Becomes Father Of Five While Stuck In Elevator

"I think we're going to have to get another house," Davis said Friday after he emerged from the elevator at Parkland Hospital to find that his wife, Debbie, 20, delivered four girls and a boy.

Dr. Charles Rosenfeld, Southwestern Medical School professor, a member of the delivery team, gave the babies each a 50-50 chance of survival. The babies were listed in stable but guarded condition. Mrs. Davis was listed in good condition.

The children are the couple's first..., second, third, fourth and fifth.

Davis, who makes about $175 a week as a mechanic at a Dallas equipment company, described his condition as "shocked."

The delivery team was shocked too — only four babies were expected.

Dr. Jack Pritchard, another member of the 20-member delivery team, said he was not aware of the fifth baby until he made a final check.

"I felt another little bottom and I knew we had a bonus," he said.

Davis said his wife's doctors first told them to expect one child, then two, and then three. She had taken fertility drugs.

Davis said he found his elevator waiting room frustrating.

"I began wondering if I'd ever get out of there. I thought somebody was trying to play a trick on me," he said.

He said that every time he pushed the button that opens the door, all he saw was "a brick wall."

Hospital officials said the smallest baby, a girl, weighed 1 pound, 14 ounces, while the others ranged from two pounds to more than three pounds each. The boy, at 3 pounds, 10 ounces, was the largest.

Davis and his wife — childhood sweethearts who have been married for three years — live in Lewisville, just north of Dallas.

Prior to the Davis children, the most recent set of quints in the United States was born last September to Mark and Pamela Levy in Cincinnati, Ohio. Mrs. Levy, too, had taken fertility drugs.

When fertility drugs are not used, the odds are 85 million to one against the birth of quintuplets, hospital officials say.

Historic Two Day Hook-Up Ends; Apollo And Soyuz In New Orbit

By EDWARD K. DeLONG
UPI Science Writer

HOUSTON (UPI) — America's sleek white Apollo cut loose from Russia's green and silver Soyuz Saturday and rocketed into a new orbit, ending their historic two-day flight as a single international spaceship.

Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton settled down for five day of solo flight aboard Apollo.

"It's been a big day and a lot of fun," Stafford told Mission Control as the day drew to a close.

Cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov, bidding their U.S. friends "dosvidaniye" (until we meet again), went to bed three hours ahead of schedule aboard Soyuz in preparation for a return to earth early Monday.

The joint U.S.-Russian flight in earth orbit — hailed as the birth of a new age in cooperative space exploration — ended on the sixth anniversary eve of man's first landing on the moon.

It was Apollo 11's touchdown in the lunar Sea of Tranquillity July 20, 1969, that gave America its clear space race victory.

"Thank you very much for your big job," Leonov radioed in English to Apollo as the two ships parted.

"Vam tozhe (thank you also)," Stafford replied in Russian. "Byl Khorosho (it was well done)."

Apollo, following a slightly higher, slower path than Soyuz, fell about five miles behind the Russian craft with every 90-minute trip around the globe. When Soyuz fires its retrorockets to come home Monday, mission controllers said, the two craft will be about 230 miles apart and the astronauts will be asleep.

Many parts of Apollo-Soyuz flight were planned only to demonstrate detente and the potential for international space cooperation. A Russian space official, Viktor Blagov, said the next cooperative Soviet-American space activity would be flights in U.S. shuttle rocket planes to orbiting Soviet Salyut stations.

But there were also 28 different experiments sent up by both nations to study the stars, examine the earth, test the effect of space on man and explore the potential for weightless factories and pharmaceutical laboratories.

Dr. C.S. Bowyer of the University of California at Berkeley, designer of one experiment, was asked in a news conference about a statement by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., that there was no science on the flight. "I took that as a personal insult," Bowyer replied.

The astronauts and cosmonauts had circled the globe since Thursday with their craft linked nose-to-nose, living and working as one crew. Both teams of spacemen were launched Tuesday.

A six-second firing of four Apollo maneuvering rockets at 2:42 p.m. EDT carried the U.S. craft away from Soyuz into a slightly higher, slower orbit 139 to 141 miles above the earth. That insured the two crafts would not collide during their remaining time in orbit.

Brand looked down at Soyuz, nearly a mile below, and reported to Houston control:

"Right now it's pretty interesting. We're looking down on him. He's got beacons on, and with the dark earth in the background it's just as if an airliner was going beneath us."

The astronauts were flying the last of the ships built to carry Americans to the moon in a space race with the Russians. They reported to Houston control Apollo had been "running real well."

Three hours earlier, Apollo cut loose from Soyuz and Leonov radioed a warm "be careful, Tom" to his American friend and colleague.

Ford To Veto Oil Price Controls

By RICHARD E. LERNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford decided Saturday to veto legislation that would extend domestic oil price controls through the end of the year, raising the possibility that energy prices could skyrocket this fall.

Press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford will veto the Congressional price control bill Monday and, furthermore, will also veto a second oil price control bill still pending if Congress passes it and sends it to him.

Nessen said Ford reached his veto decision at a morning meeting with his top energy policy advisers, fully cognizant that such vetos could leave domestic oil prices free to soar up to world price levels once current control laws expire on Aug. 31.

He said Ford would prefer that Congress instead approve his counter-proposal for decontrolling domestic prices gradually, but, "realistically speaking...the outlook is not good" for approval of Ford's plan.

The bill Ford will veto Monday would extend current price controls on regulated types of domestic oil through Dec. 31 and roll back prices of uncontrolled domestic oil for the same period. The intent is to prevent current controls from expiring Aug. 31 and to buy time for passage of a comprehensive energy bill.

"The President believes strongly that this piece of legislation is unacceptable," Nessen said.

For its part, Congress is likely this week to kill Ford's counter proposal to decontrol the price of domestic "old oil" — that produced by wells drilled before 1973 — over a 30 month period ending in January, 1978.

Ford would allow the prices to rise from the current ceiling of $5.25 a barrel to the expected world price of $13.50, but the Senate Interior Committee has already recommended disapproval and either House hs until Wednesday to kill Ford's bill.

Nessen said if Ford's plan is killed, "the next step as we see it would be for Congress to pass a simple six month extension of the present controls."

Should that happen, he said, Ford "will veto the simple six-month bill."

Ford To Visit Finland

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will join other world leaders in Helsinki, Finland, at the end of the month to sign a treaty ending the European Security Conference, the White House announced today.

In a brief statement, the White House said Ford feels the agreement — concluded after lengthy negotiations by officials of 35 nations —"represents a positive step in our continuing efforts to build a more stable and productive East-West relationship."

The White House said Ford will be in Helsinki July 30-Aug. 1.

No Headway On Voting Act

By ELMER LAMMI

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, plagued by absenteeism and the threat of a Southern filibuster, failed Saturday to make any headway in a bitter battle over extension of the landmark Voting Rights Act of 1965.

The Senate was forced to adjourn after an hour and 25 minutes, lacking a quorum despite the hopes of the Democratic leadership to push the bill through before a scheduled Aug. 1 vacation recess.

The session was marked by criticism of Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va.,the Democratic whip, for his determination to hold the floor and forestall delaying tactics, and by a clash between Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., an arch-foe of the bill, and the Democratic leadership.

Worried about the threatened filibuster, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana filed a second petition to cut off debate on the bill which would extend the 1965 act for another 10 years.

He filed the new cloture petition even though the Senate has not yet voted on his first cloture motion. A vote on the first one is scheduled for Monday.

Accusing the Democratic leaders of making "vicious charges" against him, Allen said he will not permit the Senate to transact any business until he is given time to answer the charges.

Tar River Still Rising

The Tar River is expected to crest here early Tuesday at near 19 feet, according to the U.S. National Weather Service in Raleigh. It was reported that at 8:00 a.m. Saturday the river was at a stage of 13 feet in the Greenville vicinity. It was also reported that at Rocky Mount, the Tar River is nearing its crest at a level of 12.1 feet and should fall back to the flood stage at nine feet around Monday. The level at Tarboro was said to be 23.4 this morning and is expected to crest at 28 feet on Monday. It has already crested at Louisburg and Enfield.

Greenville Utilities Water Department reported that at 4:00 p.m. Saturday it was at 12.7 ft. and was still rising.

NC News Briefs

Charges Violation

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The North Carolina State Employes Association Friday charged that government personnel policies are apparently being violated.

Association Executive Director Emmett Burden said the 23,000 member organization has received reports that many employes were being dismissed without advance notification as required by policy.

Noting that budget cuts by the 1975 General Assembly caused personnel reductions, including some employes with more than 20 years of service, Burden called for protection of veteran state workers.

Inmates Charged

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Criminal charges will be brought against some inmates who participated in a five-day protest at the North Carolina Correctional Center for Women last month, Director of Prisons Ralph Edwards said.

Edwards said charges would be filed against inmates who assaulted prison personnel and other inmates and those who destroyed property.

In Foreign Jail

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Parks Edwards says his 34-year-old son, David Edwards of Rt. 10, Statesville, is being detained in a South American jail, but nobody seems to know why.

But American Embassy officials in Bogota, Colombia, suspect the arrest is drug related. Gerald Whitman, vice consul at the embassy in Bogota, confirmed by telephone that Edwards is being held in Barranquilla, about 500 miles to the north.

Lentz Appointed

RALEIGH, N.C.(AP)—North Carolina Secretary of Administration Bruce Lentz has announced the appointment of Joseph Balak, Jr., 26, as director of the Office of Manpower Services in the Department of Adminstration.

Wanted Man Apprehended

CHARLOTTE (UPI) — A man wanted in connection with the brutal death of a Durham grocer has been arrested in New York, the FBI announced Saturday.

Louis A. Giovanetti, special agent in charge of the Charlotte FBI office, said Arthur Parrish Jr., 20, was jailed Friday on charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for murder and robbery.

Portuguese Socialists Challenge Government

By NAT GIBSON

LISBON (UPI) — Nearly 50,000 Socialist demonstrators chanted their support for democratic freedoms Saturday night in another challenge to a military leadership trying to decide how to bring Portugal out of its worst political crisis in 15 months.

"Free press! free Portugal!" the crowd shouted back to speakers who assailed the regime and accused the Communists of being the nation's real counter-revolutionaries. "Socialism yes! Dictatorship no!"

Many of the demonstrators had passed through military roadblocks set up in search of what a communique called "reactionaries and outside forces" with weapons. No incidents were reported and few weapons found.

As the military revolutionary council—the top ruling body—began its deliberations on the worst political crisis since the armed forces took power in the coup of April 1974, reports from the Azores said an independence movement there was about to declare the Atlantic islands a breakaway nation. The United States has an air base on one of the islands.

Reports from the countryside north of Lisbon told of scattered but sometimes intense outbreaks of anti-Communist violence. Two incidents required troops to be called and in one tear gas was used and shots fired in the air.

A Socialist spokesman said demonstrators were let through upon showing their party emblems. He warned they would break through if delayed too long but no incidents were reported.

Troops and police kept away from the rally itself despite its anti-military overtones.

N. C. Tobacco Men Oppose Transfer Of Tobacco Allotments

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Staff Writer

Most farmers appearing before a House Tobacco Subcommittee hearing here Friday said they oppose a bill allowing leasing tobacco allotments across county lines to adjacent counties and requested a two-thirds vote for approval if a referendum of tobacco growers is held on the issue.

In a series of hearings in four tobacco-producing states, committee members said only farmers in North Carolina seemed to oppose the bill, which would allow a tobacco allotment to be leased to an adjoining county only if, after a specified time (around 10 to 15 days) it could not be leased in the county of the original allotment. North Carolina is the nation's largest tobacco-producing state.

Congressman Walter Jones, chairman of the subcommittee from North Carolina; and other Congressmen, John Breckinridge of Kentucky; Charles Rose of North Carolina; John Genrette of South Carolina and William Wampler of Virginia were present at the hearing, which was attended by about 150 persons from as far away as Wake County.

Another bill discussed at the hearing would increase the tobacco price support to 70 per cent of parity. Although no consensus was evident among the farmers on this bill, many expressed fears of pricing themselves "out of the market" of international tobacco sales. It was stated that 45 to 50 per cent of U.S. tobacco is sold overseas.

Jones said the subcommittee was "aware of increased costs and problems" in tobacco production and was "sitting open-minded as a jury" at the hearings designed to get input from area farmers on these issues.

In his opening remarks, Wampler told the farmers the subcommittee "wants to do what you want us to do."

Genrette said the hearings would "bring Washington to you rather than ask you to come to Washington."

In clarifying the bill on transfer of allotment, Jones said allotment could only be transferred to an adjacent county once. Allotments could not be "leapfrogged" over several counties by subleasing.

Pitt County grower Jack Spain said he was against leasing allotments across county lines. On the price support issue, Spain said he hoped the subcommittee could arrange not to have a House vote on the issue, due to some opposition in Congress to tobacco programs.

Jones said the committee shares "the same fears about taking any legislation to the House floor." He said the bill would not be presented before the House unless it was on a "consent calendar" which would make the bill eligible only for acceptance or rejection and exempt from any amendments. Sen. Herman Talmadge of the Senate Agricultural Committee feels the same way, Jones said.

Tobacco grower Henry Ferrell of Knightdale said he would be willing to have transfer across state lines, but felt this "might be going too far, too fast." He does not think a referendum "will be necessary." Ferrell also said he was "happy" with the 70 per cent parity proposal.

When asked by Wampler if a referendum on allotment transfer in each state would be fair, Ferrell said he thought it would. He told Rose he would favor raising price support and decreasing tobacco allotment.

Charles Griffin of Lewiston told the subcommittee he is opposed to transfer across county lines. "If you open the gates across county lines, in a short time you can talk about state lines," Griffin said.

Griffin said his home county, Bertie, would "stand to lose much more by such a law than it would gain." He expressed concern that some counties would lose money to other counties by the proposal.

Jones assured Griffin that at no time had there been any suggestion of crossing state lines with the lease of tobacco allotment.

After further questions from Rose and Genrette, Griffin said he would "oppose anything allowing allotments to cross county lines."

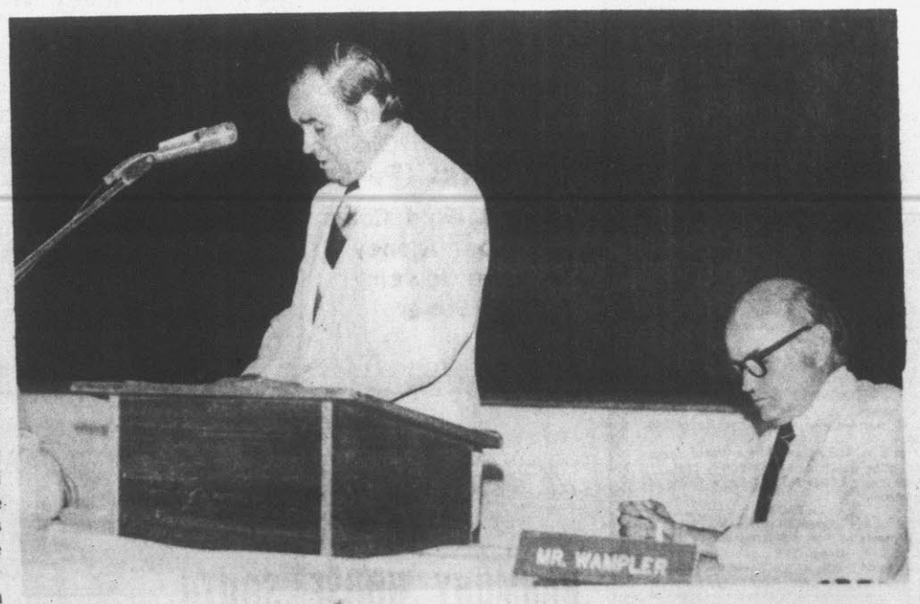

J.C. Galloway of Greenville told the subcommittee he was "satisfied with the total program" of tobacco support. However, he said he felt tobacco farmers "would have been much better off if allotment hadn't been increased" this year. It may "take several years to get rid of the crop we are producing this year," Galloway said.

Galloway said he was against transfer because it would "erode the tax base" of some counties. He added it would "cause confusion in North Carolina.

Galloway also said he has "misgivings" about the parity concept. "I would rather raise half of what I'm raising and make some money on it," he said. He doesn't feel a grower referendum on the issues would be fair because it would give the small farmer the same power as the large farmer in making the decisions.

John Sledge of the N.C. Farm Bureau Federation said the Farm Bureau opposes transfer. If a referendum should be held,

Contract Ratified

TARBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Union employes of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., North Carolina's second largest telephone company, ratified a revised contract Saturday including pay raises and increased fringe benefits.

Negotiations began May 27 under a provision of a three-year contract that allowed bargaining to reopen on some matters. The agreement expired last month, but both sides agreed to continue negotiations.

The Communications Workers of America bargaining team had unanimously recommended acceptance of the contract to the 3,200 Carolina Telephone employes it represents.

Rev. Brown In Concert

Rev. Luther Brown Sr., pastor of York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church will present a concert today at 6:00 p.m. at the church. The tenor will perform varied selections of gospel, spiritual and classical church music, and will be accompanied by the Rev. W.T. Grimes, pastor of Mount Calvary Baptist Church in Rocky Mount and Johnny Wooten of Greenville.

The public is invited to attend.

Local Man Charged

According to a report received from Pitt County ABC Officer Danny Dilda, a Greenville man, Roscoe C. Norfleet, has been charged with several violations, including possession of tax paid liquor, possession of beer, and refusal to allow ABC officers to enter his business premises.

Dilda stated that Norfleet, who operates Cavalier Club on W. Fifth Street, had his permit suspended by the ABC Board in April for a period of 120 days and that the premises were still under suspension.

According to Dilda, when ABC officers about midnight Friday went to the club to make a routine inspection, which can, he said, be done without a warrant, Norfleet refused admittance to the officers. Reportedly, when the officers were able to gain entry, a quantity of beer and liquor were found on the premises.

Norfleet is under a $550 bond and the case is to be heard in the District Court in Greenville on August 5.

Dead On Arrival

Justus Boyd, age 56, of Black Jack reportedly fell from a tobacco barn on Black Jack Rd., while suffering from a heart attack, Saturday morning.

The Greenville Rescue Squad transported him to the Pitt Memorial Hospital where he was announced dead on arrival.

Three Accidents Investigated

According to Greenville Police, three auto accidents occurred here in the last two days.

On Friday at 9:00 p.m., cars driven by Velma Mills Yarrell, Rt. 4, Box 14C, and Charles Neal James, Rt. 6, Box 232, collided on Green St. Damages were estimated to be $275 to the Yarrell vehicle and $350 to the James vehicle. James was charged with failure to see safe movement could be made.

Two vehicles collided Friday at 4:10 p.m. on Chestnut St. One vehicle, driven by Mary Magdalene Barfield, 1221-B Battle St., was estimated to have received $175 in damages. The second vehicle, driven by Michael Bond Lociero, 306 Eastern St., was reported to have received $250 in damages. Lociero was charged with failure to reduce speed.

On Saturday at 2:15 a.m., a vehicle driven by Betty Daniels Smith, Rt. 1, Box 393, Winterville, collided with a vehicle driven by Marvin Earl Davis, Rt. 1, Box 347, Ayden. Damages to the Smith auto were estimated to be $150 and damages to the Davis auto were said to be $250. Betty Smith was charged with failure to stop for stop signal.

Ms. Helen Dyslin Wilkin, a resident of Greenville, died in Lanark, Illinois, on Friday. She was a graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill. She had taught history in North Carolina for 42 years before retiring. She moved to Greenville from Chapel Hill in 1974 to make her retirement home here.

She was a member of Our Redeemer Lutheran Church in Greenville, and is survived by one sister, and two brothers all of Lanark, Illinois. Funeral services and interment will be in Lanark.

Highest Rate In Nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina has the nation's highest rate of welfare surgery, according to a study of 26 state medicaid programs.

The survey shows that the Medicaid-covered surgery rate last year was six time higher in North Carolina than the frequency of operations among the public at large.

Nationwide, the survey showed that a state medical welfare patient is about two and a half times more likely to undergo surgery.

Federal health statistics show a 22 per cent increase in the number of operations performed in the United States from 1965 to 1973.

The study by the House Commerce Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigation indicated that some surgeons are taking advantage of state and federal medical programs and other private health insurance programs to perform unneeded operations.

Must Integrate PE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has changed its mind and agreed that schools must integrate their physical education courses by sex.

Its 215-178 vote Friday ended the threat of a loophole in the sweeping rules implementing a 1972 law banning sex discrimination in education, which take effect on Monday.

The so-called "Title 9" rules would require equal access at all levels of sports, except those such as football or basketball involving hard contact, to both women and men.

Fears Citizens More

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Despite a mass resignation of policemen, the crime rate hasn't changed much here because hoods fear irate citizens more than police, officials say.

Police Capt. Tom Chappell said, "The hoodlums aren't stupid. Burglars would rather confront a policeman than an irate citizen. A policeman is trained to use restraint. A citizen is not."

Army Drug Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army says some 1,500 soldiers and civilians took part in service-sponsored tests of LSD during the 1950s and '60s and that it is trying to track down the subjects to determine whether any suffered after-effects from the hallucinogenic drug.

In its first official announcement of the full scope of the experiments, the Army said Friday night it knows of 585 persons, mostly soldiers, who were tested directly by the military at the Edgewood, Md., Arsenal, Ft. Benning, Ga., Ft. Bragg, N.C., and the Dugway Proving Ground in Utah between 1959 and 1967.

More Nudists This Year

CROSSVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— During this long, hot summer, Tennesseans are taking it off in greater numbers than ever before, said officials at the two nudist camps in the state.

Fran Samuel, of Nashville, secretary of the 135-acre Timberline Lodge said there has been an increase this summer at the camp, located 12 west of Crossville.

"We are having excellent attendence this summer," said Maxine Holliday, along with her husband Harold, who operates the Rockhaven Nudist Camp near Murfreesboro.

600 Holding Out

LUANDA, Angola (AP)—Six hundred men were holding out against a siege by a rival African liberation group today in a 16th century fortress four miles from the center of the Angolan capital.

The men, troops of the Chinese-backed National Front for the Liberation of Angola FNLA, have been cut off from the outside world by forces of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola MPLA, who are attempting to seize full control of Luanda.

Adopts Agenda

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — Arab and African ministers of the Organization of African Unity Saturday adopted a 41-point agenda on world issues but split on how to deal with white-ruled South Africa.

Uganda's President Idi Amin called Friday for a war of liberation against South Africa and the expulsion of that country, along with Israel, from the United Nations.

Nixon Saddened

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Former President Nixon was "very sad" when he learned that two badly mangled Marines he helped pry from the wreckage of their car had died from their injuries, Nixon's son-in-law Edward Cox said.

"It really affected him, the tragedy of it really struck him," Cox said in a telephone interview Friday night with UPI discussing Nixon's attempt to help the fatally injured Marines and his reaction to their deaths.

Ambassador Not Injured

Harvest Strikers

SANTA MARIA, Calif. (UPI) — Teamster farm workers in this rich agricultural area Saturday stayed out of lettuce and celery fields ready for harvest in apparent defiance of an agreement by union leaders and growers on a new three-year contract.

The striking farm workers shut down almost all agricultural operations in the mid-California coastal valleys from Santa Maria to San Luis Obispo, a spokesman said.

Computer's Choice

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — A computer Saturday picked 19-year-old Miss Bolivia as the next Miss Universe, but it was the judges who counted and they kept quiet.

Military troops and police were stationed outside and inside the gym where the finals of the pageant were scheduled to be televised, starting at 10 p.m. EDT. Special security was ordered to prevent any kidnaping attempts or leftist demonstrations.

Moon Has No Effects

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)— Whether the moon is full has no effect on the likelihood of homocides, suicides and births, the North Carolina Human Resources Department said.

The Division of Health Services said 1974 statistics indicate that births, murders and suicides occur no more frequently during periods of full moons that when the moon is in other phases.

Contracts Expire At Midnight

Postal Negotiations Continue

By CHARLES E. FLINNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor negotiators for the nation's 600,000 postal workers resumed low-key contract talks with management and federal mediators Saturday with four union contracts scheduled to expire at midnight tonight.

W.J. Usery Jr., President Ford's top labor troubleshooter, brought bargainers for the Postal Service and four unions together shortly before noon after shuttling back and forth between closed strategy meetings on all sides.

With federal law prohibiting a nationwide strike Monday, sources predicted progress in the bargaining. Usery was free to concentrate on the postal issues after shepherding a tentative settlement between railroads and a major union on Friday.

There has never been a nationwide postal strike. But mail service in major cities such as New York, Boston, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Minneapolis were hit by spot walkouts in a 1970 contract dispute.

The Postal Service, with one of the world's biggest private industry payrolls, presented a money offer to the unions Friday. Another major issue was a current clause in the contracts prohibiting any layoffs of workers.

Even if the contracts expire without agreement, 45 days are allowed for a fact-finding board to study positions and report. After that, another 45 days is allowed for arbitration of unresolved issues.

"We are now deeply in the area of negotiating on the direct economic items to be incorporated into this contract," said Darrell Brown, chief negotiator for the Postal Service.

The Service would like to modify the current layoff clause to help ease millions of dollars in annual deficits.

Postmaster General Benjamin Franklin Bailar told reporters earlier in the week that "we badly need some latitude" in laying off workers. He noted that the rising cost of delivering the mail will soon result in postal rate increases.

The Postal Service is bargaining with the National Association of Letter Carriers, representing 193,000 workers; the American Postal Workers Union, 318,000 workers; the National Post Office and Mail Handlers of the Laborers' International Union, 40,000; all AFL-CIO units; and the National Rural Letter Carriers Association, representing 50,000 workers.

No Evidence

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Mecklenburg County Sheriff Donald Stahl says he has found no evidence of wrongdoing on the part of his jail staff in the death of a Charlotte physician.

Stahl said he completed his inquiry Friday. Dr. Paul Jones Chambers, 67, died Sunday night in a Charlotte hospital, 28 hour after jailers discovered he was having difficulty breathing and rushed him to the hospital. Death was listed as a cerebral hemorrhage.

Chambers was arrested on a downtown street the previous Friday about 5:20 p.m. and charged with public drunkeness.

"From everything I've been able to find we did the best we could do under the circumstances," Stahl said. "I think my people did a pretty good job."

Chambers' family reported the doctor missing about 11:20 p.m. Friday. But a policeman who investigated the missing-person report said jail officials told him Chambers was not in jail.

15 Dead In Train Wreck

Police put the death toll at 15 with more than 30 injured, some of the seriously. All the victims were Yugoslavs.

Rescue workers said they did not expect the death toll to rise higher and much of the wreckage had been cleared several hours after the accident.

The station chief and engineer of the Belgrade-Sarajevo express were arrested by police immediately after the accident but no deatils were given.

Station officials said the accident occurred because the local train had taken longer than scheduled to take on passengers but that signals and switching mechanism should have prevented the crash.

Many passengers were just boarding the local train when the express hurtled into the station at a speed of more than 40 miles an hour, ramming the rear cars of the standing train and derailing.

Railway officials said the speed was not excessive as the train was not due to stop at the station at Zemun Polje, west of Belgrade.

In the past five years more than 700 persons have died and 2,000 been injured in accidents on Yugoslav railroads.

After the nation's worst railroad disaster in Zagreb last August when 153 died, pressure has mounted for stricter safety standards.

Dr. Wayne Kendrick Begins Practice Here

Dr. Wayne Kendrick is now in Greenville to practice Internal Medicine and Nephrology.

Kendrick is associated with Dr. Alfred L. Ferguson of Pitt Internal and Renal Medicine Associates, located in the Physicians Quadrangle.

Kendrick completed undergraduate and graduate work at the University of Alabama School of Medicine. His internship was at Baptist Memorial Hospital, Memphis, Tenn.

He served with the U.S. Army in Baumholder, Germany as a general medical officer from 1967 through 1971.

Advanced training in Internal Medicine and Nephrology was received at the Medical College of Alabama. He completed his residency in Internal Medicine at the Medical College of Alabama in 1973 and his fellowship was completed there in 1975.

A native of Birmingham, Ala., Kendrick is married to the former Amelia Milam of Gadsden, Ala. They have two children. The Kendricks reside at 905 Greenville Boulevard.

Tar Heel Newsboy Crosses US On Bike

ONTARIO, Ore. (AP) — A 15-year-old Shelby, N.C., youth who saved two year's earnings from a newspaper route to make a cross-country bicycle trip has completed the 2,500-mile journey.

Jim Padgett pedaled his 15-speed bike across the Idaho-Oregon border late Thursday night, behind schedule and short of his mark. Padgett had planned to ride to his grandmother's home in Hermiston, Ore., several hundred miles northwest of Ontario, but he decided to load his bicycle in his uncle's truck and finish the trip as a passenger.

Padgett began the 38-day trip June 9 and followed a route that took him through Nashville, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver and Salt Lake City. Each week, he took one day off to go sighseeing.

The youth said the trip cost him $1,000, including the cost of the bicycle. Except for a lot of inner-tube patching and the purchase of a new frame in Denver, all went smoothly.

Padgett followed the bicenntennial bike route as much as possible and had originally planned to camp along the way, but he sent his 15 pound tent home after several nights.

"I decided that the $6 campsite fee to pitch a tent would be better spent in an inexpensive motel where there would be a shower," he said.

Padgett said he plans to visit relatives in Oregon and return to Shelby by bus in time to begin drills Aug. 12 with his high school band.

Opposes Allotment Transfer...

Sledge said he favors a two-thirds approval.

On the price support issue, Sledge said he hoped "rising production cost would be reflected in support." The current three-year plan for figuring price support "does give some security," Sledge said.

Answering a question from Wampler, Sledge said he had "no objection" to burley and flue-cured tobacco being considered separately in these issues.

Tommy Bunn of the N.C. Department of Agriculture read a prepared statement from James A. Graham, commissioner of agriculture. He said the Department supported a referendum with a two-thirds majority vote for approval of any change.

H.R. Osborne of Pinetown said he felt that "just a few counties would profit at this time" from transfer. He is "bitterly opposed to crossing county lines" because "too few will profit from it and it will hurt others. Leave it as it is," Osborne said.

Clifford B. Aycock of Wilson, representing the N.C. Grange, said the grange had passed a "resolution of opposition" to the transfer bill. Upon questioning from Jones, however, Aycock said the resolution had been passed before it was known that transfer could only be to adjacent counties and then only after the lease had been offered for a period of time in the original county.

Of the other farmers who appeared before the subcommittee, Chester Worthington of Greenville and Hope Leggett of Halifax County called for a referendum on the transfer issue. Legggett added that a two-thirds vote should be necessary.

Gene Sears of Apex and Dick Williams of Wilson both said they oppose any change in transfer of allotments. Williams said that, if a referendum should be necessary, it should require a two-thirds majority to pass.

Another Move For Greenville

One more step toward the facelifting of Greenville is taking shape: the Downtown Mall. We've waited a long time, but there were other priorities. Now it's the Mall's turn.

A native son returning after 15 years' absence would marvel at what has been achieved; and there is more to come.

The Shore Drive development program went far toward moving Greenville into Today; providing acres of attractive park and more acres for modern business development.

Then it was Newtown's turn. You can see the results for yourself.

While all this was going on there was a simultaneous striving for public housing development, a rebuilding of the school system, and an industry-hunting program that is a source of satisfaction to all of the county.

The pedestrian mall project, involving the two-block area between Third and Fifth Streets on Evans, is designed for shoppers' convenience and experience of other communities who've utilized the concept has induced a high degree of enthusiasm among local businessmen.

A point of concern over timing of the mall construction (from August 3 to Nov. 23) and accessibility to the involved businesses has been raised by some individuals; but in point of fact, there is just no "ideal" time for this kind of undertaking except to get it done as soon as possible.

As Morris Brody, president of the newly formed Downtown Greenville Association of merchants noted, the project's success rests on cooperation among members of the group.

It was no small achievement to bring together nearly 40 individual and competitive businessmen in the mall area into a common agreement as to desirability of the project and an atmosphere of unity in working toward its success.

In such an endeavour, its promoters should "expect the unexpected"; and awareness of this was manifested Thursday when at the meetings of involved businessmen the door was left open for future gatherings to deal with common problems and individual problems that are certain to arise.

The Daily Reflector shares the enthusiasm for the Downtown Mall, and joins our businessmen in looking forward to achieving a long-time dream.

Maybe it's time to start shaping ambitions for still further changes to effect a better Greenville.

A Brave New Pizza Idea

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Most kids go wild over pizzas, but wrinkle up their noses at the thought of fish.

That aversion to seafood upset some agents of the University of North Carolina Sea Grant program in eastern North Carolina when they looked at the survey results.

Fish are plentiful, and full of protein good for growing youngsters. Cheaper, too, than some meats.

Sea Grant researchers in Morehead City answered with a brave new idea: top pizza with ground up fish meat and make it part of the school lunch menus. State School Lunch Program officials like the idea, and have encouraged further study.

Frank Marina, who cooperated with researchers by loaning them his ovens in his pizza restaurant, thinks the new pizza will go over well in the school lunchrooms.

Federal Encroachment

Bureaucracies work in funny ways. . .but that can frighten the average citizen.

Take the case of the Army Corps of Engineers responding to a court finding that new federal laws regarding supervision of "all waters applies—literally—to all waters.

The Corps had kept itself limited to navigable or coastal plains waters. The Environmental Protection Agency insisted the Corps expand to require permits for use of "all water," and won the court's favor with that contention.

The Corps came back with regulatory guidelines covering everything from the ocean down to—and actually including—your kitchen sink. If enforced, says James E. Harrington, secretary of the state's Department of Natural and Economic Resources, you would have to get a permit to turn on the faucet.

Obviously, the Corps took the extreme to show up its inabiltiy to carry out such a program. . .but the issue is not yet resolved where the line will be drawn. It could be that federal agencies will require permits for any kind of water use even in the smallest streams.

Big Business

As chairman of the Environmental Management Commission in the Department of Natural and Economic Resources, Thomas is becoming an eastern North Carolina booster, as well.

With "tender, loving care," he says, that area can become one of the most important economic sections. "It represents real potential for development of a market center," Thomas notes, and confides that a major meat processor is looking at the possibility of closing down operation in another state to move lock, stock, and barrel to eastern North Carolina.

The big First Colony Farms with nearly 400,000 acres is moving into production with 1.6 million bushels of corn likely this year, 20,000 hogs on hand, plans to have 200,000 head next year, and to add 100,000 more each year for five years, Thomas said.

That is just one aspect, Thomas said, warning tht the state must begin looking at port facilities for export, processors, and marketing potential, not only for the big farms moving in, but a seafood industry and mining industry just beginning to boom.

INSIDE REPORT

Kissinger And A Blooper

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—President Ford's belated, backhanded invitation to Alexander Solzhenitsyn, rejected with deserved contempt by the Russian Nobel laureate, concludes a dreary sequence of events suggesting thorny problems amid today's rosy euphoria at the White House.

The President's treatment of Solzhenitsyn reflected qualities more typical of Richard M. Nixon than Gerald R. Ford: lack of informed political consultation, gross insensitivity, equivocal explanations, just plain bad manners.

The affair seems so out of character for Mr. Ford that it points to pervasive foreign policy influence over the President by Dr. Henry Kissinger, wearing dual hats as Secretary of State and national security adviser. Kissinger's use of that influence to reinforce his often dogmatic concept of detente has now led Mr. Ford into the Solzhenitsyn thicket and could lead him into trouble on far larger issues.

Kissinger exerted his influence in a personal memorandum to the President last month stating it would be politically inadvisable for him to attend the AFL-CIO banquet honoring Solzhenitsyn here June 30. The memo added, however, it would be acceptable for Mr. Ford to meet the great anti-communist novelist at some White House reception. The converse, by implication: a private Ford-Solzhenitsyn meeting would not be acceptable. At the same time, the State Department quietly barred all its officials from attending the dinner.

None of the senior officials who would have urged Mr. Ford to see the Russian—including top White House aide Donald Rumsfled and Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger—was consulted. The matter was not brought up at a National Security Council meeting.

Sen. Jesse Helms, the right-wing Republican from North Carolina, next asked the White House to arrange a Ford-Solzhenitsyn meeting for June 30. Partly because Helms is held in low regard at the White House, the President quickly rejected him.

Following Kissinger's advice, the President stayed away from the AFL-CIO dinner. Some administration notables—Schlesinger, Secretary of Labor John Dunlop, United Nations ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan, deputy disarmament director John Lehman—followed their consciences and attended. Even one or two lower-level State Department officials defied the Kissinger edict.

Those who attended, particularly Moynihan, were sharply criticized within the State Department. But the administration soon faced deeper trouble. To the surprise of the White House, outrage was growing over the President's snub of Solzhenitsyn—particularly among Republican conservatives.

Mississippi Republican state chairman Clarke Reed wrote a scathing letter to Rumsfled asking whether Schlesinger would be fired for attending the dinner and thereby commiting "detente deviationism." Ronald Reagan delivered his first personal attack on Mr. Ford in his weekly syndicated column.

Belatedly alarmed, senior presidential aides discussed Solzhenitsyn daily last week, finally agreeing last Friday that Mr. Ford should tell his Saturday press conference in Chicago he would see Solzhenitsyn if the novelist requested a meeting. When no reporter asked the proper question, the President issued a statement at 6 p.m. Saturday which was predictably ignored. On NBC's "Meet the Press" Sunday, Solzhenitsyn brushed the half-hearted invitation aside by saying he did not come to America to talk to government officials.

That still leaves the question of why the President would not eagerly greet a legitimate international hero. Background statements of high officials that Solzhenitsyn is a non-Westernized Slavic mystic explain nothing.

Nor does the theory that Kissinger really feared Russia's most prominent anti-Communist turning up in the Oval Office would wreck detente. Although administration hard-liners believe Kissinger thinks detente is much too fragile, the Secretary of State knows better than anybody else that the Kremlin's grand strategy cannot be aborted by Washington atmospherics.

Rather, the snub may be explained by the major, still private criticism of Kissinger within the administration: he has become too accustomed to close collaboration with Chairman Leonid Brezhnev and lesser Soviet leaders. To socialize with the Soviet regime's blood enemy would be discourteous to friendly adversaries. Soviet leaders say blandly they would never entertain American Communist Angela Davis at the Kremlin. So, some U.S. officials privately equate treatment of Miss Davis

WEALTH

In the city of Manchester, England, stands a statue of Sir Joseph Botherton, an outstanding industrialist. On the base of the statue are engraved these words: "My wealth consisteth not in the largeness of my means, but in the fewness of my wants."

This is a trenchant epigram because it illustrates in a new dimension the relative nature of wealth. Insofar as we all have differing amounts of wealth, it is of course relative. But our financial means are relative also because of differing attitude toward the things money can buy. Some people with lots of money feel constantly poor because they have never practiced disciplined spending habits. Other people with less money feel well off because they buy only things that satisfy them and things they need.

In these days when it becomes continually harder for us to increase our money income we might try to increase our wealth in another way—to buy only what we need.

A Scream To Remember

Some years ago, on a late afternoon in the wooded hills of Middle Tennessee, along a river that winds through limestone cliffs between the towns of Linden and Hohenwald, I heard a panther scream.

It was, at the time, a terrifying, electrifying experience, one that has remained quite clear in my memory. It was a strange, weird scream breaking the afternoon silence in those lonely woods, a scream not of rage nor of pain but of something else—a scream of complete freedom, of defiant animal savagery, a protest, a warning.

Today, years later, the panther is gone. So are the wooded hillsides that rose so steeply above the little river, the Buffalo, now inundated by backwaters of a great dam fifty miles or more downstream on the Tennessee.

Perhaps the panther knew that the end of the wild, beautiful, peaceful world of nature was near, that his haunts were vanishing, that he and his kind who lived wild and free in those remote hills were doomed.

Civilization's progress was coming, even to those hills and coves and valleys. A dam was being built. Bulldozers were slashing great gashes across the crests and soon the spring and the clear creeks were red with mud and silt. High on the hillside that afternoon the panther screamed, in longing to be left alone. In frustration.

There is a point here. Do we still find clear water in our steams, or in our sounds or even the ocean? Do we find the songbirds, flocks of goldfinches and kinglets flashing in the morning sunshine, or see a jeweled hummingbird, or clouds of yellow butterflies? Where do the eagles fly?

I heard the panther scream on that dark, shady hillside so many years ago.

After a few moments, I was Equal Rights

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Students have rights—far more than they had in the past. Teachers also have rights. Now the rights of parents have been officially recognized in one city, according to a report in the Education U.S.A. newsletter.

School's out now, but it isn't too soon to start thinking about those rights parents deserve and ought to have, but which we never hear anything about.

Those rights are contained in a "Parents Bill of Rights and Responsibilities" adopted by the Philadelphia Home and School Council and the Parents Union of Philadelphia and approved by the school board.

Among the 15 rights granted parents are:

—To be treated with courtesy by the school staff.

—To be respected as individuals regardless of race, economic status, sex or age.

—To be informed of school policies and decisions, as well as avenues for changing policies and appearling decisions.

To be allowed to inspect their child's records and to remove or correct any "false or misleading statements."

Also listed among the parents's responsibilities are:

—To strive to prepare the child emotionally and socially to make him receptive to learning and discipline.

—To try to have the child attend school regularly and on time, and to help develop proper study habits.

While a great deal has been said in the past few years about student "rights," we hear very little about student responsibilities. Whether the student relizes it or not, when he has rights granted to him, he automatically must assume certain responsibilities.

This is as true in regard to his school work as the right to drive also demands responsibilities.

For example, he has the responsibility to tell his teacher of any problem are he might have in his school work. Only in that way will his teacher be able to help him.

By the same token, he should tell his parents of any problems he might be having in school, not only in connection with his classroom work, but also in his school social life and in similar areas.

Naturally, all of these are spelled out only in what could be called an ideal situation, a situation that does not always exist. But by striving for these goals, not only by the student, but by parents, teachers, and all connected with the school, we might be amazed at what could be accomplished.

Grave For Old Hero

By KILEY ARMSTRONG
Associated Press Writer

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP) — The trill of a boatswain's pipe and a square rigged sailing ship will greet the remains of a Revolutionary War hero destined for the U.S. Coast Guard Academy this summer.

Commercial development near the burial place of Capt. Hopley Yeaton has prompted the Coast Guard to remove his remains from Lubec, Maine, to New London in August, shortly before the American Bicentennial and the academy's 100th anniversary.

The remains will be transported in a flag draped casket on an academy training ship, The Eagle, the only square rigged sailing ship in active service in the U.S., said Paul Johnson, academy museum curator.

George Washington chose Yeaton in 1790 to command a revenue cutter designed to thwart smuggling. The service was the "forerunner of the Coast Guard," according to Johnson.

"Alexander Hamilton proposed to George Washington that a fleet of small cutters be built to protect the revenue of the U.S. government from the widespread practice of smuggling, which was considered a patriotic act during the war.

"After the war the smugglers found it difficult to change their habits. The revenue from import duties was the sole source of funding for the entire federal government," Johnson said.

Yeaton was captured in the West Indies by the British in 1775. He was freed by an American war ship.

Assigned to the frigate Raleigh in 1778, Yeaton eluded imprisonment when his ship was damaged by the British and beached in Penobscot Bay, Maine.

40 Years Ago Today

July 20, 1935

The fine work of the members of the Greenville club of the Coastal Plain League was praised last night by R. C. Deal, Eastern Carolina Teachers College humorist, speaking at the regular meeting of the local Kiwanis club.

The address climaxed the club's entertainment of the ball players and followed a chicken supper served by members of the Woman's Club.

Deal, himself a former ball player and prominently identified with the athletic life of the college here, pointed to the record made by the Greenville club in capturing two pennants in a row and making a strong bid for this year's honors, and declared the city should give the boys 100 per cent support.

Four ABC stores will be opened in this county probably next Thursday or Friday, it was revealed today by Charles Horne, chairman of the control board after several days of securing a warehouse and store site in Greenville.

Rediscovering A Simpler Life

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans seem to be rediscovering the simple life, at least insofar as their dollar is involved.

Economics made the discovery inevitable. If you cannot afford to pay for what you consider the necessities of life you must increase your income or redefine the meaning of the term necessity.

Americans tried both techniques.

They sought some of the biggest wage increases of the century, only to find that the cost of these higher wages simply was included in the price of the items they sought to buy.

Nevertheless, for a while at least, there seemed to be enough income to match the rising prices. Americans continued to believe that they had an inherent right to bigger and better things, year after year.

Now, while personal income continues to rise, the tendency is more toward redefining what is considered necessary. The simpler, "no frill" life, is being rediscovered.

It was bound to come. Throughout the 1960s and into the present decade there was a tendency on the part of manufacturers to load up their products with extras. "The customers want them," they said.

Want them or not, the customers bought them. Extras added hundreds and even thousands of dollars to the prices of new automobiles and houses. Sometimes the buyer had no choice; the extras weren't extras at all, but part of the basic package.

It was bound to end. The typical one-family house rose in less than four years — from early in 1971 to late 1974 — from $24,300 to $37,300, according to the National Association of Home Builders.

At that price, a so-called average family earning a typical income of $13,000 a year was priced out of the new home market. But the situation might even be worse than that, as other statistics suggest.

The Congressional Joint Economic Committee found the median price for a new home has reached $41,300, which Business Week magazine says means that 85 per cent of U.S. families have been priced out of the market.

Environmental considerations played a role in the rising price of cars. Together with needless gimmickry, they put the price of a new vehicle beyond the range of millions of Americans. Gimmickry had to go.

As a consequence, a variety of stripped down editions are now on the market, but a good many families still can't afford them.

Unable either in conscience or pocketbook to afford what they had been accustomed to, Americans are demanding and getting an elimination of frills in almost every area of life: travel, housing, food, entertainment, education and on through an almost endless list.

Movie houses are reducing tickets to $1 from $2.50 or more and finding that, because they fill up the house, they are making more money than before.

At least one airline has found that by eliminating the cocktails and other luxuries it has been able to reduce fares and increase patronage.

Homebuilders are reducing the size of their product, sometimes eliminating the extra bath and often leaving attics unfinished and, as a result, learning that, yes, there still is a housing market out there.

"No frills" is here. How long will it last?

Observations From Editorial Columns

No Limit On Senators' Words

The public accountings in recent years of honorariums paid to United States senators for making speeches have raised more than a few American eyebrows. One result of all this is a law which went into effect Jan. 1, limiting a senator to a maximum of $1,000 for a single speech and $15,000 a year total on the talking circuit.

This means quite a few senators are going to experience a steep drop in total income this year. Because a recent report on last year's podium pay showed that at least 20 brought in more than the new limit. In fact, two—Baker of Tennessee and Hatfield of Oregon—stayed busy enough to match their $42,500 Senate salaries with a few thousand to spare. And Sen. Humphrey, who ranked third on the '74 list, came close with just over $40,000.

For the former vice president, this actually is something of a comedown. A few years ago, he was way ahead of his fellow senators. In 1971, for example, he received almost twice as much for speaking on the dais as on the Senate floor.

As drastic a change as the new law promises, however, one thing doubtless is destined to stay the same. No matter the legislative fee limits or the popularity of individual lawmakers, we'd wager that Mr. Humphrey will still deliver more words per dollar than any of his colleagues.

Pity The Poor Primate

Speaking of silly ways in which to waste the taxpayers' money, the National Science Foundation, NASA, and the Office of Naval Research, have requested an additional grant of $150,000 to finish a study about monkeys. Current clinical objective: to determine why monkeys clinch their jaws in moments of stress.

At a cost of $500,000 previous studies have established, much to the annoyance of our primate friends, that they don't like electric shocks, (who does?). Such tests have also established that drunken monkeys have slower reflexes than sober monkeys, (don't we all?). . .

We don't know why this information is so essential to science, but the reason monkeys clinch their jaws could have something to do with their increased exposure to man.

Too much of man is enough to make any monkey clinch.

Tax Facts

This will probably ruin your day. So you're advised to read no further.

However, if you're the masochistic type and are still with us, we'll pass on an item of information we picked up from news reports recently.

It seems that economists at Ford Motor Co. have figures out that there are now more people being supported by tax dollars than there are workers in the private sector.

The economists figured in government employes, the military, the disabled, unemployed, retired and those on welfare, and came up with a total of over 80.6 million. They reckoned the number of nongovernment workers at 71.6 million.

We warned you.

Public Forum

To the editor:

A misstatement of fact in one of James J. Kilpatrick's recent columns hurt me very much. He was discussing President Ford's appointments to the board of directors of the newly-created Federal Legal Services Corporation and the current difficulties over confirmation in the U.S. Senate. He pointed out that there was considerable "thunder on the left" concerning some of the "conservatives" on the President's tentative list of appointees, including myself whom the President had slated to become chairman of the new board. He went on to state that I "backed out under fire."

This statement is completely incorrect. I did not back out under fire. I am not built that way. I asked the President to drop my name from further consideration immediately when, after thorough testing and reevaluation by the best experts in the field, I was forced to the conclusion that my hearing ability, a longstanding problem, had deteriorated to the point where I could not perform in this proposed assignment with the complete effectiveness I would require of myself. As a result, my name was never sent to the Senate.

It was tough enough to turn down an opportunity for public service of this sort—something I wanted greatly, and fully intended, to do—because of mere deafness, a sometimes laughable and always commonplace infirmity of the aging. But now to have to answer a flat statement from a reputable source that I "backed out under fire" is too much. There is no way I can do it—no way I can reach my friends in his national audience. I have no forum.

He has done me a grave injustice.

Sincerely,
Denison Kitchel

As you may or may not know, Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church is sending a mission relief team to Haiti in the very near future. This team of doctors, nurses, and builders is volunteering two weeks of their time and energy to the needs of the poor and less fortunate of Haiti. But, as in most cases of life, we're running into monetary problems. A few members of the team have not solicited enough sponsors to help them make this trip. Therefore, we are making a public plea for donations toward this trip. The people of Haiti that we teach and aid will appreciate any contributions you make toward this cause. Progress Report On The New Dirigible Dream

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

How are things going on the airship front? Slowly, it appears, slowly but steadily. The dream of reviving the dirigible remains a dream. The reality waits upon money.

That is the report from J. Gordon Vaeth, who is known around our office as "the airship man." Mr. Vaeth, a former naval officer, is director of system engineering for the National Environmental Satellite Service. His other fulltime job, a labor of pure love, is to promote the airship revival. In the same way that other men are nuts about fire engines or steam locomotives, Mr. Vaeth is nuts about zeppelins. Once a year he fills me in.

A lot has been happening over the past 12 months. In Canada, West Germany, and especially in the United Kingdom, interest has picked up appreciably. Here in the United States, the federal government has invested half a million dollars to explore the applications and feasibility of lighter-than-air (LTA) designs. The Johnson Space Center in Houston has sponsored a summer study program of ways in which airships could be put to use.

Just this past week, the American Institute for Aeronautics and Astronautics conducted a technology conference at Aspen, Colo. More than a score of professional papers were presented by spokesmen from private industry, from various universities, and from the Navy, Air Force, and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. This was not dream stuff. The papers dealt with specifics of design, structural materials, and commercial application.

Goodyear and Boeing-Vertol have completed the first phases of their airship study contracts with NASA. A number of popular and professional magazines have contributed to public interest in an LTA revival. Even so, writes Mr. Vaeth, "we're a long way from anything like a meaningful construction and operation effort." If a new generation of dirigibles ever is to get off the ground, it will take keen public interest, bold leadership, and money—gobs of money. In an uncharacteristically blue mood, Mr. Vaeth says he doesn't rate the prospects very high, at least in the near future.

"One of the biggest obstacles," he writes, "is that aerospace engineering students go through their entire academic schooling without any instruction at all in the principles of LTA flight or in the design of LTA vehicles. They graduate thinking that everything that flies must do so by rotors, propellors, thrust devices, wings, or other lifting surfaces. Their professional thinking does not visualize making use of the 60 pounds of lift (derived without use of energy) provided by a thousand cubic feet of helium—and in failing to visualize this mode of flight, they fail also to put the advantages of such flight to proper use."

The most feasible "proper use" for contemporary dirigibles would lie in the transportation of freight. Enormous cargoes of lettuce, for example, could be transported safely, swiftly, and cheaply from the West Coast to East Coast markets. Shell Oil in England is well along with plans to transport natural gas from the field to the refinery. Such massive airships also could carry a profitable load of passengers on economy or luxury cruises.

The dream that captivates Mr. Vaeth just now has to do with the airship in humanitarian service. He envisions an airborne version of the hospital ship HOPE—a ship of mercy that could land and moor in the most remote areas of the world. Such a giant airship could be built not by government funds, but by private contributions. And suppose, asks the airship man, suppose the project were taken on by the women of America?

"It would give them an entirely 'start-from-scratch' opportunity to show what they can do by being creative in designing and building such an airship, by being adventurous in operating the craft, and by doing something particularly worthwhile and humanitarian. The project would encourage the development of women designers, engineers, pilots, navigators, technicians, meteorologists, doctors, nurses, and supporting crews. Why not?"

Why not, indeed? At a time when conventional energy sources are in trouble, the airship makes all kinds of sense. The dirigible produces no smog, no noise, no jet lag. Puttering along at 100 to 150 miles an hour, the airship might recapture the slower pace and the less frantic life of 30 to 50 years ago. One bold billionaire could turn the trick. Where are you, Howard Hughes, when we need you?

Political Mathematics Guide Washington To Shortsighted Policies

By GEORGE BRYANT

"Made in Washington."

The label should be a symbol of national pride, akin to such trade marks as made in Germany, made in Japan or made in the U.S.A. In actuality, however, it has become a term of derision, used to identify the origin of problems which have a way of flairing into one crisis after another.

Take, for example, the Federal Energy Administration's recent warning of a severe natural gas shortage coming this winter. This is going to mean the closing of a lot of industrial plants, with more people unemployed. Also, a lot of home owners will spend a chilly winter, no matter where they set the thermostats.

This unpleasant script has "made in Washington" stamped all over it. There's no way our Washington lawmakers can claim a defense or surprise. They have been on notice for the past 20-years that what is happening would happen. A little background gives perspective:

It was in 1954 that the Supreme Court ruled that Federal Power Commission had authority, by act of Congress, to regulate the price of natural gas moving in interstate commerce. At the time, natural gas was becoming a major fuel source. It was being moved in the old World War II oil pipe lines, with new lines underway.

The FPC was "consumer minded" right from the start and gas became a bargain, compared to coal and oil, and it was a "clean" fuel. Conversion to gas boomed, with big industrial users joining home owners as users of the "new" fuel. It quickly became clear that at bargain prices the supply would not last. Costs for developing new fields began to rise.

Then President Dwight Eisenhower disagreed with the court ruling and backed legislation giving well-head price control to the states. But he wasn't satisfied with the legislation he got. Also, there was a question of members of Congress accepting bribes. Eisenhower vetoed that bill, warning, though, that if the situation was left unchanged new supply sources would not be developed.

Since then, though Congress has been adamant on leaving the power with the Federal Power Commission. Its reason goes to the play of politics. Any change in policy would have meant higher prices to consumers. And in the mathematics of politics, there are millions more voters who are gas consumers than there are gas producers. So, we end up with low prices and not enough gas to go around.

Unfortunately, natural gas isn't the only problem plaguing the nation today because of the old Washington habit of seeking short term political gain at the expense of long term national interest. The Democratic-run Congress has refused to face up to other aspects of the general energy crisis.

Here, the attitude seems to be no different from that which allowed the natural gas shortage to develop. Congress wants no increase in gasoline prices. It is insisting that prices of crude oil from "old" wells be held under a low ceiling. The result is that this production will fall off sharply, because of increased costs, and thus increase the nation's dependence on imports.

Actually, the story on natural gas and energy in general is no different from that of other troublesome areas in the economy. Inflation, which led into the current recession, is Washington's doing. For years, no matter who sat in the White House, Congress has insisted on big deficit spending as the answer to all problems, social and economic.

A developing problem area, also tied to laws of the past, is in the field of investment—the capital necessary to keep the national production machine efficient and growing to meet the needs of an expanding population. But this may well involve shirting some of today's tax burden from corporations and their shareholders to the general income tax.

So, Congress is inclined to buy AFL-CIO chief Meany's argument that there is no capital shortage. At the same time, though, it is acting to pump capital into housing, into the hands of local governments, into electric utilities, into ship building and even into the auto industry. Even Mr. Meany recognizes that there are quite a number of "special situations" where more capital is needed.

And in its attitude, Congress displays no inclination to abandon its old political mathematics test in favor of the national interest. Labor out-votes management just as consumers out-vote producers. The fact that such a formula is sweeping the nation towards an even more uncertain future seems to have no influence.

Yeaton died in 1812 and was buried at his Lubec farm.

"The idea of moving the remains was first broached in the 1940s, shortly after the Coast Guard built a memorial in Arlington National Cemetery. But nothing further was done until five years ago, when the idea was revived," said Johnson.

A monument to Yeaton will be dedicated Oct. 19, with "as many descendents as we can find" present, Johnson said.

"We have found descendents all over the country, from Oregon to the original location in New Hampshire. One is an Italian baronness. One became a Mormon and moved to Salt Lake City. He had 12 wives and about 90 children," he said.

there and Solzhenitsyn here, a ridiculous comparison that robs anti-Communism of all ideological content.

The Solzhenitsyn affair hurts Mr. Ford on the Republican right just when he most wants conservative backing against Reagan, but the matter probably will soon be forgotten.

Some high officials, however, see a broader question which will not soon be forgotten: whether Kissinger's control over U.S. policy in pursuit of detente will be challenged in the debate over arms control now entering a critical stage in Geneva, with the widest possible political repercussions.

All The Opportunities Of A Greenville Summer

I thought that I had tasted all the joys of Greenville summers when I surrendered my shower curtain to terminal mildew and was able to kill the seven economy-sized spiders nesting under my bed in one blow. I was wrong. No woman can truthfully say that she has experienced all the opportunities a Greenville summer has to offer until she's tried her hand at canning and freezing.

It was during one of my psychotic attempts to domesticate myself that I decided to venture into this booby-trapped territory. The first thing I tried was making pickles. But I gave this up when I found that my bread and butter pickles tasted more like crackers and Pam.

Next, I decided to put up corn. So I called Phillip's granddaddy and asked him if I could have a few ears. Never ask a farmer for "a few" of anything. The following morning 100 ears of corn were waiting on my doorstep. Now, shucking 100 ears of corn is a real adventure. On the first 25 I was really careful, gently pulling the hairs apart on every ear and searching it for worms, spiders, and other illegal aliens. By the 50th ear, I'd quit screaming when I found one. By the time I got to the 100th ear, I was saving the shucks and throwing away the corn.

Then I was ready to take the produce into the kitchen and cut it off the cobs. But the question was, where does one put 100 ears of corn in a kitchen the size of a Porta-Potty? The answer was, in every pot, in every pan, in the cookie jar, in the sink, and in Phillip's old-fishing hat. The latter was especially handy for holding the several pounds I scraped from the floor.

Then I was ready to cook. My first thought was to can the corn so I stuffed a few pounds of it into a pressure cooker and sat around waiting for the results. Unfortunately, the results were a bit out of the ordinary. First, the cooker started doing a drunken jig on the stove eye. Then it got the hiccough. I was beginning to wonder whether I was canning or making corn licker. I realized I wasn't doing either one when the pressure cooker exploded and left pretty yellow cornsicles all over the ceiling, the walls, and my nose.

Obviously, canning wasn't my bag, so I decided to freeze the 75 remaining ears. After canning, this was easy. All I had to do was to cook the corn a little and pour it into containers. The only problem was that I filled all the containers too full, and, when the corn froze, all the lids popped off.

Just as I discovered this final disaster, Phillip came home from work.

"What happened here??" he gasped as a cornsicle dripped down and hit him in the eye. "I knew you wanted to redecorate the kitchen, but this is ridiculous."

"Don't make fun of me!" I sobbed. "I've spent all day trying to be a good, thrifty wife, and all I've got to show for it is 25 jars of indecently exposed corn."

"OH, it's all right, hon," he said sympathetically. "It'll only take you a few days to clean this up. Now, what's for supper?"

I handed him a spoon and his fishing hat and left the room.

President Ford Is Maintaining His Post-Mayaguez Popularity

By GEORGE GALLUP

(Copyright 1975, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N.J.—President Gerald Ford maintains his post-Mayaguez gains in popularity. In the latest nationwide survey, 52 per cent approve of the way Ford is handling his job as President, compared to 33 per cent who disapprove and 15 per cent who do not express an opinion.

In the previous survey, completed in early June, 51 per cent approved, 33 per cent disapproved, while 16 per cent did not express an opinion. That survey reflected favorable reaction to the Mayaguez incident and an upturn in public optimism regarding the economy.

Ford thus begins what he described in a recent Cleveland speech as "not a New Deal but a fresh start," with approval outweighing disapproval among most major groups in the population, including traditionally Democratic groups such as Catholics, manual workers, young adults and labor union members.

There are, however, certain "soft spots" in Ford's popularity profile. Disapproval of his performance among blacks, for example, outweighs approval by better than a 2-to-1 margin.

PUBLIC 'JUST MILD ABOUT JERRY'?

In addition, analysis of the intensity of approval reveals that the 52 per cent approval score is far from an enthusiastic endorsement. In fact, only about one person in five (19 per cent) indicates that he "strongly approves" of the way the President is handling his job. As would be expected, enthusiasm is most marked among Republicans, with 35 per cent strongly approving of Ford's performance. By way of contrast, only 12 per cent of Democrats and 17 per cent of independents express strong approval.

Following is the question asked to measure presidential popularity:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way (name of incumbent) is handling his job as President?"

FORD POPULARITY
(Handling of job as President)

	Approve	Disapprove	No Opinion
LATEST (June 27-30)	52%	33%	15%
May 30-June 2	51	33	16

Two Women Accepted As Jurors In Little Trial

RALEIGH (AP)—Two white women who indicated they believed in Joan Little's innocence were accepted Friday as the seventh and eighth jurors who will try the young black woman on charges of murdering a white jailer.

One of these women was Marcia Pearce, the wife of a Wake Forest grocer who was accepted by the defense after she broke down and sobbed as she recited what she believed about the case. "This guy is coming to her cell with the ice pick to rape her and she takes the ice pick away and killed him," said Mrs. Pearce.

Miss Little, 21, is being tried on a charge that she murdered Beaufort County jailer Clarence Alligood, 62, with an icepick while trying to escape. Miss Little contends Alligood was trying to rape her and that she stabbed him in self-defense.

Mrs. Pearce, who said she was a member of the Church Of God, a fundamentalist faith, told the court that if a man tried to rape her, "I'd kill him just as dead as he stood there."

Eight days after she fled the Beaufort County Jail, Miss Little surrendered to state authorities in Raleigh.

Mrs. Pearce commented that "she ran away because she knew she'd probably get lynched down there. She came up here to get tried."

Defense attorney Morris Dees commented that Mrs. Pearce would "make an excellent juror."

The other juror seated Friday was Hilda Lipscomb, the wife of a Willow Springs farmer. She told the court she thought Miss Little was innocent.

Meanwhile, Judge Hamilton Hobgood directed Dist. Atty. William Griffin of Beaufort County to reply after the jury is selected to assertions made by Dees that Griffin had agreed to drop the charge if Miss Little successfully passed a lie detector test.

Dees said she had twice taken tests which support her claim she killed Alligood in self defense.

Dees and other defense attorneys called for the state to give her a third test using an examiner designated by Griffin.

The defense lawyers said the alleged agreement was made during pretrial hearings in Washington, N.C. last April.

Dees, who was assigned to the case by the Southern Poverty Law Center in Montgomery, Ala. said later he does not expect Hobgood to dismiss the charge because of his motion. He predicted Hobgood would leave that question for an appeals court.

Prison Official Morris Kea Loses Job

RALEIGH (AP)—State Prison Director Ralph Edwards said Friday Morris C. Kea has lost a high level prison division job as the result of recent disturbances at the state Correctional Center for Women.

Kea, who was acting superintendent at the prison when the trouble began, has been removed from his $22,000-a-year job as manager of institutions for the prisons division, Edwards added. He said Kea will be offered another job within the division but he has not decided what it will be. Edwards told a reporter he shared responsibility with Kea for problems at the women's prison.

"Problems (at the prison) go back before Kea," Edwards said. "I thought Kea had the ability to manage the institution and correct some of its deficiencies. But my assessment was inaccurate and he didn't."

"I share part of the responsibility for putting him out there. My judgment was wrong," Edwards said.

Kea, one of the highest level blacks in the department, could not be reached immediately for comment.

Edwards said investigation of the disturbances at the prison "showed there was a breakdown in discipline."

One of Kea's controversial innovations at the prison was an inmate council to hear inmate complaints. Some of the council members have been identified as ringleaders in the disturbances June 15-19 that resulted in injuries to a number of guards and inmates. None of the injuries was serious.

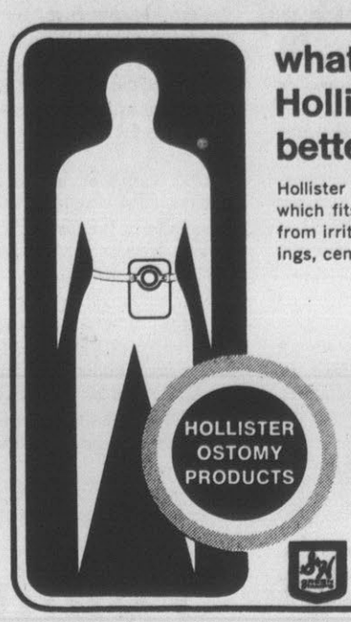

One of the inmates' demands was that Kea be named permanent superintendent. Edwards refused and Kea, a Charlotte resident, said he did not want the job because it would mean a $5,000 a year pay cut.

At the end of the five-day disturbance, Kea was removed as acting superintendent, a post he had held since December when Juanita Baker was fired as superintendent by the Holshouser administration.

Since his removal, Kea was on sick leave for a week. He was then placed on unassigned status but still receiving his $22,000-a year salary. He was manager of institutions before becoming acting superintendent.

Now A Penalty

RALEIGH, N.C.—Anyone willfully damaging or stealing a highway sign now faces a stiff penalty.

A new law passed by the 1975 General Assembly, effective July 1, 1975, provides for a penalty of up to $500 or six months in jail or both for any person found guilty of willfully defacing, damaging, knocking down, or stealing a highway sign.

The new law was prompted in part by a traffic accident last December in Robeson County.

Two people were killed in a two-car collision resulting from the removal of a stop sign at the intersection of two Robeson County secondary roads.

North Carolina State Highway Patrol Commander Col. E.W. Jones said enforcement of the new law is the responsibility of the Patrol and all other law enforcement agencies in North Carolina.

UFO Spotted By Two Men

Two men, both of the Ayden community, reported seeing a UFO last Wednesday night in the area.

John Garris, an Ayden Dupont employee and insurance salesman, says he saw a strange orange light just outside Ayden. "I drove out on Hwy. 102 to see what it was. Then more lights on the huge object began to be visible. The lights gave the appearance that the object, probably the size of a 707 jetliner, might be triangular shaped, though they didn't illuminate it enough for me to see anything but the lights. The lights seemed to pulsate, going on and off but not all at once. Some were orange, some blue, some red, and some were green. The thing was about 100 yards up over the trees then with a point of the triangle upward. Garris said, "I slowed to about 10 m.p.h. and starting flashing my headlights. I must have got its attention, because it maneuvered around and started toward me, but still high up. Then I panicked and decided I'd better get up the road to where there was a house because I'd heard of these things knocking your engine off. It went past me though and I watched till it disappeared from sight.

"What impressed me was the complete improbability of it all," Garris continued, "plus the way something so big could move so silently. I wanted to get the Ayden Police Department to come out and see it with me, but there wasn't time. I did report it to them about 10 minutes after I saw it though. I'd like to know if anyone else in the area saw it."

Dr. Robert Cargill, a Greenville dentist, reported that he had seen something strange in the sky Wednesday night also. "When I was coming east from Greene County, about 9:30 p.m. or 10:00 p.m. toward Winterville I saw an intense white light with a tinge of red coloring it. For a long time it remained stationary and then as I neared Winterville it started moving toward Ayden, and eventually went out of sight." Cargill stated.

PLAN YOUR HOME

LIGHT, SPACE ASSETS IN ONE STORY CONTEMPORARY

THREE BEDROOM PLAN SHOWS NEARLY 2,000 SQ. FT. OF LIVABLE SPACE

By Jerry Bishop

Cathedral ceilings, generous expanses of glass, and basically large rooms combine to achieve an airy, comfortable home in this three bedroom contemporary.

Simple lines characterize the facade of the Longview, a full 1978 square feet of living space, plus a full basement, that offers the growing family breathing space and one level accessibility. The floor plan assigns three bedrooms and two and one half baths and displays thoughtful attention to both living and working areas.

Entry foyer with coat closet serves as both welcoming point and traffic director, supplying a direct route to bedrooms, kitchen, living room. Stretching over 24 feet in length, the living room, at right of the foyer, involves a substantial amount of space for formal entertaining. An entire wall of the room is layered in cut stone and dominated by a wood-burning fireplace, while the opposite wall chooses a liberal use of glass.

Directly behind the living room is the family room, connected to the terrace by sliding glass doors. Again, window space is lavish, and the result is a bright, comfortable area for family living. Bookshelves are built in, and a stairway in the room leads to the full basement.

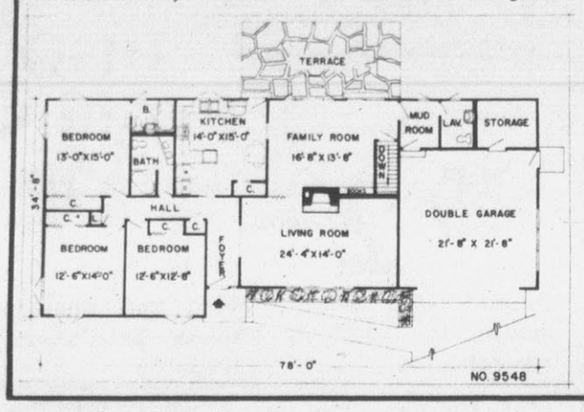

Also accessible from the terrace is the kitchen work center, an artfully planned area for food preparation and quick meals, with a laundry nook and closet increasing its use. The kitchen is ideally placed for ease in supporting terrace picnics and parties.

Bedrooms are clustered at left of the foyer and two full baths serve the area. For extra convenience, the hall bath is furnished with double sinks.

Another bonus in this well-arranged contemporary is the mud room located behind the garage. Besides serving as a spot for shedding wet and muddy clothes, the room can provide a neat area for starage of toys or garden equipment. Its adjoining half bath is handy to terrace and family room.

Storage problems are handled by the full basement, offering 1802 square feet of potential living area. In addition, a step-saving storage room is situated off the garage.

The portable jig saw or saber saw, as it is sometimes called, has the big advantage of being able to be brought to the work to perform the cutting operation.

While certain types of jobs can be performed a bit more easily and efficiently with a table-model jig saw, the wood or other material must be brought to the machine. The portable power saw overcomes that handicap and, in fact, can often be used in cramped quarters where other cutting tools can not be used.

It does not take the place of other power tools, each of which is superior in a certain aspect of cutting. But its all-around usefulness, especially in the area of portability, makes it an excellent tool to have in the home workshop. One of its prime assets is its ability to start cuts in the middle of a panel, as for instance, when such cuts must be made during certain electrical and plumbing jobs.

The many kinds of blades available enable the tool to be used for cutting both ferrous and nonferrous metals, wood, leather, felt, rubber, plastics, insulating materials, floor tiles and just about anything else you can name. Since different techniques as well as different blades must be used, it is essential that the purchaser of a portable jig saw hang on to and follow the instructions in the booklet or pamphlet that comes with most such saws. If a saw is purchased second-hand and the seller has no such literature, it is well worthwhile to visit a bookstore and buy a book that gives the necessary information. Having someone explain the various operations of the saw is not sufficient unless he or you writes down everything so that the written material can be referred to whenever necessary.

If you intend to do much metal or plastic cutting with a portable saber saw, buy one of the variable-speed models. This will enable you to slow down the speed while cutting, a requirement when using these materials. In some types of plastics, for example, a too-high blade speed can cause melting of the substance being cut.

To start a cut with a portable jig saw, the forward edge is placed on the stock, the motor started and the blade moved ahead. The forward pressure should not be too excessive, just enough to permit the blade to do its work. To keep the base riding smoothly on the material, there must also be a slight downward pressure.

To make an inside or pocket cut in wood, it is not necessary to drill a hole for the saw blade, which would be the case if you were doing the same thing with a nonpower saw. Draw lines for the opening, hold the machine firmly with both hands and tilt it forward so that the front edge of the base rests on the work, but with the blade not touching. Start machine. This will bring the blade in contact with the work. Still holding the saw firmly, keep lowering the back until the blade has dug its way into the wood and the base is flat with the work surface. Then, and not until then, guide the saw along the cutting line.

In cutting metal, be extra certain that the machine is moved along slowly. If the saw begins to bounce a little, the chances are that you need a blade with finer teeth.

Always be conscious of where the machine cord is when you are cutting. It should, of course, be safely away from where there is any possibility of the saw blade touching it.

(How to handle 35 do-it-yourself chores is detailed in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this paper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

New Cities For Sixty Million?

By DOROTHEA BROOKS
United Press International

There will be 60 million more Americans by the year 2,000.

"We'll have to put them someplace," says Robert P. McCulloch, Jr. who believes "New cities are the place. They are the best way to get the most housing for the dollar."

McCulloch, president of McCulloch Properties, Inc., Los Angeles, is the developer of major new communities in Arizona, Colorado, Nevada, Arkansas, Idaho, Texas and California. The company's first planned community, Lake Havasu City, Ariz., is considered a prototype for new cities. Now 11 years old, it has become a self-supporting town with a resident population of more than 10,000.

McCulloch says the combined forces of population increase and population concentration make urban growth inevitable. "Within the next quarter century, 85 per cent of our nation's population will live in cities, compared with 70 per cent today. It is not a question of whether urban growth will occur, but how."

The projected demand translates into almost 100 new cities the size of San Francisco. McCulloch, however, sees communities of 60,000 to 100,000 population as the ideal size. Lake Havasu City is planned for 75,000 ultimate population. The company's Pueblo West community in south-central Colorado, and its newest, Fountain Hills near Scottsdale, Ariz., each have more than 2,000 residents out of a planned eventual population of 60,000.

The challenge, McCulloch said, will be to create truly livable, diversified urban environments—"exciting people places," not just rapid urbanization. "Today's life style calls for balanced environments where people can live near their work and leisure activities."

Of the three possibilities — urban renewal, urban sprawl, new cities — McCulloch believes new cities are the most economical as well as the most satisfactory solution. He said studies show urban renewal costs five times as much as new towns, while urban sprawl costs three times as much.

Urban renewal, replacing inner-city slum areas, while it provides more and better housing and helps solve fire and urban blight problems, involves enormous costs and there is the question of lifestyle and the impact of increased density on an area's services. Urban sprawl is a hodgepodge of patchwork developments feeding on the resources of a central city, playing a constant game of catch-up — catch up with the roads, the utilities, with everything it takes to make a balanced community. It is expensive and rarely satisfactory.

New towns are no cinch, however, as evidenced by the many that have foundered in the first few years as a result of under-capitalization, lack of flexibility in use of funds, inadequate planning and mismanagement. They require extensive early planning, heavy front-end investment and a long-range view of profit, McCulloch said.

To be successful, he said, a new town must have certain basic elements: master planning, low density housing for a minimum population of 30,000, civic and cultural amenities, recreation, commerce and industry.

It must have people — "It's not enough just to sell land. You must get people to move into the community. It's sort of a chicken or egg situation," McCulloch said. New cities must have jobs to attract residents. Industry is reluctant to move to unproven locations where such things as available labor pools are not fully established.

At Lake Havasu City, McCulloch said, facilities were established for the expanding McCulloch Corp. chain saw operations, providing the initial industrial base for the community. (The development company is a subsidiary of McCulloch Oil Corp.) Today its payroll economy is based 40 per cent on industry, 40 per cent on tourism and leisure-time activities and 20 per cent on commercial and professional services.

McCulloch said those who are vitally concerned with the basic question of where people will live and work in the next century face opposing pressures: the basic need for more and better urban communities; energy considerations which dictate bringing jobs, homes and recreation closer together; environmental concerns and their effect on development and growth.

"New towns," McCulloch believes, "can help resolve at least some of the major conflicts by providing a viable solution to our need to live and work in harmony with our environment."

Gardening Questions

Q. Can I root cuttings of geraniums now, in order to have flowering plants for the house this winter? (Mrs. E.D., Fayetteville)

A. Now is a good time to root cuttings of tender summer bedding plants that you want to carry indoors for winter color. By rooting cuttings of such as geranium, coleus and begonia, you'll have a supply of colorful plants to grow in a sunny window this winter. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. A few years ago, I took my family to the Carthage-Vass area of Moore County during June to pick dewberries for the freezer. We planned a trip this year for the same purpose but were told the dewberry fields had been plowed up. Is there anyone nearby who grows dewberries commercially? (T.C., Durham)

A. Very few. There were several hundred acres of commercial dewberries in our N.C. Sandhills area just a few years ago. Unfortunately all except just a few acres are gone. Retirement of the larger dewberry growers plus increased costs of production and lack of harvest labor have contributed to the decline. Maybe with the present trend toward pick-your-own harvest more will be planted. Let's hope so. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

Q. Until recently I had a beautiful bed of petunias and several pots of geraniums. But suddenly the petunia and geranium blooms began rotting overnight. Why? (S.V., Durham)

A. Warm rainy weather has been very favorable for the development of several fungus diseases of flowering annuals. The fungus, Botrytis—commonly called gray mold—can rot blooms overnight. If these rotted blossoms fall onto leaves, the fungus can enter leaf tissue and on into the stems. The fungus can thus kill entire plants. Several steps will help control this disease: remove dead flowers and leaves daily; do not water the plants in late afternoon or evening; and spray plants with a fungicide such as Benlate or captan every four ro seven days during wet periods. The disease will be much less severe during warm dry periods, in full sun, and where plants are not crowded and do not have excessive, soft, succulent leaf growth from high rates of fertilizer. (R.K. Jones, extension plant pathologist)

Q. I planted an acre of strawberries last spring and have been fairly successful at keeping the weeds and grass out with chemicals, cultivation, hoeing and hand weeding. Someone said geese would do the job. Is this so? (M.K., Greensboro)

A. Geese do a wonderful job of eating young grass. (They won't do much with weeds.) You need a half-dozen per acre, preferably half-grown goslins. Of course, the field must be fenced and the geese's wings clipped to keep them in the strawberry patch. Water them at one end, feed them at the other and place their shelter on one side of the field. Then they'll be forced to waddle over the entire field. They won't do all the work, but they'll help. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

Here's The Answer

Q. — My wife has a theory. She knows I have to bleach some wood soon and she maintains that, since her liquid laundry bleach does such a good job on clothes, it will work just as well on wood. Is she right? I don't want to spoil the wood.

A. — She is right — to a degree. Liquid laundry bleach will lighten some woods which have coloring in them. They will not take out color as well as the commercial bleaches, which can be purchased in hardware stores and some lumber yards. If you want to try household bleach, test it on a piece of the wood which is not visible, such as the underside of a table which you intend to bleach. No matter what kind of bleach you use, be sure to wear rubber gloves and work very carefully. Also, use a synthetic fiber brush, since the bleach often will damage a brush with natural bristles.

Q. — What is the advantage of waterproof sandpaper over the regular kind?

A. — When it is used wet, as it should be, it does not tend to get clogged.

Real Estate

REALTOR

DEBT-FREE HOUSE

Mr. Homeowner, does it make sense to strive for a paid-up mortgage as soon as possible? The so-called experts are divided down the middle on this question. So we'll cover the paid-up mortgage advocates today.

One of the prime motivations for buying homes is the view toward retirement. During that period, Social Security can, at best, act only as a supplement to living expenses. It will not pay for mortgage payments also. A paid-up mortgage in the latter, less affluent years of life can give a family a great sense of security and well being.

On the strictly financial side, the larger the down payment, the more you will save on interest costs and the lower your monthly mortgage payments will be, leaving more cash for savings and other living expenses. Also, the more you have invested in your house, the more you can take out when you eventually sell.

Mercenaries? No—Just Overseas Job

By K.C. MASON

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — The last time soldier-of-fortune Robert Bown made the news, the U.S. State Department said it was going to investigate him for soliciting American mercenaries to fight for foreign governments.

Brown, 42, of Arvada, Colo., admits marketing information packets on how American adventurers can get jobs overseas, but he denies he is recruiting for other governments.

"If I was, the government would be on me like a spring rain," said Brown, who is in the process of publishing a magazine written by and for the uncountable soldiers-of-fortune scattered throughout the world.

He said his magazine would contain classified advertising from men seeking jobs in other countries "but it is highly unlikely that any foreign governments would ever advertise."

Brown described the soldier-of-fortune as a man who is "unsatisfied with a hum-drum civilian existence." He said they differ from mercenaries in that "a mercenary fights for pay under a foreign flag."

The former campus activist-turned soldier-turned publisher said the soldier-of-fortune often is a former military man like himself, but more often than not has the "unerring ability to pick the losing side."

Such is the case of the anonymous author featured in the first issue of "Soldiers of Fortune: A Journal of Professional Adventurers," scheduled for mailing to 3,000 initial subscribers this month.

The author uses the pseudonym Robert Roman, and tells of his experiences as "consultant" to Rafael Trujillo, the late Dominican Republican dictator. "Roman" claims to have evidence of the Central Intelligence Agency's involvement in Trujillo's assassination.

"The author first saw action at the age of 16 in World War II in the Merchant Marines, manned a 20 mm gun and shot the tail assembly off a plane during an air raid in New Guinea," said Brown. "The only trouble was it was an American plane."

Brown said "Roman" then served with the U.S. Marines in China when he began selling cigarettes and .45 pistols on the black market. He tied in with a private war lord who commanded a small army called the Chefoo Brigade.

"The Marine Pfc went AWOL and was promoted to captain in the Brigade which was promptly annihilated by the Chinese Communists," said Brown. "Unscarred, he rejoined the Marines and was not even court martialed. His company commander found his misadventure amusing."

Brown said he considered himself among the adventurous, as do the 15 members of his Boulder-based magazine staff who either write the articles themselves or research those submitted from around the world.

"I worked for the Castro movement in the U.S. in 1958 and helped establish a pro-Castro movement on the University of Colorado campus," he said. "I went to Cuba three times in 1958, 1959 and 1960, then I returned and started working with the anti-Castro groups in the United States."

"In other words, I switches sides," said Brown, adding that such changes-of-heart were common among the adventurous.

"A soldier-of-fortune is an individual who receives satisfaction in undertaking risky causes — sometimes for money, sometimes not," said Brown. "Most people that I know as mercenaries or soldiers-of-fortune have very definite political views. A great deal of idealism is involved in their decision as to who they go with."

Brown, who as an Army captain served as an intelligence officer with the first division in Vietnam, said his magazine would be more than an advertising sheet for men seeking jobs.

"Out inside information will filter in from the chopper pilots in Malaysia to the wild roughnecks in the arctic; from the mercs (mercenaries) in the Middle East to soldiers-of-fortune in the Caribbean; from crop dusters in Rhodesia to salvage divers in the Pacific."

Other articles in the first issue of "Soldiers of Fortune" will include American mercenaries in Africa, paramedic operations in Peru, flying F-4 phantoms for the U.S. in Israel, and Col. "Mad" Mike Hoare's attempt to invade Angola. Brown said every issue would carry several articles on weapons which Brown described as "a major tool of trade of a merc or soldier-of-fortune."

360 Youngsters Highlight Today's Park Concert

GETTING IT PUT TOGETHER . . Young musicians, junior and senior high school students between the ages of 12 and 18 take time from studies to rehearse for their big 360 member, four band concert in today's Sunday In The Park event. If it rains, the concert will be held at 8 p.m. in Wright Auditorium. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

There's literally hundreds of music makers lined up to entertain Greenville people in today's "Sunday In The Park" concert scheduled for 7 p.m. at the concert site east of Reade between Third and Fourth Streets.

(In the event of rain, Stuart Aronson, coordinator for the concert has informed, the concert will be held beginning at 8 p.m. in Wright Auditorium on campus. The delay of an hour for the rain date, time, he noted, is due to the time period necessary to set up for the large number of performers in an indoor area).

Today's entertainment will be furnished by 360 instrumentalists divided into four bands of about 90 players each.

"This represents the entire student body of band students attending the two week East Carolina University Summer Music Camp," Herb Carter, director of the camp stated. "I think the audience will enjoy what these young boys and girls, some as young as 12, others as old as 18, have to offer."

For the performance, the students have been designated by band through use of a color code.

"The Purple Band," Carter said, "is being directed by Dr. George Knight of ECU. Ed Jones of Woodbridge, Va., is to direct the Green Band. The Red Band will be under Ray Haney's direction, he's from Elizabethtown, and I'll be directing the Blue Band."

Carter mentioned that various types of music would be played by the youngsters, "including Broadway show tunes, marches, and a pot pourri of George Gershwin tunes. Gershwin is not too often heard now, especially some of the songs we'll be playing, and I think people will find this refreshing."

Other music Carter said was on tap include Gustav Holst's First Suite For Bands; Clair Graundman's American Civil War Fantasy; and John Phillip Sousa marches.

"Sunday In The Park" is funded by a joint grant from the North Carolina Arts Council and the City of Greenville through the Greenville Recreation Department.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

EMF Schedule

The Eastern Music Festival holds its Monday through Saturday evening concerts in Dana Auditorium on the Guilford College campus, beginning at 8:15 p.m. Admission for professional events is $4 for adults and $2 for students; for student events prices are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

—Today—Open house at the United Arts Center, 712 Summit Avenue, featuring arts and crafts demonstrations, beginning at 4 p.m. POPS concert by the Festival Brass beginning at 5 p.m., sponsored by the City of Greensboro. Free to the public.

—Monday July 21—Piano Recital by EMF students (free to the public).

—Tuesday, July 22—Guilford Chamber Players (student)

—Wednesday, July 23—Eastern Chamber Players (professional featuring a recital by pianist Eugene Istomin. Also a performance by the EMF String Quartet comprised of Eliot Chapo and Julie Kohl, violins, Victor Stern, viola, and Christopher Rex, cello.

—Thursday, July 24—Eastern Symphony Orchestra (student) under guest conductor Pedro Pirfano of Bilbao, Spain. Joined by guest solist Christopher Rex, a member of the Philadelphia Orchestra and prinicpal cellist in the Eastern Philharmonic.

—Friday, July 25—Guilford Symphony Orchestra (student) conducted by resident conductor Robert Helmacy. Guest professional soloists to include Richard Harrison and Barbara Maksymkow, flutes, and David Jones, violin.

—Saturday, July 27—Eastern Philharmonic Orchestra (EMF's professional orchestra-in-residence) with Sheldom Morgenstern conducting Ives' "Three Places in New England," Schuman's "New England Triptych," and Beethoven's "Piano Concerto No. 3," which will feature guest soloist Eugene Istomin. Also Carl Roskott conducting the EPO in Piston's "New England Sketches."

Greenville Violinists Perform

Young Greenville musicians violinists Nam Ji Kim and Robert Topper were among a group of violinists, violists, and cellists who recently met at Chowan College for Summer Strings on the Meherrin.

In addition to eight chamber music concerts the students also performed in a chamber orchestra on four occasions during the three week period.

Columbia Pictures' 1934 film adaptation of Ben Hecht's and Charles MacArthur's play, Twentieth Century, is this week's offering on "Hooray For Hollywood," the program of film classics being shown over the UNC television network.

Starring John Barrymore, Carole Lombard and Walter Connolly, Twentieth Century will be shown beginning at 9 p.m. on Friday, July 25 over PBS Channel 25, Greenville.

"In our comedies now there is nothing like the careless irreverence of Twentieth Century . . . a first-rate farce about theatrical personalities, and John Barrymore was perhaps the greatest of farceurs. . . . He makes the egomaniac producer Oscar Jaffe a roaring caricature of theatrical drive and temperament," film critic Pauline Kael has noted.

"Lombard's talents were not of the highest, but her spirits were, and in her skin-tight satins she incarnates the giddy, absurd glamour of thirties comedy. Most of the action takes place on the 'crack' train of the title . . . going from Chicago to New York; in the thirties, the 'Twentieth Century' represented the latest thing in speed and luxury.

"The director, Howard Hawks," Miss Kael adds, "represents the American commercial film at its best—fast, unpretentious, entertaining, with a sophisticated and 'hard-boiled' attitude toward sex and money."

Carolina Today

The state's top farm family, a classical guitar player and a cook specializing in peanut cookery are among guests to appear on WNCT-TV's "Carolina Today" program for the coming week.

The show, aired each weekday morning over Channel 9, has the following persons scheduled to appear:

—Monday, July 21—Nothing scheduled.

—Tuesday, July 22—7:30 a.m. Farm couple of the year, Charles and Dorothy Tann of Rich Square.

—Wednesday, July 22—7:15 a.m. A spokesman for the Trading Corner, a new venture for eastern North Carolina. 7:30 a.m. Sgt. Stoney Merriman is the guest in discussions on drug problems.

—Thursday, July 24—Sam Dorsey of New Bern, 22 year old classical guitarist will talk about his studies and play a selection or two.

Hospitality House

Food and music are the themes of Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" today. The program, aired from noon til one over WITN-TV, Channel 7, will feature the Limestone Trio of Pink Hill.

The trio, which has recently recorded an album in Birmingham, Ala., will sing four numbers on the show today.

The featured food guest will be Betsy Owens, director of Growers Peanut Food Promotion. With Kay's assistance, she will demonstrate preparing peanut candy cake and a chocolate fudge pie with rum.

Also on the program will be a return of two film clips. One was made by Kay in Chicago and is about cooking using the metric system; the other is a movie of Rome photographed by Kay several years ago.

John Haddow In Concert At Wilmington

WILMINGTON—John Haddow, young American pianist, will appear Monday, July 21 in "Monday Night in the Park" series at Greenfield Amphitheater in Wilmington. He has appeared in recitals and concerts in the U.S. and in Europe.

Presently he is Artist-in-Residence at Beaufort County Technical Institute.

His program will include selections from Clementi, Moszkowski, Chopin, Saint-Saens and Gottschalk. Performance will begin at 8:30 p.m. and is sponsored by the Lower Cape Feat Fouincil for the Arts. Admission is $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for students.

In the event of rain, the concert will be moved to the Community Art Center, corner of Second and Orange Streets.

Cheatham Exhibit

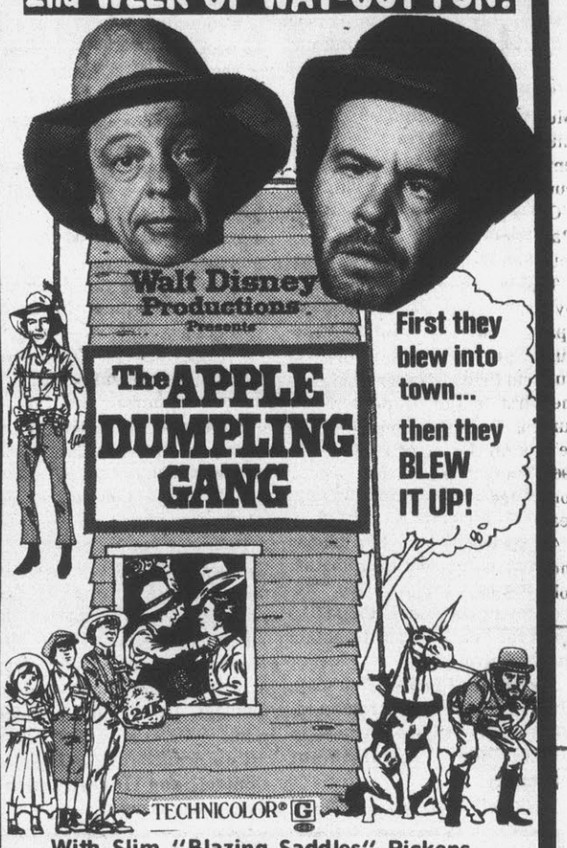

An exhibit devoted to former Congressman Henry P. Cheatham will be the seventh in a year-long series of displays the N.C. Museum of History is devoting to prominent black North Carolinians.

The exhibit opens today and will be on view through August 19.

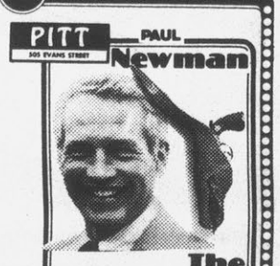

The Museum of History is open from 8:30-5:30, Monday through Saturday, and from 2-5 on Sunday.

At First Federal On Evans Street

Paintings By Farmville Group On View In Downtown Show

A LANDSCAPE. . . by Pitt County artist Freddie S. Treadway is one of several paintings currently on exhibit in the lobby of First Federal Savings and Loan Association on Evans Street.

During these summer months, an exhibition of paintings by Pitt County artists is brightening the scene on Evans Street.

At the First Federal Savings and Loan Association building, 324 Evans Street, an exhibition by Farmville based painters, students of Dan Morgan, is now on the walls in the lobby area of that firm.

Realism is the order of the day here, with subjects running mostly to animals, flowers, and landscapes. Artists noted with works in this collection are Ruth Mercer, Dan Morgan, Janice Vandiford, Gatsy K. Owens, Joe Meldon, Betty Tugwell, Joe Willoughby, Jr., E. Pearl Moore and Freddie S. Treadway.

The Farmville group show follows the earlier exhibition this year of Greenville artist Bob Pittman. The current exhibit will, according to an official of the firm, remain on view through the summer into early autumn.

In it's policy of using its well appointed lobby space as a public showplace for artists, First Federal Savings and Loan Association performs a needed service—to the artists of the area and to the public.

Everyone is welcome to come in anytime during the firm's regular business hours to see these paintings. There is no admission fee or advance requirements needed for seeing the exhibit.

Tom Forbes' 'A Place In The Mud'

Pitt Farmer's First Novel To Be Published In 1976

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

"I must say I'm very thrilled," Tom Forbes commented about being notified that J.B. Lippincott publishers in New York had accepted the manuscript of his first novel, tentatively scheduled for publication in the autumn of 1976. "I've been working for something like this all the time. I've been writing to publish, certainly. I wasn't sure the book would be published. I've been working with faith. "Now," he added, "my feeling is that of the difference between having faith and knowing something is accomplished."

Tom's novel, to be entitled A Place In The Sun has, he said "a rural setting, eastern North Carolina. The time is the early 1950's, a time of transition from the last horses and mules to tractor farming. It's a place and time I know very well."

And, indeed it is. Tom, who grew up on a farm, or to be more accurate, on a number of farms, pointed out "there's perhaps not many my age who know Pitt County as well as I do."

Tom attended schools in Falkland, Belvoir, Ayden, Bethel, Grimesland, at Third Street School and Greenville High School before graduating from Chicod School in 1953. "I've also attended East Carolina University and Pitt Technical Institute," he noted.

His native fields and forests have an abiding influence, both on his writing and his life style. A few years ago, when Tom and his wife bought several acres of wooded land at McGowan's Crossroads on which to build their home, Tom explained: "I didn't include in the house plans a place where I could write. From the moment we moved in, however, I confiscated a room where I put my books, my writing material, my typewriter. As our moving in fell into place, I found myself being crowded out. You know how it is," he smiled, "Runell and the boys needed the space. So we all decided the best thing I could do was to build a separate place for me to work in. That's why I've got a writing studio out in the back pasture."

It is there, in a simple wooden building under young pines and oaks, surrounded by cackling guineas, nimble goats and on summer nights, a host of fireflies, that Tom Forbes does his writing.

Time for writing is limited. Tom is a farmer, and rents surrounding land to cultivate. During the tobacco season, he's also a buyer for the Greenville Tobacco Company, working on the Washington and Greenville markets.

Although time to write is an ever present problem, Tom consistently turns out articles, sketches, short stories. Some of these have been published in magazines like "Together," "Good Old Days," "Virginia Wildlife," "The New East," and "Carolina Country," for which he did a photographic essay. He was a short story award winner this spring in "Crucible," the prestigious literary publication of Atlantic Christian College. He is also a faithful member of the Greenville Writers Club.

"Of course," Tom grinned, "some of my friends might think I sell everything I write. They don't know about the two wheelbarrow loads of stuff I wrote and burned, or the half wheelbarrow load of rejection slips I've accumulated."

Tom's wife, the former Susan Runell Smith, a native of McGowan's Crossroads, their two sons, Worth, 17 and Mark, 15 have always encouraged Tom to write and show understanding about the compulsion that drives a person to write no matter what the degree of success or the lack of it.

It might be, Tom agrees, that the urge to write runs in the Forbes blood. Tom's twin brother, Ola, Jr. and his younger brother, Bill, do a certain amount of writing, though neither have yet shown a dedication to match Tom's. Ola, Jr. and Bill, indidentally, are both Presbyterian ministers—Ola at the Wayside Presbyterian Church near Chocowinity and Bill at the Hollywood Presbyterian Church on the New Bern Highway, a few miles south of Greenville.

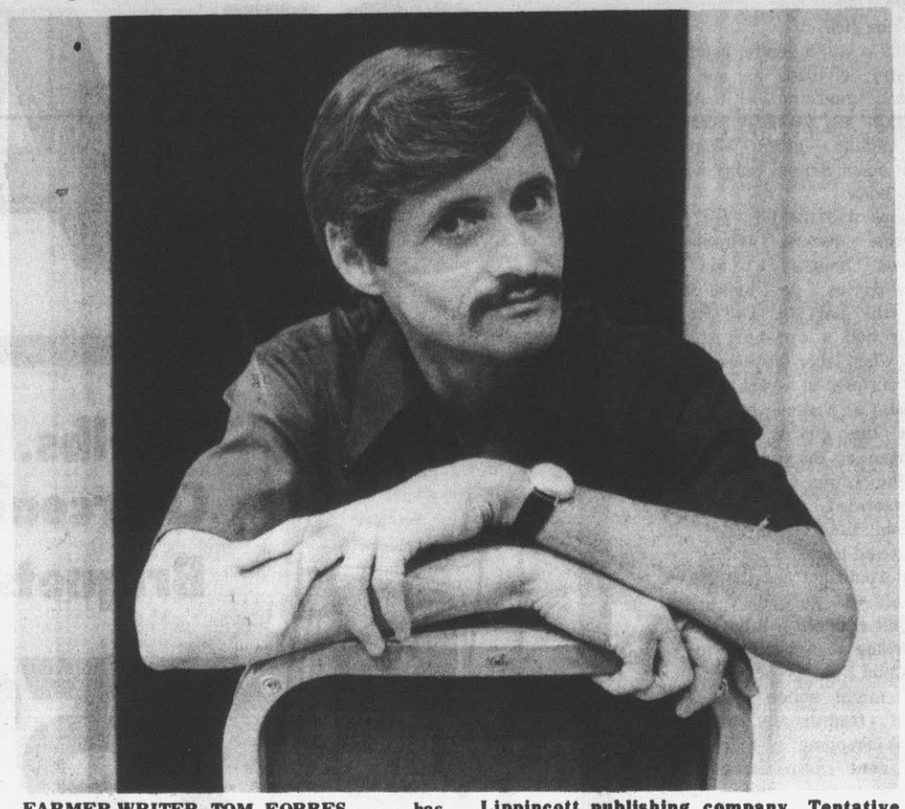

A sister, Anne, is married to Dr. Baxter Bell and lives in Williamsburg, Va. Tom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ola Forbes, Sr. now live near Chocowinity, where his mother teaches piano.

A small, wiry man, "skinny is the truest way to describe me," he smiled, Tom is a man who values a few close friendships. Essentially, he is a private, introspective person. "When I'm troubled, or run against a barrier in writing," he said, "I get a chew of tobacco and take a long walk or paddle my canoe for awhile until everything falls back into place."

Tom was especially pleased with the letter of acceptance he received from Mrs. Cary Ryan, a senior editor in the Books for Young Readers division at Lippincott. "We think your novel is moving . . . an important book," she wrote . . ."(We're) . . . already looking forward to the next book."

All who know Tom Forbes' writing will join Mrs. Ryan in looking forward to whatever Tom Forbes writes in future months and years.

"I am at work on another novel," Tom admitted. "It too has a rural setting. I don't know what direction it will take yet, but I'm happy," he said, "because I'm writing."

FARMER-WRITER TOM FORBES . . . has recently been notified that his first novel, "A Place In The Mud," has been accepted by J.B. Lippincott publishing company. Tentative publication date is in the autumn of 1976. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Contemporary Spanish Art In NCMA Summer Show

The North Carolina Museum of Art is the second museum in the nation to unveil a new exhibition of current art from Spain when "Contemporary Spanish Painters" opens at the museum today.

The exhibition, of 66 works by 23 twentieth-century Spanish artists, opened in June at the New York Cultural Center. It represents the first major display of current Spanish painting to be seen in this country since 1960. Many of the works were completed within the past two years.

Artists whose works will be shown include Fernando Zobel, Gustavo Torner, and Gerardo Rueda, the founders of the Museum of Spanish Abstract Art in Cuenca; Rafael Canogar, Luis Feito, Juana Frances, Manuel Rivera, and Antonio Saura, founding members of the "El Paso" group; and such universally known artists as Juan Miro and Antonio Tapies.

James Johnson Sweeney, former director of the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum and former director of painting and sculpture for the Museum of Modern Art, selected the paintings for the organizing agency, the International Exhibitions Foundation.

John Russell, a New York Times Art critic, has written of the show that "in the case of Spain there is. . .a national tradition of taking the worst that life has to give and giving it a long, firm sardonic look. . .There is a lot of violence in the show. . .textures are rough and feelings even rougher."

Reithmaier In Italy

Pianist Ellen Reithmaier, a faculty member in the School of Music, East Carolina University, is among 80 student and faculty members of the North Carolina School of the Arts, (NCSA) Winston-Salem, now attending a four week European music session.

Each summer, personnel of NCSA participating in the school's International Music Program spend several weeks in Europe. This summer, the NCSA Orchestra, directed by Nicholas Harsanyi, is visiting Italy, where concerts will be given at the G. Carissimi Festival in the postage-stamp principality of San Marino, and in Rome, Assisi, Perugia, Florence and Siena.

The fifteen piano students contingent of the 80 member traveling group will spend one week in Rome before going to Sion, Switzerland, to take part in the Tibor Varga Festival.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By KAY TAYLOR
Children's Librarian

During the past few mohths the Children's Library has acquired many new audiovisuals. We are especially pleased with our fine collection of sound filmstrips. Many of the new filmstrips are particularly helpful in teaching preschool children such things as color, shape, numbers, the alphabet, time, sound discrimination, and manners. We also have purchased a Toy Lending Library, which is a set of several different games for parents to play with their preschoolers. Each game has specific objectives. Instructions are given for each game. Parents who wish to use the games with their children may play the games in the library or may check out the games. Those wishing to see the filmstrips should ask to have them shown in the Children's Library. The filmstrips are also available on loan to day care centers, nurseries, kindergardens and other special groups.

For early elementary age, we have Hap Palmer records and cassettes. Each record or cassette has a sheet listing activities to go with the songs. Although especially entended for group use, these may be enjoyed by individuals as well. The songs deal with feelings, creative movements, rhythm, health and safety, vocabulary, and math concepts.

Several parents have expressed a need for materials that will help their children with phonics. We have acquired a set of 30 filmstrips on phonics and some records on sound skills. These are self-teaching. Parents who are interested in using these should inquire at the desk in the Children's Library.

For fun and entertainment, we have over 50 new story filmstrips. These include several Dr. Seuss stories, four "Just So Stories" by Kipling, and many folk tales. Four or five filmstrips are being shown daily, upon request, in the Children's Library and at Carver and East Branch. The filmstrips are chosen by the librarians, with different ones shown every day for two-three weeks before there are repeats.

We are also very pleased to announce that a self-teaching chess set has been given to the library. Each of the chess pieces is marked to show how many spaces the piece can move and in what directions it can go. A local resident has volunteered to give some instructions at the beginning and intermediate level in chess strategy. Although the lessons will be given in the Children's Library, adults are also cordially invited to participate. The lessons will be given in the evening. Anyone who is interested in the chess lessons whould call Mrs. Taylor at 752-417 or sign up the Children's Library. The lessons will be free.

Dog Film For Children

An animated film about "The Old Sheepdog" is the film being shown for children this coming week in three city libraries. It is the story of an old dog who proves his worth after being supplanted by a young dog.

Showtimes are: Carver Library, 4 p.m. Tuesday: Sheppard Memorial Library, 3:30 p.m. Wednesday; and East Branch Library, 4 p.m. Friday.

Also, this week, a film from the Bicentennial Film Club will be shown at 3:30 p.m. and again at 7 p.m. in the children's room of Sheppard Library. "How The West Was Won—And Honor Lost" is the title of this film, one of a series starting last month and continuing through the coming winter.

There is no admission fee, and all Greenville children are invited to attend showings of the films listed above.

A Sick Britain - Will It Muddle Through Again?

By GREGORY JENSEN

LONDON (UPI) — British procedure does not oblige Prime Minister Harold Wilson to make a "state of the nation" report each year. He may be grateful just now.

The state of the nation is dreadful.

Wilson and his divided government have prescribed their cure for the "sick man of Europe" Britain has become — a stiff dose of mandatory limits on rises in prices, wages and dividends. It promises to be a painful treatment.

But Britain's sickness goes deeper than galloping inflation, a plunging pound, zooming unemployment and industrial slump. It is not just a pocketbook disease.

"We have to cement a solid foundation for the nation's revival," said Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey, meaning more than economic ills. "Without it we are all sunk."

This is still a gentle, beautiful country, civilized as are few others, guarding a brilliant heritage and jealously preserving human values. What is right about Britain today would fill a book.

Shops and theaters are full. All-time record Wimbledon crowds bought a ton of strawberries a day, at 90 cents per tiny portion. The Royal Ballet had a smashing season even when labor troubles forced it to perform in a park tent.

Today's visitor to Britain finds the guard still being changed at Buckingham Palace, the Tower of London still overcrowded, the pace of British life flowing at its unhurried pace.

He would not see the 700,000 parents who go hungry to bed so their children will have food, according to a new survey by the Child Poverty Action group.

He might notice that Bond Street, traditionally tops for swank shopping, is a forest of "for rent" signs because of leaping rents and falling business. He might not notice supermarket shopping patterns changed the same way, with business down as people shun expensive packaging and convenience foods.

Visitors would notice prices, all right, rocketed by an annual 25 per cent plus inflation. They may not notice the nearly one million workers unemployed in a work force of 25 million, the 71 per cent of British companies working below capacity with future order books empty, the inflation-pinched middle class living on nostalgia and sinking by degrees.

Any visitor—or reporter—talking to ordinary Britons, politicians, bankers and businessmen and union leaders will get a long, woeful list of Britain's painful ills.

Most are well known. Both those which get the headlines and those which don't form a three-part diagnosis.

— The first, inevitably, is economic. Britain is in a fearful financial mess.

Inflation, everybody's problem, is Wilson's No.1 priority. Already money's collapsing value has created a peculiar state of mind.

The other day a reporter piled coins on a counter and asked a clerk to pick out change for a pack of cigarets (price: 90-odd cents). The clerk swept the whole pile into the till.

"Was that the right change?" the reporter asked.

"Does it matter?" the clerk replied.

When money is becoming worthless, people initially react by demanding more of it. British unions have gotten just that. Wages leaped so fast that demands for raises of 80 per cent or more were treated seriously.

"This mad rush for more money to buy less and less goods is really just a paper chase for idiots," Chancellor Healey said. Even the country's top union official agreed.

"Thinking in terms of 30 per cent wage increases, escalating up, is plain daft," said Len Murray of the 10 million-member Trades Union Congress.

But beyond inflation, Britain is hurting by every financial measure there is.

"The main and rather simple objects of economic policy in advanced industrial countries," wrote The Economist magazine, "are to avoid really wasteful slump and high unemployment while averting great inflations that destroy societies.

"Britain is now doing unprecedentedly badly on all three counts."

Government spending is out of control. This requires tax rates which destroy incentive and penalize success. Even so the government spends 10 pounds for every 8 pounds it takes in.

The difference is borrowed—$375 for every Briton this year alone. The country is mortgaged to the eyebrows, and its hoped-for bonanza of North Sea oil in the 1980s already is partly in hock.

Britain is inescapably an industrial nation. But with notable exceptions, its industry is antiquated, aimed at guaranteed markets of an Empire long vanished, its work force — partly as a result of this — unproductive.

A recent American survey labeled British workers "the worst in the world" for job performance and productivity, third worst in the world for strikes.

The Financial Times matched British companies against European counterparts in nine industries. British firms came last in productivity per worker in eight, next to last in the ninth.

Disillusionment with politics is as thorough as the abandonment of religion.

In a democracy where no government since the war has won a popular vote majority, where parliament's party-line voting allows rule by a minority of a minority, parliament is ignored and political affairs are an inescapable bore.

This malaise runs so deep that even a study of regional theater can casually describe Britain as "a 'democratic' society that has lost its general faith in religious absolutes and political platforms alike."

Power has slipped from toothless governments and programless parties. Labor unions, disproportionately controlled by the far left, has picked it up. But their self-centered power is mainly negative.

Thus, wrote the Economist, "a number of trade unions with a monopoly power over the supply of labor have defeated one weak government after another in a series of confrontations."

The latest, 17 months ago, toppled Edward Heath's Conservatives and brought Wilson to office with 37.2 per cent of the popular vote.

Fading political power was balanced by economic pervasiveness. Every government since the war has infected the nation with elephantiasis of the state.

From every 100 pounds in this year's gross national product, said the Bank of England, government will spend 56.

The state employs more than one-fourth the nation's workers. Its nationalized industries — steel, buses, electricity, railroads, coal, airlines, broadcasting — employ 24 per cent of the nation's plant and equipment. The return on this capital investment is negative. Every nationalized industry loses millions, despite direct taxpayer subsidies.

— Britain's third source of illness is social.

This is perhaps the most fundamental, the most controversial. Class divisions cleave Britain into amputated fragments. In social intercourse and to some extent in commerce, the posh accent and old school tie matter less than before, but they still matter. In political affairs, class means everything.

It is still natural here for a politician like Willie Hamilton to rail against "unmerited privilege, secrecy, greed, corruption and sycophancy, hypocrisy and humbug, a deferential class society based on bloody clawed capitalism."

More than most, Britain is a nation of "them" against "us." In this conflict, looking out for No.1 comes first.

But in the main, Britons are content to do what is forced upon them and to let the state muddle through. It always has.

Tar Heels Take 6-1 Win Over Pirates

FLIP FLOP—George Scott of the Milwaukee Brewers upsets Chicago White Sox shortstop Buckey Dent as he safely steals second in the first inning of Saturday's game at Chicago. Sox catcher Brian Downing's throw to Dent went through to center field and Scott took third on the play. (AP Wirephoto)

CHAPEL HILL—The steam that drove the East Carolina Pirates to seven straight Summer League wins a couple of weeks ago has all but disappeared. Friday night, The Pirates lost to UNC-Wilmington and last night the Bucs dropped another game to Carolina.

The University of North Carolina rapped 11 hits off two East Carolina pitchers scoring six runs to take a 6-1 Summer League victory over the Pirates, last night.

The loss dropped the Pirates 9-11 for the season.

Carolina got the lead in the third. Randy Porch led off with a single and moved to third on a hit by Steve Rackley. ECU rightfielder Addison Bass tried to get Porch going to third but his throw was wide. Porch could not score but Rackley took second on the play. Kevin Haeberle laid down a bunt single squeezing Porch across. An error on the play as Rackley came in allowed him to score safely. Haeberle moved to second on the error and scored on a hit by Bernie Menapace.

The Tar Heels made it a 5-0 game in the fourth. Bill Lee hit a one-out double and Mike Fox singled him to third. Porch drove in Lee with a base hit and a double by Rackley drove in Fox.

Carolina picked up its other run in the seventh.

The only ECU run came across in the top of the ninth but by then it was too late to do any good. Robert Brinkley doubled and took third on an error. He scored as Glen Card singled.

ECU travels to UNC-Wilmington Monday, to Methodist Tuesday, returns home Wednesday hosting Carolina then hits the road again Friday traveling to Louisburg. UNC-Wilmington comes to Harrington Field Saturday night.

Tanana, Rodriguez Lead Angel Victory

CLEVELAND (AP) — Frank Tanana pitched a five-hitter and Ellie Rodriguez drove in three runs Saturday, leading the California Angels to an 8-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader.

The Angels gave Tanana, 8-5, all the runs he needed in the fourth inning, scoring twice. Lee Stanton walked, stole second and came home on Rodriguez' single, then Mike Miley and Jerry Remy singled.

California got three more runs and chased Dennis Eckersley, 6-3, in the fifth. Dave Collins walked, Joe Lahoud singled and Collins scored when second baseman Duane Kuiper misplayed Stanton's grounder. Dave Chalk's sacrifice fly scored Lahoud and Rodriguez singled Stanton home.

The Angels made it 6-0 in the seventh on Lahoud's walk and Stanton's double. They added a run in the eighth when Miley walked, moved up on a grounder and came in on Mickey Rivers' single, then wrapped it up with a run in the ninth on Rodriguez single.

Seaver Becomes First To Win 14

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver scattered seven hits and Ed Kranepool drove in three runs, leading the New York Mets to a 5-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday.

Seaver, 14-5, became the first 14-game winner in the National League this season, striking out six batters to raise his lifetime total to 1,999 strikeouts. Only 26 other pitchers have reached the 2,000 plateau in major league history.

Seaver got off to a shaky start, giving up runs in the first and third innings.

In the Mets' half of the first, Felix Millan singled, hitting in his 12th straight game, went to third on a single by Kranepool and scored on Rusty Staub's single.

Atlanta made it 2-1 in the third when Marty Perez singled, went to third on Evans' single and scored on May's bouncer.

Millan was hit by Bruce Dal Canton's pitch in the third and scored on Kranepool's double. The Mets broke the tie in the fifth on Kranepool's RBI bouncer, then scored two runs in the seventh on a double by Wayne Garrett and Kranepool's run-scoring single.

Auto Specialty, Cox Take Prep Wins

Cox Realty and Auto Specialty picked up their first wins of the second Babe Ruth Prep League season Saturday both going into double figures.

Auto Specialty won the first game of the pair beating Pitt Plaza, 11-6. Pitt Plaza inched in front with two in the first but Auto Specialty cut the lead to 2-1 i n the top of the second. Pitt Plaza got it back in the third.

In the fourth, Auto Specialty rallied to take the lead on five runs but Pitt Plaza battled back with two in the fifth and one in the sixth to tie the game, 6-6.

Calvin Jones led off the top of the seventh with an error and took second on an out and third on a passed ball. Gardiner walked and Davenport singled scoring Jones. Jeen Kim was hit by a pitch and a double by Skip Topping drove in Gardiner, Davenport and Kim. An error put Topping on third and Moore reached on an error scoring Topping giving Auto Specialty an 11-6 win.

In the second game, Cox Realty had to hold off a Graniteer rally to get a 15-14 win. Cox got its first two in the bottom of the first but the Graniteers tied the game, 2-2 in the top of the second. Three in the second, three in the third and five in the fourth gave Cox a 10-2 lead but it was cut down in the top of the fifth as the Graniteers rallied to close to 12-8.

Alan Clark opened the sixth with a single for Cox and he took second on an error. Patrick Wilson reached on an error, Hardee walked and a double by Steve Hawkins drove in all three runners for the winning runs.

The Graniteers rallied for six in the seventh but fell a run short.

Edwards Breaks Away For Tournament Lead

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Rookie Danny Edwards birdied his last two holes for a 69, broke out of the most tightly-packed, massive jam of players the tour has seen in years and took the lead Saturday in the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

The 24-year-old Edwards put on a fantastic exhibition of scrambling—he one-putted seven holes in a row at one stretch—on his way to a three-round total of 207, six-under-par on the hilly, windswept, 7,119-yard Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

The wind was a major factor in turning this into probably the tightest race of the season. At one time or another in the third round, eight players either led or shared the lead. At one point, 12 players were locked within one stroke of each other at the top.

"I've been out here for 13 years and in all that time I've never seen anything like this," said Dom Mirandi, the veteran official scorer for the tour.

Edwards finally solved it with his two closing birdies. He hit a seven iron just two inches—one turn of the ball—short of the cup on the 17th hole and jerked a massive yell from the gallery announced at 30,750 with his long, curling putt of about 35 feet on the final hole.

Lee Elder, the second-round leader who has a habit of playing very well in this tournament, Ben Crenshaw, Rod Curl and Mac McLendon were tied for second, one shot back at 208.

McLendon, enjoying his best year as a pro, had a 70, Crenshaw and Curl matched rounds of par 71 and Elder slipped to a 73.

Edwards, Elder, Allin, Crenshaw, Johnson, Curl and McLendon all led or shared the lead at least once.

But they couldn't keep pace with Edwards' scrambling act. He one-putted the fourth through the 10th holes—only two of them for birdies—needed only 27 strokes on the huge greens and added clutch second putts of six feet on two holes.

"What I have to learn," Edwards said, "is that you can't expect to hit the ball really well for four days. You're going to have one day where you don't hit it so good and you have to get it up and in.

Expos Halt Run-Away Reds

MONTREAL (AP) — Nate Colbert singled home two runs in the eighth inning, leading the Montreal Expos to a 4-2 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds Saturday.

A single by Pete Mackanin, a walk to Jerry Morales and a hit by Barry Foote loaded the bases for Colbert's tie-breaking single up the middle.

The Reds had tied the score 2-2 in the eighth on Joe Morgan's home run, his 14th of the season.

Consecutive singles by Pepe Mangual, Mackanin and Gary Carter produced a first-inning run for Montreal against Fred Norman.

The Expos made it 2-0 in the second when Colbert reached second on third baseman Pete Rose's two-base throwing error. Colbert went to third on an infield out and scored an unearned run on Pepe Frias' sacrifice fly to center.

Morgan drew a leadoff walk in the Cincinnati sixth, stole second, took third on Johnny Bench's hit and scored as Dan Driessen grounded into a double play.

Canadian Inches Into Tie

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

NORTHFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Sandra Post of Canada bogeyed the 18th hole and slipped into a tie for the lead with charging Sandra Palmer and Sally Little after Saturday's third round of the $55,000 U.S. Women's Open golf championship.

At 224 going into Sunday's final round was 18-year-old amateur Nancy Lopez of Roswell, N.M., and pros Jo Anne Carner and Debbie Austin.

Miss Lopez started the day tied with Miss Post for the lead but skied to a five-over-par 77—224, eight over par on the 6,165-yard Atlantic City Country Club course.

Defending champion Sandra Haynie and rookie pro Amy Alcott finished the third round at 225, in good position to challenge in Sunday's final round of the 72-hole event worth $9,000 to the winner.

Miss Post, 27, shot a third-round 76, four over par, as the 42 pros and amateurs still in the field battled strong winds from the nearby Atlantic Ocean and struggled on the rock-hard greens.

Miss Palmer, the leading money winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, fired a one-under 71, only the second sub-par effort of the tournament.

Miss Little, of South Africa, using a 45-year-old putter, carded a one-over 73 for her share of the lead.

Miss Palmer, a 34-year-old Texan, started the day five strokes back of the leaders. She played the front nine in par-37 then sliced a stroke off regulation coming home for her 71. She had two bogeys and three birdies on the back nine in charging into contention while the other leaders faltered.

Both Miss Lopez, the U.S. Girls' junior champion who is trying to become the second amateur in the history of the Open to win the title, and Miss Little experienced problems on the 515-yard, par-five 18th hole.

Miss Lopez missed a six-foot birdie putt that would have given her a share of the lead, and Miss Little three-putted from the fringe for a bogey.

Miss Post hit her drive off the 18th tee into the deep right rough and it took her three more shots to reach the green. She placed a 20-foot chip shot two feet from the pin and holed it to save a share of first place.

"My tee shot was so bad that I just had to be careful that I didn't make a seven," Miss Post said. "It was dumb. When you make a mistake like that on this course it will just eat you up."

She added, however, that putting was her big problem.

"I had half a dozen good birdie chances but I couldn't drop anything," she lamented.

Miss Palmer, who fell far behind after a first-round 78, started her comeback with a 74 on Friday.

"I really had been struggling," said Miss Palmer, who described the short but tricky Atlantic City course as the hardest Open layout she has played.

"When you get in the rough here you have no chance," she said. "You pray a lot."

Miss Palmer, a former homecoming queen and cheerleader at North Texas State, said Sunday's winner would have to sacrifice being aggressive. "You have to try to make pars on this course and hope every once in a while you make a birdie. Every hole is a struggle."

Miss Little, a regular on the U.S. tour who plays out of Palm Springs, Calif., shot an 80 in Thursday's opening round after finishing triple-bogey, bogey, bogey. "I had no confidence after that," she said.

But a 70, the first sub-par round of the tournament, on Friday gave her a big boost. "That did it," she said. "I'm ready to go out and get it over with right now."

Miss Little said she was not surprised at the high scores. "It's an Open," she said, "and in an Open, they want scores to be high."

Kathy Whitworth, recently inducted into the LPGA Hall of Fame, shot a 75—227, only four strokes off the pace in her bid to win her first Open in an otherwise illustrious career.

Greenville Claims Area Title, 3-2

ROANOKE RAPIDS—Kenny Barnes hurled a two-hitter and hit North State Little League All-Star teammates got him three runs in the fourth as Greenville won the Area II Little League tournament beating Roanoke Rapids, 3-2, Saturday.

Greenville's three-run rally in the fourth over came a 2-0 deficit as Roanoke Rapids had taken the lead in the first. Barnes struck out 10, walked six and got the hit that started the rally in the fourth.

Greg Haislip walked as did Bruce Hammock. Chris way reached on a fielder's choice and an error on Steve Heath's hit scored both Haislip and Hammock for a 2-0 RR lead.

Greenville put a man on in each of the first and second with a walk but could not move him around. Then in the third, the winning run came over. With one out, Barnes singled and took second on a wild pitch. He moved to third on an out and scored as Grant Stackhouse singled. Tom Brown got a hit and an error on Teddy Gartman's single scored both Stackhouse and Brown for a 3-2 lead.

After the fourth, Barnes allowed only three Roanoke Rapids runners to reach base. One on a hit, one on a fielder's choice and the third on a walk. Roanoke Rapids could not push them around.

Greenville advances into the district tournament beginning Thursday back at Roanoke Rapids. Greenville faces the Area I winner at 5:00 p.m.

Home Builders Wins In Last Of Seventh

Mike Adams scored the winning run on a passed ball in the bottom of the seventh giving Home Builders a 12-11 victory over College View, Saturday, in Babe Ruth League play.

The game was a long drawn out battle between the two teams. College View rallied to take a 5-4 lead in the fifth. Home Builders come back in the bottom of the fifth to regain the lead, 10-5 but College View scored twice in the sixth and slipped ahead on four runs in the top of the seventh. Home Builders won it in the last of the frame.

Gavin Ray had two hits for the Builders while Tim Harris had a pair for College View.

Ray opened the first with a walk and a hit by Joel Toates moved him to second. Jay Wood hit into a fielder's choice moving Ray to third and R. Reggie Selby reached on an error scoring Ray.

Stanley Nichols gave Home Builders a 2-0 lead in the second scoring on a bunt by Jim Stallings. Nichols had walked and moved to third on an out.

Ray led off the third with a triple to right and Toates grounded out driving him in for a 3-0 lead.

Ray and Nichols seemed to be doing all the scoring. Nichols scored his second run in the fourth. He walked, stole second, moved up on an out and came across on a wild pitch.

But in the fifth the Builders saw their lead disappear. College View knocked starting pitcher Adams out of the box after taking the lead, 5-4.

Home Builders turned the tide quickly, however and regained the lead scoring six times. Reggie Selby tripled to right center driving in two runs in the rally. Ray and Nichols scored their third run each of the game.

College View cut the lead to 10-7 on a run-scoring out and a single in the sixth and went ahead in the seventh. H.L. Austin was hit by a pitch and Harris walked. Lindsey Winstead walked loading the bases and Ricky West reached on an error scoring Austin. Bubba Rowlette walked forcing in Harris and David Lowe reached on an error scoring Winstead. Robert Causey walked in West.

Stallings led off the last of the seventh with a walk and Adams beat out a bunt. Ray bunted safely to third loading the bases and Toates reached on an error driving in Stallings with the tieing run. Adams scored the winner on a passed ball ending the game.

Kelly's Homer Beats Brewers

CHICAGO (AP) — Pat Kelly's grand slam homer in the second inning powered the Chicago White Sox to a 4-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday in a nationally televised game.

The homer was the fifth of the season for Kelly and came off loser Bill Travers, 4-4, who did not yield an earned run.

Bill Melton opened the second by reaching first on third baseman Don Money's error. Travers got the next two batters on easy fly balls but Jerry Hairston Kept the inning alive by beating out a single to deep short. Brian Downing walked, filling the bases and Kelly followed with his first career grand slam.

Jesse Jefferson, 2-4, was the starter and winner but needed help in the sixth inning—first from Dave Hamilton, then from Rich Gossage. Gossage recorded his 14th save of the year.

Jefferson yielded George Scott's 17th homer in the fourth inning and the Brewers added a run in the fifth on a double by Sixto Lezcano, an infield out and a sacrifice fly by Gorman Thomas.

Jefferson issued a walk to open the sixth, and after he got Scott to fly out, Hamilton came in and fanned Darrell Porter. Hamilton then walked Bob Darwin, and Gossage came in and got designated hitter Hank Aaron on strikes.

Double plays twice blunted Milwaukee threats. Money opened the game by drawing a walk but Robin Yount hit into a double play. Scott then singled, stole second and went to third on Downing's throwing error. Porter grounded out to end the inning.

Jefferson did not allow another hit until the start of the fourth when Scott homered. Porter followed with a single to right, only to have Darwin hit into a double play.

After Kelly's bases-loaded homer, Bucky Dent and Ken Henderson both singled. Tom Hausman relieved Travers and ended the inning by getting Deron Johnson to bounce into a force play. Hausman went the rest of the way for the Brewers, giving up only two hits. Carlos May had a harmless single in the third and Henderson doubled to open a troublesome fourth.

Johnson walked after Henderson doubled and Melton sacrificed. May was given an intentional pass to load the bases. Jorge Orta then forced Henderson at the plate and Hairston flied out to end the inning.

The victory was the fourth in the last five games for the White Sox as Gossage struck out six in the 3 1-3 innings he worked.

Players To Begin Work Today For 13th Boys Home Classic

Sixty-six players and coaches for this years Boys' Home All-Star game will begin arriving today to begin a week of practice for the 13th annual classic to be played, Saturday night July 26.

Five of the 60 players will be coming from championship teams. From state 4-A champ Gastonia Ashbrook will be end Ronnie Armstrong and fullback Skip Kelly. Willy Brown comes from state 2-A champ Murphy and all three will play on the South squad.

Daryl Allen of Ahoskie's 3-A title holder will be head coach for the North which will have Sam Harrell and Andre Sessoms, both of Ahoskie.

The North holds a 7-3 advantage over the South. There have been two ties in the series. The last two years have seen rain all but wash out the classic with last year's game ending in a 0-0 tie.

In last year's game, the only time either team came close to a score was in the first period when the South's Mike Herring missed a 35-yard field goal.

Many outstanding collegiate players participated in the Boys Home classic. In 1971, Danny Keply, now a linebacker with the Dallas Cowboys and Addison Bass, now playing baseball for East Carolina made their debuts in Ficklen stadium. Both played football at East Carolina. Kenny Strayhorn, a running back for East Carolina's Pirates played in the contest in '72.

During the 13 years the game has been played, there have been many impressive statistics.

The longest run came in 1966 when Hickory's Toby Morgan returned a kick off 90 yards. Morgan holds the record for most touchdowns, three, in a Boys Home game, as well as the rushing record, 247 yards in 11 carries. Perry Williams, then of Oxford, set the passing record in 1965 with 134 yards in 10 completions for the North.

Only three times in the game's history, has attendance dropped below 5,000. The largest crowd on hand was in 1971 when 8,200 people watched the South defeat the North, 21-7.

The game will be played Saturday evening in Ficklen Stadium.

Seahawks Hand Pirates A 5-0 Defeat

HER HIGH JUMP WINS—Elrike Meyforth of Germany, cleared the bar yesterday to win the women's high jump event at 6 feet, 2½ inches in the USA-West Germany, Pan African track meet. (AP Wirephoto)

WILMINGTON—East Carolina University's North Carolina Collegiate Summer Baseball League effort Friday was just a case of too little too late.

Take the first inning for example: After two were out, Robert Brinkley singled for the Pirates' first hit off UNC-Wilmington pitcher Randy Prosser. In the second, fifth and seventh innings the pattern was repeated. The result was a 5-0 win for the Seahawks, pulling them to 10-11 in the league standings and dropping ECU to 9-10.

With four of the Pirates' six singles coming off Prosser with two out, the Pirates just couldn't muster but one serious threat. In the seventh, Geoff Beaston beat out his second infield hit of the game, this too being with two out. Steve Bryant was safe on an error and Brinkley walked to load the bases. But the threat ended, as Alan Smith grounded out.

The Seahawks jumped on Pirate starter and loser Bob Feeney in the fourth inning for four runs. With one out, Feeney walked Bob Hollins and Mike Good. Swain Smith singled to score Hollins. Parker Davis fanned but Ken Carter doubled to score Good and Smith. Van Lewis then punched a single to score Carter with the fourth run.

ECU, with a solid week of games coming up, met UNC in Chapel Hill Saturday night in hopes of breaking the Pirate four-game losing streak (see related story).

American Men Set Record In International Meet

By BOB CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Ethiopia's Miruts Yifter, winning both distance races, and America's Mark Wohlhuter, with a fast victory at 800 meters, established themselves as strong Olympic contenders Saturday in the United States-Pan African-West German track meet.

World records were set in both the men's and women's mile relays by American and German teams, but the marks were well short of the comparable metric standards. The four-lap relay is usually run at 1,600 meters in international competition.

In team competition, the American men scored 164½ points to outdistance the Germans with 134 and the African nations with 110½.

The women's competition by the West Germans with 131 to 99 for the United States, and 40 for Pan Africa. The combined score gave the West Germans a narrow 265-263½ victory over the Americans.

The record-setting American relay team was patched together Saturday morning because of an injury to Fred Newhouse. Local collegian Ronnie Ray was recruited for the opening leg and responded with a 46.4 lap.

Robert Taylor kept the team close behind the Germans until Maurice Peoples moved it ahead on the third leg. Stan Vinson anchored in 44.9 seconds to seal the record.

Their time of 3:02.4 bettered the 1966 mark of Trinidad-Tobago by 4-10ths of a second. But it was much slower than the 2:56.1 run by the U.S. Olympic team in 1968 for 1,600 meters, a distance about 12 yards short of a mile.

The same was true of the world mark of 3:30.3 established by the West German women's team of Christiane Krause, Dragmar Fost, Erika Weinstein and Elke Barth. It was well short of the 3:23.0 recorded by East Germany for 1,600 meters in 1972.

A patchwork American men's team set a world record in the mile relay, which is rarely run in international competition. The quartet's time of 3:02.4 bettered the old mark of 3:02.8 set by Trinidad-Tobago.

The leadoff leg was run by Ronnie Ray, a local collegian from North Carolina Central who was recruited after Fred Newhouse pulled a muscle in the open 400 meters Friday.

Ray and Robert Taylor kept the United States close through the first two legs as the Germans led. Maurice Peoples opened the lead for the United States on the third leg, and Stan Vinson ran a 44.9-second anchor leg to overcome the West Germany challenge on the final lap.

International track meets usually have a 1600-meter relay, a distance roughly 15 yards short of a mile. The record for that event is 2:56.1 set by the U.S. Olympic team in 1968 and considered a superior performance to the one Saturday.

Rich Wohlhuter reestablished himself atop the world half milers by running his fastest 800 meters of the year, 1:44.1. Wohlhuter trailed Kenya's John Kiprughat until the final turn when he opened a five yard lead to win almost easily. Utah State's Mark Enyeart dropped out of the race with an apparent minor leg injury, suffering his first defeat of the year.

Ethiopia's Miruts Yifter completed the second leg of a distance double when he won the 5,000 meters in 13:38.8. Yifter's race was a copy of his 10,000 meter victory Friday. He stayed well within himself until the final lap, when he unleashed a blazing kick. His last lap was 56.3 seconds, which would be good for a miler. The distance he ran Saturday is more than three miles.

Madeline Manning Jackson, making a comeback this year, won the women's 800 meters in a brisk 2:01.5.

'Ole Diz' May Be Gone But His Legend Lives

EDITORS NOTE: A year ago this week, Dizzy Dean, one of baseball's most colorful characters, died. In the following article, a former reporter remembers some of the incidents which endeared Dean to millions.

By CURT SMITH
For The Associated Press

He was more than just a hillbilly, more than a baseball player. To millions, he was an authentic folk-hero, oft-remembered and revered, especially among the country folk who spoke his rural twang, mirrored his homespun humor, sensed the small-town values which stirred him.

Few who heard him, or remember his weekly baseball telecasts, will ever forget Ol' Diz, all 300 pounds of him, ambling up the rope ladder to the broadcast booth, stuffing popcorn in one hand and guzzling pop from the other, belting out his rousing trademark ballad, "The Wabash Cannonball."

Dizzy Dean died a year ago this month. Though he had in recent years slipped from the national spotlight, his impact endured, most markedly in the style and legacy of laughter he left behind. His death on July 15 was nationally mourned, a final tribute to the unhip, uncultured Ozark boy.

Immortalized, the subject of prose and verse, Diz became a legend, despite an education which ended in the second grade. "And I wasn't so good in first grade either," he once said.

Dean was a product of his region and times; indeed, he came in time to symbolize them. The son of a migratory cotton picker, he became a hero to the Depression downtrodden, escaping what they had not, living out what they could only dream.

For a memorable period in the mid-1930's he was baseball's greatest pitcher, its most productive gate attraction. The records of that era do not do his life justice. To the end, when he was buried in the small town of Bond, Miss., Dean retained the common touch.

"His philosphy was doing a fellow right," said his brother, Paul, who combined with Diz to form the sport's most famed pitching duos. "He never saw a man he didn't like or respect, and I never saw anyone who didn't respect or like Dizzy."

For Dizzy Dean, the public seldom masked the private. Charitable and flamboyant, unschooled but wise to the ways of the world, for 40 years he was a figure around whom fame fit comfortably.

Few could remain impartial about him. To some, Dean was the supreme braggart and pop-off, the unwitting clown. To many more, Ol' Diz was a first-

Dean's money did not make him the idol of millions, nor had his pitching feats done it by themselves. What made him so beloved, and so ridiculed by those who disliked him, was his plain and unpolished manner.

Diz pitched for the St. Louis Cardinals during the 1930's, helped make their rollicking Gas House Gang a household word and then became a broadcaster. Stories about him abounded, some more fiction than fact.

One widely circulated yarn about Dean involved Dwight Eisenhower, who asked him one day why Dean had let himself balloon to 300 pounds. "I'll tell you, Mr. President," he is alleged to have said, "For the first 20 years of my life, I never had enough to eat, and I ain't caught up yet."

Another tale concerned an incident 45 years ago. Ignoring curfew, Dean bumped into the Texas League president at 3 a.m. "Good morning, president," Diz is supposed to have said unabashedly. "So the old boy is prowling around by himself, tonight, eh? Well sir, I'm not one to squawk. Us stars and presidents must have our fun."

Then there was the time Dean, born in Lucas, Ark., gave writers different locales as his place of birth. "I was helping the writers out," he said. "Them ain't lies; them's scoops."

And who could forget the story of Dean telling writers, hours after he had thrown a three-hitter in the first game of a doubleheader that "If I'd known Daffy (Paul Dean) was going to pitch a no-hitter in the second game, I would have pitched one, too."

The unadorned manner of the man was even more revealing, especially when he worked as a broadcaster.

He mangled the language so badly that school teachers protested. A new lexicon of baseball terms evolved. To Dean, a runner didn't slide, he "slud." A fielder did throw the ball, he "threwed." He would announce, "The runners are now returning to their respectable bases," and laughter would erupt in living rooms across America.

More so than Ruth or Stengel or Gehrig, Dizzy Dean was pure Americana. That was the essence of his appeal. He spoke of an earlier age; his manner and bearing were of a simpler, less turbulent era.

To be sure, he could be insufferably vain ("I may not have been the greatest pitcher ever, but I was amongst 'em," he would say). Part egotist, part gambler, Dean was a man of many dimensions.

The social unrest and sophisticated trends of the 60s and early 70's never affected Dean. "Who the heck is Raquel Welch?" he once asked in total sincerity.

He was an enduring relic. For those who feared that nothing would remain as it had, Dizzy Dean was proof to the contrary.

Just as my father had laughed at his antics on the field, I revered Dean's frolics in the broadcast booth. "He became a legend to thousands of people who didn't know if Dizzy had thrown left-handed or right-handed. And didn't care," announcer Buddy Blattner said.

I like to remember Dizzy as I last heard him, a year before his death. NBC brought him back for its first 1973 Monday night telecast, and he completely dominated regulars Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek.

Where did Dizzy live, Gowdy asked him.

"Why, In Bond, Mississippi." Where's Bond?

"Oh, 'bout three miles away from Wiggins." Where's Wiggins?

"Oh, 'bout three miles away from Bond," Diz replied.

Only Dean could get away with that. "They'll never be another one like me," he once said. And as was his custom, Dizzy Dean was right.

Robinson Drives In Oriole Winner

BALTIMORE (AP) — Lee May's fourth-inning home run, his fourth in three games, tied the score, then Brooks Robinson's run-scoring single put Baltimore ahead, giving the Orioles a 3-2 victory over the Oakland A's Saturday in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader.

Reggie Jackson's 20th homer of the season off Baltimore Rookie Paul Mitchell, 1-0, had given the A's a 2-1 lead in the top of the fourth.

But May clouted his 16th of the year off Vida Blue, 12-8, to tie it. Then Don Baylor walked, stole second and came home on Robinson's single to left.

Baylor had doubled in the second and scored Baltimore's first run on a single by Bobby Grich.

Mitchell, making his third major league appearance and his second start, allowed a run in the third when Bert Campaneris doubled and scored on a triple by Bill North.

North State Stars In LL Area Finals

ROANOKE RAPIDS—Greenville's North State Little League All-Stars moved into the championship game of the Area II tournament Friday with a 4-3 win over Tarboro.

Roanoke Rapids beat Greenville's Tar Heel Stars ousting them from the tourney, 9-4.

Roanoke Rapids had beaten Seymour Johnson in the first round. Greenville drew a bye. Roanoke Rapids got a run in the first but made it a 4-0 lead in the second. Greenville cut the gap to 4-2 in the bottom of the frame as Emmett Walsh and Jeff James scored. Roanoke Rapids iced the win in the third as Eric Sigmon smashed a three-run homer giving his team an 8-2 lead.

Greenville's other two runs came in the fifth. Mark Douglas singled and Gordon Douglas reached on an error scoring Mark Douglas. John Williams singled to drive in Gordon.

In the second game, Tarboro slipped into a 1-0 lead in the first but Greenville North State rallied to take the lead away. Grant Stackhouse and Tom Brown both walked and both stole up. An error scored Stackhouse and a second error scored Brown.

Roger Williams singled to open the third for Greenville and an error put him on third. Teddy Gartman flew out scoring Williams.

The winning run came over in the fourth. Scott Galloway singled and a wild pitch moved him to second. Kenny Barnes reached on an error scoring Galloway.

Tarboro closed to 4-3 in the last of the sixth but Greenville choked the rally one run short.

Widby Fails Physical; One Of Many To Be Cut

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Veteran Ron Widby, the National Conference's fifth-ranked punter in 1972, was an early victim as National Football League teams opened their 1975 training camps.

The Green Bay Packers punter, who averaged 43.1 yards per punt in 1974 but sat out last year after undergoing back surgery to correct a disc problem, failed his physical examination.

"It was not unforeseen, but you hate to lose a punter of his caliber," said Packers' Coach Bart Starr.

Widby, who also played in the American Basketball Association in 1967, was obtained by the Pack before the 1972 season from the Dallas Cowboys.

"He's a fine, fine man," Starr said of Widby, "but we just couldn't accept him the way he was physically."

Four other veterans were sent to other teams Friday and a rookie returned to the New York Giants.

The New York Jets traded five-year veteran cornerback Earlie Thomas to the Buffalo Bills for an undisclosed future draft choice. Thomas, 29, was a starter for the Jets until last season.

Cheyunski, a 6-foot-1, 220-pound middle linebacker, was a Bills starter for the last two years and is in his eighth season in the NFL. Cowlings, 6-5, 240, is in his sixth year and was the Bill's first-round draft choice in 1970. He was traded to Houston in 1973.

Former Atlanta Falcons running back Harmon Wages was picked up as a free agent by Philadelphia. Eagles Coach Mike McCormack said he feels the 28-year-old Wages is "a good athlete...an outstanding receiver. Last season, Wages played with the Jacksonville Sharks of the World Football League.

In Washington, an attorney for running back Duane Thomas met with Redskins President Edward Bennett Williams. Thomas, who did not sign a contract last season and became a free agent May 1, is expected to be at the Redskins' training camp in Carlisle, Pa., Saturday night when the veterans report.

Washington Coach George Allen, however, has said Thomas would not be permitted to practice until he signs a contract.

The Kansas City Chiefs trimmed their roster Friday by dropping 14 rookies and free agents. Those cut included veteran running backs Dave Atkins and Roy Snell. Both previously played with the San Francisco 49ers.

Starr, in his first year as head coach and general manager of the Packers, was upset when two rookies, receiver Tony Giaquinto and defensive back Bob Fuhriman, left camp.

"I'm not making this comment about them as individuals," he said, "but I think something is wrong when people take bonuses and then come to camp for three days and leave. I think something is lacking in character."

Elder Leading Pleasant Valley

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — The traumatic experience of being the first black to play in the Masters put Lee Elder in a slump both before and after that famed spring tournament in Augusta, Ga.

But he's looking for a chance to try it again.

"I'm looking forward, after I win here, to going back again," Elder said after his eagle-spiced, four-under-par 67 had given him the lead in Friday's second round of the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

"I'm very happy to be in this position," the 41-year-old Elder said after compiling a two-round total of 135, seven-under-par for two trips over the hilly, 7,119-yard Pleasant Valley Country Club course. "Now the other guys have to catch me."

His confidence may be just a trifle premature, however.

Lurking over his shoulder, just one shot back, is Lee Trevino, one of the game's most deadly, most-feared competitors and the man who first thwarted Elder's bid for a spot in the Masters.

That came in 1972 when Trevino beat Elder in a sudden death playoff for the Greater Hartford Open title and an automatic spot in the Masters. Elder eventually acquired the invitation with a triumph in the 1974 Monsanto Open.

Now they're locked in a struggle again. Trevino, whose 66 was the best round of the hot, hazy, muggy day, has a 136 total halfway through this chase for a $40,000 first prize.

"It was a really good, solid round—the first I've had in some time." Trevino said.

But the subdued Trevino is still on the mend from a lightning jolt he received in his last American start, the Western Open.

"I'm not able to do all my exercises yet," he said. "I used to skip rope 200 times. I tried it last night. I got to 45 and had to quit. But I'm just glad to be able to hop up and down. I get tired pretty easy, but other than that I'm okay."

Another stroke back, two shots behind the leader at 137, were Rod Curl, Ben Crenshaw, George Johnson and Bud Allin. Curl, the first round leader, slipped to a 71 when, he said, "my swing kind of went haywire a couple of times." Allin played his back nine in 31 on his way to a 67 while Johnson and Crenshaw each had 68.

Hale Irwin, who needs to finish ninth or better in this tournament to vault past the absent Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller into the season's money-winning lead, was in a fight for the top spot until he bogeyed his final hole. He finished with a 68 and remained in strong contention at 138.

Beltone Is Champ

Beltone took a forfeit win over Coca-Cola Friday night to sew up the Ladies Softball Championship.

In other games, the Daily Reflector scored twice in the top of the sixth to beat Burroughs Wellcome, 9-8. The Reflector had taken a 2-0 lead in the first and they made it 5-0 on the third. B-W rallied to close the gap to 5-4 in the fourth but the two runs in the sixth to win the game.

Industrial Ends Season

Daniel Construction, Union Carbide and the Jaycees each took wins in the regular season games of the Industrial Softball League Friday night.

Daniels won the first game of the night slipping by Carolina Telephone, 7-6, but they had to hold off a last inning rally to do it. Daniel scored a run in the third to tie the game, 1-1 and then went on top, 3-1 in the fourth but CT&T cut it to 3-2 in the bottom of the fourth. A homer by Tugwell helped CT&T move in front by one but Daniel got two in the sixth and one in the seventh to win it. CT&T rallied for a pair in the last of the seventh but came up a run short.

The Jaycees took the second game of the night, 15-9, over Burroughs-Wellcome. B-W moved out to a 9-6 by the fourth. The Jaycees knocked off a run in the fifth then erupted for eight in the sixth to win the game.

The Daily Reflector could only muster four runs as they fell, 10-4, to Union Carbide. UC got three in the second to tie the game and then won it with a six run rally in the third.

The first game of the tournament will be Monday as GUCo meets CT&T

Pier 5 Moves Closer

Pier 5 gained a 10-1 victory over the Chargers Friday night to move a game closer to Kentucky Fried Chicken in the City Softball League's American Division.

In other games, Morgan Printers beat One Hour, 9-8 and The Little Sluggers dumped Baggett's, 16-2.

Pier 5 got a run in the first pushed over two in the third to get the winner. Pier 5 added five in the fifth. The Chargers scored their run in the fourth.

Morgan got two runs in the first moving ahead of One Hour, 2-1, but One Hour rallied to take a 3-2 lead in the second. One Hour made it an 8-2 game in the top of the fourth but in the fifth, Morgan scored three runs to cut the gap to 8-6. Morgan won the game rallying for three runs in the seventh.

In the final game, The Sluggers got all they needed in the first scoring five runs. Bill Kuykendal and Don Mattox had homers for the Sluggers while Chris Summerell had one for Baggett's.

Carolina Dairy, Planters Take Babe Ruth Wins

Jarvis Campbell had three hits and six RBI's leading Planters Bank to its third straight win and Carolina Dairy got a run in the seventh on a walk to win its second in a row in Babe Ruth action Friday night.

Carolina Dairy nipped Pepsi-Cola 4-3 handing Pepsi its third loss of the second half of the season. Planters roared to a 13-5 win over North Carolina National Bank handing NCNB its third loss.

Both Pepsi and Carolina Dairy scored a run in the first. Pepsi slipped back on top of the third as Marty Worthington walked, stole second and scored on a hit by Al Shackleford.

Carolina Dairy tied it up again in the bottom of the frame. Mike Williams got a hit and he stole up. Gary Chapman got a single to score Williams.

Howard Tucker led off the fourth with a walk and an error moved him to second. He took third on a fielder's choice and scored on a hit by Thomas Beverly to put Carolina Dairy on top, 3-2.

Pepsi, however, threatened to send the game into extra innings tieing the game in the seventh. Bob Morehead singled and stole second. Worthington reached on an error scoring Morehead.

But Carolina Dairy put Bobby Woronoff on by an error, Marshall Heath singled and a wild pitch put Woronoff on third. Tucker and Mitch Meeks both walked forcing in Woronoff ending the game.

NCNB jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the top of the first but Planters rallied to take the lead, 3-2. NCNB tied the game briefly in the top of the second as Cliff Fearington was hit by a pitch, took second on a fielder's choice, moved to third on an error and scored on an error.

Planters came right back to sail into the lead on five runs. Jim Kernan led off reaching on an error and passed balls put him on third. Blair Smith reached on a fielder's choice scoring Kernan. Walks to Miccah Dixon, Mac Stokes and David Pettus forced in Smith. Campbell singled to center driving in Dixon and Stokes. Campbell tried to go to second but was thrown out. Pettus scored on the play.

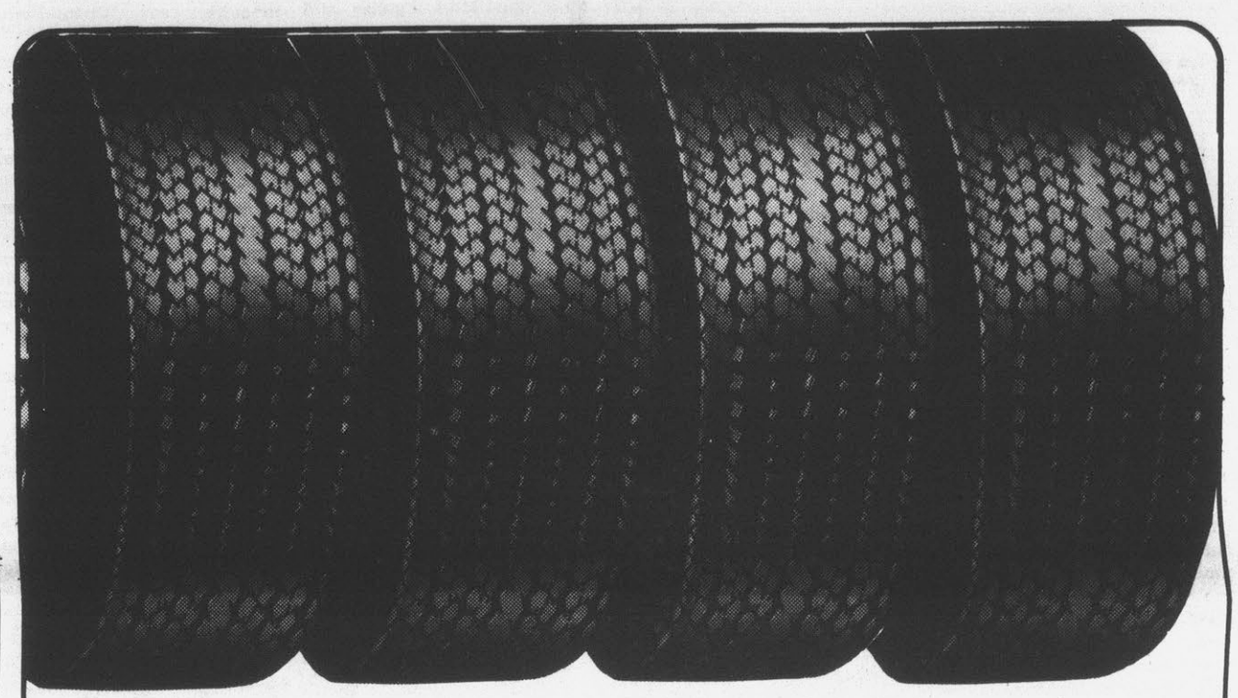

Planters added five more in the third for a 13-4 lead. NCNB scored its final run in the seventh as Mac Stocks singled and later scored on a passed ball.

All-Star Break Did Wonders For Perry

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Making the All-Star team can make a pitcher feel pretty good. Not making it made Gaylord Perry feel even better.

"The All-Star break was the best thing that could have happened for me," Perry said after outdueling New York ace Catfish Hunter Friday night, hurling a four-hitter for the Texas Rangers and riding Mike Cubbage's run-scoring single in the seventh inning to a 1-0 victory over the Yankees.

In the rest of the American League, Milwaukee blanked California 2-0, Chicago shut out Detroit 4-0, Baltimore beat Minnesota 9-6, Boston defeated Kansas City 9-3 and Oakland edged Cleveland 7-6.

"After I pitched last Thursday in Boston," Perry said, "Manager Billy Martin told me to just go ahead and go home and get my family moved to Texas then relax and forget about baseball.

"It was good to get away for a while. It was like a long four years, that first half of the season. That's the first time I've had four straight days off like that in a long time and I definitely think it helped.

"I felt like I had better stuff tonight than any other time this season," added Perry, who struck out four and walked two en route to improving his record to 8-14.

Hunter, 12-9, matched him with shutout innings until the seventh, when Lenny Randle walked and came around on singles by Toby Harrah and Cubbage.

Brewers 2, Angels 0

Nolan Ryan, 10-10, absorbed his seventh straight loss and admitted he had nobody to blame but himself.

"I'm just in a slump and I'll have to pitch my way out of it," he added. "I've never really gotten down on myself in this slump."

White Sox 4, Tigers 0

Southpaw Jim Kaat twirled a four-hitter against the Tigers to become major league's first 14-game winner and the White Sox gave him more than enough support with a four-run fourth inning, two scoring on Bucky Dent's single.

Orioles 9, Twins 6

The Orioles got all the runs they needed—eight of them—in the forth inning, four on a grand-slam home run by Ellie Hendricks and a three more on the first of two homers by Lee May. But Mike Cuellar still needed relief help when the Twins erupted for four runs in the sixth, two on Lyman Bostock's double.

Red Sox 9, Royals 3

Carl Yastrzemski and Jim Rice highlighted a 13-hit attack with home runs to rout Kansas City and give the Red Sox their ninth straight victory, keeping them 5½ games ahead of second-place Milwaukee in the East. Bill Lee pitched a six-hitter, giving up all the Royals' runs on Harmon Killebrew's fourth-inning double and his ninth-inning homer.

A's 7, Indians 6

Reggie Jackson and Billy Williams knocked in two runs apiece and Joe Rudi slugged a homer to beat Cleveland and widen Oakland's West Division over Kansas City to 10½ games.

A STRIKEOUT TRIO

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Strikeout artist Nolan Ryan of the California Angels has company on his own team. This spring, Frank Tanana struck out 13 Boston Red Sox in a nine-inning game. And Andy Hassler fanned nine Baltimore Orioles in 10 innings.

Amateur Slips Into Open Tie

By CHRIS CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

NORTHFIELD, N.J. (AP) — While stiff ocean breezes played havoc with most of the pros' scores, an amateur from New Mexico sneaked up on them and grabbed a share of the second round lead at the U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.

Nancy Marie Lopez of Roswell, N.M., birdied the 18th hole Friday for a 74-147, and a tie with Canada's 27-year-old Sandra Post, a seven-year veteran of the Ladies' Professional Golf Association tour. Miss Post carded a one-over-par 73 for her three-under 36-hole total.

First-round leader Judy Rankin slipped to second place with 77, following her even-par 72 Thursday. Tied with Miss Rankin at 149 was Diane Patterson, a 32-year-old former trapeze artist from Texas who shot 74.

Even at 150 were JoAnne Carner, who shot 77, Laura Baugh with a 74, and South African Sally Little, whose 70 on Friday was the only sub-par round of the first two days on the 6,165-yard Atlantic City Country Club course.

Fifty players, including eight amateurs, made the cut at 158 for the nationally-televised rounds today and Sunday. Among the missing were Carol Mann (160) and Sandra Burns, a first-year pro who shot 74 Thursday but skidded to an 85 Friday.

Fittipaldi Wins British Grand Prix

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

SILVERSTONE, England (AP) — Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil took a gamble on a tire change Saturday and won the British Grand Prix auto race while the rest of the cars on the rainswept Silverstone track skidded and crashed.

No one was injured seriously in the crackups of 11 cars which occurred during a downpour before any drivers other than Fittipaldi pitted to put on rain tires.

Fittipaldi, leading after 54 laps, swung into the pits for a tire change and had his McLaren back on the track moments later. He steered past two pileups and finished the 56th lap alone before the red flag stopped the race.

Carlos Pace of Brazil, in a Brabham, was declared the runner-up and Jody Scheckter of South Africa, in a Tyrrell Ford, was third.

Both were involved in mishaps. Pace was not hurt but Scheckter was one of five drivers who were. He suffered a strained wrist.

Jean Pierre Jarier of France suffered facial cuts when his UOP Shadow skidded off the straight.

In the two major crashes, Pace and Tom Pryce of Britain, also in a UOP Shadow, suffered slight neck injuries and Tony Brise of Britain, in an Embassy Hill, suffered cuts and bruises.

Howard Tilden, a race marshal who was hit by flying debris, suffered a broken ankle and concussion.

Other drivers who crashed but escaped injury were Mark Donohue, Media, Pa., in a Penske March; Wilson Fittipaldi, brother of the winner, in a Copersucar; Vittorio Brambilla of Italy, March Ford; James Hunt of Britain, Hesketh; Jochen Mass of West Germany, McLaren; and John Watson of Britain, Surtees.

The lead constantly changed throughout the race as intermittent rain forced drivers to repeatedly pit to switch between regular tires to rain tires as conditions dictated.

The crashes occurred on two corners on the back side of the track, out of view of most spectators and the news media, and led to mass confusion for race officials who tried to sort out what occurred when and where.

After 2½ hours, Emerson Fittipaldi officially was declared the winner, completing 56 laps in 1 hour, 22 minutes at an average speed of 193.12 miles per hour.

Pace and Scheckter each completed 55 laps. Hunt was listed as fourth, Donohue fifth, Brambillo sixth and Mass seventh, each also completing 55 laps.

Niki Lauda of Austria, the pre-race favorite driving a Ferrari, was listed in eighth place, followed by Patrick Depailler of France, in a Tyrrell Ford, and Alan Jones of Britain, in an Embassy Hill. All completed 54 laps.

The only other American, Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., was listed as 12th in his Parnelli.

Six drivers led the race at one stage or another as rain forced tire changes.

"The pits look like Piccadilly Circus," Jackie Stewart, the former world driver from Britain said at one point. He later added, "I have never seen so many changes in the leaders in any Grand Prix."

The rain, which had plagued the race all day, returned with Fittipaldi leading on the 54th lap. He went to the pit but Pace and Scheckter, who had been challenging for the lead, continued.

"I restarted on wet tires, but even with those it was difficult to control the car," the winner said afterwards.

Perez Gets Rare Chance; Smashes Grand Slam

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Tony Perez came up to bat and guess what? The bases were loaded.

"The way Joe Morgan has been driving in runs this year, it's been tough for me," said Perez. "I've been up a few times this year with the bases loaded—but not much."

It was such a pleasant surprise that Perez took advantage of it—hitting a home run that led the Cincinnati Reds to a 10-3 victory over the Montreal Expos Friday night.

The grand slam was the fourth of Perez' career and, along with a run-scoring grounder, boosted his RBI to 61 this year, not bad considering the way Morgan is hitting in front of him.

"I guess," admitted Perez, "this is my fastest start since 1970."

The victory kept Cincinnati's 12½-game lead intact in the National League West. The second-place Los Angeles Dodgers didn't lose any ground, beating the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3. In the other NL games, Atlanta beat New York 4-3, Philadelphia turned back Houston 7-4, San Diego defeated Chicago 4-2 and San Francisco nipped St. Louis 2-1 in 10 innings.

Montreal starter Dennis Blair, 6-10, loaded the bases in the third inning on walks to Pete Rose, Ken Griffey and Joe Morgan and, after Johnny Bench struck out, Perez staked the Reds to a 4-1 lead with his 14th homer of the season, a shot into the left field bleachers.

Cincinnati scored four more runs in the fourth. Winner Gary Nolan, 9-5, walked and Rose singled and Chuck Taylor replaced Blair. Nolan scored when shortstop Pepe Frias misplayed Griffey's grounder.

Dodgers 4, Pirates 3

Manny Mota's pinch double delivered two runs in the eighth inning, leading Los Angeles to a comeback victory over Pittsburgh. Bill Buckner singled and Jimmy Wynn walked to set up Mota's game-winning hit off reliever Ramon Hernandez. The rally wiped out the Pirates' three-run uprising in the top of the inning.

Braves 4, Mets 3

Atlanta, aided by two New York errors, scored three times in the fifth inning in a rally capped by Darrell Evans' double and went on to beat the Mets. The game was a scoreless pitching duel between Atlanta's Carl Morton, 11-9, and New York's Jon Matlack, 10-8, when the Braves exploded for three runs.

Phillies 7, Astros 4

Garry Maddox tripled to key a three-run second inning, then beat out a bunt single to help Philadelphia score three runs in the seventh and beat Houston. The Phillies trailed 4-3 going into the seventh when Mike Schmidt and Maddox beat out bunts against loser J.R. Richard, who had retired 13 straight batters.

Padres 4, Cubs 2

Gene Locklear doubled home two tie-breaking runs in the seventh inning, leading San Diego over Chicago. After errors gave the Cubs two tying runs in the top of the seventh, the Padres rallied in their half when John Grubb and Tito Fuentes hit two-out singles off loser Milt Wilcox, 0-1. Lefthander Ken Frailing relieved Wilcox and gave up the two-run double to Locklear.

Giants 2, Cardinals 1

Chris Speier's 10th-inning single gave San Francisco its victory over St. Louis. Von Joshua led off the 10th against Greg Terlecky with a single and was bunted to second by Derrel Thomas. Bobby Murcer received an intentional walk, both runners moved up on Ted Simmons' passed ball, then Willie Montanez was walked intentionally before Speier singled to left-center field.

THREE TRIPLES NOW

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Yonkers Raceway, with its richest meet in history, has discarded the "daily double" on the first two races. The first race now includes a $3 triple. The third and ninth races at the old Empire City oval also feature triples.

Rule Not Dropped In '70 Bargaining

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Negotiators for pro football players did not agree during the hard-fought 1970 bargaining talks to drop their demand for major changes in the Rozelle Rule, Executive Director Ed Garvey of the National Football League Players Association (NFLPA) testified Friday.

Garvey said it was one of many nagging issues that remained in the series of talks that carried over to the next summer before an agreement was signed. The pact still left a host of unresolved matters, said Garvey, testifying as the final witness in the suit by 15 present or former NFL players who seek to eliminate the rule.

Garvey continues on the stand today, with expectations that U.S. District Court Judge Earl Larson will call for briefs within a month to six weeks. Larson said he doesn't expect to hand down a decision until November or December.

Defendants are the league, Commissioner Pete Rozelle and club owners.

The case went to trial in February and consumed about three months, with 2½ months recess.

Garvey testified Friday that Pittsburgh Steelers Vice President Dan Rooney told him three years ago he wouldn't resign any player to the team who'd played out the option.

"He said he'd waive or trade such a person," the witness said.

Defense attorney Paul Tagliabue showed Garvey a postersized picture inscribed by former NFLPA President John Mackey and sent to Alan Miller, then counsel to the players association.

It read: "It's a pleasure knowing you. After having worked with you I can honestly say you're the best attorney I know. Best wishes and may the best of your past be the worst of your future. Your friend, John."

Garvey said that didn't square either with his or Mackey's true regard for Miller, who he charged did not properly protect NFLPA interests in the 1970 negotiations.

Yifter Going After Double Track Win

By BOB CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Miruts Yifter, the short, smiling sergeant from the Ethiopian Air Force, will attempt to complete an arduous distance double in the U.S.-Pan African-West Germany track meet today.

Other runners, particularly the unacclimated Germans, wilted in the heat and humidity of Duke University's Stadium Friday.

But Yifter ran like a well-oiled machine in winning the 10,000 meters in 28:44.2.

It was more than a minute slower than his African record, but the pace suited Yifter. Speaking only Amharic, Yifter said through an interpreter that he had not run as fast as he might have because he wanted to save something for the 5,000 meters Saturday.

He was not pressed in the 10,000 Friday because Frank Shorter was scratched from the race with a slight leg injury. In the 5,000, he will face Dick Buerkle, who declined to take Shorter's place Friday to insure that he would be fresh for today's race.

In the 1971 U.S.-Pan African meet, Yifter miscounted the laps in the 5,000 and stopped with one to go. He could not read the numerals flashed to the runners to indicate laps left and was unaccustomed to the use of a gun to signal the final lap. This time he says the officials can use whatever they want to signal the remaining laps—he will be ready.

Another potential Olympian who liked the humidity was West German Walter Schmidt. He said it helped loosen the massive muscles of his 290-pound frame. Schmidt heaved the 16-pound hammer 249 feet, 7 inches, the longest throw ever in the Western Hemisphere.

The American men's team, despite the decision of many top athletics to compete independently on the European circuit, managed to post a 95½-74 lead over the Germans in the team battle. The African nations trailed with 54½. The Americans did it with winning performances in the shorter races and some timely wins in the field events.

Ed Preston of Arkansas State got the U.S. off to a good start when he captured the 100 meters in 10.4. Stan Vinson of Eastern Michigan followed with a 45.4 win in the 400 meters. Jerry Wilson, a former Southern California, star took the 110-meter hurdles in 13.7.

The closest race Friday went to Chicagoan Ken Popejoy, who found himself mired in a tactical 1,500-meter run. With Filbert Bayi staying home in Tanzania, there was no one to set the early pace.

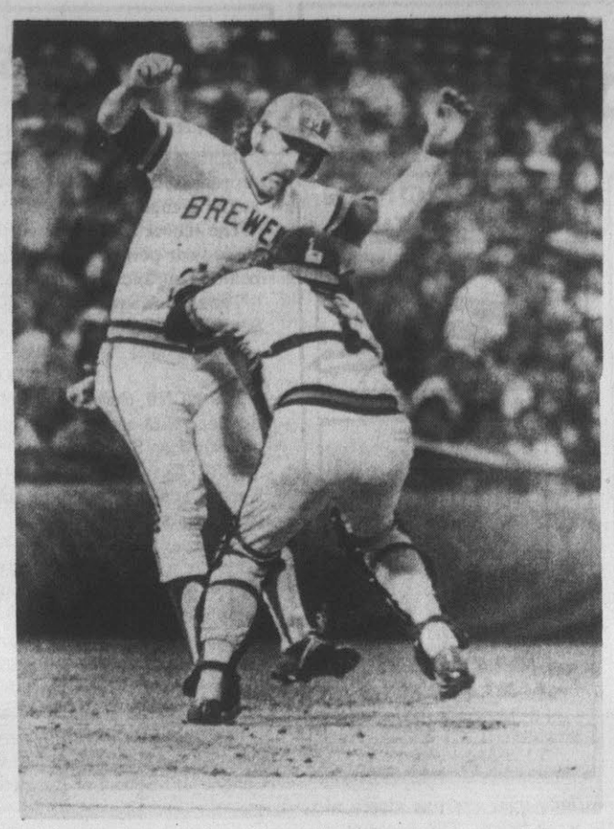

The field passed the half-mile in 2:11.

"It was ridiculously slow, but I wasn't about to take the lead. I had confidence in my kick," said Popejoy. He won in a mediocre 3:47.8.

Wildlife Afield: How To Catch Chromed Fish

By JIM DEAN

I recently returned from a week of vacation at the beach where I witnessed the landing of a possible new state record salt water species from the Emerald Isle Pier on Bogue Banks.

Of course, Joel Arrington who keeps the fish records for North Carolina will have to make the final determination, but I have reason to believe that this new state record will wind up in what is known as the "odd" category. I say this because I happen to hold the only other record in this category, but I'll tell you about that later.

What happened was this. I was standing on the pier next to this other fellow and both of us were pulling in big spots two at a time. Some of the fishermen were also catching small flounders on minnows and strip baits.

The fellow next to me had put out a live minnow, but although flounders were being hauled in left and right, his minnow had been ignored for over an hour.

"I can't understand it," he said as he picked up his rod to check his bait. "Nothing has touched this minnow. . .uh, wait a minute, I believe I've got a bite."

He held the rod for a moment, giving the "flounder" time to swallow the bait, then he set the hook. The rod bent sharply and the drag on his reel gave a squeal.

"Hey, that's a good one," I said.

"It's really pulling good," he replied. His efforts to raise the still unseen catch attracted the attention of others along the pier rail. One of them grabbed the dropnet that is used to land big fish.

"It must be a whopper flounder," said someone.

Deep under the water, I saw a wide silver flash. "It's not a flounder," I said. "It looks like a big pompano or maybe a bluefish. I saw the flash of silver when he turned on his side."

The angler struggled for a few more minutes while we all stood around watching, then suddenly his "fish" popped to the surface. It was—believe it or not—the chrome-plated top of a water fountain.

Nobody said a word as the catch was reeled up the side of the pier and over the rail. It hit the deck with a resounding clang. Then we all collapsed in helpless laughter.

That's a real nice one," somebody said. "You don't hardly get them kind anymore."

"What did he bite?" asked another chuckling angler.

"You really ought to have him mounted," said still another fisherman. "I believe you've caught one of the rarest of all fish—a chromed saltwater fountain fish. I hear they're a hybrid of the horseshoe crab and squid. I think they move around by squirting water."

I confess I felt instant companionship with the "lucky" angler. Perhaps you recall that I related an instance back in 1971 of how I landed a size 10 and a half low-heeled tennis shoe from the rocks at Ft. Macon using a saltwater flyrod.

Boaters are reminded that under law it is illegal to tie up their boats to buoys or channel markers.

Gathering For Trades

By DAN EVEN
Associated Press Writer

TROY, Mich. (AP) — About 5,000 baseball diehards, including 350 major collectors of the sport's memorabilia, descended on the Troy Hilton Inn Friday for the sixth annual Midwest Sports Collectors Convention.

The three-day spree of trading, selling and just plain looking, is the granddaddy of the burgeoning sports hobby convention phenomenon.

There were about 15 such conventions across the country in the last year in New York City, Indianapolis, Chicago, Seattle, Houston, Los Angeles, Cincinnati and such out of the way places as Perry, Iowa, and Grove City, Pa.

Sports collection is gaining in popularity yearly, and it is estimated that there are 10,000 sports collectors nationally.

The convention is the prime reason for the rapid growth, and the hobby now has six thriving papers — including a biweekly — and is trying to launch a national collectors' club.

Collectors are latching onto everything connected with sports — publications, scorecards, uniforms, bats, autographs, yearbooks, photographs and postcards.

But the center of most collections is the baseball card — that little piece of pasteboard that is part of growing up for most American males.

Baseball cards have been around almost as long as the game, with the first known cards produced by Old Judge cigarettes back in the 1880s.

Over the decades, cards have come with a variety of products — ice cream, hot dogs, pop, breakfast cereal, peanut butter and gum.

The most common is the so-called gum card, which first appeared in the 1930s but came into its own in the late 1940s and now is the mainstay of the hobby.

Jay Barry, one of four organizers of the Midwest convention in 1970, said his group started with modest hopes, and the convention was born.

"We wanted to attract a few dozen collectors for a meeting and trading session in a public place for the first time in the hobby," he recalled.

The idea took off, and this year, the Midwest convention will have 165 tables with collectors and dealers showing and selling their wares.

Detroit Tigers' Manager Ralph Houk and Detroit Free Press and Sporting News columnist Joe Falls will be guest speakers Saturday.

Three auctions, mostly of cards, are planned during the three days, and people with what they believe are rare items can put them up for bid.

Prices for cards range from a penny for the most recent mass produced cards to $10 to $25 for some regionals — cards put out only in some parts of the country — superstar cards from earlier eras.

Conigliaro Still Trying Come-Back

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A decade ago Tony Conigliaro was a baseball star, his sizzling swing having socked 104 home runs in less than four seasons with the Boston Red Sox.

Today, after a 1967 injury at the plate and numerous comeback attempts, the 30-year-old outfielder shares dingy locker rooms and long bus rides with another Red Sox team — Boston's Pawtucket farm squad.

"I figured AAA was just a notch below the majors," he said in the locker room of the Charleston Charlies before a game this week. "It isn't. It's depressing."

In the game that followed, his team lost 2-0 to the Charlies before 762 persons. Conigliaro stepped to the plate four times, but was unable to muster a hit.

The Revere, Mass., native was playing with the Boston Red Sox at the age of 19, the fans adoring his hitting prowess. But on Aug. 19, 1967, a pitch fractured his cheekbone and damaged his eyesight.

Although he tried twice to return to the major leagues, he was forced to give up and return to his motel and nightclub businesses.

Then, last year, "somehow the hole in my eye closed. It healed. And, my eyesight returned to 20-20," he recalled. "I decided to give baseball another try. I had to."

The Red Sox gave Conigliaro another chance. But he pulled a groin muscle and batted a measly .120. Boston gave him a choice: quit or go to Pawtucket.

Now he's hitting about .240 with two homers, but he has a promise that Boston will call him up for the last month of the season.

"I'm satisfied with that. I know I can still play, I can still swing the bat," he said. "I can understand the Red Sox situation. They've got guys up there who are really hitting the ball."

But his old fame follows him to International League cities such as Charleston, Memphis and Syracuse.

"It's tough. They (fans) steal everything that has my name on it. I've lost gloves and hats. I don't have a thing of my own anymore. I've even had to take my name off my traveling bag. That's funny."

A WATERGATE HORSE

NEW YORK (AP) — When people mention a political coverup they naturally think of the Watergate incident. But at Belmont Park racetrack there's a pretty good 3-year-old bay colt named Political Coverup. After showing fine speed in morning workouts at Belmont, the son of Buckpasser-Bold Consort won his first start at Aqueduct by two lengths and returned $17 for $2.

Soviets May Need More Grain

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union may be worse off in its harvest prospects than officially disclosed and could need even larger amounts of foreign grain to make up deficits, according to sources in the Agriculture Department.

A senior official admitted Friday night that Soviet harvest prospects have continued to deteriorate from USDA's estimate last week that the crop would produce 195 million metric tons. He added that no new assessment had been made.

But sources, who asked not to be identified, said the Soviet harvest potential has dropped to 190 million tons and possibly to 185 million, the lowest since the disastrously short grain crop of 168.2 million tons in 1972 that sent Moscow scurrying into world markets for grain.

The 1972 purchases, including 19 million tons of U.S. grain, helped trigger rising food prices for American consumers as prices for wheat, corn and other grain went up.

Richard E. Bell, deputy assistant secretary for international affairs and commodity programs, said he could not confirm or deny reports from USDA sources that the Soviet crop has declined 5 million to 10 million tons since the estimate of 195 million tons was issued July 9.

But Bell said that most department experts "are inclined to think it will have to be lowered" because of worsening drought conditions in major grain areas of the Soviet Union.

"I think everybody's generally agreed that the crop is sliding below 195 (million tons,)" Bell told a reporter. "But they haven't decided that finally yet."

Two U.S. grain companies announced this week that Russia had bought a total of 3.2 million tons of wheat, and Canada said sales of 2 million tons had been made. Rumors still were flying that the Soviets also were in the market for corn and more wheat.

Bell said also that a team of U.S. grain experts was due in Moscow this weekend to check on Soviet spring-planted grain, which makes up two-thirds of Russian production.

A year ago, another U.S. team returned abruptly after arriving in Moscow because Soviet officials would not let it visit some important grain areas. The trips are part of a joint U.S.-Soviet agreement calling for the exchange of agricultural information.

Based on the official USDA estimate of 195 million tons of grain production this year — down 10 per cent from Moscow's goal— officials think Russia will need to import a total of 15 million tons to make up the shortfall.

Department officials, including Bell, also say that the United States could easily sell Russia five million tons of corn and five million of wheat if 1975 crops turn out as large as they look now. Up to seven million tons each of wheat and corn could be provided without difficulty under those circumstances, officials say.

Punjabs Settle In California

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Fresno County, spiced by the languages, customs and cultures of many nations, is getting an added dash of curry-flavored piquancy from a minor wave of immigration from the Punjab region of India.

Pitt Conservation Practices Helpful

Many of the conservation practices that have been completed in Pitt County are very helpful during this rainy season, according to Roy Beck of the Soil Conservation Service.

Since the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District was formed on May 12, 1942, more than 8,400,000 feet of drainage mains and laterals have been installed on Pitt County farms. A total of 9,110,000 feet of subsurface drains have been installed and more than 750,000 feet of stream channels have been completed.

Local farmers have observed conservation practices by installing 103,400 feet of surface field drains and by planting nearly 200 acres of grassed waterways.

Other conservation measures that have been completed in this county include 250,000 feet of field borders, 1,500 feet of structures for water control and more than 1,800 acres of land smoothing.

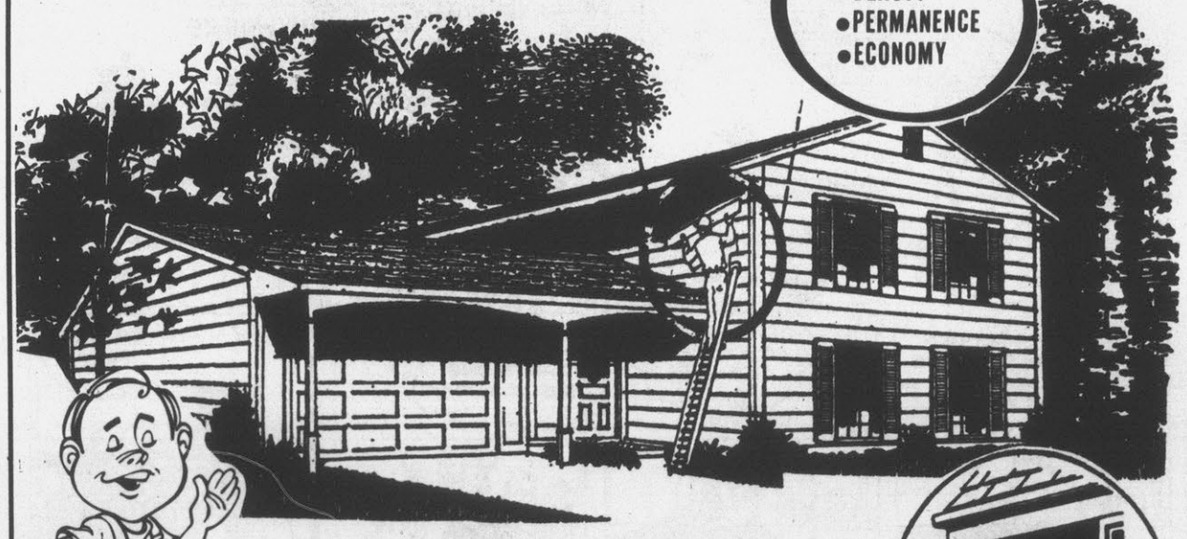

"These conservation measures will be an important factor in whether or not the crops in the fields will produce good harvest," Beck said.

Marmosets are the smallest monkeys in the world and are never larger than half-grown kittens and squirrels. They live in the warm regions of South and Central America and Mexico.

Shave That PEAK!

"Peak demand"...the maximum amount of electricity Greenville Utilities must have the capability of delivering at the time you demand it.

You establish peak demand; and because your electric rates are based in part on peak demand, you help set your own rate.

You can help keep next year's rate down by helping to shave this year's peak demand.

Peak demand usually occurs between 5:00 PM and 7:00 PM on very hot days, when everybody gets home from work. Air conditioning is turned lower...meals are cooked...dishes get washed...laundry is washed and dried. Everybody doing everything at the same time.

A few simple changes in people's habits could make quite a difference.

(1)...Set your air conditioning at 78° or higher and leave it there until after 7:00 PM.
(3)...Make indoor meals cool meals: salads, cold cuts, etc.
(4)...Wait till late in the evening or early the next morning to turn on your dishwasher.
(5)...Do your laundry in the morning.
(6)...If you're not watching TV or using a lamp, turn it off.

You don't have to stop using electricity to hold down electric rates...just use it more wisely.

Shave the peak demand.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JULY 20, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can get answers to philosophical questions about life principles in a.m. Then you can put ideas into action if you are charming, considerate.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Put some new idea to work in a.m. Know how to handle that credit matter wisely on Monday. Have a peaceful attitude to avoid trouble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Follow your intuitions in a.m., then hit on the right system for improving routine duties. Postpone heart-to-heart talks with mate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle any partnership matter well on this free day from the office. Consider how to handle duties wisely. Social fun in p.m.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to please one who has helped you in the past, then meet with partners at dinner, etc., and talk the future over wisely.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Home chores done, be off to the recreational activities you enjoy with congenials. Don't criticize or trouble is possible.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show caution in handling some matter at home that is bound to be ticklish; be affectionate. Enjoy recreation later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend services or meditate in a.m., then you can be with close ties at the amusements mutually enjoyed. Postpone decisions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle practical affairs with care, then you can be with personal ties for straightening matters out with them.

SAGITTARIS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study what you truly want where personal matters are concerned, know what stumbling blocks must be removed from path.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Any private worries you have can be solved early by studying them intelligently. Help a friend with some problem.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care of personal matters early, then get into the confidential with others for good results. Postpone consulting adviser. Use judgment.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get into some public service in a.m. that will improve your foundational affairs. Study into new ideas.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAYY . . . he or she will have a great thirst for knowledge during adolescence. Give as much education as possible, with a good variety of courses. Then upon maturity, there will be the ability to succeed at almost anything tackled and to make practical whatever has become obsolete. Much determination here, so be sure to give good ethical, religious training early for best results.

FORECAST MONDAY, JULY 21, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can start the week right by looking directly at whatever practical problems face you. Make necessary changes that can bring you the goodwill of those in high positions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Some outside affair may pose a problem but you can easily overcome it. Avoid one who is a troublemaker and be happy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to change your view and attitude if you are to advance more quickly now. Analyze what a new contact says.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Persevere and get those obligations behind you that are strictly your own. Arrive on time for important appointments.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Some changes have to be made if that association affair is to work out right. Be more thoughtful on the job.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study your work well and know where to make the right changes so that you have better results. Try to be more cooperative.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A new activity arises that you should go along with, so put aside thoughts of pleasure for the time being. Be logical.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study the situation at home carefully and make sure you change your tactics for better results. Take it easy tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Discussions with associates in the morning can make regular routines more efficient. Be careful in motion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your aims in life and make those changes that are necessary in order to get ahead faster. Avoid gossip.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you feel disappointed in yourself, you can offset this by constructive thinking. Study new channels of expression.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Organizing the practical side of your life intelligently will see you accomplishing more. Use your own good judgment.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have to make changes if you want your personal life to have greater abundance. Contact a friend who has drifted away.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she must be taught to use ethical methods to get what is wanted and then the life can be a very successful one. Direct the education along artistic lines. Give the benefits of sports early in life. Also give music lessons for diversion. Don't neglect ethical training.

Monkey Molar Research Helps

HOUSTON (AP) — Marmoset monkeys may help scientists learn more about human dental disease.

A group of Houston researchers who think so regularly brush the teeth of about 300 of the small South American animals. They say the monkeys develop dental problems similar to those of humans.

In an effort to explain the precise mechanism which in people apparently causes the periodontal tissues around the teeth to be destroyed, a team at the University of Texas Dental Science Institute here takes the sticky bacteria called plaque from the monkeys' teeth.

A substance then is added to increase the antigenic, or infection fighting, action of the plaque and it is reinjected into the monkeys to see if this will prevent severe periodontal disease.

"We know there would be little or no periodontal disease if people would just keep the plaque off their teeth through proper brushing, flossing and such," said Dr. Barnet M. Levy, head of the team.

"But, the biggest problem with preventive dentistry is motivating people to do what's best for them," he said.

Levy, who has directed the institute since it was established in 1964, stresses that his group is "a long way from applying" the results of the monkey research to humans. However, he predicts there will be a "new and better" method for preventing periodontal disease in the foreseeable future.

Levy said in an interview that for some years many physicians, dentists and laymen have thought that all disease is a reaction to some type of injury to the body.

"Yet after nearly 15 years of studying this hypothesis," Levy said, "we still can't pinpoint the exact mechanism by which the body reaction to an injurious agent causes disease."

Levy believes that the human body sets up a hypersensitivity reaction to the persistent bacteria or plaque on the teeth and that it is this mechanism that destroys the periodontal tissues.

He hopes the experiment with the monkeys will shed some light.

"We must work harder to understand the immune reaction because the periodontal tissues seem to be destroyed much the same way that some skin grafts and transplants are rejected," Levy said.

Once that problem is solved, he said, the next step is to find ways to prevent the hypersensitivity problem.

He suggests that perhaps a chemical method will be worked out as the answer to preventive dentistry.

He said maybe an antibiotic placed in the mouth with a time release mechanism could prevent the plaque buildup or even a vaccine could be developed.

First Place For Exhibit

An exhibit of antique radio tubes and components assembled by Dr. R.M. Helms, emeritus professor of physics at East Carolina University, placed first in its category at the Antique Wireless Association's regional meeting in Winston-Salem last week.

The Antique Wireless Association, an international organization, includes persons interested in the restoration and use of early wireless radio devices.

Attending the Winston-Salem meeting were 75 members from North Carolina and neighboring states, as well as Arkansas, Indiana, New York and Massachusetts.

Dr. Helms's prize-winning exhibit consisted of 16 antique tubes in a sequence of the vacuum tube art before 1930. Featured was a 1912 DeForest Audion and a French "S" tube designed and manufactured a few years later. His components were arranged as a popular 1920 "breadboard" superior crystal receiver.

Awards were also given for Best Restoration of an Antique Broadcast Receiver and Best Single Component.

Entertained At ARC Thursday

MIGRANT FIGURES

SAN JUAN, P. R. (UPI) — More than 17,000 migrants from the neighboring Dominican Republic are residents of Puerto Rico, according to U. S. Immigration office figures.

PUBLIC NOTICES

PUBLICATION OF NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that on July 28, 1975, the City of Greenville will submit to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development a request and certification for the release of funds. The request and certification relate to the application of the City of Greenville, North Carolina, for a grant of funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 for the purpose of undertaking the projects hereinafter described.

1) The provision of administrative costs for Greenville's Community Development Program, such costs to include salaries and overhead costs.

2) A concentrated code enforcement program for the western and northern sections of Greenville. This program would be accomplished by an expansion of the City's Inspection Department.

3) The paving of the Evans Park parking lot.

The City of Greenville has prepared an environmental review record respecting the above described projects for which the release of funds is being sought. The environmental review record is available at the City Hall between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday to Friday, where the same may be examined by the public and copies thereof obtained.

The applicant requesting release of funds for the above described projects is the City of Greenville, North Carolina, P. O. Box 1905, Greenville, North Carolina 27834. The applicant's chief executive officer is S. Eugene West, Mayor, The City of Greenville, P. O. Box 1905, Greenville, North Carolina 27834.

The City of Greenville will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The City of Greenville is certifying to HUD that the City of Greenville and Mr. S. Eugene West, in his official capacity as Mayor, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision-making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification in that upon its approval, the City of Greenville may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases: a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer of the applicant; or b) that applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58), and may be addressed to HUD Area Office, 2309 West Cone Boulevard, Greensboro, North Carolina 27408. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after August 15, 1975, will be considered by HUD.

Your home ought to be in pictures.

Picture it now . . . Your home . . . in our magazine!

Picture the family that's so much like yours, the family that will be moving here from across the country - because of a job transfer. Picture how happy they'll be to see a home that fits their needs and desires . . . see it . . . before they even get here.

Get the picture? Thousands do . . . in our magazine . . . each month.

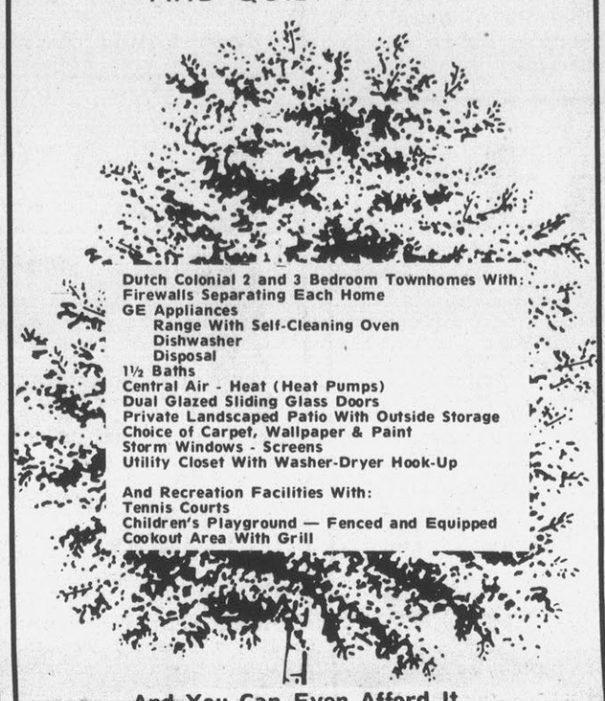

Maximum exposure for all our listings . . . Another reason why we say . . .

By THOMAS BROOKS JR.

KAUFMAN, Tex. (UPI) — Dale Pugh, a strapping, easy-talking banker turned cattleman, says crossbreeding of the cantankerous American buffalo with docile domestic cows will produce hardier, tastier beef cattle.

Pugh is president of the recently created Bison Hybrid International Association and is preaching the gospel of the Beefalo, the name given the crossbred creatures, to breeders across the country.

"I honestly feel that in 15 years, 80 per cent of the cows in the United States will have some bison blood in them," said Pugh with an enthusiastic sparkle in his eye as he pointed to a Beefalo on the Circle K Ranch near Kaufman.

To hear Pugh talk, the Beefalo will make ordinary cows the Edsels of the ranch world.

"I think that they will revolutionize the cattle industry," he said.

Pugh said Beefalo are less susceptible to disease, grow faster and bigger, live and breed about twice as long, survive extremes in climate better and produce richer-tasting meat than ordinary cattle. Also, a higher percentage of the calves live, and they eat roughage other cattle won't touch.

Pugh is general manager of the Circle K Beefalo Management Co. of Dallas, which was formed by Randy Kreiling, a son-in-law of the late billionaire H.L. Hunt.

Kreiling sold his unprofitable cattle on the ranch and hired Pugh, who grew up on a ranch in Oklahoma, away from a Dallas bank. The pair bought breeding stock, started an intensive research program and now believe a creature about three-eighths bison produces the best all-around results.

D.C. Basolo of California is generally given credit for a breakthrough in development of the species.

Pugh predicted there will be enough Beefalo on ranges in the United States in three years to put Beefalo meat on the market. About 27,000 Beefalo are on ranges now, and Pugh and other association members are working to sell the idea to other reputable breeders.

"There's not a doubt in our minds that we can't completely corner the market," he said.

The meat, according to Pugh, tastes like well-aged beef and is slightly more filling.

Experiments in crossbreeding are nothing new. The bison was introduced into cattle herds about the turn of the century, but the attempts were unsuccessful. The buffalo is a strong-headed animal, and if the percentage of buffalo is too large, the cattle would be too hard for ranchers to control.

The association, which elected Pugh its first president in April, has 50 charter members and about 250 members in four countries. Pugh said the association probably will establish its own processing operations when enough breeders have large enough herds to begin marketing the meat.

"Everybody thought the exotic breeds were the answer for cattlemen, but then they needed vets out in the pasture everytime they calved," Pugh said. "That's why the Texas Longhorn (a tough breed) has come back for breeding and it's why ours are going to do so well."

The breeds look like heavy cows, with the broad shoulders of the buffalo and the wide rumps of cows.

"We like to say we moved the hump of the buffalo to the rump, but really that was an accident," Pugh said. "We didn't plan it that way."

They are ready for selling at about 1,000 pounds in about 12 months.

One secret of their strength in all climate conditions is the buffalo hair the breeds have, which is heavier and provides more warmth in winter and breathes, unlike the hides of some breeds of cattle, to allow them to weather extreme heat.

They also have narrower openings around the eyes, which Pugh said apparently reduces their susceptibility to the dreaded "pinkeye."

And some day, Pugh said, their pelts will be used to make beautiful coats.

Communities To Get Grants

RALEIGH—Three Pitt County communities and one Greene County community are among more than 170 communities and counties who will receive grants to support planning and management program, it was announced by the N.C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

The communities and the amount they received are:

—Ayden, $3,840; Fountain, $3,000; Grifton, $1,500; and Snow Hill, $5,100.

"While the $785,000 in federal-state grant for the communities is good news," stated James Harrington, secretary of the N.C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources, "they are still not enough to meet the upsurge of interest in planning by local governments."

Harrington said a special effort was made this year to coordinate the grants under this program with those available through other programs.

"We make every effort to assist those communities that have special needs by offering our services on the basis of full funding by the local unit of government.

Answered 43 Alarms In June

During June the rural fire departments in Pitt County answered 47 alarms with 43 fires.

They were as follows, County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said: seven houses, one house trailer, two other buildings; seven cars; 11 grass or woods fires; no commercial buildings; four false alarms, 11 others; and four mutual aid calls. There was $1,291,175 involved in fires; $700,000 exposed to fires; and $19,520 lost in fires and $1,795,975 saved by the rural fire departments, Joyner said.

The Staton House Fire Department had the most fire calls—nine.

Former Vietnam POW Can Tell Many Stories

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Woman's Editor

"I can get a new story from my husband by asking 'how did this happen?' or 'where were you when this happened?'," says Mrs. Eddie Willis, whose husband spent five years as a prisoner of war in Vietnam.

The Willis, moved to Greenville in January, 1965, when he began working with the Voice of America, after living in Alaska where he worked with the Federal Aviation Agency.

"We thought Alaska had given us the excitement and adventures to last a lifetime. We lived just across the Bering Sea from Russia during the Cuban missile crisis and with the threat of a nuclear war so close, we stored extra water and food in the basement 'in case.' In March, 1964, we were without the civilized necessities in the Alaskan earthquake. These were anticlimatic to the things to come," she recalled.

They lived in Greenville six months and then he was assigned to a VOA site in the Philippines. In September, 1966, Willis was sent to Hue, South Vietnam for orientation prior to his reassignment to Hue. He began a one year tour of duty as manager of the VOA complex in Hue in January, 1967.

"During this tour we, my two sons and I, were allowed to remain in the Philippines and were only about three hours away from Eddie by plane. There were times during lulls in the war called truce that wives were allowed to enter South Vietnam and visit their husbands, usually during holidays. Howard, age 11, and Roddy, 17, were very active in school and I was never able to take advantage of the opportunity to visit my husband.

"Eddie's tour in Hue would have ended Jan. 12, 1968, but he extended it to May due to the high school graduation of Roddy from Brent School, Baguio, Philippines. We had discussed a visit by me to Vietnam during the 1968 TET truce, but fortunately we decided to postpone it until the time Eddie would return to the Philippines in May," Mrs. Willis continued.

"Our contacts with one another were by letter and teletype from the VOA site in Baguio to this teletype in Hue. His office was located in his house on the outskirts of Hue. On Jan. 28, we talked by teletype—our conversations were always monitored and no details of military or security nature could be discussed. In a letter received from Eddie written that night, he said he 'felt safe for the first time since his arrival in Hue' as many troops and equipment had been moved into the area to protect Hue in event of an all-out attack.

"On Jan. 31, teletype contact was lost with the VOA station in Hue. This was not unusual and had happened in the past. It was not until later in the day and that week with the news of the breaking of the Tet truce and the all out offensive began to arrive that we felt alarmed. Bits of news and rumors filtered in for the next few weeks. Finally only Eddie's whereabouts remained in doubt among the husbands of the 'Saigon wives' as we were called if our husbands were stationed in Vietnam," Mrs. Willis remarked.

Continuing she said, "My nervous tension mounted with each newscast concerning another American body found or someone hiding in an attic. I finally came to realize that any news heard on the Armed Forces Radio Service must surely have been given to the next of kin before reaching the public and I quit worrying about it so much. I went on about my daily life as normally as possible, both for my own benefit and for the boys, but it soon occurred to me that it would be easier to hear of Eddie's death than to go on through life not knowing one way or the other," Mrs. Willis said.

Tet Truce

About 4 a.m. on Jan. 31, the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong broke the Tet truce and began their all out offensive against Hue. The mortar shells began falling on the city and Eddie and "Pap" Badua, a Philippino technician, who shared the house with him, got out of their beds and moved into the sandbag bunker Eddie had built in his bedroom a few months before. About 6 a.m., a mortar shell hit the roof spraying them with plaster and wounding Eddie in the leg with bits of shrapnel. A satchel bomb blew in the front door and they knew it would be impossible to shoot their way out as Viet Cong were at both bedroom doors.

Eddie and "Pap" were dressed in their underclothes with no shoes. They were pushed out into the yard and their arms tied behind their backs at the elbows with electrical wire. The VC were going to have Eddie drive the stationwagon, parked outside the house, but abandoned the idea and retied Eddie. They were marched off in their underclothes and remained in this attire until April. As they left the yard Eddie looked up at the window next door and saw the eyes and top of the head of his little nine-year-old Vietnamese neighbor boy peeping over the window sill. The child put his hand up and wiggled his fingers good-bye to Eddie, who waved back. Mrs. Willis related.

They were marched to a village square where they and other Vietnamese were lined up before a firing squad. Pap, who spoke some Vietnamese was able to get the attention of a North Vietnamese officer and explain they were non-combatants. They were pulled away from the group and taken to the coast to await a sampan boat to transport them up the coast toward Hanoi. Due to bombings on the beaches by the U. S. Navy, the prisoners began their long trek on foot to North Vietnam.

"Eddie's watch was confiscated by his guard while on the beach waiting but his wedding ring was completely covered by the swelling of his hands from being tied so long that he didn't lose this until later. After his return to the United States, we purchased him a new wedding ring which was cut in half and one half was welded to half of my wedding ring and half of mine to his, thus giving each of us part of the original wedding ring.

"On the morning of March 4, 1968, the VOA station manager and his wife rushed into my house and announced that an official announcement through the State Department had been received stating that Eddie had been seen alive and well but as a prisoner of the North Vietnamese. I later heard the rumor that the official report was made based on the word of two intelligence men who had escaped during the trek to Hanoi. This was later confirmed when during the POW reunion in Washington, D. C., in 1973. The story had also been told by the youngster who waved good-bye to Eddie," she recalled.

Decisions

"Now I had decisions to make—should I stay in the Philippines and wait or leave immediately. One very prophetic man from the State Department told me I should return to the United States as Eddie might be held as long as four or five years. Finally in May we decided to return to the States by ship as planned. Our high school graduate now needed placement in a college and there seemed to be no reason to stay on.

"The 20 days aboard ship were what I needed to relax and decide on the questions of where to stay and what to do next. I decided to stay in Pocatello, Idaho, where my mother was managing a motel and could probably use my assistance. I had lived there before and had many acquaintances—I outguessed my husband, who had believed I would return to Alaska," Mrs. Willis commented.

After a short stay in Idaho, Mrs. Willis and sons traveled back to North Carolina to visit Eddie's parents and relatives in Washington. After a five-week stay, they went to Washington, D. C., to contact the Red Cross for any information they might have.

The Red Cross was not allowed any representatives in North Vietnam but they gave Mrs. Willis information on how to write letters and what to send in packages and where to sent them. "Eddie was never allowed to correspond with his family and never received one piece of correspondance from anyone during his five-year and two month imprisonment."

On March 15, 1968, Eddie and 12 other prisoners were being fed their morning rice portion on a high knoll in the jungle when a bomber dropped bombs on them. Eddie dived into the roots of a tree but was bounced up and a bomb fragment lodged in his right hip bone. The wound was never treated on the trail. The prisoners were taken in trucks from there on to the camp which they named Bao Cao, which means "may I" in Vietnameses. This was the word the prisoners had to bow and use before any action such as eating, permission to go to the bathroom, etc.

The remaining 12 prisoners arrived in Bao Cao on April 3 and were placed in tightly woven bamboo cages measuring three feet wide, five feet tall and five feet long with ankle irons which prevented any bending up of the knees. The prisoners were allowed out twice a day for elimination. Interrogations were held daily and some prisoners were tortured. Eddie was very sick his first two weeks in camp and not always conscious, Mrs. Willis added.

According to Mrs. Willis, Eddie was accused of being a psychological warfare agent because of his association with the Voice of America broadcasts from Hue. He denied being an agent of any kind and this went on day after day. If the interrogation went well, the prisoner was given a cup of tea and a cigarette—if not, these were withheld but left in sight of the prisoner. One day his interrogator came in and asked "have you reformed your mind?" to which Eddie replied "I have refirmed my mind quite well." The interrogator had not notice the word difference and immediately placed a cup of tea in front of Eddie and said "now we are getting somewhere." He pulled out a book, which evidently listed the penalties, and said that Eddie would be sentenced to one-year solitary confinement, but "to show how kind and considerate the Vietnamese people are" his sentence would be reduced to nine months because of his three months in the cages.

Confinement

"On July 7, Eddie was placed into Balin Prison to begin his nine-month confinement "without the light of day or sound of voice". This was extended another month when in the ninth month he was suffering as extreme sinus headache that he asked for a doctor and medicine, receiving neither.

By September, Mrs. Willis had rented a house in Pocatello and her oldest son was attending Brigham Young University and Howard, the youngest, was in junior high school. "My life was sort of in limbo—I had tried to contact the state senator with no success, I tried to contact another POW wife I had heard about but the process was so full of red tape I gave it up. I played a lot of bridge which was good therapy for me, attended church functions and helped my mother.

"It was not until spring of '69 that I discovered another POW wife in Pocatello. She was the wife of a helicopter pilot shot down over Laos and the military kept her in contact with things that were being done for the POWs. We began working with two very active groups, the families of POW's and MIA's in Southeast Asia and VIVA, which sold the bracelets with the POW's names and date of capture on them that did so much to bring the POW's plight to the American people," Mrs. Willis stated.

In August of 1970, Mrs. Willis bought a house "to give the boys a little better home life." In January she enrolled in Idaho Sate University for a two-year course in upholstery, which she never expected to complete. She completed the course and took extra semester and graduated in May, 1973, after Eddie's return. "He was quite proud of me as I had upholstered all the furniture in the house."

In November, 1971, Eddie was moved to a camp near the China border and stayed there with six other American prisoners and two German prisoners until they were brought back to Hanoi in January, 1973, for release. Eddie said his first indication that release might be near was in October of 1972 when an English-speaking North Vietnamese came into the camp and found the prisoners on their knees from deprivation of food and water.

He ordered vitamins in capsules and shots and food. A Vietnamese was dispatched on bicycle to a nearby village and came back with grapefruit and lemons. Eddie ate his first grapefruit—skin, seeds and all. He didn't know what his weight was at that time but believes it must have been below 120 pounds. He is six feet, two inches and has a normal weight of 190 pounds. He had reached 146 pounds when he entered the Bethesda Naval Hospital in March, 1973, and now he weighs 180 pounds.

The nine prisoners left the China-border camp Jan. 14 and were trucked to a prison in Hanoi where they remained with other prisoners until their release. The POW release began in February, 1973, but Eddie was not flown out until March 27 as he had released his place to prisoners who needed medical care more than he did.

"The Peace Treaty was signed in Paris on Jan. 27 and two lists of names were released—one civilian and one military. I had been notified the day before to stand by the phone the next day to receive a notification. At 2 p.m. the phone rang and I was advised that Eddie's name was on the list of POW's to be released. From that time on life became a little hectic. I had many phone calls to make to family and friends around the country and in turn, I received calls from everyone I know and many from people I didn't know.

"The Peace Treaty was signed and the list came out on a Saturday. I think the period from Jan. 27 to the day Eddie called from Clark Field in the Philippines on March 27 was longer than the five years he was gone. The State Department requested family information that Eddie would be concerned with and we collected family pictures taken during the past five years to send to the Philippines. I had gained 40 pounds since I had last seen Eddie and would not include a picture of myself.

First Question

After watching a televised story of one POW calling his wife from the Philippines and hearing him ask her first thing if she had 'gotten fat,' I was so shook up, I lost 20 pounds. Eddie's first question was 'why didn't you send a picture of yourself and I had to say 'because I am fat,' "Mrs. Willis explained.

The morning after the phone call, Mrs. Willis and sons left for Washington, D. C., on a plane reservation the airlines had been holding for them for a week. Eddie's parents, a brother and a sister also arrived from North Carolina. They were taken to the 10th floor of Bethesda Naval Hospital and issued special passes as this floor was strictly reserved for the returnees. They were briefed on Eddie's health and asked about their own health.

"We stayed in a nearby motel and on the evening of his scheduled arrival, we went to the 10th floor and were told where to station ourselves. It was all very unreal and I felt like I was taking part in a play. After watching his helicoper land on the hospital pad, we knew when Eddie reached the 10th floor because of the flashbulbs and flood lights, but privacy began when he reached his room.

"The boys grabbed him first—both were tallen than Eddie, Howard had grown eight inches. Both boys later agreed that it was like grabbing a bundle of sticks. It was a wonderful family reunion, lasting until 2 a.m.," Mrs. Willis remarked.

Eddie stayed in the hospital for 18 days and then they flew to Washington, N. C., where his hometown gave him a welcome home. After staying there for a week, they returned to Pocatello, Idaho, where he was given a "welcome home" celebration.

On May 19, Mrs. Willis received her certificate of upholstery from Idaho State College and on May 22, they left for the nation's capital where Eddie and five other civilian returnees received the "Award of Valor" for their conduct during their imprisonment. President Nixon held a reception for the American returnees and Mrs. Nixon and Mrs. Spiro Agnew held a tea for the ladies. The next day, Mr. and Mrs. Willis returned to Idaho for the high school graduation of their son, Howard.

The rest of 1973 was filled with a routine of medical and dental rehabilitation. "In October we finally got to take 'our trip' which we had been trying to take since June. We toured the entire west coast from Portland to San Diego, visiting friends and relatives along the way. In February, we left Idaho on a return trip to Greenville. We arrived in Florida in time to celebrate our silver wedding anniversary in Silver Springs, where we had honeymooned before.

"The divorce rate among the POW returnees has been very high. Many of the wives were much younger and after a few years of being completely independent, it was difficult to return to their former way of life. In my case, ours was a 25-year marriage and Eddie had always acknowledged that I was independent so there was no change necessary. I admit there were a few rough spots to smooth out in getting reacquainted but we are happier than ever now and I feel we are both better people from the experience," she added.

The Willis' are looking forward to making trips in their sailboat—sailing the Intercoastal Waterway from the Baltimore area down to Lake Okeechobee in Florida.

"Eddie can retire from government service in another year. He does not know now whether he will even want to retire at that time. He feels that from now on he is going to play life 'by ear' and not worry too much about it," Mrs. Willis concluded.

AWARD OF VALOR. . .was presented to Eddie Willis and five other civilian returnees for their conduct during their imprisonment on May 22, 1973, in Washington, D.C. Former Deputy Secretary of State Kenneth Rush, left, presents the award to Willis.

Miss Carol Joy Joyner Weds Kenneth W. Poe

FARMVILLE — Miss Carol Joy Joyner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Eli Joyner Jr. of Farmville, was married Saturday at high noon to Kenneth Warren Poe in the Farmville United Methodist Church.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Poe of Charlotte.

Mrs. William C. Mercer, organist, and Michael Lee Haithcock of Greenville, soloist, presented a program of nuptial music. Bert Barrow Warrent was acolyte.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of candlelight silk organza designed with a duchess neckline, raised bodice with a modified front and full cut chapel train. The bridal gown was appliqued over the bodice and skirt with alencon lace embroidered with seed pearls.

She wore a cathedral length mantilla of Brussels lace and carried a formal cascade bouquet of Eucharis lilies, Jappa orchids, gardenias and white roses tied with candlelight ribbon.

Mrs. James Edward Moore of Charlotte, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Oliver Roane Cross Jr. of Winston-Salem, sister of the bride, Miss Anne Lashebrook Poe, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Elizabeth Watkins McPhail, both of Charlotte, Mrs. Daniel Lawrence Leonard of Chapel Hill, Mrs. Samuel Armstrong Rankin Jr. of Ramseur, Miss Evelyn Rebecca Perkins of Farmville, and Miss Mary Avan Yates of Macon, Ga.

The honor attendant and bridesmaids wore formal gowns of white and green screen print voile. The empire bodice was designed with a V-neckline and A-line skirt. A matching eton jacket with long full sleeves and tailored cuffs was banded in white. They carried full cascade bouquets of Aratium lilies embedded into natural foliage tied with spring green satin ribbon.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of mint green chiffon fashioned with a long sleeve organza bolero embroidered in white. She wore green cypripedium orchids in her hair.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of yellow and white embroidered organza with long full sleeves. She wore a white orchid in her hair.

The bride is a graduate of Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. She was presented at the 1972 Terpsichorean Debutante Ball, Raleigh.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Wofford College Sparanburg, S. C. He was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity and is employed with the Duke Power Co., Greenvile, S. C., where the couple will reside.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a wedding breakfast at the Greenville Golf and Country Club. Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Monk and Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Langford received guests in the foyer upon arrival.

A bronze urn on the console table in the foyer held an arrangement of pastel summer flowers. The buffet table, covered with a white satin cloth and long gathered skirt, garlanded with green springerii, was centered with an antique silver epergne of mixed summer flowers with epergnetts of matching flowers. A five tiered wedding cake was featured on an individual round table which was covered with a full skirt and lace cloth. The interior of the club was decorated throughout with arrangements of pastel summer flowers. The bride and bridegroom received guests in the Fieldcrest room.

On Friday, Mrs. James T. Little Sr. honored the bride at a bridesmaids luncheon at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

A cocktail party was held at the Candlewick Inn after the rehearsal and was given by Mr. T. Eli Joyner Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Monk, Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Langford, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas H. Wilkinson, and Mr. and Mrs. Alton Barrett.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained the wedding party, relatives and out-of-town guests at a dinner following the cocktail party at the Candlewick Inn.

The bridal couple and their attendants were seated at a table which held an arrangement of mixed summer flowers flanked by two five branch silver candelabra. Other guests were seated at individual tables which were centered with an arrangement of pastel flowers. Larry Jones provided music for dining and dancing.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

Dramatizing the growing strength and involvement of career women in national issues, approximately 4,000 delegates, alternates and observers will meet at the annual convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club, Las Vegas, today through Thursday.

Attending from Greenville are Lucille Moore, president of the local club. and Arlene Mallison.

At the convention, the delegates will concentrate on the campaign to complete ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment and on other current issues of particular significance to employed women.

National President Marie B. Bowden of Leesburg, Fla., will open the convention tonight at the MGM Grand Hotel with a tribute to the "Women of Achievement" who are present and the introduction of state presidents and national officials. Lisa Sergio, author and lecturer, will be the speaker at the opening ceremonies.

Programs during the session will include a speech by Betty S. Murphy, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, Monday morning. The 1975-76 national program—Bicentennial: Perspective for Women—will be spotlighted Monday afternoon.

President-elect Maxine R. Hays of Junction City, Ore., will be installed Thursday night as president. Other officers for the coming year will be elected during the convention.

Tarrytown Mall, Rocky Mount, will be the scene of the Coastal Plain Arts and Crafts Fair as it celebrates its 10th anniversary.

Craftsmen will demonstrate and sell their works, dressed in colonial costumes, Nov. 6-8. Sixty-two of the 130 craftsmen are new applicants representing 23 counties in North Carolina.

Rings Can Be Deadly Show Of Affection

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.,

DEAR ABBY: I am the plant manager of a large industrial company employing over 3,000 men, and their safety is my concern.

Enclosed is a letter that, I am told, appeared in your column about 10 years ago.

How much would you charge us to reprint this letter in our company paper? It could prevent accidents and perhaps save lives. Respectfully,

CHICAGOAN

The column:

"DEAR ABBY: I am one of those foolish wives who insisted that my husband wear his wedding ring at all times. My husband is a maintenance mechanic, and this is what happened. Yesterday, I received a call informing me that my husband was at the hospital! While jumping off a construction truck, he caught his ring on a piece of metal, and his finger was practically torn off. I was told he was lucky he wasn't killed since he lost his balance and fell under the wheels of the truck.

"Abby, please print this in your column as a warning to other women who want their husbands to wear their wedding rings to work.

AL'S WIFE

"DEAR WIFE: Thank you for your letter. And while we're on the subject, read this one:

"DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I were married we had a double-ring ceremony, and he promised he would never take his wedding ring off. And he never did. After a few years he gained a little weight and couldn't get it off. My husband was an electrician.

"Well, to make a long and very tragic story short, his wedding ring wore a tiny hole through his insulated glove and a fatal contact was made. He died instantly. When his lifeless body was examined, the only sign of injury was a small burn where his wedding ring encircled his finger.

ELECTRICIAN'S WIDOW

"So. . .dear wife, if your husband works around machines or electricity, tell him to leave ALL rings at home—if you really love him, that is.

"Rings and other types of jewelry for women and men working with machinery and electricity are a major problem in industry. Sentiment is a poor excuse for wearing a ring when it can cause the loss of a finger, hand, arm or even a life."

DEAR CHICAGOAN: Be my guest. No charge. (P.S. And the same goes for any other company that would find it useful.)

DEAR ABBY: When a man and his wife have both broken the marriage vows through adultery and want to start over again and keep their marriage vows sacred, do they have to get married again?

Wouldn't they be living in an adulterous relationship if they lived together as man and wife after having broken their marriage vows?

BROKEN VOWS

DEAR BROKEN: Though adultery has been committed, the marriage is still considered legal and valid in the eyes of God and man. However, if a couple wants to start fresh, I think renewing their marriage vows is an excellent idea.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Riley-Phillips Vows Said In Ceremony On Saturday

MRS. DAIN ALAN RILEY

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Troy Jackson, organist, Jimmy Smith, trumpeteer, and Lowell Speight, soloist.

Altar decorations were vases filled with snapdragons and chrysanthemums. Carnations, chrysanthemums and baby's breath decorated the candelabra.

Mrs. William E. Rasberry directed the wedding.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sleeveless gown of ivory maracaine jersey complemented by a beaded capelet. The princess style gown featured a wedding band neckline and an A-line skirt with beaded panels from the empire waist to the hem. The train was chapel length.

The bride's elbow length veil fell from a lace and pearl Camelot cap. She carried a cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids, yellow roses,, stephanotis, baby's breath and ivy.

Miss Meneta Phillips was her sister's maid of honor. Mrs. Wade Lehman of Siler City served as matron of honor. They wore formal gowns of blue paly knit fashioned with an empire bodice, scoop neckline, elbow sleeve capelet and A-line skirt. They carried cascade bouquets of yellow daisies, baby's breath and ivy.

Bridesmaids included Miss Gail Davis of Wilson, Miss Pam McLawhorn of Raleigh, Miss Jackie Riley of Tarboro, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Jewel Small of Edenton. Their dresses and gowns were identical to that of the honor attendants.

The bridegroom had as best man his father. Ushers were David Duncan of Charlotte, George Finch of Raleigh, George Howard of Durham, Michael Phillips of Grifton, brother of the bride, and Barry Rudd of Raleigh.

Mrs. Phillips chose for her daughter's wedding, a formal gown of deep pink chiffon fashioned with a V-neckline. She carried a phalaenopsis orchid.

The bridegroom's mother chose a formal gown of yellow chiffon fashioned with a scoop neckline. She carried a phalaenopsis orchid.

The bride's grandmother carried blue carnations. The bridegroom's grandmother carried a royal bouquet orchid. The bride is a May graduate of Meredith College and plans to teach in the Raleigh area.

The bridegroom is a graduate of North Carolina State University and is assistant airport engineer with the Raleigh-Durham Airport Authority.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points the couple will reside in Raleigh.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mrs. William Ivan Bissette, grandmother of the bride. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Oglesby. Mr. and Mrs. Micheal Willmot of Inman, S.C., and Mrs. Ronald Hardison of Grifton registered the guests. The registry table was centered with a memory candle decorated with yellow roses and ivy.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Murphy directed guests to the buffet table which was covered with a linen and lace cloth and centered with a silver epergne filled with white carnations, yellow daisies, yellow baby's breath and white snapdragons. Mrs. L. Dorman McCotter, Mrs. Thomas W. Gower and Mrs. G. L. Tucker invited guests to the punch table.

Alternating in pouring punch were Mrs. Ralph T. Norman of High Point, Mrs. Jeane Hendrickson of Baltimore, Md., aunts of the bride, and Mrs. M. Brown Hodges of Grifton. The tiered wedding cake was decorated with yellow roses and served by Mrs. A. Byrl Vannoy of West Jefferson, aunt of the bride.

The Monte Cristo's furnished music during the reception.

Good-byes were said by Mrs. Thurman Williams and Miss Bertha Johnson.

Dr. and Mrs. Jack D. Riley, parents of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth B. Swain Sr., grandparents, of the bridegroom, entertained members of the wedding party, family and out-of-town guests at rehearsal dinner Friday evening at the Ayden Country Club.

The guests were greeted by the hosts and hostesses and invited into the private dining room where tables were decorated with mixed summer flowers, bayberry candles and hurricane lamps.

Honorary Chairman Of Debutante Ball Named

RALEIGH—Mrs. Thomas Willis Alexander, of Exeter Circle, Raleigh, has been named honorary chairman of the 1975 Debutante Ball, sponsored by the Terpsichorean Club of Raleigh.

Mrs. Alexander, the former Shirley Benbury Haywood of Raleigh, is a native of Raleigh who attended secondary schools at Peace and Saint Mary's Colleges. She is a graduate of Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Va.

Mrs. Alexander is a past leader of the North Carolina Debutante Ball; both her mother, the late Mrs. Hubert Haywood, and her aunt, the late Mrs. Louis West, were Honorary Chairmen.

Married to Thomas Willis Alexander, retired executive vice president of Druham Life Insurance Co., Mrs. Alexander led the ball when Mr. Alexander was treasurer of the Terpsichorean Club, although she was not acquainted with him at that time.

The Alexanders have a son, Thomas Willis Haywood Alexander, a Raleigh attorney, who is currently a member of the Terpsichorean Club.

Mrs. Alexander is a sustaining member of the Junior League of Raleigh as well as a member of the Colonial Dames and the Daughters of the Revolution.

The Alexanders are active members of Christ Episcopal Church. They also belong to the Carolina Country Club, the Coral Bay Club, the Circle Club, the Nine O'Clock Cotillion, and the Capital Cotillion.

Mrs. Alexander will entertain mothers of the debutantes at a noon coffee on Friday, Sept. 5, and will receive guests during other festivities of the Debutante Ball weekend.

Couple Weds In Candlelight Ceremony On Friday Evening

PACTOLUS—The Pactolus Missionary Baptist Church was the scene of the candlelight wedding ceremony of Neta Faye Bowers and Gary Lee Beacham Friday at 7:30 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by Thomas J. Payne. A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Sheila Gray, pianist, and Don Waters, soloist, who sang "More," "Whither Thou Goest" and the "Wedding Prayer."

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Sam Owens Bowers Jr. of Pactolus. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton T. Beacham of Rt. 3, Washington.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a peau de soie gown featuring an empire waist and scoop neckline. The chantilly lace bodice was enhanced by seed pearls and the long fitted chantilly sleeves were accented with pearl buttons at the wrists. The dress formed a chapel length train which was outlined with chantilly lace and accented with seed pearls. The gown was designed and made by the bride's mother.

She wore a fingertip two tier illusion veil trimmed with chantilly lace, accented with seed pearls, attached to a Venise headpiece. She carried a bouquet of white roses, baby blue pom pons and baby's breath.

The matron of honor was Vicky Clark of Washington and bridesmaids were Marlon Rae Beacham of Greenville, cousin of the bridegroom, and Connie Lee of Washington, cousin of the bride.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of floral jersey polyester fashioned with an empire waistline accented with lace. The square neckline featured a white eyelet collar trimmed with lace and the puff sleeves with white eyelet bands were trimmed in lace. Each wore a white satin bow in their hair and carried a long-stemmed blue tinted mum with white streamers.

A fifteen branched candelabra and a basket of white gladioli, mums and baby blue pom pons centered the church altar. A seven branch candelabra and a basket of flowers were placed on each side of the altar flanked by palms.

The best man was Mike Godley of Washington and ushers were Sammy Bowers of Washington and Edmond Bowers of Pactolus, brothers of the bride, Larry McKeel of Greenville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Mike Beacham of Washington, brother of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of pink polyester knit with a lace bodice. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal length gown of light blue polyester knit. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Dallas Rogers of Washington and Mrs. Larry McKeel of Greenville. John L. Braxton Jr. of Greenville presided at the guest register.

The couple will reside at Rt. 3, Washington.

The bride and bridegroom are both graduates of North Pitt High School. The bridegroom is a junior at East Carolina University and is employed by Shop-Eze Foodland, Washington.

An after-rehearsal party was given by the parents of the bridegroom at the Pactolus Ruritan Building for the bridal party, relatives and out-of-town guests.

After the first traditional slice of cake was cut, the mother of the bride served cake and the mother of the bridegroom poured punch. Mrs. Edmond Bowers and Mrs. Sammy Bowers assisted in serving.

The bridal couple remembered their attendants with gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Noel Lee Jr., aunt and uncle of the bride, honored the bridal couple and attendants at a cookout Wednesday evening.

Parents of the bridal couple were special guests.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My goodness, the children have only been out of school for six weeks. Times flies when you're under sedation, doesn't it?

As I was hiding from them in the back seat of the car just last week it occurred to me that I don't know children at all. I'm raising three of them and yet they remain one of life's greatest mysteries.

For example, I don't understand how come a child can climb up on the roof, scale the TV antenna and rescue the cat . . .yet cannot walk down the hallway without grabbing both walls with his grubby hands for balance.

Or how come a child can eat yellow snow, kiss the dog on the lips, chew gum that he has found in the ashtray, put his mouth over a muddy garden hose nozzle . . . and refuse to drink from a glass his brother has just used.

Why is it he can stand with one foot on first base while reaching out and plucking a baseball off the ground with the tips of his fingers . . . yet cannot pick up a piece of soap before it melts into the drain.

Explain to me how he can ride a bicycle, run, play ball, set up a camp, swing, fight a war, swim and race for eight hours . . . and has to be driven to the garbage can.

It puzzles me how a child can see a dairy bar three miles away, but cannot see a 4 x 6 rug that has scrunched up under his feet and has been dragged through two rooms.

Why is it a child can reject a hot dog with mustard served on a soft bun at home . . . yet eat six of them two hours later at 50 cents each.

How come I can trip over a kid's shoes under the kitchen sink, in the bathroom, on the front porch, under the coffee table, in the sandbox, in the car, in the clothes hamper and on the washer . . . but we can never find them when it is time to cut the grass.

Why is the sun hotter delivering papers than it is goofing around . . . when it is the same sun?

How come they can't remember what time they're supposed to be home, but they remember they did dishes a week ago Wednesday two nights in a row because we had spaghetti and a spoon got caught in the disposal and they traded off.

It's A Year-'Round Job For City Street Division

By JORDY WHICHARD
Reflector Staff Writer

The men of the Street Division of the Greenville Public Works Department are involved in a tough and busy job all year round, and this summer is certainly no exception.

The division serves the city with 34 men working in five major activity crews. The crews, which include construction, asphalt, storm sewer, grass-cutting, and right-of-way, are responsible for maintaining the city's streets, sidewalks, and storm drainage systems.

In addition to these duties, the division must also undertake the tasks of tree-trimming, ditch-cleaning, and leaf collecting along the city's streets.

The Street Division is responsible for 128 miles of paved city streets. All of these streets must be periodically repaired and resurfaced. Beyond the periodic maintenance, there are emergency repairs.

According to Public Works director Mayo Allen, a street can crack or buckle in a matter of seconds. Because of the amount of street miles involved in the street system, it might take some time before the damage is spotted by a Street Division worker. Therefore, director Allen urges that anyone who sees unrepaired street damage contact Street Division supervisor Gentry Mills. The division will then see that the job gets done as soon as possible.

Almost 50 percent of the repairs made by the Street Division are made for the Greenville Utilities Commission. Allen reports that the division is under contract to repair the Commission's damages.

At the present time, the Public Works Department lists 10-15 miles of city streets undergoing extensive resurfacing. This causes some inconvenience to local traffic because of detours and traffic restrictions. The cooperation of the public is necessary for the division to complete their work. Allen reports that the citizens are usually more than glad to be inconvenienced a little as cost for a newly black-topped road.

This summer's busy scehdule is complicated by the aggressive Greenville Urban Development Program. This places the major construction responsibility of the downtown Reade Circle Project on the shoulders of the division.

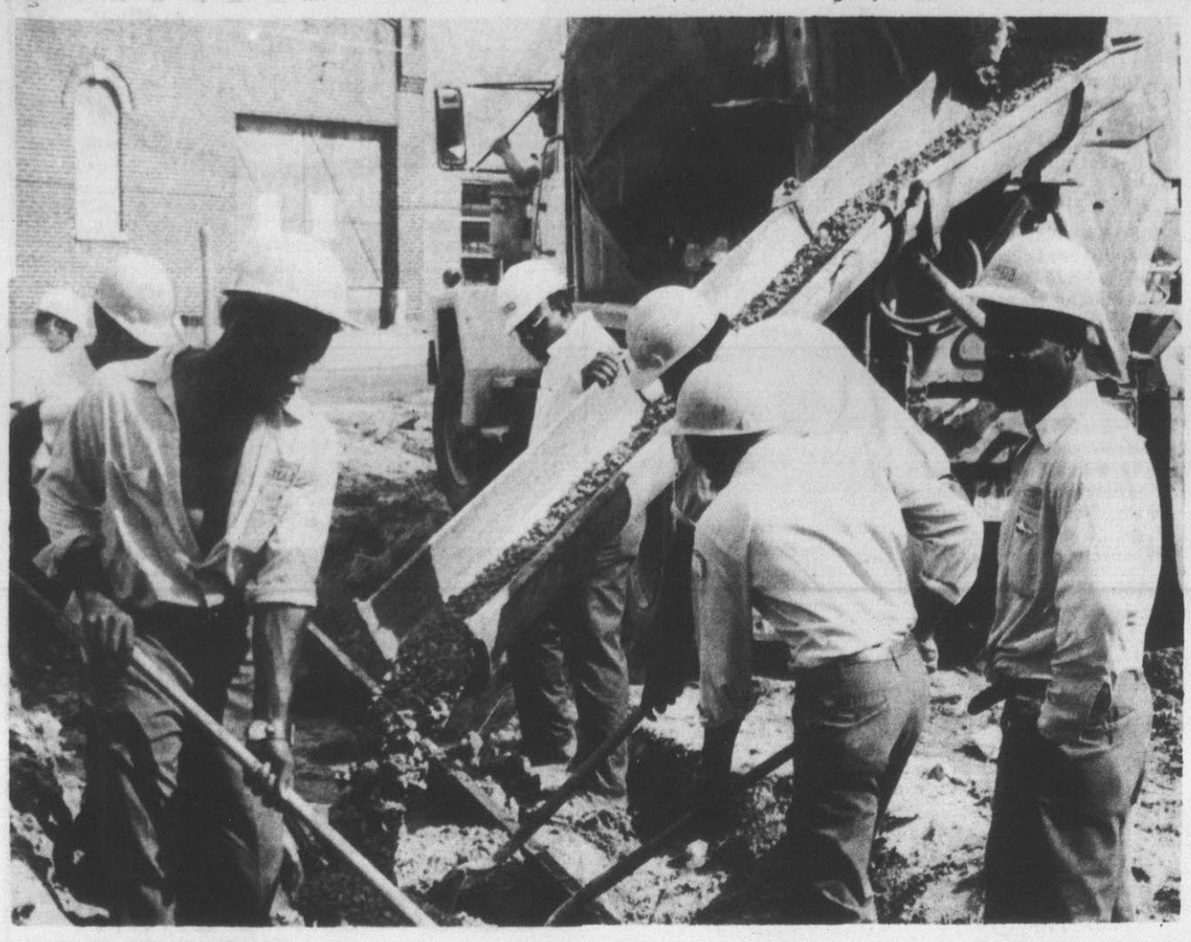

In most cities a project of this nature would fall to an independent contractor. However the Greenville Street Division will handle all construction except for the actual pouring of concrete.

The workers in the division are involved in jobs from laborers to heavy equipment operators.

The starting pay scale for a division employee is $4,878. However this salary increases after a workers puts in six months time. It will also increase after the worker is promoted to another job in the division.

If time and circumstance allows, workers already in the division will be trained to handle vacated jobs in higher salaried positions.

The workers of the Street Division are vital to the smooth flow of traffic in the Greenville community. Public Works director Allen says, "These men should be commended for the tasks that they perform."

Most Drivers Fail In Test For Emergency

BUFFALO (AP)—You are driving along a street and suddenly a pedestrian darts in front of your car.

What do you do?

If you're like most drivers tested at the Calspan Corp.'s proving ground, your car will hit the pedestrian.

Of the 100 drivers who took part in the Calspan test, 34 were confronted with the emergency situation of a pedestrian suddenly appearing in front of their cars.

Researchers used a plastic barrel to simulate a pedestrian, catapulting it in front of the auto. Only one of the 34 drivers was able to avoid the barrel.

"Most did not try to steer around the barrel before hitting the brakes," said project engineer Roy S. Rice.

"Some attempted steering their cars after braking and others did nothing at all," Rice said. "One out of four drivers lost control of their cars after they were surprised by the barrel. The correct action would have been to attempt to steer around it."

Calspan conducted the 18-month, $100,000 study for the General Motors Corp. to determine just how good, or bad, the average American driver is.

Calspan said the volunteer drivers were carefully selected to represent a cross-section of drivers. Sixty per cent were men and 40 per cent women. Their average age was 38, and they had been driving an average of 19 years.

Each driver made five trips around the winding 1.2-mile course at Calspan's 33-acre proving ground at whatever speed they felt would be normal for them.

The researchers found that most drivers don't use a car's full capabilities.

In turning corners, for instance, the typical driver apparently was bothered by the side forces and used only half the car's potential.

Emergency situations, Rice said, usually resulted in hard braking, often resulting in the locking of all four wheels and the loss of steering control.

"While attempting to maneuver on a wet roadway," Rice said, "nearly half of the drivers experienced problems, including plowing off the road, spinning around in a skid, drifting off course or even complete loss of control of the car."

Plan Awards In Research

Special cash awards for the best marine science research at East Carolina University will be made each year in the future, beginning with the academic year 1975-76.

The awards will recognize the best research papers by undergraduate students, graduate students and faculty members presented to the ECU Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources. The awards will total $100 annually.

Funds for the awards have been donated to the ECU Institute by the Greenville manufacturing firm, Empire Brushes, Inc.

Announcing the awards were Dr. Richard A. Stephenson, direactor of the institute, and James A. Hecker, plant manager for Empire Brushes. Purpose of the awards presentation is to generate significant research contributions in the area of coastal and marine resources as related to eastern North Carolina.

NAVIGABLE

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — The Magdalena River, which cuts a deep valley between two Andes mountain ranges and empties into the Caribbean near Barranquilla, has a navigable course of 600 miles.

Barges up to five feet deep can navigate the river's upper section.

Lao Invited To Taiwan Seminar

Dr. Y. J. Lao, associate professor of environmental health in the East Carolina University School of Allied Health and Social Professions is one of 210 scholars and experts from around the world invited to participate in the Fourth Chinese National Development. Seminar.

The seminar is to take place in Taipei Taiwan July 27-August 12, and will enable participants to introduce knowledge and information in their specialty areas which can be applied to the solution of problems in present-day Taiwan.

Participants will exchange ideas with each other and offer suggestions to Taiwan's government agencies.

Dr. Lao will work with the seminar's research committee on urban development, one of six study areas, and as the only environmental health expert, will deal specifically with occupational health, community health standards, water quality control, solid waste storage and public recreation area sanitation.

In addition, he will make suggestions regarding the further development of existing health organizations, especially in the area of environmental health.

Transportation and lodging for each seminar participant is provided by the Nationalist Chinese government.

Dr. Lao has been a member of the ECU environmental health faculty since 1973.

TV SHOWTIME

For The Week Of July 20-26, 1975

Changes In TV Shows

There'll be a change in the weather . . a change in the sea . . and from now on there'll be a change in TV. And what a change! The list of shows that have been cancelled is growing daily and they will be replaced by a list of exciting new shows starring many prominent stars of the entertainment medium.

Stricken from the roles so far are: "Hot l Baltimore," "Kolchak: The Night Stalker," "Karen," "Caribe," "The Odd Couple," "Kung Fu," "Get Christie Love," "The Smothers Brothers," "Lucas Tanner," "World Premiere Movies," "Amy Prentiss," "The Mac Davis Show," "Sunshine," "The Bob Crane Show," "Adam 12," "Manhunter," "Gunsmoke," "Mannix" and "We'll Get By."

New from ABC is "Swiss Family Robinson," a series based on the classic novel and starring Martin Milner and Cameron Mitchell. Sportscaster Howard Cosell broadens his base of operations with an Ed Sullivan-type variety show, Jackie Cooper stars in "Mobile Two" and "Matt Helm" has Tony Francioso in the title role. Other series debuting on ABC are "Welcome Back, Kotter" with Gabe Kaplan, "Barbary Coast," which co-stars William Shatner and Doug McClure, "When Things Were Rotten," based on the Robin Hood story and starring Dick Gautier, "Starsky and Hutch," featuring two wise-cracking young officers played by David Soul and Paul Michael Glaser, and "On the Rocks," an adaptation of an award-winning British comedy.

Premiering on CBS-TV is "Beacon Hill," a direct adaptation of "Upstairs, Downstairs" on PBS which has an enormus cast. Jack Palance stars in the new series "Bronk," and Robert Wagner teams with Eddie Albert in "Switch." Cloris Leachman continues her role from "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" in "Phyllis," a series of her own, and Anne Meara is a bombastic, Irish-American lawyer in "Kate McShane." Other new shows from CBS are "Three for the Road" with Alex Rocco, Vince Van Patten and Leif Garrett; "doc" featuring Barnard Hughes in the title role "Big Eddie," starring Sheldon Leonard, and "Joe and Sons" with Richard Castellano as a widower raising his two sons.

From the NBC camp are "The Invisible Man," starring David McCallum; "Doctor's Hospital" featuring George Peppard, and "Fay," with Lee Grant in the title role. Lloyd Bridges is a cop in "Joe Forrester" and Glenn Ford and Julie Harris have featured roles in "The Family Holvak." Joseph Sirola is the patriarch of a whole clan of Italian-Americans in "The Montefuscos" and "Ellery Queen" - filmed in the 40's movie style and based on the famous whodunits - stars Jim Hutton and David Wayne. "McCoy" replaces "Amy Prentiss" with Tony Curtis as a con man. Coming from the producers of "Police Story" is "Medical Story," a weekly anthology series.

The networks will doubtless make further additions and deletions as premiere time approaches. Just keep reading your TV section and you'll stay 'in the know.'

51-YEAR SAVVY

Fritz Freleng, originator and co-producer with David DePatie of NBC-TV's "The Pink Panther" animated series, has been an animator for 51 years.

TELETHON HOSTS—Helen Reddy, Edward Asner, Susan Saint James (first row), Lorne Green, Della Reese and Alan Alda (second row), will be the co-hosts for the 20½-hour Democratic party telethon which will air live on ABC-TV Saturday, July 26, at 9:00 p.m. and concluding 7:00 p.m. Sunday, July 27. They will welcome such personalities as Earl Holliman, Roy Clark, Bette Davis (third row, left to right), Howard Duff, Jessica Walter and Will Geer (fourth row, left to right).

Demo Telethon Begins July 26

The ABC Television Network will broadcast a 20½-hour fund-raising telethon for the Democratic party, starting Saturday, July 26.

The fourth annual telethon, sponsored by the Democratic party, begins at 9 p.m., Saturday, July 26, and ends at 7 a.m. the following day. The network will break away from the telethon for an hour and a half of regular news and public affairs programming. Last year's telethon on another network yielded more than $5 million in pledges.

This year's telethon, with "Tune in America" as its theme, will provide a mix of top names in entertainment and politics in one of the longest entertainment specials broadcast on television. Jack Cassidy, Roy Clark, Bette Davis, Michael Douglas, Howard Duff, Henry Fonda, Will Geer and his daughter, Ellen, Earl Holliman, Paul Sand, Brenda Vaccaro and Jessica Walter have been set as guests on the program. They will join prominent members of the Democratic party. Rev. Billy Graham will also appear on several segments of the program.

Will Open New McCloud Series

Emmy-winning actress Jessica Walter ("Amy Prentiss," 1975) and country-western singer Barbie Benton head the guest cast of "Park Avenue Pirates," the first "McCloud" drama to be filmed for the 1975-76 season of "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie." Dennis Weaver stars as McCloud.

Walter portrays an unscrupulous record executive involved with the mob, and Benton plays a superstar singer whose talents she seeks.

Also guest-starring are Raymond St. Jacques as a mob boss and Lorna Luft as an aspiring singer.

Lily Tomlin In Second Special

Emmy Award-winning Lily Tomlin stars in her second ABC Television Network variety special Friday, July 25, 10 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12. John Byner guest stars.

Entitled "Lily Tomlin," the program opens with Lily as consumer expert Judith Beasley in a spoof on hair commercials. Lily demonstrates the enduring quality of "Stay Put" by going through a carwash without a car. She comes out waterlogged but with her hair unruffled.

In other highlights, Lily who has been lauded for her dramatic portrayal in the motion picture, "Nashville," shows what happens when a conservative couple in "Dully City" become parents of a baby clown; offers a musical salute to her hometown, Detroit, with the aid of four hoofers; and, as the advanced-for-her-years Edith Anne, tells one of her classic "and that's the truth" stories.

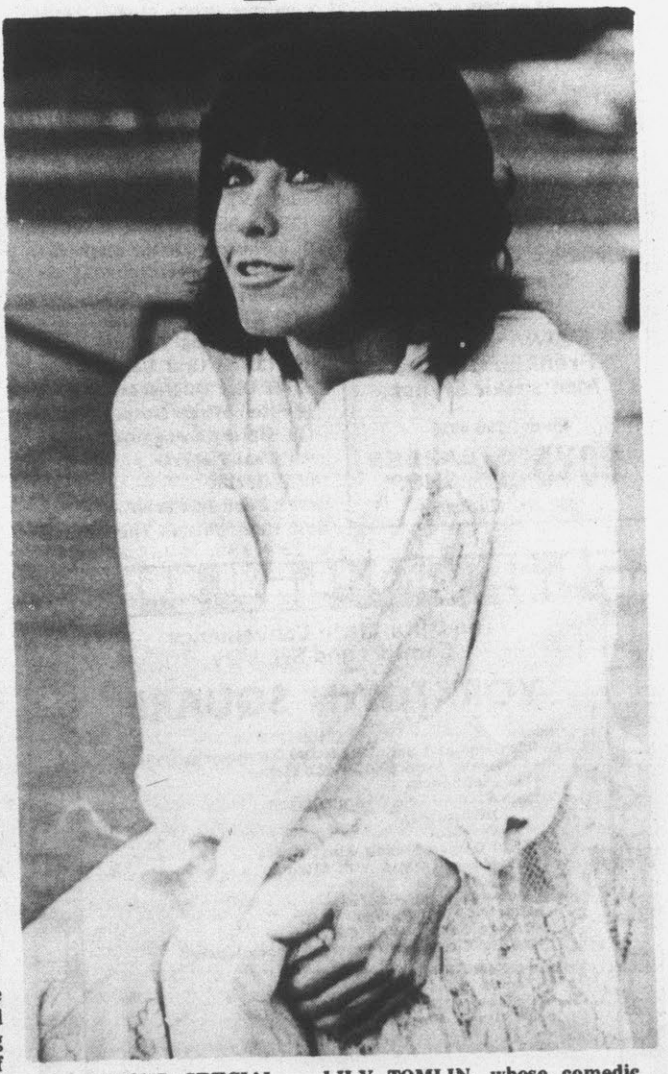

As Bobbi Jeanine, entertainer of the Starlite Lounge, the inventive performer combines a touch of bittersweet romance with comedy with the help of Byner and Doris Roberts.

In another sequence, a satire on confession magazines, Lily plays a bored housewife who takes a job as a store detective and finds herself fending off passes from an amorous boss, portruyed by Byner.

Most of her characters are based on people who populated her own life, especially during her childhood years in Detroit. If not real people, they are combinations of remembered types around whom Miss Tomlin created her particular brand of sharp-eyed satire.

Miss Tomlin would rather talk about (or through) her characters than herself. "I try not to make comments on to thoughtful questions by myself," she has said. "I'f I'm going to make any sort of commentary on a situation, I'd rather do it as one of my characters. Somehow it sounds more articulate that way."

In addition to Byner and Ms. Roberts, others appearing with Lily are Betty Beaird, Valri Bromfield, Christopher Guest, Richard Tomlin (Lily's brother), Gary Weis and Bill Zuckert.

SECOND SPECIAL — LILY TOMLIN, whose comedic repertoire includes such characterizations as the precocious tot Edith Ann, will be seen in her second variety special "Lily Tomlin" Friday, July 25 (10-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV Channel 3-5-12.

Sisters Brown & Black

Gail Brown, who plays Clarice Hobson in NBC-TV's "Another World," and film star Karen Black, currently appearing in "Day of the Locust" and "Nashville," are sisters. And their names are legitimate: Gail is married to writer Michael Quinlan Brown; Karen was formerly the wife of engineer Charles Black.

As youngsters they appeared together in school plays, and when Gail was a student teacher in an Evanston (Ill.) high school, she played Laura in a production of Tennessee William's "The Glass Menagerie," while sister Karen played Amanda.

Their interest in the arts is not surprising. Their great grandfather was Arthur Ziegler, a concert violinist; their mother is novelist Elsie Reif Ziegler, author of the Literary Guild selection "The Blowing wind"; and their father is an amateur violinist.

Gail, having set her sights on a career in dancing, performed professionally as early as age 15. "Acting was Karen's thing," she says, "so I just felt dancing was mine."

After doing some work in musicals, however, Gail decided to move into acting. In the touring company of "Funny Girl" she was given a small role — Mimsy — and understudied Jenny.

"When the actress playing Jenny was out for a month," said Gail, "I played both roles. Just to get that minor part was a hassle. I had to convince them the costume would fit me before they said yes."

Efron Recounts Story Of Jonah

(See sunday daytime schedule.

Accounts of Jonah and the whale, Christ's temptation in the desert, and Ephron the Hittite, son of Zohar, will be presented in a rebroadcast of "Marshall Efron's Illustrated, Simplified and Painless Sunday School," the CBS News series for young children, on Sunday, July 20.

In recounting the story of Jonah the prophet, Efron explains that "A prophet is a person who is singled out by the Lord to spread the Lord's message and make His will known to the people."

Efron, in relating the story of Christ's temptation in the desert, says, "He knew He was being tested, and He wasn't going to fail so easy."

Rebroadcast Cathedral Visit

(See Sunday schedule)

The Rev. Dr. Martin Sullivan, dean of St. Paul's Cathedral in London discusses Christopher Wren's 17th-century architectural masterpiece — its glorious past and the problems it faces in the modern world — in "Sullivan on St. Paul's" to be rebroadcast on "Lamp Unto My Feet" sunday, July 20 on CBS-TV.

Rev. Sullivan takes viewers on a tour of St. Paul's Cathedral, explaining the meanings of the various chapels, among them the American chapel dedicated to American servicemen and women who lost their lives in World War II while stationed in Great Britian.

Rev. Sullivan also explains how the Cathedral's exterior has deteriorated over the centuries, due to urban pollution and other corrosive environmental problems. Extensive undertakings to repair the walls and statuary of St. Paul's Cathedral will also be discussed.

Far To Go For Women's Lib

In a recent interview on "AM America," Patricia Carbine, Vice President of Ms. magazine, said that women's liberation was "not at all" a reality yet.

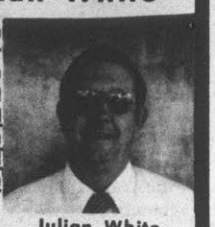

She said, "We are still burdened by our conditioning. I think, being an optimist, that (our) grandchildren might just be the first generation to feel somewhat free to pursue whatever course in life they want, no matter what they look like, no matter what color they are. It's going to take at least that long."

'A Lot Of Spooky Fun'

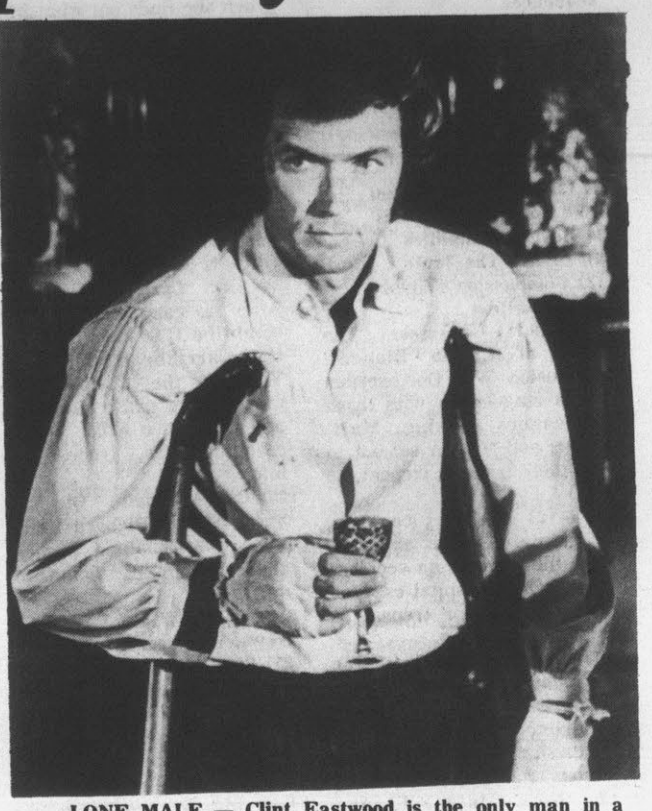

Clint Eastwood stars as a wounded Union soldier who takes shelter in a Southern girls' seminary inhabited by two lonely women and six pretty young students in "The Beguiled," on the ABC Television Network's "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," July 20, 8:30 to 10:30 p.m., on Ch. 3-5-12.

Geraldine Page and Elizabeth Hartman are starred as the schoolmarms who decide to provide the soldier with a place to recuperate from his wound before deciding whether or not to turn him over to the Confederate forces.

Time magazine's film critic said the Gothic melodrama was "a lot of spooky fun - the most scarifying film since Rosemary birthed her satanic baby." Kevin Thomas of the Los Angeles Times called it "a film of psychological suspense laced with dark humor that is a triumph of style, totally engrossing and utterly convincing."

After the soldier called "McB" (Eastwood) is discovered in the woods, headmistress Martha Farnsworth (Geraldine Page) decides to nurse him back to health. Unfortunately, while the physical wound is closing, emotional wounds are opening. The teachers and several of his young nurses, just discovering themselves as women, are eager to discover him as a man. Jealousy and betrayal lead to a rage that makes McB's wound worse than ever, and Martha takes extreme measures to save his life . . . or to punish him?

The Jennings Lang Production was produced and directed by Donald Siegel from a screenplay by John B. Sherry and Grimes Grice, based on a novel by Thomas Cullinan.

LONE MALE — Clint Eastwood is the only man in a secluded girls' school where anything can — and probably will — happen in "The Beguiled" a Gothic tale of the Civil War airing on ABC-TV "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Sunday, July 20 (8:30-10:30 p.m.).

Will Narrate 'Bicentennial'

Glynn S. Lunney, Vance Brand, Melba Moore, Cliff Gorman, Robert Morse, Peter Nero and Benjamin Franklin Bailar will appear in and narrate the "Bicentennial Minutes" series for the week starting Sunday, July 20, on the CBS Television Network.

U.S. Technical Director for the Apollo-Soyuz Test Project, Blynn S. Lunney, is to narrate the "Minute" of Sunday, July 20, concurrent with the Apollo-Soyuz space mission. On July 20, 1775, Congress set aside the day so that Americans could ask God to bless the cause of liberty. The "Minute" is to be broadcast at the conclusion of "Joey and Dad."

Apollo Astronaut Vance Brand narrates the "Minute" of Monday, July 21, the date of the scheduled landing of the Soviet's Soyuz spacecraft. Benjamin Franklin presented a rough draft of a document calling for American unity, strength and independence. The "Minute" may be seen at the conclusion of "Gunsmoke."

The "Minute" of Tuesday, July 22, will be narrated by Melba Moore. Yankee handbills floated into Boston at night tempting British soldiers to cross over to American lines. The "Minute" is to be broadcast at the conclusion of "Good Times."

Cliff Gorman narrates the "Minute" of Wednesday, July 23. General Washington convinced Massachusetts General John Thomas not to quit the Continental army. The "Minute" may be seen at the conclusion of "Tony Orlando and Dawn."

The "Minute" of Thursday, July 24 is to be narrated by Robert Morse. The British got their hands on two nasty letters written by John Adams. The "Minute" is to be broadcast at the conclusion of "The Waltons."

Peter Nero narrates the "Minute" of Friday, July 25. On that date in 1775, General Washington studied a map that a 24-year-old artist-soldier named John Trumbull risked his neck to draw. The "Minute" may be seen prior to the first station break in the movie "Fer-de Lance."

Postmaster General of the United States Benjamin Franklin Bailar narrates the "Minute" of Saturday, July 26. Congress asked Banjamin Franklin to organize a system to deliver mail. The "Minute" is to be broadcast at the conclusion of "All in the Family."

Mischief By A Pachyderm

On a fishing trip Jeff Peterson (Willie Aames) makes a bet with his dad, John (Denis Arndt), that the one who catches the largest fish will have to clean the dinner dishes.

Not far from the fishing Petersons, Bucky Steele (Slim Pickens), owner of a herd of performing elephants, is making his way along the highway when a tire blows on his trailer truck. Bucky pulls off the road, lets the elephants out for some exercise and begins to replace the tire. Barney, the mischievous member of the pachyderm pack, plays several tricks on Bucky that he doesn't find amusing, and Bucky tells him to get lost. He does!

Meanwhile, back at the lake, Jeff has something on his line and gets the surprise of his life when he reels the line in and discovers Barney at the other end. Jeff, in his shocked state, loses his footing and falls into the lake.

Mis-adventures occur, one after the other . . . Barney playing one trick after the other, Bucky in hot pursuit; Jeff's father and his conked - out boat motor; Bucky accusing Jeff of stealing his elephant. But it all ends well and is a laugh-packed show that may be seen Sunday evening, July 20, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

Color Scheme
Color is one of the most important elements in decorating. It is the catalyst that brings a room to life, gives it flair and dramatic impact. Yet many people find color schemes difficult to create, mainly because they are unsure of the effects individual colors produce and they don't want to make costly mistakes. However, there is no reason why even the person most inexperienced at decorating can't create a successful color scheme.
Why not start with the floors? Come in and see our fantastic collection of carpeting in every shade and texture. Select the one for your home. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale." "Carpet is our Business, Not a Hobby."

The Ocean Performed

Even in Hollywood's heyday, there weren't many directors who'd venture to get an ocean to perform on cue.

EERIE TALE OF LOVE — Bonnie Bedelia and Jan-Michael Vincent star in a ghostly romance about a girl who falls in love with a young man who has been killed in a car crash, in "Sandcastles" on "The CBS Late Movie" Monday, July 21 at 11:30 p.m. on CBS-TV.

But Ted Post tried it — and pulled it off against some intimidating odds — in "Sandcastles," starring Herschel Bernardi, Jan-Michael Vincent and Bonnie Bedelia, on "The CBS Late Movie" Monday, July 21, at 11:30 p.m. on Channels 9 - 11.

One particularly tough day the company was forced to move three times after its beachfront locations had been literally washed away by heavy surf from tropical storm Hyacinth. On that day, director Post needed the Pacific Ocean as part of the action. Breakers up to 20 feet high had forced closing the beach to swimmers.

The script called for the washing away of a string of romantic-looking sandcastles built by Jan-Michael Vincent and Bonnie Bedelia. With surf pounding the beach, husky crewmen shoveled sand dikes and erected barricades to protect the castles, which had to be kept intact throughout the scene.

Finally, the required retakes had been completed. Miss Bedelia then took up her position (in waist-deep chilly water) to watch the sandcastles erode beneath the waves. Workmen hastily removed the barricade and dashed out of camera range.

But, by some freak of nature, the very next wave was only a ripple . . and the next . . and 15 minutes later, still no wave big enough to dent the fragile sandcastles.

"That," said Post, "was when I got mad. And (producer) Jerry Isenberg stood beside me, hollering at the ocean, 'Come up here and do what you're supposed to!' "

However, patience — at some expense to the shivering Miss Bedelia — paid off. Within another 15 minutes, some big waves showed up and satisfactorily blotted out the castles. Post happily gave the ocean his personal award for a job well done.

Six Shows For Jim Stafford

Some of Hollywood's most distinguished actors will be guests on "The Jim Stafford Show," when the new ABC-TV weekly variety hour airs for six weeks during the summer, starting Wednesday, July 30.

Among the stars scheduled to appear are Academy Award-winner Art Carney, Emmy Award-winner Robert Blake and Emmy Award-winner Will Geer.

Family Sponsored Sixteen Refugees

The American record for sponsoring Vietnamese refugees might very well be the exclusive property of Ron Steinman, producer of the Washington segments of NBC News' "Today" program.

By mid-June, the Steinman household in Rockville Centre, N.Y. had added 16 Vietnamese residents, all of them relatives of Mrs. Steinman, the former Josephine Tu Ngoc Suong, who met Ron when he was bureau chief in Saigon for NBC News (1966-68). Including the Steinmans' three children, there were 21 occupants in the rambling ranch house in the Long Island community to which Steinman commuted while he was based in New York as General Manager, News, Specials, NBC News.

"We managed very nicely," said Steinman. "Neighbors were kind enough to loan us cots, and they contributed clothing for the children. Fortunaterly, a large, finished basement was excellent for conversion into a dormitory. Since we were in the process of moving to Washington, we sought a larger house than we had planned on, and found it. The overflow can stay with some of our friends temporarily."

The Steinman menage moved to the Washington area last month, some in the family's two cars, the others by train.

Cooking for the assemblage is no problem. Among the first arrivals, in a party of seven several weeks ago, were Josephine's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tu Hong Phat. The mother, a marvelous cook, operated a restaurant in Saigon for more than 15 years.

That also could solve the problem of supporting the family in the future. They plan to open a Vietnamese restaurant, probably in Washington.

Josephine's parents, her sister, two sisters-in-law and two babies were airlifted to Guam three days before Saigon fell to the North Vietnamese. They were flown to Camp Pendleton, thence to Rockvill Centre. Four cousins (two women and two children) were exacuated in another plane at the same time; their stop between Guam and Long Island was Fort Chaffee, Ark.

During the last days before the North Vietnamese takeover, the family lost track of Josephine's three brothers. It has been learned since that two of them went home and the other returned to his military base. Two of their cousins suddenly turned up at the house and led the brothers to a small, over crowded ship that was preparing to sail. Since they insisted upon searching for the third brother, one of the cousins went back and found him at home. All five were aboard when the ship left the harbor.

Astaire Will Host Special

Fred Astaire is the host of a "Wide World: Special" tribute to movie musicals, and Gloria Swanson, William Windom, David McCallum and Frank Converse are the stars in four "Wide World: Mystery" dramas in the ABC Television Network's late - night program schedule for the week of July 21-25.

All five programs will be seen from 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Channel 3-5-12.

David McCallum stars as a man who kills his wife and spends the remainder of his days haunted by the head he severed from her corpse, in "The Screaming Skull," a "Wide World: Mystery" to be rebroadcast Monday, July 21.

"Murder in the First Person Singular," a "Wide World: Mystery" which will be rebroadcast Tuesday, July 22, stars William Windom as a teacher who devises an intricate plan for his murder by one of his students. Windom portrays Alfred Emerson, a bachelor suffering from a terminal illness. He seeks to be murdered because it will double the insurance beneficiary payment to his mother, played by Martha Scott.

Gloria Swanson, starring in her first made - for - television film, plays an aged matriarch who dominates her family and terrorizes a town by her strange power to control murderous bees in "Killer Bees," to be presented as a "Wide World: Mystery," Wednesday, July 23.

"Fred Astaire Salutes the Fox Musicals," the "Wide World: Special" which will receive an encore airing, Thursday, July 24, reviews the outstanding musical motion picture produced by 20th Century-Fox during the past 45 years.

With the celebrated Fred Astaire as host and narrator, the program shows posrions of the studio's best-remembered films that have presented in musical roles such stars as Marilyn Monroe, Jane Russell, Betty Brable, Shirley MacLaine, Maurice Chevalier, Carmen Miranda, Donald O''Connor, Barbra Streisand, Ethel Merman, Shirley Temple.

SURVIVOR — Martin Sheen stars as the surviving ship's officer, in charge of a lifeboat crowded with passengers after a cruise liner is sunk during a typhoon in "The Last Survivors," to be colorcast on "NBC World Premiere Movie" Tuesday, July 22 (8:30 - 10 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Film Based On Actual Tragedy

In 1841 an American ship, the William Brown, struck an iceberg and sank off the coast of Newfoundland.

Forty-one passengers and crewmen were jammed together in a lifeboat as the sea grew hearvier and waves threatened to swamp the craft.

Acting on the first mate's orders, seaman Alexander Homes assisted other crewmen in throwing a number of the passengers overboard to make the boat seaworthy.

Eventually, those on the boat were rescued and Holmes was tried and convicted of manslaughter in a classic case that today is being studied in law school.

The incident, modernized and somewhat changed, is dramatized in "The Last Survivors," an NBC World Premiere Movie to be colorcast Tuesday, July 22, 8:30 to 10 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

Martin Sheen stars as Holmes, upgraded in the film version to a second purser, who as the senior officer on the lifeboat must make the life-or-death decision as to which passengers will be thrown overboard.

The William Brown had been en route from Liverpool to Philadelphia with a heavy cargo, a crew of 16 and 65 passengers — Scottish and Irish emigrants.

The 24 hours after the ship sank was a horror for the survivors. They were lasked by freezing rain and were forced to bail contantly to keep the leaky boat flaot.

Through it all Holmes was described by survivors as a "model of decision and strength." He had been the last crewman to leave the sinking ship and made "conspicuous" efforts to save passengers when the ship was struck.

During the height of the crisis in the lifeboat, Holmes, according to one witness "finally became the only one whose energies and hopes did not sink into prostration."

Two Joining M-A-S-H

Veteran actor Harry Morgan, star of several successful television series, and Mike Farrell, who starred in "The Interns" on CBS-TV, will be introduced in new regular roles on the award-winning "M-A-S-H" series when it begins its fourth season in September.

Morgan joins the "M-A-S-H" cast, playing the new commanding officer, Col. Sherman Potter, a career army man and former cavalry officer who manages to make the adjustment to the madcap Mobile Army Surgical Hospital scene, despite his background in more orthodox surroundings.

Farrell is cast as Capt. B. J. Hunnicutt, a clean-cut young surgeon recently drafted and recently married, who finds the off-duty hijinks in Korea a bit strange after his civilian residency.

After starring in "December Bride" and "Pete and Gladys," Morgan became a regular on "Kentucky Jones," "The Richard Boone Show," "Dragnet," "The D.A.," and "Hec Ramsey."

His career began on the stage, one of his first breaks coming in the original Broadway production of "Golden Boy," starring Karl Malden and Lee J. Cobb. His motion picture credits include "The Ox Bow Incident," "High Noon," "What Price Glory?," "Inherit the Wind," "Strategic Air Command," "Viva Max" and "Support Your Local Sheriff."

A Wife For 'Doctor Kiley'

There'll be some changes made in the "Marcus Welby, M.D." series this year, and the most important one will be the change in Dr. Kiley's marital status. In the initial show, to air in September, his about-to-be-wife will be introduced.

Actress Pamela Hensley has been signed to play the lucky girl, 'Janet Blake, who serves as Public Relations Director for Lang Memorial Hospital where the romantic involvement begins. A turbulent romance builds between the two that culminates with their marriage in the fifth segment. After the wedding, Dr. Kiley moves out of the Welby home and the newlyweds will establish a home of their own.

Ms. Hensley is currently co-starring in the motion picture, "Rollerball," and Brolin is in the final stages of his starring role as Clark 'Gable in the feature film, "Gable and Lombard."

DIFFERENT OPINIONS — Kay Lenz and Joe Bottoms clash over an agonizing decision when they have a child out of wedlock — she wants to put the baby up for adoption but he wants to keep custody himself in "Unwed Father," a contemporary drama on ABC-TV's "Wednesday Movie" of the Week" Wednesday, July 23 (8:30-10 p.m.).

Emotional Question Is Posed In 'Unwed Father'

Joseph Bottoms was asked: "What would you do if you were confronted with the situation you are faced with in 'Unwed Father' - being asked by your girlfriend to give up for adoption the illegitimate baby you have fathered?"

The 19-year-old father gave the question his full attention, turning it over in hs mind, examining all aspects of it, and probing it in depth before he replied.

"I don't know," he said slowly. "It's something I can't answer with any degree of positiveness because there are too many things to consider, too many variables. All I can say is that I'm grateful not having to decide such a vital question in my own life."

The decision motivates the plot of "Unwed Father," the Wednesday Movie of the Week," airing July 23, 8:30 to 10:00 p.m., on Ch. 3-5-12., with Bottoms and Kay Lenz starring as high school students (Peter and Vicky) who differ on how to solve their mutual problem.

In the story, Peter fights Vicky and her family in order to adopt the baby. Vicky, who refuses to marry the young father of her child, thinks it's only fair to the baby to have it adopted by a prosperous young couple who can give it the comforts and advantages that go with affluence. Peter believes that a father's love - his - is more important to the child than material advantages.

Kay Lenz, who at 19 is one of Hollywood's most talented younger actresses and mature far beyond her years, didn't hesitate when asked what she would do if faced with a problem of such urgency.

"I'd keep the baby," she said firmly. "I can't understand how any mother could do otherwise. No matter what the circumstances, I couldn't - I wouldn't - give my baby away to strangers."

Taylor And Burton In 'Virginia Woolf'

The winner of five Academy Awards, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?," starring Elizabeth Taylor, in her Oscar - winning role of Martha, and Richard Burton, will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies," July 24, 9 to 11:40 p.m., in black - and white on Channel 9-11.

Taken from the award - winning Broadway play by Edward Albee, the film also stars George Segal and Sandy Dennis, who won an Oscar for her performance as Honey.

Martha and George are an embattled couple living on a college campus where George teaches history and is never allowed by his bitter wife to forget she is the daughter of the college president.

Two Switched Private Lives

A hip woman's magazine editor and a pretty suburban homemaker swap lives — an exchange that reveals some startling things about themselves and some big surprises about their men — in "Let's Switch!," the ABC Television Network's "Tuesday Movie of the Week," July 22, 8:30 to 10:00 p.m., on Channels 3, 5, 12.

'Zoo Gang' In 3 Parts

MEMBERS OF 'THE ZOO GANG' — Brian Keith, Barry Morse, John Mills (left to right) and Lilli Palmer are the stars of "The Zoo Gang," the six-hour mini-series based on Paul Gallico's novel which will be colorcast on NBC-TV in three two-hour segments, Wednesdays, July 16 and 23 and August 6 (9-11 p.m.).

Dealings with a former president of an African nation and with a ring of gold smugglers mark the adventures of "The Zoo Gang" — Brian Keith, John Mills, Lilli Palmer and Barry Morse — in "African Misfire" and "The Counterfeit Trap." The dramas, the third and fourth one-hour installments of the six-part mini-series, will be colorcast on NBC-TV Wednesday, July 23, 9-11 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

The series, based on the book by Paul Gallico, focuses on four members of a World War II resistance group, who fought the Nazis in the south of France and are now united to battle injustice. They are called "The Zoo Gang" because of their wartime code names — "The Fox" for American Stephen Halliday (played by Keith), "The Eelephant" for Englishman Capt. Tommy Devon (Mills), "The Leopard" for French Widow Namouche Roget (Palmer) and "The Tiger" for Canadian Alec Marlowe.

The action takes place in Nice and other locales along the French Riviera. In "African Misfire," the four seek to recover the stolen art collection of a deposed president of an African nation, Gen. Naganda (portrayed by Nathan Damboza). Halliday (Keith), posing as an art dealer, conducts an investigation which leads to the discovery of the stolen collection of a villa rented by Jacques Picard (Kieron Moore), who turns out to be a friend of "Zoo Gang" member Manouche Roger (Palmer).

Picard's reasons for stealing the art works from the power-corrupted ex-head of state and the actions taken by the quartet for the recovery of the treasures provide the climax to the story. The case includes Leonard Trolley as the insurance agent and Earl Cameron as the general's aide. "African Misfire" was written by Peter Yeldham and directed by Sidney Hayers.

"The Counterfeit Trap" shows how "Zoo Gang" members play one racket against another, using stolen, forged bills to pay for smuggled gold as they try to break a gold-smuggling ring. The Canadian member of the group, Alec Marlowe (Morse), posing as an American tourist, meets with two sellers of the smuggled gold—Carlo (Mark Colleano) and Nicko (Chris Dillinger)—only once. They are found slain at Alec's rented villa and Alec is jailed. Manouche approaches the examining judge (Peter Cushing) in an effort to help her Canadian friend.

"The Counterfeit Trap" was written by John Kruse and directed by John Hough. Casts for both telecasts include Michael Petrovich as Manouche's policeman-son, Lt. Georges Roget, and Seretta Wilson as Jill Burton, Tommy Devon's assistant.

Imported The Bees

Close to 700,000 bees were imported by the producers of "Killer Bees," a suspense film airing on the "Wide World: Mystery" Wednesday, July 23, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., Channel 3-5-12, to the vineyard country in Napa Valley, 100 miles northeast of San Francisco, recently.

The fact that there are no bees buzzing about there in chilly winter accounted for the importation. Bees were transported from Colorado and Southern California by experienced beekeepers for scenes in the movie starring Gloria Swanson, Edward Albert, Kate Jackson, Roger Davis and Craig Stevens.

In the suspenseful drama, in which Miss Swanson plays Mme. Van Bohlen, matriarchal head of a wine-growing family, the legendary star showed the stuff stoics are made of when she played a scene in which 4,000 bees were turned loose on her.

The bees had gone through a process in which their stingers had been removed - a process which took six people one week to do. Beekeepers had experimented for two weeks to find a way to render bees harmless, yet keep them alive for five days, but there was the nagging question in everyone's mind: "What if one or two slipped through with stingers intact?"

In the summer months drones which have no stingers could have been used, but there are none around in the winer. Drones are pushed out of the hive, as they are useless at this time of year, according to the beekeepers.

The point made in the film was that the Van Bohlen family has brought to this country from their vineyards in Africa, a bee used in growing grapes which gives a special, unique quality to their wine, but which also possesses the ability to kill.

For the scene with Miss Swanson, the bees were taken to the location in Rutherford, California, in dry ice, which made them sleepy. While in this almost comatose state, with the light turned out, they were placed on Miss Swanson's shoulders, arms and brimmed hat. Then the hot lights were turned on, and as the bees warmed up they began to crawl and move about.

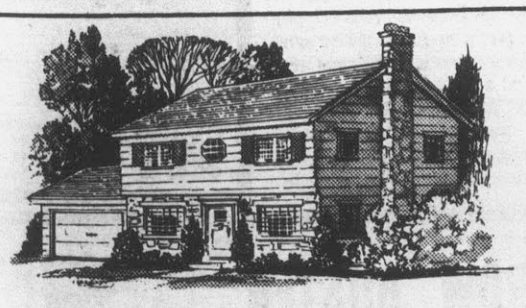

Guesting With Orlando, Dawn

Guests stars Arte Johnson of "Laugh-In" fame, Lisa Todd of "Hee Haw," and singer Frankie Avalon peer into the future with stars Tony Orlando and Dawn to see which performers will still be on television, on a rebroadcast of "Tony Orlando and Dawn" Wednesday, July 23, 8 tp 9 p.m., on CBS-TV and Channel 9-11.

In the featured number, Dawn — Telma Hopkins and Joyce Vincent Wilson — sing "In the Year 2525" to set the time, as Avalon plays the host of a late-night talk show. Johnson is his flamboyantly - dressed orchestra leader, and Orlando is his gray-haired announcer. They also portray such television personalities as Lawrence Welk, Walter Cronkite, Dick Clark, Howard Cosell, Carol Burnett, Julie Andrews and The Mouseketeers.

Pike's Peeks

Sonny Bono is no longer scheduled to appear on ex-wife's Cher show this Fall now that the latter is Mrs. Gregg Allman. No one was more surprised at Cher's secret Las Vegas wedding than George Schlatter, producer of the CBS variety series. Like most people, even George didn't know Cher was going to marry Allman. The newlyweds won't have a honeymoon. They flew to Macon, Ga. the day after they married so Gregg could finish a record album and Cher is due to start production on her show any day now.

Telly Savalas and Sally Adams, the woman he calls his wife although there's no evidence they've ever been legally married, have separated. They had been sharing a Bel Air mansion along with their son, Nicholas. A spokesman for the star of "Kojak" said the couple had a 'spat,' but Telly moved out around the first of June and some claim he won't be moving back.

Nancy Marchand, who'll portray Mary Lassiter in the new "Beacon Hill" series, is a veteran daytime actress, having appeared in "Love of Life," "The Edge of Night" and "Search for Tomorrow." She's a charming and candid woman who's optimistic that the new series will not only provide good entertainment, but some surprises as well!

Rock Hudson and James Brolin of "McMillan & Wife" and "Marcus Welby" respectively both have nude love scenes in upcoming movies. Rock in "Embryo" and Jim in "Gable & Lombard."

Bolger, Lemmon In 2-Hour Play

Ray Bolger and Sada Thompson — both Tony Award-winning stars—will co-star with Jack Lemmon in the two-hour TV adaptation of "The Entertainer" by John Osborne.

Bolger will play Billy, father of Archie Rice (Lemmon). Billy is a show business oldtimer who has never lost his love of the footlights. Thompson will appear as Phoebe, Archie's second wife.

The setting of the play is being changed from the original British to an American seaside resort. Lemmon, as Archie, appears as a second-rate comedian still clamoring hard for a place in the limelight.

Marvin Hamlisch (as announced) has written eight original songs, with lyrics by Robert Joseph, for the special, adapted by Elliot Baker. Ron Field, who created the dances for the original stage production of "Cabaret," will stage the musical numbers. "The Entertainer" is being produced by Robert Stigwood Organization, Inc. Beryl Vertue, President of Stigwood Productions, and Hamlisch are the executive producers. The director is Donald Wrye, best known for his NBC World Premiere movie "Born Innocent" and the television specials "Death Be Not Proud" and "The Man Who Could Talk to Kids."

Bolger won a Tony Award (as well as a Donaldson Award) for his performance in "Where's Charley?" He also starred in the movie version of the musical. He is noted for his portrayal of the scarecrow in the classic film, "The Wizard of Oz." He made his TV debut via NBC-TV's "Comedy Hour," had his own TV series, "The Ray Bolger Show," and has been a guest on many variety programs.

Thompson co-stars as Mary Todd Lincoln in the NBC-TV specials, "Sandburg's Lincoln." She won a Tony Award for her portrayals of the four ladies in the Broadway production of "Twigs." Off-Broadway, she starred in "The Effect of Gamma Rays on the Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds," winning an Obie Award. She also won an Obie for her work in "Tartuffe."

Forerunner Of Series Will Air

Glenn Ford stars as the Rev. Holvak, a rural preacher battling a sheriff, poverty and restless church deacons in "The Greatest Gift," a made-for-television drama on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" July 24, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channels 6-7.

The film is the forerunner of the new one-hour series, "The Family Holvak," premiering on NBC-TV this fall.

Holvak tries to instill solid principals in Ramey while resisting efforts by church leaders to make him change the tone of his sermons.

His problems are compounded by Hog Yancey (Harris Yulin), tge town bully who is also the sheriff.

Gun Registration Favored By 4 To 1

A CBS News poll on questions of gun control indicates that the American public strongly disagrees with President Ford's opposition to a federal law requiring the registration of firearms. The poll found that the public strongly favors a national law requiring all handguns to be registered by a margin of 4 to 1.

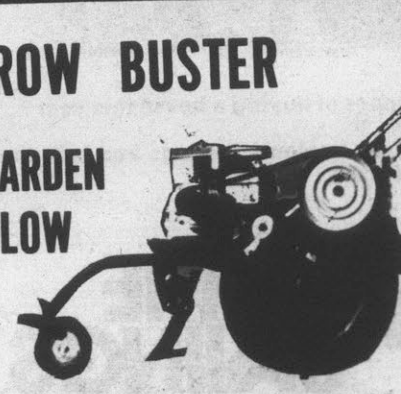

The nationwide telephone poll of 889 people of voting age was conducted by the CBS News Election and survey Unit during the week of June 16, the same week the President delivered his crime message to Congress. Some findings of the poll were broadcast Monday, June 30, on the CBS Evening News With Walter Cronkite.

Almost half of those interviewed came from a family where they or an immediate number of the family own a rifle or a handgun. Over two-thirds of these people (69 per cent) support a nationwide law requiring the registration of handguns. Three-fourths (73 per cent) of those interviewed who said they were Republicans also favored such legislation.

The CBS News poll found that other parts of the President's crime message received greater public support. Those interviewed favored the proposal calling for mandatory prison sentences for anyone committing a crime with a gun by a margin of 11 to 1, with people in families owning firearms slightly more in favor of mandatory jail terms than those who do not own such weapons.

CRISIS SHIP—David Janssen portrays an officer forced to take the helm of a crippled submarine trapped beneath the sea and threatened by deadly snakes aboard, in "Fer-De-Lance" to be rebroadcast as the first part (8-9:30 p.m.) of a double-feature presentation on "The CBS Friday Night Movie," July 25, on channels 3N-9-11.

Hope Escaped From Coffee Pot

Hope Lange, who once said she did not want to portray women whose main function was to sit at home and pour coffee, got her wish with a role as a U.S. Navy doctor trapped in a submerged submarine, in "Fer-de Lance," to be broadcast on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," July 25, at 8:00 p.m., on Channels 9 & 11.

"I took this part because it seemed like great fun," she explained. "Perhaps the most difficult facet of the role was learning the medical terminology."

Blue jeans and a faded blue shirt made up her entire wardrobe throughout the film, in which she co-stars with David Janssen, but the lovely blonde actress, noted as being one of Hollywood's most tastefully dressed stars, was happy with that limited collection of "most comfortable" costumes.

Prior to the start of "Fer-de-Lance," Miss Lange had completed starring roles in two other motion pictures and was ready for a short vacation. The actress, who didn't want to play women who just sit around pouring coffee, admitted that she now was looking forward to time off, where all she has to do is sit around and pour coffee.

"Fer-de-Lance" is the first part of a double-bill presentation Friday night, and will be followed by "Crime Club." The film is the story of John Keesey, a member of the exclusive Crime Club which is dedicated to crime prevention. He senses the confession of a man who craves public attention is not legitimate. Aided by a defense attorney, an investigative reporter and the other club members, he sets out to prove his hunch. Starring in the movie are Scott Thomas, Eugene Roche and Robert Lansing.

Four Are Trapped Beneath The Sea

"Trapped Beneath the Sea" is inspired by the true story of four men entombed in a mini-sub off the coast of Florida on June 17, 1973. An anguished nation stood by as the men, unable to surface, waited helplessly for rescue while their oxygen supply rapidly ran out. Lee J. Cobb and Martin Balsam star in "The ABC Summer Movie," airing on Friday, July 25, 8:00 to 10:00 p.m., on Channels 3, 5, 12.

For close to 15 hours, four men have been trapped in the Sea Bat, a small research submarine, 350 feet below the surface. Above, on the mother ship, Victor Batelam (Cobb), inventor of the sub, and a Navy rescue vessel battle treacherous currents in an effort to free the sub from a cable that fouled the propeller and holds the tiny craft in a deadly grip.

But, as the 15th hour approaches, the four men inside the sub are faced with an agonizing death from carbon dioxide poisoning unless a rescue can be effected immediately.

Frank Capra Jr. produced "Trapped Beneath the Sea." The name Frank Capra is synonymous with excellence in the field of motion pictures. Six Academy Awards are part of the legacy of Frank Capra Sr. Today, the man who gave the silver screen an endless list of magnificent movies, lives in retirement in his Southern Carlifornia desert home. But the name of Capra is not in retirement; Frank Capra Jr. is carrying on.

Capra, who at 38 has been involved in TV and motion pictures since he was 21, points out that the original incident which precipitated this movie occurred in June, 1973, off the coast of Florida. The subsequent rescue attempts, filled with courage, frustration and ingenuity, caught his attention and after a year of preparation on the project, from idea to story to script by Stanford Whitmore, it is finally reaching the TV screen.

Capra, who exudes the same infectious energy and enthusiasm that his father did, has a well-rounded background in the film industry. He has at various times been writer, film editor, director, associate producer for studios such as Columbia (his father's home lot), 20th Century-Fox, Paramount, United Artists, Four Star TV, and others.

"Trapped Beneath the Sea" is Capra's first full-fledged production for television. Indications are that the Capra name will continue to shine from the screen - be it television or theatrical - for some time to come.

HE WRITES, TOO

Freddie Prinze is penning three "Chico And The man" segs this season and says he's also submitting a script for the "Bob Newhart Show."

HOT DOG HIGH JINKS — Aerial acrobatics are performed by two hot dog skiers on NBC-TV's "GO" Saturday, July 26 (12:30-1 p.m.). This scene was filmed by the NBC minicam at Park City West in Utah.

Michele Will Tell

TO S.R., AYDEN, N.C. "Gilligan's Island" episodes run 'again and again' because that's all there is . . . there ain't no more! The show is now syndicated and no new episodes are being filmed.

SPEAKING OF ADDRESSES, write to Darren McGavin, c-o Chasin-Park-Citron Agency, 10889 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 1020, Los Angeles, Calif., 90024. "Kolchak: Night Stalker" was based on fiction and, sadly so, will not be back in the fall.

TO MRS. H.B.B., KANNAPOLIS, NC. Peter Taylor of "General Hospital" is played by Craig Huebing, who spends a lot of his free time helping to rehabilitate drug addicts at Synanon. Earlier in his career he was in the 'soap' "From These Roots" and was a regular on "Gomer Pyle." He's been a permanent member of "G.H." since 1969.

TO L.K., THOMASVILLE, NC. Steve Forrest of "S.W.A.T." is the son of a Baptist minister and hails from the great state of Texas. He attended U.C.L.A. and was a successful writer before he hit the 'big time' as an actor. Married since 1948, he's the papa of 3 sons, ages 21, 18 and 15. The family lives in Bel Air, Calif. Steve is an avid golfer and his hobbies include archaeology and raising honey bees.

TO THE FAITHFUL WATCHERS OF "YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS": Donnelly Rhodes, who played Phillip Chancellor, left the show to 'further pursue his career.' (FOR ANSWERS TO YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT TV PERSONALITIES AND PROGRAMS, WRITE TO "MICHELE," PRESS FEATURES AND ADVERTISING, HOPEWELL, VA. 23860.)

Announced To Fill Key Roles In Play

Tony Award-winning actor Ed Flanders has been cast to portray Louis Howe, the campaign manager and friend of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in the special four-hour "ABC Theatre" dramatic presentation of "Eleanor and Franklin." Based on Joseph P. Lash's best-selling, Pulitzer Prize-winning book of the same title, the special offers a portrait of the private lives of FDR and his wife, Eleanor, who will be played by Edward Herrmann and Jane Alexander. "Eleanor and Franklin" will be aired on the ABC Television Network as two-hour episodes on two separate evenings.

Also cast in pivotal roles are Rosemary Murphy as FDR's mother, Sara, and Linda Kelsey as Lucy Mercer, a close personal friend of the President.

Flanders recently repeated his Tony Award-winning role as Phil Hogan in the "ABC Theatre" presentation of Eugene O'Neill's "A Moon for the Misbegotten." His many tage credits include roles in "That Championship Season," "A Man for All Seasons," "The Crucible," "The Matchmaker," and "The Trial of he Catonsville Nine."

Rosemary Murphy's credits include the feature films, "Forty Carats," "Walking Tall," "To Kill a Mockingbird" and episodes in the television series,

Freestyle Ski Show On GO

Freestyle skiing, commonly called "hot dog skiing," now a widely popular winter sport, will be observed by NBC Television Network's "GO!" show Saturday, July 26, from 12:30 to 1:00 p.m. Two top hot doggers, Bob Theobald and Reudi Wyrsch, will be hosts of the program which originates in Park City West, Utah.

After watching the younger skiers in class in training exercises and preparations, the "Go!" minicans will focus on three hot dog skiing events: aerial acrobatics, leaps off man-made jumps with somersaults, spread with moguls (man-made bumps), judged for speed and control; ballet, figure skating on skis to music on a gradual slope. Theobold and Wyrsch join the young skiers in these events.

Michael Landon A Special Guest

Michael Landon will be the special guest star of "Saturday Celebration" a 30-minute prime-time special which will introduce NBC Television Network's fall Saturday morning children's program schedule, it was announced recently by William Hogan, Director, Children's Programs, NBC-TV.

Hogan also announced that Joe Byrne, former NBC program executive now involved in independent production, will produce the musical-comedy special which will be colorcast on NBC-TV Friday, September, 5.

In addition to Landon, the star of NBC-TV's "Little House on the Prairie" series, the special will star Johnny Whitaker and Billy Barty of "Sigmund and the Sea Monsters," and the comedy dancers, The Lockers.

Bob Booker and George Foster of BFB Productions Inc. will serve as the program's executive producers. The stars, in addition to performing everything from magic tricks to comedy dances, will show clips from the network's new Saturday morning programs, "Westwind," "Return to the Planet of the Apes" and "The Secret Lives of Waldo Kitty."

Jurgensen Is On CBS Team

Christian Adolph (Sonny) Jurgensen, recently retired quarterback of the Washington Redskins, will serve as an expert analyst on CBS Television Network coverage of National Football League games, beginning this season, CBS Television Network Sports announced recently.

An 18-year veteran of NFL play, Jurgensen completed more than 2,400 passes for more than 32,000 yards and 250 touchdowns in a remarkable career with both the Philadelphia Eagles and the Redskins. An All-Pro selection five times, he played in six Pro Bowl contests.

Starting Sunday, September 21, under a multi-year contract, Jurgensen's broadcasting schedule for CBS Television Network Sports will include one national or regional football broadcast each week of the NFL regular season.

In making the announcement, Robert Wussler, Vice President of CBS Television Network Sports said, "We are delighted that Sonny Jurgensen has joined our team of football broadcasters. His expertise and excellent personality should make him a fine on-air analyst.

No. Two Is Not Enough

Forget that Tom Weiskopf, the 32-year-old golfing veteran from Columbus, Ohio, has had a brilliant career on the links since becoming a touring professional since 1964. Forget that he has pocketed over $100,000 or more five different years, including the last four. Forget that he was unanimously proclaimed as the 1973 PGA Player-of-the-year, and went over the one million dollar mark in career earnings in 1974. What upsets Weiskopf is his incessant failure to win major titles, and a curious personal penchant for losing strokes in the final round of a major tournament.

Tom will be attempting to break some of his past mishaps in the Canadian Open. The $200,000 event will be broadcast on Saturday, July 26, beginning at 5 p.m., on CBS from the Royal Montreal Golf Course in Montreal, Canada.

Weiskopf, the tall, lanky graduate of Ohio State, has been often compared to another famed golfing graduate from the midwestern school — The Golden Bear — Jack Nicklaus. The comparison may have actually hurt the temperamental Tom, who has been known to fume about course conditions and pin placements while the Golden Bear eases to victory.

Actually, the former's golfing shots are known for their high, lazy arch while Nicklaus fires the ball at blazing speeds. Both players hit the ball tremendously long and have fine putting touches. In fact, in last year's Western Open, Weiskopf hit a drive 300 yards-plus that may have actually cost him the tournament by putting him in a precarious position behind a pump house.

Symptomatic of the Ohioan's bridesmaid habits are five second-place finishes at the famed Masters Tournament. After blowing a final-round lead in this year's classic at Augusta, Tom lamented, "I feel lousy. I had the tournament won and let it get away from me." He also vowed that he wouldn't quit in his pursuit of the legendary Green Jacket until he won.

Despite these various shortcomings in major tournaments, one memorable eight-week stretch in 1973, during which he reeled off five tournament victories, still has many fellow professional shaking their heads.

The triumphs included the British and Canadian Opens against the top names in golf; no choke was evident. The incredible string led to such comments as Lee Trevino's:

Tom Weiskopf's only regret during the string was that his father, who died before the 1973 British Open, was unable to share the glory of Tom's first major championship.

"He just lived for my golf, he was my biggest fan," declared Weiskopf. "My one regret is that he's not here to see this. But I guess he knew it would happen one day."

The fact remains, then, that any-time the tall Ohioan enters a tournament, there is always the chance that he will simply run away with the title. Because of his intensely competitive nature, the presence of Tom Weiskopf on a golf course gives the games a richer, more exciting flavor.

CHANGES IMAGE — Veteran Tom Weiskopf will attempt to shed his second place, "Bridesmaid" image in the Canadian Open, to be telecast on Saturday, July 26 on CBS-TV beginning at 5 p.m.

Jane Blalock Reaps Rewards

The LPGA, or Ladies Professional Golf Association, has made great strides in the field of fan support and the all-important prize money after existing for years from cow town to cow town with a group of players who often gave the impression that their underwear itched. There is a new breed of players now, with women being used even in commercials that pay up to $9,000. One of the young ladies reaping the rewards of the women's tour is colorful Jane Blalock, who will be appearing in the up-coming United States Women's Open, to be broadcast on Sunday, July 20, from 4:30 to 6 p.m., on ABC-TV. The final round of play will be featured from the difficult seaside course, Atlantic City Country Club, which is located at Northfield, New Jersey.

One of the men responsible for the new image of the LPGA, and the success of such people as Jane Blalock, is Bud Erickson, the association's smiling executive director. In fact, he set up the women's tournament schedule so well that this year the group will play for more than $800,000 in prize money.

In Ambulance Chasing Ring

Ida Lupino and Ian McShane are the guest stars in "The Chasers," a drama about an illegal ambulance-chasing ring that has infiltrated a metropolitan hospital. The segment is now in production for the 1975-76 season of NBC-TV's "Police Woman" series starring Angie Dickinson and Earl Holliman.

Lupino, actress, TV producer and director, portrays an unscrupulous woman who tries to get permission from accident victims to have her group represent them legally.

Double Feature Saturday Evening

"NBC Double Feature Night at the Movies" Saturday, July 26, 8 to 11 p.m., will comprise two 90-minute dramas: "Nevada Smith" and "They Only Come Out at Night."

In "Nevada Smith" (8 to 9:30 p.m.), Nevada (Cliff Potts), having joined a team of outlaws who are guarding a valuable shipment of explosives, learns the owners of the cargo is his former mentor, Jonas Cord (Lorne Greene).

Cord and his partner, Frank Hartlee (Adam West), must insure that a shipment of guns, ammunition and dynamite are delivered safely across the Clearwater, Utah, Territory, but a mysterious chain of events seem destined to prevent the cargo from reaching its destination.

"Nevada Smith," created and written by John Michael Hayes and Martin Racklin, is a Racklin - Hayes Production.

"They Only Come Out at Night" (9:30-11 p.m.), is a drama suggested by a series of Los Angeles Times articles by Al Martinez on veteran detective John St. John of the Los Angeles Police Department. It focuses on St. John's investigation of a series of robbery-slayings of elderly women. St. John (Jack Warden) sees patterns or "clusters" of coincidences in the crimes and works with Deputy Tallchief (Charles Ynfante) in tracking down the criminal who preys on the weak and elderly. Tim O'Connor plays deputy Lee Matthews; Joe Mantell portrays Lt. Baylor and Madeline Thornton-Sherwood appears as Helen St. John.

Cameras On Cajun Living

The pleasantly independent life style of the Cajuns of the southwest coast of Louisiana — a life style that has endured for two centuries despite the efforts of meddlers, well-intentioned and otherwise — will be spotlighted on "Weekend," NBC News' late-night TV magazine, Saturday, July 26, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., on Channel 6-7. (In some areas, the program will be presented Sunday, July 27, in the same time period.)

Cajuns, descended from the Acadians, the French settlers who were exiled from Canada 200 years ago, have for 10 generations held on to their culture despite strong social and economic pressures, most recently the discovery of off-shore oil.

What kind of people are they?

"The Cajun is a person that really enjoys life — a person who does exactly what he wants to do," says one of them who works on an off-shore oil rig." The Cajun owner of a plant where oil rigs are made puts it this way: "They might not speak the French, but they still have the French style." And a favorite saying of the Cajuns maybe sums it up: "Laissez rouler les bons temps!" (Let the good times roll!)

In addition to the moss-laden countryside, viewers will see a country horse race, a crawfish boil, and a radio show being broadcast from a bar at 8 o'clock on a Saturday morning — "when the good life starts," as one Cajun puts it.

Viewers also will hear some Cajun music played by the characteristic combination of accordian, fiddle and triangle, with an occastional guitar, and sung (or shouted) in French.

"There are no problems in Acadiana, as the do-gooders are given to calling the Cajun country," says Michael B. Silver, who produced the story. "There are fewer problems there than anywhere I've been in this country."

He notes that entire families attend cockfights. "The family that bets together, stays together," he says.

"Cajuns for 200 years have worried about dying out," Silver continues. "But they have survived the King of England, transplantation, Huey Long, efforts to discourage their speaking French, and the Louisiana legislature's appropriation of money to bring in teachers from France and Canada to teach them to speak French again. And they'll survive "Weekend" too.

"We listen to them and watch what they're doing. We get a look at the oil boom and how it affects them. Some are taking advantage of the oil boom, while others are hunting, fishing and trapping. It's a way of life that has a good chance of continuing."

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR SEN. HUGH SCOTT (R–Pa.)

You were one of the sponsors of legislation to permit taxpayers to allocate one dollar for presidential-campaign financing. Why doesn't the law permit the taxpayer to designate which political party is to benefit from his contribution?—Mrs. Helen Gamer, Dubuque, Iowa

● Several years ago, the law did just that–it allowed the taxpayer to select the political party of his or her choice to receive the dollar. However, it was felt that under such a system one party or the other might receive undue benefit. The purpose of the law is to give an equal chance to each party. Also, it was felt that third parties and new parties would be given far less money than perhaps they might otherwise be entitled to. This raised serious Constitutional questions. So the law was revised so that all money would go into a special fund, then the fund would be divided up among the major, minor and new parties according to a specific formula.

FOR BEA ARTHUR, star of "Maude"

Do you enjoy gossip—as I'm sure "Maude" does?— T.R.O., Ann Arbor, Mich.

● And how. I love it. I don't believe a word of what I read, but I read every word in all the columns very carefully and remember everything. As well as reading gossip, I also like to hear it. I think every woman does, don't you?

What's your favorite daydream?—R.H. Smith, Atlanta, Ga.

● Breakfast in America, lunch in Paris, tea in London and dinner in Rome. Back to the U.S. for lobster in Philadelphia, oysters in Boston, frankfurters at New York's Coney Island. Ending up, of course, in the chocolate town of Hershey, Pa. And, wait for the best part of my dream: I don't gain a single ounce from any of it.

FOR TED LINDSAY, hockey sportscaster

How do you manage to insert commercials in a hockey game? Do you arrange "unnatural" breaks in the action? —John Forbes, Atlantic City, N.J.

● Not exactly. But there is "coordination" between the production crew and the game official who drops the puck for face-offs. This is achieved through a small buzzer worn under the official's arm. As long as it's vibrating, a commercial is on. When it stops, the official knows that coverage has resumed.

FOR KATE SMITH

Of all the meetings you've had with well-known people, which was the most memorable?—M.L., Santa Fe, N.M.

● The audience I had with the Pope. I converted to Catholicism in 1965, and the late Cardinal Spellman arranged for me to have a private session with His Holiness. There never was an audience like that one–truly the most unforgettable of my entire career.

FOR McLEAN STEVENSON

Are you related to the late Ambassador Adlai Stevenson? Also, how did you get started in show business?—Brian Mahoney, Rensselaer, N.Y.

● Yes, as a matter of fact, I am a cousin of Adlai Stevenson of Illinois. I grew up in Bloomington. I got started in show business while at Northwestern University, and later moved to New York, where I worked in the theater.

FOR JACKIE GLEASON

As a veteran dieter, do you have any tips for losing a great deal of weight quickly?—D.M.B., El Paso, Texas

● Yes. PRAYER and S T A R V A T I O N !

FOR SAM SNEAD

It seems that the National Open is often won by lesser-known players who didn't expect to win. How do you explain this?—James Brennan, Buffalo, N.Y.

● The Open has always been comparatively easy for the outsider. He's playing all alone out there. No gallery. No pressure. Nobody bothers him until the third or fourth round, by which time he's in good shape to win it all.

FOR EILEEN FORD of Ford Models, Inc.

How can a young girl who lives in a small town get started in modeling?—Dede Rudat, Las Cruses, N.M.

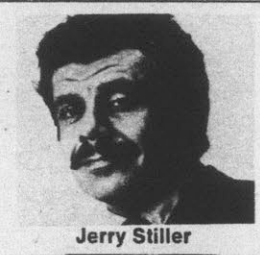

● I'm sorry to tell you that there is no way to get started in modeling in a small town. Unhappily, 85 to 90 percent of all the photography done in America is done in New York City. The best way to get started is to send pictures to reliable New York agencies and ask their advice. But remember that you must be between 5-7 and 5-9½ in your stocking feet, and nothing will alter that requirement.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

I'm always reading that Stiller & Meara have split—yet they seem to be together professionally. What's the story?—A. Strickland, Los Angeles, Calif.

● We checked with both. Anne said: "Split what? Maritally we're a terrific team, and have been since 1954. I wash and Jerry dries. I run up bills and Jerry pays them. We argue on how to raise our two kids. What better proof of 'togetherness' is there? Right now I'm working on my new CBS-TV show ('Kate McShane') and Jerry's doing his Broadway play ('The Ritz'). That's good because when we're together all day and night, I never know when the act's over and the marriage is beginning." But Jerry said: "We don't have enough time for each other. When we work together, it's as performers, not as husband and wife. When Anne is busy, and I have spare time, I resent it. I guess I'm a bit jealous. I'm no different from any other man. I'm sensitive and have an ego."

Introducing the Saratoga idea:

Enjoy smoking longer without smoking more.

Saratoga 120's.

That's the Saratoga idea.

More puffs than 100's. Tailored longer and slimmer than 100's, so you enjoy extra smoking time, extra smoking pleasure, without smoking more cigarettes.

Priced no more than 100's. And Saratoga 120's are rich, full-flavor cigarettes made from a fine blend of tobaccos.

More than just a new brand. Saratoga 120's are a whole new idea in smoking pleasure. Because now you can enjoy smoking longer without smoking more. Look for them in the new 120 mm crush-proof box.

Menthol and Regular.

Saratoga 120's

Standard 100's

My Ten Rules for Getting Along With Grown-Up Children

By Sloan Wilson
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

"When my oldest daughter became the producer of a television show, I found myself telling her exactly how to put on good programs, and when she married a man whose field is brain research, I found myself chockful of little nuggets of information for him. The obvious fact that I knew absolutely nothing about the professions of my daughter and son-in-law did not stop me until I saw the pained expressions on their faces."

Elizabeth Gee

Sloan Wilson with his daughter Lisa: "One cannot treat adult children simply as friends. The words from a parent have much more impact on grown children than on a friend."

One of the sad aspects of modern civilization is the fact that many parents rarely see their sons and daughters after "the kids" have grown up. One reason is that in this vast nation, young people often roam thousands of miles from home in search of a good job or a better education. Another may be "the sheer ingratitude of those darn kids," a phrase that is best forgotten if the parents want their grown children to love or even like them. And a third reason may be that many parents don't know how to change gears when their sons and daughters grow up, and go on treating them as children forever.

Three of my four children are in their middle or late twenties. They have taught me a little about how to deal with grown children, and in my teaching days I learned a little from my students. Here are ten bits of advice that I have gleaned from the young people themselves.

1. It's important to recognize the point at which a child sees himself or herself as an adult. Some youngsters consider themselves adults the minute they graduate from high school, while others hang on to childhood all the way through college, or even longer. It may sound crass, but the rule of thumb in my family is that a child is a child as long as I support him or her financially. Anyone who takes money from me must face the dreadful fact that my advice goes with it. Of course there can be exceptions to this rule. A medical student, for example, can be an adult who still needs financial support from his parents.

2. Once children consider themselves adults, parents have to learn to treat them as adults or risk losing all contact with them. It is easy to say that a mother or father should treat grown children as friends, but I don't think that's entirely true. The relationship between parents and children is much deeper and more touchy than friendship.

Still, I think it fair to say for starters that we shouldn't say anything to our grown children that we would not say to friends. Most people, for instance, would not think of asking even their closest friends how much money they make or how their sex life is going. Occasionally we might offer unasked advice to friends, but few of us would push it. It's also a help if a parent refrains from giving advice on subjects that he or she knows little or nothing about.

I found this rule against volunteering advice only after I had made a complete fool of myself. When my oldest daughter became the producer of a television show, I found myself telling her exactly how to put on good programs, and when she married a man whose field is brain research, I found myself chockful of little nuggets of information for him. The obvious fact that I knew absolutely nothing about the professions of my daughter and son-in-law did not stop me until I saw the pained expressions on their faces.

3. Be long on praise but very short on criticism. I don't think children ever outgrow the need for encouragement from their parents, but they may have suffered so much criticism from both parents and teachers when they were very young that they will be quick to reject it once they are old enough to make their own living. In this respect one cannot treat adult children simply as friends. The words from a parent have much more impact on grown children than on a friend and have to be used much more carefully.

4. If you have a son named William and one called Robert and you have been calling them Billy and Bobby, try Bill and Bob when they grow up. When a son or daughter is with friends his or her own age, listen for what names the friends use. Almost no one wants to go through life with the nicknames or diminutives of early childhood.

5. When your children make what appear to be bad mistakes, recognize the fact that they may know more about what they're doing than you do.

I learned this the hard way. My oldest daughter infuriated me when she dropped out of Trinity College in Ireland, where she was supposed to be spending her junior year. Her reason for doing this was that she loved a young man in Philadelphia so much that she couldn't stand to be away from him another few months. As things worked out, she married him, helped him through graduate school by working days, and got her degree in her spare time. Her husband became a fine young scientist, and now I don't blame her for running home from Ireland in the middle of the school year.

In retrospect, a great deal of the advice I gave my children turned out to be wrong, and I'm glad they didn't take it. Now my favorite answer to many of the questions my children ask is an honest "I don't know." They respect that much more than a fake reply.

6. Don't object to whatever hairstyles and clothing your adult sons and daughters choose.

My son taught me this one when he came home from college with his hair down to his shoulders.

"Why do you wear your hair so long when you know how I hate it?" I asked.

"Frankly, Dad," he said, "you like my hair short and my girl likes it long. I love you very much, but when it comes to hairstyles, I'd rather please my girl."

7. If your adult children get into serious trouble—cracking up an automobile, getting inconveniently pregnant or becoming involved with drugs—forget the recriminations and try to help them pick up the pieces. Nobody regrets a mistake more than the person who made it. Like anyone else, grown children need a helping hand when they are down, not a slap in the face.

8. Never lend money to your grown children. Give it. If the "child" is ever able to give it back, he or she probably will in one way or another. Meantime they won't avoid you the way most people avoid even relatives to whom they owe money.

9. Even when your children reach middle age, try not to play favorites. It may sound crazy, but sibling rivalry often continues for a lifetime. It is no fun for a young man to come home if he is treated as a pauper and his brother is treated as a prince. Even the prince can be embarrassed if he is treated as an extension of his parents' pride rather than as a person whom they would love regardless of his success or failure.

10. Forget any or all of these rules if they don't work for you and your grown children. Human nature is obviously much too complex to be put into words. Maybe you have grown sons and daughters who take childish nicknames as a sign of affection and who think that their father doesn't care about their careers if he doesn't ask a lot of questions and give advice.

If you know of other "rules" that might cement the relationship between parents and grown children, please pass them on to me. I can use them. I haven't seen my own grown daughters for months and months.

Wife, Comedienne, Actress, Designer–

Suzanne Pleshette On the Loves Of Her Life

"One day Tommy was trying to educate me in the ways of money, and he came across the fact that I was spending $60 a week on laundry!"

Every working day, Suzanne Pleshette plays Bob Newhart's wife on CBS-TV's popular "Bob Newhart Show." In real life she is the charming, articulate wife of Thomas Joseph Gallagher III. She is also a designer and businesswoman.

FAMILY WEEKLY: How would you compare your TV and real husbands?

SUZANNE: I have two great husbands. Bob is like an extension of my own husband, they are so alike in so many ways. And Bob's real wife Ginny and I are very much alike. We're both emotional. Our men are logical—and they carry us along as we go blithely through life.

FW: I understand that Bob Newhart isn't always the easiest person in the world to work with. Do you find this to be true?

SUZANNE: Bob and I have never had a fight.

FW: Why is that?

SUZANNE: Because he's devious. When something isn't right, he doesn't explode or make waves. He waits, then goes behind the scenes to the cause of the trouble—like a script change—and very subtly gets whatever is wrong taken care of. Tommy takes care of things for me, too, but he's my husband, so he does it more openly.

FW: Do you see much of Bob and his wife off the set?

SUZANNE: We're very close. We get together at least twice a week outside of work. Tommy and Bob will sit and drink Scotch together while Ginny and I talk and talk. They just ignore us and go on with their thing. The last time Bob went up to Las Vegas to do his show, we sat in Perino's restaurant the night before and cried and hugged each other goodbye. You'd have thought we were parting forever.

FW: What does your husband do?

SUZANNE: He's an executive for a family estate in Texas. He also handles the business end of our high-fashion bed-linen business distributed by J. P. Stevens Fine Arts.

FW: What exactly do you do in this linen business of yours?

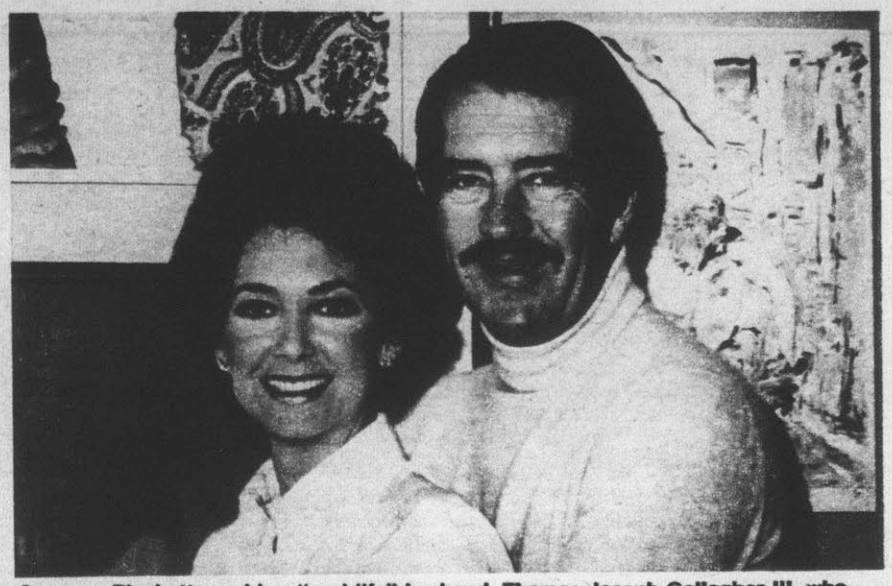

SUZANNE: I do the original primitive sketches, then work with professional artists to make the copper roll. It's quite complicated and very technical. Fortunately I've found two artists who are technically very astute and interpret my drawings without taking away from me and my original concept.

FW: How did this get started?

SUZANNE: I'm not one for furs and jewels, so my big extravagance has always been beautiful imported sheets. I want my bedroom to be an oasis. Tommy never minded until he saw the laundry bills. I change bed linens twice a week, and all the exquisite European things had to be done by hand. I never thought anything about it. They'd come back all wrapped in tissue and tied with a ribbon. They looked lovely! One day Tommy was trying to educate me in the ways of money, and he came across the fact that I was spending $60 a week on laundry! So I decided to design my own linens because I couldn't find anything I wanted American-made.

FW: How do you manage two careers at the same time?

SUZANNE: I organize my time very carefully. I have four months off from the show, plus two weeks off when we work five weeks in a row. Also, when Bob plays Las Vegas, we have five weeks off. So in January I start on designs that will come out in the fall.

SUZANNE: I have an angel of a housekeeper. She's been with me for years. When we moved into our new place, she said, "Show me once where to put everything, and then I'll know." So I took off two weeks to do just that. I even went through my closet, and came to the conclusion that if I hadn't worn something for 12 years, I should throw it away.

FW: Where did you live before?

SUZANNE: We had a big place on two acres of ground in Beverly Hills, complete with tennis court, pool and guesthouse. But we travel a lot, and you begin to feel guilty if you don't make use of the pool and courts. Also, the house was too big for intimate entertaining. People couldn't talk. Still, it was the first house I'd ever lived in, and I loved it.

FW: Did you buy a smaller home?

SUZANNE: We moved into a high-rise. It's like a maximum-security hotel. Everything is taken care of. It's the kind of a place you don't mind closing the door on and walking away. I don't think it's our final way of living, but for now it's all right. If we have children, or I don't work, we can take another look at our situation and discuss what to do.

FW: You once said you wanted four children. Do you still want that many?

SUZANNE: I said that when I was 18. In today's world, I think it would be unfair and a mistake. Also, Tommy and I are adults. We've been married seven years. We don't have the energy at this point in our lives to take on four children. Two, maybe.

FW: Have you ever thought of adopting children?

SUZANNE: Well, right now we don't really feel the need for children. What I mean is, we don't have to find our identity through children. We are complete and very happy. But that doesn't mean we wouldn't welcome a family.

FW: What would happen to your acting career if you got pregnant?

SUZANNE: Oh, I had that written into my contract! From the very beginning I've told them that if it should come to pass, I wanted Emily to be pregnant on the show. Or if I didn't show, to write around it, or let people think I was just getting chubby.

FW: Do you ever get tired of being involved in a situation-comedy show?

SUZANNE: There is nothing better than knowing you're going to laugh all day long. However, I do miss drama. It was good exercise. But no one thought of me as a comedienne then. That's why I did the Johnny Carson show. I wanted people to look at me and see that I could be breezy and wasn't always a hooker or a truck driver. Now I guess I'll have to go back and prove I'm not always a comedienne.

FW: Why do you think the "Bob Newhart Show" caught on?

SUZANNE: I think we've brought the good qualities of both Bob's and my marriages into the show. We try to keep the show honest and our characters true. For instance, one script had Emily "talking down" her husband in front of others. Now, I wouldn't do that and I know Emily wouldn't either. So they changed the script. I think the show is kind of like olives: You develop a subtle taste for it. FW

How to collect from Social Security at any age!

c 1975 Good News Publishing Co

Would you like to know how much money you have invested in Social Security? Then would you like to know how to get the most from that investment including all the brand new Social Security benefits? Now you can do both by using the short coupon at the bottom of this page. Here is the way it works: The lower half of the coupon will be sent to the proper government office. They will run a check on your account and send you a report. This report will tell you how much earnings have been recorded to your account. There is no charge for this service.

The upper half of the coupon will be used as a shipping label to send you a copy of a new book entitled. "How to collect from Social Security at any age." If you think that you have to wait until retirement age to start collecting your Social Security benefits, this book will open your eyes. Here are some of the little known facts about Social Security you will find out about in this book:

- How to increase the amount of your payment if you are already on Social Security.
- How to collect your share of the new Social Security benefits.
- How to qualify for Social Security disability at any age.
- How your whole family is eligible for Social Security benefits, even your youngest children.
- How to replace a lost Social Security check.
- How to get a refund if you have overpaid your Social Security taxes (Studies show that two out of three people overpay).
- How to figure your Social Security retirement payments.
- Should you tatoo your Social Security number on your body?
- What papers do you need to file a Social Security claim?
- How ten million people who are only 30 years old, on the average, collect from Social Security.
- Should you get a divorce in order to get more Social Security? (a lot of people already have.)
- How to get free services from Social Security.
- How to make sure your employer is not cheating you on your Social Security.
- How you may be cheating yourself out of your benefits.
- When are the five times you should get in touch with your Social Security office?
- How to work and still get Social Security benefits.
- How to cash in on Social Security even if you've never paid a penny into it.
- How to get hospital and medical insurance for the aged.
- How students between the ages of 18 and 22 can get Social Security cash benefits.
- How to get the special Social Security benefits that are only for veterans.

Although this book can mean hundreds and perhaps thousands of dollars to you, it is priced at only $3.00. Remember, it is not enough to qualify for your Social Security benefits. To get your benefits you must know how to apply for them. This book tells you how to qualify, who to contact — including all necessary addresses, and what to say. This is a 100% no risk offer. If you do not like the book, return it and your $3.00 will be immediately refunded. You will still get the report on your Social Security account.

If you do not take advantage of your new Social Security benefits you are only cheating yourself, after all, you have already paid for them. It is easy to start getting your new Social Security benefits. Just fill out both parts of the coupon below. Mail the coupon and $3.00 in a cash, check, or money order to The Good News Publishing Co., 515 Galveston St., Ft. Worth, Texas 76104, immediately by return mail. Your confidential Social Security report will be mailed to you separately as soon as the government has finished checking on your account. Checks and money orders should be made payable to The Good News Publishing Company.

People Quiz

What Every Couple Should Know About Marriage

True or False: In a marriage relationship, small, thoughtless acts are likely to carry stronger messages than affirmations of affection. (See number 2)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. How successful your marriage is likely to be depends to a large extent on when you get married.

2. In a marriage relationship, small, thoughtless acts are likely to carry stronger messages than affirmations of affection.

3. A marriage has two strikes against it if the husband and wife come from different social or economic backgrounds.

4. There are five common motives for infidelity.

5. The so-called dominant partner—who looks, talks and otherwise gives the impression of ruling the roost at home—is seldom the real boss.

6. If a wife has romantic daydreams about other men (movie stars, friends or acquaintances), it is a sign that her affection for her husband is waning.

ANSWERS

1. True. A California State University study has found that the divorce rate of women declines with each year they wait to marry, until a gradual leveling off at about age 25. Men who marry between the ages of 27 and 31 have the best chances of achieving marital stability. "When all the evidence is in," says the study, "it appears that women should wait until they are 25 to marry and that they should have their two children at age 28 and age 30. It's pointed out that this gives them ample time to have children before they are 35 and it also gives them three years after marrying to get the relationship on solid ground emotionally and financially."

2. True. Psychologist Sven Wahlroos provides an excellent illustration of this in his monograph on family communication: "Suppose, for example, that a wife has asked her husband over and over again to clean the washbowl after he shaves. He forgets to do so almost every morning. This, in effect, carries the message, 'Your wishes are not important to me,' and the message is infinitely stronger than the words, 'I want to make you happy, darling.' " Though the wife may say no more about it, her growing resentment may cause her to retaliate in kind, placing a further strain on the relationship.

3. False—as shown by studies sponsored by the National Science Foundation, which evaluated the findings of leading researches over a 25-year period. Conclusions of the investigators: No factual support was found for the generalization that dissimilarity of class background is detrimental to success in marriage—despite popular assumption to the contrary. Says the study: "One can only guess how many marriages have been deterred by the ill-founded advice against marrying out of one's social class."

4. True—according to the findings of a university study of the psychological factors motivating infidelity, which showed that the five common motives that marriage partners gave when asked why they were unfaithful were: failure to achieve a satisfying physical relationship; curiosity; feelings of revenge; boredom; and a need for acceptance and recognition from another person.

5. True—as evidenced by studies conducted at the American Institute of Family Relations, which showed that more often than not the partner who gives the impression of dominating the household doesn't actually have much clout when the chips are down. The study showed that in most cases the partner who gives the appearance of being dominated turns out to be the real boss. Often, it was found, the power is wielded so subtly, and with such finesse, that the other partner never quite wakes up to the fact that instead of being the dominant ruler, he is being adroitly ruled.

6. False. Psychological studies at Yale University have shown that "the occurrence of daydreams is quite common, and not generally related to interpersonal disturbances, adjustment problems or lack of fulfillment in the marriage relationship."

Is your cigarette less than More?

If it isn't More, it's less than More. Because More is the first 120mm cigarette. It's More in every way except price.

More has more style. It has more flavor. It has more. Over 50% more puffs than a 100mm cigarette. Yet More doesn't cost more.

And what's more, More comes in both regular and menthol. They're both long, lean and burnished brown. Regular More delivers rich tobacco flavor while More Menthol packs a cooling blast. Puff after puff after puff.

You'll find that More and More Menthol smoke slower and draw easy for more enjoyment. They're more flavorful. Yet they're surprisingly mild.

More and More Menthol. They sit neat in your hand like they were made for it and fit your face like they found a home.

Why settle for less?

ANNE AND MARK
Royal behavior?

The royal family is apparently not amused by the public behavior of son-in-law Mark Phillips. They feel that Mark should adhere to the traditionally rigid rules of etiquette, but Mark finds some of this protocol too difficult to live by. As an accomplished horseman, Mark is constantly sought out by young fans, and because he loves children and is proud of his equestrian skills, he is only too happy to sign autographs. Autograph signing is one of those things a British aristocrat simply does not do! Royal protocol also demands that yawns be stifled and that hands never be put in one's pockets! Princess Anne's position on public propriety is almost as liberal as Mark's. She too will sign autographs. But she is a bit impatient, and when she feels that she has fulfilled enough requests, she is quick to dismiss her fans. In fact, one child reportedly ran to his mother after asking Anne for her signature and repeated an unwholesome four-letter word that, he insisted, Anne had used to say, "No!"

Woody Allen, proclaimed by critics as "the comic of our age," tells why he doesn't find himself very exciting: "I don't do any of those things one associates with masculinity. If a light switch goes out in the house, I don't know where to begin to fix it. I don't drink. I don't smoke. I don't get high. My big things in life are to sit in the movies all day, to go for walks. I don't mind going to the beach for a weekend, but it's not uppermost in my mind. I'm Mr. New York City. I like to hang out with the fight mob at Madison Square Garden. If I was good enough, I could sit and play jazz all day. I think I have the type of public image where if I was caught doing something immoral, it would not hurt me. I think people are shocked that I'm not on hash or grass." From "On Being Funny: Woody Allen and Comedy," by Eric Lax (Charterhouse, $8.95).

MONKEY BUSINESS

First-birthday celebrations are really no different for apes than they are for humans. We are all stuck with the same dilemma: What to wish for? But then, Cody, the orangutan, is human in many respects—he talks, loves parties and pretends candles are after-dinner cigars. But what human would be thinking about bananas when a delectable birthday cake is sitting right in front of him?

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

PEN POINTS

What did I ever do back then
Before we had the ballpoint pen?
I know. I filled my pen with ink
And oft where ink was free. I'd slink
To banks, post offices, and such,
And partly since I took too much
My pen would sometimes spring a leak
And give my shirt a blackened streak.
The fountain pen I used, in truth,
Was thus the fountain of my youth.
But though I signed my name
impressively
I find the ballpoint acts less messively.

A sad-faced man went into a flower shop early one morning. The clerk was ready to take his order for a funeral piece, but he had guessed wrong. The customer wanted a basket of flowers to send to his wife for their anniversary.

"And what day will that be?" the clerk asked.

Glumly, the man replied, "Yesterday." —Virgina Ostman

SNEAKERS

Speaking of sneakers, as often we do,
Streakers wear sneakers
And sometimes me too.
I'll marry in sneakers,
(A blue-denim bride!),
We'll look back with fondness
And know why Mom cried.
But this will not end in my future life:
My children will call me
"Dad's Tennis Shoe Wife."

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

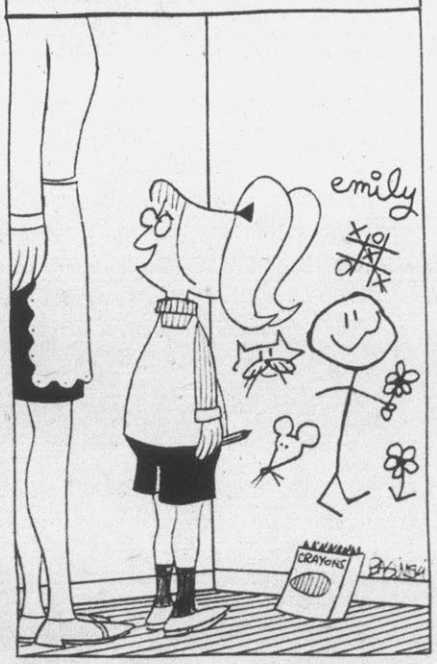

Kids see life differently. Send contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

A five-year-old boy in my preschool class was showing pictures of his parents to some friends. He had just finished showing what seemed to be his father's graduation picture, but he was quick to explain: "But that's not my real father." Then showing a more up-to-date picture, he said: "This is what he turned into."

Two caterpillars were crawling across the grass when a butterfly flew over them. They looked up, and one nudged the other and said: "You couldn't get me up in one of those things for a million dollars!"

RISING ABOVE PASTURES AND TILLED FIELDS IS A VILLAGE. "PERHAPS WE CAN BUY A MOUNT HERE TO SPEED US ON OUR JOURNEY."

BUT THIS IS A FARMING COMMUNITY, THEIRS ARE STOLID WORK HORSES. HOWEVER, THEY MUST TAKE WHAT IS OFFERED.

SURE, ARCH, I COME FROM A VERY NAUTICAL FAMILY! — AND YOU'RE THE BIGGEST NAUGHT!

I HAVE SALT WATER IN MY BLOOD! — SO HOW COME YOU DON'T HAVE WAVY HAIR?

I'M GOING OUT AND BUY A BOAT! I WANT TO FEEL THE SALT AIR IN MY FACE! — WOULDN'T IT BE CHEAPER TO BUY A SALT SHAKER AND AN ELECTRIC FAN? — BOAT

LATER: — HEY, ARCHIE, DID YOU HEAR? JUGHEAD BOUGHT A SAIL-BOAT AND HE WANTS US ALL TO COME DOWN AND SEE IT! — NO KIDDIN'? O.K., LET'S GO!

WHERE IS THIS YACHT OF JUGHEAD'S, ANYWAY? — DOWN BY THE CORNER OF HICKORY AND DICKORY AT THE DOCK!

I WONDER IF IT'S A KETCH? — IF JUGHEAD IS INVOLVED, THERE'S BOUND TO BE A KETCH!

MAYBE IT'S A SLOOP! — THAT SOUNDS LIKE THE SOUND JUGHEAD MAKES WHEN HE'S EATING SOUP!

THERE HE IS!

JUGHEAD, I THOUGHT THE BOAT YOU BOUGHT WAS A SAILBOAT?!

THIS IS A REAL TEST!

IF I CAN CRAWL OVER DAWG, I CAN CRAWL ANYWHERE!

I FEEL I'VE MASTERED CRAWLING. — I'VE LEARNED THE SHORTCUTS AND HOW TO GO UNDER THINGS WITHOUT HITTING MY HEAD.

BUT MOSTLY I'VE GOTTEN TO KNOW THE FLOOR... — HOW TO CRAWL ON WOOD WITHOUT GETTING SPLINTERS... HOW TO HANDLE THROW RUGS AND LINOLEUM.

I MUST SAY THE FLOOR AND I HAVE BECOME AS ONE... — I KNOW EVERY CRACK AND RIPPLE... EVERY GRAIN AND TEXTURE.

BUT IT'S TIME TO MOVE UP TO BIGGER THINGS.

BOOM!

POTEET'S INQUIRY ABOUT THE DEATH OF THE U.S. AIR ATTACHÉ IN CIUDAD CENTRAL CONVINCES HER HE WAS KILLED BY A JEALOUS HUSBAND, INSTEAD OF TERRORISTS

WHAT DID I DO ABOUT IT, STEVE?

I QUERIED THE HIGH CITY HERALD BY RADIO —WITHOUT USING NAMES, OF COURSE!

I SHOULD HAVE A REPLY ANY MINUTE!

ISN'T YOUR STORY ONLY A THEORY?

...TO TELL THE FULL DETAILS OF A HANKY-PANKY RIP-OFF?

-ASSUMING THAT IT WAS A JEALOUSY KILLING!

ARE YOU TRYING TO PROTECT THIS GUY BECAUSE HE WAS AIR FORCE?

NO—BUT MY REPORT WILL ONLY BE READ IN THE PENTAGON...

PERHAPS, BUT THEY'D LIKE A GOOD AIR FORCE IMAGE IN HIGH CITY -AS WELL AS ELSEWHERE!

I THINK IRON MYKE SUSPECTED MONKEY BUSINESS—OR HE'D NOT HAVE SENT ME ALL THE WAY DOWN HERE...

WHAT WOULD YOU SAY IF I GOT CAUGHT IN A JEALOUS-HUSBAND MESS—AND THE HOT STORY BROKE BACK HOME?

BUT, I---

IT DEPENDS ON WHOSE OX IS BEING GORED, DOESN'T IT?

PONYTAIL ◇◇ BY LEE HOLLEY

DADDY, CAN I WATCH THE TV?

I GUESS SO

WHAT ARE YOU WATCHING?

A WONDERFUL MOVIE WITH GREAT SOCIAL SIGNIFICANCE!

"BIKINI BEACH WEEK-END"

GOOD-BYE!

WHAT SHALL WE DO?

I'VE GOT A FAR-OUT IDEA...

LET'S GO TO MY PARENTS' NEW BEACH HOUSE!

GOLLY, YOU'VE GOT GREAT PARENTS!

YES, I KNOW!

BUT HOW ARE WE GOING TO GET THERE?

EASY, MY FATHER WILL GIVE US ONE OF HIS CARS TO USE!

HÄGAR The Horrible

by DIK BROWNE

MY SON, THE TIME HAS COME FOR ME TO PASS ALONG TO YOU THE WIT AND WISDOM IT TOOK ME A LIFETIME TO GATHER.

NOW, PAY ATTENTION, FOR I WILL NOT REPEAT... THERE ARE THREE THINGS A VIKING NEEDS — HARD CASH, COLD STEEL, AND DRY SOCKS!

WATCH OUT FOR LEFT-HANDED SWORDSMEN... RED-HEADED LADIES AND SECOND COUSINS. AND REMEMBER—EAT WHEN YOU'RE HUNGRY, DRINK WHEN YOU'RE DRY AND DIET WHEN YOU MUST....

BUT NEVER EAT A ONE-LEGGED CHICKEN... NEVER BATHE TO EXCESS... AND NEVER USE ANOTHER GUY'S DICE.

NOW, IS THERE ANYTHING ELSE YOU'D LIKE TO KNOW?

YES, DAD... HOW DO YOU ADD AND SUBTRACT?
