EVERYONE HOLDING THEIR NOSE.
AFTER A HASTY GREETING THE HOST BELLOWS: "BRING FORTH THAT IMPOSTOR WHO CALLS HIMSELF A PHYSICIAN!"

THERE IS SOMETHING FAMILIAR ABOUT THE ABSURD LITTLE FIGURE THAT ENTERS, EXCLAIMING: "OPEN THE WINDOW, REMOVE THE FUME POTS AND PUT AWAY YOUR HANDKERCHIEFS. FOR I, OOM-FOOYAT, HAVE FOUND A CURE FOR THE COMMON COLD!"

THEN HE GIVES A SHOUT OF JOY: "VAL, MY PRINCE, MY FRIEND! HOW GLAD I AM TO SEE YOU AGAIN!" AND TEARS OF GLADNESS SHINE IN HIS EYES.

WHEN THE ROOM IS AIRED, MANY WHO HAVE HEAD COLDS FIND THEY CAN BREATHE AGAIN. "YOUR HELL'S-BREW IS EFFECTIVE, BUT WHAT ARE THE ODORIFEROUS INGREDIENTS?"
OOM ANSWERS: "CAMPHOR, TURPENTINE, SULPHUR, A BIT OF TAR, SOME VINEGAR AND JUST A TOUCH OF POLECAT ESSENCE. EFFECTIVE, IS IT NOT?

"SIR VALIANT, YOU KNEW ME AS AN INEPT WIZARD, A CHARLATAN. THEN I MARRIED WINNIE-THE-WITCH AND SHE TAUGHT ME THE HEALING ART, USING HERBS AND SIMPLES TO CURE AILMENTS. NOW I ASPIRE TO BECOME A PHYSICIAN."

OOM FIRST REPEATS THE MARRIAGE SERVICE OF THE ANCIENT SCYTHIANS, THEN A CEREMONY PREFERRED BY THE HILL PEOPLE OF HEDONIA. TO MAKE SURE, HE ADDS AN ESPOUSING RITUAL GREATLY APPROVED IN LOWER ALCIA, THEN FORGETS THE LAST PART AND PERFORMS AN AFRICAN WEDDING DANCE FOR GOOD MEASURE..... SIGNING OFF WITH THE MATING CALL OF THE IRISH ELK.

VAL RESUMES HIS LONELY JOURNEY, DISAPPOINTED THAT OOM-FOOYAT IS NOT THERE TO BID HIM FAREWELL: 'HE IS A PHYSICIAN NOW, PROBABLY OUT ON A HOUSE CALL.'

SO THE NEWSPAPER SENT ME TO DO A DIG JOB!

WHICH IS WHY YOU ARE HERE—OR IS IT 'NO COMMENT'?

THAT CAN WAIT FOR THE MOMENT, POTEET!

I AM DELIGHTED TO SEE MY FORMER WARD DOING SO WELL!

SAME PLACE! SHARE A RIDE?

PONYTAIL ☆☆ BY LEE HOLLEY

WHEN ARE YOU GOING TO ASK YOUR FATHER?

WELL, HE'S SMILING!

NO

I DON'T UNDERSTAND FATHERS...

WHY DO THEY SAY "NO" BEFORE YOU EVEN ASK THE QUESTION?!

IT'S BECAUSE THEY'VE HEARD ALL THE QUESTIONS!

WELL, I'M NOT GOING TO TAKE IT!

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO?

I'M GOING RIGHT BACK INTO THAT HOUSE!

THEN WHAT?
