

Wholesale Prices Jump; Terrorists Free 15 Hostages And Take Off To Libya

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today that higher costs for food and fuel triggered the second-sharpest jump of the year in wholesale prices during July, offering fresh evidence of a resurgence of inflation.

The Labor Department said its Wholesale Price Index climbed 1.2 per cent, reversing a decline of one-tenth of 1 per cent in June. The rise was the largest since April's 1.5 per cent and was only the third monthly increase of the year.

The increase, which had been expected by administration economists, works out to an annual rate of 14.4 per cent. Combined with June's increase in consumer prices at an annual rate of 9.6 per cent, the latest report indicated that inflation is regaining strength. Consumer prices had subsided to an average annual increase of 5.2 per cent during the three previous months. Wholesale price increases, of course, usually mean higher prices for consumers — and the latest report did not include several factors already in place which will push up prices.

Administration economists, however, contend the current surge is temporary and will give way within a few months.

The wholesale index includes prices from all levels of the economy, including industrial raw materials and other items several steps removed from consumers. The Labor Department said wholesale prices of just those products headed for the retail level were up 1.4 per cent, the biggest increase since November.

The Labor Department said food and farm products accounted for three-fourths of the jump in the over-all index. That category rose 4.6 per cent on the higher prices for vegetables, fats and oils, sugar and sweets and all basic protein—meat, poultry and fish.

Industrial commodities advanced four-tenths of 1 per cent due to higher prices for fuels and related products and power.

The latest advance left the index 8.7 per cent ahead of where it was a year ago.

Still ahead are increases in aluminum and steel prices, which will affect a wide range of industrial and consumer prices. Coffee prices are headed up due to a frost in Brazil, and the price of wheat is thought likely to rise as the market anticipates Russian purchases.

Also in the future is the prospect of higher oil prices if the exporting nations make good their pledge to implement a September boost. Moreover, price controls on some domestic oil are scheduled to expire Aug. 31.

The current inflationary surge will end in a few months and thus present no threat to the economic recovery, which is currently proceeding stronger than expected, officials say.

"At the moment, the recovery is looking more solid every day," Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said Wednesday.

The government's index of consumer prices jumped in June at a rate equivalent to an annual increase of 9.6 per cent. At one point earlier this year, the consumer index was rising at a 6 per cent annual rate.

Violence Enters 5th Day

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portuguese Communists opened fire today on a mob attacking their headquarters in the northern town of Fafe, killing one person and wounding five, officials said.

Portugal's internal security chief, Gen. Otel Saraiva de Carvalho, and the army chief of staff, Gen. Carlos Fabio, rushed to the area.

Fafe, about 200 miles north of Lisbon, was the scene of anti-Communist violence earlier this week.

Other anti-Communist rioting was reported in Bombaral, 40 miles from Lisbon. Rioters tore apart the offices of the Communist party and the Socialist Leftist party, a small, militant group.

The riots marked the fifth straight day of anti-Communist violence in the conservative north. Military men and civilians expressed fear that the backlash would soon hit the capital, possibly setting off civil war.

In the industrial northern city of Porto, a scheduled Communist rally mustered only a few thousand supporters. The 140 marines who were rushed Wednesday to bolster local troops were not called out.

Meanwhile, the Lisbon newspaper O Seculo quoted Communist-backed Premier Vasco Goncalves saying: "We have a government."

The paper said Goncalves is expected to name the new cabinet soon and end a crisis precipitated last month when Socialists and Popular Democrats quit the government to protest its swing toward the radical left.

Goncalves met late into the evening with President Francisco da Costa Gomes and leading members of the ruling Armed Forces Movement.

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Five Japanese Red Army terrorists today freed 15 hostages, including U.S. Consul Robert Stebbins, two other Americans and a Swedish diplomat, on an airliner at Kuala Lumpur airport.

The terrorists, who stormed a building housing the U.S. Embassy on Monday, were then joined on the plane by five other radicals freed from Japanese jails and four substitute hostages, and took off for Libya.

Stebbins, 42, of Clovis, N.M., said he believed the terrorists would have killed their hostages, originally numbering 52, if their demands were not met. Stebbins and other freed hostages agreed that the terrorists treated them well, however, and gave them candy, cushions and in one instance a bottle of perfume. Stebbins said the terrorists also took valuables and money from the hostages, but later gave it all back.

Officials said the Japan Air Lines DC8 would make a refueling stop in Colombo, Sri Lanka, and then fly straight to Tripoli, where it was expected at about 10:45 p.m. Tripoli time—4:45 p.m. EDT. The flight would cover 6,900 miles.

The Colombo government said it would shoot anyone who tried to get off the plane during the refueling stop, and Egypt said it would allow the plane to overfly Egypt on its way to Libya but not allow it to land. Earlier reports said the plane would refuel at Aden.

Stebbins said he believed the terrorists were "very precise, assured, well-organized, courageous people who knew exactly what they wanted and how to get it." He said they were very good toward their hostages but very firm and that if they had not received their demands they would have killed everyone.

"I hope they would some day be people with whom I can sit down and have a cup of coffee and talk about girls and politics and everything. Politics — I did not talk that with them. This was not one of their hangups," he added.

"I have to admire their dedication," Stebbins said. "They were very kind." He said aboard the plane the terrorists took turns resting and the leader wrote a careful record of all the negotiations.

Stebbins was hugged by his wife when he got off the plane. He later received a phone call from his mother, Mrs. Odessa Lloyd of Hemet, Calif., expressing her happiness that he had been freed unharmed.

The freed Swedish diplomat, Charge d'Affaires Fredrik Bergrasthale, said that while he and the other captives were treated "very well," the three-day ordeal was a frightening experience because "these people are tough and one can never know what they will do."

Another of the 15 freed hostages, Tee Wah Kwung, 20, of Malaysia, said that in the plane, where they were held for the last 24 hours, they were given regular airline food, and that when he left the aircraft one of the gunmen gave him a bottle of perfume as a souvenir.

Others among the 15 hostages released included Gerald Lancaster of Houston, Tex., an engineer; and George Burton, an employe of a San Francisco brokerage firm.

Butz' Plan Demands Lie Test

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz's suggested remedies for low flue-cured tobacco prices were greeted skeptically by some North Carolina tobacco officials.

In response to farmers' demands for help, Butz said Tuesday that changing the price of surplus tobacco will increase depressed prices.

Fred Bond, the general manager of the Flue-cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp. said Wednesday that that plan probably would not help the farmers get better prices because buying surplus leaf is uneconomical for the companies and they rarely do it.

The Agriculture Department said some buyers may be delaying purchases in hopes of buying what they need later from the support stockpile. And that decrease in demand keeps prices low, causing more tobacco to come under government price support, officials said.

But Bond contends that is wrong. "No company is going to risk its inventory balance by depending on stabilization for its requirements," he said.

John Sledge, N.C. Farm Bureau Federation president, also expressed disappointment in Butz's statement, saying his group was "discouraged by the lack of strength" in it.

He said what is needed is an immediate reduction in next year's quotas. "We do believe such a statement from him at this time lowering the 1976 quotas would give some assurance to the growers that the secretary is responsive to their problems. The reduction would hopefully increase prices," he said.

Farmers on North Carolina's Border Belt markets have asked Butz to close warehouses until prices improve. Several auctions were disrupted earlier this week to protest the prices, but no incidents were reported Wednesday.

Local police and sheriffs escorted buyers through rows of tobacco in Fairmont, N.C., though. And a farmer outside a warehouse in Winston Salem Wednesday burned 1,400 pounds of tobacco to protest low leaf prices.

Stokes County farmer Bruce Anderson, who admitted the tobacco he poured gasoline over was of poor quality, said he was offered from two to five cents a pound for his crop "and that don't even pay the bill to drive down here."

DETROIT (AP) — Jimmy Hoffa's son says he believes Charles "Chuckie" O'Brien, Hoffa's foster son, knows what happened to the ex-Teamsters union president. He demands that O'Brien take a lie detector test.

O'Brien, the 41-year-old union organizer raised by Hoffa from the age of 3, said he had no knowledge of Hoffa's whereabouts. He talked with James P. Hoffa, Hoffa's son, who demanded O'Brien take a polygraph examination.

"He hemmed and he hawed and he said he would have to consult his attorney," said James P. Hoffa. "I construed that to be a refusal."

O'Brien emerged Wednesday from several days of seclusion and was interviewed by the FBI for 3 1/2 hours. He is expected to be questioned again as the FBI continues its probe into the disappearance of Hoffa last Wednesday.

"I think he has knowledge of what happened," James P. Hoffa told The Associated Press Wednesday night. Hoffa, a Detroit attorney, said O'Brien's FBI interview generated "some interesting leads."

"Some are being checked out. Some are very, very interesting."

O'Brien would not comment. James Burdick, O'Brien's attorney, told The AP that O'Brien was not involved in Hoffa's disappearance.

Hoffa called home last Wednesday to say Detroit Mafia figure Anthony Giacalone hadn't shown up for a luncheon date. The 62-year-old former labor leader hasn't been heard from since.

False Arrest

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP)—David F. Edwards of Statesville says he has been advised that authorities in Colombia, South America, have admitted that a marijuana possession charge for which he was held 17 days in jail in Barranquilla was false.

Edwards, 34, says he has received a copy of a telegram advising the U.S. secretary of state that no marijuana was found on him when he was arrested July 8 at an airport as he was about to leave Colombia after a visit.

He was released without explanation on July 24.

A spokesman at the American embassy in Bogota, the capital of Colombia, confirmed the telegram Wednesday. He said false arrests have happened before when Colombian authorities suspected drug trafficking.

PRICE SUPPORT?

In a front-page story in your paper on August 3, the last paragraph read as follows: The government support price of 93 cents per pound in guaranteed to farmers by the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corporation if tobacco companies refuse to buy the leaf.

Does this mean that a farmer can receive no less than 93 cents a pound for his tobacco? I am a small farmer and sold only twice this season. Why was I paid from 76 to 90 cents per pound? Mrs. V. J.

Stacy Evans of the Greenville Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office said the support prices for different grades of tobacco average out to 93 cents a pound. Lower grades may bring less than this, he said, and higher grades may bring more. If you have any questions about support prices, you can call Evans at 752-6112.

UNC System Singled Out For HEW Action

RALEIGH—North Carolina's university and community college system has been singled out for enforcement action by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare because of HEW's dissatisfaction with racial desegregation within the system, according to a spokesman.

Spokesmen also cited the rejection of North Carolina A&T State University's request that a school of veterinary medicine be placed there as a primary motivation in the action.

A letter sent by HEW to Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr. on July 21 warned that the department would take steps to cut off federal aid to the state's university and community college system unless the state adequately responded to 40 allegations within 10 days.

"The decision by the Board of Governors to place the school of veterinary medicine at North Carolina State is a direct violation of the state's important commitment to encourage desegregation of the state's racially identifiable institutions in every way feasible," said acting director of the HEW

Office of Civil Rights, Martin Gerry, in a letter to Holshouser.

Holshouser sent a written request yesterday to Gerry asking that the deadline for a response be extended to September 1, saying there was not adequate time for a response under the HEW deadline.

HEW is currently negotiating with seven other states, mostly southern, but Louis E. Mathis of HEW's Washington office said North Carolina's "problems are more serious" than other states.

Mathis referred to a 1974 agreement with HEW aimed at eliminating all forms of segregation. He said, in effect, that North Carolina had failed to carry out the plan.

Greenville Attorney Is Helping To Guide Joan Little's Legal Defense

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

RALEIGH — "I feel confident," Milton Williamson said a short time before Superior Court Judge Hamilton Hobgood ordered charges against Joan Little—a black woman charged with killing a Beaufort County jailer last year—reduced from first degree murder to second degree murder, yesterday.

Miss Little is on trial in Wake County Superior Court in connection with the ice-pick slaying of Clarence Alligood. The trial, in its 26th day today, has received national attention.

The defendant, who escaped from the Beaufort County jail after mortally wounding Alligood, said she stabbed the jailer in self defense after he assaulted her sexually.

Williamson, a Greenville attorney and coordinator of courtroom strategy for Miss Little's defense, is one of several people with Greenville ties who are associated with the trial.

Miss Little's chief counsel, Jerry Paul, is a graduate of East Carolina University. He went on to receive his law degree from the University of North Carolina Law School and practiced law in Greenville until about five years ago, when he moved his practice to Durham.

Dr. Charles Gilbert, a pathologist at Pitt Memorial Hospital was a witness for the state in the opening days of testimony. Gilbert, who performed an autopsy on Alligood's body, told the court that Alligood died of stab wounds and indicated that the jailer had engaged in some type of sexual activity prior to his death.

A fourth man, Greenville native, Jerome Streeter, is serving as treasurer of the Joan Little Defense Fund, a national organization to raise money for Miss Little's defense.

Streeter, a 1971 Rose High School graduate, attended A and T State University in Greensboro and has been employed by Paul's law firm for the past five years.

Williamson, as special assistant to Paul, was an advisor in the selection of the jury in the opening days of the trial and is coordinator of strategy the defense is using in the courtroom as the trial proceeds.

Paul, according to Williamson, "played football for Stasavich (former ECU football coach Clarence Stasavich—now Athletic Director at the university). He's operating the trial like a coach... assigning different tasks to different people."

Defense Is Begun

RALEIGH (AP)—Attorneys for Joan Little opened her defense today against a reduced charge of second degree murder in the death of a white Beaufort County jailer.

Dr. Page Hudson, chief medical examiner for North Carolina, was called as the first defense witness.

Judge Hamilton Hobgood reduced the charge from first to second degree murder Wednesday, but declined to dismiss all charges. Hobgood denied another motion today to nunsuit the remaining charges.

Miss Little's chief defense counsel, Jerry Paul, had hinted earlier that the defense might waive its right to present evidence. "The state's case is that they have got a dead jailer with his pants off and a lot of racism and sexism," Paul said.

The reduction of the charge means Miss Little, a 21-year-old black, no longer faces the gas chamber if convicted of slaying jailer Clarence Alligood in the Beaufort County jail in Washington, N.C., last Aug. 27.

In North Carolina, a first degree murder conviction carries a mandatory death penalty. The maximum penalty for second degree murder is life imprisonment.

Paul said reduction of the charge indicated to him that the state's case has been weak. The prosecution rested Wednesday after putting on 18 witnesses during eight days of testimony.

MILTON WILLIAMSON

And there are a number of people to assign tasks to, Williamson explained.

Currently there are nine attorneys—including Williamson and the seven members of Paul's firm—participating in the courtroom sessions of the trial. A half-dozen legal assistants, two criminologists, two legal secretaries and a number of other persons are associated with the defense.

A partner in the Greenville law firm of Williamson, Shoffner and Herring, Williamson grew up in rural Pitt County and graduated in 1945 from Farmville High School.

He attended Wake Forest College where he received his undergraduate degree in 1950 and earned his law degree from the Wake Forest was spent in Youngstown, Ohio, as staff legal officer at the Air Force Base

Menswear Going Conservative

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The classical man's suit with trousers (pleated) breaking over the shoes is coming back. Ditto white shirts and short hair.

It is more than a prediction. We are already into it, says well-known English designer Michael Fish, an attractive man who is now a vice president of one of the most prestigious men's enterprises in America.

"In these sober '70s we are going into mass grayness in men's dress and a return to the business uniform — people again fear they will lose their jobs if the boss doesn't like their tie or long hair," says Fish.

In England, where his Mr. Fish shops were trend setters in the flamboyant '60s, he designed such innovations as the silk-rolled turtle-neck evening shirts worn by Lord Snowden and the wide "kipper" tie, a pun on his name. His clientele, a divergent group, included the Duke of Devonshire, the Beatles, Mick Jagger, Whitneys and Paleys, he says. He made shirts and a robe for Picasso and patched the cigar-burned siren suits of Winston Churchill.

"I was into innovations but they were straightforward things — frilly shirts, colorful pure silks and the like, but I did blast big corporations for the white shirt uniform that men had to wear to work."

Earlier he'd had a taste of that. He had worked on Jermyn Street, the heart of the shirt district, where he wore stiff collars, bow ties and carried an umbrella. That was long before bosses "had to let down the bars" and let people go to work in flowered shirts, he says.

Maturity and experience — he was 15 when he started in the menswear field 20 years ago and only 27 when he had a staff of 40 — had led him to anticipate "making proper suits again." In fact he'd even like to see a return to suspenders, "which make trousers hang better."

After a financial failure, Fish was invited by the new owner of Sulka to bring his certain flair to the turn-of-the-century establishment that never had a designer before. It was the right time and Fish had "always been impressed that

James Bond shopped at Sulka's."

Some customers worry that a Fish image signals a change in management, the loss of custom services they've enjoyed — extra length ties, shirt collar styles and shirts that are fitted individually with paper patterns and a model garment.

For example, Western miner Howard Gable, who was spending $1,200 for an assortment of shirts, ties and other things the other day, volunteered significantly: "I've been shopping here since 1936. I hope things won't change."

Earlier he had called John McCaffrey, president of the firm for 25 years, to express his concern. Like others he worries that quality and workmanship might be sacrificed.

After his first collection and a fashion show, Fish will take to the road to explain the firm's intentions to prestigious retailers.

Men buy large quantities, shopping infrequently, McCaffrey explained. They may buy 25 ties or 50 pairs of socks and dozens of shirts or, like two Mexican industrialists, brothers, they may pay the traveling expenses of the store's tailor to fit them for six suits apiece. At one time Jackie Gleason bought his suits in three sizes to accommodate his quick weight changes.

Actually the business didn't cater to the Saratoga racing crowd or the Newport set when it began in 1890. That came later. In a downtown East Side loft Amos Sulka and his partner, Leon Wormser, turned out custom shirts for burly Irish policemen of New York who were difficult to fit.

The police wore the shirts when they "snacked" in kitchens of the wealthy. Soon butlers were ordering the shirts. Then the master became intrigued with his butler's shirts. When the firm moved uptown it went to Park Avenue, first to the Waldorf Astoria. Actually it was a store for middle-age men, but now the aim is also to cater to younger men "who are becoming more conservative."

A ladies department has been initiated and Fish has designed Chinese brocade robes ($450) that match men's robes. McCaffrey sees the ladies' line as a plus because "a man who has picked a dozen shirts or so feels he should buy something for his lady."

Zucchini
When it comes to popular summer squash, zucchini (ZOO-KEY-NEE) scores high. And it's no wonder — when you realize what an easy to grow and easy to use vegetable it is.

Zucchini is showing up in everything from soups to salads. It's a low calorie vegetable — especially when you just cut half-inch slices and boil. Season with salt, onion or onion flakes, or an herb such as lemon pepper.

Just be sure not to cook zucchini too long. The slices should retain their shape and be tender — not mushy.

Or spice up zucchini with tomatoes, onion and green peppers. Make this combination into a casserole, sprinkle with cheese and bread crumbs and bake.

And zucchini deep fat fried is good, too. Again, slice about half inch thick, dip in egg and cracker crumbs — and fry until tender.

Add zucchini slices in your homemade vegetable soup. Or cut up raw zucchini and serve in a tossed green salad.

And since zucchini is so versatile — why not freeze some for use later in the year. Just cut, blanch, cool and pack following directions for freezing summer squash.

Then serve zucchini often — in everything from soups to casseroles.

Corn on the Cob
The secret to delicious fresh corn on the cob is cooking and eating it right away — within a day or two after you buy it.

If you hold it longer, the sugar in the kernels start to turn to starch — and you lose the tenderness and sweet flavor that makes fresh corn taste so good.

Now is a good time to buy corn on the cob, if it's a family favorite. And as you shop — look for these signs of quality:

Kernels that are plump, but not too large, and that cover the cob well.

Yellow corn of a bright color or white corn that is really white.

Husks that look fresh and are of good green color — not dried or yellow.

Silk ends that are free from decay or worm injury.

Then, keep fresh corn in the husk in the crisper of your refrigerator — until you use it. And — don't forget to use it right away.

Making Indira 'Above The Law'

By EDWARD CODY
Associated Press Writer
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government today pushed through sweeping constitutional amendments curtailing the right of the courts to pass judgment on her emergency decrees.

The amendments in effect removed her legal problems — conviction on electoral abuses charges — from Supreme Court review and gave her power to maintain emergency rule indefinitely, including police power to arrest political dissidents without trial.

The amendments passed 336 votes to none amid laughter and cheers in the lower house of Parliament, moving next to the upper house where equally overwhelming approval is assured.

The amendments marked a new departure in consolidating Mrs. Gandhi's authoritarian rule. They also represented the first substantial changes in the parliamentary democracy willed to India by its former British colonial masters.

Under the amendments, Indian courts will no longer have power to hear cases brought by persons arrested under the June 26 emergency crackdown.

Mrs. Gandhi had suspended the right to appeal such arrests to the court. Her amendment now removes this right from the constitution, giving her permanent power to make arrests without court review.

Some 12,000 persons have been arrested under her emergency rule in the past six weeks, according to conservative estimates. Other reports place the figure much higher.

The amendments, introduced by Law Minister H.R. Gokhale to table-thumping approval from benches of the ruling Congress party, also have the effect of barring court review of changes in the Indian electoral code passed earlier this week to make retroactive changes in the laws under which Mrs. Gandhi was convicted June 12.

The 57-year-old prime minister thus is protected from an adverse judgment in her Supreme Court appeal from two sides: she has had the law rewritten to remove the offenses of which she was convicted and she has had the constitution changed to render the Supreme Court powerless to rule on her case.

The mandatory penalty for her conviction had been a six-year ban on elective office. Mrs. Gandhi won a stay pending the outcome of her appeal but opposition leaders demanded her resignation and called a campaign of demonstrations, prompting the June 26 emergency decree and widespread arrests.

Fragile Basis For A Deterrent

Thirty years ago this week Hiroshima and Nagasaki were in total ruins, the victims of the most awesome weapon ever unleashed in warfare.

The United States had dropped the first atomic bombs on the two Japanese cities. In each case a single bomb wiped out the cities and killed or in other ways affected most of the inhabitants.

World War II, of course was still going on and to a world which did not know the powerful bomb was being perfected, it seemed as if the Japanese would fight on to the bitter end; that it would take a devastating invasion of Japan to finally end what had been the most costly war of all time.

Dropping of the atomic bomb changed all that, however. Even the most fanatical war lords of Japan recognized that the Allies had a weapon so powerful that their entire nation could be destroyed within a few days. That could be done with little loss of life on the Allied side.

But from the time of the dropping of the first nuclear bomb the debate has raged over whether or not the weapon should have ever been used in warfare. It fell to the new President Harry Truman to make the awesome decision, and while the military knew how powerful the bomb's blast was no one was entirely sure of exactly what the after-effects of the bomb would be.

There are those who argue that the nuclear bomb should never have been used because its use set the precedent for future use of nuclear weapons in warfare which could destroy the world. We have never subscribed to the theory. In fact we believe it is possible that if the bomb had not been used twice in actual warfare that it might not viewed as the terrible thing that it is by humanity. And if that had been the case it is possible that some nation might have mustered enough national support to have made use of the bomb by now.

There was hardly anyone living during August, 1945 who was not horrified by the terrible power which was unleashed with the explosion of those first atomic bombs. As a consequence no one wants to ever see it used again. This solid world wide public opinion may be the only real deterrent we have to avoid a future atomic war.

Third World Rifts

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Outlines of a split between the militant Arabs and the Black Africans in what is loosely called the "non-aligned" bloc seem to be surfacing, a development that can be of immense importance in the world political picture.

The recent meeting of the 46-nation Organization of African Unity at Kampala, Uganda, seemed a symptom of things to come. A conviction may be growing among Black African leaders that their countries, already caught up in a sort of cold war between rich and poor worlds, have too many problems of their own to permit direct involvement in the Middle East quarrel, unless there are more convincing signs of quick profit from it.

How a rift develops may depend on how the Black African leaders elect to use the weapons they hold. Poor as most of these nations are, they seem to have hit on the idea that they have considerable bargaining power.

That could explain, at least in part, the setback the OAU handed those Arabs who are campaigning most belligerently to get Israel expelled from the United Nations and other world bodies.

In effect, the Arabs had been urging Africans, despite Wash-

Fared Well In Budget Cuts

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—With the smoke and the sound largely faded from the big debate over who got what from a budget-cutting General Assembly, comes the time to take a look with some leisure at what happened to some of the more important state programs.

There has been much sound and fury about public schools. In truth, schools fared much better than most had suspected.

Cuts totaled roughly $33 million; while major additions for public school spending total a whopping $57.83 million over the coming two fiscal years.

Even more significant than those bare-bone figures, however, is just where and how those cut or expanded dollars are to be pinpointed.

Not In Class
In the classroom, with the exception of no teacher salary increases, there will be no cutting—only increases. Most of the cuts take dollars from the Raleigh bureaucracy, or from reserve funds where cash has been kept on hand, not spent.

Here is where public school spending increases were approved:

Kindergarten expansion is funded to provide 512 additional classes in 1975-76; another 512 classes in 1976-77 so that by the 1976 school year 69 per cent of the state's five-year-olds will be in kindergarten. All are supposed to be enrolled by 1978. Total cost of those new kindergarten classes is $9.5 million in the coming fiscal year; $19.1 million the second.

The larger figure, of course, reflects continuing the 512 new classes while adding 512 more.

Reading was not cut out; only reduced as educators sought to launch a crash program while legislators insisted reading is the regular and usual function of schools anyway. Still, the assembly posted $2.75 million for special reading efforts under specific plans to be filed with the governor and advisory budget commission.

Exceptional children programming received funds for 445 new teachers across the board, and another 55 teachers specifically for the learning disabled. Total cost: $12.24 million.

Another $1.7 million will go for enrolling severely handicapped children in special schools, and for extra supplies and equipment in classrooms devoted to exceptional children.

Career Education
Other major increased programs include one million dollars in fiscal year 1976-77 to expand extended day optional school programs to serve 2,500 students; a hike from $8 to $9, the state allocation for each student for materials and supplies; going to $10 the next fiscal year. Total cost: $3.3 million.

Also funds were allotted to transport all deaf, blind or autistic children, and for the 7,000 children who each year normally begin riding the local school buses.

Where did those much publicized cuts take place?

In-service training of teachers was one of the big targets. About $2.8 million was cut for travel, lodging and materials, staff, and other activities relating to in-service workshops for kindergarten, regular classroom, and occupational education teachers.

Over half a million dollars were saved by deleting 19 school psychologists—but the jobs had never been filled anyway.

In transportation, bus operating costs were cut over $2 million, and bus replacements put off to the tune of $6.1 million.

Funds were cut for textbook purchases (1.9 million) and over $4 million transferred from the textbook fund to other areas of the budget.

The Raleigh office was hard hit: Some 21 jobs were eliminated in public relations, research and development, and evaluation and assessment work for a total savings of more than $1.2 million. Also chopped were consulting fees, travel allotments, the Advancement School, and the number of teaching positions held in reserve to meet requirements of the class-size law.

Sanctification Of Hiss

A movement is gaining momentum for the sanctification of a consummate liar, Alger Hiss by name. Before the movement gets completely out of hand, a few words of caution, remonstrance and reminder are in order.

The judgment of "liar" is a jury's judgment, returned in January, 1950 after two long trials. Now Hiss, at 71, is seeking once more in the court of public opinion to overturn that verdict. A few days ago he obtained access to certain evidence never introduced against him. Before long, we will be awash in fresh charges that the FBI rigged, stacked and fabricated the case against Hiss, and such is the gullibility of a disenchant-public that some of these self-serving charges will gain credence.

Because a whole generation has grown up since the Hiss case began, a brief recapitulation may be useful. The case involved two men. One was Alger Hiss, who in 1948 was slim, elegant and urbane, a rising star in the nation's public life. He had every respectable credential: He was John Hopkins, Phi Beta Kappa, Harvard Law, a onetime clerk to Justice Holmes, secretary to the American delegation at Dumbarton Oaks, adviser to Roosevelt at Yalta, secretary-general of the UN Conference at San Francisco.

The other was Whittaker Chambers, who in 1948 was pudgy, passive and obscure, a senior editor for Time magazine. He had nothing going for him. Born in Philadelphia in 1901, Chambers was a student radical, a runaway, a post-war leftist who in 1925 joined the Communist Party as a paid functionary. He was a man with a disreputable history of false names, petty theft and atheism. In 1938, after four years of espionage and infiltration in Washington, he broke absolutely with the Communist Party.

Seventeen years ago this month, Chambers was summoned to testify before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, which was then investigating Communist infiltration of government offices. Chambers identified Hiss as a member of a secret Communist cell. Hiss denied this absolutely.

One of the two men plainly was lying. Under the prodding of a young California congressman, Chambers patiently unfolded his story: As a party functionary, he had known Hiss intimately, had stayed in his home, had transmitted stolen documents. Testing his credibility, the young congressman asked rapid-fire questions of Chambers about Hiss and his wife and family, their hobbies, pets, cars, furnishings, nicknames, places of residence.

Hiss at last admitted having known Chambers, but not as a party functionary. Hiss's story was that he had known a deadbeat freelance writer by the name of "George Crosley," to whom he had briefly sublet his Georgetown house in 1934. He identified Chambers as "Crosley," but later, before a grand jury, he would deny ever having given Chambers government documents. The perjury conviction stemmed from that denial. Hiss served 44 months of a five-year sentence.

40 Years Ago Today

August 7, 1935

With Wednesday half-holidays scheduled to come to a close August 21, several days in advance of the opening of the Greenville tobacco market, Greenville people turned their attention today to drawing as much pleasure as possible from the two more holidays ahead of them.

Although they usually have a league ball game as the highlight, today found the local club playing at Ayden and fans were forced to go there to see the Greenies attempt to increase their league lead.

An intensive campaign to rid Greenville of weeds was started by the city government today.

The announcement was made this morning by Chief of Police George Clark who declared that all persons who do not cut down rank growth of vegetation on their property will be prosecuted.

The action was taken after failure of a number of property owners to clear lots of weeds. A warning was issued during the first of the summer that all vacant lots must be kept clear of weeds, but the summer has almost passed and scores of lots in all parts of the city are filled with weeds several feet high.

The police chief declared he had two men work today checking on weed-filled lots throughout the city and as soon as their report is made, warrants will be issued for the owners.

Weeds, he said, not only detract from the beauty of the city, but constitute a breeding place for mosquitoes. The mosquito situation has been reported very bad in sections due mainly to weeds. No improvements can be made until the weeds are cut down.

PRINCETON, N.J.—When Sen. Edward Kennedy is not included in the test, Gov. George Wallace and Sen. Hubert Humphrey are in virtual dead heat as the top nomination choice of Democratic voters nationwide.

Wallace wins the support of 23 per cent, Humphrey 20 per cent among Democrats in the survey, who were asked to pick from a list of 14 men. The list includes those persons who have either announced their candidacy or have been prominently mentioned as possible candidates.

Next are Sen. George McGovern (11 per cent), Sen. Henry Jackson (10 per cent) and Sen. Edmund Muskie (also 10 per cent). The remaining persons on the list receive 3 per cent or less.

With Kennedy On List

Although many political observers feel that Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts will definitely not be a candidate for President in 1976, speculation about attempts to draft him persists.

When the list used in the current survey is expanded to include Kennedy, the Massachusetts Senator is found to run away from the field, winning 42 per cent of the vote of Democrats. Next are Wallace with 15 per cent, Humphrey with 9 per cent, Jackson and Muskie each with 6 per cent, and McGovern with 5 per cent.

There are the question asked:

"Here is a list of people who have been mentioned as possible presidential for the Democratic party in 1976. (Respondents were handed a card with 15 names, including Kennedy.) Which one would you like to see nominated as the Democratic candidate for President in 1976?"

"And who would be your second choice?"

Since all persons in the survey were asked for their second choice, it is possible to see how the Kennedy vote distributes among the other candidates on the list. Here are the results with Kennedy's name excluded:

Choices Of Democrats For 1976 Nomination (With Kennedy not on list)

Gov. George Wallace	23%
Sen. Hubert Humphrey	20
Sen. George McGovern	11
Sen. Henry Jackson	10
Sen. Edmund Muskie	10
All Others*	14
No opinion-no preference	12

* All other candidates on the list received 3 per cent or less of the vote of Democrats. These men are: Sen. Birch Bayh, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Jimmy Carter, Sen. Frank Church, Fred Harris, Terry Sanford, Gov. Milton Shapp, Sargent Shriver and Rep. Morris Udall.

And here are the results with Kennedy's name included:

Other Editors Say Despite State Policy

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

North Carolina is one of 19 states in the Union which guarantee a worker's right to either belong or not to belong to a labor union.

This state's public policy is spelled out in the 1947 Right to Work Law which says:

"No employer shall require any person, as a condition of employment or continuation of employment, to pay any dues, fees or other charges of any kind to any labor union or labor organization."

In 1974, an effort was made in the General Assembly to circumvent the Right to Work law.

A bill was introduced in the House that would have forced non-union workers to pay union dues or "fees" despite the fact that they were not members.

The measure was defeated and the public policy enunciated in the 1947 law remained intact.

But last month the State Ports Authority and the International Longshoremen's Association negotiated a contract which flouts that public policy.

In labor union contracts covering workers at the Morehead City and Wilmington ports, the contract requires non-union workers to pay the union a "fee" amounting to three per cent of their gross annual earnings.

State officials argue that the provision is legal since ports employees are covered by the National Railway Labor Act which supercedes state right to work laws.

The Cartaret County News-Times, reporting and commenting on the contract, said recently that under the dues structure, a non-union worker actually would be paying $45 to $50 per year more in "fees" than would be collected from a union member holding a similar job.

But whether the non-union member pays more or an amount equal to members' dues, the SPA-ILA contract should be challenged.

If we are going to do away with the Right to Work policy in this state, that decision should be made in the General Assembly, not at a union contract negotiating table.

One of the two men plainly was lying. Under the prodding of a young California congressman, Chambers patiently unfolded his story: As a party functionary, he had known Hiss intimately, had stayed in his home, had transmitted stolen documents. Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

I noted Tuesday's article reporting a protest by the Greenville Peace Association of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki on the 30th anniversary of those terrible events.

I think that the Greenville Peace Committee, which witnessed for peace week after week in recent years, would mostly disagree with the Association there. It is futile to protest the past. True, the atomic massacres were wrong, for murder is wrong, but almost every course that our leaders were able to consider was wrong. It appeared that hundreds of thousands of other lives could be saved, and the difficult choice was made to drop those two bombs on people. Honorable was the horror Americans felt when they saw what such a choice caused.

Where the Committee may agree with the Association is in the relevance of remembering vividly, today, the kind of holocausts that, under present policies, await any misstep. The choices seem excruciating. But about nuclear war is all out death of peoples, and would leave any survivors but nasty, brutish, probably short lives shared with pestilent germs and many roaches.

GOD GIVES MORE

We can be sure that God will give us either the things we ask for in prayer or something better. He will never under any circumstances give us anything of less value than the things we ask for.

Jesus illustrated this truth by means of a parable. "If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is father, will ye give him a stone? Or if he ask a fish will he for a fish give a serpent? Or if he ask an egg will he offer him a scorpion?"

The simple answer to all these questions is that no father would do these things, if only because he is a father. Here, then, is a law of prayer, a spiritual principle upon which we can wager our all, that because God is a loving heavenly Father, he gives something out of the fullness of his love every time we ask Him; and that something is either the thing we ask for or something better than the thing we so ardently desire.

Puzzle In Consumer Borrowing

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Consumers increased their borrowing in June by the biggest figure in nine months, and now businessmen and economists are trying to understand why.

The $545-million jump brought the total of consumer credit to $186.1 billion, $2.67 billion higher than a year earlier. More significantly, the latest increase was the second in a row after five straight months of decline.

Understandably, the Ford administration would like to say the borrowings indicate widespread belief that it is now safe to take a chance, safe to use tomorrow's money to buy today's goods and services.

Those who adhere to that interpretation believe the economy is steadily recovering from recession and that the recovery will be a solid one, that is, without a return of destructive inflation.

Many others wonder, however, if the consumer isn't a bit more sophisticated in his adjustment to the economic society. While it is still too early to determine, they ask if something more complex isn't occurring.

The basic questions they ask are these: Is the consumer borrowing now not because he has confidence in the future but because of precisely the opposite reason? Is he borrowing now in order to buy before prices rise any more?

This is the old "Flight from currency" phenomenon that Prof. George Katona, the pioneer consumer attitude scholar, describes in his new book, "Psychological Economics."

Katona explains that the expectation of a slow and gradual price increase creates uncertainty and loss of confidence and therefore reduces discretionary demand. Consumers in this situation might save rather than spend.

But an entirely different mood prevails when consumers expect shortages or sharp price increases. Under such situation they might feel it is wiser to exchange their money for commodities while they can.

"In August, 1973," Katona writes, "close to 20 per cent of all survey respondents reported that during the preceding few months they had made some major purchase in order to beat inflation."

And he added that "fear of future inflation outweighed the resentment of past price increases."

Are consumers now expressing fear rather than confidence? It cannot be said with certainty at this time, but there are some indications fear is playing some role.

—Based on announcements already made, new model automobiles will cost more in September.

—Gasoline and other oil products prices will be rising.

—Wholesale prices are expected to be higher in the immediate future. Despite declining orders, some industries feel compelled to raise prices in order to cover their costs.

—Farm prices are rising. In the latest report, for the month ended July 15, they were up 3 per cent.

House hearings and the New York trials. This was confrontation worthy of any Sophocles or Shakespeare. Chambers, the witness, had but one purpose—to testify to the evil of communism, and to warn complacent Americans that they must come to grips "with a secret, sinister and enormously powerful force whose tireless purpose is their enslavement."

Chambers sensed from the outset that he himself was doomed. He lost his job and his health. In the second trial he heard his sanity questioned. A target of vilification and scorn, he died in obscurity on his Maryland farm in 1961. The renewed effort to establish the innocence of Hiss necessarily must seek anew to prove the guilt of Chambers. And Chambers no longer is around to speak for himself.

Whittaker Chambers was America's Solzhenitsyn—an intellectual who knew communism closely, at first hand, and saw with terrible clarity the absolute evil of Communist ideology. A gentle man, he never sought to destroy Hiss as a person. For months Chambers resisted opportunities to speak of actual espionage. Chambers wanted only to bear witness for freedom, and against slavery. One day his greatness as writer, thinker and human being will be recognized.

On his new road to martyrdom, Hiss will get some mileage from Chambers' association with the California congressman of 1948. The reasoning is that because Richard Nixon lied 1972-74, therefore Whittaker Chamber lied 1948-50. The reasoning is phony, slippery and sly, which, coming from Hiss, is exactly what one would expect.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, resisting the news of a sharp rise in wholesale prices last month, managed a slight advance in light trading today.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 3.60 at 817.27, and gainers held a 5-4 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

As trading began, the government reported that wholesale prices rose at a 14.4 percent annual rate in July, with food items accounting for three-quarters of the increase.

But brokers noted that the market had had at least two weeks advance warning that a resurgence was coming in the July price figures.

In fact, said Manown "Buck" Kisor at Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, "While the wholesale price index was bad, it was not as bad as had been widely expected."

"There was talk early this week of an annual rate of as much as 25 to 50 percent," Chase Manhattan, the most active issue on the Big Board, rose 1/8 to 33 1/2. A 119,200-share block traded at 33 1/2.

Among actively traded blue chips, International Paper rose 1 1/2 to 56, Dow Chemical was up 2 at 89 1/2 and Eastman Kodak picked up 1/8 to 92 1/2.

Attorney...

In 1965, after a year in Asheville, Williamson moved his practice to Greenville.

At 47, he is the oldest trial lawyer involved in the Little case.

Why is he associated with the case? The answer is simple. "I was employed to help coordinate the trial strategy," Williamson said. "I've been in the case for over six months in an advisory capacity," he explained.

"I participate in all kinds of controversial trials," Williamson said. And participation in this case "will not change me or my friends," he emphasized. "I'm happy to be associated with it."

Commenting on a statement in the weekly news magazine "Newsweek," which said in a story two weeks ago that Williamson has the "reputation as one of the best criminal lawyers in Eastern North Carolina," the attorney said, "I was very complimented."

"I really believe," Williamson said, "that the trial itself, regardless of the outcome, will have an effect on the jail system throughout the state."

And well it may. Many jails, since Alligood's death, have already hired matrons to be on duty 24 hours a day, where previously, only man jailers were available most of the time.

Commenting on the handling of the case by Judge Hobbgood, the attorney indicated that the jurist, in his opinion, has been fair in some aspects of the case, while not necessarily fair in others.

But Williamson said, "that's the way it is in every trial. That's a defense counsel's feeling in just about every case. It's Judge Hobbgood's court and he can run it like he pleases."

Williamson said Judge Hobbgood has been "very pleasant and polite and accommodating to me personally," and has even assigned the defense lawyer an office on the second floor of the Wake County Court House for his use during the duration of the trial.

"We're fortunate having Judge Hobbgood on the bench in this trial," Williamson said. "The trial has been extremely tiring... physically and mentally," according to Williamson, who outlined a "normal" day.

"I get up at 7 or 7:30," he said, "have breakfast, collect my thoughts, and get to court early." He then assigns witnesses to various lawyers in the case for study.

"I sit behind the rest of the lawyers and feed them my ideas after they use their," while court is in session, the attorney explained.

He also suggests "certain research to be done" and acts as an advisor in the preparation of motions and memorandums.

After courts has recessed for the day, "we have a meeting with the young members of the staff... going over the day's work." After dinner, "we meet with the older members of the staff and go over the next days plans... prepare for trial the next day."

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Shirley D. Ruffin, of the home; two daughters, Iris and Regina Ruffin, of the home; one step-son Bruce Daniels of the home; one son, Pvt. Clifford N. Kennedy, of Fort Bragg. His mother, Mrs. Sarah Hawkins, of Grimesland, mother-in-law, Mrs. Retha Daniels, of the home; three sisters; Mrs. Lenora Baker, of Virginia Beach; Mrs. Zula M. Moore of Greenville and Annie C. Ruffin of Grimesland; and one brother, Mr. Lloyd Lee of Washington, D.C.

Toler

Mrs. Fannie Knox Toler, 89, widow of William D. Toler, died at the Health Care Center in Washington Wednesday.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3:30 p.m. Saturday at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Thomas J. Payne, her pastor. Burial will be in the Knox Family Cemetery in the Cayton community of Craven County.

Mrs. Toler, a native of Craven County, spent most of her life in the Pactolus community and was a member of the Pactolus Baptist Church.

She is survived by six sons, H.C. and Blade Toler, both of Pactolus, Ohel David Toler of Aurora, Horace Toler of Milbourne, Fla., Vern Toler of Washington, and Ray Toler of Greenville, S.C.; three daughters, Mrs. Eula Crisp of Washington, Mrs. Sallie Boyd of Newport News, Va., and Mrs. Irma Carmichael of San Antonio, Tex.; 30 grandchildren; 40 great grandchildren; and 12 great great grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home Friday night from 7 to 9 p.m. and will be at the home of a son, Blade Toler of Pactolus.

Freeway 'King' Shelves Its Highway-Building

By STEVE LAWRENCE Associated Press Writer SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)

California, king of the freeway builders, is putting away its road plans and looking for ways to keep its highway-building machine from going broke. Faced with mounting costs and declining revenue, state officials have frozen new highway construction. They say they will eliminate 3,300 transportation jobs over the next 11 months.

The cutbacks will slice the state's $985 million highway budget by 25 percent and halt three decades of freeway building.

"There is no money for any new facilities for the foreseeable future," said Donald Burns, business and transportation secretary. "By 1978-79 there won't be enough money to maintain the system, given the department's current definition of maintenance."

"Just paying the contractors who are already out there on the roads, paying our employees and paying for the maintenance—that will be more than 100 percent of the projected revenues," he said.

"Therefore we have got to cut back on expenditures or find new sources of revenue."

Since the 1940s California has plowed more than $7.5 billion into a freeway system that was once expected to extend 12,000 miles. Only about 4,200 miles of superhighway are now in use.

Most of the freeway construction took place in the 1950s and '60s. In recent years fast-rising construction costs, the energy crisis and air pollution problems have resulted in fewer miles of concrete and a greater emphasis on rapid transit. In the last few weeks gloomy budget predictions have sent officials looking for cutbacks to make.

Sheriff Tyson said that Hooks was arrested soon after the incident was reported at 11:10 p.m. on Tuesday.

Bond for Hooks was set at $5,000 with a hearing scheduled for Aug. 15 in District Court here.

Gooch Eliminates Bucs For Monarchs

By JOHN EVANS Special to the Reflector East Carolina ended its 1975 summer baseball season last night when it dropped a 6-2 playoff defeat to Methodist College in Chapel Hill.

The loss, coupled with Tuesday's 1-0 loss to Carolina, eliminated the Pirates from the summer league tournament.

For the summer season, East Carolina finished with a 15-17 record. Leading Methodist to its 6-2 win was catcher Buddy Gooch.

Pirates, though, as Bunn came on to relieve for Methodist and retired the side.

Heavner relieved Feeney in the eighth after Gooch drove in the final Monarch run.

Chaney Likes Giants; Leads Reds To Victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer The Cincinnati Reds are laughing all the way to the National League West pennant.

In the other National League games, the New York Mets beat the Montreal Expos 9-6 in a rain-shortened affair; the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 and the San Diego Padres turned back the Houston Astros 6-1.

May then batted for pitcher Tom House and singled to right for the go-ahead run.

McMillan Grabs New York Reigns

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy McMillan, new manager of the New York Mets, will make his presence felt in the clubhouse, if not in the headlines.

years as the Mets' manager, Berra had guided New York nowhere. After ending a five-game losing streak Wednesday night in which they had gone through 25 scoreless innings, the Mets still were mired 8 1/2 games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

Gooch homered in the first for two Monarch runs and singled in two more runs in the second. Gooch's single in the sixth and double in the eighth drove in the final two Methodist runs.

From the mound, starter Terry Durham's night was a short one. Durham lasted a little more than one inning, giving up four runs, before being replaced by Feeney.

With the summer half of the Pirates' season, the ECU club finished the 1975 combined spring and summer seasons with a record of 32-29.

One of those Sunshine Boys that Anderson used against San Francisco was Darrel Chaney. Subbing for Dave Concepcion at shortstop, Chaney collected three of the Reds' 20 hits and embellished his reputation as a Giant killer.

Chaney knocked in three runs with two doubles and a single and Cesar Geronimo belted a pair of triples to lead Cincinnati's high-powered attack.

McMillan was named manager of the Mets earlier Wednesday after Yogi Berra was fired. The new manager had held a one-hour meeting with the team before the game.

McMillan, a nondescript second-stringer in the managerial ranks until he was named to replace the fired Yogi Berra, laid it on the line to his players in a team meeting before Wednesday night's 9-6 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Yogi's job apparently had been in jeopardy since last season, when the club wound up in fifth place. "This whole thing is to a degree a hangover from last year," said Mets chairman of the board, M. Donald Grant.

For East Carolina, the Pirates could manage only two runs off Monarch starter Sam Tolar before Earl Bunn stopped the Bucs without a hit over the final four innings.

Sluggers Win First

The Little Sluggers gained a 5-0 victory over Kentucky Fried Chicken in a rain-shortened game last night in the finals of the City Softball League tournament.

Table with 2 columns: Team, Stats. Includes totals for 36, 11, 6, 21, 4, 1.

"I've got more than half my hits this season off Giants' pitching," said Chaney, who is batting .409 against San Francisco.

Giants' starter Jim Bary was battered for nine hits and five runs in three innings.

Cardinals 4, Pirates 2 Buddy Bradford hit a home run and Ken Reitz tripled to spark a three-run St. Louis fifth and lead the Cardinals over Pittsburgh.

McMillan, 46, has been with the Mets as a coach under Berra since 1973 after managing the Mets farm team in Visalia, Calif.

Second baseman Felix Millan was the most outspoken in his support of Berra. "Like I've told everyone," he said, "it's sad to see Yogi gone. I guess it's a matter of opinion. Yogi was good to me. I liked Yogi. He was wonderful to me and to everybody."

The Pirates threatened only once more in the game, in the sixth. In the sixth, Glenn Card led off with a walk and Bass followed with a single. That was it for the Pirates.

The two teams were meeting in a best-of-three series for the overall City League title after they had advanced to the finals through their own divisional playoffs.

Table with 2 columns: Team, Stats. Includes totals for 220, 001, 010, 4.

Coupled with the Los Angeles Dodgers' 5-4 loss to the Atlanta Braves Wednesday night, the Reds improved their mountainous lead in the West to 16 1/2 games — their biggest of the season.

Dusty Baker walked to start the Atlanta ninth and moved to second on a single by Ed Goodson. The runners moved up on a sacrifice bunt before Ojeda tied the game at 4-4 with a single.

Arizona State plays nine football games at night this season. Day games are with Utah and Pacific in November.

"It's hard to say what I think," said outfielder Gene Clines, acquired in preseason from Pittsburgh. "It's my first year here. For most guys, it takes time to form an opinion."

McMillan said he felt his chances of continuing as manager next year were as good as anyone's. "That's what I was told," he said. "Of course, I assume a lot would depend on the next two months."

The Sluggers powered out to the five-run lead through five innings before rain halted the game.

It was not decided when, or even if, the series would be continued. If it is not resumed, the Sluggers would be awarded the league title.

Berra's Career Is Spotty One

NEW YORK (AP) — One night in St. Louis they poured into old Busch Stadium to honor one of their own. They came to pay tribute and they came to be entertained. They weren't disappointed.

It would be a good move for the Yankees, Berra and baseball.

Arizona State plays nine football games at night this season. Day games are with Utah and Pacific in November.

"I hope Roy does a good job now, and I'm glad he came from our organization."

Berra, who signed with the New York Yankees in 1943 and played 17 years with the team, came out of retirement in 1965 to become a player-coach with the Mets. He had a lifetime batting average of .285 with 358 homers, and he appeared in 14 World Series with the Yanks and was on 10 world championship teams, both records.

Berra's critics point to the Mets' winning the pennant with barely a .500 record. His backers say nine other NL managers didn't win the pennant and Berra was only the second man in history to manage pennant winners in both major leagues.

Weiskopf Says He's A Favorite

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Tom Weiskopf shrugged off the galling memory of his $50,000 disappointment at Westchester and put himself high today on the list of half-dozen men — no more — he thinks capable of winning the PGA golf crown.

"I have forgotten the tournament last week. It is over. It is final. You can't let a thing like that bug you," said the temperamental stylist who blew a seven-stroke halfway lead last weekend in one of the world's richest events.

"I don't feel I gave it away. After all, Gene Littler had to sink a hole-in-one to win it. I didn't play a loose shot. Maybe it was for the best. If I had won there, I might not be as keen here.

"This is the PGA, a major. I would really like to win it."

The 6-foot-3 Weiskopf, who only a week earlier had beaten Jack Nicklaus in a playoff for the Canadian Open, is one of the strong advance favorites in the field of 38 touring and teaching pros who tee off in their family event today over the long and tough Firestone course, scene of two previous PGAs as well as the American Golf Classic and World Series. It is a 7,180-yard test of brute strength playing to a par 70.

"There is nothing subtle about this course," Weiskopf said. "It is blast, blast, blast. You just get out there and slug. That's the reason I think you can limit the real contenders to a handful.

"Nicklaus, of course. Lee Trevino because he drives so straight. Johnny Miller, streaky but tremendous. Arnold Palmer, still as good a driver as there is in golf. And Hale Irwin, with those good long irons and playing very confidently."

"And, it goes without saying — Tom Weiskopf."

Weiskopf, now 32, turned pro in 1964. Then followed an erratic, unpredictable period — spurts of brilliance and occasional blowups — until 1973 when he won four U.S. tour events, the British Open, South African and World Series and became Pro Golfer of the Year.

AL Races Picking Up; Perry Stops Oakland

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Quick! Call a locksmith! Kansas City and Baltimore are beatin' on the doors, opening up what used to be called a couple of locked-up pennant races.

Just a few days ago, Oakland's three-time world champion A's were supposedly running away from Kansas City and the rest of the American League West with a 10-game lead.

Likewise, the Boston Red Sox owned an imposing 9½-game bulge over Baltimore in the East and seemed ready to run away with the division title.

Today, though, those so-called runaways have been slowed to a crawl and both the Royals and Orioles are putting on charges that could change the rest of the season from play-out-the-schedule games to scramble-all-the-way days.

Oakland's potent bats were all but muffed Wednesday night by Gaylord Perry, who gave up just seven hits — the only damaging one a too-late two-run homer by Joe Rudi — and the Texas Rangers rode Dave Moates' three runs batted in to a 5-2 victory over the A's. That, coupled with Kansas City's 4-3 triumph over Minnesota — compliments of Tony Solaita's three-run homer that capped a four-run fourth inning — slashed Oakland's lead over the Royals to 6½ games.

Boston, coming off two straight losses to Baltimore, seemed on the verge of taking it on the chin again in Milwaukee, trailing 2-1 in the ninth inning. But a four-run outburst capped by Jim Rice's two-run single made the Red Sox 5-2 winners.

Nevertheless they still saw their lead over Baltimore trimmed to seven games. The Orioles jumped all over Detroit, sweeping a two-night doubleheader 4-2 and 8-2, extending the Tigers' losing streak to 11 games.

In the other two AL games, Cleveland beat New York 5-3 and Chicago bombed California 11-1.

Royals 4, Twins 3
Kansas City overhauled the Twins after Minnesota had built a 3-0 in the first two innings. Amos Otis walked with two out in the fourth and scored on John Mayberry's double, then George Brett walked and Solaita belted his 11th homer.

Red Sox 5, Brewers 2
Rick Burleson's double and Denny Doyle's single gave the Red Sox an eighth-inning run, their first in 18 innings, before they went to town in the ninth. Cecil Cooper's double and Rico Petrocelli's single tied it and, after Rick Burleson singled, Dwight Evans walked to load the bases and Doug Griffin put Boston ahead with a single to left. Rice's single to right capped the burst.

Orioles 4-8, Tigers 2-2
Lee May doubled for a run and scored on Jim Northrup's single in a decisive two-run first inning that gave Baltimore its first-game victory, then Don Baylor had two singles, a double and a triple, stole three bases, scored two runs and drove in one to make it a sweep of the Tigers. The Orioles have won 18 of 24 games and swept four twin-bills since the All-Star break.

Indians 5, Yanks 3
Rico Carty hit a three-run homer for Cleveland in the sixth but the big difference was reliever Dave LaRoche, who came in with the bases full of Yanks and nobody out in the eighth and struck out the side. "He took the bats out of their hands. They didn't even touch one of those pitches," said Indians' Manager Frank Robinson.

White Sox 11, Angels 1
Bill Melton knocked in five runs, three with a homer, and Jim Kaat posted his 16th victory with a five-hitter in the White Sox' rout of California. Melton slugged his 10th homer to cap a four-run first inning, singled for a run in the second and doubled one home in the eighth.

Donna Young Watching Ribs

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — Donna Young was hot on the trail of a golf title worth $11,000 today and was carefully watching her rib cage.

"I burst it playing a silly little wedge shot two months ago," said the 30-year-old professional from Los Angeles after shooting a six-under-par 68 to lead the field in the European Women's Open.

"For four weeks I couldn't play any golf at all," Mrs. Young said. "It wasn't until last week that I got back to playing my strokes properly."

"Even now I take 20 or more practice swings and I can feel it grinding a little. When it stops grinding, I start hitting balls."

Mrs. Young played a strange round over Sunningdale's 6,174-yard, par 36-38-74 course. She shot an eagle, nine birdies, three pars and five bogeys.

Mrs. Young said the injury suffered at Baltimore was diagnosed as a torn muscle.

"My caddy was standing 40 feet away and he heard my rib cage pop," she said.

Mrs. Young went into today's second round of the 72-hole tournament two strokes ahead of Sandra Palmer of Dallas, Jane Blalock of Highland Beach, Fla., and Mary Mills of Boca Raton, Fla., who each shot 70.

Clemson Reportedly To Get Slap By NCAA

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—The University of Virginia Cavalier Daily newspaper says it has learned that Clemson University may be disciplined by Sept. 1 by the National Collegiate Athletic Association for alleged recruiting violations.

The newspaper reported that Marvin "Skeeter" Francis, assistant to the commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, told a Cavalier Daily reporter July 31 in Chicago the NCAA infractions committee would meet this month to discuss the Clemson situation. The newspaper reported that Francis said the committee would "very likely" penalize the school.

Francis, however, denied making the statement in a telephone interview with the newspaper Wednesday, and refused to comment on the allegations or what action might be taken.

Clemson Athletic Director Bill McClellan said Tuesday the NCAA had given the South Carolina school until Aug. 5 to respond to the allegations.

McClellan said, "We got it in by the 4th. That's where we are right now." He said it was presumptuous to speculate that a guilty verdict was forthcoming.

"I can't see how they could determine any verdict," McClellan said, since the five faculty athletic chairman on the infractions committee had just received the response.

"Someone was talking out of line — period," he said. "It's too early to assume anything's wrong at this time. It's none of Skeeter's business. He's not on the committee, and he didn't even see our response...You're not guilty until you're proven guilty. That's what this country is based on."

McClellan said, "We've made corrective action," comparing the action taken to similar steps taken by Seton Hall and Western Kentucky when those schools set restrictions on their athletic departments following similar NCAA investigations.

Dr. John W. Sawyer, faculty athletic chairman at Wake Forest, is only member from the ACC on the committee, which also includes representatives from schools in the states of Washington, Colorado, Texas and Kentucky.

Any decision by the committee can be appealed to the 18-member NCAA Council.

Tommy John Is Awaiting Return

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Hey, I've got this great idea. You could hold a great promotion — guess the day Tommy John pitches again."

Then Tommy John laughed and said, "Even I couldn't win that one."

It's been 14 months since the popular left-handed pitcher of the Los Angeles Dodgers suffered a severe injury to his left elbow. His comeback from the resultant surgery has been much slower than had been hoped and he still isn't ready to resume his mound duties.

In a year of Dodger frustrations, of injuries, batting slumps, wasted opportunities and bad luck, John's pitching ability is perhaps the one overlooked yet vital commodity the defending National League champions needed.

John is sure he'll be back before season's end, but by the time he pitches, the Dodgers may already have been mathematically eliminated from the pennant race and his appearance will provoke mere curiosity instead of hopes for a drive to the top.

"I'm throwing 100 per cent of how hard I can throw," said the 32-year-old John. "To what degree it's healed I really can't say; that's for the doctors. But I feel great. I haven't had any pain in the arm since I started throwing in spring training March 10."

fourth fingers following the delicate operation Sept. 25 caused more problems than pain. He couldn't sense how hard to grip the ball and the muscles weren't working that well. Physical therapy was started and even though the numbness has disappeared, it's still part of John's daily routine.

"His arm is 85 per cent back to where it was," said Manager Walt Aton "but his control is not good. He's farther away today than he was, say, last week, but his motion is good and he's stayed in good shape."

"I want to pitch in September," said Tommy, a 6-foot-3, 185-pounder who was 13-3 with a 2.59 earned run average last season before the injury. "But I don't know if the opportunity will present itself then. We may be in a race for second place and they may not want to take a chance."

He's been pitching batting practice for the Dodgers in the last month and rarely throws a fastball to teammates because he knows his control is still shaky. "I'd hate to uncork a wild pitch, so I'm not throwing hard at all."

The injury, described as a ruptured ligament, happened "on a hard slider against Montreal. Something just snapped. I threw one more pitch and I knew it was gone."

"I'm maybe not as sharp as I should be, but when I throw full bore I know the strength is there — that I can get the hitters out."

Big New Disney Project Slated

By BILL MARTIN
Associated Press Writer
TRUCKEE, Calif. (AP) — Walt Disney Productions, stymied in its dream of a year-round resort high in the Sierra mountains, has set its sights on a small man-made lake near the California-Nevada border.

Independence Lake, serene in the shadow of 9,143-foot Mt. Lola, will be the site of Disney's latest family "destination" resort, if local authorities approve.

Plans for the facility 192 miles east of San Francisco and 50 miles west of Reno, Nev., were outlined recently at a meeting for county supervisors and local planners.

Disney will build the resort on 10,000 acres, of which less than 10 per cent will be developed. The rest will remain in its natural state.

Included will be a pedestrian-oriented village, a 275-room lodge, underground parking, condominiums, shops, an electric-cog railway, a mountaintop restaurant and a variety of outdoor recreation activities, including skiing, hiking, camping and fishing. It will handle nearly 3,000 overnight visitors and 5,000 skiers each weekend day.

The project is similar to one derailed by environmentalists at Mineral King, a narrow, two-mile-long valley 7,800 feet up in Sequoia National Forest of Central California.

The Mineral King development would have included an "American alpine village," several restaurants, shops, convention facilities and outdoor sports activities.

The Mineral King project drew opposition from environmentalists, led by the Sierra Club, which filed a suit in 1969. The court battle snarled Disney's plans.

Disney spokesmen say they haven't really given up on Mineral King, but say it will have to wait until Independence Lake is finished, probably in 1978.

"We do not see Independence Lake as a substitute for Mineral King," said a Disney spokesman. He said the attractions are aimed at different users.

Disney conceived Mineral King as a destination resort for the millions of Southern Californians who already have easy access to Disneyland in Anaheim. Independence Lake is designed for visitors from Northern California and the Pacific Northwest.

Specific figures on money investment are not available, officials say, because of the early stages of the development. The Mineral King project was to have cost $35 million in the late 1960s.

On Institute N.C. Will Join Tracing System

Mrs. Lois D. Worthington, City Clerk for Greenville, has been appointed to serve on the Council Minutes Committee for the International Institute of Municipal Clerks.

The committee, according to IIMC president Jake H. Inselmann, city clerk of San Antonio, Tex., will play a significant role in planning the activities of the worldwide association of professional city, village, town and municipal clerks.

In announcing Mrs. Worthington's appointment, Inselmann said that, "We are very fortunate that Mrs. Worthington has assumed this leadership role within our professional organization. Her knowledge and experience will help us to serve the needs of this most important office of municipal government and consequently will contribute to the efficiency of local government and the betterment of its citizens."

The new committeewoman, who has been city clerk here since July 1, 1974, joined the international organization of her professional colleagues in 1974.

RALEIGH (AP)—An official says North Carolina should save over $1 million in welfare payments by next year with a new system of tracking down parents, mostly fathers, who abandon children.

The locating system will go into effect within two months, as part of a nationwide program. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare will finance up to 75 per cent of the cost of the program, and will allow states to administer it on a local level.

For the first time, investigators will be able to use information from the Internal Revenue Service to find missing parents. Such parents will be required, after a court hearing, to pay part of their children's support to the state. The estimate of more than a million dollars saved comes from Jim Wright, deputy director of the Division of Social Services of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources.

A parent who provides information leading to the location of a spouse will receive up to $20 a month in additional child-support payments for 14 months.

In the past, North Carolina's attempts to locate parents who have abandoned their children have been inadequate, officials say.

County and city governments will be able to retain up to 25 per cent of the money paid for child support during the first year of the new program.

Wednesday he will return to Raleigh for a meeting of the N.C. Advisory Council on Teacher Education. Thursday, Aug. 21, he will address the 30th anniversary banquet of the Kenly Kiwanis Club, chartered in 1945 while he was Kiwanis District Governor. Tuesday, Aug. 26, he will attend a meeting of the Mount Olive College Board of Trustees.

State Rep. Sam D. Bundy will attend in Raleigh Friday a meeting of the State Board of Awards, which approves or rejects contracts for certain bids for services and goods for the state.

Ten Unhappy Refugees Moved

MARION, N.C. (AP)—Ten Vietnamese refugees who had been unhappy at a nearby camp operated by a fundamentalist religious sect have been removed to a relocation center in Texas.

The International Rescue Committee (IRC) had placed them with The Way, The Truth and The Life (WTL) sect. Eleven refugees, all men between the ages of 20 and 27, arrived at the camp in June. Besides the 10 who were removed Tuesday, one is a patient at the Western Carolina Hospital.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

Let the duplicate players talk all they want about systems and percentages. The rubber bridge aficionado knows that a lucky streak can shatter all the laws of probabilities and percentages.

The foregoing serves only to explain the bidding on this hand. The cards had been running well for South, and he was a firm believer in pushing things to the limit when he was waxing hot. His six spade bid would be frowned upon by purists, but South justified it with some excellent card-reading.

West led the top of his heart sequence and declarer was not overthrown when dummy appeared. It seemed write to "Goren Leads," in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. Ersey 07648. Enclose $1.25 in cash or check, payable to NEWSPAPERBOOKS.

Declarer won the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart in his hand. The ace and king of trumps brought the welcome news that trumps were 3-2. However, when declarer led a diamond to the king, he saw the ominous ten drop from the East hand. If that card were indeed a singleton and declarer knew East to be an "honest" player, there was trouble ahead.

There was one slim chance to make his contract, and declarer played for it. He cashed the ace-king of clubs, and West's queen brought slam chances into the realm of possibility. Next, declarer ruffed dummy's remaining heart and led the jack of clubs.

West would not escape the endplay. If he ruffed and led a heart, he would present declarer with a ruff-and-sluff, thereby allowing declarer to avoid losing a diamond. Exiting with a diamond would no better, for that would allow declarer to pick up the suit without a losing a trick in it. West did the best he could by discarding his remaining heart, but declarer was aware of the situation.

He exited with his last trump, and West was in with nothing but diamonds to lead. He tried the jack, but declarer won in his hand and took the marked finesse for the nine to land a superbly played slam.

Griffon Grant

WASHINGTON—First District Congressman Walter B. Jones today announced the approval by the Department of Housing and Urban Development of a community development block grant program.

The grant, in the amount of $162,000, goes to the town of Griffon. The grant enables the town to rehabilitate sub-standard housing, demolish dilapidated structures, and purchase land for new housing.

Public works improvement will include drainage improvement, street paving and sidewalks, a pedestrian bridge, and recreation facilities.

Must Learn To Breathe

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—A 3-year-old boy is undergoing treatment in Good Samaritan Hospital at Johns Hopkins University today with the goal of him learning to breathe on his own.

Keith Langdon of Garner, N.C., a Raleigh suburb, flew to Baltimore Wednesday to begin treatment for paralysis from the neck down caused by an auto accident in April. Treatment is expected to cost about $10,000 a month.

Until now, Keith has been able to breathe only with the help of a respirator. During the flight, he was kept breathing with a hand pumped respirator.

The plane to fly the child to Baltimore was provided by a Durham businessman and the Maryland governor's office provided a helicopter to speed the child from the airport to the hospital.

John D. Elliott Jr., an aide to North Carolina Gov. Jim Holshouser, said therapists at the hospital hope to "wake up" the boy's breathing muscles. Elliott said Keith has already been able to move his limbs.

"Keith was in good spirits. He took the whole thing (the trip) pretty well—better than most of the people involved," Elliott said.

Dory Craftsman Proves A Tourist Attraction

CRAFTSMAN—Dory fishermen are nearly all gone from the Grand Banks, but Aubrey Marshall, left, still builds the classic New England fishing boat by hand. (UPI Photo)

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL, PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (UPI)—Dory fishermen are nearly all gone from the Grand Banks, but Aubrey Marshall still builds the classic New England fishing boat by hand—and sells as many as he can build.

"I've been at it since 1923. I wouldn't dare to estimate how many dories I've made, but it must be over 30,000," Marshall said, recalling the days when he worked in a crew at Hiram Lowell's boat building yard in Amesbury, Mass.

Now the master boat builder is a star attraction at Strawberry Banke, the restoration of the original fishing village site from which Portsmouth grew.

Some visitors spend hours watching Marshall and his two apprentices, male, and a volunteer apprentice, female.

Jan Zimmerman, 20, of Boston, gave up East Asian studies at Radcliffe to learn boat building. "She's the first woman I ever saw that was interested. There's nothing easy about it," Marshall said.

He and his crew build dories ranging from 10 to 16 feet, making them of native New Hampshire and Maine pine, with red oak for the "knees"—the horizontal ribs of the boat. Prices range from $210 for a 16-foot Swampscott sailing dory.

Dories are noted for their pointed-at-both-ends shape. Marshall said they were built that way so they could be nested when stored aboard a fishing vessel.

Marshall said dories had a short lifespan because of the pounding they took being hoisted aboard ship, but he is able to finish in five days. The extra time is just to handle questions.

Last year he built "about 35 or 40 dories," mostly in the winter when Strawberry Banke officially is closed.

Marshall said he came here in 1972, when Lowell donated all his hand boat-building equipment to Strawberry Banke, because "he figured eventually this business will be passed—there's no young people interested, and of course the pay is low."

There are still a few young people interested in the trade, however. Marshall has two young apprentices, male, and a volunteer apprentice, female.

Jan Zimmerman, 20, of Boston, gave up East Asian studies at Radcliffe to learn boat building. "She's the first woman I ever saw that was interested. There's nothing easy about it," Marshall said.

Dories are noted for their pointed-at-both-ends shape. Marshall said they were built that way so they could be nested when stored aboard a fishing vessel.

Marshall said dories had a short lifespan because of the pounding they took being hoisted aboard ship, but he knows of one shore-based fisherman who has had the same dory a quarter of a century.

"The main thing is storing them in the winter. Don't leave it outdoors right side up or the snow and ice get in there and swell it," he said.

ENLIGHTENMENT OPERA

GETTING U.S. PREMIERE NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—A three-act opera, first heard in Italy 215 years ago, never heard in the United States, is being given its U.S. premiere this summer.

The comic opera, "La Buona Figliola" ("The Good Little Daughter"), by Niccolò Piccinni, is being given five performances in the Yale University Theater this summer.

The production is under the auspices of the Fourth International Congress on Enlightenment, a celebration at Yale which is attracting experts on the Period of Enlightenment in Europe 200 years ago.

Piccinni was a rival of composer Christoph Willibald Gluck.

Pres. Ford Signs Extension Of Voting Rights Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring "nothing must interfere with this very precious right" to vote, President Ford signed into law a seven-year extension of the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

In a Rose Garden ceremony attended by members of the House and Senate judiciary committees and civil rights leaders Wednesday, Ford said, "The right to vote is at the very foundation of our American system."

"In the past decade, the voting rights of millions and millions of Americans have been protected and our system of government has been strengthened immeasurably," Ford said as he signed the measure and beat a Thursday deadline when the old law would have expired.

The new law widens the scope of the 1965 act to include language minorities. It also makes permanent the temporary nationwide ban on literacy tests in the old law.

The 1965 act was directed at voting discrimination in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia. Since then, more than one million blacks have registered to vote and more than 1,000 have won elective offices in those states. The extension broadens the federal powers to protect the voting rights of Spanish-speaking Americans, American Indians, Alaska natives and Asian-Americans and citizens of any state where discrimination occurs.

It bans for 10 years English-only ballots in any district where five per cent of the voting age population are members of any single language minority.

Included are certain voting districts of New York City, Texas, and parts of California and Colorado.

Ford said, "There must be no question whatsoever about the right of each eligible citizen to participate in our electoral process."

Fernando E. C. de Baca, special assistant to the President for Hispanic affairs, called the law, "a historic document which signals a major breakthrough for the nation's 16 million Spanish-speaking Americans as well as for members of other language minority groups."

Clarence M. Mitchell Jr., Washington affairs director for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told Ford at the ceremony: "It is wonderful the way you have supported this legislation ... the nation owes you a debt of gratitude."

India Acts To Oust Newsman

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India today ordered the expulsion of Associated Press correspondent Edward Cody for his reporting of the country's political crisis.

Police officers gave Cody a 24-hour deportation order a day after The AP refused a Foreign Ministry request to withdraw him voluntarily.

Cody, who is based in Beirut as the AP's Middle East news editor, became the sixth foreign correspondent to be ordered to leave the country since Prime Minister Indira Gandhi declared a national emergency June 26 and imposed tight censorship regulations on the press.

Foreign Ministry spokesman A.N.D. Haksar informed AP bureau chief Myron L. Belkind on Wednesday that the censor's office was unhappy with Cody's reporting.

Haksar said the censors felt that Cody had violated the press guidelines in reporting this week's parliament action rewriting election statutes under which Mrs. Gandhi was convicted of corrupt electoral practices.

Haksar said the censors complained specifically that Cody had reported comments made by an opposition member in parliament and that he also used material from diplomatic sources.

Belkind replied that Cody had reported the latest developments as any respectable news agency or newspaper would do.

Cody, 31, was a correspondent in The AP's New Delhi bureau from March 1974 to March 1975, when he was transferred to Beirut. He returned to New Delhi on June 29, three days after the emergency was proclaimed.

Four Accidents In City On Wednesday

Four traffic mishaps yesterday resulted in an estimated $2,150 property damage and injured one person, according to Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 7:32 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Greene and Dudley Streets and involved cars driven by George Willoughby of 1509 West Fifth St. and Vickie Larrimore Clarke of Fletcher Hall.

No charges were reported by investigators who estimated damage at $400 to the Willoughby car and $600 to the Clarke auto.

A passenger in a car driven by Deborah Peerce Clement of 309 Jarvis St. was reported injured when the Clement car collided with a vehicle driven by Daniel Andrew Graham of 407 Jarvis St. about 1:15 p.m. at the intersection of Third and Summit Streets.

Police, who charged Graham with failing to stop for a stop sign, estimated damage at $350 to the Clement car and $150 to the Graham auto.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 12:15 p.m. mishap on Dickinson Avenue near the Pennsylvania Avenue intersection.

Drivers involved in the mishap were identified as Helen Dunn Everett of 307 Arlington Dr. and Randall Dale Manning of Glendale Court.

No charges were reported.

A bicycle operated by Jack Harris Wood of 112 Cotanche St. and a car driven by Lee Pitt Hester of 623 Ford St. collided about 1:09 p.m. at the intersection of Third and Reade Streets, police reported.

Damage was estimated at $50 to the bicycle and $200 to the car.

No charges were reported by investigators.

Customers To Pay

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's natural gas customers will pay the cost of exploring for new natural gas sources under a plan approved Wednesday by the state Utilities Commission. Greater supplies of natural gas for the state was the goal of the new program proposed by state gas companies. A severe shortage has been predicted for the coming winter. The companies estimated that exploration will cost $1.9 million in the next year.

Under the plan, Piedmont Natural Gas, Public Service Gas and North Carolina Natural Gas Corp.—the state's major retailers—will share exploration efforts with Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp., the state's only supplier. Now, such exploration is done by petroleum companies.

A commission spokesman said it is hoped that such an effort will result in greater supplies and lower prices to North Carolina's natural gas customers.
