FORD ADDRESSES EUROPEAN CONFERENCE—President Ford addresses the European Security Conference Friday in

Ford Cautions Nations Must Heed 'Charter'

By FRANK CORMIER

Associated Press Writer

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) —

Cautioning that "peace is not a piece of paper," President Ford told the 35-nation European security conference today that the charter they sign must be more than "a long and sorry volume of unfulfilled declarations."

"The people of all Europe and, I assure you, the people of North America are thoroughly tired of having their hopes raised and then shattered by empty words and unfulfilled pledges," the President said in a major address.

"We had better say what we mean and mean what we say, or we will have the anger of our citizens to answer."

In return for the East's pledges to further the human rights of their citizens, the West tacitly acknowledged the postwar map of Europe and Soviet dominance on the eastern half of the Continent.

President Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania, in his address to the conference, called for the dismantling of foreign military bases and withdrawal of foreign troops from European countries.

He also renewed his call for the simultaneous elimination of opposing military blocs in Europe — the West's North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the East's Warsaw Pact.

Ford, who is scheduled to visit Romania on his current European tour, also called for arms reduction in central Europe and a new agreement with the Soviet Union to put a lid on offensive nuclear weapons, saying "we owe it to our children."

"We will spare no effort to ease tensions and solve problems between us. But it is important that you recognize the deep devotion of the American people and their government to human rights and fundamental freedoms and thus to the pledges that this conference has made regarding the freer movement of people, ideas and information."

Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, in addressing the conference Thursday, placed emphasis on a section of the agreement declaring that signers of the accord would not interfere in the internal affairs of other nations.

Secretary of State Henry A.

Kissinger said he found Brezhnev's speech moderate and conciliatory and assumed the Soviet Union would live up to pledges in the document to protect and expand human rights and freedoms.

However, Kissinger acknowledged that Brezhnev's phrasing was ambiguous.

Ford asserted that "peace is not a piece of paper" and that the European security agreement represented "a challenge, not a conclusion."

While saying "the United States gladly subscribes to this document," Ford declared:

"We owe it to our children, to the children of all continents, not to miss any opportunity, not to mangle for one minute, not to spare ourselves or allow others to shirk in the monumental task of building a better and a safer world."

Saying that "detente is an evolutionary process, not a static condition," Ford said:

"Detente, as I have often said, must be a two-way street. Tensions cannot be eased by one side alone. Both sides must want detente and work to achieve it. Both sides must benefit from it."

City School Board Okays Jobless Rate Revised 1975-76 Budget

Members of the Greenville City School Board at a special meeting Wednesday night approved a revised 1975-76 school budget totaling $2,223,210. Of the total, $1,709,610 is for operating expenses; and $513,600 for capital outlay.

The 1975-76 Greenville City School budget originally proposed and adopted by the school board for presentation to County Commissioners totaled $3,229,456—$2,066,956 in current operating expenses and $1,162,500 in capital outlay. In a new state directed procedure where county managers review and recommend revisions in budgets, Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray recommended downward revisions to $1,647,373 for current expenses and $427,500 for capital outlay, for a recommended total cut of $1,582,083.

The final $2,223,210 budget represents a reinstatement of $148,337 by the County Commissioners to the $1,154,583 in cuts recommended by the county manager.

Supt. Glenn Cox told school board members that because of state allocations, it did not appear the school would lose any of the programs originally proposed in the budget with the exception of setting up a potential auto mechanics course.

Along with approval of the budget, school board members asked that Cox investigate the possibility of reinstating at a later date, the auto mechanics course. It is hoped it will be financially feasible to fund the program with unencumbered funds, if any become available.

For the $513,600 capital outlay portion of the 1975-76 city school budget, a breakdown of proposed expenditures has been compiled. The largest single item earmarked is $16,500 for land acquisition at Sadie Sauter Elementary School.

The first stage of developing tennis courts at Rose High is another of the capital outlay items being considered. On that item, the proposal is for an expenditure of $2,000 for a feasibility study and survey of the 4.5 acre site 5 acre site at Rose High, and $10,000 for the tennis courts.

Also in the plans are the construction of bleachers for the football field at Aycock, at a cost of $10,000.

Other capital outlay proposals include landscaping, sidewalk construction, toilets, heat and air conditioning, various items of furniture, intercoms, outside lights and similar acquisition and maintenance needs.

A curriculum study prepared and presented shows that basically, the current organizational patterns for grades K-12 will remain generally unchanged for the coming school year. The board approved the report for the 1975-76 school year.

One of the few changes is the addition of three new courses at Rose High—"Cosmetology," "Human Sexuality," and a social studies course, "Exploring The World."

The primary change in the elementary curriculum is that where three sections of a grade level are present in a school there will be the option, upon approval of the superintendent, for one of the sections to be self-contained with the other two classes exchanging for language arts and math according to performance levels.

In addition, board members expressed an interest in other proposals relative to curriculum and indicated they would become involved in these recommendations at a future date. These include two board members to serve on each of four basic committees studying Greenville City Schools during the coming school year; a series of workshop in the summer and fall of 1976; and preparation of a report to be considered by the entire board in January 1977.

Board members also heard Ed McFall, a statistical analyst of the Regional Office in Grifton explain information contained in the recently compiled test results conducted earlier in the third and sixth grades in Greenville City Schools.

Larkins Becomes Chief Judge

TRENTON, N.C. (AP)—U.S. District Judge John D. Larkins Jr. becomes chief judge for North Carolina's Eastern District Court today.

Judge Algernon L. Butler, 70, relinquishes that post. He becomes a senior judge, in accordance with a federal law mandating that judges be put on senior status at age 70.

Butler may try cases on an emergency basis.

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The nation's unemployment rate declined to 8.4 per cent in July, the Labor Department reported today. There were indications the drop — from 8.6 per cent in June — meant the nation's economy was improving faster than had been predicted by most economists.

The improvement was greater than the statistics indicated because the 8.6 per cent jobless rate reported last month was considered too low because of statistical aberrations. The Labor Department said the true unemployment rate was about 8.9 per cent in June.

The Labor Department said the decline in unemployment extended to most worker groups including teen-agers, adult women and blacks. It said total employment in July increased by 630,000 to a total of 85.1 million persons.

Unemployment in July totaled 7.8 million workers, a decline of nearly 400,000 from the average for the previous three months, the Labor Department said.

The drop in the jobless rate appeared to catch many economists both in and out of government by surprise. The Labor Department had previously predicted the unemployment rate would register an increase in July because of the statistical problems in the June figure.

Another Vacation Starting Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Congress begins a month-long vacation tonight facing a promised presidential veto of a last-ditch move to continue oil price controls and with the legislators in heated disagreement over whether to renew U.S. arms shipments to Turkey.

The Senate voted 47 to 46 late Thursday to end the embargo on sales and deliveries of U.S. arms to Turkey, but Rep. Ray J. Madden, D-Ind., chairman of the House Rules Committee, refused to clear the resolution for floor action until Sept. 9.

On energy, the House gave final congressional approval to a bill extending oil price controls beyond their Aug. 31 expiration, but administration officials predicted President Ford will veto it.

If the price controls expire, consumer prices of gasoline and other petroleum products are expected to increase gradually by 4 cents to 6 cents a gallon over the succeeding six-to-nine months, according to administration officials.

ASHEVILLE (AP) —

State Rep. Herbert Hyde, D-Buncombe, announced his candidacy today for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Hyde, 49, who has served in both state legislative chambers, made the announcement at a news conference at the Asheville airport. He planned to repeat the announcement in Raleigh at a 1 p.m. news conference.

The veteran lawmaker becomes the second Democrat to announce formally for the race. Rep. John Jordan, D-Alamance, entered the race earlier this year.

Several others, including Mayor Howard Lee of Chapel Hill and state Sen. Herman A. Moore of Charlotte, are rumored to be considering the race.

Hyde, a veteran of four General Assemblies, ran second to Rufus Edmisten for the nomination as state attorney general in balloting by the state Democratic Executive Committee.

He also served as chairman of the North Carolina Commission under Gov. Bob Scott.

Meanwhile, the Senate today was to resume debate on a $31.2-billion weapons authorization bill that also directs that women be admitted to U.S. service academies starting next July.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, said Thursday the bill exceeds congressional budget goals.

Muskie and Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., the senior Republican on the Budget Committee, also said they will issue the same warning against a pending school lunch bill, saying the success of the new congressional budget-control procedure depends on applying the same restraint in all areas of federal spending.

The weapons bill is $3.3 billion less than requested by Ford.

The measure includes such controversial items as a $60-million request for long lead-time nuclear components of a new Navy cruiser, although Muskie said there has been no commitment for full-scale purchase of such ships.

The Turkish arms measure approved by the Senate would have permitted shipment of $185 million in weapons the Turks contracted for before last February when Congress cut off aid because Turkey used U.S.-supplied arms in its invasion of Cyprus.

The Ford administration's lobbying for the resumption of arms shipments took on additional urgency last week when Turkey began taking over U.S. bases in its territory after the House again voted against renewing the shipments.

Ford, attending the European security conference in Helsinki, offered the Turks $50 million in arms if Turkey would reactivate U.S. bases there, but the Turks refused the offer. Ford also telephoned Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., from Helsinki to ask for his support.

Backers of the bill held the House in session until almost midnight in hopes the Senate-passed measure would come to the floor. But Madden adamantly refused to convene the Rules Committee, which must pass on all legislation before it comes to the floor.

Pounding the rostrum, Madden denounced the bill as an "outrageous tossing away of the taxpayers' money to a band of cutthroat criminals."

Prison Slaying

MARION, N.C. (AP)—A prisoner was fatally stabbed Thursday in the cellblock of a McDowell County state correctional unit.

He was identified as 19-year-old Jerry Miller of Caldwell County. He was dead on arrival at Marion General Hospital.

Sheriff's deputies and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation searched the prison dormitory for clues to the assailant.

Fifty-five prisoners are assigned to the minimum-security unit. They have been convicted of misdemeanors, or are honorgrade felons.

Reputed Mobster To Be Questioned About Hoffa's Disappearance

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Authorities planned to question a reputed high-ranking organized crime figure in Detroit today in connection with the disappearance of former Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa, police said.

Lt. Curt Grenier, who is heading the investigation, said Anthony Giacalone, 56, was one of six persons who would be questioned. Giacalone, a long-time Hoffa friend and confidant, was described in 1963 U.S. Senate testimony by the Detroit police commissioner at that time as a "big man" in organized crime in the Detroit area.

Hoffa, 62, has not been seen since Wednesday, when his car was found abandoned in a parking lot. There was no evidence of violence, but Grenier said, "You always have to consider foul play, considering Hoffa's background."

Sources said Hoffa's family fears the labor leader is dead. "My own feeling is that things do not look too good," said Grenier. "Mr. Hoffa is usually prompt in reporting his whereabouts."

Police say Hoffa was scheduled to meet someone at a Bloomfield Township restaurant

JAMES HOFFA

Wednesday afternoon. Michigan's governor said Thursday night that he understood Hoffa had arranged to meet Giacalone, but Giacalone told The Associated Press, "That's absolutely untrue."

Grenier said, "We don't have any firsthand knowledge of a scheduled meeting between Mr. Hoffa and Mr. Giacalone. But we have this report to that effect. We're going to contact him today. We're going to ask him, 'What do you know about this?'"

The disappearance of Hoffa, who has been trying to regain leadership of the 2.1 million-member Teamsters Union — the nation's largest — followed a series of violent incidents involving key figures at Teamsters Local 299 in Detroit. Hoffa and his hand-picked successor, Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons, both began their road to power at Local 299.

Sugar Price-Fixing Is Given Maximum Fines

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Five of six sugar companies charged with illegal price-fixing have pleaded no contest and have been fined the maximum $300,000.

The five companies, named in antitrust indictments by a federal grand jury Dec. 19, 1974, were granted permission Thursday to change their pleas to no contest. They had pleaded innocent Jan. 31.

A trial date for California & Hawaiian Sugar Co. of San Francisco, the firm which did not change its plea, will be set on Aug. 15.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert Schnacke imposed a $100,000 fine on Holly Sugar Corp. of Colorado Springs, Colo., which had been indicted in two cases — one involving the so-called Chicago-West market and the other the California-Arizona market.

Fines of $50,000 each were imposed on Great Western Sugar Co., of Denver; American Crystal Sugar Co., formerly of Denver; Amalgamated Sugar Co., of Ogden, Utah; and Consolidated Foods, of Chicago.

Amalgamated, American Crystal C&H Sugar, Great Western and Holly were indicted for allegedly conspiring to restrain trade in the 16-state Chicago-West market. C&H, Holly, and Consolidated Foods were charged in an indictment covering the California-Arizona market.

The indictments alleged that the companies had raised and maintained refined sugar prices at artificial and noncompetitive levels and deprived buyers of free and open competition. The companies were accused of fixing prices for both wholesalers and "industrial" buyers such as bakeries, schools and various institutions.

Robert J. Staal, Justice Department attorney, objected to the change of pleas. He told the court that unless all defendants in such a case pleaded no contest, the department objects because it must still prove its case against the remaining defendants.

The judge said he could see no reason for not accepting the pleas and stressed that no contest was in effect a plea of guilty.

Stephen Boms, attorney for Consolidated Foods and spokesman for the five companies, told the judge they had no objection to the maximum $50,000 fines recommended by the Justice Department.

A number of civil suits also have been filed against the various companies seeking damages for alleged antitrust violations.

Judge Avers Law Wrong

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—A second Forsyth County judge has declared the state's involuntarily sterilization law unconstitutional.

This paves the way for a test in higher courts. At present, the rulings are not binding on other judges.

In each case the ruling involved a 15-year-old boy with an I.Q. of 40. At the request of his mother, the Forsyth Department of Social Services, as required by the statute, petitioned the courts to allow his sterilization. The law, which became effective in January, allows involuntarily sterilization of the mentally retarded and mentally ill for the good of the individual and of the public.

Superior Court Judge John D. McConnel ruled Thursday that the law violates due process guaranteed by the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. His ruling has been appealed by the state.

Judge A. Lincoln Sherk of state District Court had ruled on Monday that the law is unconstitutional because of its "great vagueness" and because it might violate constitutional guarantees of due process and equal protection under the law.

Clara Barton, founder of the U.S. Red Cross, was a patent examiner for more than five years.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The recent grain sales to the Soviet Union helped spur a 3 per cent increase in the prices that U.S. farmers received for their raw products in the month ended July 15, Agriculture Department figures indicate.

The department released its price report Thursday shortly after Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz told reporters in Williamsburg, Va., that to blame the Russian purchases for higher consumer food prices was "intellectually naive or dishonest."

The report said higher prices for wheat, hogs, potatoes, soybeans, upland cotton and milk accounted for most of the increase, while cattle prices were lower, compared with the previous month.

The over-all prices were 6 per cent higher than in mid-July 1974, but farm expenses were 11 per cent higher from a year earlier.

While the report did not mention the Soviet grain sales, which in July involved 154 million bushels of wheat, 177 million of corn and 51 million of barley, it showed that farm prices for all of those grains rose during the June 15-July 15 period.

Wheat was worth an average $3.33 a bushel on the farm as of July 15, up from $2.92 a month earlier. Corn rose to $2.72 a bushel, up 4 cents from June 15, and barley climbed by 5 cents to $2.35 a bushel.

But those prices were still well below levels earlier this year and the record highs of 1974 when the grain crop was thin. The all-time mark of $5.52 a bushel for wheat was set in February 1974.

Agriculture Department economists said a week ago that the Soviet grain sales could mean higher food prices for consumers but that expected record harvests would keep the impact slight. A 6 to 8 per cent over-all price boost, attributed to many factors, has been predicted for 1975.

Commitment Takes His Savings

By JOSEPH R. TYBOR
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Four months ago, when police tried to arrest Robert Friedman for begging for dimes in front of a downtown bus station, he pleaded:

"Don't take me in. I'm not broke. I didn't know this was a crime." And he opened a brief case he carried with him that contained $24,087 in small bills.

A few days later, he was committed to a mental institution by a judge who said he was protecting Friedman from thugs who might be after his cash.

Today, Friedman, 43, has seen half his life savings eaten away by hospital fees and doctors' bills for treatment ordered by the court and by an $800-a-month drain the state says it costs to keep him at the mental facility he fought to stay out of. He was even ordered to pay the fees for the lawyer who argued that he be committed.

Lawyer Edward J. Benett, who has taken on Friedman's case for no fee, said he fears that Friedman's case is a "frighteningly common" one of persons ordered to spend the rest of their lives unheard from because they are eccentric, though sane.

He said it goes beyond a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision which held that mental patients can be committed involuntarily without treatment if they pose no threat to society. Benett says that in Friedman's case the treatment itself may be illegal.

"He (Friedman) worked since he was 11 and was a very good clerk-typist and stenographer who at one time took shorthand at 100 words per minute," said Benett. "He lived frugally his entire life and saved every penny he made. He wore old clothes, lived in an $80-a-week hotel, ate day-old bread and fruit."

"His only obsession in life was saving money, unfortunately. If he didn't have that money when he was panhandling, he'd be a free man today."

Benett, a law professor at DePaul University, has appealed the commitment order of Circuit Judge Lawrence L. Genesen, contending it was based on insufficient evidence of alleged mental disorders.

Genesen himself said at a hearing after Friedman was committed, "I wonder what my decision would have been if he wasn't carrying $24,000 around. On the evidence, I decided that the man lacked good judgment. If he only had a quarter instead of $24,000, my interpretation of his judgment might have been somewhat different."

Since he's been at Chicago-Read Mental Health Center, Friedman's condition has deteriorated, according to Benett.

Benett adds, "He was committed on the possibility he would be mugged, beaten and robbed and instead, he's locked up, filled with drugs and his money is taken gradually instead of in one clean sweep."

ILA Contract Said 'Outrage'

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser has been asked to help get rid of a provision in a new state Ports Authority labor contract which requires nonunion employees to pay a "service fee" to the International Longshoremen's Association, AFL-CIO.

National Right to Work Committee Vice President Reed

Larson termed the provision an "outrage" in a letter to Holshouser.

The NRW contends that while the provision does not violate state law, it goes against the will of the citizens of the state expressed in a 1947 "right to work" state law. That law provides that no employer can require an employee to pay dues, fees or other charges to a labor union as a condition of employment.

State Ports Authority employees are covered by the federal National Railway Labor Act, which supercedes the state's right to work law.

Holshouser said Thursday he thought the service fee nonunion workers would pay would be the same as fees paid to an employment agency.

He said he did not think the contract created a "closed shop."

State Transportation Secretary Jacob Alexander helped negotiate that contract. He said the service fee was agreed to so that a strike at the Wilmington and Morehead City ports could be averted.

Meet Monday

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will hold its regular monthly meeting Monday at 10 a.m. at the Pitt County Court House.

Among items on the agenda are consideration of a request from Superior Court Judge Robert Rouse for use of the Law Library—where commissioners usually hold their meetings—during the week of October 6. This would necessitate commissioners meeting in another location in October.

Other items include appointment of a Jury Commission member and consideration of increasing the per diem expense for members of the commission, as well as consideration of an appointee to fill a vacancy on the Pitt County Development Commission due to the resignation of Dr. Joe Pou.

Funding Ordered

KINSTON, N.C. (AP)—A Superior Court jury has ordered the Lenoir County Board of Commissioners to appropriate $400,000 to the Kinston city school board for a new high school.

In 1974, the commissioners allotted that amount to the Kinston board for purchasing land and hiring an architect for the school. They also pledged allocations of $400,000 for 1975 and for 1976.

But in June, the commissioners refused to set aside the money and continued to do so after public hearings were held.

Attorneys for the commissioners filed notice of appeal Wednesday after the verdict was returned.

The jury's verdict declared that the school system needed the $400,000. The commissioners are required by state law to fund school systems if the need exists.

Investigation Launched Into Shortages Of Canning Jar Lids

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Consumers stumped by the current shortage of canning jar lids are finding there's more than one way to preserve their home-grown fruits and vegetables.

Freezing is one of the most popular alternatives, partly because of the wide variety of containers that can be used.

The canning lid shortage has spread across the country. Manufacturers and some government officials say consumers are hoarding. There also have been charges that lids simply aren't getting to retailers and the Federal Trade Commission has launched an investigation.

Industry spokesmen estimate 1975 production of replacement lids at 1.6 billion. That would be about five dozen lids for each of the 25 million or 26 million families expected to do some home canning this year.

Consumers, however, say they can't find lids at their grocers and are trying to salvage produce with other preserving techniques.

There are two basic types of packages for home freezing: rigid containers made of aluminum, glass, plastic, tin or heavily waxed cardboard and nonrigid containers like bags and sheets of cellophane, heavy aluminum foil, plicofilm and polyethylene.

The packages should be moisture and vapor resistant and must be sealed carefully. Tin cans require a sealing machine or special lids; glass jars for freezing generally call for the same kind of currently scarce lids used for home canning.

Most bags used for packaging can be heat sealed — using special equipment or a household iron — or closed by twisting and folding back the top of the bag and securing it with a string, a plastic or rubber band or other tie device.

The Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture has several tips on packing produce for freezing.

—Pack food and syrup cold to speed up freezing and help keep natural color and flavor.

—Pack tightly to cut down the amount of air between individual pieces of produce. When using a bag, press the air out of the unfilled part of the bag and seal immediately.

—Allow a little head space between the packed food and the closing. Most food expands as it freezes. The amount of space needed varies with the amount and type of food.

Freeze all fruits and vegetables at zero degrees Fahrenheit or below and don't overload the freezer. Leave a little space between packages when freezing, so air can circulate. You can move the packages closer together later on.

Most fruits and vegetables can be kept for 8 to 12 months at zero degrees or below, according to the USDA. Citrus fruits and juices can be kept for four to six months.

Reminder: not all produce items can be frozen. Green onions, lettuce and other salad greens and radishes will not freeze well. Neither will tomatoes unless they are cooked first. For further information on local varieties of produce suitable for freezing, write your state agricultural extension service, experiment station or college of agriculture.

Fruits and vegetables require different preparations for freezing. Fruits can be packed un-sweetened, in sugar or in syrup. Unsweetened fruits generally do not keep as well as those with the sugar or syrup, but may be preferable for use in cooking or in special diets.

Wash, peel, trim, pit and slice the fruit the way you would if you were serving it immediately.

If you're using syrup, dissolve the required amount of sugar in cold or hot water, then pack the fruit in the liquid. Make sure the syrup is cool before packing and make sure it covers the fruit so the top pieces will not change color and flavor.

If you're using a sugar pack, put the cut fruit in a bowl or pan, sprinkle the required amount of sugar over the fruit and mix gently until the juice is drawn out of the fruit and the sugar is dissolved. Put the fruit and juice in containers and seal.

Unsweetened fruit can be packed just as is or crushed and packed in its own juice, without sugar.

Vegetables also should be washed, peeled and trimmed. They also should be heated or blanched to stop the action of enzymes in the vegetables.

The best way to heat most vegetables is in boiling water. Use a special blancher or fit a wire basket into a large kettle and add the cover.

Use at least one gallon of

Convention Reports Given Pilot Members

The Pilot Club of Greenville, Inc. held its July meeting Monday night at the Ramada Inn. Mrs. Lenora Morton, president, gave a report from the Pilot International Convention, Houston, Tex., which she recently attended.

As a delegate she joined delegates from 550 clubs in seven countries with a total registration of 1,519.

Mrs. Sue Smith, who was also a delegate, reported the theme of the convention was "Dare To Be Different." She reported primarily on the fun part while Mrs. Morton reported on the business part which included changing some of the By-Laws and about the Pilot Foundation, which is planning to begin a research project in the near future.

Mrs. Addie Jenkins, coordinator for Projects Division, asked members to volunteer to help with REAP. Last year many hours were given by some of the Pilots to help with the Remedial Education Activity Program.

Mrs. Juanita McCarthy, coordinator for Internal Affairs, advised the membership about the "birthday calendar" which the club will have as a project this year. Profit received is used for community projects.

The next meeting will be Aug. 25.

Your Friend Needs Psychiatric Treatment

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old bachelor who recently met a very beautiful, 40-year-old woman with whom I fell head over heels in love.

She's a medical technician and is very intelligent, but she's a bundle of nerves. She bites her nails down so far they sometimes bleed. She's never married, vows she is a virgin and insists that if she marries, she will remain a virgin.

"Sex," she says, "is the original sin."

She is a clothes "nut." Once she showed me (by actual count) 81 pants suits and 103 pairs of shoes (most of which had never been worn).

Several years back, she was in a serious auto accident (her mother was driving). She went through the windshield and was laid up for two years.

She changes her mind in a matter of seconds. For instance: Last night, she asked me to take her to a steak house because she wanted a steak. Once there, she ordered fish. Then she sent it back because it was "spoiled." (I'm sure it wasn't.) Afterward, we went to a movie she wanted to see, but we left in the middle because she decided it was "no good."

I realize she is not very stable. I've never walked away from a challenge, and I think I can help her. Am I barking up the wrong tree?

HANGING IN THERE

DEAR HANGING: Unless you are a psychiatrist, you are not only barking up the wrong tree but in the wrong forest. The woman is in need of psychiatric treatment. The best way to help her is to persuade her to get it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO K: So if your husband wants to read "dirty" books, don't embarrass him by telling him you "found" them — knowing that he hid them from you. How can what he reads hurt you?

Relief For Our Hardship Cases

We bleed for Congress.

It must be really a belt-tightening experience to have to get along on an annual salary of $42,500 plus allowances totaling more than $300,000 a year, plus health care insurance and pension benefits worth about $4,000 a year.

Only a handful of Pitt County families could get along on that kind of income. . . and then at a sacrifice. Small wonder Congressmen stand behind food stamps, they know about real hardship.

And because the great American public's heart is so filled with compassion we expect social charity organizations will be burgeoned with contributions to help the poor lawmakers in Washington—a poverty-stricken area surpassing Appalachia at its worst.

So The Reflector applauds the moral courage displayed by the esteemed Senators and Representatives who voted themselves a cost-of-living pay increase which one critic saw as a guaranteed annual pay increase. For shame! Sen. James B. Allen (of Alabama) fully deserves to be on the blacklist of every one of his 58 esteemed colleagues who voted for the measure.

There is talk that some Congressmen supplement their meagre income by speaking engagements (no, child, they do get more than fried chicken, green peas and french fries and iced tea as "honorariums"). Some say their appearances bring in as much or more income than their base pay. That is probably where and how the term "silver-tongued orator" originated.

Senator Hiram Fong (of Hawaii) contends that only rich people would be able to serve unless salaries were increased.

It makes sense, and we're glad he brought that up. Taxpayers and voters should begin shopping around for some rich people to serve in Washington; but if that isn't done soon, there just may not be many left to choose from.

Back in Greenville, the real world, we have read the Farm Bureau News in its July 21 issue shows how much of your working day goes for the various things we purchase, and for taxes which apparently fail to support lawmakers in the manner to which they have become accustomed.

The average worker must labor an hour and three minutes to pay for the food and beverage he consumes each day; an hour and 28 minutes is required to pay for his house and household expenses; he works a half an hour to provide for his clothing and 40 minutes for transportation.

But the biggest single expense is taxes.

If you go to work at 8 a.m. it is 25 minutes to $1.00 each day before you have earned enough to pay your taxes.

And the cost of government and the number of people on the government payroll go up each year,

Grocery Bill Is Higher

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Higher prices for a wide range of food items pushed up the family grocery bill during July, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows. The bill went up in more of the cities surveyed than in any month since last November.

The survey findings coincided with the announcement Thursday that prices paid to farmers rose 3 per cent from June 15 to July 15. There were indications that some of the increases already have showed up at the supermarket and others are on their way to consumers.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

The latest survey showed: —The marketbasket total increased at the checklist store in 10 of 13 cities, rising an average 3.4 per cent. There were increases in seven cities during June and three cities during May. It was the most widespread increase since November, when the bill went up at the checklist store in 12 cities.

—Butter, eggs and sugar led the list of price increases. Pork chops also increased, going up in 10 of the cities surveyed, reflecting higher prices paid to farmers for their hogs.

On the bright side, chopped chuck generally was unchanged and all-beef frankfurters went down in six cities, partly because of specials. The decreases reflected a decline in the price of cattle — one of the only farm products to drop in the month ended July 15.

—Prices of nonfood items remained stable. There were only half a dozen increases in paper towels, detergent and fabric softener.

The Department of Agriculture, in its Thursday report on farm prices, made no mention of recent Soviet purchases of U.S. grain. But the figures showed prices for commodities bought by the Russians went up during the month.

How Newspapers Serve

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Newspapers in North Carolina are finding themselves more and more in the news.

Headlines increasingly tell of suits filed, court rulings handed down, actions pushed against governmental and private agencies which move newspapers beyond the passive role of bearing daily tidings; into the arena of working hard for a community's best interests.

Such an attitude is only natural in a state like this where local newspapers have grown up right along with the people who make up the communities.

Close Relation

"The smaller newspapers provide a closer relationship of readers with their newspapers," says Howard White, newly elected president of the North Carolina Press Association.

White is among the ranks of the score of editors of small daily newspapers across North Carolina.

He comes to the role of president of the statewide press group fresh from five years of battle as chairman of the Press Association Legislative Committee.

White himself reflects that tradition of hometown papers in North Carolina as institutions: born and raised in Burlington, he was a carrierboy at age 12 for the paper he now heads; he worked in the mailroom, was a high school correspondent, a reporter, then sports editor; city editor; managing editor; and since 1963, editor of the Burlington Times-News.

"Certainly we have to bring bad tidings and that makes some people unhappy with us. But newspapers are a service institution as well. . . without us, there would be lot less opportunity for better things to come to these communities we serve," says White.

"These are the traditions and the heritage which we as newspapermen accept, and the public must understand that we have got to be free to treat news in a fair and honest way."

While there has been public criticism of the press, White agrees, few readers realize that newspapermen are their own most vocal critics.

"The public sees newspapers as critics of local events; what they don't see is us being criticized by our own initiative as we seek broader understanding of how to do our jobs," White said, and the Press Association has as one of its roles that function.

A Balance

Ideally, a newspaper strives for a balance between reporting news and service to the community. As White puts it, "We can't always be skeptical. . . we have an obligation to uphold the rightness of our communities as well. . . serving our own little spot in the world."

Now a tall, balding 55-year-old who can look back on practically a lifetime in the newspaper business, White also recognizes the change which is taking place as newspapers branch out more aggressively in that role of aiding communities.

As chairman of the Press Legislative Committee, White was instrumental in passage of this state's open meeting laws, among the first in the nation requiring public

Those Little Old Ladies

By ART BUCHWALD

PARIS—What happened to all the little old ladies in tennis shoes? I am happy to report that they are alive and well and most of them are on package tours in Europe.

Because traveling abroad has become so expensive, you do not see many Americans on the continent any more.

Occasionally a bearded kid with an American Flag on the seat of his pants may walk by your cafe table, but it isn't like the old days when there wasn't a corner of Europe that didn't have a "U.S. Go Home" sign.

If it weren't for the little old ladies in tennis shoes, no one would be aware that the United States still existed, and it makes any red-blooded American's chest swell with pride when he sees a battalion of them marching down the Champs Elysees, Piccadilly or the Via Veneto to the tune of Colonel Bogie's March.

Make no mistake about it, the little old ladies in tennis shoes still strike terror in the hearts of every tour director in Europe.

Most of the ladies are veterans of previous overseas tours; experienced in hand-to-hand combat at flea markets; versed in the skills of fierce haggling in souvenir shops; trained to assault churches and museums, and prepared for sneak attacks on any American Express branch in the country.

The cemeteries of Great Britain, France, Italy, the Benelux and Scandinavian countries are dotted with graves of tour guides who expired trying to keep up the pace set by these indomitable souls.

At airports all over Europe you see fresh young guides barely out of college, wearing their tour uniforms waiting nervously for their group to jump off the plane and encircle the city. Screaming "We take no prisoners," the little old ladies, carrying their duty-free shopping bags from the previous airport, climb aboard their buses determined not to miss one single thing included in the price of the tour.

No mountain is too high for them to climb, no fjord is too wide for them to cross. Heaven help the guide who forgets to stop for tea in Zermatt (included in the package) or leaves out a church in Montmartre. Let a waiter skip a salad course in Salzburg or a cheese plate in Brussels, and he'll get a karate chop he'll remember for the rest of his life.

In the last 30 years Europeans have seen their countries invaded by American, Japanese and now Arab tourists. But none of them has ever shown the strength, the moral fiber or the staying power of the little old ladies in tennis shoes.

Why do they do it? Why, when most Europeans have lost interest in tourists, when waiters and concierges and shopkeepers have become more surly, when most things are cheaper in the States, do the ladies keep traveling abroad?

40 Years Ago Today

August 1, 1975

Bright leaf tobacco auctions began today in 15 cities in south Georgia with opening prices reported by warehousemen at from 6 to 33 cents a pound or better.

Under the rush of heavy first day offerings and spirited bidding, exact figures of average prices were not available but two warehousemen predicted the first day's average would be around 20 cents a pound. For the 1934 season, the average for the state was 18.73 cents.

The opening of the Georgia tobacco market today found Pitt County farmers pushing rapidly the housing of their golden crop with indications that the work would be completed well in advance of the opening of the Eastern Carolina bright leaf belt August 26.

Housing operations were started in Pitt County several weeks ago and while rain held up work for several days, it was reported by observers today that considerable progress has been made by growers in all parts of the country with a good crop in prospect.

The INSIDE REPORT

Deepening Rocky Dilemma

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—A long, exceedingly cordial visit with President Ford last Thursday afternoon by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller resulted in backfiring the bumptious anti-Rockefeller campaign of Howard H. (Bo) Callaway, intended to appease the Republican right wing.

Rockefeller emerged from his regular weekly appointment in the Oval Office confident of forthcoming presidential demonstrations to prove there is no rift between them. He had never felt closer to Mr. Ford, the Vice President told friends that evening. Indeed, the Rockefeller camp believes Callaway's tactics probably resulted from inexperience, possibly reflected an internal White House conspiracy but definitely did not represent the President's wishes.

Whatever his inspiration, Callaway has thoroughly botched the White House strategy for solving Mr. Ford's vice presidential problem: keep Rockefeller in limbo until 1976 convention time so that the President would not be carrying his liberal Vice President in a contest against Ronald Reagan for the presidential nomination. By going too far in disassociating the President from Rockefeller, Callaway has unwittingly brought the two men publicly together. "It couldn't be better if we planned it ourselves," a beaming Reagan operative told us.

The Ford nomination strategy has been enunciated repeatedly by his old political partner, Melvin R. Laird: We are interested only in Jerry Ford's nomination, not Rockefeller's; the vice presidency will be up to the convention. When Callaway resigned as Secretary of the Army to become Mr. Ford's campaign manager, he sounded the same theme with slightly heavier anti-Rockefeller overtones.

But the theme itself changed Wednesday night when Callaway, dining with political correspondents, took an overt anti-Rockefeller line. Callaway publicly expressed his previous private views that Rockefeller is the President's major political problem today and may be too old for the office. Those present felt Callaway was preoccupied with the Rockefeller problem, determined to force him from the ticket.

That change has been explained by two conflicting theories, one malignant, the other benign.

The benign theory goes to the fact that Callaway, nearly elected governor of Georgia in 1966, is over-influenced by conservative southern Republicans who refuse to endorse Mr. Ford against Reagan while Rockefeller remains the President's preference. Making his debut as a national political manager, Callaway tilted too far toward his native

Other Editors Say Nearing Equality

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Said the male motorist about the driver ahead of him: "She's got her hand waving out of the window. What does that mean?" His companion replied: "Don't know. Only thing sure is that her window's open." Although female motorists have long been maligned by "woman driver" jokes, some dating back to the Model T, statistics show they have had a superior safety record.

But evidence has recently begun to emerge that female drivers may indeed soon start catching up to male motorists. According to National Safety Council records on drivers involved in all accidents, the rate of motor vehicle accidents decreased for males and increased for female drivers in the decade starting with the Sixties.

In 1970, deaths from traffic accidents outnumbered all other types of accidental deaths for females up to age 60. At present, motor vehicle deaths outnumber cancer as the No. 1 killer of women in the 25-29 age group. Among the reasons for the increase in female accident rates in the Sixties, according to the Institute of Life Insurance, was that there were more drivers on the road and people were driving faster than they did a decade earlier. And another reason, of course, is that there were more women driving.

Despite the rise in women's auto accidents, however, it is estimated by the National Safety Council that there are three times as many male drivers involved in accidents as females. One good piece of news for motorists—of either sex—comes from the National Center for Health Statistics. According to its figures, there was a reduction in the motor vehicle death rate in 1974 of 20 per cent. This was due to lower speeds at which vehicles were driven in an effort to conserve gasoline.

As for the bad news, there is new evidence of the hazards of night driving. Of all fatal accidents, 47 per cent were in daylight hours and 53 per cent at night. The reasons: poorer visibility, driver fatigue and the greater likelihood of drunken drivers being on the road.

Jobs vs. Ecology Divide Town

By C.W. WOLFF
Associated Press Writer

WALPOLE, N.H. (AP)—A proposal to build a $300 million pulp mill has split this 213-year-old community with many of the arguments centering over the economy versus the environment.

"The town is so divided on this that I've seen husbands and wives turn on each other and swing a fist," says Austin N. Stevens, a member of Citizens for Walpole, a group fighting the mill.

Stevens' group was formed after Walpole citizens voted 252-153 at their town meeting in March to welcome the mill. The proposal for the construction comes from Parson & Whittemore, a New York-based conglomerate. To this day the company has not made a firm commitment to build in Walpole, though it has bought an option on 600 acres of farmland near the town.

At the time of the March vote, many Walpole officials said a mill would lower taxes, boost employment and help business. A recent report by researchers at Dartmouth College indicated the mill would hire 500 persons and attract from 200 to 400 new persons to Walpole.

The opposition claims the mill will pollute the air and destroy the region's tranquility.

Parsons & Whittemore still must secure a zoning change before it can build on its chosen site.

Officials of Parsons & Whittemore have said the conflict has not discouraged them from considering the site, although they admit other sites, including two in Vermont across the river, are still under study.

A vote on the zoning is expected this month or next and Citizens for Walpole has vowed to fight against a change. Some residents say the fervor behind the opponents' drive may bring about approval of the zoning change.

"Some who are undecided are saying they want to vote for the mill just to get rid of Citizens for Walpole," says Robert L. Graves, chairman of the town's board of selectmen and a backer of the mill. He claims the opposition is "fighting too hard."

Another resident, who asked her name not be used, says the antimill group is made up of newcomers, those who only have summer homes in the town and the wealthy "who never think about the workers."

Stevens admits that many of the 50 key members of Citizens for Walpole are not long-time residents. But he claims that those opposing the mill also include tradesmen, farmers and persons whose grandfathers lived in the town. Stevens says his group is not against industry, but would rather see smaller and cleaner operations come into the area.

NO ATHEISM IN HIGH PLACES

The Italian patriot who played an important role in the unification of Italy, Giuseppe Mazzini, once remarked that atheism is not possible in the Alps. He meant, of course, that when one looks upon those glorious snow-capped peaks he must, if he has any logic in his mind, see the connection between creation and the Creator.

And not only is atheism impossible in the Alps; it is impossible in all high places. Down in the depths we can believe that there is no God, but at life's high altitudes we catch a glimpse of Him and the Celestial City. In the valley of sin man can scorn the righteousness of God, but not on the mountain peaks of devotion and worship. A good person knows that there is a good God in the universe because something tells him or her that the goodness in their heart exists because it is a reflection of the infinite goodness of God.

Atheism is not so much a reasoned judgment as act of will, an act profoundly influenced by feelings of alienation and resentment.

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The rerun election for New Hampshire's U.S. Senate seat will be an exciting partisan political brawl, but not necessarily a barometer of things to come in the state's 1976 first-in-the-nation presidential primary.

"What a hgeadown we're going to have!" says 73-year-old Leon Anderson, historian of New Hampshire politics. "I just think it's marvelous."

CHOIR ANNIVERSARY
The St. Mary's Senior Choir will celebrate its anniversary Sunday at 4 p.m. at the St. Mary's Missionary Baptist Church. Guest singing groups include the M. R. Wilson Singers of Grimesland, and the Evangelistic Team of Kinston. The Public is invited to attend.

The Senate, struggling since January, couldn't determine whether liberal Democrat John A. Durkin or conservative Republican Louis C. Wyman won last November's election. Now, the voters will choose again on Sept. 16.

Republicans and Democrats agree that results of the 48-day campaign will give little indication of what to expect in the presidential primary six months later.

Anderson notes that "never before have we had a special statewide election ... so there are no precedents for voter turnout.... I don't think it will draw as much as a general election pulls."

State House Democratic minority leader Chris Sproul echoes Anderson in saying, "I don't think the election will be a barometer (for the primary), because this will be an election where all elements of the party will be pulling together. In the primary, the opposite happens."

Of the 421,000 registered voters in the state, 164,000 are Republicans, 116,000 Democrats, the rest undeclared.

Laurence Radway, state Democratic chairman, says "the only significance this election will have in terms of the primary will be that it will serve as a training ground for (President) Ford's primary campaign."

Gerald Carmen, GOP state chairman, also says the election tion will give no clue on what to expect in the primary.

"We will have a clear issue here that will have to do with two candidates, nothing else," Carmen said.

Gov. Meldrim Thomson Jr., a conservative Republican, has pledged to help Wyman. Although a critic of Ford, Thomson says he would welcome him to New Hampshire to campaign for Wyman.

Two Democratic aspirants in the 1976 primary, Rep. Morris K. Udall and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, offered Durkin their staffs for the election.

Organization and discipline in getting out the voters, especially the independents, will be crucial for a victory.

The race is limited to last November's candidates — Wyman, Durkin and C. Christopher Chimento, the American Party nominee.

Plan Sunday Homecoming

Homecoming and Quarterly Meeting services will be held at Warren Chapel F.W.B. Church Sunday.

Pastor A.L. Miller will be in charge of the Sunday morning service assisted by the choir and Senior Ushers. A barbecue dinner will be served at 2 pm after morning service.

Dr. W.L. Jones, Senior Bishop, and the Mt. Calvary congregation will be in charge of the afternoon services.

The public is invited to attend.

Butz repeatedly has said that he does not expect the Soviet purchases of 9.8 million metric tons of wheat, corn and barley from U.S. firms to cause a sharp increase in food prices.

Other sources aren't so sure. They cite the controversial 1972 U.S.-Soviet grain deal after which wheat prices tripled and domestic food prices soared.

The latest USDA report showed that the price paid to farmers for their wheat averaged $3.33 a bushel on July 15, up about 14 per cent from June 15.

ANNIVERSARY

Until I became interested in sailing, I thought boats simply drifted with the wind. It hadn't occurred to me that few sailors would ever reach port in this manner. And before I became earnest about church, I thought people's lives—their joys and disappointments, their achievements and failures—were largely a result of fate or fortune. Luck would long ago have replaced religion if this were true.

Now I know the thrill of sailing into the wind. Sure, tacking to port or starboard requires a zigzag course, and when your craft heels over at that precarious angle, it takes skill to control her. But that's part of the adventure—making headway against a strong wind.

Now, too, I know the thrill of believing in God... of setting a goal, of relying on His power, of devoting myself to reaching the destination. Making headway against adverse winds heels us over—but it's part of the adventure of being a Christian today.

ROMANCE UNDER A FULL EARTH—For students at Babson College in Wellesley, Mass., a big earth in the sky can lead to a romance that is out of this world. The courtyard features a 28-foot diameter, 41-ton globe that rotates every four minutes and tilts its axis to change the seasons. It's claimed to be the largest rotating world in the world. Says DST Experiment Was Modestly Helpful

WASHINGTON (AP) — cutting energy use, traffic deaths and violent crime. He suggests it be extended through 1977.

In a report to Congress on Thursday, Coleman said the benefits of DST were shown in a study to be small and difficult to isolate from other factors.

But he contended the findings "do support our conclusions that the nation use the eight-four (eight months of DST time and four months of standard time) for two more years to permit further analysis."

In an energy-saving move in 1973, Congress suspended the Uniform Time Act that provides for six months each of daylight and standard time and ordered the nation placed on a two-year experiment of year-round daylight time starting Jan. 4, 1974.

This action later was amended to require eight months of daylight time, from March to October, and four of standard time.

Coleman said the Transportation Department study indicated probable savings in electricity use of .7 per cent due to daylight time in March and April of 1974 from a year earlier, when standard time was in effect. Total net energy savings were not known, he said.

And he said there were indications that daylight time was responsible for a dip of 1 per cent, or 50 lives, in motor vehicle fatalities between the 1973 and 1974 periods surveyed.

A 13 per cent drop in reported violent crime in Washington, D.C., also may have been linked with the greater amount of daylight afforded by the time change, Coleman added.

Project Is Protested
RALEIGH (AP)—The establishment of a home for five mentally retarded men in a residential area of southwest Raleigh was met with an angry protest Thursday night.

About 35 residents met with Ron Yaudes, president of Family Homes of Wake County, the non-profit group of seven persons which bought the home near Avenet Ferry Road.

The resentful crowd complained that they had not been told of the project until it was completed. They expressed fears for their families' safety and for the future of the neighborhood.

"I don't want them in my community, knowing how they can change it," said Helen Jones, a Rex Hospital nurse. Plans call for a counselor, a seminary student at Wake Forest, and his family to move in today.

Yaudes said state funds will be used to meet mortgage payments on the house. He refused to reveal its cost.

APPOINTMENT
RALEIGH (AP)—Brevard native John Patterson Mitchell was appointed deputy director for personnel for the State Department of Transportation. He has been motor vehicles registration director for the last 14 months.

at face value. Meeting Mr. Ford Thursday afternoon, he described Callaway as an inept amateur and attributed his conduct to inexperience, not conspiratorial intent.

The President responded that, as a gesture, the Vice President would ride with him on the helicopter to Andrews Field Saturday morning to begin his European trip. Similar demonstrations, Rockefeller was informed, would follow.

That undermines Callaway's game plan of offering up Rockefeller's carcass to appease Southern conservatives, who now will be alienated by Ford-Rockefeller camaraderie. Meanwhile, Callaway himself is under attack from Rockefeller Republicans such as Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, the tart-tongued Senate minority leader, who sent this one-line not to Rumsfeld Thursday: "Is Callaway managing Reagan's campaign or Ford's?" An irritated Laird suspects his original strategy is now a dead letter.

These critics all are dwarfed by the one in the Oval Office. According to a senior White House aide, Mr. Ford said Thursday he hoped campaign manager Callaway would do more organizing and less talking in the future. In fact, the ordinarily accessible Callaway spent a previously arranged three-day weekend out of Washington and out of touch.

But he will be talking again Tuesday morning at a breakfast with newsmen, where the dilemma facing the Ford campaign will be intense. For Callaway to reiterate his remarks of last Wednesday night would invite possible public repudiation from Mr. Ford. To back away from them would exacerbate the President's Southern problems. The beneficiaries are the Reaganites — or, in the long run, the Democrats.

Accused Of 2 False Alarms, Chief Resigns

CARY, N.C. (AP)—Cary's fire chief has resigned after being accused of telephoning two false fire alarms.

Terry L. Edmondson denied the allegation. He said Thursday that he quit the post he had held since 1970 because of frustrations built up over the years.

Town Manager Charles Williams said "there is a strong similarity between the voice on the tape and Chief Edmondson's." The calls were made Monday morning.

According to Williams, the telephone company intercepted the second call and said it originated from Edmondson's home telephone number.

Williams said he suspended Edmondson after an executive session of the town council Monday night. He said he did not ask for his resignation.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market drifted lower in slow trading today, showing little response to news of a decline in the unemployment rate last month.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 2.19 at 829.32, and losers outnumbered gainers by about a 5-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

The government reported this morning that the unemployment rate dipped to 8.4 percent in July from 8.6 percent the month before, while total employment rose for the fourth straight month.

But the market seemed to be preoccupied with other issues—notably inflation and the outlook for interest rates.

Analysts cited continuing concern over the prospective impact on food prices of Russian grain purchases and dry weather in some agricultural areas.

Weekly Federal Reserve statistics issued after Thursday's close, meanwhile were taken as evidence of further moves by the Fed to restrict the growth of the money supply—and there were fears that could mean additional upward pressure on interest rates.

Natamats was by far the most active issue on the Big Board, falling 2 1/2 to 25 1/2 following the company's report late Thursday of sharply lower second quarter earnings.

A 224,900-share block of the stock traded at 25.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index gave up 12 to 47.40 in the first hour.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 19 at 89.77.

Beame Plan Faces Vote By Council

NEW YORK (AP)—The City Council votes today on whether Mayor Abraham D. Beame should be given emergency powers to impose his sweeping program of fiscal reform. The Council was expected to approve the mayor's proposals.

Chief among Beame's eight-point program to bail the city out of its financial crisis are wage freezes for city employees, a 15-cent hike Sept. 1 in the 35-cent transit fare, the abolition or consolidation of several city departments and agencies, a $32 million cut in the City University budget in lieu of tuition and a $375 reduction in the $1.9 billion capital budget.

Most bridge and tunnel tolls also will be hiked 25 cents, bringing them to levels of 50 cents and $1 and adding $52 million in income.

Leaders of 23 city unions representing 175,000 workers, more than half the city's employees, accepted the plan.

Refusing to accept the plan were the leaders of the city's 30,000 policemen, 10,000 firemen and 95,000 Board of Education employees.

Beame warned the union chiefs, "We can no longer tolerate contractual giveaways or frills. Excesses should be eliminated from future contracts."

The bare-bones plan announced by Beame on Thursday climaxed a week of crisis-level talks among city officials, bankers, unions leaders, and officials of the Municipal Assistance Corp., the state-created agency imposed on the city to help with its economic recovery.

The bankers had long urged the city to renounce what they considered a profligate existence. It is hoped the budget slashes will restore confidence in the city's financial position so the agency, called "Big MAC," can carry out its task of selling city bonds to convert $3 billion worth of New York's short-term debt into long-term debt.

British Pound Hits New Low

LONDON (AP)—The pound sterling reached a new low against the dollar for the second day in a row in early trading Friday as the dollar continued to rally against leading European currency.

The pound was quoted at $2.1425, down from $2.1540.

Former Vietnam POW Will Be ECU Student

Former Vietnam Prisoner of War Lt. Col. Jerry Marvel will be an East Carolina University student this fall.

The Marine officer is giving up his squadron temporarily to complete work toward his degree in political science. During the one and a half years he believes it will take, his family will continue to live in Newport and he will commute, he said.

Col. Marvel has been in the Marine 21 years. Five years and one month of these years were spent in a North Vietnamese prison after he was shot down during a mission over North Vietnam. His wife and children, Teresa, now 18, and Kevin, now 14, continued to live near the Camp Lejeune Marine Base while he was gone. For almost two years they did not know whether he was dead or alive.

A native of Evansville, Ind., Col. Marvel says he thinks he may like to be a teacher of political science or "some kind of counselor" after his military career is completed. He says it will probably be after he has retired before he starts work on a master's degree he believes he will need for either type of work, however.

Col. Marvel says he chose East Carolina because it has a good political science program and is near enough to his home so his family can continue in their present home. "I hope I'm fortunate enough to meet Dr. Jenkins," he said. "I admire what he's doing for Eastern North Carolina, particularly his efforts for the medical school."

Await Ruling On Little's Effects

By CATHY STEELE ROCHE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—A sheriff's deputy testified today that he initiated his own investigation into the slaying of a Beaufort County jailer because of confusion among officers after Joan Little fled from the jail.

Deputy Willis Allan Peachey, on the stand for the second day, said he saw no effort to organize the investigation when jailer Clarence Alligood's body was found in the cell that Miss Little had occupied.

As court resumed, there was no indication when Judge Hamilton Hobgood would rule on a defense move to suppress books and magazines taken from Miss Little's cell.

Hobgood instructed Peachey on Thursday to skip over his testimony about the publications. Peachey was not questioned about the material today when his testimony resumed.

Dist. Atty. William Griffin, arguing for admission of the material, said their suppression would be "like excluding the gun left at the scene of the crime."

However, special prosecutor John Wilkinson said the evidence was not crucial to the state's case. "We're trying to build a chain of circumstances," he said.

Wilkinson said notations made by Miss Little in the magazines show that she had a "friendly relationship" Alligood.

Alligood's body was nude from the waist down, except for his socks, when it was discovered. Miss Little claims the jailer was trying to attack her sexually and that she stabbed him in self defense with his own icepick.

Steelers Rated Favorite In Chicago

By JAMES C. ROGAL
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — As the story goes, there were less than two minutes left in Super Bowl IX and the Pittsburgh Steelers had the game on ice with control of the ball and a 16-6 lead over the Minnesota Vikings.

Jon Kolb, a key man in the Steeler offensive line, turned to a fellow lineman and said with the sweet smile of victory, "Man, the 'Burgh' must look like Hiroshima now."

The 'Burgh' is Pittsburgh, and though no buildings were destroyed in celebration of the team's first National Football League championship in its 43-year history, fans like to brag that half of Ohio heard the shouts and car honks of unrestrained joy echoing from the Steel City after the game.

The Steelers face their first test as champions tonight in Chicago's Soldier Field, when they square off against the College All-Stars in the 42nd annual game that traditionally marks the start of the NFL season.

After waiting those 43 years to participate in the contest, the Steelers say they're not about to go home as losers.

"We're not going there to lose," said Coach Chuck Noll before the team left for Chicago.

Few other championship teams have lost the battle with the collegiates. The series record stands at 29-9-2, and the

All-Stars last won in 1963, when they defeated Green Bay 20-17.

Last year's game was not played because of the NFL players' strike.

Dwight White, one quarter of Pittsburgh's famed defensive front four, added his thoughts on how the Steelers will approach the game.

"I, for one, will not take the game lightly," White said. "It's an all-out thing. Take no prisoners."

The Steelers are solid 17-point favorites in the nationally televised contest, to be seen on ABC at 9:30 p.m. EDT., except in the Chicago area, which is blacked out. But All-Star Coach John McKay's 1973 squad threw a scare into the Miami Dolphins, playing an outstanding defensive game before losing to the pros 14-3.

McKay had been accused before that game of running a "country club," because he held only one practice a day and rarely scrimmaged.

McKay's coaching style is less flamboyant than most. "No, I am not a jump-up-and-down coach," McKay said. "I don't have jump-up-and-down teams."

He just has winning teams, compiling a 119-36-8 mark as coach at USC.

Beat-up Putter Puts Massengale On Top

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — An old, beat-up putter, mallet-headed and wooden-shafted—a gift from his caddy—turned the golf season around for Rik Massengale.

"Just like the last three, four years, I wasn't doing much of anything," Massengale said. "Out in Palm Springs early in the year my caddy, Denny Ferrell, was watching me putting one day and I was complaining about it and he said he had an old putter I ought to try."

"He brought it out the next day and I've used it ever since. I think that's the biggest change there's been in my season—the putting."

Massengale, armed with that new-old putter, scored eight birdies—"I didn't miss any short putts all day long," he said—on his way to a seven-under-par 65 and the first-round lead Thursday in the $250,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

Massengale, another faceless struggler on the tour for his first five years, broke through to his first triumph in the Tallahassee Open—after he'd gotten the caddy's putter—and, with $53,278 in official earnings, has more than tripled his earnings for the entire 1974 season.

He's going for a $50,000 first prize here, but isn't counting the money yet.

"I've led golf tournaments in the first round before and wound up making $500 for the week," he said. "Anything can happen yet."

He had good reason to be less than over-confident. Lurking just a single shot off his pace with a 66 was Tom Weiskopf, a playoff winner over Jack Nicklaus for the Canadian Open title last weekend.

Jerry Pate, a former National Amateur champion who is making his first American start as a pro, Pat Fitzsimons and Tommy Aaron were at 67, two strokes back and five under par on the 6,614-yard Westchester Country Club course that often yields some of the season's lowest scores.

Office, Starrette Key Braves

ATLANTA (AP) — Rowland Office was the hero for the Atlanta Braves in a storybook finish but Coach Herm Starrette called the shot.

Office, the young Braves' center fielder, climaxed a six-run uprising in the last of the ninth inning Thursday night with a three-run homer off reliever Mike Marshall for a 11-10 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers in soggy Atlanta Stadium.

"Herm called it," said an excited Braves' Manager Clyde King afterwards.

"That's right," confirmed Starrette, the Braves pitching coach. "I just had a feeling. I told Clyde that Rowland was gonna do it."

Starrette said he very rarely does that type of prophesizing. "Right after he said it — boom — there it went," said King of Office's blast to the opposite field just over the left field fence.

"My only concern was whether it would stay fair," said King.

"That was something, though, coming back like that against the Dodgers and Marshall. You just don't do those things. That was some comeback, wasn't it."

Office was elated, too, as might be expected.

"I was looking outside," said the left-handed hitter who also had two other hits. "And he threw me a fast ball outside. I knew I hit it good but didn't know it was going to go. When I was about to step on second, I realized it was over the fence. I just started jumping up and down, I was so happy.

"It was great, you couldn't ask for anything more."

While virtually the whole Atlanta squad surged to meet Office at home plate, a dejected Marshall just stood at the mound, kicking the dirt long after Office had circled the bases.

"That has got to hurt the Dodgers," said Ralph Garr, whose single in the ninth ignited the rally. "You fall three, four runs behind the Dodgers and Marshall pitching, forget it. That's what makes this even better. I can't ever remember beating them like this."

After Garr's hit, Rod Gilbreath, subbing for Marty Perez, who suffered a broken thumb while batting in the third inning, lashed his third straight hit for a run. Darrell Evans walked and Earl Williams doubled for another run before Dusty Baker struck out. But Larvell Blanks' infield single made it 10-8 and set the stage for Office's shot.

Dave Lopes and Willie Crawford each, had three hits and two runs batted in for the Dodgers, who scored six runs themselves in the fifth inning.

Gilbreath and Williams had two RBI each for Atlanta while Evans had connected for his 14th homer in the opening inning.

Tom House, 4-4, earned the victory while Marshall suffered his 11th loss against six triumphs.

Church Tourney Starts

Mt. Pleasant, Peoples, and Black Jack took wins in the National Division of the Church League Tourney last night. St. Gabriel's, Trinity, and Oakmont, advanced in the American Division.

Mt. Pleasant took care of Immanuel, 9-5, scoring three times in the fifth inning to ice the win. Peoples scored in the first four innings to take First Free Will Baptist, 13-4. Their game was highlighted by a homer by Davis. Black Jack had little trouble with Arlington, handing the Baptists a 24-1 licking. They scored 17 runs in the first two innings, and totaled 32 hits for the entire game.

St. Gabriel's scored five runs in the top of the seventh to beat St. James, 11-6. Trinity came from behind in the fourth inning to score seven runs to defeat Memorial Baptist, 16-6. They tied the game in the third at six-all. An insurance home run in the sixth inning was all Oakmont needed to beat Temple, 6-4. Temple got two hits in the top of the seventh, but could not get the runners home.

The schedule for next Tuesday includes: American Division, 1st Christian vs. St. Gabriel, Trinity vs. Oakmont, and St. James vs. Memorial Baptist; National Division, Grace vs. Mt. Pleasant, Peoples' vs. Black Jack, and First F.W.B. vs. Arlington St.

The world champion Pittsburgh Steelers led the American Football Conference in total defense last year, giving up an average of 219 yards per game.

Boston Hints To Series With Twin-Bill Sweep

BOSTON (AP) — To a team the Boston Red Sox refuse to claim anything yet, but there appeared to be a hidden message in the notice on the clubhouse bulletin board.

The notice was there for all to see Thursday night after the Red Sox swept a doubleheader from the Detroit Tigers 3-2 in 10 innings and 6-1, boosting Boston's American League East lead to nine games over idle Baltimore.

Chalked on the board normally used for the reporting times for routine batting practice were the words:

"Friday—6 p.m. pitchers and everybody."

Pitchers taking batting practice when they don't hit in regular season games, or even in the league playoffs? That doesn't make sense, unless thoughts are pointed toward the World Series when pitchers must bat against the National League champion.

"No, we're not thinking about any World Series, not with two months to go," Boston Manager Darrel Johnson said. "However, our guys played two tough games in extremely hot weather tonight and we decided to let them pass up batting practice before tomorrow night's game.

"The pitchers are welcome to come out and take batting practice if they wish. It's the first time we've done this, but it's no great deal. Of course, if we can stay far ahead, we're going to have to get the pitchers ready to hit in the event we're fortunate enough to get through the playoffs and into the World Series. There's plenty of time for that."

In the only other American League game Thursday, the Minnesota Twins beat the Kansas City Royals 7-2.

Team captain Carl Yastrzemski drove in two runs, including the tying tally in the eighth inning, in the first game against Detroit.

Then he walked, sprinted all the way to third on a tapper and scored for Boston's second run in the fourth inning of the nightcap. In the sixth, he delivered a key single and scored in a three-run inning.

Twins 7, Royals 2
Phil Roof hit a three-run homer in the fourth inning and Eric Soderholm and Tony Oliva smashed solo homes, powering Minnesota past Kansas City.

S. Pitt Wins

The Southern Pitt Little Leaguers scored a decisive 21-2 victory over Williamston's All-Stars in a game at Williamston last night.

David Jenkins was the winning pitcher. Both teams play in the double elimination tourney again tonight.

East Downs West

GREENSBORO (AP) — The East beat the West, 14-8, in the annual East-West All-Star football game Thursday night at Sanford Central quarterback P. J. Gay passed for one touchdown and ran four yards for another.

In the only score of the first half, Gay hit Jim Rouse of Wilmington Hoggard with a seven-yard scoring strike. He ran for his 6-pointer in the fourth period.

The West All-Stars got their offense going in the last quarter, picking up a touchdown on a 41-yard pass from Charlotte Garinger's Dwight Clark to Scott Wade of McDowell County.

The West came close in the waning minutes when Clark hit Mike Jamison of Gastonia Ashbrook for a 44-yard gain at the East 34. A running play and a 15-yard penalty moved it to the 13.

Four running plays later, the West was a foot short of a first down with less than a minute to play.

Babe Ruth Closes Season With Graniteers and Home Builder Wins

Home Builders and Graniteers picked up wins in their respective Babe Ruth League baseball games played last evening. The Graniteers held on for an 8-6 win over Pitt Plaza, and Carolina Dairies fell to Home Builders by a 6-3 margin.

In the Prep League game, Pitt Plaza scored three in the top of the first inning on just one hit. Successive walks to Alton Collier and Howard Wilkerson, and a fielder's choice to Mark Shank loaded the bases for David Carroll. Carroll delivered with a single to score Collier and Wilkerson, and move Shank to third. Shank later scored on an infield sacrifice.

The Graniteers scored all three runs in the bottom of the first. Chip Davis walked and reaced second when Mike Campbell's fielder's choice was errored. Jeff Worthington singled to bring Davis around, and move Campbell to second.

Charles Daise followed with another single to score Campbell and move Worthington up a base. David Holley rapped into a two-base error to bring in Worthington and Daise.

With one out, Todd Galloway walked, as did Eddie Moye. With two gone, Davis, at bat for the second time in the inning, doubled to left driving in two more, and going to third himself on the play at the plate. Davis scored on a single by Campbell, also his second bat of the inning.

Pitt Plaza chipped away with single runs in the fourth, sixth and seventh innings, but couldn't extend their rally.

scored when Chris Ross singled to center field.

They scored twice more in the sixth inning to secure the win. For Carolina Dairies, Gary Chapman scored in the first when he walked, moved over on another walk, and scored on Rufus Sutton's single. Marshall Health reached on an error in the second, went to third on a two-base error, and scored on Wayne Stokes' single. Bobby Woronoff singled in the third, moved to third base on the centerfielder's error, and scored on another single by Sutton.

Down For "The Count"

San Francisco Giants pitcher John "The Count" Montefusco tips hit hat to the jeering crowd as he leaves the field after giving up seven runs to the Cincinnati Reds in the first two innings of a game in Cincinnati Thursday night. The Giants pitcher had earlier predicted that he would shutout the Reds and strike out Reds batter Johnny Bench four times. Instead, Bench hit a three-run homer, causing Giants manager Wes Westrum to pull Montefusco from the game. (AP Wirephoto)

Montefusco Wanted Steak, Got His Own Words Instead

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

John Montefusco could have had a steak dinner, but he had to eat his words instead.

The brash San Francisco pitcher vowed to strike out Johnny Bench four times Thursday night and the Cincinnati slugger promised Montefusco a free meal if he did.

As it was, Montefusco wasn't even around long enough to face Bench four times—as the Reds bombed out the right-hander with a six-run second inning en route to an 11-6 triumph over the Giants.

"I told him before the game that I'd buy him a steak dinner if he struck me out four times," said Bench, who cracked a three-run homer in the big second-inning rally. "Nobody's going to strike me out four times in one game."

Montefusco also put his foot in his mouth when he confidently announced that he would shut out the heavy-hitting National League West leaders.

"Maybe The Count got everybody excited," said Bench about the Giants' swaggering young pitcher. "He got everybody motivated."

The Reds' victory, coupled with the Los Angeles Dodgers' 11-10 loss to the Atlanta Braves, boosted Cincinnati's runaway lead to 14½ games—biggest of the season.

Elsewhere, the New York Mets beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-2; the Montreal Expos turned back the Philadelphia Phillies 7-4; the Chicago Cubs trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals 5-3; and the San Diego Padres beat the Houston Astros 5-3.

Along with Bench's blast in the Cincinnati second, the Reds stroked four other hits—including doubles by George Foster, Darrel Chaney and pitcher Clay Kirby.

Braves 11, Dodgers 10

Roland Office smashed a three-run homer off Los Angeles relief ace Mike Marshall, capping a six-run rally in the ninth inning that gave Atlanta a dramatic victory over the Dodgers.

Mets 6, Pirates 2

Red-hot Dave Kingman blasted a two-run homer, his second of the night, to key a four-run rally in the eighth that lifted New York over Pittsburgh.

Expos 7, Phillies 4

Larry Parrish's two-run single capped a three-run rally in the first inning and Mike Jorgensen's double highlighted a three-run fifth, leading Montreal over Philadelphia.

Cardinals 5, Cubs 3

Jerry Morales' run-scoring double in the eighth broke a tie and Manny Trillo squeezed home another run, lifting Chicago over St. Louis.

Padres 5, Astros 3

Bobby Tolan scored the tie-breaking run on an error in the eighth inning as San Diego beat Houston.

More Than Exhibition For 'Skins And Bengals

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Paul Brown and George Allen, the opposing coaches, are treating the annual Pro Football Hall of Fame Game Saturday as more than a mere exhibition.

Allen's Washington Redskins bid to give National Football Conference teams their fourth victory in the five-year pre-season series with the American Football Conference.

For Brown, the wizard of the Cincinnati Bengals, the nationally televised exhibition (ABC, 4 p.m. EDT) serves as a homecoming and he's let his players know his feelings.

"This is no ordinary exhibition. Paul Brown is coming home and I expect everybody to play well," said Brown, who grew up in nearby Massillon, the fame high school football hotbed.

Brown will be doing double duty Saturday. He will present another of his former Cleveland Browns, wide receiver Dante Lavelli, to the Hall of Fame during enshrinement ceremonies two hours before the game.

Lavelli, Lenny Moore, George Connor and Roosevelt Brown join 81 other pro football immortals in the shrine.

Brown, himself a 1967 inductee, said, "There are no words to describe its excitement and the feeling one gets."

Lavelli teamed with quarterback Otto Graham to form one of the game's most feared passing combinations. Lavelli, in his 11 seasons, caught 386 passes for 6,488 yards and 62 touchdowns.

In his eight years with the Chicago Bears, Connor was an all-pro selection at three different positions, offensive and defensive tackle and linebacker.

Moore, an All-American at Penn State, has the second highest touchdown total in history. His 113 touchdowns rank second only to Jim Brown's 126. Moore's 12 seasons with the Baltimore Colts produced 11,213 combined net yards and 678 points.

Brown, the 27th round draft selection of the New York Giants in 1953, joins Jim Parker as the only pure offensive line men in the shrine. Brown was an all-league choice in eight of his 13 pro years.

Allen is treating this first pre-season meeting between two National Football League teams just as seriously as Brown. But for a different reason.

"Cincinnati is a playoff team and I am glad we are playing a good team. We'll find out how much progress we've made," said Allen, whose Redskins have been in the playoffs all four of his seasons at Washington.

Washington had a much more impressive 1974 record, 10-4 to the Bengals' 7-7. However, one of the Redskins' losses was a 28-17 decision to Cincinnati.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union national team won its third game in the International Basketball Cup competition, defeating Brazil 94-73 in Lenin-grad Thursday night, Tass reported. The Russians led at halftime 48-31.

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Alouettes have brought American defensive back Lewis Cook into camp and may activate him for a Canadian Football League game here Tuesday night against the Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Cook, 28, started his pro career with the Als in 1970, playing three games before being sidelined with a knee injury.

Astronauts' Health Good

HONOLULU (AP) — Doctors say the three Apollo astronauts are in good health and ready to begin jogging and other light exercises.

Thomas P. Stafford, Donald K. Slayton and Vance D. Brand underwent physical examinations Thursday, the day after they left Tripler Army Hospital to move into beach cottages on a Marine Corps base for 10 days of doctor-ordered semi-isolation.

The astronauts have been under medical care since suffering lung irritation from poison rocket gas that accidentally entered their spacecraft during the descent to the Pacific Ocean on July 24 at the conclusion of the Apollo-Soyuz mission.

Space agency doctors say no symptoms of their exposure to the gas remain. Seclusion was prescribed partly to minimize the chance of infection until the astronauts' lungs are completely normal.

Another Survey Of Marijuana

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — NBC News, which obviously believes it's high time for another look at the burning issue of marijuana, has made a pretty interesting TV study of if and how much America is going to pot.

Called "Mary Jane Grows Up: Marijuana in the '70s," this one-hour special airs Sunday night and inspects in a sprightly, informative way the medical, social and legal aspects of smoking the devil weed nowadays.

The tour guide is Jack Perkins, a Los Angeles-based newsman who goes about his labors with occasional flashes of whimsy, such as appearing early in the show sitting relaxed with a marijuana cigarette in hand.

"There are an estimated 30 million criminals at large in the United States," he says. "Their crime — possession and use of marijuana."

"I would make it 30 million and one if I were to smoke this marijuana joint in 49 of the 50 states. As it is, I'm in the 50th, Alaska, where I could smoke in the privacy of this home if I wanted to."

He goes on to note that state's Supreme Court recently ruled it is an invasion of privacy "to arrest anyone for possession or use of marijuana in private."

Then it's off for reports on changing attitudes toward pot-smoking, with notations that such no longer is strictly the province of the young, long-haired citizens of this country.

A housewife in her 50s admits she smokes pot. So does a forthright lawyer, who says, "I had some pot earlier today before I went down to court." (Methinks his shingle may be in jeopardy after Sunday.)

There also are looks at the dark side of the weed, brief interviews with young adults on bad effects they or those they know have suffered, and a chilling talk with a girl who admits she first lit up at 11.

Sprinkled throughout the show are reports from no less than eight medical centers, mostly on whether pot-smoking is harmful, but also how severely it affects driving and how it might be detected by police in a new test devised by some UCLA scientists.

Unless times have really changed, I suspect a few crisp new subpoenas will be issued after this show. But its point is to study how much times have changed, and it does a solid, bang-up job of it.

Opening lead: Five of ♠.

There is nothing dramatic or wondrous about the winning play on this hand. Yet we would venture to say that the majority of players would probably miss it.

Despite his four-card trump support, North should have heeded his partner's suggestion that the hand be played in no trump rather than hearts, since he had a balanced hand with stoppers in every suit. However, on a diamond lead, that contract would have required the same play that declarer failed to find at four hearts.

West got his side off to its best start by leading a diamond, and declarer thought he had done the best he could when he inserted dummy's jack, which forced the ace. East returned a diamond and West's eight drove out the king. Declarer drew trumps and tried to establish his clubs. However, when East won the ace, he returned another diamond, and West's queen of diamonds and ace of spades meant a one-trick defeat.

Had declarer stopped to count his losers before playing to the first trick, he might have come up with the correct play. Since he had to lose a trick to the three missing side-suit aces, he could not afford a second loser in any suit. Therefore, the play of either the jack or king of diamonds from dummy at trick one was futile. Notice that, even though the finessé of the jack succeeded, declarer still lost two diamond tricks when East returned the suit.

The only chance to limit the diamond losers to one was to hope that West's diamonds included both the ten and queen. If that were so, declarer could avoid a second diamond loser by ducking the opening lead to his nine!

Whether East takes the first trick with the ace of diamonds or not, declarer is home. All he has to do after drawing trumps is to finesse the jack of diamonds, and his only other losers are the black-suit aces.

Bishop Avers Price On Head

By THOMAS G. WELLS
Associated Press Writer
TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishop of a Honduran province where two priests were killed says land reform opponents there have "put a $10,000 price on my head."

The Most Rev. Nicholas d'Antonio, 59, who came here from Baltimore, Md., 29 years ago, said in an interview that wealthy ranchers were out to get him.

"One rancher actually said he would pay only if someone brought my head to him," Bishop d'Antonio said.

Another American priest said he was arrested by soldiers in Olancho province, held overnight and was told to preach the word of God "instead of raising up the people."

One of the two priests found dead in a dynamited well on an Olancho ranch was an American.

Bishop d'Antonio said he was in Tegucigalpa because the U.S. Embassy and the apostolic nuncio — the Vatican's diplomatic representative — warned him to stay out of Olancho for a while. He added that he refuses to answer the telephone and has others answer the door "because I want to live to go back and work in my diocese."

He said that the Honduran military government has brought 16 priests, 18 nuns and 2 seminarians from Olancho to Tegucigalpa or has flown them into exile.

Hoke Ready To Respond

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Dr. Harold R. Hoke says he will go voluntarily to Tennessee "whenever they want me to" in answer to two indictments charging him with performing illegal abortions in Chattanooga.

Dr. Hoke, who operates the Hallmark Clinic, a legal abortion clinic in Charlotte, is accused of two counts of performing abortions at the Chattanooga Women's Clinic without a license to practice medicine in Tennessee.

Hoke said he never performed any abortions at the four-month-old clinic, but merely acted as a consultant to a clinic doctor who did so.

A part owner of the clinic, Tom Cole, who is not a doctor, was indicted on charges of aiding and abetting both alleged abortions.

Dist. Atty. Gary Gerbitz said in Chattanooga that Hoke and Cole probably would be arraigned early next month.

"If it had been an eye, ear, nose and throat clinic and a consultant had gone over there, nothing would have been done," Hoke said. "But this is an abortion clinic. This is a fight against abortion."

Cole said the indictments are part of a crusade to destroy the clinic.

Public Has Not Been Sold On Oil Exploration

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Assistant Interior Secretary Roy Hughes admits it—in 18 months of earnest campaigning the department still hasn't sold the public on oil exploration into untouched areas off the Atlantic, Pacific and Alaskan coasts. California and Long Island have sued to block the program, Alaska wants a Congressional moratorium and the Mid-Atlantic and North Atlantic states want the offshore laws amended. "I think it's fair to say that nobody is welcoming the program with open arms," Hughes said in a recent interview. Why not? Even most opponents concede that drilling in offshore "frontier" areas is probably inevitable. But Interior has leased areas in the Gulf of Mexico and off California for the past 20 years at a leisurely rate of around half a million acres a year. Now, Interior proposes a sudden leap to several million acres a year in brand new areas and insists the national need is so urgent there is no time to adopt new rules—and the critics don't buy that.

Many coastal states want not only a share of the revenue—never directly shared before—but also time to prepare for impacts, and protection against abuses by the widely-mistrusted oil companies.

Interior and its friends "want to go ahead, and wait until the money comes in—we want to get the ground rules first," said Skip Webb, an aide to the governor of Delaware. "What control are we going to have?" demanded New Jersey Gov. Brendan T. Byrne. "What control is the federal government going to have?"

"Those are the points the coastal governors have been making, and we want more answers than we've gotten." In Boston, Gov. Michael S. Dukakis charged that Interior was in such a "mad dash to make us energy self-sufficient... that anything which might be thought to slow down the process is looked upon with great disfavor.

"There's been pretty minimal consultation and certainly no effective working relationship with the state," he added.

Delaware Gov. Sherman W. Tribbitt said the coastal states should have some "input" to offshore decisions, possibly even a vote through some federal-state regional authority.

Alaska's Gov. Jay Hammond sent a representative to Washington, D.C., to claim equal partnership in offshore decisions.

Such pressures generated strong moves in Congress to amend the Coastal Zone Management Act and the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act.

Those efforts are spearheaded in the Senate by Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., and in the House by Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y.

Hollings said he expected legislation changing the ground rules of offshore oil to pass both houses by September or October.

One bill would establish a federal fund of perhaps $200 million to aid coastal states in planning, and to compensate states which can demonstrate a "net adverse budgetary impact" from offshore oil development.

This approach was favored by many Mid-Atlantic and North Atlantic states, but was opposed by the Interior Department because, Hughes explained, the department did not want to sit in judgment, deciding what is a legitimate "impact" and how much it is worth.

Interior may not have to, for the leading proposals would assign management of the fund to the Commerce Department, which has supported the idea.

To increase the states' influence in offshore decisions, the bill also proposed to authorize state regional coastal compacts in which the federal government would be required to participate.

Other proposed legislation would establish an entirely new system for leasing, exploring and developing at least some of the new offshore areas.

Under the existing system, the Interior Department auctions offshore tracts of 5,120 acres each to the oil company which offer the highest payments to the U.S. Treasury for the leases.

The leases entitle the companies to explore for and produce oil and natural gas, paying the government a royalty on production plus a small rental on the tract.

Bonus bids have often run to tens of millions of dollars for a single attractive lease, prompting major oil companies to pool their resources as joint bidders. Critics of the system contend that it tends to squeeze smaller companies out of the big-money competition for leases, and provides the federal and state governments with too little information and control for effective planning.

Under the proposed new system, companies would bid for percentage shares in a lease, allowing small companies to compete for shares they could afford.

The federal government itself would hold a major share of each lease, participating directly in planning and operations offshore and sharing directly in the profits.

Leases might be expanded to cover entire geological structures rather than arbitrary 5,000-acre rectangles.

Some proposals would let a state seek a three-year delay in offshore leasing which Interior, however, could reject.

To virtually all these proposals, the oil industry and the Interior Department have objected.

Hollings charged in an interview that while the public interest requires new rules, Interior "wants to squat and change nothing."

Hughes, on the contrary, said Interior was considering some improvements in its regulations—perhaps banning joint bidding among major oil companies, for example: perhaps showing the states the oil companies' offshore development plans. "We feel we can accommodate virtually all of the concerns that the states have under the existing law," he said.

Let states request leasing delays?

Hughes said it was "not in the national interest to allow parochial state positions to stop a major national program."

Shift from whole-lease bidding to bidding on shares? "If we shift the whole program to a brand new system we wind up with a year or two's delay."

Lease geological structures instead of rectangular tracts? Potential petroleum structures were not defined enough for that, Hughes said.

Told of that objection, Hollings snorted, "Ha! You see, they have problems for every solution! That's the one thing they can pretty well define, the general structure."

Said Hughes, with a trace of exasperation, "Our intent is to try and find oil for the nation, not to come up with new theories in oil exploration."

In a June petroleum meeting, however, the chairman of the California State Lands Commission, Kenneth Cory, warned that rushing into offshore leasing against state and local opposition "is the one sure way to guarantee an unnecessary delay... the only recourse becomes the courts and the Congress." Cory pointedly reminded Interior that its failure to prepare a required environmental study in 1970 brought on lawsuits and court orders that delayed the trans-Alaska-oil pipeline nearly three years. Now, Cory said, there was Interior again in too much of a hurry. And he asked: "How come we never have time to do it right, but always can take the time to do it over?"

Farmers Burn Pile Of Tobacco

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — A group of Darlington County farmers gathered just outside of Darlington Thursday evening for a "tobacco burning" to protest the low prices which their crops have been bringing on the market.

Diesel fuel was poured on an estimated 6,000 pounds of apparently low grade leaf and it was put to the torch as the group of about 50 farmers and their families watched.

Jimmy Galloway, who donated 1,000 pounds of leaf to be burned, said, "We just think we got a raw deal from Secretary Butz."

They said they regarded the 15 per cent increase in allotments this year as a way to lower the price of tobacco on the market.

"I don't know of any farmer or group of farmers that supports this increase," Galloway said.

Mrs. Evelyn Gandy, wife of the farmer who set the fire, said, "There's no way in the world we can make it on these prices. Her husband, H. E. Gandy, agreed. "Ain't no way!" he said.

"If we don't get more in the morning, I hope he burns every leaf," Mrs. Gandy added.

"The companies were begging for us to plant that extra 15 per cent," reported Ernest Helms. "We've been sold down the river. They told us they would pay for quality tobacco. Now that we've made it, they won't buy it. They straight out lied to us."

In a related incident in Tabor City, N.C., farmers who blocked an auction line Tuesday are now sponsoring radio spot announcements urging other farmers to keep their crops off the market.

Secretaries Hear Speaker

Cathy Cooper of Sunshine Garden Center spoke to the Greenville Chapter of the National Secretaries Association Monday evening. Her topic was the care of plants for home and office.

President Yvonne Hardee welcomed special guest Susan Utley of the James, Hite, Cavendish and Blount Law Firm. Janie Radford was reinstated as a member and Janet Brown and Carolyn Formaini were installed as new members in a candlelight ceremony.

All secretaries interested in joining NSA are invited to attend any of the meetings held on the last Monday of each month.
