

Link-Up By Apollo And Soyuz

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo and Soyuz spacecrafts linked up in space today in the first meeting of Americans and Russians high above the globe.

together 140 miles above the earth over Europe, climaxing two days of orbital pursuit during which astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton skillfully guided Apollo as the hunter craft. "We'll hug them like friendly bears," Soviet commander Alexei Leonov said before the astronauts and cosmonauts embarked Tuesday on the first international mission of space detente.

About three hours after docking, Leonov and Staff-ford, the two commanders, scheduled the long-awaited "handshake in space" in a connecting tunnel between the two craft.

It will be a symbolic and emotional moment for these two space veterans who have become fast friends during two years of training.

They'll exchange greetings and their nation's flags and Leonov is to present Stafford with a United Nations flag to carry back to earth. Stafford and Slayton then move into the Soyuz for the first of four crew transfers planned in the two days of linkup.

The cosmonauts had decorated their cabin with welcome messages for their American visitors.

During the morning the Apollo astronauts steered their ship through five course corrections as they gradually and smoothly moved in on the Soyuz.

When the spacemen awakened this morning they were more than 500 miles apart, but the Apollo maneuvers closed the gap between the American spacecraft and Soyuz.

Nearly four hours before the planned latchup, the astronauts spotted the Soyuz as a speck in the sky and established radio contact with the Russian spacemen.

"Hello, Apollo," cosmonaut Valeri Kubasov said as the spacecrafts entered communications range for the first time, some 300 miles apart.

Kubasov spoke in English and received this reply in Russian from one of the astronaut: "Good morning, Valeri."

The Russian commander, Alexei Leonov, added a "good morning" and the two craft began a series of radio checks.

Minutes earlier, astronaut Vance D. Brand reported the first sighting of the Soyuz.

"It's just a speck right now," he said. "It's hard to distinguish from a star."

Astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, Donald K. Slayton and Brand were guiding their craft to a scheduled latchup with Soyuz at 12:15 p.m. EDT 140 miles above West Germany.

They successfully completed two of five planned separate engine firings in the final pursuit of Soyuz, which is serving as the target vehicle for the more sophisticated and maneuverable Apollo.

The first firing was executed at 8:51 a.m. and the second at 9:35 a.m.

The cosmonauts planned a friendly welcome for Stafford and Slayton, set to visit the Soyuz this afternoon after the docking.

"We'll hug them like friendly bears," Leonov said before the astronauts embarked Tuesday on this first international mission of space detente.

Fractional Slippage In Output

GNP Data Indicates Stability

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today that the nation's economic output slipped fractionally over the second three months of this year, indicating the economy has stabilized after the longest and deepest recession since World War II.

The Commerce Department said the volume of the Gross National Product, which is the nation's total production of goods and services, dropped during the quarter by an amount which when projected over an entire year would equal three-tenths of one per cent.

It was the sixth straight quarterly decline in volume of Gross National Product, or GNP. But it was the smallest of the six and compared to a decline at an annual rate of 11.4 per cent in the first three months of the year.

Over-all, total economic output has declined 7.8 per cent since the start of the recession.

The Commerce Department also reported that the inflation rate fell to an annual rate of 5.1 per cent, the lowest since the 4.1 per cent rate during the final three months of 1972.

Inflation as measured in the GNP accounts, which covers a broader range of goods and services than are included in the more familiar Consumer Price Index, was 10.3 per cent for all of 1974 and 8.4 per cent at an annual rate in the first quarter.

The reduced inflation rate, combined with virtually stable output, resulted in the first advance in nearly two years in the per capita after-tax income of Americans after adjustment of the erosion of inflation.

Per capita real disposable income advanced $133 during the quarter to $2,908. That figure had not increased since reaching $2,952 in the third quarter of 1973. The result of the increase was that Americans saved an estimated 10.6 per cent of their after-tax income, most since an identical rate in the second quarter of 1946.

The Gross National product, or GNP, represents the total output of goods and services by Americans. It constitutes the broadest measure of nation's economic health.

The report for the second three months of this year was expected to show a stabilized economy, holding a slide which has registered five consecutive quarterly drops in GNP for a total of 7.7 per cent after adjustment for inflation.

James L. Pate, the Commerce Department's top economist, said the question of whether second-quarter

GNP would rise or fall was "too close to call." He expressed confidence, however, the report would show an improvement over the drop of 11.3 per cent at an annual rate in the first three months of this year.

"It should essentially be even," he said of the second-quarter GNP. That would mean a shift of no more than 2 per cent at 2n annual rate up or down. And a stable second quarter would indicate the foundation has been laid for the recovery that administration economists feel already has begun.

These economists generally expect a growth rate of from 4 per cent to 6 per cent in annual terms over the last half of the year. It takes a growth rate of about 5 per cent annually to make a dent in unemployment during a recovery. With unemployment currently at 8.9 per cent, those projections would make it late this year before that rate begins moving down.

Wheat Sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — Confirmation of another U.S.-Soviet wheat deal was announced today by the Agriculture Department, bringing to 3.2 million tons the total amount of wheat officially sold to the Russians this year.

At the same time, the Canadian Wheat Board announced the sale of two million long tons of wheat, approximately 74.6 million bushels, to the Soviet Union.

The USDA has said the Russian purchases from the Americans, amounting to about 118 million bushels, will have little effect on food prices at U.S. supermarkets.

Dismisses Suit

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—U.S. District Court Judge Franklin Dupree Thursday dismissed a suit challenging a superior court order by Judge James H. Pou Bailey which prohibited demonstrations, gatherings and picketing on the grounds of the Wake County Courthouse during the Joan Little trial.

Judge Dupree held that the plaintiff, civil rights activist the Rev. Leon White, had not tried to obtain relief from state courts and therefore it would be improper for the federal courts to intervene.

White was one of the leaders of demonstrations held prior and on the first day of Miss Little's trial.

Chief Is Sworn In

FARMVILLE—Farmville swore in a new police chief this morning.

Marsdon Cannady, 48, former Clayton Police Chief, took office at 10 a.m.

Town Administrator W. A. Martin said Cannady was picked from among 11 candidates and was unanimously approved by the Town Commissioners. A law enforcement officer since 1964, Cannady was a Cumberland County Deputy Sheriff from 1964 to 1969 and served with the Dunn Police Department until 1973, when he became Clayton's chief. He has had extension law enforcement training and has served as police community relations officer and on the Harnett County Mental Health Executive Committee. He also was a member of the Harnett County Ministerial Association.

Prior to entering law enforcement work, Cannady worked with the State Highway Commission. He and his wife have two married daughters.

Police Want Chief Dismissed

RALEIGH (AP)—Raleigh city officials are conferring on their response to a call by a policemen's association for dismissal of Police Chief Robert Goodwin.

The call was voiced at a City Council meeting Tuesday night by Russell Dement, attorney for the association, which represented 200 of the city's 300 policemen.

Dement said the men felt Goodwin did not fight hard enough to win raises for them from city government.

Raleigh police are paid a starting salary of $8,400.

Goodwin, 58, said he would continue doing his job and had no intention of resigning.

At 20 Feet

The Tar River is expected to crest at 20 feet Monday morning, according to the National Weather Service in Raleigh.

The Tar River level was reported at 11.8 feet Tuesday at 8 a.m. at 12.8 feet this morning at 8 a.m.

According to the Raleigh weather service, the Tar River is expected to rise to 13 feet today which is considered bank full conditions.

The Tar River crested at 18.9 feet in March causing flooding in several areas in Pitt County.

The Greenville Utilities Commission weather station reported the rainfall in the Greenville area yesterday was .97 of an inch.

The high temperature for Wednesday was 85 degrees while the low for that same period was 70 degrees.

Injunction Against Secret Meetings Of Shelby ABC Board

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — A Superior Court judge today issued a temporary injunction banning secret meetings by the newly formed Shelby Board of Alcohol Control.

A suit was filed by the Shelby Daily Star against the ABC board in May, charging the three-man body with violating the state's open meeting law. Judge Sam J. Ervin III of Morganton based his decision on what he called "a non-public meeting on April 3, 1975, at which the board voted to open a bank account and borrow $1,000."

The board was formed shortly after a March 18 referendum when Shelby voters approved the legal sale of liquor for the first time since prohibition. The $1,000 was for general operations.

Ervin also ordered the ABC board to give written notice at least six hours in advance of any called or special meetings to every news media in Cleveland County. A newspaper industry spokesman said the advance notice requirement was a first in North Carolina and should have a significant effect in future litigation.

The board also must post a written notice of every called or special meeting on the door of the ABC store and they must furnish notice of such meetings to any person who requests it, Ervin ruled. The order does not apply to regular meetings which are set by regulation.

The temporary injunction also ordered the board not to hold executive sessions except in accordance with the Open Meetings Act which requires that they be held during any regular or special meeting of the board.

The law allows closed meetings for the purpose of discussing personnel matters, land acquisition and doctor-patient or attorney-client relations.

A spokesman in Raleigh said the ruling in the Shelby case is the eighth injunction granted since the open meeting law was passed a few years ago.

"We're pleased with the ruling," said Jerry Ausband, editor of the Star.

Settlement Is Reported Near In Railroad Dispute

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A settlement was reported near in the labor dispute that threatens to shut down the nation's railroads while tough bargaining still lay ahead in the Postal Service talks.

A marathon railroad bargaining session began Wednesday night and continued into the daylight hours today.

Negotiators for the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and the nation's major railroads indicated they were close to agreement. The chief federal mediator, W. J. Usery Jr., assisted in the talks.

"We're together on almost everything," said union President C. L. Dennis. The industry's chief negotiator, William Dempsey, also said "significant progress" was made toward a settlement of the long dispute.

Dennis told newsmen the final issues standing in the way of an agreement involved cost-of-living wage increases, vacations for low seniority workers and adjustments in health and welfare benefits.

Otherwise, he indicated the 117,000-member union was prepared to embrace basically the same three-year "pattern" agreement signed earlier by several other railway unions which provided for a 41 per cent hike in wages and benefits.

The Ford administration urged the negotiators to reach a settlement by midweek or face the prospect of congressional intervention in the dispute.

The union had set a deadline of 12:01 a.m. Monday for a nationwide strike.

Federal mediators were anxious to resolve the railroad dispute in order to devote full attention to negotiations for 600,000 postal workers whose contract expires at midnight Sunday. The postal workers also have threatened to walk out at that time.

Usery, who held a private four-hour meeting Wednesday with Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, said today's session "would be one of the most serious" in the postal negotiations which began in mid-April.

Today "will determine whether the pieces go together," Usery added. "I hope they will."

The chief postal negotiator, Darrell Brown, said that while "some very critical issues remain," he was hopeful of reaching "a mutually satisfactory agreement with the four unions representing letter carriers, clerks and mail handlers.

DUE REFUND?

My husband took out an income protection policy with Pennsylvania Life Insurance Company Nov. 27 and paid $47 as a first installment. He later paid $328. He was turned down for health reasons and got back his $238, but not the initial $47, which the agent had said would be refunded if he were turned down. Mrs. J.G.

Hotline wrote to the agent in care of the Pennsylvania Life office in Raleigh. We received a call from Mrs. Fran Hilton who explained that your husband was covered under a $100 income-protection policy from Dec. 13, 1974 till Apr. 13, 1975. He applied, however, for a $300-a-month policy which is more closely investigated. This request was turned down and the $328 payment refunded, with the $100-a-month coverage ongoing until it lapsed in April. Therefore, the $47 you thought should be refunded has been spent on the four months of $100 coverage already past. You may pick up the $100 policy at any time, she said.

ROACHES

We have a really bad roach problem in Fletcher Dorm. The dorm counselor says there is nothing we can do. Can you try to help? L.C.

Bill Whichard, who's in charge of housekeeping at the University, said exterminating is done routinely at intervals, but also upon request. You may call his department at 758-6169. Willie Pate, director of Environmental Health of the Pitt County Health Department, said yearly inspections of the University buildings are made by his staff. Both men said yours is a difficult situation with which to cope, because there are so many people living in a dormitory and another's poor food handling may cause you to have roaches. If there were no food in the dorm rooms, or if all of it were stored in tight metal or plastic containers and crumbs and scraps were kept cleaned up, your rooms would hold no attraction for the nasty little creatures, they said.

Portugal's Military Regime Now Stands Alone

By WILLIAM B. LYON
Associated Press Writer

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal's leftist military rulers scrapped the remnants of the military-civilian coalition cabinet today after the country's second largest political party withdrew in protest against the regime's refusal to guarantee democratic government.

A spokesman for the ruling military Revolutionary Council said the new government would not be exclusively military. But he refused to give any hint where the officers might find any civilians other than the Communists and their allies to serve.

The Communists meanwhile were mobilizing against a new move to replace the pro-Communist military premier, Gen. Vasco Goncalves.

Like the Socialists who withdrew from the cabinet last week, the centrist Popular Democratic Party (PPD) went into opposition because the military leaders refused to restore freedom of the press and to make good on promises of parliamentary democracy.

The PPD representatives who resigned were Joaquim Magalhaes Mota, a minister without portfolio; Social Affairs Minister Jorge Sa Borges; Secretary for Health Carlos Macedo and Social Security Secretary Vasco da Graça Moura.

Two independents also submitted their resignations. They were Minister of Foreign Trade Jose da Silva Lopes and Minister of Overseas Territories Antonio de Almeida Santos.

The only civilians left in the cabinet were from the Communist front, which won only 18 per cent of the vote in the constituent assembly elections in April.

The resignations of the civilians made no change in the control of the country since all power is in the hands of the military officers who overthrew the fascist dictatorship last year. But the presence of the Socialist and PPD representatives in the cabinet gave the government's decisions the implied support of a majority of the voters.

ERA Amendment Changes Attitudes Even In Nonratifying States

By HORTENSE MYERS
INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Some states in which the proposed equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution was defeated are changing their own laws to reduce sex discrimination.

A survey by United Press International in the 16 nonratifying states shows this little-noticed indirect impact of the ERA amendment. The survey indicates the prospect for final validation of the amendment by the 1979 deadline is relatively good.

So far 34 state legislatures have ratified the ERA amendment. Thirty-eight are needed to amend the Constitution and, once this occurs, the amendment would take effect two years after date of ratification by the 38th state.

The UPI survey was limited to the 16 states from which the final four ratifying actions must come. Results indicated possibly six never will approve the proposed amendment that began its journey through the 50 state legislatures in 1972.

In the remaining 10 states, the question of ratification of the proposed 27th Amendment is still an open matter. In some states, it is a battle to defeat unrelenting ERA opponents. States identified in the survey as most unlikely to ratify the amendment were Alabama, Arizona, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri and Utah.

But even in some of these states, laws giving women greater equality have been passed. In Utah in the past two legislative sessions about a dozen bills have passed. The new Louisiana constitution prohibits "arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable discrimination based on age, sex or physical condition."

In the 10 other states in which ERA has been defeated in the past or not voted upon, state laws also have been changed to remove discrimination or distinction based on sex. Indiana, where the Senate twice has defeated ERA, enacted changes in nearly 300 laws, and killed a bill that ERA backers said was an attempt to permanently derail the federal amendment.

Some 100 bills to remove language considered discriminatory started through the Illinois legislature and the state's five year old constitution contains antidiscriminatory language similar to ERA. Florida also has removed most sex discriminatory language from its laws.

Women also gained rights in handling their own business and in credit applications and insurance in recent Nevada language. Oklahoma removed discrimination against women in inheritance taxes.

Knowledgeable observers in the nonratifying states thought that by March 22, 1979 a chance still exists in Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Nevada, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina and Virginia for ratification of the amendment stating that "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex."

But evaluations from the remaining six nonratifying states indicated little likelihood of a ratifying amendment being passed. The evaluations included these comments:

"No way. Not unless the Mormon Church migrates to a new Zion." This was a reference to the Utah legislature where the view prevailing is that of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints that the ERA amendment would undermine the family structure.

"Unless there is a dramatic change in the makeup of the legislature, which I don't anticipate, I see no chance whatever Mississippi will ratify ERA in 1976, 1977, 1978 or 1979 regardless of what happens in other states."

Voltage Cuts

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — If your local public utility company warns of a power brownout this summer, or if you suspect one is taking place, cut electricity usage as sharply as possible.

A large appliance manufacturer here recommends avoiding the use of high-wattage small appliances, such as irons, toasters and hair dryers; turning air conditioner thermostats to the highest temperature at which you can be comfortable, closing off rooms not in use, opening refrigerators and freezers only when necessary and waiting for full voltage to bake cookies and operate an electric clothes dryer or a dishwasher.

Signs of a brownout include unusual humming or labored droning from an appliance motor, dimming of house lights and very visible shrinkage of television pictures.

Appliances should be left off at least five minutes after the end of a brownout to permit voltage to stabilize. If power fails completely, turn off or unplug all appliances except the refrigerator and freezer.

Asparagus also supplies other nutrients and bulk. It is low in sodium and contains only 20 calories per serving.

Miss Kim Moore presided at the register in the family room, which was decorated with white gladioli and summer phlox. In the gift room Mrs. Dalton Williams was hostess. The table for gifts was covered with a white linen cloth with clusters of miniature wedding bells and ribbons in white placed on the corners. Summer flowers were also used.

Miss Craft was presented a pink carnation corsage and the mothers were honored with white carnations.

One Dish Cosh $125 In People's Republic

By MILT RICHMAN

PEKING (UPI) — Have you ever heard of a dish of food costing $125, one dish?

Generally anybody can eat well in the People's Republic of China without hurting his pocketbook. And food served in restaurants usually is fresh, wholesome and palatable.

To give you an idea of the usual prices, seven foreign visitors enjoyed a full meal the other evening for a total of 11 yuan, about $6 in American currency.

But six newsmen covering the United States' track and field team, competing against the Chinese here, paid 677 yuan, or about $370, for dinner for nine. They ordered the finest possible meal to show their appreciation to two Chinese liaison officials and an American press coordinator who worked with them during the track meets.

The $370 dinner of 11 courses had roasted Peking duck as the piece of resistance. Here is the entire menu:

A dish containing such delicacies as thin slices of duck and lambs' legs.

Pure soup of swallow's nest, which an interpreter said was made from the saliva of swallows, a Chinese delicacy.

Fried fins of salmon, the dish that cost 230 yuan, or about $125.

Baked whole duck, sliced. Duck eggs and fish.

Sweet-and-sour fish roe with sugar and vinegar.

Four different vegetables, including bamboo shoots. Roasted Peking duck with brown sauce, thin pancakes and spring onions.

Before being cooked, the duck is washed in sweet water, and cleansed in boiling water poured inside from the neck. It is then baked in an open hearth type oven with datewood tree fire, which doesn't smoke, for 35 minutes. The ducks are 60 days old, and have been force-fed. Duck soup in winter melon, with the melon served intact and opened at the top. Sweet icing soup. Mandarin oranges and apples.

Also served were red wine and white wine, one sour, one dry; mao-tai, a potent Chinese whiskey, orange juice and beer.

Minted Peas Rolls

Tomato Salad Pineapple Pudding
PINEAPPLE PUDDING
Latest version of a delectable and economical dessert.

2 eggs, separated
½ cup milk
1-3rd cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
Pinch of salt

8-ounce can crushed pineapple in unsweetened pineapple juice, undrained

In a medium mixing bowl beat the egg yolks until thickened and lemon color; beat in ¼ cup of the milk; add sugar, flour and salt and beat to blend; beat in remaining ¼ cup milk. Stir in the pineapple. With clean beater in a small mixing bowl beat egg whites until stiff; add to pineapple mixture and fold in. Turn into an ungreased round 1½-quart glass casserole (7½ by 2½ inches) or similar utensil. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until golden-brown — 45 to 55 minutes. There will be a cake-like topping and a custard layer underneath. Best served warm. Top, if you like, with whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

For years, my husband has been intrigued with the studies of Abraham Kaplan, a professor of philosophy, who is concerned with a society where "everybody talks and nobody listens."

Professor Kaplan coined his own word for it. He calls it "Duologue" and says it takes place in schools, churches, cocktail parties and especially in Congress.

"Be honest," said my husband, "when I talk, you are not only not listening to what I say, but you are thinking of what you are going to say next. Like if I said I had read a good book lately you would be . . ."

"Hey," I interrupted, "did you hear about Irene Morstahl? She bought 'Fear Of Flying' and thought it was the story of the Wright Brothers. Go ahead, dear, with whatever you were saying."

"You see! You weren't listening," he said.

"Of course I was listening. How else would I have tied in my funny book story?"

"Women are always complaining their husbands never talk to them. They talk to them all right, women just don't listen. That's why you get things so screwed up when you repeat them."

"Look, just because I could not remember if you stayed home Saturday to get the lawn sprayed and the dog spayed, or the lawn spaded and the dog sprayed is no big deal. It's very confusing to begin with."

"Do you know what Professor Kaplan says? He says the perfect 'duologue' is two TV sets tuned in and facing each other."

"Which reminds me," I said, "what time is it? There's a Maude rerun I want to watch."

Keep talking . . . I'm listening." He reached over and took me by the shoulders and looked at me squarely. "You are going to learn how to listen."

"How can I listen if you keep talking all the time?" I said irritably.

"There's a party coming up this weekend. We are not going to say anything. We are going to wander in and out of conversations and listen. Do you understand that?" (I nodded.)

At the party, I attached myself to a speaker who looked like a shorter Woody Allen. He was discussing how a rattle in his car turned out to be two empty soda bottles in the trunk which had absolutely mystified eight mechanics. At the end of (check one) 15 minutes, an hour and a half, three days I said to him, "That is really interesting."

He said, "If I had known it was that interesting, I'd have listened myself."

Let's hear it out there for the Duologue.

Tell Your Customers That Such Actions Will Cost You

DEAR ABBY: I've been waiting on tables for only three weeks, but I have a problem that only you can solve. I was told that under no circumstances should a customer help himself to coffee. (The coffee is on a burner in full view of the customers, and sometimes if the waitress is busy and can't get to the customer fast enough, he will get up and get his own coffee.)

Please tell me how a waitress can STOP someone from getting his own coffee? (We aren't allowed to hit a customer.)

Also, we are told that no customer is allowed to move tables or chairs, even to accommodate people who joined his table later. The waitress is supposed to do that, but what if the customer doesn't ask and just drags up extra chairs from another table?

I was told that if anybody else helped himself to coffee in my station, or moved the chairs or tables, it would cost me my job. Is that fair?

STUMPED WAITRESS

DEAR STUMPED: No. But such rules are made to keep you on your toes so that no one will attempt to pour his own coffee or clutter the aisles with extra chairs (a fire hazard). When you see a customer breaking these rules, tell him most emphatically that it will cost you your job if he doesn't desist.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have a very good friend. He is 34, single and a professional man. He's good company, and we enjoy having him over.

We know he'd like to be married and have a family, and he would make some woman a fine husband, but he is very much overweight. Besides that, he has a very bad odor because he seldom takes a bath or changes his clothes.

When he leaves, I have to spray the room. We are embarrassed to have other people over when he's visiting, and it's impossible to find him a date because we don't know any single girl who can't smell.

How can we make him realize the seriousness of this problem without losing a good friend?

BREATHLESS IN N.Y.

DEAR BREATHLESS: It would be an act of kindness if you (or your husband) would tell your friend that he simply must bathe and change his clothes regularly. Let him know that he has an offensive odor. It's hard to believe that a person could be this insensitive. Perhaps HE can't smell.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine wanted to show her appreciation for a favor I did, so she gave me a box of candy. It was a well-known brand and not cheap, either. When I got home and opened the box, I found it was wormy. Of course, I threw it in the garbage immediately. Should I tell my friend that the candy was wormy? I know she would be upset if she knew. But since there's no way of proving it, she can't get her money back, so why make her feel bad?

On the other hand, I don't like the idea of telling her that the candy was great when it wasn't edible.

IN A BIND

DEAR IN: Tell her the truth. Even though she can't produce the evidence, she can report the candy to the manager. He would appreciate knowing, and if he's smart, he'll give her an edible box.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Big Bill

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — The cost of a day's stay in a hospital has risen 204 per cent since 1960 and physicians' fees went up 74 per cent during the same period. These figures are from Extension home economists at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, who added that Americans spent $83.4 billion on health in 1972, or double that of six years earlier. People over 65 spend an average of $861 on health compared to $323 in the 19 to 64 age bracket.

One Door Opens, Others Await

Most eyes are on the Apollo-Soyuz mission these days. And, compared with American missions of the past, it is almost anti-climactic. This one is notable (to us) chiefly as the last planned manned space flight of the Apollo series.

Russia will dominate manned space travel for the next four years while the U.S. goes through a spacecraft model change; and what a change it will be!

The shuttle craft which will be flying in the 1980s are going to represent the pay-off for the billions of dollars, the compiling of new knowledge and techniques, and the energies of hundreds of thousands of men and women who contributed to all that has gone before.

Dr. Christopher C. Kraft, director of the Johnson Space Center near Houston, says the Shuttle may turn America into a space transportation agency for the whole world.

Experts believe that once the shuttle is operational, American companies and foreign governments will pay freight charges to deliver payloads into earth orbit; in effect, becoming a common carrier just as trucks, railroads and ships are common carriers on earth.

The spacecraft will be able to deliver satellites to orbit and recover them when they are in need of repair (instead of becoming valueless because of malfunction). A space station is even now being readied for delivery into orbit by the shuttle. There is talk of manufacturing materials, advances in medicine and communications in space... made possible by the unique conditions of zero-gravity which can be applied to practical needs of mankind.

This is only the beginning. The opening of one door inevitably leads to more doors to be opened in the shaping of the future. Unquestionably this generation will see more wonders than have yet been dreamed.

The Soviet Union necessarily has many space flights ahead in the next decade; they trail in the manned space flight field.

Our role, as presently planned, will consist of a few interplanetary explorations by robot craft and service satellites upon which we increasingly depend.

Another four-to-five years is going to see new doors opening.

Recreation Space Is Idle

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—North Carolinians hunting space for outdoor recreation activities could find a lot of new and exciting places to go if an idea put forth by Natural and Economic Resources Secretary James E. Harrington gets off the ground.

He wonders why large tracts of land should be just standing idle in forest preserves, or reserved only for hunting and fishing at certain times of the year, when Tar Heels in record numbers and hunting campsites or horseback trails.

The answer, Harrington says, should be multiple uses of state-owned land, some of those uses being "time-zoned" so there would be no conflict between hunters and hikers, for instance.

Share Uses "We ought to be looking into recreational uses of wildlife lands, such as camping. And we ought to look at our parks and forest lands for alternative wildlife uses... hunting and fishing. "And we should look into studying improved forestry practices in both wildlife and parks areas to improve the forests, and to create revenues from the wise harvesting of timber," Harrington suggests.

The secretary has called for an initial study on possible multiple land uses: what kinds of facilities might be shared by the public on the land which traditionally has been reserved for specific purposes only.

The prospects are astounding in terms of land availability depending upon just how far the study goes, and how closely the different agencies involved will cooperate in favor of all the residents of the state.

Success will in all likelihood depend as well on future political decisions, as Harrington was prompt to remind the Board of Natural and Economic Resources at a recent session that he would be leaving government service before their terms expire (he is an appointee of Gov. James E. Holshouser). The message was simply that such an effort will involve months of study, planning, rules writing and implementation before success is possible.

The state parks system currently holds title to 68,000 land acres in the state, and some additional acreage under water. Much of that acreage is undeveloped following until recently a policy of holding it in a wilderness state.

The park system only recently has moved strongly into development of extensive recreational facilities within the parks. Still, North Carolina has done little in the way of purchase of park land, and only in the past few years have major state funds been provided for the purpose. The current economic situation has dictated a cutback in land purchases.

Wildlife Largest The single largest landowner in the state is the Wildlife Resources Commission which holds title to 300,000 acres.

In addition to the land owned by the wildlife agency, 700,000 acres of federally owned forest land is available for jurisdiction by that agency, and leases are held by the Wildlife Commission on private land totalling another one million acres—a total of two million acres which could be made available for some types of recreational uses.

The state forest system owns another 34,500 acres, almost all of it concentrated in the Bladen Lakes preserve, which contains 33,000 acres.

Harrington sees some chance for success in a joint effort since the three agencies involved are now operating under the general supervision of his department rather than as independent agencies.

There have been examples in the past where opportunities to cooperate were rejected through agency jealousy. Some close to the situation put it bluntly: "Nobody from one agency will talk to somebody from another."

If a workable plan to share uses while avoiding conflicts can be developed, it would add thousands of acres to available recreation space across North Carolina.

ERA: Rights And Powers

So much attention has been paid to Section 1 of the pending Equal Rights Amendment that little note has been taken of Section 2. It's something for State legislators, editors, lawyers, and interested citizens to think about.

By this time, almost everyone who cares about such things has heard of Section 1 of the ERA: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex." We tend to pass over Section 2: "The Congress shall have the power to enforce by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article."

The same language appears in half a dozen other amendments to the Constitution. It is the implementing clause, vesting legislative power in the Congress to enact "appropriate" laws. We are seeing the exercise of this power these days in the Voting Rights Act, implementing the Fifteenth Amendment. Here Congress, by Federal law, is overriding State laws that deal with elections.

The Equal Rights Amendment now has been ratified by 34 States, though three of these have rescinded their approval. If prior to March, 1979, another four States should ratify (depending on how Congress treats the rescissions), the ERA will become part of the Constitution. What then?

The States traditionally have had the responsibility for laws relating to marriage and the family. Such laws deal with every aspect of divorce, including the grounds for divorce, alimony, child custody, community property, and the like. The laws vary widely, but many of them tend to discriminate in favor of women. Under ERA, such laws would be forbidden.

At a meeting in Washington last week of Parents Without Partners, a suggestion came from the floor: Wouldn't it be a great idea to have one, national, uniform law on divorce? (Parents Without Partners is an organization of parents who have been widowed or divorced). A single Federal law would assure identical treatment for men and women, making certain that no discrimination remained "on account of sex."

Another traditional field of State responsibility is education. The field has been much invaded by Federal authority in recent years. Exercising the implementing power of the Fourteenth Amendment, Congress has forbidden the States to discriminate by reason of race in any educational institution supported by public funds. Thus far, the States have retained considerable authority in such matters as dormitories, athletics, sororities and fraternities.

Under the pending amendment, "equality of rights" (whatever the phrase may mean) could not be abridged "on account of sex." It is useful to reflect upon what "rights" the male or female student now enjoys. Would the freedom to choose a "men only" or a "women only" dormitory be affected by this amendment? Could State sanction be extended to fraternities that discriminated against women, or to sororities that banned membership to men? Congress would have power to enforce the amendment "by appropriate legislation."

Over the past 20 years, many private colleges, once limited to men to women students only, have gone co-educational. Even so, at least 100 such institutions remain. All of them are affected in some way by State and Federal laws. The question may fairly be raised: How would they be affected by the Equal Rights Amendment?

Laws that sanction discrimination "on account of sex" are far more pervasive and complex than laws that used to discriminate "on account of race." For one thing, racial laws always discriminated against the Negro, never in his favor, and such laws were largely confined to the Southern and border States. The situation as to women is quite different.

Do we want national legislation in all these fields? To those of us reared in the old-fashioned doctrines of federalism, the prospect has no appeal. There is little to be said for the notion that superior wisdom lies in the Congress. But under this amendment, that is where the superior power would lie—the power "to enforce by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article."

At the moment, ERA languishes. Next year the movement for ratification will resume. In the interim, it will do no harm to keep this in mind: In the name of creating rights, this amendment would achieve a massive transfer of powers.

The INSIDE REPORT

Toughing Out The Mideast

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—A calculated decision by American—Jewish community leaders to squelch a sharply pro-Israel letter from House members to President Ford reveals his stunning growth as a President whom even the powerful pro-Israel lobby is finding difficult to push around.

Indeed, the imminent possibility of breaking the long deadlock over Israeli withdrawal in the Egyptian Sinai peninsula stems from this same phenomenon: Gerald Ford has convinced is not susceptible to political powerplays in the usual pattern of American presidential politics.

That sets Mr. Ford apart from each of his predecessors since Dwight Eisenhower forced Israel to give up its first conquest of the Sinai peninsula in 1956. By contrast, in the pre-campaign jockeying for political advantage before the 1972 election, Richard M. Nixon capitulated to Israel and ended a long boycott on deliveries of F-4 phantom aircraft.

The round-robin letter which began circulating in the House June 26 was a solo effort by Rep. Claude Pepper of Florida. Proclaiming that the U.S. "stands firmly with Israel," the Pepper letter hoped to pressure Mr. Ford to end the four-month-old "reassessment" of U.S. policy in the Mideast which has tied up a new generation of sophisticated U.S. weapons wanted by Israel.

Perrin's letter surprisingly alleged "a recent heavy flow of Soviet weaponry" to the Arabs and warned Mr. Ford that "withholding military equipment from Israel would be dangerous." In fact, Moscow recently suspended most military shipments to its former friend, Iraq, and never had delivered arms pledged to Egypt before the October 1973 war.

A good many staunch congressional friends of Israel signed the letter, but Pepper stopped circulating it last week. The reason: the American-Jewish community, including pro-Israel leaders in Congress, discouraged the new pressure campaign. As one told us: "We should not risk anything at this delicate moment that might be counterproductive to Israel's interests."

That was sound advice, considering the President's reaction to a similar high-pressure letter sent him May 21 by 76 Senators. Mr. Ford publicly welcomed that letter as an expression of Senate sentiment. But privately, when asked about it June 26 during the first large White House meeting ever held by a President with Arab-Americans, Mr. Ford answered quietly: "Applying pressure tactics is the wrong way to work on me."

That offhand remark precisely reflects the iron determination Mr. Ford has been demonstrating to Israel since the collapse last March of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's shuttle diplomacy. It reflects a primitive, unadorned stubbornness and confidence that he is acting in the best interest of the U.S. in insisting on Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai passes and the Abu Rudeis oil fields seized in

Unannounced talks over the past three months between Mr. Ford and a parade of Mideast experts of all persuasions have underscored this same phenomenon: restoration of the old U.S.-Israeli intimacy will not happen in the Ford administration unless there is this quid pro quo: Israel giving the U.S., in negotiating flexibility, a small part of what it has been taking from the U.S., in arms, massive economic aid and its only international backing in the past eight years.

The latest of Mr. Ford's private talks was ten days ago with former Sen. J. W. Fulbright, scorned by the American-Jewish community as a pro-Arab renegade. Other consultants have included Max Fisher of Detroit, an American-Jewish leader, prominent Republican and longtime friend of the President; former United Nations ambassador Arthur Goldberg; former Undersecretaries of State George Ball and Eugene Rostow. Through this process of self-education by the President, none of these experts has changed Mr. Ford's mind.

Thus, underlying the possible success of Kissinger's diplomacy in the coming showdown is hard

Other Editors Say One Man's Garbage

(Greensboro Daily News)

Reporters are notoriously snoop people, given to reading other people's mail, peeping around corners, putting ears to closed doors, frequenting shady places to conduct off-the-record and not-for-attribution interviews, and it was really not out of character for Jay Gourley, enterprising reporter for the National Enquirer tabloid, to pick up Henry Kissinger's garbage the other morning to sift it for state secrets. The surprising thing is that he got caught in the act. Surely, it must be common knowledge that reporters have always done this. How else could they possibly keep up with what's going on? It is a truism that what one throws away is quite as telling on a person as what he keeps.

Now, despite some reports to the contrary, Mr. Kissinger is quite an ordinary fellow and has his name on all the usual mailing lists. He is advised at least four times a year by the Reader's Digest Association that if he will subscribe to the Reader's Digest condensed books, he will be come eligible to win $100 a month for life in a national drawing. Now suppose the reporter for one of the Washington papers who is assigned to the garbage detail, finds all of the Digest's promotional literature but discovers that the postpaid return envelope and the critical document that says "Yes I want to win $100 a month for life" are missing. He has the makings of a major news story.

Mr. Kissinger is becoming uneasy about job security and is casting about for means to sustain income if the President should suddenly sack him. He is grasping at straws. He may become unsettled to the point of getting mixed up on countries where he is to have lunch and countries where he is to have dinner. On the other hand, the reporter could interpret the garbage as meaning that the Secretary was finally admitting to himself that he did not, after all, know everything, and was ordering books he could read in a hurry to remedy this condition. Thus it behooves us not to make light of reporters who have to read garbage on their way to the office every morning. In this trade one man's trash could very well be the next day's headlines.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I am writing this letter to compliment two of Greenville's police officers, Sgt. Caesar Corbett and Patrolman Ronald Darden.

On July 10, 1975 these officers had the duty of escorting a prisoner in the county jail to the funeral services of his mother. The two officers handled themselves and the prisoner with discretion and with humanity.

I wish to express this because funeral services in themselves are solemn occasions, and should be handled thusly.

Once again, our hats off and our compliments to these officers for handling a sensitive situation in a very discreet way.

Bigger Pie For Bigger Slices

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP)— Would you believe that relative to most other nations, the United States has one of the lowest rates of consumer price inflation?

Anyone concerned with his or her own pocketbook, and that includes everyone, tends to localize the issue of inflation. Understandably, each person feels he or she is being hit the hardest.

The latest figures from the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development show that of 24 trading nations, the United States had the fourth lowest inflation rate for the 12 months through May.

The spectacular rise in oil prices is perhaps the major force behind the upward thrust in prices, but there are many other reasons too, including higher consumer expectations, rising wage demands and deficit spending.

The OECD lists the United States inflation rate at 9.5 per cent, leaving only Germany, at 6.1 per cent, Switzerland, at 8.2, and Austria, at 8.6, in better shape.

Some of the rates would be considered shocking by U.S. standards, not that 9.5 per cent in itself isn't shocking. In the United Kingdom, for example, the rate was 25 per cent, and in Ireland 24.5 per cent.

Fearing an economic disaster, the British now are seeking to limit pay and dividend increase to 10 per cent for the next 12 months, hopeful of cutting the rate to 10 per cent or so by this time next year.

Even 10 per cent cannot be considered normal by almost any definition. Still, it appears to be in a respectable range when compared with the 47.4 per cent inflation rate in Iceland, the 19.7 per cent in Italy, and the 17.2 per cent rate in Australia.

One reason for high inflation rates are big government budgets which, to a degree, merely reflect a more basic reason: Demands by people for more governmental services.

This symptom has been a particular irritant to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, which for years has tried to point out that you can't get any more out of the government than you're willing to put into it.

The way to riches, the chamber says, is to produce — to make a bigger pie so that everyone can have a bigger piece without cutting into the other's section. And that pie, it says, is made by private enterprise.

Nevertheless, to the chamber's chagrin, there seems to be an inexorable trend toward bigger government, with its resultant huge budgets and sometimes big budget deficits too.

GETHSEMANE

What are the hard things in life to bear? Death of loved ones, dishonor, disease, the waywardness of those who should be true, loss of money, disappointment in love, failure in marriage, unemployment, uncongenial work, loneliness, poverty, inability to get ahead in life.

These are the Gethsemans through some of which nearly all of humanity has passed, and will pass. Even our Lord, the only perfect man who ever lived, agonized in Gethsemane in deepest anguish.

But God made our Lord perfect through suffering. And in the depths of our sorrow God will refine and revivify our own natures if we will let Him. It is important to remember also that when Jesus found himself in Gethsemane he fell on his knees and prayed, and that prayer turned the garden into a place of glory and triumph

Our trials and tribulations will make us better persons if we let them, and prayer will keep Gethsemane from driving us to despair.

Golden K Kiwanis Club Scrutinizing The Secret Funds Chartered This Week

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The secret funds maintained by many House members are coming under review by the Federal Election Commission.

The commission was scheduled to begin some preliminary discussion today about how the new campaign finance law applies to these funds, which are set up for the stated purpose of paying "nonpolitical" office expenses. No final rulings are expected for some time.

An Associated Press check disclosed that some House members are treating these funds as personal income and intend to report them on income tax returns.

Guesses on the number of secret House funds run up to 100 or more.

Although the congressmen don't disclose the funds except in rare cases, sometimes donors disclose their gifts in campaign finance reports.

These reports, and interviews with congressional staff members, turned up a scattered sampling of the unreported funds.

—Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., got donations from the United Federation of Teachers Union and the Machinists union for his new "educational fund," which an aide said will pay for newsletters, interns' expenses and possibly scholarships. The aide said Rangel raised a total of $5,200 at a recent reception, that Rangel doesn't intend to file public reports on the fund, and that he will report the income and expenses on his personal tax returns.

—Freshman Rep. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, raised $900 in donations from the Marine Engineers Union, the Electrical Workers Union and the Machinists union for his "Fifth District Constituency Service Fund." An aide said he did not report the fund because it is nonpolitical, even though the money came from the union's political trusts and were reported by them as campaign donations.

—Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Tex., got $500 from the Marine Engineers union for his "communications fund," but an aide said Wilson would not disclose any other donors or make any detailed public accounting of where the money went. He said the fund pays for newsletters.

—Rep. William Clay, D-Mo., raised $200 from the electrical workers, $500 from the Teamsters Union, $100 from Mid-America Dairymen, Inc., and $200 from the machinists at a reception last June 24. An aide said a total of several thousand dollars was raised then, and said Clay has not decided whether to report the money on his tax returns or whether to make a public accounting of the fund.

Among the questions being considered by the Election Commission is whether such funds are really political, which would make their spending subject to the new legal ceilings on election outlays.

The first Golden K Kiwanis Club anywhere was chartered in Greenville Tuesday night, in ceremonies at the Moose Lodge. The Golden K is a Kiwanis group open only to those who are retired.

Kiwanis officials on hand to charter the club included Jim Brooks, Vice President of the Kiwanis International; Melvin Gantt, Governor of the Carolinas district; Lee Riggan, International Field Representative of Kiwanis; and Kiwanis Lt. Governor Les Garner.

Officers of the new club are

Dr. Ralph Brimley, president; George W. Smith, vice president; and Arthur A. Prebish, secretary-treasurer. Directors of the club include Charles G. DeShaw, Lee G. Williams, Walter Glenn Carter, Kelley R. Rowe, and Robert E. Laughter.

Other charter members are M. E. Aldridge, James G. Allen, Edwin M. Andrews, John B. Boyd, Lawrence F. Brewster, Samuel Brooks, Rev. A. E. Brown, Larry E. Brown, Merrill H. Bynum, Ed J. Carter, John G. Clark, and Howard B. Clay.

Royal Japanese Duo Target Of Radicals

NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — A Molotov cocktail exploded today at the feet of Crown Prince Akihito and Crown Princess Michiko, but neither one was hurt.

Police said security officials put out the flames. A guard behind the 42-year-old heir to the Japanese throne was slightly injured.

The royal couple arrived today for the first visit by members of the imperial family to Okinawa since World War II. Radical student groups in both the island and Japan have been demonstrating against the visit for several days.

The demonstrators are demanding a formal apology from Akihito's father, Emperor Hirohito, as an expression of responsibility for Okinawa's suffering during the war and the postwar occupation by the United States.

As the crown prince and his wife were driven from the airport, an empty bottle was thrown at their car and several gasoline bottle bombs were thrown at police cars tailing the motorcade. But police said none of these exploded.

Police said the couple was inspecting a monument to female students and nurses who committed suicide en masse during World War II when two persons — one in a black helmet and the other in a red helmet — ran out of the nearby woods and hurled another bottle of gasoline.

It landed near the prince's foot and burst into flames. The bombers escaped.

backing from Mr. Ford. Success in the Sinai talks will guarantee Israel much of the $2.6 billion it wants from the U.S. right now; failure will lead to a potentially brutal fight between Mr. Ford and Congress over the aid package.

More important, the President's tough performance on the Middle East has given him glittering prestige in world chancelleries. Considering his undeviating support for Israel during 25 years as Congressman from Grand Rapids, this may be the most important surprise of the young Ford presidency.

Gesture Of Peace For Outer Space Meeting

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Anthropologists say the handshake became a custom when one man tried to show another he held no weapons. The handshake, then, is a gesture of peace.

No wonder that when two men of competing nations faced one another for the first time in space today, the handshake led their agenda.

A world fearful for three decades that rival U.S.-Soviet ambitions threatened doomsday could not help but note.

Here they were, their view of earth expansive and bountiful, Air Force officers of the two nuclear superpowers extending hands of friendship and cooperation.

The handshake is a symbol of brotherhood. Americans speak of hands across the sea, a helping hand.

The Russian people have waited for three years for "vstrechya v kosmose!", the meeting in space, and today's "rukopozhatnye v kosmose!" — the handshake in space.

In Russian, the word for handshake is rukopozhatnye. There, too, it signifies friendship or "mir" — peace.

The symbolism carries a large umbrella.

From their perch, 140 miles high, the astronauts and cosmonauts can see 500 miles in each direction. In their view is 1-25th of the planet earth.

The meaning of the mated hands circles the globe. No nation on earth needed to hide this event because of alignment with either side. The people of the whole world could know what was done.

History would note the moment and fix it; neither side a winner or loser in this flight of Apollo and Soyuz.

After all, it takes two to shake hands. And these men were emissaries of their nations.

The technological miracle that stationed them above earth for this embrace was a pooling of knowledge, unprecedented in the oft-times troubled relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

And so was the good will expressed in space, in a single handshake of peace.

More Funds For Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is likely to approve a bill which would give former President Richard M. Nixon $121,153 for staff, office supplies and other expenses for the new fiscal year.

A vote on the measure, expected Wednesday, was postponed until today. The amount represents a cut of 40 per cent from the amount requested by President Ford.

The money, for the fiscal year that began July 1, compares with the $200,000 Nixon was granted for his transition and office expenses for the period between his resignation last August and the June 30 end of the 1975 fiscal year. That was down from an $850,000 request by Ford.

The amount does not include Nixon's $60,000 annual pension nor indirect costs related to security, courier flights and storage space.

Ford had asked the House Appropriations Committee to approve $203,000 for Nixon's office expenses, including $15,000 for travel, $50,000 for equipment and communications, $20,000 for repairs and equipment services and $14,000 for office supplies.

Leaf Prices Slightly Up

RALEIGH (AP)—The Federal-State Market News Service says prices by grades were mostly $1 per hundred higher Wednesday on flue-cured tobacco markets of the North Carolina Eastern Belt and up slightly on the South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt.

Grade averages were unchanged on three markets of the North Carolina Middle Belt which are open.

Prices on all three belts were close to their support levels and deliveries to the Stabilization Corp. under the government price support program continued to total around 50 per cent of sales.

Eastern Belt sales Wednesday totaled 3.4 million pounds at a $84.11 average. This was down 80 cents from Tuesday. Sales for the season rose to 9.7 million pounds and the season average was $84.63.

South Carolina-Border Belt sales Wednesday totaled 4.1 million pounds and the average of $87.31 was down 95 cents from Tuesday. Season sales rose to 28.3 million pounds and the season average was $85.99.

Middle Belt markets sold only 200,142 pounds and the average was $86.46. Season sales totaled 406,946 and the season average was $86.07.

Bicentennial Is Beard Season

BERTRAM, Tex. (UPI) — Residents of this Central Texas community are taking celebration of the nation's bicentennial seriously.

During bicentennial festivals, the Bertam Jail will be designated a bicentennial jail, and any man who shows up without a beard will be locked up or required to pay a $1 fine.

Money from the fines will be used to finance bicentennial programs.

Russia Will Buy Millions Of Tons Of U.S. Wheat

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is selling millions of tons of wheat to the Soviet Union with the Agriculture Department repeating that the purchases will have little effect on food prices at American supermarkets.

The department said Wednesday that Cook Industries Inc., of Memphis, Tenn., has sold two million metric tons, and Cargill Inc. of Minneapolis said it was completing arrangements to sell another 1.2 million tons.

It was unknown what the Soviets were paying for the wheat, but both transactions would be valued at a total of $475 million at the current wheat price of about $147 a ton. The Cook contract would be worth $300 million and the Cargill transaction $175 million.

"Several companies are still involved in negotiation" with the Russians, said Richard E. Bell, deputy assistant secretary of agriculture.

Cargill said its Tradex subsidiary in Geneva, Switzerland, was contracting with the Soviets for U.S. hard winter wheat, some of it in the summer of 1976. "Cargill expects to complete contractual arrangements within the next 24 hours to supply U.S. wheat to fill this sale," a company spokesman said.

An official of Continental

Grain Co. of New York City, another top exporter, declined to discuss possible negotiations. "We keep in communication, that's all I can say," said Clarence D. Palmby, a Continental vice president.

The announcements came after more than a week of rumors that Russia was interested in buying substantial quantities of grain from the United States and Canada. Three years ago the Russians bought during secret negotiations about 11 million tons of U.S. wheat, equal to about one-fourth of the 1972 U.S. crop, plus other grain.

Those sales depleted American stocks and led to subsequent domestic price increases for meat and dairy products.

This year, the Agriculture Department says sales to the Russians will have little inflationary impact on the American consumer's food bill. The department has projected a record grain harvest and says this will increase U.S. grain stocks even with large-scale sales to the Soviets.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has said the United States could export up to 10 million tons of grain this year without increasing domestic food prices significantly.

Guitar Artist In Program Friday

SAM DORSEY... 22 year old guitarist from New Bern, is a student at the North Carolina School of the Arts and also teaches guitar at Guilford College.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
New Bern's Sam Dorsey is a young man whose life is centered around the guitar. Now settled down to becoming an adopted Tar Heel, Oxnard, California born Sam is both a full time student and a teacher, after spending a storybook boyhood globe hopping with his parents.

"I've been playing the guitar for a number of years," the slender 22 year old student said. "But it was a little over three years ago I really got hooked on classical guitar music." He explained that because of the waiting list for admittance to North Carolina's prestigious School of the Arts in Winston-Salem, he had to bide some time before becoming a student there. "I love being there. I think it's the finest concept of education conceivable."

Before attending the North Carolina School of the Arts, Sam studied guitar at the University of North Carolina in Greensboro with Frank Koonce and John Patykula. "Frank is a North Carolinian," Sam said, "from Kinston."

Sam speaks almost reverently of his teacher, Jesus Silva. "He's really a great teacher and is the world's authority on the music of Manuel Ponce."

The young New Bern musician also has the rare good fortune of periodic master classes under the renowned Andre Segovia, king among classical guitarists.

Composers Sam named as being ones whose music he especially enjoys playing are Isaac Albeniz, Manuel Ponce,

JAZZMAN AILING
GARY, Ind. (AP)—Noted jazz musician and composer Julian "Cannonball" Adderley is in critical condition at St. Mary Hospital following a crippling stroke over the weekend, officials said.

Fernando Sor and Bach. "Bach has written so much that is really perfect for the guitar," Sam said.

In his role as teacher, Sam explains: "I'm teaching about 20 students at Guilford College in Greensboro. I also give private lessons. But," he smiled with pleasure, "I have this summer free to be in New Bern with my folks."

Nonetheless, he's taking on one or two appearances. One of these will be on Friday night, July 18, when he will play a program of classical and folk songs at The Tree House in downtown Greenville.

"I've played in a number of similar coffee house type concerts," Sam said, "mostly in college towns, Chapel Hill, Winston-Salem, Greensboro and Durham. Friday will be my first appearance in Greenville."

Sam has been exposed to the music of many lands, traveling with his family, living in Morocco, Germany, Okinawa, Thailand and in other places. The family's last overseas home before Sam's father, Commander P.C. Dorsey retired, was in Bangkok.

Last summer too, Sam got in some more traveling. He was a member of the annual sojourn of North Carolina School of the Arts students to Europe. "Ten of us were guitarists," Sam said. "We were divided into three groups and gave chamber recitals in Switzerland and in the hill towns of Italy. It was a wonderful summer."

"The historic town of New Bern, Sam enthusiastically admits, has captured his heart. "What I'd really like to see New Bern have is a resident chamber music group," he said. "Everything about New Bern really calls out for a good quartet or quintet. This is something I hope to see develop here."

Canada Plans Trim Exports

OTTAWA — The Canadian government plans to reduce the export of natural gas to the United States, but Energy Minister Donald Macdonald says U.S. border areas without alternate supplies of energy will not suffer.

"We're not going to leave people out in the cold," Macdonald said Wednesday as he announced plans to negotiate cutbacks to the American market and to reduce consumption by Canadian industries until new supplies are available.

He said the amount of the export reduction would be fixed after discussions with the U. S. government and with the western provinces that produce the gas.

Canada now exports about one trillion cubic feet a year to the United States. This is 45 per cent of the Canadian production but only 4.5 per cent of the total U.S. demand. However, a source in the American gas industry said the effect of the Canadian curtailment "could be tremendous, especially in the border states and the North-east," which depend heavily on Canadian gas.

The Canadian government's decision was based on a report from the National Energy Board which after four months of public hearings said there may be widespread gas shortages in Canada next winter. There already have been shortages in British Columbia during the past two winters.

The report estimated total Canadian reserves at about 60.6 trillion feet, or less than 30 years' supply at the present rate of consumption.

Oil exports to the United States are already being reduced as part of Canada's self-sufficiency program and will be eliminated by 1982 unless more Canadian oil becomes available. But Macdonald told the House of Commons that a total cutoff in natural gas exports was not feasible because some U. S. markets are dependent on Canadian supplies.

Warned Of LSD Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—Retired Maj. Gen. Lloyd Fellenz says tests were held at Ft. Bragg in the 1950s on the effectiveness of the mind-bending drug LSD as an offensive weapon in wartime.

Fellenz, who now lives at St. Petersburg, Fla., told the Washington Post he was part of a volunteer experiment at Ft. Bragg. Officers were told they would be given LSD, but not when.

Fellenz said he was slipped a dose of the drug while he was briefing a group of officers. He says he had no adverse reaction.

The newspaper also reported today that the Army and the University of Maryland's medical school tested LSD and other mind-altering drugs on hundreds of persons under a contract between the Army's Chemical Center, now the Edgewood, Md., Arsenal, and the medical school's Psychiatric Institute in Baltimore.

Fellenz commanded the Edgewood base between 1956 and 1959.

Army researchers gave LSD to at least one group of five to 10 soldiers at Edgewood without their knowledge to study their reactions, the Post said.

LSD also was given to troops at the Army's Aberdeen, Md., Proving Grounds to determine their ability to handle complex military equipment while drugged.

Couple Killed In Plane Crash

DUBLIN, Ga. (AP)—A Bradenton, Fla., couple was killed Wednesday when their private plane crashed during a rain-storm near here, authorities said.

The victims were identified as Dr. Edward W. Flath, a dentist, and his wife, Marjorie. They had taken their daughter to a camp at Asheville, N. C., and were returning to St. Petersburg, Fla., when the crash occurred, authorities said.

The Beechcraft Bonanza was discovered Wednesday night near Georgia 112 in Laurens County about 10 miles north of Dublin in south central Georgia, the Laurens County sheriff's office said.

The Federal Aviation Administration said it lost radar contact with the plane shortly after noon Wednesday.

Hearing Held By Ayden Board

ARCHEOLOGICAL FIND—Life-sized sculptures of warriors and horses are displayed in a Chinese museum after they were unearthed recently from the tomb of Chin Shi-huang, founding emperor of the Chin Dynasty (221-207 BC) in Lintung County, Shensi Province, China. (AP Wirephoto)

AYDEN—The Ayden Board of Commissioners Monday night held a public hearing to discuss the curb and gutter project on Allen Drive and Martin Circle. No opposition was voiced against the project so commissioners passed a resolution stating the project would be undertaken as soon as funds become unavailable.

Electrical director Mike Finney reported to the board that King Brothers Farm Center planned to install a 100 hp motor for a new drying system at a cost of $3,200.

Finney said he informed the firm that the motor should be equipped with a reduced voltage starter plus an aid to construction fee of $2,595 for the purchase of three transformers, with the Town assuming the cost of labor and other materials.

George King told the commissioners he did not feel his firm should have to buy three transformers, especially when they would become property of the Town of Ayden. King said he would purchase two transformers which would cost approximately $1,730.

Mayor Ross Persinger appointed a committee to work with King about the transformers and the motor.

Commissioners approved $380 to be paid to the Mid-East Law and Order Program to assist in paying the Town's share in additional costs.

Ralph Ford was named deputy finance officer for the purpose of signing purchase orders.

Town Manager Don Russell and Mike Finney were authorized to enter an agreement with the Ayden Housing Authority involving electrical maintenance.

Carl Speight, J.R. Lowry and Donald Carmen were named to a committee to make rules and regulations concerning the Ayden-Grifton School activity bus.

The bus has recently been turned over to the Town and is being used in the summer recreation program. The committee will report back at the August board meeting.

The board went on record favoring the "Collard Festival" that is being planned for the Town of Ayden.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are leaning toward Cleveland for their 1976 convention and Democrats toward New York, cities they last used in election years that proved politically disastrous for them.

Cleveland, which last held the Republican convention in 1936 when the party lost all but two states to Franklin D. Roosevelt, has emerged as the surprise frontrunner for the 1976 GOP convention.

Party sources said that reluctance of some Florida GOP officials to host the convention again at Miami Beach, where Republicans met in 1968 and 1972, has left Kansas City as Cleveland's top rival. Until recently, Miami Beach had been the frontrunner. The likely starting date is either Aug. 16 or Aug. 23.

Among the Democrats, New York is favored by some top party leaders including chairman Robert S. Strauss to be host for the first time since the 103-ballot convention in 1924 that preceded one of the party's worst presidential defeats.

However, Los Angeles remains in the running, in considerable measure because its convention facilities are considered superior to New York's. There is some indication officials may be touting New York in part to spur greater effort by California Democratic leaders. The Democrats plan to meet July 12.

Final decisions on the sites won't be made until at least August.

City officials in both Cleveland and Kansas City have eagerly sought the 1976 GOP convention. However, the Cleveland convention facilities are considered superior, with sufficient space to house all official activities including press work space.

Three other cities are bidding for the GOP convention: New Orleans, where a conflict has arisen because the Superdome may be needed for pro football games; Los Angeles; and San Francisco. Some Democratic leaders are reluctant to go to Los Angeles because of the expense and inconvenience of arranging a convention 3,000 miles from Washington. They say California Democrats, except for Los Angeles Mayor Thomas Bradley, have not been too cooperative so far.

In New York, however, there is a question whether Madison Square Garden has sufficient floor space for the delegates, aides and press.

New Orleans remains officially in the running, but Democratic officials say it doesn't have enough hotel rooms for their convention, which is larger than the GOP convention.

Russia Increased Its Oil Prices

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer
BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Soviet Union increased the price of oil it exported to its East European allies 120 to 150 per cent last year, according to information received in recent weeks by West European governments.

Officials say the increase appears to be straining the economies of Moscow's Communist customers. They said such countries as Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia are not as well equipped as the Western oil importers to absorb the shock of the increased fuel costs.

"The Soviets are acting like good capitalists," one diplomat observed. "They have bumped up their oil prices to take advantage of world market conditions. However, so far as charges to their allies are concerned, they have kept their prices below those of the Arab and other oil-producing countries."

Moscow's price to the other members of COMECON, the East European economic bloc, was said to be averaging between $7.20 and $7.50 per barrel.

The prevailing price of crude oil in the non-Communist world ranges between $10 and $10.50 per barrel without transportation costs. These costs are considerably higher than those in Eastern Europe because of the shorter distances there and an extensive pipeline system.

Informants say Soviet oil production totaled nearly 3.28 billion barrels in 1974, 7 per cent more than the 1973 output and only 35.6 million barrels behind the United States, the world's largest producer.

The Soviets are understood to be aiming this year for another 7 per cent increase, which would put them ahead of the Americans.

WINNER IS A LOSER—Pamela Johnson, winner of Mother Waddles' Rolls Royce giveaway, stands over the Rolls Royce she can not use in Detroit. Mrs. Johnson has been told the car's title is not in order and she will also be liable for a four per cent sales tax when she applies for the new title; and now the car is starting to rust and the exhaust system (in front of the car) fell off when the car was taken to a car wash. (AP Wirephoto)

Woman Drowns In Rescue Try

GULF, N. C. (AP) — A woman drowned Wednesday trying to save her niece, who is missing.

The body of Bessie Lee Jackson, 30, of Gulf, was found in five or six feet of water in a field bordering the Deep River near the Lee County community.

Darkness forced rescue workers to suspend dragging operations for the victim's 10-year-old niece, Cindy Nelson.

Family members told authorities that the Jackson woman went to her niece's aid when the girl was unable to swim to shore during a late-afternoon swim.

Judge Relieved Pending Trial

WHITEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — State District Court Judge J. Wilton Hunt has been relieved of further assignments pending the outcome of assault charges against him.

Judge Hunt faces a District Court hearing Aug. 4 on charges of assaulting his wife, Joyce.

A special judge will be assigned to hear the case, according to Bert M. Montague, administrator of the state office of the courts in Raleigh.

Will Observe Women's Day

Women's Day will be observed at English Chapel F.W.B. Church Saturday July 20 at 11:00 a.m. The speaker will be Myrtle Wilson of Grimesland and the sermon will be delivered by Rena Council. The Shirelle Club of Greenville will be special guests and refreshments will be served. All members are asked to pay $10.00. The public is invited to attend.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, recovering from a broad early loss with a lift from an improved showing by the nation's Gross National Product.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 4 points in the early going, was up 1.09 at 873.20 by 11:30 a.m. Losers held a moderate lead over gainers in fairly quiet trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers traced the early selling to fears of a continued decline in interest rates.

But then the market began responding to the Commerce Department report that the downtrend in the Gross National Product virtually leveled off in the second quarter.

The GNP data, after separating out the effects of inflation, showed a 3 per cent decline in the quarter, compared with an 11.4 per cent drop in the first three months of the year.

Polaroid, which reported that second quarter earnings rose to 41 cents a share from 7 cents in the like period of 1974, was up 1 1/2 at 39 1/2.

Citicorp, the Big Board volume leader, rose 1/4 to 35 1/2. Cook Industries climbed 2 1/2 to 20 on the American Stock Exchange on the news of the company's sale of 2.2 million tons of wheat to the Soviet Union.

Reed Tool was up 1 1/2 at 35 and Baker Oil Tools slipped 3/4 to 55 1/2. The companies announced merger plans.

The NYSE's composite index slumped .19 to 50.53 in the first hour.

The Amex market value index lost .41 to 95.86.

Danger, Money In Deep Diving

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — You can make big money in deep-sea diving these days, but there's also big dangers: sharks, the bends, strange raptures, few safety regulations. Depths of 250, even 300 feet, considered unreachable a decade ago are commonplace. And a new divers' organization says men, sometimes goaded by companies out for a fast buck, have died making them.

"There are some good, safety-conscious outfits, but too many are willing to sacrifice diving safety if it hits the pocketbook," said Paul Woodhall of New Orleans, president of the fledgling International Association of Professional Divers.

Woodhall said nearly 40 men have died in the 10 years since divers entered a boom era created by the offshore oil industry.

Sharks, barracuda, poisonous sea snakes and jewfish, a 500-pound seabast that looks like an inflated pin cushion, are constant hazards. Woodhall recalled one jewfish that was so entranced with a diver's white footgear he tried to swallow it.

"The fish spit it out finally," he said. "Guess it didn't taste like a good grade of rubber."

Bends rank as the biggest danger of all. They hit when a diver is brought up too quickly, the sudden change in pressure forcing bubbles through the bloodstream. Coming up from 200 feet often lasts an hour and a half when done properly; doing it faster can be fatal.

Finally, there's nitrogen narcosis, the so-called "rapture of the deep," a high which blurs memory and coordination. Almost all divers experience it, Woodhall said.

Space age technology has sheared the 190-pound diving suit to 70 pounds. Some are even outfitted with circulating streams of hot water for duty in the North Sea. Scuba gear provides greater mobility than ever.

Floating on the surface are the "tenders" who make sure air hoses operate properly and don't foul the lifelines. They maintain the equipment under the diver's close supervision.

A diver may sit on a ship or barge for a month waiting to make a two-hour dive. He's often on call round the clock. With one exception, most divers enjoy hobbies just like anyone else.

"Not many of us are devoted to swimming," Woodhall said.

Jury Selection Work Stalled

By CATHY STEELE ROCHE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Jury selection in the Joan Little murder trial stalled today as her attorneys attempted to question prospective jurors about personal beliefs on racial issues.

Previously selected for the jury were two young white women and a young white man. Meanwhile, the defense won the right to examine evidence held by the state. Chief defense counsel Jerry Paul said he has sought access to much of the physical evidence in the case for months, including photographs of the death scene and articles of clothing.

Hobgood also ordered the state to turn over to him for court examination any statements it had received from a trusty who was in the Beaufort County jail last Aug. 27, the night Alligood was killed.

Miss Little contends she stabbed the jailer with his own icepick while he was attempting to rape her. His body was found faked from the waist down.

Pecola Jones, a 49-year-old black woman, became on Wednesday the fourth juror seated for the case. She was accepted by the prosecution despite her reservations about capital punishment.

Miss Little faces a mandatory death sentence if convicted of first-degree murder in the death of Clarence Alligood, 62. The state challenged Mrs. Jones, a machinist, on the grounds of her reservations about the death penalty, but Judge Hamilton Hobgood re-

North State Breezes To 9-0 Tourney Win

ROANOKE RAPIDS—Greenville's North State Little League All-Stars exploded for six runs in the fourth inning to run up a 9-0 lead and the Stars held it to claim a victory over Robersonville in the first round of the Area II little League tournament, yesterday.

The North State was to play the winner of the Tarboro-North Craven game today at 5:00 p.m. The Tar Heel stars, who drew an opening round bye, were to face Roanoke Rapids today also.

Roanoke Rapids got four runs in the first inning on four errors and added one in the second and four more in the fourth easing to a 10-1 victory over Seymore Johnson.

Greenville knocked on the door in the first and second innings against Robersonville getting a man to third in each inning but both times, failed to score.

Shelton Wilson led off the third with a walk and moved to third on a passed ball and a wild pitch. The next two batters went down swinging, however, but Mike Pollard singled scoring Wilson and Kenny Barnes slammed a homer to score Pollard and give Greenville a 3-0 lead.

Tom Brown walked and Teddy Gartman singled opening the fourth. Wilson got a hit scoring Brown. A hit by Larry Talbert scored Gartman and a sacrifice fly by Scott Galloway scored Wilson. Pollard singled in Talbert and Barnes reached on an outfield error scoring Pollard. Barnes scored on a wild pitch.

Barnes pitched hit usual game, a one-hitter. He struck out 14 including six men he faced of the first seven. The only hit came in the second, a lead off single by Grady Smith. Barnes walked three.

Tourney Rescheduled

Last weekend's Ladies Invitational Softball tournament, which was rained out, has been rescheduled for Saturday and Sunday at Evans and Guy Smith parks.

The tournament involves 23 teams from Eastern North Carolina and is a double elimination affair. Games will start at 10:00 a.m. Saturday at both parks and the finals will be Sunday.

Greenville will play its first game Friday at 6:30 p.m. meeting District X, Iredell Co. If Greenville should win, the team will play again at 8:00 Saturday. If they lose, they will play at 6:30 Saturday. The finals will be Wednesday.

Kuhn Re-Elected For 2nd Term As Commissioner

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was re-elected for a second seven-year term as the head of organized baseball today, overcoming the opposition of four American League clubs who had voted against him on Wednesday. The development, at baseball's summer meetings, was a startling reversal following Wednesday's marathon sessions where the Oakland A's, Baltimore Orioles, New York Yankees and Texas Rangers had voted against the commissioner. The National League had fought for Kuhn's retention and had asked American League owners to reconsider their vote Wednesday night, but Charles O. Finley, Oakland owner, and a leader in the opposition to the commissioner, predicted that the AL would not vote again today. The two leagues went into a joint session at 9 a.m. CDT, and 10 minutes later the commissioner left, accompanied by baseball attorney Sandy Hadron. He walked the length of the hotel corridor to a private room reserved for his staff.

Ten minutes later, John Galbreath of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Ed Fitzgerald of the

Mann Guarding Against Being Too Confident

NORTHFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Carol Mann has been a hot golfer in recent months and that's what worried her as she prepared for today's start of the 72-hole U.S. Women's Open Championship at the Atlantic City Country Club.

Miss Mann had won twice and been third or better three times, vaulting into third place on the Ladies' Professional Golf Association money winning list with earnings of $45,790. Miss Mann, a winner in Columbus last week, was concerned she might be overconfident. "Coming into the Open with a victory I think is very important, but because of it I have to guard against overconfidence and too much momentum," Miss Mann explained.

"I don't want to get too up," added the LPGA president. The 6-foot-3 Miss Mann pointed out that she isn't the only player in the Open with momentum.

"Don't overlook Jo Anne Carner or Sandra Haynie or Judy Rankin," Miss Mann said after a practice round on the 6,165-yard, par-72 course.

"Carner has on three times and she has won five National Amateur titles on courses like this," Miss Mann said. "Haynie is always among the top five, and Rankin has six second-place finishes and she's looking to win."

Miss Mann said the improvement in her game was due to a new style of putting. She described it as "pop putting." You hit the ball like you would use a tack hammer. It was suggested to her by veteran men's pro Billy Casper.

Miss Mann won the Open here in 1965 by two strokes over Kathy Cornelius with a 72-hole total of 290, 10 strokes better than the late Babe Didrickson Zaharias totaled in winning the 1948 Open over the same course.

Other stars in the field of 150 for the 30th Women's Open included the LPGA's top money winner, Sandra Palmer ($56,888); defending champion Miss Haynie; Miss Carner, runner-up on the money list with $49,500 and a three-time winner this year on the tour; recent Hall of Fame inductee Kathy Whitworth, a double winner this year; Jane Blalock, Kathy McMullen and Carole Jo Skala.

Kuhn

Milwaukee Brewers left the joint meeting and made that same long walk to summon Kuhn back before the owners. As the commissioner entered the conference room, there was a loud explosion of applause.

Moments later, the joint meeting ended, with many of the executives shaking his hand as they left the room. The commissioner then presided at a news conference and announced that he had been re-elected to another seven-year term.

Seniors Open Quest

Greenville's Senior Babe Ruth All-Star team will begin play in a gigantic double elimination tournament for the state championship Friday traveling to Concord.

Eleven teams representing 11 districts will be involved in the tournament which is scheduled to run through next Wednesday, barring rain.

Greenville will play its first game Friday at 6:30 p.m. meeting District X, Iredell Co. If Greenville should win, the team will play again at 8:00 Saturday. If they lose, they will play at 6:30 Saturday. The finals will be Wednesday.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — James Doughty, sixth man on Ohio State's NCAA runnerup basketball team in 1961, Wednesday was named an assistant basketball coach at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Doughty played behind Jerry Lucas and John Havlicek when the Buckeyes lost to Cincinnati in the NCAA finals. UWM head coach Bob Gottlieb was another OSU teammate.

Doughty played a year with the Harlem Globetrotters before playing semi-pro basketball and entering private business. He is currently a personal adviser for a Columbus, Ohio, firm.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Danny "Little Red" Lopez of Los Angeles and Raul Cruz of Mexico City have been signed for a featherweight fight July 26 at the Olympic Auditorium, it was announced Wednesday by matchmaker Don Chargin.

Chargin said he is trying to line up a title fight for the winner to face champion Alexis Arguello, of Nicaragua, is the World Boxing Association champion.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A $2.25 million lawsuit by University of Wisconsin Athletic Director Elroy Hirsch against a firm that allegedly used his "Crazylegs" nickname without permission was dismissed Wednesday in U.S. District Court here.

Court documents said an out-of-court settlement had been reached between Hirsch and Champion Products Inc. of Rochester, N.Y. The terms of the settlement were not disclosed.

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers have traded 12th round draft choice Willie Miller of Colorado State to the Cleveland Browns.

The Oilers will receive an undisclosed 1976 draft choice from the Browns for Miller, a 5-foot-9, 192-pound wide receiver.

Doughty played behind Jerry Lucas and John Havlicek when the Buckeyes lost to Cincinnati in the NCAA finals. UWM head coach Bob Gottlieb was another OSU teammate.

Trial Goes To Jury

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A jury of seven men and five women begin deliberations today on the question of whether a professional hockey player is bound by civil laws in a sport that encourages violence.

The player, David Forbes, a Boston Bruins winger, testified in his own behalf Wednesday, denying that he had used his stick to injure Henry Boucha of the Minnesota North Stars last Jan. 4.

But Forbes denied any intent to use the stick as a weapon and denied using the butt end as a spear, causing a serious eye injury to Boucha.

The defense rested after Forbes' testimony.

He is the first professional athlete to face criminal charges in the United States from an incident occurring during a sports contest.

Forbes was charged with aggravated assault with a dangerous weapon. The alleged weapon, his hockey stick, was the focal point of Wednesday's closing testimony.

Rain Halts Play

Once again, the rains washed out athletic activities around Greenville yesterday and succeeded in washing out just about everything.

The District VI Babe Ruth Tournaments, in their final games, were drowned and were to have been played today beginning at 2 p.m. with Greenville's 13-year old stars meeting Pitt County. The second game was to match Pitt County with Greenville's 14-15 stars. If a second game was needed in the 13-bracket it would be played at six and if a second game was needed for the 14-15 group, it is scheduled for 8:00.

The scheduled summer league game between ECU and Lenoir County was called and will be played tonight at Harrington field.

All Recreation softball activity was cancelled. The Ladies League games will be made up Friday night but no date has been set for making up the Men's All-Star games postponed last night.

Wake's Strange Is Tied With Four Other Golfers

PINEHURST, N. C. (AP) — Unless someone in the record field of 260 breaks loose from the pack with a super score in today's second round of the Southern Amateur golf tournament tonight's 36-hole cut will amount to little more than minor surgery.

After Wednesday's first round of the 72-hole tournament five men shared the lead at 71, one under par. Six others trailed by only one stroke; five more were in at 73; nine were at 74; and 10 at 75.

The halfway cut will leave the top 60 and ties and anyone within 10 shots of the lead for the two final days. The 10-shot feature is the catch.

As play began today 164 players, over 63 per cent of the field, were within the 10-stroke cutoff point.

The most likely candidate to shake up the tournament was Curtis Strange of Virginia Beach, Va., and Wake Forest University. The Walker Cup player starts play this afternoon as one of the five tied for the lead.

He scored his 71 over the No. 5 course of the Pinehurst Country Club, a 6,946-yarder. Today he moved to the 7,051-yard No. 2 course. It was there that the 1974 national collegiate champion won the North and South Amateur title last May with a series of sub-par rounds in match play.

He had only one bogey Tuesday in gaining a share of the lead. Locked with him were Tim Saylor, another Wake Forest player, from East Bend, N. C., and Charles Lynch of Winston-Salem, N. C., who both played the No. 2 course.

Also tied for the lead were Tom Mikell of Tampa, Fla., and Bill Sibbick of Martinsville, Va., and the University of North Carolina.

Mike Taylor of Meridian, Miss., was one of six who were one shot back at 72. A double bogey five on the 15th hole of the No. 2 course cost him a 70 that would have meant first place.

He was tied with Phil Hancock of Greenville, Ala., and the University of Florida; Joe Hager of Dallas, Tex.; Bill Hamilton of Raleigh, N. C.; Mickey Van Gerbig of Palm Beach, Fla.; and Larry Rinker of Stuart, Fla.

Hancock, a coaches All-America selection, eagled the par four 8th hole of the No. 5 course when he holed out a wedge shot of about 80 yards.

Rinker's back nine on the No. 2 course started with three bogeys, then came three pars, followed by three birdies.

British Amateur champion Vinny Giles of Richmond, Va., opened with 74, best score of five former Southern champions in the field. Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N. C., shot 76; defending champion Danny Yates of Atlanta shot 77; and Dale Morey of High Point, N. C., and Charlie Harrison of Atlanta each carded 78.

Allison Moving Back To Alabama

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Race-car driver Donnie Allison says he is giving up his position as head driver and president of a racing firm and returning to Alabama.

Allison said Wednesday that the move of his three-year-old Di-Gard Racing firm to Daytona Beach was a flop.

"It proved to be a very expensive experiment that did not work either quickly or efficiently enough for our satisfaction," Allison said in a prepared statement.

He said he has disassociated himself from the firm and will return to his former base in Hueytown, Ala.

Allison, who served as president of Di-Gard, blamed his recent lack of success on the National Association For Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) Grand National circuit on problems caused by the move from Hueytown to Daytona Beach last year.

He said Di-Gard had difficulties in trying to set up a new operating headquarters and smooth-working team of mechanics, pit crew and equipment.

The 35-year-old driver has not won a NASCAR Grand National event since 1971.

A report that he was out as Di-Gard's driver first came last week from Jim Gardner, brother of Di-Gard owner Bill Gardner.

But Bill Gardner denied the report, saying, "I have not fired him. Everything is still up in the air. We're still discussing what it will take to produce a winner."

The reassessment followed Allison's fifth place finish in the Firecracker 400 stock car race at Daytona International Speedway on July 4. He had won the pole position for the race but never challenged for the lead after losing the top spot on the first lap.

Allison said he hasn't found a new sponsor, but that he has been offered rides in both Grand National and sportsman events. He said he plans to run in a charity event Friday at Birmingham, Ala., International Speedway.

Allison's brother, driver Bobby Allison, also makes his home in Hueytown.

Spitz Wants To Come Out Of Retirement

CALLI, Colombia, (AP) — The biggest attraction at the World Aquatic Championships is an out-of-shape man of 25 who hasn't swum competitively in three years.

He's Mark Spitz, glamour boy of the 1972 Olympics, and he thinks he should have the chance to swim competitively again.

"I think it's a farce," Spitz said while being engulfed by a crowd of admirers Wednesday. "I never earned a penny from any swimming competition. I shouldn't be considered a professional. I should have the chance to swim again."

Spitz, who turned the Olympic pool at Munich into his private swimming hole with seven gold medals and seven world records three years ago, isn't really going to turn "in" his yatching cap and life of leisure for the gut-wrenching grind of competitive swimming, but he thinks he should have the opportunity.

"Don't get me wrong," said Spitz, who still holds two individual butterfly records from his fabulous fortnight in Munich. "I wouldn't get back into it. I had the most fulfilling swimming career possible. It had a beginning, middle and a fabulous end."

"I met all my goals at Munich, and got the hell out."

Some people stick around too long. But I went out on the very top. No one can take that away from me.

"But that doesn't make the AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) rules right. Even if I wasn't successful at Munich, I was going to retire. But that was my decision. Unretiring should be my decision too."

Petty Getting Closer To Mark

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Richard Petty can get within $4,687 of $2 million in career earnings by winning the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing Nashville 420 Saturday night.

Among active drivers, only

A.J. Foyt has more—$2.5 million.

Petty, who has won here eight times previously during his 17-year career, has career earnings of $1,989,828. A victory Saturday will earn him $5,485.

Regardless of his finish here, the 38-year-old Petty probably will top $2 million at the Pulator 500 in Long Pond, Pa., Aug. 3.

Petty is the favorite Saturday, especially since David Pearson, Buddy Baker and Bobby Allison are not competing.

Petty's stiffest competition is expected from Cale Yarborough, who won the race last year amid a dispute with Allison over laps completed, and local favorite Darrell Waltrip, who copped the companion Music City 420 in May for his first Grand National victory.

Petty, who has won 172 Grand National races, finished seventh here in May after encountering carburetor trouble. Benny Parsons was second and Coo Coo Marlin third.

Thirty-eight cars will seek the 30 starting spots. Qualifying for the first 10 spots will be Friday night, with the rest of the field to be filled Saturday afternoon.

Total purse is just under $41,000. The Nashville 420, along with the Music City 420, are the only night races on the Grand National circuit.

A crowd of 20,000 is expected at the five-eight-hundred Nashville Speedway.

AL Goes Gambling, Gets Mixed Results

By The Associated Press Baseball's open market — the preseason trading flurry — is a little like shooting craps in Las Vegas. "C'mon seven ... snake-eyes!"

Take the American League, for example.

The Detroit Tigers and the Cleveland Indians took their turn at the table and the dice came up snake-eyes.

The Oakland A's took their roll and, lo and behold, lucky seven.

Like Vegas, Monte Carlo or the racetrack, some clubs came out ahead and others were big losers. But those who played it right, played it carefully, came out about even or slightly ahead — the Boston Red Sox, Milwaukee Brewers, New York Yankees and Baltimore Orioles.

The Tigers wound up the 1974 season in last place in the AL Eastern Division and went to the trading block with gusto. They're still last in their division.

They dealt pitcher Woody Fryman to Montreal of the National League for catcher Terry Humphrey and pitcher Tom Walker. Humphrey, who's now out with a shoulder injury, has played in only 10 games and Walker has a 3-6 record. On the other hand, Fryman is 7-6 for the Expos with a respectable 3.07 earned run average.

Detroit also began Ed Brinkman's winding route to the Yankees by trading the shortstop to St. Louis through San Diego and getting first baseman Nate Colbert. Colbert, hitting around .150 and headed for what appeared to be a team strikout record, then was sold to Montreal.

Cleveland, one game ahead of the Tigers at the All Star break, was in the market for fresh pitching, and they couldn't have started out worse. They gave up pitchers Jim Perry and Dick Bosman to Oakland for Blue Moon Odom, who wanted nothing to do with the Tribe. Finally Odom was traded to Atlanta for Roric Harrison, 4-2 with a 4.10 ERA.

In all, the Indians traded for pitchers Harrison, Jim Bibby, Jackie Brown, Don Hood and Dave LaRoche, "virtually our entire pitching staff," a spokesman said. But in the Hood deal, the Indians also got first baseman Boog Powell from the Baltimore Orioles, and that hasn't disappointed them.

Besides getting Jim Perry, 3-1 with Oakland, and Dick Bosman, 6-1 with the A's, from Cleveland, the Western Division leaders picked up pitchers Stan Bahnsen from the Chicago White Sox and Sonny Siebert from San Diego.

But the A's most significant trade may have been the one for designated hitter Billy Williams, which sent to the Chicago Cubs infielder Manny Trillo and relievers Bob Locker and Darold Knowles.

Williams has been in all but one of Oakland's games, has 44 RBI and 12 home runs.

The Red Sox, whose inexplicable slide at the end of last season dropped them from first to third in the AL East, stayed out of the market this year, making only a minor deal that sent veteran Tommy Harper — and his big salary — to California for utility man Bob Heise. And the Red Sox are back in first.

Milwaukee's most notable trade, of course, was the one that brought Hank Aaron back to County Stadium from Atlanta for Dave May who had an abysmal 1973-74 season for the Brewers and now is a Braves' backup.

The most even-up trade in the majors involved the Yankees, who went to the NL's San Francisco Giants to get Bobby Bonds for Bobby Murcer — All-Star for All-Star. Bonds is hitting only .238 but has 47 RBI, 20 homers and 16 stolen bases. Murcer is hitting .307 with 51 RBI and 10 homers.

Besides Bonds and Brinkman, the Yanks also got reserve catcher Ed Herrmann from the White Sox and outfielder Rich Coggins from the Expos on waivers.

Coggins came to the Yanks by way of Montreal. He started out the season with the Orioles, who unloaded Coggins, pitcher Daye McNally and minor leaguer Bill Kirkpatrick to the Expos for pitcher Mike Torrez and Ken Singleton in what turned out to be one of the most disastrous trades the NL made with the junior circuit.

Torrez is 9-5 with the Orioles and Manager Earl Weaver says he "should have a better record, but he's been the unfortunate guy with the bullpen letting a couple of games get away from him."

Singleton leads the club with a .298 batting average, 64 walks, and he has 24 RBI.

Montreal waived Coggins, McNally retired and Kirkpatrick is still a minor leaguer.

The California Angels only had one trade of note — the one with Boston — but it was a good one for them. Harper, the No. 3 base stealer among active players when the season began, is credited by the Angels with developing the club's strongest trait — its speed.

He's been coaching Mickey Rivers, Jerry Remy, Morris Nettles and Dave Collins with their baserunning. Rivers has 46 stolen bases, Remy 22, Nettles 22, Collins 11 in just one month with the Angels, and Harper has 17 himself.

Harper also is challenging for leading designated hitter honors with a .272 average.

Texas is the only other AL club that has done a significant amount of trading, sending Bibby and Brown to Cleveland for the other pitching Perry, Gaylord. The maneuver hasn't turned out particularly well for either club. Gaylord is 1-5 with the Rangers. Bibby is 4-9 and Brown 0-1 with a 5.25 ERA for Cleveland.

Minnesota's only trade sent Bobby Darwin to Milwaukee for John Briggs, and, once again, the Brewers got the best of that one. Briggs has only one hit in his last 25 at bats, while Darwin has 10 homers and 28 RBI.

Kansas City was involved in no major trades but picked up Harmon Killebrew after the Twins waived him. Killebrew is hitting only .210 but has 10 homers and 33 RBI.

Attendance Soaring To New Heights

By The Associated Press Baseball owners are literally throwing money away this season in an all-out effort to lure fans into ballparks.

Along with such conventional gimmicks as bat, ball and glove days, there are such things as a "cash scramble" in Cleveland, a pass to Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif., and a free car in Los Angeles.

The result has been a grand slam in attendance.

The 24 major league clubs have attracted 16,817,710 paying customers, a leap of 4.8 per cent and 800,000 persons for the same number of games at this point in 1974. If the trend continues in the second half of the season, the result would be a record attendance figure of 31 million in the major leagues.

With the help of that unique "cash scramble" brainchild, the Cleveland Indians have boosted attendance from 500,298 last year to 670,531 this season.

The Indians throw $2,000 on the field and turn some Designated Fans loose for 90 seconds, allowing them to keep all the money they can find. The Indians also have offered their fans fireworks displays and tight rope walkers along with such old standbys as bat night, beer night, stocking cap night, jacket day, camera day, jersey day and an oldtimers day.

nearly 100,000 over last year's 600,000 crowd figure at the All-Star break, are the ones giving away a pass to Disneyland. The Angels' promotion include a package where ticket purchasers get admission to the ballpark along with free rides to all Disneyland attractions after the game.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, perennial leaders in the attendance game, have drawn 1.5 million fans into their park — nearly 200,000 over last year — and threaten to crack the golden $3 million plateau this season. One of the big reasons they've been so successful through the years is their promotional campaign. The Dodgers, among other things, hold a fan appreciation day on which thousands of prizes are given away — including an automobile.

Along with the Indians and the Angels, most every other team in the American League has shown an increase in attendance this year. The New York Yankees and Milwaukee Brewers display the most noticeable increases — the Brewers moving ahead 220,658 to 771,661 and the Yankees shooting up 252,455 to 739,320.

Only the Texas Rangers, Chicago White Sox, Kansas City Royals and Detroit Tigers have dropped in attendance — the White Sox showing the most dramatic decrease of 203,421.

In the National League, the Cincinnati Reds follow the Dodgers in attendance with a figure of 1.2 million. The Dodgers-Reds attendance wallop has given the National League West the highest crowd figure of any division in baseball and has helped improve its over-all figure 3.1 per cent over last season. The Philadelphia Phillies are the only ones to have cracked the million mark so far in the NL East.

The Atlanta Braves are the NL's biggest losers, down 194,612 fans from last year.

Seeded Players Take Victories

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The top three seeds and unseeded Scott Wallace of Columbus, Ohio, easily won quarterfinal matches Wednesday in the Southern Boys 12-14 Tennis Championships.

Top-seeded Ben Testerman of Knoxville defeated Joshua Sarnier of Philadelphia 6-1, 6-2. Second-seeded Bruce Brescia of River Forest, Ill., toppled Allen Miller of Tucker, Ga., 6-2, 6-1. Third-seeded Will White of Columbus, Ga., downed Mark Mees of Zanesville, Ohio, 6-1, 6-4.

Testerman faces Wallace and Brescia meets White in Thursday's semifinals.

In the 12 division, top-seeded Doug Maynard of Asheville,

N.C. was upset by Eric Korita of Chicago, 6-1, 2-6, 6-4.

Second seeded Tim Clark of Louisville dumped Todd Witsken of Carmel, Ind., 6-3, 2-6, 6-4. Third seeded Kevin Campbell of Lakeland, Fla., beat Chris Harbuck of Shreveport, La., 6-2, 6-3, and fifth-seeded Miller, also playing in the 12s, beat Derek Weiss of Louisville, 6-2, 6-2.

Says Thompson Can't Save ABA

NEW YORK (AP) — "Totally unrealistic," millionaire Lamar Hunt said of the dizzying money boom in big time sports.

"David Thompson can't save the ABA," he added, referring to the $3 million contract reportedly given to te rookie from North Carolina State by the Denver Nuggets of the American Basketball Association.

"Thompson is a fine player — everybody concedes that — but he is only one man. To survive the ABA must move into the big city arenas and create spotlight competition.

"Frankly, I don't see how the World Football League and World Team Tennis can overcome their big contracts."

Hunt is the young heir to a Texas oil fortune whose wealth helped the old American Football League gain recognition and finally a merger with the National Football League. He owns the NFL Kansas City Chiefs, has an interest in the Dallas Tornado of the North American Soccer League and bankrolls World Championship Tennis, the international court road show.

He was in New York Wednesday to complete a $1 million deal with Spalding, the sporting goods manufacturer, putting the WCT emblem on a line of tennis equipment and attire.

Examining the whole broad spectrum of sports, with mushrooming franchises, million-dollar bonuses and escalating salaries, Hunt said there must be a breaking point.

"There is a lack of reality in Pele's soccer contract with New York. I can hardly believe the $4 to $7 million. It must involve movies and other things. Soccer cannot afford three or four Peles. How many Catfish Hunters, Bobby Orrs and David Thompsons can sports afford, anyhow?"

Court Hears More Testimony On Rule

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A one-time pro football player turned economist has testified in court that athletes are restricted in effect to bargaining with one team.

"The Rozelle Rule restricts the player's ability to become a true free agent," Dr. George Burman said in U.S. District Court Wednesday.

Burman was the second economist called as a rebuttal witness by plaintiffs who sued the National Football League, Commissioner Pete Rozelle and club owners.

The 15 current or former players claim the rule infringes on their ability to move as free agents, cripples their earning power and violates the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Burman is an assistant professor of economics at Carnegie-Mellon University at Pittsburgh, Pa. He played football at Northwestern University, was a 15th round draft choice of the Chicago Bears in 1964 and played with Los Angeles and Washington as reserve center and offensive lineman before retiring two years ago.

Meantime, he earned a doctorate degree at the University of Chicago, with a major in labor economics.

Burman said he never played out an option year as a pro, but testified that his experience as a player and labor economist qualified him to air views on the Rozelle Rule and other NFL regulations.

Also called the Option Compensation Rule, it lays down the steps by which a player may become a free agent. After playing the club's option year — if the player elects not to sign a contract — he becomes a free agent the next May 1st. The club can require him to take a 10 per cent pay cut for the year without a pact.

If he's successful in signing with another club, the club losing his services must be compensated, and in event the two teams involved don't agree, the commissioner dictates terms. That usually includes a draft pick or player(s).

Burman said the Rozelle Rule "gives a team monopoly power over the supply of football players," meaning there's one buyer (owner) and many sellers (players). Asked what effect elimination of the rule would have on football as an "industry," Burman asserted: "It would be zero." But he said player salaries would go up.

Burman said a troubled franchise might exchange hands through bankruptcy but believed the game is profit-oriented and owners would find suitable ways to "maximize their profits."

Connors Was Playing Hurt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fidgety Jimmy Connors won't work out for a while as doctors try to decide how best to treat an injury that slowed the acknowledged king of men's tennis during the recent Wimbledon championships.

A UCLA orthopedic surgeon confirmed Wednesday that Connors was suffering from a painful injury in his lower right leg when he lost the Wimbledon singles title to Arthur Ashe. And Connors' personal physician said Connors would be idle, although itching to play, while the injury was being watched.

Dr. Andrea Cracchiolo, the orthopedic specialist, said Connors' problem was a chronic anterior compartment syndrome, "which can cause from moderate pain to such severe pain and swelling that surgery is required."

Later, Dr. Earl Woods said the injury "was diagnosed in London. I confirmed it and then so did Dr. Cracchiolo. They (doctors in London) felt surgery was going to be necessary and of course that was frightening. We are making all the tests and we plan to treat it symptomatically.

"That means not even a cast at this time, just rest." He said Connors would see Dr. Cracchiolo Friday when a further examination would determine the next course of action. Cracchiolo said the injury probably occurred "at the beginning of Wimbledon and got progressively worse during the week. He was on some medication during the finals, but I think it had to affect him. If he had won, I don't think we would have heard about it."

Connors conferred with Woods at the Beverly Hills Tennis Club, where he usually works out, but declined to discuss the injury. He left without picking up his racquet.

Cracchiolo said Connors "didn't want anybody to know about this. But it probably affected him a half step and I think he's a tough kid not to mention it."

Halas In Good Condition

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Bears' owner George Halas, 80, was reported in "very good" condition after undergoing a hernia operation.

A spokesman for Northwestern Memorial Hospital said Wednesday night the founder and longtime coach of the National Football League team probably would go home in a few days.

A New Schweitzer Hospital Under Construction

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH
LIBREVILLE, Gabon (UPI) — Ten years after Albert Schweitzer's death, work has begun on replacing his famous hospital in the equatorial forest of Gabon.

"I hope we can start building this year," said Dr. Holm Habicht, the young Bavarian surgeon who became the hospital's head physician six months ago. "But we're running behind in funds and nothing is sure."

The hospital director, Max Caulet, left in January for a world tour to raise funds. There is no solid report yet on his results and Habicht admitted, "This is perhaps not the best year to ask people for money."

Schweitzer arrived in Africa from Germany in 1913 to set up his hospital beside the Ogooue River at Lambarene, southeast of the capital city. Over the next 52 years, he became the world's most famous medical missionary as he worked to bring modern medicine to Africans without jarring their tribal traditions and habits.

But by the time Schweitzer died at 90 in 1965, the hospital already was beginning to run down. Even his longtime supporters acknowledge that the doctor-philosopher in his old age was not equipped either to keep up with the new demands of medicine or with the African nationalism and independence movements that made his paternalistic beliefs outdated.

Almost from the moment of his death, his successors began talking about the need for a new hospital. The Gabon government, never militantly anti-white, made no attempt to take over the old hospital and promised to give money toward the new hospital when construction finally began.

"The administration after Schweitzer's death was not very dynamic and many people thought the hospital would die," said Paul-Emile Simon, a Haitian architect who designed the new hospital complex. The hospital continued to run down, he said, to the point where some of the old buildings are past saving and will be torn down when the new hospital is built.

A cornerstone for the new hospital finally was laid in January and Caulet set out on his fund-raising tour. No construction has taken place since then.

Simon said the new hospital will cost about $15 million. He hopes construction could begin when about $3 million is collected and the hospital completed two years after that.

The present hospital sprawls beside the river and some of it will be renovated. The new hospital will be built behind it, in an area now covered by trees. It will have 150 rooms spread over separate one-story maternity, children's and internal medicine buildings. There will be a central clinic, a surgery building with three operating theaters, two post-operative buildings and—a sign of the changes since 1913—a garage for 10 cars. Simon admitted that $15 million is a lot of money for a jungle hospital. But he said Schweitzer never bothered with a telephone, modern sewage or electricity plant or other items of "infrastructure"—a category that alone will cost $2.5 million. "The old system is simply incompatible with the modern equipment we will have," he said.

"Schweitzer himself did not know how to go about this, so others are doing it for him. We hope to keep the valuable spirit of the old hospital."

A key to this is two other new buildings to be built, homes for patients' relatives. Schweitzer always housed and fed these relatives who, in the African tradition, came to the hospital with the patients.

Habicht thinks Schweitzer would approve.

He denied reports of rivalry between himself and the various Schweitzer committees, mostly aging Schweitzer fans around the world. But he acknowledged that the hospital is having a hard time now even meeting its $1,700 daily operating costs.

"We don't have political or personal problems," he said. "Just financial ones."

Most patients are treated free. A few more prosperous ones are charged, and their fees pay eight per cent of the running costs. The rest comes from the Schweitzer committees, especially in Germany and Switzerland.

Habicht said he expects the government to take over the Schweitzer Hospital some day, in the distant future. At the moment, he said, there are only 60 doctors in all Gabon and the Schweitzer Hospital fills a major need.

The hospital now takes care of 25,000 patients per year, not only in its central medical facilities but in a separate leper colony and psychiatric ward.

Boy Combatting His Afflictions

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Jeff Meyer looks like any 15-year-old out riding a bicycle with his father. Recently he pedaled 150 miles on winding roads in two days.

But Jeff is blind and has epilepsy.

While bicycle riding, his father blows a whistle to guide the husky youngster along the right-of-way and out of danger.

When Jeff was 2, his parents, William and Peggy Meyer, were told at UCLA's Neurological Center that their only child was blind and had paralysis and epilepsy.

"The neurologist told us that Jeff would never be much more than a vegetable," said Meyer, an attorney. "But my wife showed courage you would never believe. She said she would never consent, never, that she would find a way, that our son would be helped."

In an interview, Mrs. Meyer said she was determined "there was no need for tears, or guilty or self-defensive feelings."

The Meyers moved to Chicago, where Jeff was enrolled in a Doman-Delacato patterning method class, with manipulated exercises designed to reproduce normal activity.

Five volunteers worked with Jeff four times a day for months, and he overcame the paralysis.

The epileptic seizures of the grand mal type began when he was 6, but oral medicine taken three times a day has reduced them.

Jeff will enter Mission Bay High School in September, but he refuses to wear identification tags that spell out his afflictions.

"His attitude is excellent," says his father. "He wants to be self-sufficient. He's going to be."

Limit Required In Inside Lane

RALEIGH — A new law enacted by the 1975 General Assembly requires motorists driving in the left or inside lane of a dual lane highway to drive at the posted speed limit.

"The new law," says Colonel E. W. Jones, Patrol Commander, "requires motorists driving in the left lane where the posted speed limit is 55 m.p.h., for example, to maintain 55 insofar as is practicable or except when preparing for a left turn."

"The new legislation reaffirms the slower traffic keep right rule," he said, "and clarifies a situation that has been somewhat of a problem." He added that the Division of Highways of the Department of Transportation will erect appropriate signs and as soon as highways are posted, compliance on the part of all motorists will be required.

He said the new law should be an asset to the Patrol's traffic safety endeavors by providing for an orderly flow of traffic and it should aid in the conservation of energy.

Correspondence Course At ECU

East Carolina University will be one of five University of North Carolina institutions offering correspondence instruction this fall in order to expand the college opportunities of North Carolina citizens.

The courses, officially called Independent Study by Extension, will allow persons to learn using cassette tapes, television, lab kits, newspapers and directed learning contracts.

Although the program is still being planned, it is expected to go into operation sometime in the latter part of September.

Enough Food To Feed Extra Tot

MIAMI (AP) — "We're in a financial tight ourselves, but all I could think of was we throw away enough food to feed another child," says a black couple of their adoption of a Vietnamese youngster.

Ed and Sylvia Tucker said they became interested in adopting a Vietnamese child several months ago after watching a news program about the deteriorating situation in Southeast Asia.

"It was awful — those poor babies," Mrs. Tucker said Wednesday. "And then we saw the little black faces. One scene showed a Viet Cong with a child hanging from a stick."

"My husband watched with tears in his eyes. I knew it was the children fathered by Americans who would suffer more if they had to remain there — especially children who had black fathers."

She said the next day she applied for a black Vietnamese child.

Officials at the Catholic Service Bureau said few blacks have made similar moves.

"One problem is that we live in a white society and many blacks feel they will be turned down," said Elizabeth Manning, adoption-foster care supervisor.

"Then, too, there's the financial side. A lot of blacks feel that adoption is simply out of their financial range. But we waive fees in some situations."

The Tuckers, who already had a 3-year-old daughter, Tifphanie, but felt they couldn't afford another pregnancy, said they were first told they would need at least $725 to adopt a Vietnamese youngster.

"I said, 'Hey man, I can't afford that,'" said Tucker, a chef. "Later, we were told to worry only about the $25 immigration fee."

Three weeks later, the Tuckers had their new son, Kahseim. The black 3-year-old's new name means "wise person."

Now, Kahseim is learning a new language, learning to eat new foods and trying to get along with a new puppy.

"At first, we were so strange to him," Mrs. Tucker said. "I don't think he had ever seen a black person before. The first night, he cried all night."

Hike Asked By CP&L

RALEIGH (AP)—Pointing to rapidly escalating costs, Carolina Power & Light Co. Wednesday asked the North Carolina Utilities Commission for a 22 per cent rate hike. If granted in full, the hike would boost CP&L's revenues by $82 million a year.

The power bill of a typical customer using 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity a month would rise from $30.13 to $37.12.

CP&L Executive Vice President Sherwood H. Smith Jr. said that since the company does not expect the Utilities Commission to act on its request before Jan. 1, it is asking for an interim rate increase of 12 per cent to be effective Aug. 15. The interim increase would be collected subject to refund with interest if the increase is not granted.

Smith told reporters at a news conference that CP&L had no general rate increases prior to 1969 but there have been four since. He said that if the increase is granted as requested the rates of a residential customer would have risen more than 100 per cent since 1969.

Smith said the company plans to request a similar rate increase in South Carolina within 30 days.

'Cockpit Talk' Suspected Basis Of Jetliner Crash

Grant For Continuing ECU Aquatic Research

A grant of $3,588 has been awarded the East Carolina University Department of Biology to continue aquatic research begun last summer in Dare and Currituck Counties. The research involves last summer's herbicide treatment of Eurasian watermilfoil, a noxious aquatic weed which infests the Currituck-Albemarle Sound area. The weed spreads thickly and rapidly over thousands of acres in North Carolina's northeastern waterways, and clogs the water surface, adversely affecting fishing, boating, swimming and other water-related activities. Last summer's herbicide treatment was carried out by the N.C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources and the U.S. Corps of Engineers, who applied the herbicide 2, 4-D by helicopter in Kitty Hawk Bay and other selected areas. Excellent localized control of the weed resulted, said ECU faculty biologist Graham Davis. ECU biology graduate students Kurt Getsinger of Chapel Hill and Tony Hall of Elizabethtown are working with Dr. Davis and Dr. Mark Brinson on the watermilfoil project. The ECU team is primarily concerned with observing environmental changes in the treatment areas. Immediately after application last year, they discovered that the herbicide treatment caused decreased growth in desirable duck food plants, contrary to reports from other regions after similar experiments. Although not a specific aspect of their study, the ECU researchers reported that no harmful effects on fish in the treated areas were apparent. Presumably, 2, 4-D rapidly disappears from the water after application.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Casual cockpit talk that ranged from politics to used cars probably led to the fatal crash of an Eastern Airlines jet at Charlotte, N. C., last Sept. 11, the National Transportation Safety Board says.

"The safety board believes that these conversations were distracting and reflected a casual mood and lax cockpit atmosphere which continued through the remainder of the approach and which contributed to the accident," the board said Wednesday.

The conversations covered a 15-minute period before the crash and were discovered on the voice recorder recovered from the wreckage of the plane.

The crash killed 69 of the 82 persons aboard the DC9-31 when it slammed into trees more than three miles from the end of the Douglas Municipal Airport runway and two survivors subsequently died of crash injuries.

Co-pilot James M. Daniels Jr., 36, contacted after the board report was issued said he would not comment until he had read it.

The captain, James E. Reeves, was killed in the crash; Daniels suffered severe impact injuries to both legs and minor body lacerations.

The plane was to make an intermediate stop at Charlotte on a flight from Charleston, S.C. to Chicago.

The board's investigation showed that an altitude warning horn, signaling that the plane was 1,000 feet above the ground, sounded before the crash occurred but the pilots apparently disregarded it.

The safety board said the crash probably occurred because of the "flight crew's lack of altitude awareness at critical points during the approach due to poor cockpit discipline in that the crew did not follow prescribed procedures."

The board said testimony from other pilots showed that the crew's disregard of the warning signal "may be indicative of the attitudes of many other pilots who regard the signal as 'more of a nuisance than a warning.'"

Will Preach At Sunday Service

The Rev. Tyrone Turnage will preach at Mt. Calvary FWB Church Sunday at 11 a.m. Music will be presented by Choir No. Five and the pianist is Mrs. Felton.

The Rev. Turnage, Rev. W.H. Joyner and Rev. Jimmy Dixon will preach the trinity service at Crisp Chapel, located near Macclesfield, Sunday at 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend the services.

The last transmission received from the flight was the acknowledgement from the captain that the plane had been cleared to land.

However, the cockpit voice recorder showed the captain then said to the co-pilot, "Yeah, we're all reads. All we got to do is find the airport."

The safety board noted that "visibility (was) restricted by patchy dense ground fog" at the airport.

The safety board said the captain failed to make the required callouts of altitude and airspeed when the plane crossed an intersection near the airport.

And it said he also failed to make the required callout when the plane descended through 500 feet above airport elevation and when it passed through 100 feet above the minimum descent altitude.

Leaf Prices Were Steady

FARMVILLE—Prices on the Farmville Tobacco Market were steady yesterday as compared with opening day.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville market, the top price paid yesterday for a few piles of cutters was $1.01 per pound. Several piles of primings sold for as high as 99 cents per pound.

"The quality yesterday was slightly better than it was on Tuesday," Williams said. "Sales consisted of more quality primings and less nondescript grades."

The volume was lighter yesterday than on opening day and primings accounted for approximately 75 percent of sales.

The market sold 332,110 pounds of leaf for $283,675, yielding an average of $85.47 per hundred pounds. Yesterday's average was $4 per hundred pounds higher than the average on the same sales day last year.

Dr. Davis At Ecology Session

Dr. Graham J. Davis of the East Carolina University Department of Biology is attending a three-week institute in applied ecology at Oak Ridge.

The program, sponsored by the Special Training Division of Oak Ridge Associated Universities, will emphasize environmental modeling, a valuable technique in predicting the effect of proposed environmental changes upon the ecology of a region.

Participating scientists at the institute will study the process of collection and evaluation of field samples for assessing the quality of an environment.

Church Services Through Week

SIMPSON—The New Life Holiness Church will continue services through this week. Saturday night Missionary M. B. Beaumont will speak and the Gospel Tunes will accompany her at the service. Other groups will be there to provide music.

On Sunday, Elder Andrew Smith of Grimesland will speak at 12:00 noon. Sunday evening, a gospel concert will be there at 7:00 p.m. which will include a gospel soul train. Barbecue plates will be sold to raise money for the building fund. The price is $1.25 and the public is invited.

Hosting Gospel Sing Saturday

The Carson Memorial Pentecostal Holiness Church will host a gospel sing Saturday beginning at 7:30 p.m.

A bake sell featuring cakes, cookies, and candy will begin at 5:30 at the church.

Featured groups on the singing program will be the Greenleaf Trio from the Greenleaf Pentecostal Holiness Church, Goldsboro, and the Friendly Holiness Singers from the Friendly Holiness Church, Goldsboro.

The pastor extends an invitation to the public to attend. The new pastor of the Carson Memorial Pentecostal Holiness Church is Rev. Calvin W. Seymour from Snow Hill.

Life in His Hands

The tiny, newborn girl is barely a handful—but the strong hands of Airman 1.C. John McCarney are there, more than capable of helping her through her first precarious days of life in a nursery at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines.

The baby girl came into the world weeks before her time, weighing less than three pounds. Today's life-sustaining incubators and advanced techniques of treatment can save such premature infants, given the devoted hands to apply the techniques.

The hands of Airman McCarney, who is from North Hollywood, Calif., were once more used to grappling a football: a six-foot five, 230-pound athlete, he went on a football scholarship for a year to the University of Oregon. That didn't satisfy him, however. Now he's found something that does, something that calls for tenderness and skill as well as the strength of those hands—his work as a trained medical technician, helping to save small lives.

No Soviet Film For Space Show

Former 'Tarzan' Recalls Serial Days

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Public TV, which hasn't joined its commercial cousins in covering the Apollo-Soyuz flight, jumps into the space pool tonight with a two-hour examination of what space technology has achieved. Called "Space for Man?" half the show is an American project, with discussions of space programs by such experts as Sen. John H. Glenn Jr., D-Ohio, the first American to orbit the earth.

The other half is a unique international effort consisting of film reports from at least 20 countries on how space research has helped man on earth and what space projects the future may bring. This segment was coproduced by America's National Public Affairs Renter for Television — NPACT — the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. — CBC — and the European Broadcasting Union — EBU.

Russia, which on Tuesday broadcast live TV coverage of its Soyuz launch to the world, was to have contributed to the program.

"But that now appears a very dim possibility," says NPACT's Al Vecchione, executive producer of NPACT's segments in the show.

The reason: No Soviet film has been sent in yet. It seems odd, considering Russia's unprecedented live TV coverage of one of its space shots and its rare help to newsmen before

Will Preach At Sunday Service

The Rev. Tyrone Turner will preach at Burney's Chapel FWB Church Sunday at 6 p.m. Music will be provided by the Gospel Chimes of Greenville. The annual men's day program will be held July 27.

and during the Soyuz flight. Vecchione, who said the international segment of tonight's show will be distributed to 23 countries, said he initially had set aside 15 minutes for the Russian portion of the show.

Now, he added, that appears out and the international segment, originally planned for 75 minutes, probably will be shaved to 60 minutes and the NPACT discussion segment increased from 45 minutes to an hour.

In other space matters, ABC, NBC and CBS say they aren't planning live TV coverage of the Friday afternoon press conference the Apollo and Soyuz crews will hold in space. They'll tape it for their regular evening news shows.

However, ABC says it's still planning live coverage of the crews' farewell ceremonies from 4:30 to 5 p.m. EDT; NBC and CBS say they'll videotape that for their evening news programs.

One recurring fault in the play of the hand is for declarer to consider only the losers in his own hand and neglect to check on the losers in dummy. That can be an expensive habit.

North-South bid well to reach the grand slam. North agreed to the trump suit at his first turn, then cue-bid the ace of hearts in response to his partner's diamond cue-bid. When South next cue-bid clubs, North took the opportunity to show second-round diamond control, and South decided to gamble that he would not lose a diamond trick, knowing that the grand slam would depend, at worst, on a finesse in that suit.

West led a high club, declarer ruffed and drew trumps. Had the spades split

WINTER HOME FOR OLD BARTER THEATER

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Several decades of exploratory negotiations have ended with a permanent winter home at the Chrysler Museum here for the Barter Theater, the state theater of Virginia at Abingdon.

The Tidewater area frequently had been mentioned as a possible winter home for the professional theater.

The announcement was made jointly Wednesday by Walter P. Chrysler, museum president, and Rex Partington, Barter's producing director.

Prominent at the announcement ceremonies was Alan J. Hofheimer, chairman of a 50-member board which has agreed to raise the $50,000 needed for the first season.

"This money is needed only for the first season in order to establish the theater here," Hofheimer emphasized. "We do not plan to have to go to the public each year in such a drive. There is every indication that every member of our board is eager and willing to meet a quota in the upcoming drive for funds."

Chrysler said, "We look toward an audience that will draw from Williamsburg to as far south as Elizabeth City and beyond. It is certainly high time that Norfolk, the largest populated city in the state, should have the best theater the state can provide."

The theater is scheduled to present its first show here in January. Each show of the four- or five-show season will run from three to four weeks.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JULY 18, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: As long as you don't try to force anything of a romantic nature or where entertainment is concerned, you now have an excellent day and evening to go after what you want in a direct manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Once your work is done, get out to new sites with interesting persons and have a good time, investigate new outlets.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improve diet and feel better; forget social amenities awhile. Handle practical affairs. Be more objective in discussions with others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Give immediate attention now to any association matters. Listen to what partners have to say. Take care of prestigious civic matter.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can accomplish much today; be more cooperative with fellow workers. Take better care of your health. Aid a deserving person.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get into recreations that are uplifting now, but don't pick on others. Turn a new acquaintance into a good friend easily.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Please kin more to have more harmony at home so you can operate better in the outside world. Have fun tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You want to dash about and visit, which is good, as long as you stop worrying about what cannot be helped.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Do whatever will improve your money matters. Steer clear of that gossiping friend who could keep you from constructive work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Avoid petty higher-ups who're in a bad mood. Keep busy at your activities. Evening is fine for social activities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Extend your influence far beyond present boundaries and meet interesting personalities, get ahead faster. Plan schedule.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) See key persons who can be of real help to you while having a good time as well. Avoid advisers now who're greedy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle credit and professional matters well. An associate could criticize, but this is because he has problems. Be patient.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be deeply interested in whatever is of a philosophical nature, particularly where religious thought of other countries and people are concerned. So slant education along such lines and give courses in foreign languages, psychology and astronomy. Imports and exports also could be a fine outlet here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The ear-piercing yell of Tarzan was really a composite of three voices—a baritone, a tenor and a hog caller, says the king of the old movie serials, Buster Crabbe.

Crabbe starred as Tarzan in a 12-episode serial in addition to playing the lead in eight other serials during the 1930s and 1940s. He said the famous yell was created by his father-in-law, the late Tom Held, when he was working as a film editor for MGM studios.

"During the filming, I would just open my mouth like this," he said, cupping his hand over his mouth. "Later, they would dub in the yell and it would come out looking like I was going it."

Crabbe, and about a dozen other old western film stars, is in town for the fourth annual Western Film Festival, featuring more than 200 features and 16 complete serials made during the 1930s and 1940s.

Law School Plan Okayed

BUIE'S CREEK, N.C. (AP) — The General Board of the Baptist State Convention has approved a proposal that Campbell College set up a law school and install other graduate studies.

President Norman Wiggins, president of the college, said Campbell will immediately proceed to implement plans for graduate courses in teacher education, business administration and law.

The first step will be requesting the Southern Association of Colleges and Universities to approve the change in status, said Vice President A.R. Burkot.

"Our first graduate offerings could be as early as the fall of 1976, but may be later," Wiggins said.

The University of North Carolina Board of Governors released a report earlier this year stating it saw no need to establish another state operated law school, partly because a survey indicated present law schools are producing more lawyers than there are jobs to be filled.

Bike Clinic In Griffon Slated

GRIFTON—A bicycle safety clinic will be held at the Town Park Friday.

The Pitt County 4-H Club will sponsor the event which will be held from 9-12 noon.

Participants are asked to bring a bag lunch to eat in the park. A bike rodeo will be held after the meal.

The safety clinic will have a policeman to talk about safety regulations and the correct way to ride a bike. A mechanic will be on hand to talk about bicycle maintenance. There will also be films shown, and a bike, course set up.

Crabbe, 67, first gained fame as the only U. S. male swimmer to win a gold medal in the 1932 Olympics. Even now, Crabbe, who weighs three pounds less than he did during the Olympics, swims every day and works out weekly in a gymnasium near his Scottsdale, Ariz., home.

"They took me dripping wet out of the swimming pool and made me an actor," Crabbe said, adding that he was planning on finishing law school and returning home to Hawaii to practice law.

"I was offered $100 a week to start, which was a lot better than the $8 a week I was making working in a stockroom," Crabbe said. "After I got started in the movies, I just stayed with it."

He finished his first movie, "King of the Jungle," a few months after the Olympics, and then began making his first serial "Billy the Kid."

In 1936, he began filming the first of three "Flash Gordon" serials after getting the part without trying out for it.

Crabbe said he was an avid reader of the comic-strip space pilot, and when he read that a studio was casting for the lead, he decided to go and see who got the part.

"It was really a matter of curiosity," he said. "I was under contract with another studio and really had no desire for the part."

Employees Bought Doomed Plant And Making It Pay

By GREG MCGARRY
Associated Press Writer
SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — "The Great American Adventure" is succeeding, says the leader of a group of knitting-mill employees who bought their own plant when it appeared doomed by the national recession.

"It's great," said Donald Cox, now the plant's president. "We got about $1.8 million in back orders and we're shipping about $100,000 a week. We're way ahead of schedule in sales, bookings and shipment and general financial conditions."

"Everybody's attitude has changed because most of them have a piece of the action now," said Paul Chittendon, 64, who has worked at the mill for 42 years.

Four months ago, Cox was vice president and Chittendon was a supervisor at the old Van Raalte Co. mill here. The firm manufactured fabric for major lingerie houses.

A giant corporation, Cluett, Peabody and Co., owned the old firm, which had become a losing proposition. The corporation announced Feb. 7 its intention to sell. Layoffs of more than half the mill's workforce of 143 were also announced.

Forty-one of the remaining employees, realizing their jobs were in jeopardy, decided in March to purchase the plant. They pooled their savings and came up with $150,000. That, plus a good word from an area legislator and the parent firm, was enough to convince several banks and lending institutions that the workers could succeed.

"I could have retired, so it really wouldn't have made much of a difference to me," said Chittendon, now a vice president of the mill. "But it would have made a big difference for all the rest of these fellows that have been here 20 and 25 years. They're young yet."

"I don't know who it was out on the floor who had the smart idea to get together and suggested that maybe we could buy it. But we did and it's working out good. We got plenty of orders.... There's no reason why we can't make some money."

Charles Burger, a foreman at the plant, which now employs 100, recalls vividly the day he learned of the layoffs and possible closing of the mill.

"It's quite a jolt," he said. "Can you visualize it? Try to put yourself in my shoes. What the hell — you spend 40 years here, the biggest part of your life — and to have it kicked out right from under you! You're 58 and you've come in day after day and you think that your job is as solid as a rock. You don't think it can happen to you, but it can."

Burger bought 10 shares of the stock in the new firm with $1,000 in savings. Burger, too, has noticed a change of attitude on the part of the workers.

"I think there has been a tightening up on waste and costs. I think most people are apt to be more free with someone else's money than their own."

But Cox says the success of the new firm is a combination of many things, including luck.

"It's almost purely a case of the right place at the right time," he said. "Here was a plant that was—if not the newest plant in the world—it's certainly a good, viable, going concern producing a marketable product right at the bottom of a slack business period — which is the best time in the world to buy an operation but the worst time to operate it. So you buy right at the bottom — at a minimum price — and business has improved ever since."

Cox would not disclose the purchase price, but he said it was less than $1 million.

Although 1974 was the first year the Van Raalte plant here did not show a profit, Cluett decided to divest itself of all its Van Raalte holdings, since the Van Raalte Co. had become a losing proposition, Cox said. There were other Van Raalte plants in Middlebury, Vt., Boonton and Bridgeton, N.J., Franklin, N.C., Blue Ridge, Ga., and Puerto Rico.

"You've got to remember that here was a $20-million division (Van Raalte) that was in trouble, soaking up a lot of executive time and attention from a $500-million corporation (Cluett)," Cox said. "In other words, a little wart was causing a great deal of problems for an enormous corporation."

Cox said the idea to buy the plant was taken lightly at first. "Some workers in the supervisory group around the plant had been saying — partially in jest — 'Hell, nobody else will buy this thing and run it. Well, we're a good outfit, we know what we're doing. We'll buy it.'"

Cox, who came to Van Raalte in 1972 from various executive jobs in the industry in Alabama, said he personally did not feel threatened by the initial announcement by Cluett.

"I'm a carpetbagger," he noted. "I moved around a bit and I didn't feel that I was captured by the situation. I had the freedom to move on but most of them did not. They were born and raised here, and many of our working people came right out of high school and worked in this plant, and they're 40 and 50 years old. They've made a total investment within this community. The problem was then what do you do for a man who has been in this plant for 30 years, he's got five kids, he's still paying on his home and buying his automobile and his plant suddenly disappears. You're in a job area where there's no place else to go. This really was the initial thought of over 100 people in this plant. They were going to be in trouble."

But after hearing the workers joke about buying the plant, Cox got serious. "One bright Monday morning I called up Assemblyman Bobby D'Andrea. I wanted to try the idea out on him for size," Cox explained.

"And when he answered the phone he said, 'I meant to call you because I've got an idea: Why don't we buy the place?'"

That's just what I'd called him for."

They then conferred with bankers at Adirondack Trust Company here, who set up a meeting with the state-run New York Business Development Corp. The banking officials told them the workers would have to come up with $150,000 in cash in order to buy the plant.

"The people raised $100,000 of that money in two days," Cox said. "They mortgaged their homes and automobiles and borrowed money on their insurance and just stuck it in the pot."

A loan was also secured through the New York Job Development Authority. Cox said some workers bought one $100 share of stock, while others bought 100.

"I wanted it understood plainly and right from the beginning that what we were doing was making an investment," Cox said. "No one was buying jobs. It was explained to them right from the beginning that we were not going to have a democratic utopia. I didn't think it would work and I didn't want to be associated with that sort of situation."

Cox said that some of the fringe benefits, such as insurance programs and an executive pension program, have dropped by the wayside with the new firm. He said such programs will be restored "as rapidly as possible."

Cox is optimistic about the firm's future. "People always need clothes. We're dealing principally in the higher-grade areas of women's lingerie and that market is going to be there pretty well come hell or high water."

But he added as an afterthought: "The one thing that can break our backs and put us out of business is for a major downturn in business. We do not have the financial muscle to withstand that sort of thing."

$21,864 Grant For Vets' Aid

The East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education has received a $21,864 award from the U. S. Office of Education for its Veterans' Cost of Instruction Program.

The award will be utilized through the ECU Office of Veterans' Affairs. Chief objectives of the program are to help veterans in the areas of educational recruitment, counseling, remedial and tutorial education and community outreach. The program was established a year ago, and has been renewed for another full year. Director of the veterans' affairs office is Elijah Harris.

The office establishes contact with veterans in the ECU area and encourages them to pursue their education at the college or technical institute level. Individual problems, needs and interests are assessed through counseling.

Harris said the office is also developing a referral service to assist veterans with finding housing, employment, health services and financial assistance, as well as vocational and technical training.

Interested veterans may visit the office in Erwin Hall on the ECU campus or telephone 758-6138 for further information.

Federal Award

The East Carolina University School of Allied Health and Social Professions has received an award of $26,892 from the U.S. Public Health Service for enlarging its BS degree program in environmental health.

According to Dr. Trenton G. Davis, chairman of the ECU Department of Environmental Health, the funds will be used to equip and furnish a laboratory which will function primarily as a teaching facility.

The award will also provide additional space for the department to conduct official milk and water examinations for local health departments and other agencies, he said. Last year more than 700 such examinations were completed at ECU.

Resource Meet In Washington

The North Carolina Coastal Resources Commission will meet at the Holiday Inn in Washington, at 9 a.m. July 30.

The Commission will consider proposed amendments to the "State Guidelines for Local Planning in the Coastal Area Under the Coastal Area Management Act of 1974."

Virginia in 1662 became the first colony to declare slavery hereditary.

Broyhill

Broyhill has created this classic Mediterranean bedroom suite with the vigorous look of carved molding on each piece and glinting hardware pulls on the warm oak finish. The chairback headboard and mirror are further accented by elegantly shaped finials. The suit consists of a 4-drawer chest, 9-drawer triple dresser, single framed mirror and a full or queen-size headboard. The 2-drawer nightstand can be purchased separately.
