Ford In Germany Enroute To Summit Conference

By HELEN THOMAS

UPI White House Reporter BONN (UPI) — President Ford arrived Saturday for a 10-day European tour and a controversial East-West summit he considers "a forward step for freedom."

Accompanied by Mrs. Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Ford flew to the West German capital on the first leg of a five-nation, 13,000-mile diplomatic swing. The blue and white Air Force One touched down at 3:43 p.m. EDT (8:43 p.m. local time) after a seven-hour flight from Washington.

Ambassador Martin J. Hillenbrand and Bonn's protocol

chief, Franz-Joachim Schoeller, greeted the Fords at Bonn-Cologne airport and accompanied them on a quick helicopter flight to their overnight residence, a moat-circled chateau known as Schloss Gymnich.

The President begins conferences with West German leaders today and leaves Monday for another preliminary stop in Warsaw.

Ford's welcome in Bonn was a low-key affair marked by strict, but discreet and unobtrusive, security precautions.

Only about 200 persons clustered at an airport observation window to witness his arrival. West German television did not broadcast the arrival live and newspapers gave the story frontpage space without special ballyhoo headlines.

Blanche Report

MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical storm Blanche continued to veer away from the Carolina coast Saturday, removing a threat to the U.S. mainland. A depression that had been hovering in the Gulf of Mexico made a landfall just west of Tampico in eastern Mexico.

The National Hurricane Center said the center of the depression moved inland about 4 p.m. Top winds were reported at 35 miles per hour.

"Now that the center is inland, the depression is expected to weaken rapidly over eastern Mexico tonight," the hurricane center reported, adding "There is no longer a threat of a tropical storm forming."

At 6 p.m., the depression was located near 22.3 degrees north latitude and 98.3 degrees west longitude.

Tropical storm Blanche was reported centered at 34.8 degrees north latitude and 71.2 degrees west longitude, about 250 miles east of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Top winds for Blanche, the second tropical storm of the hurricane season, were near 55 mph and the storm was reported moving in a northeasterly direction at 15 mph.

Fopcasters, however, continued to warn small craft along the mid-Atlantic coast from Cape Lookout northward to Virginia Beach to "exercise caution until winds and seas associated with this storm diminish."

"We don't want marine interest to just go out and do whatever they want to do until we know it's safe," said forecaster Miles Lawrence.

Middle East and other policy matters.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, other prominent politicians and representatives of East European ethnic groups claimed the Helsinki summit would in effect ratify Soviet domination of Eastern Europe, and their criticisms put Ford somewhat on the defensive.

"The outcome of this Helsinki conference remains to be tested," Ford said in a departure statement. "But whether it is a long stride or a short step, it is at least a forward step for freedom."

For undisclosed reasons, Ford omitted several lines from the official White House text of his departure remarks when he read them, including a pledge that "the United States has never recognized the Soviet incorporation of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia and is not going to do so in Helsinki."

Soviet troops occupied the three formerly independent Baltic States during World War and they were added to the Soviet Union. Moscow is touchy about suggestions the three states might prefer independence and has dealt sternly with dissident movements that have cropped up there.

Ford's printed statement defended U.S. signature of the security accord on grounds "we are not committing ourselves to anything beyond what we are already committed to by our own moral and legal standards," but he dropped this line, too, when he read the statement.

The final accord of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe lays down 10 principles of international behavior, including renunciation of the use of force to settle disputes or change frontiers, and respect for human rights.

The Helsinki agreement is not a treaty and therefore not legally binding, but Ford said its principles "represent a moral commitment."

In Bonn, Ford and West Germany's Chancellor Helmut Schmidt scheduled several hours of talks today and Monday, leaving time for the President to picnic with American and West German tank troops this afternoon and to attend a Rhine River boat party given by President Walter Scheel tonight.

Although Ford and Schmidt will make a final check of Helsinki arrangements, German officials said they would spend most of their time discussing the world economic situation.

From Bonn, Ford flies to Warsaw, for his first Presidential visit to an Eastern European country. After the Helsinki conference, he will visit Romania and Yugoslavia.

Senate Overrides By 67-15 Vote

Ford Vetoed $2 Billion Health Care Bill

By HOWARD FIELDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford vetoed a $2 billion federal health care bill Saturday and the Senate, meeting in rare weekend session, quickly voted 67-15 to override.

The overwhelming vote — the first in this year's heavily Democratic Congress to go against a Ford veto — came only hours after the White House announced the move and as the President flew to Europe for a 10-day visit.

The House must now vote on overriding, which would make the bill law over Ford's objections to its high cost.

The health bill includes aid to community programs, training for registered nurses, medical aid to migrant workers and federal programs on hemophilia, Huntington's disease, rape prevention and treatment of hypertension.

Republican and Democratic senators took to the floor to denounce the veto and call for the override.

"This is just as essential to the security of the country" as a $31 billion weapons bill agreed to in a House-Senate conference Friday, said Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y.

It was Ford's 9th veto of the year. In four earlier vetoes — all of them in the House — the vetoes were upheld. No votes have been taken on the others, including a $7.9 billion aid to education bill vetoed Friday.

Ford said the high cost of the health bill "could not be tolerated" by an overloaded federal budget and some of the programs would duplicate existing health efforts.

The bulk of the bill would have provided $1.4 billion for health services and health revenue sharing programs which give grants to states for projects such as community mental health centers, migrant health and other programs.

The 200,000-member American Nurses Association denounced the veto as "incomprehensible," saying it would have very serious effects on nursing schools around the country.

But Ford said in his veto message that the nursing school programs "have outlived their usefulness" because of a spurt in nursing degree programs around the country between 1970 and 1974.

He specifically pointed to $30 million for the treatment of hypertension, $17 million for rape prevention and control, $10 million for home health demonstration agencies, and $16 million for hemophilia treatment and blood separation centers.

Apollo Astronauts Released; No Apparent Lung Inflammation

By ROBERT C. MILLER

HONOLULU (UPI) — The last three Apollo astronauts, released from intensive care hospitalization and apparently free of lung inflammation from the poisonous gas they breathed in their spaceship, said Saturday they were "anxious to get on the road" toward a delayed return home.

Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton met briefly with reporters at the Tripler Army Hospital in Honolulu, where they were placed in their spaceships, said Saturday after the recovery ship New Orleans reached Hawaii.

"We all feel much better," Stafford said. "It's good to be out of the intensive care place, even though it was just for monitoring purposes. We're anxious to get on the road."

Dr. Arnaud Nicogossian, a space agency lung specialist, said in a medical bulletin issued at 6:30 p.m. EDT that all three astronauts appeared free of pain and coughing—symptoms of the potentially dangerous lung inflammation they suffered Thursday from breathing strange yellow fumes in their spaceship.

The crew will be kept under less intensive observation at the hospital for another 24 to 48 hours, Nicogossian said, but "general crew health status is satisfactory."

In Houston, meanwhile, the space agency released the first sharp color photographs taken in orbit by the astronauts of the Russian Soyuz spaceship and two Soviet cosmonauts with whom they flew for two historic days.

Engineers at the Houston space center labored through the weekend studying air filters and data tapes from Apollo to learn the nature and source of the yellow, sharp-smelling fumes that filled Apollo during the final minutes of its descent and forced hospitalization of the crew.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton seemed a bit subdued as they talked to reporters at the hospital, but they were obviously anxious to get home to the reunion with families and friends in Houston they originally expected to have early Saturday morning.

"You can't find a better place to relax than Hawaii, can you?" Stafford said.

"Yep, it's nice to get out in the sunshine and see a little scenery from sea level instead of 150 miles. It's pretty hard to beat it up there, but it looks pretty nice from here, too, today," Slayton said.

"It's really nice out here," Brand said. "The people have really been nice to us here—so nice it almost makes you want to stay on, but we have to get back and do some debriefing on the flight before we forget all about what the flight was about."

"So it looks like we'll be pressing on as soon as we can whenever the doctors say we can press on."

"We're anxious to get back and see what all the films look like and what all the TV looks like that we shot up there," Stafford said. "We had a great mission, and now we want to see some of the results of it."

Nicogossian's report on the crew's health was the most favorable issued since splash-down.

Involves Street Closing

Work On Downtown Mall Begins Tomorrow

Preliminary work is scheduled to start on the new downtown mall tomorrow morning at 8 a.m., according to City Manager Harry Hagerty.

Hagerty reported that the work, which will require some adjustments in parking, will begin with a blocking of Evans Street from Fifth to Fourth Street and from Fourth to Third to vehicular traffic.

Actual work initially will involve the street section from curb-to-curb, he said, with the sidewalks remaining open to pedestrian traffic.

According to Hagerty, Fourth Street will become two-way under the construction arrangement and traffic light equipment will be adjusted to accommodate the new traffic influence. The crossing section of Fourth at Evans will remain open to vehicular traffic, it was noted.

Employees who have parked on Evans Street over the years will now be able to arrange leased parking, if they desire, through Dave Mosier of the new Downtown Greenville Association of merchants. Mosier can be reached at the Redevelopment Commission's Central Business District office at Evans Street (752-5115). Some 120 spaces will be provided for employee parking.

The city manager said that heavy construction equipment will be brought in next Monday to begin street demolition work and activity should soon be in full swing. Pedestrian walk areas will be maintained, he added, for the convenience of customers and the general public.

Hagerty asserted that now would be a good time to utilize the rear entrances on stores in the two-block mall area. In addition, the new pedestrian walk-ways behind the stores are ready for use.

He said that the city apologizes to the public for the inconvenience during the construction period but he added that the final product will be something that the citizens of Greenville can be proud of and enjoy.

Edwards Released

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — David F. Edwards, a 34-year-old Statesville, N.C., resident who was detained as he was getting ready to board a plane back to the United States, has been released.

The U.S. Embassy said Friday that Edwards was released by a judge on the basis of insufficient evidence.

He was arrested in Barranquilla, the main city on the Colombian Caribbean coast July 8, and accused of carrying a "small quantity of marijuana."

Edwards was released Thursday and was to return to the United States, an embassy spokesman said. He arrived in Colombia county last January to work on a graduate degree.

His father, Park Edwards, said in Statesville that his son was still in the South American country Friday taking care of some final business with his lawyer and that he expected David to return to Statesville in the next few days.

NC News Briefs

Testimony Begins Monday

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Testimony is scheduled to begin Monday in the first-degree murder trial of Joan Little, a 21-year-old black woman accused of killing a white jailer she says tried to rape her.

The last of four alternate jurors were seated and final motions were put before Superior Court Judge Hamilton Hobgood on Friday. Attorneys have said there will be no opening arguments.

Hobgood rejected a defense motion that Miss Little be allowed to act as co-counsel for herself, which would let her present her side of the case without undergoing cross-examination by the prosecution.

The defense argued that a recent Supreme Court ruling gives all defendants the right to act as their own counsel, but Hobgood said that decision was relevant only when no professional counsel is present. Miss Little has seven defense attorneys.

Recommends Higher Rates

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Parks and Recreation Council Friday recommended an increase in the amount of camping fees in state parks and recreation areas.

The North Carolina Campground Owners Association has urged higher fees for public camping facilities, which it says are taking business away from private campgrounds because of lower rates.

The recommendations, which must get approval from the Department of Natural and Economic Resources before implementation, are that daily camping rates at state parks would increase from $2.50 to $4.00 per day, and that rates at Kerr Reservoir would increase a dollar from $3 to $4.

Drunkness Law Vague

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Mecklenburg County District Court Judge ruled Friday that North Carolina's public drunkenness law is so vague it gives policemen "too much discretion" and is therefore unconstitutional.

The ruling is not binding on other judges, but some legal officials predicted the trend would be followed by Mecklenburg County's other seven District Court judges.

Ovation For "Ark"

MARS HILL, N.C. (AP) — The world premier of "Ark of Safety" in Mars Hill's Owen Theatre Friday night received a standing ovation from a packed house.

The mountain-flavored folk drama was commissioned by the Appalachian Consortium for the New Southern Appalachian Repertory Theatre.

Revenue Secretary Fired

RALEIGH (AP)—Revenue Secretary J. Howard Coble has fired James P. Senter, a 25-year veteran of the Department of Revenue and one of Coble's top two deputies.

Senter, 53, was 2.5 years away from retirement and pension. His revenue department work and military service gave him 27.5 years of government service.

"Jim disobeyed a direct order. He did not cooperate with the Department of Revenue staff in a matter which resulted in embarrassment to the department," Coble said.

Frinks Will Protest

RALEIGH (UPI) — Golden Frinks, state field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), said Saturday he would lead a protest Monday at the Wake County Courthouse where the murder trial of Joan Little is being held.

Ronald Reagan In Raleigh Visit Calls For Work-For-Welfare Program

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Ronald Reagan was headed back to California Saturday with a view in his minds of hundreds of waving Reagan-for-President signs at an enthusiastic North Carolina rally.

The former California governor received standing ovations from a crowd of 2,000 supporters for his calls for a national work-for-welfare program and a plea that the nation never again enter a no-win war.

It was the biggest and most enthusiastic crowd of Reagan's seven-day coast-to-coast speaking tour. And it looked more like a formal candidate's rally than any recent Reagan appearance.

Reagan said again he still hasn't decided whether to run against President Ford in next year's Republican primaries.

But he smiled broadly at the cheering crowd and the hundreds of "Reagan-for-President" signs.

"It's been a long time since I've stood up and said I'm at a loss for words. But what you have just done — I don't know the response. I can only tell you that I will leave here tonight with the memory of what you have done in my heart and on my mind in the thinking that I have to do."

Earlier Reagan told a Raleigh news conference that he believes Vice President Nelson Rockefeller has received shabby treatment from White House aides.

Without mentioning Ford's campaign chairman, Howard H. (Bo) Calloway, by name, Reagan criticized Calloway's comments that Rockefeller might be dumped for a younger vice presidential running mate.

"I happen to think right now he's being unfairly treated in this whole thing about whether he should or should not be on the ticket.... Frankly, I think this is rather shoddy treatment," Reagan said of the speculation about Rockefeller, his longtime rival.

Reagan also told the news conference that if North Korea should invade South Korea, the United States should stand by treaties to provide military assistance. He said he did not believe that would involve nuclear weapons, but he refused to rule them out.

The 64-year-old former actor was praised at the rally as one of the nation's leading spokesmen of conservative thought by two Republican governors and four Republican U.S. senators who attended the "Salute to Ronald Reagan" rally.

"He is a man who, when faced with a choice would rather be right than President," North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms said. "There is a very good chance he can and will be both."

"The Republican party has a right to a choice next year," Sen. Bill Scott of Virginia said.

Also praising Reagan were Republican Govs. James Holshouser of North Carolina and Jim Edwards of South Carolina and Republican Sens. Jim McClure of Idaho and Paul LaRalt of Nevada, chairman of a Reagan presidential committee.

Reagan's speech was a familiar recitation of his conservative philosophy of fiscal restraint, an end to deficit spending and reduction of the federal bureaucracy.

"Our goal is a balanced budget and eventual reduction of the national debt.... and a permanent limit on the percentage of the people's earnings that the government can take without the consent of the people," he said.

A Stokes youth was killed Friday night when the vehicle in which he was riding was involved in a wreck at the intersection of N. C. 903 and Paved Road 1523, 1.7 miles north of Greenville, according to John Brooks of the N. C. Highway Patrol.

The victim was identified as David Lee Harris, 15, of Rt. 1, Stokes. He was riding with James Ray Murchison, 22, of Rt. 8 Greenville when their car collided with a vehicle driven by Jerry Wayne Holliday, 31, of Williamston.

Charmed Life

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A 22-year-old steel worker was in a hospital today with a fractured skull, broken pelvis, broken leg and other injuries, the victim of being struck by four vehicles within two minutes.

Bob Finnegan was crossing The Falls road Friday night when a taxi struck him and flung him over its roof. The taxi drove away and as Finnegan lay stunned in the road another car ran into him, bowling him into the gutter. It, too, drove on.

As a knot of gawkers gathered, a small van plowed through the crowd leaving behind three injured bystanders and an even more battered Bob Finnegan.

When a fourth car came along, the crowd scattered and only one man was hit — Bob Finnegan. The four vehicles struck him within two minutes. But hospital officials said he will recover.

Recruiting Stations Closing

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—A drop in enlistments is causing the closing of at least seven Air Force and Marine Corps recruiting stations in Eastern North Carolina.

Officials said recruitment will be concentrated in the Piedmont after the shutdown of those stations, which will come by the end of the year.

Army and Navy spokesmen say they plan no closings.

Sgt. Maj. Bob Garber of the Marine Corps recruiting office in Raleigh said Thursday that full-time recruiting stations in Washington and New Bern closed in the last few weeks and that the Ahsokie office closed earlier. He said the Kingston office would go next.

Capt. Ronald Brock of Raleigh said the Air Force will close stations in Jacksonville, Henderson and Marion by October.

To Eat, Drink With GIs

KIRCH-GOENS, Germany (UPI) — President Ford will join several thousand GIs and their families today at a beer-and-sandwich picnic here.

American sources said the informal affair was the President's way of fulfilling what he considers his obligation to visit U.S. troops stationed in Germany, yet avoiding the appearance of flexing U.S. military muscle on the eve of the Helsinki summit meeting.

Criticizes Black Massacres

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — Tanzania Saturday attacked black African states, specifically Uganda, who criticize atrocities committed by white minority governments but not atrocities committed by black states.

The African nation said it was boycotting the Organization of African Unity meeting here to protest "the murders and massacres which have been perpetrated by the Ugandan government."

In a statement made public in Dar es Salaam, the Tanzanian capital, and passed on to delegates to the OAU foreign ministers' meeting, Tanzania said all Africans rightly protested oppression in South Africa and Rhodesia.

"But when massacres, oppression and torture are used against Africans in the independent states in Africa, there is no protest from anywhere in Africa," the statement said.

Nationalizes Land Holdings

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (UPI) — The military rulers of Ethiopia nationalized urban land holdings Saturday in their drive to convert the nation from a semi-feudal monarchy into a Socialist state.

The provisional military government, which took power last September, said each family could own one house and 500 square yards of land.

All other urban property comes under the jurisdiction of a new government ministry, according to a government statement.

It said the move was designed to eliminate the power and influence of landlords owning vast amounts of property. Addis Ababa was described as the last stronghold of Ethiopian feudalism.

End Closing Arguments

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Closing arguments ended late Saturday afternoon in the federal bribery-conspiracy trial of former Sen. Edward J. Gurney and U.S. District Judge Ben Krentzman recessed court until Monday morning when he will instruct the jury and give it the case.

Prosecutor Harvey Schlesinger told jurors to toss out the testimony of fund-raiser Larry William if they wish, because he said the testimony of the other witnesses in the 22-week-old trial was enough to prove the former Republican member of the Senate Watergate Committee guilty.

Toward Angolan Capital

LUANDA, Angola (UPI) — Angola National Front troops marched toward the capital Saturday in a bid to recapture it from forces of a rival black nationalist movement. Diplomats said the situation was developing into all-out war.

A Portuguese military spokesman said Front troops and soldiers of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola clashed Saturday at Sassa, a village about 27 miles north of Luanda, the capital.

The Front took the strategic road and rail junction town of Caxito, about three miles further north, Friday.

Suing To Marry

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — George Howard Putt, serving 479 years in the Tennessee State Prison for murder, is suing prison officials for the right to get married.

Putt was convicted in the 1969 stabbing death of a Memphis woman and charged with killing four other women, said in the lawsuit his fiance, Arlene Hunter, is a business school student whom he met through a prison chaplain.

Their lawyer, Gordon Bonnyman, said, however, that the prisoner and Mrs. Hunter, "have no illusions about the slim prospects of ever being able to live together."

Sterilization Law Test

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A new state law allowing involuntary sterilization of mentally ill or mentally retarded persons will receive its first test Monday in Forsyth Juvenile Court.

The Forsyth Department of Social Services has petitioned the court for sterilization of a 15-year-old boy who has an IQ of 40, considered to be severe retardation.

The petition to the court is automatic under the law because the boy's next of kin, in this case his mother, has submitted a written request to the social services department for his sterilization.

Threatens Curtailment

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) — Physicians in Forsyth County are threatening to sharply curtail their services on Aug. 15, unless they are able to secure adequate medical malpractice insurance.

The president of the Forsyth Medical Society, Dr. Thomas O'Brien Jr., said in an interview Saturday the action will mean that patients will not be treated except in emergencies.

He said if the insurance companies charge higher rates, patients will pay for it.

$5 Damages Awarded

BARNWELL, S.C. (AP) — A federal court jury of five women and a man has awarded $5 to a black welfare mother who claimed she was threatened with sterilization by Dr. Clovis H. Pierce, an Aiken obstetrician.

Shirley Brown, 25, received $5 in nominal damages, which means the jury decided her civil rights had been violated, but not to the extent that she suffered any sort of injury.

Attorneys for Mrs. Brown and Virgil Walker, 25, had asked for actual and punitive damages totaling $250,000.

They wanted $75,000 in punitive damages and $75,000 in actual damages for Mrs. Walker, who was sterilized by Pierce following the birth of her fourth child.

But she was awarded nothing. She admitted during testimony in the two-week civil court case that she had signed a consent form to be sterilized.

KARAMURSEL, Turkey (UPI) — The Turkish armed forces assumed command of U.S. military bases in this country Saturday, but the move had little immediate effect on the day-to-day operation of the facilities used to monitor Soviet military movements.

U.S. officials said the Ankara government had made no move yet to expel the 6,000 American servicemen in Turkey despite the official announcement Friday that the two dozen U.S. bases on Turkish soil would be turned over to full control of the Turkish armed forces.

The takeover was ordered in retaliation for the failure of the U.S. House of Representatives Thursday to lift the arms

Freed Following 67 Days Of Captivity

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — Marxist guerrillas freed unharmed Stanford University graduate student Stephen Smith for a secret ransom Saturday, ending his 67 days of captivity in the jungles of the African nation of Zaire.

"I don't know what to do," the 22-year-old graduate student said after he arrived in Dar Es Salaam aboard a chartered airliner wearing dungarees, a T-shirt, and a 10-week beard. "I've never been famous before."

Smith, of Garden Grove, Calif., was released at midnight near the Tanzanian town of Kigoma, where his 61-year-old father, Joseph, had been waiting for him for six weeks, U.S. Embassy officials said.

He was the last of four students to be freed by the guerrillas, who seized the group May 19 at a wildlife research station operated by British anthropologist and author Jane Goodall on the Tanzanian side of Lake Tanganyika.

An attempt to free Smith last month went awry when Tanzanian government vessels opened fire on a vessel carrying him to an agreed-upon site for the release.

Smith appeared in good health as he was welcomed by friends at the airport who loaded his arms with flowers and uncorked a bottle of champagne.

While Sanford University officials said the ransom was a mutually agreed secret, sources close to the negotiations said the payoff consisted of approximately $40,000 paid in British bank notes raised by Stanford University, the students' parents and friends.

Testimony By Nixon Will Remain Secret

By TOM RAUM
 Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon's 11 hours of grand jury testimony last month will remain secret, at least for the foreseeable future, says special Watergate prosecutor Henry S. Ruth.

Ruth said Friday there is no legal basis on which to seek public disclosure of the Nixon testimony that Ruth and two members of a now-defunct Watergate grand jury obtained June 23-24 in San Clemente, Calif.

"I don't know of any law which allows release of grand jury testimony," Ruth told newsmen after testifying before a closed meeting of a House Judiciary subcommittee.

Ruth also confirmed without elaboration that his office is still investigating who was responsible for the 18½-minute gap on the White House tapes and various dealings of Nixon's friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

Ruth said he will meet Monday with Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi to discuss the future of the special prosecutor's office, which is scheduled to close shop in September, and to talk about what should go into the unit's final report.

The plan now is to keep the report relatively narrow in scope, covering only the office's policies and summarizing its actions and not including any raw data such as the Nixon testimony, Ruth said.

He said there are between 200,000 and 250,000 pages of Watergate facts "already available."

Deadline Extended

DETROIT (AP) — A midnight Friday strike deadline for editorial employees of the Detroit News has been extended indefinitely to allow contract talks to continue.

Wilbur Hatch, a negotiator for The Newspaper Guild, said there was more progress in Friday's negotiations than at any time in the 10 months of talks.

He said state and federal mediators asked the strike deadline be postponed.

embargo, imposed six months ago because of Turkey's use of American arms in invading Cyprus in July 1974.

In Ankara, the capital, Turkish Foreign Office spokesman Semih Akbil said, "The government's decision to turn over full control of the bases to the Turkish armed forces has been implemented since midnight Friday."

U.S. officials, however, said it would take at least several days before the effects of the Turkish takeover became apparent, and witnesses at the bases said American servicemen were carrying out their jobs as usual.

The officials said the bases are vital to America's defense because of their sophisticated surveillance facilities which monitor military movements in the Soviet Union and provide an early warning of a possible Soviet nuclear attack.

President Ford, in an effort to reverse the Turkish takeover, Friday asked Congress to reconsider lifting the arms embargo, but Rep. Thomas Morgan, chairman of the House International Relations Committee, said there was no chance of a rollback until September.

The only visible change Saturday at this Marmara Sea surveillance base in western Turkey was the absence of the stars and stripes from twin flag poles at the main entrance. The red-and-white Turkish star-and-crescent flag flew as usual.

American military police continued to share security duties with the Turks and an American father played baseball with his young family just inside the barbed wire perimeter.

In announcing the takeover of the bases, Turkey annulled the joint defense agreements that allowed U.S. servicemen to operate the installations.

Jar Lids Missing

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP) — Ball Corp. has begun an internal investigation and the FBI has been asked to conduct a search in several states for missing canning jar lids amidst reports of a growing home-canning equipment black market.

A spokesman for Ball said fewer than one million lids were missing in what has been termed internal thefts. But the Muncie Star said as many as 30 million lids may be missing as part of a black market operation.

Recent shortages in the lids used by many consumers for canning home-grown fruits and vegetables has brought about a Federal Trade Commission investigation and charges by congressmen and consumer advocates of market manipulation.

Some consumers are also reported to be hoarding supplies.

Ball spokesman Vern Schranz said outside investigators and auditors have been checking company books for about a week to determine the exact number of missing lids.

The FBI said it had contacted Ball twice this week to determine the number and that "another division" outside Indiana had asked for an investigation in several states to try to find missing lid shipments.

Muncie police said one Muncie grocer who was cooperating with authorities bought a large number of Anchor Hocking Co. lids and rings that were stolen from a warehouse in Richmond, Ind.

Soviet Astronauts Land Safely After Long Orbit

By GERARD LOUGHRAN
MOSCOW (UPI) — Two cosmonauts, loaded with the scientific results of a record-breaking 63 days in orbit, returned safely to earth Saturday and set the seal on the Soviet Union's most spectacular week in space.

"We feel well and are ready to fulfill new tasks," said Lt. Col. Pyotr Klimuk and civilian engineer Vitaly Sevastiyonov after their Soyuz 18 capsule bumped down in exactly the same area of the Central Asian desert where two Soyuz 19 cosmonauts landed Monday after linking up in space with three Americans.

Tass gave both touchdown points as 34 miles north of the Kazakhstan town of Arkalyk.

Moscow radio said, "The successful landing confirms that the U.S.S.R. is approaching step by step the creation of orbital stations with replaceable crews."

Klimuk and Sevastiyonov spent their 63 days aboard the Salyut 4 scientific station, easily breaking the Soviet space endurance record of 30 days set by two Soyuz 17 cosmonauts earlier this year.

They also surpassed the 59 days in orbit of the U.S. Skylab 2 crew and fell short only of the American Skylab 3 record of 84 days.

Three Slain In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An actor and actress gunned down in the street and a Lockheed Aircraft Co. executive's wife shot to death nearby were victims of related crimes, police say.

"We think the cases are related in their similarities," said Sgt. Larry Kallestad of the Los Angeles Police Department's Venice division.

Actor James Kiernan, 35, and actress Barbara Colby, 36, daughter-in-law of entertainer Ethel Merman and recently signed as a regular in a new fall television series, were killed as they left a Venice acting school shortly before midnight Thursday.

Gloria Witte, 57, wife of aerospace executive Roland Witte, was slain 40 minutes earlier in Santa Monica as she attempted to flee masked gunmen who ambushed the Wittes and another couple returning from a dinner engagement.

Reasonable Guidelines Set Up

The UNC board of governors set up some guidelines for releasing funds which would be used to construct an ECU medical school addition to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The board says that the funds release must await an acceptable agreement between Pitt Memorial Hospital and the medical school; approval by the state hospital planning authorities of the changes needed to accommodate the medical school and clearing up the hospital's accreditation status.

We can't say that is unreasonable and the requirements are not disturbing to ECU medical school authorities. In fact, Dr. William Laupus, dean of the school said the procedure was expected and "quite routine."

"It's just a matter of following procedure and not releasing the funds until everything is in order."

Dr. Laupus said work is proceeding on the three requirements and he expects the local institutions will be ready when the board of governors meets again.

There seems to us to be nothing insurmountable in the requirements. Pitt Memorial Hospital accreditation once seemed to be in jeopardy. Now, it is not. The hospital authorities feel they can meet the requirements of the hospital accrediting group with some internal changes and given the fact that the new hospital is now under construction.

State approval of the needed hospital construction for the medical school is out of local hands, but there is no earthly reason why that approval shouldn't come quickly and routinely given the magnitude of the development underway here.

The third requirement for an agreement between the hospital and the medical school we believe can be met, since an agreement acceptable to the local officials has already been developed.

We would say that the Chapel Hill administration is acting responsibly in being certain that these requirements are met prior to release of funds.

At the same time there should be no foot-dragging on the ECU medical school's development. It must be remembered that it is not a school starting from scratch. An able faculty has actually been training first year medical students for three years with good results. There is already a planned layoff from teaching for one year with the decision to delay admission of students to the four-year school until 1976. While 1975-76 can be used for planning, a further delay could mean that the teaching staff could lose its momentum.

We feel that adequate time should be allowed to plan a sound program for the ECU medical school, but at the same time the public is going to be suspicious of any unusual delays brought on by Chapel Hill or state agencies which seem to hold up the school's development unduly.

Sunday Morning Notes

Edith Webber reported that she and her husband were bike riding in the Town Common early Sunday morning.

They saw some movement and suddenly realized that a spotted fawn had jumped up. The young deer raced off to the east and disappeared.

Maybe the Town Common will become a wildlife refuge.

That same day Attorney W.W. Speight was walking on the esplanade at the Town Common park when he heard splashing on the opposite side of the river. He looked over in time to see a large deer and a small one swimming toward the north shore. The large one made it to shore and the little one got hung up temporarily in some branches. The deer finally got clear and also made it to shore, where both of them disappeared.

Flood waters on the Tar were high last Sunday and it is possible in both cases that the deer had been disoriented by the high waters and made their way out of the low lands north of the river.

The high waters of the Tar lapped at the very edge of the walkway at the Town Common. The fierce currents were 18 feet above the river bottom, but it didn't frighten two young men and two dogs last week.

The men dived off the walk into the currents, followed by the dogs. All swam with the current to the end of the walk and made their way to shore.

Jack Kilgo of Greenville decided this summer to give up the post office box he has had here for the past 62 years.

He figures that during that time and from the various places he has lived in Greenville, he has traveled 90,000 miles by foot and auto to and from the post office.

Kilgo came to Greenville in 1913 with Liggett and Myers Tobacco Co. and he was supposed to get one year's experience. He's been here ever since and retired from the company in 1952 as branch manager.

He says the post office was first located in a building on Evans Street where Moseley Bros. was until a few years ago. Then it moved to the "new" post office at Third and Evans. Finally the main post office moved to its present location on Second Street and Kilgo's box moved right along.

After traveling 90,000 miles to and from the post office Kilgo figures that's enough. He's going to let the postman bring the mail to his home from now on.

restoring that tiny community's educational, scientific and religious heritage.

To guide his efforts at New Harmony, which is the site of two experiments in communal living, Williams surveyed some of the most successful restorations in order to learn their secrets.

Philanthropy almost always is the seed, he found, but almost all projects, even if they began as simple patriotic or philosophic statements, "somewhere along the line crystallized as self-sustaining educational ventures."

Restoration, he found, "is either a business or else a very expensive philanthropy," and new restoration projects would save themselves time and grief if they realized this early in their efforts. "Restoration for restoration sake is extremely expensive," Williams found. More accurately, some of the most successful restorations spent millions of dollars and 20 to 30 years to discover this. Invariably they evolved a philosophy of restoration for education's sake.

To attempt to control the entire environment, Williams advises, can be "extraordinarily expensive. "Don't control for the sake of control, but for the educational experience of the visitor."

The focus on education permits the restorer to make his reconstruction a vital, living experience rather than a passive exhibit. It encourages the overseers to be selective in their use of funds. Eventually it provides income.

Love In A Rest Home

By MARICA P. ELLIOTT Fayetteville Observer Written for The AP

LAURINBURG, N.C. (AP)—A nun who has shed her traditional habit in favor of more conventional clothing is serving a two-year tour as administrator of an unconventional rest home.

Most people just call her Mary Ann.

She is a member of the Sisters of Loretto of Nerinx, Ky., and became a nun after receiving a master's degree in clinical psychology at St. Louis University.

"The main thing is to serve," she explains her reasons for becoming a nun after receiving her master's degree in clinical psychology at St. Louis University.

Named administrator of Westminster Home more than a year ago, Mary Ann began the task of implementing a farm-type society on the grounds.

She is assisted by Jim Ramsey, a New Jersey resident who retired from the military early because of health reasons.

The home includes 39 patients, a staff of 30, a one-acre vegetable garden, a chicken house with more than 250 chickens, and six dogs.

As most of the residents are native to Laurinburg, the home recreates the farming atmosphere familiar to most of the patients.

Each patient has a plot of land outside his or her window, and can request that special flowers be planted there.

When the weather is warm the patients help Ramey in the greenhouse. Later, they help transfer the vegetables to the garden. Fresh eggs are available from the henhouse.

The home was established nearly three years ago as a project of the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Laurinburg. The entire community soon became involved in raising the needed financial support.

'People Magazine' Closes

By BILL NOBLITT RALEIGH — 'People' magazine is no more.

The publication of the Department of Human Resources will not be printed again, according to a memorandum circulated by Secretary David T. Flaherty, chief of that agency.

'People' is among a host of state governmental publications feeling the pinch of economic hard times, but the first to be cancelled.

Published four times yearly, the magazine had been sent free of charge to newsmen, departmental employees, and people in many public and private agencies dealing with various programs in the Department of Human Resources.

Former television newsman Frank Thompson, who recently joined the staff of Human Resources, sought to salvage the book by launching a subscription drive.

The charge was $2 per subscription. Thompson figured it would take 10,000 subscribers to keep the publication going. It had been sent to between 18,000 and 20,000 readers.

The subscription drive among Human Resources employees and elsewhere netted 2,800 willing to pay the $2; not enough to keep things underway.

If the decision to sell the magazine instead of handing it out free was seen by some as a trend-setting one which would ultimately affect other state government publications, then the failure of the subscription drive and cancellation of the magazine will cause some other agency public relations divisions to tremble.

Faster, Faster State highway officials are noticing what has been obvious to motorists of late: traffic is moving faster and faster on North Carolina highways, particularly the interstates.

Motors driving 55 miles per hour—the lower speed imposed nationwide during the gas shortage—find themselves almost blown off the road, especially by many big trucks moving at 65-plus.

"Contrary to popular opinion, the trucks are stopped," protests Transportation Secretary Jacob F. Alexander. Many motorists believe highway patrolmen ignore the speeding trucks.

Alexander says most of the speeding appears to be the practice of out-of-state tourists and trucks, not North Carolinians. Still, he does not foresee another massive crackdown by patrolmen, such as that a year ago in which troopers cruised side-by-side at 55, or saturated certain stretches of highway.

Alexander dismisses that sort of effort as mostly public relations. "The valuable work with traffic comes from marked highway patrol cars on duty routinely," he says.

State speed checks a year ago showed speed creeping over the 60-mile-per-hour mark, on average.

This year, state officials are keeping mum on what the average speed is, based on monitoring movement at key points around the state. "Perhaps the figures haven't been released because we don't want to know how fast people are driving," Alexander commented.

Experienced travelers estimate the speed generally runs 65 or better, on most major routes.

Unions Coming? The North Carolina General Assembly has not passed law allowing governmental employees to bargain collectively, but the U.S. Congress may.

Teachers, and others, have lobbied for this action, and S. Leigh Wilson, executive director of the N. C. League of Municipalities believes federal action will come soon.

Local governmental units had best gear up, Wilson believes, because they are not prepared for work at the bargaining table.

"Representatives of the unions are pros in this area . . . We don't have the expertise on our side of the bargaining table," Wilson says.

INSIDE REPORT

Different Flavored SALT

By ROWLAND EVANS ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Worried friends and friendly enemies are pressing President Ford to go slower on strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) with the Soviet Union than the less guarded approach favored by his trusted, enormously influential foreign affairs adviser, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Whether Mr. Ford really does lessen Kissinger's influence as SALT II approaches its climax remains to be seen. But the Secretary's near-monopoly over national security early in the Ford presidency no longer exists, as is suggested by these events:

*Before the President leaves for the Helsinki summit, he will confer privately on SALT with former hardline Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, now a Reader's Digest executive, in a meeting requested by the White House. That marks the first time the two old cronies have talked seriously about U.S.-Soviet relations, an area where Laird was Kissinger's toughest critic inside the Nixon administration.

*Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the possible Democratic nominee in 1976, has strongly cautioned the President to go slow on SALT II. His argument: the Kremlin needs an agreement far more than the U.S.

*Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger is pushing hard for high-level Pentagon representation at the Helsinki summit, beginning July 30, for any SALT II conversations. This contrasts with Schlesinger's past reticence about elbowing into arms talks.

These developments echo the familiar Pentagon refrain that Kissinger's negotiating posture dangerously omits power, size and accuracy of Soviet nuclear weapons while concentrating on numbers. But some critics also worry that Kissinger, almost certain to leave office in January 1977, may with the President's blessing, be excessively eager to conclude a SALT agreement to cap eight remarkable years.

There is no sign Mr. Ford shares such criticism of Kissinger, who feels many of his critics are unrealistic, tough-talking hardliners unable to carry out a policy nearly as tough as his own in America's current political climate. Nevertheless, ferocious debate on an issue that could determine this nation's fate is being waged backstage for the mind of one man: Gerald R. Ford.

It may have started June 17 when Humphrey reported at the White House on his visit to Moscow. According to other Senators present, Humphrey advised the President that Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev needs SALT II far more than Mr. Ford, giving the U.S. the bargaining advantage. The Senate, said Humphrey, demands far greater examination of details in a SALT II agreement and will frown on any treaty without specifics on size and power of new Soviet missiles.

About the same time, Laird re-entered the SALT debate with publication in the July Reader's Digest of an article charging the Soviet Union with cheating on the SALT I agreement. When asked about Laird's article at his June 25 press conference, Mr. Ford replied the Soviets "have not violated the SALT agreement, they have not used any loopholes."

The President had not seen Laird's article. So, Laird gently advised his old friend to read it over. Shortly thereafter, Laird was invited to brief the President on his views of SALT.

Simultaneously, Schlesinger is becoming more assertive. He did not ask for a Pentagon presence at the 1974 summit in Moscow. He wanted a Pentagon official at last November's Vladivostok summit but was turned down. Now, Schlesinger is pressing to have the Pentagon on hand in Helsinki next week.

Ford-watchers concerned about Kissinger's influence believe the President is showing more independence on issues other than SALT. They attach importance to

Other Editors Say Special Treatment

(Wilson Times) A dangerous piece of legislation is on its way to becoming law. This is legislation to create a new independent federal Agency for Consumer Protection.

Whether you think the federal Agency for Consumer Protection makes sense or not, there is one aspect which deserves special attention, for this government does not need to build any more bureaucracies, and that is what the Consumer Protection Agency would be.

But even more serious is the special privilege being given to labor, as labor organizations are to have total exclusion from the scope of the new agency. In other words Congress is bowing to the wishes of the politically powerful labor unions.

Andrew Biemiller, the chief lobbyist for the AFL-CIO, has stated, "We don't want another government agency intervening in labor management relations, sticking their noses in our affairs."

Every aspect of daily life will come under the scrutiny of this new consumer agency except the special interests of labor unions.

The Senate recently passed a bill which prohibited the proposed consumer agency from even commenting on labor-related issues. The House of Representatives is moving rapidly on a similar bill containing one specific exemption for one special interest, organized labor.

The overriding issue facing Congress is one of fairness, or equal treatment for all sectors of the economy. The representatives of the national labor organizations have stated that with labor included in this bill, they will oppose it. With labor out from under the bill, they will support it.

Editorials from newspapers all over the United States are calling for fair treatment for all and are opposing special treatment for organized labor. The American people are tired of special treatment and special exemptions.

The only way for Congress and other institutions of government to regain their credibility is to legislate fairly, including the powerful along with those with less political influence.

PUNISHMENT AND PENALTY
 We are always punished by the wrong we do as well as because of it. What the wrong act does to us is a punishment no less than the penalty which nature or society inflicts upon us as a result of offense.

If a person is selfish and avaricious, these vices eat into his character, and all this is in addition to the punishment which the outside world may inflict upon him. The dissolute person is punished by his dissipation always, even though he may go through life and admired.

The dissipation is disturbing his good judgment, slowing down his mental powers, and building up physical troubles in the years that lie ahead. Punishment is external; evil is constantly taking a toll on our inner life.

Usually when we think of some wrong we have done, we grow apprehensive over the possibility of being punished by something or someone from without. But we should not forget that whether punishment comes from this quarter or not, we will certainly pay a penalty on the inside.

Boom In Historic Restoration

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Historic restoration could become a thriving industry over the next decade, a spur to numerous community improvements as well as an educational and patriotic experience, Harry Williams believes.

Interest already is whetted by projects at more than 1,200 sites, including Williamsburg, Va., Sturbridge, Mass., Grand Isle, Neb., and many in the Far West. They range from one building, such as the old opera house in Leadville, Colo., to entire communities.

Now, with the nation's bicentennial celebrations focusing on history, enthusiasm is added. Communities are learning from each other that restoration is better than urban renewal. In almost all instances a successful restoration improves the economy and environment. Real estate values rise. Property owners are encouraged to improve their homes. Jobs are created.

"Almost any community could find something and go to work on it," says Williams, one of the leading homebuilders in the Northeast, and a consultant on community developments. A theme is essential. Williamsburg is patriotism, Sturbridge is the pastoral experience just before industrialization, Mystic, Conn., is the lure of the sea.

Williams at the moment is spending a good deal of time working with the people of New Harmony, Ind., in restoring that tiny community's educational, scientific and religious heritage.

To guide his efforts at New Harmony, which is the site of two experiments in communal living, Williams surveyed some of the most successful restorations in order to learn their secrets.

Philanthropy almost always is the seed, he found, but almost all projects, even if they began as simple patriotic or philosophic statements, "somewhere along the line crystallized as self-sustaining educational ventures."

Restoration, he found, "is either a business or else a very expensive philanthropy," and new restoration projects would save themselves time and grief if they realized this early in their efforts. "Restoration for restoration sake is extremely expensive," Williams found. More accurately, some of the most successful restorations spent millions of dollars and 20 to 30 years to discover this. Invariably they evolved a philosophy of restoration for education's sake.

To attempt to control the entire environment, Williams advises, can be "extraordinarily expensive. "Don't control for the sake of control, but for the educational experience of the visitor."

The focus on education permits the restorer to make his reconstruction a vital, living experience rather than a passive exhibit. It encourages the overseers to be selective in their use of funds. Eventually it provides income.

40 Years Ago Today

July 27, 1935
 Three legal "rum" stores were opened in Pitt County today. At 1:00 p.m., 433 customers had been served at the Greenville liquor control store on Dickinson Avenue with sales totalling 466 bottles. Cash received totalled $459.90.

The stores were opened at 9 a.m. and one hour later the Greenville store reported 109 bottles of whiskey had been sold.

The stores will remain open daily from 9:00 in the morning to 6:00 in the evening.

With only one boxcar of liquor received, the stores were short of many of the brands shown on the price list, but with the arrival of the three cars expected Monday or Tuesday, virtually every popular brand will be offered.

It was the first time in 26 years legal whiskey has been sold in Greenville and Pitt County and the novelty of the thing attracted most of the crowd, the majority of whom desired to see just how the "thirsty" element would go after real bottled-in-bond goods.

Some of those who made purchases today had not tasted rye whiskey since the advent of prohibition, and smiles were profuse as they tucked a bottle or so on their hip and went their way to take a "nip."

Observations From Editorial Columns

Invitation To Weakness

While we take no issue with Chief Justice Susie Sharp of the N.C. Supreme Court, we do wonder whether her attack on the state's prison conditions is not one indicator of why lower court judges are failing to deal straightforwardly with crime and criminals.

According to Miss Sharp, and to others as well, the state's prisons are overcrowded (13,000 inmates where 10,000 should be) and need to be improved. We can't disagree, for there is a need for humane prison conditions despite the fact that inmates are there for punishment.

Nonetheless, if Miss Sharp's expression of concern for the prison system are logically extended, her lower court judges may well be encouraged to send only the most heinous defendants to prison, if they are not already so persuaded. For instance, in Cleveland County this week, the defendant in the county's largest drug bust and other felony drug crime defendants were all given suspended sentences.

We weren't there in court for the testimony and the evidence, but we know there were felony convictions that resulted in no prison sentences. The bare facts at least lead to the suspicion that some judges are affected by the prison conditions, or something else, to the extent of not even giving the new "quick dip" sentences for misdemeanors.

Justice Sharp may well be quite correct in her concern, but judges have a duty to use prison for some defendants.

Right On The Mark

The Late General Assembly did its best to take care of one of life's little irritations: namely, the unconcerned and often stubborn driver who moseys along in the left lane while you are steaming to go around.

The Assembly said that this shall be the law: no person shall drive in the left lane of a highway at a slower-than-maximum speed, except for purposes of turning left, when such slow driving impedes the flow of traffic.

So, there you have it. Now if you get behind a couple of lovers completely oblivious to other motorists and totally deaf to honking horns and blind to blinking lights, all you have to do is pull out the new North Carolina statute and flash it in the driver's face.

The law says that motorists shall not drive over 55 miles per hour, in either lane. Now it says that drivers shall not drive slower than the speed limit if it impedes traffic.

It would be a mistake for a driver to try to drive right on 55 in the left lane, wouldn't it?

Limit Expensive Sessions

One of the better moves taken by the state legislature this year was to restrict next year's session to not more than 30 days. Were it not for the unsettled economic conditions it's likely the state's lawmakers would have disapproved meeting at all next year. But because they hope to make some beneficial adjustments in the biennial budget at that time they expect to do that and little more.

Cost of the 1975 term ran at a rate of $22,000 a day. This amounted to a needed outlay of approximately $600,000 a month. It was obviously the most expensive legislature in history, expensive enough that solons had the good sense to press hard for adjournment in June and to limit the run next May when the assembly meets again.

It's when legislators push themselves to get the job done and when they discipline their own use of public time and money that voters are inclined to think better of those they send to Raleigh.

Remembering Heather's Year Between 4 And 5

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK
Mr. Kilpatrick's column today takes the form of his annual birthday letter to his granddaughter.

Dear Heather—
Well, puddin', it's been quite a year for you—the year between four and five. One of these days we will have to sit down together and count the achievements.

Since your last birthday, you have learned to read, really-truly, at least a few words. You have learned to write your own name, in great sprawling capital letters that run uphill as if they were climbing a mountain. You have added at least a hundred million jillion words to your own vocabulary, and once you get wound up, your idea is to use them all at once. So much for book-learning.

What else? You've learned to swim, after a dog-paddle fashion. When it comes to flying a tricycle, you're ready to solo. You have had a go at your first fish, learned to sit in a canoe without wiggling, and just about stopped sucking your thumb. We were beginning to think you never would.

You have learned to tolerate, even to love, your two-year-old brother Douglas, and you do not even beat on him very hard. You no longer pick up the kitten by its neck. You have learned to gather cucumbers, snap beans and strawberries. You tie your own shoes and buckle your own seat belt.

That's a fine list for the year between four and five, but what we've noticed, more than anything, is your growing independence. You're beginning to make up your own mind, rather than to have it made up for you. I have actually heard you say, with my own ears, "I'm tired and want to go to sleep." A year ago you fought sleep as if it were sin.

You may remember, later on, that this was the year your Aunt Lynn and Uncle Allen built their log house a quarter of a mile away. This was the way it was one afternoon, a week or so ago, when you decided to go over there and play.

You walked down the back kitchen steps of Hawthorn, saw a big bug at the bottom, and squatted down to have a closer look. The bug was a fuzzy orange caterpillar, and you had to let it crawl up your arm. Then you walked down the top of a stone wall, playing tightrope. You jumped off the wall, skinning your knee, and walked over a stump instead of around it. From the top of the stump, needless to say, you could see ever so much farther than you could see from the ground.

By this time Cyrano, the tri-color collie, was happily at your heels. The two of you marched down the road past the fishpond, past the workshop, past the bird pens where your Grandfather Stone used to raise quail, past the tractor shed, and into the animal barn. There you said hello to the cow, scuffed up some straw, and threw a handful of hay in the air just to see how hay comes down.

From the barn you went past the apple orchard, and there Cyrano went into conniption fits of barking. It was a blacksnake, so you informed us later, at least th-a-a-t long. Then you vanished into the woods, swinging on a vine, and after a while you tripped and fell over something, skinning the other knee. You came home bearing a broken bird's egg in a very grubby hand.

Maybe grubbiness goes with being five. For the Fourth of July your Aunt Lynn, bless her adventurous heart, provided a whole case of those ignitable, turny-twisty snakes, made in Taiwan, that fizzle off with a smoke and a smell that are splendidly vile. The snakes disintegrate into soot and ash. One of these days, Heather, you will be 18, and clean and sweet-smelling, and altogether lovely. On the Fourth of July, 1975, you were a monumental mess.

It's much more important to remember these things, my love, than to remember that between four and five Mr. Nixon resigned his office, the economy went to the bow-wow, and the Americans and the Russians shook hands in space. Grown-ups will remember these events, because this is how grown-ups are. At five, it's far nicer to mark a birthday in terms of caterpillars, blacksnakes and bird's eggs, and to remember—to remember!—the wonder of it all.

Love, Grandfather

Time Of 'Conspicuous Consumption' Appears To Be Over For Public

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.
"The age of conspicuous consumption is over."

Usually, it's politicians who go in for such sweeping statements, near absolutes, as they promise to "end all" if they are only allowed to spend the taxpayer's dollar. They are things you read and then forget.

But the above quotation is worth attention. It comes from one of the nation's top retailers, Edward S. Donnell, chairman of Marcor Inc.'s Montgomery Ward chain, and appeared in the Wall Street Journal this week. It bears directly on prospects that recovery will be a slow, drawn-out process.

Inflation has forced nearly every family to make budget adjustments reflecting the fact that price rises have hit hardest at essentials—food, housing, transportation, health. And uncertainty about the future has induced the consumer to save—stay away from debt, where possible. Consumer buying patterns reflect this.

Donnell sees a long-term impact, with people getting "recognition from their peers not by outspending them, but by making wise economic decisions." In other words, he suspects that the conservative mood growing out of inflation and recession is no fad that will disappear once it is clear that the economy is actually on the mend.

Not all economists agree, however. Most, in fact, seem confident that once the consumer gets a little confidence back, he will return to free spending habits. Increasingly, though, there is more attention to what are called major areas of "disequilibrium" in the economy.

The automobile and home building industries are the most frequently pointed-to areas. They stand out because the in prices have been huge and commitments by the buyer take the biggest bites out of most family budgets. Also, each industry is a tremendous employer, both at the production point and in supporting areas.

Much has been made of the fact that so many would-be home buyers, especially young families, have been forced to scale down their dreams and even abandon them. The price increases have simply put the dream house beyond the reach of budgets. Some recently available figures show what has happened.

Time was, and only a few years back, when the share of the family budget which could housing was around 25 percent. As a rough rule of thumb, this meant a house which cost about 2 or 2½ times income. A $10,000 income would take care of a $20,000 home, say.

But that ratio has changed dramatically over the past few years. Figures for the first quarter, 1975, put the average sales price of homes at $40,600. At that time the middle family income—the mid-point for all families—was $13,400. On the basis of these figures, the average price and the median income, the ratio was 3.3. This, when you figure it out, puts the average house far beyond reach of the median family.

Here's an approximation of how it works out: Assume the median family can put up $5,600 cash. That leaves $35,000 to be financed at, say, 8-10 percent for 30 years. Annual payments, at about $275 per month, come to some $3,296, or about 25 percent of the median income. But that isn't all. Taxes, insurance, maintenance and utilities (energy) easily drive the monthly total to over $400, or near $5,000 a year. And that's about 37 percent of the income.

This, of course, explains why home building, normally a leader in any recovery movement, is still flat on its back. It allowed costs to get out of hand during the "good times" and now simply can't bring them back under control. And what's more, costs are still going up on all fronts, land, material and labor.

It's the same story with automobiles. Today's $5,000 car was about a $3,000 job a few short years ago. That meant that with a trade-in worth $1,000 a time-buyer was left with $2,000 to finance. Today, he has twice as much to finance and if he lengthsens the finance period to cut monthly payments, then he is in more than twice as much.

The out for the automobile industry seems to be in switching more production from the big, costly cars to smaller, lower priced and more efficient units. This is going to mean a squeeze on profits and at a time when the makers are going to be shouldering the costs of developing new engines. Detroit experts say it will be 1977 before the auto industry can even pretend to recovery and even then it will be grinding up a reduced volume of materials.

And this appears to be the direction of housing. There will be more apartments built at the expense of detached homes. And the old row houses, with their small front and back yards, may be in for a comeback. Factory homes and mobile homes may yet find a market.

This, no doubt, is a part of the trend Donnell had in mind when he wrote off the "age of conspicuous consumption."

Kissinger's absence from the room during Mr. Ford's July 2 meeting at Camp David with President Suharto of Indonesia. That broke precedent not only of President Ford but also Richard Nixon. Preliminary schedules also show Mr. Ford meeting alone with German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in Bonn next week.

Whether or not this hints at future changes, Kissinger's influence remains pervasive. That the President is attending the Soviet-sponsored Helsinki meeting to ratify Europe's post-World War II boundaries while the Kremlin subsidizes a Communist takeover of Portugal proves he accepted Kissinger's advice over Laird's.

On a subject so puzzling as SALT, there has been no contest between the immensely persuasive Kissinger, seeing Mr. Ford for one hour every morning, and the slow-talking Schlesinger, visiting the Oval Office occasionally. But a contest now may be in the making, with potent outsiders such as Hubert Humphrey and Mel Laird weighing in on the side of caution and tougher bargaining in a matter of life or death for this country.

Moving Problems Call For Federal Mediator

My only chore worse than moving is cleaning the oven with a toothpick. I should know. We've moved so many times since we've been married that U-Haul has offered us a franchise. And what's worse is that we've never even moved out of Greenville.

Now we're getting ready to move again, and I'm seriously considering having a nervous breakdown. Actually, you'd think that after all this moving, we'd know how to do it without a hitch. But that isn't the case. Our moving problems are so bad that the only simple way to solve them would be to hire a federal mediator.

One of the problems is deciding what to pack and what to leave out. Last time we moved, I packed all the towels first, and for the next three weeks we had to dry off with toilet tissue.

However, the biggest problem is the accumulation of junk. When I move, I want to get rid of all the clutter and start all over again. But Phillip gets upset if I throw away his styrofoam pating cup from third grade. His greatest ambition is to operate a private garbage collection service so that he can collect all the treasures no one else wants.

Last week I was doing my annual clean-away-the-clutter-before-moving bit when I heard a blood-curdling yowl start up in the bedroom.

"You threw away my purple gym sock," he screamed. "You can't deny it—I just found it in the trash can!"

"What in the world are you doing going through the trash when you should be packing?" I asked in disgust.

"We'll never get through if you take on the job of trash inspector."

"You're evading the issue," he growled. "Why did you throw away a perfectly good sock? You're wasteful, that's what you are. Think of all the poor barefoot children in India."

"They wouldn't want an unmatred purple gym sock either," I snapped. "I suppose you wanted to keep that 15-year-old tennis shoe, too?"

"Oh, no," he growled, clutching his sock. "You didn't throw that away, too? It had such sentimental value!"

"The only way that shoe would have any value would be if the army used it for germ warfare. Now why don't you help me pack?"

"Okay," he said, grabbing an empty wine bottle from my desk. "I'll start by throwing this away."

"Don't you dare!" I gasped. "Remember, I carried that from the restaurant all through Georgetown, and when I tripped over a hole in the sidewalk, you told everyone I was drunk. After all the humiliation this bottle caused me, I couldn't give it up."

"Well, if you're going to throw my stuff away, I've got the right to do the same with your stuff."

"Oh, go fly a kite," I muttered.

"I can't," he said. "You've already packed it."

Crime Most Often Named As Greatest Problem In Big Cities

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—When asked to name their community's top problem, residents of the nation's largest cities name crime ahead of everything else, including unemployment and the high cost of living.

In the latest nationwide survey, 21 per cent of residents of cities 500,000 and over name crime as the biggest problem. Unemployment is named next most often, by 11 per cent, while transportation is seen as the chief problem by 7 per cent, education by 6 per cent. Next are housing and the high cost of living, each named by 5 per cent of persons interviewed.

Dramatizing the change in urban worries, a 1949 Gallup survey of residents of cities of one-half million or more found that poor housing, traffic congestion, unsanitary conditions, high taxes, corrupt politics, all rated ahead of crime. Only 4 per cent named crime as their city's worst problem.

The prominence given crime in the public's list of top local problems is by no means limited to the views of residents of the largest cities. Even in medium and small cities, crime is seen as the number one community problem. In small towns and rural areas, however, crime is superseded by other troubles.

Non-Whites More Likely Than Whites To Name Crime

Although non-whites have been particularly hard hit by the economy, they are nearly twice as likely as whites to say crime is the greatest difficulty facing their city or community. Similarly, persons in lower income groups are more inclined to name crime than are persons in upper income groups.

Following is the question asked: "What do you regard as your community's (your city's) worst problem?"

Crime At Top For Nation As A Whole

When the survey results are examined in terms of the nation as a whole, crime again emerges as the top community problem. Next is unemployment. The following table compares the views of the nation as a whole with residents of the nation's largest cities (500,000 and over):

Cosmetic Plastic Surgery For Men Not Unusual

REMOVAL OF EXCESS FACIAL AND EYELID SKIN AND ENLARGEMENT OF SAGGING MUSCLES BY CONSTRUCTIVE SURGERY

COSMETIC SURGERY—For every 10 women who have their faces lifted, two or three men have

By LILLIAN O'CONNELL NEW YORK (UPI) — For every 10 women who have their faces lifted, two or three men have cosmetic plastic surgery. Why? Because "in many instances they feel so much older than the woman they married." So says Dr. Ralph Leslie Dicker, who with his colleague Dr. Victor Royce Syracuse is a founder and director of the New York Facial Plastic Reconstructive Surgery Group. Both doctors agree that the older man is a prime candidate for a face lift, but according to Syracuse many of their male patients are surprisingly young. And not all are rich. "A lot are in their early 30s. I bet I could pick out one 28, 29," Syracuse said. "We don't want to do it," he said. "We try to discourage him. But he has an image of himself. He wants to be an actor. Or he might have a receding chin. Another person will come in with pockmarks from an early infectious disease. We ask them, 'Why do you want it done?' They answer, 'Well, I just like to look better'."

Dicker's experience with cosmetic surgery on men goes back to the close of World War II at the army's Camp Kilmer, where he did so many nose jobs "that the general said he was going to put up a sign outside the camp: 'Through these portals go the most beautiful soldiers in the world'." Dicker says, "We are always very careful with the men we do. We screen them very carefully from a psychological point of view as to why they want it done. Many men have deeper psychological problems than women. "For example, they might be very depressed. But when they come in they don't look depressed. They try to give you this half-fellow-well-met and sort of cover up what's underlying their problem. "Their problem is not business. They don't care so much what's going on in their business world, but they do care what's going on between their wives and themselves, or perhaps their girlfriends and themselves. And in many instances it's the fact that they feel so much older than the woman. She still looks young. "I've had this answer many times. 'My wife looks so young in comparison to me.' He may have put in 20 hours a day and didn't get the sleep that she got and the rest and relaxation and now he feels out of things." And what about the old cliché about older men being more attractive? "Provided he has grey hair and a youthful face. A lot of men grey prematurely, but they have an old-looking face. A lot of wrinkles, a lot of jowls, a turkey gobbler neck," Syracuse pointed out. "So they do need something done. And they're depressed because of this. And a man, when you start that surgery on him, if anything should go wrong — if he doesn't get the desired effect out of his surgery — he will go into a worse depression, even though he looks better. And that's a big problem." Dicker agreed: "Unless you're sure that you're dealing with a very well-balanced man, the surgeon shouldn't even attempt to do any plastic surgery on him." In their book, "Consultation With A Plastic Surgeon (Nelson-Hall, Chicago, due for publication in September), the two doctors give detailed answers to the questions most asked by patients on face lifts. How long will it last? Five to 10 years depending upon the patient's age, among other things. Cost? $2,500 average for a complete job, from $500 for a "mini", $750 for all four eyelids. Total hospital stay? 48 to 72 hours.

Western Europe Disarray Tempting The Kremlin

BY GERARD LOUGHRAN MOSCOW (UPI) — Recent political developments in Europe have confronted the Soviet Union with this dilemma: whether to apply the classical Communist formula of expansion and thus endanger detente, or to withhold overt action and risk losing out on potentially revolutionary situations. Present indications are that the Kremlin leaders, though hoping to have their cake and eat it, are initially opting for the second course, if only because everything seems to be going their way anyway. Without undue exertion on the Soviet part, Portugal is moving to the left, Spain is ripe for a push in the same direction, the Communists have made spectacular gains in Italy, and Greece and Turkey are dangerously divided over Cyprus. All this has made the southern flank of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization vulnerable in a way it has never been before. And with the United States still staggering from its policy defeats in southeast Asia, the Soviet Union finds itself in an unusually strong position. Said one Western diplomat: "Clearly anything that weakens NATO is in the Soviets' interest and the present situation is an opportunity for them." Significantly, however, public rhetoric from Moscow has been restrained. Here is how a diplomat weighed up the pros and cons of Soviet attitudes to the countries involved: Portugal: a Communist party takeover would be premature. Not only might there be a Chile-type backlash, returning the country to right-wing rule, but it would spell the end of detente. The socialist parties of West Germany, France and Britain have close ties with Portuguese Socialist leader Mario Soares and Washington could be counted on to react angrily. Traditionally, too, Portugal is not in the Soviet sphere of influence. Spain: With Generalissimo Francisco Franco coming to the end of his long rule, the Soviets apparently have decided there will be a move to the left automatically. But Communist rule is not eagerly sought by Moscow because the Spanish party has always been hard to control and is opposed to detente. Italy: Boris Ponomarev, the non-voting Politburo member who looks after relations with foreign Communist parties, is said to have advised the Italian party in the past against seeking total control. The Italians have traditionally been one of the most independent of the European parties and the fear here is that they would be more nationalist and even more independent of Moscow if they led the government. Greece and Turkey: Regarding Cyprus, the Soviets are trying to ride both horses. Though officially pro-Greek Cypriot, they are muted in their criticism of neighbor Turkey. The Kremlin nightmare is a partition of the island raising the probability of a Nato presence there. Meanwhile the Turkey-U.S. quarrel over arms and bases is a plus for Moscow. In several Western European nations the Soviets have political parties which are friendly to them either in power or close to it. Without taking overt action that could produce an adverse reaction, they seem to be trying to keep this favorable situation in existence. Detente, of course, is the key. Few knowledgeable Moscow sources give much credence to Western Kremlinologists who see leadership dissension over the policy, though there may be divisions about its implementation. The view here is that detente will be hailed at next February's party congress as a resounding success. It has brought about arms control and supplied considerable economic benefits, if fewer from the United States than had been anticipated. At the same time, detente did nothing to stop much of southeast Asia slipping into the Communist camp. Nor did it block the Leftward slide in Europe.

San Francisco Continues To Be Everybody's Favorite City

By RICHARD M. HARNETT SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco not only has all the attractions any tourist would want, but it welcomes visitors. It's a pleasure to be a blantant rubber-necker here. Visit Chinatown and gawk at the trinkets. Ride the cable car — on the outside bench — down to Fisherman's Wharf. Go down to the cliff at the ocean and strain to see the seals. Have an Italian dinner in one of those little North Beach cafes. They say this is "everybody's favorite city," and that must be why more than 2 million visitors come to San Francisco every year. Tourism has become the city's biggest industry. San Francisco is popular for many reasons — a mild climate, a spectacular geographical setting, a deep cultural life and an enthusiasm for life that came with the 49ers and still marks the city by the Golden Gate. San Francisco is peopled by warm and friendly citizens, most of whom were not born here but choose to live here. There are the Italians of North Beach, the Chinese in Chinatown, the Japanese, Irish, American blacks and others who make it a truly cosmopolitan city. San Francisco is a year-round city. The weather is probably best in September and October. July is as foggy and often as chilly as January. Rain is unlikely between June and September. "Summer" clothes are not appropriate in San Francisco even in the summertime. Be sure to have warm things to wear. Coming by auto, you pay to get into San Francisco over one of the great Bay Bridges, but there is no toll when leaving. By train from the east or north, you get off on the east side of the Bay and arrive by bus in the city. The Greyhound Bus station is in downtown San Francisco. From the airport there is regular bus service to the city for a $1.15 fare. Taxi to the city from the airport runs more than $10. A single room at the St. Francis, Hilton and Fairmont Hotels runs about $30 a night minimum. At good smaller hotels in the same downtown area, such as the Chancellor or Cartwright, a minimum single room is $15 or $16. The better motels in San Francisco and nearby suburbs charge $20 to $25 a night. A visitor is wise to check in with the San Francisco Convention & Visitors Bureau, which publishes a large array of literature on the city and offers a recorded telephone summary of what's going on — dial 291-2000. Gray Line buses offer a variety of tours: one to sites within the city such as the Old Mission Dolores and Golden Gate Park; a night life tour which stops for a drink or dinner at a couple of noted nightclubs; and longer trips across the Golden Gate Bridge to see the tall redwoods in Muir Woods or the wine country around Napa. San Francisco has extensive and varied public transportation. The municipal railway streetcars and buses go everywhere in the city for a 25 cent fare. The old cable cars are an experience not to be missed. And, by contrast, BART, the city's brand new automated subway, offers a thrilling ride in its shiny and comfortable electric cars which speed through beautiful stations with their automatic gates and polished steel surfaces. The ferry boats are back on the Bay now, providing a seaborne trip to Tiburon and Sausalito in the north. Harbor tours, leaving from Fisherman's Wharf, offer a cruise around the bay, for a close look at Alcatraz and the Golden Gate Bridge. You can go to Alcatraz. The old prison was opened to the public last year and the tour, conducted by the National Park Service, became an instant attraction. Reservations are required. Gold Gate Park, with its miles of paths and varied landscape, the children's zoo, Japanese tea garden, paddle boats, lawn bowling, De Young Museum and huge Steinhart Aquarium can occupy a day or more of browsing. From the park you can drive along Ocean Beach, stop to gaze at a sail in the distance and listen to the pounding waves — too powerful for surfers or swimmers in this area. Nearby is the San Francisco Zoo. For shopping, downtown San Francisco still has its great stores, I. Magnin, Gumps, The Emporium, Macy's, and such specialty stores as Podesta Baldocchi and Brentano's bookstore. Shopping at Ghirardelli Square and the Cannery near Fisherman's Wharf is a treat. Along with the revived "Cow Hollow" along Union Street, Japantown and a few other neighborhood districts, they make San Francisco a collection of strolling avenues with interesting shops and places to eat. San Francisco is widely known for great dining. There are elegant places like Trader Vic's and Ernie's. Literally hundreds of good restaurants cater to varying tastes — American, Chinese, Japanese, Italian, Greek, seafood, steak. For atmosphere dining, the new Bank of America skyscraper, the city's tallest building, has a public restaurant, the Carnelian Room, on the top, with a view of the city and surrounding territory from 52 stories up. The "Top of the Mark," remembered by thousands of World War II vets who shipped through San Francisco, is still there. Across California Street on Nob Hill, the Fairmont has its Crown Room, 29 stories up and reached by a glass-enclosed outdoor elevator. At the new Hyatt Regency Hotel near the old ferry building, there is a skyroom that revolves. You get to it on a glass elevator that rises up the side of the hotel's spectacular atrium-lobby, which itself has become one of the things to see in San Francisco.

Some Industries Above Recession NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite high unemployment and the recession, some industries actually are hiring employees and giving salary raises. According to Information For Business of New York City, available data reveals that industries riding above the recession include heavy machinery, auto parts and repair, motion pictures, private airplanes, phonograph records, and such energy-related as oil tools and services.

Strongly Lean To NATO Role THE HAGUE (UPI) — Fifty-eight per cent of the Dutch people want Holland to remain a cooperative member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for as long as it exists, a public opinion poll showed. Five per cent felt Holland should quit NATO as soon as possible, and 19 per cent favored conditional membership, with Holland leaving NATO in three years time if necessary. The rest had no opinion or did not know NATO exists.

Patent Grants Seeing Decline NEW YORK (UPI) — The number of patents granted to U.S. inventors over the past few years has declined, according to a recent private study. In 1974 a total of 54,325 patents was granted to Americans compared with 588, 963 in 1971, says the Intellectual Property Owners, a nonprofit group seeking to make people aware of the benefits of a strong patent system. T.L. Boves, executive director of IPO, attributes the decline to a loss of incentive for invention and investment due to unfavorable court decisions that tend to invalidate patent rights.

Big Jet Crashes Obscure Evidence Of Air Safety

By EDWARD K. DeLONG
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two airline crashes that killed 206 persons in recent months have provided tragic evidence supporting the belief of federal safety experts that landings — not takeoffs — are the most dangerous part of a passenger's flight.

And despite constant improvements in electronic guidance systems for pilots during their descent to the runway, the incidence of human error remains "inordinately high" in those final hazardous moments of a flight, the experts say.

In the past decade, fully half the 76 U.S. airline accidents involving fatalities occurred during approaches or landings, while only 16 per cent happened during takeoffs.

The only fatal U.S. airline crash so far this year, which also was the worst single-plane aviation disaster in American history, killed 113 persons aboard an Eastern Air Lines Boeing 727 trying to land at John F. Kennedy Airport on June 24.

A little more than six months earlier, a Trans World Airlines jet crashed on a Virginia mountain peak while trying to land at Washington's Dulles International Airport. That crash Dec. 1, in which all 93 persons aboard were killed, was the worst disaster of a particularly bad year for the aviation industry.

Despite the spectacular death tolls involving crashes of the new jumbo or "stretch" jets, the number of fatal accidents generally has declined steadily in recent years. And considering total passenger miles flown, government figures indicate that air travel is safer than ever before.

But the hazards of the approach and landing remain a worrisome problem, even under the best of conditions.

An unpublished study by the National Transportation Safety Board staff, conducted this year and made available to UPI, suggests that what would seem the safest instrument approach of all could actually be the most dangerous.

The staff made a computer analysis of 69 instrument approach and landing accidents involving airliners, air taxis and executive planes in the five years through 1972. It found that two-thirds of them occurred during straight-in approaches to the runway under full electronic guidance, and most happened at night.

Pilots trying to touch down on runways at speeds often exceeding 100 miles per hour, frequently in bad weather, must evaluate electronic and visual landing information "in time spans so short that there is little margin for error or poor judgment," the study said.

By that yardstick, the chances of being killed in an air accident have dropped steadily in recent years. Ten years ago, the airline death rate was 0.315 per 100 million passenger miles, and in 1960 it was a relatively high 0.6.

With the trend toward fewer crashes involving more fatalities, the challenge in aviation safety is to try harder than ever to reduce the number of crashes.

The task begins with the National Transportation Safety Board, an independent federal agency responsible for investigating all U.S. civil aviation accidents to determine probable causes and make safety recommendations, mostly to the Federal Aviation Administration.

The FAA came under sharp congressional fire last year for ignoring or acting too slowly on NTSB recommendations, and for appearing too solicitous about interests of the industry it regulates.

Since then the FAA has tightened its procedures and eliminated much of its rule-making red tape, and Reed says he is pleased with the results.

"For the year 1974," he said, "the board issued 130 aviation recommendations. More than half of these have already been accepted and acted upon, while most of the remainder are under review by the FAA. In all, only 22 have been rejected."

R. P. Skully, director of the FAA's flight standards division which sets the rules under which aircraft are licensed and must operate, foresees the day when computers and other electronic instruments will handle most of the job of flying and landing a jetliner now controlled by the pilot and ground personnel.

Skully mentions the Concorde supersonic transport. "Through the whole final approach they don't even touch the power," he said. "It is calculated automatically."

"The more critical your design gets, the more precisely you have to fly the airplane and the better the autopilot system will do it."

Skully rejects allegations the FAA has been reluctant to order the airlines to adopt costly safety modifications.

Critics complain of needless delays, noting it was six years after the NTSB urged ground proximity warning systems aboard jetliners that the FAA finally required commercial aircraft to carry devices that shout "whoop, whoop, pull up" if the pilot flies too low.

Skully said such delays often reflect nothing more than the time needed to develop a necessary new technology.

Often prodding the FAA for action is the Air Line Pilots Association, a loud voice over the years in identifying air safety deficiencies and demanding corrections. ALPA's safety chairman, J. W. Meek, says the battle is far from won.

Meek is chagrined that no one seems ready to solve a safety problem until disaster strikes. The Eastern crash last month, he said, was not the first time the industry knew about the hazards of low-altitude wind shear — gusts blowing in different directions at different heights above ground.

Meek sees other long-familiar problems awaiting public notice before action is taken. For years, he said, ALPA has tried with little success to get the FAA to install instrument landing systems at all airports served by scheduled airlines. As of last year, 227 of the 532 such airports in the country still lacked these electronic guidance systems for incoming flights.

Meek also wants to focus more attention on the human factors in air accidents, the pilot fatigue, poor assignment of cockpit duties, difficulty in seeing instruments.

"I don't know why it always seems to take a bloodbath to get something done about serious problems," he said. "If you don't kill anybody, or kill just six people, nothing is done. But if you kill 106, then things do get done."

Soviet Union Becomes Leading Gold Producer

By FRANK CREPEAU
Associated Press Writer
ALDAN, U.S.S.R. (AP) — In 50 years the Soviet Union has become a leading world gold producer and one of the country's first gold strikes was made in this corner of Siberia, called "the Russian Klondike."

It was the start of a gold rush that has made the Soviet Union the second largest producer after South Africa. The Soviets are now cashing in on the high world gold price with sales to provide needed hard currency.

Just how much gold the Soviet Union produces at this and other fields and the size of Soviet gold reserves are closely guarded secrets.

A trip to this area of wooded mountains and icy rivers 3,000 miles from Moscow provided no clues. A group of Western newsmen permitted to make a rare visit to Aldan's gold fields didn't even see any gold.

Aldan, a city of 21,000 with log buildings sprawled across the hills, has none of the aura of a boom town or a gold rush settlement. About the only glitter in Aldan was the gilded statue of Lenin, and that wasn't gold leaf.

There was a brief flurry of excitement after the first gold discovery in 1923 and mining engineer Valery Anokhin said "Aldan could not avoid gold fever as people flocked in."

He said "all the negative consequences followed," but by 1925 the government moved firmly to take over all gold mining "and that ended the gold fever."

The gold is actually mined near a series of settlements scattered around the Aldan area where 4,000 workers run the big dredges and work the quarries where gold-bearing rock is loaded on trucks to be taken to a processing plant. In 1935 the Soviets said they produced 150 tons of gold and had reserves of 745 tons. That was the last time they revealed figures.

Now there are widely varying Western estimates on production and reserves, but all authorities agree that the Soviet Union is the world's second biggest gold producer with an output from one-third to one-half of South Africa's.

Although the Soviet Union is a world economic power, its ruble is not convertible and the Kremlin has to pay gold or dollars for cash transactions with Western countries.

The ruble is officially pegged at $1.42, but that is an artificial rate and when the ruble is used in deals between Communist countries the exchange rate is more of an accounting unit than a reflection of the ruble's actual worth.

So the Soviets do need gold and have a small army of geologists looking for it. The largest producing area is in eastern Siberia where all major rivers — the Lena, Yana, Indigirka, Kolyma, Anadyr and Aldan — have important placer deposits. Some sources say 75 per cent of Soviet gold comes from the Magadan and Yakutia areas, an arc from near the Chinese border to the Chukotsky Peninsula on the Bering Strait.

But there also have been major gold finds reported in Kazakhstan, Central Asia and near Lake Baykal.

While no figures are given, the Soviet press often says there is a lot of gold in the Soviet Union. And a few years ago there were plenty of Soviet predictions that the Soviet Union would surpass South Africa as a gold producer by the 1990s.

In Sweden, windshield wipers on auto headlamps are mandatory, according to ANCO.

BRICK-TRIMMED TRADITIONAL ZONED FOR LIVING

EXPANSIVE SPLIT LEVEL DEFINES THREE AREAS FOR FAMILY LIVING

By Jerry Bishop
Ornamental wrought iron railings, shutters, and a stately bow window trim the facade of this large split level home to convey the charm and warmth of the past. Its floor plan, however, reflects the needs of today and offers a gracious foyer, family room, three full baths, and a huge recreation room on the lower level.

Automatic zoning is inherent in the split level design, and the Shelton takes advantage of this. On the entry level, the family room, living room, and kitchen comprise the main living area, with the sleeping level above located for maximum quiet. Informal activities, laundry, and hobbies are assigned to the recreation room level.

From the foyer, guests are welcomed into the elegant living room at left. Its bow window restates the traditional theme of the facade and accents the room's formality. By contrast, the adjacent family room emphasizes relaxation and offers ample space for informal dining and access to the terrace for outdoor relaxation. The kitchen in simple and compact, large enough to avoid crowding, and well-located to supply food for terrace picnics.

A few steps up from the foyer, three bedrooms are huddled on their own quiet level. Supplied with a private bath and double closets, the master bedroom is large and pleasant. Remaining bedrooms are served by a hall bath, a carefully designed area featuring a compartmented arrangement with double sinks.
Directly below the sleeping level, the recreation level furnishes a laundry room, bedroom, full bath with shower, and 23-ft. game room. The game room boasts two closets for storage of toys and sports equipment and offers an excellent site for a children's play room, leaving upper levels for adult use. The bedroom is large, bright, and closeted, and might serve as a home office, television room, or hobby room.

Storage space, in closets and utility room, is abundant on this level.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures
Prospective home buyers have many concerns these days. Far and away the greatest are those involving money.
This is not a particularly perceptive observation. I — and you — have known it for some time. But it became especially crystal clear the other night when I attended a question-and-answer session for couples interested in purchasing houses.
The panelists were experts in the field — architect Herman York, builder Donald Eversoll, mortgage financier Stanley Greenstein, attorney Herbert Balin and real estate sales director Bob Lewis, along with the president of the Long Island Builders Institute, Andy Monaco, and its executive secretary, Thomas Junor.

day, when the vital factor is not how much you make, but how much you owe, a different method must be used.
What you have left every month after you pay your bills is what counts most, along with such other factors as the family situation, future wage prospects and your own ability to handle responsibilities. These are among the considerations the banks and savings and loan associations give weight to when processing your application for a loan.

Putting all the facts and figures down on paper is a big help in reaching a decision. Surprisingly, many persons discover they have more assets than they might have supposed in a quick, mental estimate.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures
Q — Does an electric dishwasher or a dryer use more wattage?
A — The dishwasher. In general, appliances which heat up use more electricity than those which do not.
Q — What is meant by a time-delay fuse?
A — In appearance, it is the same as a regular plug type fuse. But it has a special metal strip inside which permits the fuse to handle a temporary overload without blowing. This is sometimes required with an appliance which uses extra power just for a fraction of a second when starting.
Q — I have heard that there are colored lacquers, but no hardware store I have tried has anything except clear lacquer and black lacquer. Where can I get colored lacquer?
A — Colored lacquers are used mostly by professional finishers. You can get them in stores which supply to the trade. Occasionally, you can get colored lacquer in a spray can at a regular hardware store.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)
Q — How can I get a grease spot from my dining room table? I am willing to refinish the entire top if necessary, but would like to try removing the spot first.
A — Rub the spot with mineral oil. Sometimes it will take out the spot with little or no damage to the finish. Sometimes it will leave a slightly dull area, which can be touched up. It all depends on how particular you are.
Q — Should stains on wood be applied with a brush or a cloth?
A — Either way. Some finishers prefer the brush, some, including myself, the cloth.
(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's helpful booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 30 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.)

Back-To-Basics In Home-Buying

By DOROTHEA BROOKS
United Press International
It's discouraging to look at a $50,000 house only to find it has the space and amenities you think of in terms of a $25,000 price tag.
It's even more discouraging when the house you'd like to buy has a $50,000 price tag and you have a $25,000 budget.

mortgages on the previous model line — visited Deltona properties on special low-cost inspection tours.
For the first six months, Mackle said, 351 homes were sold, compared with only 37 homes of the previous models starting at $30,000 for the entire fourth quarter of 1974. The most popular model, he said, has been a two-bedroom, two-bath, 1,035-square-foot model that sells for $23,500. Each of the eight models available is built by conventional, on-site methods.

But there are solutions.
One choice may be to look for an older property that offers the land, the room you'd like. Another, of course, is to rethink your requirements, decide what is essential for your family, eliminate the frills, the like-to-haves, concentrate on the basics with the idea of improving as you go along.
The more limited the budget, the more difficult this is, of course. But there is hope in a growing "back to the basics" movement among builders.
The Deltona Corp., major Florida builder, for instance, inaugurated at the beginning of this year a new line of compact homes — selling from $17,800 to $30,900 — designed to bring back families which had been priced out of the market entirely. It reported from the first a "fantastic" response.

frurniture to the size of the home," advises John Dapprich, director of interior design for Deltona.
"Scale in a small home is of prime importance. Avoid china cabinets, large bookcases and any tall, heavy-looking pieces when you can," Dapprich said. He suggests substituting love-seat for sofa, two small cigarette tables for one large coffee table, a drop-leaf behind the sofa for the traditional dining table.
He favors moving television into the bedroom — perhaps installing it inside an armoire which will also handle storage needs. While this seems a contradiction of his earlier advice, Dapprich says, rules are made to be broken and common sense should be the guide. While large bookcases are overpowering, the family with quantities of books demanding storage need not throw them out. An entire wall of open shelves could be a solution.

Also in the bedroom, a small writing table or secretary, with a lamp, might double for a nightstand. Hanging lamps also create space.
Mirrors can do wonders in giving depth and breadth to a room. Bright colors make rooms seem larger. If darker colors are used, there should be contrasting elements — white furniture with a brown or dark blue carpet, for instance.

Repetition of the same pattern in drapes, chairs and wall coverings will pull a small room together, make it appear less busy. Sheer drapes will work better than heavy ones. Open frame sofas and chairs without skirting will give the illusion of more room.
Strive for an open, airy, uncluttered look. It will give a lot of living in a small house, and pay dividends in easier housekeeping too.

Q — How can I get a marble effect on wood?
A — It's a tricky procedure which requires more space to explain than is available here. Some stores carrying art materials sell paperback books explaining the process.
Q — I am doing a wood-finishing project. The instructions talk about feathering. My dictionary doesn't explain what it is. Can you tell me?
A — Feathering is a term usually meant to describe how one surface can be sanded to blend with another. For instance, if one part of a wood cut prices, Mackle said, the company employed a "great number of small efficiencies." Backyards are seeded, rather than sodded. Elimination of bathroom vanities, use of simpler light fixtures resulted in savings. Designs call for little waste of building materials, and materials are used which are less likely to be affected by shortages which increase construction time. All homes are being built on level lots, reducing foundation cost. Construction is on a block-by-block basis to save expensive moving of heavy equipment.

And, most importantly, Mackle said, today's home buyer is accepting these basic designs, no longer demanding the many extras which in recent years had helped to boost housing prices.
Having accepted "basic," smaller housing, what do you do to get the most living from it?

Record Total Of ECU Grants During Month

East Carolina University received nearly $1 million in federal, state and private grants during the month of June, a record amount.

Dr. James L. White, director of Sponsored Programs at ECU, said that his office compiled 15 awards totaling $848,932.

work that is being undertaken at ECU.
"At a time when governmental and private agencies must be extremely selective in their approval of grant requests, ECU faculty and staff are indeed fortunate to be receiving the funds they need to carry on these projects."

Given A Start In Greenhouses

NEW YORK (UPI) — A mechanized planting system is being used in California to plant vegetables in greenhouses so they can be grown scientifically and to precise specifications before being transplanted to the field.

The Office of Sponsored Programs helps ECU faculty and staff in seeking outside funds for research or training programs and serves as an administrator for these programs.
The largest award was a grant totaling $348,633 to the ECU General Assistance Center. The Center which is a part of the ECU School of Education, assists local school districts with school desegregation problems. Along with the award the GAC received one of the highest ratings of all similar programs funded by the U.S. Office of Education.

The record total of grants for a single month certainly indicates that ECU is on the right track in providing the services and research skills that will benefit North Carolina," Brown said.

The project is part of a new business-development program by Union Carbide Corp.
Transplant-growing permits farmers to raise an extra crop during the growing season. Celery, for instance, will come to harvest 60 to 90 days sooner by being grown in a greenhouse first and then transplanted, rather than growing from seed in the field.

Other large awards received during June included $134,522 from the Public Health Service to the ECU School of Nursing to fund a Rural Family Nurse Practitioner Program. And $145,257 from the North Carolina Department of Social Services to continue a degree program in undergraduate social work training in the School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

Will Research Drunken Driver

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—The drunken driver and ways to reduce the number of accidents he is involved in will be researched by the University of North Carolina Highway Safety Research Center with a $133,000 federal grant.
The center will try to develop ways to identify drivers prone to alcohol-related crashes. Also in the first year of the two-year study, the center will seek to determine the best programs for reducing the drivers' risks.
In the second year, researchers will test the accuracy of techniques for identifying drunken drivers.

Even The Flowers At Work In Japan

By ARNOLD DIBBLE
TOKYO (UPI) — They're putting the flowers to work in Japan — which may help explain why what once was an essentially have-not nation has become one of the world's superpowers.

It is spotty, however, in that it sometimes will hit only a small area. Schools have had entire classes felled with wheezing, coughing and fainting. Other areas only a mile away, or less, are comparatively unaffected.
Japan, with 20 million exhaust fuming vehicles, has the highest density of automobiles in the world. Traffic patrolmen on some of the highly traveled streets wear gas masks. The trees and the bushes in the gardens surrounding the Imperial Palace must be replaced on the average of every two years.
The nation must import 80 or more per cent of the materials it needs to live and manufacture. But if the begonias apply themselves, Japan may become the first country in the world where flower power really works.

No more standing around just looking pretty. The flowers, specifically a special strain of begonia, are taking up employment in the field of ecology.
Petunias and morning glories were put to the test and found wanting. They can go on being just pretty flowers.
But the begonia is a new strain developed by the Tokyo Metropolitan Government's Isotope Research Center. Its name is now winter Queen Gamma 3, and its job is to give an indication of the seriousness of Tokyo's smog — known here as photo-chemical haze.

In 1974, there were 26 official smog warnings. So far this year, there have been eight.
The smog is blamed mainly upon automobile exhaust fumes which rise into the atmosphere and, when the right amount of sunlight hits the right amount of cloudy fumes, it descends upon the city.

The Winter Queen Gamma 3 also is supposed to give an early warning of photo-chemical smog in what some claim to be the most smog-ridden city on earth.
The strain was developed by exposing the seedlings to radiation. When the beautifully petalled flower is left out for six hours in an ozone concentration which calls for a smog

Answers Timely Gardening Questions
Q. Our daylily and iris plants have multiplied and become crowded. Is this a good time to divide and transplant them? (Mrs. E.J., Pikeville)
A. August is a good month in which to divide and transplant iris and daylily clumps. By doing so now, new transplants will have time to become well established before cold weather. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)
Q. I enjoy making homemade wine. Are there varieties of grapes that make better wine than others? Could you suggest one or two varieties for both white and red wine? (C.V., La Grange)
A. Carlos, Magnolia and the old-fashioned Scuppernon of the muscadine varieties make excellent white wine. The relatively new Noble and Tarheel make very good red wine. Some of the better bunch and hybrid grapes for making wine are Catawba, Delaware, (both pink), Chelois (red), Seibel 9549 (red), and Villard

Blanc (S. V. 12-375) (white). Remember, you must be head of a household and obtain a permit to make homemade wine. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)
Q. The leaves on the dogwood tree in my yard suddenly turned brown around the edges and then died completely. What caused this and how can I correct it? (C.M., Greensboro)
A. You've described a common problem with dogwood trees in landscapes. Dogwood are susceptible to several fungi that cause root rot, and usually nothing can be done for a tree once the symptoms which you describe appear. To help new trees get off to a good start and avoid root problems, set in partial shade and mulch. Prepare the site well, do not plant too deep and water during dry periods. (R.K. Jones, extension plant pathologist)
Q. What causes my cucumbers to grow in unusual shapes—sometimes like small gourds? (G.F., New Bern)
A. A shortage of moisture most of the time. But temperature and heredity can play a part. (W.W. Reid, extension horticulturist)

ADVANTAGE OF LARGE MORTGAGE

When buying a home, should you strive for a low down payment with a commensurately large mortgage loan? Here's what some experts say about the value of a large mortgage.

The lower your down payment is, the easier it will be to sell your home in the future. The reasoning is that there will be a greater number of prospects who have a smaller amount of cash available to take over a small equity than for a huge down payment or even being forced to take out a new loan at a possibly higher interest rate.

The higher interest charge is offset somewhat by a higher tax deduction. The money that would have been put into a larger down payment can be used for other income-producing investments. Finally, it's cheaper to borrow mortgage money than any other kind. And you certainly may have to borrow for autos and college tuition if you are an average American.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at LOUIS CLARK AGENCY, IBM Bldg., 100 Reade St., Greenville. Phone: 752-4173. We're here to help!

Electric Car Is Tested At Clemson U.

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson University is test-driving two electric-powered automobiles, with hopes of eventually replacing gas-guzzling models with the boxy beige-battered-powered cars.

The cars are currently going through an initial shakedown period, and if they prove operationally efficient, 25 to 30 gas-powered cars could be replaced by the electric ones, says Roy Rochester, director of Clemson's physical plant.

Rochester said the first few weeks of operation turned up only the average number of problems that might be expected with any new car.

He says the cost of recharging the car's batteries is about two cents a mile, as compared to four cents or more a mile for conventional vehicles. However, the major drawback of the cars is range limitation, as they can only travel about 50 miles per charge.

"I think it will become very practical later on," he said.

The initial cost of the car was $2,750, and maintenance costs are expected to be a major saving, since it has a smaller number of moving parts than its internal combustion counterpart.

The little car's speedometer registers up to 50 miles per hour. Rochester said he has had one up to 43 miles per hour, but slowed down immediately. He's found it cruises comfortably at 25 to 35.

With a range of 50 miles per charge, the cars will be used only on or within 10 miles of the campus, he said.

Rochester added the energy consumption is the same any time the accelerator is depressed, so it's best to depress it all the way and coast. Without the involved gear train of the gas-powered car to slow it down, the electric car coasts much faster than its counterpart.

Rochester said he was pleasantly surprised by the legroom and headroom of the Citi-Car, the only electric car manufactured in the United States.

When the nine-month test period is completed, Rochester will evaluate the results and decide whether to buy electric cars to replace the old vehicles at the university.

Develop New Plant Digger

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Agricultural engineers at the Pennsylvania State University have developed a tractor-mounted machine for digging trees and plants.

Developed by Kermit Q. Stephenson and Associates, the machine digs and lifts average plants in four to eight minutes, compared with 40 to 60 minutes of digging with shovel and pick.

The digger was developed when Pennsylvania nurserymen expressed a need for a general purpose machine. Nurserymen find present equipment too large to move between rows in nurseries, too heavy for muddy areas, unsuited for rocky soils, inadequate for the larger trees and shrubs, and too expensive.

The digger costs about $2,000. It is a dual-boom device with a trenching chain and control linkages on each boom. In digging, a plant is centered between the two booms which are impelled hydraulically through about 10 degrees of rotation. The chains, or cutting tools, make a trench three inches wide around and under the plant.

Once the cutting is completed, a lightweight, two-piece lifting tool is placed in the trench around the ball and is attached to the digger frame directly above. Then the balled plant is lifted by the tractor's hydraulic hitch. Balled plants weighing up to 300 pounds can be lifted and handled by the compact tractor.

A Barometer For Economy

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI) — W. Sharon Florer, executive director of the Ohio Valley Goodwill Industries, says his organization is a good barometer of the national economy.

Florer bases this statement on the intake of materials donated to the 156 Goodwills all over the country.

"When furniture isn't coming into Goodwill, people are not buying new furniture. When people don't donate refrigerators, it is because they are not buying refrigerators. They are not donating either to us now."

Final 1975 Summer In The Park Event

'Salute To The Big Bands' In Park Concert Today

"A Salute To The Big Bands" is the theme of today's nostalgic oriented "Sunday In The Park" concert, the final concert this summer. As usual, the concert will be held on the grassy slope east of Reade Street beginning at 7 p.m. In the event of rain, the concert will be held at 8 p.m. in Wright Auditorium.

A number of well known instrumentalists will be performing as members of the "North Carolina All-Star Jazz Band," including Jerry Coker, nationally known jazz tenor saxophonist, composer, author and educator.

Other musicians in the big band type ensemble will include saxophonists Joseph Distefano, Charles Taylor, James Houlik and Bob Haas; Trumpeter Dick Gable, Felix Buba, Barry Shank and Lee Davis; Trombonists Stev Cox, Tom Smith, Doug Adams, and Terry Mizisco; pianists Charles Burt; bass players George Naff and Larry Dowdy; and Michael Carney on the drums.

Several of today's music makers have in past years been members of notable American bands such as those of Benny Goodman, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Harry James, Duke Ellington, Count Basie, Artie Shaw, Glenn Miller, Quincy Jones, Buddy Rich and Maynard Ferguson.

Stuart Aronson is the vocalist, and plans to sing songs by Cole Porter and other composers whose music was popular in recent years.

In addition to music representative of the big band era, the N.C. All-Star Jazz Band will also play a selection of Dixieland music.

Some of the old favorites scheduled to be heard are "In The Mood," "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You," "Take the 'A' Train," "One O'Clock Jump," "String of Pearls," and "Mood Indigo."

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend. If the weather permits the 7 p.m. outdoor performance, those attending are reminded to bring pillows, blankets, etc. in order to listen in complete relaxation.

COORDINATOR AND VOCALIST . . . George Naff (left), coordinator and one of the instrumentalists to play in today's Sunday in the Park concert, studies a score with vocalist Stuart Aronson. The concert will be at 7 p.m. on the slope east of Reade Street, or if it rains, at 8 p.m. in Wright Auditorium.

A Revolution Film Classic

Gary Cooper, Madeline Carroll and Akim Tamiroff are the three heading the cast in The General Died At Dawn, Clifford Odets' screenplay produced by Paramount Pictures in 1936.

The 39 year old film is being featured beginning at 9 p.m., Friday, August 1 over the University of North Carolina Television Network, (Channel 25, Greenville). Based on an unpublished novel by Charles G. Booth, The General Died at Dawn is about an adventurer caught up in a revolution.

John Baxter, writing in Hollywood in the Thirties, says "Madeline Carroll's characterization of Judy Perrie is perfectly realized... Her affair (with Cooper) has the beauty of complete inevitability... The division of loyalties which her love for Cooper demands, her horror of the death of her father, shot to her character a sensitivity seldom found in the cinema."

This feature film is followed by the fifth episode

—A Review—

Opinions Of Ovid Pierce, Guy Owen

Thoughts On Today's Fiction

The effects of shifting currents in rural life-styles, both on human conditions and in literature; and the role of editors and publishers in directing trends in regional literature, are featured topics in the current (spring and summer 1975) issue of St. Andrews Review.

"Currents and Places," Ovid Pierce's essay in the latest issue of St. Andrews Review, tells much about the thinking that illumines the fabric of Pierce's fiction.

Writing in a lucid, conversational style, Pierce explains why he feels contemporary social, cultural and economic factors are changing the face of the "old South"—and with it, the shapes and textures of Southern (and all provincial) fiction.

"We can already measure the effects of provincialism, of blind attachment to the past," Pierce writes. "But can we yet measure the effects of that other extreme: the state of no attachment, of belonging nowhere? Of living where continuities are severed, loyalties are diluted, and identities are blurred?"

After summarizing the "physical setting" element common to novels of the past, and the diminishing priorities physical settings have in more recent fiction, Pierce tells us. . . "What strikes us most. . . is that fiction has become urban. Sidewalks have replaced the countryside. But one thing is more evident: the South no longer holds center stage in American fiction. . ."

The influence of rapid news media—newspapers and television—the proliferation of advertising, and the mobility of Americans, have all, Pierce asserts, created new conditions, new concepts of reality for fiction writers. These conditions have not, Pierce believes, produced the results that might have been expected.

"We have. . ." he writes, "the rather surprising evidence that the great mobility and the expected rootlessness resulting from it have not had the broadening, expanding effects upon our social patterns that could be expected. Surprisingly to the contrary, a narrowing effect is strongly evident."

"Never before, to my knowledge, has fiction reflected such fragmentation of experience and conviction as it currently does."

Despite all the evidences of turbulent changes in social values, Pierce is not one to sound the note of doom. "Our dilemma is in facing, on one hand, the influences that tend to uproot, and dispossess, and, the opposite influences that tend to draw us into privacy, that blind us to self-assessment."

"But hasn't his always been the problem of the nature man in coming to terms with himself?"

It is impossible, even with selected quotes, to convey more than mere hints on the impressive facets of Pierce's reasoned, perspective grasp of the interrelationships between life and fiction. This is a thought-provoking piece of writing, essential to a better understanding of Pierce's fiction.

Guy Owens's thoughts on writing are given indirectly—in a profile, "Guy Owen and the World of Cape Fear County," written by Vic Dalmas.

"Though Owen is a modest, unassuming and patient man," Dalmas says, "one of the main things that irritates him stems from his own experiences of writing about the South. He feels that many New York publishers have a prejudice against Southern literature, especially if it deals with Southern dialect. . ."

"This situation militates against a sane, healthy literature," he (Owen) says. . . "We have the most joyless literature ever created by any civilization. It has a totally negative view of life. And one of the main reasons for this situation is that the editors and opinion-makers in New York don't talk to anybody but each other, their psychiatrists, and their lawyers. . . Their minds are closed; they feel that literature should deal with particular themes, the language should be a particular language. . ."

Although we can value the opportunity to have Owen's forthright opinions, that is a secondary pleasure in Dalmas's profile. Delmas's obvious goal—one which he achieves with conviction in an admirably compacted study, is to give readers a rounded portrait of the writer, his boyhood country, the local color of people, landscapes,—all the associations that have been instrumental in the make up of Guy Owen as a man, and as a writer.

The Pierce essay and the profile on Owen make this issue of St. Andrews Review one of particular and abiding interest. For the record, there's also an essay by Ezra Pound; a number of poems, and book reviews.

Individual copies of St. Andrews Review at $2 each are available from St. Andrews Presbyterian College, Laurinburg, N.C. 28352, or by subscription at $4 per year.

Correction

In the article on farmer-writer Tom Forbes appearing in last Sunday's paper, the title of his to be published novel was incorrectly listed at one point in the text as "A Place In The Sun." The correct title, as listed in the overline and in the photo caption, is "A Place In The Mud."

In telling the story of the life and death of Terry Dunn, Judith Rossner focuses on the temptations and problems of a young woman of today alone in a big city where there are opportunities for a way of life that is different. Terry Dunn is a young attractive schoolteacher, educated in parochial school, from a respectable family—the kind of girl you don't notice very much, the kind who seems to have everything under control. . . until one New Year's Eve when she is murdered. The other world of Terry Dunn is quite the opposite. It is a life that relieves the boredom of work or dispels the chill of solitude, a life where you can have intimate relations with strangers, where "Mr. Goodbar," the right bar, is always the next one—the final escape from another restless night at home. The men in LOOKING FOR MR. GOODBAR are Eli-Alli, a Jewish divorced father; James, an Irish lawyer; Tony, an employee at a parking garage; and Gary, a drifter. Judith Rossner's novel evokes all the power and tension of such best sellers as THE COLLECTOR and IN COLD BLOOD.

IN HOW TO BE YOUR BEST FRIEND, Mildred Newman and Bernard Berkowitz shared with their readers the wisdom of their years of psychoanalytic practice, thus helping millions of people discover a new and satisfying way to feel about themselves. Now in their new book, HOW TO BE AWAKE AND ALIVE, they use that wisdom to show how those ideas, prejudices and fears that developed when we were young can prevent us from achieving happiness today. Including many intriguing illustrations from their extensive practice, these authors have created a deeper, more personal book that can guide readers to a life that is Awake and Alive.

Out of a need to work through her own problems with middle age, Janet Harris has written a truly optimistic, informative book on what middle age represents for American women who find themselves unprepared for the newfound freedom and independence thrust upon them by middle age and the changing status of women. THE PRIME OF MS. AMERICA does not whitewash or ignore any of the problems of aging. "Married or single," says Ms. Harris, "the middle-aged woman must integrate an alert mind with an aging body, must learn to stop subordinating herself to others, must come to terms with her age and with herself." To these mental and physical problems, she must add the economic worries—difficulty in finding jobs, plus a longer life span coupled with inadequate pension and Social Security plans. Every woman and every man interested in women can benefit from reading THE PRIME OF MS. AMERICA.

New Musical 'Cinderella'

The play, produced by The Lost Colony Children's Theatre, will play each Wednesday and Saturday at 11 a.m. throughout the summer. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

The new version of this classical story has been adapted by "The Lost Colony" choir member Bill Williams, a member of the faculty at the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem. Skip Blount Has Show Herman F. (Skip) Blount, III, grandson of Dr. and Mrs. Edgar B. Jenkins of Greenville, is currently having a one-man show of paintings and sculpted pieces at The Gallery of Villa Teo located in the Continental Restaurant at 1213 East Franklin Street, Chapel Hill.

The artist is a graduate of Rose High School and has had art training at the Penland Haystack Mountain School of Crafts, at Deer Isle, Maine, and in Paris, France.

The paintings are in the Chinese Sumi style and are being displayed in conjunction with a showing of antiques. One of the sculpted works on view is a solid brass panel carved in a manner derived from Mayan hieroglyphics.

The exhibition, sponsored by Mrs. Mary Alice Danziger, is scheduled to remain up through early August.

The works by Blount can be viewed at The Gallery of Villa Teo daily except on Mondays.

Children's Art Now At Mint Museum

"Why I Want Peace," an exhibition of paintings by children, age 14 and under, from many parts of the world, is currently on view through August 17 in the Round Gallery of the Mint Museum of Art.

The artistic accomplishments of children, many of whom have endured extreme hardship and privation, are reflected in these works which were entries in the International Art and Essay Contest sponsored by the Christian Children's Fund, a non-profit international child-care organization.

In these paintings the children have sought to illuminate the theme of "Peace." Their individual expressions on this theme are always interesting, often absorbing, and sometimes deeply moving.

The first prize painting is a work by Wang Hsi Chuan, age 12 of Taiwan. The young artist has chosen bright colors to depict his image of peace.

Raffaele Fusco, age 5 of Italy, second prize winner in the painting contest writes of his work: "There is peace when all children play together. I hope there is peace on the moon and if all the children of the world went there then they would be happy."

This exhibition of work was selected from over 15,000 paintings submitted to the "Peace" contest. The panel of judges was comprised of artists, teachers and museum professionals.

The International Art and Essay Contests of the Christian Children's Foundation was open to children of the CCF-affiliated homes and projects in 55 countries.

Picture Frames As Works Of Art

Before the modern popularity of simple wooden picture frames and the even more recent innovation of self-framed works of art, the making of picture frames was in itself a major art form.

Among the finest examples of frame making are those patiently hand carved by master craftsmen from wood. In many instances, as such frames were made for large pictures to hang in public buildings, museums or in palatial homes, literally hundreds of man hours were required for the execution of a single frame.

With relatively simple tools, frame makers created intricate frames of scrolls, blossoms, leaves, buds, vines, fruit, and tendrils. Since by their very nature such frames were (and are) expensive, most art patrons turned to the less expensive picture frames molded of plaster. Gilded, or painted to resemble wood grain, these frames also reveal the prevailing tastes of 18th and 19th century collectors for ornate picture frames.

A lyrical, accumulative flow of line and detail characterized most picture frames made up to and into the 20th century.

Sometimes, instead of complementing the paintings, frames of excessive richness overwhelmed the more simple beauty of the painting enclosed.

With the rise in esteem and the increasing scarcity of hand crafted frames, prices for exceptionally fine examples in recent decades have skyrocketed, putting such frames themselves into the category of collector's items.

WEATHER MONITOR—This is an artist's rendering of a 50-ton package of electronic gear riding the waves... a prototype of a projected array of 30 buoys. (UPI Photo)

Robot Watch On Weather

By ELDON BARRETT
SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Riding the waves of the Pacific 360 miles west of the mouth of Oregon's Rogue River is a 50-ton package of sophisticated electronic gear monitoring the sky above and the sea below. Anchored in 1,875 fathoms, this device is the prototype of a projected array of 30 operational buoys which the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration hopes to deploy off the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, in the Gulf of Mexico and around the Hawaiian Islands during the next five years if Congress gives its okay.

The prototype, which was towed to its station the first week of July, has a disk-shaped hull, is topped by a tall mast, carries a three-year supply of batteries and is equipped with transmitting gear and meteorological and oceanographic sensors which will measure wind speed and direction, barometric pressure, air temperature, surface wave height and period and water temperatures at seven depths.

The buoy is transmitting data automatically by radio to Coast Guard shore communications systems in San Francisco. This information is sent on to Miami which transmits it to computers in the National Weather Service center in Suitland, Md. There it is incorporated into the national weather forecasting system. One unusual feature of the buoy is that it can be interrogated. The questions it answers are processed within 15 minutes.

The buoy planted off the Oregon coast is the culmination of several tests in the gulfs of Alaska and Mexico and off the East Coast. It is constructed to withstand winds of 150 knots, waves of 60 feet and currents of six knots. It is built to operate a year without maintenance.

The first batch of buoys in the new system will be established in the Pacific, where much of the weather affecting the United States is formed and where, because of a lack of observations, some weather systems arrive undetected.

Later other buoys will be planted in the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico.

The prototype cost about $900,000. Approximately $9 million has been approved for the Pacific phase of the project.

On the Atlantic Coast and in the Gulf of Mexico, the buoys are expected to be of considerable aid in keeping track of hurricanes.

But the backers of the system envision more than weather forecasting.

Depletion of oil and other mineral reserves have stimulated greater efforts to find resources in the oceans and better weather monitoring is required to protect and assist in these efforts. The first buoy will begin to meet the need for environmental monitoring of the marine leg of the Alaskan pipeline system. Data from the buoys also will contribute to the design of environmentally safe offshore facilities such as deep water ports, power plants and airports.

Taxes Take No Vacation

CHICAGO (UPI) — Taxes take no vacation, even during vacation time.

Commerce Clearing House gives the following figures: On the sales tax front, Connecticut's rate, which last year had been lowered from 6.5 to 6 per cent, proved to be short-lived; it was increased from 6 to 7 per cent effective April 1 of this year.

Motoring to one's favorite vacation spa is also costlier in several widely separated states. Arizona boosted its gasoline tax per gallon from 7 to 8 cents effective last Sept. 1st; Hawaii upped its rate through June 30, 1976 from 5 to 8.5 cents a gallon; Massachusetts went from 7.5 to 8.5 cents through June 30, 1980; and Minnesota raised its tax from 7 to 9 cents.

Still other states hiking their petrol tax are Montana from 7 to 7.75 cents; Pennsylvania, from 8 to 9 cents; Rhode Island from 8 to 10 cents; and South Dakota, from 7 to 8 cents until July 1, 1976.

Maryland smokers will pay four cents more in tax per pack of cigarettes (from 6 to 10 cents); Massachusetts has boosted its tax per pack a nickel to 21 cents through June 30, 1980, while Rhode Island has hiked its tax from 13 to 18 cents.

Also, New Hampshire's 42 per cent tax on tobacco products has been replaced by a tax on cigarettes of 12 cents a pack.

Travelers should also note CCH said that they will face local sales, cigarette and gasoline levies in many areas as well as admissions, pari-mutuel and alcoholic beverage taxes imposed in many states.

These taxes are in addition to the federal cigarette and gasoline taxes.

Too Many Mighty Oaks Do Not A Forest Make

By DAVID A. MILNE
HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The devastation the gypsy moth and oak leaf roller cause in Pennsylvania's forests may not be such a bad thing after all. The tree cutters and resort owners who make money from the woodlands don't think so, of course.

The oak leaf roller, a small green caterpillar, has killed oak trees covering 100,000 mountaintop acres, and most of the trees cannot be salvaged for commercial use.

And while the voracious gypsy moth caterpillar has not devastated whole forests in the Pocono Mountains, it has killed millions of oak and other hard and soft wood trees.

But a few persons who don't measure the value of a forest in terms of board feet of lumber or tons of paper pulp — and even a few who do — say the insect damage has in many ways been beneficial.

Pennsylvania's forests are in trouble today because of the extensive logging that took place 65 to 100 years ago, says Sam Cobb, director of the Bureau of Forestry in the Department of Environmental Resources.

After the loggers took most of the virgin white pine, hickory, maple, beech, cherry and oak, the forests came back almost exclusively in oak and most of the trees are the same age, he said.

Conditions became perfect for insect damage.

Part of Cobb's job is to manage the state forests so they produce high quality lumber, so it is easy to understand why Cobb thinks that way.

But there are others — game biologists and naturalists in particular — who can see benefits even in this vast destruction.

Paul Wiegman, a naturalist for the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy, a private conservation group, said that mature or maturing forests such as exist in Pennsylvania are comparatively sterile. The tall trees produce acorns and other nuts that provide food for deer, turkey and other animals, but they also shade the forest floor and prevent the growth of plants that give wildlife cover and year-round food sources, he said.

But when vast areas of a forest are burned out or killed by insects, sunlight reaches the ground and wildflowers, mountain laurel, blueberries, huckleberries, ferns and different trees such as aspen and birch can grow.

This gives wildlife more food and cover and it gives scientists a chance to study what happens when a forest renews itself, Wiegman said.

"Now we can get information about the reasons why some of the forest stands and game populations exist as they are today," said Dr. James Lindzey, director of the Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at Penn State.

"By watching these areas and determining what happens to the plant and animal complement, we can get an idea of the kinds of management that would duplicate this in the rest of the forests.

"And by evaluating the ecological impact of the new growth that results, we can learn what we have to do to forest areas to get what we want out of them."

Jerry Hassinger, a biologist with DER, said he is studying what is happening to different wildlife species in the oak leaf roller areas. Deer should benefit, he said, because there will be more browse. The extra cover will help rabbits, song birds and rodents and predators such as hawks and fox that feed on them, he said.

But Hassinger said that ruffed grouse may not come back in the numbers some people hope for.

"Grouse tend to depend on aspen buds for winter food, and so far, there is no indication that aspen will grow heavily in these areas because there are few existing trees to provide seeds," he said.

Although wild turkeys depend heavily on acorns and other nuts, they may not suffer because of the loss of the oak trees, Hassinger said.

Most of the dead trees are on the ridge tops, he said, and only a few of the trees on the slopes and in the valleys were killed, so there is still plenty of food available.

Also, he said, turkeys bring their broods into open areas to feed on insects, so in that sense, the new open areas could be beneficial.

Cobb said the bureau is still studying what should be done in the oak leaf roller area. Alternatives range from total replanting with commercially desirable trees — which would be very expensive — to doing nothing at all, he said.

So far, the only planting that has been done is along roads and streams.

Find Chinese Friendly, Honest And Selfless; Militancy, Too

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

PEKING (AP) — Two young Americans struggled clumsily with chop sticks in the second floor dining room of the modernistic Peking Hotel and groped for an insight to this vast country of 900 million people — one-fourth of the world's population.

"They are beautiful," said Terry Porter, 23, of Wharton, Tex. "They don't have much by our standards but they all seem happy. If I didn't have some problems to clear up back home, I wouldn't mind living here for a while."

"But their life is so drab," said Roland Carter, 28, of Houston. "They all dress alike, the men and women both, with those blue and gray Mao jackets. They are pleasant enough but they seem so programmed. There seems to be no individuality or incentive to their lives."

Here were two men of similar cultures from the same Texas — and with a common competitive aim — to pole-vault in the 1976 Olympics. They spent two weeks getting a close look at the People's Republic of China, but they saw through different eyes.

"Achievement is the name of the game in this world," Carter argued. "I am reading a book about that. Man was put on earth to strive and achieve. I admire what the Chinese have done for the people generally but I think their lives are too patent. They are denied enterprise. All their efforts are funneled into the state."

"But," interceded Porter. "They have managed to keep 900 million people fed and clothed. That's something in itself when you consider how many people are starving in India and Africa and idle in the big Western countries like Britain and the United States."

Such discussions have been commonplace among Americans who have visited China this year. They certainly were among the 94 Americans — 64 members of a track and field team, coaches, managers, physicians and other official personnel — who visited Canton, Shanghai and Peking recently at the invitation of the Chinese.

Almost unanimously, the visitors were impressed by what they saw — masses turning red clay beds into green farmlands, once rusting factories into bustling enterprises, and cities which once reeked with dope peddlers and prostitution into metropolises of respectability.

"I can't get over how friendly everyone is," said Jane Frederick of Goleta, Calif., a high jumper whose father is a retired professor of political science at the University of California. "It's so different than the trip we made to the Soviet Union. The people there seemed so grim. I notice so many children playing in the streets here. I never saw that in Russia." The Americans found an absence of red tape and a seemingly genuine warmth and hospitality in all of the three cities they visited. People lined the sidewalks and formed human corridors outside the stadiums, smiling and clapping as the visitors entered and disembarked from their buses.

Never during the trip did the Americans experience a feeling of being under surveillance. Army men, in their loose-fitting green uniforms, could be seen strolling the streets but few wore guns. They never presented themselves as a barrier, not even at the border where the group changed from a Hong Kong train to a clean, air-conditioned streamliner for Canton.

In Canton, a city of 2.5 million, the visitors were astounded to see the main streets swarming with bicycles, thousands of them as thick as ants. They appeared to have right-of-way over the few buses and automobiles, which moved slowly through the morass only because the drivers kept their thumbs on constantly honking horns.

"There are 500,000 bicycles in Canton — one for about every five people," a guide explained politely. "It is our main means of transportation. No one is allowed to own an automobile — only the government for official business and taxicabs."

For the Chinese, a shiny bike is like an automobile to an American. A good one costs $75, about twice the average monthly salary of a worker or farmer.

Hundreds of the bicycles are parked at shopping centers or at the big stadiums where athletic events take place.

"Lock them? No, there is no need to lock them," the guide replied to an obvious question. "No one would ever think of riding away on another's bicycle."

China prides itself on the absence of crime. One sees no beggars or derelicts on the streets. During their two weeks in the country, the Americans saw thousands of Chinese but never a drunk or disorderly person.

Shanghai once was the sin capital of the Orient. Dens of iniquity beckoned sailors and vagabonds. Prostitution thrived. Slave peddlers, dope merchants and smugglers operated openly. Today the city of 10 million is one of the cleanest and most sophisticated in the world.

The U.S. entourage visited a kindergarten school in Shanghai where deaf and mute children of pre-school age were being treated with acupuncture.

Nurses with the long, sharp needles entered the room and signaled to the tykes to bend their heads over their desks. They responded in unison. Then the needles were applied. There wasn't a single whimper.

Food Co-Op Is Launched

SAN BRUNO, Calif. (AP) — About 2½ years ago Pat Coates and her daughter, Sandi Piccini, got interested in doing something about the high cost of food. To sidestep the consumer traps they feel are set by the big food conglomerates, they started a modest food co-operative which they operated out of their homes.

It started with 17 families and has reached its goal of 34.

As the food co-op blossomed several artists contacted the women and requested that they promote their art works in addition to handling food. Soon the home was inadequate for the operation. Now they are installed in a nondescript South San Francisco warehouse. Dozens of artists use their services. In addition to the paintings there are sculptures, antique furniture and even an aquarium.

In consumer circles they have become such experts in handling food cooperatives, that they have become consultants for other groups who want to get into that money-saving business.

MOTHER LIQUOR IS A SUGAR TERM
NEW YORK (AP) — It isn't mother's milk, tiger's milk, or that fabled milk of human kindness. In the sugar industry "mother liquor" is the syrup remaining after a quantity of sugar syrup has been processed and about one half of the sugar forms crystals. Then the whole amount is dropped and the "mother liquor" spun off in a centrifuge. This first result produces the whitest sugar.

North Edges South To Extend Series Lead

DETERMINATION—Mike Lane of Wilson Fike and the South sets his sights goalward in last night's Boys' Home Bowl Game at Ficklen Stadium. As determined

Andre Sessoms of Ahsokie dove over from the one with 6:03 left in the second quarter giving the North its only score of the game and a 6-0 win over the South in the 13th annual Boys Home All-Star game, last night.
A bit of tradition was broken last night. In the two previous years, there had been a heavy rainstorm just prior to game time. But last night, a better night could not have been asked for. The weather was beautiful. But as far as offense was concerned, well, that was another story.

The North met up with a tough South defense and could only grind out 80 yards rushing and 45 passing. The longest North run of the night was by Joe Moore, a 14-yard gain. The South ran into an equally stiff North defense and only picked up 78 yards. The South passing game was worse than nothing losing 14 yards and having two passes intercepted.

The South had two opportunities to capitalize on breaks in the first quarter as they got the ball inside the North 50 the first two times they touched the ball. But both times, the North forced a turnover on fourth down.
Until the scoring drive, the North's deepest penetration was to the South 48. The South sustained a drive at the beginning of the second half that went down to the North six where a fourth-down fumble killed the effort.

After an exchange of punts in the first quarter, the North got possession backed up near its goal line on the eight. A pair of losses backed them further to the one and the North had to punt from its three. The South took over on its 43.
From there, New Bern's Dennis Stilley passed to Willie Brown for nine and Steve Cloninger ran up the middle for seven. Brown added a nine yard run for a first down on the North 18. Three plays later the South had a first down on the 15 but eight-yard losses set the South back to the 16 and a fumble on fourth down ended the drive at the 32.
The North could not do anything and had to kick but got the ball back four plays later on a punt. After a penalty moved the North back five yards, Joe Moore (Mt. Airy) carried twice for ten yards and a play later rushed to the South 26. Cecil Oliver moved the North to the 22 with a four-yard gain and Dean Gilliam of Elkin threw to Holmes' Gerald Hall to the one. Sessoms slanted over his right tackle for the score. The PAT attempt was wide.

The North put together another drive on their next possession moving to the South 19 before time ran out in the half. Gilliam put the North there with a 13-yard pass to Hall.

The South took the second-half kickoff and sustained its longest drive of the game. From the 28 Skip Kelley (Ashbrook) picked up three and on second down, Stilley broke loose down the left sideline for 35 yards, the longest run of the night. A penalty helped the South pick up five and on third and six at the North 30. Mike Lane of Wilson Fike squirmed up the middle for 12 and a first down on the 18. Kelley and Stilley moved the South five yards closer and a four yard gain by Brown on across got the South to the nine. Scott Cloninger of Lincolnton picked up the first down cracking up the middle for four. But the drive ended there as four plays later, Stilley fumbled giving the ball to the North.

After that, the game was a flip-flop battle. Neither team held the ball more than four downs at a stretch except when the North fumbled at the South 43 and the South's Billy Ray Diggs recovered.
On the next play, James Royster intercepted a long pass on the North 23. The North ran off three plays and then had to punt. The South got off only two plays before time ran out.

Sessoms was the game's leading rusher picking up 33 yards in 12 carries. Lane rushed for 18 in three trips for the South. Sessoms was also named the game's Most Outstanding Back. J.W. Vinson of North Duplin was named the Most Outstanding Lineman. Vinson has signed a grant with East Carolina.

Player Problems For Mets, Packers

CHICAGO (AP) — The New York Mets said Saturday they are offering Cleon Jones his unconditional release, thereby backing Manager Yogi Berra in his dispute with the former All-Star outfielder.
The latest problem involving Jones arose June 18, in a game against the Atlanta Braves in New York. Berra used him as a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning and told him to play left field in the eighth. Jones refused and stalked out of the dugout.

Last Tuesday, the Mets advised Jones he was under suspension. The club announced it publicly on Friday and the Major League Baseball Players' Association responded by filing a grievance in Jones' behalf. That grievance was to be heard in arbitration next Monday in St. Louis, the Mets' next stop on their current road trip.

But with the announcement of his release, the Mets also lifted the suspension and the hearing is now expected to be canceled.

In a statement by General Manager Joe McDonald, the Mets said: "Having exhausted all avenues in attempting to reconcile this problem, we are offering Cleon Jones his unconditional release. We see nothing to be gained in going into the arbitration proceedings. Regardless of the result, the problem would not be resolved."

"We have no desire to hurt anyone," McDonald's statement continued. "The suspension is being lifted. Cleon will be paid in full (including the days he was under suspension). We feel another club will sign him and we wish him well."

Jones did not accompany the team to Chicago and was unavailable for comment.

"I'm glad it's over. I'm relieved. I feel I did the right thing," said Berra, who had issued a him-or-me ultimatum to the club last week during a series of meetings involving himself, Jones, McDonald and Mets board chairman M. Donald Grant.

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers' personnel problems continued Saturday when Coach Bart Starr disclosed that cornerback Ken Ellis had left training camp, apparently in a contract dispute.

"I assume it is because we haven't been able to get together on a contract for 1975," Starr said. "Other than that, I have nothing further to say about it at this point."

Under the option clause of his old contract, Ellis, a five-year regular, may play for no National Football League team other than the Packers this season. He would become a free agent if he does not sign a new contract by next May 1.

The Packers have lost two other players of all-pro caliber since Tuesday. Linebacker Ted Hendricks, through his agent, rejected the Packers' contract offer, and guard Gale Gillingham, a mainstay in the line since 1966, announced his retirement.

Billingham Says Dodgers Dead

By NORM CLARKE

AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jack Billingham thinks the Cincinnati Reds have slammed the coffin lid on the defending National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers.

"They've got to feel it's going to take a miracle now," said Billingham, after he beat the Dodgers 5-3 Saturday before a national television audience.

The triumph, powered by Pete Rose's four hits, three runs scored and one run batted in, gave the Reds their widest West Division lead of the year, a commanding 13½-game bulge.

"I don't see how they can do it. It would take a complete collapse on our part and that's not going to happen," continued Billingham.

But Dodgers' Manager Walter Alton refused to concede anything to the Reds. "I don't think anybody's gonna play dead," he said.

"A win was the only thing on my mind," added Billingham, a tall right-hander, who was let go by the Dodgers, his first major league team, in 1969 expansion draft.

Ravly Eastwick came on to provide that win with last-out relief in blazing style, striking out pinch-hitter Ken McMullen on three straight pitches with two men on base.

"I just don't feel any pressure in that kind of a situation," said Eastwick. "The pressure's on the batter."

Eastwick was credited with a save, his ninth of the season and his sixth in his last nine appearances.

The victory allowed the Reds to even their season series with the Dodgers at 5-5. It was Cincinnati's 41st victory in 51 home games.

Billingham boosted his record to 6-0 at Riverfront Stadium for the season and stands 9-10 lifetime against his former Dodger teammates.

The Reds have not had a complete game in 42 outings, but this was their 32nd come-from-behind victory of the year and it came before a crowd of 50,236.

Rose's four hits gave him 135 for the season and boosted his batting average to .318.

Seahawks Fly Over ECU

The University of North Carolina Wilmington Seahawks greeted East Carolina University with four runs in the first inning, and went on to record a 6-4 victory over the Pirates Saturday afternoon.

The contest, played at Harrington Field, saw the 'Hawks in control the entire afternoon. Twice the Bucs came back within two runs, at 4-2, and then at the final mark, 6-4, but they were unable to pull it out of the fire.

Twice also, the Bucs were shut off with the bases loaded, as they left 10 men on base in the game, eight of them in a three-inning span. Wilmington also left 10 stranded, but scattered them out more.

Those men left standing by the Bucs were the fateful ones, however. In one of those innings, they were held scoreless, while they picked up their four in two frames leaving two in one of them and three in the other. The victory raised the Wilmington record to 14-12 and settled them into second place in the league standings. East Carolina fell off to 12-13, and into fourth place.

Wilmington jumped ahead with four runs in the first. Bobby Schupp led off with a walk and stole second. With one down, Jerry Yandrick lined a hit into left, scoring Schupp. Randy Ourt walked and after a strikeout, Swain Smith reached on an infield hit that nearly was turned into a force play but found the only Buc with a chance at a play out of position.

Mike Good followed with a single to left, scoring Yandrick, and a follow-up hit by Bobby Hollins brought in both Ourt and Smith.

Wilmington's other two runs came in the seventh after the Bucs had picked up a pair. Ourt reached on an infield hit and stole second. Then, after two were out, Mike Good ripped his second straight double into center, driving in Ourt. Courtesy wild pitch scored Smith, but after Card walked to reload the sacks, a foul fly ended it, and the Bucs never got another base runner.

The Pirates return to action on Monday as they open the final week of the regular season. They will host Methodist on Monday at Harrington Field at 7:30 p.m.

P-Plaza, College View Take Ruth Wins; Cox Realty Forfeits

Pitt Plaza and Graniteers took wins in the Prep Babe Ruth League games yesterday afternoon, while College View edged Planters Bank in the older Babe Ruth division. Pitt Plaza defeated Auto Specialty, 6-5, the Graniteers took a forfeit win over Jeanette Cox Realty, and College View nudged Planters Bank, 5-4.

In the prep division, Pitt Plaza led 6-2 going into the seventh inning when Auto Specialty made the game close. William Sneed led off with a walk and moved up on a sacrifice bunt by Sammy Pierce. Ashley Taylor was hit by a pitch, and both he and Sneed moved up when Krage Gardiner walked to load the bases. White singled to score Sneed and move Taylor to third. Taylor and Gardiner scored on wild pitches. White also moved around, but was nailed at the plate on an infield out to kill the final rally.

Cox Realty scored four runs in the first inning by sending ten men to the plate and collecting only three hits. Graniteers countered with a run in the third when Eddie Moya was forced home on a bases-loaded walk to Charles Daise. They added two more in the fourth and had runners on second and third when Cox Realty inserted an illegal pitcher into the game. The contest was ended at that point.

In the 14-15 age division, College View scored its winning runs in the first inning. H.L.

Austin singled, Ricky West walked, and Lenzy Winstead doubled them both home. Marshall Crumpler walked, and David Lowe rapped into a fielder's choice which the pitcher errored Winstead and Crumpler home, and allowed Lowe to reach third. He scored on a third basemen's error.

Planters Bank scored all their runs when Perry Worthington led off the sixth when he reached on an error and was wild pitched to second. Blair Smith singled Worthington to third, and Worthington scored on Jim Kernan's single. Al Alston singled to score Smith and move Kernan to second. Micah Dixon's double to left scored Kernan and Alston, but Dixon later was cut down attempting to tie the game.

ANAHEIM (AP) — Eric Soderholm and Danny Thompson hit two-run singles in the eighth inning to vault the Minnesota Twins to a 9-4 victory over the California Angels Saturday in the first game of a two-night doubleheader.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Dick Allen drove in three runs with a pair of two-out singles and the Philadelphia Phillies scored a 9-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday night.

The triumph was the Phils' eighth in 11 games since the All-Star break and moved them within four games of first-place Pittsburgh in the National League East.

ATLANTA (AP) — John Grubb drilled a two-run homer Saturday night, guiding the San Diego Padres to a 4-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Grubb, who scored San Diego's opening run in the third inning, slammed his third homer of the season down the right field line in the fifth inning after pitcher Jerry Johnson had doubled off loser Carl Morton, 11-11.

Shaw Seeks Gold In Cali

By FRED ROTHENBERG

AP Sports Writer

Cali, Colombia (AP) — Tim Shaw, his third gold medal taken away because of a disqualification, went after No. 3 again Saturday night on the next-to-the-last day of the World Aquatics Championships.

Shaw swam third leg on the ill-fated men's 800-meter freestyle relay, which set an apparent world record but was disqualified from both the new mark and the gold medal because Bruce Furniss left the starting blocks before Shaw touched the wall. Saturday night he'll be mining gold by himself in the 1,500-meter event, and according to swimming experts that's just how he'll finish—alone.

Brian Goodell of Mission Viejo, Calif., was expected to be the only swimmer on the same last lap when Shaw touches home. "Brian will keep Tim honest in the 1,500," said Ron Ballatore, coach of the American men's swimming team that has won four gold medals, two by Shaw in the 200 and 400 freestyle. Tiny Hungary ranks second in men's swimming gold medals with three, two of which were won by Andreas Hargitay in the 200 and 400 individual medley.

Over-all in these aquatic games, which bring together competitors in swimming, diving, water polo and synchronized swimming, the United States has 10 gold, six silver and seven bronze medals while East Germany is second with eight gold, six silver and four bronze.

Shaw, who held the world record in the 1,500 with a time of 15:20.91, Goodall and four other American swimmers were in the finals of three individual swimming events Saturday night. The United States also qualified a foursome for the women's 800-meter freestyle relay.

Billy Forrester of Jacksonville, Fla., went after his second gold medal of these games when he joined Greg Jagenburg of West Chester, Pa., for the finals of the 200 butterfly. Jagenburg and Forrester finished one-two in Saturday morning's Nastase kicked off his left shoe to complain about a foot fault against him.

Rickey, seeded No. 10, waited as the third-seeded Nastase, who is notorious for on-court antics, slowly put his shoe on again as he talked to the linesman and the crowd.

Rickey, from San Angelo, Tex., became angry, picked up his gear and stalked off the court.

"I'm not going to take that stuff," said Rickey as he sat by the players' trailer. "He has done that 49,000 times and they haven't called him on it. I didn't default, he did."

Rickey also said that Nastase used stalling tactics on him in Paris in 1971 and in Tucson against Australian Ken Rosewall, with Rosewall returning to the court and losing.

Shirley Babashoff of Fountain Valley, Calif., was expected to lead the Americans' 800-meter relay team to a gold medal, which would be her third of the competition. She already has won the 200 and 400 freestyles.

Miss Babashoff qualified fourth Saturday morning for the 800 freestyle, behind American record holder Heather Greenwood of Fresno, Calif., who qualified first.

Finals in the 800 are set for Sunday night.

Nastase Defaults

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ilie Nastase defaulted his quarter-final match with Cliff Richey Saturday in the $100,000 Washington Star International Tennis Tournament after being disqualified for failing to resume play when ordered to by the referee.

The disqualification came after an uproar which saw an irate Richey storm off the court, accusing his opponent of delaying tactics and Nastase argue over a foot fault.

Later, top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina joined Richey in the semifinals of the $100,000 tournament Sunday by defeating Jaime Filloil of Chile 6-2, 6-1.

Two other quarter-final matches were scheduled Saturday night.

The finals of the tournament will be played Monday night with the winner earning $16,000 and a 1975 automobile.

After taking the first set 7-6, Rickey led 6-5 and was at match point when Romanian Nastase kicked off his left shoe to complain about a foot fault against him.

Rickey, seeded No. 10, waited as the third-seeded Nastase, who is notorious for on-court antics, slowly put his shoe on again as he talked to the linesman and the crowd.

Rickey, from San Angelo, Tex., became angry, picked up his gear and stalked off the court.

"I'm not going to take that stuff," said Rickey as he sat by the players' trailer. "He has done that 49,000 times and they haven't called him on it. I didn't default, he did."

Rickey also said that Nastase used stalling tactics on him in Paris in 1971 and in Tucson against Australian Ken Rosewall, with Rosewall returning to the court and losing.

Cautious Jack Falls Into Tie With Gay Brewer

By BOB GREEN

AP Golf Writer

ILE NICKLAUS, Que. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus backed off from a four-foot, par-saving putt, missed it and dropped back into a tie with Gay Brewer for the third-round lead Saturday in the $200,000 Canadian Open Golf Tournament.

Nicklaus, seeking his fourth title of the season, and the 43-year-old Brewer matched rounds of par 70 over the windy, 6,628-yard Royal Montreal Golf Club course and had totals of 206, four under par.

They'd been tied at the end of the second round, but Nicklaus led through most of Saturday's play—at times by as much as two strokes.

The lapse on the 18th hole—it was there that he backed off when a great, happy cry went up from the gallery around a nearby green—cost him dearly.

"I should have made the putt," said Nicklaus, who has never won this Canadian national championship.

The big yell that caused him to back off was the crowd reaction to Tom Weiskopf's 18-foot putt for a par on the 17th.

It was, he said, the key to a scrambling round of 68 that lifted him to within a single stroke of the top at 207.

BUNN—Louisburg College summer baseball coach Sam White had been moaning recently that the Hurricanes "hadn't been playing bad ball, but just hadn't been getting any breaks."

The Hurricanes got their breaks Friday in a North Carolina Collegiate Summer Baseball League game in stopping East Carolina University 7-6. The win snapped a seven-game losing streak for Louisburg and a three-game win streak for the Pirates.

With the pace that was set in the first four innings one would have believed the game would have been over by dark, which, seeing the quality of the field lights, would have been a blessing. East Carolina jumped on Louisburg starter William Woolard for four runs in the first inning.

Singles by Geoff Beaton and Robert Brinkley plus a walk to Alan Smith loaded the bases with one out. Howard McCullough walked to force in a run and Addison Bass singled to score another. On the play, the rightfielder booted the ball, allowing another run to score, then threw wildly over third on the relay, allowing the fourth tally.

Pirate starter Joe Heavner held the normally heavy-hitting Hurricanes in check until the fourth, when one run was pushed across. Another was scored in the fifth when Charlie Stevens atoned for his mistake by hitting the first pitch of the inning into a field beyond the leftfield fence. Heavner yielded another in the sixth, and left with two runners on in favor of Bob Feeney, who ended the inning with no further damage.

Two doubles and a pair of singles put Louisburg over the top, 6-4, in the seventh, while Woolard was still holding the Pirates in check.

In the ninth, the long-dormant Pirates sprang back to life. With one out, a walk to Glenn Card and a single by Ken Gentry put the tying runs on. After Eddie Lawing fanned, Beaton's grounder to third was mishandled, then relayed wildly to first, allowing Card to score from second and Gentry to move to third. Steve Bryant delivered a clutch single for the Pirates here. Kelly Miller, the Hurricane second-baseman, made a fine stop on the ball to keep it in the infield, but his off-balance throw couldn't nail the speedy Bryant. Gentry scored on the play.

Louisburg had belted 16 hits at this point, but it took a sacrifice fly to end the game. Feeney nailed David Warrick to open the ninth. One out later, Tom Warrick singled him to second. A walk to Miller loaded the bases but a fly to left by Craig Weisner ended the struggle. The walk and fly were hit off the third Pirate pitcher, Dean Reavis.

Louisburg got its breaks in the game, and earned them every one. Woolard yielded seven hits, but struck out eight, including five of his last nine outs. The slightly-built Miller had three hits and three runs batted in.

East Carolina, which beat Louisburg Thursday night in 11 innings, couldn't make the magic work twice in a row. Gentry and Bryant had a pair of hits each for the Pirates. The Pirates committed but two errors, but the Louisburg bats were much more damaging.

Technically, the win saved Louisburg from extinction in the race for first place in the league standings. Now 9-17, any combination of a win by UNC or a loss by the Hurricanes will eliminate them.

East Carolina, with its record at 12-12, fell into a tie for third place with Methodist. The Pirates were to host UNC-Wilmington Saturday at Harrington Field.

McGee Addresses Boys Home Dinner

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Head Football coach at Duke University, Mike McGee, addressed the players and coaches of the 13th annual Boys Home All-Star game Friday night speaking on the subject of playing and living by the rules.

"Unless you play by the rules," McGee said, "You can't win. You will lose your pride as a man if you break rules. Quitters and rule-breakers are penalized."

McGee, a former East Carolina football coach spoke at the pregame banquet for the players Friday night at the Candlewick Inn. McGee coached at ECU in 1970 for one year then went to Duke the following season. McGee had starred for Duke football in the early '60's.

"It's typical for coaches to say 'This is the way to get things done. But I won't do it. I would like to share with you one thing that I think is important. That is, that you have an unselfish attitude to your team. This is Duke football-player philosophy.'"

McGee went on to relate a story about Ernie Jackson, an All-America at Duke who went on to the pro ranks. At the time McGee went to Duke, there were only five running backs of squad. The number had been reduced because of injuries. Jackson was currently a defensive halfback.

Jackson had a chance to become an All-American on defense but McGee asked him to become a running back and go both ways. Jackson told McGee, "If it's good for the team it's good for Ernie Jackson," when he realized his chance at stardom might vanish.

As it turned out, Jackson made the AP, UPI and Sports Illustrated All-America teams that year.

McGee spoke of the Marshall

INSURANCE
Hines Agency, Inc.

football team to illustrate his topic. "I had the honor of being in the last game a great team played—Marshall." Their coaches, players and a few fans were killed in a plane crash on the return home from the game here. McGee told the 60 players what then ECU captain George Wheeler said. "He said, 'They were the most disciplined team we ever played against. They hit hard but they played clean.' There's a lesson in George's comment," McGee said. "Marshall adhered to the rules and unless one plays by the rules can't win. I encourage you all to dedicate yourselves to something greater."

After McGee's talk, the Jaycees presented plaques to each of the players and coaches.

Expos Take Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Pete Mangual and Pete Mackanin drove in fourth-inning runs to break a tie and give the Montreal Expos a 5-2 victory Saturday over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Pirates got a second-inning run on Willie Stargell's single and Art Howe's double, but the Expos tied it in the third on Mangual's triple to right-center and Jose Morales' single.

Kaat Wins 15th

OAKLAND (AP)—Jim Kaat of the Chicago White Sox became the major league's first 15-game winner this season, riding Bucky Dent's three-run homer in the eighth inning to a 5-2 victory over the Oakland A's Saturday.

Kaat, 15-7, checked the A's on five hits including Phil Garner's fifth home run of the season in the third inning and Gene Tenace's 16th of the year in the fifth. He struck out five batters and walked one.

Rollie Fingers, 6-5, who replaced starter Dick Bosman at the start of the seventh inning, gave up Jorge Orta's double to start the eighth and walked Pat Kelly with two away before Dent crashed his second homer of the season over the right field fence.

The White Sox added a run in the ninth when Ken Henderson, Bill Melton and Nyls Nyman singled. They got their first run in the first inning. Kelly doubled, continued to third as right fielder Reggie Jackson bobbled the ball and scored on Dent's sacrifice fly.

Cuellar 1-Hits Milw. Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Baltimore's Mike Cuellar didn't need the help—but the Milwaukee Brewers made sure he got it anyway.

Cuellar, 10-6, pitched no-hit baseball for six innings Saturday and finished with his second one-hitter of the season, the other one on May 31 against California when he allowed only a third-inning single by the Angels' Bruce Bochte.

Cuellar's teammates capitalized on five Milwaukee errors—three in the fourth inning—and defeated the Brewers 4-0.

Jones Equals 9.9

BOSTON (AP)—Reggie Jones, a 21-year-old sprinter from Saginaw, Mich., equalled the world record for the 100-meter dash with a 9.9 second clocking at a track meet here Saturday.

Jones, running for the Philadelphia Pioneer Track Club, said, "All I had to do was place. No one expected me to win."

Finishing behind Jones were Charlie Wells, at 10.0, and Houston McTeer, co-holder of the world's record for 100 yards.

The meet was held at Boston University Field and sponsored by the Opportunity Industrialization Centers.

Tribe Aces Tigs

DETROIT (AP)—Rookie Dennis Eckersley fired a seven-hitter while Frank Duffy and Rico Carty drove in two runs apiece to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 6-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers Saturday.

Eckersley, a 20-year-old right-hander, raised his record to 7-3 and was in command all the way in gaining his second shutout. He struck out 10 Tigers.

"Today Scott hit a good pitch, a damned good pitch," he said. "As a matter of fact, if he didn't hit it, it probably would have bounced in front of the plate. But 'Boomer' has been hot. Only a hitter in a hot streak could have hit that pitch."

"He had better velocity than usual and a real tough motion," Hendricks said. "When the shadows came, it was really tough picking up the ball with that motion. It was even tough catching him...he hung a few screwballs early so we went to the fast ball and curve and didn't need the screwball again."

Homers Power Greenville To District Title, 9-2

ROANOKE RAPIDS—Mike Pollard and Shelton Wilson had two hits each and Ketter Barnes pitched a three-hitter as the Greenville North State Little League All-Stars beat Southern Pines, 9-2 for the district title, Friday.

Barnes, who hit a home run in the first game of the tournament to win it for Greenville, rapped another one out Friday. This time it gave Greenville a 3-0 lead. Barnes struck out 12 and walked two. His teammates helped him getting eight hits, three were homers.

Greenville took a big lead in the first getting four runs. Scott Galloway walked and Pollard singled. Both scored on Barnes's homer. One out later, Grant Stackhouse followed with a home run.

Teddy Gartman led off the second with a single for Greenville and a wild pitch put him on second. Wilson brought him around with a home run. Larry Talbert kept the rally going with a single and Galloway walked. Pollard doubled to drive in Talbert and a passed ball scored Galloway from third. Roger Williams grounded out to score Pollard.

After the second, Greenville could not get a man to second. Both Southern Pines (Sandhills) runs came over in the seventh. Garry Hall and David Stone had run-scoring singles in the frame.

Brewer, Nicklaus In Canadian Lead

ILE BIZARD, Que. (AP) — Old pro Gay Brewer seemed amused, amazed and just a little bit sheepish about his own heroics.

"Uncanny," he said with an embarrassed grin.

"You have to be dead lucky," he said. "That's what happens when you're playing good and you're scoring good. If I'd been three or four over par, it would have taken me three to get down."

But instead of taking three strokes to get down from a couple of sand traps, he holed the explosion shots for a pair of birdies that helped him tie Jack Nicklaus for the second round lead in the $200,000 Canadian Open Golf Tournament.

"I can't remember ever holing two bunker shots in a single round before—and certainly not two in three holes like I did today," said the gray-haired, 43-year-old Brewer who scored the last of his 11 official tour triumphs in this Canadian national championship in 1972.

Brewer's two 68s—the last one also included an eagle three—gave him a 136 total, four under par for two trips over the weather-plagued, 6,628-yard Royal Montreal Golf Club course.

Nicklaus matched the total with a second-round 71 that was achieved when the wind was at its worst, 40 miles an hour or more and strong enough to knock down concession tents and power lines. He'd had a course-record 65 Thursday, a round that was interrupted for more than three hours by a violent thunderstorm.

"Considering the conditions," Nicklaus said, "the 71 was a better round than the 65."

Ken Still's three-under-par 67, the best round of the raw, windy, chilly day, lifted him to within one stroke of the lead at 137. Australian David Graham was next with a 71-138.

Tom Weiskopf, who matched Nicklaus' opening 65, blew to a wildly erratic 74 that included three birdies, five bogeys and a double bogey.

Weiskopf dropped back to 139 and was tied at that figure with Hubert Green and Mike McCullough, the only other men under par after two rounds. Green had a 71, McCullough a 72.

Gary Player of South Africa shot a 73 for 140, like Nicklaus when the weather was at its worst. Arnold Palmer had another 73 and a 141 total. Lee Trevino took a 72-143 and Johnny Miller 74-144.

Rose Avenges Himself, Reds Don't Add Room

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Mike Marshall might have been thinking "sweep." Maybe Pete Rose was, too. But he was also thinking about what Marshall was about to throw.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, who went into Cincinnati Friday trailing the Reds by a mammoth 12½ games in the National League East, looked like they might make a nice dent in that lead.

They'd beaten Cincinnati 4-3 in the first game of the two-night doubleheader, riding Marshall's two perfect innings of relief, and led the nightcap 3-2 in the seventh when Marshall again came out of the bullpen on a rescue mission.

Then Rose took over.

He'd been Marshall's last victim in the first game, taking a called third strike.

This time, though, Marshall was the victim. Rose jumped on an inside screwball and rapped it for a three-run homer that catapulted the Reds to a 6-3 victory.

And the day ended the way it had begun, with the Reds still 12½ games ahead of the Dodgers.

In the rest of the league, Pittsburgh routed Montreal 6-1, New York beat Chicago 6-3, San Francisco bombed Houston 8-1 and, in two other twinbills, San Diego swept Atlanta 7-3 and 8-1 while St. Louis split with Philadelphia, winning 4-3 and losing 5-2.

"It was my turn to win this time," Rose said of Marshall. "He won the battle in the first game.

"You could see momentum developing for the Dodgers," he continued. "If they had beat us twice they would have been thinking 'sweep.' I learned a long time ago you can't take anything for granted in this game. I remember 1964 when Philadelphia had the big lead and blew it."

In the opener, the Dodgers trailed 3-2 going into the eighth. But Steve Garvey singled and John Hale doubled to tie it and Hale moved to third on Ron Cey's grounder.

After Leron Lee walked, Rawly Eastwick replaced Clay Carroll. Manny Mota, batting for Bill Russell, then bunted down the first base line and Hale raced home, just beating Dan Driessens' throw.

Pirates 6, Expos 1

The Pirates haven't had a 20-game winner in 15 years Jerry Reuss might be the next one. He reached the halfway point with a four-hitter against Montreal.

"Winning 20 enters my thoughts, but I just try to take them one at a time," he said. "If I stay healthy, I like my chances." Pittsburgh broke the game open with four runs in the seventh inning, triggered by Richie Zisk's tie-breaking double.

Mets 6, Cubs 3

Dave Kingman drilled four hits, including his 20th homer, to carry the Mets past Chicago. He singled for run in the first inning, drilled a two-run homer in the third, singled and scored in the fifth and singled to put the final run in scoring position in the ninth.

Giants 8, Astros 1

The Giants won their game away with a five run first inning, Willie Montanez and Chris Speier each knocking in two of them and knocking out Dave Roberts, who couldn't get a man out. Speier also hit a homer in the eighth.

Padres 7-8, Braves 3-1

Mike Ivie and Dick Sharon led San Diego's 13-hit attack in the opener, each hitting two-run doubles in the fifth inning.

Cards 4-2, Phillies 3-5

Doc Sizemore's tie-breaking double in the eighth inning gave the Cardinals their first game triumph. Greg Luzinski's tie-breaking homer, his 26th of the year, the sixth inning and Ollie Brown's two-run double in the seventh brought the Phillies back in the nightcap.

Royals Take Both Ends Of Twinbill Over Texas

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

It was an evening of firsts at Kansas City. Whitey Herzog wanted to quit while he was ahead and Frank Lucchesi should have quit before he got further behind.

No matter, Manager Herzog's Royals swept a two-night doubleheader from Manager Lucchesi's Rangers for the initial victories in Herzog's regime and the inaugural defeats for Texas under Lucchesi.

"I know all of the days aren't like this. It's not that easy," bubbled Herzog, who made his debut at the Royals' helm Friday night after replacing Jack McKeon. "I was thinking after the game and the way it went that it would be nice to go home and just think about it."

The way the first game went was a 6-3 Kansas City triumph.

The way it went in the second game was a 6-1 triumph.

"Now I'm glad we played the second game," beamed Herzog, who decided to enjoy things while he can.

Lucchesi had known the feeling of triumph well enough mere days ago. He replaced fiery Billy Martin on Monday and won his first three games. Friday, he tasted defeat.

"My bubble busted," he said. "The Royals baptized me real good."

Elsewhere in the American League, New York nipped Boston 8-6, Oakland trimmed Chicago 8-6 in 13 innings, Minnesota bombed California 12-1, Detroit edged Cleveland 4-3, and Milwaukee topped Baltimore 5-2.

Yankees 8, Red Sox 6

New York sweated out a victory in the opening game of a big four-game set, taking an 8-2 lead on a four-run seventh inning and getting solid relief work from Tippy Martinez to hold off the red-hot Red Sox.

Lou Piniella drove in four runs with a triple and a single while Chris Chambliss sent in two others to help the Yankees hand Boston only its third loss in 17 games and all within seven games of the AL East front-runners.

A's 8, White Sox 6

Reggie Jackson's 13th-inning home run capped what he called his best game of the season and lifted Oakland past Chicago in the see-saw contest.

"I guess I did it all," said Jackson, who also hit two doubles, cut off a Chicago run with a double steal with Sal Bando when the A's trailed by two runs in the bottom of the ninth.

Billy North also starred for the A's with four hits, including two that brought the A's even. The White Sox wasted leads of 3-0, 4-3 and 6-4.

Twins 12, Angels 1

Two off-beat occurrences preceded the Minnesota slaughter. Manager Frank Quilici held a two-hour workout and named batting star Rod Carew the first captain of the club since it moved west from Washington.

"I thought it was a good idea. We needed it," said Carew of the practice, noting that the Twins had lost their last three, nine of 11 and 14 of 18.

As far as being captain is concerned, Carew remarked, "It's something I really appreciate. It's nice to know that Frank has that much confidence in me."

He turned that pride into a four-for-five evening, raising his batting average to .385 and keying the 19-hit attack.

Tigers 4, Indians 3

Mickey Stanley's two-run triple led a four-run sixth inning and helped Detroit past Cleveland. The Tigers trailed 1-0 going into the sixth.

Brewers 5, Orioles 2

Hank Aaron's three-run double and Jim Colborn's fourth hit pitching lifted Milwaukee over Baltimore.

Bob Darwin singled to make it 4-2 in the seventh and George Scott singled for another run in the eighth. The Orioles scored two unearned runs in the second, helped along by shortstop Robin Yount's 24th error of the season.

Reflector, Union Carbide Ousted

Union Carbide and the Daily Reflector were eliminated and regular season champ Daniel was upset Friday night in the Industrial Softball League tournament.

Greenville Utilities eliminated Union Carbide, 8-7, scoring two runs in the seventh. GUCo slipped in front, 1-0, in the first and made it 5-0 in the second. Another GUCo run came over the third. UC broke the ice in the fourth and three in the fifth and three in the sixth gave UC the lead, 7-6. McLintock had a homer in the sixth for UC. But GUCo rallied for two in the bottom of the seventh to win the game, 8-7.

Burroughs Wellcome rallied in the seventh, also to beat Daniel.

Daniel took a 1-0 lead in the first but B-W got two in the top of the second. B-W took a 3-2 lead in the third but Daniel rallied for three in the bottom of the frame going ahead, 5-3. B-W battled back to tie it, 5-5, in the fourth and the three in the seventh got the winning run. Daniel picked up one in the last of the seventh.

The Moose sent State Highway into the losers bracket with a 5-3 win. The Moose fell behind, 3-0 in the second but two in the third and two in the fifth were all they needed.

In the final game, the Jaycees knocked the Daily Reflector out, 19-5. The Jaycees got all they needed in the first picking up six runs. They added five in the sixth.

San Diego Sweeps Pair From Braves

ATLANTA (AP)—"I'm always psyched up when I'm here," inhaled Mike Ivie of San Diego said after the Padres whipped the Atlanta Braves 7-3 and 8-1 in a doubleheader Friday night.

"It's not that it's just a good park to hit in, but it's also my home town," said Ivie, who slapped a double in the first game and scored two runs in the second.

"We put it all together tonight — hitting, pitching, fielding, everything," he added. "We've got them (the Braves) two and a half games behind us now, and that's where we're going to keep them. We're shooting for second place."

"This is a big series for us," said San Diego Manager John McNamara, whose team had not won a doubleheader in Atlanta in almost three years. "This team's in a position it's never been in before in its short life. Even Cincinnati and the Dodgers are going to have to come to us."

Dan Spillner pitched a five-hitter to take the win in the second game, while Joe McIntosh, 8-8, took the first game with help from Bill Greif.

Atlanta got its first run in the first game on a wild pitch by McIntosh in the second inning. Darrell Evans belted his 12th home run of the season in the sixth and Biff Pocoroba doubled home the final Atlanta run in the seventh.

Atlanta outfielder Ralph Garr said he thought the worst may be yet to come for the Braves, who face Brent Strom, 5-4, Saturday. "It's like flying into a stone wall and killing yourself," he said.

Kentucky Fried Chicken sent the Rocket's to the lower bracket with a 13-3 win. KFC rallied for the winner in the second picking up four runs. Eight in the fifth iced the win.

In the American Division, Pier 5 took a loser's bracket win over Baggett's, 18-1. Two in the top of the first were all Pier 5 needed but they added two in the third and seven in the fifth for the win.

White's and Baggett's became the first teams eliminated from the City League's tournaments Friday night. The Rockets and the Chargers were sent to the losers bracket.

In the National Division, One Hour Koretizing took an 8-7 win over White's. By the fourth inning, White's had amassed a 7-0 lead. But in the bottom of the frame, One Hour rallied for three on a homer by Medin, added one in the fifth and three in the seventh to tie the game, 7-7. H. Haddock scored for One Hour in the bottom of the ninth to win the game.

A three-run homer by Kuykendal in the first gave the Little Sluggers a 3-1 lead over the Chargers. The Sluggers added one in the second and pushed three across in the fourth to win the game. Kuykendal added a second homer in the fifth. L. Smith had one for the Chargers lost, 14-4.

Season For Doves Beginning Sept. 1

RALEIGH, N.C.—Hunting seasons for mourning doves, woodcocks, sea ducks and several other migratory game species were selected for 1975-76 here Monday, July 21, by the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission at its regular monthly meeting.

The season on mourning doves will again be split, as it has in recent years. The first half of the split season will open at noon on Monday, September 1 and close Saturday, October 11. The second half of the split season will open December 13 and close January 10, 1976. Bag limits will remain the same as last year with 12 doves allowed daily and 24 in possession.

The season on woodcock and Wilson's snipe will be earlier this year, and will open November 22 and close January 24, 1976. The season on rails and gallinules will open on September 1 and close November 8.

The season on sea ducks (Scoter, Eider and Old Squaw) will open October 4 and close January 17, 1976. The taking of these species will be limited to the waters of the Atlantic Ocean and those coastal waters south of U.S. 64. Also, all sea duck hunting must take place at least one mile of open water from any shore, island or marsh.

These seasons were picked from a framework offered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and season lengths and bag limits are all under Federal jurisdiction. Except for the earlier woodcock and snipe seasons, the others remain approximately the same as last year.

Three new Wildlife Commissioners, appointed by Governor James E. Holshouser, Jr., were sworn in by District Court of Appeals Judge R. M. Martin.

Dewey W. Wells of Camden was sworn in as Wildlife Commissioner of District 1, replacing Orville Woodhouse of Grandy. Henry E. Moore, Jr. of Clinton was sworn in as Commissioner of District 4 replacing D. Jack Hooks. William C. Boyd of Winston-Salem was sworn in as Commissioner of District 7 replacing Dr. Lathan T. Moose.

James E. Harrington, secretary of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources addressed the Commission briefly, welcoming in the incoming Commissioners. Harrington also proposed that the Wildlife Commission and other state agencies study state-owned lands to see if some could not be more fully used under a multiple-use concept. Harrington indicated that he felt that such a study might enhance not only recreational uses and fish and game management on lands not already designated for such use, it might also permit other, more appropriate uses for certain other lands.

"We might find that some park or other state lands should be managed for game and fish, while some of the hunting and fishing lands might also support such activities as camping or carefully controlled timber harvest," said Harrington.

The Commission agreed to consider the proposal and reach a decision shortly.

In other action, the Commission adopted a resolution which would continue protection under the law for three species of moles. The State Pesticide Board had requested that these species be removed from protection so that they might be controlled through the use of pesticides. However, studies indicate that these moles are not particularly troublesome pests, and that in fact, two of them are quite rare throughout much of the state, furthermore, it was pointed out that moles and other species can already be controlled by other means (traps, for example).

A resolution was also passed asking the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to reevaluate its regulations concerning duck hunting on Kerr Scott Reservoir in Wilkes County. The Corps closed the lake to duck hunting last fall, but reopened a small portion of it later. The Wildlife Commission contends that the Corps has no authority over hunting on public waters and that substantially all of the lake should be opened to duck hunting. Studies by Commission staff members indicate that there is so little development on the lake that hunting constitutes no safety hazard. The Commission also requested that the Corps enter into an agreement to allow the Commission to manage fish and wildlife on the lake.

Wildlife Afield: There Is Always More Hope

By JIM DEAN

I know that lots of people believe the world is going to Hades in a handbasket, but I suspect that's nothing new. The human animal has always been an instinctively pessimistic critter. Cavemen probably thought the world was going to Hades in handbasket too.

Anyway, I wonder if I might be forgiven for injecting a ray of hope into these otherwise dismal times.

This past week, I listened to a lot of knowledgeable folks discussing such matters as land management, National Park expansion, wilderness protection, nuclear power, energy conservation and all sorts of other things.

But out of all of this, the one line that rings in my mind like a bell is something conservation writer Michael Frome said.

"There is hope," said Frome. "There is always hope."

Then he proceeded to point out some of the changes that have not yet occurred in western North Carolina. He mentioned the notorious trans-mountain road from Bryson City to Townsend, Tennessee across the heart of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. A few years ago, this road seemed vital to a lot of people and it would surely have ruined the wilderness aspects of much of the nation's most popular National Park. Now such a road seems highly unlikely.

Then Frome mentioned the controversial Tellico Plains-Robbinsville road that would separate the Joyce Kilmer Memorial Forest from the wild reaches of Slickrock Creek drainage. Creeks, virgin timber and many wildlife considerations were in jeopardy, but it now appears that this area may be protected against any road by the Wilderness Act.

Frome then mentioned the 14 dams proposed on the French Broad watershed by the Tennessee Valley Authority before strong and united public opposition finally forced TVA to retract its plans.

As Frome pointed out, in each case, it seemed hopeless to resist these projects because they were planned by powerful forces, and their completion seemed almost inevitable. But enough people really cared about them to get in and fight. As Frome said, "there is always hope."

There are many other examples. The battle to save the New River in northwestern North Carolina is a good case in point. It seems more and more likely that the river will be saved, but it has not been an easy battle.

The TVA plan to dam the Little Tennessee River below Chilhowee Dam in Tennessee is still in doubt despite the fact that TVA is working day and night to complete the project. What could hold it up? Biologists have discovered an endangered species (the snail darter) in the river, and Federal law says that no project can further threaten an endangered species. This dam may still be built, but not until the opposition exhausts all options.

Now you may not agree that all—or any—of these things were worth saving, but that's not really the point as I see it. The point is not how you feel about certain environmental matters (nuclear power, controversial roads and dams, oil exploration, ozone, flood plains and many others).

The significant thing is that these matters are now being openly considered—and questioned IN TERMS OF THEIR EFFECT ON OUR ENVIRONMENT!

That is what the environmental fight has been all about for the past decade—to gain the objective of openly planning and evaluating proposals BEFORE they are carried out instead of waiting too late to find out what the results might be.

I personally find this cause for considerable hope. Depending upon your point of view, some battles will still be lost and others won, but at least we're beginning to look ahead to the future and that's long overdue.

Young Ties Mann For LPGA Lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Donna Caponi Young was off to an excellent start this year on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, winning two of the first 10 tournaments and playing well in the others. She was excited about what could be her best year since turning pro in 1965.

Then it happened. Mrs. Young was practicing wedge shots before the third round of the LPGA Championship in Baltimore about eight weeks ago.

"I felt something pop," she recalled Friday after shooting a five-under-par 68 to tie Carol Mann, for the first round lead in the $40,000 George Washington Classic at Hidden Springs Golf and Country Club.

"I knew I did something," Mrs. Young related as she told of her Baltimore experience. "I was only one shot back, and went to see a physical therapist. He knew immediately what was wrong. I had a muscle pull in my rib cage."

Mrs. Young refused to quit at the LPGA. She played in pain, finished fourth. Then, she paid the price, three weeks of inactivity.

The 30-year-old Mrs. Young returned to action at Toronto, and she has struggled ever since.

"The coming back process was slow," she explained. "Up until last week I felt a twinge. But I could feel my timing and rhythm coming back. I've finally played myself into physical condition."

The whole experience was shattering for the 5-foot-5 blonde. It was the first time in her life she had to play hurt on a golf course.

Mrs. Young is back in form, strongly indicated by her first round Friday. She made five birdies and played the other 13 holes in regulation to tie with Miss Mann for a one-stroke lead in the 54-hole test.

The 30-year-old Miss Mann was coming off a bad experience. Also a winner of two tournaments this year and the third leading money winner this year, she was humiliated by missing the cut in last week's U.S. Women's Open Championship at Atlantic City.

Miss Mann, president of the LPGA, said Wednesday that she wasn't going to let her Open disappointment beat her. "I'm too smart for that," she said. And she was right.

In the first round Friday she rolled in seven birdies and only two bogeys in her five-under 68.

One stroke behind the leaders were Joanne Carner, a three-time winner this year and second top money winner, and Mrs. Mary Canney, a mother of four daughters who shows up for about six or seven tournaments a year. Jo Ann Washam and Murle Breer were tied at 70, while Kathy Ahern, Clifford Ann Creed, defending champion Sandra Haynie and Kathy Martin all scored 71s.

Rozelle Uses His Contested Rule

AP Sports Writer

It had been nearly three years since National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle had been forced to invoke the controversial Rozelle Rule, now being tested in the courts in Minnesota.

That is, until Friday, when Rozelle used the "option compensation clause," as the league calls it, in the Ron Jesse case.

It was only the fifth time Rozelle has had to resort to his namesake rule. The rule states that if a player plays out his option with Team A to join Team B, and the two teams can't decide what the player is worth, the commissioner decides.

In this case, Team A—the Detroit Lions—lost wide receiver Jessie to Team B—Los Angeles. After the two teams reached an impasse over what Jessie was worth, Rozelle decided Team A should receive as compensation Team B running back Cullen Bryant, who returned 36 kick-offs for 996 yards and two touchdowns last year at L.A. Bryant's attorney said he will ask Rozelle to reconsider and allow Bryant to remain in L.A.

The Lions also said Rozelle may consider additional compensation, most likely in the form of a draft choice, at the end of the season.

The Party of the First Part was pleased: "We're delighted to have Cullen Bryant," said Detroit General Manager Russ Thomas. "We feel he's a fine football player who has the potential to be an outstanding running back."

The Party of the Second Part, Los Angeles, had no comment. One who wasn't pleased was Bryant. His lawyer, Ed Masry, said he'd send a telegram to Rozelle asking that the order be rescinded. "Bryant won't report to Detroit," Masry said. "He's not going."

"This was a shock to him. He is the first veteran player ever awarded to another NFL team in a case like this and the move is contrary to federal and state constitutions. If Rozelle wants to make a test case out of it, we'll see that he does."

The last time Rozelle resorted to the compensation rule was on Oct. 13, 1972 when wide receiver Dick Gordon played out his option year with the Chicago Bears to join the Rams. In that case, Rozelle gave Chicago the Rams' first-round draft choice in 1974.

New Ownership-Management For Tarheel Toyota

Tarheel Toyota Inc., 109 Trade Street, Greenville, is now under new ownership and management. Bill Draper, the corporation's new executive vice president, secretary and general manager, said that Garson L. Rice of Greensboro, is president and majority stockholder under the new ownership arrangement. The general manager, who said that the dealership will handle both Toyota and Mercedes vehicles, pointed out that under the new ownership and management, emphasis will be on "establishing a good service reputation." According to Draper, Kenneth Branch of Ayden still owns a percentage of the corporation although Rice is the majority stockholder.

May Have To Pay More For Food

WASHINGTON (AP)—Agriculture Department officials say Americans may have to pay slightly more for food this year than they would have otherwise because of recent grain sales to Russia and possible additional sales. The department has been estimating that if farmers harvest the record grain crops it predicts, retail food prices will rise 6 to 8 percent above 1974 levels. This compares with increases of 14.5 percent in each of the past two years. However, Agriculture Department economist Dawson Ahalt said Friday that grain prices have increased since reports of Soviet purchasing began circulating earlier this month — although he could not say how much of the increase was directly attributable to the sales. Ahalt said that if grain prices go up further as a result of Russian purchases, it could cause farmers to go slow in expanding grain feeding of livestock which produce the nation's meat, milk and poultry and would probably mean some rise in food prices.

Prices Advanced

CHICAGO (AP)—Farm futures prices advanced strongly on the Chicago Board of Trade Friday.

Soybeans bounded ahead by almost the limit 20 cents a bushel in early dealings before the gains were trimmed somewhat. Soybean oil was the limit higher for most options and meal was strong too. Agriculture Department specialists said Thursday the Russian grain crop appears to be in much worse shape than had been expected.

Planters National Bank and Trust Co. reported income before securities gains and losses and net income up ten per cent for the first six months ended June 30. PNB's income before securities gains and losses climbed to $833,436 or 99 cents per share compared to $760,293 or 90 cents per share for the same period last year. Net income totaled $834,535 or 99 cents per share, up from the $760,100 or 90 cents per share

Beautiful Puerto Rico: Island Of Disenchantment

By MARGARET HYMAN
SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Puerto Rico, the "Island of Enchantment," has lost its charm for many residents from the continental United States. A lot are leaving, as are Puerto Rican professional and businessmen, Cubans and other Latin Americans.

The departees cite a variety of reasons: a shortage of jobs; doubts that the island government can cope with perplexing social problems including rising crime; a heavier tax bite than in the States; increasing red tape and labor turmoil in business undertakings.

The island's severe economic recession accounts for a large part of the exodus. The gross national product will show a drop of between 3 and 4 per cent for fiscal 1975. Local branches of mainland firms are cutting back or closing down.

One U.S. continental who lived here for years gave up a good job with a government agency and returned to the mainland in mid-recession to look for work. An executive of a U.S. firm operating here wrangled a demotion so he could be transferred back to the States.

Charles Dominguez of Allied Van Lines, whose clients are mostly business and professional families, said the recent ratio of departures to arrivals has been as high as 10-to-1. He said an abnormal number of families has moved away over the past two years.

The English-language private schools, where the children of continentals have to go to study in their native tongue, had long waiting lists until a couple of years ago. Today, they are advertising for students and laying off staff.

"It isn't just the continentals who are leaving," said real estate broker John Francis, who deals in middle class housing. "It is the middle class Puerto Rican families as well. And some of those who are not leaving right away are liquidating their property so they will be ready to go."

One moving company executive said he knew of several well-established Puerto Rican doctors and other professionals who had emigrated to the Dominican Republic. A real estate broker said several families in the construction industry had moved to Costa Rica, which reportedly is having a building boom.

This broker also spoke of the exodus of middle class Cubans, who had fled here in droves after the Castro takeover, and other immigrants from Latin America.

"Many of them are going to Florida. Or to Latin America. They just don't feel welcome or comfortable here any more," the broker said.

Puerto Rico has had a number of terrorist bombings aimed either at Castroite Cubans or at persons advocating renewed relations with the Cuban government.

Police Superintendent Astol Calero warned recently that the island could become a battlefield for those pro Castro and those against.

Few persons moving out want to be identified. One U.S. continental, who operated his own small business here for more than 10 years, said, "I have a lot of Puerto Rican friends. I don't want to be the one who tells them they have a rotten island."

Several fugitives-to-be, assured they could remain anonymous, were outspoken in their criticism of the government.

"I don't know whether the governor is a Castro disguised by a clean shave and a business suit, or just plain incompetent, which would be even worse," said one U.S. businessman who is leaving. He referred to the government's purchase last year of the ITT-owned telephone service and the three private shipping lines serving Puerto Rico.

"They promised they would hold down rates and improve the service. But they raised rates and the inefficiency has gotten worse, especially shipping," he said.

The same businessman said the government's new 6.6 per cent excise tax on imports costs him three hours of red tape every time he receives a shipment from the mainland for a client.

Others packing up to leave mentioned proposed rent control legislation, income taxes (while U.S. taxpayers received a rebate last year, residents of Puerto Rico were hit with a new surtax), "bankrupt" fiscal policies, wage-and-hour laws above the U.S. minimums, as signs that the government, to quote one businessman, "is not just anti-business but is flirting with some kind of pie-in-the-sky socialism."

One couple, both school teachers, said they decided to leave after a tax accountant told them their Puerto Rican income tax for 1975 would be $2,000 higher than the U.S. income tax they would pay if they lived on the mainland.

The government's Economic Development Administration said it was not aware of any unusual exodus of U.S. businessmen or anyone else and doubted such a thing existed. There are no official statistics upon which to draw. Movement between the mainland and the island is uncounted and unrecorded. In fact, no one knows how many U.S. continentals live in Puerto Rico, with semi-official estimates ranging between 25,000 and 50,000.

One businessman, a 10-year resident, who was leaving for Florida, spent more than half an hour listing "the little frustrations which have finally built up." They included:

— Having to replace three batteries stolen from his truck in the past year.

— Having his office burglarized twice in the past year.

— Having to climb stairs to his ninth floor apartment for a week because of a power failure. ("The first day you accept it, but by the third day you get a bit annoyed.")

— Having had his water service cut off for long hours. ("We have all gotten used to living without telephones, but living without water is a bit harder to swallow — no pun intended.") — The apparent acceptance by both the government and the general public of sabotage as a legitimate negotiating tool in utility strikes.

A Month For Transportation

WASHINGTON (AP) — August could be called a month for inventions related to transportation.

An American patent on the Diesel engine was awarded to Rudolph Diesel of Germany, and Henry Ford got one for an improved carburetor, both in August 1898, according to Intellectual Property Owners, which dug up the data. Diesel fuel and gasoline have been competing ever since. Devoted IPO, a nonprofit group devoted to strengthening the patent system.

The one-millionth patent for a vehicle tire, was issued to Francis H. Holton, of Summit, Ohio, on Aug. 8, 1911. The Patent Office expects to issue the four-millionth patent during the next year.

Cream Comes In Plastic Bottle

NEW YORK (AP) — A plastic bottle boom is developing in the skin-care market and manufacturers are gearing up for a 40 per cent production increase by 1979, says John Malloy of the Plastic Bottle Institute, a division of the Society of the Plastics Industry.

Industry officials conservatively estimate that plastic bottle production will leap by 8 to 10 per cent a year through 1980.

Formal Debutante Presentation Planned

4—MISS CATHERINE ELIZABETH MARTIN

5—MISS DEBORAH VEE MASSEY

(Editor's Note: Area debutantes, who will make their debuts in Raleigh in early September, were interviewed recently concerning their future plans and activities.)

Nancy Lee Dayton

Miss Nancy Lee Dayton wants to join the Peace Corps after she has finished her education. The 19-year-old elementary education major attends Duke University and says she chose to go to Duke because it is somewhat a tradition in the Dayton family.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert G. Dayton of Greenville. She is majoring in elementary education because she likes little children.

She recently returned from serving five weeks as a counselor at Camp Yonahlossee, Blowing Rock. As a counselor, she lived with five young girls in a cabin and taught sailing, canoeing, skiing and tubing down the mountain streams. This is the second summer she has worked as a counselor at the camp and hopes to try something new next summer.

What would Miss Dayton like to be doing 10 years from now? "Hopefully be married and raising a happy family," she answered.

Miss Dayton hopes to venture to India for her work in the Peace Corps.

Marsha Sue Hardy

Miss Marsha Sue Hardy likes to write poetry. She was on the staff of the literary magazine at St. Mary's College, where she attended her freshman year of college. She is now attending Pan American School, Richmond, Va., where she is working toward a degree to become a legal secretary.

Her other interests include playing tennis, basketball, dancing, sketching and her newest hobby is bridge.

"The question of how I feel about being introduced to society formally by making my debut is obviously answered, as I have accepted. I feel it is something to be very proud of, something to enjoy and something that we should give credit to our parents and grandparents for because it's heritage and pride in one's family that allows such occurrences," Miss Hardy said.

Miss Hardy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Thomas Hardy Jr. of Farmville. Her chief marshal will be her father and her assistant marshal will be William Brown Glenn Jr. of Greenville.

"I think the most important thing is to be a well-rounded person in many areas and the expansion of one's interests cannot be deterred." As for the role of women today, Miss Hardy says "There are no words to express the way I feel about being a woman."

Catherine Harris Joyner

Following in her mother's footsteps, Miss Catherine Harris Joyner will be among the 195 young ladies from across North Carolina who make their debuts.

The annual Debutante Ball will be staged in Raleigh on Friday night, Sept. 5.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max R. Joyner of 1724 Circle Dr., Miss Joyner's father will be her chief marshal while Miles Purser will be her assistant marshal.

Couple Weds Saturday In Candlelight Ceremony

A candlelight ceremony last evening at eight o'clock at the Parker's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church united in marriage, Miss Jo Lynn Switzer and Hilton Louis Tetterton Jr. Mr. Tetterton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Louis Tetterton Sr. of Bethel.

The Rev. Curtis Tyler, pastor of the bridegroom, performed the double ring ceremony. The Rev. Phillip Cooper, associate pastor of the bride, presented a program of nuptial music. He also sang "The Wedding Song," "Time In A Bottle," and for the benediction, the "Wedding Prayer."

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frederick Switzer, Jr. of Pictolus, the bride was escorted to the altar by her father and give in marriage by her parents. She chose for her wedding, a formal gown of silken organza over peau de soie. The high ruffle neckline of peau d'ange lace topped the sheer yoke and empire bodice, which was embellished with swirls of Venise lace braid and appliques of matching lace. The sheer fitted sleeves were cuffed with a lace ruffle. The swirls of lace and appliques continued into the front of the A-line skirt and the attached chapel length train. The gown was designed by Paris Originals.

Her chapel length mantilla was of imported silk illusion ordered with peau d'ange lace braid, which flowed from a double ruffle band of the same lace. The bride carried an all white cascading bouquet of daisies, baby's breath, and miniature carnations. At the back of the bouquet were two long stemmed red roses. As she approached the altar, the bride presented one rose to her mother and as she left the altar, the other was given to the bridegroom's mother.

Dana Leigh Switzer of Pictolus was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Faye Carol Albritton, Sheryl Frances Buck, Sheila Maxine Stancill, and Sally Lee Sumerlin, all of Greenville. They were dressed alike in gowns of blue and white checked dotted swiss. The gowns featured a square neckline, short puffed sleeves, and an A-line skirt. The empire waist was accented by an attached white sash which tied in the back. Their headpieces were of white wisteria and they carried nosegays of white daisies, blue baby's breath, and blue and white streamers.

Miss Julie Michelle Tyler of Bethel was the flower girl. Her dress was of the same material and style as the adult attendants. She carried a white basket trimmed with blue ribbon from which she dropped petals as she preceded the bride.

Stephen Loring Tyler of Bethel was the ringbearer. The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Charles Frederick Switzer III of Pictolus, Michael Leamon Tetterton, Cary Edward Hammond Jr., and Roy Herbert Brown Jr., all of Bethel.

Miss Melinda Lou Harris of Washington registered the guests and Mrs. Margaret Landen of Greenville directed the wedding. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Switzer chose a formal gown of pale blue chiffon and polyester. Mrs. Tetterton, the bridegroom's mother, selected a formal gown of medium blue knit. Both mothers carried the long-stemmed red rose presented to them by the bride.

Mrs. Charles Frederick Switzer Sr. of Greenville, grandmother of the bride, wore a corsage of daisies. Mrs. Horace Leamon Tetterton of Bethel, grandmother of the bridegroom, wore a corsage of daisies.

Following the ceremony a reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Louis Tetterton Jr. was given by the bride's parents at the Greenville Masonic Lodge.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. James Ear Buck, aunt and uncle of the bride.

Mrs. Joseph Sicily Johnston Jr., of Baumholder, Germany, Mrs. Thomas Gregory Johnson Sr. of Jacksonville, Mrs. George Darden Tetterton Sr. of Bethel, Mrs. Christine Johnston Albritton, and Mrs. Steve Johnston, both of Greenville, all aunts of the bride, served punch and cake.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Tal Dixon, Lorraine DeCuzzi, Patricia Bright, and Donna Zills, and Mrs. Gary Beacham. Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Horace Augustus Tetterton.

For their wedding trip to unannounced points, Mrs. Tetterton changed into a navy and yellow dress with matching jacket and navy accessories. Upon their return, they will reside in Bethel.

Mrs. Tetterton is a 1975 graduate of North Pitt High School and will enter East Carolina University in September. Mr. Tetterton is also a 1975 graduate of North Pitt High School and is employed by H. L. Tetterton and Sons Contractors, Bethel.

On Saturday at noon, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Frederick Switzer entertained at a wedding breakfast at the Candlewick Inn honoring Miss Jo Lynn Switzer and Hilton Louis Tetterton Jr., their wedding party, and immediate families.

Following the rehearsal for the Tetterton-Switzer wedding on Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Louis Tetterton, Sr. entertained at an after-rehearsal dinner at the Beef Barn.

Father Is Wrong About Eating Hand

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My dad and I are at a disagreement. He says I should not eat with my left hand. He says it is like eating peas with a knife.

I like eating with my left hand, and I think I am old enough to know which hand I feel more comfortable eating with. (I am 16.)

Dad says the etiquette books say that you are supposed to eat with your right hand.

Who is right? Please hurry your answer. I hate eating with my right hand.

BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: I hope your dad is big enough to admit that he is wrong because he is.

DEAR ABBY: I am married, although my husband is in prison. I do not go out with other men, and I don't entertain any, either. I live a clean, simple, uncomplicated life and am only trying to hang in there until my man comes home. My problem is that most men think that I am "fair game" because I have no husband home. There are several in my neighborhood who insist that I am "lonely," hungry for a man and desperately in need of the company of one. I am tired of trying to straighten these guys out.

Maybe if you print this, they will get the message. Just because a woman is alone doesn't mean that she is available.

WAITING FOR MY MAN

DEAR WAITING: Hooray for you! And I hope your man on the inside reads this. It will make his day. God bless.

DEAR ABBY: In fairness to the many older people like myself who cannot eat a large meal at one sitting and who eat many times a day (which the doctors assure us is healthier, anyway), I would like to present the side of the majority on "doggie baggers."

We enjoy restaurant eating every now and then, but my husband resents paying today's prices only to see half of my meal returned to the kitchen uneaten and then hearing me say, "I'm hungry" two hours later. Since asking for a doggie bag is frowned upon in some restaurants, a simple solution for me is to carry my own plastic bags.

Yes, I do this in some friends' homes, too. If you ask for a very small portion, the hostess thinks you ate before you came. And if you leave half of it on your plate, she thinks you didn't like it. But if you're truthful, the hostess is delighted to let you take your portion home to enjoy for several meals.

WOOF WOOF IN PA.

DEAR WOOF WOOF: I'm with you all the way. Many restaurants offer "a child's" portion at a reduced price, of which many senior citizens also take advantage.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 40-years-old, and I have a problem. I always cry at sad movies, hymns, sad stories, parades, beautiful skaters and "The Star Spangled Banner."

Soon my son will be getting married. The planner for the church ceremony sound just beautiful and end with my son's presenting me with a single red rose! The thought of it sends chills up my spine.

I don't want to embarrass my son or husband by blubbering.

Do you have any suggestions? (I'm on hormones, so it's not the menopause.) Thank you.

SENTIMENTAL IN ILLINOIS

DEAR SENTIMENTAL: Being told in advance will prepare you for the presentation. I'm sure there won't be a dry eye in the house, so if you shed a tear or two, you won't embarrass anyone. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: I have a dear wife who uses "you know" in every sentence. In fact, it is not uncommon for her to put "you know" into a sentence three or four times.

I am sure she doesn't realize how terrible this sounds, or she would try to get out of the habit. I mentioned it to her once, and she acted very hurt; she also didn't stop saying "you know," so I never mentioned it again.

Her "you knows" have started to drive me up a wall. Any suggestions?

HER HUSBAND (YOU KNOW)

DEAR HUSBAND: If she wants to get out of the habit, you should say (with her permission), "Yes, dear, I know," every time she says, "you know." She will then realize how much she uses that monotonous and superfluous phrase.

If she doesn't want to drop it, either tune her out or make yourself comfortable up on that wall, where she will surely drive you.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Debutantes Ready...

When asked if she thought being a debutante had any function in today's society, she answered, "Why no. I think it's all a matter of tradition. I will enjoy meeting more people from across the state."

Miss Joyner attended St. Mary's Junior College, Raleigh, for a year and will enter East Carolina University this fall as a sophomore. She plans to major in early childhood education due to her interest in children.

In discussing plans for herself in about 10 years from now, the debutante said that she hopes to be married and living in Greenville.

On the subject of women's rights and the role of women in today's society, Miss Joyner commented, "I don't think women are equal if it means sending women to war, but in jobs and other areas, they are."

Her favorite pastimes include tennis, bicycle riding, water sports, dancing and crocheting.

Catherine Elizabeth Martin "The debs today are much more diversified than they were years ago because people aren't trying to be other people anymore, just themselves," commented Catherine Elizabeth Martin, the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Curtis Martin of Bethel.

Miss Martin is presently attending St. Mary's College, Raleigh, and plans to major in interior design because she "likes to rearrange things in houses."

She said that she selected St. Mary's College because she liked the small school atmosphere. She likes the advantages of knowing the teachers personally.

When asked if she thinks making a debut is relevant to today's times she answered, "Making your debut is a good chance to meet new people. It's just parties and fun and that's certainly not out of date. I particularly like the tradition of the weekend of the ball when you wear a long white gown and are presented."

Her chief marshal will be her father and Brian Hargrove of Tarboro will serve as her assistant marshal.

Her interests are varied. She enjoys all kinds of sports, particularly tennis, golf and horseback riding. Miss Martin plays the guitar and reads a great deal. "Mostly organized crime stories," she says, and dabbles in paints occasionally.

FHA HELPS

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Livestock producers now can get credit assistance from the Farmers Home Administration, says an economist for the Texas Agriculture Extension Service.

The administration now guarantees up to 80 per cent of losses on loans made by private lending institutions to farmers and ranchers who breed, raise, fatten or market beef and dairy cattle, hogs, sheep goats, chickens and turkeys.

The maximum guaranteed loan is $250,000 to any single borrower. Loans are to be repaid within three years. Interest rates are determined between lender and borrower.

Deborah Vee Massey "I think women can carry this Women's Rights thing a bit too far when they start talking about drafting us to war etc. I don't think much of the old idea of the submissive woman either. Women should find a balance in between not being submissive but not being demonstrative either. They shouldn't fight against men, but work with them." Miss Debbie Vee Massey commented.

She says the reason she is making her debut is not for social purposes or to impress anyone but to be with people and have a good time. Being a debutante has never been a necessity. "It's just for fun and it doesn't make any difference whether you do it or not."

Miss Massey is the daughter of Mrs. M.B. Massey of Greenville and the late Mr. Massey. She is a student at St. Mary's College at present and plans to major in some art-related field because of her strong background in art.

She spends a great deal of time designing and fashioning her own clothes and hopes to eventually open her own boutique, where she will sell all her creations in fashion and interior design.

Miss Massey's brother, Molt Massey III, will serve as her chief marshal.

Elizabeth Pannill Moseley

"Women should have as much freedom as they want. I think the role of women is not what it could be today. I think it is still changing. Soon I think you will find just as many wives working while their husbands stay home as women staying home while their husbands work, as was true in the past. I think women have changed pretty much but people just don't accept things that fast," Miss Elizabeth Pannill Moseley remarked.

Miss Moseley is a student at N.C. State University majoring in environmental design and architecture because, "I have always been interested in architecture. It's just always been my thing."

Miss Moseley is the daughter of Mrs. Bancroft Moseley of Greenville and the late Mr. Moseley. Glasgow Hicks of Wilmington, her uncle, will be her chief marshal. Jesse Shubert Peele Jr. of Washington will be her assistant marshal.

"Long ago girls were more society conscious, but today the trend is to be an individual and be more honest," she added. "I don't think being a debutante means what it used to mean. It's just a lot of fun."

Nancy Lou White Miss Nancy Lou White plans to major in physical education because of her strong interest in athletics. "If I major in P.E., I thought I might like to be a tennis coach or something like that," Miss White contributed.

She likes to play tennis, as she spent part of her summer instructing at a tennis clinic held at St. Mary's College, where she attends school. She water ski's and plays the guitar and is currently playing on a team in Greenville's Women's Softball League.

The 19-year-old is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Jordan White of Greenville. Her father will serve as her chief marshal.

"When I first was asked to be a debutante, I thought 'debutante,'" Miss White said as she wrinkled her nose. "But a lot of my really good friends at school are doing it and I thought it would be a good opportunity to see them this summer and at the same time meet some new girls."

On the role of women today, she says, "I think that the Equal Rights Amendment is good to an extent, as far as equal employment goes, but a woman can have as much freedom as she and her husband decide on. You get that straight before you get married."

Henrietta Louise Williamson "I hope to combine my fascination with psychology and the joy I can find in helping other people so that I may become a counselor," Miss Henrietta Louise Williamson of Farnville commented.

She says she chose to major in psychology "because it is a growing science with many different areas and opportunities."

Miss Williamson is the 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Clay Williamson of Farnville and is presently attending Salem College. She remarked that she had chosen Salem College because "It is a small school where each girl can have individual attention from members of the faculty."

Her response to being a debutante was "I see it more as a fun way to meet people from all over the state and make new friends."

"Women of today are no longer predestined to become merely housewives and child-bearers if they do not choose to do so," Miss Williamson hopes for a future career in psychology as a child psychologist or a guidance counselor.

Her hobbies include dancing, tennis and golf.

Miss Williamson's chief marshal will be her father.

Miss Jerry Angela Brown Henderson-Richmond Vows Solemnized On Saturday

Weds Saturday Evening

ROANOKE RAPIDS—Miss Jerry Angela Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Thomas Brown of Roanoke Rapids, became the bride of Howard Richard Fanney Jr. of Greenville Saturday at 8:00 p.m.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fanney Sr. of Roanoke Rapids.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Bernard Marshall Whitehurst assisted by the Rev. George White. A program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Deobrah Jane Overton, organist, Miss Rachel Ellen Edwards, soloist, and the Rosemary Baptist Chancel Choir.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a formal gown of silk organza over peau de soie. The molded bodice with high-sheer yoke, outlined with crystal pleated ruffle and appliqued with raised medallions of Venise lace and pearl embroidery, was fashioned with a rounded neck bordered with lace and the long sleeves were enhanced with cutout motifs ending in a ruffled flounce falling over the hands. Raised designs of lace and embroidered pearl stems marked the waist and cascading designs and motifs adorned the A-silhouette skirt bordered with a pleated flounce at the hemline flowing into a built-in train attached under a self-bow and streamers which extended chapel length.

Her cathedral length veil was attached to a cap of Venise lace and pearls. Her only ornament was a diamond pendant belonging to her mother. She carried a bouquet of gardenias, yellow roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Michael Thomas Brown of Winston-Salem, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a formal length gown of quiana silk jersey in grasshopper green. The gown was fashioned with cape sleeves and empire waistline which extended into a floral skirt. She carried a nosegay of white roses, miniature carnations and pom pons.

The maid of honor was Miss Sharon Lee Tew of Clinton. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Dan Richardson Thomason Jr. of Pinehurst, Mrs. Richard Shelton Monds Jr. of Dunn, Miss Deborah Lynn Williams of Raleigh, Mrs. Leamon Harding Allen Jr. of Pantego, Mrs. Kathy Overton Lee Mhuir, Mrs. Lewis Calvin Lane Jr., Miss Susan Hall Fanne, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. James Ray Barner, all of Roanoke Rapids. They were dressed like the honor attendant.

The flower girl was Amy Welch Yates of Rockingham.

MRS. HOWARD RICHARD FANNEY JR.

BURLINGTON—The First Baptist Church here was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Miss Ophelia Adlay Richmond and Ed Arlesta Henderson Saturday at 4:00 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. G. H. Padgett. A program of wedding music was presented by Dexter Woods, organist, and Robert Garrison, vocalist.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Edna E. Richmond of Burlington, and Mr. and Mrs. James Henderson of Rt. 2, Greenville. The bride, given in marriage by Fred Richmond Jr., wore a floor length gown of white poly crepe and Venise lace over peau de soie. The dress was designed with a high neckline, bishop sleeves, empire waistline and A-line skirt sweeping to a full chapel train. A band of Venise lace encircled the mandarin neckline and formed a V-bib effect on the bodice and outlined the waistline. A scroll band of Venise lace extended down the center front of the skirt.

Her fingertip veil of white imported silk illusion was attached to a portrait headpiece of lace and seed pearls.

The honor attendant was Miss Brenda Matthews of Eastern Shore, Va. She was dressed in a blue floor length gown and carried a bouquet of carnations. Bridesmaids were Miss Theresa Richmond, sister of the bride, Miss Hassie Walker and Miss Vickie Reid, all of Burlington, and Miss Evon Henderson of Greenville. Willie Henderson of Rt. 2, Greenville, was best man and ushers included John Richmond of Burlington, Milton Henderson and George Grimes of Greenville and Henry Graves of Yanceyville.

After a wedding trip to Atlanta, Ga., the couple will reside in Braumholder, Germany.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

MRS. ED ARLESTA HENDERSON

Medicine Woman Not Allowed To Practice

By PETER HERNON
Associated Press Writer
CHARENTON, La. (AP) — The medicine woman for the Chitimacha Indians says her ancient treatments for snake bite, pneumonia and ulcers probably will die when she does.

Faye Stoff is the last of a long line of healers who have mixed and pounded wild herbs, grasses and barks into liquid concoctions for centuries.

Barely 300 of her tribe remain to trap and fish the bayous in southwestern Louisiana. They live on a small reservation of modest, one-story, frame houses. Most are elderly and the few young are not interested in the potions Mrs. Stoff says she has used to treat everything from athlete's foot to venereal disease.

"No one wants to learn anymore," she lamented. "If that's the way they want it, fine. The secrets will soon vanish forever."

Tribal law never discriminated against women who wanted to carry a medicine bag but it prohibits the 67-year-old from teaching her skills to outsiders.

She doesn't wear beads or rattle bones or paint her face as she squats at the side of the stricken. Instead, she prays to the "Great Spirit" and administers special brewed mixtures that "taste as bad as they smell."

At least she used to. Over 30 years ago she was threatened with a stretch in prison if she continued her backwoods practice. She says it was a good one with several local doctors sending for her whenever someone was bitten by a cottonmouth or rattler.

"I'd mix up something that would give them cramps so they'd vomit up the poison," she said. "It worked every time."

Now she only treats herself. She says she occasionally suffers from an inflamed kidney but chases the pain with a stiff jolt of syrupy elixir.

She and her husband Emile, the tribe's retired chief, also practice another skill likely to disappear with their passing — basketweaving. Not just ordinary single strand baskets but beautifully double woven bamboo cane with designs of diamonds, rattlesnakes and alligators in brilliant red, black and yellow. Harvard's Peabody Museum has ordered four. Others, they say, are in the Smithsonian Institution.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception immediately following the ceremony at the Loy Memorial Building.

The refreshment table was covered with a yellow organza cloth overlaid with lace. Twin five branched candelabra held yellow roses, snapdragons, baby's breath and yellow candles.

Greeting guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Lyerly and Mr. and Mrs. Allan Welch. Ms. Mable Brown presided at the guest register.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Herman Vinson and Mrs. Roger Hatchell. Junior hostesses were Ms. Katie Garner, Ms. Susan Zepp, Ms. Giner Deberry and Ms. Debra Kasper.

Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bloom and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kasper.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the Holiday Inn Friday given by the parents of the bridegroom.

A bridal luncheon was held Saturday at the Holiday Inn given by Mr. and Mrs. Allan Welch, aunt and uncle of the bride.

Bride-Elect Entertained

Miss Debbie Hardee, bride-elect of Ronnie Leggett, was honored Thursday night at a bridal shower at the home of Mrs. Faye Jackson.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. Liddie Anderson, Mrs. Elizabeth Garris, Mrs. Shelby McDaniels, Mrs. Margaret Spain and Mrs. Pat Spain.

Guests were greeted by the honoree, her mother and Mrs. Leggett, mother of the bridegroom-elect.

Arrangements of mixed summer flowers were used in the home and the refreshment table featured an arrangement of white roses.

Miss Hardee was remembered with a corsage of red carnations which complemented her floral ensemble.

A flood of books have been written lately on the sorrows of motherhood. They undoubtedly have been responsible for the significant decline in births in this country.

But none has carried such an impact as a little book called, "Smashed Potatoes," edited by Jane G. Martel. It's a kid's-eye view of the kitchen... filled with recipes and know-how as a child sees it.

Here's an example:

PO, JRN

37 of those hard little seed things that splode into popcorn 3 hot butters to trickle on 1 dish of salt to throw over it Put the popcorn seeds in the popcorn bowl and plug it in the plug hold—and get the toaster out of the way.

It takes about 10 hours to get going—but if you wait, you would see something funny. If your brother takes the lid off, popcorn go zinging all over the kitchen. POW! POW! POW!

Go wash both of your hands because you need to eat it with fingers.

If you want to save it, put it in a big plastic Baggie and put it under your bed till tomorrow. You just keep eating till it's all gone.

Frankly, I never go by the elephant's cage at the zoo and see them hosing the peanut shells down a drain that I don't think, "What a wonderful place to raise children."

You show me a boy who likes to cook and I'll show you a mother who is a little crazy.

I have another recipe I'd like to share with you from a mother's-eye view of the kitchen. It's called:

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

Grasshoppers on the tables and murals on the wall were two of the highlights of the craft show held Wednesday afternoon at the Elm Street Gym. The crafts entered were a part of the craft program for the eight city parks, sponsored by the Greenville Recreation Department. The approximate 500 children registered attend either tot lot which is for children ages four to six, Evans Day Camp or at the parks—Peppermint, Meadowbrook, Kitrell-Goodson, South Greenville, West Greenville, Greenfield Terrace and Woodlawn.

The South Greenville Park children were the winners in the show. They won the ribbon given for the outstanding craft exhibit based on originality, neatness and quality work.

Judging by Carol Whiteford, Bill Twine and Winnie Hewett was held Tuesday afternoon. The winning park was given a watermelon feast Thursday.

Individual winners were awarded first, second, third places and honorable mentions in the different age groups.

"Giving the children a chance to be creative and to be aware of the many things around them that can be made into something beautiful and useful with little or no expense, was an objective of the craft program," said Mrs. Lucille Sumrell, who heads the craft program for the Recreation Department.

"Children are proud of things they make with their hands that they can take home to show," she added.

Craft ideas and materials to work with are provided each of the eight weeks of the summer program. Some of the crafts were: raf-a-cord, twisted crepe paper used to decorate bottles, cans, boxes, etc.; weaving and embroidery on paper trays; forged foil, which is an antiquing process using tin foil and black paint; decoupage along with scratch art; nature paper weights; laminating book marks; and grasshopper recipe holders.

The craft show is held yearly to display things the children have made during the summer. Children were bused in from the parks during the day to see the show.

Billy Stinson had a van and traveled to each playground during the week teaching the children art.

HOBBY, ANYONE? NEW YORK (UPI) — The hobby industry has grown rapidly since the 1940s. The growth can best be told in retail sales statistics.

In 1971, for example, sales volume was estimated at $1 billion plus. By 1973, the figure went to $1.2 billion and in 1974 that record is to be exceeded. Back in 1949 sales of hobby kits and material was $100 million. By 1961 sales hit $450 million. Projected sales for the 1980s — $2 billion.

SENIORS DRINK REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) — A San Mateo County Department of Health and Welfare survey shows that 44.8 per cent of the boys in high school senior classes in this area have used alcohol 50 or more times.

MISS LUCY ANN WILLIS. . is the daughter of Mrs. Lucy Willis of Wanchese, who announces her engagement to William Bruce Taylor, son of Mrs. William Austin Mann of Grifton and the late Mr. Aubrey Bentley Taylor. The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Mr. Earl Willis. The wedding will take place Oct. 4.

SCIENCE FINDS NEW YORK (UPI) — Tobacco smoke is a very complex mixture of gases, liquids and particles, says the American Lung Association. Research has shown there are hundreds of chemical compounds in tobacco and hundreds more created when tobacco burns. Some of the most hazardous compounds are tar, nicotine, carbon monoxide, cadmium, nitrogen dioxide, ammonia, DDT, benzene, formaldehyde and hydrogen sulfide.

Life Is Still A Song For Kay Swift

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The indomitable composer, author, pianist and pioneer liber, Kay Swift, 70ish — keep 'em guessing, she says — great-grandmother, was trying to account for her youthful appearance and great capacity for work.

"I do about 36 push-ups every day, but then I always have done push-ups. Then I lie down, and sit up keeping my legs straight, another exercise I enjoy. And I walk a great deal. My mother was English and the English walk a lot," says the lithe, tiny woman with a pretty figure who was married three times and mothered her three girls all the while she was working on one or other theater project.

Anyway exercise helps keep the blood stream circulating properly and feeding the brain, she said, explaining how she sandwiches it in between composing, orchestrating, recording, producing and promoting her latest record album, "Fine and Dandy Today."

"And I don't work after 10 in the morning, but I get an early start — I begin at 5," she said.

People often think she is doing too much for her age, she says, but it is the way she gets her kicks. The theater is her first love and she thrives on it.

In this new album with four sides she has a wide range of children's songs which she has orchestrated, including "Reaching for the Brass Ring" (originally written for her grandchildren because she couldn't knit for them.) Some of her more popular songs, "Fine and Dandy," "Can This Be Love" and "Calliope," provide contrast. Her strong point is doing a variety of things.

Music is what comes naturally even though she also writes. She was playing melodies on the piano when she was 2½ and at 7 she was being taught by a Norwegian who was with her 10 years, and then she went on to Juilliard on a scholarship. Her grandmother was a composer. Later she became a friend of George Gershwin — she adapted his music to the film, "The Shocking Miss Pilgrim" — and she worked for Richard Rodgers, who gave her the first Broadway break when she was his rehearsal pianist for "Connecticut Yankee." George Balanchine invited her to adapt some of her own music for one of his ballets.

She'd like to see a revival of "Fine and Dandy" for which she did the music with her first husband, James Warburg, who wrote the lyrics. One of its hit songs, "Can This Be Love," is still popular.

It might take a year to get the thing in shape. She needs a writer who would patiently "trudge along," and she'd like a comic who could "do the physical business" but it shouldn't be tailored to one comic. She recalls a musical written around Bobby Clark and when he didn't want to do it, "it was too Bobby Clarkish for anyone else."

"It's really a hot property" she says with enthusiasm. Al Stillman offered to help. He's a splendid lyricist with wonderful songs, "I Believe," "Chances Are," "It's Not for Me."

Trans-Siberian Railway To Open Treasure House

THIS IS THE ROUTE of the 2,000-mile Trans-Siberian Railway which was started one year ago and is now inching its way across some of the wildest regions on earth. (UPI Photo Map)

By DAVID LASCELLES
London Financial Times-UPI
LONDON — With over 20,000 people now busy chopping down trees, leveling the ground and laying the track, Russia's new trans-Siberian railway is well under way.

Exactly a year after work started, this "project of the century" is inching across some of the wildest regions on the globe, where workers had to put up with temperatures of 40 degrees below zero last winter, and now are battling summer heat and insects.

But the 2,000-mile line is far more than a link between central Siberia and the Pacific, or a way of relieving the old trans-Siberian railway further south, though both these considerations play a big part.

What finally determined the exact route was what lies below the ground — Siberia's vast mineral resources.

The plan is to build a special spur of the new Siberian railway north from Tynda into the heart of the coal region. This will enable several million tons a year to be extracted.

Japan has agreed to lend the Russians $450 million to buy Japanese equipment to open up these deposits, in return for deliveries of 100 million tons of coal over 20 years. It is a valuable deal for the Japanese, who have virtually no energy resources of their own.

Another big project, to exploit the Udokan copper deposits, is also internationally attractive. In this case, negotiations are still at an early stage.

The reason for Western interest is Udokan's size and richness. Discovered only 20 years ago, 500 miles from the nearest railway and in a region where the ground is permanently frozen, the deposits are thought by Soviet geologists to contain 2 billion tons of high-grade ore. This puts Udokan on a par with the great Chilean deposits at Chuquibambilla.

Western companies like Rio Tinto Zinc have been invited to inspect the deposit. They estimate a yearly output potential of some 400,000 tons. This is more than half of the production of Zambia, the world's second biggest copper producer.

The Russians want to open up Udokan in the early 1980s, in the middle of their new-style 15-year plan which starts in 1976. But Udokan's remoteness means that the cost of developing the mines and building the processing plants will be extra high. One estimate has put it at $2 billion.

This immense sum has already scared off the Japanese, who were first approached about collaborating in the mid-60s. It has held up talks with other possible partners.

If the Russians fail to get foreign help it will not necessarily be the end of Udokan, but it will mark a serious setback to Siberian development. For the moment, the slump in copper prices is another deterrent.

The third major resource that the new railway will open up is iron ore. Here again, the claims made by Soviet geologists are often mind-boggling. Deposits containing some 1 billion tons of ore have been mentioned, with, in some cases, an iron content of 48 per cent.

Clearly, if these deposits can be married up with the equally large deposits of Yajut coking coal, the Russians have a ready-made base for a massive Far Eastern steel industry. At present the region is short of steel, most of it having to be transported at great cost from thousands of miles away.

Finally there is that major above-ground resource: timber. Most of Siberia is thickly wooded, mainly with larch, fir and silver birch. The problem has always been getting the timber out. Rivers inconveniently flow north and timber reaching the rail depots frequently has to wait months before the existing, overworked railway can take it.

The Japanese, again looking for steady supplies of a vital raw material, have signed several timber deals. In one case, they have guaranteed more than $500 million worth of equipment on credit, in return for a promise of 18.4 million cubic meters of logs and timber.

The Russians hope and expect that deals like these will proliferate as the railway opens up new areas. But they are still encountering Western reluctance to get involved in such enormous schemes, especially when they mean handing out money and equipment to a potential enemy. On top of this, the uncertainties overhanging U.S.-Soviet trade are blocking U.S. participation on a big scale, and Japan in future would prefer to sign deals on a multinational basis. So the railway will not automatically fulfill the Soviet dreams for Siberia.

On the other hand, Moscow's willingness to repay help with steady supplies of valuable raw materials must act as a strong bait. Voices can already be heard calling on Western governments to make the most of the opportunities Siberia offers.

Pre-Sneeze Allergy Care

CHICAGO (AP) — If you suffer every summer with allergies to pollen, ragweed, grass, mold, etc., the message from physicians at the University of Chicago Division of the Biological Sciences and the Pritzker School of Medicine is: See your doctor early. The best care is continued treatment well in advance of an acute attack.

"Each attack damages tissue, reduces airflow through the nasal passageways, and increases the sensitivity to further reaction-producing stimuli," says Dr. Richard M. Rothberg, professor of pediatrics and pathology at Wyler Children's Hospital, operated by the Home for Destitute Crippled Children in affiliation with the University of Chicago.

The allergic reaction — watery eyes, sneezing and sometimes blocked sinus passages — is triggered by an immune response to an airborne substance such as pollen or mold.

Two methods of treatment most commonly used by internists, pediatricians and allergists are treatment with drugs, including antihistamines which can prevent damage and reduce secretions in the upper respiratory tract, and treatment with inoculations of the offending allergen (allergic agent) to build the body's supply of blocking antibodies against that particular irritant.

Each method, say University of Chicago physicians, employs a long-term approach to the patient's problem, sometimes beginning treatment six to 10 weeks before the season when the specific allergic stimulus is in the environment.

Saluti! — Nearly 25 per cent of all wines imported into the United States for the first quarter of this year came from Italy. The 2,094 million gallons represent an 11 per cent increase over the same period of 1974.

Butch Cassidy's Sister Comes To His Defense; A Robin Hood?

VERNAL, Utah (AP) — Much of what is written about outlaw Butch Cassidy is myth, says his 91-year-old sister, who claims the famous badman died quietly in 1937 in the West, not in Bolivia.

"It's an unmarked grave, in a spot that's a family secret. But at least now, Butch Cassidy ... isn't going to be hunted any more," says Lola Parker Betenson.

Not Happy Over Road-Widening

OLNEY, Md. (AP) — Refugees from lower Montgomery County and Washington brought new prosperity to this rural village, but they also brought traffic congestion that's changing its face.

The State Highway Administration plans to widen Maryland 108 and Maryland 97 to four lanes each for 1,000 feet on both sides of their intersection at the center of town.

Among the casualties will be Olney Drugs, a 150-year-old oak tree, the tinsmith's home and shop, and the blacksmith's shop, which has been a local landmark since 1885.

John Simmel, 23, the manager of the drug store, shook his head at the prospect of the construction of the aging crossroads buildings.

"It'll ruin the town. All that concrete, no trees and grass left," he said.

He grew up in the community after his family moved from Wheaton 15 years ago to get away from congestion and have more land.

Back then there were just two stop signs at the intersection and only 42 new houses in the only development. Thousands of homes and a shopping center have been built here since then.

The worn steps to the drug store's stonewalled basement led downward and the ceiling beams are still covered by bark. Fire officials banned the basement's use for storage space.

Built in the early 1800s as a farmhouse, the building has served as a hardware and cosmetics shop. It has been a drug store for 20 years and some of the merchandise and ancient medicine bottles are covered with dust. An old-fashioned fan with wooden paddles hangs from the ceiling.

In a recent interview, Mrs. Betenson characterized her brother — Robert LeRoy Parker — as a dependable boy with ambitions and many friends.

"It's not that I'm trying to make light of what he did. He was death on banks, no getting around it. But there was goodness, too. I have letters from people throughout the United States telling me of the kindnesses he did," Mrs. Betenson said.

While the outlaw committed his share of crimes, she said many of the stories about him were exaggerated. He couldn't have done everything he was accused of doing because a man couldn't travel that fast in those days, she said.

"But his actions really hurt the family. When he turned to crime, he stopped writing home. But every time my mother would read about him, she'd get just a little sadder."

"We still loved him. But none of us approved or understood what he was doing. And it hurt our mother so much," Mrs. Betenson said.

At one point, Cassidy wanted to quit his outlaw life, but "he was too ashamed to come home. So he got in deeper and deeper," she said.

Mrs. Betenson participated recently in the first meeting of the National Association of Outlaw and Lawman History at Brown's Park in northeastern Utah. The location is one of many used by Cassidy and other outlaws.

Mrs. Betenson said her brother picked up his outlaw name in two stages. He took the last name of a friend, Mike Cassidy. Butch got from working in a butcher shop in Rock Springs, Wyo.

"The people used to call him the Robin Hood of the West. He helped so many, that's why he never got turned in. In his heart, he believed simply that the rich man had too much and the poor man too little. So he set about redistributing things a bit, that's all," she said, adding that her brother never killed a man.

Mrs. Betenson, along with Dora Flack, recently completed a book entitled, "Butch Cassidy, My Brother."

"The Pinkerton detective files show that in 1909 he shot his seriously wounded friend, the Sundance Kid, and then committed suicide rather than face capture in Bolivia. But there is no real proof to back it up."

"And I know it didn't happen, because he came home and stayed on the family ranch in 1925," Mrs. Betenson said. She said Cassidy told the family that a friend of his had identified the body in Bolivia as his so that he would not be pursued.

"You know, he would have quit long before he did if he had let him. But like he told us, when a man gets down, they like to keep him there," she said.

Each method, say University of Chicago physicians, employs a long-term approach to the patient's problem, sometimes beginning treatment six to 10 weeks before the season when the specific allergic stimulus is in the environment.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) This is a good day to meet with an associate socially and come to a better understanding for the future. Be logical.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JULY 28, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You want to put some new arrangements in operation, but if you try to hold on to the past, you can have a most difficult time indeed. Think in terms of some entirely new outlets which can counteract at least in part vexing delays.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can do little now about conditions, so don't let kin bother you about them today. Find ways to save more.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use own good judgment to plan a better future and don't rely so much on partners who aren't thinking straight now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Reach a better understanding with new acquaintances and you straighten out present situations. Concentrate on personal matters.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Confer with experts to get those problems handled wisely and well, instead of poring over them yourself. Avoid depressing person.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You're worried; go to new places, be with cheerful individuals and throw off that despondency. Seek to make new friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Keeping promises you've made will be easy provided you steer clear of one who gossips and wastes your time. Don't be fooled.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Listening to the good ideas of a partner instead of relying so much on a bigwig is wise now, and you get ahead faster.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Forget that trip and find the right new system to improve your practical affairs. Discuss with fellow worker viewpoints different from yours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find a new mode of recreation that is more to your liking on a cultural level. Forget responsibilities for a bit and renew your energies.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Steer clear of a highly nervous partner now who could get you off the track and listen to what a close family tie suggests.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are thinking clearly and can now improve routines, look into new outlets that are more lucrative, etc. See an invaluable partner.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Concentrate upon important financial affairs today and don't go off on any foolish tangents. Get expert advice on finances.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to make the most of new conditions, so give the finest education to help make this quality pay off handsomely. Teach early to finish whatever has been started, but to later find a way to get others to carry through with the lesser work as he or she gets projects rolling. Then there can be great success here. Religion early for best results.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Plant Millions Of Seedlings

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The Southern Forest Institute says wood-using industries in the South have planted more than 579.9 million seedlings in the last year.

The institute said the 13-state southern region leads the nation in tree regeneration. It said 11 new pine and hardwood seedlings were planted for every person in the south during the past year.

During that time, southern paper, pulp, plywood, lumber and other industries donated or sold an additional 77.7 million seedlings to private landowners, increasing the total of trees planted in the South to 657,603,374—a 14 per cent boost over last year, said the institute.

5,000 MILES OF ROADS BUILT IN JAMAICA
KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—There are more than 5,000 miles of "drivable" roads in Jamaica, an island about the size of Connecticut. This amount of mileage is explained by the fact that Jamaica is very mountainous and the roads wind around peaks, hills and valleys.

SHOWTIME

For The Week Of July 27-August 2, 1975

John Denver To Host

Superstar John Denver will host "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" for vacationing Johnny Carson on Monday, July 28, and Tuesday, July 29. The program airs from 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Ch. 6-7.

John Denver is a natural. And the naturalness of this singer-composer who wears wire-rimmed spectacles and a mop of long, blond hair, has made him a smashing success - genuinely loved by young and old, hip and square.

Born Henry John Deutchendorf, Jr., he changed his name (after his favorite city) when his record company said his original moniker wouldn't fit on a label.

A singer-guitar player since he was a kid moving from town to town with his Air Force father, left his architectural studies at Texas Tech to hit the folk club circuit during the mid-60's and ended up as Chad Mitchell's replacement in the Mitchell Trio. After 2½ years with the group, he took out on his own.

The loneliness of travel prompted John to write "Leaving on a Jet Plane." Mary Travers' recording of it became a No. 1 song on 1969 charts and it was used as a theme by an airline.

John has earned many gold records since then, including the single "Take Me Home, Country Roads" from the album "Poems, Prayers and Promises." This was followed by "Aerie," "Rocky Mountain High" (largest seller - 1,200,000), "Farewell, Andromeda," "Rocky Mountain Suite" and "Annie's Song."

John and his wife, Anne, live in the beautiful setting of Aspen, Colo. He says of the place: "I go outside in the morning and look around at the mountains and say, 'Wow! I'm not on vacation, I live here!'"

'TONIGHT' HOST— John Denver hosts the "Tonight Show" Monday, July 28 and Tuesday, July 29 at 11:30 p.m. on NBC-TV.

Jim Stafford In Own Summer Show

For a fellow who never studies music, Jim Stafford, starring on ABC-TV's summer series, "The Jim Stafford Show," premiering Wed., July 30, 10:00 to 11:00 p.m., on Ch. 3-5-12, has come a long way. With the release of his first album, "Jim Stafford," he had four concurrent hits — "Swamp Witch," "My Girl Bill," "Spiders and Snakes," and "Wildwood Weed" — an achievement that none other in the record-setting business of music making can claim.

Born in Eloise, Fla. ("Where you can see a 'gator within a couple of hundred yards"), Jim says his first ambition was to become a preacher. "I was six years old at the time. A little later, however, I discovered the guitar and sort of lost my calling," Stafford admits.

After graduation from high school, Jim headed to Nashville and soon was working with the famed Grand Ole Opry.

From Nashville, Stafford moved to Atlanta. He teamed with a drummer and when the drummer departed, Stafford carried on alone. He's been working solo ever since, sharing the stage with his 'group,' which consists of guitars, banjos and harmonicas. He has his own rhythm section, manipulating a tambourine with his right foot and a set of bass pedals with his left. He also carries on conversations with a "man" who lives in his guitar. Jim also does many characterizations.

Stafford is more than a songwriter and song performer. He is a storyteller in the Mark Twain tradition. A genuine humorist, he takes his lead and makes his laughs from insightful observations of the everyday scene.

SUMMER SHOW— Jim Stafford, a one-man entertainment conglomerate, who is a recording star, musician, composer, singer and humorist, kicks up his heels in the premiere outing of his six-week ABC-TV summer series, "The Jim Stafford Show," which airs Wednesday, July 30 (10-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

New Game Show Earns Chuckles And Cheers In July 31 Premiere

Carry a loaf of bread while sliding across a greased pole suspended over a pool!

Balance an egg on your head while riding down an obstacle course in a golf cart!

Dive into a pool and climb onto a raft to dress up in formal garb!

These are but a few of the comical challenges which bring chuckles to the audience and cheers for the contestants on the premiere program of "Almost Anything Goes," a hilarious game show series unlike any before, which begins on the ABC Television Network, Thursday, July 31, 8:00 to 9:00 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

The games pit small American towns against each other in wildly imaginative competitions reminiscent of three-legged races of the Sunday picnic tradition.

In the premiere show, teams made up of men and women residents from Webster, Mass., Burrilville, Rhode Island, and Putnam, Conn. compete for the Eastern Regional Championship.

Charlie Jones is the play-by-play announcer with Lynn Shackelford as the color reporter and Dick Whittington as the field announcer.

The games are a collection of wild obstacle courses and funny setups involving teamwork, physical agility, comical costumes, gigantic props, and - most important of all - a sense of humor. In addition to those mentioned above, the program includes the following events: Slipball - a team member jumps in a bowl-shaped court which has been greased with vegetable oil and is rocked by members of an opposing team as he tries to throw basketballs through a hoop outside the court.

Ring the Bell - a team member dressed as an astronaut is launched into space.

Down the Tubes - team members carrying chocolate cream pies fling themselves through inner tubes suspended over greased and moving runways.

Carry Pageant For 10th Time

Clicks Were Duds

When things began to click for Brian Farrell's career, the clicks turned out to be duds. He was in a string of off-Broadway flops, including an anti-war play, "Brothers," and another one called "Masquerade," "which," Brian recalls, "was the worst play I have ever seen!" Both closed after opening night.

His duds were short-lived, however, and they were followed by a small part in the touring company of "Plaza Suite" and a major part in the Broadway drama, "The Last of Mrs. Lincoln," which starred Julie Harris. While the play was not a financial success, it won Brian a 1973 Theater World Award for his outstanding performance.

Now appearing as David Hart in "Love of Life," seen Monday-Friday on CBS-TV, Brian hopes eventually to do musical comedy work in the future, and is studying singing to prepare for it. Having majored in music at the University of Indiana, he is, naturally, a music lover; he prefers vocal music - both popular and opera - and does not care for jazz.

No other member of his family is in theater or any of the arts; in that sense, Brian is a pioneer. He would like to write plays some day, but is patient, preferring to wait until he knows he has important things to say. He loves animals and can't resist an emotional involvement with stray dogs and cats, an involvement he hopes someday to put to work by offering his services to local agencies which place or care for strays.

Brian Farrell is a very young man, and, although he's not as young as David Hart, Brian is in his early twenties. His sports are tennis and skiing - both water and snow. He reads a lot, particularly books on theater.

jazzmen, on "New Orleans and All That Jazz," the next ABC News "Americans All" presentation, Sunday, July 27, 10:20-10:30 p.m. on Channel 3-12.

The story of jazz unfolds in its hometown of New Orleans, as Louis Cottrell leads a tour through the landmarks of jazz history. A stop at famed Heritage Hall, one of two jazz institutions where people can hear traditional dixieland, features Cottrell's Heritage Hall Jazz Band. The tour continues down South Rampart Street, and takes a look at the musical homes of greats like King Oliver, Jelly Roll Morton and Louis Armstrong.

Jazz is America's own homegrown music. It grew out of many combined influences, like the brass bands that played at lawn parties, and the turn-of-the-century brothels of Storyville.

American Wife," Walter Matthau is "The Movie Star" - a flamboyant Hollywood personality on a New York trip for fun and games. Anne Jackson is a suburban housewife who unwittingly has settled into a domestic rut. Patrick O'Neal is her husband, a high-powered publicity man whose services for "The Star" sometimes extend beyond getting his name in the newspaper columns.

The result is an immodest proposal in which Miss Jackson, without her husband's knowledge, arranges a business-like rendezvous with the Hollywood personality.

Rooney-eye-view Again

The CBS News Special "Mr. Rooney Goes to Washington," a Rooney-eye-view of the labyrinthine bureaucracy of the nation's capital, will be rebroadcast Monday, July 28 (10-11 PM) on CBS-TV and channel 9-11. CBS News sent Rooney to Washington to see what a non-political reporter, with no previous knowledge of the place, would find out. The assignment led him into the labyrinth of government bureaucracy. What he found out — and what he wasn't able to find out — makes up the hour long broadcast.

Rooney's study is filled with questions, like how many buildings does the government own in Washington, D. C.? The General Services Administration, whose job is to keep track of such things, said it didn't have a complete list — but it could get one for Rooney if he came up with $150.

With the end of the military draft, which was run by the Selective Service System, Rooney thought, "maybe that was an agency we could do without." However, he talked with the agency's director, who explained that it cost $47 million not to draft anyone, and why.

"All the time we were in Washington, we didn't find one single person who didn't think the government was spending too much money," Rooney says. But he also didn't find anyone who thought the government was spending too much on the individual's particular area.

Everyone also agreed that there's too much paper being written on and distributed throughout the government. Rooney found there was a government-sponsored contest for ideas to cut down on paper — and came across a request for six copies of paper relating to the contest, rather than the usual four carbons.

Rooney also looks at many of whom he calls "the good guys," competent people working in government jobs. And he looks at the city. "The first thing I tried in Washington was to find my way around," he says. "It's embarrassing the first day, when you go out the door and don't know whether you should turn left or right to get to the White House."

Rooney's uncommon talents, which have brought him three Writers Guild Awards and an Emmy, have been responsible for many memorable television broadcasts. In the last year, he wrote and produced CBS Reports: "The Colleges" and an essay, "In Praise of New York City," for the CBS News Special "New York, New York."

His previous essays produced for CBS News include "A Bird's-Eye View of America," "An Essay on Doors," "An Essay on Bridges," "An Essay on Hotels," "An Essay on Women," "Barry Goldwater's Arizona," "An Essay on Chairs," and "The Strange Case of the English Language."

"Mr. Rooney Goes to Dinner," a study of how Americans eat when they go out, where they go and why, will be presented later this season.

SWAT Stars Need Muscles

AFTER KILLER— Mark Shera, as officer Dom Luca of the S.W.A.T. (Special Weapons and Tactics) squad, scales a building during operations aimed at rescuing a hostage from a vengeful escaped convict and his gang in "Coven of Killers" on ABC-TV's "S.W.A.T." Monday, July 28 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

A real 'must' for the stars of "S.W.A.T.," seen Mondays on ABC-TV, are muscles and almost super-human strength. Their roles are not easy and they must be - and are - highly disciplined and rigorously trained.

Mark Shera, who stars as Dominic Luca is young and wiry, stands 5'9½", weighs 155 pounds and possesses all of the requirements.

Born and reared in Bayonne, New Jersey, Mark graduated from Bayonne High School before enrolling at Boston University as a theatre arts major. After receiving a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in 1971, he went to New York. Young, athletic and talented, he soon landed the role of Jesus in "Godspell," playing in New York for four months, Boston for nine months, going on a ten-month tour of Eastern cities, then returning to New York for a six-month run. Mark caught the attention of producers and he was signed to star in a CBS pilot, "Nicky's World," after "Godspell" closed. "Nicky's World" did not sell as a series, but the pilot was aired and his performance led to a guest starring role in a segment of "Kojak." Next came a co-starring role in an episode of "Gunsmoke," in which he played the brother of guest star Robert Urich.

Cher's Show Hit By 'Family Hour'

The family hour has struck many shows and the bolt has hit some harder than others. One of the hardest hit is "Cher," which is right smack in the middle of the 'prime-time family hour.' Because of this, the show will move in a new direction this September.

Some of the new plans are to shoot Cher's solos on location in Bradbury Building and Watts Towers - Los Angeles buildings - and in her home, among many places away from the set. These will be cut into various shows.

Cher is to do two new characters - one a Billie Jean King take-off - and another is a former Miss America. Also in the plans is a special Halloween show centered around magic, and Captain Kangaroo will be along on another show. There will be a Salute to the 60s with Frankie Valli, Dionne Warwick and LaBelle, plus a take off on beach party movies with Cher as Annette.

Revising Their TV Weekends

CBS-TV has revised its weekend schedule for the 1975-76 season, returning its "U.S. of Archie" series to the lineup and switching the "Harlem Globetrotters Popcorn Machine" and "Valley of the Dinosaurs" timeslots. "The Hudson Brothers Razzle Dazzle Show" will be dropped from the schedule.

2 PARTS

Victor French, who plays the recurring role of Mr. French on "Little House on the Prairie," guest stars in "The Negative Side of Death," a drama to be colorcast on the network's "Petrocelli" series during the 1975-76 season.

COURAGEOUS OFFICER — David Birney stars in "Capt. Hook" as a police officer who loses his hand in a bomb explosion but refuses to let his handicap confine him to a desk job in the department. The "Police Story" drama will be seen Tuesday, July 29, on NBC-TV.

Bad Times For 'Good Times'

If John Amos doesn't show up again at "Good Times," he will be replaced by Thalmus Rasulala. The cast of "Good Times" reported for rehearsal of the first show a couple of days ago and Amos didn't show up. It really wasn't a surprise to anyone because Amos told everyone he wasn't going to appear.
 For legal reasons, unfortunately, it is necessary for the network and the production company to go through the motions of calling a rehearsal and theoretically starting to go into production in order to show the court (if need be) that an entire production company was held up. The sad thing is that each time this happens, the star gets all the bad publicity even tho the reasons for a 'no-show'

Weaver and Louise Latham. An eccentric author invites all his former wives to his home where he explains that they are all being blackmailed in his new book and the gathering quickly proves fatal to the author. (Repeat, 90 min) are valid. Take, for instance Robert Blake, star of ABC-TV's "Baretta." The company that produces "Baretta" owe him for his overtime and he refuses to report on the set until he has been paid this amount.

Impersonations Part Of Role

Paul Hecht stars as ex-Army intelligence officer Joe Tyler, who stands in for a wealthy contractor targeted for assassination, in "The Imposter," on "NBC World Premiere Movie" Tuesday, July 29, 8:30 to 10 p.m., on Channel 6-7.
 Once involved in the case, Tyler uses other impersonations — a talent learned as an actor at a theater operated by Victoria Kent (Nancy Kelly) — to uncover a conspiracy to loot a development company. In the course of protecting the wealthy Dwight Elliot (Joe Gallison), Tyler disguises himself as a personable Louisiana millionaire planning to invest in the company.

Richard Bluel was executive producer of the Warner Bros. Television production in association with NBC-TV.

Struggle For 'Captain Hook'

Bud MacDonald thought he had the world in the palm of his hand in 1970.

He had survived combat duty with the Marines in Vietnam, and he had weathered those first few months as a rookie cop with the Los Angeles Police Department. He was a happy man when, one morning in January, the police radio told him to "see the man about found property."

The 'found property' turned out to be a package containing a bomb, and as soon as Bud touched it, it blew up and he lost his right hand.

Tuesday, July 29, 10:00 to 11:00 p.m., on Channel 6-7, "Police Story" will broadcast "Capt. Hook," a drama based on Ed 'Bud' MacDonald's life after the bomb explosion.

"The department tried to push me off into desk jobs," says Officer MacDonald. "They assigned me to counter jobs, courts and report-writing — but I kept asking to go back into the black - and - white radio car."

In the meantime, he became a 'regular' at the Police Academy.

"I had to learn to do everything with my left hand," says Bud. "I had to learn how to shoot left-handed; how to put on handcuffs; and how to fight for my life with my left hand—and I did it."

MacDonald kept up his nagging so long that the department finally gave in and reassigned him to a patrol car. He is now working the 'four to midnight' in one of the city's most active areas.

"Sure I get some strange looks from the public," he says. "People just don't expect to see a uniformed policeman with a hook in place of his hand— but I can do anything any other officer can. I just refused to accept it."

His next goal? "I want to become a detective. I'm ready to move on now. I've proved my point."

Popular Villain Gets Chance As 'Good Guy'

Ed Lauter was weaned on Humphrey Bogart, Edward G. Robinson and Jimmy Cagney so it's no wonder that when it came time for him to choose a profession he opted for movie tough guys in such films as "Midnight Man," "The Lolly Madonna War," and most recently, "The Longest Yard." "Up to now I have always been the heavy, the guy who give the hero a bad time and who by the final reel ends up six feet under."

But in "Last Hours Before Morning," a 90-minute movie for television airing Wednesday, July 30, on NBC and Ch. 6-7 (9:30 to 11:00 p.m.), Lauter not only turns good guy, but gets his first chance to indulge his taste for Hollywood's golden days. He stars as Bud Delaney, the house detective rofor an elegant Hollywood hotel, set in 1946. When a nightclub owner is found murdered in the hotel's garden, Delaney launches his own personal investigation — a pursuit that takes him to Hollywood's back stages during the industry's most flamboyant era.

"Last Hours Before Morning" is almost custom-made to my childhood fantasies," says Lauter, who recently bought a hillside home underneath the world-renowned Hollywood sign.

"I love the look — the jazzy cars, the baggy clothes, and the fast-clipped dialogue. I don't know if it's true that clothes make the man, but they certainly make an actor get into his part. When I put on Delaney's garb, I feel like Delaney inside."

Lauter finds, however, there is a hazard in playing a 1940 character. He gave up smoking six months ago and now he is right back at it again. The reason? — "Like any gumshoe of that era, Delaney smokes like a chimney."

Nine Hours Of 'Godfather'

"The Godfather" and "The Godfather, Part II," together with a large portion of the original uncut film footage, will be reconstructed by director Francis Ford Coppola and broadcast on the NBC Television Network in the early fall of 1976, it has been announced by NBC president Robert T. Howard.

The package, which will be presented as four major feature presentations totaling nine or ten hours, will involve the reassembling of all the material of both films and several hours of film not shown in theatres.

Coppola said the story will be reconstructed to alter the flashback technique of Part II and create a "totally new epic encyclopedic technique..."

PRIVATE EYE — Ed Lauter stars as a hotel private detective in Los Angeles in 1946 who works to solve a jewel robbery in "Last Hours Before Morning," the second half of "NBC Double Feature Night at the Movies" Wednesday, July 30 (9:30 - 11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Janssen Creates In A Rebroadcast

David Janssen creates an individualistic private investigator who becomes emotionally involved with a cover girl marked by a deranged photographer and finds his own life at stake, in the rebroadcast of "Smile, Jenny, You're Dead" a "Special Movie Presentation" Thursday, July 31 (9-11 PM) on channel 3W-5-12.

John Anderson, Howard Da Silva, Martin Gabel, Clu Gulager, Zalman King, Andrea Marcovici (critically hailed for "Cry Rape"), Tim McIntire, Jodie Foster (star of this season's "Rookie of the Year") and Harvey guest star. Co-starring is Barbara Leigh.

Janssen plays Harry Orwell, a likeable individual who lives at the beach and handles only those cases which intrigue him.

In "Smile, Jenny, You're Dead," model Jennifer English (Miss Marcovici), annoyed because she seems to misplace personal items, doesn't realize that she is being photographed wherever she goes by Roy St. John (King). The photographer who has hundreds of photos of Jenny, as well as her missing keys and other items, views himself as Jenny's protector in his love fantasy.

At the beach, Jenny's estranged father, Police Lt. Humphret Kenney (Da Silva), asks Orwell's help after Charley English, from whom Jenny is seeking a divorce, is murdered. Shaken, Jenny assures Orwell that although she does not need his help, retired Col. John Lockport (Anderson) with whom she is romantically involved, may.

Juror Is Next Victim

Cloris Leachman stars as a juror in a murder case who, discovering that the wrong man is on trial, finds her own life threatened by the real killer — her husband — in "Death Sentence," an ABC Television Network "Wednesday Movie of the Week," airing July 30, 8:30 p.m.

10 p.m. on channel 3-5-12. Laurence Luckinbill also stars.

Susan Davies (Miss Leachman) is a member of the jury at the trial of John Healy (Nick Nolte), accused of murdering his wife, Marilyn (C. J. Hincks). It is seemingly an open - and - shut case until the prosecution and defense attorneys bring out evidence that, in Susan's mind, appears to link her husband, Don (Laurence Luckinbill), to the crime. Susan becomes more suspicious when she learns that a car similar to Don's was seen at the Healy home the night of the murder. Susan tells her husband of this evidence but he appears to brush it off and Susan accepts his explanation.

However, with the trial over and the jury locked up in a hotel, Susan slips out and returns home for a confrontation with Don. To her shock, Don admits the murder and prepares to make Susan his next victim.

CLORIS LEACHMAN, as a juror in a murder trial, learns to her horror that not only is the accused innocent but her own husband is the murderer in "Death Sentence", the ABC-TV's "Wednesday Movie of the Week" July 30 (8:30-10:00 p.m.) on channels 3W-5-12.

Archie Begrudges The 'Purity Policy'

The 'family-time' policy being adapted by all networks this Fall is causing consternation for a great many shows that find themselves in the 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. time slots. Some are 'cleaning up,' others are moving to another time. One of these moving on is CBS' "All in the Family."
 CBS has denied that the "Family" move and family time were in any way associated, but this did not allay the suspicions, shared by Carroll O'Connor. Comments O'Connor: "I assume the reason we can't live with the 8-9 time slot is the purity policy. I don't think we could keep the show the kind it is in the 8-9 time.

If Archie can't say 'what the hell is this?' as he sits down to eat, he isn't Archie." (He also says that even last year they began to cut down the number of 'Hells' he could use.)

O'Connor caustically remarks, "Some of the shows we've done in the past wouldn't be possible at the 8 p.m. time now that they've changed it to the children's hour. I think the move is better for the content of our show. I don't think it will affect our ratings. They may be affected by natural attrition. We've been on for five seasons, and how long can a series run?"

The star's own estimate is that "Family" will run for two more seasons. In two years the actors' contracts expire and, as for himself, even if the ratings sustain, "I wouldn't want to renew. I find it a very tiring form. It's the most exhausting work I've ever done, much more so than movies and the theatre. Jean (Stapleton) seems to thrive on it. She's always on time, never ill. I asked out of four shows and I wish it were more."

TV Sets Have Beat Kitchens

Some 96 American families owned television sets in 1973, or more families than had kitchen ranges or refrigerators, so states the U.S. Census Bureau. Latest tally shows that of 96,000,000 American households, 56 owned at least one color set that year, compared with 75 of families that had ranges, 70 with refrigerators and 69 with washing machines.

 ABC-TV has changed the title of its Howard Cosell-hosted variety hour to "Saturday Night Live With Howard Cosell."

made their mark in art was in the 1940s. Just think of all the talented women who were never allowed to develop their art prior to that. What a waste.
 "I won't be really free until they are — so I'm helping all I can."

Crusader Has Selfish Reason

Victor French, the gruff and shaggy Mr. Edwards of NBC-TV's "Little House on the Prairie" (seen Wednesdays, 8-9 p.m.), is a fighter for women's liberation — but for selfish reasons.

"I hope this women's lib just grows and grows," says French. "Because I don't think American men will have freedom until American women do."

"The most messed-up members of our society are the males. American men are told, from the time they're old enough to walk, 'Don't cry! Be a man!' As a result we go through life all bound up emotionally — pounding our chests like Tarzan. "We're not even allowed to cry in a dark motion picture theatre for fear someone will see us when the lights come up.

"I don't think I was really aware of what we have done to women in this country, and the world, until I walked through a famous art museum, and noticed that the first time that women

The Karpis Gang Again On Prowl

Machine guns chattered, women screamed and fainted, two police officers dropped to the pavement as the plateglass window in the facade of a building disintegrated. Five men, clutching guns and money bags, rushed from the building and into a waiting 1934 sedan.

"Cut!" punctuated the director, and the Karpis gang had carried out another bank robbery for the cameras recording "The FBI Versus Alvin Karpis, Public Enemy Number One," the first of a series of special films, entitled "The FBI Story," dramatizing landmark cases, to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" July 31 (9-11 p.m.) on channel 9-11.

As the actors portraying the gang members returned their dummy machine guns to the prop men, and the two "shot" policemen got up and brushed the dust of the sidewalk off their uniforms, stars Robert Foxworth, who portrays Karpis, and Gary Lockwood, who plays Fred Barker, inspected the antique cars lining the street of Grass Valley, the tiny northern California village substituting for a midwestern town, circa 1930.

Long before the Hollywood film crew had arrived at the location that morning, the main street of the town had been cordoned off by local authorities and the curb lined with old automobiles. Foxworth and Lockwood attempted to estimate the current cash value of the vintage cars being used in the picture. Two trailer loads of them had been brought from Hollywood; the 30-odd others were owned by residents of the area, known as the "mother lode country." Most were prized possessions of collectors, but many were still being used for transportation by their elderly owners. The two stars estimated that the 50 cars lining the street were worth some $200,000, but could have been purchased when new for less than a quarter of that figure.

Most of the owners of the cars were content to be interested onlookers to filming, but some were actively involved as extras, wearing 1930s clothing supplied by the film's wardrobe department.

A few of the younger bit players stole disarming glances at themselves in mirrors; their long locks and sideburns had been ruthlessly shortened by the show's hairdressers to put them in character for the short-haired '30s.

As the day wore on, the abandoned bank building, which had been refurbished by Hollywood technicians, became a mecca for area residents. The mass-media class of Nevada Union High School, all 63 students, came to observe. The Thespian Society and Rough and Ready (there really is a town of that name) were on hand to get pointers, and the community theatre of Auburn Calif., had sent its director to observe.

Air Rescue In Adventure Show

Yul Brynner, Richard Widmark and George Chakiris star in "Flight From Ashiya," an adventure drama depicting the operations of the U.S. Air Rescue Service, on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" July 31, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

Three officers of the Air Rescue Service are dispatched to an area off the coast of Japan where a cargo vessel is being battered by a typhoon. They are Sgt. Mike Takashima (Brynner), Colonel Glenn Stevenson (Widmark) and Lt. John Gregg (Chakiris). As their plane heads for the wreck, their individual stories are told in flashback.

Production Of New Show Begun

Production started this month on the new NBC-TV series "Joe Forrester," starring Lloyd Bridges as a uniformed policeman on patrol in a major American city.

The first episode to be filmed, "The Witness," tells of the trauma suffered by a young bank teller when she is caught in the middle of an attempted robbery.

Cher Allman was hospitalized the two days prior to her filing for a divorce from Gregg Allman, but no one is talking about why. She then went into seclusion for about a week before production on her show for the Fall began.

Jim Stafford may not be a familiar name to a lot of people, but he certainly will be known within the next six weeks. Jim stars in his own ABC variety show for the balance of the summer, and as he says it, "I can't say our show is better than anything else ever done, but I think if the public wants to gather around the tube as a family and be entertained, they'll like it."

Sean McClory, who'll star as Pat McShane in the new CBS series, "Kate McShane" this Fall, worked as a private detective for two years when he couldn't find work as an actor.

Larry Linville, Maj. Frank Burns of "MASH," took a pay cut rather than sign a renegotiated contract offered him. It's one of the rare times in TV history that an actor has done such a thing.

Better believe any rumor you hear about unrest on the "Rhoda" set. It's now a closed set, which means no visitors are allowed, which must be an indication of something.

Viewers Polled To Pick Janssen Role

According to a research project that queried people who watch television regularly, the TV audience wanted "more of the David Janssen they loved, sympathized with and followed in 'The Fugitive', not just the competent and interesting character they've seen in some of his more recent television offerings."

The report as cited by Howard Rodman, the writer of "Smile, Jenny, You're Dead," the feature film in which Janssen stars in as a "Special Movie Presentation" Thursday, July 31, 9 to 11 p.m., on Ch. 3-5-12.

"They wanted him firm and tough, yes," Rodman said, "but with a kind, helpful, sensitive side and - because of that - vulnerable. So that's the way you'll see him in this one."

Janssen himself sees the movie in less personal terms: "Who cares what happens in a story if nobody cares about the people it happens to?" he asked in a recent interview. "When the director, the writer and I met we had no story; only the dim figure of Harry Orwell, the man the movie is about."

"We had already done a film about Harry, but it was just a one-hour story and, of necessity, all plot."

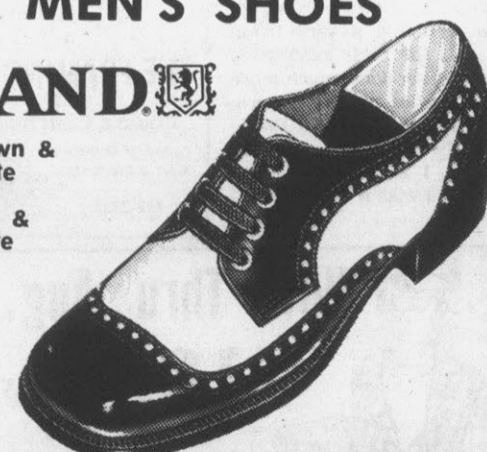

"This time we wanted to concentrate on Harry himself - what he thought about things, how he felt about life, about himself, about women, about his work as a private investigator who lives in a shack on the beach and only owns one suit."

In conversation it becomes apparent that Janssen admires "Harry O," and is possible even a little envious of the character's individualistic life style: "Harry's got the money to have his car fixed but he isn't sure he wants to - you'll almost never meet anybody in the Los Angeles area who rides busses around town, but Harry does. It gives him time to think."

Shipwreck For Film Festival

A group of kids on a sailing holiday are shipwrecked on a deserted island, set up housekeeping in a cave, elect officers for their newly formed community, and plan for their survival, in "Strange Holiday," a film from Australia, which will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, Aug. 2, (1:00 - 2:00 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

One day, after a fierce storm, the kids discover four bodies and a small boat on the beach. A survivor of the previous night's shipwreck, an older girl, tells of three men with guns taking over the ship after the storm hit, saying that only she, the ship's carpenter and the three armed men were left when the ship went aground. The following day, the bodies have disappeared.

While the carpenter explores the island, the kids come up with a plan which scares off the men. The carpenter then finds a map which indicates they are much closer to home than they thought, so a course is plotted, their boat is launched, and the strange holiday comes to an end.

"Strange Holiday" was produced by Mass-Brown Pictures Corp. in 1969. The film was directed by Mendy Brown, who also wrote the screenplay.

Burr Tillstrom's Kukla, Fran and Ollie with Fran Allison are hosts of "The CBS Children's Film Festival."

Same Old Redskin Story

Every fall, the same old story circulates through the nation's capital: the Redskins are too old. Yet every season, George Allen rallies his weathered veterans to remarkable success on the field. Although they have failed to capture the elusive Super Bowl Crown, Washington has brought winning, exciting football to a town long renowned for its losing sports teams. The Washington Redskins will face the Cincinnati Bengals in the NFL Hall of Fame Football Game, to be broadcast on Saturday, Aug. 2 from 4:00 to 7:00 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Allen's theory of building a winning team has always relied heavily on the experience and maturity of veterans, and his program has led to enormous success. While at the helm of the Los Angeles Rams, his record was 49-17-4, and with the Redskins, he has achieved a remarkable 40-16-1 record.

"I think that if you play too many rookies, too many young people, that you are not going to win a championship, you are not going to be in the playoffs," declares the coach. "I would hope that we would have a rookie player, but I found that many young people make the squad and two or three years later, they are gone. So that makes me know that somebody has made a mistake in evaluating them. And that's my responsibility."

Yet, the true success of the Redskins lies within their famed defense, which excelled once again in 1974. The front four of McDole, Briggs, Brundridge and Sistrunk is not only huge, but also fierce and competitive. Veteran Chris Hamburger anchors a sage crew of linebackers along with middle linebacker Harold "Tank" McClinton and right linebacker Dave Robinson. The strongest phase of the Washington defense is their backfield, which features super Mike Bass, tough, little Pat Fisher, speedster Brig Owens and reliable Ted Vector. Add to this Allen's multi-variations of the nickel and dime defenses, which employ extra linebackers and backs, and it is quite easy to see why they often leave opposing offenses bewildered and frustrated.

However, youthful Joe Theisman may be called on to lead the Redskin offense. Billy Kilmer appears to have the inside track for the starting quarterback slot, but if his oft-times wobbly passes begin to fail to meet their targets, Theisman will probably step in. Washington's running attack was a weak 11th in the NFC last year, and Joe's proven running ability puts him in an even more favorable position.

Maturity, confidence, spirit, depth and emotion all are key words in the George Allen vocabulary, which more often than not spells winning football. Add to that pride and ability, and you have another Washington Redskin club that will be competing for the division title.

Passing was the team's chief

Qualified For World Series

Young Tom Watson, seeking his first major tournament title, captured a back-and-forth 18-hole play-off with Australian Jack Newton recently to win the British Open - and gain a berth in the 1975 World Series of Golf at Akron, Ohio.

Coverage of the World Series of Golf will be presented for the 14th consecutive year on NBC-TV Sept. 6 and 7, from the Firestone Country Club.

Watson parred the finishing hole of the Carnoustie, Scotland, Golf Links while Newton bogeyed, giving the 25-year-old, deadlocked at nine-under-par 279 during regulation play, forcing the play-off.

QUARTERBACK Joe Theisman, the outstanding young signal-caller from Notre Dame, will take over the reins of the Washington Redskins, as they go against the Cincinnati Bengals in the 1975-AFC-NFC Hall of Fame Football Game. The inter-conference battle will be televised live and exclusively on an expanded version of "ABC's Wide World of Sports" Saturday, August 2 (4-7 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Concentration Is Golfer's Big Need

For the weekend duffer, the word "concentration" is easier to say than it is to apply to a round of golf.

Bobby Nichols, defending champion of the Canadian Open Golf Championship, which will be broadcast this weekend on CBS-TV, talks about concentration — the type needed to be a winner on the professional golf tour.

"I'm not sure if I can tell you exactly what it is," the big easygoing Nichols says, "and I'm not certain many other guys can either."

"When you win, I know it's because of good concentration, because everyone of these guys on the PGA tour can play. When you have complete concentration, you can think about every shot, no matter what type it is. When you don't have it, you are thinking about everything but golf."

Bobby goes on to comment that "when I have it, I wish I knew how to keep it for a while. One thing you sure can't do is tell yourself to concentrate, and if you have to remind yourself, you have no chance."

Reflecting on his two tour victories in 1974, which, in addition to the Canadian, included the San Diego Open, Bobby says "It was funny, because I didn't feel like I was going to win."

"For some reason, that's the way it usually is with me. At the Westchester Classic in 1973, I couldn't explain how I won, because I didn't have a winning feeling during the tournament. I wasn't playing that good."

He adds with a laugh, "You don't always win when you are playing your best, you win when you are scoring your best, and there is a difference, especially for me, because I've usually been the scrambling type of player."

Again, a big grin creases his tanned face. "I wonder what that means? But it all goes back to concentration. When you have it you can score. You know the shot you have to hit and you are able to play it the way you must."

NO CLUTTER, PLEASE!

Don Sutton of the Dodgers, said he tried to ignore newspapers as much as possible. "You can clutter your mind by reading too many things about yourself," the Los Angeles righthander said.

OUTSPOKEN tennis star Rosemary Casals will compete against Valerie Ziegenfuss in the pressure point feature of the CBS Tennis Classic on Sunday, July 27 at 3:30 p.m.

Final Series Segment

"'Moses — The Lawgiver' is a parable of our time," explains producer Vincenzo Labella. "We have in no way updated the Bible. Still, when you look at the series of special programs, in a large sense, you are looking at today."

Labella is discussing a project that took him to locations in Italy and Israel, working with a cast of international stars, to create "Moses — The Lawgiver," a series of major drama specials. The last presentation will be shown Saturday, Aug. 2 (10:00-11:00 PM) on Channel 9-11. Burt Lancaster stars as Moses, with Anthony Quayle as Aaron, Ingrid Thulin as Miriam, and Irene Papas as Zipporah.

"Our theme has been contrast between law, authority and the right of individual freedom," continues Labella, discussing a concern he feels has been with humanity since the beginning of the earliest social order.

"Our parallel is with oppression everywhere today," he says. "It is with whatever rebellion man feels he has to make against repressive law and hypocritical convention. Our story emerged from the absolute need of man to achieve some sort of self-imposed discipline. We all want freedom, yet freedom for the sake of freedom is not enough."

The story line followed by the specials, which were taken from the Book of Exodus, tells of the plight of the Israelites who were an enslaved nation, used by the Egyptians to build pyramids. They are led out of bondage by Moses. But they are led almost reluctantly . . . fearful of the unknown and frightened of their harsh leader.

An Angry Moses — Burt Lancaster, as Moses expresses anger against his people, the Israelites by destroying the tablets on which their laws have been written, in the final presentation in the "Moses — The Lawgiver" series of specials Saturday, August 2 (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR ABIGAIL VAN BUREN ("Dear Abby")

What's the most unusual letter you've ever received?
—James Wagner, Ann Arbor, Mich.

● This one prompted the most requests for reprints: "I am the most heartbroken person on earth. I always found time to go everywhere else but to see my old, gray-haired parents. They sat at home alone, loving me just the same. It's too late now to give them those few hours of happiness I was too selfish and too busy to give, and now when I go to visit their graves and look at the green grass above them, I wonder if God will ever forgive me for the heartaches I must have caused them. I pray that you will print this, Abby, to tell those who still have parents to visit them and show their love and respect while there's still time. For it is later than you think. Signed: TOO LATE."

FOR WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

Why do you use such big words in your columns when so few people understand their meaning without referring to a dictionary?—Mrs. Joan M. Herz, New London, N.H.

● Why make champagne when so few people drink it? Because some do enjoy it—and among those ignorant of it, there are a few who will venture to spend the money to try it and will find pleasure. Looking up new words is cheap. But the rewards are as intoxicating as champagne.

FOR TOTIE FIELDS

What is your biggest weakness besides food?—R.O., Visalia, Calif.

● Sales. I live for them. My husband says if blubber's going cheap at the North Pole, I'll be there. He's convinced I'm in show business to supplement my real business—shopping at sales. I once bought 12 pairs of stockings, greatly reduced, but even finding they were minus the feet didn't dishearten me. Just like the pilot who goes right up after a crash, I ran right out and got myself a new dress—reduced, of course!

FOR RONA JAFFE, author of "Family Secrets"

Why are there no explicit sex scenes in your book when that's the style now?—K.N., Hamilton, Ohio

● Because today people can read all that in manuals. People used to ruffle through novels for the "juicy" parts, but today they want more—a story and characters that will hold their interest. Those who are turned off by glaring sex and violence in contemporary novels are reading my book and then giving it to their children—and parents—to read.

FOR BOBBY MURCER, San Francisco Giants outfielder

Do you resent it when writers say the New York Yankees got the better deal when you went to the Giants in exchange for Bobby Bonds?—John D. Bateman, Coal Grove, Ohio

● I sure do. I don't think anyone will be able to say who got the better deal until at least the end of the season. And maybe not for several seasons. I wish Bonds all the best in New York. He's a fine player. But I'm going to play as hard as I can for the Giants and try to win for my team.

FOR KARL MALDEN, movie-TV actor

I read in FAMILY WEEKLY that your real name is Mladen Sekulovich. How did you receive your present name of Karl Malden?—Mrs. John W. Howell, Cumberland, Wis.

● While playing in summer stock early in my career, I realized the name Mladen Sekulovich had certain drawbacks for someone who wanted his name in lights. So I changed Mladen to Malden. I took Karl because I liked the name.

FOR MARLO THOMAS

Why aren't actors and actresses heroes to the public any more?—David Barrett, Albany, Ga.

● Too much is known about celebrities. The more you know, the less the mystery. In the old days, people weren't photographed at home, the way they are now. There were no in-depth interviews. Today, when you "make it" you're on the cover of everything. You have no secrets. Years ago the studios purposely kept their stars under wraps—to make them remote and appealing.

FOR SCOTT NEWMAN, actor son of Paul Newman

As a parachute instructor, exactly how safe do you think parachuting is as a sport?—A.K., Youngstown, Ohio

● Do you know that out of two million jumps each year, the fatality rate is between 25-36, making parachuting safe when compared with the high death rate from autos? And if you broke down those chute casualties, you'd find the jumper was negligent or did something contrary to what he was taught. I've trained hundreds of students and I've never lost one.

FOR RICH LITTLE

Why do you think impersonators are always so popular?—T.N.N., Denton, Texas

● There are many ways to act and sing, but there's only one way to mimic Wayne or Carson or Brando or Bogart—the right way. The audience feels like an examining board. They're testing the applicant to see if he's going to fail or pass. They have fun determining the accuracy of the impressionist onstage. It makes them important, not simply entertained.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

I've been in love with Alexis Smith since I first watched her slink through those movies in the '40's. What's she like now?—D. O'K., Santa Rosa, Calif.

● Married, for one thing (to actor Craig Stevens). And you're going to get to see her slink through another movie soon—as the star of Jackie Susann's "Once Is Not Enough." You may not like this, but Alexis hates the past. She says: "I don't sit around and drool over snapshot albums or hear an old song and daydream about the first time I heard it. I go for Paul Williams and Neil Diamond—not the singers of yesterday. If I'm asked, 'Do you remember?' I say, 'No, I don't.' I have a short memory span. In fact, Craig is always astonished that I remember him when he comes home at night!"

A Great Biographer's Personal Portrait:

How Judy Garland Used Her "Extra Senses" On Audiences—And Men

In a writing career of more years than I like to think of, it has been my good fortune to deal intimately—that is, with the almost-psycho-analytical intimacy of the biographer—with some of the fascinating women of our time, seeking to probe, to learn, to understand the unique and peculiar gifts that made them what they were.

None, however, has been such a challenge—and so overwhelming an experience—as Judy Garland, the subject of my just-published biography. She was every extraordinary woman I have known wrapped into one, but far bigger than life, and, above all else, touched with genius.

By Gerold Frank

What was Judy Garland's power? How could she mesmerize the thousands in her audiences, step out on a stage and command it so compellingly that nothing existed save that tiny figure (she stood less than five feet), those huge, dark eyes, and that voice, with its heartbreak, its Caruso note, that tore at your very being and simply took you out of yourself.

First and foremost, she was a magician. A sorceress. She possessed not only that sixth sense we read about (she always liked to say, "Remember, I'm a black Irish witch, like my mother!") but a seventh, an eighth, a ninth sense. She had her own radar. It picked up, it tracked down, everything. She was the most acutely aware woman I have known—an exquisitely sensitive instrument, tuned to sounds no one else heard, reacting to emotions others were not even aware they felt.

She was like a supersensitive microphone. You and I, listening, might hear a leaf drop; to her, it was a house crashing. You and I might be conscious of a preoccupied glance from a friend or intimate—she felt it like a physical blow. Even now her children —Liza Minnelli, 29, her daughter by Vincente Minnelli, the director, and Lorna, 22, and Joey Luft, 20, her children by Sid Luft, for many years her manager—like her, can enter a room and know at once if something is wrong. Judy could walk into a room and instantly feel the flavor of it, sense the inner play and counterplay of the personalities in it. It was a sensitivity so highly tuned that it explained both the infinite joy and the infinite suffering she knew. Profound as was her ability to suffer, so was her capacity to enjoy; despite all you may have read, Judy's life had more of delight and fulfillment than of tragedy.

Judy was one of the wittiest, funniest, sharpest and most enchanting women of her time, with a sense of mischievous irony, a wild, raffish humor and a defiance of the fates that perplexed even those who knew her best. How many of her cataclysmic experiences were fantasy, built out of the world of fantasy in which she lived—and how much was truth? For remember—she was not only magician, sorceress and wonder-worker, but consummate actress, teller and maker of tales, who saw at once and grasped immediately how mundane the world could be and, instantly, with her skill, wit and unbelievably sensitive perceptions, transformed it into pure magic.

Judy Garland could be whatever she wanted to be, depending upon the situation, and the two situations that called out the real wonder-worker in her were being in love—and being onstage. Then she was her happiest, her most precocious, then her radar was so astonishing as to be almost frightening. She became whatever was required of her (sensing the need of the audience, or the lover)—child or adult, adorably helpless or superbly in command.

And Judy, always, was in love. For all her perceptiveness and all her intelligence, she was the ultimate romantic. Her father was a movie-house operator; from the age of two she had grown up watching (and believing) the fan-

"You and I, listening, might hear a leaf drop; to her, it was a house crashing. You and I might be conscious of a preoccupied glance from a friend or intimate—she felt it like a physical blow."

Judy was noted for her "capacity to enjoy" (as above). At right she is with her mother Ethel, her sister Jimmy and Jimmy's daughter Judalein.

tasies unfolding on the screen. When, at 13, she was signed by Hollywood, that fantasy became real on the MGM lots, where kings and queens and courtiers in their robes moved about, and dreams were made with all the earmarks of reality, so that 60 million Americans a year could live within that dream at their local movie.

To be in love was Judy's natural state of being. Falling in love meant for her exactly what the words say: a delicious, delirious, overwhelming, intoxicating, headlong descent into ecstasy, a kind of drunkenness of mind, soul and body, utter rapture. When she was in love, her man was Galahad, he was every knight who had ever won guerdon from his fair lady, he was the epitome of everything a woman dreamed of and sought in a man.

Again, it was Liza who put it best to me: "Mama could make princes out of paupers." She did it by the power of her belief, the hypnotic belief that made her audiences believe when she

ABOUT THE AUTHOR:

Gerold Frank is the author of "Judy," just published by Harper and Row ($12.50), the best of the spate of new biographies of Judy Garland. Mr. Frank also wrote "The Boston Strangler," "Beloved Infidel" (with Sheilah Graham), "Too Much Too Soon" (about Diana Barrymore) and "I'll Cry Tomorrow" (Lillian Roth).

Jill Kremenitz

sang "The Man That Got Away"—you knew the man had got away, you wept with her for her loss. When she sang, "The wind grows colder—," you felt goose pimples, you shivered; she made you believe the lyrics as she believed, as she believed in love, as she believed in the man she loved.

And that sensitivity, those sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth senses, enabled her to keep watch on her man, it seemed, from the very back of her head. If he was in the same room she did not have to see him to know what he thought, felt, what went on within him; she sensed it by that same extraordinary radar that came into play when she was onstage. From the stage she could track down a tiny clump of disinterest anywhere in a huge audience, and know it immediately. She knew if a man in the twentieth row was not reacting ecstatically enough; she would dash backstage, gulp a quick swallow of whiskey and soda—pure liquor was too harsh for her throat—exclaim, "I'm going out and nail that goon!" and back she would be on the stage, projecting daggers of energy, until the man in the twentieth row found himself standing up, applauding madly, tears streaming down his cheeks, not even aware what she was willing upon him. She had tracked him down, she had fixed on him, and he was her slave.

And when it came to the man she loved?

If she could transform an audience of thousands into near-maniacs, standing up on their seats, cheering, applauding, screaming, "Judy, we love you!"—imagine how powerful that laser beam of pure emotion when directed at an audience of one: the man she wanted?

That radar astonished her husbands. She was married five times, and each husband, in his own time, was mesmerized by her. If the two were separated, Judy on the road, he busy with his own projects, she sensed what was going on within him even from miles away. Suddenly there would be a wire to him, a telephone call, a gift in the mail—out of a clear sky, completely unexpected—to drive her back into his mind, making it impossible for him to forget her even for a moment.

It was as though she were in tune with him, on the same wave-beat, aware when her beat in him was soft or retarded, or needed stimulation—how dare he, at any time, anywhere, not have her uppermost in his mind! There wasn't a moment when they were apart that she did not seem instinctively to know when to make him aware of her—she knew what was going on in him, and this appeared to be true whether he was in the same room with her or oceans apart!

The man married longest to her—Sid Luft, for nearly 13 years—would shake his head in disbelief each time this power would manifest itself. It was uncanny. How did she do it? How explain this witchcraft of hers, that phenomenal sensitivity? It brought her both ecstasy and despair, that exquisite invisible antenna that made her able to recognize the still-inarticulated thought behind a man's eyes. "She's got a spell on me!" Luft would exclaim, utterly baffled. She knew what he thought almost before he did. He might be saying A to her, but she read B in his eyes—and Judy knew it was B. And later, to his astonishment, he would realize that yes, he had really meant B. How did she know?

This was Judy Garland. It explains our unending fascination with her. It explains why 40 cameras focused on her at the same moment would produce 40 photographs—and each would be different, and each would be Judy Garland, and each would not be Judy Garland—she was that prismatic and quicksilver-like. Like a diamond, a thousand facets glittered from her, each reflecting the world to her, giving her a thousand messages, each blinding the spectator and, together, utterly dazzling him—and, in the end, consuming her.

AT LAST! A DOCTOR WHO SAYS:

Take Food, Not Medicine, If You Suffer from Any of These Ills!

"Why do I AVOID prescribing drugs?" says this brilliant physician, who has cured thousands of patients with nothing more than ordinary food alone! For these four vital reasons!"

1. Because drugs do not produce health. They merely mask the symptoms of a disease... cover up the condition, while the body struggles on valiantly to cure itself.
2. This is the reason why so many men and women, of all ages, no sooner fight their way out of one ailment, than they fall right into another. Why they are always "half-sick". Why they never really know what it means to be completely free of pain, in glowing health. Because they, and their doctors, do nothing more than merely fight off each new attack, and never drain out the poison that is left from that attack, or rebuild the vital weakened tissue before it can fall prey to a new disease!

It Is "Tissue Weakness" That Opens The Door To One New Disease After Another! And NO Drug—Only Food—Can Build REAL TISSUE STRENGTH Again!

3. The lasting way to fight disease, then, is not just to counter-attack each new symptom in its turn... but to build such sheer physical strength into each threatened cell of your body that the organism that causes that disease is either destroyed, or rendered harmless, the very instant it enters your body!
4. This is done in two ways: First, to use a medical-diet to drain out the poisons that make your body weak today. And, finally, to use a second, even more powerful medical-diet to pour Super-Nutrients—Nature's own medicines—into every crippled organ of that body... not only to force out that specific disease, as fast as humanly possible, but also to leave that organ perhaps even healthier than before it was first attacked!

See How This NATURAL Method Has Worked—In Thousands Of Case Histories, From Every Walk Of Life, And With Almost Every Ailment You Can Imagine!

Let Dr. Nittler's patients speak for themselves: "When I came to you I suffered from swelling and tingling of extremities, almost constant hunger, periodic weakness, great sensitivity to glare and loud noise... Since becoming your patient I find myself energetic and alert until nearly midnight, awake fully by 7:30 or 8 each morning, in good spirits, not sluggish, and continuing throughout the day glad to be alive, performing challenging tasks!"

"Before I became your patient, I had visited several skin specialists hoping to find help in the removal of what appeared to be growths on my face. Biopsies were taken; result negative. I asked how to get rid of these growths; how to prevent their growing back. I received a shrug of the specialist's shoulder (later, his bill!); he didn't know! Dr. Nittler took one look at the area involved and prescribed (natural) medication for external application which within one week's time cleared up the difficulty. It has not returned."

And Still More Thrilling Results! All Told In The Patient's Own Documented Words!

"However, on Easter Sunday, March 29, 1970, I suffered not only another occlusion, but an acute cardiac arrest. This was preceded by three days of intense weariness, fatigue and restlessness... Only extreme good luck made it possible for me to write these words... They (his regular physicians) believed open heart surgery to be the only hope for giving me a normal life span... It was at this point that I was referred to Dr. Nittler... after his initial examination and after reviewing my medical history... he started me on his "basic heart program"... Within weeks, I noticed great improvement... an increased surge of well-being with each passing week. My family doctor continues to monitor my case. He cannot, at this point, rule out the open heart surgery recommended by his peers, but he is honest enough to admit I've shown great improvement. He says my heart is beating more slowly and stronger... My laboratory tests are all normal."

"I've been subject to asthma all my life. It would come with a cold or when I laughed or exercised too hard. The situation became dramatically worse when we moved to Santa Cruz in 1966.

For some reason I'd catch a cold every four to six weeks... Only when I got it, it would go to my chest, develop into asthma, and I could hardly breathe. I was fed up with being sick and tired all the time... So I went through Dr. Nittler's whole program... Now (1971) the few colds I catch are very mild. I can't even remember the last time I had asthma with or without a cold!"

"In the latter part of November past, I broke out in an allergic dermatitis—severe hives... in addition to the hives, I would get a severe pain in an area above the right kidney... It was an acute shattering pain that immobilized me. I was next given cortisone. After 24 hours this would lessen the severity of both hives and pain. As long as I continued with cortisone... I was fine, but when I stopped, severe hives and pain recurred. Then back to cortisone for four or five days, followed by hives and pain. I seasawed back and forth in this manner for several weeks... A friend of mine gave me Dr. Nittler's phone number and begged me to call him... Then on the tenth day under Dr. Nittler's care, something wonderful (to me, a miracle) happened—I was free of my ailments! A staggering weight had been lifted from both my shoulders and my wife's... Now I am in the thirteenth month after the doctor's care, enjoying the best of health and feeling great."

And Literally Thousands Upon Thousands Of Case Histories More! ALL FROM NATURAL "SUPER-FOOD" TECHNIQUES LIKE THESE, THAT YOU CAN USE TOMORROW!

Again, to list only a few examples of the step-by-step "Super-Food" Treatment given you:
Home treatment for constipation that works through your skin, and removes internal poisons, painlessly and automatically, at the same time it restores normal functions.
How to increase the blood flow (and therefore the life-giving oxygen) not only to your heart tissues, but your entire circulatory system. (As just one side-benefit of this new, natural therapy, cold feet simply feel warm and good again!) This process automatically lowers the work load of your heart, and your lungs, and so, as another marvelous side-benefit, almost immediately diminishes the ever-increasing shortness of breath!
How to get rapid relief from gallbladder pain. A treatment that also may enable you to actually, painlessly pass a stone or two (and get rid of them for good). And, at the same time, stimulate the flow of bile from your liver, and begin simultaneously stomach-healing food-therapy.

Why hemorrhoids do not have to be endured any longer! A simple capsule that may yield apparent benefits in a day or two, with restoration of normal function and comfort in a few weeks, just as it has in case after case in Dr. Nittler's files!
How to keep from being poisoned by commercial food sprays. This method simply removes the spray from fruits and vegetables—in minutes!

A new way to brush your teeth that costs nothing. And that greatly increases your powers of digestion!
How, if you suffer from an acute illness, you can feed your body healing food-ingredients through the skin. That help you, in seconds!
How to cut down overproduction of stomach acid almost immediately, without taking a thing!

PAIN-CAUSING POISONS LITERALLY POUR OUT OF YOUR BODY!

The best and most ancient method of healing wounds. (Animals do this instinctively.)
A do-it-yourself prostate massage that involves only a simple motion with the legs and soles of your feet... plus a little-known and delicious food that greatly aids in the normal function of this important gland.
What to do for repeated violent pains in the chest (often mistaken for heart trouble or even attack). How to tell the difference at once. And then use a simple natural spray that relieves this torturous pain in minutes, for hours!
The inexpensive food that has fantastic results with cold, and even flu! As Dr. Nittler says: "This remedy alone cures many cases of flu."
Why Dr. Nittler dares to say: "I have known very severe long-standing cases of (Athlete's Foot) respond dramatically after one application!"
And why he also says: "I have seen a deep nasty boil on a cheek drain through the skin in one night with the use of this (natural food product). The infection was on the pad, there was no infection left in the boil and no wound visible."
PLUS: emergency treatments for burns that prevent scarring... a simple remedy for poison ivy that works... how to melt away warts (and even some brown spots)... a non-prescription product (as are all the other remedies given here) that has a wonderful healing effect on the mucous membranes of the intestinal tract... home remedies for internal parasites... what you must do, at once, for diarrhea... how Dr. Nittler treats

IMPROVEMENT BOOKS CO., Dept. 9569, 13490 N.W. 45th Ave., Opa Locka, Florida 33059

I smoked the same brand of cigarettes for 16 years. Here's what made me stop.

The pleasure I get from a cigarette is important to me. And I've been pretty loyal to the taste I like.

But even up here in the small town I live in I've heard all the things they've been saying against smoking and against 'tar' and nicotine.

Yet I didn't want to quit. I enjoyed it too much.

So every once in a while I'd try one of those low 'tar' cigarettes. To me they were like smoking cabbage.

Then one day my wife said, "Bill, here's a new cigarette I've been reading about."

It was Vantage. I lit it up skeptically. But was I surprised! It tasted as good as my old brand. I found out that while Vantage isn't the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette I can buy, it sure is the one I can enjoy. In my book that means a lot.

Because of Vantage I gave up my old brand without giving up anything I really wanted.

Strange Forces That Guide a Child's Behavior

True or False: If you're shocked when your small child starts to bring home four-letter words, you shouldn't let him know it. (See number 2)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Regardless of a child's age, "forbidden fruits are sweeter," and to forbid something is to make it more desirable.
2. If you're shocked when your small child starts to bring home four-letter words, you shouldn't let him know it.
3. How intelligent a child is depends on when he was born.
4. The treatment a child gets from adults depends on his looks and whether the youngster is a boy or a girl.

ANSWERS

1. False—where younger children are concerned, but all too true with older ones. University of Wisconsin studies have shown, for example, that when a preschool child is forbidden something (a toy or whatever) it decreases in attractiveness. But in the case of older children, the "forbidden fruit" phenomenon obtains—with the forbidden object tending to become more and more attractive. This finding suggests that it's important to train a child, and encourage him to develop good habits, before he gets old enough to want to do the things you tell him not to.

2. True. As psychologist Fitzhugh Dodson points out in his definitive monograph "How to Father," when a young child begins bringing home four-letter words to shock his parents, "many parents do exactly the wrong thing. They reinforce the child's use of these words by their shocked attention. Unconsciously they teach him to continue using the words, since he gets an emotional response from them." Parents are advised to simply ignore the four-letter words. When the child discovers that the words don't "get a rise out of you," he will tend to lose interest in them.

3. True—according to the findings of University of Michigan psychologist Robert B. Zajonc, who has evaluated the results of leading investigations that show intelligence to be reliably linked to birth order and family size, with the brightest children being the earliest born and from the smallest families. "One explanation for this," the scientist notes, "is that brighter families are more apt to limit their family size, and therefore have the time and money to invest in a more favorable intellectual climate." And other investigations have shown that the first child in a family of two children averages the highest IQ scores.

4. True—as far as women are concerned, as evidenced by psychological studies of the child-adult relationship conducted at the University of Toronto. Findings: "Women behaved more leniently toward an attractive boy than toward an attractive girl or an unattractive boy." But men were not influenced by either a child's attractiveness or sex.

feel the results — the fantastic STS Program — has been worth the effort.

Pat T., 30 lbs. in 3 months: 3 months ago, for everyone, including teenagers and children

- Other methods have a yo-yo effect, weight comes off, and goes right back on — with STS weight stays off permanently

Meet the Creator Of The STS Method.

Frank Rocco, R. H., is a world-renowned registered therapist, and his clinical success with people who had never before been able to lose weight has been phenomenal.

Mr. Rocco's contention is: "Any person can lose weight with this plan as long as they have the sincere desire to lose. That is the only prerequisite. They can lose as much as they want, five pounds to a hundred pounds, and there is no medication involved." He has proven this in case after case, where he has given new hope and new happiness to people who had tried dozens of other weight-loss methods without lasting success.

Frank Rocco is recognized as a major authority in his field and has been the subject of many newspaper articles and television shows.

STS Method Sweeping Europe, Now Available For The First Time In This Country

Within the past year, the STS Method has become an enormous success in France, Switzerland, Germany and other European countries. Thousands and thousands of overweight Europeans have discovered that this is the only method that provides any meaningful, permanent weight loss. In development in this country for over 16 years, only now has this wonder-working method become available in such an easy-to-use plan... a foolproof plan... that could be considered the most important weight-loss discovery in over 50 years! American Consumer has been involved in researching weight-loss concepts for the past three years. Our customers have taught us that what is required is an effective, quick and safe weight-loss plan. We have spent the last year in negotiation to secure the STS program exclusively for our mail order public. We

I started and not to sound like an ad, I really am a new person. Very happy!"

Harry C., 51 lbs. in 2½ months: "There are no nasty after effects. I've been on about five or six diets, all of which involved medication, and I always lost weight. But I didn't like the feeling. The drugs would make me grouchy after the pills wore off... Besides, I always went up again after I stopped using the pills."

Why The STS Plan Is Better Than Any So-called Diet You've Ever Tried

- Diet pills make you tense and nervous — STS leaves you relaxed and energetic
- Diet Plans require change in eating habits — with STS you eat all the foods you ate before
- Almost every weight-loss method requires will power — STS eliminates that painful barrier
- Other plans require a different regimen for active, non-active, young and old — STS works remarkable results

What in the World!

MIKE DOUGLAS
It's good to be "square"

"Square" has never been fashionable, but Mike Douglas owes his enormous success to that image. "I have often been kidded about being a 'square.'" Mike told FAMILY WEEKLY, "but it doesn't bother me in the least. In fact, I'm glad about it. Neither my wife nor I drinks or smokes, and we never sit down to dinner without praying. My family is important to me, and in spite of my success, I've gone out of my way to keep my family life as normal as possible." Mike turned to prayer in 1969, when he learned that his brother was dying of cancer: "I was powerless to help. I realized that my money, my power and fame could not save him, and suddenly those commodities meant very little." Mike may be a show-biz oddity, but he's one of those "nice" guys who won't finish last—he has an estimated 20 million fans and is referred to by his peers as the "King Midas of daytime television."

British stage actor Alec McCowen talks about America's uniqueness: "You seem to have much more fun in New York than we do in London. Even your menus are fun, although I'm never quite sure what to expect when I order! Look at Central Park—it was designed for frivolity. There's the zoo, a skating pond, tunnels and even checker and chess tables for the old men. London, on the other hand, can only boast Hyde Park, which may have its aesthetic rewards but is certainly not designed for physical enjoyment. You Americans have an uncanny capacity to live so much in the present," says Alec. "Everyone is so anxious. Every emotion lies on the surface. In England, we go to great lengths to conceal our feelings. We go to the theater and see a great comedy, and after the show is over we spend countless hours explaining why we were 'forced' to laugh. As an Englishman, I really appreciate American audiences because they're not afraid to laugh or cry—they're honest. I constantly marvel that so much distinguishes two peoples who share a common language."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY By Richard Armour

NO HELP

"What would you like for dinner?" My wife asks me day after day, And awaits with great expectation Whatever it is I say.

It's good of my wife to ask me, It's nice that she wants to know. I'm glad she's so kind and thoughtful— One reason I love her so.

That's why I'm a little embarrassed And squirm just a bit in my chair When I answer her wifely question: "I don't know, dear. I really don't care."

Presents are like absence. They make the heart grow fonder. —Franklin P. Jones

I had a terrible argument with my teenager about leaving home. She wouldn't.

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

Kids see life differently. Send contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

My young son was going on a trip last summer, and I asked my five-year-old daughter to pray for his safety. I said, "God always hears little children's prayers first." "That's because we go to bed earlier," my little girl answered.

—Mrs. Daniel J. Nealon
Manchester, N.H.

The newlyweds, operating on a limited budget, looked at an apartment in a very seedy neighborhood. Being concerned for their safety, they asked the landlord how long it would take to walk to the police station in case of emergency. The landlord replied, "I really don't know. Nobody's ever made it."

Prince Valiant

by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: "TAKE BACK YOUR GOLD, YOU HUCKSTER. I DID NOT AGREE TO SELL MY MOUNT!" STORMS THE ARROGANT YOUTH. PRINCE VALIANT SMILES: "WE DID NOT AGREE TO SELL OUR DINNER FOR A HANDFUL OF PENNIES, YET YOU TOOK IT..."

"BUT A KNIGHT, NO MATTER HOW IMPOLITE HE MAY BE, SHOULD NOT GO AFOOT, SO I THROW MY HORSE INTO THE BARGAIN."

"DRAW, SCOUNDREL, FOR NO ONE TRIFLES WITH AARON FITZOWEN!" AND HE DRAWS HIS SWORD WITH A FLOURISH.

POOR AARON, HE ALLOWS HIS TEMPER TO GUIDE HIS ATTACK AGAINST A VETERAN OF MANY DUELS. "YOUR SWORDSMANSHIP DOES NOT JUSTIFY YOUR CONCEIT," SMILES VAL, AS, WITH THE FLAT OF HIS SWORD, HE MAKES AARON'S HELMET RING LIKE A BELL.

AARON CAN DEVISE NO DEFENSE AGAINST THE STROKES THAT COME FROM EVERY ANGLE. WEARY, STUNNED, HE SINKS TO HIS KNEES.

"I YIELD," HE MUTTERS, "KILL ME IF YOU WILL." HE RECEIVES NO ANSWER AND LOOKING AROUND SEES HIS OPPONENT RIDING AWAY ON HIS SPIRITED STALLION. 2007

The PHANTOM

By Lee Falk

TALE OF THE FIRST PHANTOM (1550)--AS HE INVADÉS THE VILLAGE OF GIANTS.

WE COME TO FREE YOU. YOU WILL NO LONGER BE SLAVES OF THE GIANTS.

"THE SIGHT OF ME NEAR THEIR DEMON GOD STUNNED THE GIANTS-- BUT THEY WERE BRAVE PEOPLE--"

THEY HAVE DEADLY WEAPONS NOW. UNLESS YOU FREE YOUR SLAVES, THEY WILL DESTROY YOU. BELIEVE MY WORDS!

WE ARE NOT AFRAID OF THEIR CHILD'S TOY WEAPONS-- WHOEVER YOU ARE-- FOOL OR MADMAN-- WE WILL DESTROY YOU AND YOUR LITTLE MEN!

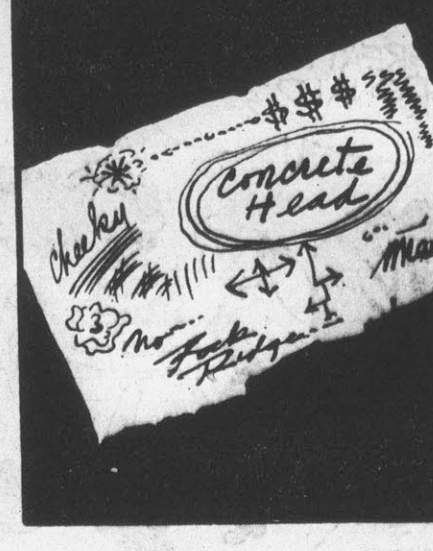

"AT THAT MOMENT--BY CHANCE--A HUGE VULTURE DESCENDED NEAR THE ALTAR LOOKING FOR FOOD--"
